Schools may restore busing

The administration wants to restore busing for secondary schools, even if it jeopardizes chances of voters approving a millage rate increase on an upcoming ballot.

Busing could be restored for Wayne-Westland junior high and high school students, even if voters reject a proposed tax increase in a special Oct. 18 election, officials have confirmed.

Elementary art, music and gym classes also could be restored without the tax increase - if the district receives a boost in state aid of as much as $2.5 million, school officials said. In addition, some of the library clerks laid off in the district could be recalled, said Gary Dell, assistant to Superintendent Larry Thomas. Elementary libraries have been closed due to $14 million in budget cuts.

However, the rest of the widespread budget cuts would remain in effect. stalling such proposals as new textbook purchases and a five-year build-. ing-improvement plan.

School officials have received indications that state aid to Wayne-Westland could be boosted by as much as $2.5 million more than the district had earlier expected, Dell said.

But he warned that Gov. John Engler still hasn't signed the state aid bill and that the district can't count on the extra money until the governor's pen is put to paper.

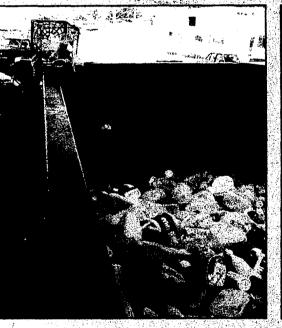

'We've been burned badly before," Dell said Tuesday.

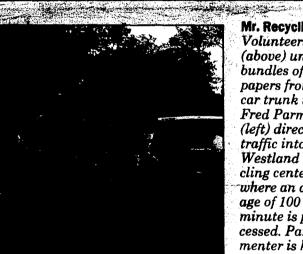

Busing and elementary expressive arts could be restored by late October if the additional state aid comes through - regardless of whether voters approve a one-year, 6-mill tax rate increase on Oct. 18, Dell confirmed. Six mills would represent a tax in-See BUSING, 2A

Stabbing victim decided to finish relationship

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER The day before he was allegedly stabbed to death by his girlfriend, Manuel "Joe" Bernal of Westland decided to end the relationship that had sparked disapproval from his doting mother, a prosecutor said Monday. Bernal, described in court as a

"mama's boy," heeded the advice of his mother and never intended to marry Kylleen Hargrave-Thomas, despite the 41-year-old girlfriend's claims of marriage plans, a prosecutor said.

"In the battle between the two, the mother won," assistant Wayne County prosecutor Michael Reynolds said during closing arguments in Har-grave-Thomas' trial for first-degree murder and arson.

The girlfriend faces a mandatory life prison sentence if convicted of killing Bernal, 42, in the bedroom of his 625 Lansdowne house and setting it on fire to cover up the crime.

The killing in Bernal's two-story house shocked neighbors in the upscale neighborhood northeast of Newburgh Road and Cherry Hill.

Family members of Bernal and Hargrave-Thomas watched Monday as Reynolds gave his closing arguments in Detroit Recorder's Court. A final statement by the defendant's attorney. Rene Cooper, has been delaved until Nov. 4, after which Judge Wendy Baxter will announce her verdict in the bench trial.

Reynolds pointed to conflicting statements from Hargrave-Thomas about what time she left Bernal's house on the night he was killed. The time has ranged from 10:30 p.m. to 1

"She tells different things to different people," Reynolds said

Bernal's body was found, stabbed twice in the chest, after a neighbor saw flames in the upstairs bedroom and phoned for help. The house was locked when firefighters arrived, and there were no signs of a break-in, Revnolds said.

The prosecutor accused Hargrave-Thomas of killing Bernal and leaving his house, only to return later that morning to set the fire in an attempt to cover up the crime.

Garage door opened

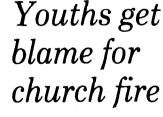

Reynolds pointed to testimony from witnesses who said the garage door of Bernal's otherwise tightly bolted house was seen open about 5:15 a.m. Other witnesses said the door, operated by a garage door opener, was closed an hour later.

"That would indicate very strongly that someone had been in and out of the house with a garage door opener, Reynolds said. The only two known openers belonged to Bernal and Hargrave-Thomas, he said.

Bernal had been stabbed twice in the chest with a knife from his kitchen. The girlfriend came into the house, got the knife, went upstairs to the bedroom and killed Bernal, who was either asleep or caught off guard, Reynolds said. She then set his bed on fire, the prosecutor said.

The only other scenario would be that a stranger somehow broke into the tightly shut house and didn't Juveniles are suspected of setting fire to a southern Westland church that received nearly $120,000 in damages when flames swept through the basement early Saturday, a fire official said.

The fire has closed the Open Door Baptist Church at 1410 Lillian — a 75-year-old church located in a residential neighborhood northwest of Merriman and Palmer, said assistant fire marshal Patrick Harder.

Fire officials have ruled that arson caused the blaze that destroyed much of the church basement and caused heavy smoke damage to the main floor. Harder confirmed Tuesday

City eliminates cable TV as a tool in mayoral election

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Claims that Mayor Robert Thomas rules Westland's cable station apparently haven't placed WLND/Channel 8 manager Diane Abbott's job in jeopardy.

Some city council members have accused Thomas of dominating the local government channel for political gain as he facescouncil president Charles Pickering in the Nov. 2 mayoral race

But the council, in a study session Monday, indicated that Abbott's contract will be extended for six months as the mayor and the council try to iron out their differences over cable programming.

The consensus among council members means that long-term decisions about renewing the $269,000-a-year contract with Abbott Cable Communications will be delayed until the heated mayoral race is over.

The council indicated Monday that it will soon vote to extend Abbott's contract through March 31.

Thomas has come under fire for appearing on numerous cable programs that some council members have described as self-promoting. Moreover, the mayor drew sharp criticism for refusing to let candidate debates be aired live during the mayoral primary.

Thomas has said he issued a set of guidelines to ensure fair treatment among candidates. Debates were taped and shown later.

"I was trying to take (cable) out of politics and keep her (Abbott) out of the middle of an election, the mayor said Monday, defending why he established cable guidelines.

The unilateral decision, however, upset council members such as Pickering, who believed a live debate would have been helpful to voters.

On Monday, some council members reiterated that they believed the council and the mayor's office should adopt a hands-off policy on cable and let Abbott do herjob. "I don't think that we (the council) should dictate to Diane how to run the cable station. I don't think the mayor should, either," council member Sandra Cicirelli said.

In a response, Thomas said, "I don't think I've dictated to her. I don't think I've ordered her around, and I don't think I've tried to run the (cable) department.'

Abbott indicated that she, too, did not interpret the mayor's cable guidelines as a heavy-handed attempt to rule WLND programming.

Some council members, particularly Pickering and Glenn Anderson, said Monday that they want to see more community-oriented programming and information about city services on the cable station.

Abbott confirmed that efforts are intensifying to expand programming, although most city officials agree that she already has improved the station during the last two years.

Council member Sharon Scott noted that most of the negative comments she hears about WLND come not from the public but from the council.

In a related discussion, local cable commission member Ed Turner raised concerns about recent statements made by Councilman Kenneth Mehl, who said during a prior council meeting that Federal Communications Commission regulations were being violated in Westland.

Mehl, who has criticized Thomas' use of Channel 8, did not attend Monday's study session.

"There have been no rules and regulations violated," Turner said, adding that the council should let viewers know.

But Pickering said it would be up to Mehl if he wants to correct his statement on Channel 8.

Anderson noted that charges of FCC violations "just came out of the blue, which is not unusual for that individual," referring to Mehl.

Anderson added that no information to substantiate the charges has been offered to the council.

Franklin band wins plaudits

The Franklin High School Marching Band, which includes students in the northern section of Westland, earned first place in Flight I competition Saturday at the Trenton Invitational.

In addition to the top honor, the band also captured four caption awards. Caption awards are won by bands with the highest scores in each category.

Franklin caption awards were: best winds; best percusison; best marching and maneuvering; and best color guard.

The band directed by Kris Jasin will play this weekend for the homecoming parade on Friday afternoon and the homecoming football game which starts 1 p.m. Saturday.

The next competition will be Sunday, Oct. 10, at the Flushing/Governor's Trophy Competition in Flint's Atwood Stadium.

Flights in this year's competition put Franklin in the same group as other large schools, regardless of the number of members in the band. The band has 67 musicians.

Reynolds also pointed out that Bernal had two scratches by his stab wounds that appeared to be made by a fingernail. Hargrave-Thomas has admitted she broke a fingernail, but made conflicting statements about how she broke it, the prosecutor said.

In one statement, she said she broke the nail while getting into her car, but she said on another occasion that she broke it while leaving her car and locking it, authorities have said.

School officials are well aware that restoring programs could hurt the Oct. 18 millage proposal. But Dell said the superintendent is dedicated to students and would not pass up an opportunity to bring back programs when possible.

Initial word of program restorations came, ironically, during a Westland City Council meeting Monday. During talks about whether the city should hire crossing guards for secondary schools, Police Chief Emery Price said he had received word that busing could be restored soon.

A telephone call to school officials on Tuesday confirmed that some programs could be restored, even without the tax increase that would generate $7 million in revenue.

Stingrays back in the swim revamped Stingrays swimming team, which includes Garden City youngsters, completed a successful week of open tryouts last week with new members added to the 75-member group.

The team is being reorganized for the new swimming season in the hiring of new head coach Jim

The Stingrays, sponsored by the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA, won many meets and had several members do well regionally last year. Its previous coach, Jim McNellis, left the Y earlier this vear.

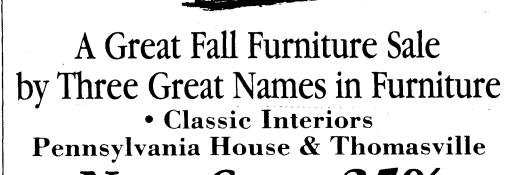

But Christine Cooper, the Y's new director of fitness programs, legal victory recently in a civil suit initiated by the Livonia school district over a nineyear-old land transfer.

City wins round in land swap battle

Mayor Robert Thomas said Circuit Court Judge Edward Thomas (no relation) ruled in the city's favor in a dispute with the school district. The district wanted to rescind a land swap because the soil of . city, asserting that the soil was the parcel it received from the contaminated. city was contaminated.

A school spokesman said Tuesday:

'To my knowledge, the district hasn't yet received the judge's order and made no decision regarding the possibility of an appeal," said Jay Young, district community relations director.

In the 1984 land exchange, the city received the former Monroe School property, east of Merriman and south of Joy, later developed by the city as a municipal park and named Corrado Park.

Judge Thomas granted the city's motion for a summary judgment and dismissed the suit. The motion was filed by city attorney Angelo Plakas and assistant city attorney C. Brian James. The two argued that the matter be resolved without a trial because the district's claims raised no material issues of fact or law which required a trial.

As a result of the judge's action, the land transfer will be left intact with the city allowed to proceed with Corrado Park improvements under a state DNR grant.

Man, car shot at by pellet gun

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Westland man apparently was grazed by a bullet or pellet when he stepped outside of his Middlebelt Road home Sunday evening.

The man was hit when he went outside to examine a window of his car, which apparently had been struck earlier - possibly by an object fired from the same weapon, police said.

The 45-year-old man had gone outside to look at the shattered rear window of his 1989 Mercury when his left shoulder was grazed by the pellet or bullet, believed to be from a pellet gun or a .22-caliber gun, said Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe.

No suspect was seen firing a weapon, and the victim told Westland police that he had "no idea whatsoever' why anyone would want to shoot at him or damage his car, Stobbe said Tuesday.

The man was not seriously injured, but under advice from police went to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne for treatment of the minor shoulder injury, Stobbe said.

The man was hit shortly before 7:30 p.m. Sunday when he stepped outside of his home on Middlebelt at Hanover, near Van Born Road in the city's southeast corner, Stobbe said.

The man went to check on his car after his girlfriend arrived at the home and told him the window was shattered, Stobbe said.

No bullets were found at the scène. Police said the man appar.' ently did not hear a shot, which leads police to suspect it was a pellet gun, Stobbe said.

Coast Guard boating classes to start in October

Fall weather doesn't mean that boat owners have to put their skills in dry dock. To make sure that they are kept up-to-date, a local Coast Guard Auxiliary group is renewing its twice-a-year program classes, to start Oct. 4 and continue Mondays through Dec.

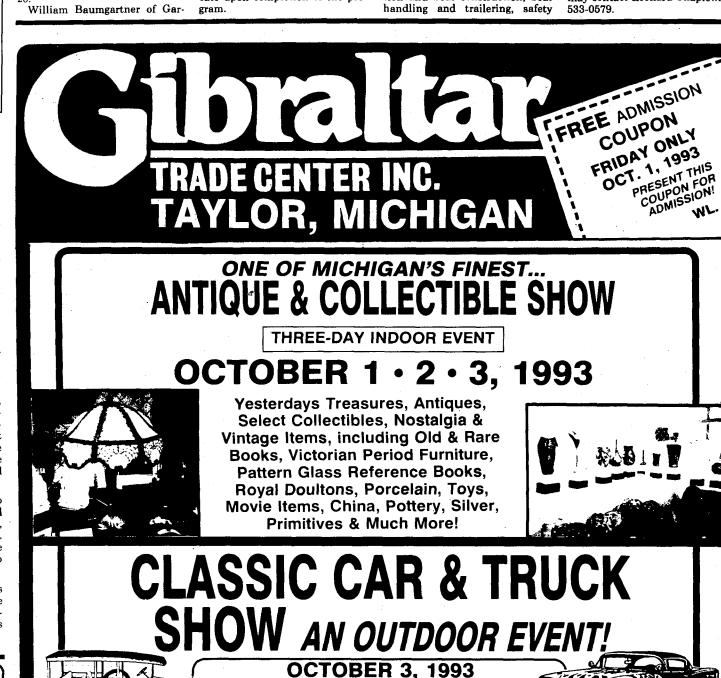

den City, spokesman for Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-15, said the program is good for beginning boaters as well as "old salts" who want to brush up on their skills.

Persons between 12 to 15 may earn their boating safety certificate upon completion of the proFee is $25 or $30 per family.

Classes will be held at 7 p.m. Mondays at the Livonia's VFW Post 174 Hall, on Grantland, north of Plymouth Road and just west of Inkster Road.

Class topics will be instroduction and boat construction, boat handling and trailering, safety and legal requirements, navigation rules, aids to navigation, piloting, weather, radio-telephone, marlinspike seamanship and sailaing.

Checks are to be made out to U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-15. Interested persons may contact Leonard Chapiewski, Judges are in place for First Citizen Award

Judges have been named for the annual Westland First Citizen community service award.

The person to be honored for outstanding volunteer service will be honored at the Westland Chamber of Commerce's monthly luncheon program on Tuesday, Nov. 9, at the Hellenic Cultural Center, on Joy east of Newburgh.

The award's co-sponsors, the chamber and the Westland Observer, are announcing that groups and individuals may submit nominations immediately. Deadline is 5 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 27.

Madeleine Schroeder, last year's First Citizen, will automatically serve on this fall's judging panel. Joining her will be Gwen Wesley of North Brothers Ford; David Ambrester of Cintas, and Mickey Grech of Mini Micro Consulting Services.

Since the First Citizen program was initiated in 1986 by the Westland Observer to honor a person for overall community service.

Since then, the award winners have represented a variety of fields including education, public safety, children, business and community service organizations.

Besides Schroeder, past winners were Joseph Benyo, Thomas Brown, Sam Corrado, Linda Pratt, Sharon Scott and Margaret Harlow.

To be nominated, persons must be involved in a volunteer leadership role with one or more organizations which have an impact on the community in general or a segment of the community or programs which help those persons, such as children, recreation, education, handicapped people or public safety.

There is no residency requirement or minimum age.

Following past tradition. Schroeder, last year's First Citizen, will serve on the four-member judging panel that will select the 1993 winner. The other three judges will be selected within the next month by the chamber and Observer.

Nominations may be mailed to the Westland Observer Editorial Department, First Citizen Award, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Persons using a fax machine should direct the nominations to Leonard Poger, 591-7279.

Nominations should include as much specific information on the nominee's impact on the community or a segment of the city's population.

Officials catch an earful at school finance meeting

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Teachers, administrators, trustees and students stoutly defended local public schools when a state House Democratic task force held a town hall meeting in Wavne.

They warned state Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, against expecting big money savings in any school reform proposal coming out of the State Capitol.

"It's not acceptable to fund education with fewer dollars," said Emmett Holmes, a Livonia resident representing the Michigan PTA Council. "The overall tax burden can't be reduced.'

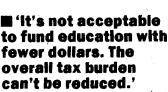

Eighteen of 20 speakers in Wayne Memorial High Monday evening directly represented school communities. Many lashed out against talk of a "voucher" plan, a constitutional amendment that would allow state aid to go to private and church-related schools.

Walter Warren, Westland member of the Taxpayers Union, gler and the bipartisan group of legislators who in July repealed the $6.3 billion of local property taxes that provide 65 percent of public school funding without having replacement taxes in place. Lawmakers have until Dec.

Democratic task force chair William Keith of Garden City schools, equitable funding, local control and job preparation - no vouchers or major tax cuts. The Wayne hearing was one of 17 held simultaneously across the state.

Bud Winters, Wayne-Westland board president and a former principal, deplored "bashing" of education. "How can public education be held responsible for all social ills — crime, violence, so cial diseases, etc.?"

'It's not education's fault that industry ignored quality in the 1970s," added Larry Thomas; Wayne-Westland superintendent. "Schools are not the cause of problems but are the place where they become evident."

Students hurt

Wayne Memorial High senior Kelly Chorbagian said that she already has seen evidence that schools are being short-changed when she had to pay $167 for marching band, had to pay $167 for cheerleading and had to drop orchestra after eight years. "When Childhood is a time of wonder. Parenthood is a time of wonder, too. Wondering if baby will look like mom or dad. Wondering when baby will say those first words. Wondering when baby will take that first step.

Let's take the wonder out of making it the first birthday.

Sudden Infant Death Syndrome-or SIDS-is responsible for nearly 40% of all deaths of infants in the U.S. between one month and one year of age. It's a solvable problem, but one that requires a great deal of understanding, support and medical research.

To learn more about SIDS—and ways you can help—call the SIDS Alliance at 1-800-221-SIDS or write to us at 10500 Little Patuxent Parkway, Suite 420, Columbia, Maryland 21044.

Ford employees put on auto show

The employees of the Ford transmission plant in Livonia recently banded together and held their own classic car show.

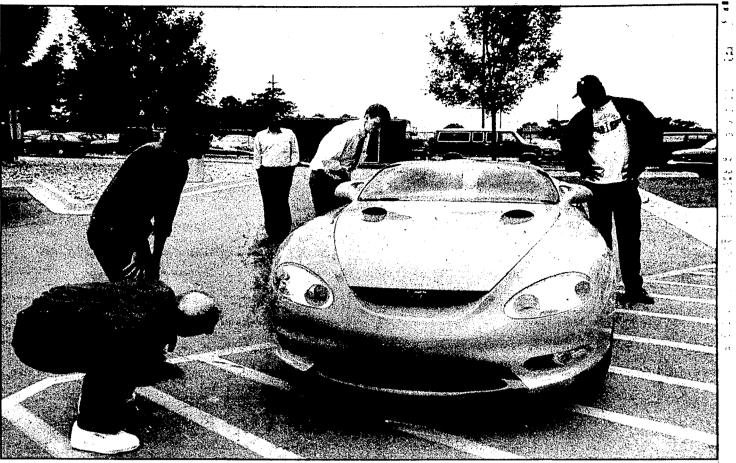

The rationale, said training specialist Jeff Ebersole, more or less went like this: "We're all gearheads here. Let's have a show.'

So they did. The only rule was that cars had to be Americanmade and built before 1980. Almost 50 employees produced 54 vehicles for the Sept. 16 show in the parking lot of the plant at Plymouth and Levan roads.

Owners and cars included Tom Greene's 1966 Shelby Mustang, Keith Wolf's 1993 Ford EcoStar Concept Car, Brian Moore's 1929 Ford Model A and 1965 Ford Mustang coupe, Darlene Ebersole's 1966 Ford Mustang coupe, Jeff Ebersole's 1975 Pontiac Firebird Trans Am, Mark Kovalsky's 1930 Ford Model A, Bill Sackett's 1972 Ford Mustang Sprint, Lou Zangara's 1967 Ford Mustang dragster, Doug Hoxie's 1966 Ford Mustang coupe, Roy Williams' 1956 Chevy Bel-Air, Cher Lindenmuth's 1973 Chevy Camaro Z-28, Fim Underwood's 1965 Chevy Corvette coupe, Nelson King's 1960 Chevy Corvette convertible, Ken Johnstone's 1973 Pontiac Firebird, Jennifer Schafer's 1972 Olds Cutlass, Dave Vander Roest's 1975 Pontiac Firebird Trans Am, Marlyn Stroven's 1989 Ferrari Testa Rosa (the only exdeption to the American-made rule), Gene Nelson's 1957 Ford Thunderbird convertible, Matt Lee's 1916 Overland, 1920 Model T, 1929 REO truck and 1929 fire truck, Frank Asadoorian's 1979 Buick LeSabre, Frank and Paul Kerby's 1963 Ford Galaxie 500, Carl Hady's 1965 Ford Mustang oupe, Al Olweean's 1947 Ford Club coupe, Jack Greer, Jr.'s 1957 Ford Thunderbird, Stephen Corps' 1984 Mercury Cougar Custom, Doug Pawlowski's 1969 Mercury Cougar XR-7 convertible. Darryle Levandowski's 1962 Ford Thunderbird two-door, hardtop, and Dale Burns' 1936 Ford Roadster.

Also Gary Selke's 1935 Ford truck, Mark Smith's 1971 Ford Torino, William Frazee's 1931 Ford Victoria, Dennis Kolodziej's 1964 Ford Fairlane Thunderbolt. David Veit's 1973 Chevy Corvette coupe, Bob Baumgartel's 1973 Pontiac Grandville convertible. Jim Olson's sand rail dragster, Andrea Cantea's 1973 Mercury Cougar XR-7, Kevin Stirling's 1929 Ford Model A coupe, Gary Rocus' 1950 Ford Crestliner, Ed Robertson's 1967 Chevy Camaro RS, Al Craig's 1978 Lincoln, Jeff Ely's 1968 Ford Mustang coupe, Bart DeVita's 1968 Cadillac limousine and 1968 Pontiac Firebird, Mike Zalewski's 1968 Chevy Camaro, Eric Reed's 1969 Ford Mustang, Ron Putala's 1940 Ford Deluxe, Greg Goran's 1969 Chevy Corvette convertible, Chris Davidson's 1968 Chevy Corvette coupe, and Stan Bizek's 1968 Ford Torino GT.

High court backs public interviews

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

School boards, college boards and city councils must continue to interview candidates for chief executive in public, in the wake of a major state Supreme Court decision.

The high court ruled the University of Michigan Board of Regents violated both the Open Meetings Act and Freedom of Information Act in 1987-88 when it hired James Duderstadt as president.

U-M's massive double defeat is significant because the state's oldest university was created by the constitution, not statute, and claims co-equal status with the governor.

"Presidential searches at the state's public universities must be conducted with due regard to the OMA's requirement of open meetings for all public body deliberations, decisions and interviews," said Justice Conrad Mallett Jr.'s majority opinion, which affirmed a Court of Appeals deci sion.

University spökesman Walter Harrison was preparing a statement that was unavailable at this newspaper's deadline. OMA says: "All meetings of a public body shall be open to the public and shall be held in a place available to the general public,' OMA allows a body to meet in closed session "To review the spe-cific contents of an application for employment or appointment to a public office if the candidate requests that the application remain confidential. However, all interviews by a public body for employment or appointment to a public office shall be held in an open meeting pursuant to this act.

Duderstadt was hired secretly, and regents afterwards staged an open interview on June 10, 1988, to comply with a circuit court or-

Justice Patricia Boyle's dissent said she would have held that OMA and FOIA do not compel release of as much information as the papers sought. She would have withheld the regents' destinations on travel expense forms.

Justices Dorothy Comstock Riley and Robert Griffin dissented, saying the regents are protect-ed "from the Legislature's oversight.

U-M's legal brief revealed the regents sought to beat OMA by giving different names to their activities as they cut the list from 250 to one:

They didn't "vote" and "deliberate" but used an informal process called "argle bargle."

They had no "applications" but looked at "nominations," 'recommendations," "resumes," "writings" and "speeches." ■ They didn't "interview" candidates but "visited" them.

OMA allows public bodies to review applications in closed session where the applicant requests confidentiality. U-M regents insisted candidates sign a typed form demanding confidentiality prior to any conversation.

Legal briefs also revealed that regent Neil Nielsen of Brighton admitted there were "interviews, not mere visitations; regent Nellie Varner recalled candidate rating sheets, which other regents denied existed; and that "a sense developed" that two candidates were outstanding when four regents met on May 24, 1988.

Regent Thomas Roach of Ann Arbor did not seek a third term in 1992, saving that the use of electronic communications to avoid the OMA consumed "as much as 100 to 200 hours a year."

City: No police at John Glenn

The police chief said his department doesn't have the resources to assign an officer to John Glenn High School, something that council president Pickering wanted.

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

John Glenn High School apparently won't get any money from the Westland City Council to hire an armed police officer to beef up school security

Published reports that Westland police officials had declined to split the cost of a John Glenn police officer with Wayne-Westland school officials had sparked criticism from council president Charles Pickering.

Pickering had indicated support for the city and the school district sharing the cost of a police officer, saying Westland should follow the lead of the city of Wayne.

The city of Wayne has pledged to spend about $22,000 to help the school district hire an armed, plainclothes police officer for the district's other high school, Wayne Memorial, which is located in Wayne.

The Wayne Memorial officer is expected to be hired by early November, amid growing safety concerns. Students have been caught with guns, knives and other weapons at several district schools in recent years.

Pickering held a study session Monday to discuss whether the city council should help the district pay for a John Glenn police officer, who would serve as a liaison between the police department and the school.

He drew no support from his council colleagues or from Police Chief Emery Price.

should be doing in the schools," Price said. "We really do not need a police officer assigned to that school.

Price said John Glenn has been compared to Wayne Memorial, "and I don't think that's fair." Moreover, he said Westland doesn't have the resources to place an officer at John Glenn.

Pickering said city officials should stop viewing John Glenn as "the country club of the school district" and face the fact that it, too, has security problems at times.

"I believe we need a police liaison officer at John Glenn," he said.

Councilman Glenn Anderson said a better approach might be for the dis-. trict to place undercover officers in the school, but said the city shouldn't the city shouldn't subsidize the work with the school district to combat a security problem that he said 'is going to get worse.'

With Pickering outnumbered on the council, it's unlikely the issue will be brought up for a vote in the near future.

In another matter, the city council reached a consensus that the county should be asked to consider installing traffic lights at two intersections that students frequently use: Venoy-Avondale and Merriman-Annapolis.

Pickering has cited concerns about safety problems due to the elimination of busing for junior high and high school students. Busing was cut this year as part of $14 million in school budget cuts.

