Meeting halts as tempers flare

Wayne-Westland school district parents, angry over secondary school busing cuts, continued their threats for a recall and student boycott. Emotions got so high at Monday night's board of education that some board members were escorted to their cars by police officers.

Amid police security, a Wayne-Westland school board meeting was shut down in mid-session Monday night as tempers flared during emotional clashes between angry parents and school officials.

Westland police officers escorted some board members to their cars as a crowd of parents, furious about busing cuts, moved their protest outside and shouted support for ousting the board in a threatened recall election.

Tensions spilled over earlier as some 225 parents and students packed the board meeting room beyond capacity to demand that busing be restored for junior and senior high students. Secondary transportation was halted Monday as school officials continue to attack a budget deficit that, even with the cuts, still looms at $1 million.

Parents also are upset that their children could be forced to switch schools if the board adopts a committee's proposal to close four elementary buildings and redraw attendance boundaries throughout the 15,600-student district.

Susan Lada, a Westland parent of three, told the board she's worried that students could be preyed upon, mugged, raped or even killed as they walk to and from school.

"Who is responsible to compensate me for the loss of my child?" she asked during the emotion-packed meeting.

Lada threatened to hold the school board responsible if her oldest child, a Stevenson Junior High student, is injured because of busing cuts.

Workers agree to wage cut

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Hourly workers in the Wayne-Westland School District have tentatively agreed to a 1-percent wage concession for the current school year if other employee unions will follow suit.

The workers, members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) Local 1483, became the first union to publicly support a one-year concession.

Eighty percent of the workers live in the Wayne-Westland district, and they recognize the need to help out during a school board budget crisis that still requires nearly $1 million in cuts, said Arthur Wood, AFSCME Local 1483 president.

"AFSCME Local 1483 membership is the community and parents, and we want to help achieve a sound education for our students," the union wrote in a tentative concession agreement submitted to the school board.

The union has about 250 members, Wood said. The 1-percent concession would be aimed at helping the district through the current fiscal year, and the money would be returned after July 1, 1995.

The school board is asking all employee unions to accept a 1-percent concession for the current school year. With a $60-million payroll for the current school year, the board could save roughly $600,000 if all unions agreed to the concession.

The savings would help to erase a remaining $1 million deficit that continues to plague the school board, though it wouldn't entirely eliminate the red ink. The concessions also wouldn't allow the board to restore busing for junior and senior high students.

AFSCME members met on Saturday and agreed in a unanimous vote to accept the tentative concession, Wood said. However, Wood stressed that the agreement is contingent on similar concessions from other unions, Superintendent Larry Thomas and his cabinet members.

The big savings would come from the Wayne-Westland Education Association, which represents some 1,100 teachers, but that union hasn't issued any public statements. Union leaders couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday.

Meanwhile, AFSCME members also have strongly recommended other cost-saving measures in writing. Those include eliminating the superintendent's district-paid car lease; delaying work on high school soccer fields; cutting attorney fees; eliminating a food-services contractor that oversees the lunch program; avoiding unnecessary spending for fax machines and computers; and eliminating money spent for bottled water at district offices.

Training pays off

City employee saves boy's life

An emergency training program for Westland's municipal employees, started nearly five years ago, paid off Saturday afternoon when a worker helped save the life of a 13-year-old neighbor.

Dewey Frady, Sr., an animal control officer in the city's public services department, was credited by the fire department with saving the life of the boy who nearly accidentally strangled to death in his tree.

The department will recommend that Frady, 47, and his son, Dewey, Jr., 24, a city parks and recreation employee, receive a life saving award from the city, said George Riley, assistant fire chief of the public education division.

Riley said the department proposed the "Eyes and Ears" safety program shortly after Mayor Robert Thomas took office in early 1990. Under the program, the department trains city employees in cardio-pulminary resuscitation, first aid and emergency techniques.

The elder Frady used that training Saturday in their neighborhood on the 35000 block of Melton.

Riley said the boy was playing in a tree when he slipped, got entangled in a rope on the tree and turned blue.

The Fradys saw the boy in trouble and with the younger on getting him down with the elder Frady applying CPR techniques learned in the city program.

The boy, Riley said, was later rushed to Annapolis Hospital for treatment.

The assistant chief made it clear that the Fradys quick actions saved the boy's life.

The youngster suffered minor abrasions on the face and hands, Riley said.

The elder Frady told the Observer in a telephone interview Wednesday morning that he doesn't consider himself a hero.

"I'm just thankful I could help him out," Frady said.

In describing the life-saving incident, he said that he was with his grandchildren inside his home when he heard screams three times.

His son, who lives next door, also heard the screams and rushed out to get the boy, Wally Wheble, down from the tree.

"He was totally out of it," Frady said of the boy's condition. "There was no pulse or breathing.

"I tried to shake him" to help the boy regain consciousness, but nothing happened.

The elder Frady tapped the boy on the chest once, tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and then hit him on the chest again before the boy started breathing.

He added that he has known the boy and his family, which lives two doors away, for many years.

Parties planned

The Westland Jaycees and the Wayne Ford Civic League are sponsoring separate Halloween parties this weekend. The first will be 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. Saturday at the civic league's hall, 1661 N. Wayne Road. There will be a costume contest, dinner, music and dancing and beer. Admission is $12 for league members and $15 for non-members.

Family fun run

The Westland recreation department will spon Saturday afternoon at the Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. Registration fee is $15 for adults and $10 for children (12 and younger). The fee includes a T-shirt, prizes and refreshments. Registration will start at 3 p.m., the 1-mile run at 4 p.m. and the 3-mile run at 4:30 p.m. Entry forms are available in advance at the Bailey Center. Cider and doughnuts will be served after the race.

PLACES & FACES

Halloween events

Westland Center and Annapolis Hospital, Wayne, are combining Halloween and fundraising this weekend. They will combine to sponsor "Bids for Kids," which raises money for health and safety improvement initiatives in the Wayne and Westland communities. The shopping center will make a contribution as a corporate sponsor to help raise money for the cause. The mall and hospital are providing free Halloween trick-or-treat bags Friday through Sunday at the center's customer service location, in the East Court. The bags will contain candy, safety information, store discounts and a coloring book. A magic show for children is scheduled for 6:30 and 7:30 p.m., Saturday, in the East Court.

Voters' Guide errs

The campaign committee for Sandra Cicirelli, a Westland councilwoman running for one of two Westland district court openings on the Nov. 8 ballot, has written Civic Searchlight about several biographical errors printed in its current Voters' Guide. Marcia Baker, committee treasurer, wrote Civic Searchlight, which publishes the guide, that Cicirelli is in her second term on the council and currently serving as council president pro tem. Also, the guide should have said that District Judge C. Charles Bokos was appointed two years ago to a vacancy and is now running for the remaining two years of a six-year term.

Despite protest, attendance OK

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Some parents refused to send their children to school Monday to protest the elimination of busing for junior and senior high students, but officials said the boycott didn't cause a sharp drop in attendance.

"Attendance seems to be no problem at this time, and we're glad to hear that," Superintendent Larry Thomas said Monday night.

School officials didn't have an exact student count for Monday, but Thomas said his administration learned from secondary schools that attendance was normal or, in some cases, above normal. Some pupils, driven by their parents, arrived earlier than usual for classes, he said.

Despite isolated traffic snarls, most parents who dropped off their children and picked them up from school had no serious problems, Thomas said. The busing cuts went into effect Monday as school officials struggle with a budget deficit that still requires $1 million in cuts.

Some parents didn't believe Thomas' assessment and accused the administration of an attendance-drop cover-up. Cindy Ferguson, a mother of two, said she and many other parents plan to keep their children at home indefinitely.

"They either restore busing or they're not going to have any schools," she said. "People are going to be selling their properties and moving out of the district."

Ferguson said her ninth-grade son, Timmy, was outside with a friend when a police officer drove by and indicated that she was going to pick up the boys for truancy.

"I told her that she wasn't taking my son anywhere," Ferguson said.

Ferguson also said she was called by a Marshall Junior High administrator who indicated that her son could be suspended for truancy. But she questioned how her son could be punished unless all students who stayed home received similar treatment.

Ferguson's daughter Sandy, a Marshall eighth-grader, said she is upset not only about losing transportation, but also by the elimination of security guards at secondary schools. Some students and parents have voiced fears about gang violence.

The daughter said she found it ironic that police officers were at Monday's board meeting to keep the calm and to protect school officials.

"We don't get security, but they get security," she said after the meeting was stopped early because of rising tensions.

Earlier, parent Susan Lada told the board that she has been supportive of the school district and the Westland community all of her life.

"I have supported this city since the day I was born. I want to know when it's time for you to do something for me," she told the school board Monday. "It's your turn to keep my kids safe."

Westland police officer James Dexter said no serious traffic problems had been reported as of early Tuesday afternoon. He was at Stevenson Junior High on Tuesday morning and said traffic was flowing so smoothly that he wasn't even needed to direct motorists.

Marie Pleuss, John Glenn High assistant principal, said some teachers remarked to her that attendance was not only good, but that some students were arriving earlier than usual.

"Mrs. Ferguson, shut up," McCusker told her at one point.

Ferguson, who had joined a protest earlier in the day outside of district offices on Marquette, lashed out several times during Monday's session and warned of an exodus of families from Westland.

"The last one out of Westland, turn out the lights," she yelled from the audience.

Some parents accused school officials of improperly halting the meeting in mid-session. Amid jeers and shouts from the audience, board members were virtually inaudible as McCusker said he made a motion to stop the meeting.

Shrouded in confusion, the meeting was halted in a 5-1 vote with vice president Richard LeBlanc casting the only dissenting vote, McCusker said. Board member Vicki Welty was absent.

"If kids acted like their parents, they'd get suspended from school," the Rev. Neil Cowling remarked as the crowd spilled from the room to continue the protest outside.

Earlier, Westland fire officials had arrived and warned the board that the crowd was too massive for the meeting room. Fire officials posted themselves by two emergency doors and offered to let the session continue so that citizens could voice their complaints, but rising tensions left the board unable to conduct business.

Some parents criticized the board for not moving the meeting to nearby John Glenn High School. The board plans to continue its meeting in the same room at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1, according to the administration office.

After the meeting was halted Monday, some school officials briefly sought refuge from the crowd by moving to another room.

Moments later, some board members were escorted to their cars by police officers as the crowd protest continued. Ferguson managed to confront McCusker as he drove away.

"Don't you ever tell me to shut up again," she yelled at him.

Macing nets jail term

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

A former student of John Glenn High School in Westland has been given a 60-day jail term for setting off two pepper mace bombs at school last spring and forcing a full-scale evacuation.

Fred Greybill, 18, will serve 30 days now, but 18th District Judge Gail McKnight ruled Friday that the remaining 30 days will be set aside to see if Greybill complies with his probation terms.

McKnight placed Greybill on reporting probation for one year, ordered him to continue to receive counseling, and fined him $300. She also warned him not to drink alcohol or use drugs and told him that he will be subject to random drug-testing, court administrator David Wiacek said.

Greybill pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace. The maximum sentence he could have received was 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

His decision to plead no contest stemmed from a plea bargain struck between prosecutors and his defense attorney, Steven Bullock, who has said, "We felt that the offer from the prosecutor was one that should be accepted."

Greybill was accused of releasing two bombs of pepper spray, made from an extract of cayenne pepper that can cause burning in the eyes and can induce coughing.

John Glenn had to be evacuated because of the incident, and seven students and one teacher were treated at local hospitals after breathing the contents of the pepper bombs.

Greybill was expelled from the Wayne-Westland district by a school board that has vowed not to tolerate such disruptions of classes.

The incident prompted a response from Westland fire and police officials and a Wayne County hazardous materials team of experts. The response cost was about $15,000, and city officials have indicated they still may seek restitution from Greybill's family.

The city has an ordinance allowing it to try to recoup costs for such incidents. No court dates have been for possible proceedings.

OUR SCHOOLS NEED

HELP.

Right now, financing is. Frustration: teachers face frustrated students, parents and school boards and parents have lost faith in the ability of our schools to educate our children.

Here's what we need to do:

1. ELIMINATE TEACHER STRIKES

We need to eliminate the threat of teachers' strikes in our school districts. We can do that by implementing Act 312 which calls for binding arbitration. This Act has been successfully used for years with our police officers and firefighters. It requires that a neutral third party look at the issues and that a state fact finder determine what the district can really afford to pay. The state imposes this person and the state funds this expense.

While the Michigan Education Association opposes this plan, I find it to be the most equitable for all involved. After 23 years of successful use in this state, Act 312 has proven to benefit all involved.

As a teachers' union negotiator and as a mayor, I've been on both sides of the bargaining table. I know how difficult these situations can be. But we must eliminate the threat of teachers' strikes—they are disruptive and counterproductive to all involved and cause too great a hardship on our students, our teachers and our communities.

2. MANDATE A CORE CURRICULUM

The constant threat of the elimination of extra curricular programs when a millage election is planned must be stopped and stopped now. I propose a mandated program which includes not only the basic educational curriculum, but includes extracurricular sports, music and the arts for children to provide a well rounded and complete education. There should be no pay-to-play in our schools.

The state now funds our schools through our sales tax on a per-pupil allotment. The state should provide a mandate for the ratio of spending that money for administration, transportation, supplies, clerical support and salaries. Then, if districts wish to enhance their program offerings, hire more teachers, hire more administrators or spend more per pupil, the voters could be asked to fund such extras with a millage—but the children of this state should be guaranteed an education—and that should not be constantly threatened by local millage elections.

A core curriculum which includes a full comprehensive program is imperative to our way of life.

3. MAKE OUR CLASSROOMS SAFE

Our teachers deserve a safe place in which to teach and our students need the security of a safe classroom in which to learn. Disruptive students must be removed from the mainstream classrooms and vocational or corrective education offered to them. Our students, and our teachers, must be provided an environment in which they can learn and teach.

4. DEMAND ACCOUNTABILITY

And we, as taxpayers, have a right to some accountability in this process. Diplomas should not be distributed, they should be earned. We should demand performance and reasonable standards of excellence. Students before a high school diploma is awarded. And we should demand a standard of performance for both teachers and students along the way.

Public education is the backbone of our democracy. It offers the opportunity to rise out of poverty. Threats and intimidation have no place in this effort.

I have been accused of being a MEA puppet. Even though my public stance on this issue and others is clearly in opposition to that of the association, I am pleasing my retirement from the MEA in January and hope that with your support and a grassroots campaign effort.

These are my ideas on how to solve and alleviate, as your next State Senator, I've listed. Give me a chance to help by your support to ensure that all these measures are implemented.

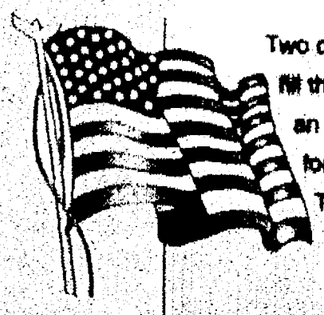
THE 18TH DISTRICT JUDGE'S RACE: THE CANDIDATES AND ISSUES



Two candidates are competing to fill the remaining two years of an unexpired six-year term of former 18th District Judge Thomas Smith, who retired in 1992. Both candidates are Westland residents.

	QUESTION 1	QUESTION 2	QUESTION 3	QUESTION 4	QUESTION 5	QUESTION 6	QUESTION 7
	Considering personal and professional experiences and backgrounds, what makes you the best candidate for this judicial position?	If elected, what would you do to make the court more responsive to the community?	What is your view on mediation programs, and what crimes are most appropriate for mediation?	Do you support term limits for judicial positions? Why or why not?	What's your view on setting bonds for drug defendants who are charged with having only small amounts of drugs on them, and who have no prior record?	Recorder's Court judges sometimes reduce bonds set by local district judges. What, if anything, can be done to address what some judges see as a problem?	What would you do to address the problem of domestic violence?
Candidate: Gail McKnight Age: 49 Employment: 18th District Court judge Family: Married to Richard McKnight with two adult children Education: Wayne State University School of Law, juris doctor; University of Detroit, bachelor's degree in journalism; Academy of the Sacred Heart Community service: Westland Youth Assistance advisory board; Westland 25th anniversary committee; former Westland City Council member; various judicial associations; Michigan Judicial Institute (MJI) faculty member; MJI district judges advisory board; Wayne County Coordinating Council to Prevent Domestic Violence; First Step agency for domestic violence victims; Governor's Partners Against Crime Committee; former Zoning Board of Appeals member; YMCA board member; Westland Business & Professional Women; National Women's Political Caucus; member of Divine Savior Catholic Church; numerous other activities		"You have to know your community," McKnight said, and she emphasized her involvement as a community volunteer, a former council member and as a nearly 10-year judge. "You have to use your life experiences to come to good decisions (on the bench)," she said. McKnight, who has been a victim of crime, also stressed the importance of weighing all sides in a case. "You have to realize that it could be you in any of those roles out there in the audience."	Already, the court building remains open until 5:30 p.m. two days a week and until 6 p.m. one day, McKnight noted. The probation department is open from 6-8 p.m. on Thursdays, too. She also said she has implemented advice-of-rights forms even for civil infractions. "If people know what could happen to them in court, they are more comfortable with the (judge's) decision." Other community-responsive measures cited by McKnight include mediation programs; a community garden in which non-violent offenders grow produce to help the needy; Law Day, in which judges hear their cases in schools; among others.	"Bringing people together to solve their own problems is really the best way not only to solve the immediate dispute, but it can also have a positive long-term effect," McKnight said. "Neighborhood disputes are good cases for mediation," such as minor property offenses and fights. Mediation can be a better solution than formal court proceedings that sometimes "push people into the adversarial relationship," she said.	"I am not a term-limit supporter. The right of the term limit is in the hands of the voters," McKnight said. After nearly 10 years on the bench, she said, "every day I learn something new... There's a seasoning that builds up by the sum total of your experiences. I look at (judicial terms) this way: I have a six-year contract, and it's up to the voters whether they want to renew it."	McKnight noted that she was asked in 1992 by the Michigan Judicial Institute to teach other judges how to set bonds in drug cases. "Every case deserves individual attention in setting bonds," she said, adding that she considers whether the defendant is a danger to the community and whether he/she is likely to return to court. She considers whether defendants have ties to the community, such as family and job, and she looks at any past offense they may have on their record. A personal bond or a low-cash bond is appropriate for first-time offenders caught with small amounts of drugs, she said.	Because of jail overcrowding, some defendants are released from jail irrespective of bond, McKnight said. Moreover, "it's beyond our control" in district court if a Detroit judge reduces bond. However, she said the Wayne County District Judges Association has talked with the sheriff's department about seeking tougher penalties for some crimes, such as domestic violence. Higher bonds could be set, for example, if the crime is a felony instead of a misdemeanor.	McKnight supports increasing the penalties for domestic violence. She also is involved in First Step, an organization that helps victims of domestic violence. McKnight is a past president of that agency. She also stressed the importance of having police officers adequately trained to understand domestic violence and how to respond to it. The court also has tightened the reins on bond conditions, and copies of bond forms are given to victims to help them understand the process, she said.
Candidate: Terry L. Spence Age: 50 Employment: General practice attorney Family: Single Education: Detroit College of Law, doctorate; Eastern Michigan University, majoring in literature Community service: Marine Corps, three years; U.S. Army, two years, Vietnam pilot		"I support the concept of change. To avoid staleness, I think that fresh ideas and new concepts are needed. I'm an energetic, hard-working guy who I think is creative."	"I would do whatever I could to move the docket along. Also, I think people are put on probation for too many silly things. I would be more human in my approach and not overload the probation department."	"It's just another hurdle to get to the end of an already interminable justice system."	"I would support term limits because of my general belief that new blood brings in new ideas and fresh approaches to things." Spence added that he believes term limits "should run through all of government."	"I wouldn't think (first-time drug offenders) would require a high bond, as long as (defendants) are no danger to the community and as long as they're not dealing drugs."	"You've got a system, and that's the nature of the system," he said. "If there was a large segment of the community that (is upset over the issue), then it should be taken up with the state Legislature." Otherwise, he said, a higher court has the right to change bonds.	Spence supports "stronger and swifter action" in domestic violence cases. "Sometimes even a day or two in jail is enough to quiet somebody down," He called for more education early in life, including parenting and family classes in school. He said the problem appears to be more serious for young offenders because "as you age, you kind of mellow."

Some parents upset about proposed school changes

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland mother who chose a house in the John Glenn High School attendance area vowed Monday that she won't allow her son to attend Wayne Memorial High.

Janet Lilienthal is among parents in the Millpointe subdivision, south of Palmer between Newburgh and Hix, whose children could be shifted to Wayne Memorial under a newly proposed redistricting plan.

Lilienthal's oldest son, a John Glenn 12th-grader, wouldn't be affected by the change, but her Stevenson Junior High ninth-grader would attend Wayne Memorial under the proposed changes.

School officials are looking at new attendance boundaries for next school year. The proposal also calls for the closing of four elementaries: Stottlemyer and Titus in Westland, Fischer in Inkster and Monroe in Wayne.

The change would accompany a proposed shift to a middle school concept in which ninth-graders would be moved to the high schools and sixth-graders would be shifted to what are now the junior highs.

Lilienthal, angering some Wayne Memorial supporters at Monday's school board meeting, said she and her husband, David, bought their Millpointe house two years ago because it was in the John Glenn area.

"We've invested our money and our life savings in this house," she told the school board.

Had she wanted her children to attend the high school in Wayne, Lilienthal said, "I would live in Wayne. My house wouldn't cost as much.

"I will not send my son to Wayne Memorial to raise (that school's) test scores," she told the school board.

Lilienthal, saying she has supported the school district in previous school-tax elections, said, "I will no longer be a 'yes' voter for this community."

Another Millpointe resident, Debbie Rees, said many residents have signed petitions opposing the redrawing of attendance boundaries. She said property values will decline.

Parents are even considering legal action against the school board, Rees said. Some parents feel that the school board "is shoving things down their throats," she said.

Some parents and school officials have repeatedly said that Wayne Memorial is unjustly criticized. Board member Patricia Brown, a John Glenn graduate, said Monday night that Wayne Memorial has as many success stories with former students as any other local school.

CLARIFICATION

A story in the Oct. 24 edition of the Observer should have stated that the monthly lease for 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos' car is $412.63. The lease for Judge Gail McKnight's car is $459.17. The numbers were inadvertently switched in information provided to the Observer.

Go against the grain.

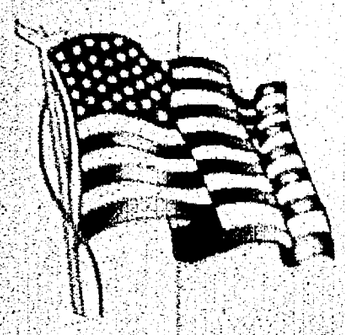
THE 18TH DISTRICT STATE HOUSE RACE: THE CANDIDATES AND THE ISSUES



Two candidates are competing for the 18th District state House seat (which includes most of Westland and the north-east corner of Canton Township). The term is for two years. Both candidates live in Westland.

QUESTION 1	QUESTION 2	QUESTION 3	QUESTION 4	QUESTION 5	QUESTION 6
What makes you the best candidate for the 18th District House seat?	Does the state prison system need to be expanded? If so, how would you pay for it given state budget constraints?	Do you favor gun control?	Do public schools need more money, or is present funding adequate in the wake of Proposal A?	What would you do as a state legislator to foster economic growth in Michigan?	Do you believe the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority incinerator should be expanded into a waste-to-energy facility?

- Candidate: Eileen DeHart, Democrat
- Age: 46
- Employment: Resigned as legislative aide to 18th District state Rep. Justine Barns to enter the House race.
- Family: Married to Ben with two children and three stepchildren, all adults.
- Education: Bellaville High School graduate, attended a summer at Michigan State University on a journalism scholarship.
- Community service: Westland Civitans; Westland Business & Professional Women, recording secretary to 13th Congressional District Dem. Organization; Democratic precinct delegate; former Cub Scout den mother and Girl Scout volunteer; former catechism instructor at St. Bernardine's; Westland Festival Committee volunteer; member of elderly housing board of directors; delegate to 1992 Democratic national convention; Westland planning commissioner; Westland Goodfellows Christmas volunteer.

"I have experience in Lansing (as state Rep. Justine Barns' aide), and I have been active in my community for a long time. I am a 28-year resident of Westland, and I belong to various civic organizations," listed to the left.

"I think it needs to be revamped." She said Gov. John Engler has cut back the number of prison-system officers while spending has increased for unnecessary items such as redecorating administrative offices. She wants to change those priorities. Also, she said criminals convicted of violent crimes "need to be in prison (for their full terms) without parole."

"The old cliche that 'guns don't kill, people do' is true. Sportsmen don't want to own an AK-47 or an Uzi. I'm opposed to gun control for (hunting-type) guns." She also said gun control doesn't necessarily stop the flow of guns to criminals.

