Schools, 2 unions OK pay freeze

The Wayne-Westland school board and unions representing two groups of administrators agreed to a three-year pay freeze, but the unions will receive an 8-percent raise the following year.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Two Wayne-Westland school administrator unions have accepted a three-year salary freeze in return for an 8-percent payout for the following year.

The "historic compromise," as one school board member called it, emerged from mediation efforts with two unions whose members had worked for two years without contracts.

The settlements, approved by the school board in a 5-1 vote Monday night, will cost the district $369,832 for the one-time payouts.

Both unions ratified the pacts by large margins, said Bill Taylor, associate superintendent for employee services.

The Wayne-Westland Building Administrators Association, which represents principals, approved the contract in a 23-6 vote, Taylor said. The Wayne-Westland Central Office Administrators Association ratified its pact 18-2.

"It is an honest effort of our administrators to help us out of a financial crisis," Superintendent Larry Thomas said.

Both administrative unions agreed to forego raises for the fiscal years of 1992-93, 1993-94 and the one to start this July 1. In return, they will receive a one-time payout of 8 percent on July 1, 1995, which is the first day of the following fiscal year.

In essence, the payouts will amount to compensation for raises that the school board couldn't afford during a three-year financial crisis that ushered in more than $12 million in budget cuts.

The agreement could set the pattern for other union contracts.

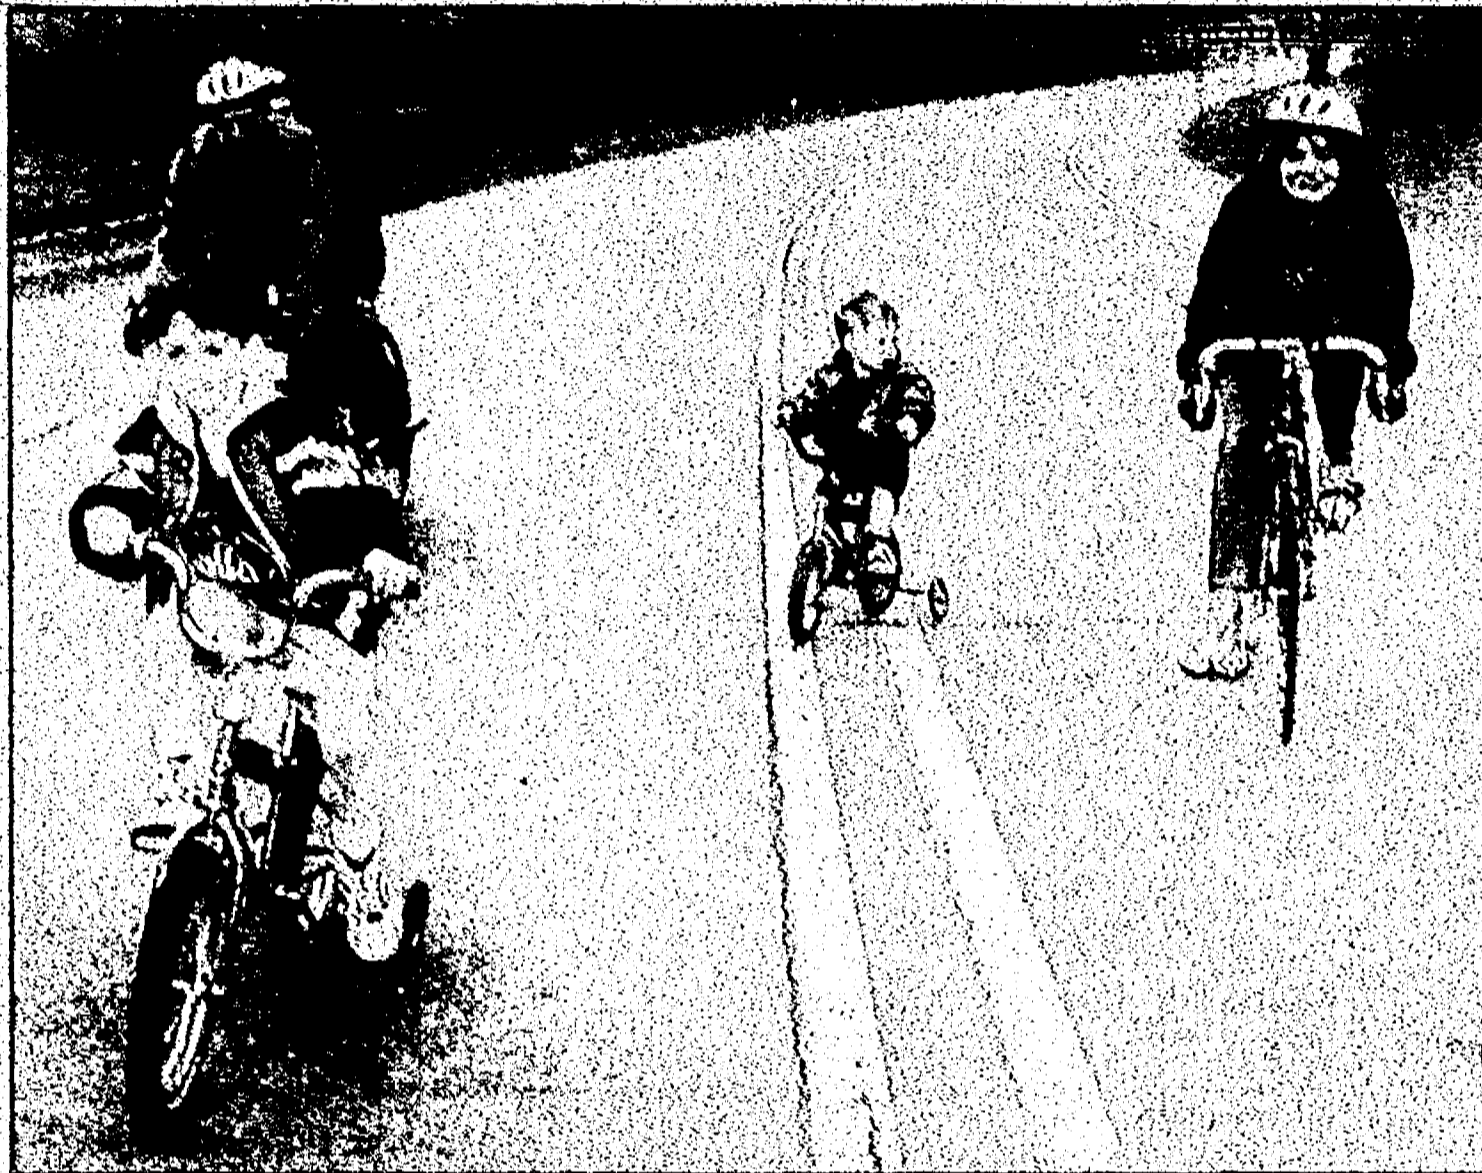

The school board is expected to end the current fiscal year on June 30 with only $3,000 budget surplus. But the board will have to plan to budget

Not only did supporters of Erika Benjamin raise the $2,000 needed for the 1996 Paralympics Games in Belgium, they have a bundle left over for other competitions that year.

Laura George, a co-worker of the Westland bicyclist, spearheaded Saturday's bikeathon with a goal of $2,000. Benjamin, 29, received pledges for her 40-mile trek along Hines Drive.

The total is $2,548.16 with a few cantlers at area businesses yet to be turned in.

Benjamin, who will mark her fourth year at Douglas Foods Inc. in Garden City in August, holds a world record in a long-distance bike race, set in the 1992 Paralympic Games held in Barcelona, Spain, for disabled athletes.

Joining her at Saturday's bikeathon were Laura George, her husband, Douglas, and sons, Jacob, Lukas and Matthew; Erika's coach John Waterman and Chris Pirkosz.

Mom wants to exorcise devil from school

BY DARRELL CLEM

A Wayne-Westland parent wants to exorcise the devil from a Westland school.

Edie Van Patten has indicated that Stevenson Junior High's mascot, a mischievous-looking little devil, can go to, well, someplace other than the school on Palmer Road, west of Newburgh.

She has submitted petitions to Wayne-Westland school officials suggesting that the plump little devil be dropped as the school's mascot.

Some 150 people signed the petitions, but only 100 or so actually live in the Stevenson attendance area, which encompasses students in

■ 'I question, why would a school that calls themselves the Stevenson Saints have a devil mascot?'

Edie Van Patten

Westland, Canton Township and Wayne, officials said.

Known as the Stevenson Saints in athletics and other competitions, the school nonetheless uses a blue devil with an orange face in such places as the school yearbook, Van Patten said as she addressed the school board Monday night.

"I question, why would a school that calls themselves the Stevenson Saints have a devil mascot?" she asked.

Van Patten conceded that the devil has been Stevenson's mascot since the early '70s, but what was once viewed as cute, she said, is now "in need of a change."

"What was cute or harmless 20 years ago is not today," she told the board.

Van Patten said she has been told by administrators that the devil has been retained because of tradition. But she suggested an in-school contest to let students choose a new mascot.

The petitions urge school officials to review the situation as soon as possible. On Monday, Van Patten reminded the board of its mission statement of preparing students to become positive, contributing members of a changing society.

Having a devil mascot doesn't fit that mission, she said.

The board accepted the petitions, and board president Francis "Bud" Winter said the district administration would later respond to Van Patten's concerns.

"I know it should be looked into myself, personally," Winter said.

The devil wasn't available for comment.

School candidate bows out, supports Felan

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Wayne-Westland school board candidate announced suddenly Wednesday that she won't actively campaign for the June 13 election, meaning only two candidates will compete for one seat.

In dropping her campaign, Roberta Paquette issued a statement saying she will support candidate Sharon Felan, a former board appointee who is challenging appointed incumbent Debra Fowlkes.

Felan, a Wayne resident, served on the board for nearly a year before she lost an election bid last June. Fowlkes, a Westland resident, was appointed to fill a board vacancy in January. Paquette said her campaign would "detract" from Felan's campaign, "and that may result in a victory for the other candidate, who wants to overturn the positive changes made over the past few years."