A separate proposal to place crossing guards at the intersections was met with resistance from the council for several reasons:

Secondary students are defiant and would ignore the guards, city council members said.

■ The city could face more liability problems by placing guards at the intersections than by not doing so, city attorney Angelo Plakas indicated.

Hiring more crossing guards could cause what Price called "a permanent commitment to a temporary problem.'

Pursell eyes GOP bid for Senate, Dems seek candidates

BY KEVIN BROWN AND PAT MURPHY STAFF WRITERS

Carl Pursell, who retired in January from his U.S. House seat after serving eight terms, said Wednesday he's exploring a possible run for the Republican nomination for Senate.

The decision comes in the wake of U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle's surprise decision Tuesday not to seek re-election next year. Pursell, 60, of Plymouth Township said he planned to travel around the state to weigh support, before making a decision on whether to run "probably sometime before the holidays."

"I've represented seven major counties in this state," he said, adding, "No other state legislator can make that statement."

He also said he has talked to Gov. John Engler and other state Republican leaders about a possible bid for the U.S. Senate seat that has long eluded the Republicans.

When asked why he wanted to return to Washington after such a brief retirement, he said: "The Senate attracts me because of the long range type of work they do: In the House, you're always dealing with day to day crisis."

On the number of terms he would serve, if elected, he said he would look at serving more than just one.

5995

Prior to being elected to congress in 1977, he served on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners from 1969-70, was a member of the Michigan Senate from 1971-76. In Congress, Pursell had a leadership role on the House Committee on Appropriations. His district included the Livonia and Plymouth areas.

"I think my credentials, when it's all out on the table, will be unmatched by either party," Pursell said.

Democrats and Republicans are trying to change political gears quickly in the wake of the decision by Riegle.

Democrats are looking for a new candidate — with the name of fomer governor James Blanchard surfacing most frequently.

While Republicans are looking for new campaign ammunition.

"We've lost the savings and loan scandal as an issue," said Oakland GOP chairman James Alexander.

The scandal, of course, is the lingering allegation that Riegle improperly solicited campaign contributions from savings and loan kingpin Charles Keating.

Riegle said he would not seek re-election because of personal concerns, namely he wanted to spend more time with his family.

"I know how he feels," said former U.S. Rep. William M. Brod-, head who represented parts of Redford, Southfield and the Farmington area for eight years before stepping down in 1982. "That was a big part of why I retired."

Donald L. Tucker, Oakland County Democratic chairman, said he has known Riegle for about 25 years. "He's always been a dedicated and responsive public servant, and I believe he was unjustly tarnished by the savings and loan scandal.

Amy Juntunen, a Democratic precinct delegate in Livonia, said she likes Riegle. Nonetheless, she said his decision to step aside was a good one. "It was time for Don to go," she said.

"I say this as someone who has supported Don for a long time," Juntunen said. "But the savings and loan scandal was too much. Don did some good things for Michigan, but he had feet of clay."

As for a possible successor,

Democrats and Republicans agree on one thing: The field is wide open.

The list of potential candidates seems to be growing by the hour, according to Brodhead who now lives in Bingham Farms. "Rumors are flying all over."

Among Democrats, he said State Sen. Lana Pollack of Ann Arbor has to be considered a strong candidate. "But you can't rule out Jim Blanchard and Ed McNamara.

"For a senate race a candidate needs three things," he continued, "a record, the ability to raise money and an ability to deal with the issues. Blanchard and McNamara have proven records in all three areas. So does Senator Pollack."

U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-12th District, said it's much too early to speculate about who the Democratic candidate will likely be, with one exception: "I'm not interested."

Birmingham businessman Marvin Meltzer, however, insists there's only one logical choice, James Blanchard. "He had a good record as governor and he has a good relationship with President Clinton.

"The field may be wide open, but Blanchard would obviously be a good candidate."

Ronald Thayer, a key Blanchard fund-raiser who lives in Bloomfield Hills and works in Wayne County government, agrees that his long-time friend would be a good candidate. "But he certainly enjoys being an ambassador," he said. Thayer said he had not talked Thayer said he had not talked with Blanchard since Riegle made his announcement. "So I really don't know about his plans."

A statement released by his office in Ottawa, Canada, quotes Blanchard as being "shocked and saddened" that Riegle is stepping down. The former governor praised Riegle for his 28 years in government and wished him and his family well.

But the statement made no mention of Blanchard's plans. Another possible frontrunner, Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara, was also out of the country. "He's in Ireland for a family vacation. I don't even know if he knows about Riegle's decision," said an office spokesperson.

House passes Bankes' bill

Legislation to limit the exemptions for child immunizations was approved Sept. 22 by the Michigan House, and the bill's sponsor is convinced lives will be saved if the measure is enacted.

State Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, said Michigan allows parents to oppose innoculations for medical, religious or "other" philosophical reasons.

House Bill 4763 would eliminate the "other" provision. Michigan is one of only five states with the personal belief exemption.

"It's time to close this loophole," said Bankes, whose district includes north Redford. "As another school year begins, we are reminded about the importance of immunizing our youngsters. Rather than needlessly jeopardizing lives we should pass this legislation and avert future tragedies.

The Michigan Department of Public Health said letting just 5 percent of children into school unvaccinated can trigger an outbreak of measles, whooping cough or polio.

"The irony is that some diseases could have been eradicated long ago if public participation had been universal," Bankes said. 'Instead public health experts are faced with periodic outbreaks of childhood maladies that are highly contagious and potentially fa-

Authorities supporting the bill said encouraging vaccination will strengthen overall population immunity and prevent large medical expenses in the future.

'Controlling communitywide outbreaks is a costly and disrup-tive process," said Dean Sienko, medical director for the Ingham County Health Department. "Detailed record reviews, teams ofimmunization nurses and the administration of large numbers of vaccines are all characteristic features. Outbreaks can cause student absenteeism and school cancellations. Anything we can do to prevent the unnnecessary disruption of our children's education is in the public's best interest.

A tall order

So that's how they do that: Carpenter Dave Beyer of Westland uses stilts to install a suspended ceiling at the hospice under construction on Newburgh, north of Schoolcraft, in Livonia. The Felician Sisters hospice will serve terminally ill patients throughout western Wayne County.

'Fun' book hits it big

BY TIM SMITH Staff Writer

When authors Jan Greenberg and Karen A. Katz - who now make up the pseudonym "Jillian Karr" — decided in 1991 to collaborate on a romance novel, little did they know their eventual "Something Borrowed, work. Something Blue," would threaten to grab Big Time glitter.

'We just said it'd be fun to do a story about four women, a big, juicy book about different characters," Greenberg, 41, said about their collaboration.

Her writing partner, Katz, said, "We wanted to make a real good 'beach' book. The one they'd read on vacation.'

But more than two years later, their tale about four brides-to-be with "violent passions and dangerous desires" is on the runway for take off:

The currently available October issue of Cosmopolitan includes an excerpt that takes up more than 10 pages of the magazine. ■ A 357-page hardcover tome is being published by Doubleday and will be available in November.

"Something Borrowed, Something Blue" has been optioned to CBS-TV for a made-for-TV movie. Chances are 50-50 for eventual broadcast.

"We'll just go back and forth to Hollywood when they do the TV film," said Greenberg with a laugh. "We'll just sit in."

promoting their new book, which will sell for about $15. Planned is an Oct. 28 book signing at Book-people at Orchard Mall in West Bloomfield. A May 1994 paperback printing from Bantam Fanfare also is scheduled.

A notion of what the story is all about is apparent on the cover itself: There's a wedding-dress-clad bride pulling up the hem to slip on a garter. At her feet are flowers, a wedding band and a dagger.

"That's to let people know that suspense and danger is in there," Greenberg said.

Katz, a graduate of Wayne State University, noted that the novel was developed "totally out of the imagination" without basing characters (including manicurist "Teri Mathews" from Livonia) on real life experiences.

Other characters include fashion model "Eve Hamel," movie superstar "Ana Cates" and "Monique D'Arcy," editor of a floundering magazine. "Monique, she's our favorite character. She pulls it all together," Katz said.

Both women, who spent hours and hours teaming up at home computers or brainstorming ideas while "walking the dog," said the strength of the story itself is the reason for its pending success.

"We're both Virgo's, we're both perfectionists," Katz said. "And we'd never let anything slide if we weren't happy with it." According to Greenberg, who also writes solo under the "Jill Gregory" pseudonym: 'We know in order to keep readers turning pages it has to be a good story. "Jillian Karr" actually is culled from three names: "Jill Gregory," Jan and Karen.)

In their quest for perfection, they left no stone unturned, especially while doing research for the book.

For example, to know more about what would make actress 'Ana Cates" tick, they traveled to Toronto. That's where Karen's brother John Tintori was editing the movie "Used People." "We spent three days soaking it all in," Katz said.

Wayne Memorial High School math teacher Walter C. Hunt told officials at a school finance public hearing that "good education can't be bought on the cheap," and private school teachers are no better than public school teachers.

'Good education can't be bought on the cheap," said Me-morial math teacher Walter C. Hunt, a 31-year veteran. The U.S. economy can't absorb all the graduating scientists, the U.S. has a top high school completion rate, test scores are improving, but state funding of schools has fallen from 70 percent to 40 percent of the total. "We spend 30 percent less than Japan," Hunt said. Hunt said Republican presidents have advocated vouchers. "but private school teachers are no better than ours, and private schools don't have the equipment.

'Private institutions don't take children like my son," added Denise Thomas, a school bus driver from Inkster with a son in special education. "There's no place for him but in public education.

Agreed task force member James Kosteva, a former state representative from Canton who now directs House Democratic research: "Throughout Michigan, we do our best job in special education.

Voc ed praised

'Our (job) placement rate is 93 said Diane Kennedy, percent. vocational director of Lincoln Park schools. The Westland resident, who chairs the Wayne County vocational planning committee, said the group's mission is that "all students have access to career-technical education."

The building trades program at Wayne-Westland school board member Laurel Raisanen faulted the local property tax system and blistering 'millage elections that turn into hate campaigns against public education.'

John Glenn High in Westland was warmly praised by Beatrice Gwizdak, a mother. She lauded the state for eliminating the property tax as the chief source of school funding because: "When your back is against the wall, that's when you do something cre ative.'

Urging "educator and parental involvement in teaching decisions" was Dennis Kubas, a Michigan Education Association representative who lives in Novi and teaches in Woodhaven. Kubas said educators favor teaching 'critical thinking, problem solving and communication - free of cultural, racial and gender bias.' Asked by Barns if he favored extending Michigan's 180-day school year to a Japanese-length 240, Kubas said "180 days are adequate. But we will follow the legislative mandate if we are given the resources.'

Defending public schools' claim on state taxes, Rick Hamrick asked lawmakers to remember the "fixed costs, job training technology, trained instructors and community good will" at 56 public school vocational centers across the state. The Westland resident is assistant principal of the William D. Ford Vocational Technical Center.

Hamrick praised Ford and du-Pont, among other industrial for giving students plant firms. tours, allowing them to do "job shadowing," serving on advisory committees and providing co-op programs.

Sports hype hit

The only confessed Republican to speak, Paul Reznick, a graphic artist who works in Troy, said there's "too much complaining and whining about public education." Reznick, who serves on a vocational advisory committee, said. "Business doesn't think with their brains. They think with their wallets.'

Reznick criticized Wayne-Westland schools, which he attended, for broadcasting athletic accomplishments in student announcements but neglecting the prizes won by students in filmmaking and culinary arts.

This brought a retort from Jake Henry, a John Glenn athlete: "Don't overlook extracurricular activities, including athletics.' Henry credited athletics for teaching "responsibility, hard work, teamwork and leadership '

Jane Kuckel, assistant superin tendent for instruction in Wayne-Westland, cautioned lawmakers against mandating any more cur-riculum material. "We can't do an excellent job with everything, every day, with fewer resources" if schools must teach environmentalism, cultural awareness, foreign languages, portfolio preparation, the work ethic, AIDS and self-concepts in addition to the three R's.

She was suported by sixth grade teacher Don Halley of Wayne who said "teaching time is diluted" by sex and drug education.

Library friends plan writing workshop

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Friends of the Plymouth District Library have received a grant from the Poets & Writers Inc. Now, they're using the money to help mold future writers. The Creative Writing Workshop is designed to foster interest in writing among middle-school students through seminars with authors Barbara Hood Burgess and Thomas Sullivan. Gerry Bar-lage, adult reference librarian, explained the class.

'The staff had noticed that there was a lot of interested students. I knew there was interest out there. This opportunity presented itself and we took advantage of it," Barlage said.

The library is now accepting applications for the 20-person class. The selection process is completely subjective, according to Jackie Troutman of Friends of Plymouth Library. A committee of Friends members will do a preliminary screening and the workshop leaders will make the final selection.

The application form has been designed so there is no information about the applicant visible with the narrative statements. The applicant's self-desire and evidence of an adult's interest are the only criteria for selection, she added

Rate controls

Political static on cable rates

he city council is on the right track in trying to control cable TV rates, but it should be very careful in how it goes about it.

The council approved last week one of several procedural steps intended to give it some of control over basic service rates.

What prompted the council's action was complaints from local subscribers about increases this month — a sharp contrast to their expectation that the bills would be cut up to 10 percent in the wake of congressional and Federal Communications Commission action.

But the Observer warns that if the council wants to get involved in cable regulation, it should be prepared to accept the responsibilities.

For example, what will the city administration and municipal employees do when they get calls from angry residents who are upset with their bills?

Now, those calls are referred to Continental Cablevision Co. for handling.

The council should also keep in mind the scope of the problem. In the recent rate hikes, while most will realize a slight increase, others will benefit from a drop in their monthly bills, depending on the level of services they have.

Unfortunately, those who face a rate increase are those least able financially to pay more for basic services. These are the subscribers who buy the minimum cable services and have just one set with cable, typically senior citizens living alone.

If the city council wanted to really get tough with the local cable company, it should threaten it with refusal of its franchise agreement renewal.

Technically, another cable company can come into Westland to provide competition, but in a practical sense, that won't happen. Nearly 65 percent of local dwelling units have cable, a clear demonstration that a large majority of the community wants cable and is able to pay for it. Even when cable rates have been boosted annually, there has been no decrease in subscribers.

The council has a more dramatic way to flex its political muscles with Continental Cablevision if it really wants to control or reduce rates: They can utter words that cable companies hate to hear --- revocation for non-compliance of the franchise agreement or non-renewal of the agreement which expires.

The most effective way to get the company's attention is to hit it where it counts — at the corporate bottom line.

Special groups seek vouchers

he worst school reform idea floating around Michigan these days is called 'voucher." Under it, state school aid would "follow the pupil" to his or her choice of school - local public, neighboring public, private or church-related school.

The voucher plan is not to be confused with 'schools of choice," a concept limited to public schools. The voucher plan would mean a breakthrough for special interests who long have lusted to get their hands on taxpayer dollars.

Michigan voters in 1970 said no to the voucher plan, then called "parochiaid," by a firm 3-2 margin. At that time, voters amended the constitution, flatly prohibiting state aid to nonpublic schools. The voucher interests tried again in 1978 and were gunned down by a more emphatic 3-1 margin.

They're at it again with a new theme. Instead of a raid on our tax dollars, they're calling it "competition" — that is, making public schools compete for students with private schools.

The chief tactic is a non-stop, vitriolic attack on public education --- státe curriculum laws, superintendents and especially the teachers.

There are many other reasons the babble out "voucher" ought to be halted:

🗰 There always will be a place for private and church-related schools. Michigan protects their right to exist, their free speech, their tax-free status, their building safety and their zoning status.

just as they are making breakthroughs in accountability (annual reports), state-endorsed diplomas, testing in problem-solving rather than multiple-choice guesswork, better tenure

Moreover, the state has adopted the goal for high school graduates of employability. Whether one is bound for an elite profession or housekeeping, every graduate is to have job skills. It's a plan designed by corporate hiring officers — not teachers unionists, as some voucher backers have erroneously asserted.

There always will be a place for private and church-related schools. Michigan protects their right to exist, their free speech, their tax-free status, their building safety and their zoning status.

Will it work?

School pay knocked any parents and taxpayers are questioning the wisdom of the 6 mill school tax increase requested by the Wayne-Westland board of education.

The district's residents are paying a school tax far above the state average. Passage of a 6mill increase on Oct. 18 will again put us at or near the top of Michigan's 500 plus districts in school millage. Our community can not afford to again pay the highest school tax in the state as we did as recently as 1992.

Adding to the discontent, many ask: Why are program cuts always targeted at those areas that impact the kids and the parents most like sports, band and busing. Is this fair? Is this equitable?

These programs, even fully funded, represent only a small fraction of the school's total budget. Eighty percent or more of the district's budget is going to salary and benefit packages for the education bureaucrats and unionized teachers – most of whom don't even live in the district!

Now, in hard times, these high-paid, absentee elites are refusing to concede even a penny to our beleaguered parents and students. Is this fair? Is this equitable?

The school board has generously given pay raise after pay raise to these selfish elites in past years. Annual pay and benefit increases totaling 4, 5, and even 6 percent have been secured with ease from our board. With the grim, tax-strangled 1990's economy to the Westland primary. Pickering accused Mayor Robert Thomas of using WLND/Channel 8 for political purposes. I believe that a recent ad for his real estate business was equally used to advance his political future. I thank him for his many years of service, but let's not politicize business also.

Most importantly, his quote about Thomas being an illusionist by referring to the fact that the mayor has only recently been seen as a servant to our community just shows us how desperate Pickering has become. I really doubt that any public services department worker has a very high profile. It is only when one lifts himself to such a high office, that we can expect to notice any results from his service to the community.

I only know that seven years ago when my family moved to Westland we did not have our streets plowed in the winter, the inspector that certified our house overlooked the unsafe driveway and, as I learned later, overlooked a power box that was not up to code.

I now see our roads plowed and a relatively high police presence in my neighborhood. I also know that there are always improvements to be made in our local government.

So, I urge our mayor and city council to work together and eliminate any waste and animosity in our local government, so that Westland can be an example to other municipalities as to how to serve those that support them with their hard-earned tax dollars.

Voucher is a Trojan horse for any zany cult that wants to indoctrinate kids with an ethnocentric curriculum or bigoted idea about religion

Under a voucher system, we'll see an explosion of spending on colorful brochures, TV ads and billboards to lure kids from one school to another. They call it "marketing," but we call it wasteful hype.

Private schools always can demonstrate good results by skimming off the best applicants and leaving the problem cases to public schools.

Private schools can admit the affluent who are able to supplement state vouchers with private bankrolls. Poorer kids can be left out and will have fewer dollars in their public schools

The high pressure for a voucher system

"Leave the matter of religion to the family altar, the church and the private school, supported entirely by private contributions." President Ulysses S. Grant's speech in 1875 is sound principle today.

Michigan was 26th of the 50 states to be admitted to the Union but first to declare a free education as a right and to make providing that education a legislative responsibility. Ours is a proud, practical and patriotic tradition. Those who use slick code words like "voucher" and "competition" would do education more harm than good.

and job picture staring at our parents and students, what is the education elite willing to do to help us? Nothing! Absolutely nothing! Is this fair? Is this equitable?

Asking the overpaid bureaucrats and the selfish teachers union for even a small one or two percent pay concession is like asking them to donate a kidney. Yet class after class of our seniors are graduating — ill prepared — into a world of five and six dollar per hour jobs - with little hope for a future.

In September, the board refused to put language on the October ballot prohibiting the use of the 6-mill increase for even more salary and benefit increases!

So the old policy continues — a few pennies for the kids and mega-dollars for the unionized teachers and the education bureaucrats. Is this equity or is it greed? I say it is bare-faced hypocrisy and pure, unadulterated greed. Send the education monopoly a message in October kids and parents count too — selfish elites have no place in our school system. Enough is enough — just say "NO" Monday, Oct. 18! Walter Warren, Westland lthough I am a relatively new resident of Westland, I would like to address a couple comments made by (mayoral nominee Charles) Pickering in the Observer reacting he great opportunity for school reform and financing is upon us. Let's not squander it.

School vouchers needed

It should be beyond debate and rebuttal. It is a self-evident truth that the public schools, on the aggregate, are not doing the job. Using the teachers and their salaries as scapegoats is not constructive. A good teacher is priceless in his/ her contribution to society.

Since the establishment of the federal department of education bureaucracy and the dominance of the education unions, the decline of the public schools has been accelerating. The product of the non-public schools, by all data, is superior. Furthermore, the U.S. Constitution did not provide for federal education. Accordingly, Michigan parents should get vouchers and allow the factor that had allowed this country by far to become the greatest in the world the free market.

There seems to be no rationality in the prevailing situation wherein those parents sending their children to non-public schools must pay double. In all areas of our government, we must recognize and put an end to the taxpayer subsidizing counterproductive programs.

COMMUNITY VOICE

POINTS OF VIEW

Taxpayers hurt by secret contract agreements

S hhh! Quiet! Hush! The teachers union contract is coming to the board of education. Gotta keep it secret.

That's the attitude in many Michigan school districts. It's the wrong time for secrecy. Among many state residents, teachers unions are as popular as a skunk at a picnic.

You know the litany by now: In real dollars (after inflation), spending on public schools has risen 25 percent while school enrollments and test scores have declined. We're paying more for education and getting less.

Many folks would like to comment on tentative agreements before the school board ratifies and turns it into a contract. No such luck, in most communities — despite the Freedom of Information Act, despite the Open Meetings Act.

"At the time of the Sept. 8 (Northville school board) meeting, details of the tentative agreeement were known only to teachers, administrators and the school board . . . Some residents at the meeting asked questions about the proposed settlement and suggested that the board wait before ratifying the pact to give taxpayers an opportunity to examine the details. Needless to say, the rational suggestion didn't get very far." So wrote colleague Phil Jerome when his local board kept everything secret "until it was too late."

The landmark court case occurred in Traverse City in 1987 when the teachers union ratified on Aug. 28. The Record Eagle sought to publish the details — of high interest because of a local millage election. No, said the school board — not until the board ratifies. The Record Eagle sued under the Freedom of Information Act. The circuit and appellate courts upheld the school board. Reports of the contract's cost didn't get out until the board ratified on Sept. 21.

My fishin' buddy, Dennis Pajot, ran into a worse situation in the Lake

TIM RICHARD

Huron town of Oscoda. The school board voted in open session to reject the tentative agreements but refused to let the people see what it was voting on.

Pajot, a resourceful former editor of the South Lyon Herald and Redford Observer and former Oakland County Road Commission publicist, got the details of the teachers' proposal anyway. But the arrogance of the Oscoda board still is mind-boggling. Let us look at Art. VII sec. 32 of the Michigan Constitution:

"Any county, township, city, village, authority or school district empowered by the legislature or by this constitution to prepare budgets of estimated expenditures and revenues shall adopt such budgets only after a public hearing in a manner prescribed by law."

Phil Jerome argues, logically, that 80 to 90 percent of a school district's budget is labor costs, and 80 percent of that is teachers. What's the sense of holding a hearing on a budget whose main component is contracts that are ratified with no public notice?

I would argue the school board should make public a fiscal impact statement of the tentative agreement a week before the board votes. People could examine a display copy of the T.A. and fiscal impact statement in the school office. The paper could publish it. People could comment at the meeting prior to the board's vote. Jerome would go a step further and require, by law, a public hearing on the tentative agreement "after a suitable period for public review and comment."

Clearly, people dislike the powerful teachers unions and distrust their weakling school boards.

Blind trust a thing of past in public education nce again, residents in the Livonia Public Schools have come through and voted themselves an increase in taxes to support what they feel is important for their children.

We are very fortunate to have strong support of schools in our community — and because of this we, as elected board members, must always be sure that we do not betray the public trust.

It is encouraging to see new people attending our board and committee meetings. Let us know you are watching us. We need your input. Make it a point to come any Monday evening; don't wait for a crisis to get involved. The public is always welcome and can actively participate. These are your tax dollars we are spending.

Public involvement is an extremely effective way of forcing those who make the policies "stop and listen." A recent example was the administration proposal for a five-hour day. This generated such public fury that the board could not ignore the people. "Involving yourself and asking questions" is imperative if we want a good school system.

Many people who have spoken to me are still very unhappy about some of the priorities in the budget and have indicated they will not blindly trust as they have in the past.

Those concerned must come and voice their opinions to all the board members. Remember, it takes a majority vote on the board to make any change in policy.

I will continue to be a voice for the general education students, the vast majority whose educational opportunities are constantly being diminished by special programs for a small minority.

A very large percentage of our budget is being spent on a very small percentage of our children. These diverted funds led to larger class sizes, less class offerings, and eventually to the elimination of several programs and services that our general education students had always enjoyed.

I will not support any program that takes money or opportunities away from the classrooms or instruction. We must re-define our priorities.

GUEST COLUMNIST

The public is justified in expecting that our students should be the most prepared young adults possible, and instruction should be our number one objective. We must allow community agencies to take over family problems. We have always had social workers, psychologists and counselors on board. They are well-equipped to make referrals to community agencies when it is deemed appropriate.

Our primary emphasis with our limited tax dollars has got to be the allround traditional basic educational program with traditional activities. Just spending more money is not the answer. The emphasis has got to be how and where these tax dollars are used.

We must concentrate on the classroom. That is where the learning is taking place. With the state expectations of "inclusion" and the stress of improving MEAP tests, the general education teacher has a tremendous responsibility that is greater than it has ever been. Class sizes should be smaller, not larger.

Outside aid to education is not always the answer. In most cases, state and federal grants are used to create new administrative positions and a fleet of aides to assist these administrators. Very little filters down to the kids in the classroom. And those benefiting from the grant money usually do not work with kids.

In practice, these government funds create a new hierarchy which develops a life of its own. Classroom teachers now have a new layer of "bosses" which translates in to more time spent away from their primary task of teaching.

How much more value per dollar would be realized if these same moneys were used to help the classroom teacher and allow them to spend more time teaching? Doesn't this make sense? And finally, we must somehow upgrade the status of the teachers who work with the majority of our students.

The "Silent Majority" must begin to become vocal and demand the same opportunities and attention that special interest groups have obtained. If they don't, the overall quality of learning will never improve.

Special interests put lock on changes in education ou people in Michigan deserve a lot of credit," said the man at the resort, putting down his gin and tonic with an admiring smile. "You blew away the entire property tax! Now you can get something serious done!"

Ever since the Legislature this summer obliterated the property tax supporting public schools, virtually every non-Michiganian I have met has said much the same thing.

(W)19A

In part, it's people looking for a subject to start a conversation. But behind their slightly surprised admiration lurks an important public perception about our politics.

Most people now believe it takes a full-blown crisis to force our paralyzed political system to act.

Why? Evidence, for one.

In Michigan, for example, our politicians have been dithering about school financing for a quarter of a century.

During this period, property taxes have soared, per-pupil funding differences between districts have grown, total spending has shot up and our kids still leave school largely unprepared for the competitive world of work.

And what have we received from our political leaders? Wringing of hands and flapping of gums; that's about all.

Why is this so? Blame the system.

Because they regard holding office as their life's profession, our politicians are terrified of doing anything that might make anybody mad — which means they're scared of doing nearly anything.

