Spouse abuse case worries judge

BY DARRELL CLEM

A Westland judge, saying he fears a "bizarre" domestic violence case could end in a killing, voiced deep concerns Thursday about a male defendant accused of trying to push his wife into the path of oncoming traffic. "This is one of the most bizarre cases we've had around here," 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos said in court Thursday morning. "Someone's going to get killed, and I'm worried about that."

A Belleville man, 35, is in jail after being charged with assaulting his wife, a Westland resident. The man is accused of trying to push the woman into traffic and other violent acts, prompting unusual concern from Judge Charles Bokos.

The judge's remarks came as David Paul Freed, 35, stood mute on a misdemeanor spouse abuse charge that stems from allegations he tried to push his wife, 35, into oncoming traffic Wednesday on Merriman near Glen. The woman wasn't hit.

Freed already was on probation for a February assault in which Bokos said the wife suffered a severely bruised eye. The latest charge prompted Bokos to set a $25,000 bond — relatively high for a misdemeanor charge.

"This case has got me worried to death," Bokos told Freed. "I'm not sure what's going to happen between you two people."

Bokos voiced frustration that the wife in February posted a $1,000 bond so that Freed could be released from jail. Under questioning by local reporters Thursday, Bokos said victims of abuse often feel guilty when a spouse is locked up.

Court administrator David Wlasek talked with Freed's wife Thursday and said she assured him that she wouldn't post her husband's bond this time. The couple are in the process of divorce, police reports said. Freed has been living in Belleville and his wife in Westland.

The defendant has been scheduled for a pretrial hearing Tuesday. He

Road crew trashes neighbors' effort to spruce up street

Bob and Rhonda Osterman spent 25 hours of their time and $500 of their neighbors' money to spruce up the entrance island to Westland Woods, the upscale subdivision where they live on Cherry Hill Road east of Newburgh.

A week later, road crews destroyed much of the work during a widening/reconstruction project on Cherry Hill. Like a huge animal eating its prey, a bulldozer chomped at flowers, river rocks and dirt, leaving the Ostermans' efforts in shambles.

"It was kind of heartbreaking after we went to all that work," Bob Osterman, a Northwest Airlines employee, said.

Ironically, the damage occurred July 12, one day after a story chronicling the couple's efforts appeared in the Westland Observer. Neighbors began asking the Ostermans why they didn't postpone their project until Cherry Hill had been widened.

The pair said they had been told by a county-hired subcontractor that the entrance island wouldn't be damaged because it wasn't in the path of work crews. So the Ostermans planted

A knife-wielding bandit robbed the Speedway gas station at Merriman Road and Van Born early Thursday, assaulting a 52-year-old female clerk before fleeing on foot, police said.

The woman was hit but not seriously injured by the robber, who escaped with an undisclosed amount of money during the 2 a.m. incident, Westland Detective Sgt. Donald Haigh said.

On Monday, meanwhile, a hammer-wielding bandit robbed the Dunkin' Donuts at Ford and Wildwood, smashing the glass counter with his weapon before fleeing with money that he took during the 6:44 p.m. incident.

In the Speedway incident, the suspect was carrying a long-bladed knife when he entered the gas station, on the northeast corner of Merriman and Van Born, and demanded money.

PLACES & FACES

Signs of the times

The Observer received a call from a man last week who complained of state Senate candidate Charles Griffin putting campaign signs on county and Detroit Edison rights-of-way. One sign in particular created a potential safety problem caused by a sign on Merriman-Warren Road traffic island, said the caller. An inspection of the island that day also showed that there was a campaign sign a few feet away promoting Griffin's opponent, David Jackson, as well as one by a non-local judicial candidate. About an hour later, the Observer noticed that the three signs were either removed or torn down. In the ever-fluid world of politics, Griffin's sign was observed Friday back on the traffic island while the other two signs were relocated across the street.

Sailboat contest planned

The Westland recreation department is planning its first toy sailboat contest on Saturday, Aug. 20, at Central City Park, south of Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. The event will be at Pavilion II, which can be reached from Marquette. Competition will be held in two age groups: 6-9 and 10-14. Contestants must be accompanied by an adult. Persons may register at Bailey Center seven days a week and obtain a copy of the contest's rules. Rain date is Sunday, Aug. 21.

Groups and individuals are encouraged to submit announcements to this column. Information must be in writing and directed to the Westland Observer editorial department, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48160. Our fax number is 591-7279.

'I'm living proof'

Graduate, 64, says dreams come true

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Westland's Bessie Wallace had every reason to give up on life. Instead, she worked to make her dreams come true.

So poor were Wallace, her sister, and her mother, that they subsisted on biscuits and lard and lived in a two-room house with tar-paper walls, no indoor plumbing, and no electricity in their native rural Tennessee. The family did have chickens and hogs, but that was before Wallace's father deserted them when Wallace was 14. From the time she was 10, Wallace picked cotton, earning just $2 per 100 pounds.

"My mom's goal was to complete her education," said Wallace's daughter, Pam Chaney. "She wanted to be a teacher, but there literally was no money. They didn't even know people who had indoor plumbing."

"The Sears and Roebuck catalog could come, so they knew there must be a better world out there," she said. "But they didn't know where it was, or how to get there."

Wallace's mother had little education. To scrape by, "she took people's laundry and scrubbed in a washboard. She was determined to keep her girls together," said Chaney. "I don't believe there were government aid programs, and when they were initiated, they didn't reach into the isolated rural areas."

Bessie Wallace

When Flora Wells, Wallace's mother, learned there was work in Detroit, she saved enough for bus fare and moved. The family settled in Plymouth, where, at age 17, Wallace went to work instead of finishing school. She earned much-needed money waitressing at the D&C dime store lunch counter on Main Street.

Before she was 18, Wallace married a young man she'd known since they were kids in northwestern Tennessee. She and William, her husband of 46 years, raised two sons and a daughter.

Wallace — who says commitment, to each other and their children, saw the couple through — always had a job outside the home. She worked at Burroughs, a Sheldon Road box factory, in child care, in a Saline factory, and at Industrial Strainer before her recent retirement.

But always, a feeling of emptiness lingered.

"I've always, down through the years, had a feeling within me of leaving something undone," said Wallace. "One of the things we were taught in my family is: When you start a job, you finish it."

Not until she was in her 60s was there the opportunity to return to school. Two years ago, the Westland resident enrolled in Plymouth-Canton's adult education program. This summer, at age 64, she received a state-endorsed high school diploma at ceremonies staged at the Salem High School auditorium.

A 4.0 student, Wallace was chosen to speak to the class of 1994. She addressed her remarks to young people.

"You may feel you've faced adversity. Things may not have gone so well. I know, I was there. But I want you to know you can make dreams come true, regardless of who supports or doesn't support you. I'm living proof."

"If there is something you really want to do, whatever it is, pursue it. Good jobs aren't out there any more for the uneducated. Hang in there and get an education. Because without it, you will never have anything."

Wallace received a standing ovation.

"I've never been so moved or felt so proud as when I was sitting there and the whole audience, including Superintendent (John) Hoben, rose to its feet for my mom," said Chaney.

A letter Chaney wrote to her mom was read by a faculty member at graduation. "In a world where mommies and daddies live happily ever after and 17-year-old girls don't have to worry about enough food to eat, or where they'll sleep at night, you would have graduated from high school on a shiny June day in 1948. At a dime store, as a child care provider, at a Saline factory, and a Plymouth factory where you became powerful presence in the union and an inspiration to your daughter who was ever watching you, you worked. And you dreamed."

"Here we stand, your family, deeply moved and inspired by your courage and determination to make life turn out the way it should have 46 years ago. It's a shiny June day and you are a member of the newly minted class of 1994," wrote Chaney.

"It's been a long journey, but you continued to put one foot in front of the other, despite the obstacles, until you reached this place on this day where your dream is coming true. Congratulations, Graduate!"

Happy graduate: Bessie Wallace of Westland (left) is accompanied by daughter, Pam (Wallace) Chaney, a former Michigan and Wayne-Westland Junior Miss scholarship winner in the late 1970s.

Court favors flowers at cemetery

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

A court award of $27 may hardly seem worth the fight, but to Garden City's Lyle Dickson it is.

The former Garden City police officer sued Cadillac Memorial Gardens West Cemetery in small claims court because they disposed of artificial flower arrangements left at grave sites. The cemetery has a policy that prohibits artificial flowers during the spring and summer months. The cemetery is on Ford near Wildwood, Westland, and just across the street from Garden City.

"It was worth the effort to prove the principle of the thing," Dickson said. "People should be treated fairly."

A magistrate found in favor of the cemetery, but Westland District Court Judge Charles Bokos Wednesday decided in Dickson's favor. He ordered the cemetery to pay court costs and $27 (the cost of the flower arrangement) to Dickson.

The cemetery's manager, Jonathan Tobias, wasn't available for comment this week, although cemetery workers say the ban remains in effect.

In late March, Tobias said the ban was put in place several years ago to protect maintenance workers. Artificial flower arrangements are not permitted because when crews mow the lawn there is the potential for pieces of the plastic or wire stems to be propelled creating a potential hazard for workers and visitors to the grounds.

Dickson said although the ban was put into effect several years ago, the previous cemetery manager did not enforce it. When Tobias took over last year, he enforced the ban without further notification to families.

There is a sign posted on the grounds, but because the former manager did not enforce it, family members ignored it.

Judge Bokos said the cemetery acted in a rash and unreasonable manner when they disposed of artificial arrangements without notifying families. He also said the action was taken without concern for the public's reaction.

Tobias said the families are not held liable for injuries caused by the artificial arrangements, but the cemetery is and has been sued for these types of injuries in the past.

To better inform families, a newsletter went out informing lot owners of the policy and there is a sign near the cemetery office which reads: "Positively no artificial wreaths or flowers will be permitted on any section between March 10 and Nov. 10."

In regulations given to lot owners and relatives, the cemetery management states that fresh-cut flowers in bronze or cone-shaped vases are allowed. Families are permitted to place one bouquet or potted plant during the Easter, Mother's Day, Memorial Day and Father's Day holidays. An underlined portion of the regulation states that glass containers, wires, rocks and ornaments are prohibited at the cemetery.

Dickson said he only places live flowers now at the graves of his mother, father and brother.

"Someday I thought I would be buried at that cemetery," Dickson said. "But not now."

