Local voters crush Proposal A

Westland voters drowned Proposal A by a 2-to-1 margin although Wayne-Westland district homeowners would have been among the biggest benefactors in the planned property tax cut/sales tax increase.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland voters crushed Proposal A by a nearly 2-to-1 margin in Wednesday's special election, sending a strong message that a dramatic property tax cut wasn't worth a 50-percent sales tax hike.

Westland rejected the plan 65 percent to 35 percent, unofficial results showed. Neighboring Wayne defeated the proposal by a smaller margin, 59 percent to 41 percent.

The lopsided local vote baffled Wayne-Westland school officials because district homeowners would have seen their school tax rate plummet from 47 mills to 27.

The proposal was publicly endorsed by the Wayne-Westland and Livonia school boards.

"It's disappointing, to be honest with you," said Wayne-Westland superintendent Larry Thomas. "I think our community has to realize that we have to educate our youth, and we have to decide who's responsible for paying for it."

Wednesday's results locally came just two months after Wayne-Westland voters rejected a local tax proposal by a 63-to-37 percent margin.

Local voters opposed Proposal A even though the Wayne-Westland school board had strongly endorsed it. But Thomas didn't view the local results as a referendum on the board's credibility.

"I think it's just an anti-tax feeling that people have throughout our state — throughout our country, really," he said.

Interns learn to help vets care for pets

Two organizations are combining efforts to sponsor a special internship program, now in its second year.

Helping each other are the Garden City Public Schools' adult education department and the Michigan Humane Society, which operates a clinic on Marquette near Newburgh, Westland.

The internships are for people interested in being veterinary assistants or technicians, said Jackie Ryskamp, the adult education department's supervisor for job placement assistance and internships.

Students in the intern program who complete 280 hours over 15 weeks receive a veterinary assistant certificate.

The program, open to interested people regardless of residency, "is a benefit to the Garden City adult education department because it allows students an opportunity to receive hands-on training in a clinical environment," said Ryskamp. The humane society benefits because the interns provide a pool of applicants for consideration when there are job openings.

Lynne Stratton, who teaches the class, is a veterinary technician and has more than 15 years of experience in that field. Dr. Heather Ferguson, based at the clinic in Westland, is the veterinary doctor in charge of the clinic who has been supportive of the internship program, Ryskamp said.

"Students completing the program are able to obtain work in veterinary clinics and hospitals," Ryskamp said.

Among the students spending their internship at the clinic in recent weeks were Lisa Maxwell, Donnald Beck, Kim Collins, Julie Rickle and Joni Hughes.

Teen loses legs after being crushed between cars

BY DARRELL CLEM

Doctors have amputated both legs of a John Glenn High School senior who was crushed between two cars on Ford Road while he was trying to push his friend's stalled Mazda off the road, police and the boy's mother said.

Timothy Cassidy, a John Glenn wrestling team letter-winner, remained in critical condition Tuesday at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor, five days after he was hit by off-duty Westland police officer Tim Kennedy, police said.

"Both of his legs have been amputated above the knees," Cassidy's mother, Christine, said Tuesday during a telephone interview from the hospital.

Cassidy, 18, had undergone four major surgeries in three days, and doctors were still fighting infection in his body, his mother said. The teen has been conscious "off and on," she said.

When asked if her son's condition was expected to improve soon, the mother replied Tuesday, "I really couldn't say."

However, she did sound encouraged that her son didn't suffer head injuries.

Cassidy will be unable to attend his graduation ceremony Saturday at Crisler Arena, Ann Arbor.

He had bought flowers for his school prom May 27 and was riding with a friend, 17-year-old John Glenn student Joseph Wagner, when Wagner's 1985 Mazda ran out of gas and stalled on Ford, between Carlson and Wayne roads, Westland police officer James Dexter said.

Cassidy had gotten out to push the stalled car from behind when off-duty police officer Kennedy apparently failed to see him and crushed him between the two cars shortly before 3 p.m., Dexter said.

The accident occurred in the right curb lane.

Police officer 'up' as she awaits heart transplant

BY DARRELL CLEM

Bertschinger

Westland police officer Tina Bertschinger would rather be on the streets of Westland fighting crime. Instead, she's in a Pittsburgh hospital awaiting a heart transplant that could save her life.

And she's only 28 years old.

Bertschinger, a former Garden City resident, had been a police officer in her hometown of Westland for only three months when the coughing and breathing difficulties started in March. Then the bad news came on April 20 when doctors at Garden City Hospital diagnosed the problem — a life-threatening heart tumor.

Bertschinger was sent immediately to St. Joseph Hospital in Pontiac for emergency open heart surgery. The results were frightening: Doctors not only found a tumor the size of a peach, but it was malignant.

They removed 95 percent of the tumor during surgery, but a small part remains attached to the left atrium of Bertschinger's heart. The cancer hasn't spread — yet.

She is now in Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh, where she is awaiting a heart transplant that could rid her body of cancer.

"It's the waiting that's driving me nuts," she said Tuesday, during a telephone interview from her hospital bed.

She has no idea how long she might have to wait.

"Nobody knows," she said. "Obviously somebody else has to die first, and they have to willing to be a donor."

Bertschinger doesn't know what her life expectancy would be without the transplant.

"My heart is fine except for the one section. I could go for a while, unless the cancer grows," she said.

Because of her 5-foot-8, 170-pound frame, Bertschinger's body could accept a heart from either a male or a female donor, she said. In that respect, she's luckier than many patients, she said.

Wayne-Westland homeowners would have seen their school tax rate plummet 20 mills — a huge drop in a district plagued by voter anger about high taxes.

"It was going to help Wayne-Westland more than any other school district in the state," Thomas said. "People either didn't understand it or they didn't believe it, one of the two."

City Clerk Diane Fritz seemed to agree that many voters were confused about the statewide ballot proposal.

"Too many people thought this was a school millage election," she said.

Voter turnout was higher than Westland and Wayne city officials had expected. Westland marked a 35-percent turnout among its 51,469 voters, while Wayne saw a 44-percent turnout.

In Westland, the proposal failed in 40 of 41 precincts; only the P.D. Graham precinct, in the Hix Road-Avondale area, favored it.

In Westland, 11,671 voters opposed the state plan and only 6,291 favored it. In Wayne, 2,475 voters rejected the proposal while 1,785 supported it.

Wayne-Westland school board President Leonard Posey attributed the local vote to a public backlash against government's image.

"There seems to be a lot of distrust of government," he said. "The people are upset with government; that's what I'm hearing."

Posey voiced frustration that Wayne-Westland voters rejected Proposal A just two months after they defeated a local tax proposal.

"People really don't have a lot of concern about the vitality of the Wayne-Westland school district," he said.

Local officials had indicated they would try late this summer to convince voters to approve a Wayne-Westland tax increase — if Proposal A failed.

But Posey said the local vote on Proposal A indicated that there is "no way" a local election could be successful.

Wayne-Westland rethinking tax vote

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland school officials had indicated earlier that they would ask district voters — again — to approve a local tax proposal if Proposal A failed.

But they appeared to be reassessing another local election in the aftermath of Wednesday's vote, in which Wayne-Westland voters crushed Proposal A. That proposal would have reduced local school property taxes and raised the state sales tax rate.

Their analysis seemed to be that if local voters wouldn't support a statewide measure to dramatically cut property taxes, they certainly won't favor a local proposal that has no tax-cutting benefits.

When asked if he believes the school board will plan a local tax election this summer to try to avoid $14 million in budget cuts, board President Leonard Posey didn't appear optimistic.

"I believe that (a local proposal) will be seriously reconsidered. It really has to be, when you look at the local numbers (in Wednesday's election) and the very clear message that people in the Wayne-Westland area are sending us," Posey said.

"I am dismayed," he added, but said he doesn't believe a local election could be successful.

Shortly after midnight last night, Wayne-Westland Superintendent Larry Thomas said he will consult with the school board about a local election.

"I'm going to have to talk to the board about the feasibility of it, and whether it would be a smart thing to do," he said.

Info on hit-run sought

Westland police are continuing to seek information that could lead to the arrest of two people involved in a hit-and-run accident at Inkster Road and Annapolis.

The car hit a pedestrian walking across Inkster Road at 10 p.m. Saturday, May 22. The pedestrian remains hospitalized with head and leg injuries.

The culprits were described as two black male teenagers in a red, late-'80s Ford Escort that had front-end damage on the driver's side.

Anyone with information is urged to contact the Westland traffic bureau, 722-9633.

Man sentenced for exposure

A Westland man was sentenced to 90 days in jail after pleading guilty to charges of indecent exposure and trespassing at Schoolcraft-Radcliff in March.

Judge Richard Hammer Jr. also ordered Jeffrey Gleason, 31, to pay $655 in fines, two years' probation and to attend Detroit Recorder's Court sexual offender classes.

Gleason was arrested early in the morning on March 30 by officers responding to a call about a prowler at the school campus. Officers reported finding a man exposing his genitals outside a window.

A misdemeanor charge of marijuana possession against Gleason was dropped.

WAYNE-WESTLAND SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION - JUNE 14

TWO SEATS OPEN FOR 4-YEAR TERM

CANDIDATE:	EMPLOYMENT/EDUCATION:	ACTIVITIES:	QUESTION THREE: Should Wayne Westland school employees, particularly teachers or administrators, accept wage concessions to combat a budget deficit?
John Brady Age: 38 Has lived in community 13 years	• Employment: attorney • Education: juris doctorate, Detroit College of Law	Wildwood PTA, Wayne-Westland Youth Athletics Association.	"By law we're obligated to perform under the contracts already settled. It would have to be a personal decision by the unions. The school district cannot force them to make that decision." However, it was appropriate for Superintendent Larry Thomas to suggest wage concessions.
Patricia Brown Age: 29 Has lived in community 20 years	• Employment: has accepted a position in the public affairs department of Wayne County Community College • Education: Bachelor's degree in public relations, Eastern Michigan University	covered school board, city of Westland as a former Westland Eagle news editor. Participated in district curriculum audit and town meeting.	"I support some concessions," but the administration, starting with the superintendent, should lead the way. Unions that already have contracts, such as the teachers, could agree to accept a pay freeze instead of their raises.
Sharon Felan Age: 45 Has lived in community 15 years	• Employment: past Realtor-associate • Education: high school diploma	appointed to school board vacancy last July, Schweitzer Elementary PTA president, Public Act 25 school improvement team, Schools of Choice committee.	"It is appropriate to ask." There are many items in the teachers contract, such as class sizes and elective courses, that could be negotiated in order to streamline classes and save money.
Mathew McCusker Age: 57 Has lived in community 16 years	• Employment: Ford Motor materials handling at Rouge complex frame plant • Education: Wayne State University, Art School for the Society of Arts and Crafts	former 8 1/2 year school board member, Michigan Association of School Boards, John Glenn Football Boosters.	"No. I don't think they work. In 1982 we got concessions from the teachers and morale was down." Some private-sector employees for companies such as General Motors have suggested that school employees take pay cuts. "But when GM is hurting, I don't see them in front of GM headquarters saying, 'Hey, take some of my money.'"
Roberta Paquette Age: 46 Has lived in community 19 years	• Employment: part-time at Mervyn's and First of America • Education: high school diploma	YMCA, Stottlemyer PTA, started John Glenn High boys swim team.	"Yes, I favor wage concessions. We see high wages and low (student achievement) test scores." All contracts should be opened for wage concessions and to look at ways to save benefits.

Students 'sign' up for new class at Friendship Center

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

In just one sign language class, Jan Suchy learned the alphabet and 45 words.

A former teacher, Suchy is one of 65 people learning sign language in a new class being taught at Westland's Senior Friendship Center on Newburgh near Marquette.

She has hearing in only one ear, and she wants to prepare herself for the possibility that she could someday be completely deaf.

Suchy, a resident of the Holliday Park Townhouses Cooperative, also has entertained the thought of volunteering as an interpreter for community groups that need one.

"I just like helping people," she said.

■ 'All this is new to me. It takes a lot of sitting at home, memorizing and practicing. I do it just for fun.'

Jan Suchy

Suchy and others are rapidly learning their new communication skills during weekly classes taught by Pat Fedelem, manager of interpreter services for the Deaf, Hearing and Speech Center in Detroit.

The project was launched after the senior citizen Friendship Center's director, Sylvia Kozorosky-Wlacek, conducted an informal poll to see if there was an interest in a sign language class.

"I wanted to see if there was a need for an interpreter to come to our events to help the seniors who have problems hearing," she said. "I found that there was definitely a need and a demand."

Seniors, younger adults and even students have shown an interest in learning sign language. The response has been so overwhelming that two classes have been formed — each including six sessions — and others are being planned.

The sign language students pay only $1 a session. Kozorosky-Wlacek also plans to bring in an audiologist to test the hearing ability of participants.

Signing lesson: Jan Suchy displays the symbol for No. 2 in a sign language class at Westland's Friendship Center.

Suchy had never learned sign language before she enrolled in the class that began May 19.

"All this is new to me," she said. "It takes a lot of sitting at home, memorizing and practicing. I do it just for fun."

Suchy also plans to teach sign language to her husband of nearly 21 years, Gene.

She has learned the symbol for words such as "father," which she accomplishes by touching her right thumb to her forehead and extending all of her fingers.

The class also has taught her that she should place her hand below the eyes and nose when "signing" about a female, and to put her hand higher on her head when describing a male.

That comes from the old custom of men tipping their hats, she learned.

Other sign language classes will be scheduled based on demand, Kozorosky-Wlacek said. Anyone interested may contact the Friendship Center at 722-7632.

of its own officers, Westland police planned to turn the case over to the city attorney Angelo Plakas, said Sgt. Peter Brokas, head of the department's traffic bureau. The investigation continues.

No alcohol was involved, either on the part of the teenagers or the officer, police said. Cassidy's friend, Wagner, who had bought the Mazda only one week earlier, suffered a bloody nose and an injured left elbow, but wasn't seriously hurt, Dexter said.

Under advice from his attorney, Kennedy has refused to give a statement to police, Dexter said.

Cassidy's classmates "were a little shook up" at school Tuesday, said John Glenn principal Dennis Connolly.

"It was just really a disaster," he said.

Cassidy was initially taken to Annapolis Hospital, Wayne, and then flown by helicopter to U-M Hospital, where he remained in critical condition Tuesday in an intensive care unit.

Cassidy underwent 15½ hours of surgery on Thursday, alone, Dexter said. He has undergone four major surgeries and is expected to survive, Dexter said.

As a wrestling team member, Cassidy had won the team's "endurance award" in March.

To help the Cassidy family, the wrestling boosters are accepting donations, which should be mailed to John Glenn High School Wrestling Boosters, 715 Rahn, Westland, with a notation on the purpose of the donation.

In another accident involving a John Glenn student, 18-year-old Mike England suffered leg injuries and possible back injuries when he was involved in a two-car accident near Grand Rapids, after he left Westland following Thursday night's prom, Connolly said.

England was recovering in Butterworth Hospital and was expected to be released sometime this week.

"He will be OK," his mother said.

Despite her worries, her coworkers have been amazed by her ability to maintain a positive attitude.

"She's still so up about this," fellow officer Cathy Gilliam said. "And she's such a sweet person. She never has anything bad to say about anybody.

"She's the kind of person you really want to have on the police department," Gilliam added. "She's a quick learner, and she's so professional. I just hate to see this happen to somebody like her."

A 1983 Wayne Memorial High School graduate, Bertschinger worked as an assistant recreation director in Romulus before she went through a police academy and was hired in Westland on Dec. 14.

Even though she had been on the job only four months before her surgery, she so impressed her co-workers that they have been donating some of their sick days, vacation days and compensatory time to her, to keep her insurance intact, said officer Candy Vinnay.

For now, Bertschinger's insurance coverage is good through July 5.

Police officers also have sent cards and gifts to her, including a T-shirt from the DARE (Drug Awareness Resistance Education) unit.

"Everybody has been so nice," Bertschinger said. "I hadn't worked there for very long. It really made me feel good that they would do all of this for me."

Family members have visited her in Pittsburgh, and that has helped to keep her spirits up. She is the second of three children born to Clarence and Rita Bertschinger of Westland.

If a heart comes through for her, and if her body accepts it, she could be allowed to go home in three to four weeks after the transplant, she said. But she would have to receive periodic check-ups and — for the rest of her life — take medication.

For now, she only waits. But the cards from home have helped her spirits.

"I just grab on to anything from home," Bertschinger said.

Her hospital address is Presbyterian University Hospital, Desoto at O'Hara Streets, Seventh Floor I.C.U., Bed No. 2, Pittsburgh, Pa., 15213-2582.

School board candidates: Violence cause for concern

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Amid growing concerns about school violence, candidates seeking election June 14 to the Wayne-Westland Board of Education agree that efforts are needed to protect students and employees from potential harm.

Several guns, knives and other weapons have been found in local schools in recent years, fueling fears of violence even though the worst incidents — including a Dec. 4 shooting injury in front of Franklin Junior High — have occurred during after-school hours.

More recently, three Marshall Junior High were expelled in April after they were accused in the sale of a .22-caliber semi-automatic handgun at school.

Some school board candidates have commended a district plan to place security guards in secondary schools, but some suggested during interviews with the Observer that more must be done.

School officials plan to place two security guards each at John Glenn High, Wayne Memorial High and the William Ford Vocational-Technical Center, while one guard would be hired to patrol each of the four junior highs.

All five candidates competing for two board seats — both with four-year terms — appeared concerned about possible violence in schools when asked what they would do to curb it.

"I like the idea of the security if the funding is there to pay for it," candidate Patricia "Trish" Brown said.

Schools also need more psychologists and counselors, parenting classes and possibly more programs similar to DARE (Drug Awareness Resistance Education), Brown said.

She cited the need for more parental involvement to curb violence, which she stressed "is not just a school problem."

Candidate Mathew McCusker, a former 8½-year school board member, questioned whether two security guards at the high schools will be effective.

"I don't know if two security guards are going to solve the problem," he said. "If we put in two fascists at Wayne Memorial and John Glenn, are we going to exacerbate the problem? Two guys aren't going to cut it."

McCusker suggested more psychologists in schools and more parental involvement, but added, "The solution to violent problems is not in the schools, it's in society."

Candidate Roberta Paquette said some teachers deal better than others with unruly students, and problem youngsters often are grouped into the same classrooms. The trouble is that when you place the pupils together, "you're almost forming a gang," she said.

"There would be more pressure for them to behave if they weren't united," Paquette said.

Aside from hiring security guards, educators also must try harder "to teach students to respect each other," she said.

Candidate John Brady said he supports the plan to place security guards in secondary schools.

"School security is bitter medicine, but it is reality today," he said. "I do not want to see security in the schools, but if that's what we've got to do, then let's do it."

Brady also said that everyone in school buildings should try to identify potential weapons and violence problems before they emerge.

Appointed incumbent Sharon Felan, seeking to keep her board seat, noted that school districts see violence problems spill over from society at large.

"Public schools take in all students, and we are a reflection of the many problems of society," she said.

She voted in favor of the security guards, but also suggested that more psychologists and counselors could be beneficial. She also said the board is working on a more comprehensive approach to student discipline.

Saturday river rescue expands to drains, trails

■ Five Cub Scouts from Pack 270 sponsored by Rosedale Presbyterian Church in Livonia are donating 10 nesting boxes they built for the Rouge Rsecue '93.

On Saturday some 2,500 volunteers will converge at two dozen sites along the Rouge River for the eighth annual river cleanup.

In addition to removing debris — the focus of previous Rouge Rescues — this operation will include everything from placing nesting boxes for small birds to planting trees and developing woodchip trails along the river, which winds its way through 48 communities in Oakland and Wayne counties.

As an added deterrent against future pollution, stenciled warnings will be spray painted on hundreds of storm drains from Birmingham to Farmington Hills, Livonia to Redford and beyond. The warning, "Dump No Waste — Drains to River," with a picture of a fish for emphasis, is intended to alert potential polluters about the dangers of dumping used motor oil, household cleaners or paint down storm sewers.

"Many people don't think that it goes right into the river," said Jim Graham, a spokesman for Friends of the Rouge, which sponsors the cleanup.

Planting trees and bushes along the banks in Novi is intended to stabilize the river and improve the wildlife habitat.

Nesting boxes will provide secure spots for wood ducks, brown bats and birds such as the Eastern Bluebird, Great Crested Flycatcher and the Tree Swallow.

LIVONIA SCHOOL BOARD ELECTION - JUNE 14

TWO SEATS OPEN FOR 4-YEAR TERM

CANDIDATE:	EMPLOYMENT/EDUCATION:	ACTIVITIES:	QUESTION THREE: Should Livonia parents be concerned about students' MEAP scores?
Suzanne Clulow Livonia resident for 10 years	• Employment: homemaker, part-time accountant member • Education: bachelor of business administration with major in accounting, University of Maryland	1992 Stragetic Action Plan Team, 1992-93 Revenue Enhancement Committee, 1993-94 Budget Development Committee, past member, Livonia Family Y Board of Directors.	"If next year's MEAP scores do not show improvement in response to Livonia's revised curriculum goals, parents should be concerned. Beginning in 1994, high school graduates must pass the MEAP test to earn a state endorsed diploma. Currently an endorsement is not necessary for college or technical school acceptance."
Pamella Guarneri Livonia resident for 16 years	• Employment: clinical nurse/administrator Childrens' Hospital of Michigan • Education: associate's degree from Schoolcraft College; B. S., Wayne State University; master's in administration, Madonna University	member of several special education network organizations, PTA member at Churchill High School and Roosevelt Elementary School, speaker on preventive health care issues, member of National Nurses Association.	"Yes, because there are those who view them as reliable and valid and are the parameters used to direct a student's educational career. To use scores as standards to equate education quality is questionable. What and how it is taught differs, as well as social, economical, cultural factors of students. So then, does the learning process."
Frank Kokenakes Livonia resident for 40 years	• Employment: attorney, UAW/GM Legal Services Plan • Education: law degree, Cooley Law School	group facilitator Michigan SIDS Alliance, member St. Aidan Catholic Church.	"Yes. We must realize that this state test established criteria to judge our children's skills not competence. Students must meet the standards set since passage will be required to obtain certified diplomas. Unfortunately, poor test results adversely affect property values. Publications have already compared communities and schools by these scores."
James McNeilly Westland resident for 32 years	• Employment: bricklayer/president of Bricklayers' Union • Education: not available	Livonia Elks, Livonia Unity Church	Did not respond by deadline
Diane "Pat" Tancill Livonia resident for 25 years	• Employment: partner in Livonia gift/antique store • Education: bachelor of science degree in education from Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa	school board member for 7 years, past president Livonia PTA Council, state PTA board of managers, school volunteer for 21 years	"Originally the MEAP test was designed to be administered early in the fall with the results provided to teachers within a few weeks to assess their students' needs. Now, the results are returned in early spring. Fortunately the MEAP scores are only one of a number of measures that we use to evaluate and adjust education in Livonia."
Clifford Thompson Livonia resident for 5 years	• Employment: second grade teacher, Southfield Public Schools • Education: bachelor's degree in elementary education, master of arts in public school business administration	member Clarenceville United Methodist Church, retired from Michigan Air National Guard, two-term past president Southfield Kiwanis Club, past teacher/vice president, Southfield PTA.	"Parents should be concerned about their children's MEAP scores. A parent should have an accumulation of their children's work (portfolios), track report cards, have teacher evaluations, visit the school itself and consider other tests used by the school district. Parents know their children best of all. Do not use the MEAP test scores to compare schools. It was not designed for that."
David Underwood Moved away but came back to Livonia in March	• Employment: student, attending Schoolcraft College • Education: Churchill graduate	none listed	"Yes. We need to know where our children stand in the country today. If our system is falling behind other districts, then we need to know what areas to fix. Also, we just might learn something from a district with a better curriculum."
Ralph Walko Livonia resident for 22 years	• Employment: product program analyst, Ford Motor • Education: bachelor's in finance, master's in business administration, University of Detroit	member of Building Improvement Technology Advisory Committee, past member of Community Education Advisory Council, past president and director of Villa Marie Senior Citizen Housing, president Sheffield Estates Homeowner's Assoc.	"Yes. Uniform statewide testing helps provide the community with an indication of how well the education system is performing its job. If the students perform poorly the community needs to know why and then must take appropriate measures to improve the performance of the students."
Photo not available Leo Weber Livonia resident for 20 years	• Employment: tutor, writer • Education: bacelor of arts degree in English, Madonna University	member, Memorial Church of Christ; Madonna alumni	"The various tests in the school system measure test-taking ability more than aptitude. As a result, students tend to receive preparation for the tests rather than relevant instruction. The solution could be: devise more relevant tests; abolish the test-taking altogether."

concept is to give particular birds a nesting area."

