Clues sought in shooting death

Police have no clues in their investigation of the murder of an Inkster man whose body was dumped on the county Eloise property. Detectives only have a body and missing car and no motive in the slaying.

STAFF WRITER

An Inkster man was found shot to death late Wednesday near an abandoned building on the old Eloise state hospital property, northeast of Michigan Avenue and Merriman Road in Westland, police said.

William Horace Ford, 33, was shot in the back and was found at 11:30 p.m. by four young adults who were driving through the property, Westland police Sgt. Tom Kubitskey said.

Police have no suspects in the shotgun slaying, and they don't know why Ford was killed.

"There's no motive at this point," Kubitskey said.

Ford's body was found near the old Building N at the long-closed state hospital, Westland police Lt. Al George said.

"Some kids were driving through the property and saw the body lying in a roadway," he said.

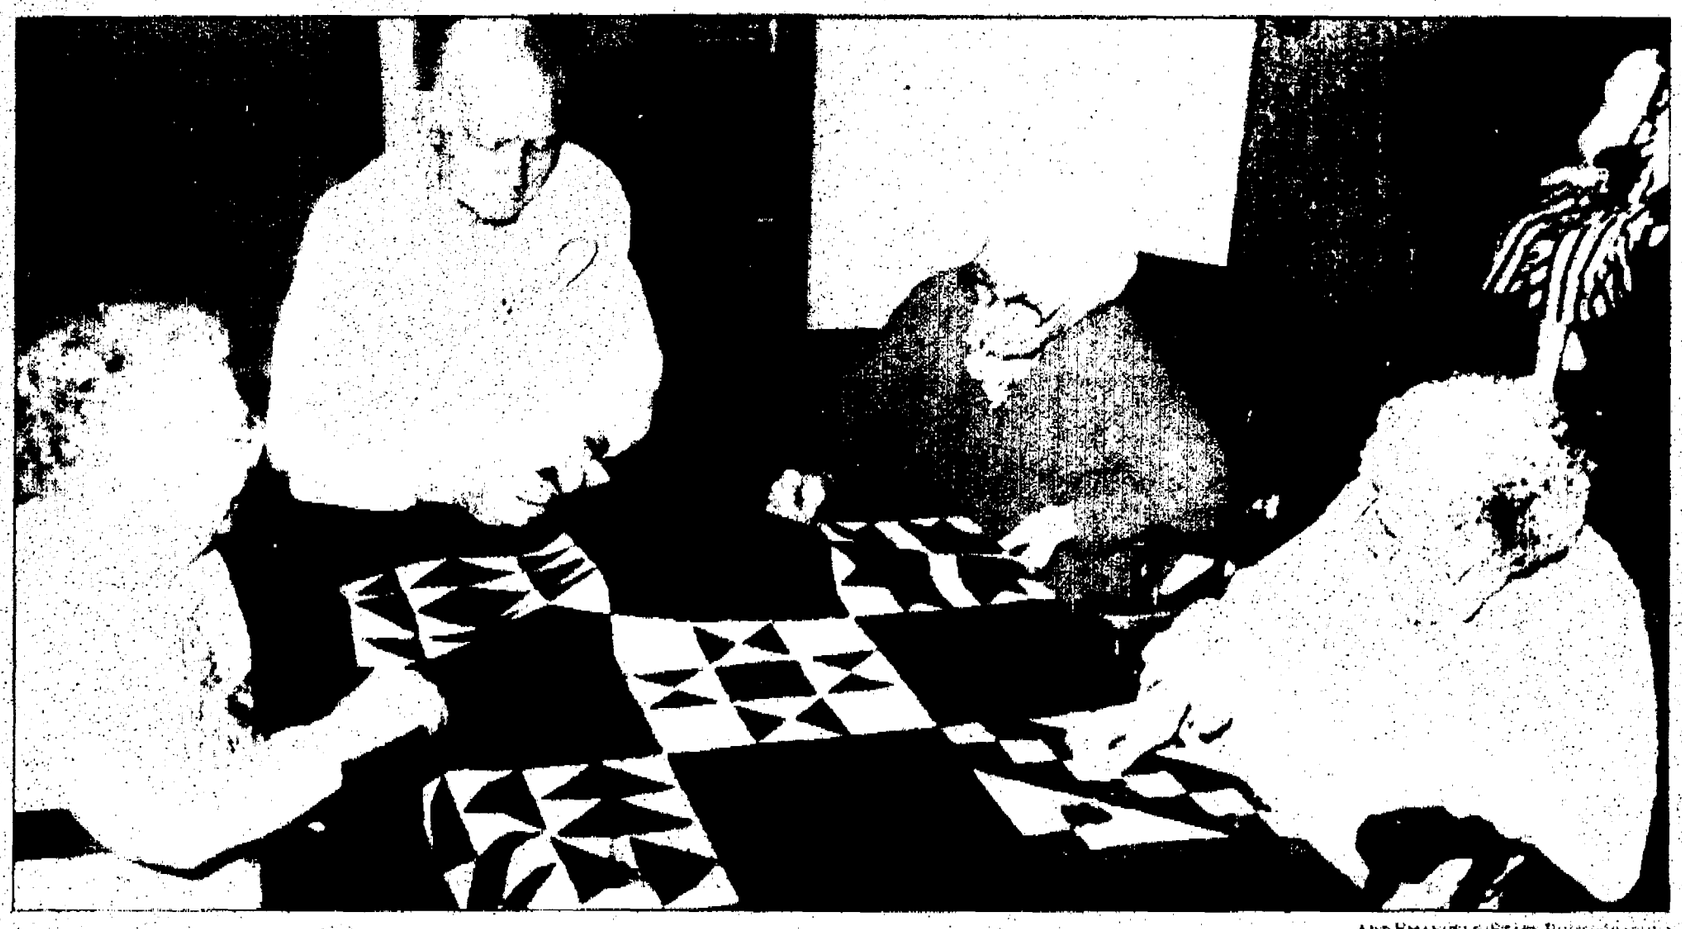

It is believed that Ford had been dead for one to two hours when his body was found, Kubitskey said. The victim was seen at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at a Burger King restaurant on Michigan Avenue in Wayne, Kubitskey said.

Ford had been driving in his car, which was described by Kubitskey as a gray 1980 Eldorado with a black vinyl top.

Police haven't found Ford's car, and they have released the license plate number in hopes of receiving tips that could lead them to the vehicle. The number is HYS-562, Kubitskey said.

The investigation is continuing, and anyone with information is being asked to contact Westland police, 722-9600.

Nursing home residents enjoy quilting

The popular image of a nursing home has residents sitting around with blank looks on their faces staring at the TV or the window overlooking a parking lot or courtyard.

But at Hope Nursing Care Center, on Cherry Hill near John Hix, Westland, one group of residents is active in the Quilting Club, formed about 1½ years ago.

They work with the help of volunteers. The residents are described as an energetic group which has completed many projects.

The club meets every Monday night in the nursing home's activities room.

Among the projects completed recently were pillows, individual wall hangings, a Christmas wall hanging for the activities room and ornamental pieced hearts for the nursing home's annual bazaar.

They recently completed a spring wall hanging to be displayed at the facility and are now piecing together leaf blocks for an autumn wall hanging.

Elderly man brutally beaten, robbed

A Westland man is charged with trying to kill an elderly Westland man who was beaten in the head with a metal car part, robbed of nearly $700 and left to die Wednesday in his blood-spattered kitchen, police said.

The 78-year-old victim was recovering Friday afternoon at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne as the man accused of the attack, James Kenneth Kempainen, 28, was arraigned before 18th District Judge Gail McKnight on multiple felony charges.

Kempainen, an unemployed construction worker, was arraigned on charges of assault with intent to murder, armed robbery, assault with intent to commit armed robbery, and second-degree home invasion. A not guilty plea was entered for him in court.

Kempainen, jailed in lieu of a $100,000 cash bond, could face life in prison if convicted. He is scheduled to return to court Thursday for a preliminary hearing that will determine whether he should stand trial.

The victim was introduced to Kempainen by a mutual acquaintance about two weeks before the 9 p.m. Wednesday attack occurred, Westland police Sgt. Dan Harvey said. The victim had paid Kempainen $30 to do some car transmission repairs, Harvey said.

MEAP scores up, but district can do better

BY MARIE CHESTNEY

Livonia Public Schools' students have stepped up to the task and improved their Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) scores. But students still can do better, said Superintendent Ken Watson.

"Overall, we're pleased that our schools as well as schools in the tri-county area are improving," Watson said. "But we won't be satisfied until we have reached the degree of improvement commensurate with our potential."

The MEAP tests are given to public school students in early fall, and the initial results have just been released by districts. Administrators must wait until January to get state-wide averages to determine how their district compares to districts around the state.

The district includes the northern section of Westland.

The scores will be analyzed and discussed once the state averages are known, Watson said.

"There's a big gain in our fourth-grade math, but we want to see how other districts did. Why did it go up? Was it the nature of the items selected?"

At a recent study session of the board of education, trustee Ken Timmons criticized Livonia's scores.

"When we compare with other fairly affluent districts, we don't compare

'Santa' Reaves is hospitalized

Gene "Santa" Reaves, the long-time department-store Santa and do-gooder, is spending this Christmas season in Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

Reaves, 92, was admitted to the hospital Wednesday, suffering from an undisclosed ailment.

"I'm feeling fair, better than I have been," said Reaves, when reached by phone Friday afternoon.

Get well wishes can be mailed to him at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, Room 217, 6245 N. Inkster, Garden City 48135.

The Westland resident began his career portraying Santa in Depression-era 1935 at the old downtown Detroit J.L. Hudson department store.

He recalled that on the first day on the job, the day after Thanksgiving, thousands of children waited in a line that stretched through the store's toy department.

Of that first job, he said: "I didn't know what it would be like. I was a little nervous and a little afraid of the children. You don't know what to say to the children at first, but it starts coming to you."

A previous store St. Nick taught Reaves the rules: Play no favorites among kids, and no alcohol.

Reaves had the Santa job each November and December for 10 years. A slim man with dark hair in those days, Reaves wore a heavy, cotton-stuffed vest to provide the girth that most children believe the real Santa has.

He gave up the Hudson's job after 10 years, but was soon working at the Grinnell Brothers store downtown. He also free-lanced, working at Farmington Plaza and Pontiac parades.

His late wife, Madeline, wasn't enthused about the work because he often caught colds from kids.

Reaves was an inspector with the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

He began to bring goodwill to needy children. At 83, he was bringing toys to children at the old Plymouth Center for Human Development and Westland's Dorsey Community Center and Livonia's Bryant Center.

He raised money for his Christmas Fund, which helped pay for gifts to needy youngsters.

