Lawyer: Tape invaded privacy

A Wayne police officer admitted telling a girls basketball coach that he was "set up" in a sex scandal involving one of his players. The defendant didn't know that a phone conversation was being recorded.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Patrick Bennett's right to privacy was violated when Wayne police — without telling him — taped a phone conversation between the former girls basketball coach and a John Glenn High School athlete with whom he is accused of having sex, a defense attorney claims.

"There was an invasion of the rights of Mr. Bennett," attorney Irving Tukel said Monday during a preliminary hearing in Wayne District Court.

Tukel argued against having the tape recording and a 35-page transcript of it admitted as evidence. Moreover, he said, the 15-year-old athlete was "acting under the control" of Wayne police when she called Bennett, 33, from the Wayne police station on March 1.

Prosecuting attorney Margaret Rynier defended police actions, and Wayne police Sgt. Michael Sumeracki testified that the girl consented to having the conversation taped.

Judge Carolyn Archbold is expected to rule on the privacy issue when the hearing continues Monday afternoon.

Bennett, a 10-year coach, was fired after allegations surfaced that he and the girl had sex at a Wayne motel and at a Westland house that Bennett was watching for a friend. He is charged in both cities with third-degree criminal sexual conduct and obstructing justice.

The two also met at a Canton Township motel, Sumeracki said in court, but authorities haven't said

Special order: Coney with a ring

JIM JAGDFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Coney, fries, marriage on the side: Tom Valleau promised his fiancee, Danielle Coleman, that he would propose to her and give her an engagement ring.

Women shoppers at Westland Center Friday afternoon thought Tom Valleau was being very romantic when he proposed to his fiance, Dianelle Coleman, in front of the Lafayette Coney Island, where she works.

Valleau told the Observer that he was too nervous to absorb everything that was going on around him.

He admitted he was nervous, but did recall women shoppers saying that they thought he was being "very romantic."

Valleau, 30, a 1983 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, said he picked the entrance to the mall's coney island because that's where he and Coleman met about three years ago.

The groom-to-be is a private police officer who has worked at the mall for the past five years.

Coleman, 22, has been working at the restaurant for 6½ years, starting when she was a John Glenn High School student.

"We were friends before we started dating about 1½ years ago," he said.

Valleau said he wanted to propose to Coleman in a location that "would be different and would have a lot of people around."

Coleman admitted she was surprised at the proposal's location.

Taking in the proposal were not only mall shoppers but also many of the pair's relatives and friends.

"I was surprised and a little embarrassed," Coleman admitted.

After the excitement died down, she returned to work where several customers congratulated her and asked to see her ring.

Will the couple have an unusual marriage?

No, Valleau said.

It will be a traditional church wedding on Sept. 16, he said.

Residents still fume over plant

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Residents remain concerned that smokestack emissions from a Westland manufacturing plant could be causing health problems, despite assurances from county pollution experts that there is no known threat.

Petitions have been signed by 185 residents who are fearful of the Textron Automotive Interiors plant on Newburgh just north of Palmer, said Dowling street resident Jerry McGue, addressing the Westland City Council on Monday.

McGue's wife, Nancy, and other residents are claiming that plant emissions are making them sick, even though air-quality tests have found no violation of environmental standards.

Still, more tests have been promised by Rajendra Sinha, Wayne County air pollution control director.

Carolyn Glasgow, who lives near the plant, told the council Monday that she is concerned because her 7-year-old dog died of cancer.

"I do care about the environment and what I'm breathing," she said.

Neighborhood resident Rick Whalen said his outdoor activities have been hampered.

"It seems like every time I go work in my yard, I have difficulty breathing and severe headaches," he said.

Jerry McGue suggested that the plant should be equipped with smokestack scrubbers to combat any potential harmful fumes.

Residents appeared less angry than they were during a neighborhood meeting March 23 at Madison Elementary School, when many of the 100 people in attendance pointed blame at Textron for their illnesses.

Budget plan includes first library millage

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

The Westland city administration is proposing a "standstill" budget for the upcoming fiscal year with the only new spending planned for the city's first independent library.

Construction is expected to start this summer on the west side of Central City Parkway between Elmwood and Stacey and be completed in the fall of 1996.

The millage rate includes a 1-mill levy for the new library.

Michael Gorman, city finance director, said that the actual city property tax bills for residents will go up only 2.6 percent, reflecting the increase in market values.

If the rate is approved by the council this spring, city taxes would be $434 for a home valued at $60,000.

If the city council approves the budget submitted Friday by Mayor Robert Thomas by the June 6 deadline, planned spending will be about the same as the current fiscal year, which ends June 30.

The planned millage rate of $14.47 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation is one mill higher than the current year with that mill representing the library level.

In his budget message to the council, Thomas said the proposed expenditures of $33.757 million represent an increase of less than 1 percent, or $50,000.

"The budget maintains all current levels of service for our taxpayers and it retains all positions, with the exception of the bump/paint position (in the public services department)," he said.

"The costs and liabilities associated with the paint room under the federal guidelines make it too costly to keep when compared to the benefits we derive from that position."

But the mayor added that he is planning a capital equipment budget of $758,000, which should allow the city to keep its fleet of vehicles up to date.

Thomas noted in his budget message to the council that he has been able to increase services to the community without boosting the tax rate.

"We knew we would eventually 'hit the wall' and get to the point where we wouldn't be able to add any new services without new taxes or new sources of revenues.

"Well, we have hit that wall and any new services provided by us will have to have a new revenue source."

Thomas noted that the state government "continues to peck away at our state shared revenues."

He said he would try to have the Conference of Western Wayne and the Michigan Municipal League to "pressure Lansing to pass a constitutional amendment that guarantees cities will receive their fair share of state revenues." (See related story.)

Another problem the mayor pointed out is the city's water and sewer fund.

He said rates will have to be raised as the only way to pay for required compliance with the federal Clean

DARE officers honored

The Wayne-Westland school board last week honored nine area police officers who teach students to avoid drug and alcohol abuse.

The officers, all involved in the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program, were honored during a reception before Monday's school board meeting. The board also presented framed certificates to the officers during the meeting.

Those honored were officers Jeff Gillespie, Dave Hooper, Tim Kennedy and Harry Misener of the Westland Police Department; officers John Williams and Donald Gotham of the Wayne Police Department; officers Daniel Newman and Craig Beaudry of the Canton Township Police Department; and officer Ann DeGhetto of the Inkster Police Department.

PLACES & FACES

Compost to be collected

Homeowners can have their yard waste collected by the city's Public Services Department now through Nov. 30. Collection will be made on the regularly scheduled rubbish collection day.

The rules for compost pickup are that the yard waste must be in cans or plastic trash bags and be placed at least 10 feet from the other rubbish bags on collection days. Cardboard boxes containing yard waste will not be picked up.

The DPS will not pick up compost mixed with rubbish, it said.

All brush and limbs must be tied in bundles of three-feet lengths and no more than 40 pounds.

Homeowners with questions may call the DPS at 728-1770 between 7:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Story time

A story hour for children between 2 and 8 will be sponsored by the Westland Parks and Recreation Department on Wednesday nights during April and May at Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. Parents are advised by the department to register before next Tuesday.

The program will be 7:30-8:30 p.m., with Westland Civitan members reading special stories and taking part in craft projects with the children.

The program is free but pre-registration is required.

Westland officials want state aid protection

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland city officials are accusing Gov. John Engler of wanting to siphon state-shared revenue dollars that local officials say should be going into city coffers.

Mayor Robert Thomas has suggested that cities join forces to push for a constitutional amendment protecting state-shared revenue. He is in the process of drafting a letter to western Wayne County communities, Downriver cities, and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer, encouraging government leaders to pass resolutions seeking to protect the money.

Thomas said he would like to see a constitutional amendment placed on the ballot for voter consideration in 1996.

City Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin said changes in state-shared revenue could do "major damage to our city," eventually forcing Westland and other cities to cut services or seek local tax increases.

Supporters of Engler's plan have argued that, even under the proposed changes, cities would still see a dollar increase for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

That is true, local officials concede, but they are quick to note that the governor's plan would siphon $457,000 that the current formula would have allotted for Westland.

Westland received $7,295,000 for the current fiscal year that ends June 30. Even that was $80,000 less than city officials had anticipated, Thomas said.

But the deeper cuts, as local officials view them, would come during the next fiscal year, when the city would receive $7,679,000 instead of the $8,136,000 that Thomas said is called for in the formula.

The city is expected to absorb the difference and still end the 1995-96 fiscal year with a $1.5-million budget surplus, Thomas said. But he and other city leaders fear that deeper cuts in state-shared revenue could be looming in coming years.

A constitutional amendment is the only way that cities can be assured of protecting what they believe is their fair share of state-shared revenue, Thomas said.

Griffin has criticized the state for considering the changes "just because it happens to be a good year" for many municipalities.

Thomas said it's possible the proposed changes could be scrapped.

"It could happen. You never know what will happen up in the Legislature," he said.

But Thomas said cities can't afford to sit back and trust that the state will look out for local interests.

The mayor said he plans to address the state-shared revenue situation on Friday, when he will speak to the Conference of Western Wayne.

If the revenues are scaled back, Westland will see some fallout, Thomas said. For example, officials may have to scrap plans for a large wooden play structure that the city wants to build near the Bailey Recreation Center, he said.

The city also could have to reduce the money that officials hoped to spend for advanced life support system training for fire department employees, Thomas said.

The mayor said cities have shown that they are more capable than the state at keeping expenditures in line with inflation. He cited a study by Plante & Moran, an auditing and accounting firm.

The study showed that municipal spending rose an average of 18.6 percent during a five-year period beginning in 1988, Thomas said. That compared to a 36-percent increase in state spending, he said.

Water Act.

"The water loss will begin to come down as we continue to remove bypasses and change the large commercial meters in our city."

The mayor added that he is proposing that the city's fund equity, or unallocated surplus, be retained at $1.5 million.

The council will hold a series of departmental budget meetings for the next few weeks.

Of the proposed $14.47 millage rate, $6.84 is for the general fund. The rest is primarily for the police/fire retirement system, rubbish collection and incineration.

whether Bennett will face additional charges in that community.

Bennett was arrested after the girl's mother became suspicious of a possible relationship and authorities launched an investigation.

The girl initiated the phone call to Bennett at his home after telling police and prosecutors during a meeting at the prosecutor's office that she wanted to talk to Bennett, Sumeracki said.

"It sounded like she was a mixed-up girl," he said, describing the girl as "upset."

Sumeracki took the girl to the Wayne police station, and she agreed to have the conversation taped, said Sumeracki, the only witness to testify Monday. Sumeracki conceded that he suggested some issues that the girl raised with Bennett.

Under questioning from Tukel, Sumeracki admitted later telling Bennett that he had been "set up" by the girl.

Tukel argued that Bennett was tricked into making statements about the relationship. The charge of obstructing justice stems from allegations that Bennett encouraged the girl to lie.

■ Sumeracki took the girl to the Wayne police station, and she agreed to have the conversation taped, said Sumeracki, the only witness to testify Monday. Sumeracki conceded that he suggested some issues that the girl raised with Bennett.

According to transcript exerpts read Monday, Bennett is said to have told the girl, "Do the right thing."

"What's the right thing, Pat?" she responded.

"What do you think?" he replied.

Bennett also talked about "saving our relationship," according to court testimony based on the transcript.

Authorities indicated that Bennett may have tried to gain sympathy at one point by telling the girl, "F--- it, I'll go to jail."

But Tukel argued that the statement could have indicated that Bennett wasn't trying to obstruct the investigation.

Some portions of the tape are inaudible, but Sumeracki said the recording was somewhat enhanced after he took it to an audio business.

Tukel questioned whether the tape might have been altered, but Sumeracki dismissed such implications.

Archbold decided that the question of the tape being altered wasn't at issue, though she delayed until Monday a ruling on whether Bennett's right to privacy was violated.

In other testimony, Sumeracki said police found sex devices, body oils, greeting cards, notes and other items when a search warrant was executed March 1 at the residence of Bennett's parents, in the 38800 block of Parkview in Wayne. Bennett was living in the basement.

The sex devices and body oils were found in a duffel bag, prompting Tukel to question whether officers should have looked in the bag.

Bennett's hearing is scheduled to resume at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Wayne District Court, and the girl could be called to testify. A hearing on the Westland charges is set for April 13.

Bennett could face up to 15 years in prison if convicted of third-degree criminal sexual conduct. He could face a five-year sentence if found guilty of obstructing justice.

Company vice president Steve Simcock has stressed that Textron has cooperated with county pollution officials on air-quality tests that have shown no excessive emission levels.

Residents say foul fumes often permeate their neighborhood, and Westland fire officials said they, too, detected a "burnt electrical" odor near the plant, which has been making automotive headliners and door panels since July 1992.

Jerry McGue also was critical that the plant receives a tax abatement.

"I don't get one," he said Monday.

Council president Thomas Brown assured residents Monday that the city will work with pollution control experts to determine the cause of the odor. But he suggested that residents should allow time for further tests.

Sinha has told the Observer that he hopes to complete the tests by summer.

Councilman David Cox noted that emissions might not be toxic, but he said residents still deserve to know what is being released into the air.

Mayor Robert Thomas said Monday that the city should explore the possibility of paying for some independent air-quality tests, though he said costs would have to be considered.

AIDS quilts on display

At Detroit's Cobo Center Sunday, an AIDS panel made by Livonia school district high school students became one of 200 newly made panels which will become part of the 27,000-panel AIDS Memorial Quilt.

The district serves the northern portion of Westland. High school students in that section attend either Franklin or Churchill.

After being displayed this week, along with 5,000 other panels that are part of the quilt, Stevenson High School's panel will be sent to California, where it will be sewed together with other panels made in Michigan.

These panels will then be shown throughout Michigan whenever the AIDS Memorial Quilt is displayed.

Students at all three Livonia high schools — Churchill, Franklin and Stevenson — have made panels for the Memorial Quilt. Students have dedicated the panels to all those who have died from AIDS, and not to one person alone.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt will be displayed at the Cobo Center from Thursday until Sunday as part of the state's first AIDS awareness week. With 5,000 panels, it covers more than the size of two football fields.

Student earns honor

A Westland teen has won a bronze medal for skills learned in the culinary arts program at the William Ford Vocational-Technical Center.

Ryan St. John, an 11th-grader, won the medal for artistic decoration during a food show Sunday at New Center One in Detroit, said Chef Kris Jablonski, who teaches at the Ford center.

Three other students received diplomas during the food show, including 11th-grader Nick Schmidt of Wayne, 11th-grader Christopher Boulton of Westland, and 12th-grader Kathy Ramsey of Romulus, Jablonski said.

"They all received medals in my mind," he said.

The food show was sponsored by the Michigan Chefs Association and the Michigan Restaurants Association.

More than 300 participants were involved in competitions for the high school level, college level and professional level, Jablonski said.

Man sentenced to prison for stabbing

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Livonia man has been sentenced to prison for 16 months to four years for stabbing a Westland man with a piece of broken glass during an Oct. 25 fight.

Daniel Clark Hughes, 32, was sentenced Friday by Detroit Recorder's Court Judge George W. Crockett III after being convicted of felonious assault March 14 during a bench trial.

Hughes was charged after he went to Jason Martin's upper flat, in the 35200 block of Marquette, and assaulted him on the evening of Oct. 25. Martin was sharing the residence with Hughes' former girlfriend, Westland police Sgt. Leonard West has said.

Hughes went to Martin's residence because he believed that Martin had some of his belongings, West said.

During a court hearing in November, Martin testified that he was asleep when he was awakened by Hughes pounding on his door. When he opened it, Hughes lunged at him and swung a 40-ounce bottle toward his head, Martin said.

Hughes made death threats during the attack, Martin said.

Martin moved out of Hughes' path, avoiding being hit by the bottle, but the two men then struggled and fell into a window that shattered, according to court testimony.

Hughes then picked up a piece of broken glass and stabbed Martin in the back and on the hand, Martin testified.

The fight was overheard by two neighbors who came to Martin's residence and helped to restrain Hughes until police arrived at the flat, Martin said.

The two men had known each other about three years, he said.

During a preliminary hearing in November, Judge C. Charles Bokos ordered Hughes to stand trial as charged for felonious assault, but said he believes the charge possibly should have been "more severe."

Felonious assault carries a maximum penalty of four years in prison.

Students 'constructing' reading improvement

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

Patchin Elementary School students are taking part in a major construction project, wearing plastic "hard hats" and heeding "construction zone" signs.

But the signs and hats have nothing to do with a brick and mortar project at the school, on Newburgh between Ford and Warren roads.

They are related to students engaged in a month-long reading improvement program, called "Constructing readers, constructing meaning."

Patricia McAllister, Patchin's learning consultant, said she got the idea for the program through a definition of reading which says:

"Reading is an interactive process of constructing meaning among the reader, the text and the context."

McAllister said, "It would seem appropriate to use the words from this definition, which points to what we all attempt to to when we read something — get something from the text."

The consultant said the theme is being used in Patchin's learning center and throughout the school.

"The idea of constructing meaning (in reading) was expanded to include things necessary to construct buildings, highways, model airplanes and other things," she said. "These activities require that the builder have a plan and tools to use in constructing their project.

"A good reader also has to have a plan and tools with which to construct the message in the text. Some construction workers also wear hard hats, so all of the learning center students have hard hats which they wear when they are here in the 'construction zone.'"

McAllister and learning center paraprofessional Chris Snowden have been working for the entire school year teaching their students the plans that research has shown good readers use.

"These plans include knowing whether we are reading a story or an informational text and the kinds of things we find in text structure," McAllister said.

"For instance, stories generally have consistent and predictable patterns that include characters, setting, problem and resolution.

"Informational texts are usually based on a topic and include main ideas and facts/details. Knowing these things helps readers set purposes for reading."

Like real construction workers, Patchin students also have a collection of tools that can be used in reading, especially if the pupil runs into a new word or doesn't understand a concept or idea in the text.

"Such tools include fix-up strategies which are alternative approaches to solving problems with vocabulary or comprehension," McAllister said.

She brings to her program her role as chairwoman of a Michigan Educational Assessment (MEAP) learning consultant committee which developed "fix-up" bookmarks and posters to be used in classrooms and the learning center.

McAllister said her students use the bookmarks and posters constantly.

With March designated "reading month," McAllister and Snowden served as "construction foremen" who observed students' performances and helped the pupils develop consistency in the use of their plans and tools as they read and write about self-selected stories and informational texts.

Besides helping the youngsters become good readers, the "construction zone" theme prepares students for the fourth-grade MEAP reading test, to be given next fall.

"The MEAP test and our theme are constructed from the same research-based definition of reading," the consultant said. "The skills and plans students are learning are the same skills and plans they will need to be successful on the MEAP test."

Adviser helps businesses take advantage of Internet

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Probably the major development on the Internet last year has been the growth of the World Wide Web and the growth of commercial activity on the WWW.

The growth in 1994 was due primarily to the introduction of the Mosaic Web browser the year before. With the popularity of Mosaic, Cello and Netscape, users now have easy access to the Web's graphics, sounds and film. With more and more users arriving at WWW sites, it was only natural that businesses also would seek a presence on the Web.

The commercial presence has resulted in a spin-off industry that is developing — companies that offer Internet marketing and sales consulting, business training, and Web home page construction services. Most businesses do not have the expertise in-house to take full advantage of the Internet and so are turning to such enterprises as The Internet Factory in Birmingham.

The Internet Factory was founded by P.J. Stafford, a 30-year-old with an MBA from Harvard Business School who managed a large manufacturing plant for MascoTech and before that started a high growth business. An electronics commerce specialist, Stafford is interested in the ability of technology to change the world for the better and in helping business people sense the real opportunities in the Internet communications revolution.

Stafford's company not only builds and sells WWW home pages but promotes them on the Internet and advises customers on the best use of the hypertext links the Web world provides. The Internet Factory also will set up an e-mail auto-responder service for customers, will set up an File Transfer Protocol (FTP) site or an FTP link on a WWW home page, order processing services, domain registration, electronic mailing lists, and similar functions.

Stafford also provides Internet training sessions for businesses or individuals. He has some two-three hour workshops slated this month at the Birmingham Community House on Doing Business on the Internet, Marketing on the Internet, and Connecting to the Internet. Business on the Internet classes are scheduled on April 18 and May 4.