Cadillac Memorial Gardens, which opened in 1927, is one of six in the Detroit area owned by Michigan Cemetery Management Inc., whose owner is William Eldridge.

Cemetery management's decision to dispose of artificial arrangements back in March sparked a protest and demonstration among relatives of people buried there.

geraniums, hostas, mums, petunias and other flowers; scattered wood chips; and spread out five tons of river rock to add color and cheer to their subdivision.

About 15 neighbors helped them with the project, which they completed on the Fourth of July. The Ostermans even stayed home and shelved plans for a getaway to celebrate their 10th anniversary, which was on June 9.

Neighbors gave $500 in small donations, mostly of $10 or less, to boost the project. "It made me look like the bad guy," Bob Osterman said. "But it wasn't even the money that hurt us so much. It was the time we put into it that broke our hearts."

Rhonda Osterman confronted the workers while county-hired crews were tearing away at the entrance island.

"I told one guy that he could hand over his paycheck," she said.

Project engineer Michael Lentz, a county employee, conceded that crews hadn't expected to rip into the entrance island.

"We went farther back (into the subdivision) than the plans called for," Lentz said.

Why? Lentz said the pavement at the entrance "was breaking up, and we needed to put new pavement in."

The surface of the new road also is about 3 feet lower than it was before, Lentz said, and ripping up the entrance to Westland Woods will allow crews to make the grade less steep.

"It will help," he said, but conceded, "It will be steeper than it was before."

The Ostermans joked that road crews at least didn't go into the subdivision and rip up the landscaping at their home, which last year won a beautification award sponsored by the mayor's office.

The Ostermans have been told that the county will restore the entrance island once the Cherry Hill widening project is completed.

"Yeah, right," Rhonda Osterman said with a laugh, adding that she would rather do the work again.

"We don't want them to touch it," she said of county workers. "They'll really mess it up."

Lynn Jondahl campaigns in Westland

BY LEONARD POGER
Editor

State Rep. Lynn Jondahl, seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the Aug. 2 primary, admits that the campaign is a quiet one and that surveys show voters aren't familiar with all the candidates.

The candidate talked about the relative calm of the Democratic primary last week at a public campaign stop at the Lions' pavilion in Westland's Central City Park.

The 22-year representative commented on independent polls which showed in one location in Flint only a few persons could identify any of the Democratic candidates. Another showed the two front-runners, Howard Wolpe and Debbie Stabenow, are neck-and-neck with each having about 19 percent of the party's vote. Jondahl admitted he was at the bottom with about 3 percent. Also running for the nomination is Larry Owen.

He interpreted those numbers as meaning that none of the four candidates have any major visibility or a broad base of recognition.

Jondahl added that the independent poll shows that half of the expected voters in the Democratic party are still undecided on who to vote for.

"The media is covering the (political) ads, not the campaign," Jondahl said of the daily newspapers' frequent stories of TV spots.

Another phenomenon of this summer's primary is that within the past 13 months, there have been multiple elections on many communities, starting with the June 2, 1993, school property tax reform ballot proposal and continuing with the adoption of a similar proposal last March 15. Since then, many communities have had local elections for school boards or school millage proposals.

"There has been a lot of electoral activity and it could be that voters are tired of elections," he said.

On issues, he said a poll said that of topics "most critical" to persons being surveyed, education was first, followed by the economy and crime.

In a follow-up question, crime was then listed most frequently, with many respondents commenting that "what we're doing isn't working."

"I hear more of crime being mentioned over education and the economy," said the candidate, 58.

Councilman: City buildings fail at accessibility

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland's municipal government buildings should be made more accessible for disabled residents, Councilman David Cox has suggested.

Cox, commenting during a city council meeting last week, cited

Westland City Hall as an example of local public buildings with heavy, manual doors that are difficult for disabled people to open.

Access ramps to public buildings do little to ease the difficulties for disabled residents "if they can't even get in" because of the doors, Cox said.

He suggested that city officials consider installing electric buzzers outside of public buildings, near the entrances, so that disabled citizens could alert employees inside and receive help.

Even if disabled residents have strong upper bodies, it can be difficult for those in wheelchairs to reach door handles and, while in a sitting position, open heavy doors, he said.

Cox said he would like to see plans launched by the administration to address the issue.

City officials said some improvements already are being considered for the City Hall door.

Area mayors back Schall in primary

John Schall, an Ann Arbor resident and Republican candidate for U.S. Congress in the 13th District, has announced endorsements from Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett, Belleville Mayor Glenn Silvenius, and Inkster Mayor Ed Bivens Jr.

The 13th District includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City, and the southeast quadrant of Livonia.

The primary vote is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 2.

"John Schall was born and raised in Livonia and he understands the needs and concerns of the families in our community," Bennett said in a press release.

"He will fight to get the economy moving and create jobs," Bivens said.

"John Schall best represents the values of the families and the hard-working men and women in our area," Silvenius said.

Schall is also endorsed by Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, Livonia Treasurer Robert Blahop, Plymouth Township Trustee Charles Curmi, Schoolcraft College Trustee John Walsh, the Police Officers Association of Michigan, the Washtenaw County Deputy Sheriff's Association, Right to Life of Michigan, the National Right to Life Committee, and Citizens for Traditional Values.

Area GOP leaders support Wilbanks

Cynthia Wilbanks, a Ypsilanti Township resident and Republican candidate for U.S. Congress in the 13th District, has announced endorsements from 74 current and former officials, including former congressman Carl Pursell of Plymouth Township.

The 13th District includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and the southeast quadrant of Livonia.

The primary vote is scheduled for Aug. 2.

"Cynthia Wilbanks has spent more than 20 years working in this district with local government officials and residents as my district director here in Michigan, and before me, with Congressman Marvin Esch. She knows the needs and concerns of our area and has a proven record of getting action out of the federal government," said Pursell in a press release.

"While we often stay neutral in our own party's primaries, we feel strongly that Cynthia Wilbanks has the very best chance of winning this seat in November," said Ypsilanti Republican Chairman Peter Fletcher.

"Few people realize this but our 1992 Republican candidate (state Sen. Robert Geake) won the Wayne County portion of the district, but lost the election with a very poor showing in Washtenaw County. Cynthia has deep roots and experience in both counties and is the best candidate to emerge."

The other people to endorse Wilbanks are:

Former U.S. Rep. Marvin Esch, state Reps. Lyn Bankes of Redford Township and Jerry Vorva of Plymouth, former state Sen. Gilbert Bursley.

From Plymouth Township, Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, director of public services Jim Anulewicz, trustees Kay Arnold, Ron Griffith, K.C. Mueller, clerk Marilyn Massengill, planning commissioner Donald Skinner, former clerk Esther Hulsing and former trustee Abe Munsakh.

From the city of Plymouth, Mayor Doug Miller, city councilman John Voss, library board members Sheryl Khoury and Janet Campbell, former mayors James Jabara, Joe Bida and Dennis Bila.

From Plymouth-Canton schools, board President David Artley, former board presidents Carol Davis and Kenneth Hulsing.

From Canton Township, Supervisor Tom Yack, treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter, trustees Melissa McLaughlin, library board president James Gillig and former trustee Robert Padgett.

From the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, chairman Steve Ragan, vice chairman Harry Greenleaf, secretary Patricia Watson, trustees Mary Breen and Richard DeVries.

From the Ann Arbor School Board, trustees Chris Argersinger and Jim Cameron.

From the Ypsilanti City Council, former trustees Scott Woods and Nathalie Edmunds.

From the Ypsilanti School Board, President Marilyn Goodman, trustee Diane Kerr, former trustees Doug Harris and Marcia Harrison.

Other endorsers include Garden City Councilman Ed Juarez, Ann Arbor Township Supervisor Elizabeth Langford, Ypsilanti Library Board Trustee Helen Vick, Ann Arbor Republican Party chairman Clement Gill, former Ann Arbor Republican Party chairwoman Virginia Johansen, former Suburban Republican Women president Joy Hartmann, Eastern Michigan University regents Gayle Thomas and Robert DeMatta, former Northville Township supervisor Betty Lennox, former Washtenaw Community College trustee Ann Kettles, Scio Township trustee Jerry Schleicher, Wayne County School Board Association President Flossie Tonda and Pittsfield Township trustee Doug Woolley.

Wilbanks has also been rated "well-qualified" by Civic Searchlight.

SHOPPING CENTERED

Step back in time at antiques fair

Large brightly striped tents lend a festive atmosphere to the countryside as they welcome scavengers to the Ann Arbor Antiques Market on the third Sunday of the month at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds. Crowded inside horse barns, fragrant with the smell of hay, over 400 dealers from across the country display their second-hand wares. Savvy collectors mark their calendars for this popular market and thousands converge on the 80-acre site, hoping to snag the treasure they've been searching for.

I donned my walking shoes and headed to Ann Arbor on July 17, hoping to scout out our local dealers and to inquire about this summer's hottest collectibles. Of course, I knew I wouldn't leave empty-handed. Rustic painted furniture and fun '40s textiles seem to call to me from among the more formal and sophisticated Americana.

Thrill of the hunt

Martyn Hesse's beautifully refinished antique furniture caught my eye as I entered the first tent. Several of Hesse's bedside tables and bookcases ($200-$265) sported bright red "Sold" tags. Though he displays oak tables and chairs, beds and dressers, it's the smaller, occasional pieces that sell the quickest. I admired the Victorian washstand, inlaid with Malajolica tiles ($565). It also captured the attention of Ann Croft of Detroit, a novice antiques collector. See Hesse's entire inventory at the Plymouth Antique Emporium, 13101 Eekles Road.

The red painted kitchen scale with shiny brass tray ($115) drew me to Marla Petrella's booth. Petrella shares space with other dealers at Troy Corners Antiques, 90 E. Square Lake Rd. Included in her selection of 19th century American country furniture and accessories were a brass desk lamp ($485) and candlesticks.

Edda Tillman has set up shop at this mega-marketplace for over 20 years. She recently closed her downtown Birmingham store, but is still in business at 1255 Villa. Tillman's unique architectural and 1920s iron floor lamps ($125) were popular items at this show, as were a wicker side table ($245) and painted iron park bench ($495).

I encountered the Scheets of Rochester admiring Tillman's wares. "I'm looking for blue and white porcelain and something wonderful to set the microwave on," said Mrs. Scheets who likes functional pieces, not just decorative knickknacks. The Scheets have also been looking for the perfect wood box, a quest that's lasted for years. "I like to browse until I see something that brings back memories. I'm in it for the nostalgia," she added.

