School chief will step down

Several school board members were critical of Superintendent Larry Thomas, who announced Monday that he will resign when his three-year contract expires in June 1995.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Larry Thomas, who hoped to unite a splintered Wayne-Westland school board when he became superintendent 25 months ago, has resigned amid pressure from a board majority that wants new leadership.

With his family and nearly 150 district residents and employees looking on, Thomas, 47, announced Monday that he will step down when his three-year contract expires next June 30.

He could leave earlier, however, if he finds a new job. He is a candidate for the top post in at least one district, Brighton, where he will be interviewed next month along with seven competitors.

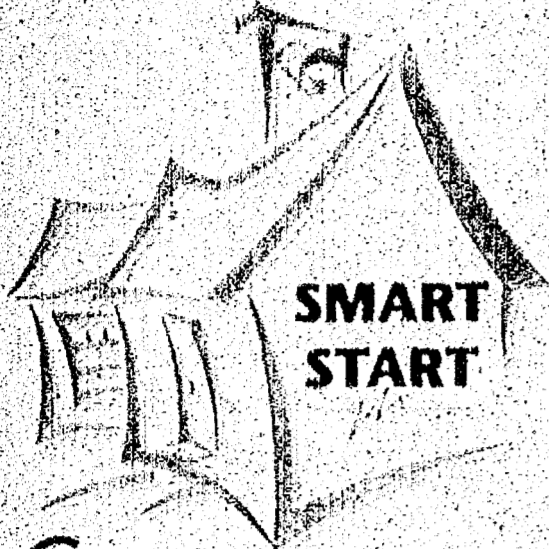

"At this time, I believe it is in the best interest of our community, our students and my own future contribution to education that the Wayne-Westland schools prepare for a change in leadership," Thomas said, reading a prepared statement during Monday's board meeting. "It seems clear that despite my personal commitment, a new superintendent, selected specifically by this board, may recognize a greater opportunity to succeed."

Avoiding criticism of his foes, his two-page statement focused heavily on his administration's achievements, such as a 23-percent increase in student scores on state MEAP (Michigan Education Assessment Program) tests.

The school board accepted his resignation in a 5-1 vote, with member

Woman killed in mobile home

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland police are searching for a motive in the slaying of a woman who was found stabbed to death — with a knife stuck in her mouth — in a bedroom of her residence in Westland Meadows, a mobile home park on the northeast corner of Meriman and Van Born.

Jane Fray, 34, was found dead with multiple stab wounds to the head, chest and neck when her mother went to her mobile home at 10:52 a.m. Tuesday, Westland police Sgt. Terry Donohue said. Fray lived alone at her 609 Cashew residence, he said.

"It's unbelievable," Donohue said, describing the murder. He called it the most brutal stabbing he has seen.

"There had obviously been a struggle," Donohue said.

A 38-year-old boyfriend from Wayne was in police custody for questioning Wednesday, but no charges have been filed as of Wednesday afternoon.

"He's not the only person we're looking at," Donohue said.

Fray's body was found on the floor in a rear bedroom of her mobile home, and two knives were found nearby.

"Both knives had blood on them," Donohue said.

Police believe that Fray, a computer firm employee, had been dead for possibly several hours when her body was found. Neighbors reported hearing an argument inside the mobile home around 4:30 or 5 a.m. Tuesday, Donohue said.

Police weren't yet certain Wednesday whether the suspect in custody was responsible for Fray's death. Fray and her boyfriend weren't known to fight, Donohue said.

From what investigators have been told, he said, "They got along very good. They didn't even argue, let alone fight."

Police were called after the mother found Fray's body and went to a next-door neighbor's residence for help, Donohue said.

Although two knives were found at the scene, Donohue said no evidence has been found to indicate that Fray was attacked by more than one assailant.

When asked whether police had been previously called to Fray's home to investigate domestic disputes or violence, Donohue replied, "Not to our knowledge."

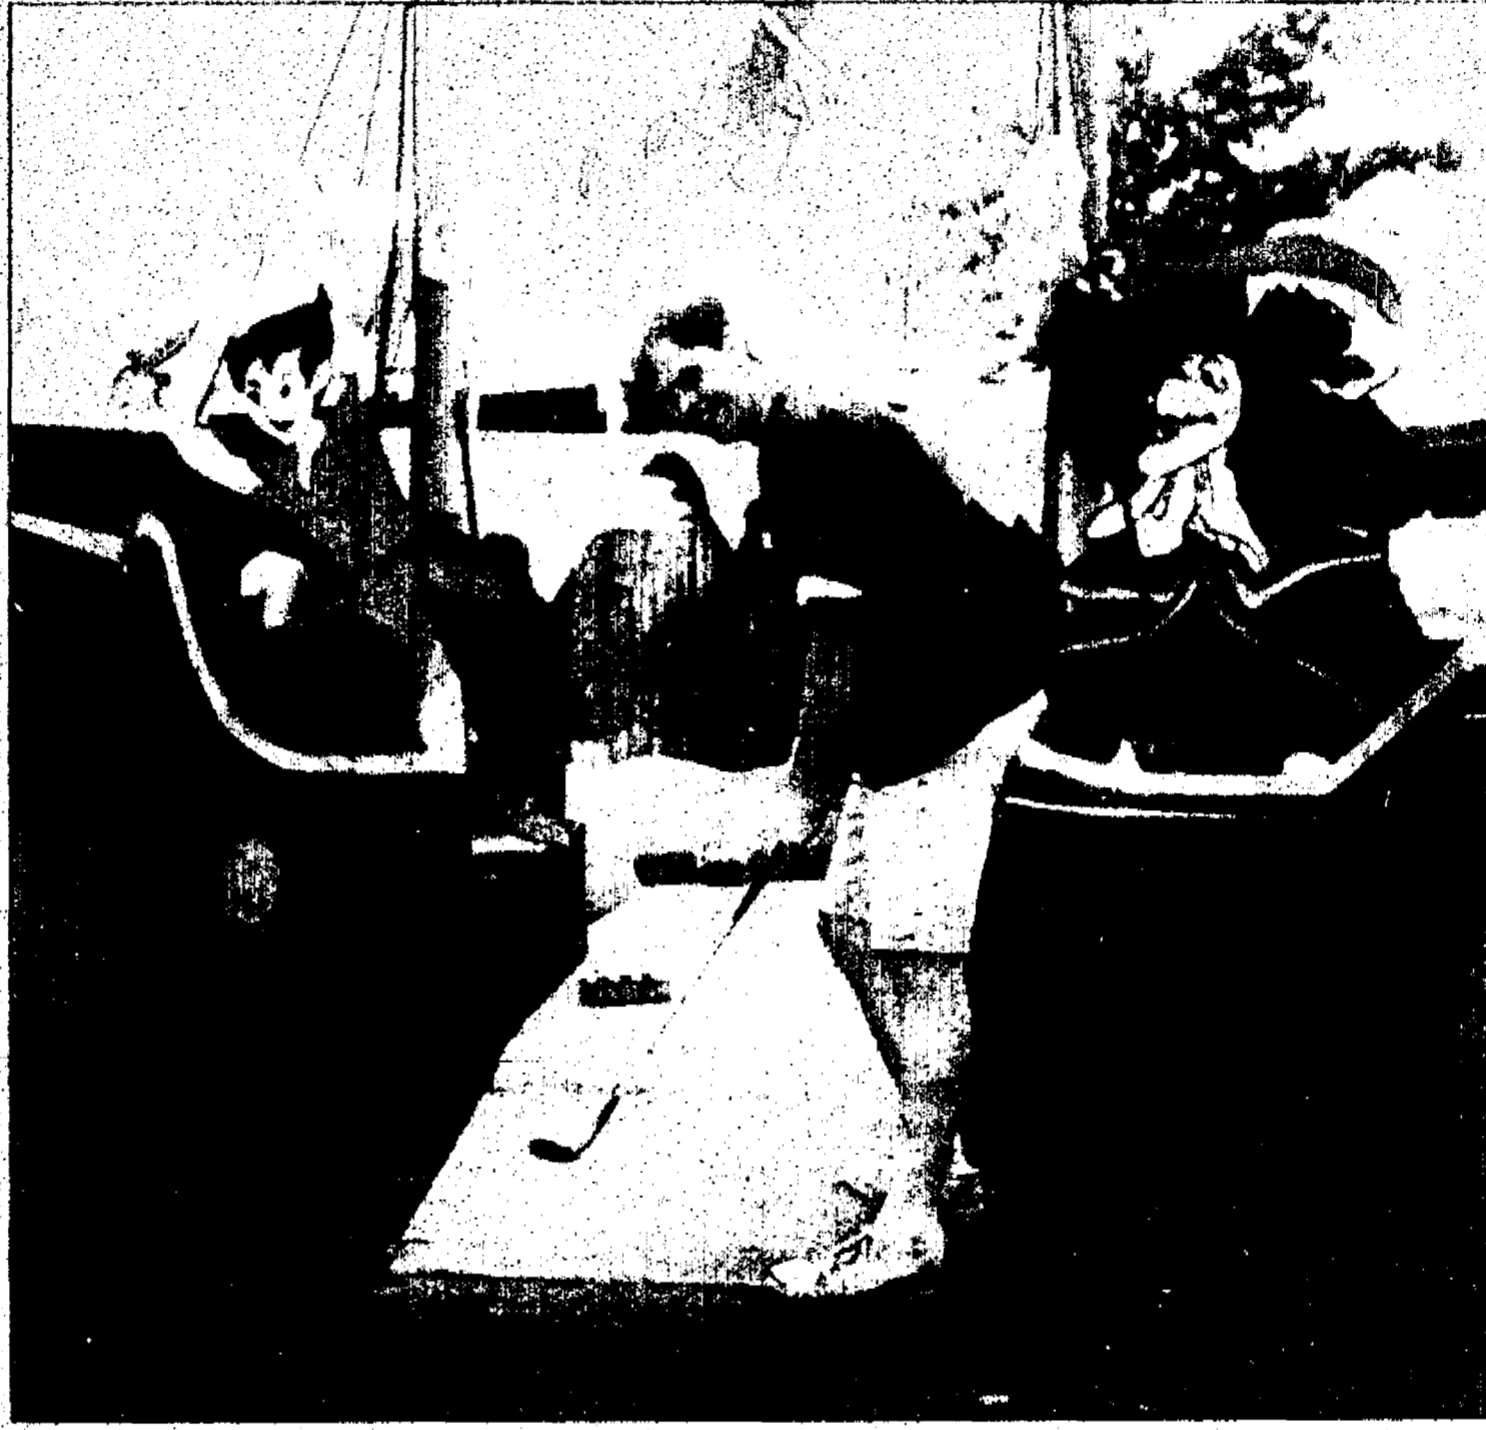

Fray's body hadn't been released by the Wayne County medical examiner's office as of late Wednesday morning.

"The autopsy hasn't been finished yet," a spokeswoman said.

Richard Duhl, who manages the nearly 800-home trailer park, said residents don't seem to be panicked by the killing.

"I certainly don't seem to have a lot of people running around here scared," he said. "Things like this can happen in wealthy neighborhoods, or it can happen to people who are not as wealthy."

Thomas averts public criticism

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

After announcing his resignation as Wayne-Westland school superintendent, Larry Thomas has been spared the potential humiliation of having harsh evaluations by school board members made public.

His bosses — seven Wayne-Westland school board members — agreed Monday night that their individual evaluations of his job performance won't be released.

The board earlier had intended to release the evaluations that contain some harsh criticism of Thomas, who announced Monday that he will step down when his contract expires next June 30 — if not sooner. An attorney general's opinion indicated the documents should be made public.

However, the board has adopted as its official evaluation an earlier-released summary of the documents. The board's unanimous vote means that individual evaluations won't have to be revealed for the board to comply with the law.

Copies of the individual evaluations had been requested by the press and by some district employee unions. Thomas fought the release of evaluations that some of his supporters said were in tactually mean-spirited.

The summary document, previously reported in the Observer, included widely diverse evaluations that ranged from the lowest possible rating of unsatisfactory to the highest possible rating of outstanding.

Public comments from board members and district residents who attended Monday's meeting underscored the diverse opinions about the 47-year-old superintendent. Thomas began the third year of his three-year contract on July 1 and will be paid $110,000 this year.

Board president Mathew McCusker accused Thomas of lacking leadership ability.

"We've been so busy putting out fires and dealing with day-to-day problems that we have no idea where we want to be in five years," McCusker said.

Several residents came to Thomas' defense, voicing disappointment over his resignation. Early in his tenure, Thomas had told the Observer that he would like to retire from Wayne-Westland.

Jerry Smith of Westland proposed that board members themselves be evaluated by a citizens committee prior to school board elections. He chastised the board for its treatment of Thomas and said he has heard rumors that an unnamed district employee is already in line to serve as

Schools will ask voters for 3-mill hike

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A split Wayne-Westland school board decided Monday to ask voters to approve a 3-mill tax increase in a special election tentatively set for Oct. 17.

But the board failed to identify $1.3 million in spending cuts that will be made if the tax proposal is rejected, prompting strong warnings from Superintendent Larry Thomas that state law requires a balanced budget.

The board will revisit spending cuts early next month. On Monday, board members rejected four budget-cutting options offered by the Thomas administration, including the elimination of busing.

Despite indications that board members could be jailed for ignoring state laws, trustee Francis "Bud" Winter suggested making no budget cuts and closing schools early when the money runs out.

"I don't look forward to going to jail," he conceded.

Board member Patricia Brown also refused to make budget cuts Monday, suggesting instead that officials demand more money from the state.

"I won't agree to cutting transportation," she said.

Board president Mathew McCusker warned his colleagues to abide by state laws and not to shirk their duties.

"We should take that oath (of office) very strongly and to our heart," he said.

Board vice president Richard LeBlanc was the sole opponent Monday as the board voted 5-1, with board member Vicki Welty absent, to ask voters for a two-year "enhancement millage" that would boost the homestead tax rate from 6 mills to 9. The 3-mill increase would generate $2 million a year in revenue.

At 9 mills, homeowners would pay $9 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation for school taxes. The proposed increase would cost the owner of a $70,000 house (with a $35,000 SEV) an extra $105 a year.

The millage rate would remain far below the 37-mill rate that immediately preceded the March passage of Proposal A, which slashed property taxes and boosted the state sales tax to pay for education.

LeBlanc, citing "vehement opposition" from citizens, predicted the tax proposal would have a 1-in-5 chance of passing.

Brown disagreed, noting that local taxes have been significantly reduced and that Michigan districts have had a 90-percent success rate for post-Proposal A tax plans.

Some residents supported LeBlanc's assessment of voter sentiment.

Westland resident Blanche Thomas, mother of Mayor Robert Thomas, addressed the board and said some residents, including another of her sons, are upset about a plan to redraw school attendance boundaries.

"Until you are true to our children, don't waste your time trying to get a new millage. You won't," she said.

Westland landlord/attorney Walter Warren said controversies such as Thomas' resignation as superintendent will doom a millage vote.

"Frankly, I don't think the millage has a prayer passing," he said.

The Thomas administration cited eliminating busing as its number one priority for cutting costs if the millage fails. But a motion by board member Laurel Raisanen to accept the recommendation failed in a 3-3 dead-lock vote, with McCusker and Debra Fowlkes supporting it and Brown, Winter and LeBlanc opposing it.

'We should take that oath (of office) very strongly and to our heart.'

Mathew McCusker

Several residents and employees stressed that Inkster residents would be hard hit without busing because their children would face a several-mile walk to school.

Bus driver Emily Thayer suggested that all district employees agree to work two days a year with no pay to help avert the budget deficit.

"But it's got to be everybody or nobody," she said.

Canton Township resident Bob Lyons spoke in opposition to halting transportation and said, "That's the safety of the children."

Several board members noted that the district will face downsizing, and potential school closings, to balance future budgets. But all agreed they don't want to cut the instructional program.

Despite Proposal A, board members said the district isn't out of the millage business yet.

"We are just as much into it now as we were or ever will be," McCusker said.

Brown said Proposal A has failed Wayne-Westland and noted, "I have never opposed a millage election, and I never will."

Livonia teacher talks in 11th hour

BY MARIE CHESNEY STAFF WRITER

Both sides negotiating a contract for teachers of Livonia Public Schools hope that marathon bargaining sessions this weekend will produce a tentative contract to present to teachers Aug. 31, the day the contract expires.

"I'm still optimistic that an agreement is possible by the beginning of school," said Ken Watson, superintendent of Livonia Public Schools which serves the northern portion of Westland.

However, Livonia Education Association president Nancy Shaw is less sure that the district's 1,000 teachers will have a contract to vote on when they hold a general membership meeting at 6 p.m. next Wednesday, Aug. 31, the day before all teachers are scheduled to report to school.

Other than the first full day of school, Wednesday, Sept. 7, the district has not yet set the calendar for this school year. An Aug. 10 newsletter to teachers says that the district has the right to set the first day of school, but not the rest of the year's schedule without the LEA's approval.

New teachers are scheduled to report Aug. 29, all other teachers the next day.

According to the LEA newsletter, the district has put on the table every part of the current contract that relates to money "with the intent of getting major concessions from the association."

Changes have been proposed in the areas of salary, sick leave, health care, retirement incentives, class size, special classes such as art, music, physical education, layoff and recall rights, unemployment compensation and the guarantee of an assignment for the entire year, the newsletter said.

"The board states that they can no longer afford to maintain the current sick leave article that guarantees 200 paid sick days for each tenured teacher," the newsletter said.

Also on the table, the newsletter said, are:

- Creation of mentor teachers.
- In-service requirements for both tenured and non-tenured teachers.
- Site-based decision making/school improvement topics.

The Michigan Education Association will meet with the LEA Friday to review its bargaining progress and crisis plans, the newsletter said.

The general membership meeting takes place at 6 p.m. Aug. 31 in the Bentley Center gymnasium.

To give bargaining updates, the LEA has set up a hotline (622-4992).

City ripped for not aiding school security

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Wayne-Westland school board member drew fire Monday for previously criticizing the city of Westland for refusing to help the district hire an armed police officer for John Glenn High School.

But board member Francis "Bud" Winter of Canton Township continued to question why Westland officials won't follow the lead of the city of Wayne, which is paying half the cost of an armed officer stationed at Wayne Memorial High School.

"Why can't the city of Westland afford $25,000?" Winter asked. "I can't understand that."

The controversy that began last year continued Monday when Westland residents Betty Talmadge and Blanche Thomas, mother of Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, addressed the school board.

Talmadge criticized Winter for his remarks against the city of Westland. School officials wanted the city to split the cost of a police officer amid hopes of strengthening school security.

"Westland — the mayor and the council — has certainly done more (to help the school district) than most surrounding communities," Talmadge said.

She cited two examples:

- The city of Westland sponsors "one of the finest DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) programs around." Officers go into schools to teach youngsters about the dangers of drugs.

Westland has a crossing guard program that assists students as they cross busy intersections on their way to and from school.

Blanche Thomas, meanwhile, said city residents receive "all kinds" of services from the city, while school district residents "get nothing" in return for their school tax dollars.

Winter responded to the concerns by restating his criticism of the city of Westland.

"Most communities have full-time police liaison officers in (high school) buildings," he said.

Although he commended Westland for having "an outstanding police force," he questioned why the city can't commit $25,000 to split the cost of a John Glenn police officer.

Problems at John Glenn are typically over by the time police officers can respond to the scene, Winter said.

Westland city officials in general have said problems at John Glenn don't warrant a full-time police officer. However, one council member, Charles Pickering, has previously voiced support for the project.

The school district has beefed up security at all secondary schools amid increased reports of weapons in schools in recent years.

Laurel Raisanen imploring her colleagues to reconsider a decision that she said will "force out the one person who can lead us successfully through the rest of the decade."

Vicki Welty, the only other trustee who was on the seven-member board when Thomas was hired, didn't attend the meeting but issued a written statement supporting the resignation "in the interest of board unity and to move our district forward." Still, she commended Thomas' "diligence, hard work and vision" and said she accepted his departure "with great personal regret."

Board members voting to accept the resignation included Francis "Bud" Winter, Patricia Brown, Richard LeBlanc, Debra Fowlkes and president Mathew McCusker.

Raisanen accused her colleagues and some district employees of "sabotaging Thomas from the start. She charged that loyalists to former Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, ousted under pressure in 1991, have been resistant to change.

But other board members disagreed and criticized Thomas' leadership abilities.

"Just because you don't agree with somebody, you can be labeled a saboteur or resistant to change," McCusker said.

Winter criticized Thomas for having poor relations with employee groups and for controversial decisions such as moving alternative students from a segregated center into the high schools for one year.

"We placed our kids at great risk in the high schools," Winter said.

Word of Thomas' impending resignation was first reported Aug. 15 in the Observer, but he declined to confirm his intentions until this week. He said he announced his departure early to give the board time to launch a search for a new superintendent.

When asked later what advice he would offer his successor, Thomas simply replied, "Good luck."

McCusker commended Thomas' realigned cabinet and voiced hope that his departure won't "start a stampede (of administrators) out of the district." Several top officials have been hired from outside Wayne-Westland since Thomas became superintendent.

Thomas, who lived in the Livonia school district portion of Westland even before he was hired, was supposed to move into Wayne-Westland by Jan. 1 under a residency clause in his contract. The board voted Monday to waive that requirement.

Board member Brown noted that forcing Thomas to move for the remainder of his contract "would be purely for vindictive reasons."

But board members said Thomas' successor would be expected to live in the district.

Before he replaced O'Neill, Thomas had been employed in the West Bloomfield district for 10 years, most recently serving as assistant superintendent for administrative services. His job in Wayne-Westland, for which he is being paid $110,600 this year, marked his first superintendency.

interim superintendent.

"I, for one, would not blame (Thomas) if he didn't start the school year with us," Smith said. "I would blame the board."

District bus driver Denise Thomas (no relation to the superintendent), noted that the district faces a $1.3 million budget short fall this year.

"I don't know how a district in this financial situation is going to attract (a new superintendent) who is worth a hill of beans," she said.

Wayne resident Jim Netter voiced similar concerns and said, "God help the school district without a superintendent and no money."

Westland resident Betty Talmadge, a Thomas supporter, commended him publicly by saying "the downfall of the Wayne-Westland school district did not start with you."

Board member Francis "Bud" Winter criticized Thomas on several fronts and said the superintendent's performance wasn't "as glowing" as some suggested. He said the administration has been reactive, rather than proactive.

Board member Laurel Raisanen read an eight-page statement supporting Thomas, noting that his administration has boosted student performance.

"Dr. Thomas is constantly scrutinized, criticized, ostracized, verbally attacked and humiliated, yet he has remained true to his promise to improve this school district because he has a dream of how it should be, of how students should be treated, of how students should be educated with dignity and high expectations," she said.

