Parents oppose school closings

Wayne-Westland school parents are upset that four elementary schools are recommended for closing by a steering committee. The board of education may act on the recommendation as early as next month.

BY DARRELL CLEM
 STAFF WRITER

Four Wayne-Westland elementary schools would be closed next year under a proposal being considered by the school board — a move that would save the deficit-ridden district an estimated $1 million a year.

Fischer, Monroe, Stottlemeyer and

Titus elementaries would be shut down after the current school year if the board adopts a controversial plan recommended by a steering committee, officials confirmed Monday.

The closing of four of the district's 21 elementaries would coincide with a redistricting proposal to change school attendance boundaries. The measure also would accompany a middle school plan that would shift ninth-graders to the high schools and sixth-graders to the current junior highs.

Superintendent Larry Thomas confirmed the school-closing proposal Tuesday night during an emotionally charged board meeting attended by some 225 people at John Glenn High School. He identified the four schools after news of the potential closings leaked into the community, prompting furious parents to circulate petitions urging a show of force at the Tuesday session.

School officials are planning a series of yet-to-be-announced community meetings to explain the proposal. The board could vote on the issue as early as next month, though some members indicated they may need more time.

Inkster-resident Rebecca Sweeting, who said six of her seven children have attended Fischer, implored the board not to close her neighborhood school. Fischer is located at 466 N. John Daly in Dearborn Heights, but it is part of the Wayne-Westland district.

Patchin celebrates history, education

Patchin ceremony: Taking part in the state historical marker unveiling Sunday afternoon were Gladys (Hix) Kehrer (above), who started attending the school in 1909. After the ceremony held for the marker's unveiling, current Patchin student Kelly Craig (rear) looks at it with awe as she touches the lettering. With her is Heather Skidmore, a second grader. The ceremony marked the Patchin neighborhood's 160-year commitment to education. For more on the event, turn to the story and other photos on Page 3A.

Video company threatened with boycott

BY DARRELL CLEM
 STAFF WRITER

Westland residents are threatening to boycott a local manufacturer of movie industry videocassettes because some company employees, including former convicts, are roaming neighborhoods and harassing citizens.

Some 125 angry residents packed City Hall Monday night to protest the hiring practices of Technicolor Video Services, a company northeast of Palmer Road and Newburgh that has come under fire for bringing in temporary workers from Detroit.

"We will boycott every company that does business with Technicolor," Angela Martin warned company officials, who met for three hours with residents.

The 1,100-employee company hired an additional 1,000 temporary workers to boost the pre-Christmas production of movie videos, said Paul Scott, vice president of operations. Bil' residents say the workers are accosting schoolchildren, urinating in public and terrorizing their normally quiet neighborhood.

'Haunted Theatre'

The Palace Theatre Company is holding its annual "Haunted Theatre" Halloween fund-raising project now through Oct. 31. Proceeds will be used for the restoration of the historic Wayne Theatre, on westbound Michigan Avenue, west of Wayne Road, site of the Halloween activities. The ghouls and goblins will be stalking the theater 7-11 p.m. every day through Halloween. "This isn't just another haunted house, but your nightmares come true," said a group spokesman. Admission is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and younger.

Y open house

The Wayne-Westland Family YMCA will hold its annual open house Saturday, Oct. 22, offering numerous prizes, children's rides and free gifts. It will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the membership drive to start Friday and continue through Oct. 25. There will be a drawing for gift certificates of $1,000, $750, and $250 to MC Sporting Goods as well as athletic equipment. At the open house, free 20-ounce water bottles will be given to the first 100 families to visit the event. The "friendly monster" haunted house for young children will be open from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. that day.

Line dancing

The Westland Friendship Center will offer line dancing lessons for people 50 and older for all ability levels. The lessons will be at 10:45 a.m.

Tuesdays for beginners, the same time on Thursdays for intermediate students, and the same time on Fridays for the advanced. Fee is $2 per class. Classes are held at the center on Newburgh just north of Marquette.

Candidates' headquarters

Westland district court Judges Gail McKnight and C. Charles Bokos, campaigning for the Nov. 8 election, have opened a joint campaign headquarters at 34873 Ford. The headquarters will be staffed 1-8 p.m. until the election. Campaign literature and refreshments will be available at the location. McKnight, seeking a new six-year term, is opposed by Terry Spence. Bokos is opposed by Councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli for the remaining two years of a term. The headquarters' phone numbers are 467-9048 and 467-8194.

One 14-year-old Stevenson Junior High student broke into tears as she pleaded with company officials to make her neighborhood safe again.

"I walk down Palmer Road and they harass me. I get so scared they're going to tape me or something," she said. "They urinate right in front of us kids. Why can't you stop this?"

Scott admitted that some of the workers hired through temporary employee agencies wear tethers, but he didn't know the number of former convicts hired by the company.

Many employees arrive in large numbers on SMART buses, and they roam the neighborhood before and after work and during their lunch breaks. Many walk to and from a local party store.

"We are sorry that you're living through these issues," Scott told the crowd. But he and three other company officials, who came from as far away as California, appeared hopeful that the problems will subside because of steps taken to address residents' fears.

A fence has been erected along Palmer. The company hopes this will encourage workers leaving the premises to walk along Newburgh's industrial corridor rather than along the more residential Palmer. A gate on Palmer also has been closed.

Security cameras have been installed outside the plant to scan the area.

More security guards have been hired, with nine to 11 working during each of three shifts.

SMART buses now drive the workers into the company parking lot, rather than dropping them off elsewhere.

A food vendor visits Technicolor during lunch breaks to encourage workers to stay on the prein-fectious. Televisions also have been placed in the plant.

Plant manager Richard Garrity has had workers clean up the area around the plant.

Police have placed extra patrol officers in the neighborhood.

Resident Jodye Lober said knives, syringes, glass bottles and other dangerous items have been left behind by workers who trespass on private property.

"Every night someone's in our yard, and I'm fed up with it," she said.

Resident Catherine Keyser yelled at company officials to "change your hiring practices or get out of Westland," and she posed a question: "Would you want these people at your home, in your back yard?"

Scott said the company, by law, can receive only limited information from temporary employment services about the workers hired to fill jobs.

Resident Shelly Gunther showed some compassion for the workers but not at the expense of children.

"Admittedly these people deserve a second chance," she said. "But our kids deserve a first chance."

She urged company officials to ensure that employee lunch breaks not coincide with the times that local school children are walking in the area.

Residents voiced fears about weapons and drugs being brought into their neighborhood, and John Wright was among those concerned about molesters. He said a man driving a van tried to convince his 13-year-old granddaughter to get inside.

"That cannot and will not be tolerated by anybody," he said.

One resident said the company should implement a paid lunch break so that workers could be forced to stay on the premises. But Scott said Technicolor hasn't given consideration to such a plan.

He urged residents to report any employee problems to the company and to provide descriptions if possible.

City attorney Angelo Plakas noted, "We will prosecute these people . . . and ask the court to deal with these people effectively and strongly."

Scott said the pre-Christmas rush is nearing its peak and that business will slow down in coming weeks.

Council joins residents in protest

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland City Council members voted Monday to use their political muscle against Technicolor Video Services unless problems caused by company workers subside.

Councilmen David Cox and Glenn Anderson even threatened to do everything within their legislative power to make it more expensive for the company to operate in Westland.

City officials have joined angry residents in opposing the hiring practices of Technicolor, a mass producer of movie industry videos, cassettes. Some 4,000 temporary workers, including convicted felons, have been hired through temporary job services, company officials have conceded.

The company, on the northeast corner of Palmer Road and Newburgh, has come under attack amid allegations that workers are intimidating residents and even approaching their children.

Technicolor officials tried to emphasize the economic benefits of their company, saying that 13 percent of all workers are Westland residents. Employees earn $5.75 to $14 an hour, said Technicolor vice president Paul Scott, and the company is a big taxpayer.

But city officials didn't want to hear it. The economic benefits are "not worth it" when the workforce is causing so many problems, Cox said.

Anderson asked company officials for a commitment that hiring practices will be changed, but no promises were made.

The company has been in Westland for five years, but residents said employee problems only surfaced during the last couple of months. Many residents are angry that busloads of workers are arriving in their neighborhood to fill temporary jobs.

Councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli reminded company officials of a previous pledge to hire local residents.

"I'd like to see you make good on that promise," she said, adding that the company could use a temporary job service located in Westland.

Cicirelli also raised concerns about spending city tax dollars to beef up police security around Technicolor. City officials said the company should hire its own patrols or reimburse the city for the expense.

Cox told company officials that local taxpayers shouldn't have to foot the bill "for your profit-making."

Scott said he "will look at" the issue, though he made no commitment of reimbursing the money.

At one point, he conceded that company officials didn't move swiftly enough to address residents' concerns.

"I'm not going to say we reacted as quickly as we could have," he said. "We probably didn't."

Company officials are hoping the issue will subside because of recent measures to combat the problem, such as having a lunch vendor visit the plant on lunch breaks, informing workers about residents' concerns, and putting up a fence along the Palmer Road side of the property.

Closings from page 1A

These children are learning they love their education. They love their teachers," she said. "They walk to school safely and they walk home safely."

She warned the board that school closings will prompt families to move out of the district.

"You'll all be out of business. We can close all of the schools," she said. "This is not reasonable. This is causing psychological damage to our children."

Parent Kathleen Steiner told the board that her family made a 20-year commitment by buying a house last year in the Stottlemeyer attendance area. She said the house was chosen so that her children could walk to school.

Some parents lashed out at the redistricting plan because it would change the school that their students will attend. Joe Dillon, a 24-year Westland resident, said he wants his two Stevenson Junior High students to attend John Glenn High School, not Wayne Memorial High.

"That's where they will go or we will move," he said.

School officials and some parents later defended Wayne Memorial, saying it is sometimes unjustly criticized.

Parent Debbie Bennett, who lives in the Fisher attendance concern that she learned of possible school closings from a parent-distributed letter, rather than from district leaders.

"No matter what we say, no matter what we feel, the decisions are already made," she said.

Tensions escalated during the meeting, and two Westland police officers entered the meeting room at one point to show their presence in the building.

Board president Matthew McCusker said he fears the redistricting proposal will overshadow the board's efforts to hire a new superintendent. Thomas plans to leave when his contract expires June 30, though his departure could come sooner if he gets another job.

Most board members indicated support for redistricting.

"I don't want to see any building close, but the reality is that it has to be done," board member Francis "Bud" Winter said, adding later, "We can no longer keep buildings open that are half-filled."

Board member Laurel Rautanen held out hope that the board will have the courage to act on the redistricting proposals.

"Somebody's got to make the tough decisions," she said, "and I believe the board of education was elected to do that."

WE NEED JOBS IN OUR STATE

There's one way to create and keep jobs -- and that's to attract new and expanding businesses. Right now, Michigan tax structure sends small and medium business scurrying out of the area and has been blamed for the demise of many a small employer.

While we live in the shadow of the Big Three auto makers, many of us do not realize that more than 85 percent of the jobs in our state are provided by small businesses. These are the people who provide new jobs and who are being taxed out of existence or into bankruptcy by the Single Business Tax which even taxes them on their losses. This has to stop.

- Here's what we have to do:
- 1. ELIMINATE THE SINGLE BUSINESS TAX
Let's readjust the tax structure for small business and stop this ludicrous taxing of gross receipts which has doomed so many potential employers in this state. How can we tax receipts when these owners may be losing money? This is a singularly ludicrous and unfair situation which has cost us too many jobs and too much tax revenue to allow to continue.
  - 2. OFFER TAX INCENTIVES FOR JOB TRAINING
Presently, our Michigan Employment Security Commission spends millions of tax dollars each year on re-training programs -- but nobody knows about them. Let's offer incentives to small businesses for training employees. We could cut the employer expense and recoup the funding through the added benefit of keeping more people employed than on the unemployment line.
  - 3. AID OUR STATE RECREATION COMMISSION
Not many of our state citizens realize that our second-largest industry is recreation and tourism. We need to promote our state and keep this funding alive. We need to improve our parks and waterways and provide attractions which keep visitors from other states arriving and spending, providing jobs.
  - 4. WE MUST OFFER TAX INCENTIVES
Other states continue to lure away new and expanding businesses with tax abatement and job training incentives. We need to become competitive with our tax structure and look at the long-range gain over the short-term cut in tax revenue. We need to offer tax abatements when necessary and help businesses expand and relocate here understanding that the jobs they bring with them are far more valuable than any temporary or short-term tax reduction.

I have a long record as a fiscal conservative and as a tax cutter. I believe in prioritizing all spending to maximize the benefit to the people who pay the bills -- the taxpayer. I've spent 28 years in public service and know how to best manage tax revenue.

It's time to reorganize and reorient our state spending to meet the needs of our community. I have a proven track record as a public servant. I can assure you that

Patchin dedication

School marks commitment to education, history

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

A Westland neighborhood showed a 160-year commitment to education and history Sunday afternoon when they helped dedicate a special state marker in front of Patchin Elementary School.

State, city and Wayne-Westland school district officials joined with parents, current students and those who attended the school as early as 1909 to formally unveil the Michigan Historical Commission's green and yellow marker detailing the history of the school.

Before and after the 30-minute ceremony, Patchin students, helped by PTA members, were dressed in 19th-century outfits to take part in various activities in the school reflecting a specific era of history.

For example, cookies made from a 160-year-old recipe were served by fourth graders.

But the center of the program Sunday was the property on the east side of Newburgh, just south of Warren Road, where the school "was the center of life here" for 160 years, said Patchin principal Donald Massey.

Two former students singled out were Gladys (Hix) Kehrer, 91, and Leona Koveleski, 83, who attended Patchin (then spelled Patchen) in 1909.

After the ceremony, Mrs. Kehrer recalled that the school had about 25 students and she could remember a youngster, "little Johnny," who pulled a wagon with her to school.

Massey told of the history of Abel Patchin who settled in then-Nankin Township in 1829 and, five years later, established the area's first public school across the street from the present school.

"Wouldn't Abel Patchin be proud," Massey said, noting that "education is still an important tradition here."

Massey said that since the first school was housed in a log cabin 160 years ago, thousands of students have attended classes here and thousands of involved parents have taken part.

■ Before and after the 30-minute ceremony, Patchin students, helped by PTA members, were dressed in 19th-century outfits to take part in various activities in the school reflecting a specific era of history.

School Superintendent Larry Thomas added that "education was important then and now."

A committee which researched the history of the school noted the dispute over the spelling of Patchin/Patchen, first disclosed by a former Patchin student while working on his Eagle scout project while attending John Glenn High School.

Until then, the school carried the "Patchen" spelling. But the scout found 19th-century records which showed that it should be spelled "Patchin." The school board then officially changed the spelling on the building's outside lettering and records to reflect the corrected spelling.

But the history committee discovered other evidence that the original "Patchen" spelling was accurate.

The spelling conflict was also reflected in the programs for the ceremony with the school's name spelled both ways.

Making up the research committee, which worked seven years on the project leading up to the application for a state historical marker, were Ruth Dale, Patricia Estep, Wilfred Green, George Lomas Sr., Virginia Lear, Massey, Mildred McCollum and Peter Urbaniak.

On the marker committee were Dale, Estep, Green, Lear, Massey, McCollum, Urbaniak along with Kari Perry, Jo Johnson, Ann Heinicke, and Janis Dethloff.

Of the two committees, Estep, Green, Lear, McCollum and Urbaniak are Patchin alumni.

History and cookies: Aaron Greenfield, a third-generation Patchin student, was dressed in 18th-century clothing to hand out cookies, made from a mid-1800s' recipe, to guests at Sunday's open house.

The students of fourth grade teachers Barbara Dankert and Dawn Schoeninger got into the spirit of the day by dressing in 19th-century clothing and focusing on "kitchens of the past," displaying kitchen "conveniences" of the 1800s.

Twenty-eight families baked cookies for the open house.

One student involved in the baking project was Aaron Greenfield, a third-generation Patchin student. A student in Dankert's class, he was picked to hand out cookies to guests.

To get into the spirit of the day, Aaron was dressed in period knickers, suspenders and cap.

Others taking part were state Rep. Justice Barnes and fifth and sixth grade students who said "America, the Beautiful."

Looking back: Getting a close look at a class photo of a long-ago Patchin class are Helga Kehrer, Ed Kehrer, who graduated from the school in 1945, and Phyllis Kehrer (partially hidden).

Westland Observer wins numerous press awards

The Westland Observer was honored recently by the Michigan Press Association and the Suburban Newspapers of America.

Westland staff members took five of 14 awards presented to The Observer-Newspapers Group by the Michigan Press Association in the 1994 Better Newspaper Contest.

Staff member Darrell Clem received an honorable mention for local news reporting in the MPA competition. Clem's story, headlined "Rape Victim Can't Forget Terror," was printed in April 1993.

In the SNA's 1994 editorial contest, Observer business reporter Doug Funke took second place for best coverage of local business and economic news. The award is given in "recognition of the editorial staff which best provides consistent information about local business activity." Judging is based on how well announcements of a routine nature are blended with stories and statistics which aid readers in understanding local business and implications of social, political and economic news.

"The MPA and SNA awards underscore our commitment to provide coverage of local events and are the result of hardwork and dedication on the part of our staffers," said Susan Rosiek, managing editor.

The MPA honors include: ■ Second place feature stories by Sue Mason, editor of the Community Life section.

The story package, "With Love For Mom and Dad" appeared in the Feb. 10, 1994, edition. The two stories outlined how a son cared for his mom, who suffered with bone cancer, and his dad, an Alzheimer's patient. The other story recounted a husband's loving devotion and the care he gave his wife who suffered with cancer.

"Writing a story like this in a way that depicts the struggle of just making it day-to-day is quite an accomplishment. I think the writer did that most effectively," the judges wrote.

Brad Emons, sports editor of the Westland and Livonia editions took three awards in the MPA competition. His awards are:

■ Second place sports column. Judges called the column "Ladywood Firing" which appeared Aug. 19, 1994, "very interesting, well done."

■ Third place sports coverage.

■ Honorable mention sports writing.

In addition, the Malls and Mainstreets section (coordinated by Susan DeMaggio) took a third place in MPA competition.

MPA entries were judged by Tennessee Press Association members.

Friend of the Court

Senators uncover many big problems

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Families in divorce and paternity cases would be better served if the Friend of the Court offices were overseen by county boards instead of judges, a panel of state senators said.

Sens. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, said they heard literally hundreds of complaints in 10 public hearings about overworked FOC staffs, staff rudeness, bureaucratic procedures and gender bias.

"There appears to be no accountability for the FOC," Geake and Honigman said.

"Currently the chief judges in many jurisdictions do not appear to be giving the FOC the attention it deserves, and public access to complain to the judges is very limited.

The shift of oversight responsibilities from the chief judge of a circuit to the (county) commission should allow it to better understand the FOC's budgetary needs, as well as to allow more public access. The FOC should be an at-will employee of the county," Geake and Honigman said.

Dissenting was Sen. Christopher Dingell, D-Trenton. He cited the close working relationship between FOC and the judges as a reason for keeping the FOC an appointee of the judge. Dingell said there may be a constitutional problem with shifting what has been a judicial function since 1919 to another branch of government.

Few legal changes

But the others said FOC was created by law, not the constitution, and could be shifted by law, even though "many county board members may not be eager to assume responsibility for FOC operations."

