Boy, 7, dies in shooting

A 7-year-old Westland boy died Wednesday afternoon after he was accidentally shot by his 10year-old friend.

According to Westland police Chief Emery Price, the two boys were at the 10-year-old's house on Dayton Court when they found a .22-caliber rifle. The 10-year-old fired the weapon, critically wounding the 7-year-old.

The victim was taken to Annapolls Hospital and then taken by helicopter to the University of Michigan Hospitals. He died while in surgery, according to Price.

Police were not releasing the names of the boys or the address of the house Wednesday afternoon. Their investigation of the incident continues, but Price said it appeared to be an accident.

Card snafu may be Rx for trouble

Westland city employees and family members who depend on medication, in some cases for lifethreatening illnesses, were shocked and outraged when they encountered difficulties under a new prescription plan.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A prescription card snafu affecting some 300 Westland city employees and retirees has sparked allegations that the city broke state laws and engaged in unfair labor practices.

'We're talking about a major, traumatic diseater here," Councilman Charles "Tray" Griffin said Tuesday, one day after he accused the city administration of "gross negligence."

Employees and retirees who needed prescriptions for illnesses as serious as cancer, heart disease and high blood pressure were "traumatized"

when they were told by pharmacists that they no longer had coverage, Griffin said.

Some employees were given the impression that they had no health insurance at all, he said.

City officials blame the twopronged problem on mistakes made by Blue Cross and on a misunderstanding by employees and retirees about new prescription cards from Value Rx, a company that was supposed to provide the same services that users had come to expect.

Mayor Robert Thomas has promised angry council members that no illegal attempt was made to cut health insurance and benefits for the employees. Moreover, he said the entire situation should be corrected by

"Everybody will be made whole," he said Monday night during a councli meeting.

A three-member panel including council members Sandra Cicirelli, Glenn Anderson and president Thomas Brown will investigate the problem, complicated though it is. Griffin said he fears a possible lawsuit.

Graffiti mars rezoning proposal

BY DARRELL CLEM

A Westland businessman said he was unfairly singled out when some Westland City Council members chastised him Monday night for not keeping graffiti removed from his property.

The dispute score when businessman Taher Rasheed appeared before the council to sak for a property resoning so that he could put in a 28space parking lot beside the Wayne Medical Center at Wayne Road and Gion, north of Palmer.

Instead, he came under fire from council members David Cox and Glenn Anderson for falling to keep graffiti off of his property and for wanting to build a wooden fence, rather than masonry, to shield the proposed parking lot from residential neighborn.

Efforts to keep the medical office's rear wall cleared of graffiti are consistently hampered by spray-painting vandals who make new rounds, Rasheed said. And although he agreed to council demands for the mesonry wall, he warned that graffiti problems could become worse.

"I cannot control people destroying property in the city of Westland or anywhere else in this country."

Rasheed said. He auggested that city officials beef up police patrols in the neighborhood.

Councilman Charles Pickering came to Rasheed's defense, telling his council colleagues, "I think we're holding the business owner hostage for problems that are beyond his con-

Cox and Anderson were joined by council members Sandra Cicirelli, Sharon Scott and Charles "Trav" Griffin in postponing the parking lot proposal for two weeks. Pickering and council president Thomas Brown cast opposing votes, saying they supported the resoning.

Brown told his colleagues that they strayed from the issue at hand, which was simply whether to rezone the property to allow a parking lot. Other issues, including the council's demand for a masonry wall, shouldn't have been raised until Rasheed returned with a site plan, Brown said.

City attorney Angelo Plakas warned of possible legal problems because of the council's efforts to link other issues to the rezoning.

"It almost smacks, in my humble opinion, of contract zoning," he said, referring to an illegal practice.

Charter school studied for Cherry Hill building

BY MARIE CHESTNEY BTATT WEITER

Righteen months ago, when the concept of charter schools burst on the scene in Michigan, two Livonia school district educators, Nazi Musleh and Gerry Parcheta, liked what they heard and saw.

So much so that they've spent months since laying the groundwork for a metropolitan Detroitarea high school that will emphasize math, science, and international and business studies.

That dream might become reality in the weeks shead if two events happen.

The first is getting approval for the Academy for Business and International Studies from the Central Michigan University Board of Trustees. Approval is expected to come Tuesday, April 28, said Musleh, a Detroit Public School teacher. Livonia resident and candidate in 1990 for a seat on the Livonia Board of Education.

The second hurdle is signing a lease for a high school building. The academy is negotiating to lease the former Cherry Hill High School building from the Wayne-Westland school district, Musleh

The proposal is the second planned in the Wayne-Westland school district. The school board is considering a request to use Monroe Blementary School in Wayne for a planned charter school under the principal of Chum Stockwell.

He is currently principal of the school which will be closed in June because of limited funds and a board decision to balance enrollments throughout the dis-

Fall opening planned

Musleh and Parchets, a retired Detroit Public Schools' administrator, a Livonia resident and a 1994 Livonia school board candidate, expect the Cherry Hillbased school to open in September with up to 300 ninth and 10th graders. If more than 300 students apply, the law requires students be picked by lottery.

The world is becoming too competitive to allow Michigan students to explore only the economic environs of their birthplace. They need the necessary tools to meet the challenges of the 21st Century. States and nations with the most advanced work forces will attract highwage jobs.'

Gerry Parcheta

The 11th grade will be added in 1996-97; the 12th grade, 1997-1998.

"The world is becoming too competitive to allow Michigan students to explore only the economic environs of their birthplace," said Parcheta, who will serve as principal. "They need the necessary tools to meet the challenges of the 21st Century. States and nations with the most advanced work forces will attract high-wage jobs. Strategists say it is urgent for Michigan to move rapidly to build that work force.

The academy will be at the forefront of that effort."

The co-founders expect to hire 14 full-time teachers before September.

Under current law, the state would pay about $5,500 for each student enrolled. Thus, the school's yearly budget would be about $1.6 million, said Musleh, who will serve as executive direc-

He called the four-year curriculum, with its heavy dose of math, science, languages and business subjects demanding and "very challenging."

"When I ran for the school board, I always said my philosophy was to empower parents to decide their children's future," Musich said. "Charter schools dovetail with my own philosophy."

Unlike local districts, students from all over Michigan are eligible to apply, he said. "There is no discrimination. This is not a neighborhood school. It will be a pain for parents, with no transportation provided."

Advance work coming

Before September, the co-founders say they have a mountain of work to accomplish: They must buy supplies and textbooks, negotiate contracts, hire staff, advertise the school, go over school records and admit the first year's Parcheta said the former Cherry Hill school, on Avondale between Inkster Road and Middlebelt in Inkster, is in good condition, having been well maintained by the Wayne-Westland district.

The building was closed as a high school 10 years ago when the Cherry Hill district was annexed to the larger Wayne-Westland district. It was later used as an alternative and adult education center until that use was dropped two years ago.

The school must conform to the curriculum dictates of the state. Musleh said. However, the academy will use a "unique new program not found in any other high school," he said.

"Students will learn business skills using mall-classroom learning centers' with a ministore, mini-bank, mini-Wall Street, mini-United Nations, science and math labs and information systems lab.

"In the mini-bank, students will learn math in a different way. rather than sit and listen to a lecture."

Rep. Kelly named to ethics panel

Rep. Thomas Kelly, D-Wayne, has been named to a newly formed Democratic Task Force on Government Ethics and Campaign Finance Reform.

The 17th House district, to which Kelly was elected last November, includes Garden City, Inkster and the southeast section of Westland.

In an announcement, Kelly said the focus of this committee will include conflict of interest and financial disclosure policies for elected officials, fair campaign practices, contribution limits, regulation of lobbyists and campaign finance reform.

"Our task force is looking for public input on how to rebuild trust in government," he said. "To do this, we will go to the people in cities all across Michigan." The first hearing was held at

very informative."

Kelly termed it a "success and Wayne State University President David Adamany, Macomb

County Prosecutor Carl Marlinga, Vicki Levengood of the Michigan Citizens Action, William O'Brien of Civic Searchlight, former State Rep. Leo LaLonde and former Macomb County Commissioner

Clifford Kabacinski testified. A reduction in the contribution limit and the institution of public campaign financing was suggested, along with the creation of an independent counsel for the enforcement of the campaign finance laws.

According to Marlinga, "current law divides enforcement in a crazy-quilt patchwork system where prosecutions are few and convictions are extremely rare because each office changed with enforcement is partisan." The proposed system would have the Michigan Supreme Court submit nominees to the Governor for selection with confirmation by the thirds vote.

An issue repeatedly heard by the Legislators is the need to hold candidates and independent outside committees accountable for their words and actions.

Members were presented with literature printed by outside organizations that totally distorted or outright falsified candidate's records. Rep. Kelly noted, "when an outside committee commits these acts, the damage has been inflicted before the victim can even respond." To address this problem a Clean Campaign Act with enforcement sanctions is proposed.

Kelly serves on the committee along with Reps. Pat Gagliardi of Drummond Island, Sharon Gire of Mt. Clemens, Candace Curtis of Swartz Creek, Laura Baird of Okemos, Mary Lou Parks of Detroit, Deborah Cherry of Burton, Howard Wetters of Kawkawlin, Lynne Martinez of Lansing, Karen Willard of Clay Township, Ling Brewer of Holt, Dennis Ol-House and Senate with a two-shove of Warren, Clark Harder of Owosso and Maxine Berman of Southfield

The next committee meeting will be April 24 in Flint, Rasheed agreed to the masonry wall, which Anderson said would better shield the property from residential neighbors. But Rasheed said the council should respond by increasing police visibility in the area.

'We'll do what we can," Anderson said.

Rasheed reminded council members that he, like homeowners, also pays taxes in Westland, but he said the council didn't seem concerned about his needs as a business owner.

Pickering said he believed that Rasheed was "singled out" for the graffiti problem.

Pickering warned that the council's decision to delay the rezoning could send a discouraging message to Wayne Road business owners who want to improve their properties.

The council is expected to reconsider Rasheed's request May

YMCA honors Taylor, Arthur

The Wayne-Westland YMCA will honor two of its volunteers -Tom Taylor and Fred Arthur at its 19th annual recognition dinner Thursday, April 27.

"Taylor and Arthur have each a lifetime commitment to volunteerism. Their efforts have made the Westland-Wayne area a better place for families," said John

"Many people know of Tom Taylor's achievements as mayor of Westland, as a county commissloner, and as a housing executive director, but few citizens know of his years of volunteer efforts for the community as well as this YMCA," Zech added.

Taylor has a strong commitment to the youth of the community, giving leadership to the Wayne Ford Civic League Teen program as its chair and to the Wayne-Westland Parents Drug Abuse Committee.

The YMCA benefited from Taylor's help when he provided strong help in raising the capital dollars to build the pool for the YMCA encouraging the majority of city employees to assist.

Returnables

Major collection: Bill. Bishop of Plymouth displays bags containing nearly 6,500 returnable beverage cans he dropped off at the Westland Meijer Store, on Newburgh and Warren Road last week. Bishop said he started collecting empty cans and bottles some eight years ago, collecting $30 worth in one hour. Later, he used money from the returnables to start his own business, Tyler Ceramic Contractors. The most recent collection took up most of the space in his car. But he enjoyed getting the $650 from the store.

Students shop for job skills

A group of Wayne-Westland school district students went "Krogering" last week, but they weren't shopping.

Instead, the students and coordinators of a special education program presented a plaque to show their appreciation to the supermarket, on Michigan Avenue near Wayne Road, for its efforts in helping them gain job skille.

The students are ninth-graders at Stevenson Junior High School and are involved in the district's community-based instruction program,

Program coordinators Dan Burtka of John Glenn High School and John Fulton of Wayne Memorial High said the pilot program was initiated about six weeks ago in a move to give atudents experience in job attendance, developing a good attitude and learning the quality and quantity of work needed by an employee.

At the Kroger store, the students were exposed to the management office as well as bagging, stocking merchandise and handling bottle returns.

The program gives the students the required six months of work training to qualify for a high school diploma.

In addition to the supermarket, the district has students in hospitals, health care organizations, pet stores, retail businesses and the Michigan Humane Society's Westland shelter.

Former Y director returns to western Wayne County

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STATE WRITER

In 1964, Hwa Stacy was a college student in Korea when political turmoil struck. Students picketed Ewha Women's University in Seoul, demonstrating against the government. Because of the nationwide conflict, colleges across the country had no choice but to shut down.

If she wanted to continue to pursue a college degree, Stacy had no choice but to leave her native country.

"We didn't know when they would open again and I didn't want to waste time," said Stacy, speaking from her new office at Livonia's Family Y.

Stacy, a Westland resident and former executive director of the Wayne-Westland YMCA, recently was named to replace Shirley Ritter, longtime head of Livonia's Y who was promoted to a post with the Metropolitan Detroit YMCA.

Thirty-one years ago, Stacy was accepted at two universities. Oxford University in England and American University in Washington, D.C. Because so many of her professors in Korea had attended American schools, she chose the school in the nation's capitol.

Digging in roots

Even though she knew little English, she set new roots in a new country at age 19. She has never gone back to Korea; her family has since moved to the U.S.

English was not my favorite subject, and it was a big challenge to learn it," she said. "I was good in German. Now I don't know that much German."

While at American University, Stacy began to hear about "Big 10"schools.

One of her professors had gradunted from Indiana University.

talked a lot about the school, and she liked what she heard. So Stacy transferred to the school in Bloomington, Ind., and graduated with a sociology degree in 1968.

For her first job beyond college, Stacy returned to an organisation she had worked for as a teenager in Korea - the YWCA. In Korea, she had been a YWCA teen loader. At the Indianapolis YWCA, she was hired to direct the teen program.

From Indiana to Detroit, her entire career has been spent in the Y organization, working her way up through the ranks.

"I believe in what the YMCA stands for responsibility for elders, Christian principals, leadership. We know we are making a difference. We help family members exercise and spend quality time together. We want everyone to be the best they can be. That's more important than whether they're going to be No. 1."

While still in Indianapolis, she met husband Ken. They married hard-working person who was alin 1972 and since have had two children, Michael, 15, who attends John Glenn High in Wayne-Westland Community Schools, and Bill, 21, a student at Eastern Michigan University.

On to Detroit

When her husband's accounting job brought him to Detroit, Stacy relocated her Y roots to the Detroit area, also.

Her first Y job locally was senfor program director of the Eastside Branch. From 1976-1981, she worked with both inner city families and families from the richest sections of Grosse Pointe.

From there she went to the Wayne-Westland branch, where she served as executive director from 1981-1987.

"She was a very organized, ways prepared," said Gail McKnight, who served as chairman of the Y Board from 1985. 1987. "She worked hard to retire the debt from the pool that was built in the late 1970s and she worked very hard on the expansion that went on under her leadership for the weight room."

To raise money Stacy came up with the idea of turning a barn on Y property into a haunted house, said McKnight, an 18th District Court judge in Westland.

At that time, money from the haunted house erased the Y's debt for building improvements. Now, proceeds from the annual the South Oakland Branch of the

One problem occurred when Blue Cross, in making coverage adjustments negotiated by some employee groups in collective bargaining sessions, lumped other employees in by mistake. Some changes were made for employees still awaiting contract settlements.

"These people, because of a Blue Cross misunderstanding, went along for the ride," said Kent Herbert, city personnel director.

Coverage to resume

Prescription coverage for 11 employees was dropped altogether and cannot be reinstated until May 1. Herbert said in a threepage memo to the council.

Another problem occurred when the city administration decided to change prescription cards from Blue Cross to Value Rx for employees and retirees, in hopes that the latter company could save the city as much as $100,000 a year, Herbert said.

Michigan-based Value Rx is the nation's leading independent pharmacy benefit manager, overseeing $1.3 billion in drug spending. New cards were sent to Westland employees and retirees before April 1.

Griffin said the administration's decision violated state laws that forbid benefits to be unilaterally reduced for retirees and employees.

Herbert said the prescription card changes didn't amount to a reduction of benefits, but merely a money-saving effort by using Value Rx. Moreover, he said, services were expected to be im-

Some employees and retirees, particularly those who live out of state, didn't know about the prescription card changes, and Herbert suspects that some may have thrown away their information packets and cards, believing them to be junk mail.

When users tried to use their old Blue Cross cards, however, they were told they didn't have prescription coverage. Griffin said some people had to pay for expensive medication.

"I hope that no people had severe medical problems because of this." the councilman said.

Problem to be resolved

Mayor Thomas has ordered proved through Value Rx, whose Herbert to restore all coverage to pen, city officials said.

Blue Cross, a task that Herbert said has been complicated by the insurance giant's bureaucracy. But the problem is expected to be resolved by May 1.

To help two employees who were going on vacation, Mayor Thomas said the city actually issued checks in case they needed money for prescriptions. The employees didn't have to cash the checks, he said.

Griffin said that, during his more than two decades of public service, he has "never heard of a more dire situation" than has occurred.

Griffin said he shudders to think of what might have happened if a family had experienced an emergency and was told at a hospital that they had no coverage. That apparently didn't hap-

Brown, the council president, questioned whether the adminiatration acted properly in conceiving the Value Rx plan. That will be one focus of the council inquiry, he said.

According to the city's contract with police officers, "equivalent coverage" may be provided by the city, if unions are supplied with copies of any proposals by new carriers. Unions can challenge such changes, blocking implementation and forcing arbitra-

No union challenges emerged. Herbert said, although city officials learned belatedly that firefighters hadn't received their notice through the city's internal mail system.

School code

What state law actually says

BY TIM RICHARD STAPY WAITER

Lawmakers and ideological groups are hard at work in Lansing revising the School Code. "Less bureaucracy, less red tape" is the cry.

But what is the School Code? What does this much bettered state law actually say? This analyels is based on an article by Linda L. Bruin, legal counsel for the Michigan Association of School Boards,

Q. What do the constitutions say?

A. The U.S. Constitution is siient on education.

The Michigan Constitution covers education in Art. VIII. It requires the Legislature to "maintain and support a system of free public elementary and secondary schools as defined by law." Then it assigns "leadership" and "sup-pervisory" responsibilities to an elected State Board of Education, which hires the superintendent of public instruction.

boards except to require that they don't discriminate.

