A telling smile: The expression on Judge C. Charles Bokos' face reflects his pleasure over being sworn in as 18th District judge. His appointment by Gov. John Engler signaled a career landmark.

Here comes the (new) judge

C Charles Bokos — make that Judge C. Charles Bokos — admits he hasn't yet come down from Cloud Nine.

Sworn in as 18th District judge Thursday, he embarks on a new career that follows on the heels of his 16-year stint as Westland city attorney.

"The city of Westland has been unbelievably good to me," he told a crowd of 400 who witnessed his swearing-in at the Friendship Center.

Bokos has joined the court's other judge, Gail McKnight, in the 18th District Court building behind the Westland Police Department on Ford Road, between Newburgh and Carlson.

The two have known each other for about 17 years, and Bokos said he welcomes the privilege of serving with McKnight.

"It's a tremendous source of pride for me to be working with her," he said.

Read her lips: Hilda Bokos gives her husband, C. Charles Bokos, a kiss that shows she's proud of him for becoming a judge. "I'm elated," she later said.

Livonia schools chief upset with new cuts in state aid

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

"It appears to me that Michigan is well on its way to creating mediocrity in public education."

That was the crux of Livonia school district Superintendent Joseph Marinelli's letter to Gov. John Engler last week.

Marinelli called the political process — namely the 1991 state aid act which results in an 8-percent fund cut to his district — "flawed and ripe with hypocrisy."

Despite a state equalized valuation (SEV) increase of less than 1 percent (SEV determines how much tax is generated locally for schools) and a K-12 enrollment jump of more than 3 percent (about 550 new students), the district has cut $8.8 million from its $104 million budget.

"It's a bad time for public schools in this state," said Jay Young, director of community relations for the district which includes the northern section of Westland. Marinelli was out of town and not available for comment.

"We'd hoped it wouldn't be this bad. There's going to be a number of programs eliminated or cut back at all levels."

"Clearly, Engler and his administration have gone on this approach consciously — as long as they're in office, this will be the policy."

Young said Marinelli is part of a movement of educators and administrators across the state expressing dissatisfaction with Engler's school policy. The hope is that a coalition of organized opposition could have some impact on future policy.

The district is projecting growth to more than 20,000 students by the end of the decade. Yet information provided to legislators about property values and enrollments didn't reflect real numbers, Marinelli said.

The state aid act collectively causes a decrease in per pupil expenditure from $6,266 to $5,945 (a loss of $321 or 5 percent from last year). Marinelli charges that while the district represents only 1 percent of total state enrollment, it has the burden of shouldering 2.1 percent of the solution to the state's shortfall.

High school and middle school students wishing to participate in any sport and most extracurricular activities next year will have to pay fees of $140 or $100.

Only students eligible for a free or reduced-price lunch will be exempted from paying the participation fee. If the number of students necessary to establish a team or activity is not met, that activity will be canceled and the money refunded.

This is the first time a pay-to-participate program has been instituted in the district.

The streamlined budget also means the district's "rainy day" fund has been whittled from $500,000 to $113,000. The flimsy emergency fund is another concern for the superintendent.

The bad news in the bill for all Michigan districts is that they must now pay a share of employee Social Security costs. In the past, that cost had been paid entirely by the state.

School officials view this as a phase-in of a policy that will eventually see districts picking up the entire tab.

There was no immediate response from the governor.

YMCA latch key program to be available at nine sites

The Wayne-Westland Family YMCA will have its annual latch key services available at local schools for parents whose elementary school-age children need supervision when working parents aren't home.

The Y announced that nine sites in local elementary schools have been established for the start of the school year later this month.

The nine are Hamilton, 1031 S. Schuman; Elliott, 30800 Bennington; Kettering, 1200 S. Hubbard; Patchin, 6420 N. Newburgh; Schwitzer, 2601 Treadwell; Stoltzmyer, 34801 Marquette; Wildwood, 500 N. Wildwood, and St. John Lutheran, 2606 S. Wayne

Road, all in Westland, and Monroe, 5021 Biddle, Wayne.

Mary Rose Cartwright, Y program director, said parents will place children in the latch key program where there is available space.

"Parents may drop off their child as early as 7 a.m.," she said. "The child would then attend school and then be picked up by 6:30 p.m. at the selected school."

