Man's hospitalization defended

The mayor's mother and the wife of the DPS director defended the actions of their son and husband, respectively. At the heart of the dispute is the forced hospitalization of a public services employee.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Fears of possible workplace killings have spread since a Westland public services department worker - angry about new work rules imposed by his superiors - made alleged threats of "another post office incident" similar to slayings in Dearborn and Royal

Michael Sadley, a 39-year-old hourly worker, spent three nights in a psychiatric ward after he allegedly warned his boss, foreman Charles Dickey, of possible violence against his superiors.

City officials perceived the alleged threats as being aimed at employees and officials from the rank of DPS supervisor to the mayor's office, fueling fears among their family mem-"Mayor (Robert) Thomas is my son, my flesh and blood. I gave birth to him, and there will be nobody killing him if I can help it," Blanche Thomas said Monday, in front of some 125 people who packed the city council chambers.

"To me, that is scary, sickening," she said, referring to Sadley's alleged statements about postal shootings.

Supporters on both sides attended Monday's meeting, with the crowd spilling into the hallway outside of council chambers. Security was beefed up, with two uniformed police officers standing guard near the door.

Blanche Thomas told the council that postal officials didn't believe deadly violence - blamed on job stress - would occur during the last two years in Royal Oak and Dear-

Firefighters share training

Water power: Westland and Garden City firefighters manned a charged hose last week in the first in a series of joint practice sessions.

Departments get fired up together

By LEONARD POGER

Fire-watchers frequently see firefighters pull up to a building, unload hoses, attach them to a pumper and hydrant and put out the blaze.

But several times a year a fire department needs help and specialized equipment from a neighboring city in battling an unusually major fire.

When that happens, it's import ant that each department know the difference in equipment and communication styles of the other.

A few months ago, the Garden City department had to call on the Westland firefighters at an industrial building after experiencing a water pressure problem.

Not only did Westland help out by pumping water from a hydrant in its own community, a short distance from the fire, but also used its aerial equipment in battling the blaze from above ground level

To avoid potential problems at future joint fighting of fires, the two departments last week held the first of several planned joint training ses-

The purpose of the joint training is to acquaint firefighters from both cities with each other's equipment and let them get to know each other.

Fire Capt. Kenneth Hines of Garden City noted during the training that his department has five-inch inch hoses, requiring an adapter to connect the hoses.

Battalian Chief Mark Neal of Westland said, "There are a lot of differences in equipment and water

Neal said he thought about the joint training before the summer's industrial park fire but that prompted him to move ahead with

In Friday's joint training, firefighters practiced relaying water from one department's pumper to the others.

Future sessions will be held to make sure all shifts in both cities get the same exposure to each other's equipment.

Getting accustomed to each other's equipment isn't the only benefit for the departments.

Hines said he was especially pleased to have the Westland aerial on hand for the industrial building blaze. Garden City has few buildings taller than two stories high while Westland has many mediumand high-rise structures.

The initial training was held at the Radcliff Center/Schoolcraft College parking lot on Radcliff south of Ford, in Garden City and a short distance from the Westland bound-

Schools to seek tax hike; amount undecided

By Barbara Wilson Staff Writer

Wayne-Westland voters will be asked to go to the polls Oct. 18, but what the ballot proposal will be has yet to be decided.

The five members present at the Monday special meeting of the Wayne-Westland board of education approved the administration's recommendation that an election date be set for the proposed millage. The amount to be requested needs more discussion, they concluded.

Superintendent Larry Thomas asked that the board wait until all school board members are available to consider the amount to be sought from voters. Several board members are on vacation, but all are expected to be back on hand by their Aug. 23 meeting.

# 'I will not accept a miliage request of more than 6 mills. I also will not approve another miliage request this year.' Richard LeBlanc board secretary

In time for that meeting, board president Francis (Bud) Winter asked that a cross-section of the community be polled to determine how much of a tax rate increase voters may be willing to approve.

"I will not accept a millage request of more than 6 mills," said Board Secretary Richard LeBlanc. "I also will not approve another miliage request this year." (Voters rejected a 6 mill boost at an April 5 special elecion.)

LeBlanc went on to suggest that when a miliage request is set that the board clearly point out which programs would be restored in the district should voters approve the request.

Thomas said in a poll of board members, transportation, elementary libraries and textbooks topped the list of restorations should a millage proposal be approved.

Some board members have suggested that as much as 7.75 mills could be sought in an effort to restore as much of the district's program as possi-

"If I could go for 50 mills, I would go for 50 mills," said board vice presient Mathew McCusker.

If tax hike OK'd, pay freeze vote next

By Marie Chestney Staff Writer

Livonia school district teachers will be asked next month to approve a pay freeze for coaches and other extracurricular workers if residents approve a 1 mill property tax increase in the Aug. 30 special election, said Nancy Shaw, president of the Livonia Education Association.

"Our commitment to you is that, upon passage of the Aug. 30 millage, the LEA negotiating committee will ask the LEA members to determine, by a general membership vote, whether a Schedule B pay freeze at the 1992-93 level should be implemented for the 1993-94 school year," Shaw told the Livonia Board of Education Monday.

The district represents the northern section of Westland.

Most of the $3.2 million generated by the tax increase would fully restore for at least one year of high school and middle school sports and extracurricular activities, referred to in the labor contract as "Schedule B" activities.

The rest would restore the elementary art, music and physical education programs and six elementary reading teachers.

The district recently asked the LEA to seek concessions from the coaches and activity directors who will be paid with money generated by the one-mill tax increase.

If the millage passes, the 1,040member LEA will tentatively vote on the concessions at the beginning of September, Shaw said.

The LEA board of directors also unanimously backs the Aug. 30 millage, Shaw said.

"We find it very discouraging that it is necessary to ask a very supportive community for more funds that will still not restore the quality program that has been in place," Shaw said. "But the inability of our elected representatives in Lansing to do their job and adequately fund education has made this a reality.

"We commend the board for its commitment to a six-hour day, but are very discouraged at the class sizes being planned at all levels and the essential programs still not funded in the proposed budget."

The district has cut nearly $8.8 million from its 1993-94 budget.

Some school officials fear residents will not approve the 1 mill tax increase if concessions don't come from employees before the election.

Because teachers are now scattered for the summer vacation, Shaw said it is impossible to get enough teachers together to vote on concessions before the Aug. 30

In backing the special millage for sports, extra-curricular activities and elementary programs, Shaw said teachers can't "overlook the importance of developing physical as well as mental skills, the arts as well as academics."

"Although limited in scope, this additional millage would support programs that may not otherwise be available to our students," Shaw said. "This millage would keep in place a program that, once lost, could not be quickly rebuilt.

"Although restoring only a small portion of the $8 million in cuts in the curriculum, the mill would provide a little more for a large portion of our students.'

Workers foil store robbery

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

A knife-wielding would-be robber aborted his attempt to seize money at a Westland drugstore Sunday morning after some employees fled the building and others locked themselves in an office, police

The intruder apparently sneaked inside a back door that had been propped open while a male employee was taking out garbage from the Arbor Drugs on the northeast corner of Newburgh and Glenwood, police reports said.

The intruder flashed a pocket knife when the worker returned to the building, warning the employee that he wouldn't be hurt if he turned over money from the store, police said.

The incident occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Sunday while several employees were in the building.

The employee, instead of getting money, walked from the back room to the retail area of the store and warned other workers to leave the building. Some left the store while others locked themselves in an office, police reports said.

The male worker then walked down an aisle and out the front door of the drugstore, leaving the intruder waiting for money in the back room, police said Meanwhile, a female em. ployee arriving for work walked in the back door and encoun. tered the intruder. The intruder threatened at one point to shoot the female worker, although no gun was seen.

The intruder then left the scene. He was described as a 5foot-10 white male, in his 30s, with shoulder-length dark hair. He wore dark large-lense sunglasses and a red bandana to hide his face, a red T-shirt, faded blue jeans and boots, police reports said.

Groups scout around for ways to pay fees

By Marie Chestney Staff Writer

Local groups are now scrambling to figure out how to pay the new fees imposed on them by Livonia Public Schools for using school facilities.

The district includes the northern section of Westland.

The fees, ranging from $9 an hour for a classroom to $25 an hour for a gym, will be phased in for some groups over the next three years

For adult groups, which hold a two-hour meeting once a month in a school classroom, the answer might simply be passing the hat to collect the $18.

But for youth groups which don't meet right after school, such as Brownies and Girl Scouts, finding an answer won't be that easy. The district will waive the fee for scout groups which meet weekdays at schools from 4-6 p.m.

For example, Brownie Troop 1568 now meets from 5:45 to 7 p.m. Tuesdays at Johnson Elementary. The girls already pay $1 weekly for crafts. Paying the school-imposed fee could mean another $1 or $2 weekly for each of the 10 girls in the troop, said troop leader Terri Kwasniuk.

"They can't afford it," Kwasniuk said. "This is the wrong approach. They're taking away everything from our kids. This will be hurting us more than it's helping us."

Kwasniuk said she may search for meeting space in a church.

Many scout troops can't take advantage of the free 4-6 p.m. time slot because leaders don't get home from their jobs by that

Fees a trend

Of all the Wayne County troops she oversees, Livonia is the only district now charging scouts to use school buildings, said Jennifer Litomisky, field director for Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts. Besides Livonia, she oversees troops in Plymouth, Canton, Redford, Clarenceville, Northville, Westland, Garden City and Dearborn.

However, Litomisky said she sees the new fees as a trend that will eventually hit other financially struggling districts.

To deal with its budget crunch, Plymouth-Canton schools recently shut down its schools after 4 p.m. rather than make groups pay, Litomisky said.

Others suggested closing the schools but I pushed for this as an alternative to keeping them open," said Jack Kirksey, director of community services. "Shutting down at 4 p.m. should be the last alternative we consider. I have a strong belief that schools are a community resource.'

Charging groups to use buildings is one of many cost-saving tips proposed by the district's revenue enhancement advisory committee. The committee met to find ways to cut costs and save money during the district's financially troubled times.

Litomisky said Scout groups have three options: charge Scouts an extra $1 or so per meeting; meet in other locations; or meet from 4-6 p.m.

"We understand the district's difficulties," Litomisky said. But our needs are different. We don't need a field or a gym. We can go into someone's basement.

Credits given

Russell Thomas, president of the Livonia Jr. Football League, said the football team will get credit for $15,000 worth of improvements they made at Bentley's field. The team will keep track of the hours spent at the field, Thomas said. "That should get us through the better part of next year."

Two sports played through the junior athletic association, bas-ketball and baseball, will be exempted from the fees because they are co-sponsored by the city's parks and recreation department, Kirksey said.

"Neither parks and recreation nor the intermediate school district are going to be charged," Kirksey said. "The schools and parks have had a long-standing arrangement. The city doesn't charge us; and the schools don't charge them.'

Ron Reinke, parks and recreation director, said the system will revert to the way it used to be, with his department pulling permits for the use of school facil-

Many years ago, Thomas said, the city asked the football league to take over the two sports, basketball and baseball. "The city helps us with funds for equipment, umpires.'

Baseball teams will continue to use fields operated by parks and recreation, he said.

Jerry Stage, who spearheads placement and transfer for the Livonia Soccer Club, said soccer ees had recently been raised, from $85 to $95, to cover the new fees. Soccer coaches meet at Holmes.

The club might also receive credit for improvements and maintenance club members made to soccer fields, Stage said.

Another fee now being considered, a pay-to-park fee for high school students, has been put on the back burner pending outcome of the Aug. 30 special millage election, said Samuel LaMonica, chairman of the revenue enhance ment committee.

The district might charge high school students $50 per semester, or $5 for a temporary parking per-

On Aug. 30, residents will vote on a one-mill property tax increase to fund, among other things, sports and extra-curricular activities.

The district is reluctant to charge students to pay to park if the millage fails and they lose their sports and extra-curricular programs, LaMonica said.

School district sets up pay-to-play plan for fall

By BARBARA WILSON STAFF WRITER

It was a rocky start for the Wayne-Westland school district's pay-to-participate program, but it was a start

After debate and negotiation, school board members approved Monday night a program designed to restore athletics and extracurricular activities to the students of the district, effective with the new school year.

These programs will be reinstated at a cost, however.

Students in grades 9 through 12 who participate in athletics, marching band or cheerleading will pay $167. Those participating in secondary instrumental and vocal music will pay $25. Forensics, musicals, drama and newspaper participants will pay $15. Intramural athletes in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades will pay $10 for their activities.

The program was approved in a 4-1 vote Monday. Board members Leonard Posey and Vicki Welty were absent. Board secretary Richard LeBlanc voted no.

"I am uncomfortable with this proposal," LeBlanc said. "True pay-to-play would mean participants have to cover the cost of the activity.'

The program, as approved, would require the district to contribute $60,000 from the general fund should the money not be raised by the newly created Community Support for a Complete Education or through the passage of a millage.

LeBlanc said he was not comfortable with contributing even $60,000 to extracurricular activities when 8,500 elementary students are without a library, transportation has been cut and students will be required to share Several parents expressed concern that the decision has been put off too long and that it might be difficult to assemble a band and football team in time for the season to begin.

"I find it unacceptable that children have to find their own way to school, and yet they can be transported to an athletic program," LeBlanc said.

LeBlanc proposed that fees include all aspects of the program. all gate receipts go to the district and an endowment fund be established so that contributions could be made to the extracurricular program and payroll deductions would be possible. His suggestions were put aside in favor of the administration's recommen-

Parents and students in the audience Monday greeted approval of the pay-to-participate program with applause and even approached administrators afterward asking where to sign up their students.

Several parents expressed concern that the decision has been put off too long and that it might be difficult to assemble a band and football team in time for the season to begin.

"Something has to come through for these kids," said Judy Houghton, a teacher and parent in the district.

There was discussion among those present about suggested inequities in the proposed program especially with regard to the marching band.

Several band boosters, includ-

> Several minor changes were made to the proposal presented last week. School board members agreed to cover the cost of athletic directors at the high school because they also serve as assistant principals. Ninth graders will be able to participate in high school sports and marching band or the intramural program at the junior high level. It was concluded that all participants would be expected to make initial payment in full unless some hardship can be displayed and then a two-payement schedule would be arranged on an individual basis.

> The senior citizens and latchkey programs will also have to raise the funding necessary to retain their programs.

> Board president Francis (Bud) Winter conceded that no pay-toplay plan is completely fair and directed that if a team was assembled at one high school and the other school fell short of participants, neither school would field drawing applause from some onlookers.

Sadley's wife, Jennie, has denied that her husband threatened to kill his superiors. She fielded questions for him when contacted last week by the Observer.

The explosive controversy began on the afternoon of Friday, July 23, when Sadley told his boss, Dickey, that he was suffering from job stress and needed help.

Sadley has been employed by the city for two years; Dickey for 23. The mayor's office confirmed Tuesday that Sadley still has a job, but is on a two-week yacation that he requested.

Threat implied

Assistant city attorney Keith Madden said Monday that an investigation he conducted found that Sadley told his boss: "Unless I get help, there may be another post office incident."

DPS workers have blasted new work rules that they say won't let them stop for a pop, eat lunch or even use the bathroom while they are out on a job in a city vehicle.

