City council members are questioning why the cost of taking care of prisoners has increased dramatically. The court administration said there are several factors involved in the higher costs.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Westland's cost for jailing criminals has soared in the last year, nearly tripling the amount of money the city, police department needs for housing prisoners, authorities said.

Police officials are seeking a $200,000 budget amendment from the city council to meet the rising costs.

That marks a dramatic increase over the $101,340 prisoner-care budget previously approved for the fiscal year that ends June 30.

Some council members are questioning the expense and have asked for a three-year comparison of prisoner costs.

"I would like to see some documentation," councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli said during Monday's council session. "We're ending up tripling it, and that disturbs me."

Finance director Michael Gorman warned that the police department would exceed its prisoner-care budget without some help. In a stopgap measure, the council approved a $30,000 budget amendment to cover costs through February.

Councilman Charles Pickering urged police officials to save money elsewhere in their budget to cover prisoner costs.

However, police Chief Emery Price indicated that futile attempts have been made to stretch his budget.

"If you can find the money," he told Pickering, "I'll be more than glad to use it."

Officials said the prisoner budget has soared because 18th District Court judges have cracked down on offenders. Court administrator David Wiacek elaborated Tuesday morning: Higher bonds have been set for cases such as domestic violence, keeping defendants in jail longer.

More offenders who owe the court money have been jailed under a "pay or stay" policy.

Police warn women of molester who strikes during bad weather

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Westland police have issued warnings that a male attacker has sexually molested several women in Westland, Garden City and Dearborn Heights — striking during snowstorms, thunderstorms and other severe weather.

The same man is believed to be responsible for a series of evening attacks that have occurred during the last year at small businesses and apartment complexes — places where the women worked or walked alone, Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore said.

Sometimes the attacker molests women; other times, he only exposes himself, she said.

The man has struck several times in the Wayne Road and Warren area of Westland, in the heart of the city's bustling retail district, Moore said. The attacker has committed some rapes, but not in Westland, she said.

However, some attempted rapes have occurred in Westland, along with reports of molestings and indecent exposure, Moore said.

Police have issued 45 letters to local small businesses and apartment complexes, advising them to warn women who may be alone at night. The Observer has received a copy.

"These incidents have not been confined to Westland, but have occurred in neighboring communities as well," the letter states.

The man's identity is unknown, but he is described as a 6-foot to 6foot-3 white male, in his mid-20s to mid-30s, with a large, muscular build. He has long legs and "takes long strides when running," the letter says.

The man has dark brown or black hair and always wears a hooded sweat shirt, jeans or sweat pants, and athletic shoes or construction boots.

"He either pulls the hood so tight around his face that he distorts his features, or wears a nylon over his face with the hood up, making identification very difficult," Moore wrote in the letter.

Most incidents have occurred between 6 p.m. and midnight during "the most severe weather, thunderstorms, blizzards, sleet storms, etc.," Moore wrote. "This man tries to single out women alone, or who he thinks may be alone, and is scared off by other people approaching."

Police are urging anyone who may have information about the incidents to phone Moore at 721-6311.

Police have urged business owners and residents to warn women who work alone or walk alone in the evening. Suspicious activity, such as a man lurking around who fits the description, should be reported.

SEX ASSAULT

wrestled one boy to the ground, pulling his pants down and fondling him, Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore said.

Smith was charged with two counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct after two of the boys identified him in a police lineup on Friday three days after the boys were attacked and spanked while leaving school, on Wildwood north of Cherry Hill, in the afternoon, Moore said.

Police arrested Smith at a Wayne restaurant where he worked. He is in the county jail in lieu of a $100,000 bond.

Smith, who has pleaded not guilty, has been ordered to appear in Westland 18th District Court on Jan. 27 for a preliminary examination that will determine if he should stand trial on the charges.

Smith has served previous jail time for several spanking incidents at schools and parks in Westland and Garden City, including Elliott and Kettering elementaries in Westland.

"He has a history of doing this," Moore said.

Past assault charges were misdemeanor offenses with a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail. Smith was repeatedly set free after serving out his sentences.

But Smith now faces felony charges and, if convicted, could face a 15-year prison term for allegedly pulling the Wildwood boy's pants down and fondling him. Smith also has violated his probation orders in Westland and Garden City, Moore said.

In the latest attack, several Wildwood students ran inside the school for help after the spankings occurred. The suspect fled the scene when the boys went for help, but he was later arreated at work, Moore said.

Trial set for man accused of trying to kill his family

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Westland man charged with trying to kill his sleeping wife and children by setting the family house on fire faces trial May 10.

Robert Michael Mulka, 27, was scheduled last week for trial after Detroit Recorder's Judge Vera Massey-Jones ruled that potentially incriminating statements made by Mulka can be admitted as evidence.

Defense attorneys argued that Mulka wasn't properly advised of his rights when he made statements to Westland police. The lawyers had sought to have the statements suppressed during the impending trial.

The latest ruling sets the stage for what is expected to be an emotional trial for Mulka, charged with three counts of assault with intent to murder and one count of arson. He could face up to life in prison if convicted.

Mulka's 22-year-old wife, Wendy, has rejected accusations that her husband would try to kill her and their two daughters, ages 1 and 7. Westland police have described Mulka as being distraught over money problems.

Earlier testimony in 18th District Court indicated that someone doused the family living room with a flammable liquid and set it afire before leaving for work on the morning of May 25.

His wife, pregnant with a third child at the time, escaped with the two daughters by climbing through a bedroom window. Wendy Mulka was awakened by her 7year-old girl, who first saw the flames.

Patrick Harder, Westland's assistant chief fire marshal, has testified that the living room carpet of Mulka's brick ranch residence at $2529 Palmer Road was doused with a flammable liquid.

When questioned about the fire, Mulka told police that he and his wife argued before they went to bed and that he awoke at 6 a.m., got out of bed and smoked a cigarette in the living room, Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe has testified.

Mulka said he learned of the fire when his brother-in-law phoned him at the tool-and-die shop where he worked.

However, Mulka made another statement after failing a polygraph'test, but that statement hasn't been read in court and isn't expected to be made public until the trial.

Pending trial, Mulka has been released from custody after posting $10,000, or 10 percent of a $100,000 bond, according to the Recorder's Court clerk's office.

The bond was reduced after Mulka's case was sent from Westland 18th District Court to Recorder's Court in September. The bond had initially been set at $250,000 cash.

Cashier honored with donations

The library at Livonia's Washington Elementary will soon have $300 worth of new children's books, thanks to a large group of people who cared about a local store cashier who died last spring.

Mike Albus, co-owner of Stan's Market, 38000 Ann Arbor Road, handed a check for $300 Wednesday to Washington principal Patricia Laarman and media specialist Regina Mingela. The money will be used to buy books for the media center.

The money was donated to Stan's in memory of Barbara Adorjan, who for 20 years worked as head cashier at the market. Adorjan was widely known by the market's customers, and when she died they all wanted to do something in her memory.

Not knowing what to do, they simply began leaving money at the store. Over time the money accumulated to $300, and Albus decided to donate it to Washington, where Adorjan had worked as a volunteer reader.

"She was like everybody's grandmother," Albus said. "There were so many people who left a few dollars. The people who gave were from the community, and the money will now go back into the local community. Her memory can now go on at the local school library."

Also attending the ceremony during which the money was donated were students Angela Callen, Robert Wilson, Kory Stevens and Deric Wurmlinger.

Fearing suit, city approves Arbor Drugs

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Concerned about a lawsuit if it rejected it, the Westland City Council has approved a new Arbor Drugs that will be built in Hunter Park Plaza, on the northeast corner of Warren Road and Venoy.

The council approved the drugstore site plan during Monday night's session, despite Mayor Robert Thomas's recommendation to deny it.

Thomas questioned whether the city needs another drugstore. Arbor Drugs already has a store about two miles away, on the northwest corner of Wayne Road and Hunter.

However, the mayor conceded that the council would be risking a lawsuit by denying the project.

The council approved the site plan in a 6-0 vote, with member Sharon Scott absent. Developers of the 10,923-square-foot drugstore still must submit building and engineering plans.

Construction could begin within two months, city planning director Tod Kilroy said Tuesday morning.

Some council members appeared perturbed that Thomas would recommend denying the project, when even he conceded a lawsuit would be likely. Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin called the mayor's recommendation "political."

Councilman David Cox voiced strong support for the project because of the potential for a lawsuit.

"Had it been denied, I'd venture to say that we would find ourselves in court on the losing end of a lawsuit," he said.

decision on the drugstore in December, amid strong opposition from neighbors. The residents wanted assurances on several issues, but their primary concern was that a fence be built to shield the drugstore from a bordering street, Lone Pine.

Kilroy and Victor Ansara, one of the property owners, stressed Monday that residents' concerns have been addressed in negotiations between developers and neighbors. Developers agreed to put up a white vinyl fence to shield the drugstore from Lone Pine.

The council had postponed a

A Wayne woman faces criminal charges amid accusations she threatened another woman with scissors during a failed robbery attempt outside of a Westland drugstore, poliče said.

The alleged culprit, mother of a 3-year-old daughter, told police she attempted the robbery because she needed money for food, Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

The woman, 30, is expected to be charged this week with attempted armed robbery, though she hadn't been charged at press time.

The incident happened at 6:18 p.m. Saturday when a woman shopper, also 30, got out of her car and started walking toward the Arbor Drugs on the northeast corner of Newburgh and Glenwood. Stobbe said.

Another car drove up to her, and an assailant got out, "lunged" at the victim with a pair of scissors and grabbed at her purse, the detective said.

The victim fought, back and managed to keep her purse without being injured by the scissors, Stobbe said. The victim then jotted down the license plate number of the car and gave it to police.

The Wayne woman was arrested and then released to await a charge of attempted armed robbery, expected this week from the prosecutor's office.

A man was in the passenger seat of the assailant's car during the incident, but police said he didn't know the woman was going to attempt a robbery.

■ The court — instead of police — has begun entering warrants into a computer system, getting the job done faster and leading to quicker arrests.

The court shaves some costs by having offenders participate in a work program. In December, 69 people paid $3,370 to the court program. By contrast, it would have cost $15,570 to $36,330 to house them in jail, depending on whether they stayed in an outcounty jail or the more-expensive Wayne County jail, Wiacek said. Space in Westland's jail simply isn't available.

"We're cognizant of the fact that (the crackdowns) cost mon-Wiacek said. "The judges ∕ey," don't like sending people to jail, but in some cases there's no alternative.'

The $200,000 police request was the largest of several publicsafety requests that surfaced Monday. Some were approved, such as a school crossing guard for the Avondale-Schuman intersection. Others were postponed, such as buying two unmarked police cars and a roadside radar device that warns motorists of their speed.

A $125,000 fire department budget amendment for overtime also was postponed. Fire Chief Larry Lane is seeking savings elsewhere in his budget, but expects to seek a lesser amendment.

Hired spy keeps tabs on teens for suspicious parents

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

It seemed only logical that Donna Piccolo of Westland should appear on the Montel Williams talk show.

Piccolo, 54, was chosen as a guest on a recent Montel show that explored the controversy over whether parents should hire someone to spy on their children.

Piccolo, an investigator for 25 years, has done her share of spying. And she makes no apologies for having her two adopted daughters trailed on occasion.

"Things are bad out there, and I think parents have a right to know what their kids are doing,' she said, watching the Montel show with a reporter in the living room of her Fountain Park apartment. "Some of these teenagers are lying to their parents."

Piccolo's youngest daughter, 16-year-old Nicki, admits that her mother's philosophy has sometimes bothered her - but not enough to damage their relations. "You look cool," Nicki said, seeing her mother on television. Piccolo didn't go on the Montel show to talk about her own children, however. Because of her investigative expertise, the producers matched her with a divorced Chicago mother of four who worked two jobs. The woman wanted to know what her 16-yearold daughter was doing when she left home in the evenings.

In late November, Piccolo and her close friend Terri Gessler of Canton Township drove to Chicago for the assignment. She also brought along a retired police officer.

The Chicago teen had no idea she would be trailed. Piccolo had only two nights to produce results for Montel.

"Talk about pressure," Piccolo said.

Her hopes dimmed at first. During a Friday night stakeout, Piccolo saw the girl leave home with friends. But trailing the girl was another matter, and Piccolo lost her as the teenagers swerved in and out of traffic, driving at speeds of 70 to 80 miles per hour

"She was partying big time with much-older people in their

The investigator wrote a report naming the girl's friends, telling where they lived and revealing phone numbers. She used various methods to track the information, such as tracing license plate numbers.

Confronted on the Montel show, the girl not only owned up to her Saturday night activity, but also spilled secrets from Friday had lost her in traffic.

"I'm still going to do what I'm going to do," the girl said, as tempers flared on both sides of the issue during the Montel show.

With the hard work behind her, Piccolo went to New York on Dec. 1 to tape the Montel show. But ing her investigation, and her aired.

"I felt terrible," Piccolo said. She somehow made it through the taping, and no one watching could have known how she felt.

please my mother," Piccolo said. She didn't get paid for doing the Montel show. After five back operations, she's considered disabled and is restricted from earning money by working.

But at least she can say she made it to television after 25 years of investigative work.

"And I deserved it," she said,

School teacher's cable show focuses on opera

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAPP WRITER

4A(W)

For his newest cable TV series, Livonia school district teacher Jonathan Swift has returned to one of the first loves of his life opera.

After hosting 200 programs in the internationally acclaimed "Global Connections" series, Swift starts this week to film his new series on well-known Michigan opera singers.

The first in a series of eight programs, "Time Out for Opera," will air the last week in January on an Oakland County'cable-TV system channel.

Swift, founder and chairman of the school of global education at a high school in the Livonia district, chose to spotlight Michigan opera singers for his latest series because he believes most Michiganders don't realize the abundance of talent that exists in their own state.

Two of his featured singers are from Livonia, two from Ann Arbor, one from Troy and one from Southfield. All are known throughout the United States and even in Europe.

"My motivation for this program is the same motivation I have for 'Global Connections'," said Swift, who was born in Scotland and began his career as a French teacher in 1955 at Wayne State University. "I want to make people aware that in our own community we have people who are nationally known. It could be a singer or a painter."

"Global Connections" traces the international connections between people in Michigan and the rest of the world. Because it airs on channel 56, the half-hour talk show also is shown in Canada from Vancouver to Prince Edward Island.

Since the series started four years ago, Swift has interviewed such personalities as TV host Casey Kasem, Bishop Thomas Gumbleton, Sen. Carl Levin, author William X. Kienzle, space shuttle commander Jack Lousma, Rep. John Conyers, entertainment columnist Shirley Eder, tenor Luciano Pavarotti, photographer Tony Spina and Academy Award-winning actor Jon Voight.

For his 200th broadcast, Swift interviewed artist Yoko Ono when she recently exhibited her artwork at Cranbrook. For his 201st interview in the continuing series, he hopes to interview new Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer.

Jonathan Swift

Now, for his new series on opera stars, Swift will interview artists who are close to his own heart.

In 1955, Swift studied music on a scholarship at the Conservatoire Nationale de Musique in France. His mother was a singer and his father's family included two concert performers and one opera singer.

In the 1960s, Swift left teaching and toured the world as a musician. He has sung in operas, oratorios and concerts performed by major symphonies in the U.S., Canada, Europe and Australia. He also has made records, including "Songs of Scotland" and "Travels with Jonathan Swift."

