Victim's family applauds ruling

A forensics dentist's testimony was a key to having a murder defendant bound over for trial in the death of his former girl friend. The murder victim's relatives applauded the judge's decision.

BY DARRELL CLEM

Applause erupted in a crowded Westland courtroom Thursday as murder defendant Ricky Alan Amolsch was ordered to stand trial for the gruesome slaying of his former girlfriend, Jane Marie Fray, who was stabbed 22 times, strangled, bashed on the head and bitten on her left temple.

Fray's family members applauded and wiped away tears as Amolsch, 38, was ordered to stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court for first-degree murder. The ruling by 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos concluded a preliminary hearing that produced explicit, shocking details about Fray's death. Fray's mother and a next-door neighbor found her body at 10:52 a.m. Aug. 23 in the blood-spattered bedroom of her residence in Westland Meadows, a mobile home park on the northeast corner of Merriman and Van Born.

The most damaging testimony against Amolsch, a longtime General Motors Corp. worker, centered on a human bite mark that Fray suffered on her left temple.

"My expert opinion is that Mr. Amolsch made the mark," said

Wayne County chief forensic dentist Alan Warnick.

Warnick made similar statements during a Sept. 24 hearing that continued Thursday. His conclusion about the bite mark was made after he said the wound on Fray's head closely matched Amolsch's teeth.

Defense attorney Richard Lustig argued in court that charges against Amolsch should, at least, be reduced. Lustig challenged the first-degree murder charge and said there was no evidence of premeditation.

District ahead on gun law

BY DARRELL CLEM
 STAFF WRITER

Even before a new state law was approved mandating the expulsion of weapon-toting students, Wayne Westland school officials routinely ousted such offenders.

Eleven students were expelled last school year for bringing weapons to school or for inciting violence, said Greg Baracy, assistant superintendent for general administration. No such expulsions have occurred this year.

The local district's "zero-tolerance" policy appears to have sent a strong message that weapons, and students who carry them, won't be tolerated in Wayne-Westland schools, Baracy said.

Even though local school officials beat state lawmakers to the punch, the new law drew praise last week from Superintendent Larry Thomas.

"That's a bill that we support," he said during a school board meeting. Noting that Wayne-Westland "has already taken control of its schools," Thomas noted that state lawmakers have now ensured that all districts will follow suit.

Passed by the state House and the Senate, the law would require an automatic 180-day expulsion before weapon-toting students in grade six and up could apply to be readmitted to a district.

Offenders in lower grades would be ousted for at least 90 days before they could seek readmittance, under the new bill.

School officials could deny, approve or set certain conditions for reinstatement. Similar provisions in the law apply to students who commit rape or arson on school property.

Although Wayne-Westland officials generally support the bill, they noted that the law falls short of dealing with students once they are expelled.

"It will not address the issue of what we do with kids who are expelled for having guns or dangerous weapons," school board president Mathew McCusker said last week.

Parents cautioned on analyzing MEAP results

BY LEONARD POGER
 EDITOR

Wayne-Westland schools' curriculum director doesn't think fair comparisons can be made of Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) scores from one year to the next or between districts of the same year.

Jane Kuckel, assistant superintendent for instruction and planning since mid-1993, commented about the annual state academic tests as Wayne-Westland students are in their second of three weeks of testing.

The district, along with the rest of Michigan, will have fourth, seventh and 10th graders tested in math and reading with fifth and 11th graders tested in science.

Although the district last fall showed substantial improvement in nearly all areas over previous years, Kuckel did say that comparisons are valid from year to year "as we see trends taking place" over a long-term basis.

"For example, we usually calculate the average rise or decline in scores over a three- to four-year period to show growth or needed improvement," she said.

"We also calculate over a three- to four-year period the difference between our scores and the state average.

"It is not valid to single one year and compare it to another year. We avoid comparing this year's fourth grade class with last year's fourth grade class. However, we do look at averages and trends."

Wins skating medal

Brenda Blackmer of Westland won third place honors in the junior freestyle category in the U.S. National Collegian Figure Skating Championship, held recently in Colorado Springs, Colo., bringing home a bronze medal. Brenda, a member of the Garden City Figure Skating Club, also placed fifth in the Senior Figure Skating competition. Thirteen skaters took part.

All the skaters were housed in the Colorado Springs Olympic Training Center. She is the first member of the Garden City club to compete at the collegian level.

Calling all dancers

The Westland recreation department is sponsoring two dance programs this fall. One is contra dancing, held the second Friday of the month at Bailey Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. The next one will be 8-11 p.m. Friday, Oct. 14. No partner or experience is required. Caller will be Tom Allen, accompanied by the Joyous Noise string band. Admission is $6. A country western dance series is planned for 7-11 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23, and Nov. 27, also in Bailey Center, with instruction provided by Darlene Lopez. Admission is $3. There is no advance registration required. For more information, call the recreation department, 722-7820.

In cautioning persons in avoiding district-to-district comparisons, Kuckel said those comparisons aren't fair.

There is great value in these test results if the district core curriculum is aligned with the state core curriculum and the district mastery level objectives are taught at the same grades as state core curriculum recommended mastery level objectives.

But assistant Wayne County prosecutor William Rolston said premeditation was evident because Fray's attacker had time to think about the murder.

Livonia schools tough on weapons offenses

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

The Livonia Public Schools are already doing what a new "get tough" state law now requires them to do if a weapon is brought to school — expel the offending student.

The district, which serves northern Westland, last year expelled two students, said John Rennels, assistant superintendent for personnel.

Beginning Jan. 1, all Michigan school districts must expel all students who bring a weapon to school or who commit arson or rape on school grounds, no matter what grade the students are in.

A student in grades K-6 will be expelled for at least 90 days for any one of the three above crimes.

Students in grades 6-12 will be expelled for at least 180 days.

This "get tough" stand toward younger, K-5 students marks one of the biggest changes that will occur because of the new legislation.

The new law won't affect the Livonia district dramatically because the district already has taken a "serious stand" against weapons in the schools, said Superintendent Ken Watson.

District policy gives the school board a wide range of penalties — from suspension to expulsion — but weapon possession has always brought expulsion, he said.

"Even though the number of incidents has been small, the threat is still very real," Watson said. "Our district has treated the possession of weapons as a serious issue and has been able to keep incidents at a minimum. We have a great deal of praise for how the Livonia and Westland police have worked with the schools; this has helped to minimize incidents."

Schools have the option of placing expelled students in alternative programs. Both districts have programs for students who don't do well in regular school settings. But neither district will allow students expelled for weapons possession into these programs, nor will the districts pay to lodge them in a separate program, Watson said.

Once a student is expelled, they are banned from all of the district's programs, Watson said. "With weapons possession, they've lost the right to alternative programs."

Critics say that, under the new legislation, expelled students will just wander the streets or get into more serious trouble.

Under the new law, schools can set conditions for students who are reinstated.

Baracy said it's unclear whether districts may be expected to provide an alternative school for expelled students.

"There are some loose ends," he said.

Generally, students expelled from Wayne-Westland have moved to other districts to seek enrollment. Likewise, pupils ousted elsewhere have sought refuge here.

