Two robberies — one involving threats with a high-powered dart gun - occurred during a 21-hour period Friday at The Landings apartment complex on Warren Road, east of Newburgh, Westland police said.

Both incidents happened in a Lakeview Drive parking lot but are not believed to be linked, police said. No arrests have been made.

The first robbery is, however, apparently linked to a stolen pickup truck in Wayne and a residential break-in on Genessee Court, near Palmer and Venoy, police Sgt. Timothy Speir said.

The holdup occurred just after 2 a.m. Friday when a 19-year-old female Landings resident was walking from her car to her apartment building, accompanied by a 19-yearold female friend from Redford Township, police reports said.

The women noticed two men talking inside a red pickup, which Westland police later learned had been stolen in Wayne. The women began running toward the apartment when one of the men got out of the truck and came toward them, police reports said.

The man pointed a high-powered dart gun at the Redford Township woman's stomach, robbed her of her purse and then ran back to the pickup truck, fleeing with another suspect, police reports said. No injuries were reported.

Westland police found the stolen pickup later in the night after it was abandoned following a residential break-in on Genessee Court, several miles southeast of The Landings. Speir said.

During a search around Genessee Court, police found the high-powered dart run and a BB pistol in a field. Speir said. Police had no suspects as of Tuesday, but the investigation was continuing, he said. The dart gun-toting man was described as a white male, 5-foot-8, weighing 130 pounds. He wore all black clothing and had a black scarf over his nose and mouth to disguise his identity, police reports said. The second Landings robbery occurred about 11:15 p.m. Friday when a 22-vear-old Livonia woman was walking from her car to a relative's apartment, police reports said. She noticed a suspicious man crouching between two vehicles, and he then approached her, grabbed her purse and fled, Westland Detective Sgt. Donald Haigh said. Another man who heard the woman call for help tried to chase the suspect, who was seen getting into a Ford Bronco in a nearby restaurant parking lot at Warren Road and Central City Parkway, the reports said. A passenger also was seen in the vehicle.

Two robberies — one involving threats with a high-powered dart gun occurred during a 21-hour period Friday at The Landings apartment complex on Warren Road, east of Newburgh, Westland police said.

Both incidents happened in a Lakeview Drive parking lot but are not believed to be linked, police said. No arrests have been made.

The first robbery is, however, apparently linked to a stolen pickup truck in Wayne and a residential break-in on Genessee Court, near Palmer and Venoy, police Sgt. Timothy Speir said.

Woman flees foiled abduction

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A 25-year-old Westland woman told police that two men grabbed her by the wrist, pulled her hair and tried to force her into a pickup truck while she was using a public telephone Friday night on the northeast corner of Merriman and Palmer.

But the assailants abandoned the attempted abduction and fled in the truck when another vehicle pulled into the retail center parking lot where the phone is located, police reports said.

The woman reported that she was calling a friend at midnight to ask for a ride when the two men pulled into the parking lot, with the truck's headlights shining on her. Both men, described as white males, got out of the vehicle and stood nearby, she reported. The woman reported that she ended her conversation after she asked the men if they needed to use the telephone and they told her that they did. After she hung up, however, the men approached her and asked where she was going, police reports said.

When she replied that she was going home, one of the men grabbed her by the left wrist while the other pulled her by the hair - both trying to force her into the pickup truck, police reports said.

In a stroke of luck, however, the woman was released when 'a Ford Mustang pulled into the same parking lot and apparently frightened the would-be abductors, the woman told police. The assailants fled in the truck, police reports said.

The woman told police that she walked to a friend's house on nearby Elias Street after her narrow escape.

No serious physical injuries were reported during the incident. No arrests have been made

Kroger from page 1A tried to allay fears stemming from several issues Monday:

Many of the 384 trees to be torn down will be replaced, he said.

The commercial development won't infringe on residences, as some feared, Sobel promised.

I Developers won't violate any wetlands rules, because wetlands account for less than five acres on the property and, therefore, aren't state-regulated, he said.

Still, some city officials remain skeptical that commercial developers will succeed in finding a residential builder for some 90 houses pegged for the site.

Two of Westland's seven council members - Sandra Cicirelli and Kenneth Mehl -- continued their opposition to the project Monday. But they were out-numbered by Thomas Brown, Glenn Anderson, Sharon Scott, Terri Reighard-Johnson and Pickering.

Residents, too, were split in opinions they voiced to the coun-

But Charles Winekoff, a Carlson resident, disagreed and said he's upset that commercial trucks leaving City Centre Plaza will cause traffic problems to worsen. Moreover, he said trucks leaving the Central City Parkway exit will be shining their headlights on his house.

"I was there first. I've been there for 25 years," Winekoff said, adding later, "All I wanted was a good exit, and I'm not going to get

In a related development, Councilman Mehl has asked for a city attorney opinion on the council's split vote. He indicated that a divided vote may not be legal because the project falls under what is known as a planned unit development (PUD), which puts special restrictions on the developer's plans.

City attorney Angelo Plakas plans to study the matter and issue an opinion on whether a unanimous vote is required and whether the split decision violated the PUD rules.

He also angered his opponents during the mayoral primary by refusing to let debates be shown live. He ordered Abbott to tape the debates and air them later.

As Thomas faces Pickering in the Nov. 2 general election, he has issued another list of proposed guidelines for upcoming debates and identified issues to be discussed.

mayor's efforts to rule the programming.

Council member Sandra Cicirelli said Monday that neither the mayor nor the council should tell Abbott how to perform her job. Abbott has a contract and should be allowed to perform her job as she sees fit, Cicirelli said.

"She is really being put in the middle of this in a political year,' Cicirelli said, adding that Abbott has done "an excellent job" despite the pressures.

Mayor Thomas was not at Monday's meeting, but personnel director Kent Herbert strongly asserted that no city contract can forfeit the mayor's right under the charter to administer the contract.

Mehl went so far as to suggest that the administration has violated Federal Communications Commission regulations. Moreover, he suggested that the city bring in an outside attorney to help resolve the cable dispute.

Mehl urged the council to stand up to Thomas on cable issues.

Council considers using TIFA money for library project

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

City council members are questioning if they can use property taxes collected in a special district to build a proposed city library.

Renewed enthusiasm for a possible library emerged after the city recently began considering a proposal to use money from the Tax Increment Finance Authority budget to finance a $4.7-million library.

The TIFA budget uses some tax revenues from a northwestern area of Westland to improve economic development. Nearly a month ago at a city council study session with the library, city officials then were optimistic that the money could be used for a new library.

On Monday, however, Councilman Thomas Brown warned his colleagues during a meeting that the city shouldn't decide to use TIFA money for the project when officials don't even know where a library would be built.

If a library were to be built outside of the TIFA district, then TIFA money couldn't be used to support it, Brown said. Such a move would be illegal, he suggested.

"If it's illegal, it's illegal, and we ought not to be doing it," he said.

Brown's warning came as the council set a public hearing for Nov. 1 to let citizens comment on proposed amendments to the TIFA plan, including a possible library.

"I think there are some answers we'd better have before we have this public hearing,' Brown said.

Brown also questioned whether the city could commit millions of TIFA dollars when the city has already pledged

🖀 "if it's illegal, it's illegal and we ought not be dong it."

Thomas Brown city councilman much of the $8-million-plus TIFA balance to a long-delayed Westland Center expansion

That project called for the city to help pay for a multilevel parking garage, though the mall's expansion appears in doubt.

Still, Brown cautioned that the council should remember its pledge to the mall expansion before spending millions on a library.

"You don't spend the money twice," he said.

The city currently shares a library with the city of Wayne, but many consider the facility - located in Wayne - to be substandard. Others. however. oppose a new library and point to past elections in which voters rejected a library tax.

Meanwhile, the council on Monday approved a measure extending a contract with Minnesota-based library consultant David Smith, who has been working with the city to develop a plan. The contract was extended through Dec. 31 at a cost not to exceed $20,000.

Monday's developments also included a pro-library statement that Westland resident Delores Hayden made to the city council during the citizens comment portion of the meeting

She urged the council to conr tinue to pursue a library, which she said would be a "point of unity and great civic pride" for the city.

Top teachers: The Livonia school district's three top teachers for 1993-94 were honored Monday at a reception held by the school board. The honorees are David Booker (left), Mildred Rodolosi and Frank Laurette.

Γop teachers: 'Finest we have

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Three teachers stood in the spotlight Monday as administrators and colleagues honored them for being named 1993-94 Teachers of the Year for the Livonia school district, which includes the northern portion of Westland.

Named the top teachers are: Frank Laurette, Tyler Elementary fifth grade teacher; Mildred Rodolosi, Frost Middle language arts and art teacher, and David L. Booker, Stevenson High band director.

"They represent the finest we have in teachers" in the district," said Superintendent Joseph Marinelli.

The top teachers are selected by a committee composed of teachers, parents and administrators, after being nominated by their peers, students or community members.

Their names will be inscribed on a plaque that hangs near the offices of the Livonia Board of Education. They each received a "Golden Apple" from the board of education.

Laurette, elementary teacher of the year with more than 25 years of teaching experience, earned his bachelor of science degree in elementary education in 1968 from the University of Michigan. In 1970, he earned both a master's degree in elementary education and certification in special education Before joining the district, he was a child care worker from 1966-68 at Hawthorne Center, a state facility in Northville Township. "Frank is a totally dedicated master teacher who extends himself willingly and joyfully in planning for his kids," said Joan Fredericks, one of his nominators. "He is quietly enthusiastic and has a wonderful sense of humor which is displayed at all the right moments. He is bigger than life." Mildred "Millie" Rodolosi, middle school teacher of the year who also has more than 25 years of teaching experience, earned her bachelor science degree in physical education, art and English at Eastern Michigan University.

She is working toward a master's degree in guidance and counseling from Wayne State University. "She is a tireless worker whose whole life centers on her teaching responsibilities," said Stevenson High principal Dale Coller, who has known Rodolosi for more than 30 years

G. Michael Abbott, who heads the ALPHA program, said Rodolosi gets many return visits from students who have moved on. They remember the teacher who always gave them so much, who went the extra mile to help each of them to succeed."

Booker, high school teacher of the year who has been an educator for 17 years, earned his bachelor of science degree in music education from Kentucky State University. He earned a master of music degree in bassoon performance from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

He served in the U.S. Army Band for six years before becoming an educator. Booker was the director of bands at Kentucky State University and served as director of bands and fine arts chairman for Highland Park Community High School. He joined Livonia schools in 1986 as head of the summer instrumental band program.

In 1977, he was named an Outstanding Young Man in America in 1977. In 1983, he was named teacher of the year for District 15 of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

Besides being Stevenson High band director, he also is director of the Livonia All-City Orchestra.

The unique rapport Mr. Booker shares with his students has endeared him to them," endeared him to them," said Madeline Burines, one of his nominators.

Owner foils robbery attempt

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A knife-wielding bandit tried to rob a Westland drugstore Sunday afternoon but aborted the holdup after one of the owners refused to comply, police sald.

The foiled attempt marked a victory for crime-fighters in a city that otherwise saw a homicide and two robberies - among other lesser crimes - in a single weekend.

The robbery attempt occurred about 3:15 p.m. Sunday at Dial Drugs, a business owned by two St. Clair Shores women in a strip mall on the northeast corner of Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail, said Westland Detective Sgt. Donald Haigh.

One of the women, 44, reported that she and her business partner, lowed the would-be robber out-40, were behind a checkout counter when a man came inside the store, walked to a restricted area behind the counter and revealed what was described as a blackhandle knife with a large blade.

The man ordered the 44-yearold woman to hand over the money from the cash register, but the woman caught the would-be robber off guard when she defended herself by raising her leg into the air as if to kick him, police reports said.

Simuitaneously, the woman's business partner became aware of the bandit, who turned and ran out of the store, police reports said. A third witness also reported seeing the man.

The man was described as a heavy-set black male, in his early 30s, 5-foot-10, with a mustache. He wore glasses, a black hooded sweatshirt and blue jeans, police reports said.

No arrests had been made as of Tuesday, and Haigh said the incident remained under investigation.

Franklin offers a room with 2 views for misbehavers

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

4A(W)

Franklin High administrators call it the "planning room."

Students at the school which erves the northeast corner of Westland call it "the hole" and the teacher-in-charge. "the warden.'

But whatever the school's suspension room is called, it's a place where change takes place in student behavior.

They come in with a problem and leave with the problem lifted off their shoulders," said Barabara Hillman, paraprofessional in charge of students sent to the "They come in angry, but room. not at me. I tell them, 'I didn't put you here; you got yourself here.

Six years ago, Franklin students suspended for misbehavior were sent home. This may have been great for the students, who got to spend the day at the mall or even home alone watching TV while their parents worked.

But it didn't do much to get to the root of a student's problem, or keep the misbehavior from happening once again. Nor did it help keep students from falling behind in their school work, or keep them off the streets.

So Franklin administrators created an on-site suspension room and hired Hillman to man it.

Since then, Franklin's room has become a model for other districts to follow.

Six years ago, Hillman had to decide how the program would be run.

"Back then, someone even mentioned black walls with painted bars," Hillman said.

Hillman's own up-beat, friendly personality helped determine the route Franklin would go. There was no way a woman who genuinely loved kids could spend the day acting as a stern warden. "You have to come to this job with the feeling that there's some-thing good about everyone," Hillman said. "You have to find the good. Sometimes kids hide it and it's hard to find.'

So the walls of the suspension room are covered with inspirational pictures and slogans. And Hillman spends time talking to every student sent to the mom.

Students who get in trouble aren't immediately sent to Hillman's room. Their first stop is at the principal's office, where they get a referral slip from an assistant principal.

The student then takes the slip to the suspension room and hands it to Hillman. Students show up at the room any time during the school day, and stay anywhere from one hour up to five days. The room holds up to 15 students.

"I start out empty in the morning and by the sixth hour, some days there's standing room only," Hillman said.

Once emotions cool, Hillman asks each student to write down what happened, why it happened and how the problem can be avoided in the future.

The students also write their teachers, asking if they'll send classwork on to them.

While suspended, the students must work on something.

"In-school suspension is harsher; the kids have to work here and keep busy," Hillman said. "They can't sleep or put their heads down. They can't talk to each other. But they can look through magazines or do word search puzzles.

Franklin teachers all view the suspension differently, Hillman said. Some teachers stop by the room to see if any of their students have been suspended and subsequently bring homework to them.

Other teachers view the suspension as punishment and give students a zero for the classwork they missed.

Students get suspended inhouse for fighting, skipping school or classes, destruction of property, using foul language or refusing to following the direction of a teacher.

"If there's a fight, I tell them I'll let them think about it and talk to them at 10 a.m.

"Ain't Misbehavin:" That's the name of the dance group of (back row, from left) Brooke Formolo, Carly Gronau and Shawna Fleming and (front, from left) Lisa Brown and Jeni Tompkins that won gold medal honors and cash awards in regional and national tap competition at the Starpower event held recently in Ocean City, Md. Schools agency hires new chief

The Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency's governing board has named Farmington Public Schools superintendent Michael Flanagan as the new RESA superintendent.

Flanagan will replace William Simmons, who retired Aug. 31. Simmons, 73, had been in charge of RESA since 1972.

Formerly known Wayne County Intermediate School District, RESA links Wayne County's 34 school districts to the state department of education. RESA offers consulting, technical assistance and training to 37,500 school employees responsible for the 363,000 public school students in Wayne County.

In addition to helping districts develop their own programs, RESA directly operates special education programs for more than 500 students, ages 3 to 26 with severe mental and physical impairments and a program for 190 students ages 5 to 18 with severe emotional impairments. RESA also runs Head Start programs for more than 3,500 kids. The RESA superintendent oversees an agency with more than 900 employees and a budget of $125 million in federal, state and local money.

Flanagan was unanimously selected to replace Simmons as RESA's superintendent by a 5-0. vote of the board at a special meeting Sept. 15. His official starting date and terms of his contract are yet to be determined.

In announcing the board's decision, President Mary Blackmon said, "The RESA board believes that Mike Flanagan has the experience, ability and character to lead Wayne County RESA into the next century. Mike is a man of great vision who will complement the organization while helping us stretch. We are confident that he will recognize and maximize the staff talent, serve our constituents well and positively impact education throughout the state. Mike Flanagan is one of the nation's outstanding educators and leaders. We are fortunate to have found a person with these exceptional qualities. We look forward to working with him.'

Flanagan worked in the private financial sector from 1971 to 1973. His career in education began in 1973 when he served as a teaching assistant at Eastern Michigan University: In 1974 he joined Farmington schools as director of student services. From 1977 to 1985 Flanagan served as assistant superintendent of the Huron Valley Schools. He then returned to Farmington schools as assistant superintendent (1985-86), then as deputy superintendent (1986-89). Flanagan has been head superintendent of Farmington schools since 1989.

"I look forward to this career change," Flanagan said. "It will provide me the opportunity to make a larger contribution. In Farmington, I've been able to influence the education of thousands of students. Through RESA the potential is much greater. Wayne County is a microcosm of the whole nation. If we can make changes here, we've created a national model. That potential is exciting."

Flanagan, 44, earned a bachelor's degree in finance and eco-nomics from the University of Notre Dame in 1971 and a master's degree in educational leadership from Eastern Michigan University in 1974.

Flanagan is the chairman of the state board of education's administrator waiver commission, vice chairman of the national superintendency institute, a member of the state superintendent's school finance advisory committee and a member of the Michigan Association of School Administrators Council.

Originally from Brooklyn, N.Y., Flanagan and his wife, Anna, have three children, Mike, 15, Brian, 13, and Christa, 10.

New Chief: Farmington Public Schools Superintendent Michael Flanagan has been chosen to take over the reigns of the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, which serves Wayne County's 34 school districts.

Garden City resident Marie Zaharie knows a little something about adversity.

Currently a Schoolcraft College student at Radcliff Center, Zaharie walked a long way to get to that institution of higher education.

Her walk began in Cujmir, Romania. It was 1988, she was 32 years old and Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu still lorded it over the country of 23 million people.

Zaharie's husband, John, had alteady escaped to Italy, and now it was her turn to flee.

With her two sons, 5 and 7 years old, Zaharie and four others walked throughout the night, 60 kilometers across the border into Yigoslavia.

"I escaped," she said. "It was very difficult."

But the trip wasn't over. Zaharie and her sons rode a train to Belgrade, the former capital of Yagoslavia, then on to the westen side of the country. From there she walked a few miles into Italy, officially passing out from under the Iron Curtain.

Reunited with her husband in Ital, Zaharie waited an addiional in months before getting permission to come to the United States in December 1989, sponsored by a Romanian family in Detroit. "We didn't know them, but they want to help us," Zaharie said. "They advised us to live in Detroit because it's more cheaper."

A year or so ago, Zaharie got a jøb with Garden City's John Santeiu and Son Funeral Home as a cleaning woman, recommended by a fellow member of Sts. Peter & Paul Romanian Orthodox Church in Dearborn Heights.

Lynda Bancroft, a secretary at the funeral home, called Zaharie a Bard worker, a smart lady and an excellent cook." As it would happen, Zaharie occasionally brings elaborate homemade pastries to share with everyone.

So perhaps it's no surprise that Zaharie wants to be a professional cook. Such is her aim at Schoolcraft, where she is currently enrolled in her sixth and seventh classes.

"I like (school) very much, but it's difficult for me," Zaharie said. "I'm studying hard to have a good grade. When I came here I didn't know one word of English."

Helen Dembicki was Zaharie's English teacher at Schoolcraft. "She worked 10 times harder than anyone else in class," Dembicki said. "Her work was precise. It was done. She always had the answers."

As a teacher, Dembicki said, dealing with students from Communist Bloc countries is not all bad. "What's nice about Eastern European people is that they respect the teacher," she said.

Respect, yes. But sometimes fear, too.

Zaharie was apprehensive when contacted for this story, said her employer, John Santeiu III, who is also of Romanian heritage. In Communist Romania, Santeiu said, the only person who wanted to "interview" you was someone with the government. And no one welcomed the news that an interview was sought.

"At first she thought, 'Oh no, I came here to get away from this and now it's starting again," Santeiu said.

County dedicates water basin

^{*} Wayne County's new $5.7 million underground water retention facility was dedicated Wednesday, Sept. 15, in Livonia.

The 2.2 million gallon retention basin, located near Inkster and Five Mile roads, is expected to ease basement flooding and keep sewage from flowing into Bell Creek and the Rouge River.

It is expected that the basin will be used 10-12 times a year, for periods of up to three days, to handle storm waste water overflow. The basin will service about 75 percent of Livonia.

Whyman's first bill toughens penalties on food stamp fraud

BY TIM RICHARD. STAFF WRITER

For passing Rep. Deborah Whyman's food stamp bill, state representatives will get — food stamps.

"They're just spoofs," said Whyman, a freshman Republican from Canton. Her "stamp" is a coupon, with her picture, that her 109 fellow members may turn in to her for cookies and milk.

The gift is a House tradition. When a new lawmaker's first bill is passed, he or she is expected to treat other members to a gift, preferably some food product. "Rep. Whyman should understand the Legislature runs on its stomach. That's food, not food quipped House Demostamps," cratic floor leader Pat Gagliardi of Drummond Island.

Serious bill

If Tuesday's debate closed with jokes, however, Whyman's House Bill 4985 is serious. It tightens penalties and raises sentences for people who traffic in food stamps issued to the low-income people by the state Department of Social Services.

Her bill passed 105-0 with five absent. All local lawmakers voted yes except Justine Barns, D-Westland, who missed the vote.

There was a floor battle, however, over the penalties in Whyman's bill. "The penalties are too harsh," said Rep. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods. "Judges won't impose full sentences if the penalties are out of whack, though politically we look good."

Whyman said the current top penalty is $10,000. Her bill raises that to $250,000.

The House defeated Gubow's amendment to ease penalties on a vote of 33 yes to 70 no. Among area lawmakers, only Gubow and Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, voted yes, and Barns missed the vote. All others voted yes.

Losses unknown

Some 800,000 Michiganians receive food stamps — 8.5 percent of the population. DSS, the agency which handles welfare, issues $846 million in food stamps each year.

It's unknown how many are sold by welfare recipients to "traffickers," according to a House staff analysis. But if 1 percent are illegally sold, the loss is $8.46 million.

"Runners" usually buy the stamps for 50 cents per $1 of face 🖩 Rep. Deborah Whyman's bill passed 105-0 with five absent. All local lawmakers voted yes except Justine Barns, D-Westland, who missed the vote.

value, then trade them in at stores for 75 to 80 cents per $1. Welfare recipients rarely are charged — just "runners" and store employees, the staff analysis said. Store owners usually say the employee made the trade without their knowledge and fire the employee

Food stamps are believed to be circulated as money for gambling and drug sales, the report said.

If passed by the Senate and signed into law, Whyman's bill would:

Lower the legal threshold for illegal trafficking from $1,000 to $100. The staff report said runners frequently deal in amounts less than $1,000 to avoid being charged under current law. Raise the jail sentence for amounts between $100 and $5,000 from 90 days to one year, and raise the fine from $700 to $1,000. Require subsequent offenders to be jailed for a minimum of three months.

Allow prison sentences up to 20 years and fines of up to $250,000 for trafficking in $5,000 or more of food stamps.

Allow prosecutors to "accumulate" a number of small offenses during a year and charge the offender for trafficking in the total. Refer to House Bill 4985 when

The Observer/ THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1993 *9A Thought sought on school reform

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Three months after the Michigan Legislature repealed local property taxes as a source of funding public schools, the issue of reforming education is coming to a head.