More to the point, the political system is infested throughout by special interests acting through lobhyists who grease the permanent reelection campaigns with contributions. In return, they demand a veto when something comes up that affects their turfs.

In the case of the schools, the interlock of the special interests is so total as to earn the nickname "the Iron Quadrilateral." It works like this: PHILIP POWER

In one corner are the teachers unions, whose interest in the status quo is matched by the school superintendents and their organization in the second corner.

Both these corners are connected to the third, solidly dominated by more than 500 locally elected school boards in the state. And all three of these corners are linked to the publishers of school books and other instructional materials, whose profits are most effectively safeguarded by resisting change (and the costs of putting out new editions).

To move any one point in this closely interlinked system requires moving all. That's why the political outcome in matters regarding education, school finance and student performance has been nothing more than a kind of grudging incrementalism.

From this analysis arises the hope of today. With the entire basis of school financing eliminated, the political system will be forced to take some definitive action or face chaos.

We will hear Oct. 5 Gov. John Engler's initial proposals for school reform. As the debate kicks off, let's hope that the "action in the face of crisis" theory holds true.

Otherwise, all of us -- especially our children - will be in deep trouble.

Senate OKs bill to limit matching funds

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Michigan candidates would still be able to go out of state for money, but the state won't provide matching funds under a bill that received 25 to 8 Senate support.

But two women senators saw it as a plot to thwart ambitious women.

"I believe the amendments were designed to thwart Emily's List and, ultimately, the Wish List which is the Republican counterpart to the Emily's List," said Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor.

Pollack raised much of her $1 million war chest for her unsuccessful 1988 congressional campaign from non-Michigan contributors to Emily's List. Emily is an acronym for "Early Money Is Like Yeast — it raises the dough," The fund helps women Democrats, as Pollack said.

"I believe there is a great deal of fear that women will join in making policy and . . . thwart the control of the special interests that now dominate the state legislatures, many of the gubernatorial state houses as well as the federal government," said Pollack, an announced 1994 challenger for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination.

Pollack voted yes anyway, because the bill still provides some state matching funds, but Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, a gubernatorial candidate, voted against the key amendment.

"It's very hypocritical for the majority party, which represents the governor, to indicate that in any future elections we ought not to allow the same benefits to accrue to future gubernatorial candidates as has accrued to the current governor, who, in 1990, as a non-incumbent, accepted thousands of dollars in out-of-state funds that were matched," said Stabenow.

Ironically, the bill was sponsored by the Senate's lone Republican woman member, Joanne Emmons of Big Rapids. Emmons said that the state's matching of out-of-state contributions "drains our already struggling state campaign fund. Why should we match the dollars of people who do not live in this state and are not directly affected by its policies?"

Originally, Emmons' bill disallowed all out-of-state contributions. The House struck out that provision. The Senate amended it to allow out-of-state contributions but not to provide matching funds from the Michigan treasury.

Among the 25 yes votes on the key amendment were: Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, Robert Geake, R-Northville, and David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

Among the eight no votes was George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn. Absent was William Faust, D-Westland.

The bill is back before the House for concurrence in the Senate amendment. Refer to Senate Bill 595 when writing to your state representative.

Vorva bill seeks to recover crime lab costs

Crooks will find that paying for laboratory analysis of evidence will become part of the cost of crime under a bill approved by the state House of Representatives.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, would require courts to charge convicted offenders $150 to help defray the cost of bringing them to justice. The bill establishes a state treas-den," said Vorva, a former police officer. He said costs are rising to equip forensic labs with the latest technology. Michigan State Police estimated $2 million in annual revenue would be raised, based on a forensic lab workload of 50,000 cases. Courts would retain 10 percent of the money collected.

All area representatives voted yes except Justine Barns, D-Westland, and Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, who missed the vote.

YOU AREN'T GOING TO BELIEVE THIS

We've all felt it. The rapid heart rate, cold hands, increased perspiration, shortness of breath. It's called anxiety.

Anxiety, the mind's reaction to real or imagined danger, is a normal, necessary emotion. It is essential to existence; if we can't perceive and react to something dangerous or threatening, we won't be prepared to defend ourselves, or to run.

Anxiety disorders

Anxiety becomes a "disorder" when it interferes with life resulting in disrupted sleep, nightmares, constant nervousness or unwarranted fears. There are several types of anxiety disorders, all with a variety of treatments.

- Panic disorders. Experiencing high levels of anxiety for no apparent reason is called a panic disorder. This condition can be terrifying — people who experience panic disorders say they feel like they're going to die or have a heart attack. Panic disorders may be genetic, since they tend to run in families. Sometimes, attacks are triggered by subconscious thought processes or an unusually high level of stress.
- Conditioned anxiety. Some anxiety disorders can stem from a traumatic event. If a person has experienced some sort of trauma, and later is put in a similar situation, he or she may experience an anxiety attack.

 Generalized anxiety disorders are characterized by chronic, moderately high levels of anxiety. People with this condition are always very nervous and fidgety.
 Adjustment disorder, one of the mildest forms of anxiety disorders, is a direct result of a stressful situation or change in the environment. Characterized by a persistent, anxious mood, it generally is short-lived. Treatments

Anxiety disorders can be effectively treated by anti-anxiety and anti-depressant medication, as well as psychotherapy.

The best thing to remember about anxiety is that, at normal levels, it is a valuable emotion. When used appropriately, anxiety can help develop skills, motivation, and effective performance.

Davis, Boeheim pay Head visit all is here, summer is dead, but winter (basketball) is still ahead.

Speaking of hoops, I heard of some recent developments out in the Plymouth-Canton area. Inside sources tell me that Dr. Tom Davis (Iowa) and Jim Boeheim (Syracuse) were both in town recently to meet and greet Plymouth Salem's 6-foot-7 James Head.

My eye in the sky tells me that Head performed well at the all-star camp held over the summer at Eastern Michigan University.

Also, the word is out that Plymouth Canton's 6-5 Bryan Whittle, the highly-touted transfer from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., has returned home after only one year with the Chiefs.

Whittle, who struggled last season as a junior, apparently is back at Spackenhill High where he dominated his county circuit, averaging 23 points per game.

Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner, who learned of Whittle's departure after he returned from vacation in late August, said the New York transfer had a good summer season and had attracted interest from Mid-American schools.

No kickers in Livonia

It's becoming more common in high school football that kickers are a valued commodity. Most grid coaches look no further than their own soccer teams.

Redford Catholic Central borrowed Kerry Zavagnin and now use Adam Borchert, both outstanding soccer players. Walled Lake Western made a run all the way to the state Class A finals last year behind the leg of Travis Ilacqua.

This season, Canton's Jeff Fliss does double duty; so does Plymouth Salem's Mike Kley and Redford Thurston's Brian Mlynarek.

But in Livonia, school policy prohibits athletes from playing two sports during the same season.

The issue was apparently discussed last spring when an athlete tried to play both softball and run track. The arrangement had the athlete running in the meets, but not practicing with the track team. Livonia's athletic council couldn't justify that setup, so the policy still stands. Too bad, because a lack of a kicker has hurt 0-4

Livonia Franklin in a couple of games. It was only last year that Eastern Michigan University utilized walk-on Bill Adam as its No. 1 placekicker after he used up his eligibility on the soccer team. Adam played soccer, but never placekicked when he was at Franklin. What a shame.

It seems Livonia schools are somewhat at a disadvantage when competing against their counterparts from the Western Lakes Activities Association, in lots of ways.

Borkowski surprises self, O&E field

The weather turned overnight, and so did the results, at last weekend's Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows golf tournament in Livonia, Joe Borkowski of Troy waded through the sloppy conditions Sunday to post the day's best score.

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

Joe Borkowski was certain. Sure, he had managed a creditable round Sunday, posting a 75 in extremely trying conditions. But he was convinced it wouldn't be good enough.

Borkowski was so sure his two-day total of 151 would come up short, he didn't even bother hanging around the 18th green to see the leaders finish. Instead he took his "leader in the clubhouse" designation into the clubhouse to await the final results.

Fifteen minutes later, it was over and Borkowski was the winner. When informed of this, the 50-yearold Troy resident was truly surprised. " he said. "Well, miracles do 'Really? happen."

It wasn't a miracle that won it for Borkowski, it was consistency. No one adjusted better to the soggy conditions, the result of an all-night rainstorm, than he. Indeed, he

After a 10-day layoff, Livonia Ladywood released some of its bottled up energy Tuesday while running past basketball rival Farmington Hills Mercy, 61-53.

The visiting Blazers improved to 5overall and 1-0 in the Catholic League Central Division, while handing the Marlins another frustrating defeat.

It was Mercy's fourth straight loss and fifth in the last six games. The Marlins are 3-6 overall and 0-2 in the division.

Ladywood controlled the first half in front of a capacity crowd that forced Mercy to close, its entrances just prior to the game.

The Marlins rallied and tied the score at 28 after scoring the first four points of the second half. But the Blazers gained some breathing room by going on a 17-0 run.

The Marlins had trouble stopping junior forward Tara Overaitis, who scored a game-high 27 points and accounted for 17 of the Blazers' 28 firsthalf points. Overaitis scored most of her points on wide-open driving base-

Lakes matchup

Unbeatens Glenn, Stevenson square off

BY DAN O'MEARA Staff Writer

One of the big games in Ob-serverland football circles this week has Westland John Glenn playing at Livonia Stevenson on Friday night. Both teams are 4-0.

Glenn is the perennial power in the Lakes Division and is accustomed to such high-profile contests.

The Spartans haven't had a start this good since former University of Michigan quarterback Dave Hall played there in the late 1970s. Stevenson last defeated the Rockets in 1987 when the two shared the Lakes title with North Farmington.

Other big games: Redford Thurston at Allen Park on Friday; Detroit DePorres vs. Redford Catholic Central on Saturday at Clarenceville.

On another front, it appears there will be a contest among the Observer guys afterall. The race between Editors Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara got a little tighter last week.

Emons remains the leader at 47-12 overall, but O'Meara gained a game. Danny Boy (44-15) was 12-2 last week while The Big E was 11-3.

GRID PICKS FRIDAY GAMES

(all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Clarenceville at Lutheran Northwest, 7 p.m.: The Trojans (1-2, 1-3) gave firstplace Cranbrook a battle last week in the Metro West but lost 12-7. Lutheran Northwest remains winless (0-1, 0-4). PICK: Clarenceville keeps the Crusaders win-

Dearborn at Redford Union, 7 p.m. The Panthers (0-1, 0-4) are last in the Mega White Division after losing 40-14 to Taylor Kennedy last week. The Pioneers (2-1, 3-1) are in contention with four others for the division title. PICK: Dearborn aets the win

Weld, Glenn at Liv. Stevenson: The 2-ranked Rockets have another No powerhouse team and rate the favorite role based on their tradition and past success. The Spartans won two games on the last play and who knows what might happen in this one? Both are 2-0 in the Lakes Division PICK: Glenn stays un-

Ply. Canton at Northville: This is a must win for both teams. Canton (2-0, 3-1) is unbeaten in the Western Division, needs to keep pace with Farmington Harrison and has a three-game winning streak. Northville (1-1, 3-1) must beat the Chiefs and hope Canton can beat the of the division title. Harrison showed the Mustangs can be vulnerable to the pass. but the Chiefs could have trouble running the ball on Northville, PICK: Northville has the edge with the home field.

N. Farmington at Ply. Salem: The Rocks (1-1, 2-2) will celebrate homecoming following a 14-0 road victory over Walled Lake Central. The Raiders (1-1, 1-3) were ahead of Livonia Stevenson 10-9 last week but lost 24-10. PICK: The Rocks are solid.

Farm. Harrison at W.L. Western: The Hawks, rated No. 5 in Class A, will try to avenge last year's 21-7 loss to Western — its first. The Hawks (2-0, 3-1) got a battle from Livonia Franklin, but that's no surprise since the Patriots have been a near-miss team. Western (1-1, coach Chuck Apap was concerned about his pass defense after Canton passed for nearly 200 yards and three touchdowns in 10 win. The Harrison coaches were in the stands, and Apap was well aware of that PICK: The Hawks have a Westernstyle rodeo roundup.

Garden City at Belleville: The Cougars (2-1, 3-1) gave Dearborn its first loss last week when they scored the winning touchdown with 14 minutes left. Coach Bob Eisiminger is building a program at Garden City, which shared the Northwest Suburban League title last year, and has the Cougars on track again. Belleville (2-1, 2-2) defeated Lincoln Park 23-12 to reach 500 PICKS: O'Meara says Garden City keeps it rolling, but Emons likes the hometown Tigers.

To call it a bad week for Schoolcraft College's volleyball team isn't nearly enough.

Considering the Lady Ocelots had lost just one Eastern Conference match in the previous eight years that Tom Teeters coached them helps convey how surprising it was to lose to visiting Delta College Tuesday, 13-15, 15-5, 16-14.16-14.

That made it two conference losses in matches played this season. And yet, as shocking as that is, it isn't the worst of the news.

Danielle Pfeffer, one of two transfers from Henry Ford CC (Kristin Barnes is the other), was ruled ineligible earlier this week. Pfeffer, one of the Ocelots' best players, did not play against Delta; her status remains uncertain.

Because Pfeffer was ineligible, all matches she appeared in were forfeited. Which means SC is now 0-11 overall, 0-3 in the conference. The reason for Pfeffer's ineligibility, according to sources, was believed to be a problem in obtaining her release from Henry Ford CC. She and Barnes played for the Lady Hawks last season, but, according to what Teeters said prior to the season, both had obtained releases from Henry Ford coach Gary Gray.

Teeters would not comment on the situation. SC athletic director

There were few superlatives in the loss to Delta. Danielle Sheehy led the team with 17 kills (.209 kill average), Shannon Capstick had 16 digs, Tricia Kazyaka got eight blocks and Tracia Clendenen totaled 37 assists to kills.

Marty Nowak was unavailable.

Madonna climbs NAIA national volleyball charts

The news just keeps on getting better for the Madonna University women's volleyball team.

On Monday, the Lady Crusaders achieved their highest ranking ever (No. 7) in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. (Hawaii-Hilo is No. 1 in the NAIA coaches poll.)

On Tuesday, Madonna ran its overall record to 20-2 with a 15-4, 15-13, 15-9 victory at Hillsdale play both again, but at home.

A senior middle hitter for Ferris State from Redford (Dearborn Divine Child), O'Connor enjoyed an outstanding, record-setting week. Against Oakland University, she set a school-record with 41 kills (old record: 33 by Stephanie Chaffin, 1992) with a .538 kill average. Her 41 kills was the fourth-highest total for a single match in NCAA II history.

In nine games last week, O'Connor had 59 kills (6.56 per game) with a .432 kill average. She also had nine blocks, 25 digs and two service aces.

No wonder she was named Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference player of the week. For the season, O'Connor leads the conference in kills per game (5.65), ranks fifth in digs per game (3.09) and is ninth in kill percentage (.326).

Unfortunately, the Bulldogs ha ven't performed as ably. They lost in five games to OU: through last weekend, they were 5-8 overall, 3-3 in the GLIAC.

SPARTAN STARS

Michigan State exploded for 13 goals in a pair of women's soccer wins in the last week, which helped the Spartans pull close to .500, and a handful of former Observer athletes did their part.

In a 10-1 win over Loyola University Sept. 22, freshman Leah Hutko (from Plymouth Canton) scored a goal and added two assists, her first points as a collegi an. Michelle Minton (Plymouth Salem) also had a goal in the win over Lovola, with an assist from Tracy Morrell (Livonia Stevenson). Morrell gained her second assist of the season on a goal

8, but Gunn was again superb, with 17 kills. For the weekend, she had a .313 kill percentage.

The Broncos are 2-8 overall.

SOCCER STANDOUTS Junior defender Greg Smith of Livonia earned an assist in Western Michigan's 2-0 victory over Eastern Michigan Saturday. It was Smith's second assist of the season, and it helped the Broncos improve to 6-2.

On Sept. 22 against Illinois-Chicago, junior defender Jason Ries of Livonia and junior midfielder Matt Gold of Plymouth each earned assists in WMU's 3-1 overtime loss. It was the second assist of the season for both. FAST FINISHER Senior Michelle Gayney (Redford Bishop Borgess) placed third overall, second for Western Michigan, at the Kent Tri-meet in Kent, Ohio, Saturday.

Gayney negotiated the 5,000meter course in 18:28 as the Broncos won the meet with 26 points. Ohio University was second with 30 and Kent State took third with 74.

It was an impressive win for WMU. Ohio was the pre-season pick by coaches to win a seventhconsecutive Mid-American Conference title.

CROSS COUNTRY

Leo brothers pace CC

The Redford Catholic Central boys cross country team, led by the Leo brothers, won Saturday's Shrine-Shamrock Invitational Division II title at Marshbank Park.

CC has won two straight Shamrock invitationals and eight of the 15 overall.

The Shamrocks earned first place with 61 points and Milford came in second (110). Lake Orion was third (111), Dearborn fourth (125) and Livonia Stevenson fifth (153).

The Leo brothers usually lead the Shamrocks but for the first time this fall, sophomore Joe Leo finished ahead of his older brother Mark Leo. Joe took fourth place in 16 minutes, 40 seconds and Mark finished fifth at 16:50.

CC coach Tony Magni said Joe Leo took his win against his brother in stride.

"I think he was more excited about the team finishing first place than he did about beating his brother," CC coach Tony Magni said. "Mark could have given up when he saw his brother go by but he did not. He hung in there because he had to do the job. He worked very hard to get as close to his brother as possible.'

Jeremy Short finished 13th for the Shamrocks (17:40) and Mike Danic was 17th (17:47). Matt Sroczynski came in 22nd place (17:50), Brian Smith was 31st (18:01) and Derek Faunce was 43rd (18:24).

Stevenson was led by Jason Hayward, who placed 12th overall (17:31). Other top Stevenson runners included Steve Warner, 28th place (17:55), Scott Creehan, 29th (17:57) and Brian Hayward, 37th (18:09). The Spartans' Andrew Beach was 47th (18:30).

Westland John Glenn took 13th in the team standings with 331 points. Henry Honeycutt had Glenn's best finish, placing 25th (17:53).

ROUNDUP

Dearborn Divine Child won the Division I boys race, as five Falcons finished among the top 10, with 26 points. Oxford was second (70) and Lutheran Westland took fifth.

Brad Polkinghorne led Lutheran Westland's effort, gaining eighth place (17:37). Sam Patterson placed 16th (18:18.7), Chris Tiernan, 24th (18:35), Jason Collins, 31st (18:44), Phil Kimmel, 33rd (18:53), Jon Schmoll, 38th (19:04) and Jason Burk, 39th (19:08).

MacKinnon leads girls

Livonia Stevenson took fifth in the girls Division II standings but the Spartans' Bridget MacKinnon placed first overall in 19:51.

Farmington Hills Mercy had two of the top three runners and won the girls Division II race for the first time with 62 points. Dearborn Edsel Ford was second (75), Milford third (84), Utica Eisenhower fourth (91) and Stevenson fifth (125).

Eileen O'Connell of Mercy took second individually (20:09) and Amy Freund took third place (20:26).

After MacKinnon, Stevenson failed to place a runner until Sarah Reider came in 21st place (22:14). Laura Pilon was 22nd (22:17) and Nicole Falk was 29th (22:33). Kristi Ladd placed 52nd (23:55).

Dearborn Divine Child won the girls Division I title with 51 points. Livonia Ladywood took fourth place (137) and Lutheran Westland was ninth (254).

Julie Brown of Ladywood took 20th place (23:17) and teammates Shannon Swish and Chrissy Johnson took 22nd (23:25) and 24th (23:42), respectively.

Lici Koch led Lutheran Westland, taking 30th place (23:59). Robyn List was 51st (26:17).

Shamrocks win dual

CC improved to 3-0 in dual meets with Monday's 18-45 victory over Birmingham Brother Rice at Cass Benton. The dual meetwin gave CC a 2-0 Catholic League Central Division record and was the Shamrocks' sixthstraight triumph over Rice.

Mark Leo finished first place (17:07) ahead of second-place Joe Leo (17:08) and third-place Tim Gass of Brother Rice (17:13).

Other top times for the Shamrocks were from Phil Camilleri (17:51), Sroczynski (17:54), Short (17:55), Brian Smith (17:56) and Faunce (18:08).

Warrior girls edged

Chrissy Seigel finished first in 22:57, leading Lutheran East to a 27-28 Metro Conference win over Lutheran High Westland in a dual meet Tuesday at Brys Park in Harper Woods.

Lici Koch of Lutheran Westland took second in 23:36. Other Warrior harriers in the top 10 included Jill Gerlach, fifth (27:30); Heidi Schmoll, sixth (27:46); Sarah Unger, seventh (28:09); and Robyn List, eighth (28:18).

Lutheran Westland is 1-1 overall and 0-1 in the Metro.

Lutheran Westland sweeps

On Tuesday, the Lutheran Westland High boys took the first seven places in a 15-50 victory over host Lutheran East. Brad Polkinghorne was first in 18:03, followed by Sam Patterson (18:34), Chris Tiernan (18:35), Jason Collins (18:41), Jon Schmoll (18:58), Phil Kimmel (18:59) and Kyle Kopper (19:01). The Warriors are 3-0 overall.

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Friday (for Monday edition) and noon Tuesday (for Thursday edition). Items run once only.

SALEM 3. FRANKLIN 2: The Rocks rallied to score three late goals Monday and defeat the host Patriots in boys soccer. Following a scoreless first half, Franklin scored first when Jason Buelow converted a penalty kick with 15 minutes left in the

But Salem scored three goals within a five-minute span, beginning with eight minutes remaining.

Mark MacInnis had two goals and Kevin Little the other. Little, Matt Simons and Andy Makins also had one assist each.

Victor Rodopoulos scored the second goal for the Patriots, who entered the week as the No. 8-ranked team in Class A. Franklin is 3-2-1 in the league and 6-3-1 overall, Salem 4-2 and 5-4-1.

"Salem certainly controlled the tempo of the game much better than we did," Franklin coach Mary Kay Hussey said, also citing the muddy playing field.

"They were much better at playing in the mud than we were. They did a better job of adapting to the field conditions than we did."

Tony Cosenza played the entire game in goal for the Rocks, who stretched their winning streak to three.

Red. Thurston at Allen Park: This is another of the big games, and one the Eagles (2-1, 3-1) dearly want to win. Thurston trails the Jaguars (3-0, 3-1) by one game in the new Mega Blue Division. Allen Park was the perennial power in the old Tri-River League and defeated the Eagles 12-0 last year. Thurston is led by senior receiver Jeff Lance, who has caught 10 passes for 245 yards and four touch downs. PICK: The Eagles soar.

Woodhaven at Wayne Memorial: The host Zebras (2-0, 3-1) are tied for the lead in the Mega Red Division with Dearborn Fordson. Wayne has been a surprise team this year with few regulars back from last year's playoff team and freshman Lorenzo Guess at quarterback. Woodhaven (0-2, 2-2) is last in the division. PICKS: The Zebras gallop to another victory.

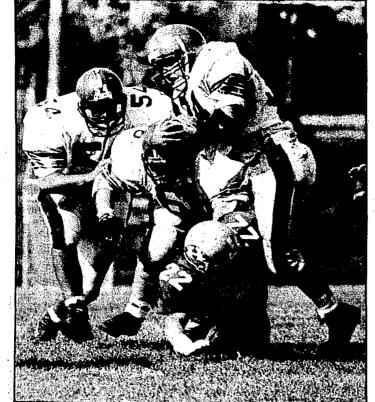

> SATURDAY GAMES (all games 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Churchill at Liv. Franklin: This edition of the intra-city rivairy features a battle between winless teams. Both are 0-2 in the Western Division and 0-4 overall. The Patriots have been in nearly every game but have found it hard to score key points. The Chargers lost their 31st in a row last week to Northville, 43-8. PICK: Franklin finally gets a win.

W.L. Central at Farmington: The visiting Vikings (0-2, 2-2) were 2-0 before running into Westland Glenn and Plymouth Salem, Farmington was competitive in its first three games and will try to rebound from a 49-7.loss to Glenn. PICKS: Central wins a squeaker, according to O'Meara, but Emons sees it the other way.

Cranbrook at Luth. Westland: The host Warriors (0-2, 1-3) will have their hands full in this Metro West contest. Cranbrook leads the division with a 3-0 record and is 3-1 overall. The Warriors lost 18-6 to Lutheran West, and the Cranes edged Clarenceville 12-7. PICK: Cranbrook reels in a win.

Bishop Borgess at Riverview Richard, 7:30 p.m.: The Spartans (0-1, 0-4) in the Stampede: Franklin's Jesse Shakarian (with ball) gave Farmington Harrison's defense something to think about in last week's 17-6 loss.

Catholic League Tri-Sectional suffered a 48-6 loss to first-place Orchard Lake St. Mary, the No. 1-ranked team in Class CC. Richard (1-0, 3-1) is tied for the lead iwth OLSM and is having a good season, also. "PICK: Borgess keeps looking for a win.

St. Agatha vs. Royal Oak Shrine, 7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Field: The Aggies: (1-0; 3-1) fooled the Observer guys and beat Ann Arbor Richard last week to share the early lead with East Catholic and Waterford Lakes. in the Catholic C Section. Shrine (0-1, 0-4) and St. Agatha have had some good battles in recent years, but the Knights appear to be down this year. PICK: The Aggies win their fourth in a row. Redford CC vs. Detroit DePorres, 7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville: This game should be the classic matchup once again: CC's strength against DePorres' speed. Although each has some of the other, too. The Shamrocks (3-1) can spring speedy tailback Freddie Taylor behind a huge line, and the Eagles (4-0) always have size to go with their blazing speed. CC should hope for another rainy speed. CC should hope for another rainy night like they had last week against De-LaSalle on the same field. The Shamrocks won 15-6 in the regular season and 17-6 in the Catholic League championship game a year ago.

PICK: CC finds a way to win again.

West's Walker runs through Warriors

Coach Dennis Tuomi returned to his old stomping grounds Saturday, but it was Robert Walker who stole the show.

The Detroit Lutheran West running back rushed for 204 yards in 32 carries and one touchdown, leading the host Leopards to an 18-6 Metro Conference football win.

West is now 3-1 overall and 2-1 in the West Division of the Metro, while the Warriors fell to 1-3 and

"He (Walker) was hard to bring down," said Tuomi, who spent a majority of his coaching career at West. "We'd have four or five guys take a shot at him, but he'd wriggle out. He runs with power." A blocked put run run run run at urad for

A blocked punt run returned for a touchdown on the final play of the first half gave the Detroiters a 12-0 lead.

Quarterback Andy Manthei's 28-yard TD run cut the deficit to 12-6 in the third quarter, but West put it away with a late score. Defensively, Lutheran Westland's Troy Smith was in on 24 tackles, five unassisted. Steve Faith added two solo tackles and seven assists. Jason Bayush added a fumble recovery. West outgained the Warriors in total yardage, 296-156.

