Council delays budget approval

The city's budget surplus would be cut by nearly $500,000 under newly proposed spending measures, leaving the general fund balance at little more than $1 million. In a controversial decision, the council delayed approving a new budget.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

The Westland City Council on Monday postponed a vote to adopt a $33.8 million general fund budget, despite fears that the delay could be a violation of the city charter.

Council members said they wanted more time to study newly proposed spending measures that would reduce the city's $1.5 million general fund surplus to just over $1 million during the next year.

Councilman Glenn Anderson cast the lone vote against postponing the budget decision, and he questioned the legality of the action taken by colleagues Thomas Brown, Sandra Cicirelli, David Cox, Charles "Trav" Griffin, Charles Pickering and Sharon Scott.

Neither city attorney Angelo Plakas nor budget director Ron Hocking could give a definitive answer on the legal issue.

"This does, quite frankly, take me by surprise," Plakas said.

The city charter states that the council has to adopt a budget by the first Monday in June. However, the same charter section notes that failure to act won't invalidate any tax levy.

Most council members appeared convinced that they won't be acting illegally as long as they approve a new budget before the next fiscal year begins July 1. The vote is expected to come Monday, June 19.

"I don't feel we have any problems waiting another two weeks to adopt the budget," Councilman Charles Pickering said Monday.

School principals named

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

With 11 of Wayne-Westland's 21 elementary school principals retiring, widespread administrative changes won sweeping approval Monday evening as the school board approved a new lineup of building leaders.

With four elementaries slated for closing, eight of the remaining 17 schools will keep the same principals.

The changes will come as the district shifts to a new middle school structure that will remove sixth-graders from the elementaries, leaving enrollments of pupils in kindergarten through fifth grade.

Elementary principal salaries will range from $54,834 to $69,986, according to the employee services department.

The large number of retirees stems from the principals' decision to accept a $50,000 buyout that also includes $14,000 in district-paid taxes. The district plans to save money by replacing the retirees with administrators lower on the salary ladder.

Eight schools will have the same principals. Those include Edison Elementary (principal Larry Wood); P.D. Graham (Don Chastain); Hamilton (Warner Frazer); Jefferson-Barns (Susan Dorenkamp); Kettering (Diane Nichols); Taft-Galloway (Michael Hurley); Walker (Jim Edwards); and Wildwood (Sharon Thomas Brown).

Other appointees include:

- Elliott principal Sally Perkins, who comes from the soon-to-close Titus Elementary. She will replace retiree Pete Lawrie.
- Hicks principal Jose Muller, who comes from Fischer school, slated for Mayor reverses firing of parks director

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

Westland's parks and recreation director Charles Skene still has a job — for now.

Mayor Robert Thomas admitted Tuesday night that he ordered Skene fired Monday morning but changed his mind that afternoon.

In the meantime, the mayor and recreation director will go ahead with a scheduled meeting on Friday to talk about problems in the department and how to correct them.

Thomas said he was upset that the grass at Jaycees' Park wasn't cut in advance of a planned Mayor's Exchange Day program the previous Friday, June 2.

The mayor added that there were related problems involving failure to maintain recreational parks and ball fields adequately, but it was the Friday incident "that fired me up."

While he declined to get into a list of other problems in the department, Thomas did disclose there were some budget overruns under Skene, hired nearly three years ago.

On Wednesday morning, Skene said he is confident that he and the mayor can resolve their differences.

"We'll work it out," Skene said. "I don't have a problem with that."

In a meeting with Skene Monday morning, Thomas told the director that he would fire him on Friday. "Chuck then asked for time, 30 days, to correct the problems and we agreed to meet Friday," Thomas said.

The mayor said he reflected on his decision to fire Skene and called him Monday afternoon to inform him that he wouldn't be fired but that the two should still hold their scheduled meeting.

"We need to work out problems," he said of his second talk with the director.

The mayor admitted that the tall grass at Jaycees' Park during the Mayor's Exchange Day with officials from Holland, Mich., was upsetting to him, but there were other instances of uncut grass at city parks or fields.

Of the department's problems, "some were not Chuck's fault, but some were," he said."

At Friday's meeting, Thomas said he will have a specific list of things he wants Skene to correct.

The issue of Skene's job was raised in public during a Westland City Council meeting Monday night when Councilman Charles Pickering asked administration officials if the city had a parks and recreation director. He was told that the city did.

Dispute ends in man being grazed by bullet

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A dispute that erupted in a drive-through lane of a Westland fast food restaurant resulted in a 30-year-old man being grazed on his left leg with a bullet, police said.

The incident occurred about 3 a.m. Sunday at the Burger King restaurant on the southwest corner of Merriman and Cherry Hill, Westland police Sgt. Scott Fetner said. No arrests have been made.

The armed suspect, described as a front-seat passenger in a four-door car, also fired two more shots toward other cars in the drive-through lane, but no other people were hit, Fetner said.

One bullet struck a windshield and another hit the building's exterior, he said.

The dispute began when a car carrying the victim and two companions was tapped from behind by the vehicle in which the armed suspect was riding with two other people, Fetner said.

After leaving the drive-through lane, the victim and his companions circled around and pulled into a parking lot to confront the suspects, Fetner said.

The victim got out of the car and began walking toward the suspects' vehicle, only to see a gun being brandished by the front-seat passenger, the sergeant said. The weapon was described as a possible blue-steel revolver.

The victim began to flee, but the gun-toting suspect fired a single shot that grazed the victim's leg, Fetner said. The victim wasn't seriously injured and didn't require hospital treatment, he said.

After firing the first round, the suspect then turned and fired the other two shots before leaving the scene with his companions, Fetner said.

The victim and his friends followed the suspects' car for a short distance before losing the vehicle, Fetner said. The Westland Police Department was then contacted about the incident.

The gun-wielding suspect is described as a 5-foot-7 black male, about 20 years old, thin, with a shaved head. Police were given conflicting reports about whether he wore a knit cap with the words "West Side" embroidered on it.

A suspect in the back seat was described as a 6-foot black male, in his 20s, thin, also with a shaved head. No full description was available for the driver.

The suspects' car was described as a four-door Escort or a four-door Dodge Shadow, possibly a 1986 model, Fetner said. The vehicle was silver or gray in color, he said.

Anyone with information about the incident is urged to contact the Westland Police Department at 722-9600.

Special 'senior' receives high school diploma

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

With a graceful bow that brought her applauding family members to their feet, 72-year-old Rosie Gregory walked onto a stage where, within an hour, she would at long last receive her high school diploma.

"I love education. I hate to see a good brain go to waste," she said moments earlier, waiting to file into the Stockmeyer Auditorium on Friday evening with 80 other Wayne-Westland adult education graduates.

Gregory, the oldest of the graduates, completed the eighth grade in her native Oklahoma. But she always dreamed of earning her high school diploma.

"I always wanted to go back to school," she said, "but I had to put my children through school first."

A mother of 14, Gregory has five sons and three daughters who are still alive. She said she also has 14 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Many family members attended Gregory's graduation to show support for a mother who sacrificed her own education for many years to raise a family.

"I'm ecstatic about this," son James Gregory, 42, said. "We're going to take her to dinner and show her a good time. We're real proud of what she has accomplished."

Daughter Donnie Robinson, 48, agreed.

"We're so happy for her," she said. "Mama studies a lot. She loves school. She wants all young people to get involved in school."

That became crystal clear during an interview with Gregory, an Inkster resident who has been working toward her diploma for eight years by taking adult education classes, most recently at the Tinkham Center in Westland.

"I want to show the young people that it can be done. You can get your diploma," she said. "I believe in young people. The only way for them to get a good job is to go to school."

Gregory said she plans to continue studying in the fall by taking adult basic education classes at Tinkham Center. She can participate even though she now has her diploma.

"I'm going to keep on going," she said. "I want to keep my arithmetic and reading going."

She has some advice for others, particularly young people, who didn't finish school.

"Listen to the older people," she said, "and go on back to school."

WAYNE-WESTLAND SCHOOL BOARD CANDIDATES

Three candidates are competing for two Wayne-Westland school board seats at stake in the June 12 election. The positions are for four-year terms. Incumbents Laurel Raisanen and Vicki Welty are not seeking re-election.

Candidate: David James
Age: 37
Residence: Westland
Marital status: Single
Children: None
Educational background: Real estate college, high school diploma
Employment: Realtor/broker
Organizations: Westland Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Realtors

Q With all the demands of a school board member, and considering the many public complaints and little recognition, why are you running?

"Because the condition of our school system is directly tied to the value of our property." James said he has seen a home in Westland sell for $20,000 less than the same home in Canton Township, because of perceptions about the Wayne-Westland school district. "That's a perception that needs to be changed."

Q What's in your background, either personal or professional, that would make you an effective board member?

"I have the ability to administrate and delegate." He also said he bought a real estate business that, in two years, rose above red ink to expand the number of agents from three to 20. "It's gone from the red to making a profit."

Q Do you support or oppose the two tax proposals on the June 12 ballot? Why?

James favors an 18-mill non-homestead renewal that would be paid by businesses and rental property investors. "It would have no impact on the average citizen. I'll pay it as a business owner, but I know it's needed." He also favors a 3-mill enhancement millage, he said, because the ballot language clearly states that the money will be used to restore full busing, to eliminate pay-to-play fees and to reduce the deficit. The tax will cost an average homeowner about $150 a year, he said, "but that money is going to come back tenfold (with an improved school system) if someone has to sell a home."

Q If the tax proposals fail and if more budget cuts become necessary, what would you cut?

"I'm an outsider on that. I don't know enough about (the budget) to make a budget cut assessment. I'd want to see the whole package."

Q With a new superintendent starting his job July 1, what do you see as the appropriate relationship of individual board members to the superintendent?

"He's to do his job. That's what he was hired for. He's got to have some authority. When the vote (on issues) comes to me, I'll make a decision and not try to put him under a thumbnail."

Q Do you have any suggestions for improving test scores with limited resources?

"I would say that I think it's sad that a big emphasis is placed on testing. When I was young, I didn't test well, but I was actually a good student." With his philosophy on testing, James gave no specifics about improving test scores.

Q Should the Wayne-Westland school board be receptive or opposed to leasing or selling school property to charter school groups?

"I'd have to see the terms of the lease or the sale. On paper it might look like a great addition to our budget, but a year from now it could prove detrimental. "I wouldn't say no, I'm absolutely against it, but I wouldn't say I'm in favor of it until I saw the whole package."

Candidate: Martha Pitsenbarger
Age: N/A Residence: Wayne
Marital status: Married to Jack Pitsenbarger
Children: Two adult daughters, Sue and Patty, and one Wayne Memorial High 11th-grader, Anthony
Educational background: Master's in social work, University of Michigan; bachelor's degree, Eastern Michigan University
Employment: Clinical social worker, Occupational Health Center of America in Westland Organizations: National Association of Social Workers; Order of Eastern Star; Daughters of the American Revolution

"I believe in quality education for children. I think a community is only as good as its school district."

"I have supported my children in school and have been highly involved as a volunteer." She said her two daughters graduated from Wayne Memorial, and her son is a junior there. Also, "I come from a family of teachers. My father was a teacher. There needs to be a good relationship between the schools and families."

"Yes, I do. I think we need to get money, that's a given. The only thing I was concerned about was that it was a last-minute decision (by the school board). But in the last week I've heard a lot of people say they support the millage."

"That's a hard call because I really want the secondary transportation to be back in effect. I don't know where I would make the cuts, but I want to look at a community foundation, like for senior citizens and businesses to provide money for textbooks and computers, things like that. I think we have to actively pursue options that we haven't touched."

"He's the man out there in the front line. He is the leader. I'd like to sit down and develop a team concept. I would just want to be able to work together for the betterment of the kids and education and the community."

"Everybody in the education field could work together to provide the needed support. I would want to do a study to see what causes the lower test scores. If you don't know the cause, you can't fix it. The curriculum is the same (among schools), but we need to find out why some schools have lower test scores."

"We have to be open to the charter school concept, but what I am not in favor of is letting charter schools begin with people who are outside of the community. I would want to use our local (school) personnel. I wouldn't want someone to come in from Grand Rapids and start a charter school. If it's going to be in our area, let it be run by our people."

Candidate: Ed Turner
Residence: Westland
Marital status: Single
Children: None
Educational background: Central Technical Institute, Kansas City, Mo., two years; high school diploma
Employment: American Airlines retiree
Organizations: Big Brothers; Westland concert band booster; Wayne-Westland Junior Miss treasurer; True Grist Dinner Theater; The Palace Theater Co.; Westland Cable Commission; Westland public access producer; Wayne-Westland Youth Music Program director; Madison Elementary PTA member; Wayne Chamber of Commerce; Westland Mayor's Task Force on Drug and Alcohol Abuse; Wayne-Westland Council for the Arts; many others.

Turner said he has attended all but 18 school board meetings during the last 6 1/2 years. "I feel I understand the problems of the school board. I know what the problems are now, and I know the challenges that are coming, too."

"I like the kids. I understand kids because I used to be one, and I haven't forgotten what it's like. I think a lot of people do forget. I want kids to get a good education. I have been involved in Big Brothers and Wayne-Westland Junior Miss (among numerous other organizations)."

"I support both. If neither one passes, it's going to be disastrous for the school district." The 18-mill proposal won't affect homeowners, only non-homestead taxpayers, he said. "We've got to get the kids a decent education, and it's going to take money to do that." With the 3-mill proposal, he said, "we've got to get the buses back ... and eliminate the pay-to-play fees for fine arts, sports (and other areas)."

"I would have to see what the superintendent comes up with. I've got some ideas. There's going to have to be some staff cuts if the millage fails, and we'd need to renegotiate with unions. But let's hope both millages pass."

"I'd like to see a very cooperative relationship. As (incoming Superintendent) Dr. Duane Moore has said, the school board and the superintendent are in this together. It has to be a cooperative venture on both parts."

"I think that (assistant superintendent for instruction) Dr. Jane Kuckel is doing a fantastic job, particularly with the new math curriculum that she has introduced. That (and other impending proposals) will improve test scores," though Turner said test scores shouldn't be the only measure of student success. "General education is very important."

"I have mixed feelings about charter schools in general," in part because of charter school failures in other states, Turner said. "I don't think I'd be opposed to it if I knew that (organizers) would have enough money to be successful." His opinion would be tied to the charter school's mission, too, he said. As for a proposed charter school at Monroe Elementary in Wayne, he is opposed to that.

Voc/tech center hosts auto show as fund-raiser

The automotive technology and auto body programs have large, well-equipped labs that service about 100 students in the day and 40-plus students in the evening program. The state testing is used to encourage students to prove their competence and to enable them to obtain certification.

The William D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center hosted its second annual car show and swap meet recently, with perfect weather and hundreds of spectators and car buffs taking part.

The event raised an estimated $1,500 for the auto technology program, with $200 being donated by the Wayne Civitans Club.

The May 21 show attracted over 200 cars, trucks, street rods, pro street, custom, special interest and stock motor vehicles along with many corporate and business displays.

"This show is a fund-raiser for the auto body and auto technology programs and allows us to purchase needed supplies and up-to-date equipment so we can run the best program possible," said Scott Heim, auto body instructor at the center, operated by the Wayne-Westland School District on Marquette between Wayne Road and Newburgh.

Trophies, door prizes, dash plaques, T-shirts and gifts were given out as the Wayne Kiwanis served the hungry crowd. Helicopter Airways sent a chopper flying over the event to photograph the parking lot crowded with classic cars behind the center.

"The show gives us an opportunity to let local employers and suppliers see our center and allows us to make connections that could lead to good jobs for our kids," said Jim Schirmer, auto technology instructor.

"A lot of them do not realize we offer high-tech training right here in the community. Their support of the show is really appreciated."

Finish Master, Painters Supply, Speedy Muffler, the U.S. Army, Roush Technologies, and Plastic Abrasive hosted information booths at the show and enjoyed a brisk business on a really brisk day — the tents blew down — but that did not bother anyone.

"We do this for the students," said Kelli Sisco, a parent co-chair. "We do the setup and contacts, but the students do most of the work on the day of the show."

The center plans to hold its third annual show and swap meet show next May. People interested in taking part may call 595-2172 any time.

The center houses 24 vocational programs that provide employment and job-specific skills to over 1,100 students with state-of-the-art equipment and facilities.

Opened in 1981, the center serves the needs of the communities' students and adults with flexible programs and outstanding support services such as career counseling and job placement, said a school spokesman.

Center principal is Bill Richardson, with Rick Hamrick the assistant principal.

The automotive technology and auto body programs have large, well-equipped labs that service about 100 students in the day and 40-plus students in the evening program. The state testing is used to encourage students to prove their competence and to enable them to obtain certification as needed for employment in the field.

The car show is just one of the many special programs that the center offers in the community, said a center spokesman.

In the past, air conditioning recycling, certification in heating and cooling, auto exhaust certification, blood drives, mechanic certification testing, and other events have been held at the center.

City library plaque honors late state senator Bill Faust

A plaque that will adorn Westland's library, in honor of the late state Sen. William P. Faust, was presented Monday night to library Director Sandra Wilson and library board member Sharon Clark.

The plaque, presented by Westland City Council President Thomas Brown and Mayor Robert Thomas, reads:

"This building dedicated to Sen. William Paul Faust, March, 29, 1929 — Jan. 21, 1995.

"Served as trustee and supervisor for Nankin Township, and then as state senator for 28 years.

"Sen. Faust led the way in obtaining state funds for the construction of the Westland Public Library.

"On Feb. 6, 1995, the Westland City Council named the library the William P. Faust Public Library of Westland.

"Presented by the relatives and friends of Sen. Faust."

In addition, the Friends of Sen. Faust committee has raised $10,000 that will be presented in coming months for a casual reading area in the library that will include a fireplace, said Joseph Benyo, City Council legislative liaison.

The money came from private donations on Faust's behalf.

Others wanting to make donations to benefit the library may call the Westland Chamber of Commerce, 326-7222, or Wilson's office, 595-8632.

Officials push countywide vote on Recorder's judges

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Residents in Westland and other suburban communities should be allowed to vote on Detroit Recorder's Court judges who hear out-county criminal cases, even though they are elected only by Detroit voters, Westland city leaders say.

Westland City Council members have such strong views on the issue that they approved a resolution Monday supporting proposed state legislation that would provide for countywide elections for the judges.

Council members voiced frustrations, shared by Westland district judges, that Recorder's Court judges are being too lenient on violent offenders. Council members also were critical of substantial Recorder's Court bond reductions that have allowed defendants to go free, pending trial.

In the latest example, murder defendant Ricky Alan Amolsch was released from jail Friday after Recorder's Court Judge M. John Shamo set a $200,000/10 percent bond. Amolsch, awaiting trial for the Aug. 23 stabbing and strangling death of his Westland girlfriend, was released after $20,000 was posted on his behalf.

"It's a real serious problem," Councilman Glenn Anderson said of the happenings in Recorder's Court.

Councilwoman Sandra Cicirelli said criminals are too often "right back out" on the street after being arrested. She said the proposed legislation would send a message to Recorder's Court judges that "we want them to be tougher on crime."

Recorder's Court judges used to hear only Detroit cases, and Wayne County Circuit Court judges heard out-county cases, Cicirelli said. The process changed years ago when Circuit Court became overloaded with cases, she said.

Westland Police Chief Emery Price had suggested that the council adopt the resolution supporting legislative changes to elect Recorder's Court judges on a countywide basis.

Mayor Robert Thomas' administration also supports the measure.

In other resolutions Monday:

- The council voted to oppose any effort to repeal the "common sense gun laws" included in the 1994 Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, signed by President Bill Clinton. Newly proposed legislation would repeal the ban on some semiautomatic assault weapons and could subject cities to damages for local firearm restrictions. Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin said he support local control of such issues.
- The council voted to oppose possible changes in state-shared revenue that would trim by $469,000 the amount that Westland had expected to receive.

Recycling program extended to fall

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland's pilot curbside recycling program will be extended through Sept. 29, marking a 17-week extension of a project that had been scheduled to end last Friday.

The same 3,200 households involved in the program since February, when it was launched, will be allowed to participate, said Carl Clark, public services director.

There will be no interruption in service, he said Monday.

Westland City Council members and the city administration agreed to continue the free curbside pickup of recyclables to gauge public response during the summer months, Clark said.

During the 16-week phase that ended Friday, Clark said, participation among the 3,200 households was 20 percent.

"That's about what I expected," he said. "That's about a nationwide norm for a recycling program of this nature."

During a Monday night council meeting, Westland resident Charles Pare said the city hasn't done enough to promote the pilot recycling project. Moreover, he urged officials to push for a citywide recycling program.

Clark has said the pilot project is aimed at determining whether a full-scale recycling program is feasible.

"We are trying to find out if the desire for curbside recycling is great enough to do this on a full-time, citywide basis," Clark wrote in a letter being sent to homeowners.

For selected households south of Cherry Hill Road, recyclables will be picked up on June 16 and 30, July 14 and 28, Aug. 11 and 25, and Sept. 8 and 22.

For households north of Cherry Hill, collection days will be June 9 and 23, July 7 and 21, Aug. 4 and 18, and Sept. 1 and 29.

In another move to gauge the public's interest in recycling, Clark is asking residents citywide to phone the public services department if they would be interested in subscribing to a future recycling program.

The cost would be $18 every six months. The bill would be paid not to the city, but to the city's waste hauler, Painter-Ruthenburg.

Responses may be phoned in at 728-1770.

■ Another example of added spending stems from residents who won assessment appeals through the Michigan Tax Tribunal, forcing the city to allocate an additional $125,000 to cover the cost.

Council President Thomas Brown said the only potential fallout would be a possible delay in sending out tax bills — a measure that isn't likely to anger city residents.

Pickering said Monday's delay wasn't historic. He noted that, as a former mayor 10 years ago, he vetoed a council-approved budget and caused a delay in its ultimate adoption.

Pickering said the council should consider reducing other areas of the budget to make up for new spending measures that, according to Hocking, amount to a net total of $415,870.

Anderson said that the council has had numerous budget sessions and that his colleagues should have been prepared to vote Monday night.

"It's not as though we haven't had time to review it," he said.

Mayor Robert Thomas also appeared surprised by the delay.

Council watcher Dorothy Smith warned against depleting the general fund surplus.

"Pretty soon we won't have a general fund (surplus)," she told the council.

Smith also said the council should have scheduled another public hearing in the wake of new spending measures recently added to the budget.

The biggest addition stems from a $300,000 allocation to pay for library user fees for Westland residents who use libraries in neighboring communities.

The council had earlier considered paying the money from a 1-mill library tax, but later decided to use general fund dollars to pay the tab, Hocking said.

Another example of added spending stems from residents who won assessment appeals through the Michigan Tax Tribunal, forcing the city to allocate an additional $125,000 to cover the cost.

Other, smaller spending increases have been added. However, some of the increases have already been offset by spending reductions in other areas.

The $33.8 million general fund budget would mark a slight increase over the $33.7 million budget for the fiscal year that ends June 30, Hocking said.

However, the $33.8 million figure would increase by $415,870 with the added spending measures, unless the council finds other areas to trim within the next two weeks.

Among other highlights:

- The general fund tax rate would be unchanged at 6.84 mills. Property owners would pay $6.84 per $1,000 in state-equalized valuation. Even though the millage rate would remain the same, property owners would see a minor increase on their tax bills because assessments rose 2.6 percent this year, Hocking said.
- Water and sewer rates would increase from $3.10 per 1,000 gallons to $3.70, Hocking said. The increase would be 19.35 percent. The aim is to raise $250,000 a year over the next 10 years so that the general fund can be repaid $2.5 million that it is owed from the water and sewer fund.

- Vandenberg principal Carol Johnson, the executive director of secondary education. She will succeed retiree Ron Somers.

Four elementaries, including Fischer, Monroe, Stottlemyer and Titus, are closing and will have no principals. Stottlemyer will, however, house early childhood programs.

The principal's position at Patchin Elementary School remains vacant, but Superintendent Larry Thomas said a recommendation could come within the next week or so. Patchin principal Don Massey is retiring.

The elementary appointments follow last month's school board decision on filling high school principal positions.

Leo Schuster will be Wayne Memorial High School principal, leaving his job as Franklin Junior High principal. Neil Thomas will be John Glenn High School principal, advancing from his job as Wayne Memorial assistant principal.

Thomas said Monday that assistant principal positions and middle school principal posts are pending, but are expected to be filled soon.

TRULY HYPERACTIVE CHILDREN NEED PROFESSIONAL HELP
by Ismail B. Sendi, M.D.
Enjoying

Others may have unusually bad handwriting.
Having lots of energy and occasionally ignoring the requests of parents is a normal part of childhood, but for a small number of youngsters — fewer than 5 percent — excess energy and not listening are part of a greater problem: Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD).
Symptoms appear at about age 3
The symptoms of ADHD usually begin to appear when the child is 3 years old and gradually get worse. The main symptoms are:
- Problems with attention — Children with ADHD may act as if they don't hear what people are saying to them, even though they do not have a hearing problem.
- Difficulty in controlling impulsive behavior — They have trouble accepting external control such as directions from parents and rules at school.
- Hyperactivity — Children with ADHD have an exceptional amount of energy and may be accident-prone, often bumping into people and furniture.