Raisanen and Vicki Welty are the only two remaining board members who were on the board when Thomas was hired on a 4-3 vote in 1992. Raisanen noted that she was elected to a four-year term in June 1991 after campaigning for change.

Westland resident Jerry Mercier commended Raisanen "for sticking up for the people that voted for you."

Charger cheer team champs of camps

Some 45 girls, ages 8-12, participated in the clinic Aug. 2-3 at Shelden field.

The top three performers were selected as "camp champs" and will perform this fall at a Churchill football game with the Churchill High varsity cheerleader squad.

The CHS Varsity Cheerleaders were invited to cheer at the Detroit Lions pre-season opener against the New York Jets on Aug. 6 at the Silverdome.

The Silverdome appearance came on the heels of a recent cheerleading camp the squad attended in Alma.

High school cheerleading teams from across Michigan performed at the camp. Churchill varsity cheerleaders secured three first-place ribbons and one second-place ribbon as a result of final evaluations.

Teen cleared in murder case

A Westland teen — one of three teens charged with attempted murder after a Wayne apartment was sprayed with bullets — has been found innocent.

Christopher Boyd, 18, had been charged with assault with intent to murder and felony firearms in connection with the Dec. 6 incident that occurred at a lower-level apartment at 35550 W. Michigan Ave., Wayne.

But Boyd was recently found not guilty during a trial in Detroit Recorder's Court. He was charged after the apartment was sprayed with bullets from a .22-caliber rifle and a 12-gauge sawed-off shotgun. The 4:20 p.m. incident occurred at the Nankin Apartments.

Boyd was the only one of the three teens to be acquitted of charges stemming from the incident.

Jason Krasson, 18, of Garden City is serving 10 to 15 years in prison based on an earlier conviction stemming from the shooting incident.

A third defendant, Michael Elkins, 17, of Westland is scheduled for sentencing Aug. 31 after pleading to a reduced charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, according to the Recorder's Court clerk's office.

No injuries were reported during the incident.

Church plans an anti-drug and gang awareness program

A church committee is planning an anti-drug and anti-gang awareness program Friday night and children's activities and educational programs Saturday.

The Friday evening program is geared for adults with Saturday's activities geared for adults and children.

Steve Turner, Special Forces Committee for Student Excellence, said the events will be held at the Abundant Life Church, 35212 Melton, near Wayne Road and north of Palmer.

A fund-raising party at Skateland West was held Saturday night to help defray expenses for the program.

An anti-gang awareness meeting for adults will be held from 7-9 p.m. Friday with Westland Police Officer Thomas Lessnau providing information.

The program will continue most of Saturday with a KIDS extravaganza on the church grounds.

The Friday evening program is geared for adults with Saturday's activities geared for adults and children.

The activity for children from 5 to 12, will be held at 7 p.m. today and Friday and at 12:15 p.m. Saturday. A fire prevention program will be held at 1 p.m. and a carnival from 1:30-4 p.m.

For teens from 13-19, a 3-on-3 basketball tournament will be held Saturday with registration held at the church. A Drug Abuse Resistance Education program will be held from noon to 4 p.m. at the church, followed by a performance by comic Pat Bowen at 6:30 p.m. and a concert by Rick Cua.

Persons may call the church office, 595-0011, for more information.

Trial ordered in armed robbery case

A Dexter man charged with robbing Howard Hoagies restaurant, 1553 S. Wayne Road in Westland, has been handed over for trial to Detroit Recorder's Court on a charge of armed robbery.

Ted Alexander Wade, 28, was ordered to stand trial following a preliminary examination held last week in Westland 18th District Court.

The restaurant was robbed about 6:22 p.m. July 10 when a suspect walked into the store, indicated he had a weapon and demanded money, police have said. No weapon was seen and no injuries reported.

Two employees were working in the store at the time of the robbery, police have said.

Wade also faces armed robbery charges in Canton Township for a July 9 robbery that occurred at the Clark gas station on Ford Road, police said.

Not guilty pleas have been entered for Wade, who could face life in prison if convicted. He is being held in the county jail in lieu of a $100,000 cash bond.

Parachutist will fly high for 80th birthday party

BY TOM BAER
STAFF WRITER

The thick, black hair has a touch of gray at the temples. The bearing is upright, almost military, and the handshake is strong. There's no flab around the middle.

This man looks to be a well-preserved 60. Actually, he'll be 80 years old next month.

Joe Polluto of Farmington Hills celebrated that birthday a month early by repeating what he did at age 29 — falling from an airplane high above France.

On Aug. 14, 1944, Polluto, then a member of the U.S. Army's 509th Parachute Battalion, jumped over the city of Nice with hundreds of other soldiers to begin the battle for southern France.

At a 50th reunion Sunday, Polluto and seven other old-timers from the 509th were scheduled to do it again — jump over Nice.

"It's really wonderful being up there, just looking around and floating down," said Polluto as he packed for the trip to France. "It seems that you're not going down, but that the earth is coming up to you."

Polluto, a retired heavy equipment operator, has jumped 20 times in his life. A recent one was Aug. 7 at the Para-Hawks parachute club near Marine City. That was a jump he needed to make to qualify for the reunion fall in France.

"The square chutes today are so good that you can land just about anywhere you want ... right in your own back yard," said Polluto. "You start from quite a bit higher, too."

"In the Army, we dropped from 800 feet. The chute opened up and you hit the ground at the same time."

Polluto spent five years in the Army, making four jumps over France and North Africa. He saw plenty of combat but doesn't care for war stories.

"Oh, there's not much to say about the war ... nothing good to say about it ... I don't care to talk about it," he said.

"One reason I'm going back is that my best friend never made it. I'm going back to make sure my feet get on the ground at his place."

For the most part, Polluto paid his own way back to France. The French government provided just one meal. Polluto heard somewhere that the French weren't too keen on supporting an event where men in their 70s and 80s jump from airplanes.

They need not have worried about Polluto, though. He seems fit and experienced. And he's still learning from the Para-Hawks.

"I learned more from those instructors than I did when I was in the service," he said.

Maybe his long years on construction jobs, which involved hard work out-of-doors, had something to do with his current good health. At 5-feet-8 and 145 pounds, he's about an inch shorter and 15 pounds lighter than in his Army days.

He's no health fanatic, but he avoids what he calls "fatty foods" and enjoys three-mile walks around his subdivision and through Farmington's Shiawassee Park.

"I like salads," he said. "I tell you, I can really fill up on salads. I'll eat meat, but it has to be real lean."

He'll take an occasional drink, but he's never smoked in his life that he can remember.

Polluto, born and raised in Calumet in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, came to Detroit in 1939 for a construction job. He was drafted into the Army a couple of years later.

"I was living in this hotel downtown," he recalled, "and I got this letter that said your friends and neighbors want you. Thing is, I didn't have any friends or neighbors."

Before going overseas he married a girl named Dorothy, and they were together almost 47 years. She died six years ago.

Now Polluto, retired 17 years, lives with his son Joe Jr., who's known as Danny, in the house in southern Farmington Hills. A daughter, Judy, lives in Florida.

There are a few Army mementos in the Polluto living room. An end table with a glass top is a display case for some of Polluto's many war medals and ribbons — including a Purple Heart. Actually, he has two of them.

The light brown paratrooper uniforms he wore at the reunion were specially made replicas of his World War II togs. His brown jump boots were highly shined, and his red tam carried the proper insignia.

A lot of old men attend reunions of their Army units. But how many of them jump out of airplanes once they get there? Well, only eight from the 509th Parachute Battalion.

"I'm kind of proud I can still do it," Polluto said. "I've been more fortunate than a lot of people, I guess."

Trip strikes out

To no one's surprise, the city of Westland's community relations contractor canceled a planned Westland Family Night to a Sept. 9 Detroit Tigers ball game. Dianne Abbott, the city's cable, TV and community relations contractor, said the event was canceled in the wake of the baseball players' strike which began Aug. 12. The city won't lose any money by making a quick cancellation, she told the city council last week.

Summer program

Phillip Szorny of Westland recently took part in Michigan Technological University's 19th annual Summer Youth Program, joining about 1,000 other secondary schools students. Phillip is the son of Sandra and Andrei Szorny and a John Glenn High School senior. During the weeklong program at the Houghton campus, students focused on career exploration and development of new skills through lab, classroom and field experiences.

classes this fall, starting the week of Sept. 27 and continuing through Nov. 16. There will be lessons in beginning and intermediate line dancing offered in six-week sessions. A country ballroom partner dance class will also be held during the same period. More detailed information is available at Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. For recreation purposes, the department is offering country and western dancing on the fourth Sunday of September, October and November in Bailey Center for $3 each. The dancing will be 7-11 p.m. on Sept. 25, Oct. 23 and Nov. 27.

Final concert

The last outdoor concert in a summer series will be at 6 p.m. Sunday at Jaycees Park, on Wildwood and Hunter. The series, sponsored by the Westland Cultural Society, will have the Caution band perform music from the 1950s and '60s. Co-sponsoring Sunday's concert will be the Westland Jaycees.

Pool announces holiday hours

The Bailey Recreation Center outdoor swimming pool is heading into its last two weeks.

The pool, behind the recreation center on Ford between Wayne

Road and Newburgh, will have open swimming 4-8 p.m. Monday, Aug. 29, through Friday, Sept. 2, and noon to 4 p.m. and 5-8 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday of the Labor Day weekend.

The facility has a water slide. Plans for next year include a wading pool and new concession stand.

County officials consider new tax

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners on Friday will consider whether to place a proposal on the Nov. 8 ballot requesting a 1-mill tax for 20 years to create an environmental cleanup program and to support county parks.

"I think there is a good chance (that the commissioners will vote to put it on the ballot)," said Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, whose district includes Redford. "By putting it on the ballot, we will allow the local citizens to decide if they want to continue funding the parks."

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, opposes the tax. "I totally oppose even putting this measure on the ballot," he said. "While it tries to do everything for everybody, it only does one thing: It raises taxes for non-mandated functions."

One mill of property tax in Wayne County would raise about $24 million a year. A mill is $1 of tax for each $1,000 of assessed property value.

The proposed tax would be divvied up like this each year:

- $4 million for environmental cleanup.
- $1 million for upkeep on Belle Isle.

Each city and township would get half of the money its residents paid.

The other half would be reserved for county park purposes, including security.

McCotter thinks the Detroit vote would ensure the proposal's success because Detroit stands to gain more than any other Wayne County city. "If it gets on the ballot, Detroit will put it over the top," he said.

According to parks director Hurley Coleman, general fund appropriations for parks have decreased since 1989. The additional mill would raise nearly $3 million for parks.

"You have to understand how exciting it is to have the county executive and the commissioners considering any proposal that would provide a dedicated way to support the parks," Coleman said. "The executive and the commissioners are taking a serious look; we are having some intense internal discussions. We have never had a better chance to give this such a long look."

Details of the proposal were still being worked out and Coleman was reluctant to share his hopes and ideas until he had met with the commission.

"I have an excellent relationship with the county executive and the commission," Coleman said. "Naturally, whatever thoughts I have, I would rather express to them first."

County Executive Ed McNamara referred all questions on the issue to Coleman.

Plawecki said that the cities and townships could spend their share of the money however they like, providing it goes for parks.

"That way, the local parks and recreation people can decide whether they wanted to construct ball diamonds or soccer fields or whatever," Plawecki said. "The money will probably be split up according to population and property values. My understanding is that Redford (which houses two county parks) will get about $300,000."

Coleman said that one point of emphasis for the money would be the city of Detroit and the eastern region of the county.

"We have a deficiency on the eastern side," Coleman said. "There are no county facilities there, so we are looking for resources to service that area and the city of Detroit."

The county oversees 4,800 acres of park land, including the 17-mile Hines Drive parkway which runs through Observerland.

"I think the ballot proposal is the right way to go on this," Plawecki said. "Our job is to represent the needs of our communities. This will give the citizens an opportunity to say how they feel."

The commissioners are scheduled to meet at 10 a.m. Friday in the county government headquarters on 600 Randolph in Detroit.

Students missing from OU strategic plan — trustees

BY RALPH R. ECHLINAW
STAFF WRITER

Something is missing from Oakland University's official strategic plan, said board of trustees chairman David Fischer and vice chairman Rex Schlaybaugh Jr. students.

The plan was grist for discussion Tuesday at an all-day powwow of the OU board at the Troy Marriott Hotel.

The 28-page plan is the result of 10 months of work by 167 people, including seven board members, 72 teachers, 61 administrators and nine students.

Theoretically, the plan will be a blueprint for Oakland's future, in that whatever changes are made or programs started will be done with the aim of reaching the goals in the plan.

But there is scant mention of students in the plan, said Schlaybaugh and Fischer.

Students are good

"That's something we've got to go back to the drawing board and deal with," Schlaybaugh said. "(Students) are customers, and we ought to recognize that."

"Our students don't believe that we appreciate them," Fischer said, adding that perhaps "we need to say to the students that they're the most important thing we've got. I'd like to see something (in the plan) that talks about the students specifically."

Schlaybaugh likewise lamented the lack of a reference to student athletics in the strategic plan.

"Is someone looking at athletics as a way to increase our reputation?" he asked. College sports, Schlaybaugh said, create a sense of community within the university itself and in the surrounding area as well.

Considering the poor record of the Detroit Lions until recently, Schlaybaugh said, OU might have done quite well with a decent football team.

"I identify with Rex and support him 200 percent," said trustee James Sharp Jr.

"National eminence"

Trustees also tossed around the idea of becoming one of the really prestigious universities in America.

To do so, trustees seemed to agree, the overall quality of incoming students would have to be raised.

"You can't make a 12-second, 100-yard-dash person into a 9.8-second, 100-yard-dash person," Schlaybaugh said.

"That's a decision we have to make," trustee David Handelman said. "What sort of student do we want to educate?"

"We currently serve a slightly better than average student," said OU President Sandra Packard. "In my view, our job is to educate the bright and able student, but not necessarily the Harvard student."

Even if OU should choose to seek out the smartest freshmen, said vice president of finance

Paul Blasonette, "The high-achievement students are probably going to be beyond our reach."

Breakdown

The plan is broken down into nine sections called "strategies." Strategy One says that OU considers "undergraduate education as central to its mission and will ensure an environment of learning excellence."

Strategy Five says "research is one of Oakland University's greatest strengths and will be encouraged, funded and aggressively supported."

Strategy Three promises students "an environment rich in human diversity with dedicated support services, extensive non-classroom activities and outstanding instructional residential and recreational activities."

Strategy Seven says that OU

"will develop and fund areas of institutional excellence and distinction that contribute to national eminence."

Strategy Eight says OU "will create an empowered community of diverse, unified, committed and motivated employees."

Schlaybaugh warned against the danger of creating an unrealistic, pie-in-the-sky strategic plan.

"What I don't want to do is create a mission statement that is doomed to failure," he said. "I don't want to lose sight of the fact that we can't manage this by mottos and slogans. We've got to temper our strategic plan with a little reality of what we're prepared to do."

Trustee Stephan Sharf put it in analogous terms. "If you want to eat an elephant, you take one bite at a time," he said.

Technology admits students to 'Global Village'

By EMORY DANIELS
STAFF WRITER

The concept of the Global Village is becoming a reality for many area students this fall.

A program using the latest technology to allow students to interact with other students throughout the world is expanding to other several other learners this fall. In fact, the project is open to whatever teachers or school districts wish to join.

The Global Village Project is an interdisciplinary global education class that uses technology to allow students to communicate and work with students worldwide, explains coordinator Ceil Jensen.

The program started two years ago in Rochester Community Schools where Jensen teaches. Students use video and audio tapes, fax and e-mail to carry out theme-based projects.

"Global Village students carry out their research on our contact countries through traditional and electronic sources," said Jensen. "In our district, this two-hour block class is for seniors. The students earn one-half credit in social studies and one-half credit in art. The art credit is granted for the computer graphics, still video photography and for the video components of the course."

This year, the Global Village Project has entered a partnership with O&E Online so students will be able to enter a reserved designated site on the Observer & Ec-centric's electronic online service with full Internet access. Other teachers are encouraged to connect to the Global Village this month to review the site. To do that, dial (313) 953-2266 and choose Option 5.

Hunting course set

"The partnership between O&E Online and GVP supports the adage, 'Think globally/Act locally,'" said Jensen. "We are working in our communities to use the Internet as a tool to support global education for our students."

"I am looking forward to the Global Village board on O&E Online. I found out this summer at an international telematics conference in Argentina that most schools are only creating text for their exchange."

"We are fortunate to have the equipment to produce multi-media work, so I hope we will be able to model the possibilities of multi-media exchange via the Internet." The Global Village board at the O&E Online site will have menu items for audio, video, traditional and electronic arts. "I hope we will find teachers and students world wide who are experimenting with these media."

Working with the Global Village from Observer & Eccentric has been Greg Day, O&E Online system operator, and Bryan Waser, information systems coordinator.

During the first semester of the program last year, students had a lot of "small mail" (mail delivered by traditional means by U.S. Postal Service) and a few e-mail exchanges.

"But it's hard to run a class with 'small mail,'" said Jensen. "We need the speed of e-mail. We have exchanged e-mail with students in the Netherlands, Japan, Russia, Hungary, Portugal, Finland, Argentina, Australia, Israel, Germany, Austria, Brazil, and Argentina. We also have had a video phone exchange with Argentina."

Another advantage of e-mail besides speed is that students can communicate on the keyboard in English.

The goals of Global Village include: learning to use technology for research and communication; learning to work in groups as well as individually; learning about the history, customs, and current events of the participating countries; and using art as a universal language.

The Global Village is a very active community. "It is a very active, hands-on class," said Jensen. "There are different work stations setup in the room to allow students to film, edit, do word processing, create computer graphics, and access the Internet."

For the coming school year, Jensen will be adding Global Village Project Junior to the O&E Online board. "I will be writing projects that will be appropriate for grades 1-9. I have a colleague from a middle school in Pontiac and at an elementary school in the state of Washington helping with this part of the board."

E-mail invitations have been sent out to teachers in Africa, Argentina, Australia, Canada, China, Cuba, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Israel, Japan, Egypt, Norway, Portugal and Spain.

For teachers in other districts considering joining the Global Village, Jensen recommends a team teaching approach. The team could consist of art, language, social studies, and technology teachers.

In early August, Jensen conducted workshops for other teachers as an introduction to telecommunications in the classroom and on the services available on the Internet.

A corps of teachers will continue meeting during the year, including electronic meetings online.

(The interview and writing of this story was done entirely electronically, using e-mail and online tools and other electronic technology. No spoken words were exchanged, no hand-written notes, no typewriter, no telephone, no pencil and notebook.)

Madonna University adds 4 to governing board

Four individuals have been appointed to the Madonna University board of trustees.

They are: Monsignor William Easton, vice rector/dean of formation at Sacred Heart Major Seminary, Sister Mary Cynthia Ann Machlik, associate director of St. Mary Hospital, Sister Mary Diane Masson, an Archdiocesan Metropolitan Tribunal judge and John Sennett, president of Sennett Steel Corp.

Easton previously served as pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Parish in Pontiac and co-pastor of St. Mary Parish in Royal Oak. Ordained in 1970, he became a monsignor in 1990.

Health care administration has been a major focus of Sister Machlik's. Her education includes a master's degree in hospital and health administration, a master's in biochemistry and a bachelor's in biology. Since 1965 she has worked in an administrative capacity at St. Mary Hospital.

Sister Masson, a canon lawyer, received her licentiate in canon law from Catholic University of America. She serves as an associate delegate for religious for the Archdiocese of Detroit.

Sennett, who rejoins the board, first became a Madonna trustee in 1986 and served as chairman in 1990. He is a graduate of Notre Dame and Michigan State universities.

Why not walk across Mackinac?

Area residents planning to participate in the Labor Day Mackinac Bridge walk may benefit from the following information.

There is no fee or registration required. You may start walking anytime after 7 a.m. No one will be permitted to start after 11 a.m.

The walk begins in St. Ignace and ends in Mackinaw City. You may park in Mackinaw City and take a bus from the loading area north of Traverse Bay Woolens Company on South Huron to St. Ignace and walk across.

Bus tickets are $1.50. Tickets go on sale and buses begin transporting walkers at 5:30 a.m.

There are no restrooms on the bridge, however there are portable toilets at both ends of the bridge and the bus-loading area in Mackinaw City.

Not allowed are: bicycles, roller skates, skateboards, wagons and similar vehicles. With the sole exception of seeing-eye dogs, no dogs are allowed.

Baby strollers and wheelchairs are permitted.

Walkers will receive a numbered bridge walk certificate upon completion of their walk.

For additional data, call (800) 666-0160 and ask for bridge walk information and leave your name and mailing address. The stuff will be sent the next day. Or call the Mackinaw City Chamber of Commerce at (616) 436-6574.

Walk Michigan events planned

The Wayne County Park System's slate of Walk Michigan events continues through Sept. 27.

Walk Michigan is a year-round fitness program whereby folks gather at different spots in the county and take walks.

At the end of each event participants may enter a drawing to win a trip for two to Mackinac Island and the annual Labor Day Mackinac Bridge walk in 1995.

The remaining walks will occur in the following areas of the Middle Rouge Parkway:

■ 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30, in Northville.

■ 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 10, at Nankin Mills.

■ 6 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13, in Warrendale.

■ 6 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20, in Wilcox.

■ 6 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27, in Northville.

Call 261-1900 for additional data.

Animal course set

A Schoolcraft College course called "Animal Behavior" meets 8-10 p.m. Mondays, Sept. 12 to Oct. 31.

The fee is $43. Call 462-4448.

Participants will learn to interpret why animals act the way they do at bird feeders or on the African plains. Behavior patterns like social courtship and communication will be discussed.

Golf benefit planned

The Friends of the Helen C. Brown Westland Historical Museum will hold their annual golf benefit to raise money for museum improvements. The benefit will start Saturday morning, Sept. 17, at the municipal golf course, on Merriman south of Cherry Hill. Tickets are $25 for nine holes of golf. Trophies will be awarded for the longest drive and those getting close to the pin.

There will also be gifts and prizes awarded to golfers.

For information and tickets, persons may contact historical commissioner Thomas Brown at 595-1699, or commissioner Joseph Benyo, 467-3183.

Walsh graduates

Walsh College, a private school which specializes in accounting and business administration, announced that two Westland students were awarded degrees. Carolyn Tscherne received a master of science degree in professional accounting last April. Susan Christensen received a bachelor of business administration degree in last summer's commencement ceremonies. The college, based in Troy, held a commencement ceremony in June for more than 900 graduates, the largest in the school's 72-year history.