The three senators worked from January through August as a subcommittee of the Family Law, Mental Health and Corrections Committee, making 32 recommendations. Only a handful of recommendations, however, will require changes in the law. A Geake staffer said some will be worked on in the state Legislature's November "lame duck" session, while others can be implemented administratively.

FOC offices report to the chief judge of a circuit court, which handles divorce and paternity matters. FOC staffs handle child support collections and payments and parental visitation matters.

Many complaints

Many complaints centered on slow payments to mothers and bias toward fathers. The Senate panel recommended much "sensitivity" and "stress management" training for staffs, along with "plain English" explanations of FOC procedures.

Geake is a child psychologist; Honigman and Dingell are attorneys.

As part of the shift from court to general government of the FOC offices, the senators recommended "liaison" committees, subject to the Open Meetings Act, be named to respond to grievances against FOC staff and to compile data.

Senators found judges with six-year terms too inaccessible to clients and unable to deal with budget problems, compared to county commissioners with two-year terms. How judges, often jealous of their power, will react will be seen when lawmakers meet in November.

Among other subcommittee recommendations:

- A requirement that child-support checks be mailed to the custodial parent within two weeks of receipt from the supporting parent; FOC should pay interest for late checks.
- A requirement that late payers be charged interest. FOC should report both good and bad payment histories to credit reporting bureaus.
- Mandatory continuing legal training in family law for judges and referees.
- Staffing ratios to be recommended by the State Court Administrator's office. "Throughout the state, there are wide discrepancies in the staffing ratios," causing frustration to clients, the panel said.

■ Staff efforts to avoid gender bias.

■ Name badges for FOC employees because clients often are unable to identify them.

■ Notice to all parties in a visitation dispute that they have a right to meet with the FOC caseworker before the caseworker makes a recommendation.

■ Statewide implementation of Oakland County's "SMILE" program — a monthly two-hour program in which the judge, mental health professionals and the FOC meet with parents in divorce cases. There also is a videotape for children.

■ No presumption by the judge against joint custody of a child.

■ Grandparent visitation provisions.

A thorny question was whether the state should revoke the driver's and occupational licenses of deadbeat parents who fail to make support payments. Senators said, however, they heard many complaints that FOC record-keeping was faulty. They recommended: "Bills already introduced regarding license revocations should be scheduled for legislative hearings and amended to provide adequate due process for those accused of failure to pay."

The subcommittee report on FOC is before the Senate Family Law, Mental Health and Corrections Committee, 405 State Capitol Building, Lansing 48909.

Family Talk.

St. Mary Hospital is affiliated with William Beaumont Hospital

The doctors at St. Mary Hospital believe that the things that go into making a good family — sharing, cooperation, and close involvement — are the very things that are needed for good medical care. So, we listen to our patients... their thoughts, their concerns, their viewpoints and those of their family. And when we talk to our patients we avoid confusing medical terms and try to be understanding as well as understood.

Besides talking with our patients, we also talk to each other. We share professional experiences and pass on information about new technologies and techniques. We also discuss our patients' care. This exchange of ideas is essential to good medical care, for you, and for your family.

The simple act of talking to each other is an important part of good families. And, at St. Mary Hospital, we think it's an important part of good doctoring.

If you want a doctor who practices medicine as if family matters, call (313) 464-WELL. We'll help you find a physician who fits into your family.

Contra, square dance sessions promise to be fun

Want to learn traditional American contra dances, such as the Virginia reel, in a relaxed, social setting?

Then the Westland recreation department has a special Friday night program for those who want to learn contra and square dances with a live band and instructor.

The program, which began last month, will resume at 8 p.m. Friday in Bailey Center, on the south side of Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. The next sessions will be Friday nights, Nov. 11 and Dec. 9.

The Joyous Noise dance band will perform with Tom Allen to serve as caller and instructor.

Fee is $6 per session, held 8-11 p.m.

The recreation department described the dance program as "fun, vigorous and a great way to meet people. Traditional American contra dances, such as the Virginia reel, are performed by pairs of dancers facing each other in opposing lines.

"We'll do some square, circle and couple dances."

A partner or experience agent required, said recreation supervisor Margaret Martin.

The band's musicians have varied professional backgrounds, said one of its members, Dorothy Decker, a clinic social worker and licensed marriage and family therapist who plays the guitar and hammered dulcimer in the band.

Other musicians are bass player Gloria Biddorf, a social worker with Hospice of Southeastern Michigan; fiddler Jenni Burke, editor of Music Index and Harmonie Park Press; mandolinist

Jim Coon, city of Detroit superintendent of electrical distribution; hammered dulcimer player Donna Kolojeskie, an Anchor Bay school district psychologist; keyboard and pianist Joann Shulte, a private school's director of Christian education; and fiddler Suzanne White, a Most Holy Trinity School teacher in Detroit.

Decker said the band "is a group of folk musicians who play lively and fun old-timey dance music—the kind that makes you want to clap your hands and tap your toes.

"Jigs and reels, polkas, schottisches and waltzes delight with the sounds of fiddles and hammered dulcimers leading the way, backed up by acoustic bass or washtub bass, mandolin, guitar, autoharp, piano or keyboard."

The group met as members of the Paint Creek Folklore Society, based in Rochester, where they play, sing, dance, teach and learn about traditional, folk, and old-time music monthly with friends, Decker said.

The band was formed about six years ago as a public service band, performing sing-a-longs for senior citizens, nursing homes, churches, schools, festivals and benefits, which they still do.

Beginners and experienced dancers alike can come on their own, with a friend or partner or with a group, Decker said.

"No experience is needed since all dances are taught and walked through," she said.

Tom Allen will teach each dances and walk them through with the dancers, answer questions and call each dance. He is a Ford Motor Co. manufacturing systems research engineer and a member of the Oakland County Callers' Association, Oakland County Traditional Dance Society and Detroit Country Dance Society.

After the dance, participants are invited to an "afterglow," usually held at the Big Boy Restaurant on Wayne Road at Hunter, for a snack or dessert and conversation.

Groups or individuals interested in the Joyous Noise band for parties, dances, sing-a-longs or special occasions may contact Decker at 464-1746 (nights) or Burke at 459-2070.

'Jigs and reels, polkas, schottisches and waltzes delight with the sounds of fiddles and hammered dulcimers leading the way, backed up by acoustic bass or washtub bass, mandolin, guitar, autoharp, piano or keyboard.'

Dorothy Decker

"Joyous Noise": Making up the dance band are (from left) Donn Kolojeskie of the hammered dulcimer, Gloria Biddorf of the bass, Jenni Burke of the fiddle, Jim Coon on the mandolin, Suzanne White on the fiddle, Joann Shulte on the autoharp and piano, and Dorothy Decker on the guitar and hammered dulcimer.

12 alternatives to lashing out at your child.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for parenting information: Parenting, Box 2866, Chicago, IL 60690.

Stop using words that hurt.
Start using words that help.

Elderly driver woes

Changes sought to ease their difficulty

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Among the problems people have when age begins to slow them down is the fact that road and highway systems are designed for young folks with quick reaction times.

"What we have is an auto-power culture for the nominal 40-year-old," said Ann Arbor Councilman Haldon Smith at a conference on elderly mobility sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Smith spoke to a group of people representing governments, hospitals, apartment houses, social-service agencies, automobile manufacturers, bus lines and traffic safety associations at the conference Oct. 6-7 in Novi.

The idea is to focus attention on the growing problem of accommodating, or at least accounting for, elderly drivers on roads that are increasingly more crowded.

Patricia Waller, the director of the Transportation Research Institute at the University of Michigan, said it's important for many reasons to keep older individuals on the road for as long as possible. But that goal ought to be balanced against the danger that elderly drivers sometimes pose to themselves and others.

Waller noted that, even though older drivers often drive less to account for declining skills and choose not to drive at night or in heavy traffic, their accident rate per mile driven goes up really fast after age 65.

Part of the problem, she said, is that "the highway transportation system was never designed with the older driver in mind."

John Eberhard, representing the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration, agreed that older drivers have a lot of accidents per mile driven, but argued that the actual number of accidents they have is low when compared to other age groups.

"They're the best drivers around," he said. "They compensate for their (declining) skills by driving less and paying close attention."

Eberhard said the solution is to "make cars a lot safer for older people." Cars, he said, should be "more similar to a tank."

Richard Lyles, a professor of transportation engineering and planning at Michigan State University, said older individuals in general suffer from a reduction in mental processing speed; longer reaction time; general vision degradation; increased glare sensitivity; problems judging speed, angular movement and distances; and a slowing of physical movement.

Problem areas for drivers age 65 and up, Lyles said, are turning left, yielding, changing lanes, backing up, following, and going around sweeping corners.

Lyles recommended some changes in the road system to benefit older drivers. Merging areas should be longer. Lines of sight at corners should be longer. Signs should be brighter and the letters on them bigger.

Robert Maki, an engineer from the Michigan Department of Transportation's traffic and safety division, said MDOT is trying to adjust the highway system to accommodate older drivers.

"Driver age is one of the main factors we look at when trying to diagnose any problems with our system," he said, adding that he brought four engineers with him to the conference to "find out what the current mood is."

Waller said that there has been far too little research on the problems of older drivers.

"We're still lacking information on which to base our policies," she said.

Charity walk planned to honor comedian

A family block party and 5K walk are being planned to honor comedian and former Southfield resident Gilda Radner.

The metro Detroit area is joining New York City as part of Gilda's Club, a nonprofit support group working to raise money for a center for families of cancer patients. Radner died of ovarian cancer.

Gilda's Day is set for Sunday, Oct. 23, with events planned for Cobo Center. The walk and block party are geared toward families, according to organizers.

Sponsors include People Magazine; Observer & Eccentric News; papers; PPOM (Preferred Providers of Michigan), Southfield; Editor Data Systems (EDS), Farmington Hills; Franklin Bank, Southfield; RT&A, River Rouge; Oakland Mall, Troy; Horizon Bi-County Community Hospital, Warren; Henry Ford Health Systems, Detroit; and Hospices of Henry Ford Health Systems, West Bloomfield.

The 5K walk, which begins at 10 a.m., will start at Cobo Center and continue through Hart Plaza to Chene Park. An optional one-mile fun walk/block party geared to families will begin at 10:30 a.m. inside Cobo Hall.

Money raised from the event will go toward buying and furnishing a facility in the metro Detroit area. Gilda's Giggles Room will provide a place to laugh with those who understand. People with cancer, their families and friends will be able to come to the facility each week for emotional and social support with licensed psychotherapists.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. the day of the walk. The fee is $18 and free for children 12 and younger. All participants will receive a T-shirt. Registration is $15 in advance. For information or to volunteer the day of the event, call (810) 851-8557.

Honorary chairmen of the event are Gov. John Engler and his wife, Michelle; Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer and Judge Trudy Dun-Combe Archer, Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara and his wife, Lucille.

At Providence Hospital, we know that no two births are exactly alike. That's why we offer so many birthing options. In fact, we're known as "the baby hospital," and it's no wonder. We've delivered more than 200,000 babies through eight generations. And

COMMUNITY LIFE

Calls for help . . . the First Step

■ The murder of Nicole Brown Simpson has brought the issue of domestic violence to the public's attention in a big way. It has also prompted an increase in the number of calls to First Step for help.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Increasing numbers of victims suffering domestic abuse as part of everyday life are seeking help from First Step, a nonprofit organization in Canton, serving domestic violence survivors in 35 western Wayne County and Downriver communities.

Nicole Brown Simpson's brutal stabbing death, allegedly at the hands of ex-husband O.J. Simpson in June, pushed many to the brink. In May, First Step received 477 domestic violence calls; by July the number had jumped to 771.

"There have been so many calls, we've been flooded," said executive director Judy Ellis. "Whenever a woman dies, other survivors of domestic violence seek help. When people are living in constant fear they desensitize, but when a death is highly publicized, they're faced with the reality that this could happen to them."

Since January when Jacqueline Ponke, 35, was beaten to death with a claw hammer in a Farmington dental office by her estranged husband Raymond, nearly 30 other women have been slain by current or ex-husbands and boyfriends.

Murders of Westland, Plymouth Township and Garden City women, including Joann Blaine shot to death by estranged husband Gregory who then killed himself, have awakened domestic violence victims to the dangers. One woman called First Step's hotline after her spouse threatened "to do what O.J. did, only worse."

"It's quite common for assailants to become more violent after a death

The spectacle as a debacle

To see or not to see. That is the question. To see is the answer. And this is the story.

Some weeks back the eye doctor examined Joe's and Tony's eyes. For little Joe, the doctor prescribed glasses and possibly surgery, if the glasses didn't do the trick. And for Tony (my veteran glasses wearer), the good doctor prescribed new, weaker lenses. He handed me the two eye-glass prescription cards, to be filled out elsewhere, and sent me on my way. Ever since then it's been the Tony and Joe Spectacle Debacle.

When Joe's little glasses were finally ready, I put Joe and baby Jack in the stroller and moseyed to the glasses place. Joe was excited, I was excited. Jack was happy for the early autumn stroller ride. Once there, an employee lady popped Joe's glasses on his round face and, without any ado, (no bending, no loosening, no fitting, no adjusting) told me what to make the check out for.

Joe immediately ripped the glasses off his face. I had a short whispered conference with him as I wrote the date on the check. And then I put the glasses back on my son. Next, I wrote the name of the glasses place on the check. Joe ripped his glasses off again. Another brief conference, this time just above a whisper. With glasses back on, Joe ran off behind a display case.

I finished writing out the check, gathered Jack up and called to Joe. He roared the corner, his glasses were in his hand. I waited until I got outside to bribe him. "Sit down nice in the stroller, and if you keep your glasses on until we get to the traffic light, I'll buy you some candy."

See FAMILY ROOM, 13A

that's been highly publicized. When women seek independence, it is the most dangerous time for them," Ellis said. "They might move 10-12 times in a year."

Feeling the pain

At a recent support group meeting for domestic violence victims and under the guidance of counselor Sally Hamerink, the women felt pain for the mental and physical abuse Nicole Brown Simpson experienced not only during her marriage but during the two years following their divorce. They spoke of anger for a legal system that slapped O.J.'s wrists in 1989 after a conviction on charges of beating Nicole. A consensus of cynicism prevailed among these women that the jury will return a not guilty verdict.

band after Nicole Simpson's murder. She agrees; society has become callous to domestic violence, and the courts and "police don't do anything to help. The O.J. murders happened June 13; I left the 22nd."

"When you say the words domestic violence, it doesn't mean anything to people," she said. "I don't think people realize domestic violence means busting a window with your head."

The first time Karen T.'s husband beat her she called the police only to have them sit around her kitchen table drinking coffee while issuing their warning. When they left he beat her again, this time more savagely.

"The last time my husband slammed me up against the lock of a window and opened up my head, he got out on a signature bond," she said. "Since then he's been arrested three times for assault, that's how well the system works."

So why do women stay in abusive relationships? The reasons are many, not the least of which is a lack of financial resources. Nancy M. stays with a husband who abuses alcohol and cocaine because she doesn't have "any money of her own" even though she lives in an exclusive, upscale neighborhood in Plymouth.

"One of the reasons women stay is because of isolation; they think that this is the way a relationship should be," Hamerink said. "The partner, who is using coercion tactics similar to ones used in Nazi concentration camps during World War II, is lowering them to such a state they feel they're not valuable."

Sometimes the smallest feet must travel the longest distance.

Ten years ago, the road to a normal childhood would have been too long for this baby to survive. Your donations to the United Way have supported the kind of medical research in prenatal care that gives premature babies like this the chance to survive.

The United Way supports more than 140 agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties that help the homeless, the illiterate, the unemployed and many more. And because nearly 90 cents of every dollar you contribute goes directly to those in need, you can be sure your donation will make a difference. So please give to the United Way. And help shorten the distance the tiniest feet must travel.

LORENE GREEN

Lorene, This angle of my handwriting is my natural slant; however, because of problems when cashing checks, I used to write at an angle, then backward; sometimes straight up and down. I finally decided to try writing straight up and down, so that the writing is at least consistent!

I've been reading you for a long time. I think I might have even had you lecture to a class years ago.

I am 66 years young, right-handed, and could tell you all about me, but I believe that's your job, through handwriting analysis.

I'll be glad to send you a little feedback, after you've told me a few things about myself. Thank you.

L.S. Farmington Hills

I am pleased to learn of your continued interest in graphology.

I probably did a lecture for one of your classes. I have talked to a very wide range of groups in the area over my 20 some years in the field of graphology.

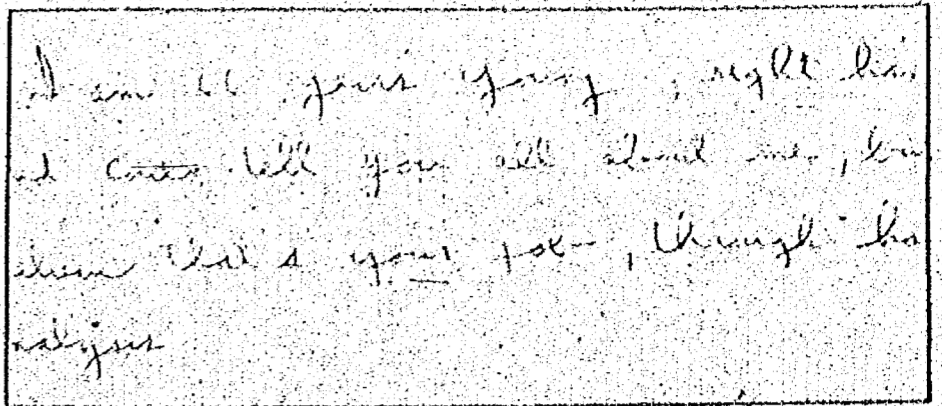

Vacillating slants are usually done unconsciously by those whose emotions change rather quickly. Since our writer has made deliberate changes in his slants, I will let him decide how this information fits his personality. I might add that vertical writers have a concern with how any given situation will affect them personally. The head rules the heart. When the entire handwriting sample is considered, an element of caution comes into play with this man.

Augmenting this is a need to be in control. He does not wish to be dominated by another and is probably his own boss.

It seems quite possible he grew up with strict controls or a critical atmosphere early in life. As a result, he tends to resist what he believes to be authoritarianism.

This man has a need to be correct. Often, he is prepared to argue to prove a point.

His thinking is logical and problem solving is done associatively. He relies on logic rather than follow any intuitive flashes that may come to him.

He experiences intense feelings which also remain with him for a long time. They include the happy as well as the sad, the positive as well as the negative happenings in his life.

There is a sense of order to this man's thinking. First he plans and then comes the implementation of his planning. An efficiency orientation influences all he does. However, he does not always learn from past mistakes so may continue to make them. At this particular time, he does not seem to be finding fulfillment in what he is doing. Perhaps he does not feel appreciated. Some emotional energy, which could be used more constructively, is not being released.

Our writer places emphasis on a proper code of behavior. His ideas of right and wrong are firmly ingrained and he lives by them. He is an idealistic man.

He has a need to associate with others and feels a desire to relate in a forthright manner. Signs point to the empathy he feels for others.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in the Observer Newspapers, write to Lorene C. Green, certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful.