The boys, ranging from 10-11 years old, will earn the Craftsman badge for their efforts. McKee says he expects to deliver the boxes to Rouge volunteers later this week.

Other volunteers will remove graffiti from bridges and paved river banks. Some will build steps and repair foot bridges to improve access to the river.

Volunteers have noted that each year fewer pieces of litter are removed from the river as residents become more ecologically aware.

Volunteers are encouraged to wear long pants, long sleeved shirt and sturdy boots to minimize contact with items removed from the river, and as protection from insects. Young children should have adult supervision.

Composer hits high note on her first try

BY MARGARET O'BRIEN
STAFF WRITER

Composer Lettie Alston skipped the minors and landed right in the musical major leagues this month when the Detroit Symphony Orchestra performed "The Eleventh Hour" — her first major orchestral composition.

Alston, an assistant professor of music at Oakland University, was selected as one of four finalists in the Unysis African-American Composers Forum. She was the first woman composer honored in the four years since the program began.

"It was just a wonderful experience to hear it played," Alston said. "It's exciting to get all the interpretations from professional musicians."

Finalists were selected from 30 works submitted to a panel of nationally known musicians. The DSO planned to play only the winning work but "(DSO conductor) Neeme Jarvi wanted them all performed" because he thought highly of all the entries, Alston said.

Legislature dumps inheritance tax

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Senior citizens can look forward to passing on more of their estates to their heirs — to the tune of $70 million a year.

The Michigan Legislature has wiped out the inheritance tax, which yielded $110 million annually, and will replace it with an estate tax yielding $40 million.

"You kick poor people in the butt," said Democratic Sen. Virgil Smith of Detroit. He predicted majority Republicans would make up the lost revenue by cutting social services.

"It's interesting you can attack other people for wanting to keep their own money," replied Republican Michael Bouchard of Birmingham. "They earned it. They paid sales taxes, income taxes and property taxes on it. The government seems to think it has a right to people's money, assets and life."

The state Senate late last month put the finishing touches on House Bill 4597 and sent it to the Olds Tower for Gov. John Engler's signature.

The vote was 31 to 7. Voting yes were Republicans Bouchard, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, David Honigman of West Bloomfield, Robert Geake of Northville and Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, William Faust of Westland and George Hart of Dearborn.

Senators rejected an amendment by gubernatorial hopeful Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, to lower the threshhold of the tax from $600,000 to $100,000. Only 12 (of 16) Democrats supported Stabenow. Sens. Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and George Z. Hart of Dearborn voted with Stabenow, while William Faust, D-Westland, missed the vote.

Bullard pleased

The inheritance tax reform was a major victory for Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, its House sponsor.

"My thinking is that we'll get a lot of the money (retirees) to stay in Michigan and keep paying income and sales taxes," Bullard said as he shook senators' hands outside the chamber.

"The impact will be on the people who stay here six months and in Florida six months. They'll keep their legal residence in Michigan. Now their tax attorneys tell them, 'You're stupid if you don't change your domicile to Florida'," Bullard said.

The battle had raged for years. The Republican-controlled Senate had passed bills cutting the tax, said Bullard, "but the Democrats wouldn't even let us have a hearing in the House."

This year the House is split 55-55 on party lines. Republican co-Speaker Paul Hillegonds is able to refer all GOP-sponsored bills to committee, and Democrat Curtis Hertel does the same with Democratic-sponsored bills.

Bullard is Republican co-chair of the House Taxation Committee, but his vote count showed him the bill would have trouble. So he had Hillegonds refer it to the more favorable Business and Finance Committee. The bill sailed through committee and won full House passage 94 to 6 earlier in May.

Bullard said it proved what Republicans had contended all along: The GOP has a philosophical majority in the House, but such Democratic leaders as Taxation chair Lyn Jondahl of Okemos had prevented popular bills from coming to a vote.

The reform means that as of Oct. 1:

■ There will be no tax on the first $600,000 of an estate. Above that, there will be a "pickup" tax that the state is allowed to subtract from the federal estate tax. "We're

Agency grant will train child care workers

The Michigan 4C (Community Coordinated Child Care) Association has received a second grant from the Skillman Foundation to continue a statewide initiative to improve the supply of quality child care providers in Michigan.

The initiative is called the Michigan Child Care Futures Project and is a child care supply building initiative focusing on provider recruitment, provider training and support services.

The Michigan Child Care Futures Project is a public/private partnership made possible by the Skillman Foundation. The Skillman Foundation was founded in 1960 by Rose P. Skillman, widow of Robert H. Skillman, vice president and director of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

The Michigan Child Care Futures Project will train approximately 7 percent of the child care providers who are working with young children. The training meets nationally recognized criteria established for child care professionals.

The goal is to improve the quality of child care in every center and in every family day care home. This year, the target is 2,500 providers. The Michigan 4C Association will distribute almost $600,000 through the network of 14 regional 4C offices to recruit, train and support child care providers.

For more information, call (517) 351-4171 or (800) 950-4171.

just picking up the amount the federal government allows us to take as a credit. It's what 28 other states do," he said.

■ Michigan's lengthy form will be reduced to a single page.

Michigan currently levies a 2 to 17 percent tax on the heirs, starting at $50,000 bequests. Rates depend on the size of the estate and the relationship of the heir to the deceased. The reformed tax will be levied on the estate, not the heir.

In 1985 Engler, then Senate majority leader, had come out for cutting the inheritance tax. An economic report he commissioned said keeping retirees in Michigan would boost small-town economies in the north.

Seniors watch

Senate action was staged for the day senior citizens flooded the Capitol Building.

The debate question was whether seniors would benefit more from the social services $70 million of taxes would buy (Democratic view) or cutting the taxes (GOP view).

"We're not talking about people who worked hard for this money," said Stabenow, who led the Democratic attack. "Revenue from the inheritance tax has gone up every year. If people were moving (to Florida) because of it, inheritance tax revenue would be going down."

Stabenow said Michigan's position was reformed last year when family farms and small businesses were exempted.

Building razed; suit threatened

CITY HALL

The mayor says the long-vacant Urban Cowboy building was demolished because it was an eyesore and hazard. The building's owner disagrees, vowing to sue in the wake of the structure's demolition.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Livonia man who owned the long-vacant Urban Cowboy bar on Ford, near Hix, said he plans to sue the city of Westland for demolishing the once-popular nightclub.

"It was frustrating as hell that they could pull a stunt like that," owner John Sassack said. "They completely destroyed it."

Mayor Robert Thomas had the bar torn down in January after Wayne Circuit Judge Claudia House Morcom issued a consent order allowing the city to demolish it.

"It was a public hazard on top of being an eyesore," the mayor said Tuesday.

Sassack's ex-wife had owned the bar, but she had turned it over to him before the demolition. Sassack wanted to try to find another use for the building or at least sell what he could from it, including a neon floor.

Sassack said he plans to sue the city for at least $175,000. He said city officials had told him that he could have more time to make improvements to save the building.

Thomas, however, accused Sassack of stalling.

"I had a clear court order to tear it down," Thomas said.

A popular tavern in the 1970s and '80s, the bar was named the Urban Cowboy after the movie of the same name, starring John Travolta, became a hit in 1980. The bar had a mechanical bull (featured in the movie) in front.

Sassack said he spent weeks inside the building, cleaning it and trying to salvage what he could. But he said city officials had the bar bulldozed on Jan. 5, despite his efforts to work with them to find a compromise.

"It was a political deal is what it was," Sassack said. Thomas "wanted to score some points" with nearby property owners who wanted the bar demolished, he claimed.

Sassack conceded he owed about $70,000 in back taxes on the property, which increased in value even though the bar had long been closed. He had already paid some taxes.

The building was on prime Ford Road frontage and had a state-equalized valuation of $194,000, he said.

"The mayor is bulldozing small businesses and making way for the big ones," Sassack said.

Thomas said the city had offered Sassack a legal agreement to make specific property improvements early this year, but that Sassack stalled. The roof was weak and dangerous, among other problems, the mayor said.

"If he wants to sue, then let him have at it," Thomas said.

"I warned him up front from day one that I wasn't going to fool around," the mayor said.

Groups to sponsor rally for pay equity

The Michigan Pay Equity Network will sponsor a rally 1-3 p.m. on June 13 on the lawn of the Capital in Lansing to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the passage of the Equal Pay Act.

Co-sponsors are the American Civil Liberties Union, UAW, American Association of University Women, Michigan Education Association, Service Employees International Union, Coalition of Labor Union Women, Business and Professional Women and the Michigan State AFL-CIO.

Speakers will include Patricia Ireland, president of NOW; Susan Bianchi-Sand, executive-director of the National Committee on Pay Equity and Donna Talbert, from the Center for Alternative Policies in Washington. Speakers will address the lack of progress toward economic equity.

Despite the passage of the Equal Pay Act, women's wages still remain behind those of men. Bills have been introduced in the last three sessions of the Michigan legislature which would make failure to compensate for work equally a violation of civil rights.

Area voters help defeat Proposal A

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Suburban voters, including large majorities in all Observer communities, voted heavily against Proposal A Wednesday, overcoming general outstate support for the plan.

In Redford Township voters rejected the proposal by almost a 4-to-1 margin. Garden City shot it down by a 3-to-1 margin.

Canton Township went against Proposal A 2-to-1, as did Livonia, Westland, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

In Wayne County as a whole, Proposal A was losing 252,000 to 90,000 early this morning with only Riverview and 44 percent of Detroit precincts not reporting.

In Oakland County the "no" votes outnumbered the "yes" votes 174,000 to 96,000 with all but Royal Oak reporting at press time.

Proposal A did much better outstate. The state elections bureau reported 378,000 "yes" votes and 242,000 "no" votes counted with 60 of Michigan's 83 counties reporting in.

Fred Wszolek, the director of the campaign to pass Proposal A, conceded defeat shortly after midnight. "It looks like it's going to go down," he said. "Close but no cigar."

Having poured money into a statewide publicity blitz for the proposal, the campaign staff thought outstate support would make up for suburban opposition.

Proposal A would have capped property assessment increases at 5 percent or the rate of inflation, fixed 1993 property assessment increases at 3 percent, guaranteed school districts a minimum per pupil funding and raised the state sales tax from 4 to 6 percent.

Wayne-Westland

Felan, Brady best for board

■ Sharon Felan and John Brady represent the best choices for moving the Wayne-Westland School District ahead and minimizing the past conflicts that have slowed progress.

Wayne-Westland school district voters will be voting for more than just two board of education candidates in the Monday, June 14, election. They will decide whether to move ahead with changes made in the past year or take a step backward.

There have been disputes among board members and between several board members and school superintendent Larry Thomas, hired last spring, but there also has been some progress, although it is hard to detect through the political heat generated from last year's board election.

In this year's race, the best choices for voters are Sharon Felan and John Brady, who offer the community an attractive blend of stability, forward-looking views and the ability to serve as policy-makers.

Felan, appointed by the board last summer to fill a vacancy, has an excellent background in school volunteer roles and in the state Public Act 25 School Improvement Team. As a board member for 10 months, Felan has clearly demonstrated that she has the ability to focus on solutions to problems instead of who or what caused them and to work with other board members to gain a consensus.

She has also shown that she isn't part of the recent political history that has impeded the district's efforts to move ahead on fiscal integrity and academic improvements. Felan has a positive view of the superintendent's first 10 months and that there is still room for improvements and changes.

At the same time, Brady has demonstrated that he would bring a fresh viewpoint and perspective to the board, which has been wrestling with massive program cutbacks in the wake of a voters' rejection of an important millage renewal two months ago.

An attorney, Brady agrees with Felan that part of the district's financial crisis can be partially solved by having the administration ask employees' unions for contract concessions.

An attractive part of their responses on that issue is that they view potential concessions as a means of helping resolve the money problem, not a punishment for dedicated employees who have performed professionally for many years.

While the board's problems with its members or the administration are far from over, the election of Felan and Brady would be a major step toward continued improvement.

Kokenakes, Clulow: best bets

■ Last year the Observer endorsed Guarneri for the school board and we continue to be impressed with her personal assets. As a public health administrator, she takes a "whole-child" approach to learning and is a strong voice for the interests of special education students. But Guarneri has not demonstrated a continued interest in the school district since June 1992 by attending board meetings or increasing her involvement, and so we are unable to support her candidacy this year.

On Monday, June 14, Westland residents in the Livonia school district will have the opportunity to go to the polls to elect decision-makers to local school boards.

Nine candidates are running for two four-year terms on the Livonia Public Schools' Board of Education. There is one incumbent and eight challengers.

After reviewing the credentials and views of the candidates, the Observer endorses Frank Kokenakes and Suzanne Clulow.

As a 40-year resident of the district, Kokenakes has a deep appreciation for the community and its educational system. Kokenakes understands the importance of the fines arts to education, has a vision expanding the "safety net" for at-risk students to involve community agencies so private insurance can share the expense, and has a creative vision of how to better use volunteers in the district.

Clulow has attended more board meetings during the past year than any other challenger and has a solid grasp of the district's educational needs. She certainly is committed to students, giving them first priority over staff, parents, administrators and taxpayers.

Clulow should be very effective on the board and will be a stronger contributor if she becomes an independent voice. We are troubled, however, by her inclination to seek consensus in private. Clulow appears too close to existing board members and the administration and, if elected, needs to strive for independence and more openness in decision-making.

Last year the Observer endorsed Guarneri for the school board and we continue to be impressed with her personal assets. As a public health administrator, she takes a "whole-child" approach to learning and is a strong voice for the interests of special education students. But Guarneri has not demonstrated a continued interest in the school district since June 1992 by attending board meetings or increasing her involvement, and so we are unable to support her candidacy this year.

In the spirit of term limitation, 1993 is a good time for incumbent Pat Tancill to step off the board. She has served for seven years, has made her contributions to the community, has served as board president and in other positions, and can leave proud of her accomplishments.

While we agree with Ralph Walko on many of the issues, and appreciate his involvement in the district, we remain unconvinced he is best for the job. Clifford Thompson, a newcomer, is a sincere person who brought fresh and impressive ideas to the campaign.

The Observer urges all its readers to vote on Monday, June 14. After examining all the candidates, and considering the make-up of the board, the Observer recommends Kokenakas and Clulow for the Livonia Board of Education.

Be sure to vote June 14. Education is too important to leave to someone else.

LETTERS

Double-punishment?

I am concerned about a Livonia School District policy which deals with junior high students but maybe affect others as well.

During the school term it is the policy to give an offending student a detention — "don't come to school for one day" — and if they need it again, it becomes two days or three days. This is for such offenses as laughing out loud when the class clown cuts up.

Some offenses may be more major than that. I'm not totally disagreeing with the punishment. However, after a certain date in the spring, the punishment is three days of no school even for a first offense, plus if the offender has sold enough of whatever the school was pushing and earned a ticket to Cedar Point, this ticket is also taken away from the offender.

This equals double punishment no matter how the school board looks at it.

If this student earned the ticket, then they have the right to that ticket or they have been lied to. Does this instill trust in the student body? I, for one, will not buy another thing sold by the school district.

And if you doubt that they do this underhanded method of punishment, just check it out with your local junior high principal. I believe the punishment should fit the crime. Do not double-punish the students by taking what they rightfully earned.

Glenda Hopper, Westland

Volunteers thanked

A mission began August 1990 to rescue a one-room schoolhouse in our city. With the help of two State Equity Grants, the city of Westland, the home construction students from the Livonia Career Center, the Perrinsville School Restoration Comittee and Friends of the Westland Historical Museum fund-raisers, the 1856 historic Perrinsville Schoolhouse is being restored.

The sixth fund-raiser was held May 15 for this worthy cause. Funds from the rummage sale will be used for furnishings of an 1890's time period for the school room.

To the 22 volunteers who gave their time and energy the day of the sale, the Wayne-Ford Civic League and Taylor Towers for loan of needed tables, the Westland Observer for publicity on the sale, the city of Westland DPS for their manpower, to Paul Krarup for printing signs and to all the Westland residents who donated items to sell — thank you!

Auto relief delayed

As you know, the Senate has been unable to muster the votes needed to give the no-fault automobile insurance reform legislation immediate effect — which means drivers will not see any relief until the middle of next year.

I am writing this letter to explain why we cannot get the votes.

It is as if my worst fears — and the worst fears of many voters — are being realized. Rather than allowing the democratic process to work on its own, a small group of Senate Democrats is letting one very large, very powerful interest group smother the best no-fault reform proposal in years. A proposal, I might add, that was forged bipartisanly in both chambers of the Legislature. It is a compromise we worked out together, a compromise put together by legislators, not interest groups.

This bipartisan proposal would not only roll premiums back by an average of 16 percent, but it would also allow for good driver discounts and more coverage choices. Also, senior citizens would see bigger reductions, and health care providers would be required to accept insurance payments as payment-in-full.

To cut down on costly litigation, drivers who are more than 50 percent at fault wouldn't be able to seek non-economic damages. This is what the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association dislikes most about the proposal. Cutting down on litigation cuts down on the profits the group reaps from settlements.

And since the MTLA financially supports many Democratic lawmakers — in 1990 the group contributed more than $263,000 to Democratic candidates — these Democrats don't want to lose precious campaign dollars and will do just about anything to keep their contributors happy.

Never mind the will of the people or a majority of the Legislature. Never mind that Michigan drivers pay substantially more for coverage than drivers in other states do. Never mind that a number of Michigan drivers opt not to purchase insurance because of the extraordinary cost.

Michigan drivers are being stuck with an additional $1.5 million a day for each day that passes without auto insurance reform. These people deserve relief.

The issue of a small group of legislators acting on behalf of a minority view or on behalf of a special interest group to block immediate effect on legislation is a much bigger issue than just insurance reform, which we face today. A small group that stands in the way of public policy if it doesn't get its way is altering the principles of democracy. In the future, instead of a simple majority needed to create laws, it will take a two-thirds majority. This will create gridlock and weaken legislation to be constant in Michigan.

In a recent media interview, the last Democratic Majority Leader, Senator Bill Faust, said the minority should vote "yes" on immediate effect for the auto insurance bill. "In my mind, the majority has spoken," he said. I respect his courage in taking on the current ill-conceived, interest group-driven minority leadership.

The long-term interests of the state are at stake.

Senator Dick Posthumus, Sen. Majority Leader

POINTS OF VIEW

Naturalists trail growth of blue heron rookery

Get thee to a rookery.

That could be the slogan in and around the West Bloomfield area as word spreads that the baby blue herons have hatched.

Whether travelling by bike, jogging, walking, stroller or wheelchair — a large audience continues to welcome the babies being born in 100 nests high in the oak and hickory trees. They are highly visible (particularly with binoculars), but protected. As "Pop" hovers above, "Mom" feeds her babies, and those old enough to contemplate leaving the nest test their wings on its edge.

It's a very long way down.

More people are marveling at this spectacle this year than ever before.

DAN DEAN/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Nature's beauty: Contract workers finish the West Bloomfield Rails to Trails system near the Arrowhead Drive parking area.

That's because it's happening along the newest link in the Michigan Trail Initiative, once a segment of the Grand Trunk Western Railway.

For 4.25 miles, accessible from busy Orchard Lake Road, you feel you are in northern Michigan. The train tracks have been removed; the trail has been widened and bermed, and surfaced with limestone.

Clumps of wildflowers add their colorful marks.

Natural wood overlooks, like the one at the blue heron rookery, provide resting and viewing spots, without being intrusive. And the trail is handicapped accessible, as is another half-mile which joins the trail to the West Bloomfield Woods Nature Preserve.

To see the rest of that two-mile woods, you must use your feet, since it's surfaced with wood chips.

The trail will be dedicated Friday, with the help of U.S. Rep. Joseph Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Township. It's another link in the Michigan and national "rails to trails" network — and an asset to a community known to non-residents more for its shops and restaurants than its natural attributes.

In fact, it's kind of ironic that just as our local state senator, David Honigman, is fighting to have four Oakland County lakes — including two in West Bloomfield — taken off the DNR's list for public access, this biking/hiking/cross-country ski trail is being opened to all who choose to use it.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

Like the county's first rail-trail, Paint Creek Trail, which starts in Rochester and travels 10.5 miles north to Lake Orion, this didn't just happen.

It took 10 years of passing petitions, and lobbying parks and recreation, then the township, then Lansing by community-minded residents. Concerned Citizens for West Bloomfield, led by Louie Lawton and Lorna McEwen, finally prevailed upon town officials to say no to unbridled development and yes to preserving parks and trails for this generation and beyond.

In fact, condominium owners adjacent to the part of the trail closest to Orchard Lake Road originally opposed it. Now, through excellent grantsmanship, planning and execution by West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation, it is an asset to their home sites. Indeed, further along the trail, the ground is currently being prepared for more residences.