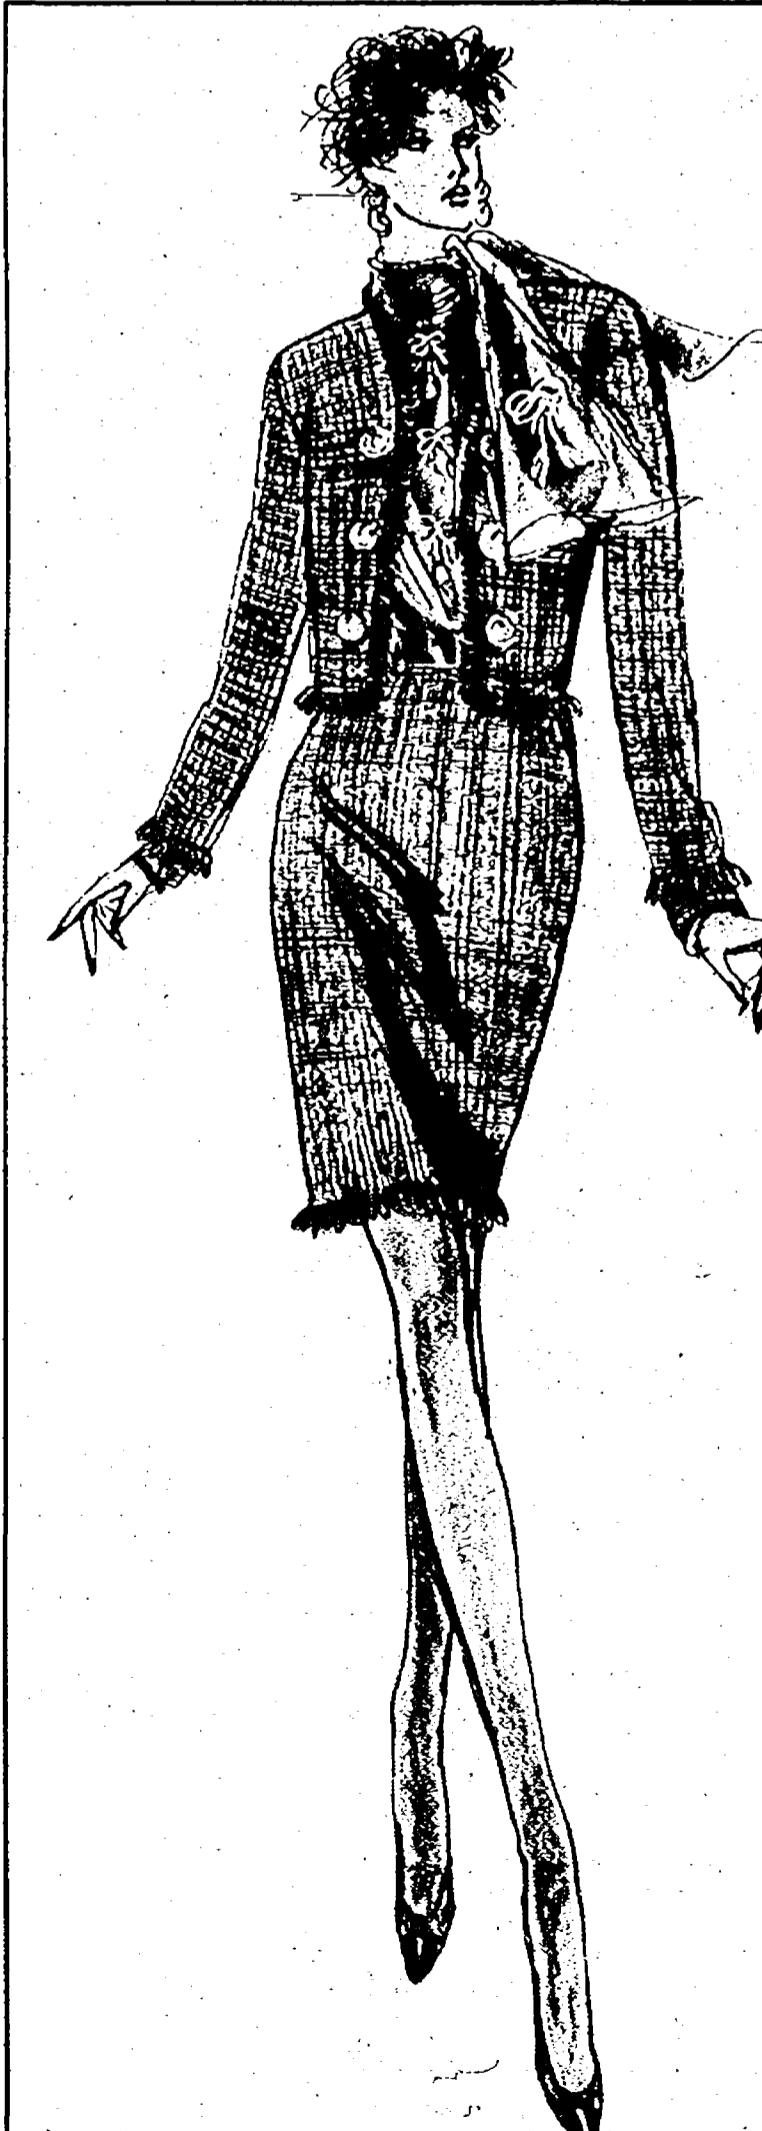

"Also, Patchin, Kettering and Monroe schools have been selected as kindergarten sites. In that program, children would be dropped off after 7 a.m., attend the latch key/kindergarten classes and then be picked up at Monroe, Patchin or Kettering by 6:30 p.m."

Cartwright said there are minimum and maximum enrollments established for each site. Sites not reaching the minimum figure will be closed with those children registered moved to another site.

"Enrollment is a first come, first served basis," Cartwright said. Registration requires a $10 non-refundable fee per child. The latch key service fee is $2.60 per hour, per child in grades one through six and $12 per hour for kindergartners with the charge being one week in advance.

Interested parents may call the Y at 721-7044 or visit its main office, 827 S. Wayne Road, Westland.

Antiques provide ambiance to home

BY RALPH R. ECHINAW
STAFF WRITER

Anyone who says time travel is impossible never walked into Stuart Hoops' house.

Hoops' family goes back more than 160 years in Canton, and he still has most of their things, including a vernacular Queen Anne house built in 1904 when the Civil War was less deeply buried in history as World War II is today.

Hoops has filled the 12-room brick house with antiques dating back to 1830 when his great-great grandfather, William Smith, built a log cabin on the east side of Sheldon Road south of Palmer.

"I like stuff that has history to it," Hoops said. "I like stuff that's interesting."

Recently, Hoops applied to the Canton Historic District Commission to designate his house a historic landmark. If approved, the Smith-Hoops house will join 11 other old township houses with historic designations.

Built for $2,058.76, the house (assessed at $64,000 today) incorporates a wealth of material from the family's previous abode that stood for 70 years on the other side of Sheldon Road. Many of the oak and hard maple joists, for example, were salvaged from the older house.

An upstairs door, taken from the other house, still bears two teasing, amatory jackknife carvings that link Hoops grandmother, Ruby Smith, with two alleged suitors. The carvings, Hoops said, are likely the handiwork of one of Ruby's three sisters.

The basement walls are two-feet thick and made of field stones bonded together with mortar. Many of the red bricks that comprise the outside walls are handmade.

Since there was no access to electricity on Sheldon Road in 1904, gas lines were built into the walls to feed lamps in every room. The lamps are still there; but Hoops lights the house now with electricity that was finally put in 1924.

The rooms are as rife with antique furniture, old-style drapes, wallpaper, photographs and such that it's almost a shock when one espies some new-fangled gadget like a stereo or television set. "I find (new things) boring," Hoops said.

