Thomas wins big; Pickering 2nd

The mayoral primary votes are in, and incumbent Robert Thomas has emerged as the clear front runner as he and Councilman Charles Pickering head for a showdown on Nov. 2. Pickering vowed to overcome the mayor's lead.

By DARRELL CLEM

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas declared "a mandate from the people" after crushing his opponents in a landslide victory in Tuesday's primary. And he vowed to widen his lead as he faces Councilman Charles Pickering in the Nov. 2 mayoral election. Thomas, a former public services department worker, and Pickering, a real estate broker and former mayor in 1982-85, emerged as the top two candidates in a bitterly fought primary campaign. Thomas captured nearly 58 percent percent by a nearly 3-to-1 margin in his quest for a second four-year term.

We're going to shoot for 60 percent in the November election," a jubilant Thomas said Tuesday night as he celebrated with his supporters at the city's Friendship Center on Newburgh Road.

Councilman Kenneth Mehl finished third with 18 percent of the vote and trailed Pickering by only 218 votes. With his third consecutive council term expiring Dec. 31, Mehl will be stepping down after 12 years

When asked Tuesday night if he has a political future, Mehl replied, "I don't know. But I'm not going to run and hide."

Mehl, a General Motors Corp. engineer, vowed to throw his support to Pickering. Even so. Pickering conceded he faces an uphill battle to defeat Thomas because his votes and Mehl's

School programs back in business if tax OK'd

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland school officials Monday unveiled $9 million in programs and jobs that will be restored if voters approve a 6-mill tax increase in the special Oct. 18 election.

Busing for junior high and high school students tops the list, along with the reopening of elementary libraries and the restoring of elementary art, music and gym classes.

In a show of unity, the school board unanimously endorsed a 43-point ent Larry Thomas, who conceded his full proposal hinges on passage of the 6-mill tax and an expected increase in state aid of $2 million to $3 million.

The plan followed an outpouring of citizen comments during two separate, four-hour school board sessions that drew crowds of 300 people on Sunday and 150 on Monday.

Thomas' recommendation covered high school extracurricular activities. new textbooks and supplies, a nowstalled five-year building maintenance program, senior citizen programs, fine arts and numerous other programs.

Property owners would pay an additional $6 per $1,000 of state-equal ized valuation if the one-year, 6-mill plan passes. The owner of a typical $80,000 house, with a $40,000 state equalized valuation, would see school taxes increase $240.

The tax campaign, in full swing now, has been given the slogan, "Take a Stand for Kids," — a slogan that board president Francis "Bud'

Winter said came from high school students.

Wayne-Westland voters in April crushed a 6-mill tax proposal and a Headlee Amendment override, ushering in deep budget cuts that mark the district's worst financial crisis ever, Winter said.

No crisis: District's credibility a taxing issue

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

The huge financial hit Livonia Public Schools expected this year from the state didn't happen.

Therefore, the district plans to levy only 0.709 of the 1-mill specially designated property tax increase voters approved Aug. 31.

The district, which includes the

The budgetary changes proposed by Superintendent Joseph Marinelli led to heated debate Monday among trustees. Two trustees. Ken Timmons and Joe Laura, argued that Livonia shouldn't tap into the I-mill because its finances had substantially improved. They said administrators had promised taxpayers it wouldn't use the money if it didn't need to do so.

'In the interest of credibility, especially if we have to go to the voters for enrichment millage down the line, to use seven-tenths of this mill is not credible," said trustee Ken Timmons. "It's a steal and we're not being honest with the taxpayer. You can play

A Westland father is upset with a political sign on a front lawn across from Edison Elementary School, on Hunter near Wildwood, Mark Poma called the Observer Tuesday to protest the language in a "Hell with Mehl" yard sign erected by an opponent of mayoral candidate Kenneth Mehl. Poma said he contacted the police department but was told that the sign couldn't be removed. He thought the sign's language was inappropriate be cause it was in clear view of children attending Edison School.

Something for seniors

The Wayne Ford Civic League is sponsoring three major events for senior citizens. One is a card party to be held from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on the last Monday of each month in the Westland Friendship Center, 1119 N. Newburgh near Marquette. Admission is $2, which includes a light lunch. A dinner-dance for seniors will be held from noon to 4 p.m. on the first Sunday of each month at the Wayne Ford hall, 1661 N. Wayne Road. Fee is $3 for members and $5 for non-members. Music will be provided by the Octaves. For bingo players, games are scheduled for 6:30 p.m. every Wednesday in Joy Manor.

Scholarship winners

Two Westland students at Madonna University have been awarded scholarships. Charlene Guichi ci is the winner of the St. Mary Hospital scholarship. She is a nursing major who is transferring to Madonna from Schoolcraft College, where she has a 3.8 grade point average. Avery Smith is the winner of the George, Caroline and Sr. Mary Angelia Zgoda Family Scholarship.

Campaign committees are seeking tax support in every voting precinct in the 16,500-student district. To help pay for the campaign, the local teachers union, the Wayne-Westland Education Association, is sponsoring a fundraiser at Westland's Bailey Center from 4 to 8 p.m. Sept. 29.

The budget cuts and tax proposal continued to spark controversy Monday at John Glenn High, where the board meeting was held to accommodate a large crowd.

Greg May, an Inkster police officer who is on disability, said he has been driving his daughter to Adams Junior High and his son to Wayne Memorial High every day. His wife works.

'How many kids are not going to school because they don't have a way?" he asked. "If I wasn't on disability right now, there is no way my kids would get to school."

May indicated that his children could eventually have to walk to school, and he warned the board, "If something happens to one of my kids on the way to school, I'll hold each and every one of you responsible.

School officials noted that state law does not require districts to provide transportation.

Westland resident Roberta Paquette told the board that spending on employee salary increases has skyrocketed in recent years, despite a downturn in student achievement.

"If the millage passes, are you going to sink more money into salary increases?" she asked.

Thomas said no money has been set aside in the current budget for salary increases, but added, "We cannot predict what Marinelli and other trustees disagreed.

"During the millage campaign we were questioned many times about what we would do if the state losses were not as large as projected," Marinelli said. "We always responded that we would levy only the millage necessary to fund the designated items which were not restored with available funds. We said we would follow the priority ranking recommended by the budget development committee, as modified slightly by the superintendent.'

Doing so, Marinelli said, means the district only needs to levy .709 of the authorized 1-mill.

The 1-mill property tax increase restores the following programs: 18 elementary art, music, physical education and learning specialist/reading recovery teachers; all high school varsity, junior. varsity, ninth-grade sports and extracurricular activities; and all middle school team sports.

School workers accuse officials of union-busting

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Hourly union workers are accusing Wayne-Westland school officials of "union-busting" for calling in laid-off employees and paying them only half of their negotiated wages.

Shouting union slogans and carrying placards, 90 bus drivers and custodians protested Monday evening in front of John Glenn High School as a school board meeting got under way there.

The protest mirrored another that was staged one day earlier when the school board held a special meeting at the Dyer Center on Marquette.

Members of Local 1483 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees claim that 12 custodians and six bus drivers on layoff are being called to work daily for non-union

"It's a recall without the pay, and it's union-busting," charged Arthur Wood, Local 1483 presi-

Bus drivers are being paid $7.25 an hour but claim they should be paid their union wage of $14.22 an hour. Custodians are receiving $6.50 an hour when they should be getting $12.83, Wood said.

Union leaders say the employees amount to replacement work-wages. But administration officials say the employees are being called in as substitutes and should be paid accordingly.

"I blame the administration, but it seems like the school board is standing by and allowing it to happen," Wood said.

Bus driver Denise Thomas, protesting outside of John Glenn, said hourly workers are not only being cheated out of their pay, but also won't receive sick days, holidays and vacation.

"Sub pay, no way!" the workers shouted as they marched along Marquette in front of John Glenn. They had earlier protested directly in front of the school, but Westland police arrived on the scene and ordered them to the street.

When asked to respond to charges of union-busting, Superintendent Larry Thomas said Tuesday, "I don't understand that comment."

Union employees — not outside workers — are being called in, he noted, and district officials are willing to sit down at the bargaining table to discuss the heated dispute with union leaders. A meeting is expected as early as Board trustee Leonard Posey remarked during Monday's meeting that the workers' protest is 'ill-timed" and "unproductive." He urged them to take their complaints from the streets to the bargaining table.

Thomas said officials are willing to work with union leaders for a clearer definition of what constitutes a replacement worker.

Union leaders pointed to a contract clause that states: "Union employees on full layoff may be used as replacements and will be paid at the rate of pay they received before lavoff."

But administration officials consider the employees as substitutes at this point - not replacement workers.

The workers drew strong support at Monday's meeting from Charlie Copeland of Westland, an executive board member of the United Auto Workers Local 735.

Custodian Carol Gillentine said she plans to seek a state attorney general's opinion on whether the workers may protest in front of schools. The Westland resident said she is miffed that she and others were not allowed to protest in front of John Glenn, even though they pay taxes to the school district.

Friday's meeting could help to avert costly arbitration on the issue. It also could ease tensions at a time when school officials want a united district in seeking the 6-

School plan will let groups hire sound-light technicians

Local sound-audio technicians, if you need a job, contact Jack Kirksey (523-9287) at Livonia Public Schools.

Starting immediately, local groups can hire free-lance, temporary technicians to run the sound and lighting systems at the district's three high schools when they put on a production, said Ken Watson, director of secondary education.

Names of technicans-for-hire will come from a list now being put together by Kirksey, Watson

"We can't hire; it will become a cost to these groups," Watson said. "We're out of the business of providing that service. District keys in on school security

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

To beef up school security, a full-time Wayne police officer is expected to be stationed at Wayne Memorial High School as early as November.

The proposal comes as Wayne-Westland school officials continue to seek ways to make schools safer, amid growing concerns about school violence. Several students have been caught carrying guns, knives and other weapons in recent years.

The latest proposal underscores a joint effort by school officials and the Wayne Police Department to improve security at Wayne Memorial.

I hope this thing goes, because l firmly believe in it," said Wayne police Chief John Colligan, addressing some 150 parents at Monday's school board meeting.

The school district and the Wayne City Council would split the officer's salary, paying $22,000 to $23,000 each to have the unarmed, plainclothes officer stationed at Wayne Memorial.

A similar effort has not shown results in Westland, where the city has no money budgeted for a police officer at John Glenn High School. But Thomas indicated the district, alone, may try to hire a security officer, possibly a retired police officer.

The district had initially considered hiring a security firm to watch schools, but that proposal has been ditched. Board trustee Leonard Posey raised concerns that Wayne Memorial may have a police officer while John Glenn does not, and he strongly urged the administration to try to correct the inequity.

"I would hate to see that we go too far into the school year and have something for one community and not for the other," he said.

To enhance security at the district's four junior highs, Thomas noted that Westland and Wayne police officers involved in the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program will soon begin spending part of their time in the junior highs.

Colligan stressed that he views the Wayne Memorial officer as an 'ambassador" or "liaison" between the police department and the school. The Wayne City Council still must approve the plan before it could go into effect.

The proposal calls for a threeyear contract, with the school district and the city agreeing to split

Livonia schools trim parking fees

By Marie Chestney Staff Writer

Livonia school district officials have whittled a possible $50 yearly parking fee for high school students down to $20.

And only $5 of that amount will be paid by students who use their car for transportation home after a high school activity ends.

'It doesn't seem unfair. It's in the ballpark with what other school districts are doing," said Ken Watson, director of secondary education, whose district includes the northern section of Westland.

Charging students to park was one of numerous money-raising or cost-saving tips proposed by the 10 members of the district's revenue enhancement advisory committee, which met late last year.

The suggestions ranged from privatizing food service to having employees pay more for prescriptions to hiring part timers as night custodians.

All high school students who drive will now be charged a $5 processing fee to get a permit to park in the school parking lot.

Students who drive for reasons other than participation in afterschool activities will be charged $20 per year, Watson said.

Students who drive because they need a way to get home after an afternoon school activity will only pay a $5 processing fee, not the full $20 yearly fee, he said.

'The vast majority of students who drive drive because they need transportation after an activity is over," Watson said.

Earlier this summer, the district tentatively set the fee at $50. A rosier financial picture has let the district set a lower fee, Wat-

The $50 fee led to complaints from parents, Watson said. "Based on the financial needs of the district, we think $20 is a reasonable compromise.'

Students will pay the processing fee and, if applicable, the $20 parking fee when their application to park is approved.

The parking fee helps pay the costs of parking lot attendants who monitor the lots at the three high schools. Westland students in the Livonia district attend either Churchill or Franklin highs.

2,079 and Mehl's 1,861. Three other candidates trailed far behind, with Kenneth Raupp placing fourth with 180 votes, Doug Noel finishing fifth with 128 votes, and Louis Telerico Jr. coming in last with 88 votes.

The top candidates seemed impressed that 10,304 voters went to the polls, marking a nearly 20percent turnout among the city's 52,242 registered voters. City clerk Diane Fritz had predicted a 15 to 16 percent turnout.

Thomas won in 39 of the city's 41 voting precincts. Mehl narrowly captured two precincts while Pickering, ironically, won none. Thomas buried his opponents in absentee ballots, garnering 1,475 votes to Mehl's 351 and Pickering's 324.

Thomas, 43, attributed his landslide victory to his administration's efforts to provide city ■ Councilman Kenneth Mehl finished third with 18 percent of the vote and trailed Pickering by only 218 votes. With his third consecutive council term expiring Dec. 31, Mehl will be stepping down after 12 years on council.

"We go out and give the people services, and that's the key issue," he said. "You pay your tax dollars, and you want something in return. We're giving that to them."

Thomas predicted that Pickering and his supporters "are going to have to get nasty" to try to overcome his lead, but he said he will continue a positive campaign and predicted an easy victory in November.

But Pickering, 50, said he believes he can change the momentum of the campaign between now and Nov. 2.

"The first round is over, and you have to consider it a success, he said, amid supporters at his campaign headquarters in the Fil-Mor strip mall on Wayne Road, north of Ford.

Pickering accused Thomas of using the city's cable station, WLND, for political purposes and said the mayor has tried to decide the mayoral race for the people.

"Now it's time for the people to make that decision, and we're going to help people make that decision," he said.

Pickering vowed to attack Thomas' leadership abilities and said he will compare his longtime commitment to the city to that of

"The only time anyone has seen anything of Bob Thomas is since he has been mayor," Pickering said. 'I think he's an illusionist." Pickering said of Thomas. "He has done a great job of creating an illusion. Pickering indicated he may step up his efforts to get his message across on cable television.

"Everybody is going to have the same opportunity to see me as they will to see (Thomas)," he Pickering said he hopes the two can square off in "as many de-bates as possible" during the mayoral campaign. And, despite the huge lead that Thomas has coming out of the primary, Pickering vowed to narrow the gap. "We're going to meet the challenge," he said.

ANNAPOLIS HOSPITAL EMERGENCY

Sometimes a good neighbor...

...can be a real lifesaver.

Welcome to advanced medicine that's right in the neighborhood.

Accidents happen. Fortunately, Annapolis Hospital is nearby and ready to serve all the health care needs of you and your family — including the emergencies.

Our newly renovated Emergency Department now includes state-of-the-art medical technology. We've redesigned our treatment, triage and waiting areas to provide quicker treatment. And we've expanded our specially trained staff of nurses and physicians including physicians who are board certified in lifesaving Emergency Medicine — to better handle emergencies big and small.

The caring professionals at Annapolis also provide a full range of medical services beyond emergency care. What's more, Annapolis is part of the Oakwood Health Care System - one of southeastern Michigan's leading health care providers. And that includes the support of more than 1,100 physicians representing nearly every specialty and subspecialty in the Oakwood system.

Neighbors come in all shapes and sizes. And so do emergencies. But you can count on Annapolis and the Oakwood family of hospitals and health care professionals. We're always growing to serve you better and we think you'll be glad to have us so nearby.

Pets prove to be terrific tonic for area elderly

Livonia's Middlebelt Nursing Care Center is going to the dogs, and the cats, too.

Twice a month a group of dedicated western Wayne County residents turn pet chauffeur to transport any number of canine and feline mammals to the nursing home to kibitz with the residents.

'It's probably one of the most meaningful things I've done," said Canton Townsip resident Marilyn Lehmann, who accompanies her dog Brandy to nursing homes as part of the Pet-A-Pet Brandy, Lehmann said, enjoys the trips as much as the nursing home residents do. The dog traditionally wears a red scarf on these trips, and when Lehmann gets that scarf out Brandy "just sits by it and she's so happy. This is what she was bred for. She knows what to do when she sees somebody in a wheelchair.'

Typically the pets merely do what comes naturally, i.e. seek affection wherever it can be found.

cat and put it on somebody's lap the whole hour and it just sits and purrs.'

> Ruth Curry Volunteer

The seniors will often remember a pet they owned long ago, or perhaps one they left behind when they moved to the nursing home.

Juanita Emeigh, an activities assistant at the Middlebelt center, can testify to the efficacy of mixing dogs and seniors.

"It makes a big difference when they see these animals come in.' she said. "All the rest of the day they're lit up.'

In a letter to the Animal Welfare Society, Middlebelt center activity director Karen Morales "The smiles incurred and the mood within our facility after

Wolpe stumps for Dem gubernatorial nod

It was a confident and upbeat Howard E. Wolpe who brought his gubernatorial campaign to the area last Friday for the county Democratic fund-raiser, the Ninth Annual Soapy William Golf Classic at the Shenandoah Country Club in West Bloom-

"John Engler is the issue," Wolpe said. "He's vulnerable, and I'm the candidate to beat him.'

Wolpe is one of at least three announced candidates vying for the Democratic nomination in next year's primary. The others are state Sen. Debbie Stabenow and State Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, both of the Lansing area.

There was no formal program and no name speakers at the annual fund-raiser that traditionally nets thousands of dollars for the county party.

those who would listen. "It's very clear that Engler (the incumbent Republican) is in trouble. Polling shows that voters see him as calloused and indifferent to their concerns.

"Furthermore, he's on the wrong side of the major issues . like car insurance reform, NAFTA and the environment.

"He was nowhere to be found when GM was closing the Willow Run plant and he seemed mean spirited when he did things like close the Lafayette Clinic. Voters see him as supporting the wealthy at the expense of the middle class.

One of those who disputes Wolpe's interpretation, of course, is James M. Alexander, chairman of the Oakland County Republican Party, who was one of the 100 or so golfers who turned out for the fund-raiser.

"Gov. Engler's a lot stronger than Wolpe or the Democrats imagine," said Alexander. "He'll be in good shape to take on Wolpe or any other Democrat.'

Alexander, a Birmingham lawyer, said he bases his optimism on the state of Michigan's economy. "Our employment rate is the best it's been since 1966. We're way ahead of the national aver-

Engler has lots of strengths, Alexander said. But the economy itself should give Engler a boost going into next year's campaign.

Talk like that doesn't daunt

Wolpe, however. He insists voters want a change in part because of the belief among voters that Michigan's economy is shaky at best and poised on the brink of Wolpe, who served 14 years in redistricting in 1992, believes he's the best bet for Democrats.

"I've got the best name recognition," he said. "And I can win - even in Oakland County.' The big reason, Wolpe said, is the strength he demonstrated historically in Republican Kalamazoo and Eaton counties, a large part of the area he represented for more than a decade. "I'm a Democrat. But I get strong support from Milliken Republicans. And strength among Milliken Republicans is something that should make him more attractive to Oakland voters, Wolpe said.