Familiar faces

Other local dealers with escondhand sensations included Big Beaver Antiques of Troy, Lulu's of Royal Oak (I saw a great vintage croquet set in a painted box, $33), B.J. Nowka Antiques In The Barn on 8 Mile Road in Northville (a blue green leather tray, $35 and a Victorian calling card basket, $35), and Cowboy Collectibles and Western Memorabilia, 125 Liberty in Plymouth. For me, the "Best of Show" were a faded blue Amish rocker and a pair of green plantation shutters that hang on the wall as art ($160).

And what did I happily carry away through the big farm gates? A weathered green metalasp bucket that is filled with dried flowers, a gorgeous floral-design hooked rug, circa 1930 from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and a terrific three-legged footstool.

Summer Show: Snow White meets her Seven Dwarfs during a performance of the Giggie Gang at Oakland Mall.

Lisa Kedrow took some time off from her job at the center's Big Boy's to bring a few little friends to the 11 a.m. opening performance of the Giggie Gang Theater at Oakland Mall in Troy, July 20.

"It's great to see so many people at the mall on a Wednesday morning," she said eyeing the crowd for a spot up close. "The restaurants are giving away free children's lunches after the shows so it'll be a busy day."

Parisian opens with week of fun events

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Puppets, strolling robots, fashion shows and the chance to win a trip to England await shoppers during the grand opening week at Parisian Department Store Aug. 1-6 at Laurel Park Place in Livonia.

If you've never visited the shopping center some consider to be "Somerset West," Parisian's opening might be the right opportunity.

Three-years-in-the-planning, Parisian at Laurel Park will be the first Michigan store for the Birmingham, Ala.-based retailer. Laurel Park Place is at Six Mile and Newburgh, just east of I-275 off the Six Mile exit.

"I can't believe it's finally opening," said Judith Wise of Livonia, a regular mall walker. "I'm anxious to shop Parisian and see what it's all about. I hear they have lower prices than other department stores."

Parisian is a clothing store which also sells shoes, accessories and cosmetics for the family. There are no home furnishings or small electronics at Parisian. The Laurel Park store is on two-levels covering 160,000 square feet of retail space. The aisles are wide. There is a central escalator so every department is visible for quick inspection.

Parisian shoppers browse from these merchandise lines: Liz Claiborne, Jones New York, Ellen Tracy, Karen Kane and Rafella for women; Polo Ralph Lauren, Tommy Hilfiger, Timberland and Alexander Julian for men; Cole-Haan, Nina, Enzo and 9-West shoes; Coach, Dooney and Bourke, IJ Simone accessories; Clinique, Lauder, Elizabeth Arden and Lancome cosmetics.

"You're Somebody Special," is the company's motto and customer service that goes that extra mile is their claim to fame. Parisian operates 30 stores throughout the southeast, Ohio and Indiana.

Parisian is owned and managed corporately by the Hess and Abrams families of Birmingham, Ala. The name Parisian comes from the 107-year-old store's original title: The Parisian Dry Goods and Millinery Company.

Carl Hess (grandfather of present CEO Donald Hess) purchased Parisian in 1920 with a partner. His son, Emil, is chairman of the board. Harold Abrams is vice chairman. In 1968 Parisian was named "Brand Name Store of the Year" by the Brand Names Foundation.

The Livonia store manager Elliot Marcus wants shoppers to know that any similarities between Parisian Department Store and the city of Paris are coincidental — "We're just plain old Parisian," he said when first arriving in Michigan.

Marcus' first task was to build a service force of 275 employees. He said he does whatever it takes to make customers and staff feel special — even ordering three $200 foot massagers for the associate's lounge.

Parisian offers its customers a proprietary credit card with a no-interest credit plan, a liberal return policy, a diaper-changing area accessible to moms and dads, a cartoon corner in the children's department, free, customary alterations for men and women, extra large fitting rooms and a coffee bar.

Annually, each Parisian store awards $10,000 to a local community service agency that serves families. The announcement of the first winner, in metro-Detroit will be made at a special pre-opening party on July 31.

Eid hopes to also offer name entertainment, music and dancing at Fairlane as well as a 40-seat banquet facility for private parties.

NEW AT LAKESIDE
Macomb County's only Taste-Freeze opens at Lakeside Mall in Sterling Heights. The Taste-Freeze formula offers customers a dairy treat that is almost 98-percent fat free according to company spokeswoman Deanna Erickson. The company will use the Lakeside location to experiment with new flavors and products. Taste-Freeze also offers ice cream cakes, hot dogs, nachos and popcorn. The company is headquartered in Utica with 250 locations in the U.S. and Canada.

Also at Lakeside, 1 Natural, a beauty and body care shop is open. The store's totally natural product line includes cosmetics, body and bath oils and cream and gels made from vegetables, fruits and herbs. They contain no perfume and are never tested on animals.

Besides over-the-counter products, 1 Natural offers full-service salon treatments including pedicures, manicures, acrylic and gel nails, nail art waxing and facials.

HUDSON'S GRABBY
On behalf of Hudson's, the Oakland Mall store manager Jean Sinclair recently presented several checks to benefit local non-profit programs. A check for $10,000 was awarded to support student musician performances during the Montreux Jazz Festival; a check for $25,000 was presented to Channel 56 to support the "Great Performances" series; and a $4,500 grant was awarded to the Arab-American and Chaldean Council to sponsor a high school drop out program.

JACOBSON'S MASSAGES
Jacobson's Salons now offer 20-minute Shiatsu massages in all their styling salons. A scalp massage is $5, a scalp and neck massage is $15, and the works, everything from the shoulders up, is $25.

According to the history of Shiatsu, the body's energy, "Ki," flows in central meridians through the body. This flow can be blocked at the nerve points, "Taubo." By massaging correctly at these points, energy flows again to promote overall well being.

Additionally, two other special treatments are available with a massage: a light conditioning treatment and a intensive heat treatment.

Next to the regal-looking purple and gold stage, mall officials were happily handing out Giggle Gang buttons and certificates for complimentary lunches to all children interested in becoming members of the center's new Giggle Gang.

Giggle Gang members will be notified of special events and sales throughout the year. Officials hope they discover that Oakland Mall is a fun place to be.

"All our guests get cards and buttons," said Shelley Darnetko, marketing director at Oakland Mall. "After the show they can get an autographed picture of Snow White to take home."

Diane Johnston and her daughter Kaitlin, 5, of Troy, planned to lunch and shop after the show.

"It's a real cute idea," Johnston said. "I heard about it from my boss who read about it in her Birmingham Eccentric."

Two more Giggle Gang shows are scheduled. Rumpelstiltskin on Wednesday, July 27, and The Emperor's New Clothes, Wednesday, Aug. 3. Performance times are 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Henry K. Martin of Birmingham and his theater troop, The Children's Entertainment Company, perform the fairy tales with some modern twists.

When we first meet the dwarf, he is not hi-hoeing it off to work, he's singing "Working 9 to 5, what a way to make a living..."

Next he holds a pow-wow with his six audience-selected dwarfs to see if a "girl" can join the ranks. There is a moral to this fairy tale: When you're home alone, never open the door to a stranger. The audience sees what can happen when Snow White lets in the beggar woman with a poison apple.

Following a kiss from Prince Tom, also chosen from the audience, the impending royal wedding has the dwarfs running off to Oakland Mall to shop for new clothes.

Students from the Happy Time Day Care Center in Berkley munched on p.b. and j sandwiches after the show, turning rest benches in center court into their lunchroom.

"They are all behaving so well," their teacher beamed with pride. "We may come back next week."

Jammin' in Vicious Environments (J.I.V.E.)

— Shootyz Groove

Listen to this album and you'll regret missing the handful of Detroit shows Shootyz Groove did before the release of their debut full-length album "Jammin' in Vicious Environments" (Mercury Records). The 13 songs on this CD live up to the word "jammin'" in the title, that's for sure.

The Bronx-based band's meld of heavy metal guitars and House of Pain-like rapped vocals may not be anything new, but nonetheless you'll find yourself bobbing your head to the beat as soon you put the CD in the player.

You have another chance to see Shootyz Groove in Detroit. They will play The Ritz, 17580 Frazho, Roseville, on Wednesday, Aug. 3, with Monster Magnet. Call (810) 778-6404 for more information.

Wonderful

— bukimi 3

The trip through "Wonderful" by Detroit-based bukimi 3 rides like a rollercoaster. A sampled voice over heavy drum beats kicks off the CD proclaiming "we're going to have a wonderful time together. Today we're going to move in rhythm to music." You might expect a hypnotic heavy dance track to follow, however, what we get is a cliché rave sample.

The rest of the release is filled with light-hearted synthesizer pop reminiscent of early Depeche Mode, Ministry and Erasure. Steve Scholtes' vocals sound so much like Depeche Mode's Martin Gore that it's hard to see what bukimi 3 itself has to offer.

The record by bukimi 3, which also includes keyboardist Mitch Hoffmeyer, is available through Rave Records, 14750 Puritan Ave., Detroit 48227, or by calling (810) 540-RAVE.

Field Day

— various artists

This CD is exactly what the title says — a field day for fans of Cleveland-based alternative rock bands on that city's Sound of the Sea recordings.

A variety of genres are represented on the 19-song CD from the heavy bass and distorted vocals of Coltrane Wreck to the folk-inspired rock of The Waynes. Frequent Detroit visitors Jehova Waitresses kick off the release with their ethereal, horn-led rock. Toronto's 49 Acres, an honorary Cleveland band, according to a Sound of the Sea recordings rep, also makes an appearance.

The release is available through Sound of the Sea recordings, P.O. Box 18078, Cleveland Heights, Ohio 44118.

Pain

— Oriental Spas

This 10-song release by the Novi-based Oriental Spas is a "journey through life, loss, sin and death," according to its press materials. The "pain" that is supposed to be felt here isn't convincing though. Vocalist Laura Ruby forces her quivering, raw vocals to sound pained which strips the songs of their emotions.

The opposite is true for her band's rocked-out version of Tori Amos's song "Crucify." Ruby holds back on the vocals but they get lost in the swirling guitars.

"Pain" is by no means a bad album. The funky groove of "Big Book" is one of the highlights of the release. The guitars that kick off "My God Is Dead Now" rivals anything you'd hear on rock radio.

With a little push, the Oriental Spas could find their ideal sound with the next record.