Indeed, the Copper Clad Malleable Range Co. oven in the kitchen, circa 1920, is a cast-iron wood-burning stove that's still used to sizzle up eggs in the morning gathered from the 100 chickens kept outside.

The dining room is comfortably occupied by grandmother Ruby's dining room table and chairs. The parlor seems a haven for old chairs, including one dating back to the 1870s when it was a birthday present for great-grandfather George Smith Sr.

From the vantage point of George's chair, one can see his engraved silver coffin plate, circa 1857, hanging on the wall in a handsome frame.

On the living room wall is a painting of the old family dog, Bob the St. Bernard, who died before 1920. A radio from the 1930s still works, as does a Westinghouse fan from the '40s.

Hoops began collecting antiques 31 years ago at the age of 9. He started with kerosene lamps in the same way that a space shuttle pilot might have begun with paper airplanes.

United Way sets $63 million goal

United Way of Southeastern Michigan Board of Directors approved a goal recently of $63.6 million for the 1992 United Way Torch Drive campaign.

Last year's United Way Torch Drive raised $62,723,691 for health and human services in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

"With increasing unemployment and cuts in both state and federal funding to many agencies, more people are relying on United Way agencies than ever before," said Kenneth Whipple, United Way board chairman. Whipple is president, Ford Financial Services Group, Ford Motor Company.

"While the traditional needs of the community — such as helping the mentally and physically handicapped and feeding the hungry — continue to grow, newer problems, including Alzheimer's Disease, AIDS, and homelessness, have been added."

Leading this year's campaign effort is 1992 United Way Torch Drive general chair James B. Fitzpatrick, vice president, communications and marketing, General Motors Corp.

"Metro Detroiters have always pulled together in difficult times and while $63.6 million represents a considerable challenge, the success of the 1992 campaign is more vital than ever before," Fitzpatrick said. "We need everyone's support this year to meet our community's growing needs."

Assisting Fitzpatrick during the campaign are these vice chairs of solicitation: John E. Lobbis, chairman, president and CEO, Detroit Edison Co.; Jerome B. York, executive vice president of finance and CFO, Chrysler Corp.; and Stanley A. Senecker, executive vice president and chief financial officer, Ford Motor Co.

Vice chair for loaned executives is Beth McDermott, sales vice president, AT&T, Inc.; vice chair for Audit is Edward M. Parks, managing partner, Plante & Moran; vice chair for Labor is Carolyn Forrest, vice president, United Auto Workers; and vice chair for promotion is Phil Guarascio, general manager, marketing and advertising, North American Operations, General Motors Corp.

Vanguard chair is Verne G. Istock, vice chairman, NBD Bank, N.A. and Alexis de Tocqueville Society chair is William T. Vititoe, president and chief executive officer of ANR Pipeline Co.

"This year's leadership is enthusiastic and committed to making the 1992 campaign a success," Fitzpatrick said.

Also announced were the 1992 United Way Torchlighters. They are: Mario Arellano, 12, Detroit, nominated by the Boys and Girls Club; Matthew Lanning, 8, Redford, nominated by the Epilepsy Center of Michigan; David Naiviri, 10, Troy, nominated by the National Kidney Foundation; Christian Nelson, 6, Southfield, nominated by the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council; Ryan Peralta, 12, St. Clair Shores, nominated by Paws with a Cause; and Debra Walker, Detroit, nominated by the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