Photo contest

The Michigan Parks and Recreation Association is working with the Westland department to sponsor a "Focus on Michigan" photo contest through Oct. 14. Purpose of the contest is to promote the use of photography as a creative art form and leisure pursuit as well as to produce photos showcasing the state's natural beauty and its residents at play. The contest will have three divisions; one for youths 17 and younger; one for adults from 18 to 54, and another for persons 55 and older. Photos may be taken in any public park, recreational facility or fair or festival. Subjects may include nature, landscapes, visual or performing arts and people enjoying recreation. Photos showing recognizable persons must be accompanied by a subject release form, available from the Westland recreation department in Bailey Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and

Temple Baptist won't quit on move plans

STAFF WRITER

Temple Baptist Church of Redford is not giving up, following the rejection Wednesday by the Plymouth Township Planning Commission of the church's plan to relocate to Plymouth Township.

"We have a lot of options to consider," said Temple senior pastor Rev. Brad Powell on Wednesday, after planning commissioners voted unanimously to deny the church's request to build on a 50-acre site at the southwest corner of N. Territorial and Ridge roads.

Church officials didn't rule out the option of taking the matter to court. Powell maintained that since the plan was first proclaimed four months ago, political pressure from neighbors opposed to the church swayed planning commissioners.

"No statute precludes the right to have a church," Powell said.

After announcing plans to relocate, Temple Baptist has sold its present church building at W. Chicago and Telegraph to another congregation. The plan was for those two congregations to share use of the church in Redford until Temple Baptist is able to move to its new site.

Residents living near the site of the proposed church turned out in force Wednesday, as they had for other planning commission meetings when the request was studied.

The new church building was designed to hold 4,000 people as Temple Baptist is known for scheduling major programs during religious holidays and concerts featuring Christian performers throughout the year.

More than 150 turned out for the meeting Wednesday. Russ Barnett of Cook Avenue carried a sign outside the township meeting room at Lilley and Ann Arbor roads. It proclaimed, "Build your oversized complex in your own backyard, not mine."

"I moved into the neighborhood because it's a nice quiet neighborhood," Barnett said. "It's just too large; it doesn't make sense to have it in a single family area."

Some planning commissioners spoke on why they were voting to deny. Planning commissioner Donald Skinner said that in making his decision, he'd weighed the information presented by the church, the planning consultant who recommended denial based on sharply increased traffic, and on residents' rejection of the plan.

Skinner said that to put the planned church complex at the site "would be in conflict with orderly development," adding the size would be detrimental to adjacent property owners and would conflict with the township's master zoning plan.

Planning commissioner Charles Curmi, also a township trustee, said it was a difficult decision to deny the church's request.

"This church is doing a very good job; we like what they do, but it doesn't fit here," Curmi said. "We hope the church can find a good fit somewhere."

The planning commissioners' vote to deny sparked extended applause from residents, many of whom had turned out for several meetings to voice objection to the plan.

"I think the voice of the people finally prevailed," said Brahm Kataria of Cook Avenue. "The planning commission looked at all the facts and acted in the interest of the township."

"I live in the condos across the street," said Joy Morris, who also attended the meeting Wednesday to urge denial. She said traffic sparked by approval of the church complex was too much for N. Territorial and Ridge roads to handle.

"There is nothing in the ordinance that this request doesn't meet," church attorney Joseph Galvin, told planning commissioners before the vote. He maintained the decision was based "on whether or not 1,400 Baptists are going to be permitted to worship."

"The issue that it comes down to, when you strip away all of the smoke, is it is uniquely suited to roads planned to serve regional traffic," Galvin said.

Thomas aftermath Improved board attitude needed

The other shoe dropped Monday in the long-simmering Wayne-Westland School Board dispute with Larry Thomas, its superintendent for the past two years.

As expected, Thomas Monday night submitted his resignation, effective June 30. But there is a chance he may leave earlier if offered a superintendency elsewhere. He is one of eight finalists for the top administrative position in the Brighton school district.

The resignation and comments from several board members on other issues Monday clearly show that the trustees still haven't learned how to set policy and deal with the problem of their relationship with the superintendent.

It was clear in the past year that Thomas was in deep trouble with board members who were elected after his appointment in the spring of 1992.

Only board members Vicki Welty and Laurel Raisanen are the holdovers from the board that picked Thomas to make academic and other changes for the district of nearly 16,500 students.

But the board members elected in the past two years apparently have a different agenda.

Not only are they opposing change, they are giving off signals that they are living in a never-never land.

An example surfaced Monday night in discussion of a 3-mill tax increase tentatively scheduled for Monday, Oct. 17, at a time when the district has yet to settle its teachers union contract, with no money for pay raises.

With those unsettled issues, some board members are still refusing to identify what services or programs would be cut if the tax increase is rejected at the special election.

The turmoil by the district's policy makers will not only make it hard to gain public confidence in the upcoming millage election but will also make it difficult for the board to hire an effective person to replace Thomas.

To his credit, Thomas has made an impact in his brief, but active, two years as the district's top administrator.

Michigan Education Assessment Program scores have increased 23 percent, a tougher student code of conduct has been adopted, and a five-year curriculum plan has been developed.

But there were well-publicized problems in the past year, including Thomas and the board squabbling over the release of individual board member evaluations of him.

Instead, a summary was prepared by Thomas earlier this year and officially approved by the board this past Monday night.

There has to be a better way to run a district than the method shown by current board members.

Without a change of attitude in the near future, a district that desperately needs direction will only continue to deteriorate.

School of tomorrow is here

Students will be returning to school this fall to a world of knowledge no longer limited by the size of the blackboard.

For an ever-increasing number of students, the world is at their back door and easier to access than dad's wallet. And the reason is technology. Not only does technology impact on how students learn but on what they learn, when they learn and who gets involved in the learning.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, for instance, is offering an access site and the international communication link for the Global Village Project whereby students throughout the region have the opportunity to share learning activities with students in other worlds. To help prepare teachers to capitalize on global communications via the Internet, an 11-year-old Layonia boy from Frost Middle School recently traveled to Rochester to share his knowledge and experiences.

In Redford Union, South Redford and Farmington Public Schools, parents can learn about their children's homework assignments for the night, or obtain other information about their child's school or classroom, through the Homework Hotline offered by the Observer & Eccentric. This is a voice mail application that piloted last year at Warner Middle School in Farmington and is expanding this year. Using the same technology, parents from all 12 communities in which our newspapers publish can obtain a variety of information about the opening of school through our Smart Start school hotline.

In Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, students connect to the nation and world through an interactive cable system which offers limitless opportunities for young people at Salem and Canton high schools.

Several school districts in our circulation area have obtained voter approval of technology bond issues and are in the midst of modernizing classrooms, computer labs, media centers and other learning opportunities for students. What is happening is not only more than toys, gadgets and gizmos.

Technology allows schools to combine text, still photography, videos, and other graphics to not only make learning more exciting but bring to the student the most current information possible. This easy access to VCRs, interactive television, personal computers, the Internet, electronic communications, and similar technology truly allows for individualized instruction and self-paced learning in ways unimaginable a few years ago. Because of technology, students can learn more in less time.

Among the school buildings being modernized are Hillside Elementary and Farmington High in Farmington. Farmington has chosen Greiner Engineering, a design firm that plans high-tech schools by integrating computers and telecommunications in different ways.

The schools of the future Greiner is designing today include a school-wide integrated system which will give every teacher keyboard access from the classroom to the media center and its laserdisc, still video, and VCR technology. CD-ROM encyclopedia provides the most current information available while on-line databases allow individuals to access information from other areas in the district, across the nation and throughout the world.

Multimedia stations allow students to develop presentations using video, computer graphics, and stereo sound. Daily attendance is electronically recorded and non-disruptive communication between office and classroom occurs via e-mail and voice-mail. Some of these schools of the future have Information Kiosks using interactive computer technology to provide ongoing information about school and activities.

The result of all this should be students who are better trained and better equipped to work in and survive a future world that many adults will be struggling to keep pace with. If our educators are right, and this time they might be, our young people will be far more prepared for tomorrow than we are.

Anything is possible

Could Howard Wolpe be Michigan's next governor? Is it possible? Absolutely! In Michigan politics anything is possible!

I have even come up with the following list of the top 10 reasons why Gov. John Engler might not be re-elected. (The list is intended for the private use of speculatively inclined readers and should not be given to any Michigan Education Association member).

First reason, the predominately Democratic black vote will turn out in record numbers spurred on by new Mayor Dennis Archer, who is eager to show that he is a good Democrat and can "deliver the votes" in a statewide election.

Second, suburban and rural "traditional" Democrats will be able to return "home" to the Democratic Party - for the first time in years - now that the property tax mess has been "fixed" by passage of Proposal A.

Third, women voters will shun Engler in droves. Despite noble efforts during his term to soften his image for female voters - Engler is still viewed negatively as a "childless bachelor" by many women voters. This is Engler's so-called "gender problem."

Fourth, many Macomb County Republicans view Proposal A as a "tax shift" and many Oakland County Republicans see Proposal A as a "tax shaft." They may sit this election out on the theory that "with friends like this who needs enemies?"

Fifth, many "school-oriented" voters fear Engler will attempt to trash the local public school concept with some "pie in the sky" quest for "quality" - or to get funding for private schools. People really don't want the public schools tinkered with. They just want the schools to be open!

Sixth, many voters correctly fear that Engler will make a radical attempt to further destroy the "social safety net" and to limit the traditional rights of workers. They fear Engler's allies in big business will go on a four-year feeding frenzy during Engler's "lame-duck" second term as governor.

Seventh, Engler is pro-NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement). NAFTA is not universally popular with Michigan voters.

Eighth, voters want a return to the relative calm of the political center. People are turned off by Engler's confrontational political style. Four more years of "in your face" controversy would be unbearable to many voters. People want a "centrist" governor that they can openly "like" without fear of being offensive to others.

Ninth, many voters fear that the Republicans will gain control of both the state legislature and the governor's office. Voters want "checks and balances," "yin and yang" - they distrust single party control of state government.

Tenth, and most important, the anti-Engler forces are really, really motivated. And the old Engler anti-property tax coalition is pretty much pacified. Motivation wins elections!

If all or even some of the above scenarios occur in the November election, Howard Wolpe could be the next governor.

Abortions opposed

How long will it take the "pro-choice" feminists and their cohorts to face, to recognize, the human, living, unborn life in the womb of its mother? As well as the massive abuse of these "innocents" of contemporaries, and the injustice that still prevails... though "ultrasonography" confirms its total presence in the shelter of the womb?

It is most ironic that those in the pro-choice see fit and consider to destroy its life while condoning the abortionist's primary goal: to execute them... by the hundreds each day... as a "business venture."

This humanity has been educated so much about AIDS and drugs, yet many refuse to be educated about what abortion does to a living, breathing, unborn life.

Is it because one doesn't want to face the actual truth that AIDS and drugs are gross and always will be. You've seen what they do. Surely, it is imperative that you get a glimpse of what one's choice to abort does to a defenseless cherub, not as an intimidation, but as a way to warrant understanding, of such great priority, as its unborn life.

Further, its precious life is not a private matter. It remains a separate entity, worthy of all our concern because it is part of this humanity.

Carriers praised

So often we read in the paper about the young newspaper carrier (Observer carrier of the month). I believe in giving young people praise and credit for what they do, but what about the older people who are newspaper carriers?

I would like to nominate Shirley and John Cowles for your carriers of the month of September. Shirley and John are so dependable, thoughtful and caring about all their customers. We aren't only their customers, we are their friends.

So, boys and girls, keep up your good work - I give you great credit and praise for what you do. Let's share that with Shirley and John for giving them this recognition.

Amateur boxing teaches valuable lessons for life

The first time you walk into a boxing gym what you notice is the equipment and the aroma. The aroma isn't unpleasant. It's the smell of hard work.

When I first walked into the Livonia Boxing Club in 1980, I was ready to jump head first into a sport I loved to watch. But I wanted to do more than watch. I wanted to participate and test myself.

The physical aspect of boxing is fairly obvious to anyone who's seen it. What I didn't know, and what so many who are uninitiated to boxing don't know, is that there is so much mentally to boxing.

Before anyone ever enters the ring there are some basics to be learned. The first and most important lesson is that concern for safety takes precedence over everything else. You learn how to wrap your hands to protect them from injury. Then you're going to learn how to throw a punch properly. Once again to prevent injury.

You'll practice shadow boxing and hitting a heavy bag. And you'll learn about getting into shape, running, jumping rope, sit-ups . . . etc. All this has to be done before you ever box against someone.

The first time you spar against a live opponent is a big surprise. You put in your mouthpiece, put on the head gear and the over-sized 16 ounce gloves and you think you're Muhammad Ali. The bell rings, your stomach reminds you of its butterflies and you're off. You move around clumsily looking for an opening to land a punch. Ding! The more experienced opponent jabs your nose. The butterflies fly away and you lash out angrily. Things become a bit of a blur, but you're pleased to be holding your own.

Next thing you know you're circling around thinking the round must be just about over. But here's the big surprise: You sneak a peak at the clock and realize only one minute has passed and there are two to go! It's amazing how slowly it takes three minutes to pass. The last minute seems like an hour and you can barely keep your hands up. By now you're doing the George Burns shuffle instead of Ali's.

As you gain experience you begin the intellectual lessons of boxing. These lessons revolve around discipline, dedication and self-motivation. This sport is primarily a solitary endeavor. Nobody is going to make sure you don't cheat on your conditioning. That's your job. If you don't do it you'll pay for it in the ring. The guy who gets the wind knocked out of him from a body shot either quits or stops cheating on the training.

GUEST COLUMNIST

SCOTT HEINZMAN

Pretty soon your dedication pays dividends and you start to learn more. After a couple of months of regular work you begin to see just what an incredible machine the human body is. By now you can spar three or four rounds competently. Your confidence grows with the improvement of your skills. It is amazing how much your stamina, speed and strength have improved. And you can really appreciate how much farther you can go when you see how well-tuned the gym veterans are.

Now when you're in the ring you're thinking. You don't like to be hit, but you are learning self-control. An experienced fighter will make you pay if you allow anger to make you sloppy. Even when you're tired you're concentrating on staying focused. You're learning that this sport is a chess match. Almost everyone you get into the ring with is in good condition. When the physical abilities are comparable, the winning edge goes to the boxer with mental superiority.

Once you have an official fight you've logged a lot of learning. In an official amateur bout you fight three two-minute rounds (you spar for three-minute rounds to build stamina). Win, lose, or draw you have a lot of respect for your opponent because you know what it took to reach this point.

That's why at the end of a bout fighters hug and congratulate each other. It's a matter of respect.

It's important to clarify some things about this sport. The participants are matched against someone of their weight and approximate experience level. Amateur boxing is very different from professional boxing. Amateurs wear head gear whereas pros don't. Amateurs box two-minute rounds and pros box three. Amateur fights are three rounds while pro bouts can go as many as 12 rounds. And referees are exceptionally cautious. When an amateur boxer is hit solidly, the referee will give the boxer a standing eight count to gauge the effect and give the boxer a chance to clear his head. If the boxer doesn't have his composure, the contest is stopped. In other words, amateur boxing is very safe. A kid is more likely to receive a permanent injury from playing soccer (usually a knee) than amateur boxing. It's also worth noting that although boxing has historically been for males, many gyms, including Livonia Boxing Club, are now open to females.

The Livonia Boxing Club has been in the city for more than 15 years. And it's still being operated by founder Paul Soucy. Right now LBC is trying to raise funds for a new location. Given the limited number of activities available to people younger than 21, it would be a shame if LBC was forced to close its doors.

If a parent is looking for an organized activity for a son or daughter that improves confidence and conditioning and teaches discipline, dedication, determination, self-control, respect, self-motivation, and safety, then LBC is a good place to go.

I know I learned a lot there. Livonia Boxing Club is at 29300 Plymouth Road (northeast corner of Middlebelt). The hours are 6-9 p.m. Monday-Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday. Phone 421-7235.

State con-con: It could help, but it's unlikely to convene

It's automatic. The Legislature didn't put it there. No one signed petitions for it.

Proposal A on the Nov. 8 ballot will ask whether we want a state constitutional convention (con-con). The Michigan Constitution itself says that every 16 years, we shall vote on a con-con. Voters approved the current document in 1962 and in 1978 rejected a new con-con.

Polls show only a handful of voters want a con-con this year. A few groups are saying vote no. But the general silence is worrisome.

Two years ago, religious evangelicals were talking about voting yes to wreak vengeance on public schools: Get rid of the ban on state funds for church-related schools and go to the voucher system; abolish all state curriculum laws except on sexual abstinence; get rid of rules on home "schools"; dump the State Board of Education; maybe re-examine this stuff about free speech for students.

Evangelicals have been effective in many Republican and a few Democratic primaries, mainly on behalf of anti-abortion candidates, usually working invisibly with telephone banks and leaflets in churches. They do less well in a general election or where there's a large turnout. That tactic is important. In 1961, Democrats, though they dominated state offices, went to sleep in the con-con election, and Republicans took 2-1 control of that body.

Those Republicans were moderates with a genuine reform agenda. They were led by George Romney, Richard Van Dusen, Glenn Allen Jr., Weldon Yeager, Robert Danhof and a list of other progressives.

One must wonder, however, if the same quality of leadership would emerge in 1995 if voters were to approve a con-con on Nov. 8, 1994. Will the mainstream elements of both parties be asleep in 1995? The 1963 constitution, as amended, isn't perfect but is still pretty good. It replaced dozens of obscure administrative boards with 20 departments, made legislative apportionment better than it had been, got rid of the rural justice of the peace courts, set up a Court of Appeals, allowed a flat-rate income tax, improved finances enormously, gave counties limited home rule, provided for regional authorities, got rid of the April election, gave every university its own board, and set up a State Board of Education that eventually showed some spunk.

There are many different kinds of intelligence leading to success

Question: A group of my salesmen, golfing friends were discussing the state developed MEAP and standardized tests we took in school that told us whether we were intelligent or not. Many of us had average scores but have done well in life. We don't think those tests necessarily measure intelligence. Are we right?

Answer: Indeed, I was at a class reunion where I talked to a former student who was very "average" in my math class. However, he was verbally articulate and had strong interpersonal people skills. He is now a salesman who has done exceptionally well. An all "A" student I had in that same math class is his bookkeeper and very happy. Two different types of people, two different types of interest, two different types of intelligences.

Howard Gardner, a Harvard researcher, after many years of study, developed a theory of Multiple Intelligences (MI). Gardner identified seven basic intelligences such as:

- Logical Mathematical Intelligence: Gardner saw this as the capacity to use numbers effectively, intelligence in logical patterns, relationships, inferences, calculations, cause and effect (e.g., scientist, logician, computer programmer).
- Linguistic Intelligence: The ability to use words effectively such as an orator, the politician, the playwright, sales people, the journalist or poet. Linguistic intelligence manipulates the structure of language, the semantics (the meaning) of language and the pragmatic or practical uses of language . . . sometimes to convince others.

My, how limited in Linguistic Intelligence Dustin Hoffman was in the movie "Rain Man"; how poor his interpersonal skills, but what an extraordinary, logical mathematical mind. Although the savant example is an extreme case, many special education children, the learning disabled and those with attention deficit surprise even seasoned instructors with abilities that cannot be measured by standardized tests.

Other Multiple Intelligences include:

- Interpersonal Intelligence: Quality lawyers, psychologists, school counselors, doctors and dentists, editors, master teachers, negotiators, and indeed sales people, in my opinion, must have been born with Interpersonal Intelligence. Gardner theory considers this to be the ability to perceive and make distinctions in their moods, intentions, motivations and feelings of others.

Interpersonal Intelligence is perceptive to facial expressions, voice tones and gestures, able to discriminate between different kinds of interpersonal cues in one-on-one and in group situations and is able to respond effectively in a pragmatic, practical manner.

Some leaders have little or no intelligence in this arena. These leaders alienate, constantly intimidate from a power position, may get the job done but are so lacking in Interpersonal Intelligence, free tickets will have to be given to their retirement party to avoid embarrassment.

There are other intelligences such as Spatial Intelligence. The architect, interior decorators, artists and/or the inventor who have a sensitivity to color, shape, form and space and the relationships that exist are good examples of this intelligence. Those gifted in this area are never sorted out by the usual standardized tests given in the school environment.

The body also plays a role in intelligences. Bodily-Kinesthetic Intelligence uses one's body for movement. Expressing ideas and feelings creatively is seen in Michael Jordan's moves on the basketball court and in Tom Hanks' portrayal of Forrest Gump and in dancers, sculptors, mechanics or surgeons where dexterity, perceptual and tactile capacities are required.

Another of the Multiple Intelligences is Musical Intelligence where sensitivity to rhythm, pitch or melody is inherent to those with gifted musical intelligence. Not only performers but composers and even those who simply enjoy and can intelligently discriminate between excellent or poor performances. In school settings, music teachers can sense those children who will be the first chair early in the child's musical career.

Probably one of the most important of the Multiple Intelligences is Intrapersonal Intelligence.

When a person has an intelligence which includes an accurate picture of oneself, an awareness of inner moods, motivations, intentions, strengths and limitations they have Intrapersonal Intelligence.

Hawks snare title

The Livonia Y Michigan Hawks, an under-13 girls soccer team, captured last weekend's Waterford Cup with a 2-1 victory in the championship over the Birmingham Burners. The Hawks, coached by Farmington's John Buchanan, also scored wins over Bloomfield Hills, Grand Rapids and Troy. They reached the finals with a 1-0 victory over the Birmingham Blazers.

Members of the Hawks, who outscored their opponents, 21-1, include: Susan Bear, Renee Kashawic, Kristin Leszczynski, Deanna McGrath, Brianna Roy, Andi Sied, Stacey Supanich and Megan Urbats, all of Livonia; Abi Morrell, Anne Morrill, Christen Shull and Suzi Towne, all of Canton; Nicole Breger, Laura Grode and Cassie Teeple.

Wolves snatch crown

The '85 Michigan Wolves boys under-10 soccer team also won its division at Waterford, outscoring their opponents, 18-1, including victories over Dearborn Heights, Waterford and Canton.

3 vs. 3 winners

Four Livonia Youth Soccer Club players all from Livonia — Lisa Fabirkiewicz, Andrea Galindo, Jenny Schmidt and Jamie Scott — captured the II SoccerMania three vs. three under-14 girls title Saturday at Schoolcraft College.

The Livonia trio of Galindo, Scott and Stacey Nastase, also joined Lydia Raburn of Novi to win the under-14 Triple Crown Soccer Shootout last month in Birmingham.

Rockets retool for '94 season

Westland John Glenn made its sixth state playoff appearance last year. The Rockets, who reached the state Class AA title game, were hard hit by graduation. Glenn opens its season Friday, Sept. 2 at Howell.