Fowlkes declined to respond to Paquette's criticism, but said she was "shocked" at her decision.

Felan called Paquette's decision "courageous" and said, "I'm grateful."

During a telephone interview, Paquette said she is worried that Fowlkes is aligned with board members who, at times, have been critical of Superintendent Larry Thomas. Some Thomas supporters fear the board could try to oust Thomas, depending on the election outcome. Paquette said the school community "asked for change" when Thomas was hired two years ago, replacing Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who stepped down under pressure.

Paquette commended the superintendent in her statement, noting that student scores on the state MEAP achievement tests have risen. She also applauded Thomas for trimming the central office administration and for shifting around some school principals to provide fresh leadership.

"Sharon Felan represents the best hope for the continuation of the positive changes that have occurred over the past two years," Paquette said, adding that she and Felan share similar philosophies "of what a good school board member should be, and that's for kids."

Schools urged to close on King's birthday

By DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland schools could begin closing to observe the Jan. 15 birthday of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

Under pressure from some district residents to honor King, school officials have pledged to negotiate for the holiday during future contract talks with employee unions. The birthday is observed on the third Monday in January.

At a minimum, the school board Monday directed the district administration to draft by late June a new policy prohibiting teachers from testing students on King's birthday.

School officials have come under mounting pressure since John Glenn High student Ecole Barrow nearly lost academic credit because she stayed home for King's last observance and missed a final exam.

"That will not happen again," school board president Francis "Bud" Winter told district residents who addressed the board Monday.

Inkster Mayor Edward Bivens Jr., saying people of all races gained from King's teachings, implored the board not to forget Monday's discussion.

"Revisit it with a positive attitude and you will not be looked upon as being racist," he said. "You will be looked upon as being fellow human beings, and that's all that we ask."

The Wayne-Westland district, which serves Wayne, most of Westland and parts of Inkster and Canton Township, has a 12-percent minority student population.

The Inkster City Council has sent the school board a resolution asking that King's birthday become a district holiday.

The Wayne City Council, saying it shouldn't interfere in school business, has rejected a similar resolution sought by Wayne residents Jim Netter and Sandra Barrow, the John Glenn student's mother.

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas recently received a letter asking him to support a school board resolution, but he said Tuesday he is reluctant to meddle in school business. However, he said he will pursue having the city sponsor an event or celebration honoring King.

The letter to Thomas notes that some students miss school on King's birthday to attend community celebrations.

"In brief, the children both black and white are being penalized in their attendance and, in some cases, some teachers in mean spiritedness are scheduling exams," the letter says.

At Monday's school board meeting, the school superintendent stressed that only one teacher gave final exams on King's observance on Jan. 17. But students had the option of taking the test on another day, he said.

Superintendent Thomas, who supports a district holiday honoring King, said the incident "was a single case, and it's not the practice of this school district."

Thomas stressed that other important days, such as the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur, should also be considered as officials implement policies on testing.

Netter, saying children shouldn't be punished for honoring King, said the issue is "creating animosity in the hallways of these schools — needlessly."

Bennie Horne, who identified himself as a former Westland precinct delegate, agreed and said, "You have people out there who are really upset about this, including students."

Board member Patricia Brown said the board needs to address the issue as soon as possible because some district residents "are losing faith in us."

Board members voted unanimously to have the administration draft a policy officially prohibiting test-giving on King's birthday.

$369,832 for the one-time pay-outs.

Board member Richard LeBlanc cast the lone dissenting vote against the two contracts.

"We're still not sure we'll have the money to pay for these increases in 1995," he said.

LeBlanc conceded that the settlements are "unprecedented," referring to them at one point as "outstanding." Moreover, he said his opposition vote shouldn't be viewed as a criticism of administrators or bargaining teams.

"I just don't see the money today to pay for this," he said, adding later, "I hope I can applaud the remainder of this board when the contract is paid for."

Taylor commended district administrators for working two years without a contract and for conceding, in the end, to a three-year salary freeze.

"It's difficult to go that long without a contract, particularly when the people you supervise (teachers) have a contract," he said.

Current salary schedules for the two unions range from $17,000 to $72,307, according to the personnel office. The central office union doesn't include higher-paid cabinet members, such as Thomas and his $110,000 salary.

Board member Laurel Rissanen, a longtime critic of what she had considered exorbitant raises, called the new contracts a "historic compromise" that kept the district out of illegal deficit spending.

With the new settlements, she said, "Kids do come first."

In salary terms, Wayne-Westland administrators rank in the bottom third of all Wayne County school districts, even though the district is the third largest out of 34.

Board member Mathew McCusker said the board would have money to cover the contracts if delays in state aid hadn't occurred. Earlier delays caused the board to borrow $15 million, resulting in $400,000 in interest owed, he said.

"We are stuck because of the stupidity of the people in Lansing," he said.

In return for the one-time payout, administrative unions also agreed to several concessions. Among those:

- Two days have been added to the work year.
- Language relating to vacations has been modified.
- Unused personal days won't be rolled over into a "sick bank."
- Insurance coverage for vision has been reduced.
- Administrators will be evaluated every two years, instead of every three.

MRI — A SAFE, PAINLESS WAY TO BE EXAMINED

by Ashok B. Jain, M.D.

Enjoying

A new technology has paved the way for physicians to examine patients without the potentially harmful effects of x-rays and without having to perform surgery.

Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) offers a safe, painless, and effective way for physicians to evaluate most structures of the human body.

Amazing clarity and detail. MRI can detect and evaluate conditions within the body that traditional x-rays cannot distinguish — including tumors, multiple sclerosis, infections, structural disorders, and injuries such as tears or breaks in ligaments, cartilage, and tendons.

The MRI images are of such amazing clarity and detail that physicians are able to pinpoint brain lesions, and identify problems of the spinal cord, knee, abdomen, and other organs and tissues.

How it works

In part, MRI is a giant magnet. The patient rests in the MRI's hollow cylinder, where a powerful magnetic field and radio waves gather information from a specific site in the body. This information is sent to a computer, where black and white images are generated and physicians analyze the information.

Safe and painless

Because the examination doesn't require any incisions, MRI offers fewer risks than some other diagnostic alternatives.

A typical MRI scan lasts approximately 30 minutes. It poses no risk to the average patient, although individuals with pacemakers, metallic implants, or any type of metal fragment in their bodies may not be examined with MRI.

MRI travels to you

Oakwood Health Services has a mobile MRI unit which travels to neighborhoods surrounding five of the Oakwood health care system hospitals: Annapolis in Wayne, Hoyer in Ypsilanti, Heritage in Taylor, Oakwood in Dearborn, and Seaway in Trenton. It also visits the Oakwood Southgate Health Center in Southgate.

Dr. Jain is a board-certified radiologist with a specialty in Imaging. He is on the Medical Staffs of Annapolis Hospital, Wayne, and Hoyer Hospital, Ypsilanti. Dr. Jain is director of Special Imaging at Annapolis Hospital.

Police visit mall in community outreach effort

Getting printed: Officer Mel Maier (center) ran child identification fingerprint at a child identification display in Westland Center last weekend.

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

Shoppers at Westland Center may have been surprised by the show of force from area police officers at the center court last week.

Officers from Garden City, Westland and Canton participated in programs on crime prevention, anti-drug information, and police training. The U.S. Marshal Service and the Michigan National Guard also had displays.

Garden City police offered a free fingerprint identification for youngsters, which 346 children used over two days.

"The whole point was to have a permanent identification of the kids. There will be more definition as they get older, but their fingerprints won't change," said Garden City crime prevention officer Mel Maier. "We didn't keep any of the fingerprints. We gave them to the parents."

The fingerprint identifications are useful, he said, if the parents happen to be separated from the child. The fingerprints could be sent to agencies in other states if needed to identify a child.

"We were out to let people know that we perform this service and that we are here for the community at large," said Maier, who had the department's traffic unit on display at the mall.

Maier was assisted in the fingerprinting by Garden City Police Explorers and joined by officers from other departments during peak times.

Toy police badges were popular, as about 2,350 were passed out by Garden City, Westland and Canton police. Maier said he also distributed 200 copies each of three different bicycle safety pamphlets.