"I don't believe funding is adequate. I think programs have been shaved to the bone," she said, noting that Wayne-Westland officials have even cut busing for junior and senior high students. "It's not fair to make children walk (long distances) to school." She said she would revamp state spending to provide adequate dollars for education.

"We have to be very careful how we tax and what we do to small business." Big business can afford more taxes compared to small businesses, she said. DeHart wouldn't support any more efforts to create tax breaks for business.

"I would support it. We have a limited amount of space in this state for landfills, and I think we have met our quota. We have to do more with our waste instead of burying it. I don't want it to come back to haunt my grandchildren."

- Candidate: Michael Novak, Republican
- Age: 28
- Family: Single
- Education: Presently in public administration graduate program at Eastern Michigan University, but taking time off for the campaign; bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Madonna University; attended Wayne County Sheriff Police Academy.
- Community service: Knights of Columbus

"My honesty, my integrity and my hard work are my main characteristics. And I will be a citizen's legislator with an open-door policy."

"We need to look at how it's structured. If we want to house violent, repeat offenders, then we need to look at some ways to expand the prison system." He suggested spending less on welfare and more on housing prisoners. He said money could be pulled from other unnecessary programs and spent on prisons, without raising taxes.

"I oppose gun control. I believe in the Constitution, and I believe in your right to bear arms. I am a (National Rifle Association) member, and I have an 'A' rating with the NRA." But he said legislators and law enforcement agencies must try to keep guns out of the hands of criminals.

"Present funding is adequate," he said. In the future, however, he said it may be necessary to shave programs that don't work to pay for programs that do work.

"I would take small and big business and introduce them into the school systems at the 11th and 12th grade. I would get them involved in intern programs for highly technical jobs in the market now."

"I support it if it meets the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) standards."

City Council blocks cable rate hike

Westland's 24,000 cable-TV subscribers won't have to pay another 56 cents a month — for now.

The Westland City Council Monday night refused to approve a correction for the higher rate, sought by Continental Cablevision.

The company said that an error was made in calculating the rate cuts last summer.

Richard Welgand, second vice president for Continental of Michigan, said that the company will appeal to the Federal Communications Commission, which he said has the last word on cable rates.

Welgand told the council at a special meeting Monday night that the error was found a few weeks ago by Plante & Moran, the city's accounting firm.

The error costs the company just over $161,000 a year in revenues, Welgand said.

Dental Breakthroughs And You

DR. MARC ABRAMSON D.D.S.

There is a new dental instrument out called the KCP 2000. Is it really a painless replacement for the drill?

The term "painless" is probably an overstatement. However, the KCP2000™ Kinetic Cavity Preparation system can often be used without anesthesia. And though it doesn't replace the drill completely, it does provide an alternative way to prepare many teeth for fillings. It is especially beneficial in the treatment children and in the care of patients whose medical conditions restrict the use of anesthesia.

How does it work?

Minute particles, almost too small to be seen with the naked eye, are carried to the tooth by a stream of air, gently and precisely spraying away decay. Think of it as a microscopically-precise miniature sandblaster. There is little or no vibration and no whining sound.

Is it safe?

Absolutely. The particles used are alpha alumina, a pure biocompatible food grade substance long used in medicine and food. Only a tiny amount is actually used in each procedure and most of it is immediately removed by an evacuation system. Laboratory tests show that patients would have to undergo about 28 typical 20-30 second KCP procedures in order to inhale enough alpha alumina to equal the weight of one grain of table salt.

Is every patient treated with the KCP?

No. The drill is still needed to prepare teeth for crowns, remove silver-colored fillings and perform a number of other important procedures. And the KCP system is not used to treat soft tissue such as the gums. When the procedure does call for the KCP, it may be used in combination with other instruments such as the drill or the dental laser.

How can I learn more about the KCP2000?

If you call our office at 421-5200, we'll be happy to answer your questions.

McDowell Center honors college president

"This dedication is a dream come true — for so many people," said Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell as he acknowledged the support and good wishes of more than 450 people who gathered Monday to dedicate the new student services center named after him.

The new McDowell Center on the Livonia campus bears the name of Schoolcraft's third president, but he was quick to share the honor with Schoolcraft staff members, local and state officials, and the community at large.

Gov. John Engler, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, and current and former members of the Schoolcraft Board also were on hand for the ribbon-cutting and celebration.

Engler, who received an honorary degree from Schoolcraft in May, praised the college and McDowell in particular for his vision and leadership.

Engler praises college

"There was a contest to name the college, but it was no contest when it came to naming this building," said Engler.

"Congratulations on a world-class facility and the ultimate honor," said Engler, pointing out that the state "believes strongly in what's happening at Schoolcraft, and we put our money here to back it up."

Half of the $7.8 million cost of the building came from the state. The other half came largely from money provided by the Schoolcraft College Building Authority, an idea spearheaded by McDowell after he arrived in 1981.

In addition to housing student services (admissions, counseling and financial aid), classrooms and the women's resource program, the new McDowell Center also is home to the Schoolcraft Business Development Center.

Engler praised the role that Michigan community colleges in general, and Schoolcraft in particular, have played in helping to revitalize the Michigan economy.

"Training and retraining is the key to economic growth," said Engler.

Center helps business

"Schoolcraft will train you for success on your new job and for all your jobs," he added.

Steve Ragan, president of the college's board of trustees and the youngest person to ever hold that post, noted that the business development center has helped 3,400 local businesses obtain some $600 million in government contracts.

Ragan praised McDowell for "creating a sense of community and family at Schoolcraft."

He traced the growth in enrollment at Schoolcraft under

Young offenders get soft sentence

Most criminals would like such a choice: pay fines, or buy marshmallows for the homeless.

That is the offer given by a judge to two 18-year-old University of Michigan students, one from Livonia, the other from Farmington Hills.

Steven Earl Gaschcler of Livonia and Richard Kenneth Gaul of Farmington Hills had been ticketed Oct. 8 by the university's public safety department.

Their actions violated a section of the Regents' Ordinance that makes flinging objects during a sporting event a misdemeanor punishable by up to 60 days in jail.

Chief Judge Timothy P. Connors of the 15th District Court told Gaschcler and Gaul he would dismiss their tickets if each bought a bag of marshmallows and donated them to the Shelter Association of Ann Arbor. Otherwise, the judge said, he would have to order them to pay fines and court costs.

Thirty minutes later, the students were back with the receipts.

"The wiser way to handle the marshmallow throwers would be to eject them from the stadium," Connors said. "Problem solved and not at taxpayers' expense."

Apparently the university agrees.

The general counsel's office has completed a revision of the school's ordinance which decriminalizes several behaviors. It has to go through a review and public comment process before it can be approved by the Board of Regents.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Misconduct charges filed

AP — Geoffrey Fieger, the Southfield-based attorney for Dr. Jack Kevorkian, has been charged with professional misconduct for public comments about judges and a prosecutor.

Fieger said he planned to sue over the charges.

The Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission complaint cited instances in which Fieger called a judge "amazingly stupid" and said a judge took advice from his wife in making a ruling involving Kevorkian.

It also said Fieger accused Wayne County Circuit Judge Marvin Stempien of dismissing a Fieger case after conspiring with the opposing lawyer to get Stempien's daughter a job and accused Ionia County prosecutor Raymond Voet of "covering up a murder" in ruling as suicide a jailhouse hanging.

The complaint doesn't specify when the comments were made or to whom.

Ex-hostage's talk makes impression on student audience

BY SHARON DARGAY
STAFF WRITER

Jennifer Fraser won't make molehills into mountains the next time she faces a challenge.

She'll think about former hostage Terry Waite, instead.

"Not everyone could deal with a situation like that," said Fraser, an Oakland University student. "Even in our own lives, it's the little insignificant matters that I deal with every day that just don't seem to compare with what he dealt with. And he in the same sense, thought that his circumstances weren't as great as many others.

"You have to try to make light of the situation you're in and not take it to heart as much and deal with it."

Others heard a similar message after listening to Waite for nearly an hour recently at Oakland University. He was the first of several guest speakers invited to campus this year.

"What struck me about him was how peaceful he is," said Oakland University junior Michael Walsh. "And the fact that he could walk away from years of being a hostage, which he was for five years, and be so positive about it on his way out."

Oakland University student Garrick Landsberg remembers hearing about Waite "all through the 1980s." He wanted to get a look at him in person.

"I liked his thought that he had no regrets," Landsberg said. "It was very inspiring, especially when he said he could understand his captors reasons for keeping him. It was big of him. So few people are like that. Very inspiring."

Waite said he had no regrets, no self-pity and no sentimentality after he was taken hostage seven years ago in Beirut, Lebanon.

"My stomach turned cold. I realized I was no longer a negotiator," he said, recalling his initial reaction to imprisonment in a tiled cell. "I was chained by my hands and feet and left lying on the floor for nine months."

He spent four years in solitary confinement and a total of almost five years as a hostage before going home to England.

As an advisor to the Anglican church, Waite consulted clergy on international issues and helped negotiate hostage releases in Iran and Libya before attempting to free prisoners in Beirut.

Building trust was an important ingredient in hostage negotiation. Maintaining his faith and "embracing solitude" helped him endure imprisonment.

"I learned a lot from the experience and I genuinely can say I have no regrets. I learned two things. One was that many people have suffered more than I have," he said. "The other is that I used to think solitary confinement could drive one mad. I learned you can embrace solitude."

He endured the loneliness by exercising every day, recalling books and poems, writing a journal in his mind and remembering that his captors could harm body and mind, but not his soul.

Waite said he bears no animosity toward his captors, although he felt angry in the past.

"You don't have to be Lebanese to break a trust. All human beings do it," he said, claiming "injustice" gives rise to hostage situations.

Waite also recounted his philosophy of life.

"Enable the weak to be strong," he said, "the strong to be just and the just to be compassionate."

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

TV ads make Proposal C sounds simple. "Lower rates," say the insurance companies supporting it. "No means no," says the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, which opposes it.

In real life, Proposal C is 31 pages of very fine type. Its legal name is Public Act 143 of 1993. It was passed by the Legislature after years of battling. But before it could take effect, the trial lawyers circulated petitions to put it in front of voters Nov. 8.

The thrust of PA 143 is to lower rates 16 percent by controlling costs — capping personal injury benefits, limiting at-fault drivers' right to sue, limiting fees to health care providers.

Trial lawyers call it "Son of D," the 1992 proposal voters rejected. True, it aims to reduce premiums by reducing costs, but many of Proposal C's details are different. Moreover, the 1992 proposal was the work of AAA Michigan, while Proposal C is the work of the Legislature.

Insurers say the law passed with bipartisan support. From this newspaper's circulation area, however, all Republican House members voted yes and Democrats no. In the Senate, all members seeking reelection voted with their parties.

Republican Gov. John Engler signed PA 143 and supports C; Democratic challenger Howard Wolpe opposes it and promises a 20 percent premium reduction without cost reductions.

Both sides have set up coalitions of support. But the debate boils down to the auto insurers versus the trial lawyers.

Here are both sides of the major arguments:

■ Benefits — A program offering unlimited benefits for "catastrophic claims" (mainly closed-head injuries) would be scrapped.

Benefits would be capped at $1 million, though customers could buy up to $5 million voluntarily.

Insurers: It's impossible to insure benefits that may be infinite. At $1 million, Michigan's cap still exceeds other states.

Trial lawyers: Ages 16-24 have the most expensive claims but will buy only $1 million insurance. PA 143 changes the definition of what's covered and limits rehabilitation benefits after the injured person acquires any employment skill.

■ Guarantees — Trial lawyers: Premiums are rolled back to 1992 levels for only six months guaranteed. After that, insurers would be free to raise premiums.

Insurers: Nothing can be "guaranteed" but death and taxes. Since modern insurance was developed in Columbus' day, premiums have been based on loss experience — something no legislature can control. Government couldn't guarantee Columbus would lose only one ship, and it can't guarantee Michigan drivers will continue to behave in the same ways. Finally, if costs are curtailed, competition between insurers will force rates down.

■ Good driver discounts — Insurers: Good drivers will get discounts. Discounts are required for those who purchase safety equipment and theft-prevention devices.

■ Limited suits — Insurers: Drivers who are at fault often sue the people they injured for "pain and suffering." Proposal C limits the ability to sue by uninsured drivers and those who are more than 50 percent at fault.

Trial lawyers: Insurers claim they're being killed by suits, but the bulk are "first party" suits — drivers suing their own companies when they are reluctant to pay.

Name-calling heats up 13th District race

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The contest for election to Congress in the 13th District has become a "campaign based on name calling and buzz words," says Democrat Lynn Rivers.

Rivers, a state representative from Ann Arbor, and Republican John Schall are vying to replace retiring Rep. William Ford in Washington, D.C., next year.

Schall was raised in Livonia. He graduated from the University of Michigan and Harvard University and went to work in the Reagan and Bush administrations from 1984 to 1993. He keeps an apartment in Washington, but says he has been a lifelong resident of the 13th District. An aide reports that Schall maintained his official place of residence at his parents house in Livonia until he moved to Ann Arbor in 1993.

Schall says his experience in Washington will help him better represent the 13th District if he is elected. Rivers says Schall is a Washington insider who only wants to get back there.

"For 10 years, while he has been working in Washington, I've been working here," Rivers said.

The 13th District includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and the southwest quadrant Family Emergencies.

No two emergencies are exactly alike. So all emergency care shouldn't be the same either.

That's why we designed and equipped our emergency department to handle everything from minor accidents to life-threatening injuries. If there are any questions about the seriousness of the emergency, a specially trained nurse is on hand to evaluate the situation and direct you to the appropriate level of treatment.

And whether you're a walk-in patient or require critical care, you'll receive the same quick and personalized medical attention from doctors who are specially trained in emergency medicine.

Our emergency care is backed by the resources of a full-service hospital, it's available 24 hours a day, every day, and it comes with the understanding that minor problems shouldn't result in major expenses . . . good reasons to go to St. Mary Hospital for sudden illness or injury. For more information call us at (313) 464-WELL.

Because when it comes to family emergencies, the specialized care we offer is no accident.

■ Big profits. That lawyers. Michigan insurers are making the biggest profits in the nation — more than 20 percent.

Insurers: The figures are flawed. They count surcharges to the Michigan Catastrophic Claims Association as profits, they're actually costs. The majority of insurance companies are mutuals, meaning they're owned by the policyholders, not stockholders, so the concept of "profit" is irrelevant.

PROPOSAL C: A REFERENDUM ON PUBLIC ACT 143 OF 1993 — AN AMENDMENT TO MICHIGAN'S AUTO INSURANCE LAWS.

Public Act 143 of 1993 would:

1) Reduce auto insurance rates by 16 percent (average) for six months for policyholders reducing personal injury (medical) insurance to $1 million, extra coverage made available at added cost.

Should the law be approved?

of Livonia.

The issues in this campaign have included: who better represents the interests of small business, health care, a promise Schall has made to pursue a specific package of legislation if elected, who would be "toughest" on crime and abortion.

The gist of Schall's message is to reduce the size, scope and reach of the federal government.

"My agenda is a genuine reform agenda for the Congress itself," he said. "We just have to get back to thinking again what the role of government is."

Rivers says she is "real touchy about the integrity of government" and acknowledges that "people are disgusted with government." She advocates cuts in defense and farm subsidies.

Rivers emphasizes her blue collar background, struggles as a young mother who worked and attended college at the same time. "I think I have a very real understanding of the very real problems people are dealing with," she said.

However, much of the campaign has been marred by derogatory comments and labeling.

Rivers has accused Schall of "gay bashing" for remarks he made to a group at Grand River Baptist Church in Livonia on Oct. 3.

A tape of Schall's speech, provided by Rivers, shows that Schall said that Rivers has "gotten a lot of support from the gay rights lobby. Probably her biggest support is from something called EMILY's List." EMILY's List is a national organization and self-described political network for Democratic women.

Rivers believes that Schall deliberately mentioned those two campaign contributors because he thought they would rile a church group the most.

Schall said he was only trying to show that Rivers has accepted money from "special interest groups."

In an Oct. 12 interview, Schall said he believes that homosexuals should have the same rights as heterosexuals, with one exception. "A line should be drawn when it comes to gays in the military because that's a different situation," he said.

In a fundraising letter dated Sept. 21, Rivers says "Schall is extreme, rabidly self-righteous, and proudly advocates the abolition of reproductive freedoms. He wants prayer in public schools and he marches lock-step with the most extreme radical right organizations, including Michigan Family Forum."

For his part, Schall never misses an opportunity to call Rivers an "ultra-liberal Democrat." Schall has told groups that Rivers opposes "everything you and I stand for."

Schall gets his information from a March 14, 1994 issue of Inside Michigan Politics, a newsletter published by political analyst Bill Ballenger. In that issue of IMP, the voting records of state representatives on 27 roll call votes in 1993 and 1994 were examined. Rivers took the "liberal" position on 25 of the 27 votes, second only to three other representatives, two of whom resigned to run for mayor of their respective hometowns.

Schall calls Rivers, "the second most liberal member of the state House."

In another exchange, Rivers criticized Schall for not voting in 20 elections from 1986 to 1993 while he worked in Washington, D.C.

Schall admits to not voting in school and city elections because he was far away in Washington. But he also missed voting in general elections in 1986 and 1992. He said that was because his absentee ballot was late in getting to the city clerk.

During his tenure, the college purchased and paid for the Garden City Radcliff campus, passed the first millage since 1977, established the business development center, revitalized the foundation, established the building authority, and led the drive to install more computers per student than any other community college in the state.

Ragan said that while Schoolcraft was improving and expanding, it is "one of few colleges in the state to be debt-free."

McDowell praised

Ragan paid tribute to McDowell by quoting a passage from "Reaching Out . . . A History of Schoolcraft College," written in 1983 by the late Sam Hudson.

"Encouraging to Schoolcraft-watchers as the college makes its way into the third decade are the attitudes and actions of its new president, Dr. Richard McDowell. Among them; his balanced view of the role of chief administrator, aware of the multiplicity of his obligations; his participatory approach to decisionmaking: 'I'm not the college, we are'; and his dedication to the premise that the community college is here to meet community needs. The term 'community college' is not an accident, he says."

McDowell was honored with resolutions from Wayne County Commissioner and former Schoolcraft trustee Thaddeus McCotter, and a joint state House and Senate resolution presented by state Rep. Jerry Vorva. State Rep. Lyn Bankes presented him with a state seal.

McDowell said a special part of Monday's dedication was the presence of his family and even several high school and grade school friends who traveled from Ohio and Pennsylvania for the ceremony.

High risk individuals for colo-rectal cancer should be involved in a screening program. The basis for the colo-rectal cancer screening is the relationship of the stage of this disease to the likelihood of survival. For a given patient with the disease in contrast to many other malignancies, the chance of survival depends almost entirely on the location and the extent of the tumor at the time of surgery. To alter the risk of colo-rectal cancer in the United States this would mean a change in the life style which is not easily expected or implemented. Among (modifier of Colo-rectal cancer risk) several studies suggest NSAID drugs and aspirin may inhabit the development of cancer of the large bowel and rectum: Use of aspirin dose is similar to those that already used to prevent heart disease or stroke may yield additional benefits of reduced risk of colo-rectal cancer. One caution is a reaciton from these medications in terms of bleeding that can occur. Further studies to evaluate the risk-benefit in the group of high risk for colo-rectal cancer shoudl be forthcoming.

Many employees offered separation or early retirement packages; financial planning a necessity.

"Many employees will need more than luck to make the most effective early retirement or separation decisions," says certified financial planner Chuck Bolanis.

Many people take advice from well-meaning friends. The problem is that their situation could be significantly different from yours, and the results could be significantly different, too.

Charles Bolanis

Do you or a friend have the expertise to accurately evaluate the tax implications concerning early retirement separation packages?" asks Bolanis. "Will you really be able to devise a plan to make sure your money lasts as long as you do?" Bolanis continues, "It's no easy undertaking to implement an overall retirement program that will work to address these and the numerous other critical questions that can impact your retirement."

Bolanis Financial Planning Group, Inc. has specialized in helping people plan for financial security upon retirement since 1982. All members of the Bolanis professional staff are Certified Financial Planners. For people who are facing early retirement, or separation, Bolanis and his team of professionals can make an important contribution in helping them make the right decisions. "Personalized financial planning can help you get the most out of your retirement assets," says Bolanis.

Bolanis Financial Planning Group will soon be putting their knowledge to practical use in a free seminar.

The seminar will address financial issues associated with early retirement and separation packages, including When can I retire?; What are the pros and cons of a monthly annuity vs. a lump sum payout?; and tax planning to minimize taxes – now and in the future; how to deal with the new withholding laws, and how to draw on your lump sum before 59½ without a penalty, to name a few.

The seminar will be held at 7 p.m., Tuesday, October 25 at the Wyndham Garden Hotel, 42100 Crescent Blvd., Novi.

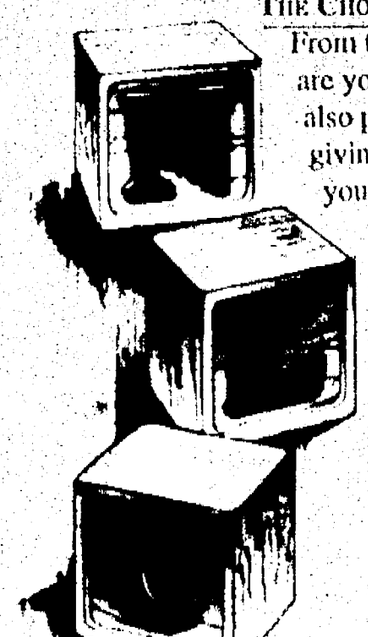
"Even if you don't normally attend seminars, you can't afford to miss this one," says Bolanis.

For reservations, call (810) 262-1466, or, toll free, 1-800-444-PLAN.

The New Life Center at Providence Park
Where families are born...close to home

A Comfortable Atmosphere
Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A Unique Approach
It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.



The Choices are Many
From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

Come See for Yourself
But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

*Only pregnant women who have been pre-screened and assessed as low risk by a Providence physician are eligible to deliver at the Providence Park New Life Center.

Family center dedicated at site of St. John's Seminary

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Forty-five years to the day after the late Cardinal Edward Mooney dedicated St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth Township, Detroit Archbishop Adam J. Maida welcomed clergy, governmental officials and members of the public and the press on a tour of the seminary, to be converted into the St. John Center for Youth & Family.

St. John's, a 175-acre facility with an 18-hole golf course at Five Mile and Sheldon roads, was closed in 1988 due to declining enrollment. It was placed on the market, and St. John's was thought to be the future site of senior citizen housing, or even a new Tiger Stadium.

None of the proposed developments reached fruition, and the archbishop announced last March that it would be renovated and used by the archdiocese.

"Once the work is completed, the St. John Center for Youth & Family will serve teenagers, young adults, married couples, engaged couples, and numerous support groups," said Maida. "We will have a wonderful facility in a great location. It further reinforces our commitment to the youth and families of the archdiocese of Detroit."

Some of the $2 million in renovations, to include making the facility handicapped accessible, enlarging the dormitory rooms and adding a kitchen — have already begun. The golf course, gym, bowling alleys, library, dining halls, faculty suites and conference rooms will be left intact.

Opening of a portion of the four-building facility — St. Edward's Hall — is targeted for February or March. St. John's can be reserved by calling Gerri Cooper at (313) 883-8529.

At the invitation of the archdiocese and in honor of the Michigan International Year of the Family, Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld was on hand.

Binsfeld, who serves as MIYF chairperson, addressed the archbishop and bishops Kevin Britt, Bernard Harrington and Walter Schoenherr, saying, "God has led you in a very good way, not to let the hammer of destruction fall on this beautiful facility.

"What you've envisioned will have a lasting impact to strengthen families in Michigan, since this is the first of its kind in the country and in the world."

Tom and Rita Rice, a couple from Northville that leads marriage seminars in hotels for lack of a better place, said they welcome the chance to have a facility to call home.

Andrea Dunning, a senior at Troy Athens High School who met the archbishop in Colorado when the Pope visited Denver, echoed the Rices and Dorothy from the "Wizard of Oz."

"There is no place like home, and I'm happy to be home," she said. "I really feel Archbishop Maida loves us, and so I applaud him. As youth, we have to make a promise in return to you," she told him. "The effects this place will make on people will be wonderful and beneficial."

Archdiocesan officials aren't concerned about Grosse Pointe developer Eric Lindquist and his ongoing legal battle to develop the site as senior housing center. The archdiocese declared void earlier this year a purchase agreement with Lindquist, as he had not produced evidence of financing by a contracted deadline.

Wayne County Circuit Judge William Giovan ruled Oct. 7 that the archdiocese is free to make renovations. He also ruled that Lindquist may return to court with a letter of credit.

Don Scheible, director of buildings for the archdiocese, said, "In a year and a half, he hasn't come up with a letter of credit. I don't know where he's going to come up with one at this stage. We're serious about this and will hit the ground running."