Swift also has been the leading tenor with the Detroit Piccolo Opera Company, Detroit Grand Opera Association, Michigan Opera Company and the Piccolo Regional Opera Society.

Now, in his new series, he'll talk trade with other Michigan opera singers who have excelled in their profession.

In the new series, he'll interview Livonia resident and Stevenson graduate Barbara Youngerman, a mezzo-soprano; Troy resident Mary Callaghan Lynch, a soprano; Southfield resident Ara Berberian, a basso; Ann Arbor resident George Shirley, a tenor; Livonia resident James Patterson, a basso; and Ann Arbor resident Glenda Kirkland, a soprano. The six artists also will perform on the broadcast.

"The new series will highlight the careers of Michigan residents who have made it in opera," Swift said.

For the last two programs in the series. Swift will interview Karen DiChiera, head of Michigan's outreach opera program, who will show excerpts from opera productions performed by "up and coming" local artists.

be seen on TV," Swift said. "There's really no outlet for opera singers in the Detroit area other than the stage."

In 1967, Swift joined the Livonia school district, which serves the northern section of Westland, as a history-English teacher. In 1978, long before "global" became the buzzword of the 1990s, he formed and headed Stevenson High's alternative school, the school of global education.

"They don't have the chance to

Area legislators rap school tax plans

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Although they were part of the process that developed the state government's education reform legislation, area legislators are dissatisfied with the result. Some are downright mad.

"We didn't accomplish a darn thing except a big tax shift," said Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton Township. "My district was -asking for less government spending, and we didn't get that."

What voters get is a choice between two education plans, each with tax shifts that reduce property taxes for most people, but raise other taxes to compensate. Voters will be asked Tuesday, March 15, to choose between the plans.

A yes vote produces a 6 percent sales tax, slightly lower income tax (4.4 percent from 4.6 percent), 75 cent per pack cigarette tax, 2 percent real estate transfer tax, 6mill property tax on your primary home, 24 mills on your business and second home, and keno lottery games.

Vote no and the backup plan goes into effect: a 6-percent income tax (up from 4.6 percent), 12-mill property tax on your primary home, 24 mills on your business and second home, 40 cent per pack cigarette tax, 1 percent real estate transfer tax, 2.75 percent single business tax (up from 2.35 percent).

Some reform

Said Whyman: "One's a bad plan. One's a terrible plan. I don't endorse either one." Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, who also represents Plymouth Township and the northwest por-will bring "some reform" to education funding, but "I just don't think they went far enough. There are still a lot of cowards out there. God hates a coward, and so do I."

The Observer/ THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1994

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, said he's "quite pleased" with the end product, but objects to changes the Republican-controlled Senate made to the bills.

"The Republicans have a tendency to watch out for General Motors and big business at the expense of individuals," he said.

Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, said he's disappointed because both alternatives rely in part on property taxes to fund schools. "It adds to the disrespect for legislators," he said. Still, the reality is that voters have two choices March 15, and Faust recommends the sales tax plan, tion of Livonia, said either plan which his constituents would be "marginally better off with" Faust believes a higher sales tax will "most dramatically affect" people who buy expensive items.

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford Township, who also represents most of Livonia, said she's undecided on the ballot proposal, but is" definitely leaning toward" the income tax plan.

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who also represents Livonia, Redford Township, Plynouth Plymouth Township and Canton Township, prefers the sales tax plan because "it's better for economic development." Small business owners and homeowners. would benefit most from the sales tax plan, Geake said. because their property taxes and the business tax would be lower.

Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, who also represents Garden City, hasn't made up his mind yet, said aide Dave Wygonik, but "he is" not a big fan of the sales tax."

Plan falls short

Former Livonia schools official Jack Kirksey, a Livonia resident and former state legislator, said he favors the sales tax plan, but legislators could have designed something far better.

"l admire them for being able to come up with some type of package, but I think it falls far short of what the citizens expected," he said.

Many of the people interviewed were sorry that the education legislation does little in regard to the quality of public education.

Most local legislators laud Engler's state message

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Suburban legislators mostly liked Gov. John Engler's themes: tougher prison sentences, work for welfare recipients, lower taxes, a sales tax shift to support schools. rejuvenated state parks.

Democrats liked his bridge to Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer but called Engler a' Johnny-comelately on stiffer prison sentences.

Engler's call for an end to "welfare as we know it" and no school sports for teens who father chilelection year session of the Legis-

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, sits on the aisle next to the door and was the first person to shake Engler's hand when he was escorted into the hall. But the 20year Democrat, whose son and possible successor sat with him, was cool to the prison and costcutting messages.

"The thought of building more prisons and doing away with good time - you know, I'm against crime. But at some point, we need to build on the strengths of each individual child in the school system," Keith said.

you have to look at."

"It's all good for my district,' said freshman Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, whose district includes Northville and part of Livonia. The former police officer hailed Engler's call for ending early parole. "The judge would have to pick 10 years or 20 years - not 10 to 20, and no 'good time.'

"Intensely supervised parole on the end of a term works better than giving longer sentences."

Vorva praised Engler's plan to cost-neutral," Vorva said.

Like Vorva, freshman Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, praised Engler's work on improving the business climate and creating jobs. The closing of GM's Willow Run plant in Ypsilanti, next door to her district, hit home hard. "Most people want to work," she said.

Whyman was critical of the direction state government is moving on education - "We mandate curriculum, we administer tests, we make too many mandates.

sult in quality education. We should get the state bureaucrats out and let education do its thing."

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, praised Engler's calls for greater local control, new charter schools and another effort to have schools of choice.

Geake was personally pleased when Engler praised his antistalking law as part of Michigan's effort to make life safer. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington

Many of these 'reforms' won't re- Hills, said Engler was "totally wrong" that charter schools will improve educational quality.

"The most unrealistic thing he said was going after more than 28,000 outstanding felony warrants. That will require a major, major investment in prisons. We'd have to double our prison construction.

"He's pandering to people's fears," said Faxon.

Reps. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, and Justine Barns, D-Westland, did not attend the session.

Gronevelt's can-do philosophy began on loading dock

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW Staff Writer

The most enduring lesson in Russ Gronevelt's career occurred when he was a 19-year-old toiling as a summer intern on a construction project at a General Motors plant.

The project manager gave Gronevelt a credit card, a crew and told him to build a temporary railroad loading platform.

"This thing wasn't even designed, other than what he drew on a napkin," Gronevelt said.

Nearly overwhelmed, Gronevelt wondered aloud if he possessed the wherewithal to do the job, and the manager blithely noted that there were a hundred other workers who would be happy to take the responsibility.

"I have told that story many, many times to people who work for me," said Gronevelt, now 47, a father of three and the director of

1,900-person, $400-million operation. "It's the resourcefulness of the people who do the job that gets it done."

'Stand-up guy'

County Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, believes Gronevelt learned his lesson well. "He's not one of those persons who explains why he can't dc something," Amann said. "He has an innovative mindset (and) has been a stand-up guy.'

Growing up in Redford Township and Livonia, Gronevelt graduated from Bentley High School and worked his way through Michigan Technological University in Houghton. Color blindness and a student deferment kept him out of the military, and by extension, the Vietnam War.

Civil engineering degree in hand, Gronevelt was hired by the city of Livonia in 1969. The fol-Wayne County Public Services, a lowing year, the city council president, Edward McNamara, ran for mayor, and Gronevelt was worried. "(McNamara) thought there were way too many engineers on the payroll," Gronevelt said.

Likes McNamara

---- However, the future county ex--

As director of public services for Wayne County, Russ Gronevelt directs public works, Metro Airport, the county park system, roads and four other divisions. He likes to say: 'It's the resourcefulness of the people who do the job that gets it done.'

ecutive turned out to be "a terrific person to work for."

In 1974, at the age of 27, Gronevelt was promoted to the superintendent of operations, putting him in charge of road maintenance, buildings, water and sewer and 150 people. Later he advanced again, this time to director of public services.

By 1986, Gronevelt was one of McNamara's top people in Livonia government, and the mayor had won election as county executive: Seeing as how "McNamara was one of the main reasons I staved with the city as long as I did," it wasn't a difficult decision for Gronevelt to accept McNamara's offer of employment with county government.

Gigantic job

And there he's been for seven years, high atop the Neudeck building in downtown Detroit. presiding over public works, Metro Airport, the county park system, roads and four other divisions.

Arguably, Gronevelt's empire is more complex than that of any other public works director in the state.

Because voters jettisoned the drain and road commissions in 1985, the responsibilities of those offices were added to public services, creating the second largest department in Wayne County.

Assimilation hasn't been easy. "Here we are seven years later and we're still massaging that-organization," Gronevelt said.

"We're still working out the wrinkles."

Indeed, Amann compares Gronevelt to Russian President Boris Yeltsin because both are trying to reform inefficient systems. "And I'm not sure who has the harder job, he or Yeltsin," Amann said.

Commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, praise Gronevelt for his candor and knowledge.

"He always givęs you a straightforward answer whether it's in his best interest or not," McCotter said.

"He knows the county inside out and he's always willing to share information with you, Plawecki said.

'Make the bullets'

If you've never heard of Gronevelt before, it may be because he deliberately keeps a low profile. McNamara, he said, is fond of saving, "Your job is to make the bullets. My job is to shoot the gun.'

Although Gronevelt must necessarily spend much of his time working (and generally enjoying the process), his second passion is the great outdoors.

However, some of them expect Lansing to take up quality issues later this year. Bankes, for example, believes certain school districts should be merged. "I think that's going to happen to (the districts in) Redford Township," she said. "Consolidation is going to be the only way.'

Faust and Geake believe that education reform discussions and legislation will continue in 1994. Others, like Sen. Dave Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, say it's unlikely that quality reforms will be addressed in the near future.

Whyman thinks it's likely that some judge will ultimately overturn what the state Legislature has done, declaring parts of the legislation unconstitutional. Faust agreed that what Whyman predicts is possible, but noted that Gov. John Engler is "generally rather thorough on the legal end" and would be careful not to do unconstitutional things.

Mike Gorman, finance director for the city of Westland, said cities stand to lose money no matter which plan goes into effect.

Because cities deduct a 1-percent administration fee on all property taxes collected, any reduction in the millage rate reduces the cities' take. Westland will lose $300,000 to $500,000 a year, depending on the vote.

However, cities will benefit in that fewer residents would phone to complain about high property taxes, Gorman said, adding that Westland plans no opposition: "We're just going to live with it."

Bone-rattling chill inhibits nearly everything

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAPP WRITER

Record low temperatures this week have caused all sorts of problems.

School was canceled in most places. Cars wouldn't start. Appointments and meetings were canceled. U.S. Rep. William Ford; D-Taylor, and Secretary of Labor Robert Reich canceled a trip to the Wayne Ford plant. Even the Wayne-Ford Civic League's weekly bingo night was canceled Tuesday as the temperature fell to more than 20 degrees below zero.

Hardware stores are running out of heat tape and plumbing items. Morrie and Harry, managers of Chuck's Ace Hardware in Redford, report a run on blow torches, two-cycle oil, kerosene, rock salt, heat tape and pipes.

"We're all out of heat tape and a good amount of plumbing,' Harry said. "It's been a tough winter for everyone." Said Morrie, "Last year no heat tape really sold, and this year you can't get enough of it."

Morrie asked that his and Harry's last names not be used lest folks call them at home with an emergency, asking that the store be opened.

Schoolcraft College and Madonna University remained open, albeit entertaining fewer students than usual.

"I think (the parking lots) look a little bit more empty than they usually look," said Schoolcraft spokeswoman Saundra "Sam" Florek.

Sister Rose Marie, the academic vice president of Madonna University, said many of the students seem to be staying home for the chilly days. "It looks like most of the classes are functioning," she said Wednesday morning. "But our parking lot tells the story."

AAA officials have a good idea where many of those missing cars are. The auto club reports that more than 7,700 trouble calls came in on Saturday and Sunday. Jan. 15-16, making it the busiest weekend in AAA history. Nearly Club expects to record another 35,000 calls, or an average of 5,000 daily, for the busiest January in the record books.

Livonia Mall manager Jeanne. Hildebrandt said business was a bit slow Tuesday. "Traffic is down, but we're open," she said. "We're going to stay open."

For some, however, the big chill is good news.

Consumers Power and Detroit Edison report record sales of natural gas and electricity as people try to avoid becoming frozen.

Consumers delivered more gas for the 24-hour period ending Sunday, Jan. 16, than it had over any 24-hour period in the previous 107 years (2.85 billion cubic feet).

On Tuesday, Edison broke its all-time record for selling electricity for the third time in January. The new record is 6,892,000 kilowatts sold in one hour.

■ While much of metro Detroit hunkered down during the past week's bone-chilling cold snap, more than a few hardy souls ventured out to the ice sculpture spectacular in Plymouth. A rare chance to see some snazzy ice sculptures was their reward.

Frigid weather kept some people away from the 12th Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular, but the show was successful, organizers say. "It was incredible considering the conditions and stuff, there was a lot of people out here," said Mike Watts, ice festival director.

"There's nothing you can do about the weather," Watts said. "I hope people in the future will remember the ice doesn't always melt."

"I think it went very smooth," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager. "There were the usual number of

"Quite frankly, crowds were down, the weatherman scared people away," said Fran Toney, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

"Business was definitely down," she said, following a meeting Tuesday morning of the chamber's retail committee.

"It was so cold, especially in the evenings," Toney said. Still, she said, "Saturday was everybody's big day."

U.S. taps exec's plant closing expertise

BY DIANE GALE STAFF WRITER

Life is like a staircase: One experience prepares you for the next. .

That creed took Rodney Coleman to the top when he was selected last month by President Bill Clinton as an assistant secretary of the Air Force.

"I don't think I would be looking at being. one of the four assistant secretaries of the Air Force if it hadn't been for General Motors," he said.

"And I don't think I would have worked for General Motors if I wasn't a White House Fellow, and I wouldn't have been a White House Fellow if I hadn't done well at Howard University," Coleman said in a room of his Oakland County condo decorated with mementos of his accomplishments.

Photographs of his mother, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian; his father, two adult children and other relatives are on the opposite wall, all parts of what prepared Coleman for his biggest challenge.

Awaits confirmation

If confirmed by the Senate in February or March, he will be assistant secretary for manpower, reserve affairs, installations and environment.

He will be responsible for closing Air Force bases throughout the U.S.

"I will have policy responsibility for all civilian and military personnel in the Air Force worldwide," he said. "My staff will work with Congress, the states and local communities in getting those Air Force bases deactivated." It's similar to the responsibilities Coleman.

55, has at General Motors overseeing plant closures across the country and before that directing the evacuation of an Air Force base under attack in Vietnam for which he was awarded the Bronze Star Medal and the Republic of Vietnam Technical Service Honor Medal, First Class.

"Before I was shutting plants down and now I'll be shutting down bases," said Coleman, who would be ending his eight years with GM and his job as director of urban and municipal affairs.

Credibility is key

Responsible for working with local governments across the country where GM plants were closed, Coleman said it was difficult to go before community leaders and talk about the demise of plants that were the economic core. He added, however, it had to be done forthe good of General Motors.