Wolpe's abbreviated list of supporters in Oakland County includes Marvin Meltzer and Robert Colburn of Birmingham, Gary Peters of Rochester Hills, Emery Klein and Rabbi Norman Roman of West Bloomfield, William Brodhead of Bingham Farms and Congress before losing his seat to Richard and Kathryn Lenter of Southfield.

Redford Township resident Ruth Curry is part of the pro-gram, too. She can't claim to have invented it, but she certainly got in on the ground floor, beginning as she did seven or eight years ago when her father lived in the Middlebelt center.

"I'm not good at words," Curry said. "But I know inside how I feel. I know it's God's work."

The nursing home residents, Curry said, find it quite entertaining and/or comforting to have the animals near.

A feline answering to the name 'Momma Cat" is a good example. Characterizing the animal as 'laid back," Čurry said "you can take that cat and put it on somebody's lap the whole hour and it just sits and purrs.

Livonia. "It's a very rewarding thing to do," Kline said. "It can be funny too. Some people could care less; But some cry. They think about the pets they had."

Under the auspicies of the Ani; mal Welfare Society of Southeast; ern Michigan, the Pet-A Pet program is operated almost entirely by volunteers who drive their dogs and cats to various nursing homes, schools and hospitals on one or two particular days per month.

Volunteers and their pets are visiting more than 40 facilities in the metro Detroit area. The program, however, runs only from September through April,

Check lanes are illegal, court says

Vehicle check lanes — a police tool to screen roads for drunken drivers - violate the Michigan Constitution, the state Supreme Court said.

Its 5 to 2 decision ends seven years of litigation that went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court and back again.

It began in 1986 when then Gov. James Blanchard ordered State Police to start a sobriety checkpoint pilot program.

Michigan justices ruled the state constitution and case law have stronger protections against "unreasonable searches and seizurés" than the U.S. Constitu-

"The United States Supreme Cout held that the checkpoint scheme does not constitute a violation of the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution," wrote Justice Patricia Boyle, adding:

Because there is no support in the constitutional history of Michigan for the proposition that the police may engage in warrantless and suspicionless seizures for the purpose of enforcing the criminal law, we hold that sobriety

the Michigan Constitution."

Under Blanchard's program, all motorists were to be stopped at a checkpoint and examined for signs of drunkenness. Suspect drivers would be given a Breathalyzer test.

In the first field test on Dixie Highway in Saginaw County in May of 1986, only two drivers of 126 vehicles were arrested.

A day earlier six lawmakers from both parties asked Wayne Circuit Court for an injunction. They were Reps. Rick Sitz, D-Taylor, Joseph F. Young Sr., D-Detroit, Dominic Jacobetti, D-Negaunee, Dick Allen, R-Shiawassee County, Keith Muxlow, R-Brown City, and Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo. Only Jacobetti and Welborn still are legislators. Young died in office this year.

Joining the legal fray were Mothers Against Drunk Drivers. 17 insurance companies and their associations and the Criminal Defense Attorneys of Michigan.

"No allegations are before us of unreasonable treatment of any person after an actual detention at a particular checkpoint," wrote the constitutionality of stopping all passing motorists.

U.S. Justice William J. Brennan, who retired from the court last year, had encouraged state activism in interpreting state law. Noting court weakening of the U.S. Bill of Rights, Brennan said, "our liberties cannot survive if the states betray the trust the (Supreme) Court has put in them.

Said Boyle: "By the same token, we may not disregard the guarantees that our constitution confers on Michigan citizens merely because the U.S. Supreme Court has withdrawn or not extended such protection.'

Boyle cited a 1924 Prohibition era decision in which the Michigan high court said police "have no right to stop and search an au-tomobile" for liquor "unless they have reasonable grounds of suspicion as to induce in them . . . an honest belief that the law is being violated."

The court said it was "questionable" that there was even statutory authority for the sobriety check lanes.

Boyle's opinion was signed by and Justices Conrad Mallett Jr., Dorothy Comstock Riley and Charles L. Levin.

Dissenting, Justices James
Brickley and Robert Griffin said the majority relied on "the wrong line" of cases.

The cases the majority relied upon deal with individualized yehicle stops, or at least approaches to individual stationary vehicles, to satisfy suspicions about particular vehicles. Not one case deals with the systematic seizure of all vehicles passing through a given point at a given time."

Noting that the Saginaw County checkpoint produced arrests of 1.6 percent of passing drivers, Brickley and Griffin said "the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a success rate of only 0.12 percent."

They noted the Saginaw checkpoint resulted in delays of 25 seconds or less, concluding the "intrusion on motorists is slight."

The dissenters said they were satisfied the state's interest in eradicating drunk driving outweighed the "minimal intrustion the checkpoints visit upon Michigan motorists who are only momentarily stopped.'

Workshop promotes higher ed

the Academic Enhancement Program for the 1993-1994 school

AEP is a workshop designed to encourage young students to pursue higher education.

A $400 donation from Hudson's Westland will enable the university to host 500 students from Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Detroit and Inkster. Participants will visit Madonna University for a day. They will attend 50-minute sessions in sign language, TV production, creative writing and physical and biological science

'The key to this program is to stimulate these students so that they will want to come back every year," said Sister Mary Martinez, director of Madonna University's Office of Multicultural Affairs.

'By attending AEP, students develop academic interests, nurture values for learning and come to the realization that higher education is attainable.

Colleges get extra state aid | I-94 gets Middlebelt exit ramp

State construction money will flow to Oakland Community College, University of Michigan-Dearborn, Eastern Michigan University and Henry Ford Community College under plans approved by state lawmakers.

This is the first time the state has given OCC this kind of a said George Cartsonis, college information officer.

OCC will receive $4.5 million for a total renovation of F Building on the Auburn Hills Campus. OCC will restructure a bond issue to raise its matching share of the $9 million project. The renovation will mean new science labs, computer equipment and classrooms.

'Auburn Hills is our fastestgrowing campus, the largest (of four) and our flagship," said Cartsonis. "It's the center of our technical education.'

The Legislature's Joint Capital Outlay Committee, consisting of senators and representatives on appropriations committee, was notified recently by state budget director Patricia Woodworth that program statements for various projects had been approved.

Drivers leaving Detroit Metropolitan Airport are able to leave I-94 and get on Middlebelt Road this week, the Michigan Department of Transportation announced.

A new ramp connecting eastbound I-94 to northbound Middlebeit has been completed. The ramp will serve both northbound and southbound Middlebelt traffic.

A traffic light will assist traffic flow and permit southbound Middlebelt traffic to turn left (east) onto the new ramp. The signal also will enable traffic to turn from eastbound I-94 onto Middlebelt.

But there's a new obstruction for drivers leaving Metro eastbound for Detroit. As of this week, they will be unable to use the ramp from northbound Merriman Road to eastbound I-94 — the most heavily traveled route from the airport to De-

Hospice support services

Series to focus on children and grief

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc. is offering a free children's grief support series. The sessions are open to children ages 6-15 who have suffered a significant loss of a loved

The classes will meet for six consecutive weeks, beginning Oct. at Douglas Elementary School, Hartel and Maplewood streets, Garden City. The sessions will be 6:30-7:45 p.m., and will conclude with a group memorial service Thursday, Nov. 11.

Our society teaches children how to grow through gaining things like skills, knowledge and possessions, but we don't teach them how to grieve when going through a loss," said Jackie Speen, director of social work/ bereavement at Hospice Services.

The series will help children to explore their thoughts and feelings. The program gives children a safe and shared environment to voice and explore any ideas, concerns or questions they have about death and how it affects gin to feel normal. It can restore their confidence and make the grieving process appear not so frightening, Speen said.

"We can help children to realize that life is a series of gains and losses," she added.

According to Speen, like adults, when children experience the death of someone they love, they grieve. However, children do not grieve the same way that adults grieve. Often their grief includes secret thoughts and fears about death which frighten them. When frightened or confused, children feel alone.

"We need to recognize that children do grieve, and we need to help children to develop tools which will enable them to process grief in a positive and meaningful Speen said. "Once established, these tools can carry them throughout their lifetime. Skilled facilitators will lead the children through a six-week program which covers topics such as reactions and feelings associated with loss, defenses and protecting feelings, support systems, coping and adjusting and affirming one

Hospice Service is able to present the children's grief support series as a result of partial funding from the Women's Committee for Hospice Care. Additional funds for the series came from the ongoing "Dining for Hospice" program at the Plymouth Landing Restaurant. Established in July as a community fund-raiser, the Plymouth restaurant gives Hospice Services a donation of $5 for every patron who buys a din-ner ($2.50 for lunch) and presents a coupon, available at Hospice Services offices in Garden City and Plymouth.

"We all have lost someone who we love and were close to us," said Maureen Butrico, executive director for Hospice Services. "Through programs like this we can help families through what is often one of the most difficult times in their lives.'

The children's grief support classes will be filled on a first come-first serve basis and a special parent orientation session will be 6:30-7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 29, at the school.

Hospice Services offers a range including ongoing bereavement support groups, five-week bereavement educational series, focusing on aspects of the grieving process, memorial services twice yearly for bereaved families, bereavement counseling and referrals and quarterly Hospice Services was established in 1981 to offer compassionate, skilled home to those individuals in the final phase of life. The hospice philosophy gives supportive care which neither hastens nor postpones death, but promotes quality of life and provides comfort and emotional healing for the patient and family members.

With 20 full-time staff member and more than 100 volunteers, Hospice Services provides service to terminally ill patients and their families in western Wayne County, southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties. It maintains offices in Garden City and Plymouth.

Fitness director: People make job

The Y's new fitness director wants to enhance the organization's basic programs, particularly swimming and gymnastics. Christine Cooper started her Y career 11 years ago as a part-time lifeguard.

By Leonard Poger

Christine Cooper walked into a LaGrange, Ill., YMCA armed with a new bachelor's degree in physical education and teaching certificate looking for a job.

Then 24, she was hired as a parttime lifeguard which later developed into a full-time position as swim instructor and swim team coach. Eventually, she became the aquatic director in LaGrange's Rich Port Y branch.

Now, 11 years later, Cooper is settling into her position as director of physical fitness programs at the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA, which serves Garden City and Canton Township.

Cooper admitted she wasn't looking for a career with the Y when she first worked in LaGrange.

But she said in an interview last week that she enjoys her job and that "people make my job."

"I'm working with infants through senior citizens and enjoy having the ability to develop programs," Cooper said.

Currently, she is working on the Y's base programs "to make them top notch," particularly in swimming and gymnastics.

"I want to enhance the fitness programs for all ages," she stressed. At the Rich Port Y branch om La-Grange, she administered a $58,000 budget as aquatic director, supervis-ing one full-time staffer, 50 parttimers and 50 volunteers.

Among her key accomplishments were directing the annual "Swim for Youth" campaign, raising $25,000 in Area twins' acting rescues television's '911'

By Joanne Maliszewski Staff Writer

You can't blame them. They feel like movie stars. "Hello, Mrs. Frye. This is James from 911. Your sons got the job," Maureen Frye said, recalling the phone call she received that put her twin sons, Jason and Jonathan, in the television lineup.

The 7-year-old boys spent three days in Toledo on their first acting job. Both played the role of a 6-year-old boy named Wyatt who rode an ATV off an embankment and severed his leg.

"I started screaming," Jason said, when he learned he would be acting for CBS' Rescue 911 show.

in the next season, as early as October, as late as May.

His brother, Jonathan, was just as excited. "I just said it was

Their venture into television came as sort of a fluke. The Northwestern Suburban Mothers of Twins Club contacted Frye. They had called a friend of mine about her girls and asked if she knew anyone with boys.

Jason and Jonathan were asked to audition for the television show, which re-enacts emergencies and rescues involving police, fire and ambulance personnel.

"The show is basically about

Their segment is expected to run heroism and the different people police, fire and emergency and regular people - who go above and beyond the call of duty," said Kevin Shukar, coordinator of Jason and Jonathan's segment. "In this case it was Wyatt's neighbor who was the hero.'

> Friday, Aug. 13, brought good luck to the Fryes. That was the boys' audition day. They didn't have to read script but they did answer questions, such as what they did on their summer vacation.

"I told them we got a hot tub," Jason said.

Frve said she wasn't surprised the boys got the job - especially after seeing Wyatt whom the boys played. "They look alike," Frye said, adding her sons' hair was darkened to match Wyatt's.

Jonathan explained that his brother, Jason, showed the director and crew at the audition that he could pretend to be sick.

"I had to lay on the ground with a fake leg on. My real leg was in the ground (in a hole)," Jason said

When the three-day shoot began in Toledo, Jason and Jonathan took turns playing Wyatt. "They used a stuntman," said Jonathan, referring to re-enacting the ATV flying off an embankment.

The former movie theater at Plymouth and Farmington roads was proposed as a performing arts center for community groups after the illfated Omni Star Theater bit the dust and before the George Burns Performing Arts Center did the same.

The proposal for a community performing arts center never really got off the ground, although the idea certainly attracted interest.

While cities have little money for supporting such cultural facilities on an individual basis, there is the possibility that several western Wayne County suburbs can join in a cooperative effort, such as Westland now does with its

Under that concept, the Mai Kai could be used by various performing arts groups which are partly supported by local residents.

No one performing arts group can afford to pay the level of rental fees that would be needed to keep the center operating. And we really can't rely much on help from the Michigan Council for the Arts. But there are musical groups which would fill a schedule of concert dates on a ticket basis that would help pay part of the fare.

If public high school auditoriums are unavailable throughout the suburbs, then will a new demand be created in the cultural marketplace? It may be time to revive hopes and dreams for the best use of the old Mai Kai.

Such a notion may be more feasible now than a few years ago. Now is a good time to study the feasibility -- considering that the parking lot at Plymouth and Farmington roads lies fallow am pleased to be able to thank Congressman Joe Knollenberg for his support of the Andrews amendment, which prevented economic conversion money from being used for arms export, as weapons manufacturers would have liked. Mr. Knollenberg's reasoning, according to his aide, was "Economic Conversion is economic conversion and it is not fiscally responsible to taxpayers" (to divert conversion funds to arms sales, generally). I think Mr. Knollenberg's reasons are good ones.

Knollenberg vote praised

I also think it is fiscally irresponsible to have a military budget of $274.4 billion (FY '94) and allot a meager $0.42 billion for breast cancer research and development at a time when one out of seven women will develop breast cancer (and that's without a family history.) I think it is fiscally irresponsible to ask for $60 billion for South Korea to defend itself against North Korea and $4.2 billion for Head Start.

Using weapons production as a jobs program in order to sell arms abroad to potential future enemies, as we did in Iraq, is bad national security policy. (I don't remember the federal government subsidizing the auto industry during Detroit's down time).

A budget is a statement of priorities. We need to redefine national security in terms of the health and welfare and future of our country. A strong defense is absolutely necessary. What we have is a grossly bloated military budget. That is fiscally and morally irresponsible.

Unplug that cable

ait a minute: "A gross injustice is committed when those who can least afford basic cable rates find them rising, while those who can most afford the niceties like remote controls and premium channels get a price break" (Observer & Eccentric editorial of Sept. 2)? Give me a break. If you can't afford it, then you shouldn't subscribe to it.

Frankly, I think you are doing your children a great injustice by exposing them to all the evils that cablevision has to offer and feel you would be better off depositing the average cost of $20 per month multiplied by 12 months — $240 per year - multiplied by 13 years (children in school), or $3,120. Granted, this won't cover their education bill, but I certainly would not throw $3,000 away, either.

If a citizen wants to be informed of important local issues, they will find out what they want to know. When there's a will, there's a way! I would really like to know how many cable subscribers actually tune into the city council meetings, school board meetings and candidate forums. If you watch your local news station and/or read the newspaper you will be informed. Why do you think we have the TV news and newspapers?

I simply cannot see paying to see what I have named "Garbage TV," such as old reruns of "Hill Street Blues," "Miami Vice," "CHiPS," Save your money and tune into your local channels. Better yet - open a book.

Governor's shell game bodes ill for taxpayers

What is going on in Lansing? It is beginning to look more and more like a shell game being played by Gov. Engler and the Legislature, while the rest of us try to figure out where they are intending to hide the pea.

First, the governor and the majority of legislators decided to eliminate the property tax for schools in one fell with no clear-cut idea on how they will be able to come up with an acceptable replacement tax plan by the end of the year.

Then they began deliberations on ways to find the money they will need to fund schools without resorting to property taxes. One of the governor's confidentes has suggested that it would be a good idea to start by taking money away from local governments and using it for the school districts.

The local governments, according to Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, may be able to recoup their loss by getting some of the property tax revenue which used to go to the schools.

Some logic. Bullard, co-chair of the House Tavation Committee, has introduced bills to wipe out personal property tax revenue as a means of revenue for local communities.

Shell game

Gov. Engler is the premier shell game operator who has a number of agendas hiding under the various shells, very few of which are being revealed to the public.

But in the process of maneuvering the taxation pea around, the governor is insisting that it take a shape and form which is adaptable to his political

In 1972, the residential sector was 45 percent of the tax base. In 1975, the state exempted inventories from the personal property tax and the next year, the residential property percentage of the tax base increased to 53 percent. It is now up to 61 percent.

If personal property taxes were eliminated and replaced by property tax millage, the residential percent of the tax base would go up to 71 percent.

Under this kind of shell game, it is the local governments which would be blamed for an increased property tax of local residents.

The beneficiaries, of course, would be business and industry which is getting support from the governor's office.

Local government hurt

Little consideration is given to local communities — the cities, townships and counties which have been relying on fairly predictable sources of revenue. Even these sources have been frequently tampered with by the state government.

There is no doubt that almost every local government that used to depend on a stable, predictable income is in jeopardy.

GUEST COLUMNIST

In many cases it appears the tax plans coming out of Lansing may decimate local services.

The state has shown a pattern over the years: On the one hand, write new legislation mandating that local communities provide some kind of service. On the other hand, take revenue away from the local communities.

Gov. Engler is being credited with now pushing a plan to cut revenue sharing to local governments, including counties, cities and townships.

The revenue sharing formula was devised in the '70s to help urban areas, particularly the city of Detroit. Cutting revenue sharing to local governments would mean the city of Detroit would lose $206 million the first year. Wayne County would lose $40 million. Dearborn $9 million, Livonia $8.5 million, Taylor $7 million and Westland $6.9 million.

Personal property tax

The personal property tax loss would mean communities in Wayne County would lose $103.8 million the first year Wayne County would lose $38.7 million, more than 10 percent of its budg-

If these cuts were to be put into effect without adequate replacements, cities and townships might well have to lay off police officers and close fire sta-

Personal property taxes are those taxes placed on industry and business for equipment used in manufacturing. It has been a steady source of taxation over the years.

In 1975, the state Legislature decided to cut equipment inventories from the personal property tax formula and replace them with a fixed payment from the single business tax. That fee has not changed in 18 years while the cost of living has gone up 151 percent.

Next year, under the bill which cut out the property tax, the Legislature puts into effect a freeze on assessment increases. This means Wayne County and other communities will lose significantly. Wayne County will have to do with $9 million less than it would have had if there was no freeze.

If these kinds of actions continue, we might as well lock up our city and township halls and turn the keys over to the state government and let them. operate the local police department, fire department and myriad of services that local governments have managed

Schools, government connected

There is little doubt that many of the efforts being considered to fix the school financing problem will have an impact on local government and on local residents.