Galloway-Winkelmann

Marti Winkelmann and Bryan Galloway were married Sept. 4 in The Little Wedding Chapel in Farmington Hills. She is the daughter of Marvin and Marlene Winkelmann of Westland and he is the son of Robert and Natalie Galloway of Cocoa Beach, Fla.

The bride is a graduate of Central Michigan University and the groom is a graduate of Auburn University in Auburn, Ala.

Marla Brown served as maid of honor and Frances Leger served as best man.

The couple received guests at Country Epicure in Novi before leaving on a trip to Bermuda. They are making their home in New Hampshire.

Family Room from page 11A

Well, that did it. (I knew it would, and yes, I'm ashamed of myself for that bribe thing.) But he wore his little glasses all the way to the traffic light and so I had to make good on my promise.

Once we strolled into the store he took his glasses off again. "Joe," I began, "put your..." That's all I was able to get out before I saw the deep, red grooves on the sides of his head where the arms of the glasses had been pressing. I felt lower than a slug. Which reminds me, Joe selected a package of Gummi Maggots for his candy bribe. That's the honest-to-goodness truth. Gummi Maggots. Look for them the next time you go in the candy aisle.

Anyway, I tried bending the arms of the glasses this way and that. I told Joe he wouldn't have to wear his glasses until we got them fitted properly. Joe's grooves eventually went away and so, too, did most of his disdain for wearing glasses.

That same groove-inducing employee was also responsible for more bad stuff. She'd been the one to fill out the order for Tony's new lenses. She looked at me and then asked for the deposit on Tony's glasses.

I picked the glasses up several days later and Tony made ugly faces at me all afternoon. Finally, I couldn't hold my tongue any longer. "Why are you doing that with your face? You better stop it before I blow a cork."

"Mo-om," he grumped. "I can't see. These new lenses are bogus."

After a three-day investigation, I found out that they were, indeed, bogus. "Oh, my, look here, Mrs. Meier, the prescription card says '88,' and the order form Miss filled out for Tony's lenses says simply '8.'" (Feel free to fill in the blank with what seems appropriate.)

"Just 8?" I asked. "You mean Tony's lenses are 80 whatever's off?"

"Fraid so. No wonder your son couldn't see."

Thank goodness that happened to Tony. He's 10 1/2 and has an extensive vocabulary. But how would that have been with Joe? A brand new glasses wearer who's a little more than 2 1/2 years old with a vocabulary limitations and deep red grooves in the sides of his head and maggots stuck to his teeth?

"RUSH" was stamped on the remake order form. "RUSH" meant by the end of the week. I am still wondering which week they meant.

To see or not to see. That remains the question around here.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

First Step

"They've lost their self-esteem." October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month, and Ellis believes everyone needs to take note not only of the increasing numbers of women seeking help, but of the overall increase in violence in society.

"I've been in the business since 1980 and I've seen the increase in physical violence and death," Ellis said. "Society as a whole has become more violent. We've become desensitized to it. Every man, woman and child needs to recognize that this is the greatest issue facing us today as a nation."

"This is every woman. This is you and me. You can assume that one-third of all women will encounter domestic violence at some time in their lives."

Not so obvious signs

First off, Ellis says, it's important to alert women to the signs of domestic violence since they aren't always obvious. One woman called unsure if it was abuse because her husband had never hit her. The incident spurring her call occurred when he came home intoxicated one night, roused her and the children from bed, lined them up downstairs then proceeded to break the neck of the family's pet dog. He warned, if they ever tried to leave he would kill them, just like the dog.

"There are three phases of domestic violence. The first stage is shock and disbelief that this man who fathered their children could do this," Ellis said. "There is minimization and denial. The second stage she becomes more frightened and if she doesn't receive support moves further into the victim role. The last phase is the hardest time to help women. When women commit suicide it's often because they feel they're in a hopeless situation."

The need for funding increases as women and children search for the help they need if they are to survive.

"More police departments are referring women to us, some of them straight from the hospital that calls for more staffing," she said. "One woman came in with five stab wounds, another woman with brain damage, and another with both arms broken. She couldn't even feed herself."

Helping the children

Ellis says she's bothered that with all the media attention focused on Nicole Simpson's murder and O.J.'s subsequent trial, the children are rarely if ever mentioned. At any one time, the First Step shelter with a capacity of 40 persons, houses about 27 children.

Within the last year, a children's program for those as young as 5 has been added with funds from United Way to support and educate the forgotten victims so the cycle of violence ends with this generation.

"Everyone forgets about the children. We teach them to get in touch with their feelings. It got started because one of the little boys at our shelter, two years later called to say he was doing what we said he might do. He was bigger than his mother now and was hitting her. He'd tried all of the measures we'd taught him like hitting his pillow instead with no success. He needed ongoing support," said Ellis.

In a room used for the program, paper plates feature emotions like anger and fear drawn on faces by the children.

"It's an exercise in expressing their feelings," Ellis said. "We do a lot of work around art so they can let their feelings come out that way. We tend as a society to lump everything into a box and close it up. They can never express feelings safely at home."

In addition to the children's program, a separate 36-week intervention project began last August to educate and counsel batterers. During the program, men identify the roots of their violence, learn the impact it has on all family members and how to end their abusive ways by substituting alternatives.

"People were looking for a place for men to come, we believe there are many people who want to stay together, and will stay together if they receive education and support," Ellis said.

Funding from the Michigan Department of Social Services for the Batterer's Program ran out Oct. 1, leaving First Step in desperate need of financial resources. Last year's operating budget totaled $900,000. This year's is $1.1 million.

"We need to increase staff because the numbers have gone up. The goal has to be to enjoy every person, for every person to be

Now is the time to volunteer your time and money to help the women and children helped by First Step. Number one on First Step's lengthy lists of immediate needs besides funds is large and extra-large sized diapers, mops, brooms, pillows, toilet paper, plastic baby bottles, Play-Doh, markers for drawing, 10- to 12-inch cuddly teddy bears and night lights.

Feeling Depressed?

Common symptoms of Depression are sadness, loss of interest or pleasure, insomnia, poor appetite and weight loss, feeling tired, worthless or guilty, and difficulty thinking or concentrating. Some people also have suicidal thoughts, which can be a major risk if their Depression is left untreated.

Depression is among the most common psychiatric conditions. Approximately 6% of adults have at least one significant episode of Depression during their lifetimes. Women are affected twice as often as men. In spite of how common Depression is, it is treated adequately only 50% of the time.

Depression can occur in episodes, with normal times in between, or be continuous and persistent. Occasionally people who suffer from Depression have high or manic episodes as well.

There are many psychological theories regarding the cause of Depression. Biological factors, including possible deficiencies of adrenaline-like neurotransmitter chemicals in the brain, are also potential causes. It is known that Depression tends to run in families, and evidence supports hereditary or genetic factors.

Several new antidepressant medications have recently been introduced. The incidence of side effects are lower with these newer medications, but some people still experience side effects such as agitation and sexual dysfunction. Also, antidepressants currently available must be taken over a period of weeks before they begin to work. Research is underway to develop additional antidepressants that will work faster, for more people, and have even fewer side effects.

The Mood Disorder Institute, 28105 Orchard Lake Rd., Ste. 301, Farmington Hills, is one of approximately 12 locations nationwide studying these new antidepressants. For additional information, or to see if you qualify for this FREE out-patient study, you may call 1-800-882-MOOD.

State House races

DeHart, Kelly are best choices

Westland voters will elect two new state representatives in three weeks to replace two veteran, effective legislators who will close out their political careers at the end of the year.

The two to leave office in 10 weeks are Rep. Justine Barns, who has represented most of Westland for 12 years, and Rep. William Keith, whose district has included the south-east section of Westland for the same period.

Seeking the two open seats are Democratic and Republican nominees with varied backgrounds, qualifications and outlooks on key state issues.

The two candidates with the best chance of being effective representatives to succeed Barns and Keith are Eileen DeHart in the 18th District, which covers most of the city, and Thomas Kelly in the 17th District, which includes the city's southeast section.

Both Democratic nominees have paid their dues and compiled enviable records of public service which should serve them well if elected Tuesday, Nov. 8.

DeHart, a 28-year Westland resident, has been a staffer in Barns' Lansing office for more than seven years. She knows the legislative process from the inside and how to deal with the varied interests.

The nominee, who survived a Democratic primary battle, has told voters in the general election campaign that she supports more funding for public schools, realizing that passage of Proposal A last March 15 would not give local school districts sufficient funds to maintain their current level of services and programs.

DeHart is also supportive of state help for small businesses, where most new jobs will be created, and being tougher on repeat criminal offenders.

Her lengthy residence in the community and her work as a Barns staffer will enable her to communicate with local voters and deal with the state bureaucracy in Lansing to represent her constituents.

Kelly also offers voters an impressive background in governmental work.

He has served nearly 12 years as a Wayne city councilman and many years on the Nankin Transit Commission board of directors, helping to maintain and improve Dial-A-Ride services for local handicapped and elderly passengers.

Like DeHart, Kelly sees that there will be future battles in Lansing over money for public schools and has promised to fight for more state funding.

Since there will be many other battles to be fought in Lansing, DeHart and Kelly clearly have the qualifications, demonstrated performances in different roles in past years, and the skills to be effective legislators.

Parks proposal merits support

Baseball, motherhood, apple pie. Proposal P stands for parks—specifically, state parks. They are a source of amusement, for which the state charges fees. They are a natural resource and deserve to be supported from the state general fund. They are a tourist attraction and mean business and jobs to our northern counties.

Under two governors from two parties, general fund support has shriveled from 50 percent to 20 percent of the state parks' $31 million budget. Prison building, welfare and schools have soaked up the pool of money, for better or worse.

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs in 1993 floated an idea for a one-cent increase in the sales tax to be dedicated to parks. That idea died when voters approved a sales tax increase for schools.

So a lot of creative minds— from both parties, private associations and recreationalists— produced Proposal P. Both chambers of the Legislature placed it on the ballot with overwhelming votes.

The beauty of it: No new taxes are involved. The state already gets revenues for the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund—rentals and royalties from oil and natural gas found on state lands. Basically, they come from the Pigeon River Country, where the elk herd hangs out.

Michigan was smarter about its non-renewable resources than other states; we could mention: One state went on a prison building binge with its oil, gas and uranium taxes. Another built pitiful county courthouses with its coal revenue. Michigan uses its revenue on its natural resources.

Put simply, Proposal P deals with using that revenue to build up an endowment fund to support state parks. If passed, it will free the Department of Natural Resources from the lobbying job of fighting the annual legislative appropriations donnybrook.

A constitutional amendment, Proposal P would: (1) establish a state parks endowment fund to receive $10 million a year from energy sources and mining on state lands; (2) require that the endowment be used to operate, maintain and improve state parks; (3) halt the $20 million diversion of natural resources money into the Michigan Strategic Fund, a commerce-based program; and (4) alter the allocation of funds from the Natural Resources Trust Fund to the State Parks Endowment Fund.

This year marks the 75th anniversary of our state parks system. The parks, however, have fallen on hard times. Park staffing fell from 700 in 1975 to about 500 currently. Last year the DNR officially shut down 23 state forest (trusted) campgrounds which had been neglected to death and reclaimed by weeds.

Daily vehicle permits have gone from $2 in 1990 to $4 this year. Annual permits have gone from $7 to $18 in the same period. Camping fees have gone from $2 to $6 to as much as $14 a night. The fees are becoming absurd. State parks are a natural resource, not a business like Pine Knob.

Proposal P deserves an overwhelming "yes" vote Nov. 8.

Retiree is irked

Recently a terrible injustice was dealt to many of the retired school employees that gave long and faithful service to the Wayne-Westland schools.

An injustice, that in a sense appears to be selective awarding of retroactive pay given only to those who are still active within the school district.

It would appear also, that when one retired, but their contract had now been settled, whatever amount of money would be given to those under the settlement terms, would in fact include those who were working at the time that the contract would have been in effect, had that contract been in force at the time.

Is this how the school district will operate in the future as well, when a person retires under an old contract, but that contract is then settled, and the employee was working during that period, the employee will be ignored, and not receive what was due to them?

Or is this merely a way of saying, you no longer are here, and we do not care about you is that what the current employee must now face for the future? A total disregard for all the hard work might just go down the toilet, because "when you're gone, you're gone."

But it's OK to work hard for many years, and give a little more each and every day, we hope however, you know, that if a contract is not settled by the time you retire, tough luck.

This issue must be revisited immediately and resolved in short order by giving the retired employees their just pay for the time that they worked long and hard hours and days for the children of the community, as well as those parents who paid their taxes to provide that education, and safety factor for their children.

Don't shortchange the employees... give them what they have coming... not another excuse... we have had too many of them.

Would any one of you forfeit your pay... I don't think so... why should the retirees have to do so?

Show your commitment to the community and to the school employees by paying them what they have coming.

Brent Green

Council criticized

Total disgust best describes my feelings regarding the city of Westland's rushed-through endorsement of the plan to convert the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority's incinerator into a waste-to-energy facility. How could our elected representatives vote in favor of such a losing proposal without even presenting the facts and figures to the citizens for our input? Was it because they themselves do not fully understand all the facts and figures?

Common sense dictates a third or even fourth opinion when opposing opinions exist. And yet, votes were cast based on only two proposals. Where was option three or four? The landfill people claimed their way was best, while the incinerator people claimed their way was best. I ask, best for whom? Their own corporate pocketbooks?

Where was the unbiased information from people with nothing to gain? Volumes of studies exist from lawyers, doctors and scientists regarding the pros and cons of waste disposal, yet no such expertise was sought. There were no public discussions about potential legal liability (for the taxpayers), community health effects (to the taxpayer's air, water and soil).

Only one City Council member honestly admitted his personal uneasiness regarding the long-term ramifications of this decision. I thank Glenn Anderson for having the courage to vote no.

The rest of the City Council members, and Mayor Thomas, had better get busy doing their homework, because I am doing mine. I will try to present facts and references to substantiate my arguments against this proposal. They can begin by reviewing the near-bankrupt losses the City of Detroit took because of their "state-of-the-art" incinerator. They can also study the Michigan state law passed in 1993 prohibiting the construction of an incinerator within 1,000 feet of a school. The refurbishing of a Madison Heights incinerator was defeated because it sat next door to a middle school.

In closing, let me add that even though the majority of our citizens don't know or care where their garbage goes, they do care where their tax dollars go.

If our city officials continue to take the terms "citizens and taxpayers" lightly, they had better start taking seriously the term "voters."

Hold them accountable

Parenting means letting teens face consequences

The most challenging time for parents and their children is during the adolescent years, roughly 12 to 18 years of age. The world of teenagers is so confusing, as they try to make that "break" from their parents in discovering their individual identity.

There are three tasks of an adolescent:

- One: test the world — "Is that really how it works?" Consistent consequences by parents, school authorities, police and other responsible adults demonstrate to our young people what is expected from them.

As young people test the world, adults tend to make it more difficult for them to learn responsible behavior because we give youth too many chances to change their behavior. Sometimes adults overlook unacceptable behavior because a youth is difficult to deal with, verbally or physically aggressive, or excessively argumentative, so we back down to "keep the peace."

Some youths are very manipulative and can charm their way out of difficulties, thus never realizing any consequences for their unacceptable behavior.

What is the solution? Allow young people to make mistakes, and hold them accountable for their behavior so they can make the connection that the choices have consequences.

Consequences will affect behavior choices only if they are consistently applied.

- Two: challenge authority — "Who's going to make me do anything?" Power struggles between adults and adolescents are very common. Parents should not take challenges personally. Youths are challenging all authority, not just yours. They don't give you your authority, so how can they really challenge it unless you allow it?

During this period, there is a constant conflict between youth wanting to be independent while realizing how dependent on adults they really are. In this pursuit of independence, adolescents often reject their parents' attempts to guide them, deliberately acting in ways to shock and outrage parents and society. Parents need to decide which behaviors must be addressed and which can be ignored. In other words, don't make a big issue out of things that are unimportant.

GUEST COLUMNIST

- Three: find out who is real — "Who can help me find out about life?" Parents can be "real" by demonstrating that they expect from their adolescents what they expect from themselves. This can be accomplished by showing respect for ourselves, our children, spouses, co-workers, neighbors, and others we deal with on a daily basis.

We also need to demonstrate to young people that we respect the rules of society, whether it be while we are driving, shopping, working, or recreating. In addition to being good role models, parents need to be good listeners as opposed to giving advice, moralizing, or scolding. Young people want to talk to adults, but there is a fear that they will be ignored or lectured to.

Mark Twain said, "When I was 14 my father knew nothing, but when I was 21 I was amazed at how much the old man had learned in those seven years." We adults can learn much about ourselves through our young people if only we can be receptive to them. No matter what happens, don't give up on your children!

Everyone talks about how "busy" they are, but we must make time for our youth, especially for our adolescents. This can be a joyful time of discovery between adult and adolescent if both sides are willing to learn to communicate.

Term limits would topple autocratic lawmakers

The lawyers argued about assisted suicide before the Michigan Supreme Court last week. They made a wonderful case in favor of legislative term limits.

The Legislature in November 1992 overwhelmingly voted to ban assisted suicide. That expression of the people's will may go down the tubes if the Supreme Court says the law was unconstitutional.

I was visiting Civil War battlefields during the oral arguments and caught the show on a national cable channel called Court TV. The TV commentators floundered a bit when they discussed how Michigan passed the law designed to put Jack (Dr. Death) Kevorkian out of business. Maybe this explanation will help.

Our heroes in Lansing had three bills before them. One would have permitted and regulated assisted suicide; it had no chance. The second was to set up a study commission on the thorny issue; it turned out to be a farce because the panel split in three directions with no majority favoring anything. The third bill, by Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, was aimed at banning assisted suicide. It was passed by the Senate and spiked by a House committee chair.

That committee chair was Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, at that point a 20-year veteran. Now, Bullard did many good things in his tenure, and I personally like him, but he wasn't known for being fair, or even polite, to ideas he didn't like. And Bullard didn't like banning assisted suicide.

So he just sat on the bill. His Judiciary Committee reported out only the bill on the commission sponsored by Rep. Tom Power, R-Traverse City.

On the House floor, the majority amended Power's commission bill to include the text of the Dillingham ban. The House passed the twin-pronged bill by a lopsided 72 to 29 with nine absent. Clearly Bullard was out of tune not only with the populace, but with his own party, which voted 31-23 in favor.

TIM RICHARD

The bill breezed through the Senate and was signed into law by Gov. John Engler. In the 1992 election, pro-life forces picked up votes and momentum. So early in 1993, the new House gave the bill immediate effect by an even more lopsided 92-10 vote.

Ah, but the law was two-pronged — banning assisted suicide and setting up a study commission — and the Michigan Constitution explicitly says: "No bill shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title. No bill shall be altered or amended on its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose as determined by its total content and not alone by its title." (Art. IV, sec. 24)

There could be the flaw. Two circuit judges already have said the ban on assisted suicide is unconstitutional for precisely that reason. Don't be surprised if the Supreme Court agrees.

In the Legislature's defense, let it be pointed out that one person, Perry Bullard, thwarted the will of the majority and drove it to such desperation measures. Over 10 terms, Bullard became calloused and autocratic. If term limitations had been in effect, the odds are the Dillingham bill would have passed easily and in much less time.