Memorial Day was cold and cloudy. But not on the trail. Sheltered from the wind and brightened by the nature about them, a young mother and three youngsters strolled and smiled. A 30-something couple stopped their walk to watch the blue herons. A very fast runner sped right by my friend and me on our bikes.

Happy trails.

Some coaches, dads make poor examples for sons

What do the following have in common? FBI officials who stormed the Branch-Davidian cult's compound. Homophobes and other chest-thumping bigots. Andrew Dice Clay. Barflies who boast that they once ran 100 yards in 10 seconds flat. The Navy officers involved in the Tailhook harassments. A 1950s high school football coach I wouldn't play for. Los Angeles gangs who initiate female members by purposely exposing them to HIV. The "Spur Posse" of California's Lakeview High, and their fathers and maybe some of their coaches.

Machismo is their common trait. And too much testosterone, real or feigned. And a showy self-satisfaction masking a deep self-doubt about their masculinity. And a sexism so ingrained that I question whether they could ever be cured of it.

Clearly no father ever taught the Los Angeles gang to protect girls. And to explain the criminally sexist behavior of the Spur Posse, one need look no farther than their fathers and, perhaps, their coaches. They've disgraced their varsity uniforms, yet soon they'll be selling their movie rights to the highest bidders when really they belong in jail.

The fathers and coaches are indeed to blame, as is a society which sanctions a sexual double standard.

There are exceptions, God be thanked, like Duke basketball coach Mike Kryzewski who focuses on excellence instead of winning and thus wins anyway. I myself was raised by a fighter father who would have put me in the hospital if I had ever been anything less than protective and discreet about any activity I had with a young lady.

As an athlete, I was thankfully blessed with other coaches, particularly one, Dave Holmes, who counseled like my father and Coach Kryzewski. That's how I later coached and counseled my own athletes. This may sound old-fashioned, but we've got to teach men to treat women like they expect their sisters and mothers and daughters to be treated. Until we can do this, many men will continue to behave with brutally pseudo-masculine machismo — and many more women will be irretrievably harmed.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, most recently was an assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth-Canton district.

Voting minority decides school's policy matters

School board elections are less than two weeks away. New board members will be elected by local voters in the Wayne-Westland and Livonia school districts.

My 11-year-old son, Nathan, is in fifth grade this year. I can't think of an election that bears more directly on me and my family than my local school board election. I've heard countless other parents express the same feelings.

Yet if history is any guide, voter turnout will range from 5 percent to 15 percent. This means that a tiny minority of voters will decide who runs the local school board and therefore what policies the schools will be following for the next year or two.

One reason voter turnout is so low is most folks have difficulty learning much about individual candidates and about the main issues involved. That's one of the jobs we're happy to do in this community newspaper. You won't find much about your district's candidates and their view by reading the big metropolitan daily newspaper, but you'll find it all right here.

In addition, there is a fierce and complicated debate now raging about the proper policy for Michigan public schools. Below is a guide to the main points of view:

■ Reformers. Sick and tired of old-fashioned schools that depended on rote memorization at the expense of learning how to think, school reformers passed in 1990 Public Act 25, which set a model for schools called "outcomes education."

Instead of learning, for example, the names of U.S. presidents in order, students in outcomes-based schools compare various presidents' achievements and political styles. And their mastery of the subject would be shown in a variety of ways, including but not limited to written exams.

In some versions, outcomes education has eliminated valedictorian and salutatorian honors, adopted grading systems that recognize only As, Bs and incompletes and used a curriculum that emphasizes cooperative learning and development of self-esteem.

■ Back to basics. Not surprisingly, there are many who feel this movement has gone too far. They advocate a back-to-basics approach, emphasizing old-fashioned teaching of the Three Rs and rigorous testing. They are dismayed at educators who seem to pay more attention to students feeling good about themselves and others than to actually learning something in class.

■ Radicals. Some people are extreme critics of recent education reforms.

PHILIP POWER

Beginning with deeply felt concern about the elimination of prayer and references to Christianity from public schools, they move on to advocate radical changes. They urge teaching creationism instead of evolution and advocate returning to McGuffy's Readers for the Three Rs. Some would like to eliminate the constitutional distinction between public and private schools and adopt a state-wide voucher system.

The rhetoric gets complicated and often heated. Pro-reform forces have been known to lump all opponents of outcomes education with the religious right wing or the KKK. Radicals have talked about "subversives" running education. Both positions are silly because they depend on guilt by association.

More complicated — and dangerous — are "stealth candidates," those who run campaigns designed to obscure their backgrounds and views on the issues, hoping a mobilized minority can win in a low turnout election.

My own view: What is vital in education is to focus on the results. The MEAP test, for example, measures educational outcomes in various subjects for various grades. This newspaper publishes the MEAP test results for each school building because we believe that the properly focused way to look at education is to measure outcomes.

To that degree, therefore, I like the reformers' emphasis on outcomes, while I sympathize with the back-to-basics crowd in its concern about real learning about real subjects.

More important: Vote! If you don't, you'll get the kind of schools neither you nor your children nor your neighbors' children deserve.

Super fan makes rounds year-round

Westland's Bob Kurashige, the undisputed super fan in Observerland, answered my first two questions with questions.

Who is your favorite coach, I asked.

"Which sport?" he replied.

How far have you traveled to see a game?

"Which way?" he asked. "North or west?"

I should have known I'd get answers like these, and not because Kurashige was being sarcastic. Kurashige, a 1979 Westland John Glenn graduate, is a fan of all sports, mostly those played in high school, and he'll go almost anywhere to watch.

Kurashige says he's been as far north as Midland and as far west as Grand Rapids to watch a high school game but he hasn't thought about crossing the Mackinac Bridge.

"Not yet," he said.

Give him time. This guy has made the rounds, year-round for 13 years.

Kurashige never misses a major state championship game and estimates he drives 60,000 miles each year to watch sporting events. Imagine all the oil changes for his 1989 Chevy Cavalier.

Kurashige says he watches at least 1,000 games per year, despite there being only 365 days. He goes to junior varsity games, double-header baseball and softball games in the summer, volleyball tournaments every Saturday in the winter, and college and pro games in between.

Kurashige's Tuesday's and Friday's are booked each season with high school games, whether they be football, girls or boys basketball, baseball, softball, or uh, my favorite, soccer.

Churchill tourney run ends, 2-0

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton coach Don Smith was grateful the Chiefs got a second goal Wednesday in a regional girls soccer game.

Becky Cifaldi's goal with 3½ minutes left clinched a 2-0 victory over Livonia Churchill in the tournament at Northville High School.

It also made it easier for Canton to accept the victory since the Chiefs received a gift for their first goal when Churchill scored on itself.

"At least we didn't win on a bad one," Smith said. "At least we put another one in. I would have felt the Lord was really with us (if the game had ended 1-0)."

The Chiefs (18-1-1) will play host Northville in the regional final, which has been moved back to a 2 p.m. start Saturday.

The Mustangs, who lost 2-0 to Canton in a Western Lakes Activities Association game, defeated Dearborn Edsel Ford 5-0 in the first half a semifinal doubleheader Wednesday.

Canton took the lead with 17:50 remaining in an evenly-matched game when Churchill defender Danielle Priebe sent the ball back to goalie Mary Beeton, who slipped and couldn't recover in time to keep it from rolling into the net.

Cifaldi was well positioned in the middle of the field to take a cross from Dawn Koontz in the corner and chip the ball over Beeton's head for the late, second goal.

"It became a 2-0 game when we pushed everybody up to get a goal," Churchill coach Nick O'Shea said. "If we hadn't given up the first one, chances are there wouldn't have been a second one.

"They weren't that dangerous until we put one in our net. If we weren't losing, we wouldn't have been playing just three in the back."

Despite the win, Smith was displeased with the play of his team, which struggled in the first half of a regular-season game with the Chargers (11-6-2) before rallying to win 2-1.

In addition some chippy play and hard fouls left both sides upset with the officiating and play that was considered unsportsmanlike at times.

"The tempo of the game was that way," Smith said. "Both sides were upset with the calls.

"We didn't play good soccer. We didn't deserve to win it. We didn't play well enough to win. I guess this is our lucky game."

Churchill outshot the Chiefs 4-3 in the first half, and freshman forward Marie Spaccarotella was just wide of the Canton net three times with hard shots.

The Chiefs had a first-half goal by Leah Hutko nullified when the referee ruled a Canton player ran over Beeton and caused her to lose possession of the ball after she had come out of the goal.

Canton had a 4-2 edge in the second half, but Churchill might have had the best scoring chance when the game was still scoreless. Andrea Zawislak just missed getting her head on the ball at the right corner of the Canton goal following a throwin.

"They played much better than we did all the way around," Smith said. "You do have to put it in the net, but they did have a lot of opportunities.

"I hope we have someone to take a little better care of it (Saturday). We were sorta standing around waiting for the calls. We have to play."

Canton Chiefs wear boys track crown

BY RICHARD EPPS
SPECIAL WRITER

By now, coach Bob Richardson surely knows Plymouth Canton's Western Lakes Activities Association boys track championship is a reality.

But Tuesday at Livonia Churchill, after his Chiefs had won the title with 111½ points, Richardson was still in shock from his school's first conference crown since 1986.

"Right now I'm saying to myself 'Is this a dream? Did this really happen?' I'm now starting to think, this could very well happen to us,'" Richardson said. "And, by the way, if I'm dreaming, don't wake me up."

Surely, those booming sounds of the victory songs his team plays on every winning bus ride home awoke him. And the victory lap his team took, with plaque in hand, signaled to the 300 fans and 11 other schools that Canton is indeed this year's champion.

Northville finished second with 105½ points, followed by Farmington Harrison, Walled Lake Western, Plymouth Salem and Livonia Churchill in the top six.

Canton made its biggest move in the 800-meter run in which Jeff Keith, Kevin Gudeth and Justin McClain finished 1-2-3. Keith was second in the 1,600 run.

STATISTICS, 3B

"The distance events have been our mainstay all season," Richardson said. "It's what got us through our dual meet season 6-1. We got off to a rough start, and I was hoping that it wasn't a bad dream. But I tell the kids if they struggle in one event to put it behind them."

The 3,200 relay team of Justin McClain, Matt Demey, Jeff Keith and Kevin Gudeth was first, and Demey, Marques Nelson, John Martin and Gudeth won the 1,600 relay. Canton entered the event trailing Northville by three points, needing to finish two places ahead to win.

Gudeth made the last turn in third place but burst in between two runners to take the lead, winning the 1,600 relay for Canton and clinching the title.

"We knew there were four or five tough teams, and it feels just great to win it," Gudeth said. "The love among all our players makes us all believe in ourselves."

Nelson also was in the celebrating mood.

"Professional football players talk about how it feels to win the Super Bowl, and baseball players talk about how it feels to win the World Series," he said. "For me, it feels like I'm on top of the world."

Don Bryant was on top of the world for Harrison with his two wins in the 110 (14.5) and 300 hurdles (39.4). Bryant, who tied a league record in the 110 hurdles, thought he could win in that event but was not as sure about the 300.

"Coach had a meeting with all of us, and he said I was going to run the 300," Bryant said. "He came up and told me he wanted two wins from me today. These wins came from the heart."

Bryant broke the heart of many fans early, as the Hawks led with 68 points midway through the meet. But Canton's late run in the distance events was too much for Harrison.

"Teamwise, this is probably our best meet all year," Harrison coach John Reed said. "We got some great performances. This team has nothing to be ashamed of."

Harrison's Scott Gurke won the 100 dash and Gil Chavez the long jump, and the Hawks were second in the 800 relay.

Salem's Marcus Zevalkink, Jay Casey, Brian Herc and Don Johnson won the 400 relay. Northville added a win in the 800 relay, while Rob Subotich took the individual 400.

Churchill's heavy relay team of Dave Elenich, Chris Pelczar, Aaron Dusso and Rob Lusa won, but the event does not count toward the final score.

Dusso won the shot put, Westland John Glenn's Shawn Arbogast the discus, Western's Matt Engott the high jump, Churchill's Greg Koehler the pole vault.

Churchill scored 64 of its 77 points in the field events.

Other winners were Farmington's Dave Clinard in the 1,600 run, Livonia Franklin's Lee Devers in the 3,200 run and Northville's Brian Dogonski in the 200 dash.

Rockets roar by Belleville

Westland John Glenn's baseball team capitalized on five Belleville errors Tuesday to win a Class A predistrict game, 6-1, at Belleville.

The Rockets improved to 22-4 overall.

Bryan Besco moved his pitching record to 7-1 with a three-hitter and 10 strikeouts.

Aaron Scheffer led the Rockets with three hits and teammate Mike Bint added two hits. Bint and Nick James each had doubles.

BASEBALL

■ SALEM 1, CHURCHILL 0: Livonia Churchill lost Tuesday's Class A predistrict game at Plymouth Salem despite the five-hit complete-game pitching of senior Mark Rutherford.

Rutherford (6-2), who struck out six and walked one, allowed the only Salem run in the first inning. Jamie Owens led off the game with a single and stole second base. Owens went to third on a passed ball and scored on the same play after the throw to third to get Owens went into left field.

Todd Siedlaczek and Mike Marchetti each had doubles for Churchill but failed to score.

Nirav Kher threw a four-hitter to earn the win for Salem. Kher, whose first eight appearances this year were in relief, improved to 6-1 with two saves. He struck out one and walked four.

■ LUTH. WESTLAND 12, ST. MARY'S 10: Lutheran Westland scored nine runs in the sixth inning to erase a 10-2 deficit en route to Tuesday's upset victory over Orchard Lake St. Mary's in a Class C predistrict game at Madonna University Park.

St. Mary's starting pitcher E.J. Roman was relieved after four innings and his team ahead 9-1. When Roman re-entered, Lutheran Westland was in the midst of a nine-run rally.

The Warriors, 9-10 overall, had five hits and capitalized on four St. Mary's errors in the sixth. Matt Russian and Eric Schilbe each had two-run doubles and Ryan Slezsak contributed a two-run single. Morty Hodge had two RBI on a pair of singles.

Hodge led the Warriors with three hits.

John Reardon, who pitched 3⅔ innings in relief, earned the win. Reardon allowed two hits, struck out two and walked three. Steve Faith pitched the first 3⅓ innings, allowing nine runs, only three earned, on six hits and six walks.

Lutheran Westland ended the regular season with Friday's 5-4 comeback win over visiting Allen Park Inter-City Baptist.

Kyle Kopper's bases loaded triple in the seventh tied the score 4-4. A suicide squeeze bunt by Chris Tiernan scored pinch-runner Matt Baltz from third for the winning run.

Reardon went the distance for the win, allowing seven hits and six strikeouts with one walk.

■ REDFORD CC 3-6, SYLVANIA 1-3: Redford Catholic Central ended its regular season with a double-header sweep over Sylvania Southview High School at Livonia's Ford Field.

The Shamrocks, who did not commit an error in either game, are 25-9 overall.

Senior right-hander Brian Paluk raised his record to 9-2 with the first-game victory. Paluk allowed three hits in six innings, with one walk and six strikeouts. Southview scored its only run with three hits against reliever Dave Susalla.

Brian Hicks and Mike Brusseau each delivered RBI doubles for the Shamrocks, who had only three hits.

The Shamrocks won the second game behind starting pitcher Andy Kummer, who lasted five innings in moving his record to 3-2. Kummer allowed two runs and five hits, walked one and struck out three. Jerry Nozewski pitched two innings in relief.

CC led 2-0 after one inning and enjoyed a 6-0 lead after four innings.

Brusseau was 2-for-3 with two runs scored and Jeff Gutt was 2-3 with an RBI. Juan Sanchez had a two-run single.

Hines Park stays hot in Collegiate

Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury continued winning in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, sweeping All-American Amateur Baseball Association runnerup Walter's Appliance in a doubleheader Friday night at Ford Field, 3-2 and 4-2.

Winning pitcher Scott Rodgers, who worked the first 4⅓ innings, teamed with reliever Jeff Paluk on a three-hitter as Hines Park ran its season record to 6-0 with a victory in the nightcap.

Lefty Mike Thomas, who worked the first four innings for Walter's before giving way to Dave Koch, took the loss.

Brian Burns had an RBI triple, and Ed Gundry added an RBI sacrifice fly for Hines Park in the third inning. Scott Niemiec contributed an RBI single in the fourth.

Dan Gusoff had two doubles and two RBI for Walter's, off to an 0-4 start.

Scott Kapla threw a five-hitter in the opener to give Hines Park the victory. He struck out six and walked just one.

Gundry had two hits and two RBI, including a triple. Brian Burns had two hits, while Tom Davey contributed an RBI sacrifice fly.

Gusoff, 4-for-6 on the day, had two hits for Walter's, while Brad Maxwell added a two-run single in the third.

Walter's pitcher Mike Zielinski, who also went the distance scattering five walks and five hits, suffered the defeat.

Del-Wal beats Wendy's

In a game played Friday at Eastern Michigan University, Del-Wal topped Wendy's, 4-2, as pitcher Mark Temple got a rare win and save, while striking out 14.

After reliever Don Spinozzi allowed two unearned runs in the seventh, Temple returned to the mound from right field, striking out the final batter on three pitches with the tying run on base.

Todd Faulkner and Andy Duncan each had two hits for Del-Wal, which won its second straight. Faulkner also scored twice.

Duncan, Matt Recht and Noah Bremen each drove in runs.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Tuesday (for Thursday edition) and noon Friday (for Monday edition). Items run once only.

■ ALBION LANDS SPARTAN

Livonia Stevenson senior Lori Shingledecker, a second-team All-Observer pick in girls basketball, has committed to Albion College, where she'll pursue a career in education and coaching.

Shingledecker, an All-Western Lakes Activities Association pick, helped the Spartans to a 19-2 record. The Stevenson co-captain, a four-year letter winner, set a school record for three-point shooting.

She was also a nominee for the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Scholar-Athlete Award, as well as captain for Stevenson's softball team.

She was recently honored at the Phi Kappa Awards dinner at Detroit's Cobo Center for graduating in the top 10 percent of her class. Shingledecker carries a 3.8 grade-point average and will graduate Magna Cum Laude.

Shingledecker also plans to sing in the Albion Choir. She performed the role of Lilly in Stevenson's winter musical production of "Annie."

■ WOLVES CAPTURE STATE

The '76 Michigan Wolves, sponsored by the Livonia Y, recently captured the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association's championship with a 4-0 triumph over Wayne/Westland WISLA.

The 16-17 year-old squad will represent Michigan in the 12-team Region II Tournament, June 25-30 in Springfield, Mo. The winner advances to the nationals, July 21-25, in Phoenix, Ariz.

Scicluna then scored from Jason Buelow (Livonia Frankin) in the first minute of the second half. Rich Walos (Redford Catholic Central) made it 3-0 from Adam Schomer (West Bloomfield).

Scicluna capped the scoring from James Van Huysen (Kalamazoo).

It was the fifth consecutive state tourney shutout for Wolves goalie Chris Timlin (Beverly HIlls), who teamed up with backup Billy Power (Canton).

Other members of the Wolves, coached by Paul Scicluna (Farmington Hills) and Dominic Scicluna (Redford), include: Adam Borchert (Redford CC), Bill Boyle (Okemos), Ben Cesa (Highland), David Garlick (Grand Blanc), Neal Grode (Sterling Heights), Jon Herbst (Brighton), Adam Hunter (Bloomfield Hills) and Jamie Whitmore (Ann Arbor).

■ LIVONIA WEST 1ST

Livonia West, an 11-12 year-old Pee Wee Reese Federation baseball team, outlasted a 20-team field at Rochester Heritage Festival Hit Tournament last weekend, finishing with a 5-0 record.

Livonia West, coached by Dick Tracy and managed by Bill Rabe, beat the South Farmington Blues in the final, 14-13, as Ryan Wilmering and Mark Mink came up with key hits to start a two-run rally in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Wilmering and Chris Morelli combined on a perfect game, retiring 15 straight hitters, as Livonia West downed Waterford in the first round, 23-0.

Roy Rabe struck out 15 as Livonia West defeated the Battle Creek Indians, 9-4, in Game No. 2.

Derek Fox pitched a five-hit shutout in Game No. 3 against the Troy Yankees in an 8-0 win. Livonia West advanced to the championship round with a 5-4 victory over the Bloomfield Bulls.

Top tourney hitters for West included Mike Kurtz (.600 batting average), Brad Tracy (.571) and Casey Rogowski (.563).

■ MCCALL CYCLING KING

On May 22, Livonian Charlie McCall captured the U.S. Cycling Federation 80-mile (category 3) road race in Harbor Springs.

McCall, a member of the Wolverine Sports Club (coached by Mike Walden), outlasted 65 riders to take home the gold medal.

During the school year, McCall attends Marian College in Indianapolis, Ind., where he races at the Major Taylor Velodrome (coached by Terry Hoffer).

In April, McCall won the Midwest College Cycling Conference criterium race, beating riders from the Big Ten and USA National Team. He was also a member of Marian's team time trial championship squad.

Expo '93 hits town

AL HARRISON

Bowling Expo '93 is coming to the greater Detroit area this summer. The event will be an exhibit of all aspects of the bowling industry and local centers.

The displays will be comprised of manufacturers, bowling centers, pro shops, trophy shops, travel agents, the Professional Bowlers Tour, tournament organizations, embroidery and silkscreen outfitters, as well as other related items.

This will be the first chance for the public to get a thorough look at what bowling has to offer.

Bowling Expo '93 will take place August 27-29 at the Gibraltar Trade Center North, which is located near Mount Clemens.

This is a timely event, especially since the bowling equipment is going through some radical changes. For those who are involved in the bowling scene, the Expo presents an opportunity to show your wares to the bowling general public.

A 12-by-six foot space and eight-foot table are available for as little as $50 for the weekend. For information, call the Bowler's Digest at 286-2450.

■ As many of the summer leagues have begun, and more are about to begin, there are still some openings available for those who want to get in on the summertime fun.

The summer leagues have short seasons with the bowling centers a nice, cool place to spend a hot summer night. It's a great way to work on your game, try new equipment and stay in good shape so you don't have to start up the fall season rusty.

Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills has openings in the 6:30 p.m. Tuesday Adult/Child League, along with 8 p.m. Sunday 12 Oaks Mixed League.

Westland Bowl has openings in the 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 p.m. Wednesday Mixed Fun Leagues with any combinations (four per team).

Canton's Super Bowl has openings for bowlers in the Wednesday Mixed League which begins at 7 p.m. (four per team).

Plaza Lanes in Plymouth has several youth leagues starting in June for boys and girls ages 6-10 on Mondays. There are also bumper bowling leagues from 3 to 6 p.m. on Tuesdays and at 12:30 p.m. on Thursdays. For more details, call 453-4880.