I have read one of the white papers Stafford has done on marketing products and services on the Internet with a focus on the Web. As to opportunity, Stafford writes: "Very recent improvements to portions of the Internet, especially the portion known as the World Wide Web, have opened up tremendous new opportunities to reach niche markets and to profitably sell products, services and information at volumes which could not be justified in traditional channels." He points out that business users now account for more than 50 percent of the 40 million Internet subscribers and that three-fourths of the new subscribers belong to the business community.

I am in tune with some of the points he makes, and fascinated by others. For instance, "The Internet is not a mass market advertising vehicle. It is a market of niches and if your organization's product or service appeals to one or more of these niches, you have a new way to inexpensively reach and interact with potential customers, and to deepen your relationship with existing customers."

On flexibility, Stafford cautions: "Your World Wide Web site is your private property and you are free to do what you like with it. That is one of the reasons it is such an attractive medium for commercial organizations. However, if you ignore the advice of providing good, broad information even on your private WWW site, you can expect other World Wide Web sites not to link to you, effectively cutting off the flow of new visitors and discouraging your few visitors from coming back again."

Internet users like the "soft sell" and like to "pull" the information they want, writes Stafford, not be forced to read or receive unnecessary information. "Information overload is a debilitating disease in the Information Age and you need to help your customers cope with it, not exacerbate the condition."

The advantages of a WWW site Stafford points to include: No cost to provide information to an additional user; no cost to provide additional information to a given user; no cost to provide timely update of information; low cost of providing customization for and interactivity with the user; relatively low fixed cost to set up and maintain a WWW server once you have high-speed Internet connection.

One of the recent tasks The Internet Factory has completed was to establish a WWW site called T Bill Direct for J.W. Korth & Company, an investment firm in Farmington Hills. T Bill Direct includes free information for investors about U.S. Treasury securities, shows how to buy them directly (even without Korth's involvement), and allows Korth to sell its product all over the world. Check out this site with Lynx or your Web browser at http://www.netfactory.com/mondenet/tbill.html.

You can check out The Internet Factory's own home page at http://www.netfactory.com. For information send a blank e-mail message to info@netfactory.com for a detailed automated response. Or for information send an e-mail message directly to Stafford at pj@netfactory.com.

Business tax breaks OK'd as lawmakers flip-flop

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

After squashing Gov. John Engler's business tax break plan two weeks ago, the state House reversed itself and gave him a big victory.

Tuesday's vote was 68-35 with six not voting. The March 22 vote had been 36-57 with 16 not voting.

"Sometimes there are more whores on the floor of this House than there are on Eight Mile Road," said Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, who voted no both times.

The issue was MEGA — or Michigan Economic Growth Authority. The bills go back to the Senate for concurrence in House amendments, which will "sunset" the authority in two years rather than four and limit beneficiaries to 25 firms a year.

MEGA will be an eight-member board in the Jobs Commission that will pick which businesses qualify for single business tax credits for 20 years for adding 75 or more jobs in Michigan. Wage rates would have to be at least 150 percent of the federal minimum wage.

The board would be subject to the Open Meetings Act, but could keep financial and proprietary information a secret under the Freedom of Information Act.

MEGA represents a 180-degree turnaround for Engler, a Republican who has opposed "government picking winners and losers" in the economy. It shows the influence of Doug Rothwell, the new head of the Jobs Commission, which handles many programs formerly run by the Commerce Department.

Altogether, 45 of the 109 lawmakers changed votes:

- 26 switched from no to yes — 23 Democrats and three Republicans. One was Gerry Law, R-Plymouth. He said local developers convinced him there would be help for small businesses that provide most of the state's job growth.
- 15 switched from not voting to yes — 10 Democrats and five Republicans.
- Two Republicans switched from yes to no, and two other Republicans switched from yes to not voting.

Word leaking from the Democratic caucus was that the minority party was promised no major changes in workers' compensation law. Rep. Greg Pitoniak, D-Taylor, assistant floor leader, called the final MEGA version "a good product of bipartisan negotiation."

A three-hour, 20-minute debate was spent entirely on knocking down opponents' amendments with virtually no talk about the merits of the program.

Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, lost his amendment to require a company locating jobs outside of Michigan to pay back 50 percent of its tax breaks.

"We don't need this," replied sponsor Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance. "This is self-regulating. If a company doesn't produce jobs, it doesn't get credits." She said 44 other states give such tax breaks.

Rep. Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, lost his amendment to deny firms local property tax breaks if they received MEGA single business tax breaks. Kelly was backed by Rep. David Jaye, R-Washington Township: "Why should corporate brass get double-dips? This is a new form of corporate welfare? Shall we outfit their homes and give them country club memberships? Is there no shame?"

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, lost his amendment to require companies applying for MEGA breaks to list their political contributions. Kaza blistered the MEGA effort as "a new government bureaucracy whose function is industrial policy and the selection of economic winners and losers."

Jaye lost several amendments: to deny SBT breaks to firms that had defaulted on past tax liabilities, and to require a public hearing "to see if affected workers want to have a new company get a tax break that they (their employers) don't have."

Welfare bill boosts money that recipients may earn

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

The record $7.75 billion Social Services budget Bob Geake guided through the state Senate would have been higher if minority Democrats had had their way.

"I propose a 1-percent increase in the basic (welfare) grant. There's been hardly any increase in the last 15 years," said Sen. Joe Conroy, D-Flint. "At least let's give them some semblance of a safety net they can live on."

Conroy argued that although welfare grants had risen 8 percent in 15 years, their purchasing power slipped 40 percent.

Welfare clients must spend an average of 71 percent on housing, "leaving $138 a month for utilities, clothing and personal items, and that's for a family of three. They did not benefit from the property tax reduction. One percent is kind of a pittance, about $4.50 a month."

"That $4.50 figure is correct," said Geake, R-Northville, "but we have a better deal for welfare recipients. They can earn an extra $200 without having their welfare grant reduced. It's better than awarding a COLA (cost of living allowance) to people who are not working."

"It's not a budget breaker," replied Conroy. "To get an interview with an employer, those tennis shoes with holes in the toes need to be replaced."

Conroy's amendment failed on a 16-18 party-line vote. The next day (March 31), the Senate went on to give the Department of Social Services appropriations bill final approval 28 to 9 and sent it to the House.

Area senators voting yes: Republicans Loren Bennett of Canton, and Geake, whose district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township; Livonia and Redford; and Democrat George Z. Hart of Dearborn.

"It's the largest and most complex bill in the appropriations process," said Geake, who is vice chair of the full Senate Appropriations Committee and for 10 years has had the annual chore of putting together the Social Services bill.

At a time when Gov. John Engler has been getting national attention as a welfare chopper, Michigan's actual appropriation has continued to climb. Engler proposed $7.8 billion, a 4-percent increase over last year. The Senate came through with $254 million less, still a 3.4-percent hike over 1994 in a period when inflation is 2.6 percent.

Some highlights:

- Federal funds amount to $4.3 billion, up 3.9 percent.
- Adoption subsidies are up 32 percent, from $62 million to nearly $79 million. Engler has made a major effort to facilitate adoption with money and supportive laws. His goals: to reduce abortions and find kids permanent families.
- Foster care providers will get a 3-percent boost.
- The Aid to Families with Dependent Children caseload is expected to drop from 226,500 to 198,000. "Given that the January 1995 caseload has already fallen to 206,623, this estimate would appear to be within reason," said the Senate Fiscal Agency analysis. If it happens, it would be the first time in more than a decade the caseload has dropped below 200,000.

The Senate adopted one Conroy amendment — to increase the number of Medicaid authorized visits to chiropractors from 12 to 24 a year.

KAREN MEIER

Doctor, doctor, who's at fault?

The earliest the doctor can have a look at Jack is 3:30 this afternoon. Can you bring him in then, Mrs. Meier?

Let's see. Tony and Carmen get out of school at 3:35; they'll have to be home alone until I get back from the doctor. I'll tell them. I'll be at school this afternoon anyway. I've got to pick up the 44 pounds of food ordered through the fund-raising co-op. It's marked right here — food pickup between 2:30 and 3:30 today only. So that'll work out just fine.

I'll make it work. I'll leave the house at 3, apprise the older children, pick up my order in the gym, zip to the appointment, fly home in time for the 4:10 carpool gymnastic run to Westland, zoom home, do the traffic tango across town for the 5 piano lesson, tango home to clean the storm door (Jack with ear infection-related symptoms will undoubtedly smear things on the glass), clean the guest bathroom, join the Plymouth rush hour to retrieve the piano child, sweep the front hall, make dinner, gobble dinner, clean up, set up chairs, put out snacks, advise the president of the United States on important matters, perform brain surgery, sharpen seven pencils and at 7 fling open the front door for Cub Scout Den 6. Our turn to hold the meeting, you know.

"Yes," I told the receptionist, "I'll bring Jack in at 3:30," and hung up the phone.

So for four more hours I soothed fussy, ear-in

Careerists eye district honor

■ Juggling a career and parenthood is a way of life for Jackie Bona and Maureen Miller Brosnan who have earned Young Careerist honors from two Business and Professional Women's clubs.

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

Jackie Bona is a woman on the move, combining a new career and new motherhood.

The 26-year-old mother of 1-year-old twin boys is the 1995 Young Careerist for the Garden City Chapter of Business and Professional Women.

For Maureen Miller Brosnan, 1995 has been especially good.

On Feb. 22, she was chosen to be the newest member of the Livonia City Council. Shortly earlier, the mother of a 3-month-old had been named the 1995 Young Careerist by the Suburban West Business and Professional Women of Livonia.

Come Saturday, April 8, Bona and Miller Brosnan will be among a select group of Young Careerists vying for district honors and a chance to compete at the state level.

Started in 1964 by national president Virginia Allen of the Michigan federation, the program is the BPW's way of recognizing the accomplishments of successful young career women while introducing them to the ideals and standards of the national organization. It also gives young careerist candidates the chance to network with other professionals early in their career.

Such has been the case for Catherine Hodge, the Garden City BPW's 1994 Young Careerist, who handled the club's program this year.

"It was a wonderful experience for me," said Hodge, an attorney with Rose & Bevelheimer of Westland, specializing in real estate and business law. "The women I met at the district level — two attorneys and two in public relations — were extraordinary young women. I've maintained contact with some of them."

Like Hodge, Bona is an attorney. She passed the State Bar exam around the same time her boys were born Dec. 24, 1993.

"I'm in general practice, working as an independent contractor out of my home," said Bona, who earned her law degree from the Detroit College of Law. While in law school, she worked for the St. Clair County prosecutor's office.

Bona earned a bachelor of arts degree from the James Madison College at Michigan State University, where her focus was political science. She is a 1986 graduate of Churchill High School in Livonia.

A resident of Westland since October, she and her husband, Anthony, are members of St. Theodore's

VISION THERAPY TESTIMONIAL

"Never where I look at the letters until there is a page in front of me. I don't have to read but it is fun to do it."
Lee Drops' Handwriting

Lee Drops
Grade: 5
Miller Elementary
Canton

Our son Lee, age ten, loves to read, enjoys sports, and does well in school. Unfortunately, he always got headaches after reading, writing tasks were tedious for him, and he was very sensitive to sunlight. He often rubbed his eyes, especially after reading. We suspected he had a vision problme and took him for a routine eye exam at Vision Associates of Westland. We were surprised to find that his eyesight was fine, but that he had, a slight convergence problem. The doctor explained that this was a muscle control problem where the eyes have difficulty staying turned in when looking at things at close range. When we described Lee's nightly headaches after reading and his dislike of drawing and writing tasks, Dr. Kennedy suggested testing him when his eyes were fatigued. After reading for two hours, Lee's eyes showed severe convergence insufficiency. He attended vision therapy for 14 weeks and did daily exercises at home. Lee noticed improvement after just four sessions. He told us, "Now when I look at the board and then down at my paper, I don't have to wait for it not be be blurry." Lee no longer gets headaches when reading, writing is easier for him and his sensitivity to sunlight is greatly reduced. Lee has always loved to read but now he can truly enjoy it!

Scouts, and cleaned for them, too. I then gathered up Jack, 3-year-old Joe, and went to school. I did everything I had to do there. Then drove to the doctor's office where we experienced a holding pattern, gridlock thing in the parking lot for exactly three minutes. We were three minutes late. I apologized and sat down.

The minutes ticked by. Jack yanked on his ear. His nose had truly become a thing of wonder. 3:40 and 3:45 came and went. 3:51 came and went. 3:59 and 4 came and went. 4:04 and 4:05 came and went. With the panic rising in my chest I went to the receptionist's window. I stood there a bit as she tidied up stray paper clips. She opened one glass window.

"Yes?"

"I'm really sorry, but I've got no choice. I'm going to have to leave. I've got two children home alone and a zillion other reasons for leaving, and I've got to do it."

"I'll reschedule the appointment. Tomorrow, OK?"

This is horrible. Reschedule a baby's ear infection appointment for the next day? The child's ear will blow off his head in the middle of the night.

"I think I'll bring him in a little later today, probably early evening. I know this office'll be closed, but the walk-in clinic, that'll be open." The Cub Scouts and toilets could wait.

"Hmmm," the receptionist replied. "What insurance do you have?"

A caring smile then spread across the face of this woman and the light of deep understanding and compassion shone in her eyes. Jack's ears had found their way into her heart. She rose from her chair, sought out the doctor and explained things. She mentioned how I'd never even ever brought any of my children in on a false alarm before and this time, she could tell, was no different.

The doctor, trusting the woman who had trusted me, wrote out a prescription for the common ear infection medicine, Amoxicillin. The woman then hurried over to the glass window and handed me the prescription. In no time, baby Jack felt relief and his little ear suffered no more. And we've all been living happily ever after since then.

That stuff in the italics just now? All of it — a Big Fat Lie.

What the woman really did was this. She first hmmmmphed at me when I told her what insurance we had and then she said, "Insurance won't pay for the visit to the walk-in clinic later today because you missed this appointment." This was not helpful.

But I had to do what I had to do, so I did. I didn't argue (I had no time and I'm really not one to do that sort of thing anyway). I gathered my children in my arms, wiped Jack's nose, and silently admitted defeat. The receptionist won; baby Jack lost.

Days later, when I had the time, I allowed my underwear to get in a major knot over all this. They're still in a knot. So if you've got a minute, could you help me with this?

I need to know what you think. What should I have done? What would you have done? Was it a bad thing that happened in the doctor's office that day last month? Who was bad? Me? The receptionist? The doctor? Jack? Is this similar to anything that has happened to you? Let me know, call or write.

For Jack's sake, for your children's sakes, for anybody's sake who's ever gone to the doctor, for goodness sake, let's talk about this.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

"It's difficult to work at home with small children. I need a stable environment. I'd like to work for a firm three days a week. I do general law — criminal defense, wills, basic general practice."

Bona clinched the BPW title based on career achievements, interviews with a panel of judges, and a prepared speech. Her five-minute talk centered on "Equal Employment Opportunities for Women."

Miller Brosnan is a self-employed public relations specialist who develops and manages fund-raising, media relations and promotional programs for corporations and non-profit organizations.

Miller Brosnan earned a bachelor of arts degree in journalism and public relations from Central Michigan University and is working toward a master's degree at Michigan State University.

She has an extensive background in community projects. She is a member of the Livonia Community Foundation, two St. Mary Hospital committees, the Livonia Prayer Breakfast committee, and the Livonia Town Hall advisory board.

She has worked also as an account assistant, vice president and senior counselor at Publicom Inc. in Southfield and Lansing.

"It was an honor to receive the Young Careerist award," said Miller Brosnan, 31. "I appreciated the opportunity to reflect on the influences that molded my life."

The district competition is scheduled for April 8 at the Embassy Suites Hotel in Southfield.

The Young Careerist program is sponsored by Business & Professional Women/USA to highlight the achievements of women and men between the ages of 21 and 35 who have been employed full time for at least one year in their career area and support the goals and objectives of BPW/USA.

BPW/USA supports legislation, education and funding to secure pay equity, equal treatment and educational and economic equality in all areas of employment for women; eliminate all forms of violence against women; ensure reproductive freedom and access to family planning; secure equal educational opportunity; and ensure available, affordable, quality dependent care and health care.

Patent leather returns for spring

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

As Barbara Carey sees it: Fashion isn't the most important thing in life; feeling good about yourself is.

That was the message she brought to the final installment of the 1994-95 Livonia Town Hall.

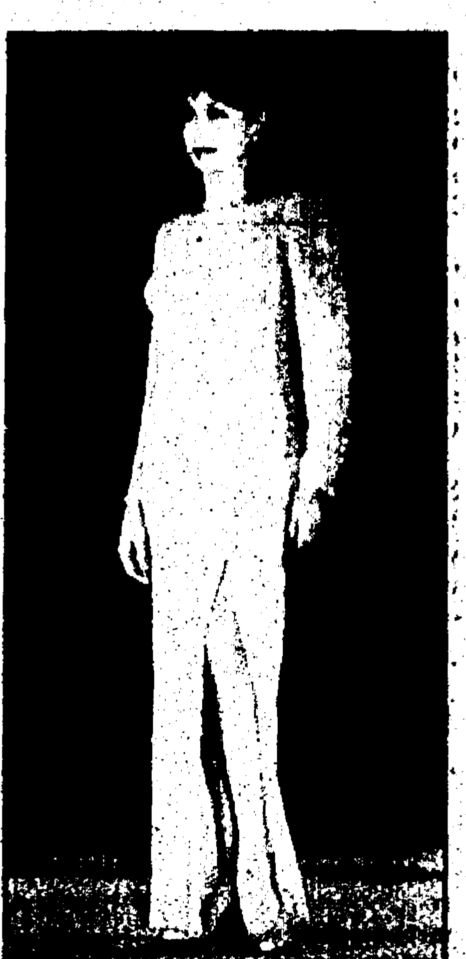
A switch from the usual lecture series, Carey and partner Barbara Mazer, showcased the latest spring fashions, featuring the stores of Twelve Oaks Mall —Icings, Liz Claiborne, The Limited, Gantos, Lili Rubin, Winkelman's, The Gap and August Max, to name a few.

Sometimes decribing figure flaws as "who-whos," Carey combined a game plan for updating "a closet full of clothes and nothing to wear," with fashions for work, play and formal affairs.

"How many of you go shopping and bring home a 14th white blouse, forgetting that you have 13 more at home?" she asked. "Don't just buy clothes because they're a good price and it will fit in your wardrobe. There's no blending of clothes, that's why you end up with too many outfits and nothing to wear."

The first step away from that, according to Carey, is to get rid of clothes you haven't worn in the last two or three years. People get tired of their clothes because they wear the same things all the time. One way to see what you really have is to organize your closet, separating outfits into pieces — blouses with blouses, skirts with skirts and the like.

The next step is to make lists of what you have, putting them into in columns. Then, she said, take the list shopping.



STAFF PHOTOS BY JIM JAGDFELD

Shopping mistakes

"The problem is we bring home too many mistakes," Carey said. "Take a day and go shopping. See what's in the stores. Go in and talk to the clothes. Anyone can get up in the morning and put on a skirt and blouse, but it's what you do after that counts. 'What else can I do with it;' that's what I want you to think.

"We want to be the best we can be and be as comfortable as we can be with ourselves."

One thing to look at is the buttons on this season's fashions. The idea is to see if you can change the look of the clothes you already have by changing the button.

Among the fashion trends this spring and summer are styles and accessories reminiscent of the '70s. The little skinny belt is back and belting practically anything is in as well. Vintage jewelry, chain belts and flower pins are back as are the wrap dress made popular by designer Diane Von Furstenberg.

Hemlines this season are either just above the knee or very short. The classic leg in back for pants which should "lay nicely on the leg and not be scrunched up on top of the shoe," according to Carey.

Other styles showing up this season is the little purse, anything strappy in shoes and, specifically, black patent leather shoes. In fact, patent leather shoes are THE shoes this spring and summer and can be worn "with almost everything you put on," Carey said. And the stockings to wear with those shoes comes in " a wonderful color" called nude, she added.

One suggestion Carey has is to get accessories out of the drawers so you can see what you have.

"Take a wall in the bedroom and put hooks on it so you can hang up your belts and bags; get your accessories out of those drawers," Carey said. "Organize you closet and then tell your husband to use the closet in the other room."

Carey also suggest that women "think about fabrics when buying clothes." Look for materials that can be worn nine months a year.

"Fabrics are very important," she said. "It's what you feel comfortable in."

The new colors

And while you're looking at the fabric look for the new navy blue. The color is back in style "better than ever" and darker than before. But the "hottest color" this season is pink, Carey said.

Carey also cautions women to look in the mirror when trying on clothes. Because they fit doesn't mean they the best choice.