But local officials, seeking to keep violent students out of the district altogether, have implemented a policy in which pupils caught with weapons in other districts have been rejected here, too.

Thomas noted that Wayne-Westland implemented new weapons-related rules even before the now state mandate years because local officials wanted "to make schools safer."

But Thomas said he applauded the state measure.

Trial ordered in attack threat

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Westland man has been ordered to stand trial for allegedly threatening a 70-year-old woman with a 12-gauge shotgun when she used his driveway to turn around in her car.

Ronald Atkinson, 59, was bound over for trial in Detroit Recorder's Court after he voluntarily waived a preliminary examination Thursday in Westland 18th District Court.

He faces up to four years in prison if convicted of felonious assault. He also faces trial for a felony firearms charge that carries a mandatory two-year prison term upon conviction.

No shots were fired during the incident that allegedly occurred at 10:20 p.m. Sept. 1 in front of Atkinson's residence in the 1900 block of Williams Circle, near Palmer and Hix.

The victim had been visiting her grandchildren and her son before she pulled into Atkinson's driveway to turn around, Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said. The suspect came outside, armed with a loaded shotgun, and aimed it at the woman's head, Stobbe said.

The suspect continued to aim the gun at the woman as she drove away, and he then went inside his house and came outside carrying a black-powder handgun and a .22-caliber revolver, Stobbe said, based on reports from the woman's relatives.

The suspect pulled the triggers of the guns but, again, no shots were fired, Stobbe said. The suspect told police that he was drunk, Stobbe said.

Atkinson has been released from custody after posting a $5,000 bond. In court Thursday, a defense attorney who has spoken with the alleged victim's family said he was told that the incident appears to be isolated, and that no other problems have occurred.

Money raised for Nankin Mill restoration

History buffs raised just over $1,000 Thursday to help renovate and improve the historic Nankin Mill.

The money was generated by the Friends of the Mill, which held its sixth annual wine and cheese reception in the 131-year-old structure on Ann Arbor Trail, just east of Farmington Road.

As in past years, several members of the private fundraising organization were dressed in late 19th-century clothing to create an old-time atmosphere for the guests.

The mill was used by area farmers in the mid- and late-1800s before Henry Ford bought it in the 1920s as a manufacturing facility.

Wayne County acquired the building in 1948, using it as a recreational facility and a naturalist center. It currently houses the county recreation department's offices.

A major addition is nearly complete which will allow the naturalist activities for area residents to be held in the front section of the building. The department's administrative offices and other functions will move into the addition, expected to be open by late November.

At Thursday's reception, county Executive Edward McNamara praised the Friends of the Mill as the "backbone" for helping restore the mill.

He stressed that recreation "isn't a frill" as seen by some taxpayers but part of an effort to improve the quality of life.

McNamara said the county is looking at "things we shouldn't be doing" and redirecting the money to the recreation department.

The executive also pushed for an earmarked recreation millage to provide more funds for recreation purposes.

President of the friends' group is Denise Johnson of Westland.

Gordon's Food Service supplied some of the refreshments for the reception.

Those who missed Thursday's reception can still make donations, with checks to be made out to: Friends of the Mill, c/o Joseph Benyo, City Hall, 36610 Ford, Westland, MI 48185.

High schools plan homecomings

John Glenn and Wayne Memorial high schools are getting into their annual fall traditions of homecomings.

Glenn will launch its week-long homecoming events today and will conclude them with a parade and football game Friday night and a dance Saturday night.

Wayne Memorial will get started on the preliminary activities this week with the football game, parade and dance the following Saturday, Oct. 15.

Glenn students nominated homecoming candidates last week, with the queen to be crowned during halftime of Friday night's game against Livonia Stevenson.

Students will celebrate "pajama day" today (Monday), followed by "career day" Tuesday with pupils dressing as a career person.

"Hat and jersey day" will be observed Wednesday, the same day students will vote for homecoming queen.

"Tippy day" will be marked Thursday as students dress as 1970s hippies.

On "John Glenn Day" Friday, students are asked to show their school spirit by dressing in the school colors of red, white and blue. A pep assembly will be held early in the afternoon, with the parade of floats and decorated cars to assemble at 5:45 p.m. at Stottlemeyer School, on Murquette east of Wayne Road, and start at 6:30 p.m. The participants will then proceed to the Glenn football field for the 7:30 p.m. game.

"Another Night of Peace and Music" is the theme of Saturday's homecoming dance, to be held from 7:30 p.m. in the school hall.

At Wayne Memorial, students will nominate homecoming court candidates today (Monday), with the nominees to be announced Wednesday.

"Hat and sweatshirt day" will be marked Tuesday, Oct. 11, followed by "Class colors" on Oct. 12, and a "Blue and gold" assembly on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 13.

"Pajama and slipper day" will be observed Friday, Oct. 14.

On Saturday, Oct. 15, a parade will assemble at 10:45 a.m. in the school's Fourth Street parking lot and move to the football field at 11:30 a.m.

The football game, at which the Zebras will play Belleville, will start at 1 p.m., with the homecoming queen to be crowned at halftime. The dance will be 7:30-10 p.m. that night in the school's Commons.

Man faces assault charges

A Livonia man faces felony sex charges amid allegations he forced a female co-worker to perform oral sex during after-work hours at a Westland business.

Robert Ricciuti, 50, could face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison if convicted of third-degree criminal sexual conduct.

The charge stems from an incident that allegedly occurred a year ago at Motor City Harley-Davidson, on the southwest corner of Inkster and Joy roads, said Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry.

The woman that Ricciuti allegedly assaulted began testifying Thursday during a preliminary examination before Westland 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos. The hearing is scheduled to continue this Thursday, and it will determine whether the defendant should stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court.

A not-guilty plea has been entered for Ricciuti in 18th District Court. He has been released from custody on a $25,000 personal bond.

2 men are charged in statutory rape

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A Garden City teen and a man whose address is unknown face felony sex charges for allegedly having consensual sex with a 13-year-old Westland girl at her home.

Jason Eugene Casorso, 17, of Garden City, and Johnny Ray Sparks, 21, were ordered Thursday to stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court for third-degree criminal sexual conduct.

Each of the two defendants has been accused of having sex with the girl on two occasions in August, Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry said. Although the alleged sexual encounters have been described as consensual, the men face felony charges because the girl was a minor.

The incidents allegedly occurred while the girl was home alone, police said.

Casorso and Sparks appeared before 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos on Thursday for a preliminary hearing to determine whether they should stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court. Both men waived their right to a hearing, in a move that automatically sent their cases to the higher court.

Casorso and Sparks face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison if convicted of third-degree criminal sexual conduct. Not-guilty pleas were entered for both men in 18th District Court during their earlier arraignments.

Casorso remains jailed in lieu of a $100,000 cash bond. He also has additional charges pending against him, including breaking and entering, and carrying a concealed weapon, Terry said.

Sparks also remains in the county jail, though his bond has been set at $50,000.

City man robbed at gunpoint

A Westland man was robbed at gunpoint Tuesday outside of his car on a residential street on the city's southeast side, police said.