Plans call for the golf course to remain open to the public. In the past, the course has been leased to Mission Hills Golf Club, which operated it. As of Oct. 1, the archdiocese terminated the agreement. "We have ownership back, and Garland Management Services L.L.C. is managing it for us," said archdiocesan spokesman Richard Laskos.

The Michigan Court of Appeals recently ruled against Retirement and Health Services Corp., a Baltimore, Md., firm that sued the archdiocese after an offer to purchase the seminary wasn't accepted. The firm built in Dearborn, where it now operates a senior housing facility.

Lauren Bacall's visit to area brings out fervent fans

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Rose Silver of Southfield is proud to be a dedicated Bacall fan and she doesn't care who knows it.

"I saw every movie Lauren Bacall ever made," she boasted. "So when I heard she was coming to the Bookpeople in West Bloomfield to sign her new book, I got my daughter to bring me."

Jackie Posner of Southfield knew Bacall back when.

"I used to shop at the original Loehmann's with Betty back in Brooklyn," she said with pride. "We tried dresses on together. I adored her style. I wanted to look like her. I named my daughter, Lauren, after her. I named my second daughter after her daughter, Leslie. I would have named my son after her son Steve, but we had so many Stephens in the family already, I named him Stewart instead."

It was the renewal of a love affair between fans and the deep-voiced movie legend.

"My mom really loves Betty Bacall," said Karen Cherney of West Bloomfield while holding up a camera. "I just had to bring her here tonight to get Bacall's autograph and snap a picture of them together."

Hundreds of other local fans had the same idea. It was a tight squeeze in the Bookpeople store at the Orchard Mall Thursday night. The line to meet Bacall snaked through the store steadily for more than two hours. The shop ordered 500 books for the signing session, reporting 300 sold within the first hour.

Fans appeared happy and nervous to meet "a true movie star," according to Suzi Alterman of West Bloomfield.

"I'm a bit awestruck, I'll admit," Alterman said. "I've always admired Bacall. In a way she reminds me of my mother. I had to come out tonight and meet her."

It wasn't just women who admired Bacall and came out for the signing.

Brothers Howard and Larry Maloff of Oak Park said they would have called in sick at work to get her autograph if the great appearance was held during the day instead of the evening.

"I love her movies," Larry said. "She's a very fine actress. I'm a big (Humphrey) Bogart fan, too. This is dream come true to meet her."

Fans brought more than her books for Bacall to sign. Some carried black and white photographs of her from her starlet days. Others brought old issues of Life magazine from the time when her life was a cover story. One man carried several pieces of Bacall memorabilia, including a baseball for her to sign. However, when he reached the signing table, he was told by Bookpeople owner Sandy Nathanson that Bacall's signature was limited to one per customer.

"She was so gracious," Nathanson said. "She was supposed to sign from 6 to 7 p.m. But she showed up at 5:30 p.m. and stayed until quarter to eight. We were told by the publishers she wouldn't sign memorabilia, but she did."

Nathanson estimated that 450 copies of Bacall's book, "Now," were sold on Thursday. She said that the Bacall appearance was a gift from Random House publishers, which is concerned that independent booksellers stay in business and have the same advantages as the larger chain stores.

Bacall was patient, smiling up at each fan before signing her name and a personal greeting on the inside cover page of each book. She dressed in black slacks, a black tunic, black hose and shoes, removing her black blazer after about 20 minutes of signing autographs. On her right wrist she wore a dozen gold bangle bracelets.

Most of the signing was routine until Bacall caught sight of a toddler twisting to get out of a stroller pulled near the signing table. She broke into a wide grin and attempted to get the child's attention.

"I've always been impressed with Lauren Bacall as an actress, wife, working mother and now at 70, still beautiful and productive. She's a role model for women. She's a survivor," said Marti Lewis of Royal Oak as she watched Bacall interact with admirers.

"I have two heroes," said Trina Heath of Troy. "Jackie Onassis and Betty Bacall. Both women have a lot of class and style."

Bacall has penned two books about her life, "By Myself," published in hardcover in 1978 and now available in paperback, and "Now" currently in bookstores for $22. Her West Bloomfield appearance was part of a national tour to promote the new book. While in town, Bacall also made a guest appearance on Kelly & Company.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: Is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.

My 2½ ideas for Halloween

I gave them 2 1/2 ideas. That's two and a half ideas. Regarding Halloween costumes. Don't you think that's good to think up 2 1/2 ideas in the same year? And, two of the ideas were theme ideas. I love themes; they're so tidy.

Like Idea No. 1. It was a reprise of a most successful theme from a few years back when I made Tony into a rake and his sister into a pile of leaves. This year, with three trick-or-treaters, I proposed the following expansion of the theme: Joe could be the leaf pile, Carmen the rake and Tony, why he could be the autumn tree with loads of brightly colored leaves dangling from the branches attached to his head, neck and maybe even his shoulders. This, they said, was dumb. I am still hurt.

Idea No. 2 - another theme - was a Daddy pleaser. "How about being tools?" I suggested. "Y'know, one of you guys could be a hammer. And pliers . . . that would be good. And how 'bout a wrench?" They took the proverbial wrecking bar to Idea No. 2.

Now, Idea No. 2 1/2 was not a theme. The theme thing was just not working out. Perhaps proposing only half an idea at a time, not a whole theme, would be better. Tony, I decided, would be a perfect candidate for Idea No. 2 1/2 -

Chorus has a 'sweet' harmony

■ The finishing touches have been put on the costumes and the last dress rehearsal completed. The Spirit of Detroit Sweet Adeline Chorus is ready to vie for international honors in competition in Reno, Nev., next week.

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

As the curtain opens, 70 women - elegantly attired in sequined, flowing white chiffon dresses, sparkling jewelry and white satin pumps - raise their voices in four-part harmony.

A hush falls over the auditorium as the award-winning Spirit of Detroit Sweet Adeline Chorus performs choreographed, barbershop arrangements of "It's a Sin to Tell a Lie," "Last Night Was the End of the World" and "Unforgettable."

Dress rehearsal has arrived for the regional champion Spirit of Detroit, which jets off to Reno, Nev., Tuesday for international competition Nov. 4 at the Lawlor Center.

Comprised of women of all age groups, backgrounds and occupations, the Redford Township-based Spirit of Detroit out-performed choruses from Michigan and Ontario to earn the right to vie for international honors.

Sweet Adelines boasts choruses from Japan, Sweden, England, Scotland, Finland, Germany, Mexico, Panama, Australia, New Zealand, the Netherlands and Canada in addition to the U.S.

After months of practice and preparation, Spirit of Detroit is ready for the most discerning judges and the largest of audiences. They're polished entertainers, having warmed up at venues including Tiger Stadium, where they've sung the Canadian and American national anthems, and received rave reviews from the likes of Ernie Harwell, legendary voice of the Detroit Tigers and a professional

ANNIVERSARIES

Gustafson

Ann Crouson O'Brady of Garden City, Terry and Kristine Crouson of Westland, Allen Crouson of Farmington, Daniel Crouson of Westland, Dennis and Cindy Crouson of Redford, Jon and Carol Gustafson of Redford, Fred and Laurie Gustafson of Highland, Marjorie Gustafson Lee of Parma, and Andrew and Cristine Gustafson of Green Bay.

Former area residents Charlie and Janice Gustafson are returning to the Metro Detroit area to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary with family and friends on Oct. 15 in Grosse Pointe.

The couple were married Oct. 18, 1969, at Wayne Free Methodist Church in Westland. Originally from Garden City, the former Janice Gail Crouson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Finis E. Davidson, and the late Cecil Crouson. She graduated from Garden City West High School in 1967. Mr. Gustafson, a former Detroit resident, is a 1960 graduate of Redford High School, and is the son of Mrs. Beatrice Gustafson and the late Frederick Gustafson.

The couple made their home in the area until 1979 when they moved to Northern Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula.

Zelenka

A dinner with family members and a cruise of the Caribbean are on tap for Joseph and Carol Zelenka of Livonia who are celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary.

The Zelenkas were married on Dec. 18, 1964, in Inkster. She is the former Carol Buchacz.

Twenty-one-year residents of Livonia, they have four children — Michael of Livonia, Donna of Westland, Debbie of Westland and Mark of Livonia.

He is a electrician, and she is a homemaker. Their hobbies include camping, gardening and reading.

Johnston

Family and friends turned out for a surprise open house held Sept. 24 for golden jubilarians John and Lorraine Johnston of Livonia.

The couple exchanged vows on Oct. 4, 1944, in Detroit. She is the former Lorraine Rodgers.

The Johnstons have three children — Mary of Lancaster, S.C., John Jr. of Walled Lake and Doug of Oceanside, Calif. — and six grandchildren.

Retired 10 years, he was a pharmacist and owned his own business. She worked in retail sales for J.L. Hudson. Their hobbies include travel, swimming, sports and gardening.

Writer is no stranger to hard work

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

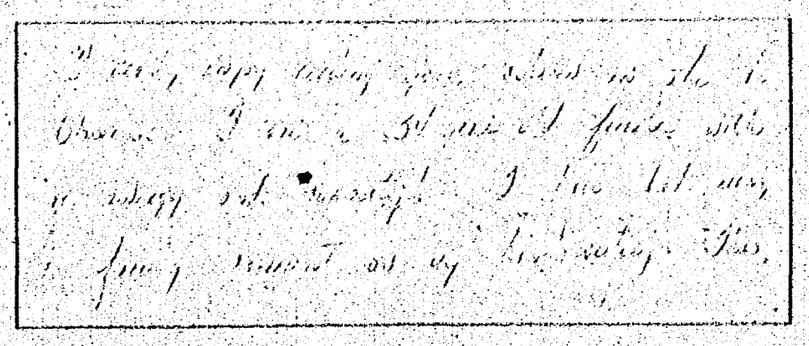
Dear Lorene,

I really enjoy reading your column in The Plymouth Observer. I am a 34-year-old female with lots of energy and curiosity! I have had many friends and family comment on my handwriting. Thus, I would be very interested to get your thoughts and comments. I do believe that handwriting analysis can be a valuable instrument and give a unique perspective into an individual's personality, etc. I welcome your thoughts and feedback.

I hope you have a sufficient sampling of my handwriting. Thank you for taking the time to read this letter.

D.R.,
Plymouth

P.S. My father teases me and suggests that my writing changes with each degree. He might be on to something!!



Let me say that I can't comment on other styles of writing without first seeing them. My report is based totally on the letter written on Sept. 23.

This is the handwriting of a young woman whose finely honed intelligence cannot be missed. She combines logical reasoning with intuitive insight. Her versatile mind can easily shift modes, adopting the one appropriate at the time.

Whatever the writer experiences will be perceived with strong emphasis on the intellectual side of her personality. This is where she performs best.

Our writer is an achiever. She is not a stranger to hard work. Most of her standards are set very high and she strains almost compulsively to reach them. She works for error-free performance to avoid criticism and is too often aware of her alleged shortcomings. She is hard on herself.

When she applies her unreasonably high standards to others and inevitably voices disappointment, others react with annoyance. Because she fears rejection should she be judged imperfect, she tends to react defensively to criticism. This response usually alienates or frustrates others and brings about the very disappointment she most fears. Then she feels more isolated because it reinforces her irrational belief that she must be faultless to be accepted.

Mental efficiency is combined with a knack for getting to the bottom of things. She is a discerning thinker who grasps the essential and gets to the heart of the matter. She does not get lost in trivial issues and is highly effective in eliminating unnecessary details. Simplicity in all of its forms appeals to her. There exists a satisfactory ratio between expended effort and resulting success.

She takes her responsibilities seriously and worries about matters that would probably work themselves out quite painlessly, if left alone. The lighter side of life takes second place to her goals.

This young woman is independent with a certain inner conviction and is prepared to take a stand for what she believes. She probably has many original and personal ideas to call upon. She is a self-starter and may be better working on her own.

To better understand this writer, we must look back to an earlier period in her life. In the formative years of her personality development she did not view her parents as united in their nurturing of her. She continues to perceive some deprivation from that time.

It is not easy for her to develop close attachment to other people. She tends to isolate herself somewhat and give an air of assurance she does not always feel.

In her friendships she is quite selective, preferring only a limited number. Primarily, I believe, they are those people who share common interests with her. At times she may feel lonely, but would probably not care to admit this.

Seemingly, she needs quiet time for relaxation, study and/or meditation. She seems to work at keeping an optimistic outlook on life and living. She is comfortable remaining close to home and lives contentedly without great excitement and variety.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in the newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing, in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And feedback is always welcomed.

Alzheimer's research discussed at meeting

The latest research involving Alzheimer's disease will be the topic of a meeting of the Livonia Support Group for Alzheimer's Caregivers Thursday, Nov. 3.

Dr. Alan Dengiz will speak at the meeting, set for 10 a.m. to noon at the Livonia Civic Park Senior Center, at 15128 Farmington Road, Livonia.

The chief for geriatric medicine at the McCauley Health Center in Ypsilanti, Dengiz has successfully treated Alzheimer's patients with a new drug, Cognex, which slows down the disease progression for some people.

More than 30,000 people in Wayne County have Alzheimer's disease, a disorder of the brain that gradually destroys mental capabilities. The disease is progressive, and at this time, there is no known cure.

In most cases the first manifestation of the disease is memory loss. The patient has trouble remembering familiar names, places and faces about his or her life. Judgment, concentration, orientation and speech usually are affected and eventually the patient loses all mental abilities as well as control of bodily functions.

Since the cause and cure of Alzheimer's disease are not known, treatment is usually limited to managing symptoms. Proper nutrition, carefully guided exercise and mentally stimulating activities can help in maintaining functioning, while a patient's agitation and anxiety can be minimized by proper care and medication.

"Families face a difficult challenge when caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's disease," said support group leaders Ted Harrington and Bob Weir. "Education and information will help them cope."

The Nov. 3 program is free and presented by the Alzheimer's Association-Detroit Area Chapter and Parke-Davis. Registration is limited and can be completed by calling (810) 557-8277.

As those who attend their concerts know, Spirit of Detroit's repertoire encompasses contemporary tunes, gospel and patriotic songs, as well as old favorites. The unaccompanied chorus features baritones, tenors, bass and lead singers. Barbershoppers aren't required to read music.

Rewarding experience

While traveling and competing highlight membership in Sweet Adelines, women find it rewarding and enjoyable for social, philanthropic and personal reasons.

Spirit of Detroit director Leann K. Hazlett lives south of Toledo, Ohio, and every Tuesday is at the 7 p.m. rehearsals at the VFW Hall at I-96 and Inkster Road in Redford.

Plymouth resident Dorothy Davenport is a Sweet Adeline along with daughters Kathy Green of Farmington Hills and Karen Davenport of Plymouth.

"It's challenging," said Dorothy Davenport, a barbershopper for nearly 20 years and the chorus' costume chairwoman. "By meeting a challenge or extending yourself, you have fun. It's a good feeling when you succeed. It's really very special when your children enjoy the same activity."

Maureen Maher of Westland joined five years ago.

"One of the things I enjoy most is performing in front of people and making people happy," she said. "It's a fun hobby for single people who need to keep themselves busy."

Said Redford's Joy Wirick: "This is my family. It's like I have 100 sisters. We kind of take care of each other. It isn't just the singing, although I've become a much better singer since I joined."

Linda Lupo of Westland will compete in Reno not only with Spirit of Detroit, but with the award-winning Grand Prix quartet.

"Sweet Adelines has changed my life, it's a very positive, uplifting experience. The women who join generally are very outgoing and friendly," said Lupo, a nursing student and St. Mary Hospital secretary. "It's exhilarating to sing in a quartet. The hard work is worth it."

Greatest asset

Sweet Adelines find that one of their organization's greatest assets is that choruses are everywhere. A Sweet Adeline who moves or travels to another state has only to pick up the phone.

"Many choruses have the same repertoire and barbershop arrangements," said Redford's Jan Dillon, who discovered that to be the case while visiting her son in Arizona a few years ago.

Cathe Finlayson of Canton, a 32-year-member, has experienced the same thing.

"I've been all over singing barbershop," she said. "It's like an extended family."

Spirit of Detroit recently launched "Young Women in Harmony," a free program for educators and singers of tomorrow. Sweet Adelines visit schools singing four-part harmony and providing videos, songbooks and brochures.

The chorus' "Come Alive in '95" program, designed for new members, kicks off in February. Women interested in improving their vocal skills and learning what life is like as a Sweet Adeline are welcome to attend a six-week workshop on vocalizing, breathing, resonance, posture, dynamics and vowels. There'll be a nominal fee for supplies.

Prospective Sweet Adeliner also are welcome to attend rehearsal at 7 p.m. any Tuesday at the VFW.

"The music staff is very talented, and the rehearsals are equivalent to semi-private voice lessons," said Wirick. "Don't let the word choreography scare you off either. It's just for the front row."

For more information about the Spirit of Detroit Sweet Adeline Chorus, call (313) 634-4468.

the entire solar system. His head we could dress up like the sun and then he could have the planets sticking out from his hair on pipe cleaners or something, and he could wear a dark sweatsuit with glow-in-the-dark stars stuck all over. Pretty cool, huh?

"Oh, Mom, that's really lame."

I could feel the tears well up in my eyes.

"All right," I sniffed. "If that's how you want to be. Then fine. You think up your costume. I'll give you one week to think about it. That's your deadline. No ifs. No costume."

I had become the Halloween Grinch. But I knew good and well that Halloween and homemade costumes would materialize regardless of sniffy ultimatums.

I knew because the same sort of thing happened last year. Tony didn't want to be the clock in the Hickory-dickory-dock-the-mouse-ran-up-the-clock theme. Carmen and Joe, though, liked that theme, they wanted to be fat mice. Tony, however, griped. I ultimatumed. He didn't come up with an alternative, and at the 11th hour, I turned him into a full-sized grandfather clock.

This required me first going into the fancy furniture store downtown and then pretending to be a serious shopper. I sat through 45 minutes of looking at catalogs of canopy beds (which I had absolutely no intention of buying, but I thought I'd better listen to the saleswoman in order to get on her good side so she would gladly help me out with finding a box for the clock costume).

So when the saleswoman had at last exhausted her bed catalogs, and Joe had removed and hidden most of the tags from several dinette sets, I finally asked if one tall box from the back room could be spared. "Oh my goodness, the box man picked them all up just before you came in."

Next stop, the grocery store. The wonderful produce man was just unpacking fruit and he not only let me have two banana boxes, but gave some tips on box clock making and even used his hideously sharp knife to cut the bottoms out of the boxes.

The clock turned out great. And the fat mice, well, I couldn't find gray dye, so I got black and just boiled the pillowcases in the black water for a little while. That worked. . . sort of. I cut leg holes and arm holes, attached tails and on Halloween night Joe and Carmen put their coats on, stepped into their loose mouse suits and waited while I stuffed them full with newspaper and stapled them shut. I made last minute mouse ear adjustments, face paint touch ups and gave safety instructions to the clock. And at the very last minute Joe hated his pillowcase body.

So there in the front hallway with the first batch of trick-or-treaters at my door, I handed out candy, pulled out staples, dug out wads of newspaper, extricated Joe from his hateful mouse suit, tore the tail off and Super Glue'd it to the rear of Joe's gray overalls.

Then off into the dark they all went. Hickory, Dockery and Dock.

MDOT Is Doing Its Best To Keep You Out Of A Fix...

While Fixing The Bridges

As BRIDGEFIX continues, access to downtown has improved with the re-opening of Chrysler Freeway (I-75). The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is repairing nine bridges and pedestrian walkways over the Lodge (M-10), Ford (I-94) and Fisher (I-75) freeways. When the job is done, you will be traveling over (and under) some of the safest, most secure bridges in Michigan. In the meantime, MDOT wants to keep you out of a fix, while fixing the bridges. Here's how:

- Check your local print news and traffic information stations for updated travel information.
- All freeways have two lanes open in both directions, except during night time construction periods.
- Watch for detour signs and please observe the speed limits.
- Call our toll-free hotline — 1-800-968-9394 — for up-to-the minute information on detours and lane closures.

Court races

Bokos, McKnight: best choices

Westland voters will elect two district judges Nov. 8 from among four candidates who possess a variety of skills and backgrounds.

Veteran Judge Gail McKnight is opposed by challenger Terry Spence for a six-year term.

Campaigning for the remaining two years of a six-year term are Judge C. Charles Bokos, named by the governor in the summer of 1992 to fill a vacancy, and City Councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli.

Based on watching the candidates in public roles and through individual interviews, the Observer recommends Judge Charles Bokos be elected to the balance of the term and Judge Gail McKnight be re-elected to another six-year term on the bench.

In the most spirited court campaign seen in years, Bokos and Cicirelli are running hard to gain voters' support Nov. 8.

On paper, both candidates are impressive.

But Bokos has demonstrated during the past two years that he knows the law and the role of a district judge.

The Observer has personally seen him handle dozens of criminal cases in a way that goes beyond just being minimally professional and fair.

He administers a docket that covers the gamut of nearly every type of criminal case, ranging from spouse abuse to drug offenses to murder and everything in between.

Before appointed as district judge, Bokos served as the city of Westland's attorney as part of his 29-year-long law practice.

While he was not a Westland resident for most of that period, he maintained an office in the community and has gained experience to understand the city's criminal justice needs. As part of his law practice, Bokos served as general counsel for the city's elderly housing corporation, Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority and the Nankin Transit Commission.

A reflection of the widespread support Bokos is enjoying in his first election campaign is the list of varied group and political endorsements. Those range from the local police officers' union, Mayor Robert Thomas and five of seven City Council members, to non-governmental unions and the Women's Lawyers Association of Michigan.

In the other court race, McKnight should be re-elected to a new term in a race in which she clearly is the most capable. Appointed to a vacancy 10 years ago, she was elected to her first six-year term in 1988.

McKnight has a lengthy record of community service, not only as a judge but as a former city councilwoman and member of several boards of directors, such as First Step, which provides a shelter and services for abused women, and the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA.

Over the years, she has clearly set a high standard for professionalism, judicial temperament and skill in handling a busy docket.

On Nov. 8, we recommend Bokos and McKnight for the 18th District Court.

Rivers should succeed Rep. Ford

Voters in the 13th District will elect a new representative to replace U.S. Rep. William D. Ford, who is retiring after some 30 years in Congress.

The race pits two intelligent, hard-working, but very different candidates against each other.

Democrat Lynn Rivers, 37, of Ann Arbor, is a wife and mother who struggled to work her way through school at the University of Michigan and later Wayne State University Law School.

Republican John Schall, 33, formerly of Livonia and now living in Ann Arbor, graduated from Bishop Borgess High, the University of Michigan and Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government.

He began his government career during the Reagan administration and was chief of staff of the U.S. Department of Labor, at age 30 the youngest chief of staff of a cabinet department in the government.

After listening to the candidates at various public forums in the district, examining the issues and questioning the candidates, we recommend Democrat Lynn Rivers, on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Rivers currently represents Ann Arbor in the state House. She was elected to the Ann Arbor School Board in 1984. She served on the board for eight years, three of them as president.

Ethics and integrity were among the main issues she championed in the Democratic primary.

As a state representative, Rivers does not claim in district travel expenses, does not keep an office expense fund, and voted against the pay raise for state lawmakers. She has pledged to fight the perks and privileges Congress gives itself.

Rivers is an independent-minded, common-sense candidate who will be a progressive at the people of the 13th District. She lives in the district, has worked here and understands the concerns of the average voter.

Although her opponent has attempted to distort her record on crime, weapons and business issues, her record is clear.

In the state Legislature, Rivers helped pass the "three strikes and you're out" law to put repeat violent offenders behind bars for good. She supported truth-in-sentencing legislation and is co-sponsor of a bill that puts tougher penalties on offenders who commit crimes using a gun.

She co-sponsored a bill to cut the Michigan Single Business Tax.

When Proposal A was being assembled last December, Rivers voted against a section that called for higher business property taxes.

She comes from a "small-business family" and recognizes the managerial and tax problems that go with operating a small business.

Rivers has a record. Her opponent, on the other hand, offers his support of the "Contract with America," an agenda that the GOP promises to debate and vote on in the first 100 days of the 104th Congress.

Although there are some good ideas in the plan, the Wall Street Journal recently noted that "the economic and institutional reforms are frauds."

Republicans insist the tax cuts promised in the contract will be accomplished all by spending cuts. Highly unlikely, since they also have pledged not to touch Social Security.

Rivers has served the community and knows first hand what legislative politics is all about. She has proven to be a competent, reasonable state representative.

LETTERS

Officials knocked

How sad, even shameful, that Westland city officials spent more time publicly debating the construction of a Burger King restaurant with its emissions of grilled hamburgers, than the construction of a multi-million dollar waste-to-energy plant with its emissions of burnt trash.

Our council members voting in support of this proposal may be naive about the controversy surrounding incineration, but they are certainly not naive about the importance of thoroughly studying controversial expenditures.