When children with ADHD enter school, they may have difficulty getting along with other children. Sometimes they also have learning disabilities and may find it hard to understand what they read, or hard to understand spoken language.
Accurate diagnosis is difficult
ADHD is difficult to diagnose accurately, since many of the symptoms may stem from other problems, such as depression or a delay in development. However, a correct diagnosis is the first step in effective treatment. Diagnosis should include a referral from the child's doctor or teacher to a mental health professional experienced in ADHD, who will perform a developmental assessment.
A comprehensive treatment plan then can be developed that involves the family and the school as well as the child. Medication is sometimes a part of the treatment, but medication alone may cover up symptoms without treating the underlying problem. In that case the child may actually develop more problems over time.
Some of the symptoms of ADHD may improve as children get older, but proper diagnosis and follow-up are needed to help these children have a smoother, happier childhood.

5 candidates vie for 4 seats on S'craft board

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Besides voting in their local school board elections Monday, voters will choose four representatives for the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees.

Incumbents Mary Breen of Plymouth Township, Harry Greenleaf of Livonia and Steve Ragan of Plymouth are running for three six-year terms expiring June 30, 2001.

They are challenged by Brian Broderick of Plymouth, an attorney with Lelkin & Ingber of Southfield.

Trustee Carol Strom of Livonia, who was appointed in February 1994 to fill a vacancy, is running unopposed for a two-year term expiring June 30, 1997.

The college district includes the school districts of Livonia, Clarenceville, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton and Northville.

Ragan, 28, has been a member of the board since he was appointed to fill a vacancy in February 1991.

He was the top vote getter among a field of nine candidates for a four-year term in June 1991. In January 1993 he was elected vice chairman of the board, advancing to chairman in July 1993.

Ragan works at Eastern Michigan University as the director of the Campaign for Scholars, EMU's $16-million capital campaign. Ragan is also the chairman of the Plymouth Zoning Board of Appeals and a member of the 13th Congressional District Republican Executive Committee.

Previously, Ragan was an aide to former U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, and he worked for five years in Wayne County government as an assistant to the deputy director of airports.

Breen, 61, joined the Schoolcraft board in 1983. A former teacher, Breen taught for 16 years in the Dearborn, Wayne-Westland and Livonia public schools, then worked 10 years as a school administrator. She was assistant principal at Livonia Churchil High School at the time of her retirement in 1986. Breen is also a former chairwoman of the Schoolcraft board.

Greenleaf, 57, is the longest-serving Schoolcraft board member, having been first elected in 1977. The recently retired Ford

SEMCOG honors Judge Milton Mack, picks leaders

BY RICHARD

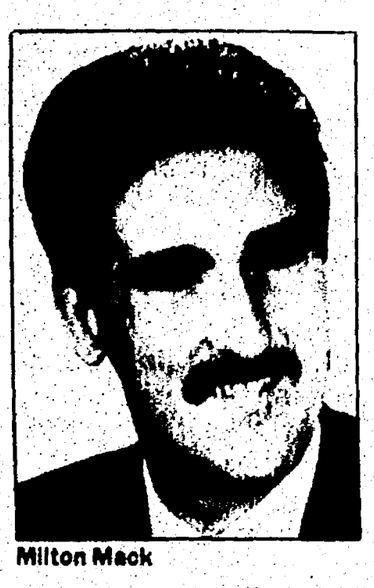
Regional people are different. They come from the ranks of local elected officials, but they tend to change when they reach the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"People in regionalism are a cut above others in politics," Wayne County Probate Judge Milton Mack recalls being told. "They look beyond their immediate constituencies. They do it at some degree of risk. You are participating in an activity your constituents don't really understand," Mack said on his own behalf.

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments named Mack a "regional ambassador" at its recent annual meeting in Southfield. Mack was honored for his work chairing SEMCOG's air quality task force, among other achievements.



Milton Mack

"He was involved in one of the most innovative solid waste plans in the country," said outgoing SEMCOG Chair Gail Kaess, a Grosse Pointe Farms councilmember. Mack handled that touchy chore, she recalled, during his days on the Wayne County Commission as public works committee chairman.

Mack was appointed to a vacancy on the probate court in 1990 during the last days of Gov. James Blanchard's administration and has since won re-election. He is virtually the only judge who has ever been a leader in SEMCOG, a seven-county planning agency.

Kaess noted Mack last month was named a Taubman Fellow, a grant entitling him to study with a select national group of scholars at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

Mack also completed a term as president of the National Association of Regional Officials, where Kaess said he focused on environmental issues.

Also honored as a regional ambassador was a company — AAA of Michigan — for "its long history of regional activity and accomplishment. Most recently, AAA has been actively involved with the Courtesy Patrol project and the Ozone Action effort," said Kaess.

Now in its second year, Ozone Action is a program to reduce excessive ozone, a major health hazard for people with respiratory problems, particularly the young and elderly. It involves getting companies and individuals to reduce air emissions voluntarily.

AAA's successful Ozone Action program saved drivers money when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency took the region off its list of areas that needed to do more to reduce air pollution.

In other business, SEMCOG elected new officers for a one-year term:

- Chair — Joan Buser, Oakland Township supervisor for 12 years and a well-known figure in growth management efforts. She also was a 1994 regional ambassador.

"SEMCOG cares about Detroit. SEMCOG cares about the suburbs. We've divvied up $2 billion (in federal grants) without com-

Burger Center gets courtyard improvement

Industrialist Jack Russo is making sure that the Burger Center for Autistic Students gets a courtyard where pupils can rest and take part in educational classes.

Russo showed off the first phase of the courtyard last week when he sponsored his second annual festival at the county special education center run by the Garden City Public Schools.

The courtyard will be finished in two years and include a greenhouse, a place where students can learn about weather, gardens and other topics.

It's all part of a project which has cost $15,000 so far, he said.

The center, on Beechwood and Dillon, will have volunteers, such as the Garden City Garden Club, parents of students and a Wayne County master gardener, involved in the courtyard project.

Russo hosted his first Burger Center picnic and festival in June 1994 when a playscape which cost some $100,000 in direct and indirect costs, was dedicated.

Russo, head of Wayne Industries, "adopted" the center more than a year ago when he heard from his barber, Bruno Bucci, that the facility needed help for its students.

Bucci, who owns a barber shop on Warren Road near Middlebelt, got Russo enthused.

Russo and businesses he deals with helped pay for buying playscape equipment or supplying materials.

School aid bill gives $153 more per student

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Most area school districts will get $153 more per student next school year under a bill passed by the state Senate after hot debate.

The vote was 33-3 with all area senators voting yes except the absent David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield. But the big majority belied the fact that partisan hostilities were strong.

"I voted yes, but I wrestled with it," said Sen. Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga, summing up the feelings of many suburban members. "We fail to put caps on charter schools and encourage expansion of charters. If we don't focus on what's going on in public education, we're diverting our resources and our focus on public schools."

The $8.3 billion appropriations bill goes back to the House for concurrence in amendments or perhaps a joint House-Senate conference committee. At this point, it appears the basic school grant will rise from $5,000 per pupil to $5,153.

The total fell by $38 million in mid-May after state leaders revised downward their projection of tax collections for the next fiscal year.

Clouding the money picture is the state Supreme Court decision on pre-payment of school retirees' health care benefits. The Michigan Association of School Boards has asked the high court to reconsider its decision, under which local schools pay retirees' costs but the state runs the system. "MASB strongly believes the Supreme Court erred in its original decision," said Justin King, MASB executive director.

Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus beat a hasty retreat on his amendment for state payment of home schooling costs where the pupil is connected by computer to a school.

Objected Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township: "It looks like a very creative way to divert public money to private schools . . . It's a great money-making scheme for operators of private academies . . . Public schools are too important to risk going around the constitution" (which prohibits state aid to non-public schools). Peters alluded to the controversy over the Noah Webster Academy, which was denied state funds to teach home-schoolers by computer.

■ 'We all want to give the schools more money. So we should quit mandating all sorts of paper shuffling."

Michael Bouchard
state senator

Posthumus, R-Alto, denied the charge but withdrew the amendment before it came to a vote.

Peters lost on 15-21 party-line vote with his own amendment to put $26 million back into workplace safety, saying the money "steals from workers. Let's keep that money where it belongs."

Replied Senate floor leader Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron: "Earlier, everybody (Democrats) wanted to add money for schools. Now you want to take it away."

That earlier amendment, by minority floor leader John Cherry, D-Clio, would have raised the foundation grant increase to $166 from the planned $153. Cherry said the $27 million cost could come from the "rainy day fund" and by holding back refunds of the intangibles tax.

"Of course, there's always money available," said Republican leader DeGrow, "but it's a mistake to take it from the rainy-day fund. The school aid formula is up 3 percent, which is consistent with inflation." Cherry's amendment went down 15-21 in another party-line vote.

Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem, sought a language amendment requiring schools to report on the fate of expelled students — by race and socioeconomic status. "We don't know if it (expulsion) adds to the dropout rate," she said.

Countered Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham: "We all want to give the schools more money. So we should quit mandating all sorts of paper-shuffling." Smith's amendment went down by a 14-21 party-line vote.

Every school district will get a $153-per-pupil increase. For historically high-spending districts, the hike will be less than 3 percent. Less wealthy districts will either get more than $153 or that increase will be greater than 3 percent. The changes are a policy result from Proposal A, supported by voters in 1994, to help poorer districts but not cut dollars from wealthier districts.

Here are the amounts area school districts will get under the new bill for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1:

Detroit $5,733, up $153 or 2.7 percent.

Garden City $5,838, up $153 or 2.7 percent.

Livonia $6,740, up $153 or 2.3 percent.

Plymouth-Canton $5,677, up $153 or 2.7 percent.

Redford Union $5,370, up $153 or 2.9 percent.

South Redford $6,279, up $153 or 2.5 percent.

Wayne-Westland $5,472, up $153 or 2.8 percent.

Northville $6,683, up $153 or 2.3 percent.

Senior picnic on tap Saturday manager is the vice chairman of the Schoolcraft board. He was chairman 1979-83, ran unsuccessfully for Livonia City Council in 1985 and for the state board of education in 1992.

Broderick, 28, grew up in Livonia and attended Catholic Central High School. He has an undergraduate degree from Notre Dame University and a law degree from the University of Detroit. He is working on a master's degree in public administration at Wayne State University. Broderick is a member of the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees, on the board of directors of the Notre Dame Club of Detroit and the executive council of the Young Lawyers Section of the state bar.

Strom, 59, was a member of the Livonia Board of Education for 16 years, including a term as board president. She has been vice president for legislative activity for the Michigan PTA and co-president of the American Association of University Women, Livonia Branch.

Strom received a bachelor's degree in education from the University of Michigan in 1957.

MESC posts jobs on-line

Employers in need of workers with professional, technical, managerial or high-level sales backgrounds can find candidates by perusing a new free on-line computer service offered by the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The agency's electronic bulletin board system — LMI On-Line — now carries the Job Service Resume System.

In addition, LMI On-Line is now accessible through a toll-free telephone number, (800) 551-5627.

To access LMI On Line, set communication parameters at no parity, eight data bits, one stop bit, ANSI terminal emulation and 1200-9600 baud.

Employers can dial into the system through their computer modems and look at any of the 5,000 resumes on line, the MESC said.

Jobseekers who would like to place their resumes in the system should call (800) 852-9868 to receive an application.

The agency soon expects that jobseekers will be able to place their resumes directly into the system through their home computers.

School election

Turner is best of board field

Wayne-Westland School District voters will elect two board of education members next Monday in the mildest election the district has seen in years. Despite ongoing financial problems and turnover of superintendents and board members in recent years, there are only three candidates seeking two four-year terms on Monday's ballot. Simply, that means that one candidate will be eliminated by voters with the other two "winning."

Vicki Welty and Laurel Raisanen, whose terms end June 30, aren't seeking re-election.

Of the three candidates on Monday's ballot, Ed Turner is clearly the best. He has attended most school board meetings over the years — even when there was nothing controversial on the agenda — and has gained invaluable insights into the district's problems and potential solutions.

Turner has shown he understands the tough choices board members regularly face when forced to choose between programs and conserving limited dollars.

Over the years he has been involved in other community groups, such as chairman of the Westland Cable-TV Commission and an officer of the Wayne-Westland Outstanding Young Woman/Junior Miss scholarship program.

Of the other two candidates, Martha Pitsenbarger makes the better choice for the other four-year term. A social worker who has been active as a parent in local schools, Pitsenbarger is running a joint campaign with David James.

But Pitsenbarger is more familiar with most issues facing the school district than her running mate. The Observer, however, hopes that if elected she will take a wider view on issues than only what school employees want.

Another advantage to her candidacy is that she lives in Wayne and could potentially replace Welty, the only Wayne resident now on the school board.

In other important ballot matters, voters are urged to vote yes on two millage proposals.

Proposal 1 seeks a 3-mill levy which would raise $3 million and eliminate the pay-to-play fees, restore secondary school busing, help the two senior high schools retain important accreditation and reduce the projected budget deficit.

Proposal 2 is an easy one for residents to support. Homeowners will not pay a penny if the levy is approved. The non-homestead tax would be levied only on businesses, industries and rental apartment developments.

If approved, the levy would raise $10 million in revenues.

For Westland voters in the Livonia school district, the Westland Observer reminds residents of board of education candidates endorsed two weeks ago.

James Watters and Frank Kokenakas are seeking four-year terms in a field of three. The two incumbents have shown that they have the skills and insights to represent the school district well in the next four years.

Regardless of your own choices on the candidates and millage proposals, make sure you vote Monday. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

S'craft incumbents merit vote

On Monday, voters in the school districts of Livonia, Plymouth Canton, Garden City and Clarenceville will elect four trustees to the Schoolcraft College Board.

Three incumbents — Steve Ragan, Harry Greenleaf and Mary Breen — are challenged by Plymouth attorney Brian Broderick.

Incumbent Carol Strom is unopposed in her bid for a two-year term expiring June 30, 1997.

Strom, who was appointed to the Schoolcraft Board in February 1994, has been a solid member of the college team. Her experience at the K-12 level as a member of the Livonia Board of Education serves her well as a Schoolcraft trustee.

In the race for three six-year terms, the Observer recommends Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf and Steve Ragan.

At this time the Schoolcraft board works well for students and taxpayers of the college district. The incumbents have a solid record of performance and have more ideas for improvement in the future. They merit voter support on June 12.

Brian Broderick, 28, of Plymouth, an attorney with Leikin & Ingber of Southfield, is an earnest young man and a serious candidate.

We give him credit for not taking the easy race for the two-year seat against Strom and taking on the veterans instead. However, none of the incumbents are sufficiently lacking to warrant bringing an inexperienced newcomer into the fold.

Breen, Greenleaf and Ragan are well-informed and committed to serving the Schoolcraft district students and taxpayers.

Breen, 61, of Plymouth Township spent most of her life in public education as a teacher and administrator. A Schoolcraft board member since 1983, Breen has the advantage of perspective and the wisdom of experience.

Greenleaf, 57, of Livonia is recently retired from an education-oriented position at Ford and currently works part time at the University of Detroit-Mercy.

A veteran of the board, Greenleaf also has the advantage of experience. He brings a much-valued technical and financial expertise to the Schoolcraft Board. He is a fastidious inquisitor of administration personnel. His probing questions are based on a solid foundation of knowledge.

Steve Ragan, 28, of Plymouth is astute for his age and, like a good chess player, thinks two or three moves ahead in terms of Schoolcraft's future.

Ragan is not afraid to raise difficult issues — such as health care costs for employees. He is bright, works hard for the college in his role as trustee and is chairman of the board.

On Monday, June 12, the Schoolcraft district will be best served with the election of Mary Breen, Harry Greenleaf, Steve Ragan and Carol Strom.

Millages supported

We are writing to you as concerned parents — concerned for the welfare, development and future of our children in the Wayne-Westland school district. There will be an election Monday, June 12, with two millages on the ballot. I want to share my hope that we will pass it this year.

They say our children are the future and we need to give them every opportunity to succeed. Children are under more stress and pressure nowadays, with divorce, violence and peer pressure. They need to have creative and extracurricular activities to keep a healthy balance in growing up.

I want my children to be able to have a choice to play for a school sports team if they choose to. I want my children to have art, music and gym every day like we did in school. I hope you feel the same way.

When the millage did not pass a couple of years ago, Gov. John Engler passed the bill for state funding. This put our school behind most of the other school districts. If the 3-mill increase passes, this will reinstate busing for secondary schools, eliminate activity fees, fund support to meet North Central Accreditation in our high school programs, and the ability to eliminate the budget deficit.

There will also be on the ballot a renewal of the nonhomestead tax millage. This is not a tax on us homeowners. It is a renewal. If passed, it will remain in place for 15 years and only tax the businesses, industries and nonprimary residences.

If this 18-mill nonhomestead tax is not passed, it means the district will have no money to operate for next year. I would hope that you would vote yes to pass these two millages. I feel we owe this to our children, as they deserve the same opportunities that we had when we were in school. This an investment in the future and in your child's future.

I hope on Monday we put our kids first and pass the millage, so our children get every opportunity that our schools have to offer. A change must start somewhere, so let it start with us.

Candidate grateful

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Faculty Forum of Schoolcraft College for its endorsement of my candidacy for Schoolcraft Board of Trustees.

Needless to say, I was elated when I learned of the endorsement.

I value the role that teachers and educators play in this community and I believe that the endorsement of a group so intimately connected with the college legitimizes the goals and objectives of my campaign.

Brian D. Broderick, candidate

Faculty endorses

The Schoolcraft College Faculty Forum has interviewed candidates for the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees for more than 20 years. We have used these interviews as a basis to recommend candidates to the more than 4,000 Michigan Education Association members living in the district. Candidates have always sought our endorsement. This year is no exception.

In the past, the Faculty Forum recommended the election of many community servants such as Rosina Raymond, Bob Ficano, Jack Kirksey, Pat Watson and John Walsh.

For the future, the Faculty Forum believes that Mary Breen, Brian Broderick, Harry Greenleaf (six-year terms) and Carol Strom (two-year term) can best serve our community. The three incumbents are very positive about Schoolcraft College, pay attention to the finances of our institution and are open about what they stand for. As a newcomer, Brian Broderick will bring new ideas to a present excellent board of trustees.

Bill Nickels, Faculty Forum president

Backs Broderick

I would like to express my support for Brian Broderick for Schoolcraft College trustee.

Brian is well spoken. He is concerned about the future of education in our community. He has some good ideas to help keep Schoolcraft College a great alternative to traditional, four-year institutions.

As a part-time Schoolcraft student and resident of Livonia, I urge you to vote for Brian Broderick for Schoolcraft trustee on June 12.

School raises knocked

On Monday, June 12, Wayne-Westland school district voters will be asked to approve a two-year 3-mill enhancement millage. With the funds from this millage, the school district says it will reinstate busing for grades six through 12 eliminate activity fees.

How long will these changes last? The Michigan Education Association union has sued the state of Michigan to fund the teachers union retirement fund. By state law, the school district must balance its budget. As a result, the MEA's action will probably cause a shortfall in the school district's projected funding from the 3-mill levy. In the past, the school district has taken away busing and activity fees for sports. Nothing will stop them from doing it again.

Wayne-Westland teachers have agreed to a two-year wage freeze and they should be complimented. Building administrators, on the other hand, were very greedy when signing their contracts for the coming two years. Their greediness comes in two phases: checks will be issued on June 30 for 8 percent of a building administrator's current salary. If the school district claims that it is so broke, how can we afford these checks and 8-percent raises?

And what about the administrative staff negotiating their contracts this coming year — will they also stay in line with 8-percent raises or will they even go for a higher percentage?

Let's ask for the truth: Is the school board really concerned for its students or are they simply too concerned with their own pocketbooks?

Andrea Polka, Westland

The building administrators' 8-percent raise for this year covers a three-year period. The raise will be reflected in the union's salary schedule effective July 1.

Voter is split

On Monday, June 12, I will vote no on the 3-mill enhancement for the Wayne-Westland schools. On a fixed income you have to enhance your own life before you worry about enhancing others.

This is especially important when I start to think that I haven't had a child in school since the late 1950s.

I will vote yes on the 18-mill non-homestead. If you are unlucky enough to live nearby, and have to put up with the problems the businesses cause you, wish they had to pay even more.

These problems include trash, traffic, overnight parking, lost shopping carts, loitering, Dumpsters, headlights, signs, shooting, robbery, assaults and more trash.

Juanita Johnson, Westland

Education stressed

We soon need to make a major decision in the education and future of the young people in the Wayne-Westland schools. It has become necessary to bring before you an election concerning the funding of the education of these students.

At a time when education is a necessity for everyone, we must ensure our students that we will strive to give them the best education that is available.

We have always been a district that cared for our children and put education as a top priority. Nothing a person will ever receive in his or her life is more important than the gift of knowledge. It is our responsibility to see that the opportunity to get the best possible education is available to our young people.

Just as this education was made possible for you and me by the voters, when we were students, we must now be the ones responsible for making this a possibility so these students are prepared to face the future.

Education is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Don't let it pass our students by. Make it a priority that you vote on Monday, June 12, in a positive way and ensure a "quality education" for our young citizens.

Adeline McCusker, Westland

'Play to say' issue

During an at-home discussion concerning schooling in the Wayne-Westland district, my teen-age daughter called the term "pay to say," an obvious play on term words familiar to our students.

Her explanation is this: whether it's dollars and/or deeds Wayne-Westland adults should be allowed to comment (or criticize) on the district's activities, only if they have contributed. Time, money or other resources contributed in the spirit of solutions should be the criteria that enables adults to rate the system and its students.

Next week's millage election presents an excellent opportunity for local adults to "earn their say." Contribute your time and support.

Robin and Sasha VanDeGrift, Westland

Tax proposal backed

On Monday, June 12, Wayne-Westland School District residents will be faced with another millage election for our schools. What is being asked of us this time?

First we are asked to renew an existing 18 mill tax on business property. This renewal will not affect the taxes of homeowners.

Secondly, we are asked to approve a 3-mill tax for 2 years. This amounts to less that $9.40 per month on a home with a market value of $75,000. What will we get for this?

- Funding to meet the standards required for high school accreditation will benefit all high school students, whether college bound or not.
- Without the 3-mill tax, sports and other extracurricular activities, such as music, will continue to be open only to those who can afford the "pay-to-play" fees. These activities provide some healthy choices for the same youth we are telling to act responsible, say no to drugs and treat others with respect.
- Bus service to all middle and high schools would be restored. Many parents presently worry over the safety of their children getting to and from school on their own and therefore drive them to school.
- Lastly, just as the federal government faces unpleasant choices to reduce the federal deficit, we are faced with the need to help eliminate the school district's deficit. Citizen anger at past board choices and a general disgust with how our elected officials have handled our tax dollars has resulted in repeated millage defeats. The school board has been forced to make changes.

The district has hired a new superintendent. Schools have been told to teach our children with less money for supplies and fewer staff. Teachers and staff have agreed to contracts with pay freezes or other monetary concessions we would be unlikely to accept in our own paychecks. I think now it's our turn to help by providing adequate funding and approving both millage proposals.

Do I think taxes and homework are fun? No. But I believe we all know they are needed to provide a proper education for the future leaders and workers of our community. Please vote "yes" Monday, June 12, on both millage issues. Let's do our part to help make Wayne-Westland Schools what we expect them to be.

Susan Bauder, Wayne

Change is needed

These are troubled times for school districts. The old system seems to be falling apart before our eyes.

The spending limits enacted by Proposal A (in March 1994) combined with the aggressive politics of the teachers unions has created a volatile mixture.

Education, like too much else in government, has become too expensive. Private sector taxpayers are now unwilling or unable to keep paying the bills for an education system that is seemingly out of control.

But, is it all gloom and doom? Absolutely not. There are readily available solutions.

Like what? Well, first we could create a budget. We must collectively decide how much we want to spend on education — then "right size" the entire system, including salaries, to reflect the money available. School employees who are dissatisfied could seek other opportunities — just like private sector workers have always done.

This may seem too obvious. But think about it — it has never been tried.

Under the current system — the spending occurs first — whether or not the money is available. Then a "crisis" is created, and the reluctant taxpayers are eventually browbeaten into approving a millage increase. This is nuts!

No wonder the system is distrusted by the voters. Can you imagine a private company managing its affairs in this way? Of course not.

Today, every citizen has a duty to say "no" to the old education monopoly. Only in that way can we help them make the transition from the old "crisis driven" system to a new system that is both efficient and sustainable.

Educational gloom and doom? No way! In the area of public education an exciting future is coming. But first parents and taxpayers must demand change.

With the help of parents — the best is yet to come.