BY BRAD EMOSS
STAFF WRITER

It's time for coach Chuck Gordon to take roll call for the Westland-John Glenn football team.

Wait a minute, coach, that's the old roster.

It may be tough to forget last year's memorable cast, which finished 11-2 and rolled all the way into the Pontiac Silverdome before falling in the Class AA championship game against Dearborn Fordson (12-7).

But life goes on for Gordon (128-38 career record) and his football program.

The Rockets return only two starters from a year ago, but boast a large squad of 53 varsity players (despite a $125 pay-to-participate fee).

"We've been decimated by graduation, and we're starting from the ground floor and working up," said Gordon, now entering his 18th season. "It's a tremendous challenge for our team. But as hard as they work, anything can happen."

Brent Washington, a 6-foot, 170-pound senior, could certainly be the catalyst. He is considered the team's best athlete.

Washington started last year as a defensive back and now moves into the tailback spot to replace Horne.

"He's a tremendous competitor and has a great attitude," Gordon said. "I think he'll have a good season. He has excellent work habits."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN'S 1994 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE (Games 7:30 p.m. unless note)

September: 2, at Howell; 9, Farmington Harrison; 16, North Farmington 23; Walled Lake Central.

October: 1, at Farmington (1 p.m.); 7, Livonia Stevenson; 14, at Plymouth Salem; 21 or 22, at WIAA crossover (TBA); 28, Wayne Memorial.

The other returning starter is offensive guard Jim Lock, a 5-8, 190-pound senior.

"He's a hard worker who gives everything he has every day," Gordon said.

Junior Jay Jackson (5-6, 150) could also see action at tailback.

Senior Mike Kidder (5-8, 181), meanwhile, played significant minutes in the backfield last year. He'll line up at fullback.

"Mike's a good blocker and a good runner with decent speed," said the Glenn coach.

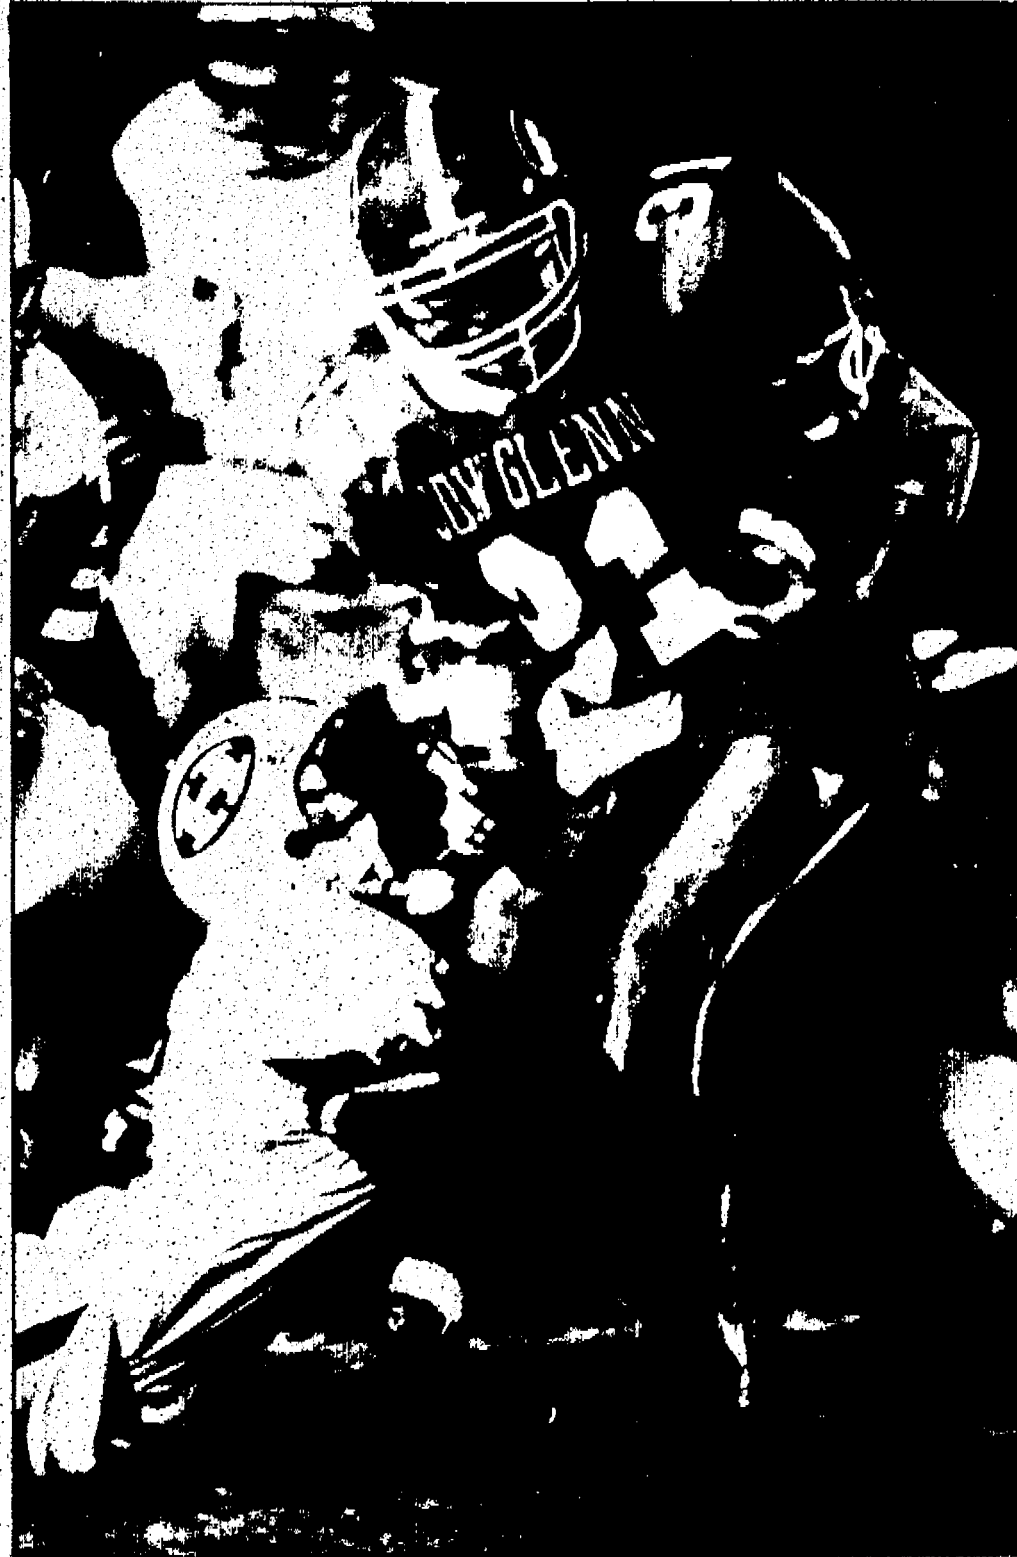

The quarterback is senior James Hagelthorn (5-11, 170). He replaces the graduated Morrison, who was a two-year starter.

"We think James is an excellent leader, can run the team, and has a very good arm," Gordon said. "We have a lot of confidence in his abilities."

Top receiving threats include a trio of seniors — Jeremy Strick (5-11, 152), Jason Duffield (6-0, 154) and Jerry Farrar (5-11, 143).

"I think we can mix the run with the pass," Gordon said. "Washington and Jackson are threats at tailback."

World Cup '94 is here. And guess who's Observerland's Brazil?

To nobody's surprise, the Livonia Stevenson boys soccer team is the odds-on favorite to win it all this season. They're not only the team to beat in the area, but also among all Class A schools in the state.

The Spartans, with five state championships to their credit since the Michigan High School Athletic Association began sanctioning tournaments in 1982, came within one minute in sudden death overtime of sharing the Class A crown with Warren DeLaSalle. DeLaSalle won 2-1.

Stevenson lost six seniors to graduation, but only two were starters including first-team All-Area midfielder Chris Grodzicki (now at Central Michigan University).

To say the Spartans are loaded this season would be gross understatement.

Three first-team All-Observer picks return including senior forward Nick Deren, who led the area with 25 goals; senior goalkeeper Mo Lanapeary (0.70 goals against average) and junior defender Scott Sersen.

Second-team All-Area midfielder Steve Willford returns along with six other starters.

"There's only one thing we couldn't do last year," said Barrett, who coached the Spartans to the '91 state crown, "and that's go back to the state finals and not have to go overtime. That final 1:17 sticks in everyone's mind."

Barrett doesn't mince words when talking about his talented cast.

"This is the best finesse team I've ever coached," he said. "If we can overcome the high school power game and long-ball throw-ins, there's no reason we can't get back to the state final and not have to go overtime."

Youth is also on Barrett's side. "This is a young team that has a lot of games behind them," he said. "But they have senior attitudes. Their attitude is as good as last year. Even on a bad day, teams won't like to play us."

Barrett, however, is wary of several teams on the Spartans' schedule including perennial Western Lakes Activities Association powers Plymouth Salem and Livonia Churchill.

"I know Churchill will always be ready to give us a game," Barrett said. "You can never underestimate that team."

Stevenson's ambitious non-league schedule opens Tuesday at home against Troy in possibly a battle of the state's top two ranked teams in Class A.

And if that's not enough, Stevenson travels Saturday, Oct. 1 to meet Birmingham-Detroit Country, a Class B mega power which set a national record last year with its seventh consecutive state title (despite settling for a tie in the '93 final with heavy underdog Richland Gull Lake). Stevenson and Country Day have tied the past two meetings ('92 and '93).

There were rumors the rivalry would be dropped because of a philosophical difference in terms of scheduling public schools against private school powerhouses like DCD.

"Everybody would have been disappointed if we hadn't played," Barrett said. "It's like Michigan against Notre Dame."

As for the rest of the area, Churchill (12-4-4) and Redford Catholic Central (11-5-3) will be missing key players, but have high hopes.

Churchill lost All-Area picks Justin Monson (Michigan State) and Goran Rauker (University of Detroit Mercy), while CC must fend for itself in the Catholic League's formidable Central Division without forward Rich Walos (Butler), midfielder Adam Borchert (Harvard) and midfielder Matt Kopmeyer (Valparaiso).

CC, however, returns first-team All-Area senior defender Brian Collier, while Churchill will rely on senior defender Kevin Callaway and senior forward Charlie Roberts.

Livonia Franklin (8-7-2), which earned a tie with Stevenson and lost 3-2 to Country Day last season, was also hard hit by graduation, losing tough midfielder Jason Buslow (Carnegie-Mellon, Pa.) and speedy forward Victor Rodopoulos (Central Michigan).

Rodopoulos had 51 career goals. Franklin's top returnee is four-year letter winner Dan Kulick, a senior defender.

As for Lutheran Westland (8-8-2), the Warriors boast a 20-man roster and could challenge in the Metro Conference.

Meanwhile, Westland Huron Valley (3-13-2) will rely on new comers to move up the ladder in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Stevenson gridders cast in favorite role

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Livonia Stevenson head football coach Jack Reardon isn't ready to jump on the bandwagon just yet.

But just about everyone else is pegging his Spartans as favorites to win the Lake Division title this season in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Stevenson returns 19 starters off last year's 7-2 squad.

But Reardon lost two key ingredients, his Joe Montana/Jerry Rice last-second, heroic connection.

Fleet-footed first-team All-Observer quarterback Kevin Szczembara, who tied a school record with 14 touchdowns passes (not to mention 1,186 yards), is now at Adrian College.

Another first-team All-Area pick, wide receiver Brad Morgan, finished his senior year with 45 catches, 747 yards and 10 TDs. His career totals were 71 catches and 1,145 yards. He is a walk-on at North Carolina State.

"They were half of our offense," Reardon said. "Without those two kids we would have had only four or five wins."

"Our kids naturally think they're going to be marvelous because they went 7-2 last year, but I don't know if they can remember that we easily could have lost to (Livonia) Franklin, (Plymouth) Salem and Walled Lake Central."

The quarterback spot is Reardon's No. 1 question mark.

Ryan Phimister, a 6-foot, 160-pound senior, is contesting for the job along with junior Dean Bacheller (6-1, 171).

"I'd have to flip a coin right now," Reardon said. "I don't have an idea. One throws better and maybe the other executes better. We're looking for a thrower more than anything else."

LIVONIA STEVENSON'S 1994 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

September: 2, Redford Union; 9, Livonia Franklin; 16, at Walled Lake Central; 23, at Plymouth Salem; 30, North Farmington.

October: 7, at Westland John Glenn; 14, Farmington; 21 or 22, at WAAA crossover; 28, Livonia Churchil.

Morgan's replacement at wide receiver will be either junior Tom Dumont (6-0, 162) or senior Jeff Buckler (6-3, 177).

"Brad will not be replaced," Reardon said. "You don't have those kind of players every year. He just had marvelous hands."

The tight end position returns three capable players in senior Nick McLaren (5-10, 197), the team's second leading receiver; senior backup Matt Fisher (6-1, 211) and junior Chris Arsenaunt (6-0, 186).

The tailback spot, however, is well fortified with the return of sophomore Gade Clark (5-6, 190) and senior Scott Goldman (5-9, 165). Newcomer Todd Ayres (5-11, 176), who was injured last year as a sophomore, should also help.

"Both Clark and Goldman look good," Reardon said. "We could end up alternating them a series each, on and off, like we did last year."

Senior Craig Martin (6-0, 220), a standout at guard last year, moves into the fullback spot along with senior Mike Redington (5-9, 185).

The slotback slot is also well-stocked with the return of senior starter Chris Mullett (5-9, 170). He returns along with senior Steve Vezina (5-7, 165). Junior Robert Drolet (6-1, 176) adds depth.

Size on line

The bread-and-butter of Stevenson's attack could be its experienced and sizeable offensive line.

Returnees include junior center Eric Curl (6-2, 226); senior guards Ben Lewis (5-11, 193) and Tony Jankowski (6-0, 239); senior tackles Jim Townsend (6-4, 255), Eric Hine (6-1, 261) and Dave Ross (6-0, 212). Junior Kevin Rosinski (6-0, 200) is also contesting at guard.

Ross, who also wrestles, has shed almost 44 pounds since the middle of last season. Defensively he will open at nose guard.

"Dave started out at 282 pounds at this time last year and now he's running more and more," Reardon said. "He's a different person. Even if he never plays football again, he'll be much healthier later in life because of it. He's our most improved, as far as attitude and physical performance."

Reardon said his team showed up in better condition this season.

"We're in much better shape than we were last year, but we still have a long way to go," he said. "Some people are still too big right now and they weren't ready for the first time (scrimmage)."

Defense key

Defensively, Reardon expects improvement over the '93 club, which gave up a total of 154

points in nine games.

"We had to score 26 or 27 points a game to win and you don't do that very often," said Reardon, now in his 29th season as head coach. "I'm very hopeful we'll play good defense because I don't think we can put the same kind of offensive numbers on the board."

"There was only one game where we played good defense and that was the Northville game (a 14-6 loss). It was wonderful, but they shut our offense down, too."

Joining Ross up front at the tackles are junior George Murphy (6-4, 250), Hine, Townsend and Jankowski.

The ends will be Lewis, Arsenaunt, Fisher and McLaren.

Martin leads the linebacking corps along with Redington and Rosinski.

Reardon will rotate "six or seven players" in the secondary, including Goldman, Mullett, Buckler, Vezina, Ayres, Dumont and senior Scott Griggs (5-8, 165).

"I think we'll know more about our team Friday when we scrimmage," Reardon said. "We're going to find out a lot more about this team."

Gentlemen, hold your bandwagons.

Full speed ahead: Chris Mullett (top) returns at the slotback position for the Livonia Stevenson Spartans, who are coming off a 7-2 season.

ODP camps fill greater needs

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

A cursory examination by the uninformed at the effect soccer has had this year, with the invasion of the World Cup and all, might lead one to believe it was nice but it's over now.

Don't be misled. An important as constructing a sound professional soccer league (that plays out of doors) is, it can safely be said the sport is hardly dependent on it.

It's proved not just by the huge numbers involved at the age-group levels, but by the success of such structures as the Olympic Development Program.

And just what is that? The ODP, quite simply, caters to the elite. Through a series of tryout camps, it sorts out the good players from the mediocre, and the exceptional from the good.

The object isn't just developing a strong Olympic team (as the title suggests), but feeding a World Cup program and helping strong players find places to play — particularly in college.

The latter has begun to take on added emphasis. More and more schools are adding soccer to their agenda. University of Michigan, Oakland University and Northwood University will field women's teams this year, and Madonna University has added a men's team.

The ODP camps help college coaches find the elite players without traveling state to state, tournament to tournament.

The girls state ODP tryouts are scheduled for this weekend at Rochester's Borden Park (at John R and Hamlin). A pool of 30 players and four keepers will be chosen in each of four age groups. Eighteen players will then be selected in each age group to try out for the ODP regional team.

The regional pools in each girls division (under-19, under-17, under-16 and under-14) will be selected using the same basic formula: 30 players plus four keepers, with 18 chosen to compete for the ODP national teams.

There are four regions in the country for girls. The boys follow a similar format, except there are six regions and six age divisions, and their state tryout camp is in the spring (due to conflicts with the high school season).

The region Michigan competes in, the Midwest or Region II, includes 13 states (with Ohio divided into north and south). And how does Michigan's ODP team fare?

"We do a very, very good job," said Bob Bukari, who heads the state ODP program for both boys and girls. Figures back up his claim: Michigan has the most representatives on the girls regional teams, with 27 of a possible 132 slots in all four pools. Ohio South is next with 25.

Pretty good, considering the program's limited resources. Although the ODP has grown considerably in the past few years — Bukari has a coach overseeing both the girls (Nick O'Shea, of Livonia Churchill and Oakland University) and the boys (Aaron Smith of Lansing) programs, each with administrative assistants — the lack of funds could prohibit further growth.

"We'd like to do more, like travel interstate and play more often," said Bukari, who also is an assistant coach at Detroit Country Day. "But we have no major sponsorship, so it all falls back on the shoulders of the kid and his parents."

Any in-state camp or competition (this weekend's tryout costs $35 per player) is funded completely by the player. Travel to regional affairs is partially funded by the ODP; national team competitions are paid for entirely by the ODP.

"Without a doubt, if we could get together more often we'd be much better," said Bukari.

Still, the state ODP has done well. Examples include not just Alexi Lalas, a Birmingham resident and member of the World Cup team, but also Country Day's Natalie Neaton and Kathryn Sobrero (from Bloomfield Hills), both members of an under-20 national team.

Other local girls who are currently in their age division's regional pool are Almee Cousino of Livonia (Churchill), Troy's Jessica Limauro, Carrie Povillaitis and Shannon Poole, and Jessica Jones of Northville in under-19; Jessica Glazer and Heather Brown of Birmingham (Seaholm), Laura Fedrigo of Livonia (Stevenson), Marie Spaccarotella of Livonia (Churchill), and Mari Hoff and Jennifer Bazzarelli of Plymouth (Canton) in under-17; Ann Cieszkowski of Country Day, Jaclyn Clark of Rochester, Meghan Kolbe of Birmingham Marian, Kristah Manteuffel of Redford (Thurston), Emily Schmitt of Troy (Athens) and Lizz Szkybalo of Livonia (Churchill) in under-16; and Alison Rackley of Birmingham (Seaholm), Mia Sarkesian of Plymouth (Canton) and Melanie Siler of Livonia (Stevenson) in under-14.

And when the girls national ODP teams are released next week — tryouts were in San Diego Aug. 9-14 — several of the nine Michigan players who competed are expected to make their age division's team.

All this requires a lot of effort from a lot of people, with no financial reward. As Kathy Coyne of Livonia, the outgoing Region II ODP administrative assistant and former state administrative assistant, put it: "It's a full-time job on a volunteer basis."

One that has paid dividends, though. Said current girls state administrative assistant Pat Sobrero, from Bloomfield Hills, of the ODP: "It's well worth the effort to see these kids develop."

Capsule preview of area prep teams

LIVONIA CHURCHILL

Head coach: John Boots, second season.
League affiliation: Western Lakes Activities Association (Western Division).
Last year's overall record: 12-4-4.
Titles won last year: WAAA (Western Division).

Season opener: 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30, at Novi.
Notable losses to graduation: Justin Monson (first-team All-Area defender), Goren Ranker (first-team All-Area midfielder), Vince DeMassa, Paul Dostal, Brian O'Beirne. (Note: Junior midfielder Jeff Tomkinson has been lost for the season with a knee injury.)

Promising newcomers: Peter Varga, junior defender/midfielder; Corey Berac, sophomore forward (transfer from Livonia Franklin).
Boots' '94 outlook: "I think it's going to be a good year. It's a fun group to coach. We'll have good rapport. The camaraderie will be much better than last year. They're an open-minded group."

"We'll be strong up the middle, and we're going to play high school soccer, not club style."
"This is a smart team."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

Head coach: Mary Kay Hussey, second season.
League affiliation: WAAA (Western Division).
Last year's overall record: 8-7-2.
Season opener: 5:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 26, vs. Birmingham Groves at Detroit Country Day Invitational.

Notable losses to graduation: Viktor Rodopoulos (first-team All-Area forward); Jason Buelow (first-team All-Area midfielder); Mick Schmidt, Dave Binkiewicz and Scott Simpson.

Promising newcomers: Kirs Mead, senior defender (didn't play in '93 because of injury); Dave Kostag, senior goalkeeper; Shawn MacGillis, sophomore goalkeeper.

Hussey's '94 outlook: "We lost 12 seniors, including nine starters. The thing we're missing a lot is leadership. Last year we had some strong personalities. It will take us awhile to have some individuals step up."

"It's a challenge for me and them. It will take them some time. They will have to make a decision to work hard."
"It will be interesting. We've got some good players, but they have to work extremely hard. If they do that, a lot can happen."

LIVONIA STEVENSON

Head coach: Walt Barrett, fifth season.
League affiliation: WAAA (Lakes Division).
Last year's overall record: 17-2-3.
Titles won last year: WAAA champions, Lakes Division, Class A district and regional.

Season opener: 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 30, at home vs. Troy.
Notable losses to graduation: Chris Godzicki (first-team All-Area forward); Bill Hensley, and Dan Quisimo.

Brian Collier: CC defender

Barrett's '94 outlook: "Every year each team has a different character, but this team is the best fitness team I've ever coached. Their attitude is as good as last year. They're even more enthusiastic to get back and get the season started."

"We plan on improving upon the style of play we had last year."

