Wife denies worker made threat

A city employee admitted he was under job-related stress, but his wife denied that he made threats. The mayor believes that the worker's problem is being used for political purposes in the upcoming election.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAPP WRITER

A Westland city worker says he was placed in a psychiatric hospital — against his will — after he told his boss that he was suffering from job stress and needed help.

But Mike Sadley, a public services department worker, never made threats of a possible workplace shooting, though many employees share fears that "somebody's going to crack," his wife, Jennie, told the Observer.

Sadley, 39, made only brief comments during a telephone interview Tuesday and referred most questions to his wife, who called the ordeal "a nightmare."

Sadley spent three nights in a psychiatric ward at Heritage Hospital in Taylor after he was taken there Friday afternoon by his foreman, Charles Dickey. He was released late Monday morning, but did not return to work.

"I was scared," he said.

The bizarre story began Friday when Sadley, a father of three, told Dickey that he was under stress because of undue pressure that DPS workers say is being placed on them by the mayor's office.

On Friday, Sadley was first taken by Dickey to a Westland clinic, and a doctor there referred him to Heritage Hospital, both sides agree.

"He just wanted to talk to someone" and possibly inquire about receiving outpatient treatment, his wife said.

Schools: Tax vote still on

Wayne-Westland voters will still be asked to increase their school taxes this fall, despite the state Legislature's decision to eliminate property taxes as the chief source of education funding.

School officials confirmed Monday that they will move ahead with a tax proposal aimed at restoring $14 million in budget cuts.

The state plan won't affect education funding until the 1994-95 school year, meaning the struggle for local tax support will continue this year.

"At this stage of the game, we can not lose sight of our goal — to provide the best educational program this community will allow us to afford for our students this coming year," board president Francis "Bud" Winter said.

Winter was out of state Monday because of his mother's death, but he had prepared a statement that was read by board vice president Mathew McCusker.

The state plan will slash an estimated $45 million from Wayne-Westland's projected $74 million budget for the 1994-95 year. The Legislature hasn't yet found a way to replace the money.

"While state officials scramble trying to figure out how they will fund education in the 1994-95 school year, we must worry about the 1993-94 school year and our $14 million shortfall," Winter's statement said. "What is most important now is this fiscal year, the devastating cuts in academic programs, extracurricular activities, maintenance of our buildings, and the loss of transportation for all students attending secondary schools."

The deep cuts will take effect this fall unless voters approve a tax increase. The board is expected to decide on a specific tax proposal and an election date during a special session at 7 p.m. Tuesday at board offices on Marquette, east of Newburgh Road.

The district's tax rate has plunged from 47 mills to 37 because of a 7.75-mill tax that expired June 30 and an additional 2.25-mill rollback triggered by the state Headlee Amendment.

Some school officials have voiced fears that the state plan will hurt the pending tax campaign.

"I think this is definitely going to be a hindrance in our request for a millage," board trustee Richard Le-Blanc said Monday.

Wayne-Westland voters already have shown that they are in an antitax mood. They rejected a 6-mill tax plan and a Headlee Amendment override in April.

Fernandez to head dial-a-ride agency

By LEONARD POGER Editor

Richard Fernandez, board chairman of a regional dial-a-ride service, will be the acting full-time director, starting next week.

The former Garden City councilman said he was appointed unanimously by his colleagues at a board meeting Tuesday night. Fernandez abstained on the recommendation by the Nankin Transit Commission management committee to have a full-time director.

The previous director, Charles Hunter, resigned in April, about the same time the board eliminated the position of drivers' supervisor to save money.

The commission, which operates a small-bus transportation service for Garden City, Westland, Canton Township, Inkster and Wayne, discussed its options and committee recommendations for three hours.

Fernandez was a Garden City councilman for 2½ years in the 1980s and is now general manager for a sealant distribution company.

In a telephone interview Wednesday morning, Fernandez said the focus of NTC will be to have a viable transportation service for senior citizens and handicapped persons.

"We will increase and give better service," said Fernandez, who will be 57 on Aug. 6.

His salary will be negotiated and later approved by the board.

Ed Phillips, new board vice chairman, said Fernandez was the "logical choice" to be acting director because of his management and business skills.

The new director said his appointment is for one year with a perform-

The commission, organized in early 1976 to provide public transportation for senior citizens and handicapped people, has been without its top two administrators for nearly four months.

In April, the NTC board accepted the resignation of Hunter, who has been with the agency since its formation in 1976, and drivers' supervisor Martin Moore.

The board then formed a management committee to run the organization. Making up the committee are Fernandez, Tom Kelly of Wayne and Ralph Shufeldt of Canton Township.

cause this has no reimbursement linkage.

By Marie Chestney Staff Writer

It didn't take long for the first fallout from the largest tax cut in state history to hit the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland.

One early impact of the law, expected to be signed Aug. 17 by Gov. John Engler, is to add another sentence to the district's Aug. 30 special election ballot.

Some provisions of Senate Bill. take place immediately, while the property tax cut itself does not take effect until July 1, 1994.

The sentence to be added to the ballot spells out how much extra money - $3,296,555 to be exact - the one-mill property tax increase, if passed, would bring into the district in the coming school

The Livonia Board of Education is expected to approve the new ballot language Monday.

This is the first result of Senate Bill 1," said Jay Young, community relations director in charge of the Aug. 30 election.

Another bit of fallout could come at the end of the 1993-94 of the 1995 school year.

But Superintendent Joseph Marinelli Monday said the tax increase, if passed, most likely won't last beyond the 1993-94 school year.

By then, the state should have adopted a new way of financing public education in Michigan. "It might be null and void beyond the first year," Marinelli said. The bulk of the money generated from the one mill would fully restore high and middle school sports and extracurricular activities, at least in 1993-94.

The rest would restore the elementary art, music and physical education programs and six elementary reading teachers.

Joseph Marinelli

Livonia superintendent

Another piece of fallout from the legislation could come if the Aug. 30 millage vote fails. The district would have only one more chance this year to put the question to voters on another ballot.

The new law immediately limits schools to no more than two millage elections a year that lead to a tax increase.

Beginning with the summer 1994 tax bill, SB 1 exempts all property from taxation for local and intermediate school operating purposes.

This puts reform on the front burner," Marinelli said. "Because this has no reimbursement linkage, lawmakers will have to address this. They have created a crisis. But we're concerned that we'll be sitting here next year and they won't find a compromise. It's a political situation and we'll be trying to figure out where we are.'

Districts still can collect property taxes to pay off debts incurred primarily for building, such as Livonia's technology bond millage.

Ninety-seven percent of the district's income comes from local property taxes.

Legislations want this to be a net tax reduction so the question is, 'Who loses?' " Marinelli said.

The district's three high school principals recently wrote to recent graduates, asking them to support the Aug. 30 millage and thus give future graduates the same academic and extracurricular opportunities they enjoyed as students. Enclosed in the letter is an absentee ballot.

Board mixed on tax slash

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

The state Legislature came under heavy fire Monday from some Wayne-Westland school officials for slashing school property taxes without announcing a plan for restoring the money.

But some school board members and residents appeared optimistic that the plan will finally force the state to find a school-financing solution.

Superintendent Larry Thomas said the latest action amounts to the Legislature telling school districts, "Don't worry, we have ended your pay-check, but somehow we're going to pay you. . ,

"That's playing games with students," he said, "and I don't think the superintendent, the board of education or the state Legislature should play games with students."

The district includes portions of eastern Canton Township, with about 300 families sending students to the Wayne Westland district.

Board member Mathew McCusker predicted that public distrust of legislators will only increase because of the new plan.

"I just couldn't believe what they (the Legislature) did," he said. "This is scary."

The state has decided to eliminate local school property taxes as a method of funding beginning with the 1994-95 school year. But McCusker predicted lawsuits will be filed that will delay the plan — possibly for years.

Board trustee Laurel Raisanen was among those who said she is optimistic for school finance reform. She even suggested the board should consider a resolution calling the plan "a courageous first step" and urging the Legislature to develop a "fair and equitable" finance plan.

Trustee Vicki Welty called the state's plan "a giant step" and added, "Will it work? I don't know. But it's at least a

The current system of financing that relies heavily on local property taxes has prompted numerous Wayne-Westland tax campaigns in recent years, splitting residents into fierce pro- and anti-tax camps.

"Kids don't vote," he said.

Westland landlord and attorney Walter Warren told the board Monday that the state action is "a great day for the taxpayers of Westland."

Warren urged the board not to "play obstructionist." He also voiced hope that the plan will keep in check the spiraling costs of education in such areas as salaries.

Warren, an outspoken critic of rising teacher salaries, la-beled the growth of education costs "a cancer" but predicted that "I think those days are over.

McCusker took offense at Warren's statements and said: local officials don't like the fact that they have to seek local taxes to pay for education.

"I want you to apologize to this board if you think we enjoy running millage campaigns," he said.

McCusker blasted what he called Warren's "conservative rhetoric" and implored him to support a school tax for one year, until the state's plan takes effect. 'Get off your a-- and join us in a millage campaign for one year," McCusker told Warren. "It's time to put up or shut up."

Some other board members tried to calm McCusker, with Raisanen indicating that McCusker should not attack citizens when they address the

Union leader: Concessions unlikely before election

By Marie Chestney Staff Writer

There is little chance Livonia school district teachers will agree to pay or benefit concessions before the Aug. 30 special millage election, said Nancy Shaw, president of the teachers' union, the 1,040-member Livonia Education

"Any concessions would need the vote of the membership and it's virtually impossible to get the membership to vote in the summer," Shaw said. "Reality reigns. We don't have summer addresses. There won't be any vote until they come back in the fall."

Shaw's prediction should come as bad news to those school officials, whose district includes the northern section of Westland, who believe residents won't approve the one-mill tax increase Aug. 30 unless they see concessions from employees before the

If passed, about $1.8 million of the $2.9 million generated from the one-mill tax increase would fully fund high and middle school sports and extracurricular activities for the next three years.

Another $1.1 million raised by the millage would restore the elementary art, music and physical education programs and six elementary reading teachers.

School administrators and LEA officials said they have gone back and forth three times since March on the issue of concessions. The LEA's three-year contract expires June 1994.

The district's first overture got sidetracked after Proposal A wound up on the May statewide ballot.

"We had a mutual agreement we would suspend talks until we knew the outcome of Proposal A." Shaw said. "Both sides hoped Proposal A would pass. We thought it would be the best we'd get for education. But it didn't

After the defeat, informal talks between the two sides resumed. But the timing was bad because the school year was ending and teachers scattering for the summer. Shaw said

'Communication with our members is difficult in the summer," Shaw said. "We told the district it would be impossible to do over the summer because we need two membership meetings, with a quorum of 500 members present. Logistically, it's not possible over the summer to get that many people in." The district recently approached the LEA for the third time, this time seeking concessions from the coaches and activity directors who would be paid with money generated by the onemill tax increase, Shaw said.

These talks are postponed until teachers return and school resumes, Shaw said.

"We have not closed the doors," said Shaw, a first-grade teacher. 'We have never said no and we're willing to talk. We are reasonable people. If we have a reasonable proposal, we'll make a reasonable Shaw said the LEA hasn't yet decided whether to back the Aug. 30 ballot proposal.

Freewheeling: The Hokett family — John, Maggie and daughter Mary — likes the fact that there's no traffic to worry about along Hines Drive on Saturdays.

Hines Drive coasts through summer

By DIANE GALE STAFF WRITER

The joy of bicycling ends when you're looking over your shoulder and dodging 16-wheelers.

That's why cyclists, sports enthusiasts and nature lovers take to the paths in Hines Drive when the roads are closed. Vehicles are banned every Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the stretch from Outer Drive to Ann Arbor Trail.

'There's no traffic to worry about - there's all kinds of people roller skating and walking their dogs," said John Hokett, hauling his daughter, Mary, in a bicycle trailer. Daughter Anne and wife Maggie took part in the family ritual.

"What's nice is that you're safe," Maggie Hokett said. "The difference between biking and taking cars is that people will say 'hi' to you on a bike."

There are no worries about parking the car since the Livonia family lives close enough to cycle to the park.

The "Saturday in the Park" road closure program is becoming a family event, according to Tessie Pitses, manager of recreation for Wayne County parks.

"You see tricycles, training wheels and senior citizens out on their walks. It's interesting seeing the big, wide range group.'

A car window somehow obscures the scenery, according to Janet Rose, who was out cycling on the path with her husband, Charles, on a recent hot Saturday morning.

"When you're in a car you miss half of it," she said. "You have to listen for whose coming up from behind. Here it's pretty safe. You're not going to be hit by a car.

"I'd hate it if they take this away from us," the Livonia wom-John Alma of Westland was out

Allen Henry and Roxanne Peterson, both of Westland, were out in-line skating, despite the heat, with friends from Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

Balancing on the blades, Peterson said, "I'm still learning."

The road wasn't limited to wheels, skates and walkers. Gypsy, a golden retriever, was taking a walk with her owner, Cheryl Lazar of Livonia. The exercising pair lives so close to the park that they walk down.

But plenty of people bring their cars and there's ample parking available at Nankin Mills, at Ann Arbor Tail; Merriman Hollow, east of Nankin Mills; and Warrendale, at Warren Avenue.

Flat tires and heat exhaustion are the most common problems during the road closure, according to Wayne County sheriff's deputy Ken Laskasky, who was patrolling the area one recent Saturday.

"Most of the time it's just scrapes, bruises and flat tires." Laskasky said, adding, however, that the sheriff's office fields a lot of odd reports, too.

"We were looking for a 250pound naked man. All the witness could say is, 'He had a mustache and black hair.' We're not sure those kinds of calls really happen, because we never find anyone.

Cruising: Ken Biglane of Livonia enjoys inline skating along Hines Drive. He logs about 15 miles most Saturdays.

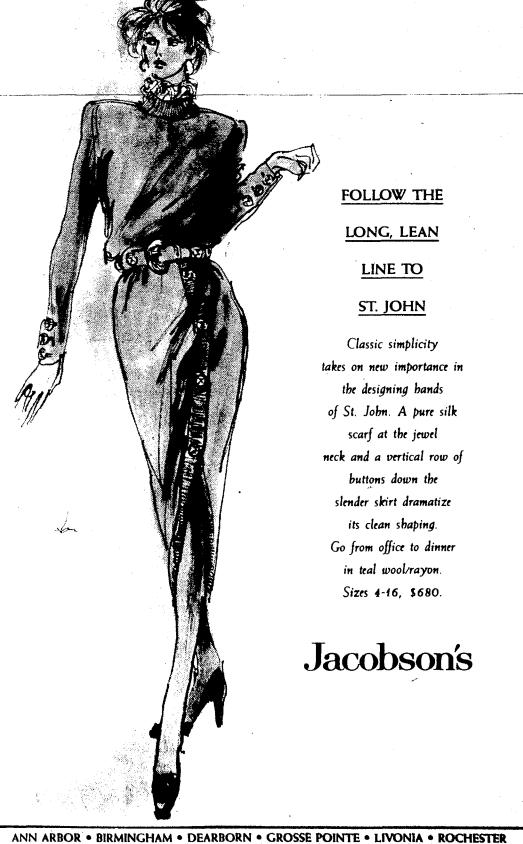

In-line skaters: Hines Drive provides an inviting stretch of pavement for in-line skating enthusiasts. Enjoying the car-free roadway on a recent Saturday were Roxanne Peterson of Westland, Allen Henry of Westland, Barbara Scott of Baltimore and Kenneth Boggess of Washington,

Threats claimed

Sadley has been accused of making threatening statements and indicating that Westland could see "a post office incident" similar to a fatal shooting in Dearborn, said city councilman Kenneth Mehl.

"He didn't say he was going to do it," said Mehl, a mayoral candidate who accused Thomas of pressuring DPS workers because they oppose his re-election.

Sadley contends that he was held against his will at Heritage Hospital because Dickey signed a form to have him committed. Dickey could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

But the mayor, who would not comment on the alleged threats made by Sadley, said doctors not Dickey - placed Sadley in the psychiatric ward.

Jennie Sadley said her husband "was floored" by the allegations that he threatened violence in the workplace.

"He made no threats to anyone," she said.

A Heritage spokeswoman said she could not discuss the specific case because of patient confidentiality. But Doris Wilson, a psychiatric unit supervisor, confirmed that "anyone can petition anyone" to be committed to Heritage, but two physicians have to concur before a patient will be committed to the hospital.

"Policy is very strictly followed," Wilson said.

Jennie Sadley is angry that no one from the city administration phoned her until Monday morning — and then the caller was a police officer and not a mayor's office employee.

"I'm outraged about all of she said. If her husband hadn't been able to call her, she added, it's possible that "I would have never known where he was."

Mayor Thomas said Dickey only went to the hospital with Sadley at Sadley's request. Sadley did not want to go in an ambu-lance from the Westland clinic, Thomas said.

Jennie Sadley said the incident has shattered her faith in govern-

'I want to make sure that this kind of thing can't happen again," Jennie Sadley said.

Pension boost for police, fire retirees faces revision

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A proposal to boost the pensions of retired Westland police and fire department employees who receive average pensions of $30,000 — is expected to be

During a study session Monday, some City Council members indicated opposition to the plan that would boost pensions for all fire and police retirees, including those who receive as much as $42,000.

Some council members indicated they could support pension increases only for retirees receiving the smallest pensions that amount to several thousand dollars annually.

Talks of increasing pensions emerged after some retired police and fire employees asked the council for an adjustment, citing what they called financial hard-ees would have to be retired for six years to qualify.

Retirees receiving more than $30,000 a year would not receive the one-time increases.

But the original plan for all the retirees suggested an annual pension increase of 2 percent - or 50 percent of the cost-of-living increase, whichever is greater.

Those increases would kick in after six years of retirement for those earning less than $30,000 and after 10 years for those earning more.

The Mayor Robert Thomas administration, which opposes the plan, has predicted the cost over 30 years would be $8.2 million a figure that Mehl said is greatly exaggerated.

Still, all sides have agreed that the proposal should be further studied for possible revisions.

Brown said Monday he doesn't consider the plan exorbitant because, "we're talking about the people who gave protection to this community in its infancy."

Budget from page 5A

Since McNamara vetoed the commission's budget-cutting plan Monday, the commission has to compromise with McNamara or try to override his veto.

Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford and Livonia east of Middlebelt, said Duggan doesn't remember that commissioners have to be accountable to their constituents.

"Mike is a staff member," she said. "He really isn't accountable to the community like we are, and sometimes he forgets that. We work for the community. He works for Mr. McNamara."

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, a Livonia Republican who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, wonders why a Democratic commission and a Democratic executive office can't be friends.

"You'd think the Democrats could get together and work out a budget that's good for the county," he said. "These people are attacking each other individually and nothing's getting done. They're pontificating, not communicating."

The commission didn't like the budget cuts McNamara suggested recently and so approved its own set of cuts July 16. McNamara vetoed the commission cuts Mon-

Duggan said some of the cuts in the commission's package are impossible to implement, making layoffs necessary. Commissioners say that McNamara's cuts are unfair because they reduce the commission's budget, but leave McNamara's untouched.

Plawecki said everybody involved should forget about politicking and get the job done. "We're all adults," she said. "We all have responsibilities. If it means setting aside your personal feelings, we need to do that. It's gone on too long.'

Duggan and McNamara didn't return the Observer's phone calls by press time late Wednesday.

A. The suburbs are in a bad spot. No longer can they rely on their local property wealth. All school funding will come from the state aid formula. The outstate and city districts easily can gang up and "average" school income. High-spending suburban districts will be hurt. They are likely to seek some form of local supplementary revenue.

