Rape victim can't forget terror

The emotional fallout hasn't ended for a Westland woman who was raped last summer while her daughter, 11, watched. During that night of terror, she thought her daughter was killed and the assailant was going to murder her.

School tax plan backers take to streets

A massive election-eve push to win support for two Wayne-Westland school tax proposals is planned this weekend.

Hundreds of volunteers — hoping to protect school programs from a potential budget ax - are set to descend on district neighborhoods amid hopes of winning support and convincing voters to go to the polls Mon-

Workers also have rented an office on Wayne Road and have set up a telephone bank to reach as many district residents as possible this week.

"I feel real good right now about the election," Superintendent Larry Thomas said Tuesday. He commended parents, educators and volunteers for their "United for Kids" campaign. Some 300 supporters have been involved in the effort. "I am amazed at their dedication," Thomas said.

Eleanor Harrington, Wayne-Westland election official, said she doesn't expect a heavy turnout among the district's 60,000-plus voters.

Some 700 absentee voters have been issued, but Harrington said she couldn't predict what percentage of voters would go to the polls from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Monday.

"I really don't know," she said.

Turnout reached 25 percent in the last school millage election in June

Voters will decide two proposals Monday:

■ A 6-mill renewal that would expire in three years. School officials chose the full ek renewal of mill proposal that narrowly won approval in 1991. (One mill represents $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.)

Internal probe ordered in fire

Westland fire officials will launch an internal investigation to determine whether city firefighters responded properly to a massive blaze Saturday that destroyed a 16-apartment building in Glenwood Orchard.

Mayor Robert Thomas also will issue an independent report if he can locate a supposed citizen-taped video that was reportedly made during the first 30 minutes of the fire that left one resident hospitalized.

Some residents of the apartment complex on Newburgh Road, north of Glenwood, have criticized what they called a slow response to the 3:23 p.m. blaze. Some alleged that firefighters "sat around and watched" the fire, Thomas said.

Thomas and Lt. George Riley, fire department spokesman, tried to separate truth from rumor during a press conference Wednesday afternoon at Westland's cable station on Warren Road. The segment was taped and will be aired later.

Riley and Thomas cited several problems, such as equipment failure, that plagued efforts to fight the roaring fire that forced 16 families from a two-story building in the rear of the 23year-old complex. Damage estimates have topped $1 million.

A flurry of misleading telephone calls delayed firefighters, who arrived on the scene in five minutes and five seconds. A normal response takes three to four minutes, Riley said.

Callers mistakenly reported a fire at such locations as Gilchrist Street, one block to the north; at Schweitzer Elementary School; and at Michigan Avenue and Newburgh. Firefighters initially went to Gilchrist, where a citizen "redirected" them to Glenwood Orchard, Riley said.

By then, the building was engulfed in flames. A man whom Riley refused to identify was immediately treated for second-degree burns on his hands, arms and face - and then rushed to Annapolis Hospital. He is recovering but remains hospitalized.

The man's child, whom Riley said is under 3 years old, also received minor injuries when the fire erupted in their living room. The fire started in a chair and was caused by "human carelessness," Riley said. He said he could not elaborate but denied rumors that a burning cigarette was suspected.

Firefighters encountered a 'critical" problem when an aerial device on one truck had a mechanical failure. Firefighters had to battle the blaze from ground level, Riley said.

"The fire progressed rapidly during this equipment failure, he said. The truck had been serviced and tested only two days earlier and had been working properly, he said.

Gawkers caused problems by stepping on fire hoses and standing too close to equipment, the mayor said.

There were way too many people much too close to that fire,"

Riley denied rumors that water supply was too low, saying it was adequate.

An initial investigation has indicated that smoke alarms were working properly in the building, Riley said, and he confirmed that the complex meets fire codes.

Fourteen of 16 families have no renter's insurance. Riley said.

Baby sitter charged in girl's assault

By Darrell Clem

A 25-year-old baby sitter has been charged with molesting a 7year-old girl while he was supposed to be caring for her and three younger siblings at their south Westland residence.

The baby sitter, identified as David William Black, was ordered to stand trial on sex charges when he appeared last Thursday in Westland's 18th District Court for a preliminary examination.

The incident allegedly occurred on the night of March 17 when Black, a family friend, was babysitting the children at their Arenac Court residence in Westland's Norwayne neighborhood, said Sgt. Laura Moore, who investigates sex crimes for the Westland police department.

Black, appearing before Judge Gail McKnight, was ordered to stand trial after he voluntarily waived the hearing, in a move _ | Wella - 32300

Black, whom police described as a transient, remained in the county jail this week in lieu of $20,000 cash bond. He has been charged with two counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct and could face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison if convicted.

A plea of not guilty was entered for him in court.

Black had been a longtime friend of the 7-year-old girl's mother, Moore said.

"She grew up with him," the sergeant said.

mother was brutally raped.

Even before the since convicted intruder came into the bedroom, the 11-year-old heard him in the kitchen, where three empty beer cans were later found. The girl thought at first that her father had come home.

Before the rapist left McKinnon's bed, he warned her not to move until he had gone from her residence on Westchester Street. Moments later, mother and child were reunited in a tearful embrace.

We both started crying," said McKinnon, an assembly line worker at Ford Motor Co.'s Wayne Assembly Plant. Then the mother phoned the Westland police, who took her to a hospital.

The emotional fallout from the rape last June didn't end when that horrifying night ended and the sun came up.

McKinnon learned she had not only been raped, but also was robbed of a television, a videocassette recorder, her wedding ring and other jewelry, and a radar detector. Her car also was taken but. unlike the other belongings, was later found in Inkster.

She worried that she might have contracted AIDS. But she has been tested twice for the virus that causes AIDS; both tests indicated she wasn't infected.

■ Mother and child had to quit counseling sessions because of a dispute between two insurance companies — McKinnon's and her husband's — over who should pay the medical bills.

■ The family never went back to their residence on Westchester Street. They have since moved to Wayne.
"I wouldn't go back into the house," the daughter said. "I still can't go to bed unless my sister is in the room. And I'm afraid to go into my mom and dad's closet. I'm afraid to walk around the house at night.' McKinnon wanted to talk with the Observer about her experiences because she believes it's important to talk openly about rape. It's tragic, she said, that some women never seek help after they've been raped. McKinnon found solace in a new friend, another Westland woman, 32, who had been raped twice by the same man.

The two women have talked for hours about the rapes. They supported one another in court until their attacker was convicted and sentenced to 15 to 25 years in

The woman had been studying electrical engineering until the rape, but she had to drop out for a semester. She has resumed her studies and expects to graduate next year.

She still lives at the Birchwood Street residence where she was raped. She still wakes up from nightmares, sometimes shaking.

"I think I'll be looking over my shoulder for the rest of my life," she said. "I don't think I'll ever erase the fear.'

Area agencies offer help for rape, abuse victims

By Darrell Clem

Women struggling to cope with rape or domestic violence don't have to suffer alone.

One 32-year-old Westland woman who was raped twice by the same man sought help — and found it — in First Step, a private non-profit agency in Westland.

"The people there were just wonderful," she said.

First Step has a 24-hour bot line, 459-5900 which can be called any day for help.

Other agencies recommended by sex crimes investigator Laura Moore, a Westland police sergeant, include the 24-hour Dearborn Crisis Center (584-7831) and the Butterfly Center of Livonia (427-8585), which offers support Agencies such as First Step provide individual counseling, peer support groups and temporary emergency shelter for women who need it, said Karen Porter. assistant director.

First Step and the Dearborn Crisis Center will send someone immediately to hospitals to meet with women who have been raped' or abused. They also will provide support for women as their cases go through the court system.

Porter warned that anyone can be raped.

"It can happen to anyone, anywhere at anytime," she said. 'People expect (their attacker) to be a stranger, but it can also be someone you know.'

'However, women can take steps to reduce the risks, Moore said. She offered these tips:

Make sure all doors, windows and doorwalls are securely locked. Special security devices, such as a chain lock, can help.

"It's a shame that people have to do this, but in this day and age it's a necessary precaution,' Moore said.

If someone is trying to break in, call 9-1-1 immediately for help. Seconds can make the difference.

■ Moore suggests that women carry a spray pump bottle filled with ammonia to try to ward off attackers. "It can work," she said.

first asking who is there.

■ When outdoors, walk in a confident manner. "Sometimes a rapist will pick out a woman who looks shy," Moore said.

If you fear you are about to be attacked, look the person directly in the eve. The fear of being identified can scare away some rapists, Moore said.

Carry a whistle. A whistle can scare off an attacker or let others know you need help, Porter said.

Practice defense techniques, such as kicking or punching, that could disable an attacker and help you to escape, Porter said. But try not to react in a way that could place your life in danger.

If you are raped, don't shower or brush your teeth before going to the hospital. You may be washing away evidence that could lead to an arrest and conviction, Moore warned.

If raped, notify the police department immediately. Officers will take you to a hospital.

The city's finance director, Michael Gorman, stressed that he didn't want to become embroiled in a political debate. (Pickering is expected to challenge Thomas' reelection bid this year.) But Gorman defended the administration's actions, saying officials have consistently sent in all of the necessary paper work on the $1.3million grant.

Thomas himself could not be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon.

Gorman said state officials didn't even sign the grant until late September in 1991 — after the deadline that they have accused Westland officials of missing.

"They're looking for a way to get money back, and they're picking on Westland," Gorman said.

A report is still expected by summer on the need for a Westland library. Some supporters have called it appalling that a city of 85,000 residents doesn't have its own library.

Opponents, however, have pointed to two elections in which voters turned down requests for taxes to support a library.

Where the project goes from here remains a mystery, Pickering said. But the city council has scheduled a special session for 6:15 p.m. Monday, April 12, to discuss the issue with state Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, who has for many years more state funds for libraries.

City officials hope that Faust can offer encouraging words about the possibility of reversing the state decision:

School plan still means losses

By Marie Chestney Staff Writer

Livonia school district administrators estimate a potential $3.4 million loss if the latest proposed property tax reduction/ school finance plan is passed in Lansing.

Superintendent Joseph Marinelli outlined concerns he said area lawmakers must address before they consider supporting the compromise plan put forth by Gov. John Engler and a 14-member bipartisan legislative team.

"I appreciate what you are currently enduring to deal with the difficult issues of property tax reduction and school finance reform," wrote Marinelli in letters to legislators who represent the district, which includes the north ern section of Westland.

"I fully understand how difficult it is to achieve consensus on these complex issues within a highly-charged political arena. That said, however, I must share my concerns regarding the governor's new compromise pro-The proposal, coupled with this year's projected $1.8 million shortfall, would lead to $5.2 million in cuts from Livonia's 1993-94 budget, Marinelli said.

"As superintendent, I'm in a very difficult position because I must determine next year's budget and have little fund equity to deal with financial uncertainties," Marinelli said.

The latest compromise proposal, unveiled Monday, calls for rolling back all school tax rates to 18 operating mills. (One mill represents $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.)

The plan also allows voters to vote for up to nine additional

The original version called for cutting school tax rates to 20 mills, with an option for districts to vote for five more mills.

Agency explores incinerator conversion

One reason Garden City, Westland, Inkster, Wayne and Dearborn Heights are seriously exploring converting their incinerator into an electric plant is the hope that the private developers will install new air-pollution controls at their own expense.

However, while they discussed the progress of negotiations with private developers, Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority board members feared that the private developers wouldn't agree to bear the risk of tighter federal air standards indefinitely, because federal regulations are changing "almost instantly.

For the benefit of his co-authority board members, chairman Jim Plakas recalled his own experience dealing with federal regulators in the automotive industry.

"You would go through a development stage in the process of a 48-month projection of working on vehicles," said Plakas, who is also mayor of Garden City.

"I start at 48 months as my time frame, and I'm at 20 months. when all of a sudden, in their wisdom, those guys came down from the funny farm in Washington, and said the standard is no longer applicable, they've tightened it

"All this work that we did went out the window, and we start right back from scratch. Whoever sits in that Oval Office has got to understand that you develop a standard, and you give a time-frame that's realistic so you can attain that standard. They can't be changing their minds every 12 months," Plakas said.

The worst part of having to start over, Plakas said, was the standard could always change

For example, if the authority were to be cited for being in violation. Plakas said it would be impossible to fight the regulators because the authority lacks the money to fight, and the regulators could shut down the incinerator and keep the authority in financial limbo, even if the violation charge was false.

'Dealing with regulatory agencies, it's not so much they change the law, it's the people who interpret the law," said Ulrich Bauser, the authority's recently retired executive director who continues to head the agency as a consultant until a successor is named.

'You say this is the law and they say, no, this is the minimum law, we feel you should do this.

"Then you get into that bar-gaining thing, saying 'Well, do I fight them, or do I pay for it?' Most time, you pay for it. If you have money to fight, it will cost more," said Bauser.

A one-year waiver of the state Headlee tax limitation amendment. Otherwise, the district's millage rate would automatically roll back and force a deficit situation, school officials said.

The election has been quiet compared to prior elections, when hundreds of residents stormed school board meetings to protest higher taxes.

Things seem to be calmer this time," Thomas said.

School officials hope that's an encouraging sign, but tax opponents believe voters will quietly register their "no" votes.

In 1991, voters rejected a proposed tax increase three times before finally approving the 7.75mill plan in June of that year. But it was a narrow victory: 8,114-to-

Some voters are expected to oppose the millage in the wake of a 12.9 percent increase in property assessments.

School officials have outlined three scenarios that could happen

Superintendent Larry Thomas commended parents, educators and volunteers for their "United for Kids" campaign. Some 300 supporters have been involved in the effort.

Voters could approve both plans. The district would levy a total of 46.64 mills, leaving the district with an estimated fund balance of $1.8 million at the end of the 1993-94 school year.

Voters could approve the 6mill plan but reject the Headlee override. The district would levy 43.20 mills but have a deficit of $3.5 million, officials said.

■ Voters could reject both plans. The district would levy 37.20 mills and face a $12.8 million deficit - one that school officials say would require massive cuts in programs and services.

Wayne-Westland school district telephone callers are opposed to two tax proposals on Monday's special election ballot by more than a 3-1 margin, according to a Westland Observer poll.

Based on 74 voice mail box responses to the Westland Observer Monday and Tuesday, nearly 78.5 percent were emphatic and sometimes emotional about voting against the two tax proposals. In favor were only 21.5 percent.

Of those opposed, many cited high property taxes; unaffordable monthly house payments; teachers' salary raises; the disclosure of an additional $4 million in the school district's audit after a major tax increase was approved nearly two years ago; and the financial impact on retirees living on fixed incomes.

Supporters of the tax issues commented that a good school system is needed or the community will "go down the drain" and that a quality education is needed by children. Calls from people who sounded like students said that quality education is needed for youngsters who plan on col-

Fifty-eight people called to yoice opposition to the proposals while 16 were in favor. Of those 16, two said they were in favor of. Proposed I and opposed to Proposal [I. The survey reflects only those who called and isn't to be construed as a scientific sampling of public opinion.

Proposal I seeks renewal of 6 mills of a 7.75 mill increase approved two years ago. Proposal II, if approved, would waive the Headlee tax limitation amendment and allow the district to collect more money per levied mill. Following is a condensed version of comments of some of the callers who are opposed to the tax proposals:

"I am opposed because of the deceptive ballot language.

There are runaway teachers' pay raises without results. Look at the MEAP (Michigan Education Assessment Program) scores. I'll support the proposals when students begin to learn."

"We don't get what we pay for

"I moved here a year ago and I'm ready to move out already. My property taxes are too high.

"Teachers are overpaid and have a shorter work year than others. The economy is down. Take a big (pay) cut."

Key points of plan approved by House

Here is the outline of the compromise legislative plan endorsed by Gov. John Engler and adopted Tuesday by the House of Representatives. Next stop: the Senate.

The purposes are to cut property taxes, limit assessment increases and bring equity to public school funding.

■ Reduce school operating property taxes to 18 mills statewide by constitutional amendment. School boards in impacted areas could levy 9 mills more. Voters could authorize up to 27 mills. Current statewide average: 34.6 mills.

Raise sales tax from current 4 percent to 6 percent by constitutional amendment. After Oct. 1, new sales tax revenue would be constitutionally dedicated to the school aid fund.

■ Guarantee $4,800 per pupil in every school district. It would be phased in: No district would have less in 1994 than in 1993; no district would receive more than a 10 percent increase per year. Districts would have to pay their own Social Security. and retirement costs from their basic grants — no state payment.

■ Limit property assessment increases by parcel.

Net tax impact: a cut of about $200 million.

Area Dems say no, GOP reps OK plan

By Tim Richard Staff Writer

Suburban school districts are in for a period of belt-tightening, regardless of voters' action in a June special election on school

Hardest hit will be out-of-formula districts with big property tax base. Property tax bills will drop the least, and the schools will have to pay all their Social Security and retirement costs out of local money.

"You're getting less, no matter what happens," House Taxation Committee chairman Willis Bullard. R-Highland, warned Michigan Education Association mem-

After a 141/2-hour session, the House early Wednesday passed two measures to give poor districts more money and work the greatest tax shift Michigan has seen since the first sales tax was passed in the Great Depression.

EXAMPLE

Bill 146, the property tax cut, was adopted on a 96-0 vote. House Resolution G, the sales tax referendum, won on a 74-22 vote, one vote more than the twothirds needed to put it on the ballot. Thirteen members either were absent or left the chamber before final action at 2:30 a.m.

Both measures go to the Senate, where passage may come more easily than in the deeply divided House.

If voters say yes, here is how taxpayers in Observer & Eccentric school districts would fare under the proposed property tax cut, with the current tax rate shown first, 1994 rate next and net cut ■ Clarenceville — now 41.4 mills, to 27, cut of 14.4.

■ Garden City — now 41.79 mills, to 24.01, cut of 17.77.

■ Livonia — now 31.46 mills, to 25.65, cut of 5.81.

■ Plymouth-Canton — now 33.87 mills, to 20.24, cut of 13.63. Redford Union now 40.03 mills, to 22.82, cut of 17.21.

■ South Redford — now 38.02 mills, to 27, cut of 11.02. ■ Wayne-Westland — now 47.12 mills, to 27, cut of 20.12. Among Wayne County members, all voted yes on the property tax cut except Richard Young, D-Dearborn Heights, who missed the vote.

On the sales tax proposal, Democrats Justine Barns of Westland and William Keith of Garden City voted no, and Young missed the vote. Republicans Lyn Bankes of Livonia, Jerry Vorva of Plymouth and Deborah Whyman of Canton

Barns' and Keith's no votes were a surprise because their taxpayers in their school districts would get substantial property tax cuts.