"You want to hide your figure flaws," CArey said. "If you can see them, we can see them and believe me, no one wants to see your figure problems. Remember that.

"When we're over 12 years old, there's a point when we should look beautiful, elegant and classy. We want to walk in to a room and say, 'God, don't we look good.'"

Town Hall president Dee Dee Dittmar used the close of the lecture to introduce the lineup for the 32nd season. It will open on Oct. 18 with Linda Newman, a third generation astrologer who will explore the mysteries of angel, cherubim and seraphim.

On Nov. 15, well-known storyteller Florence Dinghy Sharp will share her version of her great-grandfather Clement Moore's famous poem, "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" and other holiday memories.

Radio personality Mike Whorf, host of WJR's afternoon "Kaleidoscope" program, will share memories of when radio was king on Jan. 17; while Weldon Petz will close out the season on March 20 with a lecture about the Big Band Sound.

Back by popular demand, Petz's music history began at a young age when he traveled the performing circuit and joined the Special Service Command of the Army Air Corps during World War II. He also played trombone for Tommy Dorsey and recorded with Ella Fitzgerald.

Writer needs people in her life

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

I am right-handed and 65 years old. I guess I usually write this way, but there are times when I print my messages. The trouble with all of this is that how I print or write will depend on the type of pen I am using — that is why I have used several pens.

Why do you need to know a person's age?

V.C.,
Plymouth

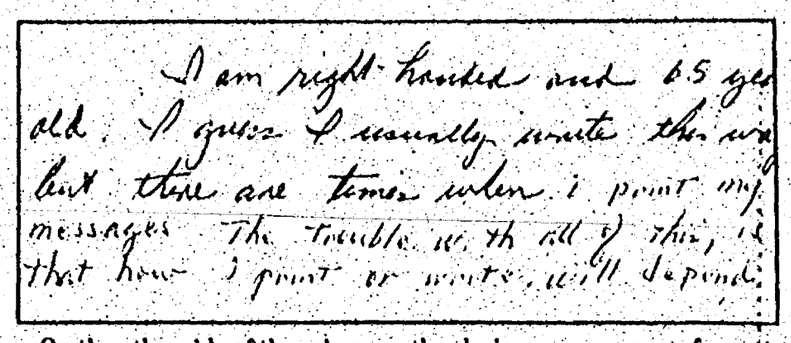
At the end of every column I ask for three things that are necessary for an analysis. First, age, because it helps the analyst determine how emotionally mature the writer is. Second, handedness, because there are some things which left-handers write differently than right-handers. Third, the signature, because when it is compared to the text of the handwriting it can tell the analyst how the writer wishes to be perceived by others.

If the signature is given, the analyst is able to compare it to the writing to see if it is in accord with the image revealed in the text. Unfortunately, this sample did not include a signature, only printed initials, so it limits the amount of information from which I can work.

This sample contains three lines of cursive writing, four lines of printing and another 1¼ lines of cursive, all in different colored ink. All these lines slant to the right, telling us she is a social person who needs people in her life.

Different styles of handwriting speak to us of fluctuating moods. A versatile person can also be seen here.

Her handwriting also tells us she has many different ways to deal with daily living. At various times, she is upbeat, buoyant and enthusiastic. A tad of flirtatiousness and a fun-loving nature also come into focus. In addition, she often finds it necessary to appease and/or acquiesce to keep the peace.



On the other side of the coin we see she can be rather firmly based once her mind is made up. On occasion she may want to oppose and have her own way.

This woman has a strong need to be in control. Augmenting this is a need to control others.

A seeming contradiction can be seen in her need to acquiesce and her need to control. Both traits co-exist within her personality and can cause ambivalence for her.

There is an element of resentment in this handwriting. Seemingly, she feels she has, in the past, been taken advantage of or made to feel like the patsy. This has caused her to be on guard with other people. Possibly a little deviousness can surface at times.

Our writer is not an open book. She is able to conceal what she does not wish others to know about her. She has a probing mind and the ability to arrive at viable ideas and solutions to problems.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Hospice classes aim at grief support

Community Hospice Services is offering two grief support series, beginning April 11 and 12, at its Westland offices.

The children's grief support series will be 6:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, April 11, and will conclude with a group memorial service on Tuesday, May 16. The series is for children age 6 years and older who have suffered a significant loss of a loved one. Optional parent sessions are held concurrently during the first five weeks of the children's program.

"Adults are easily able to identify that they are grieving while children are not," said Vicki DesJardins, director of social services for Community Hospice Services. "They may not experience sadness, anger, longing, fear, anxiety and a range of other emotions. They may not be able to identify their emotions or to realize that these emotions are part of a normal grieving process."

The series will give children a safe, shared environment to voice and explore any ideas, concerns or questions they have about death and how it affects their lives. Such topics as reactions and feelings associated with loss, defenses and protecting feelings, support systems and coping and adjusting will be covered.

"We can help children to process their grief in a way that gives them skills which will sustain them throughout life," DesJardins said. "The children will learn that while their loved one will never be forgotten, they will eventually be remembered with less pain."

In addition, Community Hospice Services has a monthly drop-in support group for children, Connections, that meets 6:30-8:30 p.m. the fourth Wednesday of the month at the agency's Westland office, 32932 Warren Road at Venoy, Suite 100.

The adult grief support classes will meet for six consecutive weeks 6:30-8 p.m. and will conclude with a group memorial service in May.

The classes, for adults who have suffered a significant loss of a loved one, provide support and education on all aspects of grief recovery. To register or for more information, call DesJardins or bereavement coordinator Joan Johnson at (313) 522-4244.

'The Journey': The Contemporary Ensemble of Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church rehearses a scene from "The Journey," a multimedia production featuring live acting, dancing and a giant video screen written by Randall Bonser, a graduate of Livonia Bentley High School.

Musical dramas celebrate Christ's life

As people of various faiths prepare to celebrate the resurrection of Christ, a number of churches are including musical dramas as part of their observances.

Redford Baptist Church, Grand River and Seven Mile Road, Redford, will present "The Choice," a musical drama by Robert and Cindy Sterling, at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 7-8. The production will feature Scott Crownover as Marcus and Teresa Ostrovich as Hannah, with Jeanine Stiles and Crownover directing. Musical director is Donna Gleason.

There is no admission charge, so come early for good seating. For more information, call (313) 533-2300.

Calvary Baptist Church will present "One Voice," a musical drama featuring the Celebration Choir and Drama Ministry, at 6 p.m. Palm Sunday, April 9, and 8 p.m. Good Friday, April 14.

"One Voice" is the story of two Jewish leaders and their personal struggles when confronted with the life and teaching of Jesus Christ. Admission is free; however, an offering will be received. The church is at 43065 Joy Road, Canton. For more information, call (313) 455-0022.

Temple Baptist Church will present its annual Easter dramatic musical, "The Glory of Easter," at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 7-8 and 14-15, and 5 p.m. Sunday, April 9. The musical is based on the real meaning of Easter.

Tickets for the 1¼-hour production are $3 and $5 for balcony and main-floor seating. Children under age 4 will not be admitted. Tickets are available through the church, 23800 W. Chicago, Redford, or by calling (313) 255-3339.

Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church of Livonia will present "The Journey," a contemporary musical production aimed at not only Christians, but also unchurched people who may be searching for spiritual truth, but who are not into traditional church pageants or organ concerts.

The multimedia production features live acting, dancing and a giant video screen, but also the music of Dana Key, longtime Christian pop/rock artist. His album, "The Journey," is a collection of songs celebrating the effect Christ had on individuals who came in contact with him.

"The Journey" is written by Randall Bonser, a graduate of Livonia Bentley High School, who is a writer and youth minister with a background in theater and video production. The Contemporary Ensemble from Ward will be featured, with Jerry Smith and his wife, Sharon, handling the musical direction and executive production.

"The Journey" will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 7-8, and 7 p.m. Sunday, April 9. Admission is free. Ward Church is at Farmington and Six Mile roads in Livonia. For more information, call (313) 422-1150 or (313) 422-1899.

Tickets cost $2. For more information, call (810) 348-9030.

'Crop' of walkers needed for spring walk fundraisers

Michigan Church World Service hopes to increase metro area CROP walk income this spring to meet the development and emergency requests of people in more than 70 countries around the globe, and needy residents of the Detroit metropolitan area.

The spring walks schedule will begin Sunday, April 30, with a downriver walk. There are 13 walks scheduled for April and May, including May 21 in the Redford area. An additional 23 community walks for hunger are planned for fall.

The four-county metropolitan area collected more money for CWS than any other USA metro area in 1994 with $535,533. Oakland County was the leading Michigan county in 1994 with more than $200,000. Wayne County was second with $193,000.

The four-county area is a major recipient of hunger walk money with $114,059 allocated to 63 local food pantries and hunger agencies in 1994.

The largest metro recipient was the Salvation Army with $10,343, followed by the Baldwin Center in Pontiac with $9,461 from CROP walks. The St. Vincent DePaul Society operating food depots in 14 communities received $6,617 and Focus Hope received $6,938.

Other recipients were the meals for shut-ins program of the Christian Communication of Metro Detroit, the Hunger Action Coalition of Southeastern Michigan, Manna Meals and Crossroads.

The leading walks in the metro area last year were the Ann Arbor/Washtenaw walk, the Dearborn/Dearborn Heights walk and the Farmington/Farmington Hills walk.

CROP in Michigan had a total income of $1,866,173 for 1994. The total included 132 local community walks with almost 30,000 volunteers.

For more information on the Redford area CROP Walk, call Gerald O'Neill of St. Valentine's Church at (313) 532-4394.

THE Observer & Eccentric NEWSPAPERS

30th anniversary

Observer grows with the city

Thirty years ago this week, the Observer made its debut in the community. At the time, it was called the Nankin Observer. It was changed to the Westland Observer 13 months later to reflect the township being incorporated as the home-rule city of Westland.

Over those 30 years, the Observer has not only watched the community grow but also has been an active participant.

Editorially, the newspaper has encouraged many things that enhance the community's quality of life — a responsive city government and school system, expansion of the road and water/sewer systems to encourage residential and commercial growth, and a strong network of effective volunteer groups to help develop a sense of community.

At the time of the first Observer in then-Nankin Township, the newspaper was not only the "new kid on the block," but also one of five publications covering the community.

While several had their start timed to take advantage of the about-to-open Westland Center, there are only two newspapers left.

While the community has changed, so has the Observer.

In April 1965, gasoline was 30 cents a gallon and a new Mustang was priced at just over $2,000.

In the township, the campaign was being mounted to convince voters to approve a city charter which would upgrade the form of municipal government and give local officials more authority to make local decisions.

The Wayne Community Public Schools, whose name was changed in the early 1970s to the Wayne-Westland Community Schools, was growing in enrollment annually with the school board on the verge of acquiring property for a third high school in a corner of Canton Township.

The Observer has been blessed with the opportunity to watch the growth of other local institutions over the past 30 years, too.

Construction of a new library, the first in the city's history, is scheduled to start this summer.

The William Ford Vocational-Technical Center is the center of classes day and night as well as Saturdays for local and western Wayne County residents.

Schoolcraft College, which began in the early 1960s, has grown substantially and now includes nearby Radcliff Center in the Ford-Wildwood area.

A new post office was built on Wayne Road near Hunter nearly 20 years ago.

Industrial parks and substantial commercial growth have been built not only to offer more products and services to homeowners but to also create jobs.

There have been other changes - the former Wayne County General Hospital has been closed and is now a major outpatient clinic owned and run by Oakwood Health Services.

The Observer has also changed in its appearance with more color photos and graphics to brighten our product.

But one thing that won't change is our commitment to meet our readers' needs and to help make Westland a better place to live.

Vote 'yes' on school proposals

The Livonia Public Schools district, which serves the northern section of Westland, will hold a special election Monday on two tax proposals.

Proposal A is a renewal of two existing millages. Proposal B is a request for an additional 1 mill for building repairs and maintenance. The Westland Observer recommends a "yes" vote on both proposals.

Proposal A is a great deal for homeowners because the request is to renew 18 mills levied against non-homestead properties in 1993-94. The 18-mill tax has been paid by commercial, industrial, office, and rental properties and will be paid only by those classes of properties if approved April 10.

Proposal A also includes a renewal request for 1.1588 mills now levied on all property. In 1994-95, homeowners in the district paid 6 mills levied by the state and the 1.1588 "hold harmless" mills for a total school levy of 7.1588 mills (compared to 31.046 in 1993-94.) If Proposal A passes, homeowners will pay the same 7.1588 mills for the next five years as they did in 1994-95.

For business and industry, passage of Proposal A will not result in a tax rate increase. In 1993-94, non-homestead properties paid 31.046 mills and if Proposal A is approved these same property owners will pay 25.1588 mills (the 18, plus 6, plus 1.1588).

Proposal B represents a tax increase of 1 mill for five years for building repairs. The additional cost will only be $50 a year for the owner of a house valued at $100,000.

The major reason behind Proposal B is that all of the district's school buildings now average 37 years. At this age, original equipment, roofs and lighting fixtures need to be replaced. The reason has to do with normal aging, not neglect.

The 1 mill on the April 10 ballot will raise $3.4 million a year for five years. The money will be spent on such things as repair and replacement of doors, windows, roofs, ceilings, floors, electrical, plumbing, foundations, sidewalks and parking lots.

Even the 1 mill won't take care of everything. Architects who surveyed the district's buildings a few years ago came up with a list of maintenance items that would cost $25 million and the 1 mill will produce just $17 million. So not all needs will be covered. But the millage will stop the aging process and result in operating efficiencies that will save taxpayers money.

Another important consideration is that building repairs and maintenance should come from earmarked millage, not from operational funds.

Education should not suffer because a boiler must be replaced or a roof redone. Likewise, maintenance money should not be available to pay for salary or benefit increases. Therefore, it is good business sense to have a special earmarked millage for building maintenance.

The 1992 technology bond issue of $62 million was used only to buy technology and to renovate buildings or add to school facilities needed to house technology. The only part of the bond issue spent on repairs was to rebuild Garfield Elementary, which was in such bad shape it would otherwise have been closed.

Nobody likes a tax increase, but Livonians can afford the 1 mill and cannot afford to let school buildings deteriorate. Passage of Proposal B will preserve our schools for use far into the future and reduce operating costs by increasing heating/cooling efficiency.

The Westland Observer urges a "yes" vote on Proposals A and B on Thursday.

'Fool's paradise'

The stock market — soaring. The dollar — plunging. On Wall Street, euphoria abounds. Some stock brokers have declared this to be the "best of all possible worlds." Still others see "financial Nirvana."

My reaction? Nonsense! Consider this.

If things are so good — why do people feel so bad? For example, why were the 1994 congressional election results the most revolutionary since the congressional election of 1932? Can it be that the average voter doesn't recognize "Nirvana" when he or she sees it? Is the American voter confusing gloom with euphoria?

In fact, I think the average consumer sees a future of low paying "junk jobs," high debt at usurious "credit card" interest rates, persistently high taxes, and a generally declining standard of living for themselves and their children.

And why is this? Because Wall Street's myopic moguls are focusing exclusively on short-term profits through "down-sizing" and "cost cutting." Amazingly — they have completely forgotten about the "demand side" of the equation. Currently, American consumers are clearly tapped out. Declining real incomes and ballooning debt can only be ignored for so long. Sooner or later the grim state of the average consumer will have to be dealt with by Wall Street.

Today the average new car costs over $20,000 — yet the average newly created "job" pays peanuts. Where are we going to get the money to keep buying the stuff the big corporations make? Answer: We're not.

Very soon the average American consumer is going to go "on strike." Consumer demand for many products will plummet! I believe that Wall Street will be completely "blind-sided" by this event.

I have always thought that increasing profits by "down-sizing" will eventually prove to be a "loser's game."

Wall Street's financial geniuses should remember that if the average consumer "hasn't got it," then the corporations "can't get it." As long as corporate policies are controlled by Wall Street, I will have to conclude that the "best of all possible worlds" is really just a "fool's paradise."

Walter Warren, Westland

One mill needed

You are to be commended for your excellent editorial regarding the April 10 school millage election . . . Proposal A should have the acceptance of everyone — without batting an eye.

There should be further explanation on Proposal B . . . For about 20 years the board, in its good judgment, had a one-half mill earmarked for maintenance and repairs of buildings.

With the passage of the educational reform package, which reduced property taxes, that one-half mill was rolled into the total millage — thus it was lost as a designated amount for the specific purposes of repairs and maintenance of our buildings which have been ongoing since the millage was originally designated.

With more efficient technology of heating, lighting and energy savings, it seems like good judgment to create a 1-mill fund to keep pace with repairs and replacements of a very large community investment . . . and at a very small additional cost. Many of us are replacing our walks and drives, installing new windows, and replacing our heating systems. Shouldn't we also be willing to do the same for our public schools? Our homes are over 30 years old — so are many of our schools!

Jane Sellers, Livonia

Term limits offers options

The concept of "term limits" will prevent the re-election of a good politician but not the election of a bad candidate. "Term limits" limit the time length of actions but not what kind of actions take place.

The moral theory of the office holder is what determines his actions. Subjective morals produce chaos.

Objective morals produce harmony. What determines morals? Philosophy.

Subjective philosophy produces subjective moral behavior. Objective philosophy produces objective moral behavior.

The actions of our government are in the short run determined by the politicians, in the long run by philosophers.

POINTS OF VIEW

Educating kids is ultimately a matter of caring

BY CAROLE QUATTRO LEVINE
GUEST COLUMNIST

Long after the huffing and puffing; following the bombast of this week's special interest group versus the teachers versus the school board; there is the boy at the fast-food counter.

There he was, all six feet of gangly, middle-American teenhood. The kid with Shaq Attack athletic wear — well-fed, and seemingly well-adjusted and well-loved.

I ordered three ice creams; two in a cup, one cone. Apparently, my young server was more comfortable with cones. He did not know what to do. He froze, then he paced; he pushed some buttons on the register. He fretted some more. Then, God help us all, he called over the boss.

Oh, we eventually did receive our desserts overflowing and melting onto the tray. And the price we paid was nowhere near the posted amount, but I paid anyway to avoid further distress to all involved.

Now, this is not a discourse on the precipitous decline of American civilization. Nor is this a condemnation of anyone born after 1970.

But clearly, something's awry in how we educate our children, right here in our hometown.

Everyone has an opinion about education. Not enough emphasis on the basics, some say; too little time spent on developing positive work values, argue others. And of course, few remain noncommittal on the role parents should play in the classroom.

Preparing our children to become productive adults requires the cooperative efforts of every facet of our community. Not enough time, you say?

GUEST COLUMN

Just look at the turnout at any soccer tournament or the hours-long lineup for community education classes.

People do care about their children; they do support their community. They simply are unsure of how, or whether, they should become partners with the school system in educating our youngsters.

The most successful school reform does not result from bureaucratic edicts, but rather from the direct involvement of those who know and care about what is happening in their own schools. That doesn't mean serving merely as a pep club for the status quo, a booster for a pet program, or being restricted to selling candy and cheese at fund-raisers.

Bickering about high taxes, union contracts, or working moms won't do anything to benefit the boy at the fast-food counter; likewise, we've seen that flavor-of-the-month reforms rarely work.

A decentralized, team approach to teaching and learning, however, will provide our children with the skills, values and support system to succeed.

How?

Parents need to be as committed to what is happening inside their child's classroom as they are to their child's ballet lessons; while district staff must make sincere, not cosmetic, efforts to include outside stake-holders in decision making.

Business people need to contribute more of their time and resources to improve education.

Maybe, then, we should borrow a tactic used successfully by political strategist James Carville during the 1992 presidential campaign. To keep staff focused on the primary campaign issue, he posted a blunt declarative on the wall of the election headquarters: "It's the economy, stupid."

In that spirit, we parents, teachers, politicians, business people, and grandparents alike also should remain true to our essential educational goal.

It's the kids, stupid.

Everybody sing: 'Won't you come home, John Engler . . .'

The MEGA debate is no longer on the merits of a state tax plan but the inconsistency of Gov. John Engler.

As legislator and first-time gubernatorial candidate, Engler used to say, "Government shouldn't be picking winners and losers." Now, with the Michigan Economic Growth Authority, he proposes giving tax credits to companies that increase employment here.

The situation is best summed up in this bit of doggerel, designed to be sung to the tune of "Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home":

Won't you come home, John Engler?
Won't you come home?
Liberals got hold of you?
MEGA picks business winners,
All others lose,
No more free market for you.
Mackinac Center's angry,
Detroit News, too,
Since from your principles you roam.
There's laissez-faire gloom
At Adam Smith's tomb.
John Engler, won't you please come home?