"If you're truthful and honest, you have to gain confidence of the local communities." he added. "We are in a partnership with them. We had great success across the United States, and I hope to be able to do the same for the Air Force."

Grateful to GM

His loyalty to General Motors is obvious. "I love General Motors with every sense of respect and admiration for the largest industrial corporation in the world," he said. "Having gone through a blip on the screen, it will again be the number one corporation wedding profitability base with market share base. I wish I had the opportunity to be here earlier in my life."

Ending that career and on the verge of another, Coleman said the presidential nomination spurred a thorough FBI investigation including interviews about him with people all* over the United States.

Coleman comes to the job with experience as a 1963 graduate of the Howard University School of Architecture, government official and Air Force officer. If confirmed, he will return to the Air Force in a civilian management position.

Credits family

He credits family support and love coupled with a drive toward perfection as key to his success.

"My mom and dad (Samuel and Rebecca) instilled in me and my brother (Eugene) at a very early age this thing called success, excellence, striving to do absolutely the best with what God gave me, to manifest every skill and talent to the ultimate and to always be prepared for success," he said, adding that preparation means having goals, virtues and morals.

"The responsibility is awesome, just as the responsibility with General Motors was awesome," he said. "So I look forward to it with great anticipation. I've been fortunate to have exciting challenges. I feel I am one of the most fortunate men in America to have these opportunities."

Conference offers chance to learn about cancer risks

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in women --one in eight will develop the disease. That's why the fourth annual "Turning Points Conference" is called "It's Your Life — Learning About Women's Cancer," scheduled for 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 5, at the Dearborn Inn.

Topics will include breast cancer, reproductive cancers, making decisions, and living with cancer.

It will be sponsored by Oakwood Health Services, which owns and operates Annapolis Hospital in Wayne and a large family practice medical clinic on Merriman near Palmer in Westland.

Trish Romer, Oakwood spokeswoman, said the keynote address, "Breast Cancer: The Politics of an Epidemic,' will be presented by Frances Visco, president of the National Breast Cancer Coalition.

Visco is a nationally recognized women's health advocate who also serves on the President's Cancer Panel. She and the NBCC have contributed to the increased awareness and funding of breast cancer, Romer said.

Visco will discuss the many political issues and forces on a national level that affect the research, diagnosis and treatment of breast cancer.

"So much has been out there about breast cancer that we wanted to give southeastern Michigan women the opportunity to learn the medical facts," said Laurie Mead, Oakwood Hospital administrator. "In addition, women also need to know about the cancers of the reproductive organs which also can affect their lives."

Workshops presented by medical experts from Oakwood Hospital and the University of Michigan will cover such subjects as early detection, facts and risks of reproductive cancers, making decisions and "Surviving and Thriving."

"We believe this conference will give women detailed information about prevention and detection of cancer, plus practical information and coping skills to help them deal with a cancer diagnosis for themselves or for someone they love," Mead said.

Program cost is $20 and includes an information packet, continental breakfast, lunch and two workshops. For registration information, call 593-7401.

Fowlkes' selection a good move

he Wayne-Westland Board of Education took a major step toward progress when it named Debra Fowlkes, a longtime school activist, to a school board vacancy Saturday morning.

She will replace Leonard Posey whose resignation, forced by an out-of-state job promotion, was effective Dec. 31.

The board met in a special session to fill the vacancy after interviewing nine candidates a few nights earlier.

What makes Fowlkes' appointment a major step for the board is she has an excellent record of positive school involvement and has no political baggage to carry into the board position.

Fowlkes is focused and has a set of goals for improving the school district, which has had its share of problems, some self-made, in recent years.

One goal is to make schools safer for the district's 16,000-plus students. The district has been plagued by a series of incidents within the past three years involving students bringing guns to school.

Fowlkes, 37 and the mother of two, will fill out the remaining 51/2 months of Posey's term. Hopefully, she will seek a seek a full four-year term. Deadline for candidates to file petitions for that ballot is Monday, April 11.

Not only do Fowlkes' goals reflect a focused and mature outlook for the school board, but the initial comments from other board members also represent welcome news for taxpayers who are tired of political infighting.

suffered because of occasional high-profile squabbles in recent years.

What impresses her new colleagues on the board and others who know her is her independence.

Fowlkes possesses an excellent record of PTA service, including being a former PTA president at Titus Elementary School. Fowlkes also served on the school district's Schools of Choice committee and the superintendent's advisory panel. Outside of school groups, she also belongs to the Wayne chapter of the Business and Professional Women.

While race shouldn't be a primary factor in filling a school board vacancy, Fowlkes' selection means that there will still be African-American representation on the board. Posey, appointed in 1989 to fill a vacancy, was the first African-American member of the local board of education.

Besides maintaining her independence, Fowlkes promises to continue her school activism and represents a positive addition to the board.

Hopefully, she will bring a calming influence to the board as well as help to move the district forward to solve a multitude of problems.

LETTERS

'Get a life'

fter reading too many letters from Walter Warren — this is my answer to him: "Get a life.'

What do you know about what goes on in a school? When was the last time you visited a school and spent time and observed what "older teachers" did for the students?

When was the last time you saw an "older teacher" wipe a tear, give a hug and encouragement? When did you see an "older teacher" tell a "younger teacher" to hang in there, it's worth same predicament, saddled with the same failing policies, shackled with even higher taxes, forced to accept the same, tired old solutions which our electorate has turned down time after time. We will have abdicated our responsibility to our state, our children, and ourselves.

Finally, we will have forfeited that most precious right, the right to complain about our politicians. That should be reason enough to get to work right now.

Keep school operation public

ur school finances are ailing, but privatization is a medicine best taken in small doses.

Contracting out in certain specific areas, such as busing, janitorial services or building and grounds maintenance, could provide savings for financially-strapped local public schools.

But contracting out management of an entire school district, as the Pinckney Schools in Livingston County is attempting, courts disaster. A major issue is the public's right to know.

Our public schools are forced by law to conduct business in public.

That means the public gets to scrutinize every decision, as is its right.

It's true those same laws would apply to a privately managed school district. Yet we strongly doubt that managers trained in the private sector, where secrecy is the watchword, would be as forthcoming as even the most reticent local superintendent.

Think that doesn't pose a clear and present danger? Then consider this: Plymouth-Canton Schools is already under fire for hiring a private consulting firm to guide its search for a new superintendent.

The controversy is that the private consultants recommended school officials conduct their search in private by concealing the names of those who have applied and meeting in dubious private sessions to evaluate candidates.

It's an ominous trend.

A group of journalists recently met in Troy for a first-of-its-kind seminar on the effect of privatization in promoting government secrecy.

The outlook isn't bright.

"When you are dealing with private businesses doing public business, you are losing access," said one local environmental reporter who at---tended the seminar.

The problems involve more than just journalists. As the press loses access, so do parents, so do other taxpayers.

Still, privatization is a tempting option, especially as local schools grapple with the revenue loss they could face as a result of state property tax reform.

There are local school districts — Avondale, Clarenceville and Redford Union immediately spring to mind — just as small and financially pressed as Pinckney.

One of Pinckney's major reasons for going private is the lack of expertise due to its small size. That's more of a reason for consolidating school districts than for privatizing management structure.

Even our area's "giants" like Birmingham, Rochester Hills and Livonia are facing new financial pressures.

We encourage all local schools to do what they can to stretch taxpayer dollars as far as they can.

But turning district management over to a private firm would be a large, and very public, mistake.

teaching despite the setbacks?

I see it all the time — I see the "older teachers and younger teachers" being mother, father, brother, sister to the students.

They come to work very early and stay very late — receive many phone calls at home from parents late into the evening hours.

It's people like you who keep our schools in constant turmoil. Instead of being positive, you are constantly spewing your negative venom.

Try having a positive attitude toward the Wayne-Westland school district and just maybe you will help our schools improve our MEAP scores.

So Mr. Warren, get a life. Miriam Zeidman, Westland

Opportunity knocks

hether it is an outrageous and irresponsible political ploy by a desperate Legislature otherwise bankrupt of solutions to Michigan's tax dilmemma or a bold and courageous challenge to us all to find some new and real solutions, the property tax cut offers us all an opportunity and motivation to review our educational system as it should have been reviewed years ago.

The process has already started. In the past two days, there has been a flurry of ideas about not only financing education but about Michigan's education delivery system itself.

What is needed is to harness all the energy that Deborah Stabenow's political bomb has released — to capture the creative, serious, workable solutions and with them to mold a new, efficient, effective educational system for our children.

We need an independent commission working outside existing educational and political institutions to assemble input from individuals and groups who care about education in Michigan, and from that collective wisdom, to forge a plan which will not hesitate to make radical changes to the system if radical change is needed.

We have shown that we can say "No" to the proposals we don't like. It is time to show the Englers of the world that we can have a modern, efficient, effective educational system. We can show that educational excellence is not a result of blindly pouring dollars into an outmoded system. It is a product of motivated people working together.

If in the course of this coming year we do not seize this opportunity, we will be mired in the nother opportunity . . . another disappointment. Michigan taxpayers are again led down the promised path, only to be given the promise of higher taxes for no added service.

Tax hike no compromise

Remember the promises of "educational reform" and "real tax reductions" as our Lansing legislators heralded Senate Bill No. 1 as the opportunity to produce real education reform and cost controls to produce real tax reductions? As legislators approached their self imposed deadline two plans were developed; one by the House and another by the Senate. Governor Engler proposed a compromise plan. On Christmas Eve, a "compromise plan" was approved, and endorsed by the Governor.

"The only compromise made was to the integrity (?) of the political system. According to the "Detroit News" (Dec. 19, 1993) the House plan would have resulted in a tax cut of $300 million, the Senate version a $1 billion tax cut, and the Governor's compromise plan a $500 million reduction. What was achieved through the "compromise" process was a plan to have the voters approve either a $44 million or a $59 million net tax increase ("Detroit News" Dec. 26, 1993).

My analogy to this compromise plan is as follows:

I have a used car for sale, I'm asking $10,000 for it, you offer $9,000. We compromise at $11,000. Lansing's definition of compromise, not mine.

Remember when the legislators were taking credit for a $6.9 billion tax reduction when they repealed the property tax? Some of the "honest politicians" (oxymoron) stated that "some" of the funding would have to be replaced from other sources, but promised cost control measures to ensure a real tax reduction. Oh yes, they also promised real educational reform. In case you were gone for the Holidays, none of this happened.

My suggestion to local school boards . . . we must make at least two classes required for high school graduation. First, negotiation skills and how to compromise. Second, a basic finance class so when you add up revenues from alternate tax plans you understand which one is a tax cut versus a tax increase. Maybe the legislators of tomorrow will be better prepared with these two courses!

By the way, I have a used car for sale . . . anybody in Lansing interested?

Gangs aren't just for big cities anymore

angs are no longer a big city problem only. Gangs are becoming more obvious, not only in our large cities, but also in our smaller cities all over the country.

In the suburbs near Detroit, gangs are being organized, either as new gangs or as new parts of old gangs. (In the fall, several communities in western Wayne County held public educational programs on gange for parents.)

What is a gang? What are the reasons gangs organize? Who is at risk?

These are just a few of the questions we need to be asking if we are going to stop this process.

Most people are aware that a gang is a group that sees itself as distinctive from the rest of the community and intentionally prompts a negative response from that community. Gangs prompt a negative response by being involved in criminal activity ranging from graffiti on public property to destruction of property to burglary and theft to selling illegal drugs to acts of physical violence.

Most people may not be aware that gangs are very well-organized, have a great deal of structure and have strong leadership. Each gang determines its own reputation by the types of crimes the gang or individuals from the gang choose to become involved in.

In the past, gangs were concerned with community and turf issues. Today, gangs are concerned with financial gain and drug trafficking.

Since illegal drugs can only be sold through organized networks, larger gangs from other cities try to distribute their merchandise through new or smäller gangs.

It is when a gang becomes involved in selling drugs that the acts of violence become more lethal. The gangs of GUEST COLUMNIST today, unlike gangs of the past, use violence as a rule, not the exception. Their weapons and technology are very sophisticated. Gangs often require a person to commit acts of violence to become a member. Another way that today's gangs are different is that substance abuse is very common and at times expected for membership.

Gangs recruit new members either through sweet talk or by using muscle. Prime targets for recruitment are children between 10 and 15 who do not neatly fit into other organized systems. The gang offers things, such as "needbased factors," to these children who feel they do not belong elsewhere. The need-based factors appear to be identity and status, protection or security, activity/excitement, fellowship/companionship, and economics.

Research has shown that children who are most at risk are those with lower levels of self-esteem and selfconcept; they feel less overall control of their lives than other children. Gangs offer a way of coping for these children.

There has long been a notion that gangs came from the parts of society that are clearly lower on the economic and/or social ladder. For the most part that is untrue today.

Along with the growing relationship between drugs and gang activity come the images of easy money and the fasttrack lifestyle. These lures can be attractive to a child from any social strata. Gang-involved teenagers from all socio-economic levels can be typified as being more economically and technologically advanced (expensive automobiles, beepers, cellular phones) than their peers who are not involved in gangs.

he late Philip A. Hart served as U.S. senator from Michigan from 1958 to 1976. Just inside the entrance of the Hart Senate Office Building which is named for him, there is an archway. On that archway is an inscription which reads:

"This building is dedicated by his colleagues to Philip A. Hart with affection, respect and esteem. A man of incorruptible integrity and personal courage, strengthened by inner grace and outer gentleness, he elevated politics to a level of purity that will forever be an example to every elected official.

Although my decision to leave politics was difficult, it was the right decision for me and for my family.

In the 11 years since I left political office, I have accomplished what I had hoped to achieve. Our children have been raised, I have had a successful law practice and I have been able to be deeply involved in community activities.

In my campaign for the Senate, I will talk about several issues. We must improve the economy of our state and of our nation. We need an economy which will generate millions of new, solid, secure, well-paying jobs for our people. Our young people, our laid-off citizens and our welfare recipients must have a chance to work. That's what they need, that's what they want and that's what they deserve. We must also improve our education system. This is primarily a state and local function, but the federal government must play an important role in developing and implementing the kind of education programs that will provide every child with an equal opportunity

Full access to quality health care for every citizen is an idea whose time has come. We must develop a national health care program which is effective and efficient and which relies on the expertise of people at the state and local level and on financial incentives for doctors and hospitals to keep people healthy.

I have had 12 years of legislative experience — four in the Michigan Legis lature and eight in the U.S. Congress. I believe my public record is one of hard work, devotion to public service and solid accomplishment on behalf of the people of Michigan.

Most recently, I have spent 11 years in the private sector. As one of the directors of a large law firm, an organization which employs 350 people in Michigan, I have learned what it means to try to earn a profit in a very competitive business environment and to provide good jobs with good benefits for our employees. In my own law practice, I have provided counsel to individuals, corporations, labor unions and units of government. I have learned a lot about the problems of the people of the state and a lot about how the federal government can help solve our problems and a lot about how it can make our problems worse.

I've also been active in civic work: as a hospital trustee, as a board member of a large charitable foundation and as co-chair of a citizens group which addresses the problems of delinquent and neglected young people. I've served as a volunteer and fund-raiser for several local charities.

Most important of all, I have been married for nearly 29 years. Kathi and I have raised what we think are two great kids. Mike is now 25 and working as a computer programmer in California, and Paul, who is 19, is a sophomore at the University of Michigan.