Late goal denies CC state title

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

■ LACROSSE

Redford Catholic Central's best-ever lacrosse season ended Saturday with a 9-8 loss to Birmingham-Detroit Country Day in the Division I state championship at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

The Shamrocks, who wasted leads of 4-0 and 8-4, finished the season with a 15-2 overall record.

Country Day erased an 8-7 deficit with two goals in the last 1:21 by Cyrus Fassihi.

Fassihi's goal with eight seconds left broke gave Country Day its second-straight state championship.

Senior Justin Ronayne led CC with four goals and two assists.

Seniors Brian Ronayne and Brian Rice and juniors Jon Heady and Jeff Lachapelle scored one goal each. Brian Ronayne finished as CC's leading scorer for the season with 65 points on 29 goals and 36 assists. Rice led the Shamrocks with 36 goals and added 14 assists for 40 points.

Country Day's Matt Tucker, who will join Rice in the North-South All-Star Game this month in Baltimore, Md., scored four goals — but none after halftime. Chris Frescoln added three goals.

CC avenged its only regular-season loss with Friday's 7-3 victory over Cranbrook.

Rice had two goals and Paul Nemzek, Tim Williams, Lachapelle, Justin Ronayne and Arlen scored one goal each.

I hope I'm covering them all.

He's even been spotted on Saturday night in the dead of winter far away from Detroit. Just ask Chuck Gordon, the Glenn football coach who taught Kurashige in science class at Stevenson Junior High in Westland and also referees high school basketball.

"I was officiating a basketball game in Saline one night a few years ago," recalls Gordon. "It's Saturday, a cold winter night. The gym is packed, I look up and there's Kurashige. I said 'What are you doing here?' He said it's the only game in town. The only game in southeastern Michigan. He's a great guy."

Little Caesars baseball coach John Moraitis has seen Kurashige hundreds of times.

"I went to Alaska and saw him," joked Moraitis.

Kurashige, who works as a medical supplies driver, determines which game to attend by following the schedules in the Observer. For schools out-state, he sends letters to athletic directors, requesting schedules.

They send schedules back.

And he goes.

Kurashige is one of the first fans to arrive at a game, in case "there's a sellout."

He's one of the last to leave, prompting many coaches to sometimes wonder if he's a sports writer.

Farmington Hills Harrison is one of Kurashige's favorite football teams, after John Glenn, of course. Harrison coach John Herrington remembers one of the first times he met Kurashige.

"The coaches and I were sitting up near the locker room after a game and Bob came up to talk," Herrington said. "I thought he was a Hawk fan. I guess he likes all the teams."

One of Kurashige's favorite football players ever in Observerland was former Harrison star John Miller. Kurashige saw Miller score six touchdowns against Livonia Stevenson in 1984 but was probably glad he attended another game the night Harrison was upset by John Stoitsiadis and his band from Livonia Churchill.

Most coaches don't know Kurashige by name but they recognize the face, the one with the thick black hair, glasses and a big smile.

I called Bob the other day to do this story and he said he didn't have time.

"I'm going to Garden City City Park to watch a game," Kurashige said.

I convinced him to meet me at the Ground Round in Livonia. Kurashige agreed and two hours later there he was, waiting for me while sitting with a group of coaches who knew him.

Surprise, surprise.

Holmes ousts Churchill, 1-0

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

■ SOFTBALL

Livonia Churchill tried slap-bunting its way on base against Plymouth Canton fireballer Kelly Holmes in Tuesday's critical Class A predistrict softball opener.

The Chargers waved their bats before Holmes even moved into her windup, but they wound up waving a white flag as the University of Michigan-bound hurler struck out 13 in a 1-0 triumph for the state-ranked Chiefs, now 30-5 on the season.

Churchill, wasting a four-hit four-strikeout performance by junior hurler Karen Jose, bows out of state tournament action with a 15-6 record.

Three of the Chargers' losses came against their Western Division rival in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"I was really nervous about this game because they (Churchill) are an excellent team and their coaching staff has done a whale of a job all year," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "We worked hard on bunt coverages. The only thing I was worried about was that they might change their strategy. That's why we brought up our first baseman and third baseman to challenge them."

Canton collected only four hits off Jose (15-3), but made two of those count for its only run in the sixth.

Kate Strahan led off the inning with a line shot to left field, which skipped all the way to the fence.

Tina Schafer then bunted Strahan over to third, setting the stage for Dani Mortiere.

With first base left open, the senior shortstop looped a long fly ball over the head of Churchill left fielder Carla Karoub for a double, scoring Strahan with the game's only run.

"Dani is a good power hitter, but we gave her the slap bunt sign to draw in their infielders," Arnold said. "Coach (Larry) Bober notched their fielders were way in, so with two strikes I had her hit away. She got lucky and hit the ball over the left fielder's head."

Holmes, meanwhile, allowed only three runners to reach base in running her record to 19-2. The hard-throwing right-hander gave up a two-out infield single to Anne Roulo in the third.

Jose reached base in the fourth on an outfield error, while Kelly Szymanski took first with two-out in the seventh on a Canton infield error, but Holmes, who did not allow a runner past second all day, got Karoub to ground out to end the game.

"Our strategy was to put the ball in play," Churchill coach Dana Hardwidge said. "We wanted to slap it past the pitcher or the corners.

"We've been working on it, but it's different when you're going against a Kelly Holmes. Canton puts pressure on your defense because you're not going to score a lot of runs."

The Chargers, stacked in a tough district not only against Canton, but also against Livonia Ladywood and Franklin, goes home early this season after reaching the regionals a year ago.

"Last year we got some breaks and walked through districts," Hardwidge said. "So I guess you have to take the good with the bad. We knew we had to play them sooner or later. At least we knew a lot about them. We were willing to take our chances."

Pats rally by Salem, 7-6

A five-run seventh inning was enough — barely — to send Livonia Franklin into Saturday's Class A district softball tournament against Livonia Ladywood.

On Tuesday, Franklin advanced by edging host Plymouth Salem, 7-6, in a predistrict encounter.

Jaclyn Dean ignited the Franklin comeback win. Trailing 3-2 going into the seventh, the Pats got a two-run double from Dean, a run-scoring single from Amanda Hosko and RBI ground outs from Lisa Craven and Becca Bloch. Dean and Bloch each singled in runs in the first inning, too.

Dean finished with two hits, two runs scored and three RBI. Salem closed the gap with three runs in the seventh but could forge no closer.

Sophomore Becky Jansen allowed six runs on 11 hits and four walks, striking out two, but got the win for Franklin (16-12). Jenny Garvey was the loser, surrendering eight hits and three walks, fanning four.

■ LUTH. WESTLAND 24, DOMINICAN 3: Amy Sieloff slugged a pair of home runs to lead a 16-hit, five-homer attack that ended after five innings Tuesday with a 10-run mercy win in a Class C predistrict game at Plymouth's Massey Field.

Lutheran Westland, now 14-10, advances to play Detroit Benedictine at 10 a.m. Saturday at Massey.

Sieloff slammed a three-run homer in the second and a two-run homer in the third. She finished with three hits and six runs batted in.

Erin Cicero also had three hits, including a two-run homer in the fourth, and Suzie Clark added two hits, one a solo shot in the third, with two RBI. Leslie Turgeon had the other Warrior homer, another third-inning solo. Jenny Pruchnik had two hits and an RBI.

Shannon Wasil started and went the first three innings, allowing two runs (neither earned) on two hits and a walk, with two strikeouts. Amy Gentz went the final two innings. Jennifer Kyrch was the loser for Dominican (4-19).

Last Friday, Lutheran Westland bombarded Warren Bethesda 21-1 at Bethesda. Wasil had a no-hitter going until two were out in the fifth, when she allowed a double. She walked two and struck out seven.

■ ROUNDUP

Cicero had three hits and five RBI; Becky Cannon had three hits and two RBI, including a solo homer; Gentz had three hits and an RBI; and Sieloff hit a two-run homer in the fifth.

■ BELLEVILLE 3, GLENN 2: The Tigers' Lori Dickerson handcuffed Westland John Glenn on one hit to escape with the victory in Tuesday's Class A predistrict game at Garden City Park.

The only hit off Dickerson was a fifth-inning single by Nicole Gentry. The Rockets (15-15) scored twice in that inning on a walk and an error, with a double-steal bringing in one run and a ground out scoring another. That trimmed the Tigers' lead to 3-2.

Lynn Little took the loss, allowing three runs on seven hits and six walks, with one strikeout. Dickerson walked two and struck out five.

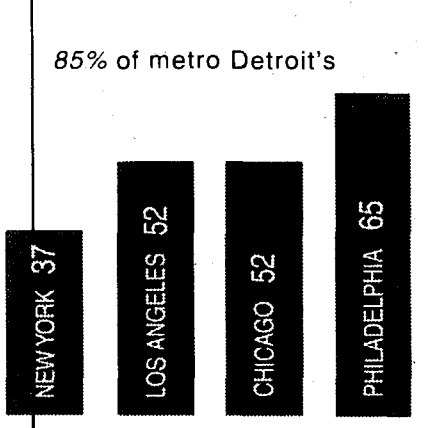
Metro Detroit:
the newspaper readership story

Detroit is a "city of suburbs."

As the graph shows, suburbanites comprise more than 72% of Detroit's metro population.

In fact, the suburbs account for 85% of metro Detroit's Effective Buying Income (EBI).



Percent of metro population in suburbs

And, in Detroit's suburbs, the leading newspapers are not The Detroit News or Free Press—

The leading suburban newspaper medium is SPRING, the network of suburban newspapers.

SPRING delivers more than twice the audited suburban circulation (707,214) of the daily Detroit News (274,510) or Free Press (348,698).

And the 1991 Belden newspaper survey proves that suburbanites read their SPRING newspapers.

SPRING delivers more total suburban readers (927,400) than the daily edition of The News (743,000) or Free Press (856,000).

SPRING delivers more suburban buyers of women's fashions, men's fashions, new cars & trucks, boats, jewelry, and airline tickets.

The same research study shows that 416,000 (56%) of 35% of the people reached by the DNA daily "combo" read both

The Detroit News' suburban readers also read the Free Press.

So Free Press advertisers add only 17% more reach by buying the News-Free Press daily "combo."

Ex-Lion goes from guarding quarterbacks to kids

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Former Detroit Lion Homer "Sugar Bear" Elias, all 295 pounds of him, has gone from guarding Gary Danielson on the football field to protecting high school students on the campus of Plymouth Canton and Salem high schools.

Elias — whom Lions fans remember as an instant starter at left guard after he was drafted in 1978 in the fourth round — is the newest hire in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools security department.

The Georgia native, who hung up his cleats in 1984, is a part-timer at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. He's responsible for the community education volleyball and racquetball courts. If Elias isn't hanging nets or maintaining facilities, he's driving a security truck on campus.

Other working hours are spent at the Berkshire Hotel in Southfield, where he is security and safety chief.

Lifting weights

"This place is always busy," said Elias, 38, while walking toward his office from the PCEP track recently. "There's always something going on."

Elias arrives at work early to lift weights and walk three or four miles. He's working up to 80 miles a month and wants to lose 45 pounds. "I ain't seen 250 in a long time," he said.

Fans who followed his career fully expected the talented Elias to play 12 years in the National Football League. He would have, had physical problems not sidelined him. In 1984 in a game against Green Bay, he ripped a stomach muscle so severely that afterward he couldn't laugh or cough without pain.

When he played for the Lions and coach Monte Clark, wins were as elusive as Barry Sanders. But Elias harbors no bitterness.

"I can't say too many bad things about Clark; he had good enough football sense to draft me," said Elias. "He didn't have full control. Wayne Fontes has more control. They've opened up the pocketbook."

Low-paying Lions

Elias recalled that then-general manager Russ Thomas "was the highest paid GM in the league, while the club was at the bottom of the pay scale. We ranked 26th out of 28 teams.

"I'm glad to see it happen (football salaries increase)," said Elias, who recovered three fumbles in his career and has a game ball.

"My time came too early, but I'm glad to see offensive linemen starting to get recognition."

Elias enjoyed just two winning seasons with the Lions. "Winning is everything. It definitely shows you who your real friends are," he said.

Re-entering the workaday world has not been a tough transition, he said. "I couldn't play forever. When it was time for me to leave it alone, I didn't try to hang on. When I'm through with something, I'm through with something."

"I'm the type, if I get knocked down, I land on my feet some kind of way. That's the way my mom and dad taught me. If you lay down, they can keep stepping on you."

A Ferndale resident, Elias grew up on a farm in Fort Benning, Ga. His dad worked in the post office, raised hogs and chickens, and grew collard greens and peas.

Feeding the hogs

"I had to feed the hogs and chop wood before I went to school. I think it made me a better person," said Elias. "Sometimes you don't know how blessed you really are."

Kids today just don't see the value of hard work, he added.

Playing sports with his uncle and his friends, eight years his senior, made Elias a better athlete. "They were bigger and older than me. It made me tough. It taught me to work harder. I got better and better."

They made do with what they had. "We made a football out of a can, stick and rolled-up socks. We probably had more fun playing with that can than a real football," said Elias. "The first basketball rim I put up was a used bicycle rim."

Like his grandfather Jesse James, Elias had baseball talent. He received college scholarship offers in baseball, basketball and football. "My granddad was a great baseball player," said Elias, who also ran track. "He was like a legend in his hometown. He was a semi-pro outfielder and a great home-run player in Fort Benning."

Baseball was Elias' first love. Unfortunately, it wasn't the end all for Fort Benning folks.

Forty-five people were in the stands for a high school baseball game, but if there was a football game, the town was empty; everyone was at the stadium, said Elias, who was 6-foot-2 in sixth grade. "If you didn't go out for football, everyone was on your case."

Too Tall encounter

Elias — who remembers guarding Ed "Too Tall" Jones as a freshman at Mt. Olive High School and recalls it being a painful assignment — can't figure out the allure of soccer and other activities popular at PCEP. "I see guys in the band who are bigger than guys on the football team," he said, shaking his head. "Kids have so many things they are into now, like soccer. I never knew what soccer was 'til I was in college."

Elias said his physique had something to do with his decision to pursue football. "We had a scout come up when we were getting ready for practice one day. He said, 'Son, we have running backs bigger than you.' My roommate and I went on an eating binge. I went from 220 pounds to 262. I just started gaining weight. I starting going out instead of up. It didn't slow me down too bad. I could still run the 40 in 4.8."

Elias and his former wife, Peaches, a Detroiter, have a son, Jason, "who's 12, but is thinking 25."

The break-up of his family was "one hard thing I've had to deal with. I take one day at a time," said Elias. "Eventually, I will get married again, but no time soon."

Brothers 'make their own kind of music'

Some brothers play golf together, the Forbes Brothers play music, write songs, co-own and manage Mr. B's Food & Spirits in Troy.

BY TOM MULLIGAN
SPECIAL WRITER

The Forbes Brothers are unusual.

For one thing, they're not full-time musicians. They co-own and manage Mr. B's Food & Spirits, a successful bar-restaurant at 3946 Rochester Road, Troy, 689-6070.

Unlike most other local acts, they don't travel from place to place playing for whomever will give them a job. They play at their own place in the "Sunday Night Jam," a weekly jam session that begins Sundays at 9 p.m. Musicians drop in and play a spot. Jam sessions are dominated by the Forbes Brothers and their friends including J.C. Whitelaw, formerly of the locally acclaimed group Ash Can Van Gough.

That suits Dennis or "Denny," 43, and Scott Forbes, 39, just fine. They've played and written songs together since the sixth grade, and in various local groups for over 20 years, including "a zillion garage bands," laughs Scott.

They've also run their own recording studio Ambience Recordings in Southfield, and written commercial jingles including regional ads for Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Denny did engineering for several Bob Seger albums dating back to 1979.

Besides Seger, they have worked with such local rock legends as Mitch Ryder and Marshall Crenshaw. Ryder even plays at Mr. B's occasionally. A more frequent visitor is Johnny B, former drummer of the Rockets who likens the Forbes Brothers' music to a couple of hot country stars.

"As song writers, they're hot on the heels of Garth Brooks and Billy Ray (Cyrus). Just add a rocking chair and chewing tobacco and you got it."

One might wonder why a couple of guys who have surrounded themselves with rock legends are playing country music.

It's not such a radical departure from their typical sound, said Denny. "We've always leaned toward the mellow stuff. Besides the stuff that's played on country radio now sounds like a lot of stuff that was on rock radio in the 1970s," he adds.

Their set list is comprised almost exclusively of their own material. The Forbes Brothers have been writing together throughout their musical career, and dream of a record contract. "We've written literally hundreds of songs together over the years," said Denny.

Between running Mr. B's, writing songs, and playing at the Sunday Night Jam, one would think their schedule would be full. But Scott has a concern of his own on the side for which he's received national acclaim — the TIPS program.

TIPS stands for Training Intervention in the Procedures of Serving alcohol. The program advises any establishment that serves liquor about liability, how to deal with intoxicated patrons, and how to cut them off.

DOUGLAS SUSALLA

Musical duo: The Forbes Brothers, Dennis (left) and Scott have played music and written songs together since sixth grade.

Forbes who runs the TIPS program which his wife Patty, has earned the praise of police departments and has been profiled locally in newspapers, and nationally on TV and radio.

"I'm proud of it," said Scott. "We're all over the country with it, in all 50 states. We're one of four pioneers of the program nationwide."

With running Mr. B's and the TIPS program, the Forbes Brothers bristle at the suggestion that their music is a hobby.

"Music has always flowed into our life," said Denny. "There was always music on in our house."

Scott agrees, "You can't really call our music a hobby," he said. "We do it as an outlet. Some guys have golf. We have our music."

Despite the analogy, the Forbes Brothers clearly have their eye on the big time. They say they've made demos over the years, and received some interest from record companies, but they've never managed to land a contract.

'Made in America': humorous poke at parenting

Set in Oakland and Berkeley, Calif., Warner Bros.' "Made in America" tells the story of Sarah, an independent black woman (Whoopi Goldberg) who conceives a child with the help of a sperm bank.

When her daughter Zora (Nia Long) discovers the truth 18 years later, the whole family is in for a big surprise.

Sarah Mathews wanted to have it all — her own business, her own independence, her own family. The business is going just fine: Sarah owns a thriving African-American bookstore perfectly in keeping with her own proud Afrocentrist consciousness.

And when her husband died before they were able to have children, she went to a sperm bank, which resulted in her beautiful daughter, Zora (Nia Long), now a confident young woman about to enroll in college. Sarah thinks she's done pretty well for herself, and her family, unusual as it may be.

PREVIEW

But now Zora wants to know more about her father, whom she's always been told is the late Mr. Mathews. Zora does a little research at the sperm bank, hoping to meet the intelligent, disguished black man who helped give her a genetic heritage.

It turns out her father is white. And what's more, he's Hal Jackson (Ted Danson,) a good-time guy who's careened through life slapping backs, shaking hands and making a small fortune selling cars in Oakland.

The one thing he never expects to face is an emotional young black woman insisting he's her dad, whose outraged mother shows up shortly afterward, demanding that he stay out of their lives forever — a demand he's only too happy to honor.

Zora's need to know both of her parents begins to draw Hal and Sarah into an incongruous, though steadily developing friendship.

"Made in America," combines romance, parenthood, contemporary humor and an offbeat look at what "family" really means. It is directed by Richard Benjamin and produced by Arnon Milchan, Michael Douglas and Rick Bieber.

The screenplay is written by Holly Goldberg Sloan, based on a story by Marcia Brandwynne and Nadine Schiff and Holly Goldberg Sloan.

Executive producers Marcia Brandwynne and Nadine Schiff came up with the concept of a child who, after learning she was a product of artificial insemination, sets out to find her father. The two women, who were both working in local news in Los Angeles at the time, sat down to work out the story details.

"I just knew we had the makings of a funny, dynamic romatic comedy," said producer Arnon Milchan. "I loved the idea that these two people who get together never would have picked each other. They don't even like each other; the only way these two would ever meet is in a test tube. I think audiences enjoy seeing the unlikeliest people get together because sometimes that happens in their own lives."

"Made in America" is rated PG-13 (Parental Guidance Suggested).

'Cliffhanger': It's exciting but overly violent

JOHN MONAGHAN

REVIEW

Picture the final 10 minutes of "North by Northwest," the Hitchcock classic where Cary Grant and Eva Marie Sainte elude bad guys atop Mount Rushmore. Now imagine the scene played over and over again, with twists and variations, and you'll have a pretty good idea what "Cliffhanger" is all about.

The edge-of-your-seat action thriller, which debuted May 28, opens high on a Rocky Mountain peak. Gabe, the expert mountain climber played by Sylvester Stallone, grips a fellow climber's hand as she dangles 4,000 feet above sea level. She pleads with him not to let her fall, but his hold weakens and she plummets to her death.

Eight months later, a still-shaken Gabe climbs the peaks once again when his former partner (Michael Rooker) receives a distress call. What they don't realize is that the senders are actually bloodthirsty treasury thieves who want the climbers to fetch three suitcases full of newly minted currency.

The action that follows, just like the old cliffhanging serials of the 1930s and 1940s, finds the climbers in various nail-biting situations.

They battle a collapsing rope bridge, a bat-filled cave, a snow slide, a slowly fraying rope and the sadism of the killers, led here by an evil John Lithgow.

Though he shares some of the derring-do with the likable Rooker, Stallone still hogs most of the action. In one very Rambo-like moment, he is forced to strip down to his T-shirt before ascending a snow-covered peak. The bad guys call it insurance because they know he'll freeze if he doesn't return to them. We might call it an excuse for Sly to flex outside his plaid parka.

Janine Turner plays pretty much the same role she does in the TV series "Northern Exposure," that of a pilot in the middle of nowhere. She teams with Stallone in the second half when he escapes and tries to head the other party off at the pass.

The real star of the movie is director Renny Harlin, who makes the most out of the stunning mountain vistas (actually filmed in the Italian Alps.) The Finnish-born director of "Die Hard 2" creates another movie that works completely in visual terms. Mute the dialogue, keep the rousing score (reminiscent again of "North by Northwest") and you'd have the most exciting silent movie ever made.

"Cliffhanger's" set-up, after all, could be done in one title card. The rest of the dialogue consists of screaming, swearing and an occasional wry aside by Lithgow — "You kill one man, they call you a murderer. Kill 30,000, they call you conquerer."

The gratuitious violence and profanity should keep families away from "Cliffhanger", a shame because parents and kids could otherwise enjoy it together. Blame Carolco, the production company that trashed up so many of Arnold Schwarzenegger's pictures and supplied most of the money for this one.

Also blame co-scriptwriter Stallone, who reportedly changed the script around plenty during the long shooting schedule. There's really no emotional closure for that magnificent opening scene, causing better-than-usual character conflicts to take a back seat to mindless action.

Nevertheless, this is the first thrill of the summer season, a visual tour-de-force that allows Stallone to grunt, sweat, flex and seek revenge amidst some truly magnificent locales.