Walter Warren, Westland

Fighting drugs a team task

A recent survey about illegal drug and alcohol use among South Redford students indicated there is a growing problem. Some students refuted the results, claiming that many students did not take the survey seriously and made the problem appear worse than it actually is. We cannot afford to dismiss the results of the survey so quickly and easily. The degree of the problem may be in question but not the fact that there is one.

As a community, we must use every tool at our disposal to keep our community as drug-free as possible. The most important reason is the dangers our children are exposed to. But there are other reasons. A serious drug problem will cause higher crime and gang related activities, all of which will lead to lower property values.

We cannot expect the school district to solve the problem, at least not by itself, because the problem is not contained solely within the schools. Parents, kids, the school district, businesses and community leaders must work together to bring this problem into check.

Parents are the first line of defense against drug abuse. No one knows their children as well as a parent and no one is more concerned about their kids' health and safety. Parents cannot treat their children as suspects, but they must be aware of the extreme mood swings, lethargy, and other characteristics of drug use. If one suspects their child is using drugs, the problem must not be ignored because it will likely get worse. A drug problem is more easily addressed sooner, rather than later.

Parents of younger children should begin a drug education program of their own. Teaching kids at a young age that "drugs are dumb" may avoid a problem in years to come.

Peer pressures are often given as the reason that kids use drugs. Peer pressure can also be used to keep someone from using drugs. Kids who realize the dangers of drugs and therefore do not use them should encourage their friends to do the same.

The school district can help by continuing the drug education programs already in place and looking for other opportunities to help students realize the dangers of drug abuse. Students caught using or selling drugs should be dealt with harshly. They do not have a right to disrupt the education the majority of students work hard to get.

Book recalls politics gone by

It was quite a gathering last week down at Wayne State University's Walter Reuther Library.

Former Gov. G. Mennen Williams' family — his widow Nancy and his children, Gary and Wendy — was there. So, too, was the family of former U.S. Sen. Blair Moody. And the retired chair of the Michigan NAACP, Arthur Jefferson.

There was a whole slew of old pols, mostly Democrats from the Williams Era. And, rehashing the stories they wrote, were some media tigers of yore: Frank Angelo, who used to be editor of the Detroit Free Press, and columnist Judd Arnett.

How come? The publication by Wayne State University Press of a fine new book, Win Some, Lose Some, written by Helen Berthelot, an essential guide to a remarkable period in Michigan's political history.

The cast of characters alone is fascinating.

There was Gerhard Mennen Williams, the six-foot-four scion of an old Grosse Pointe family with impeccable Republican credentials, who was only 37 when he astonished everybody in 1948 by winning the governorship. I watched him campaigning when I was much, much younger. The style reminded you of a vacuum cleaner: He literally swept people into his handshake.

And there were Hicks and Martha Griffiths, he a lawyer, she a congresswoman-in-the-making, and Neil Staebler. Together, they broke the back of the corrupt old guard that had run the Democratic Party for decades and set in motion the citizen-based political movement that came to dominate Michigan politics for the next 20 years.

And finally the author, Helen Berthelot — "Buffy" to her friends, for the way she was a buffer between the organizations she ran and the chaos that so often threatened to envelop them. Now retired and living in Westland, she was the Democratic secret weapon in the countless campaigns she managed, making things hum efficiently behind the scenes.

She started out with the phone company and became an organizer for the Communications Workers of America when she met Williams in 1948 and volunteered. The rest became history. When first I met her as a young man in the early 1960s, she was legend: formidable and quick, with snapping eyes and an efficient manner barely concealing her warmth and maternal feelings toward her young volunteer corps.

PHILIP POWER

Buffy Berthelot had a good sense of proportion and utility. "My most valuable contribution," she wrote, "was telling him (Williams) what I saw going on, whether it was good or bad." Campaigns in those days relied on volunteers who made things work, not on brilliant issues wonks or expensive media mongers: "It wasn't that I didn't understand the issues and voice my opinions frequently. It was simply that my delight was making the wheels of the campaign go smoothly."

The air at the reception was, literally, thick with old memories. They got me to musing about the contrast between the politics of an era gone by and that of today.

In that age before television, campaigning was retail, person-to-person, where a firm handshake and a direct look in the eye counted for much. By contrast, today's wholesale politics are infested with images of firmness and directness, created too often out of whole cloth by gifted media consultants and image makers.

Ideas counted then, in the days before polling converted a party's principles into the arithmetic sum of the demands of single-interest constituency groups. And leadership consisted in the capability to set out ideas with conviction and passion and decency so as to motivate people to do their best for a cause in which they believed.

As I walked to my car, I had a thought: Although I despise the easy cynicism that holds that all those who practice politics are knaves or fools, it does seem to me that the folks of the Williams Era were larger than life heroes for their times. I'm glad I was lucky enough to know them.

(Helen Berthelot's book, Win Some, Lose Some, is available at local bookstores or from Wayne State University Press, (313) 577-6120 or toll-free at 1-800-978-7323. Prices are $34.95 for cloth cover and $19.95 for paperback.)

Karen Meier

Good-bye came too soon, I feel

Last Tuesday, beneath a glorious blue sky, beneath a tall and majestic pine tree rooted in the gentle slope of a grassy hill, our family gathered. We gathered on that beautiful late May day to say farewell to a great and gentle man, Steve J. Meier. Last Tuesday we buried my husband's father. My father-in-law. My Dad-at-heart.

He was a man so full of life and strength and goodness and gentle laughter. I don't know why he was called home like that. But God called him, suddenly, out of the blue, a few days ago, in the middle of an ordinary May afternoon. And nobody said good-bye before he went, or at least a good-bye that was right, a good-bye that said loud and clear and as plain as day, "I love you. Forever." I hope Dad knew that's how we felt. I hope Dad knew that more than anything else there is to know. I hope and I pray that.

He died at home by himself. Everyone else was going about their business, absorbed in the daily routines and tasks of life. Ma had gone out; it happened to be a day she was scheduled to work for the Red Cross as a volunteer at the blood drive.

So Dad, retired now after 25 years at the plant, stayed home to do ordinary things that afternoon. His five children, all grown and on their own now, of course, were busy doing Thursday sorts of things, working at their jobs, tending to life's many tasks.

Wrecks beckon diving enthusiast

■ It all started with a love of SCUBA diving. Now, David Trotter spends his summers — 17 to date — searching the Great Lakes for the wrecks of such ships as the City of Milwaukee, the Detroit and the Minnedosa, all of which he has found.

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

David Trotter admits he is addicted to finding shipwrecks.

"It becomes almost an obsession that you can't figure out," Trotter said describing his passion for diving.

The last object of his affection was the 250-foot, four-mast wooden schooner, the Minnedosa. For nearly 15 years — two years shorter than the span of the Canton resident's hobby — he searched for the Minnedosa, considered to be one of Michigan's most important shipwrecks.

"It was certainly one of the most mysterious," Trotter said. "It had several unique attributes. It was a four-masted schooner, and one of the biggest sailing ships to have ever been built in Canada. She went down with all hands, and it was quite a mystery for many, many years because of conflicting stories about her loss."

According to reports, the Minnedosa, carrying 75,000 bushels of grain, abruptly disappeared Oct. 20, 1905, during a treacherous autumn storm. Stories circulated that the ship, which had been weathering the storm, may have been overloaded.

It was also controversial because the Minnedosa was towing another ship, the steamer Westmount, and a second barge, the Melrose, was following. When Trotter found the Minnedosa, it appeared as if the tow line had been cut with an axe.

"Certainly, it got to be difficult on everybody," he said of the 15-year search. But as volunteers dropped off the project, Trotter stuck to his guns and his staying power paid off last summer. He and a group of volunteers, collectively known as Undersea Research Associates, found the ship northeast of her assumed location.

"Certainly, it was very exciting," he said. "When we found this particular shipwreck, we thought it might be the Minnedosa, but we were almost even afraid to say it."

With the Minnedosa behind him and 200-250 shipwrecks worth finding ahead of him, Trotter kicks off a new season of searching. He has readied his 32-foot boat, appropriately named "Obsession Too" and is anxious to unravel the mysteries of the Great Lakes.

"Ships are much like people; they have a story to tell and it's very fascinating and exciting," said Trotter, who works in commercial risk management for Ford Credit. "The discovery of marine history is like putting the final chapters together on a given shipwreck that has been missing. There was a history to it up to the point of sinking and often times not much is known about the sinking.

"By discovering that, you can put the final pieces together."

He shares his finds with community groups who probably will never have the opportunity to physically explore a shipwreck. Long after his boat has been dry-docked, he spends his winters putting together multi-media presentations of his Great Lakes adventures with ships like the Minnedosa, The City of Milwaukee and the Detroit.

During his presentations, he shows slides of his finds, between 50 and 60 shipwrecks, he said.

"I've lost count," he added with a laugh.

Trotter and his Undersea Research Associates are among a select few who search for shipwrecks, according to Trotter.

"There are very few people who generally do this for a couple of reasons," he said. "One, it requires an extraordinary amount of dedication. Two, it requires sophisticated equipment, and three, it is not an inexpensive year-to-year activity even when you have already purchased the equipment because you own a boat. You own thousands of dollars worth of SCUBA equipment and camera equipment, and you have thousands of dollars invested in the sight-scan sonar equipment.

■ 'Ships are much like people, they have a story to tell and it's very fascinating and exciting,'

David Trotter
diver

"There's no payback. There's no gold at the end of the rainbow unless you're down in Florida looking for something. You do this because of the fascination with and the chance of discovery."

Raised in South Carolina, Trotter became involved with shipwrecks as an extension of his love of SCUBA diving. After moving to Michigan in 1966, he "became enamored with shipwrecks that have yet to be discovered in the Great Lakes."

Freshwater shipwrecks, like those found in the Great Lakes, are often more revealing than salt water wrecks, he said.

"Shipwrecks on the Great Lakes, often times, look like the day that they sank," he said. "They're very well preserved because there isn't the corrosive effects of salt to eat up things. There also isn't the heavy marine life that you have in salt water. We often times can still see paint on the deck even though it's 150 years old."

Sadly, the remains of the crew and passengers are equally well preserved. In one ship, Trotter was surprised by an engineer that still appeared as in life.

"His body was translucent, like wet Kleenex. He still had on his leather boots and belt. But his cotton clothes were gone."

He concentrates most of his efforts on Lake Huron and Lake Erie, but he also explores Lake Superior and Lake Michigan.

"I've found shipwrecks in every lake I have searched,"

Like the Minnedosa, some wrecks take years to find.

"I have looked 15 years for the Minnedosa, and I have also found five shipwrecks in three hours," he said. "It goes to show that the shipwreck gods sometimes look favorably upon us; sometimes they do not."

When the shipwrecks are found, Trotter and his associates explore and later film them. Then they leave the ships as is.

"We would say that generally it's better to leave it down there because that's really when it becomes part of the ship," he said. "When it goes into a museum, it does become abstract. It becomes a piece of something sitting under a piece of glass."

After 17 years of searching for shipwrecks, Trotter is quick to name his most rewarding find.

"The next one."

ANNIVERSARIES

Montgomery

A Kmart retiree, she enjoys flower gardening. Members of the First Congregational Church in Wayne, they also are active in the Masonic Order and Shriners.

Guests will come from California, Florida, Utah and throughout Michigan for an open house June 10 at the Wayne Masonic Lodge in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Donald and Iris Montgomery of Westland.

The couple, who has lived in the same home since 1949, exchanged vows on June 10, 1945, in Albequerque, N.M. She is the former Iris Snider of Pueblo, Colo.

The Montgomerys have three children — Donna Swain, Kathryn Blair and Ginny Bradley — and six grandchildren.

His school age grandchildren were in their classrooms, learning and reading and reciting multiplication tables. The two grandchildren, too young for school, were taking their afternoon nap while their mother cleaned up lunch dishes and scrubbed the floor. Such ordinary things on such an ordinary day.

Nobody knew. Nobody prepared. Nobody said a proper good-bye.

And now here it is, the day after the funeral with its ancient, beautiful, extraordinary means of saying good-bye, and I just want to turn the clock back, just for a minute, so I can tell Dad good-bye in a plain ordinary way, and see his eyes crinkle up in the corner, and see his smile light his face, and know he heard me.

I'm going to miss him so much. His gentleness and strength. His voice with its German accent. His blue eyes that had a way of twinkling just before he laughed. His arms, the way they could hold a grandbaby as safe as safe could be, like a small bird in the branches of a big old tree.

He was like a strong tree, you know. Winds would come and blow their might at him. But he would always stand straight up again when the wind had passed. His roots, his faith in God, reached depths so profound, I'll never know. He would pray each day, come morning.

This side of him, this prayerful side, has been talked of frequently in these last few days as we all gathered in his kitchen, grieving and remembering. This kind and gentle man made time each day of his life to be with God. He woke early, before everyone else, and went into the front room and prayed the Rosary. This was always his time with God.

The man knew that human spirit and strength didn't just materialize from no where. He knew that God provided these gifts. He knew this and acknowledged this every single day of his life.

Dad's family was big, his circle of friends was big. He was a big man. He had a heart as big as the whole outdoors. And why a man like that, big and strong, with such a love of life, such a love of the everyday, such a love of his family, why he was called home to God just now, I don't know.

Letting go is so hard. One part of me says I have to, that I must. The other part says I can't, I won't. I'm not letting go because Dad wasn't finished living. He had a bunch more Father's Days to grill hot dogs on. He had more Fourth of July parades to watch with us. He had lots more birthday cakes and ice cream to eat, and more Thanksgivings and Christmases to spend around the family table, and First Communions to attend, and cartoons to watch, and grass to cut, and oil to change, and old stories of the farm to tell, and coffee to drink, and Little League games to see. He wasn't finished. Dad wasn't finished.

But last Tuesday, in the shade of that majestic pine tree, on that little grassy hill, holding baby Jack in my arms, I had to say good-bye. I whispered it. I laid a hand on Dad's casket and looked up into the beautiful late May sky, so blue, just like Dad's eyes, and a gentle breeze came. It ruffled baby Jack's hair.

And then before I left I told Dad that I loved him. Forever. I said it plain as day. I pray that he heard me.

Wailing Wall: testimony, music with Jewish flavor

The Jews for Jesus traveling evangelistic team, The Liberated Wailing Wall, will be in Livonia this month to present a program of music, drama and testimony at Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church.

The Liberated Wailing Wall will be singing and telling their story at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 10, at the church, 14175 Farmington Road, south of Five Mile.

There will be no admission charge, but a freewill offering will be collected for those who wish to contribute to the ministry of Jews for Jesus. A nursery will be available.

Jews for Jesus developed their Jewish gospel style music more than 20 years ago. The group wanted music with a harmony and rhythm that could blend their Jewishness with a message proclaiming Jesus as Messiah.

"Our music reflects many styles of Jewish and Christian worship," team member Amer Olson said. "We use a variety of instruments to achieve our sound, including the piano, guitar, clarinet and dunbek (Middle Eastern drum). Some songs capture the poignant longing that has been a part of our synagogue worship throughout the ages.

"Some are in the style of the Eastern European klezmorim. Others are bursting with the same joyful exuberance you expect to find at an American Jewish wedding. All the lyrics are taken from the Bible — the Hebrew Scriptures as well as the New Testament portion."

Jews for Jesus members use drama, music, the spoken and the written word to get the point across — and all with a distinctly Jewish accent. They see themselves as communicators and ambassadors who promote understanding and reconciliation among Christians and Jews.

Jews for Jesus is an independent missionary organization founded in 1973 by Moishe Rosen. The staff consists of more than 100 workers, based in the United States, Canada, Argentina, Great Britain, France, Ukraine, Russia, South Africa and Israel. The goal is to let Jewish people know that the gospel is for them, that belief in Jesus does not take away one's Jewish culture and heritage.

According to Rosen, belief in Jesus is validated by the Hebrew prophets, such as Moses, Isaiah and Jeremiah.

"The fact that we say Jesus is the Messiah is not enough to make it so," said Rosen. "And the fact that the majority of the Jewish community says that he isn't is not enough to make it not so. Our hope is that people will care enough to look into the Scriptures for themselves and ask God to show them the truth about Jesus.

"Our job is to encourage people to find out about Jesus for themselves. We know it takes courage for people to look into an issue that many believe has already been settled for them by religious leaders over the centuries."

The Liberated Wailing Wall fits this role in a unique way. Woven into its music program are short personal testimonies of how the members came to believe that Jesus is the Messiah.

For example, Tommy Boehm, percussionist, was a practicing therapist before joining the Liberated Wailing Wall. His religious background is Reform Jewish. Religion was not stressed in his home, still Boehm always knew that God was real. Yet, it was not until he finished graduate school that he began reading the Bible. He accepted the invitation of a Christian friend to attend church and also accepted a copy of the New Testament.

"To my surprise, I found that Jesus is the Jewish Messiah and the answer to my questions," Boehm said.

Likewise, percussionist Howard Morgan also is of Reform Jewish upbringing. Philosophically minded, he began exploring the claims of Jesus his freshman year of college, prompted by an English literature assignment on Christianity and Buddhism, as well as by a Christian classmate whose faith he admired.

Impressed with the teachings of Jesus, Morgan prayed, "God, if this is true, show me in a way I can understand." Every day for the next two weeks, Morgan met Christians who talked to him about Jesus and were there to answer his question. After four months of study and prayer, he was convinced Jesus was the Messiah. It was then that he met a Jewish believer in Jesus and made a faith commitment.

According to the Jews for Jesus, many Jewish people have misconceptions of what it means to be a Christian, and many Christians have misunderstandings about what it means to be a Jew.

Team members feel that the message is the most important part of the Liberated Wailing Wall's music. Their philosophy is: "Whether you're Jewish or a gentile, we hope that our music is going to help you understand. If you're Jewish, it'll give you insight into Christian thinking, and if you're not, you'll learn about the Jewish roots of faith in Jesus. We want people to understand how Jewishness and the gospel fit together."

Chorale ready for jubilee trip

The Counsellors Chorale of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church will present a Bon Voyage Concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 15, at the church, 1160 Penniman Ave., Plymouth.

The 65-voice choir, under the direction of Dr. Michele Johns who is on the faculty of the University of Michigan School of Music, will present a concert of American spirituals as well as Irish and English selections. It is the same repertoire the choir will perform during a two-week Jubilee Trip to Ireland and England this summer.

The concert will also feature horn player Kathryn Beam, two handbell choirs and the O.L.G.C. Guitar Group.

"This concert is a special thank you to the community for the support of the choir's Jubilee Raffle," said Johns, director of the Music Ministry. "The proceeds from the raffle will enable the choir to purchase music software for composition and arrangements, to upgrade its audio and video equipment, and purchase much-needed choir robes."

The choir will share its "good fortune" with two area charities. Checks will be presented to Growth Works, an alternative education provider, and to First Step, a shelter and counseling center for battered women.

"The concert will provide a joyous send-off for the 25 choir members, Pastor John Sullivan and spouses and friends who will travel to Ireland and England," said assistant director Kay Ray. "This jubilee trip is one of the primary events in the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish."

The choir will sing for services in Drogheda in Northern Ireland and at St. Mary's Cathedral in Dublin and in Salisbury Cathedral in England. The final performance will take place in Plymouth's sister city of Plymouth, England.

Choir member Mary Cotter, a native of Essex County, England, has arranged for the choir to be received by her long-time friend, the Rev. Christopher Budd, Bishop of the Cathedral of Plymouth.

This is the second European tour for the Counsellors Chorale. In 1992, the choir traveled and performed in Germany, Austria and France.

Admission to the concert is free. For more information about the concert, call Our Lady of Good Counsel Church at (313) 453-0326.

'Pocahontas' draws on Livonia native

STORY BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN • SPECIAL WRITER

When Walt Disney's "Pocahontas" opens nationally June 23, a young Livonia native will be excited to see how audiences react to the historical romance he has helped bring to life.

While growing up in Livonia Keith Sintay never dreamed his drawings would end up on the big screen. Sintay was one of the 600 animators creating "in-between" drawings for "Pocahontas."

The 27-year-old Orlando resident explained that in-between drawings help smooth out the character's movements. At 24 drawings per second of film speed that adds up to about 1 million drawings per feature film.

Sintay could hardly contain his awe at working on such a project during a phone interview from Walt Disney Studios.

"I can't tell you how excited I am when I imagine the fact that I'm creating this drawing that's going to be seen by millions of people," he said.

"Pocahontas" is, of course, the famous love story of the Native American heroine Pocahontas (the voice of Irene Bedard) and handsome sea captain John Smith (Mel Gibson) set in Jamestown, Virginia, in the 1600s. The folk tale features music by Academy Award-winning composer Alan Menken ("Beauty and the Beast" and "Aladdin") and lyrics by Broadway veteran Stephen Schwartz ("Pippin," "Godspell" and "The Magic Show").

Sintay drew Pocahontas interacting with Captain John Smith as she teaches him that every rock, tree and creature has a living spirit and then explains how to "paint with the colors of the wind."

He also drew her talking to her pet raccoon, a masked mischief-maker who serves as her constant companion through thick and thin, and to the 400-year-old mystical spirit Grandmother Willow who lives in a tree in the Enchanted Glade.

"I got to draw Pocahontas herself, the lead character, so every single line you put down has to be perfect – no burrs, bumps or thin spots in the lines," said Sintay, a graduate of Livonia Bentley High School, Central Michigan University, and a former Observer carrier.

Sintay competed with hundreds of other animators simply to intern at Disney as an animator. After successfully completing his three-month stint, he signed a five-year contract with Disney. All animators for "Pocahontas" worked under the art direction of Michael Giaimo.

Sintay, who is currently working on concept art for the film's creative merchandise, says it's extremely difficult to synchronize animators when part of the talent comes out of the Disney studio in Florida and the rest from California.

"You can't imagine the logistics of getting characters to interact with one another when animators are on different coasts," said Sintay.

The release of "Pocahontas" follows the unprecedented success of Disney's "The Lion King" which shattered all previous box office records for the studio and animated film and now ranks among the top four films of all time.

According to Richard Cook, president of Buena Vista Pictures Distribution and Marketing, Disney plans to eventually separate its animation studios on two coasts with the hopes of creating two features a year in the future. Disney's next animated film, the "Hunchback of Notre Dame," is scheduled for release in 1996.

To kick off the media blitz for "Pocahontas," Mickey Mouse, Aladdin, Snow White and the Lion King are all coming to town June 16-22 when Walt Disney Pictures and the Fox Theatre team up to present a special showing of "Pocahontas," Disney's 33rd full-length animated feature film, together with a live stage show featuring classic Disney characters.

The "Pocahontas Summer Spectacular" at the Fox is one of only five venues in the country for the Disney extravaganza.

"It's an exciting occasion when 600 artists working for four years finish one of our animated handmade features," Cook said. "The reason we picked Detroit is because its a great Disney market, a great family market and the Fox is such a unique theater. Every part is cast with a Detroit singer or dancer. The talent pool is fabulous in the Detroit area."

Colorful kaleidoscope show mirrors childhood memories

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Kaleidoscopes with their moving rainbow of colors are the focus of "Fireworks Captured," the largest show of kaleidoscopes in the Midwest, June 25 to July 2 at Chameleon Galleries Ltd. 370 S. Main Street, Plymouth.

Last year's show was so well received that Chameleon owners Denni and Jim Englehart decided to do it again, this time offering more than 100 handcrafted scopes by artists, 12 in all from the Pacific Northwest to the East Coast.

A special appearance by Cozy Baker, a leading authority on kaleidoscopes with more than 500 antique and contemporary ones in her collection, kicks off the exhibition noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, June 25. The public is invited to the opening reception noon to 5 p.m.

Cozy is the author of four books on the subject including "Kaleidoscope Renaissance" and "Kaleidorama," a handy kaleidoscope companion brimming with everything a kaleidophile needs and wants to know.

You can make your own kaleidoscope at a workshop on Saturday, June 24. The cost is $150. Reservations are required.

"I used Cozy Baker's recommendations to invite the top kaleidoscope artists recognized in the field today. They are innovative, creative and have the best mirror systems which I think is the most important part of the scopes because without it the images are poor and distorted," said Denni Englehart. "Kaleidoscopes bring back childhood memories and it's made in an art form."

Artists exhibiting their kaleidoscopes include Corki Weeks, Henry Bergeson, Janice Chesnik, Don Doak, Luc and Sallie Duretto, Sheryl Koch, Steve Kittleson and Peggy Burnside, Glen and Ben Straub, Will Smith, and Sue and Bob Roux.

When it comes to contemporary scopes, variety is the name of the game. Besides traditional handheld and pedestal styles, there are scopes to display on desks and coffee tables. Among the most

Water moves local artists to creative expression

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Local artists are on the move exhibiting work at metro Detroit area galleries.

Redford Township artists James Pujdowski and Marian Mudie detail the delights of "Water," most specifically that found in Lake Huron, in an exhibition continuing through June 23 at the Michigan Gallery, 2661 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, and 6-9 p.m. Tuesday. Arrangements to see the exhibition at other times can be made by calling the gallery at (313) 961-7867.