Frosh stars in Zebras' victory

Freshman guard Rica Barge scored 10 of her game-high 16 points in the second half, sparking host Wayne Memorial to a 34-28 non-league girls basketball win Tuesday over visiting Livonia Churchill,

It was the eighth straight game Barge has led the Zebras (3-5 overall) in scoring. Melissa Sochacki scored eight points and grabbed 14 rebounds for the Chargers, who slipped to

2-4 overall. The Chargers made only 11 of 31 free throws (35.4 percent), while Wayne hit eight of 20 (40 percent). D FORDSON 49, FRANKLIN 24: On Tuesday, visiting Livonia Franklin dropped its fourth straight as Dearborn Fordson's 30-10 secondhalf run proved to be the difference.

"We didn't have the greatest awareness of where Tara was on the court," Baker said. "If we just had some more help on her, it would have made some of her shots harder."

Even with Overaitis' scoring, the gritty play of Campeau gave Mercy more fits. The junior was tenacious on defense, added 10 points and was the person responsible for finding Overaitis near the basket.

"Melissa worked her butt off tonight and went after all the loose balls," Kavanaugh said. "She did a good job of getting the ball to Tara, who did a good job of progress, but a lengthy rehabilitation process lies ahead.

Meanwhile, the rest of the WLAA has carte blanche when it comes to access to their own facilities.

He was named Clarenceville's new head coach only a few weeks prior to the accident.

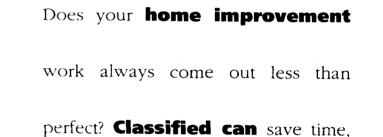

U-M assistant football coach Lloyd Carr stopped by to see Donaldson while he was in intensive care. He has also received great support from family and friends, including Schoolcraft College Trustee Richard DeVries and former Central Michigan star Mike Nettie, a teammate of Donaldson's at Stevenson.

I was uplifted to see Donaldson sitting in a wheelchair. We talked about Clarenceville football, Stevenson football and the Michigan-Notre Dame game. Donaldson is tired of hospital food, so maybe somebody could sneak him in a good Italian dish (his favorite).

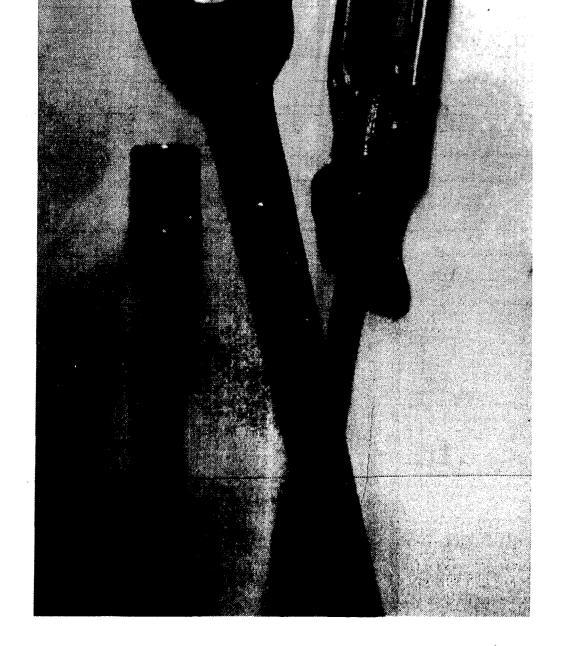

He's antsy to get out of the hospital. He may get a chance to go home for a few days before returning to U-M for rehab.

"The doctors say I should to be out of here by Christmas," he said. "Being in here three months is long enough."

Donaldson is on floor 6-A, Room No. 6410. Keep Chuck in your prayers.

have thought about this before, but right now you are earning disability insurance, survivors benefits, a retirement program, and future Medicare coverage. It's all paid for by the Social Security taxes withheld from your paycheck- and matched dollar for dollar by your employer.

And now you can find out just what those taxes are earning for you. It's easy to do and it's free. Just call 1-800-772-1213 and ask for a Statement. When you get it, you'll see a complete history of your earnings, the Social Security taxes you've paid, and estimates of what you and your family could receive in Social Security retirement, disability, and survivors benefits.

And if there's an error or omission in your earnings record, Social Security will help you correct it.

Meadow Brook Theatre opens its season with Larry Shue's long running off-Broadway hit, "The Foreigner.'

Livonia Symphony Orchestra opens its 20th anniversary season Oct. 2 with a concert showcasing awardwinning pianist Anthony Bonamici, a 1993 graduate of Stevenson High School in Livonia, performing Schumann's Piano Concerto in A minor.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

The 19th century romanticism of Schumann and Wagner, as well as, dramatic melodies from "The Phantom of the Opera" take center stage to open the 20th anniversary concert season of the Livoinia Symphony Orchestra 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 2, at Churchill High School Auditorium, 8900 Newburgh, Livonia.

Guest artist Anthony Bonamici, a national award-winning pianist and composer will perform "Piano Concerto in A minor" by German composer Robert Schumann.

Tickets are $12, ($8 seniors, $6 students, $3 children under age 12) and available at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road at Five Mile, Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan, Hammell Music, 15630 Middlebelt and at the door the night of the concert. For information, call the symphony office 421-1111, or the 24-hour hot-line 458-6575.

"Anthony is probably one of the best talents I've ever heard. He's an outstanding pianist," said LSO music director/ conductor, Francesco Di-Blasi.

"Schumann's Piano Concerto in A minor, of all the piano concertos, it's the most accessible. If you've never been to a concert don't miss this one because Schumann will jump right up and grab you.'

A 1993 graduate of Stevenson High School in Livonia, Bonamici per-formed with the LSO in February after winning second place - instrumental category in the 15th annual Young Artist Competition at Madonna University in January.

"I was very happy about being asked back. I enjoyed playing with the Livonia Symphony last time," Bonamici said. "It's nice to come back home and perform. I like achieving recognition in my hometown.'

Bonamici, who practices three to four hours a day seven days a week, began piano studies at age five. Originally, he was fascinated with learning to play organ, but his parents insisted, piano lessons would come first.

"I decided to be serious about piano in the seventh or eighth grade and within the last year or so knew I would be a concert pianist," said Bonamici.

"I like the classical music - Bach. Beethoven, Brahms and Mozart. I like to show people what I like about it.'

Schumann's concerto in A minor, is standard repertoire piece, said Bonamici. "It's very well liked. It's nice sounding. It's a challenge musicallv

Prior to entering Rice University's Shepherd School of Music in Houston. Texas this fall to study with John Perry, Bonamici studied with Donald Morelock in Ann Arbor.

Bonamici has performed extensively throughout Michigan with several youth orchestras, Schoolcraft Wind Ensemble, Livonia Symphony Or-chestra and in Florida with the University of Miami Symphony. As a competition winner he performed with the Lyric Chamber Ensemble, and Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit.

for the score judged "Most Outstand ing.'

DiBlasi is conducting the LSO for the 20th season. He has been with the orchestra since its inception as the Oakway Symphony in 1973. During its early years the orchestra per formed in Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington, Royal Oak and Southfield.

Amongst a myriad of problems including financial strain, the orchestra decided to consolidate efforts by joining the arts-oriented Livonia community. In 1988 the nearly 80-member ensemble chose reincorporation as the Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

Linda Chomin of Canton Township is a free-lance writer who specializes in the arts and classical music.

Variety keynote to symphony season

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra's 20th anniversary season offers three series of 13 concerts. For ticket information, call 421-1111 or the 24-hour hot-line 458-6575.

On Oct. 30, Warren Pierce serves as guest narrator in the second of five Series A Saturday evening concerts. At 8 p.m. the Halloween concert will feature members of the orchestra performing in costume. The LSO wants the audience to join in the fun. They will automatically be entered in the LSO audience costume competition for special prizes.

'We're offering a nice variety to please most everybody this season. We have the annual holiday classics which includes our Wassail dinner feast Dec. 18 at Madonna University, and the Nutcracker in early December," said Lee Alanskas, who is publicity chairwoman, and on the board of directors for the Livonia Symphony Society Inc.

The orchestra, under guest conductor Volodymyr Schesiuk, will present two fully staged performances of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker," 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3 and 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4, with the Contemporary Civic Ballet under artistic director, Rose Marie Floyd. Tickets are $15, seniors/students, $12 and children, Volodymyr Schesiuk guest conducts the third Series A concert, 'Slavic Classics and Winter Dreams' Feb. 19 with guest pianist, Leszek Bartkiewicz. Chopin's "Piano Con-certo No. 2," and Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 1, Winter Dreams" will provide untypical symphony fare.

Schesiuk made his American conducting debut last season with the LSO. After emigrating to the United States from Ukraine nearly two years ago, Schesiuk joined the orchestra's first violin section.

Concluding Series A, the New Reformation Dixieland Band will swing on stage as well as the winners of the Young Artists Competition.

Series B, the Library Series, presents chamber style concerts in the intimacy of the 300-seat Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium. At 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28, the principal chairs of the LSO will be the featured artists. Other Series B concerts take place Mar. 11 and Apr. 15.

Series C, the Children's Series opens 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 29. Guest artist for the "Paint a Picture" program is caricaturist, Chuck Borshanian.

Dreams come true in drama, comedy

Two remark-able films about people overcoming incredible odds to make their dreams "The Joy Luck come true Club," and "Cool Runnings" are opening at movie theaters in metro Detroit Friday.

Hollywood Pictures presents "The Joy Luck Club" the story of four remarkable women whose extraordinary lives are filled with love and tragedy, richness and magic, and who are sustained by the hopes and dreams they have for their daughters

Based upon the best-selling novel by Amy Tan, the story begins when June (Ming-Na Wen) is invited to join the Joy Luck Club — the weekly mah-jongg group of her recently deceased mother Suyuan (Kieu Chinh). As a portrait of the club's three "Aunties" — unfolds, it reveals a mosaic of the startling events and conditions that have shaped their lives, and the lives of their precious daughters.

The mothers impart their wisdom and pain, experience and love to their daughters who in turn come to better understand and value their parents. Tsai Chin is Lindo, the self-proclaimed leader of the Aunties.

"She's very bossy and quite opinionated. And her daughter, Waverly, is very much like her," said Chin. "As in real life, these conflicts can be very funny and sometimes quite sad. It's a classic mother-daughter relationship."

"The Joy Luck Club" is rated R (Restricted, requires an accompanying parent or guardian) and opens Friday at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Maple, AMC Woods and AMC Laurel Park.

"Cool Runnings" also is opening Friday, is based on the true story of four Jamaican athletes going to extremes to compete as bobsled racers at the Winter Olympics. Walt Disney Pictures presents this comedy about four athletes with few resources, and virtually no clue about winter sports, who are sliding on thin ice as they go for the gold in Calgary, Canada.

It's an uphill course for this troupe from the tropics - including Derice Bannock (Leon), Sanka Coffie (Doug E. Doug), Yul Brenner (Malik Yoba) and Junior Bevil (Rawle D. Lewis).

Refusing to let anything stand in their way, they enlist the help of a down-and-out, ex-champion American slider named Irv (John Candy). Unavoidably drawn back to a sport he has come to loath, Irv is faced with coaching a team of complete novices. But once committed, he determines to turn them around, and to somehow right the wrongs of his own failed career.

It's a bumpy ride, but with pride, determination and dignity, they make their impossible dreams come true in this live-action comedy for the whole family.

"Cool Runnings," is rated PG (Parental Guidance suggested, some material may be inappropriate for pre-teenagers) and opens Friday at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Abbey, AMC Lau-rel Park, AMC Old Orchard, AMC Southfield City, AMC Sterling Center, General Cinema Canton, Showcase Auburn Hills. Showcase Dearborn, Showcase Pontiac, Showcase Sterling Heights, Showcase Westland, Star Rochester, United Artists 12 Oaks.

My suspicions were confirmed with the release of "The Good Son," a dopey but often involving thriller starring waxy-lipped Culkin as a pint-sized psychopath. The little rascal has already killed his brother before the opening credits and now starts to scheme about the rest of the fami-to Tokyo to close a big business deal which will set them for life.

Enter Henry (Culkin), Mark's same-age cousin, whose rambunctiousness and bad table manners are chocked up as symptoms of his age. The boys are in constant motion on their first couple of days together, smashing windows in an old warehouse, outrunning the steel jaws of a pit bull and climbing into an obscenely tall stree house.

When Mr. Highway arrives, Mark begins to have second thoughts. Henry constructs a lifesized dummy out of old clothes and cons Mark into lugging it out into the country. When they stop to rest Mr. Highway atop a freeway overpass, Henry pushes it into oncoming traffic, causing a massive pileup.

Why the ensuing TV news report doesn't mention anything about the pre-teen perpetrators or dummy is unclear, but it even the could have added another element to stretch out some pretty thin material. Their success only makes Henry bolder as he sets his sights on his little sister, with Mark running defense. This update of the old "Bad Seed" movie would be even hokier if it weren't for director Joseph Ruben, who made his name early on with a clever little thriller called "The Stepfather." He knows how to put the screws to you in the false comfort of family. He makes Henry's home, a Maine island village, first idyllic and then foreboding and shadow-filled when Henry gets involved.

He's no Hitchcock, but Ruben does have a flair for suspense, little set pieces that play upon fairly universal fears — heights and pit bulls. One of the best scenes is Henry and Mark's first ascension into the tree house, which requires the climbing skills of Stallone in "Cliffhanger.

the frighteningly calm Henry, who dangles him over the ground by one hand, asking, "If I let you go, do you think you could fly?'

Culkin mumbles most of his lines in an extremely low-key portrayal. His cryptic comments are supposed to send chills down your spine, but he doesn't speak like a regular 12-year-old so you never see him as intended: as the bratty kid next door whose games take a deadly turn.

As Mark, Wood has the kind of piercing blue eyes that would usually make him the villain of the piece. We do sympathize with him, especially in his vain attempts to make people listen about Henry and in the scenes with his aunt, warmly played by Wendy Crewson.

Audiences ate this stuff up over the weekend, including a matinee at the AMC Old Orchard, where Marie Stahl of Farmington took her young sons to see it. "I'll nev er hear the end of it," Stahl said "The next time they act up they'll say at least they're not ϵ bad as Henry."

'The Good Son" is now showin at these suburban movie theaters AMC Southfield City, Quo Vadis, Showcase Pontiac, United Artists Fairlane, AMC Abbey, AMC Laurel Park, AMC Wonderland, Star Rochester, AMC Old Orchard, Showcase Auburn Hills and Unit ed Artists Twelve Oaks.

This is a revival of the 1949 hit musical, adapted from Anita Loos's popular 1925 novel about two chorus girls who set out for Paris in the Roaring 1920s hoping to find rich husbands and acquire lots of jewels. The current production is the first stop on a national tour.

"To make this kind of fluffy period piece work takes enormous panache and a good dash of camp. Director Jeffrey Moss has failed to give the show either one, or anything else distinctive.

The script is rife with cornball one-liners with proper timing and REVIEW delivery, but on opening night nearly all ended up as throwaways that garnered only an occasional isolated chuckle.

As Lorelei Lee, the gold-digging "little girl from Little Rock," Parton wisely chose not to imitate her famous predecessors - Carol Channing, who originated the stage role, and Marilyn Monroe, who starred in the 1953 film version. Parton stresses Lorelei's origins as a country girl. This works to good advantage in "Just a Little Girl from Little Rock," when Lorelei reminisces about her roots, but does nothing to enhance Lorelei's characterization the rest of the time.

Lorelei Lee is one of the great creations in musical-comedy history, a larger-than-life character whose enduring fame surpassed that of the show from which she came. Parton is cute and spunky and can belt out a rousing "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend"

(though her fast tempo obliterates a lot of the song's wonderfully clever lyrics), but there is nothing about her Lorelei that justifies the character's stupefying irresistibility to men. The second leads, Catherine Hart as Lorelei's pal Dorothy, and James Kampf as Henry Spofford her adoring swain, do a very pleasing duet of "You Say You Care.

Hart's rich, booming voice adds zest to all her numbers even though her character's personality comes across as way too bland.

As Gus, Lorelei's persistent suitor, Dennis St. Pierre is fine singing the charming "Bye Bye Baby" and looks comically dis-traught at all the appropriate times.

J. Nathan Oswell, playing fitness fanatic Josephus Gage, does an amusing "I'm Atingle, I'm Aglow," a nice improvement from his stiff appearance earlier.

As Mrs. Spofford, Henry's mother, Treasure Ford is an unconvincing drunk, but shines when she lets loose in the Charleston number.

Veteran comic Phil Ford disappoints as the bumbling Lord Beekman, sometimes mumbling his lines into a dreadful-looking white beard.

Choreographer Don Percassi's work finally meshes in the Charleston number at the end of Act II, the complete antithesis of the opening number when dancers seemed uncertain, ill-timed, and in danger of crashing into one another.

With some notable exceptions for Parton and everyone in the final scene, costumes tend toward tacky, though some simple sets function well enough.

Overall, this production of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," needs a major touch-up at its roots.

Village Players cast meets challenge in 'A Few Good Men

Birmingham's THEATER REVIEW VICTORIA DIAZ ters many of whom are highly complex - presents a dramatic challenge not for the faint of heart.

Directed by Barbara J. Underwood, the production comes. through with flying colors in many respects.

The story revolves essentially around two "Stepford Marines," Lance Cpl. Harold Dawson and Pfc. Louden Downey, accused of murdering a fellow Marine, Pfc. William Santiago. Serving as counsel for the accused men are three young Naval officers: Lt. j.g.

Daniel Kaffee, Lt. j.g. Sam Weinberg, and Lt. Cmdr. Joanne Galloway

Col. Nathan Jessep, a Marine veteran and a commanding officer at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where the alleged murder takes place, figures prominently in the drama, also.

As Dawson and Downey, Dave Springer and Jay Peterson have some impressive moments, not the least of which occurs in the highly-arresting opening scene. Standing at attention and speaking out like well-drilled Marines, their characters seeem almost machine-like. We will soon see, of course, just how far from machines they really are.

Steve Tadevic is appropriately off-handed and brash as Kaffee, the clever young Navy reservist who couldn't care less about the codes — "Unit! Corps! God! Country!" sacred to the diehard Marines he is appointed to defend. Although Mark Carley as sidekick Weinberg seems occasionally confused about his character's definition, he is ultimately likable as a guy whose family comes first in his own code of priorities.

Christine Tobia, looking fresh and neat as a newly painted, wooden soldier, is Joanne Galloway, a rather rigid attorney with a passion for justice, and a relentless respect for rules.

As the cunning, cigar-chomp-ing, tough-talking Col. Jessep, Tom D'Agostino does a good job, especially in a climactic courtroom scene.

Although some fare better than others, generally the supporting cast turns in able performances. Ryan Martin's Santiago, appearing in just a few, shadowy flashbacks, seems heartbreakingly vulnerable and, most of all, alone. Y. Jamie Mistry is outstanding as the Bible-quoting, by-the-book career Marine, Lt. Jonathan Kendrick, an officer from the Deep South, who certainly is no gentleman.

One weakness with this production: Bits and pieces work extremely well, while others falter. Though usually the performers succeed, they exhibit occasional tendencies not to really relate to each other onstage. There's hardly a bobbled line throughout the play; the actors have memorized their lines and learned how to deliver them with some clarity and animation --- even some real style. But their words sometimes fall flat because, with the acting, they appear to forget about react ing served as an Indian trading post, inn, tavern and residence on the old mud road running to Pontiac.

"We decided to recreate some of the area's history by naming our new restaurant Trader's Bar and Grille, and offer a traditional casual and warm dining ambience at popular prices which includes a large-screen TV for sports events," said Zawideh.

The menu starts with a traditional assortment of appetizers ranging from blue corn chips and salsa for $1.75 to escargot in puff pastry sauteed in garlic butter for $6.50 to wok seared scallops on rice noodles for $5.95.

Salad assortments include the Saginaw trail salad - stacks of sliced turkey, ham, bacon, Swiss and Cheddar cheese on fresh greens and garnishes, $7.95; and Philly steak salad — grilled sliced London broil atop romaine, assorted greens and sliced fresh vegetables, $7.95. Sandwiches start with the burger platter at $5.95, up to a filet steak sandwich for $8.95. Trader's Bar & Grille patrons can also enjoy all the other Kingsley amenities such as a collection of fine California and European wines, and local and domestic beers

Main selections feature sauteed center-cut pork chops with an apple onion chutney, $7.95; wok seared Oriental chicken with vegetables served over rice noodles. $6.50; and barbecue spare ribs with a teriyaki glaze. Patrons can also order the renowned sauteed Michigan lake perch and other entrees at competitive prices which are among the specialties of the house at the Kingsley Inn.

"The Kingsley has been a tradi⁄ tional center of excellence in food and beverage with its restaurants and banquet facilities where for many years people have come to enjoy our hospitality in a formal and semi-formal setting," said Zawideh. "While we will still one this ambience in our Kingerry Room restaurant, we are making the added statement of casual at mosphere which will characterize Trader's Bar and Grille, app ing more to a younger group of Da trons, and of course to those www are young at heart."

Planner succeeds as 'financial' older sister

■ A self-defense approach to financial planning has paved the way for a local woman to be named tops in her field.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Phyllis J. Wordhouse considers herself to be a good listener, a good analyst, a good communicator. In short, a good teacher.

Wordhouse also happens to be a successful businesswoman.

She's owner of Wordhouse Financial Planning & Education in Plymouth and recently was selected financial planner of the year by Mariner Financial Services, her broker/dealer.

Proof is in performance. Wordhouse personally sold mutual funds, stocks, annuities, and limited partnerships totaling just under $6 million last year.

"In this business, there's no such thing as a glass ceiling," she said. "You don't need a lot of capital. You need licenses, training and the philosophy of client first, client first, client first."

Wordhouse, 50, a Plymouth Township resident, declined to reveal her income other than to say that she averages about 5 percent commission on her sales.

"My dad was a Reformed Christian minister, my mother a teacher," Wordhouse said. "They did a lot of marriage and spiritual counseling.

"I found that I was comfortable spending hours listening, asking a question and letting clients pour out answers."

Wordhouse started working as a financial planner out of her home in 1982.

Her jumping off point was getting pink-slipped as a special education teacher in the Wayne/Westland schools.

Wordhouse's curiosity had been aroused a few years earlier when a fund representative made a presentation on retirement planning to her and her colleagues.

"I asked him so many questions," Wordhouse said. "I called him on every break I had and asked question after question. Finally, he said, 'Phyllis, I don't have time for you. Go to the Plymouth Library.'"

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

She did and developed a general understanding of the field.

"Invariably, people talk about the most common topic in the world — money," Wordhouse said. "When I was laid off, the staff said they hoped I couldn't find a job in special ed. They thought I should teach money in adult ed."

should teach money in adult ed." Wordhouse trained with IDS, then went independent. She's a certified financial planner and a licensed stockbroker and insurance agent. Wordhouse simultaneously started teaching selfdefense financial planning for women through the Plymouth-Canton, Wayne/Westland and Livonia schools.

"I work my business during the day and teach during the evening," she said. "High school and college teach you how to do jobs. No one tells you what to do with the rewards of jobs."

Now, her business has grown to the point where she teaches only at Schoolcraft College.

Our own worst enemy when it comes to finances

There are two basic ways to get ahead financially — increase income or reduce expenses, said Phyllis J. Wordhouse, a financial planner, teacher and speaker.

Success stories arise from planning, she said. "People go with the flow . . . and when you go with the flow, money flows through your hands," she said.

Other common mistakes seen by Wordhouse: • "They procrastinate. They have a problem with inertia. They think they need a lot of money to invest.

"If you can save $50 a month, $12 a week, $2 a day and put it in a growth/income investment, you will have a nice nest egg. If you do it for 30 years, you'll have a lot nicer nest egg than if you do it for 10.

 "They purchase the wrong type of insurance. Even today, they get sold something that probably helps the agent (commission) more than them.
 "People aren't educated. They don't know alternatives. Some rely on their significant other to handle all these things. What if their significant other leaves either through death or divorce?

• "People don't understand the tax law and how it affects them.

■ "People don't use time and inflation to their benefit. The average female my age, 50, has approximately $2,600 saved for retirement. That's why they have to start with the first paycheck out of school."

Val Pak reaches milestone as bartering changes functions

In 1976, Val Pak was the only supon book delivered by ZIP ode mailings to selected homewhere in Michigan. Today, Val tak is the state's largest direct hail company. Much of its growth attributed to acquiring $1 milon worth of goods and services an barter through the Trade Exnange of America.

"Trade dollars consistently wer our operating costs," said on. Duncan, president of Val ak, the Michigan franchise of a Pak Marketing Systems. "We barter for advertising, inentive programs and business applies." The Trade Exchange of America sends Val Pak customers to help pay back the revolving credit. Over the last decade, numerous Trade Exchange members have bartered for inclusion in Val Pak's micromarketing home mailers.

The Trade Exchange counts 4,000 members and 15,000 card holders participating in the barter. Its annual trading volume exceeds $20 million.

The $1 million milestone puts barter in a whole new context, according to Fred Detwiler, founder and president of the Oak Parkbased Trade Exchange. "Barter once was used to rescue companies from mistakes in excess inventory. Now it is employed as a catalyst for business improvement," Detwiler said.

Detwiler and Duncan have enjoyed a long relationship through value-priced services. Detwiler personally sold Duncan on the advantages of barter to build his business sales. Val Pak became one of the trade exchange's first and steadiest customers.

"We've grown together and worked well together," Detwiler said. "Through barter, we've both become tops in our field."

Automotive Aussie sneaks into town — in a 'roo sui automotive jour-nalist, and it works. DAN I was attend-McCOSH ing the announcement that the Australian

Trade Commission is opening a

The guy in the new automotive liaison office in Southfield, an event of some significance to the local automotive community, although the Australians themselves were just making a stop en route to Sao Paulo, Brazil, then on to Chili -- two other cities where they are setting up similar offices.

In the backwaters of international trade, Australia is sometimes difficult to take seriously. Partly, of course, because they have a tendency not to take themselves seriously, hence the guy in the kangaroo suit.

Still, Australia was where Edsel Ford II first launched himself into obscurity at Ford Motor Co. Australia is also where they make the Capri, Lincoln-Mercury's roadster, and where the Ford Falcon is still a big deal.

Australia is also one of those countries where they drive on the wrong side of the road, making it a potentially hot market for vehicles originally built for the U.S. Postal Service. The latter is one of the legacies of belonging to the British Commonwealth, although it's worth noting that Japan also drives on the wrong side, a fact that hasn't slowed them up much. Needless to say, Australia isn't a big player in any other country, although until recently, a reasonably viable local auto industry produced cars for the locals. For the past decade or so, the borders have been open a bit, which means that Japanese cars do not dominate.

The U.S. still exports more to Australia than it imports, but not anywhere near the trade imbalance Australia has with the Japanese. Putting the new trade office in the Town Center in Southfield, home office to about a half dozen Japanese trading companies, kills two birds with one stone.

Does this mean we will soon be overrun with Australian cars? Unlikely, since a few auto components are the bulk of Australia's current exports. It's a nice, safe country, that Americans identify with. Sort of like Canada.

Canada, of course, has the worst auto imbalance of any country, but somehow that doesn't seem as threatening as the Japanese or Mexicans, ins which seem to have a public ; tions problem lately. Maybe they should try a garoo suit.