It says little about local school

Q. How much school law is in the School Code? A. About 20 percent of law affecting schools is in the School Code; 5 percent is in the State Aid Act; 75 percent is other laws -Open Meetings Act, Freedom of Information Act, Municipal Finance Act, Uniform Budgeting Act, labor relations acts, safety standards laws, civil rights act, handicappers act, vehicle code, public health code, school construction code, Public School Employees Retirement Act and so on.

Q. What's the history of the School Code?

A. Currently, Michigan operates under Public Act 451 of 1976. The Legislature seems to amend it each year.

Earlier codes were written in 1955 and 1927. Each code establishes school districts, provides for their governance and sets instructional requirements.

Q. What kinds of things are in PA 451 of 1976?

A. In general, Michigan uses a system of enumerated powers school districts can do only what the law says they can do. For schools, there is nothing like municipal home rule, (Cities would argue that their powers, too, are being eroded by the Legislature.)

Part 1 consists of definitions and procedures for dissolving school districts. Parts 2-7 cover the powers and duties of four classes of school districts (based on population). Part 6 covers the new "charter academy" schools in two sections - depending on whether the state Supreme Court upholds the constitutionality of charter acadeParts 8-11 cover property trans-

Part 12 covers school elections. A House committee is working on lifting this section entirely out of the School Code and putting it in the Election Code, perhaps allowing as few as three elections a

Parts 14-16 are the heavy stuff: powers and duties of school boards, recalls, meeting requirements, kindergartens, at-risk students, bilingual teaching, mandatory courses (few), holidays, administration of medication to pupils, site-based decision making, millages.

Then there are administrators' contracts, teachers' contracts, construction of school buildings, asbestos removal, meal programs and competitive bidding.

Next are the 1990-93 reforms accreditation, state-endorsed high school diplomas, core curriculum, adult education, auxiliary services for non-public schools, sexual harassment, spanking, suspension, expulsion, transportation and contracts for yearbooks. Parta 17 and 26 — bonds and school taxes. Part 18 — tuition pupils.

Part 19-20 — textbooks and libraries.

Part 21 - health, physical education, sex education (remember the "Michigan Model"?), community swimming pools, and, authority to join the Michigan High

Schools seek summer tax levy

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

To avoid borrowing $4.9 million a year, the Regional Education Bervice Agency, which provides support services to Wayne County school districts, is asking that its 2.1-mill tax levy be collected in two installments.

Up until now, RESA's property tax has been collected in winter, which puts RESA in the position of having to borrow money every summer, said director of administrative services Mary Kauper.

Over the last three fiscal years, RESA has paid $116,000 to $129,000 in interest on money borrowed to make ends meet.

So RESA requests that its member school districts, including all Observer-area school districts, ask the city and township governments that collect their taxes to collect half of RESA's money in summer and half in winter.

"We're finding support for it," Kauper said, "Certainly it's not universal."

So far, of 51 tax collecting entities in Wayne County that received RESA's request, 31 have responded.

Only Dearborn has agreed to collect half in the summer and half in the winter.

(including Detroit, which represents 40 percent of RESA's funding) have said they will continue to collect 100 percent of RESA's millage in winter. Fourteen others have said they will collect 100 percent of RESA's millage in the summer. In Observer communities, Livonia, Westland and Redford and Canton townships will collect 100 percent of RESA's millage in the summer. Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Garden City have not responded to RESA's request, Kauper said.

Fourteen local governments

It is not yet known if the number of local governments collecting RESA's millage in the summer will be sufficient to forestall future borrowing.

County parks sponsor Walk Michigan

Celebrate spring with a lunch time walk at the Walk Michigan kickoff.

The Walk Michigan kickoff will take place Wednesday, May 10 between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Walkers can register at the Wayne County building or the county's Neudeck building.

There will be a choice of scenic downtown walk routes between one and one and a half miles. The Walk Michigan kickoff is sponsored by Wayne County Parks, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan, and Michigan Recreation and Parks Association.

Walk Michigan is an annual fitness program organized to promote good health and to highlight the many recreational facilities in the state. Walkers of all ages have an opportunity to participate in walks sponsored by their local recreation departments, while enjoying Michigan's outdoors.

"This is a great chance for residents in Wayne County, and from across the state, to visit our beautiful park system and see what we have to offer in terms of recreation and nature," said Edward McNamara, Wayne County executive.

Walk Michigan started in 1985 as a cooperative effort between Michigan Recreaction and Park Association and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan. Today, thousands of walkers from across the state participate in the program.

One of the most practical forms of cardiovascular exercise, walking reduces blood pressure, conditions the heart and lungs, improves oxygen consumption, burns calories and strengthens muscles and bones.

For each sanctioned Walk Michigan event, participants can register to win a trip for two to Mackinac Island and the Governor's Annual Mackinac Bridge walk on Labor Day morning, compliments of Michigan Recreation and Parks Association, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, Blue Care Network and Reshok shoes. There is no cost to participate.

Q. What could happen if the present School Code were repealed?

A. Senate leaders would like to repeal it now and replace it later. Critics say that's like giving a used car salesman a blank check. The House is moving much more gradually.

MASB's Bruin says one option is to limit the powers delegated to school districts and give them an opportunity to write local codes. That would match the current political rhetoric of "streamlining" and "fewer state controls."

But she cautions: "Be somewhat wary." Reason: The 1994 Proposal A funding reforms mean 80 percent of K-12 funding comes from the state. The Legislature is inclined to use "incentive financing for schools" — rewarding or punishing local activities by giving or withholding money. From 1984-93, the Legislature changed funding requirements at least six times

Bruin points to two other possible results:

Term limitations will mean more turnover in education committees, and "school districts will find it increasingly difficult to conduct a coherent educational program."

B If there is less statutory language, often there is more administrative rule making. For example, the School Code now has seven pages of law on special education; departmental rules, however, cover 70 pages. "When this happens, power shifts from one brnach of state government to another (from legislative to executive), but not from one level of government to another."

Parents dislike 'waiting game' ollowing my April 8 column, lots of readers offered advice on the waiting game apparently being played out in doctors' waiting rooms everywhere. Comments have been edited for space.

Roberta, a Canton mother of four: "I'm tired of doctors treating us like we don't have schedules that are important. People depend on us just as much as they depend on professionals."

Kathleen of Livonia: "It's happened to me on countless occasions. The only thing to do is quit going to that doctor. Also, you should've mentioned the doctor's name.

Karen in Redford: "The receptionist was rude to you and I would've told her so. They think nothing of letting you sit there for hours. You were nice in not saying anything and that's more than what I would've done."

The doctor missed the appointment, not you. But you can't say anything because the next time they'll make you wait longer."

From Pat who works in a medical office: "Forget the piano lesson, forget the gymnastics and forget baking the brownies. You stay there and you wait."

Dorothy's story: "After 21/2 hours of stewing and harrumphing and my third-grade son crying (because of an ear infection), the doctor spent five minutes with him. My son said, 'For this we had to wait 21/2 hours in the waiting room? My Mom's time is just as valuable as your time. The doctor looked at me and then wrote 'no charge' across the bottom of the sheet and said, 'You're

Lack of money is obstacle to health

Andrea Slayton knows about good and bad days. She has diabetes, the cause of her problems and the reason why she would like a pancreas transplant just as soon as she raises more than $100,000.

By Linda Ann Chomin Special Writer

Andrea Slayton, an insulin-dependent diabetic for the last 22 years, is struggling for the right to have a healthier life.

Although her resultant condition is not life-threatening at this stage, the 38-year-old Westland resident, forced by the disease's serious complications, has made up her mind to undergo a pancreas transplant despite forebodings, ringing from a segment of the medical community.

The major obstacle is it will take $32,500 just to get on the waiting list for a donor organ. Costs range from $75,000 for an uncomplicated transplant with no return hospitalizations to $220,000 for a transplant with repeat hospital visits.

The estimates do not include doctors' fees or medications.

Andrea's husband, Dave's, Central States health insurance policy through Teamsters Local No. 299 will cover only $50,000 of the cost, Lifelong anti-rejection therapy after the transplant will cost an additional $2,000 per month and is not covered by the insurance, either.

Still determined

Nonetheless, Slayton is determined to have the transplant. Over the years, she has suffered many complications due to the disease. She has developed diabetic retinopathy which required 12 laser surgeries and a vitrectomy that left her with a great deal of scar tissue and "holes" in her vision; neuropathy in her lower extremities, resulting in a loss of sensation and several broken toes and bone infections, and a variety of other related afflictions, such as choking while talking and eating.

In turn, the disease changed her lifestyle. She no longer drives. Scheduling long-term plans or activities with husband Dave, 9-year-old stepson David and 14-year-old daughter Sonya McConchie is nearly impossible because she never knows whether it will be a good day, healthwise.

The constant "highs and lows" caused by the insulin finally drove Slayton to check herself into the University of Minnesota Hospital for a pancreas transplantation work-up in February.

'I'd like to be able to go to the circus and enjoy baseball games with my family," Slayton said.

"It's the little things that are tough," added her husband. "We don't want to ask for help. We just want what a lot of people take for granted, some semblance of a normal life."

Fund-raising efforts have proven ineffective so far. Canisters placed at various locations in Livonia, Canton and Westland collected $5,000. Another $1,000 came from members of Dave's Teamster local.

A walkathon to raise funds for Slayton's pancreas transplant is scheduled for Saturday, May 13, at Rochester Park, University Drive and Rochester Road in Rochester. Slayton's cousin Jim and wife Pat have undertaken production of the event, which will begin with a potluck lunch at noon.

"I want to make a difference in someone else's life." said Pat Bruneel of Rochester Hills, "There's all the other walkathons for the major organizations but with Andrea's it is where we can see it will make a difference. People can walk as much or little as they like."

Bikers, volunteers needed for Warm-Up Magic Ride

If you can ride a bike, walk a path or collect pledges, then you can prevent child abuse in the community through the Southeast Michigan Warm-Up Magic Ride for Kids.

The 1995 Warm Up Magic Ride, a bleycle fund-raising tour, will be held Saturday, May 20, at the Canton Township Recreation Complex. The ride is a fun family event with walking and blking routes, music, children's activities and food.

The ride is sponsored by the Child Abuse and Neglect Council in Oakland County, Child Advocacy Network in Monroe County, Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County and Washtenaw Area Council for Children in cooperation with Magic Ride founder Debbie Stabenow and the Magic Ride Michigan Bicycle Tour. All registration fees and pledges collected directly benefit the sponsoring child abuse coun-

Registration will be 7-11 a.m. at the Canton Township Recreation Complex, Canton Center Road south of Cherry Hill Road. The ride is for people of all ages. (Children under age 12 must be accompanied by an adult.)

The preregistration cost (which guarantees lunch) will be $10 without the T-shirt and $15 with the T-shirt before May 12. It will be $15 without and $20 with the

T-shirt after that date. There also is a $40 family rate (for four members) that includes four registrations and four T-shirts before May 12 and increases to $50 after that date. Lunch will be served 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with those who reglater the day of the ride fed on a first come, first served basis.

Bike routes follow paved and hard-packed dirt county roads through Wayne and Washtenaw counties. Routes are set up in increments of 5, 10, 15, 25, 35 and 50 miles. Walking loops are suitable for walkers, strollers and children on trikes. Bach loop is .08 mile.

For people wishing to make a pledge without riding or walking, call the Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County. The council has a designated rider who collects "wandering" pledges.

The Southeast Michigan Warm-Up Magic Ride for Kids is one of seven such events affiliated with the Magic Ride-Michigan. The Magic Ride-Michigan is held in June and the Warm-Up Rides are to create awareness and enthuslasm for the statewide event.

All funds raised by bikers and walkers through pledges collected are returned to the child abuse. council in the county that the biker either lives in or designates. About 800 bikers and 100 volunteers turn out for the Warm-Up Ride, which has raised approximately $96,500 since 1990. The funds are used to support child abuse prevention programs in the counties of the sponsoring coun-

Volunteers are still needed to staff the registration area and food tents, act as crossing guards, and drive a mini van around the route to help bikers in need. Voluntoor shifts vary from morning to afternoon and volunteers receive a T-shirt and lunch.

The ride is in need of business and corporate donors to underwrite the event. Financial and in-kind contributions are always. welcomed. The ride is in need of 721-5901.

"We waited six hours with a 3year-old with his forehead cut open and bleeding. He eventually ot seven stitches."

Jacqueline: "It's very frustrating waiting. We grin and bear it." Susan: "I have six children and I've many times experienced what you wrote about." Medical receptionists are a little too impressed with their jobs. They need to be reminded we pay for medical services. They're not doing us a favor just by being at work that day." Adrienne in Plymouth: "You have to understand the malpractice standpoint. If your son would've had a bad reaction (to the Amoxicillin) what would've happened to your physician?"

A Livonia mother of five: "Last week, I waited 45 minutes in the waiting room with my three youngest children (ages 6, 4 and 2); two were sick. Then another half bour in the examining room before seeing the doctor. Three days later, my little girl, who'd been in that waiting room, came down with pink eye. She picked that up in the waiting room while walting."

"I'm in the medical profession. You can't expect us to change things for you just so things will fit in your life more perfectly."

> "When has this NOT happened to me? Once, after sitting there for two hours I found out they'd forgotten to even pull the chart to give to the doctor."

"I'm a receptionist. My suggestion (is) let the receptionist know your timetable. Sometimes doctors' offices can work you in sooner."

"I waited almost an hour. I suggested bringing in a doctor especially for (cases like) earaches that suddenly crop up, the very raw throat. They did bring in another doctor later. It seems to have cut down on the wait."

"I work in a doctor's office. You've got to cancel car pool, piano lesson."

Anthony J. of Plymouth: "The receptionist was at fault."

Gordon, a dad: "If the doctor's running 20-30 minutes late, (my wife and I) tell them we're going to be 20-30 minutes late. Your time is as valuable as the doctor's. Submit a bill to them . . consider going to Small Claims Court over it. You didn't miss this appointment; you were there. Your doctor missed the appointment. And thanks for getting this conversation going."

When she opened the door of her small, one-room hospice office 10 years ago, Sister Mary Giovanni did not realize all of the doors that would open during the next decade. The idea of hospice, a concept of care designed to provide support for people during their final stages of living, was inspired in the United States by Dame Cicely Saunders, founder of the hospice movement in England.

In 1974, Sister Giovanni found herself intrigued by this unique type of health care and traveled to St. Louis to attend a seminar by Saunders.

After 11 years of detailed research and preparation learning about hospice and pain management, Sister Giovanni, under the sponsorship of the Pelician Sisters, founded Angela Hospice Home Care in 1985.

During the first year, Sister Giovanni and her hospice team cared for 20 patients and their families. Since then, it has grown to serve more than 1,500 people facing incurable illnesses. In 1994 alone, the Livonia-based program provided care for more than 525 people throughout southeastern Michigan, more than twice the number in 1993.

In addition, Angela Hospice opened the first free-standing inpatient hospice facility of its kind in Michigan in 1993 for people who have no one to care for them or nowhere to go.

"As I reflect upon the first 10 years of Angela Hospice, I realize that without the dedication of our staff and volunteers and the support of the communities in which we serve, Angela Hospice would not be where it is today," she said at the recent National Association for Home Care conference in Chicago, where Giovanni received a special award for her contributions, both locally and nationally, to hospice care.

"As we move into our 10th year of service, we remain dedicated to our mission that our patients will not die alone or in pain."

It has been Sister Giovanni's dedication that has inspired the addition of home health and pediatric care to the residential inpatient care, hospice home care, spiritual care, bereavement care and AIDS programs Angela Hospice already offers. Sister Giovanni said the programs were necessary in order to offer a complete and comprehensive approach to hospice care.

Angela Hospice has been praised for its work by President Bill Clinton, Gov. John Engler and Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara. It also receives inquires almost every week from people both in and out of the state wanting to start hospice programs, or from existing hospice providers inquiring how to implement new programs, according to Tracy Schroen-Muscat, director of public relations.

"It is in maintaining the continuity of care and whole family focus that makes our program so unique," said Sister Giovanni. "We are delighted that there are a growing number of hospice providers who are interested in our approach to care."

As the public's awareness of hospice continues to grow, Angela Hospice looks forward to another 10 years of service to the communities of southeastern Michi-

According to Dr. Scott Jacober, president of the American Diabetes Association's Michigan chapter, even with a pancreas transplant, the prognosis may not be all that bright. The side effects of the immunosuppressants can cause severe medical problems.

"Pancreas transplants are not common at all," said Jacober of West Bloomfield. "The people who undergo them usually are diabetics with end-stage renal disease. Even with a pancreas transplant, a patient with diabetic retinopathy can continue to worsen. despite the cure of their dia-

Slayton's reply is a simple one: "If it's not going to make my eyes get better would I rather live with the side effects of anti-rejection medication? Yes. It's worth it not to go through the high and low blood sugars."

Registered nurse and transplant specialist Nancy Turza at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in Detroit tends to agree with her. St. John is one of three sites in the area performing pancreas transplants.

"Nothing in life is free; everything's a trade-off. Even though pancreas transplantation began in the 1960s, it's still considered experimental, and after the surgery, the immunosuppressants can affect their kidneys," said

Dear Lorene spoke recently with my hrother about an analysis of his writing. He found your analysis to be very accurate. I am very interested to see just how my writing

Today's large, unique handwriting was written by a young man who is capable of surveying large issues and taking in the total picture. Even the details are noted, but they can be a little annoying at times.

He does not want to be held. back by past roots or traditional mores. He wants to be outstanding and receive recognition and acceptance from others.

He can organize his work as he goes along rather than spending time and energy to plan ahead. He has the ability to develop alternatives in problem solving and his focus is toward efficiency. He can get right down to the important aspects and does not waste time on the unessential.