The victim, 33, reported that he started his vehicle and stopped outside momentarily when a man wearing a ski mask approached him, pointed a black semi-automatic handgun at him and demanded his wallet, police reports said.

The incident happened at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday in the 30200 block of Hanover, north of Van Buren and Middlebelt and Henry Ruff, police said. The robbery remains under investigation, Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said.

The victim reported that he saw the robber walking east on Hanover just before the robbery occurred. He was robbed of $70, police reports said.

The bandit took the man's wallet only to hand it back to him and warn him to "take the money out," the reports said. The victim obeyed the order, and no shots were fired.

The victim said the man then reached inside the vehicle, turned off the ignition and continued walking east on Hanover. The bandit disappeared from sight as he approached Dancy, the reports said.

The robber was described as a 5-foot-10, 165-pound black male, 18 to 24 years old, with a medium build. He was last seen wearing dark clothing, including pants, a hooded sweatshirt, tennis shoes and the ski mask, police said.

Candidates clash

Schall, Rivers star, spar in Canton debate

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Continuing their fight for the right to replace U.S. Rep. William Ford in Congress, John Schall and Lynn Rivers took their campaigns to the Canton Economic Club luncheon Friday.

The candidates are vying to represent the 13th Congressional District, which includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and the southeast quadrant of Livonia.

Schall, 33, grew up in Livonia, attended the University of Michigan, and received a scholarship to Harvard University. He got involved in Republican politics at age 15 and later worked in the administrations of former presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

Rivers, 37, was elected state representative for Ann Arbor and Pittsfield Township two years ago. Before that she was on the Ann Arbor Board of Education for more than eight years. Married the day after she graduated from high school, Rivers attended the University of Michigan while raising her two daughters. She has a law degree from Wayne State University. Her husband, Joe, is a blue-collar worker for the Ford Motor Co.

The audience of about 100 seemed evenly divided between

Next battle at Washtenaw CC

For those who missed meeting the 13th Congressional District candidates Lynn Rivers and John Schall at the Canton Economic Club debate Friday, there's another event planned: Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Rivers and Schall are expected to appear 7:30 p.m.

that day at Washtenaw Community College in Room JS 101 of the Morris Lawrence Building.

Republicans for Schall and Democrats for Rivers. About 20 of them were from the Close Up program, a government class, at Salem and Canton high schools.

Another group hailed from a Canton Place, a housing complex for senior citizens. One of them, Irene Nickita, thought "they were both well spoken and I liked Schall's viewpoints."

Rosalie York of Canton Township and friend Martha Atkins of Ypsilanti were disappointed with Schall for alleging that Ford chose not to run because Schall challenged him.

"I'd like to know what makes his ego so large that he thinks Bill Ford dropped out because of him," Atkins said.

Ginnie Hauck, director of Canton Place, liked what Schall had to say.

"After going to several forums, I believe he has the working experience in Washington that is very important."

Students Lisa Lapinski and Kathy Jost said they liked Rivers best. "She seemed more personal," Jost said. "He didn't have the emotion she did."

During the program, the candidates were permitted to make opening statements, followed by questions from the audience, then closing statements.

Rivers stressed that "it's time Congress became concerned with the everyday problems of everyday people." She said that, if elected, she will be more of an advocate for her constituents than a cog in the Democrat machine. "I'm not interested in going to Washington to align myself with either side," she said.

"The public policy is to advance the interests of people in my district," said Rivers.

Schall continually stressed his experience as domestic policy adviser to former President George Bush and his tenure as chief of staff in the U.S. Department of Labor "managing an agency of 18,500 people."

While in Washington, he said, "I saw it up close and personal, too many areas where the government intrudes into our lives where it just doesn't belong. Government is too big and it spends too much."

Schall said he favors a balanced budget amendment, a line-item veto for the president and term limits for elected officials.

Rivers swiped at Schall's Harvard training by saying "I did not go to Harvard to learn about government. I want to build relationships here rather than in Washington."

The candidates sparred briefly over who has the most endorsements from police associations. Schall said that area police support him. Rivers said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano and the deputies union support her. Schall said, "Police officers local, state and national have endorsed me."

Voters will decide the race on Tuesday, Nov. 8. The last day to register to vote in the November election is Tuesday, Oct. 11.

UM-Dearborn plans on 2 new buildings

The University of Michigan-Dearborn will break ground for the construction of two buildings 10 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 4.

The buildings, totaling 93,000 square feet in area, will house the School of Management, School of Engineering and the Center for Corporate and Professional Development.

Construction of the $14-million buildings, paid for by state taxpayers, will begin in winter.

The edifices are expected to be finished in August 1996.

UM-D opened its doors in 1959 with 34 students enrolled in engineering and management courses.

The campus has grown since to accommodate more than 8,000 students.

Schoolcraft trustees accept gifts

Schoolcraft College trustees accepted two gifts on behalf of the college at their Sept. 28 meeting.

Norma LaValle of Plymouth donated four stackable sleeping cots and 100 cardboard building bricks for use by Schoolcraft's Child Care Center.

And Thomas Muszynski of Burbank, Ill., gave Schoolcraft a 1981 Kawasaki motorcycle for use in the motorcycle training program.

Feeling Depressed?

Common symptoms of Depression are sadness, loss of interest or pleasure, insomnia, poor appetite and weight loss, feeling tired, worthless or guilty, and difficulty thinking or concentrating. Some people also have suicidal thoughts, which can be a major risk if their Depression is left untreated.

Depression is among the most common psychiatric conditions. Approximately 6% of adults have at least one significant episode of Depression during their lifetimes. Women are affected twice as often as men. In spite of how common Depression is, it is treated adequately only 60% of the time.

Depression can occur in episodes, with normal times in between, or be continuous and persistent. Occasionally people who suffer from Depression have high or manic episodes as well.

There are many psychological theories regarding the cause of Depression. Biological factors, including possible deficiencies of adrenaline-like neurotransmitter chemicals in the brain, are also potential causes. It is known that Depression tends to run in families, and evidence supports hereditary or genetic factors.

Several new antidepressant medications have recently been introduced. The incidence of side effects are lower with these newer medications, but some people still experience side effects such as agitation and sexual dysfunction. Also, antidepressants currently available must be taken over a period of weeks before they begin to work. Research is underway to develop additional antidepressants that will work faster, for more people, and have even fewer side effects.

The Mood Disorder Institute, 26105 Orchard Lake Rd., Ste. 301, Farmington Hills, is one of approximately 12 locations nationwide studying these new antidepressants. For additional information, or to see if you qualify for this FREE out-patient study, you may call 1-800-888-MOOD.

MEAP plays major role in curriculum decisions

QUESTION: As a teacher it seems we go through this same thing at the beginning of every school year. We are reminded that our Michigan Educational Assessment Program scores need to improve. Raising MEAP scores of some of the children we work with today is next to impossible. I think there is too much emphasis on the MEAP. Do you agree?

ANSWER: Whether or not educators think there is too much emphasis on the MEAP test is now an academic question, it's not a relevant issue. The MEAP is now an integral part of a state mandated curriculum. Like it or not successful passage of the MEAP test is now tied into an endorsed high school diploma. The MEAP now drives a school district's instructional program. It plays a, if not the, major role in curriculum decisions. Like it or not.