If Wayne County, for example, were to lose its share of the personal property tax and had to rely on increased property tax to recover the lost revenue to provide the same services that we are now providing — our millage rate would have to go up from 7.6 mills to 9.3 mills, a 21 percent increase.

The same kind of increase would be necessary if we were to lose revenue sharing funds.

Watching the shell game in Lansing is getting to be a frustrating and alarming experience. Without public awareness of what is going on there is liable to be an extremely complicated switching of shells with property owners paying far too highly to be part of the carnival.

Nearly five years later, she won her case in the Michigan Court of Appeals, but she still doesn't have her car or money back because the prosecutor is taking the case to the Supreme Court.

For a $600 car? Yep. It's embarrassing, but you deserve to know what the government is doing. J.C., Tina's husband, drove the car to a Detroit neighborhood which the prosecutor calls a "vice market."

J.C. picked up Kathy, who had a police record as a lady of the evening. They parked. Police pulled up, shone their flashlight into the car, and observed Kathy performing fellatio on Police say the old Pontiac was a nuisance under this statute: "Any building, vehicle, boat, aircraft or place used for the purposes of lewdness, assignation or prostitution or gambling . . . is declared a nuisance" that may be "enjoined and abated" in court. In short, government may take the property in which those deeds were committed.

In a 2-1 ruling, the Court of Appeals. reversed, saying there was no proof of prostitution, and the old Pontiac had been used only once so it couldn't be called a "nuisance."

'It's a matter of principle," said Larry Roberts in the prosecutor's office. "Communities in Wayne County are seizing cars of johns. There are very, very few repeat offenders. If it were a matter of one prostitute on one corner, I wouldn't go to the Supreme Court Myself, I have a strong suspicion Michigan is marching toward a police state as it gives ever more Draconian "tools" to cops.

Practical ways of running government are quick fix obody challenges the fact that government doesn't work well. The dispute comes in what to do about it.

The right wing believes government can never work, and therefore the solution is to cut it (and taxes), no matter what. The left wing believes that government would work if only we spent much more money on it.

There is, however, a small but growing bunch of practical folks who believe that if you understand just why government is "stuck on dumb" (as somebody said in a seminar l attended last week), you can figure out how to fix it.

That's what last week's to-do about reinventing government was all about. As usual, the mainstream media - the TV networks, the Detroit newspapers, the wire services and the assorted Washington-based thumb-suckers - got it entirely wrong.

It's neither an ordinary budget story about dollars saved or bureaucrats laid off. Nor is it a standard Washington political story about who's ahead. It's a story about a fundamental change in the philosophy guiding the management of government.

For decades now, governmental activity (whether local, state or federal) was run by two central doctrines which are at the core of why government does not work:

1. What's important is the amount of money appropriated or authorized (input), not what is actually accomplished (outcomes). If all you count is what you paid, it's certain you got screwed.

2. Anybody who works for government is either a fool or a knave, and therefore their activities must be regulated from the top down with exquisite detail. That's the reason for the 10,000-page personnel manual. That's why managers aren't allowed to go to the local store to buy good (and cheap) mosquito repellent. That's why the most important part of a bureaucrat's world is avoiding audit mistakes.

The folks who want to reinvent government believe quite the opposite.

They want to concentrate on the outcomes: to identify and measure quite precisely the outcomes customers want and the costs required to get them. If they're poor quality or cost too much, it's possible to do something about it.

And they want to do away with regulations and rules and jurisdictions and CYA memos, thereby empowering people in the field to use their heads and make sensible decisions.

Michigan, it turns out, is a hotbed of ordinary folks fixed on the work of reinventing government. Here's an example:

At Oakland Community College, they got interested in the time students (customers!) stood in line to register for classes. Somebody got the bright idea of ignoring the regulations and letting folks register by a touch-tone telephone: Punch in, punch numbers for courses, get alternative times if a section is filled, and pay later.

Two-thirds of OCC students now use this system, registered in under three minutes instead of the 45 minutes for in-person registra-

That's not a national news item, but it's a wonderful example of how concentrating on outcomes and customer satisfaction can make a big difference.

OCC class explores Kennedy's death

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW Staff Writer

What do a library card, an umbrella and a woman in a polka dot dress have in common?

A group of 30-some Oakland Community College students learned Monday that all those things had (or allegedly had) something to do with the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination of President John Kennedy.

With minutiae such as that contributing to the intrigue sur-rounding the Kennedy murder, it's apparent that the larger hody of related data is considerable indeed, and the students who have taken this new OCC course on the Kennedy assassination have a great deal to learn.

The course is taught by the tagteam of history professor Tim Koerner and psychology professor Jim Berry.

Personally, Koerner has "immersed" himself in most everything written about Kennedy's assassination, and has become very skeptical of the Warren Commission report," which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing the presi-

He may have his hands full in that case with student Todd Tucker, a Jackson resident and Kennedy assassination buff who came to OCC just for this course.

Tucker - who has done research, and continues to do research, for several authors of Kennedy books — believes Oswald alone killed Kennedy.

Why take the course if he knows so much already? "I want to see how it is taught, how it sticks to primary sources," he

Yet even this fellow learned something new on the first day of class. He didn't know that Jack Ruby's nickname was Sparky, or that ABC News correspondent Cokie Roberts is the daughter of Warren Commission member Hale Boggs.

Berry and Koerner welcomed Tucker and 32 other students Monday with what they called a "pre-test" to see how much they already knew about the Kennedy assassination.

It's no easy exam, so students are no doubt glad it won't be graded. A few questions were elementary, like what city did the assassination occur in? Others were sufficiently esoteric that Tucker and two other armchair experts in attendance were stumped: Which figure in the intrigue was a Libra? (Oswald). And what was Oswald's I.Q.? (118).

Dennis Bourland is one of the other two students who have made a significant study of the Kennedy assassination. Not your typical college student, Bourland came to OCC just for this course carrying a bag of videotapes on the event and an already thorough knowledge of what happened. "I've got papers, videos, books. You name it I have it," he said.

So what about the library card. the umbrella and the woman in a polka dot dress?

Oswald had someone else's library card in his possession when arrested. An umbrella was quickly opened and closed just before the shots that killed Kennedy were fired. And a woman in a polka dot dress allegedly helped Oswald.

Jackie did it

And how about the weirdest conspiracy theories heard Monday night? Jacqueline Kennedy shot her husband from within the car with a handgun. A man named Tippett switched places with Kennedy, and the former president is still alive (sharing a Kalamazoo apartment with Elvis Presley no doubt).

Plymouth builder heads Madonna fund campaign

James S. Bonadeo, chairman of Bonadeo Builders in Plymouth, is heading the 17th annual Madonna University Corporate Fund Campaign.

The goal is $100,000 for student scholarships, equipment and operational programs. Volunteers will be seeking cash and pledges from more than 1,000 area businesses including those in Livonia, Plymouth, Farmington and Novi. The fund-rasising effort will run on three consecutive Wednesdays and Thursdays beginning Sept. 29 and ending Oct. 14.

A member of Madonna University's Board of Trustees, Bonadeo will direct a group of corporate fund co-vice chairs including: Charlotte Mahoney, Detroit Edison; Peter Ventura, Wonderland Realty Co.; Barbara Kropiewnicki, Uniglobe Port-to-Port Travel Co.; Donald DiComo, KDA-CM; Jack McGowan, First of America-Security and Jerry Raymond, attorney.

Also serving are Madonna University trustees Bill Connor, Norquick Distributing Co.; Leslie Rose, Fidelity Bank; Leo Obloy, Special Drill and Reamer Crop; Thomas Murphy, Spring Arbor Distribution Co.; Elizabeth Stevens, Cold Heading Co, and Lawrence Wisne, Progressive Tool & Industries Co.

'We are fortunate to have in our midst women and men whose talents support our mission of education for truth and service," said Sister Mary Francilene Van de Vyver, Madonna president.

A MESSAGE TO MICHIGAN'S SMALL BUSINESSES:

PARTICIPATING DOCTORS AND HOSPITALS ACCEPT OUR REIMBURSEMENT AS FULL PAYMENT FOR COVERED SERVICES.

In most cases, all you or your employees have to pay are deductibles and co-payments. And no matter how small your company, that means you get the same good deal we give our largest group customers.

When you and your employees go to Blue Cross Blue Shield participating doctors and hospitals, we pay them directly for covered services. They've signed agreements to accept our allowed amounts as full payment for covered services. Why? Because almost four and a half million Michiganians are Blues members. Most physicians have a lot of our members as patients, and join the Blues to better serve them.

THE NUMBERS WORK FOR YOU.

Who participates with us? All 195 Michigan community hospitals. Three out of four physicians in the state. And 99 percent of all pharmacies.

Plus, as a Blues group, you gain the clout of the largest corporations because you're in partnership with them—and with us—to purchase health care economically.

That's value. And it's the kind of value you only get with Blue Cross Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of Michigan. For more information, contact your local independent insurance agent or a Blue Cross Blue Shield sales representative.

clocked in 4:58.41. The Zebras finished sixth in four events: 200 medley - Christie Brumlow, Tiffany Morningstar, Tammy Raines and Becker (2:12.39); 800 freestyle - Debbie Maniez, Pardee, Henderson and Melissa Morningstar (10:32.88); 200 butterfly

The diving trio of Melissa Boettcher, Shelly Woods and Rachael Masters finished seventh to score 100 points.

Wayne also gained a pair of eighth places: 200 backstroke — Maniez, Becker, Brumlow and Bailey (2:30.41); 400 freestyle — West, Bailey Pam Proich, Tiffany Morningstar (4:56.71). (The eighth in the 400 freestyle clinched the title for

Other Stevenson scorers included Chris Hollman (4-2, Erick Giovanni (43) and Craig Gonzalez

The Spartans suffered their first defeat of the season Monday at Hilltop, failling to Plymouth Salem, 218-240. Stevenson is now 2-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Mike Hjelm paced the Rocks with a 40, while Marino Apollinari and Brad Amick each shot 46 for Stevenson. Worthen added a 47.

City rivals can't break deadlock

Soccer rivals Livonia Franklin and Stevenson battled to a scoreless draw in a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover game.

The outcome was right in step with Zero Mostel or perhaps Zero Coupon

A funny thing happened on the way to the Livonia Franklin-Livonia Stevenson soccer game Monday, but in all reality it resembled a boring business transaction as city boys soccer rivals settled for a 0-0 draw.

It was also the second scoreless deadlock between the two schools in as many years.

"Both teams played hard and played to win," first-year Franklin coach Mary Kay Hussey said. "That, along with the emotion of the game made it good game, but there was a lot of kickball.

Stevenson, rated No. 9 in the latest Class A state rankings by the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association, is 2-1-1 overall.

Franklin, last year's Western Lakes Activities Association co-champion, is 3-2-1.

Both teams played without key players.

The Spartans were missing top scorer Nick Deren, who tallied three goals in a 5-0 win Saturday at Birmingham Seaholm. The junior, however, had to sit out Monday's match after being red-carded. (Scott Sersen and Craig Wimmer also scored goals in the win.)

"We didn't have our target man," Stevenson coach Walt Barrett said. 'Without a target man to go into, it changes things for us dramatically.

(Craig) Wimmer filled his shoes in the first half, but he was coming off an ankle injury that kept him out four weeks.

"We got a good jump the first 10 minutes, but that's where it ended.'

Barrett even gave German exchange student Falk Roeding, a call-up from the JV squad, a chance to juice up the Spartans' offense, but to no avail.

"Falk's been scoring at will in the JV games," Barrett said of Roeding. "He's got spirit and he's got those long legs. I was hoping he could make a smashing debut for Stevenson

The Spartans never really got any point-blank shots other than a couple weak ones against Franklin first-vear varsity goalie Scott Simpson, a sen-

"Scott was never really challenged and didn't have to make any outstanding saves, but he did the job," Hussey said.

Franklin's defense, led by junior sweeper Dan Kulick but minus senior defender Dave Binkiewicz (red-carded Friday against North Farmington), deserved kudos for keeping Stevenson off the board.

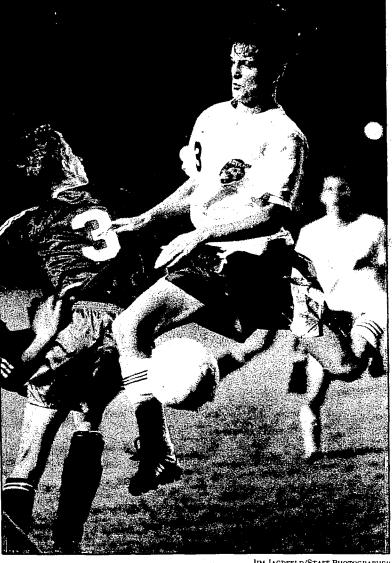

But the Patriots' offensive attack. normally triggered by All-Area striker Victor Rodopoulos and midfielder Jason Buelow, was nearly as inept as the Spartans'.

The dangerous Rodopoulos was covered like a blanket most of the evening by Sersen, a 10th grader.

And when the speedy Franklin senior did get an opening, Sersen's backline mates, juniors Arthur Knack, Justin Walker and Joe Brach, were there to lend support.

"You don't win balls in the air against guys their size," Hussey said. 'We tried to adjust, but nothing real-

Prep prognosticators seeking upset specials

By DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

At last we have a frontrunner in the weekly grid predictions contest between Observer Sports Edi-

Brad Emons took the early lead last week while Dan O'Meara took some heavy hits. If he was a battleship, he'd be at the bottom. Meanwhile, the carrier USS Emons is cruising at full speed like The Big E of WWII fame.

Emons went 12-3 in the second week and is 25-6 overall. O'Meara had a dismal 8-7 performance and

"It's a long season," O'Meara said, sounding more like a coach trying to maintain team morale.

A four-game deficit will be difficult to overcome, and Emons has proven he has a good grasp of Observerland football this year.

But O'Meara takes heart in recalling the Great 'Comeback of 1990 and even last year when he was behind early.

Of the four games on which there was disagreement - Stevenson-Franklin, Harrison-Glenn, Salem-Northville and Farmington-Walled Lake Westall were close but one. Throw out Northville's 31-0 win, and the difference was just 10 points on the scoreboard.

So let's get started on the rest

FRIDAY GAMES (all games 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Edsel Ford (1-1) at Redford Union (0-2), 7 p.m.: The Panthers are struggling and need a win to energize their team. But RU lost by a touchdown to Taylor Truman (27-20) and the first win will be tough to get from the Thunderbirds, who defeated Garden City 22-17. PICKS: Edgel is no lemon

Ply. Salem (1-1) at Liv. Stevenson (2-0): The Rocks have to regroup after the ellacking administered by Northville. They have another challenge in the unheaten Spartans, who had an impressive start with wins over RU and Franklin. Saiem must get tougher in the line where it began the season with inexperience and will face another huge front at Stevenson. PICKS: In the upset special of the week

GRID PICKS

O'Meara takes Salem, but Emons favors

Liv. Churchili (0-2) at Plv. Canton (1-1): The Chargers are winless and scoreless in two games, but there hasn't been any blowouts. Churchill lost 10-0 to Dearborn and 16-0 to Walled Lake Central Canton recovered from a disappointing first-game loss to Monroe and railied behind the leadership of senior quarterback Kevin Shankie to down North Farmington 20-3. PICKS: Canton is chief in this Westland Glenn (2-0) at W.L. Central (2-0): Because of the records, this game looks like one of the tops in the area. But we shouldn't get too wrapped up in the won-loss count here. This one will probably end up as a mismatch. PICKS: The Mighty Glenn rolls on.

Farm, Harrison (1-1) at Northville (2-0): The Hawks have been involved in one of the top games each week so far, and this is yet another one. Harrison showed well despite losing 24-19 to Glenn, but many believe Northville (strong line/good backs) has what it takes to beat the Hawks. The Mustangs opened with a 14-10 win over South Lyon, a Class A power in recent years. PICKS: The many doesn't include these guys. Both like Harrison in

Southgate (1-1) at Garden City (1-1): This Mega Conference game looks like an even match. The Titans defeated Allen Park (13-12) and lost to Dearborn (21-0). Garden City, after being routed by Edsel Ford last year, did much better last week and was leading until the T'birds scored a late touchdown to win 22-17. PICKS: The Cougars give Southgate the big paw

Wayne (1-1) at Lincoln Park (1-1): After losing to state-ranked Adrian, the Zebras came back (as predicted) with a 29-2 win over Taylor Kennedy. Wayne to Southfield (6-0) and best Wyandotte (21-14). PICKS: O'Meara's hopes ride with the Zebras; Emons plans a walk in

SATURDAY GAMES (all games 1 p.m. unless noted)

W.L. Western (1-1) at Liv. Franklin (0-2): Are the Patriots deceiving us with their 0-2 start? Franklin is glad to see the Stevensons go. It nearly upset the Ster ling Heights team and lost to the Livonias

Warriors are the defending Western Lakes champs and played in the Silverdome for the Class A title, but they lost most of the players from that team. PICKS: Franklin won't be frustrated again.

N. Farmington (0-2) at Farmington (0-2): Observerland will have one less winless team by late Saturday, but the question is which one? This could be the most evenly-matched game in years between these city rivals. North has played a little tougher schedule, but the Falcons Laun Niskanen, PICKS: The Raiders by a

Glb. Carlson (0-2) at Red. Thurston (1-1): The Eagles, who were favored to win here a week ago, had the dubious distinction of giving Trenton its first victory since the late 1980s, ending a 34game losing streak. Carlson has lost to Woodhaven (21-0) and Crestwood (6-0). PICKS: Thurston restores its credibility but let's not get overconfident

Clarenceville (0-2) at Luth. Westland (1-1): The Trojans are winless but have played some hefty opposition in Class D powers St. Clement and Lutheran West. Lutheran Westland lost a squeaker to this game 25-0 last year. PICKS: C'ville uses the old Trojan Horse ploy.

Bishop Borgess (0-2) at Hamt. St. Florian (2-0): It doesn't get any easier for the Spartage who lost to the No. 4 team in Class DD (East Catholic) and get the No. 5 this week. The Lancers are led by all-state halfback Deshawn Cohen, who had 345 yards and five TDs in St. Flo's 41-24 win over Morrice. PICKS: The Lancers see to it Borgess gets the point.

Redford CC (2-0) vs. Toledo St. Fran cis (1-1), 7:30 p.m. at Pontiac Wisner Stadium: Can anyone stop CC back Fred die Taylor, who runs through opposing teams with ease and the help of huge linemen? St. Francis is supposed to have one of the best teams in Toledo again despite losing a last-second heartbreaker to Lima (Ohio) in the opener. The Shamrocks won 20-14 in the Glass Bowl last year. PICKS: CC gets the deuce

St. Agatha (1-1) vs. Cardinal Mooney (0-2), 7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Fleid: The Aggles rebounded from their opening loss to Thurston by defeating New Haven 28-12. St. Agatha's Bill Matti had a big game with 182 yards and two TDs. PICKS: The Aggles get a win streak

Madonna triumphs in tough tourney

Madonna University ran into some top-notch NAIA competition last weekend at the Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis Invitational, and the Lady Crusaders came away with an impressive win.

