Neighbors shocked at killing

Neighbors are mystified as to why Paul Cramer would beat his wife to death with a baseball bat. Cramer, who turned himself into police early Tuesday morning, has been charged with first-degree murder.

BY DARRELL CLEM

Westland residents, shaken by the city's most brutal domestic killing in years, are searching for answers to why a seemingly typical middle-class auto worker would club to death his wife of 26 years with a baseball bat.

Paulette Ann Cramer, 47, was clubbed three times in the head with a Louisville Slugger bat about 2 a.m. Tuesday as she slept in her threebedroom ranch residence at 32031 Sandra Lane, near Ann Arbor Trail and Hubbard in Westland's north

Her husband, Paul Thomas Cramer, 48, said during an arraignment Wednesday morning in 18th District Court that his wife had been cheating on him and that she and her boyfriend had been taking his money.

"We believe that's a figment of his imagination," Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

Paul and Mintie Newcomer, neighbors of the Cramers, voiced shock as they stood outside of the courthouse following Paul Cramer's arraignment on a first-degree murder charge.

"We couldn't believe it," Paul Newcomer, a retired General Motors Corp. worker, said. "It's normally a nice, peaceful neighborhood. This is very definitely a shock. There has never been any trouble before. It's difficult to understand.'

Mintie Newcomer wondered whether Cramer might have faced job stress as a tool mechanic at the GM Hydra-Matic plant in Ypsilanti.

"All of the plants are stressful now," she said. "You don't know if you're going to be here today or to-

Puppeteers string along young imaginations

By BARBARA WILSON STAFF WRITER

Mr. Glump has a big nose, big ears and shaggy hair and eyebrows, and was a feast for the imaginations of student puppeteers in Greg Zoumbaris' reading class.

The students designed their own puppets, puppet theater and produced their own show based on the pages from their regular reading se-

They've performed the puppet play about 20 times to classes at Stottlemyer Elementary School.

"They really put a lot of time and imagination into the puppets," Zoumbaris said. "I supplied the materials and they went to work."

They began working on the show at Christmas time. Students made up their own voices for the characters and recorded them along with the narration of the play.

"It took a long time to get the tape: just right," Zoumbaris said.

Student puppeteer Kenny Perkins, 13, agreed and said they came to know the script by memory. "We kind of imagined what the characters would look like with their big ears and nose and funny hair," he said. "Then it was fun coming up with a voice that matched.".

The puppets' mouths don't move, so students said it was a challenge to make the puppets' bodies move to show expression, he said.

Zoumbaris said he is proud of Kenny Perkins, third-grader James Kinney, fifth-grader Brian Wilkins and fourth-grader Mandeep Santhe for all the time they put into the show and is pleased with the many lessons they learned along the way.

"Some of the students are very soft-spoken, but they had to learn to speak up for the show," he said. Zoumbaris added that the students became more confident as the play went along and are becoming better readers.

The elaborate puppet theater the students built will now be partially disassembled for the class next project — a store. The puppets, however, will be kept intact.

"I'm going to wrap mine in tissue and store it in a box so I can look at it again and save it," Perkins said.

School board trustees in-bitter clashes

Fire cause probed after apartments destroyed

BY DARRELL CLEM

Westland fire officials today are investigating an apartment fire that caused $325,000 in damages and sent five people to Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. No one was killed.

The fire started just before 1 p.m. Wednesday inside a first-floor bedroom occupied by a teenage boy said Marlene Karpo, who manages the damaged Venoy Pines complex near the southwest corner of Venoy and Warren Road. The mother and another child weren't at home.

Fire Chief Larry Lane said this morning that he couldn't yet say how the fire started or whether it was accidental.

"We're not sure," he said. "We've got our suspicions, but it's still under investigation. . . . There is a juvenile involved."

Six apartments of a 16-unit building were destroyed, and some others suffered lesser damages, Lane said. The fire started inside Apt. 123 of a building at 7043 Bonnie Circle, Lane

Karpo praised the fire department for its "wonderful response and coordination." Karpo added that she is in the process of relocating tenants whose apartments were damaged to vacant units in Venoy Pines or other apartment complexes.

Residents still worried about dump health threat

By Leonard Poger

Public officials provided plenty of statistics to show that there is no "imminent" public health danger from a former dump in the northwest section of West-

But many of the nearly 80 residents attending an informational meeting Tuesday night continued to be distrustful. One man was upset that a playground, a short distance from the dump site that his young daughter played in, wasn't yet Rodney Owens, who has since moved from the nearby Woodlawn Villa apartments, was critical that the close-by Tonquish Creek was tested, but not the dirt in the playground used by his daughter. Later, he stormed out of the meeting.

Other residents, some of whom were active in the Cooper School toxic waste dispute two years ago, were also critical of the way the testing was done and that more isn't being done.

James Murray, the county's new environmental department director and its former public works director, told the audience in Bailey Center that it doesn't have trust him, but urged it instead to look at the test data.

One resident involved in the Cooper School feud, Cheryl Graundstadt, held a hand-made sign throughout the twohour-50-minute informational meeting with the message: "No Way Wayne Co."

Another sign leaning against a back wall showed various governmental agencies pointing the finger of blame to oth-

Others complained about why the county or others involved in the site's testing didn't contain exposed barrels which reportedly have been oozing an unknown substance.

But Murray stressed that he isn't critical of the federal Environmental Protection Agency or the state Department of Natural Resources, representatives of which he said were invited to Tuesday's meeting but didn't attend.

Also critical was Katherine Pare, a leader in the Cooper School feud, who said the county is fearful of its liability related to the dump site.

The EPA identified the site, north of Warren Road and west of Central City Parkway, as a potential hazard and in early January ordered testing of the former dump, used by the county and municipal waste haulers from 1947 to 1962, a time when permits weren't required.

Formally named as "potentially responsible parties" for dumping in the site and possibly liable for any cleanup costs were the county, 3M, which operated a plant in the city of Wayne, and Crestwood Development Co., which built two apartment complexes adjacent to the

Murray said that while preliminary test data shows there is no "imminent" public health threat, more complete information will be provided to the public at a public session tentatively scheduled for Thursday night, April 28.

He emphasized that there isn't that much disagreement among the governmental agencies.

At a March 14 informational meeting hosted by EPA, the federal government wanted more intensive testing of the site while the county and 3M wanted a more methodical process involving preliminary surface testing.

Besides Murray, others taking part in Tuesday's presentation were Tod Kilroy, the city of Westland's planning director; Abraham Thomas, a private environmental consultant whose firm is testing the dump site; and Elaine Lindquist, assistant county corporation counsel.

Cramer turned himself over to Westland police after his wife, a Northville office manager, was beaten to death. The couple's 25year-old daughter was in another bedroom at the time and heard "thumping" sounds, Stobbe said. McCusker and Debra Fowlkes still intend to

Resident Kevin Beavers warned Monday that board antics are "making a whole school system look foolish," though he also accused news media of sensationalism.

Board president Francis "Bud" Winter came under the most intense criticism of his eight-month presidency amid accusations that he and board members McCusker, Brown and Fowlkes have arranged majority votes prior to board meetings. A board minority composed of Vicki Welty, Richard LeBlanc and Laurel Raisanen charged that they have been disenfranchised.

"It's a constant power struggle." Raisanen said. "I want us to get along. I want us to have the spirit of what we want this district to be,' Said Fowlkes: "This bickering has got to stop. But it didn't and, in fact, it rose to a feverish pitch Monday.

Winter, whose faction is critical of Superintendent Larry Thomas, blamed Thomas for the controversy surrounding the national convention, saying the board never received comprehensive recommendations on out-of-state

Raisanen responded, "I'm tired of the way that you keep saying that Dr. Thomas is making bad recommendations."

Winter retorted, "I'm tired of you defending him for the poor decisions he makes."

McCusker accused the board minority of drawing attention to the trip and said, "I have never gone out of my way to embarrass (the district)." He said his Ford Motor Co. coworkers asked him for autographs after seeing the TV report that focused on government

McCusker has defended the trip as necessary to learn ways of dealing with, among other issues, gang violence, curriculum needs, guns in schools and public relations.

Two weeks ago, Brown accused Welty of wasting money in October by staying at the Westin Hotel in Detroit for "four or five' nights while attending a state conference.

Welty, absent when Brown leveled the charges, fired back Monday and said most of the conferences she attended preceded deep budget constraints. Welty accused Brown of making "personally degrading remarks" that weren't completely true.

"If it's not true and you cannot prove it, then I would expect you would apologize to me for not telling the truth," Welty said.

When asked to elaborate Tuesday, Welty said she spent three nights at the Westin not "four or five" as Brown claimed. Welty said she was in charge of helping to plan the Michigan Association of School Boards conference. McCusker - an MASB board of directors member — also stayed at the Westin. Welty told Brown on Monday, "I have never ever berated you publicly."

Brown responded, "I believe you have berated me." Brown said Welty leaked information that Brown included in her evaluation of Thomas.

At another point, Winter questioned a $1,000 expense that the district paid for Le-Blanc to attend classes and become a certified board member. Winter also questioned a $39 mileage reimbursement that LeBlanc received, but Winter was reminded that board members are, in fact, paid for mileage.

Welty, meanwhile, criticized Winter for failing to inform the full board of a decision Monday to rescind an earlier vote. The board earlier agreed to bring in an outside firm for $12,000 to help with board policy revisions, but Winter and Fowlkes changed their vote Monday and joined Brown and McCusker in rescinding the action.

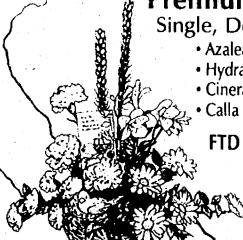

In another dispute, Winter's camp drew criticism for an agenda item to approve several in-district negotiating teams for employee contracts. LeBlanc, saying the board minority was again disenfranchised, accused Winter of "autocratic leadership" that is "doing a great -deal of damage to this school district."

INFANTS AND PETS: A SAFE COMBINATION?

by Derek Bair, M.D.

A word of advice to new parents: You might have the friendliest dog or cat in the world — but don't let your pet get too friendly with your baby.

Licks and nips can cause serious harm

Documented incidents have proven that babies who are licked, nipped, or bitten by family pets can become seriously ill and possibly die.

This is due to a bacteria in the saliva of dogs and cats which can infect a vulnerable infant. Once infected, the baby may develop sepsis (infection of the blood) or meningitis (infection of the brain). Both conditions can result in death. Also, meningitis can lead to mental retardation, hearing loss, and other developmental delays.

Avoid significant contact The most likely time for an infant to get infected is the first two months of life. The best way to prevent your baby from becoming infected is to avoid significant contact between pet and baby during this newborn period. Some minor contact between your baby and pet is expected and beneficial for the family dynamics with the pet. You can let your baby touch the pet, and the pet can sniff the baby's clothing to become accustomed to the new family member. But for the most part, it's best to keep some space between them, some tips:

Keep your baby in a playpen, bassinet, or crib, rather than laying him/her down on the floor. Keep your pet outdoors during the newborn period. Create a temporary home for your pet in the basement or another blocked-off area.

Once babies are old enough to roll over and lift their hands past the middle of their bodies, they can somewhat protect themselves from an overly friendly lick in the face. Also, their resistance to infection is better.

However, it's never a good idea to leave a baby of any age - infant or toddler — alone with the family pet. There have been too many tragic cases of bites and maulings.

Warning signs of infection

Symptoms such as fever, irritability, lethargy, and decreased appetite are warning signs of infection. Also, if your baby has broken skin accompanied by redness, irritation, and possible drainage, it could be a local infection caused by a bite.

If you suspect your baby has been infected by a dog or cat, contact your. doctor immediately.

Evaluation causes dispute

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Some Wayne-Westland school board members are pushing to have all of the contents of Superintendent Larry Thomas' latest job evaluation made public.

Board vice president Mathew McCusker - one of Thomas' board critics - said Monday that the board should release the entire evaluation because of requests made under the Freedom of Information Act by school employees and the press.

"I don't see any compelling reason why the requests should not be granted," McCusker said during a board meeting.

Even before he won a board seat last June, McCusker had given failing marks to Thomas, and some board members see the latest move as an attempt to embarrass the superintendent and some of his board supporters.

In January, Thomas released an abbreviated version of his evaluation, which came halfway through his three-year contract. His ratings from six separate board members ranged from the lowest possible mark, unsatisfactory, to the highest possible mark, outstanding.

Thomas, who is being paid $110,000 this year, voiced shock that the issue arose Monday because no one had given him any prior notice that his evaluation would be discussed.

In his 25 years as an educator, he said, "I've never seen that type requests should not be granted.'

"I don't see any compelling reason why the of practice used." Disappointed with the lack of communication, Thomas reminded the board that his administration issues information updates to board members about two or three times a week "so that there are no surprises.'

Three of the seven board members - Richard LeBlanc, Vicki Welty and Laurel Raisanen also were angered by McCusker's request, saying they had not been advised of it before Monday. The issue arose when McCusker made a motion to amend the board agenda, but he later backed down and asked for a full report on FOI requests.

"Be forewarned, be alerted that I will be making the same motion once that information is processed," he said.

Board member Patricia Brown said she believes the board would be compelled to release the documents based on previous opinions from the state Attorney General's Office. She indicated the board could find itself in legal trouble unless it releases the evaluation.

Mathew McCusker

"I cry foul," Welty said in response to McCusker's request, saying that she, LeBlanc and Raisanen "have been blindsided" by. the other board members' actions. She particularly lashed out at board president Francis "Bud" Winter for failing to communicate with the three members.

Welty told Winter there was "no excuse" for his failing to inform the three members.

Winter responded, "In terms of being blindsided, that's in the eyes of the beholder."

The board minority - Le-Blanc, Raisanen, and Welty voiced concerns Monday that the four majority members have arranged majority votes even before coming to meetings, which would be illegal.

Raisanen said that the board in January "met the letter of the law" in its process of releasing a compiled report on Thomas' evaluation. The board also had been advised by an attorney that it had met all legal requirements.

On Monday, Winter said he wanted another opinion - from another attorney - on the issue.

Newly displayed artifacts tell school's long history

- The original Cooper Elementary on Ann Arbor Trail in Westland comes with its own historic marker. The sign, erected in 1988, proclaims the 153-yearold school as a Michigan historical site.

Local historians have traced the origin of the school back to 1841, but its history could go back even further.

The school is named after Gilbert Cooper, who bought 167 acres of land in 1835 and then built the area's first school on his property.

For many years, Cooper was thought to honor the American novelist, James Fenimore Cooper. Historians who traced the history of the site during Michigan's Sesquicentennial determined this was not so.

Cop to run for state House

By Joanne Maliszewski

Livonia police officer Michael Novak says now is the time to make some changes in state government. That's why he's seeking election to a seat held by longtime Democratic state legislator Justine Barnes.

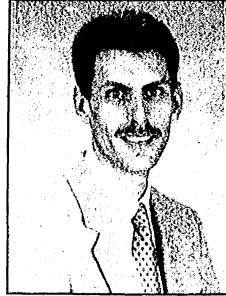

"We have the motivation to pull off this race," said the Republican, who has announced his candidacy for the state House seat in the 18th District.

The district includes all of Westland except one precinct and portion of Canton, from Joy Road to Cherry Hill Road, east of

"I feel this is the opportunity to have some type of change in Lansing," said Novak, 27, who joined the Livonia police in December, 1988. He is also a parttime instructor at the Wayne County Regional Police Academy in Garden City.

"I will bring a new perspective to Lansing — a new commitment to reforming government. I believe we need to empower the people, not the government, and my campaign will be centered around making government more accountable to the people it is supposed to serve," Novak said.

Despite changes in Lansing,

such as term limitations, auto insurance relief and medical malpractice reforms, the Westland, resident believes more work is needed, particularly with schools, crime, the state's job climate and streamlining government.

"We need someone in office who can improve on laws instead of creating new laws," Novak said. "We have to allow law enforcement to do its job.

Novak says he is running a grassroots campaign with the goal of giving people a say in government. "I may not be a tax expert or government insider, but I know what the residents of our community want," Novak said, "We need to reclaim our government from special interests and politicians who are beholding to those interests.''

Barnes is expected to announce soon whether she will seek reelection to the seat she has held since 1983. "I don't think she will be a big competitor," Novak said. "We have been running this campaign as though she is running."

The candidate said he believes the Republican vote is out there in the 18th District. "I would rather put in a candidate that will do the job rather than party preference," he said.

Novak said he would function in Lansing as he does on the Livonia police force. "I have never called in sick. I have been on the job since the day I started. I can guarantee people I will be there."

Novak, who is unmarried, has a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Madonna University. He is currently working on a master's degree in public administration at Eastern Michigan University. He also has completed the 440-hour Michigan Law Enforcement Officer Training Counsel Basic Police Academy at the Wayne County Sheriff Police Academy in Inkster.