"The department of public service is being run like a Georgia state prison," union representative Perry Waugh told the council Monday, speaking for some 115 DPS workers in Local 1602 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employ-

Both sides agree that Sadley's foreman, Dickey, took him to a Westland clinic that referred him to a psychiatric hospital in Taylor. Sadley spent three nights at Heritage Hospital before he was released July 26.

Jennie Sadley blamed Dickey for having her husband involuntarily placed in the hospital, but Madden said his investigation revealed that Heritage doctors made the decision — which is legal — to hold Sadley.

Dickey merely gave doctors a medical report from the Westland clinic, where Sadley had allegedly repeated his threats about workplace violence, Madden said.

Sadley initially had been ordered to Heritage Hospital by ambulance from the Westland clinic, but he asked Dickey to drive him and Dickey agreed, Madden said.

When Dickey was told by doctors that Sadley was being held at the hospital, Dickey asked that Sadley be allowed to make a telephone call to his family, Madden said. Jennie Sadley has said the Thomas administration also should have contacted her.

Admission blasted

"You took him to a hospital.

It's not his responsibility; it's yours," she said during Monday's meeting.

But Madden defended Dickey for arranging to have Sadley phone his wife.

"I don't know what more Mr. Dickey could have done to call you under the circumstances," Madden told Jennie Sadley.

The Sadleys have indicated they are consulting an attorney and may consider filing a lawsuit against the city for the way the incident was handled. Jennie Sadley said her husband didn't want to be hospitalized against his will when he asked his boss for help.

Dickey's wife, Marsha, said during Monday's council session that if her husband ever made threats like those attributed to Sadley, "I would hope to God" that he, too, would receive help.

"I'm very sorry for you and your family," Marsha Dickey said to Jennie Sadley, but added that Charles Dickey "is a very caring and considerate man."

The Sadleys have accused the Thomas administration of cracking down on DPS workers because they oppose his re-election efforts this fall. Ironically, Thomas was a longtime DPS worker before he was elected mayor in 1989.

Workers bullied?

Waugh, DPS union leader, accused the administration of "bullying" DPS workers for two years and trying "to turn public sentiment against the public employees."

Waugh labeled the new work rules "humiliating and demeaning" and said they violate the civil rights of DPS workers. He asked the city council Monday to halt the work rules.

The council didn't act on the request, and councilman Kenneth Mehl indicated the council won't override the administrative function of setting work rules.

City attorney Angelo Plakas also noted that the contract between DPS workers and the city allows for work rules.

Mayor Thomas has said the new rules were necessary because DPS workers were conducting personal business on city time.

Sharon Clark, wife of DPS director Carl Clark, told the council Monday, "It's amazing to me that a city this size hasn't had work rules in the past." Westland has about 85,000 residents.

shout so, own residents.

She commended most DPS workers, saying 90 percent do a good job while 10 percent cause problems for the entire department.

Neighbors, council slice up pizzeria plan

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

It would be called Your Pizza Shop, but Westland residents don't want it.

Several homeowners voiced opposition Monday night to the pizza restaurant that has been proposed in Hunter Plaza on the northeast corner of Warren and Venoy roads.

Neighbors said they had been promised years ago that a restaurant would not be built on the property owned by George Ansara. They have opposed a restaurant all along, and they now feel abandoned by some city officials who support the project.

"It tells us that whatever we say doesn't mean anything to the (officials) who are supposed to be for the people," resident Bea Solomon said during Monday's city council meeting.

The proposal calls for a new pizza business that company spokesman Clifford Laho described as a '50s-style family restaurant that offers pizza, sandwiches, an all-you-can-eat salad bar and other dishes. It also would offer carryout service.

But residents oppose the restaurant, saying the current property already isn't properly maintained and would only be worse with the addition of a food establishment. Some voiced concerns that rodents would be drawn to the site.

The city council deadlocked Monday night in a 3-3 vote on the project, meaning the proposal failed because it didn't win a majority vote. But the project is expected to be voted on again when president Charles Pickering, who was absent Monday, can cast the deciding vote.

Resident Carol Griffin was among those who said Dumpsters on the property already aren't properly maintained. Also, residents cited concerns about a dilapidated wooden fence that's supposed to shield the property from the adjacent residential neighborhood.

"The back of the (current) building is a mess," Councilman Glenn Anderson said Monday. "The fence is in bad shape."

Griffin also noted that three other pizza businesses are located nearby

"Why do we need another pizza place when we already have three?" she asked the council, adding later, "Would you like an-

An air bag saved the driver.

A blood bag saved the passenger.

Resident Carol Griffin was other one in your back yard?"

The council has asked the city administration to examine the property and see if steps should be taken to improve it. Council member Terri Reighard-Johnson labeled some of the problems "inexcusable."

But council members also noted that Laho's proposal for Your Pizza Shop shouldn't be penalized for Ansara's problems.

Supporting the project were Reighard-Johnson, Anderson and Councilman Kenneth Mehl, although they wanted improvements made on the site. Opposed were Thomas Brown, Sandra Cicirelli and Sharon Scott.

Engler seeks educational changes over more funding

Like a fellow who just won $5.6 billion in a school funding custody battle, Gov. John Engler is eagerly anticipating the birth of a new and improved public education system, but trying not to talk too much about how we'll pay for

"We're on the verge of some really exciting things happening," he said Monday to several reporters at the Southfield Radisson. "You're going to see tremendous change taking place.

The problem is that Engler, in concert with the state Legislature, just torpedoed $5.6 billion in property tax revenue for every Michigan school district, and must replace that money with new taxes.

Furthermore, it's almost essential to produce a plan, find a way to pay for it, then squeeze it through the Legislature before Dec. 31.

Tick, tick, tick

According to the state constitution, anything the Legislature passes and Engler signs before the end of 1993 will go into effect early next year. But new laws that get passed in 1994 can't go into effect until 1995 unless they pass by a super majority; something no one expects to get on the school funding issue.

School districts are permitted to collect property taxes through August 1994, so the 1993-94 school year is safe, but after that there's no money for them until Lansing wrings it out of us with

Asked what sort of new taxes he recommends, Engler changed the subject to what form the new education system will take. Build the system, then find a way to pay for it, he said.

"Isn't the real concern to get the best return on our investment? If we just keep the focus on the kids we're doing the right thing.

When pressed, Engler said that voters will "likely" be asked to approve a sales tax increase, but he doesn't believe we need to replace school funding on a dollar-for-dollar basis. With the state holding the purse, he said, the cost of education will drop. As an example, Engler said the state could get a better deal on health insurance for school employees than each district can get for itself.

No way, Jose

State Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, said Engler is wrong. The additional cost to the state of administering everything will outweigh any savings, she said. "To me it's just more bureaucracy.'

Regarding the system he hopes to create, Engler said it's a virtual guarantee that parents will be permitted to enroll their kids in any public school district they want to. Whatever amount of money Lansing decides to spend per student would follow each kid around to whatever school he or she attends.

'The school has no right to hold onto that kid and keep him a captive," Engler said.

But Barns and state Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, don't think the House will go along with that. Berman called Engler's assumption "extraordinarily presumptuous," and noted that a similar Engler idea has already been defeated in the House.

"No one here (in Lansing) has talked about schools of choice being a sure thing," Berman said.

Barns contended that Engler's tem" where only well-to-do folks could afford to send their offspring to schools outside the district they occupy.

Guns & monkeys

Barns and Berman also object to the time limit Lansing has set, without their votes, to create a new school system.

Barns characterized the deadline as "a gun to our head," and Berman called it a "monkey on Engler's main interest is in seeing that competition for students between school districts will compel districts that lose students to improve the quality of the education they offer. School districts will have an incentive to enroll as many students as possible, he said, because more money would come from the state with each

The Minnesota school system is like that, Engler said, and 'makes a hell of a lot of sense." Berman said the Minnesota system is failing

Engler also believes that some Michigan school districts would be better off to merge with adjacent districts. "We could try to marry them off to each other," he said, "force them to merge."

Power & authority

Engler likewise hopes to give greater autonomy to school districts. "My attitude is going to be to keep the mandates to an absolute minimum," he said. "(School boards) end up with the all-important role, more power and authority than they have today.'

Other ideas Engler tossed out included:

permitting students who complete graduation requirements in the 11th grade to spend their 12th-grade funding on college.

creating special schools for juvenile delinquents not unlike boot camps where strict discipline would be enforced.

■ replace school district athletics with "club teams" that would represent schools, but not technically be part of the schools.

County budget is balanced, for now

and RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITERS

Kay Beard, vice chairwoman of the Wayne County Commission, said "the ball's in the their court now" after the commission unanimeusly approved an agreement to close an $11.75 million deficit in the county budget.

The county has a general fund budget of $350 million.

Beard, D-Westland, was referring to the Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara, who has 10 days to veto the plan. If he does nothing, the agreement sticks.

Budgets for mental health, nutrition, emergency shelter support, probate court and the country clerk will be reduced under the agreement along with the county jail overtime.

No cuts were made in the executive department's budget while the county commission trimmed $200,000 from its almost $7 million budget.

The absence of cuts in the executive budget is a sore point with Beard, who said that jail overtime public safety issue that puts the county at risk legally. The county clerk's office is a revenue producer and a county service that touches most residents, she

Although he voted for the compromise plan, Wayne County Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, said he wanted to see cuts in the executive's office and more cuts from the commission budget. Amann said, however, that it was time to settle the budget issue because "rhetoric was overtaking reason.'

Beard said she's become "increasingly disenchanted with the executive's office and what she termed its desire to "want to control everything.

Beard said it was hard to make budget decisions without the most current figures, which must come from the county executive's

Some commissioners say that more budget cuts are inevitable because the McNamara Administration overestimated revenue and underestimated expenses.

'To be fair to them, it's hard to estimate revenue because the assessment freeze last vear hurt us." said Beard, whose district includes Garden City and Inkster.

The actual deficit might be bigger or smaller than $11.75 million, but no one will know until spending figures from March, April and May are ready. Some say that McNamara's people have them but are keeping them from the commission.

Later this year the budget battles are likely to gain in intensity because everyone says there won't be as much money to go around as in years past.

Amann, who also represents Canton, agreed. "This little revenue reduction (of $11.75 million) is one of more (to come)," he predicted.

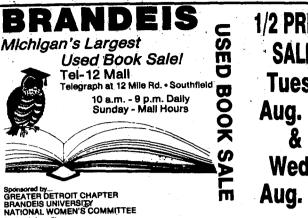

The budget controversy recently reached a boiling point when McNamara submitted budget cuts to the commission and it disregarded McNamara's plan and passed one of its own.

McNamara passed out layoff notices to county employees, including 66 commission staffers, but not one to his own staff. He then vetoed the commission's budget cut plan.

The commission voted to cancel layoff notices and negotiations began on a compromise.

We're very pleased to announce the opening of our newest Saturn showroom. And we'd like to invite you in for a visit — to show you some of the ways we're trying to change the automobile business. It's in the way we design our cars. And how we build them. And most of all, how very differently we take care of our customers more like how you'd treat a new neighbor. (Which we are, we guess.)

GOP wants cost cuts, Dems seek revenue

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Cutting all school operating property taxes was the easy part. Now Michigan legislators are scrambling to replace the revenue or cut costs.

Democrats are deeply divided. House cospeaker Curtis Hertel of Detroit tapped Rep. William Keith of Garden City to head a Democratic task force on school funding and quality. "There is no question that the lost $6.3 billion must be replaced," said Hertel.

Hertel, Keith and panel member Mexine Berman of Southfield all voted against the July 21 bill that eliminated two thirds of all public school revenue and 65 percent of all property taxes. Democrats hit a home run for the people," countered Senate minorty leader Art Miller of Warrem. He noted that Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Debbie Stabehow of Lansing sponsored the taxelimination amendment to a Redublican bill that would have pared school taxes slightly. That measure, Senate Bill 1. won 33 to 4 Senate approval with bipartisan support and 69 to 33 House approval with Democrats providing most of the opposition.

GOP hits costs

Republicans appear closer to unity and are emphasizing cost cuts before new taxes.

Democrats in Lansing, led by Sen. Debbie Stabenow, are asking the wrong question first," said Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus of Alto. "Their first instinct was to propose enormous new tax increases before any serious discussions have taken place on educational quality or cost containment.'

Added House co-speaker Paul Hillegonds of Holland: "We will focus on programs that have worked successfully in many school districts . . Obviously, revenues will be part of the mix."

Meanwhile, two Oakland County GOP senators vowed to defend the revenues of their schools, which get little state aid and have been dependent largely on local property taxes.

'I'm concerned about reimbursement to local schools in Oakland County," said Sen. Mi-chael Bouchard of Birmingham.

Added Sen. Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion: "I will remain vigilant to make sure that Oakland County does not unfairly shoulder the financial burden that this cut will necessitate.

Jondahl's warning

Rep. Lyn Jondahl of Okemos, the House Democrats' chief tax man, was playing the role of prophet after fighting the tax bill. Jondahl's point: The Legislature can't raise the full $6 billion

"I am disappointed that some to replace lost property taxes.

Reason: The 1978 Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution. It limits total state taxation to the ratio between taxes and personal income that existed

Bottom line: Only about $4 billion in lost local taxes can be replaced by the state. Possible solution: Give local districts back part of their property taxing power.

Jondahl said the House never should have passed SB 1 the day after the Senate did but should have "put this bill into conference, give calmer heads a chance to prevail.'

Jondahl, like Stabenow, is a declared candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination.

The tax cut is scheduled to take effect in July of 1994.

Kelley sought

Democrats want Attorney General Frank Kelley to rule on the impact of SB 1 on local school millage elections scheduled before the law was enacted but with wordings that may violate the SB 1 says schools may no longer lump renewal and new revenue requests into a single proposal. Asked co-speaker Hertel: "If the electors of a school district approve a millage rate which includes both a renewal and an increase presented as one question, is that approval valid and may the school district levy the approved millage?"

Gov. John Engler, a Republican, already had his answer: No. His state treasurer, Doug Roberts, said Engler will sign SB 1 into law Aug. 19.

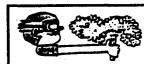

Roberts said millage elections scheduled after that date, and which have combined renewals and increases, should be rescheduled or their ballot language should be changed.

What they said

Here is how various interest groups reacted to the Legislature's enactment of SB 1:

Michigan Association of School Boards executive director Justin King: "a knee-jerk reaction . . . If the Legislature wants to give school boards some control over the costs of education, they will put some teeth in the collective bargaining act covering school employees and repeal the Tenure Michigan Education Association president Julius Maddox: "Russian roulette . . must be replacement dollars for any property tax reduction . . . When and if revenues are replaced, the state will determine how those dollars are doled out . . . eliminates local control.

Area cyclists can still register for Make-A-Wish bike tour

asts have signed up for the 300mile, three-day sixth annual Wish-A-Mile (WAM) 300 Bicycle Tour Aug. 13-15, but there's room for more.

Cyclers from Canton, Livonia and Plymouth are among those signed up for the tour which is a fund-raiser for Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan, a charity that fulfills wishes of children ages 3 to 17 who suffer from lifethreatening illnesses.

The three-day tour of Michigan's Lower Peninsula begins Aug. 13 at St. Ignace, north of the Mackinac Bridge and winds its way through Mackinaw City, Gaylord, Roscommon, Midland and Whitmore Lake and ends from 1-outh's Kellogg Park.