There are some inconsistencies in this handwriting which lead me to conclude that he may still be in a state of flux about some issues or elements in his life.

This young man is easily offended by real or imagined personal criticism. Censure tends to make him defensive. He may try to avoid situations or relationships where he could be reproached. To be able to accept criticism constructively is a priceless asset and can be a test of one's maturity. The other side of this coin suggests that compliments can be music to his ears.

When comparing his signature with the text of his writing, there are differences which hint that he may not be as self-assured as he would like to be perceived by oth-

His style is individualistic. He has a strong desire to lead, be in control and have his own way. This may not always be obvious to others as he has quite a way with words. His tactful manner can help him promote smooth relationships. At other times, however, he can be direct and to the

A sense of adventure also rides on his handwriting. He is eager to see what lies ahead and can be active and social. He also needs time for solitude. Mood swings can surface at times.

Seemingly, he does not "put all his cards on the table." He may be more interested in where he is going than in how he gets there.

Some unfulfilled signs turn up in his handwriting. Perhaps he does not always learn from past mistakes.

This young man has a keen exploratory, analytical thinking pattern. He likes to explore new areas and then must analyze his findings. His foremost interest is in analyzing cause and effect. His inquiring mind wents reasons and answers. He is not gullible but tends to be open-minded in many areas. He will probably go on learning new things all of his

Board elections

Few school candidates appear

onday, June 12, will be a bit more interesting for Westland voters than in past years.

There are races for school trustees in the Wayne-Westland school district, which serves most of the city, and the Livonia district, which serves the northern section of the community.

In the Wayne-Westland board race, there is a stark contrast, with only three people running for two four-year terms. In past years, there was always a full field of candidates. seeking board seats.

But the Observer isn't surprised at the small number of candidates this spring.

With all the financial and organizational problems facing the district, many potential candidates decided they didn't want any part of it.

One factor is the sniping of board members who sometimes display a distrust of each other and the administration. Another factor is the long list of problems facing the district - working with a new superintendent, replacing more than half of the elementary principals and some 18 percent of the teaching staff, and finding money to pay for the educational programs and services that students need and want.

No wonder that current trustees Laurel Raisanen and Vicki Welty decided not to run for a second term.

The three candidates on the upcoming ballot are David James and Realtor; Martha Pitsenbarger, a physical therapist with an occupational health care organization; and Ed Turner, a retired American Airlines employee and current Westland Cable TV Commission chairman.

guised as public service.

In the next few years, the board of education will be making a series of difficult decisions in balancing the educational needs of students with available dollars.

Politically, only Turner has some name visibility through his cable commission role and being secretary to the Wayne-Wayne Junior Miss organization.

But Pitsenbarger and Jones may make up for that with plenty of volunteer help from people familiar with the school district and campaigning.

Things are about the same in the Livonia Board of Education race where one person, Dan Lessard, is unopposed for the remaining one year of a term and three others are running for two four-year terms.

For the two four-year terms there are two incumbents and one challenger in the race. One incumbent, Jim Watters, is a veteran of the board serving as president this year. The other, Frank Kokenakes, is a newcomer who was appointed to fill the remaining two years of a term. The third candidate is Patrick Nalley.

This is one time of the year when voters with concerns have the opportunity to ask questions and have a greater assurance of being listened to. It's one situation when a concerned resident attends a board meeting and asks a a question to the entire board, and it's quite different when the same resident can ask the same question one-on-one in a campaign situation. So look for candidate meetings or sessions when candidates will be appearing at local PTA meetings or similar gatherings.

And in case you think there's plenty of time to question candidates or learn about them, as of today, only 53 days exist for that task.

ast November's election resulted in Re-D.C., and in Lansing. While these results were neither smashing majorities, and voter dissatisfaction, the end result put Republicans in power, and, as usual, working men and women, the poor, women and children, and minorities are the losers,

In Washington, the Republican ruled House has voted to cut school lunches; cut nutrition programs for pregnant women and their babies; cut the summer jobs program for the poor as well as retraining programs; cut college loan programs; cut supplementary security programs for poor children with spina bifida and multiple sclerosis.

These, disastrous for those most in need, resulted in a reduction of less than 1 percent of the federal budget! Oh, yes, don't forget that this Congress also voted to cut a minuscule tax against the wealthiest, and proposed a tax cut of $500 per child on families making tract with America (read that Contract on America) which failed was term limits. For limiting their incumbency!

Meanwhile, back in Michigan, Governor. Engler's tax rebate will go to the wealthiest 1 percent and business. Even those taxes were collected mainly from individual taxes, not businesses. This means that here in Garden City, less than 1 percent of our residents will receive cuts. The rest of us will realize $15 a year from the governor's rebate.

Now, the governor has appointed a former executive of the insurance industry to be a watchdog over insurance companies. A classic example of the wolves watching over the sheep!

Perhaps in 1996 the many Democrats who stayed away from the polls will realize the cost of their 1994 absence. Better late than never, but already too late for millions of working men and women and those less advantaged than the fat cats who support these Republican programs hat can we do to alleviate the suffering of hundreds of thousands of the world's children?

Every hour of every day, helpless, little children are starving to death in some parts of the world.

Television and newspapers constantly remind us, with graphic pictures, of babies and small children who are skin and bones.

We, in America, who are blessed with an abundance of good food, may find it difficult to comprehend the suffering these kids must endure as a way of life.

Malnutrition makes them an easy target for all sorts of diseases to ravage them.

Somehow we must find it within our hearts, and wallets, to take action against this scourge on humanity. Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kindgom of Heaven."

Will we, the believers, one day stand in judgment and be held accountable for this sin of omission? This situation can be changed but we must act now. All of us working together can make inroads on this monstrous plague of shame that has enveloped parts of the world,

Children, God bless them, are the future of the entire world, and our own kids will inherit the lasting effects of this burden of shame.

Ross Rhinehart, Livonia

input is not wanted

his quote is from your Page 1A article on Thursday, April 13, describing Monday's successful Livonia Public Schools millage election, "... no threats, no list of things that would be cut."

What is unfortunate is that threats have been made so many times in the past, they are now just assumed. Please don't imply that voters gladly passed another millage increase because they are so happy with the way our schools are being run. They gave in because they knew if they didn't, the administration would simply take the money they wanted from the programs that would impact the students the most, wait a reasonable length of time and propose the millage increase again.

Although our teachers and administrators are continually saying they need the involvement of concerned parents, it is obvious that the only thing they really want is cash, handed over with no strings attached. Just try voicing your opinion about how programs are being handled, or even dare to ask questions, and see how much they care about your interest.

Join a booster club to help support the activities that the students actually enjoy. (You know, the ones that get slashed every time the money gets a little tight). But please don't even dare to suggest how funds might be spent or question how they have been or are being spent.

Our Mission: "Because we publish community newspapers, as think about community journalism in a fundamentally different way than our bigger competition. POINTS OF VIEW

Parents run into trouble when they try to be 'pals'

t has been said that we are in the midst of the "Communication Age." At work, we are taught team building skills and participatory management strategies which emphasize open dialogue. In school, we teach our children how to express themselves clearly and effectively with both the written and spoken word. The value of building relationships through open dialogue is infused into professions as diverse as sales, law enforcement and medicine. Success in these fields is perceived as dependent upon our ability to establish amiable interpersonal relationships, particularly on a peer, collegial, or "one on one" level.

It isn't surprising, therefore, to see that our view of the parent/child relationship has been altered to adjust to the '90s expectation for amiability at all cost.

This egalitarian view may be creating difficulties within the parent/child relationship, however. Willard Hartup, a noted social psychologist, states that children need and benefit from two distinct types of relationships: vertical and horizontal.

Vertical relationships are those that typically exist between student and teacher, employer and employee, and, yes, between parent and child. They are characterized by the presence of leadership and influence or authority.

Horizontal relationships are those that generally exist among friends, neighbors and co-workers. Equality is their key element. Hartup explains that to grow and develop into healthy and well-adjusted adults, access to both types of relationships is essential for children to experience.

Prior to the post-'60s era, there was never any doubt that parental relationships were vertical in nature. Parents were rule-makers and enforcers. Fortunate children received generous doses of love along with the structure and limits established by their parents. Unluckier kids got the guidelines through stern looks and rigid expectations alone. In either case, it remained clear that parents weren't peers. friends or pals. We knew what to expect from them.

Where did this distortion of the parental role come from? Aside from the '90s pre-occupation with amiable communication mentioned earlier, it. may have to do with changing social attitudes about values at the time when today's parents were children.

QUEST COLUMNIST

John Farrar

Parents who grew up in the lete '60s and early '70s experienced what may have been the most turbulent and disquieting of times in American history. Discontent over an unpopular war and drug-induced "mind expansion" led young people to question everything while adults were cautioned not to "impose their values on their kids." The implication of this "hands-off" parenting strategy was that, if left to their own natural instincts and devices, children would grow into whole and psychologically healthy individuals. This view held that sound values were somehow natural or innate.

The truth, of course, is that values come from some external source. If children, both small and teen-aged, aren't taught values from parents, they will receive them from some other source. In other words, what they don't get from Mom and Dad they will incorporate from Madonna, or Kurt Corbain, or Beavis & Butthead. Or maybe just the kids from school who never want to spend any time in your house, preferring to go to the mall.

Hartup's premise about vertical relationships believes that children need leadership and values from the significant adults in their life. These values are taught with an assumption that wiser and experienced adults can impart valuable messages to their children.

When adults seek to be their children's friends, confidents, and buddies, they lower themselves into a horizontal relationship structure. They voluntarily disenfranchise themselves from their key role for a far less important, and redundant, one.

The discussion of horizontal versus vertical relationships can be expressed in a most simple way: parents should not try to be their children's best friend. While few parents would disagree with this notion on an intellectual level, examination of their behavior may reveal some contradictions.

When parents say "yes" to their children's requests (or demands) when their instincts tell them to say "no," the need to be liked may overwhelm the desire to parent effectively. Dr. David Elkind, in addressing the unfortunate phenomenon of parental permissiveness, observes that "parents are so intent on giving their kids what they want that they deny them what they need."

When children have no adult leadership, especially from parents, they become completely vulnerable to the caprice and influence of the peer group. It's time that mothers and fathers live up to the responsibilities of that most demanding of all vertical relationships — being a parent.

Book reveals the thinking behind Durant's rhetoric

he answer came in a book sent to me by a West Bloomfield reader, a lady I knew from grade school but hadn't seen in umpteen

The question: Why was Clark Durant, the buck private who became commanding general of the State Board of Education his first day on the job, so obsessed about parents, parents, parents in the rambling Vision, Philosophy and Mission statement he ramrodded on Jan. 19?

What Johnny Shouldn't Read — Textbook Censorship in America was written in 1992 by Joan DelFattore, professor of English at the University of Delaware. The author has been honored by the American Educational Research Association and the American Library Association's Intellectual Freedom Roundtable.

Starting with the discovery that high school anthologies had whacked out 300 lines of Shakespeare's immortal Romeo and Juliet, DelFattore explores three federal court cases in which groups of parents complained that schoolbooks violated their fundamentalist religious beliefs.

The Diary of Anne Frank, used in an eighth-grade reader, came under attack because, in the play text, Anne says, "Oh, I don't mean you have to be Orthodox...I just mean some religion . . . it doesn't matter what. Just to believe in something." It was dreadful, said the parents, that kids should know someone else in the world deesn't see life their way.

DelFattore's cases came from Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana. What do they mean to Michigan taxpayers and voters?

Summarizing one plaintiff's rambling testimony, DelFattore writes: "When (Rebecca) Frost first brought up the idea of teaching Sarah herself, the school officials asked what credentials she had. She replied that she was a mother, and that should be enough. The plaintiffs' anti-intellectualism

. . . also prevented them from being concerned about teaching qualifica-

Have you heard anyone in high Michigan office knocking teacher certification laws?

In the Tennessee case, the parents who felt their religion was offended wouldn't consider sending their kids to parochial schools. "What they wanted," says DelFattore, "was a little private school within the public school, where taxpayers' dollars would have been used to prevent the protesters' children from learning that other people think differently from their parents."

You think it can't happen in a sophisticated industrial state like Michigan? Think again. What do you suppose is the motivation behind the "charter academy" effort? Why are right-wingers drafting constitutional amendments to allow parochiaid? Why is Clark Durant so obsessed by parents, parents, parents?

Education debate is about politics as much as schools

Tis education forms the common mind; Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined. - Alexander Pope

What children learn in school helps define what they are when they grow up.

And that's why the current battle over educational standards in Michigan is only partly about schools. Despite plous protests, it's also about hard-ball politics.

Here's an example:

Under the leadership of Clark Durant, the State Board of Education is currently on the cutting edge of conservative politics in our state. At its meeting this week, the board intends to hire Michael David Warren to review the Michigan School Code and make recommendations for change to the board. (Remember, Gov. John Engler called for repeal of the School Code in his January state-of-the-state address.)

Who is Michael David Warren? What are his credentials? How did he get this sensitive job?

In an interview with him last week, I learned Warren is a young lawyer who received his B.A. in history from Wayne State University and his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1992. He clerked for Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley and now works for a Detroit law firm. He has never taken an education course nor taught children in a class-

Warren was recommended to Durant by Gov. Engler's deputy legal counsel, Michael Gadola. Now, Gadola is also president of the Michigan chapter of the Federalist Society, which Warren calla "a libertarian conservative society of attorneys that develops conservative policy and debates liberals."

Guesa what: Warren was the vice chair of the U-M chapter of the same Federalist Society, In other words, this bright and personable young man is part of the right-wing farm team.

OK. That's politics. Anyhody you hire has to come from somewhere.

So what does Warren want to do in his new

He thinks "there is room for change in the School Code." He's undecided about whether there should be statewide assessment of what kids actually learn "because some of the questions in the MEAP test (the current statewide nest vehicle) are value laden." Which cour? He couldn't remember without looking through his files.

He wants to develop a code that "empowers parents, teachers and children to get the highest possible educational quality." This phraseology is often used on the right as a way of saying that there should be no educational standards in Michigan schools beyond what parents want.

So here we have an enormous debate taking place largely in a media vacuum about the future of our schools and our kids. And we have the very political head of the State Board of Education selecting for a pivotal job a product of the right-wing farm team. Don't tell me that this debate is not political to the core!

Public education in Michigan today is at very great risk.

The people who want to eliminate statewide learning standards and (maybe) spend public funds on private schools are smart, tough politicians. The folks who want a mandated statewide model curriculum are all too often fuzzyheaded educational theorists or marginalized representatives of the Michigan Education Asnociation with no political credibility.

The people in this state who believe that a world-class public school system of statewide assessment had better start speaking up. The hour is late.

Tainted medication poses threat for local woman

By Sun Mason Staty Writer

Marie Naster knows that sooner or later, she will die because of the emphysema that is slowly taking her breath away. She has learned to live with the condition caused by a rare genetic defect in her body chemistry, called Alpha 1-Antitrypein Deficlency (AAT).

With the help of inhalers and a self-administered plasma-derived product called Prolastin, the progression of the disease has slowed. She figures she's about the same as three years ago and that without the Prolastin, she would be "in a wheelchair or dragging around an oxygen bottle."

The drug has been a godsend for the Canton Township resident, but now it may include another death sentence. In November, the manufacturer, Miles Inc., initiated a "voluntary withdrawal" of 23 lots of Prolastin, made from plasma-derived protein purchased from the American Red Cross and Baxter Healthcare that had been donated by two individuals who were diagnosed with Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease, a rare neurodegenerative disease. One of the individuals had been a blood donor for 12 years.

In a Nov. 17 statement, Miles president Ralph M. Galustian said that "although there is no scientific evidence suggesting that CJD is transmitted through blood products, we have taken this precaution in an effort to ensure the greatest measure of safety for patients."

The recall and Galustian's statement are little comfort for Naster, who infused herself with one of the recalled lots last March,

"I'm dealing with something that's going to kill me sooner or later and now I have to deal with this," she said. "If I have an odd itch or headache that more severe than usual . . . I'll always wonder; there will always be that niggling thought of if I have it."

AAT deficiency is an inhe disease in which not enough alpha 1-proteinase inhibitor is produced to deactivate enzymes that keep the lungs clean by dissolving the protein invaders and which can also destroy the walls of the tiny air sacs in the lung.

For Naster and some 1,700 people across the country, Prolastin replaces the missing AAT. A sterile preparation of purified human alpha 1-proteinase inhibitor, it is made from pooled human plasma.

Naster uses 20 vials of Prolastin each month, administering them intravenously through a port hidden under the skin of her arm. Her medical expenses run $6,000 a month - "a baby fortune" - and that doesn't include doctors' visits, which can be as often as once a week.

Not as sick

"I don't notice a difference: what I notice is I don't get sick as

III 'If I have an odd itch or headache that's more severe than usual . . . I'll always wonder; there will always be that niggling thought of if I have often as I did," Naster said, explaining that there were years prior to her diagnosis when she was hospitalized six times for lung-related illnesses.

In its literature about Prolastin. Miles points out that each unit of plasma used is tested and found nonreactive for the hepatitis B virus and negative for the AIDS antibody, although it recommends patients get a hepatitis B vaccination "as an extra precaution." There is no mention of Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease.

That disease is categorized as a slow virus infection, characterized by progressive mental deterioration. The symptoms usually worsen until death occurs - within four to 24 months. The incubation period can be 18 months up to 30 years.

It is quite a rare disease, according to Dr. James Burke, a neurologist on staff at Duke University. The estimate is that one of every 1 million people in the U.S. will develop the disease this year and 10-15 percent will have a family history of it. The rest will be sporadic, having no indication of exposure to the virus. Burke said.

Burke knows of no instances of the disease being transmitted through blood products, but rather through tissue - human growth hormones derived from the pooled pituitary glands, dural graphs using the dura mater and corneal transplants.

"It's very difficult to acquire even when exposed to the tissue," Burke said. "I'm not aware of any transmissions through transfusions; I don't know if there's ever been a case."

officer of the Southest Michigan Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross, concurs with Burke.