BY DARRELL CLEM

A John Glenn High School incident in which a loaded .38-caliber handgun was allegedly traded during lunch for a gold necklace has resulted in three more students being expelled, bringing the total to four.

Brian Darby, Joseph McDavid and David Itlas, all 10th-graders, were ousted from Wayne-Westland schools during a unanimous school board vote Monday. The decision came exactly four weeks after 11th-grader Brian Nesbitt was expelled for the Jan. 16 incident.

The latest expulsions came on the same night that the school board agreed to hire an unarmed "school safety officer" to help with security at the high school on Marquette, just west of Wayne

Marti Molitor, a former Ann Arbor patrol officer, will monitor hallways and grounds and serve as a liaison between John Glenn and the Westland police department, said Charlotte Sherman, executive director of secondary education.

But school officials still hope to convince the Westland City Council to split the cost of a fullfledged police officer who would be armed, much like an officer already stationed at Wayne Memorial High School.

School board president Francis "Bud" Winter reiterated Monday that he's "still unhappy" that city officials haven't yet agreed to help pay for a John Glenn police offi-

The expulsions of Darby, dents. Nesbitt also had received a hearing before he was expelled on Feb. 28.

Darby allegedly brought the gun to school and Nesbitt allegedly received it, said Greg Baracy, assistant superintendent for general administration.

McDavid allegedly drove a vehicle in which the gun had been carried before it was hidden in a wooded area, and Itlas allegedly retrieved the weapon from the woods, Baracy said.

The alleged gun-for-necklace trade unfolded after a fifth student not involved in the incident the gun in a duffel bag, Baracy said. The weapon was later found in Nesbitt's possession on a bus, after school had let out for the day, Baracy said.

Weapons incidents have escalated this school year, prompting the school board to take measures to try to curb the problem.

In addition to the patrol officers, the district also has hired a private security firm to furnish eight officers — one for each high school, one for the William Ford Vocational-Technical Center, one ed of having weapons at school.

Local students excel at quiz bowl tourney

It was academic prowess and not sports ability that attracted more than 150 participants to Detroit Catholic Central last Satur-

Middle school students from throughout western Wayne County, Ann Arbor, Farmington and West Bloomfield participated in the second annual Quiz Bowl Tournament sponsored by CC.

Two Farmington-area schools - Warner Middle School and Power Middle School - walked away with the first- and secondplace trophies, respectively. Third and fourth-place honors went to Emerson Middle School in Ann Arbor and St. Edith Catholic School in Livonia.

The top four teams received trophies. The four male starting players on the winning team also receive a $1,000 scholarship to attend CC. The four starting players on the second-place team are awarded $500 scholarships, while the starters on the third- and fourth-place teams each are eligible to receive $250.

All participants were awarded certificates.

Other local teams in this year's tournament included Our Lady of Good Counsel, Plymouth; Our Lady of Refuge, Orchard Lake; St. Mary, Wayne, St. Michael, Livonia; St. Raphael, Garden City; St. Robert Bellarmine, Redford Township: Emerson Middle School, Livonia: Northville Christian School, Northville: Orchard Lake Middle School, West Bloomfield; and Riley Middle School, Livonia.

Working: St. Edith students (from left) Kevin Pletzke, Ben Musto and Joe Bono work hurriedly to come up with a math answer in the semifinal round of the Quiz Bowl Tournament last Saturday at Detroit Catholic Central.

Quiz Bowl/Academic Bowl is one of the fastest growing varsity sports in the country, according to the CC organizers.

"It teaches students the spiritof competition in something other than athletics," said Linda Welborn, director of the eighth-grade tournament and a guidance counselor at the high school in Redford Township.

Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer will be inducted next week into the Madonna University Wall of Fame, a tribute to local leaders.

Robert Bennett, mayor of Livonia, will open the ceremony at 11 a.m. April 5 in Kresge Hall. A reception will follow. Both events are open to the public.

Minister Gimbu Mullugotta, founder and president of the Christian Poets Society, will recite a special poem and vocal entertainment will be provided by Madonna students Frank Harley, Romon Oglesby, Demetrus Power and Franzine Jones.

"We chose to induct Mayor Archer into the Wall of Fame because he is making a difference in Detroit. We would like him to know that we stand behind him in any way we can. We would like to help him," said Sister M. Mafinez, director of Madonna University's office of multicultural af-

Former Lansing lawmaker Exchange students need homes enters U.S. Senate contest

By BARBARA WILSON

Former state Rep. Judy Miller has tossed her hat into the crowded arena of candidates for the U.S. Senate.

Miller announced her candidacy formally last week at Birmingham City-Hall, where she began her political career in 1981.

"I felt I had something to offer the state," Miller said. "I think people feel they have lost touch with their elected officials.'

A former small-business owner, Miller was first elected to the Birmingham City Commission in 1980 and elected to the Michigan House of Representatives in 1984. In 1991 Gov. John Engler appointed her Michigan business ombudsman, a position she held for nearly three years.

"I have been laying the foundation for this (campaign) for some time, but I don't think I have a lot of catching up to do," Miller said. "I think now that Proposal A has passed people are just starting to think about this race.'

Miller admits she will have

Michigan's "informed consent" abortion law was due to take effect Friday. Instead, the parties are loading new ammunition for a June 20 federal court battle and maybe for the appeals courts.

"It will go at least to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals," predicted Sen. Fred Dillingham, one of the Legislature's two or three most vocal backers of restrictions on abortions.

"Our law is similar to Pennsylvania's. There, the ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union) dropped out after it got to the Court of Appeals. The Michigan ACLU is much more militant," said Dillingham, R-Fowlerville. Pennsylvania's law took effect March 20.

Two 16-year-old German exchange students need local homes for the next school year. The students won't arrive until the end of August but a family must be found for each be-

Area Red Cross chapter seeking blood donations

By BARBARA WILSON

A tornado may never blast down your doors and a tidal wave crash through your living room, but few people make it through a lifetime without requiring some help from the American Red Cross.

The Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross provides services to the residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties during good times, as well as bad times. This year marks the chapter's 85th birthday.

The Red Cross touches most people directly through its blood bank and its training classes in first aid, CPR and water safety.

In the blood donations area, the Red Cross has far from exceeded its goals in maintaining an adequate blood supply locally. The blood bank, once again, is quite low and donations are needed to meet demands.

"Looking back 10 years ago, the amount of blood we have imported from other areas has gone from 3 percent to about 25 percent this year," said Mark Cornillie, director of public relations for the local chapter.

He attributes the added need for blood to several issues, including the economy. Traditionally, the Red Cross has collected most of its blood through large drives at big companies. With corporations downsizing and the demise of many other businesses, however, these drives have been less fre-

The summer months are especially difficult as high schools and colleges are not in session or have fewer students in attendance. Cornillie said school blood drives account for 10 to 15 percent of their supply.

In addition, about 45,000 donors are excluded each year, Cornillie said, to ensure the safety of the blood supply. Many others are still fearful about donating blood due to the misconception that the HIV virus can be contracted when

Lansing to expand adoption options

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Couples who want to adopt children will have more options and faster results under bills winding through the Michigan Legislature.

But there's still controversy over lawmakers' decision to allow attorney-arranged adoptions.

"Generally there's an effort to provide more options - more choices to birth parents, more choices for adoptive parents." said Joan E. Young, Oakland probate judge who served on a state commission that recommended many of the changes.

Young saw "a lot of frustration" among adoptive parents at (1) tight rules imposed by adoption agencies and (2) long waiting periods to receive a child. "They ask. 'Why is so much easier in other states than in Michigan?' Kansas is a popular place to adopt.

"I certainly support the efforts to make adoption more available," said Young, who worked for a year on Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld's Commission on Adop-

"I was not at all happy with the attorney part of it," countered Don Marengere, Bloomfield Township manufacturer's representative and past president of the now-folded Adoption Option organization.

"They (attorneys) may have expedited adoptions, but they've not helped women. They're doing what's right for rich clients. The (Binsfeld) commission was diametrically opposed to attorneyarranged adoptions.'

Marengere agreed with the Michigan Federation of Private Child and Family Agencies. whose associate director, Verlie Ruffin, said, "We want attorneyassisted adoption to be taken out."

"You can't keep attorneys out," said Sen. Christopher Dingell, D-Trenton, an attorney. "I would want an attorney going over the paperwork. We'll let them (attorneys) in and regulate the daylights out of them.'

Attorney-assisted adoptions are a key feature of the package of six Senate and 12 House bills. Qualified attorneys experienced in Michigan adoption would be allowed to do adoptions under the Senate bill. The House version of the bill contains fewer restric-

The bills were guided through the Senate with little debate, on votes of 34-0 and 33-0, last week by Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, chairman of the Family Law Committee.

"I want to use adoption as an afternative to abortion," said Welborn, an abortion foe. "This makes it easier, faster. The driving force is to get the child into a home.'

The bills go to the House, some for the first time and some for House concurrence in Senate changes.

Other key parts of the legislation include:

Direct-consent adoptions allowing the birth parent to directly release the child to adoptive parents who have a favorable home study done.

Temporary placement - allowing a child to be placed with an adoptive family that isn't licensed as a foster care facility.

Issuance of final adoption orders in six months instead of a year after placement of the child. Companion bills will require health insurers to cover adopted children the day they enter their new homes instead of the day the adoption takes legal effect. Continued adoption subsidies - and a pamphlet describing the subsidies.

Plans for elementary music fall flat

The latest effort by Livonia school officials to come up with a plan to reinstate instrumental music instruction at the elementary level without increasing costs fell flat. School board members were unimpressed with a special committee's recommendations.

By Marie Chestney STAFF WRITER

Livonia school district administrators looked Monday at two plans to restore elementary instrumental music and walked away unhappy with both. The board of education, which serves the northern section of Westland, was less than thrilled made by the Livonia Youth with the two proposals because committee members who came up with them were operating under a handicap. Their mandate from the trustees was to come up with a plan that didn't cost extra money to implement.

"We asked you to find a Band-Aid that would fix the problem," trustee Pat Tancill told committee members Dick Braun, Dave Butler, Jim Lauer, Bonnie Schweitzer and Betty Jo Welsh, all Livonia educators. "Neither of these plans accomplishes what the board wants them to. We can't do much without spending money we don't have."

One bright spot in the district's desire to reinstate elementary instrumental music is a proposal Philharmonic Orchestra.

Art Beaudrie, LYPO board chairman, has offered free lessons to elementary students on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon at Churchill High, on Newburgh just north of Joy. A $10 per student fee would be charged to clean and repair instruments provided by the district.

The schools and the LYPO are fiat Churchill. Fliers announcing the plan soon will be sent to Livonia parents.

School officials applauded the LYPO for stepping forward to offer a solution to a program cut in Livonia schools that has angered many parents. But they also said that Saturday instruction is not a good substitute for twice-weekly instruction in the schools.

Trustee James Watters resurrected an idea that had emerged previously but went nowhere. "If we can't do it in the schools, there's got to be some alternative within our community. What's the probability of doing something in community education?"

This solution, said trustee Ken Timmons, is unfair to those students unable to take evening community education classes.

Once-a-week instruction, said one district mother, is not enough to instill an interest in youngsters to make them want to play an instrument in middle school.

An interest in playing an instrunalizing the contract to rent space ment is something that develops over a long period of time, said Jonathan Holtfreter, Emerson band and orchestra director. "If you leave it out of the elementary schools, when students get to middle school and electives, they will have no basis for selecting it."

Tancill estimated it would cost $500,000 to bring back the elementary instrumental program that existed in the schools in 1991-92.

The district's 1992-93 budget eliminated instrumental music for fifth-graders and cut instruction for sixth-graders to once a week. Instrumental music is the only elementary elective.

In the 1993-94 budget elementary instrumental music for sixthgraders was eliminated as well.

Since last December, the committee has studied how to reinstate some semblance of the program without spending more money. They came up with two plans and gave lukewarm support to the second. The two plans are:

At the sixth-grade level and for fifth- and sixth-grade combinations, substitute instrumental music for

Man, 33, charged with impersonating a doctor

BY ALICE COLLINS

Authorities hope to locate persons who were treated at an Oakland County medical clinic in the past month by a man now charged with impersonating a doctor.

Michael Fredrick Ammon, 33, of Redford Township, jailed under a $250,000 bond, is accused of illegally practicing medicine at the Southfield Medical Center, a walk-in clinic on Nine Mile just west of Greenfield.

Ammon was arrested Friday while performing a exam on an undercover Southfield police officer. It was tip from a staff member at the clinic that led to the investigation.

"We're asking that any person treated by a doctor at the clinic in March contact detective John Issitt at the Southfield Police," Oakland County assistant prosecutor James Halushka said Monday. "We're concerned about those patients. We don't know how many he treated or prescribed drugs for and we want to get to them before they suffer any harmful effects.

"Also," continued Halushka, "we're looking for persons to help us make additional charges."

Investigators also obtained search warrants for the medical records associated with other possible patients. Detective Issitt may be reached by calling 354-

A not-guilty plea was entered for Ammon, also known as Michael Fredrick Amin, at his arraignment Sunday before 46th District Court magistrate Eugene Friedman. Friedman ordered him held under the bond pending the outcome of a preliminary exam scheduled for Monday.

Halushka and Southfield police said Ammon was hired to work at the clinic after representing himself as Dr. Christopher Doig, a legitimate osteopathic physician in Livonia.

Police said neither Doig nor physicians or personnel at the Southfield clinic are suspected of any involvement in the case.

Monday said the doctor would not comment on the situation.

An employee at Doig's office

Attempts to talk with others who work at the Southfield Medical Center also were unsuccessful. The clinic, which is operated by a management group, hires independent doctors to work there. The clinic was not open and an employee in a nearby office said she was informed that the post office had been directed to stop the clinic's mail for a week.

"Fortunately, Ammon worked at the clinic for only three weeks,' said Halushka.

"He had some credentials identifying him as Dr. Doig and said he was on staff at Botsford Hospital (in Farmington Hills.) The clinic called Botsford to check and the hospital confirmed that Dr. Doig was on staff."

An undercover Southfield detective went into the clinic for an exam Friday after police investigated the tip. "She pretended to have a sinus problem," said police spokesman L.A. Moore. "About halfway through the exam the arrest was made.'

He was lodged in jail and police had intended to have him arraigned on Saturday morning, Moore said. "But he complained of chest pains and spent the night in Providence Hospital. He was arraigned Sunday after he was released from the hospital."

The prosecutor's office released a criminal history on Ammon dating back to 1978. He has convictions of larceny, grand theft, theft by use of credit card and writing bad checks in California and was wanted in the state of California for parole violation and for a warrant for larceny by conversion issued by the 42-2 District Court in New Baltimore, Mich.,

Tax break bill passes state Senate

BY TIM RICHARD.

State Senate Republicans passed a $22 million property tax break for agri-business. but not before they took a verbal blistering from Democrats.

Farms - even those owned by corporations and non-residents - will get the same homestead property tax break as homeowners under a bill approved 20-11 Thursday. Nineteen Republicans and one Democrat voted yes; 11 Democrats voted no.

Said an angry Senate Democratic leader Art Miller of Warren: "It's fine we help some business people and do what's good for the farmer. But after spring break, I'm gonna put in a bill to help the electrician and plumber (who work out of their homes). What's good for rural Michigan is going to be good for small business, too.".

The sponsor, Republican Joel Gougeon of Bay City, blamed Democrats for demanding separate tax rates for business and homeowners during 1993 negotiations. "We on this side of the aisle lost that argument," he said.

Tied to Proposal A

Senate Bill 1027, now on its way to the House, amends Proposal A, approved March 15 by voters.

Proposal A will activate a law placing a 24-mill school tax rate on all business property and second homes, and six mills on principal homesteads and farm property connected to a farmer's homestead. Leased farmland and disconnected farmland were to be taxed at 24 mills - until this Senate

Voting no were Democrats William Faust of Westland and George Z. Hart of Dear-

Absent were Sens. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills:

Gougeon said that under Proposal A, 66 percent of farmland would have been taxed at six mills and 33 percent at 24 mills. His bill gives 95 percent of farms the six-mill rate. Only farmland with commercial storage, processing and shipping equipment would pay 24 mills.

The House is working on a similar bill, sponsored by Rep. Dan Gustafson, R-Haslett. It's likely a Senate-House conference committee will work out a compromise.

Cost unknown

Faust objected to taking up the bill because the Senate Fiscal Agency said it was "not clear" how much revenue schools would lose but there would be "a significant fiscal impact.'

Said Faust: "This body holds itself out as fiscally conservative, but it doesn't know the answer to the question (of revenue loss).

Sen. James Berryman, D-Adrian, noted that Ohio, Indiana and Illinois residents who own vacation homes in Michigan will pay 24 mills, but those who own farmland will pay only six mills. The Senate rejected, 16 to 18, Berryman's amendment to charge non-resident farm owners 24 mills.