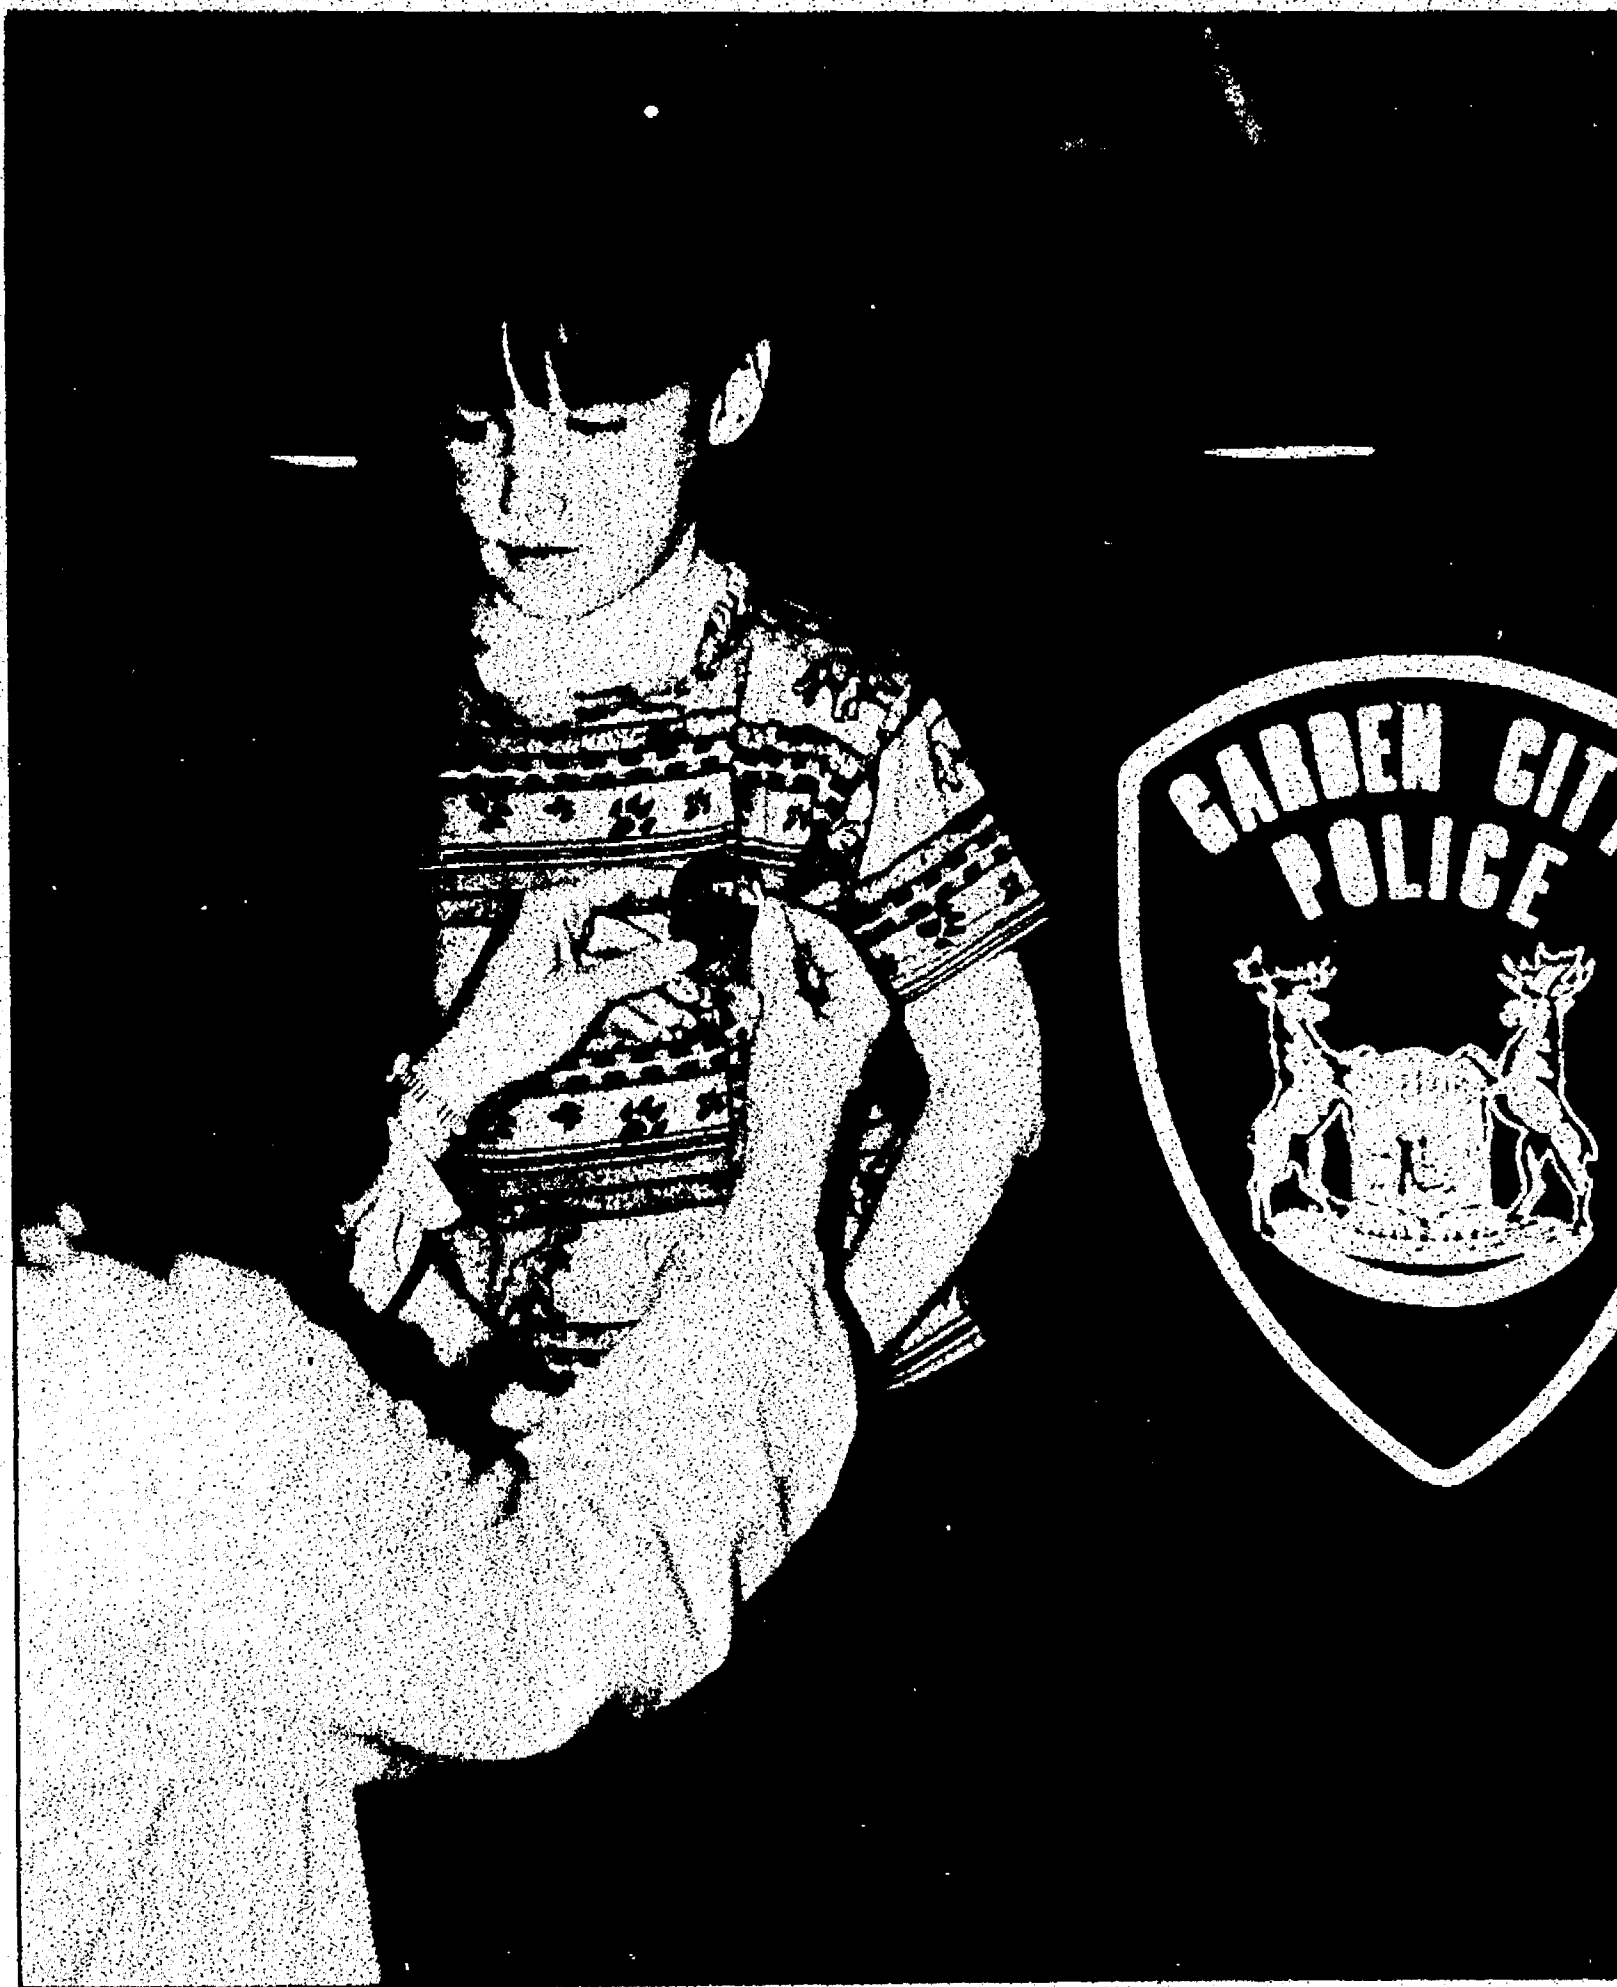

Westland police officers had a large Drug Abuse Resistance Education display and passed out items with the DARE logo. Canton police featured a police motorcycle and car, along with photographs of officers training.

Westland Center's security force also participated, displaying one of its patrol cars and a collection of over 600 police department patches from all over the world.

Musical entertainment was provided by the Washtenaw Knights, an anti-drug and gang group featuring police officers from various departments in that county.

"We felt it was a good opportunity to show that we are community-oriented police department," said Maier. "A lot of residents shop at Westland Center, and we got a lot of cooperation from the mall staff."

Officers also answered questions on a variety of topics from citizens, including information about child car safety seats.

Comments trigger feud

BY DARRELL CLEM

Accused of making an improper campaign speech, a state House candidate was cut short Monday while addressing the Wayne-Westland school board.

Tom Kelly, a Wayne Democrat seeking to succeed state Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, introduced himself and spoke briefly of the importance of education before he was interrupted by school board vice president Mathew McCusker.

"I don't believe this is the proper forum for a campaign speech," McCusker said, tapping a pen in gavel-like fashion.

Kelly, a Wayne city council member, offered an apology and said he wanted nothing more than to introduce himself during a portion of the meeting set aside for comments from citizens. He is seeking the House seat that represents Garden City, Wayne, Inkster and the southeast section of Westland.

Kelly then walked away from the podium, even as some school board members came to his defense.

"He has the right to introduce himself," board member Patricia Brown said. "I don't believe he was going into any issues. We need to know who these people are. The people in the community need to know who these people are."

McCusker indicated that Kelly was out of order because the school board has a policy to prohibit campaigning inside of school district buildings.

When McCusker asked Superintendent Larry Thomas about the policy, Thomas responded, "I would assume this is one of our buildings."

But board president Francis

"Bud" Winter explained that the policy is aimed only at school district employees and their potential campaign activities.