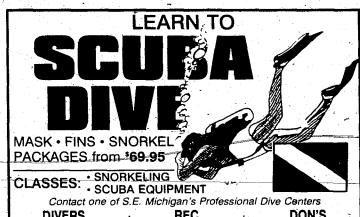

"Part of the problem," said

Keith, "is you're putting retirement and FICA (Social Security) in the basic grant. And you're putting it in the Constitution so it's not so easily tweaked. 'There's a degree of equity in Inkster (part of Keith's House district). Both Barns and Keith were displeased that their schools will have to cover adult education and special education out of basic grants instead of getting line-item categorical" aid from the state. "My adult ed people are all bent out of shape," Keith said.

Said freshman Whyman, whose House district extends from Plymouth-Canton to the Buren schools: "My local units are not pleased with the cap on assessments and the freeze. School boards were concerned with having only one millage election a year or possibly two. (On the whole) I think it's a good ef-

High-tech highwaymen move fast By BILL COUTANT STAFF WRITER

Businesses and consumers alike are finding out the hard way that a criminal with a computer can wreak havoc faster than you can say microchip.

Police and government agencies are closing the gap on computer crime, but it still costs businesses and consumers billions of dollars annually. The best way to crack down on that type of fraud is to prevent the criminal from gaining access to computer information.

That's the message U.S. Secret Service agents are trying to get out to business owners and anyone using a personal computer.

'High-tech fraud has real advantages for criminals," said Bruce Towers of the Secret Service. "There is no gun, no violence and it's clean. It can be done with a personal computer." The legal system is catching up, with laws that specifically address computer fraud and fraud that relies on high tech methods, such as credit card fraud. But criminals have kept pace with technology as well, leaving a well-informed public and busi-ness community as the best means of preventing such crimes.

vice chose the Farmington Hills Police Crime Watch seminar at the Alexander Hamilton Insurance building to make its case for prevention.

Computer crime costly

The 1984 Crime Control Act and a similar Michigan statute address specific types of computer fraud that use "access devices" such as credit cards, account numbers and computer codes. But the newest type of fraud costs consumers, businesses and taxpayers billions of dollars annually, Towers said.

And Americans, who have on average have eight credit cards.

often are easy targets.

Computer "hackers," who usually don't think of themselves as crooks, have gained access to banks, credit card accounts, hospitals and federal agencies and have stolen money and compromised sensitive security systems, he said. They've even fixed their own college grades with a keys-

"They see themselves as mod-ern-day Butch Cassidys," Towers said.

Teenage hackers often see their criminal acts as a challenging computer game or may even aid other criminals through a computer bulletin board or network to avenge a parent by giving out credit card or account numbers.

But those teen mischief makers of yesteryear often go undetected and undeterred.

Those kids who started this kind of activity as teenagers 10 years ago are often working in important positions for banks, businesses, even the government," said the Secret Service's Tonv Olivieri. "Now they can do some real damage."

Area crime connection

Olivieri has investigated computer fraud cases in the Detroit area, including two with Farmington Hills connections.

One involved a Farmington Hills man who was convicted of computer fraud last fall in Ann Arbor as part of a network of hackers.

The other case involved what police think is a nationwide computer fraud ring operating from Farmington Hills involving men from Canton, Livonia and Plymouth. That case, which began in: February of 1992, is still in the courts, Olivieri said.

Although large corporations are. the frequent target of computer; fraud because of their size and as sets, smaller companies are hit as well. And for a small company, one-month's worth of bogus phone bills could spell bankrupt

'If you have a small business, that is doing a million a year in gross receipts, someone could tap into his phones and run up $45,000 to $100,000 in one month, easily," Towers said. "He's out of, business."

The limit on liability for stolen credit cards will not stop someone from ruining a card holder's credit either. And unless a business follows procedures to avoid being defrauded to the letter of the law, that business could wind up taking the loss.

Making sure not to give out credit card numbers, bank account and telephone card information is a way to avoid trouble. Limiting access to computer information and computers themselves to only those employees who need it is another way to protect against fraud.

Local Democrats recall Ferency's fire

BY PAT MURPHY STAFF WRITER

Don Tucker of Birmingham and Jeaneane Havstad of Plymouth might have different professional backgrounds. Tucker is a lawyer and Havstad works with computers for EDS at the General Motors Tech Center in Warren.

But Tucker and Havstad have at least two things in common. One is a respect and affection for Zolton A. Ferency, the outspoken champion of civil rights who was buried last Saturday in East Lansing.

The second is a love of politics, although each practices in a different way. Tucker is chairman of the Oakland County Democrats. Haystad describes herself as "politically burned out.

"I'm still very interested in politics," she said. "But I realized we were losing because we didn't have any money. So now I send a check instead of walking the pickex line.

Havstad attended Ferency's funeral out of respect she said she developed during the days when they helped organize the Human Rights Party. Zolton loved the Constitution," she said, explaining at least part of how Ferency came to be known as the champion of unpopular causes.

Tucker was in Hawaii when Ferency died March 23 and wasn't here for the funeral. "I was shocked when I read about his death in the New York Times."

Ferency, who was a candidate for governor five times and for the state Supreme Court three times, died in Sparrow Hospital from complications following a massive heart attack.

'Omnipresent gadfly'

"Zollie was an omnipresent. gadfly," said Tucker. "And I mean that with all the respect and admiration I can muster."

Another person who expressed respect is Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson, a selfdescribed conservative Republican who often crossed ideological swords with Ferency.

"Ferency would plummet you with facts . . . then turn on the charm," Patterson said. "He could tell a joke or make a quip that would prove a point as well as swav the audience

In the late 1960s, for example,

Ferency triggered belly laughs except from the Michigan attorney general — when he said something like, "Heaven forbid when he said something happen to Leon Cohan (then the attorney general's chief deputy) and Frank Kelley really become attorney general.'

Ferency had such a penchant for skewering other Democrats that Bernie Klein, then a Farmington Hills resident, once introduced him with a reference to the Zolton Ferency wristwatch.

Mythical watch

"Put it on, and it cuts your wrist every hour on the hour, Klein said of the mythical Ferency watch at a dinner spensored by the liberal ADA, Americans for Democratic Action. Jerry Tobin, public safety director in Southfield, remembers Ferency for his penchant for seeing things differently than others. Their paths crossed occasionally, Tobin recalled, but most often at Wayne State University where he studied criminal justice and

Recalled falling out

At least part of the falling out was rooted in the state Democratic convention of 1970 in Grand Rapids, recalled both Tucker and Havstad, who were both present and advocating for an end to the Vietnam War.

'We had a midnight caucus," said Tucker, who at the time was a law student working for the late

Sale could throw wrench in plans for Mayflower

Mayflower Hotel co-owner Scott Lorenz said the hotel's owners have the financial backing to get the Mayflower out of receiver-

But Lorenz said complications could affect his family keeping the landmark hotel — because the bank that holds the lien on the hotel is exploring the option of going up for sale

His comments came more than three months after the announcement that the hotel was in receivership, as the hotel co-owners were having trouble paying $1.5 million in debts.

The change in the hotel's status - from Chapter 11 bankruptcy to receivership - was expected to be followed within weeks by the announcement of a date for a

That date is typically set after a business goes into receivership to offer the property for public sale. Typically, the lien holder is the highest bidder.

After the sheriff's sale takes place, the former owners are given six months to repay debts or lose the property to the lien holder.

While the Lorenz family initialexpressed confidence they would retain the hotel, Scott Lorenz on Monday offered the strongest statements so far on the family keeping the landmark Plymouth hotel, at Main and Ann Arbor Trail.

We have plenty of people that will back us for what the place is worth.

"That's not going to be an issue. The issue is when can they release it and if they're going to sell it," Lorenz said. "The ball's.

Shall we dance? Wednesdays at Botsford strictly ballroom

Ballroom dancing has returned to the historic Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills, where Henry Ford I and wife Clara often danced through the evening.

Traditional ballroom dancing to live Big Band sounds will be heard at 8 p.m. every Wednesday at the Botsford Inn, 2800 Grand River at Eight Mile Road.

Dances will include the fox trot, tango, samba, rumba, mambo, waltz, polka and cha-cha. Music will be provided by the area's top bands who are being lined up by event coordinators Jack Ennis of Livonia, Jim McNabb of Inkster, and Joe Thorton of Livonia.

This trio of golfing buddies who discovered the joy of dancing have formed a group for the preservation of ballroom dancing and hope to find allies each Wednesday night at the Botsford.

"This will be a great place for singles and couples of all ages to meet new friends and old friends, have a great time dancing, and enjoy the quaint atmosphere of this historic inn," said Ennis.

'Most dance floors are a tile surface. This wooden, spring-type dance floor is a novelty all dancers will want to experience. This is really a dancer's dream."

Anyone attending the weekly dances will have the unique opportunity to dance in the same ballroom where Henry Ford I met Clara Bryant and dance on the only Spring Board Dance Floor in the area.

The dance floor was designed by Ford himself, when the auto maker owned the Botsford Inn. When Ford purchased the Botsford Inn in the 1920s, among the many improvements he ordered was a new dance floor which he designed with disk washer-like devices at strategic locations along the floor joists so the floorboard would "spring" beneath the feet of dancers.

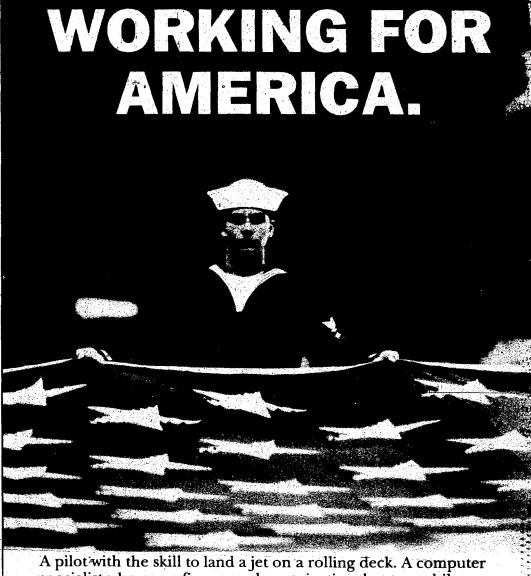

The movement, although slight, is sufficient to prevent the legs and feet of dancers from tiring after two or three hours on the dance floor. Ford not only ordered the dance floor to be constructed provided for excellent acoustics in the ballroom, both because of his great love of dancing.

The ballroom pretty much has been left in the condition as when it was first built for Ford, except for the introduction of air conditioning. Dance lovers today can rediscover those pleasures each Wednesday from 8-11 p.m.

Admission is $4 per person and for the novice or non-dancer, private dance lessons will be given for only $2 per person from 6:45-7:45 p.m. The dance instructor, Nora Nader, is a former Arthur Murray teacher who now instructs dance for international competition.

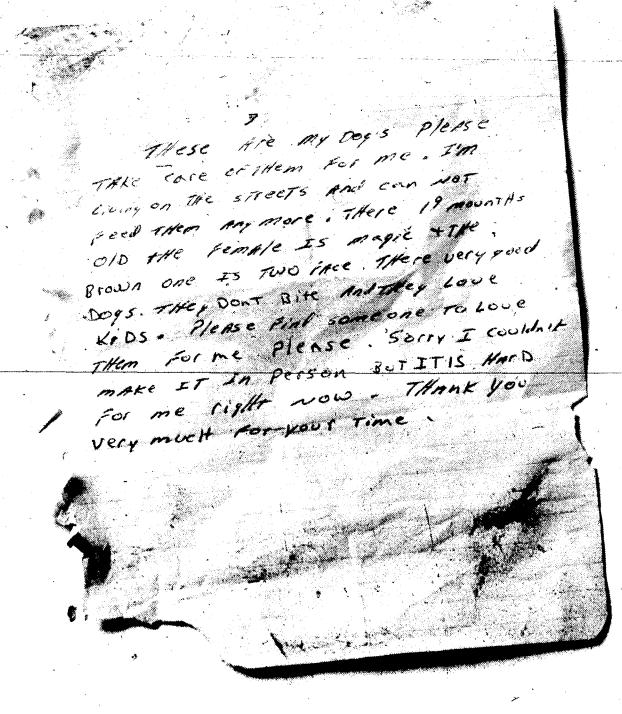

When the old Botsford Inn was threatened by road improvements in the 1920s, Henry Ford acquired the facility, which at that time was the site of local square dances and Ford's favorite inn.

Ford moved the structure 300 feet back from the roadway, refurnished the rooms, and ordered several restoration projects.

Woodcocks will discuss China at Madonna program

Leonard Woodcock, a former U.S. ambassador to China, and his wife, Sharon, are bringing a bit of China to Madonna University next month.

The husband-wife team, who moved from China to Ann Arbor in 1981, will address current relations between the United States and China, business opportunities in China, as well as the changing roles of women in Chinese society.

The Woodcocks lecture will begin at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, April 20, in the Campus Activities Center. Madonna University is at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia. The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information, call the Madonna University School of Business at (313) 591-5117.

Sharon Woodcock said the couple lecture frequently on China to further understanding between the two countries.

The Southeast Westland Homeowners Association, representing 500 households in an area bordered by Annapolis and Inkster Road and Van Born and Middlebelt roads, was first organized nearly 40 years ago and has been a driving force in the community ever since.

"It's been our way of keeping our hand in the kettle of government, said Charles Jackson, a neighborhood resident since 1968. "As a group we can alert the city to our concerns.

The Southeast Westland Homeowners Association includes voting Precinct 28 and has often played an important role in city politics.

Harold Fowler, an Annapolis Park resident for 36 years, serves on the city's cable communications commission and remembers the role the homeowners group played in political races of long ago. Now, Fowler is pleased with the relationship between the city and the neighborhood.

"Mayor Robert Thomas walks through our neighborhood frequently talking with us and the city has been very responsive to our needs," Fowler said. "The administration has made us feel like an important part of the community even though we are geographically slightly detached.

Woman practices what she preaches to win cancer fight

BY MARY LOU SONG STAPF WRITER

When Lois Bierens was diagnosed with lung and ovarian cancer in 1986, doctors said she had six months to live. Bierens proved the doctors wrong.

"It was the Lord's work. The survival rate for ovarian cancer is 5 percent. But because that was combined with lung cancer, the doctors told my daughter I had about a 1 percent chance. They told me to make a new will. I gave away my jewelry. But in the second surgery, they didn't find any-

At the onset of her battle with cancer, Bierens realized she would have to practice what she preached

Since 1979, Bierens has worked with breast cancer survivors as a swimming and low-impact exercise instructor through the EN-CORE program at the Northwest YWCA in Redford Township. ENCORE is a national YWCA program designed to improve the physical and emotional strength of women who have survived breast cancer.

Still volunteers

Although she retired four years ago, Bierens still works with EN-CORE as a volunteer. Each EN-CORE session lasts about 90 minutes. Floor and pool exercises are performed to music and are designed to improve strength, flexibility and mobility of the shoulders, chest and arms. Discussions are devoted to identifying and sharing concerns about breast cancer.

"We do everything in modera-Bierens said. "We don't want to make them a cripple, that isn't the idea. But we want them to watch what they're doing.

'We always have something to bring something to this." ENCORE was created as a rehabilitation program in 1972 by Helen Glines Kohut, a New Jersey resident who had a mastectomy. She combined her experience as a nurse, ballet teacher and swimming instructor to develop the program.

According to the Michigan Carreer Foundation, one in eight women will develop breast cancer. In Michigan, some 7,000 new cases will be diagnosed and 2,000 women will die of breast cancer this year.

Bierens said ENCORE provides a support system for participants. The women, who range in age from mid-20s to early-80s, often form friendships they might not otherwise have.

"You go through the steps," Bierens said. "Everyone wonders, they question, they're angry. Everyone ask, 'Why me?

"But there's something about accepting, as much as you can accept, and going on and feeling that you have a support team. Very seldom do we have someone come in, inconsiderate of others' feelings, thinking, 'I'm the only

Race for Cure

Bierens is also continuing her support of other cancer survivors. On April 17, Bierens will participate in the second annual Race for the Cure, a run-walk event to raise funds for breast cancer research.

The Detroit race, one of 34 nationwide, is presented locally by the Meyer L. Prentis Comprehensive Cancer Center of Metropolitan Detroit and nationally by the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Women who have died because of breast cancer will be honored at Local sponsors include Jacobson's, Detroit Edison foundation, Taubman Co., Amoena Corp., Comerica and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

About 5,000 participants are expected this year. More than 3,000 people participated in last year's race. The 5K (3-mile) race will be at the Detroit Zoo on Woodward and 10 Mile.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m. The entry fee is $13 before April 1, $16 by April 9 or $20 the day of the race. Fees are tax deductible. Proceeds go to breast cancer research, education and follow-up diagnostic tests for low-income women.

Ballot issues

Tax needed for quality schools

Liability bill aborts resolution

oters in the Wayne-Westland school district face two important tax proposals on Monday's ballot.

Proposal I, if approved, would renew 6 mills of a 7.75-mill increase approved nearly two years ago.

Proposal II is more complicated. If approved,. it represents, in effect, a waiver of the Headlee tax limitation amendment, allowing the school district to levy a higher millage rate.

Despite nagging unemployment in the community, a quality education is more vital than

For that reason, the Observer urges voters to approve both proposals to avoid major cuts in educational programs and services.

Approval would generate sufficient dollars to continue operating a quality program and stop the state from taking away dollars because of complications in the state aid formula, which provides more state funds for districts with high millage rates, such as Wayne-Westland.

Earlier this week the school finance picture became more complicated because of the discussions between the governor and the Legislature on a proposal which would cut property taxes substantially and increase the state sales tax, subject to voters' approval in a planned June 1 special election.

With all the quick-changing developments in Lansing, the Observer urges local voters to realize there is no sure thing in state school financing. Over the years, there have been many school finance proposals written, considered and then ignored by either the public or politipromise of their own.

It would be financial suicide for local voters to reject Morday's tax proposals in the hope of Lansing coming to the district's rescue. It hasn't happened in the past.

The best thing for voters to remember is that while the current school financing method with a reliance on local property taxes is unfair, rejection of Monday's tax renewal will not solve any problems.

Approval of Proposal I is particularly crucial because the renewal represents $8.3 million, or nearly 10 percent of the operating budget for educational services and programs. A defeat of that proposal would put the district back to 1990 when a millage increase was rejected and, among other things, the school board enacted pay-to-play fees for sports and elective programs.