Organized by guest curator Jim Nawara, a painter and professor of art at Wayne State University in Detroit, the exhibition features the work of 12 artists including Mudie, Pujdowski, Lynn Galbreath of Bloomfield Hills, Tom and Shirley Parish, Lathrup Village, C.J. Elfont, Huntington Woods; Jim and Lucille Nawara, Beverly Hills; Jim Klein, Detroit; Mary Aro, Harper Woods, and Ann Mikolowski and Janie Paul, Ann Arbor.

Immortal: "Overflow," a 48 by 60-inch oil on canvas by Marian Mudie captures a stand of poplar trees killed several years ago when Lake Huron flooded the beach in White Rock, Michigan.

"Water is survival. Although we may take it for granted, we need it to sustain life. It's also a great joy to look at," said Pujdowski, an art instructor at University Liggett School in Grosse Pointe Park.

Pujdowski earned his master of fine arts degree at Wayne State University. In fact that's where Mudie and Pujdowski met. Mudie, by day a construction worker and electrician's apprentice, also earned an MFA at Wayne. The two were introduced by nationally known artist Gilda Snowden. One year later they were married. They live in a bungalow style home flooded by paintings with their five year old Basenji named Bantu. Both work large in this 24 piece exhibition.

"Rapture" by Pujdowski is a 30 by 50-inch oil on canvas portraying early morning on Lake Huron. A lone canoe rests at the shore of the calm water as rays of sun reign down on the awe-inspiring scene. "Intense color and thick energetic layering of paint...the artist seems to stand in awe and joy before nature," is how Nawara describes the work.

"I get a thrill every 10 to 15 minutes looking up at the lake. It always changes, someone has left, some animal has come," said the 45 year old Pujdowski.

A family of swans is the focus of "Excursion," another large-scale oil painting by Pujdowski. But this isn't just any family, it's one Pujdowski knew well. Every summer he could count on their presence for companionship as he painted. Last fall an owl killed the entire family of swans so the only evidence of their existence is Pujdowksi's painting.

"This family of swans was following me year after year. They'd follow me 50 feet down the beach then stop. A little while later I'd move another 50 feet down the beach and they'd follow," he said.

Mudie's oil on canvasses, "Overflow" and "Beached," are gutsy paintings with an expressionist bent, states Nawara. Tree bark is richly layered and boats seem almost muscular. Both of Mudie's works are based on times spent at her parent's cottage in White Rock, Michigan. "Overflow" was painted the year the lake spilled over onto the beach killing the stand of poplar trees shown in the painting.

Forever Young: James Pujdowski saves a family of swans for posterity in "Excursion," a 60 by 40-inch oil painted in 1993.

"The painting's taking a common object, nature is so aesthetically wonderful without us; so someone else can enjoy that," said Mudie, a former track and field coach at Ladywood High School in Livonia.

Mudie is best known, or should be, for her dramatic paintings of wolves. Many of these works are reminiscent of German Expressionist Franz Marc. Mudie thinks her straight-forward landscapes focusing on the shores of Lake Huron go hand-in-hand with her wolves.

"I'm always painting the wolves. A lot of my wolf paintings have water. I always paint about nature in one way or another," said the 35 year old Mudie.

unusual is a bird house kaleidoscope by Mick Musser, one by Weeks spotlighting buttons and bows, and a bronze wedding scope by David Kalish, a favorite of Chameleon manager Nancy Tilly.

"It has two holes, one on each end, for two people so two people look and see different things," Tilly said.

Sir David Brewster, a Scottish inventor, scientist, writer and philospher, discovered the kaleidoscope in 1816. For a scientific understanding of the instrument think of it as a tunnel or tube of mirrors. Objects, usually glass but sometimes beads, jewels, or seashells, reflect in the mirrors creating beautifully symmetrical images. Chamber scopes may also be filled with liquids like oil and floating items adrift in the liquid. Dried flowers tumble freely against a black background in kaleidoscopes by Luc and Sallie Durette. The images appear to blossom in their Secret Garden Kaleidoscopes.

The magical instruments known as kaleidoscopes peaked in popularity during the Victorian era when a worldwide mania for the instrument seized all classes of people. Since the mid-1980s there has been a resurgence of interest in them by not only collectors but gift givers as well. The first exhibition of kaleidoscopes was held in 1985 in America. By 1988, the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service had sponsored a three year touring exhibit that stopped in 18 cities.

There's even an international organization of designers, collectors and lovers of kaleidoscopes called The Browster Society.

Spend a leisurely afternoon in Dover

BY MARY QUINLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

As the hazy summer days of 1913 faded away Ernest "Mooney" Warther astonished his family and friends with an unusual carving. His creation unfurled from a walnut block of wood with 31,000 hand-carved incisions. Warther called it his "pliers tree."

Today safely nestled in northeast Ohio's rolling meadows Warther's family shares his one-of-a-kind carvings at the Warther Museum in Dover (population 12,000).

The museum coupled with a winery, cheesehouse and side trip to the neighboring town of Sugarcreek supply the basic ingredients for a weekend getaway 75 miles south of Cleveland.

Master-carver Warther admired Abraham Lincoln. An eight-foot-long carved replica of Lincoln's funeral train is a favorite with museum-goers. Peek through the tiny lighted windows. Ebony, ivory and pearl miniature carvings of draperies, an eagle insignia and a coffin commemorate the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's death.

A model walnut and ivory 18th century steel mill; ebony, ivory and walnut replicas of steam engines; and intricately carved Civil War memorabilia fill the museum's spacious roams.

Pocket-size wooden pliers were a Warther specialty. During his life he carved more than 750,000 pliers and used them as a symbol of family unity. If Warther failed to finish the carving within 20 seconds the pliers were free.

Marvel at the 64 miniature working models depicting the evolution of the steam engine. No oil was used. Instead "Mooney" carved the moving parts of these locomotives with an oil-burning wood from the Amazon River called arguto. The most impressive engine, the DeWitt Clinton which was named after a 19th-century governor of New York, has maintained a steady pace of continuous motion for more than 80 years.

Second-grade dropout? No formal education? How did Warther create such authentic carvings?

"My grandfather thought carving was a God-given talent. However carving came after people. He always had time to talk to the kids," said Carol (Warther) Moreland, granddaughter of Warther.

An antique steam engine, railroad caboose and an operating hand car surround the parking area. Picnickers are welcome on the grounds.

After your museum tour venture through the curving Amish-populated hills to DerMarktplatz. The "purple place," as it is affectionately labeled, houses a gift shop, deli and wine cellar.

Take a few minutes to taste the smoked German meats and cheeses. Samples of Cabernet Sauvignon, spiced apple and dandelion wine are offered.

Just a stone's throw away on the opposite side of the bend sits the Broad Run Cheesehouse. Tours of the cheese factory include a souvenir sailor-type hat and a sample of cheese. The gift shop featuring Victorian wares and ruffled country curtains tempts travelers to stay and browse.

Make time and drive west to Sugarcreek where you'll discover horse-drawn buggies, Amish-style restaurants and a steam engine excursion.

Reader has warm memories of Iceland

Nancy Austin of Plymouth, and Barbara Crowley of Plymouth Township, both Plymouth area realtors, recently returned from an enjoyable trip to Iceland. Nancy wrote about their trip.

BY NANCY AUSTIN
SPECIAL WRITER

When I read about a trip to Iceland for an unbelievably low airfare to introduce tourists to this land of some of the purest air and water in the world, I decided to take the plunge.

After a five-hour flight from Baltimore to Keflavik, the Icelandair jet set down in the early morning dawn, revealing a stark, treeless, black volcanic landscape, with its own flawless beauty. From the seven year old airport at Keflavik, there was a 25-mile ride to the capital city of Reykjavik.

Expecting to discover almost immediately the Viking influence, we found that it is apparent mostly in the language, which is next to impossible to learn. But most Icelanders speak English effortlessly.

The Hotel Esja was warm and comfortable. We had the room with a view, overlooking both the ocean harbor as well as Mount Esja, a snow-covered, volcanic mountain which glows white when bathed in pure sunlight.

In spite of the cold to cool temperatures year-round, outdoor swimming is the national pastime of Icelanders. Natives enjoy the geothermal-heated, larger-than Olympic sized pools. Often you will see swimmers soaking in adjacent "hot-pots," watching the steam lazily rise above the water's surface.

Reykjavik Excursions, available from the hotel lobby, conducted informative day trips of varying lengths, which included a two-hour city tour, or more lengthy trips reaching into outlying areas.

As tourists, we were quick to discover Iceland is, as yet, unspoiled. It is a nation of modest, hard-working people, relatively free from crime (110 prisoners out of a population of 260,000 people).

Wood is non-existent, due to the volcanic ground. There are no fireplaces. Since there are no trees, there is a noticeable absence of insects and birds, except for shorebirds.

Fishing is 70 percent of Iceland's industrial base. The icy North Atlantic surrounding Iceland provides the rest of the world with fresh cod, halibut, flounder, sole, and an infinite variety of "catch of the day" expertly prepared and often "garnished" with a plentiful variety of shrimp.

Visitors to the Blue Lagoon, approximately a 40-minute ride from Reykjavik, have a real treat in store. One of Iceland's greatest attractions, this pool is created by the geothermal power plant, which provides the natural energy used to heat most of the region. The waters are deep in minerals, and constantly renewed from underground sources more than 5,400 feet deep. Water temperature is approximately 90 degrees F. Even so, air temperature is approximately 20 degrees F. The swim was most refreshing.

And Icelanders know how to party! Cafe Reykjavik filled up very quickly after working hours. Dancing to mostly American music is extremely popular, as is drinking beer, which was not legal until 1987.

We are told that summer visitors have even more in store during their visit. Camping is popular because of the hundreds of miles of ocean shoreline. Horseback riding is as popular as swimming. The West Fjords area is a paradise to bird watchers. The West Fjords are reported to be the largest bird cliffs known in the world.

Bicycling, fishing and farm vacations are also popular.

Hills music festival features 7 concerts, great musicians

BY CAROLYN BARNETT-GOLDSTEIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Great Lakes Chamber Music Festival, a seven-concert series featuring world class musicians at Temple Beth El and St. Hugo of the Hills Catholic Church in Bloomfield Hills, June 10-17 is building on last year's success, and adding two children's concerts.

Due to last year's overflow crowds, some concerts are being performed twice. Detroit-native and world-renowned pianist James Tocco will be returning with cellist Nathaniel Rosen, the Amernet String Quartet and violinist Miriam Fried. Ruth Laredo, a pianist of worldwide stature, Detroit Chamber Winds, a group of musicians drawn from the ranks of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestras also will be participating.

This year, audience members will enjoy the Festival's focus on the works of Johannes Brahms. A broad spectrum of his genius will be covered as the musicians present works written for two, three, four, five and six performers.

The festival was created last year to "celebrate the spirit, strength, diversity and character of the people of the area," by the Rev. Monsignor Anthony Tocco, pastor of St. Hugo of the Hills, Rabbi Daniel Polish of Temple Beth El, Ed and Ruth Schnee of the Chamber Music Society, Maury Okun of the Detroit Chamber Winds, and pianist James Tocco, the current artistic director. Dean and Aviva Friedman, members of Temple Beth El, and Joe and Kathleen Antonini, who belong to St. Hugo of the Hills parish, are co-chairing the event.

Opening night 8 p.m. Saturday, June 10, at Temple Beth El, features native eastside Detroiter James Tocco performing Russian composer Igor Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," the four hand piano composition from which the symphony was orchestrated, with pianist Ruth Laredo. Also on the program is Brahms' "Quintet in F Minor for Piano and Strings, Op. 34," the Amernet String Quartet and Detroit Chamber Winds.

The Rachmaninoff cello sonata she is to perform 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, June 12-13, with renowned cellist Nathanial Rosen, is one they had previously played in New York. Laredo said she is "thrilled" they are playing it again here.

Each concert, except the children's concerts, will be preceded by a "Prelude," a 20-30 minute pre-concert performance or discussion featuring musicians from the Great Lakes Chamber Music Festival. Preludes begin one hour prior to the concert and are complementary to those holding concert tickets.

Highlights are the Monday and Tuesday, June 12-13, prelude lectures featuring violinist and former LaSalle Quartet member Henry Meyer. An Auschwitz-Birkenau survivor, who played in the camp's orchestra. He will speak about "the musical life" in the concentration camps.

"Whenever they played dance and entertainment music, I played violin. For marches I played cymbals, which saved my life. Usually during the day we played German marches, but then our orchestra split up in the evening and entertained SS people.

"And they wanted us to play the latest American tunes and hits. And the grotesque part was, you know, we played these kind of Broadway melodies. The strange part is that the composers of these songs were Jews. Gershwin, Irving Berlin, and what have you, and the people who were playing were Jews. And those who were listening to us were the Nazi bandits who had nothing better to do than to kill us."

Concerts for children on tap

SPECIAL WRITER

"Interactive" is the key word for the Great Lakes Chamber Music Festival's children's concerts at St. Hugo of the Hills Catholic Church on June 11 and 17.

Detroit Chamber Winds presents "Let's Cooperate" 3:30 p.m. Sunday, June 11. The audience will hear about each ensemble instrument — two trumpets, French horn, trombone and tuba, individually, and as a group — illustrating the theme cooperating to play together.

"Strings and Things" 3:30 p.m. Saturday, June 17, features the Amernet String Quartet with 15-year-old Jonathan Biss at the piano. Their presentation will give children the opportunity to understand certain concepts of music using a string quartet. The quartet will play music from around the world illustrating how music reflects culture, history, arts, and geography.

"We are very pleased to add these children's concerts to our schedule," said pianist James Tocco who serves as the festival's artistic director. "Chamber music presents a very effective medium for introducing young people to classical music, as we expect these performances to be both fun and informative."

Redford jazz pianist Schunk performing at Fox & Hounds

BY MITCH GENOVA
SPECIAL WRITER

If you want to know who is the best chef in town, ask a chef. If you ask local pianists who is the best piano player in town, the name that comes back most often is Gary Schunk of Redford.

Schunk is the premier jazz pianist in the metro Detroit area. He has appeared in every Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival since it's inception, the Birmingham Jazzfest, and at the Montreux, Switzerland Jazz Festival, but this is only part of the story of this amazingly versatile keyboard wizard.

Schunk has performed with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and community orchestras. His ability to sight read and interpret a variety of music on the spot has made him a first-call pianist for major theater performances. He is also the first choice accompanist of top vocalists in our area including Sheila Landis of Rochester, and Toledo-based Ramona Collins.

Backing a vocalist is the hardest task a pianist faces. Each has an individual style and and personal nuances which present particular challenges. Schunk can play any tune in any key, and can be relied on to craft an accompaniement which enhances the vocalist's style.

Schunk is currently performing 8 p.m. to midnight Saturdays at Fox & Hounds restaurant, 1560 North Woodward at Long Lake Road, Bloomfield Hills, with vocalist Patti Richards. For more information, call (810) 644-4800.

He has also performed with Earl Klugh, Sonny Stitt, Kenny Burrell, Anita O'Day, Mark Murphy, and many other national jazz stars where his versatility comes through. He is a master of mainstream, acoustic piano, in the tradition of Bill Evans, Keith Jarrett, Herbie Hancock, and Chick Corea. But he also has his electric fusion side, and, like Corea, has both an acoustic trio and an electric trio comprised of the same musicians playing different instruments.

Schunk is presently producing a CD with the acoustic trio featuring such jazz standards as Herbie Hancock's "Speak Like A Child," Chick Corea's "Windows," Miles Davis' "ESP," and Schunk's original compositions.

He performs on Landis' recently released CD entitled "Jazzscapes," and on "Exordium," by Brad Felt of Birmingham who plays jazz on the tuba.

The Schunk-Starr-Dryden trio will open for The Rippingtons 8 p.m. Saturday, June 10 in a concert at Freedom Park in Sterling Heights. Advance tickets are available at all Borders Books and Music stores. Freedom Hill Park is at 1500 Metro Parkway, between Utica Road and Schoenherr. For more information, call (810) 979-7010.

Also look for Schunk at the Birmingham Jazzfest, July 27-30. He will be appearing there with the Schunk-Starr-Dryden jazz trio -- drummer Tom Starr and bassist Jack Dryden.

'Kate' lights up summer night

St. Dunstan's Guild of Cranbrook presents "Kiss Me Kate" 8:30 p.m. June 8-10 in Cranbrook's outdoor Greek Theatre, 400 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills. Call (810) 644-0527.

REVIEW

BY VICTORIA DIAZ

Beneath the stars, "Kiss Me Kate," a musical-within-a-musical, inspired by Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," lights up the summer night at times. At other times, this production, directed by Jervis McMechan, is just a bit under the weather.

Much of its brightness is provided by Bloomfield Hills actress Dianne Mather Ryding as the spirited Lilli Vanessi/Kate. Equipped with a substantial voice, plenty of warmth and sparkly charm, the attractive performer probably succeeds best as the lovelorn actress Lilli — although this may be because Kate seems like such a confusing character these days. As Lilli, Ryding's first act rendition of Cole Porter's great tune, "So in Love," is one of the highlights of this production. With it Ryding seems to weave a kind of enchanting, musical spell.

Playing the dashing lecher Fred Graham/Petruchio, Livonia's James Morisi cuts a fine figure on stage, and shows that he's no slouch as a singer. If only he could have a bit more fun with his pompous character, the audience could have a lot more fun watching him perform, especially when it comes to such playful numbers as the delightful "I've Come to Wive it Wealthily in Padua" and "Where is the Life That Late I Led?"

Some of the most glowing moments in this rendition of "Kiss Me Kate" come from supporting players.

Cynthia Voldrich is practically flawless as the fair Lois Lane/Bianca. When she's singing "Always True to You in My Fashion" and "Tom, Dick or Harry," she appears to be having the time of her life, and her enthusiasm is highly contagious.

Other supporting players who enliven the production in a big way include Todd Alsup as an energetic Hortensio, and Dave Sikkelee as Bill Calhoun/Lucentio. Sikkelee, though not a world-class singer, is a perfect example of how the right dash of panache can sell a song to a fare-thee-well. His "Bianca" is simply sensational, flavored as it is with fun and sweetly wicked, killer-charm.

As "gangsters," Ara Basherian and Jim Brooks make up a two-man, Runyonesque riot, especially with their memorable version of "Brush Up Your Shakespeare."

Music, provided by a 10-piece orchestra conducted by Isabel Himelhoch is usually on the mark, although the group seems inconsistent toward the end of the evening.

Numerous, cumbersome scene changes create too much distraction. Also, choreography and stage movements could use some punching-up, especially in numbers like "Too Darn Hot" and "Always True to You in My Fashion."

Good performances in classic musical

"Fiddler on the Roof" 8 p.m. June 8-10; 7 p.m. Sunday, Baldwin Theatre, 415 S. Lafayette Ave., Royal Oak. Show continues to June 25. Call (810) 541-6430.

REVIEW

BY SALLY DUBATS

The Stagecrafters close out their 10th season with the Broadway classic "Fiddler on the Roof" (music by Jerry Bock; book, Joseph Stein; lyrics, Sheldon Harnick).

"Fiddler" is produced time and time again (with a minimum of four productions per year in metro Detroit alone) because of its enduring message. While "Tradition" is "Fiddler's" opening number, and oft times embraced as the spine of the show, the ability to change and grow are the only doings that keep the families of Anatevka together.

Director Marsha Kline brings together a predictable production to the stage. The opening has no surprises, with very little movement. The rest of the musical numbers and story lines follow suit with the presentation style of a choir rather than musical actors.

Bob Loiko and Nancy Potts as the beloved Tevye and Golde do a superb job. Although movement is thwarted, both have an instinctive vocal ability while acting and singing, which carries the show.

Loiko's Tevye is noteworthy. His depiction of Tevye's relationship with God is jovial and trusting, making Tevye all the more likable. Although "If I Were A Rich Man" is successful, Loiko does not present the song as though Tevye thoroughly relishes this fantasy.

Nancy Potts, a Rochester Hills resident, does an excellent job as Golde. Potts infuses the perfect amount of comedic timing to make Golde a woman who is strong, yet a joy to watch.

Tzeitel (Gerri Vindischman), Hodel (Debra Dworkin), and Chava played by Mindy Raf of West Bloomfield, put forth acceptable performances as Tevye's three daughters bent on breaking tradition for the sake of love, but need to make their own mark to be outstanding.

Motel, Tzeitel's love interest, and not the Matchmaker's choice, is played very well by Andy Clements.

Howard Baron of Bloomfield Hills as the rabbi brings welcomed twinkles of entertainment and energy.

The set is functional and offers fast scene changes. The lighting works well.

For those who haven't yet seen "Fiddler," the songs will kindle fond memories and emotion. The Stagecrafters' version, however, cultivates a show without its own personality to separate it from the many productions in the metro area.

Sally Dubats of Troy is an an actress, director and teacher, who teaches at community theaters in the metropolitan area.

Dark comedy is a 'killer'

REVIEW

BY MATT DELEZENNE
SPECIAL WRITER

Rita Walczyk and Jeanne Slasor take the lead roles as the mercifully murderous Abby and Martha Brewster, heiress sisters who have a nasty habit of killing their lonely boarders out of overzealous concern in First Theatre Guild's production of "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Abby and Martha's nephew, Teddy, shares their Brooklyn home with them and serves as an unwitting accomplice while suffering the delusion that he is President Teddy Roosevelt. The sisters will be paid a visit by another of their nephews, Jonathan, a sadistic exile from the family since his boyhood. Lastly, there is nephew Mortimer Brewster, perhaps most scandalous in his profession as a (gasp!) theater critic.

Set in the early 1940s, the plot of the three-act play concerns the efforts of the newly engaged Mortimer to get his uncomprehending, innocent minded aunts out of trouble without letting his fiancee, Elaine Harper, know what's going on. Of course, as expected in any farce comedy, it's not that simple. Mortimer's tribulations are compounded when Jonathan arrives with a recently deceased victim of his own, and a woman cohort named Dr. Einstein.

The show is ably carried by Mark Walters, the James Belushi of community theater. Playing Mortimer Brewster, the one member of the Brewster clan still clinging desperately to his mental marbles, Walters lends his voice to the production with obvious theatrical experience. Walters' stage movement, gesticulation and dynamic vocal delivery reflect his reported background in musical theater. They also fit perfectly with his role as the "straight man" in the midst of the confusion.

Best actress kudos go to Slasor for her seemingly effortless portrayal of the addled Aunt Martha. Ione Anderson, admirably fills the supporting role of Dr. Einstien. Again, experience shows.

The lovely Patricia Campos, portraying Mortimer's love interest, showed impressive grace on stage and fluidity with her lines. Walczyk, as Abby Brewster, threw off some apparent opening night jitters in time for the second act and carried her role effectively.

Michael J. O'Neil as Jonathan Brewster provided some of the best comic moments in the play.

The cast is completed by: theatrical newcomer Bob Reeves as Elaine's father, the Rev. Dr. Harper; Ed Krebs as Officer Brophy; Bill Pluto as Officer Klein; John Daniel as the nervous, would-be boarder Mr. Gibbs; George Bloomfield as Officer O'Hara; Patricia Reeves as the jaded Lieutenant Rooney; and Mary Christner as the ill-fated supervisor of Happy Dale Sanitarium.

The set design is simple and effective.

Jenny Lind Club presents concert

The Jenny Lind Club of Detroit presents its 11th annual June concert featuring lyric soprano Carin Zander and pianist Monika Kowalska 7 p.m. Sunday, June 11, at Faith Covenant Church, 34515 West 14 Mile (corner of Drake Road), Farmington Hills.

Tickets at the door are $10 adults, $5 students. An afterglow with the artists will follow the concert. For more information, call (313) 255-9705.

Zander, 23, has been awarded a Jenny Lind scholarship, an annual award given by the national body of 160 amusement parks in Sweden.

Zander is a resident of Stockholm, Sweden and was admitted two years ago to the music drama class at the University College of Opera as one of eight among hundreds of applicants.

"I still have 2½ years left at the University College of Opera, and during that time I want to make as many contacts as possible," Zander said in a press release. "It is hard for me to wish something, but most of all I would like to combine the opera profession with romance singing and church concerts as a free-lancer. That would be perfect."

Kowalska, the holder of the Wilhelm Freund Scholarship this year, was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1967, but raised in Stockholm.

She received a diploma in piano from the Edberg Music School in 1992. Kowalska has studied in Warsaw and at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, and has received several scholarships from the Royal Academy of Music which have made it possible for her to study also in London and at the Banff Centre for Fine Arts in Canada. In 1993 Kowalska appeared at the Schleswig-Holstein Festival and in 1994 at the Holland Music Sessions.

Jenny Lind, who lived from 1820 to 1887, was known as the "Swedish Nightingale." After Lind's London debut in 1847 Queen Victoria wrote in her diary that night: "The great event of the evening was Sweden's Jenny Lind's appearance and her complete triumph."