After suffering their first match loss of the season in their tourney opener - 15-9, 16-14 against Mount St. Joseph's, of Cincinnati - they bounced back to beat Tri-State 15-4, 15-3; St. Xavier 15-7, 15-8; host IUPUI 15-7, 4-15, 15-5; Huntington College 15-6, 15-9 in the semifinals; and IUPUI again in the finals 21-19, 15-13.

The wins over IUPUI were particularly impressive: The host team was ranked sixth in the NAIA pre-season poll, after finishing third in the nation last year. The 5-1 run through the tournament gave Madonna a 12-1

The slow start bothered coach Jerry Abraham, but he was pleased with the way his team came back. "For the first time this year, we sort of stumbled," Abraham said. "We didn't pass off our serve-receive well.

"But after that, we did what we've been doing all year long regrouped and played our best in crucial situations.'

The Crusaders were extremely effective in kill situations, with six regulars recording a better than .300 kill percentage.

Which is one reason why senior setter Mazie Pilut was named tournament MVP. She finished with 117 assists to kills (9.0 per game) and 17 kills (.560). Joining her on the all-tournament team were Kari Van Deusen and Mo

Van Deusen, a senior middle hitter, had 27 kills (.325), seven solo blocks and 59 digs. Paulin finished with 31 kills (.470) and Although those three were honored, several other Crusaders could have joined them. Like Julie Wood, who had 42 kills (.374) and 57 digs; or Julie Martin, 36 kills (.420) and nine solo blocks; or Kelly McCausland, 16 kills (.305) and 36 digs.

Defensive contributors Laura Fisher (29 digs) and Tiffany Joseph (26 digs).

Making Madonna's dominance more noteworthy was the caliber of competition: Joining IUPUI and Madonna (ranked 14th preseason) were two other top-20 ranked teams, Georgetown (Ky.) and Henderson State (Ark.).

Still, there's work to be done. "We did hit really good this weekend," said Abraham. "I'm very happy with that. But we've got a lot of improvement ahead. We have to serve-receive better.

"We're getting better at it, but we can be better still."

Which is bad news for Madonna's NAIA District 23 opponents,

Lady Ocelots are no match for DuPage, 4-1

They should have known.

The opponent was a team that's not officially part of the NJCAA yet. Next year, it will be.

If the "rookie" status applied to the College of DuPage gave Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team a feeling of superiority going into Sunday's match, it didn't last long — less than one half. The Lady Ocelots, quite simply, got thumped, losing 4-1 in Glen Ellyn, Ill.

"No one had a good game," coach Nick O'Shea said bluntly. "We did not play well."

tradition in men's soccer, scored on SC's misplay of a corner kick, which left a player alone at the far post for an easy header. The margin grew to 3-0 before halftime, on goals O'Shea called "marking mistakes. They were getting beat on the weak side. Those were positioning errors."

The Ocelots trimmed the gap to 3-1 in the 65th minute, with Tara Shook scoring on a pass from Amanda Thomas. But the goal

"I was a little disappointed in their attitude," O'Shea said. "We were going against a strong wind in the first half, and we still had some chances. In the second half we had the wind behind us and we came out strongly, and we scored the first goal (of the half).

"But instead of getting fired up, we let up. I knew we were in trouble at that point."

Which set the tone for the week's workouts. "Obviously, a lot of what we're doing this week has to do with attitude - what it takes to win, to be a winner. They weren't three goals better than

The Ocelots, now 1-1-1, will have a chance to prove that. On Oct. 16, DuPage visits SC.

DuPage, a school with a long did not spark a turnaround; quite SC proves best in the field

After an unsteady start, Schoolcraft College's volleyball team got things righted last weekend.

Admitting the lineup he used in SC's opener — a 15-8, 7-15, 9-15, 15-9, 15-10 homecourt loss to Concordia College Sept. 7 needed work, coach Tom Teeters made the necessary adjustments for the Lake Michigan Tournament last weekend.

The result: a first-place finish. SC started somewhat slowly.

losing its first game of the tournament to Southwestern College 15-8. But the Ocelots rallied to win the best-of-three match with 15-8, 17-15 victories, and went on to the championship without losing another game - a streak of 12 straight.

The title in the 10-team tourney raised SC's record to 6-1.

"The lineup we used in the

opener wasn't even close to what I wanted or expected," said Teeters of the Concordia loss. "In the tournament, there was a lot better team interaction, with people in the right spots.

The most notable changes were leaving Shannon Capstick on the left side when she was playing the front row "to better utilize her speed, both offensively and defensively," and restricting Julie Campau to the right side of the front row to make better use of her blocking ability.

Also, Danielle Pfeffer hit only from the left side instead of playing all three front-row positions. "She's so overpowering from the block," said Teeters. "That's where we need her skills the most.

Pfeffer remains SC's leader in kills with 66 through 18 games this season (3.7 per game). But her responsibilities include setting; she's second on the team in assists to kills with 58 (Tracia Clendenen leads with 122).

After defeating Southwestern in its tournament-opener, SC defeated Henry Ford 15-5, 15-12; South Suburban (South Holland, Ill.) 15-7, 15-3; and Kellogg 15-8, 15-12. In the semifinals, the Lady Ocelots leveled Mott 16-14, 15-9, then finished the tournament the way they began it, by beating Southwestern 15-6, 15-13.

Pfeffer led the team in kills with 50, at a .213 kill percentage, averaging 3.85 per game.

Klene propels Rockets past Wayne Memorial scored a career-high 21 points Tuesday night to lead the Westland John Glenn girls basketball team to a 46-36 non-league victory over host and rival Wayne Memorial.

The Rockets jumped out to a 23-16 halftime lead and outscored the Zebras, 14-8, in the third quarter for a 37-24 lead. The Rockets, who were humiliated by South Lyon, 58-16, in a seasonopening loss last Thursday, led by as many as 18 points.

Klene scored eight of her points in the third quarter and was equally effective at the defensive end, according to Bennett.

"I've not seen one of our centers in a number of years defensively react, knock down passes and take the ball coast-to-coast,' Glenn coach Pat Bennett said.

Senior guard Shawn Krause and sophomore guard Nykiya Lee scored seven points apiece for the Rockets.

Wayne, which fell to 2-2 overall. was led by freshman guard Rica Barge's 15 points.

They did a nice job full-court pressing us and their big girl Klene) was tough on us inside,' Wayne coach Chuck Henry said.

On Saturday, Wayne played in the Romulus Tournament and lost to the host Eagles, 35-25. Wayne trailed only 13-12 at halftime but fell poor shooting from the field and the free throw line (2-for-12 for the game) doomed the Zebras in the second half.

BASKETBALL

ST. ALPHONSUS 50, LUTH, WESTLAND 49: Lutheran High Westland wasted a 31-24 halftime lead Tuesday and lost on a threepoint play by Dearborn St. Alphonsus's Kelly Temple with eight seconds left.

The non-league loss at home dropped Lutheran Westland to 3-1 overall. St. Alphonsus improved to 5-1.

St. Alphonsus outscored Lutheran Westland 14-4 in the third quarter to take a 38-35 lead. The Warriors went ahead for the last time, 49-47, when sophomore guard Katie Ollinger made a 13-foot jump shot, was fouled and converted the free throw for a three-point play with 18 seconds left.

But Temple's layup and free throw put St. Alphonsus back ahead 50-49 and a 15-footer at the buzzer by Lutheran Westland went off

Junior guard Amy Gentz led Lutheran Westland with 16 points and junior center Jenny Pruchnik added 10 points. The Warri-

FRANKLIN 52, CRESTWOOD 29: Livonia Franklin won its fourth game without a loss Tuesday after outscoring Dearborn Heights

Creatwood in every quarter.

The Patriots led 15-6 after one quarte and 25-15 at halftime.

Jaclyn Deane, a 6-foot junior center, led Franklin with 10 points and 15 rebounds. Mary Bagazinski scored nine points and Tracy Rynkiewicz added eight points and six LADYWOOD 72. ALPENA 38: Livonia Ladywood made its long trip to Alpena worthwhile on Saturday, scoring an easy victory over its non-league foe.

The Blazers improved to 3-1 overall. Alpena

Ladywood's balanced attack featured 18 points from junior guard Melissa Campeau. Also scoring in double figures were junior forward Tara Oversitis with 17 points, followed hy junior guard Becky Bilicki (12) and junior center Anne Poglits (11).

CC's Walos beats Canton

By Steve Kowalski Stapp Writer

Senior midfielder Rich Walos scored with five minutes left in the first half Monday to give the Redford Catholic Central boys soccer team a 1-0 victory over host Plymouth Canton.

Walos outdueled Chiefs' defender Keith Gniewek and drilled the ball from about 20 yards out into the upper right-hand corner behind keeper sophomore Shaun Conway.

Senior forward Matt Kopmeyer collected the assist.

"Me and Matt doubled up on one of their players, he knocked the ball to me, I hit it, looked up and it went in," said Walos, who has three goals this season. 'We've been down for a while but we've finally picked it up. We're back.

CC coach Phil LaJoy said Walos makes a big difference, even with All-Observer defender Adam Borchert out of the lineup after getting a red card in the Shamrocks' disappointing 3-3 tie Sunday against the University of Detroit-Jesuit (Jamie Heitert scored all three of CC's goals). Canton also missed a key player, junior forward Chad Dale, who had to sit out after picking up two vellow cards in a 2-0 loss at Trov Athens on Saturday.

"Everybody's been marking Rich tough, putting their best defender on him and using someone else to help," LaJoy said. "But he makes things happen for the rest of the players.'

The victory gave the Shamrocks a 2-1-1 overall record. Canton, which hasn't scored in the last 160 minutes, is 3-2 overall.

SOCCER

The two teams considered their player losses a tradeoff because Walos remained in CC's lineup and Canton still had high-scoring junior midfielder Jeff Fliss on it

But Fliss and his teammates were turned back time and again by CC goalkeeper Matt McGilv-

The Chiefs twice had McGilvney out of position without converting in the first half. CC defender Jon Zugel headed one of the chances away from the open net and toward the sideline.

McGilvney also made a sterling save off a header by Fliss and got help when Fliss hit the cross bar on a free kick from about 25 vards out just before halftime.

We had more scoring chances than they had but they got the one that counted. It was a super kick," Canton coach Don Smith said. "When you get eight crosses in front of the net (in the first half) you've got to put something

The Chiefs' best chance to tie the score in the second half came when they were granted two chances at an in-direct free kick five yards in front of the CC net. The Shamrocks, who lined up all their players on the goal-line, stopped the first attempt but were called for encroachment, giving Canton another chance.

Fliss said he tried to deflect the second chance off another player into the net but the ball failed to get past the CC wall, preserving the shutout.

Churchill sails

Livonia Churchill captured all 12 events en route to a 154-39 girls swim victory Tuesday over Garden City.

Karen Coulter was a double winner for the victorious Chargers (1-0), taking the 200-yard individual medley (2:32.4) and 100 but-s terfly (1:09.63). SHe also teamed up with Maggie Corazza, Nicole Doyle and Carla Karoub to win the 200 freestyle relay (1:55.44).

Other individual first place finishers included: Mary Corazza, 200 freestyle (2:09.35); Kim Gruska, 50 freestyle (26.85); Julie Converse, diving (154.6 points); Erin Lyons, 100 freestyle (1:08.75); Julie White, 500 freestyle (6:34.13); Jenny Patrias, 100 backstroke (1:18.09); and Maggie Corazza, 100 breaststroke

The foursome of Renee Tomlinson, Jaime Strauch, Karoub and Gruska took the 200 medley relay (2:02.45), while the quartet of Tomlinson, Gruska, Strauch and Mary Corazz won the 400 freestyle relay (3:56.8).

Taylor's 4 TDs carry Shamrocks

Freddie Taylor wasted little time getting to the end zone Saturday as the Redford Catholic Central football team thumped visiting Windsor Brennan 37-7.

The senior tailback rushed for four touchdowns, and each one occurred on first down. Furthermore, the last three occurred on the first play of a new possession.

Taylor ran 8 yards in the first quarter and 56, 25 and 24 in the second as the Shamrocks built 30-0 halftime lead. Andy Short added a safety, and Adam Borchert kicked five extra points.

Taylor finished with 176

Spartans out-race SC field

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

Once voters in Livonia Public School District passed a one-mill increase for extracurricular activities, coach John Gores and his Stevenson High boys cross country team swung into action.

Given a reprieve, the Spartans opened their season Saturday in the 26th Schoolcraft College Invitational by capturing the firstplace trophy, its first SC title since 1972. See statistical summa-

"Some of our kids who were looking to go to (cross country) camp this summer staved home because they didn't want to spend the money if the millage hadn't gone through," Gores said. " So they were well rested. But once they got back, they worked hard.'

The Spartans, making up for lost summer mileage, placed four runners in the top 10 to win the team title with 48 points. Walled Lake Western was a distant second with 82. Defending champion Novi was eighth with 181.

It was also the lowest number of teams (10) entered in the SC meet. The field shrunk after the Wayne-Westland, Plymouth-Canton and Farmington schools opted to run in other meets, most notably the West Bloomfield In-

BOYS WRAP

Western's Trevor Keeney was the individual winner. The senior covered the 5,000-meter course in Stevenson senior Scott Creehan was second in 17:27.3.

Three Stevenson sophomores

— Jason Hayward (fifth place),
Steve Warner (seventh) and Brian Hayward (ninth) also made All-Invitational. Junior Andrew Beach was 25th.

'Last year we had some outstanding freshmen, but they were inexperienced," Gores said. "After track season and having a full year, I knew we'd be tough. I thought coming in we'd be right

"Our kids had a great last 800 (meters). It was a strong finish, a good race and a fun day.

Other area runners making the top 10 included a pair from Garden City — seniors Jason Reith (fourth) and Rob Mangan (sixth). Livonia Churchill's Steve DeLuca, a junior, was 10th.

But it was Stevenson's day to shine under the sunny, cool skies.

It was an ideal day for running. "This team has a lot of poten-Gores said. "With more work, they'll get better. The speed and quality work will come.

Northville defeated Westland John Glenn in non-league dual meet Tuesday at Cass Benton Park. 23-32.

Henry Honeycutt paced Glenn with a second-place finish in 18:48. Other Rockets in the top 10: Brandon Molitor, fourth (19:27); Chris Gillen, seventh (20:07); Todd Peterson, ninth (20:54); and Greg Hendershott, 10th (21:03).

Spartans outrun Patriots

Livonia Stevenson took the first four spots in a 16-44 dual meet victory Tuesday over Livonia Franklin at Hines Park.

The top four finishers for the Spartans included Scott Creehan (17:53); Jason Hayward (17:57). Steve Warner (18:05) and Brian Hayward (18:14).

Paul Kruschka of Franklin was fifth in 19:02. Andrew Beach of Stevenson finished sixth in 19:23, while Mark Kracht of Franklin was seventh in 19:26.

Shamrocks gain 5th

Redford Catholic Central's earned placed fifth in Saturday's West Bloomfield Invitational at Marshbank Park.

Monroe, the defending Class A champion, ran away with the Division I title with 31 points. Brighton came in second place (73), followed by Traverse City (121), Warren De La Salle (144) and CC (152).

The Shamrocks were paced by the Leo brothers, Mark and Joe, who finished seventh and ninth. respectively. Mark, a senior, finished the course in 16 minutes. 38 seconds and sophomore Joe Leo came home in 16:43.

The Shamrocks' next best time was turned in by Phil Camilerri, who finished 28th (17:23). Brian Smith was 52nd (18:12), followed by Mike Danic, 58th (18:16), Jeremy Short, 58th (18:17) and Derrick Faunce, 65th (18:34).

MacKinnon sets pace

Bridget MacKinnon had nobody to run with Saturday.

The Livonia Stevenson senior went solo most of the 5,000-meter route, covering the course in 19 minutes and two seconds, to win the 16th annual Schoolcraft College Invitational girls cross country individual title.

MacKinnon bettered the time of last year's winner, Jennifer Ray of Walled Lake Western, by one second.

Western, however, repeated as team champions for the third straight year with 64 points. Trenton and Novi finished second and third, respectively. Stevenson was fourth. See statistical summa-

MacKinnon, 18th at the Class A state meet last year, was 44 seconds ahead of second-place finisher Bridget Bryne of Western.

Earlier in the week, MacKinnon shattered teammate A.J. Koritnik's school record for 5,000 meters at the Center Line Early Bird Invitational with a time of 18:38.

'I saw Bridget run a 5K (five kilometers) road race in July and she went 18:27," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "She was very impressive. I knew she was ready for a good year.'

Holmberg calls his ace "totally devoted.

"Bridget's a student of cross country," the Stevenson coach said. "She's into nutrition and she lifts weights. She runs two times per day. She's really worked at it. I don't think she's had a day off in 21/2 years.

"Mechanically she's pretty sound. She has a really efficient big stride for her size and a low back-kick." Holmberg, who coached Koritnik to a third place finish in last year's Class A individual races, says MacKinnon is "in the top five or six runners in the state. 'She's only really conditioning right now," he said. "She hasn't done any speed work or the fine GIRLS WRAP tuning she'll get near the end of the season.

"Her goal is to run under 18

Other area runners cracking the top 10 (all-invitational team) included Western senior Stacy Duff (fifth), Livonia Churchill junior Tracey Parker (ninth) and Western sophomore Tessie Harfoot Christie Asam (13th) and Bridget Morse (35th) rounded out the first-place Western contingent.

Glenn's Moore 1st

Westland John Glenn senior Tina Moore took first overall in the girls individual race in Saturday's seven-team Dearborn Invitational.

Moore, who was clocked in 22:08, led the Rockets to a second place finish in the team standings with 56 points.

The host Pioneers won the team title with 37.

Other Glenn finishers included senior Michelle Molitor, third (22:43); freshman Marjorie Brooks, fifth (22:45); junior Korey Miller, 20th (25:51); and freshman Shannon Porter, 27th

On Tuesday, Moore finished first in 23:01, but the Rockets fell to 0-2 in a 26-34 loss to host Northville at Cass Benton Park.

Brooks and Molitor were fourth and fifth, respectively, in 23:45 and 24:59.

Blazers beat Regina

Sophomore Julie Browne's first-place clocking of 22:46 carried Livonia Ladywood to a 26-34 Catholic League Central Division win over Harper Woods Regina in a meet at Metro Beach Park. Other Blazers in the top 10:

senior Jackie Tuggle, fourth (23:32); freshman Anna Polsinelli, sixth (23:38); sophomore Amy Bombaffaro, seventh (24:52); and junior Becky Cobe, eighth (25:11). Ladywood is 1-1 overall.

Armando's opens carryout in Livonia

Open less than a month, word of Little Armando's authentic Mexican carryout in Livonia is spreading fast. "Everyone saw the sign and kept asking when we were going to open," said Cecilia Hernandez. "It's been busy.'

Little Armando's of Livonia is the second carryout restaurant Armando's has opened in the suburbs. The first was in Southgate. Armando's is owned by Cecilia's mother, Serafina. She and her brother Omar are general managers.

The Livonia restaurant, is the company's first franchise. It's operated by Alex Cohttero and Ralph Garcia, two former cooks who learned all of Armando's famous recipes at the restaurant on Vernor in Detroit.