Gougeon thought a split rate on farms would be unconstitutional. Not so, said Democrat John Kelly of Grosse Pointe. "The interstate commerce clause doesn't let us put impediments on products from another state," he said, but Michigan may choose how it give property tax breaks.

Generous to farms

Conroy of Flint said the bill amounts to "saying farmers aren't in business. They say it (farming) is a movement. Well, it's not a movement for my retailers, gas station owners and cosmetologists.

"We give a couple hundred million dollars in breaks for farmers," Conroy went on, citing farm exemptions from the single business tax; exemption from sales and use taxes for seeds, tools and pesticides; income tax credits totalling $60 million; exemption for tractors form the personal property tax; and from motor fuel taxes for farm implements.

If farmers quit, McManus went on, "what" do we want the landscape of Michigan to look like in the future? Do we want agriculture? Or do we want everything built up? What happens to the young farmers?"

Keyboard expert set to perform lecture-recital

Penelope Crawford, one of America's leading performers on historical keyboard instruments. will present a lecture-recital at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, April 13, in Hammill Music, 15630 Middlebelt. Livonia.

Crawford's appearance is being sponsored by the Livonia Area Piano Teachers Forum. The public is invited to attend.

Dumb move

Forget the New Orleans trip

he Wayne-Westland school board shot itself in the foot recently when it disclosed that three of its seven members plan to attend the National School Boards Association convention in April in New Orleans. (One of the three later dropped plans to attend.)

While that celebrated tourist city is famous for its jazz traditions, the planned trip struck a sour note for three other school board members.

The problem is clear. At a time when the district is in the midst on its ongoing money problems and just a year after a pay-to-play policy was initiated for students in extracurricular programs, the board majority should have shown more political sensitivity in spending money on activities not directly related to classroom education. While educational conferences are valuable, the board must realize that the New Orleans trip may be used by school board-watchers as a symbol of a "public be damned — I'm entitled to the trip" attitude of the board.

The administration recommended that one board member attend, but the majority insisted on three.

While many of the conference's workshops are relevant to the problems facing the district. there are other ways to get the same information without spending more than $6,000 for three board members to attend.

■ The administration recommended that one board member attend, but the majority insisted on three. While many of the conference's workshops are relevant to the problems facing the district, there are other ways to get the same information without spend-Ing more than $6,000 for three board members to attend.

While one member, Patricia Brown, disclosed this week she will stay home, the board majority's attitude will not be quickly forgotten particularly by parents who had to come up with hundreds of dollars to pay for their children's participation in school sports or other after-school programs.

On the surface, the New Orleans trip isn't a major financial drain, but it symbolizes a problem that won't be forgotten soon.

The trip also reflects a more deep-seated problem of the strained relations among board of education members.

In the future, hopefully the board should show more restraint in dealing with the numerous community relations problems facing the district.

Mall smoking ban on target no smoking restriction in shopping mails would be a step forward in the steady climb towards fresher air.

House Bill 5212 that would restrict smoking in commons areas of malls has passed the House and is ready to be discussed by a Senate committee.

If adopted as it currently reads, the law would apply to corridors, lounge sections and restrooms. Restaurants are covered by a separate law. Individual stores are not affected.

Although malls are private property, we agree with the reasons state Rep. John Jamian, the Republican from Bloomfield Township, gives for sponsoring the bill.

"Malls are like town squares. They're public places," says Jamian, co-chairman of the House Public Health Committee.

Calls supporting the ban were overwhelming, he reports. "Most support came from people who walk the malls and mothers with children," Jamian says. That washes with our research, too. "I really wish the malls were smoke free," Linda Weinstein of West Bloomfield told us last August, as she took her morning walk at Laurel Park Place in Livonia.

"I'm here walking for fitness, but I wonder if the air I'm huffing and puffing is clean and healthy enough?"

In fact, passing such a law would just step up a process that is already headed in that direc-

By law, smoking is banned in government buildings, hospitals, nursing homes and schools. Restaurants must allocate smoke-free sections. (And, in fact, some restaurants such as the Old Woodward Grill in downtown Birmingham have elected to become completely non-smoking.)

By choice, several area malls have smoke-free zones. At Oakland Mall in Troy, Summit Place

Despite the direction of the bill, smokers' rights have not gone the way of a puff of smoke. Jamian accepted an amendment allowing malls to establish separate smoking rooms with separate ventilation systems so that smoke will not be recycled into the mall.

Mall in Waterford and Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn, benched areas have been designated as "Smoke free."

At Twelve Oaks in Novi, The Gathering Space and center court are no smoking zones, with smoking allowed in other commons areas.

And Westland Mall will go to three designated smoking areas April 1.

Although Jamian's bill does not encompass individual stores, Hudson's has for some time banned smoking in all its stores, except for smoking sections in its restaurants. Despite the direction of the bill, smokers' rights have not gone the way of a puff of smoke. Jamian accepted an amendment allowing malls to establish separate smoking rooms with separate ventilation systems so that smoke will not be recycled into the mall.

That should at least mitigate the anger of Molly Giles of Birmingham, who once told us that if she couldn't have a cigarette between stores at the malls, she'd take her business to the mainstreets.

The Michigan Senate should follow the House lead and ban smoking in our shopping malls. House Bill 5212 protects the air for the majority of us who are non-smokers, while still allowing a place for those who choose to smoke.

Protect environment

he environment is being ruined every day. The only way to change this is for us to help clean it up.

One way is simply to recycle office paper. If we recycle one ton of office paper we can save 17

Can you imagine what one business can do in a year? Now multiply that times a thousand businesses and you have a lot of trees saved. And with global warming happening every day, saving the trees and cleaning up fossil fuel and other pollutants in the air is the only way we

If you had a full-scale recycling program in every school district, just think of all those trees you would save. Probably the whole rain forest. Wayne/Westland and other school districts already have a recycling program in effect.

Another way we can change for the better is to step up our litter laws. Increase the fines and enforce the litter laws. This would eliminate a lot of the garbage on the streets and put revenue into the city general fund. The litter law now is up to a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail. This needs to be enforced, and it is very difficult for the police to do this without cooperation from the public. We have to think about the future for our kids. If it is pollution we leave them in, they will not live too long. So let's try and work together and clean up our environment.

MEA control blasted

ulletin - Lansing - 1996. "Eight-hundred pound political gorilla runs amuck In state legislature - numerous casual-

It could happen if something isn't done to slow the rate of growth of educational spending! The "800-lb. gorilla" is, of course, the incredi bly wealthy and politically powerful Michigan Education Association, (MEA), - which represents the financial interests of thousands of highly paid and benefit-rich Michigan public school teachers.

And the political "casualties?" Anyone who relies directly or indirectly on money from the state to support themselves! That list could include — welfare recipients, city and county workers, corrections workers, state police, natural resources people — including indirectly, hunters, fishermen, retirees and families who use the state parks system, and the list goes on Michigan's public education monopoly has had an absolutely incredible - and unsustainable - run up in their financing levels over the past 10 years. Annual increases in total funding have approached 8 percent over the 10 year period — nearly twice the rate of inflation on a per pupil basis. And during that time the student population has plummeted with test scores falling alarmingly.

OK - here's the problem. While Proposal A has transferred the "funding mechanism" of education to Lansing — the "spending mechanism" for that money is still vested in the local school boards. Most local school boards have shown almost no willingness or ability to control spending over the long term. Indeed, over the last 10 years the mentality of most school boards has been "tax and spend, tax and spend, tax and spend."

Will the education monopoly now accept the financial realities of Proposal A and scale back their excessive demands? I seriously doubt it!

Because of this — the state Legislature should act immediately to bring education "spending" and "funding" under state control. Otherwise, a fiscal disaster is almost a certain-

Public school teachers should be brought under the state civil service laws immediately. And tenure laws should be abolished to "professionalize" our teacher corps. Illegal teacher strikes must be effectively stopped — just as we do with our police and firemen. Our 500-plus school districts should be consolidated to discourage the incredible administrative waste and duplication of effort that now exists. Purchasing of supplies should be centralized in Lansing to achieve "quantity purchasing discounts." And privatization of some services should be explored.

The time for "real" education reform has come! Will the public education monopoly dig in their heels "stone wall" and attempt to rely on "brute political muscle" to achieve their financial goals - regardless of the consequences to others? Or will they assist in finding creative legislative "solutions" — within existing funding levels. That question is yet to be answered.

You can play an important part in this historic effort to reform education in Michigan. Call or write your state legislators today — and demand "education reforms to achieve cost control." Your opinion really does count!

These people think it is funny and give you a run-around. I complained to Mayor Robert Thomas about handbills. So City Hall got around that by sending out the handbills through the junk mail route. In his own handbill, it states no junk mail. Then why should we have to accept that junk mail that we don't want?

Every ton of paper that goes in the landfills takes 17 trees that are gone. When I get junk mail at my house I stamp it refused and put it in the mail - and you don't have to be a rocket scientist to know where it goes. We really don't need any of that junk mail.

POINTS OF VIEW

Funding foolishness

Student dedication key to school improvement

he vote on financing public schools in Michigan is behind us. Remember the time when we were asked to vote for an increase in the sales tax to 4 percent, so that we would have no state income tax? Now we have them both anyway.

The need for more money seems to be never-ending, and our lawmakers in Lansing know exactly how to go about getting it. Any time politicians tinker with the tax system, taxpayers end up paying more.

The taxpayers should have insisted on a contingency in Proposal A, that if school millage is ever increased to higher than 6 mills, or if the income tax is ever raised higher than 4.4 percent, the sales tax has to return to 4 percent.

When corporations experience financial difficulties, the first thing they do is cut expenses. Sometimes they call it "trimming the fat." Michigan schools can trim at least 30 percent from their budgets, and while doing so improve the quality of education, if it is done the right way.

The difficulty is that we are trying to solve every problem by throwing more money at it, usually at the insistence of pressure groups which profit from it, disregarding other, more effective and less costly, alternatives.

Spending $5,000 per student is much too expensive. More money spent unwisely, unnecessarily, does little if anything to improve education. The primary purpose of the public school system should be to provide basic education for our children.

Programs that do not belong should be eliminated. Lots of expensive equipment, or furniture replaced too often, is a waste of money. Providing books, notebooks, pencils, and other such aids should not be the responsibility of schools. School buildings should not be palaces. A more austere environment is less distracting and thus more conducive to learning.

To all who claim more money is the only way to improve education, the lesson from this experiment is obvious. The bottom line is students must be willing to learn. For those who are not willing, even $50,000 spent on each will do no good. Those who are willing to learn seize on every opportunity presented to them, in a disciplined but not necessarily extravagant environment, to achieve their goals.

GUEST COLUMNIST

More responsibility for better education should be demanded from students, not from taxpayers.

With regard to financing public schools, Proposal A and the statutory plan were both deficient in certain respects.

For example, I think it is unfair, although fashionable these days, to gang up on smokers, and unreasonably tax cigarettes. Cigarette smoke pollution is relatively minor when compared to auto pollution, or the pollution of our food and water with poisonous chemicals. But I have never heard anyone suggesting the increase of taxes on automobiles, or the imposition of a transfer tax on purchases of automobiles, or the increase of a tax on gasoline, to finance the school system.

I would also rather like to see licensing of radio and TV sets to the tune, let us say, of $50 a year for each radio and $100 a year for each television, like they do in Europe. This would do more for education than extra money. With fewer radios and televisions there would be less time wasted listening and watching the trash portrayed there (pollution of minds), so students would have more time for homework.

With the proliferation of television, radio, and VCRs, most students typically spend five hours or more a day watching TV but only 15 minutes a day on homework. Even homework often is done in front of the tube.

There are other, more fair ways of financin; schools than overtaxing homeowners, wage earners, or shoppers. These other ways should be considered, including more contribution from the parents of students.

I believe the state gambling lottery is an immoral exploitation of mostly those who have the least, and it should be abandoned. This is not the most decent way of financing schools or anything else.

Casino gambling is in the same category. State and city governments should not be in the business of running or sponsoring gambling enterprises as a way of extracting money from people. The lottery and casino gambling take advantage of human weaknesses by creating the illusion of big winnings which, for millions, never materialize.

Principal's actions make ex-administrator cringe n 1989, I would have fancied that Hulond Humphries was a grotesquely aberrant specimen of semihumanity, let alone a certified high school principal entrusted with the leadership of an American high school.

In 1994, I'm no longer so sure. Between those years, I was forcibly strapped in a front-row seat and subjected to a mass display of bigotry in a community I had assumed to be too sophisticated — not to speak of too howdy-neighbor American-pie — for such counter-democratic viciousness.

Hulond Humphries is the Alabama high school principal who in his ignorance threatened to cancel his school's prom to prevent interracial couples from attending. He is also the individual who pronounced one of his students, the daughter of interracial parents, a "mistake."

Yes, he said this about one of his students! A child of God. A young, sensitive, teen-age human being. How in the name of all that's holy did this man ever get to be a high school principal? I presume that, chillingly, before he became a high school principal he must have been an assistant principal, and before that perhaps a department head, and before that, a teacher. A teacher, Lord have mercy!

During my often tumultuous fourdecade career in education, I was directly instrumental in hiring or promoting over 30 suburban principals in overwhelmingly white Christian schools. While the vast majority were excellent choices, I must confess that I wasn't entirely infallible in my judgment of leadership talent. But none of them, praise be, would have ever thought of pronouncing one of their students a "mistake." Nor would any of them have ever contemplated canceling a prom because black and white students planned to attend together as each others' dates. Or would they have? I recognize that I'm actually at a point in my life where I can't truly say that I know even this for a positive fact anymore.

But this I do know: thought has no color. Nor does justice. Nor reason. Nor love. Nor knowledge — particularly knowledge, and its liberal acquisition — education.

Hulond Humphries is worthy of neither the proud name "American" nor the sacred title "educator." He has disgraced both his citizenship and his profession. Were I so empowered, I would permanently strip him of both—not to mention his principalship. He is a bona-fide throwback to Nazi Germany in the same spirit that his alter ego Louis Farrakhan is. Bigotry—whatever its color—is undemocratic, anti-American, and murderously perilous to the survival of our multicultural republic, which is the one last shining hope of the world.

Is Hulond Humphries indeed a grotesquely aberrant specimen of semihumanity today in anno Domini 1994? God, I would love to believe that he is — yet I'm mortally afraid that he isn't. Perhaps in 2094 his kind will have become an aberration. But by then, it will be far too late.

GOP soft on teachers' union

ome retribution! Some vendetta!

Republican legislators are pussyfooting in their campaign to clip the wings of the Michigan Education Association.

The Grand Old Party has many reasons to fight education's largest employees' union.
MEA has allocated delegates within the Democratic Party structure, MEA money favors Democratic candidates, and MEA leaders sat with Democratic legislators last Oct. 5 when Gov.
John Engler delivered his special message on school reform.

MEA not only opposed Proposal A on the March 15 ballot but blundered badly when it put the union's name on the extremely dirty campaign against it.

Despite Democratic rhetoric about "union busting," however, Republicans have set cautious goals as the House Labor Committee studies school "cost containment" measures. On the limited agenda: requiring school boards to hid out health care contracts instead of letting MEA bargain to be the insurance administrator; punishing school employees who strike illegally; and giving administrators more authority.

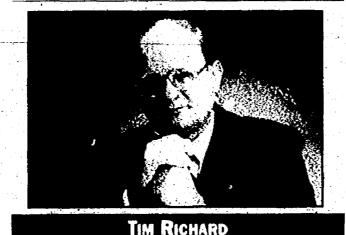

MEA's chief sin is none of the above. Its chief sin is having members who are teachers or administrators in District A serving on the school board in District B.

They have a conflict of interest. Bargaining tactics get leaked from the board room to the union. Strong administrators get undercut. The board gives in too easily to union work rule demands and bargains too many things.

The union has a perfect alibi. MEA lobbyist Al Short shrugs and says: "Management retains all the power unless it bargains to give up that power. We do not have the right to put one word in the contract that's not bargained and agreed to.'

I asked several Republican legislators pointblank about their pussyfooting. All but one said there might be constitutional problems, and maybe there were problems with limiting the right of people to run for office. Nuts. Votingage students may not serve on the boards of colleges they attend. Educators shouldn't be serving on school boards.

The voice in the wilderness was Rep. Dave Jaye, R-Utica. OK, Jaye has had his problems with Demon Rum, but he's straightening out and should be heard. In my experience, Jaye has a shin-kicking honesty and a good-humored propensity to raise issues the Nervous Nellies of The Establishment fear to discuss.

Jaye in fact raised that point — MEA power on school boards — in his party's caucus. He told me the leaders replied, "Dave, support us on the first step, and we'll look at it later. We need the school administrators on board (supporting legislation) for management changes. Dave, give us a break."

Michigan needs a law on this point to protect the voters from themselves. Voter turnouts are a miserable 10 or 15 percent in most school board elections. A very small bloc — like a union — can decide an election. The voters, unfortunately, are lethargic until the assessment notices or tax proposals come in.