At age 52, I believe that I have the knowledge, experience and record of accomplishment which are needed to become the kind of senator you deserve to have. # Geake hearing tells of anger with Friend of Court

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Friend of the Court child support payment procedures are often criticized, but you'd never learn that from the official state court administrator.

"The money is disappearing. No one really seems to know where it is," a Charlotte man wrote to Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

Geake, chairman of a Senate appropriations subcommittee, was flooded with 115 speakers at last Saturday's hearing in Livonia, plus 100 letters and telephone calls in which people poured out stories of personal suffering, frustration at being put on "hold" and plain rudeness by Friend of the Court workers.

CHILD SUPPORT

FOC handles court-ordered child support and alimony payments. The payer writes a check to FOC, whose staff deducts a small handling fee and sends the money to the ex-spouse with custody of the children.

That's what it says on paper. That's not the way it works, say the people - especially those who deal with Wayne County FOC.

In a report to the Legislature. last month, Marilyn K. Hall, state court administrator, said 881 grievances wêre filed during the fiscal year and all but 34 (3.9 percent) were "resolved," Some $1 billion in payments

• were ordered by the circuit courts. and about 80 percent was collected. Hall said. But her official report, with columns of statistics. gave no hint of the seething anger felt by people who deal with FOC.

A Dearborn woman was told by FOC that it had "no record" of $5,000 her ex-husband had paid. "One lady told me I obviously wasn't indigent and probably didn't need the money," she wrote,

A budget analyst for Ford Motor Co. told of being put on "hold" for 45 minutes when calling Wayne County FOC and spending $500 on a lawyer to "straighten the account-out."

A Farwell attorney complained on behalf of his woman client that she was supposed to receive $350 checks every two weeks. "There are too many different amounts being paid on unscheduled dates" from Wayne County, he said. Re. sult: His client was "often destitute."

The Senate subcommittee will hear more public testimony at 1 p.m. Saturday in the Oakland County Board of Commissioners auditorium, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

Westland John Glenn broke a long drought against city rival Wayne Memorial with a 54-53 boys basketball victory. The Rockets' Albert Jones hit the gamewinning shot with only 13 seconds remaining to clinch the victory.

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

The hostages in Iran were finally released, air traffic controllers went out on strike (never to return), and Sandra Day O'Connor was confirmed as the first woman U.S. Supreme Court Justice.

The year was 1981.

That was also the last time Westland John Glenn beat rival Wayne Memorial in boys basketball, but the Rockets ended 13 years of frustration, snapping a 16-game losing skid against their arch-rival with a spellbinding 54-53 victory Tuesday at Wayne.

Sophomore guard Albert Jones' short jumper in the key with only 13 seconds left in regulation provided the final margin of victory.

Following the go-ahead hoop, the Zebras failed to get off a final shot as guard Gerald Adams was stripped, trying to split a pair of Glenn defenders on a drive to the basket.

Glenn's 6-foot-9 junior center Guy Rucker picked up the loose ball and safely threw an outlet pass to secure the victory as time expired. The last time Glenn beat the Zebras was the March '81 district championship final at Plymouth Salem.

The emotional victory, coming before a large crowd at Alumni Arena, gives Glenn a 5-1 overall record.

The loss drops Wayne to 7:2. "This will make the kids feel more confident," Glenn second-year coach Mike Schuette said. "This makes them feel good because it means they can play with some of the better teams around. Wayne has a great program and a great team. "The self-doubt won't be there as much as it has been in the past. All I wanted to win by was one point."

Jones, who nearly had a mishap boarding the Glenn bus en route to the game, drove down the middle of the floor on a three-on-two break before pulling up just inside the freethrow line for the game-winning shot.

"They were pressing us and all I wanted to do is get the ball in play," said a still-shaken Jones. "I passed it in and got the ball back from Savon Hubbard. I was looking for one of the big guys (Tony Goins or Rucker) going down the floor, but they were covered. It (the shot) felt like it was going in as soon as it left my hands."

Goins, a 6-foot-4 senior forward, finished with 21 points, while Rucker added 19.

"It means a lot to be on a team that beat Wayne," Goins said. "A lot of us are good friends. We talk on the phone back and forth. It means a lot who wins this game."

Freshman Lorenzo Guess led Wayne and all scorers with 23 points. Jason Overton, a 6-5 senior center, added 10.

Goins and Rucker, a pair of intimidating forces inside, proved to be twin terrors. They combined for several blocks in the opening half as Glenn held a 25-21 advantage.

Wayne, apparently stopped at the door by the newly installed metal detectors, left its offensive weapons at home.

The Zebras shot a frigid two of 20 in the opening quarter and only 26.8

Redford Union is no longer a bridesmaid in girls volleyball.

After three runner-up finishes at tournaments over the past two years, the Panthers won the eightteam Madonna University Varsity Classic Saturday with a 15-7, 15-9 win over Livonia Franklin in the championship final. See summary on Page 4B.

"I played from 1982 to '86 and I know we didn't win a tournament. 'so it's been at least 10 years," said RU coach Marie Becker, who has turned the program around after the Panthers finished 1-29 overall her first season as coach in 1990-91. "We've struggled for a long time, but now we have experience on the floor. We have seven seniors, three of whom have been on the varsity since their freshman year. We've improved and we're playing really hard."

Senior Vicki Toth, who recorded 18 kills, 18 blocks and 10 ace serves on the day was named tournament MVP.

ROUNDUP

"She was outstanding," Becker said. "This was definitely the best she's played in a tournament. She does the job I need her to do. I'm proud of the entire team and the way they played."

Rachel Clor, who had 14 kills and nine blocks, and setter Nicole Droelle, who added 31 assists and nine aces, were also named to the All-Tourney team.

Both the Patriots (8-2-1 overall) and the RU Panthers (9-1-6) each won their four-team pools.

RU captured Pool B with a 4-2 record. The Panthers then beat Livonia Clarenceville (15-8, 15-5) and Garden City (15-9, 13-15, 15-9) in the elimination round.

Franklin went 6-0 in Pool A and reached the finals with wins over Lincoln Park (15-4, 15-6) and Redford Thurston (15-8, 15-9).

The upstart Patriots, vastly improved over a year ago, were led by All-Tourney picks Jaclyn Deane #### and Lenay Truchan. Deane, a 6-foot-1 junior, had 34

kills on the day to go along with seven aces and six solo blocks. Senior Lenay Truchan added 56 assists, 31 kills (only one error) and nine aces.

Andrea Greer chipped in with 27 kills, 19 aces and had a .930 serve reception percentage. Sonja Hluschenko, a setter, contributed 31 assists and nine aces.

"It was a balanced team effort, we also got our right-side hitters involved," Franklin coach Ann Hutchins said. "We did a good job serving, and we had a good serve reception percentage.

"We're more focused this year, and skill-wise, we have more depth."

Pats stop Stevenson

Franklin improved to 9-2-1 overall as it opened Western Lakes Activities Association play with a 15-8, 15-8, 15-11 win Monday over host Livonia Stevenson.

Mary Bagazinski served 10straight points in the second game to lead the Patriots. She finished with four aces, four assists and three blocks.

Other contributions came from Jaclyn Deane (17 kills), Lenay Truchan (23 assists and 24 digs)

Angie Pilppo paced Stevenson (5.5.4, 1-1) with nine kills, while Jen Monaghan and Michelle Hale each contributed five. Jill Millington and Janene lopi were the team's top servers.

Sheri Gromek and Katle Christenson were defensive standouts.

It was all so . contagious. The optimism was flowing. Overflowing, really. Players looked at each other, assessing abilities, took a step back and said, "Man, we are good." Didn't matter that almost none of them had played a single minute of college basketball. They had the attitude. They had the ability. They had the arrogance.

That was eight weeks ago. Before Madonna University's resurrected men's basketball team had played a single game. Before the losses started to mount.

I remember coach Bill Sharpe asking one of his players prior to the season-opener how many games the team was going to win. "All of them," was the candid reply.

Sharpe should have known better, but he allowed himself to get caught up in this misplaced optimism. He got sucked in by a bunch of freshmen who didn't know any better.

Only two of Madonna's players had any collegiate experience entering the season - and that was with junior college teams.

That alone should have set off a caution signal. But it didn't. I remember a friend from way back, when asked why he was always so negative, recited this proverb: "A pessimist is never disappointed."

Does the opposite hold true? Are optimists doomed to disappointment?

The Fighting Crusaders might believe so. Now.

The confidence of eight weeks ago has long since eroded. It's been buried beneath an avalanche of losses, almost all of them lopsided. Madonna has one win in 20 games. Only twice this season have opponents been held to under 100 points. The second came Saturday, in a 99-82 loss to University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The Crusaders have been ridiculed by ESPN sports commentator Dick Vitale. They have been laughed at after giving up 189 points to Oakland University -and the Pioneers' two best players didn't even dress for the game. Almost all of their losses have been by more than 10 points — most by much, much more.

"It's rough. Real rough," said Mike Slone, a 6-foot-5 freshman from Plymouth Salem. "I was just so used to winning."

In his three varsity seasons at Salem, he didn't lose this many games. It's not an easy lesson to learn.

J. Dimes, a 6-4 freshman forward from East Catholic, wasn't " used to losing, either. "When we started 0-and-7, I said I'll have to get used to it. Now, I just concentrate on each game.

Blame can be heaped almost everywhere: Sharpe's coaching (an inappropriate up-tempo offense that features poor shooters, with little rebounding and less defense, critics harp); a lack of team leadership (Slone: "That's the problem with this team — there's no leadership, no togetherness"); even bad luck (injuries in particular)

Things began to unravel when, just before the season-opener, 6-7 forward-center Ken Taylor (from Westland John Glenn) was lost because of academic problems. That certainly hurt the Crusaders' inside game.

But Taylor couldn't have saved them.

It got so bad that, after the 82point loss to OU Dec. 20, Sharpe started talking about resigning. That hardly buoyed his young team's now-fragile confidence.

Things have changed since then. The situation has settled some. Players have adopted an attitude like Dimes' — one thing at a time. "I just have to focus on doing something else each game," Dimes said. "It might be defense one game, then shooting the next, until it all blends together."

Coming together . . Sharpe realizes now that will take time. The Crusaders never seem to do one thing right for an entire game. In the loss Saturday to UM-Dearborn, Madonna battled back from a 16-point halftime deficit to tie the game with 10 minutes left.

But then the Crusaders let up - and lost by 17.

It can't be easy for Sharpe. Monday's practice provided some insight into the problems facing his team. The half-court drill seemed simple enough: drive down the lane, drive down the lane. Sharpe repeated it half-adozen times. Still, players pulled up for jumpers from the threepoint arc.

But it's a learning process, and these freshmen are learning. Slowly, maybe, but they are learning. And they aren't ready to quit.

"As long as (Sharpe) stays, I'll stay," said Slone. "If we keep losing games the way we're losing them, it'll be hard for all these guys to stay here.

"Eventually, this could be a good team, if everyone stays. But right now, I don't think that'll happen.'

Dimes has heard the discontent, too. But he is determined to turn this program around. "Yes, I am (staying)," he said without hesitation. Do his teammates share his determination? "Hopefully they do. I hope they feel they can come back next season and contribute."

Reality suggests not all of them will. But those that do will be a year older and a whole lot wiser. Better, too — and better for it.

Lady Crusaders bounce UM-D

A strong defensive effort supplied Madonna University with the impetus needed to win its second-straight women's basketball game, 71-59, Saturday at University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The Lady Crusaders, who improved to 7-8, surrendered just five second-half field goals. The Lady Wolves converted 5-of-21 (23.8 percent) from the floor; Madonna was 13-of-29 (44.8 percent) over the last 20 minutes.

The Wolves, now 8-7, got 21 points from Kellie Taylor, 17 points and 11 boards from Gwen Kollmorgen, and 10 points, 13 rebounds and four assists from Heather Towery.

UM-DEARBORN (MEN) 99, MADONNA 82: There were promising aspects for the Madonna men's basketball team in Saturday's home game against University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The Crusaders overcame a 16-point halftime deficit, battling back to knot the score with 10 minutes left. And, for only the second time this season, they limited the opposition to under 100 points.

Derek weathers storm

Forty weeks ago Farmington Hills resident Joe Derek set forth on a journey, not knowing for sure where it would lead. For the first time in his life the outdoor educator/naturalist was taking his knowledge of nature to the airwaves as the host of an outdoor radio program. He started with a 13week contract and his show, "Naturally Michigan Afield, has been on the air ever since. "I went into this thing cold-turkey," Derek said. "I didn't really know what to expect."

What Derek didn't plan on is come on in March, just nobody in January. The next four weeks will be tough, but then I'll be into mid-February and should be all right."

In keeping with his promise of offering a broad-based program, Derek has already done shows covering topics ranging from composting to gun control; from butterfly collecting to turkey calling.

The show airs at 10 a.m. Wednesdays on WCAR, 1090 AM.

Having weathered the storm, Derek is already planning for the future. Some of the upcoming topics Derek plans to cover include ice fishing with tipups, Michigan turtles and Michigan endangered species, spring steelhead fishing, turkey hunting, and the cleanup efforts on the Rouge River.

"The response has been good," Derek said. "I think I'm one of the top shows (on WCAR) as far as listener response. Everyone seems to like it. For me it's been a blast. I plan on staying on now for a while."

Reminders, reminders

Personally, I'd wait until the temperature warms a little, but a special Canada goose season runs through Feb. 6. The area open to hunting includes all public and private lands south of a line from Port Huron to Grand Rapids (along highways I-69, M-21 and M-45).

The DNR counted more than 130,000 Canada geese in the state during a mid-December count including 70,000 in the area open to the special hunt.

With all the sub-zero weather we've had recently many of these birds may have headed south. Any remaining birds will be roosting on open water — if you can find any:

Churchill holds off Garden City, 41-37

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

The best reason for Garden City boys basketball fans to cheer Tuesday night came following the game when public address announcer Dan York reminded students there would be no school the next day.

There wasn't much to get excited about during the game as the Cougars shot a frigid 23 percent (11-of-48) from the field and couldn't recover from an early deficit. losing to Livonia Churchill, 41-37.

GC fell to 3-5 overall. Churchill, which didn't make a field goal in the fourth quarter, is 2-6 overall.

Churchill turned the ball over nine times and missed all three of its field goal attempts in the fourth quarter, but the Chargers were perfect in four tries from the free-throw line.

GC scored the first nine points of the fourth quarter to trail 37-34 but Churchill's Ethan Jerome made two free throws with 1:58 left to push the lead to five.

Garden City's Mike Marlow scored a three-point play with 1:41 left to cut the deficit to 39-37 and the Cougars stole the next Churchill possession. But Garden City missed six shots, all from at least 15 feet, in the last minute and Churchill's Bill Morris sealed the victory with two free throws with 14.4 seconds left.

The Chargers were 14-37 from the field (38 percent) and had a 34-21 rebounding advantage. Jerome led Churchill with 12 points, junior forward Jaime Williston scored seven and senior forward Adam Bowser and senior guard Jeff Barry added six each.

Prior to the fourth quarter, Churchill committed only eight

turnovers

'We don't have a big scorer so we do all we can to score as many points as we can to get a lead and do all we can not to relinquish the lead," Churchill coach Tom Lang said.