"Pain" is available through Overture Records, 23309 Beck Road, Novi. (810) 249-0115.

LIVE REVIEW

Pink Floyd at the Pontiac Silverdome

Pink Floyd once again proved that their ethereal classic rock is timeless. Packed with laser beams, endless hit songs, and one animated percussionist, Pink Floyd showed a new generation what their music is all about.

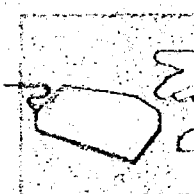

Primarily filled with "twentysomething" fans who weren't even born when the band released its first album, Pink Floyd's July 15 show at the Pontiac Silverdome was, ironically, a learning experience for fans. By performing in front of a young crowd, Pink Floyd reinforced its position as one of the chief influences of this generation's musicians.

Musics hits the 'super highway'

Gone are the days when music fans relied on magazines and cable TV for information about their favorite acts. Now, via on-line computer services, fans can get the news about bands from record companies or other users.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Since last fall music fans have been able to plug directly into record companies via on-line computer services to get whatever kind of information they wanted about their favorite bands.

As expected, the response was tremendously successful. What they didn't anticipate was the positive psychological effect it would have. When Nirvana singer Kurt Cobain committed suicide in April, distraught fans instantly linked up to form cyber-group therapy sessions.

One member of CompuServe wrote "I'm so sad about Kurt. I don't know what to say. I own just about every Nirvana song and bootleg. At least those will always live on, but I guess, I just don't understand... I hope he rests in peace and his family is able to carry on. You touched my life Kurt, and I appreciate it."

Others were less compassionate: "So I guess I didn't realize the profound effect on the American record-buying public of recycled Replacement riffs. Killing Joke copies and hokey adolescent angst. Sorry."

Nonetheless, group conferences and public postings provided an outlet for teens who may have been dealing with death for the first time. Cobain's death was a tragedy, but it helped accomplish the basic goal the record companies set when initially going on-line — to get closer to the fans.

"People have used on-line services for a long time to dial up and get information for just about anything," said Robert von Goeben, one of the managers of the Geffen section on CompuServe's Music Vendor Forum. "It only seemed natural that people dial up and get information about record companies as well."

Luke Wood, director of marketing for Geffen Records, added: "One thing is that it's a truly democratic means of communication between fans and labels."

New 'addresses'

Besides Geffen, users can receive tour schedules, facts about the South by Southwest Music Conference and musicians, their releases and lyrics from RCA and Warner Bros on CompuServe.

Labels like Rounder, Astralwerks, and PolyGram records as well as MTV have addresses on the Internet. Cyberden BBS links together fans of Cleopatra Records acts, hard rock band ChemLab and those who prefer industrial, gothic, techno, ambient, noise and experimental music.

Soundbites from Astralwerks groups are also available in the Cyberden.

Sometimes, members can "talk" with artists like X, Depeche Mode and Peter Dinklage who have participated in on-line interviews. On other services, they can leave electronic Plugged In: For the past 1 1/2 years, Laurie Chakel of Livonia has learned about music from interactive services like Prodigy.

mail for staff members or bands. The technology makes sending fan letters to P.O. boxes look prehistoric.

"It's changed from where you were uncool if you have a computer to where you're uncool if you don't," said Wood, who has addresses on CompuServe and the Internet.

A few musicians have found it so intriguing that they answer mail on a regular basis. Sonic Youth's Thurston Moore signs on to CompuServe when he's not on tour. Toad the Wet Sprocket makes its address available to members of its fan club. Billy Idol had an Internet address but the volume of mail was so great that he was forced to cancel his account.

On the boards, users can talk about any genre of music from classical to punk rock, or about a specific band.

"You don't have to talk about music or alternative music (in general). You can talk about Sonic Youth — you can get that specific — or even an aspect of a specific band like Sonic Youth lyrics. You can't get more specific than that," von Goeben said.

More specific is what Gary Gilmore of Dearborn wants. A guitar technician for the English band Bad Company, he has tapped into the Internet super highway through O&E On-Line to communicate with crew members in Phoenix, Atlanta and England about scheduling and upcoming tours.

Others have used the service to download music titles and lyrics and album covers. One user has collected more than 300 music titles he's found on On-Line. A popular Internet site is MTV (mtv.com) by Adam Curry, an MTV video jock. It has music news and Curry's daily "Cyberleaze" celebrity report. It can be accessed through O&E On-Line.

Most record companies don't have accounts with Prodigy, but the service brings in special guests like Chris Cornell of Soundgarden, Rob Zombie of White Zombie, Neil Peart of Rush, and Nick Rhodes of Duran Duran, to answer a select number of questions sent electronically from subscribers.

Twofold benefit

It's a twofold benefit. For fans it's a dream of a lifetime to get mail from their idols. For record companies, it can be profitable, especially for up-and-coming bands like Geffen's Weezer, or RCA's Lisa Loeb and Nine Stories.

"The promotional aspects of this are considerable; it's a modern-day, electronic version of the radio call-in show or in-store record signing," said Lisa Robinson, Prodigy's Music Bulletin Board leader.

Laurie Chakel, 14, of Livonia, hasn't been lucky enough to have her questions answered from musicians, but she has learned a lot about music from other fans. Music fans from around the United States post notes about concerts they've seen, import or bootleg tapes they found, or musicians they met.

Bands like Nirvana, the Violent Femmes, They Might Be Giants, Hole and the Meat Puppets have become some of her favorite bands as a result of reading about them. Chakel said that public postings about bands from regular fans gives her a better idea of what a band is about than if she watched MTV or listened to the radio.

"With Prodigy, it's more interactive, definitely; you can type questions. With radio and TV you can call them up but it doesn't work. It's more fans talking about bands," she said.

Reaching out

Last September, PolyGram took a different angle with bulletin boards. In an effort to reach out to teenagers, Davitt Sigerson, a now former president of a division of PolyGram, created a computer bulletin board and accompanying newspaper called "Bark."

"He conceived the idea as an alternative to reach out to people who are in high school as an alternative to the usual avenues," said editor Parker Reilly who formerly worked for Cosmopolitan magazine. "If you're selling to teens which is what our company is doing, it's relevant to know a lot about them. You're supposed to know your customers so you can sell to them."

The newsletter is written and illustrated entirely by students, including contributor Christen Kinaler of Sterling Heights, and distributed to 9,000 high schools nationwide. In a recent issue, students discuss topics like the death of Cobain, music, homosexuality, African-American issues, witchcraft, fashion, fast-food restaurants and favorite hangouts.

The newspaper, which is received by about 384 Michigan high schools, sometimes picks up material written on the BBS. Most of the time, the bulletin board serves as a library containing students' works.

"It's also a place where we can make available much more writing than we can fit in eight pages," Parker said about the BBS.

In the future, Parker said, soundbites from PolyGram albums will be available.

Late last month, Geffen Records took on-line information a step further when it became the first major label to enable CompuServe members to download for free a previously unreleased track from Aerosmith called "Head First." The rock band waived their royalties for the song and CompuServe waived connect-time charges.

"If our fans are out there driving down that information superhighway," Aerosmith's Steven Tyler said in a statement to the press, "then we want to be playing at the truck stop. This is the future — so let's get it going."

Inseparable: The Offspring's single "Come Out and Play (Keep 'Em Separated)" has become a big hit for the Southern California-based punk rockers.

For The Offspring: Alone is way to go

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Dexter Holland, vocalist and guitarist for the punk rock band The Offspring, is a little groggy having just woken up. For that reason, we'll have to forgive him for spewing the understatement of the year.

"Our tour's going really good; all the shows have been sold out. We're pretty big, huh?" he asked over the phone.

With its surf-rock guitar licks and hook-laden chorus, The Offspring's single "Come Out and Play (Keep 'Em Separated)" has become a huge radio and video hit for the Southern California-based band. Their album "Smash," positioned at No. 20 on the Billboard charts, is the top-selling album of all time for the independent label Epitaph Records, owned by Bad Religion guitarist Brett Gurewitz.

Once appealing predominately to punks and skateboarders, The Offspring is now getting the attention of major record labels. The quartet has turned down all the offers choosing to stay staunchly independent.

"We told them (major record labels) that we didn't want to do that," he said. "Maybe we won't stay there (Epitaph) for 10 years. We may outgrow them or they might outgrow us. We started the record with Epitaph and we plan on finishing it with Epitaph."

Other than record deals, The Offspring turned down a spot opening for the Stone Temple Pilots during their summer tour of arenas.

"We didn't want to jump into arenas just because something's on the radio. We're doing what we're capable of doing alone on tour," Holland explained.

Touring with the Stone Temple Pilots and signing with a major record label means "overexposure" to The Offspring. They would rather stay relatively unknown.

"For us, it's not about having a hit, being on the radio, or being 'successful.' We're a punk rock band. For us it's about putting out music we like playing."

The Offspring and special guest Big Drill Car play an all-ages show at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3. Tickets are $7.50 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

For nearly 3 1/2 hours, Pink Floyd coasted through songs mostly from "The Wall," "Dark Side of the Moon" and their recent album "The Division Bell." The crowd remained tame until the middle of the second set when they played the anti-education anthem "Another Brick in the Wall Part II" as selected lyrics lit up across the front of the stage.

The show, in turn, was anything but tame. Flailing his arms around, percussionist Gary Wallis hopped back and forth between his instruments. Unlike the Rolling Stones show at the Silverdome four years ago, the immense stage didn't swallow Pink Floyd. The band was backed by a retractable round movie screen with elaborate film clips accompanying some songs. Two large inflatable pigs fell from the top of the stage at the end of the first set.

In one of the showier moments, a plane flew across the Silverdome and crashed into the seats during "Breathe in the Air."

The show was flamboyant but not overdone. It's not that Pink Floyd had anything to prove, but the whole package showed that the band is a voice of many generations.

'Forrest Gump' falls short of a classic

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
STAFF WRITER

"Forrest Gump," about a man with a low IQ who reaches amazing heights, is an epic treatment of an old Frank Capra aesthetic: Even the under-average Joe can make it in America, if he follows the basic Boy Scout principles of truth and stick-to-itiveness.

The sentiment almost works. Depending on your tolerance for sap, this most manipulative movie of the year may actually have you grabbing for a Kleenex box. It plays at the Main and Maple theaters among others.