After all, we have three former mayors sitting on council seats. One recently campaigned praising the benefits of curbside recycling as something our citizens wanted and needed. Another former mayor has a history of overseeing garbage deals. Unfortunately, we all know how many of those decisions have come back to haunt us.

Still another former mayor and one current city council member are seeking positions of higher authority. If elected, will the public be best served when issues of equal or greater magnitude come across their future desks? Will citizen input and fair debate be a part of the equation?

And yet we see another council member, representing a fresh new attitude for our city, who in my opinion, by voting yes for this plan, has not done our generation proud.

We are not the same community who supported an incinerator 30 years ago as a panacea. Nor are we the same community who thought filling in "swamps" with garbage was a great way to increase property value and create parks. We are suppose to be a little smarter than our forefathers.

We are the generation facing contaminated playgrounds for our children. We are the ones stuck with polluted rivers and creeks behind our back fences and a mountain of bond indebtedness that even we will not live long enough to pay off.

I don't claim to be an expert, nor do I expect the mayor or city council to be experts. I will not, however, excuse any lack of initiative on their part in seeking out expert advice. There are many in our community who would have gladly helped research this issue, had they only been asked.

Ron Graunstadt, Westland

Article was fair

In reference to articles in the Observer related to teacher compensation printed throughout September.

I would like to come to the defense of Observer reporter Marie Chestney who wrote the article in the Sept. 12 Observer entitled "Teachers consider new pact." The article gave information on specific teacher's salaries for the first 10 years of service and some data on longer service.

I congratulate the school board for releasing the data and the Observer for publishing it. Even though the public needs to know this type of information, it is a rare event that such details are conveyed by the media.

If indeed the majority of the teaching staff in Livonia has more than 25 years of experience, this article does little to indicate actual compensation for this group. The reporter did an excellent job and simply reported factual data and then used as example, "Ima Teacher" to clarify the information.

The two letters to the editor attacking the person who composed the article were out of line. It was unbelievable what they read into the article berating the personal motivation of the writer. I'm sure Marie Chestney was not trying to "evaluate a teacher's daily worth." The article didn't imply and nobody believes that teaching is an easy job.

When you consider the short work year, that benefits are paid all year long and are better than most, the Observer's data does show that low seniority teachers are very well paid indeed.

Some important differences between professionals in the private sector and public sector are as follows: salary increases are not based on seniority alone but performance; generally no increase will automatically occur for a higher level degree; salary levels must be based on the ability to make a profit, never a problem for government; the work period is 8 hours a day, 49 or 50 weeks a year, and outside work is also not compensated; and, its not a good idea to wave a picket sign in your employer's face.

POINTS OF VIEW

Halloween has silver lining: learning to share

GUEST COLUMNIST

DOROTHY MATSU

I recall festivities began at Sunday School, to monitor any early indications of strange behavior, no doubt. While that Holy Ghost was never quite explained, we were exposed to the concept of spirit while bobbing for apples like some medieval torture.

Costumes were simple. Angel, devil, skeleton, ghost or witch. For a child, penny candy was valid currency. No one I knew got an allowance, but one could survive on glass empties found while tippy-toeing among the shards. When the holiday's traditional promise of safe treats without dangerous and humiliating barter rolled around, we went into serious training.

In order to cover all possible ground without having the police out looking for us, costumes were efficiently designed with speed and mobility — not parental labor — in mind.

In our poor neighborhood, you prayed that good behavior and the element of surprise would convince weary adults to trust you with the responsibility of scavenging with siblings and cohorts.

A basic in the early 1960s was the black leotard. Yank on a gray sweatshirt, slap a beret on your head, pencil in a moustache beauty mark, and voila — beatnik.

Skip the hat and sweat, tie on a chiffon scarf — a ballerina. Hat, cape, gloves and boots — Zorro. Mask instead of hat — Batman. Slicked-back hair — Dracula.

That stuffed velvet tail passed down from sister to sister — black cat. More accessories — Catwoman. Of course, you never left the house without the traditional female weapon, plastic-covered clothesline that served as both jump rope and stinging whip. A few white bones painted up and down — Mr. Skeleton. White sheet — ghost, angel, mummy. Silver hairspray and foil — martian or astronaut. Any old prom dress — fairy princess.

In a rush? Dad's old clothes, and I'm a hobo. Really old clothes and you're a soldier. Not politically incorrect if Dad really was, just a poignant reminder of real-life ghosts who haunt us.

Red tights — devil or TNT. Green? Frankenstein, Peter Pan. Trench coat, fedora, sunglasses — gangster, secret agent or invisible man. Black loafers, white socks, depending on your looks — Elvis or Jerry Lewis.

Nobody bought costumes at local dime stores, as they were rumored to burst into flames with the blink of a flashlight.

The local smoke shop displayed incredible rubber masks — but only adults could go in there, and most of us didn't know any who would. Makeup, not masks.

Remember: Kids are scary enough as themselves. When we were allowed to venture out, it was well after dark, giving working folk enough time to eat. We knew which houses to avoid, although there always seemed to be the brat who insisted on banging the reclusive nut's door while we pleaded from the bushes until a goon burst forth like Boo Radley with an angry bellow that propelled us two blocks away without touching the ground.

Time to dance home. A light rain falls. Happily whirling like a dervish, a little girl's soggy paper bag rips, casting her booty out across Goldfish Pond. Then we learned to share.

Wayne mom proud

I attended the Oct. 11 Wayne-Westland school board meeting. The reason for my presence at this particular meeting was my concerns with the closing of Monroe Elementary School. Due to the many changes that are proposed to take place in our district, John Glenn Auditorium was filled to capacity with many irate parents.

There was one person who addressed the school board and cited statistics regarding ACT testing at Wayne Memorial High School and John Glenn High School.

Most parents in the audience were very obviously John Glenn district people due to the applause this very misinformed man received. He stated that only four students in last year's Wayne Memorial graduating class participated in the ACT testing whereas most John Glenn seniors took this test.

His stats were very obviously wrong due to the fact that we have many students that graduate with honors at Wayne Memorial that far out-number the smaller figure he quoted.

Better than 50 percent of the Wayne Memorial students take the ACT test. John Glenn probably does have more four-year college-bound students than Wayne Memorial but that is due to the current school boundaries which create a disproportionate division of socio-economic levels at the two high schools.

We finally have the opportunity to address this problem with the proposed boundary changes which would correct these inequities. It is time that the causes of an elitism attitude of certain areas within our Wayne-Westland schools be addressed.

The bottom-line is providing our children with the best education possible to ready them for whatever the future holds. Wayne Memorial High is a very qualified school with a teaching staff equivalent to John Glenn High. I have five daughters, three are in major universities pursuing careers in teaching and law.

Pam Dobrowolski, Wayne

School board unfair

An open letter to the Livonia Board of Education.

We are addressing you on the issue of respect for the paraprofessionals, head custodians, and secretaries.

You are fortunate to have in your employ well educated, dedicated, caring individuals. Many of the secretaries, paraprofessionals, and head custodian personnel have two-year degrees, teaching credentials, advanced on-the-job training, years of practical experience, even bachelor and master degrees. Granted, these are not all requirements for the job classifications we fill, but we can't help to think that they were considerations in employment.

These are individuals who perhaps, for reasons beyond their control, were unable to utilize their training in charge of a classroom, but because of their belief in public education, their concern for, love of children, and learning, have taken positions as support staff. The quality of our work, and our professionalism is, however, overshadowed by the lack of respect and appreciation shown in our paychecks.

Secretaries have a day in which they may receive a token of gratitude in the form of flowers, a meal, or a small gift from their bosses. Paraprofessionals and head custodians may be occasionally remembered by some teaching staff members, in gratitude for their contributions, or they may just receive the leftovers the parents, PTAs, or student councils sent in for the teachers' celebration of Education Week.

We are often denied the opportunity to serve on committees and to participate in the school decision-making processes advocated in the Livonia Public Schools mission statement.

We blindly believe that if we give our best to Livonia Public Schools, we may have a chance for advancement, when unfortunately we are often locked into a position for the life of our employment, such as the transportation paraprofessionals and parking lot paraprofessionals. Head custodians and secretaries are denied the opportunity to transfer because it is inconvenient for the personnel department to fill our jobs we so aptly perform.

You applaud the concept of cooperative education, and teach its values to our children, yet it is not always practiced and followed in concept in your employment practices and your treatment of support personnel.

We feel we are being viewed as expendable commodities. Most of our members live in the immediate communities that Livonia Public Schools serves. When you ask for a millage, you will be addressing our families, our neighbors, and our friends.

The Livonia Pubic Schools head custodians, paraprofessionals, and secretaries, contribute to, and take pride in, the educational process in this community. We deserve more than leftovers. We are dedicated to and love the children we work with and are dedicated to and love our families.

Superintendent Kenneth Watson has a reputation of excellence and fairness in this educational community. The bargaining team has bent over backwards with our patience these last 16 months partially because of our respect.

The adversarial climate that is developing during the current negotiations is negative and detrimental to mutual respect and team concept. You can have an impact, let it be conciliatory and positive.

Mary Brawley, classroom paraprofessional
Arlene Fitzsimmons, secretary
Joan Hovey, parking lot paraprofessional
Cynthia Lawson, classroom paraprofessional

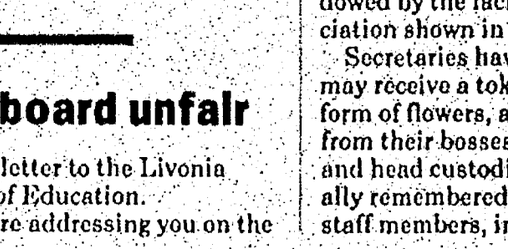
Senate candidate Bob Carr — smart, capable, creative



PHILIP POWER

Way back in the 1978 state Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate, I wound up finishing second in a six-man race to Carl Levin, who went on to beat Bob Griffin and is still a sitting senator from Michigan.

I have also owned newspapers around Lansing and in Livingston and Oakland counties for the time Bob Carr has represented this area in Congress. My editors and reporters have had their eye on him for years.

It's for these reasons this column is about the Senate race between Carr and Spencer Abraham. I have direct experience both with politics at this level and with one of the candidates.

I think Carr would a better senator than Abraham. I'm going to vote for him, and I hope this column will persuade you to do so, too.

He's smart, capable and creative.

I once talked with Carr about what to do about the Willow Run plant, just after GM decided to close it. He had figured out how to combine the old auto plant, the airport, Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus into a full-blown international free trade zone. There are very few politicians who can think this creatively about a complex problem.

Unlike many members of the Michigan congressional delegation, Carr understands that as long as the rules are the way they are, a major obligation of a representative of Michigan in Washington is to bring home the bacon.

Carr didn't mess around when he was chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation.

First, he passed rules substituting long-term economic merit for pure political pork. But then he found ways — within the rules — to get millions of dollars in money and thousands of jobs for Michigan.

He's independent, genuinely so, in part because his district was so evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans. He's not a knee-jerk liberal or a fake conservative.

He voted for the balanced budget amendment but against congressional pay raises, and for the crime bill that included gun control that wasn't popular in chunks of his district.

At a time of political volatility and political change, having an independent thinker in power is enormously valuable.

Now Spencer Abraham, Carr's Republican opponent, is not an evil man. By all accounts from my political friends and reporters alike, he's very bright and politically able.

But all — literally all — of his political experience has been as a backroom political operative, first as the chair of the Michigan Republican Party and most recently as deputy chief of staff for Vice President Dan Quayle.

This reminds me of the famous story about Lyndon Johnson, just after he became president after Jack Kennedy's death. He was telling then-Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn about the Kennedy cabinet and how smart they were and how many advanced degrees they had. "Ain't none of 'em even run for dog catcher," snorted Rayburn.

He's right. The experience of having to run for office, to face the public while campaigning in the flesh and then having to go on record in voting yes or no is quite beyond the realities experienced by a backroom operator, no matter how clever.

That's why in this race for the U.S. Senate the choice is admirably clear. It's between a man who has a solid record of honorable and independent service for Michigan as an elected congressman and a skilled political operative.

I'm looking forward to voting for Bob Carr, and I hope you will, too.

The show continues weekends through Nov. 19. Tickets are $8, call (810) 553-2955.

■ Don't miss the opening concert of the Musica Viva International Concert Series featuring classical guitarist Philippe Loli, 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, at the Smith Theatre for the Performing Arts on the Oakland Community College, Orchard Ridge Campus, 27055 Orchard Lake Road. Tickets are $17 in advance or $22 at the door. Call (810) 471-7700 or Ticketmaster (810) 645-6666.

■ Chicken that comes in nuggets, breakfast in a burrito, where can you get the real McCoy? As far as bagels are concerned, the newly opened Bruegger's Bagels 29433 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills, is willing to pay big dough for "the real McCoy."

If your legal last name is McCoy, or even if it's MacCoy, all you have to do is come to Bruegger's, show proof, and they'll give you 12 free Bruegger's bagels. Not only will you get the bagels, but for each real McCoy that comes in and claims his or her bagel birthright, Bruegger's will donate three dozen bagels to the homeless. This offer is good through Nov. 9.

■ Speaking of food, the fourth annual Irish Cooking School will be 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 12, in the Founder's Room of Botsford Inn, 28000 Grand River, Farmington. The theme this year is a Christmas one with gift giving in mind. The donation is $17 and includes buffet lunch and book of Irish recipes. Reservations are necessary. 'BEEHIVE' MUSICIAN BUSY AS A BEE

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Saxophonist Greg Koltyk is one of the few musicians fortunate enough to spend his life doing what he loves.

The multi-talented Redford resident spends his afternoons privately tutoring music students at Farmington Harrison High School.

By night he hits the stage of the Gem Theatre as a member of the band supporting the rambunctuous cast of "Beehive," the '60s musical playing at the theater through Jan. 1.

In the production, six high-strung, bouffant-haired teenage women run around the stage and reminisce about their favorite songs by girl groups from the '60s. Each of them takes on the identity of their idols and belts out songs by everyone from The Chiffons to Aretha Franklin.

Although the music of The Chiffons, The Shangri-las, Shirley Ellis and Patti LaBelle and the Bluebells are a little before Koltyk's time, he's fortunate to have a chance to learn the songs that lead generations through the joys and pains of first love.

That's the case "for most of us in the band. Through playing in different groups and being exposed to that sort of music, we all have a familiarity with that era."

He's not shy about admitting that he's also grateful for the steady work. That doesn't seem to have been a problem for the 1980 Livonia Stevenson graduate.

He's performed at the Birmingham Theatre during the run of "Anything Goes," and the Fox Theatre with Tommy Tune.

The progeny of musician parents, he began his career at age 6 when he started piano lessons.

In elementary school he picked up the clarinet and from there grasped the sax and flute. Koltyk attended the prestigious Berklee College of Music in Boston, but earned a degree at William Paterson College in New Jersey. He transferred to the New Jersey school because of their "fine jazz department . . . plus its proximity to New York." The two locations doubled his chances of getting top-notch jobs.

"I didn't do these types of musicals. (It was) mostly jazz playing.

Second City rolls

BY BOB SADLER
SPECIAL WRITER

It has been more than 13 months since The Second City — Detroit opened its doors at a smashing new facility at the corner of Woodward and Montcalm. Positioned to be another jewel in the Ilitch family's entertainment holdings in the downtown Theatre District, The Second City has introduced metro Detroiters to its irreverent, topical brand of improvisational sketch comedy which has made it an institution in Chicago and Toronto.

The first two revues at Woodward and Montcalm, entitled "Power to the People Movers" and "Kevorkian Unplugged," respectively, predominantly featured classic Second City material drawn from over 30 years of comedic excellence. This gave the young Detroit cast a chance to get their feet wet, hone their writing and performance skills, and prepare them for putting together a revue made up entirely of original, Detroit-produced material.

Happily, that moment is finally here. A 100-percent Michigan cast is in place. Flint native Nancy Hayden and Detroiter Chris Smith have joined the seven-member ensemble, with Second City Chicago "ringers" Suzy Nakamura and Todd Stashwick

The Continuing Adventures of Souperman?

• The comedy benefit season never seems to end, probably because there's no shortage of good causes out there. One of Detroit's all-time faves, Soupy Sales, appears Nov. 5 at the Oakland Hills Country Club to benefit Ronald McDonald House. Call (313) 745-5911.

Comedy Club Counterprogramming

• With November around the corner, that can only mean two things: colder weather and a television "sweeps" month. You know what a TV sweeps period means - cross-dressing Swedish bikini models who ride tricycles on "Geraldo" and a new miniseries starting each night. Mark Ridley's Comedy Castles counters the small screen delights with Steve McGrew, who appears Nov. 1-5 for a special engagement. Call (810) 542-9900 for reservations.

P.S.

• I would be remiss if I didn't mention the passing of Dennis Wolfberg, one of stand-up comedy's brightest lights, due to cancer a couple of weeks back. Having the opportunity to speak to him in June before his last appearance in Detroit, I found him to be not only one of the funniest and most creative people in the business, but one of the nicest as well.

Insane drama haunts, intrigues

BY TAMI WASMUTH

REVIEW

Embarking upon a theatrical experience is rarely an ordinary one, and this is certainly true as you're going to see — "The Persecution and Assassination of Jean-Paul Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade," by Peter Weiss, being performed at Schoolcraft College.

Yes, that is the entire title, and just as this is not your everyday title, author Peter Weiss has created a rather non-average play that will haunt and intrigue audiences.

The action takes place in France, 1808, inside the asylum of Charenton, where the Marquis de Sade has been institutionalized for the past five years. De Sade is directing the other patients in the performance of a play that he has written while in confinement. His play is metaphorically about the indifference of nature to mankind and the selfishness of human beings. More literally, de Sades' play is about the assassination of the French physician, journalist and revolutionary, Jean-Paul Marat during the French Revolution. "Marat/Sade" is historically based in that the Marquis de Sade was confined to the asylum of Charenton where he did write and present plays — which was thought to be a form of mental therapy in the 1800s.

Director James R. Hartman has done a superior job, giving the audience a realistic sensation of being in an insane asylum by strategically placing patients throughout the theater. The inmates of Charenton roam the theater aisles before and during the play, even in the lobby during intermission, retching, moaning, and basically acting insane.

The play opens with a brief introduction of its characters and how they came to the asylum, but quickly launches into the production of de Sade's play, complete with musical numbers and choreography to help unfold the story.

John Michael Norman does a fascinating job at convincing his audience that the Marquis de Sade is not a monster, but rather a mild, non-violent skeptic who refuses to harm others.

Beth P. Anderson, Kelley L. Oxley, and Mary Zak are a joy to watch as they lead the other patients in song throughout the play. Other notable performances: Steve Geary flourishes as the tortured Jean-Paul Marat; Kenneth Hannan is truly psychotic as the patient so erratic he must be restrained in a straitjacket; and Joanna T. Byrne is marvelously convincing as the elderly caretaker of Marat.

"Marat/Sade" is mesmerizing yet disturbing, and is filled with captivating performances that are a definite must see. It will make you crave more historical information on de Sade and Marat, as well as, the French Revolution. You'll leave the theater filled with peace that you live in a time when such barbarities no longer exist, or you'll contemplate if they really have become non-existent. One thing for sure, is if the inmates of Charenton weren't crazy when they went in, they sure were when, or if, they went out.

At school I played with some pretty heavy weight jazz players like Jimmy Heath, Art Farmer. Plus I studied sax with Joe Lovano who's becoming big on the jazz scene."

Although he specializes in jazz, he said he's able to get a variety of jobs because he is familiar with all types of music.

"In order to really make a living you have to be a real chameleon in the business to do it full time. A lot of people focus on just being a jazz player (but) there are not enough venues to really make a living at it."

Preferring his area over the east coast, he returned to Redford upon graduation to escape the high cost of living. Soon afterward, he met Mark Phillips, the instrumental music director at Harrison High School.

"I've known Greg since the late '80s. I met him when I was looking for a sax sub on a job because I play professional as well," explained Phillips whose band, coincidentally, had previously been booked by Koltyk's father.

Impressed with what he saw, Phillips recommended Koltyk as a tutor at the school. But he also hired him for what most people would see as a more important job.

"When I got married two years ago I had my own professional band play and I had Greg take my place because I'm a sax player. He subbed for me at my wedding. Obviously I think he's a pretty good player. I want a good player at my wedding."

Cast

heading back to the Windy City. And the new revue — "Detroit . . . Steam Cleaning While You Walk," which debuted last week, is the first show that the local cast has written totally on its own.

The revue's title might be strange to anyone who hasn't been downtown in awhile, but the show itself is worth the trip. The talent that was clearly evident in the cast during the previous two revues has only been augmented by the two newcomers, and everyone appears to be spreading their creative wings.

In typical Second City tradition, the laughs go beyond the often vapid fare seen in your basic comedy club. The humor is drawn from all facets of the human condition, with more than just a passing glimpse at our darker side.

A number of common themes emerge in the sketches of "Steam Cleaning," the state of race relations and evolving male and female roles in '90s society are probably the two that recur the most. The sketch that opens the show, featuring Art Van Furniture store employees trying to place mannequins in a living room, covers both race and gender issues. Tim Pryor of Farmington Hills and Angela Shelton distinguish themselves in two sketches on black/white relations — a discussion of a painting at the DIA and a comparison of conflict resolution tactics between Rosa Parks and an Irish Republican Army member. Considering the heavy emphasis on race relations, it was mildly ironic that at least 95 percent of the opening night crowd was white.

In case it's not already evident, the cast also makes fast and furious local references during the course of the show, lampooning everything from Bill Bonds to John Engler to the Windsor casino.

LET'S GO! DINING

Bruegger's bakes 'real' bagels

BY LYSA GHIT
STAFF WRITER

There are still places in metro Detroit where you cannot find a good, fresh bagel.

But the days of such places are numbered because Bruegger's Bagel Bakery has come to town. Rapidly expanding from an unlikely base of Burlington, Vt., Bruegger's has plans for Canton, Rochester Hills and Ann Arbor stores. They've opened in Grosse Pointe and, most recently, in Farmington Hills, at the busy 13 Mile and Orchard Lake.

A good bagel already could be had in that area; one of Detroit Bagel Factory's six stores is in the neighborhood.

Still, on a visit to Bruegger's the day after it opened, the place was bustling — full of bagels and customers. People rushed in, gathered their bagels and coffee and rushed out. Some people sat, ate and chatted, or read the newspaper. Bruegger's typically draws good morning and lunch crowds, then things slow down in the afternoon.

Lionel Margolick of Farmington Hills and Dan Stewart of Bloomfield Hills sat talking over bagels and coffee. They said they were bagel literate.

"Everywhere I go, I eat bagels," said Stewart, a physician. "I love my bagels."

He said Bruegger's product was thick and crunchy, as a good bagel should be. Margolick was making his second trip to the store. He agreed with Stewart that Bruegger's were the best in the area and among the best he'd ever had.

"These are right up there," Margolick said. His favorite bagel came from a Montreal bakery.

The Farmington Hills shop is a bagel store and deli that seats 60 in typical fast-food surroundings. That's something that most New York Bagel and Detroit Bagel stores don't do. There you often buy your bagel and leave.

Bruegger's bakes bagels hourly all day long and emphasizes freshness. Bagels that are not sold in four hours are removed from shelves. Bordering the counter in the Farmington Hills store is a window offering customers a view of the baking room. Bagels are shaped, boiled in water, as a good bagel needs to be, and baked.

A baker's dozen is $4.29, a single is 49 cents. There are 10 varieties. Cinnamon raisin is very popular. The Grosse Pointe store sells an unusually large number of salt bagels, said Bruce Phillips, a vice-president of Quality Dining, Inc. the South Bend, Ind.-based franchisee for the Detroit area.

Bruegger's also emphasizes the premium quality of its plain and flavored coffees (69 to 99 cents).

The menu includes soup of the day ($1.69-$1.99), premium soup ($2.19-$2.49) and about two dozen varieties of bagel sandwiches, from very simple (jelly at 69 cents) to simple (salami, roast beef and smoked turkey, all $2.99).

The store also offers nine different kinds of cream cheese, including plain, honey walnut and smoked salmon, and others that will change weekly or monthly. Most half-pound containers are $1.89.

PSO spotlights English music

Plymouth Symphony continues its 49th season 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4 with a concert featuring a wide variety of English composers, including a rarely performed trumpet concerto by Edward Gregson, at Belleville High School.

Those attending are invited to attend an afterglow reception following the concert at Pine Creek Golf Course.

Tickets are $12 adults, $10 seniors $10 and $5 students in K-12. Call (313) 451-2112. Advance tickets are available at Chesley Odom Designs and Main Street Floral in Belleville, Beitner Jewelry and Evola Music Center in Plymouth, Bookstall on the Main and the Gitfiddler in Northville, and Dearborn Music in Canton.

PREVIEW

The trumpet concerto will feature Ramon Parcells, principal trumpet of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

"It's a pleasure to do a new and exciting work," said PSO Music Director Russell Reed. "To my knowledge, this work has never been commercially recorded, and it's a real audience pleaser. I hope music lovers will take this opportunity to hear it."