Guard Tim Wrublewski scored only two points but grabbed six rebounds for the Chargers and played a strong all-around game, according to Lang.

"Wrublewski's a boy that I didn't think would come around, but hard work and determination have made him a starter," Lang said.

The Chargers started strong and finished the first quarter with a 17-5 lead after Jerome's 35-foot three-point heave at the buzzer.

Churchill led by as many as 13 in the second quarter before the Cougars came back to trail 28-20.

Pete Males and Paul Haag scored 12 and 10, respectively, for Garden City.

and alp horns play to the child in all of us with special January programming centered around youth.

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra opens its Children's Concert Series aimed at building future audiences wile the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, now in its 48th season, presents an aspiring young talent.

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra features its Young Artist Competition second-place winner Christian Hebel, a promising 18-year-old violinist from Plymouth, at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28 at Plymouth First Presbyterian Church, 701 W. Church, and Saturday, Jan. 29 at the Novi Civic Center, 45175 Ten Mile, east of Taft.

A senior at Plymouth Salem High School, Hebel performs the first movement of a violin concerto by 20th-century Russian composer Kabalevsky.

Tickets are $6 adults, $5 seniors and $3 students in grades kindergarten through 12. Advance tickets are available in Plymouth at Evola Music, 215 Ann Arbor Road, and Beitner's Jewelry, 904 W. Ann Arbor Trail; in Canton at Dearborn Music, 42670 Ford Road; in Northville at

PREVIEW was judged by Reed, PSO bassoonist

William Hulsker and PSO violinist Kiyo Morse. Hebel received a $100 cash prize along with the opportunity to appear with the orchestra. The multitalented honor student has performed with the Plymouth Youth Symphony, Livonia Youth Symphony and for the last five years with the Detroit Symphonic Civic Orchestra. He also sings, dances and acts.

In addition to Hebel's performance, the PSO goes to great measures to spotlight a 10-harp ensemble, four alp horns, a flute choir, a piano solo and ensembles featuring members of the orchestra on cello, clarinet, classical guitar, flute, harp, violin and viola.

"We have unusual things you don't hear very often. In fact, I don't think I've ever seen 10 harps on stage at the -same time before," said Andy Vermiglio, publicity person.

Vermiglio, who plays double bass with the PSO, and his wife Elaine, PSO pianist, will perform a piano/ acoustic guitar piece "Serenade Op. 76" by Leonard Von Call.

"You don't often get to hear a classical piano and acoustic guitar duet. It's quite unusual," said Andy Vermiglio.

Now in its 20th season, the LSO, under assistant conductor Karl Karoub, begins its chamber concert series at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28, and children's concert series at 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 29, in the intimate setting of the 300-seat Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Mozart and Hayden are on tap as well as "A Little Night Music.'

The opening children's concert will introduce the orchestral instruments and illustrate how it's possible to visualize the music. This was a popular series not only with children but also adults in its first season last year. Tickets for the LSO's Series B and C are $12 adults, seniors 62 and up, $8; students 12 and up with valid I.D., $6 and children under age 12, $3. Advance tickets available at Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan; Hammell Music, 15630 Middlebelt; and the Livonia Civic Center Library. The Jan. 29 "Paint a Picture" pro-ert Duvall) and Frank (Richard Harris) were never meant to be friends.

Drama explores friendship between opposites

In philosophy, experience, instinct, even nationality, they are polar opposites. All they have in common is a certain age and the fact that fate has beached them in the same quiet Florida town in "Wrestling Ernest Hemmingway," opening Friday, Jan. 21 at the Star John R Theatre.

Walter, a circumspect retired Cuban barber, is a dignified and reserved observer of life. Frank, a salty Irish ex-sea captain, revels in, and fights with, life every step of the way. Frank has talked himself into and out of more trouble than he can remember. Walter has spent his life listening, trying to discern how the gentlemen want their hair cut.

The daredevil, oft-marifed Frank salves his loneliness-with the balm of yesterday's conquests, including an often-told tale about the time in his youth that he wrestled Ernest Hemmingway.

The precise bachelor Walter drifts in a quiet routine that includes a shy flirtation with the pretty young waitress at the corner luncheonette. But when the two men's paths cross; the need for human contact presses them to overlook the incongruity of their differences.

An unexpectedly rich friendship blooms between them when they meet in the local park one afternoon. In the days that follow, each man breathes new life into the other.

Walter, who knows too little of the opposite sex, shows Frank new concepts, like old-world respect for women, refined dining habits, love for a losing Little League team, good grooming and responsibility.

Frank, who has experiences far too many women in his day, introduces Walter to a more carefree existence, to salacious conversation, a new form of transportation, to movies, a world filled with women, the delightful defiance of skinny dipping, the spell of the sea.

As they influence each other in small and powerful ways, their lives are touched by three very difference women. Helen (Shirely MacLaine) is an apartment building manager whose tough exterior masks compassion and loneliness.

Georgia (Piper Laurie) is a coquettish senior who copes with her own isolation the only way she knows how. And Elaine (Sandra Bullock) is the pretty young waitress who weaves a spell with kindness.

When all is said and done, Walter and Frank add immense measure to each other's time on Earth.

is an intimate insight into the profound meaning of friendship, embracing the need, the hurt, the discovery, the headaches, fun, sacrifice and nobility entwined in this difficult and fundamental bond.

Written by Steve Conrad and produced by Todd Black and Joe Wizan, "Wrestling Ernest Hem-ingway" is directed by Randa Haines, distributed by Warner Bros.

Walter, Frank and their lady friends sprang from the mind of Steve Conrad, who was a 21-yearold college senior, when he was compelled "to write a story about friendships - why we make them, how we lose them, what they mean to us.'

After graduation he polished his script in motel rooms as he drove from Northwestern University in Illinois to Los Angeles, Calif.

"I was delightfully surprised when I met Steve Conrad," said director Randa Haines. "I'm still impressed with how he could write with such honesty, depth and sensitivity about things he won't experience for decades. He possesses amazing insight into the fragile human condition.'

When discussing the story, Conrad, now 23, reveals, "I had no age group in mind. I just wanted to show how friends touch you,

Ways to enjoy nature when it's too cold to go outside

Winter treat: Learning bird songs to help in field identification has become much easier and warmer in recent years because of audio cassettes and compact discs.

GRE, GMAT prep class offered at Madonna

A Madonna University course to prepare students for the Graduate Record Exam and Graduate Management Admission Test will be held 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, Feb. 19 to March 12. Fee is $155. For more information, call 591-5188. Students will review the format and content for the GRE and GMAT with the goal of improving performance in tests. Emphasis will be placed on the kinds of verbal and quantitative skills measured by the exams.

Winter storms NATURE TRAILS and extremely cold temperatures keep wise outdoor enthusiasts inside. Normal winter weather should not prevent people from enjoying the outdoors, but there are times TIMOTHY when it is better NOWICKI to stay home.

While at home, those interested in fly fishing tie flies for the upcoming season and bird watchers can study bird songs.

Learning bird songs to help in field identification has become much easier in recent years. "Birding by Ear" is a package of three audio cassettes that really teaches, people how to learn bird songs. Unlike previous bird song tapes or records, "Birding by Ear" puts similar sounding songs together. Most other products put songs in the same order as they are found in field guides.

By putting similar sounding songs together, the author can compare and contrast them easily. This allows the listener to identify and remember elements of each song used to distinguish one from the other. Bird songs are also grouped into general categories for easy reference --- like the sing-songers and the name sayers.

About 80 different songs are carefully described with several examples of each song. At the end of the last cassette, there is a test. You are given the type of habitat and then a series of songs are played for you to identify.

Before the cassette, there were long-playing records of bird songs. Their songs too were often in the same order as the field guides. It was difficult to select just one song to listen to and it was practically impossible to take it in the field.

When cassettes became available, they allowed more mobility, faster location of individual songs and a longer-lasting product. But if you wanted to play a song at the end of the tape, you had to fastforward through the entire tape.

Compact discs have been the answer to those who want everything in a bird song audio product. They have clear reproduction, they are compact, they are long-lasting and the user can recall songe in an instant. songs in an instant.

Both, the "Peterson Field Guide" series bird song collection and the "National Geographic Guide to Bird Songs" are now on CD. Each bird has its own band on the National Geographic product which allows immediate recall of any individual song. With the use of a portable CD player, birders can go into the field and easily verify a song they hear by playing it on their player.

The real cause of slow drains is a thick

Soap and dirt leave a "ring" around your bathtub - along the entire length of your tub. That same film builds up in your pipes - all the way out to the sewer. up in your pipes - all the way out to the sewer. Imagine how thick the "ring" would be if your. tub wasn't cleaned since your house was built. That is how thick the crud in your pipes is. No wonder you have slow drains!

If you have even a moderate sized home you have roughly 100 feet of pipe filled with grease and soap scum. Most of this pipe is horizontal. Imagine again a bathtub that hasn't been cleaned for years. If you pour a drain opener into the tub (which is horizontal) it just runs along the bottom. The thick scum ring on the sides is left behind. The same thing happens in your pipes! # How to take the con out of conflicts onflicts are sure to happen no matter who you are, where you are, your age, gender or intellect. We try hard to avoid conflict, but it always has a way of meeting you head on.

Conflict is notorious for pushing all the right pressure buttons that release a number of feelings, most commonly anxiety. With conflict comes a flood of feelings to act out, unrehearsed, to the audience.

How can children be taught to deal with and resolve conflict? Children are candidates for encouraging conflict and blaming others, but are presumed to be better at making peace once the emotional blocks are removed. With the peer pressure children are faced with daily, they learn to sort out the good from the bad, right from wrong, while developing and maintaining self-awareness.

Children need assistance in carving out alternatives to handling problems that will occur and co-existing with their peers and others. Let's start by identifying conflict and how it takes place between folks.

Light Work

'Tommy' taps her backstage talent

Hope Buchan says it was luck, but those who know her say it also was her good work and reliability that landed her the job of operating the Vari-Lites for the rock opera "Tommv."

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

place at the right time has illuminated Hope Buchan's career - literally.

Through her connections, the 1987

Plymouth Canton High School graduate was able to land a job operating Vari-Lites, automated lights which can control the color and shape of the beam. Since she was introduced to the lights 11/2 years ago, she's worked for the Miss America Pageant in 1993 and the Hurricane Relief concert produced by Gloria Estefan in Miami.

This week she'll return to the metropolitan Detroit area as part of the technical cast of "Tommy," The Who rock opera which plays the Masonic Temple through Feb. 6.

"I've had it - compared to most people - fairly lucky. I've been meeting the right people and having the right connections," Buchan said via telephone from Boston where "Tommy" was playing.

Footlights: When the national touring company of the rock opera "Tommy" takes to the stage, former Plymouth resident Hope Buchan is there. Her talent as a high-tech Vari-Lite operator landed a spot with the Internal conflict takes place within a person. When conflict takes place internally children, adults can help by asking them to discuss how they feel. Help children focus on creating options wherever possible and also to evaluate options. Usually, internal conflict can be easily resolved, if children can express and work through feelings, since kids are more apt to be subjective thinkers.

Ask children to find out why they feel the way they do and what action, if any, should take place to resolve the conflict.

Conflict between children usually comes with an argument, yelling, sometimes pushing, shoving and, yes, name calling. An argument between two children can start out small, a little teasing here, a nasty look there, and later rolling on the grass or pavement. It can become progressively more violent without timely adult intervention. Among older children and teens who haven't learned to effectively demonstrate problem-solving skills and to focus on common ground or interests, a nonviolent outbreak can snowball into something very ugly and violent.

Children, even adults, should learn the art of negotiation and its significance in aiding in conflict resolution. Once children are old enough to make the connection between their feelings and the feelings of others, including recognizing the skills of others, then children can be better able to show empathy and mutual respect. Negotiation becomes an option.

Young children's conflicts are often territorial - my toy, my space, my friend. Therefore, negotiation becomes harder with tots since they're egocentric anyway. Compensation is what works - a toy for a toy.

However, conflicts between two 11-year-olds can best be resolved if the children can identify a common interest. Rules to fair fighting are to identify the problem, focus on the problem and attack the problem, not the person. Listen to each other instead of attacking one another. Fess up for your actions - take responsibility. Conflict tug-of-war between adolescent children can result in each party suffering a "blistered hands" syndrome - pain from going through a stressful disagreement and frustration from not being able to win what they perceive as the war.

A tug-of-war is a pull of equal proportion because of each child's determination, or call it adolescent conviction, to individual rights. If the two kids lighten up long enough to actively listen to each other's concerns, breaking down the emotional barriers, conflict resolution can take its course.

It doesn't have to be a win/lose situation. It can be a win/win situation, if mutual goals and needs are identified and met. This will provide options - not losers. Help children to find solutions that make sense and can be followed. Let them know you understand that with conflict, even adults feel threatened at times.

In the real world where there are real people with real feelings, not just moving bodies with painted on faces, children should know that problem-solving comes with the package of life. Where there are people, there are problems. And where there are people, there are problems. And where there are people, there are solutions to problems. Problem-solving begins with thinking and ends in recognizable results based on smart al-ternative choices. Cones children can get over be-ing upset, taking control of and/or getting a grip on feelings, then children as well as adults can begin to stop, think and resolve.

If you have a question or comment for Eartha

More than luck

One of her mentors, however, said that Buchan possesses a lot more than luck.-

"Being lucky is one thing but they (directors) wouldn't remember to use her if she wasn't good at her job,' said Gloria Logan, theater arts director for Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem High Schools' Plymouth Park Players. "Someone being good at their job is one thing, but being reliable and easy to work with, not being a troublemaker, that's a little harder to find."

Taking her own advice, Logan hired Buchan fresh out of high school to be the technical director of the production of "The King and I." At the same time, Buchan, a former Schoolcraft College student, was working for the Birmingham Theater.

Soon afterward, she was hired by the Coconut Grove Playhouse, a regional theater in the Miami, Fla., area. While she was there, she was introduced to Vari-Lites by operators who were in town working on a show.

Because of the notorjety and exclusivity of Vari-Lites, used in concerts by Genesis, Madonna, The Rolling Stones and Janet Jackson, jobs are scarce.

"For one, you can not buy Vari-Lites, you can only rent them. When you rent them, you hire their technicians, their operators and their program person. It's a fairly tight-knit group that they have," said Buchan, who lives in Florida when not touring. Her acquaintances referred her to the Vari-Lites company, based in Dallas, Texas. To learn about the lights, she completed a grueling training course in Orlando, Fla. Her first big job was filling in for a vacationing technician working for "Tommy Tune Tonight" in California. She was subsequently offered two permanent jobs - "42nd Street" and "Tommy Tune Tonight." She secretly hoped for another job offer.

"I was sitting in the bar with my brother and I told him, The ultimate would be 'Tommy' but I haven't even applied for it," she recalled.

'Tommy' or 'Tommy'

Her father called and confusion ensued.

"He said I better take 'Tommy' because the people from 'Tommy Tune' had called," Buchan said. "I called that number back and we started talking. His dates weren't corresponding for the dates I had for Tommy Tune.' Then he said. 'You're talking about 'Tommy Tune.' This is The Who's 'Tommy,' the national tour going out."

She quickly turned down the two other offers.