REDFORD CATHOLIC CENTRAL

Head coach: Phil Lajoie, fourth season.
League affiliation: Catholic (Central Division).
Last year's overall record: 11-5-3.

Season opener: 5:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 29, vs. Dearborn at Bell Creek Park.

Lajoie's '94 outlook: "I think we'll be a competitive team. I feel good about this team. We have the talent, but we'll have to wait to see how it develops."

"I like their work ethic and love their attitude. They're a blue collar team."
"We have a strong defense and a core of kids that will form a good nucleus."
"The question is: Do we have enough firepower up front? We should be fine, even though it seems like we always have trouble scoring goals."

SOCCER

Notable losses to graduation: Matt Purdy and Bob Woshke. (Note: Jeff Lyberg, a 19 goal scorer, moved to California).

Block's '94 outlook: "Even without Lyberg (see above), I think Sieroff and Horvath are ready to put up some numbers."

"We're changing our style from a 4-4-3 (at least) to a 4-2-2. We'll be using four midfielders instead of three. We'll be quicker defensively, and we'll play more of a control game. We want to keep the score down to 2-1 and 1-0."

"We'll try to control the midfield area better. We're moving Stingerdecker from defender to midfield, and I think he'll be a force."
"This is the hardest working, closest-knit team in my four years. They're pumped."

HURON VALLEY LUTHERAN

Head coach: Steve Grosinska, 12th season.
League affiliation: Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.
Last year's overall record: 3-13-2.

Season opener: 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 1, at home vs. Warren Bethesda.

Notable losses to graduation: Dennis Ostwald, Craig Yarmuth and Mark Hanneveld.

Leading returnees: Dave Hartley, senior center-midfielder (18 goals, including 15 in MIAAC); Jason Batroski, senior goalkeeper; Scott Orfsson, junior defender.

Promising newcomers: Joel Hartley, freshman forward; Jared Ridenour, freshman; Jeremy Zahn, freshman; Adam Koeger, junior (transfer from Michigan Lutheran Seminary).

Grosinska's '94 outlook: "Ostwald directed our play in the midfield and Yarmuth was the captain of our defense. We have to have somebody come through in both areas. Right now our defense is a question mark. Orfsson has to direct things."
"Batroski had injury problems last year. He missed the districts with a head injury and had a broken finger early in the year, but he's a proven goalie. We have to keep him healthy. That's the key."

Crusaders start No. 4 in NAIA poll

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

The losses seem considerable. Gone from a volleyball team that finished fifth at the NAIA national tournament are the team's setter and player of the year, Mazlo Pilut (12.7 assists to kills per game), and the team's leader in kills (with 697, 4.2 per game), kill percentage (.455) and total blocks (343), Kari VanDeusen.

And yet, Madonna University is at a stage in which it seems poised enough to overcome those losses. Which is why it is ranked fourth in the preseason NAIA coaches poll. One reason — or, more accurately, two — for the optimism is a pair of superb sophomores who filled considerable parts in '93: Julie Martin, from Livonia (St. vencion), and Kelly McCausland, from Redford (Union).

"They are two of the best sophomores in the nation," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham, who guided the Crusaders through a 46-8 campaign last year. "They've both raised their games quite a bit."

Martin, a 6-foot-2 middle hitter, was second on the team in kills (634, 4.2 per game, a .399 average) and total blocks (326). McCausland, a 5-11 middle and outside hitter, was third in all categories (477 kills, 3.0 per game, .350 average and 229 blocks).

Their development will certainly make VanDeusen's departure easier to absorb. So will the "sizeable" additions of freshmen like 5-10 Vicki Toth, from Redford (Union); 5-11 Nicole Scharrer of Davison; 5-10 Erin Conant, from Monroe (St. Mary's Catholic Central); and 5-10 sophomore transfer Heather Steinhilber, from Clarkston.

With 5-11 setter/middle hitter

Emily Marlow, from Carleton (Airport), and 5-8 Erin Gregoire, from Monroe (St. Mary's CC), Abraham has a team that is solid everywhere. Indeed, Gregoire could become a regular. As Abraham said, "She will be one of our best passers."

And that's just the youngsters. Team leadership falls to Maureen Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy), a 5-9 senior co-captain who is the team's top defender, and to Julie Wood (Harper Woods Lutheran East/Schoolcraft College), a 5-9 senior outside hitter and solid all-around contributor. Both are returning starters.

The biggest question mark is replacing Pilut at setter. That task falls to 5-6 junior Laura Fisher of Wayne (Memorial), who was a defensive specialist last season.

"Laura's been a starter, but in a different capacity, that's all," said Abraham. "She'll do fine. She's shown me nothing but signs of how she'll shine at this." Pilut was bigger and, as Abraham described it, more versatile as an attacker. She could also serve as a blocker. Still, Fisher, who will also be a co-captain, is faster, afoot and quicker.

Abraham knows his team's success this season may rest with how well Fisher fills her new role. "The setter's the quarterback of the team, and we have a new quarterback," he said.

The Crusaders should be better in other aspects. "We've improved our overall passing, and our team speed and depth are both better," he said.

With five of the top seven contributors back from last year, a superb recruiting class, and a talented lineup everywhere else, Madonna will be in the running, no doubt. There is no NAIA District 23 to compete in any longer; the Crusaders are independent, which means they'll have to qualify for the NAIA regional in an independent tournament.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Friday (for the Monday edition) and noon Tuesday (for the Thursday edition). Items run once only.

OPEN WILD CARD

Livonia Carrie Cunningham has been given a wild-card entry into next week's U.S. Open Tennis Championships in Flushing Meadow, N.Y.

Cunningham, who missed the past year after undergoing wrist surgery, recently returned to the women's pro tennis tour.

The Churchill High product recently attended Arizona State University.

BREW CREW 1ST

T.C.'s Brew Crew, featuring 12 of 16 members of manager Wally Beers' family, recently completed the Livonia Department of Parks and Recreation Coed Softball League with a perfect 13-0 record. Family members include sons Brian, Gordon and David, along with daughters Kathy Komender, Janice Creedon and Mary Beckley.

Other members include son-in-laws Bob Beckley and Bob Komender, along with sister-in-laws Janice Beers and Yvonne Beers.

Canton woman angles for bass money

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS
BILL PARKER

When Linda Griffin-Bennett was a youngster, she enjoyed fishing with her brother Lee. They'd fish top water lures, like Rapalas in Napoleon Pond or Newburgh Lake. Some 20 years later the western Wayne County resident is still fishing those top water lures, and a whole array of others, and now she's making a living doing what she has loved to do all her life. "I started fishing when I was 12 or 14. I'd go out to some of the little inland lakes in the area with my brother Lee," explained the 33-year-old Griffin-Bennett. "The first time I went with him a big bass came up and ate my lure and broke my line. I was pretty impressed with the whole thing." So impressed, that she continued her pursuit of those big bass throughout her childhood and into her adult life. Along the way, she's become one of Michigan's top female bass pros.

Mississippi rivers near St. Charles, Mo. A Ranger bass boat and a cash stipend are in line for the winner of the Classic Star Championship. "I was 21st in the standings entering the Kentucky Lake tournament," explained Griffin-Bennett. "I was fortunate and did well enough to stay in the top 30. I'm very happy to be going to the Star Classic. I almost made it last year, and I've worked real hard this '94 season to make it. I'm real pleased with my overall finish. I guess persistence pays off."

A quick start

Griffin-Bennett started fishing the Michigan Bass'n Gals tournament circuit in 1988 and it didn't take her long to make a name for herself. In 1989 she finished second in the Michigan Division and in 1990 earned the honor of Michigan Bass'n Gals Angler of the Year. She placed second again in 1991 and 1993 and finished fourth in 1992. She is currently third in the Michigan Division with two tournaments remaining.

The local pro has taken her talents to the National Bass'n Gals circuit for the past three years and nearly qualified for the Star Classic last year. She was 29th entering the final tournament, but "had a bad day" and dropped out of the top 30.

That disappointment only fueled her desire to work even harder this year.

"Sometimes it can be really disappointing, but when you succeed it makes it all worth while," admitted Griffin-Bennett. Fishing is a family affair at the Bennett household.

"My husband Kalen fishes tournaments too, but he's not as competitive as I am," admitted Griffin-Bennett. "He works and goes to school so that keeps him pretty busy, but we fish a lot of open tournaments together."

Griffin-Bennett's niece, Jessica, is also becoming quite an angler. "Bass'n Gals sponsors a kids tournament every year on Pontiac Lake and my 11-year-old niece, Jessica Johnson (Plymouth), took first place this year," she said. "I'm trying to get her going in it."

Eye on the Classic

Griffin-Bennett will begin preparing for the Star Classic following the remaining local tournaments later this month.

"I'll really start to concentrate on the Classic next month. I'll go down there and pre-fish and learn the water and try to find some fish," she said.

Griffin-Bennett applied for an amateur berth in the BASSMASTER Top 100 pro-am tournament taking place through Saturday on Lake St. Clair. She wasn't selected in the random draw for the amateurs, but still expects to make the trek to Mount Clemens to get a look at the action.

"I was disappointed I didn't get chosen, but I'll be participating by helping my sponsors, Ranger Boats and Jan's Sport Shop in Goodrich," she said.

Griffin-Bennett expects the pros to do very well on St. Clair.

Anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker at (810) 901-2573.

and Hagelthorn has a good arm. "We think we can keep teams off balance."

The tight ends include two more seniors, Nick James (6-11, 220) and Jason Berent (6-0, 187).

"A lot of these guys were second teamers a year ago and have not been tested at all," Gordon said. "But one thing they've learned is the right attitude. They have excellent work habits, and from that standpoint, I'm pleased with that aspect."

Glenn's offensive line will feature senior Phil Graca (5-11, 200) at center; Lock and senior Brian Kolb (6-10, 180) at the guards; junior Mike Sosnowski (6-1, 228) and senior Ron Schoenheide (6-2, 290) at the tackles.

Kolb, who was a place kicker during Glenn's playoff run, is also the punter. He is battling Farrar for the kicking duties.

Defensively, Glenn gave up only 114 points in 13 games last year.

Kolb will start at nose guard with James, and either junior Jeff Cook (5-10, 227) or sophomore Ira Bargon (6-0, 198) at the tackles.

The defensive ends include senior Mike Brown (5-11, 192) and Kidder.

The secondary is led by Washington, senior Rob Miller (5-9, 161) and Strick. Farrar or junior Rusty Starr (5-11, 160) will also get long looks.

Gordon believes his team may rank either second or third (preseason) in the Lakes Division.

"Livonia Stevenson is probably picked to win," said the Glenn coach. "This team has to make its own mark. Right now I think we can put 11 people out there that will give you an honest effort."

"I've really challenged them to step up and challenged them to play football the way it's supposed to be played."

Gains national prominence

Earlier this month Griffin-Bennett placed 12th in the National Bass'n Gals U.S. Invitational Tournament on Kentucky Lake in Benton, Ky. That finish, combined with her past success on the national tournament trail, enabled her to wrap up 16th place in the National Bass'n Gals XVII Classic Star World Championship standings. By placing in the top 30 in the national standings, Griffin-Bennett has earned a berth in the Classic Star Championships, Sept. 30-Oct. 1 in the waters of the Illinois and Missis-

Comediennes stand up to benefit Gilda's Club

Cancer is not a laughing matter, but local comedienne will be yucking it up to raise money for Gilda's Club. Sunday, Aug. 28 at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth St., Royal Oak.

Alyce Faye of Farmington and Mary Miller will host and emcee "Motor City Women of Comedy." Cash bar and light supper served at 6 p.m. is followed by the show at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $30 per person, VIP tickets $50, call 1-313-542-9900.

Proceeds will be going to Gilda's Club to be used to help men, women, children, families and friends that are coping with cancer. Gilda's Club was named after the late Gilda Radner, a native Detroit who performed on "Saturday Live." There is a New York chapter and metro Detroit chapter of Gilda's.

Alyce Faye

"Gilda Radner was our mentor," said Faye. "It seemed only natural to pay tribute to this great lady by having a comedy show."

Faye and Miller will also perform stand-up during the show along with — Karen Bell Harvel, Stacey DuFord, Kathy Geha, Jonnie Getts, Lisa Gojch, Gilda Hauser, Sheila Loveley, Jennie McNutty and Jill Washburn.

Even though the performers are women, event organizers want everyone to know that this is not a show limited to women only. It promises to be an evening of fun and laughter for everyone.

Summer is fading fast, grab a few lawn chairs or blankets, pack a picnic supper, and head over to Heritage Park in Canton tonight. The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will be presenting a concert under the stars at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature tunes by Andrew Lloyd Webber, music from MGM movie musicals, and the "1812 Overture." The park is on Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill. Plymouth Symphony begins its regular concert season on Oct. 15. Call 1-313-451-2112 for season ticket information.

Order your tickets now for Schoolcraft College's Third Annual "Culinary Extravaganza" 2-5 p.m.

Groups seek singers, actors, musicians

Local community choirs, orchestras and dance groups are looking for new members. Put your talents to work on stage or behind the scenes. Some groups are already rehearsing; others will be starting in September.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Talent is not something to be wasted. If you sang in a high school choir, play an instrument, or have an interest in theater, put your talents to work by getting involved in a community choir, band or orchestra. There are lots of opportunities.

Vocal music

The Livonia Civic Chorus is celebrating its 30th anniversary this year. Fall season rehearsals begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13 at Frost Middle School on Stark Road in Livonia. All singers are welcome — no audition necessary.

James Whitten directs the chorus, which is sponsored in part by the Livonia Parks and Recreation Department. Call 1-313-421-0527 for information.

Plymouth Community Chorus, a 125-voice mixed chorus, is holding auditions 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 29 in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church, 45201 N. Territorial Road, west of Sheldon Road in Plymouth Township. Auditions will also be held 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Sept. 6, 13, and 20. Call 1-313-455-4080 for more information.

In addition to scheduled concerts, the Plymouth Community Chorus will be performing in Washington D.C. next June and is producing its second compact disc.

Schoolcraft College's Community Choir is holding auditions for its 30th season Tuesday, Sept. 30. Call choir president Shari Clason 1-313-349-8175 or the College Continuing Education Services office at 1-313-462-4448 to arrange an audition time.

"The Schoolcraft College Community Choir is a wonderful group with a solid 30-year history of providing quality musical experiences to participants and audiences alike," said choir member Ron Picard. "We are nonetheless concerned that many local singers are unaware that they have the option of continuing their singing in a local group of superb quality."

Choir director Donald Stromberg of Livonia is a 1982 graduate of Livonia Bentley High School. He received degrees in music from both the University of Michigan and the Westminster Choir College in Princeton, N.J. He has held many church and school positions. The 60-voice choir is dedicated to performing music of the masters.

Its membership includes both Schoolcraft College students and experienced singers of all ages from communities throughout the metropolitan area. Participants receive Continuing Education credits or can arrange to elect the choir for regular credit.

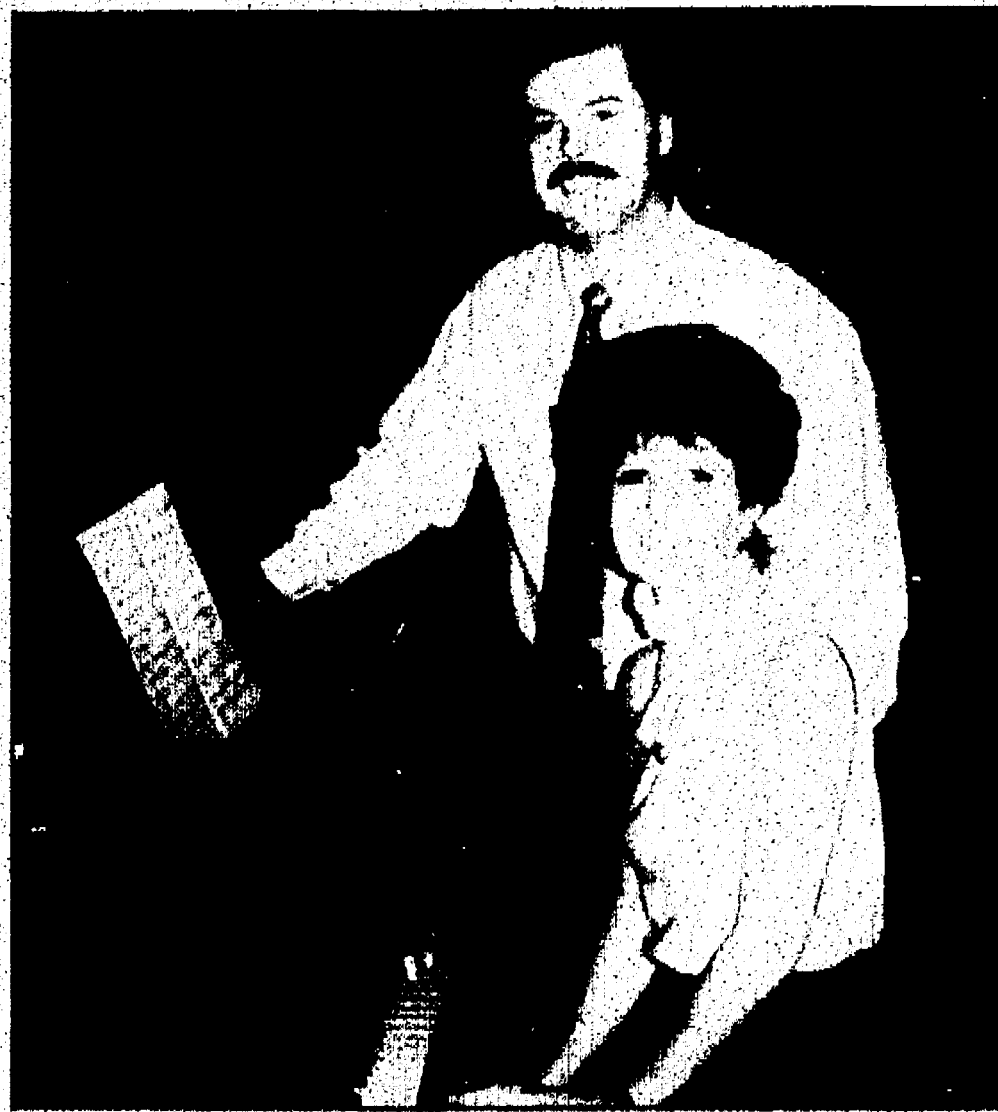

Measure for Measure, a Men's Choral Society, will be holding open auditions 7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 11 at the Alexander Music Building on the campus of Eastern Michigan University. Rehearsals are 7-9 p.m. Sundays at the Alexander Music Building. Call 1-313-429-1803 for information.

Community theater

Plymouth Theatre Guild is holding open auditions for "The Forfeiger," a comedy by Larry Shue, 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 29-30 at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of the Northville Regional Hospital, 41001 W. 7 Mile Road, Northville, west of I-275 between Haggerty and Northville Roads. Needed are five male and two females ages 20 and up. Call 1-810-349-7110 for information.

Thirty-five roles available for the Schoolcraft College fall theater production of Peter Weiss' "Marat/Sade" or "The Persecution and Assassination of Jean-Paul Marat as performed by the inmates of the Asylum of Charenton, under the direction of the Marquis De Sade."

Auditions 7 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 6-7, Liberal Arts

New director, Livonia Civic Chorus director, Jim Whitten, and accompanist, Christine Gach, review a piece of music for the upcoming season.

Theatre on the college's main campus, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia. Auditions open to the public, and no experience is necessary. Call 1-313-462-4400, Ext. 5270.

Instrumental music

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra is holding auditions, 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 12 at Plymouth Salem High School, 46181 Joy Road, Canton.

The symphony welcomes all who are interested in auditioning and is looking to fill the string section and principal bassoon positions in particular. Call William Hulsker 1-313-925-8143.

Farmington Community Band consists of more than 60 musicians from 20 communities in the area. New members are welcome. Call 1-810-476-5014 or 1-810-489-3412 for rehearsal information.

Dance

Dearborn Ballet Theatre is holding auditions for its 1994 production of "The Nutcracker," 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 10 in the gymnasium of St. Barbara's School, 13500 Colson (off Schaefer, between Michigan Ave. and Ford Road) in Dearborn. Call 1-313-563-2488 or 1-313-943-3095 for information.

Ann Arbor Ballet Theatre is holding auditions for "The Nutcracker," 12:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 11 at 548 Church Street, (corner of Church St. and S. University). Audition fee is $10 payable to Ann Arbor Ballet. Call 1-313-662-2942 for details.

If your group is not listed, call me at 1-313-953-2105 or send a press release to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, and I'll be sure to spread the word.

Food, music, surprises at LSO benefit

Livonia Symphony Orchestra will present its annual benefit, "Sunday, Songs and Symphony," 6-9 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 2 in the central court of Laurel Park Place, Newburgh at Six Mile Road in Livonia. Betty Jean Awzey is this year's chairperson.

Tickets are $20 in advance or $25 at the door. Call 1-313-421-1111 or 1-

A guy, Bill Rudnicki, and a girl—Karen Green, met through his ad in Personal Scene.

He placed a Personal Scene ad just last spring and she summoned the courage to give him a ring.

The call was a first for Karen, it seems, Would this—could this—be the man of her dreams?

"It was worth every penny," she reportedly said. And of course she is right; she and Bill plan to wed!

Yes, in mid-September they'll both say, "I do." Personal Scene newlyweds—it could happen to you!

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

American kid meets Russia

International Rotten News: Singapore. Authorities whack spray painting American kid on the backside. They use a cane to punish.

International Good News: Russia. Old folks pat nice American kid on the back. One uses a cane to walk.

Young Gretchen Heller from Plymouth visited Russia this summer. It was her grandma, a widow for several years, who invited Gretchen to make the journey. The two flew to St. Petersburg and there they boarded the M.S. Dmitry Furmanov, a vessel bound for Moscow whose voyage included three rivers, three lakes, a canal and a reservoir. Along the way were cities, villages, islands and farms.

After 15 days, Gretchen returned, safe and sound, to her house and her family on my street. No spray paint was involved, no embassies, no TV coverage, no stories in Newsweek or Time, and no plea from the president of the United States on her behalf.

After Gretchen came back, she sat in my kitchen and showed me pictures. There was Gretchen in Red Square. There she was in the Kremlin. There she was outside the museum where she learned about the scarcity of food in Russia during the war. And that the wartime bread was 50 percent flour and the rest sawdust and carver's glue.

From the look on the 11-year-old's face, I could tell that the "ravages of war" had become more than some phrase in a dusty history book.

Different tastes

On the subject of food, Gretchen brought back tales of eating in a foreign land. The breakfast food resembled corn flakes, but didn't quite taste like them. Black and gray and red slimy fish eggs, despite their fancy reputation, were "too icky." Milk was boiled, then cooled, before serving. Drinking water came from bottles. Ice cream was always very rich and vanilla. Spaghetti is not a popular dish in Russia.