Bullard wasn't the only one. Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-Okemos, spent too many of his 20 years in the House chairing the Taxation Committee. Several times, the Senate passed bills wiping out the inheritance tax. Jondahl neglected them to death in his capacity as committee chair.

Last year, under the two parties' "shared leadership" in the House, a Republican representative, Willis Bullard of Milford, slipped a bill eliminating the inheritance tax through an entirely different committee, where Jondahl couldn't get his strangling grip on it.

The House passed Willis Bullard's bill 91-3, demonstrating that Jondahl was totally out of touch with the state and his own party. Again, I suggest that long tenure allows even a Lynn Jondahl, with his reputation for high principle, to become calloused and autocratic.

Voters adopted term limits in 1992. They take effect in four years for representatives and eight years for senators. Anyone for term limits for judges, too?

TV's influence sparks need to publicly fund campaigns

Last Saturday at the UM-MSU football game, I ran into Bob Carr, the Democrat who's running against Spencer Abraham for the U.S. Senate. Snippets from our conversation speak volumes about what's really going on in this campaign, now down to the last few weeks before election day.

"Hi, Bob. How are things going?"

"OK, I guess. I finally got up on the air (i.e., ran a TV spot) with me speaking directly into the camera. Abraham has been running a spot trying to make me look like Bill Clinton, and I wanted to remind folks that it's me, warts and all, that's running for the Senate."

"What's the mood out there?"

"Pretty bad. People are sore; they're cynical. I've never seen the mood quite like this."

More than I have ever seen, this campaign is turning into politics by television. Even in private conversation, candidates don't talk much any more about how wrong or inconsistent or treacherous their opponent really is. All they can talk about is "getting up on the air" or "my opponent has another spot ready to go."

There is no doubt that politics in a big state like Michigan has to be done wholesale, which means by costly TV commercials. Production costs are ruinous. Air time is astronomical, particularly in southeastern Michigan where most of the people are.

This means that big races are horribly expensive. By my count, Abraham and Carr together will have spent around $10 million for the primary and general by the time election day rolls around — most of it for TV.

These factors have transformed politics. Instead of shaking hands and making speeches and answering questions from real voters, most candidates now spend the bulk of their time running around raising money in order to pay TV gurus and buy air time. What a lousy way to go about picking a U.S. senator or governor! And it points up how marginal most campaign reform proposals really are. Last week a Republican filibuster in the U.S. Senate killed a bill, introduced by Michigan's Carl Levin, which would have put limits on lobbyists and their freebies. Compared to the favors extracted by the political action committees and special interests from candidates desperate to raise big money for TV, what's a free golf game or a trip to Florida?

The only way really to reform the political process — and the only way to make candidates pay attention to voters and their concerns instead of chasing after PACs and TV gurus — is public funding of campaigns.

Remember? "Money is the mother's milk of politics." It's one of the truisms that so characterizes the political system and contributes so greatly to voter anger and cynicism that Bob Carr is so concerned about.

Local people gain relief with United Way grants

BY RALPH R. ECHINAW
STAFF WRITER

Area residents have been helped by agencies that receive financial aid from the United Way for Southeastern Michigan.

Recently, the United Way began its annual fund-raising Torch Drive and hopes to raise $58.5 million in the Detroit area. Last year the organization fell short of its fund-raising goal, but still raised $57.1 million.

About $103,000 of that money was given to Paws with a Cause, an agency that trains dogs to help deaf and physically disabled people.

Three years ago, Livonia resident Laura Ponikiewski received Winston, a golden retriever, from Paws with a Cause.

The 1982 Redford Union High School graduate functioned well before she got Winston, earning an engineering degree from Lawrence Technological University, but she feels more secure with the dog around.

"She was afraid to stay home by herself," said Laura's mother, Henrietta Ponikiewski. "She had this fear always, especially when she was sleeping."

Winston now alerts Laura when someone is at the door, when the phone rings and when her alarm clock goes off. If Laura goes for a walk, Winston will warn her of any hazardous noises.

Deo Jones of Paws with a Cause said dogs like Winston require four months of training and are sold for $5,000 each. "Service dogs," which open doors, pick up things off the floor, push buttons and pay cashiers cost $3,500.

About $1.3 million of the United Way money was given to the Salvation Army to use in the current fiscal year.

Jim Swan, a Farmington Hills resident, has been a member of the Salvation Army since he was a boy and a neighbor took him and his brother to Sunday school at an Army Corps in Detroit.

Swan now works for General Motors, but volunteers as a disaster relief team leader for the Salvation Army. Usually the disaster teams respond to large fires, where they get coffee and doughnuts for the firefighters and arrange housing for displaced persons.

The YWCA of Metropolitan Detroit received about $852,000 from the United Way last year.

Part of that money subsidizes a

Y support group called Encore for women with breast cancer. Redford Township resident Estelle Zimmer was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1970 and has been a member of Encore since 1980.

Through the years, the group has provided her with valuable emotional support. Two years ago, she was once again diagnosed with breast cancer. She is currently undergoing chemotherapy.

Not only does Encore offer women an opportunity to discuss their condition with other women, it offers a therapeutic exercise and swimming program.

The Detroit Institute for Children received about $900,000 from the United Way for the current fiscal year.

Livonia resident Laurie Phelps was referred to the institute when her son, Kyle, was six months old. He had been premature and was not advancing like he should.

Kevin was diagnosed with cerebral palsy. Institute personnel developed a program for Kyle, which included orthopedic and physical therapy. Laurie Phelps said the people at the institute have gone out of their way to help her family.

JON FREILICH/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Listen, dog: Livonia resident Laura Ponikiewski is almost completely deaf. She depends on her dog, Winston, to warn her if there's a knock on the door, if the phone rings, or if he hears an out-of-the-ordinary noise. Ponikiewski got her dog for free from Paws with a Cause, which is partially funded by the United Way.

Torch Drive goal is $58.5 million

The United Way for Southeastern Michigan's 1994 Torch Drive aims to raise $58.5 million to benefit charitable organizations throughout the metro Detroit area.

The theme for this year's Torch Drive is, "Touch a Life. The United Way."

Last year the United Way reported it served 1.7 million individuals through the organizations it subsidized.

United Way spokespeople say the need for services is great, in that requests for funding outstrip the agency's ability to come up with the money.

Service areas such as homelessness, substance abuse, juvenile delinquency and crime, care for the elderly, child abuse and neglect and family problems are examples of areas of growing need where more money is needed, the agency says.

Many charitable organizations are feeling the effects of state and federal government cuts in their subsidies and are looking to United Way to make up for the lost money.

Although the United Way for Southeastern Michigan fell short of its fund-raising goal last year, it still collected more than $50 million.

This year the economy is better, and United Way officials are optimistic about reaching the new goal.

To make a contribution, send a check to the United Way, 1212 Griswold at State, Detroit, 48226-1899, or call (313) 226-9200.

SCARY HAUNTS FRIGHTFULLY FUN

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Things that go bump in the night become even more intimidating as the evening air chills, the corn stalks dry, and vibrant orange pumpkins glow.

In October, a surprising number of habitats — from houses to theaters to forests to barns, and even an old winery — become haunted.

And oh, how we love to be scared, safely scared that is. Some bizarre sense of curiosity draws some of us into the darkness that lies within. A darkness filled with leering, snarling, growling creatures that are the brainchild of some very active imaginations.

Fortunately, these creatures are brought to life by otherwise kindly and benevolent folks who live relatively normal lives by day.

"We have people who go out the door and go right back in line," said Don McDuron referring to the Plymouth/Canton Jaycees Haunted House. McDuron is a firefighter for Plymouth Township, a member of the Plymouth/Canton Jaycees and district director for the Michigan Jaycees.

A lot of work goes into constructing the mazes and creepy alcoves that wind through the vacant buildings and outside spaces. It takes about 10 to 20 minutes to traverse through most of the haunts. Perhaps only five minutes if you're sufficiently frightened.

But, beware, even those who build the structures can't always get through them quickly. "I got to the point where our own people were getting lost in the house," McDuron confessed. "I built it and I couldn't get through it in a hurry. I got turned around."

Getting slightly turned around would be a distinct possibility at the Haunted Winery in Farmington. The family operated business is in a 114-year-old building on Grand River. Dad, John White, and his four sons — Jeff, Dave,

The night's so dark, feet fade from sight. The creaks and moans stir up a fright. The clacking bones, the ghoully eyes, the crisp air's filled with ghostly spies. You creep along as if in dream when ears are pierced by a banshee's scream! You want to run, but have no fear. It's all good fun. It's Halloween!

FARMINGTON BAND PRESENTS 'SPOOKTACULAR'

It's not everyday you see Frankenstein playing the trombone, but you will 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30, when the Farmington Community Band takes to the stage at Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi (12 Mile at Novi Road) to present their ninth annual Spooktacular concert.

"We've been doing a Halloween concert for 10 years," said band director/founder Paul Barber. "This is our eighth year at the mall."

Band members perform in costume in the center court of the mall. "It's well attended," said Barber about the free concert. "There's a wide variety of costumes. I always get a kick out it, I never know what people will show up in. They have to be careful with masks so they can still play their instruments."

Dale Green, a math/science teacher at Power Middle School in Farmington is the MC. Students might not recognize him — he'll be dressed like Dracula.

Concertgoers will be treated to a program of seasonal delights, and festive music. An example of what is to come is "The Parade of Tall Ships," featuring musicians dressed up like pirates.

The band continues its 29th season 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11, with a holiday concert at Harrison High School on 12 Mile Road between Middlebelt and Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills. Band rehearsals are 7:30-9:30 p.m. Mondays in the Harrison High School Band Room. New members are welcome. For more information, call 478-5014 or 489-3412.

Jun and Bruce have allocated 7,000 square feet of space for the haunt that is basically stored intact there all year.

"We have 24 different rooms of horror," said Jeff White. "If you don't run through, you could be in there 12 to 15 minutes."

While there are many who absolutely relish the horrendous habitats, there may be just as many who prefer to avoid them. Some of that group are even associated with the dire domains.

Cindy Richards of the Novi Jaycees requires the help of some fearless younger veterans to journey through the haunted barn her organization sponsors.

"I think people are nuts," said Richards. "I don't like haunted things. Last year, about two days before the thing ended, I finally went through, and I had to have my 8-year-old niece and nephew hold my hand because I didn't want to go."

It is, however, all in good fun, and for some very good causes.

The YMCA in Westland has traditionally recruited kids from the surrounding neighborhood to build the haunted house on the Y's property. Some, now in their teens and 20s, have been helping with the project for more than 10 years.

"We've had a wealth of kids this year, and they've been just wonderful," said Sharon Arthur. This is the sixth year she and her husband, Fred, are supervising the project. "The proceeds are for Y projects and the YMCA has been interested in family values and helping families way before it was popular," Arthur said. "Way before it was politically correct."

Part of the proceeds from Farmington's Haunted Winery are donated to the Farmington Historical Commission.

All of the proceeds from the Haunted Theatre in downtown Wayne will be used to restore the historic theater.

This is the first year that Bordine's Farm on Ford Road in Canton will be hosting a Haunted Green House (Grun Haus) which will be out in the woods on the property. Hay rides for families and adults only will also be offered. This year they are working with Eastern Michigan University, Schoolcraft College and local high schools. Each school supplies 25 people to help out, and Bordine's gives them $350.

"Basically, we're trying to gain enough profit to make it bigger next year," said Mindy LaGrow. "This is like phase one of what we want to do. We really want to expand so that maybe next year we can get even more organizations in."

The Jaycees put a lot of haunted house proceeds back into their respective communities. The Plymouth/Canton group plans to donate some of the proceeds to the Plymouth Fire and Drum Corps.

Proceeds from the Redford Jaycees' Friendly Monster Day for children on Saturday, Oct. 22 will be donated to Juvenile Diabetes, according to club president Jane Vallet. Some of the other proceeds will go toward a Christmas shopping tour for under-privileged children in the Redford Public Schools.

Farmington is making an all-day festival of activities on Saturday, Oct. 29. John Virley and Association are planning the Halloween fest for the Farmington Downtown Development Authority. There will be free pony rides, costume contests and trick-or-treating at downtown stores.

The Detroit Zoo's "Zoo Boo" is a great alternative to traditional Halloween activities with children, armed with a zoo-loaned flashlight, traveling a trail lined with animal and family tale characters to eight treat stations along the way. A non-scary magic show also awaits the participants.

The Garden City Jaycees sponsor a free Halloween party for Garden City children with lots of activities and snacks.

The Hallelujah Harvest Festival is an event sponsored by The Garden City Christian Center for the last 12 years.

"The whole idea is an alternative to Halloween," said Pastor Don Mullett of the Oct. 31 activity.

Kids can come dressed up as along as the costumes have nothing to do with ghosts, witches, devils etc. Games, activities and lots of candy will be the order of the day. There will also be a Christian puppet show and they will close in prayer.

United Memorial Gardens in Plymouth, Township offers free hayrides and bonfires to church and Sunday school groups. There are many biblical structures at the gardens, including a full-scale replica of the Old Testament Tabernacle which will be lit up for the hay rides.

No matter what you desire to take the chill off the lengthening October nights, you won't have far to look.

SRO cast plays their cards right with 'The Gin Game'

You will laugh. You will smile knowingly. And before SRO's 'The Gin Game' is over, you may wipe away a tear. But mostly, you will be touched by the superb performances of Kathleen Monticello and Ralph Rosati as Fonsia, Dorsey and Weller, Martin, respectively. Both create energetic, true-to-life characters. Their dialogue and stage business has a natural and unrehearsed quality.

The setting is the back porch of an old folks home. As Weller says, "Everyone ends up here if you live long enough." Our two characters have just arrived. Weller invites Fonsia to a game of gin rummy.

And they play. And play. And play again. Conceptually, this would appear to be a bit confining for the stage. In the hands of our most capable performers, however, one can see why "The Gin Game" won a Pulitzer Prize for playwright D.L. Coburn.

Weller is a crusty, yet somehow lovable old man with a temper. It flares out of control as he loses game after game to a beginner. Fonsia is disarmingly charming. Yet she has collected some baggage over the years, which gives a vindictive edge to her character.

As they continue to play -- and she continues to win, we learn about the dreary life around the home. And more about two seniors desperately attempting to hang on to their pride and dignity. The gin game becomes a metaphor for their lives. He's obsessive about winning and maintaining control. She is upset over his temper and plays just to taunt him. There is one final game -- sort of a shoot-out at high noon. The game boils over into a magnificent fight, with in-your-face, four-letter put-downs. The ending is somehow sad, yet uplifting. They really need each other. Weller and Fonsia have alienated friends and relatives to the point where neither has visitors. Flawed though they are, one hopes they will continue to search out the goodness in each other as they struggle to make their lives work. Contributing to this fine production are the setting and technicals -- together with Nancy Harrower's taut direction and fine job of balancing dramatic and comedic aspects of "The Gin Game."

Restaurants offer German fare

BY KEELY WYGONIK

Warm up to fall, celebrate Oktoberfest by treating yourself to a hearty German meal.

There are lots of places to celebrate including Jonathon B Pub in Westland Mall (35000 Warren (313) 513-0080) and Livonia Mall (29568 Seven Mile Road (810) 476-3500. Jonathon B Pub will be celebrating Oktoberfest Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 18-20, with German food and drink specials, games, prizes and give-a-ways.

"German food is heavy food, but it's good this time of year," said Kelly Turner, kitchen manager of Jonathon B Pub in Westland Mall. Turner, who studied culinary arts at the Ford Vocational Technical Center in Westland under the guidance of Chef Jon Gary, has been testing a variety of German dishes by offering them as daily specials.

During Oktoberfest, diners at the Westland location will enjoy a variety of German food specials reasonably priced from $3.95 to $6.95.

"I'll be making bratwurst with sauerkraut, homemade German potato salad, braised Bavarian beef short ribs, Wiener schnitzel (breaded veal cutlet), and spaetzle (tiny flour and egg dumplings)," said Turner. "The short ribs are slow roasted and served with kraut and red skin potatoes."

At the Livonia Jonathon B Pub, they'll also be offering a variety of German food specials including German potato salad, which is served warm and flavored with sauteed bacon and onion.

Norinan's Eton Street Station, 245 S. Eton in downtown Birmingham, (810) 647-7774, will be hosting a German Oktoberfest Thursday, Oct. 20, through Sunday, Oct. 23. Hours are 6 p.m. to close Thursday and Friday, Oct. 20-21; 1 p.m. to close, Saturday, Oct. 22 and 3-9 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23.

The weekend celebration includes German beer tasting under a heated beer tent, live German musical groups, Bavarian Dancers, the St. Pauli Girl. German cooking demonstrations will be offered 3-5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22. A pumpkin recipe contest (bring in finished samples for judging) will be 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, and a carved pumpkin contest will take place 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23.

Norm's will be featuring Samuel Adams Oktoberfest, Frankmuth Oktoberfest and Heinekin Farwebok beer specialties as well as samples of German wines. Norman's is also featuring German beer and food specials throughout the month of October.

Pumpkin carving and recipe contest winners will receive gift certificates to local restaurants.

LET'S GO! MOVIES

Will success of 'Pulp' spoil Tarantino?

JOHN MONAGHAN

TICKETS PLEASE There's nothing hipper at the movies right now than Quentin Tarantino. The young writer/director, a video store clerk just three years ago, now schmoozes on Letterman and has the biggest names in Hollywood wanting in on his next project.

The punchline to this Hollywood success story is "Pulp Fiction," opening wide tomorrow after a sold-out premiere this past Monday at the Detroit Film Theatre. Although boasting enough great performances for five movies, Tarantino's sophomore effort will reach a wider audience than it probably deserves.

The Tarantino cult began a couple of years ago when "Reservoir Dogs" opened with a whimper but never seemed to close. The wide-screen, profanity-filled bloodbath, a slap in the face to politician's efforts to clean up the movies, found both rabid fans and foes. Even Siskel and Ebert gave it the thumbs down.

"Pulp Fiction" delivers much of the same in its focus on a pair of Los Angeles hitmen, played by John Travolta and Samuel L. Jackson. Early for their appointment to knock off an apartment full of guys, they pause down the hall to continue an inane discussion about foot massages.

More than once in its 2 1/2 hours, the movie has slow passages and lingering conversations reminiscent of a Jim Jarmusch film. While the mundane reunion of a boxer on the lam (a surprisingly effective Bruce Willis) and his French girlfriend does little to advance the plot, it builds the kind of suspense where we're primed for anything to happen.

"Reservoir Dogs" may have dealt with the chaos resulting from a botched jewel heist, but the movie was a tightly executed exercise in non-linear time. "Pulp Fiction" is more free-form, imaginative, actually three movies in one. It offers the much-maligned Travolta his best role in almost two decades. His Vincent Vega, sporting a ponytail and the beginning of a paunch, has with Jackson's Bible-quoting Jules the kind of male buddy relationship usually reserved for cop shows.

As a writer, Tarantino is most at home when his characters rattle on behind diner booths or the wheels of oversized '70s automobiles. These guys are as archaic as the old movies, pop songs and television shows they constantly make reference to. It makes them likable even at their most violent.

At its core, "Pulp Fiction" is little more than a hodgepodge of such pop culture references. You can see the bits of each movie that Tarantino watched when he was supposed to be waiting on customers at the video store.