128* August jobless rates drop

August unemployment rates fell in all but one of Michigan's 12 major labor market areas, according to estimates prepared by the Michigan Employment Security Commission and not adjusted for seasonal fluctuations.

In August, unemployment rates dropped by nearly a percentage point or more in all major labor markets, except Lansing where auto industry layoffs pushed the rate up, MESC Director F. Robert Edwards said.

Most area jobless rates have also fallen since August 1992 and fallen substantially. Edwards noted that since last year, local rates fell anywhere from 1.4 percentage points in Battle Creek to more than 4.0 points in Flint. Lansing was the lone exception, with a rate increase.

"Over the year, the number of unemployed statewide has dropped by 25 percent;" Edwards said. "The state drop and the year-to-date declines in area jobless totals confirm that the Michigan and local economies are continuing to improve.'

From July to August, many major labor markets reported work force reductions, but most also had employment gains. "Employment in Michigan's tourism and related industries normally peaks in August," Edwards said, "and this August was no exception. Employment climbed throughout the state in the recreational and amusement industries, among eating and drinking establishments and at hotel and lodging facilities.'

Job levels also grew in the construction, retail trade and food processing sectors, while falling in state and local education as school enrollments declined for the summer. Among the major labor markets, Ann Arbor had the lowest August unemployment rate at 3.7 percent, while the Flint area had the highest rate at 9.2 percent.

The greatest month-to-month change occurred in the Detroit and Flint labor markets as their rates dropped by 1.9 percentage points in August. The Detroit area rate fell to 6.4 percent, down from 8.3 percent. The Flint rate dropped from 11.1 percent.

Lansing, the only area with an unemployment rate increase, had production adjustment layoffs at local automotive plants, which pushed the August jobless rate up to 6.5 percent from 5.3 percent in July.

Metro Detroit economy humming

The Detroit Area Business Activity Index compiled by Comerica Bank rose 7 points in August to a level of 162, compared with 155 in July. This places the metropolitan Detroit economy 9.7 percent ahead of August a year ago

Year-to-date, the first eight months of 1993 averaged 9.2 percent stronger than last year. This is a magnificent example of how a stronger auto industry can lift a cyclically sensitive region relative to the national averages, said David L. Littmann, first vice president and senior economist with Comerica Bank in Detroit.

"The resurgence in August stemmed from better motor vehicle output and auto sales. In this case, Michigan's auto industry specialization is reinforced by a more competitive dollar vis-a-vis the yen," said Littmann.

"Big Three sales and production continue to gain market share, and Michlgan's motor vehicle output in 1993 is running more than 16 percent above the comparable period from last year.

FAMILY LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

How to make bedtime blues a golden time

Getting a child of five to go to bed at bedtime can be a routine battle of wills - a tug of war, with parents sometimes holding the short end of the rope.

Parents expect an infant to be up at night, but with older children it can be a hassle and down right tiresome. It seems like the more tired a child is, the more they battle not giving into sleep, which gives parents the blues.

Children have a repertoire of oldies but goodies stalling tactics. The more-familiar tactics are wanting a drink of water, forgetting to put away the bike and needing to go to the potty "real bad, too." There's also "Can I get my favorite blanket out the closet?" or the real clincher, one most parents fall for, "Remember when we did this and that . and how we had so much fun?'

At that point, parents are supposed to be drawn into the remember-when stories. There's a host of creative, and not-so-creative, stall tactics. Perhaps the latter strategy just might hold the lights on and your attention . . 15 minutes.

Child development expert and author Dr. Terry Brazelton says that instituting a firm, predictable bedtime ritual is the single most-helpful action you can take. I'm inclined to agree with Brazelton that the bedtime-ritual approach helps avoid the "midnight madness" of a having to struggle with a child who insists on not getting into bed and staying there Brazelton suggests you never use a TV as a getto-sleep tool for a child. So, if you've tried this approach and found your little tyke wide-eyed and as perky as ever, it's because it's too stimulating. For adults, maybe not, because most of us are too exhausted at the end of the day to really get into a TV program, while in bed. If your bedtime habits are similar to mine, TV has the direct opposite effect than it does on most children. It relaxes and isn't stimulating. In fact, before the news anchors can give a complete summary of the day's current events, sleep zooms in.

Children should be made ready for bedtime in advance. How much in advance? At least one hour. This should cut down on the stalling, whining and begging at actual bedtime. Ample warning or advance notice gives children preparation/transition time. Preparation time works not only for bedtime purposes, but is used in the classroom setting as well. Children adjust to changes better if warning is given.

ntain a regular schedule. If there's Trvto two parents involved, agree to alternating nights or weeks might work better, offering a steady pattern. Get into a ritual leading up to actual bedtime. For example, undressing, bathing, brushing teeth, pottying, etc. Include other rituals unique to your own family's preparation pattern. Whether it consists of two stories, a short review of the day's activities, song, fingerplays, whatever, remember to do what's agreed upon. This means advance planning rituals between parents and children. It may be necessary to occasionally remind your child of the agreed-upon bedtime rituals. It is a give-and-take situation at first, but getting a 5year-old to meet you halfway takes some consistency and a little firmness. It's not a good idea to allow a child to bargain with you to let him or her sleep on the couch, parent's bed then having you put them in their bed later, once the child has fallen asleep. Do allow a child to get used to staying and sleeping in their bed. A night light is fine, if the child is afraid of the dark, or monsters under the bed. I can remember as a child, being terrified at night once the lights were out, and Mama said, "Good night Eartha." I would imagine my Chatty Cathy walking right out the closet, where I would place her after play. Once I was assured that the doll was plastic, not real, and only a play toy for my pleasure, I discontinued my short trips to my parent's room. Once you've finished to bedtime ritual, leave the room. Don't dawdle, or hang around for a second heaping. Child development experts suggest that if your child calls out in one more desperate attempt to get you in the room, it's OK to answer them but don't go back into the room. Assure the child that you're nearby should they really need you. Allow your child to cuddle with a security blanket or soft toy, if desired. When a child follows through getting in bed and staying there, praise them in the morning. Children will occasionally have nightmares and can't go back to sleep without your being there to hold them. Encourage your child to talk about their dream. Reassure them it's OK. Try to comfort your child in his or her room, keeping in mind that it's easier to condition the little one into finding favor and getting used to staying in their room in their bed.

Carlisle: Home shopping in style

The age of cable TV has brought home shopping to the forefront, but Jill Scypta of Plymouth has found the New York-based company has been offering in home shopping for more than a decade.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

> Women who are tired of purchasing clothes one year and tossing it in the back of the closet the next, would be pleased with the Carlisle Collection.

The New York-based company prides itself on "wardrobe building. What's in one year, can be updated the next with specially designed accessories

"There's a lot of wardrobe building," said Jill Scypta, a Plymouth resident who serves as area consultant. "They send me a lot of information like how the bronze jacket of 1992 can easily be updated with (another accessory).

The Carlisle Collection is only available through private consultants who display the clothes in their home. Scypta is one of a handful of southeastern Michigan consultants. The 165-piece winter/holiday collection will be shown in her home Oct. 10-15. Customers can stop by and view the clothing. The desired pieces are ordered and take approximately two weeks to come in.

Scypta shows the clothes in her finished basement specially designed so customers can experience the trademark rich colors.

"I had considered laying the clothes throughout myhome but the lighting is not as good as you think," she said. "I had extra lighting put in so you could see that the tones match, you don't have any questions.'

It also proves comfortable for customers - and her family.

'It's very comfortable. They (customers) won't be disturbed by phones, husbands or children," she said. Carlisle clothing are made of first-class fabrics hand chosen by CEO Bill Rondina, who started the company 13 years ago. Rondina travels the world for the fabrics - wool is imported from England, silk is found in Italy, and American-grown cotton is woven in Switzerland. Customers, Scypta said, find the fine fabrics irrestible.

"It's the kind of show where people come in and touch the fabric.

Scypta said her clients are also touched by the accessories - especially the scarves hand-painted by Nancy Hvisdak.

"People are taken by the accessories. For the prices, it's less than half of a (designer) scarf," she said.

Scypta sees her clients four times a year. In March, the spring collection is shipped in, followed in April by the summer line. In July or August, she displayed the fall clothes and in October, the winter/holiday clothes arrive

"It's four weeks of very intense work. The work continues though beveen showings," she said.

When the clothing arrives, Scypta steams and thoroughly inspects each piece. Afterward, she studies her clients' files and determines what clothing they would be most interested

In Scypta's home, clients can purchase blouses, skirts, pants and some accessories. Carlisle has personal shoppers, coordinated by Sue Weston, in New York who shops for shoes, Reflecting on her lifestyle, Scypta said it's no surprise she's done well at this profession.

"I've always been a very big clothes horse. I helped in a boutique in Plymouth and I often toyed with the idea of a boutique.'

She heard about Carlisle from the regional manager, who like Scypta belongs to the Detroit Golf Club.

By DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

Clinical depression is a serious medical illness that strikes more than 12 million adults every year. It's estimated that 30 million adults will experience at least one episode of major depression during their lifetime making depression nearly as common as it is misunderstood

Believed to be caused by biochemical changes or chemical imbalances in the brain, major depression can be effectively treated in 90 percent of cases by medication, often in combination with psychotherapy

'I don't think people really, truly understand what psychiatric treatment is, how it works," said Ken Deighton, director of the day treatment program at St. Mary Hospital in Livonis.

That may be part of the reason that, while one out of four women and one out of 10 men will suffer from depression during their lifetime, less than 30 percent will seek professional help.

To clear up the misunderstanding, combat the stigma, and encourage those who need help to seek it, St. Mary Hospital will once again participate in the third annual National Depression Screening Day. Set for Thursday, Oct. 7, this is the second year St. Mary has participated.

Of the 113 people who participated in the screening at the hospital last year, 33 were found to have minimal depression; 27 were classified with moderate to marked depression; and 33 ranked in the severe to extreme category

Nationally, 435 facilities in all 50 states participated in 1992. More than 20,000 people were screened and 50 percent scored positive for depression and were referred for outpatient treatment or hospitalization.

This year more then 20 hospitals and clinics in the Detroit metropolitan area alone will be participating. Along with St. Mary, they include Annapolis Hospital in Wayne and its Westland Center in Westland, Centerfor Behavior and Medicine No. 3 in Canton and Margaret W. Montgomery Hospital in Westland.

St. Mary will offer two screening sessions at 2 and 6 p.m. They will begin with a slide presentation, then participants will fill out a depression screening form which will be scored by clinicians and reviewed with a psychiatrist, psychologist, social worker or psychiatric nurse. Recommendations will be made on an individual basis.

The standardized format will be used at other participating facilities, but times may vary. Sponsored by a number of mental health organizations and with an educational grant from Eli Lilly and Co., the screening is being offered free of charge.

Time to consider getting a flu shot

Fall is here and winter is approaching. Along with it, the flu season when people everywhere will be coughing, sneezing, and suffering from symptoms such as fever, runny nose, sore throat and aches and pains.

While most will recover within a week of the onset, thousands may die. Dr. Larry Rawsthorne, a pulmonary and critical care consultant, is well aware of the dangers of influenza. As a board member of the American Lung Association of Michigan, he has been among those leading the effort to get local residents immunized.

'Get your flu shot," he urges. "There is no safer or more effective way to protect you or your family against influenza."

The best time to get the influenza vaccine is between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15, just before the peak of the flu season.

This year, Rawsthorne's advice takes on a greater sense of urgency amid forecasts of a severe flu season. According to officials at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, there is a strong likelihood that this year's flu season will be predominated by a severe strain of the flu virus type A Beijing, leading to increased severity of influenza cases.

Rawsthorne also suggests getting yet another shot at flu time.

This is an opportunity to remind patients and physicians alike that the pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine is also a covered Medicare benefit," Rawsthorne said. "Patients can safely receive both of these vaccines at the same time. Studies show that only 41 percent of older adults living at home receive their influenza shots and only 20 percent receive the pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine.

Influenza and pneumonia are most likely to require hospitalization in those over 65. This deadly combination is the fifth leading cause of death for senior citizens nationwide, resulting in more than 70,500 deaths in 1990.

For more information on influenza and pneumonia shots, call the American Lung Associa tion of Michigan at (800) 678-LUNG.

Club to raise flag for Italian Week

The flag will be flying proudly at Livonia City Hall next week in recognition of a proud moment for Italians.

The Italian American Club of Livonia annually sets aside the week before Columbus Day to commemorate Italian Week in the city. This year. club members will gather on Monday, Oct. 4, with Mayor Robert Bennett to raise the flag at city hall to kick off the observance.

The club was founded in 1977 when a group of Italian Americans organized the first Columbus Day party. The success of the party prompted the organizers to form the Italian American Club.

Over the years, the club has continued to attract new members. Within four years of its founding, its membership included 280 families. To meet their needs, it bought the Rosedale Gardens Subdivision Clubhouse and offered members golf and bowling leagues, picnics, dinners, parties, even golf outings.

But in 1990, the club decided to sell the clubhouse and buy more than five acres of land at 1-275 and Five Mile Road to build a new facility to handled the needs of ever-growing membership.

The new cultural center is under construction and when completed will have three banquet halls and kitchen facility and meeting rooms. The target date for completion is June 1, 1994, and the club has already begun accepting reservations for the banquet halls. (Persons interested in reserving space can call 953-9724.)

But it's not all fun and games for the club, which prides itself in its civic involvement. A variety of causes have benefited from the club's efforts, including the Felecian Sisters' Angela Hospice Home Care. For five years, the club has staged a fashion show fund raiser for its benefit.

Until then, the club is focusing on its Italian Week activities, including the thing that got it all started so long ago, the Columbus Day dinner which will be at 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10, at Laurel Manor. Tickets are $40 each.

And persons interested in joining the club can call Rose Duggane at 261-9633 for more information.

The screening day is also open to those who would like to find out more about depression.

The thing that we frequently see is that family members of the person who is experiencing significant depression are under a lot of stress and don't understand it,' Deighton said. "They don't understand that it is an illness.

The more you can advocate family members regarding what this is all about and what they're really facing, I think the better the prognosis is for the person who is experiencing depression."

It was precisely that family involvement that resulted in a 70year-old Dearborn Heights man getting the proper treatment at St. Marv.

Retired from a professional job, he had suffered from bouts of depression about every eight years since he was 35. The depressive episodes would last six months to a year. During those episodes he felt "just indescribable sluggishness and depressed."

"Just every effort was forced," he said. "It was difficult to bathe. shave, brush my teeth, eat, drive the car. Everything was an effort. everything, every step of the way. It was just all forced effort.

He was one of the 20 percent of those suffering clinical depression who do not respond favorably to anti-depressants and psychotherapy. His most recent bout of depression lasted for about 11/2 years.

He was admitted to St. Mary Hospital last spring and un-miracle." and after the first ECT his family "saw a dramatic change." He then entered the day treatment program at St. Mary. Deighton was his therapist.

Teens learn books of the Bible through quizzing

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

Consider this: The question is fill-in-the blanks; the only words given is "He went." World championship is hanging on the answer.

A team of four teens are hoping to come up with the right response before the 30-second buzzer. You can almost hear the "nana-na-na" music of final "Jeopardy."

This isn't a prime-time game show. No fancy sets, no stylishly dressed emcees, no expensive prizes. It's just teenagers testing their knowledge of the Bible, specifically the 641 verses of the Gospel of Luke.

This is Bible quizzing. And that was the final question of the championship round, correctly answered by Lee Ann Gray who helped bring home the first ever championship crown to the Detroit metropolitan area.

"Bible quizzing is one program that has stuck because it's a successful program," said Mike Miller of Detroit Metro Youth for Christ. "It's a constant; you get something out of it every year.

Bible quizzing has been around long than television game shows. It was started by Youth for Christ in 1948. That group's involvement has dropped off over the years, but church involvement has kept it going, especially in the Detroit area which fielded 40 teams in varsity and junior varsity Miller works with Rich Kifer work on Bible quizzing, visiting area churches during August and September to demonstrate the activity, generally before Sunday classes. Kifer is the DMYC church network coordinator and Bible quizzing fits in with his job of bringing churches together, Miller said.

An interdenominational activity, it's safer to say that participation in Bible quizzing is an international thing around here. Teams come from as close as Cal-vary Baptist in Canton, Westside in Redford and St. Michael's in Plymouth to Emanuel Baptist in Chatham, Ont., Cornerstone Presbyterian in Brighton and even churches in Benton Harbor on the westside of the state.

The quiz season runs from October through early March and things tend to run in threes. Each team has three members and the monthly quiz session, hosted by one of the participating churches, involves three teams. However, when teams head for the world championship, they add a fourth member.

Each month the teams learn a portion of the book. Starting off the 1993-94 season will be Chapters 1-4 of I Corinthians, 91 verses in all. The teams earn points for each correct answer and those points eventually determine ranking at the Day of Champions.

Hot seat

The teams sit on chairs in a row during the competition. Each equipped with an electric chair is swer, they need only stand up. They have 30 seconds to give the correct answer, and a player who gives three right answers ends up in a frozen chair, kept out of the competition unless the opposing team gives an incorrect answer.

The Day of Champions comes in early March. By then the quizzers will have mastered 241 verses. It's a round robin tournament with the final three teams quizzing for the championship.

The tournament helps in se lecting the quizzers that will go on to the regionals in Chicago in late March where the quizzing covers a total of 478 verses.

At the regionals, the church teams are broken up into All-Star teams and given a church coach. How well the teens work together is used to determine who goes on to the world championships in July.

But the hard work doesn't end there.

"It all depends on their performance," Miller said. "If they work really hard at the regionals, which is two-thirds of the book, you get invited to the world championship. But between March and July (when the world championship is held) without forgetting what you have already memorized, you have to memorize 216 verses more. So it's a commitment.

Just ask the world champion-ship team of Sean Kifer and Amanda Lancaster of Brighton Wesleyan Church in Brighton, Lee Ann Gray of Cornerstone Presbyterian Church in Brighton, and Pete Goldsmith of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Chatham, Ont., and their coach Andy Hackman.

Lee Ann Gray also proved she had what it took, walking away with top spot on the All-Star team, a heady accomplishment for a teen competing her first world championship.

The Detroit area also had a second team placing fairly high in the competition. Coming in seventh was the team of Dave Willick and Ken Leslie of Fellowship Baptist Church in Sterling Heights, Tim Simon of Calvary Baptist Church in Canton and Graham Wloch and Darcy Saffar of Highland Park Baptist Church in Southfield. Darcy also was tapped for the All-Star team, with her 14th place individual finish.

Churches can field as many teams as they like. Junior varsity is for quizzers in the sixth through eighth grades; varsity is for quizzers in ninth grade up to the age of 20.

'But some of the churches that have been in since Bible quizzing started in the Detroit have threefour teams," said Miller. "They almost have a farm system with kids following in their brothers' and sisters' footsteps. Once they learn how to play the game, they start turning out excellent quizzers.

Churches can join after the season has started and some have joined at mid-year. They miss out the season to get a feel for the quizzing.

More benefits

But there can be more to Bible quizzing than learning to play the game. DMYC has set up a scholarship program so quizzers can earn scholarships to either William Tindale College in Farmington Hills or Spring Arbor College. Each quizzer who can quote the verses word perfect monthly earns some scholarship money.

The money was garnered from former quizzers and supporters.

'People want to see this happen because it is a solid thing, Miller said. "they got hooked on the competition and it affected them in many different ways. People know the value of it.'

Another benefit is that many of the quizzers have gone on to ministerial careers.

Miller, who was a quizzer for four years and a coach for three years, discovered he wanted to do God's work while quizzing.

"I started with it because I enjoved the competition, but while I was studying I felt a calling to do God's work, to do a youth minis-try," he said, adding that he also met his wife through quizzing. "They receive a lot of direction in their lives. There are a lot of decisions to be made and it's nice to see these kids turn to God and receive direction. And it's not like they get a letter or see a message on a wall."

Churches interested in learning more about Bible quizzing program, can call Miller or Kiferb at 533-3900.

Violence: Being afraid won't end it

The violence MORAL of our nation PERSPECTIVES bothers us all. Even more worrisome thought that we REV. DAVID STRONG us through the agony or death of one we love.

become

We are living in a time when we want to keep violence at a distance. We distance ourselves from violence by saying that we can just turn the television off. We distance ourselves from violence by moving further away from where more of it exists. We decide to stav home.

Yet violence is a reflection of fear. It will not go away as long as we are afraid. Violence replaces positive action when positive action seems fruitless. Violence is a thing of the heart.

A friend of mine is very angry with another person. She believes that this anger is justified by what the other person is doing. Yet, my friend must realize that the anger is in her heart. It is eating her life away. Her anger is taking her energy and her love. She must realize that her anger must be changed or it will destroy her.

Violence ultimately destroys the one who expresses it. There is an interesting saying. If one does not solve a problem, it will ultimately end either in homicide or suicide. The two are very close.

We do not want to hear this truth. When you destroy another person, you begin to destroy yourself. At a family level, spouse or child abuse destroys the person abused and the person who does the abuse.

Is this not what hell is all about? Hell is the refusal to receive and to give love. Why does this happen? We are taught the wrong things. We miss the posi-tive influences in life. We fail to discern with both our heart and mind what is good and what is bad. We choose what we think will be the easy way out of a problem

Recent reports of the killing of the spiritual heart to address the foreign tourists in Miami suggest that the victims were "gunned down like animals!" Some of the violence we hear about in this metro area as well as in Miami is worse than animal behavior. God has created human beings to love with a capacity for great compassion and sacrifice. We must not forget this. We must not allow this potential of the human condition to be overwhelmed by the darkness of violence.

If we claim to be more more than animals we will bring God into the equation. We will work to find ways where love can transform violence and the conditions that lead to violence. There is no more holy task for us today.

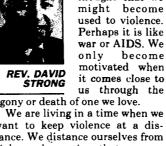

We must not become weary of solving the violence problem in America. We also need to pray for and seek for new voices, new prophets. These will be people who will address the nation in effective ways. Among the many things which will solve this problem of violence must be a spiritual renewal. We must raise up reconcilers among our people. We must raise up persons who have conditions that lead to violence.

Bringing God into the issue of solving violence also means that we have a resiliency on our side. We will not give up or seek to escape the issue of violence because we know that God is on the side of peace. We say, "How bad does it have to get before people wake up?" But we continue to believe that people will wake up. People will choose the good over the bad.

We do need to raise up leaders from this generation and the new generation to work against vice lence. I have seen this potential in the faces of young children at the Thursday noon witness against gun violence in front of the City County Building. I have heard witnesses against violence in the voices of family members whose brothers or sisters have been gunned down. We work and we wait for the time that will be opened to us to reverse and remove this violence in our midist

Reps split on completing S&L bailout

HOUSE

S&L Bailout: By a vote of 214 for and 208 against, the House a bill (HR 1340) providing $18.3 billion for completing the savingsand-loan ballout. The Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC) would use the money to dispose of 80 bankrupt thrifts it is now keeping open. This brings to about $105 billion the appropriations approved by Congress since 1989 to reimburse lost deposits at more than 700 failed thrifts. Congress also has granted the RTC authority to borrow more than $100 billion for working capital that the agency is expected to repay by selling off S&L assets.

Supporter Marge Roukema, R-N.J., said: "I hope we will all summon the courage to do the right thing and pass this legislation. Bring an end to this sad chapter in the history of our financial institutions."

Opponent Rod Grams, R-Minn., complained that the S&L bailout is exempted from the pay-as-you-go discipline of the 1990 Budget Enforcement Act. "Congress has already used over $100 billion in deflicit spending for the RTC, without a single spending offset," he said.

A yes vote was to pass the bill. Area representatives voting yes were: Sander Levin, D-southfield, William Ford, D-Ypslianti. Voting no: Bob Carr, D-Pontiac, Dale Kildee, D-Filnt and JosephKnollenberg, R-Birmingham.

GOP Substitute: The House

defeated, 180 for and 242 against, the Republican alternative to the Democratic-drafted S&L ballout bill (HR 1340). The GOP measure sought to strip the bill of its $18.3 billion expenditure on grounds that the Resolution Trust Corp. already has ample resources - $12 billion to resolve its backlog of failed thrifts. The measure also deleted language writing contract setasides for minorities and women into law. And it opposed a longer statute of limitations for fraud and negligence suits against S&L executives.

"We do not need to be giving away $18 billion of taxpayer money," said sponsor Bill McCollum, R-Fla., or approving "the mandated quotas that are in this bill for minority- and women-owned businesses."

Opponent Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., called the GOP alternative a "reprehensible" return to the time when "Congress sat on its hands, did nothing, while the losses mounted astronomically." A yes vote supported the GOP alternative. Area representatives voting yes were: Bob Carr, Joseph Knollenberg. Voting no: Dale Kildee, Sander Levin, William Ford.

Soviet Nuclear Weapons: By a vote of 149 for and 263 against, the House refused to cut $300 million from a program to dismantle nuclear weapons in the former Soviet Union (FSU) and prevent their global spread. The $300 million was to have been shifted to accounts for repairing U.S. military equipment. The vote occurred during debate on the fiscal 1994 defense budget (HR 2401) that later was sent to conference with the Senate.

Sponsor Duncan Hunter, C-Calif., said the account for dismantling Soviet weapons is overfunded at the same time money has run short to keep aircraft and other weaponry in good repair.

Opponent John Spratt, D-S.C., said "it makes eminent sense to spend a few hundred million dollars to get rid of the Soviet weapons that we spent $4 to $5 trillion countering over the last 45 years."

A yes vote supported the amendment. Area representatives voting yes were: Knollenberg. Voting no: Carr, Kildee, Levin, Ford.

SENATE

Grazing Fees: By a vote of 59 for and 40 against, the Senate killed an administration plan to more than double livestock grazing fees on public land in the West. The vote retained the existing system in which some 23,600 ranchers pay $1.86 per Animal Unit Month (AUM) to graze their livestock on Bureau of Land Management or Forest Service land. By executive order, Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt wants to gradually raise the rate to $4.28 per AUM, a level still below private rates. The vote occurred during debate on the Interior Department's fiscal 1994 appropriations-bill (HR 2520).

Sponsor Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said Babbitt's plan threatens to "destroy the lifestyule of the West, in particular the western ranching community." Opponent Howard Metzenbaum, Opponent Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said ''we lose money every year running a federal grazing program on lands that belong to each and every taxpayer in the country.'' Michigan Senators Carl Levin, D and Donald Riegle, D, voted no.

NEA Funding: By a vote of 65 for and 30 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment prohibiting National Endowment for the Arts grants to individuals, thus allowing them only for non-profit arts organizations. The amendment was proposed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to a fiscal 1994 appropriations bill (HR 2520) providing about $170 million for NEA grants and administration.

Take a color tour of nighttime sky not changed be-BULLOCK cause there already was a December with which to contend, and one December in a year is more than enough!

There will be very slim pickings among the planets in October; only Venus and Saturn will be visible, the former in the predawn sky. and the latter after sunset. Mercury, Mars and Jupiter will be too close to the sun to be seen easily.

