Tentative pact OK'd with teachers

One school board member already says she won't support a proposed contract for Wayne-Westland teachers, who have been without a pact since Aug. 29. The school board is expected to vote on the tentative agreement on May 8.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland teachers have a tentative contract agreement that was reached Tuesday between union leaders and the school board's bargaining team, both sides confirmed.

The 1,000-member Wayne-Westland Education Association is expected to consider ratifying the proposed pact on May 8, just hours before the school board would vote on it if teachers approve it.

Neither side would divulge specific details of the proposal, but a board-approved budget-reduction plan, approved Monday evening, hints at a reduced teaching workforce.

The board expects to save $1.9 million by "reallocating" WWEA members. In essence, the move would streamline staff and reduce 43 positions without causing layoffs, said Dan Slee, assistant superintendent for employee services.

The measure wouldn't force layoffs because 160 teachers already plan to leave the district when the school year concludes, in return for a $50,000 buyout and district-paid taxes of $14,000. Not every teacher would be replaced.

Tuesday's tentative agreement followed months of negotiations. Teachers have been working without a contract since Aug. 29.

On Monday, school board member Vicki Welty said she won't support the contract, though she wasn't specific about her opposition.

"I'm not being wishy-washy. I'll tell you right now I don't like it," Welty told her colleagues.

Other board members reserved comment on the agreement, which would require a majority vote of the seven-member board.

Superintendent Larry Thomas said the proposed pact conforms with the Special teacher to retire in June

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Years from now, when Jane Schwyn's students look back on their sixth-grade experiences, they will remember much more than geography lessons, math problems and homework assignments.

They will remember a teacher who sat with them at hockey games, who helped them to publish a magazine, and who let them submit words for spelling lists, cleverly encouraging them to read.

Cable company to buy 4 more systems

Continental Cablevision, which owns the system serving Westland, has announced an agreement to buy four cable television systems serving 55,000 subscribers in Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw and Jackson counties.

The agreement with N-Com Limited partnership II, which operates the Omnicom of Michigan, Omnicom CATV, Clear Cablevision and Irish Hills Cablevision systems in 28 communities, still is subject to approval of municipal and federal authorities, executives at both companies said. The transaction is expected to be completed in the second half of this year.

Continental, the third-largest cable operator in the nation with more than three million customers, also is the third-largest operator in Michigan, currently serving more than 209,000 subscribers in 31 communities throughout the southern lower peninsula.

Continental senior vice president Richard Weigand said:

"We look forward to serving these communities and making them a part of the Continental family," Weigand said. "As telecommunications technology continues to evolve, so too does Continental, and we are pleased that the customers served by these systems will be the direct beneficiaries of that process."

In addition to Continental's existing communities and those currently served by N-Com, the company also announced late last year the pending purchase of Columbia Cable of Michigan, with 75,000 customers in Ann Arbor, Brighton, Howell, Ypsilanti and surrounding communities in Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Upon completion of that purchase and the N-Com purchase, Continental will serve more than 339,000 customers in Michigan.

Police Officer of Year named

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Patrol officer Steve Borisch leads the Westland Police Department in street arrests involving illegal guns, drunken drivers and drug offenses, his superiors say.

For that, a three-member police panel chose him as Police Officer of the Year in a competition sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Harris Kehrer Post 3323 in Westland.

"It was humbling," Borisch, 43, said. "I was surprised.

Borisch joined the Westland department five years ago after working for 15 years at the Inkster Police Department, where he was a patrol officer, a shift supervisor and a detective.

"He has kind of worn all the hats," said Westland Lt. Daniel Pfannes, Borisch's supervisor.

Borisch said he enjoys the camaraderie of being a police officer, though he knows his chosen profession can be a dangerous one.

"You think about the danger," he said, "but you don't think about it long. You just do your job."

Borisch took more guns off of Westland's streets than any other police officer during a one-year period ending last summer, and he led the department in drunken driving arrests in 1994, Pfannes said.

Kevin Riley

Fire Officer of Year honored

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

In a job where mere seconds can mean the difference between saving or losing a life, Westland Fire Department Capt. Kevin Riley has made tangible efforts to make the city safer.

- He developed a comprehensive firefighter training course aimed at protecting Westland's high-rise buildings, an accomplishment that should make apartment dwellers feel safer.
- He helped Garden City and Wayne design similar programs.
- He coordinated Westland's transition last year to a central dispatch system for the fire and police departments.
- He developed a new training program for newly hired firefighters ... the best program the city has ever had, said Mark Neal, assistant fire chief.

"The program is so impressive that other firefighters on the department have stated, with envy, that they wished they had received the same sort of training now offered by Capt. Riley," Neal said.

Riley's efforts prompted Neal to nominate him as Fire Officer of the Year in a program sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Harris Kehrer Post 3323 in Westland.

See RILEY, 2A

He arrested more than 50 drunken drivers, Pfannes said, though an exact number wasn't available because statistics for one month weren't complete. Borisch is slated to receive an award from Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Borisch also was involved in 16 percent of the department's narcotics cases during the last year, Pfannes said. With 100 police officers in the department, Borisch would have been pulling his weight if he had been involved in only 1 percent of the cases, Pfannes said.

Borisch's efforts led to the seizure of $9,200 in drug monies, Pfannes said.

On the homefront, Borisch and his wife, Cindy, have one daughter, 7-year-old Corey Lynn.

Borisch, who was honored Saturday during a VFW hall ceremony, preferred not to say where he lives.

"A lot of drug dealers don't like me," he said. "I keep taking their cars and dope."

Cleanup helpers needed

Nature enthusiasts are being urged to pitch in Saturday to help with the second annual Earth Week cleanup at Sassafras Trails, a large nature preserve northeast of Palmer and Wildwood.

Participants will meet at 9 a.m. at the former Wilson Elementary School on Wildwood Road, between Palmer and Avondale, said Daniel Vega, a member of Friends of Sassafras Trails.

"Everyone willing and able is invited to come help remove debris that may harm the preserve's natural beauty, as well as to take this opportunity to enjoy this rare wilderness right in your own back yard," the group said in a press release announcing the event.

Scores of participants joined last year's cleanup. Those joining Saturday's effort are encouraged to wear long sleeves, long pants, boots or old shoes, and work gloves.

The citizens group formed to protect the land when word spread nearly two years ago that the property owner, the Wayne-Westland school board, might sell the property to ease a budget crunch.

The board has since retreated from any discussion about selling the land.

Even more striking, they will remember a teacher who loved her Fischer Elementary job so much that she met with her students during the summer vacation months.

Under the shade of a tree on the school lawn, Schwyn welcomes her students to meet with her one afternoon a week. The pupils bring sandwiches and drinks; she brings cookies.

They sit on a blanket as the conversation inevitably turns to reading.

"We eat our lunch and talk about books," Schwyn said, during an after-school interview in her classroom. "We talk about our lives, and we usually read a little bit while we're there."

Her students even came up with a quirky name for the club: MUTTFLAB. Separating the syllables won't reveal any clues about the meaning. "MUTT" has nothing to do with dogs, and "FLAB" doesn't refer to body fat.

Rather, MUTTFLAB simply means Meet Under The Tree For Lunch And Books. As many as 17 students attended some sessions last summer.

Jennifer Thompson, 12, is eager for this summer's sessions.

Learning lessons

"I want to see the other students again and learn more about the things that Mrs. Schwyn will teach us," she said. "She's my favorite teacher. She meets us at (Junior Red Wings) hockey games, and we all sit together."

Donnie Williams, 12, said students actually enjoy staying after school some days to work on "32 Magazine," named after Schwyn's room number.

Published twice this year, the magazine features poetry, advice columns, weather forecasts, puzzles, quizzes, comic strips, short stories and surveys. Creativity drips off the margin of every page.

"I love my job," Schwyn said. "It's a good job."

Carl Vervisch, 12, said his vocabulary has increased because Schwyn lets students submit words for spelling lists.

"We look them up in the dictionary," he said. "They're more challenging than the regular words in the spelling book."

Schwyn also encourages her students to become involved in the Wayne-Westland school community. They won a pizza party for designing fire-prevention posters in a contest sponsored by the Westland Fire Department.

On the day that the Observer dropped by Schwyn's classroom, an Adams Junior High student came by for a hug and a smile from her former teacher.

"She's a very special teacher," Jessica Savage, 13, said. "I had a problem in math, and she gave me special attention."

Teachers in family

Schwyn has been teaching for 27 years at Fischer, located at 466 N. John Daly in Dearborn Heights. The school serves students from the Inkster portion of the Wayne-Westland district. She also taught for four years in Ohio, where her family moved from her Pennsylvania birthplace.

Several of Schwyn's relatives, including her father, were teachers, and she recalls wanting to be a teacher when she was in first grade.

"I had a wonderful first-grade teacher," she said.

Schwyn and her husband Robert, a physician, share a love for traveling. Their two adult daughters have their own lives now, and the Schwyns have time to travel to such places as China, Europe and Africa. Schwyn tries to incorporate her travels into her teaching.

The sad news is that Schwyn won't be returning to the classroom next fall. She has chosen to retire in the same year that school officials are closing Fischer and moving pupils to other schools to save money.

"It could be the biggest mistake of my life," she said, showing some apprehension about leaving the classroom.

"She is interested in the total child. She helps them feel successful personally and educationally," said Carol Johnson, executive director of elementary education. "I was most impressed that she would volunteer her time in the summer to assist students with reading skills. She's not just a teacher on paper, and she's not just committed with words. She's committed with actions."

While being interviewed, Schwyn shows a glimpse of the dreamer inside by shifting the conversation to thoughts of winning a multi-million-dollar lottery.

"I would love to be able to buy this school and keep it open from 6 in the morning until 10 at night," she said. "There would be academic hours, and students could come by if they needed to talk. The library would be open late. Dinner would be served, and students could get help with their homework."

It's a lottery dream worthy of any teacher. But Schwyn's students may have a lesson for her.

They've already hit the jackpot.

When he learned that he had been chosen for the award, he said, "I was surprised."

Riley, a Westland resident formerly of Garden City, said he knew at an early age that he wanted to be a firefighter. At age 34, he has been with the Westland department for 12½ years, serving in his current rank for 1½ years.

He works out of Fire Station No. 1 at Ford Road and Carlson, next to Westland City Hall.

"Kevin Riley is involved in just about every major program that we have going," Neal said. "He has great organizational skills, he's a great educator, and he has a good demeanor."

Riley, still a frontline firefighter, said he gets an adrenalin rush when a major emergency, such as an apartment fire, occurs.

"You feel more of the charge before you arrive on the scene," he said. "When you get there, all of the training kicks in."

Riley's father was a National Guard firefighter, and one of Riley's sons, 4-year-old Joshua, is already talking about wanting to follow in his father's footsteps.

Riley and his wife, Cece, also have two others sons, Jacob, 7, and Lucas, 2.

"Every time they go (to the station), they have to get in a fire truck," Riley said.

Riley said he is proud to work for the Westland Fire Department, which he called "a leader" in firefighting programs and emergency medical services.

Family won't let Parkinson's destroy their lives

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Pierce Joseph Butler was 36 when the trembling in his hands got so bad that he went to see a doctor.

Simple tasks such as writing had become difficult, but he managed to hide the problem from his wife, Ruth. He didn't want to worry her.

Pierce had a promising career as an insurance claims supervisor, and he and Ruth were expecting their fifth child. They later had a sixth.

Life had been good for the Westland couple.

"We used to go out dancing until our legs ached," Ruth recalls.

That all changed one winter day when Pierce was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, the same condition that crippled his father.

"It was devastating," Ruth said. "All of a sudden our balloon had burst."

Experts believe the slowly progressive disorder, which affects 35,000 people in Michigan, is caused by a chemical imbalance in the brain. There is no known cure for the disease that rarely strikes people younger than 40.

Now 70, Pierce suffers from tremors, rigid muscles and weakness. He can walk slowly on his own, though he sometimes suffers from a symptom that leaves him frozen like a statue.

"He freezes when he goes to get into a car," Ruth said. "He freezes in an airplane and can't turn to get in his seat."

During one episode at home, Pierce fell to the floor and lay there for hours until Ruth, 69, came home from work. A longtime nurse, she works at the McAuley Center retirement home in Farmington Hills.

"Do you know how that made me feel when I found him on the floor? Guilty," she said, wiping a tear as she sat beside Pierce on a love seat at their Westland home. They've lived on the north-end street of August since 1956.

Pierce has survived two heart attacks, skin cancer, a knee replacement and severe arthritis in his neck and spine. He has fought periodic bouts with depression and has had many sleepless nights.

Medication helps, but even when he appears to be having a good day, he said, "I'm shaking all over inside."

When Pierce, a World War II veteran, was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, there were no support groups like the Western Wayne Parkinson's Support Group, a Livonia-based group that Ruth co-chairs.

"It was almost a shame to have the disease," Ruth recalls. "People with Parkinson's were often accused of being drunk."

Pierce managed to work part-time for 20 years after his diagnosis, running an insurance business out of his home and working as a Westland District Court security officer.

But the bulk of family responsibility fell on Ruth, and she said Pierce had a difficult time accepting his diminished role as a provider.

Ruth vowed to make their lives as normal as possible.

Family raised

"When company came, he wasn't going to be put in the back bedroom," she said. "He was going to be included in everything."

The Butlers managed to put their children, all adults now, through Catholic schools. The youngsters never knew of the financial struggle their parents were having.

Even when the couple lacked the medical coverage they needed, they never asked relatives for help.

"We couldn't go out and buy six new bikes every Christmas," Ruth said, "but we gave our kids what we could.

"I also decided that the children wouldn't push their father aside," she said. "More than anything, I think the children resented a disease that took their father from them."

Pierce knows how lucky he was to have a wife like Ruth.

"It meant the world to me," he said.

The Butler children, some of whom live nearby and often visit, helped reward their mother last year by nominating her for the Raymond B. Bauer Humanitarian Award, in honor of the founder of the Michigan Parkinson Foundation.

Ruth won, though she had never sought recognition for her volunteer work. Among her many efforts, she finds wheelchairs for the needy, visits homebound patients, steers people to helpful agencies, and writes a monthly newsletter.

Inspiration

Gloria Craig, the foundation's patient service coordinator, said those who know Ruth are inspired by her many roles as "wife, mother, caregiver, support group leader, educator, friend and confidante.

"Ruth has championed the welfare of people with Parkinson's for many years," Craig said. "She continues to strive to lighten the load on people with Parkinson's disease."

At home, Ruth has seen to it that Pierce has special rails in the bathroom and on his bed, a lift chair in the family room and a deck ramp in the back yard. Pierce has "talking" books now that he has difficulty holding novels.

Pierce hasn't driven a car for 18 years. But while Ruth is working, he does what house chores he can, such as putting away dishes, to help out. Sometimes he becomes too tired and can't finish.

"I'm tired all the time," he said.

Through trying years, Ruth's religious faith has helped her to carry on.

"I don't know what I'd do without my faith," she said. "Our children have been wonderful to us, too."

Benefit walk set

Currently, Ruth is involved in a half-mile walk-a-thon that will benefit the Michigan Parkinson's Foundation. The event, in which participants raise pledges, is scheduled for the morning of May 20 at the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus. For information, call 745-2000. Donations can be made without participating.

Pierce has a theory about how his wife juggles so many responsibilities.

"She makes the time. It's the old story: If you want something done, give it to a busy person."

Said Ruth: "If I only reach one person out of a million, I will feel like I have succeeded."

The support group co-chaired by Ruth Butler meets on the second Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Livonia Senior Citizens Building, Farmington Road just south of Five Mile. Call 459-0216 or 421-4208.

direction that board members had given to administration negotiators.

On Tuesday, Slee predicted that the contract "is not going to be an easy sell for the teachers," though he couldn't elaborate on specific details that could spark opposition.

William Reece, WWEA president, said "it's hard to tell" how teachers will react to the proposed pact.

"Under the circumstances, it's the best deal possible to the two sides," he said.

Reece said the proposed agreement will be explained to the WWEA during a May 2 membership meeting, which will come six days before teachers will be asked to ratify the contract.

He declined to comment on the length of the contract or possible concessions in it.

Deficit a problem

Thomas has said during earlier school board meetings that employee groups would be asked to accept concessions to combat the district's deficit.

Reece indicated that details would be made public after the proposed agreement has been unveiled to WWEA members on May 2.

The board is under state orders to erase a deficit that, at one point, had been projected at $6.4 million next school year. The board approved a budget-slashing plan Monday that must be submitted to the state before an April 30 deadline.

District officials had earlier warned that the board could risk losing state aid unless it found measures to erase the deficit.

The board on Monday approved a six-point deficit-reduction plan that would slash spending by $6.7 million. Among the highlights:

- Buyouts for longtime teachers and administrators will reduce spending next year by $1.3 million, as 181 exiting employees are replaced by new educators lower on the salary schedule.
- The WWEA contract, with staff reductions, would save $1.9 million.
- The board will ask voters to approve a two-year, 3-mill tax increase, probably in August, that would bring in $3.2 million next year and another $3.2 million the following year. Board members hope the money could also be used to restore busing for junior and senior high students, and to eliminate student pay-to-play fees for sports and other extracurricular activities.

Given the potential for voter backlash, some board members worried aloud Monday about including tax revenues in the deficit-reduction plan.

- One administration position would be eliminated, saving $100,000.
- Six special education positions would be slashed, saving $250,000.
- One clerical job would be eliminated, reducing the budget by $25,000.

Although it wasn't mentioned Monday, the board also has projected savings of $1 million next year because of four elementary school closings.

Woman seeking donations for nursing home residents

A Westland woman is seeking help for care packages that she and other volunteers plan to distribute to 236 senior citizens at the Nightingale Nursing Home on Newburgh Road, between Joy and Warren.

Dianne Guerra, an account manager for Techna Corp. environmental consultants in Plymouth, is seeking donations of money or items that seniors might use, such as Kleenex, T-shirts, lotions, combs, hand mirrors, toothbrushes, toothpaste, crossword puzzles and white tube socks.

"After visiting the nursing home and talking with the activities director, Mary Pomroy, I really got a sense of the difference we can make to these wonderful people," Guerra said in a letter to volunteers she enlisted for the project that she calls TLC Express.

Guerra, a resident of Fountain Park Apartments in Westland, said she and other volunteers will deliver the care packages to senior citizens on May 20.

Anyone interested in donating may call Guerra during the day at (313) 454-1100, or write to her at work at Techna Corp., 44808 Helm, Plymouth, 48170.