Next Monday, House Democrats will conduct 13 simultaneous public hearings from 7-10 p.m. around the state. Closest to this area: Wayne Memorial High School, Glenwood east of Wayne Road in Wayne; Dearborn City Hall, Michigan Avenue east of Schaefer; and Mott High School in Warren.

Gov. John Engler will address a joint session of the Legislature at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, on his tax and reform proposals.

Engler is expected to ask for "schools of choice" within public schools, competitive bidding on school district health insurance, speedier teacher tenure hearings, and a tax program to replace some of the $6 billion in lost property tax revenues.

Whether Engler will agree to an income tax as partial replacement is unknown. So far the governor has said he won't.

Ever since the Legislature in July suddenly repealed the source of 65 percent of public schools' funding --- "we cut the Gordian knot," in Engler's words - leaders of both parties have been floating tax and reform ideas.

Everyone's goal: "a world-class education.'

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, said parents in particular will be heard at the Democrats' hearings. "Over the last several weeks, the task force has traveled around the state hearing from educators, business people and school administrators. Now we want parents to tell us what is on their minds," said the veteran ohair of the House Education Committee.

"The U.S. education system is miles behind foreign countries," Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, Blue Shield.

told Keith's task force recently. Shanker called for better paid and better trained teachers, higher standards, a more defined curriculum, more relevant textbooks and better methods of assessing students.

Rep. Lyn Jondahl, D-Okemos, listed revenues from 14 existing taxes that might be increased to make up the $6 billion loss in local property tax revenue. Jondahl, an announced gubernatorial candidate, had voted against the property tax cut, arguing that the state constitution permitted only a $3.8 billion increase in state replacement taxes. On his list:

Sales and use tax --- $927 million per 1 percent; voters would have to amend the constitution. The rate has been 4 percent since the 1960s.

Personal income tax — $1.18 billion per 1 percent. It's now 4.4 percent.

Single business tax — $806 million per 1 percent. It's now 2.35 percent.

Cigarette tax — $8 million per penny. Liquor tax — $5 milion per 1 percent.

Meanwhile, Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, applauded a state insurance commissioner's investigation into the activities of the Michigan Education Special Services Association (MESSA), an arm of the MEA which acts as a third-party administrator of health insurance.

MEA union contracts designate that school districts must deal with MESSA. Engler's program likely will call for mandatory competitive bidding rather than direct dealings with MESSA.

"I am concerned about possible collusion, violation of insurance laws, anti-trust laws, and conflict of interest," Welborn said last May when he called for the investigation of MESSA. He argued that school districts pay $1,000 more per employee to buy through MESSA than if they bought identical coverage from Blue Cross/

City councils would be able to amend the Home Rule Act gov give their hired managers longerterm contracts under a bill before the state House of Representatives.

Sponsored by Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, the bill already has passed the upper chamber. It received a 7-0 recommendation Tuesday from the House Local Government Committee:

"Currently one council can't bind another," Hongiman told the panel — that is, a council can't give the city manager a contract beyond the council's term of office. Nor can the contract specify erning cities. It says a council 'may enter into an employment contract with the chief administrative officer extending beyond the terms of the members of the legislative body unless such an employment contract is prohibited by the city charter."

Later it says, "If the chief ad-ministrative officer serves at the pleasure of the legislative body. the contract shall so state and my provide for severance pay or other benefits" if the manager is fired.

Honigman said he introduced the bill at the request of the Michigan Municipal League and the city managers' organization.

Officials debate ways to speed up voting

BY TIM RICHARD

Michigan voters could begin trooping to the polls 13 days prior to election day if Secretary of State Richard Austin has his way. But some lawmakers - like Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, on the House Local Government Committee — fear Austin's plan "will put a strain on local clerks." They prefer expanding the right of absentee voting.

Whichever side prevails, voters would be able to avoid long lineups at polling places, particularly during presidential and gubernatorial elections. Many waited 30 minutes to two hours in 1992, Austin said.

"We've gone far in increasing voter registration," Austin told the panel Tuesday. "Now let's make it easier for them to cast ballots.'

How it works

In his 19th year as Michigan's top election official, Austin endorsed House Bill 4964, sponD-Dearborn. It would: Allow any voter to show up at the city or township clerk's office prior to the election and ask to vote "as soon as the ballots are ready — usually 13 days before an election.

Vote the ballot right there or take it home and mail it back.

The voter could not ask for the ballot by telephone or mail. He or she would have to appear in person with identification in the local clerk's office.

Reason, said Austin, is that the federal "motor-voter" act, which takes effect in 1995, would allow mail registration. At some point, the voter should appear in person, he said, adding, "People who register by mail have never appeared before a clerk."

Texas and Colorado use the system successfully, Austin said.

Absentee different

Currently, Michigan has an absentee voter system for the elderly, the ailing, persons who expect and prisoners awaiting arraignment or trial.

The voter may either visit the clerk in person or apply in writing for an absentee ballot. And the voter must cite a reason for voting absentee.

Austin said his early voting plan is different from absentee voting (AV). "Any elector could do it by visiting the clerk's office. Absentee voting is restricted to certain classes of voters," he said.

About 15 percent of Michigan voters use the AV method, said state elections director Christopher Thomas. "I expect 25 to 30 percent would vote early," he said.

In affluent areas, the absentee vote is 30 percent, leading officials to speculate privately that some voters are fibbing about "being out of town" election day.

Local burden?

Austin and Thomas said the early voter system should place no additional burden on local sored by Rep. Agnes Dobronski, to be out of town on election day, clerks. Whatever costs they encountered through early voting, they would save by having fewer precincts and less equipment.

But Crissman, a freshman lawmaker and former mayor of Rochester, disliked what she called "a two-tiered system" of early voting and absentee voting.

Crissman also saw security problems with early ballots, particularly in rural areas where township clerks work in their homes.

Other lawmakers wondered how clerks would handle the problem of electing political party precinct delegates in the August primaries of even-numbered years. A different ballot would be required in every precinct - 110 in Dobronski's home town of Dearborn.

Thomas said that could be handled by using a separate paper ballot for precinct delegates.

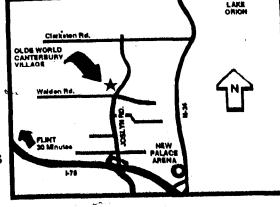

Refer to House Bill 4964 when writing to your lawmaker in the State Capitol, Lansing 48913. The bill is assigned to the House Local Government Committee.

Hospice grief sessions set to begin in October

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County is offering a free adult grief recovery series for local families.

The sessions are open to adults who have suffered a loss loss of a loved one, said Vicki Martin, spokesman for the Garden Citybased group.

To register for the adult grief recovery series or for further information, persons may contact Jackie Speen or Flo Pulford, bereavement assistant, at 522-4244 or 459-0548.

- Classes will meet for six consec utive weeks at the organization's offices in the Garden City Hospital community health education center, 6701 Harrison north of Maplewood. Sessions will be from 6:30-8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 13, and conclude with a group me rial service Wednesday, Nov. 17. Martin said the series provides support and education on all aspects of grief recovery.

She said Hospice Services offers a range of bereavement support programs including on-going bereavement support groups; fiveweek bereavement educational series, focusing on aspects of the grieving process; children's grief support series, memorial services twice yearly for bereaved families: bereavement counseling; bereavement counseling referrals, and quarterly "careletters."

Hospice Services was established in 1981 to offer homecare to terminally patients and their families.

Business leery of government

BY DOUG FUNKE Staff Writer

For business, it boils down to a question of trust. Can government overhaul the health care system to meet the needs of both employers and employees?

Frank Zuccaro, owner of Aerodata, a computer services consulting business in Plymouth, has his doubts. Zuccaro employs his wife, Gloria, and two other persons, all three of whom are covered by their spouses' health plans. "I don't object to there being a

"I don't object to there being a national health care plan in spirit," Zuccaro said. "I just don't think government can pull it off. I don't think he (Clinton) can cure a system in five years that has taken a lifetime to be as screwed up as it is."

Zuccaro said he employs so few that if he had to pay part of their health care premiums it wouldn't make much difference one way or another.

But he couldn't afford to pay the entire premium for all employees as he did several years ago. "It just wouldn't be afford-"It just wouldn't be affordable," Zuccaro said. "It's gone up tremendously. It's been in a runaway mode. A family of four will run you $600 a month."

At the other end of the spectrum is the Ford Motor Co. The automotive giant spent $1.35 billion last year on health care for its employees and retirees, said David Caplan, a company spokesman.

Ford currently employs about 150,000 and has a climate control plant in Plymouth, a parts distribution center in Redford and a transmission and chassis plant in Livonia

"In general, we do support national health care reform," Caplan said Monday.

"We look forward to the release

Who pays?: The high cost of drugs such as these, advanced medical technology, highly skilled medical personnel and hospitalization have forced a crisis in medical care. But business leaders wonder whether the Clinton proposal addresses the question of who will pay.

reform: universal coverage, quality assurance, administrative simplicity, cost containment and equitable financing, Caplan said.

"I think we are hopeful a national health care program will reduce costs," he said. "But in the end, it may reduce only the rate of growth.

"Contractual business aside (who pays what in a labor agreement with the UAW), health care costs have been rising 8 percent each of the last five years, the consumer price index, 4 percent," Caplan said. "That's intolerable." The company, which employs 250,000 in the United States and Canada, currently has a self-insurance medical coverage plan in partnership with a Blue Cross-Blue Shield-type provider, Kahle said.

"Kmart always has had the sort of health-care structure where some of the costs are carried by the worker and some are carried by the company," she said. "Kmart has discovered a niche in the discount area. Cost control is an inherent part of business."

Only full-time employees, or ual works or in what capacity, any new health care plan likely will be measured — and accepted — by changes in existing costs and coverages.

Ron Brown, executive assistant to the president of Local 876 of the United Food & Commercial Workers Union, makes that point very clear. His union represents some 20,000 workers at major food stores like A&P, Farmer Jack and Kroger.

"Members certainly want to maintain the level of benefits they have now," Brown said, adding that employers currently pay all health premium costs.

How health care would change under Clinton Alliances.

Know that term — and how it is defined by the Clinton Administration task force — and you have a pretty solid understanding of how the healthcare system would change under the plan unveiled Wednesday.

Regional health-care "alliances" would be responsible for virtually every aspect of health care — from determining who's eligible for which services, to how fees are set.

The move would presumably create a market-driven healthcare system more responsive to competition than the current, insurance-driven industry. Here's a look at the way

Here's a look at the way some things will change in southeastern Michigan:

COST TO USERS ■ Current system: Employees with employer-provided insurance pay a portion or often nothing toward their premiums but deductibles and co-pays are often required for services rendered. Employees in lowpaying jobs and the unemployed have no health insurance and rely on Medicaid to pay for services.

Clinton plan: All employees have insurance. Most smalland medium-sized employers will be responsible for 80 percent of premiums with employees paying about 20 percent (as low as $60 per year for singles, as high as $1,140 for families). Small businesses will be eligible for subsidies. Large employers may create their own ensures that costs rise at the rate of inflation or less. Alliances can negotiate with providers but fees are set within those paramaters. Savings to providers come from administrative simplification and increased negotiating power through the alliances.

WHAT ABOUT PRESCRIP-TION DRUGS?

Current system: Insurance companies are the middle-people, said Gilbert C. Gerhard, of the president's plan. Despite some of our cost containment programs, the company's health care costs have risen to the point where they jeopardize our ability to compete on a global basis," Caplan said.

Ford would insist on five elements in government-mandated Kmart, one of the nation's largest general retailers with headquarters in Troy and stores throughout the metro area, declined comment earlier this week on specifics about Clinton's plan. "We're very much monitoring

Single-payer system works in Canada

Editor's note:In the debate over health care alternatives, many liberal Democrats favor a singlepayer system, similar to that in Canada. Reporter Mary Rodrique has lived in Canada for many years and is familiar with both the Canadian system and the current U.S. health insurance system.

BY MARY RODRIQUE STAFF WRITER

As an American who has spent the last dozen years residing in Ontario, I've experienced health care Canadian style.

A lot of the complaints I hear about OHIP (Ontario Health Insurance Plan) from Americans aren't true or are at least exaggerated.

Granted the system isn't perfect — what is? But I believe it is far better than the mishmash that passes for health care in the United States, with employees paying an ever increasing share of their paycheck for less coverage and more than 35 million Americans with no health care insurance whatsoever.

At least in Ontario, everyone is covered by the plan. All pregnant women have access to prenatal Canadians are certainly taxed to the hilt. But it is a myriad of social programs supported by a tiny middle class that is the real culprit.

care. Young children can receive immunizations and regular checkups. No one need fear putting off a trip to the doctor for financial reasons. Almost as gratifying as not having to bring your wallet to a doctor's appointment is not having to deal with insurance companies.

One of the complaints I've heard is that OHIP is fine for treating mild illnesses, like bronchitis or a sinus infection, but anyone with a life threatening problem is put on an interminable waiting list for treatment.

I know of two Canadian women who have been diagnosed with breast cancer within the past three years. Both received timely treatment. Both are doing fine. When my gynecologist discovered a small lump two years ago, I had an appointment with a surgeon within a week. A breast biopsy, thankfully, turned out negative.

Another complaint I've heard is that patients overuse the system because it's free. How many people do you know who enjoy going to a doctor? I don't think I have ever overused the system.

There is also a common belief that treatment is second rate less than state of the art. When I was pregnant with my first child 10 years ago, my American obstetrician encouraged me to deliver the baby here, implying the care I would receive would be better than in Canada. Because I was working full time in Livonia with job related health insurance, I heeded his warning. Everything went off without a hitch. I would rate my prenatal care and hospital delivery as first rate.

Two and a half years later, I had a fecond child. Working part time with no American health care coverage, daughter number two was born in Windsor. I would also rate my pre and post natal care by my obstetrician (a graduate of Wayne State University Medical School) as first class all the way.

Another complaint I've heard — to get an appointment with a specialist requires a very long wait. Again, that hasn't been my experience.

I know that OHIP is experiencing problems — some doctors are leaving to practice their specialties in the more lucrative American market. But Canadian doctors are certainly living a comfortable lifestyle.

Hospitals are downsizing, money is getting tight. But overall I think OHIP is a great system.

The other complaint I hear is that Canadians are taxed to death to support the health care system. I'll agree with the first part of that. Canadians are certainly taxed to the hilt. But it is a myriad of social programs supported by a tiny middle class that is the real culprit.

Canadians will take a lot from their government. But I truly believe they would never stand for anyone tampering with their health care system.

alliance. Senior citizens still covered under Medicare, which has a separate budget.

DOCTORS' FEES

■ Current system: Dr. Gerald F. Robbins, a neurologist with a practice in Garden City and president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, said overhead costs (staff, insurance, rent, etc.) and community economics are factors.

"There are certain regulations (anti-trust laws), which have really been enforced the last couple of years, where doctors can't sit down and discuss fees," he said.

"Frequently, we look at what our rates are and, if insurance is paying that, we might raise 5 percent (annually) so we can keep up with inflation."

Clinton plan: A national health care budget — determined through an average of premiums for the guaranteed standard benefits package —

Insurance terms:

Traditional: Medical insurance that includes some type of major medical coverage, covers emergencies and includes more doctors and hospitals. This type usually does not cover office visits and many preventive tests or physicals. It also often requires a deductible.

PPO: Preferred provider organization, such as Blue Preferred or Select Care. A PPO network usually includes subscribing doctors and health providers at specified hospitals and clinics. This type offers full benelits as long as participating doctors and hospitals are used. It pays a portion of the insurance if a doctor or service not in the plan is used.

HMO: Health maintenance organization - Blue Care Network and Health Alliance Plan are examples. This covers 100 percent of health costs, including doctor's office visits, physicals, major medical and emergency, second opinions, and aftercare. But it is limited to a certain group of doctors, hospitals and other facilities and does not reimburse at all if a patient goes outside the network, except in emergency situations.

ple, said Gilbert C. Gerhard, vice president of finance and administration for Arbor Drugs, headquartered in Troy.

"In any contract with a third-party insurer, what we usually have is an arrangement that they pay us a certain amount for a prescription which is pretty much based on our cost — what we pay the manufacturer.

"And they (insurers) give us a dispensing fee (which averages $3 per perscription) for the work of professional services.

"Usually there's a co-pay of some sort collected from the customer depending on what the contract is with the carrier.

Profits are generated by the number of prescriptions sold, not by the cost of the medication, he said.

■ Clinton plan: Presciptions are part of the basic benefits package. Alliances become the middle-people in the supplierretailer equation.

Woman's 1st rate care costly, mired in forms

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER STAFF WRITER

Mary Ellen Lehikoinen is an example of most of what's right and much of what's wrong with U.S. health care.

The 31-year-old Northville Township woman - whose fight against diabetes and related illnesses goes back to her childhood - has no complaints about doctors, treatments or hospital stays.

Medical care she has received has been "fist-rate," she said.

The downside: sky-high costs and horrible bureaucracies that dominate the health-care provider and insurance systems.

Lehikoinen's experience will likely make her an early beneficiary of the health-care reform proposal outlined Wednesday by President Bill Clinton.

Had the Clinton plan been in place three years ago, Lehikoinen might still be working as a receptionist at a Southfield psychiatric clinic.

"I loved working there," she said. "But because I was under so much strain, quitting was the best thing for me to do at the time.

Had health-care reform been around in February 1992, Lehikoinen's $53,000 pancreas and kidney transplant surgery would have been been covered under federally mandated insurance.

Instead, the bill was added to a $400,000 pile of medical expenses - many still outstanding - that has robbed the Lehikoinen family of its life savings.

More important though, said Urho "Al" Lehikoinen, is the time and energy lost to endless, usually unproductive phone calls and letters to insurance companies, not spent with his ailing daughter.

Diagnosed as a diabetic at 4, Lehikoinen began taking insulin and suffered few complications until her senior year at Temple Christian High School in Redford Township.

"I noticed my vision was getting worse and then during a check-up my doctor asked if I knew I had experienced a renal failure.

She embarked on an odyssey of lengthy, on-and-off hospitalization and daily dialysis treatments for her failed kidneys, still managing to graduate high school (a vear behind her class) and eventually earning, a degree from the Detroit College of Business.

Dialysis and extended hospitalizations have been eliminated with the transplant surgery.

However Lehikoinen still takes 30-40 prescription medications daily and is constantly sending blood and urine samples to the lab for evaluation.

When coverage on her parents' insurance policies ended in her mid-20s, the Lehikoinens used Social Security and Medicare benefits to help defray medical costs.

The kidney/pancreas transplant, done at the University of Minnesota Hospital — slipped through the cracks in their coverage, according to Al Lehikoinen.

The operation, which would have been covered by Medicare, was done after Mary Ellen's 90day hospital benefit and reserve coverage had expired.

Blue Care Network refused payment, calling it "experimental surgery." "It's unbelievably frustrating. We have all this insurance and I'm still falling through Mary Ellen Lehithe cracks," koinen said.

Health administrators skeptical on financing

BY BILL COUTANT STAFF WRITER

Most hospital administrators will tell you the idea of universal health care is not only one they endorse but one that could end up saving the health care system in the long run.

The same administrators will tell you that the Clinton health plan's mechanism for paying is either "scary" or so much "smoke and mirrors.'

"The intention is good," said John Labriola, vice president and CEO at Troy Beaumont Hospital. "Coverage for the uninsured is something we all want. But the administrative costs of health dare are already totally out of control.

Hospitals and the health care system are already regulated by the government. But the idea of a stepped up role strikes several administrators, doctors and other health care professionals as the wrong direction.

Gerald Lo Duca, Crittenton Hospital's director of patient accounts, said the Rochester hospital's billing is already simplified, with most patients using one of two forms. Part of the high cost of billing, clerical and other costs comes from the number of insurers. But going to a one payer system, such as Canada's, would make the system even slower.

"It takes 4-6 months for repay-Worries about cost: John Labriola, vice president and CEO at Troy Beaumont Hospital, says everyone is for universal health care but that costs have gotten out of hand.

Lo Duca, who supervises 64, said President Lyndon Johnson had said the Medicare system would cost $9 billion by 1990. It now costs $90 billion, he said.

And speaking of Medicare, that's what has led many health mistrust the

"They've been cutting Medicaid for years," said David Marcellino, chief financial officer at Hospitals reimbursements from Medicare and Medicaid have not matched what it costs hospitals to provide them in many cases. That leaves patients with other forms of insurance to pick up a bigger tab. But with the prospect of regional health networks or alliances called for in the plan, hospitals will have a harder time making up the difference, said Wayne George, CFO at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

"It's going to limit hospitals from recouping from their other payers," he said.

George said the proposal relies on government projections, which have always been inaccurate.

"I have no confidence in their figures," George said.

Donald Potter, president of Southeast Michigan Hospital Council of the Michigan Hospital Association in Southfield, said bringing the 37 million or so uninsured Americans into the system would alleviate the inefficiencies of using emergency rooms for the uninsured, which is expensive and often forces the patient to wait until a condition becomes serious before treatment is sought.

And hospitals combining services could also save the system money But the conflict the Department of Justicewhich comes down against such at that level," Potter said.

Add the time it will take for any proposal (the Republicans, conservative Democrats and others planned) to make it through the gauntlet of regulations, enabling legislation and state departments of health, social services and insurance regulators, and it could take six to 10 years for a plan to be in force.

"If 85 percent say they like the insurance they're getting and they realize that they will have to pay so that everyone is insured, does everyone believe we have a health care crisis.?

With small businesses picking up 80 percent of an employee's health insurance tab and employees having copays for care and prescriptions, the plan faces opposition, he said.

Doctors welcome malpractice reform

BY BILL COUTANT STAFF WRITER

Although the Clinton health care plan offers some relief to the present system, it presents problems for the people who provide health care.

Dr. Max McKinney, an osteopath in private practice in Farmington Hills, said the plan has some features he hopes will fly, but as a primary care physician and a small businessman, he also has concerns

"It offers some malpractice reform," he said. "If we as physicians did not have to worry about malpractice, there are a lot of tests we would not do and that would save the system a lot of monev

McKinney, who employs another doctor and 10 other employees, also sees the continuation of a fee for service approach as an important issue.

But as a small businessman, McKinney, who now pays about $15,000 in health insurance premiums for employees, said the new higher burden on small businesses will also hit him. And the emphasis on primary care physicians will make them the "gate keepers" for health care at a time most doctors opt for a specialty.

Like McKinney, Dr. Gerald Robbins, a neurologist who practices in Garden City and is president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, headquartered in Farmington Hills, says providing access to the system for an additional 37 million patients is a tall order.

'We believe universal access to health care is something every Amercian is entitled to," Robbins said. "We want to keep up the quality of our work as in the past and keep improving.

"Probably one way to reduce costs is paperwork. I spend probably two hours in every 10-12 hour work day on paperwork. It takes away patient care to do that.'

Dr. Susan Hershberg Adelman, a pediatric surgeon and member of a health professional review group appointed to critique the work of the 500-member Clinton/ lra Magaziner health care task force said fears that universal health care, one of the plan's main goals, won't be an easy task.

"My greatest hope is we finally get universal coverage," said the Bingham Farmns resident. "Mv greatest fear is we'll make a messi of it and still not get universal coverage. The whole system will change and we still won't get it because we don't have a way to Day for it.

Dr. Paul LaCasse, medical director at Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills, said although the plan puts big demands on primary care physicians, it also emphasizes the training of more primary care physicians.

encourages patients to choose alliances with primary care physicians," LaCasse said.

Because medical students often go into debt to complete school and specialists can command bigger fees, doctors have been reluctant to go into primary care, he eaid.