While rejection of Proposal II is attractive to many homeowners because it would reduce the impact of the assessment increases, a defeat would mean a "double-whammy" for the district because state revenues, based on the local millage rate, would reduce the available dollars for school operations.

The Observer recognizes that the district levies one of the highest millage rates in the state, but a voters' rejection isn't going to solve the local or state school financing problems.

School financing is complicated. Rising property taxes are uncomfortable for many families. But until there is a change in the way the state finances schools, reducing its over-reliance on property taxes, voters have the painful choice of voting in tax increases or severely cutting school i nere is a major financial crisis facing all Michigan's public schools. While the state is currently proclaiming that they will correct the problem, this response is difficult to believe, given that our state has dramatically decreased their level of support and lessened their responsibility to educate our youth. In previous years the state paid over 50 percent toward the education of our students. Today, the state contributes 32 percent and then asks local school dis trict taxpayers to make up the difference.

We have revised our renewal request to the community from 7.75 mills to 6 mills. We have identified areas in the budget where we can streamline and economize. We have a new Board of Education and we have a new administration. Together, we want to improve our dis-

It's no wonder the superintendent has shaken up the curriculum department. It's no wonder that Norine Blake, the assistant superintendent for curriculum, is going somewhere else to work. I wish we could move our house and leave the district too, but we can't.

Tax public retirees too

t recently came to my attention that public retirees do not pay Michigan Income Tax on their retirement benefits. This includes school employees and state, city, county and township workers. To say I am a bit upset about this is putting it mildly.

A state that is supposedly in a financial bind certainly is in no position to endorse such perks.

I have further learned that a representative, in February of this year, was seeking bill cosponsorship from his fellow representatives for a bill to exempt non-public pensions from the state income tax. As he stated in the memo, 'The intent of this legislation is to promote tax fairness with that of public pensions which are now exempt." May I repeat again — in a state in a financial bind! Wouldn't it make more sense to have a bill sponsored that would har the public retirees start paying state income tax - wouldn't this also promote tax fairness?

I have spoken to not one person who is aware of this inequity. It is my feeling that this should be brought to the attention of the general public and am hoping that you will assist in airing this through your editorial department.

Knowing how the latter suggestion would affect the pensions of retiring legislators, that idea would really have a hard time getting through the Legislature — to say nothing of getting the governor's signature.

walked into a pizza place at Lahser and Maple Monday to take a pita sandwich back to the office for a desk-side lunch.

While the makings were being assembled somewhere in the back, I talked with the attractive, efficient young woman who had taken my order. She looked to be about high school age. but then I thought not, since it was the middle of the school day. And this was Bloomfield Township, not Kalkaska.

"How's business?" I asked, in my very best interview fashion. "Kinda slow," she reported, "but it should pick up about 1." It was now noonish.

"I came in at 8 a.m. and I have to work until 10 p.m.," she expanded. Wow, I said, feeling sorry for her. How could they schedule you for such a long

Well, she went on, I didn't want to go to my math class, so I came in to pick up my check. I wasn't scheduled to work until after school. But they said they were short-handed and could I stay and work. "I sure hope my Mom doesn't find out."

She was a local high school student. She had chosen to work that day instead of going to school.

Never one to keep my mouth shut, I gave her some parting advice, which I'm sure wasn't meaningful. "I don't mean to sound like an old fuddy-duddy," I said, "But you have all your life to work. You just have one opportunity to go to school."

And, as I left, I thought: Someone at that pizza place should know enough not to ask a student to work during school hours.

Back in my office, going through my mail between sandwich bites, I picked up a recent release from the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research.

It was headlined: "Jobs not always good for teenagers, U-M researchers find, especially when teens work long may have more costs than benefits," according to the institute's study of more than 70,000 high school seniors from across the country. It links number of hours worked to a range of undesirable behaviors and outcomes:

Poor school performance.

■ Alcohol/drug use. Aggression.

Fighting with parents.

■ Not enough exercise and sleep. The bad effects of work apply mostly to students who put in a lot of hours.

Students who worked 10 hours a week or less were no worse off than those with no jobs. And those who worked five hours or less per week actually reported more time for sleep and exercise than those who didn't work at

However, it appears that the chicken and egg syndrome is at work here:

'While the number of hours teenagers spend on the job may make some contribution to poor school performance, it's more likely that students with a history of poor school performance are willing to spend long hours at part-time jobs," researchers conclude.

Local case in point: Our teenager at the pizza restaurant took off from school because she didn't want to go to math class. I dare say it wasn't the day she expected her "A" test back.

On the other hand, she is needed at the pizza restaurant. She performs a service. She is efficient. She talks back and forth with customers as an equal. And she is paid.

Someone other than me should be listening here. Her teacher, her school, her parent(s) need to hear her cry. They need to know not how smart she is - but how she is smart.

And help her feel at school as she does on the job - competent and val-

Conditions mimic those in 1927 state disaster hat New York World Trade Center bombing — five dead, a thousand injured - is being hyped as one of the greatest explosions in American history, but it can't match a Michigan disaster that killed 44.

In May 1927, the same month Charles Lindbergh flew solo across the Atlantic, Andrew P. Kehoe, 56, dynamited the school and his farm buildings in Bath, a tiny village about 10 miles north of Lansing.

Strangely, historians ignore the incident. Willis F. Dunbar, author of the landmark "Michigan: A History of the Wolverine State," never mentioned it. F. Clever Bald, in "Michigan in Four Centuries," kissed it off in a fraction of

"In 1927, when a maniac blew up the consolidated school at Bath, Clinton County, killing 38 pupils, Senator (James) Couzens paid for a new building, and money from the Children's Fund was used to help care for the in-

Perhaps we shouldn't be surprised. History books also slide past the fact that 23 Michigan legislators were convicted in 1945 of taking bribes, giving the murder of state Sen. Warren Hooper a sentence or so.

Newspapers bring up the Bath school explosion in Sunday features from time to time, I'm told, but somehow I always missed the articles.

The matter was brought to my attention by a Christmas gift from Gundella the Witch, a lady who has occupied a corner of Michigan for 62 years and taught school for 20 of them. Gundella never had heard of the Bath tragedy until she bumped into "Mayday: The History of a Village Holocaust" in Okemos on an autograph expedition for her book of ghost stories.

Kehoe was a farmer, Democratic political hopeful and embittered member of the Bath board of education. In those days, the school superintendent ran the education end of things. The school trustees personally ran the business end, talking to bus drivers about tire problems and performing maintenance on the building.

Kehoe was an expert mechanic, and other farmers sought his help in blowing out stumps. He had access to the school basement, and no one raised an eyebrow when he purchased large quantities of dynamite.

I said Kehoe was embittered. He didn't think Bath needed to consolidate, build a high school, try to meet

University of Michigan accreditation standards and raise taxes - particularly when the farm economy was going to pot as Europe recovered from the Great War. Note well: Every single one of those problems exists today except the need for more school construction.

Kehoe timed two explosions to go off simultaneously on a Wednesday morning - one under the school, the other on every building on his farm. Apparently he killed his wife the night before. Unable to sell or give away two horses, Kehoe blew them up, too.

Then he drove his Ford truck to town as rescue work was going on and blew up himself and the hated superintend-

Author Grant Parker's painstaking work, much gleaned from newspapers, reads like a mystery novel. The explosion occurs halfway through, and the remainder is flashbacks into the twisted psyche of Kehoe, his wife and other main characters.

From a newspaper friend in Clinton County, I hear Parker's book is considered less than top notch in Bath, though I am too inexpert to know why. Parker published it himself - unfortunately, because virtually every page has a spelling or grammatical error. Nor is there a word of biography on the author.

Two thoughts from the perspective of a journalist:

■ No one spotted Kehoe's tragic potential in advance, in part, perhaps, because the Bath school board held all its meetings behind closed doors. That was in the days before the Open Meetings Act, now under great attack.

■ The Society of Professional Journalists circulates public service ads which say: "If the press didn't tell you,

Medicine's success rate breeds its own failures ith Tipper Gore pinchhitting for Hillary Rodham Clinton, the national road show of town meetings on health care came to Dearborn last week.

Testimony was serious, thoughtful, sometimes heart-rending.

Our health care system is truly absurd, simultaneously consuming 14.7 percent of our gross domestic product, increasing in cost at nearly triple the base rate of inflation, and leaving more than 35 million Americans without access to medical insurance.

How is such a perverse set of outcomes possi-

Among the culprits, consider the astonishing success of medicine itself. Two examples from my own family make the point.

When my grandfather died in 1954 of a rur tured aneurysm in an artery, there was no such thing as arterial transplant surgery. He just died, and that was all there was to it.

By contrast, my mother suffered from cardiac arrhythmia, corrected for 17 years by a pacemaker. She contracted pericarditis, a lifethreatening infection of the heart, and survived thanks to literally quarts of antibiotics. She had Parkinson's Disease, slowed and mitigated by a bit of dopamine drug therapy

The fact that my mother died at the ripe age of 90 is testimony to the amazing ability of modern medicine to keep almost anyone alive. even without the heroic measures of intensive

All this, of course, is very expensive. But we have arrived at the point where it is conceptually possible to make a kind of gruesome tradeoff: money spent versus death avoided, for a while

Sooner or later, while talking with any thoughtful physician, you'll hear something like: "And you must realize that approximately 50 percent of all health care expenses are undertaken in the last six months of life."

What's that? The biggest part of our health care expenditure stems from the wholly natural instinct to buy at very great cost another few months of life for our loved ones!

This is such a shocking statistic — and so remarkably pervasive among the doctors I have talked with — that I spent considerable time mmaging through a lot of medical literature

A 1984 study on Medicare services reported that those who died made up 5.9 percent of the study group but consumed 28 percent of Medicare expenses. For patients who died, 46 percent of costs were spent in the last 60 days of life.

tion. They consumed 20 percent of physician contacts, 35 percent of hospital visits (and nearly 50 percent of hospital days), and 33 percent of national expenditures on health care

If my research is any guide, the factual basis for rational discussion of health care policy is

On one hand, we have hopeful politicians saying we can cut enough health care costs to extend coverage to those who lack it by slashing

On the other, we have many, many doctors who assert as fact that getting at health care costs will require us as a society to face, for the first time in human history, the complex moral tradeoff between dollars spent and death avoid-its fifth annual "Around the World" Scholarship Auction and items could take purchasers around the world.

The auction begins at 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 17, in Livonia's Laurel Manor Banquet and Conference Center.

The vacation packages read like a travel brochure: Alaska, Orlando. New York City. Minneapolis. Hawaii, Los Angeles and London.

Weekend packages in Michigan take buyers to Blissfield, Jackson, Ludington, Livonia, Novi and Harbor Springs.

Other items to be auctioned include: artwork by Hubert Wynne Massey, Theresa Politowicz Heires, Jeanne Poulet and Edward Ferguson, as well as Soupy Sales, Joe Namath and New York Jet Geo Nock. Massey,, who was recognized this year by the National Society of Mural Painters of New York, has donated two pieces "Study of a Tree" and 'Charcoal Study of Rembrandt."

The list also includes: jewelry, electronics, sports equipment and memorabilia, tickets to theaters and sporting events, dinners, swimming pools, home collectibles, Millionaire for a Day and a Cadillac Seda De Ville which will be raffeld the night of the auction.

More than 700 items will be sold during the live and silent auctions.

Proceeds from the auction go to Madonna University student scholarships. Last year's auction raised more than $200,000. The goal this year is $250,000.

Tickets are $60 per person and include dinner and an open bar. Black tie is optional.

For more information or to receive an invitation, call (313) 591-5063 or 591-5121.

Detroit artist Hubert Wynne Massey has donated his "Charcoal Study of Rembrandt" for the Madonna auction. Massey has studied at the University of London Slade Institute of Fine Arts.

Weight Loss Mystery Bewilders Researchers The End of Obesity May Be Near

WASHINGTON - Researchers at the First Lite International are astounded by a natural food ingredient that causes people to lose weight even though they were told not to change their normal eating habits.

A study in the British Journal of Nutrition found a natural plant-colloid the main ingredient in Food Complex 3th (FX3) can cause significant weight loss. Many explanations for this weight loss are suggested, but the most likely according to researchers is that colloids seem to decrease the intestinal absorption of calories and fats, However, universal acceptance of this theory will depend on further ivonia heavyweight Craig Payne dropped to 7-3-1 as a professional as Los Angeles native Lionel Butler scored a seventh-round TKO during the feature bout Friday at LaVal's Country Club in Reseda, Calif. The scheduled 10rounder was televised via Prime Network.

The 6-foot-2 Payne, who weighed in at a hefty 297 pounds, could not answer the bell for the eighth round.

The bout was stopped by Dr. Barry Schwartz after the 31-year-old Payne injured his eye late in the seventh round, apparently taking an elbow

The 5-foot-11, 232-pound Butler, ranked No. 14 by the World Boxing Council (title held by Lennox Lewis), ran his record to 16-10. It was the 10th straight victory, all by knockout, for the 25-yearold ex-convict.

Butler, who measured in with a 69-inch reach (to Payne's 78), got away with several low blows, controlled the bout from start to finish.

Payne is a former National Golden Gloves champion and 1984 U.S. Olympic Trials superheavyweight finalist.

Shamrocks load up for season

The outdoor boys track season gets underway this week with Redford Catholic Central, defending Observerland Relays champion, leading the pack among

BY BRAD EMONS. STAFF WRITER

If you think Redford Catholic Central had good cross country, basketball, football, wrestling and hockey teams this season, wait until you see the Shamrocks' track squad.

Coach Tony Magni, now in his 15th season, appears to have all the components for what could be CC's finest season ever in track.

Catholic Central returns several key performers off last year's squad, which captured the Observerland Relays, Catholic League and Operation-Friendship titles.

"Individually we have good people," Magni said. "But we're weak in a few events. We have nobody back in the high jump and we're not part of the Catholic League in pole vaulting.

'Overall what helps us is depth.' With more than 130 athletes to choose from, Magni also coaches the largest squad in the area.

Among the casualties to graduation is Steve Witek, who led the area with best times of 1:57.8 in the 800 meter run and 4:26.4 in the 1,600. He was also a member of CC's first-place state Class A championship 3,200 relay squad (7:58.0).

Other losses include Kevin Roslinski, who cleared 6 feet, 2 inches in the high jump; T.J. Kitchen, who went 53.0 in the 400; Aaron Sheposh, 2:07.7 in the 800; and Brian O'Reilly, 4:42.1 in the 1,600. But look who's back.

Senior sprinter Eric McKeon, who owns or shares at least four school records, leads a strong nucleus.

McKeon paced the area in the 200 dash (22.0) and 400 (49.3). He also clocked 10.9 in the 100 dash and took second overall in Observerland in the 800 run (2:00.1). McKeon was also a member of last year's Class A champion 3,200 relay squad, along with senior Brandon Dalziel, who went 2:00.4 in the 800 a year ago.

Another standout returnee is senior Mark Eden, a versatile performer who led Observerland in the 110 high hurdles (14.7) and 300 low hurdles (39.7). Eden took eighth last year in Class A in the 110 highs. He was also a member of CC's school-record 1,600 relay squad (3:25.4).

Other returnees include senior Kevin Jakubowski, who tossed the discus 131-1 last year; junior Freddie Taylor, a sprinter and long jumper (20-4%); Rob Clark, 10-6 in the pole vault: senior Damon Harris, 9:54.4 in the 3,200; senior Jamie Fitzgerald, 10:04.1 in the 3,200; and senior Joe Suhadja, 44-4 in the shot put.

And if that's not enough, how about returning state Class A cross country champion Mike Mittman in the distance races?

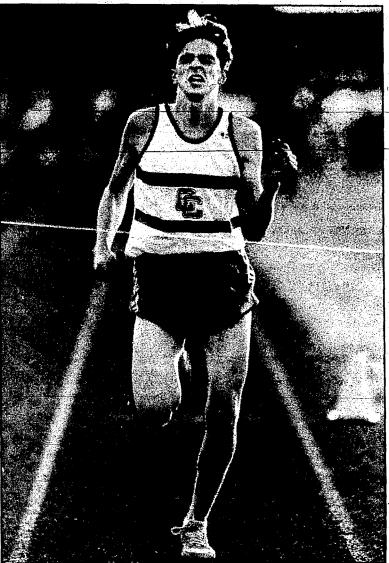

Other returnees include senior sprinter Brady Pankow; junior shot putter Nick Kallas, who took sixth last weekend at the Huron Relays with a toss of 49-8; senior Chris O'Keefe in the 800; and senior Jeff Wollschlager in the distance events.

"We'd like to experiment the first two outdoor meets," Magni said. 'Our distance people really didn't do much over the winter, but hopefully at the end of the year they'll be right

Fishing restrictions no April Fool's joke

BILL PARKER

Fool's Day, but there is no joke in the new fishing regulations handed down by the Natural Resources.

The biggest change for the 1993-94 fishing season is an increase in the minimum size limits for several species of fish on inland lakes. The most noticeable change is that the minimum size limit on smallmouth and largemouth bass has been increased from 12 to 14

New minimum size limits have also been established for northern pike and muskellunge and a minimum standard has been set for channel and flathead catfish as well. The size limit for northern pike has been increased from 20 to 24 inches, muskie from 30 to 42 inches and channel and flathead have been changed from no size limit to 12 inches and 15 inches, respectively.

Through these changes, we feel we can gain a better quality of the total fishery in the state's inland lakes," sald DNR fisheries biologist Ron Spitler. 'About a year ago, we started talking to people and asking them what they wanted for the future of fishing in Michigan. We got lots and lots of feedback from fishermen, fishing clubs and other related groups as well as lots of research information.

It may be April By and large we ve got good re sponse from the anglers. They'll catch fewer fish they can keep, but the size and weight of the fish they do keep will grow." The changes should be applauded.

partment of larly, the old size limits allowed anglers to catch and keep a lot of smaller, young fish. The new regulations will enable those young fish to spawn, which in the long run should increase the respective populations.

The fishery will also benefit by the fact that not as many fish will be harvested. A onepound 12-inch bass an angler catches opening day may have hit the frying pan last year, but this year it will be returned to the water. That fish will nearly double in weight before next year rolls around.

In addition, over the year it will take for a bass to gain an additional two inches and a pike to gain an additional four. inches, these fish will continue to feed on pan fish. This added predation on the small pan fish could improve that fishery as Many inland lakes in Michigan are besieged with stunted pan fish. When the pan fish population in a particular body water exceeds the carrying capacity of that lake the pan fish become stunted. But with the added predation there will be less pan fish competing for the same amount of food and habitat. The surviving fish will be larger and stronger.

