Schools to seek tax hike in fall

Wayne-Westland residents came to a special school board session Tuesday wanting to know if officials plan to seek a tax increase to thwart $14 million in budget cuts. They received some answers, but left the meeting with many unanswered questions.

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Wayne-Westland school tax increase will be proposed again in a special election this fall, possibly in October after residents have felt the pinch of massive budget cuts.

However, some 250 residents left a

The seven-member board remained intentionally vague, with some members indicating they want to form a before deciding on a tax proposal.

Four of seven board members indicated preliminary support for an October election. But that majority included trustee Sharon Felan, who will leave her post June 30 after being ousted in Monday's board election.

One trustee, Richard LeBlanc, said he would prefer a "modest" tax proposal in August, amid hopes of averting some of the $14 million in approved budget cuts before school resumes this fall. However, he indicated he could reluctantly support an Wayne-Westland voters in April crushed a local tax proposal. And on June 2, they voted against a statewide proposal that would have slashed property taxes while increasing the state sales tax.

Former Wayne-Westland school trustee Mathew McCusker and running mate Patricia Brown trampled three opponents in Monday's school board race, riding a tidal wave of support from district employees and former school officials.

We're here to take the leadership of the district back," McCusker told a crowd of 100 cheering supporters during a victory celebration at the Forum in Westland.

McCusker and Brown, outspoken critics of superintendent Larry Thomas, scored decisive victories in a fierce power struggle with three chal-lengers more supportive of Thomas — appointed incumbent Sharon Felan and newcomers John Brady and Roberta Paquette.

The two victors will replace Felan and longtime trustee Fred Warmbier two of Thomas' strongest allies. Warmbier, 74, chose to step down and end his 18-year board tenure.

District employees went to the polls in full force Monday, rallying for McCusker and Brown as many voters stayed home. Only 3,345 of the district's 61.207 voters cast ballots, a 5½-percent turnout.

The election marked a return to power for McCusker, a former 81/2year board member who was ousted in 1991 amid a voter backlash against incumbents. He and Brown were joined at their victory celebration by McCusker's ex-colleagues — former board members Sharon Scott, An

Teens say Ali's the greatest

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Muhammad Ali traded in his boxing gloves for kisses and hugs when a group of Westland students paid him a visit at his sprawling Michigan farm.

The 51-year-old retired fighter recently played host to 38 awestruck John Glenn High students who traveled three hours by bus to visit the boxing great at his 88-acre farm in Berrien Springs.

The trip capped a semester-long project in which students in teacher Lynn LeBlanc's college composition class learned about Ali's career, personal life, politics and Islamic religion.

"It was the best time of my whole life," 10th-grader Michelle Zielinski, 16, said after visiting Ali's Ali didn't hesitate to let the teenagers visit him after he received a letter from LeBlanc, 43, a child-hood fan who was only 12 when Ali won his first boxing championship.

"Muhammad Ali is probably the quintessential living legend," Le-Blanc said.

LeBlanc and his students had read author Tom Hauser's biography about Ali, so they knew much about the Louisville, Ky., native before going to his farm. They had learned about his rise to fame, his refusal to fight in the Vietnam War,

The Livonia Board of Education Tuesday voted to name a new superintendent and decided to ask voters for more money for schools.

Kenneth C. Watson Jr. will take over the helm of the financially struggling district when Joseph Marinelli leaves. Marinelli could step down anytime from now until June 30, 1994, when his current contract ex-

Watson's hiring came Tuesday at a special meeting of the board, Watson is the current director of secondary education. His contract is expected to come before the board in the next month.

To have this opportunity is an honor," said Watson, who joined the district in 1964 as a social studies, English and journalism teacher at Emerson Middle School. "For a few days I'll bask in the glory. And then I'll come back down to earth again."

Trustees also set aside Aug. 2 as the date for a possible tax election. Details of the election — how much the district will ask for and for how long — will be decided after the board decides officially to proceed with a tax request.

Watson's name as a possible successor surfaced immediately when Marinelli recently announced he will leave the district as soon as he finds a new job.

The trustees quickly chose Watson on the first meeting they held to decide how to proceed with the search for a new superintendent.

The district faces a $12 million shortfall in 1993-94, and school officials say more money is needed if programs and staff are to survive. So far, school administrators have postponed making more than superficial budgetary decisions until they see the school aid bill, which must be approved by the state Legislature.

"The board will need to make decisions quickly," Watson said. "We'll hold that date (Aug. 2) and have it if we need it. Right now, we're playing by guess and by golly."

Watson is pleased the trustees' decision to name him superintendent was unanimous. Marinelli was hired on a 4-3 vote in 1989, and some say that that split decision gave him a significant hurdle that he never over-

"A unanimous decision is the best possible position to be in," Watson said. "Working together as a team is critical to providing the best possible education.

At Tuesday's meeting, Watson missed the vote to name him superintendent. When the vote came, as director of secondary education, he was talking to an attorney representing one of the families involved in a food fight at Churchill High.

Driver faces charges after chase through 3 cities

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Wayne man accused of leading Westland police on a high-speed chase through three cities was arrested Sunday after he jumped from his car, which kept rolling and hit a house, police said.

No injuries were reported during the incident that began at 7:33 p.m. when a Westland police officer stopped a motorist who was driving at 64 miles per hour in a 50 mph zone on Van Born, east of Middlebelt, police

Police officer Ron Kroll was trying to arrest the driver for failing to show a driver's license when the man who also had a crack cocaine pipe and some marijuana in his possession -began resisting arrest, said investigating officer James Dexter.

The 6-foot, 240-pound man struggled with Kroll, broke free, got into his car and backed into a police cruiser before speeding west on Van Born, in what became a 10- to 15-mile chase through Westland, Romulus and Wayne, Dexter said.

Kroll chased a driver west on Van Born, north of Merriman and west on Tyler Street into a Wayne subdivision, where the driver raced at 45 to 50 mph in the 25 mph residential neighborhood, Dexter said. The driver also hit two parked cars but kept driving, the officer said.

The driver also threw some baggies of marijuana out of his car, exited the subdivision and began driving east on Annapolis, Dexter said. Another Westland officer, Steve Borisch, joined in the pursuit and followed the driver as he turned south on Merriman, Dexter said.

Borisch slowed the pace of the chase to avoid an accident, but continued to follow the driver south into Romulus, where the driver turned west on Beverly Road, Dexter said.

Borisch had noticed that the driver's car was emitting smoke and appeared to be having mechanical problems, Dexter said. On an unpaved section of Beverly, Borisch activated his siren and flashing lights and resumed the chase. James Neal was arraigned Monday in 18th District Court on charges of resisting and obstructing a police officer; fleeing and eluding a police officer; possession of marijuana; and driving on a suspended license.

A plea of not guilty was entered for Neal, and he was freed from custody after a relative posted 10 percent of a $20,000 bond, Dexter said.

Johnson says system 'sickening,' isn't running

By Leonard Poger Editor

Westland city council member Terri Reighard Johnson isn't running for re-election because, in part, she's upset about city officials who don't keep their word.

"It's sickening," she said in an Observer telephone interview Monday.

The disclosure by Johnson, serving her first four-year term, comes just a few days before the 4 p.m. Tuesday filing deadline for candidates who want to get on the Sept. 14 primary ballot.

Her decision also means that there will be at least two new faces joining the council following the Nov. 2 general election.

Earlier, council member Kenneth Mehl, whose third term expires Dec. 31, announced his candidacy for mayor.

Another mayoral candidate is council president Charles Pickering, midway through a four-year term. If Pickering wins in the fall, the remaining council members would act to fill the vacancy, potentially opening the door for three new members on the sevenmember council.

Johnson refused to say which officials don't keep their word but said they were elected and appointed persons.

She said she didn't want to identify the officials because some are running for re-election

Johnson also criticized the "politicalness of the job" and the red tape the council and private. residents have to go through to get things done.

The red tape involves councilenacted ordinances and administrative rules, she admitted.

Earlier this year, Johnson "reassessed" her political plans for this year because of what city officials "were not staying true to their word" and "not keeping their word."

Johnson said she blames "the system as a whole", and described it as "sickening."

She admitted that the continuing problem "leaves a bad taste in my mouth" which led to frustrations as a council member.

"The average citizen doesn't get the respect he/she deserves from the city council or city employshe continued, although there has been an improvement.

"I've always contacted persons who reported problems" to the council, she said.

Johnson, who said she has contacted most of her supporters of her decision, said she will read a public statement at next Monday's council meeting.

There is also a personal factor in Johnson's decision: she recently became engaged with the wedding to be held before the end of

Johnson, 34, is one of several sales managers for Detroit Diesel

Despite the disappointments of being a council member, Johnson did point to some accomplishments during her term. Those include improvements in the public safety area, particularly in the police department and the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program (DARE).

But she did add that the money was available for the improvements when she joined the council in early 1990 and felt that the improvements should have been made "long ago."

Johnson was named to fill a Wayne-Westland school board vacancy in the fall of 1986 and won election to a four-year term the following June. She resigned from the board in late 1989 to accept her council seat.

Her only political defeat was in the summer of 1990 when she was defeated by county commission Kay Beard in the Democratic pri-

■ The board decided to form a citizens task force to recommend a possible "pay-to-play" proposal for sports and other extracurricular activities. But board members said they will demand an equitable plan that would include students who can't afford to pay.

Trustee Fred Warmbier, who is stepping down June 30, suggested that residents and educators who want another tax election should be charged with raising the $20,000 that it costs to schedule one. And he again suggested employee pay concessions that have yet to emerge.

Trustee Francis "Bud" Winter called for a districtwide tax committee that would include prominent city and township officials from the communities that Wayne-Westland serves. Without broad support, an autumn tax proposal is "doomed to fail," he Also Tuesday, 29 citizens appealed to the board to reconsider cuts ranging from the closing of elementary libraries to the elimination of after-school "latchkey" programs.

Teacher Tom Deschaine, however, was among several residents who urged the board to keep the cuts intact, rather than to restore them piecemeal. He opposed the fund-raising organization proposed by Hagelthorn and indicated such efforts would turn voters away from a tax increase plan.

"I don't want to buy a candy bar so Johnny can play football. I want the millage passed so he can do it," Deschaine said.

Some residents again voiced anger that top administrators who earn big salaries haven't made any sacrifices in their contracts. And one resident, Cliff Johnson of Wayne, said he won't support a tax increase until all cabinet members live in Wayne-West-started attending Livonia school district board meetings because Monday night was her night to get out of the house and get time away from caring for a sick family

As a member of that tiny group affectionately called "school board groupies," Clulow sat and watched the board members and the decisions they made.

The day came when others asked her, "You're here every week, why don't you run for a seat?"

Clulow ran, and on Monday voters in the district, which includes the northern section of Westland, gave their answer. Clulow and incumbent Pat Tancill beat out two other strong challengers — Frank Kokenakes and Ralph Walko — to win four-year terms on the board.

Tancill keeps her seat, while Clulow takes over the spot vacated June 30 by Pat Sari, now a candidate for the Livonia City LIVONIA

"I stood out all day in front of my precinct to get a feel for who was voting," Clulow said. "I was disappointed in the fact that only about 200 voted at Roosevelt (on Lyndon at Henry Ruff). As a candidate I put a lot of effort into campaigning only to find that people don't come to vote.'

Nearly 8 percent of district voters - 5,978 - voted in Monday's election. Livonia city clerk Joan McCotter called it a "high turnout" for a school board election with no other issue on the ballot.

With her 2,896 votes Tancill was the top vote getter. Clulow placed second, with 2,359 votes. hey faced heavy challenges from Kokenakes, with 1,785 votes, and Walko, with 1,587 votes.

The board faces tumultuous months ahead. Tuesday night the current board, with Clulow in the audience, met to set the process for picking a successor to Superintendent Joseph Marinelli, who recently announced last week he would step down from his post next June.

The board also recently agreed to set a 1993-94 budget by June 30 that shows $12 million in cuts. but doesn't spell out what those cuts will be.

Once it's known how the state's school aid bill will affect the district, the trustees will set the 1993-94 budget.

The trustees also must decide whether to ask residents for more money.

The board also gave the goahead to administrators to study the legal ramifications of "pulling a Kalkaska" instead of making massive budget cuts. The Kalkaska School District shut down earlier this year rather than make massive cuts in its programs.

"Tough times are ahead," Tancill said. "We'll be dealing with some very difficult issues.

Food fight leaves bad taste for some

By MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

At 7 p.m. today, four Livonia Churchill High seniors will pay the price for a food fight that broke out June 9 in the cafeteria.

As punishment for being accused of throwing food during the brief fight, seniors Jason Hebert, Dru Hayward, Daryl Wysocki and Nick Sipidi have been barred from graduating with their

The four may pick up their diolomas at the school Friday, said Ken Watson, director of secondary education.

Because of the food fight, the seniors also were barred from attending the senior prom and the school's all-night party.

"I missed out on the prom and the all-night party, but I can live with that," Hayward said. "But graduation? That's the cruelest punishment of all. Missing graduation really hurts. I let down my parents. Graduation is as much for them as for me.'

During school assemblies, the seniors had been warned throughout the year not to "participate in activities such as food fights or risk losing commencement," Watson said.

Parents of the seniors spent the veek appealing the punishment, handed out by Churchill principal Rodney Hosman and upheld by Watson. At a two-hour meeting Wednesday, Superintendent Dr. Joseph Marinelli backed his administrators and refused to allow the seniors to attend graduation

At least 100 students were in the cafeteria when the fight broke out. The first piece of food was thrown by a Churchill graduate who may have been paid to return to the school and start-the fight, Watson said.

This former student is now being sought by Livonia police on a trespassing warrant, Watson said. Several underclassmen also were suspended, Watson said.

Similar food fights had taken place in previous years at Churchill at the end of the school year. As a deterrent, video cameras were installed recently in the cafeteria and extra teachers were creating a presence" in the room, Watson said.

The cameras captured some of the fight, which lasted about 20 seconds before teachers began nabbing students.

Carol Hebert said her son told her he did not throw food. A teacher accused Jason Hebert of throwing food and it was the teacher's word against Hebert's, Watson said.

"He knew this was going to happen, but he said he didn't have any food to throw," Carol Hebert said. "My son refused to clean up the cafeteria because he didn't throw any food.'

Hayward, accepted at Purdue University to study engineering, said he had thrown food and now regrets it.

'We didn't have the most wellbehaved table," Hayward said. "I should have got up and walked out. I knew it would happen. Most of the kids think they are lucky because they didn't get caught. If I was given another chance, I would not do it.'

The nabbed students cleaned up the mess. Because the school immediately suspended them, they missed the school prom the following day.

Brown agreed and said, "It's not on my agenda to fire anybody.

Still, some of Thomas' supporters are worried about the potential failout and the shift of power on the seven-member board following Monday's election.

McCusker and Brown drew support from current trustee Francis "Bud" Winter — a Thomas critic — and McCusker is a friend of board president Leonard Posey.

No 'lynch mob'

When questioned by the Observer, Posey said he won't join any coalition to fire Thomas, even though he didn't support Thomas to replace O'Neill.

"I will never be a part of the lynch-mob situation that got Denny O'Neill," Posey said Monday. O'Neili was ousted in late 1991

by a board majority that no longer has its power base. But Thomas will retain at least three supporters on the seven-member board trustees Richard LeBlanc, Laurel Raisanen and Vicki Welty.

Thomas, whose leadership style has put him at odds with employee groups that supported McCusker and Brown, made a brief appearance at The Forum on Monday to congratulate the

"We've got to put politics aside and unite for the students," Thomas told the Observer during a brief interview. "I'm going to do my best to work with all board members."

McCusker and Brown said their No. 1 priority will be to push immediately for a special tax election amid hopes of averting $14 million in budget cuts this fall.

McCusker blasted Thomas and current board members for failing to schedule another special election in the aftermath of a tax proposal that failed miserably on April 5.

"They have failed the 16,000 kids in this community," he said.

"They have failed the people who live in this community.

Union optimistic

Brown, who covered school news for three years as a former news editor for the Westland Eagle, attributed Monday's results to voters who wanted "to return a positive majority to the school board."

McCusker emerged as the top vote-getter with 1,750 votes, followed by Brown's 1,723, unofficial results showed. They will be seated July 1.

Felan trailed a distant third with 1,228 votes, followed by Brady (839) and Paquette (572).

District employees appeared optimistic that relations with the board will now improve, said Bill Reece, president of the 1,000member teachers union, the Wayne-Westland Education Association.

"I think we're going to have a board that's more willing to involve the unions and the employee groups," he said. "We are not the enemy. We never tried to be the enemy.

Retired teacher wins seat on S'craft board

By Susan Rosiek

Richard DeVries, a retired Livonia school teacher, John Walsh, an attorney and Patricia Watson, a psychologist from Northville, were elected Monday to the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

DeVries won a four-year term while Watson and Walsh will serve for six-years.

DeVries beat Winfred Fraser of Northville 13,760 to 11,928. Fraser was seeking election after being appointed to the board in January.

Watson was the top votegetter among candidates vying for the six-year terms. She received 12,122 votes and led the balloting in Garden City, Northville and Plymouth-Canton school districts.

Grassroots

She attributed her win to "door-to-door work in every area of the college district." She pledged to continue her work for 'quality, affordable education at Schoolcraft."

Walsh, who polled a close second in the race for a six-year term with 11,718 votes, used a similar strategy.

"I tried to attend as many events as I could in all areas of

He was the top vote-getter in the Clarenceville and Livonia school district areas. He lives in Livonia and was graduated from Stevenson High School.

Rounding out the field were Linda Chuhran of Canton Township with 7,440 votes and Catherine Broadbent of Westland with 6,603 votes. Chuhran is an accountant at General Motors and the former township clerk in Canton. Broadbent in the director of human resources for Plymouth Township. ## Competition for donations intensifies

By Susan Rosiek Staff Writer

The competition for corporate donations is intensifying and companies in the future will look to colleges and universities that can solve problems.

That's the message from Dr. John S. Lore, senior vice president of St. John Health Corp., delivered to the annual meeting of the Michigan Colleges Foundation Board of Directors earlier this month at Madonna Universi-

Lore, who lives in Plymouth Township, was president of MCF from 1980 to 1988. MCF is a nonprofit organization which forges partnerships with the financial resources of Michigan business and industry with liberal arts colleges and universities in the state.

"Looking at national trends, corporate giving is undergoing many changes which will impact all the organizations represented by MCF," said Lore.

Solve problems

"Corporations are looking at organizations that can solve problems; looking at issues orientation. They want to make sure funds they are donating will help to solve problems facing all of us today," added Lore, who is director-at-large for the Michigan Nonprofit Forum and chair-elect of the National Society of Fund Raising Professionals.

"You will survive, you are gifted with innovative leaders and you (MCF) have a strong tradition. You have outstanding colleges,' Lore told the gathering.

Lore said Michigan is fortunate to have "caring, sensitive, civicminded leaders.

He stressed that business will no longer just give money unre-stricted, instead it will focus dollars on outcomes

E'Corporations are looking at organizations that can solve problems: looking at issues orientation. They want to make sure funds that they are donating will help to solve problems facing all of us today.'

John Lore

These outcomes might include, but are not limited to, developing the future work force, technology research, specific community and social issues, or targeted community service.

Competition

Competition for donations will continue to intensify, Lore said. Corporations will expect colleges and universities to be able to explain the immediate impact of their support - what a student will be able to contribute and what it is they get for the money they donate.

Although competition is keen Lore said the outlook for MCF is bright.

The foundation has raised more than $44 million to promote independent higher education since it. was founded in 1949.

MCF members

In addition to Madonna University, MCF members include Adrian College, Albion College, Alma College, Andrews University, Acquinas College, Calvin Col. lege, Hillsdale College, Hope College, Kalamazoo College, Marygrove College, Olivet College, Siena Heights College and Spring Arbor College.

MCF was the first state association to formally incorporate for the purpose of presenting a unified fund-raising program to business and industry.

Madonna has received $2.5 million from since 1952. Contributions to MCF are distributed by formula to the member colleges. The formula is devised by colleges with undesignated money divided 60 percent equally, 40 percent in proportion to student enrollment

DeVries said his priorities as a board member will include improving funding by expanding the college district and reviewing student transfer credits.

DeVries retired last year from the Livonia Public Schools, where he worked for more than 30 years.

He holds a bachelor's degree in math from the University of Michigan. His postgraduate work includes course work at U-M, Eastern Michigan University and Wayne State University.

DeVries coached the Churchill School debate team from 1985 to 1992 and coached boys baseball from 1966 to 1992.

ment after the election. Schoolcraft officials said she left late election night to join her husband, Douglas Fraser, former president of the UAW, at a conference in Switzerland.

Fraser, appointed to the Schoolcraft board in January, is retired from Wayne State University, where she was an associate dean in the graduate school. She holds bachelor's and master's degree in psychology and a doctorate in philosophy.

Watson, works as a psychologist at Providence Hospital in Southfield. She holds a bachelor's degree from Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, a master's degree from St. Francis College in Indiana and a doctorate from the University of Detroit.

She was appointed to the Schoolcraft board in 1991.

Walsh, an attorney with Lewis, White & Clay of Detroit, holds a bachelor's degree in international relations from James Madison College at Michigan State University and a law degree from Wayne State University. He attended Garden City East High School and was graduated from Stevenson High School in Livonia.

He is a member of the Livonia

Chamber of Commerce, the Livenia Jaycees, where he was recog-nized as the director of the year in 1991-1992, and the Wayne and Oakland Young Republicans.

He was appointed to Schoolcraft board in January.

Schoolcraft trustees are not paid. Other Schoolcraft trustees are Mary Breen of Plymouth Township, Michael Burley of Canton Township, Greenleaf of Livonia and Steve Ragan of Plymouth.

The Schoolcraft board meets July 12 to elect new officers and select a contractor for the new students services building.

Behind the glitz, glamour and muscle cars of the Detroit Grand Prix beats a heart.

Just ask the 25 youngsters from Detroit Children's Hospital who attended Friday's time trials courtesy of Birmingham doctor William Pinsky and the "Racing for Kids" program the physician helped initiate five years ago.

Among other things, the program frequently features hospital visits from race drivers like Robbie Buhl, national "Racing for Kids" spokesman.

But Friday the youngsters who suffer from congenital heart disease - got the chance to visit Buhl at his workplace and watch come behind the grandstands where they could see the muscle cars up close, talk race strategy with Buhl, or maybe catch a glimpse of other drivers like Nigel

County officials honor prosecutor

A group of western Wayne County supporters will host a fund-raiser to salute Wayne County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair on Tuesday, June 29, in Livonia.

Tickets are $25 per person for a Tex-mex buffet from 6-8 p.m. in the Laurel Manor, southside of Schoolcraft, just west of Newburgh Road and east of I-275.

O'Hair was nearly defeated in the 1992 August primary because of what some political observers say was the influence and money that Detroit Mayor Coleman Young poured into his challenger's campaign.

Young has been at odds with O'Hair since the prosecutor cooperated with a federal investigation of former Detroit Police convicted in 1992 of embezzling police funds.

The salute committee includes Wayne County commissioners Bryan Amann, D-Wayne; Kay Beard, D-Westland; Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights; state Reps. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford; Justine Barns, D-Westland, William Keith, D-Garden City, and Richard Young, D-Dear born Heights; state Sens. William Faust, D-Westland and Geroge Hart, D-Dearborn; Garden City Mayor Jim Plakas, Livonia Councilman Dale Jurcisin, Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack, Redford Township Supervisor James P. Kelly and Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor George

Happy day: Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara congratulates Hurley Coleman, parks director, shortly after dedication ceremonies Monday at the Willikam P. Holliday Nature Preserve. Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett (behind McNamara) also was on hand for the dedication. Obtaining the 40acre parcel of protected parkland — the first acquisition for Wayne County parks in more than 40 years — was a cooperative effort on the part of Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy, the Wayne County Department of Public Services, Department of Parks and the Department of Natural Resources. The land, called Foxlands because it is one of few breeding ground for red foxes in southeast Michigan, is near the Koppernick entrance of the preserve and is considered a transitional meadow. The preserve is known to be home to some rare birds, wildflowers and is a good example of a climax forest. The Holliday Nature Preserve is a 500-acre stretch of land that runs through Westland and Canton Township. It was set aside in trust to the county in the 1950s when William P. Holliday died.