"Personally, I don't believe we're in violation of the policy," Winter said, in Kelly's defense.

"I'm going to simply say I apologize," Winter told Kelly, adding later, "I wish you luck."

McCusker said he couldn't remember another occasion in which a candidate for a partisan public office tried to address the board as Kelly did.

"He was going into a soliloquy on campaigning," McCusker said, turning to Winter as he spoke.

Earlier, McCusker assured Kelly that he meant nothing personal in interrupting what he considered to be a campaign speech.

"I would say that for anybody, not just for you, who I have supported," McCusker said.

Canton police investigate car crash that killed man

A 20-year-old man was killed early Saturday morning when the car in which he was a passenger lost control and struck a tree near Michigan Avenue and Sheldon Road.

Brooks Franklin Murray, 20, no known residence, was pronounced dead at Annapolis Hospital, Wayne, following the one-car accident, said Tammo Colling, Canton community relations police officer.

Three others, two men and a woman, were in the car at the time of the accident.

The driver, Willie Leron Knight III, 20, of Wayne, was seriously injured and taken to St. Mary Hospital, Livonia. Two other passengers, Stanley Hill, 20, of Wayne, and Tamya-Michelle Jones, 18, of Wayne, were transported to St. Joseph Hospital, Ypsilanti.

A Canton officer was on patrol about 4:25 a.m. at Michigan and Sheldon when he saw an Eagle Premier traveling at a high rate of speed eastbound on Michigan Avenue. The officer saw the car lose control, drive through a nearby mailbox and strike a tree. The left rear passenger side of the car, where Murray sat, struck the tree. The officer did not chase the car when he saw it speeding past, Colling said.

"We believe alcohol may played part in the accident," Colling added.

Police are investigating.

Woman sentenced in manslaughter

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland woman who said she accidentally stabbed her husband in the chest during a domestic dispute has been sentenced to five to 15 years in prison.

Leslie Jill Hicks, 34, was sentenced Friday by Detroit Recorder's Judge William Lucas after pleading no contest to involuntary manslaughter, reduced from an earlier charge of second degree murder.

Hicks earlier had indicated in court that she would stand trial as charged, maintaining that she didn't mean to kill Teddy Lynn Morris, 35. She could have faced life in prison if convicted of murder.

Morris died after being stabbed in the chest with a kitchen knife during a domestic dispute that occurred about 3 a.m. Sept. 18 on an outdoor deck in the 5800 block of Linville, west of Wayne Road, north of Ford.

The couple lived at the residence with relatives, including one man who witnessed the argument and was expected to be called to testify at Hicks' trial.

In a statement to police, Hicks said she accidentally stabbed Morris when he fell backward during a shoving match. She told police that she fell on top of him and that the knife plunged into his chest.

"I didn't stab him on purpose. It was an accident," Hicks is quoted as saying in her police statement.

Hicks and Morris had been married only five months when the stabbing occurred, police said.

Hicks was arrested inside the Linville residence shortly after her husband was stabbed, Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe has said. Shortly after the incident, Morris died in the emergency room at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

In her statement, Hicks said she and Morris started arguing several hours before the stabbing, police said. She reported being in the kitchen preparing food when Morris walked out the back door of the house and onto the deck, police said.

Hicks told police that she followed Morris outside and that they started pushing each other. She also reported that Morris began hitting her before he fell backward, with her falling on top of him.

Hicks reportedly tried to revive Morris before he was rushed to Annapolis Hospital.

Families offered educational cable kit

Westland's cable TV subscribers are being offered access to a kit to help families educate themselves on how to take charge of their TV viewing habits.

Continental Cablevision, which has an estimated 23,000 Westland subscribers, announced last week the development of a comprehensive "TV Tool Kit" designed to give each community's families, schools and libraries the multimedia resources they need to help children learn how to take charge of their television viewing, use TV more constructively, and deal with the issue of violence on television.

The company is concerned about how television can influence children, said K.C. Steckelberg, Continental's director of public affairs.

"We have the opportunity to utilize our unique resources in partnership with local schools and parent organizations to bring about a positive change in the way young viewers perceive and use our medium.

"This first-of-its-kind tool kit will help us as we join our community leaders, educators, and parents on a mission to create a generation of 'TV literate' young people," Steckelberg said.

The tool kit, part of Continental's TV literacy effort, "A Different View: Changing the Way Kids See TV," includes:

- "Master Control," a video for children produced by Continental and hosted by Marc Summers of Nickelodeon's "Double Dare." The empowering message to children is that they can take charge of their viewing -- and use TV in better ways -- by understanding how television works and by making choices based on their own opinions and ideas.
- The "Master Control Curriculum Guide" for teachers, to be used in conjunction with classroom screenings of "Master Control." The guide presents discussion topics, suggested classroom activities, and homework assignments keyed to the video segments on understanding the news, the business of television (advertising), TV production techniques, recognizing different types of TV programs, and television violence.
- "Tuning in to Media: Literacy for the Information Age," a video for educators co-sponsored by Continental and produced by Renee Hobbs, director of Harvard University's Institute on Media Education. It introduces educators to the theories of media analysis and education and provides an overview of media literacy concepts to be included in a school curriculum.

■ "Better Viewing: Your Family Guide to TV Worth Watching," a 32-page guide that offers parents help on how to teach children to watch television more selectively, actively, and critically; advice on dealing with violence and commercialism; and tips on using TV as a springboard to family discussion and reading. Also included is a comprehensive guide, by age group, to quality television programs that will inform and entertain.

■ "Leading a TV Literacy Workshop," an outline on how to conduct a workshop for parents on children's viewing, designed to be used both by Continental staff and by parent-teacher organizations. The workshop incorporates the "Master Control" and "Tuning in to Media" videos, and practical advice from the "Better Viewing" guide.

The components of the tool kit will be made available to local schools, parent-teacher organizations, and public libraries to encourage their widest possible use by parents, teachers, and children. In addition, Continental plans to use its community cable TV channels to make viewers aware of the tools available to help their children.

"We believe that just as children learn to read and search for books in a library, it is essential that they also learn to 'read' and 'sort out' information on the television and other new electronic communications media," Steckelberg said.

Archer builds bridges in Livonia

By TED SCHNEIDER Staff Writer

Building city-suburban bridges and giving back -- to the community -- will strengthen the entire region and its residents, Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer said Monday.

Archer, keynote speaker for the 20th anniversary Livonia Community Prayer Breakfast, focused on twin themes of reconciliation for Metro Detroit and personal sacrifice in a 25-minute address before some 1,200 people packed into Burton Manor banquet hall.

The crowd, largest ever for the annual event, included 120 student guests attending with tickets bought by area corporations.

Archer also offered a personal take on the role spirituality plays in his life, noting material successes eventually pale in comparison to facing the mirror every morning "and deciding if you like what you see."

He cited biblical passages -- including a well-known one from Matthew, Chapter 19 -- to illustrate his point. "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God," he quoted.

Those who give of themselves, particularly to people less fortunate, will earn their way "into the kingdom," Archer added.

The first-term mayor reiterated the need for regional cooperation that he had stressed during the fall campaign and cited some successes during his first months in office. He praised suburban involvement in a recent citywide cleanup. The day-long effort drew 17,000 volunteers who collected 122,000 bags of garbage.

He noted that in a metro area so diverse that 141 different languages are spoken, communities like Livonia and Detroit "still have much in common."

"Our competition is not the suburbs," Archer said. "It's the Cleveland region, the Pittsburgh region, Baltimore and Chicago."

"We need to pull together so that we present the strongest challenge we can offer."

Livonia Franklin High student Jason Buelow agreed with Archer's call for unity.

Chris Meyer, a Livonia Churchill High student, said the mayor was also right to point out the positive aspects of diversity and cooperation.

"Livonia doesn't have (diversity), but we have a gold mine next door. We need to take advantage of that."

Amy Dreisbach, also from Churchill, said it was "inspirational" to see a politician who hasn't forgotten his religion.

The youngest guests were Kitty Yost's, entire sixth-grade class from Cleveland Elementary.

Yost said she was prompted into the excursion by two of her students, Tim Kufel and John Hicks, who had asked for permission to be late so they could attend.

"We followed (Archer's) election in class, and I thought what a great opportunity this would be," Yost said.

Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett introduced Archer, praising his efforts in youth programs, drug prevention and recruitment of minority lawyers. Bennett also joked that Archer always "has to contend with me on the dais" when he comes to the area, citing recent meetings of the Conference of Western Wayne and Madonna University.

Sister Mary Danatha of Madonna, chairwoman of the first two prayer breakfasts, offered reflections on 20 years of the event. From the inaugural breakfast in 1975, Danatha said, she has been most pleased "at the eagerness of our community leaders and Livonia citizens to plan a wonderful event of fellowship."

Music was provided by soloist Fred Hubbs Jr., pianist Sharon Smith and Jerry Smith, music director of Ward Presbyterian Church, who led the audience in a pre-breakfast rendition of "God Bless America."

Jobs plentiful for SC grads — Engler

By RALPH R. ECHINAW
STAFF WRITER

Some 350 Schoolcraft College students along with their families and friends turned out Saturday for commencement exercises featuring Gov. John Engler.

"This institution stands for a quality education," Engler said. "And today, the name Schoolcraft on a diploma is a mark of excellence."

Engler predicted a bright immediate future for the grads. "Over the last three years, private payroll in Michigan have added nearly a half-million names. And your names are next. From here in Wayne County to Oakland County to Lansing and to Grand Rapids, employers are reporting shortages of skilled workers. They need you."

Engler noted that Schoolcraft College was the first community college in Michigan to establish a Business Development Center. He cited the Women's Resource Center as a "vital lifeline for single parents who want to get their lives together and get back into the workforce."

Engler singled out three grads for special mention, including Elizabeth Waldrop, who received an associate's degree in computer information systems Saturday. When Waldrop moved to Livonia in 1990, she was newly divorced, financially insecure and a single parent. She worked as a waitress while attending Schoolcraft and attributes her success to the help she received from the Women's Resource Center.