Not only that, but let's face it, a 12-inch bass or a 20-inch pike just doesn't yield much of

There are also some changes in bag limits. The daily possession limit for bass, pike, walleye, sauger and flathead catfish is five per day in any combination. The daily limit on limit for yellow perch on inland lakes has also been reduced from 100 to 50.

"Right now it's a little confusing because these changes are for inland lakes. There has been no change in the Great Lakes," Spitler said. "Hopefully by next year we'll be done with any changes in the Great Lakes and everything will be much simpler.'

Taxes, taxes, taxes. It's that time of year again.

Michigan residents can help protect and restore the state's endangered plants and animals and nongame wildlife through donating a small portion of their tax return to Michigan's Nongame Wildlife Fund.

"Last year more than 93,000 taxpayers made donations totaling nearly $600,000," said DNR director Roland Harmes.

Look for the Loon on the Michigan tax return and check the appropriate box to make a ball team hit a school-record six home runs in one game Tuesday to beat Grand Valley State University, 17-10, and salvage a split of a non-league double-header in Allendale.

The Crusaders lost the first game, 5-1.

Madonna trailed 10-9 after six innings in Game 2 before rallying for eight runs, including three 2run homers with two outs in the seventh inning.

Craig Overaitis' (Livonia Franklin) pinch-hit two-run homer gave the Crusaders the lead for good, 11-10. Bill Terski, who went 3-for-5 with two runs scored. hit another two-run homer and Jeff Miller clubbed the third tworun shot.

Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Borgess), Shaun Hayward and Rich Roy (Livonia Clarenceville) hit solo homers for the Crusaders, who are 12-6 overall.

The Crusaders collected 18 hits and scored in every inning but the third. Mike Grahl pitched 11/3 innings of relief to pick up his third win without a loss.

Starter Ryan Grabetz pitched five innings and left with an 8-5 lead before Grand Valley rallied for five runs in the sixth to go ahéad 10-9.

There were many hitting stars for the Crusaders: Brusseau was 3-3 with five runs scored; Jeff Pendell (Livonia Churchill) was 3-4, including two doubles, with two RBI and four runs scored; Hayward was 4-5 with two runs scored and three RBI; and Roy was 4-6.

The first game was a bore compared to the second.

Madonna starting and losing pitcher Mike Coleman surrendered only four hits but the Lakers scored four in the third and one in the fifth for a 5-1 lead.

The Crusaders had eight hits, led by Roy, who was 3-3 with a double and Miller, who was 2-3 with a double. Overaitis singled in the only run in the first.

Madonna 1-2 on road

Madonna had a busy weekend, winning one game and losing two to the College of St. Francis in Joliet, Ill.

Each game was decided by one

St. Francis won Saturday's game, 3-2. The two teams split Sunday, with St. Francis winning the first game, 6-4, in eight innings and Madonna taking the nightcap, 4-3, behind the five-hit complete-game pitching of Plymouth Canton graduate Jeff Kugel-

St. Francis is coached by Gordie Gillespie, the NAIA's win-ningest coach who won three national titles in the mid-70s while coaching Lewis College in Illinois. Gillespie spoke at Madonna's 1991 banquet.

"They were three great ball Madonna coach Mike George said. "We have tremendous respect for each other's program. Gordie's a great influence on our program and me personally. They kind of adopted us as their sister school when we were first starting out.'

After losing the first two games in the last inning, Kugelman let the Crusaders go home on a high note with his second win in three outings this season. The Crusaders scored a pair of runs in the top of the seventh inning on RBI singles by George Leung and Miller to give Kugelman a 4-2 lead.

St. Francis scored one run in the bottom of the inning before Kugelman set down the side for the 4-3 win.

Kugelman finished with nine strikeouts and now has a 1.75 earned run average.

"You could see he was in complete control the minute he walked out there," George said of Kugelman. "'Kugey' had that look in his eyes like he was going to get this one for us.'

Miller, who was 5-for-11 with four doubles and a triple during the three-game series, was 2-4 with two RBI in Sunday's second game and Jim Solak was 2-2.

The Crusaders jumped out to a 4-1 lead in the first game Sunday before relief pitching failed and St. Francis rallied for a 6-4 win in eight innings.

St. Francis scored two runs in the sixth to tie the score 4-4 and two off reliever Sean Henkel (Livonia Stevenson) in the top of the eighth to win. A two-run triple by St. Francis' Adam VanderWoude with two outs in the eighth proved to be the winning hit.

Starting pitcher Lou McKaig pitched the first 51/s innings and left with the Crusaders ahead 4-2.

The Crusaders scored all four of their runs in the second on four hits and two St. Francis errors. Leung, T.C. Raptis, Cris Gajewski and Brusseau had RBIs and Overaitis scored after stroking a double.

St. Francis on Saturday afternoon scored a fun in the bottom of the ninth to break a 2-2 tie and win 3-2 in a game scheduled to go nine innings.

Madonna had tied the score 2-2 in the top of the ninth on an RBI double by Solak to score Raptis. But Henkel, who pitched out of a jam with two outs in the eighth after coming on in relief came of starter Hayward, surrendered an unearned St. Francis run in the bottom of the ninth.

Madonna scored its first run in the third on a double by Steve Coffell (Redford Bisop Borgess), a sacrifice bunt by Brusseau and an RBI single by Pendell.

St. Xavier sweeps hard-luck Madonna

Madonna University thought it had at least a split of a softball double-header Sunday against host St. Xavier of Chicago, Ill.

But the Lady Crusaders wound up losing a pair of one-run games to fall to 3-11 on the season.

St. Xavier (14-3 overall) outlasted Madonna in the opener, 5-4, in 14 innings.

With Madonna leading 4-3 in the bottom of the eighth with two outs, outfielder Holly Jondro's diving catch was ruled a trap, allowing the tying run to be scored.

"Our players were already out on the field congratulating her," Madonna coach Dave Racer said. "The tying run scored after it was called no catch.

'What's even more unbelievable is that after we realized it was not the third out, we still had the runner dead at the plate. That's two outs we had on the same play that didn't go our way. It should have been our game.'

Umpires ruled the St. Xavier runner safe at the plate on another controversial call.

St. Xavier then tallied the game-winning run in the bottom of the 14th a pair of infield errors. a pair of bunts and a sacrifice by Lori Rohan.

Losing pitcher Dawn Terrasi, went all 14 innings for Madonna, scattering 10 hits and three walks.

Winning pitcher Jackie Russell also went the distance, allowing Five Madonna players collected two hits apiece including Kim Supron (Livonia Ladywood), Jill Burt, Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston), Mandi and Megan Armstrong. Both of Supron's hits were doubles, including a two-run shot in the third. Burt also doubled twice.

St. Xavier also won the nightcap, 2-1, as Heidi Neal outdueled Linda Weichel.

Neal allowed only three hits and no walks, while fanning four. Weichel also worked seven innings, allowing four hits and three Niki Randolph's two-out, tworun single in the first inning proved to be the difference.

Megan Armstrong, who had two of the Lady Crusaders' three hits, scored Madonna's lone run in the fourth inning.

Among the losses: Terry Howery, who cleared 6-3 in the high jump; Matt Giertych, 12-0 in the pole vault; John Fabirkiewicz, 11-4 in the pole vault; Nathan Loosle, 15.2 in the 110 highs and 40.7 in the 300 hurdles; Darian Muzo, 51.1 in the 400; and Jeff Martus, 2:03.4 in the 800 and 4:35.0 in the 1,600.

Coach Fred Price, however, returns five who made Observerland's top 10 listings a year ago.

Leading the way is shot putter Aaron Dusso (46-0 a year ago) and discus thrower Chris Pelczar (144-10). Dusso, a junior, and Pelczar, a senior, were both firstteam All-Area choices.

Other returnees include pole vaulter Greg Kohler (11-0), a junior who will also run the sprints; senior Derek Badrak, 11.4 in the 100 dash; and junior Rich Cramb, 53.0 in the 400.

Senior Jim Kramer, who went 20-51/2 last year in the long jumper, is a question mark. If he does decide to come out, he'll also high jump and add depth in the "Depth in the sprints will be a major problem, along with the high jump," Price said. "It's going to be a year where we'll have a lot of young kids and inexperienced people. We'll have to be patient and make improvements where we can."

With 55 members, Price can fill holes.

Other hopefuls in the field events include senior Dan Bristow (shot put/discus), senior P.J. Wright (high jump), senior Darrel Wiacek (high jump/sprints), senior Dave Watson (pole vault) and junior Dave Elenich, the latter of whom threw the shot 46-7 last weekend at the Huron Relays.

Hurdles candidates include senior Chris Dibble, juniors Jedd Thoderson and Brian Cavasin, along with sophomore Jason Harden.

Seniors Tim Minor and Jim Bleakley will each run the 400, while freshman Brian Zawislak and junior Shawn Kalinowski plan to shore up the 800 races.

Distance runners include senior Erik Graham, junior Steve Gonzales, and sophomores Steve DeLuca, Jason Kiehler, Chris Forsyth and Brian Galindo.

Westland John Glenn

The Rockets, with 53 strong, were hard hit by graduation.

"Sophomores will have to make the season for us," Glenn coach Jess Shough said. "It's a rebuilding year, we'll see where it goes.

"The Lakes Division (of the Western Lakes) will be evenly matched. It will be fun."

It's no fun, however, to lose eight competitors to graduation, all of whom appeared in the Observerland listings' top 10.

Notable losses include: Mark. Bennett in shot put (43-5) and discus (132-8); Chaka Saulsberry, high jump (6-2); first-team All-Area choice Brandon Buck, long jump (22-10%); Brian Schultz, long jump (20-5¹/₄); Ed Malloy, long jump (19-11); Ken Constantino, pole vault (11-8); Mark Kaiser, 110 hurdles (15.3); and Andrew Hodge, 110 highs (15.3) and 300 hurdles (42.2).

The top returnee is senior Chris Vanderburgh, who cleared 6-4 in the high jump and ran 52.8 in the 400. He will also compete in the 300 hurdles.

Other senior returnees include: Randy Ellison (sprinter), Jeff Tapper (distance), Bob Lulek (middle distance), Ryan Zantow (distance/pole vault), Jeff Kolbas (hurdles), John Lewis (distance) and Joe Paddock (sprints).

Juniors returning include Shawn Arbogast and Geoff Miodowski, shot put and discus; and John Porter, pole vault.

The sophomore contingent is led by Henry Honeycutt (distance), Brent Washington (sprints/high jump), Phillip Allen (sprints), Jason Crosby (middle distance), Todd Peterson (hurdles), Shamar Lott (400), Claude Albert (high jump/sprints) and Gregg Hendershot (distance).

Wayne Memorial

Coach Floyd Carter is bubbling with optimism as he enters the 1993 season.

This should be a nice year-for. us," he said. "We should be right near the top in our league (Wolverine A). We have decent speed and we're pretty balanced."

Shawn Ma'Azza (11.1 in 100 dash), Lee Williams (50.4 in the 400) and Aaron Simpson (9:57.4 in the 3,200) all graduated.

The Zebras' 40-man squad is led by high jumper Carl Olszewski, who cleared 6-6 last season to rank second in the area.

Other returnees include senior

Randy Johnson, 15.2 in the 110 highs and 40.8 in the 300 hurdles: senior Brian Higgins, 11.3 in the 100; senior James Bruner, long jump; senior Art Thomas, hurdles; junior Chris Hedger, distance; seniors Nate Bishop and Bruce Kendrick, shot put/discus; junior Aaron Shaw, 400/hurdles; junior Gerald Adams, sprints/ long jump/high jump; and senior Ron McClelland, long jump.

More help should be provided by Bruce Calhoun, a senior All-Area football standout who could be a factor in the 200, 400 and

Meanwhile, seniors Andre Brown and Rayshaun Jackson are first-year sprinters.

Providing depth in the shot put and discus will be seniors Leland Heath and Murdank Forrest. Sophomores Greg Schroeder and Maurice Redd expect to contribute in the middle distance races, while Dewaun Brantley adds support in the hurdles.

"Our speed relays should be better than last year," Carter

Livonia Stevenson

Coach John Gores is encouraged by the Spartans' turnout of

"We're pleased with that," he said. "And we have a lot of good freshman, but we haven't had a chance to sort them out. With the weather the way it's been, it's hard to tell.

'We have concern filling the relays . . . depth-wise. Last year we were good in the relays as far as three people, but we didn't have that fourth man.

The most notable losses to graduation were hurdler Frank Eupizi (41.7 in the 300) and distance runner Matt Rowe (4:39.4 in the 1,600).

Gores, however, can count on a number of returnees including high jumper Matt Syverson (6-1), a junior, and pole vaulter Cliff Mickelson (10-8), a senior.

Mickelson has already cleared 12-3 in the vault during a recent indoor meet.

Another returnee is senior Don MacKenzie, who went 15.5 in the 110 highs and 42.5 in the 300 hurdles. MacKenzie is joined by veteran Scott Creehan, a junior distance performer, sophomore sprinter Don Carroll and junior long jumper Eric Bohn.

Matt Warner, a junior, and brother Steve, a freshman, pace the distance crew. Identical freshman twins Brian and Jason Hayward will also run the 1,600 and 3,200 events.

Jeff Backus, a freshman, adds talent in the 800, while another ninth-grader, Steve Ingrao, will compete in the long jump.
"We like to think we have a chance in the Lakes Division (of the Western Lakes)," Gores said. We hope to finally knock over John Glenn, but we know (Plymouth) Salem is a well-rounded

Livonia Franklin

Bob Holmes, the dean of Observerland coaches, is now in his 27th year.

He predicts his 40-man squad will "be competitive, but not in position to challenge for the league title."

Long jumpers Chris Miner (20-4) and Russ Keberly (19-11) graduated, but junior high jumper Scott Hand (6-1) returns.

Another top returnee is senior Steve McInally, who went 42.5 in the 300 hurdles a year ago. He will add depth in the relays, according to Holmes.

Other field event returnees include pole vaulters John Moor and Chris Behm, along with shot putter and discus thrower Andy Keebaugh. All three are juniors.

The sprints will feature junior Ron Troia and senior Chris McMinn, along with sophomore Dave Erickson, the latter of whom can also hurdle.

The sprint area will make or break you," Holmes said. "We have some decent runners, but no standouts to get us first or second in a meet. We have good numbers in the relays, but no standout." - Jamie Sewruk, a senior, fills the

Eric McKeon CC standout

Senior Lee Devers, an All-Area pick in cross country, will pace the distance corps. He is backed up by juniors Mark Derrick and Mark Kracht.

Lutheran Westland

The Warriors, who jump to the Metro Conference this season, will not get a chance to defend their Michigan Independent Athletic Conference crown.

But coach Mike Unger is optimistic his 45-member team can make a run at the Metro championship.

'We hope to finish in the top two or three," Unger said. "We'd like to win it, but Detroit Lutheran West has won the thing five or six years in a row, but (Bloomfield Hills) Cranbrook and (Mount Clemens) Lutheran North are the teams to beat.

We're a little weak in the sprints, the 100 and 200 as usual, but otherwise we're pretty balanced.

The Warriors lost an outstanding individual to graduation in Warren Provencal, a first-team All-Area pick in the 400-meter run (49.5). He clocked in 23.0 in the 200, as well.

Another graduation loss was Jason Leimbach in the 110 hur-Junior Jeff Lichtner will be the

Hit parade: Observerland spikers hailed

Minutes after Livonia Stevenson won the Class A regional volleyball championship at Northville, Patty Diamond was asked how the team has responded to the fact that this would be Lee Cagle's final season as Stevenson's coach.

'Well," she said, "we wanted to make it his best season. Because it is his last season.'

The Spartans disappointed no one. They finished with a 45-8-2 record, losing to eventual state champion Portage Northern in the quarterfinals.

I am very proud of this team," said Cagle, whose 15-year legacy at Stevenson is a 475-116-62 record with eight district titles, four regionals and three trips to the final four. "There was a great chemistry and a great companionship on this team. Every day they did something nice for each other.

It is, of course, proper and fitting that Cagle be named Observerland Coach of the Year, and not just for sentimental reasons. His team was No. 2 in the state most of the year and was ranked No. 1 in Observerland most of the year. It also is proper and fitting that the Spartans placed two players on the All-Area team: Diamond and Julie Martin.

Also garnering two spots on the first team were Livonia Ladywood (39-9) and Plymouth Salem (37-13-4)

Here is the 1993 All-Area Volleyball team:

FIRST TEAM

Angela Assad, senior, Farmington Hills Mercy: This first-team all-Catholic League and all-region performer was Mercy's designated blocker-basher.

Assad had 152 kills in 340 attempts, 76 solo blocks and 148 total. She had a serve and attack reception of 87 percent. Assad, a 6-footer, has been courted by some NAIA and Division II schools but has not decided where she will attend. "Angela was by far our greatest impact player and her presence up at the net

defensively, as well as offensively, made it easier for team defense," Mercy coach Peggy Spengler said. "She was a great leader, really devoted to the team and

"Patty has been a dream," Cagle said. "Her positive leadership, her work ethic, her desire to excel and her athletic ability made her four years an absolute pleasure

Not so for the rest of Observerland, however. This season she had 341 attacks with 161 kills, 1,055 assists, an 89 percent service efficiency with 81 aces, 360 digs and 316 blocks. She has accepted a volleyball scholar-ship from Florida State University.

Liz Gunn, senior, Livonia Ladywood: Gunn's resume is almost as startling and impressive as her thunderous left-handed spikes. She was an AAU All-American last summer, leading the SOVA team to a fifth-place finish in the nationals. She's a two-time all-stater who has led Ladywood to two straight Catholic League champi-

"Julie realized the potential that we saw in her as a freshman," Cagle said. "We have been exceedingly fortunate to have her grow into the force she was on the court this year."

Kelly McCausland, senior, Redford Union: McCausland and Martin will team up to give Madonna a formidable frontcourt attack next year.

McCausiand had 338 kills in 589 attacks and posted 163 blocks (70 solo) last season. She also slapped 134 aces in 449 serves. "She is one of the classiest players I ever coached," said RU's Marie Becker. "She will do well at Madonna. She works hard and she is very coachable. It won't be the same without her, that's for sure. Cyndi Platter, senior, Plymouth Sa-

Symphonies host benefit concerts

Enjoy an evening of light music, food and fun at benefit concerts being presented this week by the Plymouth and Livonia symphony orchestras.

Enjoy an evening of light music and fun this week to benefit the Livonia Symphony and Plymouth Symphony. Both groups are planning benefit concerts.