It is now the report card for school districts, for boards, central office staffs, principals and teachers. The question is no longer how many graduated this year but how many or what percent of the student body received endorsed diplomas. Meaning how many students went through 12 years of education and were able to pass an essential skills test. And if the MEAP scores don't go up, Engler's argument for supporting charter schools, privatization and the like will gain momentum that will shake even the most attent status quo educator including the MEA leadership.

The 10th grade MEAP test assesses skills found in textbooks through the ninth grade. What come back will educators have if, in a district, 25 to 50 percent of those graduating from high school (12th graders) don't master a test that is really a measure of what was supposed to have been learned through the ninth grade.

It's not my purpose to point fingers at teachers or administrators but to point out, in my opinion, too many districts don't have a formal plan or model to see that children pass the MEAP. A plan that maximally involves teachers in the design. You say raising test scores of students is next to impossible. I disagree.

Every district I served in saw significant gains in MEAP test scores. In one district we dissected old MEAP tests, developed similar type questions, did a pre-assessment in early September and gave teachers print outs with children grouped by skills they had not mastered. Skills consistently found on old MEAP tests. The teacher had this information on their desk the next day. Use of the information allowed teachers the opportunity to focus on the specific MEAP skills each child had not mastered.

Math and language arts teachers worked during the summer to develop simulated practice modules. Special summer classes were organized to help low scoring children. We furnished school buses to get them to the school. We convinced our best teachers to work during this summer program.

We developed parent reports and worksheets for parents to help at home. The summer school event was not the typical textbook review... but a clear focus on MEAP type questions. This is not dishonest... old MEAP tests are open to the public... called part of the public domain in education.

Raising MEAP test scores can be accomplished; it should be achieved, but without a plan every teacher is left to their own format (which could be excellent teaching) but not a clear enough focus on what the State of Michigan Department of Education has included on the MEAP test, which includes, for example, the National Council of Teachers of Math higher level thinking and problem solving type questions.

I developed a "Raising Test Scores" model for Tudor Publishing of San Diego. The program was implemented in Alabama last year. In an impoverished, rural school district we raised the standardized test scores in the fourth grade from a 5 percentile to over 55 percentile. Meaning that the Alabama children at 5 percent had 95 percent of the students in the country at their grade level scoring better than they were. After a two-year program, the children were scoring at 55 percent or better than 54 percent of the children in the country at their grade level. It was the lead story on their major TV news stations in Birmingham and started, "Do you believe in miracles

Raising MEAP scores can be accomplished but there has to be a plan, has to be maximum teacher involvement in the planning and a model over and above the typical letter to parents telling them to see their child gets a good night sleep the night before the test and has a good breakfast on test day.

The major problem in many districts, from my experience in consulting on this issue throughout the country is that everyone gets excited in September just before the MEAP test. After the test, it's business as usual.

To raise test scores take a plan implemented throughout the school year, in a program with a clear focus.

Put it this way, if a tennis coach were going into a major match and knew that the opponents are going to constantly hit to their players backhand... there would be plenty of backhand practice.

Conversely, if a district knows which skills their children consistently missed last year on the MEAP shouldn't those skills be the focus for future mastery. Old MEAP test scores can be analyzed by any district... item analysis can be made, simulated work sheets can be developed by committed teachers and drill and practice on skills not mastered infused into the lesson plans... including modules for higher level thinking and problem solving skills.

If children in a rural, poverty stricken small Alabama town can see their test scores raised from 5 percent to over 55 percent... it certainly can be accomplished in the metropolitan suburban area of Detroit.

But... if a district doesn't have a plan... don't blame the teachers... develop a focused yearlong plan (with the teachers) and follow it.

Then a district can work any new theory the next educational guru comes up with. Let's move theory into students successfully achieving the essential skill necessary for success in life. The MEAP is a ninth grade test... surely we get 12th grade graduates pass a ninth grade test.

James "Doc" Doyle is a retired educator. He has taught school in the Plymouth-Canton School District and served as an administrator in Troy Public Schools. He now works as an educational consultant.

O'Hair backs Prop. B

Proposal B on this November ballot will eliminate a needless expense in the operation of the Court of Appeals that most taxpayers who aren't lawyers don't even know they're paying for.

Thirty-five percent of the court's cases are automatic appeals by criminal defendants who have voluntarily pleaded guilty in the trial court.

You heard right. When the trial judge asked, "How do you plead?" They, in so many words, said, "I'm the guy who did it. But since taxpayers will pay for a free appeal, sure, give me a lawyer and let's appeal."

More than 4,000 automatic guilty-plea appeals are filed each year. Only 15-100 of 1 percent get reversed, but they so backlog the Court of Appeals, other cases are subjected to intolerable delay.

Moreover, automatic guilty-plea appeals help fuel the constant drumbeat to enlarge the court by creating permanent new judgeships.

Before 1979, there were 18 appellate judges. In the last 5 1/2 years, the Court has had 24 judges, yet has fallen further behind.

Last year the Legislature authorized four more permanent appellate judgeships; the new judges will take office in January. This was a disappointment to the Supreme Court, which asked for a dozen new appellate judgeships.

The Michigan courts' practice of allowing an automatic appeal of guilty-plea-based convictions is a horrific violation of common sense. It is not how the majority of other states handle this kind of case, yet it has been going on in Michigan for 25 years.

It is time to end this spectacle by passing Proposal B. The appellate rights of defendants who plead not guilty, defend against the charge, but are "found" guilty by a judge or a jury would not be affected by the passage of Proposal B in any way, shape or form. Proposal B affects only those who admit they are guilty. Automatic appeals of guilty pleas are not needed to assure that innocent people are not convicted or that illegal sentences are not imposed.

Very, very rarely do people voluntarily plead guilty when they are not. It is also a rare occurrence that a trial judge imposes a sentence that is not authorized by law or impermissible under sentencing guidelines.

However, if the very rare does occur, Proposal B makes a perfectly fair and constitutional alternative remedy available to the aggrieved defendant.

In every case, the defendant can still file a petition with the Court of Appeals for leave to appeal.

In this petition, defendants can describe why they were mistaken when they confessed guilt, or why their sentences are illegal.

If they are right, the Court of Appeals can grant them relief.

But it is inefficient and foolhardy for 4,000 automatic appeals to be filed because a tiny fraction may need review.

The Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan and a majority of the Court of Appeals judges themselves have supported the Senate Joint Resolution that put Proposal B on the ballot, and you should, too.

Shop this library for special treats

Though most retail establishments entice shoppers with bold signage and visible storefronts, there are a few brave entrepreneurs who open shop in little-known, tucked-away settings. Their success depends not on accessibility or prime real estate, but on their unique offerings and personal service. "Location, location, location" is not the mantra of these folks.

Take, for instance, the Livonia Library Gift Shop, the first of its kind in Michigan. Open five years, this tiny treasure of a shop is just inside the lobby of the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road.

Educational toys and books dominate shelf space, along with handcrafted gifts and jewelry, school supplies and $1 trinkets for the kids. "Most of our customers initially find us when they come to the library," says assistant manager Jan Bennett. "The kids tug their parents in here."