"This is a prototype, we'll see how it goes. We hope to open more eventually. It's my brother Omar's idea. It's his dream," said Hernandez. "We're not ready to offer franchises to the public yet, but we wanted to offer our employees the opportunity to own a its first stop on a national tour. Speaking from her New York hotel room, Parton voiced great enthusiasm for the show, heaping special praise on the dancers, and very funny one-liners that pepper the script. An accomplished recording star. songwriter, and stage performer, Parton follows in the footsteps of her famous sister Dolly. Playing Lorelei Lee in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." the "little girl from Little Rock" who goes to Paris in the Roaring 1920s in pursuit of a rich husband, Parton now walks in the footsteps of two other stars - Carol Channing, who originated the role on Broadway in 1949, and Marilyn Monroe who

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," chronicles the journey of two chorus girls of the free-spending 1920s, who set out for Paris hoping to find rich husbands and sparkling jewels.

"I studied the original Broadway cast album and watched the film this summer," said Parton. "Carol Channing was brilliant, but I realize that I've got to bring my own personality into this. There's never been a country girl doing this show before; I'm a country girl, and Lorelei sure is a country girl! Does it bother her to play a stereotypical "dumb blonde" like Lorelei?

"Lorelei is a genius!" Parton said with an easy laugh. "She knows she can do more with her looks than with her brains so she's just making the most of what she's got going for her.' Like Lorelei, Partson said she has always had to make it on her own. "I was too busy just trying to survive to worry about being compared to Dolly. Being the sister of someone famous is not the help one might assume. It can open doors faster for you, but those same doors can slam shut even faster because people expect more of you." One of 11 children, Parton remains close to Dolly and her other four sisters. She admits that she and Dolly have a somewhat similar style. We're both country and we're both spunky women," she said.

That unflagging spunk has helped her through difficult times both in her career and as a single parent. She considers her greatest accomplishment to be raising her son "to be a good person." On reflection, "I've had my ups and downs, but I try to concentrate on up," Parton said. "When I'm down I'm always looking up."

Like Lorelei, does Parton consider diamonds to be "a girl's best friend?"

"I love diamonds, especially from a good-looking man," Parton said, adding she considers her own best friend to be either her car or her cat. "Of course, my cat with a diamond collar would sure be nice," she said with her winsome Tennessee drawl.

Speculation as to why "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" is so seldom revived, Parton said it is a difficult show be cause Lorelei is so different from all the other characters and has to carry the show. "And if she has to drive the truck, she'd better be a 16-wheeler," Parton said with an effervescent laugh that conveyed all her charm and spirit.

2 city kids ride magical horse 'Into the West'

West," the story of two city kids who turn cowboy and take off on the adventure of a lifetime when they "rescue" a beautiful and magical horse from an evil horse breeder, opens Friday at suburban movie theaters.

Tito (Ruaidhri Conroy) and Ossie (Ciaran Fitzgerald) are the two young sons of Papa Riley (Gabriel Byrne), a loving but distant widower, growing up amid the faceless tower blocks of a city project. This is modern-day Dublin — a world that is no longer home to fairies and leprechauns and saints. Magic has disappeared here. Or has it?

Tito and Ossie also are heir to a mystical legacy. They come from an ancient Celtic gypsy clan known in Ireland as the travelers. Though their father had rejected the tribe and its ways, something of the traveler remains with the boys.

One day, their grandfather brings them a magnificent white horse named Tir na nOg, which becomes curiously attached to Tito and Ossie and they to it.

Tir na nOg is beautiful and magical and soon attracts the unwanted attentions of Noel Hartnett (John Kavanagh), a rich and unscrupulous horse breeder who, with the help of a crooked police chief, illegally acquires Tir

Driven by their love for the horse, and frustrated by their father's inability to reclaim Tir na nOg, Tito and Ossie decide to take the law into their own hands.

They "rescue" Tir na nOg from Hartnett and make their break for freedom into the countryside.

Meanwhile, Papa Riley enlists the help of two old raveler friends, Kathleen and Barreller (Ellen Barkin and Colm Meaney) and sets off to find his sons and bring them back safe and sound.

With a $1,000 reward on their heads and Hartnett and the police force on their heels. Tito and Ossie quickly become the most wanted outlaws of the time. They become contemporary cowboys as Tir na nOg takes them on the adventure of a lifetime. An adventure into the west.

This western for the whole fainily got its start when producer Tim Palmer had a vision while walking through the projects of Dublin. He looked up and spied a white horse standing on a balcony 16 stories high.

From this Palmer and his colleague, Michael Pearce conceived of a family oriented adventure film about two brothers and a magical horse — a modern, magical fable set against the spectacular landscapes of Western Ireland and inspired by the colorful world of the Irish traveler (gypsy) community and the Celtic legend of Tir na nOg, the land of Eternal Released by Miramax Films, "Into the West" is directed by Mike Newell, produced by Jonathan Cavendish and Tim Palmer, and scripted by Jim Sheridan.

"Into the West" was shot on location in Ireland, in winter.

"Irish people are very much in harmony with the idea of storytelling and the belief in something beyond themselves and realizing that through the telling of stories," said Gabriel Byrne who stars as Papa Riley.

"I suppose that what this story says is that in the midst of the challenge of their lives, what saves these kids, what saves any people, is their imagination and spirit and dreams. And it is that which takes them out into this mythical world.'

stripped cars long abandoned. It's here, at a martial arts triple feature in a downtown movie house, that Alabama and Clarence meet. She accidentally spills popcorn on him, sleeps with him, and then in the morning, confesses that it was all a set-up.

She's a prostitute, hired by Clarence's boss as a birthday present. This awkward introduction leads to "True Romance," another in a series of mindlessly highoctane road movies for the MTV generation. Christian Slater and Patricia Arquette play young lovers who get married, take off in a purple Cadillac convertible, and both the mob and the police. Before they leave, Clarence decides he has some unfinished business with Alabama's pimp. He plans to only shoot the slimeball, but ends up killing two men and leaving the scene with a suitcase full of cocaine.

then get in serious trouble with

Where we saw the irony of Robert DeNiro's similar act in "Taxi Driver," the violence here is simply treated as another day on the streets. Alabama thinks Clarence is her knight in shining armor. and the audience reacts to the violence as dark comedy, if at all.

Heartthrob Slater makes an appealing retro-style hero, but haven't we had enough of characters who drive around in old convertibles and idolize Elvis? Locals will recognize that his character also exists in a Detroit that still shows kung fu movies at downtown the-Arquette's Alabama, meanwhile, wears outfits straight out of 'Li'l Abner": short, short skirts and poofy polka dot tops way off the shoulder. She's both ashamed and proud of her five-day career as a call girl, professing a monogamous love to her husband that for now appears genuine.

The movie takes its time in the Motor City before heading out to Los Angeles, where Clarence employs an actor friend ("Zebrahead's" Michael Rapaport) to help him unload the drugs. Brad Pitt plays the actor's Deadhead roommate, further enhancing the movie's retro-aesthetic by milking big laughs from Cheech and Chong-style pot jokes.

Pitt is just one of the many hip young actors who pay their respects to "True Romance." Val Kilmer plays the ghost of Elvis (Clarence considers him the patron saint of all white trash) while Gary Oldman chews up the scenery as the scarred pimp and drug dealer brought down by the street smart Clarence.

In the wake of all this hyperactivity, Dennis Hopper wisely underplays his bit as Clarence's father, a former cop turned security guard. He's especially good when questioned by Christopher Walken as a Sicilian hitman, letting loose with a barrage of ethnic slurs that will certainly quicken his execution.

"True Romance" was the first script sold to Hollywood by Quentin Tarantino, the brilliant young writer/director of "Reservoir Dogs." He turned down the chance to direct it, saying it was "like an old girlfriend," in this case one he apparently met in high school.

The cliches and sophomoric storyline would have been easier to take with someone other than Tony Scott as director. Inept editing botches what should have been the movie's most killer scene, when both sides of the law arrive at the same time to bust Clarence's drug deal and open fire over the heads of our heroes.

Occasionally, Tony taps into the energy of brother Ridley Scott's "Thelma and Louise," but where the earlier film got plenty of mileage out of its radical feminist subtext, "True Romance" has nothing but a flimsy story and cameos to keep it clunking down the highway.

"True Romance" is now showing at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Old Orchard, AMC Southfield City, AMC Wonderland, General Cinema Canton, General Cinema Novi, Quo Vadis, Showcase Auburn Hills, Showcase Dearborn, Showcase Pontiac and Star Rochester.

Based on the story of biblical "Job," and modern day Long Island, Plymouth Theatre Guild's season opener, "God's Favorite," offers an evening of fun.

The Neil Simon play which opens 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 17 at the Water Tower Theatre in Northville, finds "Joe" and God's messenger discussing how "a couple of grown deities" place bets against Joe's faith in God. War is waged in Joe's home, and the consequences are hilarious.

The Water Tower Theatre is on the campus of Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W. 7 mile Road, Northville, between Haggerty and Northville Roads. Shows continue 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Oct. 2. There will be a 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26 performance.

Tickets are $8 adults, $7 seniors and students. You'll get $1 off the ticket price for buying tickets in advance.

Advance tickets are available at Sir Speedy Printing, 485 S. Main, Plymouth, and Heavenly Bakery, 43053 W. 7 Mile, Northville in the Highland Lakes. Shopping Center. For information, call 349-7110.

Get four shows for the price of three when you purchase a 1993-94 season ticket. You'll also receive one guest ticket free to any one performance of your choice during the 1993-94 season. Call 349-7110 for more information.

The season continues Nov. 19 through Dec. 4 with Agatha Christies most beloved and longest running mystery, "The Mousetrap." A group of strangers are stranded in a foreboding boarding house during a snowstorm, one of them is a murderer. Newlyweds, a spinster, an architect, a retired Army Major, and a strange little man, who claims his car is overturned in a snowbank, all have skeletons in the closet.

Beginning Feb. 18 through March 12, the Guild will present "Guys & Dolls," winner of the 1951 Tony for best musical, book, composer and lyricist. Two love affairs unfold with music, dance and action.

Concluding the season May 6 through May 21 is Wendy Wasserstein's "Isn't It Romantic." Warm and funny, this stirring play tells the story of two post-graduate women as they struggle with personal independence and romantic fulfillment in Manhattan. It searches for answers to questions about love, career, and, of course, domineering parents.

AMERICAN PAINTINGS FROM THE MANOOGIAN COLLECTION
THE DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS • SEPTEMBER 11 - NOVEMBER 14, 1993

A Private View affords a public glimpse into one of the greatest private collections of American art. John Singer Sargent, William Merritt Chase, Childe Hassam and other 19th century masters are represented by informal portraits, domestic seenes that record a now vanished way of life, and light filled impressionist views of city and country life. These communate and beautiful paintings are favorites from the extraordinary private collection of Richard and Jane Manoogian, but for just a short time they're on public view, at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

since a relative handful will be exported there, along with the Jeeps and minivans Chrysler already is selling overseas.

Frankfurt also is the largest auto show in the world, the most comprehensive (one exhibit hall is devoted to car wash equipment), and the most visible international media event in the auto

Still, a few years ago, going to Europe to launch what, after all, is a middle American kind of a car, would have been unthink-

Today, top management at all the Big Three have at least been schooled in Europe, and one wag, viewing the large number of Ford execs with roots in the United Kingdom, notes that Ford appears to be attempting to become the world's first successful British car company. Going to Frankfurt is old home week for Chrysler's Bob and Bob - Mssrs. Lutz and Eaton, both with extensive experience in the European car market.

There also is a touch of bravado to the gesture, as a company that folded its extensive European operations a couple of decades ago in the midst of a near-bankruptcy returns with a car that, if it could be sold at U.S.-style, tariff-free prices, would devastate the bottom end of the European car martersweet, however, as Chrysler's Hollywood-style ballyhoo echoes around an exhibit hall mainly crowded with worried European executives finally waking up to the fact that something is coming seriously unhinged.

Volvo announces a joint merger with Renault, nearly as tough a deal as getting the Israelis together with the PLO. Mercedes announces it is going into the economy-car business. In the basement, the Czechoslovakian Tatra sits, unnoticed and unloved.

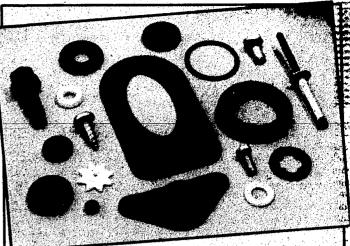

The reality of Europe today is that the sidewalk cafes are only a couple of hundred miles away from shelling in the countryside, and even the most urbane settings are fringed with signs of industrial recession. The belated struggle to improve the efficiency of the auto industry does not begin to answer the question of how an economy capable of buying cars is going to emerge from the rubble of Eastern Europe, ethnic wars, and middle-class debt that

It's somehow ironic that at least some of the answers seem to have been found in the industrial Midwest. Coming up on a BMW at a perfectly legal 125 mph, a Chrysler executive waits for the German car, costing three times as much, to move over and let him

Looking in the rear-view mirror, the thought of having to pull over to let some American engineer in a $9,000 economy car pass on the autobahn is simply too much. The German stays in the left hand lane a long time, then, finally, moves over to let this upstart

Durable powers of attorney are not only for the elderly. They are appropriate for adults at any age and can be used in many situations. But they should generally be viewed as a supplement to and not a substitute for other estate planning documents, such as wills and revocable living trusts.

Will power

The next document Tarrant needs is a will. It is important to create this document now while she is still mentally able to do so. The will allows Tarrant to express her specific wishes for disposition of her assets. It also allows her to select the estate administrator of her choice, rather than the estate being forced to use a court-appointed administrator. Also, under a will she could excuse her personal representative (executor) from posting a bond with a commercial surety company.

in the past, Tarrant has expressed the desire that certain of her personal belongings be passed to her grandchildren. Not only does a will ensure that this will take place, but it is also a more personal way of passing specific property. The grandchildren would know that their grandmother intended to pass these items specifically to them, rather than passing them through another generation first.

Revocable living trust

McCall's mother should also consider whether a revocable living trust would kelp accomplish her goals. Tarrant could name her daughter as the initial trustee if she desired, further giving McCall the ability to handle financial affairs easily. A commercial bank trust department could also be named as the trustee, as its trust officers are experienced in the handling of administrative and investment matters. Alternatively, McCall and the bank could be co-trustees, with McCall handling the day-to-day matters and the bank handling the administrative and investment responsibilities.

Any assets funded to the trust avoid probate. This aspect could save both considerable time and money when Tarrant passes away.

Last instructions

Finally, we'd suggest that Tarrant write a "letter of last instructions." This informal letter is not a legal document, but it is helpful in passing along more detailed guidance on funeral and financial arrangements.

Items such as debts to be paid, people to be contacted, funeral arrangements desired, and the location of important documents are typically covered in such a letter. McCall could help her mother draft this if it is too difficult a task for Tarrant.

All of these documents should be kept together in one easy-tofind location. Tarrant may wish to have her daughter keep a copy, and typically the attorney who drafts the documents would hold a copy, Once these documents are in place. McCall and her mother can rest easy that the mechanisms are in place to ensure a smooth handling of financial affairs regardless of her circum-

Taking the mess out of oil changes drives chemist

■ A Bloomfield Hills entrepreneur is hoping the driving public will take to self-service oil changes in the same way it took to selfserve gas pumps.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Do-it-yourselfers tend to some 80 million oil changes on passenger vehicles annually in this country, industry sources report. The process can be messy, the disposition of used oil problematic.

Enter Ram Bedi, 64, chemist and entrepreneur.

He's invented a machine that reduces an oil change to a five-minute job requiring little mechanical ability and which leaves virtually no resi-

The product is called Environ-mentally Safe Oil Change. Bedi sees outstanding business potential not only for privately owned vehicles, but also commercial trucks and rental

"I don't know how much we will accomplish, but we can talk about a market," he said. "You're looking at $8.3 billion.'

That's based on annual national volume of 110 million oil changes for trucks at $30 per pop and 500 million for cars at $10 per vehicle.

Not that he's going to get them all, Bedi concedes, but they're certainly Adapters costing less than $100 modifications to an oil change relocation device already available for cars, and a coupling at the oil filter/ engine connection on trucks — must be installed now before Bedi's system will work.

Bedi figures that consumers would be more disposed to paying $10 at ESOC for a five-minute job compared to the $15-$25 charged by commercial oil changers and the $10-$15 plus time and potential mess paid by owners who do it themselves.

"Before the end of the century, I think this will go like airbags and antilock braking systems," said. "It has to be customer driven. The other driving force can be environmental legislation.'

Bedi said he anticipates breaking even three years from now, with profits soaring in the fourth year. He said he's spent upwards of $2 million in research and development and deferred compensation costs since tinkering with the idea in April 1989.

Those were paid by loans from 2V Industries, a small, family-owned manufacturer of machining cooling chemicals, and loans from family members.

He's looking for a few private investors to pump another $2 million into company coffers to meet production costs in exchange for minority ownership positions.

Bedi said he has an agreement to retrofit 400 trucks and lease an oil exchanger to a major national leasor that he declined to identify.

He's also negotiating with a rental car company — "It's looking very good right now" — and a used-car turer, Bedi said, but he's yet to personally follow up. In the long run, the big money could be with passenger vehicles. "You want to place these things where people are. People are in offices, factories during the day, shopping malls," Bedi said.

Environmentally Safe Oil Change technology already has proven its mettle in the scientific community. It was one of three award winners selected from among 100,000 patent pate in the U.S. Department of Commerce Inventors Expo '93.

Comments left in a guest book during the display — "Great idea, it would save me time; Clean hands, no drain plug to wear out; Very efficient process; Go for it" - indicated how well ESOC was received.

'I came to this country with $60," said Bedi, a native of India. "I'm not opposed to taking risks and putting my heart and soul into a project that motivates me.'

McCall writes that her mother is still living in her own home, but it has become obvious that she has not been managing her finances well recently.

'Mother's financial affairs are in need of immediate attention. I'm not sure just where to start.'

Once the current bills are paid and some order has been established, they need to put a priority on establishing a comprehensive estate plan for Tarrant. This includes not only planning for the distribution of her estate, but also planning for the management of her current financial affairs.

Fortunately, Fran's mother still has the ability to understand her general situation and to make decisions about it. She is more than willing to let McCall take care of the day-to-day financial matters. A durable power of attorney could provide McCall with the authority to handle the management of her mother's finances.

Durable powers of attorney

To understand a durable power of attorney it is helpful first to understand powers of attorney in general. A power of attorney is a document used to give one person the right to act on another person's behalf.

The person who grants the power of attorney is called the "principal." The individual who is given the power is called the "attorney in fact." There are two types of powers of attorney, special and

A special power of attorney gives the attorney-in-fact the right to act for the principal in connection with a specific transaction or for some other limited purpose. For example, you could use a properly drafted special power of attorney to give a relative in Florida the right to handle a real estate closing in Florida while you remain in Michigan.

A general power of attorney gives much broader authority. This document grants the attorney-in-fact the ability to do for you almost any financial transaction you could do for yourself. Effectively, a general power of attorney creates a legal clone. Because of the broad powers granted by a General Power of Attorney, it should be used only after careful consideration and with proper legal counsel.

Traditionally, powers of attorney expire under three circumstances: when revoked by the principal, when the principal dies, and when the principal becomes incapacitated. A durable power of attorney is durable because it doesn't expire if the principal becomes incapacitated. It is this 'durability' that makes it such a useful planning tool.

Patient advocate

A variation of the durable power of attorney is the "durable power of attorney for health care," sometimes called a health care directive or patient advocate designation. With this type of power of attorney, the principal designates another to make health care decisions in the event of the principal's incapacity.