Catholice Central principal to leave position in June

BY LAURIE CURCURU
SPECIAL WRITER

At the end of this school year, the young men at Catholic Central High will bid farewell to the Rev. Joseph Moffatt whose tenure as principal of the all-male school will end in June.

Moffatt, a native Detroiter, is a member of the Basilian order of priests who founded the school in 1928.

The superior Basilian Fathers routinely decide when a priest's tenure is up and assign him a new position. Moffatt was appointed principal of Catholic Central in 1989 and will leave this June.

"I have had six rewarding, pleasant, great years," said Father Moffatt. "I have thoroughly enjoyed them."

Before joining Catholic Central in Redford Township, Moffatt was principal of Aquinas Institute in Rochester, N.Y. Moffatt said his love for Catholic Central, his alma mater, attracted him to the position of principal.

The school had financial and enrollment difficulties at the time that Moffatt saw as a challenge. The experience of having been a principal before helped him to be a successful principal at Catholic Central, he said.

Among his greatest achievements at Catholic Central, Moffatt includes the accreditation of the school, a steady increase in enrollment and financial solvency.

According to Greg Grabowksi, Catholic Central's associate director of development and public relations, Moffatt is directly responsible for Catholic Central having become fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

Catholic Central is one of only five private schools in the state to be accredited as a college preparatory school.

During his duration as principal, Moffatt has upheld the graduate rate of 99 percent of seniors who go on to colleges or universities and one percent to military academies. Enrollment averages about 1,000 young men each year from western Wayne County and surrounding communities.

As Moffatt reflects upon his years, he said there isn't a single occasion that stands out. "It's the totality. It's the staff. It's the students. It's everything from August 1989 through June 1995."

A member of the Catholic Central Class of 1951, Moffatt became the school's 15th principal. He said he learned quite a bit at Catholic Central — both times.

"I've learned a great deal from the parents. Catholic Central has great, cooperative, dedicated parents who expected the same things from their kids as we do."

He's also learned to appreciate the diverse areas in which Catholic Central students succeed. "The kids here are second to none. I'd put them up against any I've encountered, anywhere."

During Moffatt's tenure, the school has maintained its athletic reputation with many titles, including three State Class AA championships in football and hockey in the past five years.

But the school also has gained national esteem for its academic and artistic brilliance. Catholic Central has a record status of 101 National Merit semifinalists over the past 11 years. The school's Quiz Bowl team finished second in the nation in 1994 and the marching band has been recognized world-wide and has performed in London and Paris.

According to Grabowski, Moffatt has been highly popular with the kids and their parents. "He's a hands-on administrator. He can get the guys really pumped up, especially at events like school rallies. He is really very well-liked."

Moffatt also has supported Catholic Central's community involvement though blood drives, canned food drives, the Muscular Dystrophy Lock-Up, and Make a Wish Foundation's Fun Run.

Moffatt offers credit to his late Irish mother for his priesthood. In his younger days Moffatt dreamed of a career in broadcast journalism. "I wouldn't have had to be, you know, like Carmen Harlan or anything," he laughs, "I'd have just been happy dragging cords around the studio."

'I have had six rewarding, pleasant, great years. I have thoroughly enjoyed them.'

The Rev. Joseph Moffatt

Moffatt earned masters degrees in English and music. A lover of music and enthusiast of Hammond organs, Moffatt has special affection for organist Ethel Smith. "I've heard her play. I've met her. And I have some of her arrangements," he gushes.

While not certain what his next permanent position will be, Moffatt (who is in his early 60s) made it clear he's not retiring. "I'm just too young."

His plans may including helping out in area parishes and offering to substitute teach in Catholic schools. "I'd also love to study culinary arts."

Moffatt offers this advice to the Shamrocks' new principal: "Stay close to the kids and their parents. Quickly come to realize how rich the fabric of Catholic Central is and promote that."

Concealed weapons bill has gun owners smiling

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

One state gun board would replace 83 inconsistent county gun boards under a state House bill supported by area gun owners.

And the burden of proof would be on police to prove someone shouldn't be issued a concealed weapons permit rather than on the citizen to prove he should be issued a CCW permit.

"What an improvement over last year!" said Joseph Ditzhazy as his Gun Owners of Southeastern Michigan applauded the bills by Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-Dewitt.

"We'd become a 'shall-issue' state," said Tom Halick, an attorney and House staff member who outlined the bill to GOSEM Thursday, April 20, in the Livonia Civic Center Library.

"Every person has a right to keep and bear arms for the defense of himself and the state," said Halick, reading from the Michigan Constitution.

Under the Cropsey bills, gun permits would be issued by the Secretary of State's office, which would be required to issue the CCW permit to an applicant who passes a criminal background check, mental illness background check and training requirements, and who isn't subject to a court order against owning a handgun.

"The (current) system is not fair," said Halick, a graduate of Birmingham Groves High, Michigan State University and Cooley Law School. "We say, 'Come in and get your driver's license.' We don't ask, 'Why do you need a driver's license? Can't you walk to work? Can't you take a bus?'

"I got a pamphlet from the Lansing police department on defending yourself from attack. It mentions karate. It mentions active resistance. It suggests weapons such as hair spray, nail files, pins and keys. But there's no mention of firearms (for self-defense).

"Come on, guys, get out your hair spray," Halick said, his tone heavy with irony. The gun owners howled with laughter.

Halick said that under the Cropsey bill, police could no longer confiscate a handgun but would have to use civil forfeiture proceedings in court to take away a handgun.

Ditzhazy added his licks against prosecutors who say "you have to have a concealed weapons permit to carry an unconcealed weapon."

Here are Halick's answers to audience questions:

Q. Where is the bill and how can it be advanced?

A. In the House Judiciary Committee, where chair Michael Nye, R-Litchfield, held one hearing late in 1994.

Said Ditzhazy: "We need to hammer both (Reps. Jim) Ryan and (Lyn) Bankes," both Republicans from Redford.

Shouted a member of the audience: "We need to hammer the ——— out of (Willis) Bullard (R-Milford)."

Q. How many votes will it take?

A. Nine of the 17 members. Support from at least eight Republicans will be needed. One Republican, Frank Fitzgerald of Grand Ledge, is seen as a "tough sell."

Q. What kind of training will be required for a CCW permit? Does past training qualify?

A. Military training. A National Rifle Association course. Hunter safety from a conservation club. A community college course. Any course that's part of criminal justice training. Yes, past training will count.

Q. How long do local police have to respond to requests for background checks and to take your fingerprints?

A. First, you ask the Secretary of State's office for a CCW kit and pay $35.

Next, a police or sheriff's department must take your fingerprints within 72 hours of your request — no long delays. Police may charge up to $15. They must use the form in your kit.

State Police and FBI must check the prints and send a record to the Secretary of State within 45 days after fingerprints are submitted. If they fail to meet that deadline, the Secretary of State "shall not refuse to issue" a CCW permit.

Police may object to issuance of a CCW with "specific and articulable facts" — no blanket opposition, as some suburban police departments are alleged to do.

Refer to House Bill 4720 when writing to the House Judiciary Committee or your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Thousands aim at breast cancer in Race for the Cure

STAFF PHOTOS BY JOHN STORMZAND

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

Nancy Wind could be seen crossing Southfield Road at Beverly with a placard on her back of her shirt in support of Susie Sinkin, the sister of a friend who is fighting breast cancer.

It was 10:40 a.m. last Saturday and flapping along in the breeze across the front of her shirt was her Race for the Cure runner number.

She had run all the way home to Beverly Hills after her 9 a.m. 3-mile race around the Detroit Zoo at 10 Mile and Woodward in Royal Oak. "I always run eight or nine miles on weekends," she said matter-of-factly.

Wind (good name for a runner!) has raced in all but one of the Michigan Cancer Foundation's Race for the Cures, the largest race in Michigan. "It's a nice race. It is wonderful the way it has just mushroomed."

Actually, Wind may have arrived home on foot before some who chose to park at William Beaumont Hospital at 13 Mile and Woodward and take the race shuttle back and forth to the zoo.

"It was slow and we apologize to those people," said Wendy Rose, race spokeswoman. "We underestimated the number of people who would take the shuttle from Beaumont." They had thought more people would drive to the Michigan State Fairgrounds 2 miles south of the zoo take the shorter shuttle ride from there.

Race directors had encouraged participants to park and shuttle because of limited parking at the zoo and environs.

Two who took advantage of the Beaumont shuttle were Lisa Barson and Dena Woll Raminick from Events Marketing in Bingham Farms. They were there in support of co-workers who had been touched by breast cancer.

Next year, Rose promised shuttle riders, we'll get it right.

Smooth sailing

Most everything else went smoothly as an estimated 12,500 women, men and children showed up for the race, well over the 11,000 expected and up from 8,000 who raced last year.

Only one injury was noted, when a participant turned her ankle and fell.

Race proceeds should hit $200,000, according to Rose. Of that, 75 percent stays in Michigan to use for early detection, breast cancer awareness programs and to finance further treatment for low-income women whose mammograms are abnormal. The rest goes to the Susan J. Komen Breast Cancer Foundations, which funds research.

It was cold for standing around waiting for the race — windy and in the low 40s — but well-suited for running. The women's 5-K race was won by Laurel Park, 32, Ann Arbor in 17:04 and the men's by Rich Stark, 29, of Ann Arbor in 15:16.

Top female and male racewalkers were Debbie Benton, 37, Dearborn, 26:47 and Bill Read (no age or hometown given), 28:29.

Top finishers among breast cancer survivors were Janis Puskar, 36, Trenton and Trudy Marchetti, 47, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Heartfelt experience

But the real winners are breast cancer survivors, such as Nancy Avery, who walked the zoo course with her husband Jerry.

Nancy, a cosmetics account executive for Neiman-Marcus in Troy, has survived five major surgeries and 51 chemotherapy treatments over an eight-year battle with breast cancer.

"This old broad is hanging in there," she said, greeting her breast cancer surgeon, Dr. Jane Pettinga of Troy, and Beaumont breast cancer counselor Veronica Decker during the race warm-up.

"I wouldn't miss this," Nancy said. Neither would her husband. "He's a great supporter."

Women's center volunteers honored

The Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College is available to anyone exploring personal, educational, financial and professional concerns and interests.

Volunteers are vital to the daily operation of the program and last week they were honored at a special luncheon.

Volunteers work as peer counselors to talk with anyone who calls or walks in the center with any question or concern. Volunteers complete 50 hours of training in listening, communication, and problem-solving as well as WRC and Schoolcraft resources and procedures. Volunteers also make referrals to appropriate Schoolcraft and community resources.

Last year, 43 volunteers donated 5,600 hours of service to the campus and the community through the Women's Resource Center.

■ Herta Morvak of Livonia was among 43 volunteers recently honored for donating 5,643 hours to the Women's Resource Center on the campus of Schoolcraft College.

Last year the WRC counted more than 20,000 community contacts. This includes telephone and walk-in clients as well as a variety of outreach programs.

Clients range from single parents and displaced homemakers requiring financial and emotional support to those in need of community resources for help with issues such as domestic violence and sexual assault. Others need someone to talk with regarding going to school or dealing with a variety of changes in their lives.

The women's center also offers a variety of community programs including a luncheon series, "Thinking About College?" for those thinking about entering college, an annual women's health conference, and a divorce support group. Also offered are seminars and workshops focused on topics and issues pertinent to client and community needs.

Volunteers come from 11 communities. The length of service for current volunteers range from 8 months to 15 ½ years. They come from a variety of backgrounds including homemaking, teaching, social work, business, medicine, and police work.

We Deliver Families.

Some people think birth is a woman's concern. It is, of course, but it's also much more.

At St. Mary Hospital, we think it's a family affair, so we make it easier for the father and the whole family to share the wonder of childbirth; before, during and after.

Before you're due — when your anticipation is growing as quickly as your baby — our prenatal classes for expectant families such as Lamaze, breastfeeding and infant care and safety get your family ready for the new arrival.

And when your baby is born—after months of waiting come down to a single day— we make sure that day is everything you meant it to be. Our commitment to family involvement includes flexible visiting hours; time with your baby; and time for father, grandparents, brothers and sisters. And all the while, you'll enjoy private rooms that combine homelike comforts with the support and security of St. Mary Hospital.

Once you're home, we're as close as your phone, with follow-up and basic infant care information.

So, talk with your doctor about St. Mary Hospital. Or call us at (313) 464-WELL to help you find a physician who's right for you. Because when it comes to families . . . we deliver.

SCC exec honored for volunteerism

Richard Aginian, president of Suburban Communications Corp., parent company of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, will be honored as one of the recipients of the annual Michigan's Outstanding Volunteers award.

Aginian, a Birmingham resident, is past president of the Community House in Birmingham.

He will be recognized at a luncheon Monday at the Ritz Carlton in Dearborn by the National Society of Fund Raising Executives.

Aginian said he believes that everyone should give something back to their community through volunteer efforts.

"In tragedies, people always pitch in but we've got to make it a part of everyday life," Aginian said.

He applauded such programs as the community service program at the public schools that encourages young people to become active participants in efforts that improve their towns.

"People have got to make the time to volunteer. You make time for other things and this shouldn't be any different. People have got to make the time to devote to their communities and give back instead of take," Aginian said.

Aginian headed the expansion of The Community House, working with architects and holding weekly planning meetings, as well as overseeing the fund-raising efforts that made the new wing possible.

A member of the board of directors for eight years, Aginian served as vice president in charge of facilities during the expansion and then served as president of the board from 1990 to 1992.

Aginian has been president of Suburban Communications Corp. since 1977. He has served as president of the trade association Suburban Newspapers of America, served on the Governor's Committee Michigan Newspaper Recycling Task Force and on the board of directors for Walsh College and the Corporation for a Skilled Workforce.

He has served on the board of directors for Henry Ford Hospital-West Bloomfield, U.S. Suburban Press, Michigan Press Association, Leadership Oakland steering committee and Young Presidents Association.

He is vice chairman for finance for the 1996 USGA Open Golf Tournament at Oakland Hills Country Club. He also is a member of the Economic Club of Detroit.

The National Society of Fund Raising Executives is a professional organization of more than 10,000 fund-raising executives and 107 chapters nationwide. The Michigan Chapter has 291 members.

Senior center plans annual spring festival

The St. Patrick Senior Center — which cares for the poor, elderly and homeless in Detroit's Cass Corridor with help from many suburban volunteers — announces its annual St. Pat's Spring Festival, set for 2-9 p.m., Sunday, April 30.

The extravaganza, at 58 Parsons at Woodward behind Orchestra Hall in Detroit, will feature continuous live Irish entertainment on three stages, arts and crafts, Irish and American food, and beverages at 1970s prices. Admission is $3 for adults, and $1 for older children.

Raffle winners will be granted prizes in amounts ranging from $200 to $9,000.

"For 22 years, St. Patrick's Senior Cneter has provided for the very poor senior citizens of the Cass Corridor a daily, fully nutritionally balanced dinner; recreational, educational, and handicraft programs," said the Rev. Thomas Duffey and Sister Mary Watson, St. Pat's pastor and director, respectively.

"We also provide legal, medical, dental, podiatric and financial counseling services; clothing distribution; food packages; funeral and burial assistance, spiritual guidance for all faiths, colors and creeds.

"Just as our next-door neighbor, Orchestra Hall, has found it necessary to depend upon an extended community for its very existence, so have we at St. Patrick's, and by the grace of God, and with the help of good people, we both persevere."

There'll be lighted, guarded parking. For more information, call (313) 833-7080.

What's right with America 8

An 11-year-old is what's right with America today. That's right, an 11-year-old. He scored a perfect 100 percent on the "Family Room" examination which, according to the contest rules, qualifies him for a spot in this "What's Right with America" series.

And so here he is, 11 years old and all. A winner, fair and square. His story I'm deliberately running today because it just so happens to be his birthday.

This boy shared some fine ideas and wonderful stories with me when we met face-to-face. It's nice to be able to interview the contest winners like this. You can tell so much more about a person when you're sitting across the table from him.

Here he was, a boy, nearly as tall as I am, very neat in his appearance, sitting straight and confident in his chair, speaking articulately and directly and with a sense of humor and friendly ease, to me (someone old enough to be his mother), and I felt privileged to be in his presence.

Based on our face-to-face discussion, I felt a surge of confidence in America's future. Eleven-year-olds, I decided, are really cool.

He had come to this interview all prepared with a story, as I'd suggested in the contest

Teens turn out for hospice work

You would think high school students would be plenty busy with school, work and social activities. But a group of teens has found time to help brighten the lives of the terminally ill patients of Community Hospice Services.

In the case of Jessie Perkins, Jenny Remy and Lisa Zacharias, three pairs of hands are better than one, especially when the task is a messy one. Wrist deep in finger paint, they're covering the front of a folded piece of posterboard with smears of red, green and yellow paint.

A few steps away, Eric Benvenuto and his friend, Pat Costyk, are busy printing names on tags for bags of candy, being filled in assembly line-style across the room.

Surveying the efforts, a smile plays across Doreen Vivyan's face.

"It's a joy for me to be amongst these young people," she said. "They're an incredible group; not surprising, just incredible. We learned early on that our young people want to volunteer their time, they just needed to know where."

Vivyan is coordinator of volunteer services for Community Hospice Services. The incredible group includes high school students from Livonia, Farmington, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Northville who are teen volunteers at CHS.

An organized group since January, the teens have their own teen leaders and two adult co-leaders — Sharon Rust of Farmington Hills and Katherine Gabarino of Livonia. They've also developed a "calling tree" for verbal communication.

Vivyan is coordinator of volunteer services for Community Hospice Services. The incredible group includes high school students from Livonia, Farmington, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Northville who are teen volunteers at CHS.

An organized group since January, the teens have their own teen leaders and two adult co-leaders — Sharon Rust of Farmington Hills and Katherine Gabarino of Livonia. They've also developed a "calling tree" for verbal communication.

They meet once a month at the CHS's office on Warren Road in Westland. Part of the meeting is devoted to planning while the remaining time is spent working on projects that benefit patients. For April, it was birthday cards and bags filled with Easter candy. Come May, they plan to fill cups with soil and plant seeds to create mini indoor gardens for patients.

"They feel it's important that patients be able to see something grow," Vivyan said. "They also have made greeting cards, filled with insightful messages and wisdom beyond their years."

At Christmas, they teamed up with teen volunteers from Angela Hospice in Livonia to bake cookies, fill holiday baskets, make floral arrangements and then deliver the finished products, complete with carols, to patients.