In 1988, Westland proclaimed April 13 as Gene "Santa" Reaves Day. President Ronald Reagan sent greetings via telegram.

"Knowing of caring and generous Americans like you is an inspiration," Reagan wrote.

Reaves no doubt added the president's signature to his large autograph book. He had what he claimed to be the world's largest autograph book.

He was also known for his distinctive van or station wagon that was covered with bumper stickers.

His Willow Creek apartment was covered with mementos, news stories and artifacts from his years in public life.

School recall drive to resume soon

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

New recall petitions seeking to oust the Wayne-Westland school board are expected to be submitted to the Wayne County Elections Commission in January, an organizer said Thursday.

The commission has to approve the petition wording before recall supporters can legitimately circulate the petitions for signatures. The recall group wants to oust the school board for slashing its budget by eliminating transportation for junior and senior high students in October.

Recall organizers lost two rounds in November, when elections officials twice rejected petition proposals. The commission said the language wasn't clear.

Following their last defeat on Nov. 30, recall organizers decided to wait until January to resubmit petitions for a third time, said Linda Cavaletto, a recall group member. The group didn't want to interfere with the holiday season, she said.

In a new approach, the group plans to submit 15 to 20 proposed petitions for each board member, Cavaletto said. Organizers hope at least one petition for each board member will be approved.

"Right now that's our plan," Cavaletto said.

Two of the seven board members, Laurel Raisanen and Vicki Welty, cannot be recalled after Jan. 1 because they will be in the final six months of their four-year terms. Both have said they don't expect to seek re-election.

Other board members could be subject to recall, including Mathew McCusker, Francis "Bud" Winter, Patricia Brown, Debra Fowlkes and Richard LeBlanc.

Recall supporters plan to submit new petitions in January amid hopes that the language will be approved in time to start seeking signatures in February.

By starting a petition drive in February, the recall groups hopes to collect the necessary signatures by early May. If the group succeeds, the goal is to try to get a recall election scheduled at the same time of the regular school board election on June 12.

"We're trying to save the district money," Cavaletto said.

Recall organizers have received some criticism for seeking a special election that would cost an estimated $10,000 to $12,000.

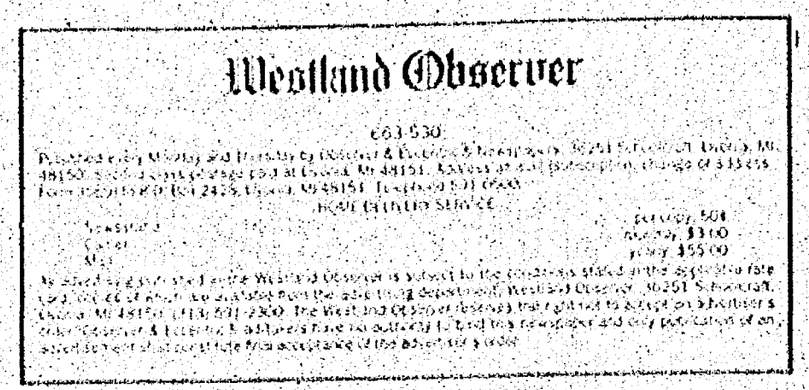

"It's a legitimate complaint," Cavaletto said. "I understand it."

If a June 12 recall proved successful, another election would still have to be held to replace any board members who are ousted. Until then, interim appointments would be made.

The governor would make the interim appointments if a majority of board members were ousted, according to the county elections office. If a majority survived the recall, the board would make the interim appointments, the elections office said.

Once the group begins circulating petitions, it will have a 90-day period to obtain signatures from 25 percent of school district residents who voted in the last gubernatorial election.

That would amount to thousands of signatures in Westland, alone, where 24,091 voters went to the polls on Nov. 8. Organizers also would need signatures from other communities served by the school district, including all of Wayne and parts of Inkster, Canton Township and Romulus.

Burger Choir performs for shoppers at malls

It wasn't the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, but for teachers and parents, the singers were just as talented.

The reason is that the group singing at area shopping centers this month is the Burger Center Choir, made up of 45 members of students at the school for autistic children and young adults.

The county-wide program is run by the Garden City Public Schools.

Formed in 1988, the choir recently performed at Westland Center and Wonderland Mall as well as the Northwest Airlines terminal at Metro Airport.

Choir director Stan Bialach said the singers will perform at 12:30 p.m., Friday, for the first time with the combined Garden City High School choirs.

Since organized six years ago, the number of the Burger Choir appearnces increases each year, Bialach said.

He added that the members devote six to seven hours a week for six weeks on their own time preparing for their holiday performances.

Consultant lists skills for next school superintendent

Skills in communications, leadership and interpersonal relations are the three most wanted traits school employees and community leaders want in the next Wayne-Westland school superintendent.

That was how a school superintendent search consultant summed up a full day of separate meetings with employees and residents.

The consultant, Kara Funk, director of superintendent search services for the Michigan Association of School Boards, said the next step is to prepare a written report for the school board this month, meet with the board Monday, Jan. 9, to discuss the report, review a draft of a brochure to be provided applicants, approve the publication and arrange a timetable for the subsequent activities involved in the search.

The board picked MASB as its consultant two months ago to help it find a successor for Superintendent Larry Thomas, who announced Aug. 22 that he would resign when his contract expires June 30, or sooner if he finds another position.

Funk said that a brochure soliciting applicants and advertising in a national education publication would be done in mid-January with the probable deadline for applicants set for early March.

In meeting with all levels of employees as well as residents Thursday, Funk drafted "selection criteria" for them to react to as well as picking one of five as their first choice.

The list of criteria included:

■ An experienced, strong executive, competent and creative in the development, accountability and management of financial, human and physical resources.

■ An organizational leader who has demonstrated effectiveness in building leadership and shared decision-making teams among staff and community groups with a diversity of interests and backgrounds.

■ An accessible and visible administrator who is open to the views of others, builds consensus, delegates responsibility and authority and demonstrates the capacity to work collaboratively with public and private agencies.

■ Strong interpersonal skills with exceptional abilities in listening, verbal and written communication.

■ A person of integrity who generates trust and confidence and models high standards of openness, fairness and commitment to quality education for all students.

Funk's list of criteria concluded with a requirement that the new superintendent move into the school district.

That was a problem when Thomas was hired by the board in May 1992, because he lived in the Livonia school district portion of Westland, just several blocks north of the Wayne-Westland boundary.

Welty passed over for post

Wayne-Westland school board member Vicki Welty has been passed over for a Wayne City Council appointment, meaning there will be no vacancy on the seven-member school board.

Wayne council members selected Pam Dobrowolski for the seat formerly held by Thomas Kelly, who stepped down after being elected in November to the 17th District state House seat.

Welty was among several applicants for the council vacancy. Even before she submitted her name for consideration, she had said she is almost certain that she won't be seeking re-election to the school board.

Her four-year term is set to expire June 30.

Welty was elected to the school board in June of 1991. She was the top vote-getter.

ly man returned home from grocery shopping Wednesday. He didn't lock his door as he was putting away his groceries, Harvey said.

When the elderly man sat down at the kitchen table, he noticed that Kempainen had entered his house uninvited, Harvey said. The house is located in the 35100 block of June Street, near Wayne Road and Palmer, Harvey said.

Kempainen, saying he was walking in the neighborhood and decided to stop in, asked to use a bathroom near the kitchen, Harvey said. But the suspect emerged with a metal car transmission part that he used to beat the elderly man in the head, Harvey said.

The victim was hit seven times on the head, and he also suffered three broken ribs, a cut on his nose and a cut near his right eye, Harvey said. He was robbed of $650 to $700, and his 1982 Oldsmobile is also missing, the sergeant said.

"He was left for dead. He was lying on the floor bleeding," Harvey told McKnight.

The elderly man was unconscious for an hour, but he regained consciousness and phoned 9-1-1 for help, Harvey said. The victim was covered with blood, and his kitchen was spattered with blood when police arrived.

"Blood was all over the refrigerator, the stove, the floor. There was quite a bit of blood," Harvey told McKnight.

Based on the man's statements, police went to Kempainen's residence on Belding Court in Westland to question him, Harvey said. Police noticed that Kempainen's pants and socks were stained with blood, and he was arrested, the sergeant said.

Kempainen has denied being at the elderly man's house. Blood samples from the suspect's clothing are in the process of being tested along with the victim's blood, Harvey said.

In court Friday, Kempainen asked for a court-appointed attorney after indicating that he has no job and no money.

McKnight set the $100,000 bond after noting that Kempainen posed a danger to the community.

The suspect has a prior criminal record. He was convicted of a weapons offense in 1986.

Council to act on energy plan

The Westland City Council is scheduled to act tonight on a proposal to convert a regional public incinerator into a waste-to-energy facility in which a private company would sell the burned rubbish as power to Detroit Edison.

The proposal must be approved by all five cities in the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority — Westland, Garden City, Dearborn Heights, Inkster and Wayne.

The council's expected action is part of a scheduled business meeting which will start at 7 p.m. in City Hall, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh.

The council held an informal study session last Monday night, Dec. 12, to hear representatives of the authority and the group hoping to convert the incinerator.

The authority was formed 32 years ago to build an incinerator, on Inkster Road near Annapolis, Dearborn Heights, as an alternative to dumping rubbish in land fills.

The authority's board of directors, which includes officials of all five member communities, approved the proposal last week.

An analysis of the proposal by the auditing firm of Plante & Moran last week also supported the financial data of the plan submitted earlier this year by Central Wayne Energy Recovery, a limited partnership with financial backing from Baltimore Gas & Electric.

The study, said a spokesman for Central Wayne Energy Recovery, said the Plante & Moran analysis confirmed an earlier study by the incinerator authority.

The Plante & Moran study concluded that the proposal for a 35-year disposal contract is economically more favorable than the base bid offered by BFI, Inc., a competing landfill proposal involving shutting down the incinerator and burying the authority's solid waste.

The waste-to-energy project is a unique public-private partnership, the spokesman said.

Central Wayne Energy Recover consists of affiliates of Constellation Energy, Inc., a subsidiary of Baltimore Gas & Electric, a 175-year-old utility company headquartered in Baltimore, Md.

Tom Barnett, manager of the energy recovery project, said the Plante & Moran study, and subsequent clarifications of relevant data, are an independent verification of the proposal, which has been under development for more than four years.

During that time, the energy recovery project was viewed favored by the CWCSA as the most economical and environmentally sound long-term plan for solid waste disposal.

"Clearly, this project is the most beneficial for the participating communities," Bluett said. "This project represents a long-term commitment on the part of Central Wayne Energy Recovery and we are looking forward to a long and mutually beneficial relationship with the Authority."