It will be a tough campaign, getting MEA types off school boards. Many educators are so morally obtuse on this point that they're blind to their own conflict of interest. "We're the professionals," they insist. "Who knows better than educators what the problems are?"

A school board oversees the managers of a public corporation. The board hires the top brass, sets the budget, approves contracts and acts as a kind of appeals court when charges are filed against employees or students.

Classroom experience is not desirable for serving on a school board — quite the opposite, because it results in a propensity to second-guess administrators and other teachers.

should be heard by school boards, but MEA shouldn't have school board seats.

MEA is a union with loyal members. It

Voters may decide on state parks endowment fund

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Two months ago it started with bipartisan support from both chambers of the Legislature.

But by last week the effort to revitalize Michigan's 75-year-old state park system had become a partisan battle with overtones of Detroit versus the rest of the state.

Voters on Nov. 8 may have the amendment to eliminate diversion of $20 million from the Natural Resources Trust Fund into the Michigan Strategic Fund (MFS), sending the money instead into a state parks endowment fund.

The Natural Resources Trust Fund, started in 1982, is fed by revenue from oil and gas found on state land. MFS is an economic development fund created under final say, The Senate wants them Democratic Gov. James Blancto vote on a constitutional hard in the early 1980s. MSF gets part of the natural resources fund to pay for pollution control projects aimed at attracting business. Republican Gov. John Engler would like to dismantle this monument to his predecessor.

> Meanwhile, state general fund appropriations for the parks shrank from 70 percent of their budget to less than 30 percent, as user fees were jacked up.

Ballot plan OK'd

The Senate March 22 approved 29-7 a ballot proposal (Senate Joint Resolution E) to end the diversion and sent it to the House of Representatives.

All local senators voted yes: Republican Robert Geake of Northville; Democrats William Faust of Westland and George Hart of Dearborn.

Fund sale fought

Most controversial was the bill to use proceeds from sale of the state Accident Fund to endow the parks. The Accident Fund was started in 1912 to provide workers compensation insurance in a new market. Engler has the state business on the auction block.

The bill barely passed, 20-16, as three Republicans joined Democrats in voting no. All area senators voted with their parties. The bill already has passed the House.

Less controversial was the House-passed bill to give the state immunity from liability for volunteer groups who take part in the adopt-a-park program.-

Senate action was praised by Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), which spearheaded the year-long effort that preceeded legislative action.

Aristeo national qualifier nne Aristeo of the Livonia-Novi Spartan Aquatic Club is on her way to the Senior Nationals.

The Stevenson High freshman finished third in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 2:03.1 at the Junior Nationals-East Swimming Championships. March 23 at the Canham Natatorium in Ann Arbor.

More than 1,200 swimmers from 283 teams competed last week at the University of Michigan.

Aristeo also took a fourth in the 200 backstroke with a state-record time of 2:02.67. She also set a state record in the 400 individual medley (4:27.99). finishing 10th. Aristeo added a 20th place in the 200 freestyle.

Two other Spartan Aquatic members also earned places.

Jill Mellis took 19th in the 100 breast stroke and 29th in the 50 freestyle. She added the 200 breast stroke to her Junior National resume after an early week time trial.

Calcaterra All-Academic

andy Calcaterra (Livonia Churchill), a 6foot-7 junior forward on the Wayne State -University men's basketball team, was recently named to the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference All-Academic squad.

Calcaterra, a geology major, carried a 3.11 gradepoint average during the past year.

He was a part-time starter for the Tartars, who won a school-record 24 games. Wayne State captured both the GLIAC regular season and playoff ivonia Clarenceville's Jaime Zemke has signed a binding letter of intent to play volleyball next fall at Henry Ford Community College.

Zemke to Henry Ford

Zemke, a 5-foot-10 senior, had 228 kills, 239 digs, 119 blocks and 61 aces for the Trojans, who finished 28-6-6 overall this season.

The third-team Class C All-State pick helped Clarenceville win the Metro Conference and district championships.

Tape measure: Livonia Churchill's Dave Elenich, a junior, is expected to top 50 feet in the shot put after hitting 49-9 a year ago. In the discus, Elenich hopes to top 150 feet.

Can John Glenn win Lakes title?

The 1994 boys track season was launched Wednesday when Livonia Stevenson visited Churchill. Meanwhile, Westland John Glenn appears strong on the Lakes Division side of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

By Brad Emons

The success of the football, baseball and basketball teams may be a tough act to follow, but the Westland John Glenn boys track squad hopes to carve a niche of its own this spring.

Coach Jess Shough's 47-man squad features several key performers returning, which could translate into a Lakes Division title in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"With pay-to-participate, we don't have the depth we normally have,' Shough said. "We have a good junior class and we're solid in the field events, but we'll have to see about our relays.'

Glenn lost three key performers to graduation: Chris Vanderburgh, who cleared 6 feet, 2 inches in the high jump and clocked a 41.1 in the 300meter hurdles; Randy Ellison, 51.9 in the 400; and Joe Paddock, 11.1 in the 100 and 23.3 in the 200.

In the field events, Glenn is solid at pole vault with the return of senior John Porter (11-6), along with juniors Scott Delane (10-6), Eric Davey and Bill DeWulf.

Junior Jason Crosby is back in the long jump (20-11/2), while Shawn Arbogast, a senior, joins Jim Tudgay, a coach John Gores said. junior, in the shot put and discus.

Arbogast measured a season-best 150-2 in the discus to win the WLAA crown. He also went 47-3 in the shot put and was over 50 feet indoors this Juniors Shamar Lott (52.9 in 400) and Todd Peterson (15.8 in the 110 hurdles) are two other proven performers.

Seniors Herb Thomas and Mark Fixler will compete in the sprints along with juniors Phil Allen and Brent Washington.

A versatile performer from the football and basketball programs, Washington could also figure in the long jump and hurdles.

Sophomore Torrance Walker and freshman Charles Bailey also show promise in the sprints.

Junior Henry Honeycutt is the top returning distance runner, while freshman Joe Wojtowicz could also find a spot in the lineup.

Livonia Stevenson

Matt Syverson, a 6-3 senior, is threat to break the school high junrecord of 6-7 held by former University ty of Michigan quarterback Dave Syverson cleared 6-4 a year ago and has done 6-8 during an indoor meet this winter.

He will pass up the long jump (20-1) this season in favor of sprints.

The Spartans will miss Son Mack enzie, who graduated after going 14.8 in the 110 hurdles, 39.4 in the 300 hurdles and 23.1 in the 200 dash. Pole vaulter Cliff Mickelson (11-10) also departed.

Tartars land dynamic duo

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Wayne State University's newest basketball recruiting class will certainly feel right at home.

The Tartars recently received verbal commitments from a pair of Observerland cage standouts: Tony Goins, a 6-foot-5 forward from Westland John Glenn, and Matt Paupore, a 6-3 guard from Plymouth Canton.

Both are expected to sign next week. The NCAA National Letter-of-Intent signing period begins again Wednesday, April 13.

Wayne State — which posted a school-record 24 wins en route to the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference regular-season and playoff championships loses four key players to graduation, including GLIAC Player of the Year Michael Aaron.

The Tartars have made three consecutive trips to the NCAA Division II post-season tourna-

Goins, who led Glenn to a 20-5 record and its first state Class A quarterfinal berth in school history, could wind up to be the steal of the year for WSU coach Ron Hammye.

The Glenn forward, who plans to major in business, is one of the state's most underrated players.

"Wayne State gave me an offer and showed the most interest," said Goins, who averaged 21 points and nine rebounds per game for the Rockets. "It's close to home and I'll be able to get a good education. Plus, I think it's a level of basketball where I can play. I just wanted to play basketball and I'd like to be a part of that program.'

Goins and Paupore are no strangers.

The two have been summer teammates in AAU basketball.

'We had a great time and we're real good friends," said Paupore, who averaged 22 points, seven rebounds and three assists per game for the 15-7 Chiefs.

Paupore set a single-season school record for total points (484) as the Chiefs captured the Western Lakes Activities Association playoff crown.

The Canton sharpshooter committed to WSU last week after mulling over an offer from Northern Michigan University.

"I just really like the Wayne State basketball program, and I think they really have something going," said Paupore, who also plays on the Canton baseball team. "The coach (Ron Hammye) thinks I'll be a point guard eventually. I'm a shooting guard, but he thinks I can play the point and that's fine with me. My brother (Brian) played at Hillsdale and I feel confident at that level."

Goins and Paupore will join another former Observerland standout, 6-7 junior center Randy Calcaterra (Livonia Churchill), a part-time starter and key reserve last season with the Tartars.

Lady Crusaders sweep Lakers

The Madonna University softball team continued its strong start to the 1994 season with Sunday's 9-4, 20-0 sweep over Lake Superior State University.

The doubleheader was played at Ford Field because of unplayable conditions at Massey Field in Plymouth.

The Crusaders, who were 8-4 on their spring trip to Florida, improved to 10-4 overall under firstyear coach Jerry Abraham.

"We had a great spring trip, played well and that set the tone for the season," Abraham said. "The kids have really responded and are playing better each game. I'm very happy at this point.'

In Sunday's opener, senior Ronnie Ronco had two hits, including a home run, and an RBI. Sophomore Jennifer Pinter had two hits, scored two runs and had an RBI and senior Jill Burt contributed two hits, scored a run and drove in a run.

Senior Mandy Armstrong had one hit and scored twice. Sophomore Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) had a hit and run scored and junior Maureen Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy) had one hit and an RBI.

Senior Dawn Terrasi improved to 7-4 with the pitching victory. She allowed 10 hits and four runs with one strikeout and one walk.

Mazur launches Madonna men's soccer

By CHRIS McCosky

Starting a college soccer program from scratch is hard enough, but throw in a potential language and cultural barrier between the coach and players and you begin to understand the immensity of the challenge facing Robert Mazur and the fledgling Madonna University men's soccer program.

"It is very difficult, especially since I am not fluent in speaking English," said Mazur, 35, who came to America from his native Poland three years ago equipped with three languages: Polish, German and French. "It's not been easy to organize everything, but I think I can do it and do a good job."

Madonna decided to add men's soccer to its athletic repertoire in January and hired Mazur, a former professional soccer player in Europe who continues to coach the boys and girls programs at Milford High School.

The Madonna team will begin practicing the last week of May and will play its inaugural season next September. The team will use Ladywood's field. Mazur has been scrambling to fill out a schedule, a task made difficult by the fact that Madonna will enter NAIA competition as an independent, unaffiliated with any league or district.

"It has been hard to find teams with open dates," Mazur said. "So far, we have only eight games.'

The problem of finding players, happily, has been less difficult.

"I have sent letters to many, many high schools," Mazur said. "So far, I have gotten answers from 40 players. A lot of kids want to play at Madonna."

There have also been open tryout invitations posted throughout the campus, But Mazur won't have a clue as to the level of talent, or even the names, of the players he'll be starting with until

"We will have to work very hard to be on the same level as most college teams," he said. "We will be mostly freshmen and it is a very hard adjustment from high school to college. But that doesn't mean we have to lose all our games. We just have to work hard."

Mazur said that Madonna University, located in the middle of one the best high school soccer regions in the Midwest, shouldn't have trouble attracting talented players once the program is established.

There are a lot of great players in this area," he said. "I am, what do you say, optimistic."

"When I went down after the game to find out if he had the academic abilities. I held my breath," Moore recalled. "Then he recited his SAT and I about fell down."

Baaki graduated from Redford Catholic Central in 1993 with a 3.7 grade point average and he scored 1,280 on his SAT, which is about 80 points higher than the average Colgate student. On hearing that, Moore offered Baaki a chance to play hockey for the academically challenging school - and Baaki accepted.

consin, 7-3. Baaki, a left wing, scored 12 goals with 10 assists in 27 games for the Capitols, a Madison-based team that finished last in the USHL. He also wasn't afraid of protecting his teammates, collecting more than 100 minutes in penalties.

Baaki started the 1993-94 season with Sioux City, Iowa., before being traded to Wisconsin for another forward. Baaki earned a job on the first line with Wisconsin.

Baaki said his year away from home was worthwhile, even that eight-hour bus trip that became unbearable after the heater broke and the temperature dipped to minus-15 degrees.

"I accomplished what I came to do," said Baaki, who stayed with a family in Madison and made money working for a car dealership. "I always wanted to go to an ECAC school there's more balance between sports and academics. I am real impressed with Colgate. They're more oriented to the fast game. I've got skills they'll be able to develop.'

Baaki, 6-foot and 190 pounds, played his first three years of high school for CC before playing as a senior for the Michigan Nationals, a junior team in Dearborn.

"I learned the defensive game last year from (Michigan Nationals coach) A.J. Baker,' Baaki said. "He taught me a lot of different defensive systems. I take care of my own end now and am not scared of going into the corners.'

Scott Creehan, a senior, is back in the 800, 1,600 (4:32.1) and 3,200 runs. Sophomore Steve Warner adds depth in the distance events.

"We're hoping for second place in our division because John Glenn and Farmington will be tough," said Gores, who has 60 participants. "We need to put four guys together in the 3,200 relay. Our 1,600 relay will be improved. It helped that our kids ran indoors."

Coach Fred Price will build his 50-man team around four performers who cracked the area top 10 individual rankings a year ago.

Greg Koehler, a first-team All-Observer pole vaulter, has already matched last year's season best of 12 feet indoors at the Huron Relays (seventh place).

Junior Dave Elenich is also back after throwing 49-9 in the shot put and 149-3 in the discus. Right behind is senior Aaron Dusso, who posted marks of 48-9 and 144-9, respectively.

Jedd Thorderson, another senior, will compete in the 110 hurdles (15.8), 300 hurdles and high jump. Meanwhile, senior Rich Cramb will contribute in the 400 run (52.4) and 800.

"I feel we have come exceptional people in the shot put and discus," Price said. "We have a good person in every event, but our numbers are down and that's because we're in the age of specialization. We don't have the depth we'd like to have. We have depth in the sprints, but major holes in the distance events."

Four competitors who made last year's rankings graduated including Dave Watson (10-0 in pole vault), Darrell Wiacek (6-0 in high jump), Chris Pelczar (141-3% in discus) and Derek Badrak (23.4 in 200).

Trying to pick up the slack is senior hurdler and relay performer Brian Cavasin, a tri-captain along with Koehler and Cramb. Eric Kelly, another senior, is counted on in the long jump, high jump and sprints.

Price will also rely on a junior class which includes distance runners Steve DeLuca and Brian Galindo; and sprinter Matt Slowik.

Among the sophomores expected to contribute: Corey Cramb (400). Rob Lereto (shot put/ discus), Jason Hardin (hurdles), Kevin Graham (sprints) and Jay VanWagner (high jump).

Freshman help will come from Dave Murphy (sprints), Rick Frizzell (sprints/pole vault) and Mike Brent (sprints).

Seniors Andrew Keebaugh and Paul O'Connell return in the shot nut and discus. Keebaugh finished fourth in the WLAA discus a year ago.

Other field event returnees include sophomore Bryan Marshall (shot put/discus), junior Dave Koscegi (pole vault) and senior Chris McMinn (long jump).

Seniors Ron Troia, Shane Wyatt and McMinn return in the sprints.

Returning hurdlers include senior Jason Buelow, along with juniors Steve Hickey and Todd Patzer.

Seniors Mark Derrick and Mark Kracht will fill the middledistance void, along with sophomore Frank Ringvelski and junior Dave Erickson.

Coach Bob Holmes will rely on four promising newcomers: sophomore Dave McMullen (high jump/hurdles), along with freshman distance runners Tom Hall, Tom Taylor and Jason Wolfe.

"We have a number of holes to fill." Holmes said. "I'm sure we'll be competitive, but in our division (WLAA-Western), we have a

The defending Metro Conference champs could repeat if things fall into place for coach Mike Unger.

"We have depth in every event and that carried us through last year," Unger said.

Junior Jon Smolka is a topnotch hurdler, going 15.7 in the 110 highs and 42.3 in the 300

The Warriors also have two solid seniors in high jumper Troy Smith (6 feet) and pole vaulter Kjel Skov (12 feet).

Senior Jeff Lichtner returns in the hurdles and sprint relays.

Sophomore distance runner Brad Polkinghorne, who has gone 4:45.0 in the 1,600 (indoors), is ready to break through. He was a first-team All-Observer pick last fall in cross country.

Other returnees include sophomore Ryan Crawford (sprints), senior Luke Schrader (400/sprint relays), senior Doug Drogroub (shot put/discus) and junior Dan Danielczyk (shot put).

Redford Catholic Central

The Shamrocks lost one of their most impressive senior classes ever to graduation, so approaching last season's success in boys track would be wishful thinking. The Shamrocks won their third Catholic League championship in the last four years, won the Observerland Relays, and had their best-ever finish in the Class A state meet, taking fourth place. But graduating All-Area runners like Eric McKeon, Mike Mittman and Marc Eden, and thrower Joe Suhajda, will take its toll.