Also mentioned were Mary Cleary, a mother of four grown children who encouraged her children to attend college and went back to Schoolcraft to "complete a dream"; and Michelle Redwell, a single mother with a young daughter who lost her job and enrolled in Schoolcraft to upgrade her skills.

The sole complaint during Engler's appearance came from a crying baby halfway up the bleachers.

There was some question about whether area teachers would picket Engler's appearance, but none did.

The governor, who has been called an enemy of education by teachers, told Schoolcraft professors that "the dedicated and professional teaching staff here at this college... will be a key source of ideas and expertise as we work together to make Michigan's public schools the very best in the world."

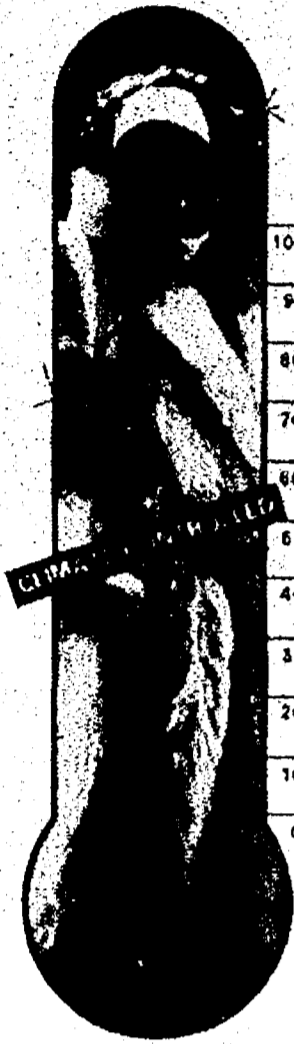

Out in the hallway behind the gym, Denise Fesco of Redford Township watched three little girls while her friend, Marlin Maghee of Farmington, graduat-

Detroit Zoo open longer

The Detroit Zoo is ushering in the change of season and warm weather by opening its gates seven days a week all year long. Previously, the zoo was only open five days per week throughout the winter.

"We strongly believe that the community should be able to enjoy the zoo all the time," said Ron Kagan, director of the Detroit Zoological Parks.

An added reason to visit the Detroit Zoo is Abigail, an 11-year-old chimp, and her new female baby Chiara. Both mother and baby are on exhibit for the first time since Chiara's birth in February. Kagan said. The new schedule began May 1. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission is $6 for ages 13 and older, $4 for senior citizens 62 years and older, $3 for ages 2 to 12, and free for children under 2.

The Detroit Zoo is at the north west corner of the Woodward and 10 Mile Road intersection in Royal Oak, near the exit to I-96.

Conference set

The fee is $835. Call 591-5117.

ed. Fess credits Maghee for encouraging her to become a schoolcraft student.

Katelyn Mieski of Bedford Township kept an eye on her gorgeous toddler nephew, Robert Fox, while little Robert's father graduated. Robert worked the halfway like a little politician, intent upon meeting all the other children. "He's going to be a baby-killer," Mieski said.

Also among the graduates is Sandy Gelman, a 41-year-old mother of two who works for Schoolcraft in the Institutional Advancement office. Gelman's next goal is a bachelor's degree. "Hopefully I'll get that before I'm 50," she said.

Other area graduates include Jill and Brian Pelton of Canton Township, husband and wife, who earned their associate's degrees together as a result of teamwork and togetherness.

Jill has a bachelor's degree and is a teacher certified in industrial education. Looking for a career change, she pursued a nursing degree. Brian earned an associate's degree in science to help in his job in sales.

As part of the ceremony, honorary degrees were awarded to Engler, John M. Hoben, superintendent of Plymouth-Canton schools; and Plymouth Township resident, Tom Bohlender, the owner of 10 car dealerships, including Sunshine Acura in Farmington Hills.

Hoben, who has dedicated most of his life to education, has been the superintendent of Plymouth-Canton since 1971.

After gaining experience as a teacher in Cheboygan and Plymouth schools, he was a counselor, director of guidance, principal, coordinator of Plymouth Community Schools Secondary Education, and assistant superintendent for instruction.

Hoben has served as president of the Plymouth Rotary Club, Plymouth Building Authority, and the Network of Outcome Based Schools; past director of the Michigan Association of School Administrators; and a board member of the United Fund and the YMCA.

Bohlender owns car dealerships in Michigan, Ohio and New Hampshire. He received the 1973 Time Magazine Quality Dealer Award, and he is the Michigan Honda Dealer Council Representative.

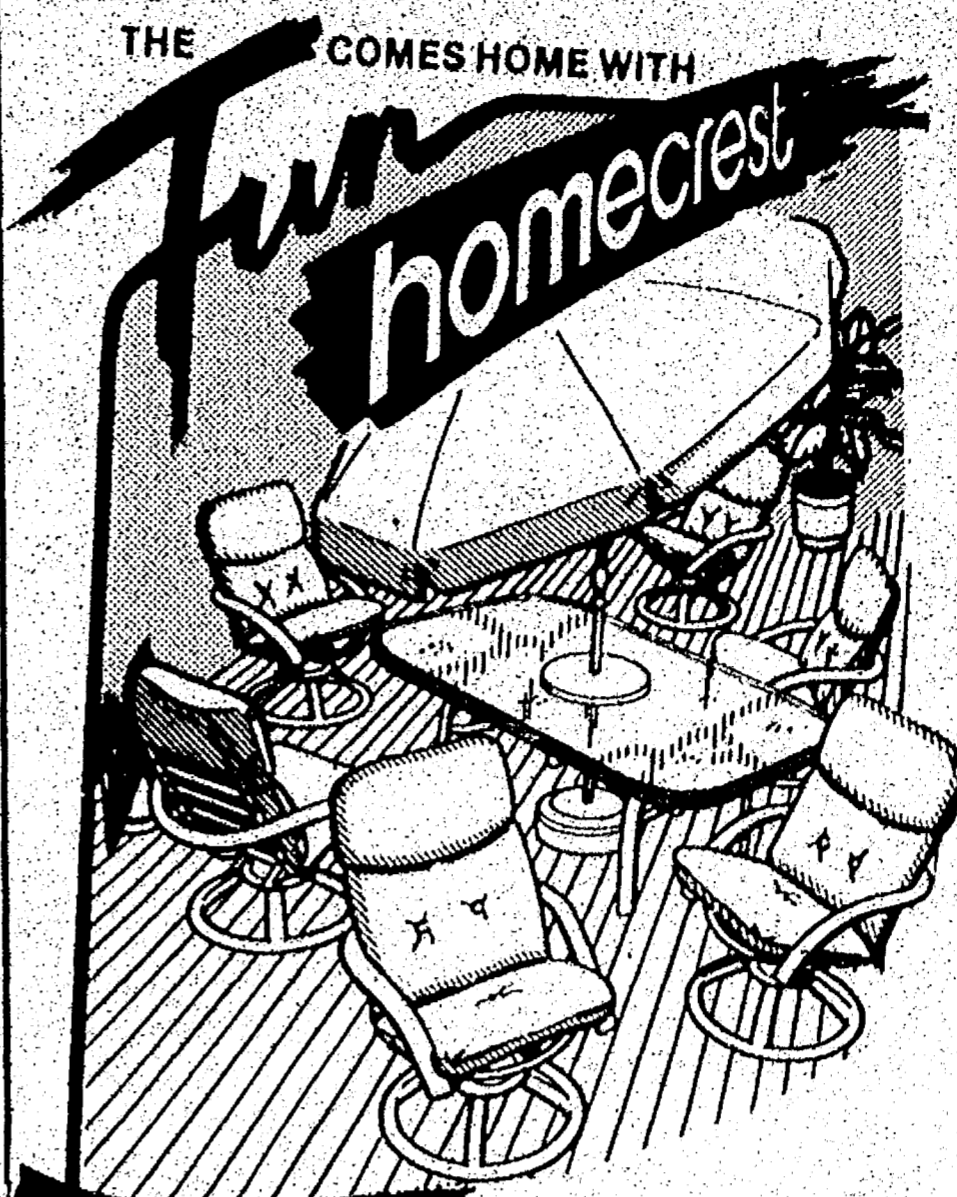

Bohlender is a member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation Board of Governors. He co-chaired the foundation's successful 10th Special Anniversary Golf Tournament - the most successful to date.

He also serves on the Greenhills School Board of Directors.

It's over: Brian and Jill Pelto of Canton Township, parents of two young boys, earned their associate's degrees together. Here they're photographed by fellow graduate Kathleen Kaump.

Quality soars at annual art show

Two Westland women won awards, including "best of show," at the Garden City Fine Arts Association's annual spring show.

Elizabeth Farrell used photos of a farm scene west of Plymouth Township to help create her award-winning "Michigan Farm" painting, named the "best of show" at the Garden City Fine Arts Association's annual spring exhibit.

The Westland woman, a photographer at MotoFoto in Farmington, admitted that she "dabbled" in painting before joining the art association about five years ago.

In earlier association exhibits, Farrell, 47, had won a first place, third place and honorable mention.

In describing the rural scene, Farrell said at Monday night's reception that she "loved the arrangement of buildings and silo - it was almost perfect." She took numerous photos of the scene before editing them and painting the scene for this week's exhibit.

Another Westland artist in the show was Laurel Raisanen, a member of the Wayne-Westland school board. She won second place in the dry category for her "Trapped" art work.

Norma McQueen, completing her fourth year as association president, said that the annual spring shows are becoming more competitive and exhibiting more quality.

"The artists (in the exhibit) are taking classes and it shows," McQueen said.

The exhibit attracted 20 artists who entered paintings. They were judged by Audrey DeMarco, a Birmingham artist and instructor. Ribbons were presented in the wet and dry categories.

Winners in the wet category are:

Other exhibitors were Maryellen Brittain, Raymond Davison, Art Fallert, Barbara Fulton, Barbara Gesny, Gregory Locke, Gene Mitz, Diana Redick, Robert Sheridan, Elizabeth Simon, Julianne Swistock, and Helene Zelenka.