Q. Weren't lawmakers talking about other school cost containment measures?

A. They sure were. The talk stopped temporarily with the big breakthrough. You will see cost containment ideas surface soon. Among the schemes:

Limiting superintendents' salaries to 85 percent of the governor's. That's unlikely because it would interfere in local administration and contractual rights.

■ Taking bids on health insurance for school employees. Currently health coverage is bargained locally, and most districts deal with a subsidiary of the Michigan Education Association, the teachers union.

Q. Politically, how does this affect Gov. John Engler and his leading Democratic opponent, Sen. Debble Stabenow?

A. Engler delivers on a promise to cut property taxes. Stabenow delivers on a promise to get replacement revenue. Both win because the school finance question is neutralized as a campaign is-

Within the Democratic Party, however, Stabenow has trouble. Two-thirds of House Democrats voted no. Howard Wolpe and Rep. Lyn Jondahl, her intra-party guagainst her in the primary. Q. How does the Michigan Education Association come out? A. That's hard to say. Clearly, MEA is the most hated group in the state, as education columnist

'Doc" Doyle pointed out July 19. In part, the wrath is manufactured by the religious right, which seeks to dislodge Satan from the schools, but they are a minority. Plenty of non-ideological working people see MEA as continuing to collect big raises while their real incomes are stable or declining. MEA influence over local school boards could become an issue.

Even legislators, accustomed to voter wrath over salary hikes, say the MEA is surpassing them in salary hikes. At least two legislators who left said their teacherwives made more than they did.

Outstate, MEA members are likely to be winners, particularly if school funding is increased in poorer districts. In suburbia, MEA could be a loser. But that's just speculation.

August skygazers in for special treat

ity of a once in a RAYMOND E. lifetime experi-BULLOCK ence: a meteor That's right; not a meteor shower, a meteor storm!

Skywatchers,

this is the month

for which you have been waiting! The august month of August offers Saturn at

"Blue Moon,

All five of the naked-eye planets will be visible this month. Mercury and Venus will be morning objects: Mars and Jupiter will be visible after sunset. Saturn, at opposition this month, will rise after sunset and can be observed

There will be two full moons in August. The first will occur at 8:10 a.m. on Aug. 2. The August Full Moon was often called the "Green Corn Moon" or "Grain Moon" by some Native American Indians. The moon, located opposite the earth as seen from the sun, will rise at sunset and be visible all night.

Bright Venus will be visible 45 minutes before sunrise, high in the east northeast, all month. Mercury will be found below and to the left of Venus, just seven de-will be at its maximum elongation (greatest apparent distance) from the sun on the 3rd. It will be 19 degrees to the west (right) of the sun and fairly well placed for spotting, but not for long. By the middle of the month it will be too close to the horizon to be seen, and by the end of the month it will be behind the sun.

The bright "star" seven degrees below and to the right of the moon on the evening of the 3rd will be Saturn. This will be the first of two passes the moon will make of Saturn this month. Saturn will be at its brightest for 1993 in August. Even a small telescope will provide you with a view of Saturn's ring system, which will be tilted degrees with the planet's northern hemisphere tipped

Look toward the west southwest around 9:30 p.m. on the 5th, and you will spot bright Jupiter. It will be located mid-way between the red planet, Mars, and the blue-white star Spica. Spica will be 14 degrees to the left of Jupiter; Mars will be 15 degrees to Juniter's right. This alignment will provide an excellent opportunity to observe the relative motion between the two planets and Spica.

ditional $5. Exhibitors will dis-

Watch Mars draw closer to Jupiter each night. By the end of the month the two objects will be only three degrees apart. Meanwhile, while Mars has been moving, so has Jupiter. By the end of the month Jupiter will be four degrees closer to Spica, but Mars will end the month eighteen degrees closer to that star.

One of the most recognizable constellations in the sky will be rising in the east southeast shortly after sunset this month: Orion (oh RYAN) the hunter. To spot Orion, who is tilted at a 45 degree angle, first locate Venus in the east. Eighteen degrees to the right of Venus will be the orange-red star Betelgeuse ("beetle juice"), whose Arabic name (Beit Algueze) means "Armpit of the Giant." This is Orion's right armpi... er, shoulder.

Orion is the most brilliant of the constellations, containing many first and second magnitude stars. It comes as a bit of a shock in August to learn that Orion is a WINTER star group! It is at opposition in December, rising as Mercury will form a straight line with the twin stars Castor and Pollux on the morning of the 9th. Once again, begin by locating Venus. Eighteen degrees to the left of Venus is Castor, and below Castor is Pollux. Draw a line from Castor, through Pollux, and continue toward the horizon. You will pass directly through Mercury, which will be seven degrees above the horizon.

The moon will be at last quarter phase at 11:19 a.m. on Aug. 10. The moon will be starting the last quarter of its orbit around the earth. On the morning of the 11th it will be approaching the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster, the "shoulder" of Taurus the

Small carrier, big heart helped U.S. win WWII

Commissioned on April 25, 1940, the USS Wasp became the seventh of eight aircraft carriers when the United States entered World War II.

Displacing 14,700 tons empty, Wasp was smaller than her more famous cousins Enterprise, Lexington and Yorktown. Because the Washington Naval Treaty limited the U.S. to 135,000 tons for aircraft carriers, Wasp had to be made smaller than the Navy would have liked. She was the only ship in her class.

With a wartime crew of 2,367 men, Wasp carried 80 aircraft and was defended by eight five-inch guns, 16 1.1-inch guns and 30 20mm guns.

During most of her short life, Wasp served in the Atlantic Ocean. In 1942, Wasp twice delivered Spitfire fighter aircraft to the beseiged Mediterranean island of Malta, prompting British Prime Minister Winston Churchill to quip "Who said a Wasp couldn't sting twice?"

In mid-1942, Wasp transferred to the Pacific Ocean in time to. help support the invasion of Guadalcanal. Wasp missed the Battle of the Eastern Solomons in August 1942 because she was sent away to refuel. Had she not been sunk by three torpedoes fired by a Japanese submarine Sept. 15, 1942, Wasp would have provided a sorely needed boost to U.S. naval forces in the Battle of Santa Cruz a month later.

In 1943, the Navy launched a replacement Wasp (CV-18), this one an Easex-class carrier and not to be confused with the aforementioned Wasp, CV-7.

Nowadays both of the World War II Wasps are gone, but the name lives on with a new class of amphibious assault ships. The first vessel in that line, USS Wasp, LHD-1, was commissioned in July 1989.

Former crewmen of the old Wasp follow the career of the new Wasp in the quarterly magazine "Stinger" published by Livonia

Never forget: More than 50 years after his old ship, the USS Wasp, was torpedoed and sunk in World War II, Livonia resident Norman Watson keeps in contact with old shipmates through the Stinger Club, a group of 650 Wasp veterans. Here Watson holds photographs of him

Old Wasp sailors recall her demise

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Although the aircraft carrier USS Wasp was sunk more than 50 years ago when three Japanese torpedoes slammed into her side, the memory of CV-7 lives on in the hearts and minds of her crew, whose members publish a quarterly magazine and meet annually to reminisce.

Livonia resident Norman Watson was a 19-year-old Wasp sailor who enlisted in the Navy a week after Pearl Harbor was assaulted on Dec. 7, 1941. Less than a year later, on Sept. 15, 1942, Watson slid down a rope into the Pacific Ocean near the Solomon Islands after the Wasp was torpedoed by the Japanese submarine I-19.

"I was not a good swimmer, but there's a certain will, a somebody up there likes you thing," he said. was fished out of the water buck naked, covered with oil and the water, but 211 Wasp sailors perished in the attack. Most of their bones still rest within the ship on the bottom of the Pacific.

Sam Bamford, a Livonia retiree who grew up in Farmington, was a young boatswain's mate at the time. He dug himself out from a prison of bunks that crashed down on him when the torpedoes hit, then proceeded to the flight deck to check on his brother; Charles.

Together, the Bamford brothers leaped from the flight deck inte the ocean, then lost track of each

The sailors in the water fretted about their chances of surviving. 'You kind of reconcile yourself to the inevitable," Watson said. "The big thing you worried about was the sharks," said Bamford, whose brother survived the sinking but died recently.

Everyone felt the concussion of depth charges dropped nearby in hope of destroying the submarine. You could feel it in your guts,' Bamford said.

Picked up after 31/2 hours in the ater by the destroyer Lansdowne, Bamford had the dubious honor of watching that destroyer finish off the fatally wounded Wasp. "It made me feel bad," he said. "There still could be survime. I thought about those fellows trapped below decks."

Ray Lempke, a Troy resident now, was a plane handler with fighter squadron VF-71 when the Wasp went down. "I had mixed emotions when it was occurring,' he said. "It's like you lose your car, you lose your home. It's a total shock."

Three years ago, Lempke heard about the USS Wasp Stinger Club, a group of about 650 veter-ans of CV-7, most of whom were also in the water on that inauspicious day 51 years ago, then separated from one another soon thereafter to man other ships.

To encounter, 50 years later, the shipmates he thought he'd never see again, Lempke said, "was a beautiful experience." But even Wasp sailors like Lempke, who was 17 when he enlisted in December 1941, are well into their 60s now. Many are older, and many have died.

"Every year, the ranks are depleting," Lempke said, "and it's a shame to see them all go." (Just last year, for example, former aviation machinist's mate Bill Cooke, a Rochester Hills resident, resident, was a Wasp signalman who joined the Stinger Club in 1982 and has attended every annual reunion but one since then.

Henry Milamowski, a Livonia

"There's a different feeling when you see them," he said. "There's something in you that can't be described. It's almost brotherhood. It didn't take long to get to know each other."

Watson, who discovered the Stinger Club in 1981, is now a club officer and editor of the quarterly magazine. It's not easy to get Watson to talk about himself because his main interest is finding Wasp sailors who've never heard of the Stinger Club. Old Wasp sailors may contact him at 477-1143:

Within the Stinger magazine, club members find updates on the latest annual reunion, news of their old shipmates, reminiscences of former Wasp sailors, and articles reprinted (by permission) from various magazines.

A page in an old Stinger edition sums up pretty well how most of these men feel about their old

Green trial reveals ill? feelings between MEs

By Pat Murphy Staff Writer

Ill feelings between the medical examiner's offices in Oakland and Wayne are obvious from testimony in the trial of three police officers charged in the beating death of Detroiter Malice Green, according to presiding Recorder's Court Judge George W. Crockett III.

But it's difficult, if not impossible, to say which side injected them, Crockett said in response to an objection raised during Monday's proceedings, the second day in which the Oakland Medical Examiner said the office in Wayne County is inept and subject to pressure.

The issue of whether defense attorneys or prosecutors first brought out any feelings of animosity came up late Monday dur ing cross examination of Ljubisa J. Dragovic, who worked in the Wayne County medical examina er's office before becoming Oak land County medical examiner in 1991.

With Dragovic on the witness stand, defense attorney Fred Walker referred to the prosecution "bringing up ill feelings" between the offices in Oakland and' Wayne counties.

Area reps deny special trade status for China

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Trade With China: The House failed, 105 for and 318 against, to deny China favorable trade status. The vote on HJ Res 208 upheld President Clinton's one-year extension of preferential terms including the lowest U.S. tariffs on imports from China.

Pete Stark, D-Calif., said he opposed favorable trade terms for China because of "a dirty little secret — that China is helping to build and distribute nuclear weapons around the world, and we know Robert Matsui, D-Calif., said "we are creating an entrepreneurial class in China at this time. The way to get democracy is by getting a marketplace system in China.

A yes vote opposed most-favored-nation trade status for China. Area representatives voting yes were: Kildee, Knollenberg, Levin and Ford.

House Post Office Scandal: By a vote of 242 for and 186 against, the House tabled (killed) a Republican bid (H Res 222) for immediate release of records from an internal probe of misconduct including embezziement at the House Post Office. This followed by days a former postmaster's court admission of diverting cash to unnamed House members. The U.S. attorney prosecuting the case opposed the release, while Republicans charged a cover-up.

Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., questioned "why anyone in the face of the clear, unequivocal recommendation of the U.S. attorney, unsolicited by this House, would want . . . to vote to send these materials out obstruct or bungle what is an ongoing and obviously successful criminal investigation.

Supporter Scott Klug, R-Wis... urged disclosure of "public files" produced by public employees investigating public officials (accused of) ripping off public money." He said the vote would show "who in this chamber wants to 'fess up and who in this chamber wants to continue to hush up."

A yes vote opposed public disclosure at this time of House investigatory files on its post office scandal. Area representatives voting yes were: Dale Kildee, D-Filnt, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Ford, D-Ypsilanti. Voting no: Joseph Knollenberg, R-Birmingham.

Tourism Agency: The House rejected, 158 for and 263 against, a U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration budget that was controversial because it included $5 million for a new program of grants for state tourism promotions. The vote rejected the $5 million and left $17.1 million as the proposed fiscal 1994 budget for the Commerce Department agency. Nearly all of the money is for federal promotions. The vote occurred during debate on HR 2519.

Supporter Toby Roth, R-Wis., said "every single state is going to benefit economically by this amendment."

Opponent James Moran, D-Va., called federal tourism spending "a subsidy to the major airlines and hotel chains" that takes money away from higher-priority programs.

A yes vote was to increase U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration spending to help state programs. Area representatives voting ves were: Kildee, Ford. Voting no: Knollenberg, Levin.

SENATE

Hatch Act: By a vote of 68 for passed a bill (S 185) enabling most civilian federal employees, on their own time, to take part in most forms of partisan politics short of running for office and raising monev from the general public. The bill softening the 1939 Hatch Act was sent to conference with the House. It affects 3.1 million U.S. employees including postal workers. But still "hatched" are those in military uniform, Federal Election Commission staff, top-level federal executives throughout government and certain law enforcement and intelligence employees.

Supporter Don Riegle, D-Mich., said "the time has come to grant civil servants the political freedoms the rest of the American population Opponent Dirk Kempthome, Rldaho, said the bill will "further diminish public trust in the federal bureaucracy.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Michigan Sens. Carl Levin (D) and Donald Riegle (D) both voted IRS Employees: By a vote of 50 for and 49 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an attempt to continue the Hatch Act's ban on partisan politicking by Internal Revenue Service agents, auditors and examiners. The vote occurred during debate on S 185 (above).

Tabling supporter John Glenn, D-Ohio, said existing law already contains strict penalties to dissuade IRS personnel from abuses of pow-

William Roth, R-Del., expressed concern about the impartiality of 'the IRS auditor who examines tax retums by day and is active in partisan politics at night."

A yes vote was to enable IRS personnel to participate in most areas of partisan politics on their own time. Levin and Riegie each

Baker objected. "He (Dragovic) brought it up in his testimony," said Baker. "But he did so in response to your questions," countered Walk-

Crockett put the dispute to rest by saying, "It's difficult to say who brought up the ill feeling. But they're definitely there."

In testimony last week, Dragovic said he was "very unfortunate to have worked with Dr. Bader Cassin." That was after Cassin was named Wayne County Medical Examiner, a job Dragovic said he applied for, but really didn't

Dragovic makes no secret of his opinion that Wayne County Medical Examiner Bader Cassin is inept, particularily in his concurrence with the finding that the death of Malice Green was caused "blunt force trauma to the head" with cocaine playing an "insignificant role." Dragovic is one of several expert witnesses called in the trial that began in early June and is expected to continue through much of August.

Jurors don't have to accept testimony from expert witnesses, said Crockett, without referring to Dragovic specifically.

Rather they should evaluate that testimony and factor it into their consideration of all the relevant facts, the judge said. Jurors should also take the expert's motive for testifying into consideration along with any extenuating video rental business on Warren Road east of Merriman will hold a farewell party Saturday for its patrons. Videoville Westland will close its doors at the end of the business day after the building's owner leased the space to another video business. Several patrons of Videoville called the Observer last month to protest the forced closing, praising owner Patt Guido for her friendliness and service.

Farewell party

Aid for flood victims

ocal residents can help victims of the Mississippi River flood by donating new clothing and non-perishable food at Wonderland Mall, on Plymouth Road at Middlebelt. The center has been designated as a drop-off location. Money can also be donated by making out checks to Salvation Army Flood Relief. Drop boxes are located at the mall's information booth for food and clothing. Checks should be given to the information booth employees.

Beating the heat

enry Ford Health System has launched a hot line service for helping local residents deal with hot weather problems. The heat illness hot line is 874-3157. The new skin cancer hot line is 874-3157. Both will provide recorded messages and precautionary measures that can be taken to prevent heat illness and skin cancer. The taped messages provide information from Henry Ford Health System professionals. The messages are updated monthly.

Open swimming

he Wayne-Westland Family YMCA, which also serves Garden City, has open swimming at its indoor pool 7-8 p.m. weekdays and 1-3 Saturdays. The family swim periods are 8-8:45 p.m. Fridays and 3-4 p.m. Saturdays. The pool is in the Y's activities center, 827 S. Wayne Road, south of Cherry Hill.

Running for a reason: Chris Roggero ran between 35 and 40 miles to help raise money for a Burger Center playscape. Members of his 10-person relay team, who stopped for a break, included Heather and Melissa Moore of Howell.

Runner helps foot playscape's bill

Chris Roggero of Westland started running in the spring of 1992 and then took part in the Great Lakes Relay, which has teams combining to run a 350-mile route, several months later.

While he enjoyed running, he wanted to run for a reason the following year.

He found a good reason: to raise money for a playscape for the enjoyment of students at Burger Center, a Garden City-based school for autistic students age 26 and younger.

tic students age 26 and younger.
Roggero, with the help of his mother, Nancy Roggero, a Burger school nurse, enlisted the help of more than 100 relatives and friends to raise more than $1,000 for the playscape, to be installed later this Roggero was a substitute teacher's aide at the center last year before joining the staff of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department alternative work force program.

The relay over the July 16-18 weekend started at Tawas City on Lake Huron, proceeded around the northern half of the Lower Peninsula and ended at Empire, on Lake Michigan.

Roggero, 25, ran about 35 to 40 miles as part of a 10-member relay

Burger Center, on Beechwood and Dillon in Garden City, is operated by the Garden City Public Schools for the county. It is the largest autistic center in the nation and has received national recognition.

Company Loks on to baby safety products

BY JILL HALPIN SPECIAL WRITER

It all began with a toddler's fascination with the toilet.

It was this fascination that spurred a desperate father into action and gave roots to a local company that now produces eight unique and highly engineered baby safety products.

Redford-based Mericon Corp. entered the baby safety products market 12 years ago with a single product: Lid-Lok, a toilet seat locking-device that renders the toilet bowl virtually inaccessible to small children, said Dennis Buckshaw, founder and CEO of Mericon and its parent company, the Denshaw Group.

It was Buckshaw's son, now grown and on to new toys, that inspired his father to invent Lid-Lok. "You could say that our son had 'water genes.' He just wouldn't let the toilet alone, blocking it twice and playing in some unsanitary conditions. It was pretty gross," said Buckshaw, father of six.

So off he set on a quest to buy a product to help him with this problem, only to discover that such a product didn't exist. In the great tradition of fathers everywhere, Buckshaw returned to his workshop determined to use his skills as an industrial engineer to invent a product to meet this

He emerged later with a juryrigged device guaranteed to lock the lid of the toilet down: an early version of Lid-Lok. As Buckshaw says, "You drive a Corvette, you notice other Corvettes. You have kids, you gravitate toward people with kids."

Those people began to notice the Lid-Lok, and soon Buckshaw was besieged with requests for the device.

Now top seller

Lid-Lok is now the top seller of the eight products that Mericon invented and manufactures, and sales of close to $1 million are expected for the company this year, according to Mike Ponyiatowski, marketing, sales and general manager for Mericon.