There is one thing upon which we can depend every October: when it comes to the colors of our autumn foliage, this month is never a disappointment. Just as there are a variety of colors in the leaves, there is a great variety of color in the sky, and this month is a great time to take a celestial color tour.

Consider the color of the sky itself. The sky is not blue, nor, contrary to what your eyes tell you at dawn and dusk, is it red. Depending on how sunlight is scattered by our atmosphere, the sky just "appears" to take on different colors. Were it not for the atmosphere scattering sunlight, the sky would be black.

If you face due east about 30 minutes before sunrise this month, you will see an extremely bright "star." This will be Venus, the brightest planet in the sky. There will be a fairly bright star above and to the right of Venus; this is Regulus, and it represents the "heart" of Leo the lion. As the month progresses, Regulus will climb higher in the morning sky, and Venus will get lower as it approaches the sun. This will result in the apparent distance between Venus and Regulus nearly quadrupling. (An extremely rare event occurred more than a generation ago when Venus occulted (covered) Regulus on July 7, 1959.)

This is a good place to begin our color tour of the sky. The best way to compare the color differ-ences between Venus and Regulus will be with binoculars; adjust the binoculars so they are slightly out of focus. This will spread out the light and make their color more apparent. Venus is bright because its thick atmosphere reflects the light of the sun, so that planet's color appears much the same as sunlight.

Regulus, however, is a star, so it produces its own light. The color of the light tells us something about the star: a blue- white star, like Regulus, is young (as far as stellar ages go) and very hot; the surface temperature of Regulus is about 13,000 degrees Kelvin. (The sun's surface temperature is a mere 5,800 degrees Kelvin.) Regulus is 160 times more luminous than the sun and five times larger, but it's only the 21st brightest star in the sky. It doesn't look very impressive because is about 85 light-years away from us. (The light we see this morning left Regulus in 1908.)

Face the southwest around 6:45 a.m. on Oct. 5 and find the moon. It will be located between the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster and Aldebaran (al DEB a ran). The Pleiades, to the right of the moon, looks like a tiny dipper and represents the "shoulder" of Taurus the bull. Aldebaran, located to the left of the moon, is the bull's "eye.'

Aldebaran is a star like Regulus, but that's where the similarity ends. Even without using out-of-focus binoculars, Aldebaran's red color is very obvious. Red stars are ancient and fairly cool (by stellar standards). Aldebaran's surface temperature is around 3,400 degrees Kelvin. That's much cooler than the sun, but Aldebaran is still 125 times more luminous. The brightness is due to Aldebaran's size; it is a giant star, 40 times the diameter of the sun. Aldebaran, the 13 bright-est star, is about 68 light-years awav

the "club" of Orion (oh RYE an) the hunter. Drop a line from the moon to the southern horizon and you'll go right past another bright orange-red star. The star is named Betelgeuse ("Beetlejuice"), and its name means 'armpit of the giant;" a rather unromantic name for one of the largest stars in"the sky! (The name refers to Orion's right arm pi . . . er, shoulder.)

Betelgeuse is the 11th brightest star in the sky and is around 520 light-years away. It is 14,000 times more luminous than the sun and about 920 times larger. (If placed where the sunsis, the outer layers of this supergiant star would extend as far as the orbit of Jupiter!) The surface temperature is quite low; estimated at 3,100 degrees Kelvin, Betelgeuse's brightness can only be attributed to its great size.

The moon will be in Gemini on the morning of the 8th. It officially will be at first quarter phase at 3:35 p.m. On the following morning, the moon will be located below the star Castor. Castor marks a "head" of one of the twins. The other twin, Pollux, will be above and to the right of Castor. Although these stars are called "twins," some observers report Castor is bright white in color while Pollux has a golden tint.

Mercury is officially at maximum eastern elongation on the 14th. It will be 25 degrees to the east (left) of the sun, but will not be visible after sunset because it will be too close to the horizon.

ed a backyard pond when she began digging a hole to "keep my frustration level down" through a divorce.

When it was six feet deep, she decided to build a pond. She calls it a "floating pond" because it heaves with the ground in the winter, thus little winter damage.

She filled the hole with "any piece of junk I could find" — broken concrete, etc. — then packed it with builders sand and let it set for two months. The sand settled and made a solid base. Wolmanized wood forms the back. After setting the boards in holes, she cemented between each one, added wire mesh to the "wall" front and back, then painted it.

She cemented the sides and bottom of the pond, using a trowel and sometimes her hands, to get the cement smooth.

The seashell-shaped pond contains a figure of a girl standing on a tall pedestal and serves as a water fountain while providing sound as well as visual interest.

A hose directs water to provide oxygen and a filter also is used. Plants are artistically arranged and are growing in pots that are weighted with rocks. The pots are stuffed into the foot of old nylon hose so that the nylon covers the outside of the pot up to the rim. This keeps the dirt level at a minimum and is unobstrusive.

Boston ferns, papyrus grass, caladium, ribbon grass and an umbrella plant are removed in the fall and taken indoors, along with a water hyacinth. The hyacinth spreads rapidly and Messer buys a new one each year. She advises this as a first plant for beginners.

Waterlilies and an arrowhead are set in three inches of water into a large, deep bucket, mulched heavily up to the rim of the bucket and set in a protected area of the yard to overwinter.

When fresh water is necessary, it sets 24 hours before the Koi are returned.

Last summer, Laura and Jack Messer were married at this lovely site.

When Lydia Wallace and her family moved into their home in Birmingham 13 years ago, they inherited a large pond, approximately 80 by 50 feet.

The bottom and sides are clay, which had absorbed any chemicals put on the lawn and flower beds by previous owners, who had also used many chemicals to maintain the pond.

She didn't want to use chemicals, preferring a natural area to encourage wildlife. Now, twothirds of the surface of the water is covered with aquatic plants that reduce algae and weeds. An Art is expression. Local arts advocates and supporters have a special chance to express themselves.

A new feature has started in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers: guest columns on the Points of View page by people from the local community.

If you have a concern about the arts, and would like to reach people who wouldn't ordinarily turn to Creative Living, this is a good opportunity. You never know — in expressing your opinion you could be introducing someone to a niture, or how to turn your art and craft talents into a business. Art and craft classes covering a spectrum of media begin this week and continue with one- and two-night workshops through Dec. 14.

"The Leisure Program has been going on for about 20 years. It offers a variety of special interests for people to gain information about," said Michaelene Deeg, director of adult/community education for Wayne-Westland Schools. "From oil painting to builder's classes, we have a wide range of classes."

Opening up your mind to creative projects develops abilities to use in everyday problem solving, whether at work or home.

There are hundreds of interesting ways to develop creative living skills. Practicing the ancient art of origami ($17 for four weeks starting Oct. 7) will hone not only your creativity but concentration and sequencing skills as well as improve eye-hand coordination.

Art and craft classes serve to stimulate the mind in what may seem like unrelated areas of life. They provide a means of relaxation, recreation and a social setting to meet people, not to mention the opportunity to learn about other cultures.

symbolizes hope, change, life in general. It's a live, vibrant symbol of the auto industry.'

The largest of the three pieces was originally created as public art for a specific site on Oakland Avenue in downtown Birmingham. Set up to look like a mother duck and two ducklings, the sculpture speaks of the automobile in-dustry and its effect on all who live here.

Growing up in the Detroit area, most specifically Birmingham, left a definite imprint on Erickson's sculpture. It was at Seaholm High School where he first became interested in art while working in stage design:

"I thought about what Birmingham meant to me and remembered that it had once been an industrial area full of factories. All that has changed now and Birmingham is a bedroom community to the industrial center of Detroit. This piece is a direct symbol of this change as well as a metaphor for transportation or travel. At a higher level, it also represents the way the human spirit travels through learning, imagination and cultural experience.

Erickson works from a drawing to produce the large-scale sculptures but prefers to let the process of evolution invent the smaller works.

"I really believe in the spontaneous process, the poetry and beauty of that, the excitement of the investigation."

"Nomad," a smaller sculp-ture from the Wheel and Shelter Series, speaks about home and family and the basic need for such an institution.

'The idea of shelter is very important to my work," Erickson said. "The wheel is a metaphor for the flight of the spirit. We're all caught with wanting to be somewhere else.'

Cutting with a torch, flame cutting, cutting on a bandsaw, grinding, filing and polishing, all subtract from the work before the point of construction or assembly. On the bench rests his latest work, "Paddle Transportation and Boat. wheel remain key. Erickson makes sure that each sculpture incorporating a wheel as such will actually move and roll.

Earlier figurative work takes from nature. Honey locust pods, birch bark and pine pods, needles provide structure be-hind bronze. "It ties back into my love of nature, the growing of plants," Erickson said. "I bird watch and I garden.

That's part of who I am.

Erickson earned a bachelor of arts degree from Hope College in Holland, Mich., and a master of fine art degree from Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills.

He has received numerous grants and awards, including the Michigan Council for the Arts grant, Michigan Foundation for the Arts grant and scholarship, and the Tannahill faculty grant. His work is in the collections of Ex-Cello Corp., Albert Kahn president Edgar Parks and state Sen. Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills. Erickson is represented in Michigan by Lemberg Gal-

Gardens bloom at remodeling show

BY MARTY FIGLEY STAFF WRITER

Display gardens, created by members of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association, as well as nursery stock available for purchase, will be a big part of the Fall Remodeling Show, sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

The show will take place Thursday, Sept. 30, to Sunday, Oct. 3, at the Novi Expo Center, 1-96 and Novi Road.

Hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for children 6-12 and seniors, free for children younger than 6.

Family tickets (two adults and children) are available at Farmer Jack/A&P for $8. A two-for-one admission coupon for today, opening day, and other discount coupons are available at all Frank's Nursery & Craft stores.

Jeff Ball, nationally recognized yard and garden authority, author and garden expert for NBC-TV's "Today" show, will conduct lawn care workshops 4 and 7:30 p.m. Thursday-Friday; noon, 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday; and noon and 4 p.m. Sunday.

Ball has been researching vard and landscape care issues for 10 years and has written numerous magazine articles and several books about the subject. Ball is also the host of line of videotapes called "Yardening With Jeff Ball."

The schedule of topics and other speakers is as follows: "Compost: A Wasted Re-source," Robert Bricault, source." Wayne County-Michigan State University Extension horticulture agent, 5:30 p.m. Thursday and 3:30 p.m. Saturday; "Herbs in the Garden," advanced master gardener Marty Figley, 3 p.m. Friday; "Selection and Care of Trees,' MDLA consumer affairs director Vera Sullivan, 6 p.m. Friday; "The Pleasure of Roses," advanced master gardener and Rose Society past president George Hartley, 11 a.m. Saturday; and "Landscape Design Renovation," Ed Eaton, owner of Eaton Nursery in West Bloomfield, 11 a.m. Sunday.

A special area has been set aside for educational exhibits that will help homeowners better understand the whys and hows of lawn care. They include displays on eight-step lawn renovation, drip irrigation and hydroponics, set up in clear plastic so the process can be better understood.

It is in this area where Ball will serve as headmaster of his "Yardening Academy," sponsored by Frank's Nursery & Crafts. He will answer questions about specific yard care and home landscape concerns and give the most up-to-date, safe and effective solutions to these problems.

Featured topics will be water conservation in the landscape and hydroculture (growing houseplants in water). The water conservation topic will involve audience participation.

Prizes will be awarded each day. Fifty-dollar gift certificates from the Gardens Alive mail order company will be won by people who correctly guess the number of live lady-

Three feet of lawn around the edge hasn't been mowed to provide cover for emerging frogs and as undercover for many plants that edge the pond and provide color - blue, pink, purple, yellow and white for much of the season - Agrimony, Swamp milkweed, Japanese iris, Drawf Cattail, Pennywort and others. Ducks eat seeds of rushes and burr reeds provide a treat for waterfowl.

'What's really neat about a pond when you put fish in (sunfish, bluegills and chubs), you get a lot of wildlife," Wallace said.

A greenback and a great blue heron, a family of wood ducks, kingfishers, a snowy owl have visited at one time or another. Dragonflies, salamanders, toads, bullfrogs and green leopard frogs are quite at home. As a biological control for mosqui-bugs exhibited. Visitors will also learn why preconditioned ladybugs, beneficial bugs that eat aphids, won't "fly away home.

In addition, gardening tools from Jung Seeds, a prestigious seed company, and a Power Grower donated by Garden Party will be won by lucky visitors. Ball's books and videos will be available during the show.

toes she uses BT (bacillus thuringiensis) tablets that don't harm other living things. "Never spray or fertilize your lawn that is close to a natural pond where it can get runoff, because algae bloom will form," Wallace said.

Basically, the area is relatively easy to maintain. Wallace weeds, removes unwanted plants such as burrs and small saplings and cuts seedheads off plants to control them.

Wallace, husband Richard and family have enjoyed all aspects of their pond. When the ice freezes, it makes a handy skating rink!

Symphony showhouse unveils designer ideas

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN Special Writer

Imagine yourself stepping into the courtyard of a French chateau hundreds of years old where a carriage and horses may thunder through the arched iron gate at any moment.

Welcome to Villa Baronna, the 1993 Detroit Symphony Designer Showhouse in Bloomfield Hills.

Sponsored by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council, the seventh biannual showhouse, Oct. 2-24, enlists the talents of 24 interior designers to embellish the storybook setting. The architectural splendor of Europe synchronizes with crystal chandeliers, tapestries, rich fabrics, fine carpets and the tranquility of Lower Long Lake to create a dream world of ideas.

The three-level, $2.875 million mansion, designed and constructed by Gurka & Siler Builders Inc. and Erlich Development Co. of Bloomfield Hills, charms the simplest of souls with its 13,000 square feet of sophisticated beauty and unbridled romance. Six bedrooms, each with private bath, range from quietly elegant to blooming with spring florals.

'The Detroit Symphony Designer's

Showhouse is the major fund-raiser for the volunteer council. This is the kind of project that draws the general public in and makes them aware of the symphony," said Bonnie Lockwood, publicity cochair with Julie Stackpoole.

"We think the showhouse will provide a lot of inspiration and give a lot of ideas for dreaming.'

Tickets are $10 in advance (until Oct. 1) or $12 at the door; groups of 20 or more, $8. Tickets are available by calling the DSOH Volunteer Council Office at 962-1000.

A gala opening reception catered by Fox and Hounds of Bloomfield Hills will take place 6:30-8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1, at Villa Baronna, with a party 7-10 p.m. at First Security Savings Bank. Tickets are $50 per person, $100 for patrons.

"The symphony house gives people a taste of different looks. I would hate not topee Detroit have a symphony. This is a fun way to donate to the symphony and keep it alive," said Linda Bruce of the Curiosity Shoppe in Franklin, one of the designers taking part in the showcase of local talent.

Bruce and partner Laura Burt's concept for the chateau's music room sets the stage for fantasy, a chamber concert sounding through a room from long ago. Needlepoint featuring lyre plays off a full-size harp, violins and old-fashioned wooden music stands. Trompe l'oeil harps and lyre harmonize window corners. A soft teal green wallpaper echoes color charted in the needlepoint.

"We'll have romantic classical music playing," Bruce said. "If you were Mozart, you'd feel right at home.'

Amethyst, green and gold accentuate the pleasures found in the master bedroom by Neal Jay Herman Designs of Southfield. Herman bases the room around a French Normandie armoire. Draped with a canopy of silk, the bed revels in the elegance of an upholstered headboard slipcovered in green damask with gold braiding that runs through grommets tying the slipcover together.

Flanking the bed on the right, an antique concrete pedestal table serves as a writing surface. Focused in front of the fireplace, a pair of French chairs and breakfast table await the dawn. Gold leaf paper with a hint of amethyst covers the walls.

"The symphony house gives us a chance to showcase art in the form of interior design," Herman said.

When the volunteer council approached Gurka & Siler in May about creating a showhouse to benefit the symphony, 50 designers were invited to submit proposals. Vlasta Siler, the project's design coordinator, narrowed the decorating down to 24.

"There was no theme. Designers were left wild," Siler said.

Since the first showhouse was produced in 1981, the volunteer council has contributed well over half a million dollars to the DSO. The council is hoping for 10,000 to 15,000 visitors this year, with proceeds to benefit the general operating budget for the DSO's 1993-94 season.

Hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, and 2-6 p.m. Sunday. The house is at 3376 Franklin Road between Long Lake and Square Lake Roads. Free parking is provided by Kirk in the Hills, 1340 W. Long Lake Road, with free shuttle to the showhouse courtesy of real estate agent K.W. Peterson & Associates.

Redford sculptor lends hand to art auction benefit

Twenty artists, including sculptor Sergio DeGiusti of Redford, are doing their "part" for the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association --- literally.

The artists are transforming mannequin body parts, supplied by the BBAA, into objets d'art. These works will be auctioned at the first Odd Ball, to raise money for the BBAA building expansion now on at 1516 S. Cranbrook Road in Birmingham.

"I equate 'odd' with uniqueness and difference," said event chair Tina Parfitt of Birmingham. The Odd Ball, which is black tie optional, will take place Saturday, Oct. 16, at the Birmingham Country Club. It begins at 7 p.m. with hors d'oeuvres and entertainment, with dinner at 8 p.m. Tickets are $100 (Friend), $150 (Patron) or $200 (Benefactor) each. Call the BBAA at 644-0866 for tickets and information. Most of the artists "instantly knew which mannequin body piece they wanted," Parfitt said. Hands are very popular, she said.

DeGiusti is one of the artists lending a hand or two to the event. DeGiusti is working on two wall reliefs for the Odd Ball. Each of the wall reliefs features a slender hand, fingers bent as if gently holding something or gesturing.

"I thought the hands were kind of interesting," said DeGiusti, who also has work in Michigan Outdoor Sculpture IV at the Southfield Civic Center, on Evergreen between 10 and 11 Mile, through Oct. 15.

Each wall relief is about 24 inches in size and bears DeGiusti's classical style. The hands look like they were from Greek statues. They are placed in clay, the material flowing and filling around them like a draped gown. The men's faces carved into the clay resemble those of Roman or Greek figures.

DeGiusti is thinking of calling one "The Hand of Beatrice," after the guide in Dante Alighieri's "The Divine Comedy." The mannequin hand in this work rests on the head of Dante, shown in profile. Various shapes around the hand and the profile can represent mountains, forests or other landscape features.

In the other wall relief, the hand clutches the long hair of a man's head, also in profile. This depicts Salome with the head of John the Baptist, DeGiusti said.

When the works are finished, they will be covered with a rubber mold, from which a plaster cast will be made.

"I thought, all the years I've been at the BBAA, I want to do something, I'll do something kind of interesting for them," said De-Giusti, who started teaching there in 1964.

Among the other artists taking part in the Odd Ball are Danielle Bodine, Helen Febbo, Rosemary Gratch, Millie Janka, Diane Postula Levine, Jean McKnight, Michael Mahoney, Leslie Masters, Hope Palmer, Joan Schwartz, Patricia Senecoff, Julie Seregny, Linda Soberman, Patti Tapper, John Tormey, Karen Wydra, Ĝail Yurasek and Paula Zaks. All but two of the artists are BBAA faculty members.

Campus spotlights 21st-century poets

The Schoolcraft College Committee to Promote the Arts will sponsor Keith Taylor in a presentation "Poets for the 21st Centu-ry" 1-2:15 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 6 in F-530 (in the Forum Building on the Livonia campus). Admission is free.

Audience members will receive an annotated bibliography of 30 'younger" poets — poets who will likely continue to write, publish, and be read well into the next century. Taylor will read poems of some of them as well as his own.

Taylor's position gives him special qualifications for the presentation. For 14 years, he has not only unpacked and shelved many hundreds of poetry books but read most of them — as an employee of Ulrich's Book Shop, Borders Book Shop and now Shaman Drum Book Shop, all in Ann Arbor.

Taylor has published three volumes of his own poetry with a fourth scheduled to appear in October. He has contributed poems to scores of magazines, journals, broadsides and anthologies.

Two years ago, he received a Fellowship in Creative Writing from the National Endowment for the Arts. He was recently an adjunct lecturer in creative writing at the University of Michigan.

In 1992, Taylor appeared on more than 30 public television stations as one of four artists featured in the short documentary film "Isle Royale Reflections, produced by On-Cue Productions (Marquette)

Taylor holds degrees from Bethel College in Indiana and Central Michigan University. He has studied at the Cranbrook Institute, Indiana University at South Bend, the Sorbonne, and St. Peter's College, Oxford.

The Schoolcraft College Committee to Promote the Arts was formed in 1988. Members are Dr. Louis Reibling, academic dean; Professor Donald Morelock, music; and Professor Joanne Stein, English.

A reception at The Community House, 380 S. Bates, will immediately follow. Admission is free. Reservations are requested. Call the program department at The Community House, 644-5832.

This is another presentation of Viewpoints, an ongoing series of Founders Society, Detroit Institute of Arts; Barbara Kratchman. director of the Michigan Council of the Arts 1985-91; John Urice, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, Oakland University; and Robert Schefman, a West Bloomfield sculptor whose work was covered during a community exhibit on New Year's Eve.

As director of the state arts organization during the polemic

Mapplethorpe exhibition in Cincinnati. Lawson had to deal with this exhibit and the controversy that surrounded it. He has served on many program panels for the National Endowment for the Arts and has been chairman of the NEA State Programs Advisory Panel

West Bloomfield artist Nora Chapa Mendoza will exhibit more than 20 paintings in the Livonia Civic Library Art Gallery, Farmington Road and Five Mile Road. The Livonia Arts Commission exhibit runs Oct. 2 to Nov. 6 during regular library hours. A public reception to meet the artist will take place 7-9 p.m. Monday, Oct.

"Spirits of the Fourth World" will provide an indigenous perspective of the artist's work. Mendoza has been a prolific painter in oils and acrylics for more than 30 years. Her paintings show a fierce spirit of individualism and she has become well-known for her hidden forms within the abstract.

Mendoza exhibited at the Midwest Hispanic Conference in Maryville, Ind., and the National Council of La Raza, Cobo Center, Detroit.

LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY SHOWCASES

Opening Oct. 4 — Livonia Arts Commission presents an exhibition of contemporary dolls by Plymouth artist Ingrid Dijkers. Fairies, elves and mystical figures inhabit the imagination of this American artist born in the Netherlands. Her interest was stimulated by old folk tales and classical works dealing with out-of-the-ordinary stories of real or imaginery personalities. To Oct. 29 in the cylindrical showcases on the second floor of the library, Five Mile and Farmington Road. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

II THE SPACE GALLERY

To Oct. 10 — "Full Circle: cycles, spheres, loops," Johnny DeKam and Kelly McCormick. Paintings, prints, sculptures, drawings, multimedia celebrating the most perfect form in the universe. Grand River Gallery District, Grand River at Woodward, Detroit. II OBJECTS OF ART

To Oct. 11 — An exclusive showing of contemporary figurative sculptures by Len Testa continues. Testa's innovative technique uses glass-reinforced resin with bronze, silver and black lacquer finishes. Hours: 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 6243 Orchard Lake Road, in the Sugar Tree Plaza just north of Maple in West Bloomfield, 539-3332.

Friday, Oct. 15 — "Fear," a member theme show that explores how fear not only touches our lives, but shapes our behavior and in many circumstances, defines and rules us. Opening reception: 7-10 p.m. Oct. 15. 29 E. Grand River, Detroit. Hours: noon to 5 p.m. Thursday-Saturday.

BIRMINGHAM BLOOMFIELD ART ASSOCIATION

To Oct. 15 — The 1993 Birmingham Society of Women Painters exhibit, "Environments." This year the show will include a separate, non-juried section entitled "For Love of the BBAA," for which each member of the BSWP donated a small painting, with all proceeds to benefit the BBAA building expansion. Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, 644-0866.

To Oct. 16 — Stephen Ligosky of Detroit will be the first artist to exhibit at the new gallery, owned and operated by Royal Oak artist and antique dealer Lulu Cameron. The show will include some of Ligosky's larger paintings on canvas as well as a series of smaller watercolors. Hours: 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, to 9 p.m. Thursday, 405 N. Main, Royal Oak, 542-6464.

Gala preview will open 'Our Town' exhibition

The Community House, 380 S. Bates in Birmingham, will open its eighth annual Our Town Art Exhibition and Sale at a gala preview 6-10 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 20.

The show will be open to the public 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday-Sunday, Oct. 21-24. Admission is free. For more information, call the special events coordinator at-The Community House, 644-5832.

Franklin Bank, headquartered in Southfield with a Birmingham branch on Woodward at Hazel, is the sole sponsor of the event. Allen Rubiner is this year's juror. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taylor Jr. are 1993 honorary chairmen. A total 199 Michigan artists have been selected for the exhibition.

At an awards ceremony 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 24, $10,000 will be given to award-winning artists. Over the past seven years, artists have sold 414 pieces of work at the show.

Several special events highlight Our Town.

Rubiner will speak on "The Current Art Market — An Overview" at the Professional Women's Breakfast 7:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 21. The cost is $5. Later that day, 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., The Community House will host a tour of private art collections in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area. A luncheon and guided tour of Our Town will follow. The cost is $30. Friday, Oct. 22, Art and Jazz IV will stage a party complete with hors d'oeuvres, a silent auction, door prizes and live jazz 6:30-9:30 p.m. Tickets are $15 advance, $18 at the door.

Children will get their turn 9:30-11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 23, at an art workshop at which they can make lifesize pictures of themselves. The cost is $5.

A student art exhibition will take place Sept. 28 to Oct. 8. Teachers from all private, parochial and public schools in the Birmingham Bloomfield area have selected representative work from their students to display. The Our Town juror will select some of the work to hang with the professional show. In 1992, 42 schools participated and submitted 350 pieces of student art work.

Bloomfield Hills resident Libby Dickinson is the chair of the event this year. Her committee includes Andy Anderson, Bonnie Blanding, Sue Blank, Ann Booth, Bev Booth, Marlies Castaing, Bebecca Christian, Carol Cutler, Janie Darling, Martha Eberly, Betty Edman, Helen Febbo, Sylvia Hagenlocker, Bev Hoglund, Sue Kessler, Renee Losh, Carol Lynch, Wendy Lynch, Mary Beth MacGuidwin, Jan Mann, Dee Wright-Masilotti, Pam McCarthy, Karen Mellott, Barbara Jean Moss, Jean Oline, Cathie Pollock, Whitney Shapland, Lori Simon, Jan Stinson and Sandy Wagner.

Yoko Ono shares personal 'Glimpse' in area visit

BY MARY KLEMIC STAFF WRITER

Yoko Ono's current exhibit at the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum in Bloomfield Hills is a blend of the past, present and future.

It's the past in that the show highlights Ono as an avant-garde artist and marks her return to Cranbrook after four years. It's the present in that it features primarily work Ono created during the 1990s. And it's the future in its suggestions of what lies ahead. "I still believe that ideas can create reality," Ono said Monday, before she was to give a lecture to Cranbrook students. "Ideas are very strong; thoughts are very strong. We could rely on that . . .

(and) create a better world."

The exhibit, "Glimpse: Works by Yoko Ono at Cranbrook," continues through Oct. 31 at 1221 Woodward.