The state Senate passed the MEGA bill; the House rejected it once, but passed a different version Tuesday.

The issue is as old as the American republic. Alexander Hamilton, President Washington's treasury secretary and economic guru, wanted to make the fledgling nation an industrial power. All the states' debts would be assumed and paid off, 100 cents on the dollar, by the federal government — to give investors confidence. A national bank would oversee a system of credit and money — mobilizing capital.

Tariffs on imports would protect "infant industries," not to mention finance the federal government. Raw materials wouldn't be exported. Government would inspect domestic manufactured goods to prevent fraud and ensure quality. Roads and canals would move commerce. Inventors and their brainchildren would be protected.

As a campaigner, Engler paid homage to the ideas of Scottish economist Adam Smith, who promoted noninterference ("laissez-faire") in his landmark work, "The Wealth of Nations," in 1776. Hamilton specifically denounced the work.

Smith ripped apart the mercantile system of King George III: confining manufacturing to the mother country, limiting the colonies to furnishing raw materials, requiring all transportation by British ships, forbidding trade between the colonies and other nations.

Smith favored the "division and specialization of labor" and free trade, guided by "the invisible hand" of consumer demand. Said Engler: Cut taxes and get big government out of the way.

In the 1995 version of this 219-year-old debate, the central element is not what's right or wrong but how Engler abandoned the principles on which he campaigned and embraced a different point of view — after the election.

It's getting to be a habit. In 1990 Engler never campaigned on the notion of abolishing the General Assistance welfare program; but he did it after the election. Through the 1980s until 1994, he supported school reform legislation and tough state standards. This year he wants to rip up the School Code, toss out the tests, junk teacher accreditation standards and trust that local school boards will lead us in the paths of Plato and Aristotle. Now there is his MEGA plan.

As a national role beckons Engler, one is forced to wonder: What principles will he abandon next?

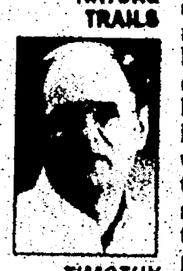
Area birds stay close to home

NATURE TRAILS



TIMOTHY NOWICKI

The return of spring, the arrival of migrant birds and the emergence of hibernating animals on schedule are signs that all the basic natural systems are in place.

It was also delightful to see the return of a female mallard to our neighborhood. For the last two years a female mallard has nested under a pair of shrubs in my neighbor's front yard.

We have seen a pair investigate our back yard, but they have never nested there. There is something about my neighbor's yard that is more attractive to the needs of this female.

Though there is no color band on this female's leg, which would allow me to identify this as the same female that came last year, the chances are very good it is the same individual.

Bird banding studies have verified that most species of birds return to the same general area in which they were born. If you have had robins nesting in your yard for several years, it may not be the same individual birds, but it could be offspring of those raised in previous years.

Nesting sites that proved successful in past years will be used again if nothing has changed. Young raised in the nest will imprint on the area as they explore the vicinity from the nest and after they leave the nest.

Individual birds of each species have a genetic makeup that programs them to return to the same neighborhood. At least that is what has been determined in some species that have been studied extensively. Once in the neighborhood, each bird returns to the yard area it had imprinted on earlier.

I've always been skeptical that "our" mallard would be successful because of where she placed her nest. It is next to the wall of my neighbor's garage. Animals, like skunks, that would find duck eggs a real delight often move along walls as they search for food at night. Fortunately for this female, she has not had her nest destroyed in the previous two seasons.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks Nature Center in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Local orchestras have a part for you to play

Even if you don't play an instrument, there's a part for you to play in the Livonia and Plymouth symphony orchestras.

"There are a lot of things you can do — collect tickets at the door, be an usher at concerts, or help out at fund-raisers. The door is open for volunteers. We want to get more community participation," said Betty Jean Awrey of Plymouth Township, newly appointed president of the Board of Directors of the Livonia Symphony Society Inc.

"You always need more volunteers. I would like to get the board more active. Anyone who wants to get involved in the symphony can call me, (313) 522-1100."

The Plymouth Symphony is also looking for volunteers to help their organization.

"This is a good time to get involved," said Pat Derderian, director of VIPS — "Volunteers Improving Plymouth Symphony."

"We're celebrating our 50th anniversary this year and some really fun things are happening."

In addition to the concerts, other activities include a free concert in July at Canton Heritage Park, a kick-off reception in September, and a gala dinner-dance at Fox Hills Country Club in April.

Wilma Sedore of Plymouth has been a volunteer for two months. "I got involved just so I could do something useful," said Sedore who retired two years ago from Environmental Research Industry of Michigan in Ann Arbor. CENTER STAGE

NEW STOMPIN' GROUNDS for Country Dancers

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Where can a metro Detroit city slicker, turned urban cowboy or cowgirl, practice their newly learned slides, stomps, and strolls?

Short of traveling as far away as Pontiac or Brighton, taking in a private party, or forming a short line on a small dance floor in their neighborhood bar, country/western dancers would just have to wait until their next dance lesson to practice "Boot Scootin' Boogies" and "Honkey Tonk Stomps."

No more! The good news is that they can now pack their dancing shoes and head west to Center Stage in Canton.

The Center Stage facility on Ford Road, just east of I-275, reopened in February with country/western dancing as it main focus. With three large dance floors, and 200 square feet of video screens, the possibilities are putting smiles on patron's faces and shuffles and struts in their steps.

"This is beautiful! This is just gorgeous! This is better than any of the places that I've been to," said Diane of Westland. "Usually we dance out in Pontiac and Warren. We always go to the other side of town. This is really exciting that this place opened up."

Roseann Born of Dearborn Heights was also pleased with Center Stage's close proximity to her home. "We've gone to a couple of other outings, but they were so far away, it took us an hour to get there," she said. "This is really the only one in this area that I know of. If a lot of people find out about it, I think it will take off."

Mary Owings came all the way out from Trenton. "There are a couple of country/western bars, but nothing like this," she said.

Jazzy trumpeter has a passion for teaching

BY MARK GALLO
SPECIAL WRITER

When trumpeter Marcus Belgrave, perhaps the most prolific and admired jazz musician/educator in the metro Detroit area for the past 25 years tells you "I've been staying busy," you count it among the year's supreme understatements.

Though he was headed for national recognition in the 1960s when he was a mainstay in the dynamic Ray Charles Orchestra, and put in time with the legendary Charles Mingus, Belgrave bucked something of a local trend by not following the exodus of a string of soon to be internationally recognized Detroiters who relocated to Detroit.

While contemporaries Kenny Burell, Donald Byrd, Yusef Lateef and Elvin Jones, among others, were basking in the critical and popular praise that came with the move to the most visible city in the country, Belgrave immersed himself in his passion — dedicating himself to the cultivation of up-and-coming young local musicians.

"There is so much potential here."

That potential is exactly what is putting a smile on the face of owner John Sassak, and setting the wheels of his inventive mind spinning.

A metallurgist and aeronautical engineer by profession, the 73-year-old Livonia resident worked for Ford Motor Co. for 19 years and was general manager of product development before deciding to call it quits and run his own company.

Sassak has owned several companies since that time, including Segmented Carbide and Computer Logic where they invented the first game for Atari called "Pong." His current Livonia-based company, Saker One, has been involved in making air rides and full-scale models of NASA's Space Shuttle for science centers worldwide, among other things. One of the other things was redesigning and manufacturing the mechanical bull to be used by the public. One of those bucking Brahmas occupies a spot at Center Stage.

The father of seven, and grandfather of four, Sassak got involved in in the club business in the 1970s. He has owned several clubs including the Urban Cowboy at Ford and Hix, which he sold before building Center Stage in 1979.

Club history

The facility has been used for a variety of entertainment and business activities since that time including seminars, industrial shows and exhibits.

With a seating capacity of 1,500, major concerts were a mainstay until 1983 with such notables appearing as Hall & Oates, Blood, Sweat & Tears, Dion, Earl Scruggs and The Pointer Sisters.

After a profitable one year stint as a teenage club, Sassak became disillusioned with the gang element that began to infiltrate the establishment last year. That's when he decided to reopen as an adult country/western saloon with plenty of dance space.

"Really, the club is too big for an everyday bar," Sassak said. "It's too small for big concerts, so we had to come up with something in between."

With three large dance floors, Sassak is toying with the idea of having the line dancers on the main floor, reserving the stage floor for the two-steppers and possibly utilizing the mezzanine dance floor as a practice area for those not too sure of their newly learned skills.

The 10 sizable video screens are a new addition, and are strategically placed so that hoofers on any of the dance floors can easily see the action or the instructor of a country/western line dance video on one of the big screens.

Diane Horner's dance videos are among those used. She recently appeared in person at Center Stage and stated that she could teach anyone to line dance in four minutes.

Future plans

Sassak has plans to offer complimentary line dance lessons thanks to the modern technology of his sophisticated video equipment and the availability of good and easy-to-follow instructional tapes.

The addition of all the video paraphernalia sparked even more creative ideas in the owner/inventor's mind. Sassak anticipates using the video equipment to film patrons, if they wish, for instructional purposes or even to offer them a video or a still of themselves in action.

What's got Sassak even more excited is what he has coined, "videraoke." Intrigued with the popularity of karaoke (singing along with a favorite star or just with the music), Sassak tried to anticipate what the next popular craze might be.

"That's where our inventions come from," admitted Sassak. "We try to see what's got to be coming up next. The karaoke thing was so popular. The next logical step is video. What else?

"We're doing the same thing they did with karaoke but doing it with video. This is the first system that is being put up this way."

Sassak has already successfully tried it out, and plans to make the illusion of singing and dancing with a favorite star available to patrons in the near future. He is still working on final details.

From past experience, Sassak has learned that alternating concerts and dancing on the weekends doesn't mix well. Folks are either coming to dance or to be entertained.

"Dancers ... aren't concertgoers," he said. "You've got one or the other and they just don't mix."

For that reason, Sassak plans to reserve Fridays and Saturdays for country/western dancers, but he still has plans to offer concerts on week nights.

"We're looking to bring in some live concerts now during the week, then we won't hurt the dancers coming out on Friday and Saturday. This whole place is designed for concerts," said Sassak. "The whole ceiling is acoustic."

He pointed out that the acoustics are so good that microphones aren't even necessary.

Within the last couple of years he has hosted Diamond Reo, Brooks & Dunn, and Pam Tillis, Sassak added, "But when I had them here they were just coming up. Diamond Rio had just won Record of the Year. We don't necessarily have to have country during the week. We'll have rock and roll or whatever the bands are coming up." Some of the older, established performers might be a possibility for concert nights as well.

"Ronnie Millsap wants to come and he's going to appeal to the older people," Sassak said.

Whatever patrons come out to Center Stage for, whether it is for line dance lessons, dancing, watching the dancers or videos, "videraoke," or concerts, they are likely to see things continually changing and improving.

"I just can't leave well enough alone," Sassak admitted. "I look at it and think there's something else you can do to fix it and make it better. That's what keeps you thinking, keeps your brain moving. Once you sit down, you don't get back up again."

Sassak doesn't spend much time just sitting.

Belgrave may have sidestepped the national spotlight that surely was his to claim, but he just as assuredly claimed a permanent home in the hearts of Detroit's jazz audience that remained as hip and attuned to the music that he helped ween as to the brilliant music that he continued to create.

When we first met, some 15 years ago, he was teaching at Oakland University, alongside Doc Holladay and Sam Sanders. These days he's teaching the rudiments at Michigan State University.

"It's getting a little better," he says without a trace of irony. "I've been doing things at Lincoln Center, working with them and Wynton Marsalis."

He's also been touring Japan and Europe, recording with heavyweights like David Murray and spending nearly as much time in New York as Detorit. In the midst of the whirlwind, though, he continues to find time to teach the kids, the aspiring young titans.

"I've just been trying to continue with that," he says. "As artist-in-residence at the SereNgeti Ballroom, he's lately been concentrating much of his effort on "bring(ing) jazz back to Detroit on a regular basis," in the nightclubs."

Outside of the occasional complaint of too much cigarette smoking in the clubs, other people's smoke, he says, is starting to have an effect on him, Belgrave continues "trying to perform as much as possible," and to work on a projected series of albums to be released on the Detroit Jazz Musicians' Cooperative label.

"It's going to be a series of albums featuring expatriate piano players," he said. "The first one will be with Tommy Flanagan, Geri Allen and Gary Shunk."

LET'S GO! DINING

Call him for restaurant suggestions

By Brian Lysaght
Staff Writer

Let's say you're looking for a vegetarian restaurant in Birmingham or a rib joint in Canton.

Scott Winfrey is hoping you'll call him at 1-800-860-DINE. He wants to be the Detroit-area's restaurant answer man.

The 28-year-old Westland resident and former chef is trying to build the dining out referral business he began in November.

"People have told me I save them a lot of time and phone calling," said Winfrey, who is developing a data base of restaurants and banquet halls that pay to get on his list. He is publicizing his toll-free number and hoping to match hungry potential patrons with suitable restaruants.

Winfrey, a self-styled entrepreneur who tired of the long hours in the restaurant business, is offering a service similar to apartment search companies. There are computerized restaurant referral services that use toll-call 900-numbers, but his is not a computer service. He answers the phone whenever possible.

"I haven't found anyone who is doing just what I do," said Winfrey.

He said he knows the Detroit-area restaurant scene from the inside out. A graduate of Schoolcraft College's culinary arts school, Winfrey worked for restaurateur Jimmy Schmidt, first as a sous chef at Detroit's Rattlesnake Club, 1988-91, then as executive chef at Trez Vite near the Fox Theater. He still does consulting work for Schmidt, whose four restaurants signed on to Winfrey's service. (Restaurants pay $50 per month for the service, though he offers a free trial).

The hard part has been selling restaurants on the idea. "They don't understand it," he said. Going from chef to salesman can be "pretty rough," he admitted.

He expects business will take a year or two to build. In the beginning, he said he has called on every contact he knows from the buisness.

For restaurants, he said, the service is a good way to market services and a good advertising opportunity. He said he'd like to have 100 to 200 restaurants in his data base.

"I want to reach a point where things are really snowballing," he said.

He's sees the potential to expand to offer referrals on related service providers like musicians and caterers.

He said while starting the business, he is offering referrals to restaurants even if they are not clients. And he likes the idea that he is working for himself.

"I wanted to work all those hours for myself. I have a lot of ideas," Winfrey said.

LSO hosts cabaret concert

The Livonia Symphony will be presenting "All That Jazz," a cabaret concert, Friday, April 7, at Burton Manor, 27777 Schoolcraft, Livonia. Tickets are $20 per person — includes free appetizers, and cash bar. Doors open 6 p.m. with the performance at 7 p.m. Call (810) 851-4524 or (313) 525-8252 for tickets.

Swing, Big Band, Dixieland styles, and show tunes are on the program, which features the New Reformation Dixieland Band, Stevenson High School Jazz Band, under the direction of David L. Booker, and soprano Nancy Delewsky Villeneuve. There will also be door prizes.

David Opperman's New Reformation Dixieland Jazz Band offers New Orleans-style music and plenty of humor.

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra is presenting its annual pops concert benefit at 8 p.m. April 28 at Fox Hills Country Club. The season-ending concert, which is a major fund-raiser, has a western theme. It offers a meeting of violinists and fiddlers and selections from hit musicals like "Oklahoma" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

Guest artists will be the bluegrass band, The RFD Boys. Also on the program are Aaron Copland's "Billy the Kid," Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite," and Mullar's "Arkansas Traveler," which will feature the RFD Boys.

Tickets are $40 for dinner and the concert or $20 for dessert and the concert. Call (313) 451-2112 for more information.

Livonia Symphony Orchestra director Francesco DiBlasi promises his ensemble's cabaret concert will be "a fun night."

"There's food, drink, good music and free parking. What else could you want?" DiBlasi said.

"Once a year we get away from Bach and Beethoven," the conductor added. The jazz numbers are not difficult for the symphony members to play "as long as the conductor knows what he's doing," DiBlasi said with a chuckle.

The orchestra will kick off the show, with soloist Villeneueve singing excerpts from "Sound of Music." The symphony also will perform jazz and pop classics like "The Man I Love," "St. Louis Blues" and "Embraceable You."

Villeneuve last performed with the symphony two years ago. She has a degree in music from Central Michigan University and has had roles in Michigan Opera Theater productions of "The Magic Flute," "Madame Butterfly," and "Carmen."

The cosmetics company account executive and Livonia resident sings regularly at her church, St. Aidan's Catholic Church. At Stevenson High School, she was a member of the symphonic choir, Madrigal Singers and marching band.

Stevenson's Jazz Band, led by David Booker, is making its first appearance with the symphony. The student group will perform jazz standards like "Satin Doll," "Jumpin' at the Woodside" and "Sweet Georgia Brown."

The seven-piece New Reformation Dixieland Band has played concerts around the country and, counting cruises, around the world. DiBlasi promised that the group will have the audience smiling.

LET'S GO! TRAVEL

Radiant Chicago is a city to love

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

We were in Chicago the week of the Second Coming. Of Michael Jordan that is.

The Bulls' famous 23 reappeared as No. 45 and the city by the lake was delirious to welcome home the world's greatest athlete.

Chicago is, of course, a sports lovers town known for its devotion to da Bears, da Bulls, da Sox, da Cubs and da Blackhawks. And the bars were packed to watch his Airness' return.

But Chicago is also a city for art lovers, architecture aficionados, shopping addicts, gourmands, science fans and cityphiles of all kinds.

Chicago's downtown Loop and classy near North are everything a city center is supposed to be. Life pulsates at every corner as wave after wave of thousands of people move up and down the streets that radiate from the glorious Michigan Avenue and the more work-a-day State Street.

We stayed at the Chicago Marriott, which offers a $119 a room per night weekend package. The hotel is one of many that line up along and off of Michigan Avenue, the Magnificent Mile. Standing sentinel to this area at the bridge are two of the city's icon buildings, the glittering Wrigley and the cathedral-like Tribune Tower. They welcome visitors to a lineup of the giants of retailing. Saks, Neiman-Marcus, Marshall Field's, Lord & Taylor and Bloomingdales all stand proudly along the avenue with specialty stores.

Behind the famous castle-like Water Tower was a bit of home for this Ann Arborite. A new four floor Border's Bookstore competes with several other new, used and rare book emporiums in the Near North and the Loop.

For the young or the young at heart, a new entertainment area west of the fashionable shops has developed along Ontario, Clark and LaSalle. Here the Hard Rock Cafe, Planet Hollywood, Excalibur and Ed Debrevic's attract the college crowd with rock music, inexpensive food and crowds of their peers. Older fans of jazz, blues, cabaret and classical music also have dozens of venues around the downtown.

South of the river is the muscle of downtown Chicago, the Loop, named for the path of the elevated train system.

The Loop is testimony to good city planning, architectural brilliance and the vigor of city life itself.

The good planning starts with Grant Park. Rather than hiding Lake Michigan behind warehouses, Chicago built a park. The buildings along Michigan Avenue are a stunning sight looking back from the Park. The Park is home to the Art Institute, the Field Natural History Museum, an aquarium and a planetarium.

The Art Institute's current major exhibit is "Gustave Caillebote: Urban Impressionist." This is a superb tribute to a lesser known but dedicated and brilliant artist. He is best known for his stark "Paris Street: Rainy Day, 1877," but the exhibit shows the full glory of his works from studies of laborers to haunting visions of urban life. This exhibit runs through May 28. In July, the museum will mount an exhibit on the most famous Impressionist painter, Claude Monet.

The museum's permanent collection includes such works as Seurat's "A Sunday on the Island of La Grande Jatte — 1884," Grant Wood's "American Gothic," Edward Hopper's "Nighthawks," Picasso's "Blue Guitar" and "Mother and Child."

The city, itself, is a work of art. It was here that Louis Sullivan, Dakmar Adler, Burnham and Root, Mies van der Rohe and Frank Lloyd Wright made architectural history. A visit to the city would not be complete without visits to some of these landmark buildings, buildings that over time have defined our urban environment. Complementing these buildings are great works of public sculpture by Alexander Calder, Picasso, Claes Oldenburg and others.

Above all these parts of the city, what makes Chicago special is the hustle of city life. Coming from Detroit, where this kind of city life died years ago, Chicago seems to radiate.

LET'S GO! MOVIES

'Circle of Friends' proves engaging, predictable

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

"Circle of Friends" is a step back to the past, and not just because it's set in 1957. Take away all the talk about sex, and it could have been made with Bette Davis or Barbara Stanwyck 40 or 50 years ago.