Now showing at these suburban theaters: AMC Abbey 8, AMC Laurel Park, Quo Vadis, United Artists West River, AMC Americana West, AMC Southfield City, AMC Wonderland, Star Rochester Hills.

United Artists busy upgrading theaters

The doors of the newly renovated United Artists-Oakland theater, at Oakland Mall (14 Mile and I-75) in Troy, opened May 28.

The refurbished theater features new stereo sound, a fully remodeled and redecorated lobby and auditoriums, multi-station refreshment centers for quicker service and customer convenience, and new seating with cupholder armrests.

This is the first step in a multi-million-dollar program of major renovations to all the United Artists metro Detroit theaters except the United Artists-West River, already state of the art.

Renovations continue at two other locations and they will resume operations shortly. United Artists-Lakeside will reopen Friday, June 4. United Artists-12 Oaks will reopen Friday, June 24.

This extensive program of renovations reinforces United Artists' long-range commitment to metro Detroit, a spokesman said.

Dallas-based United Artists Theatres operates 33 screens in the Detroit area. With 2,300 screens nationwide, it is the largest theater circuit in the world.

Movie: "Sliver"
Reaction: Disappointing
Moviegoer: Pam Craig of Livonia

"I was disappointed in how much they changed it from the book," said Pam Craig of Livonia about "Sliver," which is being shown at area movie theaters. "The ending doesn't make sense. They didn't pull it off. I'm sure Ira Levin (who wrote the book on which the movie is based) must be really upset that they took such liberties with his story."

Craig had an opinion about a recently released movie, and we're sure you do, too. Let us know what you think about "Sliver," "Made in America," "Cliffhanger" or any other recently released movie.

Other courses include:

■ "Marketing and Advertising" meets 7-10 p.m. Monday, June 14, and Wednesday, June 16. Learn basic principles of marketing and advertising, including market analysis, customer behavior, marketing research, channels of distribution, promotion, face-to-face selling, pricing strategies and preparation of a marketing plan. Fee is $34.

■ "ASSET Preparation Workshop" meets 6-10 p.m. Wednesday, June 23. Topics include test taking techniques, refresher math, reading and writing skills review, fractions decimals, formulas and scientific notations. Fee is $20.

Fee is $50. Call 462-4448.

Seminar targets sexual harassment

Terminating sexual harassment in the workplace is a legal requirement. Having a policy that condemns the practice is not enough. Madonna University offers a seminar to find out how to establish procedures that alter and squelch sexual harassment.

Dr. Joseph Brown, a labor relations manager, has been a management training specialist in the private and public sector for over 20 years. As a speaker and consultant his work concentrates on understanding human behavior and his past work dealing with harassment.

The one-day seminar addresses sexual harassment, how to establish written policies and penalties and how to train managers.

The seminar is offered from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, June 5, at a cost of $75. For more information, call (313) 591-5188.

Dogwood provides food source for birds

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

One of my neighbors has a row of eight flowering dogwood trees along the roadside. The flowers are spectacular when in bloom. Though the large white "petal" with a notch at the end is not technically a petal, it does not detract from the beauty of this tree.

According to legend, flowering dogwood trees once grew very large, but it was the wood from the dogwood tree that made Christ's cross. Jesus took pity on the tree, which felt so ashamed for what it had done, and changed the growth of the tree to a slender, twisted tree. That way it could never be used as a cross again. In addition, its flowers would grow in the shape of a cross; in the center would be a crown of thorns and each petal would have nail marks stained with red.

Dogwood grows to about 30 feet and spreads widely if not crossed. In Michigan, it extends its range to the middle of the lower peninsula. Typically, it is a southern tree, very common in the Appalachian forests.

After the flowers are pollinated, scarlet red berries form by fall. These berries are used by more than 40 species of birds because they are very high in fat. Nearly 18 percent fat makes dogwood berries one of the highest fat content berries in the forest. Migrating birds rely on them for energy reserves during their flight south.

Dogwood has been used by people for many things too. A tea was made from the bark to substitute for quinine during the Civil War. It was a poor substitute. Native Americans made an extract from the bark to soothe sore muscles. The red berries were soaked in brandy to relieve stomach acid. It was also used as an appetite stimulant.

Wood from the flowering dogwood tree served the most practical use. It is very hard and dense. This quality made it food for mallets and wedges because it would not flatten when hit with a hammer. Heads of golf clubs were also made from dogwood at one time. But most dogwood trees were cut down to make shuttles for the textile industry. Few woods could be made as smooth and remain smooth, like dogwood.

Today, in 19 eastern states, a fungus is killing flowering dogwood trees that grow in moist forest. Acid rain appears to affect the leaf, making it easier for the fungus to invade the tree. Those trees growing in sunny areas do not die. Undoubtedly the fungus will reach Michigan and we will lose some of our flowering dogwood trees. But migratory birds and other animals will also lose an important food source.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can leave him a message using a touch-tone phone at 953-2047, mailbox 1874.

Envelope Co. stays ahead of techno-glut

■ Technology's rush has yet to put a hurt on the Birmingham-based Wolf Envelope Co., which still produces up to 3 million envelopes a day.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Twenty-six plaques for product excellence line a wall of the 3,500-square-foot administrative headquarters of Wolf Envelope Co. tucked away on the second level of South Adams Square in Birmingham.

In this age of fax machines, computer electronic bulletin boards and satellite communications, Wolf continues to supply envelopes to some 300 business clients during this its 70th year of operation.

"We're in a fairly competitive industry," said Hugh F. Mahler, 44, owner/president.

"We sell to the financial industry, do some work for medical filing, bank drive-in envelopes, bank statement envelopes, x-ray filing envelopes. We get involved in general mailing. Utility bills we produce."

Mahler, who started in customer service after graduating from the University of Michigan, has spent virtually his entire working career with Wolf in sales and marketing.

He ultimately succeeded his father, John, as general manager, and jumped at the chance to purchase the Detroit and Indiana operations in 1990.

"I've developed a fondness for the business," he said. "It's an industry that has a lot of variety. Each customer has a unique need. A customer may look for a supplier not only to supply quality product, but help in inventory management or solve a postal regulation problem."

Wolf, originally based in Cleveland, opened a Detroit branch in 1923 to service the burgeoning auto industry and spin-off business growth. In 1984, Wolf closed a combination manufacturing/administrative facility in Detroit and moved the offices to Oakland County and the plant to Indiana.

The company always has been profitable, Mahler said, but he declined to reveal details other than peg annual sales at about $10 million.

"We produce 2½-3 million envelopes a day," he said. "We die cut, we do typesetting, make plates. We have a printing operation. We put the window in and glue on the back."

Major customers include Ford, NBD and Kmart.

Lawrence Tech engineers create 'The No. 1 Response' to Ford's hybrid challenge

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

You get the feeling that when the Ford Hybrid Electric Vehicle (HEV) Challenge concludes on Saturday, Doug Callahan may just collapse in a heap and not stir for a couple of days.

For the better part of six months, Callahan has been holding up on a steady diet of adrenalin and anxiety as he and his Lawrence Technological University engineering team prepared their car for this unique national intercollegiate competition.

"You'll have to forgive me if I don't make a lot of sense," said the Troy resident prior to a phone interview Thursday. "I haven't been getting much sleep."

Not much. He'd been up for 36 straight hours. But it doesn't take long to realize that Callahan, sleep or no sleep, has never felt more awake and alive.

"We started out with a blank sheet of paper and built something that we can put on the road," said Callahan, who graduated from Lawrence Tech in February and has put his own career on hold until after the HEV Challenge. "It is such a great feeling. There's really nothing like it."

Callahan, the project manager, and 48 other Lawrence Tech students under the tutelage of faculty advisers Charles Schwartz and Nick Bracik, have built "The No. 1 Response," a sporty, 3,000-pound, two-passenger commuter vehicle roughly the size of a Ford Tempo with a hybrid engine that is powered by both fuel and electricity.

"It has a fast-back rear, similar to a bubble-butt Porche and the hood looks a little like a Thunderbird," Callahan said.

Best of all worlds

But it's the engine that makes The No. 1 Response one of the favorites in the "Ground-up" Class of the HEV competition, which features 11 other schools including Michigan State and Cal Poly Tech that built cars from scratch.

"Our scenario is, what if they turn Los Angeles into a zero emissions zone and you live in the suburbs?" Callahan said. "We've designed a system where you could use your gas motor when you are driving outside the city, then once you get into the city, you can flip a switch and drive on electricity."

The Response engine actually operates in three modes: A regular alternate power internal combustion mode, an electric mode and a hybrid mode that allows the electrical batteries to regenerate while driving in the alternate power mode.

"Our goal was to build a vehicle that would be acceptable in today's market," Callahan said. "One that operates no differently than an automatic vehicle. We feel real good about it, real good."

Callahan estimates the base price to build The Response is around $10,000, but with other necessary production costs, Callahan guesses the car would sell on the market for about $25,000.

Glimpsing the future

Callahan and his 10-person Lawrence Tech team — which is a veritable Observer & Eccentric All-Area engineering team (see the line-up) — took The Response into competition Monday at the Ford Research Engineering facility in Dearborn. The cars will be put through a series of laboratory and over-the-road tests judging emissions, fuel efficiency, vehicle range, acceleration, driveability, design, cost, oral and written presentations.

"This competition is an important opportunity to strengthen relations between the automotive industry and learning institutions," said Dr. John P. McTague, Ford's vice president for technical affairs. "We want to challenge college students to think ahead to the future of automotive engineering."

The challenge will offer another glimpse into the future of road travel: Detroit Edison "Park and Charge" battery charging stations.

"This presents a unique and important opportunity to test how well the charging stations will perform in the future when they become integral parts of the infrastructure needed to accomodate drivers of electric vehicles," John Olson, Edison's electric vehicle program manager said.

Edison will provide 30 stations.

Passing through Livonia

The main event of the competition, the range event, takes place Friday. The 100-mile event will test the cars' zero emissions and hybrid driving modes.

All the cars — the 12 ground-up cars and another 18 converted Ford Escorts featuring one from Wayne State — will caravan along a route from Dearborn to Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn. The caravan will proceed on Hines Drive through Dearborn Heights, Westland, Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Ann Arbor, Saline and Clinton.

It should pass through Livonia along Hines Drive and Plymouth Road between 10:15 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. Friday, stopping briefly at the Ford Transmission and Chassis Division on Plymouth Road in Livonia.

Over $75,000 in awards will be doled out to winners in various categories, but that's not the motivating force for Callahan.

"Just to finish a project like this and have it succeed is what it's all about," he said. "It's an amazing feeling."

Almost as good as a full night's rest; but Callahan wouldn't know about that, yet.

Twenty-three employees — sales, billing and support staff — work out of Birmingham, about 70 in Angola, Ind.

Mahler, aware of the potential affect of technology on the envelope business, isn't pushing any panic buttons.

"Mail is still a significant part of most businesses' business," he said. "There's more home buying, catalog buying, more communication to the individual at home. That means sending correspondences.

"Using Visa or credit cards means more envelopes to confirm billing. Direct mail is still a strong means of getting a communication to somebody.

"We still have to keep files for medical records," Mahler added. Then there's envelopes for shipping parts in various manufacturing processes.

But beyond that, Mahler figures that Wolf supplies more than envelopes to its customers.

"What we try to figure out is what they're trying to accomplish," he said. "Some might be looking at reducing inventory levels, close a warehouse, someone to distribute envelopes to all branch offices.

"Sooner or later, you can't get envelopes any cheaper than costs," Mahler said. "Then we focus on the service aspect. Design of the envelope. Maybe we can figure out ways to save paper, reduce costs."

Thomas J. Hector, who recently joined Wolf as general sales manager from the financial services industry, picked up on that theme.

"He and I agree, based on my sales experience, that we can't operate on price alone," Hector said. "Our thrust is to elevate the company to a higher level in terms of quality of production, delivery and a consultative approach with the customer.

"If you look at the volume the post office is processing, that's not decreasing. Fax and electronic measures in a lot of ways are supplemental to what envelopes can provide," Hector said.

"People are confirming faxs with a follow-up letter in the mail," said Ken Christian, vice president of manufacturing. "Not everyone has Prodigy in a computer. We get bank statements. You need envelopes for floppy discs information is put on. We aren't a paperless society yet."

"One good thing about this industry," Mahler said. "It has slow times like anyone else, but when things get bad, envelopes are needed on a daily basis. It's less cyclical than the auto business.

"We're trying to grow our business through geographic expansion," Mahler said. "We're servicing Indiana and Illinois already. Certainly, there's opportunity there."

Chrysler Corporation announced today that Crestwood Dodge has been recognized as a 1993 Five-Star Service Quality dealership.

Located at 32850 Ford Road, in Garden City, this is the fifth time the dealership has achieved this important recognition.

To earn this high honor, Crestwood Dodge was required to consistently obtain superior customer satisfaction ratings, as well as meet Chrysler Corporation's highest standards for facilities management, equipment, and service personnel training.

Durr Environmental Systems Division, Durr Industries, Inc. in Plymouth, has developed a recuperative thermal oxidizer that offers a custom integrated design that is both compact and rugged.

It is designed and engineered for destruction of VOC from industrial process air emissions.

System design incorporates a diermal combustion chamber, heat exchanger and burner into a single compact package. Because these three elements are integrated into a single, preinsulated unit, erection and start-up time are minimized.

The Cruz Clinic in Livonia, Michigan has achieved accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of HealthCare organizations.

Formed in 1951, the Joint commission is dedicated to improving the quality of the nation's health care through voluntary accreditation. The Joint Commission onsite survey of Cruz Clinic occurred in February, 1993.

Freudenberg-NOK in Plymouth has created a new enterprise group within its Seal Division to speed the adoption of high-performance seal rings for automotive and industrial applications.

According to Freudenberg-NOK president and CEO Joseph C. Day, who made the announcement, seal rings can help automakers enhance quality and reduce warranty claims on critical applications such as fuel injectors and anti-lock braking systems.

Seal rings — which were pioneered in the United States by Freudenberg-NOK — are 'light years ahead' of typical automotive 0-rings in material technology, ease of installation and performance reliability in critical environments, according to Norman E. Bash, vice president and business manager for the new seal ring group.

According to Bash, automakers will turn to seal rings as they become aware of their significant potential impact on reliability, warranty costs and customer loyalty.

"Faulty 0-rings are one of the most commonly identified causes of fuel injection system failures, with the average injector failure costing an automaker at least $200 and untold goodwill with the consumer," Bash said. 'By investing just a few cents more for a seal ring, the automaker can make significant gains in reliability, total system economy and, ultimately, customer satisfaction."

In addition to fuel injection and anti-lock braking systems, other targeted applications for seal rings include automotive air conditioning compressors, steering systems and transmissions.

While an 0-ring is typically made in a very large plate mold containing hundreds or thousands of cavities, seal rings are made on small molding machines using a special compression molding technique that employs sheet as feedstock.

Cantina del Rio, located at the northeast quadrant of Seven Mile Road and Interstate 275 (19265 Victor Parkway), in Livonia will open in winter 1993-1994 announced John Ramm, area director of Cantina del Rio.

Weight Loss Shocks Scientists

Seattle – A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete food tablet would eliminate world hunger, until the study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause weight loss without dieting.

Scientists in Europe found that an ingredient in the product named Food Complex 3 actually caused people to lose weight, even though they weren't changing their eating patterns. According to a study published in the British Journal of Nutrition, scientists had speculated that the weight loss was due to a reduction in the intestinal absorption of fat grams.

The development of Food Complex 3, a project of First Lite Int'l, Inc., could not be used to fulfill its intended goal but it has been a great success for overweight people. A Miami Beach, Florida, man struggling with a weight problem for 15 years used Food Complex 3 on the recommendation of his doctor and lost 43 lbs. He said, "My cholesterol dropped 96 points and I lost 43 lbs. Now I have to buy all new clothes." In another report from Mesa, Arizona, a pharmacist lost 16 lbs. in 14 days with Food Complex 3 and never felt hungry.

Food Complex 3 is available through physicians and pharmacists without a prescription.

Food Complex 3 is not a drug and only contains natural ingredients known to be safe by the FDA. Copies of the references are available from First Lite Int'l, Inc. 3370 N. Hayden Rd., #123-157, Scottsdale, AZ 85283. Please allow $3 for shipping and for each request.

Lopez strife begs query: Is this how to run a car company?

AUTO TALK

DAN McCOSH

The strange saga of J. Ignacio Lopez, the former GM purchasing czar, took a bizarre twist a few weeks ago when GM filed criminal charges in Germany, alleging Lopez took secret documents with him when he left his GM job for a far richer post at Volkswagen.

It was no secret that Lopez' relations with GM's suppliers and a significant portion of the GM establishment made Ross Perot look like a Dale Carnegie graduate by comparison.

Still, the allegations that he was last seen exiting the GM building with cartons of top-secret GM documents seemed a bit much. Lopez apparently thinks so too, and responded by filing a libel suit against GM, while vehemently denying the charge.

Whether or not those cardboard boxes contained the alleged GM secrets or merely a couple of old bowling trophies, the brickbats being tossed at Lopez have something more than symbolic overtones.

Lopez was, after all, for a short time the symbol of GM's promised renaissance, the guy who was going to turn the battleship around (as former GM Chairman Roger Smith used to say), and do it overnight.

■ The Lopez saga now seems headed for German courts, guaranteeing a spectacle that will make two of the largest auto organizations in the world look pretty silly.

Actually, what Roger Smith said was that you can't turn this battleship around overnight.

But I digress.

In fact, Lopez was in no position to turn GM around, overnight or otherwise, all by himself. But he was in a position to shake things up. He started by throwing out old supplier contracts and going after the lowest bidder. This is, of course, the way old-time purchasing agents used to operate back before they took courses in how the Japanese do it. In the old days, the response to getting a contract canceled was to take the purchasing agent deer hunting at your lodge up North.

Lopez apparently didn't like to hunt, so he became known as one grimly determined to get what he wanted — namely cheap parts.

This doesn't exactly seem like the kind of strategy that needs to be carted out of the GM building in the dead of night.

On the other hand, GM set a precedent when it prosecuted a clerk in its photo lab for stealing a picture of the Saturn car and selling it to Automobile magazine a couple of months before GM began paying Automobile magazine to run ads for Saturn which included the same picture.

The Lopez saga now seems headed for German courts, guaranteeing a spectacle that will make two of the largest auto organizations in the world look pretty silly. Already, a half dozen or so former GM executives have followed Lopez from Bloomfield Hills to Wolfsburg, a move that may yet be revealed as GM's own version of a Trojan horse. Certain GM executives have been forced to sign contracts that say they won't begin packing cardboard boxes of their own. Inevitably, this hurt the feelings of the executives that weren't asked to promise they won't leave.

One could ask if this is anyway to run an auto company. Then again, it seems like it was only yesterday that wearing your watch on your right wrist — Lopez notion of signifying that the times were changing — seemed like a pretty good idea.

Slow Drains?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again!

The secret? Clean drains don't run slowly. The "slows", or periodic clogs, are signals that a thick layer of "gook" is choking your pipes. Just like the "ring" that sticks to the side walls of your bathtub, this gook sticks to the inner side walls of your pipes.

Old-fashioned drain openers cannot remove this build up. They run along the bottom of your pipes. Even a small tunnel in the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind!

Now you can make your pipes run like new with Plumb Clean®. Not a drain opener, it's an advanced plumbing cleaner. Its revolutionary one-of-a-kind formula attaches and penetrates into the waste. Then, in just one to three weeks, it liquifies years of build up that drain openers can't even reach. Cleans from sink to sewer, not just the trap. Plumb Clean® is so effective it is money-back guaranteed!

SAVE MONEY. Because drain openers can't reach the gook on the sides of your pipes you have two choices. Call a plumber and spend $60-$120, or save money and use Plumb Clean®.

Now don't be fooled by look-alikes. Their label has safety cautions instead of a guarantee. And since they aren't as strong, their directions have you use twice as much. So, if your drains have the "slows", get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean® today!

Most people think that they will go to heaven. But is this confidence based on God's Word, the Bible? Jesus said, "Except a man be born again...he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:3,5). No one can go to heaven without being born again. As Jesus said, "Ye MUST be born again" (John 3:7). If you are seeking the truth of God, come worship with us and learn what the Bible teaches about being born again.

Singles find friendship at church

BY ARLENE FUNKE
SPECIAL WRITER

When Nita Dorsey sees an emotionally fragile, newly divorced person, she empathizes.

Dorsey, of Westland, has survived the pain she felt when her own 25-year marriage broke up. Today, she enjoys the support of her friends at Bethany, a support group for divorced and widowed Catholics and non-Catholics.

"You look at these people and know what they are feeling," said Dorsey, a secretary.

Paul Clough also found a fresh start after being fired from his job as a teacher in a Christian school because he got a divorce.

"There is life after divorce," said Clough, 43, of Plymouth.

Today, Clough is remarried. Following that earlier unhappy period, Clough became an ordained minister and now serves with the huge Single Point Ministries at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

"We are a place of healing and health and hope," Clough said.

Bethany and Single Point are two of several local singles groups sponsored by, or affiliated with, churches. Most, however, are nondenominational and attract people from all backgrounds.

Some groups provide counseling and grief recovery. Others are strictly social. Many are combinations of both. Fees, if any, are nominal.

Present and future

"We don't want to hash over divorce or death," said Ann Anderson, president of Voyagers Singles, which meets at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia. "We're interested in the present and future."

Voyagers, geared to people 45 and older, sponsors speakers on topics ranging from astrology to taxes, nutrition and real estate. Members bowl, play cards and go to the theater.

"It's the sociability and companionship," said Anderson, a Livonia widow in her 70s. "You meet a lot of nice people."

The 21 PLUS group is part of Single Place Ministries, which meets at First Presbyterian Church of Northville. It caters to singles in their 20s.

Bethany, a Catholic-affiliated ministry, also has chapters which meet at St. Robert Bellarmine Church in Redford and at St. Gerald's in Farmington.

"You don't have to be Catholic, separated or divorced," Dorsey said. "You do have to be single."

According to Dorsey, dating issues loom large for many divorced or separated Catholics.

Many feel anxiety and lose confidence. Many question their faith. Some fear disapproval. Others experience economic repercussions from divorce.

Dorsey recalled the woman who came three times before summoning the courage to walk into the group.

"Sometimes we have small support groups within Bethany for the newly hurt," Dorsey said. "It has helped many people. It's an excellent alternative to the bar scene."

Whole and good

Singles must learn to consider themselves as whole and good "instead of seeing themselves through other people," Clough said.

Dorothy King, now in her early 60s, had been married for 36 years prior to her divorce seven years ago. She felt isolated because most of her friends had been acquaintances through her husband's workplace.