The exhibit will continue at the Garden City Library, 2012 Middlebelt, today (Thursday) through 9 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. The library is closed Friday.

The New Life Center at Providence Park

Where families are born...close to home

The New Life Center at Providence Park thanks the many families who came by our open house on May 1. Hundreds of families toured the comfortable, home-like rooms, learned about family-centered care and enjoyed refreshments and entertainment.

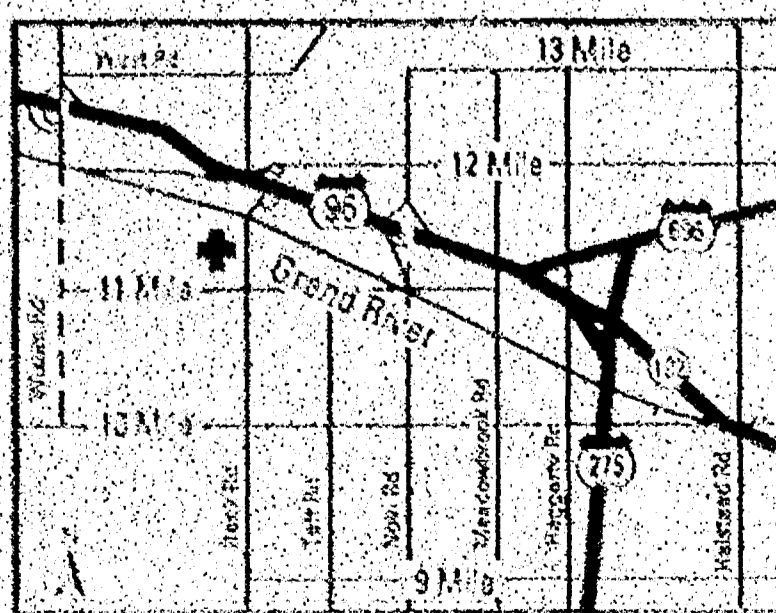

You'll find the choices are many at Providence. From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. And think about being able to go home 24 hours after your baby is born. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. That's the kind of extra care, attention and education families receive from Providence.

If you are thinking of having a baby, call us for a tour at 1-800-806-BABY.

Come see for yourself what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

Singer: The male rose-breasted grosbeak is sometimes more easily identified by his song than by his appearance.

Special song characterizes rose-breasted grosbeaks

NATURE TRAILS: Within the last four weeks we have been able to add two new birds to our yard list. We had never seen a wood duck in our yard until just a few weeks ago, and then more recently we spotted a male rose-breasted grosbeak. As the name suggests, it has a large, cone-shaped bill, similar to that of a cardinal. Their cone-shaped bills are designed for opening seeds. We have seen this process in action as it feeds on the black-olive sunflower seeds in our feeder.

In order to get to our feeder it perches on the magnolia tree to search for danger. While he is perched we get a chance to see his striking colors. Right in the middle of the chest is a rose colored patch. Surrounding the patch from below is the white of the belly. Above the rose patch is the black of the head. Viewing it's striking colors amid the pink and white blossoms of the magnolia is a picture perfect portrait.

Though the colors of a male are very bold, it is sometimes hard to see them. It is easier to identify them by their song, as I did. After I heard the bird singing, I looked up and saw it among the leafless branches. To many, the song of a rose-breasted grosbeak's song is faster and "higher" pitched than that of the robin.

Males arrive here first from their wintering grounds in Central America and begin singing to establish a nesting territory. Females arrive later and will select a suitable territory with its resident male. Forests and the edge of forests are the typical areas for nesting. Though we do not have a forest, we do have some bushes near tall trees that would provide suitable nest sites.

Both male and female will participate in building a loose nest made primarily of twigs about 10 feet off the ground. After egg laying, both adults will incubate the eggs and care for the young after they hatch. Female rose-breasted grosbeaks can also be heard singing, a characteristic not common among birds.

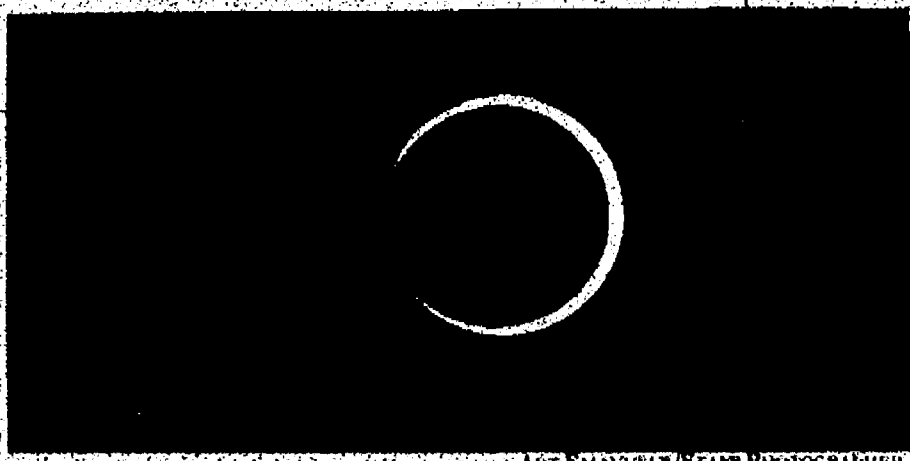

I hope this male finds a mate. It would be nice to watch them at our feeder all summer long.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You may leave him a message using a Touch-Tone phone at 953-2017, mailbox 1874.

Sky show: This is what western Wayne County sky-watchers saw Tuesday afternoon when roughly 95 percent of the sun disappeared Tuesday early afternoon resulting in a thin fiery ring surrounding the moon. The sun was eclipsed for more than five minutes, with the maximum coverage occurring at 1:12 p.m.

Family Service marks 115th year

Family Service—Detroit and Wayne County will celebrate its 115th anniversary when supporters gather for its annual meeting Wednesday, May 18, at the International Conference Center in Detroit.

Trudy DunCombe Archer, 36th District Court Judge and wife of Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer, will be the keynote speaker. She will address how the strength of families can prevent children from becoming delinquent. Archer will also discuss her recent appointment by Gov. John Engler to help lead Michigan's participation in celebrating 1994 as the International Year of the Child, as proclaimed by the United Nations. "We are pleased to have an advocate for families and children, Trudy Archer, join us for our anniversary celebration," said Family Service president William Bishop. Family Service is one of the area's oldest human service agencies. In 1993, Family Service helped more than 6,000 individuals and families in Wayne County at its 10 offices in Canton, Dearborn, Detroit, Livonia, Trenton and Westland. A United Way agency, its mission is to build strong families for the community through counseling, education, advocacy and training from a family-focused perspective. Entertainment will be by the Stage Band of Detroit Central High School, Archer's alma mater. Partial underwriting for the band has been provided by the Mel Parr Automotive Group Inc. The luncheon meeting will be 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Greentown conference center. Tickets are $25 for individuals; table sponsorships are available for $250. For reservations or information, contact Sue Voyles at Family Service at (313) 961-1684.

I HAVE FOLLOWED YOUR COLUMN FOR QUITE SOME AND AM FASCINATED BY YOUR WORK. YOU WAS A LETTER FROM A WRITER, SUCH AS MYSELF, WHO DOES NOT WRITE LONGHAND, WHICH I FOUND INTERESTING. I HAVE DECIDED TO SUBMIT A SAMPLE OF MY WRITING IN THE HOPE YOU WILL CONSIDER IT FOR A FUTURE COLUMN.

Dear Ms. Green, I have followed your column for quite some time and am fascinated by your work. You had a letter recently from a writer, such as myself, who does not write in longhand, which I found interesting. I have decided to submit a sample of my writing in the hope that you will consider it for a future column. I am 33 three years of age, an office administrator and right handed. Some of my hobbies are golf, bowling and calligraphy. I would welcome any comments or additional insight on what my handwriting might tell you further about me. I thank you for your time and consideration and, as always, I look forward to your next article.

K.K. Westland

First we learn to write according to our classroom instruction. However, people with a strong need to express their individuality often change to a style that fits their personality. Today's writing is more printing or printscript, which is a combination of printing and writing. This style is usually preferred by strong-minded, independent people. If the printing is not work-related, it probably presents a stylized facade, useful in achieving anonymity. Block printing can hide many feelings. She may seem both perceptive and insensitive at the same time. Her extremely heavy pressure coupled with the large size registers willpower and tells us she is determined to overcome obstacles. Whatever she does, she does with a passion. She does not allow herself to be dominated. This young woman places a great deal of importance on the events of her daily life. She wants to be in the center of things and is somewhat self-involved. Heavy pressured writers can usually find release in physical activity. So her golf and bowling should provide a good outlet for her. Female influence from the formative years appears to be more pronounced than the male influence. Seemingly, she feels some emotional deprivation. There are many things which she wants. They may represent love to her. Our writer tends to control her reactions. Hasty decisions are not for her. She wants to obtain all the facts before committing herself. "What can this situation do for me?" is a question she often poses to herself. Her considered responses can make her appear aloof. Making a good first impression is important. And she may come on a little strong in her effort to do so. A marked difference between the text of her writing and her signature suggests the difference between her public and private representation of herself. She is not a book that can be judged by its cover. Her wider right margin than left hints at some reluctance to face the people or an event in the future. If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48160. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful, and objective feedback is always welcomed.

Mama, I wish I realized all these things long ago. I would have been able to engage in more of those heart-to-heart talks. I'd let you know how I struggle with words that begin to adequately describe what you mean to me. But in that 20/20 vision of hindsight, I am finding some of the incredible gifts you gave us over and over again — enjoyment, values, openness and listening.

And looking backwards, I discover that the first letters of your characteristics spell out E.V.O.L. That's looking at L.O.V.E. in reverse! And finally, we have a word that begins to capture what you have meant to us, and how you are cherished beyond time.

Thank you, Mama, for the roots you gave us as a creatively loving woman. And thank you for the wings of steadfast confidence you had in each one of us. You enabled us to soar to new adventures.

I'll try and pass these gifts along. The Rev. Kate Thoresen is director of the Partnership Ministries at the First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham. If you have a question or comment, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1882, on a Touch-Tone phone.