The mysterious glowing contents of the suitcase the hitmen are after comes straight from "Kiss Me Deadly." Dinner with Vincent and his boss, sexy wife (Uma Thurman) takes place in a wildly decorated homage to the '50s, where the wait staff masquerades as Buddy Holly and Marilyn Monroe.

Tarantino even makes reference to himself in a gruesome bit in a pawn shop basement. It's even more perverse than the controversial torture scene from his previous film, but somehow less real.

Movie geek hero or just this month's flavor? With the success of "Pulp Fiction" comes serious concerns that Tarantino will fall into the same trap David Lynch did with "Wild at Heart" and "Twin Peaks: Fire Walk with Me." With only two films under his belt, Tarantino already risks becoming a parody of himself.

LINDA R. CHEN

Tango: Uma Thurman and John Travolta star in Quentin Tarantino's "Pulp Fiction."

A first-place award at Cannes may have given it a pedigree, but "Pulp Fiction," like its '30s and '40s magazine namesakes, is something to be enjoyed for a few quick thrills and then more or less discarded into our own cluttered movie memories.

'Only You' contest winners

"The most coincidental of meetings often leads to ties that bind." That's our conclusion after reading over two dozen entries in the "Only You" contest.

We asked readers to tell us how fate played a role in their meeting the man or woman of their dreams, much like how in the new movie "Only You" a fortune teller gives Maria Tomei the name of her future husband. She begins a search for him that takes her to Italy.

We picked a winner and runner-up, but it wasn't easy. The winner is Judy Wantuck of Farmington Hills, who met her husband when she was an Indiana telephone operator and helped him place a phone call to his mother in Buffalo, N.Y.

Our runner-up is Ralph Zerbosia, also of Farmington Hills, who was fixed up by a couple that he fixed up.

The Wantucks win dinner for two at Too Chez Restaurant in Novi. The Zerbosias win his and her's "Only You" T-shirts. (If you read his letter, you'll see that he already got a nice dinner out of the deal.)

Here are some letter excerpts, first from Judy Wantuck:

"I was working as a long distance operator for General Telephone in Lafayette, Ind. when my future husband, then a student at Purdue University, called his mom from a pay phone outside the math building."

"I said, 'Deposit 65 cents for the first three minutes, please.'"

"He said, 'Operator, you sound neat, why not call me back after work?'"

"The next night we went out for a date, and we were married 13 months later."

"That was, of course, when you spoke to a real operator, as opposed to a recording, and in the days when you put real money in the pay phone, as opposed to calling card numbers."

"The fateful call took place in May 1968. We recently celebrated our 25th wedding anniversary — in Lafayette, Ind., of course, at a restaurant near the General Telephone of Indiana building."

And an excerpt from Ralph Zerbosia:

"I introduced Barry and Marilyn, who ultimately married. The next year, I had broken up with my fiancée and was depressed."

"One evening, I was invited to Barry and Marilyn's for dinner. I hastily accepted, since Marilyn's cooking was superb."

"Upon being seated at the dinner table, I noticed a slip of paper under my dinner plate. Opening the paper, I saw Mary Jane's name and phone number."

"Call her or no dinner," was Marilyn's promise (or threat)."

"My extreme hunger for excellent food made me promise to call. We're now married for 18 years!"

Saturday will be sweet if you're thinking about love

Sweetest Day is Saturday, in case you didn't know. On the romance calendar, Sweetest Day doesn't rank with anniversary, birthday or Valentine's Day observances. But it scores higher than Columbus Day (unless you're a federal employee who gets to take that one off) or St. Bridgid's Day.

So if you didn't know Saturday's significance, we'd advise you to pretend you did. We'd also advise you to observe Sweetest Day in a manner you deem appropriate.

In the spirit of romance, we offer excerpts from letters readers wrote in to our "Only You" contest.

■ Linda Cockfield, Canton:

"I first saw him from afar at the Livonia Mall when I was 13 years old. The second time, he was sitting in the back of my 10th grade marketing class. After a few days of trading stares, he didn't come to class anymore. I was heart-broken. The third time, I was at a carnival with my boyfriend and saw him at one of the games. Then, in the summer of '69, my best friend wanted me to come with her to meet her boyfriend at Big Chef. I see her boyfriend coming toward us from a distance and he's with someone. It's him! Gary and I have been married for over 25 years and have two grown children."

■ Deborah Tracey, Redford:

"When I was a little girl playing with dolls, I always named them Tracy. I don't know where I got the name, but I liked it a lot. As I got older, I always thought I would name one of my daughters Tracy. Now I am married and have five children, and we all have Tracy for a last name. The man I fell in love with and married is John Tracey. It's spelled a little different but is the name I grew up loving."

■ Janet Reckemmer, Farmington:

"My husband and I met on a blind date during our senior year of college. The date was horrible. It rained so hard that our clothes were soaking wet. We went roller skating, and I showed my lack of skill by knocking over small children and falling on my behind. The conversation dragged. Shawn did not speak to me for the rest of the semester. We graduated and went our separate ways. The following October I went back to college for homecoming. The first person I ran into was Shawn. He waved and called out my name. If I could have hidden, I would have. A few days later, he called me and asked me out. We went out the following weekend and it was great — the conversation flowed and we had a wonderful evening. We got married a year and four months later."

■ Don Hadley, Farmington

"A series of coincidences brought me and my wife together eight years ago. I had been through a painful divorce. My 12-year-old daughter and I decided to go to Arizona on vacation. In Phoenix, we entered a six-mile run. Meanwhile, my soon-to-be-wife, a student at a massage therapy college, had declined an opportunity to volunteer at the race. My daughter and I ran, and she begged me to sign us up for a post-race massage nearby. I agreed after spotting my future wife among the massage therapy students (she had reconsidered and volunteered). I called her later to invite her to dinner with my daughter. After a long-distance mail and phone courtship, we married six years ago."

■ Sue Cee, Rochester Hills:

"Forty years ago as a teenager, my best girlfriend was asked out by a man named John. She asked me if she should go. I said, 'I wouldn't go out with that creep.' Then he asked me out. What was I to do? He wasn't such a creep to me, he was just a creep for asking my girlfriend out. So I said yes and went out with him. John and I have been married for 35 years."

Escape this weekend to a bed-and-breakfast inn

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Summers in Michigan are often spent sun-worshipping on the coasts. When temperatures drop and the leaves start to change, travelers can find some of the best fall views in the state's interior and especially at their favorite bed-and-breakfast inns.

Mendon Country Inn

The circa 1870 Mendon Country Inn, toward the west side of the state in rural Mendon, thrives in the fall. Pumpkins dot nearby fields and Amish farmers harvest corn. The local district congregates at dusk.

The activity-oriented inn offers everything from fall color tours to canoe trips on the adjoining St. Joseph River. When the leaves change, the water reflects the colors. Innkeeper Dick Baerle says, "You're floating down with all this color above, around, and below you in the water."

Native American accents highlight the suites, located in a renovated house on the property. Many units have Jacuzzis and fireplaces. A light breakfast is served in the main house Pudding Room, where vintage signs advertise Mendon shops from long ago.

So popular has the Mendon Country Inn been with return guests that Baerle has opened another inn nearby. Called Sanctuary Wildwood, it provides 93 acres of woods and wildlife, including four miles of nature trails.

We try to bring the outdoors into all the rooms, most of which have a balcony that looks right out into maple and tulip trees," says Baerle. He compares the wooded view to the foothills of the Smokey Mountains, "just without the mountains."

Greencrest Manor

Battle Creek's stately Greencrest Manor boasts tree varieties including butternut, European horse chestnuts, and some of the state's largest Japanese maples. After a walk around the lake, guests often visit the nearby Kellogg Bird Sanctuary.

Inside, five guest rooms are decorated in English and French styles. Breakfast here is served on Wedgwood china and crystal, yet the entire stay, thanks to innkeepers Tom and Kathy Vanduff, remains delightfully comfortable and unpretentious.

Locust Manor

Daye and Char Fromme have been shocked to discover the number of guests from neighboring suburbs who choose their Farmington Hills inn as a getaway. Their Locust Manor, located off Grand River, once housed original radio Lone Ranger Earl Graser.

Now the meticulously renovated Greek Revival home welcomes overnight guests in three guest rooms, all with private baths. Excited about their first fall as innkeepers, the Frommes have been busy buying corn stalks, pumpkins, and jugs of apple cider.

Many guests enjoy the formal teas and dinners at Mrs. Lovell's Tea Room, just a mile away on Grand River. Cider mills are just minutes away in Franklin and Northville.

Lakeview Hills Country Inn

The number one activity for guests at Lakeview Hills Country Inn is hiking. After all, the Lewiston inn has 14 1/2 miles of groomed trails on 160 acres. Stand on the inn's back porch or croquet court, overlooking a dramatic sea of colorful trees, and you're at the state's highest elevation.

Inside the inn, host Shirley Chapoton keeps guests happy with hot cider, fireplace conversation and whirlpool privileges. She's an antiques dealer, so the themed guest rooms are filled with carefully picked treasures from sleek Art Deco to high Victorian.

Many guests, according to Chapoton, enjoy a crisp fall afternoon on one of fourteen (soon to be sixteen) championship golf courses nearby.

Dusty's English Inn

The fall season at Dusty's English Inn near Lansing culminates with elaborate Thanksgiving dinners. The chef prepares seasonal specialties such as turkey, ham, goose, and pheasant, and, of course, pumpkin pie. The hearty laugh you hear probably belongs to innkeeper Clarence "Dusty" Rhodes.

Dinner is served in three dining rooms, one surrounded by three walls of windows, another lined with rare matchbook quilted paneling. If last year was any indication of the dinner's popularity, you'll want to book at least two weeks ahead.

According to restaurant manager Tony Grant, overnight guests are treated extra-specialty.

"When people call, we try to design packages to fit their needs," he says. "We've sent people out in a canoe with a picnic lunch and a bottle of wine . . . we also have a deal set up with a couple of nearby golf courses."

At dusk, overnight and dinner guests stroll the inn's 15 wooded acres. The picturesque Grand River runs right through Dusty's backyard.

While fall weekends fill up fast at the best inns, there is one consolation. A last-minute call can sometimes result in an unforeseen cancellation.

Wish you were here

Just puttin' around: Bonnie Boyer-Shaw, Jody Shaw, Jeanne Nowak, Ashlee Boyer-Shaw, Shane Nowak, Matt Nowak and Stephanie Babbit of Westland played a round of putt-putt golf with their Observer in Myrtle Beach, S.C., in August.

Take us along on vacation

Thank you for sharing your vacation photos with us. We're trying to get in as many as we can. If your photo hasn't appeared in Let's Go! yet, don't fret, it will!

It's fun to share news about your family vacation with friends and neighbors by sending photos to the Observer.

To be considered, take your Observer newspaper on vacation and snap a photograph of your family holding the newspaper in a scenic spot.

We'll print as many photos as space allows each week. Photos will be returned shortly after publication.

We're also looking for recommendations for good places to go with families — overnight, for a weekend or week. What's your favorite winter getaway? Is it some place warm or cold?

Send photos and travel recommendations to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer Newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. For more information, call (313) 953-2105.

STREET SOUNDS

Love Spit Love
— Love Spit Love

Until they broke up in the early '90s, the Psychedelic Furs were one of the most distinctive-sounding bands ever. A song could have featured a dozen kazoo against a Mexican samba beat, but as soon as the cold, British accent of singer Richard Butler was heard, it was instantly recognizable as the Furs.

Their albums were mostly filler, but always with one or two great singles that made purchasing them worthwhile. Now imagine an album full of "Love My Way"—"Pretty in Pink"—"Until She Comes"—quality material (one that's not a greatest-hits collection, anyway) and you have the self-titled debut album from Butler's new band, Love Spit Love (Imago). He keeps his brother Tim, also from the Furs, on bass, but injects new life into familiar-sounding material with guitarist Richard Fortus. Fortus, who also takes songwriting credits on about half the tunes, drives tracks like "Change in the Weather," and the Jane's Addiction-like opener "Seventeen."

But the best song belongs to the Butlers. Their "Superman" explodes with a force the Furs never had. "Wake Up" soars on a hopeful acoustic guitar. The album's undisputed centerpiece also is possibly the best single of the year so far—"Am I Wrong." It showcases a warm Butler vocal backed by wistful chorus changes with beautiful results. Although the voice is the same, the music is definitely different. And in this case, different is very good.

(Love Spit Love performs with the Gigolo Aunts at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Friday, Oct. 14. For more information, call (313) 961-MEET.)

A Rochester Hills resident, Todd Wicks is a student at Michigan State University.

Home Cookin'
— Candye Kane

With a voice that falls somewhere between Patsy Cline and Peggy Lee, Candye Kane's sassy and saucy delivery is from that ribald era when blues, R&B and country all intersected, in the late 1940s and early 1950s.

"Why'd You Have To Say That 'L Word,'" for instance, sounds like it could have been an alternate version to "Why Don't You Do Right." "You Don't Love Me No More," co-written with Dave Gonzales, and "Babylon Boogie," co-written with husband Tom Yearsley, both of the Paladins, have the sort of infectious beat that propelled Peggy Lee and Louis Jordan, respectively, to fame. Once you get comfortable with that style, though, she'll duck over to the country side of her persona (you can also find her on the "A Town South of Bakersfield" country compilation.)

"Dance Hall Girls," a steel-guitar extravaganza that laments the strip club business, a former occupation for feminist Kane, and the Tex-Mex "She Wore a Red Carnation," with lyrics in English and Spanish, are show-stoppers.

Duetting with labelmate Kim Wilson of Fabulous Thunderbirds fame on her superb "Don't Blame It On Me," a song soaked in the Peggy Lee "Fever" groove, she has a W.C. Handy award contender on her hands.

(Candye Kane performs at Sully's, 4758 Greenfield, Dearborn, on Wednesday, Oct. 19. Call (313) 846-5377 for more information.)

Mark Gallo is a Farmington Hills resident and longtime blues fan.

"Soul Fixin' Man"
— Luther Allison

Think the blues aren't enjoying their greatest popularity ever? Otis Rush released his first domestic album in well over a decade. Luther Tucker—a major figure in the Texas blues scene for the past 20 years—released his solo debut.

Add to that list the sizzling guitar work of Luther Allison, whose Alligator Records' debut is one of the year's best efforts. One of Rush's most famous proteges, the stellar guitarist/vocalist has his first domestic release in 16 years and this return to electric top form is a welcome one.

Produced by Jim Gaines (who has worked with Albert Collins and Stevie Ray Vaughan), this has all the earmarks of a classic, from the soulful "She Was Born That Way" to the Albert King-ish grooves of "Gave It All."

Based in Paris for the past decade, Allison can trace the first big boost of his career to an appearance at the 1969 Ann Arbor Blues Festival and his headlining of the same in 1970 and 1971. Twenty-five years later, he's not only better and more assured, he is one of the elder statesmen of the Chicago electric blues, and this is a vital set of music that no self-respecting blues fan will want to do without.

(Luther Allison plays Sully's, 4758 Greenfield Road, Dearborn, on Sunday, Oct. 16. Call (313) 846-5377.)

Diverse tastes, successful careers

■ One musician is spiritual, the other is a tad on the wild side. Together, the duo has two hit bands on their hands — Delerium and Front Line Assembly.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Anger doesn't rule the lives of industrial or metal bands, and Bill Leeb and Rhys Fulber are out to prove that.

Primarily known for their work with the stomp-heavy Front Line Assembly, the duo is now successful with Delerium, an ambient project filled with ethnic and tribal influences.

"I think doing Front Line was always such an 'energy-zapper' kind of music," said Leeb, who admits he'd rather listen to an entire Delerium album than Front Line Assembly. "Once we finished Front Line, I always felt like I needed to do something ambient and spiritual to collect my thoughts. It balances my life out."

To achieve that, the band released "Semantic Spaces" (Netwerk), Delerium's first widely released and aptly promoted record. For this record, the band's seventh since its 1987 creation, Leeb and Fulber took a chance and recruited little-known Canadian singer Kristy Thirk of the Rose Chronicles to carry the music. Leeb admits he was a little apprehensive about hiring the angelic-voiced Thirk, but he said the result was "a nice surprise."

"I heard her in her band. I wasn't so keen on the music, but I thought she had a good voice. I thought if she had the right music it could be kind of interesting," said Leeb said of Delerium's first release with a vocalist.

"Interested" is an accurate way of describing the reaction of Detroit and Windsor audiences. The response to the first single, "Incantation," has boosted sales of the album in the cities making the area one of the band's biggest markets. Mary Wyatt of Repeat the Beat's Plymouth store said she couldn't keep the album in stock because it was selling so fast. Sales have slowed a little, but if the band were to tour, the numbers would start rising once again, she said.

Now that "Semantic Spaces" is resting on its own laurels, the duo switched gears earlier this week to release the new Front Line album "Millennium" (Roadrunner). Front Line fans who thought that it was strange to hear the band produce ambient music will be even more surprised with "Millennium."

"We've incorporated Pantera guitars and stuff like that" to Front Line's trademark electronic beats and samples, Leeb said. On top of that, rappers from Netwerk labelmates P.O.W.E.R. appear on the album as guest vocalists. As Leeb anticipated, the experiment has boded well with metal fans, but he realizes that it may alienate long-time listeners.

"We've been doing (interviews with) all these (metal) magazines. We may double our audience. Those magazines wouldn't even touch us before. We're trying to grow within our world. In order to grow, we might lose some old fans," he acknowledged.

Leeb is already thinking about Delerium's next record, however. Using a vocalist worked out so well with "Semantic Spaces" that he'd like to use a handful of female singers the next time. Canadian pop chanteuse Sarah McLachlan has already shown interest. ("She kind of dug it," Leeb said.) He hopes to pique the interest of Dead Can Dance's Lisa Gerrard, too.

While Delerium is a taste of Leeb's spiritual sense, the heavy guitars in "Millennium" is a reflection of the personality of his partner Fulber.

"He's a young, 23-year-old guy who's gotten his whole body pierced and (is) running out of control," Leeb said of Fulber, the son of a punk rock musician who joined Front Line when he was 16. "I'm on the spiritual side. I get lost in the mountains (on the weekends) and come back. We have these opposite personalities, but it works well in the studio."

"If we were both exactly the same, our music would be really one-sided. The fact that we have different personalities adds all these dimensions to everything. In the end, that's what's really different."

In a packed Ritz Carlton ballroom, journalists and supermarket chain food buyers grilled Linda McCartney about the nutrition value, calorie count, and marketability of her new "Home Style Cooking Meatless Entrees" line of frozen foods.

But the toughest question came from an English chap in the back of the room: "What does your husband think of this?"

With that, famed ex-Beatle Paul McCartney charged to the front of the room, plopped down in a chair next to his wife and proclaimed his opinion: "Damn good stuff."

Fairmount Foods of Minnesota is hoping that the Detroit-area public will feel the same way later this month when local stores begin stocking McCartney's food. Chains that have committed so far include Danny's, Farmer Jack, Shopping Center Markets, Kroger, Hollywood markets, Kinart Superstore and Meijers.

The meatless line, which reflects the McCartneys' vegetarian lifestyle, primarily offers pasta and Mexican dishes, such as Spaghetti Milano, Lasagna Roma, Pasta Provencale, Pasta Primavera, Rigatoni Mariposa, Chill Non-Carne, Burrito Grande, Bavarian Goulash and Fettucine Alfredo.