The event, "Make-A-Wish

Foundation of Michigan and MIDA Dental Plans Present: WAM 300 1993 Bicycle Tour" seeks 200 riders to raise $177,000 in pledges. MIDA Dental Plans Inc. of Southfield is the official Riders with the highest amount in pledges will vie for prizes ranging from trips for two to Jamaica, St. Thomas and Orlando to a television set and VCR.

Riders will register in Plymouth Aug. 12 and travel by bus for the start north of the Mackinac Bridge. Registration fee is $3. Each rider must raise a minimum

Local riders include: Mark Bartlett, Charles Judy, Arthur

Nolan, Frank Szalma, Robert Polzin and Bernie Polzin all of Can-Katz and Gary Plank.

Highlights of ceremonies that honor bicyclists who ride 300 miles to raise funds for Make-A-Wish include appearances by Fox TV star Gabrielle Carteris, clowns and face painters and performances by the Birmingham/ Bloomfield Symphony Trio, the Canton Seniors Kitchen Band, Neil Woodward bluegrass band and the Derrik Snyder string ton Township. Plymouth area cyclers include Fred Poskie and Eric Joseph. Livonians signed up for the tour include Brendan Dillon, Jim Hill, Al Peterson, Steven Hot temperatures in July drove Consumers Power Co. to its highest electric sendout record for any month in the utility's 107-year history.

Electric sendout for July was 3.1 million megawatt-hours, a 1.5-percent increase over the former all-time monthly electric sendout record set five years ago. The new monthly record is also 2.6 percent higher than the former record for July, established in 1991.

Temperatures during July averaged 72.1 degrees Fahrenheit, compared to a 30year normal average temperature for the month of 70.8 degrees. Record monthly electric sendout records have been established in 1993 for January. February, March, April and demand record for the month of 5,879 megawatts was set on July 9. The utility's all-time hourly peak demand record for any month is 6,084 megawatts, set Aug. 29, 1991. Consumers Power Company, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corp., is Michigan's largest natural gas and electric utility serving almost 6 million of the state's 9 million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

Knight proposes wedding

Planning for an unusual proposal started in April when Westland's Greg Culver started his search for a horse to ride. As he carefully planned for the next few months, he managed to keep the proposal a secret.

It was a fairy tale and dream that Westland's Diane Szmutko had dreamed about as a young girl.

Her dream came true on a recent Saturday when her fiance, Westland's Greg Culver, rode up to her astride a beautiful golden horse, wearing a suit of armor and "It was like something you always dream about as a child," said Szmutko, 43. "I can definitely say he's my knight in shining armor.

Planning for the unusual proposal started in April when Culver, 38, started his search for a horse to ride when he proposed. As he carefully planned for the next few months, he managed to keep the proposal a secret from Szmutko.

He got her to the right place at the right time under the ruse that the two were going to a birthday party at Culver's parents on a Saturday in mid-July. Many of the groom-to-be's relatives were there to celebrate as were his daughter and son from a previous marriage and Szmutko's three daughters from a prior marriage.

She was speechless when Culver rode up to her at the birthday party.

School values are distorted

he Wayne-Westland Board of Education still doesn't have its financial head screwed on right.

If they did, they would be listening to board member Richard LeBlanc who provided a needed, but rare, insight into the twisted policy values of several colleagues and residents who want extracurricular programs at all costs.

LeBlanc's comments came during Monday's school board meeting at which he opposed a pay-to-play fee schedule for athletes, musicians, cheerleaders and others. He cast the only dissenting vote on the 4-1 decision with two board members absent.

Under the plan, to start next month, students in grades 9 through 12 who participate in athletics, marching band or cheerleading will pay $167. Those participating in secondary instrumental and vocal music will pay $25. Forensics, music, drama and newspaper participants will pay $15 and intramural athletes in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades will pay $10 for their

LeBlanc may have been guilty of political understatement when he commented that he is "uncomfortable with this proposal. True payto-play would mean participants have to cover the cost of the activity."

What makes him "uncomfortable" is that the district would have to cough up $60,000 from the general fund if a newly formed parents' group, Community Support for a Complete Education, doesn't raise enough bucks from upcoming benefits.

What was uncomfortable for LeBlanc is what's making many local residents mad.

LeBlanc questions providing $60,000 for extracurricular activities while 8,500 elementary students are without a library, transportation

■ The Wayne-Westland school board appears to be placing a higher priority on sports and after-school programs than the basics, such as elementary school libraries and secondary transportation.

has been cut and students will be required to share textbooks during the upcoming school

"I find it unacceptable that children have to find their own way to school, and yet they can be transported to an athletic program," Le-Blanc said.

The Observer over the years has traditionally supported extracurricular programs, but not at any cost. Certainly, some programs are more expensive than others. But life isn't fair and not everything is equal.

If the post-election comments from residents are any indication, the community wants more academic results for its local school property taxes, not more athletic programs.

The big problem is that the school board may find out the hard way when it presents a yet-tobe-determined millage proposal to the voters at an Oct. 18 special election.

While parents of students in the after-school programs make the most noise at school board meetings, the residents who don't have kids in school make up the majority of eligible voters.

LeBlanc hasn't forgotten that in considering how to spend public tax dollars and hopefully getting wide-spread community support at the upcoming millage vote. Maybe his colleagues on the board will see the same light.

Repel gypsy moth invasion

lthough we don't usually condone killing, we make an exception in the case of the gypsy moth and highly recommend that communities spray their trees to repel the inva-

Brought to this country in 1869, the gypsy moth has since spread like butter on bread from New England to the Carolinas, west to Ohio and up into Michigan, defoliating trees all along the way.

And we were worried about "This is not going to go away," said Rochester Hills parks and rec director Mike Hartner. "We know they're in every section of our communities.'

Last year the gypsy moth defoliated 700,000 acres of forest in the northern lower peninsula. However, healthy trees can survive one or two defoliations, and the caterpillar population will ultimately crash thanks to a naturally occurring virus that kicks in when the gypsies are legion. For this reason the moth is left to its own devices in sparsely populated state forests

The problem is that the gypsy moth has marched into metro Detroit, where folks get real upset when healthy trees are stripped of greenery and caterpillar feces fall like rain from the bare branches.

Franklin Village and Bloomfield Township have already been sprayed from the air this year to kill the intruders. Rochester Hills and Troy might be next. A recent reconnaissance in Rochester Hills turned up a "low" infestation of about 250 egg masses per acre. Caterpillars have also infiltrated West Bloomfield Township, Livonia, Beverly Hills, Plymouth and Birmingham, among others.

The naturally occurring bacterium that moth sprayers use to kill the gypsies, bacillus thuringiensis, or Bt, has so far proven to be harmless to everything but other caterpillars, many of which are not feeding when the tr sprayed.

Although spraying can be expensive (Bloomfield Township paid more than $100,000), the alternative is permitting the gypsy population to grow until the virus kills 95 percent of them. But by then the trees have been ravaged, and irate residents are dragging rusty cans of DDT out of their basements to destroy who knows what else along with the moths.

Even Farmington Hills naturalist Joe Derek. who tends to oppose spraying, says, "If a hundred million caterpillars came here and ate everything in sight I'd be upset, too.'

So we come down foursquare in favor of urban trees and can only cheer the mass destruction of their enemy through the miracle of aerial

How much crime pays

he person who originated the phrase 'Crime does not pay" never imagined the likes of Charles Keating, Jr.

Having been found gulty of looting Lincoln Savings and Loan and defrauding investors out of more than $280 million, Keating was recently sentenced to just 121/2 years in prison and ordered to pay $122.4 million in restitution. Even the sentencing judge conceded that "restitution is very, very remote.

Deducting the $122.4 million (IF paid) from the $280 million leaves a difference of $157.6 million left for Mr. Keating. If we spread the $157.6 million over the 121/2 years we find "earnings" of $12,608,000 per year or about $1 million each month.

Had he used a gun to steal this $280 million, he would have received an additional two years in prison. Is justice blind, or what?

Reader backs millage

a Livonia resident for the past 23 years, I am somewhat dismayed at the recent wave of apathy directed toward the Livonia Public Schools and the Aug. 30 millage election.

Our current rate, just over 32 mills, ranks 77th out of 83 districts in the tri-county area and our immediate neighbors to the south (Wayne-Westland) currently levy more than 54

Our district has only asked voters for financial assistance once in the last eight years and the current one mill request contains a three vear guarantee for high school athletics and extra-curricular activities, middle school sports, elementary art, music and physical education, and building learning specialists. It is not a 'sports tax" as it is being labeled by some members of the community.

The educators in this district are among the most dedicated and hard working individuals in the profession. However, instead of working together with district representatives toward a common goal of community enhancement, we are critical of their motives and adversely judgmental of their actions.

Truth be told, our community is one of the most affordable and desirable places to live in the state of Michigan. Better yet, count the number of "For Sale" signs that go up in your neighborhood if the millage is defeated on Aug.

Please vote yes on Aug. 30 for the entire Livo nia community. The cost of education is minimal compared to the cost of ignorance.

Religious right attacks public education guarantee

he letter writer, a senior citizen, expressed the question many readers have posed:

"Dear Tim: I want you to know that I always read your stuff . . . Keep up the good work. Your attitude about the religious right puzzles me. Why does their belief trouble you? Why should we pray, as you suggest, that the finding of a gene relating to Huntington's disease. will be enough to shake the R.R. out of badmouthing Darwin, etc? . . . Let them believe what they want to."

The "religious right," as the media are now calling it, isn't a single group or church. It's a movement. According to a public TV documentary, it dates back to the 1790s.

It holds that what we know as the Bible is literally true, even in its primitive notions of astronomy, chemistry and geology. The approach is called 'fundamentalist.

The religious right took a terrible public relations beating in 1925 with the Tennessee trial of John Scopes for teaching evolution. According to its chroniclers, it retreated to an American subculture and was little heard from until the late 1970s

They claim about 20 percent of American adults as members. Watch Pat Robertson on the "700 Club," and you'll hear him purport to speak for Judeo-Christian ideals. Actually, the religious right has almost no Jewish support and small numbers of Catholic adherents, though it joins with some other Christians on the abortion question. Essentially, it's a narrow white Protestant movement.

Their beliefs are their business. So what do I find objectionable about the religious right's political behavior?

First, it has advocated the teaching of "scientific creationism," a contradiction of terms, in public schools on an equal footing with standard science.

TIM RICHARD

There was a flap over this in the Michigan Legislature in the early 1980s. When a group seeks to have its religious view passed off as science, then mainstream Americans need to be

Second, it advocates a voucher system for financing schools. They want tax money to teach their brand of religion and, presumably, their brand of "science." Currently the Michigan

Constitution, with 80 percent voter support, prohibits a voucher system.

Third, it attacks all state school curriculum legislation (except sexual abstinence), all state regulation of private schooling and the existence of the State Board of Education.

We Michiganians are proud of the fact that ours was the first state in the union to guarantee free public education as a constitutional right. We established a superintendent of public instruction in 1837 and a State Board of Education in 1909 to lead and supervise education. The Michigan Constitution contains broad protections for religion. That constitution and those institutions are under vehement political attack by one narrow group.

Fourth, the religious right is exploiting children and setting up principals in Michigan and across the nation to do what it failed to do politically reintroduce its brand of prayer and Bible reading in public schools. Recall the Bloomingdale court fight over the portrait of Jesus. Note the efforts at graduation time to prompt kids to insert prayers into ceremonies

There is no "live and let live" with the religious right. As we've seen from its savage attack on the Michigan Model, its tactic is to assert that a satanic "New Age" religion is being taught in the public schools and needs to be displaced.

This is not a humble sect wishing to be left alone to worship peacefully in its own way. The religious right seeks governmental power: control of the science curriculum, use of tax money for its religious agenda and the scrapping of Michigan's historic commitment to public education.

That's just for starters.

Trail ride by bike finds untamed territories

ust as Bo knows baseball, I know Oakland County. Or, maybe like the other Bo, I

However, last Friday's 47-mile bike trip to benefit the Rails-to-Trails Conservancy that began at Walled Lake

Western High School and ended in a Rochester park was mostly untred territory for me.

Certainly, untred on a bike. I never guessed there were so many unpaved roads in Oakland County.

Or fields of purple wild flowers. Not the deep purple, stawky loosestrife, which my West Bloomfield community has the corner on, but pale, soft lavender which I later found out is probably spotted knapweed or spotted star this-

I never guessed there were so many stretches of forest.

Or so much water — not just the lakes I am used to, but picturesque steams, ravines, creeks and ponds.

And, as a newspaper person, I couldn't help but notice as we rode through the rural neighborhoods of White Lake Township, Clarkston and Lake Orion, the stark absence of the yellow delivery boxes of the Free Press and red boxes of the News. In my mind, this bears witness to these residents' distance, psychologically and physically, not only from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area (no bright blue boxes either), but from metro De-

It's Oakland County's Upper Peninsula.

Although we had a handy "Trip-tik" of maps put out by rails-to-trails. it didn't spell out what community we were in. As one winding, hilly dirt road turned into another, we had to guess from the names of the roads, the occasional sign we saw that denoted we were "Entering Wixom" or by calling out to the very occasional homeowner or horseback rider whom we saw.

It was a little worrisome riding (sometimes walking) through the Bald Mountain Recreation Area to read warning signs of a firing range. Or on the Paint Creek Trail on our homestretch, to glimpse signs that said not to venture off the trail since an archery range was nearby.

This is country. And I could see the headline - Cyclist maimed by arrow.

When I signed up for the ride sometime in early spring, I thought it was going to take in more of our Observer & Eccentric communities — including the newest link in the rails-to-trails network through West Bloomfield.

But getting to and from that is too congested for safe riding when you're talking big numbers of people, according to Rah Trost, rails-to-trails program manager.

So, the Paint Creek Trail from Lake Orion to Rochester was the only piece of the network on which we rode.

The first rails-to-trails conversion in Michigan, it is an incredible stretch of 12 miles of native flora and fauna which encompasses cedar swamps, bogs and a steady dose of scenic vistas. It also connects six different parks and

But watch out. Only pedal in tandem, we quickly learned, because sprint cyclists use it, too.

About 150-175 local cyclists joined the 600 who had made a six-day trip across Michigan for the Oakland County leg. Many came from our communities. They included my riding companions, Marcia Mumbrue and her son, Brad, and Judy Engelbaum, all from West Bloomfield; Greg and Ann Mickens of Troy, Nancy Mannaioni of Rochester Hills; Scott Carroll of Canton; Catherine and Gail Hodge and Mike Mangold, all from Garden City; and Paulette Conn of Farmington Hills.

Wonder if we make this trip again, say 10 years from now, if those backroads will be paved; the fields of wildflowers shorn by development; the horses moved north?

Think about it.

Outrageous abortion limits show government as unfair

Getting ready: Dea and Gerry DeLong of Royal Oak prepare for the 47-mile bike ride, which began in Walled Lake.

BY ELSA M. SHARTSIS GUEST COLUMNIST

ichigan just became one of several states that require an adult, competent woman seeking an abortion to make at least two trips to a health care facility. read state-mandated propaganda, to view drawings of the fetus at its supposed gestational age. and endure a delay of at least 24 hours, ostensibly "to reflect on her decision."