"That's 50 points a dual meet," CC coach Tony Magni said. "McKeon would win the 100, 200

Magni said he still has great numbers, with more than 100 runners out for the program, but only five who should consistently score.

The five include senior sprinter/long jumper Freddie Taylor, shot and discus throwers Nick Kallas and Doug Brzezinski and distance runners Joe Leo and Mark Leo.

Taylor ran the 55 meters in 6.4 seconds and also long jumped 21-6 to take second place in the indoors championship. Kallas was first in the indoors championship with a shot of 56-2.

Kallas and Brzezinski are seniors and should contend for state championships, according to Magni. Joe Leo is a sophomore and Mark Leo a senior. Magni said both have chances of advancing out of the regional.

Other contributors figure to be senior high jumper Dave Viola and senior Brian Smith, who runs the 3,200 and 1,600 races.

"University of Detroit-Jesuit will be very good after taking second in Class B last year," Magni said. "Brother Rice is much improved and Divine Child is always very good. Our goal is the top 10 and 400 meters. Joe is going to (in Class A) this year. We can do win the shot and discus, Eden the rit because we have the shot high hurdles, plus all of them ran .. putters and (the) Leos, who will score for sure."

coach John Reed said. "They're going to push each other, and one will probably surface to be real good.

The top hurdlers are junior Jason Ryman, who was seventh in the conference in the 300 intermediates, senior Tom Sokol and sophomore Matt Haas.

One of the top athletes is junior Gil Chavez, the WLAA champion in the long jump and one of many good sprinters. In the former, he was fourth in Oakland County, qualified for state and had a best of 22-10.

"He plans on going back to the state meet," Reed said. "We're looking for some big things out of him, and I think he's going to improve even more."

The Hawks also return junior Scott Gurke, who had knee surgery after being injured last summer in football. He's still recovering but plans to compete in the throwing events and sprints.

"He's only able to work out at 85 percent of maximum." Reed said. "He's making progress, but we're being real cautious.

"The doctor actually recommended he do track to continue with his rehabilitation. You have to use it to strengthen it."

Gurke was the WLAA champ inthe 100 dash (11.2), and the Hawks had three of the top five. Sophomore Jason Granger was fourth (11.4) and junior Ehsan Allos fifth (11.5).

The Hawks also have juniors Kevin Bryant, who didn't run last year because of an ankle injury, and Nick Williams - both standouts from the football team. Sophomore Jeff Aschoff and freshman Patrick Pattah could be factors, also.

"Other than Marc Ferguson, everybody is back," Reed said. "We have eight good sprinters, and the trick is to find good positions to put each one. The sprints willprobably be one of our strengths."

The same can be said of the sprint relays. Chavez and Allos were on the 400 and 800 teams that went to state, with Gurke taking part in the former and Granger the latter.

"We're going to mix them up and move them around until we see who does what and who's most comfortable where," Reed said. "We're pretty solid, but the trick is how to use the kids most appropriately and get the most out of them.

The Hawks have plenty of runners with cross country experience: juniors Justin and Chad Koonce, seniors Matt Lambert and Doug Bacon (the top returning miler), Sokol, sophomore Scott Campbell and freshman Ryan Maloney.

The Hawks should be OK in the distance relays, but they don't have a standout anchorman like Dreyer as yet, according to Reed. "But I wouldn't be surprised if one of the Koonce brothers really improves dramatically this season," he said.

Harrison will rely on brothers Kevin (junior) and Ken (freshman) Finley in the high jump.

Harrison always has good throwers, and that should be the case again with senior Brock Gove, who was eighth in the discus (WLAA), and a healthy Gurke, who was fifth in the shot put (WLAA). The Hawks also have junior Steve Shaieb and freshman Nick Shaieb.

ALL-AREA VOLLEYBALL

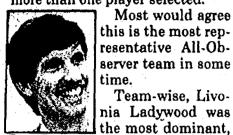

Observer squad well-represented

By Steve Kowalski Stapp Writer

Talk about parity.

It was alive and well when it came time to select the members of the 1994 All-Observer girls vollevball team.

Of the 12 players on this year's first team, 11 schools are represented. Only Redford Union had more than one player selected.

Most would agree this is the most representative All-Observer team in some Team-wise, Livothe most dominant, Tom Teeters reaching the Class Ladywood A quarterfinal before losing to Bay City Western. After Ladywood, any one of several teams could have made the claim of being second best in Observerland.

FIRST TEAM

Jaclyn Deane, Junior, Livonia Frank-Iln: Deane averaged 3.35 kills per game, recording 325 in 831 attempts (23 percent). She also converted 84 percent of her serves with 64 aces.

Defensively, Deane had 63 solo blocks and 77 block assists for an average of 1.44 per game. She averaged 3.62 digs per game with a total of 351.

The junior was an all-tournament selection at the University of Michigan-Dearbom and Madonna University Invitationals. She was first-team all-region and All-Western Lakes and also earned the team's Best Offensive Player Award. "Jaclyn is the most physically dominating athlete Franklin has had in years, coach Anne Hutchinson said, "She's very aggressive with terrific power, has a varled attack and hits both comers well with a strong, penetrating block. Her love for the game is infectious to her teammates. She's very hard waorking and a very" coachable athlete.

Amanda Ault, senior, Farmington Hills Harrison: Ault, who has signed with Central Michigan University, was a fourvarsity player. She had 1,480 sets and 429 assists this season, both of which were single-season records at Harnson.

Ault completed 89 percent of her serves with 67 aces and had 307 kills in 831 attempts (37 percent). The two-year captain led the Hawks to a division championship the last two years.

"Amanda is the most dedicated and skilled volleyball player to play for Hamson," coach Ron Shortt said. "She is a great leader on and off the floor. Her abilities will be greatly missed at Harrison; however, I am looking forward to watching her college career develop at Central Yvette Sixbey, senior, Garden City: Sixbey led the Cougars to a Class A district championship with her devastating play at the net. The 6-foot-2 senior had 56 kills, with only seven errors, 10 solo blocks and six service aces in the district.

Sixbey, who is bound for Oklahoma University, averaged 3.94 kills per game, with 368 in 801 attempts for the season.

She also had 64 solo blocks. "Yvette is an outstanding middle blocker who has matured into a beautiful young lady," coach Nikki Stubbs said. 'She'il be missed dearly on and off the court by both friends and staff. She's not only an exceptional athlete, but has developed into a great friend."

Jean Herron, junior, Redford Thurston: Herron, a 6-2 junior hitter, averaged 4.5 kills per game with 405 for the season. She served at 92 percent with 90 aces and averaged 2.7 blocks per game.

The captain and team most valuable player has led the Eagles to two straight district titles. She was an all-region first team selection this year. "Intensity and a great all-around player. describes Jean Herron," coach Bob Burns said. "She's an outstanding student, academically (3.6 GPA) and in the game of volleyball. She shares her knowledge with her team and posseses a special winning spirit. She was this year's team leader and could be the area's best middle hitter next year.' Lynn Little, senior, Westland John Glenn: Little, who will play next year at Henry Ford Community College, led the Rockets with 301 kills in 761 attempts, 97 aces and 101 blocks. A team captain the last two years, the 6-foot Little made the all-tournament team while leading the Rockets to the Walled Lake Central Invitational title and carries a 3.6 GPA. "Lynn plays a great defensive game with excellent back-row passing," Glenn coach Greg Bollard said. "She is a key player to the team with her leadership and cool, even temper on the floor. Lynn can change her game in a single instant to help her team."

Christiane Grant, senior, Farmington Hills Mercy: The All-Catholic first-team player had 311 kills in 783 attacks (40 percent). She served 88 percent with 42 aces and finished with 89 stuffed blocks and made All-Oakland County. The Marlins won a Class A district behind the play of Grant. "Christiane is an outstanding front-row player and has worked very hard this season to become an all-around player," coach Peggy Spengler said. "Her hitting power is phenomenal and often unstoppable. She is a dedicated athlete who really enjoys her game."

Fish, for obvious reasons, must also lay their eggs in water.

Reptiles, on the other hand. have a pliable covering over their embryo so they are not restricted to water for egg laying. Turtles will search for sandy or soft soil areas in which to dig a hole. Embryos inside the eggs laid in the hole will develop due to the heat of the soil.

Birds' eggs are the most widely recognized of all the eggs. Their hard shell, made mostly of calcium, allows birds to lay them in many different environmental conditions. They cannot lay them in water, however. Though the the same water after boiling, you shell is hard, it has to breathe. If might get warts. it were submerged in water, the embryo would drown.

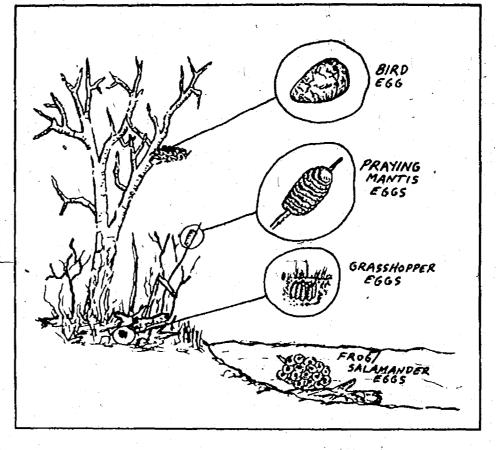

here's a trick you can try on some people. In preparation, fill two glasses about three-quarters full of water. Dissolve salt in one of the glasses so it is not noticeable. Then take an ordinary egg and place it gently in the plain water glass. The egg sinks. Remove the egg and say some magic words, like "Eggra cadabra," then place it in the glass with salt water. See if they can guess why the same egg now floats.

Boiling eggs in water changes the protein inside so it is no linger liquid. Birds nesting in hot desert areas sit on their eggs to keep them cool, not warm. However, if you boil eggs in water, remember the superstition that says if you wash your hands in

Musical gleefully skewers pop culture

MICHALS

Bursting with boundless energy and endless inventiveness, "The NOT Mikado" at the Birmingham Theatre is a wonderful rock musical gleefuly that skewers today's pop culture.

This free-wheeling update of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" is colorful, fastpaced, and enormously witty. One has to see it at least a second time to catch the plethora of puns, malapropisms, and one-liners that fly fast and furious. Lest anyone mistake this for serious stuff, the show is subtitled "A Hip-Hopperetta."

How hip is it? There are references to the Whitewater controversy, and a capsule summary of the latest episode of "Beverly Hills, 90210." There are also swipes at Nancy Kerrigan and Tonya Harding, the Bobbitts, the Menendez Brothers, Dr. Kevorkian, Waco, Madonna, "Wayne's World," and Barney. The intention is to continually update some lines as needed.

Conceived and directed by Worth Gardner and adapted by Gardner and musical director Scot Woolley, "The NOT Mikado" satirizes contemporary music and culture just as the original operetta poked fun at the pretension and rigidity of Victorian England and the absurd conventions of grand opera.

While the new orchestrations of the familiar Gilbert and Sullivan songs are essentially rock, they included rap, punk, country-western. heavy metal, and reggae. Some of the numbers stick fairly close to the original lyrics, while others are barely recognizable.

The nine-member cast displays enormous talent, both individually and as an ensemble. Nearly all have worked with Gardner before, at the Birmingham Theatre and elsewhere.

In black leather and roller blades, David Gunderman is a likable Nanki-Poo, a "rolling minstrel." Courtenay Collins as Yum-Yum, Rebecca Hirsch as Pitti-Sing, and Wendy Perelman Peep-Bo are the delightfully three little maids from school sporting punk hairdos and Spandex garb. With his flaming orange punk hair, Billy Miller offers energetic support as Pish-Tush.

Talented cast: Wendy Perelman (Peep-Bo), Billy Miller (Pish Tush), Courtenay Collins (Yum-Yum), David Gunderman (Ninki-Poo), and Rebecca Hirsch (Pitti-Sing) star in "The NOT Mikado."

REVIEW

As Ko-Ko, the unwilling Lord High Executioner, Kurt Johns is outstanding as he endearingly cavorts in high-top platform sneakers. He delivers an endless stream of hilarious mispronunciations and malapropisms, the equivalent of Rocky Balboa attempting Shake-

Howard Kaye as the arrogant Pooh-Bah, the Lord High Everything Else including Decorator of the Interior, and Bob Arnold as the formidably ugly Katisha are both splendidly campy. As the Mikardo, the Big Mik, David Earl Hart is imposing in platform clogs that look about a foot high and a dazzling robe covered in irridescent compact Broadway musicals this year have been just an endless dreary string of revivals. Hopefully, someone will snatch up this fresh and innovative show, and earmark it for New York Meanwhile, Gardner has already been enlisted by the Birmingham Theatre to apply his creative genius to next year's season.

"The NOT Mikado" is the sixth Worth Gardner show at the Birmingham in their past three seasons. It's been said before, and it's

Grown kids won't leave parents alone in comedy

VICTORIA

It's been a long winter. Get on over to the Village Players Theatre in Birmingham, sit back, relax, and welcome spring with a few laughs. You'll feel much better after taking in a performance of the contemporary comedy, "Alone To-gether," especially if you have kids, and sometimes believe that their main calling in life is to make you crazy.

The play, directed by Maureen Cook, goes something like this: Middle-aged, middle-class Californians George and Helene Butler have been married over 30 years. They've spent much of that time raising three sons, the first of which made his appearance about nine months after their wedding day.

As "Alone Together" opens, their youngest son, Keith, is finally out the door and off to college. Now, Mom and Dad (though they admittedly have mixed feelings about his departure) can look forward to taking that trip they've always dreamed of, have that wine-and-candlelight dinner they've been waiting for all these years, or make out in front of the fireplace if they feel like it.

Yeah, sure they can.

Just as they're about to get down to some serious romance, their oldest son, Michael, shows up with some big problems. Among these problems is the unbearable (to him) winter weather in Massachusetts, where he's just quit his teaching job at MIT. ("We didn't raise a son. We raised a citrus fruit," laments his mother.)

Hot on his heels, younger brother, Elliott, returns, too. Seems he's been rejected by his wife in Texas for a persistently wandering eye, and has come home to hang his ten-gallon hat. Recidivism reigns and, before it's over, the Butlers not only have grown sons returning home like boomerangs (the youngest comes back, too - he has a toothache), they also acquire a "daughter" who's seeking shelter.

As Helene, Susie Gardiner gets off to a rather lackluster start, delivering her lines as if she were slightly tired or maybe even a little bored. As things move on, however, she manages to get into the zany spirit of the play, and to imbue her role with a nice mix of gladness, sadness, razor's-edge madness. She has wonderfully expressive eyes, and some of her best moments come when she says nothing, but simply reacts wordlessly to the confusion around her.

As the long-suffering father,

George, Terry Freier pretty much follows her lead. He, too, seems to have trouble getting started right. But once she's on her way, he manages to keep up well, although one keeps wishing he'd appear just a bit more energetic in his fatherly exasperation.

Ron Hall (Michael), Y. Jamie Mistry (Elliott), and Ryan Martin (Keith) turn in nice performances as the three grown sons who believe there's no place like the house they grew up in.

If mosquitoes could talk, they would sound like Susan Potok's Janie Johnson. In a comparatively brief role, Potok definitely makes her mark as the Butler's scantily-clad "star boarder."

With the exception of a few regrettable sound effects, the Village Players of Birmingham appear to have given close attention to peripherals. The attractive "California Contemporary" set adds liveliness to the production.

HFCC presents 'A Symphony Celebration'

The Henry Ford Community College Performing Arts Department will present "A Symphony Celebration," featuring the college's 80-member Metropolitan Symphony Band, 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 5, in the Adray Auditorium of the MacKenzie Fine Arts Center on campus, 5101 Evergreen. Dearborn. There is no admission charge.

The symphony band, under the direction of Rick Goward, HFCC's director of bands, will perform with special guest James Otto, director of instrumental music at Edsel Ford High School.

A professional French horn

Ford High School Orchestra and the Symphonic, Concert, Jazz and Marching bands. He currently performs with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and the Cromwell Opera House in Adrian.

The Metropolitan Symphony Band will perform "Monmart March" and Mozart's "French Horn Concerto," as well as a pre-mier work by HFCC music program alumnus Scott Guthre and many other favorite wind band selections.

The Metropolitan Symphony Band, now in its 11th year, is the largest community college symphony band in Michigan. Mem-player, Otto conducts the Edsel bers of the symphony band include outstanding high school students, HFCC music majors, HFCC students who are music hobbyists and students from other colleges that do not have music performance groups.

Members of the symphony band from western Wayne County include Melissa Radiwon, Andria Reynolds, Michael Stahl, Deborah Bellovary and Bill Tanissen from Garden City and Keren-Wriska of Livonia.

Animated 'Thumbelina' retells classic fairy-tale newest animated feature, "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina," is now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Warner bros.