LaCasse said malpractice reform could also make it easier for obstetricians to practice in Michigan

Dr. Richard Herbert, medical One of its strengths is that it director at Troy's Beaumont Hospital, said paying for universal health care and keeping choices available are going to be tough to juggle under the plan.

Universial health care is a great idea," he said. "But how we are going to do it is the question. The Amercian public is going to continue to expect a high level of health care.'

Carol Zenas, acting dean of nursing at Oakland University, said she is concerned that the plan may not provide adequate access to the uninsured, especially women and young children.

And although nurses are the largest group of health care providers, the plan leaves doctors in control, which will leave nurses and nurse practitioners under used.

The plan will also get some resistance over concerns about managed care, which limits the choices of doctors for patients.

'They (patients) know their own doctor, but how do they know their own doctor is any good?" she said.

Ed Hodges, Botsford's chairman of the board, said the plan is a good start, but a lot of people are afraid of change.

'It's not as complicated as it seems," he said. "Some complications will be eliminated hy the plan. There are just a lot of groups with their own biases.

'We're all going to take some hits," he said. "But on balance, it's a good plan."

Health advisers see benefits, flaws in Clinton plan

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Two Plymouth companies that work regularly with the current health care system are expecting major changes if the Clinton health proposal becomes law.

Health Decisions Inc. headquartered on Plymouth Road is a management consultant firm specializing in advising on health care packages and helping companies on claim recovery.

The Michigan Peer Review Organization, with offices on Ann Arbor Road, is a non-profit, physician-sponsored company that reviews health care programs. It has contracts with the federal government to review Medicare and with the state government to review Medicaid.

Company president Si Nahra said he expects the changes will be positive for his company. But he has doubts about the proposal.

'Basically he's dodged the issue. It's a political response to a financial and economic issue," Nahra said.

Nahra said a political compromise will probably be reached. He said a Republican proposal by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I. might be used to define a middle ground.

"The true impact of health care reform will be at the state level," Nahra said. He said states have already taken a lead in this area and two proposals are already being considered in the Michigan Legislature.

Gary Horvat, MPRO's chief executive officer, said his organization had reviewed the Clinton health proposal that was leaked to the press last week. He said his initial reaction is that the proposal is ambitious and will have a major effect on how health care is distributed.

"In general we support what the president is doing," Horvat said. "There will be a coalition formed about managed competition. One concern we have is that a lot of consumer protection items are fragmented throughout the report.

The western Wayne County walk attracted 276 pledge walkers and lots of dogs, according to Ron Blauet, director of education for MHS. "There must have been 600 people and lots of dogs because every (twolegged) marcher brought one or two friends along," said Blauet.

Guv signs 'potty parity' bill

"Potty parity" will become Michigan law Jan. 1.

Gov. John Engler signed Rep. Jan Dolan's bill to increase the number of women's toilet facilities in theaters, exhibition halls, libraries, sports arenas, recreation centers, passenger terminals, out-door assemblies and larger restaurants. "The need for more toilet facilities for women is obvious to anyone who has seen the unacceptably long lines outside women's restrooms in buildings which host large crowds," said Engler of the bill that took eight years to become law.

"It recognizes that women, especialy those with children, need more toilet facilities, especially where large numbers of peole gather. Thankfully, the excruciatingly long liens for toilets at women's restrooms will be a thig of the past."

Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, won legislative passage of House Bill 4120 to amend the State Construction Code to require a 3-2 ratio of women's to men's toilets in public assembly places.

The bill grew from a 1985 series of articles in the Observer & Eccentric by freelancer Penny Steele. The law applies only to new construction and major renovations

Fisher's art to benefit AIDS awareness campaign

BY MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

Many people know Mary Fisher for the stirring words she has spoken on AIDS and AIDS research.

But Fisher also expresses herself strongly in another medium: handmade paper works, an exhibit of which is at the O.K. Harris/ David Klein Gallery in Birmingham through Oct. 2. Some of the proceeds from sales of the oneperson show will go to her foundation, Family AIDS Network. Fisher visited the gallery at 430 N. Woodward for a reception Tuesday evening.

The large, colorful pieces consist of floral arrangements. The artist was pleased to hear that they generate a warm feeling.

"I feel that way about my work," said Fisher, who lives in the Washington, D.C., area. "I love flowers. They're living, they're part of life. I feel that when I work. I'm glad that it translates.

"They're very optimistic," gallery president David Klein said of the works.

"I enjoy (the art) very much. It fills a niche in the gallery that we didn't have --- still lifes, works on paper."

Call for compassion

In 1991, Fisher's former husband told her he was HIV positive. After testing, she learned she was infected with the HIV virus, which often is a precursor of AIDS. She went public with this in February 1992.

Since then Fisher founded the Family AIDS Network and told her story nationally and internationally, calling for thoughtful-policies and AIDS awareness and compassion.

Taking responsibility is a big part of her message.

"I find that people believe it will not happen to them," she said.

The Family AIDS Network addresses three areas: increasing community awareness of HIV/ AIDS, caregiver support and pioneer research grants.

Fisher, now 45, attended Cranbrook schools, the University of Michigan, Wayne State Universi-ty and Oakland Community College. She received honorary doctorate degrees from the University of Detroit Mercy and Trinity College.

In 1969 she went to work for Channel 56, where she helped produce the first of the station's annual auctions. She moved to Washington, D.C., five years later and worked in the White House for then President Gerald Ford.

Fisher has been interested in art for a long time. She opened a specialty gift business in 1983, and had a one-person show of her handmade paper art at the Linda Hayman Gallery in Farmington Hills a couple of years ago. Art is still important to her. "In many respects it's more im-

Mayoral campaign

Pickering must change message

ayor Robert Thomas being renominated with nearly 60 percent of the vote in last week's primary shows that council president Charles Pickering, his Nov. 2 challenger, has a lot of work to do in the next six weeks.

While the first-term mayor set a modern political record for primaries, Thomas should be aware that in the previous three primaries, the person who finished first was the eventual loser in the general election.

If you don't believe that, ask Tom Brown, Pickering (who ran for a second mayoral term in 1985) and Charles Griffin.

But Thomas did accumulate some numbers in last week's primary that clearly show Pickering must change his message and get more specific if he is to have any chance of winning on Nov. 2.

In past primaries, the first place nominee didn't come close to collecting more than 50 percent of the vote.

Last week, Thomas had nearly 59 percent of the total vote and far more than the combined votes of his closest two challengers, Pickering and councilman Kenneth Mehl.

In the primary, Thomas focused on two issues: that he kept his 1989 campaign promises. and that basic public services improved under his administration. At the same time, Pickering hammered away that the issue is leadership and that a mayor must do more to assure a quality school system as part of a total community effort.

Pickering's platform sounds fine in a high school government or civics class, but it means nothing to residents who are worried about police and fire protection and rising property taxes.

If Thomas' challenger is to mount any campaign in the next six weeks, he must tell voters Mayoral nominee Charles Pickering must get more specific in the general election campaign to overcome Mayor Robert Thomas.

specifically what he plans to do and forget about the leadership platitudes. Too many residents remember that Pickering was mayor from 1982-85 and was embroiled in numerous disputes and lawsuits with the city council before being defeated by Griffin.

At the same time, Pickering should take advantage of any and all chances to get on cable-TV. Nearly two-thirds of the community subscribes to cable and many of those watch the government channel, which carries a variety of city government programs.

Mayor Thomas has used the government channel very effectively during the past 31/2 years to talk about city departments and publicize his Town Hall meetings.

At the same time, cable subscribers can watch Pickering presiding over council meetings. Those sessions are something which may put viewers to sleep faster than watching a baseball game or golf tournament.

Voters must remember that a primary is only the first half of an election campaign. With the second place finishers in the past three primaries eventually being elected mayor, Thomas and his supporters must be careful of being overconfident.

But let's hope that voters will make sure that the candidates will be addressing their needs which are generally tied to quality of life within existing tax dollars.

It's all a question of priorities. Thomas and Pickering must make sure their priorities match those of most of the city's voters.

Ax falls heavily on DNR ichigan's state government may be a fatted calf But Gov. John Engler's bull-in-a-china-shop approach to trimming government causes far more harm than good.

The latest example of the governor's heavyhanded actions involves eliminating a series of state Department of Natural Resources boards and commissions.

With a stroke of the pen, the governor will delete 19 of 27 DNR panels. And a recent, unanimous state Supreme Court decision ensures him that right.

We agree that state government needs trimming. Still, there is a big difference between downsizing government to make it more responsive and less costly, and hamstringing it altogether.

1990 campaign. Second, he never consulted with the heads of the abolished panels before making his cuts.

Their duties, covering everything from air pollution control to plastics recycling to hazardous waste management now pass to the alreadyoverworked DNR itself.

Several of these boards, including the Act 61 Oil and Gas Advisory Board, staffed by industry types, were born of special interest group lobbying. To them, we say good riddance. But others, like the Marine Safety Education Commission, have a legitimate role yet to serve.

Clearly, Engler's action doesn't make this critical distinction. As such, it is more based on short-term political expediency than of any genuine desire to make the DNR more responsive to the public it serves.

Taxpayers do the electing ayor Robert Thomas' decisive win in the Westland mayoral primary presents a number of interesting possibilities. Will he be the first Westland mayor in recent memory to win back to back terms in office; or will "anti-incumbent fever" again strike the voters in November?

If you assume that Mayor Thomas' November opponent, City Council President Charles Pickering, picks up all of the "non-Thomas" voters, then it could be a close race in November. But, as a former mayor, Pickering himself comes into the November election with much political baggage.

Clearly the die-hard anti-incumbent voters are faced with a "Hobson's Choice" of a former incumbent and a current incumbent. Either way someone is going to be "re-elected."

As expected, the "all-powerful" city employee unions had their candidates nominated. With Mayor Thomas receiving support from some police and fire unions and challenger Charles Pickering getting backing from Thomas' former allies in the public service workers unions.

Mayor Thomas has made a conscious effort to do and say things that indicate he is not 'anti-taxpayer." Amazingly, he opposed a school millage once, thus endearing himself to many people who persistently vote "No" on millage increases. Mayor Thomas backed Proposal A in June of this year — much to the horror of some city employee unions. Even though Proposal A lost, Mayor Thomas could come out looking like a genius, if the Legislature and the governor botch the restructuring of education financing as many predict they will. Additionally the legislative abolition of the choice to support Mayor Thomas was easy. It is our sincere feeling that Mayor Thomas deserves to be re-elected.

School helpers thanked s you drive past the historic 1856 oneroom Perrinsville schoolhouse on Warren Road, you can't help but notice the fresh coat of paint and the clean bricks. The schoolhouse received helping hands from the community recently.

Thanks to fire Chief Larry Lane and Westland firefighters for the finish coat of exterior paint on the school. The wood trim not only looks great, but is now protected from the upcoming winter weather.

Volunteers from the Target store donned their protective goggles and gloves to clean the brick. Cleaning is especially noticed at the northwest corner where brick replacement was done in December 1992.

For this task the following volunteers used their day off work. Thanks to Pat Adams, coordinator, Doug Fitchett, Sandy Schmidt, Sue Clark, Betty Denney, Tom Witt and Matt Thomas for their elbow work and time, to the Target store for donating supplies, and to the fire department for use of hoses and equipment.

The Perrinsville School Restoration Committee wants to thank them for their support. Ruth Dale, Perrinsville School Restoration Committee

Given this governor's shredding of the state mental health care system --- not to mention the sacking of public school financing - we see this latest action continuing a dangerous trend.

Make no mistake, finding the proper role of government is the central political issue of the 1990s.

Experience has shown us we can't depend on government to solve all society's ills, as was hoped by the 1960s.

But by now we should realize the anti-government approach of the 1980s isn't working either.

Engler's wholesale restructuring of the DNR worries us for several reasons.

For starters, he never mentioned it in the

In his re-election campaign, the governor can boast of taking action to trim government.

It's action, all right. But it's action without regard for consequences.

There does appear to be an alternative. The national governmental restructuring plan currently being touted by President Clinton and Vice President Gore is broad-based and farreaching --- something that cannot be said of Engler's trash-a-department-at-a-time antics. It also appear to be gaining bi-partisan support.

It's this kind of leadership we need from our next governor, whoever he or she might be. And it's that bi-partisan spirit we need from our thus far too divided and cowardly Legislature.

Westland's extremely oppressive 47-mill school property tax will certainly go a long way in improving the "mood" of the voters in November.

Both candidates should realize that union backing may get you nominated in Westland, but in November it is the taxpayers who elect the mayor. I challenge both candidates to now rise above pandering to the unions, and tell the taxpayers specifically what they will do to improve the efficiency, productivity and accountability of city government in the coming four vears.

Union backs mayor

he Westland Firefighters Union President Kenneth Grabowski announced Lo cal 1279 voted unanimously Sept. 15 to endorse the re-election of Mayor Robert Thom-88

Mayor Thomas' policies on public safety, and his stand on no fire station closings, match the goals of the firefighters. During his administration, the mayor has kept his promise to increase staffing levels and get all of the fire stations open. The firefighters support the position of Mayor Thomas with his upgrading of the level of fire service, and his promise of continued improvements.

The mayor has improved our life safety equipment, and has made major advancements in our Emergency Medical Service. As the firefighters unanimous vote of confidence reflects, e aware and beware - Mrs. Clinton's health care plan has some tricky wording to cover paying for abortions. Consider this from the Detroit Free Press Sept. 13, 1993:

"The basic package of benefits that all employers will be required to offer if Congress approves the plan does not mention the word abortion, a senior adviser to the president said last week. Instead the president's proposal will refer to pregnancy-related services that are medically necessary and appropriate.

The door is wide open. The plan considers abortion as just another means of birth control. The U.S. Supreme Court in a 1980 case ruled "Abortion is inherently different from other medical procedures, because no other procedure involves the purposeful termination of a potential life." We know now from science our life is in that first cell.

Mrs. Clinton makes a grave mistake here and endangers the entire plan by attempting to use health care reform legislation as a vehicle for expanding access to abortion.

Pact offers pride without fear for Palestinian n Sept. 13, I was among the 0 3,000 guests invited to witness the historic peace signing agreement between Yasser Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin. When Arafat extended his hand in friendship to Rabin, all the years of pain and anguish seemed to evaporate.

As a Palestinian growing up in Israeli-occupied territory, we became accustomed to the sounds of gunfire, bombs and the blaring of soldiers ordering us to obey their curfew.

At the age of 12, my most intense memory is of six soldiers breaking into our home and dragging my father from the breakfast table to beat him unconscious. while my mother, brothers and sisters watched in terror. My father's only crime was the fact that he is a Palestinian.

Images like these have continued to haunt my memory to this day, 20 years after leaving the occupied territory for the safety of the United States.

We have been accused of being terrorist and terrorist sympathizers simply because we are Palestinians. Our grief was cheered and death was applauded by those who support the state of Israel.

With the signing of this historic agreement between the PLO and the state of Israel... for the first time in my life, I feel I am able to display my pride of being a native Palestinian without fear of repercussions.

Before the formal ceremony began, Arabs and Jews shared their hopes and aspirations for peace. For the first time, I finally realized that Israelis, too, have suffered and, just like me, they aspire to live a normal life without guns and fear.

Like it or not, the Palestinians and Israelis are inextricably linked. Yet, because of our claim over the same piece of land and because of historical injustice, we never connected and refused to see each other as human beings

All that was accomplished was the death of thousands of innocent people and increased hatred toward each other

With the symbolic handshake and the signing of the peace agreement, the world witnessed the beginning of hope, reconciliation and cooperation, transferring negotiations from the battlefield to the diplomatic field. However, the world must realize that peace has not yet been achieved, but rather just begun.

For Palestinians, many issues about their destiny have yet to be resolved, such as the refugee status, the imple-mentation of U.N. Resolution 338, 242, which orders the return of the land to the Palestinians, which they lost in 1967 and the questions of the status of Jerusalem

Also, the Palestinians are deeply concerned about the status of the 13,000 Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails and the future treatment of Palestinians under occupation outside Jericho and Gaza who will remain during the negotiations.

Despite these concerns, we are optimistic about the success of this initiative. The enemies of peace are many. Therefore, we must all work together to bring an end to the bloodshed and slaughter.

This excerpt taken from the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangement sums up the hope that all people yearn for: "It is time to put an end to decades of confrontation and conflict, recognize their mutual legitimate and political rightsand strive to live in peaceful coexistence and mutual dignity and security and achieve a just, lasting and comprehensive peace settlement and historical and reconciliation through the agreed political process.'

This agreement brings forth the hope that the children of that region will be allowed to be children, instead of ammunition experts as they have been for the last four decades.

hold key to peace ther Mideast countries now

s this was written, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO Chairman Yassar Arafat were arriving at the White House for the historic signing ceremony. I never expected that I would witness such an event in my lifetime, and my heart is filled with heightened and conflicting emotions.

Clearly, this is a momentous breakthrough, one that may bring an end to the violence directed at Israelis and Palestinians for so many years. It may enable them to live together as neighbors, at peace with one another. It may even usher in a period of regional cooperation, involving economic linkages and scientific and cultural exchange. Mideast peace will further envelope the region if Syria, Lebanon and Jordan conclude separate peace agree ments with Israel. While the Palestinian issue has attracted the most attention in recent years, there are other significant disputes between Israel and its neighbors that must be resolved in order to proclaim a true and lasting peace in the Mideast.

That true and lasting peace is possible only if other Mideast counties, particularly the Gulf states, support the peace process with both words and action. They can play crucial roles by providing economic development aid to the West Bank and Gaza and by abandoning their economic boycott of Israel.

Therefore, American Jews, Arab

DAVID GAD-HARF

Americans and other Mideast peace advocates must now launch a campaign to rally U.S. and international economic support for the West Bank and Gaza. Funds will be desperately needed for targeted projects to build the economic infrastructure in those areas.

Over time, the Mideast nations will be able to reduce their military expenditures, geared to the next war, and replace them with investments in education and human welfare. Israel would be able to reduce its reliance upon the United States for arms and aircraft, and would be able to channel its citizenry into productive purposes.

These objectives would be difficult enough to accomplish in their own right. But, added to the equation are extremist groups that will use every weapon at their disposal to undermine these steps toward peace. Israel, its neighboring countries and the PLO must be unified in their determination to discredit and marginalize those who want to disrupt the peace process

Extremism feeds on feelings of hopelessness, insecurity and rootlessness. As Arabs and Israelis focus on the attainment of their basic needs for security and well-being, we can all hope that war, violence and hatred will be a thing of the past.

Hopefully, Monday's ceremony will provide the spark of hope that will mean the birth of an era of peace in the Mideast, making it a source of inspiration for the entire world.

Dismal findings in reading match national averages eople in my line of work get a lot of press releases --- we call 'em "handouts" and I'm no exception. I've never seen as many handouts as now, all announcing hearings on what's to happen with Michigan's kindergarten through 12th grade school system.

The State Board of Education is holding hearings. So is the state Senate Republican caucus. Sen. Debbie Stabenow, a Democratic candidate for governor, is holding hearings. Democrats in the state House are holding hearings. The MEA, Michigan's largest teachers union, isn't holding hearings, but it's testifying like crazy.

This is all to the good, although grumpy folks like me can't help suspecting that all this frenzy for public input is just window dressing for what will be entirely insider power plays when the deals finally get cut about how to fund and structure Michigan's schools. For readers interested in attending hearings and keeping their heads clear in the blizzard of emotion and hype, claim and counterclaim, here are a few facts and conclusions to keep in mind: According to a recent national study, "Reading Report Card for the Nation and the States,' 41 percent of Michigan's fourth graders cannot read at a basic level. Despite that dismal finding, Michigan's scores ranked just above the national average. Our schools are failing; so, too, are schools throughout America. Another national survey recently concluded that just a little more than half of America's workers were "workforce illiterate" - that is, could not read instructions, understand blueprints, operate tools and machinery and make simple job-related computations. Surprise! Poor schools produce poor workers. Harold Stevenson, a professor at the University of Michigan, has been studying the differences between American and Asian schools for 14 years. Comparing fourth grade math achievement between 30 Chicago-area schools and 30 in Japan, he found only one American school attained a score as high as the lowest score charted in Japan. No wonder the Japanese are beating us in international economic competition. Over the past 15 years in Michigan, inflation-adjusted spending on schools increased by about 25 percent while the number of children in schools dropped by about a quarter, and test scores declined somewhat. Throwing money at the schools doesn't help.

percent of Michigan's fourth graders cannot read at a basic level. Despite that dismai finding, Michigan's scores ranked just above the national average. Our schools are failing; so, too, are schools throughout America.

While you're listening to the testimony, you might also want to remember that some important steps already have been taken in Michigan to improve school performance.

The state now gives MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) tests annually to kids in various grades. This newspaper publishes results for local schools, building by building. Thousands of parents are learning just how their local schools are stacking up and, where necessary, demanding improvement.

Beginning with the class of 1994, state-endorsed diplomas will be given only to graduates who measure up on assessment tests. At a time when jobs are scarce, this may have real impact. I don't know many employers interested in hiring kids with inferior diplomas.

These are good steps, only now beginning to show some results. You might want to remind the various holders of hearings that throwing out the baby with the bathwater is a mistake, too

Gourmet sampling benefits SC students

The scholarship coffers at Schoolcraft College are $38,000 richer thanks to 1,000 hungry patrons who spent Sunday afternoon sampling the wares of some of metro Detroit's finest restaurants.

"Outstanding," "delicious," "great" were some of the comments heard in between bites from guests who paid $35 each to sample ribs from the Caucus Club, gourmet coffee from The Coffee Beanery at Laurel Park Place, wines from Showerman's Party Store and jambalaya prepared by chefs at Union Street.

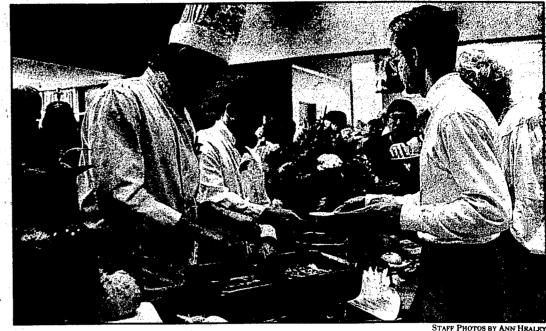

The 60 food, dessert and beverage stations were arranged on two floors in the Waterman Campus Center on the Livonia campus.

This year's event was the second annual. Co-chairs were Betty Jean Awrey of Plymouth Township and of Awrey Bakery Inc. in Livonia and Jean Shapero of Northville. The honorary chairman was Joe Muer owner of the Detroit landmark Joe Muer's Restaurant.

Saundra Florek, Schoolcraft College spokeswoman, said plans are under way for a third "Culinary Extravaganza" and Muer will again serve as honorary chairman.

Other metro area restaurants and beverage vendors who participated in the fall fund-raiser included: Arriva Italian Ristorante, Boodles, The Breadwinner Bakery, Cafe Cortina, Central Distributors of Beer, DaVinci's Market at the Novi Hilton, The Dearborn Inn-Early American Room, Good Time Party Store-General Wine & Liquor Co., Gratzi, Heavenly Bakery & Gourmet Shop, Jacques Demers, LeMetro, Les Saisons and Lorrie's Confectionately Yours.

Also, MacKinnon's, Malibu Restaurant, Mid Town Cafe, Old Woodward Grill, Orchard Lake Country Club, Pike Street/Chirimo's Pizza, managed by Rick Williamson of Garden City, captured the Mason men's modified softball tournament Sunday, defeating McCormick Industries of Kalamazoo, 5-1, in the championship final.