Parcells has performed the work only twice — with the DSO, and the Manitoba Chamber Orchestra, in 1990.

"I discovered the piece through a friend in Toronto, and liked it right away," said Parcells. "When the Detroit Symphony asked me to perform a concerto with them, this piece was my first choice. The writing is strong — yet tonal and lyrical."

The Nov. 5 concert will also feature Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," well-known to brides everywhere as the triumphal "Wedding March."

"Finally, we can all hear the complete performance, not just the first few measures that are always played at weddings," said Reed.

Also featured on the program will be Elgar's "Enigma Variations," and Vaughn Williams' "The Wasp's Overture."

Concert features tea, trumpets

Farmington Area Philharmonic concertgoers will be treated to a "merry olde evening of British music" entitled CHEERIO! on Sunday, Nov. 6. The orchestra performance, which takes place at North Farmington High School (32900 13 Mile Road) at 7:30 p.m., will be preceded by a traditional British tea, complete with sweets and finger sandwiches.

There is no additional charge to concertgoers for this very special pre-concert reception, to begin at 6 p.m. in the cafeteria. The duo of Jenkins & Bryce, one of the many chamber groups from within the orchestra, will provide music for the tea. Tickets are $8, $12 and $20, and available at all Metrobank locations, and at Farmington Area Philharmonic office, 23290 Farmington Road, downtown Farmington or call (810) 478-2075.

The concert will include a British repertoire from a variety of sources. For example, alongside the standard orchestral fare for the evening — Sir Edward Elgar's "Enigma Variations" and the "Walton Viola Concerto" — there will be selections that will be recognized even by first-time concertgoers, like the popular graduation processional song, "Porop & Circumstance."

Also included will be a suite of British Folk-Music Settings by the eccentric Australian composer, Percy Grainger, who spent much of his adult life in Britain, collecting folk songs and documenting them on wax cylinder recordings. Music director Karen Nixon Lane of Livonia has chosen three of these folk songs which the composer subsequently set for orchestra, including "Shepherd's Hey," the wonderfully emotional "Irish Tune from County Derry" (better known as the Londonderry Air) and "Country Gardens."

"Grainger called these songs his fripperies," said Nixon. "They are little ditties, as far as he was concerned, at least compared to his longer, more serious works. Even so, they offer us a delightful sampling of his far-reaching output." Nixon continued, "Grainger was way ahead of his time, with his experiments in simulating the sounds of nature and the inflections of the human voice through music, and he ventured into polytonality as well — but, the musical world is just now beginning to realize what a genius he really was."

Rounding out the program will be a brand-new arrangement direct from the Walt Disney Company entitled "Mary Poppins Fantasy," which is a symphonic synthesis of the most popular songs from the award-winning movie starring Julie Andrews and Dick Van Dyke.

Sir William Walton's Concerto for viola, a rarely performed, but beautiful work, will be performed by the Farmington Philharmonic's Principal Violist, Detroit Symphony member Hart Holiman.

In addition to his work as an orchestral musician, Holiman is active as a chamber music performer and teacher, performing regularly with the American Artist Series and the Ventura Quartet. He has traveled extensively throughout the United States, Europe and the Middle East as both chamber music performer and solo recitalist. He teaches privately and is a faculty member at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit and the Utah Summer Music Festival.

The Nov. 6 performance will not be the first time that conductor Karen Nixon Lane has chosen a mixture of Classical and Pops for the Farmington Area Philharmonic. The orchestra's family "theme" concerts such as Winter Fantasies and Buckaroo Holidays bring listeners close to the music.

The next "theme" concert of the Farmington Area Philharmonic is scheduled 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11. It will be a holiday program entitled, "The Nutcracker and Other Sweets."

That program will feature the concert suite from Tchaikovsky's timeless ballet, "The Nutcracker" interwoven with other traditional favorites, as well as with the words of Charles Dickens and Clement C. Moore. Ticket prices for theme concerts are $15 for adults, $12 for seniors and $5 for children under 12.

Bob Ralston performs

It's time to turn on the bubble machine once again.

Bob Ralston, organist and pianist on the Lawrence Welk Show for 20 years, will appear at the Barton theatre pipe organ and grand piano at the historic Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser Road, north of Grand River, 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28 and 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29.

Tickets are $8, general admission, and are available at Hammell music in Livonia, Evola Music in Plymouth and Township Hardware in Redford. For more information, or to charge tickets by phone, call (313) 591-1808.

Entitled "The Music, The Magic, The Memories," the program will feature Bob Ralston playing the kind of music with which Welk fans are so familiar.

The program is being presented by the Detroit Theater Organ Society and the Motor City Theatre Organ Society.

JOHN MONAGHAN

REVIEW

In "Bullets Over Broadway," which opens Friday, John Cusack plays an idealistic young writer David Shayne in the 1920s who is given the chance to direct his own Broadway play. There's only one hitch: in order to receive financial backing, he must cast a gangster's girlfriend, Olive (Jennifer Tilly), in a featured role.

No problem with the rest of the cast, among them an increasingly portly Brit (Warner Purcell), a perky supporting actress (Tracey Ullman) and Helen Sinclair (Diane Wiest), a Broadway legend who makes Norma Desmond look like a shy ingenue.

Like most good farces, it takes Act One just to keep all these characters straight. So you can excuse Woody Allen if the first half hour of "Bullets Over Broadway" drags a little.

Thank heavens for Cheech (Chazz Palminteri), who brings the film, and Shayne's play, to life. Olive's rough-talking bodyguard sits in the back of the theater and only looks up from his racing forms when someone appears to be giving the girl a hard time. Soon he starts to offer unsolicited advice to frustrated director Shayne.

"Your characters, they don't talk like people do in real life," Cheech says in disgust.

It takes Shayne a while to realize it, but Cheech is right. Soon the director is accepting dialogue tips and later entire scenes from the thug. The actors, who think the inspiration comes solely from the director, agree that the play has grown from an overly cerebral exercise into a living, breathing work of art.

There are clever performances here, especially when Wiest's Sinclair does the "don't speak" routine, her hands to Shayne's mouth whenever he brings up the subject of amour.

Cusack, used to similar effect in Allen's "Shadows and Fog," is well cast as the struggling writer trying much too hard to be the next Eugene O'Neill. He only falters in philosophical discussions with Rob Reiner's avant garde playwright, a throwback to Allen's early essays and one acts.

Palminteri's Cheech remains the film's most fascinating character. Breaking through all the phony facades of the artistic set, the hardened Cheech claims no remorse for the men he's killed. In the dog-eat-dog world of Manhattan bootlegging, each of his victims deserved exactly what he got.

"Bullets Over Broadway" deals with the usual Allen subjects (love, death, sex, art), but it's not all that funny. While his equally nostalgic "Manhattan Murder Mystery" had at least one side-splittingly hilarious bit (the botched tape recorders), most of the best jokes here are in the form of asides.

You might even miss Wiest's answer to Shayne's sheepish question about what she didn't like about his first draft of the play: "Just the plot and dialogue, that's all."

The late '20s backdrop of "Bullets Over Broadway" comes not so much from the history books as other movies, including Allen's own "Purple Rose of Cairo." Visually, he employs that brownish tint that almost all period movies do; his show numbers and gangland hits could be colorized sequences from almost any old gangster movie or musical.

Perhaps Allen needs his own personal Cheech to turn the movie into something more than a mildly amusing nostalgia piece. At present, it's no masterpiece, but even second-string Woody Allen is well worth a look.

Allen comes home for benefit

No one will pout, and no one will cry 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9, at the Fox Theatre as Detroit's own Tim Allen returns home for a Gala Benefit Premiere extravaganza of his new family comedy film from Walt Disney Pictures, "The Santa Clause."

Co-hosted by Laura and Tim Allen and chaired by Q95 FM's Dick Purtan, the proceeds of the event will go to two mainstay organizations in the Detroit area, The Salvation Army and Forgotten Harvest.

Tickets for the event are on sale now for $20 (General Admission) available at all Ticketmasters and through the "Santa Clause" Premiere Hotline at (810) 552-8989; $125.

Reserved Patron seating (includes After-Glow reception at Second City) available only through the Santa Hotline, or by inquiring to P.O. Box 47280, Oak Park, MI, 48237.

"The Santa Clause" stars Tim Allen, star of America's No. 1 television show, "Home Improvement," as a father who slips in to Santa's suit when the jolly one is incapacitated, only to find that his new job is full time. "The Santa Clause" opens in theaters nationwide on Friday, November 11.

Vudu Hippies living up to expectations

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Vudu Hippies have had to live up to a lot of high expectations. Since their creation more than 6½ years ago, they've been touted as one of the area's top alternative rock bands.

They've had a lot of shoes to fill too. Never were they tested more than when the Counting Crows lead singer Adam Duritz fell ill during a co-headlining tour with Cracker. Consequently, Counting Crows backed out of the sold-out Feb. 19 gig at the State Theatre in Detroit, much to the disappointment of fans many of whom didn't find out until show time that the band canceled.

The Royal Oak-based band was called in to fill the spot and instead of panicking about the fact that many people there would be upset about not seeing the Counting Crows, they "rose to the occasion."

At the beginning of the Vudu Hippies' set, the crowd had been hanging out by the bar chatting among themselves. Slowly, the crowd moved closer and closer to the stage. When lead singer Renee belted out the Janis Joplin hit "Take Another Piece of My Heart," their acceptance was clinched.

"It's just amazing how good you can be given that situation," said the Farmington Hills resident in retrospect. "It was a tough spot filling in for Counting Crows. Here we are, this nowhere band filling in for these top of the chart Counting Crows. We didn't get booed . . . we expected to.

"I definitely think we rose to the occasion."

Apparently, Cracker's lead singer David Lowery felt the same way. Impressed with the Vudu Hippies' set, he invited them along to the Orbit Room in Grand Rapids to fill in once again for Counting Crows.

"It wasn't as comfortable as the State Theatre. It was kind of a cold room," she said. "(But) I was pretty excited that they liked us that much to ask us to continue."

Those shows are a good example of how things have been going for the Vudu Hippies since they inadvertently began recreating their sound to a fuller, tighter and pop rock-oriented sound. The evolution began when bassist and former Birmingham resident Chris moved over to guitar, and new lead guitarist Lark and bassist Rod came on board.

"It wasn't like a planned change either," said Brad, Vudu Hippies drummer. "It was something that happened once they threw in their stylings. It definitely was a noticeable turn which I like because we're doing some more upbeat stuff (like) borderline rock."

Once again, fans at the State Theatre applauded the change when the group opened for Canadian popsters Barenaked Ladies in late September. The crowd almost erupted into a mosh pit during a saccharin-sweet unreleased track "Simpatico."

Fans can see the band next at Rick's in Ann Arbor on Halloween when they bring their "Boo TV" holiday show to the bar. Guitarist Chris said it's a show not to be missed.

"Our live shows tend to parallel the intensity of an MC5 show, mixed in with the glamor and glitz of a Madonna concert, the brilliant choreography of a fine Janet Jackson performance, the impeccable harmonies of Boyz II Men, large like lightning guitar riffs of a Led Zeppelin reunion show, hair the size of Lyle Lovett, great costumes and a good beat. I'll give it an 87," he said.

Soon afterward, they will re-enter the Tempermill studios in Ferndale to record more demos. It takes revivals like this to keep a band going for more than six years.

"This is definitely the group that's going to go the distance. We've got great people. The attitudes are fantastic. The only thing that can stop us is, God forbid, the people think we suck," Brad said.

Vudu Hippies perform Monday, Oct. 31 at Rick's, 611 Church St., Ann Arbor. For more information, call (313) 996-2747.

I.C.P.: Sending out a warning

■ With more than 50,000 albums sold, graphic rappers I.C.P. are trying to prove that the world is about to end.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Pegged as controversial and graphic, rappers Insane Clown Posse (I.C.P.) just want suburbanites to get over their fear of inner-city Detroit. They should help out its poverty-stricken residents instead of looking at them like they are members of a freak show.

"It's like you're sittin' in the stands of a circus," rapper Violent J. said. "They're looking at the 'freak shows.' This is the way the rich people (think) when they come through (Delray) to Boblo. You see them looking. You see the kids up against the window. It's like they're sittin' there and pointing and looking like they were at the freak show at the circus. Then, they laugh at you and don't even help you.

"The ghetto is like the carnival. You can go through Delray and this is all you'll see."

The world is in such bad shape that Violent J. and his partner Shaggy 2-Dope are counting down to the end of the world, they said.

"Every album is a joker card. By the time the sixth joker card's released . . . the world's gonna be over with," Violent J. said. "I was driving down the street the other day on I-75 and there was a man in the middle of the freeway laying down in a puddle of blood. I swear to God. You know what the cars were doing? They were driving around (him).

"When the world is that (screwed) up, how you gonna say it ain't about to end?"

I.C.P. born

2-Dope and Violent J grew up in Southwest Detroit within bike-riding distance of Detroit's Delray neighborhood. As they "Ninja-ed" around the empty warehouses and down-trodden neighborhood, the duo witnessed the illness and decay that molded their future.

"We used to call it the unknown city because we used to ride our bikes down there and see run down factories, Violent J. said. "You always see one or two houses in there crammed in between the factories. They just put the factories up around her."

Having also lived in the suburbs, the rappers feel they have ample knowledge to compare the two lifestyles. At times, however, it seems as if they subscribe to the "suburban beliefs."

"All these kids are killing each other and it's like bumbling clowns. You see them banging into each other and killing each other. The whole city's like a big circus. That's why we say it's a big 'Carnival of Carnage'," Violent J said referring to their October 1992 release.

"We can claim what we claim," Violent J. said stressing that "Dead Body Man" isn't about him or 2-Dope. "We can say we've been there; we can say we've been down and out. We can claim everything. We've got a right to say what we've got a right to say. You don't hear me singing country because I can't claim that. I never lived on a farm."

They're into "clown love," a love for all gang sects, 2-Dope said However, they won't say if they're in a gang. They're also into Faygo — and I.C.P.'s fans know that.

"When we do in-stores at record stores, people always come and they have Faygo they want us to autograph. Faygo is the poor man's pop. We're definitely down for some Faygo. We throw Faygo all over the kids and they throw it back."

Halfway there

I.C.P.'s next record will be released in early 1995, marking the halfway point to world destruction. In preparation for the event; they have already drawn up the remaining three jokers cards which will appear in forthcoming records. Judged on what they've seen, 2-Dope and Violent J. believe they are on track.

"That goes along with Nostradamus's prediction when the world's gonna end," Violent J. said. "That goes along with all the great philosophers, and it goes along with me and him and that's why the world's going to end by the time all six joker cards are done. We're halfway there to the end."

They chuckle when asked why they should even bother releasing a sixth album since nobody will probably hear it. Although they appear evil on their albums, the affable Violent J. stresses he's a religious man.

"I'm very religious toward God, and I believe by the time the sixth one's released, I'll have converted some people over to God," he said. "My music isn't religious but I'll have so many followers by then that when I say something like, 'Go toward the path of God,' I have the feeling some of them people will and in turn I'll save some people."

Their primarily teenage fans may listen. The EP "Terror Wheel," released in August, went as high as No. 2 on the Detroit-area SoundScan charts in early September. The album spawned the minor hit "Dead Body Man" which was a top request while WHYT was still playing rap and R&B. Still, without major airplay, I.C.P.'s four releases — "Terror Wheel," "Ringmaster," the EP "Beverly Kills 50187" and "Carnival of Carnage" — have sold more than 50,000 copies. The duo credits it to their committed underground following.

"If you go underground it just lives its whole life," he said. "Somehow our first album is still selling; it's still regularly paced. We're still catching on to more and more underground fans who don't listen to the radio and aren't hearing about it."

Along with selling records, they've sold out consecutive shows are Detroit-area venues like The Ritz in Roseville and St. Andrew's Hall and the Majestic in Detroit. Their Halloween show Saturday, Oct. 29, at the Majestic is already sold out.

"With rap in Detroit, usually it will sell, but nobody will come to the shows," 2-Dope said. "I guess that's what's unique about us, we sell and we also pull crowds to venues.

"We try to attack both markets (shows and records). Rap is all records. That's why you can have . . . four platinum artists in one show and they can't even sell out Joe Louis."

Flaming Lips: Escaping the flames

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Flaming Lips considers Detroit its second home but because of the city's violent reputation, the quartet is in and out of there as quick as possible.

"Everybody's pretty scared of Detroit," said Lips' bassist Michael Ivins whose band has never been a victim of crime in the city. "There's just something about it."

To ease their nerves, the Oklahoma-based band found a safe haven at a small hotel in a safer southwestern Oakland County suburb, Ivins said.

"We found a place to stay so we can high tail out of the city," he said.

That's a step up from what they used to do. After performing, they'd high tail it out of the area completely.

The Flaming Lips is returning to Detroit with Candlebox and Mother's Tongue to play a show on one of the city's most notoriously violent nights — Devil's Night. This is one of the reasons he feels his band's fear is justified.

Despite that, the whiny, yet melodic Flaming Lips, who croon about women making them toast on their hit single, are fond of the city. They perform here at least once every six months and receive a fair amount of airplay on college and alternative radio.

This time around, the quartet is playing Detroit to promote their latest release "Providing Needles for Your Balloons." The eight-song CD is a limited edition EP featuring unreleased and live tracks, including their rendition of "Little Drummer Boy."

"There were these extra sort of goodies laying around, (and) no one would be able to hear a lot of it because they're on soundtracks or compilations or something," Ivins said.

On "Needles," the Lollapalooza Festival veterans pay tribute to Suicide founder Alan Vega by covering their song "Ice Drummer." Further proving Suicide's influence on The Flaming Lips, the band plays their albums before they hit the stage — sometimes to the dismay of fans.

"We played this state fair in Fresno (California)," Ivins said. "It's funny to see all these kids who maybe have never been exposed to weird stuff and here's a crowd of like 5,000 people who have wandered into the fair and Suicide's first album is playing. It's stuff like that that's really cool."

The Flaming Lips' musical preferences are almost as strange as the bills on which they've appeared. Currently touring with Candlebox, the group has visited the area with a variety of acts, including Porno for Pyros, Tool and Butthole Surfers.

"There's several ways you can look at it. Well, maybe there's only one way. Playing is the most important thing. They (Candlebox) are nice guys and they do like us and stuff," Ivins said tapping into the Beavis and Butthead vocabulary list.

Mental health week in Caribbean eases blahs

BY JOAN BORAM
SPECIAL WRITER

The winter of 1993-94 has left a lot of us traumatized for life.

A week in the warm sun, warm beaches and warm waters of the Caribbean is now regarded more as a "mental health week" than a luxury.

"I'm not really a beach person myself," admitted Kaye Britton, owner of Kaye Britton Travel, Ltd. in Farmington Hills. "But a week in the Caribbean in February is a different matter. Seven days of sunshine and 80 degrees-plus temperatures help me get through the rest of our Michigan winter."

Britton, who seems to have been almost everywhere on earth, has made dozens of trips to the Caribbean, and her agency, which specializes in leisure travel, has sent thousands of vacationers on cruises to specific island destinations.

Take a look at a map of the Caribbean and you'll wonder how anybody decides which island is his or her particular paradise.

"There are so many islands," said Britton. "Many people become acquainted with the most popular destinations by taking a cruise, and some of these travelers like stopping at a different destination every day so that they never settle on just one favorite.

"Others, however, find their dream island and want to go back there and explore for their entire winter vacation. If a dream island is uninhabited, it's sometimes possible that a hotel will drop a couple off with a food hamper and pick them up later the same day."

One of the best known is the U.S. Virgin Islands. St. Thomas is both exotic and American and a wonderful introduction to the Caribbean. On one side of the island is a beautiful, peaceful bay, and the other side is a shoppers' paradise, where fine linens, gold jewelry and liquor are available at low prices.

Daytime temperatures January to March stay in the mid-80s and drop into the 70s at night. There are many sugar-white public beaches, golf, horse-back riding, scuba diving, windsurfing and many more activities that take advantage of the perfect climate.

As in most Caribbean resort areas, most hotels offer shows at night, often with reggae or other native-style entertainment.

Denise Schmalz, manager of Business & Pleasure Travel Service, in Livonia, said: "The person who wants to spend a day in the pristine surroundings of a lush natural landscape can just take a ferry from St. Thomas to St. John Island. Almost the whole island is a national park, and it's truly an island paradise, including a rain forest.

"St. John isn't all landscape, though. There's a lively night life and wonderful dining. The water is crystal-clear, so it's a vorite place for snorkelers."

Schmalz is a beach person, so when she says that Grand Cayman is her favorite, it's a real tribute.

"It's clean and safe and very British," said Schmalz. And it has some of the most beautiful white-sand beaches anywhere. Scuba diving is fantastic, and, if you're not certified, there's the "Atlantic Submarine," which provides underwater trips 100 feet down. You can also rent a Moped and tour the island on your own. Black coral jewelry is a favorite item in the duty-free shops.

"Grand Cayman is so beautiful and so romantic, it's a favorite with honeymooners."

One more suggestion from Kaye Britton: "Aruba, a Dutch territory just off the Venezuelan coast, is a favorite destination of many clients. It's not pretty in a dramatic sense. There are no mountains, but the beaches are gorgeous. There are casinos and every hotel has a show, but what draws people are the water sports. And, it's out of the hurricane area."

There's an (apocryphal) story about a couple who were so depressed last January that they flew to a Caribbean destination in the morning, spent a few hours in 80-degree temperatures, and flew home that same evening.

Maybe you'd never do that, but it's comforting to know that you can, isn't it?

Tips for a sunnier trip

We go to the Caribbean because the warm sun and beach life make us feel better. Observing a few simple precautions will assure maximum enjoyment from the blue skies and white sand:

- Guard against the sun. The closer the equator, the more intense the sun's rays. Avoid the sun during peak hours, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Always use sunscreen with a sun protection factor of 15 or higher. Apply a thick coat an half-hour before going out and re-apply it regularly. Proper eye protection is essential. Wear sunglasses that filter out at least 65 percent of the visible light.
- There may be a good reason why that beautiful beach is deserted: Dangerous tides, underwater perils or harmful algae blooms. When in doubt, ask at the hotel.
- Drink the water prudently. You should drink large amounts of water to avoid dehydration. Generally, tap water is safe, but bottled water is much safer. Be careful of fresh fruits and vegetables, especially those sold in public markets.
- Insect bites aren't necessarily dangerous, but they can be awfully uncomfortable. Use repellent containing not more than 30 percent DEET, and don't forget to cover your ankles.
- Before you go, call the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at (404)332-4559 for a health and safety update on your destination. For island-specific information, call the Bureau of Consular Affairs (202)647-5225. These lines are very busy, so give yourself plenty of time to get through.

Warriors fizzle in 4th, 44-36

Lutheran High Westland battled tooth-and-nail with defending Metro Conference girls basketball champ Macomb Lutheran North before succumbing in the final quarter, 44-36. North has only lost to two state-ranked teams.

■ BASKETBALL

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

The Lutheran High Westland girls basketball team will have to wait another day.

Defending Metro Conference champion Macomb Lutheran North, thanks to a 20-12 fourth-quarter surge, remains on the throne following a hard-fought 44-36 victory over the host Warriors in a battle for first place.

The Mustangs got 14 points from senior forward Jessie Ball and seven clutch points from point-guard Tanya Walsh — all in the decisive final quarter — to improve its overall record to 13-2 and 9-0 in the Metro.

Lutheran Westland was led by sophomore forward Jenny Twietmeyer, who scored 11 points. Junior guard Katie Ollinger added eight, but it wasn't enough as the Warriors fall to 14-2 overall and 8-1 in the Metro.

"North is not 13-2 because they're a fluke," Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz said. "And hopefully we're not a fluke at 14-2 either.

"We just had some letdowns at the wrong moments and they had some baskets at key moments. I knew they'd be strong."

North won despite shooting only 27.4 percent from the floor (17 of 62).

The Mustangs were 10 of 50 from the floor through three quarters, but got untracked in the fourth period thanks to the penetrating moves of the Walsh.

The 5-foot-3 senior sparked a 9-0 North run during a two-minute span to start the fourth after the two teams were tied at 24-all.

"The way it was going, I thought the first team to 20 points would win and whoever got to 30, it would be lights out," Lutheran North coach Ken Witte said. "Give Lutheran Westland credit. Our shots were hurried and we were shooting the ball off our normal spots. It was not our typical shooting percentage. Normally we're around 40 percent."

North made seven of 12 in the final quarter, while Westland hit only four of 14.

For the game, Westland made only 24 percent from the field (13 of 54).

"The score (16-13 at halftime) was so low early because both teams wanted to win so badly," Gentz said. "At halftime I tried to tell the kids protect the ball and box out. They (North) had 11 offensive rebounds in the first half, which was too much. We did a better job of doing it in the third quarter.

"It was a good, intense ballgame"

Witte, who led the Mustangs to a 25-1 record last year and a berth in the Class B quarterfinals, was glad to get out of the Warriors' gym with a win.