Helping others

There is but one membership requirement. The teens have to be in high school. They can "come once or come as many times as they want," just come with the idea of helping others, Garbarino said.

The initial members were recruited through youth groups, churches and word of mouth. Now, they are bringing their friends, the case with Eric and Pat. Eric claims, "My friend made me come." But Pat counters with a "No, he wanted to come. When I told him about it, he wanted to come."

Pat "was looking for something to do in his spare time and thought it would be interesting." Like Jessie and Jenny, he found out about it through the youth group at St. Colette Church in Livonia. He has been a volunteer since January and is one of the teen leaders.

Eric, also a Livonia resident, and Lisa, a Garden City resident, came with their friends. Eric "thought it would be cool to help out other people." Lisa came with Jenny "because I like helping people; I really do. I'm not just saying that."

And it's an attraction that spills over to their co-leaders. Garbarino had been an active volunteer for five years. An attorney, she had wanted to do patient care, but couldn't commit to a certain time every week. Working with the teens, however, was something she could do.

She called her friend, Rust, who jokingly says she "still has red marks on her arm" from being roped into helping.

"It's been a long time since I volunteered and working with youth is a great place to start," said Rust, a legal assistant. "I used to be a teacher, so it's back to a group of kids but in a different way. It's good to know I can help out in a different way."

Garbarino and Rust met with the teen leaders in late March to see what they wanted to do. They described them as "a great group with great ideas" and who "needed very little direction."

"I don't know who came up with more ideas . . . and they just want to do more," Garbarino said.

Getting involved

Working the candy bag line, Tim O'Keefe of Canton and Jennifer Monge and Diana Karwan, both of Livonia, got involved in different ways through school and Angela Hospice.

For Tim, it was through Divine Child High School in Dearborn, which promotes being involved. Students work at soup kitchens in Detroit each day and on weekend help pack food at Gleaners.

"And being involved in a teen group is better than being with adults," Tim added.

Jennifer works as a receptionist at Angela Hospice; she "kind of grew up with the idea" and got involved in hospice through her aunt. When the teen program started, she signed on.

Diana, a teen leader, also works at Angela Hospice as a dietary aide. She likes the idea of meeting new people and the experience of helping others.

"So many ideas were put out (at the adult-teen leaders meeting) and to be able to do them . . . It's great to see someone smile because of what you do," she said.

While the teens are happy to do what they can, their interest in patient care has prompted Vivyan to look at modifying the eight-session volunteer education program and gearing it for the young people.

"It's so neat to see their enthusiasm," she said, "but this is very much their group."

Teens interested in the program can call Katherine Garbarino at (313) 425-3175 or Sharon Rust at (810) 473-1595.

rules. "Be ready with some sort of story about your life," the rules had read. "A real story from your real life."

"Real life for me," he said, "is great . . . most of the time. But once in awhile, there are times, that . . . well, I'd have to say aren't so great, like Tuesday. I got in trouble Tuesday. Mom and Dad got mad about the cat. My little sister and I are supposed to take care of Sparky. That's one of our jobs. We thought we were doing OK, but they thought we were messing up."

A punishment was meted out. The children had to write a theme. They were to work on it together and it was to be entitled, "Why it is important to take proper care of Sparky." It had to be 500 words long, no misspellings. His mother threw that spelling thing in there.

The boy and his sister wrote the theme in one afternoon. He brought the completed assignment with him and held it in his hand while we talked. Then he handed it to me. He confidently and quietly said, "Here's my theme. It can be my story."

In the margins were numbers keeping track of the word count. I've edited it here because of space requirements, but I want you to know that there were 510 words in the original. And, there were no misspellings.

Why it is important to take proper care of Sparky:

"If we do not take care of the cat, she will get sick and die.

■ 'We admit we should sweep in her area more often, since she does make such a mess. But how that mess could harm her, we're not sure. It could, I suppose. But we just do not know because we are not cats.'

"But the problem is, we do take care of her, it's just that nobody believes us. First, let me explain about the 'dirty' water in the water bowl. For some reason, Sparky spits out her food into her water bowl. That's a fact. Why she does that, we don't know. We only know we don't put those floaters in there. And about the big mess of food on the floor near her food dish. That might be our fault sometimes. But sometimes it's Sparky. She steps in her food bowl and that knocks food on the basement floor which makes a big mess.

"We admit we should sweep in her area more often, since she does make such a mess. But how that mess could harm her, we're not sure. It could, I suppose. But we just do not know because we are not cats.

"Another reason for taking proper care of Sparky is that she will throw up if she is not fed properly. We hate cleaning up throw-up. It stains; it smells; it takes a lot of time, and it gets on your fingers.

"All this stuff is very important. The cat's life depends on it. It is not nice to ignore a living creature (unless it is a spider).

"It is important to take care of Sparky because, if we don't, we might have to write another theme. And we don't like to do that; we'd rather be playing outside.

"If we do not take proper care of Sparky we imagine that horrible things could happen to her, possibly death. I think we've learned our lesson."

That's a pretty good theme, I must say. And I'll just bet it smoothed the waters between that 11-year-old and his Mom and Dad. I'd go as far as to say I know it smoothed the waters. That 11-year-old happens to be my son. Happy birthday, Tony!

Overactive imagination leads her down path to adventure

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

A few years ago I did not believe that a person's handwriting could tell so much about them. But since reading your column for quite some time now, I've changed my mind. I've seen myself and others I know in some of the handwriting analyses in this paper.

I very much hope that my letter will get picked to have a handwriting analysis.

I am 51 years of age and right-handed. I enjoy music and reading. Thank you very much.

L.C.,
Redford

Today's writer is restless and a veritable whirlwind of activity. She gets involved in so many activities that, at times, the orderly organization of her affairs can be too much for her. Perhaps she needs to slow down and smell the roses.

An overactive imagination entices this woman down the garden path of new adventures. She loathes a dull routine.

Seemingly, she has a tendency to distort what she sees and hears, perhaps without even realizing it. She is probably an interesting storyteller.

Our writer wants to accomplish things in a grand manner to attract attention to herself or to make her feel more important. She is also willing to accept responsibility that will enhance her self-esteem. She appears to thrive on approval and attention.

Determination is an outstanding trait in her personality. She has a strong degree of self-direction and motivation. As a result she will go ahead and try regardless of how difficult something seems or how negative she may feel. The attainment of her goal in the face of obstacles or opposition is a driving force in her personality. Material acquisitions can also be a propelling force.

This woman wants to stand above the crowd. In her work, she is efficiency oriented and not afraid of hard work. I don't think she would be happy for very long in a job where she was confined to a desk for eight hours each day. She needs the freedom to move around and circulate with people.

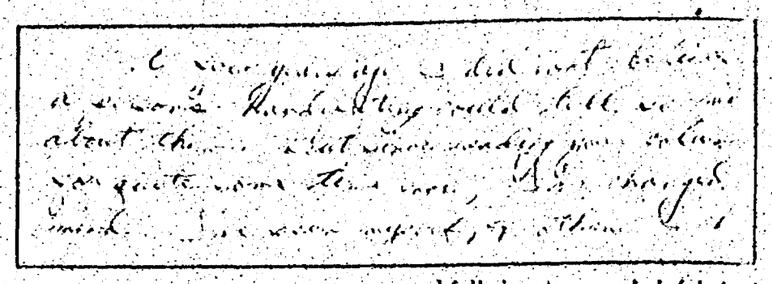
This is a rather serious woman who has a need to be right. Her thinking is logical and methodical. She does not rely on flashes of intuition for her answers.

At the time this letter was written, our writer was experiencing some dissatisfaction with either her work or social role.

Personal criticism can be hurtful for her. And she shows some resentment in this writing. These traits strongly suggest she has been hurt in the past and often is on guard with people to prevent this from recurring.

Our writer enjoys people and her interactions with them. She is quick to extend the hand of friendship. She has a caring heart which people can relate to.

Her signature and the text of her handwriting agree. From this we can assume her inner and outer personalities are in accord.



If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

Lecture will look at law of God

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Plymouth has invited Robert W. Jeffery, a member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, to address the topic of what religion can do to contribute in a significant way to solving major social problems.

Jeffery will speak on "Stand Up for Everyone's Rights through God's Law" at a 8 p.m. public forum Monday, May 8, at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Five Mile Road east of Farmington Road.

He will draw on his education from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and more than 20 years of scientific and business experience with two large corporations, plus equal time in the ministry of Christian healing as a Christian Science practitioner.

He will explain why he believes Jesus' teachings and example provide practical guidance for everyone today, in understanding and claiming their rights under the law of God.

The public is invited to attend the free hour-long lecture. Child care will be provided.

Plymouth AAUW goes 'buy the book'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Military history buffs will be all in their glory at the American Association of University Women-Plymouth Branch's 41st annual book sale Thursday through Saturday, May 4-6.

"We have 60 boxes of military history books," said A.J. Hallerman, the event chairwoman. Most of them, she added, are in mint condition.

Sixty boxes is only a fraction of the books the group has received for the book sale to be held at the Starkweather Center Gymnasium, 550 Holbrook, in Plymouth's Old Village.

More than 300 boxes of books have been donated for the sale. That's down from the average of 500 but the books are still pouring in. The Dunning Hough Library has become so overloaded with books that the AAUW is encouraging people to bring them to the Starkweather Center, Hallerman said.

Members are working to sort all the books, records and books on tape, into 26 categories, such as biography, fiction, mystery, science fiction, history and children's literature. All of the books are relatively new, said the AAUW's Mildred Kladzyk of Canton. The organization doesn't accept books published before 1975.

Hallerman added, "The hardback novels look like they were read once and they probably were. Those are priced to sell."

Sorting the books: A.J. Hallerman, the AAUW's book sale chairwoman, sorts the items donated for their annual sale at the Starkweather Center Gym in Plymouth. Volunteer Mildred Kladzyk of Canton helps her out.

The prices of the books drop as the three-day sale comes to an end. The first day, Thursday, May 4, books will be sold for full price from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The following day they will be available for half price during the same hours. On Saturday, from 9 a.m. to noon, patrons can buy as many books as they can fit in a grocery bag for $5.

Proceeds from the sale fund scholarships for students attending University of Michigan, Michigan State University, Schoolcraft College, Madonna University, Washtenaw Community College and the Plymouth Canton Community Education Program.

Preference for the endowment grants are given to members of the local community returning to school to further their education, Hallerman said.

MHS seeks artwork for its holiday cards

Do you have a penchant for drawing and design and a love of animals? Then the Michigan Humane Society has a contest for you — its 1995 holiday greeting card contest.

This year's contest is being sponsored by Compton Printing of Farmington Hills. There are three categories — traditional, humorous and religious. Cash prizes — $150 for first place, $75 for second place and $25 for third place — will be given in each category.

The chosen design will be featured on MHS's 1995 holiday greeting cards. The artist's name will appear prominently on the back of the card. More than 100,000 cards are sold each year by MHS with proceeds benefiting the homeless animals in its shelter.

Since they are for MHS, artwork must incorporate an animal theme. In fact, cards featuring dogs, cats, puppies and/or kittens have been the most popular. There also are a few other rules for the contest:

- Entries must be a minimum of 5 inches by 7 inches up to a maximum of 14 inches by 17 inches.
- Entries must be the original work of the artist.
- Artwork submitted must not have been previously published.
- All artwork selected for use by the MHS will become the property of and copyrighted by the society. It will not be returned and may be used in various publicity and educational activities. All other artists wishing to have their artwork returned to them can make arrangements to pick artwork up at one of the MHS shelters.
- The MHS will not be responsible for lost, stolen or damaged artwork.
- Artwork must be clearly labeled on the back with the full name, address and telephone number of the artist.

Entries must be submitted by June 1. They can be sent or delivered to the Michigan Humane Society Greeting Card Contest, 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit 48211.

Moore selection

Board vote a positive signal

The Wayne-Westland Board of Education did the right thing Thursday in voting 7-0 to hire Duane Moore as superintendent. The unanimous vote is rare for a major decision.

It was the first time in 29 years that a Wayne-Westland school board was unanimous in picking a superintendent.

The Observer hopes that the 7-0 vote and the accompanying comments by board members about Moore signal a turnaround from the last few years with school leaders working together toward a common vision and mission.

In the past three years, the board didn't do itself, students, the community or employees any good in its divisive politics that tarnished the district's image.

The Observer feels that Superintendent Larry Thomas, whose contract expires in two months, was effective during his three years in the district, despite many obstacles placed in his path.

Moore comes to Wayne-Westland with an impressive resume and record of accomplishments in other large districts in which he has worked. Currently, he is superintendent in South Lyon. He was the only finalist from an original field of seven which quickly shrunk to the two who were interviewed.

He was impressive in the public interviews and the follow-up visit to South Lyon where there were no negatives reported from people who worked with him.

Moore, who has been through many educational controversies in school districts, admitted to the Observer last week that he is "gratified in the confidence that the board has shown in the school system and what I might be able to contribute to it," referring to the board's unanimous vote.

"My message was that if I came (to Wayne-Westland), we were all in this together," Moore said. "I'm excited, and I'm looking forward to working in the district."

Moore has the qualities that board members wanted, such as leadership experience, interpersonal and organizational skills, integrity and the ability "to generate trust and confidence," said board member Richard LeBlanc.

But the positive attitude being displayed by Moore and the board must be translated into tangible results for local students.

It won't be easy.

There is a major budget deficit looming with the school board required to submit a deficit reduction plan this week to the state education department. The projected deficit is expected to reach $6.4 million by next year. The district also is preparing this fall to implement new school attendance boundaries and a middle school structure.

Complicating matters is the teachers' union contract which is expected to be ratified May 8 following a tentative agreement announced Tuesday.

At the same time, two new board members will be elected June 12 to replace trustees Vicki Welty and Laurel Raisanen who are not seeking new terms.

But with the hiring of Moore and, for the moment, a united school board, there is a positive direction for a school district that deserves much more.

Schools will survive ranking

Heads are being held high in certain school districts these days. In other districts, though, heads are hanging. And, in still others, they're being scratched in confusion and perplexity.

The state's "fully accredited" roster came down last week, and some names you'd expect to find on Michigan's short list of exceptional schools were missing. Statewide, only four high schools, none from the Detroit area, were named.

Educators across the state — especially those whose schools failed to make the list or, worse, were given unaccredited status — were wondering what to do about their district's apparent academic shortcomings.

Well, these educators needn't fall on their swords — figuratively speaking, of course — over this latest thunderclap of criticism from above. They should be used to it by now.

Yet another state list still another federal report. There've been so many over the past decade or so that they've had a numbing effect on educators, teachers, parents and students.

Remember "A Nation At Risk," the 1983 report that predicted dire consequences for the U.S. if the nation's schools weren't immediately improved? Quite a few people must have done quite a bit for our schools since then.

Consider the number of students who've used what they've learned in our public schools to launch successful college pursuits, careers and lives. Yes, we survived even "A Nation At Risk."

Now, we're not putting down such statewide tests, the resulting lists of accredited schools and critical reports on education.

In fact, we applaud them. They serve as wake-up calls to districts that need them. Ratings are one way to let educators know that they are being held accountable.

That said, though, we have to add that there's so much in education that tests and accreditation plans just can't measure.

For one, there's the attitude of the parents that's right, the parents. If parents are the type who revere education — and they somehow can transfer that attitude to their offspring — then we have a feeling that the students will be successful.

If, however, too many parents consider the public schools as nothing more than the world's largest (and most expensive) day care center, then heads will be hanging around school headquarters come accreditation time.

Without this crucial factor — good parental attitude — we're afraid the educational equation just won't work out for lots of students.

Hey, maybe there should be assessment tests and accreditation for parents.

Newsletter misleading

On April 10, the Livonia school district's millage (renewal) proposal was unanimously passed by all precincts except one, Precinct 16, in Holliday Park Cooperative, where I have resided for over 22 years.

It was disappointing to learn that my fine neighbors did not think this issue through before casting their negative ballots.

Regretfully, most voters took as fact a misleading article in our "Status Quo" newsletter stating that the sales tax increase to 6 percent was solely to finance schools. However, it failed to mention that the top 40 school districts in the state were exempt from the 6 percent sales tax revenue and the Livonia school district is one of the top 40.

The article omits the fact that when state property taxes were reduced last year in the Livonia school district, our average reduction per unit at Holliday Park Cooperative was $200 per unit.

Multiply this by 715 units and Holliday Park has $143,000 extra revenue per year for operating expenses. This saving has not been distributed to its members. My objection is not with disbursement of increased funds but with financial data that is not publicized as blatantly as school millage proposals.

Holliday Park residents should realize that when buildings are over 30 years old they are in a constant need of repair as we are presently experiencing this every year at our cooperative. School buildings and property which are utilized to the maximum every day are no exception. The passed millage to help maintain school buildings and property would only add $50 per year to a home valued at $100,000. So, proportionately, Holliday Park residents' property tax increase would only be a small fraction of this amount.

I urge my neighbors and friends at Holliday Park before voting again, please have ALL the facts before you and let's think of the welfare of our children and grandchildren before casting our ballot.

Signs disputed

The City of Westland is enforcing an ordinance to remove illegal signs from the city's right-of-way.

Good idea!

Let's start with the city and its Bailey Center's psychic fair sign placed in the City Hall right-of-way followed by the Bailey Center's craft show signs placed at most major intersections.

Only then, pick on the homeowners.

Ryan Simpson, Westland

Column disputed

In response to Tim Richards' April 20 column desiring to know why Clark Durant is obssessed with "parents, parents, parents," it seems the answer should be fairly clear.

As a student during the grand old days (1970s-early 1980s) of the Wayne-Westland Community School district, I was taught that communism and state control were wrong and not concerned about the well-being of the people, but only interested in fulfilling the wants and needs of those in charge of that system.

Now as a parent of two children ages 9 and 10, the very same system is being forced down my throat. I fail to see the difference between communism and the current state of education in Michigan's public schools.

For those of us plebians desiring to equip our children with the best possible information regarding literature, grammar, science, technology, history, math, etc., and wanting our children to be quality adults ready and fully capable to be the policy makers and work force of the future, we've been stopped by this educational communism. These patricians are telling us we aren't able to discern what is best for our children. Wouldn't this make you just a bit nervous?

Yes, we do have a representative system of government. At least I thought we did until my bubble was burst one day when I realized that those I helped elect were and are cowering to forces wealthier and more politically powerful than John and Jane Q Public.

