Teen: Don't prosecute ex-coach

Obviously nervous on the witness stand Monday, a Westland high school athlete said she doesn't want her basketball coach punished for having sex with her. The case has ruptured relations between the girl and her mother, who said her daughter "won't even look at me."

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A John Glenn High School athlete testified Monday that she doesn't want her 33-year-old former basketball coach prosecuted for having sex with her when she was only 15.

The girl, who turned 16 on April 2, said she testified against fired coach Patrick Bennett only because she was told by authorities that she had no choice. She said she was pressured by a prosecutor who told her that Bennett "didn't love me and was taking advantage of me and using me for his own pleasure."

In a startling development, the 10th-grade girl denied claims by her mother and authorities that she knew a phone conversation was being taped when she called Bennett on March 6 from the Wayne Police Department.

"I didn't know it was going to be recorded," she said, adding later, "I wasn't going to call him if I knew it was going to be recorded."

The girl said she learned of the tape-recording at school, from a John Glenn softball coach who knew someone associated with Bennett.

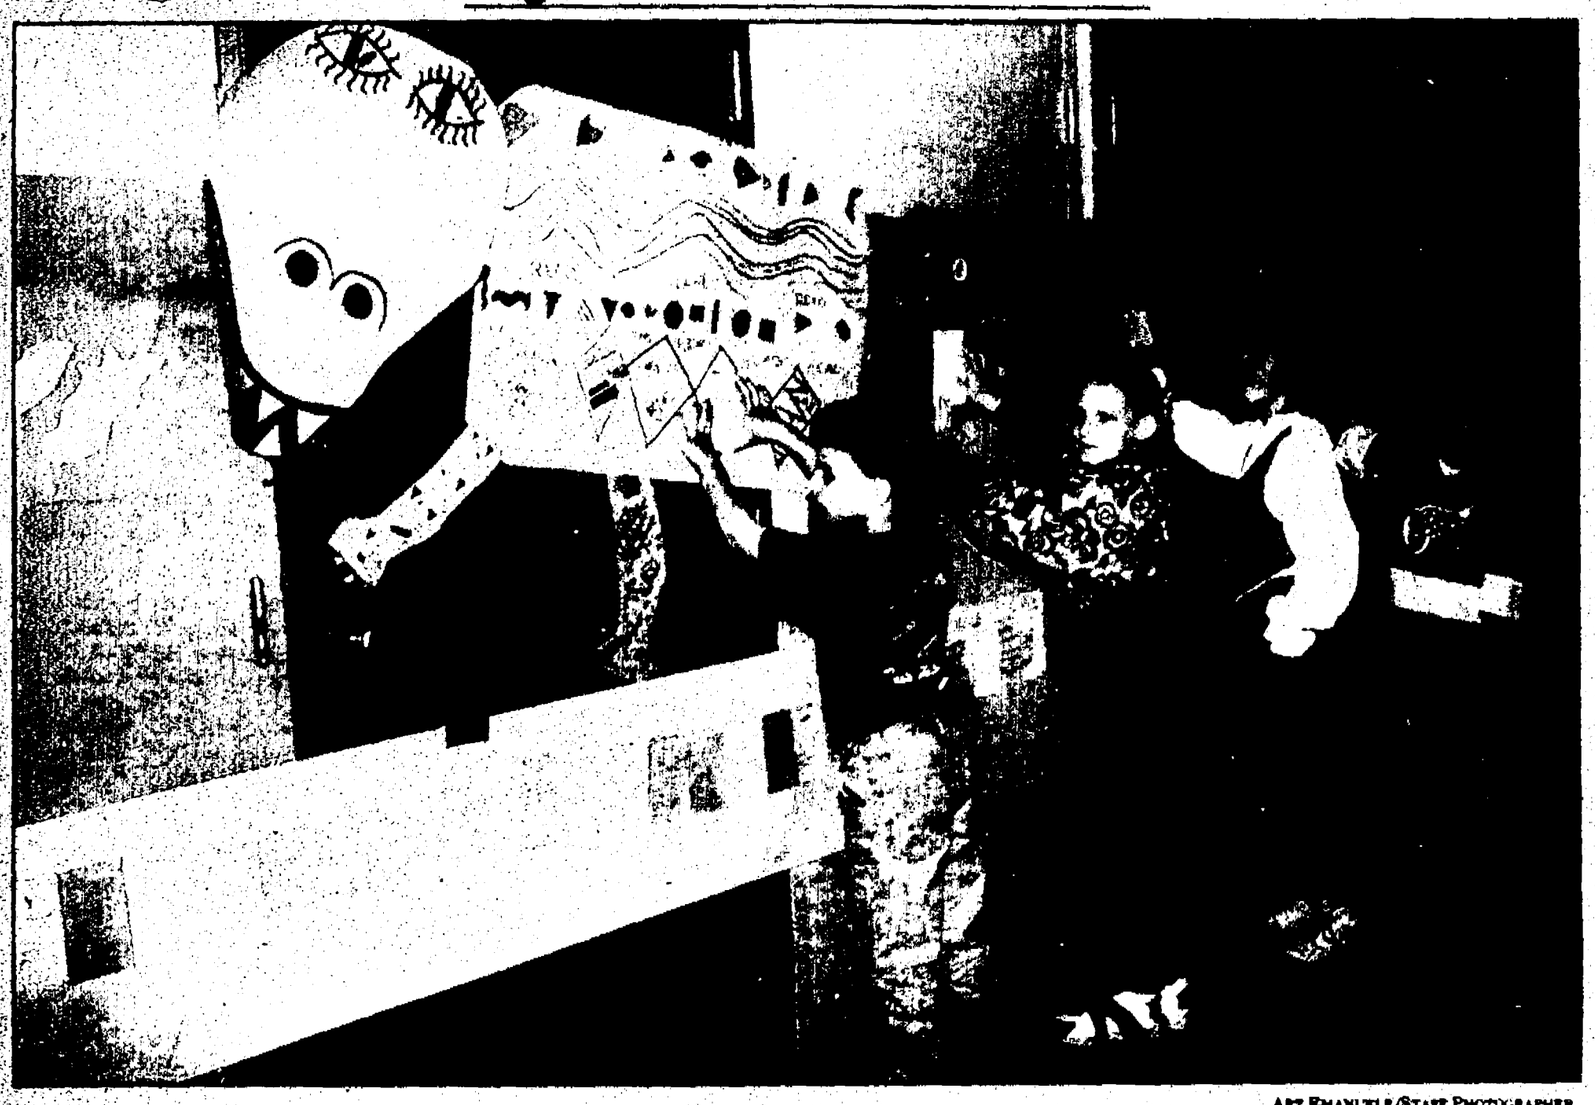

The girl, dressed in blue jeans and a white sweatshirt, testified that she initiated the phone call to Bennett because she wanted "to find out if he loved me."

The girl was fidgety on the witness stand and often glanced at Bennett. At times, assistant Wayne County prosecutor Margaret Rynier had to remind the girl to look at her.

The girl's mother, wearing tinted glasses, testified that she believes her daughter made the call to prove that Bennett cared for her.

Dragon's fire boosts Madison's readers

Dragon theme fires up reading program

Madison Elementary School students were "fired up" for a month-long reading project by a dragon theme.

It was initiated last month by reading teacher Joann Copsey to encourage all students in the school on Carlson near Avondale to read and/or be read to.

Copsey said the dragon theme had students create art work throughout the school's hallways and then extend the dragon's tail by pinning slips signifying that they read a book or had one read to them by a family member or another student.

The teacher said there were some 2,000 slips which created a dragon tail that extended throughout the school's hallways.

"Fire Up for Reading" was the theme of the project, Copsey said.

"It was one of our most successful reading programs," she said with about 75 percent of the school's students taking part.

The display will remain in the school for about another week, Copsey said.

School closing could backfire for board

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne-Westland school board's decision to save money by closing Monroe Elementary in Wayne could backfire if a group succeeds at turning the building into a charter school.

School officials fear that many Wayne-Westland students could opt to attend the charter school. State dollars — to the tune of $5,500 per student — would go with them.

"We're in enough bad financial shape without our enrollment going down," school board member Debra Fowlkes said.

Parent Jeanette Hoff, who wants Monroe to become a charter school, said it's possible the school could maintain an enrollment level similar to the 342 students who attended at last count.

If that happened, then $1.8 million in state aid could be pumped into the charter school.

The school board has been considering leasing Monroe, and Superintendent Larry Thomas said the board might not be able to legally refuse the charter school group, depending on what offers came in.

Working with Central Michigan University's Center for Charter Schools, the group that wants to launch the Wayne-Westland area's first charter school includes current Monroe principal Chuck Stockwell and a group of parents and physicians.

Stockwell has accepted a $50,000 buyout and is leaving Wayne-Westland at the end of this school year.

The charter school would accept general population students, but many teaching approaches would be geared toward pupils with learning disabilities, Stockwell said.

Students would advance at their own pace by meeting outcome objectives, rather than moving ahead because of age or grade level, Stockwell said. Student ages would likely range from 5 to 13 years old, he said.

Hoff said students "would work with their problems, not against their problems." The program would focus on "behavior modification," she said.

PLACES & FACES

Trio honored

Three students from the William Ford Vocational-Technical Center captured gold medals during a weekend contest in Lansing that drew 2,000 students from across the state. Winning top honors in the Vocational/Industrial Clubs of America state convention were Darren Draper for welding, Patricia Perkins for culinary arts, and Brad Wallace for air-conditioning skills. Draper and Perkins are 11th graders at John Glenn High School, and Wallace is a John Glenn 12th grader. The students continued a winning streak for the Ford Center, whose students have won many honors in recent contests.

Easter event for kids

Westland youngsters will take part in the annual Easter "cottontail" hunt 4 p.m. Friday at Central City Park, south of Ford between Wayne and Newburgh roads. The event, co-sponsored by the Westland recreation and fire departments, Westland Cultural Society and Civitan Club, will be held rain, shine or snow. Children will be split into age groups of 1-3 years, 4-6 years and 7-9 years. They will hunt for "cottontails" (marshmallows). Bags and baskets are allowed. The marshmallows will be turned into a redemption center for a small bag of goodies.

Free trees

More than 900 seedlings will be given away free Saturday by the Westland Historical Commission and the Friends of the Museum at the ninth annual adopt-a-tree program. The 12 varieties will be given to people on a first come, first served basis noon to 3 p.m. at the Westland Historical Museum, 857 N. Wayne Road, between Marquette and Cherry Hill. The varieties of seedlings include red oak, Japanese birch; white birch, Douglas fir, pine oak, Washington hawthorn, black cherry, misty blue spruce, Austrian Pine and autumn olive.

New fire chief?

Does the city of Westland have a new fire chief?

Chief Michael Reddy, promoted Jan. 12, was introduced as "Frank Reedy" at the recent grand opening ceremony of Value City Department Store, on Warren Road near Central City Parkway.

City administrators and others at the ceremony ribbed "Reedy" about it afterward.

Voters approve two Livonia school tax issues

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

A successful millage election Monday gave Livonia Public Schools' officials two big reasons to cheer.

First, the $26.8 million generated by two tax proposals that voters renewed will stay intact for the next five years. That means the district, which serves the northern section of Westland, will continue to keep without question one-quarter of its nearly $120 million budget to pay for programs.

Secondly, the district can now set aside $3.3 million yearly over the next five years to pay for building repairs.

Voters approved Proposal A, the two property tax renewals, by a more than 2-1 margin, 7,730-3,227.

The vote on Proposal B, a new 1-mill tax for building repairs, was much closer, 5,716-5,223, or 52.25 percent to 47.75.

"The people in (the district) have always supported their schools in many elections, in good and bad economic times," said Superintendent Ken Watson Monday night at a vote-counting gathering at Livonia Education Association offices.

Throughout the count, right from the first count of absentee ballots, passage of Proposal A never was in doubt.

It was Proposal B that gave vote counters the jitters.

Westland voters supported Proposal A by the same margin as the district as a whole, while backing Proposal B by a larger margin then their counterparts in the city of Livonia, giving the building repairs proposal a 58-42 percent margin of victory.

The 1-mill levy means a property tax increase of $35 a year for a house valued at $70,000.

The district's absentee ballot vote of 778-1,076 left the proposal with a substantial hole from which to climb. But after votes in 17 precincts were tallied, 1,172-1,184, the hole had shrunk to nearly nothing.

From there on out, it was smooth sailing for Proposal B.

"After the absentee ballots were counted, we were happy it was not a wider (negative) spread," Watson said. "It gave us hope that Proposal B had a chance. We were happy that it wasn't worse."

Throughout the campaign, district officials made 80 presentations to 3,000 residents. Campaign activities also included a videotape, information booklet, electronic town hall meeting, meetings with senior citizens, mailings, information through the district's newsletter, and a luncheon for senior citizens.

The "one cloud across the horizon," Watson said, was a postcard urging voters to reject Proposal B mailed out by former city assessor Ron Mardiros.

"It was not signed; it was not the kind of campaign the district waged; it did not serve the community well," Watson said.

But, agreed Joyce Galindo and Kathy Kalousek, two parents along with Sandy Gelman who led the campaign for thee proposals, the post card coming just days before Monday's vote did serve one important function.

"The negative post card charged up people to say, 'no way, no one is going to take this away from us'," Galindo said.

School administrators especially feared a backlash by residents who voted for Proposal A last year, expecting increases to end, only to find themselves faced with another one.

In fact, in gaining passage of both proposals, the district went against the track record of many other schools that have seen tax increases defeated this year.

In putting a new tax request on the ballot, the district also went against the "no-new-taxes" bandwagon sweeping the country.

"To those who voted 'no', we will continue to work to provide quality school programs with the dollars available," Watson said.

What made this campaign especially different, Kalousek said, is that the district did not threaten residents with program cuts if either proposal failed. "There were no threats, no list of things that would be cut."

4 candidates seek 2 Livonia board seats

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

There will be no Westland residents on the Livonia school board, following Monday's deadline for candidates to file for the ballot.

Westland's Richard McKnight announced earlier this year that he will not seek a third four-year term when his term expires June 30.

Seeking the two four-year terms are incumbents James Watters and Frank Kokenakes and challengers Patrick Nalley and Pamella Guarneri.

The board last year appointed Kokenakes to fill until this coming June 30 to the balance of the term left vacant by the resignation of Sue Thompson.

Her term was to expire June 30, 1996.

Candidates had until 4 p.m. today (Thursday) to withdraw.

3 vie for board in Wayne-Westland

Only three candidates are competing for two seats at stake in the June 12 Wayne-Westland school board race.

- David James, 36, a Westland resident who owns Family Remerica Real Estate.
- Martha Pitsenbarger, 50, a Wayne resident who is a therapist and social worker for Occupational Health Centers.
- Ed Turner, 61, a Westland resident who is a retired American Airlines employee. He chairs the Westland Cable Commission and is a longtime treasurer for Wayne-Westland Junior Miss Inc.

The three candidates are competing for two four-year terms. Current board members Laurel Raisanen and Vicki Welty, who will end their first four-year terms June 30, decided not to seek re-election.

Board candidates have until 4:30 p.m. Thursday to withdraw from the race, said Eleanor Harrington, district elections clerk.

The winners of the June 12 race will join board holdovers Patricia Brown, Debra Fowlkes, Richard LeBlanc, Mathew McCusker and Francis "Bud" Winter.

School bus drivers to get drug tests

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland school bus drivers will be randomly tested for drugs and alcohol under a new policy approved unanimously Monday night by the school board.

The policy brings the district in line with a federal law that went into effect Jan. 1.

School officials have had no reported problems of bus drivers drinking or using drugs on the job, but the new law is aimed at providing safeguards for students being bused to and from school.

Only elementary students currently have school transportation in the Wayne-Westland district. Busing was halted last October for secondary students because of budget cuts.

Bus drivers will have "no knowledge of what day they're going to be tested," said Bill Middel, executive director for employee services.

School officials aren't opposed to the law, but they voiced concern that the measure places another responsibility on districts without providing additional government money.

Alcohol tests cost $20 for each employee, while drug tests cost $42. Newly hired bus drivers are subject to more extensive tests that cost $70.

Depending on the severity of the situation, bus drivers could be fired for a first offense, according to the policy. The district also has the option of referring employees to a treatment or counseling program.

Among some of the policy's highlights:

- All first-time drivers will be tested before they start their jobs.
- Drivers at fault in accidents are to be tested for alcohol within two hours of the mishap, unless there's an overriding need for medical attention. Drug tests are to be administered within 32 hours. The district will have to prepare a report if, for some reason, a test isn't conducted.
- Random tests of bus drivers will be required "just before, during, or just after the performance of safety-sensitive functions."
- Tests can be demanded when a supervisor or district official has a "reasonable suspicion" that a driver has violated the policy. Such tests have to be based on specific "observations concerning the driver's appearance, behavior, speech or body odors." Drivers showing "chronic and withdrawal effects of controlled substances" also can be required to be tested.
- Drivers refusing to be tested wouldn't be allowed to perform their job duties.
- Offenders could be allowed to return to work after receiving professional help, but they would have to be tested before resuming duties. They could be subject to ongoing tests, too.

The group is expected to receive approval late this month to start a charter school, Stockwell said.

Supporters want to use Monroe because many would-be students live in the area and because the building "needs to be used," Stockwell said.

Some school board members are questioning whether they should lease the building at all. Board member Patricia Brown indicated that the district could eventually need the building if population begins to increase in the neighborhood.

Board member Richard LeBlanc said he believes the board should lease the building, but should consult with attorneys to see if it can "protect our interests" on leasing matters.

The board instructed Thomas to have attorneys put the board's options in writing.

Board member Vicki Welty said she believes the district should explore the option of starting its own charter schools.

"We've got to look at becoming more competitive," she said.

Board member Francis "Bud" Winter questioned what kind of charter school the district would seek to operate, such as one for gifted students or disruptive students.

"We really need to visit the whole concept of charter schools," Winter said.

Tomasko named to Glenn post

Marcia Tomasko, a Marshall Junior High School assistant principal, is being promoted to the same position at John Glenn High School.

The new assistant was promoted to the Marshall post in the fall of 1993. She previously served as a Marshall counselor for 21 years, including being counseling department chair, and Stevenson Junior High School physical education teacher for three years.

A Wayne resident, she has certification as a secondary and central office administrator.

In related actions, Thomas supported the requests of principals Sally Perkins and Jose Muller to be transferred to Elliott Elementary and Hicks Elementary, respectively. Perkins and Muller are now at Titus and Fischer Schools, which will be closed June 30, two of four to be shut to balance enrollments and to save money.

The requests were based on the principals' hopes to follow their current students to the newly assigned schools.

The superintendent informed the school board that all of the other principalships to be created by a large number of retirements have been posted.

"We plan to fill the two high school principal positions first (at John Glenn and Wayne Memorial) and ask that they be on board in order to select their other assistant principals," Thomas said.

"We anticipate that most of the hiring will be done in the middle of May, and, as agreed upon, I will encourage the new superintendent to be present during those interviews."

Thomas is leaving June 30 when his three-year contract expires.

The school board is in the final stages of picking a successor. Duane Moore, South Lyon superintendent, is the board's first choice. He has been interviewed twice with a final decision expected at the April 20 board meeting.

School board OKs 181 retirements

Vicki Welty, a Wayne-Westland School Board member and former district student, called it "a trip down memory lane" as she pored over a list of 181 teachers and administrators who have accepted an early buyout.

The seven-member school board unanimously approved the list Monday night, in a move that will shave $1.3 million from the deficit-ridden district's budget next year. The savings will come as longtime educators are replaced by newer, lower-paid teachers and administrators.

In the long run, the district could save as much as $15 million to $20 million during the next 10 years, said Patricia Brand, assistant superintendent for business.

Employees accepting the early buyouts will receive $50,000 to be paid out over eight years, in monthly payments of about $521. The district also will pick up federal taxes of $14,000 in the first year.

But money wasn't foremost in the minds of most school board members and district residents who mourned the loss of so many longtime employees.

"I will greatly miss these people," Welty said. "I know they made a very strong impact on my life."

Board President Mathew McCusker commended the employees and said, "I will match our staff against any other staff in the state of Michigan."

Board member Laurel Raisanen had earlier voiced reservations about the plan, saying the early buyouts "dehumanize" a human profession. But she supported the measure Monday, saying that unless the board trims its budget there will be "even more dehumanizing going on."

"There are so many talented, talented people leaving our district," Raisanen said.

Board member Francis "Bud" Winter, a former Wayne Memorial High School principal, noted that he hired many of the employees leaving the district.

Resident Vickie Maple addressed the board and said she, too, is saddened that so many of her former teachers are leaving.

"There are so many people there (on the list) who have made a difference for me," she said.

Here's list of those taking early retirement

The list of 181 Wayne-Westland school district retirees includes the entire John Glenn High School administration, Wayne Memorial High's principal and one of his assistants, and the principals of 11 elementary schools.

Among the veteran employees taking the early buyout offered by the board of education to help reduce costs are 160 teachers.

As a total, they represent nearly 5,000 years of service.

Among the retirees is Gary Dell, assistant to the superintendent, whose father held the same position for many years before his retirement nearly 25 years ago.

The administrators to retire June 30 and the year they joined the school district are:

Eugene Barnyak, Stottlemyer Elementary principal, 1961; Donald Brooks, Hoover Elementary principal, 1964; Phillip Buerk, Madison Elementary principal, 1969; Marcia Chrysler, Roosevelt-McGrath Elementary principal, 1975; Dennis Connolly, John Glenn High principal, 1969; Gary Dell, assistant to the superintendent, 1968; Sigvard Dietrich, Schweitzer Elementary School principal, 1958; Sharon Downs, Glenn High assistant principal/athletic director, 1967; Marian Greer, Lincoln Elementary principal, 1967; William Hawley, Wayne Memorial High assistant principal/athletic director, 1962; Peter Lawrie, Elliott Elementary principal, 1965; Donald Massey, Patchin Elementary principal, 1962; Marie Pleuss, Glenn High assistant principal, 1966; Ronald Somers, Vandenberg Elementary principal, 1959; Chuck Stockwell, Monroe Elementary principal, 1962; and Lillian Vojak, Hicks Elementary principal, 1965.

Other administrative employees to retire in 10 weeks are:

Kathleen Arbini, business office executive secretary, 1977; Georgia Leece, transportation director, 1964; Marlene Pedlow, executive secretary to the superintendent, 1964; and Reuben Wilkerson, buildings and grounds area supervisor, 1968.

Corrado honored by Civitan Club

Sam Corrado, a community activist, was honored last week by the Westland Civitan Club for his support of the service organization.

Corrado, who is not a Civitan member, received a plaque from Civitan president Barbara Polich for helping the club in many ways, including several fund-raisers.

The presentation was a surprise part of a Civitan celebration dinner, held Thursday, April 6, at the new Salvation Army Community Center, 2300 S. Venoy, Westland.

The program was part of Civitan Awareness Week.

The highlight of the program was the presentation of 100 "care bears" to the Westland police department.

The bears are given to children who brought to the police station as a child abuse victim, the club said.

"The purpose of the bears is to bring comfort and to help relieve the anguish of a stressful situation," a Civitan release said. "The bears can become a life-long friend because the children can take them home."

The stuffed animals are dressed in red and white T-shirts, bearing a Westland police badge and the Civitan International logo.

The care bears program is part of a commitment of the club to keep monies raised locally in the community.

It is also a major priority of Polich, who said:

"Things haven't been the same between my daughter and myself since this happened," she said. "(She) won't even look at me. I've lost my daughter completely."

Trial ordered

The dramatic testimony came during a 2½-hour preliminary hearing Monday that ended with Wayne District Judge Carolyn Archbold ordering Bennett to stand trial for third-degree criminal sexual conduct and obstructing justice.

Archbold denied a motion by defense attorney Irving Tukel that Bennett's right to privacy was violated when the phone conversation was tape-recorded without his knowledge.

Archbold said state law requires that only one person be aware of the taping, and she said she believed statements from authorities and the mother that the girl knew.

Conflicting claims by the girl are "a tad suspect" because she "made it very clear that she did not want to proceed with this case," Archbold said.

Wayne and Westland police have accused Bennett of having a several-month relationship with the girl. Bennett, jailed in lieu of a $50,000 cash bond, was charged March 18 in Wayne and March 21 in Westland.

Bennett, a 10-year coach, was arrested at the Farmington Hills Kroger store where he worked. He is scheduled for another preliminary hearing today (Thursday) in Westland District Court.

Under questioning from Rynier, the girl said she went to Bennett's residence in September. Bennett lived in the basement of his parents' house in the 38800 block of Parkview.

"We had sex," the girl testified.

Police have said the two also had sex at motels and at a Westland house that Bennett was watching for friends.

The girl said she was confronted by her mother in February when cards from Bennett were found in her bedroom. She said she flushed some of the cards down a toilet and returned the rest to Bennett.

The mother testified Monday that, "I had all kinds of evidence."