She chose these entrees to try to contradict the misconception that vegetarian dishes aren't as tasty as those made with meat.

"Meat, actually, is like when you bite the side of your mouth. Meat has no taste. It's what you flavor it with and you can do the same (with vegetarian dishes)," McCartney said.

Although loaded with cheeses, McCartney stressed that all of her dishes are low in cholesterol.

"There's no cholesterol in non-meat products. Therefore, if you compared it to meat products, it's a lot healthier," said McCartney who added that it takes two weeks to digest meat.

"Probably the best argument is that it's good for your health. Why eat something that's going to kill you," Paul added.

If her line of foods takes off, she plans on extending the assortment by offering dishes for vegans and those with restricted diets. She's also considering allowing her product to be sold in restaurant chains, if they subscribe to the same beliefs as the couple.

"I'd love to. Rainforests are being chopped down to make hamburgers. It has to be the right places. If we go with them, we don't want to support them," McCartney said.

Devout animal lovers, the McCartneys became vegetarians while visiting Scotland about 20 years ago.

"As a kid, I was an animal lover. It never occurred to me that we had to murder them to eat them," she said. "The future plan is for everyone to go veggie."

New endeavor: Linda McCartney was joined by her husband/famed ex-Beatle Paul to introduce the frozen food line last week.

'64 Patriots return

Remember 1964? That was the year Lyndon B. Johnson won the presidential election by a landslide over Barry Goldwater, not to mention the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, the Civil Rights Bill and the Warren Commission Report.

That football season was also remembered for its Big 10 champion (Michigan), Heisman Trophy winner (John Huarte of Notre Dame) and NFL champion (Cleveland beat Baltimore, 27-0).

Closer to home, Livonia Franklin High School, barely four years old, made a name for itself on the gridiron by going undefeated.

That school's first undefeated varsity football team will hold their 30-year reunion Saturday when Franklin takes on Northville. (Game time is 1 p.m.)

Former players and coaches are asked to meet outside Claude Snary Field at 12:30 p.m.

"If you're late, you'll run laps," said team captain Sam Antonazzo, a star two-way back who still holds Western Michigan University's single-game interception mark with four. That team also featured former major leaguer Bernie Carbo, who played in two World Series with the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox.

The 1964 Patriots finished 9-0, including a Northwest Suburban League championship and a 32-0 thumping of Suburban Eight champ Livonia Bentley (for the city title). Coached by Bob Bentley, Franklin outscored its opponents 246-25 on the year.

Prior to the city championship game, the late Walt Cosens, then an assistant coach, planted a letter allegedly sent from members of the Bentley team.

"It basically stated we were champs of the 'Pee Wee League,'" ex-player Ken Bratherton recalls. "Enough said. The next day, the names of the Bentley interior line and quarterback were written in large letters on our practice dummies. By the end of the week, the seams were splitting and the stuffing coming out on all."

Antonazzo, who can be reached at (810) 625-0396, also would like to locate these missing players: John Saven, Rex Bennett, Neil Maitland, Pete Otto, Larry Brennan, John Dombrosky, Mark Chard and Larry Naifeh.

Canton's flurry ties up Stevenson

The Spartans did what they had to do. They overcame a lackluster first-half performance and dominated play in a manner only they are capable of — for about 20 minutes.

By C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

If this is a preview, the next two chapters in this series will be something to savor.

After all, Wednesday night's match between Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Canton meant nothing. The format for the Western Lakes Activities Association soccer playoffs had long been determined; this was just the final regular-season game.

But there was still something to be gained, and if the end result is any measure — a 3-3 tie, forged by the home-field Chiefs with two Chip Dale goals in the last five minutes — then it was Canton who was the winner.

What did Stevenson have to prove? The Spartans came into the match ranked No. 1 in the state. They were expected to win.

The Chiefs were determined not to let that happen without a fight.

So what was gained? "I think (Stevenson) knows they're going to have to play next Wednesday."

Both teams are now idle until their rematch in six days. Same place, same time, but with much more at stake. They'll square off for the league title.

And even that may not be the final installment. Both are in the Redford Union state district; they could meet in the final in just over two weeks.

Canton broke out on top, netting a goal with just 19.2 seconds remaining in the first half when Jake Rea centered a pass to Dale, who headed it past Stevenson keeper Jim Grewe.

The Spartans had seemed sluggish in the first half. They weren't in the second.

They took control immediately and got on the scoreboard after a Canton trip just outside the penalty area. Steve Williford left-footed a shot perfectly, over keeper George Tomasso and into the corner of the Canton net to tie it at 1-1 with 33:09 left.

That was only the beginning. Just 1:14 later, Williford lined up another free kick, this one from 40 yards out. He lofted the ball from the right side to the left, where Matt Quinter headed it past Tomasso to make it 2-1.

The Spartans upped their lead to 3-1 at 27:25 — Shannon Lamb centered a ball from the right wing into the box, where Nick Deren headed it in.

Everything was going Stevenson's way. But then...

"I tried to protect some of my better players late in the game, and we didn't get any calls, and they tied us," summarized Stevenson coach Walt Barrett.

Both teams had key players with yellow cards (Dale, Jeff Fliss, Graham Wilk for Canton; Quinter, Steve Ingrao for Stevenson). Another yellow and they would miss next week's match.

With 4:56 left and a number of substitutes in for Stevenson (including back-up keeper Todd Smith), Dale scored his second goal off a rebound, trimming Stevenson's lead to 3-2 and reigniting Canton.

The Chiefs kept pressuring until Fliss was tripped just outside the penalty area and an indirect kick was awarded with 2:23 remaining.

Spartan girls bring home trophy

By BRAD EMOSS
STAFF WRITER

For years, Livonia Stevenson coach George Croll has annually hosted the Western Lakes Activities Association girls tennis tournament.

But 1994 is the first time Croll can say his Spartans are the outright WLAA champions.

The same holds true for Plymouth Salem's Jennifer Clack.

She has been the Rocks' No. 1 singles player for the past four years, but on Tuesday, Clack won her first WLAA individual crown with a hard-earned 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 triumph over Walled Lake Central senior Rachel Clanton.

Stevenson, the dual meet champion going in with a 9-0 record, paced the 12-team field with 19 points. Central and Farmington tied for second with 17 apiece. Northville and North Farmington finished with 15 and 14, respectively. See statistical summary on page 5C.

TENNIS

"We were 12th in the state three years ago, but Farmington (Hills) Harrison beat us out by a half-point in the conference tournament," Croll said. "This is my first with the girls in 16 years and the first since we joined the Western Lakes."

"And I'm glad we didn't back into it. We won both the dual and conference. The girls played awfully well."

Stop volley: Stevenson freshman Whitney Crosby reached the semifinals at No. 1 singles before losing to Rachel Clanton of Walled Lake Central.

Stevenson won three individual flights.

At No. 4 singles, senior Sandy Peacock raised her season record to 13-2 with a 7-5, 6-4 triumph over Central's Mandy Kowal.

The Spartans also reached three of four doubles finals.

They took the No. 3 flight when senior Carol Mizzi and freshman Megan McGlinch downed Northville's Shelley Morgan and Lisa Cousineau, 6-4.

At No. 4, a pair of freshmen, Lindsay Pfeifer and Anita Plante, upended Northville's Amanda Nelson and Sarah Johnson, 6-3, 6-2.

"I was really proud of those two," Croll said of the freshman duo. "They came back after being down 5-2 in the third set."

Meanwhile, Stevenson's No. 2 team of Pam Samsel and Kajal Badani went to the limit in a third set tiebreaker before losing to Northville's Kyley Mills and Meghan Connery, 7-6, 6-7, 7-6.

"Obviously Sandy Peacock came through," Croll said, "but we also beat North Farmington at No. 2, 3 and 4 doubles in the semifinals, and that was key."

Second-place Farmington did not come away with any individual titles, but reached the finals in two flights.

At No. 3 singles, Walled Lake Central junior Danielle Goethood downed Farmington senior Christine Mahon, 6-0, 6-1.

At No. 1 doubles, Harrison sophomore Sarah Kloosterman won for the second straight year, but this time with a new partner, junior Sheryl Wolf. They defeated Farmington's senior tandem of Leslie Britt and Devon Woodruff, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"We wanted to win all our matches in the first two rounds, and we did that," Farmington coach Doug Hill said. "We came out with 10 points, but we knew it would be tough the rest of the way. Northville knocked out our No. 2, 3 and 4 doubles teams in the semifinals, and that hurt us."

Boys Bowl celebrates 50th anniversary tilt

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

No matter how old it gets, it will always be called the Boys Bowl.

One of the granddaddies of high school football games in Michigan turns 50 on Sunday, when Redford Catholic Central and Birmingham Brother Rice meet in the annual game before an expected crowd of 8,000 at Pontiac's Winer Stadium.

CC has played in each Boys Bowl dating back to 1944.

CC's first opponent, and one of the reasons the game got its name, was national powerhouse Boys Town, which would travel from Omaha, Neb. for the battle. CC and Boys Town played 14 games between 1944-58 (with the exception of 1946, when no game was played), with Boys Town winning nine.

The games were played at Briggs Stadium (now Tiger Stadium) in front of crowds of more than 40,000. CC Alumni Director Father Richard Elmer was a student at CC when the first Boys Bowl was played.

Boys Town must not have been expecting a big crowd.

"CC offered to share the gate or give Boys Town a flat rate (the first game)," recalls Elmer. "Boys Town didn't know how big the gate would be and settled for a flat rate, which was $7,500. From then on, they wanted to share the gate."

In 1952, Detroit Mayor Albert Cobo officially named the game the Boys Bowl.

University of Detroit Jesuit, Notre Dame and Detroit Cathedral were Boys Bowl opponents from 1959 through 1965 before the CC-Rice rivalry began in 1966.

The CC-Rice series is even, 14-14, but it's been one-sided recently, with CC winning eight of the last nine meetings.

Ron Williams, who now has nine grandchildren, remembers the early Boys Bowls and started at linebacker and center for the Shamrocks in the 1919 Boys Bowl. Players didn't have face masks then.

FOOTBALL

"You could see a lot better," joked Williams, who has been married 39 years to wife Mary Ann, and works in sales. "When it got rough, fingers and elbows certainly were weapons."

Some of the most memorable Boys Bowls were played in the late '70s and early '80s, when Rice won several close games against CC.

Rice quarterback Dave Yarema played in his first Boys Bowl at age 14 in 1978. Yarema, who later starred at Michigan State University, remembers Rice winning 20-14 in 1980 when the Warriors' star defensive back Brad Cochran returned a kickoff for a touchdown in the second half.

Aaron Roberts was the last guy Brad had to beat. Brad put a move on Aaron right in front of the Rice bench and Aaron just melted in his tracks," recalled Yarema, a manufacturing sales representative for Yarema Die & Engineering in Troy.

Jim Ryan, a 1981 CC graduate, has played and coached in the Boys Bowl. A starting linebacker, Ryan was called upon to be the Shamrocks' long snapper in the 1979 game when starting center Mike Baucus went down with an injury.

Ryan was snapping when the Shamrocks won the game 10-7 in double overtime.

"We called it the 'Dream kick,' because after the game our kicker 'Deke' (Richard) Micunek told (sportscaster) Ron Cameron after the game that he dreamt of kicking the winning field goal," said Ryan, who is running for House of Representatives in the 16th district.

Ryan said one of his best memories as an assistant coach from '89 through '93 was when the Shamrocks called for a draw play on fourth down and long in the 1990 game. Fullback Jon Barbara got the ball and scored to give CC a 21-0 halftime lead.

"21-0 at halftime of the Boys Bowl is huge," Ryan said.

Fuzzy playoff picture set to clear up

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

It's crunch time for Observer-land football teams, and six games this week will impact or determine division championships as well as playoff chances.

The big ones Friday are the Farmington-Livonia, Stevenson and Westland-Glenn-Plymouth-Salem games that will decide the Lakes Division title.

Here's the situation:

If Glenn wins, it will be a co-champ with the Farmington-Stevenson winner, but the key is who gets to represent the division in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game.

If Stevenson and Glenn win, Stevenson goes to the final because it beat Glenn; if Glenn and Farmington win, Glenn gets the nod based on head-to-head competition.

If Salem beats Glenn, either Stevenson or Farmington will be the only 4-1 team and the outright champion.

On Saturday, the Farmington-Harrison-Plymouth-Canton game will decide the Western Division winner and the other WLAA finalist.

Wayne Memorial has an important Mega Conference-Red Division game Saturday when it plays host to unbeaten and No. 2-ranked (Class AA) Belleville.

On Sunday, the Catholic League takes its turn.

Redford Catholic Central tees it up against archrival Birmingham Brother Rice in the 50th anniversary of the Boys Bowl.

The tradition began with CC playing host to Boystown from Nebraska, but Rice has provided the opposition since 1966.

A pair of Class D powers, Redford St. Agatha and Center Line St. Clement, clash on the East Side in a key Catholic C-Section game Sunday, also.

In the prediction contest, Dan O'Meara maintains a slim lead after going 11-3 last week to put his overall record at 69-20. Brad Emons was 10-4 and is 66-23.

GRID PICKS

FRIDAY GAMES

(Times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

S'gate Anderson at Redford Union, 7: The Panthers (2-2/2-3) haven't won in a month, and the schedule continues to be against them. It was Dearborn and Monroe the last two weeks, and now Mega White leader Southgate (5-0/5-1). RU quarterback Brian Bryman is also a fine pitcher and has committed to play baseball for the University of Michigan. PICKS: The Titans go on safari, capture a panther.

Liv. Churchill at W.L. Western: This will be Churchill's best chance for a win, but the Chargers (0-4/0-6) have scored only 23 points and continue to struggle to find their offense. Western's only win was over Franklin, which beat Churchill last week 29-9. The Warriors (1-3/1-5) have scored just 37 points and aren't that much more productive. PICKS: A Wild West showdown. Western outdraws Churchill.

Farmington at Liv. Stevenson: The Spartans (3-1/5-1) are in control of their own destiny. If they win, they play for the WLAA championship. The Falcons (3-1/5-1) need a helping hand, however. This should be a battle in the trenches. Both are solid running teams with strong offensive lines. Farmington tailback Jake Siskosky can break Chris Manning's single season and career rushing records this week. He has 824 yards this year and 1,447 in the last two. Starting rushed for 989 in 1991, and 1,518 during his career. PICKS: Emons campaigns for Adair; O'Meara casts a vote for the Falcons.

Westland Glenn at Ply. Salem: The Rocks (2-2/3-3) have won their last two and appear to be coming on, but Salem has always had trouble with Glenn. The Rockets (3-1/3-3) saw their three-game win streak come to an end and are nursing some injuries after the loss to Stevenson. Glenn can win with a berth in the championship game but needs help from Farmington. PICKS: Lincoln's crystal ball is a shiny rock; O'Meara forecasts a Glenn victory.

Garden City at Taylor Kennedy: The Cougars (2-2/2-4) snapped a three-game losing streak by beating Thurston 33-12, but they will have a hard time of a challenge from Kennedy (2-2/3-3) in this Mega White game. Thurston, Dearborn and Southgate are common opponents; it looks like a tossup on paper. PICKS: The Eagles stay airborne.

SATURDAY GAMES

(Times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Northville at Liv. Franklin: The Patriots (1 1/2/1-5) plan to honor the 1964 undefeated team coached by Bob Bentley. Such former standouts as Sam Antonioz, Larry Vaughn, Roger Frayer and Bernie Carlo (Boston Red Sox) will be on hand and possibly inspire another Franklin victory. The Patriots hope to make it two straight, but Northville (3-1/3-3) is coming off a big win, too, after opening Plymouth Canton 14-9. PICKS: The Mustangs kick up their heels.

Ply. Canton at F.H. Harrison: Canton's loss to Northville reduced the appeal of this game, but it should still be the toughest Western Division game for the Hawks (4-0/5-1). Harrison is guaranteed a share of the title, but a loss this week would mean the Chiefs (3-1/3-3) go to the WLAA championship game. So it remains a winner-take-all situation. Injuries have hurt the Hawks, who are down to 28 players, but sophomore quarterback Kevin Bambenek has done well replacing injured senior Jake Lawson. Canton also has a new QB, Rob Johnson, who took over for senior Brett Eledge when the latter suffered a concussion last Friday. PICKS: Harrison is undisputed champ for the 12th time in 13 years.

W.L. Central at N. Farmington: Can the Raiders rebound? A week ago they were at their peak but went flat against Salem, allowing as many points (28) in that game as they did in the first five combined. North (1-3/3-3) must win to avoid being Central for last place in the Lakes and keep alive its outside playoff chances. The Vikings (0-4/2-4) have lost four in a row. PICKS: North makes a comeback.

Belleville at Wayne Memorial: The No. 2-ranked Tigers (4-0/6-0) feature a potent offense led by junior back Ian Gold. Belleville averages 36 points a game, but just as impressive is the 31 total points the defense has allowed. This is the start of a rough three-game stretch for the Zebras (3-1/5-1), who play Dearborn, Fordson, and archrival Westland Glenn the last two weeks. Wayne can gain a share of the Mega Red title by beating the Tigers and hoping Belleville beats Monroe next week. The Zebras are scoring 31 points per game, but the defense is allowing an average of 20. PICKS: The Tigers prey on their host.

Taylor Center at Red. Thurston: The Eagles (3-2/3-3) are soaring. Thurston has won three of its last four and bounced back from the loss to Allen Park to whip Metrolina 24-7. Annapolis is the only team Center has beaten, and the Rams are tied for last in the Mega Blue. The Eagles can't afford to let down against the lesser teams in the division, however. PICKS: Thurston takes the bull, or, the Rams, by the horns.

Harper Wds. at Luth. Westland: Harper Woods (1 1/2/1-5) ended a five-game losing streak with a 22-16 win over Lutheran West last week. The Warriors (1-4/2-4) are looking for their first win in three weeks. Lutheran Westland coach Dennis Tuomi is expected to return after missing two games because of eye surgery. PICKS: The Warriors go on the war path.

Clarenceville at Luth. N'west: Clarenceville (4-1/4-2) puts its four-game winning streak on the line against a decent Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest backlot. Coach Chuck Donaldson has the Trojans playing well, allowing only 20 points in their last four games. Northwest (2-3/2-4) had a tough row to hoe in recent weeks and has lost three straight. PICKS: Five in a row for Clarenceville.

Aquinas at Bishop Borgess, 1:30 p.m. at Garden City Junior High: The winless Spartans (0-3/0-6) hope history repeats itself. They were in the same situation a year ago at this time and finished the season with three straight wins. This looks like their best chance to date. The Raiders (0-3/1-5) share last place with Borgess in the Tri-Sectional Division. Aquinas has lost five straight since beating Loyal Lutheran West, 26-0. PICKS: Emons puts his faith in Aquinas; O'Meara believes in Borgess.

SUNDAY GAMES

Redford CC vs. Brother Rice, 2 p.m. at Winer Stadium: For the first time in this decade, the Warriors (2-0/5-1) look like clear favorites in the annual Boys Bowl game. But no one should count out the Shamrocks (1-1/4-2), who have beaten Rice four straight times. The series is tied 14-14, but CC has won eight of the last nine games. The Shamrocks will do well against Rice's rushing attack, but the outcome will depend on whether they can defend the pass. CC needs a win to stay in playoff contention. PICKS: Rice is back on top.