I am thoroughly outraged by this law, and find it difficult to write coherently about it. Having long believed that the abortion controversy is the most profound privacy issue of modern times, and that it is not "just a women's issue," I am aghast at this latest government interference in personal decision-making. That our state Legislatue can so cavalierly mandate a woman's exercise of her fundamental right to an abortion is cilling indeed.

I sometimes wonder about the abortion patient. Does she decide, unilaterally, to have an abortion? In my experience, she does not. Staff at abortion facilities tell us that the typical abortion patient is accompanied by a friend (male or female), her husband, her mother or other confidante. Virtually all abortion facilities provide counseling, as prudence, ethics and professional standards demand.

And no facility would knowingly accept a mentally incompetent woman as a patient. Ob viously, then, the typical abortion patient has already thought about her condition and reached an informed decision based on her personal, private situation. To quote Carol King, executive director of the Michigan Abortin Rights Action League, "It is a myth that women do not understand what abortions are, or that they wander into clinics without having given their decision a great deal of thought." Well said.

Adults enjoy a legal presumption of mental competence. This presumption shields them from state interference in virtually all important life decisions. Society trusts competent decision-makers to make reasoned choices and to accept the consequences of their choices. One hopes, and common sense suggests, that such decisions are made prudently and on the basis of all available facts. Yet state-mandated indoctrination, prescribed reading material and an enforced waiting period are unknown except as to abortion.

Ordinary people make important decisions every day, sometimes life or death decisions. They marry, move, buy property, drive, enter vocations, become parents, raise children, get divorced, invest savings, care for infirm rela-

They make definitive decisions for themselves and often for others - their parents, their children — such as declining therapy for a terminal condition, or terminating life support. The law permits, even encourages this.

Similarly, one may marry with a minimum of state involvement . . . Even if a marriage license reveals that an applicant has already been married and divorced many times before. no county clerk remarks (as did Samuel Johnson) that the contemplated marriage is but a triumph of hope over experience. No county clerk sends the applicants home to reflect on their decision or to consult friends or family.

American law and society, then, trust competent decision-makers. Michigan's new informed consent law is a glaring exception to this tradition of trust. It is insulting and demeaning, and ought to alarm everyone.

If the state can obstruct the exercise of a fundamental right - a woman's access to a simple medical procedure - can it next tell us whom to marry? Where to live? Which profession to enter? Which not to enter? When and whether to have children? With whom?

Nature programs are lots of fun when kids take part

Anytime you work with the public and children, anything can happen. Naturalists presenting programs to school groups and families like to get the audience involved. One way to do that is to ask questions and have an individual respond with an answer. Sometimes just being in a situation can precipitate some unusual responses.

The following are a couple of personal experiences I thought you might find interesting. Any resemblence to anything you have personally done is purely coinci-

During one summer outreach program, I was a a day camp with a seasonal naturalist. There was a group of about 20 students sitting on the ground as we presented material on animal adaptations. We were showing the students a mounted, or stuffed, great horned owl while discussing the adaptations of this animal.

The students responded quickly to our question and came up with the large eyes of the owl, the ability to turn its head and the long claws. When we asked for another name for the long claws, one students raised his hand with a gasp, indicating that he knew the answer and wanted to share it. So professionally corrected him and said they were called talons.

Children are not the only peo-ple who add levity to working with the public. One evening I was presenting a program on bats. So as I began the program, I had a red bat, a big brown bat and little brown bat in my hand - baseball mammal type — flying through the sky in the glow of the setting sun. Bats are a popular topic and certainly conger up some preconceived ideas that often are incorrect. As the sun began to set I continued to talk about bats and what they eat, how many there

Mariners sign Rocket pitcher

Seattle Mariners scout Ken Madeja has an eye for talent and Westland John Glenn's Aaron Scheffer is the latest to join his club.

Scheffer, Glenn's all-time leader in career pitching wins (20), signed a 1994 free agent professional contract Monday with the American League club. The lanky right-hander will report to the Mariners' spring training facility next March in Peoria, Ariz.

When he was working for the Tigers, Madeja signed John Smoltz, now an All-Star pitcher with the Atlanta Braves, and Chris Hoiles, a starting catcher with the Baltimore

Based in Novi, Madeja, is an area supervisor with Mariners.

Seattle's minor league system.
"We like the projection Aaron gives us," Madeja said. "He's not only 6 feet. 2 inches, but has arm strength and he knows how to pitch.

Right now he only weighs 165 pounds, so he's got to get stronger."
Scheffer helped lead Glenn to two consecutive state Class A semifinal appearances. The Rockets finished 27-5 overall this season. As a senior, Scheffer finished with an 8-2 record with a 1.29 earned run average. He struck out 79 and walked only 14 in 73 innings. Scheffer also hit .492.

He is currently pitching for the Trenton Travelers in the American Amateur Baseball Congress Connie Mack-age (16-18 year-olds) regional this week in Battle Creek. Scheffer took an 8-1 summer mark into Wednesday's opener.

"The decision was left up to me, though it was a pretty good offer," said Scheffer, who reportedly signed for a $4,500 bonus (with additional money going toward schooling). "But it was a tough decision. Some people told me to wait so other teams could see me play in Battle Creek."

Scheffer comes from an athletic family.

Both his brothers were standout football and baseball players at Glenn.

Chris, who played nose guard at Central Michigan University, is finishing up his degree work in criminal justice. Another brother, Lawrence, is a starting outfielder who hit over .300 last spring with the University of De-

"I'm going to have to lift weights, get bigger and stronger so I'll be ready when I report," Scheffer said.

Madeja said Scheffer's best days could be ahead of him.

"He's got good arm action and knows how to pitch, he's poised and composed out there on the mound," Madeja said. "He has a decent breaking ball, but he'll need to work on a change up. We'll have to wait on the fastball. It's going to take two to three years to get to that point, but he's not that far away.

The Redford Catholic Central High junior went 3-for-5 to lead the winners, who began AABC regional play Wednesday in Coldwater against Janssen Refrigeration of Sterling Heights. (Brian Berryman, a draftee from Redford, was the scheduled starting pitcher for Westland against the Bob Bird Invitational champs).

Marcus Williams (Detroit Henry Ford) and Nick James (Westland John Glenn) each contributed two hits for the winners.

Jason Copeland, who pitched the final two innings in relief of starter Brandon Robinette, earned the victory.

Farmington-West Bloomfield I advanced to the AABC regional tournament in Battle Creek this week

NFWB earned the trip and extended its season by winning the AABC district tournament at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti with a 5-0 record.

The title-clinching contest was a 15-4, mercy-rule victory Sunday night over the Detroit Hornets.

NFWB batters produced 14 hits, including three apiece by Mark Rutherford (Livonia Churchill) and Brian Kalczynski who had five and three RBI, respectively.

Mike Jehle contributed a tworun double and John Heller a two-run single. Marcus Sarnovsky (Churchill/Eastern Michigan) and Jeff Ross added two hits and one RBI each.

Andy Kummer (Redford CC), a draft choice from NFWB II who closed out a 9-7 victory over Jackson Wendy's earlier Sunday, was the winning pitcher.

Travelers split pair

Despite a three-run homer by pitcher Lynn Little and a solo homer from Sarah Camp, the Westland Travelers fell to Chelsea in an 18-and-under Ann Arbor Recreation League fast-pitch Monday game at Veterans Park, 7-4.

The loss drops the Travelers, made up of players from Livonia Franklin and Westland John Glenn highs, to 4-6 overall.

Little's homer, coming in the fourth, scored Beth McPherson and Camp after both had singled.

Little worked six innings, allowing five hits and four earned runs. She took the loss as the Travelers made five errors.

On Friday, the Travelers outslugged Manchester, 13-10, in a game at Veterans Park as McPherson collected three hits and two RBI.

Little added a two-run homer, while Ann Bagazinski, Amanda Samkowiak and Jaime Sulek each added two hits. Samkowiak knocked in three runs.

Little, the losing pitcher, gave up nine hits in five innings (time limit). She struck out eight.

Grant stops Lally in 4th

Westland's Brett Lally lost a North American Boxing Federation middleweight title fight Tuesday night at the Riviera in Las Vegas, suffering a fourthround TKO against reigning champion Otis Grant.

The fight was stopped at 1:28 of the fourth round when Lally staggered against the ropes after a series of combination punches from Grant, the Canadian middleweight champion. After watching the punishment administered by Grant, Lally's brother and trainer Bradd Lally came from his corner and threw his arms around Brett, prompting the referee to stop the fight.

Concealed rolls, eyes Battle Creek

Lou Pirronello made good on his promise to shave his mustache after his Concealed Security 18-and-under team won the American Amateur Baseball Congress district tournament last weekend in Flint.

And now the Concealed manager may have to join the Hair Club of America if his team gets through this week's AABC regional at Bailey Park in Battle Creek (opening Wednesday against the Grand Rapids Royals).

"We had a team meeting Monday night and the kids reminded me that if we win the regional, I'll have to shave my head, too," Pirronello said.

But before Pirronello books airline tickets to Farmington, N.M., for the AABC Connie Mack-age group World Series, Concealed must win seven straight games against the top regional qualifiers from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri.

Concealed took a step in the right direction Sunday by defeating Mount Clemens in the district finals at Broome Stadium, 11-4.

Winning pitcher Brian Paluk, a pick-up from Westland Federation, threw a complete game.

In seven innings, the Saginaw Valley State-bound right-hander scattered nine hits and five walks. A Redford Catholic High School product who was drafted earlier this summer by the Kansas City Royals, Paluk struck out five.

'He came up big," Pirronello said. "He got us to the dance." Offensively, Concealed out-hit

Mount Clemens, 12-9. Brett Walter, formerly of CC. went 3-for-4, including a threerun triple to give Concealed a commanding 10-0 lead in the sixth inning.

Eric Marcotte (Plymouth Canton), J.R. Taylor and John Raasch (CC) also added two hits Marcotte's two-run single in the fourth gave Concealed a 4-0 advantage. Westland John Dan Pydyn and Adam Woods pitched three innings each against Wendy's. Pydyn allowed five runs in the third inning but left with a 6-5 lead as home-team NFWB scored three runs in each of the first three innings.

Kummer entered in the seventh with no outs and the bases loaded. He retired the first three Tonight's Metro Summer Hockey League championship game matches a team that expected to be there against one that's surprised to be there.

The Bulldogs, who won the Bakes Conference regular season crown, will meet the Wolverines, who placed last in the Eagle Conference regular season race. Game time is 8 p.m. at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

There is a $1 donation taken at the door to benefit the Neil Carnes Scholarship Fund.

The Bulldogs advanced to the final with a 7-4 semifinal victory Tuesday over the Wildcats. Chris Smith scored two goals and had one assist and Chuck Carvey added three assists for the Bulldogs. The winning goalkeeper was John Weidenbach.

Kevin O'Connor had two goals and two assists and Andre Sioui (Westland) contributed four assists for the Wildcats.

The Wolverines advanced with an 8-4 upset win in Tuesday's semifinal over the Huskies, the Eagle Conference regular-season champion.

The Wolverines outscored the Huskies 3-0 in the third period to add to a 5-4 lead.

Matt Corriveau (Livonia) Jason Weber (Livonia) and Matt Brush (Birmingham) scored a goal each in the third period. Corriveau finished with two goals and three assists and Duane Roe added two goals and three assists.

League commissioner A.J. Baker, who coaches the Spartans, isn't sure the Bulldogs are heavy favorites.

The Wolverines played with 10 guys for the last few games and they got sort of comfortable with a short bench and not have to rotate 14 or 15 guys," Baker said. "I've seen that happen a number of times. It should be a very good game. Both teams have quality guys who are very level-headed and win or lose will have a good time."

HUSKIES 10, REDSKINS 8: The Huskies won their firstround game against the Redskins on Monday at Plymouth.

Marc Chiappelli and Grant Patterson had three goals each. Chiappelli added four assists and Patterson had three. Scott Lock scored three goals and two assists for the Redskins. Teammate Dave Weaver contributed one goal and four assists.

There was the time a few years ago when a player was ejected for a major slashing penalty with five minutes remaining in a game. The half-dressed player returned to the ice with less than a minute left to join a skirmish in front of "The guy happened to stick his head out of the locker room, he still has his skates on and the next thing I know here he comes running on the cement, sparks flying, and he climbs the glass,' Baker recalls. "He bee-lines to the net looking to hit anything in a different color jersey. It turns out, the guy who was coaching his team got out there before (the player) can start whaling on somebody.

The players in the MSHL are serious about winning but some offer pretty funny excuses for missing games.

"Some guys on Sunday end up at the beach, they're having a good time and not going to leave at 4 o'clock for a 6 o'clock game,' Baker said. "Most do it on Saturdays but a few like to go to the beach on Sundays as well.'

No favoritism

Baker's team, the Spartans, have reached the championship game three times but never won. He usually has help at the start of the season drafting players but this year he divided up players by himself.

Judging by the Spartans regular season record of 4-6-1 and a first-round knockout in the playoffs, Baker wasn't stacking

"Why do that and then take a bunch of crap from people?' Baker said. "It would be too

Baker is the only full-time coach in the eight team league. He is seeking corporate sponsorship (about $1,500) so the league could afford to pay full-time coaches.

'It would be nice to get somebody to keep the benches organized every game and see that the players get equal time," Baker said. "Somebody who could input some knowledge - especially to the younger guys. I got a call today from a mother of a 15-yearold (Plymouth's Ed Kruschka) saying how thankful she was for us giving her son a chance to play. That made my day.'

Aristeo sets record pace

Anne Aristeo of the host Livonia-Novi Spartan Aquatic Club set a new state record in the Girls 13-14 400-meter individual medley last weekend at the State Long Course Age-Group Swimming Championships at Eastern Michigan University.

Aristeo was clocked in 5:09:35, qualifying for the Juniors Nationals this weekend in Orlando, Fla.

She will also compete in the 200 freestyle, 200 butterfly and 200 backstroke.

Also headed for Orlando are teammates Scott DeWolf (200 butterfly and 400 freestyle) and Jill Mellis (100 breaststroke).

Spartan Aquatic finished seventh in the 58-team field with 259

A Troy historical site, the inn was recently restored by Peterhansrea Designers of Birmingham. It opened for business on Nov. 5, 1992. Co-owners John Reaser and Nick Sorise and their designers had the foresight to keep the comfortable dimensions of the tap room in front, the grill room overlooking the golf course, and the two upstairs banquet rooms intact. There is a ramp to the entryway providing easy access, and an elevator to the second floor.

Two new outdoor dining areas increased the farmhouse's seating capacity from 250 to over 350. There's a

The owners also had the foresight to hire Edward St. Laurents. "Chef Edward," as the staff likes to call him, a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America.

St. Laurents is a lively, energetic soul. In the month he has been at the inn, he has installed a new rotisserie. the focus of his Southwestern, country and Cajun chicken dinners, revamped much of the menu, and added eggs made-to-order rather than steam table eggs to the popular brunch served Sundays 10 a.m. to 2

He's also managed to change even the texture of the hot fresh rolls delivered with every meal. They steam as you break them, taste mildly of sourdough and are presented attractively wrapped in a white linen napkin with a round hill of butter on the Salads and entrees are served in farmhouse-thick bowls set on wide white platters.