"What a setting," he said, "to come on the road, in this noisy atmosphere, and come away with a victory. Lutheran Westland's record is legit. I'm a strong supporter of them. They play tough defense."

The two teams could meet again Tuesday, Nov. 8 Metro position night.

"We'll probably see them in two weeks over there," Gentz said.

Keleman earns spot

Kate Keleman, 21, of Livonia has been named to the USA Shooting team which will compete in the XIIth Pan American Games, March 14-20, 1995, in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Keleman, a graduate of Churchill High and two-time All-America at Murray State (Ky.), qualified in women's air rifle after nine days of qualifying at Peterson's Prado Tiro ranges in Chino, Calif. Keleman finished second behind Anne Pfiffner.

Keleman, a product of the Western Wayne Junior Shooters and Livonia Sportsman's Club, was a bronze medalist in this year's U.S. Olympic Festival and finished fourth in two events at the U.S. Nationals.

Hawks '81 victorious

The Michigan Hawks '81, a Little Caesars Premier League girls team sponsored by the Livonia Family Y, captured the under-14 Michigan State Youth Athletic Association Cup title Sunday with a 2-0 win over the Birmingham Blazers '81.

Livonian Sarah Wittrock scored both goals, the first on a cross from Novi's Bridget Bowdell (with an assist from Canton's Lisa Tomasso), and the second late in the game on an assist from Janelle Harwood of Brighton.

Other members of the Hawks '81 team, which will compete next June in the Midwest regionals in Minnesota, include: Mary Gignac, Becky Peterson and Kersten Conklin, all of Livonia; Danah Manteuffel, Redford; Emilie VilleMonte, Farmington; Erin Cain, West Bloomfield; Bethany Bryant and Lori Carbott, Northville; Melissa Lawson, New Hudson; Sara McDonald and Jamie Jandasek, Brighton; Jeannie Vaquera, South Lyon; Kiley Enmark, Sterling Heights.

■ SOCCER

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

What Livonia Churchill really needed Wednesday night when it hosted Plymouth Canton in a Class A soccer district semifinal was a few more inches.

Not necessarily on that final shot hammered at the Canton goal by Brian Zawislak, from point-blank range, with Chiefs' keeper George Tomasso out of position. Certainly those few inches would have been nice right about then; it might have been enough to keep Canton defender James Bossieux from stopping the shot.

And a goal there, with just 1:30 left in the match, would have tied it at 1-1 and forced overtime, surely. And then anything might have happened.

But there was no goal for Churchill. And there was no stopping Canton, which escaped with the 1-0 triumph to more than likely face Livonia Stevenson in Saturday's district final at Redford Union's Kraft Field.

It will mark the third time in 2½ weeks that Canton and Stevenson will face each other.

"I know (Stevenson) will be after us, on that bloody little field," said Canton coach Don Smith. "But our guys stand up pretty well."

Stand up . . . That brings us back to the original question — a matter of inches. Which, in Churchill coach John Boots' estimation, was what his team (which bowed out at 12-7) needed to stay even with Canton.

"They've got a good team," Boots said. "I said it the first time we played them, that Canton is the best team we've seen, and we've played all the state's top 10 teams except Utica Eisenhower."

What gave the Chiefs the advantage was their size and strength, Boots said. Any balls in the air were won by Canton.

Which is how the game's only goal was scored. Canton's Jeremy Stillings (who stands about 6-foot-3) headed a pass to Jeff Fliss at midfield, and Fliss fed a perfect pass through to Lance Pellow on the right wing. Pellow's shot got past Churchill keeper Bryan Stramecki with 32:41 left in the second half.

It shouldn't have ended that way. Stramecki, no doubt, will have nightmares of Canton's Chad Dale drilling yet another shot at him.

"We had a lot of opportunities to put it away," said Smith, whose team takes a 15-1-3 record into the district final. "We just never did. We let them hang around."

That could prove extremely dangerous, but against Churchill, Canton came up just big enough.

Shamrocks ousted by critical call

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

Referee Jerry Potter admitted he "blew it" Monday night at the end of regulation time of a Class A boys soccer district opening game at Livonia Churchill.

He was referring to a whistle he blew and the call he made that caused some embarrassment for him and some heartache for Redford Catholic Central.

Potter's call kept the score tied at 1-1 and sent the game into two 15 minute sudden death overtimes. After two scoreless OTs, the Chargers outscored the Shamrocks 3-2 in the five-man shootout to advance to Wednesday's semifinal game against Plymouth Canton.

Stevenson survives shootout

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It's something Livonia Stevenson's soccer team better get used to — quickly.

"That's the best I've ever seen Salem play," Stevenson coach Walt Barrett said flatly after the Spartans survived a best-of-five penalty kick shootout with a 3-2 win against Plymouth Salem in Monday's first round of the state Class A district soccer tournament.

That's when the tide turned, and it was Grewe who turned it. "At first, I started guessing (to the) right," the junior keeper said. "The first two shots went the other way, so I changed up. And I guessed (correctly). That's all you can do, is guess."

DISTRICTS

But Salem battled back, getting the equalizer from Andy Makins 1¼ minutes before the intermission. Makins fielded a pass that went through a Stevenson defender, dribbled past two others and scored.

The Rocks went ahead three minutes into the second half on a superb play by Scott Buczek. The senior midfielder kept the ball from crossing the end line to the right of the Stevenson goal, carried it in closer and, from a tight angle, banged a shot off the crossbar and into the net.

The goal proved costly for Salem, however. Buczek was injured on the play — prognosis was a broken collarbone — and was lost for the remainder of the match. According to Johnson, Buczek was second in the pecking order for Salem's penalty kickers.

The Rocks maintained their lead for eight minutes. Unfortunately, what they didn't do throughout the game was mark Quinter, Stevenson's most effective offensive midfielder. They were fortunate early in the match when Quinter first drilled a shot off the post and then forced Bacyinski to make a diving save — both coming before five minutes had elapsed.

Quinter finally made Salem pay for its oversight with 29:02 left in regulation when he took possession at midfield and sped down the right wing. He broke in on net and shot, forcing Cosenza to dive to his right to make the save. However, Cosenza couldn't smother the rebound; Deren got to it and finished, tying the game at 2-2.

At 7 tonight, Stevenson hosts city rival Franklin.

■ FRANKLIN 2, GARDEN CITY 1 (OT): In a Class A district opener Monday, the Cougars (6-9-3) took host Livonia Franklin (6-6-2) to two overtimes before losing.

Franklin has knocked Garden City out of the playoffs in each of the last two seasons.

Senior Dave McConnell scored the Cougars' only goal on an assist from Warrington that tied the score 1-1 in the second half.

■ WILLIAMSTON 3, HURON VALLEY 0: In Class C-D district action Monday, host Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (4-13-2) was stung in a shutout defeat by the visiting Hornets.

CC junior Tom Derhake and Churchill junior goalkeeper Bryan Stramecki were at the center of the controversy.

The Chargers were called for a tripping penalty in the box and the Shamrocks chose to send Derhake to the penalty kick area to try to win the game.

Derhake's shot went to Stramecki's left. Stramecki stopped the shot but the rebound was kicked in by CC to apparently give the Shamrocks a 2-1 lead.

Potter said he accidentally blew his whistle before the rebound was touched. The whistle disallowed the goal and created a drop ball situation, ending regulation.

The Chargers, who played the last minutes of regulation and both OTs with 10 players instead of 11 because of a red card, were relieved to say the least.

CC bowed out at 9-4-3 overall.

"It should have been a goal," Stramecki said. "The ref blew the call and I went nuts."

CC coach Phil LaJoy didn't whine about the call.

"If it wasn't that, it would have been something else, what can you do?" he said. "This team played well all year and played hard the whole game. Congratulations to Churchill."

Senior Dan Kogut and sophomore Tony Moucoulis scored goals in the shootout for CC. Senior Charlie Roberts, junior Jason Bloink and junior Peter Varga scored for the Chargers.

Varga's goal gave Churchill a 3-2 edge in the shootout. CC goalie Jeremy Podolak guessed right on Varga's shot, diving to his left, but the ball just got through his arms and into the net for the decisive goal.

"It was a great game, we were just unlucky at the end," said Podolak, playing his final high school game.

This time, Stramecki dived to his right, to preserve the Churchill victory and send all of the Chargers' vocal fans onto the field.

"He took one earlier shot to the left and I just knew he wouldn't shoot to the same side," Stramecki said. "I know him from ODP (the Olympic Development Team)."

The win was especially sweet for Churchill coach John Boots, who coached CC in 1989 and '90.

"If there's a team I want to beat it's CC," Boots said. "It's nice when a public school can beat good private schools. It was a fun and entertaining game."

On top of playing short-handed because of the red card, the Chargers also played most of the game without senior defender Kevin Callaway, who left with an ankle injury.

Boots said he moved freshman David George from sweeper to outside midfielder to fend off the CC pressure, applied mostly by seniors Brian Collier, Andy Gignac, Jeff Buckley and sophomore Tony Moucoulis.

"I put more responsibilities on George and he came through with flying colors," Boots said. "Not only is he the best freshman in the state, he may be better than any sophomores. He's 5-foot-9, 140 pounds but he plays like he's 6-feet, 180."

The Chargers tied the score at 1-1 when sophomore Peter Pososki converted a crossing pass from junior Jeff Kozlow with 35:10 remaining in the game.

Junior defender Nathan McKenzie started the rush with a fine play at midfield that nullified a possible CC breakaway.

Stramecki kept the score tied late in regulation with several fine saves, including one on Dan Kogut. He also was impressive challenging CC's players out of the net.

"You should see him play forward," Boots said. "Plain and simple, our goalie did what he does best tonight. We do funny tactical things because of him. He's the most underrated goalie in the state."

Lady Ocelots upset NJCAA's No. 1 team

COLLEGES

There's one thing to expect from Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team this season — the unexpected.

The Lady Ocelots preserved that image last weekend on their trip to St. Louis, for a pair of games against two of the NJCAA's best teams — No. 1-ranked Florissant Valley Saturday followed by Lewis and Clark Sunday.

The result: A pair of wins.

SC trimmed Florissant Valley 1-0, getting a goal from Kelly Noles (assisted by Canton's Colleen Connell), some solid goalkeeping from Jenny Mansfield (Redford Union) and a bit of luck: Flo Valley had a penalty kick late in the match, but shot it over the net.

Sunday's match against Lewis and Clark was no easier, requiring overtime before the Ocelots could forge a 2-1 victory. SC was trailing 1-0 when Andrea Zawislak (Livonia Churchill) knocked a shot through the keeper's hands to knot it.

SC then got the game-winner from Noles in the first 15-minute overtime. Mansfield again started in goal.

The two wins solidified the Ocelots' stature among the top NJCAA teams and raised their record to 9-6-2 overall.

Madonna men

The Madonna University men's team stretched its winning streak to five games Sunday with a 2-0 win over Ferris State.

The victory also ensured the Fighting Crusaders of a winning season in their first year. They are 8-5.

Schoolcraft men

SC's men's team finished its regular season with a win by forfeit Saturday at Cuyahoga CC.

The Ocelots ended with a 10-0 record in Region 12, qualifying them for the NJCAA Inter-regional Tournament hosted by College of DuPage Nov. 5-6 in Glen Ellyn, Ill. SC will play DuPage, the No. 1-ranked team in the nation, at noon on Nov. 5. The Inter-regional final will be Nov. 6.

The Cuyahoga game was declared a forfeit after the game officials never showed. The victory was SC's 13th in 14 matches this season; the previous Wednesday, they clinched the region title with a 12-0 trouncing of Delta CC.

FOOTBALL

Tractors roll past Wayne, 21-6

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Dearborn Fordson controlled the line of scrimmage en route to a 21-6 Mega Conference football win Saturday over visiting Wayne Memorial.

The Tractors, defending state Class AA champs, held the Zebras to 34 yards rushing while improving their overall record to 6-2 and 4-2 in the Red Division of the Mega.

Wayne drops to 5-3 and 3-3.

Joshua Waugh recovered a fumble with 10:43 left and James Bonewagner picked off a Michael Bitar pass near the Wayne goal line with 39 seconds remaining.

In the third quarter, Fordson marched 82 yards in nine plays, capped by senior Michael Saad's 25-yard TD run. Kujtim Veliu hit tight end Ray Mroueh with the two-point coversion pass to make it 14-0.

Wayne senior tailback Stan Stevenson, who came into the game with 984 yards rushing, is still 1 yard shy of 1,000. He was held to 15 yards in 13 carries.

Guess hit four of 17 passes for 118 yards.

■ W.L. CENTRAL 14, FRANKLIN 13: On Saturday, Quarterback Adam Bruce scored on a 1-yard run with only 30 seconds remaining to give Walled Lake Central (4-4 overall) the Western Lakes crossover victory at Livonia Franklin (1-7).

The Patriots led 13-7, but fumbled the ball away near midfield with under two minutes to play.

Bruce then hit Kurt Larson with a 26-yard pass and Matt Koschke ripped off an 18-yard run to set up the game-winning score.

Jeremy Tisdale kicked the game-winning extra point.

Franklin opened the scoring in the first quarter when Adam Hill capped a 42-yard drive with a 1-yard TD run. Aaron Smith added the extra point.

Central tied it 7-7 later in the quarter on Korchke's 16-yard run followed by Jacob Berg's PAT.

In the second quarter, David McMullen teamed up with Hill on a 27-yard TD pass. (The extra point failed.)

In the third period, Hill intercepted a Bruce pass and returned it 45 yards to the Central 4, but the Patriots couldn't punch it in as Smith's 19-yard field goal attempt missed.

Franklin outgained Central in total yardage, 242-232, McMullen completed 13 of 27 passes for 162 yards. He was intercepted twice.

Hill had five catches for 87 yards, while Smith added seven receptions for 57.

Koschke led Central's rushers with 63 yards in nine carries.

Kyles, a senior, scored on runs of 38, 3, 13 and 3.

In the final quarter, Dan Schaefer blocked a West punt and Mark Mashburn recovered the ball in the end zone to give the Warriors a 33-0 lead.

Mashburn was Lutheran Westland's second leading rusher with 55 yards on eight carries. The Warriors piled up 260 on the ground.

West averted the shutout with seven minutes left on Wayne Wright's 14-yard TD run. Wright, who had 65 yards in 15 carries, also ran in for the two-point conversion.

Tom Mills rushed for 77 of West's 146 total yards.

Defensively, Jason Bayush led Lutheran Westland with 10 tackles. Jason Brasgalla was in on eight stops, while teammate Jon Smolka had an interception.

■ LUTHERAN NORTH 21, CLARENCEVILLE 14: On Saturday, host Macomb Lutheran North (6-2, 5-2) drove 60 yards in the final quarter for the game-winning score in a Metro Conference victory over Livonia Clarenceville (6-3, 5-2).

"I thought we outplayed them except for the last drive," Clarenceville coach Chuck Donaldson said. "They kept running a dive play at our tackle and I think we got a little tired."

The Mustangs scored the game-winner with just under two minutes to play, a 1-yard run by Kyle Simmons. He also scored on the two-point conversion try.

Clarenceville led 14-7 at intermission on TD runs of 6 and 23 yards by senior tailback Steve Spisz.

Martino Seman, also a senior tailback, led Clarenceville with 101 yards in 13 carries.

Quarterback Jon Pauley hit three of eight passes for 21 yards. He was intercepted once.

Defensively, linebacker Jesse Lynn was in on 13 tackles for Clarenceville. Ray Kastl added eight tackles, along with an interception and fumble recovery. Bryan DeCaire contributed seven tackles, along with a pass deflection and breakup.

■ REDFORD CC 37, U-D JESUIT 6: Redford Catholic Central junior fullback John Spolsky gained 99 yards on 14 carries and scored four touchdowns Saturday, leading the Shamrocks to a victory over the University of Detroit-Jesuit at Livonia Clarenceville.

The Shamrocks gained 384 total yards and limited U-D to 68 to end the Catholic League Central Division schedule with a 2-2 record.

The Shamrocks, 5-3 overall, will host defending Class AA state champion Dearborn Fordson at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the season finale.

Spolsky scored on runs of 30, 6, 3 and 1 yard. Jai Mahabir scored the other TD on an 8-yard run and placekicker Ron Bialobrzeski made his longest field goal of the year from 42 yards out.

Bialobrzeski made four of five extra point attempts.

Sophomore quarterback Greg Call, who injured his leg in the 21-14 loss to Birmingham Brother Rice in the Boys Bowl, returned to the Shamrocks' lineup on their second possession. Senior Gary Galvin, who started the season No. 1, quarterbacked the first series and led the Shamrocks on a 57-yard four-play drive that ended in Spolsky's 30 yard TD run.

Call played the rest of the way, completing three of four passes for 67 yards, including a pair to Galvin for 47 yards.

U-D cut the deficit to 7-6 after one quarter, but scoring drives of 66 and 75 yards, and Bialobrzeski's field goal in the second quarter gave the Shamrocks a commanding 24-6 halftime lead.

Spolsky capped the 66-yard drive with a 6-yard run; he ended the 75-yard drive with a 3-yard run. CC got the ball at the U-D 49 with less than a minute remaining and after Call completed passes to Gabriel O'Keefe and Galvin, Bialobrzeski came on to make the field goal.

Spolsky capped a 38-yard drive in the third quarter with a 1-yard run and Mahabir ended a 79-yard, 11-play drive in the fourth quarter with an 8-yard run.

Reserve running back Kevin Quay finished with 71 yards on 12 carries and senior running back Craig Wasen contributed 84 yards on 10 carries.

Andy Short, Nick Lachapelle and Mike Smiley led the CC defense with seven tackles each. Short and Smiley had one sack each and Smiley also blocked an extra point attempt.

Rockets, Zebras eye playoffs

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

The high school football season concludes this weekend for most Observerland teams, but four will continue on in the state playoffs.

Three of those schools are known — Farmington Hills Harrison, Livonia Stevenson and Redford St. Agatha — but the fourth remains to be determined.

The winner of the Westland John Glenn-Wayne Memorial game will apparently be the fourth-place seed in Class AA Region 2 and play at Belleville in the first round.

Projections for the other playoff games: Harrison hosts either Detroit Chadsey or Dearborn in A-3, Stevenson travels to Howell in AA-2 and St. Agatha entertains North Branch Wesleyan in D-4.

The prediction contest is still up for grabs. Dan O'Meara holds a mere two-game edge over defending champ Brad Emons, 93-25 to 91-27. Both were 11-2 last week.

FRIDAY GAMES
(all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Luth. Westland at Hamtramck, 4: The host Cosmos (5-2, 6-2) were hot to start the season, winning their first five, before losing two straight to Cranbrook and Lutheran North. Hamtramck regrouped last week with a 26-14 win over Harper Woods. The up-and-down Warriors (3-4, 4-4) have won their last two, including a 33-8 decision over Lutheran West on Saturday. PICKS: The Cosmos are out of this world.

Bishop Borgess at Ecorse, 4: It might not be a winless season for Borgess (0-8) after all. The Spartans, who came close Saturday in a 19-15 loss to Allen Park Cabrini, play Ecorse in a non-league finale. The Raiders (1-7) haven't done much better. They waxed Wyandotte Mount Carmel 54-0 but finished last in the Suburban Athletic Conference. PICKS: Borgess goes out a winner.

Lutheran East at Clarenceville: The Trojans (5-2, 5-3) had their five-game winning streak snapped Saturday by Mount Clemens Lutheran North, 21-14, and they face another formidable East Side Lutheran school this week. The Eagles of Harper Woods (6-1, 6-2) have won five in a row and are headed for the Class DD playoffs. Clarenceville won't qualify in CC but can put a damper on East's momentum. PICKS: Lutheran East keeps the streak going.

Garden City at Chelsea: This game shapes up as much more even than a year ago. The host Bulldogs finished 9-0 and made the Class BB playoffs. Both teams are 3-5 this year. Garden City has won two of its last three and is coming off a 20-3 win over area rival Redford Union. Chelsea graduated most of its starters from last season but remains a pretty good passing team. Pat Lynch has completed 57 of 126 passes for 679 yards, and Brandon Skelton has caught 31 for 402 yards. PICKS: Emons says the Cougars get revenge; O'Meara goes with the home team.

Liv. Churchill at Liv. Stevenson: The Spartans (6-2) are going to the playoffs for the second time in school history and will make their first post-season appearance since 1979 next week. But first things first. Stevenson was impressive in the WLAA championship game last week at Harrison and might have won if a two-point conversion pass late in the fourth quarter was successful. The Spartans want to keep that momentum and avoid a letdown against Churchill (0-8). PICKS: Stevenson coasts into the playoffs.

Wayne Mem. at Westland Glenn: Both teams are 5-3 but, since the start of the season, Glenn's star has risen while Wayne's has fallen. The Rockets have won five of their last six games, losing only to Stevenson. The Zebras were 3-0 and then 5-1 but have lost their last two. All of the combined six losses were to playoff-bound teams. Wayne knocked Glenn out of the playoffs and qualified two years ago with a 35-7 victory. The Rockets avenged the loss last year 42-22 despite a big game by quarterback Lorenzo Guess. PICKS: Emons thinks Wayne will be in the playoffs; O'Meara says it will be Glenn instead.

Ply. Salem vs. Ply. Canton: Will the trend continue or will the Rocks break with recent tradition and win two straight? Since 1988 when Canton beat Salem for the first time, the teams have alternated victories. One of the most entertaining games in the series was played last year when the Rocks won 23-22. The Chiefs led 22-7 at halftime, but Salem rallied in the second half. It should be Canton's turn to win this year, but this one looks like a toss-up. Both teams are 4-4. PICKS: Emons says Canton hangs on to win this time; O'Meara says the trend will end, picks Salem again.

N. Farmington at South Lyon: The Raiders (4-4) have usually played well against the Lions (7-1), missing an upset in 1991 and winning 24-13 last year. The Raiders have to wonder what might have been, losing three games by six points total. The Lions routed playoff-bound Hartland 27-6 to win a share of the Kensington Valley Conference title with Howell, and South Lyon will probably be the top seed in Class A-Region 3. PICKS: The Lions don't sleep; they roar in The Jungle.

F.H. Harrison at Oxford: This game has the makings of a big post-season clash and reminds the Hawks of one they'd like to but can't forget. The teams have met once, in the Class BB semifinals four years ago. Oxford outscored favored Harrison 48-38 in a wild offensive show. Both teams have qualified for the playoffs this year, but the Hawks (7-1) would like to even the score with Oxford (8-0) before attempting to defend their Class A title. PICKS: O'Meara calls for the Hawks to get their revenge in this one; Emons says a fired-up Oxford townsfolk inspire their team to victory.

SATURDAY GAMES
(all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Trenton at Liv. Franklin: The Patriots (1-7) were close to winning again last week until Walled Lake Central managed a late score and 14-13 victory. Trenton (6-2) has lost two of its last three and needs a win to keep its faint playoff hopes alive. The Trojans were blown out by Allen Park and lost to Crestwood in overtime last week, 24-21. PICKS: Trenton wins a close one, O'Meara predicts, but Emons is a true Patriot.

Milford Lakeland at Farmington: The Falcons (5-3) had their hopes for a playoff berth dashed last week in an overtime loss to Plymouth Canton. It appears that even under the most favorable circumstances Farmington can't qualify, but it can still finish a fine season with a win. By doing so, the Falcons can match their best record since 1984. Lakeland (0-8) finished last in the Kensington Valley Conference and has scored just 66 points all season. PICKS: Farmington goes out a winner.

St. Agatha at Benedictine: After going two games without scoring a point (in losses to Lakes and St. Clement), the Aggies got back on track with a 38-13 win over St. Florian. St. Agatha (6-2) could have its hands full this week against the Class C Ravens (4-4). PICKS: The Ravens take out their frustration on St. Agatha, says Emons; O'Meara likes the Aggies to win.

Drbn. Fordson vs. Redford CC, 1:30 p.m. at Clarenceville: In most years, this would be one heckuva playoff game. The defending Class AA champion Tractors (6-2) still have an outside shot at qualifying again in Region 3, and CC can play the role of spoiler here. The teams have met twice, each time in post-season play with the Shamrocks (5-3) winning in 1979 and '85. Fordson has won five straight since back-to-back losses to Belleville (36-7) and Monroe (14-0). PICKS: The Tractors keep on trucking.

Redford Union vs. Red. Thurston, 8 p.m. at Silverdome: Thurston (5-3) rolled over Annapolis 40-0 for its third straight win Saturday and fifth in its last six games. The Eagles won't make the playoffs in BB-Region 4, but they can claim city bragging rights with a victory in the finale. Redford Union (2-6) has lost five games in a row and hasn't scored a touchdown in its last four. PICKS: The Eagles soar (but look out for that roof) to victory.

Churchill, Pats, Blazers halt skids

Livonia Churchill's 10-game losing skid stopped Tuesday with a 42-32 girls basketball win against Farmington at home on Parents' Night.