My young neighbor was impressed with the clean air in Russia. She was enthralled by the Moscow Circus going on all year in its very own building. The ringmaster, she told me, announced the acts in Russian and English. She critiqued the Kirov Ballet using the system she devised just for the occasion - V for boring, O for super boring and X for glad to be here. She'd give X's to two of the three acts listed on her program. And the remaining one she'd marked with a lowly O.

She showed me pictures of beautiful onion-spired cathedrals and small wooden churches, including the little rustic one whose back wall brought good health to all who touched it, according to legend.

The babushka nesting dolls available in the city gift shops and street vendor wagons were personalized during a day trip to a Russian farm. The heavyset peasant woman in the photo wore a scarf tied about her head, a long dress, heavy, dark shoes on her feet. Gretchen pointed out the drab clothing in the photos and contrasted them to the bright vivid colors painted on her wooden dolls. Art had embellished life instead of imitating it in this case.

The buildings ("old and crumbling") and the cars ("old and dented") also fit into the drab color scheme. The sky was big and blue. And the cows in the grassy field were really white with big black spots.

Disturbing sights

Gretchen saw some disturbing things. She saw a lot of poor people who seemed to be aimlessly moving about the streets. A very old, hunched-over woman and a cornerful of children came begging. The street vendor who was selling his wares in an unauthorized spot right in front of the museum got a boot in the backside and was dragged by the shirt collar into the street by a Russian policeman.

She saw a real live poisonous viper just outside the gate of a cathedral on Valaam Island. In city parks and museums, she saw statues that were embarrassingly naked. She even saw a 50-foot man completely naked. "The older people," she explained, "appreciated this type of art. But I was ready to burst out laughing."

The older people appreciated the artistry of Russian statuary to be sure. But they also appreciated Gretchen's youthful innocence and vitality. They helped her celebrate her 11th birthday on board the ship with balloons, streamers, a Russian cake and a man in traditional folk dress playing the accordion. And she was the favorite number caller for bingo, or "bingosks," as the travelers referred to it.

So, hooray for Gretchen for the experience of a lifetime. Hooray for Grandma for having such a vivacious, bright companion. Hooray for the U.S.A. for having such a wonderful young representative in Russia. And hooray for Russia for

Restoring the Redford with TLC

With 250 members, the Motor City Theatre Organ Society has undertaken the painstakingly slow task of restoring the 66-year-old Redford Theater and the preservation of its 10-rank Barton pipe organ.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Dorothy Van Steenkiste matter of factly tells you she's "looking for a sugar daddy." Standing with her in the lobby of the Redford Theater are Donald Martin, his father Marty and Margaret Tapler. They nod in agreement.

She chuckles then explains: "I'm really looking for someone with a lot of money to complete the restoration of this theater. We get overlooked for grants because we're not big enough."

The "we" is the 250-member Motor City Theatre Organ Society which has owned the Redford Theater since 1977 and has spent the past 14 years painstakingly restoring the theater that, when it opened in 1928, was billed as "America's most unique suburban playhouse."

Profits from ticket sales and the concession stand ("We put real butter on our popcorn at no extra charge," says Tapler.) and donations, mixed with plenty of volunteer labor, have fueled the effort to preserve the theater and the "apple" of the society's collective eye - the Barton theater organ.

The ornate organ sits on a lift in the orchestra pit in front of the stage, raised and lowered as needed. Its two chambers flank the stage, filled with 10 ranks of pipes to produce a full orchestral sound and background sounds like a car horn for silent movies.

It is the organ that has attracted many of the members like John Lauter of Redford, one of the regular organists. He got involved at age 14, when he decided he wanted "to play the big one."

"It's smaller than many of the others (theater organs), but it's very nice for its size," he said. "But then I'm very partial to it because I grew up on it; I cut my teeth on it. I was kind of bitten by the bug; I like the music it made."

Likewise, it was Tapler's 14-year-old son who initially got her involved. Now she works as the secretary and librarian and takes care of the concession counter.

"It was a thrill when I first played, but it was quite intimidating," she said. "Members have access to the organ whether they play good or not, and finally, after all those years, I've learned all the quirks. When it all works, it's quite awesome."

Oriental delight

theater in the '20s and '30s. A trip to the Redford was like a trip to the Orient. The box office resembled a bronze and tile pagoda and the interior included antique Japanese tapestries, statuary and walls adorned with murals of geishas, Samurai warriors and pagoda-style awnings. But much of its decor was obliterated during World War II.

By the time the 250-member Motor City Theatre Organ Society came on the scene, the theater had fallen on hard times. A part of the American Theatre Organ Society, the Motor City chapter, founded by Al and Betty Mason of Livonia, reintroduced the organ to the public in 1964.

In exchange for organ concert dates, society members offered their talents in restoring the organ. When Community Theaters Inc. decided to close it as a movie house in 1974, the society worked out a lease arrangement, eventually buying it in 1977.

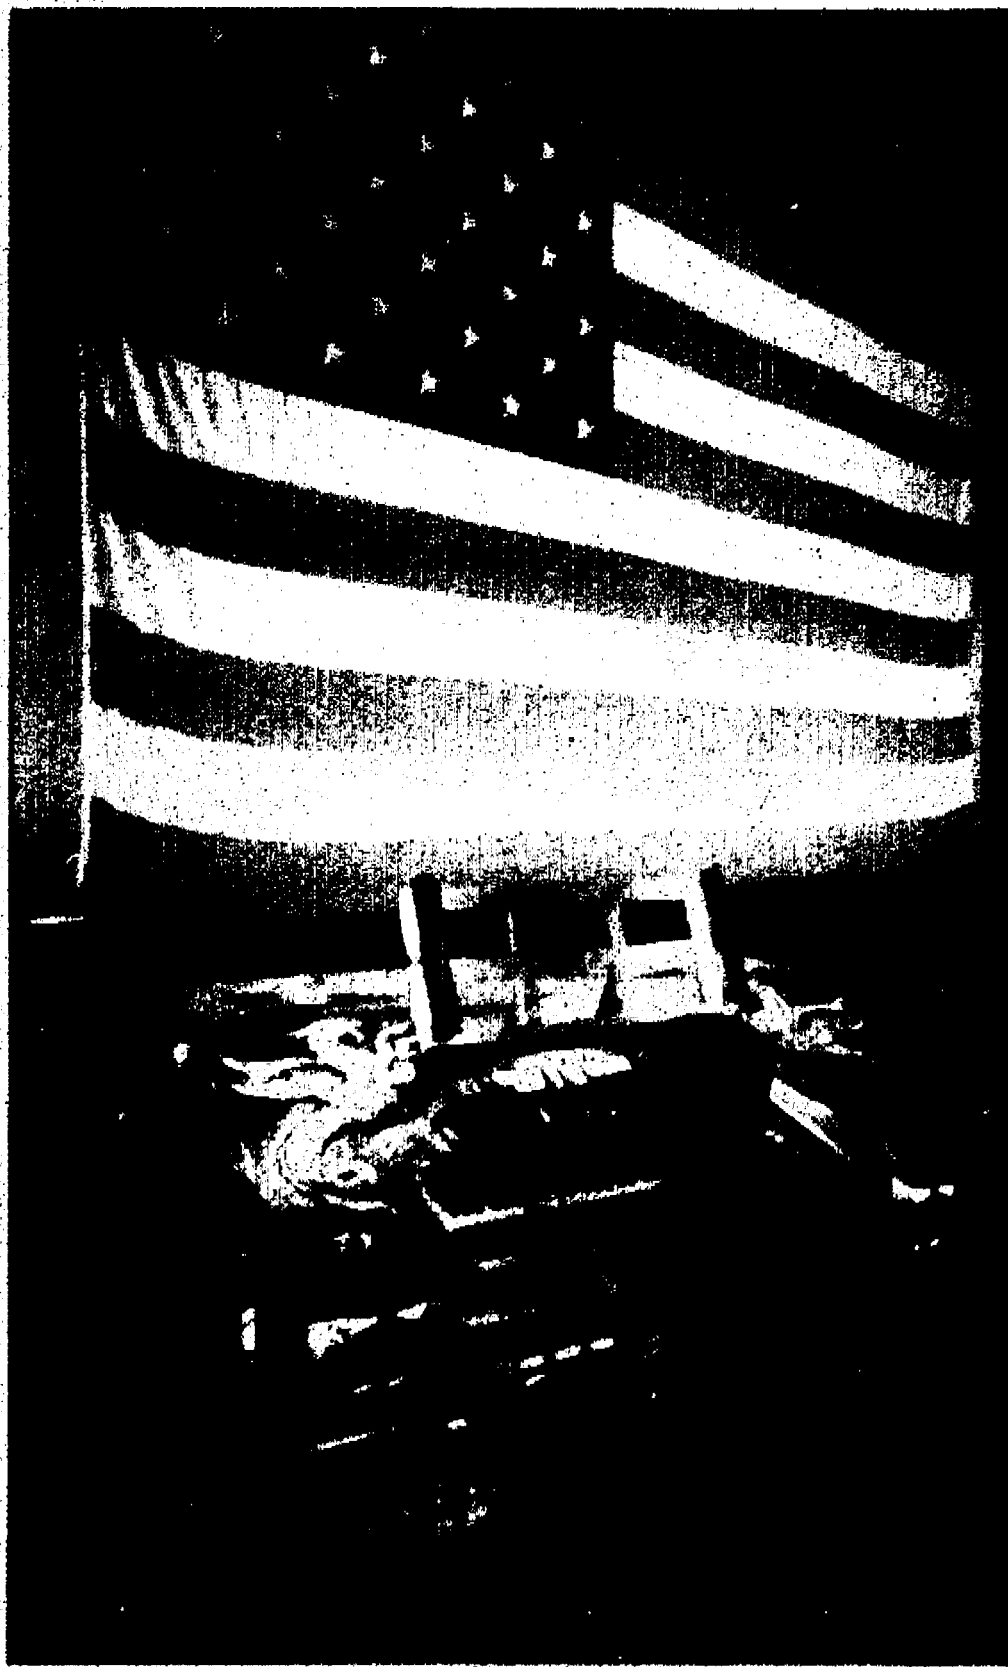

"This theater . . . I feel it's a miracle it's survived and it's still going strong," said Van Steenkiste. "Everything that's been done here, has been done by us. We're known and well-respected, and this theater has become a hub of this community. It has brought people back into the community."

It has been a long and tedious process restoring the theater. Donald Martin hasn't kept track of how much stripper has been used or how much debris has been hauled out. He sits in his wheelchair and talks proudly about the restored inner lobby.

"Everything has been redone paint-wise," the Southfield resident said. "When we started the ceiling was white and the walls yellow. There were seven, eight layers of paint on the wood we stripped down to find the stencils. It was like stripping back through layers of fads."

Through pictures (like an 8-by-10 photograph of the auditorium found in the office) and other means, the volunteers were able to complete the inner lobby. Its two chandeliers, that had hung in the lobby of Detroit's Oriental Theater, were restored; incorporating motifs from fragments of the original Redford fixtures.

Work is progressing slowly in the auditorium, where careful stripping has uncovered the mural of a Samurai and decorative stencils on the walls.

Patriotic salute: With the flag as a backdrop, Margaret Tapler of Redford practices on the Redford's Barton theater organ.

"We strip down to get what we need, then redraw from the tracings and get the color samplings by eye," Martin said. "Some places stripped off great to where we could have almost used the originals; some we almost lose it."

The ceiling in the auditorium is still blue, but in need of new paint, and still sports working twinkling star lights. Martin is hoping to find the same kind of machine that projected clouds that moved slowly and lazily across the ceiling. They weren't dimensional but were painted on.

"This was an atmospheric-designed theater; it utilized stage effects for other parts of the theater," said Martin, who was "voluntarily drafted to head up the restoration" in 1981.

Family affair

Society membership knows no boundaries, with the ZIP codes stretching from Clawson, Clinton Township, Birmingham and Bloomfield to Livonia, Allen Park and Taylor.

And involvement in the Redford is very much a family affair. While Martin is busy with the restoration, his father Marty is in charge of the organ and his younger brother David is the stage manager. Oren Walther of Livonia works in the projection booth while his wife Vivian works the concession stand and sells tickets, and son William is chairman of the operating committee.

Oren Walther lived near the Redford and started going to the movie series. Interested in things mechanically and electrically, it was only a case of finding a niche to get him involved. He's been running the projectors for more than 10 years.

"The projectors were originally in the Summit Theater (in Detroit)," he said. "When the theater was torn down, our members were literally carrying the projectors out of the building as it was coming down."

The projectors are taller than the 6-foot, 9-inch tall Walther, who has

Classic films and concerts to fill theater's fall season

The Redford Theater's Barton theater organ is the pride and joy of the Motor City Theatre Organ Society. Built by the Barton Musical Company of Oshkosh, Wis., it is a 3-manual 10-rank organ powered by a 7-horsepowered blower that maintains the wind pressure necessary to sound the pipes.

A single rank is an array of approximately 75 pipes representing a spectrum of sound. In addition, the organ features many percussion, wind and string instruments like the drums, xylophone, bells, chimes, tuba piccolo, violin, harp and piano.

Decorated in black and gold with serpentine dragons, the organ is positioned on a lift to the left of the stage so it can be raised and lowered as needed.

Listed on both the State of Michigan and National Register of Historical Places, the theater has become known as a family-oriented movie house. The bi-weekly movie series with organ overtures and organ playing during intermissions, features popular musicals and older well-known classics.

Movies are shown at 8 p.m. Fridays and 2 and 8 p.m. Saturdays, with the organ overture starting a half-hour before show time. Tickets are $2.50 each, or $2 for groups of 15 or more.

The fall film series kicks off Sept. 9-10 with "High Noon," starring Gary Cooper and Grace Kelly. The guest organists will be Evelyn Markey at the evening shows and Jennifer Candra at the matinee. The other film dates are:

■ Sept. 23-24, "State Fair" with Dana Andrews and Jeanne Crain. The guest organist will be Wilma Taylor Steslack.

Compassion is what lies between civilization and chaos

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. DAVID STRONG

Recently, a televised discussion raised a question: What is our basic human nature? Are human beings, basically good or bad? What are we really like? A professor of genetics answered the question saying that we are naturally compassionate creatures. He believes that compassion is actually transmitted through our genes. Compassion is in our blood. In his view, human compassion is as natural to us as is standing on two feet.

Bill Moyers asked the genetics professor why he believed that human compassion is passed on in our genes. The professor answered: "Because of the existence of families. Babies are only able to survive because they are cared for in the family. Human babies are the most vulnerable of all mammals. Without the parents' compassion for a newborn child, the babies in our human race would not have survived. Compassion is in our genes."

The genetics professor went on to say that it is only by family nurturing that human beings become fully human. Individuals without family nurturing are underdeveloped, physically, morally and spiritually. They grow up but they are unable to care for and unable to relate to others effectively. Humans who are not nurtured in the family are unable to nurture their own. Without an effective family we would eventually die out as a species.

The other night on public television I learned one more thing about the importance of families. Archaeologists have always been puzzled as to why the Neanderthal Man, which lived on the European continent for thousands of years, why this ancestor became extinct? Why did they all die out?

The evidence suggests that they all died out because of two things. They did not have a developed family unit. For example, the mothers and fathers and children did not eat together. They ate separately. Second, they did not store food for the times when food was not easily available. The element of human compassion did not develop sufficiently in the family. The species simply died out.

If you were God, how would you teach compassion to human beings? The answer is by putting them into families. The greatest tragedy today is the continued breakdown of the family. The breakdown of the family is a drain on the human species. The greatest tragedy is not crime, abortion, surrogate mothers or unwed mothers, but rather the breakdown of the family.

How do children learn love and compassion? They learn it in a family. They learn compassion especially by being connected with an extended family, with grandparents.

Children learn from the second generation, from grandparents. Children learn about being loved just for who they are. Children learn from how grandparents give their love. Children learn to be compassionate when their grandparents get sick, or are in pain. Children learn how important it is to take care of older people, of ten their grandparents. The greatest loss of family in America is the physical distance that often separates children from their grandparents.

At times of crisis, the family needs to gather around the older generation and support and nurture it. Such support and nurturing is of the very essence of a healthy religion. A healthy religion that strengthens and supports the human condition is a religion of love and of compassion.

Ancient religious traditions also teach us that the heart, where compassion resides, is the connector between the physical and the spiritual. The heart connects earth and heaven. One Biblical scholar has commented: "our hearts are melted and our resistance is broken down" as we look upon the true saint, the true prophet, or the Christ. When our hearts are melted we are truly prepared to nurture the humanity of the next generation.

Compassion is what lies between civilization and chaos. There is a significant thought about compassion which is given to us from Dietrich Bonhoeffer, the martyr of the Nazi period. Bonhoeffer said that when we are in trouble, we cry out to God. We seek God's compassion.

There is a more radical dimension to compassion. For Bonhoeffer, the deepest religious impulse comes as we look upon the suffering of God. God feels the suffering of his creation. God weeps because of the violence of the human being against human and nature.

The deepest religious impulse is to feel compassion for the agony of God. The work of Mother Teresa of Calcutta, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, is motivated in this manner. When she and her fellow sisters do works of compassion for the sick and the dying, she believes she is doing these deeds of mercy to God who is present within these people.

The Bible says that we are made in the image of God. If this is true we share God's compassion. Compassion may be in our genes. It may be in our souls when we are born. The family enables compassion to thrive. Compassion is the mark of our humanity. Compassion is the guarantee of a future human race. Compassion is a virtue which the family must nurture.

to reach to the top to put on the top reel. The bottom reel is on the floor. By checking that the film is spliced right and the 20-minute segments are in proper order, he has been able to avoid most problems.

"We're still in a manual system; there's queue marks on the film at the end of the reel to signal when to start the other machine," he said. "So you have to watch out and not blink at the wrong time."

The society presents a bi-weekly movie series of classic films interlaced with organ concerts. The movies on Fridays and Saturdays and lead off with a half-hour organ concert that includes the national anthem and stagewide American flag.

"We have the largest neighborhood screen (20 by 40 feet) in southeast Michigan," Marty Martin said. "The whole screen is usable with CinemaScope."

A three-member committee selects the films, focusing on big screen classics suitable for the entire family. In addition to the films and concerts, the society sponsors a young organist competition that gives out 10, $500 scholarships and conducts theater-oriented educational programs for school children.

Familiar face

For those who take in the movies and concerts at the Redford, the most recognizable society member may well be Don Lockwood. He's the emcee, providing the audience with some background on the feature film, upcoming organ concerts and the organization and handling the 50/50 raffle.

It was Van Steenkiste who suggested he get up and talk about the organ shows after hearing him ad lib about the theater history at a Christmas party. Some of his historical tidbits include one about actor George C. Scott, who attended Redford High School and is believed to have ushered at the Redford Theater.

"I really love it," said the Redford resident. "The payment is when someone comes up to me and tells me they like what I'm doing. It's more than going to a movie. It makes the audience feel like they're going to a legitimate theater, like they've been some place. It's really an experience to go to the Redford."

Lockwood studied piano, but his real interest became the organ after hearing the theater organ that had been in the Fleher Theater. It was moved to the Irls Theater at East Grand Boulevard and Jos. Campau in 1961 and a few years later to the derelict Senate Theater on Michigan Avenue.

That theater and organ have been restored by the Detroit Theatre Organ Society of which Lockwood also is a member.

"The Redford is still the way used to be, it's like taking a step back in time," Lockwood said. "The Redford is so typical of a local neighborhood theater in size and its organ. It's not a recreation."

As the restoration continues, members have set their sights on June 1995 when it will play host to the American Theatre Organ Society's national convention. More than 1,000 people are expected to turn out, according to Van Steenkiste who is chair of the event. One of the draws is the number of theater organs in the area.

As it now stands theater organs can be found in the Fox, Senate and Redford Theaters in Detroit, the Michigan Theater in Ann Arbor, the Baldwin Theater in Royal Oak and one in a theater in Flint.

"This is no longer just a neighborhood theater," said Lockwood. "People come from all over to see the movies and hear the music."

Fall through spring the society presents monthly concerts showcasing the talents of well-known national concert artists with silent films, sing-alongs and sometimes the combined talents of other musical groups.

Opening the season will be the Rev. James Miller and the Rev. Andrew Rogers at 3 p.m. Sept. 11. Miller, one of the country's busiest organists, is an Eastern Orthodox priest serving Holy Trinity Orthodox Church in Saginaw. Rogers, associate pastor of Holy Trinity, began his musical studies on the accordion and now performs his transcriptions of classical piano and orchestral works for the pipe organ.

Renowned theater organist Scott Foppiano will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1. Currently musical director at Northbrook Presbyterian Church in Birmingham, he will be joined by keyboard artist John Steele, vocalist Gale Musolf and percussionist Ken Merley.

Bob Ralston, who played six nights a week with the Fred Martin Orchestra at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles but was known for the 20 years of weekly appearances on "The Lawrence Welk Show," will be in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28. His appearance is sponsored by the Motor City Theatre Organ Society and the Detroit Theater Organ Society.

Closing out the fall concert season will be a Christmas celebration at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 10, featuring concert theater organist Tony O'Brien and the Detroit Handbell Ensemble. A native of Livonia, O'Brien has traveled widely throughout the United States, Canada and Australia, performing for the American Guild of Organists; the Royal Canadian College of Organists and the American Theatre Organ Society.

Concert tickets are $8 each, or $7 for groups of 15 or more. Movie and concert tickets can be ordered by sending a check, payable to the Motor City Theatre Organ Society, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Motor City Theatre Organ Society, 6264 W. Adams, Belleville 48111.

The Redford Theater is at 17360 Lahser Road, just north of Grand River, in northwest Detroit. Ample free parking in a lighted, supervised lot is available adjacent to the theater.

Tax deductible donations can be sent to the Redford Theater, 17360 Lahser Road, Detroit 48219-2398. For more information about the Motor City Theatre Organ Society, call Dorothy Van Steenkiste at (313) 383-0133.

'Nights' is in need of sponsors

Preparations are under way for "Hollywood Nights II," presented by Project SMILE of the St. Mary Hospital Foundation.

The fund-raiser will be Thursday, Oct. 20, at the Laurel Manor in Livonia. This year, "Hollywood Nights II" will feature popular entertainer and Warner Bros. recording artist Alexander Zonjic. Also returning will be radio/television star and women's health-care advocate Marilyn Turner as the celebrity hostess.

Local support also is being sought for the event by advertising in the "Hollywood Nights II" program and by becoming a sponsor.