Redford's Craig Savonen delivered a key twoout, two-run double in the bottom of the sixth to break a 1-1 deadlock. Winning pitcher Herb Rogers of Livonia tossed a three-hitter.

Primo's won four of five games en route to the title to finish 33-12-1 overall.

Leading hitters for Primo's during tourney play included Dave Wolfe, Livonia, 538; Kevin Liedel, Livonia, 529; Tom Miner, Garden City, 500; Doug Fulton, Livonia, and Bob Debenedet, Plymouth, .467 each.

Defensively, catcher Bob Borth of Westland stood out in all five games.

Other members Primo's, which earlier finished 13th in the Nationals in Meadville, Pa., include Craig Dlugos and Shawn Tibus, Westland; Rob and Rick Sudz, Livonia; Michael Rice, Garden City; Keith Collins, Plymouth.

Tatigian, girls cross country coach at Franklin High, finished the road race in 1 hour, 1 minute and 38 seconds. She is a graduate of Stevenson High and Michigan State University.

Stevenson High product Gail Grewe, who now attends Michigan, was 48th overall and first in the 19-and-under age division with a time of 1:18:36. Lori Mitchell was 56th in 1:20:29.

In the men's 10-mile race, Ann Arbor's Mark Smith, a '92 Olympic alternate in the steeplechase, finished first in 51:46.

Other area men's finishers included Brett Milley (Westland), 14th (58:24); Mark Hakim (Westland), 35th (1:01:42); Gerald Thom (Livonia), 60th (1:04:08); Thomas Wrenbeck (Livonia), 169th (1:12:06); Dale Grisa (Livonia), 211th (1:14:50); Gene Grewe (Livonia), 303rd (1:19:42); Donald Quigley (Livonia), 333rd (1:21:39); and Jurgen Jurziuk (Livonia), 382nd (1:27:43).

Franklin stumps Canton again

Livonia Franklin continues to surprise in the Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer race, upsetting Plymouth Canton in a Western Division match. 3-2.

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Livonia Franklin is slowly, but surely proving to the Western Lakes Activities Association soccer world that last season's co-championship run was not a fluke

On Wednesday, the host Patriots put themselves right back into the Western Division race by ambushing highly-touted Plymouth Canton for the second straight year, 3-2.

Coach Mary Kay Hussey's squad, idle since Sept. 15 (0-0 tie with Livonia Stevenson), performed like they were on a mission.

"We had a week off and we were well rested," Hussey said. "We were eager to play and tired of practices. This was a big win for us and I think this game will boost our confidence." Franklin is now 5-2-1 overall and 2-1 on the Western side.

Canton, meanwhile, dropped to 5-3 overall and 0-1.

"They kicked our fannies and we started backing off," Canton coach Don Smith. "We started ducking and they started coming.

'I could see it coming in practice. We had a bad practice Tuesday. They thought it be an easy one and I don't know why because they did the same thing to us last year.'

Canton controlled the play for about the first 20 minutes and led 1-0 on Lance Pellow's goal.

"We were scrambling at the start, the first goal woke us up," Hussey said. "Canton had tremendous movement off the ball. They seemed to be everywhere and we weren't reacting." What triggered the Patriots' sudden turnabout was unclear, but they had the Chiefs reeling the rest of the goal when Canton defender Joe Sisko back-kicked the ball covering up for keeper Shaun Conway.

It was a sign of things to come.

With senior striker and top goal scorer, Victor Rodopoulos on the bench with a cracked nose, Franklin sophomore Rob Vega picked up the slack, knotting the score at 1-1 with 8:15 left in the half on an assist from Schmidt.

Rodopoulos returned for the second half and promptly scored off a corner kick from Eric Bowman to make it 2-1 with 23:25 to go.

The Patriots kept up the pressure and scored again when Vega kept the ball alive on the sideline. He punched it ahead to Rodopoulos, who fed Jason Buelow to make it 3-1 with 19:42 remaining in the game.

Franklin kept up its assault, nearly scoring on two other chances.

Canton finally got back on the board with just over four minutes to go when Jeff Fliss scored off a free kick. The shot came with Buelow on the sidelines with an injury.

But the Chiefs, desperate for more offense, were turned away down the stretch after Buelow, the senior, reentered the lineup.

We moved him (Buelow) from the middle to the front after the Stevenson game," said the first-year Frank-lin coach. "Jason's a force for us. Wherever he's at, he's bound to come up with the ball. He's just a tremendous worker."

Smith also came away impressed.

'Franklin did a good job," he said. "He (Buelow) played tough. He's a good ballplayer and so is that Rodopoulos."

Hussey was proud of the way her team defense held.

"(Goalie) Scott Simpson made two big saves," she said. "For our defense to hold them to two goals says a lot because Canton is a very good team." Franklin's victory also says a lot to the rest of the WLAA.

Canton, meanwhile, hopes to regroup with upcoming division battles ahead against Livonia Churchill and Northville.

"We're not out of it by any means," Smith said. "We just have to gather up some pride."

Churchill storms past Adams, 3-1; CC, Rice deadlock

The state-ranked Charges (4-0-2 overall) trailed 1-0 at the 14-minute mark of the second half when Rico Oshio scored on a penalty kick.

Churchill then got goals from Goran Rauker, Charlie Roberts and Mark Harper to secure the victory.

Rauker finished with two assists, while Brian O'Beirne had another.

Sophomore Brian Stramechi, making his first start after being called up from the junior varsity squad, went all the way in goal for Churchill.

"Adams is the fastest team we've played this year," Churchill coach John Boots said. "We won because we played a good 25 minutes (in the second half).

Tim Crawford tailied the other Rice goal. "We played pretty well, we had some opportuni-ties but we just didn't capitalize on them," CC coach Phil LaJoy said. "It was just one of those days. We just couldn't finish."

St. Francis snaps CC's win streak, 7-0

The Toledo St. Francis football team scored on a long drive in the first quarter and dominated time of possession in the second half Saturday night to upset Redford Catholic Central, 7-0, at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium.

The loss ended CC's 15-game winning streak that dated back to the first game of the 1992 season. The defending Class AA champion Shamrocks, 2-1 overall, were held to 85 yards total offense.

St. Francis marched 64 yards in 13 plays and scored on quarterback Bill Lanzinger's four-yard pass to flanker Mike Augustiniak on third down and goal with 4:51 left in the first quarter. The extra point split the uprights to give St. Francis a 7-0 lead.

The Shamrocks only chance to score came in the fourth quarter when they reached St. Francis 27. But on fourth down and two, CC was called for offsides and with the ball moved back five yards the Shamrocks were unable to convert the first down.

St. Francis had a pair of long drives in the second half that didn't result in points but took substantial time off the clock. Its first drive took 15 plays and end-

Tate Dobbs, a senior linebacker. led CC with 20 tackles, including seven solo efforts. Joe Walsh had one solo and 11 total and Andy Short was in on nine stops.

Senior tailback Freddie Taylor, who gained 318 yards and scored six touchdowns in the first two games, was limited to 40 yards on 14 carries. His longest gain from scrimmage was seven yards.

Quarterback Barry Lingelbach completed three-of-six passes for 20 yards and one interception. Lanzinger didn't attempt a pass in the second half and finished six-of-11 through the air for 55 yards. Fullback Jeremy Bueter led St. Francis with 108 yards on 30 carries.

The Shamrocks open their Catholic League Central Division schedule at 7:30 p.m. Saturday against Warren DeLaSalle at Livonia Clarenceville.

The Aggies, who limited Cardinal Mooney to 27 total yards, are 2-1 overall. St. Agatha took a 7-0 lead in the first quar ter after Chris Wall intercepted a Mount Carmel pass and returned the ball 52 yards to the 12-yard line, Two plays later, fullback Kevin Kutch scored from the two-yard line and Key in Tuz's first of three extra points made the score 7-0.

The Aggles went scoreless in the sec third quarters before running back Bill Matti scored twice in the fourth quarter.

Matti's 57 yard TD run capped a 67 yard drive and he also caught a 33-yard TD pass from Wall to end a 71-yard drive. Matti finished with 117 yards on 12 carries. Wall completed five-of-10 passes for 111 yards.

Cardinal Mooney completed no passes. St. Agatha's Mike Wilson recorded four sacks and teammate Bob Case had one seck.

ST. FLORIAN 7, BORGESS O: Redford Bishop Borgess played to a scoreless tie for three quarters Saturday against host Ham-tramck St. Florian before losing 7-0.

St. Florian's touchdown came in the fourth quarter on a three-yard run by Deshawn Cohen, who finished with 111 yards on 30 car ries. Cohen had a 36-yard run and Borgess was penalized 45 yards on the St. Florian scor Sampson's hair made him a force in bibical times.

Sideburns, the tape-measure kind, give Ferris State inside linebacker Mike Brooks a feeling of power when he takes on opposing ball carriers, blockers and receivers in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference.

Though only 5-feet, 11 inches, 209 pounds, the 1991 Livonia Churchill grad has become the strength of the Bulldogs' tenacious defense. His presence was Mike Brooks no more evident than in Saturday night's MIFC tussle at Hillsdale College where two of the NCAA Division II's top teams squared off before a record crowd.

Brooks made team-high 19 tackles (seven solos and 12 assists) as the Bulldogs and Chargers battled to a 13-all draw.

Revenge motive big

"This game is something special because they (Hillsdale) really waxed us last year," Brooks said. "They had us down 36-0 at halftime. They just embarrassed us (36-14 final score).'

Brooks' sideburns and the Bulldogs' confidence began to grow after they rebounded from the 1992 Hillsdale defeat. A 1-2 start was quickly erased after Ferris downed Wayne State.

The Bulldogs proceeded to go on a nine-game winning streak, clinching a share of the MIFC title and earning a post-season playoff spot where they eventually lost 35-13 to New Haven (Conn.) in the NCAA Division II quarterfinals.

Good luck charm

"My teammates dared me to grow them," Brooks said of his sideburns. "Once we started winning, they didn't come off until after the season was over. I knew they'd grow back anyway.

Brooks made his mark last season at outside linebacker during his first year as a starter. The freshman was in on 75 tackles, ranking sixth on the team.

When All-American Monty Brown, the team's leading tackler, graduated and moved on to the Buffalo Bills, Brooks was more than willing and able to step in and take his place.

"Both inside linebackers graduated," Brooks said. "All I wanted was the chance. A lot of people said I was undersized and doubted I could fill his (Brown's) shoes. I don't like anyone saying that until they see me play."

Proves critics wrong

After a summer of devoted running and weightlifting, Brooks erased all the Doubting Thomases.

"Last year there was not as much pressure," he said. "But I was confident and they (the coaching staff) let me know I could do it. "I like to be in the thick of played on the outside the play was always running away from me.'

In the season opener Sept. 4 at Edinboro State (Pa.), Brooks picked off two passes and returned one for a touchdown in a 23-9 victory.

"One of my goals this year was to have a couple of 'picks,' " Brooks said. "But to score a touchdown was just an incredible feeling.'

Bulldogs' leading hitter

Brooks is now the team's leading tackler (18 solos and 22 assists) heading into Saturday's home game with Wayne State.

'He has good instincts, a nose for the football and he's a tough kid," Ferris head coach Keith Otterbein said. "He's like an extra defensive back out there with good mobility and strength. He's stepping it up and getting it done.

'He may have a small body, but he's got a big heart. A lot of people said the same thing about Chris Spielman when he came out of Ohio State. They said he was too small, but he made All-Pro."

Brooks, an all-around athlete, was selected first-team All-Observer his senior year as a tailback/linebacker at Churchill, even though the Chargers went winless in 1990.

Opportunity knocks

"During my freshman year they gave me a chance and I had a good spring," said Brooks, who red-shirted his first fall at Ferris. "I was just about smaller than evthings anyway. It seemed when I erybody, but I was hoping I could play outside linebacker. I was not into playing DB (defensive back)."

Brooks got his break early in the '92 season when one of the Ferris starters got hurt. He hasn't relinquished starting spot since, and doesn't appear to be giving it up anytime soon unless somebody named Delilah shows up.

"This is my job and it's tough," said the biology education major. 'I get paid to play football." Last summer, Brooks ran every morning for an hour at Churchill before coming home to lift weights. And when he wasn't at home lifting weights, he was working out at a local gym.

"I didn't have a summer job, my parents support me so I don't have to work," Brooks said.

Hillsdale back tough

Brooks held his own Saturday night against Hillsdale's Scott Schulte, one of the nation's top Division II runners. Schulte had to earn just about every inch of turf. He finished with a hardearned 114 yards in 28 carries.

But even the satisfaction of stopping the Hillsdale star left Brooks and his defensive mates feeling a bit empty.

"A tie feels as bad as a loss," he said. "We like to win. A tie doesn't take us out of the race. They (Hillsdale) already have a loss, but we can still control our own destiny."

In the meantime, Brooks' sideburns will remain long and mean. The barbers in Big Rapids may have to wait awhile.

Saginaw Valley

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

Blame it on the time of year. Or the weather. Yeah, that's what it was — the weather.

A heavy school load is always good, especially for a college. student. Sure, that would work.

How about a death in the family? Nah, haven't used that one since high school, sophomore year, and it didn't work then. Well, what about . . .

> To be honest, no excuses are necessary. Really. Tuesday night's volleyball match, between Madonna University and visiting Saginaw Valley State, was non-league. Nothing was at stake.

> Winning would be nice. Losing wouldn't matter.

Madonna won, but it took four sets against a mediocre member of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference: 12-15, 15-12, 16-14, 19-17. It was as close as the scores indicate. Madonna, ranked in the top 20 in the NAIA, shouldn't have had so much trouble.

But that's easier said than done. Telling yourself to be ready mentally, don't take the opponent for granted, give it your all — well, it may be right, but it's rarely that simple.

Madonna coach Jerry Abraham knows his team is better than it showed. But it's nice to know his Lady Crusaders can win without their best performance.

"That was a good Saginaw Valley team," he said after his team improved to 19-2. "We got off to a slow start, but we played smart when it counted."

Madonna trailed in every game, rarely displaying any dominance. The first game went by with the Crusaders holding the lead just once, and that was at 4-3.

In the second game, the Cardinals led 12-9 before Madonna rallied; in the third, the visitors had a 14-12 advantage before bowing. The final set was more of the same: Saginaw Valley was up 13-9 and 14-13.

But if the Crusaders showed anything, it was determination.

VOLLEYBALL

Freshman middle hitter Julie Martin, from Livonia Stevenson, was a prime example: Sure, she missed some shots she should have converted, but she made some when it counted, too. Martin finished with 15 kills and 10 blocks.

Junior outside hitter Mo Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy) was equally effective, with 15 kills. Senior setter Mazie Pilut (Redford Bishop Borgess) had 50 assists to kills, senior middle hitter Kari Van Deusen (Schoolcraft College) collected 10 kills and junior outside hitter Julie Wood (SC) had 22 digs.

It wasn't pretty. But it was a win, and perhaps a lesson.

Last weekend may serve as an example. The Crusaders reached the finals of the St. Francis College Tournament in Fort Wayne, Ind., Saturday against NAIA District 23 foe Spring Arbor College - and were upset, 15-6, 1-15, 15-7.

It was the same Spring Ar bor team that Madonna had beaten 15-6, 15-10 in pool play earlier in the day. Indeed, the Crusaders had not lost a game in the tournament until the final.

On Friday, they defeated Defiance (Ohio) 15-2, 15-9, and Purdue-Calumet 15-3, 15-6, in pool play. They advanced to the final with pool-play wins Saturday over first Spring Arbor and then Grace College 15-6, 15-7. In the semifinals, they whipped host St. Francis 15-8, 15-7

Madonna started slowly in the final against Spring Arbor, but rallied to easily win the second game. A strong server put the Crusaders into an 8-0 hole in the third set, a hole they never climbed out of.

Paulin paced Madonna with 34 kills in the tournament (.390 kill average). Martin had 33 (.325), Van Deusen totaled 27 (.356) and Wood had 25 (.293). Pilut finished with 136 assists (10.4 per game); Paulin had 49 digs, Van Deusen 36 and Wood 34.

"We played with two of the top-20 teams in the nation and played them well," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "We're in a situation where I think we can play with teams of this caliber and do well." The importance of this match, and the win over DuPage the previous Sunday, can't be discounted. Both are teams the Ocelots will have to beat if they are to advance past the NJCAA's inter-regional tournament to the NJCAA Tournament.

It's unlikely SC will meet another team as good as either Forest Park or DuPage until the inter-regional. The Ocelots appear far better than any of their Region 12 competitors — which concerns Dimitriou.

"I absolutely believe we'd be a better team if we played competition like this regularly," he said.

If the Ocelots came out against their foes like they did against Forest Park, they might never lose. SC pressured from the opening kick, and it quickly paid off when Vince Troiani - inserted into the starting lineup because, said Dimitriou, "He's been play-ing so well off the bench, why wait 20 minutes for something to happen?" — forced a turnover an bent a shot into the right corner. - forced a turnover and the 26th minute, Forest Park tied Tuesday, the Lady Ocelots did not — they lost 15-7, 8-15, 15-8, 15-12 to Henry Ford CC, at SC.

The effect of the defeat? Consider this: The Ocelots have lost just one other Eastern Conference regular-season match in coach Tom Teeters' tenure.

That covers eight years.

The reason for the defeat was simple enough, according to Teeters: "We didn't play too well. The only players who played up Shannon Capstick, who suffered an apparent pinched nerve that caused numbress in her arm. She will be sidelined at least this week.

Capstick's loss forced Teeters to juggle his lineup. He inserted Sproul into Capstick's left-side hitter spot, and although Sproul performed well enough, it did cause problems.

Others failed to pick up the slack.

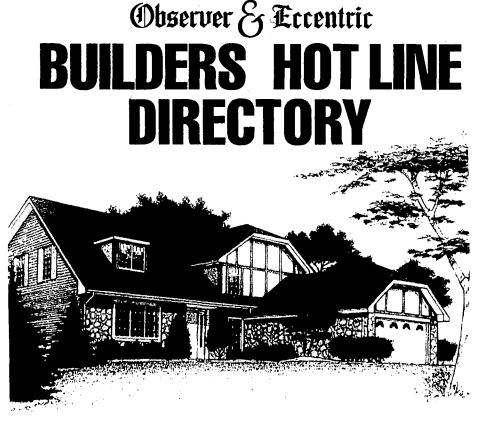

(usually a defensive specialist) had moved and Capstick was missing.

Still, SC should have won. "It was a good match for Henry Ford," Teeters conceded. "They played well, they kept the pressure on. And the pressure was harder on some players than others.

Barnes' 21 kills paced the Ocelots. Danielle Pfeffer had 13. Tracia Clendenen collected 28 assists to kills.

Shamrocks finish 4th at Holly meet

Redford Catholic Central may have gained a foot-hold on a state boys cross country ranking after finishing fourth out of 22 schools Saturday in the tough Holly Invitational.

Ann Arbor Pioneer captured the team title with 33 points, followed by Toledo St. Francis (56), Brighton (84) and CC (112).

'Monroe is number one, and then it's probably Ann Arbor Pioneer, Brighton and Milford," CC coach Tony Magni said. "We hope to be in the top 10.

Right now our first two runners are running well. If the others close the gap, we'll be a decent team.'

Senior Mark Leo finished fourth in the 5,000-meter race with a time of 16:29. Brother Joe Leo, a sophomore, took seventh in 16:36.

Other CC finishers included Phil Camilleri, 22nd (17:12); Matt Sroczynski, 36th (17:36); and Jeremv Short. 43rd (17:44).

On Monday, CC ran its dual meet record to 2-0 with a 16-47 Central Division win over University of Detroit-Jesuit at Marshbank Park.

CC captured the first four places: Mark Leo (17:55), Joe Leo (17:56), Mike Danic (18:05) and Short (18:07). Other Shamrocks in the top 10: Brian Smith, sixth (18:10); Srocynski, seventh (18:12) and Derrick Faunce (18:22).

The Blazers, who finished with 15 points, trailed first place Monroe (19) and second place Saline (16).

The Blazers' champions were Kara Caswell, who played No. 3 singles, and Catherine Mateja. who was in the No. 4 slot. Caswell was on the Catholic League No. 1 doubles champion last year and Mateja also made the transition from doubles.

"They worked hard over the summer and deserved the wins,' Ladywood coach Lynn Swift said.

Ladywood's No. 2 doubles team of Sarah Andersen and Lauren Agoston and No. 4 doubles team of Mary Hubert and Michelle hava each took third place.

Prep prognosticators try their luck

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

The Observer/ THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1993

It may be a Vegas kind of weekend for high school football action.

Your friendly prep prognosticators may have to roll the dice, play a little roulette or even deal. some blackjack to determine which teams they'll roll and draw. The standings remained the same after Week No. 3, but the odds could quickly change once we enter Week No. 4.

Yours truly and the enemy (Dan O'Meara) each correctly picked 11 of 14 games. Emons maintains his four-game lead with a season total of 36-9. O'Meara, looking for some Irish luck, is 32-13 overall. League action begins this week in the Catholic League, while the remaining area teams try to separate the men from the boys in second-week conference play.

Here's what's on the board:

FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Franklin at Farm. Harrison (3:30 p.m.): Franklin, 3-0 winner last year over the mighty Hawks, have lost three tough games by an average margin of 7.3 points. Quarterback Greg Maple is averaging 187 yards passing (per game), but the Pats' defense is soft. Harrison (2-1), meanwhile is riding high after toppling a good Northville team. Quarterback Joe Pesci and fullback Nick Williams are starting to come around, PICKS: Harrison is the heavy favorite.

Liv. Stevenson at N. Farmington (4 p.m.): Stevenson (3-0) is living right, hav-ing won its last two on the final play of the game. The Spartans, led by quarterback Kevin Szczembara and receiver Brad Morgan, are much improved. North (1-2), meanwhile, earned a hard-fought win over Farmington, 14-7. PICKS: Stevenson makes it four straight.

GRID PICKS

Niskanen will have to walt another week to try for his first win. PICKS: Glenn has too much firepower.

W.L. Western at Ply. Canton: Western (2-1) has won two straight after losing to Novi in the season opener, 7-0. The Warriors, however, may be without run-ning back Alex Gillert (ankle injury). Canton (2-1) was shaky on offense last week against Churchill, needing a turnover to eat the Chargers. PICKS: Canton has the edge.

Ply. Salem at W.L. Central: The Rocks (1-2) were hit hard by their last-second loss to Stevenson. Fullback Rob Shepley (thigh bruise) was not at full-strength last week, but could be the difference this time around. Central (2-1) is still smarting from last week's pounding adminstered by John Glenn. Quarterback Ken Shiller was badly shaken up. PICKS: Salem gets back on the winning track.

Dearborn at Garden City: Dearborn (3-0), led by sophomore quarterback Kevin Kreger, has outscored its opponents 58-6, but the three opponents are nothing to write home about. GC (2-1) boasts Jason "the Workhorse" Workman, who is coming off a 216-yard rushing performance against Southgate. PICKS: Emons says the Cougars' tougher schedule pays off, while O'Meara ndes with the Pioneers in the Mega-White Division encounter.

Redford Union at Taylor Kennedy: Both teams are 0-3. So what can we expect out of this Mega-White Division tussle? Wide receiver Greg Knight is RU's big-play threat, while Dana Mitchell is the man to stop for JFK. PICKS: RU breaks through, according to Emons, but O'Meara flies with the Eagles.

Red. Thurston at Dbn. Hts. Crestwood: Thurston (2-1) is playing an old Tri-River League opponent, so that's the good news. The Eagles, led by do-it-all receiver Jeff Lance (193 yards in receptions), drilled Gibraltar Carlson last week, 48-13. Crestwood (1-2), coached by Floyd Carter, is hoping to rebound from losses to Garden City, 7-3, and Allen Park, 22-6. The Chargers' only win is a 6-O triumph over Carison. PICKS: Thurston quenches its thirst.