Alicia December scored 12 points and Jamie Clark contributed eight points and 12 rebounds for the Chargers, who are now 1-8 in the Western Lakes and 2-13 overall.

"This was the first time since the first game of the year that I had my entire starting five playing at the same time," Churchill coach Dave Balog said. "We've had all kinds of injuries and other things, it was great to have everything together again."

Farmington, led by Andrea Salyer (12 points) and Amanda Porter (11), fought back and was within four points with 2½ minutes left. But a putback by Churchill's Kathy Stein ended the Falcons' rally.

Farmington, now 2-8 in the Western Lakes, 5-11 overall, made just 14 of 34 free throws.

■ FRANKLIN 51, JOHN GLENN 51: Strange day, strange game. First of all, a water main broke at Livonia Franklin earlier in the day so the game had to be played at Westland John Glenn.

Then, in the final minutes of play, a scouts and confusion confused the John Glenn players and ultimately led to a game-deciding foul.

Franklin took a 51-49 lead on Sarah Campo's 3-pointer with just under a minute left in the game. Glenn scored the tying basket, but the scoreboard, operated by a Franklin crew unfamiliar with the board, registered the score at 51-50. The Rockets, thinking they were behind, fouled intentionally to get the ball back.

The win was Franklin's first in the Western Lakes (1-8, 5-9 overall). Glenn falls to 2-8, 3-12.

The free throw line was kind to Franklin, particularly in the final quarter. The Patriots hit 9 of 14 from the line in the final minutes.

For Glenn, Rochelle Harris scored 15, Jaime Grigal 14 and Kelly Klee 12.

■ LADYWOOD 69, MARIAN 58: The stakes have been higher in past years, but the taste of victory has never been so sweet for Livonia Ladywood.

Victory No. 1 in the Catholic League's Central Division came Tuesday against favored Birmingham Marian, thanks to Becky Bilicki's season-high 25 points.

"It feels very good," said Ladywood coach Tina McPhee, whose team is 1-9 in the league, 2-9 overall. "Everybody played well, and it was well-deserved. We came out strong, and we never let up."

Julie Steven scored 10 to lead Marian, 3-7 and 4-7.

Dolt, a junior center, scored 32 points and helped the Spartans build an 18-point lead in the second half — a lead that Western methodically whittled to 6 by game's end.

"We got a little impatient with the ball and didn't run enough time off the clock with our possessions," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said, "but we hung on."

Jill VanHem added 18 points for Stevenson.

Gina Brooks scored 21 points for Western.

Both teams are 6-3 in the Western Lakes and 8-7 overall.

■ KINGSWOOD 42, CLARENCEVILLE 28: This Metro Conference match boiled down to a one-on-one matchup between Cranbrook Kingswood's Nikia Stevens and Clarenceville's Wendy Roy. Stevens won.

Roy had 19 points and 15 rebounds, which is not too shabby. But Stevens countered with 27 points and virtually took control of the game in the third quarter.

After an 18-18 first half deadlock, Kingswood turned Stevens loose on the press. She forced numerous turnovers and triggered a 14-4 run.

Kingswood is 5-4 in the Metro, 6-7 overall; Clarenceville falls to 0-9, 1-12.

■ WAYNE 42, WOODHAVEN 35: Minkoya Levington scorched host Woodhaven just when it appeared it might be catching Wayne in this Metro Conference crossover.

With Wayne clinging to a 25-22 lead entering the final quarter, Levington, who had scored just one basket, drained a pair of three-pointers back-to-back and scored nine points in the quarter to bury Woodhaven.

Sandy Jackson led Wayne with 12 points. Rica Barge added 10 points and 12 rebounds.

Wayne is 8-8, Woodhaven 4-11.

■ S'FIELD CHRISTIAN 58, HURON VALLEY 12: Points are getting hard to come by for Westland Huron Valley Lutheran. It lost 60-15 to Bloomfield Hills Roeper on Monday and only scored 12 on Tuesday.

Rachel Wichman scored five points to lead Huron Valley (1-9 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, 4-13 overall).

BASKETBALL

CC harriers rule league

CC won the Catholic League meet team championship on Saturday behind the running of Leo, who had a winning time of 16 minutes, 18 seconds on the Marshbank Park course.

Leo finished ahead of Warren DeLaSalle's Phil Sobeck, who was the Catholic League champion in 1993.

The Shamrocks, who finished third last season in the Catholic League meet, finished with 34 points. DeLaSalle had 54, followed by defending champion Dearborn Divine Child (77).

The individual victory gives Leo some momentum heading into the Class A regional, which will start at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at Marshbank.

"Joe ran another smart race," CC coach Tony Magni said. "I told him, you and Sobeck will be together and when it comes down to finishing up hard, make sure you're ready to go. There will be a few that will go with him (at the regional). I just hope he gets them at the end.

"This was a nice team effort. We were just running for position. When we finished first, third and fifth that sealed the victory."

Also earning all-Catholic honors were Mike Danic, who placed 12th (17:45) and Derrick Faunce, who was 13th (17:47). Rick Stachura was 20th (18:05) and Matt Krause placed 37th (19:49).

The Shamrocks placed third as a team at last year's regional to qualify for the state meet, but they are favored this year with Ann Arbor Pioneer and Ann Arbor Huron competing at the Monroe regional.

CC, which has won seven regionals under Magni's guidance, last won a regional two years ago.

"Our main objective is to qualify (place in the top three), then win it (the regional)," Magni said.

Warriors win Metro

Lutheran High Westland captured the Metro Conference boys cross country meet Tuesday at Brys Park in Harper Woods.

Rounding out the team standings: Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook (52), Harper Woods (65), Macomb Lutheran North (122), Harper Woods Lutheran East (130) and Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest (157).

Other finishers for the Warriors included Sam Patterson, third (17:18; Phil Kimmel, fourth (17:23); Jason Collins, seventh (17:25); Andy Ebendick, ninth (17:47); Chris Tiernan, 11th (17:59); and Jason Burk, 14th (18:11).

Madonna faces stern test in Illinois

At the start of the season, Madonna University was considered a national "big gun" in NAIA women's volleyball.

They will get their chance this weekend at the Big Gun Classic at the College of St. Francis in Joliet, Ill. At the tournament will be St. Francis, No. 4 in NAIA; Montevallo (Ala.), No. 3 in NAIA; Peru State (Neb.), No. 20 in NAIA, and Juniata (Pa.), the No. 2 team in NCAA Division III.

And, of course, the Crusaders (22-10) who prepped for the tourney with a near flawless three-set romp Tuesday over visiting University of Michigan-Dearborn, 15-8, 15-8, 15-5.

"We're starting to play well again," said coach Jerry Abraham. "I think we're ready for this weekend."

"We really did a nice job of passing and hitting," Abraham said. "I'm happy. Everybody got a chance to play and everybody played well. It was a good team performance."

On Saturday, the Lady Crusaders cruised to three straight victories to win its own tournament.

Madonna beat Michigan Christian (15-4, 15-2, 15-8); University of Windsor (15-7, 15-4, 15-6) and UM-Dearborn (15-8, 15-2, 15-6).

Three Lady Crusaders were named to the all-tourney squad: Marci Laurencelle (28 kills), Paulin (19 kills) and MVP Fisher (90 assists).

The Crusaders will need more of the same this weekend. They will play at 4:30 and 7 p.m. Friday, 9 and 11 a.m. on Saturday in a round-robin format.

Lady Ocelots fall

On Tuesday, host Henry Ford, led by Carrie Crumbliss, wrapped up the Eastern Conference championship in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association with a 12-15, 15-11, 15-8, 15-6 win over Schoolcraft.

Setter Janet Zabivnik (Plymouth Canton) had 45 assists, while Jannel Hemme (Livonia Ladywood) contributed 13 digs.

The Lady Ocelots also finished 3-2 last weekend in the Illinois Central CC Invitational, avenging a previous loss to Parkland, Ill.

Belleville (Ill.), ranked No. 10 in the NJCAA, won the event.

Schoolcraft takes a 24-15 record into tonight's match with Windsor.

The Ocelots will host a five-team tournament, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Admission is $2.

Among the teams in the field include Kellogg, Kalamazoo Valley, Delta and Oakland.

Werman 1st

Lutheran High Westland Sophomore Jodi Werman clocked an even 20 minutes to win the Metro Conference girls individual cross country title Tuesday at Brys Park in Harper Woods.

The Warriors also edged out Bloomfield Hills Kingswood for the team championship; 36-38. Macomb Lutheran North was third with 46 and Harper Woods Lutheran East was fourth with 137.

St. Theodore's hosts mission

A parish mission of renewal will take place at St. Theodore of Canterbury Church in Westland Sunday through Friday, Nov. 6-11.

Capuchin Franciscan Father Adrian Staehler will conduct the mission. He will preach at the weekend Masses Nov. 5-6 to outline the schedule and purpose of the mission.

"Harvest time is a wonderful time for us as a community of believers to be open to the Spirit of God working among us and calling us to deeper faith, wholeness and service to one another," said Father Molnar "Whether one can attend the entire week or part of it, the time will be well spent for people to 'reconnect' with the Lord."

The one-hour evening services will begin at 7 p.m. and focus on healing. A brief social will follow. The morning sessions will begin at 8:30 a.m. with Mass and will explore the various dimensions of evangelization.

Each evening Father Staehler will examine a different aspect of healing — the need for healing, healing of memories, healing of social relations and spiritual healing. The sacrament of reconciliation will be celebrated Thursday, Nov. 10.

Healing was at the heart of Jesus's ministry and he returned to people the gift of sight, enabled people to hear and speak again, freed others from inner evil powers, healed through touch, and as well, healed people from the paralysis of sin.

Each morning evangelization will be discussed in terms of everyday living and interacting with family, friends and business associates. It will be presented as an ongoing commitment for Christians of inviting others to faith, said Father Michael Molnar, pastor of St. Theodore's.

Father Staehler, who has been involved with preaching parish missions full-time for six years, emphasized that he will relate all of his talks to the situations people face daily as they try to make their faith a central focus in their lives.

Since 1525, Capuchin Franciscans have exercised a special ministry to preaching in addition to their commitment to the poor. Father Staehler is a member of Midwest Province of St. Joseph of the Capuchin Order, headquartered in Detroit.

Fr. Adrian Staehler

Michael Opper, pastoral minister, and the parish worship committee encourages area residents, including high school students, to participate in the parish renewal program and build stronger values and gospel lifestyle.

"This mission calls us to be involved as a whole people in the mission of Jesus which is to share with others God's love. Our society is in dire need of that saving love," said Father Molnar.

Holiday art events sparkle with ideas

It's almost November, but it's beginning to look a lot like Christmas at area malls and stores. If you're searching for creative ideas to spice up your Holiday, Observerland art shows and tours provide plenty of inspiration and gift ideas. Some benefit the arts or other organizations, some not but they all are worthy of a look.

Here's a guide to some of the most creative art events of the season:

A champagne reception kicks off a one day art exhibit and sale by the Women of Artistry Sunday, Oct. 30, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

From 1-6 p.m., the public is invited to view and purchase art by Carol McCreedy of Westland, Sharon Dillenbeck of Canton, Sue Argiroff of Livonia, Norma McQueen of Garden City and Julie Giordano of Northville. Painting and marbling are the primary mediums showcased, most in the style of Realism.

"There's going to be lots of original work, reproductions, hand-painted ornaments, and T-shirts with art," said McQueen.

Children's book art

The magic of children's book illustration comes to the Civic Center Library Fine Arts Gallery Oct. 31 to Dec. 3 when the Livonia Arts Commission presents an exhibition of artworks from the Elizabeth Stone Gallery in Birmingham.

Remember when you were a child how a picture in a book could take your breath away, and when no one could tell you that your dreams were too outrageous to come true?

Imagine a gallery full of these original artworks. Mystical castles, enchanted forests, and unlikely animals come to life if only for a brief moment in time, here.

"People have collected book illustration for years. There is a tradition and value attached to

LOOKING AHEAD

What to watch for in Creative Living next week:

- Jewelry maker Joni Fine of Livonia is up to her elbows in clay preparing for New Morning School's fourth annual arts and crafts show Nov. 12 at the Northville Community Center.
- The Visual Arts Association of Livonia joins forces with St. Mary Hospital to present an Autumn Art Exhibit.
- Victoria Diaz's Book Break column looks at the offerings of local authors.
- Exhibitions, art gallery listings.

LIGHT AS MEDIUM

Neon has come a long way from the flashing flourescent motel and gas station signs of the 1920s and 30s to the energetic architectural installations in modern skyscrapers. Livonia light artist, Michael LaCroix takes its magic one step further.

by
Linda Chomin • staff writer

At The Neon Connection in Plymouth, Michael LaCroix uses the medium of light to create custom accent pieces for homes and businesses.

From contemporary lighting in cove ceilings to plant stands, the Livonia resident bends the rules when it comes to new ideas for the use of neon.

"A lot of the large contemporary homes the trend is for cove ceiling with all the walls painted bright white. While you don't see the pink neon lighting, it creates a halo effect, encircling the room and giving it a warm glow," said LaCroix during an interview in his shop.

Inside LaCroix's small shop, examples of his handiwork are everywhere. Displayed on a back wall is a guitar with the word Detroit written in neon script above it. A Michigan State University Spartans logo in green neon decorates another wall.

"Neon is basically a line drawing. You can do a lot with it. A lot of people like to have their name in lights. Wall sconces and clocks are popular now. Cactus, moons and flamingos are so popular, I do five or six at a time."

Although LaCroix's bread and butter is the commercial sign work he does for the Big Three automotive companies among others including the recently opened Roadside Market in Plymouth, it's his creativity in producing commis-

■ PORCELAIN PAINTED GIFTS

The Livonia chapter of Michigan Porcelain Artists presents its first hand painted gifts show and sale 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29 at the Sheldon Senior Center, 10800 Farmington Road in Livonia.

Admission is $1. Jewelry, two dimensional works, vases and ornaments are a few of the items that will be offered for sale. In addition, there will be on-floor demonstrations as well as door prizes and refreshments for all to enjoy.

■ HALLOWEEN FUN

Heart Light, a metaphysical awareness shop in Plymouth, hosts psychic artist Joy Ensminger at its first annual Halloween Festival 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29, at the Holiday Inn 26555 Telegraph at I-696, Southfield.

Admission is $5 to the day-long psychic fair featuring metaphysical and New Age vendors, psychic readers, body workers, healers, lecturers and artists. A costume contest will award a top prize of $100.

"Joy's right handed but she draws it with her left hand. They're very detailed,' said Heart Light co-owner, Tillie Van Sickle of Westland.

For more information call Heart Light at (313) 416-5200.

■ WATERCOLOR SHOW

The Michigan Water Color Society's 48th Annual Traveling exhibition is on display through Dec. 9 in the Sisson Gallery of the MacKenzie Fine Arts Center at Henry Ford Community College, 5101 Evergreen Road in Dearborn.

Among the exhibitors is Billie Thompson of Livonia and Ann Loveland, an instructor at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Call (313) 845-6490 for more information.

UPDATE!

Dear Realtors,

Our expansion is complete and business is going strong. As a company, we have increased our business every year we have been in operation. In 1994 we are up 40% in gross sales, year to date, over last year!

We are still looking for those few individuals who are professional and dedicated to this business, and desire to work in an atmosphere which will foster your development and growth in the business of Real Estate.

The recent improvements include:

- Private and semi private offices
- All new computers & networking capabilities
- Software listing presentation program
- Voice mail (This "first class system" solves the missed message, incomplete message and wrong number problem!)
- State of the art phone system
- State of the art fax and copier equipment.
- Office remodeling

Combined with the full time professional managerial, secretarial staff, advertising support, 100% commission schedule and a franchise name and system (in which you will see the benefit), all add up to a package which we believe can't be beat. Our goal is to be the premiere Real Estate Company in the minds of the public and Realtor Community.

If you are currently satisfied with your treatment and how your company is run, we wish you continued success. If you are thinking of selling Real Estate, changing companies or feel there may be a better way, we would appreciate the opportunity to discuss our company's benefits and your future success.

Sincerely,

James K. Stevens

Annual plant sale scheduled at Cranbrook

BY MARTY FIGLEY
STAFF WRITER

Cranbrook Gardens' 22nd annual fall plant sale will take place 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29.

Cranbrook Gardens is at 380 Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills. Free parking is available at the Christ Church parking lot across Lone Pine Road. Take the shuttle to the sale. For more information, call (810) 645-3149.

A Cranbrook harvest of many items will be displayed in a pleasing setting. Members have been busy making and fashioning the ever popular potpourri mixes, fine wreaths of natural materials, grapevine trees and other garden gifts.

Several items will be offered for the first time, including eucalyptus soaps for the bath, unusual candles and small decorative angels, some playing musical instruments, to enhance a greenhouse or home.

Tasty breads, vinegars, herb mixes and more will whet the appetite. "Cranbrook Reflections," the award-winning collection of recipes, is to be sold at a special price.

Antique and unusual bulbs will again be offered for sale in the greenhouse, along with orchids, ferns, live topiary and other tropicals.

All the items will be welcome additions to the home and are suitable gifts for the upcoming holiday season.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to maintain and improve the 40 acres of gardens and grounds surrounding Cranbrook House, once home to Cranbrook founders George and Ellen Scripps Booth, and for the upkeep and improvement of the greenhouse.

This year's proceeds are earmarked for improvement to one of the herb gardens and to install heating in the Little Studio, which houses the Alice Wessels Burlingame Library, on the East side of the house. The studio is the building with an angel weathervane on the roof.

The herb gardens are a surprise and a favorite of many visitors to Cranbrook Gardens. Although they were designed and installed more than 20 years ago and are maintained by members of the Southern Michigan Unit of the Herb Society of America Inc., they are an integral part of Cranbrook Gardens.

SMU members donated 100 working hours to these gardens during this past season.

"Our unit is honored to be able to participate in a garden of national renown, such as Cranbrook," chairwoman Laura Principe said.

The formal garden is the most photographed and familiar to the public. It has seen several changes as it has grown and been developed.

The herb plants are set in a pleasing pattern and brick walks lead visitors through this lovely garden.

A statue of Ecola (so named by Henry Booth to represent Ecology), sits in the center of one bed and watches over all the plants.

The other garden, called the "upper garden" because it is above the formal one, will be improved with a sprinkler system and a French drain. A French drain is constructed with large pipe that is perforated in the top horizontal portion to allow water to enter. The pipe is sunk in a bed of gravel that is buried in the ground. Water will then be channeled into the present drainage system beneath the existing terraces. Brick walks will be installed over the tiles.

The unit members are excited about the improvements being done to this garden, and a completely new garden has been planned as the result.

"We anticipate that this garden will be a wonderful beginning for our members and the public to learn about herbs — some old, some new."

this work that maybe the general public hasn't been aware of," said Stone.

"But now, it's really become a medium for a finer quality of expression not seen since the golden age of illustration nearly 75 years ago."

Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Art and crafty angels

New Morning School of Plymouth offers plenty of unusual gift ideas at its fourth annual arts and crafts show 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 12 in the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main.

Admission is $1.50 with proceeds from this Celebration of the Arts to benefit the non-profit parent cooperative school for children from preschool to eighth grade in Plymouth. State certified, the school serves students of all abilities from the gifted to the learning disabled.

"The shows keep getting better and better," said chairwoman, Leslie Stolaruk of Plymouth. "We'll have jewelry, fiber art angels, pottery, handmade paper and papermaking kits, woven hammocks and pillows, painting, cat image jewelry and cat rocks and the Quilt Lady will be back by popular demand."

For a sneak preview of the show drop by Wiltse's Community Pharmacy, 330 S. Main in Plymouth, Nov. 2-11. The windows will showcase an array of the original works, everything from Angel Cats and Santa Cats to hand carved and painted decays, wood toys, glass, wildlife art, photography, basketry, and pressed flowers in glass.

VAAL show

The Visual Arts Association of Livonia joins forces with St. Mary's Hospital to present an Autumn Art Exhibit Nov. 6-19 in the Marian Pavilion on Levan south of Five Mile in Livonia. (See story in next week's Creative Living section.)

Art as gift

Nelson's Gallery offers shopping for art gifts six days a week at its Livonia location, 16376 Middlebelt between Five and Six Mile in Terrence Corners.

Art as Gift, a showing of reasonably priced works by 13 local artists, runs Nov. 10 to Dec. 31.

Gallery director, Laura Hardy had chosen a variety of works and artists including pastel Gwen Dietrich of Canton; watercolor lighthouses by Thin Tgel of Livonia; pottery by Daniel Showalter of Garden City; watercolor by Kathleen Erngren, and blown glass paperweights and vessels by Joe Wisniewski and Christine Fleischer of Livonia; Chinese brush painting by Christine Wong of Novi; hand-sculpted walking sticks and smaller sculptures by Randall Lentz; and jewelry by Sam Galate of Redford Township; photography by Mari Gilardoni-Flyn, and pencil portraits by Tom Dyer of White Lake; painting by Amy Chenier of Lincoln Park, and mixed media by Janelle Agar of Algonac.

"Just before the holidays they can buy something meaningful and unique, and they'll meet the artists who made it," said Hardy.

Regular gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday to Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Holiday art extravaganza

The Michigan Art Exchange will hold its first annual holiday show and sale Nov. 11-13 at the cooperative gallery, 470 Forest in Forest Place Mall in Plymouth.

Media of all kind will be available by the MAE's 21 members.

"We want people to become more familiar with the gallery so we'll be offering smaller, more affordable art," said event chairperson, Marie Tuthill of Livonia.

"We have two very good clay artists, two new photographers and a lot of new painters. Some are very abstract, others are very colorful watercolors."

Hours are 10 a.m to 6 p.m.

Walk inspires decorating ideas

The Friends of Greenmead present their sixth annual Christmas Walk featuring more than half a dozen Livonia homes dressed in all their Holiday finery 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3.

Tickets are $7 before the event, $8 at the door and available at the Livonia Civic Center Library, and at the library's gift shop, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Proceeds benefit the continuing restoration and preservation of the Alexander Blue House, one of 13 buildings, at Greenmead Historical Village in Livonia.

"We're going to have some wonderful homes this year, one is from the 1840's. There's something special about a historic home when it's decorated for the holidays," said Friends president, Janet Bennett.

"There'll will also be a newer home with the recent addition of a turret to the structure."

Time's running out

The Garden City Fine Arts Association gives shoppers one last chance to purchase art for gift giving Dec. 11-17 at Sheridan Square, 30000 Ford Road in Garden City.

The exhibit, jurored by Gary Wilson an associate professor at Monroe Community College, opens with a reception and awards ceremony beginning at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 12.

"They're all local artists and it's all original work priced between $25 to $200," said GCFAA president, Ray Davison.

Hours are the same as regular mall hours.

■ LIVONIA LIBRARY SHOWCASES
To Friday, Oct. 28 — The Livonia Arts Commission presents watercolors by Annalee of Northville on the library's second floor. Landscapes and florals in paintings and note cards are reasonably priced for gift giving. Annalee began painting studies in the 1970s with Mary Ann Beltz and Caroline Dunphy. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The Livonia Civic Center Library is on Five Mile just east of Farmington Road.

■ LIVONIA CITY HALL
To Nov. 9 — The Palette and Brush Club exhibits "Point of View," a show featuring works by 31 members in the lobby. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Livonia City Hall is at Farmington Road and Five Mile.

■ DETROIT SCIENCE CENTER
Through Dec. 17 — International award-winning photographer Marji Silk exhibits her photography in a one-woman presentation through Dec. 17. Reception to meet the artist Sunday. Silk, a former staff photographer for the Detroit Science Center, is a writer, lecturer and teacher of photography. She teaches a two-day workshop, "How to Develop YOUR Unique and Creative Eye." The exhibit runs weekends only in the Main Lobby; hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, 5020 John R, Detroit. Call (810) 544-1203 for information.

■ DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS
Through Nov. 6 — Internationally acclaimed performance artist Guillermo Gomez-Pena and collaborator Roberto Sifuentes are presented for a special exhibit, now through Nov. 6, and other related programs at 5200 Woodward. Gomez-Pena and Sifuentes will occupy the installation and perform highly ritualized actions embodying cultural stereotypes Friday-Sunday, the first three days of the exhibit. The display, "The Temple of Confessions," is curated by Nancy Jones of Southfield, DIA Department of Education. Call (313) 833-7963.

■ UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN MUSEUM OF ART
Through Nov. 20 — "The Jade Studio," an exhibit of masterpieces of Chinese Ming and Qing Dynasty painting and calligraphy from the Wong Nan-p'ing Collection, continues through Nov. 20 at 525 S. State in Ann Arbor. Related events include tour 2 p.m. Sunday and art videos "Oriental Brushwork" and "Chinese Painting Through the Ages" 12:10 p.m. Wednesday. Call (313) 764-0395.