The project will include an estimated $14 million in state-of-the-art air pollution control costs paid by the partnership, costs which otherwise would be paid by the participating communities. Thenew equipment will include an acid-gas scrubber and a fabric filter baghouse to remove particulates.

The financing for the project, estimated at nearly $70 million, will be paid for by the partnership, primarily with revenues generated by the sale of electricity. Financing for the project will be arranged by the partnership and will not be the responsibility of the five participating cities.

well at all," Timmons said. "But even if there is no comparisons made with other districts, I still wouldn't be happy with them. We have improved. But we're capable of much better."

On MEAP, public school students in the fourth, seventh and 10th grades are tested in math and reading. Students in the fifth, eighth and 11th grades are tested in science.

The tests have became a report card for how well districts are educating Michigan youngsters.

District students improved their scores in six of the nine categories tested. Scores were only slightly lower in the three which fell, eighth and 11th grade science and 10th grade reading.

8 years service equals lifetime health insurance

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

At his last meeting as a Wayne County commissioner, Thursday, Dec. 15, Bryan Amann had the rules changed so he can continue to receive health insurance after he leaves the board Dec. 31.

Amann, a Wayne Democrat, told the commission that the minimum age requirement of 45 years for receiving county health insurance violates federal law. The commission promptly voted 9-6 to remove the age requirement.

The policy in question was put in place in the mid-1980s, before federal age discrimination laws were enacted. It says that elected officials, department heads and their chief deputies may leave county government after a minimum of eight years service and continue to get health insurance for themselves and their families paid for by county taxpayers. (In Amann's case, his eight years is divided between the commission and two previous jobs with county executive Edward McNamara and former clerk James Killeen.)

However, there was a requirement that the departing officials be at least 45 years of age to get the insurance. Amann is 37. He told the commission that the county could be sued for age discrimination if the age requirement wasn't dropped.

Amann said he might not need the insurance, but the law says he's entitled to it. It's good that the commission voted to change the law, he said, because "otherwise I had to sue them."

Six commissioners opposed Amann's request, including Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford Township and Livonia east of Middlebelt. Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City, voted in favor of Amann's request.

The insurance package is not exactly lucrative, lacking dental and optical coverage as it does, but some commissioners oppose it being given to officials for working only eight years for the county.

McCotter, who has been a commissioner for two years, said he wouldn't take such a deal if it was available, and he probably won't be a commissioner for eight years anyway.

He voted against Amann's request because it will increase Wayne County's expenses. "I was disappointed that it came up when it did because we were doing the right thing with the budget," he said, alluding to the commission's effort to cut money from its own office budget, "We just shot ourselves in the foot again."

Plawecki said she voted against Amann's request because she didn't want her constituents to think that she was only interesting in getting such a deal for herself.

State officials get an even better deal than county officials do. They only need five years seniority before they can leave "public service" with a full package of health insurance.

In Oakland County government all employees are treated the same when it comes to insurance. To retire with health insurance for the whole family, an employee must work 25 years for Oakland County. This system applies to everyone from Executive Brooks Patterson to the janitors, said personnel director Vince Luzi.

Beard did not return the Observer's phone calls by press time.

Amann gets emotional in farewell speech

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Bryan Amann took himself by surprise last week while making his farewell address to the Wayne County Commission.

As Amann began his speech, he also began to cry. He continued to get choked up, blow his nose and wipe away tears throughout the speech.

A Wayne Democrat, Amann represents the largest county commission district, which includes Canton Township. He did not run for re-election this year. His last official day as a county commissioner is Dec. 31.

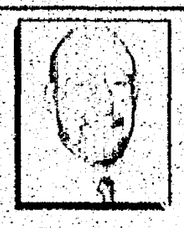

In his speech, Amann was sure to thank the inconspicuous people as well as the conspicuous. He praised aides Tom Kelly and Rob Rowe, but reserved special praise for secretary Laura Willey. "Without her, I, Tom and Rob would have looked like fools around here," he said.

On Dave Katz, the chief of staff for County Executive Edward McNamara, Amann said, "He has had a good compass and a lot of integrity. David will give you a straight answer."

On deputy executive Michael Duggan, with whom Amann has occasionally clashed, he said, "To keep a friend sometimes you have to close both eyes, and Mike has done that."

Other commissioners praised Amann.

Commissioner Arthur Blackwell, D-Highland Park, said, "I know Bryan Amann will be back in politics. All of us in Wayne County should get behind the Bryan Amanns of the world."

SERVICE WITH A SMILE

By adhering to a program of oral health maintenance at home and regular office visits, the public can generally expect to prevent common problems with its teeth. In fact, the majority of younger patients who brush and floss daily and receive dental sealants, can expect to be cavity-free through their adolescence. Older patients can avert gum disease (their primary concern) by addressing plaque buildup with office cleanings. When tooth loss, breakage, or misalignment does occur, there are a variety of advanced restoration and replacement techniques available that render the synthetic versions virtually indistinguishable from natural teeth. We invite you to make use of our column in order to make better choices about your oral health.

The entire staff of LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES is pleased to welcome you to this column. Whether you are in need of dentures, crowns, cosmetic dentistry, or any other dental service, we're here to provide you with comprehensive, gentle dental care — offering you the latest techniques to give you a great appearance. Charter schools debate reving up in Lansing

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Even as the Michigan Legislature patched up its charter-school law, the debate heated up over whether the movement is a religious stalking-horse for "parochiaid."

Lawmakers last week voted money for eight already chartered schools and amended the law to provide for supervision by the State Board of Education.

Ingham Circuit Judge William Collette had declared charter schools unconstitutional because they were too free from state supervision. The state is appealing Collette's ruling, but that will take months. Meanwhile, lawmakers acted to save the existing system adopted as part of the Proposal A school reform package.

What's 'public'?

Paul DeWeese, the Lansing physician who is promoting charter schools through two organizations, said "public" schools need not necessarily be owned by the government or be an exclusive governmental franchise.

"They are accessible to all. The student chooses the school. They are publicly funded. They are publicly accountable — professional, qualified teachers, an accredited school with a core curriculum," DeWeese told a meeting of the Society of Professional Journalists in Dearborn. "Nothing requires them to be a government-owned, government-controlled monopoly."

There is nothing to "automatically exclude religious schools" from his definition of "public school," he said, adding that qualified religious schools are entitled to "a fair investment of public education dollars in every child." DeWeese said excluding qualified religious schools from state aid amounted to discrimination against them.

DeWeese in 1990 founded Teach Michigan, which advocates amending the Michigan Constitution's prohibition against "parochiaid" and vouchers for non-public schools.

That group has started the Michigan Center for Charter Schools, which promotes the new charter law. It is headed by Barbara Barrett, whose husband is president of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce.

Raid on taxes

DeWeese was rebutted by a panel of teachers, unionists and a civil libertarian.

"If someone wants a parochial education, they should pay," said Rollie Hopgood, a Michigan Federation of Teachers official and former State Board of Education member. "What if we wanted to hire our own private guards to stand on the steps? Would we ask the public to pay for it?"

Charter schools are "a thinly disguised effort to divert public funds to private education," said Howard Simon, of the American Civil Liberties Union Michigan chapter.

Simon said DeWeese used "intriguing rhetoric" in arguing that the ban on parochiaid amounts to denying "parental choice" and is "discrimination based on religion." DeWeese said nothing when Simon predicted DeWeese would begin a petition drive to remove the constitutional ban on aid to religious schools.

Julius Maddox, president of the Michigan Education Association, agreed with Simon that the push for charter schools comes from those who "want to divert public money to private and parochial schools." Maddox recalled that after the U.S. Supreme Court's desegregation ruling of 1954, southern states funded all-white "academies" under the guise of "giving parents a choice."

Charter schools may be organized by public education entities for specialized purposes — like teaching science or, in the case of Casa Maria in Detroit, dealing with delinquents.

Backers like DeWeese say charter schools should "innovate" and be "free from unproductive and restrictive rules." On this point, the panelists clashed.

DeWeese was unable to cite specific examples of "unproductive and restrictive rules" other than "three inches of paperwork."

The teachers' leaders said all schools, not just charter schools, should be free from too many rules. Maddox of the MEA criticized Gov. John Engler's demand for time-consuming paperwork for his "Governor's Report Card" on schools. Maddox said Engler asked about teachers' salaries but not about attendance and parental involvement.

2-day battle

The House of Representatives fou[illegible] scenes, for two days before adopting the Senate's bills to patch up the charter laws.

In the House Education Committee, one Republican and all Democrats shot down an effort by Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, to extend charter school coverage to the Noah Webster Academy, the Ionia-based home-school network with religious overtones.

All area representatives who were present voted for the funding bill, which passed 87-5.

On the regulatory bill, which won 67-28 approval, here is how area representatives voted:

YES — Lyn Bankes, R-Redford; Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth; and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

NO — Justine Barns, D-Westland.

ABSENT — William Keith, D-Garden City; and Richard Young, D-Dearborn Heights.

Airport parking deck cuts rates for holidays

As the parking deck reconstruction project at Metro Airport continues, Wayne County is reducing the daily-rate long-term parking from $9 to $6 for those who enter between now and Jan. 2.

In addition, the airport's parking lot management company, APCOA, will accept coupons from off-airport parking lots until Jan 2.

Two days before Thanksgiving, Wayne County opened up a new section in the southern half of the deck, providing more than 1,700 new parking spaces.

The pedestrian bridge from the deck to the Smith Terminal, while still under construction, is open to the public.

Not all of the new deck's features are fully operational. For instance, the moving walkways which feed the pedestrian bridges, and the bridge to the hotel, are still under construction.

When the project is complete, the new deck will provide about 7,000 structured parking spaces.

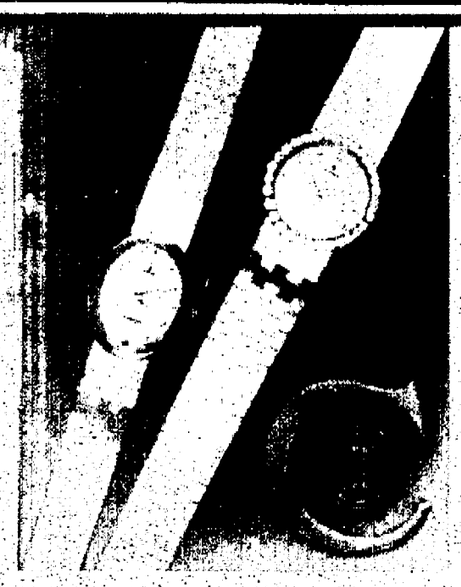

Other features will include a fly-over ramp from upper Rogell Drive and an express exit ramp accessible from every level.

Information on Metro's parking lots is available around the clock by calling the parking hot line at (800) 642-1978.

Motorists approaching Metro can tune their car radio to 920 AM within three or four miles of the airport to receive updates.