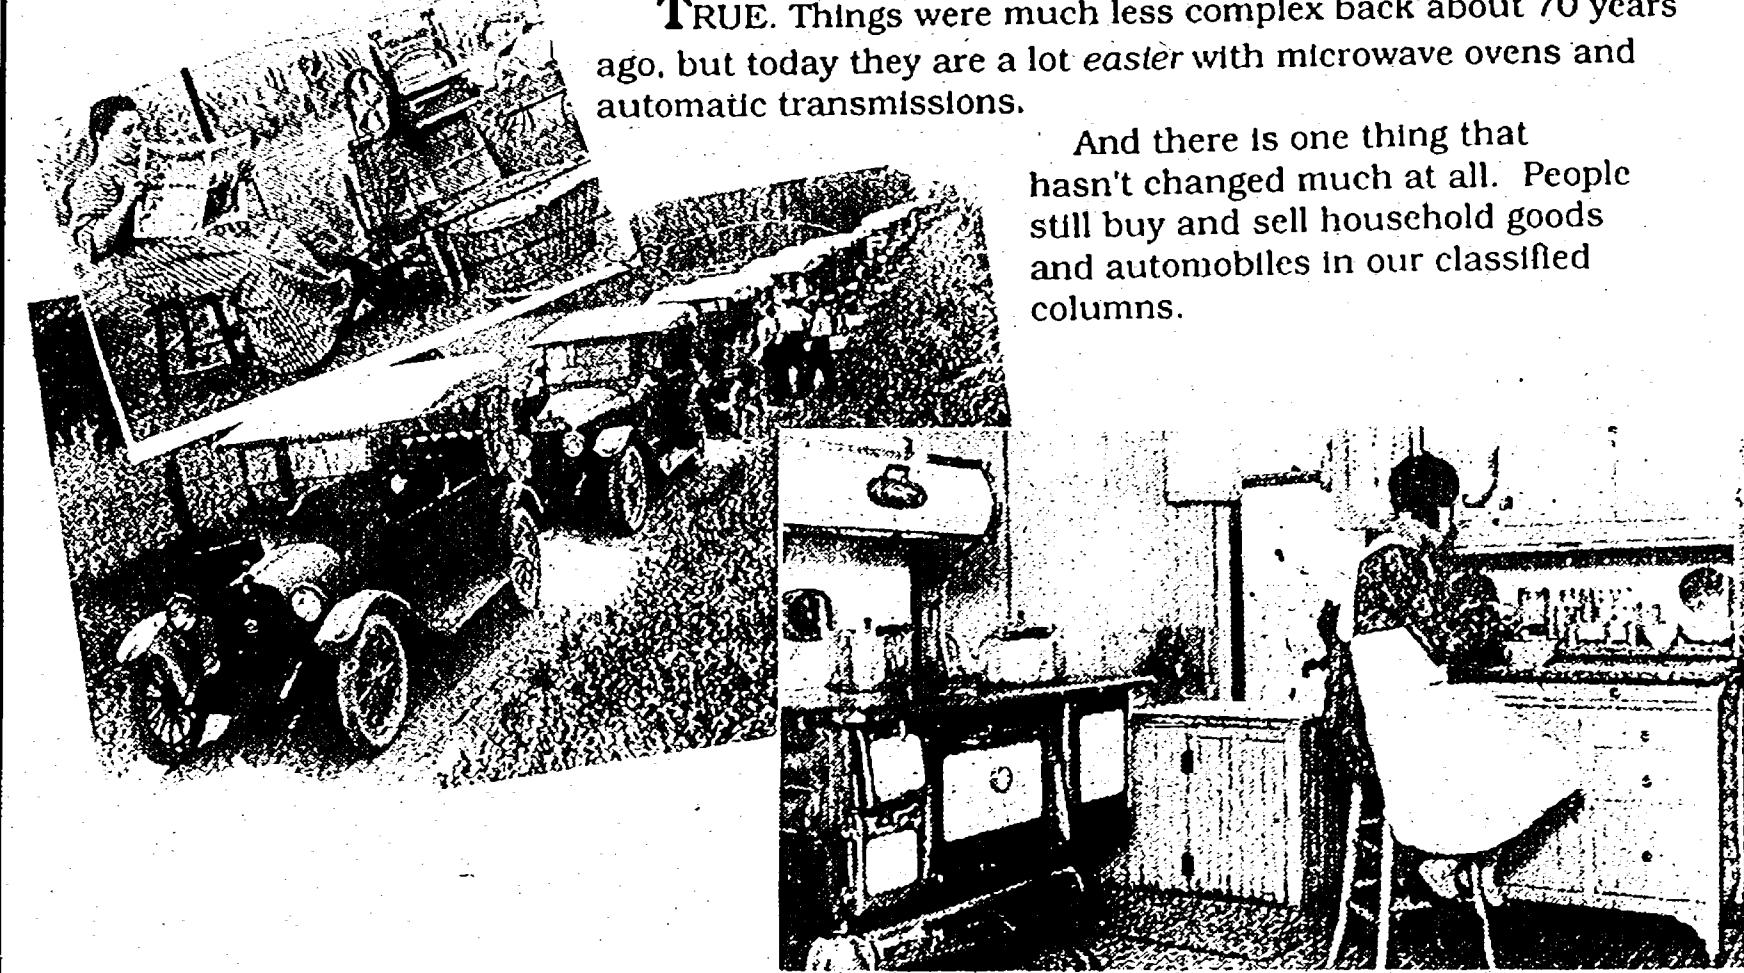

The 1992 United Way Torch Drive campaign runs from Sept. 22 through Nov. 5 and raises funds for 145 local health and human service organizations in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

These agencies which served 1.8 million people last year, help people deal with critical problems such as child abuse and neglect, infant mortality, juvenile delinquency and crime, substance abuse, care for the elderly, families under stress and many others.

Things used to be a lot less complicated.

TRUE. Things were much less complex back about 70 years ago, but today they are a lot easier with microwave ovens and automatic transmissions.

And there is one thing that hasn't changed much at all. People still buy and sell household goods and automobiles in our classified columns.

We've been around for more than a century and we know that classifieds work as well today as they did back then. Probably better.

Memory lane is now a super highway and life has changed a lot, but an ad in your hometown newspaper will still do a bang-up job for you.

Why not try one today?

SC board may be in for change

McCotter, Stempien election wins will open 2 seats

BY WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

Those with an interest in serving on the Schoolcraft board should probably keep their resumes handy.

There could be as many as two openings on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees this fall, but board members won't be filling them until after the November elections.

Board chairwoman Jeanne Stempien and trustee Thaddeus McCotter were both winners in this month's primaries and have advanced to fall elections.

"Stempien, of Northville Township, is one of six candidates running in the non-partisan race for Wayne County Circuit Judge.

Livonia resident McCotter, a Republican, is taking on Democratic nominee Michael Caffery of Plymouth for the 10th District Wayne County Commission seat.

Both would have to resign their Schoolcraft seats if elected, but they'll stay on the board at least until then.

"I can make the meetings, it might be a little tight, but it should be no problem," Stempien said.

McCotter, too, said he'll keep attending college meetings.

"I'm not presuming anything," he said. "That's the surest way to lose an election."

Of the two, McCotter faces the easiest race.

His commission district, including most of Livonia, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township, is considered heavily Republican.

Stempien faces a more competitive race for the county circuit court. She finished fourth in the primary, 2,700 votes behind third place finisher Robert L. Ziolkowski.

"We can't do anything until there's an opening," she said.

a Detroit Recorder's Court Judge, and five ahead of the fifth-place finisher, attorney Joseph V. Brennan. Detroit Recorder's Judge Denise Page Hood, assistant Macomb County Prosecutor Diane Hathaway and attorney John W. Callahan are also on the ballot.

The three highest vote-getters will be elected to the bench.

New trustees are generally appointed after a series of public interviews with other trustees. Appointees would then seek election in June.

Regardless of the Stempien's and McCotter's chances, officials aren't even considering replacements, Schoolcraft spokeswoman Sandra Florek said.

"We can't do anything until there's an opening," she said.

Retired dentist driving toward big Ten-Oh

BY SHIRLEE ROSE IDEN
STAFF WRITER

No one has to drive Dr. Archibald Squires.

The retired dentist still picks up friends for the ride to Kiwanis Club meetings in Detroit and he still drives to his regular gin rummy game on Fridays at the Meadow Brook Country Club.

"I've been a Kiwanian for 45 years," he said, explaining that he is still active in the club leadership.

A Southfield resident, Squires enjoys tooling around in his white Cadillac and feels confident in doing so. "If I felt I was not competent to drive, I'd quit, I'm a cautious driver."

On Aug. 26, Squires will become a centenarian, marking 100 years of life. The occasion will be celebrated with family members.