Vibrator cited

Her mother took her to a gynecologist, the girl said, and she confirmed that Bennett gave her a vibrator to explain "how I lost my virginity."

That testimony showed that Bennett was trying to obstruct justice, Judge Archbold said Monday.

The girl said she was told by Wayne police Sgt. Michael Sumeracki that Bennett had other girlfriends and would abandon her. Sumeracki made the statements to her before giving her a list of questions to ask Bennett on the phone, she said.

"I was upset. I didn't want to believe it," she said.

When asked by Tukel why she agreed to testify Monday, the girl said Rynier and police officers "told me I had to."

Tukel argued against the charges Monday by saying the girl is now 16 and is legally able to decide whether she wants the case prosecuted. Archbold disagreed, noting that the girl was 15 when the case emerged.

Tukel also lost his argument that the tape-recording and a manuscript of it shouldn't be admitted as evidence.

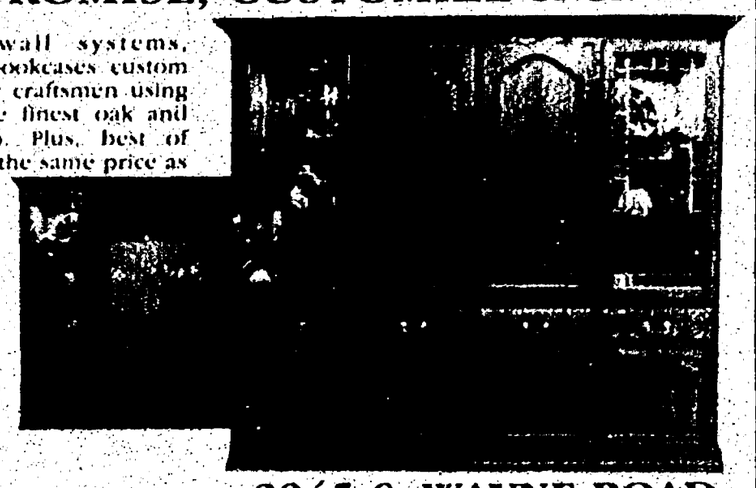

"It certainly is a setup," he said.

Bennett could face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison if convicted of third-degree criminal sexual conduct. He could face up to five years if found guilty of obstructing justice.

Women's Health Day
"Keeping Women Healthy"

Saturday, April 29
8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Holiday Inn - Livonia West
Six Mile and I-275

Keynote Speaker: Denise Dador, Health Reporter
WXYZ-TV Channel 7

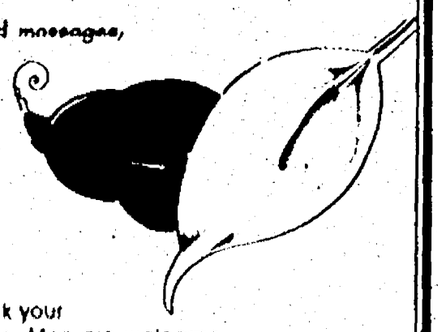

The first annual Women's Health Day, sponsored by St. Mary Hospital's Marian Women's Center, features WXYZ-TV Channel 7 Health Reporter Denise Dador, and a host of other health experts from St. Mary Hospital and the community.

Denise will discuss how to "Be at the Helm of Your Health." When it comes to health care, women no longer need to be victims of circumstance. Learn how to take charge of the factors that determine your health.

Women's Health Care Advocate and co-host of Channel 7's "Company," Marilyn Turner, will serve as Honorary Hostess.

Women's Health Day will include:

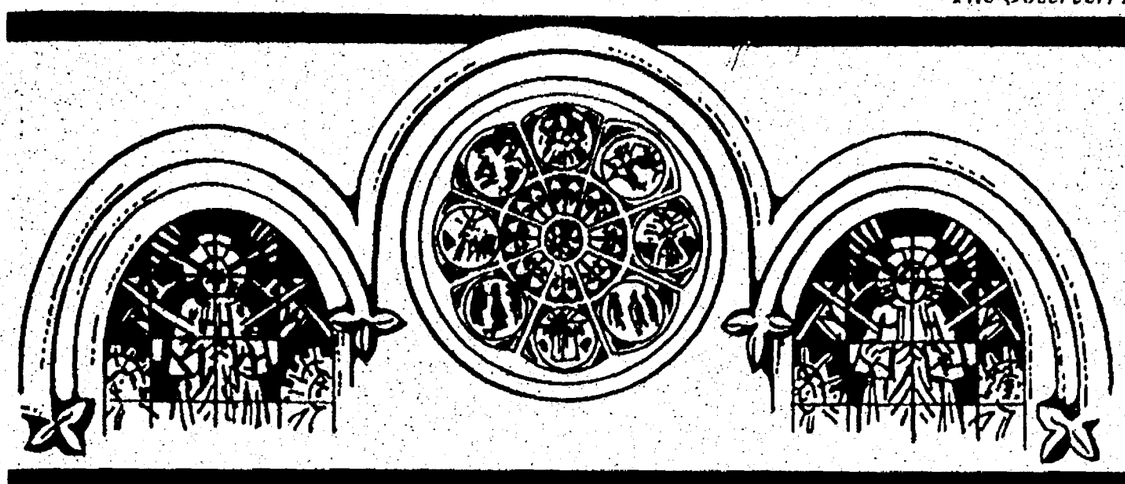

- Workshops on PMS/menopause, stress/anger, women and heart disease, co-dependency, grieving and loss, self-esteem, depression, advanced directives, eating disorders, breast cancer (panel discussion), mother/daughter relationships, life after 50, nutrition, and caring for the caregiver.
- Exhibits by area businesses, including make-overs and massages.
- Blood pressure screening.
- Continental breakfast and a "healthy" lunch.
- Fashion Show by Jacobson's, and
- Special gifts.

The $20 fee includes continental breakfast and lunch. Mark your calendar, and plan to bring a friend, mother, sister or daughter. Men are welcome. Pre-registration is required by calling the Marian Women's Center, (313) 591-2882.

Single group helps judge tulip contest

Volunteers from Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church's Single Point Ministry will be seeing tulips and more tulips Saturday, April 8, when they help judge a tulip growing contest in Detroit's Ravendale community.

Through a partnership with Joy of Jesus ministries, Single Point has been involved in Ravendale's Adopt-a-Block program for four years. Members of the ministry have committed to helping restore Ravendale's Hampshire Havens block and getting involved in the tulip project was a logical extension of the program.

"The purpose of what we do is to build bridges between the inner city and the suburbs," Single Point volunteer John Farley said. "The real reason we're involved is to make friends. Work is just an excuse to come together."

Last fall, the Kmart Corporation donated 160,000 tulip bulbs and flowers to support Ravendale's efforts. More than 500 residents planted bulbs in anticipation of having their landscapes judged this spring.

In the meantime, the emerging perennials are making many residents feel good about their community.

"We are excited to see the tulips come up," Ravendale president Toni McIlwain said. "I have a saying, 'Where there are flowers, there is life,' and there is life in our community. The residents of Ravendale are totally involved in the process of changing their own environment. Flowers are symbolic of that change."

On April 8, the judging committee will select the 10 best tulip displays based on arrangement, effective use of space, creativity, enhancement of landscaping and overall perception.

Other organizations sending volunteers are the Think Twice Foundation of Southfield, the Faith Clinic of Detroit and the Congregational Church of Birmingham in Bloomfield Hills.

Kmart will display photographs of the finalists at its Sherwood/Outer Drive store until the final judging on May 13. It also will donate a weeklong trip for four to visit both Amsterdam and the tulip-growing region of Holland to residents with the winning display.

Single Point is Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church's 300-member ministry for single adults ages 20-35. The ministry's outreach department is involved in various international missions and reading and vacation Bible school programs in Ravendale.

Wygonik named top journalist

Keely Wygonik is the Journalist of the Year for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. She was selected from among eight candidates.

Wygonik has been with the O&E for five years. She is a graduate of Michigan State University and is currently the Taste and Let's Go! editor at O&E. She previously worked as a copy editor.

Wygonik's nomination was submitted by Sue Mason, Community Life editor for the Wayne County editions of the Observer.

Wygonik produces two major sections each week — the Monday Taste section and the Thursday Observer Let's Go! section and Eccentric Let's Go! pages.

"Her work is like a recipe — a pinch of this a splash of that, but each pinch and each splash are carefully thought out," Mason said. "With news holes that can range from tiny to gargantuan, Keely knows how to fine tune copy to reflect the individuality of the Observer & Eccentric Publishing Groups."

"It's hard to think about breaking news in an entertainment or food section, but that's how Keely looks at such information. It's news and it's her job to track it down," wrote Mason.

SHARON LEMIEUX/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

In addition to her work at the O&E, Wygonik shares her love of writing with the students who produce the Henry Ford Community College student newspaper. She is president of the Henry Ford Community College Student Newspaper Advisory Board.

She also is active in the Garden City Business and Professional Women's Organization. She is a former BPW Young Careerist and worked on the local and district Young Careerist programs.

Wygonik and her husband, David, live in Dearborn.

Heart association seeks rope jumpers

The West Central Wayne Division of the American Heart Association hopes to raise more than $35,000 by the end of the school year through a program called "Jump Rope For Heart."

Schools in Livonia, Westland, Redford Township and Wayne will participate.

Each school launches its own event, coordinated by physical education instructors.

For more information, call (800) 557-9501.

Rivers to hold town meeting

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, of the 13th Congressional District will host a town meeting 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, April 19, in the Morris Lawrence Building at Washtenaw Community College in Ann Arbor.

For more information, call (313) 741-4210, or (313) 722-1411.

Freshmen reps blast 'polluter pay' changes

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Freshman lawmakers protested loudly as the state House of Representatives softened the 1990 version of the "Polluters Pay" law.

The goal of three bills is to encourage industrial redevelopment of older urban areas. Methods are to ease land cleanup standards and halt lawsuits over "orphan shares" — pollution caused by parties that are either out of business or dead.

First-term Rep. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, joined Mike Hanley, D-Saginaw, in entering a written protest to the House's 83-21 passage of the key bill.

"House Bill 4596 does not provide any funding to assure that urban areas can be cleaned up and reused," said Hanley. "The law currently requires contaminated groundwater to meet health-based standards before it reaches lakes and streams. These bills change that to allow for 'mixing zones,' or dilution areas, dumping untreated groundwater into rivers or lakes."

Freshmen from Kalamazoo, Burton, Lansing and Okemos — whose water supplies come from groundwater rather than the Great Lakes — wrote formal protests for the House Journal — a common practice in the Senate but rare in the House, and rarer among new members.

House action came before the Easter break. The Senate will get the bills when it returns April 18.

Prison budget

Spending reaches $1.3 billion

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

On paper, it looked easy — the House of Representatives gave 90-to-13 approval to next year's $1.3 billion prisons budget.

Actually, it took lawmakers four hours to hassle over amendments to curb Corrections Director Ken McGinnis' salary hike and end the "coddling" of inmates.

"There's gotta be a better way than throwing money at it like we've been doing since Blanchard's days," said Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth, one of the handful of negative votes.

Also voting no were Reps. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods, and Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti. All other area members voted yes except Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, who has been ill for several weeks.

Gov. John Engler, who has been unhappy with Michigan's glut of prison building (from 13,000 to 38,000 inmates since 1982) but hasn't dented the budget growth, wanted to give McGinnis a 19-percent salary hike — from the $82,000 mark to about $98,000.

Instead, the House adopted Gubow's amendment to give McGinnis no more than a 3-percent hike. The vote was 69-31. The Senate earlier voted a 10-percent increase, but House members rejected that figure. The bill will go to a conference committee, which is expected to split the difference.

Rep. Bill Bobier, R-Hesperia, twitted Democrats by proposing that McGinnis' salary be limited to the same amount as the highest paid member of the House staff. That happens to be the Democratic chief of staff, who gets $90,800, according to Republicans. Bobier withdrew the amendment after getting a few chuckles.

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, lost 33-63 with his amendment to cut funds to meet U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen's decrees, including those that require free college educations for inmates.

"We'd like to go along with Kaza's theory," said Rep. James McNutt, R-Midland, the bill's sponsor. "But if we don't comply, we obligate the state to a large fine."

Area lawmakers supporting the Kaza amendment were Eileen DeHart, D-Westland; John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township; Gerald Law, R-Plymouth; and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton. Others all voted no or missed the vote.

Rep. David Jaye, R-Washington Township, won support for two amendments:

- To eliminate loans to parolees without funds, 72-26. "As you might imagine, the default rate is quite high," he said.
- To require inmates to use earnings to pay restitution to their crime victims, 97-4. Law argued against it, saying another bill would allocate inmates earnings to both restitution and child support. Law also argued the forthcoming bill would be permanent while Jaye's amendment would be in effect only for the budget year ending Sept. 30, 1996.

Jaye failed with his amendment to add two lawyers to the attorney general's staff to "pursue all legal remedies" against Judge Enslen's orders on how prisons are run. "We're already spending $102.8 million to implement college educations, Vic Tanny weight-lifting machines, legal libraries. We're providing computer law services so they can file suits."

But House Appropriations chair Don Gilmer, R-Augusta, told Jaye the proper remedy was to add them in the attorney general's budget, not the Corrections Department budget.

Rep. Roland Jersevic, R-Saginaw, won 65-34 approval with his amendment to require inmates who win state lottery drawings to use their money to pay victim damage claims.

Rep. Charles Perricone, R-Kalamazoo, came close, 47-50, with his effort to ban all smoking in state prisons effective next March 1. McNutt won by arguing: "This (smoking) is for the staff, not prisoners. By 1998 all institutions will be smoke-free."

COMMUNITY

Yes — Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt; Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge.

Sponsor of the bill is majority floor leader Ken Sikkema, R-Grandville, the House GOP's acknowledged environmental expert. He said new funding sources are needed but would come later.

"I am convinced that this is good, sound, environment policy. This course, rather than the course we're on, will get more sites cleaned up," Sikkema said.

Gov. John Engler supports the legislation, saying current law has "an intimidating set of rules that has killed economic growth." Older cities are the big losers, Engler has said.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, concerned with business flight to "green fields" and abandonment of older cities, supports changes in the "Polluters Pay" law. But SEMCOG in February warned that alternative funding sources should first be found.

According to a Senate Fiscal Agency analysis last winter, the Michigan Environmental Response Act (PA 307) was passed in 1982 when the extent of contaminated sites was unknown. "Today there are an estimated 2,839 contaminated industrial sites, excluding leaking underground storage tanks, that could cost billions of dollars to clean up," SFA said.

"In 1988, voters authorized the issuance of $425 million in bonds for environmental cleanup purposes," requiring that the state first seek payment from responsible parties. So far, the Department of Natural Resources has made 188 settlements worth $87.2 million, saving the state nearly $60 million in cleanup actions.

Catholic Central hosts quiz bowl

Among the 16 participating teams were St. Robert Bellarmine of Redford, St. Michael of Livonia, Our Lady of Good Counsel of Plymouth, Our Lady of Loretto of Redford, St. Edith of Livonia, Emerson of Livonia, Warner Middle of Farmington Hills and St. Raphael of Garden City.

The top four teams received trophies, and all participants received certificates.

The winner was St. Robert Bellarmine, Team I. Second place went to Emerson I of Ann Arbor. Northville Christian took third place and Emerson II of Ann Arbor finished fourth.

Over the last 11 years, CC has had 102 National Merit semifinalists.

What's right with America 7

Someone marching to the beat of a different drummer has marched right into this "What's right with America" column. The marcher is from Livonia and her name is Allison Johnson. Her occupation — stay-at-home mom.

Allison Johnson is a full-time, stay-at-home mom, right here, right now, in the '90s. Now some may consider that as being as out-of-time and as out-of-place as say, a 75-cent movie ticket, or a pillbox hat, or even a black rotary-dial telephone. Yet here she is — in 1995 — in Livonia, a married, college-educated woman staying home to raise her children. That lifestyle in this day and age is unexpected at best, unaccepted at worst.

Nevertheless, Allison has forsaken the linen suit, 9 to 5, well-paid life for cookie baking and stroller pushing and 20-hour days. Sh's been told she marches to the beat of a different drummer. And it's true — her drummer is different. Her drummer thumps a steady, unsyncopated, unjazzy, unflashy beat.

Most don't march to it, for any number of reasons. (Some reports indicate that less than 10 percent of American families are like the Johnson family with Mom staying home full time. Other reports indicate up to 30 percent.) Yet in spite of majorities and critics, Allison marches to this drum beat, which sounds an awful lot like a heartbeat.

Allison's drummer doesn't know the cadence

Single parents have a friend called ACES

Carol LeDuc knows the struggles of being a single parent, of making ends meet when child-support payments are few and far between. She also knows she has a friend in ACES — the Association for Children for the Enforcement of Support.

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Joshua Matthew LeDuc sits quietly on the floor organizing booklets in rows of seven. When done, he proudly announces that there are 23, but corrects himself when a recount shows there are 21.

It's a serious job for a 6½-year-old. The booklets are from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, just a few of the things his mother, Carol, has collected to give to people who turn to her for help.

The Westland resident is coordinator of the Wayne County Chapter of ACES — Association for Children for the Enforcement of Support — a national non-profit organization that helps educate custodial parents regarding their rights and remedies on nonpayment and visitation issues.

"This is my office," said LeDuc, pointing to her kitchen table, filled with stacks of books and papers. "A lot of nights I'm here until 10:30-11:30 p.m., reading books and helping people with their problems. I don't mind. If there's anything I can do to get a case rolling."

The Friend of the Court has the job of overseeing child-support orders. Its duties include administering, monitoring and enforcing the support orders. It routinely takes in payments from noncustodial parents and sends them to the custodial parents.

The Michigan Friend of the Court is one of the best systems in the country for collecting payments. But then again, it also is owed the most money, a fact that has led Gov. John

LTU's hybrid vehicle fares well in DOE Challenge

Lawrence Technological University's student-built entry, Response II, in last weekend's U.S. Department of Energy Advanced Student Hybrid Challenge stirred the imaginations of some Orange County, Calif., schoolchildren and took fifth place overall and top honors in the range event.

The Challenge features hybrid electric vehicles (HEV), designed, built, manufactured and driven by university students from throughout the United States and Canada. These vehicles generally combine electric motors and internal combustion engines. The objective of the Challenge is to improve fuel efficiency and reduce emissions while maintaining superior range and performance over conventional cars.

The vehicles were put through five days of technical inspections and qualifying. They were judged on emissions, acceleration, gasoline fuel use efficiency, electric fuel use efficiency, vehicle range and design.

The University of California at Davis was the first-place winner in the ground-up category of the DASH Challenge with 813 points, while second went to Cornell University with 775 points, third to the New York Institute of Technology with 660 points. Lawrence Tech amassed 464 points for its fifth place, with the next best state finish going to Michigan State University, eighth with 272 points.

The Lawrence Tech team included S. David Miah of Redford, Angela Russo of Livonia, Tim West of Redford, Tom Wigley of Westland, John Bednarchik of Harrison Township, Mike Fsadni of Detroit, Shannon Hastie of Waterford, Sharon McNabb of Wayne, Chris Rinehart of Orion, Jennifer Wittmer of Sterling Heights, Kevin Young of Eastpointe, Rob Brnjac of Sterling Heights, Patrick Redd of Detroit and Ken Haubert of Royal Oak.

The student leaders were Brian Molnar of New Baltimore and Jeff Zendler of Pleasant Ridge. The faculty advisers include Charles Schwartz, senior lecturer in mechanical engineering, and Nick Brancik, a lab technician.

■ 'We were in the chase van and when we got up to it, we could hear the fuses going off like firecrackers. Something failed, either in the motor that caused the controller to overload or something in the controller snapped.'

Charles Schwartz

A good start

Response II, a sporty, front-wheel drive two-seater commuter, fared well March 30, the opening day of the event in Los Angeles, placing third behind UC-Davis and Cornell after the acceleration, braking and autocross events. A broken axle shaft late in the day, however, sent the Lawrence Tech team scrambling to make repairs before the two-day road rally.

The road rally left Los Angeles on March 31, heading south for a finish line in Long Beach the next day. The rally covered 100 miles and took in 31 cities.

Some 10-15 miles into the route, the vehicle's motor control failed. The "fried" controller, an electronic brain halfway between the batteries and the electric motor spelled big trouble for the Lawrence Tech team, which finished the day and the rally on the gasoline engine.

"We had just gone through an intersection . . . all of a sudden the blinkers go on and the driver in getting out," said Schwartz. "We were in the chase van and when we got up to it, we could hear the fuses going off like firecrackers. Something failed, either in the motor that caused the controller to overload or something in the controller snapped."

The Lawrence Tech students also took part as role models in a program that sent four of the university-built vehicles to nearby schools. Response II wowed eighth-graders at Dwyer Junior High School and Sower Middle School in Huntington Beach.

This was Lawrence Tech's third endeavor with the DOE's Challenge. The goal is for students to design, build and test vehicles aimed at improving fuel economy, reducing tailpipe emissions and maintaining conventional vehicle performance. Last year's Response II finished in third place overall, while the 1993 entry came in fifth.

"Without doubt, it was one of the prettiest cars in the competition," Schwartz said of Response II. "This car is something a consumer would want in his or her driveway."

The HEV option

The DOE, a major sponsor of the Challenge, considers HEVs to be an option to reduce harmful tailpipe emissions and dependency on traditional internal combustion engines.

"Each year, America shells out $45 billion for imported oil; as alternative fuel transportation develops, I believe it is critical to support an event that puts these cars on the road under everyday conditions," said Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary. "The public will soon be called upon to buy these vehicles and needs to see them in action."

A case in point is California's 1998 zero emission vehicle program which requires that 2 percent of all new cars sold in the state, approximately 30,000, must be emission-free.

DOE officials are excited about the HEVs because they combine "the best of electric propulsion and combustion engines," according to Bob Larsen of the Argonne National Laboratory.

The electric motors can power the vehicle around large cities, eliminating emissions completely, while offering consumers a fuel-efficient engine that can provide additional power for hill climbing or high-speed driving in rural areas.

HEVs, according to the DOE, also have five times the range of a typically solely electric vehicle.

As for the Response II team, the lessons they learned will stay with them for a lifetime, according to Schwartz.

"They are taking what they have learned in the classroom and are learning how to apply that directly to this vehicle," he said. "This experience will give them a major jumpstart on their professional careers."

Engler to say that it is broken and needs to be fixed.

Until it does get fixed, ACES has taken on the job of making sure Friend of the Court does everything in its power to get the support money to where it belongs.

ACES got its start in Toledo, Ohio, 10 years ago, by Geraldine Jensen — who, when the Friend of the Court wouldn't help her, decided she could do a better job and did. So much so that there are now 350 ACES chapters in 47 states with 25,000 members.

The chapter meets 6-8 p.m. the third Wednesday of the month at the Dorsey Center, 32715 Dorsey, south of Venoy Road between Palmer and Glenwood, Westland.

Most meetings focus on participants' problems with nonpayers and Friend of the Court and provide solutions, but LeDuc has started to bring in guest speakers like Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, who talked about leins and bench warrants at the March meeting.

Knowledge is power

Knowledge is the group's power base — knowing what things can be done to enforce support orders and what to say to get them done. Court referees and judges know the ACES name and "know we expect action," LeDuc said.

There are plenty of tools now available for child support enforcement. Jail time for nopayers, seek-work orders to prove noncustodial parents are looking for a job, wage withholding and taking money from state and federal tax refunds to satisfy arrearages, and bench warrants are some of the ways support orders are being enforced. In Kalamazoo County, the prosecutor is placing leins on driver's licenses, halting their renewal by deadbeat parents, LeDuc said.

"We have to use these things to get the amount of arrearages decrease," LeDuc said. "Friend of the Court has to enforce what's out there and hold these nonpayers responsible. Then they're going to realize that they can't hide forever."

But it is how you approach Friend of the Court that can make a difference, she added. Stating your case — what you want Friend of the Court to do — firmly and matter-of-factly can accomplish more than whining and complaining.

LeDuc's advice is to write a letter to Friend of the Court stating what you as the custodial parent expect the agency to do about your case. Keep a copy and wait two or three weeks to see what happens. According to LeDuc, if nothing does happen, it's time to move up the ladder.

"Write their boss (the Office of Child Support in the Department of Social Services in Lansing) and if that doesn't work, write to their boss in the regional office (Region V representative in the Office of Child Support Enforcement) in Chicago," LeDuc said. "And don't give up.

"ACES gave me a lot more information. It spelled out explicitly what Friend of the Court should be doing to go after non-payers, what data bases can be accessed. It allowed me to go to Friend of the Court and say, 'You should be doing A, B, C, D and E when you're doing only A, B and C, so now I want you to do A, B and C plus D and E.'"

She's been there

Like the people who call her, LeDuc is a single parent who has had to press her support case with Friend of the Court to get the $55 weekly payment required of Joshua's father. The father had not made a payment since May 1993 and those she had received since 1989 had been intermittent. He had paid $5,300, but was still $8,500 in arrears.