Parks offer 3 new events this summer

The weather is finally beginning to break and the Wayne County parks department staff is putting together a line-up of ac-tivities to keep the summer interesting.

Three new events have been added to the parks schedule this year. A Polish/Italian Festival will be held Thursday, July 10 at the Warrendale park area (Warren Road just east of Telegraph) and will feature plenty of music, dancing and food. The event is being sponsored in cooperation with the Verdi Opera Theater of Michigan.

The Hines Drive Classic Biath-lon will not be for the weak of heart. Participants will jog 5 kilometers, ride bikes 30 kilometers and then jog another 5 kilometers. The event will start at Nankin Mill and will be Sunday, Sept. 26. The event is being co-sponsored by Feet Fleet Sports and the Northville Recreation program.

On Saturday, July 31, a co-ed volleyball tournament on the new sand volleyball courts at Nankin

Man's memory planted at preserve

A nature group planted a tree to honor the memory of a board member who died unexpectedly in December. Dan Mehelich was active in the group and occasionally led tours of the Holliday nature preserve.

Environmentalists took time recently to honor the memory of Daniel Mehelich, a Westland man who was active in the Holliday Nature Preserve Association as well as a board

The association planted a tree in the memory of Mehelich, who died unexpectedly in December at the age of 42. Besides association members, Mehelich's widow, Denise, and his two children, Kristin, 14, and Daniel, 12, were present.

The tree was a 300-pound red maple which was planted on a 40-acre site recently acquired as part of the more than 500 acre William Holliday Nature Preserve, which snakes its way for more than three miles between Joy and Warren Road and Farmington Road and Hix.

"This tree will always be thought of as Dan's tree," said an association of-

Mr. Mehelich was an officer of the association, formed in the mid-1980s to fight a planned golf course on the edge of the nature preserve. When the golf course proposal was abandoned, the group refocused its efforts to clean up the nature preserve and hold educational events there.

Mr. Mehelich, who was a special education teacher at the Washington Career Center in Detroit, occasionally led tours through the nature preserve, owned by Wayne County.

Perceptions shape elections

ommunication is the name of the game when it comes to winning local elections. Perceptions are just as important. The key in the upcoming mayoral and city council campaigns will be who will be the most effective in putting the right "spin" on

In the upcoming mayoral race, it's expected that voters will select from four candidates. There will be a primary on Tuesday, Sept. 14, to narrow the field to two. There must be at least nine council candidates to force a primary and narrow the field to eight for the general election on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Westland voters will know for sure who is running for what office by 4 p.m. Tuesday, the deadline for filing nominating petitions.

What makes this election more interesting than most is that at least new faces will be elected to council in the fall. Councilman Kenneth Mehl has announced his plans to run for mayor instead of seeking a fourth term on the Westland City Council.

Councilwoman Terri Reighard Johnson has decided not to seek a second four-year term.

But the "spin" doctors, who mostly practice their craft in Washington, D.C., will be active in Westland in communication with voters on last week's neighborhood dispute involving basket-

The details are that a city inspector on June 7 issued dozens of warning notices to homeowners who had free-standing basketball poles and backboards in front of their homes in violation

■ With at least two new people to be elected to the city council, the successful candidates will be those who can deliver their message effectively.

The residents complained to the city council last week with the council promising to review the ordinance next Monday. At almost the same time, Mayor Robert Thomas' assistant said "the hoops will stay."

While the hoops problem isn't the only way to judge a mayor seeking re-election, the affected homeowners will certainly remember it elec-

What seems puzzling is why the city would do something to enrage many homeowners with a relatively minor ordinance violation just a few months before an election.

Certainly, residents will blame the mayor as they should. While ordinance enforcement is important to controlling potential problems in neighborhoods, the basketball hoops certainly are no danger to the community or a threat to local ordinances.

If anything, the administration is guilty of bad timing and/or a case of political "dumb-

The mayor's opponents in the primary and general elections will certainly take advantage of the situation — as well they should.

s there some Natural Law that says there must be ill feeling between a big urban area and the rest of a state?

Certainly there is friction between metropolitan Detroit and outstate, just as there is between Rome and the rest of Italy or Boston and the rest of Massachusetts. But must there be battle lines in perpetuity?

As we pointed out last week, there is ill feeling on the part of Gov. John Engler and his outstate friends - in both parties - at how "Detroit" voted on Proposal A, the school finance plan that would have beefed up outstate school funding and given table scraps to these

We hoped Engler et al. would refrain from retaliating by "recapturing" categorical aid from suburban schools — as if our schools had "captured" it in the first place. The Legislature's 12th century Robin Hood tactics are out of Legislators from the region, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and local elected officials need to put together a bipar tisan act to protect metropolitan assets. Items:

- The Detroit Institute of Arts and Detroit Symphony Orchestra come first to mind. In a recession with tax collections down, Lansing cut off DIA and DSO at the knees. Now the governor says Michigan jobs are growing faster than the national average, and unemployment is below the national average for the first time in a generation. Arts funding needs to be revisited. We're talking about world class institutions, not pork.
- Roads are an obvious need. Anyone who travels freeways and main arteries in the metropolitan area knows his tires will hit more potholes and patches on top of patches than on the satiny two-lane county roads of outstate. Engler and his predecessor, Jim Blanchard, were both too hesitant to recommend the obvious — more fuel tax revenue, and more to the area where the roads are the most pockmarked.

- Public transit continues to limp. In part we in the metropolitan region have made ourselves an outstate laughing stock by our inability to get our own act together and recommend a permanent funding system. It gives others an excuse to ignore the problem.
- Urban sprawl the paving over of farms, woods and meadows where there is no population growth - continues. No governor since Bill Milliken (1969-82) has even known what urban sprawl means, let alone advocated the kinds of municipal conservation policies needed to stop cancerous development.

■ State parks, particularly in the sprawling urban area, should not be candidates for "privatization" or turnover to local units that will operate them as semi-private fiefdoms.

We in the metropolitan area have outgrown he 1950s attitude that only tree stui people, exist north of M-59 and west of US-23. We're all traveling the outstate area much more not just the waterfalls but also the museums and playhouses.

In return, outstaters need to shed the syndrome, particularly noticeable in Grand Rapids political circles, that "Detroit" is a vast, moneyguzzling sewer.

We all need to learn to live in Michigan together. Forming another state is out of the question. The result would be another Yugoslavia that breaks up, then breaks up again, and yet again.

It's unnatural that governance of a state should break down on "Detroit" versus outstate

Painter remembered

e are reading the media's observation regarding the motorcycle accident involving Damon Painter through our tears. Our children were his friends and if we did not know better, reading about Damon would lead us to believe that he and his friends are wild hoodlums.

It saddens our hearts to see what is printed, knowing that what we read is only a few disastrous seconds of a youth's perceived immortality, in a life that was so full.

Thinking of Damon will always make us smile. He enjoyed life and had a great sense of humor. Everyone who met him was his friend.

His life can't be summed up in a few paragraphs, but it is much more than an unfortunate motorcycle accident, just ask anyone who knew him. Those who knew him could tell of many warm and humorous moments with any years ago my mother used to read to me stories about "The Boy Who Cried Wolf," "Pinocchio," "The Emperor's New Clothes" and other classic literary Strangely enough, today's political scene brings back such memories. I'm surprised many politicians do not have foot-long noses. How often have we heard, "We need more money for schools," or, "The new tax will enable us to fund schools," or, "The Lotto is designed to fund schools and avoid more new taxes.

Blame is misplaced

And now, the politicians are pointing the finger of blame in every direction but their own for the defeat of Proposal A. Anyone with an I.Q. higher than their shoe size can tell you that distrust and disgust with most legislators accounted for the defeat at the polls. More blame lies with the proposers than with the proposal.

Until such time when every legislator realizes that arrogance, greed, deceit and self-indulgence are not acceptable actions will we see changes. Until such time when enough good citizens stand up for their due rights and end this power-hold will we see such changes take place. I suggest that legislators clean up their act and go back to the drawing board once more and bring us a more palatable presentation.

Anthony Brehler, Livonia

Cut administrators, too

read with interest the letter "Schools need change" by Eric Peterson and Philip Powers' column in the June 3 edition of the Observer.

At the end of the 1992 and 1993 school years. we received a list of cuts that would/could happen if "Robin Hood" was enacted or Proposal A didn't pass. These lists primarily comprise what the Livonia school district is going to take away from the students, i.e., sports, music, sixth hour, etc., and positions that will be eliminated, i.e., teachers, secretaries, transportation employees, etc. Conspicuously absent from these lists were cuts of administrators or adjustments in their salaries.

As a parent of two students attending Livonia Public Schools, I don't feel that the present administration takes the concerns of parents or well-being of students seriously. I don't find the present administration to be user friendly.

We have a conscientious school board and I find the Frost Middle School and Churchill High PTAs are run by knowledgeable individuals and attended by concerned parents, teachers, etc. (I'm sure this is the case for all Livonia PTAs.) Why do we need a full-time, top heavy administration for the Livonia Public Schools to adequately function? I don't think we do.

Between the school board and an administration, made up of by part-time and volunteer positions for administrators and retaining a fulltime support staff, I feel the system would not only run adequately but efficiently. Parents concerns would be addressed and students wouldn't bear the brunt of the cutbacks. Give the system back to the residents of Livonia.

On the next list we get, I want to see cutbacks in administrators instead of penalties for students, teachers and employees.

Toni A. Briggs, Livonia

Where does money go?

egarding the defeat of proposal A. If my assessment went up about 14 percent this last go round, didn't the part that is destined for schools also increase by the same percentage? And, if most every other home owner experienced an increase in their assessment, doesn't this mean that the local school boards have more money this year than they had last year. How then do they give the same story that they can t meet their upcoming budg et.

This is the same as the federal government that has collected increased revenues year after year after year, but keeps going deeper in debt. Four words to my local school board, "it the spending stupid." School boards will spend every cent that is given to them, it about time that they are held more accountable to the taxpayer for all the money they are given. For the last 10-15 years nearly every worker is private industry has given up annual raises and have taken cuts in wages and benefits. What has the NEA and MEA done to help alleviate the school budget dilemma. What cuts and sacrifices have they made, and I don't mean giving up a 10 percent raise for a 6 percent raise.

Reviewing the objects on the chopping block in the Observer, I don't see one sacrifice that they are personally making. Did the teachers in Kalkaska get a full year's pay for a part-time job? Where is all this money going except for salaries and benefits and ultra grand retirement plans?

POINTS OF VIEW

Teachers' unions not corrupt but need to be curbed

s it possible? Can such things be?
Can the National Education Association be as corrupt as Forbes
Magazine portrays it in the June 7 edition — with the cover picture of an apple with a yucky worm crawling out?

Forbes brands NEA president Keith Geiger, technically still on leave as a Livonia math teacher, and his team the "Michigan Mafia." It quotes a Michigan source as calling NEA the "National Extortion Association," failing to note it came from a leader of Michigan's religious right.

Forbes accused NEA, parent of the MEA and nearly all local teachers unions, of "left-wing looneyism" and described it as a political superpower. It noted MEA has a subsidiary that hells health insurance to school districts — whether they want that brand to not

I asked two prominent state Republicans if they had read the article. GOP chair Dave Doyle liked the way Forbes detailed how NEA spends vast sums on one party. He said the GOP has "strong differences" with MEA. But when I asked him flat out if MEA is "evil," he ducked. Later he said MEA "worked well with the governor on Proposal A," the failed June 2 school tax measure.

Gov. John Engler likewise refused to throw mud at MEA. Although it never has supported his candidacies, he said he had received support from many individual educators. MEA fought his 1992 Proposal C property tax cut, but Engler added MEA "worked hard to pass Proposal A and did everything they said they would do."

Inside Michigan Politics, Bill Ballenger's newsletter, surveyed political watchers on the best and worst lobbies in Lansing for its May 24 edition.

MEA ranked No. 5 on the good list, behind the Chamber of Commerce, Governmental Consultant Services, Public Affairs Association, Jimmy Karoub's firm, and well ahead of the

TIM RICHARD

Trial Lawyers and the AFL-CIO.
On the bad list MEA was No. 4 behind Noble Kheder, Jimmy Karoub and the Chamber. So in Geiger's home state, the teachers union is nowhere near as formidable as Forbes paints it.

Readers know I'm no big fan of the teachers union, but one must be fair:

Forbes plays dirty when it links the rise of teacher unionism with declining test scores. It hints at a cause-and-effect relationship, but never even tries

Forbes exaggerates the teachers union's strength, at least in Michigan. Last August, for example, MEA batted zero for five in trying to nominate candidates at the Democratic State Convention. The UAW, AFSCME and AFL-CIO still run Democratic politics with an iron hand.

Forbes' own agenda is extremely conservative: the voucher system, a pet project of the religious right, and "right to work" laws, a Dixie darling. My guess is that 80 percent of Michiganians don't buy either notion.

■ Forbes plays dirty by comparing average teachers' salaries in a district to average local wages. Whoa! Someone with a master's degree in science deserves a bit more than a canning plant worker.

A more valid way to show the union's avarice would be to compare the percentage increase in teachers salaries to the increase in gross domestic product.

If NEA/MEA is no hobgoblin, it does deserve to be curbed.

First, under my government, no member of an MEA affiliate could be a public school board or public college trustee until five years after leaving school employment. Yes, teachers unions have captured many school boards and do bargain on both sides of the table.

Second, we should heed Engler and make school districts put out health insurance for competitive bidding rather than letting MEA force schools to deal with its subsidiary.

Third, teachers unions donate to one party although 40 percent of their members vote the other way. Curbing NEA/MEA would be a major campaign reform.

We must restore lifeblood to Detroit and older suburbs

find it sadly ironic that Wayne State University inducts old trackmen into its Sports Hall of Fame every few years when its track program, whose Detroit-bred stars put the school in frequent national headlines, has been phased out. It's equally sad that most of Detroit's tracks and baseball fields — are in disrepair.

Small wonder that many urban kids are running drugs instead of track and grabbing guns instead of bats. Such phaseouts are symptomatic of the decay to be seen many places in the Motor City, where the airport has lost its major carrier, abandoned houses rot in the neighborhoods, and majestic Woodward and Jefferson Avenue buildings that would command a king's ransom in suburbia stand unkempt and vacant. A similar kind of bankruptcy is threatening Detroit's contiguous suburbs for the same reasons — racism, rising costs, and the flight of corporate capital. The only savior of the older cities may be a financial merger of their municipal services with those of the rest of our surrounding suburbs.

But there are positive forces at work, too, which could prevent the need for this merger. In my multiple wanderings I mingle with upbeat young entrepreneurs like Detroiter Terry Wiseman, who lives in the Lofts on Jefferson. my old Pershing shot putter and ex-basketball great Spencer Haywood, who has moved back into Detroit from Southfield and is developing attractively-priced inner-city real estate, and Farmington attorney Steve Reissman, who along with me is a member of the Regional Citizens League - a tricounty revitalizer bent on enhancing urban-suburban interplay.

With Dennis Archer as mayor, some of their dreams for restoring the life blood to Woodward, Jefferson, and other major arteries will become real. Archer's election will also lessen the chance that even-more-beleaguered Highland Park, Chrysler's deserted stepchild, will have to be annexed by

JOHN TELFORD

Such phaseouts are symptomatic of the decay to be seen many places in the Motor City, where the airport has lost its major carrier, abandoned houses rot in the neighborhoods, and majestic Woodward and Jefferson Avenue buildings.

Detroit. I foresee a dynamic alliance between Archer and HP Mayor Lindsay Porter. Porter and his innovative director of development, Dennis Evans, also are making collaborative plans with canny old-time resident businessmen like ex-Wayne State track and baseball stars Cliff Hatcher and Joe Mallory. Hatcher recently took me to meet with Dave Winans, the father of the singing group, to draw up an outdoor track design to fit his facility—a previosly-boarded-up Detroit recreation center he leases for a single dollar.

This brings us back to the present sad state of the grass-roots track and baseball scene. While that state is indeed symptomatic of Detroit's decline, sports can be another means for her restoration, as well, if we can get enough kids so involved that they have no time for trouble. The Skillman Foundation's Dave Fukuzawa sits with me on the executive board of MOSAIC, the new Michigan organization for social advocacy and interculture (you can join by sending $25 to MOSAIC, Suite 420, 4000 Town Center, Southfield 48035). Recently he appointed me, ex-Tiger Willie Horton, and others to the Skillman-funded Michigan State University planning team for re-vamping recreational programs in Detroit, Highland Park, and Hamtramck.

A final sad irony regarding Wayne State (where I'll hold the 440-yard dash record forever unless they reinstitute track) is that its hometown planning team was embarrassingly outbid by MSU's, who made a better presentation. I leave you with a fitting snippet from an anonymous poem about old trackmen's membership in Wayne's forlorn Sports Hall of Fame: "Our marks are buried in a dried-up stream, While Wayne State U. still boasts a tennis team."

State legislators make poor choice in spending priority

here is something terribly wrong with the way those who govern Michigan are making spending choices. Consider:

Appropriations for state universities will be flat for the second year in a row. That will force big tuition hikes.

■ Social services spending has been cut so drastically that "the DSS workforce is at its lowest level in more than a decade, and in the children's services area, staffing levels are so low that the state is out of compliance with its own legal standards," according to a recent University of Michigan study.

■ Kindergarten through 12th grade school public school financing is a shambles. Don't be surprised to see some more Kalkaska-style school district closures later this year while the Legislature dithers on school aid.

Amid all this turmoil and dismay, the spending machine entitled "Department of Corrections" kept purring smoothly along. Corrections is scheduled to receive a 14 percent spending increase this year, putting total spending over $1 billion for the first time ever.

To get a sense of how much of the state budget pot is being gobbled up by Corrections, consider this: Of the total of $376 million available for new spending in all state activities, Corrections will consume $140 million or 37 percent.

What will this do? Open four new prisons and reduce overcrowding. Wonderful! Last time I checked, Michigan's prisons cost more than $21,000 per year per criminal — more than it costs to go to U-M Law School.

This pattern isn't new. Since 1984, when the prison spree was started by Gov. James Blanchard, the annual increase in Corrections spending has outrun spending increases for all other state appropriations. Since 1979; state spending on prisons has increased five times as fast as spending on other state services.

Recently, I had a chance to look through the Journal of the Michigan House of Representatives for the mid-May period when the House was considering the appropriations bill for the Department of Corrections. It makes depressing reading.

PHILIP POWER

The budget gives Michigan prisoners a $550,000 exercise facility and $200,000 to operate an electronic law library for each prison. Convicts get free health care, free room and board and, if they want it, free college educations and library services.

The House on May 19 defeated an amendment to the bill requiring released prisoners once employed to pay taxpayers for the costs of imprisonment. It also rejected an amendment to require prison wardens to meet annually with local government leaders to require non-violent prisoners to perform road work, park maintenance and other services.

The House also defeated an amendment requiring the governor and the attorney general to appeal the rulings of federal judges requiring the state to run the prison system in conformity with their whims.

Any decision to spend money represents a choice. Year in, year out, our Michigan government is choosing to spend scarce money to run prisons for criminals.

As Rep. Kirk Profit of Ypsilanti put it, "One sad irony of this is that, in a year when many districts will close schools, we'll open four new prisons"

This is a terrible misuse of funds, but it's going to take more of a crisis atmosphere than now exists to fix it.

Campaign finance reform bill works against Dem hopeful

To Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Debbie Stabenow, it looks like Republican Gov. John Engler wants to change the rules in the middle of the game.

The rules: Senate Bill 595, a campaign finance reform measure pushed through the upper chamber last week.

"There are 219 reasons to vote no," said Stabenow, a first term senator from Lansing. "They are the 219 out-of-state contributions to John Engler matched by state taxpayer dollars in 1990."

The bill still would allow candidates to collect contributions from non-Michigan residents, but there would be no matching state campaign dollars for non-residents' contributions.

The Senate passed the bill 20 to 15. All Republicans voted yes except David Honigman of West Bloomfield and one who was absent. All Democrats voted no except two who were absent.

Currently, a candidate may obtain $2 in state funds for every $1 of "qualifying contribution." SB 595 changes the definition of 'qualifying contribution' to exclude "a contribution by an individual who resides outside of this state.

It raises, from $2 to $3, the amount a Michigan income taxpayer may contribute to the state campaign fund.

Currently a candidate is limited to 66 percent state money for a campaign. SB 595 inserts an absolute cap of $990,000 in a primary and $1.125 million for a general election.

The bill raises the overall limit by a candidate's committee from $1.5 million to $2 million for one election.

Current law says costs of soliciting contributions are not considered as campaign expenditures. SB 595 removes that section, meaning solicitation costs would become campaign costs.

Glenn trips error-prone Titans

■ Westland John Glenn will make a return trip to the Class A baseball semifinals after winning Tuesday's quarterfinal game against Southgate Anderson, 10-1.

By STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Westland John Glenn caught Southgate Anderson on a good day. Well, from Anderson's standpoint, it was a bad day.

Anderson committed nine errors Tuesday and Glenn took advantage, rolling to a 10-1 victory in the Class A quarterfinal playoff game played at Chelsea High School.

Ironically, defense had been a strong suit recently for Anderson, which won 12 of its last 14 games and finished 19-13 overall.

"We played excellent defense — up until today," Anderson coach Scott Ferrante said. "Defense is one of the reasons we're where we are

The win sends Glenn, 27-4 overall, back to the semifinal where the opponent will be Grand Ledge, a 3-0 upset winner over No. 1 ranked Jenison in another quarterfinal. Friday's semifinal begins at 1 p.m. at Battle Creek's Nichols Field in Bailey Park. (Tickets are $4 per person.)

Glenn lost to Lapeer West 1-0 in last year's semifinal.

Ace Aaron Scheffer won Tuesday's game on the mound so Glenn coach Norm Hoenes said left-hander Bryan Besco will start Friday. Besco is 8-1 with a 1.5 earned run average.

"We don't step down much when Bryan pitches," Hoenes said. "He's a lefty and might have a few extra miles per hour on his fastball than Aaron (Scheffer).'

All of Glenn's runs against Anderson were unearned and the Rockets got strong pitching from Scheffer, a senior right-hander who was the losing pitcher in last year's semifinal.

Scheffer scattered three hits and allowed no earned runs. He twice picked runners off second base and seemed to get stronger as the game progressed, recording all five of his strikeouts in the last three innings.

Scheffer, who led the Rockets with three hits and two RBI, improved to 9-2 on the mound.

"Scheffer's as good a pitcher as we've seen this year," Ferrante said. "He's very quick with his pickoffs and took us out of a couple innings. Especially from second base. That's a run if we get a hit.'

Anderson starting pitcher Tommy Ilijewski allowed only six hits through six innings but four errors in the second inning led to two Glenn runs. The Rockets took a 4-0 lead with unearned runs in the third and fourth innings.

Anderson scored an unearned run in the fifth to cut the deficit to 4-1 but Glenn came alive in the seventh, scoring six runs on five hits and three more Anderson errors. Derek Besco and Bryan Besco started the seventh with singles and Nick James followed with a sacrifice bunt back to the mound. Ilijewski fielded the bunt cleanly but his throw to first base went out of play, allowing Derek Besco to score the fifth run.

Ilijewski was replaced by Richard Sandusky and the Rockets added four more runs on a groundout by Jarrod Hura and RBI singles by Jarrett Minch and Scheffer.