A full-length animated retelling of the classic fairy-tale about a little girl -"no bigger than a thumb," "Hans Christian Ander-sen's Thumbelina" follows the many adventures experienced by the tiny heroine as she struggles in the big, wide world to find companions her own size.

The voice talents in the film represent some of the best-known personalities in entertainment, and the songs are the creation of pop superstar Barry Manilow, with lyricists Bruce Sussman and Jack Feldman. A romantic adventure mixed with comedy, song and beautifully created scenes out of every child's fondest imagination. "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina" is sure to bring magical excitement to children of Thumbelina (Jodi Benson) is a tiny girl, born from the center of a flower to a lonely, full-sized woman (Barbara Cooke) who had always wanted a daughter. She goes to see a good witch, who gives her a magical barleycorn. She waters it, it grows and flowers, and when it opens it reveals a tiny girl. Thumbelina, though she loves her mother dearly, longs to meet someone her own size to share her life with.

One night, as Thumbelina is singing to herself of her dreams, Prince Cornelius (Gary Imhoff), and enchanted fairy as tiny as herself, hears her sweet voice and is drawn to it. They meet and are immediately drawn to one another. He promises to return to spend more time with her in the morning, and Thumbelina falls asleep happily imagining her future.

To her astonishment, however, Thumbelina awakens the next day in the middle of a pond. It seems that the glamorous and flamboyant Mrs. Delores Toad (Charo) has also heard Thumbelina's voice and has abducted her. Mrs. Toad demands that Thumbeling join her and her three sons in the family's world famous music group.

At first she is tempted, but when she is approached with an offer of marriage from one of Mrs. Toad's sons, she is horrified and refuses. Luckily, Jacquimo (Gino Conforti), a passing swallow, hears Thumbelina's cries for help and comes to her aid. He helps Thumbelina escape, urging her to follow her heart and search for her prince.

The film is produced and directed by Don Bluth, producer and director of "An American Tail," and "All Dogs Go To Heaven," and Gary Goldman.

"Thumbelina worries about being able to take care of herself, and she learns that she can be strong if she learns to follow her heart," said Bluth. "In some way, this is the lesson all children learn about growing up, accepting challenges and listening to their

Animated fantasy: Thumbeling and Prince Cornelius find true happiness together at last, bidding farewell after their wedding in Warner Bros.' animated "Hans Christian Andersen's Thumbelina."

'Major League II' reunites team

"Major League II," sequel to Morgan Creek Productions' 1989 comedy hit, is now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters.

The film reunites nearly all of the characters who made "Major League" a runaway success, while adding several new characters to the Cleveland Indians' lineup.

Filmed on location in Baltimore, Md., "Major League II" takes another look at the Indians after they miraculously wrest a national championship from the jaws of their miserable early sea-

Catcher Jake Taylor's knees are worse than ever. Willie Mays Hayes went to Hollywood in the off-season and became a movie star. Pedro Cerrano is no longer the angry young man he used to be. He went from voodooism to Buddhism.

Just one season after shocking the entire baseball world with a miracle finish and their successful drive to the American League Eastern Division championship, the Cleveland Indians slide back into their old ways, stumbling and bumbling toward yet another last place finish in "Major League Baseball talk: Catcher Jake Taylor (Tom Berenger) discusses with Pitcher Rick "Wild Thing" Vaughn (Charlie Sheen) his unusual style of pitching in "Major League II.''

Charlie Sheen, Tom Berenger, Corbin Bernsen, Omar Epps and Dennis Haysbert head a cast that also includes Eric Bruskotter. David Keith, James Gammon, Alison Doody, and Japanese comedy sensation Takaashi Ishibashi.

The rags-to-riches story and wacky characters created by writer and director David S. Ward struck a chord with audiences that continues as the film has gone into the ancillary cycle of video, pay-TV and free TV release.

PREVIEW

This kind of success would ordinarily guarantee an immediate rush to produce a sequel. But fans of the original had to endure a five year "off season." Why the long wait?

"Basically, I wasn't sure I wanted to do it again, for a lot of reasons," Ward said. "It took a while to come up with a story that I thought would be a worthy successor to the first one. It had to be fresh enough to be different, while still giving audiences the characters they'd gotten to know and love. That desire not to give our audience the same thing over and over again, to find the right mix of the old and new, was one of the major factors in the long wait."

While entertainers were hired to keep the thousands of extras hired as fans in the stands during long filming stretches, it seemed the only incentive most of the extras needed was the chance to see stars, especially Charlie Sheen.

"The night we shot the scene with Charlie coming out of the bulluen to the sounds of 'Wild Thing' was incredible," Ward said. "We had 200,000 people singing, chanting and stomping. It was electrifying.'

Despite being slighted by critics during its original Broadway opening, "Night Music" endures because of its haunting style, grace and humor. Director Karen Sheridan uses an intelligent eye which suits the show's poise and wit, and musical director Suzanne Acton pulls the best out of a talented cast and orchestra.

At the hub of "A Little Night Music," and perhaps the most successful aspect of the show, is a talented quintet including Aaron Talley, Kimberly Windeler, Debbie Goody, Nicholas Bean and Lisa Agazzi. Fredrik is not the only man in love with Desiree. Count Carl-Magnus Malcolm is an overbearing dragoon, played with marvelously manipulative facial expressions by Philip Cowlishaw.

Countess Charlotte Malcolm is not amused by the liaison, and Angel Maclean's interpretation of a powerful woman scorned is none other than sublime.

Certainly no bedroom comedy musical would be complete without the promiscuous maid to complicate matters and provide sport for the audience. Denise Greenman is terrific as Petra. "The Miller's Son" accentuates the skill of Greenman's full voice.

FAMILY LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Surviving 'un' of employment

ow proud those individuals must have felt to be recognized and commended by President Clinton, during G7 summit, for having successfully "U-turned" unemployment into viable careers. There are many more folks in Michigan and right here in Wayne County like the people the President acknowledged on March 14 at the Fox Theatre. It might be a friend, a parent, a spouse, a relative, or even you . . . People who triumphantly turned a devastating situation into a winning one.

The unemployment rate in February was 7.9 percent. In comparing that with higher rates in 1991, job growth in Michigan has increased. Ron McGraw, economic analysis at the Michigan Employment Security Commission, said there has been a significant growth in jobs since the automobile industry has regained recognizable economic stability and a marked increase in consumer purchases.

Also indicated in MESC data is an increased number of jobs in retail, trade and service. The future for more job availability and a wider spectrum of jobs offered to young people entering the work force - and senior citizens, veterans in the job arena - looks hopeful. And there's a spotlight, too, on retraining misplaced workers, opening up opportunities for them to move into new jobs and start new careers.

However, those individuals who have not yet made the often stressful transition from unemployment to becoming gainfully employed, ask, "What about me? Why me? I'm a productive person, capable of doing good work. I've got good employability skills, but can't find a good job." Whether unemployment is due to being laid off, termination, or voluntary resignation, the emotional and economic effects can be the same.

Work is undoubtedly an important part of our identity. Many people can identify self-esteem and self-worth with their job and being part of the work force. When unemployment "plucks" a person away from what they have identified as having more than monetary value, it has a way of disconnecting people from people and places they're used to, and deactivating skills that were once used regularly. It's especially true if unemployment is long-term.

Social interaction skills, or people skills, too, can become affected and cause feelings of rejection, isolation and depression. Anxiety and stress associated with the worry over bills, reduction in income, or the lack thereof can be a tremendous burden.

Added stress

Keeping a spouse, children or other family members from feeling the pressure often becomes another stress factor and usually is one that's unavoidable. Unemployment affects the whole family, a shared problem that warrants shared support of, and for, each member. When families experience unemployment hardships, it is conceivable that each member be "in synch" with each other's feelings, needs and concerns. While planning for the family and adapting to what can be a rough ride, before that "U-turn" can be made, family members can find strength in each other.

What can you do while waiting to go back to work? As you know, the job market is highly competitive. Face it: There's no such thing as unskilled labor in a fast-paced computer world. The job market today . . . tomorrow . . . requires specific technical skills and specialized training. More and more jobs dictate undergraduate/graduate degrees or courses. From minimum-wage jobs to top-paying positions, an exemption from learning high-tech computer skills is almost obsolete. People in the work force must be flexible and open to change. It's a fact that change is inevitable; growth is op-

So the very best medicine that can be recommended while waiting to be called back to work, or finding a job, is to continue to grow, polish up on existing skills and/or learn new ones. Keep your options open! A U-turn can be directed toward employment areas and opportunities you may not have ordinarily imagined.

Entrepreneurship might be the answer. There are so many resources available to people surviving unemployment, one being a host of career and training centers in your community with a wide range of vocational, adult-education programs. You can get the help you need to be more marketable. Community colleges offer courses where credits can be applied toward a degree or certification of your choice. Unemployment can be a blessing in disguise, depending on how you look at it and make itwork for you; whereas keeping a steady, comfortable and what can be perceived to be a secure job, just might not be so secure. It's important

Even the family dog is adjusting to Guy and Renee Giocondini's lifestyle, that of being the parents of adopted daughter Anne Renee.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

From Russia with love

It was a long wait - a year filled with paperwork and frustration. But it paid off wonderfully for Guy and Renee Giocondini, who are adjusting to life as parents after adopting their Russian-born daughter, Anne Renee.

By Sue Mason STAFF WRITER

Renee Giocondini listens carefully to what her daughter Anne Renee says. She thinks for a moment, then gives a response. Anne Renee giggles and dashes off down the hallway of her parents' Plymouth Township

Children talking to parents . . . It's a fact of life repeated day in and day out in homes across the country. It's just a bit different for the Giocondinis, who must try to figure out what their Russian-speaking ___ In their late 30s, the Giocondinis daughter is saying. she speaks," said Renee as she watched Anne Renee head for her bedroom and another toy. "And she learns very quickly. It's so remarkable to me, the things she has learned . . . She can already put together a 12-piece puzzle."

At 31/2, Anne Renee - she prefers to be called Anne Soosha because her nickname was Soosha - is adjusting quite nicely to a new way of life. Granted, she has made a few mistakes with her potty training and four or five temper tantrums, but moving to America after spending most of her life in an orphanage in St. Petersburg, Russia, calls for some big-time adjusting.

"I'm surprised by the wonderful bonding process between Renee and Anne Soosha," said Guy, "She follows Renee everywhere. I think she likes her Daddy, but not like she likes her Mommy.'

For the Giocondinis, the adoption was official on Jan. 19, culminating a year filled with plenty of paperwork and frustration. It also calmed their fears about the stability of the Russian government and a change of position on adoption before they could claim Anne Renee as theirs.

___ had tried to have children of their "She understands a lot more than own, but eventually admitted adoption was their only option. Citing the difficulty of adopting in the U.S. and and even moreso in Michigan, the Giocondinis signed on with Cradle of Hope, a Washington, D.C., agency specializing in European adoptions.

Costly endeavor

The adoption was a very costly endeavor: "It's a huge amount of money," Guy said. Then, the couple had to provide two originals and two copies of almost every document. Most, like the marriage license and birth certificates, had to be notarized and authenticated.

They also needed a child-protec-

There also was a home study and in the case of the U.S. Immigration Service, copies of all their bank accounts to prove they could afford the child. "It was kind of discouraging along the way," Guy said. "There were a lot of questions, a lot of phone calls, and a lot of frustration, especially when you get something back from the state, and it's wrong. We got someone else's marriage license through the mail. We found it's best to do everything in person, if you want something done right." The Giocondinis didn't get to see photographs of children available for adoption until after the paperwork was done. Based on what they wanted and what they would accept, they were sent photographs and some medical information, "just enough to pique your interest." Anne Renee was the the second one they re-

According to the Giocondinis, Russians "really love their children" and "don't like to give them up" for adoption, but do so for the youngsters' benefit. But the Russian government prohibits the adoption of a healthy child, so those who are adopted have medical problems; some serious, some not so serious. Anne Renee is cross-eyed, a minor problem in the U.S., but a different

"The hardest thing (about the Guy said. "When you're in the process of an adoption you know there has to be something wrong with the child, so you don't want to set your heart on one specific one. You have to be real honest about what you will accept."

When in Russia . . .

The Giocondinis were in St. Petersburg almost three weeks, arriving there in time for the Russian Orthodox Christmas. The holiday slowed their paperwork, but allowed the couple time to see the city.

For Renee, it was like a honeymoon or vacation. In the morning they would visit with Anne Renee, then tour the city the rest of the day.

And although she found the former Leningrad a "most beautiful city," Renee admitted the stay wasn't an easy one.

"The first week was the hardest because we were away from home and we knew how long it would take," she said. "And we were concerned about the government: Would it topple, change its position on adoption?" After 21/2 weeks, the Giacondinis went to the orphange one last time to get their daughter. They took along a change of clothes, since the orphanage kept everything it had Stylish: Spring fashions will be the focus of the Catholic Central Mother's Club annual fashion show, "Lavendar and Lace," according to co-chairwomen Vicki Hesano (left) and Vicki Turowski.

Moms strut stuff for CC

Spring will be in the air when the Catholic Central Mother's Club holds its annual fashion show, "Lavender and Lace," Sunday, April 17.

The spring fashions paraded down the runway at Laurel Manor in Livonia will be provided by the merchants of Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi, and among the models will be Catholic Central mothers and their sons.

"This is the Mother's Club's largest fund-raiser of the year, and we hope to make it the biggest ever," said Vicki Turowski, who is co-chairing the event with her sister-in-law, Vicki Hesano. "We're hoping for a sellout attendance."

The benefit will be 12:30-2 p.m. at Laurel Manor, Schoolcraft west of I-275. Seating for 900 is available and tickets are $35 each. The cost covers lunch, door prizes and the fashion show as well as music during the social hour by the Catholic Central Stage Band.

On the menu will be vegetable, cheese and fruit appetizers; two hot pastas, pasta primavera and tronchetto; - chicken Caesar salad, homemade breadsticks, an ice cream peach, and beverage.

There also will be a raffle with prizes including a trip to Las Vegas, use of a condominium on Florida's Marco Island, a television, bicycles, jewelry and furniture. Tickets cost $1 each or six

On the runway, The Catholic Central mothers and their sons will be joined by the Twelve Qaks Fashion Guild, modeling fashions and accessories from Lillie Rubin, Cache, President Tuxedo, Hudson's, Ann Taylor, Liz Claiborne, Gantos, First Issue, The Icing, August Max Woman and Audrey Jones.

"We'll have a wide range of looks for all sizes and shapes," said Barbara Carey, Twelve Oaks fashion coordinator. "You don't have to be 98 pounds and six feet tall to wear them."

"It isn't the kind of show where everyone walks away thinking they can't compare with the models," added Fran Parrot, a member of the CC Mother's Club.

Who we are means tapping into our memory hard drive

REV. ROBERT SCHADEN

Have you ever asked your adult children about some of the things they remember from their growing up years? And what of your own growing up? What do you remember? It is sometimes amazing to recall what remains on our hard drive over the years. Some of those files are so deeply tucked away that we are totally oblivious to their existence. Then at the most unexpected times they surface.

Earlier this month while driving along a north woods road, which had been snowed over in one of the last gasps of winter, I spotted what appeared to be a family disembarking from their four-wheel drive. They had with them a couple of day packs and a few pounds of enthusiasm, which seemed to welcome another chance at winter fun.

The long and the short of it both figuratively and literally --is that this was a group of people making memories in the snow. Years from now they will probably not recall the color of the packs they carried. They more than likely will have forgotten the contents of their thermos bottles. Perhaps they will not even remember which of the family vehicles had carried them across the history of their togetherness and brought them to this place.

Whether their outerwear was made by Patagonia or woven from less prestigious threads will have ceased to matter. Even the name of the road may be forgotten. But they will remember that they were there. Each of them will, at one level or another, hang onto some piece of it all. Even as I write of them, these memories are already filed on their mental hard drives.

They may or may not be able to put it back on the screen in future years, but this Saturday afternoon experience, along with so many other events and experiences, has already become a piece of the stuff of their lives.

It has been said that we spend our whole lives becoming the people we are. We might add that we spend a good deal of time providing the input for what and who those around us are going to become as well.

This process is not limited to winter roads. It may involve laughs and snowballs or nothing as picturesque. It may be a dinner table conversation, a hug for no reason at all, or a crying spell. The memories are not all laughing happy sort of data. Some are sad. Some are frightening. Many more do not seem to carry any emotion at all for the moment. But all of them together become the stuff out of which we are made.

So what of now? What memories are we creating day by day for ourselves and for those whose future reality will be an expression of what we give to them now? How much better or worse will be my tomorrows because of the data that I input today? How much better or worse will be the lives of those people who are close enough to be taken for granted today?

In future years our children, our spouses, our friends will be making statements such as, "I remember when . . . " How will those statements be finished? What is it that will become a part of them will be able to be attributed to us? Are we helping to create people or are we helping to dias. mantle them? We really cannot erase what we record. We can only add to it.