Last September, LeDuc made a tough decision. She decided to spend $25 of her wages for a seminar being offered in Livonia on the aspects of collecting child support payments. It turned out to be money well spent.

Sponsored by ACES, the seminar gave her the information she needed to press her case with Friend of the Court. It also led her to the position of what was supposed to be the western Wayne County ACES coordinator but currently takes in the entire area, until someone can be found to handle the east side.

"I don't know how they found him or how they made him go back to work, but it took another four months until I got my first check," she said. "When I contacted Friend of the Court, I told them I wanted this, this and this done, and they knew I had the forces of ACES behind me and they did everything to make me happy.

"I don't think if I'd done it on my own that I would have gotten as far."

LeDuc bristles when she hears remarks that child support doesn't really benefit the child. There are two things a child should get from the noncustodial parent, she said: emotional and financial support. They don't always get the emotional support, but they should get the financial end of it.

As for how it's spent — groceries, clothing, even the registration fee for organized sports are "great ways to spend child support," she said. Joshua played tee ball last year and, thanks to the weekly support checks, he will again this year.

In fact, it was during the season last spring that Joshua last saw his father, one of the 15 or so times he has seen him since his birth. His father gave him a bat and glove.

"He's a good kid and he deserves it," LeDuc said. "It's all a matter of perception. I'm here struggling, doing what I can to raise him when it would be so much easier if he (Joshua's father) helped out. I'm not try to get more, just what's due him.

For more information about ACES, call (800) 537-7072 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays. For information on the Wayne County Chapter, call Carol LeDuc at (313) 722-3564 evenings.

of prestige and paychecks and corporate glory. Being at home with Benjamin, raising her child in that way, means no prestige, no fancy glory, and, as any accountant can point out, a loss of money. By not working, the family income takes a big hit.

Critics of this lifestyle easily put the words "sacrifice" and "money" in the same sentence, as in, "You've sacrificed a career and money for this. Why? What's in it for you?"

What's in it? For Allison? In dollars and 401K kinds of terms? Nothing I guess. But for Benjamin, everything is in it for him.

"Where's the payoff?" scoffers ask.

The payoff. Hmmm. Allison holds the payoff in her hand, it's Benjamin's little hand. The payoff is having nursed her baby for his first year of life, whenever he got hungry day or night. And when he first laughed aloud, Allison heard it. When he first walked, Allison saw it.

And there's a payoff in the fact that wherever she goes, he goes. They've learned a heck of a lot about each other because of the sheer amounts of time they spend together. Allison knows which animals he likes in his crib at nap time. Benjamin knows which of Allison's pots and pans make the best drums.

There's also a payoff when he toddles beside her on the front walk. Allison brought him into this world and now she's taking him through it. Hand in hand they go — and the Glory/Money drummers march right on by. And that's OK.

Now those Get Ahead drummers Allison doesn't even pay attention to their racket any more. The ones who march over others to get what they alone want, disregarding the havoc they've left behind, they're way out in front now. From the outset, Allison knew she'd be left behind; the parade would go right on by. And by golly, it has. But that's neither a surprise nor a big problem for her. Leave it to the rest of them to trample and hurt to get ahead. She's happy staying out of harm's way.

Steering clear of that kind of harm hasn't meant Allison's life has been devoid of its own challenges and stressful situations. The difference, though, is that she focuses entirely on doing battle and fighting little wars on behalf of her child, not for herself. To do right by her child is far more important than doing for herself. That she learned within hours of Benjamin's birth.

This baby, this firstborn, was rushed away from her when he was three hours old. Diagnosis: a form of spina bifida. He was taken by ambulance to another hospital located an hour away. Allison would not see or hold her baby for days.

Then on the day she was released, she immediately went against doctor's orders and visited her son in the distant hospital. That was the day her baby, not yet a week old, underwent corrective surgery. Allison, forgetting her own very real post-delivery pain, prayed very hard for Benjamin.

The surgery was successful (I think the prayers had something to do with that.) And Thanksgiving Day 1993 was bittersweet — Benjamin was OK, but he wasn't yet home. The following day, however, he did come home. And there they were, a family of three at last, gathered closely inside the family room.

Early retirements

School changes are positive

The Wayne-Westland School District will go through a major change in its teaching and administrative staff when school opens next fall.

Students, parents and teachers will need a score card to find out who the new players are next September.

The reason is that 181 school employees, mostly teachers and administrators, have signed up for an early retirement program, effective at the end of the this school year, June 30.

Of the 181, nearly 160 are teachers and counselors. That means that more than 16 percent of the faculty will leave in 2½ months.

On the administrative level, 21 have applied for the early retirement, most of them being principals or assistant principals.

To reflect the impact of the administrative turnover, the list of retirees includes the principal and two assistant principals at John Glenn High School; the principal and one assistant principal at Wayne Memorial; and more than half of the elementary school principals.

While many may view the huge turnover as a problem, the Observer sees it as a positive challenge to the district.

Clearly, the vacancies will be filled by younger teachers, many of whom will be recent college graduates. They will represent the opportunity to inject new blood, ideas and energy into classrooms.

On the administrative level, the same principle applies. While the district's policies and guidelines remain the same, there are certainly different ways to reach decisions affecting teachers, students and parents.

The veteran educators who are retiring in 10 weeks served the district well and professionally and deserve the community's best wishes for working in the district during its crisis years. During that period, there was an ongoing series of financial crises that led to school closings and teacher layoffs.

On another level, one administrator told the Observer that there are more than just personal or family reasons for taking an early retirement.

The one that parents, public leaders and business officials should be aware of is that some soon-to-be-retirees are anxious to leave because of the many changes in direction that state officials want public schools to take.

The issue is not just change itself, but the frequent change of direction.

First, school principals have had to learn to deal with Lansing-directed curriculum changes. After working with teachers and others to implement those changes, Lansing changes it mind.

Public schools are difficult enough to manage, either as a school board member, building principal or teacher, when everyone knows what the ultimate goals are. But when there are constant changes, managing the change for positive purposes becomes more difficult, if not impossible.

While the district's school board and em-

Living the message of Easter

Christians celebrating Easter on Sunday do so not because Jesus died on Good Friday but because he rose from the dead and visited with the apostles for a time before returning to heaven, still very much alive.

As a matter of faith alone, Christians believe Christ remains alive today. Those beliefs in the resurrection and ascension have confirmed for Christians that the man Jesus was really the Christ (son of God) and as such was more than a great teacher. Jesus was a great teacher and moral leader; Christ is the spiritual leader for Christianity.

In talking with the apostles, Jesus made it clear to them and to us that his lifestyle was within the reach of everyone. And Jesus also taught, although this concept remains mysterious for non-believers, that the resurrection empowers all humans to become Christ-like in attitudes, thoughts, values, behavior, and in relationships.

In 1995, as in Jesus' time, we live in a world inhabited by diverse, multi-ethnic people who believe in different Gods or don't believe in any.

Jesus always showed tolerance for people of different ethnic backgrounds, of different beliefs, of different cultures. He could not tolerate hypocrites — people in power who misled and harmed the innocent, especially children. And so it should not be troubling today to Christians that the God others worship may be perceived differently than the God Christians see as the father of Christ.

What is important to our world, nation, community and neighborhood is whether Christians really believe they are empowered to be Christ-like and whether they make any effort to reach that goal.

If large numbers of Christians simply made the effort to adopt the attitude and behavior of Christ then our world will be a far better place — for atheists, agnostics, Buddhists, Moslems, Jews, and Christians.

If we considered what it meant when Christ showed genuine compassion to harlots and was personally interested in their welfare, what would be our attitude for those afflicted with AIDS?

Should it really matter to us if the victim acquired this dreaded disease through blood transfusion, drug use or homosexuality? Can we really avoid contact with AIDS patients when we see how openly Jesus approached lepers? Some of us say that Christ hated sin but loved the sinner. Do we?

The turning of the water into wine teaches us to be kind and graceful toward others so they will not be embarrassed or suffer humiliation. Christ's special love for the blind and crippled teaches us how to act toward the aged and disabled.

The story of the Good Samaritan is a challenge to reach out to those nearby who face crises in their lives. And the great commandment ("Love the Lord, Thy God, with all your heart, soul and might and Thy Neighbor as Thyself") is a dictate to believe in ourselves, to respond to others with equality and equanimity, and to worship our creator.

There's much more, of course, to ponder. His teachings, sayings, actions, and miracles could fill a book, and they have. But these thoughts should be enough for us to realize that this Sunday, when Christians celebrate Easter, we also celebrate the greatness of God the Father and Son and how great humanity can become if the challenge of Easter is accepted.

On April 16, may the son shine on your Easter.

Self value stressed

Hopelessness flows like a river to an ocean, never relenting when it concerns the moral decay of today's youth. Its flow is so intense that it disseminates into a multitude of areas that renders some young people intellectually inept and morally impotent.

Intellectually speaking, one must define themselves, understand who and what they are within the context of their facticity. Only then can one establish within this framework a code of values which volitionally creates a code of morality.

Why is it that a young person longs to belong? Why is it all generations feel that doom is inherent in the next generation? That, for centuries, has fostered a certain kind of mindset that produces irresponsibility? The conundrums that one asks oneself are limitless. The answer to these conundrums lies in self value. Young people must realize that without self value, no other values are possible.

Self value has to be earned by thinking. Without self value, one cannot love oneself or, for that matter, cannot love another person. Without self value, one cannot recognize what is right or wrong. For without self value, one is unable to recognize the difference between right and wrong. Without self value, one does not have a code of morality.

We must start teaching our young the importance of thinking, of being independent. The principles that one learns by being independent facilitates in the development of self value. We, as parents and teachers, with the assistance of the media, must start to devalue the group and emphasize the individual. The individual, nowadays, is mirrored in the group. His identity, his self value, is predicated upon the image of the group. His sense of belonging in society is nurtured by the collective mentality, a gang that usurps his independent power,for the formation of anti-social behavior.

We need to teach our young that individualism is not a sign of growth. To be taught independence and self love by our parent(s) and schools is the greatest tool that will enable us to combat the moral decadence that now pervades our perverse moral climate. If we are also to rectify this moral plight, ancillary measures must be taken. Parents must play an integral part in bearing some onus of its outcome.

Why is it that as adults, most forget what it's like to be young? As we get older and mature into parent(s), we seem no longer interested in rekindling that rebellious facade that nurtured our own identity but, in retrospect, defined diametrically an identity that we now come to know as a growing phase.

Parent(s) must learn to relate to their children. Parent(s) also should not seek to destroy the importance of adolescence, but seek to understand with compassion what it was like to be young. Whereby, with increased understanding, the relationship between parent(s) and youth is loving as opposed to confrontational. Mind you, though, there is a strong sense of discipline, yet a growth process that inculcates reason, purpose and self esteem.

Parent(s) must also acknowledge their young. Instead of saying what's your problem and putting the youth on the defensive, they should use a little more tact and articulate it in a manner more pleasant such as, what's on your mind, son. The inflection and verbiage must be friendly, as opposed to tyrannical. When you do this, it no longer becomes an adult lecturing a child, but a conversation between two adults; thereby giving the child proper respect, which he so richly hungers for. The young person no longer seeks outside acceptance through rebellious behavior, but finds acceptance within himself.

The plethora of social ills that now besets our nation has created a sense of despair and hopelessness amongst our young which, in turn, has caused an upswing of moral decay. To bespeak of effects without consideration of the causes is to accelerate into the abyss of moral bankruptcy. It has to be incumbent upon the parent(s) and the schools, with the aid of the media, to teach values which, in turn, teach morality.

A person's life is its standard of value. Whatever furthers its life is good and that which threatens it is evil. Make no mistake, though. A person is free to do anything he chooses, but what he chooses to do he is also responsible for his actions. The parents must also introspectively seek the wisdom that they have gained through time and channel it towards their children and teach them to be morally responsible. A morality that is defined not by the group, but by the development of one's own identity.

The young people must be taught that groups arrest human development and that it takes courage to break from the collective mindset. Because if our children don't and the schools and parents stay complacent, we are doomed to obliteration.

POINTS OF VIEW

Take steps to stop drunken driving before it happens

The most devastating thing that can happen to a parent, as I've watched life, is the death of a teen-ager — a kid on the brink of manhood or womanhood snuffed out in a traffic accident, especially by a drunken driver.

A reporter's toughest job, in my experience, is to knock on the door of grieving parents and ask for a picture of the dead teen, often a yearbook portrait.

So it wasn't exactly fun last Sunday to do a "Spotlight" program on Channel 7 with Ed and Peggy Babinski, parents of the late 18-year-old Christine, and Warren Councilman Jim Fouts. But it was an issue that had to be discussed.

All three support a proposed city ordinance to confiscate the cars of second-offense drunken drivers who have previously had their licenses suspended. Fouts said, "Judges and law enforcement officers are not enforcing the laws on the books." Their theme: "Anything" that gets habitual drunken drivers out of their vehicles. Mrs. Babinski would keep them from behind the wheel for seven years.

I've heard this debated for a decade: More punishment, tough new laws, more punishment. In the mid-1980s, the Legislature provided for jail and prison terms for second- and third-offense drunken drivers.

Before those laws were passed, the odds that any drunken driver would be arrested were one in 3,000. After they took effect, the odds were one in 3,000. If we pass harsher local ordinances, harsher state laws or even federal laws with more creative punishments, the odds of arresting any individual drunken driver are one in 3,000.

Michigan has tripled its prison population in a dozen years without denting the overall crime rate. In my view, tough new laws and more punishment aren't working.

TIM RICHARD

■ Earlier closing — The last time I was in Great Britain, the English bars closed at 11 p.m. and the Scots' at 10 p.m., though I hear they've now moved up to midnight. The British don't appear to have the same drunken driving problems we do, despite their two-lane, twisting roads. Michigan's bars close at 2:30 a.m. Read the Associated Press' Monday stories about weekend traffic deaths, and you'll find the bulk occur after 1:30 a.m. We should close 'em at midnight.

■ Tea time — The Brits' close their bars for three hours in the afternoon — either 2-5 or 3-6 p.m. The Babinskis' daughter was killed about 8 p.m. by a man who was alleged to have spent all afternoon in a bar. She might have been spared if we had tea-time closing.

■ Neighborhood bars — In the Detroit neighborhood where I spent my earliest years, there were corner taverns that folks could walk to. There was no need to drive, at least not very far. Suburban governments, however, use liquor licenses as a tool of economic development. You need a $2 million development with hotel to get a license because city and township officials are primarily concerned with property tax revenue, not teens' lives.

■ Public transportation — A worker who has lost his or her license and vehicle needs to get to work to support the fammily. Channel 7 host Chuck Stokes asked Councilman Fouts his position on the SMART bus tax proposal. Fouts hadn't decided. I hope Fouts will re-think his position and support public transportation vigorously.

The foregoing are extremely radical ideas. The many lawmakers who worship the golden god of Economic Development lack the testicular fortitude to vote on them. The convention industry will object. Many licensees will object, though I suspect a few will welcome the shorter hours and reduced chance of being held up. Many auto fanatics will see public transit as unmanly and un-American.

We need tough new laws to avoid drunken driving, but I have my doubts about harsher punishments for drunken drivers after the accident.

Kmart cares

I am extremely saddened by the way the media in Detroit have handled the trouble Kmart is experiencing. Based on the business coverage, it's as if there is nothing positive to say. The March of Dimes, as well as many other non-profit organizations in this area, feel quite differently.

Kmart has been, and continues to be, an extremely important part of this community. Kmart doesn't merely toss a percentage of their budget to causes, and feel they've fulfilled some obligation. Their management and employees are driving forces on the front lines, helping fulfill needs in Southeast Michigan. We know of many times when Kmart employees, from the president to the cashier, have gone above and beyond to share their special brand of caring.

The business side of Kmart Corp is going through a difficult adjustment period. However, we in Southeast Michigan know better than anyone, that they will be back stronger than ever. They are a quality, caring corporation staffed with creative, enthusiastic employees at all levels. They will make it happen, the same way they help make things better for countless people in Southeast Michigan through their support of charitable organizations. Kmart has a slogan that says "Kmart Loves Kids," but as we know well, Kmart cares for Southeast Michigan.

Stop Iran, Iraq

Something has to be done to stop Iraq's and Iran's efforts towards destruction in the world.

Iraq is again involved in the making of germ-warfare weapons. Iran supplies the world with terrorists and weapons of war.

What we really need is a worldwide ban on these two evil nations of all kinds of trade transactions. International sanctions and isolation will curb the efforts of these vicious opponents of peace.

If the United Nations cannot, or will not, take actions against Iran and Iraq, then the United States must be the leader in such a great and positive undertaking.

The world does not have to be hostage to two alien countries that are even horrible to their own innocent citizens. It's time.

Not entertaining

People seem to be using violence as entertainment more nowadays than they ever have. It seems the more violence there is, the more people tend to see it as normal. Television thirty years ago was much less violent than it is now, and crime was lower also. Most people think that television and movies have nothing to do with how they act and the crimes people commit. I disagree with them. I think what people see does have an influence on how they act.

Many parents do not really pay attention to the shows their kids watch and figure that if it is a children's show, it probably is not that violent. Last week, I went baby-sitting for two children that liked and always watched the Power Rangers. The little boy, Brian, was imitating them, doing karate kicks and waving his arms around. He accidentally hit his little sister, Lindsay, in the mouth and gave her a fat lip.

Another example of violent entertainment is in movies. A couple of friends and I went to the video store and rented "Natural Born Killers." We were shocked at the extreme violence and, at first, were kind of disgusted. We kept watching it anyway out of curiosity. At the beginning of the movie, I would kind of gasp when somebody was killed, but after a while I did not even blink as people were blown away.

Watching violence makes people's compassion for others fade, and lack of compassion is what makes criminals have no feelings toward their victims. A children's television show should not encourage them to practice karate on their siblings. I think violent entertainment has a lot more influence on people than they think it does, and people can be entertained in ways other than watching violence.

Don't deny others

Apparently Tim Richard resents spending his tax dollars in support of certain PBS programs. To satisfy his resentment, he proposes a program of spite to deny the rest of us the hours of fine music, drama, "how to," and information programs in which many of us delight.

There are times I find Tim Richard's opinions offensive and realize some portion of my subscription goes to pay his salary. I have never, however, been silly enough to consider denying myself enjoyment of your paper by canceling it.

Catering to every minority's whims diminishes majority's experiences

The parish newsletter that arrived last week announced that incense would not be used at Easter services this year and urged churchgoers to avoid perfume "and other scented products so that those with allergies and respiratory problems may participate."

I responded by letter: "I am both faintly amused and deeply offended at this latest example of political correctness run rampant in our church.

"I am not aware of previous instances in which those with allergies and respiratory problems had been deterred from participating in church services because other parishioners have been so thoughtless as to wear perfume and other scented products. Indeed, I had thought that decent dress and good personal hygiene at church services indicated a respect for our worship of the Lord. I suppose we could create a designated 'no scented products or perfume section.' "

The letter continued: "My concerns move beyond amusement in the matter of incense.

"The use of incense in celebration of special days in the liturgical calendar is both an ancient and distinguished part of our ritual. To suddenly ban its use in response to what appears to be the demands of a tiny minority is very sad.

"Our liturgy and ritual have evolved over many centuries, and their components come together as one complete package. To arbitrarily rip one piece out of the totality of our service is deeply offensive to those who treasure continuity in our religious practice.

"Possibly the next step would be to eliminate the choir singing hymns on grounds that an occasional mistake in intonation would offend those in the congregation who have perfect pitch."

Then the main point of my letter, running far beyond personal grumpiness with church practice to a fundamental axis of debate in our nation's public life:

"How sad it is that in our society we ceaselessly work to find ways to resolve the problems of tiny and passionate minorities, nearly always at the cost of offending the quietly tolerant majority whose experiences are thereby diminished."

Our American habit is to go to extreme lengths to avoid offending anybody in any way. This certainly diminishes the pungency of our social discourse (heard any good ethnic jokes lately?), but the damage runs far deeper and costs much more.

PHILIP POWER

My son, for example, is now a seventh-grader. He has learned a lot in school about Kwanzaa, the African-American year-end celebration, and about Hanukkah, the Jewish Festival of Lights. That's great; he's learning something he wouldn't necessarily have learned at home.

But his school experience has been devoid of discussions on the meaning of Christmas or singing the Christmas carols that are so much a part of the majority American culture.

Countless numbers of parents have recounted their dismay on this point. And whether eliminating Christmas — or religious prayers, or even patriotic observances — from the schools has come in response to overzealous concerns for the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation of the First Amendment or fear of suit by the American Civil Liberties Union, the fact is that the experiences of many, many majority school children thereby have been diminished.

Thus the real reason why so much political rhetoric these days is so emotionally focused on "taking back our country." Majorities whose experiences have been diminished mechanistically in order not to offend minorities, passionate or otherwise, necessarily will feel deprived of their own legitimacy.

And loss of legitimacy, as my own feelings about Easter services can attest, is a powerful emotion.

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

I have been interested in writing to you for sometime. I am 43 years old, and a right-handed person. I was born and raised just outside downtown Washington, D.C. I have only one sibling. I attended college at Central Michigan University and graduated in 1973. I read your column regularly.

C.G.,
Southfield

Today we are examining the handwriting of a woman who travels in the fast lane of life with her foot on the accelerator pedal. She appears to be in a hurry to move on to the next challenge.

It seems possible that at a very young age she wanted to express her individuality and needed the independence to follow her own star. And the pattern has continued.

Many superlatives surface in this handwriting. We are looking at a sophisticated and intelligent woman.

Large, vigorous handwriting, such as this, reveals vitality, stamina, enthusiasm and versatility. Leadership is also suggested. She has a desire to be outstanding and a need for recognition. She can stand alone, if necessary, and rely on her own convictions.

The originality here suggests the ability to reach original ideas. Her fast mind is resourceful and moves in an expeditious manner. She knows how to streamline methods of operation. Quick decisions come naturally.

Many fluent simplifications here tell us she can strip away the extraneous and get right down to the essentials. She can also initiate and act on her own ideas. Her approach is forthright and efficient. She tends to focus on the large issues as opposed to the small details.

This is a self-starter who does not need to be prodded into action. When working, she likes good equipment that will help to facilitate the job. Time is used wisely. It has been said that the judicious use of time is one of the major contributors of success.

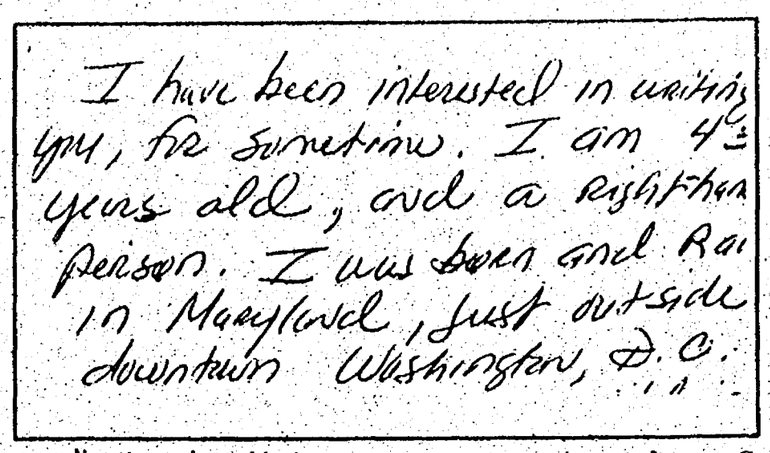

Our writer is a frank, open and spontaneous person. Her way with words is striking and allows her to communicate effectively. It is further enhanced by creative thinking and the ability for innovative concepts. She is rarely at a loss for words and can think rapidly on her feet. Literary aptitude may also be hers.

Intuition weaves throughout her handwriting. She often knows certain things, but might be hard pressed to explain how she knows them.

Our writer has a strong dislike of personal criticism and is quick to take offense when she hears it. Her feelings, happy or sad, are long lasting. Perhaps she heard too much of it as a younger person.

A walk in the out-of-doors would be enjoyable and relaxing for this fast-paced woman. She can be moved by the sight of Mother Nature's grandeur.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is welcomed.

Women's Health Day focuses on prevention

The trend in women's health care today is prevention and that's the focus of the first annual Women's Health Day, sponsored by Project SMILE for the Marian Women's Center of St. Mary Hospital on Saturday, April 29.

The program will start at 8:30 a.m. with registration at the Holiday Inn-Livonia West, Six Mile Road and I-275, and run through 4 p.m. There will be 14 different topics covered during three sessions offered throughout the day, lunch with a fashion show by Jacobson's, and exhibits, including make-overs, massages and health screenings.

The 45-minute sessions will be offered at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 2:45 p.m. The topics include "PMS and Menopause," "Stress, Women and Heart Disease: When Ignorance Is Not Bliss," "Mind Empowerment: Balancing Life and Increasing Self-Esteem," "Getting Beyond Depression," "Eating Disorders in Women," "Breast Cancer and You," a panel discussion and "Building Relationships between Mothers and Adolescent Daughters."