Wayne Memorial at Monroe: The Zebras (2-1) were supposedly inexperienced coming into the 1993 season, but have outscored their last two opponents, 56-2. Monroe (2-1) gave Mega-White favorite Fordson a tussle last week before losing 6-0. The Trojans own victories over Plymouth Canton (12-6 in overtime) and Woodhaven (16-14). PICKS: Emons says Monroe by shade, but O'Meara earns his stripes with the Zebras.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Lutheran Westland at Detroit Luther an West (noon): West (2-1) is no longer best in the Metro Conference West Division after losing to Cranbrook last week. The Leopards, however, have the advanin speed led by Robert Walker. Lutage theran Westland (1-2) has a fine tight end in Jeff Lichtner and a fine linebacker in Troy Smith, but coach Dennis Tuomi, who coached by years at West before moving out to Cowan Road, feels a little like Wayne-Fontes these days. Where's the offense? PICKS: The Leopards are too fast and elusive for the Warriors.

Bishop Borgess vs. Orchard Lake St. Mary's (1:30 p.m. at Garden City Junior High): The Spartans are 0-3, but at least they went down fighting in last week's 7-0 loss to Hamtramck St. Florian. Meanwhile, St. Mary's (3-0) is No. 1 in Class CC and loaded with talent. Defensive end Cameron Binion, a 6-foot-4, 225-pound senior, is Big 10 material. PICKS: St. Mary's is the safe pick of the day.

Redford CC vs. Warren DeLaSalle (7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville): The defending state Class AA champion Shamrocks had their 15-game winning streak snapped by St. Francis of Toledo, gaining only 85 yards in total offense. Several players got banged up in the process. De-LaSalle (3-0) is still an underdog even with wins over Lake Orion (40-7), Jackson (35-14) and Benton Harbor (20-7). But word has it that Sterling Heights Stevenson grounded the Pilots badly in a preseason scrimmage PICKS: CC rider all the way in the this Central Division opener.

SUNDAY'S GAME

St. Agatha vs. A.A. Gabriel Richard (2 p.m. at Ann Arbor Pioneer): Both teams are 2-1 and possess two-game winning streaks. Richard's Matt Strozeski piled a career-high 245 yards, including a pair of 53-yard TD runs, in a 35-14 romp last against Allen Park Cabrini. Agatha is coming off a 21-0 win over Marine City Cardinal Mooney. PICKS: The Aggies come up short.

NEW GRIPS

Cranbrook at Clarenceville (4:30 p.m.): The Cranbrook Cranes (2-1) looked anything but Ichabod after dispensing of Class D state-ranked Detroit Lutheran West last week, 20-6. The Trojans (1-2), led by breakaway artists Mark Kalaj and Mark Juncaj, earned their first win by pouncing on Lutheran Westland last week, 26-8. PICKS: The Cranes stay in first place in the Metro's West Division

Northville at Liv. Churchill: The Mustangs (2-1) were corralled last week by Harrison's defense, but still rate high in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Churchill's defense has been outstanding, but the Chargers (0-3) resemble the Pontiac Pussycats on offense, having gone scoreless three games. PICKS: Northville pins loss No. 31 in a row on the Chargers.

Farmington at Westland Glenn: It appeared the state-ranked Rockets (3-0) would miss defensive back/return specialist Matt Howton, who is out for the season after suffering a collarbone injury vs. Hamison. But Glenn punished previ ously unbeaten Walled Lake Central last week, 31-0. Farmington (0-3) has been in three close games, but coach Lauri

Garden City smothers Chargers, 57-21

The host Cougars played suffocating defense, choking off the Chargers in a non-league encounter, 57-21.

"We go jacked up defensively," said GC coach Marshall Henry, whose team is 4-1 overall. "We did a good job on our man defense, possibly the best of the year. We caused bad shots and got the transition game going. Our kids were in their face all night." Churchill (2-3 overall) trailed a head start on the rest of us by participating in Michigan's early bear and elk hunting seasons.

Troy's Mike Wills took a husky 305-pound black bear on Sept. 18 while hunting behind hounds in the Upper

"I had never hunted bear behind dogs before and it was a real rush," Wills explained. "I hunted over bait the day before and saw a sow and her cub. The next day I had an opportunity to hunt with the dogs so I did. With the dogs

Daddy bags bull

What a week for Chris Dunlap. What an understanding wife.

The Northville hunter hit the jackpot earlier this year when he received a hunter's choice permit for the first September Michigan elk hunt, which started Wednesday, Sept. 8. The only hitch in Dunlap's plan was that Sept. 8 was also his wife Linda's duedate for their second child.

Elk hunters are required by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to attend an orientation class the day before the start of each hunt. The class was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7, so Dunlap and his father had planned to leave home about 5 a.m. to make the four-hour trip to Gaylord for the class

"Frankly I thought I was going to miss out on it," explained Dun-lap. "My wife's water broke an hour before I was going to get up and leave. Her labor started and we went to the hospital.

'About 11 (a.m.) I realized the baby wasn't going to be born for a while so I called up there (Gaylord) and spoke with Glen Mathews of the DNR and explained my situation. He was very accommodating. They (DNR) really cut me some slack.'

Mathews agreed to meet with Dunlap early the next morning and give him a one-on-one orientation.

Annmarie Dunlap was born at at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7. Her father left for Gaylord a few hours later after making sure his wife and new born daughter were healthy and resting comfortably.

"My wife is pretty understanding," Dunlap said. "She was great about the whole thing."

On Friday, Sept. 10, Dunlap capped an exciting four days when he shot a 5x5 bull which dressed-out at 525 pounds.

"It was pretty funny once I got up there," aded Dunlap. "It was the talk of the town. Everyone heard about my daughter and kept telling me I should call her 'Elkie,' but I had to draw the line somewhere."

Application deadline

Tomorrow is the deadline to apply for a 1993 anterless deer permit. All applications must be postmarked by Sept. 24. Antlerless deer permits allow a hunter to take an antierless deer or a deer with antlers extending less than three inches from the skull, within the specific area designated on the permit.

Antlerless deer permits are valid during the Nov 15-30 firearm deer season. the Dec 3-12 or Dec 10-19 muzzleloading deer seasons and the Dec. 1-Jan. 1 archery deer season.

(Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information by mail to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009, fax information to 644-1314, or call Bill Parker 6-10 p.m. Monday evening at 901-2573.)

is Gentile's gain

BY C.J. RISAK STAPF WRITER

Ask the inevitable question, knowing the answer is buried under years of frustration, and what do you get? A laugh?

That's how Oakland University soccer coach Gary Parsons replied when asked about his annual journey of disappointment — otherwise known as the Marriott Soccer Classic. Each year for the past decade, OU has hosted some of the best soccer talent in the NCAA Division II; each year for the past decade, the Pioneers have failed to win their own tournament.

The caliber of the talent has made Parsons almost immune to his team's failure to win the Marriott, year after year. Therein lies the reason for his laugh.

But it wasn't the only reason. There was much that happened over the weekend that pleased Parsons — even in the 2-1 overtime loss to Florida Institute of Technology Sunday.

"They played hard," was how Parsons evaluated his team after the defeat. "You have to give them credit for that. Today, we played well in spots. We've got some guys playing on sore legs."

What made Parsons happy was the return of senior center midfielder John Gentile from a torn groin muscle. Gentile was a major contributor to the happiest part of OU's weekend - a 2-0 win over Central Region rival Lock Haven Saturday.

Making his first appearance of the season, Gentile powered a shot from more than 20 yards out into the net for OU's first goal Saturday. Eli Tiomkin converted a pass from Mali Walton 12 minutes later to increase the Pioneers' lead to 2-0 by halftime.

"We had a very good game yesterday, and it was a big game," said Parsons after the loss to Florida Tech. It was more important than Sunday's game; the win will boost OU over Lock Haven in the region standings, helping solidfy the Pioneers' playoff berth.

Parsons wasn't the only one smiling Sunday, although the others were somewhat forced. Gentile, still far from full-strength, smiled weakly; he looked worn out after the Tech match. He had played almost all of both games, even though by his estimate he was only "eighty percent."

(戶) 大多男

And then there were the farfrom-jubilant Panthers of Florida Tech, the No. 1-ranked team in the NCAA II. They had lost their All-American striker, senior Richard Sharpe, to an Achilles tendon injury Saturday. He did not play against OU.

It was only part of their troubles. Sunday's match was their fourth in six days. When they straggled off the field with the win, they had to be prodded to appreciate it.

"We won, boys," defender Paul Robertson said. "We can be (bleeping) proud now." The celebration that followed was muffled, to say the least.

Coach Rick Stottler knew his team was physically spent. "They're tired and happy," he said.

Although the Pioneers had dominated at the start, they couldn't score. Tech turned it around in the last 20 minutes of the opening half, getting the game's first score from All-American forward Eddie Enders, who converted a through pass from Jeremy Wall at 31:06.

With just 3:36 left in regulation, OU knotted it when Mike Thornton slipped behind the Tech defense, taking a pass from David Ankori. He beat one defender to the inside and lined a shot that hit the crossbar and bounced in.

Tech got the game-winner late in the second OT, taking advantage of freshman defender Paul Doroh. Kieran England's corner kick slid through to an unguarded Kirk Mackey at the far post, and he headed it in with 2:03 left in OT.

The loss was OU's second in six matches. Tech is 5-0. Earlier Sunday. Lock Haven defeated Grand Canvon (Tech beat Grand Canyon Saturday).

SPARKLING START

For first games, this one would be hard to top. Actually, it would be hard beat anytime.

Eric Stover got his first start at quarterback for Grand Valley State Saturday, and the Westland John Glenn responded. And then some Stover tossed four touchdown passes, hitting 17-of-24 for 286 yards, in leading the Lakers to a 35-0 triumph over Northwood University, A junior who played two years at Grand Rapids Junior College, Stover's TD tosses covered 38, 6. 9 and 20 yards - three of them going to Youssef Sareini.

It's safe to assume Stover will start again this Saturday, when Grand Valley hosts Indianapolis.

TOP FINISHER

Michelle Gayney, a senior at Western Michigan from Redford Bishop Borgess, was the top Bronco finisher at the Red bird Cross Country Classic in Normal, Ill., Saturday. Gayney was eighth overall, covering the 5,000 meter course in 18:27.

WMU was fourth in the team standings with 80 points, finishing behind lowa (31), Wisconsin (60) and Illinois

III GREAT BEGINNINGS

If the rest of his cross country career at Erskine College (Due West, S.C.) is this successful, Dave Clinard will have a superb run.

A freshman from Farmington, Clinard finished first in a field of 44 runners at the Lander University Invitational Sept. 11 in Greenwood, S.C. He completed the 8,000-meter course in 26:49

It was Clinard's first collegiate race.

GETTING BETTER

A year ago, University of Michigan placekicker Peter Elezovic suffered through a season Wolverine supporters felt was sub-par.

But, as the saying goes, that was last year.

Elezovic has been near-perfect this season. The senior from Redford Catholic Central has connected on 2-of-3 field goals and all seven of his extrapoint attempts. He is third on the team in scoring with 18 points.

A year ago, Elezovic was 7of 12 on field goals and 52-of-55 in his extra-point placements, scoring 73 points.

Teen alcohol use will be the focus of a two-part program presented at St. Mary Hospital in Envonia for parents of 10-to-14gear-olds.

"Raising Responsible Teens: What to Do About Alcohol" will available on two consecutive Tuesdays, Oct. 5 and 12. Each program combines live video broadcasts (via satellite) and onsize discussions, with experts from the local community.

Attendees will also learn about focal resources for coping with alcohol and drug abuse.

This is the first year of national distribution for "Raising Responsible Teens," which has been produced statewide in Wisconsin since 1991. The 1993 program will be available at selected locations around the nation.

"Alcohol use is commonly accepted and sometimes glorified in our culture," said Dr. John Ste-phenson, director of the Teenage and Young Adult Clinic at University of Wisconsin Children's Hospital in Madison and one of the program's featured speakers. "We want to give parents specific tools to work with their youngsters to resist the many pressures to drink.'

The Oct. 5 program for parents, 'Preventing Teen Alcohol Use,' will explore factors that place young people at risk for using and abusing alcohol and steps parents can take to reduce their youngsters' risk of alcohol use.

The Oct. 12 program, which is open to parents and their children, will address the pressures adolescents face, society's messages about drinking, and how to involve young people in making decisions about rules that affect them

"Raising Responsible Teens" offers a combination of live discussion and skills training on-site with taped and live video segments with specialists in adolescent health and development.

The satellite transmissions begin promptly at 7 p.m. in the St. Mary Hospital auditorium and participants are asked to arrive at 6:45 p.m. To register for the programs, contact the education and health promotion office at 591-2888.

As I traveled NATURE TRAILS north not long ago on Telegraph Road between Long Lake and Lone Pine roads, I saw a sea crow or shag, or as it is now called, a double-crested cormorant. ٠I TIMOTHY surprised to see

NOWICKI it at such a small but not too wetland area, surprised to see it at all. Several people lately have asked about cormorants and told me of their sightings

Double-created cormorants are relatives of the pelican. They have a small patch of skin under the throat reminiscent of the large gular pouch of the pelican. Their feet are also like those of a pelican. Intead of webbing between three toes, like ducks, they have webbing between all four toes. This webbing helps them swim through the water, catching fish.

In some Asian countries, fishermen actually use cormorants to catch their fish. They tie ropes around their necks so they cannot swallow the fish, but they can still capture them. What is even more amazing is that each fisherman may have several cormorants on strings, and though they may be swimming in all directions to capture fish, they seldom get tangled.

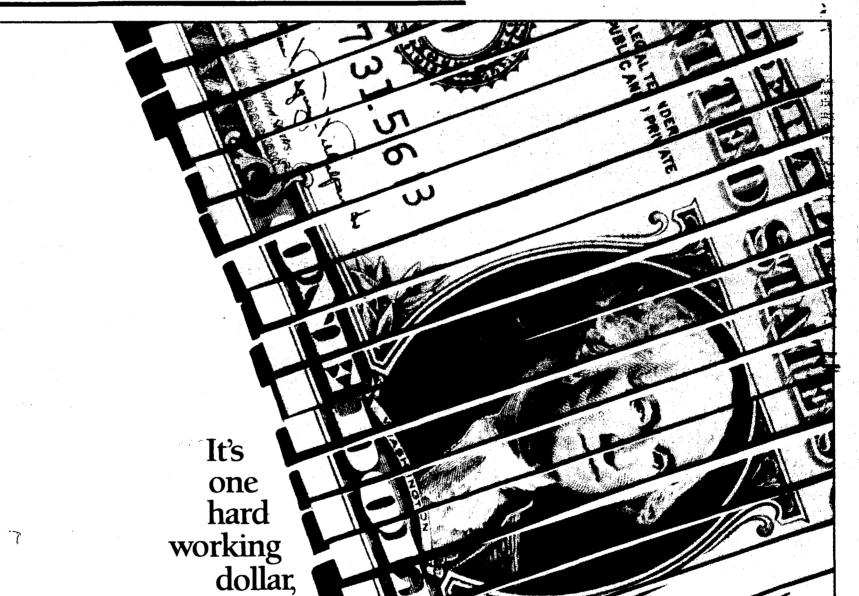

Fish have resulted in fluctuating populations of cormorants in the State of Michigan

When my grandfather, who is now 95, first came to Michigan, he would not have seen a cormorant. It was not until the 1930s when they were recorded as nesting on some of the Lake Erie islands. From the 1930s to the 1950s, their populations grew and expanded to the Upper Peninsula.

Then during the height of the DDT era, their numbers dropped to zero. DDT concentrated in the adults, from fish they ate, caused total reproductive failure in some colonies and ultimately they disappeared from Michigan waters.

After an absence of several years, their numbers are starting to recover. Unfortunately, chemicals in the Great Lakes may cause their population to fluctuate again. Some birds have been discovered with crossed mandibles. These birds would be unable to catch food and would eventually die. Just recently, four bald eagles were found with crossed mandibles. They too eat fish from the Great Lakes.

sive. All this is not to belittle the number of jobs that have, in fact, gone south of the border in the last decade or so. Seat belt manufacturing, which got its start in Froy, is mainly done in Mexico today. So-called cut-and-sew operations, done mainly by women, by hand, were among the first to go, despite the fact that they were mainly minimum wage jobs in rural areas to begin with.

Some major assembly as well, including the aforementioned Mexican operation where Ford builds Tracers, sold by Lincoln Mercury and engineered in Japan. It's tough to say exactly what wages are in Mexico, since the constantly fluctuating currency distorts it at best. But a couple of bucks an hour, in a land where a U.S.-built car is about $30,000, is the ballpark.

There is a small but growing middle class, consisting of managerial types, as well as some of the wealthiest people on earth. These are the ones who buy cars, including the ubiquitous Volkswagen Beetle, still the mainstay of Mexican transportation.

It's not often that an international policy debate comes quite so close to home, but auto manufacturing and Mexico are linked closely today, and the debate over the North American Free Trade Agreement will, in fact, have an impact on the local industrial parks.

Oddly, the debate has centered on the loss of jobs, something that has been building for a couple of decades, since the Mexican government offers not only cheap labor, but numerous tax and financing incentives to any plant willing to relocate. What is bizarre is that on the surface, NAFTA is the first serious attempt to open the Mexican border to U.S. made goods, services and investment.

As it turns out, the Mexicans are hungry for a telephone system that works. Exactly why this is a threat to the U.S. auto industry is something of a mystery - but organized labor has brought together some strange bedfellows to argue just that.

The actual terms of NAFTA may not, in fact, open Mexico to U.S. goods — and that's worth careful examination. It's tough to imagine any concession that makes it more attractive to build a plant down there than it already

After all, wages are cheap, trucking is expensive, utilities are virtually non-existent, the telephones don't work very well, and machine repair and supplies are several thousand miles away. Not to mention the bandits.

Mexico shouldn't be much of a threat to manufacturing in Michi-gan. Then again, if things get much worse around here, it might be in the near future.

emitting presumably dangerous levels of VLF or ELF electromagnetic radiation.

Craig said while there has been no concrete evidence to suggest ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation is harmful, there is a growing body of evidence that suggests there is a connection.

'When scientists measure populations, they have a fixed number of incidence of diseases and conditions like cancer and tumors. When you put ELF and VLF (electromagnetic radiation) into the loop, the numbers go up.' Further complicating the issue if the fact there are few standards for what is harmful, Craig said. In the United States there are no standards.

In Europe, where workplace health concerns have been an isspe longer, standards — generally referred to as MPR II - set by the Swedish National Board for Measurement and Testing have been generally accepted.

⁷ Many computer monitor manufacturers have accepted these standards, so when these companies advertise a low-emission monitor, they are stating its emmissions fall below 3.5 milligauss. There are hand-held testers. but these devices cannot meet the requirements of an MPR II standards test, Craig said.

MPR II standards requires the monitor be tested at three levels from a distance of 50 centimeters. Readings are taken in a circle around the monitor at 22 degree intervals.

All told, a MPR II standard test includes 101 readings, Craig said.

Origins

Craig said the idea for Magnagard Laboratories began when he and his partner, a computer engineer, were discussing the then-little-known issue of ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation over lunch in February 1992.

Craig, who has been involved in computer industry for almost 30 years, and his partner struck upon the idea that a mobile workstation that could test computer monitors could be an extremely useful tool and began developing such a workstation.

They brought Dr. Casper Sun, a noted radiation physicist at the Brookhaven Institute in New York, on board as director of the company. Then they contacted a Raising startup and operating capital was done primarily through nine stockholders, many of them friends and family members of the principle players, and including personal investments from company officers.

A third company officer, Steven Barkley, will join the company before the end of the year. Barkley, a marketing executive with IBM in Texas, is retiring to take on the marketing duties of Magnagard Laboratories.

Future looks positive

Magnagard Laboratories could really take off, said Eric George, a marketing director with Ergonomics Inc., a Pennsylvannia-based distributor of scientific measuring devices.

Growing concern about the issue could propel Magnagard into the forefront of monitor testing, said George. In addition to being an Ergonomics distributor, George has also spoken in forums on the subject of ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation and has contributed to study on the subject.

"Labs (that do testing) have been around for some time now, but the key to their success is the portability and flexibility (of their mobile workstation).

"I think they have an interest-ing idea," he said. "As long as they market themselves correctly, they can be very profitable.'

Granted, George said, there aren't many companies interested in testing computer monitors for emissions, but that number is growing.

When companies do decide to undertake testing, it is unlikely they will do it inhouse because the equipment is expensive and most would prefer an outside, candid appraisal of equipment. "And the employees may demand it (an outside tester).'

The federal government has already appropriated millions of dollars to conduct a multi-agency study headed up by the U.S. Department of Energy. That study will help in formulating policy on computer monitor emission standards, he said.

"This could very likely lead to some legislation," George said.

Customer focus as a goal escapes survey respondents

Is it genuinely improved service or just lip service?

Becoming more responsive to customer needs has become the goal for many companies, but a survey done by the Corporate Calling Center of Detroit seems to indicate that business is not mak ing a concerted effort in that area.

Large 10% Moderate 35.2%

"Michigan customers do not feel that their opinions have a significant impact on the quality of service provided by the businesses on which they rely," according to the CCC.

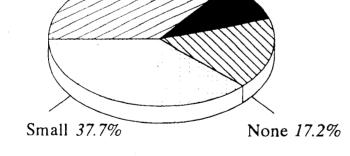

"Specifically, 17.2 percent of respondents said that their opinions have no impact, 37.7 percent said their opinions have only a small impact, and 35.2 percent said that their opinions have a moderate impact on improving customer service. Only 10 percent of respondents feel that their opinions have a large impact."

Survey respondents believed businesses choose not to solicit their opinions. Fourteen percent indicated that all or most of the businesses they patronize ask for feedback while 66 percent say only some or a few seek their opinions. More than 19 percent said that none of the businesses they patronize ask their opinions

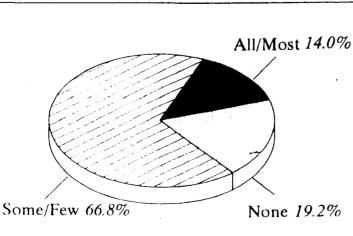

A cross-tabulation of the two questions showed that, of the customers who say that all or most of the businesses they frequent ask for their opinions, more than two thirds believe their opinions have a large or moderate impact on service quality.

Conversely, of those who said that none of the businesses they buy from ask for their opinions. less than one-third believe their opinions have large or moderate impact.

The CCC survey was based on interviews with 490 Michigan residents during June, using random digit dialing to select respondents. Margin of error is plus 3 percent.

"How much impact do you think your opinions have on the quality of customer service you receive from the businesses on which you rely?"

"How many of the businesses you frequent or buy from ask your opinion of their service?'

Customers do not feel that their opinions have a significant impact on the quality of service provided by the businesses on which they rely.

Career ideas can be found in caregiving

Thinking about a career in early childhood education? What are the options? Are there plenty of good positions available? What about salary range and decent benefits? Can you climb the ladder and advance in the field? Are there identifiable paths you can follow to get to a desired goal or position/job?

The field of early childhood education is a great one. Early childhood educators recognize that the future of our children rest on building good foundations and strong beginnings. An according to the National Association for the Education of Young Children, working with young children is an investment in the future.

Many educators can relate to the phrase, "put a little in, get a little out . . . put a lot in, get a lot out." Such is true when investing in children and promoting "whole child" development.