James, who had an RBI on a sacrifice fly in the third inning, scored two runs. Derek Besco (two hits), Jarrod Hura and Jeromey Cosby also scored

Donaldson replaces McKenzie at C'ville

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

Word officially leaked out this week - Livonia Clarenceville has a new varsity football coach.

In a press release dated June 5 but not received until June 14, Clarenceville athletic director Leo Kinsella announced that Chuck Donaldson, who played his prep football at Livonia Stevenson High, has been hired to replace Russ McKenzie.

Donaldson, just 25, becomes the Trojans' fifth head coach in five years.

McKenzie, meanwhile, left to take the head football and wrestling jobs, as well as a teaching position, at Ypsilanti Lincoln.

McKenzie, who took over when Mark Ladd bolted the Trojans' program in the middle of the 1991 season, posted an overall record of 5-9. (Ladd had replaced Vic Balaj

'We knew about two months ago that Russ was leaving," Kinsella said. "This appointment marks the first time, since the retirement of longtime coach Ralph Weddle (five years ago), that Clarenceville has had a football coach 'on staff.' The kids know Donaldson also coached football for one season at Shepherd High School (1989) and did his student teaching at Clarenceville.

And there will be some tactics I'll use from Central Michigan. I hope we can come up with something.

Donaldson, along with Kinsella, are currently putting together a football staff.

The new Clarenceville coach plans to bring CMU and Stevenson High product Mike Nettie on board as his offensive and defensive line coach.

Nettie, a tackle, twice earned All Mid-American Conference honors with the Chippewas.

Kinsella is also accepting applications for the remaining coaching positions on the varsity and JV staff. Those interested should call Kinsella at 473-8926.

Madonna awards Roy Mr. Baseball at banquet

Not everything comes easily after a record-setting season.

That's something Madonna University's baseball coaching staff discovered. The Fighting Crusaders, in just their fifth season, captured their first NAIA District 23 regular-season championship this year with a 22-4 record. They ended up with a 40-20 record — and several dilemmas.

Like who deserved which award.

As coach Mike George said over and over at Monday's awards banquet, several players could have been selected for any of the awards. The coaching staff tried to spread the awards around, but that wasn't always easy.

Rich Roy is proof of that. Roy, a senior and Livonia

BASEBALL

Clarenceville graduate, walked away with three awards, including the biggest of all - Mr. Baseball, presented to the player who best represents the game and the school.

Roy also collected the Sister Mary Francilene Leadership Award and was the team's Batting Champion. He had teamhighs in average (.338) and runs batted in (40); he also collected 11 doubles, a triple and eight home

"Nobody would ever have a problem having this guy on their team," said George.

Jeff Pendell, a junior third baseman from Livonia Churchill, was twice-honored. Pendell was named Mr. Defense after making just one error in district play and picked up the Ray Summers Athletic Excellence Award. Pendell hit .322 and led the Crusaders with 61 hits, 43 walks and seven sacrifices. He had eight doubles, two triples, two homers and 27 RRI.

One player who could not possibly be overlooked forced the creation of a new award: the Ed 'Dreslinski Most Valuable Player Award, presented to four-year standout Joe Brusseau, a threetime all-district selection at second base.

Brusseau, from Redford Bishop Borgess, batted .310 with teambests in runs scored (60), doubles (13), triples (three) and stolen bases (17). He had five homers and 26 RBI. He leaves as Madonna's career leader in at-bats, hits, triples and runs scored.

'We're going to miss him terribly," said George.

Other honorees were junior George Leung, the Academic Award winner for the third time and an academic All-American; senior Steve Coffell (Borgess), the Mr. Hustle Award; and senior Shaun Hayward, the Milt Wilcox Pitching Award (7-0, 1.45 earned run average).

A theme both George and Summers tried to drive home was establishing tradition. The team's new field should help in that respect. However, as Summers pointed out, one tradition that may not be easy to uphold is improvement. Madonna's record has gotten better eyery year.

Concealed Security bounces back after 'off-year'

The Concealed Security baseball team is trying to recover from its worst season under coach Lou Pirronello.

That is, if 26-12 is considered a poor season.

Concealed Security made backto-back trips to the regional, finishing 36-5 in 1990 and 35-6 in '91. Pirronello knows 26-12 is considered a success for most teams, but he'd like to make it back to the regional, this summer held Aug. 4-8 in Battle Creek.

"I thought last year's team was our best ever, talent-wise, with four players who were drafted,' said Pirronello, an assistant coach at Madonna University. "There were high expectations. We had the best team on paper but we didn't take it between the lines. This year I think our cohesiveness is better."

Concealed Security is undefeated in three games this season after Monday's 9-3 win at Ypsilanti.

Joel Hillebrand, a 47th round draft pick of the Detroit Tigers in this month's Major League Draft, was the winning pitcher with a three-hitter and eight strikeouts in six innings.

Madonna freshman red-shirt player Craig Peterson was 2-for-3 with an RBI and is now 7-8 for the season. Peterson is doing a fine job adjusting to his new position — catcher. Peterson is also expected to contribute at the mound, which will be crowded by starting pitching prospects Craig Benedict (Plymouth Canton), Mike Murray (Livonia), Hillebrand and Tim Holland (Madonna).

"He's our best player, our lead-Pirronello said of Peterson. "He worked hard at Madonna, didn't pout about being red-shirted, in fact he thought it was the best thing for him. Coach (Mike) George groomed him to catch and he's responded big time.

Tim White also was 2-3 with a pair of doubles and an RBI, J.R. Taylor was 2-4 with an RBI and Brett Walter (Redford Catholic Central) had a hit and two RBI.

Concealed Security swept a double-header Sunday from Livonia, 6-2 and 4-1, at Madonna Park, Concealed's home field.

Benedict scattered four hits and struck out seven to win Game 1, with relief help from Peterson. Peterson was 3-3 including a solo home run with three RBI. Shortstop Paul Kuhn (CC) had a double and White contributed a sacrifice fly for an RBI.

Mike Syjud, a freshman at Madonna, had a two-run double.

Pete Quinn (Redford Thurston) scored both Livonia runs. He came home in the first after lead. ing off with a double. He scored in the sixth on a wild pitch after starting the inning with a walk.

Concealed Security won the nightcap behind Murray's threehitter. Catcher John Raasch (CC), Peterson and Kuhn had two hits each. Peterson drove in two runs and Kuhn and White contributed one RBI each.

Chiefs' title dashed, 2-0

There is no better soccer team at playing the underdog role than Troy Athens.

In fact, as of Saturday, there is no better girls soccer team in the state than the Red Hawks.

Coach Tim Storch's Red Hawks chalked up their third Class A crown in the last five seasons and the third consecutive by a Metro Suburban Activities Association team, getting first-half goals from Susie Anderson and Laura Montecillo and some stellar defensive play led by Jamie Kallio to defeat host Plymouth Canton 2-

"This is what it's all about winning a state championship," Athens senior goalkeeper Dana Russell said. "We've been underdogs all year. It's nice to go out this way.

For Russell, along with senior teammates Liz DePerno, Karen Tessmer, Jessa Kallio and Jamie Kallio, the victory culminated successful high school careers in which each experienced the joy of a state championship on two different occasions.

In 1991, when the five were sophomores, the Red Hawks blanked Okemos 4-0.

Athens claimed its first girls soccer title in 1989 with a 1-0 win over Northville.

"Our focus has been tremendous all year," said Storch, who guided his players to a 22-2-1 record in his 12th season. "We knew that if we kept our focus, when the time came we would play for a state championship.

For the Chiefs (20-2-1), the loss marked the second time in as many years they have come up short in their bid to claim the Class A crown. Rochester Adams squeaked out a 1-0 win last year.

"I don't know what it is, but it's tough to score for us in a championship game," Plymouth Canton coach Don Smith said. "You have to give Troy Athens a lot credit because they came to play, and they did a real good job."

Completely outplayed and outhustled in the first 40 minutes, the Chiefs stormed back to provide some excitement in the second half. It appeared as though the Chiefs had sliced the deficit in half, but the goal was quickly disallowed when it was ruled that the ball had been hit out of Russell's hands.

"It was questionable, but we'll take it," Russell said after the game.

The call seemed to spark some life into the Red Hawks, who up until that point had been content to sit on their two-goal lead.

Thursday's semifinal battle with Portage Central could have taken more out of the Chiefs than expected, Smith said. "We won a tough won there, and sometimes it's pretty tough to come back two days later and play another tough one," Smith said. "I thought we could play over it, but we got careless in the first half. and they got two in there. The girls knew they had better come back with a better second half or they would be embarrassed.

With the victory, the Red Hawks completed a domination of tournament foes that saw them outscore opponents 29-4. In four of those wins, Russell recorded shutouts.

'I had been alternating between Dana and Gina (Belardi) most of the season, and both did a tremendous job," Storch said. "Then going into the state tournament I decided on Dana, and with her senior leadership, she stepped up and accepted the challenge.'

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

There's no hiding the losses Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team has suffered.

Others not returning are Nate Stovall, Sean Ryan, Brian Hauman, Jeff Cardinal and Aaron

In case you're keeping count, that's 11 players gone. Five of them were starters at least some of the time.

Trouble, right? Well, not exact-

Coming back for the defending champions of the NJCAA's Region 12 are seven players with starting experience, including the team's top three scorers (Andy Cosenza from Plymouth Salem, Dominic Vella from Livonia Churchill and Matt Lividini from Riverview Gabriel Richard) and its keeper (Matt Stabile from Ste-

With Stevenson grads Bill Lanspeary, Tim Lampi and Adam Carriere, all strong defensive players, also back, the Ocelots wouldn't be suffering in any case.

Lots of new talent

But add to the equation coach Van Dimitriou's newest recruits and SC's chances of successfully defending the title increase significantly.

The area that was of utmost importance was Mike's spot, said Dimitriou, referring to the loss of Presley, who's headed to Western Michigan to play. Abate and Worosz are planning on joining him in Kalamazoo. "With Matt Lee coming in, and a couple of other fullbacks, I think we've SC SOCCER there, but was ill when tryouts were held and never did. Now, he's back - and he brings something with him Presley didn't Presley stood 5-foot-8; Lee is 6-3, 180 pounds, something a sweeper can use. "He's a takecharge type player," said Dimitriou. "He's the sergeant I need back there.'

One element no one denied that SC possessed last season was its overwhelming talent. And yet, the Ocelots ran into problems with inconsistency, particularly scoring goals. That eventually caught up with them, when they lost 2-1 to Lewis and Clark CC in the NJCAA Inter-regional Tournament.

"We had too many people monopolizing the ball instead of playing as a unit," said Dimitriou. "That will not happen this year, or they won't be playing.

"I absolutely will not go through another season like

Additional offense

There are several "new" factors that reinforce Dimitriou's plan. Like Joe Perron (5-10, 160) Salem's leading scorer last season, who Dimitriou called "a tireless worker: persistent, very durable, very workmanlike"; and Fadi Bazi (5-8, 155), a first team all-stater from Dearborn who scored 43 goals as a senior, a player who's "very, very quick, and evasive with the ball. He has a knack for finding the net"; and Vince Troiani (5-6, 150), Churchill's leading scorer the past two seasons, another player who's "good with the ball.

"We're looking pretty good up front," admitted Dimitriou.

Helping defensively are a pair of Stevenson grads, both good marking backs: Tim McCarley (5-10, 170), a '92 grad who spent a year at Western Michigan but did not play, and Mike Sneyd (6-0, 180). Both have the size Dimitriou covets. "We're growing up on defense," he noted.

There are others who will help in several areas. Like Ryan Piper (5-9, 160), from South Lyon, a midfielder who's "very quick but intelligent as well. He reads the play well. Very rarely did I see him out of position." And a pair of Novi grads, midfielder Ryan Olson and left wing Eric Reed, who come with strong recommendations from Larry Christoff, SC's former coach now at Novi.

Depth and experience

Then there's Farmington grad David Shepherd (5-8, 150), a parttime starter at midfield and on defense for the Falcons; Dearborn Crestwood's Garrett Binkley (5-8, 150), team captain and top scorer for the past two seasons; Milford Lakeland's Tom Kuzak (5-11, 160), the Eagles' most valuable player who will play midfield and defense; and Northville's Chuck Collins, a small (5-8) but quick and capable keeper.

There are other players Dimitriou is still working on, such as Oxford grad Andy Mathison, a strong all-around player, and Canton keeper Ryan Henkel (6-2, Everything considered, it seems SC should at least match last year's 12-2-1 finish. The question is, can the Ocelots surpass it? Can they reach the NJCAA Tournament, a goal which, even though SC has dominated the region since Dimitriou took over a decade ago, has generally evaded them (just one appearance)?

This team will have much more experience (only three players had played JC experience last season) and at least an equal amount of talent. "With the players we have coming back - I don't see another team with that kind of nuclesaid Dimitriou. "Plus with the influx of new players, I think we'll be in a good position to defend our title

Make that a very good position.

Plymouth Salem's girls track team took second place in the Class A meet earlier this month, so the Rocks have a large representation on the 1993 All-Area first team.

No one meant more to the Rocks than senior Tonya Wheeler, who finished her career as a two-time state champion and anchored two relays that also placed at state.

The Rocks placed two other athletes on the first team - Sarah Makins and Sarah Hamilton so the future looks promising as well.

Salem coach Mark Gregor, who guided the Rocks to the Western Lakes Activities Association and regional crowns, is the Coach of

INDIVIDUAL EVENTS

Kim Morrow, shot put. Wayne: The feet, 10 inches, which was best in Observerland. She was second in the Wolverine A Conference and a state qualifier afwinning the regional.

Morrow also threw the discus, recording the third-best toss in Observerland (112-7). She will attend Eastern Michigan

"Kim is a team player, really competitive and focused," coach Floyd Carter said. "She's the No. 1 athlete on the team, a leader Selena Bastine, discus, Canton: Bastine's best throw (122-3) gave her a school record. The senior was undefeated in dual meets and a runner-up in the regional. The team captain was the Westem Lakes champion and also won the Thunderbird Invitational and was third at the Lyle Bennett Relays. She plans to attend Western Michigan University.

"Selena is an excellent technician when it comes to throwing the discus," coach George Przygodski said. 'For four years, she has put the time and effort in the circle as well as the weight room.

Colleen Lesondak, high jump, Stevenson: Just a sophomore, Lesondak was impressive in the regular season, winning the DeLaSalle, Clarkston and Stevenson invitationals. Each performance was a meet record. She also was a regional champ and placed 10th at the ŝtate meet.

Her best jump (5-6) is a school record, an improvement of eight inches over her freshman best.

"Colleen was probably our most imcoach Paul proved athlete this year, Holmberg said. "She should continue to set new records at Stevenson as she continues to get stronger."

Courtney Jane Brown, long jump, John Glenn: Brown has a bright future after finishing second in the WLAA and having a personal best long jump of 16-7. The sophomore scored 107 points for the

'Courtney is a dedicated and talented athlete," coach John Kitchen said. "She was first or second in the long jump all season and also is one of our best sprint-

Sarah Makins, 100 hurdles, Salem: The junior had the Makins of a good season, going undefeated in seven duals, winning the 100 hurdles in the WLAA and regional. Her best time (15.7) came the WLAA meet. She also placed sixth in the long jump at state meet and had Observerland's best jump (16-91/2). Sarah is not only an outstanding athlete but an outstanding young lady," coach Mark Gregor said. "Her hard work and dedication have resulted in a steady climb to elite status in each of her events. Being a junior, she has a ways to go before she reaches her full potential.

Tranessa Burroughs, 300 hurdles, Wayne: Burroughs (senior) won the regional in the 300 hurdles (46.6), was the Wolverine A champ and ran a leg on the 400 relay that won the league

"Tranessa has a lot of talent not discovered yet," Wayne coach Floyd Carter

Ndu Okwamabua, 100 dash, Plymouth Canton: Okwumabua is a repeat choice on the All-Area team for the 100 dash after recording a school record time (12.2) and taking first in the WLAA and regional. She also was the WLAA high jump champ and was third in the state.

The junior, who carries a 3.6 grade point average, led Canton in scoring.

Okwumabua competed in four events.

"Ndu is an outstanding student athlete and perhaps the most versatile track athlete in the area," Przygodski said. "Her commitment to improving herself and her team has once again made her the area's premier sprinter.

Sarah Hamilton, 200 dash, Salem: The sophomore was a WLAA and regional champion and was unbeaten in seven dual meets. She had the area's best time in the 200 dash (25.9) and was sixth in the state in the 400.

She qualified for the state meet in four events, starring as a leadoff runner in the 800 and 1,600 relay teams — which set school records. The 1,600 relay was second and the 800 relay fourth at the state

Hamilton is already fourth in career scoring at Salem.

'Sarah has accomplished more in two years of track and field competition than most athletes do in four years," Gregor said. "Her commitment to being the best is the driving force behind a superior work ethic, which includes weights, speed work and aerobic training.

Tonya Wheeler, 400 dash, Salem: Wheeler is Salem's all-time leading scorer and a two-time state champ in the 400. Wheeler was a six-time regional champion and a WLAA champ 12 times. She is a WLAA record holder in the 400 dash Wheeler, who is headed to the Univeris a state indoor 600 champion and a gold-medal winner in the 1,600 relay at the European Games.

Tonya is simply the best," Gregor said. "Her numerous accomplishments and accolades are overshadowed by only one thing --- her wonderful attitude. In her mind, nothing accomplished individually is worth it unless the team does equally well. Tonya has left a lasting legacy for all future teams to admire."

Elleen O'Connell, 800 run, Mercy: O'Connell (sophomore) placed fourth in Class A in the 800 and was the Catholic League, regional and Operation Friendship champion. Her time at the Operation Friendship met (2:17.5) was a school

"Eileen is an incredible runner whose range is one of her best attributes," Mercy coach Gary Servais said. "She is very exciting to watch, and with the perforthis spring, we're really looking forward to cross country next fall.

Lana Boroditsch, 1,600 run, Canton: Boroditsch's best time (5:13.8) was a school record, and she was the WLAA and regional champ in the 1,600. She also won the Spartan Relays and was runnerup at the Lyle Bennett Relays. She has a 1.0 grade-point average. Boroditsch (junior) did all this after recovering from a leg injury that prevented her from running cross country last fall.

'Lana made a remarkable recovery,' Przygodski said. "Lana is a verv detertion. Her work ethic made it possible for the strong finishes at the regional, WLAA and state meets."

Emily Shively, 1,600 run, North Farmington: Shively finished her career with school records in the 1,600 (5:14.7) and 3,200 (11:30.2) events. Shively was the West Bloomfield and regional champ in the 1,600; she took second at the Oakland County meet and fourth in the WLAA in the 1,600.

Shively was a regional champ in the 3,200 and placed second in the conference and at West Bloomfield. She also led North to its first city championship since 1986 by winning or helping win four events (800, 1,600, 3,200 and 3,200 relay).

"Emily has always put the team ahead North coach Bill Pinnell said. "She pays attention to the details, is a hard-working, dedicated and disciplined athlete and, above all, an outstanding young lady." A.J. Koritnik, 3,200 run, Stevenson: Stevenson's leading scorer and most valuable athlete, Koritnik broke a school record in the 3,200 (11:21.4) that was 15 years old. The senior was undefeated dual meets, first at the Clarkston and Stevenson invitationals and was a WLAA champion. She qualified for state in the 1.600 and 3.200 events, taking fourth in "A.J.'s success is a result of her total commitment to excellence," Holmberg said. "No one ever outworked her in practice or in the classroom. She set the standard for Stevenson's track team."

RELAY TEAMS

400 relay (Becky Bockstanz, Oilve lkeh, Karina Klipelainen, Ndu Okwuma bua). Canton: The four women won a WLAA championship for the second straight year, and their best time (50.6) is a school record. They were Troy Athens Relays champions and a repeat choice on the All-Area team.

"Becky, Olive and Ndu are outstanding sprinters, and Karina is one of the area's finest hurdlers," Przygodski said. "Great things once again are expected from this team as only Kilpelainien graduates."

800 relay (Sarah Hamilton, Dana Driscoli, Marcia Parker, Tonya Wheeler), Salem: The team was a regional mp and set a school record (1:44.4) The four women were undefeated in dual meets, fourth at the state meet and champions of the WLAA, Stafford, Spartan, Lady Chief and Lyle Bennett relays Driscoll and Wheeler are four-time members of the team that claimed a league

'Sarah gets the relay started with a lightning fast start and gets the baton to Dana before their opponents can get a chance to challenge," Gregor sald. "Marcia is an up-and-coming sprinter who continues to improve, and Tonya finished the relay with state-caliber speed and was never pressured this season."

1,600 relay (Sarah Hamilton, Courtney Sheldon, Stacy Witthoff, Tonya Wheeler), Salem: The four took second at the state meet. Their best time is a school record (4:01.4), and they tied a WLAA record by winning in 4:06.6. They were undefeated in seven duals, won the regional and won the Spartan, Lady Chief and Stafford relays. Witthoff, who is the third runner in school history to score 1,000 points, was added to the relay this season

Event offers plenty to harp about

Harpists from all over the country, including Christa Grix of Plymouth Township, will be performing heavenly and jazzy music June 23-26 at the American Harp Society's 30th annual conference in Ann Arbor. The event is open to the public.

BY KEELY WYGONIK

When asked where she'll play next, harpist Christa Grix of Plymouth Township laughed and said, "on a freeway near you.

A free-lance harpist, she travels a lot, performing at weddings, jazz concerts, and with orchestras. Next week, she'll be in the vicinity of I-94, M-14, and US-23 at the American Harp Society's 30th National Conference, June 22-26 at the University of Michigan School of Music in Ann Arbor.

Conference events are open to the public and include concerts, exhibits, workshops, and a national performance competition. For information,

"I'm looking forward to it. There's something to appeal to everyone," she

As a musician, Grix wears every kind of hat. "One day I'll be at a church playing church music, the next with an orchestra playing concert music, the next playing jazz. I also play at weddings.

She'll be playing jazz harp at the festival with her trio — Bruce Don-dero on bass and Pete Siers on drums - at a reception after the opening recital of the conference on Wednesday,

Grix discovered the harp while attending Mercy High School in Farmington Hills and "loved it." She studied with Velma Froude at Michigan State University and with Lucile Lawrence at Boston University. She received her bachelor's and master's degrees in music from Michigan State University, and is completing her law degree from Wayne State University. Kerstin Allvin, who grew up in Bloomfield Hills and recently performed at a Cranbrook Music Guild series concert, will be one of the featured musicians in a recital on Friday, June 25 at Rackham Auditorium. She and flutist Laura Larson will perform "Detours," a piece they commissioned in 1988 from Michigan composer James Hartway.

We wanted a piece that was very American, very Detroit, for a recital in Detroit's sister sister, Toyota City, Japan," said Allvin. "Thanks to that, I met Jim."

The two are now married. Allvin was only 10 when she began studying harp with Elyze Ilku, principal harpist of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. She continued her studies with Susann McDonald at Indiana University, where she received a performance certificate in addition to a bachelor of music degree.

She received a master of music degree from the University of Michigan studying with Lynne Aspnes, conference chairman and associate professor of music. Allvin is principal harpist of the Flint and Saginaw symphonies and is on the faculty at the Flint School of Performing Arts.

This is the first time the conference has been held in Michigan, and Aspnes is excited. "Virtually everyone involved has a tie to Michigan,' she said. "Harpists are everywhere. People don't perceive it as mainstream because you only need two harps in an orchestra. You don't see

Insightful comedy child's play for Troy actress

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

As an actress, Kathryn Cherasaro of Troy has played 16-year-olds and even 15-year-olds, but never a 5-yearold, until now.

She has been getting rave reviews as Lucy, the 5-year-old little sister of 12-year-old Edna Arkins (Kate Peckham) in Lynda Barry's delightful comedy about coming of age in the early 1960s, "The Good Times are Killing Me," at the Attic's New Center Theatre.