Maybe that's why the movie has struck such a chord with movie-goers, especially older ones. Engaging, nostalgic, and thoroughly predictable, it has played to packed houses in its limited first-week run at the Maple. It opens at theaters throughout metro Detroit Friday.

Based on the memories of Irish novelist Maeve Binchy, "Circle of Friends" charts the friendship of three girlfriends in their first year of college in Dublin.

There are no casual first meetings here. When Benny, the strong-willed main character, first meets Jack, their eyes meet again and again even after they walk away. The same thing happens when friend Nan attracts the aristocratic Simon.

At first, Benny questions Jack's intentions. They attend a dance with a group of friends, yet he only talks to her after he's danced with everyone else. "I may look like a rhinoceros," she admits while fighting back tears, "but really I'm very thin-skinned."

He says that he was merely saving the best for last.

Jack is played by Chris O'Donnell, the likable square-jawed young actor from "The Three Musketeers" and "Scent of a Woman." He's solid, handsome, and completely one-dimensional, the way Christopher Reeve and Robert Redford were in decades past. He does hold his Irish accent well.

As Benny, Minnie Driver delivers the most believable performance in "Circle of Friends." Faced with the responsibility of holding together the family business, she must also fend off the advances of her father's slimy young employee, Sean, who she's convinced has embezzled money.

Alan Cumming's Sean is a character straight out of Victorian melodrama. Last weekend the usually sedate Maple audience was openly hissing whenever he appeared on screen. You just know that Benny will uncover girlie pictures when she snoops around his room.

Compared to Nan's (Saffron Burrows) full-blown affair with Simon (Colin Firth), Jack and Benny innocently contemplate "going all the way" while trying to remain faithful to their Catholic upbringing. While I've got to assume that the book spent more time on other aspects of these girls' lives, this "Circle of Friends" has sex on the brain.

Never once did I believe that any of the girls existed in a real family, despite the distrust in Nan's mother's eyes — one of the few subtle points in the movie. She knows that her daughter isn't the good girl she pretends.

Nor does the movie make much of its Irish locales, surprising when you consider how important place was in Pat O'Connor's previous films "Cal" and "A Month In the Country." Even though it was obviously shot on the Emerald Isle, the shops of Benny's provincial village and even a babbling brook look surprisingly artificial.

An afternoon with this "Circle of Friends" is a pleasant diversion.

To leave a message for John Monaghan, dial 953-2047, mailbox number 1866, on a touch-tone phone, fax him a note at 691-7279, or write him in care of Entertainment, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Redford resident wins contest

M. Siobhan Jordan of Redford is the winner of our "Circle of Friends," contest. Jordan, and her circle of friends were treated to a special dinner at Cook's Garden in Birmingham, flowers, champagne, chocolate and "Circle of Friends" T-shirts.

They also attended the movie together on Thursday, April 6, at the AMC Maple 3 Theatre in Bloomfield Hills.

Twenty-five runners-up received tickets for four people to see "Circle of Friends." All winners have been notified.

Thank-you to everyone who entered our contest, and shared heart-warming, and hilarious stories about their circle of friends.

Be sure to check out next week's "Let's Go!" for details about our prize-winner's special night out, and her circle of friends.

Toad, Hootie: Great together

Hootie and the Blowfish singer Darius Rucker must have sang his group's hit single "Hold My Hand" hundreds of times during the past year. But his rendition of it at the State Theatre March 28 sounded fresh and soulful.

Even though songs about saving the world are a dime a dozen, the chorus of 3,000 yuppie twenty-somethings singing, "I want to love you the best that I can," made it sound possible.

During Hootie and the Blowfish's hourlong set they were joined by various members of co-headliners Toad the Wet Sprocket, including shy Toad singer Glen Phillips who strummed a mandolin. Hootie's set also included a smooth as silk cover of 54.40's "(Everytime I Look At You) I Go Blind."

Darius "My name is not Hootie" Rucker returned the favor by fronting Toad the Wet Sprocket during "I Will Not Take These Things for Granted" and "Crowing." Hootie drummer Jim "Soni" Sonefeld brought out the bongos to accompany a collage of the two bands during Toad's "Nightingale Song."

The chemistry between the two bands was as evident to the audience was it was to the bands.

"This is the sweetest tour we've ever done," said Glen Phillips toward the end of the nearly three-hour concert that will top the "1995 best of" list. "Everything is perfect."

To celebrate their kinship, confetti and streamers dropped from the ceiling as the two bands did a funky dead-on cover of "Stayin' Alive" by the Bee Gees.

Aside from promoting their latest releases, the two bands were in town to boost awareness of sexual assault. R.A.I.N.N. (The Rape, Abuse and Incest National Network) set up an information booth in the lobby and raised funds by selling raffle tickets for a chance to win a guitar autographed by Toad the Wet Sprocket.

Whatever awareness they had brought seemed to go by the wayside, however, when Toad the Wet Sprocket sang their breakthrough hit "Hold Her Down," an anti-rape song written after one of the band member's girlfriends was raped.

It made me sick and horribly uncomfortable to see fans celebrate the song by enthusiastically singing the opening lines of the song. I think it's one of those cases where the fans sing the lyrics but don't really realize what they're saying.

I think it's one of those cases where the fans sing the lyrics but don't really realize what they're saying. In a 1992 interview with Toad's Detroit-born drummer Randy Guss, he said that's something they had to face.

"It was a mistake to release it as a single in the first place," he said. "We wrote it to help us because people close to us were raped and we were trying to figure out how to deal with it ourselves. We never expected it to help anyone but ourselves."

I don't think that when Toad the Wet Sprocket wrote the song, they expected men — and women — to almost celebrate "Hold Her Down."

The third week of April is Sexual Assault Awareness Week, so to help the two bands and R.A.I.N.N., public service announcements by a variety of alternative acts will kick off the Street Scene Music Sample Line during April. Among the artists contributing their time are Michael Stipe and Mike Mills of R.E.M., Greg Graffin of Bad Religion, Angie Hart of Frentel, Kim Coletta of Jawbox and Ed Roland of Collective Soul.

The announcement, which features Hootie singer Rucker this week, gives the phone number, (800) 656-HOPE, and also raises an important point that victims may not be aware of. As Rucker says: ". . . Because you're dialing an 800 number there's no cost to you and the crisis center's number never appears on the phone bill, an important consideration of victims of domestic violence."

Morphine: Freshness in music

■ Guitarless Morphine enjoys a painless existence in the music industry, relying solely on a two-string bass, saxophone and drums. The band considers their innovative sound "palate cleansers."

BY TODD WICKS

A few weeks ago I caught an installment of the new "History of Rock'n'Roll" miniseries. For about a half hour I suffered through rock legend Jeff "Skunk" Baxter (I guess he was with Steely Dan and Doobie Brothers for awhile) droning endlessly about how the guitar was THE instrument of rock'n'roll. Later that month, as I finished listening to the new Morphine disc "Yes,", I came to a not-so-startling conclusion: "Skunk" may know the solo to "China Grove" forward and backward, but he's never heard anything like Morphine.

On "Yes," their third album in four years, the Boston trio continues to use the strangest musical lineup in popular music (two-string bass, saxophone and drums) to create moody, intriguing listening that stays surprisingly fresh. Their previous releases, "Good" and "Cure for Pain," had the press tripping all over themselves praising and acclaiming, a trend which seems to be continuing with "Yes."

According to saxophonist Dana Colley, Morphine's guitarlessness is precisely the reason his band has caused such a stir.

"I've always said that Morphine was the palate cleanser," he said recently. "In the early days, we loved to play live with really heavy-duty garage bands, and we'd play the middle slot, between two heavy-hitting guitar bands. It really worked well on that kind of bill. You kind of give your ears a break between the guitar walls."

The band was conceived by Colley and bassist/vocalist Mark Sandman, who originally achieved some success with the neo-blues group Treat Her Right with Morphine drummer Billy Conway. Tired of traditional sounds from traditional instruments, the two began jamming alone. A saxophone, some strange tunings and a few less bass strings later, Morphine was born.

Colley is charmingly humble about his band's almost universal acceptance.

"It's really nice, to be honest," he said. "We try to say that it doesn't really matter what people say, but it's hard not to feel the strokes. There have been some characterizations or critiques that haven't been so favorable . . . but you need it once in awhile to balance (things out). People have been really positive overall, so it's a little bit of a head swell to think that you're really that good."

■ 'In the early days, we loved to play live with really heavy-duty garage bands, and we'd play the middle slot, between two heavy-hitting guitar bands.'

Dana Colley
saxophonist

However, Colley does realize the pioneering role that Morphine has played.

"What we're doing hopefully shows that there's room for other approaches and room for other ways of expression," he said.

OK — a saxophone instead of a guitar is different, but still within the realm of rock. What other instruments could a rock band use and have any listeners?

"Anything! You name it," Colley said excitedly. "Tuba, cello, glockenspiel. Anything. There's no end to what you can do with any instrument. It's (a matter of) finding the vehicle of expression that best suits your personality."

Speaking with a skilled saxophonist, it's a bit of an embarassment to realize that Clarence Clemons is still rock's best-known player.

"I think the saxophone sort of paved itself into a corner as (just) a solo part in a rock song," Colley said. "You know, 'OK, here comes the tenor solo, here comes the alto solo, go for the clouds and get out.' I don't know why it's not used more in a base sense."

Geography also makes a difference.

"You go down to New Orleans and the saxophone is THE instrument," he said, strangely echoing the statement made by "Skunk." "Even with young kids, the sax and the trumpet and those instruments are more popular than the guitar. Part of it is just their own history, their history of music."

Now Colley's talking jazz territory. Although a self-proclaimed lover of jazz, he thinks of his own band in no such terms. "(Morphine's music) is a rock format and approach. We definitely point to jazz as an influence, and it is. But to me, it's definitely rock music."

For a highly respected band such as Morphine, who are, after all, on the high culture music label Rykodisc, he and his fellow band members seem unpretentious and more than willing to expand their audience.

According to Colley, Morphine is prepared for both the cultured crowd and the stage-diving alternateens.

"We have plenty of all-ages show," Colley said. "Our audience spans 6 to 60, seriously. People tell me about their 6-year-old putting on 'Cure for Pain' or dancing to 'Language' (a track off of "Good"). I've heard punkers telling me that it's the one album they and their grandparents can listen to together.

"We've seen everybody, all sizes and shapes at our shows."

And although Morphine may not play traditional rock'n'roll, it doesn't mean Colley isn't afraid to indulge in a little joking, arena-style cheesiness: "And we'll see you, too!"

Morphine performs at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Thursday, April 6. Doors open at 8 p.m. for the 18 and older show. Tickets are $10 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT or (810) 645-6666.

Ginger offers polished, mature sound

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

With its lush vocals and instrumentation, the Canadian pop quartet The Grapes of Wrath looked like a picture-perfect example of a band destined for tremendous success.

Inner turmoil, however, had a hand in the fate of The Grapes of Wrath. Personality conflicts between singer/guitarist Kevin Kane and his three bandmates got so bad at times that rousing shows were "a drag a lot of the time."

"This person (Kane) threatened to quit; it was a very unstable situation," said The Grapes of Wrath's former bassist/vocalist Tom Hooper.

Before Kane had a chance to leave, Hooper, drummer Chris Hooper and pianist Vincent Jones dissolved The Grapes of Wrath.

"It was definitely a big step," said Hooper whose band had been filling 8,000-seat venues. "We had a certain amount of popularity in Canada. It was kind of like we were throwing that away. We were betting that we weren't going to be around much more anyway."

In November 1992, the three resurrected their talents and jumped head-first into Ginger. Their debut full-length album, "Far Out" (Nettwerk), has the same feel as The Grapes of Wrath but with a more polished, mature sound.

It's also considered innovative in Canada because it's one of the first to include a CD-ROM multi-media presentation. The program gives viewers a glimpse into the recording process of "Far Out" at Vancouver's Mushroom Studios and the making of the video for "Solid Ground."

The complete videos for "Solid Ground" and "The Earth Revolves Around You" are also accessible.

The single "The Earth Revolves Around You" is telling as well. In the chorus, Hooper sings: "I'm giving up something. I thought it was real. Now I don't care if I spend it with you. I'm tired of your problems. The earth revolves around you."

It's easy to assume that it's about Kane. Hooper at first wouldn't say either way.

"I wouldn't say yes, but it could be," he said. "The situation is quite a coincidence. It was a bad breakup and I didn't write the song to go 'na na na na na' over the airways. It's something you don't want to be bitter and mean about and point fingers publicly."

Instead, he's focusing his energy on promoting Ginger, whose live shows include the addition of guitarists Sean Ashby and Lanny Hussey as well as selected Grapes of Wrath songs. The Hoopers and Jones have found that starting over isn't all that bad in this case.

"Obviously, I'd be lying if I said I prefer to play small clubs to a thousand people every night; the situation where we were playing to a thousand people every night was so bad. It was a drag a lot of the time," he said. "The money is nice and stuff (but) we're young enough still where we can kind of like start again and get to where we were by the time we're 60."

Ginger performs with the New Ministers at The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Saturday, April 15. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. for the 18 and older show. Tickets are $7 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Madonna wins twin bill

Sean Henkel (Livonia Stevenson) and Dan Pydyn raised their respective records to 4-1, while lifting Madonna University over the .500 mark by pitching the Fighting Crusaders to 18-7 and 11-0 victories in a double-header sweep of Spring Arbor.

Pydyn took advantage of sunny second-game weather to pitch a five-inning shutout, allowing two hits and fanning four without walking a batter. He was backed by a 13-hit attack as Madonna recorded its second mercy victory of the afternoon.

Kurt Wilczynski smacked a three-run home run and had an RBI triple in a 2-for-3 game while Aaron Jones belted his fifth home run of the spring, a solo shot, and drove in a second run with a single. Dan Taylor went 2-for-4 and scored three times, Craig Petersen had an RBI double in two hits and Shawn Penczak went 2-for-3.

In the opener, Henkel walked eight hitters in rainy, slippery weather but survived because the Fighting Crusaders drew 13 walks and made the most of eight hits. Henkel allowed eight hits in five innings and helped himself with six strikeouts.

Petersen had an RBI double, Jim Solak socked a two-run double and Scott Anderson went 2-for-3 with a double and a triple.

The twin wins lifted Madonna to 15-14 this season while dropping Spring Arbor to 6-5.

Collegiate note

Kalamazoo College freshman left fielder Chris Hollman (Livonia Stevenson) batted .408 on the Hornets' 1-7 spring baseball trip to Cocoa Beach, Fla. Hollman had 11 hits, including three doubles and a triple, in 27 trips to the plate with six RBI.

MHSAA honors officials

The Michigan High School Athletic Association will honor Livonia's George Weatherford for 30 years of service at the 16th annual Officials' Awards and Alumni Banquet, 7 p.m. April 22 at the Sheraton Hotel in Lansing.

Westland's Eric Adams and James Paling will be honored for 20 years of service along with Livonia's Arthur Opalach, James Jensen, Lawrence Casey and William Pelham.

Guest speaker is actor/humorist J. Don Ferguson, who appeared in two movies with Burt Reynolds, The Longest Yard and Gator.

For ticket information, call Dolores Lake at (517) 332-5046.

Flyers win shootout

The Pee Wee Flyers, behind Jeff Springer's game-winning goal in a shootout, won Livonia Hockey Association playoff action with a 4-3 victory over the Devils March 18 at Edgar Arena.

Brian Wilhoite and Brandon Henkel also scored for the winners, while goaltender Tim Marken held the Devils scoreless during a five-minute overtime.

Other members of the Flyers include Brian Nadeau, Mike Attard, Dan Marderosian, Curt Anderson, Mike O'Neill, Steve Boloven, Derek Samsel, Steve Mills, Steve Campbell, Bill Hanley, Mike Shields and Jeff Fournier.

The coaching staff includes Bob Roskelly, Jeff Fournier, Mickey Roskelly and Bill Marken.

Tough to stop

Hoff's 3 goals boost Rocks past Churchill

■ What a barometer this game could prove to be. Two of the top soccer teams in the Western Lakes Activities Association clashed Wednesday when Plymouth Salem met Livonia Churchill; they just might meet again, in the WLAA championship match at season's end.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It's early.

Perhaps that's the best message Livonia Churchill's interim coach, Scott Steiner, could deliver to the Chargers after they let an early lead evaporate against Plymouth Salem, which dominated the final two-thirds of the match to claim a 3-1 victory Wednesday at Churchill.

Salem, now 3-0, got another exemplary performance from Mari Hoff. The junior forward, who chose to play for her club team last spring, scored all three goals for the Rocks — giving her three hat tricks in three games.

"I never thought of that," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "That's right, isn't it? Wouldn't that be nice?"

If Hoff could keep up that pace, it sure would be. She scored her first goal with 15:10 left in a first half that, to that point, had been controlled by Churchill. But Salem's speed created a scoring opportunity; Mia Sarkesian rolled a shot from the right side toward the Charger goal.

Freshman keeper Crystal Wright made the stop, but couldn't smother it. Hoff pounced on the free ball and buried it, knotting the score at 1-1.

The Rocks added a second goal with 7:22 left in the half when Hoff took possession to the left of the Churchill net after a quick transition and slammed it into the right corner, making it 2-1.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Scoring threat: Salem's Kelly Lukasik (11) tries to elude Churchill's Kathy Dudley (13), something the Rocks did well throughout Wednesday's game.

Hoff's final score came on a penalty kick with 8:58 to play in the game. Salem's Kelly Lukasik got open on a break; Churchill defender Kerri Verardi pulled her down in the penalty area, and Hoff converted.

As one-sided as the score may seem, it could have been more so. The Rocks had several scoring chances they failed to capitalize on; Lukasik, whose speed provided a constant challenge for Churchill, missed three excellent chances. Hoff, too, put a couple of seemingly easy shots over the net.

"Their forwards were a lot faster than our defenders were," said Steiner, whose filling in for coach Nick O'Shea. O'Shea underwent hip replacement surgery last week and is recuperating; he's expected to return to the sidelines by mid-season.

"When (Lindsay) Murfey got hurt, that hurt us."

Murfey received a yellow card for pulling down Sarkesian on a break near the end of the first half. The sophomore defender was injured on the play; she did not return.

It wasn't the only loss for Churchill. With 29:29 left in the match and the score still 2-1, Marie Spaccarotella and Salem defender Sue Parrish tangled. Both received yellows, resulting in a mandatory 10-minute seat on their team's bench.

Parrish's absense hurt Salem, but the loss of Spaccarotella — an all-state forward — wrecked Churchill. She had accounted for the Chargers' only goal, picking up the ball at midfield and outrunning the Rock defenders to score with 25:41 left in the first half.

"We were playing real well at the beginning of the second half," said Steiner. "But then we lost (Spaccarotella) and we lost control of the game. We started playing their style, kick-and-run."

Steiner started his scoring star in the midfield, which caused Salem some problems early on — and led to the Chargers' goal.

"We were out of it for the first 10 minutes or so," said Johnson. "Then we made some adjustments. We put our best marking back, Parrish, on (Spaccarotella).

"We have some rough edges to smooth out yet, but we're coming along."

Salem keeper Julie Buczek was solid in the net, but she faced few threats in the second half as the Rocks' defense smothered Churchill's attackers.

"This was our first real test of the year," said Steiner, his team now 1-1.

In the WLAA, there may not be many tests any tougher, but there will be others.

Hussey steps away as Stevenson coach

The Livonia Stevenson girls soccer program is under new direction after the sudden resignation over the weekend of varsity coach Mary Kay Hussey.

Hussey, who posted a career record of 80-24-10 in just over six seasons, will be replaced by interim coach Jim Kimble.

She resigned "due to health reasons," according to Stevenson principal Dr. Dale Coller.

"Mary Kay has had pneumonia and some upper respiratory problems that have prevented her from being outside during periods of cold weather and rain this spring," Coller said. "Jim has agreed to finish the season as a temporary assignment. She let it be known that she couldn't coach alone and was unable to make the time commitment to coach. The situation dictates that she can't handle it right now."

In 1989, Hussey became the Spartans' head coach, replacing Norene Divens.

In six seasons, Hussey guided the Spartans to one state Class A crown (1990), two regional and three district championships. She also led Stevenson to four Lakes Division titles and one Western Lakes Activities Association crown (1991).

"The demands right now, because of my health, including the coaching, are too much for me," Hussey said. "I've had bronchitis three times since December and I can't kick it. Standing outside all the time, I can't handle it. It's been too much and I need to get rid of it."