American, which stands for American Consumer Child Safety Products Corp. is one of three companies owned and operated by the Denshaw Group. The other companies, which also are in Redford, are Flotech Inc. and Merican Inc. Both are industrial companies involved with the sales and manufacturing of power generation supplies.

Of the eight products that Mericon offers, all are designed withthe highest regard for safety, said Ponyiatowski. Other Mericon products include Safe-Lok, an advanced-designed cabinet and door latch; Shok-Lok, an electrical outlet cover that features a tethered strap that prevents the choking hazards sometimes associated with the small outlet covers; the Baby-Proper, a device which props babies up in their high chair and prevents them sliding out; Safe-Plate, a full-electrical outlet cover and the only UL-approved electrical safety outlet cover on the market; Safe-Stop, a single piece doorstop without the soft detachable cap that some children find so appetizing, Slide-Lok, a bi-fold door lock that keeps the doors closed and stops little fingers from being pinched; and Safe-Tip, corner guards for sharp tables and

If we can't design a product better than what is already on the market, then we won't do them. All of our products are patented and have been engineered to be far more effective and reliable than what is already out there," said Ponyiatowksi. The father of one, he joined the company in January of this year.

A former teacher and administrator in the Lapeer and Troy school districts, Ponyiatowski attributes his company's commitment to safety to the fact that most of the employees have children of their own.

"We use these products ourselves."

Fast growing market

The juvenile safety products market is one of the fastest-growing markets around, as baby boomers have children and seek to provide safe environments for them, said Ponviatowski.

Yet people should be aware that some products may not be as reliable as they seem, he added.

"Safety is a big seller right now. So people will use the word safety in their advertising whether it is safe or not. Safety is really big business now."

Livonia fire marshal Arnold Klinger, who has been with Livonia for 27 years, agrees that safety has gained more attention in recent years — a fact he attributes to media attention and awareness.

"There are many products out there, plug-covers, drawer locks ... parental supervision is still the most important" key to child safety, he said.

Parents need to be aware of the many potential hazards contained in a house and take precautions, Klinger advises. "When you are young, you don't realize all of the dangers out there."

Mericon has participated with local community service organizations to continue to increase awareness about child safety, including the Detroit-area Safe Kids campaign.

Just as strong as their commitment to safety is a commitment to keeping jobs in the U.S. said

Although Mericon products are sold throughout the United States and in Europe, they are manufactured only in the United States. It is this commitment that has kept the business from exploding overnight, he contends. While many other companies flee for foreign soil in efforts to cut costs, Buckshaw refuses, opting instead for the slow steady growth that the company has felt.

"I could cause this company to explode overnight just by bringing in foreign product. We have a commitment to make the finest safety products in the world. Seventy-five percent of competing products are made in other countries. Our products have to pass our standards and we won't compromise," Buckshaw said.

With sales growing at least 15 to 20 percent a year, Mericon will continue to search for and manufacture new products, said Ponyiatowski, adding that the company also look for products invented by others to license and manufacture.

"The important thing is that the product is patented and must be better than what is already out there," said Ponyiatowski, adding that the company plans to introduce a safety kit featuring most of their products in the fall.

Area leader named to national board

John S. Lore, a leader in the Detroit area, has been elected to serve on the board of directors of the National Association for Community Leadership.

The association, headquartered in Indianapolis, is a coalition of organizations and individuals dedicated to transforming communities through leadership development.

Members of Community Leadership include organizations at the local, state and national levels in the United States.

International representation includes members in Australia, Canada and Great Britain.

Lore is senior vice president of the St. John Health Corporation and St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

As of Oct. 4, 1993, he will accept the position of president and chief executive officer of the Sisters of St. Joseph Health System. He is a 1989 graduate of Leadership Detroit and serves as their selection committee chair.

"Committed volunteer leadership is perhaps the most important resource to insure the future of our respective communities," says Wendell J. Walls, executive director for Community Leadership.

"It is no less important to Community Leadership. No group of volunteers is more important to the future of our organization than the board of directors."

As a community volunteer,

Lore is chair-elect of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives in Washington, D.C. and serves on the board of directors for many statewide as well as national organizations.

A few of those include the Michigan Nonprofit Forum, Starr Commonwealth Schools, Western Michigan University's Foundation and National Philanthropy Day.

Lore and wife Judy live in Plymouth. He earned his bachelor's, master's and doctor of education degrees from Western Michigan University. His honorary degrees include doctor of humane letters, Nazareth College, and college fellow, Spring Arbor College

Too expensive

City should control pensions

t looks like City Hall is trying to copy the Wayne-Westland school board when it comes to handing out the taxpayers' money to municipal retirees.

While the increase in pension benefits to retirees isn't enough to break the budget, the potential is there for creating money problems in

Hopefully, the city council, which discussed the proposal twice in the past week, will drop the most expensive elements of the plan and avoid getting involved in a money-sucking device to benefit a small number of persons.

In the past few years, Wayne-Westland school district residents became enraged at most teachers being paid much higher than the average homeowner who faces annual property tax increases to pay for the salaries. The homeowners took their anger out by voting against millage proposals.

Mayor Robert Thomas is right in opposing the council proposal which increases pension benefits for police and fire department retirees.

The Observer agrees with his prediction that the proposal to boost annual pensions for those who don't need the increases is bad policy.

Many retirees in the police and fire departments make $30,000 a year, according to the city administration, or almost as much as the median household income in Westland of

■ The city council and administration should put a halt to rising pension costs before they are out of control.

It doesn't make financial sense to have retirees make nearly as much as the people being forced to partly pay for it through local property

Longtime retirees who have the smallest pensions should get some type of increase to make the city's pension plan more equitable.

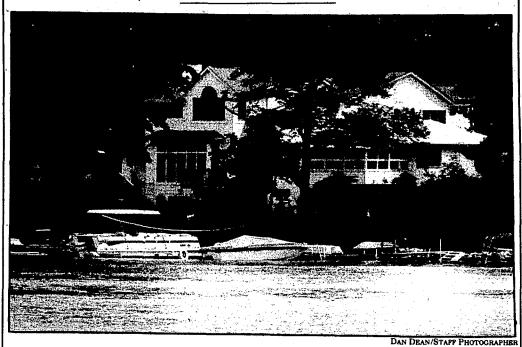

Under the proposal, retirees would have to be off the job for at least six years to qualify for the increases.

However, all retirees would receive an annual pay hike of 2 percent or 50 percent of the costof-living increase - whichever is greater. The pension increases would kick in after six years of retirement for those earning less than $30,000 and after 10 years for those earning more.

The 2-percent increases of $12,722 next year with the projected cost to reach $39,161 in eight years aren't budget-breaking numbers.

But it sends the wrong message to taxpayers who want some controls on city spending, not ways to spend more without getting anything in

Back to the future

Salaries criticized

he numbers are startling. The proposed new fiscal year budget for the Wayne-Westland schools confirms my suspicion that teacher salaries are the real culprit in the so-called "budget crisis."

Consider further that enrollments have plunged from 22,290 students in 1974 to only 15,741 estimated in 1994. That means there are about 6,549 fewer K-12 students in our district than there was 20 years ago! That's a big de-

But the real kicker is that our property tax base, as determined by state equalized values, has skyrocketed in the last 10 years; and has now nearly doubled since the 1982-83 school

It is the plummeting of the student population coupled with the surging property assessments that make our teachers the rich and pampered elite they are today.

Historically, Wayne-Westland has always had an absurdly high millage rate compared to the rest of the state. As recently as last year, Wayne-Westland was the district with the state's highest operating tax rate at 47-plus

Why us? What did we do to deserve this dubious distinction? Answer: We were afraid to say no to the millage greedy teachers' union and their sympathizers and supporters on the school board.

The Wayne-Westland schools aren't broke. In fact, they are wealthy beyond the average citizen's wildest dreams. Classroom teachers are making $50,000 and up per year for 81/2 months work with six-hour days and vacation, benefit and retirement packages beyond the average taxpayers' wildest hopes. What is the problem then?

They want more and more! The unions and their sympathizers on the school board are never satisfied. What you gave them last year is history. They want more this year, more next year and more the year after next. If you throw money at their feet this year, then you don't do it again next year — you're 'against kids.'' The taxpayers will never, never, never satisfy the tax demands of the school unions and the school board. Don't even try --- you will not do it. You might as well stop trying. We are heading for $70,000 per year teachers in this district whether you like it or not.

Let's stop the greed NOW — it's the least you can do for the kids. The kids deserve a future that is not strangled by outrageous taxes and dominated by fat cat public employee unions and their political stooges.

Let's drive a hard bargain and protect ourselves as taxpayers. This fall when the school board sets up the millage election to further raise your taxes — go in to that voting booth and "DO THE RIGHT THING!"

Walter Warren, Westland Taxpayers Union

Be responsible

he abortion battle has become an unhealthy power struggle and an inadequate government operational outrage to waste so much time, talent and taxpayers'

Common sense dictates that a "personal choice" is made to engage in irresponsible sex with a "before" attitude as the private/personal business/activity of involved partners; seeking no one's consent/advice; why then "after pregnant" should others uninvolved — the government/taxpayers - be made responsible for that 'choice" lifestyle?

Definitely eliminate any and all funding for abortions in lieu thereof, make the world a better loving place and reduce taxes. Minors, as well as immature adults, need to be well informed, disciplined, instructed and severely cautioned about sexual consequences, making either parents or the sexual partner responsible for their "choice" action . . . not offered "freebie" condoms at risk, encouraging curiosity and irresponsible behavior.

It's unfair that "we the people" should pay for and supply this self-serving endeavor. Abortions, like gas and AIDS, can initiate additional government spending on related physical and mental complications.

Wise up America! Be responsible for the 'choices" you make. The bottom line is more praying and less politicking. These comments exclude criminal acts.

Jane Luranc, Garden City

Bad comparison

ow dare Mr. Mathew McCusker, newly elected Wayne-Westland school board member, compare the lack of funds availin incompetent sc natural disasters such as Hurricane Andrew and the Midwest floods?

How dare the board continue to demand more of our hard earned income to be sucked into the black hole of waste of an educational system that cannot graduate our children with even the basics as the three R's?

How dare the board continue to demand more only to have the over-paid teachers' union demand more each contract with the threat of an illegal strike?

The community has voiced its opinion. It's up to the board to live within its means just as we must.

I found it very ironic that the "point of view" column of Doc Doyle appeared in the same edition of the paper as the article that has so enraged me. We all know that the Michigan Education Association will NEVER "vote for the kids." That is why the public has no confidence at all in the teachers of our school systems.

Tax plan is dangerous gamble ichigan lawmakers have demonstrated that their lust for power far outweighs their concern for the future of education in Michigan.

Last week's vote to ditch the property tax system without a plan to replace funding was an act of irresponsible adolescence. And like teenagers who have misbehaved, these errant legislators should be roundly disciplined for putting their careers before our children's future.

Legislators are acting like gambling casino dealers instead of responsible lawmakers. Since they have chosen to gamble with our educational system they should be put out of office if they lose this bet. This is particularly true for leaders such as Gov. John Engler and wannabe leaders such as Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, who sponsored the legislation in the Senate.

We, of course, have some locals, who deserved to be soundly paddled for going along with this ridiculous prank.

For 20 years state politicians have been attempting to foist the property tax monkey off their back. But instead of working out an alternative strategy that makes sense, they have attempted to punish voters because we rejected the carnival-like Proposal A.

Offering a plan that simply shifts taxes from the basically equitable property tax system to other regressive modes, such as sales and income taxes, isn't the answer.

The perceived inequality of property taxes and that those taxes should not be paid at all has become stuck in the groove of a broken record, needling the Legislature through 20 years of inaction.

So there was no slow dancing in the state's capitol, when in a quick two-step, first the Senate, then the House approved the historic SB1, wiping out school operating property taxes without giving heed to how the money will be replaced.

■ Offering a plan that simply shifts taxes from the basically equitable property tax system to other regressive modes, such as sales and income taxes, isn't the answer.

Unfortunately for taxpayers with children and those who know them and others who later will employ them - legislators were making all the wrong moves. Trading gridlock for chaos as they did the limbo last week, legislators cut $6 billion in local taxes for residential, commercial and industrial property in 1994 in Michigan.

The Legislature had alternatives to quell the noisome qualities of property taxes.

Legislators could have taken steps to assure taxpayers, such as retirees and those on disability, that they wouldn't lose their homes. They also could have made home ownership easier for first time buyers.

Remember state Representative Barbara Dobb, R-Commerce Township, who told a reporter last week that she couldn't wait to get to the floor to vote yes on the bill because that's what she came to Lansing to do. We remind her that the job is only half done, and done irresponsibly unless equitable, substitute funding is found.

Out of the chaos remember as well the voice of state Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham. "The train was on the tracks and it's running without brakes," Bouchard said. ". . . But I'm going to be one loud voice we do not destroy good districts and begin the largest Robin Hood plan we've ever seen.'

We're going to hold Bouchard to that, and expect that he lead the way in a bi-partisan effort to pull suburban school districts out of educational limbo.

POINTS OF VIEW

Plan bites into cost

The state Legislature last week took a bite out of financing for education when it carved out $6 billion in operating property taxes previously paid by residential, commercial and industrial property owners. If left standing, the proposal takes effect in 1994.

The move ends 20 years of gridlock over how schools should be financed, but not everyone thinks it was the right thing to do at the right time.

Philip Power isn't confident that a new plan will be forthcoming. Judith Doner Berne celebrates the chance for reform, and Philip Sherman thinks the Legislature acted irresponsibly.

Legislators must scratch out tax plan

e crabbed, we cursed, we criti-

Something is wrong in public education. Property taxes are too high; the performance of our students

Students who have the most financially, socially — most times receive the best educations. Students who come from poor, sometimes inoperative families, often are relegated to the worst schools.

Why doesn't Lansing do something? Well, after 20 years, Lansing did.

In a surprise move that, like Pandora's box, opened and developed a life of its own, state lawmakers last week eliminated school property taxes — the primary source of school funding.

They did it in response to residents' complaints about high property taxes. And they did it because, as it is now applied, the property tax results in tremendous discrepancies in the money to educate one child over another.

They have deliberately put themselves - and education - on the spot. And they must come up with the goods or they undoubtedly will be out of

It's easy to say that another plan should have been in place before the property tax was taken away, but that's what has been tried and never accom-

Now, they have a clean slate on which to redraw the elements of school financing, a same boat situation for school districts — and a deadline.

That finance plan must put the same, sufficient amount of money (when adjusted for variances in the cost of living) behind each student in the state.

And that may mean some wealthier districts have less to work with than they do now.

They will manage. Despite their predilection to cut teachers, sports, the arts and busing to get voters to pass new millage, few districts have tapped cost-cutting measures that deal with duplication of services.

Now that all school systems are in the same fix, moves to consolidate services (busing, community education, et al) if not whole districts may have

Somewhere in the plan, in order to qualify for funds, districts must be accountable for clearing out poor teachers and setting measurable standards for students.

The educational unions must realize that the days of holding individual school systems hostage are done. Like Coleman Young, at one time they were the right thing, but they abused power. Taking the low-bid on insurance coverage, cooperating to weed out or re-train poor teachers and agreeing to realistic salaries are no longer items to be bargained. They are what the public ex-

Although the property tax cut created the stir, some other provisions of the legislation start working immediately to give us a fairer shake when voting on future school issues.

Starting now, taxing units must submit millage renewal requests for no more than the expired millage, less any reduction due to the Headlee rollback. Any millage proposal for more than the expired millage must appear as a separate question.

Too often school districts combine the expiring millage with a request for new millage, clouding the issue and putting unfair pressure on voters.

The bottom line in all of this is to come up with a basis for financing eduation that will give every student in the state the same chance to be an educated person - the same chance to make his or her way in the world.

Now there's a deadline to do it.

Crisis won't prod Legislature into action plan

n the early '80s a movie called "Videodrome" came out. Starring Debbie Harry, "Videodrome" was one of the first truly eerie science fiction tales backed up by a new generation of special effects.

Videodrome" was about a tiny, sleazy cable company in New York that really needed a hit program to stay solvent. One day, a managing partner of the cable company stumbled on a pirated cable broadcast.

The pirated broadcast was thick with graphic sex and extreme violence just the program he was looking for. He couldn't take his eyes off it, and figured it would have the same hypnotic effect on those who subscribed to his cable station.

Unknown to the managing partner, he had just watched "Videodrome.".
"Videodrome" was conceived by ulthe country was going to hell in a hand basket, largely because sex and violence had become such everyday, saleable commodities. They figured the best way to save the country was to plant a trap for these perverts.

So they created a program, "Videodrome," that they knew would attract exactly the sort of individual they wanted to get rid of. The conservatives then planted an electronic audio and visual signal on the "Videodrome" broadcast.

The subliminal signal caused overwhelming, irreversible hallucinations in the viewer. Eventually, those who viewed "Videodrome" died an untraceable death of insanity.

Hang onto that thought and consider what happened in Lansing last week. After voting down Proposal A and brooming a bunch of inane school funding plans concocted by our legislators, we thought we'd given them the message that we wanted a logical, reasoned approach to school funding.

But unknown to us. our legislators had been watching "CapitolDome." It was a program about a fictitious state where people loved their lawmakers and walked around in an untroubled, serene haze, confident their elected officials would make only intelligent.

thoughtful decisions.

'CapitolDome'' had been created by a bunch of wingnuts who hadn't a clue regarding the business of equitable school funding. They'd put a subliminal message on "CapitolDome." It caused state senators and representatives who watched "CapitolDome" to believe that they could concoct, vote on and pass the dumbest bill in the world. and their constituents would cheer.

Now does Senate Bill 1 make sense?

Don't give me any of this garbage about what a great coup it was to take the only school funding plan we had out back and shoot it. Why should we now have faith that they can come up with a better plan, in a crisis atmosphere, in a matter of a few

But, from the looks of it, our legislators acted like children.

My head says at last we have a chance to break through 25 years of futile argument about school financing and get something serious

My heart asks if those clowns in Lansing are really going to screw my son, Nathan, who enters sixth grade this fall.

First, for the head.

There is absolutely no doubt that education in Michigan is a mess. Not only is there a tremendous disparity in per student funding between rich districts and poor ones, but overall the system today is educating 25 percent fewer kids than it was 15 years ago, costing 25 percent more per student (after inflation) and yielding declining test scores.

Attempts to find a way out have all failed, in part because each merely tinkered at the margins (thereby allowing the lobbyists to kill anything useful) and in part because each failed to link reform in finance to serious improvement in educational quality.

Precisely because what the Legislature did last week is so radical, the pressure is on to produce far reaching remedies. Or so they say.

Already two large positions are being staked out, both based on relating spending to what kids actually learn.

One calls for "voucherizing" the entire system, giving parents vouchers for a certain amount of money and relying on market forces to drive improvements in educational quality. The other urges creating a state-wide assessment system and linking funding for schools with performance against this standard.

Both are based on widely available information about student learning. This newspaper regularly publishes results of the MEAP tests, district by district, building by building. Nothing we have ever done has aroused such intense reader interest.

My head concludes that the basis now exists for serious reform of our kindergarten through 12th grade system.

My heart reacts with the deepest possible skepticism for a number of reasons.

■ Attempts to find a way out have all falled. In part because each merely tinkered at the margins (thereby allowing the lobbyists to kill anything usoful) and in part because each falled to link reform in finance to serious improvement in educational quality.

First, it hardly inspires confidence that even the apologists for what the Legislature did last week admit that our system of representative democracy can only function when faced with a crisis. Holding 1.8 million kids hostage to the legislative process is, well, scarv.