Scholarship winner: Pianist Monika Kowalska and Carin Zander, Sweden's 1994 Jenny Lind Scholarship Recipient at the 1896 Steinway grand piano, which belongs to the Hallwylska Museum in Stockholm.

During a 21-month tour of the United States in 1850-51, Lind sang 137 concerts in 37 cities. Her welcome was tumultuous, causing a scramble for tickets wherever she appeared, and Americans stood in long lines and paid exorbitant prices to hear her sweet soprano voice.

The Jenny Lind Club of Detroit, founded in 1937 to preserve and promote Sweden's cultural heritage, is a non-profit organization.

"Anyone who is a music lover will enjoy this concert, not just the Swedish-American community," said Ebba Belfrage Slomeana of Redford who was born in Stockholm, Sweden and is a member of the Jenny Lind Club of Detroit. In addition to Swedish folk songs, the concert program inlcudes works by Carl Nielson, Jean Siberlius, Frederic Chopin and Antonin Dvorak.

Eastwood builds 'Bridges' into effective tearjerker

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Count me among those who enjoy maligning writer Robert James Waller. I pride myself on not having finished his phenomenally popular "The Bridges of Madison County," sneer at the author's faux sensitivity, and wear a smug grin while quoting from his syrupy prose.

So what a surpise to find myself crying along with a theaterful of people at several points during the new movie version of "Bridges." Sure it's the sappiest romance story in about 30 years, but thanks to Clint Eastwood and Meryl Streep, it hits the right buttons.

No one thought that Eastwood was the right man to direct and star in "Bridges," yet he's quite good on both sides of the camera. Whether or not you believe his assertion that this role is really closer to the real Clint than the cowboy parts, he has a sensitive side that comes across strongly on screen.

For the two or three of you who haven't read it, "Bridges" works like this: an Iowa farm wife has a chance meeting with a "National Geographic" photographer while her husband and kids are away. A casual invitation to dinner quickly blossoms into a passionate love affair.

As photographer Robert Kincaid, Eastwood makes us believe that he's really moved by Francesca, "the one certain moment in a lifetime," but he could use some fleshing out. A chink or two in his armor would make him seem more real.

No problem with Meryl Streep, an actress I usually rank among the most overrated in Hollywood. She's wonderful here as an Italian war bride whose American dream landed her smack in the middle of an Iowa cornfield. She's far more complex than in the book.

When she meets the globe-trotting Kincaid, you can see her girlish nervousness. She plans a second dinner with him much differently than the first, even buys a new dress for the occasion, knowing full well what it might lead to.

As a director, Eastwood keeps his shots lengthy and simple, relying on large tracts of dialogue and tasteful love scenes. Considerable padding is required to transform the book (an afternoon's read at best) into an over-two-hour movie.

A framing device involves Francesca's grown-up kids. They discover their mother's diary only after her death and its revelations have such an effect on them that they try to fix their own failing marriages.

Eastwood also adds his own stamp. There's a completely incongruous scene where the lovers escape to a blues club (in rural Iowa?), a tribute to his much-publicized love of jazz. The piano-based musical score is peppered with a connoisseur's blend of smooth vintage tunes, supposedly the product of one of the town's two or three radio stations.

The set designers certainly got the farmhouse right, down to its yellow linoleum-topped kitchen table and clawfoot tub. Surprisingly the title bridges, though certainly pictaresque, aren't shot as beautifully as you might expect.

While it's easy to pick at what "Bridges" doesn't have (subtlety for starters), it does have a lot to offer for moviegoers — a completely old-fashioned story about love and sacrifice and a clever twist on the old Bogart line, "we'll always have Iowa."

'Pocahontas' embellishes history

BY BONNIE I. ROCHMAN
AP NEWSFEATURES

It could pass for another Disney animated fairy tale: dashing, blond English colonist meets willowy, raven-haired Indian princess and they fall in love.

So what's wrong with this picture?

Walt Disney Co.'s "Pocahontas," opening at metro Detroit theaters on June 23, does not square with historical fact. Unlike the make-believe stars of Disney's classic cartoon features, Pocahontas and John Smith actually lived.

Pocahontas had not yet reached her teens when Smith — in his early 30s at the time — arrived in the New World. Pocahontas, a chief's daughter, spared the settler from death at the hands of her angry tribe and taught him about Powhatan Indian culture. He, in turn, schooled her in English.

But the two were never an item.

The animated Pocahontas will not be the innocent 11-year-old who saved Smith's life. Instead, she will be a slender, tawny-skinned enchantress in a form-fitting buckskin sheath.

"It's a beautiful story, if it didn't carry the name of 'Pocahontas,'" Shirley Custalow McGowan, an American Indian known to her tribe as Little Dove, said of the contrived romance.

Because of her high cheekbones, Disney artists modeled their Pocahontas character after McGowan. During a visit in August to Disney's California studios, she discovered that both Pocahontas and Smith will be in their 20s in the movie. When she asked why, Disney officials explained that a romance would make more money, she said.

"They really have it accurate about the heart and soul of our people, but they're not doing a film about the Powhatan Indians — they're doing a film about Pocahontas," she said.

The life of the real Pocahontas was not as glamorous as her cartoon namesake.

She was born in 1595 near Jamestown. According to a 1612 account written by William Strachey, the British first secretary of the Virginia colony, she married a chief from her tribe when she was about 14.

In 1613, when fighting broke out between the Powhatan tribe and white settlers, Pocahontas was lured aboard an English ship and temporarily held captive. During that time, she converted to Christianity and fell in love with Englishman John Rolfe.

In 1614, they married and two years later, Rolfe sailed with her to England. There she met King James I and the British acclaimed her as an American princess. But before she could return to America, she fell ill with smallpox and died at age 21.

Somewhere along the way, the original story line faded.

Disney tried to ensure the film's accuracy: Its executives met with Virginia Indians and even visited Jamestown. Disney animator and director Mike Gabriel said in 1993 that the movie could be entertaining without departing from historical accuracy.

Disney officials confirmed that the movie Pocahontas will be a young woman and Smith will be twenty-something. But the studio declined repeated requests for interviews about the production.

McGowan said the inaccuracies will serve only to inspire her to teach the truth. For 28 years she has traveled to schools across the nation to teach children about Indians.

"I think the film is going to be a big hit. Kids are going to think it's true — that's what they're going to remember," she said. "I'll just have to teach them that you don't take a real person and make a mockery out of history."

Soul Coughing has some fun with the devil

■ Soul Coughing is not exactly an alternative rock band, a jazz-rap combo, or a beatnik poetry project. They take all of that, crumple it in a tight little ball, and pitch a fresh "alternative" to radio-tired music fans.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

In the days when parent groups and other organizations are going over every recording with a fine-tooth comb, it's shocking that few people have asked Soul Coughing if they worship the devil.

The jazzy, hip-hop, funky quartet's debut album "Ruby Vroom" (Slash/Warner Bros.) houses songs like "Bus To Beelzebub" and "Blue-Eyed Devil." Mark De Gli Antoni's keyboard boasts the sticker "Worship the devil and do bad stuff."

"I'm surprised that people don't pick up on it more," De Gli Antoni said with a laugh via telephone from his New York home Saturday.

"It's probably because we haven't reached the mainstream. We're a new band. We're still underground in a way. We're not being spread by radio, or MTV. We're being spread by journalists."

Or maybe it's because consumers are finally understanding that most musical references to the devil are in jest. Soul Coughing's joke is on their earliest influences.

"The music we listened to while we were growing up, hard rock or whatever, everyone said, 'If you play this backward, your mind will be bent on doing bad stuff,'" said De Gli Antoni who picked up his forementioned bumpersticker at a show in Atlanta.

With the New York-bred Soul Coughing, the joke is easy to understand. The band, especially the bespectacled blond singer M. Doughty, have the stereotypical New York art community look. Coupled that with Doughty's beat-poet vocal delivery over a cartoon-like soundtrack and it's clear that Soul Coughing is all about having fun. It's even reflected in Doughty's songwriting process.

"The way the songs happen lyrically and melodically, is some idiot thing will pop into my head and I'll walk around going 'blue-eyed devil. Blue, blue, blue-eyed devil. Blue-eyed devil. Blue-eyed devil.' After awhile it totally makes sense to me and after awhile it becomes a song," Doughty said.

Just three years ago, Doughty was a NYC folk singer who wondered how he could combine his love of his music, poetry, and hip-hop. While working as a doorman at the avant garde club Knitting Factory, he met De Gli Antoni, Sebastian Steinberg, and Yuval Gabay as they came through with various bands. After a few months, Doughty approached Steinberg about starting a band.

"He left a message and I had no idea who he was. He had so much conviction, and he was talking about starting a band that would be noisy, hip-hop, funky, (and) weird," Steinberg said.

Soul Coughing played their first gig after just one rehearsal. The band gelled and soon afterward, they inked a deal with Slash.

Since "Ruby Vroom" was released in September, critics in national publications have hailed Soul Coughing. Songs like "Bus to Beelzebub" and "Screenwriter's Blues" hiccup funk and hip-hop sounds supplied by upright bassist Steinberg and drummer Gabay, a dance music composer. De Gli Antoni supplies the samples of jackhammers, crickets, answering machine snippets, cartoon-like sounds, and a 55-piece orchestra performing his own compositions.

"My job in the band is to create girth. I sample my own music and other times I'm sampling from the world at large. Anything goes," De Gli Antoni said.

The result is as full as a 55-piece orchestra, making some new fans skeptical of Soul Coughing's live performance, De Gli Antoni explained.

"When people come to our shows, it goes in two ways. If they haven't seen us yet, they come to see if we can do it (live). It's like a test. After that, they come for the party," he said.

"It's going to be like a cartoon. Come close. Come around the fire. We're about movement. We've done a few shows where people are sitting down and listening. But we're an interactive band. We shout at the audience and have them shout back at us."

Soul Coughing, Skiploader and D.O.P.E. play The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, Friday, June 9. Doors open at 6 p.m. for the 18 and older show. Tickets are $7. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT or (810) 645-6666.

Groovy souls: Soul Coughing — clockwise from front, singer/speaker/guitarist M. Doughty, upright bassist Sebastian Steinberg, keyboard sampler Mark De Gli Antoni, and drummer Yuval Gabay — has earned a reputation amongst the underground crowds for hosting one heck of a good party. They'll be at The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit on Friday.

Mudhoney swears show will have feline appeal

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

If everything goes according to the plan that Mudhoney singer Mark Arm has conjured up, cat fanciers will love his band's show at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre in Pontiac this weekend.

"We're trying to get this huge drum riser that goes 15 feet up. You know how Danzig has this huge skull thing in front of his? Well, we're going to have the rear end of a cat, and the tail is going to wag back and forth to the music," Arm said swearing all this was true.

"There's going to be this rim all the way around the stage that's filled with kitty litter. You know that ZZ Top tour that they had in the '70s when they had cattle on stage? Well, we're going to have cats. Hopefully we won't be stepping on them when we do the wah-wahs and stuff."

Now, Mudhoney's latest album is titled "My Brother the Cow," so why not have cows on stage?

"We all have cats. None of us have cows so we can't do that."

The logistical problems are keeping Arm from verifying that they're actually going to pull this off.

"You know how cats love moving vehicles. It's going to be hard getting the cat box and all that kitty litter moved from place to place. Even if the record company doesn't pay for it, we'll pay for it ourselves. It's important for us to give the kids a good show."

Let's say that Arm was pulling our legs. Mudhoney promises that June 10 will still be a good day for their fans. The Seattle rock band, which includes grunge forefathers Arm and guitarist Steve Turner, will play tracks off "My Brother The Cow," including "Today, Is A Good Day," as well as older songs.

Fans who have heard "My Brother The Cow" will notice that Mudhoney returned to the the stripped-down punk sound of their earlier years, steering away from the keyboards and fluffed up production of "Piece of Cake" and "Every Good Boy Deserves Fudge."

"We didn't really add anything," Arm said of the recording of "My Brother The Cow." "When it got to the point of recording these songs on this record, they really didn't seem like it needed any of that. It's too bad because I bought a Hammond organ a couple months before with the complete intention of using it on the record," Arm said.

"There's still marimbas. There's harmonica on one song and sax on another."

Mudhoney's show this weekend marks the first time in almost two years that the band has played Detroit. Arm said that he's excited about playing the area, from which many of his influences hail.

"The whole Detroit sound of the late '60s and early '70s was pretty influential," he said.

Echoing the Smashing Pumpkins' Billy Corgan at last year's Lollapalooza, Arm snickered and narrowed down his "whole Detroit sound" comment.

"Bob Seger and Ted Nugent really don't mean (much) to us."

Mudhoney, Mule, Claw Hammer and Hoarse perform Saturday, June 10, at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre, 10 Water St., Pontiac. Showtime is 7:30 p.m. for the all ages show. Tickets are $10. For more information, call (810) 335-4850 or (810) 645-6666.

STREET BEATS

Love This Way — Tearjerks

Dual personality syndrome is a plus in the case of Detroit's Tearjerks. With two distinctive singers, the Tearjerks fluctuate between being a straight-ahead pop and a roots rock band on their debut "Love This Way" (Smashmatic Records).

Singer/guitarist Mike Nolan is the primary vocalist/songwriter on the album providing the pure pop edge to "Love This Way." On some tracks like "May Be Better Off" and "Yesterday's Girl" his vocals are weak compared to his live performances. However, Nolan is still able to portray the emotions in his tear-jerky tales (hence the name). The CD kicks off with "Maybe Better Off," which describes the ending of a troubled relationship: "I've been rehearsing tragedy, letting only sorrow into me. So I can't begin to remedy situations that don't belong to me. So maybe you're better off without me. I waste my time and say goodbye and it's too many times to cry. I let you in, forgive my sin, and my hopeless side 'cause I got no right and I've got no one tonight."

"Do The Same Thing," the obvious hit on "Love This Way," is sort of the companion piece to "Maybe Better Off" telling why relationships are nerve-wracking in the first place: "I know it sounds a little dark to just pretend I have no heart, but I fall in love and I fall apart when I do the same thing they do." The 5-minute song ends with a sing-along with some of Detroit-area acoustic heavyweights Priscilla Ederle, Adam Druckman, and Scott Fab, as well as members of Spank and Sister Seed; former Tearjerks singer Leah Jacobs, Karen Koski, Brian Nolan, and Charm Farm's Eric Meyer. (The CD format of "Love This Way" includes a remix of Meyer's "Space Dub" of "Cry For Me.")

Guitarist Mikey Brown's growling vocals on "Rocket" and "I Can't See" give "Love This Way" a roots rock feeling. Brown shows his ability to write crafty lyrics on "Rocket," another of the album's highlights. "She had to be a rocket, burning like the sun. You had to be a rocket, can't fall for anyone. You had to be a rocket, lighting up the sky, and you burned me forever the day that you flew by." His subtle, yet strong guitar work carries "Love This Way."

DINING

Spruced-up eatery serves Middle Eastern cuisine

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Diners desirous of discovering adventuresome might consider sampling the Lebanese cuisine at El Barmakki in Garden City.

Residents may remember the Middlebelt Road restaurant as Joseph's, which it was dubbed until Khalil and Mike Habhab (father and son) bought it in June 1994.

The Habhabs spent $200,000 renovating and redecorating the restaurant, and re-opened on Sept. 21, 1994. Their efforts were recently recognized by the Garden City Downtown Development Authority, which gave them an award for the outstanding renovation.

Among the changes were adding three bay windows, which brighten the interior, which previously had no windows at all, considerably.

The Habhabs have also built a new entrance, eliminated the game room and bricked the exterior.

Inside, the red carpeting and tables in five dining areas are new and complemented by brown trim and Middle Eastern artifacts.

Behind the scenes, the kitchen exhaust system is new, as are the refrigerator, the grill and the gyro machine.

About all that remains from the Joseph's kitchen are the tables; "stuff that never goes bad," said Mike Habhab, whose previous restaurant experience includes ownership of a pizzeria and work as a waiter at the Southfield Manor banquet hall.

The restaurant comes with a full bar, Red Dog, Labatt's Blue and Bud Light on tap, six bar stools and several booths in dark corners for a touch of privacy. All in all, the main dining room accommodates 125 individuals. A private banquet room seats about 20. A larger banquet room seats 40, but the Habhabs may convert it to a game room with pool table and darts.

The El Barmakki menu contains a plethora of choices for lunch and dinner, but heavily emphasizes Middle Eastern dishes that are prepared by chef Mahmoud Itani, who previously worked at Sultans in West Bloomfield Township.

Habhab said he plans to change the menu to "eliminate some of the entrees that aren't selling and add more American food."

Already added are prime rib for $12.95, shrimp kabob for $9.95, half of a roasted chicken for $8.95 and fish and chips for $7.95. A children's section will also be added to the menu.

"We're even thinking of changing the name (of the restaurant)," Habhab said. "A lot of people don't know how to pronounce (El Barmakki)."

Other prices range from a falafel sandwich for $2 to deboned chicken for $9, stuffed grape leaves for $6 and lamb chops for $12. A vegetarian menu is also available, as are four seafood items and a coterie of Italian dishes.

A woman who had the stuffed grape leaves for lunch recently said she is a repeat customer and remembers the place from when it was Joseph's. "It's completely different, she said. "There's no comparison. The food is completely different."

The woman, who requested anonymity, had praise for waitress Susie Kataya. "The waitress is very nice," she said.

At the next table, Garden City resident Dustin Nelson ate lunch with Livonia resident Heather Bryan.

Nelson said the food at El Barmakki is better than at another Lebanese restaurant he has eaten at.

State track results

Riley took a fifth in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 14.7.

Gregory Richardson of Lansing Everett won the race by a narrow margin over Kevin Bryant of Farmington Hills Harrison. Both were clocked at 14.3.

Riley, a regional champion with the area's best times in the 110 highs (13.9) and 300 intermediates (38.4), skipped the 300 hurdles qualifier to attend graduation exercises.

On the girls side, Livonia Stevenson boasted a pair of seventh-place finishers in freshman Kelly Travis in the 3,200 run (11:32.15) and Jeannette Stojcevski in the 300 hurdles (47.63). Freshman Kelly McNeilance of Stevenson was ninth in the 3,200.

Allison Klemmer of Troy Athens took the 3,200 race in 10:56.88, while Shaunetta Smith of Detroit Mumford captured the 300 hurdles in 45.55.

Livonia Ladywood's 800 relay team of Lindsay Soter, Kara McDonald, Shannon Swish and Nicole Clausen finished in a sixth-place tie with Battle Creek Lakeview (1:46.9).

Detroit Cass Tech won the team titles in both the boys and the girls.

Ladywood golfer 12th

Laura Kowalski of Livonia Ladywood made the first-round cut Friday and wound up tied for 12th individually at the state Class A golf finals held Saturday at Forest Akers in East Lansing.

Kowalski, a junior, shot an opening-round 86 and ended with a total of 181 after a 95. She was tied with Gina Pellerito of Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central.

Ann Arbor Pioneer's Katy Loy became the first-ever three-time individual state champion with a 75-80/155 total.

Kalamazoo Central took the team title with a 687 total.

Hawks win State Cup

The '83 Michigan Hawks, sponsored by the Livonia Family YMCA, won Sunday's 17th annual Michigan State Youth Soccer Association Cup Championship with a 2-0 victory over the Troy Pride in the finals at Crowley Field in Dearborn.

The Hawks, members of the Little Caesars Premier League, finished with a 4-0-1 record including wins over the Waterford Warriors, Canton Quest, Portage Magic and Troy Pride. They tied the Rochester Rockettes.

Members of the Hawks, who outscored their opponents 13-1 in five games, include Katie Beaudoin, Cheryl Fox, Lindsay Gusick, Christina Lewis, Leslie Knapp, Stephanie Stachura, Carly Wadsworth, all of Livonia; Lorianne Dedomenico, Farmington Hills; Emily Carbott, Carrie Kluska, Missy Winn and Jessica Zwiesler, all of Northville; Angela Maile, Novi; Natalie Shaheen, Birmingham; Abby Shepherd, Milford; and goalkeeper Suzanne Morrison, Bloomfield Township.

Vardar under-14 1st

Vardar III captured the boys under-14 MSYSA Cup Sunday by defeating the Greater Flint Rockers, 4-0, in Dearborn.

Vardar III, featuring Livonians Jeremy Hornak, Adam King and Steve Kleczynski, outscored their opponents 22-4 in six games. Led by tourney MVP Abe Geiger of East Lansing, Vardar III also downed the Lake Orion Lobos (2-0), Paw Paw Red Arrow (5-0), Brighton (4-1), Canton Magic (3-2) and Plymouth Kicks (4-1).

Other members of Vardar III, which will compete June 23-28 at the U.S. Youth Soccer Federation Region championships in Blaine, Minn., include Vince Alexander, Southfield; Scott Badenoch, David Burnett and Josh Epstein, Bloomfield Hills; Steve Kolb, West Bloomfield; Victor Gordon, Birmingham; Raj Mehta, Northville; Yuri Burrell, Lathrup Village; Elliott Belden, Troy; Marcus Chorvat and Nick DeGraw, Clinton Township; Danny Ferrin, Grosse Pointe Farms; Stuart Yingst, Grosse Pointe Park; and David Dwaihy, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The coaching and training staff includes Mark Christensen, A.J. Chorvat, Morris and Mike Lupenec. The team manager is Doug Yingst.

■ Vardar III will also send three other teams to the Region Championships.

The under-16 boys, led by MVP Ali Curtis of Ann Arbor and coached by Matt Paukovits, beat the Birmingham Blazers, 6-0.

The under-16 boys, led by MVP Jon Schack of Farmington, took the under-17 boys title with a 3-1 win over the Northville Sting. The team is coached by Morris Lupenec.

The under-18 boys, paced by Dan Savage (St. Clair Shores), also emerged victorious with a 4-0 win over Kalamazoo TKO. Mike Lupenec is the coach.

Hawks incredible in late rally

■ Westland Huron Valley Lutheran won a wild game in the opener of a double-header against Fairlane Christian, 12-11. They went on to win a share of the MIAC title.

Yogi Berra would have loved this one.

Westland Huron Valley Lutheran proved Monday "It's never over until it's over," scoring nine runs with two-out in the bottom of the seventh to beat visiting Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian, 12-11.

The Hawks went on to sweep the double-header and gain a share of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference crown with an 11-1 mercy-rule triumph in the nightcap.

Huron Valley and Southfield Christian will share the MIAC title, each finishing with 10-2 records.

"It was exciting, remarkable," said Huron Valley coach Tim Sinischo, who last won an MIAC title in 1992. "This group is never out of a game."

The Hawks sent 10 men to the plate during the rally.

Dave Hartley's RBI single tied it at 11-all. He advanced to second on a stolen base and scored the game-winning run on Jason Batkoski's single.

"It was like we gave away five innings and then we decided to play," Sinischo said. "Nobody was talking about getting it all back at once with a home run. They decided to put the ball in play."

Batkoski, Jeremy Zahn and Ben Husby each went 3-for-4 with two RBI. Winning pitcher John Nielson, who worked the final inning in relief, added two hits and scored two runs.

Nielson was Huron Valley's third pitcher.

Aaron Zahn started and Josh Hoepner faced two batters.

In the nightcap, Huron Valley finished it season at 12-3 overall behind the two-hit pitching of Batkoski, who fanned four and walked two in five innings. Batkoski is 6-1.

The winners collected 10 hits, led by Batkoski's 3-for-3 effort with four RBI. Joe Schmidt added two hits and scored three times, while Hartley added two hits.

On Saturday, Huron Valley lost a slugfest to host Ottawa Lake-Whiteford in the Class D district semifinals, 13-8.

Ottawa Lake, rated No. 5 in Class D, out-hit the Hawks, 19-13.

Eight errors led to Huron Valley's undoing.

Batkoski, in relief of Hartley, was the losing pitcher.

"The kids came ready to play, but they were a little tight," Sinischo said. "They (Whiteford) really hit the ball in the gaps. They hit everything we threw at them."

Hartley led Huron Valley with three hits, while Batkoski and the Zahn brothers, Dan and Jeremey, collected two apiece.

In the top of the seventh, Huron Valley cut the lead to five and had the bases loaded, but an infield fly rule call took them out of the inning.

"We made them sweat a little and that's why I'm proud of the kids," Sinischo said.

Ottawa Lake (19-6 overall) went on to win the district crown with a 21-1 victory in the championship over Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard.

Last time to say 'job well done'

BRAD EMONS

What happened?

I can't remember a year when a school from either Wayne-Westland or Livonia was completely shut out of a baseball or softball regional.

And nobody in the state semifinals for girls soccer?

Come on, is this true? It's been a strange spring.

However, there's no denying that the somewhat surprising early exits will be overshadowed by the retirements this month of several key athletic figures who loomed large in Observerland.

I'd be remiss if I didn't say something about each of these individuals.

Bill Hawley, Wayne Memorial athletic director: Wayne High won't be the same without him. This man gave many years of good service to his school, both as a coach and as an A.D.