Tom Hanks, fresh from winning an Academy Award for "Philadelphia," plays the title character, the kind of part that usually catches Oscar's eye. He's the Alabama-based simpleton, IQ 75, who starts his life with a spinal disorder and a very caring mother (Sally Field). She'll do anything, including sleep with the school superintendent, for her boy to get the same chances as others.

Because of the heavy metal braces on his legs, Forrest is taunted by the other boys. During one of his attempts to escape from them, the braces shatter and he runs and runs and runs, and doesn't stop. The denizens of the local barber shop call him "a running fool."

MOVIES

His athletic prowess lands him a football scholarship; his ability to follow orders and perform menial tasks makes him the ideal soldier in Vietnam. The movie spans the decades from the 1950s through the '60s, so Forrest is seen meeting (through special effects and archival footage) Presidents Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon along with John Lennon and George Wallace. The gimmick was handled much better in Woody Allen's "Zelig."

All the while Forrest keeps pining away for Jenny, the childhood sweetheart who becomes a folk singer, go-go dancer, hippy, political activist, disco queen and waitress. Between the two of them, Forrest and Jenny follow every conceivable path the Baby Boom generation might have taken. With the help of pop music snippets (it seems like well over 100 tunes are used in the film), the movie plays like an MTV documentary about the past three decades.

Let's put it this way: if the filmmakers could have figured a way to get Forrest out to Woodstock, they would have.

In a rather ghoulish take on nostalgia, director Robert Zemeckis focuses on assassinations to strike the proper chord of "where were you when." Strangely, while the movie tries to remain politically correct, it never even mentions Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

This isn't all that's missing. Although the movie runs well over two hours, Forrest is still nothing more than a goofy Everyman symbol by film's end. Of course, "Forrest Gump" is a comedy, though true laughs are few from the usually funny Zemeckis, who launched the "Back to the Future" movies and "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" among others.

There are clever flights of whimsy, like the blink-and-you'll-miss-it flashback to the ancestors of Lt. Dan (Gary Sinise), Forrest's Vietnam commander, who has the dubious distinction of having relatives who died in each American-involved war. Each soldier falls back dead, identified by his uniform.

The interpolation of Forrest with now-deceased historical figures, though clever from a technical standpoint, loses any charm when words are clumsily inserted into their mouths. When Forrest and John Lennon appear together on the Dick Cavett show, there's some silly dialogue that mirrors the words of "Imagine." The bit with Lyndon Johnson is even more embarrassing.

"Forrest Gump" does make some grand use of the wide screen, from the harrowing scenes in Vietnam to dreamy dusk-and-dawn shots of the rambling white-painted Gump home on the banks of an Alabama river. Strangely enough, an 8,000-acre plantation in South Carolina served both settings.

There's also fine acting here, not only from Hanks, but from Sally Field, who ages convincingly even when Forrest doesn't. Robin Wright's Jenny undergoes her own amazing transformation, including some unattractive turns as a prostitute.

With its epic scope and universal message about "making the best of what the good Lord gave you," "Forrest Gump" struggled hard to be recognized as a movie classic. But how clever can a movie be when, more than once, audience members vocally anticipate the next line of dialogue?

Judge declares candidacy for state Supreme Court

Washtenaw County Circuit Court Judge Donald Shelton has announced his candidacy for the Michigan Supreme Court.

Shelton, 50, is currently serving his fifth year on the Washtenaw Circuit Court bench. He is perhaps best known for his ruling a few years ago that General Motors had a legal obligation to keep its Willow Run plant open and provide jobs in exchange for the tax breaks it received from the township.

In a press release, Shelton said the Supreme Court is out of touch with ordinary people. "We need justices who have the courage to stand up to large corporations and powerful special interest groups in favor of the rights of the people."

As a visiting judge on the Michigan Court of Appeals, Shelton was the only dissenter in the Dr. Jack Keyorkian case in which he concluded that terminally ill people have a constitutional right to physician-assisted suicide.

Shelton is a former Eastern Michigan University regent, former Saline mayor and has served on the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

He received his bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University and his law degree from the University of Michigan.

Hospital, Epilepsy Center combine for new treatment

The Epilepsy Center of Michigan and Henry Ford Health System have launched a new epilepsy treatment program to provide high quality, comprehensive care for people with epilepsy.

Under the program, medical issues will be handled by Henry Ford Health System and its team of neurologists and other health care people.

The Epilepsy Center will provide nursing assistance and handle psychological and social concerns with its team of psychologists and social workers.

Patients can receive treatment at two locations: Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit and the Epilepsy Center in Southfield.

"Both groups have an interest in developing a full-service epilepsy program for patients and their families," said Henry Ford neurologist Gregory Barkley in a press release. "This is definitely a strengthening of programs already in place at both institutions."

"Together, we can better help people with epilepsy and their families increase their quality of life," said Epilepsy Center director Arlene Gorelick in a press release. "This program also will allow the center to expand its services in the areas of family support, employment and advocacy."

The epilepsy program at Henry Ford Hospital, the largest in the state, is one of approximately 150 centers worldwide to offer surgery as an alternative treatment for patients. Among its highlights are:

• The surgical program has been able to eliminate seizures in 80 percent of patients who have received surgical treatment. More than 30 patients had surgery for epilepsy at Henry Ford Hospital in the past year.

• A team of six neurologists, with two specializing in pediatric epilepsy.

• Ten ongoing research studies to evaluate new drugs as well as research the basic mechanisms of epilepsy.

• A dedicated inpatient Epilepsy Monitoring Unit that allows physicians to evaluate detailed computer-tracked and videotaped epileptic seizures in an attempt to pinpoint specific areas of the brain responsible for seizures.

• Research studies utilizing new diagnostic techniques in Magnetic Resonance Imaging and newly developed Magnetoencephalography. MEG noninvasively tracks very weak magnetic fields that are generated by electric currents inside the brain and aids in the determination of the site for epilepsy surgery.

Epilepsy affects more than 90,000 Michigan residents. It is a common neurological disorder marked by sudden, brief changes in brain function that result in seizures of various types.

Most people with epilepsy are otherwise normal and healthy. With regular use of medication, many can live completely free of seizures.

In nearly three quarters of epilepsy cases, there is no known cause. It can strike anyone.

Of cases with a specific cause, the most frequent are the result of head trauma, brain tumor, stroke, infection and maternal injury.

The Epilepsy Center of Michigan, headquartered in Southfield, was established in 1948. It is the only statewide nonprofit organization dedicated only to epilepsy, providing medical, counseling, informational and advocacy services for people with epilepsy and their families.

CHEF LARRY JONES

Salads are refreshing on sultry summer eves

During the summer, this cook's fancy turns to salads. While hearty warm suppers are a must in the dead of winter, in July they're too much trouble. Who wants to sweat over a hot stove?

Salads are perfect. They're refreshing and quick to prepare, and with the right combination of ingredients, they're a healthy crowd-pleasing meal-in-a-dish.

For great tasting salads, choose greens that are brightly colored, crisp looking and unblemished. Store greens in a closed plastic bag in the crisper drawer of your refrigerator for up to three days unwashed. Greens will keep better unwashed, but should you wish to wash them ahead of time, roll them in paper towels to absorb moisture.

If you're in a hurry, and who isn't? here are some time-savers that work for us.

In our refrigerator there's a dish of cut vegetables including carrots, broccoli, celery and radishes. The dish is filled with water to keep the veggies crisp and cold. You can see them as soon as you open the door. The veggies are salad ready and make healthy snacks.

Good salad extenders include these items that are in just about everybody's pantry — canned wheat chexnuts, pineapple tidbits, olives, pickles, baby corn and tuna fish.

Lively leftovers

Every family has leftovers, and when you're considering tossing up a salad, try to take advantage of all the leftovers in your refrigerator. Cooked potatoes, a leftover grilled chicken breast, some steamed green beans and corn on the cob make for a cool addition when tossed with some bottled salad dressing spiked with a tablespoon of good mustard.

Leftover pasta, rice and beans taste better the second time around when they're tossed with Italian dressing, a fistful of fresh herbs, and chopped or steamed vegetables.

If you need something a little heartier on a rainy day, combine leftover pasta, rice, beans and vegetables with a dash of salad dressing and microwave the mixture on high for 2 to 3 minutes or until just heated through.

Grocery stores and fruit and vegetable markets are making it easier than ever for the over-heated cook to prepare cool summer salads.

You'll find salad bars that offer fixings by the pound, and packaged salads, including Caesar, shredded coleslaw, baby carrots, chopped broccoli, and even cubed, ready-to-eat fruit.

These convenience items cost more, but they're great time-savers and cheaper than eating out.

Fresh fruit and vegetable salads are always appreciated on muggy summer nights. They're easily packed into picnic baskets for nights when you want to escape the heat and dine alfresco in a cool, shady park.

Ripening fruits

Peaches, nectarines, avocados, tomatoes and mangoes are terrific in salads. Don't fret if the peaches you brought home from the store are rock hard.

Put under-ripe fruit in in a closed brown paper bag at room temperature.

Avocados, mangoes, nectarines, peaches, papayas, pears and tomatoes all give off ethylene (a natural gas) which builds up in the closed bag, and helps promote ripening.

Plastic bags are not recommended for ripening fruit mainly because they retain moisture and this encourages rotting.

If you're looking for a new idea try a fresh mango. The juicy, somewhat stringy orange flesh has a sweet, melon-like flavor with nuances of tropical tastes and aromas.

A ripe mango will be soft and fragrant and benefits from an additional day or two ripening in a brown paper bag.

When the mango is ripe, cut it in half lengthwise as close as possible to the large flat pit. Pull the fruit away from the pit, as with an avocado, and slice or cube it.

Try tossing some mango into your next fruit, chicken or turkey salad. It's a luscious addition.

Fresh herbs and spices will also make your summer salad memorable. Sesame seeds and a splash of sesame oil will do wonders with leftover roast beef.

Cool dessert: Julie Faust puts finishing touches on a no-bake strawberry pie for a neighborhood picnic.

Play around with NO BAKE desserts

It's too hot to bake cookies, but there are other cool ways to introduce your kids to cooking this summer. Desserts are easy and fun.

BY GERI RINSCHLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Well it's official! Summer vacation is half over. Many kids are back from camp, they've been out of school since June, and as they say, "there's nothing to do." Now is a great time to introduce them to the kitchen.

Sixth grader Julie Faust of Troy doesn't need coaxing, she's been cooking and baking since kindergarten. "Desserts are fun to make and eat," said Faust. Over the summer she's tested a few no-bake desserts for a neighborhood picnic. To keep her endeavors hassle free, she chose to work with ready-made graham cracker pie crusts.