He and his wife, Elma, now deceased, had two daughters and one son. One lives in California, one in North Carolina and one in Virginia. "I also have five grandchildren and three great grandchildren," he said.

"Although I miss them being near, I have so many friends, I keep quite busy. I think you have to keep busy and active. You have to accept what old age brings you, but the greatest asset is a mind still sharp and functioning."

In his Heatherwoods apartment, Squires lives alone and enjoys a comfortable lifestyle.

Tall, white-haired, with a trimmed beard, and wearing no spectacles, he walks with a cane and says his hearing and sight are pretty good though "not 100 percent."

Born in Ovid, Michigan, a town of about 1,200 residents, his home was a small farm where he lived until he graduated from high school 80 years ago. He left to pursue his college education and a dental school diploma.

Squires practiced dentistry in the General Motors Building in Detroit for 41 years. After his retirement, his son took over the practice before retiring himself.

"Many changes have taken place in dentistry through the years," he said, "notably the equipment with which to practice, and the fees."

Pondering his longevity, Squires said he never expected to live so long. "But I feel very fortunate and I'm grateful for every day."

Though he can't explain his good fortune, he said he believes in moderation and never did anything to excess. "In eating and drinking, I've always been moderate and I always exercised. I did smoke cigars for 10 years but I never inhaled."

"My amount of sickness has been very small."

Keeping healthy helped make Squires an avid golfer who loved the game, but was forced to give it up at age 95.

Although most meals are served at the apartments, Squires still makes his own breakfast and many times lunch as well.

"I can usually get by with a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and a glass of milk."

There is almost no food that Squires doesn't enjoy, but when asked about his favorite, he smiled broadly and said: "Any kind of pie, but ala mode."

Recently Squires drove to Ovid to attend his high school reunion which included the entire school. "There were about 300 people there, and when I was introduced as a member of the class of 1912, I got a standing ovation. I'm the oldest living student, the toastmaster said."

Residents and staff at Heatherwood will honor Squires at a special celebration Aug. 19.

Women on the bench

Judicial candidates see gains, setbacks

By WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

Female candidates did surprisingly well in this month's Wayne County judicial primaries, but it is a political breakthrough or another example of the glass ceiling?

Even the principals themselves don't agree.

One on hand, many female candidates said they sensed a changing, more receptive mood among voters.

"As I went out on the campaign trail I did hear from a lot of voters who told me they thought it was time to give women a chance," said circuit court candidate Jeanne Stempien.

Stempien, chair of the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, placed fourth in the 12-person primary. The top six finishers now are vying for three seats on the circuit court bench. In addition to Stempien the candidates are Recorders Court Judge Denise Page Hood; Recorders Court Judge Robert Ziolkowski and attorneys Diane M. Hathaway, Joseph Brennan and John W. Callahan.

Seven women were among the 10 candidates nominated in county races for the Michigan Court of Appeals, Wayne County Circuit Court and Wayne County Probate Court.

Still, even some winners said their success doesn't mean female candidates are successful at all levels — and may in some way be a symptom of the small number of women elected to state and national office.

PAC money, some said, rarely flows to females.

"I've seen reports from the U-M showing voters are more likely to vote for females for school board and judge but both jobs are seen as less policy making more healing, in a sense," Wayne County Circuit Judge Cynthia Stephens said. "My own earnest feeling is that the focus of power centers is not on the judiciary."

But Stephens, a Michigan Appeals Court candidate, said that could be an advantage.

"In judicial races, you have to be a self-starter, you have to meet with a lot of people and community groups," she said. "While community groups may not be as influential in state or national races they

MONITORING YOUR ARTHRITIS THERAPY

If a drug can help, it can hurt. No drug, powerful enough to fight arthritis, is yet so safe that the same power cannot harm body tissues.

Science has no test whereby a sample of your blood when analyzed, can reveal if your body will tolerate a medication or react badly to it. Only trying a drug and watching the result will tell if you can tolerate a medicine.

Certain arthritis drugs, like gold salts and methotrexates, need evaluation before you can receive another dose. Other medications, like aspirin and colchicine, require periodic review, perhaps every months or year.

How often testing is in order depends on your health. If you have a peptic ulcer, then a doctor will sample your hemoglobin more frequently than is his usual practice. Arthritis medications may cause quiescent kidney or liver conditions to return. If you had such problems in the past, you would need increased surveillance now.

Monitoring is not restricted to blood testing. Some arthritic drugs can cause lung problems and necessitate a chest x-ray at regular intervals. One drug—plaquenil—can affect the eyes and calls for a periodic examination of your retina.

In arthritis, treatment means more than taking drugs. You should be prepared that care includes the additional time and expense of monitoring medications.

POINTS OF VIEW

Spend a night in the land of 'Northern Exposure'

There's a reason for the popularity of the television show "Northern Exposure." Weird people walk around a small town during the day, bumping into each other and doing strange things. At night everybody gathers in the town pub to discuss the day's events.

A lot of us would like to live that way. That's why we watch the show. On a recent vacation, I got the chance to visit what could be the set for the TV show.

The location was an Upper Peninsula town. And, no, I'm not going to give out the community's name. I don't want it to become too popular — it could spoil the trout fishing.

Here's the scene. I'm sitting at the bar with a Michigan writer. We're talking about bourbon, writing and how Trout Unlimited has spoiled fly fishing. On my other side is a bearded Vietnam veteran whose mind unfortunately came out of the war the worse for wear. His job is the same as it was in Vietnam. He blows things up. However, he's now also a herbalist. Perhaps he's healing his soul.

Once in a while he looks up from his beer and says something like "10 of us went in and only two of us came out." I count myself-lucky, along with Bill Clinton, who also didn't get drafted.

At the end of the bar, near the door, are two tables pushed together. Sitting there is a Russia kayak team. They're paddling around Lake Superior, and on this night sampling the local waters of sorts, vodka. There are toasts to Lenin, grad, Lenin or maybe Ross Perot. I can't remember. It doesn't matter. Anything fits in this scene.

The bets at the bar are on which local ladies will bag one of the Russian bears at the dance at the community center. "Well, it's really a pole barn," the writer said.