King enrolled in a divorce recovery workshop at Single Point Ministries. She signed up for activities there and even began attending church again.

"I thought it was impossible to get myself together," said King, formerly of Garden City, now of Northville. "But I did. I woke up one morning and thought, 'I'm happy.' Suddenly I realized I wasn't in those depths of despair."

Single Point, with the vast resources of Ward Presbyterian Church, has been able to offer a wide array of activities and small "niche" groups. Two out of three members are divorced, Clough said.

At Single Point, the Uniquely Single group is for never-marrieds. New Start is for widows and widowers, and Single Parents addresses the needs of that group.

"We have come to the place that our size allows providing a variety of subgroups," Clough said. 'We're building friendships, fighting loneliness and organizing a social life."

In divorce recovery, people learn how to rebuild their lives. They are cautioned against rebound relationships.

The organization's calendar is chock-full of workshops, retreats, Bible study, trips, softball, bowling and outings of all types. Single Point members also do community outreach and charity work. Some 150 volunteers organize programs for the thousands of people who take part in Single Point activities.

Finding others

Clough became affiliated with Single Point after attending a divorce recovery workshop. He became active in the outings and later met and fell in love with a widow with two children. They married in 1988.

Clough's wife Cathy is director of bereavement at an Ann Arbor hospice. Their blended family includes four teenagers.

Clough, ordained in 1991, serves as minister to singles at Ward. He teaches, counsels and officiates at weddings of Single Point members.

"When I say I understand how people feel, I have experienced it," Clough said.

Keeping a singles group going can be challenging, said Anderson, who has been with Voyagers for several years. If too few people participate, the group runs out of steam.

Thriving groups can be sabotaged by excessively talkative people who drive away prospective members, said a divorced Redford woman who has given up on singles groups. Pushy people who try to dominate also are a turnoff, she added.

Some people are strictly husband-hunting or wife-seeking. A Livonia widow recalled feeling uneasy at a singles meeting; she felt people were desperately interested in pairing off.

But the benefits outweigh the challenges, according to Anderson.

'I feel it's worthwhile,' she said.

And, yes, many people find new partners. For example, in late April, Dorsey and several other Bethany folks took a trip to Las Vegas to help celebrate the marriage of two of its members.

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. ROBERT SCHADEN

Most moral arguments are not nearly so simple as folks deeply entrenched on either side would like to admit. Not only is there often more than one issue at stake, more than one reality to be considered, the emotional component introduced by many of the parties involved in the debate has a way of hiding the forest among the tress.

It is no secret that the abortion debate since Roe vs. Wade has generated far more rhetoric and emotion, far more heat than light. The heat has been generated by sincere people on both sides of the spectrum.

Despite the bias from which that heat is generated, and in this case both sides seem to have collectively contributed their share, there comes a time in any turmoil for everyone to put down their rhetorical weapons and reflect on just where we have come from and where we might be headed. Screaming at each other never has served well to arrive at truth, despite the sincerity of the screamers.

So where have we come from? We once spoke of pregnant women as being with chlid, as carrying a baby. Political correctness has taught us to speak of a fetus in the uterus. A fetus is much easier to take lightly, since it does not convey the same humanness as a child or a baby.

At the same time, the term uterus doesn't carry with it the same notion of protective place that the dictionary and common parlance assigns to the notion of womb. So we have come to a new way of speaking.

One wonders as to whether the vocabulary has given rise to the thought or whether the thought necessitated the vocabulary. In either case, dehumanization of vocabulary does open doors that were not even there before. So we have come to a new way of thinking and a new way of speaking. The two, of course, do go together.

We have also come from a time in which women were undeniably subjugated to men, a time in which our mothers, sisters, daughters and wives were treated in too many instances as things. That was not good, nor has the situation been totally fixed. Again one would have to wonder. One might wonder, however, whether the road from Roe vs. Wade to the front door of the Freedom of Choice Act has done all that much to fix this particular problem.

So where are we headed? The proposed FOCA bill, the one that the president has promised to sign, if it gets through Congress, does offer a hint of an answer, if we are willing to look at its implications. The backers of the bill insist that it is doing nothing other than codifying Roe, which would mean that it is not taking us anywhere other than where we have been.

However, such a claim does not seem to square with the fact that the bill will allow abortion far into the third trimester. At the National Abortion Federation meeting last September, Dr. Martin Haskill detailed the procedure for late second- and third-trimester abortions. The reasons for the procedure are to protect the health of the woman, which is open to include emotional or mental pain, short term or long term.

Yes, we have come a long way, but are we headed where we really want to be? Or is it possible that we may already be there, like it or not? At what point does a moral and sincere society become mature enough to admit that it has made some wrong choices regardless of sincerity and at what point do they become willing to look at all the ramifications and turn around where they must?

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with Newman House on the campus of Schoolcraft College in Livonia. If you have a question or comment, call him at 953-2047, mail box number 1876, on a Touch-Tone phone.

VICTORIA DIAZ

Canton author paces fiction writing contest

Wanda Freeman has been named winner of the 1993 fiction writing competition at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. The Canton author won the contest with a short story titled, "Orphan Child."

The story — about a young girl who sets out to find a father she never had — is set near Freeman's native New Orleans. About 15 pages long, she says it took several years to complete.

(If you're not a writer, that may surprise you. If you are a writer — especially a writer of short fiction — you may not be surprised at all. Not for nothing is short fiction considered today one of the most difficult literary forms in which to work.)

"Writing it involved many fits and starts," says Freeman, a 1976 graduate of the University of New Orleans.

"If I remember correctly, I think it started with one image — an image of a little girl, alone, running down a sidewalk to a store to look for her daddy in some little town in Louisiana. I definitely have to have a character that's interesting to me to start a story. And a sense of place is very strong with me, too."

The story had its inception nearly 10 years ago, she remembers. Through the years — one version or another of the story in tow — she ran the gamut of writing workshops, took several writing classes, developed a few more stories and slowly gathered a collection of critiques.

Some of the criticism scared her to death, she says, because many workshop participants and fellow writing students suggested she turn "Orphan Child" into a novel.

"I always got very scared as soon as I thought I might be writing a novel! I had never written anything that long and I was just overwhelmed by the whole idea," she says.

"As time passed, I'd put the story on a back burner, pick it up now and then, take a look at it, do a little something to it, then put it back."

Studied creative writing

This fall, wanting to hone her fiction writing skills a little further and also hoping to make closer connections with area writers, she signed up for a creative writing class at Schoolcraft College. The time seemed right somehow.

"Orphan Child" went along.

After reading part of it one day, instructor Kathy Leo asked to see the rest. When she'd finished reading, she didn't suggest to Freeman that she turn it into a novel. Instead, she encouraged her to enter it in the Schoolcraft fiction competition.

"At first, I was very much on the fence about entering the contest," recalls Freeman. "I wasn't sure the story was ready."

But after a few more revisions, and almost daily reminders from Leo that she should "just do it," she finally made the decision. She entered the story on the last day of the contest.

Publication of the story in the November 1993 issue of Schoolcraft's literary magazine, The MacGuffin, will mark the first time any of her fiction has appeared in print.

A journalism background

Freeman has been community relations coordinator for Borders Novi since 1988. Her writing background has been in journalism and public relations.

Early in her career, she worked as a TV critic at The Times-Picayune in New Orleans. She has also written for the music industry magazine, Billboard, and contributed articles to Michigan Woman and the Detroit Free Press.

Mary Brecht Stephenson show juror

Plymouth watercolorist Toni Stevens won the first-place award in Palette and Brush Club's "Point of View" spring art exhibition, continuing to June 17 in Henry Ford Centennial Library, 16301 Michigan, Dearborn.

"The works I selected spoke to me. Some statements are more complete and developed than others, reflecting the development of the artists," said Mary Brecht Stephenson, who jurored the show.

"Each work reflects to a greater or lesser degree a level of uniqueness of idea or use of media, authenticity, mastery of medium or elements of art — and finally historical context."

The former assistant curator for 20th-century art at Detroit Institute of Arts now directs Sisson Gallery at Henry Ford Community College and curates its permanent collection.

This is the second consecutive spring show in which Stevens has won the first-place Matie Robson award. In May 1992, she took the honor at Palette and Brush Club's exhibition in the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association gallery.

The Robson award is a traveling plaque engraved each spring with the first-place winner's name. It was donated to the club in 1976 by Robson,

Sweeping trend

Country look in home decor going West

By JOAN BORAM
SPECIAL WRITER

The "country" look in interior design has evolved yet again. This latest metamorphosis, called "American Country West," has moved away from ditsy-country and pared-down country toward a look that's a comfortable blend of classic and eclectic.

During a seminar at Scott Shuptrine in Troy, Linda Mariano, editorial marketing manager for Country Home magazine, gave her enthusiastic audience a brief history of the country look, the reasons for its universal popularity, and the refinements that define Western Country.

"Country has been so popular because it's the most eclectic of interior looks," Mariano said.

"It's a trend that has swept across the United States, beloved by homeowners and apartment dwellers alike, who respond to its warmth and comfort. Country provides an escape from our high-tech world, giving a sense of security and roots, making our home a source of psychic enrichment.

"Country has constantly changed over the past few years. Six or seven years ago, country was often either a primitive, cluttered look or a restrained New England ambience, emphasizing historical correctness.

"About 1988, country came into its own: It became softer, prettier, more romantic. Rooms now have fewer pieces, but those pieces tend to be bigger. Sofas can be soft and plump, providing greater comfort. There's even a touch of Victoriana — wicker and rattan are very much a part of today's country look. And twig furniture — once reserved for country cottages — compliments the new lighter primitive look."

■ 'Country provides an escape from our high-tech world, giving a sense of security and roots, making our home a source of psychic enrichment.'

Linda Mariano
Country Home magazine

The Western regional theme isn't, as you might expect, big on split railings, barbed wire and branding irons. Rather, it takes into account the fact that most Western settlers migrated from the Eastern or near Midwestern areas of the United States, and that, generally, their ultimate roots were European.

So, the Western look is a charming melange of English countryside, French provincial, Scandinavian, East European, Mediterranean, American Indian, Spanish and Mexican.

Typically, the pioneers took one favorite piece of furniture along with them on their trek West. It may have been a Jacobean chest or a Queen Anne tester bed that, after the long, rigorous journey, needed repair.

The materials available were Mexican, American Indian or Spanish, and so the Jacobean chest acquired conch hardware, and the Queen Anne tester bed was braced with adobe.

This wonderful contradiction between pure classic and Western cultures has been captured in the American Country West furniture collection, presented by Lexington Furniture Industries, whose designers worked alongside Mary Emmerling, the doyenne of the country look.

Many of the pieces are actual reproductions of historical pieces in private hands, while others were inspired by similar pieces. The collection is exclusive to Scott Shuptrine in this area.

The heritage behind these pieces is beyond the geographical West. It actually extends from New England to Tennessee to Oregon. Despite the regional connotation of its name, American Country West is really the quintessential American look.

"There are dozens of country looks, but all of them have certain characteristics in common: They're all warm and comfortable and inviting. These are not museum rooms — red velvet ropes have no place here. They're unpretentious, not formal or fancy. Antiques, or quality reproductions, are the hallmark of country style, personalized with handcrafted accessories.

"There's a respect for craftsmanship, displayed in pottery, folk art and quilts. You can never have too many accessories. What you have is unique to you, and reflects your taste and style. Start with what you have. Gather everything together — don't dilute a collection by scattering pieces in different rooms."

In closing, Mariano suggested that every room should have a little animal (leather, a horn chandelier); a little vegetable (live plants, wood), and a little mineral (iron, glass).

Country look: The "American Country West" look in interior design, exemplified by this sofa, combines the classic and eclectic. It's comfortable and unpretentious, featuring a display of accessories.

Learn fine art of creating in miniature

Miniature flowers and plants, as well as interior and exterior decoration for dollhouses, are among the subjects for summer classes beginning Saturday, June 12, at Miniature Makers' Workshop. Instructors include Judy Shellhaas of Plymouth.

Classes will continue through Sept. 25 at the Workshop, 4515 N. Woodward in Royal Oak. For information about classes in the art of miniature making, call 549-0633.

The schedule will include three afternoon classes for children, said Criss Goad, owner of Miniature Makers' Workshop. The recent show at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, "Masterpieces in Miniature II," had stimulated new enthusiasm for creating tiny replicas on the standardized scale of one inch to the actual foot, she said.

Emphasis on flowers begins with a class on dried flower arrangements July 8, to be taught by Betsie Robinson of Birmingham. She will also conduct summer classes on electrical wiring and dollhouse exteriors and interiors, as well as a lighted Christmas tree.

Among other flower classes is a July 12 session on African violets, and a July 19 session on geraniums and hyacinths, taught by Linda Raih of Rochester Hills.

Among other instructors is Nancy Van Camp of Pontiac, whose subjects will include "Let's Bake a Pie" Aug. 5. Walter Schutter of Sterling Heights will teach students the art of making a Queen Anne game table Aug. 9.

Judy Shellhaas of Plymouth will conduct a six-Saturday course beginning June 26 on the carving of an ornate parlor fireplace. Agnes Miller of Troy will teach the assembling, wigging and dressing of a Victorian lady doll Aug. 21.

Raih will also teach two classes for children: paper flowers July 12 and mixed fruit July 19. A third class for children July 24, on creating a wicker plant stand, will be instructed by Sue Jaques of Farmington Hills.

Fees vary according to class length and materials required. Registration is requested one week in advance of each class.

Enrollees may bring their projects and join in free, open workshops every Friday.

Help celebrate Michigan's artistry

All Michigan artists 18 and older are eligible for the seventh annual Celebrate Michigan Artists exhibition at the Paint Creek Center for the Arts, Aug. 13 to Sept. 24.

Preliminary selection for Celebrate Michigan Artists will be done by 35mm slides. The deadline for slide entries is Friday, June 25.

For an entry form for this year's competition, artists should write to the Paint Creek Center for the Arts, 407 Pine, Rochester 48307, or call 651-4110 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

Two- and three-dimensional works in all media, not exceeding 60 inches in any direction, are eligible. Artwork must have been completed within the past two years and not previously exhibited at the PCCA.

The first-place award is $1,000; second, $500; third, $250. Four runners-up will receive honorable mention prizes of $50 each.

The first-place entry will be reproduced as a fine art poster. Proceeds from poster sales benefit the non-profit Paint Creek Art Center.

This year's competition will be juried by George N'Namdi, owner of the G.R. N'Namdi Gallery in Birmingham. Over the past decade, the gallery has showcased the work of many nationally and internationally recognized artists.

Artistic honors: This pensive watercolor portrait of a Venezuelan model by Toni Stevens of Plymouth took first place in the Palette and Brush Club's spring art exhibition in Dearborn.

a past president (1939-1941) and long-time member.

In October 1992, Stevens placed first in the club's fall exhibit at Livonia City Hall. She placed first three times in a row at club exhibits.

"Model with Venezuelan Rug," Stevens' winning watercolor in Dearborn, focuses on a dark-haired, rotund female figure dressed in white.

"This painting is beautifully done, with wonderful composition and handling of the media. (It has) interesting use of color, creating a beautiful face and mood," Stephenson said.

Stevens earned a bachelor's of fine art degree from Syracuse University and a teaching certificate in art and a master's degree in education from Wayne State University. She returned to painting after retiring in 1989 from teaching art and general education in Wayne-Westland Community Schools and Detroit Public Schools for a total of 28 years.

As an educator, Stevens knows the importance of growth. She has studied with Edee Joppich, Sondra Freckleton, Marie Larson, Audrey DiMarco, Electra Stamelos and Stephenson. She studied portraiture last fall with Stephenson at the BBAA. Stevens painted her winning portrait in a class at the BBAA.

"I can find models who can pose long enough for me — 12 to 18 hours — only in a classroom, for it takes me countless hours to complete a painting," Stevens said.

"Careful drawing is important to me and I need to see the model firsthand to understand his or her unique physical characteristics and personality. When I saw this set up, I was delighted with the way the patterned rug, which hung in the background, set off the white gown of the model. I tried to zero in on it in my composition."

Second place in Dearborn exhibit went to Marcia Tournay of Troy for "Francis," a watercolor. Barbara Denomme of West Bloomfield took third for "April to May," a colored pencil.

The Eva Briggs Award went to Prudence Bernstein of West Bloomfield for "Pulsating," an acrylic. Ruth Neuman of Birmingham won the Frances White Award for "Patricia," an oil.

Honorable mentions were awarded to Mary Ehlert of Livonia for a watercolor, Dorothy Foley of Bloomfield Hills for a pastel and Betty Sylvester of Birmingham for an oil.

Special mentions went to Norma Goldsmith of Highland for a watercolor monotype, Colleen Hilzinger of Royal Oak for two watercolors, Sharon Stern of West Bloomfield for two watercolors and Toni Stevens for a watercolor.

Founded in 1935, the Palette and Brush Club consists of 125 members from the Detroit area. Prospective members have their works juried before being admitted to the club. Meetings are held monthly, September through May.

Show hours at the library are 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Earthly delight

Gala to open garden spectacular

BY MARTY FIGLEY
STAFF WRITER

■ In addition to the 28 permanent gardens surrounding Meadow Brook Hall and the Meadow Brook Music Festival, seven special gardens will inspire and delight all who attend.

There is something for everyone at the second annual Meadow Brook Hall Landscape and Garden Show, Friday-Sunday, June 11-13, at Oakland University off Adams in Rochester Hills.

Because of the successful show last year, the event has been extended to three days. Hours are noon to 8 p.m. June 11, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. June 12-13.

Advance tickets, available through Ticketmaster, are $6 for adults. Admission at the gate is $7 for adults, $3 for children younger than 12, free for children younger than 3. Group rates are available through the MDLA office. Call 646-4992.

A preview gala will take place Thursday, June 10, beginning at 6 p.m. with garden tours and a wine reception, followed by dinner and music. This gala is open to the public by advance ticket reservation only. Cost is $37.50 per person. Call 646-4992 for reservations.

The show is co-sponsored by the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association, Olympia Arenas Inc. and OU's Meadow Brook Festival and Meadow Brook Hall.

In addition to the 28 permanent gardens surrounding Meadow Brook Hall and the Meadow Brook Music Festival, seven special gardens will inspire all who attend.

A miniature railroad garden containing trains that actually run on tracks has been planned by the Lakeshore Garden Railway Club. This unusual hobby, popular in Europe for many years, is now gaining momentum in this country. The trains will run on a 25-by-80-foot track through forests of fern and manmade mountains, over bridges and along waterways. Both children and adults will be entranced by this garden.

The Maze Garden, the size of two tennis courts, has been planted with evergreens that visitors will want to explore. The Teddy Bear Picnic at Knole Cottage, a mini-version of the mansion, will show that bears can have great fun at a tea party and playing in the sandbox near the vegetable garden.

The forecourt of Meadow Brook Hall will be graced with large bird topiaries, one with a wing span of 9 feet. A serene water garden will also be featured there.

Carpet bedding will surround the hall's signature statuary, Pegasus Fountain. This display has been designed by Jim Justis, floriculture supervisor of the Detroit Recreation Department.

The Kitchen Garden has been planted in a 16-by-16-foot area near the kitchen entrance. Many herbs and vegetables have been planted around a bench where visitors can sit and enjoy the fragrance and charm of these plants.

The public may participate in the Container Garden Display and Contest, sponsored by the Oakland Press, as area professionals demonstrate container gardens such as trough, bonsai, water, topiary and window box.

Prizes will be awarded in various categories. Call Meadow Brook horticulturist Kim Zelinski at 370-3140 for an application. Contestants are encouraged to submit their best container garden so there will be many examples of this type of gardening.

Each day speakers will share their expertise on particular garden subjects.

They include Jim Wilson, author, columnist and co-host of public TV's "Victory Garden"; Frederick McGourty, horticulturist, designer and author of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden handbook series; and Don Juchartz, horticulturist, former director of Wayne County Cooperative Extension and WJR Radio's "The Garden Doctor."

Also, Bob Schutzki, professor of ornamental landscape at Michigan State University and curator of the Clancy Lewis Arboretum; George Hartley, Detroit Rose Society past president and author of numerous rose articles; Scott Bates, water garden specialist, co-owner of Grass Roots Nursery in New Boston; and G. Dean Mooney of the American Institute of Floral Designers and Twiggs & Blossom's Ltd., Rochester.

Visitors will find many other activities from which to choose.

Animal control expert Dale Elshoff will explain how to control moles and other garden pests.

Members of the South Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority will be on hand to take the guesswork out of recycling garden refuse and to explain the appropriate use of mulch.

Members of Global Releaf will explain how to select disease-resistant trees for a particular site.

Keith Alexander, owner of Alexander Nursery in Mount Clemens, will demonstrate the art of planting container gardens.

Other highlights of this three-day event include an outdoor market place where gardening-related products, including books, may be bought. Lawn and garden equipment will be displayed.

Guided tours of the landscape displays and nature trails will be conducted by the Arborist Association. Tours of Meadow Brook Hall and Knole Cottage will be available for an additional fee. Food and beverages will be available.

Spring Elegance is Sunday

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

The Friends of Nankin Mills, in conjunction with Wayne County Parks Division, will present the fifth annual Spring Elegance juried fine art show and country fair Sunday, June 6, at the Civil War-era mill, 33175 Ann Arbor Trail and Edward Hines Drive, Westland.

Twenty crafters and fine artists will exhibit their wares noon to 5 p.m. at the annual benefit for the white clapboard mill, built in 1863 and now home to Wayne County Parks.

"We have two purposes for the art show and country fair: to raise money for us to continue restoration of the building and to get people reacquainted with the mill," said Kathy Myers, event co- chairwoman.

"We want for people who have lived here to remember their heritage and to see how the community started, to see how the city started."

Arts and crafts, including oil painting, soft sculpture, wood, stone jewelry, loom woven rugs, miniatures and collectibles, will be judged by Saundra Weed of Westland, an art instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

"We're looking forward to the new artists and crafters this year, plus the face painters are returning for the children," said Denise Mehelich, Friends president and event co-chairwoman.

"In general, the level of excitement is very high because of the groundbreaking being so close at hand."

Plans call for Nankin Mills to be restored to 1930s vintage, when Henry Ford I used it to manufacture stencils for marking car parts. Ford-era machinery will be worked into exhibits interpreting the history of the building.

To add flavor to Spring Elegance, reproductions of clothing from the 1800s sewn by Myers will be displayed. Myers is the granddaughter of Floyd Bassett, who sold Ford the mill in 1918. Ford had visited the gristmill as a youngster.

Other activities will include square dancing, round dancing and Irish step dancing — weather permitting.

To close the special evening, a country and western concert takes place on the front porch of the mill beginning at 6 p.m. The music is sponsored by the Westland Cultural Society.