Home educator, Mary Jane Danco of Livonia visits often with her children. "I can check out books for a week at the library, but there are some that I want to own," she says. This year she's buying Thanksgiving books for her unit on the holiday. She also likes the shop's selection of toys that are related to the books. The kids love it because they're allowed one pick from the shelf of inexpensive surprises. They chose from finger puppets, spinning tops, fancy pens and erasers. The colorful clowns pictured were created by the late Japanese artist, Akio Kawamoto, an internationally recognized quilt designer. The soft sculptures are clad in vibrant pinks, greens, yellow and lavenders and come in various shapes and sizes ($20-$60). Though ideal for a baby gift, these collector clowns could beautifully decorate a couch or chair.

More surprises

Also, look for books on Michigan history and American origins, the Cinderella Pop-Up Theater complete with stage and props ($17.95), the Anne of Green Gables Pop-Up Dollhouse ($18), puzzles, nature kits, suncatchers and Peruvian tapestries. Livonia artist Kay Hough's dolls and angels will arrive in time for the holidays.

Kevin Romero was excited to find Chinese exercise balls ($10.75). "They relieve stress and increase dexterity," explained the Livonia student.

Finally, if you need a snack to sustain you through hours of study at the library, grab a candy bar at the gift shop. No gum, though. It's against library rules. Join the Friends of the Livonia Library at their annual book sale Oct. 7-9.

Corner cornucopia

Hotels often have generic gift stores in their lobbies, but Marley's hardly qualifies as ordinary. The boutique, discreetly tucked away in The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, is a riot of silk florabunda, dazzling charm necklaces, brocades, laces and Victorians.

Limited edition Christopher-Radko ornaments dangle from the ceiling, while his garlands, tree-tops and "gift bringers" hide among an array of collectibles ($15-$300). "Radko is my number one star," says owner Shirley Marley. "He's magic." A display case encloses tiny Limoges boxes ($100-$300) and fancy Victorian boot pin cushions. Savvy hotel guests bring shopping lists for Shirley to fill. She is often asked to ship Lynn West's charming music box dolls, Moms' whimsical wooden figures from the Wizard of Oz ($200), Sheila Davlin's elegant evening bags, chairs and footstools made from Old World fabrics and trims ($22-$1,700) and arty sweaters by Cynthia Berg. Sharon Smith's vintage linen houses are a store staple ($395) as are beaded purses and jewelry by Bradley.

It's romantic and totally alluring, a tumble of colors, textures and patterns, and it's a discovery that you can make your very own.

Next week, more hidden treasures.

Newlywed Linda Fraser had her knickers in a knot over the lack of closet space in her new husband's West Bloomfield home.

"He agreed to let me call California Closet to expand and organize the room for my clothing," she began her story with a sigh. "But after spending $2,500 for the new closet, I still was not satisfied. I was frustrated. My eyes caught sight of dozens of sweaters that did not look neat. They were off kilter."

"It wasn't the closet's fault," she said. "It had lots of shelves and poles for hangers. It was the way the folded clothes looked. They were folded in bundles of different sizes that when placed on top of each other, were not as neat as I hoped."

Tiffany windows are designer's fantasies

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

The incomparable artist Gene Moore set the standard for window displays in his almost 40-year career with Tiffany's in New York.

At the Tiffany's in Troy's Somerset Collection, Annie Green of Birmingham emulates that same spirit.

"I met Mr. Moore, who is in his 80s, and immediately knew that if we were born at the same time in history, we would be best friends, or forever arguing," Green, 30-something, said with a wide grin. "He's the best, and I like to deal in excellence. If I were to name my inspiration it would be Moore. I admire his design work."

Somerset Collection shoppers, as well as Tiffany's staffers, admire Green and her whimsical, brain teasing window displays that have used eggs, garden tools, gingerbread houses, even shelled peanuts, to represent the Tiffany experience.

Her boss, store manager Patrick Kelley, calls her concoctions "works of art in their own-right," and Green herself, "a valuable asset to Tiffany's for all her abilities."

"Two things stick in a customer's mind about Tiffany's," he explained. "Our blue box and our window displays. Did you ever hear of shoppers coming into the store just to compliment you on your window displays? Our customer's can't hold back their appreciation. We love it. It's great. It's all thanks to Annie's imagination."

If indeed her window displays are works of art, they're "disposable works of art at best," according to Green. "They are just meant to be moments in time. To be enjoyed by someone dashing by late for work, or someone who lingers appreciating the composition, lighting and the message."

In addition to designing 12-13 different window displays each year for some seven separate showcases, Green personally makes most of the backdrops and props. She shops everywhere for unique and interesting items to use in her displays, even collecting treasures along the beach on weekends up north.

Another facet of Green's work for Tiffany's is the "tableau" on the second floor that changes every six to eight weeks. The tableau is actually a mini stage set that tells a story and shows off Tiffany's products. Green works with the store's staff to coordinate seasonal table settings and arrange merchandise displays in the vitrines and wall cases.

She credits her parent's for her artistic eye which she says she inherited from her father, a writer, and her mother, a creative, "people person."

"I went to art school, studied psychology at Wayne State University, but most of my knowledge and ability is just me, the way I look at things... the sum of my experiences," she explained. "I'm a freelance display person. I worked for Wright Kay and Charles Warren. I guess when Tiffany's opened, former associates put in a few good words for me. I got this wonderful job that I can see myself doing for a very long time."

Aside from the creative release that display designing offers Green, she enjoys Tiffany's support of the Michigan Opera Theater, the Michigan Humano Society, the Cranbrook Education Community and the Troy Schools, to name just a few. It's Green's energy and imagination that is tapped when the company is asked to create a table setting or window display to raise funds for a community project.

"I designed the T-shirt for this year's Humano Society fundraiser, Bark in The Dark, Friday night, Oct. 7, at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham," she said. "One of the things I liked best last year was working with Hamilton Elementary School in Troy to incorporate students' portraits of their mothers in a Mother's Day display for Tiffany's."

For the Michigan Opera Theater, Green came up with the tableau currently on display on Tiffany's second floor. Shoppers can get an up-close view of costumes worn by some of the opera greats who came to town recently.

The sophistication of Green's window art is evidenced in the Salute to Elsa Peretti which runs through mid-October. Green in a rare assignment by Tiffany's, was asked to capture the essence of designer Peretti on her 20th anniversary of designing for Tiffany's. Peretti's designs will be showcased by Tiffany's artists in their October windows throughout the country.

Does Green ever worry that she'll run out of ideas and themes for her window displays?

"Oh my gosh, no way," Green laughed. "There are millions of things I still want to do... so many things I enjoy. Ideas come from everywhere. I still have lots of surprises up my sleeve."

plained. "I opened up a turtleneck to find a piece of tissue paper inside that the manufacturer was obviously using as a guide so each shirt could be folded along the same dimensions. I dashed home to pull a cutting board out from under my sink to use as my own guide for folding." Fraser said it worked so well she decided to create a sturdy, portable folding guide and market it. Surely others who travel or run businesses would buy it.

Her patent is pending. She's sold several through the mail after a story appeared in the Palm Beach Post about Pro Fold. And California Closets is test-marketing it in three states.