"We believe the risk is very small, if at all possible," Waxman said. "In fact, the findings of several studies were reported in 1994 where a blood donor came down with Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease and none of the blood recipients developed the disease. Some of the recipients were studied for 20 years after receiving the blood."

The Red Cross tests its blood donations for several diseases, including AIDS, but no known test exists for CJD, according to Waxman. However, donors are asked a "significant question" during screening - if they have received a human growth hormone transplant, one of the known ways CJD can be transmitted.

Creutsfeldt-Jakob . . . it's a rare entity to have that happen," he said, "It's very rare to find a donor with that diagnosis."

Likewise, the Alpha 1 National Association has sent out letters to reassure patients that the chances of developing CJD are very remote - "... Studies looking at transmission in a blood bank have not shown any association between transfusion of 'infected' blood and the development of the disease," said Sandy Brandley, the association's executive director, "While no one can say that there is absolutely no chance of transmission, the risk is very

Still wondering

But still it leaves Naster won-

"I'm very proud of how I deal with Alpha 1; I've learned all the little tricks to look healthler than I am," she said. "I know with Alpha I my progress will be slowly downhill; I know in the future I'll be on oxygen. But this is always on my mind.

"I'm angry for myself and I mourn for my family because if this happens to me, I'll turn into a drooling idiot."

Naster and her husband, Tom, have made plenty of changes in their lives. Their house is smokefree after they had the walls washed and the drapes cleaned, and they installed new carpeting and paint. Smokers, including her daughter and son-in-law, puff away on the front porch.

Baby fortune': Tom Naster watches as his wife, Marie, shows off one of several bottles of Prolastin she injects into herself twice a month.

They also use unscented products. Tom, in fact, uses no decdorant, "just soep and water." A eucalyptus swag, a gift, is relegated to the front porch, and you won't find a single bit of potpourri around.

Naster has three daughters who are AAT deficiency carriers. Two have been very supportive; they have had the blood test and genetic counseling. One daughter 'refuses to accept that anything is wrong with me or her." Naster also has four living brothers who also are carriers; one she suspects has the disease, "but he's in denial and won't take the blood test." Her grandfather died of emphysema in the early '60s and her brother died at age 16. His cause of death is listed as cirrhoels of the liver, the way AAT manifests itself in children.

Usually "very optimistic," Naster admits the Prolastin problem has got her down. While she would like complete reassurances, she knows the best she will get is Waxman's "very rare" and Brandley's "very remote."

"I think it's my stubbornness that keeps me going," she said. "Usually, I'm very optimistic and for this to get me down ... It's really got me bad. I thought I had Written by Oscar Wilde "The Importance of Being Earnest," a romantic comedy, was originally performed 100 years ago in London. The story, set in Victorian times, concerns two sets of young lovers, and a convoluted set of alibis and impersonations. It also allowed Wilde to make biting satirical comments on the absurdity of London society at that time. For example, the characters make a fuss over cucumber sandwiches treating them as if they were cavi-

"I portray John Worthing," said Hill. "He's unmarried, but wants to get married. He's somewhat stuffy and member of the English upper class. He's in love with Gwendolyn, a woman who will only marry a man named Ernest. Since his name isn't Ernest, he pretends to have a wicked brother, Ernest, who goes to London for wild times. While there he is romancing Gwendolyn, who has no idea of his double life."

Besides his name, Worthing is also not "worthy" of Gwendolyn because he is an orphan, and her mother won't let her marry a man who isn't from a good family.

Fran Colucci-Hill is Worthing's niece and guardian, Cecily Cardew. "She's 18, but admits to being 20 at dinner parties," said Colucci-Hill. "I'm very flighty, and in love with someone named Ernest, whom I've never met." The man is Gwendolyn's cousin whose name is not Ernest.

"You have two male characters who are both pretending to be the same guy, Ernest. The two female leads are chasing a man who does not exist," said Colucci. "It's a play on words - 'It's important to be earnest, honesty pays."

Colucci portrays Merriman Lane the maid of the Worthing Household, and a butler. "The maid has a high squeeky voice, and the butler has a deep voice," said Colucci. "It's hard to keep the voices straight. I'm in and out of the scenes, and responsible for everyone's entrances."

The talented trio described the dialogue in the play as "fastpaced and witty, with lots of plays on words." Hill found out about the Northville Players two years ago from a patient in Novi. When he came home from work he told his wife who had a secret desire to be on stage.

"This is something I've always wanted to do," said Colucci-Hill who acted in plays at Dearborn High School, and Dearborn Youtheatre productions. "I'm still waiting to be discovered.'

Although he never had any acting experience, Hill, who grew up in Iron Mountain, discovered he had a knack for it. "It's hard to find the time, but it's enjoyable," he said.

Satisfy your 'yen' for Oriental cuisine

BY RENEE SKOGLUND

Having trouble choosing between Chinese or Japanese cuisine tonight?

Got a "yen" for shrimp stir-fried in a wok or sizzled on a hibachi? At Wing Hong Restaurant, at 14 Mile and Orchard Lake roads in Farmington Hills, you don't have to make such decisions.

You can have your dim sum and eat your sushi, too.

Wing Hong actually houses two restaurants, one Chinese and the other a Japanese steakhouse.

"We are the only restaurant in the state of Michigan that serves so many varieties of culsine," said owner Wing Hong. "We have a Cantonese chei, a Szechaun chei, sushi chef, we even have a noodle

Sachiko Brown, who works in the sushi bar, pointed to its wellstocked glass compartments and said, "This is the kind of fish you don't get in the supermarket. This is from a special distributor. A-plus quality. Fresh, for sushi."

We also serve blow fish." Hong added. "If you don't know how to cut it, it's dangerous. The fish is delicious, but the bladder is dangerous."

Talk about a fatal attraction! Hong said the most famous food in China is Cantonese. "About 30 years ago, I met a French chef from the London Chop House. He said the best food is Cantonese. The sauce is the best of everything. The sauce has a distinctive taste."

Wing Hong Restaurant offers a large selection of authentic Cantonese dishes, along with Mandarin and Szechaun specialties, Their seafood and house special selections are especially tempting. like their Mandarin Crispy Duck or Lobster with Ginger and Green

Of course, they have takeouts. "It's delicious," said second-time diner Cory Lee, 24, who works for Fitness USA in Farmington Hills. "It's somewhat different. Last time I had beef chow mein. This time I had shrimp fried rice and dumplings. The Japanese section once I get comfortable with this," he said. Maybe he'll try the Dim St traditional appetizer assortment that Wing Hong began serving a few months ago. "We have 40 items every day. All the Oriental people eat Dim Sum," Hong said.

Within a few weeks, Wing Hong will be offering an "all you can eat" buffet table. A hot buffet will cost $5.95 for lunch and $11 for dinner. A cold seafood buffet, served only at dinner, will cost

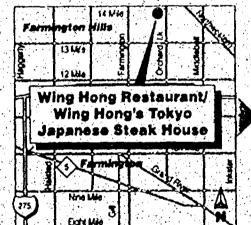

Besides Dim Sum, the sushi bar, and a Japanese steak house perched over a lake-size fish pond, Wing Hong offers "big screen" karaoke" daily 10 p.m. to funeral arrange-At the wake, when drinking mourners insist that the padre give them a song, the movie has tapped into something honest, something authentic. Then things get a little weird. After his daily duties, Pather Greg takes off his stiff white color, puts on a leather jacket tucked behind the cassocks, and heads for the local club. He picks up a man and, in a fairly explicit scene, we see them have sex in the man's apartment.

In confession, a young girl tells Father Greg that her father regularly molests her. The priest cannot break the sanctity of confession and help her, but then again, hasn't he broken a major church rule already?

This is just one of the questions that director Antonia Bird raises in her film. And as a platform for discussion about the Catholic Church, and especially its rules regarding the sex lives of priests, the movie has definitely served a purpose.

Unfortunately, her "Priest" is also manipulative, melodramatic and even sappy. While delivering year-old Father a message of tolerance and understanding, it goes against its own Greg making the rounds in his agenda. By the end of the film, you feel a little hoodwinked and. You see him at ironically enough, preached at.

> Clever moments surface in "Priest," even some light ones. Accompanied by a burly churchworker, Father Greg decides naively to make house visits only to have doors slammed in his face. Then a well-dressed man, after inviting him into his apartment, announces that he is a Jehovah's Witness.

"Priest" is also a gritty-looking film with a well-drawn sense of place. You see in detail the cramped rooms where the priests live and the office where a volunteer does the church paperwork.

The lack of familiarity with the actors makes the movie that much more believable. Tom Wilkinson plays the older, experienced priest that shares the rectory with Father Greg. He's also involved in a long-term relationship with a female church worker.

Linus Roache, a British stage actor, is wonderful as Father Greg, though Jimmy McGovern's script trips him up time and again. Would this obviously intelligent man really risk being discovered by going to a place as public as a gay bar. Isn't there a chance that somebody from his parish would spot him at least Older fans, many of whom wore stretched-out original Zeppelin concert shirts, sat there with their mouths hanging open, trying to figure out what the heck they were playing. Younger fans, getting their first real-life glimpse of pseudo-Led Zeppelin, danced away.

CD stars not-so-urban singers

A group of Detroit area singers/songwriters have decided to dispell the misconceptions about "folkies" by releasing a compilation CD entitled "Lost in Detroit: The New Urban Songwriters."

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

Singer/ songwriters are the Rodney Dangerfields of the music industry. Often times they're dismissed as "folkies." So people who would be interested in their music if they heard it, stay away from the coffeehouses and clubs where these singers perform.

To dispel these misconceptions, a group of Detroit area singer/ songwriters have released the compilation disc "Lost in Detroit: The New. Urban Songwriters" (Trampoline). All of the artists — Chris Moore of Crossed Wire, Priscilla Ederle, Scott Fab, Adam Druckman, and Alex Lumelsky - are from the suburbs but Druckman used "urban" in the title to make their project's intentions clear.

The last big wave of singer/ songwriters in the early 1970s like Jackson Brown and Neil Young, all sang about rural life like in the song "Horse with No Name." These five musicians sing about relationships and other things that city folk can relate to, Druckman explained.

Tooting their horn

Besides that, all the musicians on the CD have a reputation for being very humble and they figured it was about time to toot their own horn.

"I kind of thought it was about time that we stopped that, let people listen to what we're doing and see who's interested," Druckman said.

The CD was recorded at his Dream Street Recording Studio in Southfield, where Druckman also worked on Ederle's disc "Last Will & Testament," Fab's "Peasants Dream" (Rustbelt), Lumelsky's "Wake Up Dreaming," and Wally Pleasant's "Houses of the Holy Moly" (Miran-

Just because the songs on the CD are acoustic, it doesn't mean that Moore, Ederle, Pab. Druckman and Lumelsky can't rock. They all have rock in their blood. Moore fronts the group Crossed Wire, Ederle used to be in Cylinderhead, Lumelsky's history is with Phineas Gage, and Druckman played in a variety of rock bands. Fab and Moore also dabbled in hardcore punk during their teenage "Chris and I know each other from the hardcore days of Negative Approach, the Necros and the other (bands) in the Detroit hardcore scene. We both played the drums in a band. Neither of us played guitar and neither of us sang," Fab said.

The two careers may look unrelated to outsiders, but Fab added, to him they're correlated.

"There's an edge and there's a rawness to it. It's polished and rough around the edges. It stirs me like the days of old. I don't feel a whole lot different except I was beating on drums before.

On the forefront

Now that they've stepped up to the mic, they're on the forefront of the scene. Moore is probably one of the most widely acclaimed singer/ songwriters in the area having opened shows as a solo act for American Music Club, Tori Amos, and Sarah McLaughlan. Two songs that he wrote for Crossed Wire were featured in the recent Eric Stolz/Meg Tilly movie "Sleep With Me."

His band is currently working on a full-length album at White Room Studios in Detroit, but Druckman said, Moore isn't planning on releasing a solo record. That's one of the things that makes "Lost in Detroit" special. Not only are they talented, they have good marketing skills,

Other songs on the CD are acoustic versions of the originals that appeared on the respective singer's record.

Fab, Druckman, Lumelsky and Ederle aren't as well-known to the masses but have received a fair amount of acclaim by critics and booking agents. Ederle's debut album "Last Will & Testament" won the 1994 "Best Folk Record" award, even though this group of musicians would disagree on the category. Fab's performances have included gigs with Sheryl Crow and Jonathan Richman.

Aside from owning Dream Street Recording Studio, Druckman is finally working on his debut CD which should be out in fall. Lumelsky, who has opened for The Cranes and Goober & The Peas, recently finished a successful six-week tour of the Midwest and Southern states with Wally Pleasant. Lumelsky and Druckman, both graduates of Southfield Lathrup High School, also co-founded Trampoline

Records, the label which put out "Lost in Detroit" as well as Ederle's and Lumelsky's albums.

By playing around together, the five musicians have created a closeknit family-like relationship. Still, the main priority is to expose each other's music to those who may not go out to see shows, Druckman said.

"The first thing we want to do is get a wider audience for what we're doing. Over the past three years, we kind of gravitated toward each other as friends," Druckman said. "It sort of happened kind of naturally because we were all doing similar things. "Because of that, we started playing shows together. We also do shows separately, but when we play together, somehow the whole is greater than the sum of its parts."

The CD release party for "Lost in Detroit" is Sunday, April 23, at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Doors open at 7 p.m.; showtime is 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 for the 18 and over show. For more information, call (810) 544-3030. Trampoline Records can be reached at P.O. Soul collects itself for self-titled 'debut'

BY CHRISTINA PUOCO

Even though Collective Soul's album "Hints, Allegations and Things Left Unsaid" went platinum, the band considers its self-titled recent release its debut.

"The first one was a demo that I did; that's it, no more no less. The guys aren't even on it," said singer/ guitarist Ed Roland. "This is the first band record. This is what we have been working for years to get to do."

Hoping to land a publishing deal, Roland recorded "Hints, Allegations and Things Left Unsaid," ironically, on the heels of Collective Soul's breakup. However, radio stations around the band's hometown of Stockbridge, Ga., got shold of Roland's tape. "Shine" became such a big regional hit that Roland was forced to put the band back together. - this time with his brother Dean on rhythm gultar along with lead guitarist Ross Childress, drummer Shane Evans and bassist/backing vocalist Will Turpin - so they could play

"The one time you don't take it serious is the one time it really just like explodes. You try so hard for so many years, and all of a sudden, here you go," Roland said.

A few months later, they went to Atlantic Records, who signed the band and released "Hints, Allegations and Things Left Unsaid." The around the clock airplay of "Shine" pushed the band into the national spotlight.

Roland is grateful for the success of "Hints, Allegations and Things Left Unsaid," but, he said people had the wrong idea about Collective Soul, To showcase the "real" Collective Soul, the band quickly went into the studio and recorded their self-titled second

The single "Gel," which was featured on "The Jerky Boys" soundtrack, gave fans a hint of what they were about to hear. The driving guitars and the yeahless lyrics shocked skeptics of Collective Soul who were surprised that they could rock.

"If I had taken these songs on 'Hints and Allegations' to the band, maybe we would have played three or four songs; the rest of them they would say, 'Nah, that doesn't fit us,'," Roland said. "It wasn't a true representation of Collective Soul."

The real Collective Soul is paying off well for them. Area radio stations picked up on three of the songs off "Collective Soul" and the group landed a series of gigs opening for Van Halen. At first the band's management was leary of putting them on another rock tour. They wanted Collective Soul to do an "alternative". tour. Eventually, the management that. Two songs isn't that had,"

company backed down.

"So much has been made of classifying music lately, than listening to it," Roland said. "I look at it as allrock'n'roll. Rock'n'roll is a full spectrum of sounds and a full spectrum of emotions. You can't be just one thing, that's the way it is."

"Collective Soul" is a wide variety in itself. It kicks off with a funky, groove-laden "Simple" and ends with the gospel-tinged ballad "Reunion." In between, it's a roller coaster of sounds making hard-driving rock its neak. One aspect of the album that Roland is particularly proud of is the use of strings in "December" and "The World I Know."

"I love strings in general," Roland said. "To me it adds a different mood to the song it gives it a different dimension just as long as you don't over abuse it. The guys, they watch me on

Lady Crusaders can't quite get in sync

Outta there! Madonna catcher Jennifer Pinter takes the toss from pitcher Lynda Weichel and tags out Aquinas baserunner Melissa Brady at the plate.

It all looked - well, too good to be true. Madouna University's softball team lost a lot from last season. The Lady Crusaders started strongly with their Florida trip, but not all has gone well.

BY C.J. EMAK STAPP WRITER

Bottom line: The pitching was good enough.

The fielding was not, and neither was the hitting. And getting a oneout-of-three performance won't cut it in collegiate softball, something Madonna University discovered yet again Monday when it was swept twice at home by Aquinas Universi-

The Lady Cruseders fell by 6-0 and 5-1 scores to the Saints at Ford Field, watching their record dip to 13-11. Aquines is 13-13.

Besicully, it was not one of our better days playing softball," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham. Still, rebuilding with three new infielders and a new pitcher, what did he expect?

I expected a little bit more, hitting-wise," Abraham answered. "Because we've got a good hitting team. And I expected our pitching to be better because they started out so well."

And the fielding? Suffice to say, three of the runs in the first game were unearned; four in the second were the same.

Lynds Weichel took the pitching loss in the opener. She gave up seven hits and three walks, and three sarned runs, while striking out two.

in the second game, Shanna Streng was the loser. She allowed one earned run on six hits and a walk, fanning three.

have been different, if only . . "We hit the ball," said Abraham, whose '94 squad reached the NAIA World Series and finished fifth in the nation. "It was just right at somebody. We left nine players in scoring position." The second game wasn't much better, according to Abraham. The Crusaders collected six hits in the opener and five in the nightcap, and they left eight in accoring position in game No. 2. "We're hitting the ball, just not at the right time," he said. "They're getting the opportune hits and we're not. And until that changes, we'll continue to struggle."