It is offensive to the highest degree to realize the same system that for 13 years "educated" then graduated me, told me I was ready to face the world, now tells me I'm too dumb to know what is best for my children. I'm sorry; you're wrong. It must've been the very costly four year degree that showed me the state doesn't always know best. You see, in college we were taught to "seek."

So the answer then is this: Please just give the parents of this state an opportunity. You may just see that not only will those precious test scores rise, but with us right-wing, charter school-lovin', parochiaid backin', home-schoolin', state educate ourselves, pain-in-the-neck parents rising to the task, Michigan may have the most well-equipped and brightest graduates this state has ever seen.

POINTS OF VIEW

The secret sabotage within black America

GUEST COLUMNIST

LUKE LAMPKIN

It's disturbing to think of the history of suffering which black America has been forced to endure. It is also disturbing to realize that black America is the only ethnic group without a flag of origin.

Of course it's politically correct to embrace an Afrocentric identity. However, Africa is an entire continent of many nations. That raises questions about just which of these flags offer the greatest specific relevance to black America.

Aside from what was done to us, it's far more disturbing to some of us to realize what we have allowed our culture to become since the civil rights movement ended.

We demand total racial accountability from white America, but ignore more serious and destructive violations of social accountability from inside our culture.

There are possibly those who will challenge this point on the basis of the fact that a portion of the population has been publicly denounced as the "underclass" and described in national publications as "our color but not our kind."

Little is said, however, about African-American institutions with licenses and public-funded resources specifically for stabilizing communities in crisis which unremorsefully sabotage these resources and opportunities.

My most dramatic encounter with these deeds and conditions occurred between the fall of 1989 and the winter of 1993, while working as a psychotherapist for a family and community counseling program in Kalamazoo.

Rumors of gang-related drug traffic were circulating through this community, suggesting that the trade was the product of gangs from Detroit, during the fall of 1989.

With a master of social work degree from the University of Michigan, I voluntarily outlined an all-volunteer self-help support group for ex-offenders and others at risk which I also volunteered to organize.

Space to organize this program was denied by the executive director, who was heard to say: "I ain't given nothing away . . ." In response to the lack of profit-making potential of this program.

The program was further sabotaged by policy violations which included reverse racial discrimination in hiring practices which created staff conflict. I was unknowingly hired for a full-time position with one year of post-master degree experience over a Jewish clinician with over 10 years of reported post-master's degree experience.

The progression of policy-violating conflict demanded that I request a meeting between the executive director, the supervisor and myself to discuss ways of stabilizing the crisis within an organization licensed and funded for crisis intervention.

The outcome of this meeting was that I then became the target of an ill-tempered and malicious conspiracy of intimidation and retaliation. This conspiracy was also documented in a paper trail by the supervisor, the executive director and at least one member of the board of directors.

The paper trail included handwritten proof of the conspiracy on the stationery of the U.S. House of Representatives with a Washington, D.C. 20515 ZIP code, and made an official part of my personnel record there.

Although I won an uncontested judgment in a lawsuit against this organization, these community leaders' deeds were never investigated or exposed. This created the impression that the secret sabotage in black America is of no consequence to those with the power to correct these conditions.

'Education election' fails to stir up politicos

TIM RICHARD

■ The Constitution says Michigan voters must elect members of the State Board of Education and the boards of the Big Three universities — U-M, Michigan State and Wayne State; 24 persons in all. Not only do they fail, like Rodney Dangerfield, to get any respect; they don't get any attention.

Sorry, boss, I tried. You're right, but we're getting little help.

The boss is Phil Power, chairman of this newspaper company and an elected regent of the University of Michigan. He is frustrated because the media paid scant attention to his 1990 race — or anyone else's.

Newspapers declined to interview. TV turned up its nose. The Michigan Press Association declined to host a debate. Personally, I tried to interest some civic luncheon clubs, but they yawned.

Yet the Constitution says Michigan voters must elect members of the State Board of Education and the boards of the Big Three universities — U-M, Michigan State and Wayne State; 24 persons in all. Not only do they fail, like Rodney Dangerfield, to get any respect; they don't get any attention.

We elect these worthies in November of even-numbered years, when we elect our state and U.S. representatives, governor or president, state and U.S. senators.

The boss' idea is to have a single Education Election — probably in spring — when we'd elect the state candidates along with our local K-12 school boards and our community college boards, too. There would be only one issue: education.

Last week, I put Power's idea to Susy Heintz, the Republican state chairwoman from Novi, and Mark Brewer, the Democratic state chairman from Macomb County, after our taping of the Channel 7 "Spotlight" show. Heintz: "I don't know if it'd make that much difference." Brewer: "Is it good for public education?"

I tried, boss. Sorry.

Yes, it would be good for public education. Yes, it might make a difference. Certainly, we couldn't be any worse off.

When the state candidates are elected, everybody concentrates on the races for president, governor and U.S. Senate. There's a big falloff as voters move down the ballot. People treat the state education races as an afterthought.

Local school boards are elected in June each year. Twenty percent is a big turnout; 10-15 percent is more common; 3-5 percent isn't rare.

I bounced Power's question off some chiefs in the Michigan Association of School Boards last winter. They shook their heads. They didn't want nonpartisan local school board races to become "political" by being on the ballot with the state education races.

That's hooey, of course. We elect nonpartisan judges at the same time as the partisan president and governor. There's nothing inherently wrong about electing the state partisan education posts at the same time as the local nonpartisan ones.

I suspect the real reason we continue to elect school boards in June is the interest groups want low turnouts. The Michigan Education Association comes to mind. Athletic boosters control many school boards so they can boost the coach into the superintendent's job. That growing group called the Religious Right has a better chance when voter turnout is small.

One Education Election. Phil Power is right, even if he is the boss.

I encourage folks to ask candidates their attitudes toward the Open Meetings Act. If they think it's too difficult to operate in "sunshine," they shouldn't be on the board.

Candidates should be asked about their relevant experience — in civic groups, with budgets, with hiring, in politics.

"Privatization" could be made an issue. Ditto with state testing and curriculum standards.

Parochiaid — tax money for church-related schools — could be forced into the open as an issue, instead of being the subject of plots.

Rep. Bob Brackenridge, R-St. Joseph, is pushing a plan to have just three elections a year: in May, August and November. May would be the perfect time to hold our Education Election, for state and local posts. Brackenridge, who chairs the House Local Government Committee, is giving the boss' idea some thought.

That's an improvement.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events. His Touch-Tone voice mail number is (313) 953-2047, Ext. 1881.

At last, we can measure a school's performance

PHILIP POWER

The Michigan Department of Education last week released its first-ever list of state-accredited schools.

Although complex and very bureaucratic — the department's question and answer guidelines ran to nearly eight pages, single-spaced — this is the first time all Michigan public schools have been ratedby a common standard: comparative success in a series of MEAP (Michigan Education Assessment Program) tests.

Of Michigan's 3,600 schools, only 145 received the highest rating — "summary accreditation."

Local schools were among the 3,000 that received "interim accreditation," which means they are making progress, but more improvement is needed in next year's test round to keep up.

Of the 89 schools that received no accreditation, next year's results will be crucial. If they continue unaccredited, they could lose up to 5 percent of their state per-pupil aid. Continued poor performance could result in having principals removed and students transferred to accredited schools. Locally, no schools were unaccredited.

For the first time, schools that fail to measure up will get hurt. That alone is good news for those who realize Michigan's schools need substantial improvement. As state superintendent of public instruction Robert Schiller said, "This is the first opportunity for us to shine the light on those who are doing it well and those who are not."

All this comes about while a fierce debate is raging about how best to reform schools. Very broadly, the argument is between those who think that improvement can best come about by letting the forces of market competition determine which schools survive and which die and those who hold that it's possible to reform the public school system in Michigan without destroying it.

For those readers who are interested in some factual background to this debate, here's a compilation that might be useful:

Michigan has some 560 local school districts with more than 3,600 schools serving 1.6 million students. An additional 190,000 children go to non-public schools.

Each local board of education sets its own courses, credits and graduation requirements. Michigan joins only Nebraska and Wyoming in this extraordinary degree of local control. In the other 47 states, courses, credits and graduation requirements are set statewide.

Each local school district picks its textbooks, determines class organization and size, and hires and evaluates its teachers. The last state to do so, Michigan in 1993 mandated teacher evaluation.

Give the high degree of local control, it's not surprising that Michigan schools therefore vary enormously in student achievement, parental expectation, standards and services. We have some of the finest schools, best teachers and most able students in the nation. We also have some schools, teachers and students whose failures are chronic.

Through the MEAP test, we at last have a single uniform tool to measure what kids actually learn in all 3,600 Michigan schools. MEAP isn't the best test, but some objective test is better than no test.

And now, through the accreditation process, the results of MEAP tests are being brought together for our schools, building by building. That's a big step forward, one that parents, teachers, students and employers should applaud.

Shows open Friday at 3 community theaters

Some of us never seem to have enough hours in a day to do everything we want to do. Then there are those busy people who manage to make time for things that are important to them like community theater.

Fran Colucci-Hill of Livonia called to thank everyone for coming out to see the Northville Players production of "The Importance of Being Earnest." We wrote about Hill, who performs in the show with her husband, Dr. Robert A. Hill, and sister, Mary Anne, last week.

"The theater holds about 70 people. The first night we had 25, the second 50," she said.

"The Importance of Being Earnest," continues 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 28-29 at the American Legion Hall, 100 W. Dunlap, corner of Center Street, downtown Northville. Tickets are $7 for the show or $20 for Filet Mignon dinner (available on Saturdays only), and show. Call (313) 453-0691 for reservations.

After practicing lines, building sets, and doing the countless tasks involved in producing a show, it's nice to have an audience. The curtain rises on these three shows this weekend. All of them are labors of love by busy people who spent countless hours preparing on stage and behind the scenes. Your support means a lot to them.

■ Farmington Players presents "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 28-29; 2 p.m. Sunday, April 30. The show continues Thursday to Sunday to May 20 at the playhouse, 32332 W. 12 Mile Road, between Farmington Road and Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills. Tickets are $10, call (810) 553-2955 for curtain times and reservations.

■ Plymouth Theatre Guild continues their season with Ira Levin's thriller "Deathtrap" 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, April 28 to May 13, 6 p.m. Sun., May 7 at the Sizzlin' Latin jazz duo is hot!

Together, they produce a unique blend of classical, Flamenco and jazz music with a touch of the exotic

JIM JACOFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Talented duo: Vocalist Heidi Hepler and guitarist Michele (Me-KEL-eh) Ramo perform Latin Jazz.

BY MITCH GENOVA
SPECIAL WRITER

Vocalist Heidi Hepler and guitarist Michele (Me-KEL-eh) Ramo of Livonia have been producing some of the most refreshingly new music heard in some time.

"We love what we're doing. Everyday we just have fun," said Hepler. "We really believe in what we're doing. It's teamwork. This is our dream come true."

Hepler has a background in classical music and opera. Ramo is a classically trained concert violinist who taught himself classical guitar and left his native Italy to explore jazz improvisation in the U.S.

Together, they produce a unique blend of classical, flamenco and jazz music with a touch of the exotic. Their music includes tangos, rhumba, bossa nova, samba, bolero, mambo and cha-cha.

In addition to playing 7-11 p.m. Thursday-Saturday at the Phoenicia Restaurant in Birmingham, they're getting ready for a May 13 concert/dinner during the 102nd annual Ann Arbor May Festival.

"This is our third year playing at the festival," said Ramo. "Every year it gets bigger. It's a great honor to be performing there."

This year, the Ramo Group will be performing at a Gala Celebration Dinner honoring flutist James Galway.

The evening begins with cocktails, followed by dinner, and dancing to the sounds of Latin Jazz with the Ramo Group featuring Ramo, guitar; Hepler, vocals; Marcus Belgrave, trumpet; Phil Lasley, alto saxophone; Roy Brooks, drums; Jerry LeDuff and Jamie Rusling, percussion; Kurt Krahnke, bass and Ian Smith keyboards and piano.

Later that evening, Ramo and Hepler will present a short concert as a duo.

Hepler, Ramo and master percussionist Roy Brooks will perform together this Thursday at Phoenicia in Birmingham. The result is a unique and rare combination of musical sounds that redefine the word "magic".

If you don't believe in magic, you haven't heard Brooks play Jerome Kern's "All the Things You Are" on a hand saw. This is no gimmick. In Brooks' hands, the common household saw acquires a most haunting and lyrical voice, which gives this already beautiful song a new dimension.

Then, accompanied by soft chords from Ramo's guitar, Hepler vocalizes a duet with the saw which is other worldly.

Percussionist Brooks was born in Detroit, and made his mark as a jazz drummer when he joined the Horace Silver Quintet in 1959. Brooks toured and recorded several albums with Horace Silver's highly rhythmic jazz unit, then went on to perform with such jazz greats as Wes Montgomery, Dizzy Gillespie, Dexter Gordon and Charles Mingus.

Meanwhile, Brooks had explored aboriginal percussion instruments and was a founding member of M'Boom, Max Roach's world-famous percussion ensemble. While continuing to perform with M'Boom, Brooks heads three of his own groups, the Aboriginal Percussion Choir, Artistic Truth, and M'Jumbe. He has also recorded a CD "Duet in Detroit."

The Ramo Group repertoire includes several standard tunes, such as Gershwin's "Summertime" and Cole Porter's "Night and Day." But the heart of the Ramo Group consists of their own highly original compositions, with Ramo writing the music and Hepler supplying the lyrics.

From the light and airy "Summer Sun" and "Talk of the Waves" and the very hip and playfully strutting "Groovy Hat" to the fast lane energy of "I-94 East," their music delights the senses and brings joy to the heart.

Ramo and Hepler were married last fall, but they almost never met. Ramo left Italy to come to the United States just as Hepler was leaving the United States to travel and perform in Italy. They met by chance when Hepler was visiting home and friends took her to hear Ramo in concert.

Ramo performs solo on "Finally We Met," a ballad of exceptional lyric beauty which he composed to mark their meeting.

If you have grown weary of synthesized, electronic sounds, you will find the natural, acoustic sounds of the Ramo Group a welcome change of pace.

And you will be amazed at the variety and beauty that this highly inventive group achieves. Ramo plucks, strums, and drums, using every part of the guitar, and he achieves fascinating effects on the guitar using a spoon, dinner plate and glass.

Add to this Hepler's incredible vocal range and imaginative vocalizations and you have a music unlike anything you have heard before.

On May 14, the Ramo Group will appear at the Gem Theatre in a 10:45 a.m. Mother's Day brunch hosted by the Lyric Chamber Ensemble. Call (810) 357-1111 for ticket information.

The Ramo Group will be appearing 2-4 p.m. Sunday, May 28 at the Detroit Institute of Arts. There is no charge for this outdoor concert celebrating National Museum Month.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

DAN DEAN/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Ready to serve: Dr. Joel and Cheryl Kimelman own Sweetwater's Bistro. The Kimelmans spend evenings at the restaurant. They enjoy visiting customers, and Joel has been seen bussing tables.

If you want to go where everyone knows your name, or seems to, Sweetwater's Bistro, appropriately half a block from the shores of Cass Lake, should fit the bill nicely.

If you're from the lakes area, you're almost sure to see someone you know on a weekend night at the cozy, 100-seat bistro, whose signature appetizer is sweet potato fries dipped in pecan molasses. Broiled whitefish a la Joel is a popular house specialty.

Formerly the Cabana Cafe, only two walls of the original 30-year-old building remained standing when the restaurant opened for business last September.

And the food, service and ambiance make first-time restaurant owners Dr. Joel (of the whitefish) and Cheryl Kimelman of West Bloomfield look like pros.

"We have a lot of people who make us look good," said Cheryl, who has a counseling degree, but who most recently helped develop the Meals on Wheels program for Detroit's elderly.

One ingredient is experienced general manager, Joe Buda, a Farmington Hills resident who is formerly of Pike Street Station and the old Chimayo's (now Allegro's) restaurants.

Then there's artistic executive chef Robin Tuttis, also living in Farmington Hills, whom they plucked from a position in Dallas. Her rim of colorful and very edible chopped peppers and onions scattered around each dish both "cleans the palate and presents the plate," she says.

Another is the Kimelmans' framed, displayed, written commitment to meeting the needs of their guests. "It is easier to be successful than it is to be unsuccessful," it begins.

So, although grilled salmon comes with a caper lemon butter and grilled swordfish is served on a black bean sauce with sour cream, you can have both just plain grilled.

And last is the simple, warm ambiance of the bistro itself, designed inside and out by Cheryl, using blue-greys to represent water, sands to represent the beach and corals for the shells found there.

Parties of six are seated at a series of dining room sets, purchased at the Saline Antiques Market, while smaller groups surround them at booths lining all four walls of the restaurant.

A cozy bar made of wood serves up wines and beers, as the restaurant doesn't have a full-scale liquor license. Buda wants to educate patrons to a variety of after-dinner wines.

Irv and Evelyn Stevens of West Bloomfield came on a recent Saturday night, with five of six at their table happily ordering Joel's up-north style whitefish. Irv held out for the filet served with a Jack Daniels peppercorn sauce, which he enjoyed.

"The salad was good" — housemade dressings include cashew honey mustard and blue cheese. And Irv liked the fact that "the owner (Cheryl) came to the table and we met her husband on the way out. They're very friendly people. "They really revamped the place," Irv said, explaining that he used to come to the restaurant it replaced for breakfast.

Well soon, he may be able to do the same at Sweetwater's. That's because in early April, Keego Harbor OK'd the restaurant's expansion to allow for a larger kitchen.

Little Charlie & The Nightcats coming to Sully's

BY MARK GALLO
SPECIAL WRITER

Little Charlie & The Nightcats, who will be appearing at Sully's, 1758 Greenfield, Dearborn, April 27-28, (313) 846-1920, have been the most consistently exciting jump-and-swing blues band in America for the past decade, beginning with their 1987 Alligator Records debut, "All The Way Crazy," something of a modern-day classic.

With the release of their sixth CD for Alligator, the brand spankin' new "Straight Up," they find themselves in the enviable position of also being one of the most popular blues bands in the world. The reasons why aren't difficult to surmise.