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will salute the music of Cole Porter at concerts on April 2 and 3. "That's Entertainment" is the theme of the Livonia Symphony concert on April 3.

"We're looking forward to celebrating our 50th anniversary," said Linda Alvarado of the Plymouth Symphony. 'This is our 47th season.'

Proceeds from the concerts featuring Cole Porter favorites at the Fox Hills Country Club - Golden Fox, 8768 N. Territorial, Plymouth, Friday, April 2, and Saturday, April 3, will help support the symphony.

The evening, one of the symphony's biggest fund-raisers of the year, will begin with champagne and cash bar at 6 p.m., dinner at 6:30 p.m. with the concert at 8 p.m. Dessert selections and gourmet coffees will be served at intermission. Tickets are $45 per person for concert and dinner, or $28 for concert only. For tickets, call 451-

Guest artist is Dennis Smith, trombone. Smith has appeared as soloist with many of the nation's finest orchestras including the Detroit Symphony, Seattle Symphony, Toledo Symphony, Arkansas Symphony, and Bakersfield Symphony.

He was a soloist in the Oscar-winning film, "Bolero" with Zubin Mehta and the Los Angles Philharmonic. Concert highlights include Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate," "Anything Goes." "From This Moment On,"

"Can-Can," and "What Is This Thing Called Love."

Russell Reed will conduct the symphony with help from guest conductors Jill Licata, Plymouth Symphony League president, and Dennis Shrewsbury, Plymouth city commis-

There will be drawings for elegant prizes. The concert is being sponsored by Ford/Sheldon Road Plant with additional support contributed by Fox Hills Country Club, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs.

You'll recognize themes from some of your favorite movies and shows at the Livonia Symphony Orchestra's Showtime Cabaret Saturday, April 3. Doors open for light refreshments, cash bar and snacks at 7 p.m. at the Madonna University Activities Center, 36600 Schoolcraft, at Levan and Schoolcraft (I-96) in Livonia. Talented cast lights up stage in 'Rumors'

Performances of the Livonia Public School's Creative and Performing Arts student production of "Rumors" continue through April 4 at the Theatre Guild playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly, Redford. For ticket information, call the box office at 538-5678. The Theatre Guild and Livonia's Creative and Performing Arts program are collaborating on Neil Simon's delightful little farce with the intriguing title "Ru-mors." The idea behind this alliance is to nurture creativity and give Livonia's talented young performers a chance to be seen by a wider audience.

Talented certainly describes Ryan Kasmier, who plays Lenny Ganz. Kasmier lights up the stage with energy and creates a broad, distinctive character, so critical to good farce. Only a sophomore, he's a natural comic actor.

He and his wife, Claire, played capably by Emily Haase, are one of four couples who arrive at a 10th wedding anniverary party. But guess what? The hosts have a problem. She isn't home, and he is upstairs bleeding; having shot himself in the ear it seems.

The first couple to arrive, Chris and Ken Gormans, played smartly by Marci Urbaniak and Chris Berzac make excuses for the missing hosts to the Ganz's. Soon we're into stories about affairs and assorted human foibles - and a madcap series of mistaken identities, awkward behavior, and silly plans that go awry

Jessica Prichard and Nate Burns have great fun as Cookie and Ernie Cusack. She has a bad back and spends a good deal of the evening crawling about the stage; he burns his fingers in a kitchen mishap and fiddles about with heavily bandaged fin-

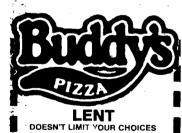

Colleen May and Darren Schlack play Cassie and Glen Cooper. She is quite effective as a flirty wife; he has his moments as a politician worried about how the evening's events will affect his reputation.

Of course, the police finally arrive. And, of course, Jason O'Beirne and Jenny Patrny are two befuddled coppers trying to make sense of this zany evening.

The best of it seems to occur in the first act. Maybe that's because of Simon's writing. Maybe high schoolers lack adult sophistication to get the most of the farcial characters. Nevertheless, "Rumors" is rollicking good fun.

Director, Gail Susan Mack, among her many good choices, opens the show with a jazzy Harry Connick Jr. rendition of "Please Don't Talk About Me When I'm Gone." Nice touch.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

The role for Best Dramatic Role in a Hit and Run Farce, captured for at least three years in a row by Ross Perot, this year would have gone to GM's Ignacio Lopez, who spent his 12 months at GM shaking up the GM establishment then cutting out for Volkswagen before any of his deisions came back to haunt him.

This performance was offset by Chrysler Chairman Bob Eaton, who was still sorting out his Rolodex after being on the job 10 months when the Chrysler-Board of Directors announced they were giving him some $7 million in compensation for his role in Turning Chrysler Around' — an ongoing play if there ever was one. Eaton is lucky to have made it to the stage before the last curtain

The business of launching new cars also has its moments of high drama, at least some of them unplanned. It's been years since the infamous launch of the Subaru BRAT — a tiny off-road recreational vehicle made famous by a press event that lasted two days and managed to destroy all of the two dozen or so vehicles brought to the event in hectic off-road

A close second was the more recent introductions of the Mitsubishi 3000 GT and Dodge Stealth, where more than half the cars broke gearboxes when the automotive press corps began to put them through their paces. Then there was the Isuzu Trooper, which fell over on its side at the New York Auto show while making a 20-mph turn in a parking lot. An interesting aftermath to these disastrous debuts was that Consumer Reports magazine still listed both vehicles on their 'Best Buys' list - giving Consumer Reports the all-time award for keeping a straight face while publishing critical reviews. There are lots of candidates for 'Acting Shocked,' an award that normally goes to the Japanese prime minister when any mention. is made of unfair trade practices. Former GM Chairman Robert Stempel was the front-runner, for his performance when it was becoming apparent he was about to be deposed by the GM board of Directors.

An easy winner in the Acting Shocked category is J. Davis Illingsworth, group vice president of sales and marketing for Toyota Motor Sales USA, who addressed the Automotive Press Association on the general subject of Japanbashing and other trade issues, and managed to somehow blame the start of the War of 1812 on the U.S. government's self-interested trade policy.

Two companies supplying acoustical and thermal molded parts to original equipment manufacturers (OEM) are joining together to form Livonia-based Acoustical Components Partnership (JACP) it was announced today by Ronald W. Allan, president of the newlyformed company. The two companies are Jet Composites Corp., Ajax, Ontario, Canada and the automotive acoustical insulation business of Manville Corporation. Rowly Martin of Jet Composites Corp. will serve as chief executive officer.

JACP intends to take a leadership position in the field of acoustical and thermal molded parts for the automotive industry. By combining the resources and assets of these two companies we have created a full-service company offering total system capabilities,' Allan said.

JACP will provide innovative, low cost manufacturing, an active research and development program, new material alternatives, design engineering, prototype and testing, and in-house tooling capabilities.

The 400-employee company will manufacture in Ajax, Ontario, and Bluffton, Indiana. Design. development and tooling will take place in Guelph, Ontario. Its headquarters and sales and marketing operations will be based in ivonia, Michigan.

Advancing technical expertise advances success of business

■ When you land NASA as a customer, it's probably safe to say you've arrived in the high-tech repair business. But it wasn't always so for a company that started in a 200-square-foot-facility.

By Mary Rodrique Staff Writer

Every March 24 Eddie Harmon

The president of NC Servo Technology started his own business in 1975 in a 200-square-foot facility in Dearborn. Today his company — a high tech science lab that repairs parts for industry ranging from aerospace to satellite systems to radar occupies 19,000 square feet in a Westland industrial park.

Despite a soft economy, Harmon has experienced steady growth over the years.

"We've had to diversify," said the soft-spoken Tennessee native. "What was common technology in the 1970s and '80s is being replaced continually. We have to stay abreast of the

On the day NASA scrubbed its most recent space shuttle launch last week, Harmon's firm got a call from NASA for an urgently needed repair

"What they sent us was a motor generator assembly," he said. "This field is very rewarding to me.' Harmon, 45, graduated from Cass

"We've been very fortunate," he Technical High School in Detroit where he studied electronics. At Wayne State University, he earned a bachelor's degree in math and computer science. College was interrupted by a two-year stint in the Army, where Harmon specialized in missile and missile launcher repair and radio repair in Germany.

I always wanted to have a hightech science lab," he said. "I enjoy this kind of work."

After a brief affiliation with two partners, Harmon launched his solo

"The first year and a half was very hard. I had no customers, no credit, no nothing. There was no rich uncle. It was either sink or swim.'

Days were spent calling on custom-- virtually any industry that used automated parts. At night, Harmon did the repair work himself.

Harmon believes he will outgrow his current building some day.

"Business growth is not really my goal," he said. "I like advancing my technical expertise. Growth will follow. I'm more interested in quality than quantity.

On a recent day, a technician was testing breathing apparatus for firefighters that must conform to new federal health and safety standards. In another section, workers were involved in detective work - trying to trace the problems of malfunctioning components that were offering zip clues to the problems.

Firm wins grant to engineer airbag system for passengers

A Farmington Hills engineering firm has been tapped by the National Science Foundation as recipient of a $50,000 grant to develop new technology for use in passenger airbags.

We were competing with top scientists from all specialties from across the country. The NSF has the stiffest competition and the least money," said Dave Bauer, chief executive officer of award winning TIP Engineering.

"This is the first ever award to an; automotive-related group in Michigan. We fit into President Clinton's fiew deal - transferring defense technology to the automotive industry.

Bauer and his partner, Ken Barnes, formed TIP Engineering eight years ago. Both come from automotive backgrounds. Bauer spent 19, years with Ford Motor Co. as a design engineer focusing on safety-related areas. Barnes is a 27-year veteran of Chrysler Corp. where he directed the design of the interior panel to include knee bolsters, passenger airbag systems and head impact injury management.

Their proposal for a new design in passenger airbags incorporates a pyrotechnic device used by the defense industry. Bauer says phase one has shown promising results.

"A major car company has already come forward to us concerning implementation with their '96 models," he said.

If TIP's research on a hidden seam deployment door for the airbag is successful, the NSF is likely to grant an additional $300,000 for development of a manufacturing process for the product. The grants are made available through the federal Small Business Innovation Research program.

"Because of the high velocity of the door during deployment of the airbag, it in itself can potentially be a safety hazard if it is not designed and protected from tampering to remain attached to the interior panel," Bauer said. There is also a hazard if it allows airbag skin and foam fragmentation to project out at the occupant. Or if the deployment door strikes the windshield, it can cause it to break and shatter glass onto the passenger, or strike an out-of-position occupant, such as

Bauer says TIP hopes to design and develop a device and manufacturing process to improve safety, warranty, and appearance at a reduced cost. Passenger airbags consist mainly of a gas producing inflator and a large cloth pillow that is assembled into a sheet metal housing. The passenger airbag assembly is mounted on the right side of the instrument panel and covered by a deployment door. The deployment door is the focus of TIP's research proposal.

Founded in 1985, TIP specializes in passenger airbag deploy--ment-doors, driver-airbag-steering wheel covers, instrument panel driver and passenger side knee bolsters and the instrument panel itself as they integrate into the federal passive restraint safety

TIP's next step is the specific design of the high energy device in an instrument panel and the development of a manufacturing process for installing the device on the back surface of the skin.

The National Highway Safety Administration is discussing the possibility of funding a similar project with TIP for driver-side airbags.

Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards require passive restraints in all passenger cars sold in the U.S. by 1996. The law also requires all light trucks and mini vans to have passive restraints by

PR society develops internships

To help bridge the gap between students looking for work experience and businesses looking for cost effective support staff, the Public Relations Society of America - Detroit-chapter has developed a student internship network.

More than 40 metro Detroit companies have internships available for students looking for job opportunities in their field this summer and fall 1993. The internships are made available through the chapter's newly created internship committee, which is working to bring students and businesses together.

"This is a brand new program," said Denise Bateman, a PRSA spokeswoman. "Most of the jobs are public relations but some are radio/television, journalism and advertising.

Hospitals, corporations, nonprofit groups, cultural attractions and public relations agencies are among the participating organizations in the network. Information about the variances in semester availability, student requirements, day-to-day responsibilities and financial benefits can be obtained by calling Elly Wright at 278-8573.

"Utilizing student talent is a smart strategy for business," said Gabriel Werba, PRSA Detroit chapter president and president of the company that bears his

"Students are in need of obtaining hands-on public relations experience and businesses can take advantage of the opportunity to effectively train the workforce of the future. The relationship offered is mutually beneficial.

For more information about PRSA's student internship network, students should talk to their faculty adviser or Wright.

Eight colleges are already involved in the network. They include Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Michigan State, Oakland University, University of Detroit-Mercy, "University of Michigan, Wayne State and Western Michigan.

SUBURBAN LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

There's a lot to be said for kindergarten

There are those who say we are what we learn, that our outlook on life and living is shaped when we are young. The early years are our foundation, so it goes that there would be those people who believe that a good beginning early on can outline a lifelong pattern of living.

I want to share a condensed version of an interesting article that was written by Robert Fulghum and published in the Kansas City Star in September 1986. While it was written more than seven years ago, it's still as meaningful today . . . and ost of what I really need to know about how to live, and what to do, and how to be I learned in kindergarten. Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate-school mountain, but there in the sandbox.

These are the things I learned:

- Share everything.
- Play fair. ■ Don't hit people.
- Put things back where you found them.
- Clean up your own mess.
- Don't take things that aren't yours. Say you're sorry when you hurt somebody.
- Wash your hands before you eat.
- Live a balanced life. Learn some and think some, and draw and sing
- and dance and play and work every day some. ■ Take a nap in the afternoon.
- When you go out into the world, watch for traf- fic, hold hands and stick together. Be aware of wonder.
- Remember the little seed in the plastic cup. The roots go down and the plant goes up and nobody really knows why, but we are all like that.

Goldfish and hamsters and white mice and even the little seed in the plastic cup — they all die. So

And then remember the book about Dick and Jane and the first word of all: look. Everything you need to know is in there somewhere. The golden rule and love and basic sanitation. Ecology and politics and sane living.

Think of what a better world it would be if we all had cookies and milk about 3 o'clock every afternoon and than lay down with our blankets for a

Or if we had a basic policy in our nation and other nations always to put things back whe found them and clean up our own messes.

And it is still true, no matter how old you are, when you go out into the world, it is best to hold hands and stick together.

I think that says it all, except care to join me in some cookies and milk?

Hospice group sponsors grief recovery series

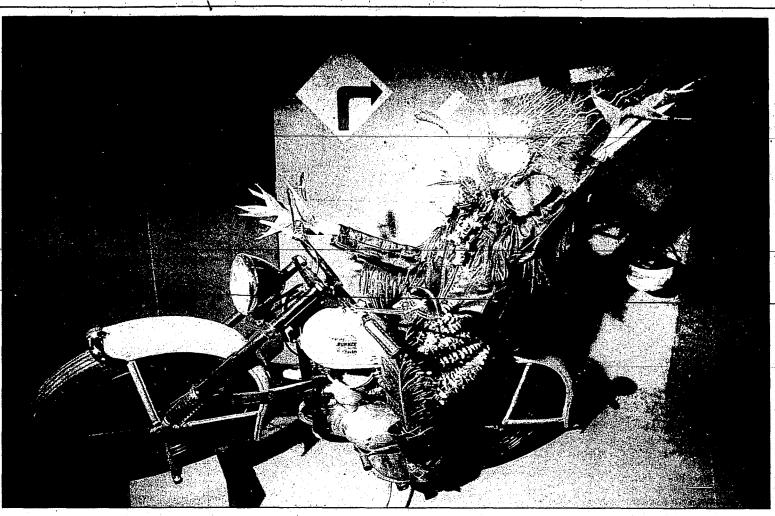

The loss of a loved one is hard. And it is just as hard dealing with the feelings, fears and thoughts that come in the days, months and years that fol-

Hospice of Western Wayne County Inc. is offering a five-week grief recovery workshop, beginning April 21, at its offices, 6701 Harrison St., north of Ford Road, Garden City.

The workshop, which meets at 6 p.m. Wednesdays, will help participants understand and cope with their feelings, thoughts and fears that follow the death of a loved one. Through conversation in a shared environment, those attending will get started on a journey toward personal healing.

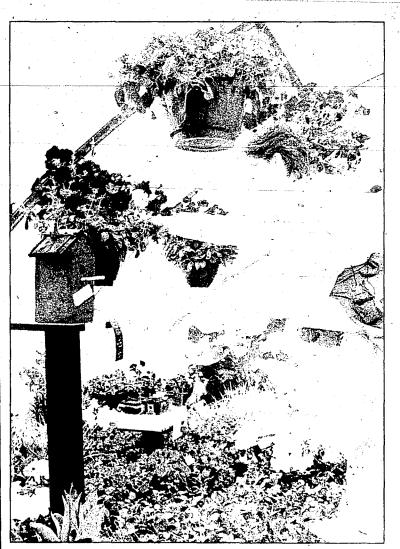

The workshop is free of charge although donations are welcome. For more information, call Hospice of Western Wayne County at 522-4244.

The organization also offers a grief support group that meets at 1 p.m. the second Saturday of the month and at 6:30 p.m. the fourth Monday of the month. The group meetings are also free of charge.

Born to be watered: One of the highlights of the 1993 Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show was a biker fashioned from various flowers and branches by Farmington Hills resident Elaine Guderson. The arrangement won a second-place ribbon.

Flowers show flair for the 'arts'

Vegetable fun: Volunteer Carol Jaszcz (above) checks up on some of the thousands of potted plants featured at the flower show. Cabbage head (at right) was created by junior gardener Elizabeth Pailey, 8, of Pleasant Ridge. That's a parsnip schnoz and those eyes are Brussels sprouts.

There's a saying about a bird in hand, but a Bird of Paradise as a hand? And we've heard about dark eyes and colorful hair but raisin eyes and parsley hair? That's what visitors saw at the Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show.

By James Radebaugh Staff Writer

Where could you see an authentic pink and white Harley-Davidson mounted by a rider sculpted of eucalyptus branches, waving a bird of paradise hand?

At last weekend's Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show, of course

The horticultural Harley was one of several dazzling oddities among the blooming annuals, award-winning house plants and garden exhibits that filled six buildings at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds.

For the thousands of visitors who meandered past the displays, it was a pleasant way of fast-forwarding a sluggish spring.

"It's just nice to get out of the snow," explained Lucy Bauman of Ann Arbor, "It's kind of fun because of the mix of different things. Different was the word Lou Reed's "Walk on the Wild Side," whose title was adopted as the theme for this year's show, played softly as visitors crowded past the Harley-Davidson display not exactly what you'd expect at a flower show.