"Good Times" is about two girls, one black and one white, who become friends.

Narrated by Edna, "Good Times" remembers best friends, peer pressure, neighborhood toughs, crazy relatives and the agony of younger siblings, all accompanied by the songs of the era — from Paul Anka to James Brown, and the whole range in between, said director Annette Madias.

"It's funny because you have adults playing children, yet it's very insightful," said Madias. "It pokes "THE GOOD TIMES ARE fun at race relations, wacky relatives, and sibling relationships.'

"I love playing a 5-year-old. I can do anything I want," said Cherasaro, 24, a graduate of Troy Athens High School and the University of Detroit.

Some of her other roles include Mary Brenham in "Our Country's Good" at the Attic and Ida in "First Is Supper" at the Jewish Ensemble

"The story takes place in a subdivision, and (tells) what happens when the first black family moves in. First it's about leaving then it's about prejudice.' 'Lucy is like the unwanted little sister who wants to have fun," said Cherasaro. "They're always saying 'Now Lucy, now no.' I even have a little temper tantrum.' If there's any lesson to be learned. Cherasaro said, it's about the loss of innocence. Edna becomes best friends during the summer with the black girl, Bonna (Rashida McElvene) who moves in across the street. When they return to school in the fall, where both are in seventh grade, they're forced apart by peer pressure along

During a matinee attended by students from different parts of the metro area, Cherasaro said you could feel the tension in different areas of the theater where there were black and white students.

"Everything is learned. We still see a problem going on," she said. "The show is about what it's like to be black, and white, and growing up. In many ways everyone has a part of their life they see in the show.

Although it's a comedy, Cherasaro said she's seen people cry. When that happens, she said, "we know we've done our job."

In addition to Cherasaro and Peckham, "Good Times" features Rashida McElvene, Marilyn Mays, Harry Wetzel, Augustus Williamson, Michael Chenevert and Lance Retallick.

Schwarzenegger: 'Last Action Hero'

tures' "Last Ac-Hero, opening Friday suburban movie theaters, is an action adventure fantasy starring Arnold Schwarzenegger as Jack Slater, a relentless, powerful movie hero who has never lost a battle on the big screen.

Slater can dodge bullets effortlessly, survive tremendous explosions and take on an army of thugs singlehandedly.

His movie world gets shaken up when a magical ticket blasts 11year-old Danny Madigan (Austin O'Brien) out of his theater seat and into the movie.

Teamed with his favorite action hero, Danny gets to live out his wildest fantasies as he crashes cars, flies through windows and takes on the bad guys in a fictional movie world where anything is possible. It's a world where the good guys always win and a lot of the characters in Slater's world look surprisingly like actors from

To complicate Slater's life. Danny's magical ticket falls into the hands of the movie villains who escape to the real world. where crime can, and often does, pay. So Slater and Danny are forced to leave fictional Los Angeles for real-life New York to get the bad guys.

However, once there, Slater has to deal with the fact that he's a product of a Hollywood screenwriter and that his world is a piece of movie fiction. He now finds himself in Danny's world, where a punch can mean a broken hand, and a gun can spell death.

Without the movie magic to help him, Slater finds himself up against his most challenging adventure ever and having to prove that he really is a hero through and through.

Arnold Schwarzenegger joins forces once again with director John McTiernan. "Last Action Hero" is based on a story by Zak Penn and Adam Leff with a screenplay by Shane Black and

A Steve Roth/Oak Production, the motion picture is produced by Steve Roth and John McTiernan; Robert E. Relyea and Neil Nordlinger are co-producers and Arnold Schwarzenegger serves as executive producer. The movie is rated PG-13 (Parents are Strongly Cautioned).

Also featured in "Last Action Hero" are Art Carney, Charles Dance, F. Murray Abraham, Frank McRae, Tom Noonan, Robert Prosky, Anthony Quinn, Mercedes Ruehl and Austin O'Brien.

"Last Action Hero" marks the motion picture debut of Sony's revolutionary new digital audio release format for motion pictures, dubbed Sony Dynamic Sound. Offering superior dynamic and frequency range with virtually no distortion or extraneous noise, the system has total capacity to distinguish between every level of sound - sound that is felt as well as heard - from the softest whisper, to the reverberating thunder of an explosion, to pure and complete silence paying six bucks to see it. Despite the shortcomings in the script, man and dinosaur do share some exciting moments on screen.

"Jurassic Park," based on the bestselling book by Michael Crichton, proposes the intriguing thought that genetic engineering can create a dinosaur theme park with real-live prehistoric specimens.

Laura Dern, Sam Neill and Jeff Goldblum play scientists enlisted for a Jurassic Park preview. The park's owner, a billionaire science buff played by Richard Attenborough, hopes they will write glowing testimonials before the official

Instead, the scientists prove skeptical about reviving long-extinct plant and animal forms, and grow even more so when their electric-powered safari Jeep strands them in the middle of the

It's raining outside and puddles ripple from the thundering footsteps of an approaching Tyrannosaurus rex. After chomping down on one of the party, the deadly dino picks up Jeeps like toys and starts teething on the rubber tires.

The state-of-the-art effects, which combine models and com-puter animation, help "Jurassic Park" rise above your typical 1950s monster matinee. You remember the kind, where the director filmed iguanas from low angles and had them fight to the death while the scientific party looked on in wonder.

Spielberg, who was weaned on this stuff, certainly knows how to grab your attention from the first frame. He did it in "Jaws" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and does it again here, when a deadly Velociraptor, the dino-villain in the movie, makes lunch out of a handler during transport.

What the director doesn't prepare us for is the boring half-hour that follows. He should realize, like the actors seem to, that the dinosaurs are the stars. When Spielberg finally gets up to speed, the action rarely lets up.

Of course, there are kids tossed in, though their intense battles with the dinosaurs will probably frighten younger viewers. Parents will be glad to know that despite a disembodied arm, the hungry dinosaur munching scenes (so graphic in the book) are surprisingly bloodless here.

"Jurassic Park" won't win Spielberg his much-coveted Oscar this year. But rest assured that, critical nitpicking aside, this will be the big summer winner at the box office. And with a wow-factor as big as a brontosaurus, who's to say that it doesn't deserve it?

"Jurassic Park," is now showing at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Americana West, AMC Southfield City, Showcase Westland, United Artists West River, General Cinemas Canton, Star Rochester Hills and AMC Laurel Park.

Once Upon a Forest' caters to kids

full-length animated feature from David Kirschner, the creator of "An American Tail." opens Friday at suburban movie theaters.

The story chronicles the travels of three woodland creatures who must leave the comfort of their homes in a daring race against time as the life of their young friend hangs in the balance.

Michael Crawford ("The Phantom of the Opera") and Ben Vereen ("Jelly's Last Jam") provide the voices for two of the film's characters, and each performs a song on the music-filled soundtrack.

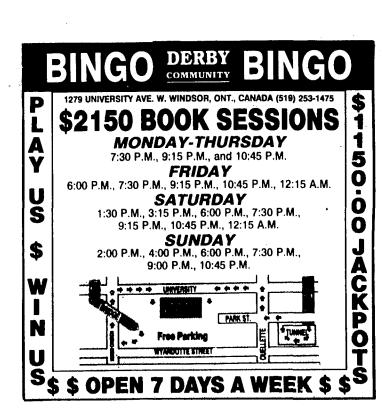

Released by Twentieth Century Fox, "Once Upon a Forest," is a Hanna-Barbera Production produced in association with HTV Cymru/Wales Ltd. The film, rated G for general audiences, is produced by David Kirschner and Jerry Mills, directed by Charles Grosvenor and written by Mark Young and Kelly Ward, based upon characters and a concept created by Rae Lam-

Here's your chance for a magic moment

Do you need a new audience for your basement magic tricks? Here's a chance - the Meadow Brook Music Festival is looking for a few good magicians.

Auditions for Michigan Magicians will be 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 22, at the Meadow Brook Music Festival. At the auditions, guest magicians will be selected to perform on festival grounds at the "Mad, Mad World of Magic" on opening night, Wednesday, June 23. One grand prize winner will be asked back to perform on stage, as the opening act to the renowned Landis.

All guest magicians will win tickets to attend the "Mad, Mad World of Magic." To register for auditions, call 596-3287.

If you'd rather watch others perform magic, plan to attend the 'Mad, Mad World of Magic" at the Meadow Brook Music Festival for five performances Wednesday-Thursday, June 23-24.

Tickets are $9 and $7.50 with $1.50 off for children 12 and younger. Tickets available at the Fox Theatre Box Office, the Joe Louis and Cobo Arena box offices and all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge tickets, call 645-6666. For information, call 396-7600.

This event will feature Aubrey, King of the Elves, in a theatrical enactment of three stories -

"The Snow Princess," "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" and "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks." Combining illusions, special effects, imaginative choreography, comedy and colorful costumes, this show appeals to children of all ages.

The "Mad, Mad" program begins with the magical appearance of Aubrey, King of the Elves. Reaching into his magic story ingredients that transport him into various adventures

Magical moments include Aubrey penetrating a solid glass mirror with a metal rod. Aubrey mystifies his audience with magical silver rings, plus a balloon that won't pop. Next, ducks appear and disappear; magical roses grow from nowhere.

The performance concludes with "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks." It is the lively tale of a clowning rogue who wanders the countryside being mischievous.

Once the targets are set, they should gradually move toward this allocation and periodically monitor the funds to make sure they are performing as planned.

They hope to retire by the time Larry is 60. But they should realize they need a substantial nest egg to be able to retire that soon. If he does retire at that time, they will likely need to draw on their investment income for many years. Bonnie will only be 52 and will probably spend more time in retirement than she did in her working career. Inflation, even if modest, will become a significant

Bonnie has indicated an interest in cutting back her work to part-time in 1994, possibly returning to teaching at the college. ## Analysis from Next page

Most companies are run by management teams, Holmes said, which makes it critical that all members are compatible.

Millions of dollars are spent each year because of poor hiring decisions, Holmes concluded. Often this is a result of a company hiring a person who is qualified, but not the right choice for a spe cific job.

No legal hassles

Robert Webster, an attorney with Hill Lewis in Birmingham, said there are no Equal Employ: ment Opportunity Commission regulations against the use of handwriting analysis to his knowledge so an employer who asks for a writing sample or uses a writing sample is not infringing on a person's right to privacy.

"At the initial hire, the employer can make up his or her own mind (on the need or validity of handwriting analysis)," he said.

Webster speculated that the only time a problem might arise is when handwriting analysis would be used for deciding between candidates for an internal promotion.

Even then, he added, he isn't aware of any instance in which handwriting analysis has been challenged. The key component of any test used by an employer to examine job candidates is that it

An unbiased analysis

Elizabeth Mills of Livonia, president of the American Association of Handwriting Analysts said that while handwriting analysis isn't an exact science, neither are medicine or psychology.

Mills said handwriting analysis is a useful tool for employers precisely because it unbiased.

Handwriting analysis offers an objective assessment of a person, Mills said. Because handwriting analyzing cannot determine sex, age, religion, race, ethnic or cultural background, it is an ideal tool for selecting qualified people without discriminating on nonessential details.

"From it we can tell if this is a work alone person or a team player, a go-getter or a sit back and wait person," she said. "Does the person have integrity?"

Those are the things employers really want to know.

Starting to catch on

Mills said that handwriting analysis has only recently begun to gain legitimacy in corporate America — which is surprising since European corporations have utilized it as a way to evaluate people for many years.

"We (in the United States) have had to overcome the 'carnival' feeling of it," she said. "A lot wall of businesses are still afraid to come out of the closet and admit, they do it."

Handwriting analysis has often 4.2 been viewed as a party gimmick and or sideshow attraction, Mills said: 1210

"lt's serious business," she said. "In Europe, you have to take a year of graphology to become a psychiatrist."

Handwriting reveals the writer's true personality

Certainly, it takes a lot more than a couple of minutes to learn how to analyze handwriting; many handwriting analysts spend years studying to learn the craft.

We don't promise to make you an expert in the next several paragraphs — that would be like taking Psychology 101 at a local university and sending you out to practice psychotherapy.

That being said, here are some of the ways handwriting analysts develop personality profiles from handwriting, as explained by Ruth Holmes, founder of Pentec, Inc, in Bloomfield Hills.

The emotions of a person can be determined by the slant found in handwriting. Slanting to the left or straight up and down indicates a withdrawn person. A slant toward the right indicates a friendly personality and a heavy slant toward the right indicates an impulsive personality.

A person's energy can be determined by pressure. Someone who presses hard when they write tend to have more energy than those who press lightly when writing.

Size helps determine ones confidence level. Someone who writes large tends to be more confident ily determined when people write on unlined paper, helps determine a person rhythm. Someone who writes very straight (horizontally) tends to be rigid. Someone who writes along a straight line but more fluidly tends to be steady. Someone who writes une-

The way a person writes an oval will also give the handwriting analyst a clue to a person's inner makeup. A typical "o" closed at the top will indicate how communicative a person is. People who don't close the "o" tend to be more talkative and open. People who close the "o" by cutting across the top, thereby splitting the "o" into two unequal parts tend to be more secretive.

The lower loop of letters indiloop tends to be more outgoing.

How a person crosses a "t" also" tells a handwriting analyst sever-" al things about a writer. Someone who presses very hard while crossing a "t" tends to be enthusiastic; someone who presses lightly

Where a person crosses the "t" gives a clue to a person's ambition. Someone who crosses a "t" nearer to the bottom tends to be satisfied. Someone who crosses a "t" in the middle tends to be practical. A person who crosses a 't" at the top or above the vertical colleague's shoulder and trying to surmise if he or she is a lunatic or a candidate for a Nobel prize is not recommended.

Again, handwriting analysts spend years learning the science of handwriting analysis and there is much more to it than simply looking for slants and how a person crosses a "t."

Remember, to paraphrase Thomas Henry Huxley, a little 'c knowledge can be dangerous.

BUSINESS Handwriting is on the wall

■ Business executives are using handwriting analysts to get the answers to questions they aren't allowed to ask job applicants and promotion candidates.

By GERALD FRAWLEY STAFF WRITER

When hiring, employers shall not discriminate on the basis of race, sex

Handwriting, however, is still fair

Actually, it's not penmanship that employers are interested in, but the personalities and motivations that are evident through handwriting.

In these days of rules and regula-tions, when personnel managers cannot ask questions about such seemingly innocent topics as marital status, corporations seeking the employee with the right personalities and motivations has become a daunt-

Handwriting analysts and document examiner Ruth Holmes, owner of Pentec Inc. in Bloomfield Hills, said that more and more companies are interested in handwriting analyzing as a means of identifying job and promotion candidates.

A nationally recognized handwriting analyst, court qualified witness and document examiner. Holmes specializes in analysis for business, legal and private clients from Fortune 500 companies throughout the country.

"(Handwriting analysis) defines personality and performance poten-Holmes said. "I don't think there's anything more important than those factors (when someone is being considered for a job)."

Of course, Holmes doesn't recommend that companies depend solely on handwriting analysis. Work experience, references, skills and education also must be considered.

Handwriting analysis can go deeper, helping to separate the candidates already selected through the conventional process, she said.

"We don't say hire this person or don't hire this person," Holmes said. 'That's not our role.'

Instead, a handwriting analyst points out a person's strong and weak points, personality traits, how they interact with others and solve problems and the potential for compatibility with employers or colleagues.

What I do is develop a behavioral profile," she said.

Holmes said the growth in handwriting analysis in the past 20 years can be attributed to several factors, most notably the legality and restrictions placed on the interviewer and the desire to find better people.

Corporate America is finding that when they do an interview, they are not permitted to ask so many things. Holmes said handwriting analysis is even more prominent when corporations are looking for key executives.

'When it comes down to a question of who will lead, handwriting analysis is even more significant," she said.

On several occasions, she has done handwriting analysis of the existing executives like the president and CEO in addition to the candidate.

With 2 incomes, no children, couple needs to ease tax bite

By DANIEL BOYCE and ALAN FERRARA SPECIAL WRITERS

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the people profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participant's resources and goals. The information is intended to be educational: references are not intended as discrimination or endorsements by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers or the advi-

Like many people, this month's couple have a general idea of what they want their future to be but they need to focus on specifics.

Larry and Bonnie Williams, ages 44 and 36 respectively, live in Farmington Hills. Larry runs a large non-profit organization and Bonnie heads the history department of a local college. Larry earns $78,000 and Bonnie $46,000. They have no children.

Whether by accident or design, the Williams have done a good job establishing a financial base. They each have comprehensive medical and disability coverage and their auto and homeowners. insurance are in good shape.

One area of their base, life insurance, needs more attention. Bonnie's employer does provide her with a $25,000 term insurance policy and she also owns a small ($38,000) whole life policy. Larry only has a $200,000 whole life pol-

Although Bonnie has less insurance on her life than Larry. she needs much less. If she should die, Larry would still be able to live relatively comfortably because of his higher earnings.

While $200,000 on Larry's life may sound like a large sum, it would replace less than three years of his income. Even if Bonnie continued to work full time, she would probably be forced to cut back significantly on her standard of living If Larry suddenly

We suggest that the Williams purchase at least another $250,000 to $300,000 of personal coverage on Larry. This can either be term or whole life, depending on their other objectives and plans. If Larry ever leaves his current position, he should certainly convert the $200,000 policy paid by his employer into a personally-

ASSETS STRENGTHS INVESTED ASSETS: Two steady incomes Checking $2,000 20% of salaries automatically placed into pension plan (TIAA-CREF) Savings 7,000 Cash value of life ins. 15,000 Estate plan in place Mutual funds 26,000 Good auto, homeowners, health insurances Annuity 44,000 20,000 Adequate emergency reserves TIAA-CREF 10,000 TOTAL INVESTED $124,000 WEAKNESSES Investments somewhat scattered; no PERSONAL USE ASSETS: Home $150,000 Insufficient life insurance Auto 11,000 · Tax liablility is substantial Furnishings, etc. 20,000 Need for pension plan investment TOTAL NON-INVESTMENT $181,000 TOTAL ASSETS $305,000 LIABILITIES LIABILITIES: Home mortgage $133,000 Auto loan 11,000 TOTAL LIABILITIES $144,000 NET WORTH $161,000 owned policy, assuming the cost is reasonable.

How to ease taxes?

Their two steady incomes, a financial strength, has allowed them to save an adequate emergency reserve. Their total income however, does lead to a weakness: A substantial tax liability.

Obviously, they want to know if their is any way to pay less taxes and meet their savings goals

We suggest they maximize taxdeferred or retirement plan savings. Their biggest financial strength is the availability of the TIAA-CREF Retirement Plan available to them as employees of a non-profit organization.

They have just begun having 20 percent of their salaries automatically placed into this plan (part employer-pald, part their own contribution). The money contributed is tax deductible and all earnings are tax-deferred, allowing the fund to grow faster.

The TIAA portion is a fixed interest account, while the CREF part provides a number of stock and bond investment alternatives. One of their biggest decisions will be the allocation of these assets in the future.

Currently, the TIAA-CREF represents a small portion of their total assets. But with contribu-tions and growth, it soon will provide the largest area of investment for them. They ought to maximize available deferrals into the TIAA-CREF vehicles.

Define asset targets

Since Larry and Bonnie have at ieast 16 years until retirement, we suggest they place most of their retirement fund assets into CREF rather than the fixed-interest TIAA. If they want, they could place 25 percent into the TIAA for stability and peace of mind. With the rest of the investment they should set up specific asset allocation targets.

FAMILY LIFE

Try patience when a child gets unruly

Recently, while going about the routine task of grocery shopping, I couldn't help but notice that down the breakfast cereal aisle a child was wailing, kicking and screaming at the top of his lungs. The child appeared to be about 3 years old. He was accompanied by an adult; I assume his

The woman (mom) tried to ignore the child's desperate attempt to get whatever it was he was so very distraught over. However, the more she tried to pretend to ignore his outburst, the more the child acted out. His aim, I suppose, was to continue his act until the audience applauded or until the curtain fell. In other words, he wasn't satisfied being ignored; he needed and/or wanted a different type of response.

By this time, the child had managed to draw an audience of curious (some appeared troubled by the situation) onlookers. Once the child noticed the audience first looking then his mother continuing not really attending or responding to whatever his needs were, he hurled a box of presweetened cereal out of the shopping cart. Mom, who had earlier placed the cereal box accessible to the child, probably in an effort to occupy or divert his attention, now kneeled down, withered by the situation

It just so happened that an elderly, empathic onlooker intervened and probably in the nick of time. Her calm voice was reassuring. She said, "You think you have your hands full now, but wait, with patience it will be OK.'

Patience. The familiar statement "Patience is a virtue" is indeed true. It is a commendable quality, a quality more and more parents and caregivers alike find essential in working with and guiding young children and teens.

As adults, we can become impatient and sometimes provoked to anger, using words that hurt. Children can and will try adults' patience. Temper tantrums, excessive crying or screaming fits can be embarrassing to a parent or adult, especially if a child does it in public. An adult not armed for the many challenges children bring may lose his or her patience quickly — to the firing point.

In many cases, adults could avoid being swayed or pulled into the pitfalls of the firing point. Maybe a good night's sleep the night before, or simply taking three, four, all right five, deep breaths in and out could help prevent losing one's patience. Remind yourself that you're the grown-up here; try not to lose your control.

Patience has to be worked on daily and worked on some more. Work and wait for patience - it will come. Children deserve to have adults who are caring and consistently, consciously practicing patience. Children should have the right to experience learning and, too, self-control in a manner that teaches patience as well as allowing room for self-expression in a non-threatening childlike way.

Once you've taken inventory of your tolerance level, or lack thereof, you can better make strides toward gaining patience. Unfortunately, some situations arise when an adult lacks coping and conflict resolution skills and find himself or herself at wits end. Feelings that may have a potentially abusive outcome surface and need redirecting.

Here are some tips for considering now to use later, if you find yourself at the thread-like point of patience:

■ Take five deep breaths. Inhale. Exhale. Slowly,

Count to 20. Better yet, 30.

■ Sing or while in public hum your favorite tune or song. "Don't Worry, Be Happy" is a good one. Read a book or magazine . . . newspaper com-

■ Do some sit-ups or arm stretches. Water your plants.

■ Call a friend, relative or the time/weather num-

■ Chew some gum or a crunchy fruit or vegetable. ■ Stop, step back, pull your thoughts together, or

Think of a good joke to relieve some of the immediate tension.

Remember, skills can only be improved, enhanced or gained if you work on them.

Volunteers race in to help with prix

All that's left of this year's Detroit Grand Prix is fond memories for the cadre of 1,400 volunteers who did everything from cooking food for their fellow workers to keeping the crowds off the Belle Isle

BY PAT SCHUTTE SPECIAL WRITER

It's like a 1,400-member fraternity that, if it weren't for their love of auto racing, Detroit wouldn't be able to hold it's Grand Prix.

Volunteers. Volunteers that have to pay 20 bucks a year in order to volunteer. They make up the vast majority of the work force that has made the Detroit Grand Prix possible the last

Who are these folks? Where do they come from and why do they do they get involved with this? Their answers are as varied as the people who volunteer their services for the race.

Canton resident and fifth-year volunteer Ed Fabiano felt that it was kind of a community pride thing.

These people (the volunteers) enjoy being from Michigan and are proud of their state," he said. "They get together, enjoy themselves, and help the public enjoy a good race.

The Detroit Grand Prix Association volunteers, not to be confused with the Indy Car and Sports Car Club of America volunteers, basically work in either crowd control, transportation or food services. They all donate at least three days, and many of them considerably more, to insure that the race comes off smoothly.