The second-game loss was particularly difficult to take, considering Madonna trailed by just 1-0 going into the fifth inning. But Aquinas loaded the bases with one out; a hard shot was fielded, but the toss for the forceout at second base pulled the fielder off the base. The error led to four Aguinas runs.

And meanwhile, no one on Madonna had two hits in either same.

The double-defeat did not bode well for the Crusaders, enmeshed in one of the more difficult stretches of their season. Tuesday's doubleheader at Northwood University was rained out; still, they were supposed to host Seginew Valley State in a twinbill yesterday, then travel to the St. Francia College Tournament in Fort Wayne, Ind., Saturday.

If they are going to put something The outcome of both games could together, now's the time.

Westland John Glenn captures state crown

Competing in the Scratch Division, the quartet of senior Eric Whalen, senior Steve Engebretson, junior Steve Baran and senior Jason Zoyiopoulos led the Rockets to the Michigan High School Bowling Championship, April 2 at Liberty Lanes in Sterling Heights.

The foursome, coached by Steve Engebretson, Sr., divided a $750 scholarship for their efforts.

Despite qualifying fifth out of 48 teams, Glenn was strong in the matchup grid team series elimination tournament.

The Rockets defeated Warren DeLaSaile in the finals, 2,309 to Engebretson led the way with a 223 high game and a 611 series. Other scores included Zoyiopoulos, 221/582; Baran, 194/ 572; and Whalen, 202/544.

In the semifinals, Glenn ousted Fraser, 2,283-2,121, as Whalen recorded a 279 high game and a 622 series. Other totals were turned in by Baran, 224/601; Engebretson, 191/538; and Zoyiopoulos, 182/522.

Glenn also defeated L'Anse Creuse, 2,378-2,041, in the quarterfinals as Baran had a 224 and 622; Engebretson, 242/597; Whalen, 221/595; and Zoyiopoulos, 194/564.

All four Rockets compete in the Western Wayne Youth Traveling Classic as well as the Saturday Youth League at Town 'n Country Lanes in Farmington Hills.

Those of us who were sinous the reconfisciting 7,212. in attendance were, treated to some of the most exciting and high scoring Rames survice could eapect.

It was avident early on that there was a special electricity in the air, from the crowds viewing the many "Rowl-A-Rama" exhibits to the opening ceremonies and Cheryl Daniels singing of the National Anthem, to the noise and enthusiasm generated by the crowd from the first ball rolled to the very end of the event, which wasn't decided until the very last frame of the final game.

There were only two minor glitches, Dave D'Entremont had to abort his delivery when a phone rang nearby, and Steve Hookins had to do the same when a toddler cried out during his approach. It was an incredible feat just to set the special lanes up and again to dismantle them. The AMF company has worked it out to perfection. Those spectators also may have wondered what the sleek car was doing garked alongside the lanes. That was a showpiece for AMF as they are also visible in Stock car racing, and this Monte Carlo, owned and driven by Livonia resident Brian Cons. will be seen racing in the "Iceman" series this summer at Toledo Raceway and other points in the

The "XS" graphics on the bood was to call attention to the hot new AMF ball.

The PBA Tour will next come to the Detroit area in October for the "Greater Detroit Open" at Taylor Lanes, Considering the results of the Joe Louis Arena venue, the DiBian's are looking at the possibility of holding the TV finals in an altena setting also.

The Bronswick World Team Challenge series was held last week at Indianapolis with lady bowlers from 38 states competing for the right to advance to the national finals to be held at the New National Bowling Stadium in One team was from Michigan, "Contous Power Grips," which prevailed over the 38 other teams to advance. This is the same team that set new records during the last year for the highest team scores ever for league play. This team was in third place after three sames, but reached first after the his games of qualifying and stayed there the rest of the way, and through the second day, which was match-play using the Baker System of scoring.

Then it was on to the TV finals, which will be aired at 10:30 tonight on PASS-TV where they took care of business by defeating the "Lind Stree Team" in two games, 394-370.

The other member of this team, Chan't Daniels, stayed home to do the singing of the Star-Spangled Banner at the U.S. Open.

During the second set of qualifying games, they rolled up a team score of 3,325, which helped send them on their waf to the top. The same team, Contour Power Grips, also took first place in the All Star Bowlerettes League at Cloverlames in Livonia.

Heavyweight Thomas in chase for nationals

By RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

Reggie Thomas of the Livonia Boxing Club is just one good fight away from the Golden Glove Nationals.

Thomas of Ann Arbor fought last night in the Metro Detroit Golden Gloves Finals at the Itallan American Banquet Center. He won by a unanimous decision against Mike Jackson of Detroit Kronk April 12 at the Burton Manor.

Thomas is just one fight away from going to the Nationals," LBC director Paul Soucy said of his 22-year-old, now 4-0. The lefthander took control of his latest. fight by using his longer reach to jab effectively. "He had him down for an eight-count in the second round," Soucy said. "And he counterpunched when the guy rushed him.

Soucy has an ambitious program for his young open class Lowell, Mass. BOXING super heavyweight. He hopes Thomas can score well - finish first or second - in one of two major boxing tournaments coming up so he can qualify for the U.S. Olympic Trials.

"He won," Soucy said, "but I'm going to push him even harder. He was getting tired at the end of the fight.

None of the other fighters Soucy works were able to fight at Burton Manor. Hank O'Dierna showed up - but his opponent in the 156-pound Novice class did

"It's not like it used to be," the veteran Soucy said. "Guys don't make the weight, they don't show up, they pull out . . .

College lacrosse stickhandles its way into the area when Northwood University challengea Wittenberg (Ohio) University 7 p.m. Friday, April 21, at Bloomfield Hills Andover High School.

The game was scheduled by the Michican Scholastic Lacrosse Foundation (MSLF) a state-wide organization that aids in the sport's development at all levels of play.

In conjunction with the game, the MSLF will present a number of awards to Michigan individuals who have helped promote the game.

David Morrow, the former Birmingham Brother Rice and Princeton standout, will be the first inductee into the Michigan Lacrosse Hall of Fame. Morrow is a former Enners Award winner - the Heisman Trophy of college lacrosse.

Michigan Collegiate Playerof the Year awards will be presented to Detroit Country Day graduate Aaron Sims (Roanoke College, University of Maryland), Warren De La Salle graduate Marcus Pillon (The College of Wooster) and Birmingham Brother Rice graduate David Rivers (Michigan State University).

"If-You-Start-It, They-Will-Play" awards will be given to Stan Orzel of the Eastern Michigan Lacrosse Association and Dave White of Birmingham and Bloomfield. Parents Awards for promoting lacrosse statewide will be presented to Frank Sullivan of Bloomfield Hills and Christine Paluch of Lansing Waverly.

The Athletic Director Award will be given to Steve Schleicher of L'Anse Creuse High School, and the Michigan Press Award will be given to Steve Klin of the Lansing State Journal.

According to White, it will be the only opportunity this spring for fans to see college lacrosse played in the Metro Area.

"I'm excited," said White, who currently coaches the newly-formed Bloomfield High School team.

"There are some people who have put a lot of time and effort into making the sport grow. (The MSLF) wanted to schedule a (college) game locally, so we felt it was a good chance to schedule the awards around it.

"Lacrosse has been growing steadily and strongly since 1969, so (the MSLF) wanted to recognize players, parents and others who have helped the sport grow," he said.

Northwood is coached by Ron Hebert, a former coach at Birmingham Brother Rice and Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood high schools. Hebert has recruited a number of Observer & Eccentric area players, including Justin and Brian Ronayne, John Wolfe and Tim MacArthur from Catholic Central High School, Dayton Hicks from Birmingham Seaholm High School and Gus Serrano from Troy Athens High School.

Two lower-age level games will be played prior to the Wittenberg/Northwood match. Bloomfield Middle School plays Detroit Country Day Middle School at 4 p.m., and, at 5 p.m., two youth teams from the Eastern Michigan Lacrosse Association battle each other.

Admission is $2, with proceeds benefiting the Michigan Scholastic Lacrosse Foundation and the local lacrosse program. Bloomfield Hills Andover is located on Long Lake Road, just West of Telegraph

New coach, new style for Catholic Central

By Steve Kowalski Stayp Writer

When Scott Tynan and Bill Zimmer were lacrosse players at Detroit Country Day, they would encourage Redford Catholic Central players to play a rough game. A decade later, the two are discouraging the Shamrocks from that style.

Tynan and Zimmer were linemates on Detroit Country Day's 1985 state championship team.

CC lost to Country Day in the 1994 Division I state championship game and last season lost in the Division I semifinal round to night. "This is a team in transition," Zimmer said. "CC has traditionally been a real athletic, hard hitting team. We don't want to discourage them from hard hits, but we want to keep them out of the penalty box.

"When we were at Country Day. we knew they would hit hard and not quit, but we wanted to make the penalty box a revolving door for them. We're trying to enhance the game." The Shamrocks are adjusting slowly to the new style, losing three of their first five games, including Wednesday's 9-6 loss at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

But perhaps an even bigger adjustment has had to be made in net where the Shamrocks lost allstater Alex Alviar to graduation. Junior Bryan Jeffires has gotten the call between the pipes and it hasn't helped that two starting senior defensemen, Matt Marchal and Mike Liebau, are lost for the season with shoulder injuries.

Senior Dan McCarthy, who was a goalle until a couple weeks ago. has been moved to defense. The other defensemen are juniors Mike Smiley and Nick Lacha-

The midfield is intact, led by senior Gary Galvin, who is the Shamrocks' top two-way player, according to Zimmer. Galvin is the Shamrocks' leading scorer with seven goals and three assists.

"He comes out for every shift like it's his last," Zimmer said.

The other starting midfielders are juniors Steve Mondry and Tom Smiley, who has contributed five goals and two assists. Junior Joel Rioux is a key reserve in the midfield.

Zimmer said the key to the team is the attack zone. Senior Jason Hubenschmidt has been moved from midfield to attack. where he has four goals and five assists. He's aided by junior Mark Wollschlager and senior Elliott Washburn.

"We'll go as our attack goes,"

Zimmer said. "We're real solid.......and steady at defense and our real strength is at midfield."

Tynan was offered the CO coaching job when Jim Ryan had to resign after being voted in to the state House of Representatives last fall. Tynan was an assistant coach under Ryan in the Tynan planned an April marriage before accepting the coaching job. He took the job under the condition that Zimmer would be his assistant and step in when he was on his honeymoon.

"This is Scott's team and I try to support everything he does, Zimmer said. "We talk a lot and he's real open to my ideas, but it's real important that there's only one guy in charge - him. If you try to do it where both are equal, it's not going to work. We're building between now and the state tournament. We want to be tournament ready."

Rose uncertain about job

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAIF WRITER

After winning six straight league championships and finishing second nationally last year, Henry Ford Community College baseball coach Stu Rose didn't think he was just keeping a seat in the dugout warm for former coach Roger George.

But because of a clause in a union contract at Henry Ford, George may return and put Rose out of a job after this season.

As a part-time staff member at Henry Ford, Rose has a two-year renewable contract that expires. after this season.

George, a full-time faculty member at Henry Ford, coached the Hawks from 1981 through 1988. He has been coach at Wayne State University since 1989, but earlier this month applied for the baseball job at Henry Ford.

Because George, 56, is a fulltime faculty member and a qualified coach, Henry Ford had to offer the job to George. Henry Ford athletic director Nancy Bryden said George verbally accepted the offer two weeks ago, but she's been waiting for his acceptance and a copy of George's resignation from WSU in writing.

Nothing's official until then, she said.

"I have absolutely no comment," George said Tuesday night.

Rose, 42, who came to Henry Ford from Redford Union, has led the Hawks to a Michigan Community College Athletic Association Eastern Conference title in each of his six seasons.

The Hawks have won two regional titles in the last four years, finishing the '94 season with a 37-

BASEBALL

15 overall record and a secondplace finish at the NJCAA national tournament.

The Henry Ford duties have been the perfect part-time position for Rose, who owns The Sports Academy in Novi, an indoor baseball facility.

"It's a bad deal, but I have no control over it," said Rose, a Farmington Hills resident. "I have no desire to be a full-time faculty member, but I do have a desire to be a full-time coach.

"I'm very happy there, I found my niche. It's something I could tie in with my business, be successful and compete with a team nationally. The guys I feel bad for are my assistants, Lee Bjerke and Craig Sylvester (Garden City resident). Lee lest three coaching jobs at Willow Run to be with me and Craig works the late shift and makes all our road trips."

George has a 95-199-5 career record at WSU. The Tartars are 15-14 this season.

At Henry Ford, George went 1-31-1 in 1981, then had seven straight winning seasons. He won two Eastern Conference titles and twice finished second in the re-

Bryden said she gave George until this Friday to submit in writing his acceptance. Her original deadline was Monday, April 10, a week after the deadline for applications.

"I don't know what's going on in Mr. George's head; that's why I made a deadline, so the whole thing could be resolved." Bryden said Tuesday. "He was supposed to put it in writing by April 10, but I gave him until the next morning and I haven't seen anything yet. I wrote him a letter, by mail and fax, and said he's got until Friday to send a letter of acceptance and resignation to show he's serious."

Bryden said she "holds her breath" each time one of her parttime coaches' contracts are up.

"The school is losing a good coach who runs a class program because of a contract," she said.

WSU athletic director Bob Brennan, contacted Tuesday night, said George told him he was applying for the Henry Ford job. But Brennan said it was news to him that George had accepted the job.

It's not to my knowledge, Brennan said.

Rose said he expects to see George Friday when Henry Ford meets WSU in a scrimmage game.

"I'll just ask him point-blank, Did you put in your resignation yet?' And if he says no, I'll be disappointed," Rose said. "The thing that doesn't sit well with me was he was told last Monday the job was his and he hasn't resigned at the other place, I've been told. I'm a lame duck coach and he has two coaching jobs.'

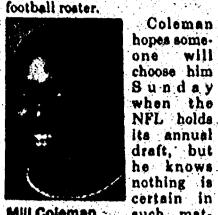

University of Detroit Mercy coach Bob Miller is friends with both coaches. "I talked to Roger today (Tuesday) and his last statement to me was 'I'm still here, I haven't left,' and I hope it stays that way," Miller said. "Stu has done one hell of a job, not only in recruiting, but coaching-wise, the kids love him. I'm between a rock and a hard place. I don't want to see Stu lose his job and I told Roger this is Wayne's best team in 15 years and it's because of him."

"It really doesn't matter. It's just a matter of getting picked up and having the opportunity to get in camp and compete."

Coleman missed the second half of last season at Michigan State University with a seconddegree sprain in his right knee, and he still wasn't fully recovered when he attended the NFL caused some teams to lose interest in Coleman, who was highly regarded last summer as a fifth-year wide receiver. "I probably didn't do too much (at the combines)," he an effort to rehabilitate. "I have to work a little harder (as a result of the partial tear) to get the extra steps back," he said. "It kept me from performing at my peak at that time, early in the winter."

If given the chance, Coleman believes he can overcome any shortcomings and critics -- just as he did going from high school to college -- and prove he can play pro football, too.

"I've always been a competitor and somebody who likes to prove the skeptics wrong," he said. "There's always some, no matter who you are; there's always somebody out there doubting you,"

If he isn't drafted, Coleman said he will definitely seek a free agent contract and possibly a Canadian Football League of-

"Yeah, it's crossed my mind," he said of playing in the CPL. "I have to wait and see what happens. I have to leave my ontions open; I don't close doors on anything."

If he isn't playing football next fall, Coleman, an academic standout as well, said he will finish his graduate work on an M.B.A. in finance.

But Sunday he'll be checking out the draft on television. though probably not with the same interest of a projected first-round pick.

"I probably won't be glued to it." he said. "I'll probably watch some of it; I'll just have to play it by ear.

coaching career in the late 1970s as a Catholic Youth Organization

The RU program is trying to get back on the winning track following a 1-8 season in 1993 and 2-7 record last fall.

"This is something I wanted to do, after 15 years of coaching, to give it a shot as a varsity head coach," said Scala, a job analyst for Kmart Corp. and resident of Livonia. "As far as being familiar with the students, league, and community of Redford Union, that helped make my decision to apply easier. The people are real supportive."

Steelhead catches local man napping

Chris Coffey sprang to attention when he heard Captain Tom Moore exclaim, Fish on! Fish on!"

Coffey, Livonia, was trying to aneak in a little nap last Thursday morning when a hungry steelhead decided to make a snack out of the green striped bomber which was trailing our boat.

The morning had been rather uneventful up to that point as mild temperatures and a calm Lake Huron had quelled each of us into a state of drowsiness. Coffey, who had been up half of the night launching the boat with Captain Tom, decided to take a quick "power nap" since the action had been less than exciting. Even renowned outdoor writer James A.O. Crowe, a seasoned veteran of big lake salmon fishing, was beginning to drop his head occasionally as the morning drifted by.

Catching a big fish on the Great Lakes is an exhibarating experience; as exciting as riding a speeding roller coaster. But like a roller coaster ride, the pursuit of the fish is filled with peaks and valleys - the long laxy dips enhancing the always thrilling highlighte.

As the rod tip bobbed rapidly toward the water and we each scrambled for position, the sudden rush of Adrenalin brought us each back to reality.

"It never fails," groaned Coffey as he crawled out of the hull of the boat. "Someone should have tried this (nap) a long time ago and we would have been catching fish all along."

Upon realizing its plight, the steelhead made a desperate run for freedom. The ensuing battle was fierce, but brief. In a few short minutes the 7-pound steelhead had yielded to the green nylon mesh of a landing net.

Beginning as early as late April, lower Lake Huron provides some of the earliest salmon fishing of the year. As the shallow waters at the southern end of the lake begin. to warm with the arrival of spring, balt fish such as smelt and alewives move in. Salmon, steelhead and brown trout soon follow. much to the delight of area anglers.