Little Charlie Baty and Rick Estrin are celebrating 20 years together in 1995, and show drumming Doby Strange has been with the fellas for nearly as long. Bassist Ronnie James Weber, a veteran of work with Kim Wilson (Fabulous Thunderbirds) and West Coast star Mark Hummel, is the third bassist. Jay Peterson had the job until 1990, when he was replaced by Brad Lee Sexton. Weber signed on last year, and adds standup acoustic bass to the arsenal

The stars of the show are Baty and Estrin, though. Two decades of alchemy is an elusive commodity that most bands would wheel and deal and steal for. Baty and Estrin have it in spades. Little Charlie is one of a handful of the most impressive and influential guitarists, with his combination of Charlie Christian swing, Speedy West rockabilly and Chicago and Texas blues licks — often sharing space in the confines of a single song.

On "Straight Up," that's most conspicuously present in his showcase piece, "Gerontology," a classic West Coast swing number stamped with Baty's instantly recognizable fleet-fingered and compact guitar runs. Estrin, an impressive harp player, writes sly and compact songs perfectly formatted to the band's many expertly juggled styles. As a vocalist, he's got the biggest grin this side of Cab Calloway, and he's just as much the hep cat.

Touring is integral to the success of the band. Baty says they spend about half the year on the road. When they're back home in California, though "we like to work two or three days a week and actually have a home life."

Between the U.S. and Europe, Little Charlie & The Nightcats play somewhere around 250 nights a year. It's no surprise then that a couple of British blues mags named them the Best U.S. Touring Band two years running.

It's also no surprise that Estrin won a W.C. Handy Award (the blues version of the Grammys) for writing the Song of the Year ("My Next Ex-Wife") last year. The constant road exposure has paid off in other ways, too.

"We used to play all night long, in illegal gambling joints and biker bars," said Charlie, recalling that there was "not a lot of interest in the blues," 20 years ago. When he put his first band together, the drummer was the mechanic and the bassist was Little Charlie's girlfriend. Estrin wasn't even in the band for six months.

When Baty and Estrin met, at a party, Baty was a harp player just beginning to spend more time on guitar. When he heard Estrin, the playing of the guitar took on more of an immediacy.

When he was a youngster "there was a guy going door-to-door selling Hawaiian lap steel guitar lessons. He showed me and my sister how to play. Then he took my mother aside and told her that I didn't have the coordination to play, but that my sister could be a good player."

The Nightcats — named after an early 1950s Little Watter band — tour as a stripped down and ready to roar quartet. They bring that big band power quartet to town this weekend.

"Sully's has become one of our favorite clubs," Little Charlie said. "It's the Detroit market to us."

Trinity House presents inspirational story

BY TAMI TABACCHI
SPECIAL WRITER

Trinity House Theatre is a theater that rarely seems to stray from a theatrical challenge. The performance of "Jugger's Rain" written by Ron Mark, now being presented there is certainly not an exception to their theatrical experimentation. You'll be whisked away to a world of surrealistic fantasy where you will learn that appearances are not always as they seem.

The play opens with the main character, Jugger, (P. W. Henry of Westland), paying a bizarre tribute to the tree that sits in front of his house. This tree, we soon learn, is a symbol of survival for his family. We are introduced into the make-believe world that his family has chosen to live in. In their eccentric world, their hardships and handicaps are overcome through faith and optimism. Their fantasy world has been created for them through the inspiring words of Jugger.

Jugger has helped them believe that they can achieve things that others believed to be unattainable. His mentally retarded brother, Boogie, believes that he gives lectures at Harvard. Jugger's sister, Sissy, who suffers from arthritis, believes she is a ballerina. His other sister, Isbel who had to have a hysterectomy young in life, stuffs her dress with a doll and tells her family that she is pregnant.

However, the one common dream that they all share is the return of their beloved father, Amos. Each day they believe that he will return from work and be with his family. The sad truth is that he was burned alive in a forest fire many years earlier.

Their somewhat stable world is turned upside down when Jugger's brother, Carney, (Guy Snyder of Livonia), a now famous television evangelist returns to remove the lies that they have all come to believe.

What he doesn't realize is that the truths that they believe in is what has kept them happy, strong, and alive for many years.

While the characters at first seem too strange to be real people, we learn that they represent a family that truly is human. As Jugger said, "All people are flowers, with hair rooted in the earth, drinking up the truth. The body is a stem, strong as a tree — toes — blossoms opening to the sun like jewels." By this, we learn that this family has blossomed by being seemingly unhampered by the physical obstacles in their way.

While each performance is very good, you will be amazed by Laura Gumina's performance as Verity, Jugger's mother. The Redford resident steals every scene with her intense acting ability. P.W. Henry is inspiring as Jugger and Colleen Hayes is charming as Dulcy, Carney's wife.

If you are a fan of off-beat humor and story-telling, you won't want to miss "Jugger's Rain." Trudy Mason has brilliantly directed a bizarre yet inspiring story of faith and human emotion that will leave you wishing there was a sequel.

Thrilling 'Kiss of Death' makes Caruso a star

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

The 1947 film noir "Kiss of Death" is still best remembered as the one where a giggling Richard Widmark pushes an old lady down a staircase in a wheelchair. It was a career-making performance.

The same might be said for David Caruso in the current remake. Fans of "NYPD Blue," the TV series Caruso walked out on last season, wanted to see the red-headed actor flop in his first major film role, but he's by far the best thing going in this often disappointing thriller.

He plays a two-time loser and family man named Jimmy who serves a four-year prison term by not ratting on his partners in crime. Caruso plays him tough and completely convincing, like James Cagney without all the nervous energy and hunching shoulders.

As in the original, he makes a deal with the district attorney: give me a day with my kid and I'll dish up some names. In the process, he's also framing the two-faced cousin who has done his wife wrong on the outside.

■ REVIEW

The scheme works and soon Little Junior (Nicolas Cage), an underworld heir with a breathing problem, shows up at Charlie's place and literally beats the guy to a pulp. Once out of prison, Jimmy reluctantly agrees to join Junior's gang of car thieves and deliver information to the feds.

Watching Cage's performance in "Kiss of Death," it finally occured to me that he is much better playing the guy who things happen to (like in "Raising Arizona" and "Red Rock West") rather than a guy who makes things happen.

Pumped full of steroids, his Little Junior is a poor excuse for a bad guy. He's given little ticks — asthma, an almost doglike loyalty to his ailing father, an obvious affection for Jimmy — that self-consciously make him both evil and endearing, yet the movie surprisingly downplays the homosexual overtones of the original film.

As in the original, director Barbet Schroeder keeps the visual style unflashy and tough. There are vivid scenes of the underworld, including the organized cruising for cars to steal and their transformation in Charlie's chop shop.

I'm still having trouble appreciating the so-called brilliance of screenwriter Richard Price, who has done little but monkey around with old screenplays, this time by the great Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer.

He has kept some of the sappier aspects of the original, including the relationship between Jimmy and his kid's babysitter, which could definitely use some fleshing out this time around. His self-conscious update of film noir could definitely give female characters something to do.

Meanwhile, he has tossed out the best part of the climax, namely Jimmy's long wait in a dark apartment for his enemy to come at him. He opts instead for a much more conventional showdown which makes you forget some of the suprises that came before it.

This new "Kiss of Death" is not a bad movie, but cagey studio comparisons to "Pulp Fiction" are premature. While Quentin Tarantino takes the style of film noir and makes it his own, movies like this only make you long for the original article.

A portion of ticket proceeds will go toward the preservation and restoration of the theater's historic Wurlitzer pipe organ, one of only five to have been built with a grand piano.

The concert will feature music of the 1920s and Tchaikovsky's First Piano Concerto.

Fenelon and Atwell will play a pops concert at the 32-ton Mighty Wurlitzer pipe organ and grand piano originally installed in Detroit's Fisher Theatre.

Queensryche interacts with 'Land'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Fans of the conceptual rock band Queensryche will be able to find their "Promised Land" at area computer stores this June.

The Seattle band is releasing a two CD-ROM set which documents the five-month recording process of Queensryche's latest album "Promised Land."

"We decided to do a CD-ROM because we wanted to be able to give our fans a vehicle to interact with us," said Chris DeGarmo, guitarist/songwriter for Queensryche in a statement to the press. "We've always explored different medias to express ourselves both musically and visually, and this just gives you another perspective of what we're about."

What sets this apart from other rock bands' CD-ROM offerings is that interwoven with the documentary is a five-level game which shows each band members' own "trippy animated world."

"The individual worlds of each one of us is a really trippy, animated world," drummer Scott Rockenfield said. "It represents what we are as individuals. You have to solve an impending disaster in each one of the worlds.

"The gaming aspect is what's different. Nobody has done that yet. It's going to require a lot of hours of gaming, but you get a lot of bang for your buck."

The game begins in a surreal, computer-generated animated forest similar to those of the Pacific Northwest's San Juan Islands where "Promised Land" was recorded. As users explore the forest, they come upon 3-D versions of the "Big Log" recording studio. Inside they can peek into the rooms where the band lived and recorded the album.

The games begin within the forest. The five band members' individual worlds have more than 25 interrelated puzzles, games and interactive obstacles.

Players who reach the end of the game, are rewarded with a bonus Queensryche track.

A spokeswoman for the band said that Rockenfield's world is the weirdest. Instead of talking about it, he would rather let players see for themselves.

The CD-ROM is a natural progression for the band whose live shows are considered "Zooropa meets Pink Floyd meets a Rush show." The tour for the moody, dark and emotionally heavy "Promised Land" lands at The Palace on Friday, April 28, with more of the same — with the emphasis on more.

Queensryche is bringing a host of actors and stage sets to tell the story of "Nikki," introduced in the album "Operation:Mindcrime". Rockenfield describes it as a "big Broadway play about the course of one's life."

"It's definitely something that's different," he said. "In a nutshell, it's a theater combined with movies combined with a lot of volume. We're playing 'Promised Land' in its entirety. During the course (of the show) we interject songs from our past."

Queensryche and Type O Negative perform Friday, April 28, at The Palace of Auburn Hills, I-75 and Lapeer Road, Auburn Hills. For more information, call (810) 377-0100.

Pine Knob adds video viewing

■ Lawn seat patrons at Pine Knob will have another view of the stage this summer with the additions of video screens, but it's not all the improvements planned by Palace Sports and Entertainment.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

To Pine Knob patrons sitting on the lawn, the performers they pay to see look like the size of ants

This summer they will get a better view when the venue adds three 9-by-12-foot video screens under the roof at the back of the pavilion.

"(With the screens) you can sit out and enjoy the open air, look down at the stage or look a little higher and see the video screen," said Jim McCue, events coordinator. "It makes Pine Knob, without sounding like I'm waving the company flag, a lot more intimate."

By mounting the screens under the roof, the units will be protected from rain and the glare of the sun.

Aside from the screens, the outdoor concert venue will add an upper level to the women's restroom at the pavilion's stage left. The lower level will be renovated into a men's restroom. Concession stands, parking, the Machus-run restaurant and handicapped viewing areas will be expanded.

Including this year's $3.5 million improvement project, Palace Sports and Entertainment has invested more than $17.5 million in Pine Knob enhancements since taking over the outdoor venue in 1991.

"For the third straight year, Pine Knob was acknowledged as the nation's busiest outdoor amphitheatre, and every summer since we took over its attendance has grown," said Tom Wilson, president of Palace Sports and Entertainment, which runs Pine Knob. "We want this trend to continue, so we strive to offer more features and comforts to go along with our wide range of shows.

"We aspire to make certain our guests enjoy not only the concert, but the entire evening they spend at Pine Knob.

The series packages underwent a facelift as well. This year, they've been expanded to include Oakland University's Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester.

Jim McCue, events coordinator, said the organization got involved with Meadow Brook too late last year to revamp the series packages. They jumped on the chance this year.

Come next basketball season, The Palace of Auburn Hills' west entrance will have a dramatically new, $15 million look. An all-glass exterior and lobby/atrium will showcase the entrance at night. The arena's two-level lobby will house a virtual reality arcade, interactive music areas, mini-theater, Pistons' and NBA Hall of Fame, a Celebrity Hall of Fame with memorabilia from Collective Soul, Madonna, Rod Stewart and other performers, large-scale video walls and highlights of upcoming events and a Great Stuff! store.

"Our new lobby has some really exciting possibilities," Wilson said. "Our goal is to give our guests a great experience from the minute they walk through our doors, whether it is to attend an event or to purchase tickets.

"We want people to come out early and get the same sense of excitement when they walk in the lobby as they get when they take their seats in the arena."

Construction of the 100,000 square foot addition is scheduled to be completed by early November and will proceed while the entrance remains open. Rossetti and Associates, original designers of The Palace, is the architect for the project and Frank Rewold and Son is the contractor.

Stars come out at Palace's outdoor venues

G. Love and Sauce groove on old time

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

G. Love and Special Sauce make their intentions clear near the beginning of their self titled debut: "Me and my band/All must agree we like to get groovy/With the sounds of the old time/We like to jam 'cause man/Sounds from the Bandstand/Hand for the cause man/Hang from the old ones."

The song, "Blues Music," spells out what G. Love is all about — a little bit of rag mop, a dash of rap and a whole lot of blues. Except for rap, G. Love is swimming in musical waters that most early "twentysomethings" avoid. But thanks to G. Love's parents and childhood guitar teacher with multiple interests, G. Love and Special Sauce is spicing up the airways.

"I was turned on to cool stuff by this really fat dude named Waco, like Waco, Texas," said G. Love, born Garrett Dutton III in Philadelphia, Pa. "He taught me songs from like Chuck Berry, Bob Dylan and Beatles and some blues and stuff. I was a kid, you know. I'd never even heard these records.

"My parents had a couple cool records in the basement. I was kind of soaking it all in."

When it came time for G. Love to hone his skills on his own, he hit the streets.

"I developed my own style of playing out on the street, just playing solo, then I hooked up with the band," he said.

The double bass, acoustic Dobro and the 1940s drums caught on and soon indoor gigs trickled in. After months of opening gigs and help from Morphine's Mark Sandman, G. Love became a top attraction in Boston.

The experiences lead to the 1994 release of "G. Love and Special Sauce" on Sony's resurrected OKeh label. In songs like "Garbage Man" (I'm your garbage man/Coming down the street/Kick your can, kick your can/Better get your butt down on the curb/And say hey to me"), and "Shooting Hoops" ("When the school lets out and the shifts are done/Get the boys together, get a ball, get a run/Lace up the sneaks kick off them shoes/I'll admit I play to win yo 'cause I don't like to lose") carries a charming homegrown feel.

Two other hook-laden songs, "Baby's Got Sauce" and the soon-to-be summer anthem, "Cold Beverage," have found their way onto airways, sandwiched between modern rock tracks. "Baby's Got Sauce" has been a top requested hit on The Planet 96.3 (WHYT) for weeks.

Not only are the songs homegrown, but so is the way that the group promoted the record. The grassroots campaign is all paying off now.

"It's really cool," G. Love said of the new-found success of the record. "We're not an MTV band or nothing. It's just kind of going cool. We spread the word about ourselves."

BEST BETS

Thursday, April 27

PORTISHEAD
Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac. (Personally, I think she should stop whining about nobody loving her or get help. Nonetheless, judging from the ads and posters, it should be a pretty dramatic show — maybe a mini version of the Pet Shop Boys' show at the State Theatre in Detroit a few years ago. Portishead is working on their new record so they may play a few new songs.)
(810) 334-1999

Friday, April 28

NINETEEN WHEELS
With Crossed Wire at Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor. (There's a good buzz going around town about Nineteen Wheels, which rose from the ashes of East Lansing's The Hannibals. Chris Moore, lead singer of Crossed Wire, is a perennial winner of the Detroit Music Awards' Best Songwriter prize.)
(313) 996-8555

BLUE DOG
With Breech, Cinecyde, 3-D Invisibles, Mavis, The Volcanoes and Turkish Delight perform during Tremor Records Review at Alvin's, 5756 Cass Ave., Detroit. (Three of Detroit's most interesting bands — the avant garde Blue Dog, experimental Breech and the odd 3-D Invisibles — all appear in one night.)
(313) 832-2355

TODD SNIDER
With Stewart Francke at Majestic Theatre, 4140 Woodward Ave., Detroit. (Todd Snider's quirky pop style — a la Wally Pleasant — is vastly underrated. He's funny, serious, and all-around fun. Stewart Francke scored a coup recently when Spelling Productions chose to use his single "Kiss Kiss Bang Bang" in the May 8 episode of "Melrose Place.")
(313) 963-7680

BIG BLOCK
With Jericho Turnpike and Speedball at The Ritz, 17580 Frazho, Roseville. (Big Block's "pop with an edge" is one of the reasons they were chosen as The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers' 1994 Band of the Year. There's no other reason to push the show. But metalheads Speedball will soon nationally release their CD "Do Unto Others, Then Split" on Energy Records. The growling Jericho Turnpike is an up-and-coming Ohio band that has formed a strong following through touring. The three appear as a promotion for the 89X/Rustbelt Records compilation "Riot '67.")
(810) 778-6404

Saturday, April 29

TEARJERKS
Lili's, 2930 Jacob, Hamtramck. (Just like Todd Snider, the Tearjerks is a band that should get way more attention than it gets. Its debut CD is due out early this summer. Make sure to get it. It's a guaranteed hit.)
(313) 875-6555

Sunday, April 30

G. LOVE AND SPECIAL SAUCE
Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac. (G. Love and Special Sauce's 1994 album was a sleeper hit in Detroit until WHYT got ahold of it — that could be because they're sponsoring the show though. "My Baby's Got Sauce" has been a top request on the station — and for good reason. G. Love's laid-back "ragmop" style spices up the radio's usual run-of-the-mill playlist.)

LET'S GO! TRAVEL

Don't forget to pack your Observer

It's fun to share news about your family vacation with friends and neighbors by sending photos to the Observer.

To be considered, take the front page of your Observer Newspaper on vacation. Ask someone to snap a photograph of your family holding the newspaper in a scenic spot.

Please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope if you would like the photos returned to you.

We'll print as many photos as space allows each week. Photos will be returned shortly after publication.

Send photos and travel recommendations to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer Newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. For more information, call (313) 953-2105.

We're also looking for recommendations for good places to go with families — overnight, for a weekend or week.

What's your favorite springtime getaway? Where are you planning to go this summer? Any tips for planning memorable family vacations?

When you leave for a trip, don't forget to pack the front section of your Observer. We're looking forward to seeing your vacation photos.

Port of call: Jeff and Allison Matheney of Redford visited fort San Cristobal in Puerto Rico as part of a March cruise. Other stops included Haiti, St. Thomas, and the Bahamas.