Take the food services volunteers for instance. These aren't the franchise outlets in that they're there to feed the volunteer army, not the public. With 1,400 mouths to feed and 1,400 thirsts to quench, the food service volunteers are as busy as the crowd control volunteers

The leader of the food service volunteers is Livonia Churchill graduate Todd Troy. Off the top of his head, Troy throw out some rough estimates as to what it takes to feed the volunteer force - nearly 1,500 hot dogs and Italian sausages per day for three days, 1,000 pounds of hamburger for the weekend, 4,000 bags of chips per day and 6,000 plus cans of pop for the weekend.

First-year volunteer Diane Werner of Plymouth hooked up with the food services crew. And despite the long afternoon's worth of work she put in, she has already found out first hand about the camaraderie associated with the volunteer force.

New friends

"It's just like a network of new friends," said Werner, who added that she felt this would be a good way to get down to see the races.

And generally it seems that everybody's here for that reason. They're here for the races.'

Down on the track, making sure non-credentialed race fans aren't wandering out onto the track or into places where they shouldn't be, was Westland's Larry Iacoboni. In his sixth year as a volunteer, Iacoboni said he's had a blast meeting people that are as keen on racing, if not the post-race parties, as he is.

"Yeah, I always take Monday off to recover," laughed Iacoboni, who works security at GM's Hydramatic plant in Ypsilanti.

Although the work is constant, the attitude with the volunteers is re-laxed. Just ask Iocoboni's buddies, John Falk of Sterling Heights and George Faber of Grand Blanc.

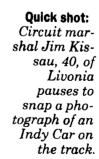

"There's nothing like the smell of burnt methanol in the morning to get rid of a good hangover," quipped Faber, much in the same tone as Robert Duvall did on the beach in "Apoc-

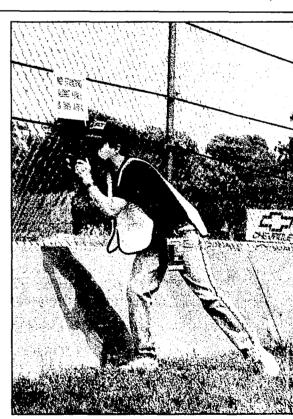

Falk agreed: "The cars, the speed, the sound, the smell . . . there's nothing else like it."

Greeting cards have special feeling

By touch: With the help of the Tri-County Braille Volunteers, Andy's Hallmark Shop in Plymouth is now offering Braille greeting cards for the visually impaired.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Food for thought. You send a birthday card to a visually impaired friend. Unless that friend has someone to read the card to her, how does she know it's from you?

She does, if it's a special Braille card. Special . well, yes and no. It's an everyday, buy-it-atthe-card-shop card, but it's customized with the dots that make up the Braille language blind people read with their fingertips.

Armed with a Perkins Brailler, a Braille typewriter, Tri-County Braille Volunteers are translating the cards' sayings into the intricate dot pattern for customers of Andy's Hallmark Shop in Plymouth's Westchester Square.

"It's another way to make a blind person independent," said Andy's employee Nadine Killion. "Before they would have to have someone read for them.

been tion. I've keeping an eye on your column for quite a while. Handwriting lias always interested me, not how it tells about an individuals rather how pretty (or horrible) it looks!

But now I'm curious, what does my handwriting tell you about me? I am 38 years old, am right handed. I would be honored to read about your opinion, and I'll write back to t you know how accurate it is.

Thanks for your considera-

M.B.,

I am always happy to analyze a handwriting from someone who promises objective feedback.

Today's handwriting reflects a smooth functioning young woman. She likes to avoid conflict and will usually flow with the tide rather than create friction. She does not deal with conflict situations too well, so she tries to keep peace and harmony in her interaction with others.

Seemingly, she was raised to be aware of the rules of society and what the neighbors think. When she does not conform to this early training, she may suffer guilt feelings. Small signs, however, suggest she is breaking away from some of this conditioning.

Goals are mainly in the practical realm. She is well organized mentally. Work is performed with care and precision. She handles responsibility well and is conscientious about her commitments. She has a strong sense of order and control and dislikes clutter.

There is an upslope to her lines of handwriting. This suggests an optimistic approach to life and living. Usually it also includes faith in a higher being.

She likes people and often extends friendliness and empathy to them. Although caring and sharing by nature, her generosity is sometimes calculated. She finds herself torn between reaching out to others and keeping the attention on herself. She is in need of attention and acceptance, especially from the opposite sex.

Seemingly, she is a selective learner, often narrowing her viewpoints to opinions and sources that agree with her own. Is it skepticism and/or fear of the unfamiliar which leads her into patterns of rigid thinking? Unfortunately, this tends to place limits on her growth, creativity and resourcefulness,

Some resentment to past hurts lingers in this handwriting. She feels she has been taken advantage of and has her guard up to revent a continuation of it.

This young woman has a facility with words and can probably express herself very well. She knows how to be either tactful or direct, depending upon which she feels is needed at the time, Ideas the fancy side. also flow smoothly for her,

Some intuition is found here. She probably senses when to move ahead and when to back off in a particular situation.

An innate eye for beauty can be seen in the marginal spacing which frames her neat handwriting like a picture. This leads me to believe her bailiwick as well as her appearance would be neat and attractive, possibly just a tad on

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48151. #### Stepping stone

Jim Kissau of Livonia hopes to take his Detroit Grand Prix experience a step further and hook up with the SCCA volunteer force, which travels to similar races around the country.

This kind of gives you the idea of whether or not you want to move up as a volunteer," said Kissau, a circuit marshal. "For me it's kind of a stepping stone to Standing a couple corners down from Kissau was West Bloomfield's Garry Arbuckle. A circuit marshal, team captain and sixyear volunteer, Arbuckle was asked what was the most exciting moment he was involved with over the years.

'That would have to be the time Mario Andretti crashed into the safety truck right in front of us," he said, then thought for a moment. "No, wait. Five or six years ago Paul Newman broke down on our corner and we escorted him back to the pits. Man, the babes were goin' Maui!"

Since the Formula One cars left the Detroit circuit in 1988, there's been a decisive change in the type of crowd that comes out to the races, according to Livonia's Mike Larson who's in his 10th year as a volunteer. And Larson feels the change from F-1 to Indy Car has people. And the "working class" people Larson speaks of might best describe the kind of person that volunteers his or her time to help put on the Detroit Grand Prix. "The best part of the whole week end is when it's all done and we can sit back, grab a cold one, and rehash our old war stories.' said Tom Klempay of St. Clair Shores.

Added Larson on where Sunday's legendary volunteer wrapup party takes place: "We don't know. It's at different places every year because nobody will invite us not too early to think fall, if your Schoolcraft College is currently accepting applications for its 1993 fall craft show - 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Nov. 13 and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 14. The juried how will be held in the college's Physical Education Building.

Schoolcraft accepts crafters for fall show

More than 150 exhibitors will be accepted for the two-day show. Proceeds will be used for student scholarships.

Booth space will be available in three sizes - 12 feet by 12 feet for $60, 10 feet by 10 feet for $50 and 8 fee by 9 feet for $40. Eletricity will be available for an additional $10 charge. Each space will come with two chairs; crafters must supply their own table.

To receive and application, call the college's institutional advancement office at 462-4417. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty Road, south of Seven Mile road, Livonia.

Program offers info on colon cancer It's estimated that 152,000

Americans will develop colorectal (colon cancer and cancer of the rectum) cancer this year. An estimated 50,000 will die from colon cancer and 7,000 from cancer of the rectum cancer.

The incidence among men and women is about equal and, when detected and treated in an early stage (confined to the bowel wall), the average five-year survival rate is 90 percent. The combined (male-female) incidence is second only to that of the combined incidence of lung cancer. With that in mind, the Horizon Surgery Center in Livonia is sponsoring a community education program on colon cancer prevention, early detection, treatment and research at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 23.

Dr. Philip LaFata, chief of general surgery will be the guest speaker. A question and answer session will follow his presentation and a literature packet, courtesy of the American Cancer Society, will be given to those in attendance.

Diet seems to play a role in the development of colorectal cancer. In fact, a diet high in fat and low in fiber may put individuals at a high risk of developing the disease. As a result the American Cancer Society issued dietary recommendations related to cancer, cause and prevention.

Most colorectal cancers arise in polyps which can be removed. Inflammatory bowel diseases, chronic ulcerative colitis and regional ileitis (Crohn's disease) also are associated with increased colorectal cancer, often at an early

A personal history of colorectal polyps and/or colorectal cancer or other cancers also places an individual at greater risk. And environmental toxins are under study as possible causative agents.

Colon cancer screening is an important step in detecting precancerous or cancerous lesions. The American Cancer Society recommends occult blood testing in patients more than 40 years of age and sigmoidoscopy beginning at

While there is some controversy about whether current screening practices actually achieve the desired goals, deaths due to colon cancer decreased between 1950 and 1984 despite an increasing incidence, a trend that may have resulted from increased use of early detection techniques. Treatment can include surgical removal of the tumor, chemotherapy given to shrink the cancer and then surgical removal as well as surgical intervention and radiation have been successful against various types of cancers. The treatment of choice depends on such variables as tumor type, size and location, as well as the individual's past medical history.

Research into the causes and mechanisms of cancer have created some changes and opportunities in the diagnosis and treatment of the disease. For example, the burgeoning field of cancer genetics is allowing doctors to establish tumor markers to gauge the aggressiveness of disease and use genetic traits to diagnose certain types of cancer

Through genetic engineering, researchers also may be able to correct impaired immune systems and even modify hereditary susceptibility by transplanting normal copies of genes into cells that have mutated copies of those

There is no charge for the program, but reservations due to limited space are necessary and can be made by calling 462-1888. Horizon Surgery Center is at 19900 Haggerty Road south of Eight Mile Road, Livonia.

Wild flowers are a colorful addition to woodlands

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Roger Sutherland may have been a bit off on his forecast cold weather until June 15.

A weatherman by no stretch of the imagination, the Schoolcraft College biology professor emeritus, was commenting on the chilly weather that greeted his "Wildflower Sampler," a presena presentation on nature's spring bounty which recently closed out the Women's Resource Center's Iuncheon series.

Sutherland blended humor, mythology and fact to give the group an armchair tour of flora that literally pops up in the woodlands and meadows during the warming days of spring.

But he prefaced his program with a snippet about Michigan which he described as "a naturalist's paradise because of its many miles of unspoiled shorelines, pristine lakes, rivers and streams" and its bevy of wildflowers, that have been overlooked by many and facing extinction-because of widespread habitat destruction.

"In the woodlands, plants have only a few weeks to carry out the plan of a lifetime," he said. "They have green leaves to produce food and flowers for seed.'

First arrival

The first plant to appear in woodlands in the spring is the skunk cabbage, so named for its skunk-like odor. The flower has a temperature of 70 degrees and small bugs "cavort inside and pollinate it," Sutherland said.

The smell aside, skunk cabbage had a medicinal purpose for early pioneers who used its leaves and seeds to treat whooping cough.

Another woodland plant that

"It's a service to the people," added owner Niru Maru. "We feel good about, the customers feel good about and they come back. We're really happy to do this."

Andy's isn't swamped with requests for Braille cards, maybe three-four times a year. Killion isn't aware of a card manufacturer that produces Braille cards, so having the sentiments tran-scribed by the volunteers seemed a logical way to go.

It's not a new concept. It was once done at a card shop in Northville "a long time ago," according to Eleanor, a volunteer who declined to give her last name because "I won't be the only one; other volunteers will be doing

The service is simple, free of charge and quickly done. The customer picks out the appropriate bi-fold greeting card, addresses and stamps the envelope, but doesn't glue it shut.

The card shop then contacts Eleanor who picks up the card and transcribes it. Wherever possible, the greetings will be embossed on the card and the recipient's name will be typed on the envelope. If necessary, the sentiments will be typed on heavy paper stock that will be cut to fit inside the card.

One card Eleanor did as a sample for the store has the cover greeting separate because of the stylized raised leaves on the cover. But on the inside the Braille is done over the printed copy so "that the sighted and the blind can read it," Eleanor said.

Once the transcribing is done, the volunteer seals the envelope and drops it in the mail. Depending on the greetings, the transcribing should take about 10 minutes, Eleanor said.

"We're going to try and do it all in the same day," Killion said.

The shop has been offering the Braille cards since May and although there have been no requests for the specialized cards, there's been a lot of interest.

"A lot of people say 'I'm going to tell so-and-so," Killion said.

Eleanor's Perkins Brailler is a form of typewriter with six keys. Braille is based on a cell of six dots (two rows of three dots each) and each key represents a dot in a particular position in the cell. Words are made up of portions of Eleanor was certified to do Braille transcribing after attending school once a week during a regular school year and completing a manuscript of 50 pages that was sent to the Library of Congress for review. She has been a transcriber since 1978.

"I had to learn to read Braille by sight," Eleanor said, showing how her typewriter works. Her Braille forte is literature and text-

As for the cards, Eleanor is glad to do them and has even lined up another volunteer to fill in when she's on vacation.
"It's a service," she said. "like a friend who did the words for children's books so a blind mother could read to her child.'

"Last year with the late spring and moisture, they were spectacular," Sutherland said.

Seen among the trees in the northern part of the state in recent weeks has been the trillium, so named because everything is in three's or sixes. A low-to-theground plant, its white flowers turn pink as they age. A cousin, the sesile trillium can be found only in the the state's southern counties, and the painted trillium with a smaller flower and splashes of red on the petals show up around Port Huron and Benton Harbor, Sutherland said.

A plant that looks like the sesile trillium is the birthwort whose boiled root in earlier times was added to the food of the person the "cook" was interested in.

More than 50 species of orchid can be found in the state's woodlands, the most common being the pink moccasin plant or the stemless lady slipper. There are also 17 species of violets which have their seed pods directly under the leaves.

Name game

Among the flowers Sutherland introduced during his lecture was the daisy, short for day's eye. The flower earned the moniker because it is one of the first flowers to open in the morning. Belief has it that if you pick a bouquet of daisies and put it on your table, your home won't be hit by thunder and lightening, according to

The iris means eye of heaven while the anenome, a member of the buttercup family, is named after the Greek god of wind and is called the wind flower. The hepatica, also a member of the buttercup family, was so named because its three liver-shaped, lobed

"A Swiss doctor decided that if a plant part looked like a human body part than it's good for that part," Sutherland said. "The hepatica leaves look like the three lobes of the liver. It's called 'pattern of signature.'

The blood root got his name because of the red liquid it produces when you cut across the root. Its. white flower comes wrapped up in the leaves and is only open for a few short days.

Other spring plants include the white baneberry, also a member of the buttercup family, and bellwort, a member of the lily family. The white baneberry forms poisonous white berries after it blossoms. Those white berries are the reason for its nickname of doll's eye. The bellwort in earlier times was consider medicinal and good for the throat, the reason being its white flower that hangs down like the ulva of Hiden message

But there's even more to plants than their flowers

"In Victorian times, every flower had a message," Sutherland said. "You would give the iris to express hidden love. The dogwood was durability, buttercups ingratitude, basil hatred and almond blossoms for a mutual indiscre-

Plants also have a relationship with birds, according to Sutherland. One is the thistle. Its seed is a popular item for backyard bird feeders because it attracts the goldfinch. But there's more to the plant than the fine dining it offers. the bird. The goldfinch won't make its nest until the thistle flower has developed down, which the bird uses to line its nest.

Humming birds, on the other had, are partial to the fuzz of the cottonwood tree. They use the fuzz and spider webs to make their nests then decorate them with bits of lichen.

"For many of these plants it has taken hundreds of years to develop a relationship with the woodlands," Sutherland said. "In fact, honey bees get an early stimulus from dandelions.'

The bible states that all spirmus bessings are in Jesus Christ (Eph 13). The question then is asked, How does a person get into Christ? Epheslans 1:4-6 simply and clearly answers this question. Those that are in Christ were chosen to be in Christ by God himself before the world was even made. God's choice of those to be in Christ was based only on his own will and grace. If you are rejoicing in the grace of God, come worship with us.

St. James sheds Village image

By Diane Hanson Special Writer

What's in a name?

For St. James Presbyterian Church on Six Mile Road in Redford, an image. The church, formerly Village Presbyterian, has experienced several changes in its rich 103-year history.

Founded in 1890 under the leadership of Dr. William Vincent, the original church was called First United Presbyterian Church of Detroit and was located at the corner of Grand River and Alexandria in Detroit.

Land was purchased by the congregation to build a new church in the 1940s, but the Michigan Supreme Court squelched any plans to build the church on Midland and Outer Drive, forcing the congregation to meet in schools until 1952 when the land on Six Mile was given to them by the Presbyterian Village, Inc., a senior citizen complex, in conjunction with the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

According to the Rev. Paul Bousquette, current pastor at St. James, the merger of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., and United Presbyterian Church of North America, left the Detroit area with two First United Presbyterian Churches.

"So the powers that be said 'The other First Church was First first, so you have to change your said Bousquette with a laugh. Because of the close association with Presbyterian Village, located behind the church, it was decided to change the name to Village United Presbyterian Church in 1958.

They felt that the church would minister to the people in the village, but they forgot about the rest of the neighborhood," Bousquette said. "In this day and age, when we have to survive by reaching out to all aspects of the community, it's very important for us to give a different image to the community."

The congregation had talked of changing the name of the church

Name change: As its newest pastor, Rev. Paul Bousquette had the task of changing the name of his Redford church from Village Presbyterian to St. James Presbyterian.

many times but nothing ever came of it. When Bousquette, 36, became pastor in November 1991, that was the first thing I heard about," he said. He began working on it right away and discovered that there was a definite problem.

Not only did the church get phone calls and mail for the village behind them, "but the image that we were giving the community was that we were all senior citizens here," Bousquette said. "That was not what we were about at all. There are a good number of young people here.

Bousquette found that many area residents thought the church ministered exclusively to the Presbyterian Village. A frequent comment would be, "Oh, is that church open to the public?"

The congregation, once numbering around 900 members, dwindled to its lowest point in the early 1980s as families migrated into the newer western suburbs. In doing some recent evangelism work in the community, Bousquette found that "there are a lot of young families moving into this area because there are good starter homes for young married couples and those with children. There's a real turnover . . . right now in this community.

In an effort to attract the new people moving into the community, the congregation voted to change the name of the church to St. James in November, 1992 and it became effective this January.

Bousquette realizes that the image does not rest in the name

'We've made changes in our worship service to make it more appealing to our younger folks as well," he said.

He wants to add a lighter side to the service and the church is buying a more up-to-date hymnal. They have also remodeled the chapel and sanctuary. The changes have been well received by the congregation, regardless of age, according to Bousquette.

There are, of course, senior citizens at St. James as well.

"About 50 members of our congregation do live in the Village,' said Bousquette who is also moderator of the Redford Ministerial Association. "The rest of the congregation, the other 200, are from all aspects of the community, young and old. We have youth groups. We are a viable living church. We're always looking for ways to reach out to the com-

"I hope that we will continue to grow and continue to have people investigate what we are all about. We've not only changed the name and our image in doing so, but we've changed the way that we do things around here as well.'

Calling into our 'inner voice mail'

were catching up with each other during breakfast. She laughingly described some of her frustrations over her new voice mail gadget. It simply didn't record properly. Techwere called in to fix the inner voice." Seems like they had to return at least three times until things worked.

We laughed about how our lives have gotten so complicated through the technology guaranteed to make them simpler or at least easier. We also wondered what the impact is on people when we communicate with other human beings through machines and second-hand recordings.

Some people refuse to leave messages on answering machines. "Too impersonal," they say. And "Call Waiting" drives them up a wall. And yet most of us find ourselves relying more and more on these conveniences.

Some interesting questions about the impact of our fastpaced technologically centered world are found in a new book out called "Care of the Soul: A Guide for Cultivating Depth and Sacredness in Everyday Life.' Dr. Thomas Moore, the author, wonders about "psychological modernism — an uncritical acceptance of the values of the modern world." This includes: A blind faith in technology.

■ An inordinate attachment to material gadgets and conveni-

An uncritical acceptance of march of scientific progress. A devotion to the electronic me-

■ A lifestyle dictated by advertising.

It's necessary for our total health to look objectively at our values and to listen to our souls. He observes that the great malady of the 20th century is "loss of thing, but a "quality or a dimension of experiencing life and ourselves. It has to do with depth, value, relatedness, hearty and personal substance." The gifts of the soul include fulfilling work, rewarding relationships and personal power.

Rabbi Harold Kushner, author of "When Everything You've Ever Wanted Isn't Enough," gives us another look at similar issues. He, too, voices questions that bubble up from our souls: "Shouldn't life be more than a brief flash of biological existence? Was there something I was supposed to do with my life?"

convinced that it is not the fear of death, of our lives ending, that haunts our sleep so much as the fear that our lives will not have mattered, that as far as the world is concerned we might as well never have lived. What we miss in our lives, no matter how much we have, is that sense of meaning.'

And later he shares this wisdom: "We will never be comfortable with who we are until we realize that who we are is special enough. If we have succeeded in becoming authentically human, eating our bread in gladness and enjoying life with people we love, then we do not have to become rich and famous. Being truly human is a much more impressive accomplishment.'

Maybe on those days when we are put on hold in a telephone conversation, or when we have a few bonus moments, we can discover once again our own "inner voice" and cherish the human being who is there. And in doing so, maybe we'll also listen and rehuman around us as unique and cherished people as well.

3 area state senators stand up for AIDS research

By Tim Richard Staff Writer

Senate Republicans won a major budget battle by taking $1 million away from AIDS research and transferring it to Alzheimer's, cancer and heart disease prevention.

"Outrageous!" shouted Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, at the GOP amendment to the public health department budget bill.

"AIDS is a national — international — epidemic. There is no prevention program for Alzheimer's unless we've discovered it the Michigan Senate. This $1 million isn't going to change it one bit. You want to ignore (AIDS)," said Faxon.

But senators gave 26 to 9 approval to the amendment by William Van Regenmorter, R-Jenison, to make the cut from the $13.5-million AIDS portion of the budget.

Among area senators, only Faxon, William Faust, D-Westland, and David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, voted no.

AIDS' cause known

Van Regenmorter said the University of Michigan "desperately" wants to continue its Alzheimer's registry program. He said Alzheimer's leads to death, mental and physical deterioration and can benefit from research.

"We know what causes AIDS," said Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, the chamber's only physician. "It's both behavioral and consensual. We know what behavior causes AIDS. Beyond a shadow of a doubt, we've identified the population at risk."

Schwarz said state health figures show 53 percent of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome patients are male homosexuals, 24 percent are intravenous drug users, and 5 percent are both male homosexuals and IV drug users. Smaller numbers are hemophiliacs and babies born to infected mothers.

"His medical perspective is important," agreed Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham. "We have to look for the best ways to save the most lives."

On final passage, the Senate Wednesday gave the Public Health Department budget 20 to 16 approval. All area senators voted with their parties, Republicans yes and Democrats no.

Gov. John Engler's budget calls for spending more than $500 million, up 2.7 percent from the current year. More than half the money would come from federal grants.

Engler's budget office reduced the number of line items from 17 to eight — a trademark of the governor that focuses attention on broad spending patterns rather than legislators' pet programs.

Biggest change: Engler proposed an 8.7-percent increase for medical care and treatment services in the children's special health care program.

Engler also recommended a major increase for substance abuse services, primarily for pregnant women on Medicaid.

Inspections cut

The Senate rejected an amendment by gubernatorial candidate Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, for more rigorous inspections of homes for the aged.

Stabenow sought to raise the $564,000 allocated for investigating complaints to $989,000 for annual inspections of homes for the

"We're not doing inspections on homes for the aged for their licenses," she said. "We're investigating complaints. This would make us do what we're supposed to do."

Sen. Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, said $400,000 was taken out of the House-passed version because there is no need to inspect homes for the aged as there is for nursing homes.

Stabenow's amendment lost 14 to 22, with 21 Republicans and one Democrat voting to reject.

The bill will be probably go to a joint conference committee to iron out differences between House and Senate versions.