He may not remember this, but we first crossed paths in 1972.

I was a senior basketball player at Livonia Franklin and he was the coach at Wayne. It was the season opener and we were trying to contain a left-handed sharpshooter named Glenn Ambrose, who later played baseball for Eastern Michigan in the College World Series.

We ended up winning the game, 82-70, but Hawley was a smart coach because he had his guys keep fouling me down the stretch trying to play catch-up.

The strategy nearly worked because I had a Shaquille O'Neal type game at the foul line (five for 13).

Anyway, he was always a gentleman, always patient and always helpful with me after we became real acquaintances.

Plus, he has a nice family to boot.

He'll be missed on this end. How about lunch sometime?

Norm Hoenes, Westland John Glenn baseball coach: He gave 29 years of his life to the baseball program and enjoyed a lot of success during his later years. He was blessed with some great players during the late '80s and early '90s, three times going to the final four in Class A.

Hoenes worked a lot of hours behind the scenes to keep things running smoothly. He was probably never fully appreciated for the job he did.

Hoenes also preferred to stay out of the limelight as much as he could. He never over-hyped his teams and was a realist about his chances as a coach. He also let his players play. He never overmanaged.

He simply enjoyed the game of baseball. I can't forget how many times I saw him at the state finals, just there as a regular spectator.

If anyone deserved a state title, it was Norm.

Joe Epstein, Livonia Franklin softball coach: He was there for 12 years and had some great teams.

His 1985 club reached the state Class A final and his '86 team won it all. He went back to the finals in 1990.

That's quite a record.

Epstein rarely entered a season without an above average pitcher. He always worked hard during the off-season to develop a capable hurler.

He also knew the game of softball and wasn't afraid to speak his mind. But he also had compassion for his girls and they seemed to respond in key situations.

On Saturday, Epstein coached his final game. He stayed positive to the end and tried to keep a smile on pitcher Tina Allen's face, even though she was laboring out on the mound with a bad back.

Epstein took the team for one more varsity season, but now has left it in capable hands of former Glenn head coach Linda Jimenez. She served as his assistant this season.

He cared a lot about his team and his school — Franklin — where he taught physical education.

Epstein also bounced back from open heart surgery and never missed a beat. Good luck in your future endeavors, even if it's umpiring.

Mark MacDonald, Livonia Clarenceville baseball coach: He spent six years as the Trojans' varsity baseball coach and ran a competitive program.

Although district and conference titles were hard to come by, MacDonald overcame the obstacles at this Class C school by producing some fine individual talent.

He took over for Bernie Carbo and got things going again in the right direction. He never shied away from Class A or B opponents. He tried to get the best possible competition instead of padding his record.

MacDonald will be missed because he knew the game of baseball, was firm with his players, and had a burning desire to win.

I wish him nothing but the best as he concentrates on his business career.

Sharon Downs, John Glenn A.D.: There will be many new administrative faces next fall in the Wayne-Westland School District, so it's tough saying good-bye to somebody I hardly knew.

Singles play draws blanks at state

■ TENNIS

Redford Catholic Central found the going tough during last weekend's state Class A boys tennis tournament held at the Midland Community Tennis Center.

The Shamrocks, who advanced by winning the Dearborn regional, scored five points in their third straight state finals appearance under coach Greg Grabowski.

CC was shut out of the singles competition, but did advance two teams to the quarterfinal round in doubles.

"We were hoping to get more out of our singles," Grabowski said. "I thought we could get two or more points, but we had a tough draw."

Okemos (29 points), Ann Arbor Huron (27) and Ann Arbor Pioneer (24) finished one-two-three, respectively, in the team standings.

"Those three teams were really in a class by themselves," Grabowski said. "The top echelon teams were a step ahead of everyone this year as far as talent level."

CC's No. 1 doubles team of Paul West and Rob Villasenor, the No. 3 seeds, reached the quarterfinal before being ousted by Traverse City's No. 5 seeded duo of Kyle Kilcherman and Kyle Tonsain.

West and Villasenor, who finished 26-2 on the year, opened with a 6-1, 6-2 win over Midland's Hakey Shelton and Scott Marcon, followed by a 6-7, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Birmingham Seaholm's Graham Heth and Dan Hart.

At No. 3 doubles, Ann Arbor Huron's third-seeded team of Andy Uher and Tom McHugh, the eventual champs, ousted CC's Phil Muldowney and Phil Zakaria, the No. 6 seeds, 6-2, 6-4, in the round of eight.

Muldowney and Zakaria scored wins over Flint Central's Tom Ashbury and Dave Arnold (6-1, 6-1) and Rochester Adams' Stephen Chen and Todd Valasco (5-7, 6-1, 6-3).

At No. 2 doubles, CC's Mike Lombardi and Steve Hartsock won their opener against Northville's Ganesh Nayakwadi and Nick Sriraman, the Western Lakes Activities Association champs, 6-1, 6-0, before losing to state champs Ryan Farhat and Eddie Chung of Okemos, 7-5, 6-2.

"I was pleased with our doubles," Grabowski said. "We played some of those higher seeded teams tough."

Singles, however, was a different story for CC.

Ranjit Gill (No. 1), Dante Cerroni (No. 2), Brian Foley (No. 3) and Steve Haithcock (No. 4) were all first-round casualties.

Gill lost a three-setter to Steve Wu of Bloomfield Hills Lahser, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, while Cerroni was taken out by Pioneer's Kevin Lochner, 6-1, 6-1.

Craig Peiser of Seaholm ousted Foley, 6-1, 6-0, while Haithcock was eliminated by Adam Cohen of Birmingham Groves, 6-4, 6-2.

"We didn't do as well as we liked, but we still had a successful season," Grabowski said. "We won our regional, tied (Birmingham) Brother Rice for the Catholic League (championship) and we did some damage around the state at times this year."

Meanwhile, Livonia Stevenson senior Mark Findling, the only individual state qualifier from the area, went down in the first round to Okemos' Chris Struck, the eventual runner-up, 6-0, 6-2.

Findling wound up 19-3 on the year.

SOCCER

Rocks' comeback puts them in final

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

As the sun slowly sank into the west, one could envision the hopes of Plymouth Salem's girls soccer team going with it.

With the second half of Wednesday's Class A state semifinal against Brighton seven minutes old, fate seemed to be operating against the Rocks. A defensive mistake had left them trailing 1-0 at the half, and their best two chances had both bounded off the crossbar.

But one thing about the Rocks: The further they're pushed, the harder they play.

With 33 minutes left, they were pressuring heavily. Kelly Lukasik won possession of a free kick near midfield and fed it to Mari Hoff. Hoff turned and sent the ball to Jodi Coyle racing down the right wing.

Brighton keeper Joann Buck came out to challenge, which delighted Coyle. She pumped the ball over the charging keeper and into the net, tying the match at 1-1.

And reversing the tide.

Three more Salem goals were quickly forthcoming, sending the Rocks (17-3-3) to a 4-1 triumph and into Saturday's 1 p.m. state final, which they will host.

"It was surprising," was how Coyle, a sophomore, described her goal. "Suddenly it was in the net. It was the same thing I've done 100 times in practice — I'm just glad it went in."

So were her teammates. Less than three minutes later, Hoff took a pass from Stacey Delong, turned and shot at the net from 20 yards out. Buck made another mistake, allowing the ball to slip through her fingers to give Hoff a goal and Salem a 2-1 lead.

Mia Sarkesian, the Rocks' freshman "Bee", accounted for the two insurance goals with the Bulldogs pressing. She headed a pass from Lukasik into the net for a 3-1 lead, and in the game's waning moments she capped her performance by drilling a centering pass from Colleen Kirby into the net.

What: Class A Girls State Soccer Championship
When: 1 p.m. Saturday
Where: Plymouth Canton HS
Who: Plymouth Salem (17-3-3) goes against Birmingham Seaholm (16-3-2) in a game matching two similar styles of play. Salem advanced to Saturday's final with a 4-1 victory over No. 4-ranked Brighton, while Seaholm defeated Rochester 2-0 in Wednesday's state semifinals.

"They've got quite an offense," said Brighton coach John Boots, whose team bowed out at 21-2-1.

That offense proved more than the Bulldogs could handle. "If we could've cleared the ball, it would have been a different game. But we couldn't clear the ball out of our defensive third."

Lost in Salem's second-half offensive explosion was the defensive work the Rocks did on Brighton scorer Amber Berendowsky. Four players — Andrea Sudik, Amber Rabeau, Sue Parrish and Lukasik — took turns effectively marking — and neutralizing — her.

"She looked good at times," said Salem coach Ken Johnson, "but she couldn't finish."

Brighton's only goal came on a Salem defensive lapse. Nicole LePlae scored it with 22:18 left in the first half.

It hardly seemed a dangerous situation. LePlae's shot was from 22 yards out; both sweeper Missy Simons and keeper Julie Buczek seemed to be in position to stop it. But after an apparent miscommunication, both moved aside and watched it go into the net.

After that, Brighton played Salem evenly — for the rest of the half, anyway.

Which wasn't nearly enough, not with Salem's offense.

Downs, who is also retiring, took over for Larry Wood as athletic director for the '93-94 term under some very difficult circumstances, including the pay-to-participate cloud which hung over the financially-strapped district.

As an assistant principal, she had many other duties besides A.D. She wasn't very accessible because she was spread so thin with jobs like early morning bus duty. It appeared to me that they were running her ragged. No wonder it was time to retire.

But she was there for two glorious years in Glenn sports — the '93 football team going to the Silverdome and the '94 squad nearly doing it again; the boys basketball team going to the state quarterfinals in '94; and the top-ranked '94 baseball team.

I hope she can now relax on her sailboat off Lake St. Clair.

Dennis Tuomi, Lutheran High Westland football/wrestling coach: If there's a nicer guy in the business, I'd like to meet him.

He made his mark for years as a coach at Detroit Lutheran West before coming over to a new school on Cowan Road in Westland to launch a grid program.

They couldn't have picked a better guy.

He was also a religious man, a guy who kept things in the proper perspective.

He was low key, almost embarrassed at times to take any type of credit. He was in it for the kids and nothing else.

Last year he underwent surgery for a detached retina and bounced back nicely.

He doesn't want anyone to know he's retiring, but like Stevenson's Jack Reardon, I can't let him off the hook without some kudos.

Dennis always made you feel welcomed around his school and was always willing to spend time with you.

You can't ask for anything more.

Shamrocks face PSL tourney foe

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Detroit Southwestern looks like a scary opponent when it's state tournament time and the sport is basketball.

But Redford Catholic Central's baseball team is probably a bit relieved about playing the Prospectors in Saturday's noon regional semifinal at Monroe High School. In last year's regional semifinal, the Shamrocks met a stiff challenge from host Temperance-Bedford and held on for a 3-2 victory.

The win put the Shamrocks into the final to meet Southgate Anderson, which breezed to a regional semifinal win over Detroit Western.

Anderson was able to save its ace for the Shamrocks and the result was a 6-0 Titans' victory.

If CC beats Southwestern as expected, the Shamrocks will play the winner of the Southgate Anderson—Taylor Center game.

It looks like a more favorable road, admits CC coach John Salter.

"On paper, anyway," Salter said. "You never know. We just have to be ready for them."

Southwestern is 11-2 overall, but it plays in the Detroit Public School League, which is lightly-regarded in baseball. The Shamrocks, 24-8 overall, are hoping to win their first regional championship since 1989 when they advanced to the semifinal round of the state tournament before losing to Milford, 2-1.

PREVIEW

The Shamrocks have a 3.8 earned run average, which is much higher than last year's 2.5, but they are hitting .303 as a team.

Salter said he'll use senior right-hander Justin Stankewicz, the Shamrocks' ace most of the year, in the semifinal.

Junior right-hander Chris Karney, who is 3-0 with a 1.69 ERA, would likely start the championship, Salter said, and freshman left-hander Kevin Thomas would also be available. Karney pitched five innings in relief of Thomas in Saturday's 9-4 district championship victory over host Garden City.

Stankewicz, a control pitcher, has a 6-4 record and a 3.84 ERA. Karney and Thomas throw harder, however, and have gotten increased consideration in big games.

Stankewicz leads CC with 69 strikeouts in 62 innings pitched. Thomas has the best strikeout to inning ratio, with 68 strikeouts in 35 innings. He's also more likely to walk batters — with 35.

"He wants to strike out 21 batters a game," Salter said. "He's got to realize there are good hitters, too. We're working on his poise."

The catalysts of the CC offense are leadoff batter Greg Rogers (38-87, .437 average) and second batter Chris Misiak (22-83, .265). Rogers also has been walked 31 times to push his on-base percentage to .590, while Misiak has received 30 free passes.

Behind them are the reliable trio of Mike Daguanno (.419 average, 33 RBI), cleanup hitter Garet Burch (.337, 20 RBI) and fifth batter Marty Wilk (.375, 13 RBI).

Wilk, who plays third base or outfield when not pitching, pulled a hamstring in last week's district, but he's practiced this week, Salter said.

Misiak, the CC shortstop, also has been giving the Shamrocks steady defense. He has four errors this season, including two in the season opening double-header against Redford Union.

Marsella on target in Caesars' victory over Michigan Honig's

Mike Marsella (Plymouth Salem/Henry Ford Community College) pitched a five-hitter to lead Livonia Little Caesars to a 2-0 victory over Michigan Honig in the first game of a double-header Sunday at Ford Field.

Caesars, which was rained out of a game played on Friday at Ford Field, lost the second game, 12-3. The split leaves Little Caesars at 2-2 in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Marsella struck out three.

COLLEGIATE

Kevin Foley (Westland) led Caesars attack with two hits. Chris Champanois (Henry Ford) and Jay Herrington (Bowling Green State University) had one RBI each.

In the second game, Jason Carter (Livonia Churchill/Madonna University) suffered the loss in 2⅓ innings of work.

Eric Christenson had two of the five Caesars hits and had one RBI. J.R. Taylor (Henry Ford) and Craig Sowers (Siena Heights) had one RBI each.

■ DECISION CONSULTANTS 10, HONIG 0: Decision Consultants improved to 2-0 with Friday's five-inning win over Honig at Ford Field.

Craig Petersen (Madonna) went 3-for-3, including a bases-loaded double, with five RBI. Aaron Jones (Madonna) had a two-run triple.

Cougars like chances

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

■ SOFTBALL

Garden City girls softball coach Barry Patterson knows a lot about Southgate Anderson and Lincoln Park, the teams the Cougars could meet in Saturday's regional final at Monroe High School.

And here's something else he knows: The Cougars won't play either of their Mega Conference Red Division opponents unless they beat Detroit Murray Wright in the 9:30 a.m. regional semifinal. The championship is scheduled for about 2 p.m.

Patterson admits to not knowing much about the Pilots, except that they play in the Detroit Public School League.

"No one I know has played them," he said.

Should the Cougars beat Murray Wright as expected, they could have a mental edge against Anderson.

Garden City won both regular-season meetings against the Titans, within a one-week span in May.

Patterson said Anderson center fielder Joann Belog, an all-state candidate, has returned to the lineup after missing the games against Garden City with a broken finger.

The Titans defeated Monroe 6-0 in a district final and the weekend before that made an impressive showing at the Novi Tournament, losing in the final to Hartland, 2-1.

The Cougars' No. 1 pitcher is sophomore Angie Hudson, but Patterson said he plans on saving her for the championship game. Junior Jenny Woody will get the call in the first game because Patterson doesn't want to have Hudson tired if the Cougars reach the championship.

"Angie hasn't thrown two games back to back all year," Patterson said.

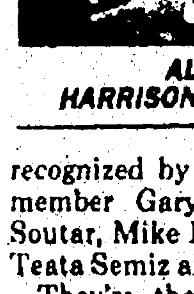
The Cougars, 24-8 overall, have a small, but important senior class: all-state candidate Vonne Jenks, Mandee Horosko, Christina Bako and Sally Peplinski.

The Cougars stayed in the race for the Red Division championship the entire season before taking second place behind Monroe with a 10-3 record. A regional championship would make up for being the runnerup in the Red, Patterson said.

"I was hoping for 7-7 and we went 10-3," Patterson said. "I'm ecstatic the way the season has gone and thrilled for the seniors. I don't expect it to end Saturday, but I would be satisfied with our record if it did. I don't think our attitude and our play can be any better than it is right now."

Seniors take on new life on tour

TEN-PIN ALLEY



AL HARRISON

Old folks can have fun, too.

Of course, when your think of pro bowling there's the 'Senior' PBA tour, and a lot of exciting competition always takes place at this level.

Who are these seniors? Many of the names are recognized by older fans who remember Gary Dickinson, Dave Soutar, Mike Berlin, Dick Weber, Teata Semiz and Dave Davis.

They're the ones who gained fame in the '60s and '70s while still in their prime. Then along came another generation of bowlers who had to wait for retirement in order to enter the arena.

They included local ace Gene Stus, John Handegard, Mike Samardzija of Farmington Hills, and Richard Beattie. Each worked for living at regular jobs and had to wait for their 'golden years' before becoming professional bowlers.

Many of the top senior touring pros were in this area last week for the Pro Senior Tour at 300 Bowl in Pontiac. There were 192 entrants including, Observerland combatants Bill Haines of Rochester Hills, Terrell Smith of Redford, Ray Randall and Rudy Pittaway from Canton, Terry O'Neill and Al Stroud of Southfield, Fred Vitali, Robert Trent and Jack Treolar from Farmington Hills, Larry Angott of Orchard Lake, Thomas Spada of Birmingham, Oliver Mabry of West Bloomfield, John Staricha from Livonia and Mike Calloway of Troy.

After the field was narrowed to the 24 match play contestants, things heated up to make the final five. Don Helling built a commanding lead, but there was hot competition for the final four spots.

Stus appeared to have a lock on one of the positions, however a 'mere' 191 in his final game was enough to let Mike Berlin scoot past.

In each of the step-ladder finals, the game was not decided until the final frame. Berlin prevailed over the entire field, finally taking the last match 206-204 over Helling for the title and $7,500 in prize money.

Many of the spectators agreed that Mike Berlin had 'nine lives' on that day. Next year, the 300 Bowl tour stop might be a national event, rather than regional.

Did you ever bowl a 700 series?

How about 711, to be exact? This fall, it will be possible to earn a special prize from the participating 7-Eleven store in your neighborhood.

Bowling centers will issue a certificate worth $10 in merchandise redeemable at 7-Eleven for any league bowler who runs up a three-game total of 711.

This very high total might seem to eliminate most bowlers. Not so — the magic number will be 'boxed.' Therefore, anyone who has a one-game score of 171 or 117 in league play will also receive a coupon for a lesser amount of free merchandise.

All winning scorers will be invited to bowl in-house for a free trip for two to Las Vegas. There will be a nominal charge to enter this event; each in-house winner will be eligible to bowl in a final event for a grand prize, yet to be determined.

This program is available only for sanctioned league bowlers in participating bowling centers. Details are still being worked out, but probable dates are from Oct. 1 through Dec. 17.

Some 7-Eleven stores will offer free bowling coupons to all customers in August — a great time to start practicing for those 711, 171 and 117 scores.

Government sites easy to find, use for O&E Onliners

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Because the U.S. Defense Department played a major role in developing the Internet we should expect to find a lot of government information on the Net. And we can.

In fact, there's more about government than any single person could ever hope to explore. But when you want it, it's there for the asking — via Telnet, Gopher, the Web, and File Transfer Protocol (FTP) for legislation.

One beginning point for O&E Onliners is to go to the Internet menu and select Gopher. System operator Greg Day has listed some very useful government sites and made it very easy to use. Start burrowing. But not all of my readers are O&E Onliners, yet, so let's continue. At most Gopher sites look for "Government Information Resources" as a key menu item. On Greg's Gopher list is the census bureau which also can be accessed on the Web at http://www.census.gov/index.html.

Those with a Web browser will want to go to the Library of Congress by pointing to http://lcweb.loc.gov/homepage/lchp.html or to http://thomas.loc.gov. The Library of Congress' Web Page provides access to Congressional bills and the Congressional Record and contains some very nice historical exhibit halls.

There are a couple of nearly one-stop sites, although for government information this probably isn't possible. One is FedWorld, a network of access points to several (an understatement) government agencies, departments, and information points. Telnet to FedWorld by typing "open fedworld.gov:23" at the Telnet prompt or use your Web browser to point to http://www.fedworld.gov. Another very useful and lengthy list of government resources has been put together by Pat Casey, Associated Press reporter in Oklahoma. I included a link to his page at my home page which you can access at http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)emoryd.

Another useful site is Government Printing Office Access which contains Congressional bills, the Federal Register, Congressional Record, and Govern-

Carved in stone

Since ancient times, people have immortalized meaningful messages by inscribing pictures and words in stone. English Gardens at 6370 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield (call (810) 851-7506) features stones, naturally shaped by erosion, that are inscribed with words and phrases that evoke moods and meanings about life, nature and time.

Riverstones by Stoneworks Gallery are meticulously inscribed with sentiments, phrases and personalized messages so the letters cast dramatic shadows on the surfaces. In addition to the pre-scribed messages, Stoneworks Gallery encourages people to develop their own inspirational statements. The company's only requirement is that all personalized messages be positive.

Riverstones are made from granite, sandstone, schist, gneiss, basalt or bluestone and other natural materials. Unlike perishable cast stone, concrete and ceramic, these types of stone have been around for millennia and will continue to withstand the test of time.

English Gardens' Riverstones range in price from $69.98 to $99.98 for large stones and $54.98 for medium-sized stones. Riverstones can be specially ordered through English Gardens in sizes ranging from two-pound pebbles to 300-pound boulders.

In stone: Riverstones at English Gardens in West Bloomfield are stones naturally shaped by erosion that are inscribed with words and phrases. ("Flowers and Song" is the Aztec metaphor for poetry.)

Artist Rockwell lands on different cover

One of the most popular illustrators ever, Norman Rockwell created whimsical covers for the Saturday Evening Post that embodied the meaning of hearth and home for many readers. To salute this American treasure on the 100th anniversary of Rockwell's birth, Carole Fabrics was chosen to exclusively license custom bed and window coverings and cut yardage for this new collection.

Rockwell cover: The new Saturday Evening Post/Norman Rockwell Home Furnishings Collection features custom bed and window coverings and cut yardage exclusively licensed by Carole Fabrics. On the bedspread shown here, "Stockbridge Quilt," a commemorative fabric, depicts against a quiltlike background the buildings of the Massachusetts town Rockwell called home for the last 25 years of his life. The pillows and shams feature a coordinating print.

The Saturday Evening Post/Norman Rockwell Home Furnishings Collection features eight theme fabrics inspired by the artist's magazine covers, including "Doctor and Doll" (with doctor placing a stethoscope on a frightened little girl's doll), "Triple Self-Portrait" (Rockwell at the easel, painting himself from his image in the mirror) and "Important Business" (a golfer heading out from the office to the course). A special commemorative pattern features the charming houses of his adopted hometown, Stockbridge, Mass.

Each pattern is complemented by fabrics that mirror the motif with coordinating prints, stripes, plaids and solids, for a total 40 fabrics in multiple colors. Retail pricing ranges from $16.75 to $79.95 per yard.

Carole Fabrics, a Hunter Douglas company, is the nation's leading manufacturer of custom window and bed coverings and fashion accessories, which are distributed nationally through specialty stores, department and furniture stores and interior designers. For more information about the Rockwell collection, call Carole Fabrics at (800) CAROLE-2.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

How illuminating, lighting gets better

NAOMI STONE LEVY

The Bible says, "Let there be light — and there was light." Thomas Edison improved on that, if possible. Wonders never cease!

In a home situation we should have the soft glow of general lighting after dusk. We also must provide excellent reading light wherever required. How to fulfill these challenges is vital to everyone's well-being.

There have been so many improvements on the improvements it is difficult to encompass all of them in one session. I took a refresher tour of a Michigan Chandelier showroom to acquaint myself with many of the NEWER light sources, and there are a vast number of these. When President Bush worked with the Energy Conservation Act he did all of us a service. Many of the former incandescent bulb sizes were discontinued, to our betterment. We all save money on the replacement wattages, what a joy.

Powerful source

The name "Halogen" will soon become a household word. It is a tiny but powerful light source. The use of a dimmer and/or transformer make them ever more versatile, bright when required, muted and luminous when desired. I suggest you, too, should browse through a lighting fixture shop and become acquainted, ask cogent questions. It will brighten your future!

There are some handsome Halogen contemporary drop fixtures that could hang over your dining or breakfast table, adding to the decor. There are also stunning over-sink lights for the bathroom. We have seen the strips of bulbs ad infinitum, and it would be fun to replace those.

Lighting with lamps could be a chap-

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

1995 is a year with many anniversaries. For instance, 10 years ago The Eccentric selected its first Academic All-Star team; 50 years ago Franklin D. Roosevelt died; 100 years ago people paid for the first time to see a motion picture; 130 years ago the Civil War ended. Now, what am I leading up to?