What we add may not seem to matter much for this afternoon, but at sometime, we do not know when, it will matter at whole lot, because it will have been molded. into what a human person has ber

Today we have a writer who enjoys the day-to-day contact that communication brings and will cast her net far and wide to include a variety of people and personal experiences.

Our writer is much in tune with the here and now. She may, in fact, be overly concerned with herself and the social side of her life. She tends to emphasize things that are not of great importance in the grand scheme of things.

There is almost a naive quality to this woman. She is open-minded and receptive to other people, their views and ideas. A well-developed imagination cannot be missed in her full loops. All of this can make it difficult for her to be objective about people and their motives.

Peace and harmony are high priorities! She is friendly and wants to get along without fric-, tion. Being surrounded by tranquility and attractiveness provides the peace and pleasure which is so essential for her inner happiness.

Seemingly, she is not experiencing the love and assurance she needs. And when they are not forthcoming, especially from the opposite sex, a sulky dissatisfaction can surface.

Our writer has strong feelings of loyalty to her friends. However, she does not often become emotionally involved with too many people.

Outer appearances are important. Here is usually poised and controlled. She is slow to anger and seldom does she become passionate about things.

Decision making is not done hastily. She needs time to test the waters before jumping in. She wants to avoid situations that are out of her control. At times, she may be a little unsure of herself.

This is a methodical, careful thinker. Her memory is retentive. Once she learns something new she can probably retain it forever. Seemingly, she has been blessed with intuition, and I hope she trusts it.

Work is performed with care and precision. She is concientious and takes pride in doing a task not to be "rocked to sleep" by a false sense of security, making you an easy target for disappointment. Your ability and adaptability to change is not as strong, if you allow yourself to feel too secure in a job. Sometimes a shakeup can really open eyes and get one moving in directions more beneficial to their growth.

What about financial assistance? There's no easy answer. But before problems multiply, under state law, the MESC is responsible for helping you get a job and for paying benefits to eligible workers. But you don't have to be collecting benefits to get help from MESO. As far as bills are difference. concerned, it might be feasible to get help from a credit counselor. Non-profit credit counselors can help in resolving financial problems, and making arrangements to meet bill obligations. No one should be refused services due to inability to pay.

Also, if you contact your creditors and inform them in writing that you are temporarily out of work and seeking employment, you will more than likely be given some kind of consideration in the form of agreed payment arrangements.

Under the Utility Bill of Rights, utility companies will hear your concerns or complaints, if you have a shut-off, due to inability to pay, or if there's a medical emergency in your home. Medical assistance programs can help eligi-

All you have to do is raise your hand . . . to bid, that is, at the Cleary College Auction '94 6 p.m. Friday, April 8, at Laurel Manor in Livonia. The auction will benefit endowment, student scholarships and facility renovations for the private business college, which has campuses in Ypsilanti and Howell.

The goal is to raise $110,000 at the second annual auction. Among the items to be auctioned off are an elegant dinner aboard Henry Ford's customized railroad car, a week in a penthouse at the Royal Mayan Beach Club in Cancun, Mexico, a Cleary College sweatshirt authographed by Tim Aller of "Home Improvement" and a week in a fully equipped two-bedroom condo in Freeport, the Bahamas. There also will be a raffle drawing for a 1994 Neon.

Market Place Stations for dinner will open at 6 p.m. and will be followed by silent and live auctions. The live auction will be conducted by veteran auctioneer Dan Stall.

Tickets for the auction are $50 each; black tie is preferred. For more information, call the Cleary College Advancement Office at (313) 483-4400 or toll-free (800) 686-1883.

provided Anne Renee to give to But she knows more needs to be another child.

The adventure was just beginning for Anne Renee. Barely used to riding in a car, she and her new parents took a nine-hour trip to Moscow. There, they went to the U.S. Embassy for an adoption briefing and an exit interview (to make sure that she was they child they said they would adopt) and apply for her visa.

"We were told not to speak English or leave our compartment because of the high crime on that train," Renee recalled.

The adventure continued for the youngster who had lived at the orphanage since infancy. There was a 17-hour plane ride during which she didn't sleep a

"She's 31/4 and has missed out on so much attention and affection," Renee said.

For now Renee, who has taken a leave of absence, is spending a lot of time bonding with her new daughter. She also plans to do some mom and tot type programs so Anne Renee can meet other children -

If Anne Renee has become the apple of her father's eye, she's the belle of the ball for the grandparents. They're "crazy" about the youngster, the first grandchild for Renee's parents, Gerry Du-Bach of Plymouth and Robert DuBach of Lake City, and the first granddaughter for Guy's parents, Sante and Ida Giocondini of Dearborn Heights.

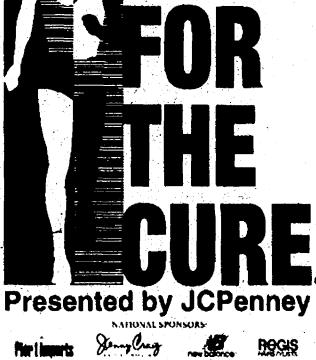

As for adding to the family it appears Anne Renee is it.

You share the same body, the same life-giving nutrients for nine months. Each of you affects the other in countless ways.

Why is it then that many hospitals treat you and your baby like completely unrelated people?

OUR NURSES SEE THEM AS STILL BEING ATTACHED

You stay in your room. Your baby stays in the nursery. And you're each cared for by a different nurse.

A better way

At St. Mary Hospital we offer a better way to begin. A personal nurse takes care of you and -your-baby-together-toencourage the best possible start. So your nurse can tell how your comfort level, moods and medication may be affecting your baby. And how a your haby's behavior influences you. This new way of caring is called mother-baby nursing.

Mother-baby nurses

With mother-baby nurses, you can learn by watching the nurse care for your newborn at your bedside instead of out of your sight in a nursery. If you have a question about your baby, the nurse can answer it immediately. You won't have to wait for the "baby nurse."

The Miracle of Life Maternity Center at St. Mary Hospital has mother-haby nursing all the time.

More support, more education. It's a better way of caring. To learn more about the benefits of mother-baby

Nelson's Gallery plans to spotlight glass as art common art form it's not. Most people have no idea how glass almost magically is shaped into art.

But glass art continues to attract admirers. And no wonder, given its shimmer and beauty. Last September, Nelson's Gallery in Livonia spotlighted the work of Livonia glass blower Joe Wisniewski, then Artist of the Month. At the time, he told the Observer: "I hope people get the same kind of peace and joy from my glass that it brings me.

It proved so popular, gallery director Laura Hardy now carries his work on consignment.

"He's not afraid to experiment, to go beyond," Hardy said. "It looks as though he really enjoys trying to create new shapes and designs. And he seems to have lots of fun with color. He works hard but truly enjoys it."

Hardy also carries the paperweights of Wisniewski's fiancee, Christine Fleischer of Livonia, and the etched and sandblasted glassworks of Nelson's artist-in-residence, Detroiter Janelle Agar, who's also a painter, designer, sculptor and airbrusher.

Fine art, lithographs, serigraphs, posters, framed prints and custom framing are her mainstay, but Hardy says she's "very pleased with how the glass is selling. It's a wonderful addition to our lineup."

Michigan Glass Month

Wisniewski is the inspiration behind Hardy choosing to celebrate Michigan Glass Month during April. The statewide celebration is now in its

"Once you talk to Joe," Hardy said, "you get a whole different appreciation for glass art."

From mid-April through May, Nelson's will feature the handiwork of five glass artists: Bruce Boatman, Bob Cooper, Wisniewski, Fleischer and Agar. Prices will range from $10 to $150. "I'm excited for the fact we're able to feature new people," Hardy said.

A free public reception to meet the artists will take place 6-9 p.m. Friday, April 15 at the gallery, 16376 Middlebelt, tucked in Terrence Corners, between north of Five and Six Mile. Wisniewski will demonstrate tabletop kilnfused glass techniques from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 16.

A 1980 Livonia Bentley High School graduate, Wisniewski will exhibit paperweights, vases and bowls with themes that touch on Native American petroglyphs, Venetian flowers and meditational patterns. A full-time nurse, Fleischer finds glasswork therapeutic. She'll display a variety of paperweights with pastel themes drawn from sea life. Her creations were part of the "Art As Gift" exhibition at Nelson's last December. A commercial artist, Agar will exhibit etched and sandblasted glassworks with wildlife and abstract themes.

A Detroiter who studied at the Cleveland Institute of Art, Boatman will show handblown perfume bottles and vases in traditional style.

A special presentation by Apache/Seneca Indian Edwin Poulin on the role that rain plays in Native American life takes place 1-4 p.m. Saturday, April 2.

Eagle Feather Boy, or Wambli Weoka Oksheela, as he is called by his people, is nationally known as a speaker on the subject of Native American culture.

"The rain exhibit is celebrating how important rain was to the Native Americans in the aspect of their pottery, their jewelry. Even rugs had patterns that depicted rain. Rain symbols are everywhere in American Indian culture," said Native West co-owner Annette Symbols of rain are indeed everywhere in the gallery during this exhibit.

"The water itself is a life-giving force. Nothing lives without water, not even a rock," said Poulin, a Royal Oak resident, "Rain's been part of the native people's history and tradition. Many stories come from the spirits in the water. There's a lot of respect for where that water came from.

Glass classes are set

The University of Michigan-Dearborn will offer a workshop for beginning and advanced glassblowing students from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on April 9-10 at Lab 251, Science Building. The deadline for registration is April 1.

The non-credit workshop provides new and advanced students with handson experience in the techniques of lampworking glass, using soda lime, lead, borosilicate and a variety of colored glasses, according to artists Frederick Birkhill and Shane Fero, who will conduct the workshop.

Birkhill, who earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts from U-M, works in mixed media in his own studio. He has taught glassworking at schools in the United States and has objects displayed in the Corning Museum and the Smithsonian Institution.

An experienced glassworker, Fero has received more than 80 awards at exhibitions throughout the coun-

Gallery show spotlights global glass

By LINDA ANN CHOMIN SPECIAL WRITER

The art of contemporary studio glass goes global April 7 to May 7 at the 22nd annual International Glass Invitational presented by Habatat Galleries in the Triatria Building, 32255 Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills.

Whether you're an old hand at collecting glass art works or would, simply like to know more about the phenomena, Habatat's glass extravaganza educates as well as stimulates.

Last year's exhibition touted more than 750 glass works by 95 artists from around the world. This year's spotlights more than 100 artists from Ireland to Italy with separate exhibits focusing on Czechoslovakia, France, Japan, Scandinavia and the United States as well as a group exhibit of artists from 20 other countries.

"We're trying to top last year's show, the most attended international in the show's 22-year history," said Ferdinand Hampson, president of Habatat Galleries in Farmington Hills, Boca Raton and Aspen.

"We'll have Therman Statom's glass house, an entrance way by Jon Kuhn, expanded presentations focusing on 25 different artists, new work by Mary Shaffer, Kreg Kallengerger and William Morris; a major installation of Chihuly, a wall similar to one constructed for his DIA show last year, with several pieces from his Persian series cascading down it."

Gallery director John Lawson is excited about the new artists in the international this year.

"We'll have an artist from Taiwan that Dale Chihuly connected us with. Loretta Yang who works in Pate de Verre. Some of the glass is based on antiquity, some of it's contemporary," Law-

"In addition, the glass of Sweden will be included for the first time this year. Bertil Vallien is known for his sand cast and blown glass boat forms, some of which are up to 77 inches long."

On Thursday, April 7, for the first time in the history of the international, the event will kick off with a live auction featuring some of the most sought after works of the 1970s and 1980s. "Masterworks of Contemporary Glass" at 7:30 p.m. places 125 historically significant works by glass masters

Harvey Littleton, Dominick Labino. Stanislav Libensky and Chihuly on the block.

History

Up until the turn of the century glassmaking was craft by committee. Famous houses like Tiffany and Steuben (later bought by Corning) employed teams of glass blowers to create pieces of glass art, primarily vessels. It wasn't until 1962 when Littleton, father of the contemporary glass movement, joined with Labino and retired glass blower Harvey Leafgreen to have a series of workshops behind the Toledo Museum of Art that glass began its journey from craft to fine art.

Until this time, due to the expensive equipment and high level of skill required for glassmaking, artists hadn't seriously considered using glass as an art material to work on an individual basis.

The glass blowing sessions forever changed the way the world and artists viewed glass. Before long artists were working with a myriad of techniques including slumping, fusing, casting, sand blasting, laminating and lamp working. They also began incorporating other materials like steel, wood, wire and found ob-

Distinguished works

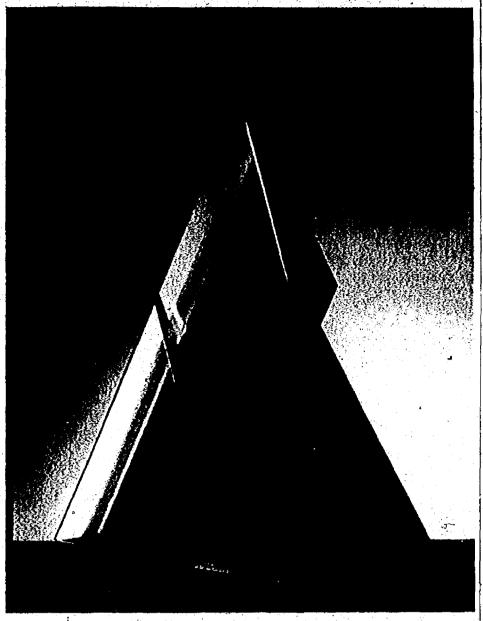

"This is the largest auction of contemporary studio glass that's been held in the '90s. There are some very important works: Richard Marquis' teapots, 1976 to '78; Pavel Hlava from the early '70s, Labino's from the '60s and '70s, Joel Philip Myers and Michael Glancy, all assembled from about 20 different sources including collectors and museums," Hampson

"To see the early works of all of these distinguished artists, it gives you a greater insight into what they're doing presently,' said Habatat's director of sales, Lillian Zonars of Birmingham.

At the beginning of the contemporary studio glass movement artists strove to create glass works with the hope it would someday be considered fine art. Today, that has changed.

"Glass offers tremendous diversity and versatility and the ability to create images on a three-dimensional level," Hampson said.

"At one time artists felt they had to link it with sculpture or three-dimensional work. There's a new confidence or uniqueness with what they're doing and they're not so concerned with linking it to the fine arts.

Dazzling: The spectacular items in the exhibit at Habatat Galleries include "Autumn," a laminated glass sculpture by Pavel Hlava.

"There's been an art recession going on throughout the world. As this has been taking place the glamour and star of the fine arts has become a little tarnished. Economically, at the same time pieces were falling in the fine arts market, prices were on the increase with artists using alternative materials."

Developments

Glass, with all its sparkle, ored light, can be as fragile as a April 9. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. puppy or rendered bulletproof as to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, noon worlds never imagined.

Habatat's International Class Invitational tracks the progress of the contemporary studio glass movement, documenting the evolution of the artists and medium along with the impact of technology on this art. Since the discovery of laminates by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, glass art has never been the same, and that's just one exam-

"The versatility of glass, it's just amazing what can be done with the material," Hampson said.

A reception to meet the artists beauty and flashing prisms of col- will take place 8 p.m. Saturday, well as heat resistant. Artists are to 5 p.m. Sunday (April only, excreating new worlds with glass, cluding Easter Sunday - April 3). Call (810) 851-9090.

Cooper is an Orchard Lake professional engineer who honed his glasswork skills at Greenfield Village, the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association and Touch of Light Studio and Gallerie of Handblown Glass in Ferndale. He'll exhibit large handblown vases, plates and bowls with highly organic forms.

A full-time automotive engineer, Wisniewski plans to build Livonia's first hot-glass studio behind his home. The flash point will be a small oven five feet tall and wide capable of heating up a 100-pound pot of newly made glass.

Wisniewski hopes to one day blow glass full time. He and Christine have studied for the past three years under the tutelage of Swedish-trained glassblower John Fitzpatrick at Touch of Light.

An ancient Egyptian art form that dates back in the New World to 1608 when the Jamestown Glass Factory opened, glass art eventually lost some of its luster. But California glass blowers Harvey Littleton and Dominic Labino revived it in the 1960s. What's the lure?

"Talk to glass artists," Wisniewski says, "and you'll find that all have been fascinated with glass since childhood. I started collecting glass, mostly bottles but even broken glass, when I was very young. I first experimented with kiln-fused glass - heating stained or plate glass in a kiln until the pieces fused together in one shape — in junior high.'

Fleischer's greatest interest. she says in her artist's statement, "is capturing the spirit of life in the sea in glass paperweights.

III 'Talk to glass artists and you'll find that all have been fascinated with glass since childhood. I started collecting glass, mostly bottles but even broken glass, when I was very young.'