St. Laurent's hands make a quick, kneading gesture as he talks about his passion for quality; his belief in fresh Michigan produce, tangy sauces, chicken marinated in lime, basted with honey and herbs, and ribs that "fall off the bone."

Trained to be "health and taste conscious," St. Laurent believes "the customer should see what they're getting, if the menu says red and green peppers and fried potato peels, that's exactly what will be on their plate."

The spinach salad with pine nuts, blue cheese and apple cider vinaigrette is a house specialty. Soups change daily, though chicken soup with dumplings and vegetables is a house staple.

Beginning courses feature familiar spicy wing dings with blue cheese dip, fried cheese sticks, chili, and unfamiliar tasty grilled shrimp on remoulade sauce with roasted corn kernels and roasted garlic with warm bread. They range in price from $2.75 to $7.25.

There is a California wine list, ranging from $2.75 a glass of house white or red (Glen Ellen) to Gewurztraminer white at $17 a bottle and Gamay Beaujolais red at $12 a bottle. The bar has sparklers, and an assortment of beer, including Samuel Adams and Heineken at $3 a bottle. Fosters non-alcoholic is on hand along with fresh lemonade, espresso and cappuccino.

Barbecue ribs, basted with Chef Edward's sauce are another house specialty. At $9.95 a half slab, $13.75 a full slab, they come with baked potato and coleslaw. There's also a 1/2 rotisserie chicken at $6.95 basted with herb oil, served with garlic mashed potatoes and crunchy justright red and yellow zucchini, red pepper slices, and vegetables in sea-

Drama explores impact of Karen Silkwood case

By KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

Laborers standing up, courageously demanding that management correct workplace hazards is a story with timeless appeal, especially in strong union towns like Detroit.
Gordon Reinhart of Westland, the son of a UAW member, stars in "The Half-Life of Karen Silkwood," at the Attic's New Center Theatre.

The compelling drama tells the storv of Karen Silkwood who died in 1974 while trying to alert the public about health and safety irregularities at the Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp. in Oklahoma where she worked.

The plant was under a fixed-price contract with the federal government to produce "fast breeder" reactors, using plutonium instead of uranium as fuel. The term "fast breeder" refers to the "breakthrough" by which, instead of the fuel being exhausted, the system would actually make more plutonium than it used. The fast breeder reactor was never built in this country. After billions of dollars, the unaccountable disappearance of

Harrison Ford stars as 'The Fugitive'

A distinguished Chicago surgeon, had the perfect life — a beautiful wife, a prominent standing in the community, an expensive townhouse in an exclusive Chicago neighborhood. A perfect life, that is — until the night his wife, Helen, was murdered.

Dr. Richard Kimble is accused of his wife's murder in "The Fugitive," a tense suspense thriller based on the hit television series of the 1960s. The movie opens Friday, Aug. 6, at suburban movie theaters.

Harrison Ford stars as the wrongly convicted Richard Kimble. Tommy Lee Jones is U.S. Marshal Sam Gerard, his relentless pursuer.

Circumstantial evidence mounts against the horrified doctor. When the trial is over, Kimble, though innocent, is convicted of murder and sentenced to death.

En route to the state penitentiary in a prison bus, some of the other prisoners attempt to escape, causing the bus to careen out of control and into the path of an oncoming train.

At the last second, Kimble narrowly escapes certain death and begins an obsessive odyssey to track down his wife's real killer—"the one-armed man" (Andreas Katsulas) whom he alone saw.

But Kimble is now a fugitive. As soon as his escape is discovered, he becomes the object of an intense manhunt led by Deputy

PREVIEW

U.S. Marshal Sam Gerard, a grimly determined federal agent who, with the help of his aggressive partner, Renfro (Joe Pantoliano), and a team of other marshals, has sworn to bring Kimble to justice.

Surviving by his wits, Kimble becomes a desperate man with no identity, constantly in flight. His only hope for the future lies in righting the grievous wrong of his past — and time is running out as Gerard closes in.

Andrew Davis is the director of "The Fugitive" released by Warner Bros. Arnold Kopelson produces. Roy Huggins, who created the original TV series, and Keith Barish are the executive producers; Peter Macgregor-Scott is the co-producer. The screenplay is by Jeb Stuart and David Twohy.

Like millions of people throughout the world, Arnold Kopelson, the Academy Award-winning producer of "Platoon," and producer (with Herschel Weingrod and Timothy Harris) of Warner Bros.' and New Regency's "Falling Down," was a fan of "The Fugitive" of the hugely successful television series starring the late David Janssen as Dr. Richard Kimble.

The show premiered on the ABC television network in September 1963 and enjoyed a four-year run.

The final episode, in which

■ Dr. Richard Kimble is accused of his wife's murder in "The Fugitive," a tense suspense thriller based on the hit television series of the 1960s.

Kimble corners the one-armed man and Gerard corners Kimble, was seen by more people than any single episode of a regular television series in the history of television until that time. Its 72 percent share of all television viewers that night set a regular series record, which was not exceeded until 13 years later, with the "Dallas" episode in which J.R.'s attacker was revealed.

"It has always been my dream to produce a major motion picture based on the series," Kopelson said. "The story is one we can all relate to; we sympathize with Dr. Richard Kimble, falsely accused of killing his wife. We know he's innocent and root for him to find the real killer.

"We're also infuriated with Gerard's obsessive pursuit of Kimble. Why doesn't he understand that Kimble is innocent and there really is a one-armed man?"

"The Fugitive" was shot over a 15-week period on location in North Carolina and Chicago. Filming proved to be a homecoming for Harrison Ford and Andrew Davis, as both men hail from the "Windy City."

Actual surgical rooms, a morgue and hospital exteriors were provided by the University of Chicago Hospitals at the sprawling 102-year-old University of Chicago.

To prepare for his role as a physician, Ford spent several days with doctors at the University of Chicago Hospitals, making rounds and observing surgical procedures.

Director Davis and co-producer Peter Macgregor-Scott, working closely with special-effects expert Ray Arbogast and stunt coordinator Terry Leonard, devised what promises to be one of the most spectacular train-wreck sequences in celluloid history.

"The Fugitive" is rated PG-13 (Parents are strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for young children).

REVIEW

■ Juicy character parts for Steve Buscemi and Harvey Keitel.

So what goes so horribly wrong? Plenty, but not at first. The opening scenes, with the ancient Japanese tribal drums underlying the good manners at a corporate party, have plenty of energy. Then "Rising Sun" quickly enters the land of the boring buddy movie whodunit.

Connery and Snipes play Los Angeles police detectives investigating a murder. The victim, a beautiful young woman, appears to have been strangled following kinky sex on a corporation board room table.

The Japanese bigwigs who own the new skyscraper where the murder took place want to avoid the negative publicity. They start to plant clues that Connery's "Senpai" (or wise older man) knows are too good to be true.

The story portrays American animosity for the Japanese, who here as sneaky and underhanded in their billion-dollar business conquests. Americans, business people or cops, compete in a constant game of "catch-up."

It doesn't take a genius to figure out who was with that woman on the table. How she died becomes another mystery, but after a while we don't care, sickened to the point of desensitization after seeing her strangled again and again on a clue-filled surveillance camera video.

Visually, the movie is a stunner, thanks to cinematographer Chapman, who employs a palette of deep reds. A standard car chase takes on the richness of time travel in "2001: A Space Odyssey" when colored lights shine in windshield reflections.

Snipes appears weighed down by the movie's endless chatter and the usual cop movie baggage of a nagging ex-wife and a kid to support. He shares the audience's desire to get on with the action.

The ever-wise Connery character, meanwhile, has links to the Japanese that make his motives suspect — the only element in the film that sustains some mystery. Despite his thick brogue (which only gets deeper with age), Connery reads much of his dialogue as if it came from fortune cookies.

Even Buscemi and Keitel, powerhouses in "Reservoir Dogs," don't have much to do here. Buscemi's investigative reporter, dubbed "The Weasel" by police, is supposed to cause trouble by digging up an old bribery charge against Snipes, but it doesn't add up to much, just like so much of the movie.

Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa has an intriguing part as a Japanese millionaire playboy singing karaoke to Cole Porter's "Don't Fence Me In" in the opening scene. He also eats sushi off the stomachs of naked bimbos, one of many reasons why the movie should rile women as much as the Japanese.

The moviemakers try to appease both groups by inserting a Japanese woman (Tia Carrere from "Wayne's World"), an expert in high-tech video doctoring, who helps the detectives crack the case. Not surprisingly, she also provides love interest for both lead actors

Much of the blame here must fall on Kaufman, the director of "The Right Stuff," "The Unbearable Lightness of Being" and "Henry and June," who has always had trouble keeping his movies under two hours. He picked up the script when Crichton lost interest, inserting an overly complicated narrative device meant to hide the fact that the story is essentially a snoozer.

"Rising Sun" is now showing at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Americana West, AMC Southfield City, AMC Wonderland, GCC Canton Cinema, GCC Novi Town Center, Quo Vadis, Showcase Auburn Hills, Star Rochester and United Artists Fairlane.

MARK D'ALLEVA

■ What is it: D'Alleva, 37, a West Bloomfield beauty expert, creates looks and images for some of the area's most prominent and influential businesswomen when they need them. Example: Julie, a General Motors executive, has been up all night preparing a major presentation that she has to deliver to the board of directors the following morning. She can probably drag herself out of bed in time, but getting her hair, makeup and wardrobe just right may be a little rough. She calls Mark for a "pop-in." He will meet Julie at 8 a.m. and make her confident and attractive in time for the presenta-

■ What else: D'Alleva not only will create the right look for you, he will teach you to maintain and enhance it.

■ Who is it for: Although, D'Alleva's shop is open to all - "Everybody needs an image," he says - he specializes in high-profile businesswomen and those starting their careers.

■ What's so special: D'Alleva knows which looks work for the various corporations. He knows that GM tends to be more understated in its fashion preferences than Ford and Chrysler. He knows how to give a woman a sense of power without diminishing her femininity.

■ The mastermind: D'Alleva has 16 years of experience as a hairdresser and makeup artist. He's studied with renowned beauty experts all over the world.

■ The germination: With the Big Three, Kmart and other major businesses and corporations headquartered in the area, D'Alleva knew there would be a need for his services. "Women today are taking the top spots in all fields," he said. "And with the rise in competition between men and women, women need more than just a haircut. We maximize the clients' ego and make them confident that their look will fit the environment they are in.'

■ The cost: Consultations are free, but figure around $200 for the total package. Figure $45-$50 for the hair, $40-$150 for color or perm and $40-$50 for makeup.

The availability: D'Alleva's shop is at 6219 Orchard Lake Road, north of Maple in West Bloomfield.

CONCEPT

ometimes you hear an idea and you just want to kick yourself. Why didn't I think of that?"

That's what provided the impetus for this page. Featured here is just a small sampling of the many creative and ambitious business minds that are at work in the Observer & Eccentric area. These are people who have taken an existing business practice, or an existing product, and put their own spin on it. We've chosen four, we could have chosen 40.

Mark D'Alleva, a beauty expert, peered inside of some of the largest corporations in the world to find out what looks, styles and attitudes worked and didn't work for the professional woman. Gayle Smith and Cynthia Ann Wheaton have taken the maid service field to new dimensions. Laura Hampton Bostick not only came up with a unique new greeting card, but she's using it to help disadvantage children.

And Merrill Shapero has invented something that should make him a hero among all bird lovers.

What a concept!

■ What is it: A complete personal service company. Services include house cleaning and laundry, nanny service, party and special event planning, serving and clean-up, house sitting (mail and newspaper pickup, plant care, lawn maintanance and security checks), pet care services, errands and shopping basically, they do everything.

What is it for: For the busy (and wealthy)

Who can use it: Anyone.

What's so special: The diversity of the services and the fact that they are specifically tailored to the clients' wishes and needs. Some services can be set up on a routine basis, others on an emergency, on-the-spot basis.

■ The germination: Said Smith: "I just knew there was a need for this. There are so many dual-career families and people with busy careers who don't have the time to take care of that and everything else in their lives."

■ The cost: It's flexible and negotiable. You can get hourly, daily, weekly, even monthly packages. Basically, the cost is $30 per hour for a two-person cleaning, $15.50 per hour, per worker for parties (planning is free), $15.50 per hour for miscellaneous services.

The availability: Nanny and the Professional is based in Auburn Hills and services virtually all of Oakland County. Call 373-6657 for an appointment.

THE GUARD

■ What is it: A lightweight, wire device that hangs from tree branches and is harmless to plant and animal life.

What is it for: Used in combination with baffles above or below bird feeders, The Guard prevents squirrels from jumping into feeders and eating the seed.

Who can use it: Bird enthusiasts who can pinpoint exactly how squirrels attack their feeders.

■ What's so special: This product could resolve a major, major irritation faced by most bird feeding hobbyists at home. Also, the inventor, Merrill J. Shapero, a West Bloomfield resident and certified public accountant, and the manufacturer. Rex Hiday, a production engineer in Kentucky, have never personally met.

The mastermind: Shapero. "Squirrels are too smart. They know they can't get through The Guard. Birds have never flown into it and got hurt. Birds, when they feed, do spray seed. Squirrels will feed from the ground. It's not like we're depriving squirrels from eating.

■ The germination: Shapero grew tired of watching squirrels get fat at the expense of birds with his feeders. He wanted to develop something that wouldn't hurt the squirrels, but keep them away. After a couple years of study and testing, he came up with a screen device that squirrels see and either decline to attack or, if they do attack, they swing on the screen and can't generate enough momentum to jump from there to the feeder.

The cost: About $8.

The availability: When in stock, at Wild Birds Unlimited in Farmington Hills (489-4004) and Rochester Hills (852-

CARE TUNES

■ What is it: A greeting card that presents its message in the form of a song on a cassette. Example: An anniversary card which features "Through the Years" by Kenny Rogers. The words are written on the left side of the card and the cassette is built into a compartment on the right side.

■ Who can use It: Everybody.

■ What's so special: All of the profits from these greeting cards will be donated to various children's charities, one of which is the Rainbow Connection, a nonprofit group that grants wishes of children with life-threatening illnesses.

■ The mastermind: Laura Hampton Bostick of Troy

■ The germination: Bostick: "I was working with the Rainbow Connection and I just got so frustrated with the lack of funds that it was breaking my heart. One day they were going to come and take our rental furniture away and I thought, 'How can they let this happen to people who are doing so much good?' I thought there just had to be a way we could generate some money without bugging the same people and getting all the doors stammed in our faces. That's when I thought of Care-Tunes.

The cost: $8.95 per card.

The availability: The cards are expected to hit the market by the beginning of 1994 and will be available at local card and gift shops. For more information, call Bostic at 641-5227.

'Bee' careful: Taking sting out of insects

Warm weather brings with it loads of fun, but it can also literally "bug" you. Bites and stings from mosquitoes, bees and wasps can cause a lot of discomfort as well as be dangerous.

Children should be taught what bees and wasps look like; that they're attracted to sweet perfume scents, a variety of scented shampoos (especially after hair has just been washed), hair spray, scented soaps and the like. These two insects not only look somewhat similar, both are attracted to bright clothing (ves. flowery patterns), shiny things and garbage.