Second, this issue is so complicated, so ideological and so infested with lobbyists representing so many special interests that it's hard to believe state government will act in time to prevent disaster. A telling indication of the Legislature's reluctance to discipline itself came when attempts to impose a deadline to come up with a financing plan before school starts in 1994 were all defeated.

Third, I'm old and grumpy, but my memory is still pretty good. And I remember two things that feel a lot like what happened last week. The enormous tax cuts at the beginning of the Reagan Administration, masquerading as a stimulus to the economy, in fact provoked the disastrous ballooning of the deficit that still plagues us.

The U.S. Army officer said during war in Vietnam something along the line that "We had to destroy the village in order to save it."

Determined Coburn finds niche as a jockey

■ Setting goals is a national pastime. Realizing them is not. Many of us, for whatever reason, settle for coming close. But few of us have set a goal as unlikely as the one Lori Coburn established for herself. And even fewer reached it, as Coburn has.

By C.J. RISAK Staff Writer

For anyone born and raised in suburban Detroit, the career possibilities are numerous and varied, Racing horses is not among the top 100, however.

Lori Coburn is not one to follow the flow. Born in Livonia and a resident of several other Detroit suburbs through her pre-teen years - she attended Farmington Junior HS -Coburn suddenly decided what she wanted to do with her professional life 10 years ago, while living in Dallas and working at a pet store. She wanted to be a jockey.

That wish has led her on a decadelong, winding and often treacherous route, filled with obstacles both mental and physical, constantly confronted by the challenge of personal sacrifice. It has led her back to her hometown, to Livonia's Ladbroke DRC. where she is trying to establish herself as one of the track's top-10 jockeys. Through last Thursday, she had eight wins this summer; she had 17 during the spring meet.

Considering our culture's video transfixation, it's no surprise to discover that Coburn's inspiration to become a jockey was supplied by TV and the movies.

"In 1983, I went and saw the movie The Black Stallion, and I watched the Kentucky Derby on TV," she re-which she had no training and no 'ins," did not deter her.

Granted, becoming a jockey was not her immediate goal. Coburn just wanted to break into the business. She started by rubbing yearlings (birthing foals) at Keeneland in Kentucky in '83 and eventually moved to Saratoga, N.Y., helping exercise hors-

Going all-out to pursue a career as a jockey did not embrace her until the summer of '84 in Saratoga. "The first time I breezed (ran hard) a horse, I knew," Coburn recalled.

Chasing the challenge

"Being a jockey was something I had always said I wanted to do, but I never really, fully, believed it."

Others did, however. Coburn got her license to gallop horses in '84. The following year, a trainer at Saratoga originally from Norway, Aage Paus, convinced her to try racing.

She rode four races at Belmont Park (N.Y.) that summer and won the third. However, race stewards felt she needed more experience and did not grant Coburn her jockey's license.

She didn't argue the ruling. knew I wasn't ready," she admitted. That winter Coburn embarked on the gypsy-like lifestyle of a jockey. She worked in Florida and has since made stops at the Meadowlands (N.J.), Monmouth Park, Hialeah, the Fairgrounds, Rockingham Park (N.H.), Golden Gate Fields (San Francisco) and the Birmingham (Ala.) Turf Club.

After working on her technique in Florida during the winter of '86, Coburn got her jockey's license the following summer. In the 1987 summer meet at Birmingham, she em-

Pitching trio tough, Hines Park wins title

Pitcher "Drew" Margolick was quite the artist Sunday, leading Hines Park Lincoln/Mescury to the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff championship with a 7-3 triumph over Little Caesars at Ford Field.

The North Farmington High grad, whose first name is Andrew, masterniece. With an easel and brush in his left hand, he painted the corners with a preclous touch for nine innings against the league's most potent offensive team .

Margolick threw 150 pitches, something he hadn't done since going 10 innings in a day for North in the state district tour-

He struck out seven, while scattering eight hits, three walks and a hit-batsman. Margolick outdueled Caesars' starter Dave Roman, his teammate this spring at Henry Ford Community. Roman, who struck out 10 and scattered seven hits, also pitched well in going the distance.

'I hit the spots and my catcher Heath (Fowler) was setting up real well off the plate," said Margolick, who started his college career at Southern Cal. "I was getting the calls because it was a good consistent strike zone.

'My curveball wasn't working at the end, but I knew all these guys (from Caesars) and I think that helped me out.

Regional in Altoona

The win puts the regular season LCBL champs into the All-American Amateur Baseball Association regional against Washington, D.C. at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Altoona, Pa. Two of the eight teams will advance to Johnstown (Aug. 9-14).

Pitching was obviously the key to Hines Park's success during the regular season and it carried over into the playoffs. But after clinching the regular season title with two weeks to go, Hines Park tailed off during the latter stages of the campaign. To make matters worse, injuries to pitcher/infielder

COLLEGIATE

Scott Kapla (inflamed elbow) and Jason Riggs (broken ankle) made Hines Park's playoff bid look bleak.

"I knew the intensity would be there this weekend and it certainly was," first-year Hines Park manager Ken Wandzel said. "A lot of people wrote us off because we had only 12 guys available, but like my old football coach Tom Mach at Catholic Central says, The magic is in the believing. We believed in ourselves and it showed."

In Friday's LCBL opener of the four-team double-elimination playoffs, right-hander Jeff Paluk (Plymouth Salem High/Saginaw Valley State) pitched a gem, going nine strong innings in an 8-3 triumph over Westland Federation. Paluk struck out nine, walked only three and hit a batter while allowing just six hits.

Ross a big hit

On Saturday, Steve Ross (Redford Catholic Central/Henry Ford) was equal to the task, going the distance while tossing a sixhitter against Caesars in a 6-2 victory. The University of Detroit-Mercy bound right-hander struck out five and walked four.

Ross, ironically, was pressed into service as left fielder in the championship final and he delivered in a big way.

With the game scoreless in the third, Roman walked George Leung and Brian Paluk to start the inning. Both runners moved up on a passed ball.

Ross, batting ninth in the order, went the opposite way, punching a single to left, scoring one run. He scooted to second when Roman's pickoff attempt went awry, as Paluk scored. Ross chugged home on a Caesars infield error and Hines Park made it 4-0 when Ed Gundry parked a homer over the left field fence.

"I really haven't played the field since I went to CC," Ross said. "I wasn't nervous, there was nothing to lose. I was looking for a fastball. I was expecting it all the

In the fourth, Lawrence Scheffer (Westland John Glenn/ UDM) crushed a solo homer over left field fence to put Caesars on the board.

In the fifth, Caesars pushed two across the board as Roman and Patterson scored on a Hines Park throwing error. But Hines Park responded with a run in the sixth.

Hines Park insurance

Gundry, who opened the inning with a single, scored on Tracey Ewald's groundout.

In the seventh, Hines Park put it away when Ross singled and Gary Pierce walked. Both came around on another Caesars infield throwing error.

'It was awesome to shut a team like Caesars down (on Saturday) and to come back on Sunday and contribute with the bat was a great thrill," Ross said.

Earlier in the day, Caesars eliminated Del-Wal, 5-4, as Jesse Gerwatowski pitched seven seven innings to gain the victory.

Gerwatowski needed relief help from Adam Marano (11/2 innings) and Mark Van Ameyde (save). Todd Boike, who took the loss, went the distance for Del-Wal. Aaron Mach went 3-for-4 to pace Caesars. Mike White added two hits, while Mark Rutherford contributed a two-run double.

Tommy Grigg had a two-run double for Del-Wal. Chris Munson also knocked in two runs.

In the battle of unbeatens Saturday, Hines Park beat Caesars 6-2, as Pierce, Davey and Margolick each collected two hits. Davey, the lanky first baseman from Plymouth Salem and Henry Ford CC, tripled and turned a game-winning double play with the bases loaded in the ninth. Mach had two hits in a losing

Teeters also took a fifth in the 100-meter breaststroke (1:06.18)

Matt Martin, a recent graduate of Westland John Glenn and headed to Stanford this fall, finished seventh in the 100 backstroke (59.57), 200 backstroke (2:08.53) and 200 Individual Medley (2:10.73).

In other Festival events: Livonia Stevenson product Travis Roy (Wisconsin) came on in the second half and scored the game's lone goal in 59th minutes, leading the North to a 1-0 first-round victory over the East.

Roy had to leave the game with three minutes remaining because of a concussion.

Kerry Zavagnin (Redford CC/ North Carolina) assisted on the game-winner, while goalie Jeff Cassar (Livonia Churchill/Florida International) posted the shutout.

■ Livonian Kate Keleman, a Churchill High product now attending Murray State (Ky.), finished seventh in the women's air rifle competition.

EXTENDING A STREAK

The challenge for a second-

Driving in the ARCA 20-lap street stock feature at Flat Rock Speedway Saturday, Asztalos overtook drivers' point leader Brian Norton after three laps and was never threatened after that. Norton retired with mechanical difficulties.

The win was Asztalos' second in a row and ninth of the season. Tom Selmi of Redford finished fifth.

In the 30-lap ARCA late model feature, Westland's Steve Cronenwett placed third.

erged as the leading rider. "That's when I knew I was on my way. knew I was on my way.

Her trek brought her back to Livonia in 1989. She became Ladbroke DRC's leading female jockey for the year, and narrowly missed breaking into the top-10 jockey's list for the fall meet.

No easy track

A fairy tale come true? Hardly. There have been plenty of downsides along the way.

Mentally, Coburn has had to deal with the "who-you-know factor. When she started, she had no background in horses; there were no breeders or trainers in her family. She started at the bottom.

Making friends in this business isn't easy. Travel complicates matters. "In the beginning, the travel was exciting and wonderful," she said. It isn't any more. As a rider, you're alone a lot. You can never make friends. I mean, it takes a while to make friends, and then once you do you're packing up and leaving.

That's why Coburn decided to make Detroit her home, again. She still has family here, for one thing. She bought a house in Dearborn two years ago. The only trips she has planned for now are to a warm-weather track during the winter.

The who-you-know factor is what can make the difference for a jockey. A good agent, or a good reiationship with a successful trainer or owner, can lead to some good mounts. That will lead to victories, which in turn leads to better mounts.

With only mediocre representation, Coburn suffered through a slump in '91 that led her to Finger Lakes in New York last summer. Last winter in Miami she exercised horses for Gerald Bennett, DRC's top trainer, and after talking to him decided to return to DRC this spring.

There have been physical problems, too. In the summer of '88, while racing at Rockingham, her horse stumbled and rolled over her; Coburn broke her right leg and left collarbone, and was out three months. In Tampa in '89, she broke three ribs in a fall.

And at the Penn National track in Harrisburg, Pa., in '91, her mount broke its leg lunging at the wire. Coburn broke her wrist in the spill; her mount, which finished second, had to be destroyed.

And yet she continues after her dream. "I guess I've found my niche," Coburn said. "Probably, even after I'm done riding, I'll do something with horses. Maybe I'll just be an exercise rider. I just like what I do.'

But for now, there are still goals to pursue. "I'd like to be on the top-10 riders' list," she said. "I want to have that respect for me. If I had that and was on the (top-10) list, I'd be 100 percent happy.

She thought for a moment and smiled before adding, "For now."

New Roadrunner track receives rave reviews

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

Livonia's John Patterson, who has run all 10 Redford Roadrunner Classics, seemed to sum up the sentiments of most of the 839 runners and walkers who entered the 8-kilometer race Saturday evening in Northville.

"The quote used to be that Redford had the worst course and the greatest party," he said. "Now it's one of the best courses, and it still has the greatest party.

Patterson likened the hilly course to "a mini-Crim." (The Bobby Crim is a gruelling 10-mile run held each August in Flint).

Redford switched its course from the flat, cement streets of Livonia to hilly, scenic Northville this year. Northville Downs served as the site for the finish line and post-race party.

Fittingly, new Northville resident Rick Brauer, 30, won the race in 25:15.

Brauer, who led from the get-go, is a new arrival from California where he did some Olympic training until injury struck.

The former Youngstown State runner hung with the lead pack at the start before waiting until the first turn "to let the photo seekers get out of the way.

" I hit the mile in 4:43 and then just settled in after that, Brauer

At the 31/2-mile mark, Brauer opened a 200-yard advantage on Aaron Prussian of Saline and Eric Laywell of Memphis and never relinguished his lead.

Laywell took second in 25:53, while Prussian clocked 25:58.

With the heat and humidity, it was hard to do anything," said

Meanwhile, three-time wom-en's champ Ella Willis of Detroit cruised to an easy win in 29:14.

"I thought this race was a 7-miler," Willis said. "That's why I didn't run hard. I didn't have anyone to push me.

Runner-up Maureen Carter of Brighton was clocked 30:01, while Michele Gillispie of Roseville took third in 32:38.

Tops in the men's master's division was Paul Deladurantaye, who clocked 27:54.

The first master's woman was Jane Ketchin of Ann Arbor, who finished in 32:59. For Ketchin, it was a family affair. Also competing in the Classic for the second straight year were her husband John, and daughters Jennifer, 15, and Emily, 9. Geoff Hopkins of West Virgnia rolled to a swift victory in 21:13 in open wheelers' competition. Hopkins loved the course, but complained about the sprinklers and hoses. Well-intentioned neighbors tried to cool off the wheelers, but the water created dangerous conditions by making tires and wheels slick and difficult to grip.

Hopkins, who trains on hills and used his superior climbing ability to outdistance the field, called the course demanding, but Darlene Hunter of Commerce Township was the first woman wheeler in 31:30. "It was hard," she said, dancing in her chair at the post-race party.

Second woman was Debbie Witcher, 25, of Romeo, who completed her first race despite the fact she doesn't have a racing

Maraudersclinch title with 2-1 win

The Marauders won their third-straight Great Lakes Soccer League Division I regular-season championship Sunday with a 2-1 victory over the African Stars at Bicentennial Park.

The Marauders finished the regular season with an 8-2 record and 16 points, one point more than the African Stars, who are 7-2-1.

The Marauders open the playoffs with a first-round game at 7 p.m Friday at Bicentennial Park. The Marauders have won five of the last six regular-season titles and and four of the last five Great Lakes playoff titles.

They lost to Bud Lite in last year's playoff final.

Everyone plays us like it's the end of the world," Marauders coach John Pederson said. "We're the team to beat and they love to beat us."

The Marauders led 1-0 at halftime on a goal by John Brennan, assisted by Lars Richters (Livonia Stevenson). The Marauders added to their lead with an unassisted goal by Mike Giese (Farmington High).

The African Stars scored a goal past Marauders' goalkeeper Brian O'Shea with about four minutes remaining.

The Marauders gave them-

Daly Restaurant remains a Livonia landmark on Plymouth Road near Merriman but it's not easy to find the restaurant's fastpitch softball team playing on any Livonia sandlot fields. The Livonia Women's Fast-pitch League folded after 1991 due to a lack of teams so Daly now plays in the Waterford League.

By Steve Kowalski Staff Writer

Daly made a rare showing in Livonia on Monday, splitting a double-header with another former Livonia league member Kroger at Bicentennial Park. Daly won the first game, 5-1, and Kroger won the nightcap, 3-0.

The double-header, rained out earlier this season in Waterford, was moved to Bicentennial Park for old time's sake more than anything else. They used to meet regularly in the Livonia League at Livonia's Ford Field.

Women's fast-pitch foes return to town

'Ford was a nice complex and diamond two was beautiful," said Daly coach Bob Thompson, a retired Westland school teacher, who has coached Daly the last 28 years. "I have people all the time asking me when we're going to play around here again."

Thompson said fast-pitch summer softball leagues aren't as popular as they once were.

"Sometimes you lose college kids because you have to let them he said. "Plus, the high school and college seasons are so long now, they're just too tired to play. Look at (Daly player) Mary Jo Kelly. By the time she got done at Ladywood, we had already played 15 games."

Sandy Thompson, once a player for Daly (founded in 1959 by the late Bud Grace) and now statistician, got her husband started in

"He came out to help and he ended up taking over the team, Sandy said.

"Most of the time it's been enjoyable," said Bob Thompson, who has guided Daly twice to national Class A runnerup finishes. When asked to clarify that statement, Thompson said, "Sometimes, you lose."

With the split, Kroger, 17-5 overall, took over first place by a half game in the Waterford League with a 10-1 record. Daly, 24-9 overall, is 9-1 with four league games remaining.

Kroger, most recently sponsored by Great Scot when it played in the Livonia league, is coached by former players Dorothea Paulin of Livonia and Sally Chaney.

Each team has former Observerland players on their rosters.

Playing for Kroger are Beth Bi-sio (Livonia Stevenson), Darlene Delonis (Livonia Ladywood), Karyn Matuscak (Ladywood), Marisa Miller (Livonia Churchill), Kim Reichard (Farmington Hills Mercy), Dawn Williamson (Westland John Glenn) and Kathleen Berrigan (Mercy). Daly boasts only of Kelly from Observerland but also has former University of Michigan star Alicia Seegert and recently graduated Wayne State record-holding pitcher Jenni Smith. Smith was the winning pitcher in the first game against Kroger, allowing only three hits and retiring the last 13 batters. Daly scored five runs in the fourth, highlighted by a lead-off triple by Pam Ossenheimer and double by Brenda Schrader. Kroger's victory came after Erika Ruff had an RBI single in the first to score Delonis and two more runs scored in the fourth after a pair of Daly errors.

Cornwall secures playoff championship trophy

Cornwall Plumbing of Livonia won its second-straight Wayne Intermediate League playoff championship Monday night at Garden City City Park.

Cornwall, the regular-season champion, defeated COSI of Wayne, 6-4, and the Garden City Rockets, 5-2, to go home with the first-place playoff trophy. Cornwall won last year's playoff after taking second in the regular

Julie Courtright, Jenny Dreger,

Krol, Jenny Kasparek, Jill Sgricca and Stacy Szalony each contributed two hits in the 13-hit attack. Julie Richardson's double highlighted the six-run inning. Cornwall coach John Hove said it was a team effort, right down to the cheering section that included a group of boys with the letters 'Cornwall" written on their bare

"When COSI jumped out in front of us 4-0, I thought we were in trouble," Hoye said. "We left a lot of runners on base but they stroked that ball. The girls didn't lose their cool and worked their buns off."

Cornwall had an easier time in the championship victory, jumping out to a 5-0 lead after three innings against the Rockets. Krol had her toughest time in the fourth, allowing two runs and colliding with catcher Sgricca on a pop fly near the pitcher's mound. 'She recovered pretty quickly,"

Hove said. Erika Paulson, Richardson.

Courtney Schraufnagle, Sgricca and Dreger each had two hits.

Travelers fall

The Westland Travelers, an Under-18 team playing in the Ann Arbor High School Fast-pitch softball league, lost on Monday to TBA of Ann Arbor, 18-9. The loss dropped the Travelers to 3-4

Ann Bagazinski led the Travelers with three hits. Amanda Samkowiak and Asha Bell had two hits and two RBI each and Misty Valle also contributed

Lynn Little suffered the pitching deallowing 10 hits, seven walks and striking out six in six innings. The Travelers scored four times in the

Here is the hard-working Baker and his wife, yearning for a child. Here is the witch. Here is Jack and his exasperated mother, along with that pesky Giant and all those magic beans. Here are Cinderella, Rapunzel, Snow White, Sleeping Beauty, the handsome prince. You get the picture.

All are wishing for something, and in order to see their dreams come true (maybe), all must venture into the metaphorical Woods, dark and mysterious as they are. What happens then? Ah, but what happens after even after?

The 15-member cast is not only talented and just plain fun to watch onstage, it's also impressively disciplined by Gravame (who is also impressive playing the hard-working Baker).