Children from birth through the age of eight are growing, changing and learning at a remarkably rapid rate. The teachers and parents who guide these young children are responsible for providing rich experiences that will influence them all their lives.

Teaching is a challenging responsibility, but the personal and professional rewards are many. The profession is also demanding, both intellectually and physically, because children are curious and active. Competent and loving child care contributes to the total development of children and the well-being of families.

Early childhood educators provide planned educational experiences for groups of young children and/or services to their families.

Children's mental, physical, emotional and social growth is stimulated through activities. designed to promote learning and the joy of life. As such, selecting appropriate activities for children is difficult and requires knowledge about how children learn and think as they develop.

Under the guidance of a loving and knowledgeable teacher, children become more competent in their use of language, learn to deal more effectively with others while understanding themselves, and develop their imagination, curiosity and concepts about the world through play and concrete experiences.

Early childhood educators recognize that caring for children in groups requires special expertise. They have skills in setting up a safe, healthy and stimulating environment, emphasizing good nutrition and providing opportunities for active play, quiet play and rest.

WINGS fights discrimination

women, through

WINĞŚ.

For two women, the Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas hearings were a wake-up call. The vicitims of sexual discrimination on the job, they formed an organization that offers support to women experiencing the same treatment.

By ETHEL SIMMONS STAFF WRITER

Two Oakland County women, MaryLouButcher of Bloomfield Hills and Susan Temere of Lake Orion, both say they have experienced sexual discrimination on the job.

A few years back, Butcher, then a journalist, filed and won a class-ac-tion suit against the Detroit News where she worked. She has gone on to develop a successful career as a businesswoman in the communications field. Temere, a security guard at General Motors in Pontiac, is still fighting against her employer of 18 years, whom she is suing.

Despite their own struggles, the two women joined forces last fall to help form support groups for metropolitan-Detroit women facing sexual discrimination and/or sexual harassmentintheworkplace. Theorganization is called WINGS, an acronym for Foundation of Grand Rapids," said Butcher, who is president of WINGS. Nokomis provided funding for the printing and distribution of brochures offered by WINGS enabling women to identify discrimination in the workplace and learn what steps to take to stop such discrimination.

Although WINGS encourages women to try alternative methods before considering a lawsuit, the brochures also outline how to to find an attorney and how to prepare for legal action.

Until now, there have been five WINGS support groups - in Detroit, Downriver (in Taylor), Howell, Lansing and Rockwood. Some Oakland County women have traveled to Detroit or Howell, the closest support groups, for meetings. But the WINGS board has just announced that an Oakland County support group will meet 7-8:30 p.m. every third Monday, beginning Sept. 20, at rassed and propositioned by hiring able by writing WINGS. P.O. Box Birmingham.

Information about WINGS is available by calling the group's hotline at 693-0840. Temere, who is executive director of WINGS, said women can call anytime to leave a message. For an immediate personal response, "I'm always there seven days a week mornings to talk to them.'

Recalling the start-up of WINGS, "The planning and organizing stages tooks several years. It predated Anita Hill," Butcher said. But with the Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas hearings, "It was like a wakeup call. It gave women the courage to come forward and say this was happening to me, and to take positive action. It taught women that these acts were illegal too," she said.

Although many employers are more enlightened today than in the past about sexual discrimination, Butcher pointed out, "There is still the problem of the 'glass ceiling,' keeping women at low level with the corporation."

WINGS hopes to establish support groups in all the main cities throughout Michigan.

Susan Temere, executive director of WINGS, said that at General Motors she has been sexually hashe has been denied 100 job openings. "It's living a nightmare that you don't feel you're ever going to get out of," she declared. "It has serious effects economically, the quality of my work.'

Referring to her start at GM, Temere said the corporation recruited her from Michigan State University, where she graduated from the law enforcement program with honors. She received a master's degree in organizational communication from Wayne State University.

Butcher, in talking about her legal battleagainst the Detroit News, said, "I initiated that lawsuit that became a class action. It took eight years to resolve. We figured we won. We settled it with a $330,000 settlement on behalfofaclassof90 women. Even more than a dollar amount, we felt we won on behalf of women. It forced the News to go out and hire women and give them good assignments in the newsroom." She said one of the women, hired as a result of this, later won a Pulitzer Prize.

Further information also is avail-

Observing children's behaviors is an important way in which to learn more about the young children in your care so you can guide them in their growth. A teacher's interactions with children, parents and colleagues should serve as a positive model of interpersonal relationships.

Most careers in early childhood education involve either working directly with children, or working with students, families or other adults in the profession.

Many names are used to describe programs for young children - nursery school, child care, Head Start, kindergarten, family day care, primary school, school-age day care. These programs are found in a variety of settings with many different funding arrangement.

Good programs, regardless of sponsorship, all have one goal - to provide for the needs of young children in a professional and loving manner. Job titles that reflect work with children include early childhood teacher, elementary teacher, family day care provider, kindergarten teacher or hospital child-life worker

Many careers in the field involve work with adults as well as, or instead of with young children. Job responsibilities vary greatly. Many professionals supply information or support families in parenting skills. Others supervise adults who work with, or for, young children.

Some prepare future teachers or seek more knowledge about how children grow and learn. Careers working with adults generally require additional professional education and/or previous experience in working with children. Job titles which indicate work primarily with adults include early childhood program director, social worker, nutritionist, child development researcher, licensing specialist, recreation planner and therapist.

So how do you prepare for a career in early childhood education?

Talk with your guidance counselor, if you're in school. Or volunteer to work with a child or small group of children. You can also take courses in areas such as child development, health, family living, sociology or psychology or enroll in a college or university program in early childhood education or child development.

Town Hall: Guest Dr. Julius Segal will discuss "Winning Life's Toughest Battles."

One commercial touted that "You're not getting older, you're getting better," and such can be said for two Town Hall programs. From the movie business to the fact and fiction surrounding the Lincoln years, Livonia Town Hall is serving up variety for its 30th season

The queen of the soaps, Washington's leading hostess and baseball's last 30-game winner will be among those sharing the podium for the Northville Town Hall series' 33rd season.

Livonia Town Hall kicks off Wednesday, Oct. 20, with film critic Susan Stark, with Dr. Julius Segal, aninternationally recognized authority on stress and coping, on Nov. 17, Lincoln historian Dr. Weldon Petz on Jan. 19 and piano virtuoso Peter Howard on March 16.

"This is a real landmark (year)," said Town Hall president Lois Gibbons. "Some of the gals who starteditare pleased to see that what the ystarted 30 yearsago is still around. The very first town hall was in Grosse Pointe and it closed its doors two years ago.'

A committee helped select the speakers for the Livonia Town Hall, looking at those available from different agencies that fit into group's budget. A nonprofit organization, proceeds from the annual series benefit for abused children and battered women.

I couldn't resist analyzing such Mrs. a flattering letter! Even an untrained eye can rec-8 ognize the fine spacing of today's handwriting. This carries a positive connotation and points up a spirit of orderliness.

She is well organized and conscientious. Her efficiency and determination make an excellent partnership. Her memory is retentive and she pays assidious attention to all details. She likes to work with good equipment.

This young woman is self-disciplined and aware of time. Being a punctual person she appreciates the trait in others. She is clearly able to see and act on the essentials.

In many areas this is an independent person. She can deal with new concepts and step aside from conventional ideas. The ability to stand alone and rely on herself and her inner convictions cannot be missed.

poise and control. She is not can also be seen here. Her home prone to show her feelings. Before committing herself emotionally she wishes to get all the facts. She refrains from impulsive actions and will usually consider how the situation or decision will affect her personally.

Culture and high intelligence are quickly discerned in this handwriting sample. Her thought processes are fluent. She expresses herself well both in words and ideas. Literary apti-tude is a strong possibility. Often her mind is working ahead, finding new and viable ways of handling tasks and solving problems.

Intuition is also pervasive in this handwriting. It can be an asset in assessing people and/or situations. She probably does well at solving puzzles and unraveling mysteries.

Seemingly, she has a good feeling for language and sound. Music will be important in her life. An innate sense of aesthetics and/or office would be interestingly arranged. Tastes would lean more toward the plain or original than the ornate.

Beauty often calls out to her. She can become delighted at the sight of nature's grandeur. A desire for recognition and love is inherent in all of us to a degree. This young woman appears to have quite a strong need for it at this time, especially from the opposite sex. Some early life deprivation is hinted at here.

Our writer is caring and helpful. Great empathy for others is seen. Her generosity, however, can be carefully calculated at times. There are some things to which she clings tenaciously.

Emotional confrontation is distasteful and she tries to avoid it wherever possible. She has a likable personality and wants to relate to others in a harmonious way. She also enjoys time to be alone to pursue her own varied in-

All together now: When Catherine Jablonski and daughter Shirley Sroka decided to visit relatives in August, it brought together five generations. The youngest was 15-month-old Gabrielle Courtney and her mother Stacey, 21, of Canton, as well as Courtney's mother, Lynn Cherundolo, 40, of Livonia. grandmother Sroka, 60, and great-grandmother Jablonski, 80, both of Naples, Fla.

Each state sets its own requirements for adults working with groups of young children or serving in other capacities in the field. Primary considerations are previous experience and/or training. Contac state education department or child care licensing division about qualifications for specific careers. Caregiving opportunities do exist for people who do not qualify for teacher certification. The nationally recognized, competency-based child development associate credential is available to caregivers who can demonstrate skills in working with young children. Many communities offer training opportunities for people applying for this credential.

Membership in a professional association, such as NAEYC with its journal, "Young Children," and national conference can help you stay informed about the latest developments in the field.

Although salaries vary in different areas of the country, people who work with young children usually earn relatively low salaries considering their responsibilities and for many their high level of education and training. The need for child care workers is projected to reflect the number of families in which all adults are employed. Similarly, many careers in early childhood education are related to trends in the national economy, government priorities for children and families and public demand for services.

Howard's creativity runs the gamut of the musical scale. Considered one of the premier arrangers and composers, he also is impressive on the keyboard, performing at Carngeie Hall, on radio and television. He also has worked with Julie Andrews, Lauren Bacall, Carol Channing, Ginger Roagers and Barbara Striesand, to name a few.

His visit to town hall will include stories about the world of show business, interspersed with his keyboard vituosity.

Gibbons believes the committee has come up with a good lineup for the 1993-94 season, but laments that the organization has difficulty attracting a younger crowd.

"We can't get a particular age group because women go to work when they're not with the kids," Gibbons said. "A product of Livonia Town Hall is not only that it fosters friendship in the community, but brings in people from other communities like Milford and West Bloomfield."

Season lecture tickets are $32. while patron tickets, which includes your name in the program, are $40. They are available by sending a check, payable to Livonia Town Hall, and stamped, selfaddressed envelope to Dee Dee Dittmar, 18420 Laurel, Livonia 48152. Individual lecture tickets cost $10 and are available at the door.

Luncheon tickets must be ordered separately and in advance by Oct. 12. They cost $40 for the season. Checks, also payable to Town Hall, and stamped, self-ad-dressed envelopes should be sent to Gerry Dahler, 32284 Allen, Livonia 48152.

For more information about the Livonia series, call Dahler at 425-4554.

Holy time

Jews celebrate start of New Year

This year, Jews all over the world, with a mixture of solemnity and festivity, are marking the beginning of the year 5754.

Based on a lunar calendar and on a tradition that year one was the year of Creation, the Jewish High Holy Days spans three weeks and started with with Selichot, the special services held the Saturday night (Sept. 11) preceding the New Year. The penitential prayers signal the approach of the High Holy Days, according to the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit.

Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are the two most sacred holy days in the Jewish faith and are referred to as the "High Holy Days." Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, begins the 10 Days of Penitence, which conclude with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

Following the 10 Days of Penitence, other holidays usher in the New Year. Sukkot is the Jewish Festival of Thanksgiving on the occasion of the final gathering of the harvest.

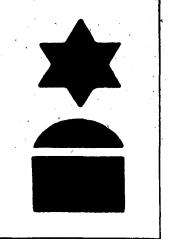

After the seventh day following the beginning of Sukkot, Shemini Atzeret, the Eighth Day of Assembly, is celebrated as the concluding festival of the season.

The next day is Simchat Torah, Rejoicing in the Torah (Scrolls containing the Pentateuch, the first five Books of the Bible). which officially begins the new cycle of Torah reading.

'Head of Year'

Rosh Hashanah literally means "Head of the Year" in Hebrew. It coincides each year with the first day of Tishri, the first month of the year on the Hebrew calendar. This year the 10 days began at sundown on Sept. 15.

During the 10 Days of Penitence, "mankind passes in judgment before the heavenly throne. The "Book of Life" is opened by God on Rosh Hashanah and closed on Yom Kippur, beginning at sundown on Friday, Sept. 24. In this book, tradition holds, it is inscribed who will live, who will die, who will be born and who will prosper or suffer during the coming year.

Jews observe a period of deep reflection, pondering their deeds and spiritual behavior over the past 12 months. On Yom Kippur. prayers are recited asking God to release persons from vows undertaken but not fulfilled.

In spite of the solemn nature of Rosh Hashanah observances, the New Year is a time for joy and warm sharing between families. A festive meal is held before sundown of the evening beginning the Holy Day. At the meal, it is customary to dip a piece of apple or bread into honey symbolizing hopes for a sweet New Year.

Relatives and friends are greeted with "L'Shana Tova Tikatevu" "May you be inscribed in the Book of Life for a good year."

One of the most important symbols of the Rosh Hashanah observance is the shofar, or ram's horn, which is sounded in synagogues as a call to worship on New Year and on each of the 10

Days of Penitence. In ancient improvised structure of boards times, the shofar was as instrument of communication used to reach the entire nation of Israel in a matter of moments with shofar calls from a row of mountain peaks.

During the services, Jews are called upon to repent for their misdeeds of the past year, to return to God in humility and to distinguish between the trivial and the important in life, so that the next 12 months may be richer in service to God and man.

Before the sun sets on the Eve of Atonement (eve of Yom Kippur), families gather for a festive meal when candles are lit and all ask forgiveness for the wrongs they have committed against one another and God. It begins 24 hours of prayer and fasting.

Fasting is the symbol of man's ability to conquer his physical appetites — a demonstration to God that the individual is able to deny the natural cravings for food and drink and will also try to control all of his selfish desires.

Traditional chant

Synagogue services on the Eve of Yom Kippur open with the traditional Kol Nidre chant led by the congregation's cantor. It is a prayer for absolution for the breaking of vows made to God. Prayers during the services are recited in terms of "we" and not "I" because collective responsibility is taken for the shortcomings of mankind.

Sukkot is the Festival of Tabernacles, which begins five days after Yom Kippur (the 15th day of Tishri on the Hebrew calendar). It will begin at sundown on Sept. 29 continue for seven days. It is a reminder of the celebration in ancient Israel when the crops had been gathered and the rainy season was approaching.

A booth or hut (sukkah) is erected near synagogues and at many homes. This is usually an with a roof of leaves and branches. The building of the sukkah is described in the Bible as an eternal reminder of the temporary dwellings used by the Israelites during their 40 years of wandering through the desert after captivity in Egypt.

Also marking the Festival of Thanksgiving are the citron, or esrog, related to the lemon, and the lulay, a palm branch tied with myrtle and willows. Both symbolize man's dependence on the soil and obligation to God who causes the earth to be bountiful.

Special services are held on the first two days of Sukkot and on the last day which is Hoshana Rabbah. Traditional blessings are recited and congregants march in a processional circle, bearing the palm branch and the citron.

Shemini Atzeret (beginning at sundown on Oct. 7) and Simchat Torah (beginning at sundown on Oct. 8), following Sukkot, are dedicated to the glorification of the Torah. Simchat Torah is the gayest day of the year, symbolizing the everlasting continuity of Judaism.

Memorial services to honor and remember the dead are held on Shemini Atzeret. On Simchat Torah, worshipers read from the Torah the last chapters of the Book of Deuteronomy and immediately afterwards the first chapters of Genesis. This ritual declares that the Torah is eternal, having no real beginning and no real end.

The evening service is elaborate with the Torah scrolls being carried in a processional through the congregation. Children carry banners, kiss the Torah scrolls and receive candies and other sweets. During the morning services, the ceremony is repeated.

Royal Rangers observe anniversary

The Tri-City Assembly of God Royal Rangers is ready for a new decade. A program for boys, Royal Rangers Outpost 5 will celebrate its 30th anniversary Friday, Oct. 1.

The program was started by the National Assemblies of God in 1963. It was designed by the late Johnny Barnes who served as national commander from its founding in 1962 to his death in 1989. Ken Hunt is the current national commander.

The program has more than 5,300 groups in the United States with more than 128,000 members involved weekly, and now is in 43 countries worldwide.

The Royal Rangers continue to minister to boys by reaching them with the gospel of Jesus Christ, teaching them practical steps to adulthood and spiritual truths, and keep ing them on the right path toward a responsible Christian life.

God will host the 7 p.m. celebration at the church's new Outreach Center at 39390 Michigan Ave., Wayne. A dinner and a special program, featuring slides and testimonials about the Royal Ranger Outpost 5 are planned. Key people will be recognized for their past contributions to the Outpost.

Outpost 5 has operated for 31 years; the first year was unchartered within the Michigan District. The group, however, was the first operating Royal Ranger Outpost in the State of Michigan, receiving their first charter in 1963.

Outpost 5 has kept up their charter most of the 30 years they have operated. The Rev. David Pace, the first senior commander, and Rev. E. W. Raimer were responsible for starting Outpost 5 at Wayne Assembly of God in Wayne. Pace also was the first Dep uty Michigan District Commander. Still a member of Tri-City Assembly of God. he is the retired District Home Missions Director for the Michigan District Assemblies of God. Very active in the Royal Ranger ministry, Pace will be the guest speaker at the 7 p.m. anniversary banquet.

Other leaders during the Outpost's early years were Gerald Bovia, Joe Docusen, Hubert Lovvorn, Fred Waits, Don Davis, Tony Music, Harold Parrott and Ray Clayton.

Outpost 5 was instrumental in establishing the Southeastern Section of the Michigan District and started the first District Training program. It also participated in the first District Pow-Wow at Fa-Ho-La Bible Camp at Grass Lake in 1963. The first Sectional Pow-Wow was held at Nankin Mills in Westland and was also attended by Outpost 5.

Outpost 5 to this day is one of the best organized, staffed and best attended Out-

In a recent discussion of the proposed agreement, I was told that NAFTA was "something about us and the Mexicans." Therein lies the clue as to what really matters regardless of the issue on the table. "Us and the Mexicans" betrays a mind set, the likes of which has influenced our approach to far too many of life's issues. "Us and the Mexicans" characterizes an Us-Them mentality that ignores the we reality of living on this planet.

Quite sometime ago John Naisbitt ("Megatrends") pointed out that the concept of a national economies is an illusion. The world is indeed too small for that. What happens on Wall Street is reflected in Tokyo, in Bonn and in London. What happens in those places influences what happens here. The job market in one place has an effect in another place, be it immediate or down the road. We are all members of a world & onomy

The restrictive mentality of us and them is not relegated to economic matters. Whenever we flex our military muscle, we hear talk of American lives, when in fact, the issue is one of human lives. If Somalia is teaching us nothing else, it certainly demonstrates that what transpires in one corner of the globe transcends to the other corners as well.

As long as we remain Americans and Mexicans, Arabs and Jews, blacks and whites, straights and gays, city dwellers and suburbanites, men and women, etc., etc., etc., there will always be the likelihood that a versus will find its way between us.

Even on an individual basis the reality holds. Marriages defined by me and her or me and him are never as life-giving as those in which the concern has moved to a we mentality. It is a long walk from me to we. It is perhaps an even longer walk from us and them to we. But the walk must begin. Be it between husband and wife, Mexican and American worker, city and suburban resident or whatever other grouping has been devised to keep us at one another instead of with one another, the walk to a center where we can discover the we is impera-

Such a walk always exacts a cost. Perhaps this is why we shy away from it. However, the energy required to maintain a we is lifegiving, while the energy required to maintain the edge of us over them is not only life draining, it is fraught with mistrust, the kind of which keeps an entire world on guard. No wonder we get tired! No wonder we learn to live in a protective mode!

In the long run, however, the cost of moving to we is never as exorbitant as the one we continue to pay when our mode of living is "Us and the Mexicans" or us and anybody else at all.

Henry Evans (Macaulay Culkin) is a boy with secrets in "The Good Son," opening Friday at suburban movie theaters.

On the surface a bright child who is loving to his parents, protective of his sister and loyal to his friends, Henry has a deadly sense of play, which would horrify those around him if they knew the thoughts he keeps hidden behind that angelic face.

But what an adult cannot - or will not — see is often visible to another child. When Mark Evans (Elijah Wood), Henry's cousin, comes to live with his relatives following the death of his mother, Mark quickly comes to learn that evil has many faces. But will anyone believe him?

Twentieth Centry Fox presents "The Good Son," a Joseph Ruben Film starring Macaulay Culkin and Elijah Wood. The film is directed by Joseph Ruben, pro-duced by Mary Anne Page and Joseph Ruben, and written by Ian McEwan.

"The Good Son" also stars Wendy Crewson, David Morse PREVIEW and Jacqueline Brookes. It is rated R (Restricted Under 18 requires accompanying parent or guardian).

"The movie is about two kids one good, one bad," said director Joseph Ruben, previously responsible for such hit thrillers as Sleeping With the Enemy" and "The Stepfather."

"But at its core, it's about evil, pure unexplainable evil. It's about evil in an unexpected place - inside a beautiful, charming 12-year-old boy. I think the story is almost primal in that it's saying there's not necessarily any cause for this evil. Despite having great parents, Henry, at his very core, is truly bad."

In "The Good Son," Mark knows what Henry is up to, but no one will listen because what he's acusing Henry of is impossible to believe.

Susan Evans (Wendy Crewson) portrays Henry's mother and the one person Mark views as a kindred spirit in the Evans house. But Susan silently carries a huge burden of guilt, believing the accidental drowning of her youngest child was her fault.

"The Good Son" also stars Daniel Hugh Kelly as Wallace Evans, Henry's father, who struggles to understand and protect his family from Mark's seemingly bizarre behavior.

David Morse portrays Jack Evans. Mark's father, who with great reluctance leaves his only son in the care of his brother's family shortly after the death of his wife.

"Elijah (Mark) has such as wonderful face and such a winning way about him," said director Joseph Ruben.

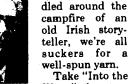

"I thought this movie was going to be a kind of nightmare, directing two 12-year-olds, but both Mack and Elijah are actors. They concentrate, they stay focused; they're not like kids in that respect."

Director Mike Newell pulls in the reins on overtly precious moments, something he was unable to do in his gooey and overrated "Enchanted April."

Sometimes, the shaggy horse story does get away from him, especially in relation to Papa Riley (Gabriel Byrne), who loves the kids but has been unable to do right by them since their mother died. We hear what a fearless man he once was but never feel we know him, even when he finds redemption at film's end.

"Into the West" pays tribute to the romance of tinkers, whose caravans still dot the Irish countryside. "We all have a bit of the traveler in us," Papa Riley an-nounces, "but we never find what we're looking for.'

The movie is about that endless search, the child-like faith, that something better lies just around the next bend. For the boys, the horse symbolizes the protective, free-spirited mother that died during Ossie's birth.

'Age of Innocence," now showing on two screens at the AMC Maple in Bloomfield Township, brings to life the elegance of fashionable New York society in the 1870s. The film is based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Edith Wharton.

As the film opens, Newland Archer (Daniel Day-Lewis) is engaged to May Welland (Winona Ryder) and is urging her to hurry the date of their wedding. Their match embodies the character of New York with its tyranny of family lineage and social standing.