"Oh, is that fun!" one woman called out to her friend.

'That is so cool," said another.

The display won a second-place ribbon for creator Elaine Guderson of Farmington Hills, although one of the judges, clearly taking things too seriously, complained that the "design is overpowered by the amount of plant material.'

Then there were the fruit faces.

These novelties peered back at viewers from their display case perches, squinting raisin eyes, projecting parsnip or red pepper noses. Their heads were pineappley hair.

What trendy Ann Arbor artist was behind the fruity faces? None. They were the work of a bunch of secondgraders in the Junior Garden Club of Pleasant Ridge.

For bird lovers there were several yariations on the old-fashioned bird

One, which was big enough for a flock of sparrows, was built to resemble a large suburban home the kind built on sprawling lots in Oakland County. After all, people with upscale houses must have upscale bird houses.

Another was built and painted to resemble a little red school house of the sort most of us have never seen. Yet another was a scaled-down version of a Swiss chalet.

For-more down-to-earth bird lovers there was one made from a hollow gourd decorated with African-like engravings. Commercial dealers were there too, selling everything from herb seeds for $1.50 to a brass fountain fixture cast in the shape of a nude woman for $1,320. -And, of course, the show featured the prize-winning house plants of numerous area residents, including a first-place Boston fern entered by Karen Springsteen of Plymouth. The show offered so much that some visitors were overwhelmed. One woman was heard testily telling her companion, "If you want to see everything, you've just got to come another day, I'm sorry. If you weren't one of the thousands of visitors, take heart. The show, which benefits University of Michigan's Mathaei Botanical Gardens, will be back next year - perhaps bigger and better than ever.

Oganizers say they're siming to make it a world-class event.

Writer knows how to make good use of intelligence

LORENE GREEN

Green

I read your column often in the Observer and have wanted to have my handwriting analyzed for some time and this was a good day to write (cold, snow, bad weather — a stay-home day!). Hope you can fit me into your schedule in the near future. I took a three-session class in graphology at night school some time ago, but have forgotten most of the information since then.

I enjoy reading and learning new things, hate craft-type projects and recently took a class at Schoolcraft relating to the psychology of human relations and really enjoyed it!!

(Got an A also.) I would be interested in what my handwriting reflects about my current life situations. Thank you in advance!

M.A., Canton

The simplifications in this handwriting reflect a woman who makes good use of her intelligence. She has an aptitude for eliminating non-essentials and moving right to the core of a situation or problem.

She can absorb ideas and translate them into functional operation. This aids creative thinking. It also facilitates both her oral and written expression.

This is a caring woman, one who has much empathy for others. She is cognizant of how it feels to be criticized because she has personally felt the sting of past personal criticism. While she is still sensitive to it, she tries to conceal the hurt. A little secrecy here cannot be missed.

Further study reveals this writer wants peace at any price. Harmony is indeed valued over discord. Unfortunately, to make this possible, she is usually the one who must compromise or acquiesce. Caution is also noted. She might find it helpful to analyze why she feels she is the one who must do all the compromising. Does her self-esteem need a little reinforcing? It is important for her to consider the fact that no one can make one feel inferior unless one allows them to.

Our writer wants to create a good first impression. This does not mean, however, that she has to have center stage.

In her interpersonal relationships she does not always feel secure of her place. When feeling insecure she thinks she has to compete for love. And when she feels threatened by someone usurping her place the little green monster may appear.

I am not surprised by her interest in psychology and her A in the course. She is a woman of intelligence. When this is combined with her interest in people and self-understanding she cannot miss. These would also be valuable should she revitalize her interest in graphology.

I read your Column when in The Ca and have wented to have my handwrite. rolyged for some time and this was a Day to write (Cold , Snow , bad weath 2 stay - home day !) kirse you can fet in life is mainly the result of her persistence. She has an ability to pursue what she wants and is disinclined to give up until she completes what she starts out to accomplish. This amount of persistence, however, sometimes makes for inflexibility.

Her orientation is toward the future and people. Tastes are simple and attitudes are often direct. Time is used effectively. Indecision can, however, be a problem at times.

Our writer's good mind would

The success she has achieved be an asset in any field of her choice. And a little time spent on self-understanding would add to her self-esteem and success.

The Gift Basket customizes presents for all occasions

People looking for something special to give to hard-to-please friends and loved ones have an alternative to spending hours going from store to store — The Gift Basket.

Operating out of her Livonia home, Pam Vann is creating gift baskets for both personal presents and corporate gifts. Vann also offers theme baskets for Easter, Secretaries Week, weddings, anniversaries, birthdays and other special occasions.

Using a variety of gourmet foods and gift items, she assembles the ingredients in a basket, complete with cellophane wrap and ribbon.

"All a customer has to do is tell me about the recipient and what he or she likes, and I'll find the right things to put in their gift basket," Vann said. "The end result is a gift that's perfectly customized for a person and that's usually much more appreciated than a standard, store-bought

In the two months that Vann has been in business, she's constructed baskets for a variety of customers, including a woman who needed something for her sister's 60th birthday and several for a hospital gift shop.

Prices range from $15 for a small standard theme basket to an average of around $30 for larger custom baskets, depending upon the cost of the items includ-

"Some of my baskets will include food items like candy, coffees and teas, sparkling cider, pasta and sauce," said Vann. "Still others include gift items, such as perfumes and bath crvstals, baby items, linen napkins and even gardening tools and seeds. People really seem to like the personalized feeling of this type of gift."

Vann will be holding an open house 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 2-3, at her home, 9854 E. Clements Circle, Livonia. It will feature customfilled Easter and spring baskets along with theme baskets for that special occasion.

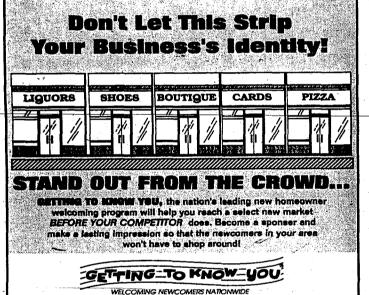

The Gift Basket operates on a phone-in basis. Vann then prepares the orders and delivers the basket to the customer or the basket can be delivered anywhere. Interested gift-givers can order a basket by calling Vann at 522-

WRC has a glow over its 10th annual spaghetti benefit

Hands waved in the air in celebration. Not quite your usual round of applause, but quite appropriate for the Singing Hands Choir of the Michigan School for the Deaf.

From a song about belly buttons to Whitney Houston's mega hit "I Will Always Love You" to Sly and the Family Stone's '70s hit, "Everyday People," the students provided the musical interlude for the 10th annual spaghetti dinner and wine glow which benefits Schoolcraft College's Women's Resource Center.

Held March 23 at the Waterman Center, the fund-raiser attracted a sell-out crowd of spa-ghetti aficionados and a multitude of thanks from WRC director Nancy Swanborg.

Your support is essential to the services we are able to provide to the community," she told the Decorating one wall of college's cafeteria was a quilt made of squares done by WRC staff members and volunteers during a fall in-service weekend. Swanborg pointed it out to guests, noting that "each square represents what the Women's Resource Center represents in life; it tells its story and of its perseverance of spirit."

The center this year has provided 105 scholarships for tuition, books or child care this year, a 110 percent increase in the number given last year. Another 201 women qualified as displaced homemakers or single parents for gender equality grants through the state of Michigan and participated in the WRC's "From Chocolate Chips to Microchips" program. Seventy-seven also have enrolled at Schoolcraft.

Last year, the center handled 16.078 contacts and is on track to exceed that number this year. Swanborg Said. In the first half of the year, the staff has fielded

"That's both a curse and a blessing because there's not enough hours in the day," Swanborg said.

Speaking to the work of the center was scholarship recipient Luz Adriana Castano, a single parent and sole supporter of her son Harold, 7.

"I'm grateful to God for at the time I needed a guide, he led me out of the darkness to light and the Women's Resource Center,' Castano said. "I am also grateful to be chosen for such financial support. It has allowed me the opportunity to achieve my goal of elf-reliance through education."

Castano added that she has two goals, one being self-reliance The other is to get her associate's degree in science from Schoolcraft and going on to earn her bachelor of science degree in physical therapy from Wayne State University

"I'd like to assure my son and myself a better future and I can assure that I have that self-reliance through education," she said. "The Women's Resource Center offers services to women to overcome obstacles to rebuild their lives from practically noth-

"I believe we will met the challenge the world holds for us because of the support of the Women's Resource Center.

The celebration also drew recognition from state lawmakers who count Schoolcraft's boundaries within their districts. The special tribute, honored the center's staff and cadre of volunteers and its "program of serving people in transition an important member of Michigan's network of organizations offering professional support services at important stages in citizens'

It was presented to members of the center advisory board by State Rep. Lyn Bankes, also a member of the board, and signed by her and fellow Reps. Justine Barns, Willis Bullard, Deborah Whyman, William Keith, Jan Dolan and Jerry Vorva and Sens. William Faust and Robert Geake.

Science lecture looks at healing community

Barbara R. Pettis of Chelmsford, Mass., a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, will lecture on, "Healing Our Community: A Spiritual Approach," will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday April 5, at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Plymouth, 1100 W. Ann Arbor Trail. It is open to the public.

Church members hope Pettis' visit will bring healing answers to the challenges facing families, businesses and social organizations in the community.

Pettis, a Christian Science practitioner, devotes her full time to the public ministry of spiritual healing through prayer.

Her discussion will be based on the Bible and she will speak from her own experience of God's power and willingness to heal any problem, including the physical healing of injury and disease.

Trip dispels Third World myths

By ARLENE FUNKE Special Writer

Rob Gunberg and Dennis Silvia remember the friendly, hopeful faces they saw in Haiti.

The two men, Canton residents and members of the Memorial Church of Christ in Livonia, recently spent a week bringing electrical power to a mission community in the impoverished Caribbean country.

"I just felt it was the best way to use my talents given from the Lord," said Gunberg, 27, an electrical technician with a major corporation.

Silvia, a 37-year-old insurance salesman, recalls Haitians who offered to share their meager supply of food.

That was an enormous gesture for people who probably don't get enough to eat," Silvia said. Traveling with Gunberg and Silvia were Kit Tracy of Ferndale, another member of Memorial, and David Paul of Manistique. Paul is Silvia's brother-in-law.

The four men went to Haiti to visit Ohio missionary Paul Ronk. Ronk and his wife, Rachel, parents of three young children, have established a church and school in Jeremie, a city in western Hai-

The trip's purpose was to assist in completing a new church building, install electrical wiring and set up an electrical generator.

"We were able to get a lot accomplished," Silvia said. "Electrical service is very intermittent in Haiti.

Memorial members have been supporting Ronk's missionary work for several years.

Several nations have imposed economic blockades against Haiti since a political coup in 1991. Recently, American officials have turned away thousands of Haitians who tried to enter the country in rickety boats.

"We should try to offer hope to people in their own country," Silvia said.

Silvia's wife Chris, and their two sons, ages 10 and 12, were very apprehensive about his going

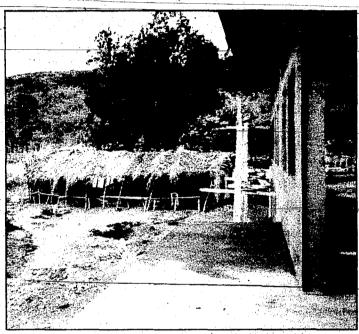

"I took along a lot of 'baggage' about Third World countries," Silvia said. "I had high anxiety."

The approximately 150-mile drive from the capital, Port-au-Prince to Jeremie, took the men up winding dirt roads. People rushed into the roadway to stare and offer food.

"Whites are a distinct minority," Silvia said. "We drew attention as we drove.

Warm reception

Despite reports of anti-American sentiment, the men were warmly received in Jeremie.

"The people were very open, very kind, very caring," Silvia said. "I think the people in the town recognize that what is going on is constructive and good.'

You have to have faith in yourself

What is the most pernicious sin of good people? It is the sin of not believing in yourself, in your future, in your strength.

A person who doesn't believe in himself soon allows that doubt to discolor his whole world.

He can't love another person, because he can't believe another will really take him seriously. He can't give of himself, because he doesn't believe he has anything to give. Obsessed with his own faults and failures, he sees faults and shortcomings in everyone around him and learns to anticipate failure in himself.

Unfortunately, our acciety often makes us feel like failures and strains our faith in our own sense of self-worth. Failure is built into the American system. Any contest that produces winners by definition has to produce losers as well.

What suggestion can I offer? A wise teacher once said, "A person should have two pockets in his coat. In each he should carry a slip of paper containing an ancient quotation. In one pocket, the slip will read 'For my sake the world was created.' In the other, it will state, 'I am but dust and ashes.' This show has expanded over the years to be the largest wildlife art show in the area. Some of the best artists from around the country come and exhibit their works.

Several merchants and organizations also will have gift items for sale. On Saturday and Sunday there will be seminars dealing with various aspects of wildlife in conjunction with the art displays. Call (517) 882-3630 for more information.

■ The Michigan Audubon Society is holding its annual meeting at Oakland University starting Friday afternoon and continuing from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. There will be exhibits and a great bookstore with hundreds of natural history titles. Several speakers will talk about such topics as the Kirtland's warbler, Peregrine falcons and endangered species. There will also be a magic show about garbage by Steve Trash. Call 334-5596 for more details.

■ Throughout the year the Adult Education Program at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens offers some varied classes on naperts in their field. Students can get a great deal of information in a short period of time. Their current class listing extends into September. Classes include Edible Wild Plants, Hummingbirds. Guided Tree-Top Flight, Basic Photography, Insectivorous Plants and more. For more information, call 998-7061.

Participating in classes and meetings of organizations will help you to learn more about the natural world and to meet others who share the same interests.

Livonia writer wins nationwide laurels think it's high time we direct the Book Break spotlight more frequently on some area writers who don't write book-length material but who create well-crafted, prizewinning poetry and short fiction.

In case you don't know, the Detroit area is graced with dozens of such writers. You've probably seen their work in magazines, newspapers or various literary journals published across the country — but, until now, you may not have known the origins of that work.

Case in point: Carol Carpenter of Livonia, a poet and short-story writer, who recently was awarded first prize for her poem, "Hospice," in the prestigious nationwide Writer's Digest annual writing competition. She also won honorable mention in the short fiction category.

the short fiction category.

Prizes are nothing new for the Wayne State University graduate. In the past, she received Wayne State University's Tompkins Award for fiction, the Judith Siegel Pearson Award for fiction and three top prizes in the Detroit International Auto Show's annual short story contest, just to name a few

A former Observer & Eccentric reporter and teacher of English and creative writing at Detroitarea high schools, Oakland University, Oakland Community College, Detroit Institute of Technology and Wayne State, she now co-owns a Southfield-based training company.

Carpenter does most of her poetry and short fiction writing on weekends and during annual vacations. In the past, her work has been published in such magazines as Young American, Iowa Woman, Teaching & Learning, Detroit Monthly and many others.

Poetry dominates

Though she says the short story is her first love, she's writing mostly poetry these days. The decision to go in that direction has been based on one simple fact of life: She can usually complete a poem in less time than it takes her to finish a short story.

This is not to say the 49-year-old mother of two grown children finds poetry writing simple. She spent last year's vacation time at the University of Iowa's summer writing workshops trying to learn more about the craft of poetry writing. This summer, she'll visit a writers' retreat at the University of Southern Indiana doing the same thing. Meanwhile, in her "spare time," she's studying under poet Tom McKeown in an extension course conducted through the University of Wisconsin.

She first wrote the prizewinning Writer's Digest poem as an assignment for the University of Wisconsin class. It took her about two weeks to complete

"A friend of mine who does a lot of hospice work called me one night," she said, recalling the origins of the poem. "She told me about an Alzheimer's patient she was caring for who was near death and who was totally out of touch with reality. The woman was always thinking she was doing things like baking a cake or getting ready to go to a dance. And my friend simply went along with the woman, sharing laughs and talking with her."

A supervising nurse at the hospice quickly stepped in, insisting that the patient's fantasies were not to be encouraged or accepted under any circumstances.

"I was very upset thinking about that — and the poem came out of that story," Carpenter said. "How are other people to really understand what's right for somebody at a time like that?"

right for somebody at a time like that?"

Most of the poems she writes, she says, come from stories, and, in turn, could be written as stories. They also usually have to do with women's relationships, struggles and growth.

Prize a surprise

"It was absolutely wonderful to win the prize," she said. "Every year, I try to write at least one poem and one short story just with that particular contest in mind, but I'd never even placed in the top 10 before.

"When (Writer's Digest) called to tell me I'd when (Writer's Digest) called to tell me I'd won first place, I was at work, having a really rough day, and they left the message on my answering machine. I think I must have played that message 500 times."

As it happened, one of Carpenter's favorite poets, Diane Wakoski, acted as final judge in the highly competitive contest, making the win even more special.

Carpenter's "Aunt Hattie Visits," a short story set in Detroit about an eccentric, matchmaking woman and an unexpected visit she pays to her unmarried niece, received an honorable mention in the contest.

New poems by Carol Carpenter are scheduled for publication in upcoming issues of Bellingham Review, Hawaii Review and Wisconsin Review.

Schaefer, an artist who works in a variety of media, will award cash prizes ranging from $10 to $50 for Best of Show, first, second and third place as well as honorable mentions. An engraved plaque will be given to the winner of the Grumbacher Award for best use of color.

"It's a warm, inviting show with a wide range of subjects and a wide range of prices," said club president Lorraine Whitacre of Farmington Hills.

"It's informal and friendly with some of the most accomplished and most advanced artists as well as a few beginners," added club member Billie Thompson of Livonia.

The atrium adds plenty of light and increases the uplifting atmosphere of the show. "It's a nice area to display in. The light is wonderful," said Redford Township resident Ruthann Platt, show co-chair with Yvette Goldberg of Livonia.

Platt, a watercolorist, will exhibit two florals, including a tulip garden and a big white rose.

Whitacre, who prefers working from life, will display two paintings from her tropical flower series along with an abstract of a volcano eruption done in inks and watercolor. "My son lives in Hawaii. I go there all the time. I love painting jungly garden scenes."

"Anthurium," a watercolor by Whitacre, focuses on an arrangement of pink, peach, white and green anthuriums. She found it "a challenge to paint anthuriums that didn't look like red plastic hearts. I do the main ones first and then work the rest around it. Primary for me is good design and balance, and color. I would hope the viewer enjoys it. I hope they get the feeling I get from tropical flowers."