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

Gardening questions are answered here

Question: When can I prune spring flowering shrubs?

Answer: Forsythia, lilacs and deutzia produce flower-bearing branches in the previous growing season and need to be pruned immediately after flowering so new growth can develop before winter.

Forsythia adds a bright note to the garden and reminds us that spring has arrived. The undemanding plants like to retain their naturally graceful form. It won't hurt the plant to take a few branches for forcing indoors several weeks earlier, when the blossoms are formed.

Lilacs (Syringa) will reward you with larger clusters of flowers the next year if faded flowers are pruned off. Some Syringas produce suckers. Don't prune them all away, rather cut out the older stems so that the plant is constantly renewed. Buy only lilacs that are grown on their own roots, not grafted ones.

Deutzia plants naturally are left with dead limbs, which will be noticeable when they start to grow as the weather warms up. Prune them out to keep the shrub clean and neat each year.

If any of these plants become crowded, up to one-fourth of the old flowering stems can be removed without harming the plants. In the fall, remove weak growth and awkward branches to keep the plants in good form. When planting, cut out weak or damaged stems and cut back the tips (about six inches) on the main shoots to a strong pair of buds.

Q: How do I care for lavender plants?

A: This question is often asked when I lecture about herbs. Lavendulas can become sprawly and get heavy, unsightly branches and become bare at the base if they aren't kept in shape from the first planting. They won't rejuvenate from bare wood.

The first year prune hard for strong, bushy growth - remove about one-third of the plant. Then each subsequent spring remove old flower spikes and one to two inches of growth made the previous season. In the fall, leave the dead flower spikes (that you haven't used for cooking or crafts) over the winter to provide protection for the plants. Propagate existing lavender plants this summer by layering, then start anew when they are severed from the mother plant.

Q: Do you have any suggestions about planting clematis?

A: I checked with Dick Donahue, owner of Donahue's Clematis Specialists (P.O. Box 366, Faribault, Minn. 55021).

ART EMANUELE/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Variety reigns

VAAL shows a blend of artistic talent

Visual Arts Association of Livonia brings a broad mix of fine art to the Livonia City Hall lobby for the group's 20th annual spring show during May.

By JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

If there's a theme for this year's spring show presented by Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL), it's diversity.

"It's a strong show and so diverse in terms of subject matter, artists and talent. These artists aren't just a group of ladies who paint flowers, though I happen to like flowers," said Livonia's Audrey Harkins, a watercolorist and VAAL exhibit chairwoman.

The 20th annual spring show, sponsored by Livonia Cultural League, the City of Livonia and Livonia Arts Commission, runs 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday, through May 27, in the Livonia City Hall lobby, at Five Mile and Farmington Road, Livonia.

Admission to the show is free.

Awards go to Best of Show, first through third place in all categories and honorable mention. Also presented were the Grumbacher Award, for best use of color, and a cash prize for the Livonia Arts Commission's favorite entry.

Show-goers will see about 70 pieces of fine art, including oils, acrylics, watercolors and mixed media, representing a range of styles and subjects. Most are priced from $60 to around $600. Some works from the artists' personal collection are not offered for sale.

Hills, juried the entries.

"If you liked the Livonia Artists Club show (April 9-10), you'll enjoy this one more," said VAAL president Eileen Bibby, a Livonia watercolorist. "This event includes more artists and has more variety and diversity. It's fun to stroll through even if you don't buy."

The show is the biggest yearly event for the 90-member group, whose membership comes from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. Members say VAAL's biggest draw, bringing artists from Ann Arbor, Dearborn and downriver, is the art classes it runs through the year at Livonia's Jefferson Center.

"This will be a beautiful show," said Stephanie Skaggs, Livonia Arts Commission vice chairwoman. "Our committee was impressed with the quality of the work. We'd like to have given several awards because it was hard to narrow our choice down to just one."

Bibby's watercolor, "Lacy Kale," an interpretative painting of a leafy, flowering cabbage, picked up the Livonia Arts Commission award.

"I was so excited. I couldn't believe it," said Bibby, who's also won awards this year from the Milford Pine Arts Club and Dearborn Arts & Crafts Club. "Lacy Kale" also won the Grumbacher Award at the Livonia Artists Club show.

"I grew the cabbage in my yard."

Floral artistry to adorn Plymouth cooperative

The Michigan Art Exchange will present "Floral Extravaganza" Friday-Sunday, May 13-15, at the Plymouth gallery, 470 Forest, in Forest Place Mall.

Co-sponsors are Heide's Flowers & Gifts; Silk Flowers & Things; Wesley Berry Flowers of Plymouth and the Flower Garden, which will fill the gallery with fresh, silk and dried flower arrangements.

The event will feature oil and watercolor paintings by members of the artists cooperative. Artists include Andrea Dezell, Janis Madras, Judy Mauhut, Terri Jurewicz, Diane Tasselmyer, Nancy Dandy, Joyce Tinkham and Marie Tuthill.

The event will be held in conjunction with the grand opening of the Michigan Art Exchange. A ribbon cutting ceremony with the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce takes place at 5 p.m. Friday, May 13.

"We're having a May floral gala. It's going to be colorful. All the artists are getting together all their floral paintings and prints. The florists, what they're going to try to do, is put flowers next to the work," said Plymouth resident Frank Kusznik, MAE co-director.

Exhibiting artists include Andrea Dezell of Plymouth, Judy Mauhut and Nancy Dandy of Redford Township; Diane Tasselmyer, Westland; Terri Wilva Jurewicz, Dexter; Janis Madras and Joyce Tinkham, Superior Township; and Marie Tuthill, Livonia.

A sense of tranquility flows through the viewers of Tuthill's oil and watercolor landscape paintings. A new work by the 30-year painter features a still life bouquet of lilacs and snowballs with a landscape in the background.

"It sounds exciting. I like the people running the gallery. They seem like they're really trying to help the artists," said Tuthill, who was one of the original Livonia arts commissioners.

VAAL is dedicated to advancing the knowledge and appreciation of the creative arts by offering studio classes and twice-yearly exhibits. VAAL is supported in part by the Livonia Arts Commission, city of Livonia and Livonia Cultural League.

COUNTRY MEETING

The Garden City Fine Arts Association held its monthly club meeting at a different location May 4 - the home of local businessman Bob Sheridan, also a club member. The four-acre grounds - replete with trees, a pond, ducks and azaleas - provided a picturesque setting for the artists to sketch.

The Sheridans treated the 25 artists to a cookout.

During the business part of the meeting, new club officers were elected: Ray Davison, president, and Lucy Morningstar, secretary. Norma McQueen is outgoing president after four years in the post.

The next club meeting is June 1 at Maplewood Center.

TOP SELLER

Sanford Norman, an associate broker at Century 21 Town & Country in Birmingham and a Top Million Dollar Club member, was honored at the Century 21 international convention in New Orleans.

Norman has sold more than $50 million worth of real estate in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area in the past five years. He was a featured speaker at the convention on the subject of power prospecting.

Century 21 Town & Country, with which Norman is associated, sells more houses than any other Century 21 firm in the world.

BUYERS AGENT

Kole Property, a buyers agent, has opened real estate offices in Laurel Park Place, 17370 N. Laurel Park Place, four doors west of the AMC Theaters, Livonia. The telephone number is 953-3100.

Traditionally, real estate agents have been legally bound to represent the interests of the seller even though many prospective house buyers have been under the misconception the real estate agent they were working with was working for them, says Dennis Koltunichik, Kole president and a former practicing attorney.

Recent legislation requiring real estate agents to disclose their agency, however, hopefully will encourage buyers to seek out agents who will work with their interests in mind, not the sellers, Koltunichik said.

Dennis Koltunichik and vice president Walter Koltunichik have a total of 50 years' experience in real estate and real estate related services.

GRI DESIGNATION

Paddy Kutchev, a Realtor associate at Chamberlain Realtors Birmingham, has achieved the Michigan Association of Realtors GRI designation.

This designation, like a college degree or professional designation, shows that the 30-year sales veteran has the highest quality real estate credentials and training.

She also recently attended a seminar sponsored by Republic Bancorp Mortgage Inc. on "How to Stay on the Cutting Edge Without Losing Your Balance."

Century 21 Sakmar & Associates, a full-service real estate firm, has moved from the historic train depot to the newly newly renovated fire hall in downtown Rochester.

In five months, Depot Plaza Properties Inc. partners Andy Sakmar (of Century 21 Sakmar & Associates) and Larry Smith (of Rochester Elevator) renovated and remodeled the fire hall. Move in was April 15.

Century 21 Sakmar & Associates

new home in The Depot Plaza also sports a new name: the Ann Building. "The Ann Building is now one of the finest architectural jewels in downtown Rochester," Sakmar said.

"We tried to bring the building to its original state," he added. "In the 1920s, it was a car dealership."

The Rochester architectural firm of Gerald J. Yurk & Associates met the challenge through a distinctive architectural design.

Sakmar also was determined to accentuate the original wood barrel roof and the bow string trusses. They are now refinished and the focal point of the main office area.

"The 5,300-square-foot building, of which we will occupy 4,300 square feet, will triple our current space," Sakmar said.

"This additional space will allow us to expand our business and enable us to continue to provide the most professional and up-to-date real estate services our community has come to expect from Century 21 Sakmar & Associates."

A licensed Realtor for 21 years, Sakmar is past president of the Rochester Board of Realtors, The Greater Rochester Chamber of Commerce member is on the Crittenton Hospital Business and Development Committee.

Sellers — know what disclosure means

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Is there anything I can do as a seller under the law in providing the purchaser with a seller's disclosure statement?

A. Yes. In lieu of providing the seller's disclosure statement, the seller can provide a prospective purchaser with a report prepared by a licensed contractor, if the report is provided upon the request of a prospective purchaser.

However, this exemption will not help the seller if the seller had knowledge of a known defect or condition that contradicts the report provided by the licensed expert. In other words, if your inspector misses a leaking roof and the seller is aware of the problem from inhabiting the property, the seller would still be required to disclose the problem to the prospective purchaser.