There won't be many "power napa" on the water on April 29 when the 17th annual River Crab Salmon Stakes fishing tournament officially kicks off the spring salmon season. The tournament is held on the waters of lower Lake Huron and the St. Clair River. Upwards of 250 boats and 1,000 anglers are expected to participate in the tournament, which raises money anually to aid troubled children, adults and their families throughout Michigan.

"This will be my fifth year in the tournament," said Coffey, a former board member of Detroit Steelheaders, "I like this tournament for a number of reasons: It's for a good cause, it's close to home, a lot of people show up, and it's a good way to start the scason."

Money raised through the sale of $10 raffle/entry tickets is used to support mental health clinics statewide. The Blue Water Mental Health Clinic in Port Huron is the main beneficiary, but several other clinics, including First Step in Canton, also benefit by keeping a portion of the money from each ticket sold at the respective clinics. Last year the tournament netted $101,000 and it has raised over $600,000 to date.

Anyone who purchases a ticket is instantly a winner as the tickets are redeemable for $10 off dinner for two at any Chuck Muer restaurant nationwide. On top of that, each ticket holder is entered into a raffle and the fishing tournament. The raffle will be drawn at 4 p.m. April 29 at the River Crab Rerstaurant in St. Clair. upon the conclusion of the fish weigh-in. The grand raffle prize is a trip for two adults and two kids to Walt Disney World, Second prize is a trip for two to Toronto.

CC 5th at Elks

The field events pretty much decided the outcome of Saturday's Elks Relays.

By the time they were concluded, host team Dearborn had 31 points to Plymouth Saiem's 16. That was too much to overcome, but the Rocks made a fight of it, closing to within eight by meet's end.

The Pioneers held on, however, winning the 12-team boys meet with 52 points. Selem finished second with 44, followed by Westland John Glenn with 39. Redford Catholic Central ended up fifth with 34 points; Plymouth Canton was seventh with 91/4.

"All in all, it was a great day," said Salem coach Geoff Baker. "Especially for our distance guys, who ran well when they were tired. They ran tough.' His distance troops were tired because the day before they ran at the Mehock Relays in Mansfield, Ohio. They betrayed little fatigue, however, the Rocks won the distance

Christian VJ becomes church youth director

A former Plymouth resident who has been around the country reaching youth with a positive message through radio and television has returned to his old stomping grounds.

Ken McMullen has taken the position of youth director of Clarenceville United Methodiat Church in Livonia and plans on using what he has learned from his experiences working with local youth ministries to make a positive impact on area young people,

"The kids of today are getting mixed messages everyday from soclety," McMullen said. "They've been told one thing by this group and then told another by an opposing group. They get so confused that they don't know what to believe, subsequently, most don't believe anything. I'm here to show them something

A 1988 graduate of South Lyon High School, McMullen had worked as a promotion producer and music video jockey for Z Music Television in Lake Helen, Fla. The network is the first national 24-hour contemporary Christian music video channel. He hosted various programs on the network. but his main focus was a daily rock and rap program for youth.

The network mixes music with a home shopping network. The channel contains no preaching shows or requests for donations. Revenue is raised largely through the sale of Christian products, including cassettes, videos, compact discs, jewelry and books.

The network recently joined the Gaylord Entertainment Group in Nashville, Tenn., and is now working out of the studios with The Nashville Network and Country Music Television, McMullen also worked in Nashville where he hosted a midday music show for WAY-FM, one of the hottest Top 40 contemporary Christian music radio atations in the country. He also made some cameo video appearances in a couple commercials and country music videos with the likes of Waylon Jennings.

Even with his move to the metro Detroit area, there is a possibility of McMullen producing and hosting a program from the Detroit area for the Nashvillebased network.

Clarenceville United Methodist Church is at 20300 Middlebelt,

VICTORIA DIAZ

This cat tale is hard to swallow

he Cat Who Came to Breakfast," by Lillian Jackson Braue (249 pp., $5.99, Jove). This newly assued paperback (published in hardcover last year) is Braun's 16th "Cat" mystery. In the annals of literary history, it's about as substantial as cotton candy, I suppose. But what's wrong with that? Sometimes, cotton candy is exactly what hits the spot, Unfortunately, some of this cotton candy is hard for me to swallow.

Braun, a long-time Michigan writer, has set her fast-moving tale "400 miles north of everywhere" on Breakfast Island (aka Pear/Providence/Grand Island), a beautifully unspoiled place in the middle of an enormous, bone-chilling lake.

At least, the place was once beautiful and unspoiled. Recently, XYZ Enterprises has decided to "develop" the site, and turn it into a major tourist attraction. Now, the smell of fudge is everywhere, a cushy new hotel has gone up at water's edge, and the natives are growing restless at the sight of all those outsiders overrunning the place.

Over a short time, a series of "incidents" occur, some of them deadly, the numbers of tourists streaming into the island slows, and this cat's tale begins in earnest.

Enter the mustachioed Jim Qwilleran, familiar to all Braun fans. Intrepid amateur sleuth and former big-city crime reporter, he's now semi-retired, and writing a brief column for a small newspaper called the Moose County Something. For various reasons we won't get into here, he decides to make a visit to the island, and to investigate the incidents himself. He's nosy. He's aggressive. It's just a ferry ride away. And somebody else is footing the bill. So, off we go.

His Siamese cats, Koko and Yum Yum, come along, too, by the way. And, as we shall see, it is not just for the choppy ride across the lake.

Once on the island, Qwilleran and the two furballs settle into an oddly-constructed little bed-and-breakfast called the Domoni Inn, and other suspicious happenings begin to occur-

One night, in the tiny cottage adjacent to his, a woman burns to death, as the little cottage goes up in flames.

At another time, the mysterious daughter of one of the island's most monied families is bitten by a venomous snake, and has to be airlifted to the mainland for treatment.

In still another incident, an unfortunate tourist is gunned down while hang-gliding over a sand dune at the north end of the island.

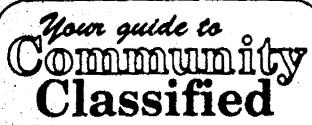

To its credit, there's rarely a lag in the brisk and breezy tempo of "The Cat Who Came to Breakfast," barely a sag in its delightfully taut suspense (Braun occasionally enlivens the action even more with her slightly off-kilter, gentle brand of comedy). And Michigan renders will no doubt find special appeal in her backdrop, which appears suspiciously like a colorful amalgam of Mackinac and Drummond Islands, plus other familiar points north.

But, Excuse me. I'm supposed to believe that Koko the cat has psychic powers? Well, OK. Maybe. But even more, I'm supposed to believe

A glass artist and jewelry designer team up to create sparkling designs

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

lymouth glass artist Donald Schneider provides the beads and Farmington Hills jewelry designer Clifford Holdampf a spotlight of precious metal settings in-"Glass, Metal and Stone," a showing of recent collaborativo efforts to create wearable works of art Friday through Sunday, April 28-30, at Francis Jewelers, 470 Forest in Ply-

Together, Schneider and Holdampf have created rings, brooches, cuff links and tie tacks especially for this show.

A reception to meet both artists takes place 7:30-9 p.m. Friday, April 28. The public is inivited.

The recently completed video, "Lampworking with Hard Glass" featuring Schneider demonstrating his hot glass skills, will run continuously during the three days.

Nationally known for his milleflori beads, Schneider transforms glass into cabechon shapes using a combination of lampworking and glass blowing techniques. Glass rods for millefiori, an Italian word meaning a thousand flowers, are time consuming to produce. Schneider must encase a series of different colored glass rods, one within the other, before lampworking a single bead. He has worked with hot glass as a medium for 20 years initially beginning his career as a glass blower in 1975 at Greenfield Village, Over the years, hot glass' molten temperatures and laborious highly skilled processes have earned his respect.

He will speak on safety issues regarding the medium as material at the Glass Art Society convention in May and teach at the Society of Glass Bead Makers conference later this year.

For the glass beads spotlighted in the current show, Schneider uses borosilicate, known by the trade name Pyrex, a glass that changes with atmospheric conditions and temperatures of glass.

"How the glass is handled affects how Cliff will design the piece. We're pretty much on the same wave length.

Artists honor earth with special exhibit

From paintings commenting on the circle of life to raging red sumacs cut and lying on the forest floor to sculptures focusing on Mother Earth, area artists speak a timely message this Earth Day.

Redford Township artists Matthew Hanna and Todd Erickson along with Charles McGee, Christine Hughes, Carl Butler, and Sherry Hendrick take to task society's treatment of the earth in this exhibit. Dave Roberts, now director of Urban Park-Detroit Art Center, originated the biennial honoring the earth. Hanna curated the last two. this one on the premise that he was familiar with the work of each artist and that they respect the earth.

On the Move: Todd Erickson creates organic sculptures as vehicles of expression in honor of Mother Earth at the Willis Gallery.

total freedom to express their feelings about Mother Earth. Unrestricted by any criteria, Hanna as the exhibit's curator, simply asked them to formulate a response to the earth at this time in its history.

Whether the result was hopeful or negative, conflicted or optimistic, was the decision of the artist. Their responses proved to be enthusiastic as artists applied their vision to the questions of ecology, nature and man's relationship to the earth.

Focus is earth

Even though everybody works. in different styles, it all came together because of the earth. And it comes from a wide range of experiences from Charles McGee, who's 70 years old and has been making art for 50 years, to Carl Butler who graduated from Wayne State three years ago," said Hanna, a 1982 Redford Union High School graduate who earned a bachelor of fine arts degree from the Center for Creative Studies in 1986.

The earth is a big concern for everybody, so I'm always thinking about it.

"Every day is Earth Day," Erickson quickly added during an interview in the Cass Corridor gallery.

The fact that Hanna and Erickson are family men greatly influenced their treatment of the subject as did the consideration that both garden and camp. Their ties to family and Mother Earth elicit a subtle cry to discontinue waste-

Erickkson's sculptures

Erickson's three sculptures each combine dissimilar metals: a bronze casting featuring fallen birch bark, and either a gourd or pumpkin created from iron.

"She Needs Us" by Erickson, an assistant professor of sculpture at Center for Creative Studles in Detroit, consists of a baby pumpkin surrounded by a piece of fallen birch bark. The circularshaped vine fruit is attached to the bark making it mobile, a vehicle for all seasons.

A sand cast turban squash entitled "Respect and Love" plays off the iron material to give it the industrial feel common to Erickson's work.

'Mother" is an enveloping form featuring a half of squash with the life-giving seeds exposed. All three pieces show no tool marks. Although the patina enforces the idea that this is a fallen birch, Erickson leaves a little of the bronze. showing to ensure total honesty.

"I wanted to use the gourds and squash to show they were organic and could give life," said Erickson, who earned a master of fine arts degree from Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills.

'The earth's like a daughter, a mother and a daughter. Its forces are strong, but we could definitely do her in if we keep trying the way

Hanna's collages

Hanna, an exhibitor at alternative spaces like the Willis and Detroit Artists Market as well as Industry in Pontiac, creates collages of eagles, endangered animals and fallen trees to awaken an awareness of earth in "Circle of Life."

His "Pine" piece celebrates the return of the bald eagle after the majestic American symbol of freedom tottered on the brink of extinction. The work also sports a tornado or top symbolizing the delicate balance between nature and man, and a black box similar to an airplane's.

The difference is Hanna's black box records the final moments of the earth.

Among the other works not to be missed in the show are three by Charles McGee from his Noah's Ark Series. McGee's work was exhibited recently at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Red paintings of fallen sumacs by Hughes rage at the destruction of the earth by the unthinking.

Pounded in 1971, the Willis Gallery is a forum for artists on the cutting edge of the Detroit art scene. It was established to showcase artworks by the Cass Corridor artists. The Willis Gallery is at 422 West Willis, two blocks west of Woodward and three blocks south of Porest adjacent to the Wayne State University campus.

Farmington Hills artist wins $1,000 in poster contest

Marsha Weigand of Farmington Hills is the 1995 winner of the Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA) and AAA of Michigan sponsored "Arts & Plowers: A Festival of Spring" poster com-

The juried statewide contest attracted almost 250 entries from as far away as Manistique, Mich. Welgand was awarded the $1,000 grand prize donated by AAA and her color pencil drawing "Reda" is available as this year's festival poster.

Weigand, a self proclaimed late bloomer to the world of art, began showing her work in 1990. She has received numerous awards and recognitions, including first place in the Visual Arts Association of Livonia exhibition (1991); juror's choice for Traveling Exhibit in the Michigan Watercolor Society show (1993); and third place in the Farmington Artist Club Exhibition (1994).

Reds, as well as the 21 original works of the 20 finalists are showcased in the DIA traveling exhibition which has been on display at venues throughout the metro Detroit area. The works will be exhibited at the DIA through April 30. Many of the pieces also will be available for purchase at the Arts & Flowers silent auction on April 28.

Students dare to create art from books

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN BPRCIAL WRITER

Daring as well as creative, students at New Morning School in Plymouth recently met the challenge to produce art from litera-

Down through the ages the visual arts have communicated a culture's history to the following generations.

In conjunction with the Plymouth school's Literacy Outreach program, this arts writer, as a speaker there last October, challenged 54 elementary and middle school students to prove that art communicates. Students read a book then created art that relays its contents.

Eight of the drawings are currently on display in the children's area of the Canton Public Li-

"They could read whatever book they wanted that was at their level," said teacher Rita

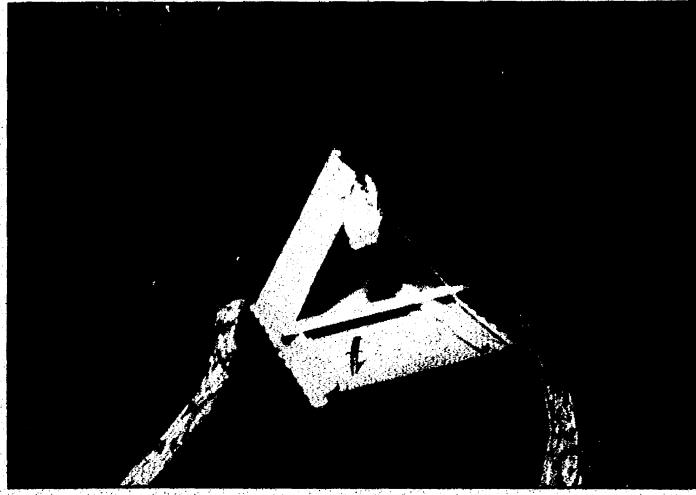

"They shared their art with others so this was a way that they could share what they read. Creating the artworks from literature gave them a real specific subject to think about."

Using clay, poster board, crayon and paint, students translated the words they read into art expressing visually the end-results of their reading efforts.

Lauren Yagiela of Canton, after reading "The Westing Game," used clay to mold old Mr. Westing resting in his coffin.

Jeff Durow of Plymouth crafted and painted a vibrant three-dimensional work after "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" by Samuel Clemens a.k.a. Mark Twain.

Danny Burke of Redford created a clay werewolf from "The Werewolf of Fever Swamp."

3-D Art: Mark Twain inspired Jeff Durow of Plymouth to craft and paint this vibrantly colored artwork.

"The Lion King" inspired Brandon French.

"It was fun," said French of Commerce Township. Due to the lack of exhibit cases, only two-dimensional art could be displayed at the library.

Students exhibiting their drawings include Elizabeth Hoffman. "Strawberry Girl" written by Lois Lenski; Brooke Jabara "The Sleep Walker" by R.L. Stine; Billy Guglieilmo, "The Lion King," and Jimmy Odom, "Goose Bumps" by R.L. Coldwell Banker Schweitzer cites agents

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER SPECIAL WRITER

Realter Neil McCloskey of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Livonia spent three days helping a client spruce up her home for sale. Before the first house hunter arrived for a look, the agent washed the basement floor and oversaw furnace repairs and other maintenance, McCloskey earned accolades from the satisfied Livonia seller, and a prestigious President's Service Award from his bro-

The Sterling Heights-based firm honored McCloskey and other topproducing agents Peb. 23 at its 1994 awards ceremony at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn, an event president Paul Schweitzer started in 1962.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate has more than 500 sales agents and 17 offices in southeast Michigan, including branches in Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, West Bloomfield, Parmington Hills, Troy, Livonia, Royal Oak and Plymouth. "We made tremendous strides in 1994. Our strength comes from topproducing sales associates who give outstanding results and customer service," Schweitzer said.

The ceremony included speeches by Coldwell Banker's Midwest region director Dave Miller, and affiliate president Bob Rist. The event wound up by noon, so Realtors had the evening free to do what they do best show and sell property.

"Hard-working Realtors usually work evenings, or whenever their clients need them. This is a fun, rewarding event and the morning turnout is always great," Kathy Schweitzer, director of administration and public relations said.

Honorees from Coldwell Banker Schweitzer offices in Observer & Eccentric communities include:

Plymouth - Realtor Chris Knight earned a President's Elite Award for his total closings and gross commission, placing him in the top 1 percent of Coldwell Banker agents worldwide. He was Plymouth's top agent in the also went to Lois Axil, Catherine Ate-

Q I have just dis-covered that the management company for our association has been sued at another condominium project and the attorney for our condominium is representing the management company in the other project. This has not been disclosed to the board of directors of our association. I am terribly concerned because we are negotiating a contract and the management company plans to have our attorney review the contract.

It would appear that both the management company and the conflict of interest and have an obligation to disclose their involvement at the other condominium project to your association,

If the management company is being represented by the attorney for your association in another condominium project, that may preclude that attorney's ability to effectively represent the interests of the association as it relates to any dealings with your management company. It may effectively preclude that attorney from assisting your association in other matters to the extent that the attorney has an obligation to disclose to the association any irregularities and/or misdeeds on the part of the management firm, which comes within his/ her knowledge.

You should advise the board of directors of this information and demand it take immediate steps against attorney for your association are in a the management company and the attorney, if necessary, to inquire as to why this information was not disclosed. The board may consider nondisclosure to be clearly a basis to terminate both the attorney and the management company that may not, under those circumstances, have complied with their fiduciary responsibilities to the association.