Leading the cast is Nancy Potts of Rochester Hills as the Witch who spends much of her time carrying a big stick (OK, a magic wand) and not speaking softly at all. Baubled, ban"INTO THE WOODS" gled, and sometimes bewildered, she's as bewitching as any witch you'll run across in dark, deep woods anywhere.

"I'm not good. I'm not nice. I'm just right," she sings at one especially telling moment in this play. Nancy Potts is just right in this role. Her stage presence is remarkable. She can be funny, wicked and touching in just the right measure at just the right times. And her way with a Sondheim song will knock you out.

Other knockouts: Marnie Baumer as the charming brat, Red Ridinghood; Lisa Brandow as the Baker's willowy wife with the sometimeswandering eye; David Burtka as the energetic Jack the Giant Killer: Allison Leigh as a melancholy Cinderella; Christopher Pearce as Rapunzel's agonizing Prince with the golden, gorgeous hair; and Nicholas A. Bean as Cinderella's Prince — the one "raised to be charming, not sincere.

To say that some performers stand out in such an excellent cast is certainly not to find real fault with the rest, however. In fact, the overall, first-rate team effort here — onstage and offstage - is essential to making this production the enchanting success it is. # 'Rising Sun': emotion-charged murder mystery

"Rising Sun," Twentieth Century Fox presentation opening Friday at suburban movie theaters, is a murder mystery set against the backdrop of U.S.-Japanese business relationships and competition.

Lt. Web Smith (Wesley Snipes), a liaison officer with the Los Angeles Police Department, is called to investigate the murder of a young woman in the boardroom of a Japanese corporation in downtown Los Angeles. A mysterious call puts him together with a strange, shadowy figure - Detective John Connor (Sean Connery), who is rumored to be under the influence of the Japanese.

Connor becomes his guide (the senpai) and leads the younger detective (kohai) through the investigation through futuristic technological secrets and through ancient ways and lovalties.

And as they close in on the mystery, the mystery closes in on them. Doors slide shut. A secret world opens.

'Rising Sun" is directed by Philip Kaufman and produced by Peter Kaufman with Sean Connery as executive director. The screenplay is written by Philip Kaufman, Michael Crichton and Michael Backes, based on the novel by Crichton, who also wrote the novel "Jurassic Park."

PREVIEW

ing Sun" also stars Harvey Keitel, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Kevin Anderson, Mako and Tia Carrere.

"The story has all the things that I find interesting in a movie: strong characters, a culture clash and a topic that's significant,' said Sean Connery, who also serves as the film's executive producer. "There's a lot of humor in the film which is something I always search for in anything I do. You can reveal more through humor than through the actual telling of the story. No matter how dramatic, how bloody, how bad the circumstances, humor always gives a reassuring balance to

Many of the lighter elements in "Rising Sun" come as a result of the contrasting viewpoints that John Connor and Web Smith bring to the murder investigation.

For Connor, this new partner-ship creates a dynamic which he immediately understands. The Japanese call it a senpai/kohai union, which clearly defines the roles of the senior and junior partner in any business situation.

"It's just a given that at meetings and at other types of dealings, the top person is never up front," said Connery. "The real No. 1 man is always observing while the junior man does the

Unfortunately, this philosophy isn't taught at American police academies. Web Smith, whose nononsense approach to police work has yielded great success in the past, is resistant to being bogged down by the protocol of a society not his own. But as both men adapt to the working methods of the other, a mutual respect is formed.

The supporting cast of "Rising Sun" is led by Keitel. It is Keitel's character, Lt. Tom Graham, who gives a face to the hostility with which some Americans respond to the growing Japanese presence in their country. It is through this character that the phrase "Japan-bashing" packages a lot of emotion and generates an almost immediate gut reaction when it is used or portrayed.

Contrasting Keitel's inflammatory character in "Rising Sun" are a number of actors from the Japanese-American acting community, including Tagawa, Stan Egi and Mako. They work alongside co-stars Anderson, Carrere, Ray Wise and fashion model Tatjana Patitz in her acting debut to supply the film with its array of heroes and villains.

"The real luxury with the Japanese roles in 'Rising Sun' is that they are not simple characters who walk the typical lines," said Tagawa, who plays the key role of Eddie Sakamura. "Eddie is a man who is caught between the Japanese and American cultures, with certain loyalties pulling him in different directions.

"Because there are so few Japanese writers in Hollywood, as well as projects that honestly deal with the Japanese and Japanese-American communities, this type of character hasn't really been seen in the American cinema.

"These are certainly two different cultures, two quite different concepts of how one solves prob-lems," said Connery. "I think there is a great deal to be learned from the Japanese, not just from business practices but from their culture. And the Japanese can learn from America, which is something they seem to do very well."

on the baseball field, wants desperately to catch it.

A trip on an errant ball sends Henry flying into the air Charlie Brown-style and smack onto his shoulder. Months in a cast tighten the tendons in his arm to such an extent that they snap with the force of a mousetrap spring when he lobs a baseball.

Soon Henry finds himself under contract to the Cubs, pitching to real-life players like Pedro Guerrero and Barry Bonds. Gary Busey plays Chet "Rocket Steadman, a once-great but nowtired pitcher who Henry ends up relieving in earlier and earlier

As the kid, Nicholas is cute enough and nerdy enough for the role. He spends most of the film with his mouth gaping open, even after several games, and the geewhiz quality wears a bit thin after a while.

The always-watchable Busey sports a mustache and thick blond hair tucked up under his Cubs hat. He looks like a majorleague player and acts like one too, though the usual pitchers' cheekful of chew has mysteriously disappeared.

The real rookie in this picture is Daniel Stern, stepping up to the plate for his first time as director. Penny Marshall and Henry Winkler have gone behind the camera, so why not this gangly character actor, best known for playing one of the bad guys in the 'Home Alone' movies?

While he succeeds in bringing wholesomeness back to the movies, Stern gives himself an irritat-

I know it's a movie, but Henry always tries out new stuff (like pitching and batting) in front of a sellout crowd at Wrigley Field. Don't these guys ever work anything out in practice? And why do the Cubs have only two pitchers in the bullpen? There's a message in here somewhere as Henry realizes that a career in baseball is only a fleeting dream-come-true. Friends and family are what really matter in the long run.

Parents will love "Rookie of the Year," so will some small children. But most of the teenagers I know will be snoozing after 20 minutes or sneaking into the neighboring theater for a second run through "Jurassic Park."

Trolley, vans offer Jazzfest transportation

You can walk to most of the destinations at Jazzfest '93, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 29-31, in downtown Birmingham. But, if you get tired of all that jazzing around, you can hitch a ride on a trolley or van.

Festival passes are $20 each. available at Ticketmaster outlets or by calling 433-FEST throughout Jazzfest weekend. The pass admits its holder into any Jazzfest site and entitles the person to a 20 percent discount on meals at Restaurant Collection restaurants

A Jazzfest '93 hot-line has been set up for ticket and schedule information, call 433-Fest.

'Festival passes give you unlimited access to Restaurant Collection restaurants without cover charge," said Helen Smith who is helping the Restaurant Collection coordinate festival activities. "You can also get $2 off 'Godspell' performance tickets during Jazzfest. When you go to the show you'll get a $5 off coupon for any 1993-94 week night subscription show at the Birmingham The-

The vans carry 15 passengers each. To use the vans you need a Jazzfest pin. Vans will run on a continuous loop around town 8 p.m. to midnight Thursday, July 29, and 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday, July 30-31. The main stop will be Merrill Street at Henrietta. Other stops are Norman's Eton Street Station, Albans, Birmingham Tavern and Machus Sly Fox.

The Jazzfest American Express Trolley seats 35. To ride the trolley you need a Jazzfest pin. The trolley, like the vans, will run on a continuous loop. The main stop will be Shain Park with stops on Woodward at Willets, the south side of Maple at Peabody Road, east of Woodward at the 555 Building, and the northside of Merrill at Woodward.

Look for the blue-on-white Jazzfest flags at each jazz site.

There will be jazz indoors and out, and many of the participating restaurant owners including Norm LePage of Norman's Eaton Street Station, are planning special menus.

Jazzfest '93, an indoor/outdoor jazz festival is being presented by the Community House in Birmingham in cooperation with the Birmingham Restaurant Collection. Proceeds will benefit the Community House.

The Tailgate Ramblers will perform at the Prudential Sunbowl behind the 3000 Prudential Town Center off Civic Center Drive. The Larry Nozero Quintet will perform '7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 4 at the historic Burgh Gazebo at Berg Road and Civic Center Drive. A picnic supper will be available for purchase 6-7:30 p.m.

Bandleader Jim Joseph, termed the "granddaddy of Dixieland," began the Tailgate Ramblers in 1956 and they've been steadily pumping life-blood into the metro Detroit Dixieland jazz scene ever since. The Ramblers began their professional career in 1959 as the house band at the Keyboard Lounge, one of the nation's oldest jazz clubs.

With a swinging and soulful style that is both lyrical and expressive, native Detroiter Larry Nozero has faithfully continued Detroit's rich jazz legacy. The national release of his latest recording "Kaleidoscopin," heralds his ascent into. the American jazz consciousness and presence in a new generation of talented artists.

Scooters embodied youthful abandon

Once again, Meadowbrook Concours D'Elegance will not honor the Cushmotor scooter as its featured marque.

I have to assume it's an honest oversight, although the rising popularity of Cushman collectibles has pushed the asking price of a really good Cushman Eagle up into the low four figures, an incredible sum compared to the hundred bucks or so a good Eagle brought back when it was a couple of years old.

That was when you could get a lidense to drive a motor scooter when you were 14 years old, a concept that had something to do with the Jewish rites of manhood tude society had towards youth in general. Life in the fast lane was a Lambretta, Vespa or a Cushman Eagle. The latter being sort of a miniature Harley Davidson powered by a modified lawn mower engine.

Motor scooters satisfied the blood lust of early adolescent for anything powered on wheels. The first kid I knew that had total freedom on wheels was a friend of mine who bought a Lambtetta motorscooter with his paper route money. After a couple of years or so struggling with broken clutch cables, pushing the thing home and delivering the papers on foot, I was ready for a British sports

Anyway, for some reason, most of the Italian scooters ended up on paper routes, while the Cushmans leaned up against the Dairy Queen, looking tough. Nobody seemed to have a job, or at least admitted to one. Eagles reached their peak when Baby Huey drove one to a class record at Detroit Dragway powered by nitro-methane model airplane fuel, a feat that should have guaranteed a place at Meadowbrook if nothing else did.

But as it turned out, motor scooters were a short-lived interlude in motoring history that eventually went the way of the Schwinn bicycle. Honda raised the specter of import competition that actually kept running, and then the liability attorneys and a safety-conscious public finished them off.

They were, of course, probably the most dangerous vehicles ever sold. Not just because of the combination of a 40-mph top speed guided by a mindless adolescent in the full throes of hormonal development. Mainly, the scooters ginings of youth, heated up by visions of Lee Marvin and Marlon Brando (who actually drove a Triumph).

Puttering along on tiny wheels, the horizon was limitless, the dangers of the road easily vanquished. If your heroes weren't cowboys, they soon would be.

Now that I think about it, Meadowbrook is better off without a scooter display. Today, they would probably be only a dim reflection of the best days of sum-

Advanced Commercial Corp. in Westland has been named a 1993 Master Contractor by Firestone Building Products Company in Carmel, Indiana for consistent, quality installation of Firestone roofing systems on local industrial and commercial buildings during 1992.

This marks the first year the company has attained Master Contractor distinction, since the program's inception in 1988.

Firestone Building Products, a leading manufacturer of commercial roofing products, awards Master Contractor status annually to only the top performing independent roofing contractors from its approved contractor organization. This achievement is determined by the 'quality points' earned by each contractor, based on the total warranted roofing square footage installed.

This year, only 150 contractors from Firestone's five U.S. sales regions and Canada were certified as Master Contractors.

'In essence, they're making a loan to an organization who makes loans they won't make." Aspatore, Braun, Eisenberg, Janice Shabet, a financial analyst, and a receptionist tend to all of Onset's day-to-day business activities.

"Livonia is reasonably central to all of our investments," Aspatore said. "This is just a good, central location.'

When Onset's loans spark business success, plenty of people can share in the rewards.

"Large companies in Michigan have been decreasing employment," Braun said. "Job growth in the recent past and probably in the future will come from small business.'

Several thousand dollars can make a difference in whether a buyer orders a new house at the upper end, said Fred Capaldi, a Rochester Hills builder and president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan. 'I know I build in the low $200,000s and they're scrounging for the last dollar they can get out of income or mortgage," Capaldi said. "Everyone has a saturation point.

Buyers feel more comfortable paying on principal and interest than taxes, he added.

Capaldi, anticipating alternative taxes to replace the school tax, is concerned that financial institutions could make it more difficult to qualify on income guidelines. But for now, he's hap-

BIDCO a boost to business

■ Livonia-based Onset BIDCO is taking chances and winning on young small- and mediumsized business, and otherwise providing a boost to the state's economic picture.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Onset, headquartered in Livonia, recently paid primary stockholders/ owners Chrysler, the state of Michigan Pension Fund, Michigan Strategic Fund and Masco Corp. Pension Fund 12.5 cents per share.

The payout was some $160,000. But perhaps more important for Onset and the small and mediumsized companies it may one day nurture with loans is that a couple hundred thousand dollars were retained for future investments.

That's good news for growing companies like:

Advance Material Process Corp. in Wayne, which provides a technical processing service for increasing the strength of metal components. Onset loaned $1 million.

Intelligent Controls in Novi, which provides specialized engineering and management services and a proprietory line of test and control products primarily for the auto industry. Onset loaned $600,000.

"We're really a hybrid between a traditional bank loan and an equity investor," said Hugo Braun, a vice president and investment officer at Onset.

"We're coming in after a bank is already involved," said Scott A. Eisenberg, also a vice president, investment officer and Bloomfield Township resident. "The bank has lent as much as it can based on collateral and the company still needs money.' Onset's four major investors put up $10 million to launch the venture in 1988. Since then, Onset has made 20 loans from $250,000 to just over $1 million to 17 companies.

The firm hasn't been burned yet, said Walter J. Aspatore, Onset president and a Bloomfield Hills resident. Typically in any portfolio, you're

Homeowners, buyers, builders laud new property tax cut plan

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

The fallout from state legislation eliminating local property taxes for school operations beginning with the 1994-95 academic year will touch almost every homeowner, renter and prospective buyer in one way or another.

The exact form depends on what, if any, taxes are enacted to replace the local school property measure. But for now, some outcomes are fairly clear. Homeowners who escrow their property taxes will have smaller monthly mortgage payments. But what of the escrow ac counts, themselves? Standard Federal Bank, headquartered in Troy and the largest mortgage lender in the state, currently has some 135,000 residential mortgages in Michigan. About 75 percent escrow taxes. Some surplus escrow balances could be refunded. However, William R. Yaw Jr., marketing director for Standard

Federal, provided a more likely Tax bills for the upcoming 1993-94 school year, as in years past, will be received and paid by most financial institutions for their mortgagees this summer and in December. Next year, at escrow analysis time, monthly mortgage payments will be adjusted downward to reflect elimination of the school tax for succeeding years. There would be no large surplus at that time because the money will have been paid out for taxes.

Minimal refunds

"My gut reaction is there will not be a need for massive refunds," Yaw said.

"We're batting a lot of things around," said Albert King, manager of mortgage operations for First Federal of Michigan. "There's so many variables involved, it's premature to say how we're going to do this."

At least two things are apparent.

If the Legislature doesn't implement a state property tax to fund school operations, monthly mortgage payments eventually will decrease for homeowners who pay their taxes through escrow ac-

The other relates to banking operations.

"You're going to see a reduction in interest income," said Ellen Batkie, manager of investor relations for First Federal of Michigan. "It can be replaced or lost. You can build it into the cost of mortgage servicing or you decrease your profit.

Landlords and tenants both should benefit with the property tax cut, said Jonathan Holtzman, co-chairman of a Farmington Hills company that owns 10,000 Village Green and Village Park apartment units.

"The highest operating expense for an apartment community is real estate taxes," he said.

Property taxes here range from $300 to $1,200 per unit annually, Holtzman said. Elimination of the school portion, about 65 percent of the total blll, will especially help landlords in high-tax communities

'What you're going to end up with is consistency. I think that's good for everybody," he sald.

It's reasonable that tenants would expect to share in the financial good fortune of their landlords. Holtzman conceded.

"I think what will end up happening is competitive forces will create more value for renters," he said. "Real estate taxes going down will give renters much more choices. When things are competitive, it's always better for consumers.

Like his banking counterparts, Holtzman was reluctant to predict exactly how things will shake out until the Legislature determines, what if any, taxes will replace the local school property

"The whole program hasn't been articulated yet," he said. "They may come back and put on some business tax that will offset

■ Houses become more affordable for first-time buyers and move-up purchasers can acquire more house for the dollar.

As a general rule, housing costs including principal, interest, taxes and insurance shouldn't exceed 28 percent of gross monthly income, lenders say. Many people think payment when they shop.

By eliminating local school property taxes, the buyer of an $80,000 house in the Birmingham School District could afford another $93 monthly in interest and principal, in the Livonia School District $103 and in the Troy School District $115.

The advantage compounds with lower interest rates.

"It will make first-time huyers qualify for a larger mortgage, which means you can get into a bigger home," sald Edward J. LeVoir, regional director for the Re/Max realty firm. "And it also frees up money for additional purchases, appliances and other things for the house.'

Mary M. Arlinghaus, president of Pierce Realtors and president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors, sees a shortterm benefit. Longer-term benefits will depend on what happens to the quality of local schools.

"In some instances, it will make it easy to qualify," she said. "In some cases where taxes are

Serve kids 'kool, kwik' summer food

When the kids Finally come inside from pounding the pavement with skates and scooters, sunkissed skin and sand in their hair, they're usually hungry. Their appetite often calls for immediate Food that is satisfying, tasty and light is th best thing to serve the hungry horde. Heavy meals with thick pastry creams and sauces are less favorable in the summer months.

Children prefer quick and easy to handle foods. Foods that won't take hours to prepare are welcomed not only by the children who, when hungry, can demand in-a-hurry meals, but by busy parents as well.

Serving foods that require minimal preparation and contain the necessary nutrients in the way to go. As for children and tasty, healthy meals, it is perhaps better to take those favorite foods, such as cheese, noodles, applesauce, spaghetti, corn and carrots with dip, and serve them with "good foods." Moreover, foods make great combination dishes — for example, turkey, cheese, tomato and lettuce, red kidney beans, taco sauce and sour Carmen Dostal, area coordinator for the Association of Child Development Child Care Food Program in Livonia, suggests that turkey breast pieces, ham chunks and pineapple are great for ka-bobs. She also says to serve plenty of fresh strawberries, offering color and a high source of vitamins A and C.

Dostal also suggests serving pita pocket bread, stuffed with a variety of meats, vegetables and cheese. And interestingly, salmon patties are a favorite, according to several child care providers and professional she consults with.

To give your meal planning ideas some food fore thought start with these two weeks of suggested lunch or dinner menus.

Sunday - grilled barbecue chicken, crispy potato wedges, green beans, honey dew melon, rolls and butter and frozen lime yogurt pops.

Monday — Hamburger and bun, pasta salad, fruit cocktail, honey glazed carrots and strawberry

Sunday — Grilled cheese with pickle on whole wheat bread, sticky apple wedges (with peanut butter) and cool, lightly seasoned cucumber slices.

Monday — Open-faced turkey sandwich, sweet red tomato slices, fruit with yogurt (favorite fruit mixed with plain vogurt, cinnamon and raspberry

Tuesday — Grand Slam hero sandwich (cheese. meat, cucumbers and tomatoes alternating with crackers) and Michigan frosty (a blend of frothy orange juice, plain yogurt and a banana).