Surgical Breakthroughs
Family Reunion.

This morning she was in surgery. Tonight, she's back home with her family. Later this week she'll return to work. And to think that just a few years ago, this same procedure would have meant many days in the hospital and weeks of recovery. Not a "family reunion" the same day.
New techniques like laser and laparoscopic surgery are revolutionizing gallbladder and appendix removal, laser prostatectomy, gynecological procedures and more. The result is less pain and faster recuperation for the patient.
Surgeons at St. Mary Hospital have taken the lead in offering these breakthroughs to our patients. They know how important it is to have the strengths and staffing of a full-service hospital available, should special needs arise. And they understand that the sooner a family member can return home and to work, the better it is for that family's economic and emotional health.
If being reunited with your family the same day you have surgery appeals to you, call us. We'll tell you more about laparoscopy and laser surgery.

SHOPPING CENTERED

This gift list will benefit charities

Last-minute shoppers take heart. Although it's getting close to the eleventh hour, your favorite shops still brim with wonderful gift ideas. Why not give something that benefits the recipient's preferred charity? These are the gifts that "keep on giving," and I think you'll discover some unique and imaginative goodies in the following list.

Budding artists and animators will marvel at the sculptures they can create with Claymation Clay Fun Packs ($22). This is the same product used to sculpt the now-famous California Raisins. The one-pound-fun pack includes four colors of clay, a storage box, a workmat and two Claymation Clay tools. Parents Choice presented their coveted award to Will Vinton's "pound of imagination" this year and your child can form his own wacky characters while benefitting needy children around the world. A percentage of profits from all Claymation Clay products goes to children's charities. See the entire line at The Print Gallery, 29203 Northwestern Hwy., Southfield.

For a newlywed couple or a single friend in her first home, consider giving a highly collectible Christopher Radko ornament. Radko's old fashioned, Eastern European, individually blown, glass ornament designs are coveted by thousands. An enthusiastic mob gathered at Neiman Marcus recently to have him sign their selections. Many carried baskets full of delicate angels, nursery rhyme characters and merry Santas.

This year Radko introduced new charity ornaments; Frosty Cares to benefit AIDS organizations; A Gifted Santa to benefit pediatric cancer research and treatment; and Rainy Day Friend, a Paddington bear ornament, to help pediatric AIDS research ($25-$27). These are also available at La Belle Provence in Birmingham, The Village Barn in Franklin, and Plain and Fancy in Rochester.

Roz & Sherm's expanded gift department is filled with heart-warming ideas. Included in the store's "boutique corner" are beeswax tapers from "A Candle in the Window," an agency that helps the homeless ($3/$12); bath products packaged in palm leaves, coconut shells and bamboo by Forest Essentials, a company that dedicates part of its proceeds to rain forest preservation ($10-$23); tribal collection dolls by Chicago artist Julie Nudd whose folk art creations are actually assembled in handicap workshops ($52-$92); and Gilda's Club pins ($10), hats ($10) and tees ($15).

You write your check directly to Gilda's Club which provides social and emotional support to cancer patients. Roz & Sherm is also donating all of its gift wrap proceeds to the Northwest Child Rescue. Roz & Sherm is in Bloomfield Plaza, Maple at Telegraph.

Spa special

I'm sure you know someone who would deeply appreciate a day at the spa. When you purchase one of Mira Linder's Christmas Spa Packages, she will donate $100 in skin care products and cosmetics to The Haven, Oakland County's comprehensive shelter/counseling program for survivors of domestic violence. The spa packages are value priced from $ to $. Call (810) 350-5810 for details. The Mira Linder Spa in the City is located in Applegate Square, Southfield. The "Creative Table" a remarkable collection of art by renowned book illustrators brought to life by Michael Rosen, poet of grace and thanksgiving. It is story of children and families who share a feast that is generous in spirit. The 12-foot long "book banquet" is available at Halfway Down the Stairs in Rochester and area Borders Books ($18.95). All proceeds and share Our Strength, a leading hunger relief organization.

Echoing Rosen's timeless invitation befitting the season: "So if you're hungry, join us here, pull up another chair. We'll all scoot over, make more room; there's always room to spare.

Matching kids' wear means it's time for holiday photos

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Smile. Say Cheese. Watch the Birdie.

It's that time of year again when moms and dads go nuts trying to capture their children's bewitching smiles on film for evermore.

To make sure her holiday pictures were extra special, Vicki Vlasic of Bloomfield Hills bought her three children matching dark blue velvet ensembles from Loretta Lorion's Children's Shop in Bloomfield.

"I wanted them to look elegant in this year's holiday photo," she said. "It will be a treasure in the years ahead."

Parents all around town have the same idea because children's shops in the area report sales of holiday finery to be brisk this season. At some locations, like Parisian at Laurel Park in Livonia, and The Gilded Rabbit in downtown Rochester, much of the dressier, special occasion merchandise was gone by Thanksgiving.

"We still have some lovely outfits in our ready-to-wear lines by Petals, Small Treasures and Rapscallions," said owner Andrea Karp of the Gilded Rabbit. "From our custom clothing lines, Johnny Girl and Johnny B. Good for boys, shoppers can pick from very European-looking coat dresses and fully-lined suits with berets.

"The St. Auge Originals, made by Anita Micalski of Troy, feature heirloom ensembles with French seams and hand-smocking."

The Gilded Rabbit also sells fine jewelry for children from Sydney Krandall Jewelers.

At Parisian Department store, customers looking for matching boy and girl outfits in toddler sizes should check out the Ashton Connor line. Rosey Kids and Patsy Aiken also make charming outfits for holiday parties according to a store spokeswoman.

At Carousel Kids in downtown Farmington, owner Sandy McClelland said designs from Good Lad, Pretty in Pink, Nicole and Sylvia White are popular with traditionalists. A new line, Cotton Collection, offers some very unusual looks for children.

Lorion said mothers are notorious for wanting to coordinate their children in matching outfits at the holidays.

"When they're small, children really get a kick out of matching their sisters and brothers," Lorion said. "We recently had a customer buy three little outfits for Gov. Engler's new triplets, so they might be wearing coordinating outfits too, for the holidays!"

Lorion carries top quality lines like Hollywood Babe, Lucy & Phoebe and Little LuLu, to name a few. Some clothes mimic adult designs, others have the conservative children's styles with capes, peplum jackets and velvet collars.

Coffee ala Canton

Better beans: Enjoy a cup of coffee, a workout, and a tan at Gumbanno Brothers Italiano Cafe in Canton. The new facility brings together a coffee shop, tanning salon, and martial arts training center — all under one roof. Owner Dr. M. Aiello, said the cafe serves Superior-brand coffee and Laurentis espresso drinks. Additionally, the cafe has yogurt, pastries and a variety of shakes. Look for Gumbanno's in the West Gate Plaza, one-half mile north of Ford Road in Canton.

■ SOMERSET NORTH COURT

Although it's a well-kept secret about what retailers besides Nordstrom's and Hudson's will open at the new Somerset North in Troy in 1996, the Observer & Eccentric has learned a food court is one of the attractions planned. Somerset North is at the northeast corner of Coolidge and Big Beaver, across the street from the Somerset Collection. Sources at Somerset confirmed that a food court is in the planning stages for the new mall, however, it will be a food court to end all food courts — not the typical fast-food mall eating emporium shoppers have experienced at other centers.

Look for something chic, sharp, and utterly yummy.

■ REAL PEOPLE MODEL FOR JAKE'S

Jacobson's Spring '95 Career Collection Catalog will feature 35 local Real Working People not professional models, according to company spokeswoman Janice Hayes. "The 40-page fashion work book is designed to be a guide to what to wear to the real world of work," she said.

For gift-giving, Loretta Lorion also carries the American Widgeon line of expandable children's wear that grows with the child. She's one of the few children's specialty retailers to stock skating outfits and tennis ensembles for children.

After all, these days the holidays often double as resort time!

Music

Hear Music, a subsidiary of The Nature Company, which also owns Nordic Track, Smith & Hawken, and Britches of Georgetown, is the third retail record store for the company, the first for Michigan. Hear Music was founded in 1989 as a mail-order music catalog business by East Coast college friends Kevin Sheehan and Don MacKinnon who were looking for a way to find new things to listen to as they outgrew rock radio.

By 1992 sales were good enough to warrant a retail outlet in Berkeley, Calif. By this time Sheehan left the company and MacKinnon was on his own. The company has grown to a corporate staff of 11 with headquarters in Boston. Plans call for six stores in the United States through 1995.

Hear Music's "concept" is simple, customers can listen to any CD in the store before buying it — and CDs in the store virtually cover the entire history of music from medieval to contemporary. Hear Music subtly takes aim at the music lover who doesn't like the crowded CD aisles of stores like Best Buy or Target, or the atmosphere in the typical mall music shops that cater to teens.

While they can't top the prices of these mass marketers, Hear Music can offer ambience and eclectic choices. According to an article in Forbes magazine, last year domestic wholesale revenues from recorded music were $9 billion.

Music clubs and catalogs saw their sales rise, while traditional music stores watched sales falter. It was evident to retailers that something new was needed in the music mart. To this end Borders Books and Barnes and Noble Booksellers added sophisticated music departments to their new superstores, and stores like Hear Music arrived on the scene.

At Hear Music, recordings are uniquely presented in groupings of eight or nine CDs based on category, composer or mood, every three feet around the store. Headphones connect each grouping. Customers put on the headphones, push a button under the CD they want to hear, and then proceed through as much of each track on the CD as they want to hear.

What's your mood? Cajun? Celtic ballad? French cabaret? Hear Music has samples of all. It's the ideal way to introduce music buyers to new sounds, new artists and new presentations of the classics ignored by traditional music retailers according to MacKinnon.

Troy-based Harmony House said it welcomes new music retailers to the scene because they create an awareness level which brings more consumers into everybody's record stores.

"Harmony House's sales are up this year," said Chuck Papke, vice president of retail operations. "And not just holiday music sales. We've been up all year."

To stay competitive, Papke said Harmony House has expanded its selections over the years and instituted the we-will-not-be-undersold policy.

"Our customers know we will match any ad in the city," he said.

Somerset store manager Trish Kinsey said business has been "great" since the launching. Customers seem to enjoy trying on music to see if it suits them before buying.

"I was attracted to the category heading "With Your Morning Coffee," said Christmas shopper Louise Martin of Southfield. "I listened to some of the selections just for fun and ended up buying two CDs that sounded like they would put me in a good mood every morning."

Sally Victor, marketing director at the Somerset Collection said the mall welcomed the new music store with open arms because it filled a missing merchandise link in the center's collection of unique stores.