Q we are involved the time share and visited the site. While the salesman indicated that we had nine business days to decide whether to buy the timeshare condo, he told us to sign a promissory note, a closing statement and other documents, as if the contract has been consummated.

A I believe it was inappropriate and unnecessary for you to sign any closing statement, promissory note or other evidence of a consummated transaction until you agreed to go ahead with the transaction, that is, after you were given an opportunity to review the condominium documents within the nine business-day period.

Obviously, the developer is attempting to psychologically impose upon you the notion that you have consummated the deal when, in fact, you have the right to back out.

The best advertising approach is the direct, personal contact.

That's how Cathy Metry, a Rochester resident who started AD XL Promotions about five years ago, goes about her work.

Metry's concept is simple. She first persuades businesses to offer their goods at a discount. Then she prints invitations or gift certificates promoting the offering and sells the certificates in person to other business people. There's no obligation to the client until the certificates get redeemed. AD XL keeps all the money from the sales. Customers get a chance to sample a new product/service at a good price. Metry, 27, runs the business with the help of Laura Curis, executive vice president, Yvonne Wiedemann, vice president, and Rose Hanlon, Plymouth office manager. Following are edited excerpts rom a recent interview with Metry, How did you happen to settle on this as a business? Metry: I started by selling business to business for a gentleman promoting a comedy club. I met many people who said, 'Can you do this for me?

I recognized there was a niche in this market. There's a need for faceto-face marketing in many businesses, not only comedy clubs, but many > service businesses. At Northwood (University), they always taught us. 'Look for a niche.' They drilled that over and over. It developed from

You come from a selling/business background?

Metry: I had a double marketing/management major.

My grandmother, Julianna Kaselitz, was one of the first women to own a contracting, electrical going to great places. work in the office

And I was all a second and did everything from soliciting bids, working in the warehouse, picking up supplies.

My dad, Richard, is in sales, general manager for Estate Motors. My mother, Diana, is in real estate. I think it was natural.

Tell me about face-to-face marketing.

Metry: Past (advertising) efforts used radio, TV or newspapers. Those are still effective, traditional, but they don't offer a guaranteed consumer. They don't offer a personal approach. Word of mouth is still the most effective.

Our approach is to take your service directly to a new customer and show them how great you are. It's a live approach, personal approach. It's almost like a live commercial. They're sold, so they're guaranteed

I would think some business owners would resent an unannounced intrusion with your trying to sell them something.

Metry: We pick out specific target market territories. We go into every single business, and we approach people (owners and employees) friendly, enthusiastically, Ninety-nine percent are receptive. They're friendly, equally enthuminatic because they've been approached so professionally, There's an honest approach, People recognize that right away.

Specific (sales) numbers, I can't quote. The more positive your attitude, the more positive the result.

We won't approach a shopper. Who are some of the business clients?

Metry: This isn't a concept that tailors to a business just starting out. We look for great staff, great service, great attitude. We want to make sure clients are great so our customers we're selling are really

The unit costs $228,900. Two other floor plans are avail-

The Palomino, 2,600 square feet, places the master on the main level and two or three bednoms upstairs. The base price is $234,900 with the fourth bedroom an extra $7,000.

The Clydesdale, the largest plan at 3,000 square feet, offers four bedrooms and two sets of stairs. Prices start at $249,900.

Buyers in Pinewood generally will be second or third time moveup, Paul Robertson said.

Most are Canton move-ups. The next biggest is move up from Dearborn. The bulk of our people are Ford employees or Ford related in one form or another," he said.

Pinewood will have sidewalks and will be serviced by city water and sewers. It's within the boundaries of the Plymouth Canton Community Schools. Beck Road fronting the subdivision is scheduled for paying, Roberston said.

The property tax rate is about $31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owner of a $235,000 house in Pinewood would pay about $3,450 annually in taxes now,

Jeffrey and Connie Lips, with daughters Lindsey and Emily, will move into a Thoroughbred. It's their second new house.

"We wanted to stay within Canton and we wanted to move up in size," Jeffrey said. "The golf course is one thing that drew us, the green area and no one behind us. And I'm not even a golfer."

What about the model attracted the Lipas?

"The openness, how the kitchen flows pretty much into the family room," he said. "The master is really good size."

Brian and Lisa Lindbloom also will build a Thoroughbred.

"We were so impressed with the floor plan, living area, family room, nook, the way it's open," Brian said. "The cost of building this home compared with other developments was in line with what we wanted to spend.

"That pretty much swung the deal - comfort with the builders, floor plan and location with the golf course and recreation complex," Lindbloom said.

The sales office at Pinewood (313) 495-1577 is open 1-6 p.m.

And, I assume, you want to make sure the client la able to deliver the service because you don't need customers bad mouthing you if they can't cash in on their coupons.

Metry: Exactly.

We have restaurants, hair salons, fitness clubs, flower shops. We work from an exclusivity perspective: We would not approach two competing businesses from the same area.

We've dealt with over 150 different clients in Michigan, Florida and Chicago,

These businesses ultimately have to give a product or service to people who redeem coupons, yet you get to keep all the proceeds from the coupon sales. Is that good business sense?

Metry: They get 1,000 new people through their doors. Customer base increases. It brings the customer back in the door not one time, but 10 to 12 times a year. They'll come into the restaurant for an entree, but also buy drinks, beverages. People will come into a flower shop and pick up a bouquet (as part of a promotion). At Christmas, they will also book centerpleces.

How are you doing financial-

Metry: We do over half a million dollars in sales (annually). We've done more and less before.

People don't realize when you say half million, it doesn't include your expenses. Those include printing, design, commissions, training and all costs of execu-

We have four full time employees and 20 to 25 reps.

I don't have to look at a book. I know where I'm at all the time. I know where we have to be every day to succeed. Yes, we're there on average. We're there more often than not.

Do you have a business philosophy?

Metry: It's just positive attitude. The quicker you can get to a positive thought, the quicker you can grow, the quicker you can get to your goals.

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise—is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

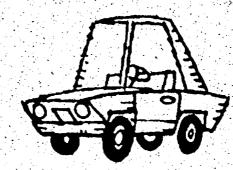

1. Cive the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the Item, service or Job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate) Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards

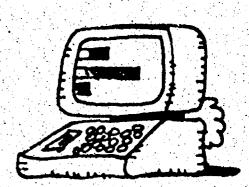

2, include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the Item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more Interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be: tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use:

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very Interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours. you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

'Big Cat' still struts stuff with long drives

By Brad Emons STAFF WRITER

Want to hit that golf ball a little farther than you like?

Rochester Hills' Evan "Big Cat" Williams is still the resident expert.

"I guess you could say I'm like a doctor on call," said Williams, the former long-drive champ who has made a handsome career doing exhibitions and clinics. "I don't have an agent, so I stay pretty busy. I stay so busy that I can't play in tourneys. I can't plan a schedule like other guys.

This year I have more on the books than I did last year, and it's pretty close to two years ago when I had a record number of appearances, but I can't complain."

At age 47, Williams has the PGA Senior Tour in the corner of his eye. He is less than three years away.

"I don't know how well I'll do," he said. "By not playing on the (regular) PGA Tour I need to go through Tour School. There are only limited spots or sponsor exemptions because former Tour regulars are guaranteed so many spots. If I could play 15 to 20 events a year I'd be thrilled to death, and I'd continue to do appearances.

Williams won back-to-back National Long Drive contests in 1976-77.

He still holds the National Long Drive record of 353 yards, 24 inches. He also set a record in France by crushing the ball 390 yards in the de Mercedes Long Drive in France.

He has made appearances in 26 countries ("Bermuda is my favorite spot on the world.") and 45 states. done commercials, TV commentary and authored a book.

After 20 years you still need a hook," said Williams, who has been affiliated with the Garland Resort for over 10 years. "I do a lot of the trick shots at clinics, It's been great. I'll continue to do it as long as people appreciate it. I still hit it an awfully long way, but maybe not as far as I once did when I was younger.

Although Chrysler dropped its sponsorship of the National Long Drive Championships last year, Williams is now involved with launching a clublevel Team Long Drive competition.

"It would start at the local clubs, the grass roots level," Williams said. "We'd go into the state, regional and eventually (four-person) national team competition. We'd also have various age-groups, 18 to 35, 36-50, 50-and-

A native of Englewood, N.J., the 6foot-6, 225-pound Williams was quite an athlete in his day.

Besides golf, Williams also lettered in football, basketball and track at Franklin College of Indiana. He holds school records for the longest punt, most rebounds in a game, as well as

Club has 'Taylor Made' feel

By At. HARRISON STAYP WRITER

When a bowling writer turns to golf, that is news. It's a fact that most of the bowlers also play golf.

Conversely, plenty of avid golfers take to the lanes as well.

The editors have decided to keep the readers informed on both topics, so here we are, our first golf story.

Actually, it is about a new product that is taking the country by storm, a hot-selling new driver called the Burner Metalwood with the Bubble Shaft, a product of Taylor Made.

A quick trip to Canton Corners Mall on Ford Road and Lilley took me to the Las Vegas Discount Golf & Tennis

The manager, John Moyers, a Canton resident, explained how and why this particular product is the sensation of the golfing scene right now. Over 500,000 units have been sold nationally since it's introduction just last Decem-

The reasons for this popularity are mainly due to the design of the shaft, in which they moved 10 percent of the weight from the grip end to the middle of the shaft. This increases the club head speed by 3 to 7 MPH, depending on the individual using it. The added speed translates to about 5 to 20 extra yards on the drive.

The unique graphite composite construction eliminates most of the "wave" reaction, or oscillation, resulting in a truer hit. The "burner head" is re-designed with the weight redistributed and together with the K-Sole giving a more solld feel and an expanded sweet spot on the club.

It has been doing very well on the PGA Tour lately as Kenny Perry used it for a first and second in his two tournaments, while Mark O'Meara has enjoyed a first place finish with it as well.

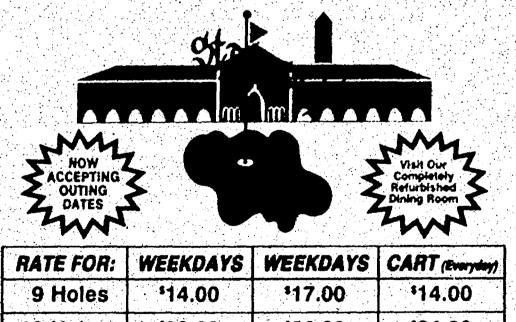

There are right and left hand models available with sizes 9, 9.5 and 10.5 to select from, as well as ladica and seniors models. The Bubble Shaft club is now the third most popular on the Pro Tour. It retails for under $300 with most shops selling at a discount even though the demand is very high.

Las Vegas Discount Golf and Tennis Is getting an ample supply of drivers right now, but Fairway woods are somewhat scarce. This store is owned by Jim Taylor of Plymouth Township. it is a 10,000-square feet full service facility with demos available on most all golf and tennis products, according to Moyers.

Taylor Made came out with their first 2-metal/wood about 15 years ago. The California-based company has been coming up very fast ever since:

It has been trying to overtake Callaway in popularity and claim that the Bubble Burner is superior to the Callaway War Bird in both distance and accuracy.

The Bubble shaft was over five years in the developmental stages. The large reinforced section of the shaft, known an the "bubble" provides greater accuracy due to the stability at impact.

Private community revealing

By RICHARD L. SHOOK

Roy Gaddey, a man with his roots in Plymouth, has a vision growing just north of Milford.

Gaddey, a 1972 Plymouth Salem graduate, is the managing general partner of Southeast Michigan's only private golf course residential community, Prestwick Village.

"Detroit is the fourth largest market for golf," Gaddey said. "Before we started this project it was the only top-16 market that didn't have a private residential course.

"You'll see places like it down in Florida and out west, but not here. It's not really a new concept — it's just new for this area."

Prestwick Village, located off M-59 three miles north of Milford, does differ from the norm in its field. It will sit 310 custom homes on 426 acres of natural rolling terrain featuring woodlands and water.

This is fewer homes than usual for a golf course development and Gaddey notes there is just one hole, No. 12, where homes sit on both sides of the fairway. The remainder have green space or water on one side.

In addition, "we wanted to get the homes further off the golf course," Gaddey said. "Most courses have a 280- to 300-foot corridor, rough to rough. Ours is 375-400 feet. And our course is 205 acres. The norm is about 165."

Today's typical development squeezes fairways until they're thinner than a Barbie doll's waist: "We took the opposite tack," he said. "We used more acreage, created more open space, to let the course have more breathing space. You don't feel like you're playing through a community and it also gives much greater protection to the homes."

The course designer was Ron Garl, who has a TPC course at Prestancia in Sarasota, Pla., on his resume in addition to several noted resort course.

"We think we have a top-20 course in the state of Michigan," Gaddey said. "We've had some pretty knowledgeable people walk the course and we'll put our finishing holes up against anybody's. Our last six are spectacular."

Gaddey played three years of varsity golf at Salem and also at Central Michigan. Gaddey went into high school teaching for eight years, coached basketball and golf at Clinton and South Lyon before going to Western Illinois to finish up work on his MBA. He was a graduate assistant on the basketball team while he was there.

Then Gaddey went to work for Executive Sports Marketing, which ran golf tournaments for the PGA Tour across the country, until splitting off to do the same thing under his own golf umbrella, Sportsmark, for nine years.

Prestwick Village is scheduled for opening Memorial Day weekend of 1996. It's sold 85 lots in its first six months of essentially pre-sales.

O'Neil in charge of U.S. Open

BY MARTY BUDNER STAFF WRITER

Mary O'Neil says people have described her job as "the pulse" of the 1996 U.S. Open.

Well, that pulse is gradually getting stronger and stronger.

O'Neil is Championship Administrator of the United States Open Championship that Oakland Hills will host a little more than a year from now. The golf tournament is not scheduled to be played until the week of June 10, 1996, but O'Neil continues to labor behind-the-scenes in preparation for that one week of championship golf.

It's a job she enjoys, but, she says, it's an enormous task that most people don't understand.

"People are amazed and can't believe that I start so far in advance to get ready for a one-week tournament," says O'Neil from her small, two-room office located inside the historic Oakland Hills clubhouse.

"The general public basically just walks into the gates and knows that it's a great event — they just don't know what it takes to put on a major event," she says. "They take for granted the signs that are put up; the locations of the Port-A-Johns; things like that. They take a lot of things for granted."

O'Neil was hired last year by Oakland Hills as Championship Administrator for the 1996 Open. She worked as Championship Coordinator for the club's previous major championship the 1991 U.S. Senior Open tournament.

Although the titles are nearly identical, O'Neil has many more responsibilities this time around.

As chief administrator to General Chairman A. H. Maass, O'Neil, 39, is in charge of such areas as committee coordination, scheduling meetings, working with volunteers, filling hospitality venues, securing bus routes and hotel space, and working out security, among other chores.

"It's hard for us because we're not a repeating tournament. Every tournament we basically start from scratch and we try to remember from past tournaments," says O'Neil. "There are always new areas to work with and new challenges. Challenge is a good word for this job just because you never know from one day to the next what is going to happen. You have to know your priorities. . . . what has to be done and when it has to be done."

Helping to coordinate and communicate with the various executive committees is one of the bigger aspects of her job. O'Neil says there are more than 3,000 volunteers who will serve on more than 90 administrative committoes including such things as Player Hospitality and Registration, Pre-Tournament Accounting, and Sales Training.

"It seems to be picking up around here every day, especially now since we're getting the membership involved with volunteering for the jobs that we have," she says.

ASTAR system gives golfers 1 less excuse

Another decade or so and the only thing left to blame for poor golf will be our ancestors.

They're slowly taking away equipment as an excuse for a high golf score. And the course, of course, can always be changed to your liking.

The advent of oversize clubfaces means even a slightly off-center swing can produce an on-center shot. Balla with high-compression centers go like a moon shot, while altering the dimple pattern can turn hooks or slices into halfs that can only be lost if you can't walk a straight line.

With carts you can retain freshness and strength to the last hole, so fatigue is out as reason for that serial score.

And now computers are galloping into the game, which means you may seem lose your own bad form to blame for an unreportable round.

Videotape, with its instant playback ability (as if the average golfer likes looking at his or her awing), is popular because golf professionals can slow down or freeze frame a student's swing as an aid to correcting flaws.

But ASTAR takes that a step further with a digital video system that relies on a computer to record, replay or compare an average golfer's awing with a professional's or a model swing.

ASTAR scored a coup when it signed up Rick Smith of Treetops, one of the hottest and most innovative teachers in golf, as a spokesman.

Smith, among whose clients are Jack Nicklaus and recent TPC winner Lee Janzen, was among the first to use videctape to illustrate to golfers what they needed to do to get the club to the right place at the right time.

He was featured at the Teaching & Training Summit in New Orleans last November "and they gave me a wonderful center-stage platform."

"I used the ASTAR technology in my presentation in terms of showing shaft angles and shoulder plane angles and showing where different people swing the club in terms of right before Impact their approach is very similar, their actual impacts are very similar," Smith added. "It just shows that there are a lot of ways to do it, but the ASTAR really was wonderful in demonstrating it, which I think is going to be good for the future of teaching. I'm spending more time with the system and I'm trying to help people to teach better with it."

What the system does to golfers is give them instant feedback. Golfers can record a swing, check it against an ideal, made an adjustment and immediately see the results of the change.

They can record up to 10 swings, review each with slow motion replay, save one and have the instructor feview it and add comments for the next practice.

Swings can be compared with something stored in the system library. Or analyzed side-by-side with a professional's.

A perfect stick-figure's swing can be used for comparison or multi-color graphics can be added. All come at the touch of a button.

"It's that immediate visual feedback that accelerates learning," Smith said, "and it does improve my teaching."

ASTAR can be used indoors, as a stand-alone outdoor system or attached to a cart for use on the course.