This tour comes 26 years after The Who's Pete Townshend originally outlined his plans for "Tommy"- a rock opera about a young "deaf, dumb and blind kid . . . who sure plays a mean pinball" - in an interview with "Rolling Stone" magazine. The official premiere followed a year later in May 1969.

Since then, performers such as Les Grands Ballet Canadienes, the London Symphony Orchestra, Eric Clapton, Elton John, Tina Turner, Jack Nicholson, Phil Collins and Billy Idol have participated in renditions of "Tommy."

The current tour, which stars former MTV VJ Steve Isaacs in the title role, is influential for Vari-Lites. The company is using the rock opera as a testing ground for new lights. That, Buchan said, among other things makes this project exciting.

The lights are "about 60 percent of the show. It's the one show I don't get bored of," she said. "It's the music . .

It's The Who. It's a very fast-moving show. The performers are great and the band is remarkable."

According to Logan, Buchan fits right in.

"All of those words they use to describe a Boy Scout that's what I would use to describe Hope," she said. "Hope has not only developed into a fine theater technician, she's a wonderful person, too.'

"Tommy" will be at the Masonic Temple, 500 Temple, Detroit, through Sunday, Feb. 6. Tickets are $25, $47 and $50. For more information, call (810) 645-6666 or (313) 832-5900.

Maida: Hopes, plans for future

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

If you know anyone interested in the former St. John's Seminary in Plymouth Township, Detroit Archbishop Adam Maida wants to know.

"(If) anyone knows of anyone who would like to buy St. John's Seminary in Plymouth Township. it's for sale," said the archbishop. "We need to get the best value for this asset that we have. It's a jewel, and we can't just give it away.'

The archbishop made his remarks on his cable television show "Dialogue," in which he fields questions from a panel of journalists and parishioners-atlarge each month. The show airs on CTND, the Catholic Television Network of Detroit.

Two deals to develop the 175acre seminary and golf course at Sheldon and Five Mile roads have fallen through.

"We keep looking at this, examining what is its best use," said Maida. "Can there be another answer to St. John's? Maybe the Lord has one. I have some ideas. Just stay tuned. There might be some surprises ... I don't know.'

A variety of questions were answered during the show, including the archbishop's views of what newly-elected Mayor Dennis Archer and his administration will mean for Detroit.

Maida, excited by the possibilities, has met with the mayor several times, and joined him for a standing-room-only ecumenical service inauguration day.

"I'm very anxious to join him in a partnership with other leaders to focus on our problems and make the city a safer place," Maida said. "I'm personally excited, because his primary focus is on people.

Maida added that he "as a religious leader, has promised him I would commit the resources I have as archbishop to do everything I can to bring churches together to help him.

"Not only our churches, but by embracing fellow religious leaders and addressing the issues of education, social problems and drugs, I think churches and Detroit can have a huge influence and impact, if we work together with government and business to make our city different," he said.

One of the most noteworthy successes Maida points to is the archdiocese's establishment of the city's Cornerstone schools, heavily populated by at-risk and poverty-stricken children.

"These (Cornerstone) children were literally picked up from a type of life which would have been just terrible," said Maida. "This is giving them hope and bringing them up to levels so that they can at least get into high school and take their place in society and the workforce. We took an ecumenical concept and broadened the base.'

The children are with the Cornerstone staff 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. More than two-thirds of these children come from single parent homes and two-thirds are from below the poverty level. Yet their test scores have improved dramatically, according to the archbishop.

"They're scoring in the 90th percentile on national tests," he said. "These kids are performing in an outstanding way. That's going to continue to be my focus.

"That's what I'd like to see Archer do. If we can do the same kind of bridge building, focusing on our visions, we can make a difference. We can't wave a wand, but with leadership and applied vision, people will follow, and it will be a different place."

Maida was also questioned as to why the archdiocese doesn't immediately refer to police reported cases of sexual abuse involving clergy. According to the archbishop, situations must be examined in context.

"Obviously, the person we are most interested in is the victim, and also the accused. It's not and easy decision whereby you can use a computer, press a button and say, 'We are going to do this,'" he said. "If, in fact, we see there are serious grounds, we have no problems reporting this to the police and consulting with them. We don't have it as a matter of policy not to report it to police. It's a judgment on our part as to when we go to the police.

"Maybe the perception isn't that, maybe others would like it to be more open, but prudent judgments are made, and reasonable people could differ as to what the best approach would be."

Not all cable companies carry CTND. Tawnya Bender, assistant to the director of communications for the archdiocese, said people interested in seeing the program should call their cable company "if they're not currently able to get the Catholic Television Network of Detroit and let them know they're interested in receiving it."

"Also, they can call our office of television (237-5938) and let us know of their interest," said Bender. "We're always looking to hear from people and to receive feedback."

see Nazis con-THORESEN sume life in all its luxuries at the expense of innocent people.

The movie portrayed what greed, unbridled power, prejudice, hatred and a system of government without any accountability can become. Six million Jewish lives were lost in the Holocaust during World War II. Yet today there are people who deny that such staggering events could ever have happened.

Steven Spielberg's "Schindler's List" gives us a good "reality check" that brutality and inhumane treatment are real. It did happen. Some people are imprisoned by circumstances over which they have no control.

In contrast to the somber portrayal of evil running rampant, "Schindler's List" also portrays the transformation of a human heart. Oskar Schindler, a Nazi businessman, ends up saving the lives of more than 1,000 Jews who worked in his factory. I can't reveal any more about the movie except to emphasize the moral of the story - atrocities happen, but one person can make a significant difference in the well-being of others.

During the next few days as I reflected on the impact of this movie, I came to realize that we have examples of people right here in the Detroit area who are making such a difference.

Eleanor Josaitis, one of the founders of Focus:Hope has been working right here in our midst for more than 20 years. A group of us met her about three years ago at Focus:Hope. She shared some of her story with us:

She was busy working as a mother of five children back in the '60s. She recalled watching the Nuremberg Trials. As she watched and rocked one of her children, the thought struck: "What would I do if I were living in Nazi Germany at the time of the Holocaust? Would I fight to protect the Jews? Would I be part of a resistance movement? What would I do?"

Suddenly, the television flashed pictures of the 1967 Detroit riots. Homes of families burned. Heads busted open. Businesses plundered. Lives and hard-earned livelihoods lost. Devastation. Ruin. Hopelessness.

Helplessness. Pent up rage unleashed after years of racial and economic imprisonment.

And profoundly another thought came to Eleanor Josiatis: "Maybe I can't do anything about what happened in Germany. But I can do something to help prevent further riots in Detroit. At least, by the grace of God, I'll try." And she did.

She teamed up with the Rev. William Cunningham and another Roman Catholic priest. She and her husband moved the fami-ly to Detroit — despite the protests of well-meaning family members. They worked hard.

That was 25 years ago.

Today Focus:Hope provides food for more than 80,000 people a month. That in itself is an impressive accomplishment. But Josiatis cautions us to see these numbers as a tragedy because there are still that many hungry people in our metropolitan community. There is a an excellent Montessori child care center and outstanding educational and job training programs, such as "Fast Track" and the Machinist Training Institute.

And then there is the newly for, and educated at Focus:Hope, but also the way such significant work is multiplied throughout the families as well.

However, vast numbers of lives helped should not be the sole criteria that measures whether a person has made a difference or not. One of the characters in "Schindler's List" said something like, "When you save the life of one other human being, you have begun to save all of humanity." "One person CAN make a differ-ence. Oskar Schlinder. Eleanor Josiatis. Many of the unsung heroes and heroines who simply reach out and do something for the well-being of another.

There are hundreds of modernday morality plays being lived out right here in our metropolitan Detroit area. May we keep our eyes and ears and hearts open to recognize and encourage those brave souls who are working to make this world a safer, more just and better place for all people.

This handwriting is both attractive and very rigid. Capital letters are large and showy when contrasted to the small middle zone of handwriting. This speaks to us of a person who is seeking attention and love.

Her baseline of writing is straight and moves progressively across the page of writing. She has a built-in sense of order and is a self-disciplined young woman. She lives with an exaggerated sense of responsibility. She is hard-working and achievement oriented. Until everything is comshe can neither relax nor rest. She is constantly striving for perfection.

Allan Mallinger, a San Diego psychiatrist and author of "Too Perfect: When Being in Control Gets Out of Control," has this to say about perfectionists. On the surface the too-perfect people have many wonderful personality characteristics. But underneath, they're so rigid that it causes problems in their lives.

Our writer formulates her plans. Then her routine must be maintained to keep life running smoothly. This is not a flexible person. Too many changes or reversals can cause her to become upset.

This is a highly sensitive young woman. Criticism is often expected and can be hurtful to her. A cautious nature takes time to consider each step along the path of life. She has a strong inner fear of stepping out of line and possible rejection.

Many signs in her handwriting point to a strict upbringing where compliance was expected. Early in life she learned to repress emotions to be more acceptable and she continues the pattern. This, however, does not happen without producing tension for her. Dealing with the unfamiliar can sometimes be a painful experience.

I sense she would like to be more outgoing than she inwardly feels and she does try. But it appears to be more of a facade than sincere and spontaneous. She tends to rely on logic rather than follow any intuitive flashes that may come to her.

Her need for security is also evident. This could include people. relationships as well as creature comforts. . .

It does not appear that her emotional needs are being satisfied. Currently energy is being sublimated into high achievement. A lively imagination and enthusiasm come to the fore here.

'Choices' focuses on natural birth

A special preview of the acclaimed film, "Gentle Birth Choices," will be shown at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 20, at Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn.

The film includes footage of six actual births which illustrate the physical and psychological advantages to both mother and baby when birth is allowed to unfold naturally.

The introduction and closing remarks will be provided by Karen Beesley, a certified nurse midwife, and a panel of childbirth professionals will answer questions after the film.

A $3 donation is suggested and proceeds will benefit CARE (Caesarean Alternatives, Resources and Education), the southeastern Michigan chapter of the International Caesarean Awareness Network, a nonprofit group dedicated to reducing the number of caesarean sections through education and monthly women's support groups.

"I recommend this film to all pregnant women and women who are planning future pregnancies,' said CARE board member Catherine Vera-Burgos of Redford. "We need to stop treating birth as an illness. The use of electronic fetal monitors, IVs, medications and other medical technology, when not medically necessary, can impede the birthing process and actually increase the need for a caesarean section.

"Twenty-five percent of all births in our country are caesarean sections when only approximately 5 percent of all births honestly require a caesarean section in order to improve the outcome for the mother and/or baby."

According to Vera-Burgos, "Gentle Birth Choices" shows that the experience of a natural birth can be extremely safe and both powerful and empowering and points to her own experiences when extolling the benefits of natural childbirth. Her first two labors, with different doctors at different hospitals, both ended in caesarean sections due to "failure to progress."

"I was told my babies were too large," she said. "Well, my third and largest baby (10 pounds, 1 ounce) was born naturally and vaginally with a midwife."

CARE provides monthly meetings on birthing topics, a resource library of birthing materials and, each month, gives women the opportunity to share their birthing stories.

CARE supports women who,desire a vaginal birth after caesarean and anyone who wishes to prevent an unnecessary caesarean. The group also believes that positive birthing experiences are possible in hospitals, birthing centers and at home attended by either doctors or midwives, provided that the labor attendant and place of birth are receptive to natural birthing.

CARE meets on the first Monday of the month (second Monday when there's a holiday) at 7 p.m. at the Garden of Life, Woodbridge Professional Building, 5469 Schaefer, south of Ford Road, in Dearborn.

For more information, call Fran Baker, I CAN - CARE president, at 581-5933 or Catherine Vera-Burgos at 535-6942.

Birdsall

Richard and Mabel Birdsall of Livonia celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a buffet dinner, attended by friends and family.

They exchanged vows in January 1944. She is the former Mabel Babcock.

The dinner was given by their children - Judith Jones of Canton, Lawrence Birdsall of Florida, Linda Schneemann of Farmington Hills and Mary Reum and Cynthia Birdsall of Livonia. They also have 13 grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

The Birdsalls moved to Livonia in the mid-1930s.

A retiree of the Wayne County Road Commission, he attended Elm Elementary and Plymouth High Schools. She went to Wilcox, the two-room schoolhouse on Six Mile Road, and Redford

Union High School.

The Birdsalls, members of Covenant Community Church in Redford, plan a mid-winter trip to Arizona and California to celebrate their anniversary.

Awesome night sky

Bright stars, full moon put on show more than halfway through the month of January. This is the only full 31-day month in which we have winter; it only SEEMS like January lasts 60 days! (Only nine more weeks until spring!)

We are now

Like Mercury earlier this month, Venus will be located behind the sun and will not be visible. It will enter the evening sky in late February.

Mercury will be in the evening sky on the 20th. Look toward the west southwest horizon around 6 p.m. The planet will be only three degrees (six full moon diameters) above the horizon. Binoculars will help you spot Mercury. (The situation will improve as the month progresses.)

The moon will be located to the right of the Pleiades (PLEE a dees) star cluster on the evening of the 21st. Mark-ing the "shoulder" of Taurus the bull, this cluster will look like a tiny "dipper" and will be a beautiful sight in binoculars or a telescope at low power. On the following evening, you will find the moon above the bright orange-red star Aldebaran, the "eye" of the bull.

Another bright orange-red star (11th brightest in the sky) will be seen below and to the right of the moon on the evening of the 24th. The star, named Betelgeuse ("Beetle juice"), is one of the largest known. It is about 920 times larger than the sun, but much cooler in temperature. Betelgeuse is estimated to be about 520 light-years away; the light we see tonight left the star in 1473. To put it another way, that light left Betelgeuse 19 years before Christopher Columbus began his journey across the Atlantic Ocean.

The moon will be within the constellation of Gemini on the evening of the 25th. To the left of the moon will be Pollux; above Pollux will be Castor. These twin stars each mark one of the heads of the Geminitwins. On the following evening, the moon will be located well below Pollux. The bright white star to the right of the moon will be Procyon.

Procyon (PRO see on) is the eighth brightest star in the sky and the fifth closest to us. It's a little more than 11 lightyears away. Procyon is in the constellation of Canis Minor, the "Little Dog." The brilliant "Big Dog" star, Sirius (SEER ee us), will be found to the right of Procyon. Sirius is the brightest star in the night sky.

Full moon phase will occur at 8:23 a.m. on Jan. 27. The January full moon was referred to as the "Moon After Yule" or the "Old Moon" by some Native American Indians. The full moon, located opposite the sun as seen from the earth, will set in the northwest as the sun rises on the 27th. The moon will not be visible during the day, but will rise in the northeast after sunset and be visible all night.

Mercury will be better placed for locating on the evening of the 28th. Look toward the west southwest horizon around 6:30 p.m. Mercury will be five degrees (10 full moon diameters) above the horizon. Five degrees above and to the left of Mercury will be Saturn. The distance between the two planets will decrease by more than one degree per day.

Three hours after sunset on the 28th, you will see the moon rising in the east. To the left of the moon will be Regulus. The moon will be in the general vicinity of where it was located back on New Year's Day.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar," available from Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing 48824. A one-year subscription is $7.50.