"We already had a good working relationship with the owners, The Nature Company, so when space became available, (the Sharper Image store moved to a larger location within the center,) Hear Music came right in."

Hear Music deals almost exclusively in CDs although some cassette tapes are available. Prices start at $15.99. Right now, according to Kinsey, the latest Beatles recording is selling well along with the music of Ann Arbor balladeer Catie Curtis.

Hear Music also publishes a complimentary music guide available at the store. Inside are interviews with famous music makers who pick their favorite selections.

Female pols tend to favor regulating assisted suicide

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

If women legislators had their way, Michigan would lift the ban on assisted suicide and regulate it instead.

Women of both parties favored crippling amendments as the House tried in vain to pass a ban on assisted suicide that would be acceptable to the Senate.

The pattern was similar to past years' gender gaps on abortion: Men favored restrictions on abortion 3-1; women opposed them 4-1.

The Legislature adjourned after failing Dec. 14 to pass Senate Bill 1311, which would have made assisted suicide a four-year felony.

A key test came on the so-called "Wallace substitute" — a complete rewrite of the main bill. It would have allowed doctor-assisted suicide after a psychiatrist attested the patient was mentally competent, two physicians examined the patient, and a social worker had counseled the patient. It failed 36-65 with eight absent, but:

- Women favored it 19-6.
- Men voted 17 yes and 59 opposed.

Another key vote was the "Bobier amendment," which would have said removal of nutrition and hydration would not be acts of assisting a suicide. It passed 56-45. The gender breakdown:

- Women voted 22-4 in favor.
- Men voted 33 in favor and 41 against.

Republicans tended to favor banning assisted suicide. They voted 23-30 against the Bobier amendment; Democrats voted 32-15 in favor.

Lawmakers scattered quickly after the session. No one was available to comment on the latest Lansing gender gap.

The cleanest indication of where House members stood came on the Wallace substitute because it wasn't cluttered with amendments.

Here is how Observer area members voted:

YES — Lyn Bankes, R-Redford; Justine Barns, D-Westland;

NO — William Keith, D-Garden City; Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth; Deborah Whyman, R-Canton; Richard Young, D-Dearborn Heights.

The issue finally was decided not by lawmakers but by the state Supreme Court, which made two key rulings in the middle of the House debate:

- The 1992 ban on assisted suicide was constitutional. It reversed lower courts, which held that the bill was flawed because lawmakers had a dual purpose: setting up a study commission and making assisted suicide a felony for 18 months. (That ban expired in mid-November.)
- Common law was interpreted as prohibiting assisted suicide. The common-law punishments were harsher than the ones in the Legislature — five years in prison and a $10,000 fine, versus four years and $2,000 in SB 1311.

The high court ruling elated Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson and infuriated Jack Kevorkian's attorney, Geoffrey Fieger.

Fieger said he would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. First he must get the highest court's agreement to hear the case. It may be possible because the Michigan Supreme Court was badly splintered — seven justices wrote four opinions.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Local gourmet shops rescue harried hosts

It never fails to happen at least once during the holidays. Somewhere, somehow, or someone misplaced that incredible recipe or ingredient for a party, and you just don't have time to search for it.

That's why, when placed between the proverbial rock and a hard place, I always remember my secret stores. These are places I can run into and get what I need, when I need it, and not end up paying an arm and a leg.

You know the kind of places I'm talking about - local merchants with plenty of check-outs and cashiers who never ask for a driver's license, two major credit cards and rights to your first born child. Those nifty little neighborhood places that don't mind looking in the back room for some mushrooms, the blue corn chips your friends love, or a long cinnamon stick for your hot buttered rum.

Helpful merchants

In Livonia, there's Chimento's. I'll go in to buy a hunk of Parmesan and walk out with $60 worth of groceries. When I'm up in Birmingham or Bloomfield, I go crazy over the gourmet food selections at the Long Lake Market. I've yet to make a stop at Northland without hopping on Northwestern Highway for a five minute ride to The Merchant of Vino in Southfield.

In Rochester there's another one of my favorite markets, Pappa Joe's. The newly opened Roadside Market in Plymouth gets my business, especially when I'm in need of fresh herbs and flowers. Heck, I've even driven to downtown Milford for a trip to Colasanti's Market and Snook's Meats.

These are independent retailers who will go out of their way to bring in nothing but the finest in produce, meat, gourmet goodies, wine and specialty foods.

If you have yet to discover them in your area, there's never been a better time to see them than now. In addition to keeping those gourmet retailers on the top of my list, I also wouldn't consider it a holiday without a visit to a GFS Marketplace. Tucked away in Westland, Farmington Hills, Rochester Hills and Troy, just to mention a few locations, the GFS Marketplaces are no-membership food service stores that allow folks like you and me to purchase what the restaurants and caterers do. For example, Rumaki lovers know the time involved in wrapping those bacon strips around tiny pieces of water chestnuts and securing it all with a toothpick. GFS Marketplace has these and other nifty hot and cold appetizers already prepared and individually quick frozen at less than what it would cost to make! Last minute entertainers will marvel at their selection of top-of-the-line gourmet desserts.

If the thought of renting serving pieces has you up in arms, you won't believe what they're making nowadays in molded plastic that again would be half the price of rentals. Just one of the many little secrets hiding at GFS Marketplace is their unbaked cookie dough - a boon to harried room moms and dads who would normally spend all night mixing ingredients, rolling and cutting cookie dough.

Choice meats

Searching for the freshest turkey, goose, or duck for that special holiday meal? Did you know that you can still see them live, smell them in all their glory and within 20 minutes, take them home all ready to roast? Al's Poultry & Seafood and Capitol Poultry down at the Eastern Market are just two of those Dickensonian places where you can still find live poultry. While down at the Market, if you ever find yourself in need of a whole suckling pig, or some of the best corned beef brisket in town, check out the helpful folks at Ronnie's Meats in the Gratiot Central Market just across the expressway from the Eastern Market. Exotic oyster and shellfish lovers will certainly appreciate the expertise of Kevin Dean and the folks at Superior Fish in Royal Oak.

I'm doing a small party for some special friends who love fresh oysters. Superior Fish will locate and fly in an assortment of Belons, Chesapeaks, Olympias and Hog Island Sweetwaters, just to name a few. Ditto for live lobsters and all the paraphernalia needed to enjoy them.

■ Christmas Eve is filled with the magic of anticipation. It's a time for sharing hope, gratitude and good food with those we love.

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

"'Twas the night before Christmas..."

And all through the house, soups are simmering, cakes are baking, and roasts are roasting in preparation for an evening of feasting with family and friends. About the only thing not on the menu are sugar plums, but those are bound to dance in the heads of sleepy children later on.

For many, Christmas Eve is the focal point of the entire holiday season. Whether a cultural or religious tradition, or simply a matter of dividing time between "his" and "her" family, celebrating Christmas Eve is filled with the magic of anticipation. "Everybody waits with hope and new adventure for the new year - a big welcome," said Alice Lozinski of Livonia who works as a nurse at St. Mary Hospital.

Lozinski immigrated from Poland in 1968, bringing with her Christmas customs from the old country. On Christmas Eve, her family, which includes husband Weldemer and children David, 22, and Diana, 26, share "Opatek," unleavened wafers of bread, which symbolize peace, with their guests. Aunts, uncles and in-laws arrive early in the evening to participate in the 12-dish Polish feast.

In keeping with tradition, no meat is served, but it's not missed. No wonder. Mushroom, fruit and poppy seed soups, sladze (herring in vinegar), pierogi made with cabbage, potatoes and poppy seed, apple and cheese cakes fill the table. And, of course there's Lozinski's glorious nut torte. "Very moist, melt-in-your-mouth," she says.

Christmas Eve remains wonderfully predictable in the Lozinski household. "First of all, before dinner you get the holy bread (Opatek) and exchange good wishes among each other. After dinner, especially when there's lots of children, you exchange presents. After that, you relax, talk and then leave the house at 11:30 p.m. for Midnight Mass."

After church, there's sneak previews of the Christmas ham. Lozinski doesn't plan on altering tradition. "My parents have done this, my grandparents, and I have done this for 27 years. My children do this."

Mary Callaghan Lynch, a Bloomfield Village resident who sings with the Michigan Opera Theatre, knows all about tradition. Growing up, she and any number of her 17 brothers and sisters participated in a family Christmas play directed by her mother, Mary Callaghan. And, being a musically inclined family, the Callaghan's sang lots of carols.

"We'd all sing Silent Night by candlelight and walk upstairs. My father was choir and music director of Holy Name Church in Birmingham, and the older kids would all sing in the choir. When we came back we'd have breakfast at 1:30 or 2 a.m.

Lynch now lives with her husband, Patrick, and two children, Caitlin, 14, and Patrick,

FOCUS ON WINE
BY RAY & ELEANOR HEALD

Pop a cork, let the celebration begin!

Elegant, welcoming, celebratory, life-style enhancing, the epitome of holiday celebration and conviviality wrapped in a distinctive bottle. What is it? Champagne of course!

The one and only champagne comes exclusively from the province of the same name in France. Other countries and the United States make sparkling wine using the centuries old, traditional champagne method (methode champenoise). Many of these products are of high quality, but cannot be considered champagne, even though some producers continue to misuse the term on the label.

Champagnes and sparkling wines come in a variety of styles. Nonvintage (NV) is a blend of wines from one year's harvest with a small percentage of reserve wines from previous harvests. It is generally aged two to three years on yeast in the bottle before being disgorged and readied for market distribution.

Vintage is a blend of wines from one harvest only. Reserve wines are not used and the vintage year can be found on the label. These wines generally age on the yeast in the bottle about four or five years in the producer's cellars.

Prestige cuvee is a special blend (cuvee) of wines from the producer's best vineyards. Generally aged for more than five years, it has top billing from any producer.

Blanc de blancs is made exclusively from chardonnay grapes in the champagne tradition.