Fraser may not get rich with her "invention" but she's sure to win the appreciation of travelers and shop keepers looking for a way to keep things straight.

To order a Pro Fold Guide, send a check or money order for $7.50 (Pro Fold is $5, plus $2.50 shipping and handling) to Initially Yours, P.O. Box 240377, West Bloomfield, 48324.

next door at Gerald's," said Julie Packey of Bloomfield Hills. "There is something for everyone here. It's warmly decorated. As a mom, I found teacher's gifts, personalized items, and holiday decorations that I couldn't find anywhere else. When I changed salons, I was no where near the Village Barn and I noticed my hair days weren't as much fun anymore."

Christine Murphy of Birmingham said she buys the cotton throws — one for each holiday through the year. Jennifer Polk of Birmingham comes in to study the themed Christmas trees on the second floor.

Sandy Barr runs the shop alone now, but her staff knows the merchandise just as well, and are ever-ready to offer suggestions and take special orders.

Several local artists got their commercial start at The Village Barn — Nan Mautz, Mickey Martlock, Cynthia Holt Cummings and Michelle Marshall, creator of Mucky Duck Mustard.

Cummings' inspirational books on Christmas ($8) are best-sellers at The Village Barn, each one comes autographed by the local writer who spends the day after Thanksgiving at the Barn, meeting collectors and penning inscriptions.

"Most of the Village Barn's merchandise I buy at the gift market in Atlanta each year," Barr explained. "But we especially enjoy highlighting local talent and many items are made by area crafters."

Each year thousands of Michigan quilters arrive for the Village Barn Quilt Show which doubles as a blanket-raiser for the Salvation Army. At this time of year, cider mill visitors crowd the shop aisles finishing off their day with a few early holiday purchases.

The Village Barn expanded its second-floor of Christmas items this summer when the office next door closed. Pillows, hand-painted Christmas chess sets, personalized ornaments, garland, mini trees, toys by Silvestri and Midwest Common Folks are just some of the top floor treasures.

Downstairs, paper goods, greeting cards, seasonal gift items and art line the walls. Shoppers comment on each other's selections and swap party suggestions.

The Village Barn is located on Franklin Road north of 14 Mile Road. For more information call (810) 851-7877.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Easy preserves capture fresh flavors of summer

Photographs can evoke images of summers gone by, but cooks have their own ways of capturing seasonal delights.

Succulent blueberries, the sensuous charm of warm field-ripened tomatoes and waxy scents of basil are gastronomic memories we can resuscitate, even in the dredges of winter.

A pantry lined with rows of jars and bottles capturing summer's kaleidoscopic bounty may be the cook's only brush with mortality since most of their products (even masterpieces) are consumed within minutes of creation. One of the most gratifying aspects of cookery—preserving allows you to have something to crow about for months instead of minutes.

Even if you don't garden, farmer's markets are bursting with the flavors of a glorious Michigan summer. But who wants to spend a beautiful fall day slaving over a canning pot and contemplating the perfect seal on a jar of tomatoes?

Saving basil

Drying is the most common way of preserving herbs, and this method has certainly withstood the test of time. However, the bunches of basil I fastidiously hung in front of the basement window to dry has simply evaporated the flavor of what still grows gangbusters in my garden. I found an old Farmer's Almanac that suggested an alternative to drying bunches of basil. They said to rinse it, parboil for 5 seconds, plunge into cold water and grind it into a pulp with 1 cup of olive oil and a heaping teaspoon of coarse salt. The bright green color of basil remains appetizing, and the herb, when packed into small jars and tightly sealed, has found a place in the fruit cellar.

With still an abundant crop of basil growing heartily in the garden, I plan to make herb wine next week by simply packing any freshly picked herb into a scrupulously clean jar and topping it off with a pleasant, inexpensive dry red or white wine that has been heated to almost boiling. The bottles will be stored in a dark cupboard and will be used in the dead of winter to highlight a spaghetti sauce.

The most difficult aspect of preparing this is making sure the bottles and/or jars with their lids were first simmered to near death in a large soup kettle of water. For safety's sake, they were lifted from the sanitary bath with tongs and placed on a clean towel to drain. The jars were filled while still hot to the touch, sealed and allowed to cool before they were placed in the pantry or refrigerator.

Last winter I picked up a box of elegant old bottles and hid them away in the basement for next week's culinary job. I plan to stir up a quick simple syrup with sugar and water to pour over freshly picked fruit from the market (I hope to find blueberries and raspberries). Then I'll top off the fruity mixture with a quart of domestic cheap vodka that will in turn, remake itself into a concentrated version of framboise or blueberry eau-de-vie for sipping in front of the fireplace on a snowy winter's day. If nothing else, I'll be sure to have an ample supply of homemade host and hostess gifts for holiday gift giving.

Saving tomatoes

Having experimented with the preparation of drying tomatoes in a food dehydrator (with outstanding results, I might add) but not relishing the 14 hours it took to accomplish, I will finish harvesting my tomatoes soon and convert them into an elegant tomato coulis or sauce that will end up being ladled into freezer bags for a long winter storage.

Any kind of tomato sauce, puree or pulp can be easily frozen in freezer bags and, when left to freeze in 10-inch cake pans, will stack conveniently in the rear of the freezer. Lovers of apples can make up a batch of sauce and conveniently store it this way also. The old almanac even suggested that anyone could freeze their finely chopped herbs in water in ice cube trays for later winter use.

Any leftover berries that don't make their way into cordials or preserves will be frozen on a parchment-lined baking sheet and then be packed away in freezer bags for a short sleep, only to find their way into fresh muffins (without defrosting, I might add) in January or February.

CARVE OUT SOMETIME
for

pumpkins

TAMMIE GRAY/STOCK ARTIST

Get ready for Halloween, plan to attend the Pumpkinfest Oct. 7-9 in South Lyon.

By JOAN BORAM
SPECIAL WRITER

We may not grow "trick-or-treating," but we're never too old to enjoy carving a "punkin" to guide the way for little beggars with big-pillow cases.

In South Lyon, they're serious about enjoying pumpkins. The 10th annual South Lyon Area Pumpkinfest will take place Oct. 7-9.

Last year, 25,000 people flocked to South Lyon to watch or participate in a pumpkin pie-eating contest, a scarecrow contest and free cider, doughnuts and pumpkin-painting contest for kids under 12.

The festivities begin 9 a.m. Friday, Oct. 7, when the Farmer's Market opens downtown. It ends 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9, with the Jaycees diaper derby (for crawlers only). The highlight of the weekend is the parade, which starts 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 8.

For information and a complete listing of events, call the Pumpkinfest Hotline at (810) 437-5046.

Carving a grotesque smile with crooked teeth and squinty eyes, or an old-fashioned grin with pyramid eyes and nose, transforms us into instant eight year olds.

If you recognize yourself, be glad you live in Michigan, where, in 1992, 2,500 acres of vines produced 40 million pounds of the golden globes. That's a lot of jack-o'-lanterns!

But 1994 was a dicey year for Michigan pumpkin growers. Plymouth grower Okie Hamblin and his son, John, of Fenton, planted over 50 acres of pumpkins.