St. Agatha at St. Clement, 2:30: The No. 10 (Class D) Agges (2-1/5-1) faced Mike Boyd and his Waterford Lakes team last week; now they get Boyd's future son-in-law, Chris Bell, and his unbeaten Crusaders (3-0/6-0).

Shamrocks romp past Notre Dame Irish, 30-0

Redford Catholic Central's football team ended a rare two-game losing streak on Saturday with a 30-0 victory against host Harper Woods Notre Dame.

The Shamrocks are 4-2 overall and 1-1 in the Catholic League Central Division heading into Sunday's 2 p.m. Boys Bowl Game against Birmingham Brother Rice at Pontiac Winer Stadium.

CC gained 325 total yards and held Notre Dame to 49 total yards, 34 on the ground.

CC quarterback Greg Call completed 6 of 8 passes for 85 yards and two touchdowns.

The Shamrocks took a 28-0 halftime lead and finished the scoring in the third quarter when lineman Brad Rainko tackled an NI player in the end zone. Rainko had two sacks and finished with 11 tackles.

The safety came after CC punter Ron Bialobrzeki had a 33-yard punt that landed on the ND 1. Bialobrzeki is averaging 41.7 yards per punt and 56.8 yards per kickoff.

CC started the scoring with 8:40 remaining in the first quarter as Ken Marzec returned a punt 69 yards for a score. Ron Bialobrzeki's first of four extra points made the score 7-0.

The Shamrocks got possession again at ND's 21 following an Irish punt of only 13 yards. Call found Rainko in the end zone for a 6-yard score with 4:23 left in the first quarter for a 14-0 lead.

The Shamrocks added a 10-play 62-yard scoring drive in the second quarter. Craig Wasen's 9-yard run finished the drive with 8:25 remaining for a 21-0 lead.

Following another short ND punt, CC ended the first-half scoring with a 37-yard TD pass from Call to Jim Aderny.

Junior fullback John Spolsky led the Shamrocks with 71 yards on 11 carries. Wasen had 69 yards on 13 carries.

Judah May and Rudy Kelly, Powell had one interception each.

Fabulous frosh

Stevenson 9th graders go 1-2-3

Three freshmen crossed the finish line first, pacing Livonia Stevenson to the Purple Division crown Saturday at the Ypsilanti Girls Cross Country Invitational.

Stevenson led the 11-team field with 37 points, followed by Monroe (63), Ann Arbor Huron (74), Brighton (95), Plymouth Canton (139), Adrian (171), Sylvania (182), Toledo Whitmer (193) and Temperance Bedford (243). Dearborn Fordson and Flint Northwestern did not score.

Kelly Travis (19:15), Kelly McNeilance (19:53) and Katie Chonacas (20:35) carried the Spartans in the 5,000-meter event.

Teammates Kelly Prais and Sarah Rieder took ninth and 17th, respectively, in 20:36 and 21:06.

Stevenson, spurred by first place finisher Jessica Cyburt (21:07) and third-place finisher Delia Dumitrescu (21:41), also captured the JV team title with 45 points.

Trenton wins relays

On Saturday, Trenton posted a first-place time of 43:47.9 to win the Livonia Franklin Relays at Nankin Mills.

Warriors 1st in relay

Brad Polkinghorne posted a two-mile split of 10:17.8, leading the Lutheran High Westland boys cross country team to the Livonia Franklin Relays championship Saturday at Nankin Mills.

Redford Union and Westland John Glenn finished second and third, respectively, in the team standings. Trenton, Franklin and Livonia Churchill also competed.

The Warriors' seven-member relay squad was combined for a time of 35:04.3.

Midweek included Jason Collins (4:56.1), Sam Patterson (5:00.1), Andy Ebendick (5:11.1) and Jon Schmoll (5:11.8).

Jason Burk and Chris Tierman ran 880-yard splits in 2:10.3 and 2:17.3, respectively.

On Tuesday, the Warriors ran their Metro Conference dual meet record to 4-0 with a 15-50 victory over Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest.

Lutheran Westland took the first seven spots in the 5,000-meter race led by Polkinghorne (16:57), Patterson (17:28), Collins (17:34), Tierman (18:01), Schmoll (18:09), Burk (18:26) and Ebendick (18:29).

GIRLS WRAP

Rounding out the field was Lutheran High Westland (45:23.0), Franklin (47:15.8), Livonia Churchill (48:43.2) and Westland John Glenn (49:51.0). Top split times came from Jodi Werhan (Lutheran Westland), two mile (12:52.2); Tracey Parker (Churchill), mile (6:00.9); Erin Sharp (Churchill), 880 lead-off leg (2:48.6); and Andrea LaBar, final 880 leg (2:44.0).

Other competitors for Lutheran Westland included Sarah Unger, Kate Sermett, Amy Ebendick, Jill Gerlach, Deb Unger and Heidi Schmoll.

Franklin was represented by Leah Morski, Suzie Lukofsky, LeeAnn Harrigan, Lisa DeShano, Meghan Broderick, Cassandra Gray and Rohyn Angelosanto.

Edsel wins invite

Dearborn Edsel Ford, scoring 26 points, took the Westland John Glenn Freshman-Sophomore Invitational at Central City Parkway.

Edsel's Andrea Mulhern took first in 19:56, while Belleville's Tammy Pitrowski finished second in 20:08.

Glenn's Marjorie Brooks was 15th (22:45).

Wojtowicz 1st for Glenn
Sophomore Joe Wojtowicz captured the Westland John Glenn Freshman-Sophomore Invitational Tuesday at Central City Parkway with a time of 17:04.

Redford CC took the team title with 38 points followed by Ypsilanti (68), Dearborn Edsel Ford (75), Dearborn (116), Ann Arbor Huron (145), Glenn (157), Northville (154), Belleville (205) and Garden City (no score).

CC finishers included: Dan O'Hara, second place (18:02); John Griffin (18:04); Chris Lane, sixth (18:10); Peter Smith, 11th (18:22); and Kevin Boyle, 14th (18:34).

Chargers lose again
Brian Galindo's second-place finish in 17:51 was not enough as Livonia Churchill fell to Northville in a Western Lakes Activities Association-Western Division meet, 22-34, Oct. 6 at Cass Benton Park.

Other finishers for the Chargers, now 0-4 overall and 0-3 in the WLA-Western Division, included Pat Nicholl, sixth (18:19); Steve DeLuca, seventh (18:43); Norm Fuchs, eighth (18:48); and Corey Cram, 11th (19:07).

BOYS WRAP

Redford Catholic Central won the Catholic League Central Division dual meet title for the fourth straight year with a 24-33 victory over host Warren DeLaSalle in a meet Monday at Stoney Creek Metropark.

DeLaSalle's Phil Sobek was first overall in 17 minutes, but CC took the next three spots led by Joe Leo (17:17), Phil Camilleri (17:53) and Matt Sroczynski (17:57).

Other CC carriers in the top 10 included Derrick Faunce, sixth (18:10); Mike Danic (18:26); and Rick Stachura (18:30).

On Saturday, CC's 'B' varsity team finished third in the Southgate Aquinas Invitational with 88 points. Wyandotte and Riverview Gabriel Richard took first and second with 15 and 82 points, respectively.

Top finishers for the Chargers (0-4, 0-3) included Tracey Parker, second (21:41); Jenny Duncan, fourth (22:36); Jeanette Martus, sixth (24:32); Peri Fresh, ninth (25:41); Karen Shaw, 10th (25:49).

Edsel's Andrea Mulhern took first in 19:56, while Belleville's Tammy Pitrowski finished second in 20:08.

Glenn's Marjorie Brooks was 15th (22:45).

Lady Ocelots progressing nicely after Macomb win

Perhaps the corner has been turned for Schoolcraft College's volleyball team.

Certainly roles are more clearly defined than ever. And the team's confidence is beginning to show, evident in Tuesday's 15-4, 15-5, 15-3 triumph over Eastern Conference rival Macomb CC at SC, and in last weekend's performance at the Jefferson College Tournament in Crystal City, Mo.

"That's the best we've done there in four years," said SC coach Tom Teeters of his team's 5-2, third-place showing at Jefferson College.

Barton County (Kan.) won the tournament, with Illinois Central CC second and SC third. Host team Jefferson was fourth, followed by Johnson CC (Kan.), Southwestern CC, Lake Michigan and Miami-Dade.

On Friday, the Lady Ocelots defeated Southwestern 15-13, 7-15, 15-12; lost to Barton 15-7, 15-6, and lost to Illinois Central 15-7, 15-8. On Saturday, they defeated Johnson 15-10, 15-6; Dade 15-8, 15-7; Lake Michigan 15-10, 15-7; and Jefferson 15-9, 15-8.

The SC attack continues to center around Julie Campau (from Livonia Churchill), who led the Ocelots in the tournament with 78 kills (6.2 per game), and Shannon Gottschalk, who had 70 kills (4.7 per game). Janet Zabivnik (Plymouth Canton) continued to show improvement as a setter, collecting more than 140 assists-to-kills (9.3 per game).

Vicki Rohruff (Wayne Memorial) added 16 service aces and Jannel Hemme (Livonia Ladywood) contributed 42 digs.

Teeters attributed his team's success to "Janet Zabivnik's improvement in setting, and Julie Campau and Shannon Gottschalk becoming more consistent (hitters), and Vicki Rohruff's serving, and the passing led by Michelle Hale and Jannel Hemme has improved.

"They have a lot of responsibility," Teeters added, referring to Campau and Gottschalk. "They have to hit at least 300, and they did."

Macomb didn't offer much of a challenge Tuesday. Gottschalk's 10 kills led SC; Campau added six and Ann Faba had five. Hemme totaled 12 digs. Zabivnik garnered 16 assists and Rohruff served up eight aces.

Although the 6-2 run improved SC's junior college record to 17-12-3 (the Ocelots are 4-2 in the conference), there's still much to be done, said Teeters. "To prevent side-outs, we have to block better," he said. "We have to have a stronger offense during our serve."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Friday (for Monday edition) and noon Tuesday (for Thursday edition). Items run once only.

COLLEGIATE HOCKEY

Eastern Michigan University's Eagles Hockey Club, fresh from last weekend's 8-3 win over Central Michigan and a 5-2 victory over Northwood, opens its Central State Collegiate Hockey League campaign, 9 p.m. Friday against the University of Minnesota and 8 p.m. Saturday against Iowa State.

Both games will be played at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer Street.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for students and $2 for seniors. (Advance season passes at reduced prices are available now through Nov. 6 for all EMU home games.)

Local players listed on the EMU roster include team captain Matt Surowiec, a senior defenseman from Livonia; Bob Royston, a senior forward from Canton; Mike Johnson, a junior forward from Livonia; captain Ben Hendricks, a junior defenseman from Plymouth; Vic Decina, a junior forward from Canton; Darrin Silvester, a senior forward from Canton; Todd Bigelow, a sophomore forward from Westland; and Andre Jurkiewicz, a freshman defenseman from Livonia.

Johnson had a goal and three assists in the win over CMU. For more information, call general manager Doug Waack at (313) 981-6144.

Redford-native A.J. Baker returns to the metro-Detroit area this weekend as coach of Division II hockey power University of Alabama-Huntsville.

Baker, along with two former Observerland standouts, will open their season against the University of Windsor with a pair of games 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the Adie-Knox Arena in Windsor.

Baker, a 1977 graduate of Redford Union, is beginning his first season at Huntsville, which finished 20-5-1 last season and finished the regular season ranked first in Division II prior to the playoffs.

Joining Baker will be sophomore center Tony Guzzo who attended Plymouth Canton. Guzzo was a two-time all-star for the Michigan Nationals of the North American Junior Hockey League when Baker coached the squad.

Livonia-native Mark Hernandez, a senior right winger, will also start for Huntsville. The Redford Catholic Central graduate has played one year with the Bloomfield Jets and two years with the Omaha Lancers of the U.S. Junior Hockey League.

CAMPUS SPORTSMEN

Rebecca Wiley (Livonia Ladywood), a member of the University of Detroit Mercy women's basketball team, has been added to the injury-depleted Lady Titans soccer roster as a goalkeeper. The 6-foot-1 junior played the second half in U-D Mercy's 4-1 victory over Oakland University.

Mike Brooks (Livonia Churchill), a junior linebacker at Ferris State, finished with seven solo tackles, 10 assists, a fumble recovery, half-sack and interception in a 27-21 victory, Oct. 1 over Grand Valley State.

He is currently leading the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference in tackles. The 5-0 Bulldogs are ranked No. 6 in the latest NCAA Division II poll.

Time to get in tune with tending tulips

It's tulip planting time! The earlier the bulbs are put in the ground the better, but they will do fine as long as they're tucked away before it freezes, said the Netherlands Flower Bulb Information Center in New York.

They also report that color plays an important role in the scheme of things, and Leatrice Eiseman, director of the Pantone Color Institute, Carlstadt, N.J., has found that certain personality types use particular colors. For instance, Type A's like to have a lot of things going on all at once and prefer "hot" colors - intense yellows, reds, purples, and bi-colors.

Laid-backs like a soothing sea of honey-but-cooler tones: lighter blues, greens, purples and pinks, leavened with pools of relaxing whites and pastels. Romantics go for pinks, peaches, violets and rosy tones of all shades to capture the sun's shimmers, while Murderous Psychopaths probably like lots of purple, perhaps mixed with orange or near-black. On the plus side of purple, it is the color for creative and artistic personalities.

The main point here is to suit yourself and enjoy!

In tune with tulips

Franz Roozen, technical director of the International Flower Bulb Center in Hillegom, the Netherlands, whose family has been in the bulb business since the 1800s, reports that "the tulip, an Oriental native first introduced to the Western world some 400 years ago, is at its perennial best in conditions that match the cold winds and hot, dry summers of its native regions."

Unfortunately we don't have, nor can we duplicate, these conditions here as is done in the Netherlands, so for optimum results the tulip bulbs should be treated as annuals.

However, if you treat your bulbs as perennials, as most of us do, Roozen suggests that you choose tulips marked "good for 'naturalizing' or 'perennializing.'"

Generally species or botanical tulips and their hybridized strains are a good bet - cultivated bulbs not extensively cross-bred and therefore close to the bulb found in nature. On the other hand, sometimes hybridizing enhances the ability to "perennialize," so we take our chances as we do with any gardening adventure.

Bulbs need a well-drained area - organic matter (shredded pine bark, compost or Canadian peat) will help with drainage.

Tulips like a lot of sun so we must remember that trees will be leafless in the spring and an area shady in summer and fall will be sunny then.

Care

Plant bulbs eight inches deep, measuring from the base of the bulb. If you mulch after planting, include that depth in the calculations for planting.

Water bulbs after planting to ensure that a strong root system develops before the plant goes into dormancy.

Remove spent blossoms after they bloom.

Canton to show art gallery style

Canton Project Arts second annual juried Gallery Showing of Fine Art promises to top the quality shown in last year's exhibition. A sneak preview of the paintings, drawings, photography and clay works revealed nearly 35 skilled artists with a talent for using intense color.

Palette and Brush Club show shines at city hall

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Variety and quality mark the Palette and Brush Club show continuing through Nov. 9 in Livonia City Hall.

The Livonia Arts Commission stirs up a lot of controversy with this latest show, however. "Point of View," an exhibition of artworks fresh from a two week stint at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association is missing the First and Third Place winning paintings.

James Nawara, professor of art at Wayne State University served as juror awarding first place to Tony Stevens of Plymouth for a watercolor, "Maryanne, Reclining," second place to Olga Pawlowski of Dearborn Heights for "Caryn," a watercolor, third place to Mary Tomas of Troy for "A Fleeting Impression," a charcoal/pastel, and the Grambacher Medallion for Best Use of Color to Ann Loveland for "Reflections," an acrylic. Loveland is an instructor at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia.

Viewers of the exhibition will not see Stevens' first place painting due to restrictions at city hall which prevent the showing of nude, even if rendered in good taste and art-like manner. Stevens is an award-winning artist who recently took the Juror's Award (Best of Show) in the second annual juried Fine Arts Exhibition presented by First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Third place, a nude by Tomas, was also eliminated from the 52-piece show. Both artworks were on display in the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association "Point of View" exhibit which did double duty

WINNING SPIRIT

Watercolorist Tony Stevens of Plymouth has done it again winning first place in "Sharing the Gift Within," the second annual juried fine art exhibition presented by the visual arts committee of First Presbyterian Church of Northville, 200 E. Main.

The 150 piece multimedia show continues through Oct. 15.

James Nawara, professor of art at Wayne State University, served as the juror awarding seven prizes including an outstanding merit award to Irene Kallis, a member of the Michigan Art Exchange in Plymouth. Special recognition awards went to Howard Dombrowski of Redford Township, and Tony Stevens.

"This expressive portrait shows the artist's command of the watercolor medium. The frontal stare, raised chin, strong jawline, and black leather motorcycle jacket on the subject confronts the viewer. The confidence of the subject is also reinforced by the artist's choice of a simple, architectural composition," stated Nawara in his juror's comments.

Stevens is an award winning artist who recently took first place in the Palette and Brush Club Show at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association.

"I've heard good things about the show. Jim Nawara is a qualified respected juror. I'm delighted he saw fit to give me first place," said Stevens.

Hours for the exhibit are noon to 7 p.m. Thursday Friday, and noon to 4 p.m. Saturday.

SECOND CHANCE

Members of the former artists' cooperative, The Art Gallery (T.A.G.) in Farmington Hills have now joined the Michigan Art Exchange in Plymouth.

Artists include Yvette Goldberg of Livonia, collage; Irene Kallis of Farmington Hills, watercolor; Ivis Czakowski of West Bloomfield, as good if not better than last year," said Elaine Kirchgatter, Canton Township treasurer and honorary president of Canton Project Arts.

"The word is getting out in southeastern Michigan that this is a quality show."

The more than 70 piece show will spotlight artists not only from Canton Township but Livonia, Westland, Plymouth, Redford, Northville, Ann Arbor, Birmingham, Southfield, Bloomfield Hills and Dearborn.

Planning for the exhibit, held to coincide with the nationwide celebration commemorating October as National Arts Month, began in March when co-chairs Marsha Wright and Tim Haber volunteered their time to make the show a success.

"We wanted to help because of all the great artists in our community, to share in their creative visions and to be able to share that with the community," said Wright, an ophthalmologic photographer by day, fine arts photographer by night.

"The township really has been

'We wanted to help because of all of the great artists in our community, to share in their creative visions and to be able to share that with the community.'

Marsha Wright

great, supportive and helpful to keep this going."

Last year's show held in November featured 48 artists working in a variety of media. From a field of 115 entries, Ann Arbor juror Susan Froelich chose an 80-piece show awarding $850 in prizes. This year $1,000 will be presented to artists winning the Juror's Choice Award ($400), Canton Project Arts Special Award ($200), President's Award ($100), and six Merit Awards ($50 each).

Once again, Realism dominates the show with a dash of Abstraction, Expressionism and Impressionism thrown in for good measure.

"It's nice quality art from artists in southeastern Michigan," said Haber of Canton.

Helen Turkington's reflective painting of apples, the winner of last year's President's Award, serves as the commemorative poster announcing this year's show. It is available at Canton's administration building for $10 with proceeds to benefit Canton Project Arts, the township's official arts council. Founded in 1993, Canton Project Arts mission is "to make art and cultural activities visible and enjoyable for our residents and to provide opportunities for local artists to showcase their work."