Magazine showcases Plymouth dollmaker

ight years ago, Ingrid Dijkers visited a Netherlands art gallery that was displaying conceptual doll figures.

Intrigued by their inventiveness, the Observerland artist bought one of the figures. Sculpting and crafting the dolls from scratch then became a

"I was in awe at the work I'd seen in the gallery," the Plymouth resident said. "Something clicked, I guess. Within a month of returning home, I decided this is the kind of art I have to do. Once I started, I felt very comfortable.'

She never formally studied dollmaking. But Dijkers has always enjoyed dabbling in clay and fabrics. "That combination fell into place with conceptual figures, which gave me a chance to work with some of the art forms I enjoy."

Dijkers is featured in the Gallery section of the July issue of Contemporary Doll, a Livonia-based international contemporary doll art magazine carried by such booksellers as Little Professor on the Park in Plymouth.

A full-page color spread spotlights a 27-inch, cone-capped figure from her "Collector of Hearts" 50-piece limited edition.

There's a bow-tied Renaissance figure, seated on a cube, holding stuffed gold hearts," Dijkers said. "No two are exactly the same. There's variety in detailing — the buttons, bibs and fabrics. And the hearts and clothing, although cut from the same pattern, may be different colors.

The Netherlands native boasts an interest in American and European folklore, tales and fables. Her figures inhabit a fairy-like environment. Limited editions run from 10 to 50 pieces. A few figures are one of a kind.

"I really concentrate on smaller editions of 10 to 15 pieces," Dijkers said. "Within each edition, colors and detailing may be different but hands, feet and heads are made from the same mold.

Each Dijkers figure is a fairy, dwarf or elf.

"Mysticism intrigues me," she said.
Each figure has a story theme: "Collector of Hearts," "The Weaver of Tales," "Keeper to the Grove of Forbidden Fruit," "Elfin Wizard," "Gaspar," "Enchantress," "Fortune Teller." "Sometimes, I read a fable or story and a figure will develop," Dijkers said. "Or I might be working on a figure, just putting it together, and a story will develop. I don't really have a set way to go Figures stand 20 to 90 centimeters. Heads, hands and feet are made of stoneware. Bodies are firmly stuffed cloth and imaginatively dressed. Designs boast antique fabrics, trims and buttons.

Dijkers likes unusual fabrics, from antique silk brocades and handbeaded Belgian laces to contemporary metallics. She visits Europe every few slenigh her gunnly of Dutch fabrics.

On-the-job training

Dijkers studied painting, ceramics and sculpture en route to an associate's degree in fine art from Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

But she's basically self-taught, having grown up in an artistic family. "Both my parents earned master's degree equivalents in fine art back in Europe. They now live in Livonia and still paint in watercolor and oil and sculpt figures in clay."

Dijkers also weaves, designs clothing and makes contemporary quilts, soft sculpture and collage iewelry.

Her dolls range in price from $150 to $600. They're available at Chameleon Gallery in Plymouth and Ariana Gallery in Birmingham.

Chameleon owner Denni Englehart first saw Dijkers' dolls at Folkways Gallery in Plymouth four years ago. She liked them so much, she bought "Shell Collector," a limited-edition elf holding seashells.

When Dijkers asked about taking in her dolls last September, Englehart, who shows the work of 250 artists, quickly obliged. "I don't carry a lot of dolls, but she's very talented," Englehart said. "Her dolls have such character. They're so individual, so creative. And the fabrics are wonderful. She won't bring in anything not done perfectly.'

The Michigan Renaissance Festival in Holly will exhibit Dijkers' work in September. The Livonia Arts Commission will showcase it in October in the Livonia Civic Center Library. In 1990, Lark Books included her doll, "Titania," in "Fiber Arts Design Book Three."

During the 1980s, Dijkers' elfin delights adorned galleries from Plymouth to Troy. In 1991, she showed at Mindscape Gallery in Evanston. This year, she'll exhibit at Mann Gallery in Bos-

"I've got to get in gear and start promoting more," said Dijkers, who came to the U.S. at a young age and has called Plymouth home for 14 years. "I'm thinking about joining doll organizations or art guilds. I'm really interested in more national exposure.

Garden walk to aid Greenmead

Friends for Development of Greenmead will host a walk through seven Livonia gardens June 26. Proceeds will go toward restoring the Alexander Blue House at Greenmead Historical Village.

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

If you're thinking of redesigning your back yard or simply adding a fish pond and water garden, the fourth annual garden walk hosted by Friends for Development of Greenmead, should provide plenty of inspiration.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 26, seven private Livonia gardens featuring unusual trees like weeping larch and contorted witch hazelnut as well as flower beds in ever-changing displays of bloom will prod imaginations.

Tickets are $7 in advance, or $8 the day of the walk. All proceeds will go toward restoring the 143vear-old Alexander Blue House into a conference, meeting and reception center at Greenmead Historical Village in Livonia. Period furnishings from 1880s Livonia Township will decorate the refurbished two-story, 12-room house.

'The variety is what's so outstanding this year from one home that has a back-yard living room to one with Old World charm and quaint European-style garden beds," said Janet Bennett, Friends for Development of Greenmead president. "Another one is so charming yet there's something so forbidden about it with beautiful sweeping lawns that lead down to gypsy moth caterpillar.

The pesky little critters are chomping their way through Michigan's oak and aspen forests — at the rate of 700,000 acres last year. They're perplexing suburban dwellers from Canton Township to Bloomfield Township as they eat their way through backyard trees and shrubbery. And the prognosis for this year is worse, according to experts.

"Michigan probably has the worst gypsy moth problem in the country,' said Debbie McCullough, professor of entomology at Michigan State Unity of species — from oak to pine.

"We have a healthy population of gypsy moths here," said Jerry Kuchera, grounds supervisor for Bloomfield Township, which sprayed against the insects last month.

feast at our expense

"They have a new habitat and no natural enemies. The potential for damage is definitely there. It takes two or three years for the population to build up. Various hot spots are expanding out."

Depending on where you live in Michigan, gypsy moth outbreaks may last from two to several years or may never occur, according to MSU.

"Gypsy moths attach to tree trunks, the underside of leaves or often to recreational vehicles, doghouses or fireplace wood. That's how they got their name," said Wayne Nierman, of MSU's Oakland County Extension office.

"Originally they came from the northeastern states. They've caused massive devastation in New York and Pennsylvania. "In Oakland County, the problem is more progressed than Wayne County."

But Wayne County is not exempt. Vicky Pavloff, a Canton Township homeowner, doesn't know how they arrived, but the gypsy moth has destroyed a large dense bush on her property and is now working on a backyard tree. Professional lawn care companies are her first line of defense.

Step inside the peaceful haven that serves as a back-yard getaway for Bernie Kaselemas and Rose Carpenter. Learn how they maintain a waterfall and Koi fish swimming in a five-feet deep pond. "We're trying to create an ecosystem back here. You have to build a balance of the right plants, the right bacteria. You learn by making mistakes that the long-haired algae acts as a filter," Kaselemas said.

"There are practically no mosquitoes back here thanks to the fish. Mosquitoes are attracted to the water where the fish feed on

"It was flat when we bought the house, and to think it all started with the trellis," Carpenter add-'We worked with English Gardens to add the hill, gazebo, bridge and pond.'

Three years ago, this nature wonderland was a barren plain. Now, water lilies, hyacinths and irises thrive among the multicolored Koi and albino catfish. A bog area sustaining marsh grasses is incorporated behind the pond. For Kaselemas, however, it undoubtedly is the Koi that highlight the idyllic environment.

'Japanese Koi go back thousands of years. They breed them like race horses in Japan where one fish can cost $100,000," he said. "They're very docile. They're almost pets. It's fun just keeping them alive. You just marvel at nature.'

Sea oats, weeping mulberries, 72 roses, 400 day lilies and rare voodoo lilies with bulbs the size of basketballs fill in the rest of this enchanting garden.

"To us, this serves as a natural tranquilizer," Carpenter said. "The first thing we come home from a stressful day at the office, we walk back here.

Kaselemas hurried to add, "It's so relaxing. About 6 or 7 o'clock, this back yard with the sounds of the bullfrogs bellowing, birds and

Larry and Grace Warner's gardens lie like a California oasis in the middle of this booming suburb. Towering evergreens abound along with tiers of landscaped ledge rock and fields of pachysandra and ivy around the home they bought in 1964. Bayberry bushes and sculptured junipers served as homes for cardinals and chicka-

"We put in a gunite pool in 1967. We decided to make a smaller house live bigger," Grace Warner said.

Large olive barrels hold kindling. The Warners have scrapped grassy areas for bark, gravel and boulders in what they lovingly refer to as their Calivonia home. "It makes it nicer to look at than lawn," Warner said.

Marvin and Ann Howe have worked 23 years to build their rolling three-quarter-acre, parklike setting. Purple phlox, fuschia impatiens and blue forget-menots color an island on the right hand side of the yard.

In another island, hostas flourish accenting a fountain and fish pond. At the top of the hill, a garden of broccoli, cucumber, radish and tomato grow in the family garden. In fall, two to three piles of leaves from trees on the property will decompose then be tilled back into the soil for next year's vegetable garden.

'We've never put a leaf out in the street since we've lived here,' Ann Howe said proudly.

Instead of a new tractor, the Howes recently purchased a used golf cart to transport tools, supplies and plants back and forth across the long narrow yard.

A sculptured carp on a wall alongside a brick path delights visitors to these gardens. Original sculptures created and cast by the homeowner add the tactile sense to individual areas.

A small, informal organic garden highlights yet another private garden where 1,000 bulbs and wildflowers bloom in spring. Sur-daphne and a large Japanese

A wildflower garden rests in the shade while a sunny bed hosts coral bells and Texas buttercups as well as iris and hardy geraniums. Garden plaques by Ohio sculptor George Carruth decorate the yard, There also is a small herb and vegetable garden and a raspberry patch.

Advance tickets are available at all Livonia libraries, the community resources department at city hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile, and at Greenmead, 20501 Newburgh at Eight Mile. On the day of the walk, tickets will be sold only in the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and bern House at Greenmead.

There's little on the tube about literary world

In recent days, I've conducted my own distinctly unscientific survey.

VICTORIA.

According to my mood and inclination at just about any given time, I can tune in to a cooking show, a travel show, a gardening show, a home improvement show. I can watch the news of the world. "attend" church services, watch numberless people toil and sweat to stay fit, catch up on the very wide world of sports. (Trout fishing! Snooker! How to build a duck blind!) I can watch a comedy or a drama - plus many things in be-

I can learn about great artists and, guided by experts, study some of their paintings and sculpture. I can indulge various musical interests. I can watch freak shows and fashion shows. I can pick up the basics of shade tree auto mechanics and explore the deep blue sea. As noted surgeons perform heart transplants, I can look over their shoulder. I can learn how to sew together a threepiece suit or a wedding gown. I can even go shopping.

But I can't find out much about the literary world.

Granted, there are a few directions in which to turn. Occasionally, excellent book discussions, readings and author profiles pop up on Channel 9 or the Arts & Entertainment Network. C-SPAN's "Booknotes" (Sundays at 8 and 11 p.m.) features top-notch interviewer Brian Lamb talking with authors about their recently published nonfiction works. (Actually, the authors do most of the talking: Lamb is a superb listen-Sometimes, TV veteran Dick Cavett hosts a writer on his interview show on CNBC (at 11:30 p.m. Sundays and at 9 p.m. Fridays). And, of course, fairly often, authors appear on talk shows. Nearly always, though, their appearances on these shows are so brief and the interviews so appallingly superficial, you wonder why you bothered in the first place. (You know why they bothered, of

I'd enjoy watching in-depth, noholds-barred interviews with authors - those who write today's blockbusters and those who write "quieter" books — along with their publishers and readers.

How did Robert James Waller, for instance, come to write the seemingly unlikely best seller 'The Bridges of Madison County"? Why did the publisher, Warner Books, take a chance on a novel about a romance between two middle-aged people, set in rurai lowa, and written by a photographer/management professor/ essayist?

Who are some of the thousands of people who willingly have shelled out their hard-earned dollars to buy this novel, keeping it on the best seller list for more than 41 weeks? Why do they do this? What do critics have to say about "The Bridges of Madison County"? What does its success indicate? What can Waller tell us about his next novel "Slow Waltz at Cedar Bend" due out in November? Where does he live? Where/how does he work? What does he cat for breakfast?

Though I already know the answers to most of these questions, I'd be eager to hear almost anything said about this book right

I'd also like to listen to lessknown writers such as A.S. Byatt ("Possession"), Nancy Willard ("Sister Water"), Laura Esquivel ("Like Water For Chocolate") and many more. To look at one of the hottest markets in publishing today, I'd definitely tune in to a show dedicated entirely to the fascinating highly creative world of children's literature

Why not a program featuring two loquacious critics (as per the film world's Siskel and Ebert) sitting around, conducting a lively discussion about the relative merits of specific books? Similarly, why not a roundtable discussion focusing on the same thing? Surely, there's no lack of literary experts eager to share their opin-

Actually, there may be a note of hope out there, believe it or not.

As I understand it, plans are in the works for a literary series beginning this fall on the Discovery Channel. Called "The Great Books," the show will take a look at 50 works of literature that not only have survived a test of time but may have shaped civilization as well.

In my opinion, it's definitely an idea whose time has come. Stay tuned.

sortium for the Arts in coopera-Sculpture IV, June 24 through tion with the city of Southfield, the exhibit will feature large outdoor works in metal, concrete and mixed media.

The sculptures will be exhibit-Hosted by the Business Con- ed in the Civic Center Plaza, which is bounded on three sides of Southfield's civic buildings.

A free reception, open to the public, will begin at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, June 24, in the Civic Center Plaza. Appetizers will be served. Ceremonies will begin at by the contemporary architecture 6:30 p.m. and include congratulatations. There will be time for viewing the sculptures and conversation with the artists before and after the ceremony.

The exhibit will be open daily to the public without charge. For more information, call Cultural Arts at 354-4717.

Participating sculptors in addition to Sergio DeGiusti are Andrew Arvanetes, David Barr, Mark Chatterley, Caroline Court, Todd Erickson, Tom Fitzgerald, Edward Kasporwicz, Raymond Katz, Jay Lefkowitz, Mel Leiserowitz, Charles McGee, Jim Melburg, Chong Bae Park, Thomas Phardel, Arthur Schneider, Lois Teicher. ### DETROIT ARTISTS MARKET

Continuing — Westland artist Dennis Jones exhibits mixed-media paintings on aluminum. Curated by gallery director Gerry Craig, "Willing Disbelief" also includes the work of artists Tom Phardel, Kyoung Ae Cho, Patrica Groenenboom, Valerie Parks and Catherine Smith. Jones earned a bachelor's degree from the School of Architecture at the University of Detroit and a master's of fine arts degree from Wayne State. He has taught part-time at Wayne State, Macomb County Community College and University of Detroit. Besides the Detroit Artists Market, Jones has exhibited work at the Michigan Gallery and former Swidler Gallery. He says his new work reflects a personal desire to make a significant change in his painting. His current body of work spotlights "paintings of our time the late 20th century. The highly machined and precise aluminum finish reflect the technological age in which we live." To June 25. Hours: 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, till 8 p.m. Friday.

LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY ART GALLERY

Continuing — 101 dalmations, Mickey Mouse, Goofy and the rest of the gang visit on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile. The 35piece show, featuring handpainted original production and limited-edition cels, is exhibited courtesy of Gallery Animato in Birmingham, the only Michigan gallery dealing exclusively in art from animated film. Livonia Arts Commission is sponsoring the show. Production drawings, story-boards and model sheets also are displayed. To June 26. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, and 9 a.m. to, 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday.

M ATRIUM GALLERY

Continuing — Woodwright Gus Shay of Livonia displays mobiles of fresh water fish, fish pins, decoys and decorative carvings of crayfish, crappie, bass, northern pike and other Great Lakes fish to Aug. 15. ### Art festival on weekend

Real art. Real fun! That's what families can expect at Meadow Brook Art Gallery's second annual art fair 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, June 19-20, on the grounds of Oakland University's Meadow Brook Music Festival, Adams and Walton, in Rochester Hlls.

Meadow The Brook Gallery Art Fair will be set apart from others. It will appeal to a much broader audience than most fine art fairs,' said Debra Watson, art fair coordinator.

"There will be a wide variety of art in every price range for families, couples, singles of all ages.

Admission is free. Parking is $3, close and convenient. A variety of food and refreshments will be available. Light entertainment will be featured in the garden gazebo. Call 370-3005 for more information.

Artists' booths will be situated amid the flower gardens.

This art fair will boast fresh and imaginative fine and fun art including ceramics, glass, jewelry, painting, fiber, photography and sculpture by more than 150 juried artists from around the state and country.

Children can have fun and show off their talents in the children's art activity area, where materials will be provided free. Face painting for $1 will be offered.

Money raised by the fair will benefit Meadow Brook Art Gallery. The gallery has been showing artists, private collections and traveling exhibitions from Michigan and throughout the country for the the direction of curator Kiichi Usui.

Its mission to be innovative and experimental has resulted in COU's sculpture park with work by contemporary artists Hanna Stiebel, David Barr, Tom Bills and John Piet, to name a few.

The gallery recently received much acclaim for "Expressive Visions and Exquisite Images.

LIVONIA CITY HALL

Continuing — Livonia Arts Commission presents 40 acrylic and pastel paintings created within the last 10 years by Redford Township artist Evelyn Henry in the lobby of city hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Portraits of children, and landscapes featuring horses as well as flamingos, dominate the one-person show. Henry retired in 1979 after working 21 years in the art department of Campbell-Ewald in downtown Detroit. She has exhibited artwork in one-person shows at the Farmington Community Library and twice at the Scarab Club in Detroit, where she is a member. This is her third one-person show at Livonia City Hall. To June 30. Hours: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday and until 8 p.m. June 28-29.

■ LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY SHOWCASES

Continuing — Livonia Arts Commission presents glass art by Sheri Nudell of Farmington Hills in the circular showcases on the second floor of the library, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Nudell fuses sheets of glass into platters and bowls dealing with painterly issues. She combines a kaleidoscope of color to form imagery influenced by nature. A bachelor of fine arts degree candidate at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, Nudell first became intrigued by glass as a pharmacology student at Michigan State University. While living in East Lansing, she took a jewelry-making class at a stained-glass shop and became hooked on glass. She has exhibited work at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia, Michigan Design Center in Trov and Sherwood Studios in West Bloomfield. To June 30. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday.

Township officials were unaware of a widespread problem there.

In Redford Township, mainte-nance supervisor Bill McSween the caterpillars have not been identified there - yet. But McSween is attending a tree seminar next week sponsored by the Michigan Department of Urban Forestry and plans to be ready when the uninvited parasites ar-

Gypsy moths endanger trees at only one stage - when a caterpillar. Caterpillars usually begin to hatch in early May. By June, they are about two or three inches long and wander constantly, feeding at Roughly from the end of July to early August, after 10 days in dark colored pupal cases, adult moths emerge. At this stage, no longer feeding off foliage, their sole purpose is to procreate.

The female moth is creamy white and doesn't fly, but emits a chemical called a pheromone to attract the nearest male moth. She lives about a week, just long enough to lay eggs.

The male is brownish and flies in a zigzag pattern. He can mate with many females. Each resulting egg deposit contains' between 50 and 1,500 eggs to hatch the following spring. And thus goes the

To seek out and destroy egg masses, homeowners should look for a flat off white velvety patch, the size of a quarter, attached to woodpiles, loose flaps of bark, the underside of branches or any other protective area. The egg mass is intertwined in a matting of hair from the female moth's body. It's water repellent and a good insulator, surviving temperatures as low as minus 20 de-

In some communities, like Bingham Farms, gypsy moths are just beginning to be a problem. "In our survey sites, we came across one area with egg masses on an oak tree," said Kathy Hagaman, Bingham Farms clerk and consortium fighting the infestation together in Oakland County.

'We have since had a call from a resident who thinks the caterpillars on her garage door are gypsy moths. We'll look at them.

In Bloomfield Township, gypsy moths were first identified in to attract males.

"We'd set those traps up, kill them and count them. But we didn't have the resolution to pinpoint the areas," Kuchera said. 'We switched to egg mass counting in the fall. We follow a more aggressive program than the

The state sprays in several central Michigan counties, but not vet in Oakland or Wayne.

Contrary to popular belief, population explosions don't happen suddenly. An area will undergo a gradual population buildup for a time before the population goes into a phase of rapid release, according to MSU data.

The state's struggle with the gypsy moth dates back to the late '50s in Central Michigan. The moth has since spread to the remainder of the state.

Gypsies invade Wayne towns to varying degree

By MARY RODRIQUE STAFF WRITER

When the Pavloffs bought their Canton Township home in 1987, they knew there was a problem with the landscaping.

Grubs were wreaking havoc on the lawn and an invader, later identified as the gypsy moth caterpillar, was defoliating a large dense bush at the side of their house on Hanford, near Haggerty and Ford roads.

"Over the years, we've had two different spraying companies come out several times each year," said Vicky Pavloff, who added that workers identified the gypsy moth as the culprit.

Last time around, the Pavloffs decided to have just the lawn sprayed and skipped treatment for the bush.

"It's twice as bad as last year," Pavloff said. "It was a pretty bush. It's real dense, with small leaves - about five feet tall and four feet in diameter and it grows on the dark side of the house. The caterpillars just about killed it. They ate a big chunk.'

The bush is now beyond repair and will probably have to be removed. There's some defoliation in a backyard Elm tree, but a purple plum tree hasn't been affected. Payloff said.

"The only other place I've seen the caterpillars is on our backyard deck, which is near the bush. I've seen a couple there but I don't really know where they're coming from

Trees and shrubs most at risk of defoliation, according to Michigan State University's extension service, include all oak, aspen and poplar; gray, paper and river birch; willow, apple and crabapple; thornapple, hawthorne and White pine; Blue spruce, American beech and Basswood; Sweetgum, Juneberry or serviceberry, Witch hazel, Hazelnut and Mountain ash.

Canton officials were unaware of any problems with the gypsy moth locally. "We're not aware of any problem regarding the gypsy said Joan moth in Canton,"

But Bob Bricault, consumer horticulturist with MSU's extension service for Wayne County, says there has been a gypsy moth problem in Oakwood Metro Park. south of Canton "so it's possible (Canton residents) could have a problem.

"Right now, Livonia has a small infestation centered around Six Mile and Farmington Road, along the creek," Bricault said. "I don't think the creek is responsible. It's very easy for residents to bring (egg masses) home on campers.

"An area near Eight Mile and Middlebelt was sprayed years ago and there hasn't been a problem since. I live near there and I haven't seen evidence of gypsy moths.

"Grosse Ile has a population of gypsy moths but it hasn't spread there," Bricault said. "There will probably be years where it will be bad in little sections. The old oaks in Dearborn's wooded areas are worrisome. I saw some egg masses near Ford World Headquarters.

No area is immune. Carl Dollhopf has had gypsy moth traps in his Westland yard

"The first year I had 57. The next year, 212. I expect to find more this year," said Dollhopf, an expert on the gypsy moth.

An infestation pocket has moved to Redford Township along the Rouge River from Southfield, Dollhopf said. "They like the willows along the river bottom and the oaks along the Dollhopf retired two years ago after a 37-year career with the Michigan Department of Agriculture. For 24 years, he was director of operations for southeastern Michigan. Currently, he's a consultant for a seven-community south Oakland County consortium banding together to fight the infestation.

"To be effective, resources must be pooled," Dollhopf said. "Last year, the Department of Agriculture sprayed 230,000 acreas; that doesn't include communities that handled their own spraying.

He noted that 712,200 acres were defoliated last year, a 12 percent increase over the previous Gypsy moths can be controlled but efforts must continue annual-"They're moving north and south," Dollhopf said. "Education is the first line of defense. There are some controls besides spraying. It's an ongoing process.