The program draws on the talents of the staff at St. Mary Hospital for its presenters. Familiar faces that day include Phyllis Jason, facilitator of the hospital's Menopause Support Group; Elizabeth Allen, assistant unit manager of the hospital's mental health unit; and Mary Macdonald, director of social work of the inpatient unit for Angela Hospice.

The keynote address — at 9:15 a.m. — will be by Denise Dador, health reporter for WXYZ-TV Channel 7, who will draw from her experiences to show women how to take charge of the factors that determine their health.

Pre-registration (by April 20) costs $20 and can be completed by sending a check, payable to St. Mary Hospital, and registration form to Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, 14555 Levan, Suite 212, Livonia 48154. Registration at the door is $25.

'Circle of Friends' enjoys night out

Toast of the town: The winners of our "Circle of Friends" contest (left to right, front to back) Annette Sharp, Ann Fitsimons, Mary Merritt, Cathy Johnston, Connie Mitchell and Siobhan Jordan toast their friendship at Cook's Garden Cafe in Birmingham.

Meet the winners of our 'Circle of Friends' contest. They met at St. Agatha Elementary School in Redford and have remained friends ever since.

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT
STAFF WRITER

Sharing the good times, the bad times and the everyday times — that's what friends are for.

We asked readers to tell us about their circle of friends, and the request struck a nerve with female readers especially.

We picked some of the more interesting stories and treated these "circles" to free passes to the movie, "Circle of Friends," which is based on Irish writer Maeve Binchy's story of three close friends.

M. Siobhan Jordan of Redford is the winner of our "Circle of Friends" contest. Jordan and her circle of friends were treated to dinner at Cook's Garden in Birmingham, long-stem yellow roses, champagne, chocolate and "Circle of Friends" T-shirts, and posters.

Jordan, in her letter, described the five women who went to the same Catholic elementary school, St. Agatha in Redford, and became "fast friends" in high school — St. Agatha High School.

"I am a good person because these five people were my friends during my fragile formative years," wrote Jordan, who lives in Redford and works for the City of Southfield Public Safety Department. Her friends are: Mary (Dow) Merritt of Pinckney, Cathy (Zacharias) Johnston of Redford, Ann (Neary) Fitsimons of Bloomfield Hills, Annette (Griggs) Sharp of Redford and Connie Mitchell of Novi.

Jordan's Circle of Friends is known as "B.B.S.S.W.W" — a title they came up with in high school and won't tell anyone what it means. In her letter Jordan said she might tell us what the initials meant if she won the contest, but the other girls in her group swore her to secrecy.

"We had a great time at Cook's Garden, and totally enjoyed the movie," she said.

"For anybody who is brought up Catholic this movie is a must see. Especially those people who remember the Catholic Church before Vatican II when it was much stricter. The scenery in the movie was beautiful."

Another circle is that of Bunni Lieberman of Farmington Hills, a group that met at Temple Shir Shalom in West Bloomfield.

"Over the years we have shared "simchas" (happy celebrations), and we have shared sad times, too. No matter what, I can say that I carry these friends with me in my heart and know that no matter what happens, they will be there for me and I for them," Lieberman writes. The group — Lieberman, Susan Lindow, Leslie Weinberg and Nettie Rosen — travels to Florida each winter and their families spend holidays together.

Contest Winner

I would like to tell you about "B.B.S.S.W.W." We are part of a generation that does not fit categorically with the "Baby Boomers" or "Generation X." We are a group of girls (I use that term generously), who went to the same Catholic grade school, became fast friends in high school, went to different universities, married... you know, all the usual life experiences, and still remain friends. We don't see each other as a group very often anymore, but when we do it's as if we just saw each other yesterday.

Back in high school, waaaay back, when there was no fear of guns, AIDS, or crack cocaine, we would all cram into "Toots'" Gremlin (yes, all six of us... we were littler then.) and go to basketball or football games to watch Mary cheer.

Mary was the only cheerleader among us. She still thinks everyone's sexually attracted to her. Mary loves to tell the story about the time I smoked in the bathroom when we all spent the night at her house. Why did her dad have to get up in the middle of the night right after I was in there? Actually, Mary loves to tell any of the many stories about me. I love to tell the story about Mary on our Senior Retreat. Someone was knocking at the door to our room and I opened the door just when Mary was coming out of the bathroom in her underwear. It was Fr. Tom. She thought he was sexually attracted to her too!

When Ann got mononucleosis – the worst thing that could happen back then (except, of course, pregnancy) we went to the drug store and bought medical masks and stood on her front lawn to visit her. Ann was the brain. Not that the rest of us were stupid by any means, but Ann was on the dean's list at Wayne State – Highest Honors – first with her master's degree, only one to own her own business, etc, etc.

Let's go back to "Toots" and her Gremlin. Of course that's not her real name. Annette, as her husband calls her, still has gorgeous red hair. Her poor little Gremlin – still the ugliest car ever made (maybe with the exception of Mary's Hornet) – withstood all six of us well into the early 1980s. We would "cruise" Telegraph in it, they would visit me at college in Grand Rapids in it, that Gremlin went everywhere. Toots was the "mom" of the group. She is a teacher now (secondary education). Totally unbelievable!

Connie was the first to get married. Her two kids look exactly like she and her husband when they were young. Connie was the "good" girl. We corrupted her. Taught her how to drink rum. Connie's mom was the secretary at the grade school (the high school and grade school were connected – small parish school), so she could not do anything wrong at school.

Cathy was the new kid. She transferred to our school in 10th grade. Cathy corrupted the rest of us. She brought all those bad habits from that big high school. Actually, the six of us did not become close friends until Cathy made the scene. I guess you could say that she brought us together. Cathy is a social worker now.

Then there is me, Siobhan. Make sure you spell that right. I'm particular about my name – no nicknames, please. I'm as Irish as you can get! When I studied for a semester in 1980 in Ireland, they all wrote to me religiously. Ann was almost Miss Erin at the A.O.H. in the late 1970s, I can't remember what year. We were all there. We were all drunk.

We are part of the group who could drink at age 18, but then lost that right as a result of the election of 1978. Ironically, that was the very first election in which we were eligible to vote. Can you tell I'm the historian? Anyway, point being that Ann's 18th birthday party, in January of 1978, caused me to break my curfew by several hours and I was grounded until Easter Sunday. Easter was late that year.

I am a good person because these five people were my friends during my fragile formative years.

B.B.S.S.W.W. is a title that we came up with in high school. We even had t-shirts made up I still have mine – doesn't fit anymore – but I still have it we never told anyone what it means. They asked at our five year, 10 year and 15 year high school reunions. Mums the word. If I win this contest – maybe we'll tell.

Even if I don't win, thanks for letting me tell you about my friends. once in a while we need to remind ourselves how lucky we are.

– Siobhan Jordan

"Heidi," which is being presented this month by Marquis Theatre in Northville, and the Performing Arts Department of Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn, is a tale the whole family will enjoy.

Marquis Theatre's heartwarming, musical adaptation of "Heidi" continues through April 30.

The cast includes Ed Lendrum, Emily Liddell Lauren McCabe and Michelle Butkovich of Livonia; Carla Freshwater, Elizabeth Filliof, Kristin and Nicole Mellian, Bridget Carney, Beth Murphy and Laura Nobkov of Canton; and Laura Haeberle of Plymouth.

Henry Ford Community College's production of "Heidi," adapted by Lucille Miller, opens 7 p.m. Friday, April 21 and continues weekends to April 30.

■ PREVIEW

"Heidi" is the classic story of a young Swiss girl, Heidi, who comes to live with her grandfather in the Swiss Alps, and touches the hearts of many people.

"The production is family-oriented and the costumes and sets are beautiful," said Cynthia Zeits of Canton who is involved with the show.

"These commitments do not come without work, hard work. For they can be as fragile as we are strong," Lieberman writes.

Sharon Madden of Birmingham has a circle of friends that includes Pattie Robson, Linda Holtzman and Kathy Boyland. "So now we all remember the circle/ And will never forget how it began," Madden writes.

Charisse Dore Niles of Canton writes of the two women she met at Eastern Michigan University in 1978: "A true friend is there when times are great and not so great. The willingess to take time out of a busy schedule to celebrate or be supportive — we have each done this over the years."

Gale Marcos of Canton writes that she and her three friends have been close since junior high school in Allen Park 32 years ago.

"We have been through marriages, pregnancies, betrayals, parents' deaths, cosmetic surgeries and more, and have always been there for one another."

Pam Gruber of Troy and her friends met in kindergarten.

"We held each other's hands through pregnancies, miscarriages and a diagnosis of MS (multiple sclerosis)," Gruber writes. "Through it all, we've remained close; closer than sisters."

One thing we didn't get? Letters from men. Either the guys don't hang in circles, or they don't want to talk about them.

"Circle of Friends," which opened last week at metro Detroit movie theaters, is a story of romance and three best friends — their loyalty, secrets, betrayals, and most of all, search for true love.

In the fall of 1957, Benny (Minnie Driver) and Eve (Geraldine O'Rawe) eagerly escape the dull confines of Knockglen, their hometown, to attend college in Dublin. There they meet up with Nan (Saffron Burrows), a friend from grade school who has learned her way around the university from her years as a precocious and social high school student.

A Savoy Pictures presentation in association with Rank Film Distributors, "Circle of Friends" is a Price Entertainment/Lantana production. The film is directed by Pat O'Connor and produced by Arlene Sellers, Alex Winitsky and Frank Price. The screenplay is written by Andrew Davies and is based on Binchy's best-selling novel. The film is rated PG-13.

■ Parker Plague of Canton is appearing in "Hang the Moon," at the Purple Rose Theatre's Company Garage Theatre, 137 Park St., Chelsea, through May 21. The new drama by Suzanne Burr centers around Eddie Cooper, a middle-aged veteran who has been unable to leave the memories of Vietnam behind. Troubled by the choices he had to make during his military service, Eddie refuses to face the realities he encounters in civilian life. The love, understanding and care of his family and friends help him overcome his guilt-ridden past and begin a new life.

Call (313) 475-7902 for ticket reservations and show times. Tickets range from $10 to $25. The box office is open noon to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, Saturdays and Sundays of performances, one hour prior to curtain.

Filmmaker hosts comedy benefit

BY BOB SADLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Before Quentin Tarentino hit it big with "Pulp Fiction," he made the cult classic film "Reservoir Dogs." Shot on a shoestring budget, "Reservoir Dogs," showed the movie-making community the immense potential Tarentino possessed, and set the stage for getting the financial backing required to make a major feature like "Pulp Fiction."

Meanwhile, an aspiring filmmaker in Birmingham, Pete LaDuke, has an idea. He's written a script for a 30-minute short film, "Back in Business," that he produced independently with the help of the Detroit Film Coalition and two local movie production pros.

Where's LaDuke getting the money to pull all this off? A significant portion of the funding, he hopes, will come from a comedy benefit he's holding at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth St., Royal Oak, 8 p.m. Mon., May 8. Tickets are $20 and proceeds will go to benefit LaDuke's film project. Call (810) 544-6471 for tickets.

Did I forget to mention that LaDuke is also a local stand-up of some note?

"We've tried to put together several different headliners," LaDuke said of the benefit. "Jeff Brannan and Dan Ballard are both national headliners. Elliot Branch and I are local guys. For $20, you'll get a great show, and you'll have the chance to support local filmmakers. If we sell out the Castle, we can make enough money to get into post-production."

LaDuke has a simple, yet realistic, goal for "Back in Business." He wants to use it as a stepping stone to bigger and better things.

"My plan with this project is to shoot a low-budget 16mm film to be shown at film festivals throughout the country," LaDuke said. "Hopefully, it can win some accolades, some recognition. And then, I would like to begin shooting a feature film, a 35mm project, by this time next year."

Like Tarentino, LaDuke likes to think big — and somewhat demented too! For proof of that, all you need to do is listen to the plot of "Back in Business," which LaDuke claims is quite a departure from his stand-up work.

"Back in Business" is a dark comedy," LaDuke explained. "Two brothers are morticians. Unfortunately, no one is dying, so they have to expedite matters a bit. The two brothers are English, so I had a lot of fun writing very wordy dialogue. It's a script that could pass as a play. And even though it's such a taboo subject, I think it's handled delicately. It should have a wide audience. If this film makes some waves in the independent film market, perhaps it could impress someone interested in making it into a full-length feature. It's really an angle that no one has done."

The high-powered help LaDuke enlisted to help with "Back in Business" includes producer Chuck Cirgenski of Zone V productions and his partner Janine Menlove, who will serve as director of photography. Cirgenski is currently working on this 10th feature film, and has had films shown at some of the world's most prestigious festivals.

And finally, what would LaDuke like to do for an encore? His next screenplay is in the works as we speak. He plans to begin work next year on bringing it to the big screen. "This will be a feature film that will be entirely set in Birmingham," LaDuke said. "A satire of Birmingham life and the health food industry."

LET'S GO! DINING

Just opened seafood restaurant reels-in customers

BY ETHEL SIMMONS
STAFF WRITER

Streetside Seafood in Birmingham has only been open a few weeks, but this intimate restaurant seating 60 has the look of a place that's been around a long time.

It's crowded with customers chatting over their dinners, or at the copper-covered bar in front. Designer Ron Rea used old-fashioned brick to cover the lower half of the walls, for a warehouse feel.

"It's a neighborhood place," said Bill Roberts, who is thrilled with the success of the newest addition to his restaurant group. "The fact that it's casual. You can wear your blue jeans if you want. We purposely put our staff in blue jeans, shirt and knit tie," he said.

Troy residents Bill and his wife Judi are longtime supporters of the Birmingham-Bloomfield scene, with their other restaurants, the Beverly Hills Grill (in Beverly Hills) and the 220, on Merrill Street in Birmingham. Streetside Seafood on Pierce in Birmingham is a new vision with Rick McKibben, the same chef who ran the Roberts' former restaurant there, Richard & Reiss.

Streetside Seafood
273 Pierce, Birmingham (810) 645-9123
Hours: Serving dinner only (at present) 5-11 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 5 p.m. to midnight Friday-Saturday and 5-10 p.m. Sunday.
Menu: Specialty is fresh fish and seafood ranging from oysters and mussels to local items such as lake perch or whitefish, with emphasis on sauteed and oven-roasted dishes. Whole wheat breadsticks with garlic butter. Full bar including martinis with hand-stuffed anchovies. Vegetarian friendly.
Highlights: Ron Rea designed, with track lighting, old-fashioned brick walls. Seating for 50 including seats at copper-topped bar.
Cost: Dinners $10.95-$14.95. A la carte menu, with salads and appetizers ranging from $1.95 for cole slaw to $6.95 for seared tuna. Desserts are home-baked pies, $3.50. Reservations needed: No.
Credit cards: Visa, MasterCharge, American Express.

Its menu predominantly seafood — there's only one meat and one chicken dish — Streetside is being embraced with enthusiasm by fish and shellfish lovers.

Whitefish is prepared three different ways — potato crusted, baked with tartar sauce, or a la murat (with artichokes, tomatoes and mushrooms in a light wine sauce). Roberts got the idea of whitefish variety from a restaurant in Charlevoix, which is among Michigan dining spots up north offering several methods of preparation for the favorite lake fish.

Customers at Streetside were eating it up. "I think it's really good, really tasty," said Tom Cohn of West Bloomfield, who was enjoying the potato-crusted whitefish. "It's a nice big portion." He started his meal with a fried oyster appetizer and declared that "excellent."

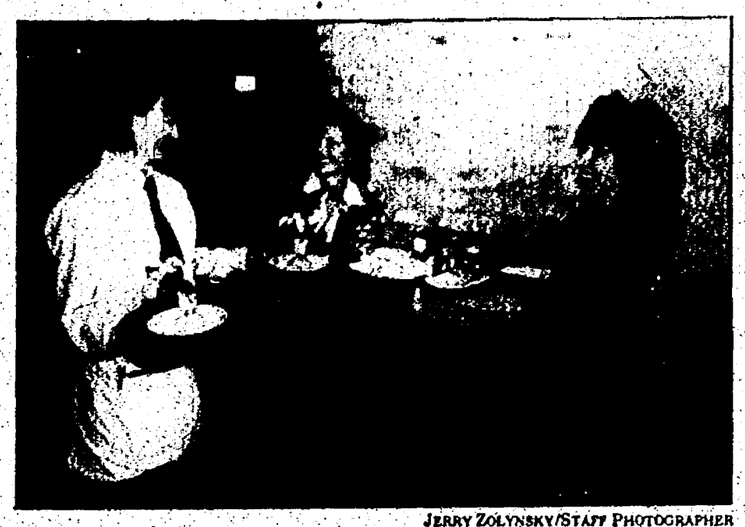

Les Grosinger of Birmingham, who was dining with him, went for the grouper, one of the fish specials that night. "It was barbecued, with a nice sauce — a nice presentation, he said."

Two fish specials are offered daily, in addition to the regular menu attractions of whitefish, sauteed lake perch, roasted salmon with hazelnut butter, shrimp etouffee and three other seafood dishes.

A daily special appetizer also is available, in addition to "Before" choices served hot: buffalo shrimp prepared like buffalo chicken wings, coconut shrimp with apricot and horseradish sauce (the biggest seller), salmon cakes, mussels diablo (spicy), and bisque, chowder or gumbo. Besides oysters, cold "Before" offerings include seared tuna or shrimp cocktail. Cole slaw (regular, or with bleu cheese) or a tossed salad also may be ordered from the a la carte menu.

Dinners come with a fresh vegetable of the day, plus rice pilaf with all the seafood, and boiled redskin potatoes with medallions of tenderloin, or caribbean spiced chicken breast with pineapple salsa.

Also raving about the potato-crusted whitefish was Judy Pallischeck of Birmingham, who said, "It was absolutely delicious." Pam Gray, dining with her, thought the blackened catfish was 'outstanding.' She also praised the rice pilaf.

RFD Boys to perform at PSO benefit

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra is presenting its annual pops concert benefit at 8 p.m. April 28 at Fox Hills Country Club. The season-ending concert, which is a major fund-raiser, has a western theme. It offers a meeting of violinists and fiddlers and selections from hit musicals like "Oklahoma" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

Guest artists will be the bluegrass band, The RFD Boys. Also on the program are Aaron Copland's "Billy the Kid," Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite," and Mullar's "Arkansas Traveler," which will feature the RFD Boys.

Tickets are $40 for dinner and the concert or $20 for dessert and the concert. Call (313) 451-2112 for more information.

■ The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra is also conducting its annual sustaining fund drive.

Letters outlining the importance of supporting the Plymouth Symphony as it approaches its 50tn anniversary will be sent to area corporations in mid-April.

"It's a wonderful opportunity for businesses in the area to support this fine musical organization which has enriched the Plymouth community with excellent music for 50 years," said Mary Joe Braun, vice president of MCN and chairperson of the PSO's corporate campaign. For information, call (313) 451-2112.

Concert features jazzy quintet

Southfield's Concerts-in-the Garden series will feature The Alma Smith Quintet, 3:30 p.m. Sun., April 23 at the Radisson Hotel in Southfield. The afternoon concert, hosted by the Cultural Arts Division of Southfield Parks and Recreation, features a high tea at 3 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 or $4 for concert and coffee. Call (810) 354-4717.

Smith is not only a great lady of the keyboards, but a vocalist and composer as well. She has had an active career spanning over 50 years playing, singing, composing and generally delighting audiences with her enthusiasm and talent.

She will be performing with Herbie Williams on trumpet and flugelhorn, Drew Evans on drums, Will Austin on bass, and Vincent York on saxophone.

The Alma Smith Quintet will be performing a vast repertoire including jazz standards from Duke Ellington, Cole Porter, Dizzie Gillespie and Count Basie, and original compositions.

LET'S GO! MOVIES

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Some see him as Don Juan, the legendary lover who wooed over 1,500 women with his irresistable charms. Others would say he's just a mixed-up kid from Phoenix looking for attention after the death of his father.

Your enjoyment of "Don Juan DeMarco," currently playing at metro Detroit movie theaters, depends on your threshold for romance. It's helped greatly by Johny Depp, who is super smooth as the masked man in the flowing cape, leather boots, and Ricardo Montalban accent.

Only his psychiatrist should know for sure and he, like us, is having his doubts. Marlon Brando plays the veteran clinician so smitten by his patient's outrageous stories of romance that he goes home to his wife (a dutiful Faye Dunaway) and starts to woo her like a teenager.

She, not surprisingly, is a little shocked. He wants fiery passion; she'd settle for a "sustaining glow" of middle age, an understandable reaction when a 300-pound Brando starts ambling toward you like a lovesick whale.

While the versatile Depp makes you believe that he's playing the real thing, Brando is less convincing. Maybe there are too many memories of that Larry King Island interview, but Brando, with pancakey makeup and affected mannerisms, has become little more than a bloated waxworks caricature of himself.

The single most undignified shot of Brando's long career may come in this movie: when he flounders unconvincingly on an exercise machine. You'd think that Hollywood, who can erase Lieutenant Dan's legs so seamlessly in "Forrest Gump," could lop a few pounds off of its most celebrated actor.

Amazingly, Brando's not without charm. He plays the part with an affable sense of humor and it's a miracle to see him on screen.

REVIEW

After two decades of million-dollar cameos in movies like "Christopher Columbus" and "A Dry White Season," this is his most substantial role in years.

The most amazing thing about "Don Juan DeMarco" is how un-Hollywood it is, a producer's coup by the typically uncompromising Francis Ford Coppola. You expect at least a climactic sword fight or chase scene, but the movie (you'd swear it's based on a play) sticks mostly to dialogue ably penned by writer Jeremy Leven.

It also looks great, especially in the flashback scenes where Don Juan relates his adventures in Mexico or on the island where he meets his true love, the only woman who has ever resisted his advances. Here the reds in Don Juan's jacket have an antique postcard glow.

The few scenes where Depp is able to cut loose on the female population are especially fun. We see him pick a woman up in a swanky hotel restaurant and immediately woo her upstairs with some hand-kissing and smooth talk that would play ridiculous with anyone else. Don't try this at home.

How "Don Juan DeMarco" will romance the general filmgoer is anybody's guess. One thing is undeniable: Depp, the eccentric actor who brought Edward Scissorhands and Ed Wood to the big screen, has staged his biggest coup yet: he's the only actor ever to steal scenes from Marlon Brando.

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call 313-833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"An Unforgettable Summer" (Romania/France — 1994) 7, 9:30 p.m. April 14-15; 4, 7 p.m. April 16. In 1925 Romania, an army officer is caught in a quandary when his wife takes sympathy on a group of unjustly condemned locals.

"Resistance" (England/Belgium — 1993). 7 p.m. April 17. In the very near future, a tribal girl and a truck-stop waitress join against terrorist forces who invade a small Australian shantytown.

■ KINOTEK
Windsor Film Theatre, 2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor. Call (519) 971-5160 for information. ($4)

"The Holy Mountain" (USA/Mexico — 1973). 9 p.m. April 17-18. Here nine wise men guard the secret of immortality while those who search for it include prostitutes, thieves, and a chimpanzee. Director Alejandro Jodorowsky still raises eyebrows with his sadistic, surreal images, definitely not for the squeamish.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information. ($4; $10 for all three films)

"Blue" (France/Poland — 1993). 8 p.m. April 18. Juliette Binoche plays a woman who can't get over the loss of her composer husband. The first in Krzysztof Kieslowski's Colors Trilogy will be followed over consecutive Tuesdays by the other two films in the series, "White" and the Oscar-nominated "Red."

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Jefferson in Paris" (USA — 1995). Nick Nolte plays Thomas Jefferson, ambassador to France in the days shortly before that country's revolution. Though historians are having some trouble with it, expect loyal audiences to flock to this latest Merchant vory production.

"Muriel's Wedding" (Australia — 1995). In this hit comedy from Australia, a young woman dreams of marriage but can't seem to get her life together.

"The Secret of Roan Inish" (USA — 1995). The latest from John Sayles about Irish myth and folklore and how it changes the lives of a fisherman and his family.

Collective Soul
— Collective Soul

Collective Soul barely got out of the starting gate when their demo "Shine" turned into a major hit for the five Georgia rockers. In retrospect, the album it was included on, "Hints, Allegations and Things Left Unsaid" was exactly that — a hint about the future, allegations by cynics that they would be a one-hit wonder and a full-blown rock sound that was left unsaid.

With their self-titled second album, Collective Soul's intentions are made perfectly clear. They want to rock (for a lack of a better expression), and write songs so hook-filled listeners will get sucked in mercilessly.

One of those songs, "December" I heard first during the first 20 minutes of an 1½ hour-long, rain-filled drive to Toledo and it was enough to charge me up for the rest of the trip. It's one of those toe-tappin', unpretentious songs that you'd picture Collective Soul singing with acoustic guitar on their front porch.

The chorus — "Don't scream about/Don't think aloud/Turn your head now baby just spit me out" — sang with singer Ed Roland's stiff-jawed growl, is the highlight of album. A subtle string section rounds out the tale of an addictive yet loveless relationship, which is one of the best pop songs released this year.