- O'S & A'S D. What If everyone there knows more than I do?
- A. The classes are paced in such a way to make everyone feel comfortable. No one is ever put "on the spot." Q. Why are you doing this?
- A. The Bible is scarcely read in our fast-paced society. Our faith and belief in God propels us to expound His message and Truth. We believe the Bible and what it teaches is right and good in directing our lives and families.
- Q. Who is paying for these seminars? A. All expenses are being absorbed by the Christadelphians in the area. No financial expectations will be - expressed to you now, or in the future. Q. Will I be asked to be "saved" or "join" the Chirstadelphians at the end of the seminars?
- A. No! Our hope is that the classes will encourage you to draw your own conclusions about God and His plan. 'Our goal is to equip you with the necessary tools to make your own decisions about what you have learned.

Who are the Christadelphlans?

A. The name implies "Brethren in Christ." Christadelphians are found in countries all over the world and are bound together by a common faith in God's plan of salvation as revealed throughout the Bible. We do not believe that any of our members have received any special revelations direct from God and our faith rests squarely and solely on the Bible as the inspired word of God.

Her return adds spark and vigor to arts board

he's back on the Livonia Arts Commission. And that's terrific because Dorothy Wilshaw was one of the hardest-working, mostdedicated commissioners during her earlier threeyear stint.

A nagging health problem forced her from the commission in 1992. But once she learned her problem was tolerable and not life-threatening, she longed to return to her old job as curator of the fine art exhibitions in the Livonia City Hall lobby. "I missed it, I really did," said the 25-year Livonia resident.

"You bet I'm excited about being back, especially getting the art shows back under my wing. I think people were pleased with what I was doing," she added.

I know I was. Her tireless efforts were never fully appreciated because she isn't the type of person to seek out plaudits, preferring to work without fanfare.

Wilshaw loved mingling with visitors who stopped by during the workday while on business at city hall or who attended the by-invitation receptions for the artists. No matter what their arts persuasion was, she found a common thread to spur conversation. "I met a lot of people and formed a lot of friendships," she said.

A master at thinking up ways to bring artwork closer to the community, Wilshaw not only hosted artists and art clubs in the city hall shows but also spotlighted the best from the city's 20th-century art collection in the summer of 1991.

Wilshaw is an art lover, not an artist in her own right. She and husband Ron became hooked almost by fate while coming upon an art show in the Livonia Mall more than 20 years ago. The hook soon extended to art galleries and juried art shows.

Popular in the Wilshaw home are wildlife paintings and photographs as well as birds in china, glass and pewter. Florals and sculpture also are Wilshaw favorites.

"I appreciate art — it's as simple as that," Wilshaw said. "Some people don't understand why I enjoy it. They find it meaningless. But I can't get enough of it."

So it's no surprise Mayor Bob Bennett reappointed Wilshaw to the arts commission Dec. 14. The first meeting during her new three-year term is Jan. 25.

Outgoing commissioner Ed Ferguson scheduled the artists for the city hall this year but Wilshaw will oversee the shows. Next year, she'll resume scheduling the artists.

She shares arts commission president Betty Newton's top goal for the new year: to bring a juried indoor fine arts show to the city.

The show would be distinctly different from the huge and wildly successful Greenmead Arts and Crafts Festival, the commission's top moneymaker.

The show would complement the group and individual fine art exhibitions held throughout the year in the city hall lobby and the Livonia Civic Center Library Art Gallery. Those exhibitions are curated but not juried.

Observerland is rich with quality fine artists to draw from. Rather, funding to pay for a juror, a hall, a reception and awards would pose the biggest challenge for a fine art show.

"An invitational would involve a lot of planning and work," Wilshaw said, "but if everybody did just a little bit, we could pull it together. We have contacts to give us ideas on how to get started. It would help if some local artists and art clubs were willing to volunteer their time."

She envisions a show that artists would "really want to get into" and one so wonderful, "visitors would really want to come to."

"If people were to pick and choose which shows to enter or visit each year, I'd love for this show to be one of them," she said. "Sure it would be a lot of hard work in the beginning. But we could build on that base. It's been something I've wanted to do for years."

Despite her short tenure as an arts commissioner, Wilshaw still left a lasting imprint on Livonia's artistic landscape.

With three arts commissioners stepping down in the past five months, Dorothy Wilshaw's return will bring perspective, dimension and enthusiasm to a financially strapped board that more than ever cries out for creative planning, creative funding and creative spirit.

Mix Chinese brush painting, papermaking

By LINDA ANN CHOMIN Special Writer

Two new art classes through Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Services offer the opportunity to make your own paper, then produce paintings on it using traditional Chinese brush techniques.

Susan Carpenter's "Handmade Paper" and Edith Newbourne's "Chinese Brush Painting" are but two of the many arts and crafts classes starting on the Livonia campus.

"You can make the paper, then use Chinese brush strokes on it," said Carpenter, who earned a master of ine arts degree from Eastern Michigan University. "So much in our culture is not made by hand because so much is mass produced. When it's made by hand, that gives it a special spirit.'

In class, Carpenter will cover two methods of papermaking: the traditional pulp method and a convenient alternative using a felting process as used in making pieces of felt. She will discuss functional and nonfunctional uses of the finished product as well.

"I'm an artist and make it into an artwork, but we'll also look at making it into wrapping paper to make note cards, wedding invitations, any number of things.'

Carpenter will also discuss the history of papermaking on through to modern applications. "The Chinese used it in rituals. They would make an image of someone who died and use it in the funeral procession," said Carpenter. "There are ancient methods of papermaking that are still being used today. My method is a bit similar to the method used to make ancient papyrus paper."

As a watercolorist, Carpenter always had an appreciation for fine papers. So when a fellow artist in California offered to show her how to make it, she was only too happy to take the plunge into pulp. The art of papermaking, by the way, is enjoying a renaissance on the West Coast.

"Paper is something we use daily but don't think about it. When people ask me what I do, they ask why would I want to make my own paper when I can go to the store and buy it? This is Barbara Wiltsle-Youngerman has come a long way from her days at Livonia Stevenson High School, where fellow students compared her to pop singer Karen Carpenter.

Today, the mezzo-soprano has a resume full of performance credits with the Michigan Opera Theater, Toledo Opera, DeMoines Metro Opera, Adrian Symphony, Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony and choral groups in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Ann Arnor and Lansing Wiltsle-Youngerman is one of six Michigan opera singers to appear on "Time Out for Opera," a half-hour show hosted by Jonathan Swift, head of Stevenson's school of global education, The Booth Communications program will air the week of Jan. 24 on Bloomfield Hills cable channel 11.

The opera singer, who dreamed of a pop sing-ing career in high school, said she turned to classical music in her third year at Eastern Michigan University. She carned a master's degree in muslo and vocal performance at Manhattan School of Music in New York and landed her first pro-fessional role in 1983 with the Michigan Opera Theater in "The Marriage of Figaro, "Friends from high school would be surprised 1994, let's take a peek at what's happening in the ever-changing world of books: Paramount Publishing is acquiring Macmillan Publishing Co. for a cool $553 million.

As we kick off.

The acquisition

VICTORIA

DIAZ will make Paramount one of the largest publishers of children's literature in the U.S. and will significantly strengthen its position as the country's leading publisher of college texts. As a result of the venture, revenues at Paramount are expected to rise to nearly $2 billion. The bad news: Macmillan employees anticipate substantial layoffs.

In early 1948, Houghton Mifflin published Ross Lockridge's romantic, American novel, "Raintree County." A Book-of-the-Month Club main selection right out of the gate, "Raintree County" received a notable (and lucrative) literary award, film rights quickly sold to MGM, and Life magazine excerpted the book, a sensational bestseller. Two months after the stunningly successful debut of his book, Lockridge, 33, ended his life.

Now, Lockridge's son, Larry, has written "Shade of the Raintree," a biography of the author. The book, according to Publishers Weekly, attempts 'to illuminate the complexities of a remarkable life that was in many ways a paradigm of the American writer's struggle." The book will be out in April from Viking, along with a paperback re-issue of "Raintree County" from Penguin.

The 1993 National Book Award For Fiction went to E. Annie Proulx for "The Shipping Years." Proulx also received the 1993 PEN/Faulkner Award for her first novel, "Postcards,"marking the first time the award has gone to a woman writer. Ann Arbor's Sylvia Watanabe was among only four other writers nominated for the prestigious prize for her novel.

"Talking to the Dead."

Both The New York Times Book Review and Publishers Weekly named Charles Baxter's "Shadow Play" one of their top books of 1993. Baxter, a professor of English at the University of Michigan, lives in Ann Arbor. The New York Times Book Review also named "The Virgin Suicides," a first novel by Jeffrey Eugenides, to its Notable Books list. Eugenides, now living in New York City, grew up in Grosse Pointe Park, where "Suicides" is set.

Reportedly, a Shakespearean drama, "Cardenio," missing for 300-plus years, has been unearthed by a New York City scholar and autograph dealer. Charles Hamilton. Discovered in the recesses of the British Museum as Hamilton was working on a book about Shakespeare's will, the play may have been intentionally cut from original Shake-'spearean collections because of its taboo subject: necrophilia. Word is that Glenbridge Ltd. of Colorado plans to publish the play first in the U.S. What do you think? Did Laura Ingalls Wilder just pretend she wrote all the Little House books? Was her daughter, journalist Rose Wilder Lane, actually the real author? Why would they do such a thing? Read William Holtz's recently published "The Ghost in the Little House" for more on the now-contested subject.

A pair of Eugene O'Neill's boxer shorts can be had for $80 through the Much Ado Bookstore in Marblehead, Mass., if you're interested in that sort of thing. Contact Cate Olson or Nash Robbins at Much Ado.

Tennis star Navratilova has signed to write three mystery novels for Villard over the next three years. All will be played out against a professional tennis background. Does Navratilova know anything about the craft of writing a mystery novel? Is it important? Are we missing the point? Liz Nickles will co-author.

The next time you visit a hotel, you may find a volume of poetry alongside that ubiquitous Gideon Bible. If that makes you smile, thank the American Poetry and Literacy Project, the Poetry Society of America and Literacy Volunteers of America. Hotels participating in the project include the Doubletree Hotel Corp., Club Med, Guest Quarters Suite Hotels and the Ritz-Carlton chain. You can also look for a copy of "Six American Poets" - featuring the work of Emily Dickinson, Robert Frost, Langston Hughes, Wallace Stevens, Walt Whitman and William Carlos Williams at some airport lounges. The collection, co-published by Random House and Book-of-the-Month Club, was selected by editor Andrew Carroll with the help of former U.S. poet laureate Joseph Brodsky, who initiated the idea in 1991 via an article in the Washington Post.

partment chairman. "It's a nice tie-in with the Japanese art history class offered here at the university. It's really a fascinating art form.'

Originally used in religious ceremonies as offerings for wishes or thanks, origami is still practiced by the Japanese today.

"If you have a wish, it's written in calligraphy and left at the temple gate. The numbers 3, 5, 7, 9 were symbolic to Buddhism. Anything they make they tend to make them in groups of these numbers. Buddhist numerology sort of permeates life."

Glenn says besides learning about its history, part of the charm of folded paper (we all made gum wrapper chains and paper hats as youngsters) is that from the youngest to the oldest, anyone can do it. "It's enjoying the creativity. Everybody can do it. It's rewarding."

Ancient art: This dinosaur skeleton folded by Dr. Hisachi Ogata is not meant for amateurs.

my real love. I enjoy the layering of fibers. You can take it abstract or realistic."

Carpenter is an old hand when it comes to art. She has studied in Paris, France, and Florence, Italy. Her current work, on exhibit at Accessible Art Gallery in Ann Arbor, is handmade paper made from flax fibers pressed and felted together. The sheets are then been around for centuries. What I teach is very traditional. It's an art of the inner mind. It is not painting a rose exactly as it's seen then, but as you see it in your mind's eye. There's no previous art experience necessary because they're going to see in a completely new way.'

The class, for beginners and intermediates, teaches all the basic techniques of loading the brush, using the rice paper, and basic strokes using Western tube watercolor, Sumi ink, Oriental brushes and rice paper. "They'll be learning how to do the calligraphy of the strokes. At the ends of 12 weeks, students will know enough to paint three or four different kinds of flowers, two or three birds and bamboo." Newbourne has studied at New York University and State University of New York at Stoneybrook. She has exhibited in onewoman shows at the Scarab Club in Detroit, the Southfield Civic Center and the Henry Ford Centennial Library. She teaches at the Creative Arts Center in Pontiac and at annual workshops in Traverse City. "Chinese Brush Painting" begins Feb. 9. Classes are held noon to 2:40 p.m. for 12 Wednesdays. Cost is $82 for adults and $17 for seniors.

For the last year, West Bloomfield folder Jorge Pezzat has taught origami classes at Green . Elementary School. In his classes, Pezzat lays out instructional sheets for aspiring young folders to follow. He's found that children are able to learn the ancient art quicker than adults because they're not afraid to make mistakes.

"I tell kids, mistakes are new creations. I emphasize how to teach themselves, how to improve on what they make and how to teach others," said Pezzat, who's writing a book on origami.

The husband-and-wife folding team of Bob Brill and Laura Hayes of Ann Arbor agree that anyone can learn to fold.

"Just about anybody can fold as long as they're willing to go one step at a time. These step folds show a fold for each step in creating the finished product. This allows people to fold without reading. Even people of other languages, like Dutch or German, can learn," said Hayes as she installed the step fold display boards in the showcases.

"Origami has a very broad range, from simple designs I can fold in 15 minutes to ones like the dinosaur skeleton by Dr. Hisachi Ogata of Windsor that involved many hours over several days. There's also a broad range in the papers, from heavy wallpaper to foil, construction paper with surface decoration, and recycled papers.'

"You don't have to buy fancy papers," she added. "I save my junk mail. We also like to recycle in a creative way: brown shopping bags, menus from a Chinese restaurant."

Brill and Hayes also design Sunday.

Art fair exhibiters sought

Fine artists and contemporary crafters throughout Observerland, take note:

The 1994 Greektown Art Fair in downtown Detroit will take place their own papers courtesy of modern technology. "We work with a computer program that Bob wrote." Haves said.

Pezzat's modular boxes sport papers made by photocopying artworks by artist M.C. Escher.

Robin Wilt uses paper that mirrors money. The artist/elementary school art teacher has installed a hat shop as part of the origami exhibit. Multimedia hats with cranes, Chinese stars, peacock, fish, boat and duck provoke thought and humor.

"There's so little whimsy in life today. When you wear hats, it's role playing. I was thinking about all the roles people have today. I think everybody will look at it and think something different," Wilt said.

Another fun display by Wilt is a wood folding screen filled with birds folded by AASO members. The screens feature laser-cut trees and evergreens designed by Wilt and produced by Lauri Mendenhall of Prototype Design in Ann Arbor. "Screens are a way of playing with walls. I get so bored sometimes looking at walls."

Guns and planes made from folded paper money play on irony in another display by Wilt. "Money and guns and bodies, they just all sort of go together."

Other AASO exhibitors in the show are Debbie Jackson, Ken Kowamura, Don Shall, Sandy Toivonen, Betty Baird, Larry Beidermand, Gretchen Dieterle, Bill Pollar, Thomas Kehrer and Lee and Sharon Pettiford.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 1-5 p.m.

Fine artists and contemporary crafters interested in participatpainted, dyed and stitched to . form the finished piece. Some sheets are shaped over wire armatures to form relief-like structures.