In 1991, the county unveiled plans to restore and double the size of the three-story mill and make it assessable to the disabled. Grants will cover much of the $1.5 million cost.

The new wing will house the parks staff and a multimedia community room. The original mill again will house a staffed nature center.

Since teaming up in 1988, Wayne County Parks and Friends of Nankin Mills have restored the exterior of the original mill and an 1840s Greek Revival tenant house.

The mill was one of 20 water-driven country industries run by Ford between 1919 and 1944 as part of an ambitious plan to offer farmers winter work and help preserve the rural way of life.

In 1948 Ford's widow, Clara, donated Nankin Mills to the county.

ward Hines Drive. (See related story, 5D).

Hicks, who has been weaving rugs for about 10 years, spends four to five hours a day producing his nearly indestructible product. He will travel to a dozen outdoor shows this year.

The Westland weaver said his rugs "are made from the toes of tube socks. When they sewed the tube sock together, they cut off the excess, which gives you a loop. The loops are put together like a string of rubber bands and then woven.

"You just can't wear them out," he said. "They're like the old-fashioned rag rugs. They're all machine washable and reversible so you can get both sides dirty before you wash them."

In the spare bedroom of the house shared with Vera, his wife of 43 years, a barefooted Hicks sits working on a floor loom made by ORCO (Oriental Rug Co.).

He passes the shuttle back and forth past 160 strings of warp, weaving one tight row at a time on the 1903 loom that encompasses nearly the entire room.

A stack of loaded shuttles sit on a table in the corner already looped and filled by Vera.

Hicks first became interested in weaving when two friends down in Florida coaxed him to sit down at a floor loom and give it a try.

"It's relaxing. Once you retire, you have to do something," said Hicks, shrugging his shoulders.

He retired from United Airlines after 30 years. "It was one of those things where a hobby turned into a business."

A jolly laugh, full beard and rotund silhouette make this rug weaver memorable. His reputation for quality is why people who follow arts and craft shows have come to ask for the "Hillbilly Weaver" by name.

At shows, he dresses the part, clad in bib overalls with red bandana hanging from his back pocket. When asked why he calls himself the "Hillbilly Weaver," Hicks replied in a playfully exaggerated drawl: "Because I come from West Virginia originally."

Selling the rugs has become a family affair, with daughter Cindy and her two daughters helping him at the shows.

Hicks' rugs, with a knobby look and a plush texture, are available in a variety of pastel colors. The loom-woven rugs range in price from $10 for an 18- by 30-inch rug to $25 for a rug two by six feet. Larger sizes are available for $3 a square foot.

Spring Elegance at Nankin Mills is a first for Hicks, who says he looks forward to its historic atmosphere. "I think you should restore the past to keep it for the future," he said.

Don't let 'extra' costs spoil first home buy

By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

The down payment and monthly mortgage payments are only two cash elements involved in purchasing a house.

First-time buyers should anticipate coming up with several thousand dollars from the time they make an offer to actually moving in.

"Many people don't account for the little extras and end up disillusioned with a home purchase," said Doug Stranahan, divisional president of Century 21 Great Lakes.

"It is important to sit down with your real estate agent and make a list of all the costs you anticipate. Your agent can help you ensure that you aren't forgetting anything."

Those extras include earnest money, mortgage application fee, points, inspection, mortgage insurance, homeowners insurance, real estate taxes, utility hook-ups and legal fees.

Earnest money is included with a purchase offer to show sincerity of purpose. Typically, this is the first check written in the process and is a percentage of the offering price.

"Three percent is a general rule of thumb, but that doesn't mean it has to be that," said Michelle Michael, an agent with Re/Max Executive in Farmington Hills. "I've seen them from $500 to 5 percent."

A 3-percent earnest deposit with a $60,000 offer is $1,800. The money is set aside and applied to the purchase at closing.

"If you follow the parameters set by the seller, you may receive all this money back if you decide not to buy the home," Stranahan said. "But be sure to check with the agent and seller if your money is returnable."

Figure on paying a mortgage application fee of about $300. That fee generally is non-refundable if you don't qualify for a mortgage or subsequently elect not to finance through that institution.

Comparison shop to find out exactly what other mortgage processing fees may be involved down the line.

Banks and savings and loans pass on fees they incur for credit reports, surveys and title protection, usually payable at closing.

First-time buyers should talk with a banker before beginning a house search to know exactly what they can afford, Michael said. That can usually be done without a fee and it saves time and money in the long run.

An inspection at the buyer's expense has become standard practice, especially on older houses.

"Depending on the company, inspection costs range from $125-$300," Stranahan said. "Your agent can usually recommend someone to provide this service. Request a written report from whomever you select."

Legal fees associated with buying a house can range from $300-$500, said Charlotte Wirth, an attorney with a practice in Redford.

While lawyers aren't mandatory in the process, their expertise can help structure sales to your advantage and make sure you hold clear title to property.

Involve a lawyer before you submit a purchase agreement, a binding legal contract.

Again, find out what exactly what a lawyer will do for a fee.

"I always review paper with them (clients) to make sure they understand what they're signing," Wirth said.

Points, mortgage discount fees charged by financial institutions, can be paid in cash at closing or rolled into the loan. A point is 1 percent of the amount borrowed.

If paid up front, 2 points — typical nowadays — on a $48,000 mortgage would amount to $960.

Figure on coming up with cash for the escrow account equal to one year's property taxes and one year of homeowners insurance protection. Shop for insurance rates and obtain tax information from town halls.

Then there's utility connection fees.

Michigan Bell requires $42 to initiate telephone service after a move.

Michigan Consolidated requires a deposit of $50 refundable after a year only of new customers who have no utility credit record in Michigan for the past six years.

Detroit Edison requires $5 to set up a new account for all customers. A refundable deposit ranging from $25-$100 depending on past average monthly billings at that address also is required of new customers with no utility credit record.

Don't forget moving costs. Better yet, maybe family and friends will help for free.

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I have an opportunity to buy a vacation condominium on Longboat Key, Fla. The condo managing agent says it will rent my condo on a weekly basis when I am not there, for a small fee. I vacation around the world and plan to use it no more than three weeks a year. Any comments?

Having reviewed the market conditions in that area, I would strongly suggest that you carefully review the reasonable feasibility of renting out your unit for 49 weeks of the year and the fee you will have to pay if you are successful in renting it.

The market appears soft and the rental commissions are high. Perhaps a time-share condominium that allows you access to condos around the world might better suit your needs, assuming you are very careful in selecting the right time share.

We had a kitchen fire in our condo that damaged the wallpaper. The condo association says it has no responsibility to repair it. Our insurance has lapsed. What can I do?

First, learn from the experience that you need an HO-6 or other condo owners' insurance policy. As to the problem, review your condo by-laws and get a copy of the association's insurance policy to determine the extent of coverage, if any. The association may be balking in that there is a deductible, but many times the association's insurance coverage includes wallpaper.

I am thinking about appealing my property assessment and there are a number of other co-owners in our condominium also upset. Is there anything that the association can do?

I have been in situations where the association has used legal counsel to appear and appeal the assessment at the local tax assessor's office on behalf of the members of the association as a group to streamline the process and bring common issues of concern to the attention of the assessor.

Sometimes the political and economic power of the association can help to adjust the property tax burden of the co-owners.

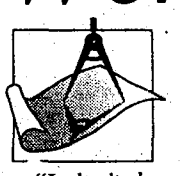
A Man's Job?

Women want hand in home design



■ Would homes be better built if women had a louder voice in the design concept? The trend seems to be be that more homes are being designed with a feminine touch.

"I don't know who designed my house, but I'm sure it was man."
— office chatter

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

Marjorie Nanian Mugerian of Farmington Hills has one bit of advice for all builders who are about to start on a new project — consult a woman.

Mugerian has been living in her house — a house she dearly loves — for 10 years now, but there are a few design problems that with a little more forethought could have been avoided.

"I really think men and women think differently — they approach problem solving differently," she said. "I'm not saying one way of thinking is better than the other, but I think we can benefit by incorporating the opinions of both men and women toward solving problems (in house design)."

Men have been designing houses for decades; guess who's input has been missing?

Mugerian, full-time mother and attorney, said before she was married and had children she had visions of co-equal partners running the house and caring for the children.

Then she discovered the hard truth about family life. "I found out that despite all my ideolology, when you get married and have children, ideology and reality clash."

Silverton wins People's Choice at Homearama

And the People's Choice is . . . the Silverton, a neo-traditional house of 2,700 square feet built by Bridge Lake Properties of Clarkston.

That model was voted the most popular by crowds who last weekend attended Homearama, a showcase of 11 idea homes, sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"Among the reasons people cited for choosing this home were its fireplace, in the master bedroom suite, use of windows, curved staircase and general layout of the home," said Nancy Rosen, BASM spokeswoman.

The Silverton's main floor includes a great room with vaulted ceiling, library/media room, dining room, kitchen, breakfast nook, laundry and lavatory. All four bedrooms are upstairs.

A 2½ car garage connects to the laundry room.

Outstanding features of the model include:

- A leaded-glass front door leading to a vaulted ceiling foyer with curved oak staircase and ceramic tile flooring.
- A bridge overlooking the great room with vaulted ceiling and floor-to-ceiling windows.
- A curved wall at the library/media room.
- A master suite featuring a raised see-through fireplace, cathedral ceiling in bedroom and vaulted ceiling in bathroom.
- A barrel-vault roof over the front porch extending two stories high.

The model as built for Homearama would cost $259,900 to duplicate, said Anne M. Vinstra, a principal with Bridge Lake Properties.

"I think I heard for the most part a lot of comments in two areas," she said. "One was ceiling treatments. We use a lot of crown moldings, a lot of varied heights, high ceilings.

"Another comment people had were the colors I used — plum, teal and taupe," Vinstra added. "I try to keep it a classic feel, but I like to spruce it up with contemporary color."

Her response to winning the People's Choice Award? "We were overwhelmed. We thought it was wonderful."

The Alexandria, a ranch home of 2,000 square feet with three bedrooms and 2½ baths built by Matteo Homes of Rochester, placed second in the voting.

Homearama continues through June 13 in the Silver Bell Village Subdivision in Orion Township.

People's Choice: The Silverton, designed and built by Bridge Lake Properties of Clarkston, proved to be the most popular model at Homearama last weekend. The neo-traditional home features main living/entertaining spaces on the main floor and all bedrooms upstairs.

Oakland County sewerage plan saves millions in building fees

Oakland County's Water and Sewage Operations Division won an award from Michigan Qualifications-Based Selection Coalition of East Lansing last month for implementing a selection process that will ultimately lead to savings of $5 to $23 million in construction costs.

Oakland County used the QBS selection process to evaluate 12 engineering firms before retaining Chicago-based Consoer, Townsend and Associates to evaluate whether existing sewerage capacity within the Clinton-Oakland Sewage Disposal System would be adequate to the year 2020. If not, the study was to define possible new construction alternatives.

"The study involved demographic and hydraulic modeling techniques which are considered highly innovative," said James Pistilli, county chief of sewer systems. "Consoer, Townsend and Associates found minor improvements and suggested new management procedures which could extend the life of the district's present facilities."

If the system is not managed, the construction of over $5 million of relief sewers or over $23 million in new retention facilities would be needed to ensure adequate future capacity.

Oakland County officials called the planning, modeling and metering initiated by Consoer, Townsend & Associates a proactive means of managing wet weather flows from the 12 local communities comprising the 250 square mile sewage disposal district.

James E. Porter, manager of the county's water and sewage operations, credited the QBS selection process for fostering close working relationships with the engineers and the success of the study.

The project earned an engineering excellence honor award from the Consulting Engineers Council of Illinois as well as a national award from the American Consulting Engineers Council.

Oakland County also won a QBS award last year for the design of its new computer center.

Light it up yourself

You don't have to be an electrician to safely light up your patio or garden.

Using a low-voltage outdoor light kit, available at your hardware store or home center, you can install a series of inexpensive fixtures. All you need is a standard grounded 120-volt receptacle in which to plug the light kit transformer.

A typical low-voltage light kit consists of four to 14 or more light fixtures, low-voltage cable and a weatherproof transformer that reduces household current to a safe 12 volts.

You can bury low-voltage cable in a 2- or 3-inch deep trench or, if you prefer, you can lay it directly on the ground and cover it with mulch. However, if the area where you are laying cable needs to be mowed or is likely to be dug up for planting, you should bury it at least 12 inches.

Transformers come with manual controls, automatic timers or photoelectric eyes that turn the lights on at dusk and off at dawn. A photoelectric transformer must be mounted outdoors; other types can be installed indoors or outdoors, as long as they are in reach of a grounded receptacle.

Low-voltage fixtures usually consist of a lamp head and a fixed ground stake. The lamps can be floodlights, globes or tier lamps. You can place the fixtures along a path to light the way to the house or use them to dramatize your landscaping.

Study the area you want to light carefully and measure the layout of lights before you buy a low-voltage light kit. Then determine how many feet of cable you need and how many fixtures it will take to get the desired effect.

Most low-voltage fixtures are easy to wire and put into the ground. Read the instructions that come with the kit carefully. Most follow this general pattern:

- Lay the cable and the fixtures in the spots where you want them to go. To install a fixture, place the cable in the cable channel in the base of the light head and press firmly to hold it in place.
- Slide the closed ground stake over the cable channel, which will cause the fixture's contact points to pierce the cable.
- Spread open the legs of the ground stake, press both parts of the cable together and then fold them into one leg of the stake. Snap the legs of the stake together with cable coming out of the channels on either side of the stake.
- Dig a hole about 8 inches deep for the stake (driving it into the ground may damage it). Install the stake and fill the hole with dirt.
- Dig a trench for the cable and bury it or, if the area will not be disturbed by mowing or hoeing, cover it with mulch.
- When all the fixtures are installed, mount the transformer near a grounded receptacle. Connect the cable to the transformer's low-voltage terminals and plug the transformer's power cord into the receptacle.

Depending on the type of transformer you selected, set the timer, adjust the sensitivity of the photoelectric eye or simply flip the switch to turn on your new outdoor lights.

Old-new age: Front-projection television sets, like this 100-inch SharpVision model, are suddenly back en vogue thanks to a renewed interest in home theater entertainment.

Front-projection televisions are no longer relics of the past

(AP) — With television tubes as large as 40 inches now becoming available, TV systems which project the image might be expected to fall by the wayside. But this isn't happening, according to Video Magazine.

Due to the increased interest in home video theaters, front projection televisions particularly are coming back into the limelight. These project the television image on separately mounted movie-type screens.

Also contributing to the renewed popularity of front projection units is their increasing sophistication. Early front projection TVs were very expensive, difficult to set up and the image was fairly dim.

However, front projectors are now available which are comparable in cost to the larger direct view televisions. They also offer dazzling pictures which are distinctly reminiscent of film, making them perfect for home theaters.

Video images typically exhibit exaggerated brightness and contrast, while rear projection televisions also tend to have a sharper look.

One front projection, the Zenith PV890X with a list price of $3,999, produces a sharp picture with superior color rendition. Unlike earlier units, it has a TV tuner and a stereo sound system built in.

However, typical of front projector TVs, the picture produced by the Zenith set was not very bright and for full effect had to be viewed in a darkened room. Daytime viewing with a front projection TV requires that the room be equipped with a set of heavy drapes to block out the light.

Another consideration is that these specialized televisions should be professionally installed. However, when mounted in a coffee table or on the ceiling, the front projector TVs take up very little space, unlike the bulkier rear projection and direct view televisions.

While viewing television on a movie screen is not for everyone, anyone considering a home theater installation, should sample front projection television before making a choice.

Mugerian credited her husband with doing more work than traditional parenting roles would call for, but when it comes down to child care and household maintenance, her experience indicates what people have been saying for years — the lion's share falls on women.

Which is exactly why women should play a key role in the design of homes. Women continue to be responsible for traditional responsibilities regardless of additional work they undertake outside the home. If that's going to be true, then homes should be more conducive to a women's needs — specifically in areas of child safety, convenience and efficiency.

All is not lost, however.

Terrie Koch, president of Koch Development in Troy, said that many of those things which women hold dear — namely efficiency as it relates to how the house works — are a key reason why homes are better today.

Builders are listening

Many of the improvements made to homes in the last 30 years are a direct result of builders listening to buyers needs — and women are no longer content to sit idly by while men dicker over a house's construction, she said.

"There has been a transition," she said. Builders who wanted to stay in business couldn't continue building without regard to the needs and wants of women.

The one thing that most matters to women? Efficiency, Koch said.

"Women are concerned with function — they're concerned about how a family will live in a home," she said. "Women are (also) very time conscious."

Those things which women want in a house aren't necessarily predicated on the physical or psychological difference between men and women, Koch continued.

Many changes in homes are refinements — not necessarily changes.

A difference Koch has noticed, she said, is that women are more concerned about the distinction between private and public space.

"We already see some of that — mud rooms can be muddy, but the front room must be clean. Men don't usually key in on these things."

Women are more likely to insist on formal entrances for guests and visitors and a second entrance for everyday use.

By way of example, Koch explained how a common household problem — family members entering the house, dropping items on the kitchen counter and generally making a mess — was solved by a bit of female ingenuity.

"The mother said, 'I'm not going to be able to change my kids or our lifestyle,'" Koch said. What the mother did do was insist the children come in the back door and that the house design incorporated built-in shelves.

"The kids would come in, put their things in their own slot and no more messy countertops," Koch said. "A man wouldn't necessarily think of that."

In her experience working with men and women clients, men seem to see things on broader concepts while women focus on nuances, Koch said.

"Men walk into a room and say, 'I really like this room,'" Koch said. "Women will walk into the same room and say, 'I love those windows, they really make this room.'"

"A woman does seem to have a greater sense of imagination when it comes to possibilities."

Good design is good design

Maureen Ashman, owner of the design firm Maureen Ashman and Friends in Farmington Hills, said she is convinced a home designed by an accomplished architect — male or female — would be pretty much the same.

It's also worth noting, she said, that whether a man or woman is the primary caretaker of the house shouldn't concern the designer.

"Good design is good design," she said. "The problem is not designing from a male or female perspective, but poor design.

"I've always collaborated with male architects, and I don't see any difference (in design styles)."

Many houses of the past were designed without the input of someone schooled in design, she contends. In fact, many homes today are still not designed by architects — hence the complaints.

That seems to be changing. The overall improvement in home design, she believes, is a result of more builders consulting architects — even for smaller homes — than ever before.

Listen to everyone

There may be differences between men's and women's needs and desires, but those differences are no more distinct than those between individuals.

Ellen Whitefield, marketing director at the Selective Group in Farmington Hills, said many builders do extensive surveys of their buyers (and those who decided not to buy) to get a better understanding of how houses should be designed.

"What did you like? What didn't you like? What types of things would you change about where you're living now? These are only some of the questions asked," she said.

Whitefield noted that some of the most useful information comes from people moving up from existing homes because they have had a chance to see flaws in older houses.

Whitefield said she she doesn't single out suggestions of women and men because all comments are important. "If were going to build good homes, we have to listen to everyone."

What changes would women build into homes?

It's easy to say houses would be different if they were designed with a women's touch, but how about a few concrete examples?

Janice Morse, president of Designs Unlimited in West Bloomfield, said that it's unlikely there would be sweeping changes in architectural styles or radical new concepts in design philosophy.

Rather, the changes would be more in the area of enhancements and refinements of existing concepts, she said.

"Women are going to be more concerned about details and how a house works," she said. "Women are more detail-oriented because if they don't pay attention to the details it comes back to haunt them."

Many changes in houses are unavoidably task-oriented to traditional female roles and in many cases they apply only in cases where a couple is married and has children.

"While it's not always the case, 80 percent of the time it is still the women who dictates the running of the house.

Among those changes envisioned by Morse are:

- separate closets in master bedrooms;
- a greater separation of the sink from shower in bathroom;
- better work triangles in the kitchen;
- more forethought in the design of door swings for safety and use of the room;
- insulated bedrooms and bathrooms to deaden sound;
- better ventilated bathrooms and kitchens;
- no bedrooms or doors at the top of stairways;
- wall space free of windows and doors with potential future furniture placement in mind;
- proper lighting so night time feels like daytime;
- vacuum cleaner storage;
- a workspace in laundry.

FAMILY LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Planning is a must for summer fun

The snow is gone; the leaves are a beautiful green; the flowers are blooming. It's almost time for school bells to ring for the last time this school year. It's time to prepare for family fun in the sun.

Each year at summertime, families find new ways to take advantage of the lovely weather. Children greet summer with great anticipation. No more coats, off with the gloves, away with those mean old boots. Children can be heard far and wide proclaiming their love for summer.

There are many exciting activities families can participate in that will prove to be rewarding for all ages. When making plans this summer, consider activities that include the entire family. The memories of summer fun that include Mom, Dad and children are precious ones.

Summer fun in the sun activities can be tailored to fit the needs of all families. Take time and have a family meeting where the topic may be what each member would like to do this summer. After each family member has given his personal desire for summer activities, have each family member give ideas of what activities the entire family can participate in.

After all of the ideas have been listed, have the family decide which suggestions can be implemented this summer.

Now take the calendar and place the selections on the calendar. This will give the family things to look forward to this summer. Each family member will know when he can plan individual outings.

By using the calendar, the times one member must be left out of a planned family activity should be greatly reduced. How many times have we gotten prepared to leave for an big family outing and one family member announces"I didn't know we had plans and I won't be able to attend."

The family meeting might be held more than once during the summer. By holding additional meetings, updates can be given on upcoming planned activities and family members can be reminded to keep those dates free.

Another consideration for fun in the sun this summer could be activities that include the extended family. Grampa and Gramma, aunts and uncles, even cousins and other members of the extended family can bring a lot happiness to a family outing.

Try to have at least one family event this summer that includes family members from around the country. It can be rewarding and fulfilling to spend fun time with family members who live far away or are from different regions.

This summer will offer opportunities for many different fun-in-the-sun days. There will be softball, baseball, swimming, visits to the amusement park, family reunions, camping, cookouts, tennis, walks, races, roller skating and many other creative fun-in-the-sun things to do.

Take full advantage of the beautiful weather, the vacation season and the fact that the children are out of school and have fun, fun, fun in the sun.

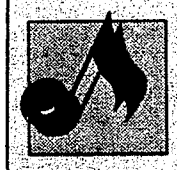
Motown finds the folk sound on the rebound

■ In a metropolitan area that has been raised on the Motown sound, it seems almost sacrilegious to say there's another sound catching on . . . . Folk music is making a comeback, and its return is heralded by its acoustic enthusiasts.

BY BOB NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER



If "folk-music boom" seems like an oxymoron, "Detroit folk-music boom" might sound downright impossible.

Detroit is rock and soul, right? And isn't folk music the stuff that nobody listens to?

Well, no.