"Our crop is down by 20 percent this year because we lost so many bees in the late frost in April," said Hamblin. "Pumpkins need bees or other insects to pollinate them, and the bees just weren't there."

"Next year, though, I'll plant more acreage in pumpkins, and I'll be back in the u-pick business," he said.

The good news, Hamblin adds, is that the size of pumpkins is good, because of favorable growing conditions this summer. "If an uncut pumpkin is kept in the shade where it's cool, it will take care of itself for three or four weeks. Look at the shape when buying a pumpkin, and be sure the stem is green or black. A pumpkin will last about 10 days after it's cut, if it's kept cool," he said.

At Driver's Herry Farm, in South Lyon, they imported bees and bought more from a retiring beekeeper.

"We harvested about 700 pounds of honey this year, which we sell at our stand, along with the pumpkins," says co-owner Joanne Williams.

As an experiment, Williams grew an acre of "Lumina" pumpkins, which are white with a traditional gold interior.

"The seed is outrageously expensive," she said. "That's why we started with just an acre. The Luminas weigh about 15 pounds, and the white and gold should make a really striking jack-o'-lantern. We also grow a few huge, 100-pound pumpkins. And the tiny, orange jack-be-littles' and white 'baby boos'."

Tasty wines from southern France are affordable

By ELEANOR AND RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

Languedoc-Roussillon—a southern France region spanning a vast area along the Mediterranean from the Rhone River to the Spanish border is awash in sun and vineyards. A few years ago the region was rejected in a serious French wine discussion. This is no longer true. If you're looking to expand your wine-tasting experience, there are new grape varieties to learn for new taste sensations at very affordable prices.

In Corbières, grapegrowing dates to Roman times, but the area has emerged as a serious competitor in the production of high quality wines. Cotes du Roussillon, promising for soft, round red wines reminiscent of Chateaufort du Pape. From Cotes du Roussillon, set in the Pyrenees foothills and bordering the Mediterranean, there are pours with refinement and elegance.

A broad spectrum of wines carry the Minervois appellation, from early drinking examples to

Wine Selections of the Week

The people spoke at "The Great Wine Shootout" sponsored by Dennis Walsh, proprietor of Ye Olde Wine Shoppe in Rochester Hills. The two most popular red wines were the 1991 Pine Ridge Cabernet Sauvignon, Slags Leap District ($28) and 1991 Willamette Valley Vineyard Pinot Noir "OVB" ($23). The most popular whites were 1991 Ferrari Carano Chardonnay Reserve ($33) and 1993 Jade Mountain Marsanne-Viognier ($14). The 1989 Ruederer Estate Brut d'Ermitage ($40) was the most popular sparkling wine. The people's choices were excellent. New releases from Pine Ridge, Ferrari Carano and Jade Mountain have been selected by us as wine selections of the week on several occasions. Willamette Valley Vineyard is a new and welcomed entry into our market. In addition, we liked the 1992 Jade Mountain Merlot ($20), 1991 Ridge Merlot "York Creek" ($22), 1991 Renwood Syrah ($19) and 1992 Havens Merlot ($17).

Right sauce can save healthy meal

A good sauce can turn an ordinary meal into a tasty treat. But many sauces add extra fat, turning wholesome food into a nutritional disaster. Fortunately, by adjusting a few ingredients, you can prepare delicious low-fat sauces that can be part of a healthy diet.

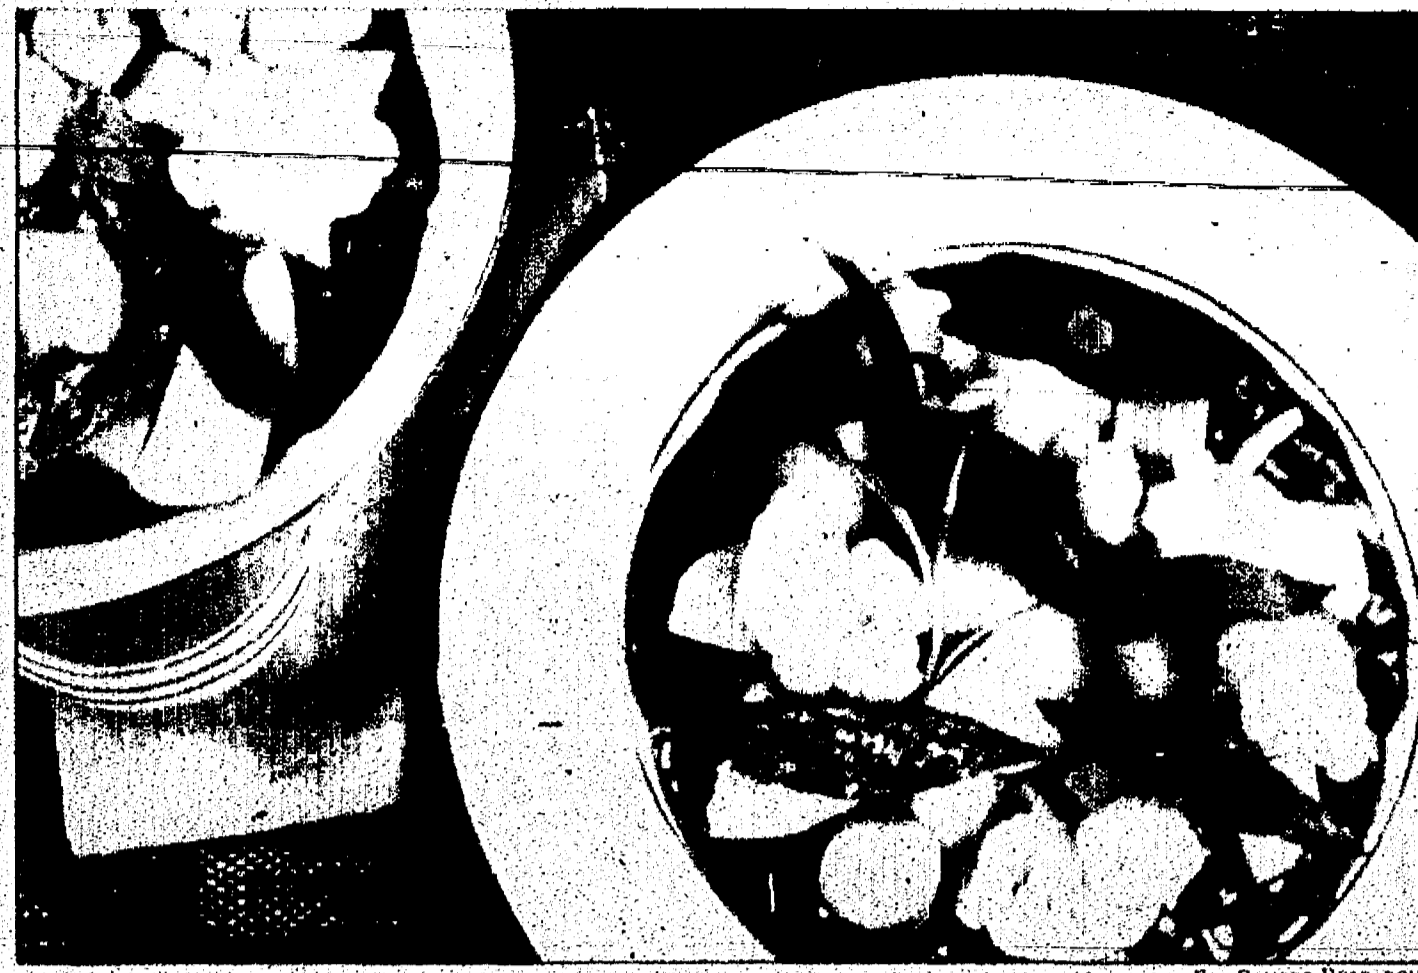

Oil and vinegar mixtures, or vinaigrettes, taste great on meat as well as on a salad. Use them for entrees such as a lean steak, roast chicken or grilled fish. Keep the oil down in your recipe by substituting chicken stock or some defatted juice from a roast for the oil.