The instant analysis ASTAR allows removes yet another item on the list of golfer excuses for a mediocre acore.

Which just about limits us our genes

the bodies we inherited from our parents and grandparents — as the reason for that less than lofty round.

And weight trainers say that can do something about that . . .

Act fast for U.S. Open tickets

BY MARTY BUDNER STAFF WRITER

Do you want tickets for the 1996 United States Open Championship at Oakland Hills Country Club?

Here's a suggestion: act fast, or at least plan on obtaining tickets way. ahead of time.

The 96th U.S. Open tournament will be held the week of June 10-16, 1996. Practice rounds are scheduled for June 10-12 and championship rounds for June 13-16.

In the past, the public could obtain tickets at the gate or at various sites around the area because ticket sales were coordinated through Oakland Hills officials. That won't be the case for the 1996 U.S. Open,

The United States Golf Association (USGA), which sponsors the annual tournament, will handle all ticket sales this time around. USGA and local officials expect a sell-out four-to-six months prior to the tournament.

"There is a different procedure this year (for ticket sales) and it is a concern of mine," says Mary O'Neil, Championship Administrator of the 1996 U.S. Open. "We do have such a great community here that has supported the Open. There is an enthusiastic golf crowd around here and it is expected to be sold out four-to-six months in advance.

"It's important the public knows you can't go up to the gate and buy tickets. We want our local people who have supported us to get their tickets. We don't want to disappoint anyone.

"This is going to be new to everyone. There has never been a sold-out crowd. We expect to have 35,000 people here a day," she says. "(Tickets) won't be tough to get as long as they get them early."

General ticket sales will be made available directly from the USGA shortly after the 1995 tournament scheduled to be played this June at Shinnecock Hills in Southampton, New York.

For ticket information, call the USGA in Far Hills, N.J. at 1-(908)-234-9393. For Oakland Hills U.S. Open merchandise information call 1-800-525-1996.

Glenhurst has greener look

By STRVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

With an unexpected blanket of anow on the ground recently, Nick Hawthorne might have had trouble convincing people of the improvements made at Glenhurst Golf Club in Redford Township.

That's fine with Hawthorne, comanager of the club, who knows it might be mid-summer before he truly appreciates the fruits of the renovation project.

Glenhurst, which opened in 1932, has installed new drainage and irrigation systems which should make the fairways as green and healthy as the greens and tees. As soon as Mother Nature cooperates, of course.

"We're always noted for the finest greens around due to our superintendent Mark Samp and assistant superintendent (David Detter)," Hawthorne said. "We've always watered our tees, greens and a few landing areas, but you get a dry spell in August and the ball would roll 100 yards (in the fairway). From now on it'll be very plush, beautiful, look like a country club.'

The renovation began in the fall of 1993 with the installation of the drainage system. A new irrigation system was started last fall and is almost complete, he said.

Also new are the tees at holes 2, 3, 7 and 9.

Golfers might not recognize No. 7, which has been reduced from a long par-5 to a 280-yard par 4 because of a retention basin that will be installed this summer.

Hawthorne said the hole will return to its usual length next season.

The club helped kick off the 1995 season on April 8 with the 17th annual Glenhurst Memorial, which included: 156 golfers.

'I was glad the snow fell Sunday (April 9) so we were able to play,' Hawthorne said.

Glenhurst is one of the busier public clubs in the state, hosting an average of 400 golfers per day during the peak time of year, according to Hawthorne.

Hawthorne's cousin, John Hawthorne Jr., is co-manager of Glenhurst. Keeping the club in the family is nothing new.

Dewey Hawthorne and his brothersin-law Walter Nacker and Clayton Nacker converted a farm at the site on Six Mile Road between Beech Daly and Telegraph roads into a golf course during the Great Depression. Dewey's sons, Bob Hawthorne and John Hawthorne Sr., managed the course for several years before handing the operations to the current management team.

Nick Hawthorne said he laughed the other day when the subject of paying workers during the Great Depression came up in conversation.

'Workers were paid $2 a day and $3 if they brought their own team of horses with them," Nick said.

Hawthorne said one thing that didn't need recent improvement is the concession stand.

We serve great hamburgers and hot dogs and a lot of beer."

New clubs feature wider faces in '95

BY BILL PARKER

Modern technology continues to improve and reshape the tools of athletic competition. In the game of golf, this translates into innovative changes in clubs, bags, even balls. As the golf season tees-off at local courses and country clubs the trend for 1995 seems to follow the lines of the "bigger is better" cliche.

With oversized hitting surfaces and weight-forward shafts, the 1995 line of golf clubs are designed to enhance consistency and accuracy, even improve your swing speed.

Shafts have undergone some positive changes as manufacturers are now adjusting weight and kick-points to match the golfer's swing speed.

The Taylor Made Burner Bubble Shaft, for example, features an innovative weighting structure. Taylor Made has moved some of the weight from the grip area down the shaft to provide faster acceleration, adding distance to your drives without having to swing any harder.

Some clubs, like the Nicklaus Bear, are even rated in miles-per-hour according to the swing speed of the individual.

"It's important for people to get help finding their swing speed and matching their club to that swing speed," explained John Barich, general manager of Bavarian Village Ski & Golf shops. "it's easier and better to buy a club that's helping you instead of one you're constantly fighting. People should try to find a shaft that matches strength and speed so they can get maximum distance and maximum control."

The use of graphite in shaft construction has also been a big boon for manufacturers, enabling them to adjust the kick-point. In the past, the kick-point, the spot at which the club gives upon impact, has traditionally been in the middle of the shaft. Now, many manufacturers are raising the kick-point on the lower irons and lowering it on the high irons, reducing the potential for hooks and slices.

Oversized irons, such as the new Bear Irons by Nicklaus, feature enlarged effective hitting areas in the smaller irons. The surface area of a Bear 3-iron, for example, is nearly the same as an 8- or 9-iron. This added surface makes the smaller irons a little more forgiving.

Callaway has introduced the Big Bertha Irons to go along with its popular Big Bertha Metal Woods. Through the use of a patented, undercut channel Calloway has been able to move the weight away from the face of the clubhead and created perimeter weighting 360-degrees around the clubhead. This big, "consistently-thin" steel face offers stability and alleviates hot spots and dead spots.

Top-Flite and Ram have each introduced a line of oversized golf balls.

The circumference of the ball is bigger," explained Barich. "The idea is that the bigger ball will spin less and be more accurate."

Although the balls are noticeably bigger, they're still within the Professional Golf Association standards.

Brighter colors and a variety of patterns are taking some of the duliness out of golf bags these days.

Golfers can now choose from patterns, plads and brighter shades of the traditional colors.

bag especially for women featuring a matching purses that clips safely to the side of the bag. They're available in a variety of colors and floral patterns.

Another beg gaining popularity is the Bennington Walker, which features a pair of legs that fold out from the side of the bag when you stand it up. If you think everything stays the same you better reconsider. Innovations and modern technology are enabling manufactures to create exciting new golf products quicker than you can say double bogey.

No matter what the level of play, golf is a game where you have to be in shape to play. The beginning of another golf season is upon us and the best way to thoroughly enjoy it is to be in shape right from the opening swings. The most effective way to do that is to set up an exercise schedule that includes such activities as toe touches, knee bends, sit uos. push ups, turning and twisting (with a club placed behind your back). It is especially important to follow these rules on cold weather days.

All of the exercises are important and go a long way in getting muscles in shape to play a better game of golf.

Physical fitness has become such a necessity that trailers are set up for professionals to use while touring the country. If it's good enough for those guys, you know it has to be good enough for the average golfer.

Without the proper exercise, bad posture and poor balance can result when addressing the golf ball. When this happens nothing else you try and do with the swing is going to be correct. All of this leads back to whether the muscles are ready to take on the golf swing. Muscles must be stretched out thoroughly to put in motion an effective swing.

Once you have worked on the conditioning part, it is then time to turn your attention to awinging the golf club. The best way to start is with your short irons (pitching wedge, nine or seven) to loosen up muscles and get the adrenaline flowing. Make certain your posture and belance is correct. With your swing in motion, make sure you finish with your weight on the outside of your left foot and back toward your left heel. All of this is vital in finishing correctly and in a well-balanced position.

As you go along the part of the body that may feel the effects from inactivity are the fingers and hands. This is not unusual, but can be eased somewhat by relaxing the tension when gripping the golf club. Too often golfers have the tendency to squeeze the club so tightly that tension in the forearms and upper body prevents the ability to perform a smooth and flowing swing.

Old or worn grips will cause more energy, more tightness and more tension to hold onto the club.

When hitting golf balls early in the year search for accuracy. Don't jump into hitting the long clubs. Keep it simple, keep it short, get some feel back, some timing, some rhythm and more importantly gain some confi-

If you're hitting well, take out the 3. wood or driver for the last dozen golf shots. Don't get discouraged, though, if you didn't them as well because you have to continue to work your way up,

Each time you awing make sure you are set up properly because good things happen by themselves with normal body reaction.

Remember golf is a sport and you have to get your body ready to play. The best thing to look for is continuity and fundamentals (grip, posture, halance and weight shift) early on. Without those it's pretty tough.

O.K. guys, do you cringe when you see women ahead of you on a golf course? Do you worry about slow or erratic play? That's a common perception, according to Troy's Sandy O'Mal-

And that perception is what the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association (WMGA) is attempting to change.

"We're trying to get rid of that stigma, that when men see women at the course, it's 'oh, no!"' said O'Malley, the Association's Treasurer.

The 100 women in the WMGA are "probably the best women golfers in the area," O'Malley says. The organization holds weekly tournaments from mid-spring until fall, on a different public course each week.

"We're trying to get women to improve," O'Mailey explains. "You do that by playing. Especially in tournaments like these. You're concentrating that whole round. You're not visiting, chit-chatting or playing slow.

Indeed, in her seven years playing in the WMGA, O'Malley has lowered her handicap from 23 to 17.

And the group has enough low-handicap players to turn even mens' heads.

"They see some women tee it off, they just can't believe it. They go 'wow"' O'Malley says.

But proving themselves to men isn't the reason that women play in WGMA events. Rather, they play for the same reason men do, because they enjoy the game and they love to compete.

"That's why we belong to this organization," O'Malley says. "We like the competition, It helps your game. We're not just playing for the social end of it. It's more for the game itself. We play by USGA (United States Golf Association) rules. We try to follow the rules: very strictly. We set up each week as a tournament. We have a committee that sets up tees in a championship (position).'

Often, the committee must lengthen the normal women's tees.

"This organization has played the white tees on many occasions," O'Malley reports. "A lot of courses really shorten the tees for women. When you have someone who's almost shooting par, it's not good for her game."

The WMGA began in 1935 at Troy's Sylvan Glen course, when a pro suggested to some women players that they organize themselves for medal play tournaments. Since then, the organization has held tournaments every Wednesday. Trophies go to the winners of the amateur events.

This year, the organization will hold 19 or 20 tournaments, including one match play event. A 60th anniversary celebration will be held during the Aug. 16 tournament, at the Greystone Golf Club in Washington.

These 18 holes can challenge every golfer

By Chris Mayer

Oakland County is ideal if golf is your game. With plenty of challenging public courses and a multitude of breath-taking private clubs, the county certainly rates as one of Michigan's hot spots for the sport.

"We have some great courses down here," said Pat Croswell, golf professional at Oakland Hills Country Club in Bloomfield Hills. "I think the courses we have in this area are more of the traditional-style; in Northern Michigan they are more of the modern architecture."

Golfers are flocking to the links with the arrival of spring, so here is a collective, albeit unscientific, 18-hole look at some of the area's more difficult and picturesque holes (ranked in no specific order).

1. OAKLAND HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, SOUTH COURSE, No. 16 — Why not start with one of the very best? Considered the signature hole on the famed South Course, this par-4 beauty plays as long as 405 yards for tour players. An extremely shallow green is wide on the dogleg right and guarded by a pond on the front and right. The bunkering behind the green is severe to catch any long abota, but a key is driving the tee shot in the fairway to control the second abot.

2. INDIANWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, OLD COURSE, No. 17 — The per-3 17th hole, which plays 200 yards from the championship tees, ranked the toughest at the 1994 U.S. Women's Open, allowing 25 birdies in four rounds. A tee shot to the left will catch a bunker or bound downhill, and on the right is a 5,500 square-foot bunker. The ball can find the rough driving too long, while putting on the two-level green is difficult.

3. BIRMINGHAM COUNTRY CLUB,
No. 6 — The 384-yard par 4 is the course's algnature hole and part of a tough five-hole stretch on the front nine. The dogleg right is bordered by a large pond on the right and a fairway bunker on the left so a precision tee shot is required. The bunker-protected green is surrounded by water on both sides and back. "The see shot is semi-intimideting," said Carl Patron, the club's golf professional.
"You can't go too far to the left and the fairway slopes to the water."

4. KATKE COUSINS GOLF COURSE, No. 4 — Oakland University's Kathe Cousins is home to this enquisite per 4 that plays 472 yards from the gold tees. A big tee shot (approximately 280 yards) is necessary to get past the dogleg right and a river comes into play on the approach. It doesn't get any easier around the green where bunkers are strategically played on the front size.

5: STONYCROFT HILLS GOLF CLUB,
No. 8 — The club's professional, Jake Pilat, says the green on this straighteway 448-yard par 4 is scheduled to be enlarged from 1,200 to 6,500 square feet in July. But it will remain a difficult hole. The landing area is narrow followed by a blind second shot going downhill with out of bounds on the right and a line of pine trees on the left. The green is well-bunkared with water behind. "It's a good hole.
There are a lot of roles and hills, and you have to have a really long tee shot just to see the hole." Pilat said.

6. LINKS AT PINEWOOD, No. 15. — Water is a major concern on this 452-yard par 4 (blue tees). A well-placed drive is important since a pond comes into play about 270 yards out. The fairway narrows for the approach shot to a large, undulating green with a hump in the middle. The fairway is usually damp so roll on the tee shot is minimal, and bogeys on this hole aren't uncommon.

7. FRANKLIN HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, No. 6 — The 426-yard par-4 sixth hole is difficult to reach in regulation because of the approach. A narrow, elevated green is protected by three bunkers and a short-iron shot might be the best bet. Hitting behind the green can result in going out of bounds. An elevated tee overlooks a left-to-right fairway and woods can come into play on the right.

8. FOREST LAKE COUNTRY CLUB,
No. 17 — Forest Lake golf pro, Tom Van Haaren, believes this 213-yard monster is the hardest par 3 in Oakland County — with no water. No. 17 plays uphill to a small green with potential hazards on both sides. Pine trees border on the left and straying to the right could leave the ball in a deep ravine filled with thick grees.

9. BAY POINTE GOLF CLUB, No. 15—While a relatively short par 4 (368 yards), this doging left has been recognized as one of the state's best holes. An adventurous approach shot deals with a lake on the left, a swamp area on the right and a canal that jute across the fairway about 25 yards in the front of the green. "It's a great hole," said Bay Pointe's club pro, Tim McRoberts. "We've put in all new seawalls (for the water hexards.)"

10. THE HEATHERS CLUB, No. 8 — A narrow landing area is just one of the treacherous features of this 378-yard par 4. Golfers must face a berm on the left and water on the right while attempting to reach an hourglass-shaped green. The green is well-bunkered, preventing running the ball up to the pin, and slopes to one side. "I think it's one of the hardest holes ever designed," said Paul Fichter, The Heathers' golf pro.

11. ORCHARD LAKE COUNTRY CLUB, No. 15 - A medium to long-range iron into a difficult two plateau green is required on this straightsway 443-yard par 4. The tee shot usually travels into a prevailing wind and trees line both sides of the fairway. It can be tough once on the green depending on the pin placement.

12. TAM O'SHANTER COUNTRY CLUB, No. 14 - Cutting the corner on this long par 4, dogleg right might be dangerous. The hole, 426 yards from the championship tees, starts high on a hill and goes down across a creek to the landing area. The shot back into a fairly large green is slightly uphill with out of bounds on the right and trees and rough to the

18. TWIN BRACH COUNTRY CLUB. No. 12 - This 355 yard, par-4 dogleg to the left starts from a 40-foot elevated tee. Water comes into play off the tee and golfers must contend with a nerrow landing area. An imposing oak tree can affect the second shot to a green of multiple breaks and bunkered on both

14. INDIANDWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Old Course, No. 9 - This par-4 hole (343 yards from the back tees) usually calls for a long iron off the tee to the top a steep hill at: the base of a dogleg right. Golfers must beware of out of bounds on the right and rough on the feft. The downhill approach, with the majestic clubbouse in view, travels to a severely-sloping green. The entrance to the right side of the green is guarded and lined by bunkers.

18. PLUM HOLLOW COUNTRY CLUB. No. 4 - Sam Snead discovered how tough this per-4 hole can play, carding a 10 during the 1957 Western Open. The straightaway layout parallels 9 Mile Road and plays as long as 450 yards; a good drive is crucial. Out of bounds comes into play all along the right aide, and golfers must be careful of green-side bunkers to the right.

16 ROCHESTER HILLS GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, No. 6 - People driving along the M-59 freeway can catch a glimpee of the course, and drive is the key word when tackling this 451-yard par 4. A long tee shot is necessary for any chance of reaching a protected green in two shots. For those brave golfers hoping to create a birdle opportunity, a water hazard sits in front of the green.

17. THE HEATHERS CLUB, No. 8 -Golfers have to hit a solid tee shot to conquer this long 209-yard par 3. Drives must carry over all wetlands to reach a green that runs from left to right. "It's just a very intimidating tee shot," Pichter said.

18. OAKLAND HILLS COUNTRY CLUB, SOUTH COURSE, No. 14 — The longest par 4 (473 yards) on the Bocentric's list and the first of five extremely tough finishing holes on the South Course, No. 14 is a alight dogleg right. Trees line both sides of the fairway, but the difficulties of the approach make the hole a classic. The second shot can be played to a terraced green with a good drive. The putting surface is protected with front bunkers both left and right with a swale running from the front of the green to the back