The program book will serve as a directory of physicians on staff at St. Mary Hospital and will be distributed throughout the surrounding communities. Advertising space for cameras ready copy is available from an eighth of a page (3 1/4 inches by 2 1/4 inches) up to a full page (10 inches by 7 1/4 inches). The deadline is Sept. 1. For information, call Carol Cassie at (313) 462-0002.

Four kinds of sponsorship are available: bronze for a $100 gift, silver for a $500 gift, gold for a $1,000 gift and platinum for a $2,500 gift. Checks, made payable to St. Mary Hospital Foundation, Project SMILE, and send to Carol Cassie, Chair, Project SMILE, First Michigan Title, 36777 W. Six Mile Road, Suite 100, Livonia 48152.

my personality. Thank you:

I am a 21-year-old who is preparing to embark on my new career path. I am right-handed and would be interested to know what my handwriting suggests to yourself and others about her time effectively. Someone wiser than I said, "Judicious use of time is one of the major contributions to success!" Delays she dislikes. When she wants something, she wants it now!

She appears to have a penchant for figuring out ways to create labor-saving ideas to achieve quick results with the least expenditure of time and energy. At times she can't be bothered with small details, or may have someone else covering them for her.

Seemingly, she was raised in a female-dominated home. And while she is independent in many areas, I can see she may still have rather strong ties to the mother figure.

Within the writer is a desire to be outstanding and a need for status and stroking. She places an inordinate amount of importance on her role in day-to-day activities and social relationships.

Although my next statement may sound paradoxical, I feel I must mention it. She is also a private person who needs time alone to pursue inner resources and talents.

Her signature is connected between the first, middle and last name. This is often the sign of one who considers herself to be a leader who can connect not only thoughts but ideas.

I think her arsenal of traits for success should be good, providing she doesn't forget to give others credit where it is due.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful. Objective feedback is always welcomed.

Original handwriting that is also legible calls for the courage of an independent mind. I believe our writer's need for independence began very early in life. Vertical writers are seldom spontaneous people. Today's writer is reserved and outwardly poised. She tends to keep her feelings under control. Her mind comes into play before her heart. She thinks things through before making a decision or taking action. Only rarely does she react impulsively or imprudently. And she is almost never intrusive.

When a handwriting sample is framed by wide margins on all four sides, such as this one, it suggests one who has a strong sense of refinement and a need for order in her life. Everything around her will reflect her aesthetic sense. In addition, the writer is uncomfortable with disharmony in her surroundings. She wants to keep her life conflict-free.

Intelligence that is well above average is suggested here. Her mind works in efficient and productively original ways. She has a bias for unembellished facts.

This young woman is self-disciplined and can get right down to the essentials without wasting time. Her work is geared toward efficiency.

I am a 21 year old who is preparing to embark on my new career path. I am right-

Red squirrels mistaken for baby fox squirrels

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

NATURE TRAILS
Red squirrels are often described as "baby fox squirrels" by those who are not familiar with the orange/brown fox squirrel that is much larger and much more common. Fox squirrels measure from 19-22 inches from nose to tail, while red squirrels measure only 11-13 inches.

Size is the first difference noticed between the fox and red squirrels. But if the animal gets close enough, the red coloration of the red squirrel becomes apparent. The upper half of a red squirrel's body is a rusty red color. Separating the white belly from its back is a black line running lengthwise between the front leg and the back leg. Another noticeable difference between the fox and red squirrels is the white ring around the eye of the red squirrel. A red squirrel actually reminds me of a race car, so I like to think of them as the "fur-rar!" in your backyard. They are red like a Ferrari, they have a black racing stripe like a Ferrari, they have a hide-a-way "headlight" (white ring around the eye) like a Ferrari and they are constantly racing like a Ferrari.

One way to identify a red squirrel from a distance is to watch it spring in a bounding action from branch to branch. They never seem to take a moment to analyze their next move. Each jump is calculated in an instant, enabling the animal to proceed over tiny twigs as though it was running a maze on flat ground.

Compared to times when we have seen as many as seven fox squirrels in our backyard, I've never seen more than two red squirrels at one time. They are very aggressive for their size and at times, I have watched them chase the larger fox squirrel from feeders.

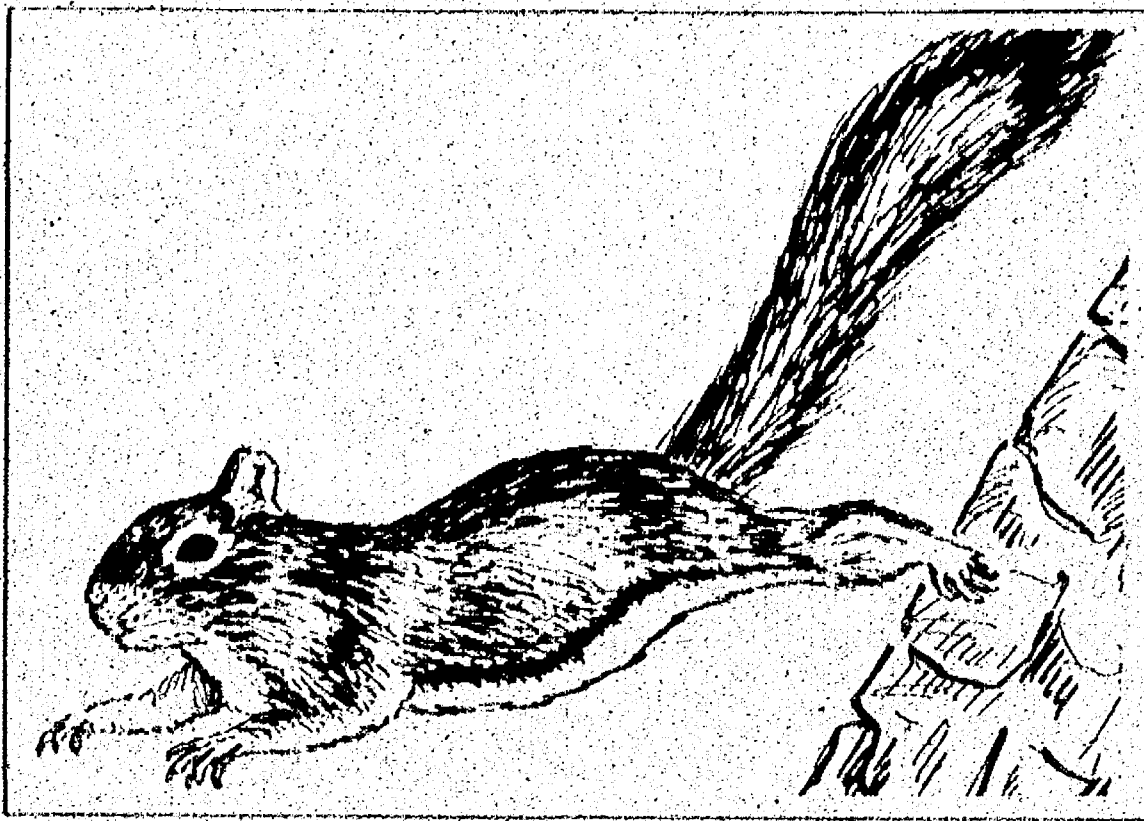

Red squirrels, like other squirrels, eat nuts and seeds from various plants. They are particularly fond of young pine cones. During late summer the resin collects around their mouth and it looks like they could use a napkin.

Insects, young birds and bird eggs supplement the diet of red squirrels, just as they supplement the diet of fox squirrels.

So, the next time you think you see a "baby" squirrel, check the color and behavior. It's probably a red squirrel.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can leave him a message at 953-2047, Ext. 1874.

Error: A lot of folks see adult red squirrels and think they've seen baby fox squirrels. The red squirrel is a lot smaller than the fox squirrel.

Fall activities celebrate the arts

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

In a few weeks, falling leaves will begin to carpet the earth signaling the onset of winter. The arts, however, are alive and thriving, showing springlike signs of rebirth with a full lineup of fall events, many of which will benefit Observerland arts council or orchestras.

The arts and culture play a vital role in enhancing the quality of life, and attracting new businesses to the area. During what appears to be turning into an era of decreased funding of the arts, it's important to get out and show your support. Here's a guide to what's going on:

The Plymouth Community Arts Council offers the opportunity to do a little early Christmas shopping at its 23rd annual Artists and Craftsmen Show 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 10, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 11, in Central Middle School, Church and Main Streets in Plymouth.

Held in conjunction with the Plymouth Fall Festival, an event meant to savor the fading days of summer, the juried show spotlights 100 artisans from Michigan and the surrounding states. The high-quality arts and crafts featured range from oil, watercolor, photography, jewelry and calligraphy to sewn items, wood and dried flowers. A handful of artists will demonstrate painting as well as other media, festival style on the lawn of the school.

Benefits art

This event is the primary fund-raiser of the arts council whose purpose is to develop and promote an appreciation of the arts for the benefit of all citizens in the Plymouth-Canton community, and to encourage and foster artistic excellence.

The fine arts come to Canton Township Oct. 22-23 as the second annual all-media juried gallery showing takes over the Canton Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Presented by Canton Project Arts, the township's fledgling arts organization, the show will run noon to 8 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 3 p.m. Sunday. It offers the best of painting, sculpture, clay, drawing, jewelry, photography, mixed media and textiles. Although last year's show featured works by such established artists as Mark Chatterley (clay sculpture) exhibitors are primarily emerging Michigan artists.

Prizes totaling $1,000 will be awarded after jurying by Pi Benio, Adrian College art department chair. Artists are still being sought for the exhibition. Deadline to apply is Sept. 23.

"We want to bring a high quality, more varied art to Canton," said event co-chair, Marsha Wright.

"We'd like more sculpture this year. We didn't have fine jewelry last year so we'd like to add that."

Volunteers needed

Although the show's committee is working on finalizing flower and food arrangements for the by-invitation-only artists' reception Oct. 20, volunteers are in short demand to assist in producing the show. An organizational meeting will be held 7 tonight at the Canton Administration Building.

"There's a lot of work that goes on behind the scenes in producing a quality show of this size. We have a very small budget," said co-chair, Tim Haber of Canton. "We're still seeking contributions from businesses."

For more information or an entry form, call Haber at (313) 455-5045.

Gallery walk

Plymouth is Artrageous, a three-day gallery walk Friday through Sunday Sept. 30-Oct. 2, should have been billed as a visual arts extravaganza with something for everyone. From contemporary arts and crafts to cartoons that revisit your childhood, it's all here. Twelve galleries take part by featuring meet-the-artists with Artists: Hazel Owens of Garden City meticulously cuts and layers prints to create dimension in her paper sculptures. This piece of a woman reading a book evokes an earlier time.

She turns paper into art

BY ARLENE FUNKE
SPECIAL WRITER

The snowy-haired man bows his head, praying over a simple meal of bread and soup spread on a red checkered tablecloth.

The scene fascinates Hazel Owens of Garden City who uses what she calls "paper sculpturing" to craft this compelling subject.

Owens purchases paper prints, then meticulously cuts and glues them, layer upon layer, creating dimension. With small scissors Owens makes small, feathery cuts on the edges to make her subjects lifelike.

"It's the dimension," Owens said. "It looks a little different from paintings."

The medium, which is French in origin, also is known as papier toile, or vue de optique.

Among Owens' current repertoire is a piece which features plump, lifelike birds perched on an equally lifelike branch surrounded by pink-tinged spring flowers.

The scene reminds one of a soft, summer morning.

Another subject, currently popular, is a majestic eagle, its wings emboldened by Owens' feather cuts. Owls also are very popular subjects right now, according to Owens.

Owens is a retired beautician. She took up her art more than 20 years ago when one of her beauty-shop clients showed her some paper toile pieces. Owens, who is self-taught, has honed her skills through trial and error.

Freeda MacDougall of Livonia, former owner of Hobby House, a store in Westland, recalls teaching paper toile classes around 15 years ago when it was quite popular.

"It's a lot of cutting, and you put (the layers) on so they look as realistic as possible," MacDougall said.

The work is challenging, MacDougall said. The artist must build depth, painstakingly, layer by layer. Thick silicone glue is used.

"Not a lot of people can make it look real," MacDougall said. "You have to cut each piece apart. You have to make it look like feathers or fur by fine cutting."

Owens said many people, unfamiliar with paper sculpturing, become upset when they see the birds' feathers.

"A lot of people think they are real feathers," Owens said. "I have to get my scissors and show them they aren't real feathers."

Owens orders her prints from a company in Vancouver, Washington. She buys in volume because she may glue up to eight layers to achieve a desired dimension.

The pieces are priced from $35 to $350. Owens sells them at selected arts and crafts shows. Each piece is showcased in a shadowbox, built by Owens' husband Donald, and framed.

Both Owens and MacDougall agree that papier toile requires great patience, which may discourage many would-be artists. Owens said she meets few other people working in the medium.

"I think that's why people aren't doing it," Owens said. "I have to be in the mood. If I'm a little hyper, I won't work."

During the winter months, Owens exhibits and sells in Florida. Come spring, she is back in Garden City and lining up exhibitions at local arts and crafts fairs. Her pieces have taken several ribbons.

Owens has exhibited for several years at the Americana Crafts Show at Greenmead, a 95-acre historical complex at Eight Mile Road and Newburgh in Livonia.

Canton dancer moves to Dayton

STAFF WRITER

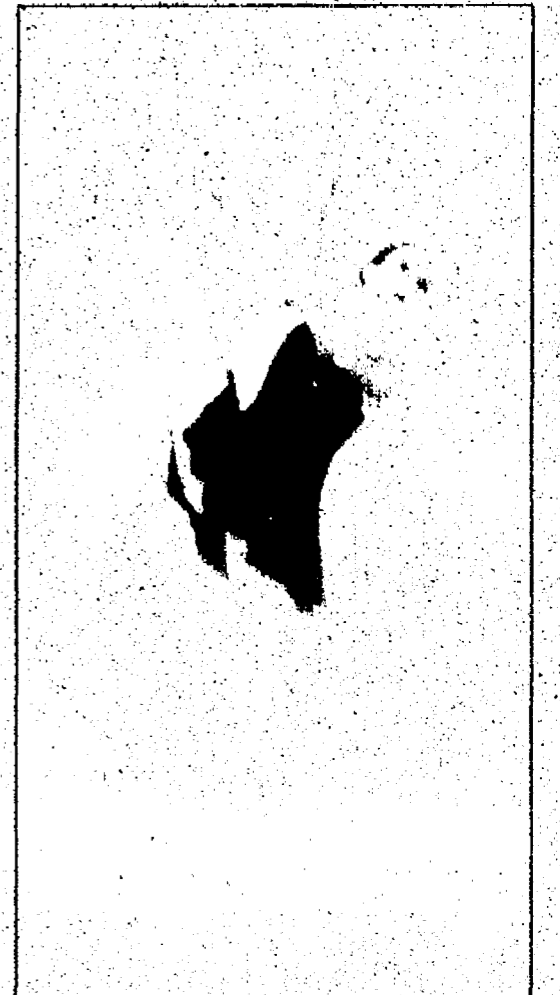

Dawnell Dryja is living proof that dreams do come true if you work hard enough. For the past dozen years or so, Dryja dreamed of dancing with a professional ballet company after graduation from Plymouth-Canton High School.

This September, only a few months after graduating, the honor student joins the Dayton Ballet company, the second oldest regional ballet in the country. Known as the "Company of Premieres," the 18-member company of professional dancers have produced more than 200 premieres in its 55 plus years of existence.

Dryja, former Junior Miss Dance of America 1992 and Junior Miss Dance of Michigan 1991, performs in all four of the Dayton Ballet's productions at the majestic Victoria Theatre in the 1994-95 season. They will delight audiences with Dracula, a full length ballet based on Bram Stoker's 1897 Gothic novel; Tchaikovsky's magical classic, The Nutcracker, and winter and spring editions of a Festival of Repertory spotlighting a revival of George Balanchine as well as several world premieres of contemporary ballets and fusion works, colorful new expressions from the American dancescape celebrating 20th century American choreography.

"I'm excited," said the 18-year-old dancer. "Dayton's really pretty. The people are really nice and friendly. It's not competitive like the ADT (American Ballet Theatre) or New York City Ballet. All the dancers dance. They treat everybody equal. It doesn't matter how old you are. It's an ensemble."

Rising Star: Dawnell Dryja of Canton Township joins the Dayton Ballet as a professional dancer under full contract for the 1994-95 season. Last fall, the 18-year-old emerging artist served an abbreviated apprenticeship with Detroit's first professional dance company, the Metropolitan Ballet Theatre.

FINAL DAYS

Time is running out to view a show of relief by Redford Township sculptor, Sergio De Giusti in the fine arts gallery on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Rarely will you find an exhibition of traditional Italian sculptural relief in this country. Through Sept. 10 you'll not only be able to savor relief but three dimensional sculpture, medallions and drawings by the internationally exhibited sculptor as well. De Giusti is best known for his shrouded figures wrapped in a hidden message that deals with the anxieties of our time. Not to be missed among the 46 works are the relief, Gift from Ur, a classical landscape drawing, Montefiascone, the three dimensional sculpture, What Work Is, and medallion, the Flying Dutchman.

Art Beat

ARTISTS NEEDED

New Morning School in Plymouth has extended the deadline for application to exhibit in its fourth annual Celebration of the Arts 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 12 in the Northville Community Center.

Participation is open to artists and crafters who exhibit work of original design and execution.

Proceeds from the juried arts and crafts show benefits the nonprofit parent cooperative school for children from preschool through eighth grade. State certified, the school serves students of all abilities from the learning disabled to the gifted.

Last year's art fest featured 70 artists exhibiting pottery, jewelry, paintings, fiber art, photography, mixed media, collage, wood, wearables and kaleidoscopes.

For more information and an application call show chairwoman, Leslie Stolaruk at (313) 420-1214.

Tuesdays through Saturdays, the young dancer's schedule promises to be hectic with eight-hour days consisting of an early morning company class that goes directly into rehearsals. Depending on how much energy remains later in the day, Dryja may pursue university studies also.

In summers past, Dryja has studied under full scholarship at the Cleveland School of Ballet (Cleveland-San Jose Ballet), Chicago School of Ballet (Chicago Ballet Company) and the Milwaukee School of Ballet (Milwaukee Ballet). For several weeks this summer, she participated in classes at the Dayton Ballet School associated with the professional company, the Dayton Ballet. While there, she settled into an apartment in Centerville about 10 minutes away from Dayton. Although she will miss her family in Canton Township and is hopeful they will visit often since it's only a three-hour drive, Dryja is not about to give up her dream of dancing with a professional company.

This is not her first stint with a professional ballet company, however. Last season she signed on as an apprentice, dancing with the Metropolitan Ballet Theatre based in Detroit. She left at the beginning of this year after dancers stopped receiving paychecks and artistic director, Karl Condon walked.

Dryja stepped onto the floor of her first dance studio at the age of two accompanying mother, Dawn Greene to classes. Greene, under whose tutelage Dryja earned her toe shoes, teaches locally at Joanne's Dance Extension in Plymouth. She has taught dance in the area for more than 20 years.

Greene began her own ballet training in Scotland, continuing studies with Sandra Severo and eventually becoming a member of the Severo Ballet Company after coming to the U.S. She currently serves on the executive board of the Cecchetti Council of America and is an associate examiner.

Although Dryja's talents will be missed as principal dancer of the Plymouth Canton Ballet Company's annual joint production of 'The Nutcracker with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, Greene is thrilled about her daughter signing a full contract with the Dayton Ballet.

"It's a good experience for Dawnell, something she's worked toward, and young enough to take enough time to enjoy and appreciate," said Plymouth Canton Ballet Company artistic director Dawn Greene.

guests from all over the Midwest, a taste of area restaurants, exhibits by students from the Plymouth Canton Community Schools, live music, and silent auctions of artworks with proceeds to benefit the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

"We're going to have jazz, and mime strolling in the streets," said chairperson Annette Horn.

Along the route stop by The Animation Station, Chameleon Gallery, Native West, Pennigan Showcase, Wild Wings, Sipapu Company, Country Charm, Creative Framing, Folkways, Frameworks, Georgia's Gallery, Michigan Art Exchange and the soon-to-open, Victorian Gallery.

The best part is that it's all free, and it's for families; Guy Sierlizza kicks off the celebration

6:30-7:30 p.m. with a concert for children in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth. Hours are 7-10 p.m. Friday, Sept. 30; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1 and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 2.

LSO fund-raiser

Hear the fascinating rhythm of the Livonia Symphony Orchestra while savoring samplings from more than two dozen restaurants and bakeries at the annual benefit 6-9 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 2, in Laurel Park Place Mall in Livonia. Originally scheduled for Sept. 11 then switched to Sept. 25 and now Oct. 2, "Sunday, Songs and Symphony" also boasts a silent auction with round-trip tickets for two to anywhere in the United States courtesy of Northwest Airlines.

"This is going to be a great event, and the symphony always needs help," said chairwoman, Betty Jean Awray.

For the last three years, the event sported celebrity athletes, hence the title "Sunday Sports and Symphony," but organizers wanted to try something different this year, so they're spotlighting the songs of vocalist Jamie Coe. The orchestra's repertoire of light popular classics from George Gershwin to Duke Ellington, is meant to keep the evening upbeat. Pat Bob Taylor, whose cooking show is seen locally on cable, will demonstrate the art of Italian cuisine.

"It's one of the two biggest benefits. I hope people come out and support the orchestra," said Frank Di Biasi, conductor/music director.

PLYMOUTH CULTURAL CENTER
D & M Art Studio, in conjunction with City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Dept., presents the fourth annual Children's Art Show 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28. It is the largest showing of children's art in Michigan with more than 350 pieces of work. The student exhibitors took part in summer art camps at the cultural center. This year's theme was "Art from Outer Space." Media include clay, oil, watercolor, acrylic, foil, scratchboard, sand, and pointillism in miniature form with tempera paint. In addition to the individual artworks, a 15 by 10-foot mural comprised of 50 panels has been created. Because each camp session has worked only on one panel, the entire mural is a surprise until all the pieces have been assembled for the show. The students, ranging in age from 3 to 16, will receive ribbons and awards for their creativity, imagination and expression in their individual media. The public is invited to attend the exhibition, reception and mural unveiling at Michigan's largest children's art show in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer, Plymouth.