Joe Wisniewski

Swirling strands of colors and patterns of bubbles invoke images of fish and marine life swimming in their eternal dance. The pastel violets, pinks and blues draw on the gentle, feminine side of life."

Glass results from mixing highquality sand and soda in a veryhot glass oven. Paperweight makers gather a ball of molten glass on the end of a steel blow pipe, shape it with hand tools and blow it up like a balloon. Colors and designs result from solid-colored glass chunks and powdered colors applied to clear glass while yellow hot. Glass layers are built up by dipping the enlarging piece again and again in the pot of hot glass.

"Many people have no idea how glass art is done or where it comes from," said Wisniewski, embarking on his first Michigan Glass Month show. "We hope to promote interest in glass art through education.'

Michigan Glass Month at Nelson's Gallery will be a sparkling opportunity to do just that.

tion. III THE TROWBRIDGE

During March — The vivid abstract paintings of Southfield artist Seymour Mandell are featured at The Trowbridge, a rental retirement community. The exhibit is the first of a series that will be shown there as a community service under the auspices of Marlowe Belanger, director of the Cultural Arts Division of Parks and Recreation, Southfield. Mandell, who is an attorney and architect as well as an artist, is interested in abstract theories, the dimensions of space and time and still life and landscape concepts. His work is inspired by visits to European cathedrals as well as the spatial relationships of heavenly bodies. He as developed a series of still life paintings featuring children's blocks as the main theme. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., 24111 Civic Center Drive, Southfield, (810) 352-0208.

ELIZABETH STONE GALLERY To March 31 — "I Spy With My Little Eye," featuring objects in original art from children's books, continues. Also, a collection of original art and new, limited edition lithographs by best-loved and best-selling children's book authors is exhibited through April 30. Included are works by Lauren Mills, Dennis Nolan, Barry Moser, Lynn Munsinger, Wendell Minor, Robin Spowart, Thacher Hurd, Rosemary Wells, David McPhail and many others. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 536 N. Woodward, Birmingham, (810) 647-7040.

PRIVATE COLLECTION QALLERY

During March — Seattle glass artist William Sargeant's "Dancing Ladies" series is shown. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, noon to 3 p.m. Sunday, 6736A Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield, (810) 737-4050.

BIRMINGHAM BLOOMFIELD ART ASSOCIATION

During March — Oil painter Ruth Neuman is Artist of the Month. Also, drawings by Christine Welch and jewelry by Milton Bennett are featured in the Showcase Gallery. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, (810) 644-0866.

ROMAN TERRACE II

Through March — An art exhibit - including watercolor, pen and ink with watercolor overlay and sepia pastel life studies — by Paul Dohr of Royal Oak continues at the Italian-American restaurant at 12 Mile and Halsted. The Farmington-Farmington Hills Optimist Club will benefit from a share of the sale proceeds.

E TOP AGENT

Jeanne L. Tilford of Troy, top residential sales agent for Prudential Great Lakes Realty-Troy, was honored at the Prudential national convention in San Antonio.

With 10 years' experience in the real estate field, she was recognized as being in the top 1 percent nationwide and the Elite Chairman Circle Tilford. Award winner.

She's been in the real estate field for 10 years.

BRANCH OFFICE

Dallas-based Sunbelt National Mortgage has opened its first branch office in Plymouth at 190 Plymouth Road, Suite 2, as a satellite of its Bingham Farms office.

Pamela J. Hall was named branch manager. A lending officer with Sunbelt since July, she has 10 years' experience in lending and finance.

Plymouth's "Old-World charm" and location between Ann Arbor and Detroit has made it attractive to businesses and residents alike, Hall

"There is a lot of new housing and a lot of new construction," she said. "There also is a lot of commercial and industrial growth. So it's very competitive here among lenders. We expect this branch to do very well.'

Joining Hall in Plymouth is Dick Bone, loan officer, and Lynda Scheel, loan processor. Call (313) 453-5626.

Sunbelt currently serves $6 billion in mortgage loans.

M AWARD WINNERS

Red Carpet Keim Walker & Associates in Southfield honored three sales associates for 1993.

Owner-broker Judy Walker and brokers Marcella Gresham and Gwendolyn Williams were honored for residential sales.

. Red Carpet Keim president John Kavanagh, meanwhile, honoed the Southfield office for top residential sales for 1993.

· "This office has continued to rank as one of our top offices and will continue to do so under the leadership of Judy Walker," he said.

The network is the nation's largest broker owned and operated real estate network with 70 offices and 1,000 sales associates in Michigan.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer lauds achievers

Nearly two-dozen sales associates from local Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate offices were honored as top achievers in 1993 for the Sterling Heights-based company.

"The strength of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate comes from top-producing sales associates like ours who give outstanding customer service and results," said Paul Schweitzer, president.

"For a sales associate to be a success or a top producer, they understand the real estate industry as their own business," he added. "They do extensive personal promotion, which any business would do.

'They have to have organization and provide exceptional service to customers and clients. That means always being in contact with them about what's happening with a sale or listing. The last thing is followup after the sale, being in touch," Schweitzer said.

It's an honor to have these sales associates as part of our organization." Here are the honorees:

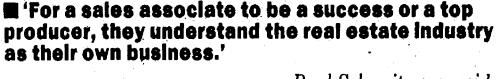

■ Plymouth — Chris Knight, who generated total sales volume in excess of $11 million from 127 transactions, showed the way as that office's top sales associate for gross commission income.

Knight's sales volume was third best in Knight the entire company.

Lucia Capicchioni generated a sales volume over $10 million, Judy Rumpel and Frank Julian, each over $6 million, and Mike Schneider, $3 million.

■ Birmingham -- Rosalee Hill was honored as the top sales associate for gross commission income in that office with a volume of $6 million from 31 transactions.

Other large producers in the Birmingham office were Pam Dovet-Cadotte, $4 million, and Jean Colby, $3 millio

Now our attorney will not represent our association, claiming that he has too many other condominium associations that are represented by the management company and he would feel uncomfortable in representing the association against it. We feel betrayed, both by the attorney and the management company. What can we do?

A. Obviously, to the extent that you are in need of legal services, you will have to hire another attorney, presumably experienced in condominium representation, to represent the interests of your association.

Perhaps the lesson to be learned from this unfortunate experience is that when you consider retaining counsel, that you specifically ask the attorney whether or not he or she would have any conflict or other problem in representing the association against either the management company or any other contractors who you know are being employed by the association at the time of his or her retention.

Cutting edge: Jay Anthony, general manager of QID Homecare Suites, believes the modular unit his firm sells provides a homecare environment for people not requiring nursing-home assistance.

Occupancy up or level; quoted rent rates rise

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Both office occupancy rates and quoted rental rates were up slightly in Livonia, Birmingham and Farmington Hills as of the first of the year compared to January 1993.

Occupancy rates remained about the same, but quoted rental rates increased slightly in Troy and Southfield.

That's what Joel I. Feldman, senior vice president and an associate broker with First Commercial Realty & Development Co. in Southfield, found in his annual survey of the metro office market.

Here's a summary of his analysis by commu-

Quoted rental rate, usually higher than actual contract rate, depends on such factors as supply and demand, what the competition is doing and how much a landlord will spend on tenant improvements, Feldman said

Livonia - occupancy, 94 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $17.83 per square

"Majority of leasing activity was corporate in nature and in the form of the renewal of existing leases, the expansion of current tenants as well as the attracting of new tenants," Feldman

"Western Livonia's major concern should now befocused on monitoring the supply of office space in relation to demand so that the success it recently enjoys . . . isn't diluted by the premature introduction of new office product," he added.

Farmington Hills - occupancy, 89 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $16.49 per

"A healthy relationship between the supply took place," Feldman reported. "Renewals often took the form of lease expansions, resulting in real growth and net absorption.

This recovery should even be given an additional boost provided significant new speculative office product doesn't come on line in the near future."

be a temporary or permanent alternative to nursing home care,' said Jay Anthony, QID general

"We aren't anti-nursing home, but many people don't need 24hour care and don't belong there. Frail doesn't mean sick," he add-

How do care givers feel about putting a loved one in the garage?

"One in 200 is surprised by the idea, but it makes all the difference when they see the unit," Anthony said.

From the outside, the garage looks like a model home office. Inside, a furnished suite resembles a comfortable hotel room. The unit is about 380 square feet and fits in most two-car garages. It's carpeted and walls are vinyl covered with built-in bookshelves.

There's a front door, window, bedroom, sitting/activity center and barrier-free bath with a tilting tub for access from a wheelchair. A power-assisted toilet is optional.

QID's health care coordinator can get other optional equipment, like a power-chair or hospital bed, or arrange for a visiting nurse.

The suite connects to the house by an interior door; a short ramp outside leads to the exterior door. The partitions that replace garage doors are made to match the

The unit can be installed in most garages in two days and dismantled in one. It uses the house's electrical and sewer lines and has a separate hot water heater, self-contained heating unit and air conditioner. The floor is seven inches above the garage floor and well-insulated.

Before marketing the unit to Midwesterners, QID worked with Berkeley architect Robert A. Williams, a specialist in barrier- free design, to increase the insulation value to R-19 — for weather in Sault Ste. Marie, Anthony said. It rents for $1,500 a month, or you can buy one for $38,600. The bathroom alone rents for $900 a month; the purchase price is $24,800. There's a smaller unit for one-car garages.

Freight and installation is $2,500, which includes plumbing and electrical permits. The company has a guaranteed repurchase program.

Some costs may be tax deductible or covered by Medicare or private insurance, Anthony said.

If the price sounds steep, consider the cost of skilled nursing home care around Michigan the average is $3,472 a month, or $42,291 a year, according to a QID

There's a definite benefit to staying at home, but caring for a frail elderly person is a full-time commitment," said Alexander Spiro, president and CEO of Charter Care Corp., with nursing homes in Farmington-Hills and

"Usually, an acute incident like a stroke or fall puts the elderly in the hospital," he said. "Before considering home care, you need to evaluate the patient with the hospital social worker. A lot of people don't focus on the time, energy and lifestyle change that's required for home care. A nursing home isn't a place people don't come out of. We have people go back into their homes or apartments everyday.

Nusing homes charge for skilled care from registered nurses and therapists, who are on staff, but routine visits from these professionals at home could cost around $5,700 a month, Spiro said.

At least two local planners like the idea of Homecare Suite, but say installation would probably have to be considered on a caseby-case basis.

"I'm acutely aware of the health care problem, and I personally understand the need for home care," said John J. Nagy, Livonia planning director. "There would likely be a problem adapting (the unit) to a typical home under our existing code because it alters a single-family residence."

Nagy's other concern is increased demand for off-street parking once the garage is converted, but with appropriate variances, he said, the unit could be adapted to some homes.

Nik Banda, Southfield director of planning, agrees: "(The suite) represents an important social statement that cities will have to evaluate in the near future. I'm not sure how it fits into our present code. We'd have to look at modifying it on a case-by-case basis.'

"I'm getting more calls everyday for information on in-home care for the elderly," said Loretta Conway, Farmington Hills senior adult supervisor. "The concept of Homecare Suite is an extraordinary one if you can afford it."

Franco Channel 2's new editorial chief

Anthony M. Franco of Bloomfield Hills was named editorial director of WJBK-TV2, announced station president and general manager Steven Antoniotti, a Farmington Hills resident. His appointment at TV2 is effective April 1.

Franco will chair the Southfield station's editorial board and will help develop TY2's community affairs policy. He will occasionally deliver station editorials on-air.

"Tony Franco brings to us a 35year history of business, civic and communications leadership," Antoniotti said, noting that as past chairman of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Franco is a familiar and knowledgeable community leader.

"His presence and involvement will enhance the station's already-strong commitment to community service. He'll be an invaluable asset," Antoniotti said.

In addition to the Chamber of Commerce, Franco Serves on a number of community boards in the state, including WTVS/Channel 56 and the Detroit Area Council of the Boy Scouts, both of which he has also chaired; the Library of Michigan Foundation; the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce and the Oakland County Business Roundtable.

Franco is a life member of the Detroit Economic Club and serves on several Detroit-area advisory boards, including Hospice of Southeastern Michigan and the United Way for Southeastern Michigban.

Since 1964, Franco has served as chairman, president and chief executive officer of Anthony M. Franco, Inc., which was sold to Ross Roy Communications of Bloomfield Hills in 1990. The firm was subsequently sold to four of its officers this past December, at whick time Franco resigned from the day-to-day duties of operating the firm.

With the addition of Franco to the staff, the station will resume its editorials and viewers' comments, as well as continue expansion of its community relations efforts.

■ Birmingham — occupancy, 83 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $21.53 per square foot.

"Yet another example of progress being made, of the tightening of the marketplace," Feldman reported. "Still is characterized by limited demand, the availability of concessions. Emphasis continues to be placed, and rightfully so, on renovation and tenant retention."

■ Troy — occupancy, 81 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $17.86.

'Stagnant perhaps better than any other word best summarizes the current status of Troy's office market," Feldman reported.

"Troy's overall occupancy rate relative to multi-tenanted, speculative, general office facilities remained essentially unchanged. Little, if any, net absorption took place . . . despite the fact that no new speculative office product was added. "The majority of leasing activity that did transpire was in the form of lease renewals," Feldman reported. "No new major or largesize leases were consummated. Troy's office market today remains soft and tenant skewed with concessions.'

Further trouble could lie ahead as more companies follow through on planned relocations, the commentary continued. However, quality buildings, good freeway access and judicial management. should win out in the long run. ■ Southfield — occupancy, 75 percent; average adjusted quoted rental rate, $15.94. "Parts of Southfield's office market such as its southern and central sections are generally in poor to bad shape and parts of Southfield's central and northern areas ... are generally in good shape," Feldman reported.

"The marketplace, especially here, is simply too complex, too large and too-diverse to generalize about.

"The answer: little or no net absorption of office product, an insignificant amount of lease expansions and a disproportionately large amount of leasing activity in the form of renewals . . . versus the leasing of office space to new companies and professionals."

The positives?

"If anything, Southfield's office market today and is more stable and less transitory than it has been in years," Feldman wrote. Despite its many problems, Southfield, as a whole, still is perceived as a viable and attractive place to do business."

Progress should continue, Feldman reported, due to Southfield's central location, freeway access, a large concentration of major corporations and influential business people, and sensitive govern-"How can Southfield-lead the mental leadership willing to conproperties.

Credit union use on upward swing

Consumer satisfaction with credit unions, combined with rising service charges at banks, have led to a growing movement of consumers into credit unions.

In 1993, Michigan credit unions attracted 53,000 new members, said Michael Kelly, senjor director of the Southfield-based Michigan Credit Union League.

Anyone in Michigan interested in joining a credit union, but uncertain of where they may fit in as a member, can request information with one toll-free phone call.

By calling 1 (800) 474-JOIN, callers hear a recorded message offering tips on how to join a credit union through their job, residence, church or family. After the recorded message, callers are able to leave a voicemail message requesting a complimentary, customized membership information packet in the mail based on information they leave on the record-

"The new 800 number is a part of the Michigan League's commitment to Operation Moonshot," Kelly said, "but even more, it's a concrete, practical service to Michigan credit

Within the first month of the program, 280 state credit unions had joined the program by providing the MCUL with summaries of their membership eligibility requirements.

The Michigan Credit Union League is working in cooperation with the Joint Advertising Board, the state's cooperative credit union ads program, to operate 1 (800)-474-JOIN. Their efforts will help potential new members connect with credit unions that will meet their needs.

Sign language: "Window glass acts as an indicator, a warning of possible unseen damage inside the wall caused by excessive moisture," says Paul Martin, Livoniabased territory sales manager, Pella Window and Door Co.

Wet windows may mean wall damage

Those little beads of condensation gathering on the windows this winter may be trying to tell you something.

"Because window glass is denser and colder than surrounding walls, water vapor seeking cooler, drier outside air stops and condenses on the glass surface,' said Paul Martin, Livonia-based territory sales manager, Pella Window and Door Co. "Window glass acts as an indicator, a warning of possible unseen damage inside the wall caused by excessive moisture.'

Unless steps are taken to reduce moisture levels in the home, Martin said, successive freezing and thawing of this moisture could cause deteriorating sidewall insulation, rotting wood structural members and blistering exterior paint.

"A solution may be replacing older windows if they have damaged seals or deteriorated surfaces," Martin said. "Today's quality wood windows have overcome many of the trouble spots that resulted in condensation on older windows. Because quality wood is a natural insulator, it can also increase the home's overall energyefficiency."

Martin offered these simple checks to identify minor problems with existing windows: Wood surfaces should be finished with gloss paint or polyurethane varnish; breather holes in the edge of the sash should be clear of debris; and interior glass panels should be tightly clipped into place with gaskets flush against the sash.

Fortunately, Martin said, most types of condensation are temporary and will disappear with time or simple interior humidity adjustments. But if problems persist, homeowners should contact a contractor to help identify the problem and assist in selection of replacement windows.