Wednesday - Spaghetti with sauce, tossed salad, fresh sweet cherries and garlic bread.

Thursday — Pig in the blanket (ham and vegetables with mayonnaise in a soft taco shell), cantaloupe slices, bugs on a log (carrots with cheese and raisins) and chocolate chip cookie.

Friday - Fish sticks, tator tots, cole slaw cups and frozen goofy grape pops.

■ It's hard to say who invented them, but call them garage sales, yard sales, moving sales or whatever; they're thriving. During any given week during warm weather, signs can be found, directing bargain hunters to stash. The only requirment -- bring cash.

By CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Helping set up her mother's garage sale, Erin LaHaie learned that sometimes in business you get a raw deal.

The 3-year-old was eating breakfast at a parfait table when a customer came by and decided that was her purchase.

"They bought it (the table) from underneath her," said her mother Kathy of Plymouth. "She said, 'I'm not done eating my breakfast yet.

When it comes to garage sales, the adage about the early bird and the worm is most appropriate. She who gets there first gets the best pickings. And likewise, she who hesitates could wind up watching that just-got-tohave item being loaded into someone else's car.

Add to that the one about trash and treasures and you have garage sale style and etiquette wrapped up in a neat package.

For the seller, how well you do could be as simple as how well you advertise. Nail-studded utility poles are a side effect of the garage sale craze. Even old lawn signs are revamped for at-the-curb advertising. Balloons, penants, even step ladders have been pressed into service, all to attract the buyers.

Garage salers are gonzo bargain hunters with wheels. Many check the classifieds, looking for sales' specifics and planning routes so they can get to as many places as humanly possible. And at times, it seems like they have built-in radars. They can tune into a sign, note the location and be off as fast a sprinter Carl Lewis.

This is La Haie's first — and last - garage sale (and presumably the same for her daughter). She got an A for creativity for her yellow "Make Us An Offer" sign on her garage.

"If we weren't under necessity, we wouldn't be doing this because it's a pain in the neck," La Haie said.

Good pickings: Colton Ash, 7, of Plymouth helps Jennifer Hill, 10, of Monroe pick through a collection of games that he was selling at his mother's garage sale.

Half the pain is getting organized. Seems as though there's never enough space or table surfaces to display the goods. And heaven help you, if the sale encroaches on the forbidden zone. You could end up hoarse from telling people the lawn edger and nand tools aren't for sale.

Then there's pricing. Too high and sales are slow; too cheap and you lose the room to barter. These motorized bargain hunters need to think they've gotten a good deal and the ability to cut prices even a dime can mean the difference between a sale and a walk

But for all the woes, garage sales do. have one redeeming quality, according to LaHaie.

I've met a lot of very nice people,' she said, pointing out that "most of them have this (garage sale shopping) down to a science. They come for very specific things it seems.

Laura Freeman of Plymouth has a better outlook for her sales career.

"We have at least one sale a year, she said. She and her sister Julie Ash pooled their adult and children's clothes together to form a massive sale in the driveway of Ash's home.

Pam Danaher of Redford took advantage of Ash's and Freeman's goods to buy clothes for her upcoming grandchild.

Theresa Szymanski of Livonia also had grandchildren in mind, checking out the children's clothes stacked on tables in the hot sun.

Even their children got into the act. To cool off thirsty and sweaty customers, they held a lemonade sale in the shade near the "check-out table."

Aside from getting up early, putting ads in newspapers and posting signs to advertise the sale, garage sale organizers can look forward to more work in some cities. Garden City and Livonia both require organizers to pull special permits before holding the

"It prevents people from running businesses from their home," said Eileen Davis, Livonia clerk. "There have been people who have tried to. There's a few houses here and we have to keep sending cars to."

Her city requires residents to purchase a $1 permit good for six consecutive days. That ensures that they only have one sale every six months.

In Garden City, residents must purchase a $3 permit good for three consecutive days, while Canton, Plymouth and Westland don't require permits.

So, if you're thinking about a garage sale, think like a Boy Scout. Be prepared. Anything can, and just might, happen.

And who knows . . . that old picture frame you plan to sell for a quarter may have another original copy to the Declaration of Independence.

Checking it twice: Kathy LaHaie and daughter Erin, 3, check over a toaster oven that they were selling at their recent garage sale.

Rocker's the name; money's the aim

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

You could say Randall Short knows how to rock. He even has the nickname - Randy "the Rocker" Short — to prove it.

But you won't find him tearing up the dance floor. His kind of rocking involves a chair and the Michigan Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America. In fact, you'll find him rocking at The Mobile Station at 13 Mile and Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak through tomorrow morning as part of WLLZ's fourth annual radiothon.

"I wanted to donate last year, but didn't have the money, so I called to see If there was something I could do and they didn't know," Short said. "So because it's a rock station, I decided to sit in a rocking chair."

Short's rocking coincides with a marathon radio show by the WLLZ morning team of Ken Calvert and Ed Kelly and a golfathon by a foursome including golf pro Dan White. All three events kicked off at 6 a.m. today (Thursday, July 29) and go until 10 a.m. tomorrow (Friday, July Calvert and Kelly are broadcasting from the WLLZ studios in Farmington Hills where their on air antics include an auction of such oddities as a wedding in the bleachers at Tiger Stadium, original framed artwork by John Lennon, lunch with Bob Talbert and a courtside seat with Calvert at a Detroit Pistons game.

And while Short is in Royal Oak rocking away, White, with the foursome, is at the Wolverine Golf Club in Macomb County playing 350 holes.

To date, the WLLZ radiothon has raised more than $350,000 for the chapter.

Locomotive swaps freight for people

sounds like an odd description for a 1940s steam locomotive that will make its intra-Michigan debut by pulling excursion trains on round trips from metropolitan Detroit to two separate outstate destinations in mid-August.

The well-known former Nickel Plate Road 2-8-4 fast freight locomotive Number 765 will carry passengers from Livonia to Holland on Saturday, Aug. 14, and from Livonia to Flint and Saginaw on Sunday, Aug. 15. The public excursions are sponsored by Bluewater Michigan Chapter of the National Railway Historicel Society and CSX Transporta-

In tribute to CSXT, successor to Michigan's Pere Marquette Railroad, the Chesapeake & Ohio and several other major carriers, Number 765 is being slightly reconfigured to resemble C&O Number 2765 for its trips in the Great Lakes State. The renumbered and relettered locomotive also will pull excursions in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia following its Michigan visit.

The Aug. 14 excursion — the Windmill City Steam Special departs CSXT's Detroit Division Headquarters on Levan Road, two blocks south of I-696, at 8 a.m., and makes an intermediate passenger stop at the former Pere Marquette-Michigan Central station (now Clara's Restaurant) in downtown Lansing at 10 a.m. Arrival at Holland is scheduled for

1:30 p.m. Passengers will have 31/2 hours in Holland to tour Windmill Island, Baker Furniture Museum. the Holland Arts Center. Centennial Park, business district and area restaurants before the train

On Aug. 15, the Saginaw Valley Steam Special will leave the Levan Road location at 9 a.m. and arrive at Flint's McGrew Yard on Coldwater Road at 11 a.m. Departure for Saginaw will be at approximately 11:30 a.m., arriving at

The Saginaw Valley Steam Special offers passengers two options: an afternoon at Crossroads Village and the steam-powered Huckleberry Railroad to celebrate Railfans' Weekend, or a tour of_ Bluewater Michigan Chapter's Saginaw roundhouse where Number 2765 will be turned and serviced.

There will be tours of Number 2765's cab, tours of part of the roundhouse, including Bluewater's coach repair facility, and discussions by railroad veterans and local historians of Saginaw's importance to railroading in Michi-

Round-trip adult tickets (in air-conditioned coaches) for both trips are $79 (ages 16 and over) and $64 for children 6-15 years of age. # Program offers back-to-school basics

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Thinking about college?

If you are, then now's the time to sign up for "Thinking About College," a daylong program for women who are considering returning to school. The program is offered by Schoolcraft College's Women's Resource

The program will be 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 4, on the college's Livonia campus and 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 5, at the Radcliff Center in Garden

"It helps alleviate a lot of problems for these women," said Nancy Swanborg, WRC director. "They think they're the only one at school who doesn't know what they want to be. They think they should, but that sort of feeling of not knowing is very common.'

"Thinking About College" is offered in early August in time for walk-in registration for the fall term and again in November prior to the winter term. A spinoff of an informal support group formed in 1979, the program will start with an invitation for participants to introduce themselves, so 'everyone knows at least one person by name," according to Swanborg. They also are encouraged to write down questions they have, questions that will be answered dur-

Topics will include getting started, affording college, financial aid, juggling responsibilities, and others.

And interstingly, salmon patties are a favorite, according to several child care providers and professionals...

Faculty representatives from the busi-, ness, computer science, child care development, fine arts, liberal arts, health care, technical fields and academic options departments will also be on hand to cover such Schoolcraft services as admissions, financial aid, registrar's office, counseling, Learning Assistance Center, Career Planning and Placement Center and the Women's Resource Center.

A panel of mature students will also share their experiences and answer questions. Each member of the "re-entry panel" will talk about her own experiences, covering such topics as goals, fears and challenges, a family's reaction to "Mom" going to school and support services.

"The panel lets the women hear from students who were where they were a year ago,"

The program also includes a tour of the campus directed by volunteer peer counselors from the resource center.

"Thinking of College" had its start in 1979. A new student who described herself as "going in the back door, but coming out the front" decided to return to school after a Married, she had two teenage sons and no high school diploma, but with the encouragement and support of other older female students, she earned her GED while simultaneously working on her collegiate studies.

The group shared resources and ideas. along with solutions to on-campus and athome problems. Members met regularly at coffee hours that featured a program or speaker. The woman graduated from Schoolcraft in 1984 with an associate of arts degree and went on to earn her bachelor of arts degree from Eastern Michigan Univer-

With the loss of the group's leadership, the Women's Resource Center stepped in to fill in the gap, offering the first "Thinking About College" program in 1985. The program will start with check-in at 8:30 a.m. in Room LA 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the Livonia campus, Haggerty Road south of Seven Mile, and at 8:45 a.m. in Room RC-320 of the Radcliff Center, Radcliff south of Ford Road.

The campus program costs $5 and includes lunch, while the Radcliff program is $2.50 and includes refreshments but no lunch. Reservations can be made by sending checks, payable to Schoolcraft College, to the Women's Resource Center, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia 48152. For more information. call 462-4443.

ANNIVERSARIES

Walter and Jeanne Vanderburg

Walter and Jeanne Vanderburg will be the guests of honor at an open house Aug. 7 at their Livonia home to mark their 50th wedding anniversary.

The party is being hosted by their married children, Ron and Holli Curl and Suzanne Vanderburg and grandchildren Eric, Ryan, Ross and Michele.

The Vanderburgs exchanged vows on Aug. 14, 1943, at the Littlefield Boulevard Presbyterian Church in Dearborn. She is the former Jeanne Peters.

Robert and Grace Schroeder

Robert and Grace Schroeder of Livonia recently celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary.

The couple exchanged vows on June 12, 1948. She is the former Grace Shurmur.

The Schroeders marked the occasion with a two-week cruise to Europe with friends Dick and Gerry Dahler, also of Livonia, and by hosting a party for family and friends at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, where they are members.

The Schroeders have six children — Edie Bolton and husband Bill of Clarkesville, Ga., Paul Schroeder and wife Pat of Westland, Peggy Harvey and husband Calvin of Jenkinsburg, Ga., Mar- 3 Co. in Allen Park.

tha Rodewald and husband Matt of Lansing, Louise Coakley and husband Kevin of Rochester and Bob Schroeder of Livonia. They also have 14 grandchildren.

He is a retiree of Ford Motor

Jesus said, The SON OLICKENETH WHOM HE WILL. The dead shall hear the VOICE OF THE SON OF GOD, and they tast hear shall live "[John 5:21, 25]. A little thought will lead you to remember that LIFE MUST PRE-CEDE both hearing and believing. We invite you to worship the CHRIST WHO GIVES LIFE!

Concert benefits prison chapel

A variety of musicians will be center stage, so to speak, at St. Gregory the Great Catholic Church in Detroit Saturday, Aug. 28.

A gospel concert will be held that day for the benefit of the proposed Faith Chapel at the Scott Regional Correctional Facility in Plymouth.

The concert will be at 5:30 p.m. and will feature the gospel sounds of Miracle Christian Center, the combined choirs of St. Gregory and Madonna Catholic Churches, Hartford Memorial Baptist Church, Church of the Covenant, Christian Faith Church, Rita Clark, Judith Williams and Linda Johnson.

The fund-raiser is part of an expanded effort to build a facility at Scott to be used as a chapel and for other educational classes. The concept has been approved by the state, but must be constructed with other than state money.

Announcement of the plan was made several months ago, but publicity has been slow to spur interest, according prison E 'This new chapel will be used to meet the spiritual needs of inmates and to provide a setting for community volunteers to share their faith with the women of Scott.'

> Rev. C. Vaughn Brown chaplain

chaplain, Rev. C. Vaughn Brown.

"This new chapel will be used to meet the spiritual needs of inmates and to provide a setting for community volunteers to share their faith with the women of Scott," Brown said.

A stone's throw from Western Wayne Correctional Facility, the old De-Ho-Co, the Scott Facility is a woman's prison, a fact perhaps unknown to many. Attempts are being made to offer inmates at the prison quality education in order to lift up their image and give individuals more insight into what they can do with their lives.

One way is "Women in the Scriptures." Not a new soap for the daytime TV fans, or an article for "Reader's Digest," 'Women in the Scriptures" is the title of a scripture course being taught at the Scott by Dave McKeon, a professor at St. Mary's Seminary at Orchard

The scripture course is a sixweek endeavor that began July 25 and continues Sundays through Aug. 29. It is offered to Level IV inmates, women doing long terms.

The course might be considered the "new look" for programs at Scott. Brown is slowly attempting to upgrade religious educational conditions in the prison and provide quality pro-

Brown has been joined in promoting the project by the Cathocluding Steve Spreitzer and the Rev. Thomas Physician of the Archdiocese's Criminal Justice Ministry.

Besides the "Women in the Scripture" class being taught in the prison by McKeon, a number of outside activities are planned to spark interest. The first is the gospel concert at St. Gregory's.

"As members of the Scott Community Volunteer Board, we are excited and challenged by this opportunity, and, hope that you will assist us with the Faith Chapel Building project," said Brown said in letter soliciting donations for the chapel building.

Tickets for the gospel concert are $10 each and are available by calling St. Gregory's at 861-0363. Donations for the Faith Chapel can also be made by sending checks, payable to State of Michigan, to Faith Chapel, P.O. Box 40422, Redford 48240.

For more information, about the project call Brown at 459-

Yes is a better message for our kids

On an otherwise leisurely drive, I recently subjected myself to one of those radio talk shows that seems to be anger/fear driv-A guest on this particular day was enumerating

some of the ma-

jor problems in the world of today's adolescent. Topping the list were pregnancy, drugs, venereal diseases, including AIDS, and suicide.

Whether or not I have these in the proper order, I am not sure. There are, however, two things of which I am sure. One thing I know is that these are major problems which in their own lethal way make adolescence the beginning of the end of life itself.

The other thing I know is that our response to these problems, more pointedly our response to these kids, appears to be, at best driven by fear of the teens them-

Teens deserve something more than fear and cop-out tactics from those who are supposed to introduce them to life.

Frankly, our response to their problems says something sad about the legacy we offer them. On one hand, we tell them to simply say "no." Then at the same time we do not believe they have enough self-respect to say "no," so we hand them a package of condoms and tell them to be safe. Simply saying "no" is not adequate because it is not realistic. Simply using a condom is not realistic because it is not adequate. Advocating "no" has never, in itself, changed a whole lot of adolescent behavior. For one thing, too many of those who hold out such a solution are peddling a double message. They too often stand with their one too many martinis in hand as they suggest saying "no" to drugs

It is also true that ours is the generation that uses sex to sell everything from the clothes teens wear to the breath spray they inhale to the movies they are urged not to miss. We plaster the walls of the video and music stores with posters designed to stir the hormones of would-be buyers in any

The oxymoron "adult entertainment" screams out from neon lights and magazine advertisements. The soaps and so much more of television convey the message that sex is the most important ingredient of relationship. and that, indeed, sex is as fitting in the context of a weekend romp (with a condom, that is) as it is in a lifelong commitment.

In such an atmosphere, the no message is far weaker then the hormones coming to life in a generation that almost by definition believes itself to be immortal.

So, rather than create a society in which the message of no might at least be consistent with the media entertainment by which adults make their money, for selling something else.

It is as if we are saying, "Look, we have done our part by telling you to just say no. At the same time we do not believe you will, so ■ In such an atmosphere, the no message is far weaker then the hormones coming to life in a generation that almost by definition believes itself to be immortal.

here. Take this piece of latex and, for heavens sakes, don't talk to us about it, because your sexuality frightens us.'

How many of those who advocate mass condom distribution as the solution of choice for high schools would be comfortable knowing that their own daughter or son was in bed with a person infected with HIV as long as a condom was in use?

Many of those who would suggest that condoms make for safe sex among adolescents would be the first to sue a manufacturer of almost anything that failed as often as the misused or defective condom often does.

Yes, there are those who would counter with the suggestion that this is exactly why we need to instruct even the very young on proper condom use. Perhaps if we could show 13- and 14-year-olds how to live life properly, they would not have to learn about how to use a condom at a time when just making friends is difficult enough.

So if no is not heard and condoms are not all that safe, what do we do? What is the alternative? Why not at least begin by providing the kind of relationships with adolescents, parental as well as academic, in which they are free to talk about their fears, their misgivings and, yes, even phone.

their sexuality. And then we might teach them to say "yes."

The yes word has always worked better than the no message. How about yes to self-respect? How about yes to a young adolescent life free from the unnecessary emotional and relational entanglements that premature sex is bound to fuel? How about yes to the thought that I am worth something and quite lovable, thank you very much, even if I don't put out for you?

How about yes I am very much a man even if I do not conquer every young woman who is willing to enjoy my company? Out of such a background they may wellbe better equipped to know what they are about when someday they speak a yes of commitment to one with whom they can share their whole person.

Perhaps the yes message might even let young people know that we respect them rather than fear them. It might let them know we have something to give them rather than simply something to protect them from contracting.

Lensman focuses on alluring natural views

ature's bounty fills Dick Arthur's viewfin-"I see the beauty of nature through my camera," says the 35-year Livonia resident. Arthur snaps all sorts of natural wonders: raccoons, squirrels, butterflies, tiger beetles, flowers, rivers, woodlands. "I enjoy being outside. It's a good excuse to get out and walk in the woods.'

He adds: "My father was an amateur naturalist and he knew the names of most of the trees, flowers and bushes in the area I was brought up in Dayton, Ohio. We spent a lot of time out in the woods together. We covered every back road within 300 miles of Dayton."

A retired automotive design engineer, Arthur, 76, has zoomed in on nature through the focus of his Nikon camera for 20 years. He shoots with slide film, makes prints in his basement darkroom, then mats, mounts and frames his work.

"It's a hobby for me really. I've taken product pictures for businesses and catalogs, and I've taught some classes in Detroit and Livonia, but I wouldn't go so far as to say I'm a died-in-the wool professional.

Learns from photos

Inquisitiveness drives Arthur.

"I like to see what I can learn from nature. I like to be able to identify the species in a photograph, like a Lady Slipper orchid, and know something about it. Nature photography forces you to study up on some of the things you've taken pictures of.