After reading a number of recipes in her mother's cookbooks, Faust selected three no-bake pie recipes to test — chocolate-peanut butter ice cream, citrus fruit pie and strawberry. She took a vote at the picnic, and the pie made with strawberries, gelatin and whipping cream was the favorite.

Marilyn Faust, Julie's mom, believes that making desserts with kids is a good way to introduce them to the kitchen. "Most of the recipes are failure-proof, and when they're done they have a reward that's appealing."

Substitute turkey to cut fat in stew

LAURA LETOBAR

If you need a quick meal that is easy, low in fat, and great tasting, just follow this recipe.

Dorothy Cause of Bloomfield Hills serves this stew in bowls or over rice. She shops at Kroger and Felco Family Food Center. Both stores, she believes, provide the freshest produce along with fast and friendly service.

When you're preparing any dish that calls for ground beef, I always suggest substituting Turkey Store Brand 100 percent ground turkey breast. The difference in fat quantity between ground beef and ground turkey is unbelievable. Regular ground beef has 120 grams of fat per pound! While 100 percent ground turkey breast has only 6.3 grams of fat per pound.

If you have a die-hard beef eater in your family there is still hope for drastically reducing the fat in their diet. Healthy Choice brand lean ground beef can be found in the meat or freezer section of your grocery store. This product is a wonderful alternative to ground beef. It is very lean ground beef that has only 16 grams of fat per pound. Use and season this beef the same way you would regular beef. It is exceptional in casseroles, stews and sauces.

Labels can be deceiving! When you're using ground turkey be sure it is 100 percent ground turkey breast meat. If the label only says "lean ground turkey" this is about 43 grams of fat per pound. Ground beef that is "85 percent lean" has a whopping 64 grams of fat per pound. Also, the word "lean" can be associated with a wide range of fat percentages. Eighty-five percent lean ground beef has 64 grams of fat per pound while, 73 percent

Over the years Julie and her mom have worked together in the kitchen. Julie learned the difference between a liquid measure and dry measure, and how to read a recipe.

When you're working with kids, Marilyn advises parents to "let them do the work." It may not always be as neat a project as you might like it to be, but they're learning.

"Kids at 11 years of age don't have total dexterity, so when they spill, you just say 'oh well,' and show them how to clean it up."

When it comes to working with kids in the kitchen, Marilyn Rudick of West Bloomfield is a veteran. For the past 13 years she has been teaching youngsters ages 5 to 10 as part of the Super-Summer program offered by Birmingham Schools Community Education.

"In this program we need to keep kids busy all the time," said Rudick who works with about 80 students a day. Because of time restrictions, she needs to find cooking projects which do not require baking, yet allow students to participate in the project from beginning to end.

One of her most popular cooking projects is a marshmallow cat.

There really isn't a recipe to follow, because it's so simple to make.

In a small saucepan melt a cup of semi-sweet chocolate chips. Take two large marshmallows and attach them together with a toothpick in the center to make the cat's body.

Dip the marshmallows in the melted chocolate and set on a plate in the freezer for 5 to 10 minutes to set. To make the tail, use pieces of skinny licorice about 2 inches long and poke them in the back of one of the marshmallows. Then dip the ends of two candy corn pieces to the melted chocolate and add to the top marshmallow for ears. A few more pieces of licorice are used to make whiskers, and some small candy bits or icing for eyes.

"You don't always need to work with a recipe which cooks from scratch," said Rudick. "I will often use ready-made items such as frozen puff pastry and pudding to make Napoleons."

Rudick never overlooks the opportunity to use cooking as a learning tool, and has kids count the layers of frozen pastry when they go into the oven and come out.

She believes the key to cooking with kids is to keep it simple. Don't ignore a project such as dipping a plain waffle cone into melted chocolate and then rolling the cone into colored sprinkles. Rudick chooses sprinkles over nuts because some children are allergic to nuts.

The Gibson School in Redford is twice blessed. They not only offer cooking in their summer program, Kids in the Kitchen, but their class is taught by artist Paula Zaks who likes to combine the two subjects in her classroom.

In addition to teaching cooking, Zak loves to blend a recipe lesson with an art project or give the historical background of recipe to her students who range in age from 4 to 6.

"It's important for a teacher to be motivated," she said. "If the teacher or parent isn't motivated about the recipe or food lesson, then the students won't be either. Kids can do anything, but they need assistance."

When working with children ages 4 to 6, Zaks, like Rudick keeps things simple. She likes to improvise standard cooking projects such as Fruit Loop necklaces. Zaks will string dried fruits including raisins, apples and apricots on a piece of dental floss to make a necklace.

Zak suggests investing in a good children's cookbook. When selecting books for young cooks, look for ones printed in large type.

After a few summer experiments, cooking will be a positive and fun experience for your child. As you experiment with recipes, you might want to copy them for future reference.

- 2 tablespoons sweetened cocoa
- 3 ice cubes

Combine all ingredients in the blender. Cover tightly, and blend until smooth ("until the very loud crunching noise stops").

Pour into tall glass and drink! Makes 1 generous serving.

Recipe from "Pretend Soup and Other Real Recipes. A Cookbook for Preschools and Up," Mollie Katzen and Ann Henderson, (Tricycle Press, 1994, $14.95)

TROPICAL FRUIT SHERBET

- 1 (3 ounce) package strawberry gelatin
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 (20 ounce can) pineapple chunks in juice, undrained

- 1 ripe banana
- 1 (10 ounce) package frozen, sweetened strawberries in quick-thaw pouch

Combine gelatin and boiling water in glass measuring cup. Stir with mixing spoon until gelatin is dissolved.

Pour into electric blender. Add lemon juice and pineapple chunks with their juice. Peel banana and cut into chunks with a table knife. Add to blender.

Put lid on blender. Turn on high speed. Blend ingredients until they are liquefied, about 45 seconds. Turn off blender.

Remove container from base of blender. Remove lid from blender and pour mixture into 11 by 7-inch baking pan or individual plastic containers (may be an ice cube tray) with wood, paper, or plastic dessert sticks.

Place pan directly on shelf in freezer. Freeze uncovered for 2 to 3 hours, or until mixture is firm.

Defrost strawberries in pouch according to package instructions (this usually takes about 15 to 20 minutes in warm water.)

Remove sherbet from freezer 15 minutes before serving to soften slightly. Scoop or spoon sherbet into 4 dessert dishes. Top each serving with 1/2 cup strawberries in juice. Serve immediately.

CINNAMON CREAM CHICKEN FRUIT SALAD

- Dressing:
 - 1/2 cup light sour cream
 - 1/4 cup apple juice
 - 1 tablespoon sugar or honey
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 - Dash salt
- Salad:
 - 6 ounces (2 1/2 cups) uncooked spiral pasta or shells
 - 2 1/2 cups cubed cooked chicken
 - 1 cup sliced strawberries
 - 2 plums, sliced (about 1 cup)
 - 1/2 cup seedless red grapes
 - 1/2 cup seedless green grapes
 - 1 small red onion, sliced thin
 - 6 large lettuce leaves

To make the dressing, in a large bowl, combine all dressing ingredients and mix well. Cover and refrigerate while making the salad.

To make the salad, cook pasta to desired doneness as directed on the package. Drain, rinse under cold water. In a large bowl, combine all the salad ingredients except lettuce leaves. Toss gently to mix. Pour dressing over the salad; toss to coat. Place lettuce leaves on six individual salad plates. Spoon 1 1/2 cups salad onto each plate. Makes 6 servings. Each serving has 330 calories.

WARM THAI BEEF SALAD

- 1/4 pound lean top sirloin steak (about 1-inch thick)
- 1/2 teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
- 4 cups romaine lettuce
- 4 cups tom savoy cabbage
- 1 medium red bell pepper, cut into strips
- 1 small cucumber, seeded and cut into strips
- 1 cup fresh sugar snap peas
- Dressing:
 - 1 tablespoon oil
 - 1/4 cup sliced green onions
 - 2 teaspoons sesame seeds
 - 1/2 cup red wine vinegar
 - 2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
 - 2 teaspoons sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon crushed hot red pepper flakes

Heat a grill and cook top sirloin to desired doneness. Slice into strips and keep warm.

Meanwhile, in a large salad bowl, combine remaining salad ingredients. Toss to mix.

To prepare dressing, heat oil in a medium skillet over medium heat. Add onions and sesame seed; cook 2 minutes. Add remaining dressing ingredients. Pour warm dressing over the salad mixture. Add beef and toss to coat. Best if served warm, but it's also tasty served chilled. Serves 8. Each 1/4 cup serving has 110 calories.

MINTED COUSCOUS VEGETABLE SALAD

- Salad:
 - 1 cup uncooked couscous
 - 2 cups frozen baby peas, thawed and drained
 - 1 1/2 cups diced fresh tomatoes
 - 1/2 cup diced red onion
 - 1/2 cup diced celery
- Dressing:
 - 2 tablespoons fresh chopped mint leaves
 - 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
 - 2 tablespoons olive oil
 - Dash salt and pepper

Cook couscous as directed on package. Cool. In a large bowl, combine all salad ingredients. Toss to mix well. Cover and refrigerate while preparing the dressing.

In a jar with a tight fitting lid, combine all dressing ingredients; shake well. Pour over salad and toss to coat.

If desired, line the bowl with salad greens and garnish with fresh mint leaves, if desired. Makes 11 (1/2 cup) servings. Each serving is 110 calories.

lean ground beef has 90 grams of fat per pound.

Dorothy Couse suggests using beans as a substitute for meat. The beans also supply additional protein to the dish. If it's too hot to cook, toss up a pasta salad and add beans to turn this side dish into a main course.

Other low-fat alternatives to high fat foods include rice, yams, raisins and dried fruit morsels. One quick word of advice regarding salad bars. Most of us think of cottage cheese as being low-fat, but the cottage cheese offered at salad bars is usually the "regular" kind. There is approximately 5 grams of fat per 1/2 cup.

So, remember to read your labels carefully to make wise choices.

Update: You can pick berries and veggies

KEELY WYGONIK

It's near the end of the raspberry season. Fall berries will be ready for picking the first week of September.

I've received quite a few calls from readers inquiring about peaches. I'm sad to report the news is not good. Farmers throughout Macomb and Oakland counties told me that this year's crop was devastated by frost.