Moreover, the seller's disclosure statement must be provided to a prospective purchaser before the time the seller accepts an offer made by the prospective purchaser.

If the seller's disclosure statement is not provided to the prospective purchaser until after a purchase agreement has been signed by the seller, then upon receipt of the seller's disclosure statement, the purchaser is provided 72 hours in the case of personal delivery, and 120 hours in the case of delivery by registered mail, to rescind the transaction.

Q. Under the seller's disclosure law, how detailed does the seller have to be in terms of inspecting the property in order to make a disclosure?

A. Under the seller's disclosure law, the seller is only required to disclose what they have learned about the property from living on the property.

Unless the seller is advised by someone, the seller is not held to have any expertise in construction, architecture or any other area specifically related to construction or the condition of the improvements on the property.

In addition, the seller's disclosure statement required by the statute provides that the seller would not have conducted any inspection of inaccessible areas such as the foundation or the roof.

Further, the seller's disclosure statement specifically provides that the representations made by the seller in the statement are not warranties of any kind and are not a substitute for any inspections the purchasers should continue to obtain.

It was apparently the intent of the Legislature to provide for legislation to be filled out by knowledgeable people and not to attempt to grade the quality or condition of the particular amenities of the property.

For example, the sellers may be required to indicate whether the roofs leak or don't leak but are not required to attempt to describe either the source of the leak or the cost of repairing the leak.

Ultimately, the courts will be called upon to answer some of the ambiguities created by the new legislation.

Q. I live in a homeowner association-PUD where the board has, in my opinion, illegally raised the assessments without getting the requisite number of co-owners to approve it and by using proxies illegally at a meeting. The board put a lien on a unit, utilizing an attorney who is on the board. I want to get the lien extinguished, but I wonder if I have any other recourse against the association?

A. A lien that was improperly filed against a co-owner could be deemed slander of title, for which you would be entitled to additional damages. Also, you could have a claim against the association for mismanagement and could conceivably start a class-action suit in behalf of the other members who have wrongfully been assessed by the association.

Also, for the board to utilize an attorney who is also on the board may well be deemed to be not only poor business management, but a potential conflict for that board member who is acting as an attorney, particularly if the work is not done properly or is otherwise illegal. It may well be worth your while to consult with an attorney, particularly because this abuse by the association, if not abated, could become worse.

"It seems like there's a strong market for more affordable," he said. "That's why we stepped up to the plate and bought all 110 lots here."

The three models are small by conventional "new" standards but seem larger with high ceilings and creative placement of windows and doorways.

"Because of the square footage situation, that (sloped ceilings) significantly tends to create the impression of more space through trusses," Jacobson said. "We tried to use as much glass as possible but still keep it where we can sell at an affordable price point."

To keep basic prices as low as possible, air conditioning and fireplaces are options. Exteriors consist of vinyl siding and wood trim all the way around. Lots are 50 feet wide. Master suites have showers instead of a tub/shower combination or separates.

But that isn't to say that the models look chintzy.

The Shelburne, a bi-level, has a living room, a large country kitchen with breakfast nook, and three bedrooms, all with sloped ceilings, on the upper level. The lower level, when finished, contains a family room, an optional den or extra bedroom and laundry.

The Foxborough, a colonial, shows a separate dining room, kitchen/nook, living room, powder room and laundry on the first floor, three bedrooms and two baths upstairs. Again, all the bedrooms have sloped ceilings.

The Danbury, a ranch, has sloped ceilings in all the rooms - living rooms, dining room/kitchen, master, and the two smaller bedrooms, one of which can easily be turned into a den. The laundry is in the basement.

Standard features in all models include two-car garage; range, dishwasher and garbage disposal;

Need to grow spurs industry merger

By DOUG FUNK, STAFF WRITER

There are a few basic ways for a business to grow. Increase sales, slash expenses, find new investors or stock offerings, Merger.

Macauley's Office Products, a family-owned firm with a 125-year history, and Business Resources, founded in 1980, headquartered in Canton and one of the largest companies owned by women in southeast Michigan, have decided to marry and become Macauley's Business Resources.

"We started meeting in late July last year to discuss the possibility of merging," said Jack Macauley, a Bloomfield Township resident who will serve as president/chief executive officer of the joint operation. "After a long series of meetings, here we are today with a letter of intent signed."

A target date of June 1 has been set to complete the arrangement.

It hasn't yet been determined whether Macauley's Business Resources will expand and establish headquarters at Macauley's Oak Park site, Business Resources' Canton location or somewhere in between.

Ann Wray and Bonnie Crooks, who founded Business Resources, will serve as vice president of finance and chief operating officer and vice president of marketing, respectively.

The firms are called excepta from a recent interview with Macauley, Wray and Crooks.

Why merge? "Mainly for one reason for merger is to grow a business. That's not to say we're out of business tomorrow. But we do have, as the possibility and carpeting in all bedrooms. A basement is standard in the ranch and colonial models.

Elements adding warmth and charm to what Jacobson termed a "new traditionalism" exterior look include lap siding, shutters, curved windows and covered porches.

"I think the selling point is the fact we build quality product at an affordable price in a superb location," he said.

Singh Development of Birmingham developed the property. Coppen Architects of Northville designed the models.

The subdivision is serviced by city water and sewers. An annual association fee of about $100 for each house is contemplated to maintain common grounds.

Hunt Club is in the Avondale School District.

The current property tax rate for municipal, school and county services is about $36 per $1,000 of state-equalized valuation...

Ninety percent of the buyers in Hunt Club are first-time home buyers of any kind, new or existing, Jacobson said.

"They're coming out of rentals. They're young professionals — teachers, pharmacists, engineers, physical therapists. Thirty percent are single."

Margie Skannal will move from a condominium in Troy to a ranch in Hunt Club. The Danbury is her first new house.

"To me, it's so small and cozy, perfect for one person or a small family," she said.

Skannal selected a few upgrades including fireplace and a full tub in the master suite.

Art and Elaine Peralta and their two children will move from a townhouse into a colonial, also their first new house.

"I think it was the model with the best square footage for us," Elaine said. "I liked the floor plan. The rooms were a good size. We basically liked the kitchen and formal dining room."

It was also important to the family to remain in the Avondale School District, Elaine said.

The Hunt Club sales office, 852-3110, is open noon to 6 p.m. seven days a week.

of going out of business at the turn of the century was very great.

Wray: With the industry changing the last few years, we realized we had to get bigger to survive.

We looked at their (Macauley's) customers, and they were similar to ours. We looked at their company philosophy, and it was similar to ours.

Macauley: Competitive factors in the marketplace that had been forcing (profit) margin erosion, coupled with the entry of superstores with the perception they're the lowest-price place to buy...

Macauley: We will be putting combined 45 sales people on the road. We'll be doing things like corporate video, consumer shows, bringing people in to see new products.

Wray: We have sales people on the street looking for new construction, growth areas. Knocking on doors. And of course, word of mouth.

Wray: We all do some advertising. Trade magazines. How do you expect that your business will shake out?

Wray: About 25 percent furniture.

Macauley: Seventy percent office supplies or word processing information supplies. Five percent office machines.

Wray: And suckers to banks for within $100,000 in total sales. We intend to get it to $50 million in a couple of years. That's our whole thrust.

How do you propose to get there?

Crooks: In general, by implementing some new programs we're working on together... in marketing ideas or service ideas.

Now, we're in southeast Michigan and Toledo. Gradually, we would like to expand out from that area and gradually increase national account participation.

Macauley: We will be putting combined 45 sales people on the road. We'll be doing things like corporate video, consumer shows, bringing people in to see new products.

Wray: We have sales people on the street looking for new construction, growth areas. Knocking on doors. And of course, word of mouth.

Wray: We all do some advertising. Trade magazines. How do you expect that your business will shake out?

Wray: About 25 percent furniture.

Macauley: Seventy percent office supplies or word processing information supplies. Five percent office machines.

Wray: And suckers to banks for kids that come in.

How many employees do you have now and what do you expect when the merger is complete?

Wray: We have 110. Macauley: We have 160, including 35 in our six retail stores.

Wray: Cutbacks? Very few. We hope any reduction comes through attrition or from people who can't physically make the move wherever we end up. We figured there's a very small number of duplication. The hope is where we have duplication, we'll be able to use those employees elsewhere.

What did each of you see in the other as a merger partner?

Macauley: Business Resources has a really good computer-aided design department for furniture design, layout, color coordination.

Crooks: Macauley's is part of a very large national network of independent dealers across the U.S. and Canada.

How do you feel about giving up your independence and some control?

Macauley: We realize we'll give up the family business structure and not operate it as a family anymore. We hope it will be a brand new family. It will be Macauley's Business Resources family with the new business.

I still will have a son directly involved in commercial sales and a daughter with furniture sales.

Help enhance your home

Americans are tired of having to shop for their dream home in a bland sea of look-alikes, according to a recent Builder Magazine focus group study.

The study showed that while different ages and occupations lead to a diverse list of requirements for homes and townhouses, several specific features made the top of the list in every group: Natural light and scenic views were two areas the groups were not willing to compromise on.

Natural light equates spaciousness and warmth while landscaped views through well-positioned windows reflect quality, says Paul Martin, territory sales manager, Pella Window & Door Co., a local distributor of Pella Wood Windows and Doors.

"More home buyers are expecting their desire for abundant light and views to be addressed at the blueprint stage," Martin said.

"Even do-it-yourself remodelers are working to add these features to their homes with custom wood windows. In addition to aesthetics, larger or uniquely shaped windows can add light and views that make older homes more attractive to new buyers."

Among the Builder Magazine singles and couples focus group, 80 percent expect bay windows to be standard, topped only by a fireplace and high ceiling. Also, skylights were considered a standard feature by 68 percent of the group.

"The traditional family symbols, like spacious kitchens, are still a priority, but they are being combined more frequently with these stylish features," said Martin. "Homebuyers and homeowners have more choices than ever to reflect their own needs and personalities. More windows in a home make careful selection even more important in terms of quality, performance and durability."