Golden Gloves champ

Reggie Thomas of the Livonia Boxing Club won the Detroit-area Golden Gloves super-heavyweight division in a three-round decision over Douglas Jewell of the Detroit's Butzel Recreation Center in the finals April 19 at the Italian-American Club in Livonia.

Thomas, 22, of Ann Arbor, will carry a 5-0 amateur mark when he opens first-round action at the National Golden Gloves finals, which begin Monday in Lowell, Mass.

The 6-foot-4, 240-pound Thomas, who also won the Diamond Gloves, is only in his first year of boxing.

"Reggie's doing well the first time around," said LBC manager Paul Soucy, who has sent four super-heavyweights to the nationals in 16 years. "Jewell may have been the more polished and experienced fighter, but Reggie hits harder. He's also a southpaw.

"He's not scared and he's got a big heart. Right now we're looking at the '96 Olympic Trials."

■ On Friday, Livonian Rob Diffanbaugh, a 154-pounder from the LBC, upped his professional record to 3-2 by stopping Johnny Perrault of Lansing on a first-round TKO at the Marshall Street Armory in Lansing.

New hockey alignment

Officials from the Suburban High School Hockey League announced Tuesday that it will form a two divisional alignment beginning with the 1995-96 season. The Observer also learned that Wyandotte is dropping out of the SHSHL to join the Michigan Metro next season.

Tier I will consist of Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Stevenson, Birmingham and Walled Lake Central. Tier II members include Royal Oak, Bloomfield Hills Andover, Bloomfield Hills Lahser, Walled Lake Western and Southfield-Lathrup.

The scheduling format is double round-robin within the division and one crossover with each member of the opposite division.

All 13 games within the SHSHL will count toward the divisional standings. Separate division champs will be decided.

Chargers upstage top-ranked Troy

Livonia Churchill pulled off the upset Monday in girls non-league soccer action with a 1-0 triumph over Troy, the state's No. 1-ranked team in Class A. The Colts were also rated nationally in USA Today.

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Troy, the state's No. 1-ranked girls soccer team in Class A and beauty contestant in the USA Today national ratings, found itself on the short end of a 1-0 count Monday to host Livonia Churchill.

Sophomore Lizz Szkrybalo's goal from freshman Andrea Galindo during the first two minutes of action stood up as the game-winner for the Chargers, who improved to 3-1 with the non-league win over the defending state champions.

It was Troy's first loss of the year. The Colts had been unbeaten in 28 straight games dating back to the 1993 state tournament. (On Tuesday, Troy slipped to 5-2 on the season with a 2-1 loss to Birmingham Seaholm.)

Churchill coach Nick O'Shea, back on the sidelines for the first time this season after undergoing hip surgery, couldn't have planned a more timely return.

"We've changed our offensive and defensive systems," O'Shea explained. "And since the beginning of the season it's taken a long time to adjust and play with the intensity we need.

"In earlier games we just looked slower."

Troy pressured the Chargers much of the second half, but couldn't convert the equalizer as freshman goalie Crystal Wright hung tough.

She came up with a key save with just 2:07 left on a shot by Troy's Katy Tripp.

"She (Wright) made some good stops," O'Shea said. "She's athletic, but she still has some correctable things to clear up like positioning and decision making. It's not as good as it will be later."

Senior co-captain Margaret Wirth held things together in the back line for the Chargers. Sophomore Andrea Will was another unsung hero, playing a strong first half.

"This has to give them confidence," O'Shea said. "Anytime you make a change in your system, it's going to take time to develop.

"We really haven't practiced at all the last 10 days because of spring break. Two times we practiced with six players in town, but I'm sure they (Troy) had the same problem.

"They (Troy) had a lot of chances, but the final pass was not there.

"And Jessica Limauro, who is a big-time forward and a dangerous weapon didn't play. And that was in our favor."

■ STEVENSON 3, W.L. CENTRAL 0: On Monday, Livonia Stevenson scored three unanswered goals in the second half to beat host Walled Lake Central in a Lakes Division encounter in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Freshman forward Allison Campbell tallied the game-winner from Anne Fedrigo at 18:51. Senior midfielder Wendy McCaul added an unassisted goal 40 seconds later and senior midfielder Laura Fedrigo closed out the scoring with an assist from McCaul.

Stevenson is now 4-2-1 overall and 3-0-1 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"Central packed the box early," said Stevenson's Jim Kimble, who is 4-0-1 since taking over as head coach. "We didn't do anything different in the second half. We just

Gabel takes control as Stevenson coach

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The torch has been passed in the Livonia Stevenson High football program.

Tim Gabel, a varsity assistant who coached the varsity offensive and defensive lines the past two seasons, has been elevated to replace the retiring Jack Reardon as head coach of the Spartans.

Gabel

Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer made the expected announcement on Monday.

Reardon, Stevenson's first and only head coach, retired in January. He posted a record of 168-97-1 in 30 seasons. He won 13 divisional or league titles, two state playoff berths and had two undefeated seasons.

Gabel was believed to be the first and only candidate for the job. His father Jack was a long-time assistant under Reardon.

"Tim's been involved in our program for eight years," Frayer said. "He's been a head coach at the ninth grade and JV, and it was a natural."

Gabel, 27, becomes one of the area's youngest head coaches.

"What I like about him is that he's young and enthusiastic," Frayer said. "But he's mature beyond his years and that's an important factor. And he's also an excellent teacher of fundamentals, which is very important. He's also respected as a teacher. Plus, I feel he prospered being involved with Jack (Reardon)."

Gabel, a first-year social studies and orientation teacher, was interviewed for the head coaching job earlier this month by Stevenson principal Dr. Dale Collier, assistant principal Jan Haas and Frayer.

"Right now I don't feel overwhelmed, but I feel I have an enormous amount of work to do," Gabel said. "I've been working on a playbook most of the winter and it's just about ready now.

"As far as replacing Jack, I don't think things will hit me until we play that first game."

Gabel played high school football under Armand Vigna at Livonia Franklin. He was a two-year varsity starter at outside linebacker and was co-captain his senior year (1984).

After graduating from Franklin in 1985, Gabel went on to earn a degree in Economics at Wayne State University. (He is currently two classes shy of earning his masters).

Gabel began coaching at the freshman level with Stu Rose at Stevenson beginning in '85. He spent four years with the ninth-grade team before moving over as a volunteer coach in 1989 to Mount Clemens Chippewa Valley.

In 1990, Gabel returned to the Spartans as a scout.

Gabel also worked 1¼ years for Macomb County in the Urban Planning Department before redirecting his career efforts toward education classes at WSU.

He became the Spartans' head freshman coach in 1991 and was head JV coach in 1992 before joining Reardon's staff as a varsity assistant in 1993-94.

Stevenson posted a record of 15-5 the past two seasons and reached the state Class AA playoffs last November.

"Obviously it helped that my dad coached at Stevenson, but I've also learned a lot of lessons at other places," Gabel said. "They run the Wing-T at Chippewa Valley and I appreciated the power-game they played at Franklin, especially when we played other power-I teams like North Farmington and (Westland) John Glenn.

"Right now I don't know if there will be major changes. Jack's Slot-I (offensive attack) has been very successful. The ball-faking and deception is very effective, but I also have a lot of respect for the power game."

Gabel, however, will not stray far away from Reardon's overall philosophy of coaching high school kids.

"I hope people won't miss that he was a really good guy, somebody who showed a side of warmth and humor," Gabel said of his mentor. "It was fun coaching with him and I'm going to miss that.

"Jack also looked at football as an education thing, teaching values and principles first and foremost. It was not extra-curricular activity to him, but it was co-curricular, and he took that seriously."

Gabel expects to have his staff in place by the end of the week.

"Jack's been very low key, but I know he's happy for me," Gabel said. "We'll get together and go over the nuts and bolts, the administrative things."

Frayer, meanwhile, is elated that his new head coach is firmly in place.

"Tim is a coach in our building and he's respected, even as a first-year teacher by the kids," the Stevenson AD said. "We feel he brings a great tradition of Livonia football with him.

"He's an attention-to-detail type of guy. When he first came in he was a natural. He picked up things right away.

"We're pleased as punch to have him and we hope he stays as long as Jack did. That would be a great history for Stevenson football."

Churchill upends Franklin, 6-3

Livonia Churchill senior Eric Godlewski retired the final 11 Livonia Franklin batters Monday, lifting the visiting Chargers to a 6-3 baseball victory.

After allowing two runs on two hits in the first inning, Godlewski settled down and gave up only one run and two hits in the final six innings. He struck out five and walked only one.

The win was Churchill's first of the season, evening its record at 1-1 overall and in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activites Association. The Patriots are 5-1 overall and 1-1 in the division.

The Chargers had a total of 11 hits, led by Godlewski, who went 3-for-4 and scored twice. Jeff Sheehan added two hits, two stolen bases and two RBI. Ron Blackmore and Bob Szopko each had two hits and one RBI.

The loss went to Franklin starter Brian Crumley, who struck out 11 and walked one in his 6⅔ innings of work. The senior lefthander is 2-1. Sean Mattson retired the only batter he faced in the seventh.

After falling behind 2-0 in the first inning, Franklin's Tim Miller tied the game with a two-run homerun. Roy Maleyko scored in front of Miller.

The Patriots later tied the game at 3-3 after Jason Schneider doubled home Crumley who reached base on an error.

Churchill took the lead for good with a two-run fifth. Following a Blackmore single and steal of second, Szopko ripped a run-scoring single. Sheehan later knocked Szopko in with a single.

On Tuesday, the host Patriots bounced back with an 8-5 victory over North Farmington in a WLAA cross-over.

After spotting the Raiders three runs in the first inning, Franklin tied the game with a three-run first and took the lead for good with a two-run third.

Pete Stasevich recorded the win, surviving the first 4⅓ innings before being relieved by Miller. Miller recorded the save, allowing one run in the final 2⅔ innings.

Maleyko scored twice and had two hits, while Crumley had two hits and two steals to lead the Patriots. Stasevich also chipped in with two hits, while Jason Schniers knocked in two runs.

Robert Roth went 3-for-3, stole three bases and scored three runs for North. John Lessway added three hits.

■ JOHN GLENN 7, N. FARMINGTON 2: Senior Jerry Farrar overcame early control problems Monday to help visiting Westland John Glenn improve to 2-0 in the Lakes Division of the WLAA.

Farrar (3-0) walked four North Farmington batters in the first inning resulting in two runs, before shutting out the Raiders the rest of the way. The southpaw scattered six hits, struck out seven and walked six.

"Jerry was overpowering," Glenn coach Norm Hoenes said. "After struggling in the first inning, he settled down and cruised the rest of the way."

James Hagelthorn, Trevor Davey and Jason Robertson led the Rockets with three hits and two RBI each. Steve Hulett scored three times.

Hagelthorn got Glenn (5-2) going with a run-scoring double in the first. After scoring single runs in each of the first three innings, Glenn put the game away with a three-run fifth.

Robert Roth and Brian Moran had two hits each for North (1-1 in the division).

■ FARMINGTON 8, STEVENSON 1: Nick Latra and Wes Cornwell combined on a one-hitter Monday as visiting Farmington won its first game in the Lakes Division.

Latra pitched the first five innings, allowing only a run-scoring single to Livonia Stevenson's Glenn Pinneo in the fourth inning. He struck out seven and walked three before giving way to Cornwell for the final two innings. Cornwell struck out four and walked none.

Leading 2-0 in the third, the Falcons extended their lead to 4-0 after a two-run homer by Dan McLaughlin. Dale Domas was 2-for-3, with one run and one RBI. Latra, Jake Siskosky and John Huhn had one hit each.

Andy Dattolo took the defeat, hurling the first four innings. He was relieved by Dave Young.

■ LUTH. WESTLAND 12, ROBICHAUD 9: Trailing 7-5 in the fifth inning Monday, visiting Lutheran Westland erupted for six runs to pull away from Dearborn Heights Robichaud for the non-league victory.

The Warriors (2-0) were outhit 9-7, but took advantage of five Bulldog errors.

Jeff Morris knocked in two runs with a double for the Warriors. Chris Tiernan and Joe Pruchnik added RBI doubles for the Warriors, while Mat Balts and Tim Donal had RBI singles. Jason Bayush knocked in two runs — one with a single and one on a sacrifice fly.

Don Wagner, the second of three Westland pitchers, threw the middle three innings to collect the win.

■ GARDEN CITY 6, WAYNE 5: Kevin Finnegan pitched out of a jam in the top of the 11th inning, and delivered the winning hit in the bottom of the inning Tuesday as Garden City beat Wayne Memorial in a thrilling Mega Conference game.

The Cougars are 4-2 overall. Wayne fell to 4-4.

Wayne failed to score after loading the bases with no outs in the top of the 11th and the score tied 5-5. The first two runners reached base and Garden City chose to walk Wayne's Shannan Green to load the bases and set up a force play at each base.

The next batter hit a grounder to the Garden City shortstop Jamie Chipelewski. His throw to catcher Dan Kendrick at home plate got a force out.

With two strikes on the next Wayne batter, the Zebras decided to try a suicide squeeze play. The bunt, however, was missed for the third strike and Kendrick tagged the Wayne player trying to score from third base for a double play to end the threat without a run scored.

Garden City freshman Dan Fairchild doubled in the bottom of the 11th and came home with the winning run on a single by Finnegan with one out. Finnegan caught the first seven innings before relieving Joe Redouty for the final four innings.

Redouty allowed five runs on seven hits in seven innings.

Finnegan allowed no runs on three hits and struck out one. Finnegan led the 12-hit attack with two hits and one RBI.

The losing pitcher was Wayne ace Green, who entered the game after Garden City scored five runs.

The Cougars managed four hits off Green, who also struck out five batters over five innings.

Clark Boston led Wayne with four hits and an RBI. Green was 3-for-5, including an RBI single that finished a three-run rally to tie the score at 5-5 in the top of the seventh.

Brian Johnson delivered a two-run double earlier in the inning.

Madonna gets well in hurry with 4-game sweep of St. Joe

■ COLLEGE

Well, that mid-week frustration certainly put Madonna University's baseball team in a mean mood.

The Fighting Crusaders, who had games against Wayne State and Concordia College cancelled last Wednesday and Friday, took full vengeance against visiting Mount St. Joseph's over the weekend, sweeping four-straight games with shutouts in the last three.

Indeed, the only runs St. Joseph's managed against Madonna were unearned.

The wins — by 4-3, 11-0, 6-0 and 12-0 scores — upped the Crusaders' record to 24-19. St. Joseph's fell to 15-21.

The opening game of the series Saturday was the only close one. The visitors scored three runs in the fifth after a throwing error by pitcher Sean Henkel. But Henkel, who pitched an otherwise brilliant game to improve his record to 6-2, was saved by a four-run, two-out rally in the seventh.

Tim Kasubowski started Madonna's comeback with a one-out walk. After a fly out, Dan Taylor walked and Kurt Wilczynski doubled both runners home. Jim Solak and Aaron Jones followed with walks to load the bases for Scott Anderson, and he came through with a two-run, game-winning single.

Anderson finished with two hits, two runs batted in and two stolen bases in the game. Shawn Penzak also had two hits. Henkel finished with a three-hitter, walking one and striking out eight.

Saturday's second game was another three-hitter, this one a five-inning mercy from Dan Pydyn (also 6-2). He walked one and struck out two.

Madonna got five runs in the first, three on an Anderson home run; he had two hits and four RBI in the game. Kasubowski and Jones each added three RBI, two of Kasubowski's on a first-inning double and all three of Jones on a fourth-inning triple, and Taylor had two hits.

On Sunday, Madonna used a four-hitter from Craig Benedict (from Plymouth Canton) to blank St. Joseph's in the opener. Benedict (5-1), named Great Lakes Sectional pitcher of the week, walked one and fanned three in seven innings.

Solak, Wilczynski and Taylor each had two hits and Jones had one; Solak, Taylor and Jones had one RBI each.

The second game was another five-inning mercy, with Mike Grahl (3-4) earning the victory. He surrendered three hits and three walks, striking out eight.

Jones supplied all the power — he banged out two home runs, a three-run job in the fifth and a two-run shot in the fourth. He also had a two-run double in the first; for the game, he had three hits and seven RBI. Solak contributed a two-run double in the second, and Wilczynski and Anderson had two hits apiece.

Brent Washington and Todd Peterson stole the show Tuesday as host Westland John Glenn remained unbeaten in boys track with an 83-54 triumph over rival Wayne Memorial.

Trout fisherman fill opening day

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Ah! Opening day.

A sure sign of the arrival of spring and the approach of warmer fishing weather is the opening of trout season on Michigan's designated trout streams and lakes. Traditionally, opening day falls on the last Saturday in April each year — that's this Saturday, if you're not paying attention.

When thoughts turn to trout fishing the fly fisherman is always at the forefront.

Fly fishing for the elusive trout presents the ultimate challenge for an angler. Whether you're locating a feeding fish, looping a long cast to a precise spot on the river, or simply matching the hatch with your own hand-tied fly, the art of fly fishing for trout is a true test of one's ability to tune-in to the natural surroundings.

Redford's Bill Waara has been tuning-in to Michigan's trout streams since 1926. A member of the Michigan Fly Fishing Club and the Paul H. Young chapter of Trout Unlimited, Waara spends his free time making custom bamboo fly rods.

"Like John Volker said in his book, Testament of a Trout Fisherman, 'Trout always feed in the most beautiful places.' When you're after trout you end up in these places," explained Warra. "Trout fishing is a challenge. It's more like hunting than fishing. First, you have to get out there and see if the fish are actively feeding and if they are, you can see them surface. Then you have to stalk into position to make a cast, and you have to imitate the food they are eating."

Many people consider fly fishing to be complicated and confusing, but that's not necessarily the case according to Farmington Hills resident Art Dittmar, president of Michigan United Conservation Clubs, the nation's largest state-wide conservation organization.

"A lot of people look at fly fishing as kind of an elitist-type sport, but most of that has been generated by fly fishermen themselves," said Dittmar, "Actually, its not all that tough.

"They'll talk about how everything has to be balanced and of making 60- and 70-foot casts, but you really don't need all that. Even matching the hatch is a little overrated. There are times a trout becomes very, very particular, but most of the time I've found size is more important than color. As long as you use a fly the same size as the hatch they'll take it."

While fly fishing is probably the most popular technique used to catch trout, it's not the only one.

"Many people use garden hackle, or worms," said Dittmar. "That's probably the most effective way to catch a trout, especially at this time of year because most flies aren't that active yet. When we get a lot of rain, other insects like worms and night crawlers wash into the water and that's what the trout are feeding on."