Within this backdrop, Arthur will exhibit his work Aug. 2-31 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

"He has a very nice eye," says Livonia arts commissioner Ed Ferguson, curator of city-hall art shows. "His photos would look nice in a travel magazine. There's a real nice feel to his work.'

All but one of the color and black and white photos in Arthur's 47-piece retrospective were taken since the early '70s.

The other photo was taken on a trip to Louisville, Ky., in the late '30s. It shows a sunset silhouette of mules grazing on a hill in a farmer's

"When I stopped and whistled at them, they all looked at me with their ears standing up real good, then posed," Arthur recalls. "The weather had been miserable but this particular day, it cleared up and there was a beautiful sunset. This was the only good picture I took the whole trip.

The slide, he says, "looks as good today as the day I shot it as far as the color is concerned. The colors remain true, a good example of how the old Kodachrome film holds up.'

On a whim, Arthur recently printed the 55-year-

'It turned out so well, I like it better than most of the stuff I shot recently. The detail is fantastic with absolutely no grain. And the colors hold longer. I printed the slide once before on a different kind of paper but it didn't turn out so well and I never printed it again - until now.'

Arthur wound up printing most of the shots in the retrospective on Ilford Cibachrome paper even though it involves a more expensive process.

Most of the 38 color prints showcase Michigan views - from a white rose with a lavender fringe in his yard to berries at Kensington Metropark to the headwaters of the Jordan River. There's also junipers in Colorado's Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument.

The nine black and white prints capture western vistas from Yosemite National Park in California as well as Black Canyon.

His works are framed in matte-black aluminum with a white interior matte and a light-gray outer matte except the rose. "It's framed in ivory with a coral type of matte and a V line. The coral complements the pink in the rose and brings out the color better," Arthur said.

Class swayed him

Arthur has flirted with the world of flashes and film since high school. But it took a nature photography class in the early '70s at the University of Michigan-Dearborn to hook him. "After that, I figured this is the thing for me."

To sharpen his technical skills, Arthur has spent one week each summer for 12 years at a Houghton Lake nature photography workshop hosted by Larry West of Mason.

A volunteer cameraman for Livonia's cable Channel 8, he has spent the last few years helping broadcast city council meetings at city hall.

"I'd been looking at the art displays in the city hall lobby for three years and one day decided. 'What the heck. I'd like a shot at it. My stuff is as good.' So I contacted the arts commission - and they must've agreed."

Kodak lauds kids' photographer

By Janice Tigar-Kramer Special Writer

Near her bag of tricks and other kids' toys, children's photographer Kimberly Jamieson of Livonia has placed a coveted keepsake of her own: a Kodak Gallery Award for her entry in the portrait category.

Nicole is wearing boy's Victorianera clothing and a brimmed cap to conceal her shoulder-length hair. Her shirt and suspenders harmonize with the clay-tone door and brick building, only the child's full porcelain-colored face, with a pensive expression, stands out against the stately architecture.

"I did the series for myself," said Jamieson, 33. "I wondered how my daughter, who always looks so beautiful, would look dressed like a tough little boy.

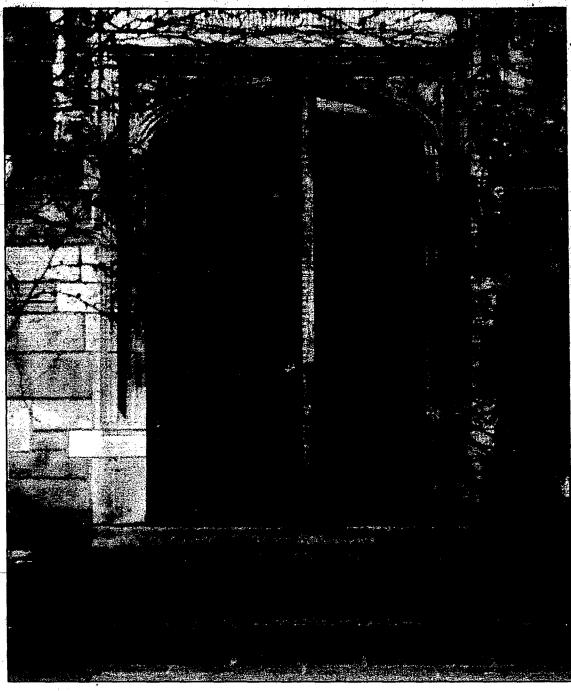

She shot the series with available light using a Hasselblad camera and Kodak's Vericolor 400 professional Kodak receives up to 1,000 entries per state in its annual Gallery Award competition, a contest for professional photographers in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. A winning photo in four categories (por-trait, commercial, wedding and unclassified) is selected from each state. Photos are judged by the state's professional photographer's association.

Plymouth painter arouses emotion via rich oils

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

Andrea De Zell expresses the human experience in rich oil-covered canvasses composed of realism and abstraction.

The Plymouth artist exhibits more than 30 paintings in a retrospective dating back to 1982. The one-person show continues through July 31 at Creative Framing and Fabric Accents. 853 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

Pensive portraits of people ranging from the very young to Englishmen weathered by life encapsulate distinct moments in time. De Zell surrounds the realistic focal points with abstract pastels of ethereal nature.

Florals in the style of Georgia O'Keefe employ fluid movement to awaken the viewer's spirit to their beauty. Still life, such as "Blackberry Harvest," sprinkles sunlight via white highlights on a bucket of luscious black red fruit.

As in each of her paintings, De Zell places the realistic mouth-watering harvest against an abstract background. 'What I do is my own creation. It's abstract yet it's realism. I love to combine them because it makes for a really pretty painting," De Zell said.

The focal point of De Zell's exhibition is a 3-by-4-foot canvas entitled

"The Sapienzas came to me looking for a painting. They'd heard that the best way to introduce your children to religion is to have something prominent in your home that they can see everyday to keep them in tune with God," De Zell said.

Cranbrook highlights the elements

It's element-al.

That's the theme of a current exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills.

The ancient Greeks believed that four basic elements - earth, air, fire and water - made up all matter. The show at Cranbrook is called "Earth, Air, Fire and Water: Elements of the Permanent Collection.'

Exhibited paintings, prints, sculpture, ceramics and glass have earth, air, fire or water as subjects, or they refer to those elements through their form or the way they were made. The display continues through Oct. 31 at 1221 N. Woodward, between Lone Pine and Long Lake roads.

The earth is represented in Zoltan Sepeshy's 1941 tempera study for the "Scientist, Artist and Farmer" mural for the Rackham Building in Detroit, and a stoneware vase by potter Mary Scheier and glazer and decorator Edwin Scheier. This 1948 vase features figures that resemble art by ancient or primitive people.

"Celestial Navigator" by Brian Kritzman, a 1989 work, balances wood, metal and plexiglass to form an instrument. Dating before 1931, the wool piece "The Sunbeam" by Lorentz Kleiser features human figures among cacti, trees and vines.

Subjects from the air include birds (in embroidered wool on linen bed hangings from about 1917 by May Morris and Mary J. Newill) and a plane (in a 1974 lithograph by James Rosenquist).

John Kirchmayer's work called "Music," dating from before 1917 and made out of wood with gold highlights, depicts an angel playing a violin, while the 1981 "Icarus Series No. 25" by L. Brent Kington is an abstract piece made of mild steel, acrylic and krylon.

Images of fire are in the red chair and ottoman made of tubular steel by Eero Saarinen, circa 1946-48, and the 1977 lithograph called "Devil at the Keyboard" by Willem DeKooning. A stoneware vase from Pewabic Pottery, circa 1930s, changes color as it is viewed from different sides, and molded glass vases designed by Rene Jules Lalique, also from the 1930s, glow in red, blue and purple like a Water is presented in the oil paintings of Niagara Falls by 19th century artist Thomas Cole and "Snow" (1990) by Nancy Brett, and the 1948 cocobola wood sculpture of an end-lessly curving "Wave" by Glenn Booth Chamberlain. Different moods are shown in Eva Kwong's 1981 porcelain work "Quiet Storm," and Karel Appel's 1978 brightly colored wooden "Flying Fish."

Hours are 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. Admission: $3 for adults, $2 for children, seniors and full-time students; free for children under age 7 and museum members. Call 645-3312.

Best Children's Portrait from Professional Photographers of Michigan and was named one of Michigan's Top Seven Professional Photographers.

'As a manufacturer, we like to see photographers stretch the limits and do something different with our products. They start with blank paper — what they do beyond that is all imagination," said Terry Deglau for Eastman Kodak Co. in Rochester, N.Y.

Deglau said judges liked Jamieson's image for "the natural set-ting that blended with the beautiful child's clothing."

Jamieson's winning photo and her other impressionistic portraits are picture-stories that capture children's moods and feelings. They line the walls of her home studio, but the bulk of Jamieson's work is portrait photography — with a creative bent.

"Children should be photographed the way they are and not the way we want them to be," said Jamieson, who likes photographing kids in bare feet or wearing soiled tennis shoes.

She also has photographed children playing in spaghetti, painting a picket fence and chasing piglets and rabbits.

Jamieson likes a high key look (white clothing on a white background) because it draws attention to a child's face. She also thinks monochromatic colors cre-

One of her favorite portraits happened by chance. After photographing two sisters in velvet dresses and matching mid-calf boots, the girls eagerly removed the formal clothes. Jamieson quickly shot candids of the two playing in their plain white cotton slips and pearl necklaces.

She learned photography at Stevenson Junior High in Westland and as a sophomore was chief yearbook photographer at John Glenn High School, the first female to land the job. She studied photography at Washtenaw Community College in Ann Arbor and for several years shot wedding photos. After Nicole's birth, children's photography became her

Like all artists, Jamieson gets inspiration for her work from life experiences. She isn't sure how a recent trip to Alaska will show up in her portraits, but somehow the state's beauty will be interpreted in her photography, she said.

So far, daughter Nicole's birth has had the greatest impact: "My eyes opened when I had a child. Before Nicole, I photographed two kids and they both cried. Now, no one cries. They sing, I sing, and we all act like children. I hope I never grow up.'

MONTE and memora ble shots.

So "go for the gold" with your camera. Here are some tips to help you get good sports photographs.

As in all good photography, fill the frame for impact. So when photographing sports, a telephoto lens is needed. Use one that will bring the action in close. For the Little League game down at the corner lot, a moderate 135mm lens will do. But for the major leagues, you'll need a major league lens of 200mm to 400mm in length.

You'll require an action-stopping shutter speed of at least 1/500 second so fast film is in order. Use a 400 ASA film in either color or black and white.

The key to good sports photography is to anticipate the action and capture the spontaneity of the game.

In the photograph shown here taken during a Detroit Tiger/Boston Red Sox game, Tiger Kirk Gibson was on third base eager to score.

Anticipating a play at home plate, I predetermined the exposure using 1/1000 second and prefocused my 200mm lens on home base. By keeping my left eye open, I could follow the action of the game and be ready to snap what I hoped would be an action-filled pic-

Sure enough, the play at home happened and I got the shot. As you can see, Gibson was safe. Only by prefocusing, determining the exposure ahead of time and anticipating the action, was I rewarded with this memorable photograph.

Other sports work similarly. Get to know the game and anticipate the action. Use your concentration and be prepared to take a couple rolls of film to get the few shots you want.

Remember that sports photography is not only concerned with freezing the moment of victory or defeat, but also of capturing the spirit of the

Artist, Kmart team up for holiday De Zell

Y MARY KLEMIC

The time and the place seemed especially appropriate last week as Franklin artist David McCall Johnston and the Troy-based Kmart Corp. announced plans for the design of the company's holiday merchandise.

The announcement was that Johnston's Americana painting, "Country Memories," will be the design of se-ect Kmart items this year — collectible porcelain villages, gift bags, a 20-piece dinnerware set, 13-by-16-inch framed reproductions, placemats, a kitchen designer rug and a puzzle. The merchandise will debut in Septem-

In addition, Kmart will donate 200 signed, limited edition prints to schools, libraries and museums around the country to display or use in fund-raising.

'David's . . . style captures the . . sence of our past," Mike Wellman, Kmart marketing vice president, said at the July 20 press conference.

As for the time, it was "Christmas in July," Wellman joked. As for the place, it was the late 19th century Poppleton School in the Troy Museum and Historical Village at Wattles and Livernois, and "Country Memories"

The gouache (opaque watercolor) painting features a traditional, early 20th century winter barnyard scene. A sleigh waits at the gate, one of the passengers waving to a woman on the porch. Skaters, a rider on a sled and riders in another sleigh frolic outside a Victorian style house. Evergreens and bare trees dot the Closer inspection reveals such touching details as the stones in a low wall, the latticework and a cat on the porch, the bricks in barn buildings, glowing candles in windows.

"To say that this is a passion of mine - the historic painting of mine - is an understatesaid Johnston, an internationally known artist and the 1990-93 artist-in-residence at Detroit Country Day School in Birmingham. "I've lived in five historic homes in

Tour itinerary – art masterpieces

The City of Southfield Tours has arranged a public in this upcoming international tour for special trip to Washington, D.C., Friday-Monday, Aug. 6-9, for the debut showing of the Albert C. Barnes Art Collection.

The tour includes round-trip transportation via deluxe motor coach, lodging, two breakfasts, three dinners, tour escort, guide, taxes and gratuities. Ample time will be afforded for visits to other points of interest, including the recently dedicated Holocaust museum.

For more information, call the City of Southfield Tours at 354-4861. The art collection is to be revealed to the loaned to a museum.

Hollday scene: This painting, "Country Memories" by David McCall Johnston of Franklin, will be featured on Kmart's holiday merchandise this year.

"I thrive on the past. My painting reflects that.

"It's a simpler time. It's a memory that a lot of us would like to recapture."

Johnston works in a restored 1840s Greek Revival-style house that is filled with antiques and folk art of the period. He does intensive research for his art.

A bank in Rapid City, S.D., commissioned him to do a painting of Mount Rushmore for the national monument's 50th anniversary. Among his other commissions are works for children's books, the Jules Verne Museum in France, Steuben Glass, national magazine covers, Celestial Seasonings tea and Thorn Apple Valley.

The Kmart project began in March 1992. Johnston's wife and business manager, Ruth, first contacted the corporation.

"The work really reached out," Maxine Lauer, also of Kmart, said of "Country Memo-

"We really want it to feel that you're going back to Grandma's for Christmas. It's the feeling that we wanted to evoke. David was just excellent at taking those feelings and transforming them into a masterpiece of art.

"At Kmart, you'll be able to become a collector of a masterpiece. We're really excited about this. This project has been a project of warmth and love.

At the press conference, gold tinsel and red ribbons adorned tables on which some of the merchandise was displayed. The painting, covered with a red and green quilt and standing in front of a pot-bellied stove, was unveiled at the announcement.

Troy Mayor Jeanne Stine was present and received a smaller version of the painting. She commended the artist for focusing on the fam-

"I really appreciate that there is a church in the background," she said.

izing her son has risen from the dead. Still unaware of what has occurred, Mary Magdalene sits sobbing, her head downcast.

The search for religious-oriented imagery was a three-year endeavor for the Sapienzas. They began their search after reading "Religion for Little Children" by Christiane Rus-

"We learned from reading the book it was important to have something central to your faith in your home. I wanted it to tell a story. As the years went by, I wanted my children to ask me questions," Michael Sapienza said.

The couple went to art fairs and galleries looking for a print or painting. They were unable to find an artist who would take on a work of this magnitude. One artist accepted the commission then after a year's wait decided the painting was too difficult. That's when the Sapienzas happened upon De Zell's paintings at Atrium Gallery in Northville.

"We couldn't find anything we were happy with. Some of them were pretty grim. My wife and I are really happy with it. It's a very pleasant painting. The clothing is traditional. What I like about it, the figures are pretty real. I like the realism in contrast with the abstraction."

De Zell thoroughly researched her subject matter before making preliminary sketches.

"I wanted to do something contemporary but with the Old World figures," said the selftaught painter. "It was up to me to come up with something

"I read the Scriptures, the passages pertaining to the resurrection so I knew what was going on at that time," De Zell said. "I researched the clothing for the time period. The painting is a combination of Old World and contempo-

Dedication, discipline and perseverance over an untimely illness enabled De Zell to complete the painting in a little over six months. "This painting has given me the opportunity to say thanks (to God) for the talent I have.'

De Zell originally worked in clay sculpture, but switched to oil in 1977. She has been painting seriously since.

Most recently, she exhibited in an international show, the annual "Women in Art: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, sponsored by the Oakland Comumunity College Women's Center and Oakland County NOW. She frequently exhibits as part of 3 Cities Art Club and Farmington Artists Club. Her work can be found at Atrium Gallery in Northville.

"I hope people are inspired by the painting," De Zell said.

"With how things are today with abortion, drugs and promiscuity, we all need to be drawn back to what life is all about. We need to find goodness again. I hope through this painting some good will come, for people to think twice about what they're doing."

Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Area boards pick Realtors of Year

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

People who stand out among their peers generally take the long view. They go beyond the expectation of the moment, get involved in issues and motivate others to Outstanding Realtors are no exception. Several recently won special honors for their efforts in the Curtis Shinsky, broker/owner of Remerica Suburban in Livonia, was selected Realtor of the Year for the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

Harold R. Buckindail, associate broker and assistant manager with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Royal Oak, was chosen Realtor of the Year for the South Oakland County Board of Realtors.

Sue Thorn, associate broker for Century 21 East in Rochester Hills, was named Realtor of the Year for the Rochester Area Association of Realtors.

Professional associations, formed to meet educational, political and social objectives, are only as good as their members.

Shinsky, 53, has been in the real estate business for 20 years. WWOCAR committee involvement has included political affairs, professional standards. strategic planning, grievance and financial planning.

President-elect of the association, Shinsky was instrumental in structuring a mega-regional mul. Shinsky tiple listing service in southeast Michigan.

"I take great satisfaction in taking care of people's housing needs, doing a good job for them," Shinsky said. "I especially like working with young people. They need a lot of guidance, first-time buvers.

Shinsky also is active in the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Livonia Goodfellows and Livonia Church of Christ. He and his wife, Patricia, live in that community.

"He truly is a credit to our profession," said Bill Deacon, current WWOCAR president and a former Realtor of the Year. "He's very good at what he does.'

Buckindail, 75, started selling real estate 20 years ago after retiring as a plant manager in the manufacturing sector. He has served as a SOCBOR director for 11 years and has held four executive posts including president.

front lot which is adjacent to my neighbor's lakefront lot. My neighbor owns a 15-foot walkway which my property borders. Eighteen years after we bought, we told our neighhors that we were claiming title to the walkway by adverse possession. We had planted trees and built a fence and a dock on the property. In the winter, we stored recreational equipment there. We never asked the neighbor's permission. In fact, our activities interfered with the neighbor's ability to use the property. Do we have a valid claim for ad-

Yes. The law says that in order for you to obtain adverse possession, you must have continuous possession for 15 years and your possession must be "actual, visible, open and notorious." It would appear based upon the facts of your circumstances that you could win your claim for adverse possession, but you will probably have to litigate the matter.

We are forming a corporation as a family business and are wondering what tips you have in regard to handling the legal papers. We are thinking about buying an office condo.

The documents necessary, among other things, from a legal standpoint would be the Articles of Incorporation which must be filed with the state, a set of bylaws for the operation of the corporation and minutes of the corporation to reflect a meeting of incorporators, shareholders and the board of directors. You will also need various other tax forms in order to comply with state and federal obligations and you should consult with your CPA. You will need a corporate resolution, no doubt, to make a purchase of a condo unit for office

Etkin honored

Southfield-based Etkin Equities won Suburban Office Park of the Year honors from the Building Owners and Managers Association for its work on the 350,000-square-foot Brookfield Office Park in Farmington Hills. The honor is given to buildings that demonstrate excellence in office building management, operations, community involvement, emergency evacuation procedures and Brookfield's master plan and Buildings One and Three were designed by the late Minoru Yamasaki, Rosetti & Associates designed Building Two as the headquarters for Compuware. Brookfield also houses Cellular One, Reuters Information Services, Mass Mututal Companies, Octel Communications and M.O.R.-Pace.