This type of durable power of attorney is broader in scope than a living will. The living will deals only with the issue of limiting heroic medical treatment in the event of a clearly terminal illness and is not legally binding in Michigan. The patient advocate designation handles this situation but also deals with other situations when the patient may be unable to communicate with the, physician due to physical or mental incapacity. For example, this document could be used to put a comatose patient on a promising, but experimental, drug therapy.

Planning key to successful child center

Small business, big business, child care business can grow from six children in a family day care home to 300 or more children in such center base settings as franchises, or multiple site

There are, of course, in between size centers accommodating up to 60 children. Opening a center this size may be considered small business for some but not for husband and wife team Willie and Brenda Belyeu and Brenda's sister Claudette Culbertson, who recently completed child care/ development courses at Ross Technical Institute.

For Brenda Belyeu, it was a long-awaited dream come true when the Michigan Department of Social Services recommended a center-based license for "Peaches-n-Cream Child Care Center" on Tuesday, Sept. 7. It's now official. As in planning for any business, you need a good plan and preparatory research is a must.

The following items will help increase the chances for a successful center: a well-planned building, carefully thought out sources of income, a thorough assessment of cost on-going advertising for children and well-trained staff.

Peaches-n-Cream is housed in a renovated, spacious older house, located on John Daly in Inkster. It can accommodate 35-40 children per licensing regulations. Some real plusses to the center's location is that it's located on a street where a good flow of traffic passes, near local schools, businesses, residential area and commercial housing — apartments (children are residents) facing the center's fenced in back play Another plus for Peaches-n-Cream is that it has a homelike atmosphere which many parents, children and staff can really appreciate.

The time table for preparing to open a child care center varies, but generally individuals considering this venture should plan for up to 12 months, depending on available resources and timeliness

For the Belyeu's and partner Claudette Culbertson it was exactly one year to the month when initial plans were started.

There was not much guess work in their planning. The team sought professional direction from experienced child care training and planning consultants at Direct-Link Consulting, Inc. It may be true that some individuals feel this additional expense can be cut, but the team like many others feel it's worth it. It can help eliminate some of the many pitfalls.

If you choose to not pay for professional consultation take advantage of research at the library or books providing information on small business planning, and child care center operation. The Michigan Department of Commerce will also provide information of small business planning. The department of Social Services Child Day Care licensing will supply information/licensing rules book for centers.

The local 4C office may also be a resource. However, professional child care operation planning consultants can provide step-by-step 'long-term" services, which can prove to be beneficial.

Brenda Belyeu advises that you should "be patient and put your best foot forward." "Know that it is what you want to do." She said her biggest challenge was to "stay focused." Doing extensive renovation and repairs which was done by husband Willie Belyeu, and best friend Earl Riley, who are experienced in construction plumbing, and building can require much patience, hard labor and long hours.

Making the necessary repairs and bringing a building up to code, fire, health and city inspections may require hurdling several obstacles.

Cost to start can be from $5,000 to $20,000 depending on a variety of factors. Building renovation, repairs, consultant, tax, licensing, insurance and inspection fees, advertising, administrative, accounting cost, equipment/ supplies must be considered. Operating cost includes salaries, which can be 80 percent of the budget, rent or mortgage, utilities, food, etc.

Willie Belyeu suggests that you "know the full details of opening a center, inspections needed and environmental factors" relating to what's good for the health/safety and well being of the children and staff on site. He also suggests you know how much money you want to spend on preparing the

If you're willing to take a chance or risk, it can work. It did for the Belyeu's and partner Claudette Culbertson.

Students from area high schools are learning about theater and history while performing at the Michigan Renaissance Festival. The festival, in its 14th season, continues weekends through Sept. 26.

By Barbara Wilson Staff Writer

A time machine has been at the service of several local people the past few weekends, whisking them away to a time of knights, fair maidens and dragons.

The time machine actually takes them to Grand Blanc each Saturday and Sunday during the fall for the annual Michigan Renaissance Festival, but the surroundings are remarkably authentic.

A group of teens from Stevenson High School in Livonia and other area high schools have come to know a great deal about the Renaissance period by becoming part of the Renaissance Academy.

Melanie Plenda, who plays Beauty in a Renaissance Festival production of "Beauty and the Beast," said she learned about the academy through an advertisement in the newspaper. She's been active in the high school theater group and thought it would be a fun experience.

"You have to audition for the academy and if you're selected you go through a lot of rehearsals and workshops before the festival actually begins," Plenda, 17, said.

Plenda and several of her fellow Stevenson thespians spend several weeks even before the festival begins learning about the Renaissance period and preparing the roles they will play during the event and finding appropriate apparel.

This is the 14th year for the Michigan Renaissance Festival, which has proven to be a unique experience for many visitors. Sometimes it's even difficult to determine who the actors are and who the visitors are. Costumes are worn by about half of the people on the festival grounds and it's not unusual to be accosted by a court jester or a lusty barmaid as you wait in line for a cold drink.

We practice doing a lot of hit and runs where we go up to people and talk with them," said Matt Lewis, also a Stevenson student. "We're

Topics to be discussed at the seminar include birthing options, physical aspects of pregnancy and is the financial aspects of starting a family and infertility," Malinowski said. "These subjects will only be touched on.

Past attendees of the programs have included couples thinking about starting a family, couples early on in pregnancy and couples who have remarried are blending their families and considering more children, Malinowaki said.

We try to provide a lot of time for people to ask questions and that way their individual needs are addressed," she added.

graphology can play a valuable role in selecting the best suited candidate for a particular position. The process works something like this: The employer supplies me with a job description and a handwriting sample of the prospect under consideration. I then analyze the handwriting and comment only on the traits that pertain to the particular position. For compatability reasons it is also helpful to puruse the handwriting of the applicant's superior. Since I do not have any of this information at my disposal I can only comment on the general characteristics of the writer.

This large, right slanted handwriting tells me we are analyzing a social person. She is active and wants to be where the action is. In a sedentary position she would not be content very

Our writer is highly active and future oriented. There appears to be a conflict within her. Although she is friendly and demonstrative, her self image still hinges in great part upon her preoccupation with the past. This is like being pulled from two opposite sides.

A sympathetic nature often has her leading with her heart. Tell her a sad story and she can quickly relate to it. At the theater she probably cries if the story is extremely touching. Her emotions, happy or sad, usually show and others have little difficulty recognizing how she feels.

This young woman needs people and the recognition and acceptance they can provide. She is concerned with the manner in which she is perceived by others and wants to make a physical impression of them.

She is good with words. When this is coupled with her sense of humor it should make her interesting company.

However her mood swings may have a way of preventing others from knowing just where they stand with her. She may also have a problem with punctuality which points up her lack of concern with others time.

There is tension in this handwriting. The writer appears to be trying to conceal a personal problem(s) from the past. On occasion she may manipulate or blame others. Other times she may resort to silence to avoid revealing what she does not wish to share.

Large issues interest her and she does not get mired in the small details. Talk to her about an apple and she can see the whole orchard.

Her thinking is logical. She may be reluctant to trust her hunchs. Seemingly there is some lack of fulfillment in her life.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are helpful and feedback is welcomed.

Some of history's most popular styles — from romantic ruffled blouses and shimmery skirts to velvet vests and amulets - are back to head fall's fashion hit pa-

'What makes this fall's fashion so much fun is that there are so many wonderful options from so many different eras," said Karen Fox, marketing director for Briarwood Mall. "Our fashion retailers report that people have really gotten into this idea of mixing styles from the various decades.'

The 10 top basics for Fall '93 include:

■ Oversized white blouses with lots of romantic details like ruffles, jabot necklines, billowing sleeves and dangling cuffs can be worn as traditional blouses, as tunics over soft, elongated skirts or as quick updates for tailored business suits.

There's much more detail in blouses this year - puff sleeves and shoulders, bow buttons, flairstyles on the sleeves," said Peter Alexander, manager of Gantos. "It's a very romantic, Victorian look.

■ Pallazzo pants have taken hold as this fall's fashion staple. Not skirt lengths, they also provide a soft, comfortable and dramatic touch. At the Express, this season's hottest look is wide-legged Tricot pants worn with a matching long tunic and a second matching tunic draped and tied over the shoulders.

■ Vests are in, out and all about this year. They come in every imaginable style and fabric - short to ankle-length, brocades, crochets, velvets and even hooded

"We're selling lots of the em-bellished vests," said Judy Fawley, manager of Winkelman's. "They're particularly popular over soft, silk blouses with denim pants.'

And vests over pallazzo pants provide another fashionable alternative.

Tunics, an extension of the vest, are equally comfortable and fashionable worn alone or over skirts, pants and even dresses. They're particularly popular in this season's new soft, fine-gauge knits.

■ Dresses are more important and romantic — this year than they have been for many years. The newest looks are long, flowing only do they solve the problem of or split-skirted in tiny prints or

■ Skirts anything long, flowing, fluttery and romantic - are in. Asymmetrical skirts, with the front shorter than the back, provide a flattering and feminine compromise for women still in a

Fall look features oldies but goodies

quandry over hemline lengths. ■ Flannel shirts continue to provide a fashionable comfort level this fall as long as they're loose-fitting and plaid. They're most effectively worn over thermal or ribbed tops.

Jeans, the favorite bottom wear for decades, remains on top of this fall's fashion. And anything denim maintains its importance, particularly if it's stonewashed.

Boots — from lace-up granny boots to no-nonsense Doc Martens — are the kick this fall. Just make sure the boots are funky. clunky and chunky - and nothing works better than Doc Martens, the black work boot once so popular with '70s punkers. The boots have worked their way along side athletic shoes into today's mainstream fashion.

"They (Doc Martens) are not just a good-looking boot," said Fred Deming, manager of Track 'N Trail. "They're also functional. Ninety-nine percent of our Doc ion-oriented people, but, because of their construction, they're also very functional shoes for people who work in factories."

Other boot standouts include granny boots, platform shapes, Western boots, hiking styles and work boots. Jewelry this year recreates decades past with long, drop earrings, metal, velvet, satin and crocheted chokers, amulets, beaded neck-laces, pendant necklaces and very large pearls.

"All of the '70s retro jewelry hippie beads, chokers, natural colors and nothing bright — is selling really well," said Louanne Block, assistant manager of Briarwood's Accessory Place. "Anything in silver is also very popu-

As a final fashion statement, shoppers can tip their hats to history - with the very contemporary look of berets, fedoras, brimmed, cloche and blossom chapeaus.

Briarwood, at South State Street, north of of I-94, in Ann Arbor, features 125 shops and services in addition to major retailers like Hudson's, JCPenney

Time for organizations to submit holiday cards

With 25 years of experience in the field of obstetrics, Malinowski encourages couples to be well-informed when considering parenthood and believes programs such as this helps put parents-to-be in the best frame of mind.

"It's been during the past five to 10 years that we have become more educated and more in tuned to the problems that can occur during pregnancy," said Malinowski, perinatal clinical nurse specialist for the Catherine McAuley Health System.

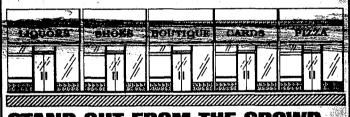

Sally Bailey, of Plymouth, is an obstetrics nurse and she is pleased to see this seminar being offered locally. She will present a discussion on various birthing options.

"It's important to research some of these options before you become pregnant," she said. "We think it is important that couples become familiar with an OB/GYN before they become pregnant because they should take time to shop around."

Bailey's presentation will include information about the changes in childbirth facilities and how births have moved from sterile environments to more home-like rooms where families can be together.

Many people say they hate grammar. But it is very important as I hope to show you "Whosoever BELIEVETH that Jesus is the Christ IS BORN of God" (I John 5 1) The verb "believeth" is present tense, showing what is taking place now. The verb "is borm" is perfect tense, pointing out action which was completed in the past, before the person believed. Thank God He gives life by new birth so we can believe!

Unity, not differences, drives Imam

BY BILL COUTANT STAFF WRITER

The Rev. Imam Muhammad Karoub is not an imposing figure.

He stands only about 5-feet-5 and wears thick-framed glasses that seem to highlight his mostly white hair as he sits behind a desk in his office on Woodward Avenue in Detroit The Farmington Hills resident speaks Arabic over the phone to a man from Yemen who needs help bringing a relative into the country, then helps a man from Saudi Arabia who is trying to become a U.S. citizen. In addition to working at a small mosque adjoining his office, Karoub performs a variety of religious duties for Muslims throughout the area.

A copy of the Koran, the holy work of Islam, hangs behind his desk as he explains about the misconceptions many Americans have about Islam and its followers, especially those from the Middle East.

'My father (Imam Hussein Karoub) founded the first Islamic mosque in the U.S.," he said.

Karoub himself was born and raised in Highland Park, not the Middle East.

His fluent Arabic comes from studying the language in the Middle East in order to learn the teachings of his religion.

"That was the purpose of learning Arabic, to learn the Koran," he said. "But it has also helped me to work with people and help them. I learned it at home beginning when I was 9 or 10. It has served me well."

Karoub uses the title "reverend" as a convenience. The Arabic word imam means he is a religious leader. His religious duties take him throughout the Detoit area and to Ontario, Ohio, and Indiana, including ministering to prisoners who follow Islam.

Reassures his followers

Despite his small stature, his strong voice and engaging handshake reassure his followers. He knows that recent events including the arrest of Muslim cleric Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman and 14 others in connection with the bombing of the World Trade Center in New York - give many Americans a jaded picture of followers of Islam.

There is a deep-seated mistrust," he said. "But followers of Islam cannot be terrorists. Islam forbids it. But these people are called religious fundamentalists.'

That mistrust has added to the misunderstanding of Islamic customs, and sometimes to the isolation of Muslims and other Arab-Americans, including Chaldean Christians, in the area, he said.

The Detroit area has the largest concentration of Arab-Americans in America, and Dearborn has the third largest Arab-American population, said Kurt Metzger of the Wayne State University Center for Urban Studies

That leaves estimates of the Arab population in the Detroit area somewhere between 61,000 and 250,000, he said.

Karoub knows Egyptians, Palestinians, Jordanians, Yemeni, Saudis, Morroccans, Libyans and Algerians who practice Islam, but are distinct in their backgrounds and customs hardly a unified ethnic group.

Many face prejudice

The young are hardest hit by the prejudice against Arabs and Islam, Karoub said.

"I grew up playing with other children and going to public schools," he said. "I was made aware of the difference. And the prohibitions against eating ham and pork was something that set me apart. But for young people now, it's much more severe to be associated with terrorists.

Judy White, assistant superintendent for curriculum and staff development for the Farmington Public School District, said the bilingual education program has identified Arab-American students and made the district aware of cultural differences.

The schools have found ways to accommodate those differences, such as not requiring females to wear bathing suits — considered immodest by Islamic custom.

What are the goals of a moral life?

tive on the goals of a moral life. (1) A Growing Mind - Never have people been as conscious as today of the importance of good health. The feats of medical science are reported daily in the press, celebrated in the mass media and eagerly discussed in our informal conversations. But in our concern for the physical well being, we ought not neglect the cultivation of our spiritual resources, the aspiration to wisdom and knowledge which is the hallmark of the growing mind.

Knowledge is one of the best guarantees we can acquire against the constriction of the habitual and the familiar. To learn something we have never known before is to enter the domain of surprise and wonderment. It is to savor an experience of adventure.

To be truly educated means to be open to new challenges of thought, all the time. A knowledgeable person is not someone who once read a book, and never got over it, rather, is he or she one who continues to learn and to seek knowledge.

(2) The Helping Hand planted deep within the human spirit is the capacity to seek out the needs of others, and to know the delight which comes from the act of service itself. Has a child ever slipped a hand into yours, just because he wanted to walk beside you? Have you ever seen your gift or your word evoke on a face darkened by distress, a transforming smile of joy? Then you have experienced the delight which is truly the enlargement of life itself.

So many of us strike bargains with our conscience and "give charity" as if it were a kind of transaction arranged with an eve to the balance sheet. The highest form of charity is not a gift, but a righteous deed. It is not done mechanically. Rather, it is accompanied by an experience of helpfulness and sense of humanity

Charity involves imagination and insight. Some people refuse to participate in philanthropy for. as they put it, they ask for nothing from anyone and therefore need give nothing in return. But they are profoundly mistaken. Each of us has come into a world, into a community, into a country built by the labor and sacrifice of untold generations. The greatest benefactor cannot give to society as much as society has given to

(3) A Brave Heart Of enormous importance to our world is that virtue known as moral courage. This is the readiness to expose one's self to sacrifice, sometimes even to suffering, in order to uphold and advance a moral principle. The greatest heroes of history are those who were ready to endure disapproval, contempt, rejection or even worse, rather than depart from what they saw as the

■ So many of us strike bargains with our conscience and "give charity" as if it were a kind of transaction arranged with an eye to the balance sheet. The highest form of charity is not a gift but a righteous deal.

The quality of moral courage is asked of each of us. In the pressure of our collective lives, we accept without question the standards of our group and the questionable practices of our day. We encounter an increasing number of little compromises that circumstances urge us to make. They are the petty, seemingly insignificant vieldings of a higher motive to a lower impulse.

Sometimes the good is identified with what is accepted and prevalent. Many a teenager has tried to convince his dubious parents by the logic of "everyone is doing it" as though numbers determine values. Or else we say, "go fight city hall." A wise person said, "You can determine a man's character by what he stands for, but even more accurately, by what he won't stand for."

The person of moral courage will declare: "This is what I choose as right. I will not surrender to the great god of conformity. I seek to impart to my children independence of will and judgment which will enable them to be different from others, when the principles of truth and integrity bright Jupiter in the west. The planet will be only four degrees above the horizon. Mars will be four degrees to the left of Jupiter, and Spica will be four degrees to the left of Mars.

New Moon phase was at 11:10 p.m. on Sept. 15. The moon, located between the earth and the sun. will not be visible.

The distance from Venus to Regulus will have decreased to six degrees on the morning of the 16th. Regulus will be rising higher in the sky from morning to morning, as if rushing up to meet Venus. Venus will be directly above Regulus on the morning of Notice the waxing crescent moon on the evening of the 20th. The bright red star to the left of the moon will be Antares, the 'heart' of Scorpius the scorpion. On the following evening the moon will have passed Antares.

Venus and Regulus have their close conjunction (grouping) on the morning of the 21st. Venus will be located one-half of a degree to the left of the star. It makes for an interesting sight. Consider. Venus is closer to the sun than the earth; Regulus is light-years away, yet the two appear to be side by side. This is obviously an optical illusion; don't fret about a "near miss" between the two objects.

The moon will be at first quarter phase at 3:22 p.m. on the 22nd. It will be found in the south after sunset above the "spout" of the "teapot" that marks the constellation of Sagittarius the archer. On the following evening the moon will be above the "handle"

Depending on your personal preference, you will either be delighted or dismayed at 8:22 p.m. on Sept. 22, for that is when autumn officially begins for the northern hemisphere. What is it that determines the exact moment? It's a combination of the earth's orbit and the tilt of its

Earth is divided into northern and southern hemispheres by the equator. If this equator is extended out into space it cuts the sky into northern and southern hemispheres, but now its called the celestial equator.

Because the axis of the earth is tilted 23.5 degrees, the sun can appear to be 23.5 degrees above the celestial equator or 23.5 degrees below it. When the sun is at its highest point north of the celestial equator, we have summer. When the sun is at its lowest point, we have winter.