Whether you fancy casting hand-tied flies with a custom-made bamboo rod, or a simple hook-and-worm setup on the end of a Zebco spinning rod, the trout streams are calling. Get out there and enjoy!

Anglers and turkey hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Patriots mercy Churchill, 12-1

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Vacation lasted only four innings for Livonia Franklin's softball team.

The Patriots, back from spring break Monday after nearly two weeks off, broke open a tight game by exploding for eight runs in the fifth inning en route to a 12-1 mercy-rule triumph over host Livonia Churchill.

Franklin, which improved to 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association, sent 13 batters to the plate during the surge to snap a 1-1 deadlock.

Senior shortstop Ann Bagazinski, who went 3-for-3 on the day and walked twice, started the uprising with a single.

Jenny Pushies followed with a hit-and-run single.

Bagazinski scored all the way from first on the play on what turned out to be the first of six Churchill errors.

SOFTBALL

The Patriots went on to add four more runs during the inning and put it away with three more — without the benefit of a hit — in the top of the sixth.

Franklin out-hit Churchill, 9-2.

Winning pitcher Tina Allen struck out four and walked two.

Lefty Alicia December took the loss as the Chargers dipped to 2-2 overall and 1-2 in the division.

"We had only four girls the whole week for practice, but I'm sure Churchill was in the same situation," said Franklin veteran coach Joe Epstein, who is retiring after the season. "Tina was in Florida, but she threw the day before."

Allen was sharp, allowing only a pair of singles to Churchill shortstop Jessie Jenkins, who also happened to drive home the Chargers' lone run in the third inning. "Part of Tina's success this year is better control," Epstein said. "She's a hard worker and threw quite a bit during the off-season. She also a good listener and willing to try new things. She threw hard last year, but now she's added a changeup."

Franklin's Margarete Schulte, a sophomore catcher, tied the score at 1-1 with an RBI single in the fourth.

"With two outs and two strikes she (Schulte) got the big hit," Epstein said. "That got us going.

"I think we're doing a better job this year of putting the bat on the ball, and that's a credit to Linda Jimenez (Franklin's assistant coach who will take over for Epstein next season). She's been working with our hitters, and I've been able to concentrate on the pitching.

"We're waiting on the ball much better now. We have our weight back, and then we're aggressively swinging on the pitch. That's been a big help."

Churchill coach Dana Hardwidge, who lost one of the area's dominate pitchers to graduation last year in Karen Jose, is expecting some growing pains from her young team.

"We have a lot of people in new positions and you expect these kind of things to happen," Hardwidge said. "We just collapsed in one inning, but we hope to learn from these situations."

December, who got a late preseason start because of ankle surgery (in December), had the Patriots off-balance until the fifth.

"She knows she's got to keep the ball down to be successful," Hardwidge said. "She struggled, but we made errors behind her.

"But she hasn't started until recently. It's been about a month. It's going to take some time."

Garden City bats bombard Wayne, 29-0

The Cougars out-hit Wayne, 22-3.

Vonne Jenks had a big day at the plate for the Cougars with four hits, including a double, and three RBI.

Kelly Shanks contributed three hits and scored four runs, while Trish Kesner added two hits and three RBI.

Winning pitcher Jenny Woody, making her first start, fanned seven and walked three.

■ N. FARMINGTON 11, JOHN GLENN 8: Katie Devereux cracked a three-run homer Monday to lift North Farmington to a WLAA-Lakes Division victory at Westland John Glenn.

Kelly Brannack and Lynette Zelasko each contributed two runs and scored twice for the Raiders, now 1-2 in the division.

Mickey Spisz was the winning pitcher, while Glenn starter Chrissy Harkless suffered the loss.

Lori Patalocco had two hits for Glenn.

Kelly Klene added an RBI triple, while Jami Grigal had a two-run double.

■ FARMINGTON 5, STEVENSON 4: Winning pitcher Alana Heikkinen scattered six hits over seven innings, leading the host Falcons (4-1, 3-1) to the WLAA win over Livonia Stevenson (1-2, 0-2).

Linsey Piel's RBI single with two outs in the bottom of the sixth won it for Farmington.

Laura Krol, the losing pitcher, gave up 11 hits over six innings. She walked one and struck out four.

■ LUTHERAN WESTLAND 6, COUNTRY DAY 4: Lutheran High Westland rallied from a 4-1 deficit Tuesday to defeat visiting Birmingham-Country Day in non-league action. It was the Yellowjackets first loss of the season after three wins.

The Warriors (3-3) cut the three-run deficit to one with a two-run fourth inning. Westland then scored three times in the fifth — two coming in on a bloop single by Becky Cannon.

Senior Amy Gentz (3-2) made the lead stand up by going the distance for the win. Gentz scattered five hits, while striking out seven and walking two.

Suzy Kuziemko took the loss for Country Day. She allowed only six hits, but walked 11.

■ LADYWOOD 9-2, GABRIEL RICHARD 0-5: Livonia Ladywood took advantage of seven Riverview Gabriel Richard errors Tuesday to shutout the Pioneers in the opener of a Catholic League doubleheader.

The Blazers returned the favor in the nightcap, however, committing seven errors of their own.

In the opener, Ladywood (5-5) handed the Pioneers their first loss of the season with a six-run fourth inning.

Even though the Blazers had only four hits, it was enough to back the two-hit pitching of Amy Kliber (3-2). The senior lefthander struck out 10 and walked only one.

Carol Walter went 2-for-4 to lead the Blazers.

Nicole Hayden and Gina Yaquinto had the other two hits.

The Pioneers played errorless ball in the nightcap to improve to 5-1.

Despite the errors, hurler Cathy Herman held Gabriel Richard in check until the sixth inning, when the Pioneers scored three times.

Herman took the loss, despite allowing only two earned runs. She scattered six hits, while striking out eight and walking one.

The Blazers only mustered two hits against Therese Angeles. Angeles struck out nine and walked five.

Lisa Rozum scored both Ladywood runs — once on a Stacey Judd single.

ROUNDUP

Lady Crusaders turn back St. Francis of Indiana

What was supposed to be a four-team softball tournament turned into a four-game set between host St. Francis College and Madonna University last weekend, with the Lady Crusaders emerging with wins in all four games.

Two teams scheduled to fill out the tournament in Fort Wayne, Ind., were forced to cancel late last week. So Madonna and St. Francis played a pair of doubleheaders against one another.

Madonna set the tone in Saturday's weekend opener, pounding out 20 hits in a 9-2 win. Erin Comment, Jennifer Pinter and Jamie Cook (from Westland John Glenn) each collected three hits in the contest, with Cook driving in two runs. Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) had two hits and two RBI.

Jennifer Czach, Angie Van Doorn, Lynda Weichel and Chris Riopelle each had two hits.

Shanna Streng was the winning pitcher, stopping St. Francis on three hits and no walks, without allowing an earned run. She struck out seven.

In Saturday's second game, Birchmeier — who totaled 10 hits in the four-game sweep — went 3-for-3 in Madonna's 6-1 win. Czach had two hits and three RBI to support Weichel's four-hit pitching; she gave up one run and no walks, striking out four.

Sunday's first game was similar to the first two, with the Crusaders leading from start to finish in a 7-2 victory. Madonna outhit St. Francis 10-3 (the total for the first three games was 39-10), with Birchmeier again getting three hits and driving home two runs. Comment and Pinter had two hits each.

Streng was the winning pitcher, going the first five innings and surrendering one earned run on three hits and no walks, fanning five. Van Doorn relieved and tossed two perfect innings.

The second game Sunday was the only close one of the weekend, but Madonna still prevailed, 5-4. The Crusaders' 10-hit attack was led by Courtney Senger with three, and Birchmeier and Riopelle with two each. Senger had two RBI.

Weichel was the winner, going all seven innings and allowing four runs (one earned) on nine hits, with no walks and four strikeouts.

"I thought we played our best softball of the season," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham, his team improving its record to 18-12 (St. Francis is 16-17). "We hit the ball extremely well and played defense well.

"We're starting to jell, and this is a nice time of year to do it."

Indeed it is. Madonna's adjusted schedule includes a doubleheader against St. Francis at Plymouth's Massey Field at noon Sunday, a rescheduled twinbill against Spring Arbor at 4 p.m. Wednesday at Massey — and then the NAIA regional for independent teams, hosted by Madonna next weekend (May 4-6) at Canton Softball Center.

Evangelists visit St. Paul's

Toby and Barb Waldowski will bring their musical ministry to St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia Sunday, April 30.

The Waldowskis, who have been thrilling audiences in concert with their outstanding musical talent since 1976, will perform at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services at the church, 27475 Five Mile.

They have been guest soloists with Billy Graham at his Tacoma, Wash., Crusade in May 1993 and the Midwest Crusade in June 1987. They also have been soloists on the "Hour of Power" telecast with Robert Schuller. They have numerous recordings and music publications, and have presented more than 2,000 concerts as part of their full-time ministry.

Their songs are composed by Toby and are filled with practical messages and uplifting melodies. His love for God is evident through his testimony of the keyboard, beginning at age 5, God's calling for his life, and how God has a plan for everyone.

Barbara sings, using a three-octave range that is as open as her personal sharing. She tells of her commitment to Christ while on a second date with Toby in college.

Toby and Barb inspire young marrieds, give goals to youth, involve little children in their concert, and encourage the older person with the joy of the Lord. They reach into their own lives to share their infertility problems and a bout with cancer in 1980. Since then, they have been blessed with two healthy children.

"Christianity is not a myth or a religious fad," they said. "Christ is alive in the world and alive in our lives. We feel a definite call to share our knowledge of Him with others in hopes that someone may find a new start, a new freedom and a new sense of wholeness in a relationship with the living Lord."

For more information, call St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at 422-1470.

BREAST HEALTH EDUCATION

One in nine American women will develop breast cancer ...

If it's found early, about 90% of them will survive.

The key to beating breast cancer is finding it before it spreads. While it's still 90% curable. With the best chance of saving the breast.

At Providence, we're committed to providing a quality program to screen for breast cancer and teach women about breast examinations using:

- low-dose radiation
- fully accredited mammography equipment
- specially trained radiologists and technicians
- four locations with convenient hours
- acceptance of most insurance plans

Providence provides all the care you need if the diagnosis is breast cancer, from surgery, radiation and chemotherapy to reconstructive surgery. A multidisciplinary working group of physicians and other health care professionals assists patients in deciding which treatment is best for them, then streamlines that treatment so care can begin in a matter of days rather than weeks.

Providence oncologists have access to the latest cancer-fighting drugs and treatment protocols through membership in several national research organizations. The Hospital's radiation oncology program is affiliated with University of Michigan, bringing state-of-the-art care right here for Providence patients.

And we offer something more: The support, care and compassion cancer patients and their families need at a time that challenges body, mind and spirit.

Please call one of our four locations to begin your breast care program today. And practice it for life.

Lending a human touch to daily life

Whether it's a cast sculpture in the Canton Public Library or a colorful mural inside a produce market in Livonia, public art tells a story about who we are for generations to come.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Throughout the ages public art has enriched our lives.

Ancient civilizations like the Romans incorporated art into their architecture and environment leaving irrefutable testimony of their existence. It survives as a living history of the culture.

Locally, public art generally is found in city halls and libraries, shopping centers -- even produce markets.

It can be as comforting as old Mother Goose, or can make one stop and think. The following tour features some of the highlights of public art in Observer communities.

Public art, in general, differs from artwork collected privately and by museums because it's less likely to rely on commentary about social and political issues.

Take for instance the 'Goose that Laid the Golden Egg" displayed outside the north entrance to Hudson's at Westland Shopping Center. The 8-foot wide abstract sculpture, initially was created by the late Samuel Cashwan as a play sculpture for children. Liability concerns forced center management to move the goose several years ago to a new resting spot, out-of-reach.

Made of cast terrago and gilt bronzed, the sculpture was commissioned by Louis G. Redstone Architects more than 30 years ago when the shopping center was then in the planning stages.

'Samuel Cashwan was really a master of forms that evolved out of abstract but was representational," said Redstone, founder hairman of the 55-year-old firm Redstone Architects, Redstone & Associates, whose offices were in Livonia from 1976 to 1990.

Public appeal

'The Goose that Laid the Golden Egg, it really appealed to people. It's not so much that it's representational but the subject matter. We looked for things that appealed to both young and old."

Redstone, an authority on public art, as evidenced by his books 'Public Art" and 'Art in Architecture," is a leading

Teachers invite art museum into classroom

Fourth grade teachers Barbara Murphy and Beth Frayer never miss an opportunity to bring art into their classrooms at Taylor Elementary School in Livonia.

One hour art sessions once a week leave a hunger to show the children the difference art makes in our lives. That's why the Detroit Institute of Arts' Art To The Schools program is, in their eyes, heaven-sent.

The Detroit Institute of Arts has been bringing its Art To The Schools program to centers of learning for 28 years. Last week DIA docent Barbara Wojcik brought her 'American Art" presentation to Murphy's and Frayer's students.

'She gets the children really excited about art. She really involves the kids and it supports the Master Works program," said Murphy, a former member of the Detroit City Ballet who incorporates art into every subject she teaches.

Using slides of art from the DIA's permanent collection volunteer docents speak to 30,000 fourth through sixth grade students annually in the tri-county area.

Docent training

One year of intense training in art history and visual techniques by the museum's education staff teaches docents to use the visual thinking curriculum or 'learning to look" whereby they relay knowledge by asking the children what they see.

They also learn to deal with untimely fire drills and lights that burn out in the projectors.

No one ever said a volunteer's work is easy.

'I love the way they involve the children in the way they look at the art. That's what the students love the most; it gets them hands-on with their learning," Murphy said.

'There's no wrong answer and because they're using all their senses it's not a memorization," added Frayer.

With children being so attuned to the screen these days the trick for volunteers docents like Wojcik is relaying the message in modern terms.

While presenting a slide of a sculpture depicting a freed slave, Wojcik asked if anyone knew what a bronze casting was. No response. Does anyone know how to make creepy crawlers? Ahh, sweet success.

In the classroom

Wojcik continued presenting slides and asking questions, incorporating bits of history as she did. She said sometimes a painting tells a story like 'Watson and the Shark by John Singleton Copley." Watson, after the shark took off his leg, went on to become mayor of London. I wonder how many adults know that.

A sea of students raised their hands to answer each of Wojcik's questions. Afterwards Sarah Kinzer, 10, said she learned that artists use different techniques and not all painters

Linda Bibi, also 10, was excited about the discovery that she made.

"You can tell a lot about a painting just by looking at it."

Taylor principal Richard Steele applauds the DIA's Art To The Schools program.

"They get an appreciation for art, an understanding. When they go to the art museum they can share their knowledge with their parents," Steele said.

"It rounds out their being, not just of art and sculpture but the world around them. There's a bit of art in everything."

Volunteers needed

Barbara Wojcik along with the 49 other Detroit Institute of Arts docents can list dozens of reasons for volunteering their time to the Art To The Schools program.

Since this is National Volunteer Week this is your chance to share in the satisfaction by joining their ranks to spread the knowledge of art and its history to elementary school children.

The DIA is accepting applications until June 15. Training starts in September. For more information, call the education department at (313) 833-7886.

According to Cyvia Snyder, she receives as much as she gets. Once a week for the last 22 years the 61-year-old West Bloomfield resident has trekked to schools from Miller Elementary School in Plymouth to ones in Detroit armed with her projector and a whole lot of energy.

"Art and literature and music are the three things we hand down from generation to generation. When I open their eyes and ears I love it. When you talk you're on a high. It's so exciting to catch their attention and have them involved," said Snyder.

Linda Wells of Birmingham agrees with Snyder about how good it makes her feel when she makes that connection.

Art is important

"The arts do so much for all of us. It shows us who we are, where we're going, what we can be."

After the program Wojcik, a docent for three years, spoke about why she volunteers.

"The museum opened the world to me. You know how when some people think of a museum they're intimidated, a museum shouldn't be intimidating. It should open up a world. I tell the kids you can think something is ugly and say it out loud."

If you would like to bring the Art To The Schools program to your school, it's simple. There are no requirements. A 50 cent donation per student is requested but volunteers like Wojcik hate to even mention money for fear it will dissuade poorer school districts from using its service.

In those cases it is free of charge. Call the DIA at (313) 833-7900.

proponent of incoporating art into the total living environment.

Brick murals and sculptures by respected artists such as Louise Nevelson and Marshall Fredericks add a human touch to variety of Redstone's structures from the Michael Berry International Terminal at Detroit Metropolitan Airport to the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield and the McDowell Center at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Redstone studied under Eliel Saarinen earning a master's degree in urban design from Cranbrook Academy of Art.

He has encouraged the building of art into architecture for many years by allotting a part of the building budget to incorporate art into the overall design. But was it art catering to design? Hardly.

"I gave the artists complete freedom except for in some cases the sizes because everything has to fit in," said Redstone, 92, during an interview in his office in the Comerica Tower in Southfield.

Spending for art

Although today's construction budgets restricts spending for art, Redstone's firm manages to work it into the structure.

"We still add a little touch of some human feeling whether it's a mosaic or a brick form."

Redstone and son, Daniel were instrumental in the construction of the environmental sculpture located halfway between the police station and city hall in the Livonia Civic Center.

The sculpture, by New York artist Andrea Blum, is a gift from the Livonia Cultural League, founded in 1979 as an offshoot of the Livonia Arts Commission.

Construction cost overruns plagued the interactive sculpture. A $36,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts hardly made a dent in the $220,000 in cash and donations of time and labor needed to finish the project.

"It's meant to be a statement that art needs to be seen," said city treasurer Robert R. Bishop. "The sculpture is made up of a lot of linear lines and platforms at different levels, drawing together at the center."

Park-like sculpture

The artist's intent was to create a sculpture symbolic of the city right in the middle of the civic center's park-like environment.

"Andrea wanted to create a center of the city because the city doesn't have a downtown. One hundred years ago there were no theaters or museums. The sculpture attempted to draw the city together," said Bishop who served on the original arts commission and as a leader in the cultural league.

In 1983, plans for the civic center complex consisting of the circular city hall, a courthouse, library, and police and fire stations called for walking paths, reflecting ponds, a bandshell with the sculpture at its heart.

A panel invited six nationally respected artists to submit proposals and maquettes.

Construction of Blum's concept began in 1987. After many setbacks due to cost overruns, the gray concrete sculpture with white accents, was complete.