Westview Orchards south of Romeo lost their peach crop, but they will have apples, pears and other vegetables in August. It was the same story at Southview Orchards in Romeo: no peaches.

Peaches will be available in small quantities at Blake's Big Apple Orchard in Armada and Ashton Orchards in Ortonville beginning in August. I'll keep you posted.

Here's a u-pick update. They're still picking raspberries at Driver's U-pick Berry Farm in South Lyon. For more information about Driver's call (810) 437-8401 437-1606.

☐ Middleton Berry Farm — has red and black raspberries, but it is nearing the end of the season. They also have green and wax beans, 2120 Stony Creek Road, Lake Orion. (810) 693-6018 or (810) 693-6124.

☐ Wiard's Orchards, Inc. — in Ypsilanti has tart cherries. Call (313) 482-7744.

☐ For freshed picked or u-pick cucumbers for pickling, call 459-4414 in Canton.

Here are some places to pick blueberries.

☐ Splcer Orchards — North of Brighton, US-23, Exit 70. (810) 692-7692.

☐ Hazen's Blueberry Farm — on the north side of Wise Road between Carrol Lake and Bogie Lake Roads, Commerce Township, (810) 363-4072.

☐ Sandy Acres Blueberry Farm — 38093 Judd Road, Belleville, (313) 763-9369.

Where are your favorite places to pick fruit and vegetables? Call me at (313) 953-2105, or leave a message. Send along one of your favorite recipes for publication in Taste.

Creamy pasta's easy

Everyone is talking about low-fat cooking. But, oh, yuck, the texture, the taste! Delicious recipes can be low in fat with some tricks in cooking with low-fat products. The makers of Pet Evaporated Skimmed Milk, have developed just the tips needed to enjoy familiar, favorite foods while reducing the fat.

☐ Use evaporated skimmed milk for low-calorie and low-fat cooking.

☐ Do not dilute evaporated skimmed milk when using in recipes. Use it straight from the can.

☐ Recipes that work well include creamed soups, white pasta sauces, breakfast drinks, ice milks, ice creams, gravies, salad dressings, candies, puddings and pie fillings.

☐ Add to coffee, scrambled eggs and pancakes for a richer flavor without adding fat.

☐ An unused portion can be transferred to a covered container and stored in the refrigerator for 5 to 7 days. It also can be frozen and used later.

A new recipe booklet from the Home Economists at Pet Incorporated has been created to mark the new name for Pet Evaporated Skimmed Milk, first introduced 25 years ago as "Pet 99" and most recently known as Pet Light Evaporated Skimmed Milk. The booklet, "Quick & Creamy Dairy Goodness," which includes main dishes, side dishes and desserts, is available free to consumers.

To send for Pet's "Quick & Creamy Dairy Goodness" recipes, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and mail to: Quick & Creamy Dairy Goodness Recipes, Pet Incorporated, P.O. Box 66718, St. Louis, MO 63166-6718.

This quick and creamy pasta can be prepared in less than 20 minutes.

Tips for healthy barbecuing

Nothing epitomizes summer more for Americans than firing up the grill for a backyard barbecue. Unfortunately, the traditional steaks, hamburgers and hot dogs that people grill are not the healthiest choices due to high fat and calorie contents.

To make barbecuing a healthier alternative, registered dietitian Fay Fitzgerald, coordinator of Henry Ford Hospital's Heart Smart program, offers these grilling guidelines.

"Grilling can be a very healthy and tasty way to cook, if you choose the right foods and preparation methods," said Fitzgerald. "You need to be careful because the way you grill can increase health risks such as cancer."

☐ Choose lean cuts of meat, which are lower in fat and calories. Marinating the meat before cooking will make it more tender.

☐ Reduce the amount of fat dripping onto the hot coals by trimming all fat and removing skin. The burning fat and resulting smoke produce potentially harmful substances.

☐ Minimize the meat's exposure to smoke and charring flames. You can do this by choosing thin cuts that cook quickly or by pre-cooking meat in the oven or microwave.

☐ Use foil to protect the food during most of the cooking time.

☐ Clean the grill rack of charred meat and fats after each use.

Your HEALTH

by Sandra John

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION

Health enthusiasts may be interested in the fact that the first vitamin was not isolated in a scientific laboratory until 1911. The vitamin involved was thiamin, a B vitamin. Prior to that time, people simply noticed that some foods possessed qualities that enabled them to prevent disease. Such was the case when it was discovered that eating lima or lemons helped British sailors ward off scurvy while at sea. Today, not only are scientists able to identify 13 vitamins, but they are producing scientific evidence of their specific effects in disease prevention. This leaves consumers with more than a general feeling that vitamin supplementation is doing them good. It imbues them with a sense of control over their own health by preventing life-threatening disease.

When it comes to vitamins, minerals, and supplements, you won't find an assortment any larger, or better priced than our stock at the GOOD FOOD CO. As Michigan's largest discount natural food supermarket, we carry a bounty of organic fruits and vegetables, chicken and beef without hormones, whole grains, cereals and much, much more. For more information, please call us at 901-8100. We are located at 42015 Ford Rd. and we are open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 to 9:00 and Sunday from 10:00 to 6:00. Remember, food can be good for you and also taste great!

Workout: Bryan Morrison works out twice a day at the Botsford Pool in Livonia

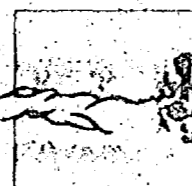

On the mend

Morrison determined to beat frightening injury

Bryan Morrison has shown true grit, making a steady recovery from a serious diving mishap a year ago in Europe. His outlook improves by the day.

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Bryan Morrison went to a movie in Westland last November, but was turned away at the door.

It had nothing to do with his age, rather a flight of stairs.

With no ramp or elevator for the handicapped, Morrison knew his odds of making it while sitting in a wheelchair were pretty steep.

"I had no way to get in because the show was upstairs," said Morrison, a former all-state swimmer who graduated in 1992 from Livonia Stevenson. "They told me to call before I leave home next time so they can let me know what's playing downstairs."

Morrison has been busy ever since writing his own script on how to recover from a neck injury that not only threatened his life, but had doctors wondering if he'd ever walk again.

Morrison, a member of the Michigan State University swimming team in the 1992-93 school year, broke the fifth and sixth vertebrae in his neck after diving into surf off the coast of France last summer.

For several months the wheelchair was his best transportation. Paralyzed from the neck down immediately following his injury, Morrison has slowly regained movement and is walking with a limp on his left side.

Morrison is still considered a paraplegic because of lack of motion in his left hand. He also has trouble walking, but his progress has been nothing short of amazing.

After spending four months at a world-renowned hospital for spinal cord victims in Denver, Colo., Morrison returned to work on an engineering degree at Michigan State University last semester.

He has been busier than most students this summer, starting his day at 7 a.m. and returning at 7 p.m.

Morrison swims twice a day at the Botsford Pool in Livonia, and in between works four hours as a research analyst in Southfield.

One of Morrison's companions in the Botsford Pool is his cousin, Matt McCowan, who says he wins some of their races. Morrison isn't embarrassed Bright outlook: Morrison, a 1992 Livonia Stevenson graduate and former swimmer at Michigan State University, has a lot going for him despite suffering a serious neck injury a year ago.

ed about losing to the 9-year-old.

"I'm slower than I'd like to be, but at least I'm swimming again," Morrison said.

After his afternoon swim, Morrison heads over to the Livonia YMCA to lift weights. Morrison doesn't need the wheelchair anymore but the thought of using one will never leave his mind.

"You don't realize how much handicapped people are put down until you try to go places in wheelchairs and can't do it," he said. "I plan on walking without a limp. For the most part it's in my hands. It depends how much I want to do it."

Helpless feeling

Morrison was vacationing in France with friend Kamp Purdy of West Bloomfield, an MSU swimmer, when the accident happened around 2 a.m. June 17, 1993.

Morrison said he doesn't remember anything three to four hours before the accident and anything a week after the accident.

His mother, Bonnie Morrison, remembers getting the phone call about the bad news, then after the flight overcast, seeing her son lying helplessly on a hospital bed.

Morrison, 6-foot-6 and 205 pounds before the accident, had about as much control of his body as a newborn baby.

"Can you even imagine going to France and seeing the unbelievable trauma he was going through, his body shaking uncontrollably?" his mother said. "His eyes were so red I didn't even know who he was. And today, he's so normal. Every time someone calls and asks about it I have to cry."

Doctors took a bone from Morrison's hip and fused it in surgery with his fifth and sixth vertebrae, which were shattered.

Morrison didn't suffer any lasting head injuries and he remained in the hospital 31 days before being transported home on an airplane.

The Morrison family had to pay for eight seats to fit Bryan in a horizontal position on the flight home.

Morrison spent a month at University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor before being taken to Denver, Colo., for continued rehabilitation at Craig Hospital.

Morrison's weight dipped to about 160 pounds, but he's back up to 185 pounds with his ambitious regimen.

His Christmas present was being with the MSU swim team on the Christmas Training trip to Coral Springs, Fla. He'd always try to be in the stands cheering on his former teammates last season.

"Just his recovery in general surprised us," said Alec Mull, captain from Lansing Eastern and Morrison's former roommate. "He was so close to dying and now he's up, walking around. He was a hard worker but bad things always seem to happen to good people. He's one of those people that will go out of his way for you."

On the job

When he returned from MSU this spring, Morrison was hired at Chrysler Service Contracts, where his mother works.

"My boss is so happy with him," Bonnie said. "The first day on the job he was able to accomplish some research that three others hired before him were unable to do."

Livonia advances in Koufax playoffs

Livonia's Sandy Koufax entry (13- to 14-year-olds) advanced in the Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation double-elimination tournament with a 5-4 first-round win Thursday over Redford at Orchard Lake St. Mary's.

Casey Rogowski singled home Jay Laura from second base with the game-winning run to give Livonia, now 20-3 overall, the one-run victory.

Livonia, managed by Bill Rabe, advances to the second round where it will face the Birmingham-Riverview winner, 6:30 tonight at Orchard Lake.

Roy Rabe scored on Rogowski's sacrifice fly and Vince Marsico scampered home on a passed ball to give Livonia a 2-0 second-inning advantage against Redford.

Steve Kesteloot, the Livonia starter, held Redford scoreless through the first four innings before Redford struck for one run in the top of the fifth, followed by three in the sixth thanks to four consecutive singles.