Ellen Olenska (Michelle Pfeiffer), May's cousin, has just returned from Europe. Newland is captivated by Ellen. Her honest nature and mysterious authority of her beauty point up the constraints of his own society and inexperience of his fiancee. He finds a kindred soul in Ellen, and they fall passionately in love.

Now Newland must choose between May and the world he knows and Ellen the world he dreams of having.

The story takes place among the privileged of old New York, an insular, highly structured world concerned mainly with keeping up appearances and maintaining strict social order.

As Wharton, who grew up in this "privileged" society describes, it was "a hieroglyphic world where the real thing was never said, or done, or even thought.

To survive, symphony must stay multifaceted hallenges are as varied as the crescendos in a work by Beethoven as the Livonia Symphony strives to broaden its audience. Facing fewer government grants and more entertainment competition, the Livonia Symphony Society this year wisely adopted a multifaceted plan to diversify during this 20th anniversary season.

Spicing concerts with rousing selections of contemporary music is one tack the finely tuned community orchestra and volunteer-driven board of directors have taken. Another is variety: chamber concerts, children's concerts, holiday concerts, music under the stars, fund-raising events, even a bookstore performance.

Versatility is the keynote of the musicians whose concert fare includes classical, jazz and pops. The orchestra also has accompanied ballets, operas and chorales.

'Programming should not seem stale, repetitive or predictable," warns the symphony board in its five-year strategic plan.

But the board is well aware too much pop could scare off "quality musicians . . . attracted to symphonies because they perform a challenging repertoire in the traditional setting.'

Board checklist

From my perch as an arts booster, the board would do well to forge ahead in 1) seeking revenueproducing sponsors and an impressionistic audience for winter young artist competition, and 2) offering Symphony in the Schools programs to counter budget cuts that affect Livonia Public Schools elementary-level music. Such competition and programs are invaluable tools for attracting young talent and new concert goers.

The board also must invigorate its marketing approach to stem the national decline in philanthropic contributions to symphonies and extend its audience base to neighboring towns and young families.

Other pursuits should include improving grant applications, hosting more concert afterglows, tightening budget controls, increasing corporate support, creating an endowment fund, boosting season ticket sales, and sharing unsold tickets with seniors and other potential patrons. Subscription concerts typically draw 425 patrons to an auditorium seating 900.

The LSO has endured a triple financial whammy over the past five years in its dogged bid to maintain quality: more concerts, higher musician salaries and higher-than-expected fees for guest artists. Concerts cost upwards of $7,500, but even $25 to $50 donations mount up.

Whatever marketing strategies are decided, the ymphony can't stand pat.

French country fills Plymouth home

Mixing but not always matching — that's what this Looks for Living feature story and Creative Choices. our home furnishings supplement inside today's editions, are all about.

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER harlotte Kennedy likes Frank Lloyd Wright's philosophy: 'Invest wisely in beauty and it will follow you all the days of your life

That partly explains why she and husband, Karl, sold their new house in Plymouth three years ago to renovate a forgotten 1927 brick colonial located in a neighborhood of similar homes on the city's south side. "When we walked in the door, I knew this was the house. It could be beautiful," said Charlotte Kennedy, an interior designer whose forte is turning sow's ears into silk purses. 'The foyer, the French doors and the openness, it was all here. If a house has bones, that's all you need.

Well, bones and a husband like a mechanical contractor, Karl Kennedy. He owns Livonia-based Moore Furnace and, like Charlotte, gets the renovating bug every few years. This is their fourth such project in the Plymouth-Farmington area.

Says board president Ken Kelsey: "According to the American Symphony League, the American orchestra as we know it today has to market itself differently to pull in new people. It has to rid itself of that stuffy look on stage and make going to the symphony a more casual kind of thing.

We came up with the same conclusions as part of our strategic planning. We've got to market ourselves to a new generation of potential music lovers. And we can't take our time doing it.'

With no general admission ticket more than $12, the LSO offers an affordable way to bring younger people closer to the classics. And it's a godsend for amateur musicians with full-time jobs.

Music director and conductor Francesco DiBlasi founded Oakway Symphony in 1973 to serve parts of Wayne and Oakland counties. But lack of identity with one community hurt attendance so Oakway Symphony became the Livonia Symphony in 1988.

'Today, the orchestra's much, much better,' said DiBlasi, a former Detroit Symphony assistant first trumpet who has guest conducted symphonies from New York to San Diego as well as the St. Cecilia Orchestra of Rome after training at the renowned Julliard School in New York.

"I truly believe the people of Livonia want an orchestra here. Having an opportunity to hear good music helps make it a nice place to live. It certainly adds to culture within the city.

'One of the reasons we've survived." says Livonia Mayor Bob Bennett, a 15-year board member, 'is that we ultimately became identified with one community as opposed to our former status as

Fine art to accentuate Laurel Park Place

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN Special Writer

Watercolor, oil, acrylic, monotype, mixed media and pastel paintings will draw the spotlight as Laurel Park Place Mall presents the third annual Livonia Artists Club fine art exhibition and sale Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 25-26.

The Livonia mall is at Six Mile and Newburgh. Show hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Šaturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Eighteen of the club's more than 40 members will focus on subjects that include floral, still life, figurative, abstract and landscape.

"I'd like everybody to come and see the work. It's very good work and it's such a nice setting," said Marge Masek of Livonia, event co-chair with Lorraine Whitacre of Farmington Hills.

Masek, an artist for 24 years, will exhbit watercolors and painted ornaments in time for the holidays.

As an added attraction, four of the club's members from Livonia will demonstrate their individual medium

On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Eileen Bibby will show visitors a variety of techniques in watercolor. From 2-4:30 p.m., Marge Masek will use acrylics to paint glass ornaments.

On Sunday, watercolor demonstrations will be given noon to 2:30 p.m. by Audrey Harkins and 2:30-5 p.m. by Al Weber.

"They'll find out there's a lot of talented artists in the area. It's a good cross-section of artists," said Harkins, a club member exhibiting in the show.

Harkins, who has a lifelong love affair with watercolor, will exhibit florals and landscapes. Much of the inspiration for her floral paintings comes from her garden.

Oakway when, in a sense, we tried to represent much too large an area. I don't think we would've survived had we remained Oakway.

During DiBlasi's tenure, the orchestra's board of directors has grown from 20 to 45 mem-"We've got a wonderful bers. board and things are going quite well," DiBlasi said, "but we need more help from individual board members to make calls and work in the office. Conductor's keynotes DiBlasi's career keynotes include the 1971 Oakway Symphony concert when 200 high school singers from Birmingham, Southfield, Farmington and Livonia joined with the 50voice Kenneth Jewell Chorale to perform Verdi's Requiem. "It's something I'll always remember," DiBlasi said.

Flutist Alexander Zonjic's tantalizing performance with the LSO last year is another high note. "The audience just ate it up. He's such a fine musician," DiBlasi said.

The success of top winners in the winter young artists competition holds a special place in DiBlasi's heart.

Contestants come from diverse musical backgrounds: Oberlin, Grinnell, Curtis, Jul-Cleveland, Peabody, liard. Wayne State, MSU.

Past winners have gone on to the Chicago Symphony, New York Philharmonic, Kansas City Philharmonic and Chicago Lyric Opera Company as

Even the winners who didn't make it big in music landed. major positions within their chosen careers, DiBlasi said.

Bennett has seen the orchestra grow from 45 to 75 musicians and the season from three to seven major concerts. "I've also seen the orchestra mature in its ability to perform complicated pieces but inter-esting music," he said.

Classical music seems to en-joy a local following. "But so many of us have so many diversions in the way of entertainment and things we can do," Bennett said, "that this kind of music too often comes up on the short end.

"There's support out there, we're sure of that. We just have to continue to work hard at securing it.'

ries, a good camera bag becomes a necessity. A camera bag not only gives you adequete protection for all your photo equipment, but it makes it easy to locate a particular item in a hurry.

Camera bags come in two types soft bags and rigid cases. Soft bags are by far the most popular. They're more portable and therefore easier to move around and travel with. Rigid cases are more often used by the professional photographer who works mostly out of a studio.

The range and quality of camera bags on the market are immense. Here are some tips onwhat to look for:

To start with, keep in mind the wise saying, "You get what you pay for." So don't waste your time looking for a cheap bag. After all, you've probably invested wisely in a good camera system, so why house it in a flimsy bag?

Look for something with quality. Check out the material. It should be a durable nylon weave with good stitching. It should be fairly weatherproof and have adequate protection on the bottom. A rigid bottom protects your equipment if you should put your bag down sharply on a hard surface.

All sides along with the top should be padded and the strap also padded for comfort while carrying your bag.

Many bags today have adjustable partitions on the inside that attach by means of a Velcro fastener. This means you can compartmentalize each piece of equipment to assure a tight and secure fit. You can "personalize" your camera bag for you and your gear.

Don't buy a camera bag that will just exactly house your existing equipment. Plan for the future. Buy one that's a little larger to allow for that extra lens or second camera body you've been thinking about obtaining.

If you're a backpacker, check out some of the new bags that easily convert into backpacks. For comfort on a long hike, it's the only way to go.

One further hint: Always carry your camera bag with you when traveling by air. Never include it with your check-through luggage.

Holiday scenes: Besides exhibiting watercolors, Marge Masek will demonstrate painting on glass ornaments. She will have about 50 of the bulbs decorated for holiday dreaming.

ing any kind of flowers. I love flowers," said Harkins, who has a one-person show of florals running through the end of September at the Farmington Community Library in downtown Farmington.

"There's no messages in my paintings. I paint because I love to paint," said Harkins. 'I hope the viewer sees the beauty that I see in what I paint. I hope they feel that beauty.'

Harkins, with four solo exhibitions to her credit, has been juried into group shows pre-sented by the Michigan Watercolor Society, Farmington Artists Club, Visual Arts Associ-ation of Livonia and The Scarab Club in Detroit.

After 12 years of seriously painting with watercolors, Harkins continues to study the medium and attend workshops, like the weeklong one given every summer by Farmington Hills artist and gallery owner Edee Joppich at Lake Leelanau.

With watercolor, you have to let the color and the paper and the water work together," said the LAC past president. "Watercolor is one of the most thrilling, exciting and satisfying media to work in. It's a compulsion, an addiction.'

Weber concurs: "I get frustrated if I go very long without painting.'

Since his retirement from Ford Motor Co. as a clay modeler in 1982, watercolor has been Weber's paint of choice. "Oil was too slow for me," said the painter with an enthusiasm for capturing old cars, animals, horses, and historic buildings of England.

Design is a key element in "Grandmother's Quilt," painted from a live model in a creative workshop run by Christine Unwin in Farmington Hills. For background, Weber weaves a blue and red quilt.

"I invented the colors in the quilt to work off the colors in the model. In watercolor, you want to be accurate with the drawing and de-rive your excitement from the color," Weber said. "I want people to get involved with the excitement of the painting. I'd like to stir up a little more nostalgia about quilts.'

Weber studied industrial design at Art Center College of Design in Pasadena and also at Purdue and Indiana University. He has taken workshops with Robert Wilbert, Nita Engle, Bill Borden, Christopher Schink, Electra Stamelos and Frederich Wong, to name only a

Solo exhibitions by Weber have colored The Scarab Club, Southfield Cultural Center and Dearborn Chamber of Commerce. He will exhibit figure, floral and landscape at Laurel Park Place

Founded in 1960 by Olive Herrington, who was looking to network with other artists in the Livonia area, the club initially met in members' homes. When the Carl Sandburg Library opened, it enabled the LAC to accept a larger membership.

"We have a program each time that's very helpful to the artists," Masek said.

Electronic theater

Home in on a stylish entertainment center

BY HELEN DIANE VINCENT Special Writer

Home is where the heart is. It's also the place for great entertainment and information coming to us by way of the electronic industrv.

Americans already own a lot of electronic equipment. By this time, nearly everybody has one color TV (97 percent) and most have VCRs (up to 80 percent) and this doesn't include other equipment and personal computers.

It was inevitable the marriage between electronics and furniture would take place, especially prodded by growing interest in home theater.

Prospects of this happening has generated a lot of excitement at local home furnishings retail stores.

Scott Shuptrine is adding Bob Timberlake's Home Theater that accommodates up to a 60-inch television. Newton Furniture in Livonia and Novi is going with Berhardt's entertainment centers in various styles that hold up to 35-inch televisions. Classic Interiors in Livonia has expanded its popular Pennsylvania House line for a unit for 52-inch televisions.

Meanwhile, Ethan Allen already has introduced its Concept Six, designed to accommodate most 35-inch televisions, laser discs and surround sound components.

These video, audio and speaker cabinet units are being offered in a range of options and are designed to coordinate with the styles of major furniture lines. The American Impressions, Georgian Court and the Country French Collection.

Concept Six goes well beyond the typical armoir or bookshelf that had provided space for a household's TV and stereo.

Richard Howard, founder and driving force behind The Gramophone in Birmingham since 1976, has been among the first to sell and install total audio and video systems as well as intercoms, paging and alarm devices. For the past 10 years, he has pioneered home theater, using high-quality components for custom installations. Howard logically can be credited with contributing to the growing popularity of home theater except, in this instance, the units are inconspicuously builtin, allowing one to experience sight and sound, uncomplicated by furnishings.

For those who require portability and flexibility in their viewing and who enjoy TV images projected up to 100 inches (over eight feet), then the Sharp XV-12OZUA LCD (liquid crystal) projector is the answer. This compact video projector (which requires a VCR to use it) is available at Hawthorne Home Appliance & Electronics in Birmingham. Prices range from $1,900 to $7,000 for the maximum size.

Another version of projection television recently has been offered by Mitsubishi Electronics in the form of the VS-4571 Table Top Big Screen, which features a 45-inch screen, weighs only 130 pounds and fits on the same size shelf as a 27-inch, direct-view television. Legitimate claims are made that this new Table Top is the big screen design of the future because, among other reasons, it is ideal for spacesaving apartment dwellers yet provides high-quality images.

The new Kallista Collection from Thomasville includes a canopy bed with an optional leather backrest and a built-in rack for a small television hidden under the canopy, along with all the necessary wiring. For those who like viewing TV in bed, this Thomasville item can be found at Classic Interiors in Livonia among other select retailers.

The only thing new about having a television in the kitchen is that it's become part of an overall media and communications center and can be built to custom specifications. The Madison Design Group in the Michigan Design Center in Troy, for example, Ethan Allen Concept Six _ unit accommodates a large-screen large-screen television with the sen sation of theater-quality sound. Components for the American² Impressions and Country French styles are $5,000; the Georgian Court style is " $5,300. At Ethan Allen, will adapt its Heritage kitchen cabinets to any size television, intercoms, radio and tape players. Siematic, also in MDC, is finding one out of four of its custom-built kitchens is being specified to include a personal computer.

Perhaps the last word about electronics and the home belongs to Mark Stockwell, a 1993 gradu ate of Cranbrook Educational Community in Bloomfield Hills. He created an entirely new way of viewing television, influenced by traditional Japanese interior design that defined space through minimal but strategic use of furnishings.

Stockwell's Media Blanket embedded with a LCD television screen, speakers and reading lights - is clearly intended for the viewer who wishes the ultimate cocooning experience as well. as an environment to be shared. with friends

The Media Blanket, through counterbalancing devices anchored to the floor, can be held in: an upright position or wrapped; around the viewer. The remote control is built into one of the small pillows offering back sup-: port.

Stockwell's Media Blanket was recently featured as Best in Student Design by the 39th annual design review of ID (International Design) magazine.

We'll have to wait and see whether the built-ins, structural furnishings or wrap-around blanket will be the wave of the future. For now, consumers seem to have plenty of options.

In just six months, they finished this restoration, which included new plumbing, upgraded electrical, central air, wet plaster repairs, two new bathrooms and a new kitchen. They hired a contractor to sand oak floors throughout the 2,400-square-foot house only because "it involves too much dust.'

Charlotte thoroughly redecorated in the French country style she has recently embraced and expertly placed colonial furnishings used in their previous houses.

The two also tended to the overgrown vard and removed a partially downed fence that blocked views of their pretty corner lot.

Even the couple's real estate agent (who had the house on the market for a year) was stunned when she toured the finished house last spring during the Plymouth Symphony League Home Tour, Charlotte said.

For starters, Karl gutted the neglected kitchen, which included an "ugly shower stall" and drop ceiling that concealed tell-tale signs of do-it-yourself plumbing: leaky pipes from the upstairs bath wrapped in plastic.

The couple replaced the kitchen's original metal cabinets with light oak and used hunter green counter tops with oak trim. Charlotte combined green check wall covering in the kitchen with burnt orange floral paper in the adjoining eating area. There, she has a rooster chandelier (once candle lit) over a white parson's table and four Chinese Chippendale chairs; seats are covered in casual gray and white check cotton.

'For some reason, the house needed lots of green, so I added it wherever I could," Charlotte said.

Since Charlotte disliked the location of the powder room (between the kitchen and family room), she searched for ways to tie the three areas together. For the half-bath, she selected pale pink Chantilly lace wallpaper and a double floral border.

She likes adding beautiful touches, like the gold-tone turnof-the-century faucet and antique gilt mirror that are visible from connecting rooms. Karl installed ceramic flooring for the first time in both baths.

Charlotte waited two years for the arrival of a colorful needlepoint rug with a fruit and vegetable motif designed by Nina Williams, editor of Country Living magazine. It fills the sunny family room and blends with colorful balloon valances and a sage green Chinese needlepoint rug in the adjoining living room.

Throughout, the designer blends styles, such as a favorite Oriental tea table in glossy black and brass with a Shaker-style pie chest. Other collectibles include a dove base lamp with a dark green paper shade, vintage perfume bottles, antique pitchers and P. Buckley Moss prints collected before the artist was well known.

"Mixing makes a room interesting. I used to be very country Now I love the French look. It's more sophisticated, but all beautiful things you enjoy living with blend together," Charlotte said.

Around the living room fireplace, the couple chose handpainted Italian tiles in white and bottle green with a vegetable motif. The room also includes a pair rose slipcovered chairs, an over-stuffed floral print chair (bought half-price at a warehouse sale) and a pair of twig chairs from Harbor Springs. The family will soon select birds for a newly acquired French-style bird cage.

The dining room tiger maple table is one of Charlotte's early finds. Matching chairs were recently covered with gaily colored floral slipcovers. For floor covering, Charlotte's sister painted a canvas cloth with a floral border and Monet wash in the center.

By far, a favorite part of the house is the grand fover. Northville artist Julie Albanese painstakingly applied a faux marble finish to the hard wood in rose tones with a bottle green border. Visitors often examine it on hands and knees to make sure it's not the real McCoy, Charlotte said. French doors open to the living area.

Upstairs, the decorator applied six-color stenciling in the master bedroom, which includes light pine furniture and heirloom linens. Charlotte used youthful Victorian paper in daughter Lindsay's room; matching pink and green canopies cover the windows. Lindsay's own framed artwork decorates the room.

The couple often picks up antique fixtures and linens at a Saline market and while vacationing around the state. Charlotte has a garage full of antique windows and doors that she plans to use some day.

The decorator also shops furniture clearance sales. She found a large reproduction Victorian fixture for the second floor at Builder's Square.

Though the Kennedy's are considering another renovation or new construction, Charlotte clearly favors this project: "I love the house. I love what's going on in every room.'

Register for OU writers seminar

One of the most prestigious writers conferences in the nation will take place Friday-Saturday, Oct. 15-16, at Oakland University in Rochester Hills.

The annual writers' conference, co-sponsored by Detroit Women Writers and OU, will celebrate its 32nd year. It will offer an array of subjects for the novice and aspiring writer as well as the experienced writer. A detailed brochure describing all facets of the event is available by calling OU at 370-3120.

Registration is open. Early registration is encouraged to guarantee personal choices of workshops offered. The conference will take place in the Oakland Center on campus.

Friday, Oct. 15, hands on writing workshops in such subjects as fiction, non-fiction, screenplays, mysteries, short stories and writing for children and teens are on the agenda. Participants will have an opportunity to read their work and receive critiques from professional writers/workshop leaders.

An afternoon session on individual manuscript critiques is also offered, where professional writers read the manuscripts and prepare a written critique. Poets are offered a special workshop where they submit poetry for critiquing.

All three sessions will take place 1-5 p.m. in the Oakland Center. Deadline for manuscript submission is Friday, Oct. 1.

Saturday, Oct. 16, the conference begins 8:30 a.m. with registration, followed by a day packed with learning oppportunities. Five sessions are offered with eight separate workshops in each session, addressing interests in every genre.

The Agent's Role, Mystery Writing, Investigative Reporting, Writing a Column, Plotting, Playwriting and Writing a Romance Novel are subjects included along with Writing for Children, Poetry Writing, Marketing Your Fiction, Historical Romance and Selling to Magazines. These are just a few of the 40 workshops offered on the Saturday schedule.

Keynote speaker at the Saturday luncheon is accomplished author Tom Kakonis. His talk, "Writing As a Career: Chasing Your Dreams, Assessing the Costs," will provide food for thought to the audience of writers.

The popular and successful author will focus largely on the "costs" of writing as a career, a sober but not discouraging look at some of the significant factors involved in a writing career. Most of the information Kakonis will present will be taken from his own experience, much of it anecdotal.

In addition to the keynoter, a number of prominent editors/agents will be at the conference to share their expertise, including Zebra senior editor Tracy Bernstein, Bantam Books editor Linda Gross, Atheneum Books for Children senior editor Marcia Marshall, editor Barbara Norville and New York agent William Thompson, Numerous published writers will be present to head various workshops, sharing their tried and true experiences as authors.

Sharpen your artistic talents via class study

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN Special Writer

Drawing, oil painting and photography need not remain unattainable skills. As September's school bells ring, resolve to draw on your inner talents. Learn or hone an art or craft.

Classes in media ranging from the fine art of painting to crafts like counted cross stitch are beginning throughout Observerland the next few weeks.

With the holidays around the corner, why not make a quilt for a special family member or friend? Along with weekly classes offered by area arts organizations, studios, stores, high school/college continuing education programs, parks and recreation departments and art clubs, workshops allow students to try their Joppich of Farmington Hills. Her "Creative Approach to Watercolor" is a popular class for not only instruction but demonstrations in innovative techniques, color and composition, and critiques. The learn about different media and seven-week session is geared to serious beginners as well as advanced painters.

Other popular VAAL classes are "Still Life in Watercolor" with Ann Loveland and V. Janus Benda's use of watermedia and col-lage to "Free Up With Abstracts."

Workshops running one to three days offer students the opportunity to experiment or specialize in several areas, including hand at something new with a "Design, Design and More De-minimum of expenses. Visual Arts Association of "The Night Scene" with Marge Livonia offers a range of classes Chellstorp and, just in time for by professional artists like Edee the holidays, "Making Your Own Greeting Cards" with Benda and "Paint Glass Ornaments" with Marge Masek.

"VAAL offers a variety of classes amd workshops so students techniques. They seem to enjoy it, too," Masek said.

The Livonia painter will demonstrate at the one-day workshop focusing on use of acrylic to paint barn scenes, sleighs and horses, toy shops and fireplaces on the glass ornaments.

"I'll give them tips on how to do them," said Masek, who has painted 24 years. "Practically anybody can do them.'

This fall finds Harkins returning to Loveland's and Vogelheim's classes.