Whitacre studied art at Madonna University in Livonia two years. Using watercolor, inks and mixed media, she works in styles she refers to as experimental watercolor and abstract naturalism.

Whitacre begins abstract paintings by pouring liquid watercolors on paper, then texturing it with

Graduating seniors display variety of art

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

"Back to Back-Face to Face" showcases multimedia artwork by five of 13 seniors graduating from the art department at Madonna University in Livonia.

Printmaking, painting, sculpture and photography by Marilyn Bitterman, Nancy Jardine, Betty Marianetti, Linda McMillan and Cassandra Smith continue through April 8 in the Exhibit Gallery on the second floor of the library, Schoolcraft and Levan.

"It gives a good example of the high quality of work that students are doing at Madonna, not only fine arts but in commercial as well," said Ralph Glenn, art department chairman. "This shows a wonderful variety, from painting to Oriental brushwork to three-dimensional pieces.

These are fine, very talented people."
Cassandra Smith of Canton Township, like each of the seniors, exhibits clay, acrylic, watercolor, photography, Oriental brushwork, woodcut and pencil studies in the show.

She hopes to find a position in advertising after graduation. A watercolor illustration from the fairy tale "Three Blind Mice" shows the whimsical mice running after the farmer's models.

"I put my favorite in and history of what I've done," Smith said. "It's what I was hoping to eventually get into, commercial art. I'd just enjoy doing something I like. I like the idea of working for an ad agency because it's creative."

wife. Smith used her two pet rats as Smith's clay "Study of Head, Neck and Shoulders" reminds the viewer of Greek sculpture dating to the classical period. "My favorite is the clay. It's more pliable, flexible — and you can cover your mistakes," Smith said.

Jardine, of Farmington Hills, eventually would like to teach art. She put herself through school by working full time at the Royal Oak post office. Her lithographs, 'Studies of a Dying Fish,' focus on the last days of a pet goldfish

"I like the lithographs. It's like painting but you get multiples," Jardine said

An itaglio, "Man and His Beast," features a large dog in the middle of nowhere sniffing at a bush. Underneath the scene the title reads, "A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast" Prov. 12:10.

Many of Jardine's prints tie in verses from the Bible. "I feel my talents are a gift from God so why not give God credit."

A work not to be missed in this exhibition is the exquisite alabaster sculpture "Enveloping Love II" by Betty Marianetti of Novi. The lyrical line of the form leads the viewer's eye in and around the head and shoulders very successfully.

A lithograph and watercolor by Marianetti, "Peeking Out," has a primitive look that lends to the dismal feeling of a pig peering out the window of a barn.

Several pieces by McMillan center around boats. "Harbor Blue," a linoleum cut, uses the masts and directions of the boats to lead the viewer to a narrowing perspective on the horizon. An intaglio, "Harbour Mist,"

II RUMMAGE SALE

Friends of the Westland Historical Museum are collecting donated items to include in a rummage sale to raise money for the Perrinsville School restoration project

School restoration project.

The rummage sale will be held 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, May 15 at the Westland Historical Museum, 857 N. Wayne, between Cherry Hill and Marquette.

Bring donated items to the museum 1-4 p.m. Saturdays until May 8 (except April 10). Sought are dishes, linens, furniture, jewelry, toys, tools.

antiques, books, knickknacks and kitchen items (no clothing).

In cooperation with the city of Westland the Westland Historical Commission, the Perrinsville School Committee, is restoring the 1856 one-room schoolhouse (on Warren near Merriman) to its 1890s appearance. Plans call for elementary-age youngsters to attend daylong classes to learn about the turn-of-the-century lifestyle in the old village of Perrinsville.

Eight Observerland residents will take part in Craft Gallery's Easter Folk Art & Victorian Craft Show 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, April 4, at Hawthorne Valley Country Club, 7300 Merriman, north of West Warren, in Westland.

They are:

Livonia — Dorothy James, jewelry; Laverne

Motter, wearable art.

Plymouth — Val Davis and Debbie Jordan, country wood and fabric.

■ Westland — Carol Dean, teddy bears.
■ Garden City — Barbara Bridges, baskets and dolls; Joyce Paavola, seasonal, country and Victorian ceramics; Debbie Garrity, miniature country and Victorian clay sculpture.

The show's 65 displays will offer juried folk art, Victorian crafts, early Americana, the French country look and shades of the Southwest.

Admission is $2 (children younger than 12 free). Lunches and refreshments will be available in Hawthorne Gardens (lower level). No strollers or cameras are allowed.

through an economy of line, gives rhythm and motion to boats in this waterscape.

McMillan says the reason she was successful in acquiring a bachelor of fine arts degree was due to the inspiration, motivation and knowledge from her professors and the support from her family.

"Dusk," a gouache and acrylic painting by Bitterman, places two small boats dockside at sunset. She does a nice job of handling reflections and water in this piece, the two seemingly intermingle to become one. "The Tiseos," an architectural rendering of a contemporary home, and a Ferrari in gouache show skill and promise.

> Ralph Glenn art department chairman

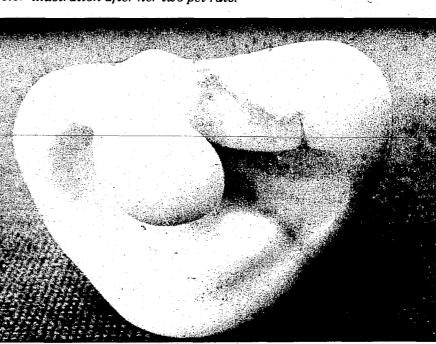

Due to the size of display cases in the gallery, artworks by the 13 graduating seniors had to be exhibited in three separate shows running two weeks each in length. Previous shows of the students spotlighted the work of Carl Gerard, John Magnusson, Gabrielle Nisenbaum, Nancy Paton, Amy Lambertson, Tabatha Linderwell, Jean Peedle and Michael Brock.

'It's the largest graduating class we've had," said Douglas Semivan, assistant professor of art. "I'm feeling good about the department, how it's growing. This particular show represents all of the areas, all of the media, that we teach here — from sculpture to printmaking."

Exhibit Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday and 1-4 p.m. Sunday.

Whimsical wonder: Cassandra Smith modeled "The Three Blind Mice" in this watercolor illustration after her two pet rats.

"Enveloping Love II:" An alabaster sculpture by Betty Marianetti leads the eye around and through the lyrical form.

Grand Prix poster draws on Seurat, skyline

By MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

Work by an old master and new technology combined to make the 1993 Detroit Grand Prix poster, available in Observerland stores.

Bloomfield Township resident Mark Zapico, vice president/ group creative director at the advertising agency of D'Arcy, Masius, Benton and Bowles in Bloomfield Hills, came up with the design.

Using computers, Zapico and graphic art specialists from the Madison Heights advertising art studio McNamara and Associates merged Georges Seurat's painting of 1884-86, "Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grand Jatte.' with images of the Detroit skyline and race cars to make "Sunday Afternoon at Belle Isle Park 1993-

"It's (the painting) like an icon for the summer. Even people who don't know art at least have probably seen this somewhere in the back of their mind," said Zapico, who grew up in Farmington Hills.

Zapico won an unusual competition sponsored by Detroit Renaissance and the Detroit Creative Directors Council.

Detroit Renaissance is the producer of the ITT Automotive Detroit Grand Prix, scheduled for June 11-13 in Belle Isle Park. DCDC is a 26-member professional advertising group that promotes the creative work of greater Detroit advertising agencies.

In past years, Detroit Renaissance had named a single agency to design each Grand Prix poster. This year, it offered the task to agencies in the form of the competition. More than 75 entries from 25 area agencies were received.

'It was such a unique concept," Diane Taylor of Detroit Renaissance said of Zapico's design. "This is the 100th anniversary of Belle Isle, so we liked the idea of taking the turn-of-the-century (imagery) and juxtaposing it with he skyline."

For the design, Zapico thought of the Seurat painting at first but put the idea acide. He really wanted to use a Rene Magritte painting showing a horse in a forest, in which the horse becomes a tree, but it didn't work out. (Zapico's design would have replaced the horse with a car.)

In the end, he made a rough sketch of the Seurat design in about a day, just making the contest deadline. Seurat (1859-1891) developed a technique called pointillism. His paintings consist of dots of color that blend to create the effect of shimmering light and subtle color variations at a distance. His painting used for the poster, a scene of people relaxing on a sunny day, took the artist two years to complete.

Completing the poster design involved electronic imaging and conventional hand illustration.

The original painting is in the Art Institute of Chicago. After obtaining the right to use a photo of the work for reproduction, Zapico and the team made a transparency on the computer.

They imitated Seurat's style in drawing the race cars and the Detroit skyline. Computer scanning hand on her hip, and extending a man's leg.

"All the parallels were there," Zapico said.

cluded Rob Watson, Mike Tiderington, Garth Glazier and Tim Bodendistel.

helped them with the coloring and sizing. Computers also enabled them to reposition boats from the original drawing and extend the artist's frame around the entire scene.

Seurat's painting was set along the Seine River. La Grand Jatte was an island in the Seine near Paris. Among the alterations made for the poster were putting in a road to replace the river bank, removing a fishing rod from a woman's hand and placing her plastic, wax paper or cheesecloth. The paper is then weighted down and left to dry for three or four days to see what develops.

"First I look at it for a couple of days to see what I can see in it," Whitacre said. "That's when I start with the watercolor on it. The abstracts are more mysterious. I use lots of sienna, blue, blue-green and naples yellow.'

Whitacre has won several ribbons, including the Livonia Arts Commission Award and Best of Show in the Visual Art Association of Livonia's fall 1991 exhibit.

Thompson will exhibit three watercolors from her foliage series in the show. "They came from a series I did on leaves. It's foliage just in time for spring. They're all different ways to treat one sub-

"Sunrise," a watercolor by Thompson, features a houseplant with the light source coming from behind. Golden yellow shines through the leaves of red, blue, green and yellow.

"I've been working a lot with purple and oranges, all the compliments of the orange and purples, yellow, green and blue. I like to push it as far as it goes color-wise," she said. "I like drama. I like presenting the subject in a different way. I like for people not to miss my paintings."

Thompson began her drawing studies in Farmington's adult education program in 1970. For the next three years, she took acrylic painting classes with Farmington Hills artist Edee Joppich. Watercolor classes with Joppich from 1979 to 1980 sold Thompson on the excitement of the medium. She has since studied the medium locally with Alice Nichols, Donna Yogelheim, Ann Loveland and Carol Weisenauer.

Thompson has exhibited her work in the annual Scarab Club watercolor show in Detroit, the Helen DeRoy Art Competition at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills, the Plymouth Community Arts Council Michigan Art 1992, the Our Town art exhibition in Birmingham and in Michigan Watercelor Society exhibits.

Thompson will be the featured artist beginning March 28 at The Gallery, a cooperative space run by the Pontiac-Oakland Society of Artists in Rochester, and beginning May 16 at The Artists Gallery, a cooperative in West Bloomfield.

Artist Terri Willard of Livonia will exhibit watercolor landscapes and colored pencil in the Livonia show. She has worked in watercolor four years but has drawn for more than 20. "I like using natural colors: blue and brown and green. Some I do from photographs but most are from my imagination."

Livonia artists Eileen Bibby and Al Weber will demonstrate watercolor during the Livonia

Livonia Artists Club show prices range from $100 to $800 with unframed bin art beginning at $5. -

THE GALLERY

Continuing — Livonia watercolorist Billie Thompson is among featured artists at the Pontiac Oakland Society of Artists exhibition in Great Oaks Mall, Walton and Livernois, Rochester. Call 651-1579.

African artistry shared

The Southfield Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta sorority will host "Kuumba Odyssey," an African-American art show and sale, 3-7 p.m. Saturday, April 3, at the Oakland Community College Southfield Campus, 22322 Rutland, Nine Mile between Southfield and Greenfield.

Admission is free. The show will feature works of about 30 local artists. Paintings, pencil sketches, jewelry, sculptures, ceramics, dolls, African clothing and and other items will Proceeds will be used for a fine arts scholarship given annually to a local high school student pursuing a professional arts career.

Kuumba is African for creativity. Odyssey means adventurous "Kuumba journey. "Kuumba Odyssey" is appropriate because the show allows the public to become aware of some of the lesser-known local artists, the chapter said.

Senior executives

Trerice Tosto of Birmingham has made partners of the senior executives of its five divisions.

They are: Vince E. Butterly Jr., vice president, property management; James E. Mawson, senior vice president, appraisal and consulting division; Robert L. Salsberry, senior vice president; Michael L. Moran, senior vice president, commercial division; James B. Oatley, vice president, mergers and acquisitions.

In 1992, Trerice Tosto leased or sold nearly 3.5 million square feet of commercial and industrial space in 18 states and Canada.

Heads civil engineering

Victor J. Pilar has been promoted to head of the civil engineering department at Giffels Associates. Southfield.

He succeeds Richard J. Johnson who retired in February. Pilar will direct the technical and personnel activities of the department.

Botsford team

Botsford General Hospital and Botsford Continuing Health Center have named architects Bowers and Rein Associates and Southfield builders Wineman & Komer to its Botsford Commons development team.

Botsford Commons is an adult living community scheduled to break ground this spring.

Bowers and Rein projects include Botsford General Hospital's Center for Health Improvement in Novi, a senior living facility, and the Childrens Center in Detroit.

Wineman & Komer projects include the Wayne County Building historic renovation, the Hills of Lone Pine and the Oaks of Bloomfield.

Houses pass muster during parade showing

■ Area builders displayed their talents by showing houses in a number of price ranges and styles.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

When it comes to design, special features and value for price, residential builders with ties to Observer & Eccentric communities do exceptionally good work.

They snapped up five of the seven awards in this year's Parade of Homes competition sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan in conjunction with that professional association's annual show.

"The purpose is to give the home-buying public access to models available," said Susan Adler, BASM spokeswoman. 'It gives them what we hope becomes a comprehensive listing of homes available not only in different areas, but different price ranges.'

Floor plans and renderings were submitted for 33 models scattered throughout the metro area. A panel of architects, designers and academics judged the nominations.

The first thing I look for is whether form follows function," said Maureen Ashman, a Farmington Hills designer and Parade of Homes judge. "I've always thought of design as starting inside out.

"Then I look for something unusual, something interesting, something that will make it stand out from the rest,'

Following is a brief summary of O&E winners by catego-■ Under $130,000. The Colonial, 1,650 square feet, was built by Edward Rose & Sons of Southfield in Brownstown Township's Woodland Heights Subdivision. The $109,500 price includes the lot.

The basic model contains a living room, family room and combination dining room/kitchen/eating nook and half bath downstairs. Upstairs, buyers have the choice of a larger master bedroom and three smaller ones or four bedrooms.

The model has an attached two-car garage, basement, brick on all four sides with aluminum siding on the second story, and carpeting.

"I think it's a very functional floor plan — it's a nice, traditional colonial home," said Marty Skura, sales manager for Rose, "Land isn't quite as expensive in the downriver area. Basically, that's what drives price up.

■ $155,000 to $175,000. The Village Crest, 2,150 square feet, was built by Heritage Residential Group (formerly B.B.C. Group) of Farmington Hills. The model, starting at $171,990 including the lot, is available in Sunflower Village X Subdivision in Canton.

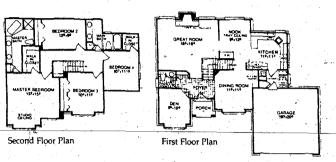

All four bedrooms are upstairs. The master suite has its own bath, a large walk-in closet and a raised studio ceiling at one end that allows that portion of the room to be used as an exercise area

The other three bedrooms are serviced by a second full bath. The main level has a den and a great room, a breakfast nook with a tray ceiling flowing into the kitchen and dining room, a laundry room and a powder room.

Multi-family housing slumping

 Many industries that were bruised and battered during the recession are breathing new signs of life. But one industry shows few signs of getting off the mat.

The industry, multi-family home construction, went through the boom years between the late 1960s and the mid-1980s. But it's been down for a long count since then. Multi-family building permit volume last year fell below 190,000 units, less than one-sixth the volume in 1972 and just one-quarter the volume registered in 1985 when the long decline began. In the Detroit-Ann Arbor area, multi-family permits were down 10.1 percent in 1992, compared to 1991. In the fourth quarter of the year, multifamily permits were down 61.7 percent compared to the previous fourth quarter, according to U.S. Housing Markets report. 'Rental apartment market over-built," the report said. "Vacancies high, rent flat. Occupancy generally in 85-88 percent range, but lower in some areas of heavier recent developement and in compexes older than 20 years. Overbuilding most apparent in western locales (Novi, Wixom, Plymouth, Ypsilanti) and in I-59 corridor north and northeast.

'Landlords (are) aggressive, advertising concessions such as low movein costs, 13th month free on 12-month

As any multi-family builder will tell you, that's bad enough, but viewed from a certain perspective it is even worse. In the past, multi-family housing generally was for renters, but much of the current activity isn't for

Instead, builders have been aiming at buyers, in part because lenders seem more willing to take that risk.

'If we assume that condominiums accounted for close to one-fourth of those pemits," says Mack Rogers of Lomas Mortgage, "the creation of new rental apartment stock last year was slower than any year since 1956. Last year, multi-family units accounted for merely one of every six residential building permits issued in this coun-

Part of the problem is created by falling interest rates, which in other times would be beneficial to builders. But now those low rates are encouraging former renters to become owners leaving behind rental vacancies. Whatever the reasons, the decline of multi-family building is working off the excess space created during the mid- and early 1980s, when bankers shoveled money at developers, who quickly turned it into bricks and mor-

Landlords were hurt even more by the slow rate of job growth, one effect being to discourage young people from leaving their parents' homes for a rental apartment of their own and another being to force renters to double

With all this, "it is clear why work on new apartment units has become a rare sight in most locales," says Rogers, senior vice president of the Dallas-based financial services firm that oversees $25 billion in mortgages.

So weak is the multi-family sector that it has distorted housing statistics and helped create a false notion that all housing is weak. Although multi-family is weak, single-family building is stronger than it was a dec-

"The thing I'm most gratified with is we're a repeat winner,' said Taglione, whose firm last year won in the same price catego-

"It's a tremendous value for the square footage," said Gary Shapiro, an Ivanhoe-Huntley partner. 'The key to the design is there is no wasted space.

The master suite is very elaborate for this price range," he said. "It has a cathedral ceiling, two walk-in closets. It's set off by itself, real private.