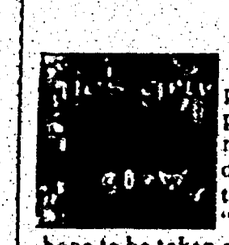

Collective Soul shares their fondness for funk in the opening track "Simple," which will please "Shine" fans with its similar ending. The influence of The Beatles' "I Am the Walrus" in "Collection of Goods" and "Untitled" is obvious but the songs still carry the trademark Collective Soul sound.

Collective Soul continues the grip through the rest of the album. Lead guitarist Ross Childress's chunky, charging guitar in "Where the River Flows," the hit single "Gel," and "She Gathers Rain" mixed in with Shane Evans' drum assault, and the cruelly catchy lyrics of "Collective Soul" and you have one of the best albums of 1995.

Glow
— Jes Gru

Two years ago, image was a big part of Detroit's Jes Gru. The five pretty boys hit the stage with mismatched '70s outfits and one-dimensional love songs. Now that they've released their second CD "Glow" (Vicarious Records), they hope to be taken a little more seriously.

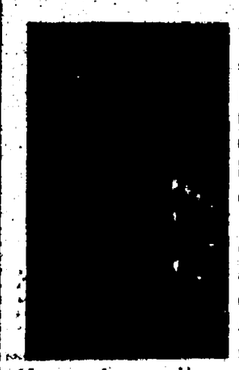

They've ditched the image and replaced it with long hair (or no hair in one case), matching, run-of-the-mill "twentysomething" gear and two-dimensional love songs.

The 10-song CD is a more mature — musically and lyrically — than the Jes Gru's debut "Mumbo Jumbo." The thicker sound is thanks in part to newest members drummer Heath Moore — who reportedly jammed with the Gin Blossoms on a regular basis while living in Arizona — and guitarist Jeff Davis, both of whom carry the band on "Glow." (Keyboardist Mike Palazzolo and bassist Tom Nixon were prominent on "Mumbo Jumbo.")

Singer Tom Bieniewicz seems more at ease than he did with the first effort by showing more emotion. There isn't a standout song on "Glow," but it's a step in the right direction.

924 Forestville St.
— Bracket

There has been a lot of attention paid, as of late, to the resurgence of punk rock with the success of bands like Green Day and The Offspring, but none of those bands comes close to the music of Bracket.

On "924 Forestville St." (Caroline), Bracket plays the same power pop/punk as the others, but Bracket sounds more multi-dimensional, showing they were influenced by punk as well as much of the other great rock music of the late 1970s and early 1980s. The songs are catchy pop numbers with a humorous slant, but not cartoonish like Green Day — Bracket can be funny without being juvenile.

Bracket brings back the memories of growing up in the 1970s and 1980s from the perennial elementary school gym class ritual, "Dodge Ball" to the pain of growing up not being a Brady. The album is kind of like a scrapbook of your youth set to infectious melodies.

"924 Forestville St." should be the record that gets Bracket the recognition they deserve as a great band. Few bands can match the catchy melodies and fun lyrics of Bracket. This is one of those albums you find yourself singing with while you are driving in your car, so be prepared to look foolish at a red light.

Life's in 'Balance' for Van Halen

Eddie Van Halen has long been regarded as one of the top guitarists in the world. But now that Van Halen's sober, bassist Michael Anthony says he's better than ever. Van Halen's latest tour will come to The Palace of Auburn Hills April 15-16.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

After nearly two decades of playing on stage, Van Halen bassist Michael Anthony admits the band "still gets jittery" before they hit the stage. But that's not necessarily a bad thing.

"It's great that we still do," said Anthony via telephone from Albuquerque, N.M.. If it just felt like another job, he added, the fans would be able to tell and their interest would wane, too. It's not necessarily a nervous nervousness, though.

"It's more of just being excited about it and I feel that way before every single show," he said. "Before we go on and the lights go down and the audience starts showing their excitement, you almost feel like a piece of jelly for a minute."

MTV viewers got a firsthand look at Van Halen's nervousness, Anthony said, when the first date of the band's channel's spring break coverage.

"We're much better than that now," he said laughing. "You have the first show, you're nervous enough as it is. Then MTV is there, plus we're recording. The second show was so much better."

That uneasiness affects some band members differently than other. For world renowned guitarist Eddie Van Halen, Anthony said, alcohol was what he used to relax. Ironically, now that Van Halen is sober, Anthony thinks he's a much better guitarist.

"He says that he would drink because he was kind of nervous and stuff which is understandable," Anthony said. "I think with Eddie being sober now, he is playing much better. . . . There's such a big difference now that he's not drinking."

Van Halen follows in the footsteps of his brother/drummer Alex who has been sober for 7-8 years. Singer Sammy Hagar and Anthony are "not alcoholics, but we do have occasionally cocktails."

Looking solely at Eddie Van Halen's condition, "Balance" seems to be an appropriate title for their latest album. But it goes deeper than that. A tremendously stressful period preceded the recording of "Balance" — the group's 11th and first collection of all new material since 1990's "For Unlawful Carnal Knowledge."

"We toured quite a bit; we did a live album (1993's "Live: Right Here, Right Now") in between that," he said. "A month after that, our manager (Ed Leffler) passed away so that kind of hit us all pretty hard. Sammy himself was going through a divorce that was pretty ugly."

They took a month off and spent time apart to ease the tension. In the end, it proved beneficial.

"When we got together in the studio, we were closer than we had ever been as a band."

As a result, "Balance" "has a lot to say, maybe more than any other I've written," singer Sammy Hagar said in the press materials that accompanied the release of the album. "I felt more inspired to talk about what I think is true and what I'm seeing in the world around me. It's all a lot more personal this time and I've never worked as hard to find the best words to say what I was thinking and feeling.

"Tracks like 'The Seventh Seal' and 'Deja Vu,' I'm real proud of, but I spent just as much time on a simple love song called 'Can't Stop Loving You.' I tried to go a little deeper each time."

The new material is the focus of Van Halen's latest tour, which comes to The Palace of Auburn Hills for two soldout shows Saturday and Sunday, April 15-16, but they're not saying that old songs won't be included.

"We're doing as much material as we can off the new album," Anthony said. "We don't have a basic set that we play. It does change from night to night. We're really open to a lot of spontaneity. Sammy doesn't have a certain rap or whatever that he says to the audience. He's always got something different to say."

There's a serious side to the tour, too. Like the last tour, Van Halen has organized a tour-long food drive with the USA Harvest organization.

"It's great; certain radio stations hold contests and things. This one guy brought 400-500 pounds of food to the show," he said.

Three weeks into the tour, the group had already collected 91,000 pounds of food. All the donated food goes immediately to organizations in the area that Van Halen is playing.

"By the time we go on, the good is on its way."

Mojo Nixon knows his 'Whereabouts'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

■ As usual he's stirred a bit of controversy. The song 'Bring Me the Head of David Geffen' was beheaded before the release of the album.

The South by Southwest Music Conference in Austin, Texas, is a place where music industry wanna-be's learn about the business, and struggling bands hope to get noticed by record companies.

Frankly, this is a pretty scary thought but one of the veteran musicians who served as a mentor was Mojo Nixon — the man who brought us "Debbie Gibson Is Pregnant with My Two-Headed Love Child" and "Don Henley Must Die."

"I guess Michael Bolton or Irving Azoff weren't available," Nixon said with a laugh.

Since he started his music career some 15 years ago, Nixon has been one of the most colorful members of the real alternative scene. He scored a handful of college hits which included "Jesus at McDonald's" and "Burn Down the Malls" before he hit the headlines when the "Debbie Gibson Is Pregnant with My Two-Headed Love Child" was banned by MTV.

Shortly thereafter, he began his tour with Ireland's Pogues and Violent Femmes. He and ex-Pogues singer/ rumored perpetual drunk Shane McGowan ticked off a few people after McGowan passed out during their rendition of "This Land Is Your Land." That, he said was "one of my best experiences singing."

"Shane fell face first into the ground and didn't even notice. He didn't spill his drink either!" Nixon said.

Nixon showed his true colors earlier this year when he attempted to satisfy his "ultimate career objective" — opening for Elvis Presley at the Hollywood Bowl in California. He was invited by the promoters to open after the Weekly World News reported that Presley called Clinton to set up the gig. Much to Nixon's chagrin, the show was cancelled when Presley failed to show up.

Presley isn't scheduled to play but Nixon is coming to the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor on Tuesday, April 18. You can expect the usual Nixon debauchery. He guarantees it.

"It'll be a hell of a good time. You'll need a doctor's note explaining why you missed work the next day," he said.

Nixon is touring in support of "Whereabouts Unknown," an album that he released on his own.

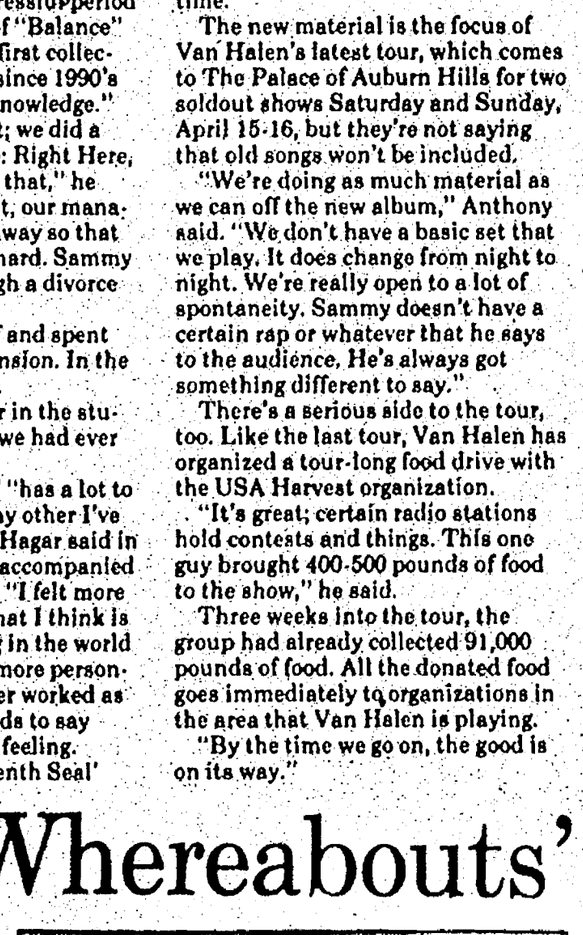

"Either we're geniuses or idiots," he said of taking on the task of putting out a record with little help.

As usual he's stirred a bit of controversy. The song "Bring Me the Head of David Geffen" was beheaded before the release of the album. Prior to that, Nixon sought Geffen's approval by deploying a U.S. Army Assault Vehicle from Tower Records in Hollywood to the Geffen offices. They parked the vehicle near the label's security guards and staff members plastered White Zombie stickers on it. Conveniently, Geffen wasn't available for Nixon to speak with.

The video for the first single "Girlfriend In a Coma" is already in the can and he got topnotch people to work with him on it.

"We thought, 'Why don't we get somebody famous?'" he said. "Sam Shepard is in town, but I didn't know him. (Country singer) Kelly Willis was standing next to me. I thought, 'Kelly's on the cover of the National Enquirer (with Lyle Lovett) and you can't get anymore famous than that.'"

Mojo Nixon plays the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, April 18. For more information, call (313) 996-8555.

Local jewelers win trip to San Diego

Joyce Pappas and Tina Mazzonni of Orin Jewelers in Garden City and Northville were among 500 sales associates who took part in Citizens Watch Co.'s national incentive contest, and won a trip to San Diego to experience the America's Cup first hand. Pappas is a resident of Garden City, and Mazzonni is a resident of Farmington Hills.

"We stayed at Loews Coronado Bay resort enjoying much of what San Diego had to offer," said Pappas. "It was a marvelous trip. The hotel was gorgeous, and they had something fun planned for us every night."

In addition, they spent a day on the water watching Race Four of the fourth round of the Citizens Cup on board the Pacific Hornblower.

The race was won by Stars and Stripes.

Pappas and Mazzoni also spent a day touring the compounds of PAC 95, the America 3 and having lunch at Team Dennis Conners' compound, The Stars and Stripes.

"This is the second time we have run this sales incentive," said Laurence R. Grunstein, president Citizens Watch Co. of America.

"Not only is it a good business promotion but it allows people from around the country who sell our watches a chance to come and enjoy San Diego and the excitement of the America's Cup."

WSU's Schaffer saluted

Schaffer led the Tartars to three victories in five games, including a 14-12 win April 5 at home over Eastern Michigan of the Mid-American Conference.

Schaffer batted .538 (eight for 17) in five games. He also scored seven runs and had seven RBI. Among his hits were a double and homer.

On April 9, Schaffer went 3-for-4 with a 3-run homer in a 5-3 loss at Grand Valley.

Overall, Schaffer is batting .455 in the GLIAC. He is the second WSU player this year to garner the award. Junior first baseman Ron Owens was the other.

Through 24 games, Wayne State is 14-10 overall and third in the GLIAC at 5-3.

SOVA wins tourney

SOVA, coached by Chris Paciero, won the 18-and-under Open Division AAU volleyball tournament with a 15-17, 17-15, 15-10 triumph over Henry Ford in last weekend's championship final at Walled Lake Central High School.

In pool play, SOVA downed the Crusaders (15-6, 15-8), Oakland Black (15-12, 15-10), Henry Ford (15-8, 15-11), Oakland Juniors Gold (15-5, 15-10), Kimball (15-7, 15-8) and Puma (15-6, 15-9).

Hung jury: Rocks, Spartans tie

In a showdown of the top girls soccer teams in the Lakes Division of the WLAA, Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson, each state-ranked, battled to a 1-1 draw. The race is still up for grabs.

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

The big winners in Wednesday's 1-1 tie between Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem at Stevenson were the rest of the Lakes Division opponents in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Heading into the Easter break, Wednesday's game between the two state-ranked teams was to determine who would have the upper hand in the race for the Lakes title.

"The race is now wide open," Salem coach Ken Johnson said. "Whoever would have won would have had the inside track. Now someone would have to slip up."

With the tie, Stevenson and Salem are both 1-0-1 in the division. The Spartans, the defending division champs, are now 3-2-1 overall and 3-0-1 under interim coach Jim Kimble. The Rocks are 4-0-1 overall.

"It took awhile for the team to get to know me and me to know the team," said Kimble, who took over the Spartans less than two weeks ago after Mary Kay Hussey resigned. "I think we're settled in now."

Kimble's squad started slowly, but took it to the Rocks by outplaying their rivals from Plymouth for most of the game.

The Rocks controlled the pace early, though, as Stevenson was content to play a defensive mode of soccer.

"They were playing defense early and brought (Laura) Fedrigo back to be an extra defender," Johnson said. "They did a good job jamming up the middle and we really didn't have any good shots."

The Spartans began playing more aggressive offensively midway through the first half. They opened the scoring at the 26-minute mark on a goal by sophomore forward Anne Fedrigo.

The play began as a simple dump pass toward the Salem net, but Fedrigo won a foot race to the ball and chipped it over Salem goalkeeper Julie Buczek, who came out of the net trying to clear the pass.

Less than a minute later, however, Salem tied the score.

The wind coming out of the southwest then picked up dramatically as conditions became tougher on the already rain-soaked field.

Both teams had good chances to score in the second half, but were unable to capitalize.

Stevenson's Laura Fedrigo hit the crossbar early in the second half on a breakaway. A few minutes later, Anne Fedrigo almost took advantage of a giveaway, but was stopped when Buczek deflected her shot wide.

Salem had its chances as well. The Rocks last opportunity occurred with only four minutes remaining when Mari Hoff's shot from 20 yards away was tipped over the crossbar by Barker.

Pats catch Churchill for dual-meet victory

BOYS TRACK

Freshman Matt Lawson won the shot put with a toss of 44 feet, 10 inches, while sophomore Paul Terek added a pair of firsts as Livonia Franklin gained a 71-66 boys track victory Tuesday at Livonia Churchill.

Franklin is 1-1 overall and 1-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Churchill slips to 0-3 and 0-1.

Terek cleared 12-6 to win the pole vault and added a first in the 400-meter run with a time of 54.5.

Other Franklin first-place finishers included: Paul Allam, Dan and Scott Colip, high jump (all tied at 5-3); Bob Adamczyk, long jump (18-8½); Steve Hickey, 110 hurdles (17.0); Dave McMullen, 300 hurdles (44.6); and Tom Taylor, 1,600 run (5:03.5). The Patriots also captured the 400 relay as Rich Banjo, Joe Blaskiewicz, Adam Hill and Adamczyk were clocked in 48.0.

"We did something we haven't done the last few years and that was match their points in the weight events," Franklin first-year coach Dale Lee said. "That's where we needed to beat Churchill the last couple of years, and this time we were able to do it. We split with them and that made a big difference."

Dave Murphy paced Churchill by sweeping the 100- and 200-meter dashes in 12.1 and 24.6, respectively.

Other individual winners for Churchill: Rob Loreto, discus, 128-8; Nathan Jemme, 800 run (2:05.9); and Steve DeLuca, 3,200 (11:03.4).

The Chargers also won three of four relay events.

Kevin Graham, Jeff Kozlow, Kris Maki and Matt Weber took the 400 relay (1:41.1), while the foursome of Mas Sueda, Mikkel Hjort-Jensen, Norm Fuchs and Jerome won the 800 relay (3:47.5).

Boston keys Wayne sweep; Spartans, Panthers split

Wayne Memorial improved its overall season baseball record to 3-1 with a double-header sweep Saturday of host Romulus, 6-4 and 14-1.

Clark Boston paced Wayne's 11-hit attack with three hits and two runs.

Other offensive contributions came from Bryan Johnson (two hits/two RBI), Chris Czarnik (two hits), Scott Wetmore (two-run single) and John Clendening (two RBI).

Czarnik pitched the first six innings, striking out five and walking two, to pick up the victory. Shannan Green came on in the seventh to pick up the save.

Clendening, the winning pitcher, struck out eight and walked five in five innings. The game was halted after five innings because of the 10-run mercy rule.

Boston again was the offensive hero with three hits, including a double and homer. He scored twice and knocked in two runs.

Other contributions came from catcher Aaron Cagnon (two hits/three RBI/three runs), Green (double/homer/two RBI), Ron King (two hits/two runs) and Clendening (two-run double).

■ REDFORD UNION 1-4, STEVENSON 2-3: If you paid to watch, you got your money's worth from Saturday's double-header split between Redford Union and Livonia Stevenson. And if you didn't, well, it was still 22 innings of exciting high school baseball.

■ PREPS

Stevenson won the first game in the bottom of the 10th despite a spectacular defensive play by Redford Union. In the second, Billy Morris the hitter made a winner of Billy Morris the pitcher with a double for RU in the top of the 12th.

Winning pitcher Mike Allison, a sophomore, went the last two innings. Then Todd Smith smacked a double to deep center that RU center fielder Brian Berryman fielded at the fence. Berryman made a no-hop throw to cutoff man Robert Septer at second and his textbook relay to catcher Morris caught Allison at the plate.

Scott Goldman gave the play footnote status, however, when he lined a single to right for his second hit and second RBI of the game. Goldman also had a pair of hits in the second game.

"Allison got thrown out at the plate in the second inning, too," coach Mike Keller of Stevenson said, "so we were joking with him that this was the varsity now, he'd have to learn how to run a little quicker."

Starter Glenn Pinneo fanned 10 in eight innings for Stevenson while his Redford Union counterpart, Mike Noonan, who went four innings, collected four singles in five turns at bat.

Morris, a junior, earned the Game 2 victory with 6 ⅓ innings of relief and also had four hits, three singles and a double. It was the double that scored Tony Cozzitorto, who had reached on an error, with the winning run in the 12th.

Brian Goodell, who went seven innings as the starter and struck out nine, singled in two runs for Stevenson, now 1-2, in the third to tie the score, 3-3. Scott Craver went the last five innings, fanning seven, and took the loss.

"It was good, tense, exciting high school baseball," coach Rick Berryman of Redford Union said. To which Keller added, "Twenty-two innings of nail-biting baseball."

■ REDFORD CC 7-16, U-D JESUIT 1-10: Redford Catholic Central swept a double-header on Saturday against host U-D Jesuit — in contrasting fashions.

The Shamrocks waited until the top of the seventh inning in Game 1 to bust out for six runs and win 7-1. CC took charge right away in Game 2, scoring six runs in the first inning en route to the wild win.

The Shamrocks, whose games on Monday against Riverview Gabriel Richard and Tuesday against Ypsilanti, were postponed because of the weather, improved to 6-0 overall, 2-0 in the Catholic League Central Division.

The Shamrocks sent 12 batters to the plate in the decisive seventh inning.

Mike Homant led off with a single and went to second when Jason Couture was hit by a pitch. James O'Connor laid down a bunt and the U-D pitcher threw wild to first base, allowing Homant to score the eventual winning run.

Chris Misiak added a bases-loaded single to score two runs later in the inning. Ryan McGrath contributed an RBI single and Chris Karney and Homant also knocked in runs while being walked with the bases loaded.

The Shamrocks used 3⅓ innings of scoreless relief by O'Connor to win the second game. O'Connor, pitching in relief of starter Marty Wilk (who lasted 2⅓ innings) and Marino Fortuna (1⅓ innings), allowed one hit and struck out six.

Garet Burch was 2-for-4 with two doubles and four RBI. One of his doubles cleared the bases in a five-run fourth inning. Couture was 2-4 with three RBI and Karney was 2-5 with one RBI and three runs scored.

Holy Toledo!

Stevenson impressive in Ohio

The Spartans improved to 2-1 overall and 1-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

In addition to winning the 800-meter run (2:28.6) and the 1,600 run (5:28.3), Travis anchored two winning relay teams. First, she joined Kelly Prais, Jessica Cyburt and Kelly McNellance to win the 3,200 relay (10:41), then helped Prais, Erin Ray and Jeannette Stojcevski win the 1,600 relay (4:22.3).

Stojcevski swept the hurdle events, first taking the 100 in 17.5 and then the 300 in 49.5. She was also on the winning 800 relay team with Ray, Kelly Moryc and Colleen Lesondak.

Lesondak won Stevenson's only field event when she jumped 15 feet, 5½ inches in the long jump. She later won the 200 dash in 28.5.

Other winners for the Spartans were Wright, 100 dash (13.8); Prais, 400 (1:05.1); and McNellance, 3,200 (12:07).

Farmington winners were Kim Washnock in the shot put (32-4) and the discus (102-3) and Andrea Salyer in the high jump (5-6).

Stevenson sent five girls to Saturday's University of Toledo Invitational. Even with the small contingent, the Spartans finished fifth out of approximately 30 teams.

Travis also enjoyed a fine meet, finishing second in the 1,600 (5:29) and fourth in the 3,200 (11:37). The 3,200 relay team of Prais, Cyburt, McNellance and Travis finished fourth (10:04.1).

Crusaders smash IUPUI in twinbill

Madonna University rebounded from an extra-inning loss at University of Michigan on April 6 by pulling off back-to-back double-header sweeps over the weekend.

The streak continued Saturday as Madonna took two in a rain-soaked twinbill from IUPUI.

The Crusaders (19-15) routed IUPUI in the opener 10-1, and gained the sweep with a 10-0, five-inning, mercy-rule-shortened game. Madonna has won six of its last seven games.

In the opener, Madonna put the game away with a five-run fourth inning. The 12-hit attack was more than enough for the trio of Dan Pydyn, Tad Dennis (Livonia Franklin) and Eric Butler, who combined to hold IUPUI to four hits.

■ COLLEGE

Pydyn (3-1) hurled the first five innings, allowing one run on three hits, while striking out eight and walking one.

Madonna took advantage of six IUPUI errors to score six unearned runs.

Pete Quinn (Redford Thurston) ripped his third homer of the season and added a sacrifice fly. The top three in the order — Dan Taylor, Kurt Wilczynski and Tim Kasubowski — combined for four hits and six runs scored.

In the nightcap, the Crusaders put the game away early with a two-run first inning and a five-run second.

Sean Henkel (Livonia Stevenson) improved to 5-1, scattering three hits over the five innings. He struck out five and walked none. Madonna played errorless ball behind Henkel.

Shawn Penzcak went 2-for-3 with three RBI. Wilczynski also went 2-for-3, while scoring two runs to up his team-high total to 31.

On Wednesday, Madonna and Michigan (weather permitting) hooked up for the second time this season.

Dearborn Adray enters Collegiate fray

An Adray Appliance-sponsored team is returning to the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, according to commissioner Gary Gray.

The team, named Dearborn Adray, paid the entry fee of $600 on the entry deadline, Friday, March 31.

The last minute addition gives the LCBL six teams for the 1995 season, instead of five which was feared the last week of the entry deadline. The last Adray-sponsored team in the LCBL is believed to be Livonia Adray, which left the league in the mid-1980s.