Hussey, who also coaches the Franklin High boys team in the fall, is a health and physical education instructor at Franklin.

Hussey, a 1985 Stevenson graduate, was an All-Stater who played on two state championship squads (1983 and '85). As a sophomore she set a single-game state scoring record in the '83 final with four goals and two assists in an 8-0 victory over Saginaw Eisenhower.

She played one season collegiately at Barry (Fla.) before transferring to

Revived career

Ex-CC star Campbell optimistic

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

It was only a few years ago that Steve Campbell was at the crossroads of his tennis career.

The former state Class A No. 1 singles champion from Redford Catholic Central High School was discouraged by his results as a tennis professional. He was also nursing a bum shoulder.

Campbell

"I didn't think I had what it took," Campbell admitted. "I was playing too much doubles, but then I decided to concentrate on singles. It gave me more incentive and ever since I feel I've been gaining momentum."

He took a big step in 1993, qualifying and reaching the second round earlier this year at the Australian Open, a Grand Slam event.

Currently ranked No. 246 in the world, Campbell has climbed as high as No. 220.

The 25-year-old Campbell was in town over the weekend to play in the $15,000 Michigan Cancer Foundation Partners Tennis Challenge at the Sports Club of West Bloomfield.

■ TENNIS

He was seeded No. 1 in the singles event, but lost in the second round to 30-year-old Jimmy Arias (formerly ranked No. 5 in the world), 6-4, 6-1.

But all was not lost.

Campbell and partner Steve Herdoiza from Bloomfield Hills (Lahser High) reached the doubles finals against 1993 French Open champs Luke and Murphy Jensen before losing, 7-6, 7-5.

Campbell also picked up a $1,000 check for winning the fast serve contest. He was gunned at 123 MPH, edging Luke Jensen's 122 MPH.

Apparently the shoulder is fine.

"I played (Jim) Courier last month in San Jose and I was around 118 and 120 (MPH)," Campbell recalls. "I thought I had a chance of winning this."

This week Campbell is off to Japan for the Seiko Tournament.

"I come home every couple of months," he said. "But it was great to come home for this tournament because there was a reason to keep working.

"My number one problem against Arias was my volleying and serving. I just have to keep working on it. Everything else right now is solid."

Campbell has enjoyed a "solid 2½ years" on the fringe tours since he turned his career upside-down.

"My progress has been slow, but steady," he said. "I had a lot of fun in 1993."

That's when he hooked up with Grosse Pointe's John Yancey for some doubles success on the U.S. Tennis Association Challenger Tour.

In 1993 and '94, Campbell won the USTA Challenger circuit in California (He also has career wins over Chuck Adams and Bryan Shelton.)

He has a manager and is now

Stevenson rolls, 11-1

Laura Krol scattered five hits over six innings and walked only one as Livonia Stevenson won its first season softball opener in three years with an 11-1 triumph Monday over visiting Dearborn.

Stevenson broke the game open with six runs in the fourth inning.

SOFTBALL

Krol finished with four strikeouts as the game was called after six because of the 10-run mercy rule.

Laura Cervi paced the winners with two hits and two RBI. Jenny Sible also had two hits and one RBI, while teammate Courtney Schrauffnagle contributed a two-run double.

"It wasn't pretty, but it was a win," Stevenson coach Art Anselm said.

BASEBALL

Shamrocks sweep RU in twinbill

Senior Greg Rogers gave his usual steady performance in the field on Saturday, but also added some punch at the plate as Redford Catholic Central swept a baseball doubleheader against visiting Redford Union, 5-1 and 6-4.

Rogers, who batted only .203 last season, delivered a two-run double in the first game to spark a three-run rally against RU's all-state pitching candidate Brian Berryman.

Rogers added a triple and walked twice with one RBI to help the Shamrocks win the second game.

Rogers, playing second base, also showed fine range with two good plays on the hit-and-run by RU.

RU led 1-0 in the first game following Berryman's RBI double in the top of the fourth, but the Panthers committed three errors in the bottom of the inning to lead to three unearned runs.

Jason Couture and Chris Misiak reached base on errors and Mike Daguanno followed with an RBI single to tie the score 1-1. Following a sacrifice and another RU error, Rogers hit a two-run double to left center for a 3-1 lead.

Berryman left after the fourth because this was the season opener, and the Shamrocks added single runs in the fifth and sixth innings to give Justin Stankiewicz the win.

Stankiezicz equaled his win total from last year by scattering two hits, walking three and fanning two in five innings.

In the second game, Marty Wilk overcame a shaky start and earned his first varsity win with a six-hitter over five innings. RU opened a 3-0 lead in the first inning, highlighted by Billy Morris' two-run triple.

ROUNDUP

CC tied the score, however, with three runs in the second against losing pitcher Dave Karrick. Misiak led the rally with a two-run single.

Berryman finished with three hits and an RBI for the Panthers.

On Monday, CC moved to 3-0 with a 5-4 victory against visiting Detroit DePorres. James O'Connor, a junior left-hander, scattered four hits and struck out seven with two runs allowed over five innings for the win.

Ryan McGrath and Matt Kaye had two hits and two RBI each and Daguanna contributed an RBI triple.

CC reliever Jay Malack pitched a scoreless sixth inning, but allowed two runs in the seventh before freshman Kevin Thomas came on to get the third out.

■ LUTH.-WESTLAND 8, ANNAPOLIS 3: Chris Tiernan relieved twice with the bases loaded to get key inning-ending outs and also drove in a run with one of two hits Monday to help Lutheran High Westland defeat host Dearborn Heights Annapolis.

Winning starter Mike Dittmar went four and two-thirds innings but left with the bases loaded, Tiernan closing the inning with a pop-up.

Tiernan also came in to throw a double-play ball after reliever Jason Bayuk, whose two-run double got Lutheran Westland off to a 2-0 start in the three-run fifth, loaded the bases. Jeff Morris went 3-for-3 while Joe Pruchnik went 2-for-4 with a double and an RBI. Annapolis scored all three of its runs in the bottom of the seventh.

■ WAYNE 4-12, THURSTON 5-6: Pinch-hitter Alan Perkins stroked a score-tying two-run single in the bottom of the seventh, then scored the winning run for host Redford Thurston when John Wojcik walked with the bases loaded in the first game of a Saturday doubleheader.

Art Hoffmeyer gained the victory for an inning in relief of starter Joe Nietroy. Wayne Memorial ace Shannan Green developed a blister on his pitching hand and left after walking two batters in the seventh. (Green struck out 13, while allowing 10 walks and two hits.)

John Clendening had a two-run single in Wayne's three-run fourth.

In the second game, Clark Boston had three hits and drove in three runs while catcher Aaron Cagnon lined a solo home run and scored three runs to lead Wayne to the victory.

Jason Wetmore, whose three straight walks brought in the winning run in the opener, redeemed himself by pitching the last 1⅓ innings of the second game and choking off a rally with the game deadlocked, 6-6. First-game winner Hoffmeyer was the loser in relief of starter Jeff Garbacz, who went the first six innings.

Boston also pitched 1⅓ innings of hitless, scoreless relief after starter Chris Czarnik went the first 4⅓. Bryan Johnson and Jeff Temple each had two hits for Wayne while Nietroy collected three hits and Chad Putnam had two for Thurston.

Taormina makes cut for C'ville club

The Clarenceville Swim Club finished the short course season with some record breaking times at the 12-and-under and 13-and-under State Championships, the Senior Nationals, the Junior Nationals, the ABC Festival and the Postal Long Distance Meet.

Sheila Taormina, 25, returned to Clarenceville this fall to follow her dreams of being an Olympic swimmer. While swimming at the Senior Nationals, Sheila set three new world records in Masters age group (25-29) in the 100-meter butterfly, 200 freestyle, and the 100 freestyle.

Her overall standings at the meet were sixth in the 200 freestyle (2:03.98), passing Olympic gold medalist Janet Evans by a head; seventh, 100 freestyle (57.70); and 13th, 50 freestyle (26.76). Earlier in the season, Taormina accomplished an Olympic time trial cut in the 200 free in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Stingrays grab state championship

The Michigan Stingray Swim Association won the state championship for combined age groups after placing second in the 13-and-over meet last month in Rockford.

Together with the results of the other age-group meets, the total points gave the Stingrays of Farmington Hills the overall title.

"What a great effort by all of the Stingrays," coach Jeff Cooper said. "This is by far our most successful team in quite some time.

"I am really proud of all the swimmers and the effort they put forth this year. The philosophy of the MSSA is that we win as a team."

One of several standouts was Karl Pawlewicz in the 13-14 meet. The Birmingham Brother Rice freshman won six individual events and set records in three.

His time of 21.70 seconds in the 50-yard freestyle is a state record and reportedly the third-fastest time ever in the United States by a 13-14 swimmer.

Pawlewicz also won the 200 individual medley (2:00.51), 200 freestyle (1:45.89), 100 breaststroke (58.21), 200 breaststroke (2:12.48) and 100 freestyle (47.64). The 100 breast and 100 free times also are records.

"It was a perfect meet for one of this state's most outstanding male swimmers," Cooper said.

Hope VanDenberg, 18, and Erin Spiro, 13, were runners-up for the high-point award in the 15-and-over and 13-14 brackets, respectively.

Spiro, who just turned 13 and competed in her first 13-14 state meet, won the 100 butterfly (1:01.03) and 200 IM (2:16.48).

"To move up to the 13-14 age group is a large step for any athlete in any sport," Cooper said. "To achieve state championship points and finish as second high-point in your first senior state meet is a wonderful accomplishment."

Spiro also contributed to one of three relay victories by the Stingray girls.

The 13-14 team of Spiro, Julie Kluka, Nevra Alver and Danielle Clayton won the 400 medley (4:19.72).

In the 15-18 meet, Corky Ribits, Heather Chasteen, Wendy Berry and Betsy VanDenberg won the 400 medley, and Chasteen and Berry combined with Melissa and Stacy Axner to win the 800 freestyle (7:59.07).

Other notable performances included Dan Gabriel winning the 13-14 100 backstroke (56.97), Mike Plezia taking second in the 15-18 100 breaststroke (59.80) and Alver placing third in the 13-14 100 breaststroke (1:12.02).

■ Cheri Farber of Farmington Hills helped the Birmingham-Bloomfield Atlantis win 13-14 short-course state meet.

The North Farmington freshman tied for first in the 50 freestyle with a time of 25.36. She also placed second in the breaststroke and backstroke events.

The BBA won with 1,552 points, while the Michigan Stingrays placed second with 1,489.

SWIMMING

Monday through Friday evenings at one of Farmington's three public high schools. Children between the ages of 6 and 18 are welcome and can call 398-8728 for information.

"There is no real skill level required to begin swimming with the Stingrays," Cooper said. "If a kid likes being in the water, we will teach him/her to swim and compete."

The Stingrays also will host a spring tune-up for all area swimmers who want to get an early start on their conditioning for summer club swim programs. The dates are April 10 to May 31. Call the MSSA hot line at (810) 546-2772.

The MSSA competes during the summer months in the state long-course events in 50-meter, Olympic-size pools. Applications are being processed by Cooper.

Ladywood, Spartans plan on contending in 1995

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

When Phil Heyer became coach of the Livonia Ladywood girls golf team three years ago, he saw a squad full of talented freshmen and sophomores who could hold their own in Catholic League golf matches.

Heyer knew that success was maybe one or two years away. Last season, his Blzers were close, finishing 11-2, right behind Catholic League champion Farmington Hills Mercy. Ladywood then missed qualifying for the state finals by one place.

The Blazers may get more than a taste of what a title is like as the they return six experienced and highly talented golfers.

"This is the year I've been waiting for," Heyer admitted. "Hopefully, this will be the year the girls take the next step. If the girls golf as good as they can, we will qualify for the state finals."

First-team All-Observer picks Laura Kowalski and Sarah Andersen will lead the Blazers down the fairway. Kowalski averaged 52.5 with a low of 46 against Northville. She also finished second with a 47 in the Catholic League tournament before losing in a playoff.

"Laura probably has the most talent on the team and she hits the ball a long way," Heyer said. "She doesn't put the clubs down when the season ends and plays year-round — and it shows."

Andersen averaged 52.1 last season, earning medalist honors three times. She shot a 97 in the regional and finished fourth in the Catholic League with a 49.

Second-team All-Area golfer Lauren Agoston also returns with her mid-50s average. Seniors Diane Johnston and Amy Laskowski, along with junior Elise Pratt, round out the starting six.

GOLF

The Blazers open their season Monday against Bloomfield Hills Kingswood.

Livonia Stevenson

The team to beat in the Western Lakes Activities Association may be Livonia Stevenson, which returns four of its top five starters from last season's team.

The Spartans also captured all 10 of their conference dual meets before finishing second to Northville in the league tournament.

Kelly Kristy returns as the team's low scorer. The sophomore averaged 52.1 en route to being named first-team All-Area in her rookie season. Kristy took All-Conference honors in the WLAA by finishing second with a score of 101.

"She hits the ball very well, but it's her focus and desire that will carry her," fourth-year coach John Wagner said. "The team went out to shoot three holes in miserable weather Monday, but she stayed out to shoot nine holes, and about six others joined her.

"She wound up shooting 49 in the bad weather, and said she wasn't doing well. I love to hear that as a coach."

Making up for the loss of first-team All-Area performer Maureen Drabicki (52.3 average) will be a trio of juniors — Andrea Khoury (53.7), Kristin Bartholomew (55.4) and Katie Koulouras (59.6).

Rounding out the starting six are two improved seniors.

Jill Van Tiem, who averaged 65.5 last year, shot a 53 in a practice round. Wagner added that Claire Schrader should improve on her 67.3 average.

"We had a young team last season but return with a lot of experience this year," Wagner said. "I think the three juniors will make a huge difference. This team is as good as last year's team."

Livonia Churchill

Livona Churchill, the league's most improved a year ago, will look to continue its steady climb up the standings as nine golfers return. The Chargers finished 7-6 last season in WLAA dual meets, after winning only one meet the prior year.

"I thought they had it in them last year (to win seven meets), but I'm not sure if they thought they did," second-year coach Sharon Laskowski said. "I can tell the team has a lot more confidence now than they did at this time last year. We'll be as good, if not better, than last year's team."

Churchill did lose its top golfer, Erin Murfey, a second-team All-Area selection, to graduation. The Chargers were dealt another blow when it was discovered that junior Christine Maher is sitting the season out due to an injured knee.

Leading those who are coming back are seniors Jenny Patrias, who averaged in the mid-50s, and Kelly Rowan, who missed most of last season due to an injury.

Junior Becky Gajda was team's low scorer in the WLAA meet last season and will look to improve on her mid-50 scoring average.

Laskowski said juniors Emily Bischoff, Kim DeVitis and Lisa Egan should also make an impact.

Also returning are sophomores Jenny McLaughlin and Kristen Walley. Laskowski also has been impressed with what she's seen early from freshmen Allison Soranno and Megan Vollick.

Livonia Franklin

First-year coach Diane Burk inherits a team that finished in the basement of the WLAA last season and lost its top three golfers to graduation.

However, Burk remains optimistic, but also realistic about her team's chances this season.

"We're looking for improvement in each golfer's score," she said. "We're realistic, but the team has some upbeat attitudes. These girls have a sense for what golf is and have developed an understanding of the strategy of the game.

"I know I'll see improvement in the team and I think they'll surprise themselves."

Junior Sarah Belcher will probably be the team's low scorer. Also coming back are junior Monica Rowley and sophomores Andrea Gossett, Karen Hollenbeck, Sunshine Jackowski, Kristan Koleczko and Beth Parnell.

coached by Bruce Foxworth (Roger Smith's coach) out of Los Angeles.

Campbell got started in the game through his parents at the Metropolitan Racquet Club in Detroit where he was tutored by Tim Ballard and the club's owner, Emeral Crosby.

"I started early, but I really didn't take tennis seriously until I got to high school," he said. "Before that it was recreational, but in high school I got coaching and played every day."

Campbell emerged during his senior year as one of the top prep players in the state under the coaching of the late Frank Garlicki.

"Frank was a good motivator, he was funny and he knew a lot about tennis," Campbell recalls.

Coming out of CC, Campbell considered Notre Dame and Michigan, but settled on Rice University in Houston, Texas, "because of the warm weather."

"My coach (at Rice) saw me play in Kalamazoo (at the National Juniors)," Campbell said. "It was also a different scene. Plus, if I had gone to Michigan or Notre Dame, I would have wound up playing a lot of the same players I had played in juniors. I wanted to play other competition from other parts of the country to see how I'd stack up."

Campbell went on to gain All-American honors at Rice and was an NCAA National Indoor finalist. He also earned his degree.

"It was a very tough school academically," said Campbell, who majored in business and political science. "But I have no regrets about my four years there."

Campbell now is trying to work his way into qualifying for the three upcoming Grand Slam events — the French, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

"Making the Australian was probably the highlight of my career," Campbell said. "If I was doing this, I'd probably be a businessman at heart, involved somewhere in sports."

Those plans, however, are temporarily on hold.

Tennis anyone? Defending league champs tough again

BY BRAD EMONS

TENNIS

The names may change from season to season, but the results are usually the same for the Redford Catholic Central High School tennis team.

The Shamrocks, under fourth-year coach Greg Grabowski, lost their top three singles players and No. 1 doubles team to graduation.

Jeff Haithcock, Mike Shaya, Chris Bonn, Doug Newton and Phil Tomey were all instrumental in last year's state Class A regional and Catholic League championship conquests, but all five have moved on.

Senior Rangit Gill, who played No. 2 doubles a year ago, now moves into the No. 1 singles position.

"He made a gigantic leap over the summer," Grabowski said. "And he's played well in our first two scrimmages."

When CC opens its season today at Schoolcraft College against Dearborn Divine Child, the lineup will also feature junior Steve Haithcock at No. 2 singles; freshman Brian Foley at No. 3; and junior Dante Cerroni at No. 4.

Foley, from Southfield, is rated both in the Southeastern Michigan and Western Tennis associations.

Meanwhile, in doubles, seniors Paul West and Paul Villasenor, state Class A semifinalists a year ago at the No. 3 flight, will fill the void this year at No. 1 position.

The No. 2 team will consist of senior Steve Hartsock and junior Mike Lombardi. Junior Phil Muldowney and senior Phil Zakaria will play No. 3 doubles.

"In the past we've been a little deeper," Grabowski said. "Right now it's going to be a dogfight between (Birmingham) Brother Rice, U-D (Jesuit) and (Warren) DeLaSalle in our league. It's going to depend on who can take the pressure."

LIVONIA STEVENSON: The defending Western Lakes Activities Association champions will be an underdog to repeat this season.

State Class A quarterfinalist, Henrik Eilstrom, an exchange student from Sweden, has graduated, leaving the No. 1 singles job up to senior Mark Findling, who was the Western Lakes champ last year at No. 2 singles.

Findling, who has a Boys 18 SEMTA ranking, should receive stern league tests from Northville's Matt Schwagle and Plymouth Salem's Xinning Li.

"Mark ought to do well this year," Stevenson coach George Croll said. "He's one of the best in our area and I feel he can play with the best of them."

Other returnees for the Spartans, who finished fourth in last year's Ann Arbor Regional, include senior Kosta Mihalovski, junior Chad Crosby, the league champions at No. 1 doubles.

Crosby will play No. 2 singles this year, while Mihalovski moves into the No. 3 slot. Senior Neal Karwande is set at No. 4, while junior Ben Gaffield and senior Brian Snyder are penciled in at No. 1 doubles.

"We have about 10 or 12 guys fighting for the other doubles spots," Croll said. "We feel we can compete at the top three spots with anybody. It's a matter if the others can be competitive at the other positions.

"Right now we don't have the depth we've had in the past. Northville, with their lineup top to bottom, is definitely the preseason (WLAA) favorite."

The Spartans open their season Friday at home against Farmington Hills Harrison.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL: The Chargers, who tied for fourth in the WLAA final standings, lost their top two singles players to graduation, Martin Knecht a WLAA finalist semifinalist at No. 1, and Todd Estes, a league semifinalist at No. 2. The Chargers will also miss their No. 1 doubles team of Dave Karolak and Mike DeShetler, second-place finishers in the Western Lakes.

Junior Matt Eszes, who played No. 3 singles last season, is the No. 1 man this year.

"Matt is very talented and has done well," Churchill seventh-year coach Denise Berg said. "He got a lot of experience playing USTA tourneys last summer.

"He's a smart player with a lot of variety in his game. He has an all-around game. He can serve, ground-stroke and volley. He also has very quick feet."