Encourage children not to play in high grass or areas where wildflowers may be growing. Avoid areas where there is rotten fruit lying on the ground under or nearby fruit trees. You can bet a party of bugs are at play:

Don't be an uninvited guest at such bug "gatherings." In fact, "bee warned — bee careful, bee safe." And do so by following these tips about stings and bites:

Bees

The symptoms include localized pain, itching, hives and swelling. In extreme cases, children and adults allergic to insect stings may experience tightness in the chest, wheezing or shock.

It's a good idea to keep a bee sting kit on hand and know how to use it. These kits are available at pharmacies and contain adrenaline, which can be given in case of an emergency shock reaction. Check with your consulting pediatrician for additional directions and advice.

The first rule of treatment is not to squeeze the affected area. Apply cold compresses or ice to relieve the pain. Remove the stinger by scraping horizontally with a plastic card or fingernail.

For stings in the mouth or throat which may lead to swelling and obstructed breathing, call 911 or the local emergency number immediately and to minimize swelling, give the child or adult a piece of ice to suck on.

Wasps

The symptoms are similar to those of a bee sting. Symptoms include localized pain, swelling, itching and hives.

For treatment, don't look for a stinger because a wasp doesn't leave one. Put some vinegar or lemon juice on the bite area. Apply cold compresses or ice to reduce swelling.

Mosquitoes

The mosquito bite results in a small, itchy, red swelling. Severe swelling occurs if the bite is near the eyes or ears. Infection can happened as the result of over-scratching.

The treatment is to apply calamine lotion to the affected area.

Spiders

Spiders bite symptoms include itching, redness and swelling.

Medical attention should be sought for treatment of the bite. And if possible, save the spider for identification. Most spiders in the United States aren't harmful, but in the south, southwest and south central regions, the black widow or brown recluse spider can cause a severe reaction.

Ticks

The symptoms of a tick bite include swelling at the site of the attached tick. A rash and fever are also possible.

The first step in treatment is to remove the tick. Place tweezers or protected fingers close to the head to pull the tick away. Wash the bitten area with soap and water. If the tick's head breaks off, seek medical attention immediately to remove it.

Infected dog and deer ticks can be the carriers of serious diseases, such as Rocky Mountain spotted fever or Lyme disease. In addition to a rash and high fever, The symptoms for these diseases include chills and a severe headache. In the case of lyme disease, symptoms are an expanding blotchy circular rash, flu-like symptoms, fatigue and join pain.

Some used vacation time to be there. Others decided it was better than staying at grandma's house. And for some it was a second year of madness. It? Yes, it the Girl Scout's summer day camp at Bell Creek Park in Redford.

The sun was shining; the weather hot and sticky. But that didn't seem to bother Carolan Maue, Megan Bengry, Kristina Avedisian and Katie McDonald. Straw hats firmly in place, one by one, they chimed in in a sing-song fashion.

At their feet was a five-gallon pail where their white handkerchiefs were slowly changing to a pale rose color. The morning's activity was tie-dying ("I chose it because it's a pretty color," said Megan.), just one of "so many things" the youngsters had been doing at camp.

Don't look for tents or cabins. No lake nearby for swimming and canoeing. Just tennis courts, a restroom and plenty of green grass. This camp is a weeklong day camp for girl scouts 6-14 years of age.
"The idea is to build a positive

Murray from the camp headquarters, a collection of picnic tables under the trees at the edge of the parking lot. Sharing the tables is Terrie Schaub, the first aider who has been tending to the campers' bee stings, scrapes and stomach aches.

The 100 Brownie and Junior Scouts were divided into color-coded age groups, their colors prominently displayed on the straw hats given to them by their unit leaders. The colors represent the five worlds of girl scouting - yellow for the world of the outdoors, purple for the world of art, orange for the world of today and tomorrow, blue for the world of people and red for the world of healthy being.

The camp is set up to give the girls an overview of the five worlds as well as "push the basic eight rules for outbasics like first aid and fire safety, Murray said.

While the camp directors offered a format for the camp, the youngsters had input. Each day, two girls from each unit, joined with the camp directors for lunch to talk about the activities they liked. "We give them the programs and they decide what they want to do,' said Murray, a Taylor resident. "We planned out the crafts and the things we want them to do. When they get in their groups, they decide what other things they want to do.'

'That's what we teach them in scouts . . . to be organized, to be able to plan out things and to be able to work together as a group," added Redcay, a West Bloomfield resident who met Murray through the camp program.

The all-camp project was making a paperweight. Other activities included the tie-dying (handkerchiefs for the Brownies and T-shirts for the juniors), hiking, painting bags and some cooking. The camp closed on Friday with a carnival, complete with balloons.

"We really stress that they have a good time," Murray said.

The camp is staffed by volunteers, all trained by the scout council. Some

Watch out, Japan Here comes Dud

If there's one thing John Pullum doesn't want to be, it's a dud even though his moniker is Dudman. When he does his schtick later this month he wants to leave his audience's rolling in the aisles.

That won't be an easy feat for the verbal Pullum. For 20 minutes three times a day, he'll be serving up his brand of comedy to tourists at the Rjutsu Resort in Hokkaido, Japan.

Pullum will do 129 shows during the 11/2 months he'll be at the resort, blending comedy and magic with pantomine and a few words tossed in for good measure. "I'll do a lot more exaggerated expressions, very comical, very slapstick," he said. "I have to get the point across without talking. Ninety percent of my act here is talking, 90 percent of my act there will be silence.

"My first trick will be the vanishing hair. In the promotional picture they have, I have more hair than I have now.

Rjutsu is an all-encompassing resort with a water park, horseback riding, golfing and amusement park that has "more rides than the Tokyo Disneyland." Pullum will perform as part of the two stage shows at the amusement park.

"One (stage) is a closeup and closeup is where you get most of your watch steals," said Pullum, who deftly snatches watches and wallets from unsuspecting audience members as part of his act. "I hope the audience will interact with my tricks."

Pullum landed the work in Japan through fellow entertainers Sem and Teresa Abrahams, also of Redford. Professional unicyclists and acrobats,

Way of life

Entertaining has been a way of life for the 23-year-old Redford resident. He remembers that as a small child he used his bedroom window to entertain kids in the neighborhood: "I'd do anything to make them laugh.

As a teenager, Pullum took a 10-week clown course, adopting the persona of Duddles the Clown, a happy hobo type of character. In fact, his Dudman moniker is a spinoff of Duddles. Friends began calling him Dudman for short and the nickname stuck.

Pullum got hooked on magic by his sister after she took him to a magic shop. Eventually, magic act, but he grew tired of it after graduating from Redford Union High School in 1988.

Now, he serves up a basic comedy/magic act although he likes to think some of his clowning talent shows through.

"I don't like to think of what I do as normal magic," he said. "I like to think of myself as a oneman vaudeville show for the '90s and beyond.

In a way, Pullum has the entertainment business in his blood. His grandmother was a singer/comedian in vaudeville and was billed as one of Winnipeg's best entertainers. Not long before she died, she told her grandson to "follow your heart, follow your

Pullum doesn't have any one person who has inspired him, although he rattles off names like Charlie Chaplin, David Copper-field, probably the best known magician today, and Red Skelton, who has entertained audiences for decades with his Clem Kadiddlehopper character.

He has found his support through his parents, who tell him what parts of his act look good and what doesn't.

"They told me to get an education, but they also told me to follow my dreams. They have always stressed that," he said.

He has shied away from the comedy club circuit, plying his trade first at children's parties and at corporate functions and at local restaurants like Jacque Demers and Carlos Murphy, doing closeup magic.

For Pullum, the trip to Japan will be the first step down the road to doing what he loves to do 24 hours a day. As he sees it, the trip opens up a lot of doors that had been closed before. Currently, he works full time at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, and does his comdey work in his spare time.

He also hopes to develop an eight-minute "razzle dazzle act" for Las Vegas — "I want to be funny, but not stupid funny.'

Pullum realizes that working at the Japanese resort offers a lot of challenges, the first being the language. He's addressed that by taking an eight-week course at Schoolcraft College. He learned a few words and the rest are written down on cards.

The second is the reserved nature of the Japanese. Pullum's act relies on audience participation and he's prepared "to grab them and drag them on stage" if neces-

Allergic reacions

Some children are extremely sensitive to certain insects. When stung or bitten, they may experience severe allergic reations such as difficulty breathing, joint pain, abdominal cramps, vomiting, fever, red and swollen eves, hives or generalized itching and shock.

Allergic reactions to insect bites can be life-threatening. If a child experiences any of these reactions, follow these steps immediately:

- Call 911 or your local emergencv number.
- Keep the child quiet and calm. Help him to find a comfortable position.
- If the child has medication for this type of allergic reaction, administer it immediately.
- Place an ice pack on the bite and if possible, position the affected body part so that it's lower than the heart.

Make sure your medical emergency files are up-to-date and let everyone know if any of your children are allergic to a particular kind of bite or sting.

This is Sarah Benders' first year at camp and she's matter of fact about why she came: "If I didn't have these camps, I'd have to stay with my grandma and she's boring. And her house is creepy. I think it's haunted."

Likewise, it's Sarah Grossbart's first year at camp. With both parents working, she had a choice between Kaleidascope, YMCA camp or staying home with her brother. Scout camp won out, hands down.

Greene worked her way up and down the picnic table, helping the girls master the weaving process. Camping has been a part of her life for a long time.

"I've been a leader for three years and I've been family camping for 25 years," she said. "And when I was a Girl Scout many, many years ago, my best memory was of day camp when it was down in Hines Park.

For Greene, Kaleidascope is a warmup for her next assignment, director of Outdoor Odyssey 'It's outdoor skills with a lot of fun thrown in.

"It's fun," she said. "I've done it for two years and each year, it's a new year, same name, but everything is new. Last year we didn't make sand candles, folk art necklaces or paperweights.'

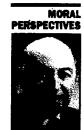

Vickie Kelly of Taylor and Sue Heintz of Redford are the unit coleaders. While admitting the weather is a bit on the hot side, they were glad they hadn't had the "R word" - rain.

Back at the traveling trading post, Caitlin McCormick, 8, of Novi, gave a resounding endorsement of Murray's and Redcay's day camp: "My Mom's best friend told her about this and she asked me if I'd like to go. I said 'yeah, it sounds like fun," and it has been fun . . . we're gonna tie-dye Tshirts today. I did one and turned out all purple. I hope I do better

Cultural 'melting' may help to bring people together

shocked by three accounts. The first described the plight of millions of children who are forced to work in India and nearby na-STRONG we should become used to being shocked.

In one day I was tions. Children as young as four work under conditions that would be difficult for adults. Yet without working, these children would not survive.

The second story reports that native Americans are seeking to have the laws changed so that children will not be taken away from their families. The families are now charged with child neglect. The parents answer that it is not neglect but simply poverty. The white social workers do not understand the difference between poverty and actual neglect.

The third account is a report of the practice of female genital mutilation. A Somalian family who live in Atlanta are deciding whether to have the clitoris of each of their three small daughters surgically removed. It is the custom in their culture. In various parts of Africa some 80 million women have been so mutilat-

I realize that my shock after reading these articles was because the victims of these evils are children. I feel compassion and concern for children who are damaged by such terrible realities. Yet I am aware there is also another issue in each of these stories. It is the issue of contrasting cultures coming into contact with each

The close contact of vastly different cultures and economic conditions brings waves of shock and misunderstanding. In America we used to assume that people who are different from us will melt into our likeness. No longer is this true. We are shocked by practices which we believe are cruel.

In turn people from other countries are shocked by things we do. A foreign visitor could not believe the statement that in many parts of this nation almost anyone can buy a hand gun. They are shocked that 600 people can die each year of gun shot wounds in a single city in America.

Is the world doomed to a constant conflict of values and cultures? I was surprised to hear an African American preacher propose that we need to become a 'melting pot" again. This is an old term which seems inappropriate in this time of ethnic awareness. What he meant is that to have reconciliation we must all "melt" a little toward the opposite position.

Without some such melting, cultures will come into even greater collision. Reconciliation is possible only if we give a little to those different from us. We must give our ear, our heart and our belief that diversity is good. We must give our understanding. Above all we must give a little humility and, when necessary, forgiveness.

We must not simply tolerate those different from us. We must not just tolerate the disabled, the poor, the old, children, youth. We must not just tolerate even those customs that disturb or even sick-

The vital question is whether the human race can become mature enough to avoid mutual destruction? We are so different. Will our differences kill us? Things like hand gun ownership and female genital mutilation are deeply embedded in culture. Great numbers of people believe these are good and necessary things. Yet I still shudder at the effects of such practices.

We must not give up hope. Peaceful shifts of understanding must emerge which will open a way toward peace. The goal must be kept clear. The goal must be a celebration of our unique differ-

Reconciliation and melting toward one another must be the process we seek to live. Only by such difficult steps will we forge peace among all peoples.

'Hail Mary' makes it to Conyers

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

In March, I was traveling by bus with faith-filled pilgrims to a Marian apparition sight in Conyers, Ga. There, Nancy Fowler, a wife and mother, was allegedly seeing apparitions of Jesus and his mother, Mary. I hoped to find out firsthand what was going on in the little town of

The apparitions have occurred since 1987, but had only been made public since the fall of 1990 at the request of Fowler's heavenly visitors. By the beginning of 1993, crowds gathering at the farm on the 13th of each month to hear the special message from Mary for the United States were numbering near 40,000.

There were reports of unusual occurrences like rosary chains and beads changing from silver to a gold color, strong scents of roses (Mary's special flower) where there were no flowers, the sun pulsating or dancing, photographs of "doors to heaven" and ethereal Mary-shaped figures captured as Fowler announced her arrival and departure.

Since many of the occurrences in Conyers were becoming increasingly difficult for even doubters to explain away, I joined the other 43 travelers in their pilgrimage on a fateful March weekend to capture the essence of Conyers. That particular weekend, however, we were not destined to set foot on the red Georgia clay. We were stopped cold in our tracks, 25 miles north of Chattanooga, Tenn., stranded by the "snow storm of the century." We dubbed the bus the Hail Mary Express.

This time, with the possibility of snow a fading memory, three other women from the Hail Marv Express and I packed a minivan and pointed our Hail Mary Shuttle due south on June 11. It takes about 13 hours to reach Conyers with limited stops.

Early arrivals

Arriving at the farm about 8 a.m. Saturday, June 12, I was amazed by how many people were already milling about. Early arrivals had staked out prime locations. Hundreds of lawn chairs and blankets were strategically placed directly in front of the house where the apparition allegedly occurs and under large spreading shade trees offering respite from the blazing Georgia sun.

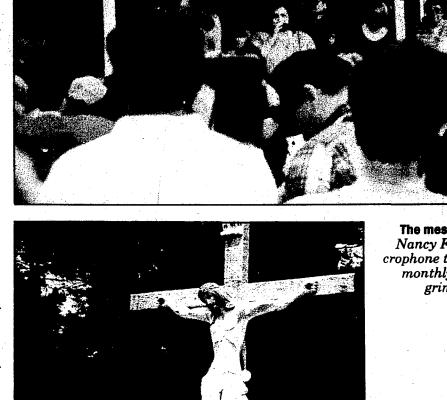

The apparition room was filled with a myriad of religious statues, pictures, crucifixes and flowers. Giant rosaries hung suspended on the wall. Two large baskets near the fireplace were filled with folded pieces of paper containing heartfelt petitions and prayers.