Adray sponsors about 600 baseball and softball teams in metro Detroit, according to Bob Atkins, the director of the sponsorship programs. Atkins is a former Redford Union coach and athletic director and currently an assistant coach at the University of Detroit-Mercy.

The team is still searching for a coach, according to Atkins. Henry Ford Community College coach Stu Rose turned down th job due to a business commitment.

Dearborn Adray joins holdovers Little Caesars, Walter's Appliance, Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury and Wendy's, and newcomer Decision Consults, Inc.

With six teams, Gray said teams will play a 30-game schedule and don't have to worry about having byes.

"It's wonderful," Gray said. "I hate byes."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Friday (for Monday edition) and noon Tuesday (for Thursday edition). Items run once only.

■ COLLEGIATE NOTES

■ Northwood University senior center fielder Rhonda Saunders (Livonia Clarenceville) stole eight bases in NU's double-header sweep April 8 of Lake Superior State.

She is the second leading base stealer among last week's NCAA Division II statistics with 42 in 1995. She has a career total of 105.

Saunders also is tied for second in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in hitting (.600).

■ PRIEST EXCELS

Livonia native Brady Priest, who scored 12 goals and had 11 assists, recently received the Seventh Player Award for his accomplishments on and off the ice for the Deerfield (Mass.) Academy hockey team.

■ SOVA 16S 1ST

The SOVA 16-and-under volleyball team, coached by Ann Kolnitys, came away with a first-place finish last weekend at an AAU tournament held at Walled Lake Central High School.

SOVA beat the Mavericks in the finals, 15-10, 15-3.

They also scored victories over Port Huron Bluewater Blue (15-5, 15-6), Port Huron Bluewater White (15-11, 15-13) and North Macomb (15-11, 15-3).

Members of the first-place team include Kelly Sheeran, Amy Horgan, Teresa Dziekan, Joey Jandesek, Natalie Rozell, Katie Brogan, Sarah Poglits and Nicole Vondracek.

■ SOFTBALL SIGNUP

■ The Westland Parks and Recreation Department is accepting registrations for summer softball. The entry deadline is April 17.

For more information, call (313) 722-7620.

■ Women ages 30 and older are asked to play softball Monday and Wednesday mornings in Garden City. For more information, call league president Doris Williams at (313) 397-5831.

■ Senior softball players (ages 55 and older) of all abilities are needed to play in the Can/Am League, 10 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, at Livonia's Bicentennial Park.

If interested in playing for one of the three Livonia teams, call league secretary Barry DeChant at 522-7878.

BRAD EMONS

Was Guy Rucker in over his head?

When the 6-foot-10, 240-pound center from Westland John Glenn High was selected to play in Sunday's Magic's Roundball Classic at the Palace, featuring many of the nation's top high school basketball players, I had to admit I was skeptical myself.

I told that to Jim Ecker of the Cedar Rapids Gazette only days before the game. Ecker covers basketball at the University of Iowa, the school Rucker signed a national letter-of-intent with last November.

I tried to be honest with the Iowa writer because I felt Rucker had a somewhat disappointing senior year.

Flat senior year

Even more disappointing was that John Glenn, a 16-3 team during the regular season, was knocked out in the first round of the state tournament by an overachieving Garden City team.

But after Sunday's rag-tag, playground-style All-Star game, I'll reserve judgment on Rucker.

Putting it mildly, Rucker was far from an embarrassment.

He proved he belonged after scoring 10 points, (five of nine shooting including a monster dunk), grabbing seven rebounds and blocking three shots in 20 minutes.

True, he was caught guarding West team MVP and Michigan signee Robert Traylor, a 6-foot-8, 300-pound 18-wheeler who finished with 22 points and 11 rebounds.

Superstars human

But the great Kevin Garnett, the McDonald's All-Star MVP who everybody says should forego college and go straight to the NBA, finished with only eight points, three turnovers and one block. (I also had one question organizer for Sonny Vaccaro: Why wasn't Garnett ever matched up against Traylor?)

Even New York City legend point-guard Stephon Marbury, the next Kenny Anderson some say, shot one for nine with eight turnovers. Alabama-bound guard Brian Williams also had eight turnovers.

Vince Carter, the next Michael Jordan-to-be at North Carolina, was pretty quiet himself with nine points.

Some people say Rucker played with little intensity during his senior year at Glenn. He often became frustrated with physical contact and loafed up and down the floor.

Skills are there

But that doesn't take away from the fact that Rucker has tremendous timing, great shooting range for a big man and shot-blocking capabilities.

One recruiting guru, who watched two practices, told me Rucker more than held his own.

Rucker, however, would be the first to admit that he didn't play up to his own standards his final year at Glenn, showing the ability that made him an attractive Big Ten recruit as a junior.

"I was disappointed," he said. "From junior high to high school, and from high school to here, I feel like I wasn't at the level I should be at.

"There were a lot of factors (this season). I felt there was a lot of selfishness on the team. I thought I could change things, but I told myself I was not going to get upset."

Series of setbacks

A broken wrist, a hernia operation and summer school between his junior and senior seasons slowed his progress. He wasn't able to go head-to-head against some of the nation's best over the summer.

But following four days of practice against some of the country's best may provide the incentive needed for Rucker as he heads this fall to Iowa City.

"Basically, the experience of playing hard helped me. It's a lot more intense, but they're having fun, too," Rucker said. "I just tried to go out and have fun and relax.

"Traylor is probably the best I've played against because of his post-move abilities in the game. I played against Albert White (of Inkster) in grade school and on AAU. He's explosive."

Academic situation

Although Rucker has signed with Iowa, he still hasn't met ACT requirements. His core curriculum portfolio, however, makes him a qualifier.

On Saturday, the day before Magic's game, Rucker was scheduled to take the test again at Henry Ford High School, but was not admitted because he forgot to bring his high school I.D. He has been receiving tutoring twice a week after school to prepare for the test.

"I'll take it sometime before June," he said. "And I'll keep lifting weights and working on my game."

Rucker's greatest asset may be recognizing his own deficiencies as a player and student.

Realist at heart

"I need power, strength and I have to work on fundamentals," he said. "I need to go hard and the rest will come."

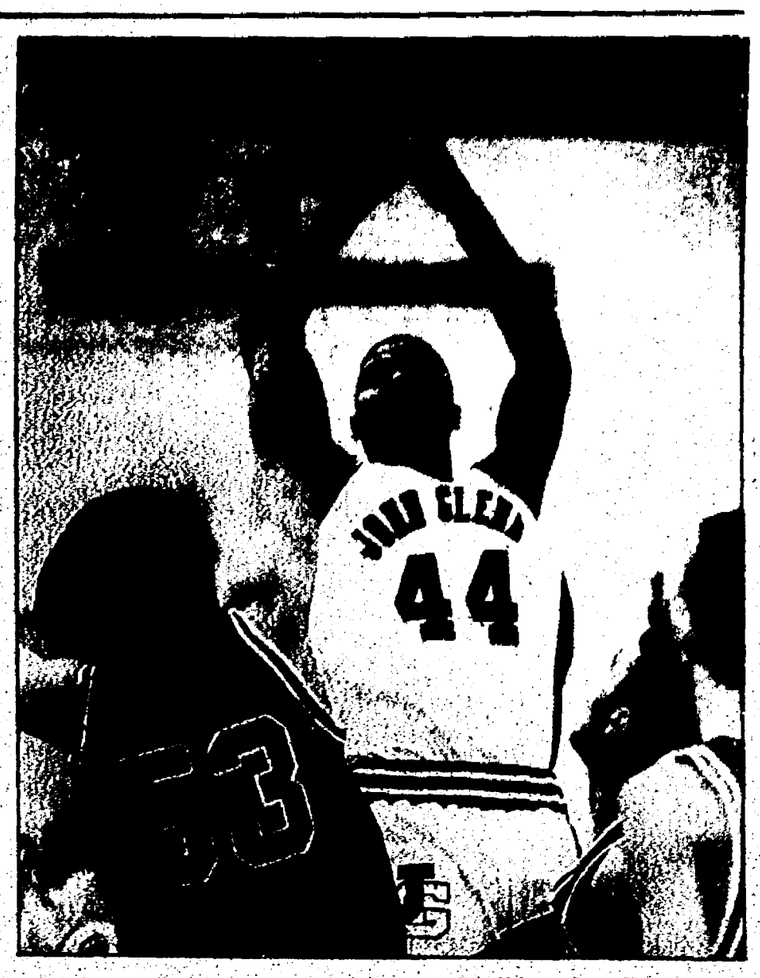

Ecker, the Iowa writer, said coach Tom Davis is counting on either Rucker or a 6-9 player from Chicago to put the Hawkeyes back on top in the Big Ten.

Four starters return from the Hawkeyes' NIT team.

"They believe they can contend if one of these two guys come through," Ecker said.

That Guy could be Rucker.

Kavanaugh bolsters SC lineup

■ BASKETBALL

Now, Schoolcraft College athletic director Ed Kavanaugh can concentrate on finding a men's basketball coach.

Kavanaugh, who also coaches the women's basketball team, is wrapping up his first recruiting season after signing five players and receiving commitments from two others.

He also is hoping to land another player before the end of the month.

But Kavanaugh will spend most of his time in April interviewing people for the vacant men's basketball coach's job. Kavanaugh said he is accepting applications until the end of the month.

He couldn't be happier with his signees, which include Redford Union point guard Jenny Markham and Redford Thurston's 5-10 guard Yvonne Malewski and 5-11 forward Kristi Engel.

The other signees are Christine Edwards, a 5-9 guard-forward from Novi, and Julie Schmidt, a 5-7 guard-forward from Milford. Committed, but yet to sign are Lapeer East's 6-2 center Shellah Coulter and Warren Woods-Tower's 6-1 center Stacey Sailus, who has also committed to play volleyball.

Kavanaugh, the former Livonia Ladywood coach, is eager to get started and erase the memories of last season when the Ocelots finished 9-14. Kavanaugh was hired last August as women's basketball coach, only two months before the start of the season.

"The whole group comes from winning programs, they love the sport and are committed," Kavanaugh said. "They have excellent size and are scorers, kids who can handle the ball. It's a fun group to work with."

Malewski was a first-team All-Observer choice after averaging 16 points per game and making 75 percent of her free throws. She was a four-year varsity player at Thurston.

"She drives well, is not afraid to mix it up, and has a good outside shot, too," Kavanaugh said.

Engel was one of Thurston's unsung heroes, averaging 12 points and 10 rebounds per game while guarding the opponents' toughest offensive player.

"They didn't look for her to score a lot, but she is capable," Kavanaugh said. "She will expand her role in college."

Kavanaugh likes the versatility Markham brings to the guard position. She averaged 12 points per game as a senior playing on a young team. She has long shooting range.

"She is a very creative player, a good passer," Kavanaugh said.

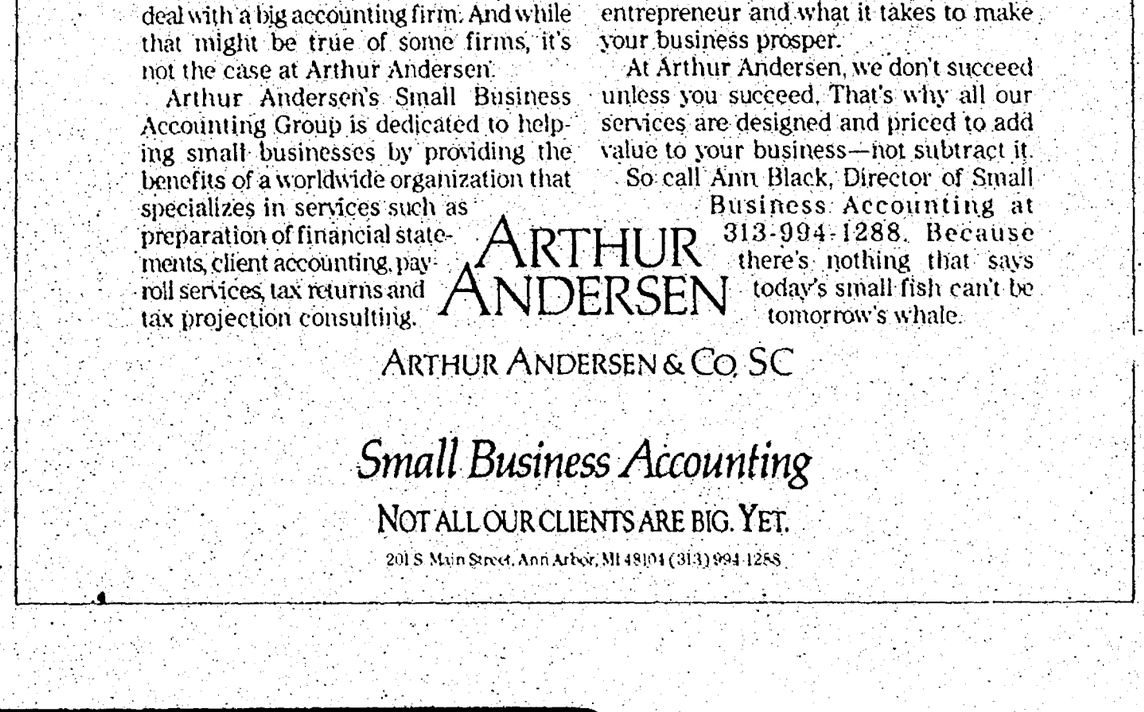

Edwards averaged 11.5 points per game for Novi and her versatility allowed her to score 42 points in an AAU game earlier this year, Kavanaugh said.

Schmidt brings toughness to the guard and forward positions, according to Kavanaugh.

She is one of the top discus and shot putters in girls track in the state and "rebounds at about 6-3," according to Kavanaugh.

Coulter averaged 16 points, 11 rebounds and six blocks for Lapeer East and is adept with either hand around the basket. Sailus is a good leaper.

Among the players who finished their eligibility are point guard Dawn Newlin, who made the Eastern Conference All-Star Game, Leandra Hoffman (Livonia Clarenceville), center Julie Klos, Jami Alex and Julie Campau. Point guard Molly Pietila is likely not returning to Schoolcraft because she is moving up north with her family, Kavanaugh said.

Ladywood pitchers yield early victories

■ PREPS

Hermann struck out five and walked only one in seven innings.

The Blazers scored the game-winning run in the fifth when Julie Szefler reached base on an error and eventually scored on Jessica Roman's sacrifice fly.

Kliber gave up four hits and 10 walks.

Ladywood is 3-3 overall.

On Saturday, the solid pitching of Hermann and Kliber carried Ladywood to a doubleheader sweep of host Belleville, 7-0 and 2-1.

Hermann blanked the Tigers on five hits in the opener. She struck out seven and walked only two.

Leslie Dickerson took the loss. She also went the distance, allowing seven hits, while fanning seven with no walks.

Katie Law led Ladywood's offensive attack going 2-for-3 with one RBI. Lisa Rozum scored twice.

Judd had two of Ladywood's four hits.

Kliber, meanwhile, allowed only four hits over seven innings. She struck out 10 and walked just one in picking up the win.

■ FRANKLIN 12, FORDSON 0: On Tuesday, Livonia Franklin improved its overall record to 3-0 with a five-inning mercy rule victory at Dearborn Fordson.

The Patriots collected 15 hits, led by Asha Bell, who went 3-for-4 with three RBI, including a pair of homers, a solo shot followed by two-run blast.

Sophomore second baseman Melissa Thompson went 3-for-3, including three-run homer and three RBI. Sophomore center fielder Jessica Sabbadin doubled, tripled and knocked in a pair of runs, while junior Aimee Parent added a two-run double.

Tina Allen, the winning pitcher, struck out eight and allowed one hit over four innings. Kim Swindell pitched the fifth.

Madonna bats wake-up in 7-2 triumph

■ COLLEGE

The Madonna University women's softball team showed signs of breaking out of its hitting slump Saturday with a 7-2 victory over Lake Superior State in the second game of a twinbill at Livonia's Ford Field.

"We have hit the ball in spurts, but it's been right at people," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham, whose team is 12-8 overall. "We've had lots of players on base, but we haven't gotten those opportune hits until Saturday.

"We've averaged seven to eight hits per game, which is low, but we've also left nine to 10 runners in scoring position (per outing)."

Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) cracked a two-run homer in the third inning, while Jeanie Baxter (Redford St. Agatha) added a three-run homer in the fifth to lift the Lady Crusaders.

Erin Comment collected three of Madonna's 10 hits, while Jenny Czach went 2-for-3.

Despite a case of the flu, Ohio freshman hurler Shana Streng scattered eight hits over seven innings to pick up the victory.

In the opener, Lake Superior handed Madonna its third straight defeat, 6-5, using a four-run third-inning to gain the victory.

Comment, Birchmeier and Courtney Senger each had two hits in a losing cause.

Lynda Weichel, who pitched seven innings and suffered the loss, gave up five earned runs. She walked two and allowed 11 hits.

Four errors also cost the Lady Crusaders.

"We've been a little inconsistent defensively making plays in the late innings," Abraham said. "The pitching has been good enough to win.

"But we have 10 newcomers and that might have something to do with it. And in all fairness, we're playing a good schedule."

Madonna has played only four games since its Florida trip in early March. A pair of doubleheaders have been rained out.

On April 1, Madonna was swept in a double-header by Siena Heights, 1-0 (in 10 innings) and 8-0. Weichel was the hard-luck loser in the opener.

"Once we get things going back-to-back, I think this team can gel because this is a good team," Abraham said.

Lady Crusaders add powerful attacker

■ VOLLEYBALL

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Madonna University volleyball coach Jerry Abraham continues to stockpile some of the state's top talent when he announced this week that 5-foot-9 Karin Sisung of Monroe St. Mary's signed a national letter of intent.

Sisung will become the third player from Monroe St. Mary's to suit up for the Lady Crusaders this fall.

She joins freshmen Erin Comment and Erin Gregoire.

"I'm happy to tap into that school because it's a good program with good athletes," Abraham said. "The kids we get from there have sound skills and sound coaching. That's a credit to their coach John Jewell."

Sisung is the third recruit this year for Abraham. Also in the fold is setter Meg Paris from Flint Mott Community College and 6-1 middle hitter Jaclyn Deane from Livonia Franklin.

Sisung helped the Kestrels reach the state Class B quarterfinals the past two seasons.

St. Mary's finished 38-7-3 this year as Sisung garnered team MVP, All-Huron League, All-Region and All-Monroe County Dream Team honors this season.

She was voted to four different all-tourney teams her senior year and was runner-up for County Player of the Year to Temperance Bedford's Liz Renius, a first-team Class A All-Stater.

"We feel Karin is a big-time recruit, a Division I type of player," Abraham said. She'll bid for a starting job immediately as a powerful outside hitter.

"She has good movement and good range defensively. She can play almost any position on the front row. She also has a variety of shots and is a great jumper."

Sisung drew interest from Michigan State, Grand Valley State and Ferris State, but chose Madonna "because I like a small school and I like the coach.

"He (Abraham) is a lot like my high school coach," said Sisung, who also letter at St. Mary's in basketball. "I also like the fact that they travel a lot and they were very helpful when I went up there (for a visit)."

Sisung, who carries a 2.9 grade-point average and would like to enter the nursing field, also added that Erin Comment played a part in her final decision.

"She's a very good friend and that really influenced me," Sisung said.

Abraham, whose team finished 30-20 a year ago after finishing tied for fifth in the 1993 NAIA Nationals, said he is not through recruiting.

"We hope to sign one or two more," he said.

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

■ HOCKEY

You could take all the points Hubenschmidt scored this season at the University of Michigan-Dearborn and it would equal many production lines.

Hubenschmidt set an American College Hockey Association national record for most points in a season with 129, shattering the old mark of 109. The 5-feet-10, 180-pound junior center, who graduated from CC in 1991, had 71 goals and 58 assists in 41 games and led the Wolves to a fourth-place finish at the national tournament in Arizona.

"We should be the favorites with Penn State and Ohio," said Hubenschmidt, who hails from Redford.

It's not surprising Hubenschmidt thinks in team goals, instead of individual. That's what makes him a great player, according to U-M Dearborn coach Joe Aho.

"The way he sees the ice, he knows what everyone else is doing," Aho said. "He's a step ahead, a real smart player."

Hubenschmidt's accomplishments aren't well-chronicled because U-M Dearborn and the rest of the teams in the Central States Collegiate Hockey League are club teams with no scholarship players.

It's believed a few Wolves' players, such as Hubenschmidt, could earn jobs with Division I teams in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

But after a fine two-year career at CC and leading the Michigan Nationals of the North American Junior Hockey League in scoring in 1991-92, Hubenschmidt was virtually ignored by Division I schools.

Hubenschmidt, who already was taking classes at Henry Ford Community College that year, decided to transfer to U-M Dearborn and play club hockey.

"The situation was, I had walk-on offers to Division I schools, but you're going against the grain right from the beginning," Hubenschmidt said. "It's that much harder just to get your name known, then you have to work harder to get in the lineup. I'm happy here. They treat you just like a varsity team, all the sticks, locker room, everything. On the road, you don't pay a dime, you get meal money. We're treated by far the best club team in the nation."

Hubenschmidt scored 48 goals and finished with 90 points as a freshman, but prior to his sophomore year underwent shoulder surgery. He had the option of sitting out that season or returning midway through the year.

"I couldn't have sat out the whole year, I would have gone nuts," Hubenschmidt said.

So he returned and scored 22 goals with 21 assists while playing only half the season on the same line as his brother, Jim Hubenschmidt, who is now graduated.

This past season, Hubenschmidt, playing with linemates Darrin Hands of Jackson and Keith Kneiding of Trenton, failed to score in only three games. He had eight hat tricks with a season high of five goals.

At the midway point of the season, Hubenschmidt knew the national record was within reach.

"I heard the record was 109 and I had 66 half-way through, so I knew I had a pretty good chance to get a jump on it if I could keep going at that pace," Hubenschmidt said.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

The turkey woods will be filled with a chorus of gobbles, yelps, clucks and cackles over the next month or so as love-lorn gobblers try to impress resident hens and win their favor.

At the same time, spring turkey hunters will be imitating the calls of the hens in an attempt to lure a hot Tom into shooting range.

The 1995 spring turkey season begins April 24 in selected management units across the state and runs through the end of May. Those lucky hunters who received a permit and make the trek to the turkey woods should find good numbers of birds.

"I'm looking for an excellent season," said John Urbain, upland gamebird specialist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "We counted better than 86,000 birds during out winter count, which is the most we've ever counted."

Urbain attributed the high numbers to a mild spring in '94, which resulted in a good reproduction rate. The spring of '93 was much colder and wetter than last year, and the reproduction rate was down considerably, which resulted in the cancellation of last year's fall turkey hunt. A limited fall hunt will return this fall in Area J (Gaylord area) and a newly created area in Isabella County.

Although there are still some left-over spring permits available for areas in the Upper Peninsula and for private land in Jackson County, Urbain expects the DNR will issue more than 55,000 permits for the spring hunt. Last year, 54,388 permits were issued for the spring hunt. The number of applicants has also risen with 78,300 hunters applying for the 1995 spring hunt compared to 73,800 applying for the 1994 hunt.

"There are more birds out there than in the past, and hunters can expect to find more birds if the weather cooperates," added Urbain. "I'm looking for an excellent season. I think we'll harvest over 13,000 birds this spring, which will be a new record."

The old record of 12,931 was set in 1993. Hunters took 11,429 gobblers last spring.

Tuff-Guy 3D

Bow hunters can test their shooting ability Saturday in West Bloomfield as Detroit Archers holds its second annual "Tuff-Guy 3D" shoot.

"Our initial attempt last year proved to be successful, not because it was the most difficult course in the state, but because it put the archer in more of a hunting situation as opposed to a regular 3D archery course," said Detroit Archers vice president Gary Ouvry. "The comments from the people who shot it last year were great."

Detroit Archers has a beautiful, wooded, walk-through course, which will make you forget you're in the midst of an urban area. The "Tuff-Guy" course will feature 40 McKenzie 3D targets and will test archer's ability with shots from varied distances, ground shots and shots from elevated platforms.

Registration times are 8-9:30 a.m. for a 9:15 a.m. shoot and 12-1 p.m. for a 1:15 p.m. shoot.

Detroit Archers is the oldest archery club in the state and was founded in 1924 by archery legends Pope Saxton, Art Young and former club president Fred Bear. The club is located at 5700 Drake Rd., between Maple (15 Mile Rd.) and Walnut Lake (16 Mile Rd.) Call the clubhouse at (810) 661-9610 for more information.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Stellar week

U.S. Open, Pro-Am successful

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

That was the week that was, and what a great week it turned out to be last week.

Of course, that's the week of the U.S. Open Pro Bowlers Tour at Bowl One Lanes in Troy. Can't say enough about the fantastic job Bill Strike did in directing the total scenario.

Just to take on an event like this and project the crowds, the 240 contestants, the media, the sponsors and the concessions into a place designed to accommodate your typical Friday night bowling leagues just had to be one enormous undertaking, not to mention the 2,000-plus bowlers who participated in the Pro-Am.