Other Etkin buildings, like the Franklin Center, City Center Office Park and Timberland Office Park, have won BOMA honors in consecutive years dating back to 1987.

Complying with ADA

The Ann Arbor architectural firm of Culbertson Jacobs & Milling has been selected by First of America Bank to evaluate and correct 43 sites for compliance with the Federal Americans With -Disabilities Act (ADA).

ADA specialist Christopher Pyzik will visit all First of America branches in Washtenaw, Wayne and Livingston counties.

Pyzik, who was heavily involved in church architecture helping the renovations of the First Presbyterian Church in Plymouth and Kirk in the Hills in Bloomfield Hills, will also be assisting University of Michigan Hospitals in its compliance with the act. He will review outpatient clinics in Brighton, Plymouth, Northville and Ann Arbor.

Face lifts: Architectural Exterior Finishers' portfolio includes the Community EMS building in Troy (left) which was converted from an auto dealership, and Ethan Allen store in Livonia (below), which got an upscale image that brought the furniture store into the 1990s.

Putting on a brand new face

For roughly 20 percent of what it would cost to build new, Architectural Exterior Finishers of Redford can give your building a fresh face and your business a refreshed attitude.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Refurbishing may be the current buzz word in the construction indus-

On the commercial side, an auto dealership in Southfield transforms into administrative headquarters for CEMS, an ambulance service. Troy Commons, a strip shopping center, receives a makeover and an Ethan Allen furniture store in Livonia gets an upscale look.

Architectural Exterior Finishers in Redford was responsible for all of those projects.

Robert Mantua, president/owner started off in the remodeling business and said he was one of the first to jump into exterior finishing when that specialty evolved a few years ago.

"There's an increased need for image," he said. "Appearance in the marketplace is important for tenants and owners. And it is more economical than new, obviously.'

Renovations can come in at 20 percent of the costs of building from the ground up, Mantua said.

More good than bad

Several exterior insulation finishing systems — Senergy, Dryvit and Sto - are available. They're basically Expanded polystyrene (Styrofoam) sheets which can be cut and routered into various shapes and design are cemented to the wall of the existing structure. A reinforcing mesh is attached to those sheets and a liquid acrylic plaster finish, which comes in a variety of colors, is then brushed onto the mesh where it hardens.

"The advantages are that this stuff is very flexible," Mantua said. "It can expand and contract more than any

The plaster can be applied only if the temperature is at least 40 degrees, the work is labor intensive and the outside shell is prone to cutting over time, Mantua said.

Still, the plusses outweigh the minuses in his mind.

"In remodeling a building with many different phases, this makes it all look like one phase. It brings it all together," Mantua said. "The main benefit is durability to weather and ability to use many colors . . . and unlimited shapes.'

The cost is about the same as brick - $6 a square foot, he said.

A custom fit

Mantua said he got started in exterior finishing work in the mid 1980s when he was hired to install smaller windows in many Plymouth/Canton school buildings.

He figured that he could put in the windows, studs and trim and leave the exterior finishing work to someone else. He figured wrong. So Mantua did some research, did the job himself and became a convert.

Now, others do the work. Mantua said, but none as much on-site, custom work as he does.

Office market has hit bottom, starting on road to recovery

activity through the first six months of this year believes that the sluggish metro office market has bottomed out and is on the road to recovery.

Some pockets like Farmington Hills and Livonia are faring better than others like Troy and Southfield. reported Joel Feldman, senior vice president and broker with the Noble/ Advantage Group in Southfield.

The key to the resurrection of our local multi-tenanted office market . will continue to be absorption --the net decrease in the current oversupply of office product," Feldman wrote.

How? "Continued abatement of new, speculative office development coupled with the expansion of companies already present in our area as well as attracting new businesses to our community on a massive scale," Feldman reported.

The task won't be easy, Feldman warned. He called upon business and governmental notables already here to lead an expansion of local commerce and attract new business.

"I've been on numerous committees and attended numerous meetings," he said. "I've made it very clear to them I think the state of Michigan and city of Detroit have done a very poor job attracting new business to our area. It's been a chronic problem.'

Occupancy rates range from 94 percent in Blngham Farms to just under 75 percent in Southfield, Feldman said. The average for the entire metro area was 82 percent.

Here's a capsule look at the office situation as of July 1 in several O&E At least one analyst eyeing leasing communities as provided by Feldman.

FARMINGTON HILLS

Termed the best model of dealing with problems of overbuilding and foreclosure in metro Detroit, this market has tightened considerably in the last year.

Occupancy levels have improved dramatically in buildings like Village Park, Wellington Place North C, Hunters Square and Westfield. "Competitive rental rates, good hands-on management, aggressive leasing agents and the financial wherewithal to do tenant build-outs" sparked the turnaround, Feldman reported.

Two other factors - brokers hustling to find user/investors to buy troubled properties and aggressive marketing through lease renewals also paid dividends.

WESTERN LIVONIA

Progress in filling vacancies along the I-275 corridor continued through the first six months of 1993.

A general tightening-up has occurred throughout the community.

'Aggressive rental rates, the retention of existing tenants and the modernization of some older buildings are major reasons for this," Feldman reported.

"A significant and disproportionate amount of existing leases expire (this year) and accordingly landlords here must spend a good deal of time and money while focusing their attention on this fact," Feldman in-

This community's office market is the most troubled in the metro area, according to Feldman's analysis.

Troy today is fraught with serious problems officewise, exemplified by a record amount of vacant office buildings, a record amount of vacant office space and a record amount of foreclosures," he reported.

Demand simply exceeds supply and will only get worse as National Bank of Detroit and GM move a significant amount of employees out of town in the next few years.

In spite of the glut, landlords here are wise to go easy on granting con-cessions, Feldman indicated.

This approach will . . . serve as a strong deterrent from allowing Troy's current problems to reappear," he Progress will be slow in the short term, however.

SOUTHFIELD

This market was as active as any in the area through the first slx months of the year, but the results were mixed.

"It is becoming more and more clear that Southfield's size and age inherently cause it to chronically experience a vicious circle," Feldman reported. "As one problem is solved, another appears.

Part of it has to do with the immensity of the market.

Some progress has been made in the southern tier through "major renovations and excellent management together with aggressive rental rates," Feldman indicated.

Light is Right

Sunshine design is an illuminating concept

you might have gathered from the name, the Sunshine from Landmark Designs of Eugene, Ore., was conceived to take full advantage of natural light.

One of its most unique features is a front-facing upper deck, or solarium, adjacent to the master suite. While providing privacy and protection from the wind, the space also serves as a nurturing environment for pots of colorful sun-loving plants.

The solarium's back wall is almost entirely glass. Two sets of sliding doors flank a stationary window and all three are capped of the sliding glass doors and you'll find yourself on a balcony with a 12-inch shelf at railing height — another neat nook for

The balcony overlooks an exceptionally bright kitchen and dining room. Light filtering in through the solarium windows combines with light from four skylights in the two-story ceiling to provide reliable natural illumination throughout the daylight hours, most of the year.

Located well away from the activities of the rest of the home, the adult retreat. Luxury amenities include: his and hers pass through wardrobes, a doublebasin vanity and a raised spa tub. Tropical plants flourish in the warm, moist atmosphere around

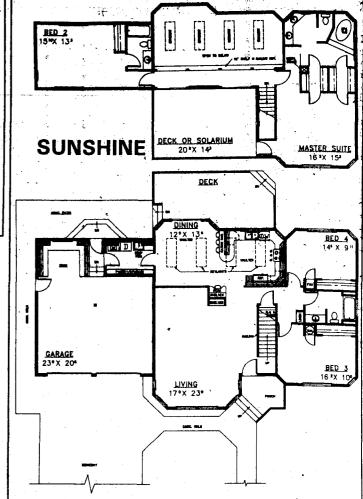

A second bedroom, on the opposite side of the balcony, also has a private bathroom. The bedrooms downstairs share a third bath-

Counters wrap around four sides of the generously sized kitchen. An eating bar is convenient for snacking and lazy susan by half-rounds. Step through one master suite serves as a quiet shelving provides easy cupboard access in two corners. Sliders in the bayed dining room make it easy to move meals outside onto the railed deck.

Additional storage space is available in a pass-through utility room between the dining room and garage. The two-car garage has a U-shaped shop in back, complete with counters and cabi-

Increases have been reported in Tower 14, the Advance Building, Pinewood Plaza and Honeywell buildings. However, many large buildings in the area remain vacant.

The middle tier, bounded by Nine Mile, I-696, Lodge and Greenfield is in transition and flux.

The massive Prudential Town Center continues to draw tenants. However, once prominent offices likes the former Empire of America complex and the former Doner Building are vacant, "partially plagued by asbestos and insufficient market demand."

Southfield's northern tier also may begin to experience deterioration, as space remains available in top-notch buildings like First Center and Travelers Tower.

All isn't bleak, however.

mon building material," he said. "Five years ago, I had difficulty explaining to people in the business what I did."

CEMS coveted a former auto dealership for its headquarters primarily for the service area to maintain the ambulance fleet. said Donna Lawrence, marketing and community relations mana-

"As far as the exterior, we wanted to design a state-of-the art look, something not of the typical office building look, something unique," she said.

The architect recommended Mantua's firm.

It beats relocating

Ethan Allen, with a store in Livonia for 27 years, didn't want to move from a highly visible location when contemplating an image change, said Peggy Pobuda, regional manager.

"We enjoyed good success there," she said. "Ethan Allen had been looking a couple of years to change its image to bring our look into the 90s and give people an idea of the breadth of the line we carry.

"Remodeling of the facade was a much less expensive option M 'Ethan Allon had been looking a coup of years to change its image to bring our look into the 90s - than relocating," Pobuda said.

Mantua does some design work, but most of the time he plays a subcontractor role to jobs already specified. Seventy percenty of his commercial work is renovations, 30 percent new. He's even starting to get requests for residential renovations.

"As new work picks up, this material finds itself into every new building," Mantua said. "It may just be an entryway, but it's in some way. We do jobs 10-by-10 and we do jobs that are 40,000 square feet."

Do-it-yourselfers should take care in jumping into smaller projects alone because there is a skill involved, Mantua cautioned.

"Workmanship has to be very precise, as the manufacture recommends, or there will be failure," he said.

How to extend hot water lines

Home repair questions answered by Popular Mechanics magazine.

Q. We live in a drought area and I'm concerned about the amount of water wasted while running the tap to get hot water in my bathroom. My water heater is at one end of my home and my bathroom is at the other end. In order to get hot water through the faucets at least 80 feet of cold water has to come out of the hot water line. Is it possible to continue the hot water line past the bathroom and then return it into the water heater? Will this save a lot of water?

A. The hot water system that you have, like those in most residential systems, is a noncirculating type. It is generally installed because it costs less for labor and materials than a circulating hot water system. Even though the noncirculating system is very common, it does have the disadvantage vou describe.

You can convert your system to a circulating hot water system by installing a return loop on the distribution line which runs from the last faucet to the hot water heater. If the elevation difference between the hot water heater and the faucets is greater than 5 feet, then the hot water circulation can usually be achieved by gravity, the so-called thermo-siphon system. This works because hot water rises forcing the cooler water down.

run in the pipes or if there is less than a 5-foot height difference between the boiler and the faucet, the thermo-siphon system won't work and you'll need a pump to circulate the hot water.

This system, often used in hospitals where instant hot water is required, has the advantage of making it available at all fixtures as soon as you turn on the tap. Continuous circulation between the hot water storage tank and the faucet does the job. ~

Q. We have a Hotpoint refrigerator with a top freezer. Whenever the compressor stops, we hear a sharp thudding noise. This noise first appeared about three months ago as a quiet thud which has gradually gotten louder. Now the refrigerator has started to rattle. We're afraid it might explode one of these days. Will it? And, what should we do to quiet it down?

A. There's no danger that your refrigerator might explode, but your thudding and rattling noises sound as if one of the internal suspension springs that mount the compressor may have broken.

What you are hearing is the motor and pump assembly on its subframe hitting against the side of the compressor case that surrounds the entire compressor assembly. The only real cure is to have the compressor replaced.

Rejuvenate those hardwood floors

Restoring a worn hardwood floor that has a clear finish takes about a week.

You will need a day to prepare the space and gather materials and tools, another to sand, and several more to apply the finish and allow drying time between coats. You can save time by asking someone to help you.

If an existing finish is severely damaged and the flooring is at least one-fourth inch thick, it should be stripped with a sander before refinishing.

You can rent equipment. A drum-type floor sander handles most of the floor refinishing. Use a hand-held disc sander, or edger, to sand stair treads and along baseboards, in corners, inside closets, and in other places that are inaccessible to the large drum

Prepare for sanding by removing all rugs, furniture and other furnishings in the room. Carefully take off the quarter-round shoe moldings along the baseboards. (Number the moldings and their places on the wall so that you can put them back.) Cover all vents. Seal doorways and windows from the rest of the house with plastic

Inspect the floor carefully. Pull out any staples left from carpeting. Drive any visible nail heads one-eighth inch below the surface using a nail set and fill the holes with wood putty. Repair cracks and secure loose floorboards. Vacuum and thoroughly inspect the floor once more.

Caution: For sanding, wear goggles, a dust mask and ear protection. To avoid marring the floor. don heavy socks or clean, whitesoled sneakers. Remember that sanding dust, finishes and finish fumes are flammable. Don't smoke. Extinguish pilot lights on nearby appliances.

Sand the floor first with the drum sander and 36-grit paper. Raise the sander off the floor, turn on the power, then lower the drum carefully, keeping a firm grip on the handles. Work across the floor - always with the grain — then return to the beginning and strip the next section parallel to and slightly overlapping the

Using an industrial drum floor sander is like walking a headstrong dog. Your job is to let it pull you, but not as fast as it can. Always keep the machines moving or the sander will eat down into the floor and leave an uneven surface. Repeat the sanding process twice, using 80-grit sandpaper, then 100-grit paper.

Next sand along the walls with the edger. Hold both handles firmly and keep the disc flat on the floor to avoid gouging. Sand with the same succession of paper grades as you used on the main

Use a block of wood wrapped with sandpaper or a paint scraper to clean even the tightest areas in corners and under radiators where neither power sander can reach. Finally, hand-sand, working with the grain, to remove swirls caused by the edger. Vacuum thoroughly between sanding

After sanding, vacuum the floor and walls using the brush attachment. Wipe down moldings, windowsills and door frames so that dust won't fall off later and mar the finish. Let dust settle overnight, then vacuum again. Wipe the floor thoroughly with a tack cloth, available in hardware stores.

If you want floors to be only slightly darker than the bare wood, apply sealant of any kind. If you want the finish to have a darker tone, apply wood stain be-fore the sealant.

Oil-base polyurethane is a popular floor finish because of its durability and ease of application. You need three coats when you use polyurethane as the final finish. Thin the first coat with one part mineral spirits to four parts polyurethane; this acts as a Brush polyurethane across the grain and then along it. Use a long-handled roller to apply the finish on the main surface of the floor; use a small brush for the edges and corners. Work in small sections, overlapping the strokes before the previous section is dry. Inexpensive foam rollers are best.

Let each coat dry as directed before recoating; observe ventilation precautions on the container. In between coats, buff with a rented floor-polishing machine equipped with superfine steel wool. After each buffing, vacuum well and clean with a tack cloth.

Allow the finish to dry at least two days then buff with superfine steel wool again and vacuum. Apply two coats of paste wax, followed by a buffing with lamb's

Down times: Analysts, blaming uncertainties in the federal tax and spending policies, are significantly lowering their predictions for new homes and apartment construction.

Building slump baffles experts

- Construction of new homes and apartments leveled off in June despite the lowest mortgage rates in two decades.

Analysts said construction, which had reindinded in April and May from a winter Mamp, was being hampered by continued weakness in the labor market and by uncertainties over federal tax and spending policies and the Clinton administration health care package

But the Commerce Department said last week that housing start activity was mixed, rising in the Northeast and West and falling in the South and the rain-soaked Midwest. Overall, starts in June were unchanged from May's 1.25 million seasonally adjusted annual rate. After reaching 1.29 million in December, starts fell to a 1.12 million rate by March, largely because of severe weather including a late-winter blizzard in much of the East and

But they rebounded 7.3 percent in April and 4 percent in May — even more than the department's initial 2.4 percent estimate -

Sefore leveling off in June. Although many analysts predict moderate with during the second half of the year, tey are revising downward their forecast for the year after what some described as a dis-

Sepointing first six months.

I'd be surprised if we can get to 1.3 mil-Hon for the year," said economist David Freah of the Mortgage Bankers Association, to earlier had forecast construction of 1.32 million units in 1993

David Seiders of the National Association of Home Builders was even more pessimistic. He lowered his forecast to 1.26 million, from 1.29 million.

Still, that would be an improvement over 1992, when 1.20 million units were built. So far this year, however, housing starts are up just 1.1 percent over the first six months of

"It's disappointing in terms of where we expected this market to be," Seiders said. With interest rates the lowest in two decades, we would expect something better than this."

According to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages averaged 7.16 percent last week, the lowest since it began keeping records in "The housing markets need a lot more" than low interest rates, Lereah contended, noting low consumer confidence, weak job growth and uncertainty about the effects of economic and health care legislation.

That uncertainty and expectations of continued low rates and stable prices curbed any sense of urgency, Seiders added.

However, Seiders said a survey of home builders in early July indicated sentiment was "perking up," at least in the single-family sector, which had fallen 2.8 percent in June, to a 1.08 million rate.

Building permits, often a barometer of future activity, suggested improvement may not be immediate, however. They fell 1.3 percent, to a 1.11 million rate, after advancing 1.8 percent in May.

Seiders also said the 21.5 percent jump in the multi-family sector, a 175,000 rate, could not be sustained and would fall back in July. Regionally, the Northeast posted a 16.2 percent increase in starts, to a 136,000 rate. Starts were up 4.4 percent in the West, to 307.000.

But they dropped 4.6 percent in the South, to 534,000, and 2.1 percent in the Midwest, to 277,000.

Refinancing parade continues

AP — Homeowners planning for a child's college education or a comfortable retirement streamed into mortgage institutions last year to take advantage of sinking interest rates that dipped as low as 7 percent.

One year later, they are doing it again.

A refinancing boom that began in early 1991 when mortgage rates fell below 10 percent is still drawing customers as rates continue to drop, loan officers say. Some are refinancing for the second and third time.

"Last vear was a record-breaking year for us and we are ahead of that pace this year," Kathleen Clancey, vice president of marketing for Troy-based Standard Federal Bank, said Tuesday.

The leading mortgage lender in southeastern Michigan, Standard Federal closed 24,437 mortgages in the first six months of this year, a 12 percent increase from the 21,700 closings for the first half of 1992. Refinancing accounts for half its mortgages, bank officials said. William and Andrea Briggs of Walker plan to close on a new mortgage this week, their second refinancing in 30 months. Two years ago, the Briggses traded in their 30-year mortgage with a rate of 10.25 percent for a 20-year mortgage at 9.75 percent. Now that loan is being exchanged for a 15-year mortgage at 7.125 percent, chopping $40 off their monthly payment.

"Fifteen years from now, our kids are going to be starting college and it would be great to have the house paid off," says Mrs. Briggs, whose children are ages 1 and 3. "And you can't beat the interest rates right now.