The bar owner joins us. He's an ex-biker from my old Detroit neighborhood. He's his own bouncer. We discuss mutual friends, one of whom joined the Marines in 1964 after quitting school. In our neighborhood, we were too stupid to know there was a war brewing.

During the evening, I'm talking to a woman who must have mistaken me for one of the Russians. She looked a bit like Maggie O'Connell. Maybe it was her eyes.

I wanted to tell her that dealing with the opposite sex for me now is like my trout fishing, "catch and release." I've got a keeper at home.

But on to other "Northern Exposure" characters. One my favorites is Ed the Indian who wants to be a film maker and talks about his buddy, Woody, as in Allen.

There was nobody like Ed in town, but the writer is a good substitute. He recently had lunch with Nicholson in Chicago where he was working on the movie "Hoffa."

It impressed me.

It's too bad we can't import a bit of northern Michigan to Detroit, like we have with sushi.

Oh, well, my own "Northern Exposure" town will be there next year, and probably longer than the TV series.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers who would chance a strange accidental death if given the opportunity to run away with Maggie O'Connell.

Store makes a quantum leap for our area suburbs

I hope you saw their classy move — even if it didn't run in our papers.

Jacobson's, which stands to be a close competitor, ran an ad on Neiman Marcus' opening day welcoming the world-famous store to Michigan.

Under a map of lower Michigan, it said: "Thumbs up to Neiman Marcus." Then, in smaller print: "You are an affirmation to something, we've known all along, Michigan is a great place to be. Now it will be even better because you are here."

The coming of Neiman Marcus and company — Barneys New York, Crate and Barrel and the other upscale, trend-setting national retailers to Somerset Collection — is more than a chance for the well-heeled to shop till they drop.

It is a reaffirmation of metropolitan Detroit's health and welfare. And retailers, such as Jacobson's, are hoping to reap some spin-offs.

The throngs which have descended on the expanding, remodeled Troy mall, since the store's opening, are not just excited about experiencing one of the country's most sophisticated stores, its merchandise and reputation for service.

They are excited about what it symbolizes — the prospect of renewal for Detroit and its suburbs, which has seen its life blood — the Big 3 auto companies — suffer a major illness. Neiman's and the expansion of Somerset is a shot in the arm, providing impetus to our slow, shaky steps back to economic and psychological health.

Smiles were all I saw as I walked Somerset Friday. Smiles and hanging from arms, a lot of Neiman's shopping bags.

The whole mall was buzzing: Saks was serving hors d'oeuvres. A young saleswoman at Ann Taylor said she could already sense the draw Neiman's would provide. In her mind, the crowds confirmed the decision by the Ann Taylor stores to move to a bigger space on the mall's new second level. . . . The mall's restaurants as well as the small croissant/coffee bar were packed.

Beyond the fine stores and elegant mall are the jobs being created — in a loggy, metro Detroit economy. Hard-hatted workers were all about, crafting the expansion. The woman from whom I bought stockings had worked at a small advertising agency in Troy; the man from whom I purchased a shirt for my husband had been in the word processor/computer department at Sears. "I made the quantum leap," Kevin Carey said. And another saleswoman had previously been in real estate. Perhaps their job changes led to openings for others.

Rumors of Neiman's coming to the Detroit area have been circulating for years. Now, in a move well-timed for our spirits, it's happened — together with a ream of other stores we're anxious to get to know.

This is the only new store Neiman's will open this year. And they've set it in our corner of the world. Weekend figures from mall management show about one in every 5 cars had an out-of-state license plate — with Ohio, Indiana and Ontario leading the way.

Now, if we can only learn to spell it right — that's Neiman's — "i before e, except after c" — and now N.

are very important in judicial and local races."

In perhaps the most-watched area race, former Oakland Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert finished a surprising third in the GOP 11th District Congressional primary.

But Wayne Circuit Judge Helene White said she didn't believe Gilbert lost votes because she was a woman.

"To me, it seemed voters were turned off by the negative campaigning between Alice Gilbert and Dave Honigman," White said.

Unlike some of her fellow nominees state Appeals Court candidate White said she believed further political breakthroughs for women are near.

isn't a new thing anymore, but there are more women being elected to other offices," she said.

Others cautioned that female candidates' success in judicial races doesn't mean the legal profession is becoming more receptive to females.

"In our office we seem to see better female job applicants than males but a lot of big law firms don't hire that many females," said Nancy Diehl, head of the county prosecutor's office child abuse unit and a candidate for probate court.

"For women to make it in the field we really have to do well," said Diehl, who faces top vote-getter Cathie B. Maher of Canton Township in the fall race for Wayne County Probate Court.

Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Denise Page Hood, a candidate for Wayne Circuit Court, may have put the issue in the best perspective.

"It's important that women are being elected judge," Hood said. "But the real test comes when we vote for a female county executive or governor."

CHEF LARRY JANES

Summer the season to be sweet on corn

Mention summertime cooking and immediately you conjure up thoughts about corn. Plump, juicy sweet corn, dripping with butter. Whether it be steamed, boiled or grilled, corn is one of the delights of the summer season.

Corn is indigenous to America. When it comes to culinary heritage, corn belongs right up there next to old glory. During the 13th century in southwestern United States and in Mexico, corn or maize meant life itself, and the cultivation of corn was an act of worship. From birth through death, the economic, social and religious activities of the Hopi Indians of Arizona were bound to the growing of corn. No child could be born with security and survived the first 20 hazardous days of life without corn. For this reason, a special ear of corn was dedicated to each newborn baby as its "corn mother."

No one in Europe knew about corn until Columbus sailed to America in 1492. On Nov. 5, 1492, two Spaniards whom Columbus dispatched to explore the interior of Cuba returned with a report of "a sort of grain called maize which is very well tasted when boiled, roasted or made into a porridge."

Explorer's discovery

Later explorers to the new world found corn being grown by the Indians in all parts of America, from Canada to Chili. The Indians grew all the main types of corn that are raised today. They prized corn with colorful kernels — red, blue, pink and black or with bands, stripes or spots. The kernels ranged in size from as small as grain of wheat to as large as a quarter. The Indians frequently used corn patterns to decorate pottery, sculpture, and other works of art.