Trailing 4-2, Livonia rallied for three runs.

BASEBALL

Justin Kerr reached base on a fielder's choice, crashing Derek Fox, who singled to start the inning.

Matt Gabrielli, who pitched the final two innings of scoreless relief to pick up the victory, doubled home Kerr to make it 4-3. Laura's line-drive single tied it at 4-4. Laura then stole second to set up Rogowski's game-winning RBI (his second of the game).

"There comes a point in a game, that if the players want it, they have to generate more motivation from within," Rabe said. "Our guys reached back for a little more."

On July 15-17, Livonia also captured the 16-team Brighton Invitational.

Livonia downed Brighton I, 11-1, as Marsico terminated the game with a towering homer. Gabrielli was the winning pitcher.

Sporting a team earned-run average of less than one per game, Livonia won four straight en route to the final as Ryan Wilmering beat South Lyon II (20-2); Marsico defeated Burton (11-1); Rabe topped the South Farmington Giants (11-0); and Kesteloot blanked Rochester Rad (4-0).

Rounding out the Livonia Koufax roster: Brett Dubay, Mark Mink, Andy Morche, Rob Szybielski, Brad Tracy and Brent Wojtylak.

Assistant coaches include Tim Kerr and Dick Tracy.

Bronco Regional hero

State champions from Michigan, Kentucky and Indiana will join the host Westland Youth Athletic Association team in a Bronco Tournament (11- to 12-year-olds), Friday through Sunday at Central City Park.

Action begins with a doubleheader at 6 p.m. followed by two games Saturday starting at 11 a.m. The finals are set for 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Sunday (if necessary).

The winner advances to the Zono Tournament the next weekend.

Bowlers finding comfort at Schildberg's practice

AL HARRISON

What's a bowler to do when the aches and pains make it less than fun to go bowling?

Dr. Warren Schildberg of Garden City has the answers.

He is a sports medicine specialist who has worked with many of the area's top bowlers, some of whom have credited him with their ability to be competitive bowlers again after suffering various physical setbacks.

Among those are Livonia's Mary Mohrasi and Bill Funke, Lee Snow of Farmington Hills and Tom Relich, an all-star from Garden City.

My name is added to the list after foolishly trying to play some softball earlier this season. According to Dr. Schildberg, "Bowlers should be aware of any possible injuries that can affect performance on the lanes."

Of utmost importance is the prevention of injuries, followed by the correct treatment should an injury occur.

The smart bowler, or person engaged in any other sports activity, would take measures to prevent injuries before they happen. According to Schildberg, pre-season conditioning is vital.

Work on strength, balance, flexibility and endurance. The training must be Sport Specific, that is, to work on those muscles that are used in bowling rather than, say, football, skating or tennis.

The key to good training is Neuro Muscular Training, also known as practice.

Be very careful not to overtrain as this could be detrimental.

"Do not use any body part in excess of its capacity," Dr. Schildberg said.

It is also known as the "SAID" Principle: Specific Adaptation to Individual Demand. When you exceed this rule, you usually get an injury.

For bowlers, each body part is involved starting with the fingers as they are most susceptible to injury from over-practice.

Blisters, abrasions, sprains, strains and tendonitis may occur if you overdo it. Next, the wrist has several tendons which can be abused or over-used, particularly by the cranks. Forearms are susceptible to muscle strains and the elbow can develop tendonitis.

Not to be confused with "tennis elbow" it is "bowler's elbow."

Shoulders are not usually affected by the bowling delivery. Lower back pain is something else, as it can develop in all people engaged in just about any activity. Another potential trouble spot is the knee.

The non-dominant side can develop tendonitis, pulled ligaments or cartilage problems. Any of these will really mess up your game, and in many instances knee problems can be traced to previous activities from other sports, especially damaged ligaments.

So in dealing with any of these problems, proper diagnosis is important for the way to handle aches and pains from bowling or any other sport.

It is vital that an accurate diagnosis is made so the proper therapy can be applied. There are two basic forms of treatment: conservative and radical or surgical.

Conservative means getting relative rest or off-loading the affected body part.

Medication generally involves use of SAID's such as motrin or aspirin. Therapy would include use of ice packs, compression, elevation support and modalities that include massage, acupuncture, high volts, and ultrasound treatments.

Now, you ask, "When am I ready to go back into competition?"

This is where bowlers must be sure they are ready so that he or she is not re-injured. The healing process should have been at least 90 percent prior to re-entering the game.

It all sums up to asking, "What do I do if it hurts?"

Bear in mind that 90 percent of injuries can be cared for adequately by simply using ice packs four times a day, 20 minutes at a time.

Always use a towel between ice and skin to prevent "ice burn" and then begin a slow load return to practice.

In bowling, we can have a little fun or a whole lot of fun, but overdoing it could mean risking an injury and that wouldn't be any fun at all.

Dr. Schildberg also recommends the use of mental imaging to enhance your game. It is something that top competitors do almost automatically.

Simply draw a picture in your mind of yourself delivering a perfect strike. Do this 10 times before going to sleep and again when you wake up. It will help your bowling and result in higher scores. It may take a while to develop this technique, but it works.

Woodland Lanes in Livonia will be the site of "Bowling for Life," a fund-raiser for "Right to Life: Lifespan."

It will take place on Sunday, July 31.

Dittmar earns lead role in conservation

BILL PARKER

Arthur H. Dittmar Jr. retired from Garden City High School in 1990. He had been with the school district for 31 years, most recently as a teacher of outdoor education, biology and earth science.

But instead of resting on his laurels and enjoying a nice quiet retirement the 59-year old Farmington Hills resident is busier now than he's ever been.

On June 26th, Dittmar was elected president of the nation's largest statewide conservation organization, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. He was elected to serve a one-year term as head of the 130,000-member organization and can be re-elected to serve one more term.

"It's a tremendous challenge and there's a lot of work to do, but it's something I've been looking forward to," said Dittmar. "They put me to work right away. Four days after I was elected I found myself testifying at a Senate hearing on public access sites."

I found Dittmar at his cabin in Manistee last week. I assumed he was taking a brief reprieve before plunging head first into his duties as MUCC president.

Not a chance.

"Art, did I catch you at a bad time?" I asked.

"No, not really, I was just typing some things up," he said.

"Well, how's the fishing?" I quizzed.

"To tell you the truth, Bill, I haven't been out yet. I've been kind of busy, but I've got the boat in," he said.

Such is life as president of MUCC. It's mid-July and he hasn't had a chance to go fishing yet.

An educated educator

Hard work is nothing new to Dittmar. He has been active in Michigan conservation and outdoor education for decades. He has taught classes on hunting, boating and snowmobiling safety; Great Lakes sport fishing; and is a certified National Rifle Association instructor in rifle, pistol, shotgun and home firearms safety.

In addition, Dittmar has also been a director of Michigan Steelheaders; charter president and board member of the Metro-West Chapter of the Michigan Steelheaders; and charter president and board member of the Livonia-based Four Seasons Fishing Club.

"I think MUCC is in for a couple pretty good years," said Andy Hallman of Livonia, one of the founders of the Four Seasons Fishing Club. "Art is a good man and is very knowledgeable on anything outdoors. I know one thing, there's no way any human can follow him unless they have a calendar. He's always on the go."

Dittmar has already established some goals for his upcoming year as president.

"One thing I'd like to see is a lot more cooperation between the Department (DNR) and the many clubs in Michigan," Dittmar explained. "The DNR is generally strapped for funds and many of the hunting and fishing clubs have funds but not enough manpower. I'd like to get these clubs working together with the DNR and get some of these projects completed."

He'd also like to see Michigan receive more state and federal funding for environmental and resource education and he'd like to see Michigan's youth become more involved with MUCC.

"With his teaching background, Art knows how to be heard," added Hallman. "I think Tom Washington (MUCC's past president and current president of the National Rifle Association) will work closely with him, I think the Legislature will work closely with him and I think the DNR will work closely with him. I don't think they have any choice. They will have to listen to him whether they want to or not."

Anglers place in Red Man

Art Ferguson II of Rochester, and Kyle Green of Bloomfield Hills, both placed in the top 10 in the second of six Red Man

Michigan Division qualifiers, recently on Saginaw Lake.

Ferguson placed second with a five-bass limit that weighed 13 pounds, 8 ounces. He fished weed beds at the west end of the lake using Berkley Power Worms.

Green placed ninth with four bass that tipped the scale at 10 pounds, 8 ounces.

The next stop on the Red Man Tournament Trail for Michigan Division anglers will be Sunday, July 31, on the Detroit River.

At the conclusion of six qualifying events, the top 30 anglers in the division will move on to the Regional Championship.

While not competing in tournaments, Ferguson has been busy taping fishing shows for the tube.

He is currently featured on the Master Angler Show, along with producer Mark Gomez.

The show airs on TCI Cable, Channel 63, at 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays.

He will also be televised on cable station TNN on Fishing with Roland Martin. That show will air 12:30 p.m. Saturday, July 30, and 9:30 p.m. Sunday, July 31.

Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mich. 48009. Fax information to 644-1314 or call Bill Parker, 6-10 p.m. Mondays, at 901-2573.

Morrison's biggest problem has been typing with his left hand.

"I use my whole right hand and whatever I can with my left," he said. "I just peck at it."

Driving isn't a problem, since his right leg is near its normal strength. Morrison said he has a handicapped sticker in his car but usually avoids parking in handicapped spots "so people who need them more can use them."

When at home in Livonia, where he stays with his uncle and aunt Jack and Carol Gatewood, Morrison does his share of chores.

He also acts as the family's personal trainer, outlining the workouts on the treadmill and stretching exercises in the basement.

"Since the injury, Bryan's become more outgoing and driven, and does lots of errands," Carol Gatewood said. "Last week, we were going out of town, going to be real busy, and Bryan took care of the pool for us. He makes my husband's lunch every day, grills chicken, cuts up fresh vegetables, because he wants to make sure everyone's eating right. He really does pitch in."

Morrison said sometimes he has to remind himself his left leg isn't moving in sync with the right at home.

"I have to remember to hold on to the hand rail (going down stairs)," he said. "My left leg forgets to go."

Almost unbelievably and just as tragically, one of Morrison's roommates last semester at MSU, Ryan O'Donnell, was injured critically earlier this month in a car accident. Morrison feels a lot like his friends felt for him a year ago.

"A lot of people just give up," Morrison said. "I'm going to make sure he doesn't."