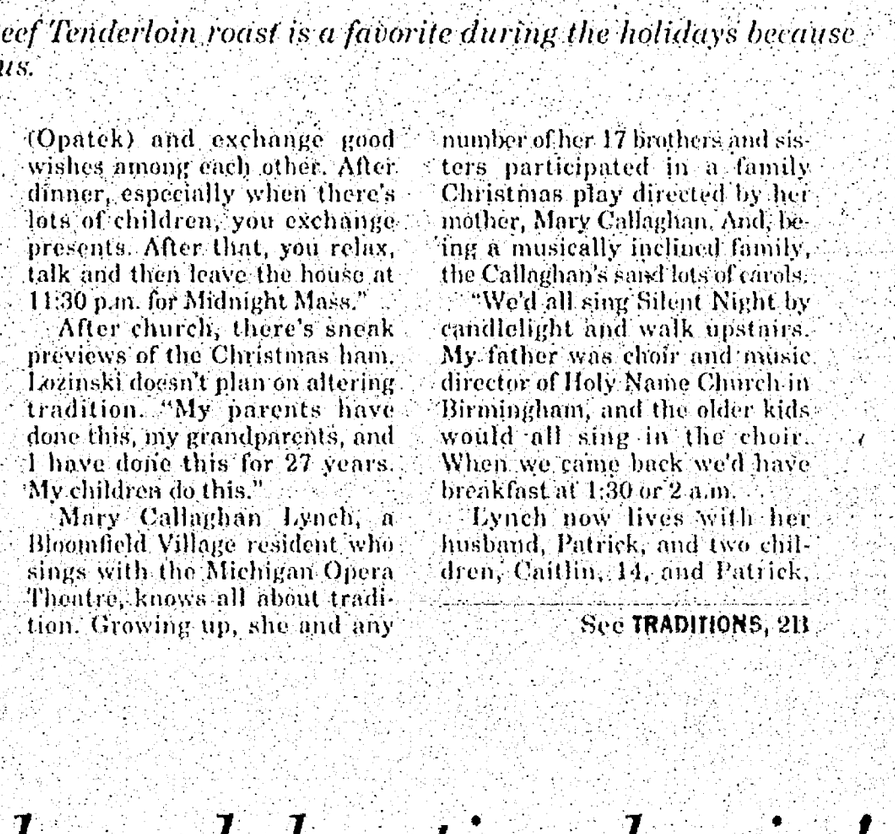

Blanc de noirs is a blend of red grapes, pinot noir and/or pinot meunier. As a champagne, it is rarely exported, but several California producers make very good examples.

Rose is pink as the name implies. It obtains its color from the skins of pinot noir or pinot meunier grapes.

Champagne and sparkling wines have degrees of dryness (sweetness if you like). It is established by the amount of dosage (wine and cane sugar added at bottling). From very dry to sweet, the degrees are named Brut, Extra dry, Sec and Demi-sec. While this may seem confusing, extra dry is slightly sweet. Brut is the driest.

Champagnes reflect a style chosen by the producer. Often called

Toast of the holidays: Light and elegant, Champagne is great with festive holiday desserts and appetizers. It's also a great accompaniment to brunch dishes.

Invite friends over for winter warming stew

"I love the seasons," said Florence Halpern of Amaryllis Catering in Birmingham. "I live differently in each and entertain differently as well. On Sundays in winter there is something heartening about a big pot of spaghetti sauce simmering on the stove, with enough for friends who might call for an early movie."

Here's one of Halpern's favorite Sunday dishes. She serves it with French bread and a Romaine salad, made with dried cherries, walnuts, red onion rings, and raspberry salad dressing.

Chicken Bouillabaisse

8 tomatoes, peeled, cored, seeded and chopped
4 large onions, quartered
8 garlic cloves, crushed
4-5 fennel bulbs with feathery leaves attached, coarsely chopped, save tops for garnish
½ cup extra-virgin olive oil
¼ cup Pernod or other licorice-flavored aperitif
½ teaspoon saffron threads
Seam ¼ cup fresh thyme, destemmed and chopped
6 bay leaves
8 chicken legs with thighs attached, skin removed
4 chicken breasts, skin removed
2 pounds boiling potatoes, quartered
1½ quarts chicken stock
Salt and coarsely ground pepper to taste

The day before you plan to serve this dish, combine all ingredients except potatoes and chicken stock in a covered casserole. Refrigerate overnight.

The next day, remove the casserole from refrigerator 1 hour before you begin to prepare the dish. Stew chicken in its marinade covered, over medium heat, for about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add potatoes and chicken stock and simmer until the potatoes are cooked, about 45-60 minutes. Taste for seasoning.

Remove chicken from broth, chill and defat stew before reheating and serving. Serve with fronds of fennel in warmed soup bowls. Serves 8.

house styles, they fall into three categories: delicate, medium and full. The more delicate styles generally have a higher proportion of chardonnay, while the fuller wines have a higher percentage of pinot noir and/or pinot meunier. Choosing the correct champagne style and dryness level for a particular holiday occasion can create an unforgettable mood and moment.

■ Champagne Brunch: Brut non-vintage Rose or Blanc de blancs is a great accompaniment to Eggs Benedict, cheese or mushroom omelets, waffles, French toast, lox, smoked fish and blintzes.

■ Champagne and appetizers: Both Brut and Extra-dry work for this occasion. If you're pulling out all the stops, then choose a Prestige Cuvee or Vintage Champagne. Serve with fresh oysters, caviar, shrimp, lobster, sauteed scallops or smoked salmon mousse. Jarlsberg, English farm cheddar, camembert, shaved Parmesan and fresh goat cheese make superior matches.

■ Champagnes can be served throughout a meal. A vintage or non-vintage Rose is incomparable with honey-baked ham, roast turkey or roast goose and all the trimmings from chestnut stuffing to sweet potatoes, yams and mashed potatoes with gravy.

■ For dessert to accompany apple pie, pumpkin pie, a yule log or creme brulee, choose an Extra-dry, Sec or Demi-sec non-vintage.

Traditions

10 in the original Lynch family estate home. (Patrick's father founded Lynch & Sons Funeral Homes, which recently purchased Schrader Funeral Home in Plymouth.)

As it years past, the entire Lynch clan will gather at the "big Lynch family home" on Christmas Eve.

"There'll be about 35 people here. That's nine children and 25 grandchildren. It's wild here, trust me," says Lynch.

As usual, the family groaning board will be laden with the culinary inspirations of siblings and their spouses. Lynch will cook the turkey. "They joke that Mary would rather sing than cook," she said. "I'm not known for my culinary expertise. Last year the big joke was how good the turkey was even though Mary cooked it." However, Lynch admits with absolute modesty it is her sister-in-law Mary Howell's potato dish that gets the most praise.

For the past several years, Susan Shelton, a Plymouth Township resident for 24 years, has done her celebrating on Christmas day. Not this year. Since she and her husband John, a former police officer, are retiring and moving to Indiana early next year, they decided to resurrect an old tradition — a big Christmas Eve dinner.

"Basically, it's a sentimental gesture since this is our last Christmas we'll spend in Plymouth with other family members. We wanted to recreate the Christmas Eve my parents had when they were alive. They hosted a dinner with the children, spouses and grandchildren. Mom always fixed a turkey and roast beef."

When daughters, Jill, 25, and Cindi, 23, their boyfriends, and a dozen other family members gather around her table on Christmas Eve, Shelton will serve a standing rib roast.

"I'm going to do something a little different. My mother cooked a more traditional standing rib, but I've decided to use a recipe I made years ago. It combined unusual ingredients. It was heavenly.

Christmas Eve is a time for letting traditions shine as brightly as ornaments. It's a time for sharing hope, gratitude and good food with those we love.

Mary Callaghan Lynch summed up the reasons for coming together on this special night to eat, drink and be merry when she said, "we're very blessed."

HERBED BEEF TENDERLOIN

4 pound well-trimmed beef tenderloin roast
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Salt to taste
Seasoning:
1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon cracked black pepper

Heat oven to 425 degrees F. Combine seasoning ingredients; press evenly into surface of beef roast. Place roast on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part, not resting in fat. Do not add water or cover.

Roast in 425 degree F. oven 45 to 50 minutes for medium-rare to medium doneness.

Remove roast when meat thermometer registers 140 degrees for medium-rare, 155 for medium; sprinkle cheese over top. Let roast stand 15 minutes. (Temperature will continue to rise about 5 degrees for medium-rare, 160 for medium).

Carve roast into ¼-inch to ½-inch thick slices; season with salt as desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Recipe from the National Live Stock & Meat Board test kitchen.

POLISH MUSHROOM SOUP

5 ounces dried Polish mushrooms (available at specialty food stores or Kowalski markets)
Water
2 carrots, cut in pieces
2 ribs celery, cut in pieces
1 bay leaf
5 or 6 potatoes, peeled and diced
½ teaspoon flour
¼ to ½ cup sour cream

Cover mushrooms with hot water and soak two hours. Drain and reserve water. Place drained mushrooms, carrots, and celery in large pot and add 8 to 10 cups of water (better to add less water at first; you can add more later as soup thickens). Bring to a boil and simmer.

Add bay leaf. Cook until mushrooms, carrots and celery are soft. Add potatoes and cook until they soften and soup thickens.

Mix flour with enough water to make paste. Stir into sour cream. Add enough soup into sour cream/flour paste mixture to warm it. Slowly return mixture to soup. Add reserved mushroom water. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Recipe from Alice Lopinski.

LYNCH FAMILY POTATO CASSEROLE

2 pounds frozen hash brown potatoes, thawed
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup sour cream
1 can cream of chicken soup
¼ cup chopped onions
1 teaspoon salt
Topping:
1 cup corn flakes and ½ cup melted butter, mixed

Combine all ingredients and place in greased 1½-quart rectangular casserole. Sprinkle with corn flake topping and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serves 6.

Recipe from Mary Howell and Mary Callaghan Lynch

HOLIDAY STANDING RIB ROAST

8 to 10 pound standing rib roast
1 medium onion, sliced thin
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 clove garlic, cut
Cracked pepper
Burgundy wine

Have butcher remove chine bone and retie roast. Remove roast from refrigerator at least 2 hours before roasting. Preheat oven to 550 degrees. Untie roast and cover chine bone with onions and cloves. Retire roast, making sure contour of meat is maintained to protect eye of the roast during cooking.

Rub surface of meat with garlic and cracked pepper. Place meat fat side up on a rack in a shallow greased roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so that the tip is in the thickest part of the roast and not touching bone. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and roast 18 to 20 minutes per pound for medium-rare.

When done, remove roast from oven and pour two cups Burgundy on top. Let stand approximately 30-45 minutes, frequently basting with wine juices.

Just before serving, untie roast and place eye of meat on an ovenproof platter. Put back into oven to reheat. Meanwhile, strain meat juices and skim off fat. Return juices to pan. Over low heat, scrape any particles from bottom of pan to intensify flavor. Add a bit of water or additional wine if necessary. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

You may slightly thicken wine/meat juices with a bit of corn starch dissolved in small amount of cold water. However, this is not necessary.

Recipe from Susan Shelton.

Cashew Brittle

1½ cups sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
¾ cup water
1¼ cups coarse chopped cashews
1 teaspoon baking soda

Butter a cookie sheet and set aside. Combine the sugar, corn syrup and water in a large, heavy bottomed saucepan. Cook over medium low heat for about 35 minutes, stirring constantly with a metal spoon, until the mixture reaches 280 degrees F. on a candy thermometer.