Carpenter says people should take the class "just for fun. It's going to be a wonderful way to explore your own sense of creativity. It will be creative exploration for beginners and more advanced artists too. You don't have to have five years of life drawing.'

"Handmade Paper" begins Feb. 19. Classes run 10 a.m. to noon for eight Saturdays. The cost is $51 for adults and $19 for seniors.

Once you've made the paper, the creativity continues as Newbourne teaches you how to paint bamboo, birds and flowers using Chinese brush painting.

"It's an immediate satisfaction to see something spring to the paper as soon as you put it down, as soon as you learn the basic strokes to have a representation of a flower or bird," said Newbourne, who did graduate studies at Zhehiang Academy of Art in Hangchow, China.

Robert Cuffe of Plymouth has earned his broker license. He's the new office manager at Remerica Suburban Realtors in Livonia. He started his real estate career in the late '80s.

In 1992, the same year he received the Graduate, Realtors Institute designation, Cuffe logged more than $2 million in real estate sales. In 1991, he was awarded Top Listing Agent.

III LOAN ORIGINATIONS

On Dec. 20, Troy-based Standard Federal Bank reached $4 billion in single-family home mortgate loan originations.

This level of mortgage loan activity is the highest ever in the bank's 100-year history. It surpasses last year's record volume of $3.6 billion.

"We are proud to say that we did everything possible to service the thousands of people who wanted to refinance their mortgage or purchase a new home during this year of record-low interest rates," said Thomas R. Ricketts, chairman and president.

Standard Federal Bank operates 168 banking centers, eight home lending centers and 216 automated teller machines throughout Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. Its total assets now approximate $10.9 billion.

VP-LEASING

The Southfield-based PREMISYS Real Estate Services has named William M. Pankhurst as vice president of leasing for PREMISYS Marketing Services, an affiliate of The Prudential Realty Group.

Formerly vice president of Southfield-based Grubb & Ellis, Pankhurst will lead up the Southfield office in the Prudential Town Center.

No surprises Agents must disclose whom they represent

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

It used to be that virtually all real estate agents legally represented the seller, whether all the parties to a transaction knew it or not.

Even those agents who would drive buyers around to open houses or. search multilisting services on behalf of purchasers were, in the eyes of the law without a formal agreement to the contrary, agents for the seller.

Many buyers didn't know that. And because they didn't, confidential information divulged to "their" agent, especially during negotiations on price, would have to be relayed by 'their" agent to the seller.

Things have changed.

A new state law that took effect this month requires all agents to put their cards on the table up front and disclose to buyers and sellers exactly whom they represent.

"I think it's a good way to go," said Noel Bittinger, an associate broker with Re/Max Crossroads Realty in Canton.

"Before you even take a purchaser out, even if you meet at a home, now you have to establish a relationship whether they employ you or you're working as a sub-agent for the seller,' she said.

"In the long run, it absolutely will be easier," Bittinger said of the new law in relation to disclosures, past

Area broker leading international group

Fred T. Madley, president and chief executive officer of The Michigan Group, Livonia, has assumed the presidency of Chicago-based RELO/ The International Relocation Network.

The Brighton resident will head RELO, the oldest and largest real estate referral network, for a one-year term.

As RELO's vice president and annual conference chair in 1993, Madley Madley played a key role in shaping the group's policy and procedures at a time of change within RELO.

RELO is comprised of 1,000 independent real estate brokers specializ- well as the Western Wayne Oakland ing in relocation and serving 13,000 County Association of Realtors.

towns in the U.S. and 22 countries.

The Michigan Group, comprised of eight offices serving Livingston, Oakland, Washetenaw and Wayne counties, sold $470 million of real estate in 1992.

Under Madley's guidance, the 300agent firm has obtained megabroker status in the real estate industry as noted by National Relocation and Real Estate Magazine.

Madley is active in local construction and land development of residential condominiums and commercial space. He owns Reliance Mortgage Co., a full-service mortgage company. Locally, Madley is a member of the understandings and commission payments. "Now, it's difficult for everyone to understand."

"It clearly identifies who has what role," said Marsha Temirian, general manager for Century 21 West in Novi. "You either represent yourself as an agent transaction coordinator, you represent the seller or you represent the buyer."

Commissions probably will continue to be paid by the seller and divided as they currently are among agents involved in a sale whether they represent the buyer or seller, Bittinger speculated.

Buyers would formally write in a purchase offer that the commission would be split among all agents involved as is the current custom. Temirian projected.

Sellers reluctant to pay the commission of the buyer's agent gently need to be reminded of the primary goal of the transaction and that they probably won't pay a higher commission than they would under the old set-up, Bittinger said.

"I explain they're still getting their" house sold. That's the point here," she explained.

It would be in the best interest of sellers to deal with buyers' agents, Temirian said, so as to broaden the scope of potential purchasers.

Cindy Jacobson-Boudreau, sales" manager for Century 21 Town & Country in Rochester, said she's always been clear about agency, but concedes that buyers may not have been.

"I don't think it was ever explained " to buvers." she said. "Unless there", was a problem, they never really had to think about it. I told everyone 'I' worked with the seller is paying my commission. You never really know, what someone else is doing or saying.

"This is going to be a tough few months for everyone to get used to new forms and talking about the job a we always do," Jacobson-Boudreau, said. "After the first few months, I think it will be business as usual."

Build your own PC at Dominow

By SUSAN DEMAGGIO STAFF WRITER

Got a screwdriver and three free hours? You can build your own computer at Dominow Computer Electronic of Southfield, saving hundreds of dollars off the price of a new personal computer.

Dominow Computer Electronic, 26317 W. 12 Mile at Northwestern Highway, is the first store of its kind in the Midwest.

Conceived in 1986 and based in Fremont, Calif., the Dominow computer centers had grown to annual sales of $8 million by 1990. More than 60 employees help customers build their own computers in 30 different locations throughout California. (The Michigan wing of the company adds a "w" to the name to differentiate itself from the well-established Domino's Pizza.)

Arthur Shi of Southfield and Laura Wang of Troy opened Dominow Computer Electronic in Southfield last month and are eager to spread the news of their unusual business venture. If all goes well, they hope to open additional locations in Novi and Troy

Shi explained that the move to the Midwest was a natural since the Big Three automakers are based here along with thousands of technical professionals. He answers questions about the. Dominow concept in the following edited excerpts from an instore interview:

Q: Why would anyone want to build their own computer?

Shi: There are actually four good reasons to build your own computer: to overcome the fear of a computer, for the pride of accomplishment, for the true budget conscious to save money, to gain the knowledge of how to fix a problem if something goes wrong with your computer. Q: How does Dominow get work station in our store. A trained technician helps them begin building their personal computer from a competitvely priced a la carte menu of namebrand components. It's really not that hard. There are only eight to 10 parts to assemble. We provide the electric screwdriver; it's all the equipment that's needed.

A computer is not as complicated as some people think. At Dominow, we want to take the mystery, the fear, out of using computers for people of all ages. And we do not charge for the help, training and advice we provide. It is all part of the Dominow program. We build the trust of our customers and, hopefully, they will tell their family and friends about our services.

When you build your own computer or watch me build one for you, you see how it works, what goes into it, you understand your computer much better than if you buy it at a store, take it home, pull it out of the box and plug it in.

Q: Who are your customers?

> Computer wise: Arthur Shi demonstrates how easy it is to build your own computer the Dominow way.

Shi: We have whole families who come in to watch dad build the computer. We have had children as young as 11 years old and senior citizens. We are targeting small businesses that need to save money on computer networks. We can get them started. We can teach their employees how to use and upgrade their systems.

Q: What kind of computer components do you sell?

Shi: We have all the name brands at good prices because we buy in large quantities for our chain stores. Some manufacturers we sell include Conner, Western Digital, IBM, Intel, T.A.K, to name a few.

Q: What about software? Shi: We have a good selection of software as well as DOS and Windows. We help with the installation to make sure the system is up and running before you take it with you.

Q: Discuss your price structure.

Shi: The computer business is very competitive right now. Our price margins are set at about 15 percent. You can build your own 486/66 computer with 250 megabyte hard drive, 14-inch SVGA monitor for $1,173. That's about $200 to $300 less than a new computer at an appliance store and we teach you how to use it for free. Similar savings can be found when adding a CD-ROM to a system or upgrading an old PC.

Q: What other services does Dominow Computer Electronic provide?

Shi: We service, sell and rent computers, TVs, VCRs, CD players, cameras, fax machines and office electronics. We can help you upgrade an old PC to an IBM 486/66 MHZ. We remanufacture copier and laser toner. cartridges. We give free estimates on any electronic equipment repairs. We are open seven days a week and provide 24-hour

The Pine model, a ranch with a master suite and den or second bedroom, is getting a lot of attention from prospective buyers, Yaldo said. The unit also contains a dining room that runs into a family room, a kitchen with nook and two full baths.

"The Walnut is the Pine with a loft which can be a huge bedroom or two with a bath upstairs," Yaldo said.

Three other two-story models are available. Options on all models include air conditioning (starting at $1,950), a fireplace ($1,500) and skylights ($750).

"Farmington Hills is a good area," Yaldo said. "It has good schools. The location sells itself. It's close to all freeways and close to all shopping areas."

The current property tax rate for schools, municipal and county services in Farmington Hills is $50.70 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value).

The owners of a house worth $145,000 at Pinewoods West would now pay $3,675 annually in property taxes, but that probably will change as state lawmakers deal with new school financing proposals.

Chrysler, Palace team up in professional soccer

DATEBOOK

The Palace in Auburn Hills has teamed with Chrysler Corp. in naming the new indoor soccer team the Detroit Neon, after Chrysler's award-winning new car.

The franchise will compete in the Continental Indoor Soccer League, a summer league with home games played at The Palace from June to September.

"This is the first time a major league professional sports team has adopted the name of a major corporation or its product in the United States to our knowledge," said Tom Wilson, president of The Palace/Pine Knob Music Theatre/Detroit Pistons/Detroit Neon. "An agreement of this magnitude has unique marketing potential."

The team is owned by William Davidson, owner of The Palace and Pine Knob Misic Theatre and managing partner of the Detroit Pistons.

The Chrysler Neon was unveiled during the first week in January.

'Obviously, Chrysler is very excited with this sports marketing partnership," said Jim Julow, Chrysler's marketing director. "One of the most attractive aspects of our partnership was the commitment of the team to metro Detroit through youth programs and clinics, expanding the broad base of soccer fans in the area. Our working relationship with the Detroit Pistons and The Palace over the years only cemented the agreement in our eyes."

"I can't stress enough the importance of this marketing partnership to opening the doors for all the exposure it can bring the sport," added Wilson, "Because of this agreement, youth programs and clinics will send the stars of soccer into the community. Television and radio coverage will bring Neon games to millions. Every home game will be broadcast on either WKBD Fox TV-50 or PASS. This partnership will allow ticket prices to be kept low, making a Neon game an attractive choice for a family outing."

This sports marketing partnership provides Chrysler with radio and TV rights, signage, merchandising opportunities and dealer involvement. The franchise will reap the benefits of the expo-sure and success of its namesake. automobile.

The Palace and Pine Knob are owned and operated by Arena Associates Inc. Since opening in 1988, The Palace has been voted' "Arena of the Year" by Performance magazine five consecutive years and by Pollstar magazine twice.

wood siding as an option at the same price," Yaldo said. "We have alternate elevations for windows outside and every roof line is different."

The Pine model, a ranch with a master suite and den or second bedroom, is getting a lot of attention from prospective buyers, Yaldo said. The unit also contains a dining room that runs into a family room, a kitchen with nook and two full baths.

"The Walnut is the Pine with a loft which can be a huge bedroom or two with a bath upstairs," Yaldo said.

Three other two-story models are available. Options on all models include air conditioning (starting at $1,950), a fireplace ($1,500) and skylights ($750).

Pinewoods West is Yaldo's second major residential subdivision. He built Pinewood Condominium, a 40-unit attached community, near downtown Farmington.

Pinewoods West also started out as attached condominiums, but Yaldo had a People feel they have more privacy," he said. Amenities like pools and a clubhouse won't be included at Pinewoods West for liability reasons, he said, projecting monthly maintenance fees at $25.

"Farmington Hills is a good area," Yaldo said. "It has good schools. The location sells itself. It's close to all freeways and close to all shopping areas."

The current property tax rate for schools, municipal and county services in Farmington Hills is $50.70 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value).

The owners of a house worth $145,000 at Pinewoods West would now pay $3,675 annually in property taxes, but that probably will change as state lawmakers deal with new school financing proposals.

"Everybody loves the location, access to major thoroughfares," said Jane Gonzales, sales director. "There's a lot of wooded lots. These are detached condos. Actually, they look like houses."

"I think people like the openness effect rather than closed in feeling," Mott said.

The floor plan and high ceilings prompted Lou and Peggy Ramos to buy a three-bedroom colonial.

"I think it was a combination of location and value we feel we were getting here," Lou said. "Before my current career, I was in construction. The quality of construction going on (at Pinewoods West) was very good. That was a factor."

John and Dolores Hamilton intend to move from a colonial in Livonia to a unit with the master bedroom on the first floor and two bedrooms and bath upstairs.

"We had been looking around for a two-story house that had the master bedroom on the first floor," John said. "We're getting up in years and you have to look to the future. Upstairs will be like an apartment for our son, Bruce. "Location was another big factor," John said. "We wanted to stay in this general area."

Chrysler, Palace team up in professional soccer

The Palace in Auburn Hills has teamed with Chrysler Corp. in naming the new indoor soccer team the Detroit Neon, after Chrysler's award-winning new car.

The franchise will compete in the Continental Indoor Soccer League, a summer league with home games played at The Palace from June to September.

"This is the first time a major league professional sports team has adopted the name of a major corporation or its product in the United States to our knowledge," said Tom Wilson, president of The Palace/Pine Knob Music Theatre/Detroit Pistons/Detroit Neon. "An agreement of this magnitude has unique marketing potential."

The team is owned by William Davidson, owner of The Palace and Pine Knob Misic Theatre and managing partner of the Detroit Pistons.

The Chrysler Neon was unveiled during the first week in January.

"Obviously, Chrysler is very excited with this sports marketing partnership," said Jim Julow, Chrysler's marketing director. "One of the most attractive aspects of our partnership was the commitment of the team to metro Detroit through youth programs and clinics, expanding the broad base of soccer fans in the area. Our working relationship with the Detroit Pistons and The Palace over the years only cemented the agreement in our eyes."

"I can't stress enough the importance of this marketing partnership to opening the doors for all the exposure it can bring the sport," added Wilson, "Because of this agreement, youth programs and clinics will send the stars of soccer into the community. Television and radio coverage will bring Neon games to millions. Every home game will be broadcast on either WKBD Fox TV-50 or PASS. This partnership will allow ticket prices to be kept low, making a Neon game an attractive choice for a family outing."

This sports marketing partnership provides Chrysler with radio and TV rights, signage, merchandising opportunities and dealer involvement. The franchise, will reap the benefits of the exposure and success of its namesake automobile.

The Palace and Pine Knob are owned and operated by Arena Associates Inc. Since opening in 1988, The Palace has been voted "Arena of the Year" by Performance magazine five consecutive years and by Pollstar magazine twice.