The colonists used corn as money; with it, they paid their rent, taxes and debts. They even traded corn for marriage licenses. In many settlements, corn helped people from starving in difficult times.

Although corn is grown throughout the United States, the greatest production is in an area of the Midwest called the "corn belt," consisting of the seven states of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Ohio. This year, almost 5 billion bushels will be grown in this area alone.

Corn products

If this sounds like more corn than one could handle, figure that of the 94 assorted supermarket items that go into most grocery carts, over a quarter contain one or more ingredients from the corn processing industry. Not to mention the corn derived feed ingredients that are so important to our animal economy. Add to that the fact that many industrial products ranging from cast metals to automobile tires depend on the use of specially designed corn starches.

The Janes Gang is a frequent user of corn and its products. A week doesn't slide by without utilizing corn meal, canned or frozen corn, corn syrup, corn flakes, cornstarch or corn oil in our culinary regime. In addition, corn is used as the major fermenting ingredient when processing whisky.

Corny memories

With summer winding down and corn prices dwindling as local markets reap locally grown products, you'll be seeing corn soon at the familiar dollar per dozen price. At those prices, it would behoove the price watching cook to take advantage of this pricing boom and to "put some up" whether it be canned or frozen to enjoy throughout the upcoming winter months. Don't forget to use those husks and cobs in the compost heap!

Growing up in Wyandotte, corn was a frequent staple in the Janes Gang household. Momma utilized corn in everything from simple side dishes to hearty soups. One of the dishes that is most memorable was her stewing muskrat in corn in the old Neaco roaster for dad. Although us kids never were interested in sampling it, the corned muskrat was usually up-planted with hot dogs. The family cottage was right off Pointe Pelee and I can remember taking walks between swims to local farmers right down the road who grew and sold fresh corn to the Heinz factory in Leamington.

I would hand the weathered farmer a dollar bill and with "sis" and a grocer bag in tow, we would venture into the fields where the corn was twice as tall as us and fill the bag in minutes with fresh corn on the cob.

Dinner that night was corn in its true and simple form, dripping with oleomargarine. Ah, those were the days!

Don't allow summer to slip past your kitchen without enjoying the great taste of corn.

In the Houlihan's Culinary Traditions Ltd. kitchen, Caroline watches her mom Elaine like an eagle. Elaine cooks like her Italian mother did, with her hands and eyes.

Not a problem if you're cooking for one, but a big one if you're cooking for the masses.

"We're standardizing all our recipes," said Elaine Houlihan of Bloomfield Hills who started Houlihan's Culinary Traditions Ltd. about 2 1/2 years ago. Houlihan's, based in Auburn Hills, makes preserves, applesauce, pasta, tomato pasta sauces and olive oil pasta sauces. The Italian gourmet products are under the name Elena's.

When they were making a new line of Elena's olive oil pasta sauces with fresh herbs, Caroline stopped her mom to weigh ingredients, so if push came to shove, she could get the orders out on time.

The time came. Mom had to fly to New York unexpectedly when her mother became ill. Caroline and her siblings who help out at the family business, made the sauce and got the orders out.

This kind of attention to detail, quality, and caring make Michigan food products special.

"Most of us are family owned businesses," said Elaine Houlihan. "We're giving the country the absolutely best quality. We don't know any different."

Businesses like theirs are growing

Made with PRIDE Made in MICHIGAN

Made by families like yours, Michigan specialty food manufacturers like Elaine Houlihan of Bloomfield Hills, are gaining a reputation for outstanding products. "We're giving the country the absolutely best quality," she said. "We don't know any different."

and starting up everyday. Houlihan's employs 10 people. Caroline, a graduate of Michigan State University, is her mother's assistant and takes care of marketing. Her sister Jill, who earned a bachelor's degree in finance, and now attends Detroit College of Law, takes care of the books. Her brother John who will be attending Oakland University in the fall to study education, helps out in the summer.

Last year, Elaine Houlihan started the Michigan Specialty Food Manufacturer's Association to promote and help manufacturers of specialty foods in Michigan.

To be eligible for membership in the association, companies must be in business at least six months and have six wholesale accounts. Membership is $125 a year. For membership information, call Michele Marshall of Mucky Duck Mustard Company at (313) 683-5750.

Many of the people who started these companies did so with encouragement from family and friends who raved about their products. Besides Houlihan's here are the other charter members.

Michaelene Hearn makes gourmet granola. She's contributing a portion of the profits from her Rain Forest Gatherings, a granola made with papaya, pineapple, mango, banana chips, cashews and Brazil nuts to the preservation of rain forests.

Celias Rose Varner (Celia's Sweets) began making pizzelles (an Italian cookie) 10 years ago when her mother-in-law gave her a pizzelle maker. Now her daughter, son, and husband help her make 10,000 pizzelles a week.

Jack and Kristin Trabue of Word of Mouth Foods in Plymouth developed their business from their small butcher shop in Plymouth. They began to sell their pasta sauce in the shop, and customers bought it, and told their friends to do the same. The company also makes barbecue sauce and seasonings.

Judy McConnel of Wenchwork, Ltd. makes Jezebel Sauce, a sweet hot sauce, hot dill mustard, natural herbal vinegars, herbal blend and mulling spices.

First cousins Jacqui Ridley and Gail Jacob started making tea breads for Jackie's husband at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle. Soon a wholesale business developed. In 1990, they bought a retail muffin shop and developed muffin chips, available in six flavors, and distributed across the United States.

Michele Marshall of the increasingly famous Mucky Duck Mustard Co. in Franklin uses a family recipe to make Mucky Duck Mustard. She recently published a cookbook with 170 recipes. With the exception of the first chapter of all chocolate desserts, each dish is made with Mucky Duck Mustard. The cookbook is available at Merchant of Vino in Birmingham and Troy.

and we can make that style from grapes grown in southwest Michigan in the Lake Michigan Shore appellation."