A glossary

Some common gypsy moth-related terms: ■ Caterpillar — the larva of moths and butterflies. ■ Defoliate — Remove leaves from plants. One gypsy moth caterpillar can remove over a square yard of leaves from plants.

■ Exoskeleton — Insects do not have an internal skeleton. Instead, they have evolved an outer shell (exoskeleton) that provides structural strength and protection.

■ Instar. Growth stages of immature insect forms. As immeture insects grow (in this case, caterpillars), they outgrow their exoskeleton and must shed it.

■ Molt — As the gypsy moth caterpillar grows, it must periodcally shed its skin to said for additional growth. It will molt four to six times.

Realtors give $5,000 for homeless in Pontiac

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Brokers and agents affiliated with the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors are used to dealing with the upper end of the housing spectrum much of the time.

But they haven't forgotten the little people, either.

The board, after applying for and receiving a $5,000 grant from the Fannie Mae Foundation, turned the money over to Lighthouse of Oakland County, an emergency human services provider.

The grant will be applied to acquire land and renovate a dilapidated 700-square-foot building into a community center in Unity Park. That area of southeast Pontiac has been designated for home rehabilitation and revitalization.

'The $5,000 cash grant will get us started on the renovation, said Tim Thorland, neighborhood development coordinator for Lighthouse. "We're going to gut the interior and have a kitchen, bathroom and one large meeting room. Basically the whole house we'll do with volunteer labor.' 'Only four (Fannie Mae) grants were given throughout the country," said Kerry Schreiber, a Realtor associate with Max Broock and chairwoman of the board's community service committee. "The purpose was to align Realtors with housing developments for the poor."

Schreiber envisions Lighthouse's community center as a focus point for meetings, day care and informal classes. The Birmingham-Bloomfield board recently extended a threeyear commitment to Lighthouse for an additional five years,

"The thought behind it is Lighthouse helps prevent homelessness," she said. "We thought it parlayed to our industry very well. We wanted to do something of consequence and give something back to the community. They're so well run, efficiently

The Birmingham-Bloomfield board had previously raised and contributed some $13,000 to the organization, said Noreen Keating, executive director for Lighthouse.

"We are honored that the Birmingham-Bloomfield board has chosen Lighthouse to be their service activity in this community,"

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M

Keeping condo employees in line is board's job Our on site maintenance man seems to be

usurping his prerogatives and telling board members what to do. He is cocky because he feels he has a politcal following at the condo, having done a lot of personal favors for certain members. The board would like to put him in his place. What do we do? Keep in mind that the condo's board of directors generally has the exclusive power to hire or fire personnel of the association. If an employee is not properly discharging his job responsibilities, he should be properly admonished.

The employee should be reminded of his job duties in writing and told to adhere to them. If he continues to violate his job duties, he should be terminated after the association's attorney has reviewed the case.

I have two cats in my condo and the bylaws allow for only one. I got the second cat since everyone knows that cats need a companion. How can I convince my dog-oriented dog or cat. board to give me a break? The bylaws do give the board discretion to permit more than one cat or dog if they want.

If the bylaws give the board that discretion, I would make your argument that your cat needs a companion and no real harm or adverse precedent will be established if the board gives in. Also check to see if there are other residents who have gotten permission for more than one

BUILDING SCENE'S NAMES & PLACES

Etkin's new digs

A.J. Etkin Construction, a Farmington Hills-based management firm and general contractor, moved its main office from the Brookfield Office Park to the Wellington Center on Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills. The new offices feature interior design by Ford & Earl Associates of Troy, which adapted its design of Etkin's previous offices to match the company's new requirements.

"We simply outgrew the other facility," said Etkin president Thomas H. Landry. "Our new office will enable us to continue to grow to better meet the needs of our clients."

BASM seminar set

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan will sponsor a continuing education seminar for licensed real estate agents and brokers on Tuesday at the Northfield Hilton (5500 Crooks at I-75) in Troy. Jack Waller of NCI Associates will be the instructor. Attendance fulfills the annual continuing education requirement for real estate professionals. Registration fee, including lunch, is $40 for BASM members and $55 for nonmembers. Call 737-4477.

Fair housing seminar

Managing an apartment community in compliance with fair housing regulations will be the focus of a seminar on Thursday, June 24, at the Northfield Hilton in Troy, sponsored by the Apartment Association of Michigan. Dick Covert, director of the National Apartment Association, will be the presenter at this second in a series of seminars on fair housing practices. Fee is $15 for AAM members and $25 for non-members. Call 737-4477.

Rescuing abandoned land

Local developers and builders are re-mining some previously developed and abandoned areas in hopes of finding a few passed-over properties of gold. Passedover lots and shuttered school grounds receive their due attention for redevelopment.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

And it came to pass that with population shifts and smaller-sized families, there was no longer a need to keep certain schools open. So they were shuttered and remained closed for many years.

And some developers eventually recognized the opportunity for in-fill residential work in established communities. So they bought the mothballed school properties, tore down the buildings and platted new subdivisions.

And everyone hoped to benefit.

Developers and builders would make money with new affordable housing through redevelopment. Schools would rid themselves of maintenance/liability problems and pick up some needed cash by disposing of surplus property.

That was the scenario played out by David A. Gumenick and Alan M. Gottlieb, partners in Bayberry Park Inc. of Farmington Hills. They saw redevelopment potential in the former Madison School north of Harrison between Middlebelt and Inkster roads in Livonia.

Bayberry, which put in the roads and utilities, will construct the condos in partnership with Benivegna Building Co. of West Bloomfield.

"In-fill doesn't mean just schools," Gumenick said. "It means a skippedover parcel. I'm not dragging sewers a quarter mile. Utilities are proximate. It's developed around you. Goods and services are available."

Gottlieb bought the land from another developer whose plans to expand a convalescent center failed to materialized.

"What impressed me about the parcel was I had built another project down the road and when I saw this site and saw almost an exact land configuration, I knew what I could do with it," he said.

Litigation hassles

Gottlieb made his offer in 1989 but didn't break ground until last fall due to legal challenges.

"The bottom line is if you have vacant land where you live, you don't want it developed," Gumenick said. "If it were me, I'd probably feel the same way."

Gottlieb and Gumenick figured that they could have saved much more on development costs at the Madison site if the property hadn't been tied up in litigation.

"We had to put in sanitary sewers and additional water and some storm drainage lines," Gumenick said. "With the pluses and minuses, it was less expensive to develop (in-fill) than to go into a new development."

Benivegna was invited to bring its reputation and financing to the project.

"I kind of consider it an oasis in an existing neighborhood," said Ronald P. Benivegna. "We see a lot of potential here. We'll sell very rapidly."

"We're going to take something that's not on the tax rolls and convert it to a $10 million community and provide homes for people they can afford," Gumenick said.

In-fills on the rise

"We think urban sprawl is getting too far out," he said. "We're looking around."

United States RENTAL VACANCY RATES

Developers bemoan the rise in rental vacancies

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

The apartment vacancy rate, which surpassed 7 percent nationally each of the past seven years, climbed to 7.9 percent for the first quarter of 1993.

Those numbers, reported by U.S. Housing Markets, a Livonia-based research publication, did little to cheer developers of rental properties and landlords of existing buildings.

"Nationally construction of

"Nationally, construction of new rental apartment units hasn't been so skimpy in more than 30 years," said Mack Rogers, senior vice president for Lomas Mortgage USA, which tracks trends through U.S. Housing Markets.

Last year, multi-family permit volume nationwide fell short of 185,000 units — and a quarter of those were for condominiums not intended for the year-around rental market, the publication reported.

Local figures weren't published. "Apartment development will stay in the doldrums until the U.S. economy regains its vitality with robust employment growth in key states and regions," Rogers said.

"Meanwhile, low mortgage rates and a competitive single-family market will continue to weaken apartment demand by pulling renters into home ownership," he said.

Financial institutions are reluctant to pump money into new apartments as long as demand remains weak, the report indicated. Some banks and savings and loans are still hurting from problem loans made in the 1980s.

Real estate investment trusts are now more interested in buying existing apartment complexes than financing new construction, the publication reported.

"We've still got an economy that's not robust and low interest rates conducive to buying homes instead of renting apartments," said Brian Bragg, U.S. Housing Markets editor.

"We've got high vacancy rates here (Detroit area). It's difficult to quantify because the market is so fragmented.

The study also found that mobile homes cost about the same to maintain as site-built houses and have a negligible effect on the value of adjacent properties.

"This is my third major study on manufac-tured housing," said Kate Warner, a professor in U-M's college of architecture and urban planning. "I think the image (of mobile homes) is definitely changing.

I think one reason is people are actually getting into homes, looking at them. Anyone who goes to a retailer today and walks through will be amazed at the value for the money.

Warner and Robert Johnson, also a U-M professor, directed a two-year study of manufactured housing that included research on comparative costs, market value trends and effects on the value of adjacent properties.

Because of its lowered cost, manufactured housing can be especially attractive to firsttime buyers.

In 1990, the average price for a new singlesection mobile home in Michigan was about $21,500, a multiple-section mobile home nearly $36,000, Warner said.

Manufactured houses accounted for 28 per cent of all new house sales in the state that year, the study reported.

"You've got to get jobs being formed, households being formed, incentives to rent rather than buy," Bragg said. "Now, the only incentive to rent is if you don't have a down payment."

Mel Kaftan, president of the Apartment Association of Michigan and the owner of 2,000 apartments through his Southfieldbased business, confirmed many findings of the report.

"We used to build a couple hundred units a year." he said. "Last year, we built 80, this year maybe 40. No one's building them. It doesn't make any sense.

the answer in Kaftan's eyes.

"You've got to get the economy going," he said. "Do you know how many people are doubled up, living at home? If jobs are there, have some new apartments."

Vacancy rates, 10-14 percent here a few years ago, now are down to 8-10 percent depending on the area, Kaftan said. Discount rents and specials are still available.

'I don't see apartment construction picking up for a couple of years," he added.

The apartment vacancy rate in metro Detroit, which includes Wayne and Oakland counties, jumped to 8.7 percent last year from 7.4 percent in 1991, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

Johnson said.

Forty-six percent of the more than 2,000 people surveyed said their primary goal was to reduce the length of the mortgage, while 40 percent indicated lowering monthly payments was most important.

How to determine proper fan size

chanics magazine.

Q. I own a Cape Cod house with a full rear dormer for the two upstairs bedrooms. My low-pitched roof restricts clearance so that I can't use a gable-end whole house fan. I'd like to have an airflow of 8,400 cfm (cubic feet per minute), which is the volume or window unit that would provide the airflow I want?

A. Your 8,400 cubic feet of livable space must be divided in half, because you have a two-level house. (To help vent it, open the lower windows during the day and the upper windows at night.) Thus, you're really only venting one-half the livable of livable space, both upstairs and space at a time. Multiply this 4,200

Home repair tips by Popular Medown. Can I install a permanent fan cubic feet by 30 (changes per hour for good summertime ventilation), and divide by 60 (minutes per hour). This accounts for a required flow of 2,100 cfm.

A much simpler way of figuring required fan size is to use square feet of area. Dividing your house's volume of 8,400 cubic feet by a room height of 8 feet would give you 1,050 square feet of house.

Size up a field like this, and favorites multiply

By Terry Jacoby Sports Writer

There is no question golfers like the attention from knowledgeable golf fans in Southeastern Michigan. Most of them also enjoy playing the Tournament Players Club of Michi-

Actually, there are more than 1 million reasons why the top senior golfers in the world are in Dearborn this week. And we are talking about the $1,200,000 purse, the second largest official money purse in Senior PGA Tour history.

The winner will walk away with $180,000 and the runner-up will pocket $105,000.

That's why Nicklaus, Trevino, Floyd, Weiskopf, Palmer and Rodriguez are all meeting at one of Michigan's finest golf facilities.

So what does the crystal ball say about this year's tournament? Who is the favorite to win the 1993 Senior Players Championship and take home that big.check?

LET'S START with defending champion Dave Stockton.

'(Jim) Albus and I are the only two who know we can win on that golf course," Stockton said prior to the start of last month's Bell Atlantic Classic.

"I've been playing well this year. I feel from tee to green, my game is at its best its ever been."

He played well enough to win the Muratec Reunion pro-am in April and heading into this month's play was the tour's top birdie leader with Stockton's charge past J.C. Snead last year at the TPC of Michigan was a memorable one for the 51-year-old Californian. He nailed a 40-foot birdie putt at the 17th hole to cut Snead's lead to two strokes.

Then came the great comeback of Stockton - or downfall of Snead depending on how you viewed it.

Stockton birdied the 18th hole while Snead ended with a double-bogey for a rare three-stroke swing. The win was Stockton's first title in more than a decade and he has been playing well ever since.

THROUGH HIS first 13 events, Stockton was third on the money list with more than $330,000 in prize

Albus, winner of the 1991 Senior Players Championship, has also been on a roll since he won the title. Winning at the TPC appears to change people's lives.

Albus, who was 95th on the money list in 1990 with only $14,433, rocketed up to 20th on the money list after winning $301,406. And he proved '91 was no fluke when he won $404,693

This year he won the GTE Suncoast Classic and is currently 12th on the money list.

Albus obviously likes the TPC of Michigan.

"I feel very comfortable there," he said. "It really helps me mentally to go back there since I've won there before.'

Others have played well at the is tough to beat.

The "Golden Bear" didn't play last

ning, including Snead whose 65 during last year's first round is a course record.

AND WHAT about Jack Nicklaus? "Jack is one of the favorites in any tournament he enters," Stockton said. And when Nicklaus is on, he year but has played the course since it first opened in 1991. He has a distinct advantage considering he designed the course.

Nicklaus was struggling earlier in the month. Following a poor showing at the Bell Atlantic Classic in late May, Nicklaus finished with a score of 298, 24 strokes off the pace, at the Memorial Tournament.

To win at the TPC takes both skill and intelligence. And compared to other courses on the Senior Tour, the TPC of Michigan is a long course which requires the big drive as well as a strong short game.

Which brings us to Raymond Floyd.

Floyd, who is among the top 10 on the money list despite only playing half of the Senior Tour events, is always a threat to win a tournament whatever tour he is playing.

Last year on the Senior Tour, Floyd was among the best in both driving distance (273.4 yards) and hit ting greens in regulation (77.8 per-

This year, Floyd leads the tour in total driving and greens in regulation. He is second overall statistically to Isao Aoki, another golfer with a shot at the TPC trophy.

Meanwhile, Floyd has played in just four PGA tournaments through May. Playing both tours is something he doesn't want to continue doing.

"I just don't know where I'm going." he said. "I've got people pulling me from both sides, people wanting me to play their event.

OFFICIALS, GOLFERS and fans

in Dearborn this week.

Another favorite has to be Bob Charles. The former bank teller from Carterton, New Zealand has been cashing some big checks since joining the Senior Tour. His win last month at the Bell Atlantic Classic was his 20th senior win as he became the first player to earn over $4 million in career Senior Tour earnings.

He also finished first in the Doug Sanders Celebrity Classic in March and was third at the Senior Commemorative earlier this month. He also has an impressive track record at the TPC of Michigan. In 1991, he finished second to Albus. Last year, he ended up seventh after a hot start in which he shot a 67 the first day and a 69 the second day. Michigan native Mike Hill, the leader of this year's money list, is also playing some excellent golf. Hill. who was second last year in scoring average, has won twice this year. He finished tied for 12th place at last year's Senior Players Championship. Al Geiberger, who finished 18th a year ago at the TPC of Michigan, is having a much better year in 1992. The California native has won two tournaments this year, is third statistically on the tour and fifth on the

AND LET'S not forget about Lee Trevino. The fan favorite has played well the past two years at the TPC of Michigan and would like to add the Senior Players Championship to his already long and impressive win list. Senior Tour newcomer Tom Weiskopf has not won a tournament. but is playing well and is quite capable of making a run this week. "Only outstanding players will win an event like this," Miller Barber of outstanding players.

Now everything is in order; Ford takes over as sponsor

It never made a lot of sense when you really think about it.

Here you had the premier event on the Senior PGA Tour, being played every year in the hometown of Henry Ford, on Ford Motor Company property virtually in the shadow of the glass house that is Ford's world headquarters.

And Mazda was the sponsor. That's Mazda. As in the Japanese car company.

Sure, Ford and Mazda do business together, but it didn't seem right to have another car maker putting on such a big show in the middle of Dear-

The stars are back in alignment now as Ford has taken over sponsorship duties for this year's event. which will be known as the Ford Senfor Players Champlonship.

"OUR PROXIMITY to the course makes our involvement very appropriate, not to mention convenient.' said Allan D. Gilmour, Vice Chairman of Ford Motor Company and Chairman of Ford's Tournament Executive Committee. "There are a lot of good reasons for us to become associated with this particular golf tour-

"First of all, It's held in our backyard. Secondly, Ford underst the marketing advantages of go has a long-standing association this upscale sport and, finally, it makes sense for Fordinget involved in this event because of the tremendous positive impact it has on the local community.

This year's tournament will benefit the Henry Ford Health System, Oakwood Health Services, Beaumont Hospital and the Boy Scouts of Amer-

"FORD HAS A long history of civic involvement," sald Gilmour. "We believe in being a good neighbor in the places where we do business and over the years we've found that golf is an effective and fun way to benefit local service organizations.

Ford has been involved with golf before, but never like it will be this year.

"The Ford Senior Players Championship will be the biggest involvement we've ever had in golf," Gilmour said. "In fact, in terms of the number of organizations involved, it may be the largest cooperative marketing effort ever undertaken by the Ford Motor Company.'

Ford Division, Lincoln-Mercury Division, Ford Parts and Service Division, Truck Operations and Cilmate Control Division will all participate and seven other divisions will also take advantage of the promotional opportunities presented by the tour-

TPC course suits fans, challenges golfers

By Jeff Barr

Beauty, opulence and expertlydesigned golf courses have always been the ideal locales to hosts PGA events, and the TPC of Michigan meets all three criteria.

But, the Dearborn course - like all 15 TPC courses throughout the country - have more than the golfers in mind.

Jack Nicklaus, Deane Beman and the rest of the staff the TPC of Michigan have not forgotten about the spec-

When (PGA Tour) Commissioner Beman designed the first TPC in Sawgrass, (Fla.), he came up with a concept with the spectator in mind," TPC of Michigan Director of Golf Billy Dettlaff said. "He called it Stadium Golf, copyrighted it, and it is a concept which is being used at all the TPC courses."

Stadium Golf is unique to TPC courses, and it has made viewing a tournament a whole new experience. No more is there a need to scramble up and down bleachers, climb trees, or fight the crowd. Stadium Golf has made watching a TPC tournament a walk in the park - literally.

"IT'S COMPLETELY different for the fan at a TPC course," Dettlaff said. "The natural terrain has been designed to make it possible for large amounts of people to all get a great view of the action. There is no need for bleachers.

"On the 18th (at the TPC of Michigan), for example, 15,000 people can enjoy the final hole of the golf tournament. (Beman) realized the importance of the spectator to the game of golf, and any spectator going to a TPC course can see that.

Fans at the upcoming Senior Players Championship will notice the fantastic viewing sites throughout the TPC of Michigan course, but there are some "prime spots" that give the informed fan an edge on the rest of the spectators.

To become an informed fan, read

■ Twelfth hole, par-3, 166 yards: If you're into panoramic beauty, waterfalls, ponds, grassy swales and wetlands, this hole has it all.

And, it's all packed into 166 yards. The tee is elevated, so spectators who are lucky enough to get a spot at the 12th tee will have one of the most breathtaking views on the en-

Not only that, but if you turn around you can watch players on the 11th fairway. It's a short hole which cuts down on available space, but this one is worth getting up early.

■ Eighth-hole, par-3, 182 yards: The main entrance to the course has been moved this year, and the eighth hole will be the very first hole you see.

It also provides one of the best, and most pleasant, sites to watch the "Coming in from the east side of the course and onto No. 8 will really first im of the course," Dettlaff said. "There is a real pretty walkway as they march along Rotunda (Road) and there is some beautiful spectator mounding that gives the spectators a beautiful view of the green.'

The eighth hole is the second of four demanding par-3 holes. It requires a well-struck medium iron if a bogey is to be avoided. Underclubbing is disastrous because wetlands are the only thing in view from the tee to the green

'Remember, the eighth hole is the first hole the people will see, so if they want to stay there a while, they'll have to get there early," Dettlaff. "I have an idea that's going to be a real hot spot.'

Beventh hole, par-5, 542 yards: This hole is not oply a cosmetically attractive place to spend some time at the tournament, but it could also provide some of the most exciting shots of the day.

The player who hits a well-positioned tee shot to the right side of the par-5 may have a chance to reach the green in two. Huge trees down the left side of the fairway and a large swale in between the landing area and the green make this hole demanding.

But, if the first two shots are struck just right, it provides a great chance for a birdie. That's where the fun comes in for the spectator.

"Once again, this hole has some great mounding for the spectator, so there are a lot of excellent places to watch," Dettlaff said. "There are going to be a lot of interesting shots to watch, too. They'll be able to see the real long-ballers take aim at the green,in two, and that's always fun.

"And, the guys that don't go for the green in two will have a short iron shot. When you get these kinds of players with short irons to the hole, you're going to see some great shots. And, don't forget they'll be players with eagle putts. You don't see too many eagles, but there will be some chances on No. 8.

Eleventh hole, par-4, 410 yards: Amen corner begins here!

This is one of the more unique holes in golf. There are two landing areas, with two separate fairways. If players elect the easier tee shot down the left side of the fairway, they are left with a difficult approach angle to the green. The right fairway requires a 235-yard tee shot over on this hole, it will be very interesting to watch players make a decision on which fairway to take." Dettlaff said. "I think it will depend a lot on how the player is playing that particular day as to what fairway he will take.

Not much fun for the player, but plenty of excitement for the specta-

"There's is some excellent spectator mounding near the landing area in the right fairway, and that's probably the best place to watch the really like the TPC of Michigan. You've really got to be a shotmaker and use every club in the bag on that course. Even though it looks like a wide-open golf course, it's actually narrow and long. Mentally, I think I can do well there because I enjoy playing the course. That's a large part of competing in a tournament of this magnitude. 99

Older and better: Stockton finding golf is a bit easier

By Terry Jacoby Sports Writer

Dave Stockton has accomplished a great deal since he became a professional golfer in 1964. He won the PGA Championship in 1970 and again in 1976, and played on two United States Ryder Cup teams.

In 1991 the California native captained the Ryder Cup team, and last June, Stockton won the Senior Players Championship at the TPC of Michigan in Dearborn

But after all his experience and all his wisdom — being selected to captain a Ryder Cup team requires great knowledge of the game as well as knowing the top players' strengths -Stockton is still fascinated by the

"Golf is just amazing to me," Stockton said following the pro-am of the Bell Atlantic Classic in Malvern, Pennsylvania. "The interesting side is the mental side. Golf is 90-percent mental and it's often ignored.

People take too long when they play golf. They think far too much. I just go up and hit the ball. If it's bad. I go up and hit it again." Sounds simple.

And to Stockton, golf has become easier as he has gotten older and

DURING HIS career on the regular PGA tour. Stockton won 11 tournaments, including the two majors. He made over $1 million over the course of 26 years.

But Stockton seems to be getting better as he gets older. And maybe the awareness of golf's mental side is starting to pay off in fewer strokes and bigger paychecks.

"I've been looking forward to this summer because I'm playing well." said Stockton, who looked quite fit and relaxed after playing 18 holes

"From tee to green, my game is the best it has ever been," he said. "I'm hitting the ball a lot further than I ever did and I am putting one of consistency. Through May, Stockton was in the top 10 in four statistical categories. including first in number of birdies (150) and fifth in putting.