Up until one year ago, the fine arts failed to thrive in Canton because a consistently operating arts council was non-existent. For a brief time between 1989 and 1991, the Canton Community Foundation's arts council provided a handful of quality arts programs. But it wasn't until early 1993 that Canton Township trustees budgeted $5,000 to institute, develop and encourage the arts in the community through Canton Project Arts.

Kirchgatter is already excited about next year's show and ongoing progress at the site of the new Summit on the Park community center under construction in Heritage Park. The $13 million, 83,000-square-foot facility will house recreational facilities including a 120-foot water slide and lap pool in one half, and a score of meeting rooms, senior center/cable studio and hoped for art gallery/craft rooms in the other half.

"We're hoping for a fall opening of the Summit assuming the construction continues on schedule. In fact we're planning a week devoted entirely to the arts, and an opening of monthlong activities. This is what makes a community a community," said Kirchgatter, a past president of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Pumpkin painting planned

Lisa Cassidy, "artist in residence" at McFarland Florist and Greenhouses, will offer youngsters of all ages the hands-on opportunity to create and paint personalized Halloween pumpkins.

The workshop, the fifth in a series of year-round children's gardening programs hosted by McFarland's, will take place 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, at McFarland's, 28915 Grand River, four blocks east of Middlebelt in Farmington Hills. Parents, grandparents and pals are encouraged to attend. To register, call (810) 474-0750.

Before the painting begins, Cassidy will present portraits by well-known artists to make the children aware of expression in creating their pumpkin faces. A $2 materials fee, paid upon arrival, covers instruction, pumpkins, painting supplies and goodies for the participants.

The pumpkin paints are water-based, non-toxic acrylics and offer the children a selection of bright colors. Children should wear appropriate clothing.

"I feel it's a growing experience to let the children go through the process of visualizing and creating that isn't available through traditional carving methods," Cassidy said. "And, of course, to take pride in displaying their art work at home!"

"Last year's event was such a success that we couldn't wait to do it again this year!" said Mary Lore, McFarland's president and owner. "It was great to see the kids expressing themselves with such freedom and so creatively."

Max Broock ready for next century

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

The renovation of Max Broock Realtors Inc. in downtown Birmingham should meet the agency's business needs well into the next century.

A landmark at 300 S. Woodward since 1947, Max Broock has been redesigned inside and out and stripped of its aged wallboard and oversized offices to make way for changes in the real estate business, said Max Broock president Bowen Broock.

The only remaining benchmark is the traditional red, black and white sign out front.

"The office spoke of another time. The entry was dreary and the office was out of date," said Broock, whose grandfather opened the first Max Broock agency in Detroit in 1895. "First, we asked ourselves if we should move, but the community identifies with this location, so we deided against it."

Since April, '33 Birmingham sales agents have set up shop in a leased office adjacent to the firm's headquarters at 74 W. Long Lake Road in Bloomfield Hills. Target completion for the Birmingham office is mid-October. The contractor is Uszan Construction in Auburn Hills.

Like many renovations, this one began as a redecorating project — some updates and redesigned areas for computers and electronic equipment. As the project evolved, Broock decided it was wiser to ready the 4,000-square-foot agency for the next decade than do piecemeal updates year after year.

"The whole manner in which we introduce people to property and buyers to sellers has changed," said Broock. "Realtors used to meet their clients at the home. Today, for security and other reasons, we recommend they meet in the office. We needed a brighter, more inviting place with private areas to discuss financial matters."

For starters, the drab foyer facing Woodward Avenue to the east and a parking lot to the south was replaced with a bright, airy reception area. The entry's curved wall is made of Kalwall, a well-insulated, synthetic material that transmits natural light like traditional glass block. The arched shape is repeated in the mahogany reception desk and in several places on the sales floor.

Workers took a sledge hammer to a wall separating the main office from a small addition built in 1955. That added a few square feet, but mostly opened up the tight quarters to allow for office cubicles for 40 agents and a glassed-in area for electronic equipment.

Sleek gray laminated desk units from Herman Miller will furnish the sales floor. Several private offices overlooking Woodward and Brown Street will be furnished with transitional-style mahogany desks also from Herman Miller.

Neutral-taupe and beige tones are used throughout with lots of interesting texture in the woven carpet, wall-coverings and ceramic tile.

Nearly every area receives some natural light during the day, a big change from the cheerless old office. Lofty windows in the private offices run from the ceiling to the desktops. New restrooms and doorways are barrier-free.

"The building will be contemporary for Birmingham but still ageless," said Doug Atkinson of Brown Associates Architects in Bloomfield Hills, who worked with Max Broock. "The building hadn't been touched since the 1940s. There were side-by-side offices, dark and narrow halls, tight spaces and lots of wasted areas."

EARN DIAMOND AWARD

Cynthia Lorenz, a Realtor for Century 21 M.J.L. Corporate Transfee Service, Inc. at 30110 Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills, received a diamond award for her high level of real estate service. Broker/owner Mark Zehnder presented the award at the semi-annual Goldfest Rally at Laurel Manor in Livonia.

"Cindy is remarkable for her attention to all the details from start to finish. She delivers a high level of service," said Zehnder.

The former West Bloomfield resident has 17 years of real estate experience in Oakland County and Western Wayne County. Since moving to Hartland Township, she's expanded her services to Livingston County. She joined Century 21 M.J.L. eight years ago and has earned several Century 21 awards, including Ruby Level membership in the Master's Club. She was recently named Top Office Producer.

Lorenz quality of service."

NAME TOP REALTOR

Jim Anteckl, broker/owner of Fairlane Realty, Inc., Dearborn, was named Dearborn Board of Realtors' Realtor of the Year. The 17-year Livonia resident is a two-time recipient of the award.

Anteckl will be honored with winners from other area Realtor boards at the Michigan Association of Realtors 80th annual expo/conference Oct. 10-12 at the Westin Hotel in Detroit. He's also a candidate for the 1994 State Realtor of the Year award.

Probe 'adult community' status; know seller's role

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Several years ago, I purchased a condominium in an "adult community" where you had to be 50 years of age. Since then, they have voted to raise it to 55 years, but I was not present at the time of the vote, nor did I receive a ballot. However, I was advised that 75 percent of the membership voted in favor of it, and it would not make any difference anyway.

A. I am not able to determine from the facts you have given to me whether the association properly became an adult community under the circumstances, even if it got the requisite number of co-owners to vote.

Whether or not an adult community is permissible under 55 years of age is extremely doubtful. Whether or not the association dotted the I's and crossed their t's in regard to satisfying federal and/or state law requirements to establish an adult community also is questionable.

If you were not given notice of an annual meeting upon which a vote was taken, that may be a technical violation of the amendment process. Even though the requisite number of co-owners were obtained, it's conceivable that if you had had notice, you might have objected to the action taken by the association at the meeting, in person or by proxy.

You may or may not wish to contest the propriety of the amendment process, but the best remedy I can prescribe is to retain an attorney to write an opinion as to the propriety of the amendment process and whether the condominium project in which you live is truly an adult community at this point.

Short of that, I would be hesitant to violate any of the professed regulations that are now in effect at your condominium.

Q. Under the seller's disclosure law, how detailed does the seller have to be in terms of inspecting the property to make a disclosure?

A. Under the law, sellers are only required to disclose what they have learned about the property from living there.

Unless advised by someone, the seller is not held to have any expertise in construction, architecture or any other area specifically related to construction or the condition of property improvements.

The seller's disclosure statement required by the statute provides that the seller would not have conducted any inspection of inaccessible areas such as the foundation or the roof.

Further, the seller's disclosure statement specifically provides that representations made by the seller in the statement are not warranties of any kind and are not a substitute for any inspections the purchasers should continue to obtain.

It was apparently the intent of the Legislature to provide for legislation to be filled out by unknowledgeable people, and not to attempt to grade the quality or condition of the particular amenities of the property.

For example, the sellers may be required to indicate whether the roots leak or don't leak, but are not required to attempt to describe either the source of the leak or the cost of repairing the leak. Ultimately, the courts will be called upon to answer some of the ambiguities created by the new legislation.

Hillcrest II: This model, with three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths, is especially popular among buyers at Parkview Estates.

First-time buyers like the choices

Colonials with features appealing to many tastes are available at a wooded site in Canton abutting an existing subdivision. Prices range from $130,000 to $160,000.

They can buy a model that offers a working island and microwave as standard fare in the kitchen or one that offers a combination kitchen/eating nook without an island and provides the microwave as an option.

Some models offer wood casings around vinyl windows; some don't. Upgrades available in all four floor plans - three colonials and a ranch - include air conditioning.

Buyers have a lot of choices at Parkview Estates in Canton. They can select a model with the laundry on the main floor, upper level or basement.

They can choose a colonial that has cathedral ceilings in the master suite and family room or a model with ceilings of more traditional height.

Local centers can be found in Canton, Southfield, Troy and Westland. Corporate work sites include William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan, Southfield.

Childtime employs some 3,000 care providers, educators and administrators.

Gerber Products started the business in 1970, but sold in 1990 after deciding to concentrate exclusively on infant food/care products.

Harold A. Lewis, president and CEO, was hired to run Childtime about three years ago. Bill Van Huis is marketing director.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview with the two.

How big is your business?

Lewis: As of now, we have 136 centers across the country. Between now and the end of the calendar year, we will be adding 14. All are company owned. There are no franchisees.

Last fiscal year (ending March 31), our revenue was about $48 million. In the fiscal year we're now in, we expect about $55 million. We are profitable. Obviously, we don't disclose the magnitude.

What about current ownership?

Lewis: The company was initially acquired (from Gerber) with a combination of equity and bank financing. K.D. Equities, a New York investment firm, is the primary shareholder. In addition, senior management has some equity in the company.

We have a line of credit with Bank of America for acquisitions. Centers open now are built-to-suits. Someone builds them for us and we lease for a period, usually 15 years. We own about 60 buildings.

At some point, we are contemplating a public (stock) offering.

What are the pluses and minuses of that strategy?

Lewis: From our perspective, the up side is additional capital to grow the business. The down side is control. For the foreseeable future, the primary shareholder will continue to be the majority stockholder.

You mentioned that you don't franchise. Why is that?

Lewis: We have a very strong belief that to maintain control, you cannot and won't do that through franchising.

What are your keys to success?

Van Huis: You'll find in any multi-unit business, location and reputation are going to be two major reasons why you're successful.

We can't sit back and hope people will come. We talk to 15,000 to 20,000 through advertising two or three times a year. It's a combination of direct mass mail, some newspaper advertising.

We're telling parents we have a safe and secure environment where children feel comfortable about learning.

Parents expect a learning environment, especially for three, four and five-year-olds. We've gone to great lengths to prove this isn't daycare or babysitting.

This isn't a cookie-cutter operation. We won't send out to teachers a curriculum on Wednesday and say, "Every teacher will do this." It reflects cultural differences.

Lewis: We survey parents. We want to know if there's a hint of a problem so we can deal with it immediately. When someone enrolls in a center, we have the potential to keep a child here for five years. That's our goal.

How do you stand out from the competition?

Van Huis: We're catering mostly to working parents who have to depend on a quality operation on a consistent basis. If an employee here gets sick, we have a back-up system. You'll always be able to walk in the front door, and the program will be open.

What did you do when you took over in 1991 to turn an unprofitable enterprise into a successful one?

Lewis: Keep in mind that each of these centers does an average of $500,000 in business each year. The person who runs each is responsible for hiring staff, developing staff and the bottom (financial) line of the center.

We kind of look at them as being the CEO of their business. We're a very decentralized operation.

Most came here with a strong educational background. We embellish that with business skills — how to read a financial statement, how to prepare a budget, human resources issues.

Every single center has a budget. Every single director knows what expectations are.

Van Huis: A good point is incentives go along with that. It's nice not only setting goals, but rewards, too.

What do you pay your staff?

Van Huis: At any given center, what parents can pay will drive pay scales.

Lewis: If you take a caregiver (in this market), it will be in the vicinity of $6-7 per hour. For a preschool-K teacher, it will be significantly more than that. For a director, significantly more than that.

We have a significant (enrollment) discount for employees. We have a 401(k) and the company contributes, too. Paid vacation. Directors get health care benefits. Staff below do not.

crown moldings and whirlpool tubs. "The thing they (buyers) are impressed with is the quality of houses," said Marcello Veneziano, president of MV Building in West Bloomfield. "They're impressed with the site, too. In Canton, it's uncommon to have so many trees."

"It's very affordable," added Walter Masciulli, Veneziano's partner.

MV Building will construct 98 houses on the 40-acre parcel at the end of the existing Forest Brook Subdivision east of Sheldon south of Palmer. About a third of the lots already have sold, Veneziano said.

Prices range from $159,800 for a 2,200-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms and 2½ baths to $129,800 for a 1,650-square-foot colonial with three bedrooms and 2½ baths.

A ranch, 1,500 square feet with three bedrooms and two baths, is priced at $140,500.

Standard features in all four models include full basement, two-car attached garage, range and dishwasher and fireplace.

Exteriors are brick and wood siding/trim. The subdivision will contain sidewalks and be serviced by city water and sewers.

There are a couple of reasons for mature trees on site.

"We had to donate to the DNR a nature preserve (wetlands) so you have a 15-acre park in the middle," Veneziano said. "South of us is a wooded nature preserve, too, 30 acres, another company donated in a (land-use) mitigation process."

"When we open phase two next year, some of the most beautiful lots in Canton will be lots with woods on both sides," he added.

■ 'When we open phase two next year, some of the most beautiful lots in Canton will be lots with woods on both sides.'

Marcello Veneziano president of MV Building in West Bloomfield

The most popular model with buyers to date is Hillcrest II — a three-bedroom colonial of 1,650 square feet with three bedrooms and 2½ baths.

The first floor contains a den, kitchen/eating nook, gathering room with fireplace and powder room. The bedrooms and two full baths are upstairs. The laundry is in the basement.

The price tag is $129,800.

"A couple just starting out with $50,000-$60,000 income combined can afford it," Veneziano said. "It's not difficult if both are working to make that income."

"The second-time home buyer usually has equity he turns over," Masciulli added.

The larger four-bedroom colonial, the Parkview, draws a lot of attention but at $159,800 is out of the price range of most prospects, Veneziano said.

The Parkview has a living room, formal dining room, kitchen/eating nook and family room with fireplace. The laundry and powder room are on either side of the garage entrance on the main floor.

The family room and the master suite upstairs each feature cathedral ceilings. A bridge at the upper level opens to the family room below. It can be used as a loft, sitting area or computer room.

Parkview Estates is in the Wayne/Westland Community Schools. The property tax rate is about $31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

That means the owner of a $130,000 house there annually would pay about $2,015 for township, school and county services.

Gulliana Colombi is sales manager at Parkview Estates.

"They (buyers) really like it because of space, openness... (and) especially because they're very well priced," she said.

Greg and Lori Montelth are building a Hillcrest II model.

"Right off the bat we liked the looks of the models and we felt it was priced right for first-time buyers," Greg said. "They're very spacious homes. The builder is easy to work with."

"The location is great, the area is growing and we're excited," Montelth said.

Daniel H. Gong, an engineer who recently relocated here from California, said he was pleasantly surprised at the affordability of housing.

"Canton was a fairly ideal place for me," he said. "It has countryside and is very convenient to work."

"I found materials are very good and workmanship is very good, too," Gong added. "I'm a very careful detail person."

Sales models at Parkview Estates, (313) 397-0994, are open 1-5 p.m. daily, closed Thursday.

Gopher makes Internet tour easier

O&E ONLINE
EMORY DANIELS

While Internet's Telnet will make a direct connection to a site you are specifically aware of, Gopher generates new discoveries throughout the Internet, up one road and down another, to find information. Gopher is menu-driven, making searches easy. Its method is akin to driving down the freeway, exiting onto a major thoroughfare, driving down a side street, and then up a driveway. At any point, the user may return to the side street, thoroughfare, or freeway and move in another direction. This tool was developed at the University of Minnesota, whose college mascot is the gopher, thus its name. But it's also very fitting because the gopher is an animal that burrows deeper and deeper, which this tool also does. The Observer On-line with Internet service provides a local Gopher server with some beginning points pre-selected. These beginning points are topical, i.e., government, music, sports, history, weather. The last choice (22) is "Pick Your Own Server." If you choose 22, when you hit RETURN you will end up with the Master Gopher Server, a major starting point for the Internet at-large. At the Master Gopher Server you will also find several choices, including different Veronica options. Veronica is the search tool used to look for specific Gopher sites. We will do Veronica searches later.

Personally, I enjoy most going to the Master Gopher Server and taking off from there — travelling down one road, backing up, and then taking off down another. I enjoy finding unexpected jewels lying along the roadway — free for the picking.

For today's discoveries in Gopher we will remain with the preselected options system operator Greg Day has provided. In fact, for each Gopher journey we will depart from Choice 10 (English). Some of what we find also can be accessed from other choices, say Music or History.

Anywhere in Gopher, to move forward select your choice and hit RETURN. To move back one step, type the letter u. At any major server (starting menu), you must type q to go back. Using our analogy, to back out of any driveway, side street or thoroughfare, you shift into u. For a freeway entrance ramp, shift to q.

Almost anywhere in Gopher, when you find what you are looking for or discover a jewel you want to keep, there are at least two choices, maybe three. The easiest choice is to mail the discovery to yourself. Do this by typing m, filling in your e-mail address, and hit RETURN. Another choice is to save the discovery. Do this by typing s, then typing in a file name of your choice, and hit RETURN. The saved discovery will end up in the File Manager area of O&E On-line where you can go later and download it to your PC.

Most sites will offer the option of printing the document by typing p and hitting RETURN. Do not be frustrated, though, if this does not work. I'd recommend mailing it to yourself and then going to Pine to print it out. At any site a connection might not work because it is too busy or is having technical problems. If faced with an "connection failed" message, select Control G to back out.

So, what of interest can we find using Gopher? How about the complete lyrics to "Phantom of the Opera"? After you sign in to O&E On-line, type P for Programs, I for Internet, G for Gopher, then select choice 10 (English). On the next menu select 30 (music), then 25 (musical lyrics), then 12 (Phantom of the Opera), and then m to mail.

If you have not overdosed on OJ Simpson, an interesting article by Jeffrey Klein on OJ, called "Crime and Punishment," can be found by starting with 10 (English), then 21 (Journals & Newspapers), 13 (Mother Jones), 24 (Sept/Oct. 1994 issue) and 6 for "Crime & Punishment." Type m to mail and hit RETURN.

Want a dramatic reading? How about Martin Luther King's speech, "Free at Last." Start with 10 (English), then 19 (History), then 31 ("Free at Last").

Given the interest in the recent GM strike in Flint, how about reading an article on the 50th anniversary of the Flint Sit Down Strike? Once again, start with 10 (English), choose 19 (history), then 30 (Flint Sit Down). Type m, a or p. If you type a, refer to an earlier column (Sept. 29) on how to download from File Manager.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by e-mail with emory@oeonline.com, at voice mail at 313-953-2047 then dial 1910, or fax number 313-593-2111. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial 313-591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" and at "Key:" prompt type GL6NY2.