For fish, try an Oriental vinaigrette that combines 2 cloves minced garlic, 1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger, 2 minced scallions, ¼ cup chicken stock, 2 tablespoons rice vinegar and 1 tablespoon soy sauce, well blended.

Low-fat versions of cream sauces use low-fat milk, non-fat yogurt and evaporated skim milk to replace sour cream and cream. Horseradish sauce great with beef or seafood — is made by stirring 1 tablespoon white horseradish, 1 minced garlic clove, 1 tablespoon minced fresh chives, 1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard and 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice into 2 cups of low-fat yogurt.

For low-fat, homemade barbecue sauce, combine in a saucepan 1 cup tomato juice, ¼ cup water, ¼ cup vinegar, ¼ cup ketchup, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon chili powder and ¼ teaspoon cayenne; stir, bring to a boil and simmer for 15 minutes or until the sauce thickens slightly.

Beef and Vegetables in Mus-

Hearty dish: Low in fat, yet heartily flavored, Beef and Vegetables in Mustard Sauce will warm you up on chilly fall days.

Mustard Sauce is low in fat yet heartily flavored with a creamy sauce, and provides many essential vitamins.

BEEF AND VEGETABLES IN MUSTARD SAUCE

- 4 medium potatoes, peeled, washed and cut into large chunks
- 1 medium or large onion, quartered
- 1 teaspoon tarragon
- 1 large carrot, thickly sliced
- 3 cups low-fat beef broth or low-sodium beef bouillon

- ¼ pound very lean beef (top round or flank)
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen cauliflower
- 5 ounces evaporated skim milk
- 1½ tablespoons coarse-grained mustard

Place potatoes, onion, tarragon, carrot and broth in a large pot. Simmer gently for 25 minutes. Meanwhile, trim all exterior fat off meat and cut across the grain into thick slices. When the vegetables are nearly cooked, add the beef and frozen cauliflower to the pot and continue simmering for five minutes (for well-done beef, simmer for seven minutes).

Stir in the evaporated milk and the mustard, and heat for two more minutes. Serve.

Each of the four servings contains 4 grams of fat and 294 calories.

TOWARD LONGER, HEALTHIER LIVES

A privately funded research group known as the Alliance for Aging Research has publicly stated their position that Americans could live longer, healthier lives if they took daily supplements of vitamins C, E, and beta carotene. These vitamins, known as antioxidants, counter the damage caused by the naturally occurring oxygen molecules known as free radicals. Although antioxidants are available in the food we eat, we would have to eat copious amounts of fruits and vegetables to get the necessary amounts to prevent heart disease, cancer and other problems. For instance, a person would have to eat up to 15 oranges or 25 green peppers to get the 250 to 1,000 mg. of vitamin C recommended by the Alliance for Aging Research. A vitamin supplement is a far more efficient source.

We offer vitamin supplements without artificial additives, stabilizers or colors. Ask for assistance in pursuing our enormous selection of dietary supplements. The GOOD FOOD CO. is Michigan's largest natural food supermarket. Our huge stock of organic foods is without comparison. We believe that you are what you eat, so we offer only the freshest and most healthy foods. Call us with your questions at 991-8100 or just come on by. We are located at 42615 Ford Road. We are open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 to 9:00 and Sundays from 10:00 to 6:00. Come by and give us a try!

P.S. The Alliance for Aging Research recommends that healthy adults should also get 100-400 International Units of Vitamin E daily, and 17,000-50,000 I.U. of beta carotene.

Run for Youth

By J. J. J. STATE PHOTOGRAPHER

Blue vs. green: Wayne County Sheriff Bob "The Spartan" Ficano and Livonia city councilman Dale "The Wolverine" Jurcisin are ready to compete in the 17th annual Run for Youth beginning 8 a.m. Saturday at the Livonia Family YMCA. Supporters of Livonia city athletics will compete against supporters of Michigan State University athletics. Entry fee is $13 in advance or $15 on race day. Winners may participate in an eight-kilometer race or a one-mile race. A prize will be given to the best-dressed fan.

S'craft honors retiring teachers

Schoolcraft College trustees passed resolutions at their Sept. 28 meeting honoring two retiring teachers.

The teachers are Raymond Anderson and Samuel Hallman.

Anderson, a professor of metallurgy and materials science, joined Schoolcraft in 1968. His retirement will become effective Jan. 1.

Hallman, a professor of psychology, joined Schoolcraft in 1971. His retirement will become effective Dec. 1.

Anderson got his bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Michigan Technological University and his master's degree in vocational education from Eastern Michigan University.

Hallman got a bachelor's degree in English from Wofford College, a bachelor's degree in music from the University of Tennessee, and a master's degree from the University of South Carolina.

SC board OKs computer purchase

Schoolcraft College trustees approved the purchase of new computers and software to handle the college's records at their Sept. 28 meeting.

The three Hewlett-Packard computer systems cost approximately $250,000.

Datatel Inc. will provide the installation, upgrade and one-year maintenance of administrative software for approximately $165,000.

Dynix Inc. will provide the installation, upgrade and one-year maintenance of Dynix Library software for approximately $34,000.

The new system will take about six months to install, said vice president of instruction Conway Jeffress, and will replace the college's mainframe computer, manufactured by Prime Computer.

Prime Computer, Jeffress said, went out of business in 1992, making it difficult to get parts and service for the college's equipment.

Trustees also approved the purchase of a computer-assisted microscope system from Birlleigh Instruments Inc. for $13,590.

The microscope system is capable of measuring atomic and molecular structure down to 2.5 angstroms, according to Schoolcraft documents.

Students in chemistry, biology, geology, physics and material sciences classes are expected to benefit.

Buying a Used Car Can Be Risky.

Blackwell Ford can help minimize the risk you take when purchasing a used vehicle. Every used vehicle sold by Blackwell Ford undergoes extensive reconditioning and safety inspection before it is offered for sale. If the vehicle does not meet our high standards, it will never be displayed on our lot. In the unlikely event that something does go wrong with your vehicle during the first 30 days or 2,000 miles, whichever occurs first, we will stand behind it 100% and repair it free of charge. It's that simple. We offer new car price of mind with your used vehicle purchase. Stop in today to see our large selection of quality used vehicles, all priced to sell. And please remember...