While stirring, slowly add the nuts, taking care not to let the temperature drop. Quickly add the baking soda, stir twice more and pour the mixture onto a prepared cookie sheet. Spread it into a thin layer with a rubber spatula. Let the brittle cool and harden for 20 minutes, then break it into chunks. Will keep 2-3 months in an airtight container. Makes 1¼ pounds brittle.

Chef's Secret: Clean the pan and the spoon by returning the pan to the stove and fill with boiling water. Allow to boil, stirring until all the hard brittle dissolves.

Homemade Hazlenut Liqueur

1 pound hazelnuts
2 cups vodka
½ vanilla bean
6 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons water

Chop the hazelnuts and combine the nuts with the vodka and the vanilla bean in a 1 quart Mason jar. Seal the jar, shake to mix and set aside in a cool dark place for 10 days.

Strain the liquor through a coffee filter. Rinse the jar. Set aside. Combine the sugar and the water in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil, lower the heat to a simmer and stir until the sugar dissolves. Cool to room temperature.

Pour vodka mix and cooled sugar syrup into the Mason jar, seal and shake well to mix. Ready to be transferred to a decanter in about 3 days. This liqueur has a shelf life of 2-3 months. Makes about 2 cups.

Homemade Apple Butter

4 pounds McIntosh apples, stems removed and quartered
2 cups water
1 cup sugar
1 cup dark brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon fresh ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
¼ cup fresh squeezed lemon juice
1 teaspoon finely chopped lemon zest

Place the apples and the water into a large non reactive dutch oven. Cover and cook over medium heat until the apples are fork tender, about 15 minutes. Remove from the heat.

Using a slotted spoon, transfer the apples in batches to a food mill over a large bowl. Work the apples through the food mill until all are pureed. Rinse out the dutch oven. Add the apple pulp, sugars, spices, mixing well. Stir in lemon juice and zest. Cook over low heat for 15 minutes or until the apple butter is thick enough to coat the back of a spoon or no ring of water forms around the edge of the pot.

Pour into sterilized jars and seal according to canning directions. Yields five half pints.

A tale of 2 coaches: A pair of successes

How can we consistently be so inconsistent?

In judging coaches, I mean. Our rather questionable logic is based upon success — but only to a certain point. Once a team surpasses that rather arbitrary boundary, however, the significance of coaching suddenly diminishes.

It becomes talent that got them there.

There's no sense to any of this, but nonetheless the formula is constant. A coach who transforms a perennial loser into a .500 team is lauded; a coach who always has his/her team challenging for the championship is taken for granted.

The justification for such ludicrous hypocrisy usually goes something like "anyone can win with that kind of talent."

It's as if, by serving as the architect in the construction of a successful program, a coach has ruined his ability to coach.

In the just completed fall semester, Plymouth Canton was blessed with superior coaching in two sports in particular: boys soccer and girls basketball.

Don Smith guided the Chiefs' soccer team to its first-ever Class A state title in boys soccer. Bob Blohm helped the Canton girls basketball team weave it way into the Class A's Final Four.

The two are unalike in most ways, but they do share one trait: Their teams win.

Smith deserves better

Smith is certainly in the more unusual position. Although his teams are constantly at or near the top of the Western Lakes Activities Association standings, opposing coaches never give him any credit.

There are even those who hoard some of the back-patting for Canton's triumphs themselves, noting how they coached one or two of the Chiefs during the summer.

Smith preaches an aggressive style. His strategies seem basic, to be sure; sprint down the wings and send players into the box to field a cross.

On defense, the Chiefs pressure the ball with one defender draped all over the opposition's best scorer.

That's simplified, of course. What upsets many opposing coaches is Smith's encouraging a no-holds-barred defensive strategy.

Their fury is concealed; instead they insist it's the players, not Smith's coaching.

I say this: There are plenty of good soccer teams in Observerland because there are so many good coaches. Smith is one of them.

He may not be the best at formulating a plan of attack, but he always found a way to get his team prepared. Throughout this season's state tournament run, the Chiefs never came up flat.

Canton deserved what it got — a state championship. And Smith, who has a state title in both boys and girls soccer to his credit, deserves the recognition.

A communicator

Bob Blohm's reputation is all-together different than Smith's. Since he started coaching girls basketball at Plymouth Salem in 1978, Blohm has been lauded.

The praise is well-deserved.

Us older folk on the sports staff at the Observer still recognize a Livonia Bentley team from 1980 as one of our area's best ever. Kim Archer was a sophomore on that squad; she went on to stardom at Michigan State.

And yet Blohm's Salem team, which didn't have a starter over 5-foot-8, beat Bentley in the state tournament and eventually reached the Final Four.

What he did with the Canton team this season was just as astounding. Four starters from last year's team were gone, and yet Blohm pushed and prodded the Chiefs to the state semifinals.

His best attribute is his ability to communicate with his players. Other coaches know what is coming from a Blohm-coached team: A motion offense, featuring pass after pass until a good shot is found, and person-to-person defense.

Handling it is another question.

The Chiefs went into the state semifinals as the long shot. They could not possibly match the athletic ability or size of any of the other three teams.

However, that isn't what prevented them from reaching the final. Had Blohm been given more than two days to prepare, the Chiefs might have pulled off an upset.

Detroit Martin Luther King was atop the state's Class A rankings all season, but in the final against Flint Northern I saw no offensive scheme. Northern now rules as state champ, but it suffered through defensive lapses throughout the Canton game.

A little more time, slightly better talent, and the Chiefs would have been state champs.

Spartan reserves spark victory over Chargers

Livonia Stevenson used its reserves to overpower Livonia Churchill in a Western Lakes Activities Association crossover boys basketball game Friday at Churchill.

By Neal Zipser
Staff Writer

While the Christmas break will provide rest for most high school boys basketball teams, the Livonia Stevenson players will be working hard to earn playing time.

The bench starred Friday night, combining for 31 points in the Spartans' 53-37 victory over visiting Livonia Churchill.

The loss dropped the Chargers to 0-3, while the Spartans improved to 2-0. Stevenson will begin its holiday recess after its game Tuesday at Milford.

In the nine practices between Milford and Stevenson's Jan. 6 contest against Plymouth Canton, the Spartans will be trying to convince coach Jim McIntyre that they deserve time on the court.

"Right now, we're trying to find a nucleus of players," McIntyre said. "We have 14 kids working hard, and they are all playing and contributing in some way. During the practices over break, we will try to solidify who will start. It's just a matter of some kids getting the edge over the others."

On Friday, it was Erick Giovanni's turn to make his case for time. The junior guard, who did not play in Stevenson's season-opening win against Dearborn Fordson, came off the bench to score a career-high 18 points.

Giovanni nailed four three-pointers and sparked a second-quarter rally in which the Spartans turned a three-point deficit into a 26-17 halftime lead.

"The players that came in the game in the second quarter picked the slack up for us offensively and the kids that played in the fourth quarter gave us a boost defensively," McIntyre said.

"We're further along now than we have been in past years at this point of the season. Even though we have only two seniors, the 11 juniors have been in our program for three years and seven of them were on varsity last year."

Trailing 11-8 entering the second quarter, Stevenson took the lead for good on a put-back by Giovanni. He followed that with a triple which ignited an 18-6 run.

Churchill battled back to close the margin to to 29-25 midway through the third quarter. The rally featured five straight points by junior forward Chris Major, who came off the bench to record a team-high nine points.

"Chris played 'well tonight," Churchill coach Tom Lang said. "At times he was a little wild, but this is only his second year playing organized basketball. He's playing like a sophomore."

The Spartans regained the momentum as Giovanni hit another three-pointer. Stevenson eventually built its lead to 16 at several times in the fourth, thanks in part to sloppy Churchill ballhandling. The Chargers committed 25 turnovers.

Junior forward Jim Balow added nine points for Stevenson, which shot 38 percent from the floor (21-of-54). The Chargers shot only 29 percent from the field (14-of-47).

"Our shooting wasn't very good," Lang said. "At times we were forcing shots, but we also missed a lot of easy shots. If we made some of those shots, it may have been a different game. We shot well in our first game, but haven't shot well since."

Six-foot-6 center Niko Jovicevic, who led the Spartans in their opening game with 12 points, finished with four after battling foul trouble.

"He's coming along but he still has to learn American basketball," McIntyre said.

"He's part of the family now," Giovanni said of Jovicevic.

Lang was pleased with the inside play of Jay VanWagner and Rudy Hatfield, who pulled down 10 rebounds. In all, the Chargers held a 29-23 rebound advantage.

Wayne beats Pioneers in Mega crossover

Jameel Wooden's game-high 22 points Friday led Wayne to a Mega Conference crossover victory over visiting Dearborn.

The Zebras, who improved to 3-1, built a 35-23 halftime lead and saw it shrink to 44-38 entering the fourth quarter. Wayne was able to hold on and hand the Pioneers their first loss after three wins.

Sophomore forward Lorenzo Guess added 20 points and eight rebounds for Wayne. The Zebras also received eight points apiece from Richard Rashad and Richard Johnson (10 rebounds).

Ryan Wilkinson paced Dearborn with 11 points; Kevin Kreger added 10.

■ ST. ALPHONSUS 49, LUTH. W'LAND 48: In a non-conference matchup, Lutheran Westland lost for the first time this season as the Warriors let a 40-33 lead entering the fourth quarter slip away.

The Warriors (2-1) trailed 22-21 at halftime before taking the seven-point lead into the fourth quarter. Westland scored with one second remaining to account for the one-point difference.

Senior forward Matt Pazur poured in a game-high 28 points to lead the Arrows, who evened their record at 1-1.

Senior guard Chris Tiernan hit five three-pointers en route to his team-high 23 points. The Warriors also received 10 points and 15 boards from sophomore forward Joe Pruchnik.

■ INTER-CITY 93, HURON VALLEY 38: Allen park Inter-City Baptist couldn't miss Friday in its non-league rout over visiting Huron Valley Lutheran.

The Chargers built a 28-8 first quarter lead, and extended the margin to 57-21 by halftime.

"They broke our press pretty easily and that led to some easy shots," Huron Valley coach Tod Bartholomew said. "They weren't missing, and it wasn't just lay-ups. They made three triples in the first quarter and must have shot 75 percent in the first half. It was just one of those games. I know we're not that bad."

Jeff Van Houten's 18 points paced the Chargers. Junior guard Dan Zahn led the Hawks with seven points.

■ LIV. FRANKLIN 72, ALUMNI 71: Matt Bauman's free throw in sudden-death overtime Friday was the difference as Livonia Franklin held off the older — and often slower — alumni squad.

The alumni, coached by Livonia Observer sports editor Brad Emons (class of '73), rallied from a 38-24 halftime deficit to tie the score at 57 on a three-point shot by Mike McCool ('88) and force overtime.