NATIVE WEST
Continuing — Native West Gallery specializes in southwest art by Native Americans including hand-coiled pottery, sculpture, painting, handwoven rugs, fetishes, kachinas, storytellers, sandpainting and jewelry. Also on display are lodge pole pine and twig furniture, wall hangings, cactus arrangements, and iron accessories. 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday-Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

ATRIUM GALLERY
Continuing to Sept. 30 — Tush florals, contemporary watercolor and mixed media by award-winning Farmington artist, Jeanne Ozment. Also featuring dynamic functional and decorative clay works by Michael Haley; and new wall and clay pieces by local artists, Lad Hanka, Toni Johnstone and Karen McDevitt, 109 N. Center St. Northville

CROSSWINDS MALL
Thursday-Sunday, Aug. 25-28 — The Summerfest Antique Show takes place 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, at Orchard Lake and Lone Pine roads in West Bloomfield. The show features art, deco, art glass, baseball cards, bronzes, furniture, fine and costume jewelry, lamps and fixtures, linens, silver, Victorian items and hand-decorated furniture. Glass and china restoration, and jewelry repairs while you wait, are available.

LAWRENCE STREET GALLERY
Friday, Aug. 26 — An exhibit of paintings by Michael Brieger, a southwest Colorado artist with roots in Michigan, continues through Sept. 30. Reception to meet the artist 6-9 p.m. Friday. Brieger works his abstract paintings by using a vocabulary of lines, anthropomorphic shapes, color washes and manipulation of painted surfaces until one's eye asserts itself, giving focus to the work. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, call for occasional Saturday times, 29 W. Lawrence, Pontiac, (810) 334-6716.

PARK WEST GALLERY
Friday, Aug. 26 — An exhibit of lithographs and etchings by internationally recognized landscape impressionist Harold Altman will continue through Sept. 22. The artist will personally open the display at a private reception Friday. The show features Altman's 1994 collection of 35 works as well as a retrospective of more than 50 rare, early works. Altman's compositions are carefully designed and controlled, capturing small human dramas among nature's colorful foliage and landscape. He creates each of his new lithographs by hand in the manner of past masters. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, 29469 Northwestern Highway, Southfield, (810) 354-2343.

THE CEMENT SPACE
Friday, Aug. 26 — "Experience" — an exhibit of painting by Maxwell Britton, Sue Brookshire, Steve Canada, Mitch Cope, Daren Kendall and John Sindelar, photography by Nancy McEntee and sculpture by Andrea Ray — will continue to Oct. 1. Opening reception 6-10 p.m. Friday. Hours are noon to 10 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, 1601 E. Woodbridge, Detroit, (313) 259-9800.

THE ROEPER SCHOOL
Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 27-28 — The Roper Invitational Artfest, a free, outdoor festival of fine arts, takes place 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the school grounds, 2190 N. Woodward, just north of Long Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills. Works in a variety of media by award-winning artists, food and refreshments, free parking and a free shuttle service are featured. Proceeds will go to the Roper Booster Club for use in support of Roper programs. Call (810) 642-1500.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN NORTH CAMPUS COMMONS
To Aug. 25 — Father and son team George and Mitch Nama have a mixed media exhibit in the NCC Atrium, 2101 Bonisteel

Blvd. in Ann Arbor. George is a professional photographer in Perry, Mich. He exhibits color and black and white photographs. Mitch, a bachelor of fine arts student in the U-M School of Art, displays drawings and sculptures. This is the first show for both artists.

Michelle Michael, a broker associate for RE/MAX Executive in Farmington Hills, was named 1994 Realtor of the Year by the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

She's active in six different communities within her local association and heads WWOCA's education marketing and scholarship committees, which she founded.

Michael has been handling residential real estate in northern Wayne and southern Oakland counties for more than eight years. She has received WWOCA's President's Club award for the past four years.

SOUTHWEST VENTURE

The Hayman Co., a Troy-based real estate investment firm, announced an association with Michael Pepper & Co., a Chicago-based project management and development consulting service firm.

Hayman said Michael Pepper will oversee the proposed $3 million rehab of Camelback Place, a 236-unit apartment complex in Phoenix, Ariz.

Hayman is preparing an image campaign that includes a new name for the complex, new amenities and other merchandising programs to kick in after construction is finished.

Hayman and Michael Pepper also will refurbish two apartment developments in Florida.

NEW RELOCATION HEAD

Donna Webber of Farmington Hills becomes relocation director for Century 21 Hartford at 32726 Grand River, Farmington. She also earned Century 21's VIP designation for her expertise in referral business, announced broker/owner Bill Law.

The designation is awarded on a two-year basis to associates who complete 21 Plus training and VIP sales associate courses. Agents also need at least nine closings and two acknowledged referrals.

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

There are some mortgage lenders around who won't blink an eye at a bleep on a credit report. In fact, their business is trying to make the American dream come true for folks whose credit is good but not squeaky clean.

Investaid Corp., a Birmingham-based wholesale mortgage lender that specializes in non-conforming loans, is the latest to offer a no-down-payment home loan for buyers with good credit but without the downpayment required by most conventional lenders.

Home Loan 100 is for new purchases, second mortgages and refinances of homes valued at $75,000 to $150,000. A typical borrower's credit rating is in the A to B plus range, or "pretty close to perfect," said Ken Towne, Investaid executive vice president.

"We can work around minor delinquencies (on a credit report) if they're properly explained. We look at a borrower's whole picture," said Towne, whose firm works with 125 mortgage brokers in Michigan. Four handle Home Loan 100, including two in the Birmingham-Southfield area.

Investaid's lending guidelines aren't as rigid as those used for government-backed or government-sponsored mortgages like Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac.

Borrowers who qualify for Home Loan 100 can expect to pay $1,000 to $3,000 in closing costs for a $100,000 home (origination fee, credit check, appraisal, title insurance and survey fees). The loan doesn't require private mortgage insurance or an escrow account, whose upfront fees for taxes and property insurance usually surprise first-time home buyers. Participating brokers charge an application fee.

Investaid also considers applicants whose debt ratio, or the amount you owe compared to your gross monthly income, is 45 percent or more. Conventional lenders usually allow a 36-percent debt ratio.

Back up the truck. No escrow or private mortgage insurance? Great for the borrower, who will have a few thousand dollars upfront in pre-payments, and around $50-$75 a month for private mortgage insurance, which guarantees the loan if you don't pay. But how can the lender afford the risk?

"Sixty percent of borrowers can't qualify for Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac loans, so this loan markets itself," Towne said.

"The loan is based on a borrower's qualifications and the ability to pay. We have excellent underwriters, and we believe that most people want to meet their obligation."

The rate, based on a 15-year term, is around 1 to 1 1/4 percent higher than most conventional loans, or 9.9 to 11.9 percent. The 30-year fixed rate runs 1/4 to 2 percent more than a conventional loan.

For information from Investaid, call 1 (800) 377-5188 or (810) 642-1180.

From a conventional lender's point of view, "There's a lot of niche marketing in the mortgage business today and any number of programs to fit a borrower's needs," said Bill Yaw, senior vice president for Troy-based Standard Federal Bank. Standard Federal, Michigan's mortgage volume leader in number of loans and dollar amount, has an office in every Observer & Eccentric community.

For example, Yaw said Standard Federal's no-point, no-fee 15 or 30-year mortgage requires as little as 5 percent down. The $200 application fee is credited to the buyer at closing.

"There are all sorts of ways to skin a cat. There are a lot of ways for new buyers to get into a home without a lot of money upfront," said Yaw.

Ensure fairness in voting; consider a reverse mortgage

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Do you have any suggestions as to how we might keep our elections reasonably fair at our association to avoid particular problems that normally come up?

A. Based on suggestions made in the recent edition of Common Ground (published by the Community Associations Institute), there are at least eight ways an association can increase attendance at the annual meeting and insure that the election is fair.

First, the association should start looking for candidates early. To get persons on the ballot, consider a combination of nominating procedures. Allow owners to meet the candidates and learn about them. Give all candidates a fair chance to present their views.

Set the rules in advance and make instructions easy to follow concerning who is able to vote and matters regarding that. Provide clear procedures and formats for collecting proxies. Conduct the election and do not count votes behind closed doors.

These suggestions have been borne out to be useful over the years in this writer's experience and should be implemented by the association as appropriate in connection with their own individual needs.

Q. I am wondering if you can help me with the concept of reverse mortgages, which I heard HUD is now insuring. I am a senior citizen and am wondering if it has any applicability to me.

A. Reverse mortgages, which are, in most cases, a financing vehicle for senior citizens, enable seniors to stay in their homes and access their accumulated equity, but do not require an income stream to meet the debt service because no payments are due on the loan until the borrower no longer occupies the home.

The concept of reverse mortgages has been around for about 16 years, but has only become recognized by HUD in the last four years when it established its own insured reverse mortgage program called the home equity conversion mortgage.

In general, reverse mortgage is a first lien loan, is underwritten based solely on the equity in the home and is available to borrowers 60-70 years of age or older (depending on the program) who own their own homes free and clear or nearly free and clear (as long as existing liens are small enough to be paid for with the proceeds from the HECM loan).

The borrower can obtain advances in a variety of ways, depending on the product, such as in a lump sum, a fixed amount for either a finite number of years or for as long as the borrower lives in the home, under a line of credit, or in any combination.

The loan is satisfied out of the proceeds of the sale of the home and repayment of the loan is not required until the property is no longer the principal residence of any of the borrowers. The borrower generally has no personal liability for the debt and there is no income restriction imposed on the borrowers, but all borrowers must be on the title to the property.

HUD offers reverse mortgages on either a fixed or adjustable rate. You should contact HUD and/or your bank with any questions you may have concerning the applicability of reverse mortgages to you and the consult with your real estate attorney to review the particular program in which you are interested.

Meadowlark: This model, like others at Rookery Woods, offers an attractive exterior and a functional floor plan inside.

Rookery Woods radiates luxury

A couple of builders have erected models that radiate luxury in a new residential development in Oakland County. The site is pastoral, but close to major freeways and area attractions.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Rookery Woods, a residential subdivision under construction off Adams near M-59 in Rochester Hills, is well named.

A rookery is a breeding place and heron reportedly nest in a substantial tract of trees along the Clinton River abutting the site. Several Canada geese also landed during a recent early-morning visit.

But there are other things to recommend the project, namely the work of Richard Sieradzki, president of American Home Corp., and Tony Lochirco, president of Olympia Homes.

Lochirco has purchased 62 lots, Sieradzki 25 in the initial phase of the development created by Frankel Associates of Troy.

Their models are large, functional and fairly pricey.

Lochirco offers the Blair, a 3,900-square-foot two-story with five bedrooms and 3 baths for $338,500. The Ritz, also a two-story of 3,900 square feet, has four bedrooms and 2 baths for $339,000.

Sieradzki offers the Meadowlark, a 3,600-square-foot two-story with four bedrooms and 3 baths, for $316,900. The Skylark, a two-story with nearly 3,200 square feet, also has four bedrooms and 3 baths for $293,900.

The basic numbers don't do the models justice.

All have two-story foyers and multiple peaks with brick and wood siding on the exterior elevations. All offer three-car, side-entry garages, first-floor laundry, fireplace and basement.

Ovens, countertop stoves, dishwashers and garbage disposals are common to all models. So, too, are whirlpool tub and separate shower in master suites.

Then there are the nuances between the models.

The powder rooms in the Blair and Ritz are larger than one normally finds in residential construction today. Both models also have dual staircases.

Researcher: John E. Levis is trying to establish a medical research business from his home.

Home-based business tracks medical data

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

John E. Levis of John E. Levis Associates provides a health/medical service for the consumer out of his home-based business in Livonia.

A former medical photographer for 25 years, Levis worked at Harper Hospital, Mt. Carmel Hospital and Wayne State University School of Medicine until they cut staff and he left voluntarily.

In compiling specialized reports based on a client's questions, Levis searches several computer databases, retrieves a bibliography, locates and retrieves articles.

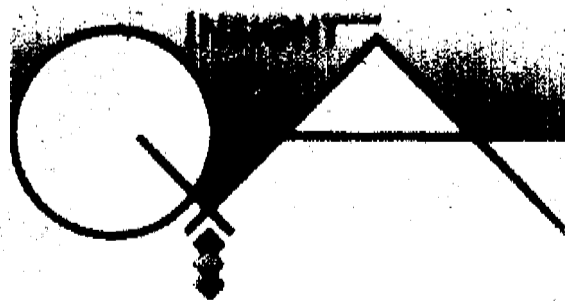

"I'm very conscientious about my clients' privacy," Levis said.

"Putting the report together is easy. Locating the information is difficult. It's impossible for anyone to stay current. This is not an indictment of the medical community. Most physicians will tell you that an informed patient is a better patient."

Ironically, Levis has never personally met a client face to face. He usually talks by phone.

"I've had clients in Hawaii. I've done a search for someone in Zimbabwe. Africa. It was about lymphoma (cancer)," he said.

"While a person's physician is their best source of health care information, there are several good reasons to do one's own research. A physician tends to suggest what he does best. If you don't know about a procedure, how can you ever bring it up with your doctor?"

Through the Internet, Levis can get into the catalogues of Wayne State University, Beaumont Hospital, Botsford Hospital, Children's Hospital, Detroit Public Library and Harper Hospital.

Wife, Dorothy, who works in the lab at Henry Ford Hospital, matches organ donors to recipients and does diagnostic work for leukemias, lymphomas and AIDS.

Their children are David, 25, a Westland resident who works for EDI and is coordinator for Mexican Industries, an automotive supplier, and Mark, 23, of Warren a student at Oakland Community College.

Following are edited excerpts of a recent

Meadowlark and Skylark feature plenty of room for additional furniture and interactive space. The study in the Meadowlark is cleverly placed off the great room for optimal use.

The Ritz has a two-way fireplace between the great room and kitchen/nook. Its master suite contains a large dressing area. The Skylark has a step-up master. A microwave is also offered in the Skylark and Meadowlark as standard fare.

The Ritz and Meadowlark have butler pantries.

The Blair is Olympia's most popular model from among a dozen floor plans, said sales manager Connie Blair.

"I think it's because it's functional, it's attractive and it lends itself to entertaining as well as a family lifestyle," she said. "People can see themselves living in this when they come through the front door."

The Blair has a library, living room that flows to a formal dining room, kitchen/nook and family room on the main level.

Buyers are especially drawn to the large eating nooks and two bedrooms separated by a shared bath in both of his models, Sieradzki said.

"People find there's not enough emphasis on the kitchen and nook area," he said. "We stress areas, places, people normally live."

American also offers a plan with a main-floor master. Many buyers in Rookery Woods probably will have already owned at least two houses, the builders agree.

"Most are professional people... doctors, auto people," Lochirco said.

The Olympia sales office (810) 377-0222 and the American Home office (810) 370-9635 are both open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursday.

2 big real estate firms will merge

Real Estate One is merging with Ralph Manuel Associates, a fixture in the Birmingham/Bloomfield real estate market for more than 30 years.

Sales associates will move from the Real Estate One office on Southfield to the Ralph Manuel office on Maple over the next week.

Since sales agents work as independent contractors, they will not lose their jobs as a result of the merger, said Dennis Dickstein, former owner of Ralph Manuel Associates.

As part of Real Estate One, the Ralph Manuel office in Birmingham will continue the Ralph Manuel name. The existing Ralph Manuel office will be expanded to accommodate the merger.

"The consolidation of these two companies is a good blending of seasoned, highly respected sales associates," said Dan Elsea, president, Metro Detroit North/East Division, Real Estate One.

"Ralph Manuel is one of Birmingham-Bloomfield's premier real estate firms," he said. "The distinctive service that the community has come to expect will continue, bolstered by Real Estate One's state of the art services."

Those services include Market Power, a market evaluation system for buyers and sellers, and Relocation America, a full-service relocation management corporation.

Real Estate One also is the exclusive representative in this metropolitan area for the General relocation referral network.

"Ford has Continentals and Lincoln, both luxury cars with different markets," Elsea said by way of analogy. "We're looking to fill real estate niches not only in Birmingham and Bloomfield, but other markets as well."

"I felt the market was ripe for expansion," Dickstein said. "I didn't have the time or desire to take advantage. I looked for an association that could take advantage of the name and have the resources to make it stronger."

Dickstein said he will maintain an interest in the merged operation and will continue to own and operate Ralph Manuel West Associates in Farmington Hills as an independent entity.

Dickstein said he doesn't see a problem with, in effect, competing against himself. "Every office competes with every office now," he said.

interview. What is the most unusual condition you have researched? Levis: I had a fellow, not a client of mine, who had an extremely unusual congenital deformity that was only reported once in the literature. And that article was in Turkish. I told him that I would be happy to retrieve that article for him and have it translated. You mentioned that you spent a year just taking classes on how to utilize the on-line services and that each database has its own search language. Which information services do you subscribe to? Levis: Dialog Information Services, Palo Alto, Calif., an information vendor with 4,000 different files that you can search with a computer.

tacting people through Compuserve and through medical newsletters. I'm working with someone who's co-authoring a book on information searches. I specifically want to serve the general public. There's an enormous amount of information available that is difficult to access. I offer four packages — two for cancer and two for non-cancer.

How much does it cost to go on-line? Levis: It can cost anywhere from $45-$200 an hour to connect. There's hit charges for every article title you download. The National Library is least expensive. I'm on line (usually) for less than two minutes. Have you advertised? Levis: Not yet. I've been con-

What's the cost to the consumer? Levis: Anywhere from $85-$225 for a report that's anywhere from 50-200 pages. What don't you do? Levis: I don't diagnose illnesses. I don't say I agree or disagree with your doctor and I don't recommend physicians. In a cancer report, I will give you a list of physicians in your area who specialize in oncology. What were your start up costs? Levis: With this Gateway computer, $5,000. It has CD-ROM. The Physicians Desk Reference is on CD-ROM. I go through a lot of paper. I subscribe to some medical journals, like Scientific American which is $80 a year. I belong to the Association of Independent Information Professionals.

Program makes on-line easier

EMORY DANIELS

The Pine mail software that comes with O&E On-Line has many features to accommodate handling e-mail on the Internet. If you are a had typist like myself, use Pine's spell checker before sending a message. With the message on your screen, type "P" to activate Pine's Spell Checker. Try it for fun. Follow the on-screen prompts.

You can print out any e-mail message, one you are about to send or one you have received. With some communications software, like Procomm, all you have to do is select the letter "Y" when the message is on the screen. A prompt asks if you want to print. Answer yes.

With other communications software, like Ripterm, you must first "enable" your printer before printing. Enabling simply puts your printer on stand-by and clears the way for a print command. With most communication software, type ALT P or Control P and answer "yes" to prompt to enable your printer. If ALT P or Control P does not work, check the documentation of your communication software.

Once you enable your printer, every thing that appears on your screen will be printed out until you "disable" it. To disable, type ALT P again and answer yes. In Pine, when your printer is enabled, and a message appears on your screen, type "V" for the print prompt and answer yes. Then disable your printer before continuing.

Learn these steps now. Later, when we visit databases, you will come across articles you wish to share with others. The easiest thing is to print it while on-line. Or you can e-mail it to yourself and then print it off-line.

Another handy Pine tool is "Forward," which allows you to answer your mail simply by typing your comments on the bottom of the message received and then sending both. This reminds the recipient what he/she had asked you in the first place before reading your reply — something very handy for those of us over 40. You also can read a message, add your comments, and forward it to a third person. To do this, simply type F with the message on the screen and when done typing your comments, select Control X to send.

Whenever your mail is piling up, do some house-cleaning. This makes system operator Greg Day a happy man. When you enter Pine, type "I" to view message. Then moving the up-down arrows, locate the cursor next to the message you want deleted and type "D." That message will be marked for destruction. However, the message will remain listed temporarily.

Continue deleting messages. When finished, type "Q" to exit Pine. After asking you if you really want to quit, Pine will then ask if you really want to "expunge" (a Harvard word for delete) the marked messages and tells you the number of messages to be deleted. Hit RETURN and the messages are wiped out as you exit Pine. If you know you made a mistake earlier, answer "no" and type "I" again and start the deleting process over again.

Housekeeping is important because your messages will remain in Pine forever unless you empty the bin once in awhile. There is one exception that you should be cautioned about. One of the menu choices for advanced on-line users is "ZipNews," which allows News (Discussions) to be read off-line. Beginners will want to read News on-line, for many reasons.

One reason is that when you ask ZipNews to download the News Packet, it wipes out your e-mail from Pine. Actually, it compresses your mail and transfers it to your personal file manager elsewhere in our system. But it's a pain for novices like you and me to get it back. So, don't use ZipNews if you have important unsaved e-mail.

You will find important e-mail by using the save command. Type "S" for save. A prompt asks you for a file name. Type a brief name and hit RETURN. You may be asked if you wish the folder to be created. Answer yes. The message is saved — not on your hard-drive but to the personal file manager. You can keep messages on file there. If you keep saving messages to the file manager, though, you eventually will want to go there and download mail to your hard drive. That will be covered in a future column.

We will conclude our discussion of Pine and e-mail next week by looking at more advanced features, which allow us to send word-processing files to another user.

(Direct questions or comments to Emory Daniels by e-mail at emory@oeeonline.com, at voice mail at 953-2047 then dial 1910, or fax number 591-7279. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial (313)953-0903 or (810)901-4711, at the "login" prompt type "new," at the "key" prompt, type GL6NY2.)

RACQUET PROMOTION
The Tennis Co. of Southfield recently gave away 100 free junior tennis racquets to children between the ages of three and 11 to introduce the youngsters to the sport.

"Sometimes, children experience early frustration with tennis because they're using adult-sized racquets," said David Schwartz of the Tennis Co. "But give them a racquet of the appropriate weight and size, and the game suddenly turns into a lot of fun."

"What we're trying to do is get the word out to parents that junior racquets are available."

FORMS AFFILIATION
Dopar Software Systems Inc., whose offices are in Southfield and Detroit, announced an affiliation with the Minority Technology Alliance, a division of Intelligent Electronics. Dopar is the largest independent minority-owned computer supplier in the Midwest.

"Through our affiliation with Intelligent Electronics and the Minority Technology Alliance, we will be able to offer our clients the same selection of competitive pricing that the leading computer chains provide," said Dopar president Douglass M. Doggett Sr.

TELEVIDEO CONFERRING
Imaging Business Systems, an imaging systems integration and consulting firm in Farmington Hills, has added the VehiCLEs PC Televideo Conferencing System to its lineup of products and services.

VehiCLEs is based on an open standard desktop PC platform making it easy to integrate into any organization's existing office automation.

"This is the obvious next step toward the office of the future," said Tim Green, president of IB-Systems. "The companies that succeed will be those who make the most efficient use of their resources."

will make sure you

Don't get lost!

Have you ever parked your car in a sea of other cars and found it easy because you'd tied an "attention getter" to the antenna?

That's the way our new Classified Ad Attention Getters work for you. Folks will notice your ad when you include one of these little faces or symbols. For only a one-time $5 add-on charge, your Attention Getter will appear as many times as your ads.

Ask for one the next time you're talking with one of our ad takers.