It was another stroke of brilliance to hold the finals at Joe Louis Arena. The way this event was presented to the public, the way every detail was handled made it a smashing success with a record-breaking crowd for the nationally televised finals at JLA.

Bill Strike did have plenty of help, notably from his wife, Joyce; from the owner, Ron Wenglikowski; and from the many volunteers who helped staff the facility. They helped set up the grandstand seating across all of the lanes so the crowds of bowling enthusiasts were able to fully enjoy the show.

And what a show it was, as the final cut for making it all the way to the top 24 match play finalists was a plus 691. The original figure is used during qualifying rounds to determine the placings. A game of 229 would add 29 pins to the figure.

Our best local contestant was David Mahaz, who owns the David's Right Line Pro Shop located at Cloverlanes in Livonia. He made a pretty good run at the top 24, but faded at the end and still finished a very respectable 44th with his plus-547, while averaging 217.09 overall.

Mahaz, pleased with his performance, said he will be back again next year in Reno, Nev.

Another of our locals, Kelly Bennett of Orchard Lake, started strong, but also fell by the wayside finishing 59th, a nice run to finish with a plus-414 while averaging 212.94 along the way. This is another young All-Star who will be back, and should do well in the future.

Perhaps the most fun during the week was had by the amateurs who bowled in the Pro-Am. They did not have to worry about making a living out of the game, but had some good cash prize incentives.

Cheryl Slipek from Woodland Lanes in Livonia rolled a strong 700 series and took home some cash, but the most amazing shooter, 82-year-old Chet Wenglikowski, father of the bowling center owner, finished 11th, good for $125.

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

Spring cleaning also applies to gardens

Mother Nature must know that April is National Garden Month because she has been cooperating so far — but, as you saw what happened last weekend, she still has some tricks up her sleeve!

We live in zones 5 and 6 (the warmer pockets in our yards and gardens) and the last frost date in zone 5 is generally between May 10 and 20; in zone 6, April 30. BUT last year we had frost June 9. For more information, you can call your County Master Gardener Hotlines (Oakland, (810) 858-0902; Wayne, (313) 494-3005). Keep these numbers handy in case you have any type of gardening question during the year.

"Gardens are not made by singing — 'Oh, how beautiful!' and sitting in the shade," according to Rudyard Kipling, and this is the time to stop dreaming and get busy to make our gardens beautiful.

Get busy

Prune summer blooming plants and fruit trees now, prune dead and diseased parts any time, and remove water sprouts as soon as you notice them. Good pruning tools are very necessary and must be sharp. I especially like Fiskars' new softouch (TM) and softgrip (TM) line. Many garden magazines carry advertisements for these excellent tools.

Clean up the grass areas and garden beds by taking out the leaves and debris from winter; cut down perennials that have given winter silhouettes. This will immediately be a good beginning and make the landscape look better right away. You will also feel great. Add the "stuff" to the compost pile — make sure the twigs and stems are finely chopped for quicker decomposition.

Remove mulch slowly from bulbs and perennials and divide the perennials when they have about four inches of growth. They all would appreciate an application of fertilizer high in phosphorous (the middle number on the bag), as would small trees and shrubs. Acid-loving plants need special attention. Always follow directions on packages.

Top-dress the lawn and aerate. If the grass hasn't been up to par, or there are heavy traffic areas, perhaps aeration will help and it can be done now and repeated in the fall if necessary. This will create a space in the soil that allows oxygen to penetrate and help with root development. Aeration can be done by professionals, but there are tools for the do-it-yourselfer — handheld ones, or devices with long spikes that can be clamped to the shoes. Spikes on golf shoes aren't long enough.

Before digging into the garden, be sure the soil is ready to be worked. Take a handful of soil and squeeze. If it is too wet it will form a firm ball, and working it will damage the soil's texture. Wait until the soil crumbles in your hand when squeezed.

Have the pH of the soil tested. The County

The current issue of Presence magazine found the 33-year-old photographer at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham to illustrate a story about legendary jazz singer Josephine Baker. Using this 1920s-inspired setting and clothes in which Kevin orchestrated a scene that included hair stylist Jeffrey Stevens, of Osborn in Birmingham, a makeup artist and model to produce photos looking as if clipped from a vintage film.

"I always have these images in my head from watching old movies, years spent studying art (especially impressionism), and from having 15 years of fashion in my head and countless hours in front of the camera," said Kevin, who has photographed 1,000 models in the last four years.

Palette Guild show continues in Livonia

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Evelyn Henry, Helene Zelenka and Rosemary Juracek have nearly eight decades of life experiences to their individual credit. They reveal the little things that make life worth living in an exhibit of art by the Palette Guild continuing through April 27 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Five Mile Road east of Farmington.

Along with 10 other club members, the three show painting, pastel and collage in the Livonia Arts Commission sponsored exhibit was judged by Douglas Semivan, a professor in the art department at Madonna University.

■ SCULPTORS HONOR EARTH

Redford artists Matthew Hanna and Todd Erickson along with Charles McGee, Carl Butler, Christine Hughes, and Sherry Hendrick take part in the "Honor The Earth Biennial"continuing through April 30 at the Willis Gallery, 422 West Willis in Detroit.

Artists were given a wide berth to interpret the subject of the earth at this time in its history. Whether the response is hopeful or negative, conflicted or optimistic, was the decision of the artist. The responses proved to be enthusiastic with each artist applying their unique vision to questions of ecology, nature and man's relationship with the earth.

The Willis Gallery is two blocks west of Woodward and three blocks south of Forest adjacent to the Wayne State University campus. Hours are 1-5 p.m. Friday through Sunday except Easter. Call (313) 831-0136.

■ CABLE SPOTLIGHTS ART

Expressions, a new show featuring artists and their work hosted by Livonia Arts Commissioner Lee Alanskas, debuts 7:15 p.m. April 19 and 26 on City Channel 8.

"Livonia is very fortunate to have so many art groups that we thought this would be interesting to delve into the artistic processes," said Alanskas.

"I hope people will let City Channel 8 know if they like the program so it could be expanded from 15 minutes to a half hour."

Classes in art and print making with Robert DuFour at Schoolcraft College in Livonia brought him closer to his dream of finding a creative career. Years spent working as a model in Milan and Madrid, his cosmopolitan good looks gracing the pages of publications like GQ and Rolling Stone, influenced Emin's photographic style and the way he views the subject matter.

Egyptian adventure

Emin respects the models and knows how to go about getting the look he's after whatever it takes even if it means renting a club in Egypt for one night or painting tires white the night before using them as props in studio shots. Additional versatility comes from shooting 22 different kinds of film and four cameras of varying formats.

"There's no rules in this business. I'm trying to be innovative instead of a follower," said Emin whose photos have appeared in Votre Beauté in France, Flash in Greece, and African Cosmopolitan.

"You have minutes to grab a viewer's attention. People are bombarded with images that are so stale. My images are dramatic portraits. It's beauty with a twist, always something captivating or interesting about the beauty."

Problems on location crop up whether stateside or in some exotic destination. While in Greece last fall shortly before leaving for Egypt and its own set of barriers Emin almost said, "Let's turn around and go back to Greece." But realizing challenging situations call for different measures, he continued on.

Difficulties encountered in Egypt due to the culture forced a change of locations. The strong religious-based edicts of the country along with its harsh environment produced more than its share of hardships.

Emin and his crew endured a five-hour camel ride into the desert just to reach a shoot against a backdrop of the pyramids. Searing heat and spitting camels made the expedition trying.

"Egypt's a society based on religion. We even had to dress like them to fit in and were surrounded by 400 people at one point. But I always wanted to see the Pyramids and needed something impressive to show the agencies in New York."

Off to Paris

Emin returned home for three weeks before leaving for Paris to photograph the finalists of the international "Look of the Year" model competition. His adventure to France's most romantic city cost him $2,000 the first four days when his hotel room was robbed.

While there, however, he made the rounds of the agencies representing photographers and plans to return later this year possibly to work for Elite-Paris or Michele Filomeno or famed lensman Helmut Newton.

Since returning home from Paris, Emin has been invited to show his Egypt photos in "On the Line," an exhibit opening June 16 at the Detroit Focus Gallery.

"I chose Emin's Egypt work because as Americans we look at it as beautiful fashion photography but in many other countries they see it as crossing the boundaries of their culture. It's been said that women's rights have regressed 10 years in Egypt," said Karla Loring, a Detroit Institute of Arts curatorial assistant who sat on the Detroit Focus exhibition committee.

Local endorsement

Also since back on local grounds Emin landed the fashion photography assignment for Presence magazine while interviewing for another photo assignment at Winkelman's main office in Plymouth. It was there he met Northville resident Samantha Kandah, who worked in the marketing department, who eventually quit Winkelman's to become Presence's fashion director.

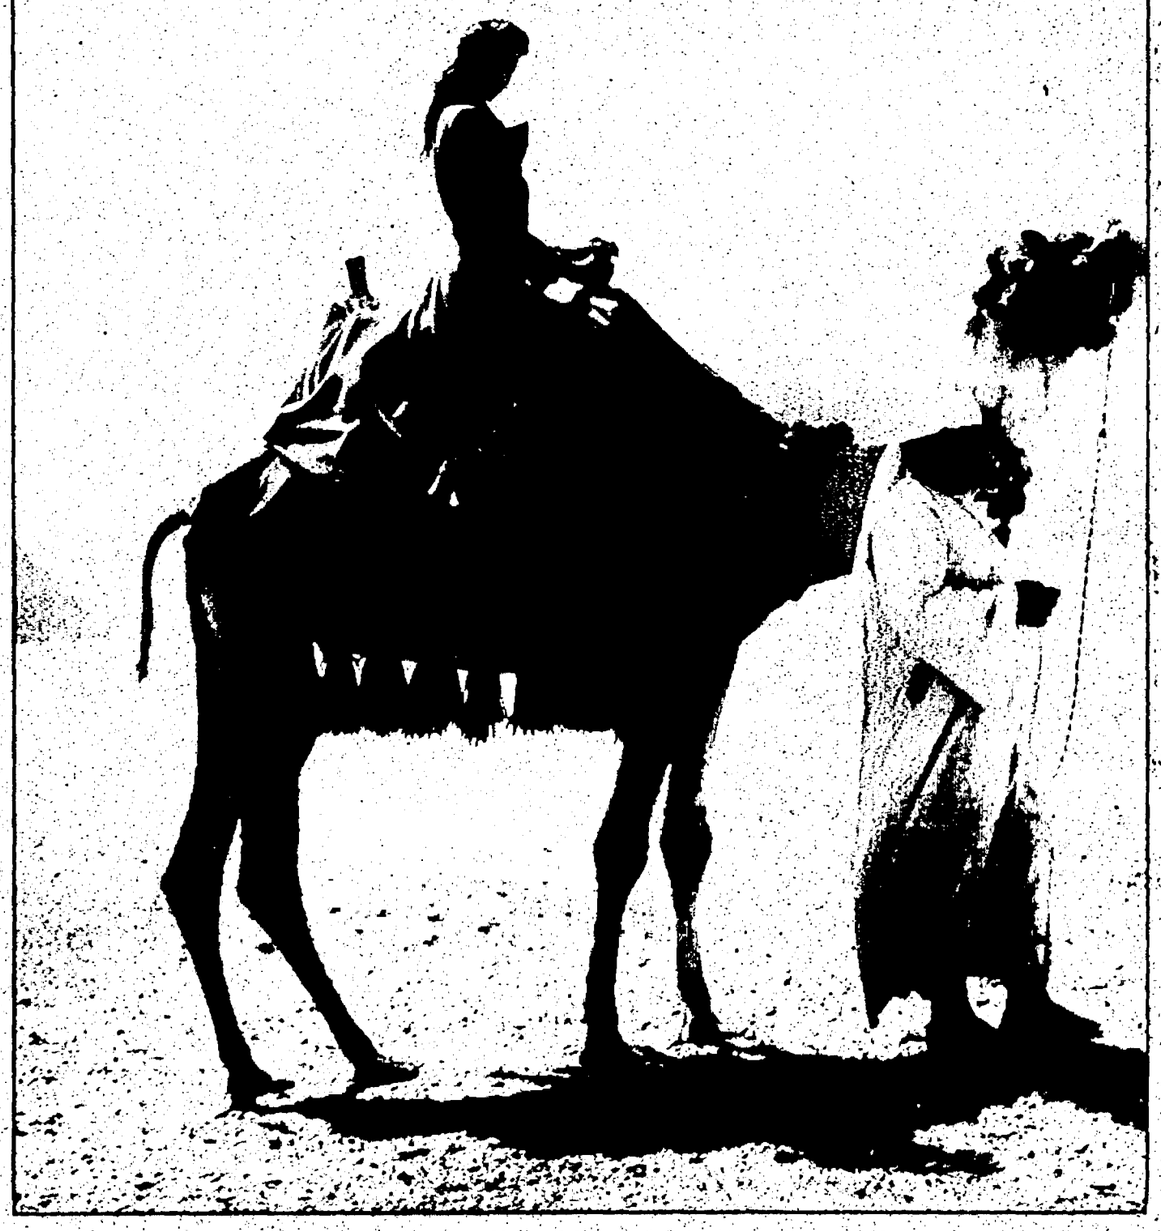

"When I saw his book, the photographs were the best I'd ever seen because of his creativity and use of lighting. His lighting is beautiful," said Kandah, a graduate of Franklin High School in Livonia.

The third issue of Presence will be on the newstands in mid-May.

Extension Offices offer this service at a nominal cost; then follow their recommendations to improve your soil.

When the soil is ready, compost can be added at any time of the year. Dig it in at least a spade deep and incorporate it into the soil. Canadan Peat Moss can also be added to lighten the soil and help with drainage. Be sure to wet the moss thoroughly before mixing it in.

If you have grown a cover crop over vegetable or annual beds, cultivate it back into the ground.

Information, please

Earth Day is April 22. Make it a point to practice good environmental habits this year and every year. SOCRRA is sponsoring an Earth Week Program, "Planting Your Plantings in Harmony with Nature," 7-8:30 p.m. Thursday, April 20, in the Royal Oak Library, 222 E. 11 Mile. Speaker will be Cynthia Richards of Four Seasons Garden Center. Admission is free.

Many people ask me to recommend ONE book about gardening and that isn't an easy task. The just-published "Taylor's Master Guide to Gardening," edited by Rita Buchanan and Roger Holmes (Houghton Mifflin, $60), would be high on the list.

Several years have gone into producing this volume. Many respected plantsmen and women have contributed. Every aspect of ornamental gardening is addressed clearly and directly. The excellent advice will benefit both beginner and seasoned gardener.

One large section, "The Gallery of Plants," is grouped according to plant types and provides quick identification, while another, "The Encyclopedia of Plants," is organized alphabetically by genus. More than 1,000 photographs and line drawings illustrate beautifully. This book should be on every gardener's bookshelf.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

■ Cut back butterfly bush (Buddleia davidii) to about six inches. If you have B. alternifolia, wait to prune until after it has flowered.

■ Pre-emergent crabgrass preventer can be applied now.

■ Dwarf evergreens such as dwarf black spruce, globe or white pine, or bird's nest spruce will fill in bare flower beds. Plant now.

■ The Frederik Meijer Gardens grand opening is Thursday, April 20, in Grand Rapids. Call (616) 957-1580 for more information.

■ Sow seeds of beets, radishes, carrots, spinach, lettuce; set out cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, onion sets. Be prepared to protect them from frost.

■ Along with 10 other club members, the three show painting, pastel and collage in the Livonia Arts Commission sponsored exhibit was judged by Douglas Semivan, a professor in the art department at Madonna University.

Semivan did award an honorable mention to the contender by Henry, a still life entitled "July Crop."

Other award winners included second place, an oil painting, "Pugh's Mill" by Frances Bowlby of Plymouth of which Semivan commented "it's a beautiful play of light with the light, composition study and playing with the shadows giving it a nice mood."

Third place was awarded to a delicate-looking watercolor, "My Old Tea Kettle" by Dorothy Rohe; and honorable mentions to an oil, "Serenity" by Bowlby; an acrylic, "Springtime in Williamsburg" by Fred Longe; watercolor, "Study in Compliments" by Anna Mary Vollick, and a watercolor "Snow on Green Bay" by Rohe.

Henry, Juracek and Zelenka started painting seriously after retirement. Henry, who creates art with the hope of encouraging the viewer to enjoy nature and the world around them, worked in the art department of Campbell-Ewald for 21 years before retiring in 1979.

Zelenka retired 15 years ago after 27 years with the Ford Motor Co. She still takes seniors' painting classes at Madonna University every Tuesday night with Sister Angeline.

When asked why she paints, Zelenka replied quickly and matter-of-fact like, "why do some people golf or go to see football games?"

Not to be missed in addition to the awards winners are "Canine Chorus," a whimsical oil painting featuring a dalmation playing piano for his friends by Annalee Davis of Livonia. Also, Davis' "August Weeds," a colorful study of goldenrod and red clover, which took an honorable mention.

"I liked the sense we were closing in on a microscopic view in this piece. It shows a real nice investigation of that space," Semivan said.

Also included on the list of must-sees is Nora Oxley's "Tiger Lilies" watercolor, Jacqueline Daniel's "Comanche Warriors," an energetic oil, and Longe's touching portrait of a "Mama & Baby Llama."

The Palette Guild, founded in Ferndale in 1950, meets the fourth Monday of the month at noon in the Livonia Civic Center Library. Hours for its Spring Art Show run 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday except Good Friday on April 14.

First place: Douglas Semivan, a professor in the art department at Madonna University gave first place to this acrylic, "Cranbrook Gardens" by Evelyn Henry of Redford Township. Black-eyed Susans reflecting their vivid yellow color in a pool of water are mirrored by the distant sunset.

Plymouth artists Florence Constable, Betty Manthey and Phyllis Hochlowski exhibit watercolors, oil and collage at the Canton Public Library. All three are members of 3 Cities Art Club. Not to be missed is Hochlowski's watercolor of two carousel horses.

■ DESIGN WINNERS

Garden City and Westland residents were winners in the final judging of the 1995 Ann Arbor Flower Show held March 23-26 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds.

More than 30,000 people attended the sixth annual event where Margot McCormack of Westland took First and Second Place in Division I: Horticulture for her potted herbs and second place in the Oldies but Goodies category.

Marian Miller of Garden City won second place in Division I: Horticulture for her succulents. Della Haydon, a member of the Garden City Garden Club took third in the category of Horticulture Vignettes.

The show was sponsored by Matthaei Botanical Gardens, University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Did you know that you can dramatically widen your photographic horizons by using wide-angle lenses? Wide-angle lenses are exciting to use and are my favorite of all lenses.

A wide-angle lens will alter depth-of-field and perspective and give you a picture quite unlike what a normal or telephoto will produce. It's a lens that "sees" more, taking in a wider expanse than other lenses.

There are several advantages to the wide-angle lens. First is the increase in depth-of-field, the range of sharpness realized in the final print. A moderate wide-angle lense such as 28mm at an aperture of f/8 will produce a depth-of-field from five feet to infinity. In contrast, a normal 50mm lens, properly focused, will give you a depth-of-field of 20 feet to infinity. This means that with the wide-angle lens more of what you see in the viewfinder will be sharp and in focus.

Going even wider, a 17mm lens (super wide-angle) at f/16 will produce an astounding depth-of-field of one foot to infinity. This means that if lighting conditions enable you to shoot at f/16, you never have to focus the camera as long as you are at least one foot from the subject!

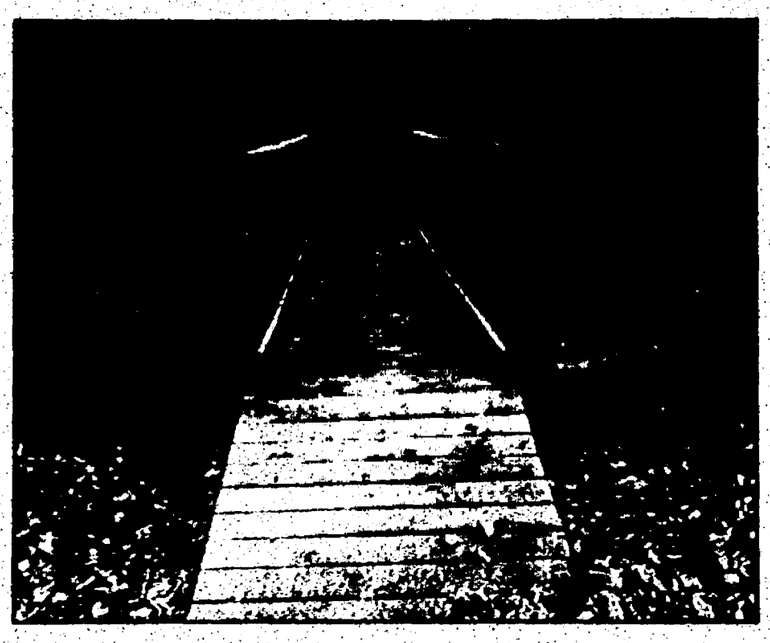

Second, you can get by with much slower shutter speeds with a wide-angle lens, a nice advantage when light is limited. The "rule" is that a lens can be handheld at the shutter speed closest to its focal length. Therefore a 28mm lens can be safely handheld at 1/30 second and a 17mm lens at 1/15 second. With slow speed films, low level light and a desire to maximize depth-of-field, this can be quite an advantage.

Many photographers ask about distortion, the bending of light rays characteristic of wide-angle lenses. Buildings will begin to "lean" and some subjects may begin to look unreal. But the inherent distortion of wide-angle lenses can be turned into one of your biggest advantages. Selective distortion can be a plus. Strength, drama and impact can be added to your photographs through proper use of distortion.

Creatively used, distortion can emphasize certain parts of a picture and give a photograph an artistic quality no other lens can produce. Sweeping foregrounds and bold subject framing are easily attainable. And you can deliberately exploit the wide-angle lens' tendency to exaggerate the size of close objects at the expense of distant ones.

Wide-angle lenses will produce truly unusual and exciting photographs for you.

Tour slated

Pewabic Pottery will present "Look UP," an architectural tour of downtown Detroit, Saturday, May 6.

Fee is $14 for nonmembers, $12 for members. Register by Saturday, April 22. Call (313) 822-0954 for information.

"Look UP" will be a walking guided tour with Melanie Bazil, historic tile specialist and director of museum/archives at Pewabic Pottery. Tile, mosaic, terra cotta, sculpture, wrought iron and glass work will be viewed. Early city of Detroit civic planning and the architecture and stylistic changes exhibited downtown will be looked at as well. Participants will receive a packet of materials.

Controversial artist to speak at DIA hall

Former Detroiter Mike Kelley will speak about his provocative and sometimes controversial art work, which he creates from the materials of "American trash culture," 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 19, at the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward.

The talk will be in Lecture Hall. Use the Woodward entrance. Call (313) 833-4020 for more information.

Admission is $5 for the public, $3 for students and seniors, free for Friends of Modern Art members. Tickets will be available at the door.

The event is sponsored by the Forum for Contemporary Art of the Friends of Modern Art of the DIA. Airfare was provided by Northwest Airlines.

Register now for pottery workshop

Pewabic Pottery in Detroit offers a workshop focusing on the making of handmade domestic pottery 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, April 29.

Lunch is potluck; bring a dish to share. Register by April 14. For information, call (313) 822-0954.

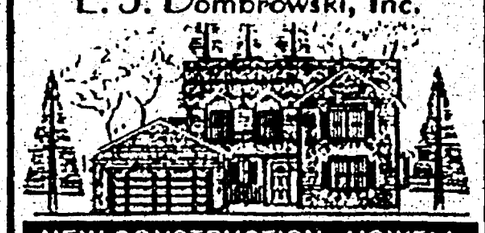

The workshop will have two approaches to making pots for use, wheel thrown forms and the assembling of altered parts.

Polly Ann and Frank Martin will concentrate on making domestic ware for use, while producing pots with imagination and care. During the day a slide presentation will be included. The workshop will provide the stimulus to develop new explorations in forming, glazing and firing.

The Martins are 1988 alumni of the Cranbrook Academy of Art and were artists in residence at Pewabic in 1989. They currently teach at the University of Dartmouth in Fairhaven, Mass.

An exhibit of the work will be in the Stratton Gallery; reception for the artists will follow the workshop 4:30-7 p.m.

■ BUYING/SELLING EXPO

The many aspects of buying and selling a house will be topics of a free expo 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunda, April 30 at Livonia Holiday West.

The event is sponsored by the Western Wayne Oakland Association of Realtors, headquartered in Farmington Hills, and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, with offices in Livonia, Plymouth, Farmington, Birmingham and Rochester.

There will be two panel presentations — one for home buyers beginning at noon, the other for home sellers at about 2:30 p.m. Speakers will include an attorney, home inspector, mortgage lender and nationally-known Realtor speaker David Knox.