To meet the growing demand for Michigan chardonnay, St. Julian is planting additional acreage. Braganini also wants to plant merlot. "Cabernet sauvignon won't ripen in our climate," he maintains.

In our opinion, the best sparkling wine in the state is produced by Larry Mawby at L. Mawby Winery in Suttons Bay. The 1986 Bien de Village ($30), a sparkling blend of 70 percent pinot noir and 30 percent pinot gris is a classically produced rendition with toasty and yeasty notes over cherry-like fruit. It's creamy and delicious with all the style and elegance of a rich French champagne.

A bargain at $15 is Blanc de Blancs, the other bubbly from Mawby. Produced for 52 percent seyval, 37 percent viognier and 11 percent chardonnay, it's lighter and crispier than the Bien de Village. In a blind tasting of world-class Blanc de Blancs, this wine would show at the top.

Mawby's innovations are showcased in his 1991 Pinot Gris ($10.20) from 100 percent estate-grown grapes. Also 100 percent barrel fermented, this wine was aged on the lees for added complexity. It is in limited production and represents the very best in Michigan winemaking.

Doug Welsch, winemaker for his family's Penn Valley Vineyards in Fennville, is excited about a new grape named chardonel resulting from the cross of seyval by chardonnay originating at the New York State Agriculture Experiment Station in Geneva. The 1991 Penn Valley Chardonel ($9) is a good rendition and shows much promise for the future.

Also impressive is the 1991 Penn Valley Gewurztraminer ($9) full of floral spice with a delicate palate impression.

The ever-gregarious Bill Skolnik, winemaker at Leelanau Cellars in Omena has pulled out all stops with reserve-style chardonay and two new blends named Via a Vis.

Eastwood resurrects western with 'Unforgiven'

TICKETS PLEASE

He may look like it when wrestling squealers, but Billy Munny is a cowboy with a dark past and a nasty reputation.

Legend has it that the outlaw-turned-pig farmer once shot his way out of a showdown with three lawmen. During a drinking binge, he would gun a man down over the slightest provocation.

In "Unforgiven," Munny, now a widower who's seen the error of his ways, wears years of sorrow beneath Clint Eastwood's trademark squint. His final brush with wickedness leads to the best western Eastwood (or anyone) has made in years.

On the surface, "Unforgiven" has all the elements of a standard horse opera. Munny, his old partner and an eager young gunlinger ride off to collect the bounty offered by prostitutes who want dead the man who scarred the face of one of their girls.

Look deeper and you'll find a heavy moral exercise in Western justice. What is proper punishment for cutting up a woman? Is $1,000 enough justification for taking anyone's life? How many must die to avenge the loss of your best friend?

Gene Hackman has a great character role as Little Bill Daggett, the sheriff who's not at all thrilled about bounty hunters descending on his town. He requires every man to surrender his guns before entering his jurisdiction.

English Bob, played with hammy theatricality by Richard Harris, tests local law when he blows in, spouting off about the English monarchy and packing a six-shooter. Little Bill, who knew the flamboyant assassin previously, personally kicks the stuffing out of Bob before riding him out of town on a rail.

You spend the next 20 minutes anticipating the confrontation between Little Bill and Munny. Their meeting takes some truly fateful twists that make even murkier the definition of western hero.

For his part, Eastwood paints a vivid and understated portrait of a man just one drink away from sinking back into the meanness he has worked so hard to overcome. It's light years ahead of his Shane redux in the aptly titled "Pale Rider."

And like any Eastwood picture, there are plenty of quotable lines, especially the introspective ones about taking a man's life: "The only thing he's got; the only thing he'll ever have."

As a director, he has the sense to steer clear of the visual tricks used by the strong directors (Sergio Leone, Don Siegel) he's worked in the past. He and cinematographer Jack Green have a clever way of mixing Technicolor hues with the kind of shadows too rarely used during the golden age of Hollywood

While it may not have the emotional punch of the classic western, "Unforgiven" has little to apologize for. It proves again that Clint Eastwood is the only man alive who can keep breathing life into the traditional western.

Madonna class aims to help supervisors sharpen skills

Supervisors and managers, whether new to administration, anticipating a supervisory role, or just wishing to sharpen their skills, can take advantage of a 13-week course, leading to a supervision certificate program, at Madonna University this fall.

The program is designed to provide supervisors in any area with awareness of their role, and acquaint them with the theory and vocabulary of supervision. Developed for Level I supervisors, those in higher levels of any organization may benefit from the series. Participants may select any or all of the modules and those completing all will be awarded a certificate of completion for the entire program. A continuing education certificate will be awarded for each class. All courses are held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Cost is $45 each or $500 for all 13 courses.

The first course, "Selection of Supervisors," will be held Sept. 12 and will hold exercises that assist participants in choosing individuals for a supervisory position.

"Motivation of Supervisors," held on Sept. 26, will focus on the latest techniques for self motivation and inspiring others and study the works of Maslow and Herzberg and Graves.

The third module will identify "The Marginal Performer," and examine standards for performance, while stressing improvement of these workers. It will be held on Oct. 10.

"Discipline for the Supervisor," held on Oct. 24, will distinguish problems in the work force and apply techniques which are most effective for supervisors. Appraisal of performance will be simulated at this workshop.

Held on Nov. 7, "Discipline in the Work Force" will examine behavior of employees and assist in identifying successful or troubling performance. The course will focus on skills which control the work force and increase satisfaction and productivity.

"Handling Organizational Change," held on Nov. 21, will deal with the massive change taking place in the work force in the corporate area, the departmental area of work and in the individual performer. Modern methods are examined including the use of team work, group decision making, and continuous improvement and value analysis.

Additional workshops include: "Resolving Conflict in the Workplace," on Dec. 5; "Time Management," on Jan. 9; "The Coaching Process for Supervisors," on Jan. 23; "Roles and Duties of the Supervisor," on Feb. 13; and, on Feb. 27, "Communication With Individuals," addressing written and oral communication of supervisors.

In March the final two courses, "Communication with Groups," and "Leadership," will be held on March 6 and March 20, respectively.

For more information, or to register by phone with credit card, call (313) 591-6188. Madonna University is located at 1-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.