It is also the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II AND of the Peace Rose. In 1939 Francis Meilland, a French nurseryman, discovered that he had produced a beautiful rose with much promise. To preserve the rose from the ravages of the war, he sent cuttings to growers in Germany, Italy and the United States. The package intended for grower Robert Pyle of Pennsylvania was luckily carried aboard the last plane to leave Lyons before France was occupied by Nazi forces in 1940.

Four years later Pyle wrote to Meilland, "Whilst dictating this letter my eyes are fixed in fascinated admiration on a glorious rose, its pale gold, cream and ivory petals blended to a lightly ruffled edge of delicate carmine . . . I am convinced it will be the greatest rose of the century."

In 1945 it was officially christened Peace at the Pacific Rose Society's spring show; then on V-E Day, May 8, 1945, at the first United Nations conference in San Francisco, each of the 49 UN delegates was presented with Peace; Aug. 15 of that same year Peace received the All-America Rose Selections award of honor, the highest distinction in the U.S. rose industry. This rose is still one of the most popular roses.

This year AARS honors the vision of a better world by donating Peace Gardens at the site of the original UN Conference, the War Memorial in San Francisco, and the UN in New York. They should be in full bloom this spring. It would certainly be a moving experience to visit one of these gardens this year.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Spring is the time to check refrigerator

JOE GAGNON

It is that time of year when the appliance industry begins to get busy, especially the service industry.

Freezers and refrigerators start their over-time hours, air conditioners and dehumidifiers start to sweat, stoves can't take the heat, garbage disposers sink, microwaves blow a fuse, dishwashers leave a streak and washers and dryers think they're in a laundromat.

These are the products you want to think about at this time of year. These are also the products that I would ask you to write me about anytime you have a question.

Several years ago I wrote a five page booklet on the care and maintenance of your refrigerator.

Millions of service calls are performed on refrigerators each year beginning now and through the summer. The biggest reason for this onslaught of service work is because consumers fail or don't know they have to clean the refrigerator condenser. The condenser is the bunch of black tubing that is located on the back of the product but usually underneath it.

Compare it to the radiator on the automobile which is used to get rid of the heat from the engine. In the cold winter months, many times we will see the school bus with a piece of cardboard covering the radiator. It won't overheat while it is relatively cold, but as soon as the temperature starts to climb, off comes the cardboard. If they didn't do this, the engine would overheat, the water in the radiator would boil and it could cause the engine to possibly seize up. This analogy is described this way so you can understand that the same thing can happen to your refrigerator in your home. It certainly happens to many millions of consumers across this country.

A dirty condenser can increase your electricity billing by as much as $10 a month. It can cause the compressor to

You TV viewers now have a fourth choice

BY BARRY JENSEN
STAFF WRITER

When you want to watch TV, now you have a fourth choice. It's called DSS, for digital satellite system, and it uses an 18-inch dish antenna. The three more common ways to receive television programming are:

- Local broadcast channels, such as 2, 4, 7, 9, 20, 37, 50, 62 and anything else you can pull in.
- Cable channels — provided through your local cable company.
- Satellite service that uses a big dish antenna outside.

The newest choice — offered by RCA — pulls in signals directly from satellites with a small outside antenna. In many ways DSS is similar to the satellite service that works with the bit outside antenna.

DSS's main competition for your entertainment dollar is the local cable system. Among cable's advantages: local origination channels such as school, library, city. Another is that cable broadcasters must carry the bit broadcast stations.

The biggest advantage of the RCA system over any previous satellite TV system is the small size of the dish antenna. You can put the 18-inch dish wherever it has a good view of the southern sky. You can mount it on the roof, on a chimney or on a free-standing pole or even from an apartment balcony — if the landlord says OK in writing.

Another advantage of any satellite TV system is that you can select (and pay for) just the services you want. If you want AMC but not TNN, you don't have to pay for TNN.

And you can get programs that are available but your local cable system does not carry. For example, relatively few cable systems in the Detroit area offer The History Channel, ESPN II or The Comedy Channel.

The disadvantage to satellite TV systems is that the dish antenna will not bring in local channels. You have to have a separate antenna.

Another is that only your cable system broadcasts local channels such as library, school, city, locally produced programming. You can't get these from satellite.

Another satellite TV disadvantage is that service for your equipment may be hard to come by. Again, RCA will be happy to sell you a service contract for the hardware.

But if the signal is bad, you can't file a complaint with the local government, as you can with a cable system.

Unusual, eclectic clock blends old, new world

NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear Nancy and Frank:

Please tell me what you can about this clock.

Jay,
Novi

Dear Jay:

You have a late 19th century Victorian mantel clock. It has American works from the Ansonia Clock Co. in New York and a German handpainted porcelain case. The marks on the back of the case indicate that it was made by Franz Anton Mehlem Earthenware Factory in Bonn, Germany, which operated between 1836 and 1920. Unlike human relationships where marriages are expected to make a better whole from the parts, marriages in antiques and objets d'art aren't expected to produce the same results and are usually frowned upon, to say the least. However, in some cases such as your clock, mariages of the interior and exterior parts from different countries were common. In good condition, we would place a retail value on your clock of $300 to $400.

Nurture friendships with garden party

RUTH MOSSACK JOHNSTON

Early June is the perfect time for a fun, impromptu luncheon for serious and would-be gardeners alike. The party theme? How does your garden grow.

Luncheon tables set with white organza tablecloths, flowered paper luncheon-sized serviettes with napkin rings made from flexible branches (bent, twisted and tied around the serviettes). Watering cans as vases filled a Technicolor palette of fresh flowers, peppered with tall twigs showcasing glue-gunned 1995 assorted seed packets (providing ideal party favors for guests to take home).

Make sure there are enough packets for the guests to receive two or three different types of seeds. If you have time — paint the watering cans with a base coat of bright color and a spray of herbs and flowers.

Mineral water placed in goblets with fresh slices of lime afloat — sprigs of watercress adorning the bread plates and butter seasoned with fresh herbs.

For lunch, serve Cardamom Spinach Muffins, Grilled Skewers of Small New Michigan potatoes, Fennel and Mushrooms, a deep green leafy salad of mixed greens with a fruity vinaigrette, and for dessert, something deliciously Rhubarb!

If your guests are hearty eaters, you may want to serve a first course of soup — a chicken-base puree of asparagus would do the trick!

Place an array of gardening books and seed catalogs around the room to view and discuss after lunch — your local library or book stores will have a stockpile of related-topic books this time of year. Seed catalogs are available from local nurseries or by mail order.

In late summer, follow-up this party with the same group of friends — have

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Flowers make good pick for subjects

MONTE NAGLER

One of the most abundant, beautiful and colorful subjects for your springtime and summertime camera is flowers. So plentiful are they that the choices of presenting them photographically are numerous indeed.

You might, for example, select the closeup shot revealing the innermost heart of the flower, the delicate texture of the stamen, minute drops of moisture, or a single petal that becomes a picture in itself. Or you may prefer to show the character of a single whole flower, or a grouping, or even an entire field of flowers.

The best time to photograph flowers is in the morning when they are freshest. Hot, afternoon sun may cause flowers to look limp and wilted. Diffused sunlight from either behind or the side is best. It will give your flower intimate texture and full color saturation. Fill-in flash can also add extra sparkle.

To fill the viewfinder with a single flower or part of a blossom, you'll need closeup equipment such as closeup filters, extention tubes or a macro lens. All work well and will give you pleasing results.

Because you'll often need a small aperture to maximize depth-of-field, a tripod and a cable release are a must to keep your camera steady during the long shutter speeds you'll require.

As always, watch your backgrounds! A distracting or "busy" background can ruin a picture. So be sure to check yours after composing your shot. Look over the entire viewfinder and use your camera's depth-of-field preview to check out the background. You'll often want it as a soft, non-distracting blur in your picture.

Better still, carry a small piece of black posterboard or cloth in your camera bag and place it behind the flowers. The background will go totally black,

COVER STORY

Home improvement

Little things: New wallpaper and wood mouldings can make a world of difference in brightening a room.

On the cover

A minimum of changes turned an office into a well-lit, formal dining room in Cindy Drager's home.

On a shoestring: Cindy Drager turned her small, dark fixer-upper into a spacious looking, light and airy abode by painting knotty pine paneling above her fireplace in a warming eggshell color.

BY LORNA ANN CRIMMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Thinking about revamping your living space but a tight budget is preventing the makeover? Cindy Drager and her small Plymouth home, built in 1929, are living proof of what a little paint and a whole lot of perspiration can do to spruce up a house.

Drager did most of the house's renovation work herself, painting and puttying on weekends and weekday evenings after work. The only project for which she hired a contractor was to knock out a wall for the addition of a shower in the bathroom. After scraping and removing three layers of wallpaper, patching holes in the walls, tearing out the old brown and gray carpeting to reveal beautiful oak flooring then adding gallons of paint and sweat equally, today Drager's 1,400-square foot house is like a spread out of House Beautiful magazine.

"I didn't want to do a major renovation. I took the character of the home and simply spruced it up," said Drager, a corporate administrator for Sunshine Accura in Farmington Hills.

The 55-year-old Drager applied the colors of eggshell and lilac to tired walls throughout the house. Ugly rubber molding in the formal dining room, which used to be an office, was replaced with wide oak trim. The most important point is that all this was done on a shoe string budget. There are plenty of ideas for do-it-yourselfers here. Drager makes it look easy.

Have an old coat closet just hanging around? Drager took one in the hallway leading to the bedrooms that had long outlived its usefulness and turned it into a linen closet.

In the master bedroom lilac is the dominating color, but ingenuity is what sets this room apart. Bordering the ceiling, not the walls, is a floral wallpaper sporting _ what else? _ lilacs. The combination of color and innovative application of paper lilacs imparts a cozy garden-like feel to the space.

"I always wanted a Victorian bedroom. People thought I was crazy when I used the wallpaper to border the ceiling instead of the upper portion of the wall, but I like lying in bed and looking up at it," said Drager, who for the last 20 years has helped family and friends brighten up their houses and offices.

Now she is starting "Spruce It Up," a consulting firm to help others do the same.

Creative thinking is key to freeing space instead of building an addition, says Drager. In the hallway where the bathroom is, she removed a door and cabinet to build a shower. The estimated cost to build an addition including the shower ran $3,000. Instead the unneeded doorway to the attic (moved to another location at the rear of the house) and a cabinet were transformed into space for the shower. A contractor did the work for about $1,000.

Drager chipped away the old black and white tiles in the bathroom herself. Wainscotting on the lower portion of the walls in the bathroom was installed in its place then painted white. The remaining upper portions were ragged in eggshell and lilac paint.

"It's the little things you do that make a big difference. The colors in the bathroom tie the house all together."

Like the wide oak molding in the formal dining room, which was simply wiped down then covered with a clear urethane finish by Drager.

Want to brighten up the aging cabinetry in your kitchen but the cost for new cabinets is out of the question on your budget? Drager chose to keep her knotty pine wood, painting it white. Purists who say never cover wood with paint might not take to the idea, but it worked for Drager. Black wrought-iron hinges and handles provide a snazzy contrast to the white clean-looking cabinets.

Born and raised in Virginia, Drager values her well-bred East Coast roots. The back garden where nothing but grass used to grow now touts irises from an aunt as well as other plants from friends and relatives. The addition of an octagon-shaped porch provides a place to enjoy the fruits of her labor.

"I wanted to keep it heirloom," Drager said. And she did. Drager left her signature on this living space.

these plants are always welcome. I have gone through my rose file and will share some of my findings, although I haven't tried them all.

When planting, the union or graft area should be planted two to three inches below the ground surface; if a rose needs to be transplanted, do so in the fall. Blackspot can be controlled with a solution of one tablespoon soda thoroughly dissolved in one gallon of water. Spray every three to four days. Use banana peels as a fertilizer — it's high in potash — each month (except when the weather is very hot — then don't fertilize at all). Mash them into the soil around the rose bush and cover them lightly with soil.

Remove roses at the end of the stem, not back to the first five-leaflet bud — the plant will perform better with as many leaves as possible left on it. Keep the beds around roses scrupulously clean. Roses like to be planted with members of the onion (allium) family, including the ornamental ones. Rue, lambs-ears, thyme, French tarragon and sage are also suitable companion plants.

Stick summer rose cuttings about halfway into a 1¼-inch block of Oasis foam, set on a tray. Keep cubes wet and place in a shaded spot. Pot them when roots come out of the cubes (about four to six weeks). Terminal cuttings can be taken after rose petals fall, dipped in a hormone product then inserted in a slit in a potato after the eyes have been cut out. The potato will assure moisture around the cutting in the beginning (this from Alice Burlingame).

Books and business

"The Natural Rose Gardener," Lance Walheim ($17.95, Ironwood Press), will take you through the steps to achieve beautiful roses with little less care than is usually supposed. It examines the idea that chemical controls may not always be the best. Horticultural information is clear and to the point and is accompanied by excellent line drawings. Sidebars give at-a-glance information, from pegging a rose to natural garden tips and information about roses in containers.

"The Graham Stuart Thomas Rose Book" ($39.95, Timber Press) is a compilation of three of his other books about roses. It is divided into parts for specific roses, for example Old Shrub, Species and Modern Shrub, and Climbing, and devotes one section to caring for these beloved plants. The descriptions and photographs are exceptional, as one would expect from an author such as Thomas; a must-have for rosarians. This volume is revised and updated to provide the best possible information available.

Many of you know of the quality roses and excellent service you received when you bought your roses from Schaefer Greenhouse "Garden Roses from the Past and Present." You can again find this same service from the new venture, Recaptured Roses by Nancy, in Troy. If you haven't received her 1995 catalog, call (810) 879-2744 or fax (810) 828-2970. It includes discount coupons.

Next August I will tell you about a brand-new rose and how to put your plants to bed for the winter.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- Prune roses as leaves are emerging — remove dead wood and old, woody canes.
- Don't prune climbers for two to three seasons after planting.
- Ah-ah-ah, don't touch bulb foliage — wait until it yellows before cutting it off. Bulbs need the foliage to provide food.
- Now is the time to plant summer-flowering bulbs such as dahlias, gladioli, lilies, freesia and tuberous begonias.
- Take a two- to four-inch cutting from terminal growth of trees, shrubs or perennials to increase your supply.

NATURE

Dandelions glow bright as rockets

TIM NOWICKI

Golden dandelions may be the scourge of the lawn ranger, but upon close examination they are a beautiful flower. In large dense patches their golden color is as bright as the fields of yellow rocket. Even when the flower has developed to a white seedhead it still shows a golden color.

The golden color associated with the seedhead of the dandelion comes from the goldfinch. By now the male American goldfinch has molted from its dull olive green winter plumage into its bright breeding plumage. Males are a brilliant golden yellow with black wings and a black cap.

As I pass by areas of white-topped dandelions I sometimes cause goldfinch to fly away. I've disturbed them from feeding on seeds of these prodigious plants. At times they bounce off the ground a few inches and stab at the seeds attached to those delicate white parachutes. Other times they flutter and hover as they pick seeds from their anchor in the middle of the sphere.

The most efficient technique I've observed is when they sidle next to the base of the dandelion stem and then flutter to try and grab hold of the stem with their feet. The farther up the stem they try to grab, the more likely the stem will bend due to their weight. If they grab hold of the stem with their feet near the cottony transparent seedhead they can ride it down to the ground.

Once on the ground they can pluck the seeds from the top without having to expend very much energy. This general procedure is also used by a sparrow, much larger than the goldfinch, known as the Harris' sparrow. While watching these birds on migration in North Dakota several years ago, I saw them feed on dandelion seeds. But their larger size allowed them to walk the length of the stem and cause the seedhead to bend down to the ground. With their feet holding the stem near the seedhead, they, too, were able to feed leisurely on the seeds of the dandelion as it rested on the ground.

Goldfinch will start nesting in several weeks, but until then they will be keeping healthy eating seeds of plants like the dandelion — the plant some people love to hate. But if you like goldfinch, maybe you could see more of them if you had more dandelions nearby!

Here are some ideas how using ceiling fans

The Associated Press (c). All rights reserved.
By Popular Mechanics
for AP Special Projects

Q: We have a two-story contemporary home with a ceiling fan downstairs in the living room and another upstairs in the loft area. In the summer, we open the windows in the loft above the fan and run both fans so they blow air up and out the windows. In the winter, we run the fans down so they blow the warm air from the second floor down to the first floor. Recently I was told this is not the correct way to use the fans. Is it?

A: A ceiling fan is not intended to be used as a whole-house fan which is how you are using it during the summer. Whole-house fans are very effective, and if that's what you want, you should use a fan that is designed for that purpose.

Ceiling fans are designed to circulate air in a "closed" environment and should force air down during the summer. The downward airflow cools your skin as it moves over it. During the winter months, the fan should rotate so it produces an upward airflow.

During the winter, heated air rises toward the ceiling, and the cooled air settles toward the floor. Depending on the room size and shape, there could be a 15-degree difference between the floor andceiling. Intuitively, people want the fan to pull warmer ceiling air down during the winter and vice versa during the summer.

The fan speed should be fast enough to break up stagnant air trapped in the corners and in the peaks of sloped and cathedral ceilings, but slow enough so it doesn't create a draft.

An easy way to determine whether the fan airflow is up or down is to look at the fan blades as they rotate. The blades are installed on a slight angle. If the leading edge of the blade (the edge facing the direction of rotation) is up, the airflow will be down. And when the leading edge is down, the airflow will be up.

Q: The outside of my home is covered with wood-grain aluminum siding. In a few areas, the bottom edges of the siding have developed a white chalklike substance. What is it, can I prevent it from spreading, and how do I remove it??

A: The chalky substance is a layer of dead paint pigments along the bottom edges of the siding. It is not aluminum corrosion. Over time, the siding's paint weathers, developing a dead pigment layer on the surface. Particles of dead paint are washed off by rain and accumulate along the siding's bottom edges.

Wash the siding periodically with a solution of one-third cup detergent, two-thirds cup tri-phosphate (such as Soilax), 1 quart Clorox and 3 quarts of warm water.

operate so hot that it will stop dead in its tracks. This means a new refrigerator or replacement of the compressor which costs in the area of $400. When the condenser is dirty it can cause the fan motor to overheat and there goes another hundred dollars or so for repairs.

Here is how you can do this job yourself. 1. Your hardware store sells a long handle refrigerator condenser brush. 2. Pull the electrical plug on the refrigerator or turn the control to the off position. Remove the kick panel at the bottom and using the vacuum cleaner creavice tool and the brush, insert them into, over, and under the black tubing that you will see there. Don't be too forceful and jam the fan blade located in the rear of the condenser.

If you haven't cleaned it in years I suggest you pull the product away from the wall and do the same thing from the rear of the product. There will be a small cardboard cover you will have to remove, please make sure you put it back on when you're done. While you're in that territory, you should also gently clean off the blade on the fan nnotor. It gets heavy with dirt and the motor can't take the strain. Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor" available at area bookstores.

■ A dirty condenser can increase your electricity billing by as much as $10 a month. It can cause the compressor to operate so hot that it will stop dead in its tracks. This means a new refrigerator or replacement of the compressor which costs in the area of $400.

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

"The Edge of the Crazies," by Jamie Harrison (321 pp., $20.95, Hyperion).

I liked this book. I liked this book a lot. Read this book.

A mystery novel, it starts with a bang. It ends in a neat conclusion, with all loose pieces put together and accounted for. In between, Jamie Harrison (the daughter of Michigan writer, Jim Harrison) has created a page-turning debut novel that reads as fast as a speeding bullet. Its plot holds just enough filigreed twists to fascinate mystery fans. Maybe best of all, its characters are not your stereotypical, Raymond Chandler leftovers that so often populate contemporary American mystery fiction. And every thing is sparked by Harrison's subtle, off-the-wall sense of comedy, plus her flawless instincts about where and when to work it into this rather bloody story.

What really sets this book apart, though, is Harrison's remarkable gift for creating a fictional milieu so and vivid you can just about smell the murky air in the Blue Bat bar, main watering hole in the little town of Blue Deer, Montana, here at the edge of the Crazy Mountains. You can just about taste the "ragged, sour-cream-laden beef" piled up on the hero's plate, just about feel the hangover headaches, just about hear the chatter of the magpies, just about catch the glint of the cottonwood leaves in the sunshine.

As the story opens, it is Sunday morning in Blue Deer. As is usual for a Sunday morning in this hard-drinking place, the town is quiet, since most of its inhabitants are in bed with a collective hangover headache, needing a day of rest.

It is the first of May, and Rimbaud has been dead a long time, but a season in hell is about to begin.

George Blackwater, Montana-based screenwriter, is not asleep. Though he's played his part in the Saturday night carousing, George sometimes has trouble sleeping. And besides that, he doesn't even seem to know what day it resulting in greater impact in your finished shot. The poster can also act as a windbreaker to stop swaying flowers on a brisk day.

Try some innovative techniques, too. Shoot a group of flowers, focusing on only one so that the rest become complementary blurs of color. Or move in close and focus on only the stamen, allowing the petals to be out-of-focus blurs. Also, try sprinkling the flowers with droplets of water to give them a fresh, natural look.

In addition to flowers around your home or in the "wild," a local greenhouse will provide excellent picture possibilities. So also will the botanical gardens at Belle Isle and the University of Michigan gardens in Dixboro.

■ The best time to photograph flowers is in the morning when they are freshest. Hot, afternoon sun may cause flowers to look limp and wilted. Diffused sunlight from either behind or the side is best.

ter all by itself. In our early past, candles were the only illumination. That was succeeded with kerosene hurricane lanterns. Now we have a boundless selection. I do have an objection to this unending choice of table lamps. They all begin to look alike, no individuality. All the brass bases, even of fine quality, or reproduction Chinese porcelains never appeal to me. I love to create my own individual and special lamp. I search long and diligently for wonderful pieces of antique bronze, brass, glass, pewter, pottery or porcelain, each one unusual, no duplicates in a neighbor's home.

Take it to a lamp mounting shop such as Lamp Shack on Orchard Lake Road. The owner/technician will help you select a mounting base, whether it be one inch high of brass, wood or painted lacquer, and equip it with a three-way socket for three levels of power. The owner/technician will also fit your treasure with an appropriate shade. There are excellent choices: linen, silk, parchment and black or white lacquer, among many. Keep the shade simple, don't compete with or detract from your special base.

Scale

Remember "scale"? I have spoken of it many times. It is as pertinent to lamps as it is to other facets of decor. A lamp should never overpower the table on which it stands. Likewise if it is too small it will look inadequate. Your eye will tell you when you are correct.

Floor lamps and floor reflectors are frequently of great value, especially because they add immeasurably to the illumination of a room, and can be tucked into areas where needed.

An older method of providing needed light has been revisited, and refined, namely wall sconces. To install these you may require the services of an electrician in an older construction. If they are to be in a new addition, or a new home, there is no problem. You can eliminate ceiling fixtures, which I favor. There are marvelous contemporary versions, as well as the typical traditional candle sconce. If you fit these with tiny shades it will add to the charm.

For a bedroom there are wall-mounted swivel arm lamps in either chrome or brass. These rotate into an ideal position for reading in bed, and can provide three levels of power. Happily, the entire nightstand top becomes available for books, papers, picture frames and all manner of bibelot.

The ubiquitous Hi-hat has been a part of the scene for many years, as has the strip light. They both furnish innocuous but tremendous illumination. To these one may use surface mounted "Cans" in a number of finishes, and help achieve a contemporary aura.

Naomi Stone Levy, a Franklin resident, is an interior designer and a former secretary of the American Society of Interior Designers. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1897. Her fax number is (810) 644-1314.

is. Or maybe it's just that he hasn't thought about it. George has several problems, not the least of which is a brain as steeped in alcohol as an old fruitcake.

Pretty soon, he has more problems. As he sits down to hack out new movie material, somebody drills his computer screen with a high-powered rifle. Then they drill George. Twice.

Before the dust settles in this 1990's showdown, Sheriff Jules Clement — a University of Michigan alum — has to deal with (among other things) two murders, a suicide, abandoned children, a flood, disgruntled lovers, bar fights, bad food, migraines, drunken high school seniors partying on the edge of disaster, plus all the blood, sweat, tears, and other body fluid that generally accompany the grind of daily life.

Along the way, you'll meet George's red-haired, off-putting brother, Ray; George's wife, Mona, as mean as she is obese; Bunny McElwaine, so named because he is the hairiest man in Blue Deer; nice-guy high school principal, John Dribnitz; flaming liberals, Pete and Alice; and Ada Santoz, a shark in Chanel suits, who runs the town newspaper.

Cardamom Spinach Muffins

2 cups all purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon ground cardamom
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon sea salt
½ small onion, chopped fine
10-12 ounces fresh spinach, stems removed, washed thoroughly and chopped fine
1 cup buttermilk
2 tablespoon melted butter
¼ cup light Swiss cheese, grated fine
¼ cup fresh Parmesan cheese, grated fine
1 large egg

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Spray a muffin tin with no-stick cooking spray.