"Even though I've taken them before, you always learn something new. I think learning is a lifelong experience," Harkins said

D & M Art Studio in Plymouth offers an array of classes ranging from preschool art to cartooning for teens and oil painting for sen-ior citizens. Locations include the art studio, Plymouth Cultural Center, Canton Parks and Recreation and the Westland Bailey

Free-lance artist Pam Grossman teaches drawing classes to students from age 16 to senior citizens at D & M and the Plymouth Cultural Center. Grossman, who has taught for 10 years, will lead her students from pencil to other drawing-based media such as colored pencil, pen and ink, scratch board, pastel and watercolor.

For the first time, Madonna University in conjunction with Academy Neon in Taylor, will offer courses in glassworking, including "Introduction to Stained Glass," "Lampworking I" and "Introduction to Neon" along with "Airbrushing."

All classes are taught at Academy Neon by appointment. Madonna University also offers "Mödern Art: Late 19th Century

Well-lit kitchen serves 2 masters

Reading recipes and searching cabinets for beans and beaters are a few kitchen tasks made easier when illuminated properly. But your ability to see well as you work isn't the only benefit: Careful design and decorating decisions profit under the glow of good lighting as well. The appearance of colors and surfaces remains vivid, and your kitchen's cheerful countenance doesn't dis* appear just because the sun outside does.

With those incentives in mind, follow Country Kitchen Ideas magazine guidelines to create a sound kitchen lighting plan. You'll learn to successfully blend the three types of illumination: general or ambient lighting, task highting and mood or accent lighting. Here are some tips that will benefit you during your kitchen's use and when you go to sell.

Wour first challenge is to place fixtures that cast general or ambient illumination around the room. The number and location of fixtures depends on the size and layout of your kitchen. Ceilingmounted and recessed fixtures make good choices. In a mediumsize kitchen (under 120 square feet), you could center one ceilingmounted fixture (two or more for larger kitchens) and add recessed spotlights around the perimeter of the space.

When selecting a ceilingmounted light, look for models that hang flush with or very close cast light through the sides of a translucent shade, not just downward.

For recessed downlights, use care in positioning them near cabinetry. "Choose downlights with a widespread beam," says Mi-chael Janicek, an architectural lighting designer from Washing-ton, D.C.

Dr. Mary Pickett, who teaches interior and lighting design to Iowa State University students. points out another plus of perimeter downlighting — especially in smaller kitchen quarters: "I love lighting around the perimeter of a space because it can psychologically push that space back and make it look larger," she said.

To place task lighting, consider what chores and activities you and your family perform in the kitchen - and where. Then, make sure each work area has its own bright, directed light source.

Every countertop needs light over it. under-cabinet lighting works well for counters with cabinets above. When selecting under-cabinet lighting, make sure the manufacturer lists this application as suitable for the fixture you select. Place shallow undercabinet fixtures, strips of lowvoltage mini lights, or fluorescent channels as close to the front edge of cabinets as possible. Run the lengths of light into corners to eliminate shadows.

So it's not a head-bumper, buy a fixture that's at least 6 inches narrower than the table. Augment this central light source with recessed fixtures. Your buffet or sideboard could benefit from a few well-placed recessed downlights.

> nets above, install a long wallmounted fixture about 2 feet above the counter. Choose a shielded model that casts light downward and across the work surface.

Enlightened geography. Evenly space directional track-light fixtures; a group of pendants that shed light downward; or adjustable recessed spotlights.

Station brighteners. Your sink and range require their own light source, too. Over each work station, center two 75-watt reflector flood track lights. You can also use two recessed downlights spaced about 18 inches apart.

Now comes the more artful side to kitchen illumination, called accent or mood lighting. Several approaches and a choice of fixtures let you direct intense beams of light on a prized collectible, a special surface material or a notable architectural feature.

Put accent fixtures above and inside cabinets. Even the cabinet toe space can twinkle with tiny lights. Or, simply shut off ceiling fixtures and let your under-cabinet lights cast a moody glow.

Site condos provide greater flexibility

inium over complying with the Plat Act? Generally

advantages

a site condom-

doing a site MEISNER condominium is quicker and

the ability to establish common elements.

the time required to obtain approval of a plat is longer, and there is extensive review by state agencies, whereas in a condominium, it is merely the recording of the documents with the Register of Deeds. The exception is the Departament of Health when public water and sewer are not available.

the avoidance of some public scrutiny that is part of the plat approval under the Subdivision Control Act.

site condominiums are easier to expand, contract or make other modifications to, whereas the amendment of a plat requires 100 percent approval of all lot owners or a circuit court order. A condominium developer needs no permission of the coowners if the master deed has been properly drafted to amend the change.

There is greater flexibility, particularly with respect to commercial and industrial applications such as less stringent setback, open spaces or other local requirements.

■ A condominium facilitates cluster development for residential applications.

General common and limited common elements can be designated and regulated in ways that would be impossible under the Subdivision Control Act.

Flexibility to amend and expand a site condominium makes financing easier; you need only to finance a small portion at a time, for example.

How interested are you in selling your home?

Interested enough to spend a few moments and discover the best place to advertise the fact that your home is for sale?

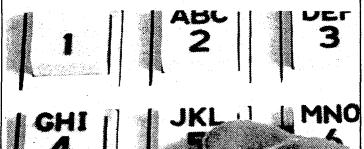

Good. We knew you were intelligent. In fact, more than 40% of our readers have college degrees or better.*

And if knowlege is power, let's look at a few powerful facts: this newspaper, the one you're reading right now, reaches some of the most affluent households in Wayne and Oakland counties: FACT: When you advertise with us you will reach 9 out of 10 adults in the Observer & Eccentric market area who have read weekly classified advertising.*

FACT: 91% of the adults in our market area who had read classified advertising in the past seven days had read it in the Observer & Eccentric*. By the way; did you know that all those little ads in the back of this newspaper the ones placed by people like you—are published in all 12 newspapers? Therefore, when you advertise anything from a horn to a home, you will automatically reach this huge, interested reading audience.

What else can we say? We've had years of experience in publishing newspapers and are proud of our record for successfully putting home buyers in touch with home sellers.

Joe Gurka and Vlasta Siler, Bloomfield Township builders, specialize in large chateaus, villas and Tudors that carry seven-figure price tags. That's fairly unusual in and of itself. What's even rarer is that the husband-and-wife team always has a spec model in process.

Under construction for three years, the model contains five bedrooms with their own baths, a four-room master suite, nine fireplaces, a great room, family room/solarium, a library, music/reception room, formal dining room, billiards room, game room, media room, plus a pair of attached two-car garages.

It can all be yours for $2.9 million. 'The house is so unique, we offer so much value," said Siler, a design specialist. "It's a lot of money, but still a good deal for the person who buys it

'They're designed to look like they have been standing a long time and (still) have all the modern conveni-ences," she said. "We like to strive for permanency, stay around and be enjoyed for a long time, centuries.

Gurka tends to the construction details.

"I build so someone walks in and says, 'This is one of a kind. I've never seen anything like this,' " he said. "My second goal is preservation of arts and crafts, to bring European culture for those who can afford it here.

Fine touches — plaster, tile treatments, moldings and doors --- can be found throughout. Smooth-cut limestone blocks on the facade give the villa a stately appearance.

Originally from Czechoslovakia, Gurka and Siler have developed an appreciation for and specialty in large, baronial French and Britishstyle mansions. They've finished about a dozen since moving to Michigan from California eight years ago. The least expensive sold for $1.4 million. Several other spec houses sold fairly quickly at completion, Gurka said. 'Houses don't sell during construction. People want to see.

Potential buyers who qualify financially and who might be interested in that lifestyle somehow seem to gravitate to them by word of mouth, Gurka said.

"We build them and they (buyers) come along. We don't market. A corporate owner can afford it, maybe a bank president, famous sports personality, doctors.

Neither Gurka nor Siler believe they go out on a limb when they build

GRAND OPENING!

AP - Sophisticated video equipment available is capable of bringing theater-like quality into a consumer's home. But no aspect of setting up a home theater is more misunderstood than the sound portion of the performance.

While surround-sound has the power to produce a theater-like environment, it is often defeated by the user, according to Video Magazine.

First of all, the speakers don't have to cost a lot of money. Their location is what's most important. While the performance of the highestpriced speakers can be ruined by improper location, a moderately-priced group of speakers placed properly can produce excellent sound.

For example, the voice of someone speaking in the center of the screen will be carried by the center channel. Something happening to the left, will be handled by the left speaker, etc.

Location of the speakers carrying the rear channel is where the problems start. The rear speakers should not be located directly behind the listener and pointed directly at the listener.

The job of the rear speakers in a surroundsound system is to produce broad dispersion of sound. Ideally, the sound carried by rear speakers should seem to come from all directions, but no single direction. Speakers placed behind or directly to the side of the listener and pointed directly at the listener will produce sound that seems to come from these locations -- and these are not sound moves.

Instead, the speakers carrying the rear channel can be mounted high on the side walls, and aimed at the back wall. Or they can be placed a bit lower on the side walls and aimed at the ceiling. Or they can be positioned high on the back wall and aimed at the side walls.

such large, expensive housis on speculation.

"We trust our judgment," he said. "From design and culture, we believe exactly what a client should want. We haven't missed yet."

"There are people who cannot visualize what they want," Siler added. "The whole process is very painful. There's no visualization. These people are happy to walk into a home that's glamorous, ready to move in. They don't have to go through a brain exercise to design."

Gurka said he's seen many arguments among family members who can't agree on exactly what they want in a luxury house.

"Better to walk in, both will love it," he said of building to his specs. "They'll say, "This is it. 'Let's move in.'"

Gurka said he knew for years that this model probably would be used as a fund-raising showcase for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. While he's pleased to show off his work, Gurka maintains that it does nothing to secure a buyer.

"I'm opening the door and revealing all my secrets," he said. "Thirty thousand people come by . . . and none is my customer."

Gurka and Siler found the acreage for Villa Baronna after conceiving of its design. A smaller house was demolished on the site before the villa arose.

It's difficult to get bank financing for spec jobs, Gurka said. "I cannot approach them at the beginning," he said. "We have to get at least under the roof, then they are willing to listen and supply some short-term financing." Typically, Gurka said he and Typically, Gurka said he and partners finance 60-65 percent of construction costs on speculative jobs.

Gurka declined to reveal construction costs or margins on their most recent effort. "Our profit is probably a tenth of what people think," he said.

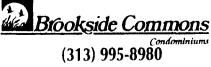

Villa Baronna, showcasing the efforts of 24 interior designers, will be open to the public Oct. 2-24. Proceeds will benefit the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council. Tickets, $10 in advance, $12 at the door, are available by phoning DSOH at 962-1000.

A quiet revolution

HELEN DIANE experiences VINCENT dema products and services reflecting their preferred style of living. It turns out these preferences themselves are diverse and changing

Many suburban retailers have kept pace with changes by expanding assortments and adding consumer-friendly seminars, in-store videos and interior design services. This also is prompted by an environment of relentless competition.

Hary Jan, president of Scott Shuptrine Jurniture stores in Bloomfield Hills Novi Troy and Grosse Pointe Farms has focused on lifestyle inerchandising as idea starters intended to show justomers some of the available possibilities

Both collections employ natural wood and painted finishes, allowing for crosscoordination.

Bernie Moray, of Gorman's Gallery of Fine Furniture in Southfield, who nas spearheaded the retailing of contemporary furniture for 28 years, has added Della Robbia of California to his distinguished roster of resources

Three of this new company upholstered lines --- Barga, Cassino and Trivoli --- make it cossible for Moray to bring close interpretations of wellknown contemporary classics to a larger public at lower prices one usually expects o pay for these styles. The Della Robbia lines also include an array of European apholstery patterns typically associated with very high-end furniture.

Choices: growing home furnishings trend

Key players in home no clear-cut trends any ionger. Consumers are buying all kinds of styles and colors. Yet everyone we talked to spoke of certair significant elements influencing merchandising decisions. Here's a quick review of major directions consumers should see in suburban stores or through their favorite decorators.

EXPANDING COUNTRY

The already popular country furnishings are moving into new territory after conquering the Southwest and Northeast the Florida Keys. See the "Little Palm Island" collection by Thomasville. For Scandinavian country, look to Drexel-Heritage's European themes.

E GLOBAL BAZAAR Credit Hudson's for recognizing growing international influence on the home. Joe. Kaplan, Home Trend director. says. "A global bazaar of patterns inspired by African, South American, Native American, Mexican and Eastern European cultures will be highlighted in Hudson stores.

The nationally renowned Mike Bell has undoubtedly sparked an interest in Anglo-Indian furniture with his successful Raj Collection and Brighton Group. Pearson and John Widdicomb have contrasting introductions with same themes. Milling Road takes still a different tack with the West Indies Collection. Expect to see a lot more.

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN

A new spirit infuses contemporary derived from the 1980s postmodernism in France and . Italy. For the 1990s, it brings us a sensuousness in Thayer Coogin's new group, "Light Wave," and dramatic elegance in Carson's "Infinity Collection." Europe is still influential, but contemporary is now a global movement.

Thanks to Zeising Associates in the Michigan Design Center in Troy and Scott Shuptrine, which help showcase student work from the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, talent such as Paul Martin is recognized. His firstplace submission is being considered for Swaim's production

PURPLE POWER

A local company, Mercury

Paint, is finding upsurge in use of purple as well as brighter colors for interiors. Gold is making a comeback and so is a brown red-orange we used to call rust. Marilyn White of PPG Industries calls it russet.

Two types of greens prevail: the khaki type that Gary Van notes in casual furnishings and variations on hunter noted by Joel Kaplan, who sees greens as the color of the '90s. But he's also watching for a "strong return to blues and reds that are more browncast.

Lots of pink is in the latest mansion that Mark Morganroth of Sherwood Studios in West Bloomfield has done for a local luminary.

Watch for furniture styles that go well beyond the requirements of comfort or casualness. It involves unpressed slipcovers, unmatched colors. patterns and uncoordinated styles. All of this coexists with ultra-refined opulence, also sought out by certain consumers

ELECTRONIC WIZARDRY

systems, more home offices with personal computers and fax machines will proliferate. MATERIALS THE MESSAGE

At no time have so many materials been brought into use: wicker, endless variety of wood finishes, glass in molten and hard-edged styles, metals of all kinds, mirror, ceramic, textiles of every description, including JAB (Stroheim and Romann in the Michigan Design Center) silver-printed silks, which stand in stark contrast to denim as a cover. whether painted or not.

Michael McCoy of Cbrook Educational Con.m.unity in Bloomfield Hills says it's part of an overall trend toward softening technology and the industrial object.

First-place winner of Ghiordes Knot Annual Student Design Competition, Sarah Murdoch, drapes an Oriental rug from the ceiling as if it were a textile. It looks terrific.

Expect to see more celebrity designers vying for the number-one position Ralph Lauren holds in the U.S. with his billion-dollar sales ore than ever, consumers are influencing home furnishings trends, no longer just reacting to what's on the showroom floor. Furniture makers, interior designers and store owners alike are poised for this change.

The suburban angle to this furnishings revolution provides the backdrop for Creative Choices, a special supplement to the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. The supplement, together with today's Creative Living section of the newspaper, spotlights folks on the leading edge of designer styles, including designers, retailers and homeowners. Our stories are as eclectic as the themes they explore. New attitudes indeed are prevailing on the home furnishings front.

-Bob Sklar

ABOUT THE COVER: O&E staff photographer Stephen Cantrell photographed our cover in lingham. The interior design for this ing room has evolved using heirlooms from the homeowner and furnishings from Gorman's Drexel-Heritage Galleries in Troy with the help of Becky Spier, ASID, one of Gorman's nine designers. The sofas and slipper chairs are Drexel-Heritage; the coffee table is Henredon; the lamps are by Remington; the draperies are by Designs Designs Limited; the blue and rose handblown vases on the mantle are from Carlton-James. Michigan Design Center; and the painting is by area artist by Eileen Aboulafia CREDITS: Bob Sklar, O&E assistant managing editor for special sections, supervised "Creative Choices." Helen Diane Vincent was the home furnishings writer and consultant. O&E Graphics Editor Randy Borst designed the cover. O&E sales representatives Michele Lyon and Joan Hines coordinated advertising. Major 'value' outlets help set retail pace

BY HELEN DIANE VINCENT Special Writer

ne of the facts of retail life is the presence of national chains and large licensed operations. For generations of many Americans, they've been the only assured place to shop for value

What happens in this arena,

Telephone

often aided by catalog shopping, influences the level of price competitiveness and style momentum felt throughout all of home furnishings.

Part of Sears' recent revamping of its retail empire has resulted in maintaining 809 stores and establishing 80 upscale Homelife furniture departments --- either freestanding or as in-store departments. Locally, there are six of these "superstores" and they're outsold by only one competitor, Art Van.

As part of an overall merchandise policy, Sears increased assortments and put more emphasis on authentic styling. Now one can shop for high-quality Queen Anne, Country French and Shaker dining and bedroom sets; upholstered pieces in the lodge style; and unmatched furniture intended to create an eclectic, personal look typically associated with specialty and department stores.

J.C. Penney, with 1,400 stores nationwide, initiated plans to attract a more discriminating consumer early in the 1970s. For Penney's, authenticity in design went hand-in-hand with colorcoordinating lines across the home furnishings spectrum.

Pennev's strength was to become number-one in the nation for soft goods such as bedding ensembles and drapery

When Kmart, a place where 50 percent of Americans shop every month in one of its 2,000 stores, decided to style up its home-furnishings soft goods. it did so in 1989 with the help of the entrepreneurial editor and lifestyle consultant Martha Stewart.

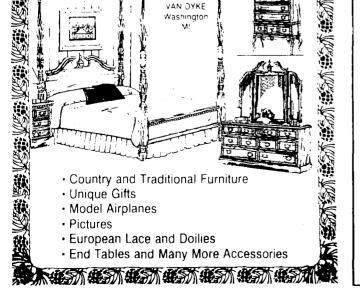

Stewart's patterns for bed, bath and tabletop, usually of clean-cut florals and coordinated plaids, are intended to harmonize with casual, contemporary or formal settings. Her lines share the limelight with large manufacturers such as J.P. Stevens, Cannon and Remy.

Through these efforts, Kmart shoppers have access to a select range of familiar patterns all coordinated with popularly accepted solid colors

Pulling the rug out from under plain beige

here's ample evidence Americans are tiring of plain beige carpeting. Many have had it on their floors for almost 20 years while style and color variations in textiles and wallcoverings have expanded and become commonly accepted.

Given the general acceptance of mixing patterns that goes along with the more comfortable attitude toward selfexpression with furnishings. the growing interest in floor patterning was inevitable.

Some local rug and carpet retailers, like Edgar Hagopian of Hagopian World of Rugs in Birmingham and Oak Park, have helped shape consumer preferences by introducing them to rugs once regarded as exotic and inaccessible: Turkish tribal and village rugs. Long before they were understood and bought for their charm and character, Hagopi an persisted in displaying folkloric gems acquired with the help of his daughter Susan on her buying trips to the Middle East and other locations.

Turkey. Each rug draws inspiration from ancient motifs but are playfully interpreted. These rugs bridge the gap between old and new and, like the older tribal rugs at Hagopian, are adaptable to almost any interior setting.

Nigosian's Oriental Rug Co.. in the same Birmingham neighborhood, is finding the thirty-something customer more interested in traditional Bijars, carved Chinese and kilims.

Kamran Karipour, owner of Woven Treasures and relatively new to these other estab lished retailers, specializes in high-quality Persian rugs. He works one-to-one with his clients from his Birmingham store.

Together, these four rug retailers have created an important destination point for serious shoppers of handmade Oriental rugs.

Variety

BY DEBBIE WALLIS LANDAU SPECIAL WRITER arents know their

P arents know their children are that most fickle of creatures. The adolescent son who hung NBA posters on his wall last week may be clearing space for stereo equipment tomorrow.

It's no wonder that in the juvenile to teen home furnishings market, eclectic as a decorating scheme has taken over from carefully contrived period bedrooms.

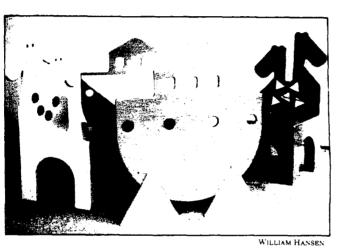

Not only is mix and match the trend, but increasing deference to the style of children is being seen by interior decorators and furniture sales personnel.

"I see a lot more negotiating between parent and child," said Donna Stevens, design director at Hudson's.

"I've also noticed our clients aren't afraid to mix materials. For example, iron has become more popular in bed styles. Whether painted or textured, it comes in various styles, such as a day bed or Palladian style."

Whether a family mixes it with laminate, wood or wicker, she said, the personality of the room comes more from the hobbies and style of the child — not one manufacturer.

"Memorabilia such as posters or dolls or other collectibles often define the tone." Stevens said. "The essentials in a growing child's room are a bed opreferably allowing a sleepover such as a trundle or bunk bed), a dësk and a storage unit.''

"One of the most popular pieces we're selling right now is the armoire," said Dave Kirk, sales representative for Baby 'N Kids Bedrooms (Nov) and Rochester Hills). "Most of the designs we sell include a couple of drawers, a hanger pole and shelves. The armoires by Morigeau and Berg sell phenomenally well and all start in the $500 range."

Morigeau offers birch pieces with stains in cherry, natural whitewashed or champagne. Or customers can choose a white gray or aimond paineed finish. Berg's armoires are featured in a white or light oak laminate.

One of the benefits of an armoire is that it can hide a multitude of sins — clutter or storage. It also can double as an entertainment center with a small television or stereo ensemble contained behind doors.

The second trend noted by Donna Stevens is that color has become adventurous and more available. Children's rooms today are not just pastels or primaries, but draw

Here's a glimpse of some of the home decorating products and services you'll see in the suburban marketplace this fall:

Browsers and glass aficionados alike will get a glimpse of Jean-Claude Lalique with her 1993 line of collectible art glass 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 21, in the Neiman Marcus gift gallery at The Somerset Collection, Troy. She'll sign purchases of

The Lalique tradition began with the artist's grandfather, Rene Lalique, a pioneer of the Art Nouveau movement.

If you like pattern mixing, consider Ralph Lauren's globally inspired fall offerings that mix with some of last season's tone-on-tone linens.

Comforters are $100 to $500; fabric starts at $35 per yard.

CONVERSATIONAL PIECES

Looking for a piece of furniture to add pizazz to a room?

Pulaski Furniture's "Country Reunion" group includes a black-lacquered gateleg table ($625) featuring a large handpainted country scene that the company calls "conversational art." It mixes with most decors and looks like an expensive collectible. The collection is available at Charles Furniture Warehouse in Royal Oak.

LIGHTEN UP Today's lighting customer

thenticity and craftsmanship," says Shirley Wald for Orchard Lighting Center, Farmington Hills. "We're done with the plastic look of the '90s. People want something lasting."

Popular lighting materials are iron, handcarved wood, alabaster, marble, lead crystal and Etruscan glass. Many iron lamps and chandeliers are finished in a three-paint process that adds texture. There's still demand for verdigris.

Some shades are fashioned from rawhide and craft paper that resembles a paper bag. For now, contemporary lighting takes a backseat to ec-

Decorating doesn't have to mean major investment. Donola Gilliam, a Southfieldbased visual coordinator, recycles what you already have.

Going room to room, she'll place furnishings, rearrange pillows, plants and accessories and come up with new wall arrangements. She moves furniture from one room to another and even harvests treasures from the attic.

Gilliam will create a new traffic pattern, not an alley, and add visual interest to rooms that need pizazz. She'll even meet the moving van and have the house arranged when you return from work.

She gives free consultations and charges $250 or more per room. Move-ins are $1,200 to $2,000. For information, call 443-2418.