A booklet describing its history is due out sometime before Bishop retires at the end of the year.

The city of Livonia is a strong supporter of the arts thanks to dedication of many of its people.

Art in libraries

In 1992 the Friends of the Livonia Library contracted James R. Gilbert, an art professor at Kingswood School in the Cranbrook Educational Community in Bloomfield Hills, to design and weave the metallic aerial sculpture suspended in the atrium of the Civic Center Library. The six-foot high woven aluminum stripping and rayon thread sculpture floats two stories above the heads of visitors to the library lobby. It's three lyrical panels run 16, 19 and 21 feet in length and symbolize the developing stages of a child into an adults.

Among Livonia's other jewels is it's art collection displayed in public buildings throughout the city. One of its latest acquired pieces, a relief entitled "Dante and Beatrice" by Redford Township sculptor Sergio De Giusti, will soon be on display in the library's atrium.

A future sculpture in the works by Grosse Pointe sculptor Frank Varga is a bronze casting of an old man sitting on a park bench reading to a child, a labrador dog at their sides. The location is yet to be determined.

It will cost $26,000, $13,000 of which came from a Michigan Equity Grant to match Livonia Arts Commission funding.

"Public art is such a deviation from the normal patterns of our life. It shocks us; it has colors and shapes, it is attractive and it says stop and look at me, and the minute you stop you're engaged in an artistic experience," Bishop said.

De Lauro work

Joseph De Lauro intended to create an art experience right in the middle of the Canton Public Library with his "Storyteller" sculpture.

His 26-inch tall bronze casting entitled "The Storyteller" is displayed in the reference section. It is a Mayan or Aztec Indian figure passing down their knowledge and history to younger generations through storytelling.

De Lauro, who retired as chairman and founder of the University of Windsor's fine art department in 1983, has work in private and public collections ranging from Italy to South America.

Locally his work is permanently displayed as a 12-foot Christ sculpture on the front wall of Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church in Livonia, the Detroit Public Library, Fairlane Manor in Dearborn, on the grounds of Madonna University, and in many churches and seminaries.

Mural at market

Joe's Produce in Livonia is not the typical site one would expect to find art. The fruit market appropriately bears a 34-foot long by 5-foot high mural of oversized fruits, which in a Rembrandtlike palette plays off of arrangements of the real thing grouped in blocks of vibrant, living color.

The painting tells a story of the Maioranas, a family that's survived on the living they earned from the fruit of the earth for the last three generations. It's roots were planted in 1945 in a Livonia apple orchard by Joe Maiorana, Jr.'s grandfather.

"We wanted the mural to have an old world look. It's large fruit and that's what we specialize in," said co-owner Joe Maiorana, Jr.

"It's like our fruit. Everything is separated by color to give it eye appeal."

The oil on canvas painting was commissioned more than one year ago during renovation of the structure that's stood on Seven Mile east of Farmington Road since 1968.

The artist, Janisse Lahti Larson of Plymouth, was recommended by the Marco Design Group. Lucious red apples, oranges and a green artichoke thrown in for good measure provide a soothing touch rather than food for thought.

"It shows our customers that it's a warm friendly environment. It's soft and we thought it was attractive. Our customers like it and we want to make our customers comfortable."

Stevens won the Canson-Talens (watercolor paper) Merchandise Award of $125 for her painting entitled "Le Otis." Mary Todd Beam, a nationally respected artist, juried the national show.

More than 500 entries were received for the 1995 show from artists across the U.S. Beam selected 101 paintings to show the variety and vitality of watercolor painting today.

Exhibition hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

■ BUYERS/SELLERS EXPO

A free expo sponsored by the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will offer home buyers and sellers a place to gather all the information they'll need to buy or sell property. The event runs 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 30, at the Holiday Inn Livonia West, 17123 N. Laurel Park, east of I-275 at Six Mile and Newburgh.

Attendees will visit booths staffed by home inspectors, appraisers, mortgage lenders and other professionals involved in a real estate transaction. A panel discussion for home buyers starts at noon; a home seller's discussion begins at 2:30 p.m. Panelists include an attorney, a home inspector, a mortgage lender and a Realtor. Both discussions include a question-and- answer session.

The event will offer home buyers and sellers important information without pressuring them to use the services of a specific company, WWOCAR president Chuck Mills said.

In lieu of a fee, WWOCAR will accept donations of canned goods for the Salvation Army. For reservations, call (810) 478- 1700 during business hours.

Hall & Hunter earns relocation awards

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

Hall & Hunter Realtors, with offices in Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham, started handling a fair share relocations in 1984 after joining a national referral network.

In 1991, the firm decided to take the relocation industry more seriously by forming a relocation division, which recently won awards for outstanding sales and service.

"We started to seriously pursue the (relocation) business by promoting the Detroit area and by working with companies that regularly transfer their employees," said relocation director Wendy Schrader.

The firm's clients include Chrysler Corp., Ford Motor Co., General Motors, Kmart, BASF, and Robert Bosch Corp., which frequently does international relocations.

Today, relocations in and out of Metro Detroit account for 20 to 25 percent of Hall & Hunter's business, said Schrader, whose firm is currently handling more than 200 real estate referrals.

Hall & Hunter's commitment to this burgeoning segment of the real estate industry earned the 1995 Pinnacle Award from Atlanta-based All Points Relocation Service, a network of 400 independent member-brokers. The award annually goes to the member that exhibits professionalism, superior performance and high network contributions.

The 43-year-old firm also won Best Incoming Referral Conversion and Most Outstanding Member in the Region awards, and Pyramid Achievers League recognition for generating and servicing a high level of referrals.

"Hall & Hunter's management and sales associates have really earned these awards," said All Points president Pam O'Connor. "They typify the best in our business. They are equally comfortable providing hands-on service to a CEO or a junior manager relocating for the first time."

The Pinnacle Award was a surprise to Schrader and to Hall & Hunter president Dennis Wolf, who picked up the glass statue at All Points' annual convention in Sante Fe, N.M., last month.

"Our company has been fortunate to receive many honors . . . but this is particularly meaningful because it represents excellence in what is probably the most challenging and sophisticated area of real estate — the relocation industry," Wolf said.

All Points praised Hall & Hunter's management for maintaining the firm's strong market presence in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area while developing a successful relocation division.

"A real estate company without a relocation division can't survive in today's marketplace," Schrader said.

Wolf is past chairman of All Points board of directors and will take over the job again in 1996. He's also a former Realtor of the Year for All Points and the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board of Realtors. He was the BBBR president in 1990. Schrader has earned the Certified Relocation Professional (CRP) designation and is a member of All Points Corporate Marketing Council Steering Committee.

Seek counsel to determine legality of fee

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q I attended a closing recently and had certain fees added by the mortgage company in regard to an assignment of the mortgage from one mortgage company to another. I am wondering whether or not that was a reasonable charge.

■ You are well advised to have legal counsel representing you at closing.

A Mortgage companies are becoming more innovative and imaginative in connection with the various charges which they impose upon persons at closing. Similarly, they are adding additional documents that must be signed by the purchaser and the seller, presumably to protect the interests of the mortgage company.

I have attended several closings recently where certain costs were found on the mortgage closing statement, which I felt were questionable and upon my assertion of my client's position, the fees were waived.

I would suggest that if there is an assignment of the mortgage from one mortgage company to another, a fee for that transfer should not be something that is assumed by the purchaser unless it was agreed upon in advance by the purchaser with full knowledge of that cost.

You are well advised to have legal counsel representing you at closing, since many times attorneys can bring these matters to the attention of the mortgage company and/or title company at closing and obtain a waiver.

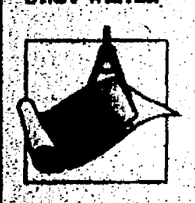
Country living is near city

■ Recreational, cultural and shopping opportunities are fairly close to the Bluffs of Rochester off Bloomer just west of John R. Ranches can be had for about $175,000, colonials and Cape Cods for less than $200,000.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER



Sales have been steady at the Bluffs of Rochester since models opened about a year and a half ago on the site of a former farm and ski jump.

The two builders, Riviera Homes and Dynasty Homes, say just a third of the 98 lots in the 47-acre development are still available.

Country living in the city is a big attraction. Bloomer Park abuts the subdivision to the east.

"It's like you're not in the city but are in the city," said Rico Ferri of Riviera. "It kind of backs up to wetlands. No one can build around us. We're close to the park. It's a nice view."

"It's a private location," said Robert Maggiorino of Dynasty. "The whole perimeter is pretty private, no (back) neighbors. There's only one entrance to get in."

All floor plans built by the pair — colonials, two-stories, Cape Cods and ranches — carry base prices of less than $200,000.

Throw in the Rochester Community Schools, city sewers and a local purified well water system plus sidewalks and street lights and it's easy to see why the Bluffs would be attractive to families.

"Ninety percent of our people are Rochester people. They move from street to street, and most have three or four kids," said Rosemary Sellers, sales rep for Riviera.

Both builders offer common elements in all their models.

Those include attached two-car garage, range/dishwasher, fireplace, first-floor laundry and basement.

Riviera has three on-site models.

The Wildwood, a 2,400-square-foot colonial with three bedrooms and 2½ baths, is priced at $192,900.

JIM RIDER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

The main level contains a study, dining room, great room with cathedral ceiling and kitchen/eating nook. A two-story foyer is at the front door, and a bridge upstairs overlooks the family room and foyer.

The master features separate tub and shower, dual-sink vanity and walk-in closet.

"This is our big seller," Sellers said. "We have a lot of young children, and parents want to be on the same floor."

The Shorecrest, a 2,300-square-foot Cape Cod, places the master suite on the first floor, two bedrooms and a full bath upstairs.

The base price is $188,900.

The third model, the Pineledge, an 1,845-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and 2½ baths, carries a price of $173,900.

The bedrooms are on one side of the model, a study, great room and kitchen/eating nook on the other.

Dynasty has four models.

Imperial I, a 2,300-square-foot, two story, features a first-floor master with a full-length wall closet (walk-in option), separate tub and shower and double-sink vanity. The main floor also has a den, great room with sloped ceiling and kitchen/eating nook.

A two-story ceiling at the front door enables a bridge upstairs to overlook the great room. Two bedrooms and a full bath are on the second level.

"This is our biggest seller," said Joyce Rekar, sales rep for Dynasty. "A lot of people prefer to be down and have the children upstairs."

The cost is $190,900.

The Majesty, a ranch of 1,950 square feet, has three bedrooms, 2½ baths, great room with cathedral ceiling and kitchen/eating nook. The base price is $174,900.

Two other models are under construction.

The Princess, a 2,500-square-foot colonial, offers a choice of three or four bedrooms, and Imperial II, a 2,400-square-foot two story, has the same basic layout as Imperial I except three bedrooms upstairs.

The base price for both the Majesty and Imperial II is $194,900.

The property tax rate for a house in the Bluffs is about $34.70 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owner of a house costing $190,000 would pay $3,300.

Darlene Macionski bought a two story with the master on the main floor and two larger bedrooms upstairs.

"I like everything about the house — the floor plan, the master on the first floor," she said. "Value of the home for the price was one consideration.

"I've been in the Rochester area many years," Macionski said. "It's kind of like here we're away from the city but we're right there. I looked in Lake Orion but couldn't see myself driving 20 minutes away from the city.

"Building a home can be a stressful experience. The builder (Dynasty) was delightful to work with," she added.

John and Jenifer Nance along with daughters Nicole and Tara moved into a ranch.

"We were looking for a specific house. We were sizing down and wanted a ranch," Jenifer said. "We're back on a ravine with a deck and not much of a yard. We love it. We have animals — deer, squirrels, raccoons, all kinds of birds.

"We built one other house in Ohio," she added. "This, by far, has been a very easy experience. They (Riviera people) are wonderful."

Dynasty models (810) 651-1999 and Riviera models (810) 652-9755 at the Bluffs are open noon to 6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

3 firms honored for concern

BY DOUG FUNKE

Bottom line financials is only part of what defines a successful company. Concern for employees' welfare and community support are others.

Regard for workers who make things happen within a business and good corporate citizenship determine winners of Today's Workplace of Tomorrow Awards sponsored by the Women's Economic Club of Detroit.

Three companies — BDO Seidman, accounting and management consulting in Troy, Compuware, computer software and services in Farmington Hills, and Hudson's, the retailer headquartered in Southfield — have been singled out for recognition this year.

"The companies selected for our award clearly demonstrated initiatives which went above and beyond the basic steps for a better quality of work life," said Lynda Haber, WEC president.

"We're looking for organizations doing something extraordinary," said Gerry Barrons, WEC executive director.

"A lot are putting into effect total quality management and some are doing truly fine things. We're looking for those companies that are three steps ahead, not just current practices," she added.

A screening committee evaluated nominees on seven criteria.

- Sensitivity to family and alternative family structures.
- Efforts related to the well-being of employees.
- Alternative methods, approaches and schedules for accomplishing work assignments.
- Cultural diversity and other human resource workplace issues.
- Maximum use of employee creativity and skills.
- Respect for contributions of women in the workplace.
- Social responsibility and commitment to the community.

Finalists merited on-site visits.

"We want to point out what's right out there so we can provide inspiration to people . . . and benefit all employees," Barrons said.

Following are capsule summaries of the three winners.

BDO Seidman

"People are our most important asset" is among the stated core values of the accounting/consulting firm. That also includes responsible management of each employee's time.

Fifteen percent of partners are women in an industry where the average is 4 percent

Internet has music info for all tastes

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Among my recent Internet directory additions are some fun music sites to visit. Music is a broad field and tastes are all over the place, but I'll see if my listings have something for everyone — or close, at least.

All you Beastie Boys fans, if you haven't already, will want to visit their home page on the World Wide Web. The Universal Resource Locator (URL) is http://kafka.southern.com/BeastieBoys/. Once there you will find tour dates, album covers, lyrics, and Frequently Asked Questions (FAQS) about the Beastie Boys.

The Beastie Boys also have a presence at the Music Kitchen, a WWW site with a pretty wide variety of singers. Others include Redd Kross, Bonnie Raitt, the Wild Colonials, and Rock-II Comix. The Beastie Boys site at Music Kitchen includes a listening room with audio files, and a North American tour schedule. Bonnie Raitt's home page offers video clips, plus lyrics for 12 of her songs. The URL for the Music Kitchen is http://www.nando.net/music/gm.

The home page for the Rolling Stones can be accessed on the Web at http://www.stones.com. Once there, users can visit the lounge, look at CD offers, a picture collection, read interview articles, download Stones video clips or Voodoo Lounge sound samples.

A site that's loaded with information about concert dates is Music-Cal which can be accessed at http://calendar.com/concerts/. Music-Cal lists the dates and locations of concerts, festivals and other musical events around the world and allows promoters, record labels, venues and even fans to submit tour and other event itineraries. Upon arrival the user is invited to search the site's database for information by performer, city, state, county or type of music. Music-Cal also offers a link of listings by geography and another link offering listings by the performer's or conductor's name.

For music lovers with an ear for keyboard sounds, the MIDI home page is http://www.eeb.ele.tue.nl/midi/index.html. Midi-lovers will find several Midi files, software, newsletters, and links to other Midi home pages.

Record labels, news about music, music magazines and more can be found at the Internet Undersound Music Archive at http://www.luma.com. This site contains software to play clips and full songs plus music written by struggling artists whose stuff you won't likely hear on radio, TV, CDs or albums. This site can be easily accessed by taking Lynx or another browser to the O&E Online home page at http://oeonline.com and scroll down to Greg's Hot List.

Guess I really can't write a column on Music on the Internet without pointing some of you to the Elvis Home Page at http://sunsite.unc.edu/elvis/elvishom.html. Some of the stuff that was at this site earlier had to be removed because of legal problems with those in Nashville that hold the copyrights over the King's music. But there's still plenty here, including a tour of Graceland, pictures of Elvis' birthplace, memorabilia, readings, several links to other Elvis home pages, and Elvis Internet Sightings.

In the Internet world of music, many music listserv discussion groups are almost like electronic fan clubs. Listserv is a discussion forum conducted via e-mail where all the messages posted arrives in your mail-box and you respond through e-mail. When you subscribe to a listserv talk group you will receive a confirmation message. Keep that message because it includes instructions on how to cancel your subscription, how to post messages, how to get a digest of messages, stop messages while you are on vacation, etc. The list of music listserv groups that follows gives the e-mail address used to join the group and the words to type inside your e-mail message area.

The firm has formal procedures to establish child care services and provide meals/healthy snacks during the busy tax season.

Telecommuncation capabilities allow employees to work at home and flexible work schedules are available to help alleviate stress between work and family obligations.

"Maintaining a flexible, progressive work environment that addresses their (employees') most crucial needs will enable us to maintain a competitive advantage in the marketplace," said Howard Allenberg, managing director of BDO Seidman.

Compuware

The Compuware Employee Center housing a fitness center, day care center and employee cafeteria now under construction resulted from a wellness/work/family task force.

Employees are assumed to be hard-working adults so a time-off policy encourages workers to manage their vacation, personal and sick time from a personal time-off pool.

A cultural diversity awareness committee enhances the concept as "a basic operating principle."

Employees consistently exceed expectations through a quality operating system, women hold key positions in increasing numbers and the company is involved in numerous charitable activities including Race for the Cure, the Haven and Judson Center.

"Only through applying ourselves diligently to providing an opportunity for people to grow personally and professionally will we be the best at what we can do, meeting our customer's needs and surpassing their expectations," said Peter Karmanos Jr., chairman and CEO.

Hudson's

Twice a year employees qualify for benefits packages and can change optional benefits selection.

Seventy percent of managers are women compared to an industry average of 39 percent. Twice a year the company hosts a women's career management program.

Hudson's has a development support network for minority executives, a task force to advise management on work/family issues and offers scheduling flexibility.

The retailer shows strong financial and staff commitment to local non-profits focusing on the arts and social action.

"Eliminating barriers to balancing work and family life and a full-scale commitment to learning from diversity are two major initiatives where our employees played a key role in formulating programs," said Carol Kieffer-Dowling, vice president, stores.

"Not only are these initiatives the right thing to do, but we can see a positive impact on our bottom line," she said.

Penske acquires Leasway

Leaseway provides customized transportation and integrated logistics services to manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. Penske Truck Leasing Co. operates 75,000 small, medium and heavy duty trucks to serve customers nationwide from 400 locations. It provides full-service lease, dedicated logistics, contract maintenance, commercial rental and consumer truck rental.