Obviously there are two spots where the sun must cross the celestial equator, once when going from above the equator to below, and another going from below to

The precise moment of the crossover, going from north to south, is when autumn officially begins for the northern hemisphere. The sun will rise due east and set due west. The length of the day and length of night are about the same, so this is called the equinox, from the Latin term for "equal night."

Although we will be confronting the start of autumn, people in the southern hemisphere will be facing the first day of spring.

The distance from Venus to Regulus will have increased considerably by the 25th; the two objects will be five degrees apart. As Regulus has been climbing higher each morning, Venus has been dropping lower as it heads around the sun.

Look for the moon in the southeast on the evening of the 26th. The object five degrees directly below it is Saturn. The moon will appear to be full tonight, as well but full moon doesn't officially occur for four more days. On the evening of the 26th the moon will be 87 percent illuminated: on the following evening it will be 92 percent, and on the 28th it will be 97 percent. Close, but no chewing gum. (People are giving up ci-gars.) Even on the 29th, the moon, 99 percent illuminated, will not officially be full.

The full moon officially occurs at 2:54 p.m. on Sept. 30. This is a very special full moon: the Harvest Moon. We have full moons every month throughout the year, but this is the one with all the folklore and romance.

What makes this moon special? Because the moon is in orbit around the earth, it appears in different parts of the sky from night to night. Generally the moon will rise about one hour later each night. But in autumn the full moon is located at the part of its orbit that has the least tilt

Feds to cut emergency benefits

Emergency federal jobless benefits are being cut to a maximum of 10 weeks in Michigan, F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, announced today.

According to federal law, once the country's seasonally adjusted jobless rate remains below 7.0 percent for two straight months, as it did in July and August, then the number of weeks payable through the Emergency Unemployment Compensation program must be reduced nationwide.

The national drop in unemployment will reduce from 20 to 10 weeks the maximum EUC benefit payable in Michigan," Edwards explained.

"The decrease will affect only those filing new EUC claims after Sunday, Sept. 12."

Those with existing EUC claims, established at the higher 20-week maximum level, will not be affected by the cutback. They can draw out all of the federal benefits remaining in their claim. EUC benefits are federally funded and go to jobless workers who exhaust their state benefits.

Through EUC, claimants receive one week of federal benefits for each week of state jobless benefits they collected, up to the allowable maximum. The EUC program will soon end.

MESC cannot establish new EUC claims after Oct. 2, but will continue to make payments through Jan. 15, 1994, on previlously established claims

Used book lovers alert: AAUW sale this weekend

The Birmingham branch of the American Association of University Women's 66th annual used book sale will occur this weekend at the Birmingham Masonic Temple.

The hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. Sunday, and 9 a.m. to noon, Monday. A "Preview Sale" will occur 6:30-9 p.m. Friday for book buyers who want first dibs. Admission is $5.

The Masonic Temple is located at 357 Woodward Ave. in Bloomfield Hills.

The early sales were held in store fronts. The Wabeek Building was the first. Crowlev's was used, as was a Baptist church and the YMCA. In the late 1960s the sale settled in at the Masonic Temple on the west side of Woodward between Quarton and Lone Pine.

The idea behind the book sale is to raise money for college scholarships and community projects. The scholarship money, $3,000 last year, is divided in half and given to organizations that provide scholarships for graduates of schools in the Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills school districts.

Additional money is given to Walsh College and Oakland Community College for scholarships administered by those schools.

Also, the AAUW gives some of the book sale proceeds to ects. Martha Baur, the AAUW publicity chairwoman, declined to say which community programs get the donations or how much money the book sales usually raise.

This year the AAUW has collected 18,000 to 20,000 items, including records, sheet music and video tapes, Baur said. Last year the organization had 45,000 items. Baur attributes the drop off to a discerning eye.

with respect to Earth's horizon line. The moon seems to skim along the horizon, rising at about the same time each evening, in about the same part of the sky, looking "full" for several consecutive nights. The full moon that occurs closest to the autumn equinox is the Harvest Moon.

The light scattered by the full moon was a help to farmers, allowing them to continue their harvesting after sunset, hence it was called the Harvest Moon. The full moon that follows the Harvest Moon was said to be a help to hunters. (Hopefully you can figure out what THAT full moon is called.)

Coincidentally, this full moon will be the most distant in 1993. The moon will be 406,425 kilometers (which is 252,540.7868 miles, give or take a millionth of a mile) away from the earth. The moon's orbit around the earth is not perfectly circular, it is eccentric There is a point each month where the moon is at its closest to the earth, and a point where it is at its farthest. This month's closest point just happens to coincide with the full

People invariably argue whether the full moon has any unusual effect on humans. Well, it really shouldn't be expected to have any special effect at all. We see different phases of the moon depending on what part is being illuminated by the sun. The moon is ALWAYS somewhere near the earth, so any effect it would have ought to be a constant one, not dependent on how much of the moon is being illuminated.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar." A one-year subscription is $6 ($7.50 starting in October) and is available from the Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing,

Livonia Symphony: It's a cultural pillar

First of two parts.

ssential it's not. But a symphony adds texture to a community by strengthening the cultural threads running through it. In short, a symphony helps define a community.

So I take delight in saluting the Livonia Symphony Orchestra as it steps up rehearsing for opening night of its 20th anniversary season Saturday, Oct. 2, featuring guest pianist Anthony Bonomici, a Livonia Stevenson graduate who will play Schumann's Piano Concerto in A minor.

First-chair bassoonist Jim Poe, a musician representative to the Livonia Symphony Society board, put it well: "A symphony brings a cultural aspect unachievable any other way. When you try to raise money for it, you actually ask people to invest in the arts and make a community a more beautiful place to live.'

With a renowned conductor, progressive board, finely tuned orchestra, diverse events and an upbeat 1992-93 season highlighted by a sold-out performance of Tchaikovsky's The Nutcracker, the LSO indeed has enriched Livonia's cultural firmament.

The symphony's makeup closely parallels the community it serves. Musicians range from music professionals to music teachers to music students to music buffs. Their backgrounds range from modeling to medicine to law enforcement. Some receive token payment, others union wages. Some play for the love of it and refuse to be paid.

To support its $125,000 operating budget in the wake of diminished government support, the symphony society is doing its best to pep up programming and attract patrons of all ages, especially youngsters. Its five-year strategic plan adopted in May reveals perspective, purpose and direction.

This 16-concert anniversary season features everything from Bach to Broadway: five subscription concerts, three chamber concerts, three kids' concerts, two holiday performances of The Nutcracker, two fund-raising performances and a showtime

Bent on making concerts more participatory, the orchestra and music-director/conductor Francesco DiBlasi invite the audience to join them in costume and compete for prizes at a festive family Halloween concert Saturday, Oct. 30.

LSO violinist Volodymyr Schesiuk will guest conduct the two holiday performances of The Nutcracker. The Ukrainian emigre brings vast experience as a guest conductor with Russian opera theaters and symphony orchestras.

"In times when grants are tougher and some have dried up, you have to market the orchestra differently," said Poe, a Ford Motor executive with 20 years of experience playing with civic orchestras. "And you don't ask people to donate to the symphony, but to invest in it.'

The Ford Motor Co. Livonia Transmission Plant and Target Stores each sponsored a concert last season. But with the cost of a concert now nearing $7,500, more corporate backing is crucial.

Creative funding

Fund-raisers, grants, ticket sales, corporations and and individuals generate most of the symphony's revenue. Creative funding is the catch phrase of the '90s.

Purists might resist the chipping away of classical strains from the concert fare but as Rose Kachnowski, the orchestra's marketing VP, notes, "We as a symphony can't afford to ignore different styles of music that appeal to younger folks.

'We've got to make younger crowds feel that symphony music is a fun to hear. We've got to bring a little bit of every kind of music into concert programming to involve more young people and more families.

But classical music, rooted in 19th-century European aristocracy and symphonic keynotes, won't be quieted. "One of the things people don't realize is that they're exposed to all kinds of classical music throughout their life: in commercials, cartoons, movies," said Ken Kelsey, starting his fifth year as president of the symphony board. "One of our jobs is to draw young people to classical sounds.

Like many suburban symphonies, the LSO has faced its share of internal challenges: building identity after a 1988 name change from Oakway Symphony, limited rehearsal time, promoting a high school auditorium as a concert venue, some musician disillusionment over increased pop mu-

Livonia quilter Kathleen Mayo has sewed up another award from Fairfield Processing Corp. in Danbury, Conn., for her quilt block square, Blue Birds of Happiness.

The winning quilt, done in blue, rose, yellow and green, took second place in a national contest that drew hundreds of entries

The hand-appliqued block will be sewn together with other winning squares to make a fullsize quilt called "Baltimore Beauty." Fairfield will display the finished piece at quilt shows across the country.

Mayo, a self-taught quilter, won four other quilting awards this year, including first place in a contest sponsored by Family Circle Magazine, Fairfield and the American Museum of Folk Art in New York.

Her winning square, a colorful quilted picture of a northern Michigan fishing trip, is included in a full-size quilt called "Family Heritage. The finished quilt has been displayed at the American Museum of Folk Art and will appear in a fall issue of Family Circle.

Literary watcher weighs success as forecaster

VICTORIA

ladies and gentlemen. This is my Day of Reckoning. Remember way back on May 20, when I ventured out on that literary limb? I named four notyet-published novels — Scott Turow's "Pleading Guilty," Stephen Coonts' "The Red Horseman," Jack Hig-"Thunder Point" and Barbara Kingsolver's "Pigs in Heaven." And I said we'd see each of them "on bestseller lists before summer's end."

Gather 'round,

I then invited interested parties to check back here in September to see how my predictions went. There was the possibility, of course, that said interested parties might just get the chance to watch me eat my words.

So on this fateful day, do I find myself a condemned woman?

Well, yes and no.

As it turned out, each novel did find a spot on either or both the list for approximately 12 weeks. Ditto for Kingsolver's "Pigs in Heaven," a timely story about a struggle for custody of an adopted Higgins' "Thunder Point."

New York Times and Publishers

"Pleading Guilty," had made a continuing appearance on each featuring his old hero, Brig. Charles Ferguson, had fared all right, appearing on one list or the other throughout the month of July. Coonts' post-Soviet "The Red Horseman" popped up on the NYT list for a short while toward the end of June.

As the eternal optimist commented during his plunge from the tip-top of the Empire State Building: "All right, so far."

You may remember that I didn't stop at forecasting bestsellerdom for each book by summer's end. Nooooo, not me. I went on to predict that these novels would make "some of the splashiest literary hits of 1993."

So much for quitting when you're ahead.

As I write this, you'll not find

New York Times and Publishers
Weekly lists by the end of August.
By then, Turow's legal thriller,
"Pleading Guilty" has disappeared from the Publishers Weekly list and has dropped out of the top ten in the New York Times.

"Pigs in Heaven" stands about midway, where it has remained for several weeks now. (Of the predictions I made, I expected "Pigs" to make the least impressive showing. Now, as things look from here, it may possibly out-do Turow's expected blockbuster in terms of staying power.)

I expected Turow's latest thriller to hold a spot among the top ten bestselling novels for much longer than 12 weeks.

I expected "Thunder Point" and "The Red Horseman" to appear among the top ten soon after publication and stay there for several weeks. Neither book ever made it past number 11.

In comparison, as of Sept. 1, Robert James Waller's sensational seller, "The Bridges of Madison County," has been firmly ensconced on the list some 50-plus weeks; John Grisham's "The Client" more than 20.

Laura Esquivel's offbeat "Like held on to a spot in the top 15 for more than 20 weeks. (Although a place on the list doesn't indicate exactly the number of books sold in any given week, of course, it is usually safe to assume that if it has held to a top spot substantially longer than another title, it has sold better in the long run.)

And so, here I am, nibbling on a word here and a word there, smiling sheepishly, and vowing never to test my powers of prophecy in print again.

You really should keep an eye on Tom Clancy's "Without Remorse," though. Also, Larry McMurtry's "Streets of Laredo." Also John le Carre's "The Night Manager." And, of course, Elmore Leonard's "Pronto," due out in bookstores soon . . .

Last Words: Friends of the Plymouth Library has scheduled writers' workshop for middleschool students Nov. 4, 11, and 18 at Dunning-Hough Library in downtown Plymouth. The event will be co-sponsored by Poets & Writers, Inc., through grants from the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest tion will begin 9 a.m. Participants Fund and the Lannan Foundation.

Twenty students will be invited to participate.

Applicants must submit a written statement, stating why he or she wants to participate in the workshop. A statement from an adult telling why the student would benefit from the experience should accompany each application for admission.

The workshops will be led by area authors Barbara Hood Burgess and Thomas Sullivan.

Deadline for submitting applications is Oct. 7.

es for the community. For information, call the DDC at 544-5550.

The dance sampler, featuring classes in modern, ballet, jazz and creative dance for children, will take place 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Sept. 18 at the Royal Oak Campus of Oakland Community College, 739 S. Washington. Registramay dance all day for $8. Creative dance for children is free.

Beginning, intermediate and advanced dancers may visit the studios, meet the instructors and register for a six-week session that will take place Sept. 20 to Oct. 30, taught by DDC members.

Intermediate and advanced dancers may also take professional-level classes in modern dance and improvisation with DDC Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, beginning 9:30 a.m. Monday, Oct. 4.

Color adds to fall bloom

If you've put off planting and it's sud-denly September, or you've harvested your summer garden and you still have the urge to dig, there is hope.

McFarland Florist and Greenhouses invites fall gardeners to an hourlong workshop on what to plant for late fall color 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 18.

The free workshop will take place at McFarland's, 28915 Grand River, four blocks east of Middlebelt in Farmington Hills. For more information, call 474-0750.

McFarland's will present master gardener Betti Pool, who will offer advice on care and planting after the autumn equinox. Fall gardeners will also receive tips on how to de-bud and cut back plants to lengthen their lifespans.

Pool is a year-round gardener and for her, the promise of the first frost is the signal to plan for the next season. She will share her all-season gardening ideas in a series of autumn workshops 10 a.m. Saturdays at McFarland's during September and Octo-

Topics will include a hands-on bulb planting session for children Sept. 25, planning a perennial garden Oct. 2, spring bulb planting Oct. 9 and ground covers for the yard Oct. 16. Children may join McFarland artist Karyn Alvarado in a hands-on pumpkin painting workshop Oct. 23.

"We want to introduce gardeners of all ages to different varieties of plants that can be enjoyed all year, said Mary Lore, president and owner of McFarland's.

from 1603 to present day, to have examples of the whole era into contemporary times," said Dr. Siegel in an interview at the gallery.

"I get an aesthetic response from looking at the prints. It's kind of a love affair. I get turned on by the images."

The Siegels began their collection more than 20 years ago with the purchase of five Japanese wood block prints in London, England. They became interested in them a few months earlier after a friend purchased a Hiroshige at the Liggett School antique show in Grosse Pointe.

When they returned home from London, the Siegels took the prints to the former Birmingham Gallery to have them framed. The owner proceeded to show them his collection and from that interlude was born the Michigan Oriental Art Society, a group of eight collectors founded in 1972.

The society's members study and exhibit the prints. Over the years the exhibition sites have included the University of Michigan Art Museum, Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association and Flint Art Institute.

"The more prints you collect and handle, the more you learn about them," said Dr. Siegel.

"Being a collector is more than just going out and buying them. It's studying when the paper is produced. Paper in the 1800s is different from the 1900s. In the beginning, they used vegetable dyes. After 1840 or 1860, they began to use ana-

A 1974 print of grays and whites accented by blacks is architectural in nature.

"I enjoy looking at beautiful things. I like the contemporary Japanese wood block prints because they're beautiful. I like the lines. They're stronger. I like the form and composisaid Heather Siegel. tion," "Some of the older ones are more interesting because of the stories that go with them.'

Heather Siegel began to collect ceramics 30 years ago, 10 years before she started collecting Japanese wood block prints. "Ceramics is very earthy and goes very well with the prints," she said.

'Chikanobu'' by Natori Shunsen is a triptych done on three plates. It features an archery practice where Samurai warriors of the Diamyo warlords match wits. In the 1895 print, a padded arrow has downed a dog.

"This particular subject was a popular theme," Siegel said.
"Snow Scene in Shiba Park" by Kawasi Hasui was produced in the 1930s.

The Siegels have purchased prints in England, United States and Japan.

Locally, the Troy Art Gallery through which the Siegels have purchased prints, will host an exhibition of Japanese wood block prints in October.

Other dealers the Siegels have purchased prints from include Shogun Gallery in Washington, D.C.; Merlin Daily of Victor, N.Y.; Honeychurch Antiques in Seattle; and Robert Sawers and Richard Kruml of London, England.

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Visit furniture trunk show

As the 1993 fall fashions fill metro area stores, Scott Shuptrine offers an unusual "Furniture Fashion Forecast" trunk show to help consumers make important home furnishings purchase decisions.

The free trunk show will be at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 23, at 4110 Telegraph, south of Long Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills; 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24, at 977 E. 14 Mile, just east of John R. in Troy; and 12:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24, at 43606 W. Oaks Drive, across from

Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi. Anyone interested in attending should call Scott Shuptrine Furniture at 589-1100. Fashion coordinator for Henredon, Josie Harper, will act as special host of this free and informative look at the current and upcoming trends in furniture styles and fashions.

She will feature an exciting dis-play of the latest in fabrics, colors, trims and designs. Refreshments will be provided.

Learn basics of sewing design

"The Basics of Design" will be the focus of a slide/lecture presentation 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 21, by award-winning quilter Faye Anderson for the Needlework and Textile Guild of Michigan.

The design program is open to the public. It will take place at the First United Methodists Church of Birmingham, 1589 W. Maple. For more information, call 644-4718 or 646-1303.

Tantalizing textures: Debbie Liberman crafts hand-built and wheel-thrown vessels, bowls, platters and jewelry from clay.

Variety hallmark of ceramicist's work

JIM JAGDFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Creative clay: After 10 years working in clay, Debbie Liberman has found her latest love is a 16th-century Japanese technique known as raku.

Wearable art: Raku lapel pins and earrings are the handiwork of ceramicist Debbie Liberman.

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

Black and metallic interminglings of raku, highly textured stoneware and delicate porcelain document Debbie Liberman's 10-year love affair with clay.

Through Sept. 29, the Southfield ceramist displays a variety of innovative wares in a one-person exhibition hosted by the Livonia Arts Commission in the circular showcases on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Primarily hand-built with some wheel thrown, Liberman's pottery ranges from whimsical turtle and fish dishes, earrings and lapel pins to exquisitely textured platters. Cactuses and coyotes cover the interior of one bowl while abstract patterns and shapes take form in a wallhanging.

"One of the first things that attracted me to Debbie's work was the designs," said arts commissioner Lee Alanskas, who produces the monthly showcase exhibits. "It was not the ordinary type of pottery. Upon closer inspection, I noticed the textures and color. They're quite appealing.

Texture plays on the surfaces of the pottery, creating interesting patterns. Liberman uses everyday items like a meat tenderizer or old lace to decorate the interiors and exteriors. Circular and diamond-shaped cutouts were formed with a kitchen utensil used to cut fancy hors d'ouevres.

By day, Liberman manages the fashion department of Kmart in Taylor but at night she takes pleasure from creating ceramics.