"We want to provide potential home buyers and home sellers with the information they're going to need to make the buying and selling processes smooth ones," said Chuck Mills, WWOCAR president.

Each attendee will receive a packet of materials upon arrival, as well as the opportunity to visit booths of expo participants.

■ CENTURY 21

Several area Century 21 offices have received Centurian Awards for achieving a specific level of production and customer service.

Those include Century 21 Today in Livonia and Redford and Century 21 Hartford South and Century 21 Hartford North, both in Livonia.

■ GOULD TO RE/MAX

Bruce Gould, a Plymouth resident, has joined the real estate office of RE/MAX on the trail in that community.

Gould, a Western Michigan University graduate, has earned the professional designation Graduate, Realtor Institute issued by the National Association of Realtors for completing a comprehensive series of classes and passing a written exam on all facets of residential real estate.

Before beginning his career in residential real estate, Gould owned a building and development company.

Tune to your car radio as you house hunt

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

If you'd rather not tour open houses, hook up with a Realtor or cruise neighborhoods for phone numbers on yard signs, Talking House may be the way to begin house hunting.

Talking House is a small electronic device that allows house hunters to get sales information on their car radios. Just pull up to the home, tune to 1610 AM and listen to a 90-second sales pitch without leaving the front seat. If you like what you hear, give the agent a call. If you don't, move on.

"Today, most house hunters are working couples who don't have a lot of spare time," said Realtor Paul Schwartz of Century 21 West, West Bloomfield. "We're a 24-hour-a-day society. This device works all day, seven days a week."

Schwartz, a former high school biology teacher, likes gadgets and innovative marketing ideas. When he heard about Talking House, he bought three. After installing one in a White Lake Township listing, he says he had enough inquiries to sell the ranch-style house three times. He settled for one closing, but got a cache of potential clients from calls generated by the device.

"The house sold in three weeks because I had a bigger pool of potential buyers. The seller said it was like having two Realtors," Schwartz said.

Talking House isn't new (the current model appeared in 1992), but consumers will see more and more Realtors relying on radio activated messages to reach potential clients, according to Scott Matthew of Realty Electronics Inc., the Fond du Lac, Wisc. manufacturer of Talking House.

The firm has sold 30,000 units at $200 apiece since 1992. A lease-purchase agreement runs $12-$14 a month.

"It gives people vital information immediately. That's key today," the former Realtor said. "Most home buyers begin their search by driving around a favorite area looking for yard signs. Instead of passing up a house that might look too small from the outside, they can tune in a radio message and possibly find out it has four bedrooms and a walk-out basement."

Some Realtors claim a single call generated by Talking House is more than 10 times as productive as a call from a yard sign, the manufacturer said.

Talking House weighs two pounds and is about the size of a phone answering machine. It plugs into a grounded outlet inside the home. The message is recorded like an answering machine greeting and stored on computer chips. The device is FCC approved, so Realtors don't need federal or city permission to hook up. House hunters can pick up the message 250-300 feet from the curb.

Realtor Katie Rosario of Chamberlain Realtors, West Bloomfield, says one seller was so intrigued with Talking House, she drove around her neighborhood near Green Lake just to see how far the radio message carried.

"Maybe it was a clear day because she picked it up outside the subdivision," said Rosario, who bought five units in 1992.

"I get good, legitimate sales calls from Talking House. It's not a cheap marketing tool, but I like trying new things and being able to offer my clients something extra."

Potential home sellers can tune in Talking House messages to see how their house compares others in the area. The real estate agent's message usually tells lot size, square footage, number of bedrooms, baths, recent updates and amenities, such as a wrap-around deck, hardwood floors or skylights.

"I can't be available 24 hours a day, so (Talking House) gives me a competitive edge," Schwartz said. "You go into combat carrying a lot of equipment. This is just one more thing."

For more information, call Realty Electronics, Inc. 1 (800) 444-8255.

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q Do you have an opinion as to whether or not a rule barring rentals during the first year of ownership is reasonable?

A I am not aware of any reported cases on that subject in Michigan; however, I believe that a good argument could be made that it is reasonable and, indeed, such a rule was upheld by a Florida Court, which upheld the association's right to pass a rule that precluded an owner, if his unit was being rented, from allowing a new buyer to extend the lease agreement with the tenant.

Q I am a new owner of a piece of property. I am aware that sooner or later, I will need the services of an attorney who will help with landlord-tenant problems. I understand that I will have to pay charges to an attorney on a flat fee or an hourly basis. However, I cannot afford to pay an exorbitant fee for every simple matter. Is there a source, a state referral bureau, or even a brand new student lawyer, who may perform the services for a smaller fee?

A It is suggested that you contact the lawyer referral service of the bar association that has jurisdiction in your area. For example, you may contact, in the metropolitan Detroit area, the Oakland County Bar Association Lawyer Referral, the Detroit Bar Association Lawyer Referral or the Macomb County Bar Association Lawyer Referral. I suggest that you may also wish to contact the State Bar of Michigan in Lansing for any further suggestions they may have in regard to lawyer referral services.

Q We are thinking about buying a condominium for an investment in the Aspen area. Do you have any suggestions in terms of what we should be looking for in terms of our investment?

A Buying a condominium as a recreational facility may or may not be a good investment. Generally speaking in talking with Realtors, you will find that you will not receive a large cash flow, although depending upon the region in which you purchase a condominium, there may be a likelihood for an increase in the value of your unit. However, in such places as Aspen, the cost of buying a unit may be cost prohibitive and may have already peaked. In places like Telluride, however, where the area is still under substantial development and is relatively unknown, the opportunity for capital appreciation may be greater, although not obviously necessarily guaranteed.

In any event, wherever you buy a condominium, you should utilize the same strategies of protection that anyone needs to utilize in buying a condominium, i.e., understand the condominium documents, know your developer or the condominium project, as the case may be, and understand your responsibilities and particularly the restrictions of the condominium project. In the case of a recreational condominium, also be extremely familiar with the methodology by which the condominium will be managed in the absence of an on-site board of directors.

Free Report Reveals Little Know Secrets Of How To Sell Your Home For The Highest Price!

With all of the ups and downs in the real estate market over the past several years, finally there is good news for home sellers.

A FREE new market report has just been released that provides valuable information about how to position your home in the marketplace so you get the highest price possible.

For years, real estate agents have relied on & local market figures and other analysis to advise sellers on how to determine the "right" selling price for their home. The problem is these figures don't give you the total picture you need to get the highest price for your home when you sell!

It's not commonly known by most home sellers that just understanding what is going on in your immediate neighborhood does not give you the proper information you need to get the maximum price for your home or get it sold on time. Yet, too often sellers make this mistake.

Thanks to a new computer system, home sellers can now get extremely accurate, up-to-the-minute information that will help them get the highest price for their home when they sell it.

The FREE REPORT is titled "How To Sell Your Home For The Highest Price", and it includes a computerized market report that gives you "inside" information that most home sellers are not aware of.

If your home is currently listed for sale with a real estate broker, there are some restrictions on what information can be provided. However, if you are about to put your home on the market, or planning to sell your home in the future, the complete report can be provided to you without charge.

The computerized market report alone, could save you thousands of dollars when you sell your home. It shares specific strategies of how to outmaneuver your competition and position your home in the marketplace so it sells on time without frustration.

Depending upon your situation, the report may yield other financial savings as well. Just last week, we were able to show a homeseller how to save $888 in interest and taxes with just one tip that resulted from the report.

To get a copy of this free report, you can call 1-800-69[illegible]-3921

Condos feature suites on 1st floor

A builder who completed one condominium community in Westland is back for another project. The subdivision is located near recreational facilities and shopping. Prices start at $112,900.

By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

Kestrel: This model at Ravencrest features the master suite on the main level and a second bedroom and full bath upstairs.

A successful condominium development at Quail Run in Westland has prompted R&R Development to try another — Ravencrest — on Newburgh between Ford and Cherry Hill.

The project consists of 76 units, two or four units to a building, on 14 acres. Prices range from $112,900 to $129,900. Models are expected to rise by late June, but a sales center is open on site now.

A couple of different kinds of buyers will be drawn to the subdivision, said Gene Prandine, sales/marketing director.

"Empty-nesters coming out of homes looking for a place where everything is taken care of, basically units with easy upkeep with the master suite downstairs.

"It's attractive to young professionals as well. Prices are modest enough to accommodate younger people who are in the marketplace with good jobs," he said.

Location was cited as a big plus.

"And a senior citizen center almost across the street," Prandine added. "We're very close to major

Three floor plans are available. Attached, two-car garage, first-floor laundry, basement and air conditioning plus range and dishwasher in kitchens are standard in all.

Fireplaces and decks are optional features

"I like it because it's so open and airy," Prandine said. "The staircase downstairs doesn't make you feel like you're going into a basement but a lower level."

The base price is $112,900.

This plan features a combination living room/dining room of about 16-by-19 feet, kitchen/eating nook and a half-bath on the first floor.

"We consider this one to have two masters suites, one up and one down," Morris said.

The base price is $114,900.

The Hawkshire, a story-and-a-half of about 1,450 square feet, places the master on the main floor, two bedrooms and a full bath on the second floor.

The main level also showcases the kitchen/eating nook, dining room and a living room with a sloped ceiling.

The base price is $129,900.

"I think variety of design and freshness of design stand out for us," Prandine said. "We continue to improve as we build. We think most are as perfect as can be while we keep the price down in the affordable range."

Exteriors are brick and vinyl siding.

The annual property tax rate for municipal, county and school services for Ravencrest is about $33.50 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

That means the owners of a $114,900 unit in Ravencrest would pay about $1,925 in taxes. The monthly maintenance fee is $79.

Natalie and Bill Thurmond will move from a ranch in Redford to the ranch model in Ravencrest.

"We wanted it all on one floor," Natalie said. "We wanted a larger basement which the (Ravencrest) ranch has. Two bathrooms is nice. My husband wanted to get away from yard work.

"Condos and new construction, I think, will go up (in value) faster than our house," Natalie Thurmond said. "We think now is the prime time to get equity out."

"It seemed like a nice unit, all on one level with a good-size basement, nice extra space to finish later on," Stahlberger said. "It seemed like a nice layout with a little breakfast area off the kitchen separate from the dining area."

Stahlberger said his concern with the property backing up to Westland's DPW yard was alleviated by a sales rep who said the area would be bermed and fenced.

Family still operates major household mover

By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

Sharon LeMieux/Staff Photographer

Corrigan movers: The Corrigan Family has been involved in the moving business for more than six decades. Caretakers today include brothers Michael and David flanking their father, Paul.

Paul A. Corrigan, president of Corrigan Moving Systems and a Franklin resident, understates the complexity of the family business with the simple description, "We're really packaging engineers."

The company, headquartered in Farmington Hills, was started by Paul's father, Frank, in 1929. Paul's sons David, a Saline resident, and Michael, Farmington Hills, play key roles in the company's success as vice presidents.

David and Paul both have served as president of the Michigan Movers and Warehousemen's Association. Both shared the association's mover of the year designation in 1994 for service to the industry.

David: Total revenue.

Paul: Probably 80 percent.

David: Of that 80 percent, 70 percent is national accounts: A GM or Chrysler will move someone and the company will pay. The other 30 percent, people pay for themselves or the company will pay on a one-time basis.

Our niche is long-distance moving of household goods. Executives refer us. We keep moving the same people again and again all over the country.

What about assets?

Paul: At every location (10), we have a warehouse. I would say $20 million to $25 million in assets.

David: People who work for us give us great ideas. We latch on to them.

Paul: We probably have about 400 employees.

Michael: Both on trucks and in the office.

How competitive is your business with other movers and do-it-yourself rental companies?

Michael: It's extremely competitive. With so many people (movers) in the market, they keep raising discounts so we make less money.

Paul: When you lose one big one, there are three small ones starting up. Competition is what keeps margins low. Our goal is to make 5 percent before taxes.

David: There's not room for error. If you don't put money back into it or make bad decisions, you don't rebound.

We bought a laundry facility to wash and clean our pads. It's in our Dearborn facility. We didn't want to put a pad around fine furniture that had been wrapped around a lawnmower.

What is your biggest challenge today?

Michael: Keeping good road drivers here has been a recent problem. They work on a percentage basis and when we get squeezed, they get squeezed. You don't lose drivers to the competition. They get delivery jobs with other kinds of companies, get out of the business.

Paul: Two things I'm afraid of — fire in a warehouse and losing a national account. We lose national accounts today because people out-discount us.

How did Corrigan Moving Systems get started?

Paul: My father was a lumberjack and when he heard about Ford paying $5 a day, he took his wife to Dearborn (from Quebec) to work in the factory.

Working 40 hours a week wasn't enough for him. He got a truck and started delivering ice to houses. He got another truck and finally had to quit Ford because he was too busy delivering ice.

The Depression was then. People said, 'Frank, I can't pay my rent. I have to move.' He said, 'This weekend I'll move you.' He hired neighbors to help with moving.

People paid with change. I had a little red wagon and took it to the

Make the Internet more fun by using SLIP or PPP

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

How can you connect to the Internet's fastest growing neighborhood — the colorful, graphical World Wide Web with sound-clips and video-clips as well? Right now, the cheapest and easiest way is with Point to Point Protocol (PPP) or Serial Line Internet Protocol (SLIP) connectivity.

Such connectivity is relatively cheap. And although its easier than other means, it's not easy. But the on-line user with patience and a willingness to cope with software configuration will eventually connect to an exciting and colorful electronic world that is truly an adventure.

Anyone with Internet access can, of course, access a WWW site by using the Lynx browser, which O&E On-line offers. But, as our users know, Lynx is a text-only browser and does not display the photographs, paintings, graphics, or present the sound or film clips. To enjoy the visual impact of the Web, users need a graphical browser such as Mosaic, Cello, Netscape or WinWeb, and these browsers require a SLIP or PPP connection.

Another advantage of a SLIP connection is it offers point-and-click utility and provides Internet multitasking in the same way Macintosh or Windows lets you run several programs the same time. You can be loading a large graphic from the Web and be downloading files by FTP directly to your hard-drive while at the same time reading your e-mail. The direct connection SLIP offers also drastically reduces line noise and makes it much easier and quicker to print documents while on-line.

From a user's standpoint, the future is much brighter than the present. Microsoft's much-heralded Windows 95 that should hit the market in August will have built-in SLIP and PPP connectivity as well as TCP/IP for standard Internet dial-up service. The OS2/Warp operating system also has built-in SLIP as part of its networking features. Future operating systems also will incorporate SLIP and/or PPP. It is possible to download SlipKnot and tie it into Lynx to get a SLIP-like connection, but that's beyond the scope of this column.

Anyone getting a SLIP or PPP connection will want to have a hard-drive with at least 20 megs free, a 16-bit serial port, and at least a 14.4 modem. To hear sound, you will need at least a 16-bit Sound Blaster-compatible card. And you will need to acquire a SLIP or PPP account from an Internet provider, such as O&E On-line. (Right now, if you connect via a Merit line, SLIP is not available.)

O&E On-Line sells SLIP connections for a one-time fee of $40 plus the regular on-line subscription rate. We offer shareware SLIP software free for users to download but strongly recommend users buy NetManage's Internet Chameleon or Spry's Internet in a Box or a similar Internet SLIP kit that includes the software documentation users will need. These kits will vary in price from $30 to $100. O&E On-line cannot provide software support, and so users will want manuals to refer to when configurating their software.

The primary software tool needed to get started is a dialer program to connect you to the Internet. The most popular ones for Windows users is Trumpet Winsock or Chameleon. Mac uses need the MacTCP extension and also may need MacPPP or InterSLIP (both available through FTP at merit.edu /pub/ppp/mac and ftp.intercon.com /Intercon/sales/Mac/Demo—Software). Mac users also can buy Internet SLIP kits, which we recommend.

The primary Windows software package we offer includes Winsock, Telnet, Eudora (for e-mail), FTP, Archie, WIRC, News, Finger, Mosaic, and Gopher. We also offer Chameleon and Mac software. Using FTP, Windows users can download Netscape, Cello and other SLIP tools. Netscape is available at ftp.mcom.com /pub/netscape.

Whatever dialer is used, the software must be configured with such things as an IP address, subnet mask, domain server, mail server, news server, and other such things. Following are some of the basic configuration settings needed: domain, oeonline.com; hostname, your username; IP Address, 1.1.1.1; Subnet mask, 255.0.0.0; Name Server, 35.1.1.42 on the top line, 35.8.2.42 on the second line, 0.0.0.0 for a third line if there is one; NNTP Server, oeonline.com; SMTP Server, oeonline.com; NNTP port (for news) 119; Pop3 port (for mail), 109.

Guess what? There's more. If you are asked for a script choice, choose Default. Trumpet Winsock assumes that your communications port is Port 2. If not, you must edit a file called "trumpwsk.ini" in the same manner as above. At the DOS prompt, change directory to C:\oeo linewinsock and type edit trumpwsk.ini. You will find a line that reads "slip-port=2" which you will want to change to 1, 3 or 4, depending on the number of the communications port your modem uses. Save the file and reboot.

To establish the SLIP connection, click on the Trumpet (Winsock) icon, go to the "Dialer" menu and select "Login." This invokes a script file to dial-up O&E On-Line, prompt your for your login name and password, and then establish the connection. The phone number in the script file is 591-0903 for Livonia. Another possible number to enter is 901-4711 for Birmingham. If you wish to enter the Birmingham number, then go to the "Dialer" menu, choose "Edit scripts" and replace the phone number.

Hopefully, this is all the configuration steps you need to take. If you have questions, you may call our operators at 313-953-2291 or technical support at 313-953-2288. Once the SLIP connection is established, you can use any of the SLIP software programs such as Mosaic, WIRC, FTP, etc. After you have gained experience using SLIP, you will want to customize your software package by selecting your favorites and discarding others. I tried Pegasus for e-mail, Cello for a Web browser and Winsock for a connection program. I settled on Chameleon, Netscape, Eudora and the other standard tools.

One major advantage is that you can read your e-mail off-line. When you are on-line, transfer your mail from Pine to Eudora. After you disconnect you can read your mail, print it out, respond, forward, etc. The next time you connect and ask Eudora to check for new mail, any message you write off-line will be sent.

SLIP will give you a totally new view of the Internet world. There is new software to learn, but the results are so exciting that the efforts will be worth it. Just be patient. You can get a jump on the world of tomorrow, but it takes patience, effort and perseverance. Good luck.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by e-mail with emory@oeonline.com, at voice mail at 953-2047 then dial 1910, or fax number 591-7279. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial (313)591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" and at "Key:" prompt type GL6NY2.

It wasn't until after World War II that we started working for big corporations. I went to Ford and they called us up the next day. That's where the business has grown — long-distance moving for corporations. GM is our biggest client now.

David: All the big companies in the area — Kmart, Chrysler.

How did you finance your expansion?

Paul: At first, we just used cash, then we found out Manufacturers Bank would loan us money.

David: We put a lot of money back into the company over the years. We're good customers, stable customers so they're anxious to loan us money.

Paul: We don't like to get too deep in debt. We want to make sure what we do we can pay for it.

What, if anything, have you done to expand your services?

Paul: We're trying to do related things. Eight years ago, we went into (corporate) records storage.

Michael: We already know how to store, we already have contacts in the city. We figured they trust us with household moves, maybe we should go into that.

Editor's Note: Corporate Relocation Services was formed to help mid and smaller-size companies with corporate moves. Corrigan Air and Sea Cargo ships parts and equipment overseas.

Do you have a business philosophy?

Paul: Take care of the customer. Whether it's the driver or switchboard operator, take care of the customer. You can't be any more simple than that.

As a result of tax law changes, you now may be entitled to deductions for moving costs even if you don't itemize on your tax return.

However, taxpayers need to be aware that Congress has placed greater restrictions on the types of moving expenses that qualify for a deduction.

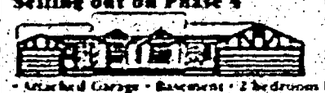

To qualify for a 1994 moving expense deduction, your new job location must be at least 50 miles farther from your old residence than your previous job. For example, if your former job was 10 miles from your old residence, in order to qualify for the deduction, your new job must be a minimum of 60 miles from your old residence. Before Jan. 1, 1994, the distance requirement was 35 miles.

It's not just how far you travel to your new job, but also how long you stay on the job that affects the deduction. The IRS requires that you be a full-time employee for at least 39 weeks during the first 12 months after arriving at the new location. If you and your spouse are both employed and you file a joint return, either spouse may satisfy the time requirement. The requirement is waived if you are involuntarily transferred to a new location, or lose your job for a reason other than willfull misconduct, or if you become disabled or die.

If you are self-employed, you must work full-time for at least 78 weeks during the 24 months after you arrive in the new area. In addition, you must work 39 weeks during the immediate 12-month period after relocating.

What if you moved during 1994 but haven't met the time test by the tax-filing deadline, including extensions? The Internal Revenue Service allows you to claim the moving expense deduction in anticipation of meeting the time test. So, if you met the distance test, but still need to work five more weeks to satisfy the time test, you may still claim the deduction on your 1994 return. However, if after filing your return, you fail to satisfy the time test (other than for allowable reasons), you must include the deducted amount as income in the year you fail to satisfy the test or file an amended return.

Although you can deduct automobile and lodging costs, you cannot deduct cost for meals incurred while traveling, the cost of living in temporary quarters, the cost of premove house-hunting trips, and cost related to selling an old residence or buying another one.

A single White, professionally employed, dedicated Christian male who is age 29, is praying for you to call. Could you be an answer to my prayer? Call and find out. Call Ext. 36942

PREFER NON-SMOKER
DWM 43, 5'10", 200 lbs., muscular, brown hair, green eyes. I have been told that I look like Nick Nolte. I have a lot of interests such as the outdoors. I am willing to try new things. I would like to meet a woman who is 34-45 years of age and weight proportionate. A woman who can appreciate an honest person who is monogamous. Height is not important. Children are not a problem. Call Ext. 36937

CHILDREN ARE OKAY
SWM 20. I am hoping to find someone that loves hockey and is interested in all kinds of music. Seeking a single White female 19-23. Call Ext. 36779

WRITES POETRY
SWM 6', brown hair, blue eyes, medium to slender build, employed. People say that I am good looking. I enjoy basketball and singing. I enjoy laughing and making people laugh. Looking for an attractive female 19-25 and sweet with a slender build. Someone who enjoys basketball and relaxing. Call Ext. 36906

PLEASE CONTACT ME
SM 28, 6', 198 lbs., brown hair, blue eyes. I am looking for someone who is 25-30 years of age to enjoy the summer with. If you like outdoor and indoor sports, then please give me a call. Call Ext. 36893

WELL EDUCATED
DWM 28, 6'2", blonde hair, blue eyes, medium to large build. I come as a package because I have a 2 year old son who is a big part of my life. I enjoy movies, evening walks, holding hands and dining out. I love to treat a woman in the way a woman should be treated. Call Ext. 36892

ROMAN CATHOLIC
SM 19, 5'11", 165 lbs., blonde hair, blue eyes. I enjoy movies, sports and quiet times. Seeking a caring and honest female 18-23 years of age for friendship and a possible relationship. Call Ext. 36754

LET'S TALK & ENJOY LIFE
DWM 43, 5'6", 150 lbs., physically fit, handsome, Italian, non-smoker, quiet natured, spontaneous. I can go from jeans to dress up and very easy to talk to. Seeking that one special person to enjoy life with. A slim White female who can relate. Call Ext. 36871

NEW TO THE AREA
SWM 38, 6'3", 210 lbs., brown hair, green eyes, professionally employed, smoker. I like hockey, quiet nights at home, cooking and watching videos. I am looking for a woman 30-45 years of age with the same likes. Race is no barrier. Call Ext. 36870

LIKES KIDS & ANIMALS
SM 30, 5'9", 165 lbs., brown hair, blue eyes. I like a variety of things including camping, fishing and hiking. I am looking for a female who is sensitive and caring. Weight really isn't a factor. Call Ext. 36869

WILL RESPOND TO ALL
SM 29, 5'7", 178 lbs., brown hair, brown eyes, body builder, considered cute. I am looking for a beautiful Christian girl who is within 5 years of my age. Someone who wants to spend time together and be friends first. Call Ext. 31542

SEEKS GOAL ORIENTED
SWM 23, 6', 180 lbs., brown hair, brown eyes, non-smoker. I am very easy to get along with. I enjoy doing all sorts of things, especially outdoors. If you are a single White female who is 20-27 years of age, I would love to hear from you. Call Ext. 36810

LOOKS NOT IMPORTANT
SWM 32, 6'2", black hair, hazel eyes, Catholic. I enjoy sitting by the water and a lot more. I am looking for someone to possibly spend the rest of my life with. Someone who is 25-32 years of age. Personality is important. Call Ext. 36809

ENJOYS DARTS
SM 22, 6', 200 lbs., brown hair, green eyes. I enjoy country music, bowling and spending quality time with someone special. I am looking for a single White female 18-25 and caring. Someone who is looking for a serious relationship. Call Ext. 36798