ON APRIL 25, he won the Muratec

Reunion Pro-Am near Dallas, Texas and finished third at the Pain Webber Invitational the week prior to the Bell Atlantic Classic

Stockton was third on the money list with more than $337,000 in 13 tournament appearances.

It's easy to see that Stockton is playing well heading into a tournament he has already proven he can win. So it's not surprising to hear him say, "I am looking forward to returning to Dearborn.

Stockton's first-place finish last year was both dramatic in the way it happened and special because it had been 16 years since he last won a tournament.

The last time Stockton had heard the roar of the crowd came in 1976 when he walked up the 18th fairway at Congressional Country Club en route to his second PGA Champion-

TO WIN any tournament is special, but to win a major is as good

"To me, it was like winning the 'Players Championship' on the other tour," he said. "The guys think it's the toughest field to beat, so undoubtedly. I was playing against the best senior players, and that gave me a great deal of satisfaction.

It also gave him a much larger bank account. The win helped Stockton capture the 1992 Senior Tour Rookie of the Year award and more than $650,000 in official earnings. more than four times what he made during his best year on the regular

And what about this year's TPC Senior Players Championship?

"Anytime you win on a course, you feel good about going back there the next year," he said. "I do think I can play better tee to green than I played last year."

STOCKTON SAYS a defending champion has a distinct advantage.

"(Jim) Albus and I are the only two who know we can win on that golf course," said Stockton, a 1964 graduate of the University of Southern California.

"And I enjoy the TPC of Michigan. The course still has a ways to go, but it's a good test of golf and

66 T 9 m looking forward to defending my championship. Anytime you win on a course, you feel good about going back there the next year. I do think I can play better tee to green than I played last year. The SENIOR PLAYERS victory was quite an experience for me. It was very special to win with my son, Ron, as my caddie. He was six years old the last time I won a major. It was an emotional high, and in many respects the victory meant more to him because he knew he played a big part in it. I enjoyed the TPC of Michigan. The golf course by Jack Nicklaus' standards was a lot more mellow than some. It's a good test of golf and of major championship caliber. 99

On longer exemptions, Stockton said. "They have to be longer than one year. It doesn't matter at all to me because it doesn't effect me, but you have to have tradition at these tournaments.

It also doesn't hurt to have class individuals win every once in awhile And with consecutive champions like Albus and Stockton, the Senior Players Championship has chipped in with two first-class people

Tour's best ready for a shoot-out with just 1 winner

but here's one for golf fans planning to attend the Ford Senior Players Championship:

Don't wait until the first round Thursday to visit the TPC of Michigan. Get out there Tuesday afternoon for the Merrill Lynch Shoot-Out.

The shoot-out is held on the Tuesday of tournament week prior to the 17 biggest events.

It gives fans a chance to get a close look at nine of the top players without fighting big crowds. The atmosphere is lighter than during actual tournament play, but the $4,000 prize for first place and the quality of the shoot-out field guarantee excitement. THE FIELD IS made up of the defending tournament champion, the top three players from the current money list, the top three players from the all-time money list and three sponsor selections.

So there will be some serious players teeing off June 22.

The rules are simple

The field begins on the 10th hole and plays the entire back nine. The highest score on each hole eliminates that player. The longer you last, the more money you make upon elimination.

Ties are broken by a sudden death "shoot-out" involving a pitch, chip. bunker shot or putt. The player whose ball comes to rest farthest from the hole is outta there The winner of the shoot-out is the last man standing on No. 18. PRESIDING OVER the festivities is master of ceremonies Brian Hen-

Henning is the Tournament Director of the Senior Tour. That job keeps him busy behind the scenes at every tour stop, but he comes to the fore during the shoot-out

The wise-cracking South African calls the shots on a portable microphone. He picks on the players, gets the fans involved and generally keeps the party going.

At last year's shoot-out at the TPC. he slipped an exploding golf ball onto the tee just before a player hit his drive, then started raiding Billy Casper's equipment bag.

He kept tossing Casper's golf balls to various fans and even promised the veteran's trademark knickers to one lady before Casper drew the line.

"IT'S FUN FOR everybody that's the whole idea," said Henning. "They're playing for a lot of money. too. The winner gets $4,000 every week and at the end of the year there's a $400,000 shoot-out."

The event gives players a firsthand look at the course and gets the fans in the mood for the rest of the

"The most important part as far as we're concerned is that the shootout entertains the fans with some light-hearted golf that's fun to watch," Henning said. "The players are all kind of loose and my function is to keep it that way

"A majority of the players are sort of shy in nature. I bring their colors out during the shoot-out.

HENNING USUALLY carries the shaft of a putter with him as he roams the course. Fortunately, he hasn't had to use it yet to fend off a golfer upset with his patter.

There are certain players you don't mess with," he said, "but I haven't got a club across my head yet.

"I take it easy when a new guy comes out, but they know what to

So players, if you hit the ball in the water, don't be surprised if Henning offers you a life jacket.

Arnie's Army: The legendary Arnold Palmer remains a favorite among golf fans wherever he goes.

Crowds still follow favorites

"I can't believe this. I've got Arnold Palmer behind me and Jack Nicklaus in front of me. There may not be endugh room for my gallery." · Dave Stockton on his first round tee time in last month's Bell Atlantic Classic. Ford Senior Players Championship director Brian Goin reports that ticket sales are up for this week's stop on the Senior Tour at the TPC of Michigan in Dearborn. More people means larger galleries and you can be sure there will be a lot of folks following around the popular golfers. We'll call these guys,"the gallery

So who is actually in this elite group? Let's begin with a man who has his own battalion of fans -Arnold Palmer.

Palmer first joined the PGA tour back in 1955. A native of Latrobe, Pennsylvania, Palmer was liked immediately. He was handsome, polite and giving.

And he was good

Twice named PGA player of the year, Palmer first won in 1955 when he finished first at the Canadian Open. His final PGA tour victory came in 1973 when he won the Bob Hope Desert Classic. In between, Palmer won 58 times for a total of since joining in 1980. His last came in 1988 when he won the Crestar Clas-

Although he has not won a tournament in five years, fans still chase Palmer around the golf course and around the tour. Known by name as 'Arnie's Army," this large group of people still like to watch the 64-yearold Wake Forest University graduate stroll around a golf course. And it doesn't matter where he is on the leader board.

PALMER FINISHED tied for 35th place at last year's Senior Players Championship, and is looking forward to taking another swing at the very difficult TPC of Michigan course.

'Considering the importance of the tournament, the caliber of the golf course and the strength of the field, I have always considered my victories in the Senior Players Championship at Canterbury Golf Club as two of the most important in my senior career," Palmer said.

Other golfers, as well as his many fans, would like to see Palmer in the hunt for another title.

"I think it would be a great thing for the game and for the Senior Tour if Palmer won," said Stockton, this year's defending champion at the TPC of Michigan. "He is one of those guys you always root for.'

ANOTHER POPULAR member of the "gallery boys" is Chi Chi Rodriguez. A native of Bayamon, Puerto Rico, Rodriguez is as well known now for his great sense of humor and good nature as he is for his ability to make birdies.

When Rodriguez drills a putt it's a big deal. But when he drills a put and then acts as if his putter is a sword, then it's a real big deal for the crowd. A regular sword-swinging soiree, if you will.

When Chi Chi is playing, the gallery is usually smiling. In part because he never takes the game too seriously.

"I still have a lot of fun out here," said Rodriguez as he put on his coat following an 18-hole pro-am in Malvern, Pennsylvania prior to last month's Bell Atlantic Classic.

"To win the Senior Players Championship, you've got to have a great deal of skill and intelligence," he

And what about the mental side of golf?

"I don't know anything about that. I just walk up and hit the ball and go find it and hit it again," he said, smiling.

Rodriguez always seems to have

HAVING A GOOD time is also the trademark of Lee Trevino, known as the "Merry Mex."

Like Palmer and Rodriguez, Trevino too has a large number of fans watching him do his thing. Trevino is one of the most recognizable figures in all of sports.

A great success on the PGA tour, Trevino has been one of the Senior Tour's top players since he joined in 1989. For the second time in three years, Trevino was the top money winner on the tour in 1992.

Could this be his year?

"I feel like the TPC of Michigan is to my liking and I'm looking forward to this year's tournament," Trevino said.

HE REALIZES WITH success comes attention. And Lee Trevino receives plenty of attention.

"I'm fortunate in what I do," Trevino said prior to the start of last month's Bell Atlantic Classic. "If you ask any celebrity where they are most uncomfortable, it's signing autographs. The ones that annoy you are the ones with no pen and paper. But I don't mind. If they don't ask, that means I haven't accomplished any-

How about a reason to smile? In fact, you get thousands of reasons - one for every smile that will receive free dental attention from the Senior Tour Children's Dental Clinic this year. Dr. Richard Garza, a retired dentist who used to treat needy children in his Austin, Texas clinic, also had one very famous patient among his His name was Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Both Rodriguez and Garza were passionate in their efforts to help needy children, and Garza mentioned a dream he had. His dream was to create a mobile dental clinic that would travel with the Senior Tour, providing free dental care to underprivileged children.

WELL, THAT 48-foot, state-of-theart mobile clinic that will be in full operation at Southland Center in Taylor June 21, 22 and 23 is no dream.

The trailer began traveling with the Senior Tour last season, and it will be in town when the Senior Tournament Players Championship comes to the TPC of Michigan

unteered to work half-day shifts, providing free care for a projected 120 needy children in the Detroit Metropolitan area

David Cobb, president-elect of the Dearborn-Outer Drive Kiwanis, the group which coordinates the logistics of the mobile clinic's stop at Southland, hopes to reach as many children as possible.

"We helped 93 kids last year, and our goal is to reach 120 this year,' Cobb said.

Besides lining up the 18 dentists to volunteer, the Kiwanis also helped find the patients. Children found by Head Start, the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army, and an interdenominational church group will receive care when the mobile clinic stops Down-

DURING THE three days of each stop, dentists provide everything from checkups to oral surgery. Each child receives an exam, fluoride treatments. X-rays and whatever dental care is needed.

Corporate sponsors of the trailer include the Rouse Co., Proma Dental, Royal Chairs, Air Techniques, Kavo and others. Roadway Express donates its services by hauling the dental unit from place to place, storing it between clinics and even washing it. There are small perks to being a volunteer, like free tickets to the golf tournament and golf shirts embroidered with the clinic's logo, but that isn't why the Kiwanis, the dentists or anyone else associated with the clinic donates their time

"They come because they want to do their part to help kids," Cobb said. "Finding volunteers is no problem

Dr. Gary Zeraghen and Dr. Robert Cording are two of the area dentists who will make sure everything runs as smoothly as a shiny, clean tooth, At the free clinics, Garza and the rest of the dentists are often looking into mouths which have never been examined by a dentist before. "That's what makes this such a gratifying event," Cobb said. "These kids need the care, and the dentists make sure they have a positive experience."

Garza already has made his dream come true, but he's not done

THERE ARE 16 clinics planned for 1993 and he hopes to eventually have a second trailer that will enable him to conduct 20-25 clinics a year.

Senior Tour players have become just as excited about the project as

Snead seeks to avenge last-hole catastrophe

It all depends on how you look at

You could argue that Dave Stockton played four rounds of excellent golf - including a four-under-par 68 on the final day of last year's Mazda Presents the Senior Players Championship - to win the title with an 11-under 277.

Or you could go for the jugular and say, "Man J.C. Snead choked big time.

Fans (that's short for fanatics, remember) being what they are usually opt for the latter.

If Snead didn't actually choke, he sure had trouble breathing on the fateful final hole of last year's event. HE WAS LEADING Stockton by two strokes as the duo approached the 18th tee and all he had to do was par the relatively harmless hole for the win.

His drive, however, landed in the swamp and for all we know the ball. along with Snead's dreams of victory, is still lying there wedged under a cattail.

Snead ended up with a double bogey on 18 and had to settle for sharing second-place money with Lee Trevino one stroke behind Stockton.

The media (servants of the fanatics, remember) subtly surrounded Snead in the locker room and asked compassionate questions like, "Did you get a little nervous out there,

"I really wasn't nervous. I wasn't even thinking about it," Snead claimed at the time. "I just pulled it to the left. I didn't get it up in the air and I didn't hit it straight. If it had been anyplace to the right, I'd

'IT WASN'T, And while the word "choke" never left his lips, Snead admitted feeling a bit crunched in crunch time.

"That was the biggest disappointment I ever had," he said. "I rolled over and died (of asphyxiation?) when I had a chance to win. It's like *having two shots on the foul line at the end of a game and shooting two sic and his obvious disappointment forced the wolves to back off a bit.

As time has passed, Snead has thought a lot about what happened and, with his big chance to make amends rapidly approaching, he is asked about it all the time.

'Have you ever wrecked a car and then asked, 'Why did that happen to me?' That's the way I felt after lest year's tournament and I still feel that way," he said. "It was not a good

"I DON'T FEEL like I choked. I think I relaxed too much on the final hole. I was real nervous at the 17th hole and I did OK there and I headed to the 18th tee relaxed, but I screwed up. I hit a bad shot.

"If I had hit it solid, it would have been a perfect tee shot. You know what they say about 'If.' Hey, that's While C'est La Vie Snead waxed philosophical about the loss, Stockton dipped into a little psychology to explain what happened.

It was sort of a self-fulfilling prophecy thing, according to Stockton.

"I spent a day and a half pumping him up," Stockton said. "He kept talking about something going wrong. Even though he was in the lead, he wasn't happy

"WE WERE both under pressure. We hadn't won yet and here everybody tells you how easy it is to win on the Senior Tour. He knows now that he screwed up." And so does everyone else, which means the choker label will still be in the back of everyone's mind when Snead returns to Dearborn.

Lwrecked a car and then asked, 'Why did that have to happen to me?" That's the way I felt after last year's tournament, and I still feel that way. It was not a good experience. I don't feel like I choked. I think I relaxed too much on the final hole. I was real nervous at the 17th hole and did okay there. I headed to the 18th tee relaxed, but I screwed up. I hit a bad shot. Basically, I pulled the iron and hit the ball with the bottom of the club. If I had hit it solid it would have been a perfect tee shot. You know what they say about 'If?' Hey, that's life. I do know this. I would like to come to the last hole at the TPC of Michigan with a two-stroke lead again. 99

- J.C. Snead

The best way to erase it will be with a victory when he hops back on the horse that threw him and that fact has not eluded Snead

"I know this, " he said. "I would like to come to the last hole at the TPC of Michigan with a two-stroke

His win in '91 made Albus a regular on Senior Tour

T feel very

For two of its three champions, winning Dearborn's Senior Tour event was like a blast from the past.

Jack Nicklaus won it the first time around in 1990 in record-setting fash-

He shot a PGA record-tying 27under par at the Mazda Senior TPC at the Dearborn Country Club and earned the biggest single-tournament gaycheck of his career.

But let's be realistic, when you've won as many tournaments as the Bear, one more is just another day at the bank.

Dave Stockton won it last year. His resume doesn't look like Nicklaus', but then whose does?

STOCKTON STILL HAD won two PGA Championships (1970 and 76). captained the 1991 Ryder Cup team to victory and won nearly $2 million in his career when he captured last year's crown.

But that guy in the middle. Man. winning was special for him.

Jim Albus, at the time the club proal the Piping Rock Country Club in Locust Valley, NY, shocked everyone by winning the championship in 1991 and all it did was alter his life-"style in "Hey, I just won the lottery" fashion.

You might say it-changed my life." said Albus, who has since bade farewell to his days of changing the grips of the hackers at Piping Rock and become a fixture on the Senior ·Tour, "It really pushed me to leave the job and do this full-time."

The "it" Albus spoke of can be translated as the $150,000 check he cashed after winning his first championship.

"I HAD A dêcent job," he said. "The money was nice, but not great. so to make the kind of money I made in one shot took away the only reservation I had about playing full-

"I didn't have to worry about getting my kids through school any-

Albus, who had made a whopping $3,750 in his limited forays onto the PGA Tour, didn't come to Dearborn with any dreams of triumph. He was comfortable on the TPC of Michigan course. It really helps me mentally to go back there since I've won there before. It's a good golf course. You've got to hit the ball and can't fake it.

Several of the holes are pretty demanding. In fact, the course might be the most demanding we have all year, which is what you need for a major championship. 99

think about that sort of thing." he said. "I didn't know if I was going to stay at the club or not. It just sort of happened.

Albus played 37 senior tournaments last year, placing in the top 10 seven times. His best finish was a second at the Northville Long Island Classic and he wound up winning $404,693.

THIS YEAR, HE picked up his second career victory with a win at the GTE Suncoast Classic in February and he's hanging around the top 10 money winners so far. . .

But that's not to say he's been converted from a lifelong duffer to a star just by virtue of one championship.

"I wouldn't say I'm playing a lot better now than before I started playing full-time," he said. "I expected to do better playing every week and working on my own golf instead of worrying about anyone else's."

Albus also claims his game today isn't markedly different from what it was, say, 20 years ago.

"There's not that much difference between 50 and 30 in golf," said Albus, who is 53. "What you lose in power, you pick up in smarts and you don't lose too much in terms of

"THESE GUYS STILL do well and they're still fun to watch."

Which explains the success of the Senior Tour and its attractiveness to a guy like Albus, who finds more time on his hands as his children grow and leave home.

'When you look at it, it's a natural thing for success," he said. "I thought all along it would do well. but nothing like what it's been. The guys are taking better care of themselves and taking it more seriously because they're playing for a lot of money.

"It some of these guys were playing all the time on the regular tour, they would still be doing well because the difference is not that

That's not the case when comparing most courses the Senior Tour visits and the TPC of Michigan.

Dearborn is different.

"I LIKED THE course from the beginning." Albus said. "You can't get by with just good putting, you've got to do everything else.

"Some courses, if you putt real well, you're going to win. That's not true up there.

Which means big hitters like the muscular 6-2 Albus can shine.

The strength of my game is driving the ball." he said. "On some courses, that's not a big deal, but Dearborn is a good, honest driving course

And, like course designer Nicklaus intended, it forces players to play well - as Albus did in 1991 - to win. "Good players do well there." Albus said. "It's the most demanding

While Dearborn may never be compared to Augusta (we have more steel than magnolias around here) in terms of tradition, the city is already developing a reputation as host of some memorable golf tournaments.

And that's after only three years of trying.

The names and even the locations of the senior tour's annual stop here have changed, but surprises and excitement have been constants whenever the game's legends have hit town.

So while we gear up for this year's Ford Senior Players Championship, let's take time out for a history lesson. Why, way back in 1990 ...

Dearborn played host to its first senior get-together June 8-11 that year and it was then known as the Mazda Senior Tournament Players Championship.

IT WAS PLAYED on the venerable grounds of the Dearborn Country Club, since the TPC of Michigan still looked more like a parking lot for buildozers than a championship

Henry Ford himself built the country club and it was meant to furnish a nice place for his employees and their families to congregate when they weren't cranking out Model T's.

Henry probably never envisioned a pack of millionaires tearing around the course with TV cameras and thousands of spectators in tow and he may have spun a little in the grave at the sight of those Mazda signs all over the place.

But even he would have neither complained nor explained after the booming success of the event.

His club and the field's biggest star

Most of the players raved about the lay-out of the course and its accommodations and everyone else just raved about Jack Nicklaus.

THE GOLDEN BEAR, who way back then was still a rookie on the senior tour, absolutely went wild, tying a PGA record with a four-round score of 261, which was 27 shots under par.

That's almost seven shots under per round folks. In laymen's terms, it's about one stroke under for every ball you'd probably lose playing the TPC course four times.

Nicklaus, as you would expect, was absolutely radiant after the tournament. He made $150,000 for his troubles, which was the biggest single paycheck he'd ever pocketed for winning a tournament.

And he played what, even for the game's greatest player, was an especially high caliber of golf.

"GOD I HOLED a lot of putts this week," he said at a long and pleasant post-tournament press conference. "I don't think I've ever putted four days like this."

He did that weekend and he maintained that 'it wasn't because the course was particularly easy. It may not be Pebble Beach, but it's not like everyone else was 20-under.

Lee Trevino was, finishing 21under in second place, but then it was back to Jim Dent and Charles Coody, who tied for third at 16-

"They mixed the pins up every day and maybe they weren't all as hard as on the regular tour, but there were probably eight hard ones and a few medium ones and only a few that were easy," said Nicklaus. "I really don't understand how I shot that low.

"WHAT DID I shoot, this week, 261? That's ridiculous. I amazed myself this week."

And everyone else, including

Cours

And many observers figured it was built to suit the designer's game.

Reviews ranged form those who claimed to enjoy its "challenges" (which means they thought it was too tough, but weren't going to wimp out and complain about it) to Trevino, who stormed off it on Sunday muttering something about a "goat"

THE COURSE REALLY got his goat on No. 17 Sunday when, trailing by two strokes, he aggressively tried to make them both up by going for the green on his second shot.

It ended up inches short and in the drink, which is where Trevino's hopes wound up as well.

He'd been leading by three strokes heading into the final day, but he was soon overtaken by the eventual cham-

Aton the leader board was Jim Al-

Atop the leader board was Jim A.

You know. Jim Albus, the famed club pro at the Piping Rock Country Club in Locust Valley, NY.

Albus fed on the course like a swarm of locusts, taking a two-stroke lead on Thursday with a sixunder round of 66, hanging around the top of the chart Friday and Saturday and then shooting a 70 on Sunday to wind up at a nine-under 279.

It's a dream come true," smiled Albus at his coronation press conference. 'I think I surprised myself even more than you fellows.

"I played over my head, there's no question about that, but with the exception of guys like Jack and Trevino, that's what you have to do to win a tournament."

1992 Highlight

In one of the most dramatic birmarounds in Senior TOUR history, Dave Stockton completed a trice-stroke swing at the 75n hole with an eight-looi bride putt and overtook JC. Snead for his first, Senior TOUR victory and first title since the 1976 PG. Championship.

Snead had led the tournament for 71 of the 72 holes but ned disastler at the 417-yard, par 4, 18th hole on Sunday when he puller.

Shead had led the tournament for 71 of the 72 holes but met disaster at the 417 yard, par 4, 18th hole on Sunday when he pulls his drive into the stream left of the fairway. Stockton meanwhile hit is perfect 3-wood off the tee and rifled a 3-mon to within 8 fe of the flag. After watching Shead drop poorly and two put for double-bogs. Stockton carry stepped up and holed his birding for the victory.

Stockton pocketed $150,000 for the win, the largest check of his career. He began the final day in a second-place tie with Birding the stockton pocketed $150,000 for the win, the largest check of his career. He began the final day in a second-place tie with Birding the final day in a second-place tie with Birding the final day in a second-place tie.

Charles, five shots behind Shead who had set a 35-hole tournament record with a score of 19-under 131. "I knew I wouldn't have wanted anyone putting for the win but me." Stockton said atterward. "When the bail was two leet from the hole, I knew it was in: The tournament also saw three players have Vantage Aces on the same hole, including two on the that day of competition on Finday, Ben Smith holed an 8-tron at the 12th hole. Two days later, J.C. Goosie rifted a 5-tron into the cup and was follower, an hour and a half later by 800 Befley with the same club.

. See how easy it is?

Hit the ball a long way, sink your putts and play over your head in crunch time. What better advice could you ever get from a pro?

THE VICTORY CHANGED Albus life. He had never won on the regular tour and if the $150,000 Nicklaus had won the year before was his biggest purse, you can imagine what Albus' previous best had been.

He is now a fixture on the senior tour and, let's face it, will be one of the favorites again this year.

But enough of this nice guy makes good stuff.

"How tough was it?" said Daye Hill in response to a question asked as he exited his own press conference. "On every (expletive deleted) tee it would have taken a good docfor to stick a needle in my (butt)."

The course designer wasn't hanging around soliciting critiques so he probably didn't hear that one, but then he probably wouldn't have minded it, either.