The rest of the lineup includes freshman Rob Aloe, No. 3 singles; senior Paul Gale, No. 4 singles; juniors John Webster and Matt McBride, No. 1 doubles; juniors Bryan Stramecki and Ryan Green, No. 2 doubles; juniors Neel Chokski and Matt Thomson, No. 3 doubles; and sophomores Chip Norton and Nader Salah, No. 4 doubles.

"It's a rebuilding year," Berg said. "It may be tough to repeat last year, but we feel we can play some competitive matches."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN: The Rockets, who tied for ninth overall in the WLAA, graduated just about everybody including No. 1 singles player Brian Pitera.

The roster features 11 juniors and two sophomores.

Coach Roger Cromwell, now in his third season, will rely on sophomore Deepak Dashairya to fill the No. 1 slot after playing No. 4 doubles a year ago.

"Hands-down, Deepak is our best player," Cromwell said. "He's improved, but he's still a 10th grader."

Junior Mike Raicu takes over at No. 2 singles after playing No. 4 last year. Freshman Adam Goyt will play at No. 4.

Junior Dave Drys, called "a real leader" by Cromwell, will move into the No. 1 doubles position.

"I like the fact that our kids are so enthusiastic and so quick to learn," Cromwell said. "We're trying to develop some of these kids, but there's a direct relationship to wins and how many times you hit the ball during the course of a year.

"We really got started in January, but we were fortunate the Dearborn Racquet Club let us in."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN: The Patriots, with only one senior (Bill Trachsel), are very young.

After finishing tied for 11th in the WLAA, there's only one way but up in the standings as far as third-year coach Frank Dotson is concerned.

"I'm heavy into prayer," Dotson chuckled. "Hopefully we'll do better. This is the tough conference. We'll just do the best we can."

Juniors Ojas Vihla and Bill Green will play Nos. 2 and 3, respectively.

"A lot of our kids don't have the opportunity to play at clubs or camps, but it's virtually a year-round game," Dotson said. "Metsger and Vihla spent time getting private lessons and I've seen tremendous improvement from both of them."

Juniors Jeremy Byrnes and Ryan Beasley will form another doubles team.

WAYNE MEMORIAL: Mike Hairabedian will close out his coaching career next month after 32 years. Inducted into the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association in 1994 and 1987 Coach of the Year, Hairabedian is also retiring from teaching after 36 years. The Zebras, who compete in the Mega Conference (White Division), return three experienced singles players — senior David Pheiter (No. 1), a two-year starter; senior James Bohnwagner (No. 2); and senior Rob McLellen (No. 3).

"Pay-to-play is killing us," Hairabedian said. "We have all first-year players except our top three."

Senior Luke MacPherson and junior Dennis Weaver form Wayne's top doubles tandem.

At No. 2, senior Jeremy Docusen and senior Chris Phillips will team up.

Wayne, which dropped its girls team two years ago, will feature Kathy Wyrabkiewicz and Roland Patterson, both juniors, at No. 3 doubles.

"Allen Park is the favorite in our division," Hairabedian said. "They had two unbeaten players coming back and picked up a ranked player."

SOCCER

Opening action

Chargers demolish Pats, 6-0

Junior midfielder Marie Spaccarotella score twice Monday, leading Livonia Churchill to a season-opening 6-0 girls soccer victory at Livonia Franklin.

Four other players scored for the Chargers — freshman forward Susan Hills, senior fullback Margaret Wirth, junior forward Stacy Baker and sophomore forward Andrea Will.

Freshman goalie Crystal Wright turned in the shutout.

ROUNDUP

STEVENSON 6, NORTH FARMINGTON 0: Nicole Tobin and Allison Campbell each scored a pair of goals Monday as Livonia Stevenson won its first game of the season at North Farmington in a Western Lakes Activities Association (Lakes Division) encounter.

The Spartans also gave interim coach Jim Kimble his first victory in his varsity debut.

Angie Pandoff and Mamie Vanderburgh also added goals for the Spartans, who bounced back after losses last week to Birmingham Seaholm (3-0) and Troy (4-2).

Anne Fedrigo added two assists, while goalkeeper Jenny Baker posted the shutout.

THURSTON 10, WAYNE 0: Kristah Manteuffel's hat trick Monday carried host Redford Thurston to a season-opening non-league win over visiting Wayne Memorial, playing its first varsity soccer match ever.

Debbie Wick added two goals for the winners, while goalkeepers Yvonne Malewski and Jenny Roberts combined on the shutout.

GARDEN CITY 8, LIVONIA FRANKLIN 0: On March 29, junior Jamie Faber pumped in five goals and added one assist as the Cougars rolled to the non-league victory at Livonia Franklin.

Laura Zakalowski added the other Garden City goal. She also recorded an assist.

Goalie Jenny Audritsh posted the shutout.

Schoolcraft College where she was a member of the 1987 National Junior College Athletic Association championship team. She earned her teaching certificate from Eastern Michigan University.

This season the Spartans started off with losses to Birmingham Seaholm and Troy.

On Monday, Kimble got his first varsity win as the Stevenson blanked North Farmington, 6-0.

"Even though Jim was not coaching in our (girls) program this year, we were glad to hire him," Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer said. "We're happy and pleased to have him because he was a member of our program and played four years at Central."

A member of Stevenson's 1982 and '85 state championship teams, Kimble was a four-year letter winner at Central Michigan University. Currently a sales representative for Wolverine Packing Co., Kimble coached the JV girls for three years and the JV boys two seasons at Stevenson.

Coller said that Hussey's situation will be reviewed following the season.

"It's all contingent upon what happens with her health," the Stevenson principal said. "But we can't forget she's done a wonderful job in our program.

"She not only won a state title, but demanded discipline and taught sportsmanship. She stressed the education and sportsmanship concept first. She's been a credit to Stevenson High School."

CENTRALIZED CAMPSITE RESERVATIONS

Good things come to those who wait — like campsites at Michigan State Parks.

Reservations at Michigan State Parks will not be accepted until April 17, when a new centralized reservation system will provide "one-stop-shopping" for Michigan State Park Camping.

Campers will be able to use a toll-free number to reserve campsites at 90 campgrounds in the Michigan State Park system. Once this toll-free number is installed, campsite reservations will no longer be taken at the individual state parks.

The temporary moratorium on campsite reservations is necessary so that reservation forms taken prior to March 13 can be entered into the system. Reservations mailed to state parks after this date will be returned to the sender.

■ CAMPING NETWORK AVAILABLE

The Michigan Association of Private Campground Owners is offering a special discount camping card to anyone who joins the Michigan Camping Network. Membership in the Network is $10 and entitles the card-holder to a 10-percent discount at more than 90 private campgrounds statewide.

Members will receive an annual subscription to the Michigan Camping Journal, a copy of the Michigan Camping Directory, discount coupons to RV shows, a Michigan Travel Planner and more.

For more information contact the Michigan Camping Network at 9700 M-37 S., Buckley, MI., 49620 or call (616) 269-4068.

■ CAMPGROUND HOSTS NEEDED

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is seeking individuals for its Campground Host Program. The program allows individuals to camp in a state park or state forest at no charge in return for offering assistance in the campground.

Duties of a campground host include greeting campers and directing them to their sites, explaining camping fees, providing light maintenance, answering questions about the park or forest, arranging campground activities and providing other services depending on the host's talents. Campground hosts can be individuals or teams.

For more information contact the DNR's Parks and Recreation Division at (517) 373-8232.

■ VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR NATURAL AREAS

Volunteers are being sought to help at natural areas at three state parks in southwest Michigan — Grand Mere, Warren Dunes and Warren Woods. The natural areas in these parks are being threatened by aggressive non-native plants that invade and crowd out Michigan native plant species.

"This program is exciting because it allows direct, hands-on participation in the maintenance and preservation of Michigan's ecosystems," said DNR Director Rollie Harmes. "Volunteers will learn about, as well as enjoy, our beautiful natural resources."

No prior experience is necessary to participate in this program. Volunteers will be shown how to take inventory of plant species in a natural area, determine what is threatening these species, and then identify and implement ways to begin healing the natural area.

Call Monica Terrell at the DNR's Parks and Recreation Division at (517) 373-8232.

■ BALD EAGLE SIGHTINGS

Wayne and Oakland were among the Michigan counties in which sightings of bald eagles occurred during the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' annual midwinter bald eagle survey conducted in January.

There was a total of 751 sightings covering 66 of Michigan's 83 counties.

In the Upper Peninsula, volunteers counted 302 adult eagles and 37 immature eagles. In the Lower Peninsula, volunteers reported sighting 351 adults and 61 juvenile birds.

There were three sightings in Wayne County and one sighting in Oakland. Gogebic County had the most sightings with 68, including 57 adults. The highest total of sightings in the Lower Peninsula came from Roscommon County with 33 sightings, including 30 adults.

Harrison softballers class of Observerland

■ PREVIEW

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

The prediction was right; it's just that the timetable was wrong.

This was supposed to be the year Farmington Hills Harrison emerged as a power in girls softball. Instead, it happened last year.

Everything came together sooner than expected for the Hawks, who won their first Western Lakes Activities Association championship and finished 26-6.

Now they face the challenge of doing it again, and many expect Harrison to remain No. 1 in Observerland with all but one starter returning.

"As far as the state, we're still an unknown quantity, because we don't have a tradition," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said.

The lineup is heavy with seniors who have been regular players for two years. Amanda Ault and Becky Macek were the only seniors last year and Heather Hopkins the previous year.

"We're solid at every position and with only 11 players we're right on the margin all the time," Teachman said. "With 10 coming back, it didn't seem smart to bring up some young people to sit."

Three returning seniors were All-Observer first-teamers: Erin LaCosse, Jenny Myslinski and Stephanie Schwalm. Senior Lori Hubble was on the second team.

LaCosse became a dominating pitcher last year, posting a 23-6 record with a 0.86 ERA and 213 strikeouts in 194 innings.

"And she's better," Teachman said, adding LaCosse has added five miles per hour and two pitches. She also will take a turn at bat this year."

Myslinski had impressive hitting stats while doing a fine job at first base. She hit .393 with five doubles, four triples, eight home runs and 41 RBI. She also stole 23 bases and scored 27 runs.

"When I'm coaching softball in the spring, I don't get a chance to scout too much," Teachman said, "but if there's a better player around here I'd pay to see her."

Schwalm will play left field and bat in the leadoff position again. She had a school-record 28 stolen bases and scored 30 runs while hitting .374 with 12 RBI and 15 walks.

"She has great self-discipline and an amazing batting stroke," Teachman said.

Hubble moves from center field to shortstop in place of Ault. She scored a school-record 34 runs and had 26 base thefts. Following Schwalm in the order, Hubble also hit .267 with four doubles and two triples.

"She has extremely quick feet and a strong arm," Teachman said, adding Hubble played shortstop in the summer to prepare."

Junior Kristen Koziara, who can play any position and even pitch, will take Ault's No. 3 spot in the batting order. The switch-hitter had a .311 average with two home runs, 16 stolen bases and 16 runs scored.

Teachman expects senior second baseman Jodie Barringer to surprise other teams after a strong finish in '94. She might be the best bunter.

"She can really handle the bat," Teachman said. "She had 56 at-bats and 35 to 40 times I gave her at least one bunt sign."

Senior Amy Geary will play third base and is good against the bunt. She hit .360 as a sophomore but saw her average drop considerably last year.

"That was probably my fault because I didn't find the flaw in her batting," Teachman said. "She can rip the line drive and, now that we're working with her on the flaw, the ball is shooting all over the place."

Senior Kathy Schneider returns at catcher, with Koziara being a quality backup. Schneider hit over .400 in the last 20 games and .339 overall. She had only two strikeouts in 62 chances and 13 RBI.

Hubble's move to shortstop won't leave a void in center field since the Hawks have senior Kelly LaCosse, who missed most of last season with a pulled hamstring and sprained ankle.

"She plain goes and gets the ball," Teachman said. "By the time the ball leaves the bat, she's taken a couple steps in that direction.

"Her main physical contribution is her play in center field, but her main contribution is her team spirit. She's the No. 1 cheerleader on the team."

Junior Holly Foster is solid in right field. She threw out 12 runners at first base and hit .247 with two doubles, two home runs (including a grand slam) and 16 RBI.

"Obviously, (her defensive ability) takes a lot of heat off your pitcher," Teachman said, adding Foster will bat fifth behind Myslinski this year. "I don't see anybody wanting to pitch around Jenny to get to Holly."

The one addition is junior outfielder Katie Kelly. The Hawks, who have a combined 3.6 grade point, play host to North Farmington in the opener Tuesday.

Churches prepare for Holy Week, Easter services

Palm Sunday, April 9, marks the beginning of Holy Week as area churches celebrate the passion of Christ. Christ's journey to the cross began with this festival and continued through His resurrection on Easter.

The Christian life is a journey of faith in God's love through Christ. The season of Lent, which meant springtime in Middle English, is a time for growth in faith that is a work in love.

During the 40 days of Lent, Christians make their own journey to Jerusalem with Jesus, determined to leave behind the "old self," equally determined to put on the "new self," to borrow terms from St. Paul. Traditionally, this journey has included such practices as fasting, giving-up personal pleasures, giving extra time to prayer and special services of worship.

During Lent, Jesus beckons people to join Him as He travels towards death and resurrection. With that journey in mind, local churches are putting finishing touches on their Holy Week and Easter observances.

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

This whodunit goes high tech

"Hardware," by Linda Barnes (338 pp., Delacorte, $19.95). Detroit native Carlotta Carlyle, with the able help of her creator, Linda Barnes (also born in Motown), has done it again. The fictional, transplanted-to-Boston P.I., who drives a taxi in her spare time, has shifted her wit and wisdom into high gear and tracked down yet another dastardly villain.

The tall, tenacious redhead last appeared two years ago in Barnes' popular whodunit, "Snapshot." This time around, she has acquired a partner of sorts — but more about that later.

As "Hardware" opens (with some telling words about the nature of secrets), it appears that somebody has been beating up on Boston cabbies with a near-deadly vengeance. Looks like they might be out to get the Green & White, the company for which Carlyle drives the streets of Boston. On the other hand, the primary target could be her on-again, off-again boyfriend, Sam Gianelli. Sam, the son of an infamous Boston mobster, co-owns the company, along with one of Barnes' most brightly painted characters, the irrepressible, Twinkle-loving Gloria. Though wheelchair-bound and weighing in at 300 lbs., the dispatcher with the "Gospel-touched" voice manages to slip away with just about every scene in which she appears.

In this tale of hacks and hackers, things begin to really heat up when Carlyle, along with Sam and his weird pal, Frank, suddenly find themselves on the vulnerable side of a drive-by shooting. This, just after the detective has gotten a "deal" on her first personal computer, courtesy of the aforementioned Frank, an electronics expert who can push a few buttons and make "privacy" seem like an obsolete word.

When I say that I am no computer whiz, I am making the vastest of understatements. On good days, I can tell the difference between bytes and a bit and can distinguish software from hardware. But I don't begin to have a handle on how it might be possible for me to access Nancy Reagan's dress bill at Neiman Marcus, or your credit history just by keying in "sequences of letters, numbers, and punctuation marks." Not only do I not know remotely how to do such things. I cannot remotely understand how it can be done.

All of this not to bore you with my naivete re computers, but to establish that, when I opened up this book, I felt somewhat at a disadvantage. After all, computer technology is this story's centerpiece, and I was concerned Carlyle might drive off at high speed, leaving me stranded and confused right there in the middle of the Info Highway.

I needn't have worried — not so much, anyway. Carlyle is a neophyte herself (Barnes must have kept readers like me in mind), and so, in a sense, I learned as she got acquainted with her new electronic sidekick — although I won't pretend we always learned at the same pace.

Should it have turned out that I didn't learn much, I might have even enjoyed this book to

COMPUTERS, KIDS and Art

Technology is fact of life—even in the visual arts studies at Randolph Elementary School in Livonia where Sally Morche Diskin teaches art and its history with the aid of computers.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN, SPECIAL WRITER

The computer is changing the way students learn about turn-of-the-century artists like Piet Mondrian.

With the aid of this modern day technology, students in Sally Morche Diskin's art classes at Randolph Elementary School in Livonia trace the evolution of his art from naturalism on through to Symbolism, Impressionism, Fauvism, Cubism and finally abstraction. Then they put the elements and principals found in the work into practice.

Trained at the Amsterdam Academy, Mondrian left Holland for Paris in 1911. On a lifelong quest to find an expression of unity, he eventually achieved this goal by eliminating all curving lines in his compositions to create geometric abstractions of vertical and horizontal structures in primarily primary colors.

In Morche-Diskin's art classes students used squares and lines to create nonobjective or abstract compositions similar to Mondrian after studying the artist and reproductions of his art in their classroom.

"We just finished studying Mondrian, his philosophy of line, how he broke the work down into simple geometric shapes.

"Mondrian greatly influenced architecture and furniture. I show them how a chair is broken down into these shapes, then how to use the rectangle box on the computer, then they create their own version of a Mondrian," said Morche- Diskin, honored in 1987-88 as the Livonia school district's Teacher of the Year.

She is the first art teacher ever to receive the award.

Art history

The benefits of teaching art and art history with the aid of computers are many says Morche-Diskin. For one, the computer manages to hold students' attention. They become involved to the point of being mesmerized by the media and, in turn, learning she says.

"It's so exciting to have the computer in the elementary classroom and integrating the computer into the art curriculum. From six year olds on up they're using word processing and Draw and Paint," said Morche- Diskin, a Livonia Public Schools' teacher for the last 23 years.

The technology is so new that Morche-Diskin is writing her own lessons for integrating the computer into the art curriculum.

"I love the computer, but I had no idea how I would incorporate it into my art lessons. It opened my mind, expanded the possibilities. I don't have a an extent, anyway. For one thing, Barnes' brisk, grab-you-by-the-throat style is almost impossible to resist. For another thing, it's hard not to admire a whodunit so carefully-plotted.

In addition to all that, there are Barnes' colorfully drawn characters. Along with Sam, Gloria, and the oddly behaved Frank, the most vivid of these is Roz, the unpredictable tenant who shares Carlyle's gritty Cambridge digs. If Dickens had written during the age of computers, surely someone like the purple-haired Roz would have walked across his stage, taking to all the nooks and crannies of cyberspace with ease and panache, just as if she'd been born there.

The only real reservation I have with this novel has to do with Carlotta Carlyle herself and a certain tiresome smugness that crops up sometimes toward her own casual promiscuity.

Her thoughts after one sexual encounter: "I chased Keith out as soon as I could . . . I hate the word relationship. I'd enjoyed the night. Enough. I'm not a clinging vine. I didn't even ask if he'd call."

The work which ranges from painting and drawing to pottery and computer graphics spotlights students from 22 elementary schools, four junior highs, three high schools, the career center, and the CAPA (Creative And Performing Arts) program at Churchill High School.

Certificates of appreciation were awarded to students exhibiting in the festival at an opening reception Monday night at the library.

A computer demonstration by students illustrated where the future lies for art students in the Livonia Public Schools.

"The Fine Arts Festival celebrates the work that the kids do all year long. It traces each stage of their development and will give grandparents and neighbors a chance to see each stage of their development displayed," said Stevenson High School art department chairperson Connie Cronenwett.

The festival or showing of the artwork also serves as a form of communication between students and the public. Stevenson junior Mark Compton, 19, is looking forward to his second exhibit. Originally from South Korea, Compton came to this country when he was adopted 12 years ago. Throughout the years his artwork always communicated when words sometimes failed.

■ 'I like to see what other people think of my work, negative or postive.'

Mark Compton

"I like to see what other people think of my work, negative or postive," said Compton.

For Stevenson sophmore Rachel Stokes, 15, the festival is definitely a self confidence booster. Because of limited space the number of artworks on display had to be scaled down to 15 entries from each elementary school, 45 from each junior high and 50 to 60 from each of Livonia's high schools.

Stokes was happy just to be one of the chosen few.

"It's an honor to be included in the festival," said Stokes whose self-portrait in last year's show was so glamorous that "all the guys wanted to date her after seeing it."

Also included in the exhibit will be work by Stevenson senior Dana Schutz who recently won a $40,000 scholarship to the Cleveland Institute of Art. Don't miss her large scale oil paintings rendered in the style of the German Expressionists.

On a positive note, this year's festival was extended from its usual two week run to four. However, in years past the festival celebrated the performing arts as well as visual. This one does not.

One of the goals for the 20th annual Fine Arts Festival in 1996 calls for reinstating music and theatrical performances.