After both teams scored 14 in overtime, it was agreed the game would end on the next point. Bauman, who finished with 11 points, made the first free throw to give the modern-day Patriots the victory.

Chad Glaza and Mike Aubuchon led Franklin with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Mark Donahue (class of '89) scored a game-high 25 points. John Zannis (class of '87) and Sam Antonazzo (class of '65) added 11 points each.

Elimination of soccer leaves local CMU players in limbo

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

Chris Grodzicki, a freshman soccer player at Central Michigan University, noticed something peculiar two weeks ago while on his way to work out at the Student Activities Center.

"I was walking by the coach's office and I saw a lot of stuff sitting outside," said Grodzicki, a Livonia Stevenson graduate. "I thought maybe we've got a new coach, maybe our coach was moving to a new office. Something was definitely unusual."

Something unusual, indeed.

The next day, CMU athletic director Herb Deromedi held a players' meeting to announce the school is eliminating soccer as a varsity sport because of budget reasons, effective immediately.

Grodzicki and Victor Rodopoulos, another CMU freshman from Livonia Franklin, said the move was surprising because they didn't even hear rumors.

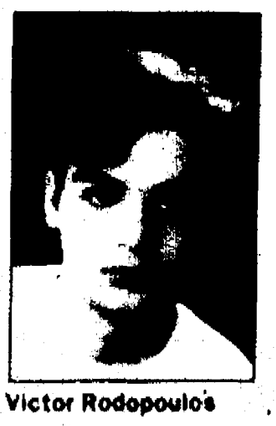

The two have partial soccer scholarships which the school said it would honor for four years, but each plans on transferring. Grodzicki said he'll finish out the year at CMU, but Rodopoulos will spend Christmas break shopping for a new place right away.

"It was a total shock to everyone, as well as to our coach (Rick Trainor), who said he knew only 24 hours before the players did," said Grodzicki, who also has final exams on his mind this week. "The university handled it very poorly, as far as us being treated as adults. I don't think we were even being treated as people.

"I came in with six other guys who were highly recruited. We were definitely headed in the right direction ... now we have to go our separate ways."

Chris Grodzicki

Victor Rodopoulos

■ SOCCER

Soccer has been a varsity sport at CMU since 1978. Former Observerland stars like Ken McDonald and Jim Kimble from Stevenson, Walt Kliza and Marty Caves of Bentley and Joe Moreau of Redford Catholic Central were past standouts at CMU.

Deromedi, in Las Vegas this week to watch CMU's football team play in Thursday's Las Vegas Bowl, issued a statement in a press release.

"We are disappointed that we had to go this route especially in light of the recent popularity the sport has enjoyed," Deromedi said. "In order to have fielded a truly competitive Division I program we would have had to invest a considerable amount of money in staff, scholarships and facilities. Unfortunately we're in the middle of university budget cuts."

Rae Goldsmith, CMU's director of public relations, said Monday the soccer team's budget is about $55,000 per year. To be a competitive program, she said, the school would have to spend an extra $65,000 per season and also improve facilities at the Rose Field.

CMU divides three soccer scholarships among the players, compared to other successfull Mid-American Conference schools like Akron and Bowling Green, which have 11 and five, respectively.

Goldsmith said players were not warned about the possibility of the program being eliminated because the school was hoping to keep the program alive.

"While the decision is being discussed, is it productive to cause panic when we haven't reached a decision?" Goldsmith said. "(But) I can understand how the players feel."

Trainor, a part-time coach who earns $8,200 a season, said he can prove CMU's "investment" in soccer each year is about $40,000. He said the other $15,000 is earned through fund-raising activities.

"I felt blind sided and had no reason to expect this," said Trainor, who is 13-33-1 in three years as head coach. "They'd like us to believe the budget dictates this. Budgets don't make decisions, people do. My position is make me a full-time coach and they'll never hear a complaint from the soccer program about budgets or scholarships."

The Chippewas finished 5-12 last season and it was a trying time off the field as well.

A female CMU student said she was sexually assaulted by seven men, including three CMU students who allegedly played on the soccer team. Because of lack of evidence, Goldsmith said, the prosecutor decided not to press charges.

But the allegations made it tough on all CMU soccer players, according to Grodzicki.

"I received a lot of dirty looks," said Grodzicki, who was not involved in the allegations. "I don't even wear my soccer jacket anywhere. Girls that would come to games to watch us started doing other things."

Goldsmith said the allegations had nothing to do with soccer being eliminated.

"Whatever happened in that case and with the soccer team was unrelated," Goldsmith said.

CMU players interest new Madonna coach

■ HOCKEY

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Madonna University men's soccer coach Pete Alexander isn't applauding Central Michigan University's decision to drop soccer as a varsity sport, but he knows it might benefit his program in the long haul.

The elimination of CMU's program means there could be 28 players on the Chippewas' roster, including 18 freshmen and sophomores, looking for a place to play.

The Madonna soccer team finished its first season as a varsity sport with an 8-7 record and Alexander, a Livonia Churchill and CMU graduate, is in the midst of recruiting season.

"With soccer starting to grow, it's a shame to see any school lose a program," Alexander said. "But I'd be crazy to say it doesn't hold possibilities for us because it does. What shocked me the most is (CMU coach) Rick (Trainor) did a great job recruiting last year. He picked up some good players and they were going to be strong in the next couple years."

Along with recruiting high school talent, Alexander said he is interested in looking at players with junior college experience. With CMU dropping soccer, the pool of players to look at becomes even greater.

Of the 18 freshmen and sophomores on CMU's roster, 11 are from the tri-county area, including Victor Rodopoulos from Livonia Franklin and Chris Grodzicki from Livonia Stevenson.

"I would like a chance to talk to them, see what their goals are, where they happen to be," Alexander said. "I believe strongly that a good team has to have a mix of young players and transfers. Even before CMU's decision I was looking at places like Schoolcraft College, to pull in older players with leadership skills."

Stevenson skates around DC

A five-goal first period was enough for Livonia Stevenson, which went on to upend Dearborn Divine Child 8-3 in a non-league hockey game Friday at Edgar Arena.

The win boosted the Spartans' record to 6-2.

It came at an important time. "It was a big game for us, against a Michigan Metro (League) team," said Stevenson coach Mike Harris. Divine Child had tied Redford Catholic Central 4-4 earlier this season.

The Spartans certainly were ready. They led 5-0 after one, thanks to two goals apiece from Andy Perry and Jason Baylis. Perry scored the first and third goals; Kevin Berger scored in between. Baylis' goals finished the period.

Stevenson upped its advantage to 7-0 in the second period on goals by Brian Calka and Jeff Blazok before the Falcons mounted a challenge, scoring three power play goals. The only score of the final period came from Stevenson's Ted Marolla.

Berger, Calka and Brian Tarsin each had two assists each for the Spartans.

But the player Harris felt was most responsible for the win was goalie Jordan McCormack. "He was just outstanding tonight," said Harris. "His play at the start of the game really got us going."

■ CHURCHILL 6, SOUTH LYON 3: Livonia Churchill got out in front from the start and stayed there in Friday's opener of the University of Michigan Holiday Hockey Tournament at Yost Arena.

Chris Kiehler and Dave Higham put the Chargers in front 2-0 after one period and, after South Lyon closed to within a goal, Higham restored Churchill's edge to two with his second goal. The Lions again narrowed the gap to one, but this time Kiehler answered to make it 4-2. Kyle Dawley's goal at the end of the period gave the Chargers a 5-2 lead after two.

Steve Webb's third-period goal closed out the scoring for Churchill. Mark Bugnell added two assists to the effort, and Mark Felker was solid in goal.

The win pushed the Chargers' record to 6-0.

■ FRANKLIN 22, SOUTHFIELD 0: There was a season-full of statistics posted in this game by Livonia Franklin.

Let's start with goalie Pete Stesevich, who got the shutout and also had an assist.

Greg Job, Matt Harrigan, Kevin Bernard and Dan Hofelich each scored three goals; Harrigan had three assists, with Job, Bernard and Hofelich getting two each. Dom Catanzarite finished with seven assists, and Brad Dicks netted two goals and two assists.

Gilbo leads CC to victory

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Without a player over 6-feet-2, Flint Powers boys basketball coach Dan Duncan worries about opposing teams hurting the Chargers in the low post.

On Friday night at Redford Catholic Central, the biggest player on the court — CC's 6-6 junior forward Eric Gilbo — stepped outside and wrecked the Chargers from three-point range.

With Powers' zone defense collapsing on CC's senior forward Mark Ridley and junior guard Justin Hoener, Gilbo made three shots from three-point range and scored a career-high 17 points in a 68-66 non-league victory.

CC led by as many as eight in the final minutes, but had to settle for the two-point victory when a three-point shot at the buzzer by Powers fell short.

"They have a big team (compared to Powers) and we didn't feel we could match up with them," Duncan said. "We tried to create some problems and see what they could do."

The unbeaten Shamrocks trailed 33-31 at halftime, but all five of their buckets in the third quarter came from three-point range as they outscored Powers 17-8 for a 47-41 lead.

Gilbo started and ended the quarter the same way — with a three-point shot from the wing. Ridley led CC with a game-high 23 points, but Duncan was just as impressed with Gilbo's contributions.

Gilbo was seven for nine from the field and also tied Ridley and junior forward Richard Turk for the team lead with seven rebounds. Turk also enjoyed his best offensive game to date, scoring 13 points, and the Shamrocks got strong play in the second half from guards Chris Misiak and Ryan McKenna.

Hoener, who fouled out in the fourth quarter, went scoreless.

Powers fell to 0-2 overall.

"He (Gilbo) has a very nice outside shot and didn't hesitate to put it up," Duncan said. "We wanted him to shoot it, but he made the threes and we had problems with him rebounding over us."

CC, 4-0 overall, hosts Orchard Lake St. Mary's, one of the state's best teams, in a game Friday night before starting Christmas break.

Rick Coratti, a defensive coordinator for the CC football team who is in his first year as varsity basketball coach, is getting used to this sideline.

"I'm getting more excited each game and feel more comfortable," Coratti said. "I think they're getting more comfortable with me, too."

The Shamrocks kept the lead for good, 55-54, when Hoener drove the lane and fed Gilbo for a nifty left-handed reverse layup with 4:52 remaining. But after a pair of free throws by Turk raised the lead to four, Hoener was called for his fifth foul and picked up a technical foul with 4:28 remaining.

Powers pulled within 59-58 following a basket by Jason Slattery, before CC outscored the Chargers 10-2 in the next two minutes to go up 68-60.

But the Shamrocks got sloppy with the ball and allowed Powers to go on a 6-0 run, capped by Matt Dibble's steal and basket with 21 seconds left to cut the deficit to 68-66.

CC made 10 of 12 free throws in the fourth quarter.