The metro area is definitely experiencing a period of strong growth in the variety of acoustic musical styles that can huddle together under the folk umbrella. Part of it probably parallels a national trend, but part of it seems unique to suburban Detroit.

"I think people are surprised (when they hear about Detroit's scene at national folk gatherings)," Matt Watroba said. "We (in the area) get every major artist touring through."

Watroba — a Livonia resident and English teacher in the Plymouth-Canton district — spends noon to 3 p.m. Saturdays hosting "Folks Like Us," the popular acoustic music program on public radio station WDET-FM, 101.9. With its music, in-studio concerts/interviews with performers, and announcements of upcoming events, the program serves as a sort of clearinghouse for folk music in southeastern Michigan.

"I would say that the interest is higher than it's been in years," Watroba said, ". . . solely (based) on support for the show, absolutely and without question.

"People get fed up with the other offerings," and also seem "a lot more open to different kinds of music," he added.

The spread in popularity manifests itself in several ways. Several acoustic concert series have sprung up in the suburbs of Wayne and Oakland counties, and they're finding ready audiences.

Record stores see increasing sales from their folk, bluegrass and country bins. And more and more people seem to be playing and singing the music, as well as listening.

Mellow sound: Matt Watroba of Livonia not only hosts the popular "Folks Like Us" acoustic music program on WDET, but also entertains crowds with his singing and guitar playing.

Folk in concert

Rochester's long-established Paint Creek Folklore Society two years ago began a series of Comfy Concerts. Set in the Doolittle home — which can hold 65 paying guests plus a small stage — the non-profit series began as a way to bring more folk music to the area and provide some income for local musicians.

"After expenses, all of the money from the concerts goes to the performer," the society's Althea Doolittle explained. "As people say in our folk group, there's hundreds of dollars to be made in folk music . . . . Maybe eventually (performers will) be able to make a decent living at it."

The venture found immediate success.

"Out of the nine (concerts so far), we've only had one that wasn't sold out," Doolittle said. "It seems about a third of the people that come each time are new people. It surprises me how far people come."

She said that introducing the Comfy Concerts just became part of a trend toward more opportunities to enjoy live folk music.

"I hear all the time about more and more places," she said.

On a much larger scale, for its fifth season the New Tradition concert series moved to the Redford Theater this year after stints in Wyandotte and Royal Oak. Publicity director Janet Blatter said the audience has increased "only" by 10 percent this year — after enjoying 50-percent rises in attendance each of its first few years.

"(The Redford is) a real theater, and it's much larger, about 1,500 seats. It allowed us to do the production level that we wanted to do," Blatter said.

Meanwhile, the smaller venues continue to multiply. Unitarian churches in Birmingham (La Casa) and Southfield (Raven's Choice) host regular folk concert series, and Possum Corner serves northern Oakland County. Many other churches and schools all around the suburbs might offer up a performance on any given night.

A bit farther out, the long-established Ark coffeehouse in Ann Arbor remains the spiritual center of southeast Michigan's folk-music culture, still drawing crowds to hear a gamut of all types of performers.

Folk in the stores

"I think the music's become more popular over the course of the last four or five years," said Chuck Papke, vice president of retail for the Troy-based Harmony House music chain.

Likewise, Threasa LeAnnais has watched a similar jump in sales as a buyer for Dearborn Music, which offers a large selection of folk at its store on Ford in Canton.

"Folk, bluegrass, (and) other kinds of traditional music have increased," she said. "I think we do real well. It's not an area of music that gets a lot of exposure."

Folk all over

Beyond the growing numbers of people buying and attending acoustic music, more and more also seem to be playing and singing it — both professionally and for simple enjoyment.

WDET's Watroba — an accomplished singer and guitarist himself — also hosts the Wednesday Open Stage nights at the Ark, at which developing singer/songwriters can perform a short set for an appreciative and understanding audience.

Agencies seek alcohol-free parenting

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

It goes without saying that drinking and driving don't mix. But now three Wayne County organizations are spreading another drink-related message.

With the help of a federal grant, Youth Living Centers, the Downriver Guidance Clinic and the Out Wayne County Council on Child Abuse and Neglect have launched a public awareness and education campaign that drinking and parenting aren't a good mix.

"We felt there was a need to raise the consciousness of the public . . . to show the link between substance abuse and child abuse," said Sherry Olshavsky, YLC program coordinator. "We have to make the public aware that we can't continue to treat the effects of child abuse after it's done."

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect has given the trio of agencies $100,000 for two years for the program, which focuses on the social drinker whose second or third drink may be enough to impair his judgment as a parent. It is meant to provide a forceful message about drinking and parenting but not one that "hits parents over the head."

"We didn't want to stereotype people," said Barbara Sanders, vice president of client services for Anthony M. Franco Inc., which designed and developed the campaign. "It's directed at a broad audience of primarily middle-class parents who are light users of alcohol who don't normally have a problem with alcohol or child abuse."

The problem, according to the three agencies, is reflected in national statistics that show more than 1.5 million children are living in unfit, non-nurturing and unsafe situations because of a parent's alcohol or drug abuse and that child abuse and neglect occurs in 34 percent to 60 percent of the homes where a parent is abusing a substance.

In fact, alcoholism alone is tied to one-third of reported child abuse cases.

The campaign is based on a similar program done in Pennsylvania that YLC executive director Ouida Cash happened on while white water rafting. It was that information that was used in the grant proposal.

"They designed the program to take the current body of information on drinking and child abuse and make it available to the public and uses existing networks to make it (the campaign) self-sustaining," Olshavsky said.

The campaign features information kits, print and television public service announcements, a junior-senior high curriculum and a youth theater production.

The materials were designed in different ways. The information kits offer 10 ways businesses, legislators, educators, parents and students can help.

The kits encourage people to share information about child and substance abuse, to set a good example "by never drinking when you have parenting responsibilities" and to realize that "not all people with a substance abuse problem fit the stereotype of a drunk."

DRINKING & PARENTING

. . . IT'S NOT A GOOD MIX

It takes a lot of patience to be a parent. The next time everyday parenting pressures build up to the point where you want to have a drink to relieve the stress — STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

1. Take a deep breath. And another.
2. Count to 10. Or 20. Or 100.
3. Take a hot bath or shower; splash cold water on your face.
4. Phone a friend. Talk to an adult. Share your feelings.
5. Exercise. Ride a bike, walk, run, play ball, work in the yard.
6. Take a fun break with your child. Have juice together, watch a video, read a book, listen to some favorite music — sing along.

WARNING: Drinking alcohol may lead you to mistreat your child. Don't let a few drinks destroy your good judgment.

Writer wants to maintain a vantage point of control

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Mrs. Green:

I'm very interested in finding out what my handwriting can tell about me. It's amazing that someone can look at my handwriting and know things about me without ever having met me.

I'm a 29-year-old female and I'm left-handed. Thank you,

D.
Canton

One's handwriting can reveal many things about him or her. The backslanted handwriting of today's writer suggests a young woman who is introversive, cautious and deliberate. She wishes to maintain a vantage point of control. She does not like to rush headlong into new ventures, but prefers to take time to test the waters first.

Most of her lines of handwriting slope downward and suggest she was experiencing either fatigue or discouragement at the time she wrote this letter. Without samples written at other times for comparison, I am unable to say if this is a temporary condition or a way of life for her. When she is feeling down, she often reaches back to the security of the past for emotional support.

Additional signs bring to light that she was originally a warm, outgoing person, but became more reserved and introspective due to outside circumstances.

Seemingly, our writer was raised in a home where female influence was evident. She developed a dislike of authority figures at a young age. While she continues to resist some authority, she has developed a measure of tact which helps her handle it in a more acceptable manner. Strong sensitivity to personal criticism often causes her to take a negative comment personally. Sensitivity such as this usually grows out of personal criticism or disappointment from her early life.

Diplomacy is pervasive in this handwriting. She appears to have a keen understanding and empathy for others. The ability to maneuver out of difficult situations is another asset of hers. However, she can stand resolute when an issue is very important to her.

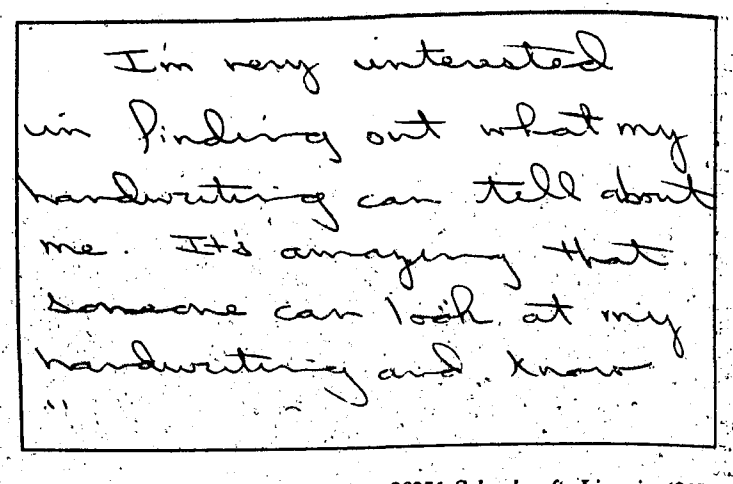
A vivid imagination can produce creative and original ideas. Problem-solving ability is also good and she can stimulate other people with her enthusiasm and interesting ideas.

Our writer is a woman of intelligence and good taste. Signs of art and music are also in evidence.

This is an observant young woman. Her watchful eyes miss very little.

She has learned the efficient use of her time. Seemingly, she has the motivation and energy to achieve her goals. At times, however, she becomes hesitant and unsure, reacting with negative feelings concerning herself. Perhaps this is the reason she is not finding fulfillment at this time.

A large signature is the outer image she is projecting to others. When compared to the body of her handwriting, it signals her wish to be perceived as more optimistic and confident than she sometimes feels. She may want to consider how important a positive attitude is for success and happiness.



If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. Any objective feedback is always welcome.

Summer camp set for diabetic kids

The American Diabetes Association, Michigan Affiliate, is seeking children with insulin-dependent diabetes to participate in their 1993 summer camp program.

Since 1955, the affiliate has hosted boys and girls, ages 6-16, at Camp Midicha. The camp program offers children traditional camp activities — swimming, canoeing, hiking and crafts, along with diabetes education. Emphasizing fun, camp activities have been developed to instill camper confidence for the self-management of diabetes.

The 1993 camp program has six sessions. Sessions 1 through 5 will take place in Lapeer County near Columbiaville June 27 through Aug. 7. Session 6 will take place in Marquette County Aug. 12- 21.

Registration for camp is on a first come, first served basis.

To come up with the school curriculum, educators were called on to develop succinct lesson plans that included questions and answers, activities, worksheets and a list of facts and resources for students and teachers.

The theatrical production, "No Problem," was written by Maureen Bruce, who also wrote the specifics for the campaign. It has three scenes dealing with different types of social drinking and interaction with children, performed by members of Lifelines Theater of YLC's community education department. The scenes are set up to accommodate follow-up discussions.

"Children don't come with an owner's manual," Sanders told representatives of the three agencies at a recent campaign kickoff breakfast. "Alcohol has become a drug that is widely used and widely accepted, and a child doesn't know the difference between a social drinker and an alcoholic."

For the children

Working for the benefit of children and families is nothing new for the three agencies. YLC, a private, non-profit agency based in Inkster, operates a shelter for runaway children and provides specialized foster care for children who have experienced severe sexual and/or physical abuse and neglect. It also provides community education and drug prevention programs and clinical services for abused, neglected and homeless children.

The Downriver Guidance Clinic in Wyandotte is the primary provider of substance abuse prevention services to 14 school districts in southern Wayne County, while the Out Wayne County Council on Child Abuse focuses on community-wide prevention activities in the west and northwest areas.

"It's absurd to me that we pull bodies out downstream rather than going upstream and keeping them from jumping in," Cash said. "Parenting and taking care of a child is the toughest job in the world.

"There's another indication (of the) music's popularity). I had over 35 musicians show up last Wednesday," Watroba said.

The number of professional "folk singers" has risen as well lately, with more and more choices available at many stores selling recorded music. "There are just so many new titles," said Papke, of Harmony House.

The experts offered a variety of reasons behind metro Detroit's folk boom, but all could relate to the style's less-than-perfect name: It's music aimed at folks.

"They're songs about real people. It doesn't seem to buy into the commercialism of music," said Watroba, noting that the nation is rediscovering the art of the singer/songwriter, and, he said, "It's coming back to a more pure form."

Watroba described the gut-level appeal of talented musicians singing their own songs from their own perspectives: "the earthiness, the down-to-earth feel of the shows — much like country music, only perhaps a bit more realistic in tone."

New Tradition's Blatter suggested some practicalities. One, technology has brought passable recording techniques into the reach of many more people. Two, WDET provides a good outlet locally. And three, cable television offers an easy exposure to some artists with no real investment from the viewer, moving beyond the "Hee Haw" stage helps, too.

"They're doing a good job of taking away the hay bales," she said. "You can just appreciate the musicianship for what it is."

Crime's on BPW agenda

Crime will be the topic of conversation when the Canton Business and Professional Women's Organization meets for its monthly meeting Monday, June 14.

The meeting is slated to get underway with networking at 6 p.m. at the Roman Forum Restaurant on Ford Road west of Haggerty Road, Canton. Dinner will be at 6:30 p.m., and the program at 7:15 p.m. Cost is $10 per person.

How about a stroll to benefit epilepsy?

There is still time to lace up your walking shoes for the 1993 Summer Stroll for Epilepsy, a five-mile walk to be held rain or shine Saturday, June 5, at the Addison Oaks County Park north of Rochester.

Activities will begin with registration at 10 a.m. and the stroll at 11 a.m. Teams and individual walkers will raise pledges to benefit the Epilepsy Center of Michigan.

Lomas Brown of the Detroit Lions is the event's honorary chairperson, joining media chairmen Jim Harper of WNIC-FM and sports reporter Tom Varrato of WDIV-TV Channel 4.

All walkers raising $50 or more will receive a Summer Stroll for Epilepsy T-shirt. The highest fund-raising individuals or teams can also win a variety of prizes.

Walkers and their families are also entitled to enjoy all-day activities at Addison Oaks, including boating, fishing, swimming and disc golf. In addition, Oakland County Parks' mobile units, the Sports Mobile, OAKlowns, High Striker and the Mimes will be on hand to entertain.

Immediately following the event, all Stroll participants will enjoy a tent party, featuring free food and beverages. Live musical entertainment will be by Detroit's own Thunderharp Choir. Team and individual prizes will be awarded, and an official Detroit Lions football signed by Brown will be raffled off.

If you are interested in participating in the Stroll as the captain of a corporate team, an individual walker, or as a volunteer, call the Epilepsy Center at 351-7979 for more information.

Addison Oaks County Park is on West Romeo Road, nine miles north of Rochester. Stroll participants will be admitted to the park free.

Founded in 1948, the Center is the state's only non-profit organization focusing solely on epilepsy. It provides medical, counseling and informational services to persons with epilepsy and their families.

The center also conducts laboratory and clinical research into new treatment options for epilepsy, which affects more than 90,000 people in Michigan. It is a common neurological disorder marked by sudden, brief changes in brain function that result in seizures of various types. Most people with this condition are otherwise normal and healthy and with regular use of medication, many can live completely free of seizures.

Huron Valley scout council honors volunteers, members

From new board positions to special honors, Girl Scouts and their leaders in the Huron Valley Council area have been busy this spring.

Brownie Girl Scout Nicole Neal of Westland is the recipient of the Outstanding Citizen Award, presented to her May 6 by the Wayne-Westland Area Girl Scouts. Awarded by the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, she received the honor for saving the life of a 2-year-old last summer.

Last August, Nicole was swimming with friends and neighbors in a neighbor's pool when Jenny Schulte, 2, slipped off of a floating raft into the pool. She had gone to the bottom three times when Nicole reached her, grabbed her, and held her head above water until someone at the side of the pool could pull her from the water.

"If Nicole hadn't held her head out of the water, Jenny would have drowned," said Nicole's grandmother, Anne Peacock, the Brownie troop leader.

The Scout Council gave Nicole the award as an "outstanding example of the ideals of citizenship and her lifesaving efforts."

Nicole, 9, is the daughter of Beth Neal and Mark Rupert of Westland. She is a fourth grade student at Kettering Elementary School, also in Westland.

Volunteer honors

At the council's annual recognition dinner, scout volunteers Faith Reece, Robin Currier, Peggy Esper and Carol Villeneuve of Canton received the Green Tree Award for supporting Girl Scouting through their more than 44 years of combined experience. They have provided girls in the Plymouth/Canton/Northville area who attend the July day camp with an exhilarating experience for the past five years. They will be co-directing the camp again this year.

Also receiving a Green Tree Award for her day camp work was Peggy Fisher of Plymouth.

Linda Cox and Shelly Zielinski, both of Canton, received the Adult Appreciation Pin for their overall contributions to Girl Scouting. Together, they have worked as leaders, served on the Try-It Day committee, served as delegates, Day Camp directors and trainers.

Joe Zielinski of Canton was awarded the Outstanding Volunteer Award for his service as a Day Camp unit leader and a Day Camp Committee and Troop Committee member.

Cathy Olender of Canton also was recognized with an Outstanding Volunteer Award for the exceptional communications and organization as a troop services director and service unit manager for the Plymouth/Canton/Northville area.

Priscilla Snyder was awarded the Outstanding Volunteer Award for her long years of service to Troop 501 in Plymouth. Snyder, a direct descendant of Priscilla Alden, has attended almost every national council meeting and holds the Golden Eaglet Award.

Kathy Sonnanstine of Plymouth was also recognized with an Outstanding Volunteer Award for her efforts as the product sales distributor in the Plymouth/Canton/Northville area and for her coordination and dedication as the Fall Ball chairwoman.

Also honored from Plymouth was Kathy Naber, who received the Outstanding Leader Award and Lori Potochick, who received the Adult Appreciation Pin-Area.

The scout council also has some new members on its board of directors, selected at its annual meeting May 1.

Board members

Four Plymouth residents — Virginia Klein, Amelia Chan, Dennis Siegner and Megan Reece — were elected to the board.

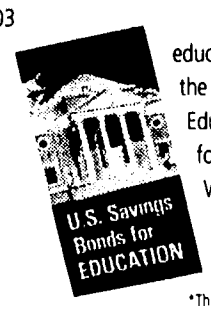
PRESENTING 10,603 GOOD REASONS TO INVEST IN U.S. SAVINGS BONDS.

Now it's easy to save for America's 10,603 schools of higher education. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds for education through the U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan — or at your bank — every week, every month or every payday.

Buy Series EE Bonds for half their face value. If you hold them five years or more, you'll earn competitive, market-based interest, compounded semiannually, with a guaranteed minimum return.

U.S. Savings Bonds are exempt from state and local income taxes, and they're federally tax-deferred. And if Bonds are used to pay for higher education, there may be an additional federal tax advantage.*



Take the first step to your child's higher education. Ask your employer or bank for the free booklet, "U.S. Savings Bonds for Education." Or write: U.S. Savings Bonds for Education, Department of the Treasury, Washington, DC 20226.

1-800-4US BOND • 1-800-487-2663

*This advantage is explained in a booklet entitled "U.S. Savings Bonds for Education," available from your payroll office, financial institution or the Department of the Treasury. Please read it thoroughly for information about income limits, registration and other restrictions before investing for this purpose.

Benefit showcases wedding bliss

The Livonia Jaycees know how to plan a perfect wedding. That's what they provided prospective couples at their second annual Bridal Fashion Show for All Seasons.

Sponsored by The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the show drew an eager crowd of brides-and grooms-to-be who got the latest information on the perfect cake, the perfect music, the perfect styles for the entire wedding party and the perfect music.

The show raises money for the Livonia Jaycee Scholarship Fund at Madonna University. The scholarship fund was established in 1989 and awards are made annual, based on academic excellence and community service.

Television personality Sylvia Glover served as mistress of ceremonies, introducing the audience to fashions by Demetrias for Illisa, Eve of Malady and House of Bianchi, all provided by Ellen's Bridal of Livonia.

For the men, members of the Detroit Junior Red Wings traded in the ice skates for dress shoes and walked the runway.

By twos: While John Choiniere, district manager of Russell's Tuxedos, talked tuxes with Dan Gregory and fiancee Kerrie Santilli, Kathy Ewald walked down the runway in an ivory satin gown by Bridal Originals with "groom" Mike Rucinski of the Junior Red Wings.

STAFF PHOTOS BY GUY WARREN

Classic lines: Linda Dolan models a fall wedding gown, featuring a sweetheart neckline with a web insert of alencon petite roses sparked with beads, a satin bow that releases beaded appliques detailing the shoulder-length sleeves and a train of empress satin trailing a lace border.

Notice: Public Comment Period
FY 1994-1996 Transportation Improvement Program

Presented by: SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments
660 Plaza Drive, Suite 1900
Detroit, MI 48226 (313) 961-4266

The public is invited to review and submit comments on amendments to the Fiscal Year (FY) 1994-1996 Transportation Improvement Program (TIP) during the public comment period, June 1 to June 23, 1993. The TIP is a listing of federally and non-federally funded major road and transit service improvements proposed by various communities, road agencies, transit agencies and the Michigan Department of Transportation. The new Federal Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) emphasizes the public's opportunity to review and comment on road and transit projects proposed for federal funding. This public comment process is part of SEMCOG's overall responsibility for formulating the TIP and for approving projects for federal funding.

The proposed projects are located in Southeast Michigan in the counties of Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne and the City of Detroit. The types of proposed projects include construction of new roads, widening of existing roads, resurfacing and repair of roads and bridges, large bus and equipment purchases by transit agencies and operating assistance for transit agencies. The TIP document identifies the location of each project, estimated cost, the source of funds and the agency or community which has jurisdiction over the project.

Written comments concerning the projects should be submitted to John M. Amberger, Executive Director of SEMCOG, at 660 Plaza Drive, Suite 1900, Detroit, MI, 48226. Verbal responses may also be made, at SEMCOG's Transportation Advisory Council (TAC) meeting to be held in SEMCOG offices (same address) on Wednesday, June 23, 1993, at 9:30 a.m.

The TIP document is available for review starting June 1 at the following locations:

SEMCOG offices (address above)

The Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART), First National Bldg., 660 Woodward Ave., Detroit.

The Detroit Department of Transportation (DDOT), 1301 E. Warren, Detroit.

The Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti Urban Area Transportation Study, 278 Collingwood, Ann Arbor.

The Ann Arbor Transportation Authority, 2700 Industrial Hwy., Ann Arbor.

The St. Clair County Metropolitan Planning Commission, 108 McMorran Blvd., Port Huron.

County planning departments and the main offices of county road commissions in Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair and Washtenaw and the Wayne County Department of Public Services (Department of Engineering).