■ GALLERIE 454
Through Oct. 28 — An exhibit of paintings by Carla Carli Mazzucato continues at the Grosse Pointe Park gallery, 15105 Kercheval. Call (810) 822-4454.

■ HILL GALLERY

■ SUSANNE HILBERRY GALLERY
Through Oct. 29 — The gallery opens its fall exhibition season with a show of paintings, prints and drawings by Alex Katz, one of America's leading figurative painters. Katz is best known for his portraits and cutouts, which convey a deadpan but canny portrayal of New York City's cultural elite, and intimate large scale landscapes that focus on nature's details. Hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 555 S. Woodward, Birmingham, (810) 642-8250.

■ SANDRA COLLINS

■ ROBERT KIDD GALLERY
To Oct. 29 — Paintings in the Artist Series by Larry Rivers are exhibited. Hours are 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 107 Townsend, Birmingham, (810) 642-3909.

■ HABATAT/SHAW GALLERY
To Oct. 29 — Exhibits of the work of internationally recognized sculptor Arnold Zimmerman, and featuring the fantastic "dolls" of Janis Mars Wunderlich, continue. Zimmerman's current sculpture develops themes established in earlier works, combining architectural, organic, figurative and mechanical influences, creating highly personal and ambiguous sculptures. Wunderlich's sensitively rendered sculptures, based upon traditional doll forms, redefine the associations usually made with children's toys. Also, a selection of jewelry and wearable art by some of America's finest jewelers is displayed. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday or by appointment in the new location, 7 N. Saginaw, at Pike in Pontiac. Call (810) 851-8767.

■ JEAN PAUL SLUSSER GALLERY

■ MASK GALLERY
Through Oct. 29 — "Mask," an exhibit of two- and three-dimensional art, dance and poetry relating to the theme of facades, disguises and hidden realities, continues. The group show features the work of Mary Fortuna, Martha Schiebold, Maureen Vachon, Mark Esse and many other area artists, and masks from the Theatre Grottesco. Hours are 1-5 p.m. Saturday or by appointment, above King's Fashions at 10338 Joseph Campau at Caniff in Hamtramck. Call (810) 875-0760; for appointments call (810) 644-5824.

■ PRESTON BURKE GALLERY
Through Oct. 30 — "Celebrating Our Humanness," featuring recent works by Tony Kew and John Pappas, continues. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday, to 7 p.m. Friday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, 37606 W. 12 Mile at Halsted in Farmington Hills, (810) 488-0200.

sions for residential customers that stand out.

A back splash for a kitchen sink features an inset area of glass blocks which are also popular now. Flashing through the semi-opaque, wavy glass is a lightning bolt of neon. Column-shaped plant stands, and end tables feature innards of glowing light.

"I enjoy it because of the challenge of neon, and the creativity. Knowing you start with something straight and create a work of art."

LaCroix takes the idea from start to finish for these projects. He works in reverse designing and then laying out the pattern before bending any glass tubing. Once finished, he lights two of the three natural gas burners to begin heating then bending the glass. While twirling the tubing he blows air through a hose clenched in his teeth. The air prevents the glass walls from collapsing as he rotates the now pliable glass in the fire. When the glass starts to glow red, it's nearly ready for bending.

"Not many of the old timers are left. It's a rare art form and getting rarer all time."

The reason the neon trade is dying out is because of the lengthy training necessary to learn the skills. LaCroix spent nine weeks serving an intense apprenticeship under an old Austrian gentleman in Windsor. But even today, he burns a lot of fingers.

LaCroix didn't always work in neon. Previously he spent six years as an employee of his brother's sign company, and before that he was a chef for the Bijou Restaurant in Southfield. But he could not shake the irresistible lure of the glowing glass. The creativity of bending musical notes to emerge from a saxophone or trombone proved too much.

30-Year 4Max ARM

5.95% rate

8.498% APR

Most adjustable rate mortgages can jump 6% over the life of the loan. Ouch. Not the case with our 4Max ARM, which can jump no more than 4%. And as a homeowner, you'll save money with lower monthly payments the first year. Ahhh, much better.

Typical APR (annual percentage rate) includes interest on loan and other fees, and is based on a $100,000 loan with an 80% loan to value ratio. The APR may increase after closing. Interest rates and terms are subject to change at any time without notice.

NEW AGENT

Brian J. Carolan becomes a sales agent for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer's Troy office at 901 Tower Dr., Suite 150.

He'll concentrate on Oakland and Macomb counties. He had been a supervisor for Monroe Systems in Madison Heights.

RELOCATION 2000

Bowen Broock, president of Max Broock Inc. of Bloomfield Hills, met with 30 independent real estate brokers as a member of the Advisory Council of RELO/The International Relocation Network in Chicago, Ill., to discuss relocation trends in the year 2000.

"RELO will be taking an aggressive approach to relocation services in the year 2000," said Bowen Broock. "The Advisory Council is one example of RELO's dedication to providing superior service in a rapidly changing industry."

Fred Madley, 1994 RELO president, said Broock was chosen for his commitment to relocation excellence and his knowledge of relocation trends.

Max Broock Inc. Realtors, with six offices and 140 sales associates serving Oakland County, will be celebrating its 100th anniversary in 1995.

RELO has 800 members with 3,000 member offices and 40,000 sales associates nationwide. Its members sold $64.3 billion in residential real estate in 1993.

The newly created Advisory Council is a long-range planning and industry review group for RELO. Council members reviewed matters of concern to RELO members and suggested strategic initiatives evaluated by the Board of Directors.

Local Realtor leads state licensing board

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

A 17-year real estate career that has brought Jerry McKeon of Birmingham many challenges just presented a new one.

McKeon

McKeon, partner and general manager of Hall & Hunter Realtors in Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham, was elected chairman of the Board of Real Estate Brokers and Salespersons. The nine-member board is the state body that governs Michigan's 55,000 real estate licensees.

"I'm very pleased to be chairman," said McKeon, 54, who worked in management for an Oakland County insurance firm before starting his successful real estate career in 1977.

Hall & Hunter, a 42-year-old agency with 42 sales agents, has offices at 800 W. Long Lake and 1732 W. Maple.

"I'm very active in the Michigan Association of Realtors and the National Association of Realtors, but they encompass only part of Michigan's licensees. This board covers them all," said McKeon, who moved to Birmingham in 1975.

Gov. John Engler appointed McKeon to a four-year term on the board in 1992. He was vice chairman for two years and served on the board's education committee, which recently rewrote the real estate license exam.

Members meet six times a year to handle business that affects licensed sales agents and brokers and they arbitrate compliance conferences that involve licensees.

McKeon said the board and the Michigan Association of Relators may consider slight changes in continuing education and licensing requirements for the state's agents and brokers.

"I tend to have a short span of interest, but this business has kept my interest at an intense level for 17 years and I don't see that letting up," said McKeon, who still finds time to sell property, largely to repeat and referral customers.

This Flint native also is a director of the National Association of Realtors and Michigan Association of Realtors. He's one of 14 governors overseeing Realcomp II, a multiple listing service that serves seven Realtor boards in Detroit and suburban Wayne and Oakland counties.

He was a Birmingham Tax Review Board member for five years and has been a Historic District and Design Review Commission member. He's also a Birmingham Community House Development Committee member.

"Whenever you ask something of Jerry, he'll do it," said longtime friend Mary Savoie-Huff, Hall & Hunter associate broker and Birmingham Bloomfield Board of Realtors president. "He's hard working and dedicated to his community, his agents and the local and state Realtor board."

McKeon and his wife, Dianne, live in a turn-of-the-century home they have partially restored. Between business and community obligations, he does fund-raising for favorite organizations, including multiple sclerosis and The Lighthouse.

Spare time is scarce, but McKeon enjoys acting and is president of Village Players of Birmingham, a theatrical group that produces five plays a year. His last acting role was three seasons ago in "Social Security."

"Yes, I'm busy," said McKeon, "but all of my real estate work is rewarding. The administrative work with state and national boards is challenging, but it's also satisfying to be beneficial in someone's search for the right home."

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. One of our residents keeps his boat in his garage year round. While that's not expressly prohibited by the condominium documents, many times during the summer, his boat has a fishy stench that bothers several of the neighbors.

How can we deal with the problem when the co-owner has a right to store his boat there?

A. Perhaps a simple letter to the co-owner indicating that while he has a right to maintain the boat, he does not have a right to allow the boat to emanate foul odors that adversely impact other co-owners.

I would try to learn what's causing the odor, perhaps dead fish or the like, and then contact the boat owner to request his cooperation. There may be general language in the condominium documents that prohibits offensive or obnoxious activity.

Obviously, anyone is privileged to use the condominium facilities, but is tempered with a concomitant obligation to ensure that the safety and health of the other residents are not affected.

Q. I read with interest your question regarding a hotel condominium in which the developer had control of the votes because of the number of units he owned and also had control over the rental management program and management services company.

How can we get the association board to call a meeting if the developer controls the board, the officers and the rental company?

The value of our units has deteriorated and the nondeveloper-controlled owners appear to be in a situation where their hands are tied. What can an individual owner do?

A. Of course, the easy way out is to try to sell your unit and disengage yourself from the association.

Whether that's feasible or desirable, it appears that as minority members of the association, which is controlled by the developer, apparently long after turnover, you are not getting the benefit of your bargain, namely a condominium controlled by the association members who are not developer affiliated.

While you suggest the cost of legal fees may be prohibitive, that is, of course, subjective, considering the diminution in value of the units that you apparently are suffering, as well as the inability to have any control over the operation of your association and presumably having to pay exorbitant rental fees, which inure to the benefit of the developer.

I would reconsider the prospect of retaining an attorney able to protect minority rights of association members so as to address the wrongs that the developer and affiliates are apparently inflicting on the membership and to hopefully recoup damages from the responsible parties.

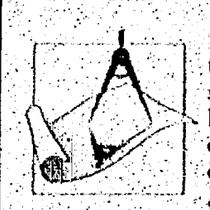
4 firms receive design awards

■ Architects don't necessarily design projects to win awards, but they're always happy to bask in the glory. Several area firms won state recognition this year.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER



Four architectural firms with a sense of vision and local ties have received 1994 American Institute of Architects Michigan Honor Awards.

Two - Kenneth Neumann/Joel Smith and Associates and Arthur F. Smith Architects, both in Southfield - designed houses. Victor Saroki & Associates in Birmingham drew plans for a club. Roy G. French Associates in Rochester conceptualized an addition to a nature center.

Ten of the 70 anonymous nominees evaulated by a committee of architectural professionals in Minnesota received accolades. Projects must have been completed within the past three years.

"They're looking for consistency, high-quality architecture, excellence in design, how it addresses needs of the owner . . . use of materials . . . thoroughness," said Arthur F. Smith, who chaired the state competition this year.

"It's a small, two bedroom house," Bonney said. "It started out as a cottage. They took it down to bare studs. It's very compact. Lots of spaces do double duty."

The entrance foyer, for instance, can be used as a dining area, Bonney said. Storage drawers were built under steps.

"We kind of pulled it all together," Bonney said. "We're proud of the level of detail and build-ins . . . little nooks."

Saroki was honored for Shelter, an alternative club in the basement of St. Andrew's Hall near Greektown.

"It was previously a club that attracted a lot of musicians, art students - a counter-culture club," Saroki said. "We thought we should develop on that theme."

The choice was ecology and planet Earth.

A meandering bar top consists of layers of inexpensive particle board alluding to strata. The DJ's booth is partially cone-shaped. A giant symbol of the sun suggests warmth and caring for the ecology.

"We used natural materials in material ways," Saroki said. "Concrete was left as raw concrete, wood as wood as opposed to stains and finishes. We tried to create a very curious atmosphere."

Arthur F. Smith designed a contemporary home with a "hard" look in Birmingham for a young bachelor that would symbolize his achievements in the steel and commodities markets.

Students hear about limits on construction

STAFF WRITER

Over-regulation and the difficulty of urban poor to own houses are major problems facing the construction industry, said James R. Irvine, president elect of the National Association of Home Builders.

Irvine, a builder and property manager in Portland, Ore., spoke to students during a recent visit to Lawrence Technological University in Southfield.

Irvine challenged architectural, engineering and trade students to become familiar with building issues and to get involved finding solutions to problems.

"Think about the concentration of poor," he said. "What does it mean for society, for the country?

"You're here because you have vision. Why don't kids in the inner city have vision? Why don't they live in a home of their own or their folk's home? We're going into a third generation or more where owning a home isn't a reality."

Irvine also touched on what he perceives as burdensome regulations. Government sometimes seems more concerned about protecting animals than making affordable housing available to people, he said.

"It's time to bring reality to problems," Irvine said. "As of 1990, we had two-thirds of the standing timber we had in 1620. We have a chance of matching that in the 21st century with good forest management.

"No question we've had a loss of wetlands over the last century," he added. "But in the last two decades, we - our industry - have increased wetlands."

Several students interviewed after Irvine's brief remarks agreed with his tone, especially as it related to the environment.

"One thing I like about the group (NAHB) is they have a handle on the issue," said Chad Grinwis, a senior architecture major and treasurer of LTU's student NAHB chapter. "I worked with an architect who built on a lake and DNR was very heavy handed."

"I think woodlands are under control," said Bill Bowerman, a senior engineering major. "It's not like it used to be. People know how to harvest, replant. Nature is really adaptive."

"I think the general public is more environmentally conscious," said Michelle Erat, an architecture senior and secretary of the LTU student chapter.

"I'm a nature lover and still see a need for balance between environmental issues and building issues," she added.

Robert R. Jones, a West Bloomfield residential builder and president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, commended the students for getting involved in a creative profession.

"I think all of us must remember that we're all students," Jones said. "Learning is a lifetime experience. I think those of us today not called students should remember that. Education is the keynote of becoming more professional."

SE Michigan housing growth leads Midwest

Single family building permits issued in southeastern Michigan through the first six months of this year soared by nearly 30 percent from the comparable period in 1993.

Builders pulled permits for 9,600 houses and detached condominium units in a 10 county area including Oakland and Wayne, according to U.S. Housing Markets, a tracking service based in Livonia.

The house was developed into a simple rectangular box sliced vertically by a steel wall that separates public from private functions on the first floor. The wall also encompasses the second/third floor master bedroom/loft house form.

An exercise room is in the basement; great room, living room and laundry on the main level; three bedrooms on the second level; and an office on the third level.

"Probably the most difficult thing was the site," Smith said. "The house couldn't be wider than 25 feet or longer than 83 feet and we were building 3,500 square feet."

Roy G. French Associates doubled the space of the nature center at Dinosaur Hill Nature Preserve in Rochester to about 2,400 square feet by adding on to a portable classroom.

"The most challenging aspect to us was they were on a very limited budget — just under $160,000," said David G. French, vice president.

"We connected to an existing trailer," he added. "It's built into part of the woods with windows from floor to ceiling and a high-pitched, cathedral ceiling. Structural trusses are all exposed. It's done with natural wood, inexpensive wood, that was stained."

Quinn Evans/Architects of Ann Arbor won two awards — law school classroom renovation at the University of Michigan and a new Ypsilanti Transit Center.

Other award winners were Nordstrom Samson Associates, Dearborn, for a new MichCon Muskegon Service Center and Eckert/Wordell Architects, Kalamazoo, for Lansing Regional Eye Care Center.

William Kessler & Associates and Smith, Hinchman & Grylls Associates, both in Detroit, received awards for projects at least 25 years old which they originally designed.

The former did public housing for the elderly in Wayne, completed in 1969, the later First Federal of Michigan headquarters in Detroit, finished in 1965.

largest among 11 metropolitan areas in the Midwest and Rust Belt surveyed by U.S. Housing Markets.

The others ranged from a 24-percent increase, St. Louis with 6,200 single-family permits, to a 4-percent decline, Minneapolis/St. Paul with 7,500 permits.

Nationally, the second-quarter increase was 14 percent with 315,000 units permitted.

"Obviously, the auto industry's resurgence and continued prosperity has had an effect in our area," said Brian Bragg, editor. "It's job formation and expectation of job security that gives everyone confidence to make a commitment to buy that house.

"Even though interest rates have run up so sharply this year . . . a point and a half or more . . . the (new housing) market is running ahead of last year. That's really remarkable," Bragg added.

The U.S. Housing Markets report picked up on some of those themes.

"One-fam surge had (Detroit) metro area among nation's biggest gainers for second quarter and first half," the publication reported.

"Surprising strength of auto industry spreads employment bonus across many sectors. Area has added about 65,000 jobs in the past four quarters, bringing total to 84,000-plus net new jobs, some 21,000 in manufacturing, in the past eight quarters.

"Sales of new single family dwelling is strongest in the $170,000 to $190,000 move-up range," the report continued. "Market for dwellings $300,000-plus weaker.

"Homebuilders bustling, great numbers of subs offering product in all price ranges," U.S. Housing Markets said of southeastern Michigan. "Some nervousness about possible overbuilding if job numbers weaken. Mortgage rate increase softened summer market.

"Best traffic and sales are in far west suburbs along I-275 and I-96 corridors — Northville, Novi, Walled Lake and Canton Township — and further west toward Ann Arbor with M-14 as stem.

Make files from Internet easy to clean up

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Before going out on the Internet browsing for free or almost-free software, let's consider two or three items of information and then download some software we will need.

Because you will periodically want to delete unwanted software, it' is important that you know where the programs "land" when you download. Fortunately, you can decide. Before you begin to transfer software from another site to your PC's hard-drive, a prompt will ask you for a directory and file name. I download all my software to one directory so I can easily find it later. And because any file may have a temporary existence on your hard-drive, why not keep it all in a "temporary" directory.

If you don't have a temporary directory, create one. Go to DOS, and at the DOS prompt type MD C:/TEMP. The command "MD" stands for Make Directory. In the future, when you download a file then at the prompt you will type C:/TEMP/FILENAME. Once off-line, you can confirm the file "landed" by going to DOS and at the DOS prompt type CD C:/TEMP and then typing DIR C:/TEMP// P. All the files in the Temporary Directory will appear a page at a time. Any file with the extension .zip (filename.zip) will be a compressed file that you downloaded.

The length of time it takes for any software file to be transferred from the host site to your PC will depend on the speed of your modem. If you have a 2,400-baud modem, the transfer might take anywhere from 20-45 minutes depending on the size of the file. A 9,600, 14.4 or faster modem will shorten the length of time for the transfer. If you do not have a dedicated phone line but split off a line from your voice phone line, then politely ask other household members to stay off the phone until the transfer is complete. A download aborted by someone picking up the receiver in another room can be aggravating.

When the transfer is complete, and your software is safely sitting in your Temporary Directory, you will then want to go off-line and unzip your software. The compression software, PKUNZIP, is leisurely laying around your hard-drive waiting for the moment you need it. All you have to do is go to DOS, and at the DOS prompt type PKUNZIP.EXE and hit RETURN. Text about the software will scroll by and the DOS prompt reappears. You have just activated your unzipper. Now simply indicate where your zipped file is and give the command to unzip. Type, PKUNZIP C:/TEMP/FILENAME.ZIP and hit return.

The decompression process will begin and you can sit back and watch as each element of the program "explodes" unto your hard-drive. Whenever PKUNZIP tells me that any particular element already exists and do I want to over-write, I answer yes.

Now you can ask for a directory of the new software you just unzipped to search for the executable file that you can use to boot-up your new program. Call for a directory, one page at a time, of your new software by typing DIR C:/TEMP/FILENAME/ P. Scan the screen for a file element ending with the extension .exe. If one can't be found, press on the space bar so the directory presents you with a new screenful. Then at the DOS prompt, enter the executable file name and hit RETUPN and the new software boots up.

If you don't have compression software, we will now go to O&E On-Line to download one. As mentioned in the last column, you also will want a virus detector on your hard-drive and so we also will download a virus scanner.

First let's get an unzipper. The recommended version is PKz204.g. This utility is not compressed and so you don't need compression software for the transfer. Go to the Main Menu, type P for Programs and then type F for Files. Go to choice 3, MS-DOS, then select choice 4, compression utilities, and find pkz204g.

To download, select choice 1 for Zmodem (unless you called in from a Merit site and then use Kermit). Type in file name and hit RETURN. You may also have to press Page Down key and select Zmodem (or Kermit) a second time. At 2400-baud, it will take 14½ minutes to transfer this file.

MAC people can take a similer route but choose MAC instead and then select downline as your compression software.

Now let's go get a virus detector. Do the same thing as above but after entering the MS-DOS area go instead to choice 5, virus software, and look for vsheild108.zip. Another good choice, a two-piece scan and fix package, is scanv113.zip and clean113.zip. Make your choice and download (about 18 minutes at 2400-baud). Then follow the instructions in this column to unzip the file because the virus software will be compressed.

Next week we will look at the Archie search tool and the File Transfer Protocol (FTP)tool to access software on the Internet itself.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by e-mail with emory@oeonline.com, at voice mail at 953-2047 then dial 1910, or fax number 593-2111. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial (313)591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" and at "Key:" prompt type GL6NY2.

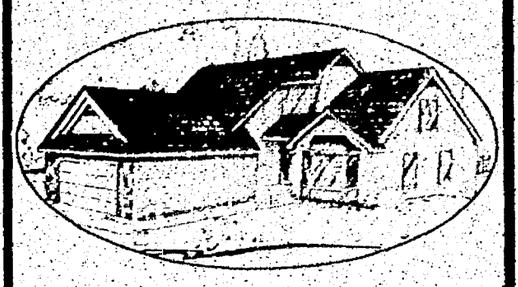
MAKE ARBOR PLACE YOUR PLACE



Our detached condo models are selling before we can finish them, and our lots, before we can build on them.

We are not surprised, with Plymouth's finest location and the excellent craftsmanship of one of Michigan's Premier Home Builders. Arbor Place is a natural choice, from the moment you enter your two story foyer, with its grand staircase and open balconies, you will feel at home.

With individual floor plans available with 1st floor master suites, and luxuries, that we call standard. Our Grand Opening could be our final close-out.

N13 sites are now available. Some homes featuring walkout lower levels, and all are nestled within a lavishly landscaped, private community.

■ HOSPITAL AWARDS

HealthNews, a publication of Sinai Hospital Corporate Communications and Marketing, has received kudos from the local chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators and Health Care Marketing magazine.

Additionally, Sinai earned recognition from IABC for its women's services publication and from the Public Relations Society of America for exceptional work promoting Sinai's marketing and outreach activities.

Sinai Hospital has facilities in Bingham Farms, West Bloomfield, Farmington Hills, Livonia and Southfield.

■ FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Gordon R. DeClercq, a financial consultant, stockbroker and insurance agent, has opened a business, VESnet Associates, at 6632 Telegraph, Suite 241, Bloomfield Hills.

■ ARCHITECTURAL FIRM

Gregory G. Aerts, AIA, has formed a new architectural firm, Gregory Aerts and Associates, at 1512 Washington, Birmingham.

Aerts received master's and bachelor's degrees from the University of Michigan. He had worked with Victor Saroki and Associates, Birmingham, the past seven years.

■ NEW OWNERS

Robert Bush of Birmingham and Dick Solon of Ada have purchased Health by Design, a full-service business and medical interiors company, headquartered in Birmingham.

■ BARTON MALOW HONORED

Barton Malow Co. based in Southfield recently was named 1994 Coprporation of the Year-Construction Sector by the Michigan Minority Business Development Council.

The company was cited for demonstrating a meaningful contribution to the growth and development of minority business in the community.

This past year, Barton Malow established minority mentoring agreements with Dumas Concepts and the Williams Corp., two minority construction firms in Detroit. The goal is to train and support their efforts to operate as independent firms capable of successfully competing in the business arena.

■ PLACEMENT ASSISTANCE

Jewish Vocational Service in Southfield has been awarded a grant of $47,300 from the Michigan Jobs Commission to provide job readiness, placement assistance and support services to displaced homemakers.

"This program is designed to help individuals who have not been active in the labor market attain the skills and self-confidence necessary to compete in today's workplace," said Doug Rothwell, CEO of the jobs commission.

■ INTERPRETIVE CENTER

Luckenbach/Ziegelman and Partners in Birmingham, in association with Pollack Design Associates of Ann Arbor, has been selected by the University of Michigan-Dearborn to design an Environmental Interpretive Center for a study area along the Rouge River.

The 12,000-square-foot facility will attempt to stimulate visitors toward engaging rather than passive spectator experiences in the natural world.

■ FINDLAY LICENSES

Findlay Industries, with facilities in Troy, has licensed its technology for molded headliners to Australian automotive supplier Tontine Industries.

The agreement marks the first time Findlay has authorized others to use its product or process technology.

■ SOLOMON AWARDS

RS&A produced award-winning spots for Channel 56, Franklin Bank, Freddy's and Worrells.

"Last year, we took home five MABs," said Neil Master, creative director for RS&A. "This year, winning six reflects a consistency in our creative department's approach to always produce the highest quality work on every project that comes through our door.

■ AGENCY MOVES

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You, my loved One, in your Perpetual Glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted. Thanks, St. Jude, for favors received. LW