The arts in the Livonia Public Schools are definitely looking up with the addition of Paul Derwich, assistant director of instructor, whose job responsibilities include coordinating the fine arts within the schools.

Derwich believes the arts are all important to a student's education. His own daughter Kristin, 14, has privately studied violin since age 3.

"The festival provides a showcase for the students to display their talents and gives the community a chance to see some of the good things that happen in Livonia Public Schools," said Derwich, a member of the governing board for the Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

"On a day-to-day basis the arts are part of a well-rounded education. I'm currently looking at ways to try to integrate the arts more into the curriculum and how to infuse technologies into the program including the art and music program."

Hours for the Fine Arts Festival are the same as the library's 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday (except Easter Sunday).

The Livonia Civic Center Library is at 32777 Five Mile Road east of Farmington.

■ ART SHOWING

Redford sculptor Randall Lentz is part of the "In Justice" group exhibit judged by Carol Jacobsen that runs through April 22 at the Detroit Artists Market, 300 River Place, Suite 1650.

Lentz's wood and metal sculpture entitled "The Enslavement of Man's Soul" features one 3-foot tall figure holding four chains which lead to four smaller figures whose arms are chained behind their backs. These smaller figures are painted four different colors to respresent the races on the planet.

"The sculpture's done on a good versus evil theme, people who have made choices to be evil or good," Lentz said.

Lentz has previously exhibited his primitive like sculptures on this theme at Claire Spitler Works of Art in Ann Arbor and the former Nelson's Gallery in Livonia.

Detroit Artists Market hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and until 8 p.m. on Friday.

Arts Midwest seeks panelists

Arts Midwest, a regional organization providing funding, training and publications to its nine-state area, seeks panelist nominations for 1995-96.

Panelists will be considered for Dance on Tour, Jazz Master Awards, Minority Arts Administraton Fellowships, Performing Arts Touring Fund and Arts Midwest/NEA Visual Artist Fellowships granting programs.

Panelists review applications, make funding recommendations and provide policy guidance. Panel meetings where applications are reviewed are open to the public. Anyone can nominate a panelist. Self nominations are also accepted.

To nominate yourself or another individual as a panelist, contact Arts Midwest funding programs associate Scott Staupe at Arts Midwest, 528 Hennepin Ave., Suite 310, Minneapolis, Minn. 55403-1899, phone (612) 341-0755, fax (612) 341-0902.

Panels are selected to bring a balance of age, gender, geographic and cultural perspectives to the grant selection process. Most panels are composed of people from both outside and within the Arts Midwest region of Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Arts Midwest accepts nominations throughout the year and maintains a panelist database for ongoing selection and referral. Panelists receive an honorarium and travel expense reimbursement. A nomination doesn't guarantee a panelist position.

Panelist nominations are being accepted for these programs:

■ Dance on Tour (six members) — Reviews applications from Midwest performing arts presenters seeking funding for dance events. Panelists should have expertise as dancers, choreographers or dance presenters/administrators.

■ Jazz Master Awards (four members) — Reviews nomination letters, artist resumes, biographical material, published reviews and cassette tapes to select recipients of Jazz Master Awards. Panelists should be regionally or nationally recognized jazz artists with expertise in education, presenting, performance and/or community service.

■ Minority Arts Administration Fellowships (six members) — Reviews applications, letters of reference and resumes from people of color for arts administration fellowships. Panelists should be knowledgeable about issues, challenges and goals related to arts administration and be capable of discussing fellowship policy questions. Panelists should be recognized cultural arts leaders with expertise in arts institutions, personnel issues, culturally specific community organizations and/or leadership development. Each panelist is also asked to serve as a mentor to a fellowship recipient.

■ Performing Arts Touring Fund (three members) — Reviews applications from Midwest presenters seeking funding for music, opera, theater and other performing arts events. Panelists should have expertise in at least one of these disciplines, or arts presenting/administration.

■ Arts Midwest/NEA Visual Artist Fellowships (four members) — Reviews artists' slides, resumes and artistic statements. Panelists should have expertise in crafts, photography or sculpture to be considered for the next panel in 1995-96, or expertise with works on paper or painting for the 1996-97 panel.

curriculum. Because its so new, I write my own lessons then try them out on the kids," said Morche-Diskin who also teaches art at Cooper Elementary School in Livonia.

"The computer is here. I feel I have to give them the opportunity to explore. There's a lot of thinking, decision making judgment that goes into using a computer. I feel as compelled to teach the computer as I do painting. It allows them to take their knowledge and see it as another tool to create."

Integrated curriculum

The technology based tool also allows students to integrate subjects being studied. At Randolph they have the freedom to pull up the Claris Draw and Paint program to illustrate their science and literature projects.

A science class in the process of studying the atom created different types of atoms by using Draw and Paint. Another class studying Haiku demonstrated their free hand drawing skills by creating sea slugs, jellyfish, lobster and star fish to swim around the words.

"They're like sponges. They soak it up," said Morche-Disken.

But why do students enjoy using the computer in their studies?

"It's instant. They've grown up with MTV. They like the power they have of being able to change something instantly," Morche-Diskin said.

Sixth grade student Jill Apolloni agreed. "If you mess up you can start over."

Randolph's basic art curriculum focuses on history, drawing skills, painting, techniques and an overview of media using discipline based art education.

Once a week, hourlong art classes plus additional time in the computer lab working on Macintosh Quadra 650s teaches 6-year-olds basic shapes. To learn their addresses first-grade students create houses incorporating this information into them.

"It's like a new medium. First graders, it's important they know their addresses so students draw a house and put in their addresses," she said.

Fourth graders Chris Clark and Don Morgan have spent considerable time in the computer lab. The 10-year-olds are sold on using computers for their art classes.

"It's fun," said Clark.

Morgan quickly added, "and it's easier to clean up."

Secondary level

At the secondary level Riley Junior High School art teacher Judy Boyll is sold on additional advantages gained from teaching art with the aid of computers. Presently students learn on two computers in her classroom. By late spring she hopes to have an entire lab of Macintosh Centris and Quadra computers up and running the Dabbler program.

"Most of the kids are excited about it. These kids have to know about computers if they're going to work in any art related field including printing. The computer offers them an almost instantaneous medium to do a preliminary workup, the opportunity to make changes and the ability to see the finished product before transferring it to paper," Boyll said, "and it's a great self-esteem builder."

At the high school level, Stevenson's John Wagner has only just begun to teach the computer skills necessary for a career in commercial art. The 28-year veteran art teacher is currently showing students how to use fonts and transparencies to design book jackets and CD covers.

"It's so new, I'm learning from the kids and the kids are learning from me," said Wagner who also is the boys golf coach.

If you're interested in viewing computer generated art by students of Morche-Diskin, Boyll and other Livonia Public School art teachers don't miss the 19th annual Fine Arts Festival (see accompanying story) continuing through April 27 at the Civic Center Library.

"The festival gives students the opportunity to display their work," said Morche-Diskin. "We're generally unaware of the talent in the elementary and secondary schools. It's mind boggling to see what these students create."

Simplify home-mortgage shopping

BY BECKY BURNS
SPECIAL WRITER

One area mortgage company has developed an interactive mortgage seminar in an effort to educate potential home buyers on options out there for them.

Many mortgage companies periodically offer similar programs.

Select One Mortgage Services Corp. of Farmington Hills held its first seminar March 15. The company's comprehensive seminars are each one hour long and provide practical advice and an overview of the mortgage process for people looking into buying new homes or refinancing their current ones.

"I think anything that helps lift the educational level of any buyer so that it takes the fear of the purchase away is beneficial," said Sue Kelly, manager of Ralph Manuel Realtors in Birmingham.

Source One's goal is to make the seminars educational to give practical advice to consumers, said Mark Sera, the company's corporate marketing executive.

"Make it educational, make it informative, make it dynamic and people will get involved," he said.

Seminar attenders are encouraged to look into other mortgage companies to see which is right for them.

Sera said he and his company are confident enough in the work they do to advise potential customers to thoroughly explore their options.

"If they're going to shop around, we hope they would make the right choice," he said.

The Source One seminar comes complete with a fill-in-the-blank workbook for "students" to follow along in. The company hopes the hands-on part of the seminar will prove to be more than just an in-class worksheet.

"You can bring it home with you," Sera said. "You can always refer back to it."

The back of the workbook contains four helpful lists: Ways to Rebuild Your Credit, Seven Ways to Accumulate a Down Payment, Four Things to Avoid When Purchasing a Home, and How to Increase Your Purchasing Power. The lists follow a comprehensive glossary of mortgage-related definitions.

"A lot of these terms are thrown around, but unfortunately the public isn't educated to what they mean," Sera said.

Some benefits to interactive seminars are that they keep the audience involved, and of course, they bring in potential clients for the company giving the seminar.

David Wells, vice president of MCA Mortgage Corp. in Southfield, said it doesn't do the company any good to have a class of 30 participants who all walk out the door when the seminar ends.

"It usually becomes a two-way street when you get people interested," Wells said. "Its a wonderful source of information for home buyers."

Sera said Source One has made the seminar as upbeat as possible to get people interested in the topic and involved in it.

"Once you get buyers who are willing to participate, then it's interactive," Wells said.

Kelly said seminars are important but potential home buyers should not lose sight of the fact that their purpose is to provide a general overview.

"I usually recommend and make an appointment for a customer to meet with a loan officer," she said.

Loan officers help potential buyers figure out what they need to do in order to meet their own personal mortgage needs.

In the meantime, a basic knowledge and a workbook are offered to Source One seminar attenders things they can take home with them for present and future use.

For information on Source One mortgage seminars for individual home buyers or for corporation employees, call 1 (800) 736-0090 Ext. 5882 or 5887.

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q I am concerned about the smoke emanating from the unit below me through the common duct system. The smoke is so strong, sometimes that it makes me ill. Do I have any recourse against the association, as well as my neighbors with regard to the smoke?

A This is indeed a somewhat novel question and I do not believe you would be successful in precluding your neighbors from smoking in their unit, unless there is some prohibition in the documents from doing so.

However, to the extent that the duct work in the building is conducive to the passage of smoke and other odors from your unit, you may have a basis to pursue your neighbors for an excessive amount of smoking and/or the condominium association or the developer, as the case may be, in connection with the design and construction of the unit.

In a situation similar to this, a New Jersey board of directors took it upon itself to reset moldings and caulk and to seal holes that could be allowing smoke to enter a unit. It also installed door sweeps and weatherstripping in an effort to avoid problems between various co-owners who were threatening litigation against each other concerning second hand smoke. It may be appropriate for you to consider such a request on the part of your association.

Q I have just learned that our board of directors gives preferential treatment to its own members in terms of the priority of the repairs that it has done to the condominium project. The directors got their units repaired before other members of the association. Moreover, they are so cheap, they do not want to spend the money necessary to properly repair my unit. I want to sue them, but am concerned about the cost. What can I do?

A Unfortunately, hundreds of condominium owners in Michigan are in a similar plight. They are on a fixed income and do not have the economic means to fight the condominium association and their directors, who may be backed by their insurance carrier.

More and more boards of directors are abusing their prerogatives and getting involved in conflicts of interest, hiring personnel who are unable to effectively do the job for the association and dare the co-owners to sue them, considering the fact that they are protected by insurance coverage.

The Condominium Act gives a co-owner the right to compel the association and its directors to comply with the condominium documents, including the need to repair units properly. You should consider the possibility of removing the board politically and getting together with other co-owners similarly situated in your condominium to pursue the board of directors and the association for any abuses of their discretion and/or conflicts of interest.

You also may have a right to obtain legal fees if you are successful in pursuing the association, depending upon the theory that you utilize.

The best houses lead the Parade

■ Who among the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan puts together the most functional, appealing models? One measuring stick is the annual Parade of Homes competition.

Driftwood: This Cape Cod model, designed and constructed by Wineman & Komer Building, places the master suite on the main floor, two other bedrooms upstairs.

Thinking about a new house but don't know exactly what you want?

Consider visiting the winners of the annual Parade of Homes competition, sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Builders with local connections won blue ribbons in several categories determined by price of the house. One hundred entries were submitted.

A panel of five architects judged photographic/artistic renderings, floor plans and written descriptions submitted by builders.

"They have a whole sheet prepared on criteria — best value for price, best use of space, innovative design and aesthetic appeal," said Susan Adler, coordinator of the competition for BASM.

"Parade of Homes is a scattered site showcase of model homes. For the most part, it's meant to be a comprehensive guide for people shopping for a new home," she added.

Following is a brief description of O&E winners: The Franklin, Silverman Homes, Farmington Hills.

The 2,165-square-foot colonial features four bedrooms and 2 baths. The main level showcases a living room, dining room, family room and fireplace.

"A lot of people comment on the huge master suite. It has a cathedral ceiling, built-in window seats and a garden tub," said Tracey Rodgers, sales rep. "There are six-foot windows on the first floor throughout the house so we have a lot of natural light come in."

The model, priced at $146,900, is in Pine Creek Subdivision, Grange Hall Road off I-75, Fenton.

The Driftwood, Wineman & Komer Building, Southfield.

The Cape Cod model, 1,950 square feet, situates the master suite on the main floor, two other bedrooms upstairs. The main level also contains a great room, library, kitchen/eating nook half bath and laundry.

"People like the openness, they like volume ceilings," said Darleen Regal, sales rep. "It's got a nice kitchen. It's got a front porch and side-entrance garage people like. And lots of big windows, too. People like that."

The model, priced at $183,900, is in the Round Tree Subdivision on Lapeer Road north of Silver Bell in Orion Township.

The Glenhurst, S.R. Jacobson Development, Bingham Farms.

The 2,200-square-foot colonial provides four bedrooms, all up, and 2 baths. Separate dining and living rooms feature bay windows. A dramatic two-story foyer accentuates the entrance.

"It's a very efficient and practical use of space. You can maximize living space in this house," said Lori Davidson, project sales manager. "People like the spaciousness of the bedrooms and baths. The porch and exterior design are very exciting."

The model, priced at $196,000, is in the Adams Ridge Subdivision at the northwest corner of Adams and South Blvd., Auburn Hills.

The Brookside, Cohen Associates, West Bloomfield.

The two-story, 2,870 square feet, offers four bedrooms, 2 baths, traditional living room, dining room, family room and library.

"It's a gorgeous house," said Vicki Nelson, sales director. "Not only is every room good size . . . , but every feature is designed in a specified way to accommodate the needs of a growing family . . . and meet everyone's needs.

"It has outstanding features like drop plant shelves, French doors, step ceilings," Nelson added. "The master bedroom has a sitting area, the bath is very large and it has a his-and-her vanity."

The model, priced at $219,900, is in the Hillsborough Subdivision on Maple west of Wixom Road in Wixom.

The Monterey, Cohen Associates, Bingham Farms.

The 3,225-square-foot two story provides four upstairs bedrooms, enlarged living room/dining room with vaulted ceiling over both,

He troubleshoots for non-profits

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/ STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Big assist: Gary Dembs concentrates on helping non-profits raise money and fill vacant staff positions.

Gary Dembs makes his profit troubleshooting for non-profit agencies and organizations. He also helps non-profits find employees to fill vacant staff positions.

Dembs, 38, a Southfield resident, is basically a one-man band who runs two distinct business operations — the Public Image and the Non-Profit Personnel Network. He anticipates sales this year of $100,000.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview in his Southfield office.

What's the scope of your work?

Dembs: Public Image is a fundraising and marketing agency exclusively oriented to helping non-profits. I have no commercial clients. We deal with marketing, media, direct mail.

I deal with a lot of human service agencies, a lot of, quote, disease agencies, child and family agencies.

Non-profit staffing is such that you have people doing a lot of things. If this is the case, they call in someone who can give a piece of expertise at a good price within budget.

I work on either a monthly retainer, project-by-project fee or hourly. Most is on a project-by-project basis. It's not considered ethical for a professional fundraiser to charge a percentage of what they raise.

My success has been with medium-to-small non-profits. They seem to need more help.

What about the Non-Profit Personnel Network?

Dembs: It's a search firm for non-profits looking to fill positions in four areas — marketing, fundraising and administrative position and any administrative support position.

There's such a high turnover rate. I think salaries are lower. They don't pay as competitively as the corporate world. Lack of benefits probably is another reason.

We work in two ways. We find qualified people by doing searches if they (non-profits) hire us to do that. We have a resume bank of 200 people.

Employees pay $100 and that's good for a year. They can post as many positions as they want. If they hire a candidate we refer, it's 2 percent of the first year salary.

It costs $30 for six months for people to post their resumes. They get a newsletter every two weeks.

Editor's note: A recent newsletter contained 28 available positions.

How are you different from other search firms?

Dembs: We're the only search firm in southeast Michigan that concentrates on non-profits. Another thing is our fees are so low. Most are in the 25 to 30 percent range.

What kind of jobs are available?

Dembs: We get a lot of calls for special events people, fundraising experts, PR people.

Non-profits are great for entry level.

They (employees) are able to do a lot of different tasks due to skeleton staffs. If you go to GM, you do just newsletters, speech writing or media relations. In non-profits, you're given everything to do.

Starting pay is lower, $18,000-$22,000 per year.

What exactly is a non profit and what is their economic impact?

Dembs: That's a good question.

It's any charity or educational or religious or medical institution. Any agency that needs outside funding to survive, that has a specific mission. The thing that's different is their legal standing.

I don't have exact numbers, but there are thousands upon thousands in southeast Michigan. There are three in this building alone — Michigan Cancer Society, Juvenile Diabetes and Tri County Dental Health Council.

Total employment of the non-profit sector for Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties was approximately 125,000 people as of 1994. The economic impact in dollars is impossible to answer because it (money) comes from so many different sources.

How do you go about getting non-profits to post jobs and individuals to subscribe to your posting service?

Dembs: It's the same for both. Most of it is direct mail . . . and word of mouth.

"We've done three or four special mailings. We sent postcards at the end of the year with the message If you're putting a budget together, think of us.

We're going to take out ads in March and April in college newspapers about signing up for the postings.

What do you see as the future for non-profits?

Dembo: The burden on non-profits will be intense over the next several years. The way Newt Gingrich is leaning as speaker, if he's successful, it will put a very heavy burden on human services non-profits and all non-profits.

In that case, there will be tremendous turf wars, battles for funding. Non-profits will need someone to help increase visibility, credibility, to get bigger dollars.

Everything from a non-profit standpoint has to be done strategically. You can't go by the shotgun approach any more. Competition for dollars and volunteers is so intense.

How did you happen to get so involved with non-profits?

Dembo: I was PR director at W.B. Doner in Southfield. I started working with the hunger issue there. I decided non-profits really needed a senior level person to help with marketing and special events.

That's where my heart is at. That's where my head is at. That's where I want to be.

family room and living room. The master on the second floor is a step up with tray ceiling.

The contemporary exterior is painted, split rock brick.

"People love the spaciousness and openness of the floor plan. It seems to have everything people want in terms of layout and things being in the right places," said Gail Sandweiss, sales rep.

The model, priced at $299,900, is in Park Ridge Subdivision on Pontiac Trail between Haggerty and Halstead in West Bloomfield.

■ The Belmont, the Selective Group, Farmington Hills.

The 3,150-square-foot story and a half features a first floor master with cathedral ceiling, soaking tub, separate shower and two walk-in closets.

The model also contains a library, great room, formal dining room and three-car garage. Three bedrooms are upstairs.

"It's got a gorgeous kitchen/nook and hearth room/morning room area," said Patrick O'Leary, sales rep. There's a two-way fireplace between the hearth room and great room.

"It's a very large, comfortable, cozy kitchen," he added. "Large and cozy normally don't go together but they do in this case."

The model, priced at $356,000, is in Barclay Estates on Beck Road between Eight and Nine mile in Novi.

■ The Carmel II, Abbey Homes, Birmingham.

The 4,050-square-foot two story has four bedrooms, all upstairs, with a walk-up master and 3½ baths.

The main level includes library, great room, living room, formal dining room and laundry.

Special accents include liberal use of marble in and around the foyer, fireplace and wet bar; cherry cabinetry, crown moldings, two-way fireplace between great room and kitchen and three-car garage.

Time Never Runs Out!
NOW...
You can place an Observer & Eccentric classified ad 24 hours a day!

Here's how it works: First, you must have a touch-tone telephone. Then, all you do is call us — remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here — to place an ad, cancel one or change something in one you've placed earlier. Let's say it's eight o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid on the clock you're selling plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it. If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers. Pretty neat, huh? Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad — at your convenience.