Time and distance are measured in rosaries at the farm. Signs proclaim walking time to the Holy Hill as one rosary (about 20 minutes or three-quarters of a mile.) The red earth is worn smooth by hundreds of thousands of pilgrim feet on the rolling path between the apparition house and the Holy Hill.

The Holy Hill is another place of reverence and signs ask visitors for respectful silence. The altar is low and made from rocks and cement in the shape of a cross. At the head, a life-size wooden crucifix rises skyward. The faithful kneel, pray and touch religious articles to the stone altar and lav their hands on the feet of the crucifix and place more petitions behind the feet.

There is also a holy well on the hill where pilgrims fill jugs, jars and every type container imaginable with water to take home. As the temperature that day climbed into the 90s, many sat down to drink the refreshing water.

By early Sunday morning, apparition day for the United States, people were converging on the farm en masse. More than 100 tour buses and thousands of cars

Sudden silence

Precisely at noon, just as the rosary was about to begin, a loudspeaker announced that Mary had arrived. Amazingly, a record crowd estimated at 80,000 fell silent. Then the rosary began. It was led by different speakers in many different languages French, Spanish, English, Italian, Croatian, German. Everyone responded in their own native the prayer beads — about 40 minutes — it was announced that Mary was leaving. I didn't see anything unusual, but at that very moment, there was a strong gust of wind that swept through the crowd where we were sitting in front of the apparition room. It had been an otherwise still day with only mild breezes, nothing like that strong sudden gust.

The only other unusual occurrence that I experienced was the strong scent of roses - once on Saturday, while waiting in line to get our books (all materials are free but donations are accepted), and once right before the apparition was to begin. The scent was strong, sweet and brief. Only a few of us could smell the roses and some standing right next to us did not smell them.

Fowler talked to the crowd after the apparition. Part of the message, as relayed by Fowler, expressed Mary's love and concern for all her children: "My dear little children, do you understand the time in which you are living? Please children, it is time to wake up. Turn your lives around and come to my living Son. Implant His word deep within you. Know that we are with you always. Please do not deny my Son any

May's message

While the weather cooperated on June 13, the weather on May 13 held its own message. Diane Choquette from Port St. Lucie, Fla., came in June with her husband and four children, but had come in May with her sister, a non-practicing Catholic who "came for a show." The show she got was not at all what she had anticipated.

"The minute that they said Mary was leaving, the second that they said it, a mass of black clouds just came out of nowhere,' Choquette said. "All of a sudden, a giant wind came along and went whoosh, just over the trees right by the apparition house There was a light like an electrifying light that was making the house illuminate like a Christmas tree would. It was so illuminated and you could hear the sound. And then the rain just dumped on us and it hailed also.'

Funnel clouds formed. Choquette's sister captured the entire storm on videotape.

"I was crying so bad," Choquette said. "Everyone was scared and everyone was crying. Then Nancy came out and talked. The funnel clouds just seemed to disappear. We have it on the videotape. They're there and they just like disintegrated."

Choquette's story was corroborated by many other people. who had been present for the May 13 apparition. The May 14 Atlanta Journal and Constitution reported that "the message was as ominous as the swirling, lightning-laden clouds that swept over the apparition site, just as Mrs. Fowler said she was experiencing the apparition."

Part of the reported message from Mary on May 13 was indeed ominous: "Please children, wake up while there is still time. You are going deeper and deeper into darkness. Again I say to you: if you refuse the peace of my Son, then you will be at war.'

This month, Fowler reported that the Blessed Mother said: "I will return next month. I am preparing you for the time when you will no longer give a message to the United States." Fowler added that "Our Lady is appearing to me daily, but many of the apparitions have become silent. So Our Lady is telling me at this time that I may not have the same gift that I have now to hear

While it appears that Fowler's messages from Mary for the United States will soon come to an end, there may be the opportunity to make a pilgrimage closer to home. It has been reported that a visionary from Livonia and an inner locutionist received messages at Madonna University in Livonia on June 19 with approximately 100 people present.

Canton writer clicks as romance novelist

eggy Hanchar finds herself involved almost constantly in a flaming new romance and her husband of some 30-plus years doesn't

Probably that's because all the romances are strictly fiction and, since 1985, they've helped establish the Canton grandmother as one of Michigan's most popular romance novelists.

The 53-year-old author (aka Jennifer Stevens and Peggy Roberts) began writing about 10 years ago when business got a little slow at the fabric shop she owned near Kalamazoo. Before she got down to the business of writing romances, though, she'd read dozens of them, especially those known as 'historicals.

ended up writing her own historical the first time around. "Desire's Dream," which Hanchar describes as "my pirate book," was eventually published by Pinnacle.

Set mainly in the Florida Keys, it was inspired by a visit Hanchar had once made to that locale. Shortly after its publication, the debut novel appeared on the Waldenbooks paperback bestseller list and Peggy Hanchar was on her way.

Since that promising start, Hanchar has written and sold 20 other romances, spending about three months to travel and research each book and three months to write it.

Her latest, "Just In Time," came out in June as part of Zebra's "To Love Again" series: romances that focus on middle-aged heroines.

Set in New Orleans and Louisiana's Cajun country, the novel, like "Desire's Dream," was inspired by one of Hanchar's trips down South.

"I had gone to Louisiana the first time around to research my second book, 'Renegade Heart', she says. "And since then, we've taken another trip there, touring the bayou country. I listened to the speech of our tour guides and to Cajun music, and I ended up buying a lot of Cajun records and bringing them home with me. (Cajun music plays a rather important part in "Just in Time.")

"One day, we happened to stop at a roadside stand in Louisiana where a woman was selling pecans and pralines. As it turned out, that woman became the inspiration for my main character, Remy, in 'Just In Time.'

"I don't think you absolutely have to visit a spot to write about it," says the well-traveled Hanchar. "But if you don't, it always feels to me a little like you're eating something without the salt."

Library research vital

Still, Hanchar spends a lot of time researching her novels via the local library. And her third book, "Creole Angel," was set mostly in Texas, a place she's yet to visit. She did almost all her research on the Lone Star State out of books, books and more books, she says.

The extensive homework paid off, though. One reviewer said readers of "Creole Angel" could "smell the dust and feel the saddle."

Until recently, Hanchar has specialized in writing historicals. But her latest literary efforts have been played out against contemporary backdrops.

"I was very nervous about doing that," she says. "I expected the contemporary novels would be much harder for me than the historicals I was used to writing. But, actually, I found it to be rather easy - and so much fun to do. Since the heroines in these later novels are somewhat older than those in the historicals, and since I am older myself, their age may have made it easier for me to get to know and depict my characters, which is always the hardest thing for me as a writer.' This Christmas season, Hanchar will be going in yet another new direction. Though she has always written book-length fiction, her short story, "A Traditional Christmas," will be part of an anthology, "Merry Christmas, My Love," to be brought out by Zebra Pinnacle during the holi-

Set in Detroit, "A Traditional Christmas" tells the story of a widow who feels she's being left behind by her grown children and by life in general until, one fateful Christmas Eve. she meets an intriguing widower. The story concludes with the happily-ever-after ending typical of most romance

"I like happy endings," Hanchar emphasizes. Fans can look for her next novel, "Fancy Lady." in January 1994 from Fawcett, and "Carolina Moon" (Zebra) in February. Two more novels (including a mystery from Zebra Pinnacle, 'Whispers at Midnight") are slated for publication later next year.

All have happy endings.

ichigan Outdoor Sculpture Exhibition IV, which features works by two Redford Township sculptors, is a visual feast to restore the human spirit. The invitational of abstract, real-

Hosted by the city of Southfield and Business Consortium for the Arts, the exhibition spotlights the work of 20 Michigan sculptors, including Todd Erickson and Sergio De Giusti of Redford.

Sculptures won him over

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

The 1965 International Sculpture Symposium held at Long Beach State College in southern California instilled an enthusiasm and excitement for public art displays in architect/author Louis Redstone, planting a seed that blossomed into the Michigan Outdoor Sculpture (MOS) Exhibition of

'When I saw these monumental sculptures, they excited my fancy, to invite sculptors to do it on the spot," said Louis Redstone of Redstone Architects in Southfield. He founded the MOS exhibition.

"The vital importance of art in our environment has always been recognized as something that fulfills a need as vital as food and shelter and as something that brings joy and excitement to all people in their daily lives," Redstone said.

sculptors from Israel to Japan and The Netherlands. They constructed sculptures, some weighing more than 7,000 pounds, from materials indigenous to the region, including redwood, concrete and metals. The summer months were spent executing the works that remain on the college campus.

The benefits were multifaceted, Redstone says, in the book "Art in Architecture."

"It set a precedent for similar symposiums in this country; it served as a catalyst in the promotion of the integration of art and architecture: and it revealed the yet-unexplored possibilities of the marriage of technology and art."

It also united art patrons and industry. More than 70 businesses supplied sculptors with materials, facilities and the opportunity to explore new uses for materials.

Redstone's ideas percolated The California exhibition for several years. In 1981, infeatured the work of eight spired by Redstone's classic book "Art in Architecture," Meadow Brook Gallery director Kiichi Usui, who served on the first MOS committee in 1987, produced the Meadow Brook Invitational on the grounds of Oakland University. From Rochester Hills, where the works of David Barr, Sydney Atkin-Mel Leiserowitz, Tom Bills, Hanna Stiebel and Cass Corridor sculptor John Piet were installed, and remain on site, it was a small leap to presenting the biennial MOS exhibition.

"To have a national is our dream," Redstone said.

This was the first year that an actual piece was constructed on the spot. Caroline Court laid the bricks for her towering circular sculpture directly on

"It appealed to me because of the brick work," Redstone said. "that you can use brick and be a part of the buildings and environment.'

known in the area for creating the concrete bas reliefs on the facade of Michael Berry International Terminal at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

"I think the show is a major success because of Jay Holland and because of the convictions of the artists. These are the best sculptors around," De Giusti said.

"It's an important show. It might be puzzling. Some works don't fit into a traditional sculptural mode but people should make an effort to see the show because it's enlightening, for the opportunity to look at what artists are doing in contemporary sculpture, and to elevate people to a higher plane."

"Genesis," a five-panel hydrostone relief by De Giusti, evokes uneasy feelings with imagery of shroud-wrapped figures bound by their own convictions being cast from the garden. Created especially for the show, the reliefs were more than two months in the making. The original concept for the work came from a relief De Giusti produced five years ago.

The first time I saw relief, I was fascinated by the whole idea of images emerging out of a plane," said the Italian-born sculptor, who earned bachelor and master of fine art degrees from Wayne State University.

'Genesis' deals with the expulsion from the garden. I'm not concerned with any literal translation. It has more images and detail than I usually put De Giusti hopes his sculpture gives the viewer "a sense of all of us being a part of the world. People came before us. People come after us. I would hope it relays a sense of yesterday, today and tomorrow.".

The viewer is able to walk through the three abstract aluminum forms that compose Erickson's "Memory Vehicle."

Set up to look like mother duck and two ducklings, the sculpture speaks of the golden age of the automobile industry.

"The wheel symbolizes hope, change, life in general. It's a live vibrant symbol of the auto industry," Erickson said. "The parts that are gold and vibrant and shiny are meant as a ray of hope. I hope the viewer would see old scrap that's been transformed.

Erickson, an assistant professor at Center for Creative Studies, earned a bachelor's of art degree from Hope College in Holland, Mich., and a master's of fine art from Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills. ### Hours: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY SHOWCASES Opening — Canton resident Krystyna Dryja exhibits memorabilia from her native Poland. To Aug. 31. Secondfloor showcases. Farmington Road and Five Mile. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

ATRIUM GALLERY Continuing - Woodwright Gus Shav of Livonia displays mobiles of fresh water fish, fish pins, decoys and decorative carvings of crayfish, crappie, bass, northern pike and other Great Lakes fish to Aug. 15. The fish are one-of-a-kind, painted, carved wood, and have an unusual primitive quality. Hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, 109 N. Center, Northville, 349-4131.

THE PRINT GALLERY Opening — An exhibit of kinetic art and abstract sculpture by Indiana artist Jeff Johnson will run through Sept. 24. Johnson's intriguing use of colors and geometric designs give him the ability to incorporate all of these multiple views that are a central part of kinetic art. Looking at the threedimensional work is like looking at images painted on accordion pleats. The picture changes images with one's viewpoint. Included are silkscreen kinetics and crystal kinetics made of glass rods that transform colors, images and shapes into six different views. Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday, to 9 p.m. Thursday, 29203 Northwestern Highway,

Library's fall series to spotlight authors

BY MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

Books will come to life in a special way at Baldwin Public Library, 300 W. Merrill in Birmingham, starting this fall. An in-structor at Madonna University in Livonia will lead discussion se-

Four acclaimed contemporary uthors will come face to with the public when they visit Baldwin in "Writers Live at the Library," a pilot project sponsored by the American Library Association with a grant from the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund. Baldwin is one of only 19 libraries in three Midwestern states — Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin — selected to participate in the project.

"One of the reasons we were chosen was because of our (reading and discussion) 'Let's Talk About It' series," said Stephen Kershner of Baldwin. "We had an established track record for author discussion programs.

The "Writers Live" program will begin 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Oct. 14, at The Community House, 380 S. Bates in Birmingham, featuring Tobias Wolff and Geoffrey Wolff. The two men are brothers who were raised apart.

Tobias Wolff wrote "This Boy's Life: A Memoir," which was recently made into a movie with Robert DeNiro and Ellen Barkin. Geoffrey Wolff wrote "The Duke of Deception: Memories of My Fa-The next two writers, both

"I was trying to come up with a theme (before deciding on) 'Writing One's Life: The Facts and the Fiction,' the art of writing autobiography," said Sarah Ormond, head of adult reading at Baldwin, who was responsible for bringing the model project to the library.

Some of the authors in the program will introduce other authors, she said.

"I'm excited about people having access to writers." Ormond said. "This program is more than a luncheon or a book signing; it is an opportunity for readers and writers to interact. It is a credit to Whale of a duck: Wood carver Bob Jenkins of Westland carves a life-size duck from exotic zebra wood. He'll apply a hand-rubbed natural finish.

"This is a wonderful way to introduce people to the world of wood carving," said Pat Lea, exhibitor and show chairwoman. "It's the biggest show in the state and the best place to see all kinds of wood carving.'

Lea, a Livonia resident, started carving five years ago after meeting another carver at a local craft store. She learned the basic skills through the Livonia Wood Carvers Club and now carves miniatures from her own blanks. Most of her wares are small enough to fit on a thumb, including her 101 painted Dalmatians. Her work sells for $6 to $15.

Mary Lindsay of Livonia, another miniature carver, often turns her work into earrings and pins. She accents her jewelry with wood burning. Lindsay, retired from GM accounting, learned to carve eight years at the Livonia club.

'I walked in and someone said, 'If you can peel a potato, you can carve,' " said Lindsay, whose wares start at $6.

She takes special orders, but recently turned down a biker's request for a single Harley Davidson earring.

Bob Jenkins of Westland made his first wood duck 10 years ago when his wife enrolled him in a carving class at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

Two years later, Jenkins and his wife, Marie, took up carving together after visiting an area of Germany that is known for its wood artists. The two signed up for carving classes at John Glenn High School in Westland and joined the Livonia Wood Carvers Club.