Other elements mentioned by Shapiro were the two-story foyer, first-floor laundry, elaborate kitchen and the possibility of pulling the living and dining rooms together for entertainment

"It's the nicest model we've ever done," said Jim Rosin, marketing director. "It has decorative windows, a functional floor plan. People today want expansive baths and kitchens. It has a back staircase that services the master bedroom to the kitchen.

Spring projects feel lumber pinch

- It'll cost more to put that deck on the house this spring than it did last fall — about 50 percent more, lumber retailers

Lumber prices that had been on the rise about a year have shot up about 50 percent just since No

"I've seen it get totally and utterly stupid — out of control," said Dave Hunt, owner of B&D Lumber Co. Inc.

Some blame it on trade practices, some on Hurricane Andrew and others on the spotted owl controversy.

"You get a million excuses from anybody," said Bill Harmon with Town & Country Homecenter. "It started with the hurricane . . . now it's too wet to get in to'cut ed States. The supply has been stressed by the weather and by wholesalers who usually buy lumber from the West but have seen. their own supplies drying up thanks to logging cutbacks.

Trade publications estimate 133,000 logging jobs have been lost in the Pacific Northwest because of policies to protect the spotted owl. On Friday, the U.S. Forest Service asked for even more logging cutbacks to protect other endangered species.

Whatever the reason, the increases aren't just affecting the cost of 2-by-4's. The price of other building products such as moldings, doors and windows also are skyrocketing. And lumber retailers and wholesalers aren't the only ones feeling the pinch.

"I am in the middle of a big project right now," said Dave Swank, owner of Cherokee Builders Inc. "I bid it in September and started it in January, and it's costing me a small fortune in the difference between what I bid for the job and what the cost is now."

The result has been a decline in business for builders. And that affects the peripheral contractors: heating, plumbing and electrical contractors, as well as floor-cover ing and furniture retailers.

"If I've lost a job, they have too," Blunt said.

Swank said there are some things contractors can do.

"We have to get smarter and get more efficient. And probably a big chunk of us will go out of business." he said.

'What really scares me, though, is how will my kids and your kids ever be able to afford a house?' Swank said.

Endangered species? As the outdoor building season gets into full swing, the price of lumber may surprise homeowners thinking of adding a deck to their yards. And the increases aren't just affecting the cost of 2-by-4's. The price of other building products such as moldings, doors and windows also is skyrocketing.

Using right tools makes good garden sense

The first thing beginners learn is there is a right time and place to plant your garden, but the tools you use to create your backyard masterpiece are just as important, says Mary Reyes, a manager at the Plymouth Nursery.

"If you use the right tool it makes the job a lot more productive — and a lot less expensive," she says. "For example, if you use a hand pruner to trim a large tree limb it's going to damage the tool.

Not only will you have to replace the pruner, but you'll have the expense of buying the tool you need as well. You can also damage your plant, she says. If you prune bushes or large limbs with the wrong tool, you won't get a clean cut and the plant will be damaged by improper healing or scarring.

To help you determine which tools of the craft best fit the needs of your gardening tasks, most gardening resource books, including Sunset's "Basic Gardening" and Martha Stewart's "Gardening", offer this handy list of gardening implements and their uses for your reference.

Tools for Cultivation

Hand trowel: good for container and small gardening tasks. Can be used to mix soil, plant seedlings or dig up weeds.

Hand cultivator: this is a fork with three sharp prongs which make digging easier. Good for getting into small spaces, such as between plants.

Hand weeder: this triangular steel blade with knifelike sharpness is useful for breaking up soil, weeding and cultivating.

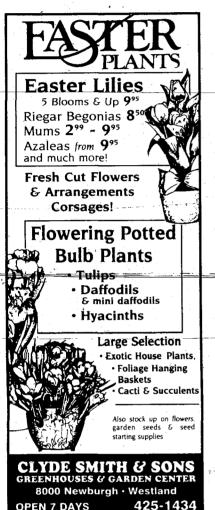

Round-point shovel: use to dig up garden plots; move soil and compost and to transplant larger plants.

Spade: this shovel with a flatter blade is useful for digging planting holes, moving soil and compost, and breaking off invasive roots.

Garden fork: the four flat times on this tool break up hard soil.

Spading fork: smaller than the Please turn to page 5

PRESENTING HOME & GARDEN

Three days after the vernal equinox I knew it really was spring. My two ivy plants, which I had rooted in water and planted last October, sprouted their first new leaves. All of a sudden the new gardening books I collected over the winter and promptly placed in a pile, have a new appeal. I've already dusted a few off and have begun planning my backyard garden, albeit a little late!

Whether you are a novice or master gardener, I hope this issue of Home & Garden, which appears today, April 1, 1993 in all Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, provides you with some inspiration as well!

garden fork, this tool is useful when you need to dig out perennials with few severed roots, harvest root vegetables or turn compost.

Round blade edger: the sharp edge on this tool makes it good for marking off garden beds and for weeding in difficult places.

Flathead rake: good for leveling beds after cultivation.

Hoe: use a hoe to dig out weeds, to make rows for planting and to transplant holes.

Tiller: use a tiller to mix soil additions into planting beds and to break up dense soil.

TOOLS FOR CUTTING

Pruning shears: use straight bypass shears for multi-stemmed shrubs and places that are difficult to reach.

Thinning shears: this small, pointed narrow scissor is used to deadhead flowers, cut flowers and to harvest fruits and vegetables.

Loppers: long-handled loppers are a must for cutting branches over 1/2 inch; they also reach easier into high dense foliage.

Hedge shears: these scissor-like shears with serrated blades are good for shaping and shearing hedges, shrubs and some ground covers.

HELPFULS TO HAVE ON HAND

Gloves: heavy-duty leather gloves are good when using tools or collecting debris; gloves of lighter weight material like goatskin are good for pruning and weeding.

Baskets: wicker and wooden baskets with handles are usefuls for collecting vegetables and for carrying hand tools to the garden.

Plant rings or guards: used as support for taller plants; guards should be made of a non-rust material and put in place when the plants are small.

Vine supports: use to train young vines or to support old ones.

Bamboo stakes: use these stakes to support plants between four and six feet tall.

Jute or twine: natural and biodegradable are the best to tie plants to their supports.

Herb garden can be gourmet's delight

Kitchen gardens yield a bounty of savory seasonings for summer recipes

By Cynthia G. LaFerle special writer

For centuries herbs have worked their fragrant magic in recipes, potpourris, medicinal potions, and household reme-

The ancient Greeks believed mint was an aphrodisiac, while some Victorians gathered sprigs of basil to present as tokens of love and good intentions. And in some cultures, the prolific parsley plant was revered as a fertility symbol.

Today's herb gardener is more likely to cultivate his or her crop for concocting meals rather than love potions.

"We're definitely seeing an increase in the popularity of fresh herbs. More people want to grow their own at home for cooking as well as for using in craft projects," says Mike Bovio, Greenhouse Manager at English Gardens Nursery and Garden Center, West Bloomfield. By mid-May, he notes, his greenhouse stocks 60 varieties of herb plants - and they sell.

Bovio credits the health food movement for the revival in cooking with fresh herbs. Also influencing the trend are ethnic and gourmet recipes that call for fresh (and sometimes hard to find) herbal seasonings.

Herbs are fairly simple to start and maintain — whether you opt for just a few sprigs in a window box or several plants in old-fashioned herb garden beds. And if you plant a basic assortment near the kitchen door, everything you need for aromatic and flavorful meals, beverages, oils, and vinegars will be within easy reach.

You can get a head start on the growing season with nursery plants, though seed packets are available from mailorder catalogs or local nurseries, including Frank's Nursery and Crafts and Bordine's Better Blooms garden centers.

Herbs make themselves at home in containers, which are often the answer for gardeners with limited time or yard space. Decorative as well as useful, potted herbs can be moved around the deck or terrace for optimal sunlight exposure. (Some potted herbs can be brought indoors for the winter, if proper light conditions are provided).

"Like vegetable gardens, herb gardens require a fair amount of sun and well-drained soil," Bovio advises. "Once the plants are established, they'll benefit from a balanced, water-soluble fertilizer." He notes also that herbs are relatively insect- and disease-free.

Bovio suggests these "top ten" herbs for starting a basic kitchen garden.

BASIL (annual) is a must for some Italian dishes, including pesto, as well as for salads, soups and casseroles. Prefers full sun.

CHIVES (perennial bulbs) add punch to many bland foods — not just the humble scoop of cottage cheese. Chives grow best in full sun, but will tolerate part shade.

DILL (annual) produces delicate fern-like leaves and pungent seeds highly valued assets to summer soup, fish, seafood, and chicken recipes. Prefers full sun.

MINT (perennial; several varieties available) is a refreshing summer classic in iced tea and fruit salads, or as a topping on sherbet and ice cream. Extremely hardy and sometimes hard to contain. Mint prefers partial shade.

OREGANO (annual) gives a real kick to Greek and Italian main dishes and salads. Oregano refers full sun.

PARSLEY (biennial) might be as basic as a garnish can be, but most cooks wouldn't get caught without a fresh bunch. Prefers full sun or light shade.

ROSEMARY (tender perennial) is essential to many Mediterranean veal and lamb recipes, and is prized for its fragrance. Prefers full sun.

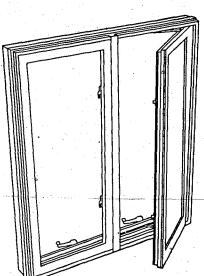

SAGE (perennial) lends its savory charms to stuffings, meat and game marinades, and salads. Prefers full sun.

TARRAGON (perennial) adds elegance to vinegars, sauces, meats, and salads. Prefers full sun, but will tolerate some shade.

THYME (perennial) releases its beautiful aroma if you happen to step on it. This herb, prized in landscaping for use between paving stones, gives flavor to meats and stuffings. Several varieties available; prefers full sun.

Once your green thumb has mastered these basics, you'd be ready for exotic additions to your herb garden. Lavender, lemon balm, lovage, chamomile, tansy, sweet cicely..the names are as romantic as their origins, and the list of craft and culinary possibilities is endless.

Showoffs for your 1993 garden

by Debbie Wallis Landau special writer

The standouts in your 1993 garden are just as likely to be new varieties of trusted old favorites as they are to be new exotic blooms.

And local greenhouse owners are always sensitive to the desires and growing trends of their public, haven't stopped at flowers this year, either. Some of their favorite picks are in the vegetable family.

Dave Smith, Jr., manager of Clyde Smith's in Westland, specializes in locally

"The tomato plants you can cultivate today are superior in flavor, texture and performance to those of yesteryear." he says. "Many second- and third-generation people come in still remembering their parents and grandparents touting the merits of the old Beefsteak Tomato.'

The consumer who buys grown produce is often at the mercy of grocery stores, Smith says.

"You can't control when the produce is picked. Often they are picked before they are ripe and color is injected into them," he says. "Growing your own, on the other hand, permits you to harvest to your taste.'

"Many of our customers mix flower and vegetable gardens," says Fiona Brinks, sales and florist manager for Bordines in Rochester. One of her favorite flowers is Pendulus Blue Lantana, a lavender blue offeringwhich blooms all summer and does beautifully with geraniums. Brinks says she is also getting more prairie flowers, as consumers opt for a wild, less cultivated look.

One perennial Mike Bovio, greenhouse manager for English Gardens Sunny Border Blue, with deep blue flowers and large leaves.

"It's hardy for our ever changing climate, can adapt to different soils and full sun. It's very nice planted in combination with echinacea purporea," Bovio says.

English Gardens is purchasing new varieties of hosta for shady areas. It's a perennial which works nicely with ferns. has an attractive combination of foliage and texture and is low-upkeep.

For one single, best selling plant, Smith is continually pleased with impatiens. Although this greenhouse manager in West Bloomfield, likes Beautiful blooms - Flowers like this jaunty 10-inchto recommend is Veronica tall "Little Witch" narcissus are a cheerful addition.

supervises the growing of plants in his nursery, he insists, "You just don't get the beautiful large mass of flowers in other plants. Not only are they low maintenance, but come in every imaginable color you could desire.

Two new varieties of impatiens he is excited about are the Super Elfin Swirl, which comes in 18 new shades, and the Bi-Color.

"Last year, we presented the Dazzler, "Smith says, " and we'll be repeating it again because it sold well."

Hangin' out at the hardware

Nuts and bolts therapy is one cure for writer's block a

By Cynthia La Ferle special writer

I'm a frustrated weekend renovator and part-time gardener — one of those people who is handy around the house mostly in the theoretical sense. But since I'm a freelance writer who works at home, I have more opportunities than most people to notice what needs fixing. I'm learning, day by day, that you can do more with a hammer than hang pictures; that if you wiggle the right things inside the toilet tank, you can get by without a

My first love is working with words. But there are times when I can't construct a sentence, times when I can't even nail down the simplest idea. When that happens to some writers, they call it writer's block and seek a cure with pals at the neighborhood pub. I discovered that nothing beats the therapy found on the racks and in the bins of hardware suppliers. When I can't cope with the word processor, I sign off and head for the hardware.

A close relative of the old-fashioned general store, my favorite hardware store in town is an emporium of small miracles and endless household possibilities. Here, neatly categorized in no-nonsense departments, are all the hooks, hinges, clasps, latches, clippers, sprays, and nozzles for every imaginable project.

This is a world in which all the bits and pieces - unlike my unruly paragraphs — click into place and hum like gears in a well-oiled machine.

These days, when few of the tools of daily living are crafted to endure the long haul, the stuff at the hardware store is downright reassuring. At the hardware, for example, you can buy one of those hefty galvanized metal watering cans (forget those flimsy plastic things) that holds gallons of anything and lasts a lifetime. And there are rows of serious looking shovels in all shapes and sizes, plus several varieties of respectable leather gardening gloves, tough as cowboy

If nothing else, hardware stores are inspirational. They remind me that improving one's surroundings isn't much different than striving to perfect one's art. Like unfinished paintings or novels, houses and gardens are works in progress; with a little imagination, the right tools, and maybe some elbow grease, anything is possible. Even a better bathroom.

I wander the plumbing supply aisles whenever I need inspiration for one of my circa 1920s bathrooms. I marvel at the gleaming array of brass faucets, fancy shower attachments, porcelain switchplates - quick fixes that will satisfy my urge to make changes until I can afford a contractor to knock out some walls and start from scratch.

And then there's my kitchen, which has suffered the indignities of a 1970s remodeling job and needs several thousand of dollars worth of construction. But at the hardware store, less than a couple hundred dollars would buy a few boxes of classy brass cabinet handles and a few cans of paint for an instant "facelift."

I sometimes fritter away hours pondering do-it-yourself improvement projects and the gadgets that go with them. Most of these items won't find their way home in my shopping bag. But it doesn't matter. There are times when searching for a new mailbox, plant fertilizer, or light fixture is more fun than catching misplaced modifiers and spelling errors in my

I visit the hardware store to remind myself that some ideas literally take shape with the twist of a wrench or screwdriver. I look for a temporary escape from the abstract world of words - and for some dreams that come true with easy-to-follow instructions.

Great outdoor rooms

Extend the season by expanding your living space.

By Cynthia G. La Ferle special writer

Call it moving the indoors out or bringing the outdoors in -- it's all a matter of perspective. Either way, the walls that separate us from the great outdoors are coming down.

Alfresco living spaces — porches, decks, gardens, and patios — extend the pleasures of Michigan's fleeting summer by providing additional places to eat, entertain, and enjoy the natural world.

"The days of the old cement patio slab are gone," says Jim Sica, President of Jimmies Rustics, Livonia. "The trend is toward making beautiful - sometimes elaborate — extensions of the interior, right down to sophisticated outdoor furnishings and cushion fabrics. It has a lot to do with the fact that people are spending more free time at home and want to make the most of it."

Unlike other home improvement projects, an outdoor "room" does't require tremendous effort or a huge budget. Using your imagination and a variety of furnishings and products, you can fashion an inviting retreat in a matter of days.

First, define your outdoor domain with walls of latticework, bright area rugs, awnings, canopies, or arbors. Walkways and paths designed from brick, grave, or bluestone can extend the space to the pool or garden.

ALL DECKED OUT

Decks can be plain-and-simple extensions of your interior world, or multi-level architectural wonders. Most decks are fairly easy to assemble — if you're a reasonably skilled carpenter.

But before you start, visit your local lumber yard and discuss your ideas with someone who can explain the pros and cons of the varieties of lumber available. - cedar or redwood, for example. The experts at Erb Lumber in Birmingham, and Haggerty Lumber in Walled Lake can offer tips on how to treat and maintain your chosen deck materials.

Front or back porches become nostalgic escapes when outfitted with downhome comforts and accessories.

Hanging swings, like the one on Great Grandma's porch, are making a comeback. These are available at most local hardware or lumber suppliers. "We're also stocking the old-fashioned gliders, which you can use on porches or decks," says Al Jean of Jean's Hardware in Farmington Hills.

Complete the setting with a huge pot of red geraniums and a pitcher of lemonade, and you'y got it made in the shade. FINE FURNISHINGS or the weather. Some pieces can be moved back and forth with ease. Top choices include umbrella tables, director's chairs, hammocks, beverage carts, and picnic tables.

The newest garden furniture is so stylish that it's not surprising to find it used indoors as well as outside.

Before purchasing garden furniture, consider such factors as storage and maintenance — and how the pieces will weather in your outdoor room.

"Teakwood - for benches, dining sets, and planters - is coming on strong this season," notes Jim Sica of Jimmies Rustics. "It's insect-proof and durable enough to last a lifetime," he adds, noting that those elegant teak English garden benches are ever-popular accents on decks or tucked in a private corner of the garden.

And for the rustic look, nothing beats the woodsy charm of weathered Adirondack chairs or twig furnishings.

Now produced in weather-resistant finishes, wicker remains a popular choice for outdoor living rooms; ditto time-honored wrought iron in Victorian or contemporary styles. And look for the new acrylic weather-proof furniture cushions, available in a variety of styles at Casual Concepts in Rochester. NATURAL WONDERS

Accessories inspired by the natural world are perfect. accents for any outdoor room. Beautifully designed birdhouses, feeders, and birdbaths will attract feathered friends to your garden oasis. Along with a complete line of bird and garden accessories, Wild Birds Unlimited (Royal Oak, Rochester Hills, or Farmington Hills) stocks a special bird seed that won't spill and leave a Wind chimes and garden statuary lend enchantment, while fountains and lily ponds add splash.

And don't forget to illuminate your deck or garden. Japanese lanterns, miniature lights, and low-voltage ground lighting turn an ordinary garden party into a festive occasion.