Ono, now 60, was renowned as an artist during the early and mid 1960s. She was associated with the Fluxus art movement, which challenged materialism. Fluxus artists made inexpensive works that could be reproduced easily. Ono's marriage to John Lennon brought her a celebrity status that overshadowed her status as an artist.

"Glimpse" features conceptual "Instructions for Paintings" from the 1960s that have never been exhibited outside Japan, 10 recent paintings, five "Weight Pieces (Mind/Scales)," a large version of "Play It By Trust," 17 objects from the "Family Album (Blood Objects)" series, a large installation called "Endangered Species: 2319-2322," an installation of 81 Egyptian bronze cats with glowing eyes that is called "Bastet," a participatory work called "Patches of Blue" and Ono's newest work, "Hiroshima."

"It's a very, very special moment for Cranbrook and a very, very special moment for Yoko, said Roy Slade, museum director. "She's never seen this body of work together.'

"I think it's great. It's really exciting," said associate curator David D.J. Rau, who curated the exhibit with Jon Hendricks. "This work is so different from what she showed in 1989 . . . '90s issues of politics and social awareness and where the world is going."

Ono had spoken to students at her previous show at Cranbrook in 1989. Meeting with students and the beauty of the place are among the pleasures Cranbrook holds for her.

"The first thing I thought of was the students . . . I really came back here to say hello to the students again," she said.

Slade saw an Ono performance at Leeds in the mid-'60s and a small show of her bronzes in the late '80s. He talked with collector Gil. Silverman, who knew of Ono through her work with Fluxus and said she might be interested in a showing at Cranbrook.

Stade met with the artist, and her 1989 Cranbrook presentation was arranged. Since that show, Ono has had solo exhibits in museums and galleries in Denmark, England, Finland, Germany, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Norway, Poland and the United States.

"It really stimulated her to do a whole new body of work," Slade said.

The pieces in "Glimpse" seem right at home in the museum. A work with a vine reaching out of a stretched linen canvas is placed next to a window through which leafy bushes can be seen. The effect is as though part of the outside greenery is coming through the wall. Another work, a butterfly in a wood-and-glass box, had been placed on a wall near the floor. Ono had it moved near the ceiling, saying "A butterfly must fly." "Patches of Blue" (1993) consists of blue cardstock pieces, looking like parts of a jigsaw puzzle in a helmet. Visitors may take a piece of the "sky" from the work.

Ono's "Smoke Painting" (1961-93) had asked viewers to light the canvas with a cigarette and watch the movement of smoke as the canvas burned. The painting would be completed when the whole canvas was gone. "Instructions for Paintings," words without illustrations, included one for "Painting to See the Sky": Drill two holes into a canvas. Hang it where you can see the sky (Change the place of hanging. Try both the front and the rear windows, to see if the skies are different.)

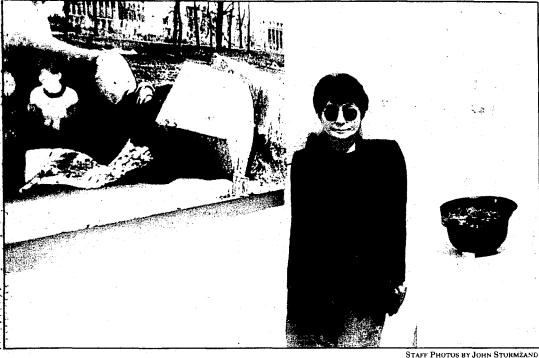

Among the "Blood Objects" (1993) are a bronze mirror, hairbrush, place setting and clock splattered with red paint. Red shading also seeps in some of the photos in "Endangered Species" (1992) — over a doorway or a building. Faces of children appear in the building. "Endangered Species" also includes a bronze family on a bench, their heads bowed. Boxes around the room contain plaster parts of bodies that relate to different members of the family.

Weight Pieces" (1990) consist of old-fashioned scales weighing such items as a family photo-graph and a gun. "Play It By Trust" (1991) is a long table set with chess games; the board, pieces, table and chair all the same color.

Hours are 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for senior citizens and full-time students, free to children younger than 7 and museum members. Guided tours are available. Call 645-3323 for tours and 645-3312 for general information.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Realtors promote fire safety

If it works once, why not try it again?

That's the thinking of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate offices, which again this year will co-sponsor a series of community events relating to Fire Prevention Week. "We sell houses. This is a way for us to tell people how to protect their houses and themselves, said Betty Barbour, manager of the Bloomfield Hills office. "It works hand in hand.'

"We do it because we believe in community service," said Jackie Steuer, manager of the West Bloomfield office. "If we can help and educate the public on fire safety, that's wonderful.

The West Bloomfield office on Northwestern Highway will be involved in several activities the week of Oct. 3.

Sales associates will distribute fire safety educational materials and promotional items to children 1-4 p.m. Sunday at the Farmington Hills fire station on Drake between 12 and 13 Mile roads.

The fire department will offer educational training including how to escape from a controlled Smoke House.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer agents also will distribute educational materials and fun items like coloring sheets, stickers and balloons 6-8 p.m. Tuesday at the Ground Round on Orchard Lake between 13 and 14 Mile roads. The Farmington Hills Fire Dept. will have a fire truck in front of the restaurant for children to explore. Sparky the fire dog and Pluggy the talking fire hydrant will offer safety tips.

Sales associates also will mingle with adults and children to hand out fire safety materials 6-8 p.m. Tuesday at the Pizza Hut next to their office on Northwestern at 14 Mile.

West Bloomfield fire personnel will talk about fire safety and have a truck available to tour.

Banker The Coldwell Schweitzer office on Long Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills also plans to be involved in a couple of activities.

Sales associates will distribute safety materials at the Children's Village of Oakland County off Telegraph 9-11 a.m. Monday.

Salespeople will help teach fire safety and distribute educational materials at the Mature Mingles Senior Center on Wing Lake Road 10-11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Jeff Duncan, a Birmingham firefighter, is scheduled to give a safety demonstration.

Fire extinguishers, smoke detectors and safety ladders, donated by Sears of Novi, will be given away. An old-fashioned pipe or-gan, compliments of Huntington Bank, will provide music. Cider and doughnuts will be served.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer's Northville office on Six Mile between Haggerty and Sheldon roads will host a Smoke House, an emergency escape simulator operated by Northville's Fire Department, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sun-

Fire trucks and an EMS unit will be on hand. Police officers will be available to fingerprint children. Safety materials will be distributed, fire safety equipment raffled and refreshments available.

Buyer takes a bath over septic system

$730,000 house, were told we had city water. I now find that we have a septic system and well with no sewer, as promised. The lot is worth $500,000. Am I in a position to make a legal argument under the circumstances?

we

To the extent that representations were made to you by the seller or the Realtor, and to the extent that you relied on those representations to your detriment in deciding to buy the house, you do have a cause of action for damages.

But I would suggest that the representations could have been avoided by your obtaining an inspection of the premises before your purchase although I cannot tell from the question whether that was part of the agreement.

If you had an attorney representing you, the attorney may have suggested that you confirm the validity of these material representations before you closed. You apparently are paying the price for buying a very expensive property but perhaps not carefully following through with the details although the seller may well be responsible for your loss.

"You apparently are paying the price for buying a very expensive property but perhaps not carefully following through with the detalls although the seller may well be responsible for your less.'

Our board has hired a management company that has many sites and has promoted itself as a company that can better contract with sub-contractors because of its size. The problem is that we are in the middle of the contract with the management company, but we cannot get them to perform their duties because they are too busy. We talked to the principal of the management company who has all kinds of excuses. How can be extricate ourselves from the contract?

There should be a provision in your management aagreement that allows you to terminate your contract for cause which can be substantiated in regard to the management company's alleged unwillingness or inability to perform its duties under the management contract. If you have made reasonable efforts to get the management company to discharge its contractual duties, consult with your association attorney.

You should also know that many management agreements are negotiated or have a clause that provides the association with an "out" of the agreement even if there is not cause. Check your contract; you may have a legal basis to terminate the contract and if necessary, seek damages for the lack of performance by the management company. But it may be more cost effective for you to try to negotiate with the management company to try to resolve the problem or peacefully terminate the agreement as of a specified date.

Joint effort to benefit Lighthouse

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors and Standard Federal Bank. headquartered in Troy, are combining to promote a benefit for Lighthouse of Oakland County, a human services agency.

A social evening including a private preview and shopping of Neiman Marcus fall and winter collections, hors d'oeuvres, drinks and raffle, will be held Wednes-day, Oct. 13, at the store in the Somerset Collection.

Tickets, at $30, are available by calling Kerry R. Schreiber, chairwoman of the realty board's community service committee and Realtor associate for Max Broock, at 646-1400.

Lighthouse is a non-profit agency that concentrates on homelessness and hunger prevention. Lighthouse currently is involved in an ambitious neighborhood revitalization program in Pontiac.

"One reason we've chosen this to be our charity is it ties in with what we do," Schreiber said. "It's also an excellently run organization.

Redstone appointment

Daniel Redstone, president of Redstone Architects, West Bloomfield, has been named to the 1994 Professional Conduct Committee of the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards. The committee studies the state boards' responsibilities that relate to the conduct and professional development of registered architects.

A former grader for the Architectural Registration Exam, Redstone is the vice chairman of the Michigan Bureau of Occupational and Professional Regulation. He has also served in leadership positions as the Michigan AIA liaison to the national chapter of the American Institute of Architects. A member of the Detroit AIA chapter, he has been president vice president, treasurer and chair of the Public Relations Committee. He currently serves on the board of directors of the Detroit chapter and the Michigan Society of Architects.

Redstone has also been active in the Southfield and Livonia chambers of commerce and the Bloomfield Hills School District.

Campbell/Manix on the go

Campbell/Manix, a Southfield firm that designs, engineers and constructs industrial and commercial buildings, has begun three new projects and completed two others.

The largest is a 53,500-square-foot retail facility at Ford and Southfield roads in Detroit. The $2.2 million building is shared by Office Depot and CompUSA. Owned by Etkin Equities, it was a design and construction project for Campbell/ Manix.

The company has also designed and is now building a 36,000-square-foot electronic retail store in Dearborn scenduled to be occupied by Best Buy in November.

Construction is also scheduled to be completed in November on a $1.4 million addition to the Schenck Pegasus Corp. manufacturing and office facility in Troy.

Other projects include construction of a $1.8 million emissions lab for Mercedes Benz of North America in Ann Arbor. The building was designed by Harley, Ellington, Pierce, Yee Associates of Bloomfield Hills and is scheduled for completion in December. Both companies also combined talents on a renovation of an office and engineering facility for Toyota in Ann Arbor Technology Park.

Science & structures

Structures, a traveling exhibit on loan from the Association of Science-Technology Centers, will allow visitors to explore engineering principles of the building profession. It will open Oct. 2 and close Jan. 3 at Cranbrook Institute of Science.

The exhibit features 12 work stations where visitors experiment with do-it-yourself models and devices. By pushing and pulling various materials, visitors discover how tension, compression and sheer force affect architectural form.

Experimenting with triangular supports, visitors rearrange the trusses on a model bridge to discover what combinations form the strongest bridges. They may also use a polariscope to examine the changing forces a bridge is subjected to when a vehicle crosses. The younger set can create their own structures with building blocks under a ■ Laugh and the world laughs with you. But you have a better chance of hearing the laughter when you build a performance theater for comics that seats about 350.

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

The Second City - Detroit Comedy Theatre and Risata restaurant have given second life to an abandoned clothing store in downtown Detroit.

Victor Saroki, a Birmingham architect, and Lucy Earl, a Bloomfield Hills resident who serves as executive creative director for Little Caesar Enterprises, played key roles in the transformation. And a complete renovation it was, inside and out.

The 65,000-square-foot building next to the Fox Theatre, former flagship of the Hughes & Hatcher chain. was completely gutted to concrete slabs and beams. In its place rose an intimate club completely painted black with black carpeting seating 350 cabaret style with gently sloping sight lines. The restaurant seats about 400 on several levels and features a mix of slate, wood floors, brick walls, steel girders and exposed mechanical systems.

"We wanted to have a sense of presence," Saroki said. "We didn't want it to look like a new building on the horizon.

It would have been easier to knock everything down and start from scratch, Earl conceded, "but not as interesting."

"It was (originally) built in the 1920s," Saroki said. "Understanding the structure was very complex. One of the difficulties was there were no documents, old plans. It was kind of search and discovery. It was a slow process.

demolition in March. The facilities opened earlier this month. The project was still being developed as demolition went on," Saroki said. "We were reacting to different situations. We did find out that the building had four additions. With four additions, there was no consistency.

But that factor turned out to be a blessing in disguise, Earl said. "That old structure gave us nuances," she said. "You get all these wonderful dining areas separate so you don't feel like you're in one big room.'

Second City's humor fundamentally is raw, kind of grass roots, sim-ple," Saroki said. "The reason the room is all black is we didn't want to detract from the show and humor. Part of the atmosphere of the Fox is opulence. Here, it's totally opposite.

The stage is forward, a semi-circular format, platforms on every level. That's what makes it a great experience. There's never anyone in front of you. The idea is to sit together and laugh with friends," he said.

"There's no bad seat in the the-ater," Earl said. "It's very intimate."

The open lobby of the theater and restaurant is highlighted by a circular bar and a large, custom-made, galva-nized steel, stained glass chandelier upwards of 15 feet in length.

"The bar becomes the focal point of the building corner," Saroki said. "A lot of emphasis was put on that corner so when people walk by, they get an idea of energy.

"Drinking rails and bar stools are at the windows," Earl added. "We want people to drive by and see some-

Building keeps steady pace

Residential builders in southeastern Michigan are on a pace to start about as many new houses this year as last, according to a Livonia-based publication that tracks national construction trends.

Permits were pulled for slightly more than 7,300 singlefamily units here through the first six months of the year, a .6 percent increase from the comparable period of 1992, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

This market, which includes Wayne and Oakland counties, ranked 11th nationally for the six-month period in terms of single family residential permits issued.

Southeastern Michigan was just behind Miami-Ft. Lauderdale, where post-1992 hurricane activity continues with 7,400 units permitted, and just ahead of Houston, with 6,900 units.

Existing home sales, often a prelude to buying new, are strongest in Rochester Hills and Canton

"The metro (Detroit) area's one-fam (single-family) activity has been remarkably consistent during the past nine years, especially for a market so tied to a cyclical industry like autos," U.S. Housing Markets reported.

"One-fam permits have been between 11,700 and 15,500 every year since 1985, and will fall in that range in 1993." Last year, some 14,700 units were permitted.

Demand here is weaker for new upscale houses costing $300,000 and up, while units priced at $175,000 and lower, especially in the $80,000-$135,000 range sell best, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

"The metro area has enjoyed a 1.5-percent growth in employment during the last four quarters, including a small gain in manufacturing.

"The auto industry is regaining some strength, but the effects of plant closings are far from over," the report continued. "GM is about to shut its big Willow Run plant after winning a court fight with local officials."

Existing home sales, often a prelude to buying new, are strongest in Rochester Hills in the north central part of the metro area and Canton in the west, U.S. Housing Markets reported.

Residential builders nationally are expected to pull permits for some 950,000 single-family units this year, their best showing in five years.

New home sales nationally this year are expected to approach 675,000, 10 percent higher than last year and nearly one third higher than the 1991 low point of the housing cycle, the publication indicated.

Remodeling show opens at Expo Center

The first Fall Remodeling Show sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan runs today through Sunday at the Novi Expo Center, 1-96 at Novi Road.

Show hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for adults 65 years and older and children ages 6-12. Kids under 6 are admitted free. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack/A&P stores for $8. Some 200 exhibitors are expected to show their goods.

"The Fall Remodeling Show offers homeowners a onestop shopping opportunity for their home and garden," said Fred Capaldi, BASM president. "They can compare products, prices. They don't have to go to 15 different places."

The exhibits include new technologies, products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, appliances, mechanical systems and decorative accessories. Yard care, furnishings and craft items also will be displayed.

"Basic building areas were left exposed," Saroki said.

No efforts were made to hide or disguise updated heating, lighting and plumbing systems.

"It has a warehouse, light, bricky look," Earl said.

"You get a nice view of the city at different levels," Saroki said. "You see different details at different levels."

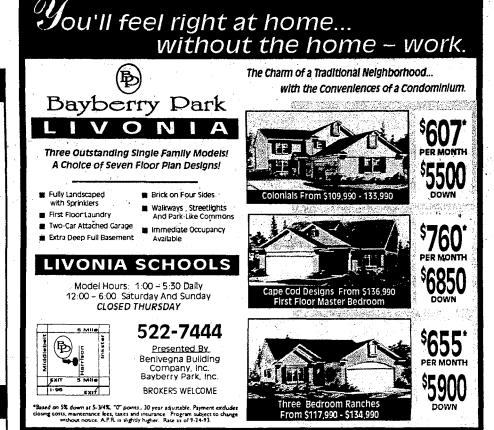

That's what urban architecture is all about — openness, energy, vitality inside and out, he said.

Next year when the weather warms, drinks, dining and dancing will be available on a rooftop terrace, Earl said.

"Atanas Ilitch, executive producer of The Second City, has been the driving force of energy," she said. "He wanted upbeat, fun, comfortable. I can't think of how many times he used the word comfortable."

Saroki pegged construction costs at several million dollars.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

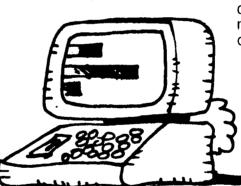

Left include the price. Don't vaste your time or a potential ouyer's time. If you advertise the orice of the item or service you offer, the people who respond o your ad will be those who are renuinely interested. Surveys how that readers are more nterested in those items and ervices they know are within heir price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!		5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

If we hurried things up to keep up with demand. maybe we would be making cars. But we wouldn't be making Volkswagens.

But now they're here. And you can see the painstaking care and obsessive attention to detail everywhere you look, touch and kick. And to thank you for waiting, the new Golf and Jetta have a special lease rate and the longest limited powertrain warranty in the business: 10 years or 100,000 miles.

See your Volkswagen retailer for details and a test drive.

It would be a good idea to do it today. Because due to the way we make Volkswagens, supplies are naturally limited.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

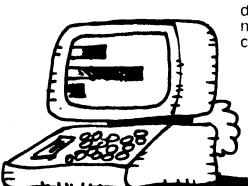

:. Include the price. Don't vaste your time or a potential ouyer's time. If you advertise the orice of the item or service you offer, the people who respond o your ad will be those who are renuinely interested. Surveys how that readers are more nterested in those items and ervices they know are within heir price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let notential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!	5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Demand for the new Volkswagen Golf /// and Jetta,,, has been-drumroll please-nothing short of overwhelming.

In fact, in just 12 months, the Golf has become the best-selling car in the world.

If we hurried things up to keep up with demand, naybe we would be making cars. But we wouldn't be making Volkswagens.

But now they're here. And you can see the painstaking care and obsessive attention to detail everywhere you look, touch and kick. And to thank you for waiting, the new Golf and Jetta have a special lease rate and the longest limited powertrain warranty in the business: 10 years or 100,000 miles.

See your Volkswagen retailer for details and a test drive.

It would be a good idea to do it today. Because due to the way we make Volkswagens, supplies are naturally limited.

Fall home improvement tips from the expert

by Glenn Haege America's Master Handyman Special Writer

all is an ideal time to look at the outside of your home like a real estate appraiser to find everything that could cause trouble during the winter. It is cool and comfortable, perfect weather conditions for painting. Most important, all these outside projects will save you money, because things can only get worse during the harsh winter months,

•First of all, let's look down. Is the slope of the ground always running away from the house? Are there any holes or gullies, sort of like birdbaths, that will become miniature lakes near your house? How about the sidewalk and drive way? Have they begun to sink and direct water toward your house? Are they cracked and pitted, or are there signs of erosion that need to be filled in?

•Now, lets look at the home. What is the condition of your home's siding and trim? Do the masonry joints need to be retuck pointed because the old mortar is cracked? Is the paint weathered, and cracking and peeling, or showing signs of wrinkling? How about the windows? Do they need reglazing? What about the caulking around windows, doors and corners of the house? Is the caulk hard? It should be

resiliency necessary to do the job. It should be replaced.

Do you have extensions on the down spouts? Extensions are necessary to move the water away from the foundation of the house. Think of it as putting your basement on a diet. No more water. Work at it, work towards it. Now is the time to be successful.

•Now we're going to look up. Don't climb up on the roof unless you are inexcellent physical condition and are not bothered by heights.

Most of us are better off just walking around the house and garage and looking up at the roof from a distance of 15 or 20 feet. Now, what you can see is the over-all appearance of the shingles. Are they showing wear by curling up around the edges. or "eve browing", kind of a lumpy appearance, or major discoloration? What about the valleys? Do they show excessive signs of discoloration or cracking? These are all signs that the roof needs patching or replacing.

How about the eaves troughs? Are there signs of pulling away? The best sign we have that the wood behind the eaves troughs, what we call the fascia board, is soft and needs replacing, is that the long spike type nails are pulling away from the eaves troughs. It is a great indication that water is working itself behind the eaves troughs, curtailing down the side of the house and causing tremendous erosion problems. Fall is the time to tighten that up.

Following are some more quick tips for getting geared-up for the cold months that are inevitably ahead of us:

•Windows: Let's try to prepare your windows for winter. If you are planning on replacing windows, if they are more than 30 years old. if they are single-pane windows, now is the time to get the window companies out there to give you an estimate. Make sure they give a completion date right on the contract, not a start date; you don't care when they start, you want a completion date (when they will be finished and out of your house)

If you don't have the money for replacing your windows, and want See Tips, 4

• Fall• HOME IMPROVEMENT 1993

Fall is traditionally a time of change. The leaves turn to rich, vibrant hues, the air is crisp and cool. Days are shorter, and you'll start spending more time indoors--maybe you'll want to start those projects you've been putting off all summer.

In this issue of Fall Home Improvement, which appears today, Thursday, September 30, 1993 in all Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, you'll find unique ideas for saving and creating a sense of space, along with helpful tips from local expert, Glenn Haege.

to extend your old windows for a few more years, let's see what we can do to give them more winter weather protection.

First of all, check the putty around the window that sticks to the wood frame or against the brick or aluminum siding. Take your thumb and push in on that caulking material. If it is like a rock, it is not doing anybody any good. You can remove it with one of the putty removers on the market that heat and soften the putty to make that job a lot easier. Now is the ideal time to replace it. Check the glazing that holds the glass against the window surface. If that is cracked and split, it's not holding back any water. You guessed it, replace it now.

Inside storm windows work very well. If you do not like the look of the plastic "shrink wrap" type of interior storm windows, consider magnetic polycarbonate interior storms. They are fastened with magnets and do a really good job of sealing out the cold air and make a big thermal break on the inside, much better than exterior storm windows.

If you already have thermal windows and you are starting to get a clouding filling between the panes, the seal is broken. The window frame does not have to be replaced, just the window, at a fraction of what you'd pay for new windows.

 Paintable Exterior Surfaces: If the exterior paint job is starting to look worn. weathered, cracked, crazed, crumbly, now is the perfect time to paint. Remember, 60% of the job is pre-paint preparation. Scrapping, washing with TSP, and rinsing thoroughly, are very vital to the success of your paint job.

The other part is the paint, itself. Don't skimp on the paint. Don't buy by price. buy by features, by reputation. Buy by performance. Ladle the paint on like you are icing a cake. Don't try to stretch the paint. The paint must be at least five mills thick when it is dry for the paint to do its job, so you can stay off the ladder. Most importantly, so you can brag about the results.

•Caulking: All those irritating drafts are due to bad windows or dried up caulking joints. If the windows are fine, it is the caulking. Remember, if an ant can get in your house, the wind and cold can get in big time. Acrylic caulks. Urethane caulks. High Performance caulks work best. Read the instructions. Remember, any crack over a half-inch wide is considered an architectural gap and a backer rod must be used first before you caulk it. That will make that caulking last a long time.

•Concrete Cracks: You can fill in the small cracks (smaller than 1/2" wide) with a product called Gray Crack Seal by Ouikrete. It's like putty to use, it extrudes like mustard, and dries rapidly but stays firm and flexible. One of the great things about it is that it's gray and does not look like new concrete, but blends in very well.

What about the expansion joints between the cement slabs? If they have weathered away, now is the time to fix them. Use an ice scrapper blade or the toe of a shovel, to clean them out as best you can, then back fill with sweeping sand or masonry sand. Pack it down to leave about 1 1/2" from the surface of the concrete slab. Lay a backer rod on top of the sand. then pour a very special compound called Alco Guard. It is ready to use, apply two thin coats. This will give you a nice black seal.

If the opening is very large, you can replace it with a new expansion joint that you can purchase at any masonry supply house.

•Cement and Concrete Surface Protection: Winter is the worst time for cement wear because of the freeze and thaw cycling of the water and the air temperatures, the snow and the ice. You can seal all concrete areas, walkways, driveways, etc., with a water seal.

•Garage Floors: This is also a great time to thoroughly scrub and clean a raw. unpainted garage floor. Use a water base acrylic cement sealer on the garage floor. Rolling on two coats will give your garage floor great protection from all those road salts, rust and oil stains your car tracks in during the winter.

 Calcium Chloride: Winter is coming. so is ice. You know that you are going to need to melt the ice on sidewalks, stairs and driveways. Go to the store and pick up Calcium Chloride in flake or pellet form.

The pellet gives more traction, but the flake is a lot less expensive; both work a lot better than rock salt.

.Locks and Hinges: Clean and lubricate all door locks and hinges with powdered graphite. Do it now, not when the first freezing rain happens. While you're at it, how about the locks and hinges on the cars?

•Thresholds: Door thresholds have gotten out of adjustment over the summer and will let in a tremendous amount of cold drafts this winter. Most threshold plates are adjustable, simply loosen the screws at the top of the threshold to realign for a perfect fit. If not adjustable, there are vinyl and brush type sweeps that can be attached to the door to give it that tight weather proof seal. Be sure you do this to all exterior doors, not just the front.

•Household Pests: If birds, squirrels or chipmunks have taken up residency in your attic, get them out NOW! They can do a lot of damage during the winter.

An easy way to drive most pests away is to take a shallow pan, two quarts of ammonia, and a roll of toilet paper up to the attic. Pour the ammonia inside the pan The ammonia will soak into the toilet paper and send that beautiful odor throughout the attic. No self-respecting critter will put up with a smell like that.

When your premises have been vacated, seal any holes with an insulating foam. like Great Stuff 8, and re-screen vents with tiberglass screening. See Tips, 8

Making the most of limited space

by Joan Boram Special Writer

place for everything and everything in its place," used to be on the escutcheon of every homeowner. The trouble is, everything has multiplied, and places have remained basically the same. Often enough, it isn't really more space that we need, we just need to take another look at what we're doing with the space we have.

Emmy Murphy, hostess of Detroit's Channel 56 "The Emily Murphy Show," for years had her home office on the floor of her basement. "I had file cabinets," says Murphy, "but I didn't have a desk. When I wanted to look up something in a file. Ljust spread the contents all over the floor. Of course, it was carpeted, but underneath it was cold, unyielding concrete!"