Jenkins will show his stylized ducks, which are handrubbed to a natural finish, with his wife's marquetry plaques.

"In the beginning, I didn't think I could carve," Jenkins "Now, it's relaxing for said.

both of us." Dave Geistler, a Garden City resident, started carving two years ago after retiring from Michigan Bell. Over the years, he's made rough cut decoys for his hunting trips, but his spe-cialty is realistic, lifesize birds painted in acrylic.

Grace Dennis, a continuing education art teacher in Redford Township, started carving after she admired another wood worker's painted Santas. Since they weren't for sale, Dennis bought a how-to book and made her own figures. Her theme Santas, two to 14 inches high, carry guitars and other items. They sell for $20

Tips on dressing your home for success

Before you can get the best price, you must seriously consider dressing your home for success, said William McCullen, a regiondirector for Century 21 Great

It's estimated that more than half of all houses are sold before the buyers even get out of their chrs," he said. "Stand across the street from your house and check its curb appeal."

Perhaps the yard needs trimming or dead plants need to be removed. Remember to keep the driveway, steps and porch clear of efforts in those areas debris.

Then look around inside. ■ Unclutter each room.

"Your goal is to create a roomy, comfortable feeling that will be inviting to prospective buyers," McCullen said. "If a house is cluttered, buyers have trouble imagining themselves in it."

Replace old light bulbs. Tidy garage and storage areas, too. ■ Make sure that the house is clean.

A clean house gives the impression that it has been well cared for. Buyers react most strongly to kitchens, closets and bathrooms, so it pays to concentrate cleanup

In some cases, a fresh coat of paint, a new shower curtain, clean drapes or some basic carpet cleaning can spice up a house. And don't forget to wash the windows. ■ Repair problems before they become buyer's objections.

Drippy faucets and electrical outlets that don't work can be real turn-offs.

Some buyers believe that repairs will cost more than they actually do. "If you think something is too much trouble to fix. chances are prospective buyers will too. McCullen said.

■ Neutral colors and carpet help prospective buyers see their own

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Prospects actually picture themselves living there. Eliminate distracting colors and accessories. It helps buyers concentrate on positive impressions. Make each room special.

Look in magazines and catalogs for ideas. Fresh flowers, fresh smells and bath decorations all add up to positive impressions. Kitchen counters should be clear of unnecessary utensils.

"Remember that your house is competing against other houses on the market," McCullen said. Showtime.

This is the final step. Try making a list of responsibilities for each family member to do on a daily basis. This keeps the house presentable and makes showings easier on everyone.

Keep a small basket of cleaning materials handy in an out-of-theay place for emergencies or inevitable last-minute showing that may occur. Turn on lights throughout the house and remove pets during the tour.

Also, it's a good idea to get out of the way and let an agent handle the showing, McCullen said.

Dressing the house for success is just one phase in the selling process. It's just as important to price right for a quick sale.

Magnificent: How else to describe this thoroughlymodern Mediterranean design by Des-Rosiers, which will soon be built in Bloomfield Hills. Its temple facade, rotunda foyer, stairs, balconies and verandas are just a small taste of what this house has to offer.

Pure residential splendor

Louis DesRosiers likes to think of himself as everyman's architect, but his wondrous residentials are clearly the mark of a special and unique talent.

By Chris McCosky

As a businessman, Louis DesRosiers is a picture of practicality and pragmatism. He says things like, "If an architect is truly talented, he should be able to design a front door as well as a 20,000 square foot home with the same quality level and detail."

Or, he'll tell you: "Successful architecture balances economy, efficiency and environment.'

He will go to great lengths to amplify the impressive diversity of his work: He does renovations, he does office buildings and myriad commercial and industrial projects, he does the built-in cabinetry and even oversees the landscaping.

But it's when he shows you a portfolio of his homes that you get your first real sense of Louis DesRosiers the architect. Just as Irwin Shaw's true art was crafting short stories, even though he won considerable wealth and fame through his novels and screenplays; just as Michelangelo's true art was sculpting, even though he won virtual immortality as a ceiling painter, DesRosiers' mark, however loudly he'll protest, will be his lavish, large-scale luxury homes, not his renovations or office buildings.

Tour de DesRosiers

Oh, I hate the word 'luxury' said DesRosiers, whose architectural firm is based in Bloomfield Hills. "And don't call them 'Custom' homes. I hate that word. Call them architecturally designed homes."

Call them magnificent. To flip through his portfolio is like taking a drive through a subdivision of the rich and famous, you can almost picture Robin Leach doing the narration:

'And here is a splendid French Norman Chateau, where this man's home truly is his castle. The exterior is constructed of rough hewn limestone blocks and stucco with smooth limestone trim. Step inside and you are led into a three-story circular tower ascending to a skylight. You can't help but envision French royalty in the two-story Great Room set off and enhanced with arches and columns. And, of course, there's the breathtaking master suite complete with its Romeo and Juliet balcony.

"Next stop is this awe-inspiring Mediterranean. This home (which is actually being built on an in-land lake in Bloomfield Hills) is graced at the front by a temple facade into which is nestled a rotunda foyer some 22-feet in diameter. Also notice the curvilinear stairs and balcony and the twin colonnaded veranda which looks out to the lake. Inside, you can travel each of the four floors via elevator. With its free standing round columns and articulated pier colonnades, its observation deck on the roof and its walkout to the lake from the bottom floor, this home is fit for a prince.

We move now to an architectural style that is a Louis DesRosiers original, perhaps his signature piece: a modernization of the Atlantic shingle design which has its roots in the great Victorian homes on the Atlantic coast. You can't help but fall in love with the serenity of the geometric shapes of the natural wood and cedar shanks interwoven with the Michigan field stone, the turrets, eye-brow windows and beveled glass and port holes. This house looks right at home on the shores of Michigan's Great Lakes . . .

Enough, already. This is not what DesRosiers the businessman wants to hear.

"Please don't make me out to be the architect of the rich," he

OK, he's not the architect of the rich. His is a full-service architectural firm. No job's too big, no job's too small. But forgive us for using this newspaper space to gape and marvel at these dream

"Don't call them dream homes," he said. "Most of my clients read your paper and they own these homes. They aren't dreams to them.'

True enough. DesRosiers' homes can be seen throughout the lakes regions of Oakland County (Heron Bay, Orchard Lake, Pine Lake) as well as on the shores of Lake Michigan near Harbor

20th Century traditional

Among the many distinguishing qualities of his work - not the least of which is a price range from $400,000 to $4 million — are his use of glass and open spaces. DesRosiers' homes have the feel of being close to or part of nature.

"Ninety percent of our homes are built on water," said DesRosiers, whose father Arthur DesRosiers designed the renowned St. Hugo's of the Hills Church. "We knew what our clients pay for these properties, so we use enormous expanses of glass to en- ing." hance those panoramic views. One of my personal goals for every home I do is that you be excited every time you come home. You should never be bored to come punks, elegant worden floors and home and walk into your bouse.

DesRosiers' early residential work featured what he calls, "altra-slick" contemporaries. He only recently turned traditional.

The biggest change in the last five to eight years is that America has rediscovered traditional architecture," he said. "What we are doing is 20th century traditional, with up-to-date, state-of-the-art open floor plans with with traditional exteriors. It's very excit-

"Our concepts are an expression of our client's personality and lifestyle. DesRosiers said. We take the client's wish list and then apply our own professional creative talent. What we come un with is a house that is an example of our architectural interpretation of their lifestyle."

What DesRosiers comes up with, essentially, are homes that make their owners feel very special, and leave the rest of us awed

Rather than include permanent ofor - such as tiles - in the kitchen. Sutta likes to depend on rugs, drapes, chair cushions and collections for adding changeable

"I wanted the background to remain neutral so I would have as much flexibility as possible."

On the other hand, Brown likes to use white as a subtle, elegant background for permanent but classically colored materials: blue tiles, clay-red granite and warmly stained floors.

"I love the contrasts," she says. If all these advantages get you excited about white, be prepared when you make the trip to the paint store. You may think you only have to ask for white paint, but you'll soon discover that you must pick from as many as 160 shades of white.

So how do you choose?

Sutta suggests reviewing paint chips in the store, then choosing three shades of warm white. "I would pick at least three colors of white;" she says. "Maybe one that looks slightly pink, one that looks slightly yellow and maybe one that looks slightly beige."

Buy quarts of the shade you select. Then take them home and try them out in side-by-side swaths on the wall.

"I always paint a huge section," says Sutta. "At least a 4-by-4-foot square. Then I leave them on the wall for two or three days. I look at them in the morning light, in the midday light, in the evening light, and also in artificial light. That way, I can see how they change and what kind of character each shade gives off."

Sutta cautions against purchasing a pure white paint with no warm tint to it. "Even though it's white," she explains, "when you get it into the room, it will turn blue and give off a cold, sort of icy feeling."

Once you've got your shade of white pinned down, you can move on to accent colors. Brown depended on her collections to help her choose a shade of blue for tiles, fabrics and wallpaper. Sutta agrees this is a good approach.

Stripping: An ugly job but you can do it

You can remove most finishes from wood with a chemical stripper and a little elbow grease. Here's a quick how-to guide:

Stripper types

A semipaste stripper is generally the best choice for furniture. It works well on vertical and grooved surfaces and evaporates slowly. Follow the instructions on the container so you won't damage the wood.

Strippers come in two formulas. Those containing methylene chloride work in about 10 to 30 minutes. They dry quickly and can be hazardous to use.

Caution: When using a chemical stripper, work in a ventilated area away from any open flames. Work outdoors if possible. Don't smoke. Keep children and pets away from the work area. Wear old clothes, cottonlined neoprene gloves and safety goggles. Store scrapings in a disposable can

Water-base strippers do as good a job but take at least a couple of hours or even overnight. They are non-toxic, non-flammable and keep the dissolved finish soft for hours. However, the water will raise the wood grain, so plan on sanding the stripped wood.

Avoid the hot-lye baths used by some commercial dip-strip shops. They can discolor the wood and dissolve the glue that holds the veneers and joints in place. Shop workers may also damage the wood with excessive scraping or wire brushing.
If a shop dip-strips with methylene chlo-ride, however, it may be fine for non-delicate pieces. Also, a professional hot-lye bath may be the only way to remove paint deeply embedded in open grain wood.

Some wood will retain deep blotches of old stain, water damage or other discolorations. As an example, the tannin in oak reacts with the iron in nails to form deep, dark spots. Try sanding or bleaching to remedy the Simple laundry bleach may do the job. If it doesn't, try a commercial two-step wood bleach and follow the directions on the label. When using either type protect your hands and eves

Preparation plan

To strip the furniture you will need an ample supply of remover and several old or inexpensive paint brushes; some strippers recommend nylon bristles. Once a brush is used for stripping, it is unfit for any other purpose. You should also have a coffee can or painter's bucket. Pour some remover into this container and work from it while keeping the main supply capped.

Remove all hardware before you start and soak it in stripper if you need to remove paint or varnish from it.

Applying the stripper

Strip a single section at a time with methylene chloride so the mixture of dissolved finish and stripper won't dry before you can remove it. As much as possible keep the surface horizontal, turning the piece as

Apply a heavy coat of stripper, brushing it on generously with as few strokes as possible and going with the grain in one direction. The thicker the coat, the better. Don't brush it out. Let the remover work for the time directed. Most strippers will blister and wrinkle the finish. Others do not and must be tested with the edge of a putty knife to see if the stripping is completed.

Next step: Scraping

Scrape off the softened finish with a blunt-edge, round-cornered putty knife or wooden scraper. Work with the grain. Scrape carefully, particularly with the putty knife; the wood will be temporarily softened and can easily be scarred or gouged.

When scraping pay particular attention to joints and carved surfaces. A textured plastic pad, burlap or coarse steel wool conforms to round or curved shapes to scour off softened finish. Turn the pad frequently to expose a clean surface. A stiff toothbrush, brass-bristled brush or rope of steel wool can be used to scrub finish from turned and carved work without damaging the detail. Twine or coarse string gets into narrow channels. Wrap sandpaper around a block of wood to clean finish from right angles and corners. Wrapped dowels are handy for cleaning finish from moldings.

The final steps

Even if some finish remains on the first section, continue stripping the rest of the piece. Then, using fresh remover and clean tool, reattack the stubborn sections until all of the wood is bare. If remover drips onto a clean section, wipe it off with gum turpen-

For final cleaning, use fine steel wool dipped in the remover and wipe the surface thoroughly with a clean cloth. Some removers require a wash-down with water or paint thinner or mineral spirits.

Diana: Part of her charm is her roof lines, wraparound porch, pillars and brick wall. Another is her spacious and cleverly laidout interior.

Landmark design has festive feel

Playful roof lines, a wraparound porch and a uniquely shaped brick wall provide a permanent festive appearance to the Diana, a large country-style home designed by Landmark Designs of Eugene, Or.

A detailed sketch from Diana M. Smith, a U.S. Postal worker from Norfolk, Va., provided the inspiration for this design. Hence its name.

Before you enter, you have to notice the classy round pillars and the conversation bench. OK, now go inside.

Step into the grand foyer with a two-story ceiling. To the left, faceframe display cabinets nestle under a staircase that sweeps up to the second floor.

Elegant columns flank the opening to a sunken living room, two steps down from the entry. Windows in a curved bay fill this large space with light. Over there, across the room, is a corner wood stove with a two-level brick or stone hearth. · Hungry? Well, you have a couple of choices. Formal dining takes place in the spacious dining room. In the kitchen you can snack at the eating bar or have a coffee in the sunny bayed nook. If you want carry out, there's the screened porch or the deck.

If your job is cooking the meal, you are going to like the skylit kitchen with its walk-in pantry and three-section sink that faces the garden window, and its central work island with an additional veggie sink. There is space for a freezer directly across from the second set of stairs. Utilities and a pull-down ironing board are in a pass-through space which leads to a two-car garage with built-in work bench and storage cabinets.

The third stairway is in the master suite, which features a circular sitting bay and window seat. walk-in closets and a private bathroom that you get to by walking under a neat archway of glass blocks.

All right, let's go upstairs for a minute. There's a library or loft overlooking the entry. There are the two bedrooms, the guest suite and, over there, that's an exercise room with a covered balcony.

Nice, huh? To take a closer look at Diana (Plan No. 403-26), send $9 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-OE48, Eugene, Or. 97402. You have to specify the plan number and name. A collection of plan books is available for Floor plan: Diana is a two-story country style design totaling 3,986 square feet, with 771 square feet of garage space.

CLARIFICATION

It was incorrectly stated in the July 29 Building Scene section that demand exceeds supply in the Troy office market. In fact, as the rest of the article indicated. supply far exceeds demand.

Social Security...You Get What You Pay For...

You may not have thought about this before, but right now you are earning disability insurance, survivors benefits, a retirement program, and future Medicare coverage. It's all paid for by the Social Security taxes withheld from your paycheck-and matched dollar for dollar by your employer.

And now you can find out just what those taxes are earning for you. It's easy to do and it's free. Just call 1-800-772-1213 and ask for a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement. When you get it, you'll see a complete history of your earnings, the Social Security taxes you've paid, and estimates of what you and your family could receive in Social Security retirement, disability, and survivors benefits.

And if there's an error or omission in your earnings record, Social Security will help you

Social Security—the best deal in town.