During the 16 years she has worked for Kmart Fashions, company transfers have taken Liberman away from home for extended periods. When Liberman was transferred to Saginaw 10 years ago, she took a pottery class at Delta College in Bay City. Away from her family and friends for the first time, the clay helped ease the loneliness.

was away from home with time on my hands. I get a lot of satisfaction from the results. Working with clay is a multi-step pro-' Liberman said. "I'm more secure in three-dimensional than two-dimensional. That's why I like clay.

By using the hand-built technique, Liberman is able to work on one or several pieces at her convenience. "With wet clay, I might work on it at home if I have a few spare hours in the afternoon.

For the last eight years, Liberman has continued to study ceramics at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

'I never know if I will end with what I preplanned. In pottery, you never get attached to anything until it's totally finished," Liberman sic, too few string players.

For instant gratification, she has found her latest love in raku, a 16th-century Japanese technique. A clay piece still glowing with heat is placed with combustible materials, creating particular colors, textures and metallic oxides.

But like the symphonies of Mozart and Bach, the LSO has persevered under the magical wand of DiBlasi, its founder and music director.

Thanks to his mentor, San Franciso Symphony conductor Pierre Monteaux, Di-Blasi made his New York City debut as a conductor at age 19 in 1947 with the Little Symphony. He later spent three years as first trumpet and assistant conductor with Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in New York

In 1953, while first assistant trumpet with the Detroit Symphony, DiBlasi founded the Pontiac-Oakland Symphony. He'll guest conduct the POS in October to mark its 40th anniversary.

Today, DiBlasi spices LSO rehearsals with anecdotes from his 50 years as an international musician and maestro.

"We're real proud we've been able to prosper," Kelsey said. "I feel it's a tribute to Francesco DiBlasi, who's basically the one ingredient who's kept it together all these years.

Even some folks close to the LSO don't realize DiBlasi, 66, took no or little salary in especially tough times to balance the budget of the orchestra he and his late wife Nelda so lovingly built.

"He's low key but has great depth of knowledge about music and how to perform t," said Livonia Mayor Bob Bennett, a board veteran. "His classical music contacts have been very beneficial in obtaining the caliber of performers we've had over the years. There's no doubt in my mind he has been a tremendous asset.

Twenty years later, DiBlasi offers no signs of slowing down.

As he tells it: "All we have to is get to the people. Even with all the crazy music out there, we feel if we can get people into the symphony hall, they'll come to enjoy our music. I'd even like to do some more farout things - more modern, contemporary music. A lot of it isn't good but a professional conductor can select some things that are appealing. We can't let up.'

Books can help you polish your green thumb

■ "Beyond Flowers: Collecting and Arranging Natural Ob. jects," by Gerd Verschoor with Bo Niles (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, $55), is a beautiful book that must be read so you can book beat:

understand the reasons behind the unusual arrangements.

The text flows easily. Along the way, Verschoor shares many personal experiences, gathering the reader into his world. Verschoor is more than an artist. His poetic descriptions of nature in all seasons of the years will make the reader open his or her eyes to the beauty of all things manmade or from nature.

"In this book, I want to show how to re-create the feelings of an' unforgettable day, how to re-create the atmosphere of a special event in a composition of collected objects that brings back memories of that day," he said.

"Tulips," Peter Arnold (Macmillan, $30), contains 70 bright and lovely photographs of this flower: a visual feast, as Arnold writes, "of forms, colors and textures of the flowers." The book will provide much enjoyment for those who appreciate such beauty.
The author tells the fascinating history of the tulip, first mentioned by a European in 1554 and still a favorite of many people. The pictorial index gives the cultivar name and page number of its portrait." The classification of tulips (15 in all) includes bloom time and height.

"Creative Propagation: A Grower's Guide," Peter Thompson (Timber Press, $19.95), gives detailed instruction on how to propagate all the various kinds of plants — annuals, hardy perennials, trees and shrubs, conifers, heathers, alpines and bulbs.

Information about how and why certain propagation methods work best help the reader understand the processes. The drawings are very clear, as is the text. "Trellising: How to Grow

Climbing Vegetables, Fruits, Flowers, Vines and Trees," Rhonda Massingham Hart (Storey, $21.95 hard, $10.95 soft), explains why trellising is important, how the structures are built, and which plants perform best on which design. Tips for growing them are included. This is a Dual Main Selection of the Garden Book Club. ■ Many of you are familiar with the seed company, The Cook's Garden, in Vermont. The owner. Shepherd Ogden, has completely updated his grandfather's classic Step-by-Step Organic Vegetable Gardening" (Harper Collins, $23), to bring the latest in pesticidefree gardening techniques to the tion), siting, planning and much one best suits your needs. Some more. His gentle explanations about all the steps to garden this way will help the grower be successful. Instructions for growing many vegetables, including some unusual ones, are clear. If organic gardening is a new experience to you, Ogden tells how to slowly change your gardening habits to his methods.

In "Taylor's Guide to Specialty Nurseries," Barton (Houghton/ Mifflin, $16.95), Barbara Barton shares her personal thoughts about each of these nurseries, which specialize only in ornamental garden plants.

She relates the history of the business and gives all pertinent information about it, particulars that will help in deciding which are small; others large. If they are included, they are good. The indexing makes it easy to find specific plants; the nurseries are listed under each state, which is helpful. Houghton/Mifflin has just released "Beds and Borders," by Wendy B. Murphy, in soft cover ($18.95). I reviewed this fine book in 1990 and still find the lavish photos, practical information and flower descriptions excellent.

ROBERT KIDD GALLERY

Friday, Sept. 17 - Exhibit of monotypes by Helen Frankenthaler will continue through Oct. 23. Opening re ception 6-9 p.m. Friday. Frankenthaler personally selected the works for this show. Her monotypes are characterized by sensuous washes of color. They embody a similar abstract liquidity to that displayed in her paintings that prompted a whole generation of art connoisseurs to acclaim her as the most important link be tween abstract expressionism and 'color-field'' painting. A slide lecture, "Safari on the Studio Floor," by noted art historian Hope Palmer will focus on Frankenthaler's life and work. The lecture will take place 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19, at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham. Call the gallery to re serve space and for more information. Gallery hours: 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 107 Townsend, Birmingham, 642-3909.

■ G.R. N'NAMDI GALLERY

Friday, Sept. 17 --- Works of Detroit native Al Loving will be exhibited to Oct. 17. Opening reception for the art ist 6-9 p.m. Friday. Loving has described himself as a "material abstractionist," having moved from the tradition of brush toward "the making of art." His latest constructions are intricate assemblages of cutout spirals and grids using acid-free, corrugated cardboard and rag paper attached to a plexiglass armature. Hours: 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 1-4 p.m. Sunday, 161 Townsend, Birmingham, 642-2700. ETON GALLERY

Friday, Sept. 17 — Work of Balthazar Korab, considered America's premier architectural photographer, will be featured through October in his first gallery show in the area since 1985. Opening reception for the artist 6-9 p.m. Friday. Earlier this year, Korab's work was among that of master photographers Ansel Adams, Edward Weston and David Hockney in a major exhibit in Torino, Italy. Photographed while he lived in Italy, the warm landscapes and portraits shown reflect Korab's romantic sensitivity to light, color and nature. The gallery is at 151 N. Eton in Birmingham, Call-649-4951.

Condo buyers need to note association bylaws

Condominiums have become a popular alternative for home buyers, mainly because they offer the amenities of apartment living with the advantage of owning a

But if you're in the market for a condominium, you should be aware of the possible limitations and pitfalls of purchasing and owning a condo.

Doug Stranahan, regional di-rector for Century 21 Great Lakes, offers several pieces of advice for persons looking into the condo option.

First, he suggests working with a real estate broker or agent experienced in the condominium market in your area. The agent can be very helpful in targeting a complex suited to your needs. Also, a particular agent might be more familiar with a certain building's history, association fees and requirements. Look around the building or complex you're interested in and contact the agent who has done the most business there by talking to the condo association or current residents. In most states, hiring a real estate lawyer to review all documents is as advisable in purchasing a condo as it is in buying a

The attorney should review the condominium declaration extensively to interpret many pages of ■ Pay attention to the rules involving resale of the unit. Some condo complexes limit the use of for-sale signs, don't allow owners to rent out their units and have a right to approve or screen potential buyers.

"The fine print will be deciphered for you," Stranahan said.

Since the declaration guides the day-to-day living of the community, it's important to get a thorough understanding of the lifestyle into which you're buying. The buyer is entitled to ask for have the builder pay a maintenance fee that is not the same as other units. What proportion would be the developer's responsibility, if any?

Typically, the developer may be exempt for paying full monthly assessments except for actual costs incurred in maintaining his lot. But without the benefit of reviewing your condominium documents, it is hard to determine the developer's obligation.

Because the association would appear to be clearly controlled by the non-developer co-owners, you should engage counsel to interpret your condominium documents and otherwise provide you with a legal audit as soon possi-

I am a legal assistant who serves on a board. Our attorney was asked to give us an opinion regarding the propriety of a claim brought by a co-owner through her attorney with respect to an alleged inaction by the board. One of the things that the attorney for the association indicated was that the lawyer for the co-owner had a reputation for starting frivolous lawsuits and running up torney for the co-owner had a justifiable claim. The rest of the board does not care to consider this new information.

Certainly the attorney for the association should give you the best advice that he or she can regarding the propriety of a claim brought by a co-owner. But in any instance, the attorney should, if he or she is acting conscientiously, make sure the information upon which they are relying is ac-

In this instance, your attorney may have done your association a disservice by not personally checking out the case that was presumably quoted in the management company's memo. As any good lawyer knows, the results of the case do not necessarily reflect the reasons for which the case was brought, and there may be justifiable reasons for bringing an action even though the result does not appear to be favorable for the association, particularly in bylaw enforcement and collection matters.

I would bring this matter to the attention of the attorney and ask him or her why they were not more thorough in their investigation. I would also suggest to the management company that they not circulate memos that are inaccurate or risk a suit for defamation.

Producing energy — up on the roof

■ Double duty for roofs may be the wave of the future, but it's going to take concentrated cooperation from builders, suppliers and researchers before roofs will become energy sources.

By Doug Funke Staff Writer

Roofs of the future may do more than keep rain and snow off a build-

During the next century roofs could generate electricity from solar energy through special "shingles," supplementing power provided by Detroit Edison here and other utilities around the country.

Energy Conversion Devices in Troy and the National Association of Home Builders Research Center will receive upwards of $9.2 million from the federal government over three years to study the possibilities.

Stephen J. Hudgens, director of research and development for ECD, is intrigued about the applications.

"Sunlight is a wonderful source of energy," he said. "Our principal goal is to develop something the home building industry and electric utilities agree is an acceptable product."

ECD is working on prototypes that will be tested on a commercial building in Arizona and a typical subdivision house in Maryland.

An isolated house in Michigan's Upper Peninsula probably also will be included, an NAHB spokesman said.

"It can be done now," Hudgens said of the technology. "Builders will build anything they're asked. Decisions are entirely cost driven. I think we have the ability to be competitive at a large enough production volume."

Shifting energy sources

Solar electricity currently costs about three times as much as electricity produced by fossil and nuclear fuels, Hudgens said.

But costs will shift, he predicted, as government subsidies and tax policies move toward solar energy applications and production of photovoltaic roofing systems steps up in a big

There are 90 million existing homes, all of which periodically need new shingles, and one to two million houses built nationally every year, noted Larry Zarker, NAHB spokesman.

"There's a general enthusiasm that this should be investigated," he said. "We're convinced here photovoltaics has a role in housing."

Fred Capaldi, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and a Rochester Hills residential builder, also is curious about the potential of photovoltaic roofing.

"We have to continue to look at new and better ways of doing things," he said. "We probably have been lulled to sleep the last few years. Fuel has been cheaper.

"If we can get mass production volume, it should be less expensive," Capaldi said of energy-producing shingles. "If they can do this, I think it's a heckuya idea."

Cooperation the key

It's important that builders, suppliers, power companies and researchers work together to come up with a usable product, Zarker and Hudgens noted in separate interviews.

"Without input, it becomes a hard sell," Hudgens said. "The purpose of the contract is to develop a practical product to meet a practical need."

Photovoltaic roofing systems likely would supplement rather than replace regular utility service in Michigan, he projected.

A photovoltaic shingle probably would have thin flexible stainless steel sheets covered by a thin amorphous silicon solar cell, Hudgens said.

The shingles most likely would be interconnected by wires to collect electrical current produced by the sun's rays.

The current would go via a main feed line, probably to the existing electrical breaker box/ meter outside the house, Hudgens said. An inverter would be needed to change the current from direct to alternating.

If not immediately needed, the electricity could be sent along a utility's transmission system and credited to a homeowner's account, Hudgens speculated. Special interior wiring or switches aren't anticipated.

"It's clearly a question of how far costs are going to come down,' said Norm Stevens, principal engineer in resource planning for Detroit Edison.

"The costs won't come down until there's a large demand. It's how do you get a commitment up front until a company is confident enough to place a big order," he

> Fred Capaldi BASM president

"I think if it does happen on a large scale, you're talking maybe 10 years down the line," Stevens said,

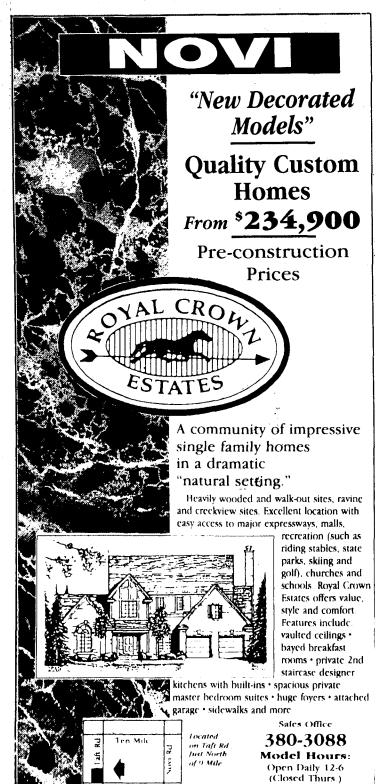

Testing and fine tuning needs to be done prior to the selling.

"We have to work on how to attach it to the roof structure, how to interconnect," Hudgens said. "It had better not require a degree from MIT to install. It must be a robust product because installers will walk on it and throw it around.

"It must be safe. After all, we are dealing with electricity,"he

"There's always going to be early adapters, people who want a warm and fuzzy feeling knowing they're helping save energy and the planet," Hudgens said. "Ultimately, people are going to make an economic decision.'

Couch potatoes, make your pick

AP — Arise, couch petatoes! It's time to shop for a new sofa. But beware: The ultimate goal may be comfort and relaxation, but the search calls for energy and decisiveness.

Sectional, two-seater or three? Skirted or exposed wood frame? Hump back or straight back? Fat arm or thin — or no arms at all? And what kind of cover — solid, woven or printed pattern? Leather, linen, cotton or synthetic?

Over the past decade, backs have gotten higher and cushioning has gotten progressively thicker — plumping from three or four inches in the 1950s to eight to 10 inches today, according to New York furniture designer John Mascheroni.

But most sofas fall into a few standard stylistic types. They include the club or Lawson, in which the arms are lower than the back, the Tuxedo, in which the arms and back are the same height, and the camel back, which has a hump in the middle.

"People get very frustrated because they have an idea of the sofa that they are looking for and they can't find it," says Fayal Greene. "They may walk right past what they want without recognizing it because the same frame can look quite different, depending on shape, length, fabric, arm type, cushion filling, and other details."

Greene, author of "The Couch Book," (Hearst Books, William Morrow, 1993, $20), advises shopping for shape and in the desired price range, without necessarily worrying too much about the sofa's specific dimensions, covering and such stylistic details as whether the piece has a skirt or lacks one. As a rule, the frame selected can be made up in a variety of ways.

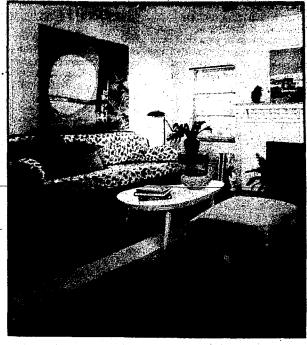

"Many manufacturers offer options that go beyond what's on the sales floor," she says. "There are also many choices of fabric."

The covering has the greatest effect on how a sofa looks and how it contributes to the decor. Any shape looks more modern if it's covered in a neutral contemporary fabric, says Mascheroni. The same frame with a reproduction fabric takes on a traditional feeling.

The shape of the arms also is a key element in both looks and function. Those who like to stretch out for a nap or for watching TV would should select a sofa with a wide curving arm that is thickly and softly upholstered, says Greene.

Wide arms make the sofa look bigger. Even though the difference may be only a few inches, pieces with straight thin arms look less obtrusive. For the least obtrusive effect, select an armless piece. Psychologically, people feel they have more room on an armless sofa, and so they will sit closer together.

Looks may be deceiving. The soft squashy sofas that are low to the floor may appear just right for couch potatoes, but they are not necessarily more comfortable than tailored pieces on which you sit higher.

Take your seat: The number of sofa choices can be mind-boggling, but don't overlook comfort while thinking about fabric and style.

Many people are more comfortable on a firm seat, where you don't sink in so deep, Greene says. Furthermore, all-down construction, by far the most expensive, is uncomfortable for some people because that old sinking feeling.

Don't give up on an old sofa. Perhaps the least expensive method to get an attractive new piece is to have it recovered by an upholsterer.

The simplest change is merely to change the fabric with a slipcovers. Re-upholstery offers even more options. Vary the skirt style to make a bigger difference in looks. Tightly woven fabrics, whether natural or synthetic fiber, stand up to more wear. Prints and medium to darker colors show dirt less.

New cushions can be made thicker or thinner than the original. Minor changes to frame and padding can fatten or slenderize the silhouette and, if needed, the springing system can be repaired or replaced.

A less expensive quick fix is to add new throw cushions in different shapes, sizes and fabrics to draw attention away from what's underneath.

Pool safety: It's not just a summer concern any more tail when winterizing your pool.

Almost all drowning accidents involving children or pets that occur off season can be avoided if proper procedures are followed, a safety and maintenance expert advises.

Correct winterizing procedures also can save hundreds of dollars in repairs, said Joe Peters, who produced a couple of videos on his experience as the owner of a Florida pool maintenance company.

He offered the following tips. ■ Protect kids and animals by buying a pool cover labeled that it meets the standards of the American Society of Testing Materials.

"A solid pool cover is not a safety cover," Peters said. "A safety cover is form-fitted to the pool. It is a mesh material . . . and has no openings or gaps to the outside."

A safety cover can cost from $700-$1,000, he said.

■ Don't leave entrances to the pool unlocked. Youngsters can be attracted to pools even in cold

■ Use anti-freeze made specifically for pools. Anti-freeze made for cars is toxic. Anyone swallowing

INVINE Another Distinctive Community by The Irvine Group

After Years of Climbing the Ladder Here's the View...

THE VISTAS an enclave of eight dramatic custom homesites offering commanding panoramic views of Orchard Lake From the private gated entry to the opulent landscaping that heavily screens the entire site from both Long Lake and Orchard Lake Roads, there is no sense of waiting for this rare community to come of age

THE VISTAS is further enchanced by eight individual boat wells which are accessed via a private passageway which lies beneath Orchard Lake

Indeed. THE VISTAS is an unexpected opportunity for lakefront homeownership. Its location, gated security and ambiance offer a truly different view of the world for a limited few