Murphy had a lovely "guest" bedroom on the second floor of her West Bloomfield home. Everything a guest room should have, it had - a crystal decanter and glass for water, a couple of good books, comfy pillows - everything but guests! But if a guest showed up, the room was ready.

"One day I was complaining to a friend about how uncomfortable it was working on the basement floor," says Murphy. "she asked me why I didn't use the guest room as an office. How often did I have guests? When I thought about it. I had exactly two overnight guests the previous year!"

After the appropriate mental adjustments (really the hardest part of converting a traditional room to a non-traditional use). Murphy bought a slab door and two twodrawer filing cabinets, thus creating a simple desk. She brought up files from the basement as needed, and moved her computer from the kitchen. With her trusty portable phone by her side, she's ready for business - and off of the basement floor!

Laura Kaminsky, American Society of Interior Designers (A.S.I.D.), was asked to carve out a space somewhere in a client's house for a home office. The client's business required a lot of storage space, so it was more of a challenge than merely converting a closet into a home office.

"After interviewing the client," says the Livonia-based designer, "I found that she only used her formal dining room once a year, for Thanksgiving, and even then—it wasn't big enough for the 20+ guests. Furthermore, she and her husband never used the living room; they relaxed in the more informal family room.

"The answer was obvious: turn the dining room into an office, and the living room into a dining room. It took my client a couple of days to get used to the idea, but it's been very successful."

The dining room/office is a gracious space, so it can easily be recruited for buffet service when the living room/dining room is in use. The color scheme in the office is black, white and taupe, with faux marble wall paper. The desk is a slab of glass on a black pedestal, so it can also double as a buffet.

What makes the conversion successful, however, is the modular wall system that Kaminsky designed and had custom-built for the room. The units have shelves and drawers, so everything can be stored away quickly and neatly.

Some of the units have glass doors to display personal decorative items, offering a softness to the hard-edge office look.

"In this case, the client has a stunning collection of antique-beaded evening bags," says Kaminsky. "They're low key, but they add a touch of refinement to the entire room.

"The advantage of modular storage is that the configuration can be changed as needed. If the client moves, she can take them with her."

One of Kaminsky's favorite tricks is to turn a second-floor closet into a laundry room. "After all, the second floor is where most laundry originates," she says. "Think of all the time and energy we spend carrying laundry downstairs and back up again after it's been washed and dried. The new' washers with dryers stacked on top are only 27 inches wide - just right for a closet."

Not every conversion is a good idea. Just ask Gene Galley, A.S.I.D., of Joseph Productions, Southfield.

"A client bought a home in Birmingham, whose previous owners had obviously been desperate for an extra bathroom," says Galley. "They converted a bedroom closet into a shower stall, and put a sink and toilet in the corner of the bedroom! One of the first things we did was convert the shower stall back into a closet."

What if you have too much space, in the wrong place? "A client bought an old house that had been enlarged several times," says Galley. "One of the bedrooms was like a bowling alley, it was so big. We installed a 5-foot wall across the width of the 12 x 14 ft, bedroom, and created an exercise room on one side of the wall, and an office on the other side.

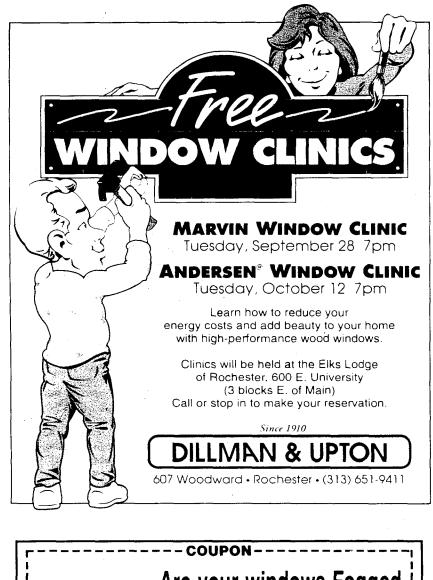

"The client had teak shelving from the previous home, and we built shelving units into the 5 ft, half-wall. The two rooms get a lot of use, and the wall can easily be removed if these, or subsequent owners, want to use the entire space."

According to Galley, many people are giving up dining rooms altogether. "Several clients who are book collectors have converted the dining room into a library with a dining room/library table in it," says Galley, "and one client is building a new home with a billiard table in the dining room. 'We just don't entertain formal' says the owner, 'and it's a perfect spot for a billiard table.""

Living in the past

The romance of ghosts, peeling plaster, and old houses

by Cynthia G. La Ferle Special Writer

I'm often asked if I have any practical advice for people who are about to buy an older home that needs work. But I know enough to keep my mouth shut. The word practical has nothing to do with an old house, and besides, you can't talk sense into anyone who's smitten with one.

You could point out the peeling plaster and creaky floorboards. Or preach a sermon about the terrors of high heating bills and budget deficits. You might even try praising the virtues of new construction techniques and the seamless flow of contemporary floor plans. But you might just as well talk to the walls.

It's perfectly useless to stand between a man and a woman and the crumbling palace they are about to mortgage. This kind of love is ignited by the wicked gleam of leaded glass windows, sealed at first sight by the flirtatious quirk of a nook or cranny.

I speak from years of experience. Throughout our 13 married years together, my husband and I have always purchased houses that are much older than we are. We've searched, begged, and borrowed to get them. We've tolerated musty basements, cracked ceilings, antique toilets, and funny old bathrooms that even Bob Vila wouldn't touch.

For the past three years we've lived in a 1920s Tudor, a brooding bastion with thick oak woodwork and a leaky dungeon of a basement. On winter nights we listen to a mournful symphony of steam pipes clanking and moaning like Marley's ghost. Our house commands the corner of a narrow street lined with ancient maple trees, and we wouldn't trade the place for a dozen new houses in an upscale subdivision.

I'm not quite sure how to explain my passion for houses with a past. But I can trace its beginnings to the vacations of my youth, when my parents drove me to Mt. Vernon, Colonial Williamsburg, and Salem Village. While other kids screeched on the thrill tides in Disneyland, I snooped around George Washington's bedroom. I learned at an early age that buildings, like people, acquire character as they mature. And curiously despite the "space age" in which I grew up 1 decided that any thing that's been around for a while is infinitely more interesting than a future we can only imagine

New houses are, without a doubt, much more convenient than old ones. It you get a new house that's really, well constructed, you probably won't see much of your tool kit. But Jacuzzi or no Jacuzzi, there's always something missing in these contemporary castles.

For one thing, you can't build history into a new house – Time works an inexplicable magic, you can sense it the moment you step inside a home in which someone else has lived. In a collective voice the rooms seem to whisper. "This house has seen some things that you haven't." I'm always moved by the everyday romance of people and events that have become part of a building's mortar and plaster. And romance, after all, is what gets the old-house lover through the toughest renovation projects.

Even a place with the humblest history can wend its way into our hearts, especially if we've spent some time there.

Ell never forget our first old house, a tiny English cottage of a place that was built in the 1940s. Married just two years, my busband and I bought it on a land contract from Mrs. Morris, an endearing elderly woman whose late husband had left a legacy of sweet peas and wild groundcover in the backyard. Whenever I worked in that garden, I could almost picture old Mr. Morris turning the earth with his hand trowel, or perhaps leaning on his rake while surveying his botanical empire.

After selling her home to us, Mrs. Morris moved to a nursing home. But not long before she died, her daughter brought her back to visit the house. She was anxious to see how we had decorated it. I was nervous about showing her the changes we'd made. Making her way ever so slowly through the rooms, Mrs. Morris graciously admired our paint and wallpaper selections, then told me how she had decorated years before, when her family was young.

During that visit that I began to understand, on a much deeper level, the inevitable passage of time and how buildings connect us to the people who have lived in them before us. It's that knowledge that makes it so difficult to leave an old house when it's time to move on Saying good bye to my parents' home when it was sold this year was one of the hardest things I've ever done Mom just couldn't keep the house after my father had died of a heart attack in the driveway. It was too large, too much work, and there were too many memores hovering in the corners.

Just before we packed my mother's last box of china and loaded it into my car. I took one final jour of the last place my father had loved and called his home. Walking past his study upstarts. I paused for a moment, half expecting to see his familiar gray head learning over his foll top desk. Completely empty, the foom looked so much smaller than it had seemed when it was cluttered with his books and furniture.

But I sensed the years of Dad's benevolent presence in the very walk of the little study, and I knew that he would, in his usual quiet way, always haunt the house

by Virginia Ficarra "The Color Wizard" Special Writer

Remodel with color, it's one of the quickest and most inexpensive ways to lift your spirits and give your home a facelift! Even if you do nothing else, begin with painting your walls—you can expand a small room by using certain colors to create the visual illusion of open space. Painting For

Panorama

With the swish of a brush you can defy the laws of gravity --- you can lift a ceiling, push out walls and even make unsightly features like oddly placed windows disappear. Outside, gutters and down spouts will simply melt into the facade. Once you have mastered color and paint. you can move onto applying the same formula for expanding visual space with your furniture and furnishings

As frivolous as color may seem, it is everywhere, Color comes in all sizes. shapes and forms and at no extra cost, unless you make a mistake! Have you ever noticed how long it takes for carpeting you dislike to wear out? There are no wrong colors, just poor combinations. With such an array of products and colors to select. from, no wonder decisions are difficult and mistakes easily made. Whether you live in a cottage or a castle, or somewhere in between, on a champagne or shoestring budget, there's no "cutting corners" when it comes to color. It's not the cost, but rather what colors you select and where you place them, that matters most.

Creating The Illusion Of Space Here are some tips for expanding space with color. The secret is illusion!

As with any color combination, to increase visual space is to minimize the effect of contrast. You should select colors carefully from the largest samples you can find. Next, make your final colordecisions in the environment they will occupy.

One helpful tip to remember color intensities as the area you color increases Walls and carpeting reflect off of each other, so you may want to lighten your wall color.

Reds, yellows and oranges can perk up and warm rooms that face north, while greens, purples and blues can visually cool down rooms with a southern exposure. Color can actually alter space, depending on the tint or shade you select.

Tints are colors which contain white, and shades are colors to which black has been added. Shades can visually decrease > space: in contrast, tints visually expandspace.

For balance and interest, always use an unequal amount of color, patterns and textures in a room.

Monochromatic color schemes with various tints and shades, along with wall to wall carpeting to blend with wall color add the illusion of space to smaller rooms. Light colored woods with white or natural wicker furniture, accented by mirrors to double the space, are also help ful for cramped quarters.

Midwest Door & Window is in the business of distributing these products. We acquired another company on July 1 and "inherited" an overstock of some products. For example, we have about 145 Weather Shield insulated storm doors in brown and tan. Normal retail is over $200.00. Until they're gone, we're selling them for $125.00 + tax.

We also have a variety of steel entry doors (including some with leaded glass) that retail between $225.00 and $900.00. We're cutting those prices in half, + tax. For example, a full oval leaded design that lists for $881.00 will go for $440.50.

In addition to our overstocked materials we're very competitive on all of our window and door products. Call us or visit our showroom for a personal consultation on your window requirements.

•Furnace: You haven't done a thing to the furnace all summer long. Now is the time to clean around the furnace. Make it really immaculate. Remember, any dirt around the furnace will be sucked into the furnace air intake within the first few days of operation. Replace all furnace filters, or clean electronic filters, NOW.

Completely clean the humidifiers. Use vinegar and hot water. Drum model sponges should be soft and supple. If not, replace. Make sure the valve works, if the buoy is corroded, replaced.

•Hot Water Heater: You are going to be using a lot more hot water soon. Drain at least 20 gallons of water from the tank. Try to get rid of some of the sediment build-up at the bottom. If your hot water tank is over 10 years old, it needs to be replaced.

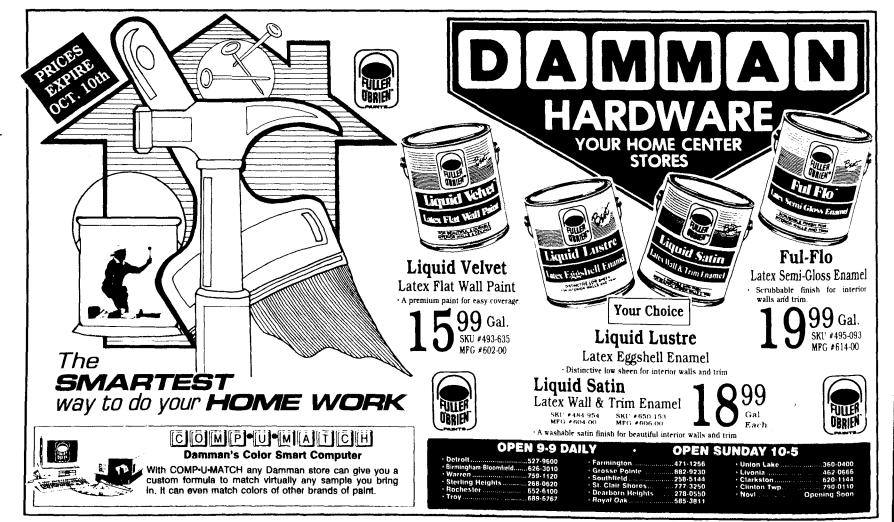

Buy yourself some peace of mind now, rather than wait until it breaks down right when you are getting ready for work.

•Smoke and Carbon Monoxide Detectors: Go around the house and replace the batteries in all the smoke detectors, NOW. Do this at the same time every year. If your smoke detectors are hot wired, test them. Make sure you have at least one smoke detector on every floor.

Carbon monoxide detectors are also necessary. You can get inexpensive button detectors at all hardware stores. Put them in your bedroom. Or, you can buy the new electronic carbon monoxide detectors, by First Alert and other companies, which are just coming out in the market place as you are reading this article. Carbon monoxide detectors are very necessary because, as we make our homes tighter, we breath in the same air over and over again, making us somewhat susceptible to traces of carbon monoxide in the air. Carbon monoxide is odorless, tasteless, but very deadly. Be prepared, look for a carbon monoxide detectors at your hardware stores and home centers.

Now I guess that all there is to say is "Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow." These are some of the best tips we can give. I call them "bragging rights."

Glenn Haege is host of the "Ask The Handyman" how-to talk show on WXYT AM 1270-Detroit, which airs every Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. Haege has written four books: Fix it Fast and Easy!, Take the Pain out of Painting! - Interiors-, Take the Pain out of Painting! - Exteriors -, and Glenn Haege's Complete Deck Care Guide, available at Damman Hardware and many other fine paint and hardware stores. Geothermal Energy is your answer to saving money. When you compare the annual operating costs for heating, cooling and hot water for a 2400-square-foot home, Geothermal Energy is your least expensive alternative. It costs up to 30% less than natural gas and up to 60% less than fuel oil or propane. Plus, it's environmentally friendly. Find out more from Detroit Edison's Heating and Cooling Information Center.

When you're faced with cramped quarters work with small spaces!

by Lori Jones Special Writer

's there a room in your home that you have designated as "storage," which essentially means throwing things into it, closing the door and walking away? Is there a "little voice" in your head, every time you open the door, that says, "You really should do something with this room.'

For many people, that "little voice" urges them to do something with a space that they might have already deemed "too small." It seems the smaller the space, the bigger the job becomes to turn it into a functional, attractive room.

Not true, says owner/designer Karen Wilmering of Livonia's About Interiors. Inc. "It's a common misconception that there is nothing interesting you can do if the space is small. It takes creativity and planning, but any space can be made useful and pleasing.

Many people believe that light colors create space while richer, darker colors create coziness. It would seem that the two methods cannot be used together in a limited area.

Linda Yates, an award-winning designer with Decorating Den of Farmington Hills, agrees that intelligent use of color can create the illusion of space. Yates suggests that lighter floors open up a room, allowing for richer hues to be employed on the walls and in furnishings.

Wilmering states that the focus on horizontal lines in a room will also visually expand the space. A 4' x 5' powder room can be made to seem twice its size, by extending the counter top the length of the wall and placing a full mirror behind it.

To prevent the space from breaking up and making a small space seem smaller. Wilmering recommends that the vertical lines around windows and doors blend with other colors used rather than contrasting with them.

The colors that Yates has been using most recently are deep, hunter greens, navy and vibrant cranberry in furnishings and accents, which she says lends a plush, welcoming look to confining spaces. Wilmering uses hues of blues and greens to open up small areas and avoids reds and yellows, because she believes that those colors are too strong and cause the walls to appear closed-in.

Both of the designers agree that proportion is the key to furnishing small spaces. "Especially when space is at a premium, several appropriate-sized pieces work better than clusters of miniatures." Wilmering says. "Many people believe they should use miniprints and groups of small pictures."

In Yates' experience, some people move in the other direction, filling limit-

"It's a common misconception that there is nothing interesting you can do if the space is small. It takes creativity and planning, but any space can be made useful and pleasing."

ed space with overstuffed, large furniture that crowds a room. The consensus is to avoid pieces that are too large or too small, but go for well-proportioned. functional furnishings that do not overwhelm the room with quantity or size.

While color and flooring can create the illusion of space, it is possible to make a small room truly functional and not simply create illusions that do not lend themselves to usefulness.

Both Yates and Wilmering have recently worked on spaces that must be useful. "I recently did the lounge of a dental office that was 10° by 10°," Yates says. "It was important to create as many seats as possible in an attractive space. Instead of using couches and crowding the room. I went with two wing chairs, an ottoman and a desk with a chair beside it, creating five seats. This not only worked on a visual level, but allowed dental clients to maintain their personal space."

Wilmering often works to convert small rooms into home offices. To accommodate the needs of a home office, she often recommends custom wall units, built to the exact specifications demanded by the space she's working in. The wall units provide neat, efficient placement of tools, such as fax machines, personal computers and copiers, while retaining the floor space available in the room.

Both designers stress that the owner must be comfortable with whatever colors and furnishings are selected.

As Wilmering puts it, "My designfirm believes our function is to help our clients find their own style. Trends will come and go, but if clients remain true to themselves, they will continue to love their interiors for years to come."

Kitchen organization

by Joan Boram Special Writer

raditionally, a kitchen was a simple room, devoted to a single task: food preparation. Equipped with certain basic appliances, one cooked something to render it edible, optimally delicious, and then one (or more) sat down and ate.

Social and technological changes, however, have conspired to impose new disciplines on the traditional kitchen. For one thing, everybody seems to need a home office, even if it's just a nook for the computer.

For another, we have been blessed with enough high-tech toys and tools to make The Jetsons cringe. Unless you're going to leave your microwave, coffee maker, toaster oven, food processor, electric can opener, and slow cooker on the countertop, you need more space.

and don't forget green! Today's kitchen is also energy-efficient, and a recycling center.

"Everybody needs more kitchen space," says Dan DeGiulio, owner of DeGiulio Kitchen and Bath Centers, in Livonia, "But the average consumer has no idea that in the past five years, the number of space-saving devices has increased 10-fold.

"It's a matter of educating the consumer. The first thing we do when discussing a kitchen remodeling is go to the client's house and look at the old kitchen. We find out what they like and dislike. Often the problem is accessibility - they can't easily get at things once they've been put away."

DeGiulio often begins by recommending frameless cabinets: there are no bulky frames to take up space. Doubletiered silverware drawers afford twice as much space as a traditional drawer: When you pull the drawer out, a tray in the drawer slides back, placing the bottom tray in full view.

One of the handiest features has to be the roll-out shelves that pull out when a cabinet door below the countertop is opened. You can see the entire contents of the shelf. No more wondering what happened to your rubber gloves, or the marble polish.

"One of the most popular items are 'garages' for appliances," says DeGiulio. "They provide a space for all those appliances such as toasters that you might use only once or twice a day. Just open a little door, and slide out the appliance. When you're tinished, just slide it back in again, and close the door."

Closet organizers double storage space

by Nicole Stahl Special Writer

Does it feel like you're always short on storage? Cowed by clutter? Drowning in disorder?

Before you do something drastic, like putting up a "For Sale" sign, or donating half your possessions to the Salvation Army, consider how to make the most of your existing storage space. The first place to look is behind closed doors...into your own closets

As you probably suspected, the typical closet arrangement-an eye-level pole, topped by a solitary shelf-is not very pragmatic. In fact, from an organizational point of view, it's an invitation to disaster. Look at all that dead space between hanging garments and the floor. Even with shoes in tidy rows under the clothes, there's still a couple feet of vacant real estate crying out to be used. Ditto for the awkward overhead shelf. Just how many sweaters can you stack up there before they all start toppling overor out?

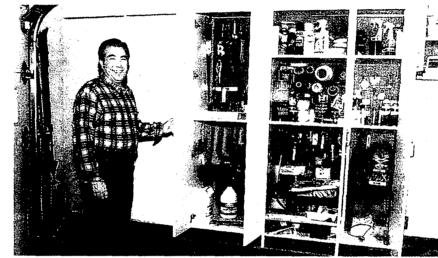

Because of its linear layout, the traditional closet utilizes less than half of its total available space. To increase efficiency, you need a configuration that takes advantage of volume, every cubic inch of it.

That's where organizer systems come in. A custom-designed assortment of modular components-poles, drawers. shelves, baskets and accessories-boosts closet capacity by grouping similar-sized items together. No more three-foot long sport jackets hanging in the same spot as a five-foot-long evening gown. Every and allotted its own customized place. Organizer systems don't just tame the clutter jungle inside the closet. By providing drawers and containers for personal items like socks, lingerie, and jewelry, they can give back floor space in the bed-inch of closet space is devoted to some kind of storage compartment, and every item of clothing is identified, measured, room itself. That means you can finally swap that mammoth triple dresser for a computer workstation, an entertainment center, or a comfortable lounge chair. When you've already converted the spare bedroom into a luxurious master bath and walk-in closet, that's an important contribution to living space.

Given their efficiency, it's not surprising that organizer systems are now moving out of the closet. With upgrades like Formica surfaces and rounded drawer edges, the latest components are meant to be seen in work areas throughout the house.

The in-home office, for example, is "one of our focuses for future," says Ray Markham, owner of the West Bloomfield franchise of the California Closet Company, the West Coast firm that pioneered the organizing concept. A new product line called CalSpace includes work surfaces, shelves, drawers and file cabinets to make the home office look as professional as any executive suite.

CalSpace storage is especially suitable for the part-time office that has to accommodate other functions, according to Markham. When out-of-town friends come for a weekend visit, you can stow the computer keyboard in a sliding drawer, stash work paraphernalia in convenient cubbyholes, putt a double bed out of the wall cabinet, and voila-an instant guest room says Gary Fried, designer for the Madison Design Group, located in the Michigan Design Center, Troy.

"The kitchen is no longer merely a food preparation area," says Fried. "The client also wants to integrate a functional space-saving desk area, and a media center with a built-in TV and intercom.

"All of this implies a change in what the kitchen looks like - it's no longer independent of the rest of the house. design-wise. When I meet with a client, we choose materials that are consistent with what's used in the rest of the home. It's more of a chal-of-sight.

As you might expect, cabinetry encompasses most of the space-saving features, spice drawers mean we can find the cumin, and pull-out recycling bins are very popular, separating bottles, cans, plastic, and newspapers, eliminating the need for a compactor. Almost anything can be "pulled-out" - ironing boards, bread boards, chopping blocks, etc. - and then slipped back in place. Appliances, too are doing double-duty. 'There are stoves with interchangeable units. You can unplug a burner, and plug in a grill, a wok, or a deep fryer component," says Fried. Thermador ovens easily convent to tures, and they're energy-efficient, as well. And, dishwashers are quieter. People are no longer grateful just to have their dishes washed for them: they want them washed quietly, as well." Tool Box Tips

Similar to a well-stocked medicine cabinet, a basic tool kit is a must-have for every home. You'll be glad you have it when those inevitable repair projects come along. Your basic tool kit should contain:

Hammer, fiberglass or wooden handle, weighing 16 ounces.
Screwdrivers, several sizes of Phillips head and flat head.
Slip-joint pliers (10-inch).
Curved-jaw locking pliers, conmonly known as Vice-Grips, these work like a clamp or small vise.
Needle-nose pliers with a built-in wire cutter.
Adjustable wrench, also known as a

Crescent wrench. •Crosscut saw. The basic hand-saw.

Retractable steel measuring tape.
Utility knife with a retractable blade.
Putty knife.

•File for sharpening blades and tools. •Power drill with a starter collection

- of bits. •Plastic goggles for eye protection. •Plumber's friend or plunger.
- •Carpenter's level (18-inch).

If you'd like to stock your garage or workshop with tools that go beyond the basics, consider:

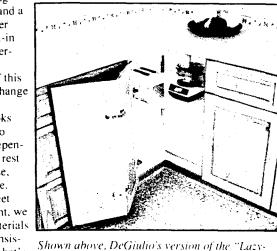

•Combination square, for building projects. .Set of wood chisels, for making cuts in wood and chipping. •Cold chisel, for removing bolts and rivets •Small hacksaw, for cutting metal or plastic. Set of hex key wrenches, also known as Allen wrench. Pocket plane, for shaving wood from boards Sandpaper holder. •Staple gun, heavy-duty version. You needn't buy the following, unless you plan to use them often; they're available at rental service stores and yards: Concrete saws Generators •Pipe wrench (8-inch & 10-inch sizes).

- •Ladders
- •Power drain cleaners
- Pumps
- Power tools
- •Rototillers
- •Floor polishers
- •Air compressors
- •Rug shampooers
- •Wheelbarrows •Welders

or wallpapers with an open light colored background, such as lattice work or a window-pane plaid for the illusion of larger wall space.

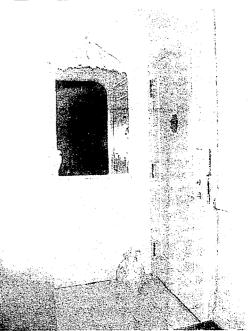

·Art-pictures with subject matter that shows perspective or depth are good choices for small rooms. Watercolor paintings with wide mats and thin frames are other good options.

•Furniture-opt for small-scaled furniture, with exposed legs, proportionate to the room, with small patterned fabrics and diagonal motifs. Choose soft, fluffy cushions to add airiness. Set furniture at least 4" from the walls for added dimension. See-through glass-top tables are good for small spaces.

a cramped room is the use of ceiling spotlights, directed to 'wash the wall' with light. You can even "push" two walls at once, by setting a lamp in the corner, set lamps in corner to 'wash' or light two walls at one time. Use canister-type 'up lights' on the floor, behind furniture or plants, and strip lighting under cabinets.

Brandon Township resident Ed Albertson is very pleased with the way modular units have organized his garage. A self-confessed tinkerer. Albertson had been frustrated by the jumble of tools and Organizer systems don't just tame the clutter jungle inside the closet. Inspired by the closet organizers being installed throughout his home, he asked California Closets for help in his garage, too.

The result is what Markham calls "a gournet garage." A combination of cabinets and wall units has almost tripled storage space, Albertson says. Threefourths of one long wall is a workbench, with drawers above. A custom pegboard makes small tools easily accessible.

"Everything is organized and off the floor," says Albertson, "When I want something, I know right where to go find it. It encourages me to be neater," he continues, adding thoughtfully, "It's one of the best things I ever did."