Sift all dry ingredients into a large glass bowl. In a separate bowl, add the onion, spinach, buttermilk, melted butter, half of each cheese, and the whole egg.

Make a well in the dry ingredients, add the liquid/spinach and onion mixture. Stir combining all ingredients.

Carefully spoon the batter into the muffin tins in equal amounts — sprinkle on the remaining cheeses.

Place on the middle shelf of the oven and bake for 25-30 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove the muffins from the oven and and let cool in their tin for approximately 6 minutes — serve. Yield: 12 full-sized muffins

Skewers of Small New Michigan Potatoes, Fennel & Mushrooms

Soak the bamboo skewers overnight to prevent them from catching on fire.

Boil the new potatoes and fennel (amounts will depend on how many you are expecting and how long your skewers are — if the skewers are small, give each guest two), cook until fork tender.

Place the potatoes in a bowl with light olive oil, parsley, marjoram and fennel seeds — lightly toss until well covered.

Cut the bulbs of fennel into quarters, place into a bowl of equal parts — light olive oil and fresh lemon juice.

Brush the mushrooms with light olive oil.

Thread the vegetables onto the skewers, grill on an oiled outdoor grill or on an oven top grill until desired doneness — season with sea salt and fresh black pepper. Serve hot.

Detroit mail boat delivers on lake

JOHN FOXWORTH

Detroit has the only postal mail boat service in the world devoted exclusively to the delivery of mail to and from river vessels under way. It is the Detroit River Post Office station, and it has its own ZIP code: 48222.

During the months when the Detroit River is navigable, a mail boat delivers mail addressed to people on board the passing ships and picks up outgoing mail from them. The mail boat operates out of the River Station at the foot of 24th Street.

Mail being sent from the ships is lowered to the mail boat in a pail fastened to a rope. Deliveries to the ship are made in the same way. The little mail boat will snuggle up to a freighter's side, maintain equal speed with the larger vessel, and the mail is passed in a bucket lowered on a line.

The mail boat, however, isn't owned by the Postal Service. Its services are obtained by government contract with the J.W. Westcott Co. The river mail service began in 1895 with the boat "Florence B." Today's mail boat, the "J.W. Westcott II," is the sixth boat to be used. It was a new craft in 1949 when it replaced the "J.W. Westcott."

More details next week on the 100th anniversary of the Detroit River boat mail service and the special cachet cover being prepared.

Seeing stars

A new "Legends of Hollywood" postage stamp series was launched June 1 when a sheet honoring Marilyn Monroe was issued nationwide. The series will showcase individuals who embody the magic of motion pictures and are appreciated worldwide.

The special design of the sheet includes 20 stamps bordered on the right by a stunning enlargement of the stamp portrait. The closeup portrait is framed above by the heading "Legends of Hollywood" and below by Monroe's distinctive signature.

Marilyn Monroe was born Norma Jean Mortensen on June 1, 1926, in Los Angeles and spent most of her childhood in orphanages and nursing homes. Her nude photograph on a calendar led to her film debut in "Scudda-Hoo! Scudda-Hay!" in 1948. She is best remembered for her classic movies: "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "How to Marry a Millionaire," "The Seven Year Itch" and "Some Like It Hot." She completed 29 films before her death in 1962.

You may buy the Monroe sheet at any post office. Free first day of issue souvenir cancels are available by mail. Buy and affix the new stamp(s) to envelopes addressed to yourself or others, insert a postcard-thick card, tuck in the flap and mail in a larger envelope by July 1 addressed to: Marilyn Monroe Stamp, Chandler Station, 11304 Chandler Blvd., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601-9991.

World view: Jeff Shell of Cushman & Wakefield maps out strategies for helping companies with their real estate needs globally.

Commercial Realtors go global

■ Times change. Manufacturers and retailers look overseas to expand their markets. Commercial real estate firms forge relationships in other countries to serve those needs.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

As more businesses here expand globally, commercial real estate firms with local roots form networks with counterparts in other countries to service clients and expand their business bases.

Cushman & Wakefield established a partnership about three years ago that now includes seven organizations on four continents.

"The beauty of it is a company deals with us locally and we deal with our affiliates around the world," said Jeff Shell, managing director of the Southfield office. "We act as their single point of contact locally and give access all over the world."

The issues can range from finding property for manufacturing or retail expansion to researching real estate costs to getting tax information, Shell said. Same day or next day service is common.

Cushman & Wakefield specifically has worked with Kmart, Ford and Chrysler, Shell said.

"We saw our clients, because of competition, saturation at home, started going to other parts of the world," he said. "We decided that to serve our clients and maintain relationships, we had to go to other parts of the world."

Even large companies with their own real estate divisions would have difficulty competing with real estate networks, Shell maintains.

"It would nearly be impossible for their staffs to have correct, precise information we have with our affiliates. You have to physically be there to know what's going on in a market."

CB Commercial, with an office in Southfield, also belongs to an international network, DTZ, which has offices throughout Europe, the Far East and the Middle East.

CB Commercial also has several affiliations with counterparts in South America and China.

"It has been the globalization of the economy that has clients demanding international services," said Scott Elliott, managing officer of the Southfield office.

He identified clients as the Big Three auto manufacturers, major suppliers, Blockbuster Video and Kmart.

"Services range across the board," Elliott said. "We do site selection, leasing of office and retail space, plant locations. Also, a fair amount of consultation work that would involve a client considering several different countries for a plant.

"Business does come back in this direction, especially in Detroit . . . to supply the auto industry," Elliott said. "And investor action comes this way."

Manufacturing executives and managers nationwide indicated in a recent survey that availability of real estate services is a key element for international expansion, reported Cushman & Wakefield Worldwide.

"After labor, real estate costs are the largest expense on the corporate balance sheet. Successfully managing these costs is critical," Shell said.

Some 300 management types were interviewed by telephone.

The findings:

■ Two-thirds said knowledge of the local real estate market would ultimately impact the viability of international expansion.

■ Manufacturers were twice as likely as service-oriented companies to envision a need to expand internationally.

■ Four out of five respondents said they would find a single, experienced organization with consistent standards providing a broad range of real estate services to companies expanding or setting up overseas to be valuable.

Fifty percent indicated that situation would be extremely or very valuable.

Knowledge, cost savings and time savings were cited as the value of one-stop shopping for international real estate services.

■ Companies at either end of the spectrum _ sales greater than $200 million or less than $100 million _ are more likely than medium-sized companies to see international expansion as a key to future financial success.

Consequently, larger and smaller companies also are more likely to view knowledge of the real estate market as important.

Attorney must provide good customer service

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Our board is divided on whether to keep our present attorney, who we have had for 6-7 years. We hired him because he was recommended by the management company and was, frankly, substantially below the cost of other condominium attorneys However, over the last 6-7 years, he has increased his fees at the rate of $10 per hour each year, which was approximately 50% of his original fee. I suspect that now that he has garnered a sufficient number of condominium associations coming in under market, that he is now raising his rates to a "captive audience." However, because he is so busy, he never returns our phone calls in a timely fashion, and usually delegates our work to someone else in his office who charges the same rate. We just fired the management company that recommended him as they were too large and unresponsive and the attorney strongly objects to it. What should the board do?

A. In the 1990s, it is becoming increasingly more difficult for law firms to raise their hourly rates in proportion to the increased costs of doing business. Some firms have even lowered their rates to become more competitive. In your situation, the marketing plan of the attorney apparently was to obtain, in effect, a captive audience and then raise the hourly rates to achieve a higher return on the attorney's time. That was, of course, a very prudent marketing plan. The attendant problem is whether the attorney can then service the client adequately with relatively limited resources based upon the limited return received by the attorney for his time in the past. A 50% increase in the hourly rates over a 5-6 year period is indeed substantial, but what is even more important is the fact that the association is apparently not getting the benefit of its bargain with the attorney. As in dealing with any other professional, the association deserves to have the very best service it can reasonably obtain for a fair stipend and may wish to evaluate what other attorneys can provide. The board should also be questioning why the attorney was so outspoken, apparently, about the dismissal of the management firm to determine whether in fact that opinion had anything to do with the fact that the management firm had apparently recommended the attorney in the first instance. As previously stated, generally, you get what you pay for.

Mortgage myths scare some away

Potential first-time home buyers are taking themselves out of the mortgage market based on myths about what is needed to buy a house, according to research done for the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

The reality is that an individual can purchase a house with a down payment as low as 3 percent, an income under $30,000 in most regions of the country and a less-than-perfect credit history or no history, the MBA maintains.

To increase awareness of special first-time buyer programs and flexible financing options, Fleet Mortgage has joined with MBA to promote a nationwide education campaign, Buying a Home: It's Easier Than You Think.

The cornerstone of the campaign, a free brochure, Plain and Simple Guide for First Time Home Buyers, answers basic questions in language for someone who is just learning about the mortgage process.

Sections include:
- Getting started.
- Low down on loans.
- Fifteen commonly used mortgage terms.

To obtain the pamphlet or to schedule a personal consultation, contact Fleet Mortgage 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at (313) 462-4041.

"There are many serious misconceptions about the mortgage process that are cheating people out of the financial security provided by home ownership," said Joe Pickett, MBA president.

The association's research has found that consumers believe mortgage lenders don't want to lend money to young people.

"The fact is, mortgage lenders want to help, not hinder the process," Pickett said. "We want to give people a chance to own their own homes."

Bret Hoffman, Fleet's Livonia branch manager, picks up on the theme.

"Do you believe you can't afford your own home? Do you think your current income, credit history or savings account balance will prohibit you from qualifying for a mortgage? If so, you aren't alone," Hoffman said.

"Fleet offers an array of mortgage programs specifically designed for the first-time buyer.

"These programs accommodate applicants who have little cash to close, those who need special consideration regarding their credit history and those who require low monthly payments.

"In fact, monthly mortgage payments frequently are equal to or less than, monthly rent payments," Hoffman said. "All this means that home ownership is attainable. Don't count yourself out."

Fleet Mortgage Corp. and Fleet Real Estate Funding are subsidiaries of Fleet Mortgage Group, a leading originator and servicer of mortgage loans nationwide.

Remerica sell 2 branch offices to associates

Plymouth-based Remerica Real Estate recently announced the sale of two of its branch offices to Remerica associates.

Remerica Main Street in Plymouth was purchased by long-time Remerica associates Gary Jones, Randy Onza and Dick Randazzo. The office will be managed by Randazzo.

Remerica Suburban in Livonia was purchased by Larry Martin and Gordon P. Libby.

Remerica Real Estate President Jim Courtney said the sale of the two offices is part of the company's continued expansion, adding that the two offices will remain part of the Remerica organization.

"When a new associate comes on board at Remerica Real Estate, we offer them more than just the opportunity to make a comfortable living," he said. "We offer them the chance to start a career — maybe even own their own office." Jones said owning the office is the culmination of years of hard work.

'I've always wanted to be in business for myself," he said, "and Remerica gave me that chance."

Remerica Real Estate Hometown office on Five Mile Road in Plymouth was the first office to be sold by the company. It was purchased by John McArdle, Elizabeth Chuba and Tim Haggerty early in March.

Remerica opened 18 offices in the Detroit Metro area — including three offices in the last six months.

High tech lenders give quick OK

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

Friends told Chris and Melissa Carlston, a dual-income couple from Farmington Hills, that applying for a mortgage is the most stressful part of the house-buying experience.

"Everyone told us it's a tedious, nit-picking process, but it was painless," said Chris, a first-time house buyer who will move into a 1913 Colonial-style house near downtown Plymouth next month.

Instead of waiting weeks for mortgage approval, the couple was approved for a one-year adjustable rate mortgage in just minutes via a new, two-way video computer system available through Troy-based Americor Mortgage.

Americor is one of the area's first lenders to offer a quick mortgage — called ZapLoan! — through an automated underwriting system (AUS) devised by Freddie Mac, the public agency that buys mortgages and packages them into securities to resell on the open market.

Americor also has video terminals set up in Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate offices in Birmingham, Troy, Grosse Pointe Woods and Northville, where the Carlstons applied.

ZapLoan! doesn't require all the documents needed for most conventional mortgages. To apply, borrowers need to present just one pay stub, one W-2 form and two bank statements. It takes about 45 minutes to fill out the loan application, which the mortgage representative faxes to an underwriter. After a credit check and video interview between the underwriter and borrower, the loan is approved or denied in about four minutes. In the time it takes to cook a soft-boiled egg, a fixed or adjustable rate loan can be approved for up to $203,150.

Throughout the loan process, applicants sit in front of a computer screen and talk with their mortgage underwriter. If there's a blemish on the credit report, the applicant's right there to explain it away. The Windows-based program allows the underwriter to crunch numbers, compare mortgage rates and show the borrower calculations on the computer monitor.

For the Carlstons, getting a mortgage was easier than arranging a move-in date, which had to coincide with the schedules of two other families: "Waiting to close and move in has been the tough part. The mortgage process was very personal because we were able to talk with the underwriter," Chris said.

"It sounds like Jetson's technology, but it's reality, and it's available to home buyers today," said Tom Balames, Americor Mortgage president, who believes there's a huge market for quick loans. "Anything we (lenders) can do to speed up the mortgage process is very popular with borrowers."

The ZapLoan! software includes a data base of local property values, so the property appraisal fee that usually runs $225 to $300 is waived. Balames said Freddie Mac is expanding the program's data base to include more residential areas in Metro Detroit.

Kathy Schweitzer, Coldwell Banker Schweitzer's director of administration, said ZapLoan! provides a win-win situation for the buyer and seller: "A pre-approved buyer has a negotiation edge going into the transaction, and the seller doesn't have to wait four weeks to learn if the buyer's financing is approved."

Mortgage underwriters are on-line at Americor and at the four Coldwell Banker offices Monday through Saturday. Balames said Sunday hours will be added soon because demand is strong.

"This program will change the way mortgage lending is done. People will now have instant peace of mind when they apply for their home mortgage — no more waiting and wondering," he said.

Newlyweds need sound money plan

For many newly married couples, the road from wedded bliss to financial harmony can be rough. Spouses who come into a marriage with different financial points of view must make a concerted effort to talk honestly about money, plan for a secure future, and work as a team toward mutual financial goals, advises the Michigan Association of CPAs.

If you've recently married or are planning to, the following advice may help you on your journey to financial harmony.

One of the first important decisions you'll need to make is whether you want to co-mingle your resources into a common pool or maintain separate ownership of your income and assets.

CPAs suggest that one of the best approaches is to set up a joint account for living expenses and savings, while keeping some money separate. This compromise can facilitate your day-to-day money management while allowing each spouse some financial autonomy.

Another decision to make early in your marriage is who will pay the bills and manage the checkbook. If one of you is a meticulous record keeper and the other loathes writing checks, your decision will be easy.

If, however, you're both willing and able to handle routine money management tasks, consider dividing the responsibilities and rotating them every six months or so. Regardless of your arrangement, both partners should review the budget on a monthly basis and be part of any major financial decisions.

It's difficult to manage your money if you don't know where it is going. A budget helps you set spending and saving goals, and monitor how well you're meeting them.

To prepare a budget, first identify your monthly income from all sources. Next, identify your monthly expenses, breaking them down into those that are fixed and necessary, such as rent or mortgage payment, and those that are variable, such as clothing and entertainment.

If you find that your spending outpaces your income, identify flexible expenses that can be trimmed or eliminated.

When it comes to credit, you and your spouse should sort through your credit cards and eliminate any overlapping credit accounts. As with a joint checking account, a jointly held credit card is helpful when making household purchases and mutual expenditures. However, each of you should hold one credit card in your own name to maintain an individual credit rating.

Be aware that as a married couple, you'll possibly face a higher combined tax bill than you would as singled taxpayers. To avoid any surprises at filing time, it's generally a good idea to estimate your combined tax bill for the current year. You're likely to find that filing jointly will result in lower overall total tax liability; but, for some taxpayers, filing separately may be more advantageous. To determine the filing status that is best for you, compute your taxes both ways.

NEW HOMES

Parklike setting enhances new condominiums

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

A great location backing up to a nature preserve yet within walking distance to all kinds of shopping are big selling points for Rivergate Condominiums in Westland.

About 20 units are available at the seven-acre site on Nankin Boulevard west of Wayne Road near Holiday Park and the Westland Center.

The builder, Curt Kime of Southfield, offers two basic models, each of about 1,100 square feet, at a base price under $85,000.

Cost is $84,990.

The Abbey has the master bedroom and full bath; living room with a sloped ceiling and kitchen/eating nook on the main level.

A loft is upstairs. Potential uses include study, media room, computer room, exercise room, sewing room or sleeping area for guests.

The loft, as an option, can be built into a second bedroom for about $1,000.

The base price is $82,990. Five are available.

Included with each unit are one-car attached garage, covered front porch, basement, dishwasher/disposal, range hood, ceiling lights in all bedrooms and doorwall/bay window.

Options include air conditioning ($2,100), deck ($2,200) and fireplace ($2,400).

"Holiday Park, that's one of the big attractions," said Kime. "Nothing else will be built back there. Over half of our units back up to the park.

"They can walk to shopping," he added. "It's close, but kind of secluded, not right in the middle of anything. It's a unique site."

"We have a nice mix here — first-time homebuyers, divorced ladies, divorced men, empty nesters," said Linda Rix, sales representative.

The big draws?

"Price. Quality of workmanship is extremely noticeable. It's a smaller development," Rix said.

Rivergate is served by city water and sewers. It's in the Livonia school district. The monthly association fee is $94.

The property tax rate is about $33.50 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owner of an $85,000 condo in Rivergate would pay about $1,425 this year.

Joyce Smith has lived in a two-bedroom unit overlooking the woods since last December.

"The setting is what sold me," she said. "It was the right size for me. The price was right. It's totally quiet. The neighbors are nice."

John Petty has a similar unit.

"It's almost country living in an area fairly well built up," he said. "Bedrooms are very good size. I like the up and down colonial style."

When completed, the development will consist of 76 units clustered in groups of four, six or eight in 13 buildings.

Kime, a builder since 1979, has been involved in many other residential projects including Overbrook and Brandon Village in Westland and Palmer Place in Canton.

The sales office at Rivergate, (313) 425-8400) is open 1-6 p.m. weekdays, 1-5:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, closed Thursdays.

Remember this when picking mortgage lender

Dave Mully

With the hot home buying season beginning, you need to remember some key points when comparing lenders. First, make a list of lenders you want to compare. In compiling your list, pick some well known lenders you know something about, either through referrals or past experiences.

Make a list of questions that will compare "apples to apples." For instance, when you ask for a closing cost estimate, ask just for the total amount with all the fees added up together. Then you will have one total amount to compare with another.

So many lenders call their fees different names, and this tends to confuse the consumer. Make sure the closing cost amount they give you is the total of fees they charge excluding points, origination fees, taxes, homeowners insurance, interest adjustment and PMI/MIP insurance. Then you will have an accurate picture to compare closing cost, from one lender to the other.

Then ask the loan officer if they will guarantee, in writing, that the closing cost total given to you will not be any higher at the final closing of your home. If they will not guarantee this, I would be leery of using there services. Any good loan officer should be able to quote an accurate total upfront if they ask the right questions, and should be willing to stand by it.

The only exception would be if you change loan programs or loan amounts before the actual closing. Then the closing cost total could change. If you do this, ask for an updated guaranteed closing cost total. Generally, most lenders include the points and origination fee in the closing cost total. The reason I suggest you leave these out when asking for your closing cost total is it makes it easier to compare "apples to apples."

Concerning points, when you ask a loan officer what their points and interest rates are for a specific mortgage program, always ask what the total points are including the origination fee (if they charge one). Sometimes loan officers do not quote you the origination fee as part of the total points and you're left comparing one lender to the next incorrectly. Most lenders, however, do add the origination fee in with the discount points. Again, just remember to ask for the total points including any origination fee, and you'll be safe. Note: Every point or origination fee is equal to 1 percent of the loan amount.

You do not have to pay points. Most lenders offer zero point interest rates. The rate is usually slightly higher, but you save substantial money upfront. Depending on your particular situation, this could be the best way to go. Remember, a lot of lenders also offer zero closing cost programs, with an even slightly higher interest rate.

This still may be worthwhile to consider. An important thing to remember, when you select which points and closing cost program to go with, is that refinacing has become such a common practice. With rates going up and down from year to year, if you plan on staying in your home for five to 10 years or more, you still may want to go with a zero point/zero closing cost program. If you do happen to refinance anytime within the first five years of your loan or happen to move again, you will probably have wasted your money when you paid points and closing cost upfront.

Ask the lenders if they offer a zero closing cost refinance program, this would be a benefit if rates do happen to drop in the future. Also, always ask if they have prepayment penalties on their loans.

Here are some important questions to ask when getting quotes on interest rates and points: Can they be locked in? For how long? Does it cost any additional fees? If you apply for a mortgage and decide to float the interest rate, it is also a good idea to compare lenders again when you do decide to lock in the interest rate, because once a lender has your application, they sometimes not as motivated to give you the best rate available at that time.

Now, getting back to the prepaid part of your mortgage cost, (this includes property taxes, homeowners insurance, interest per day, depending on your closing date, and possibly PMI/MIP insurance,if applicable). In addition to points and closing costs, these charges are, for the most part, your final piece of cost to close on your new home (excluding your down payment).

These charges are generally going to be the same no matter which lender you choose. So they're not as important when comparing lenders. Another question to ask is when the PMI insurance charge is applicable (only if you plan on putting less than 20 percent as a downpayment), ask what factor the lender uses to calculate your monthly PMI charge. Then compare this factor with each lender. This factor changes between 5 percent, 10 percent, and 15 percent down payment, and if it is an adjustable rate versus a fixed rate, the factor is different.

Ask the lender if they plan on servicing your loan (if you will be mailing your house payment to them), or if they will sell the servicing, which would mean you will be dealing with a different lender after closing. If you want to pay your monthly taxes and insurance on your own, this usually is called an escrow waiver. Ask the lender if they have a charge for this request.

Finally, when comparing mortgage lenders, feel free to interview the loan officer. Ask about their experience level, about there personal involvement and availability, their customer service commitment and do they have some references. Ask them how experienced their processing staff is and do they have their own underwriting and appraisal staff. These are all important parts of the process in achieving a smooth and efficent closing, and should be an important part of who you select for your lender. These are things that can justify going with a lender that has a slightly higher interest rate and closing cost.

Householders describe communities

Who are we and how do we live?

For starters, about one in three householders in metro Detroit rate their neighborhoods a perfect 10 on that ever present 1-10 scale. Thirty-eight percent said their home was the best place to live.

Eight percent reported problems with crime, 8 percent reported traffic problems and 6 percent experienced problems with housing deterioration or litter.

Those were just a few findings in the report "American Housing Survey for the Detroit Metropolitan Area in 1993" released by the Commerce Department's Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The metro area includes Oakland, Wayne, Monroe, Macomb, Livingston, Lapeer and St. Clair counties. Some 5,000 households — renters and owners — were sampled.

Other tidbits of information about metro Detroit, U.S.A., planet Earth:

- The area had 1.8 million housing units of which 1.6 million were occupied — 74 percent by owners, 26 percent by renters.
- Single family homes at 80 percent of all occupied units, represented the predominant housing type in the area.
- The median age (half higher, half lower) of houses in the city of Detroit was 52 years compared to 31 years for the rest of the area.
- Houses had a median of 2.8 bedrooms.
- Of owner-occupied housing units in the area, 43 percent had central air conditioning, 93 percent had clothes dryers, 55 percent had dishwashers and 60 percent had garbage disposals.
- Houses here had a median of 2.3 persons per unit and a median of 5.6 rooms per unit.
- Fifty-one percent of single-family detached and mobile homes had at least 2,000 square feet of living area, with the median at 2,019.
- Sixteen percent of owner-occupied houses were located on an acre or more of land.
- Of all owner-occupied units, about 89 percent had a porch, deck or patio, 81 percent had a garage or carport and 43 percent had a usable fireplace.
- During the two years prior to the survey, 17 percent of the owner-occupied units had roofs replaced and 11 percent had kitchens remodeled or added.
- Seven percent of the homeowners spent $100 or more per month during the previous year on routine maintenance.
- Seventeen percent of the owners and 2 percent of the renters had monthly housing costs that were $1,000 or more.
- Thirty-five percent of the household had incomes of less than $25,000.
- The 1993 median household income for area homeowners was $43,491 compared to $19,944 for renters.
- Renters had median monthly housing costs that represented 30 percent of their current income compared to 18 percent for owners. Monthly housing costs include mortgage payments or rent, utilities,insurance and real estate taxes.
- Fifty-six percent of the homeowners had a yearly real estate tax of $1,800 or more. That percentage has probably lowered substantially since the passage of Proposal A in 1994.
- Median value of homeowners' residences in 1993 was $78,675, up 4 percent from $75,479 at the last survey in 1989 in constant 1993 dollars.
- Sixty-nine percent of the 46,700 owner-occupied houses built since the 1989 survey cost $100,000 or more.
- Thirty-eight percent of homeowners with a mortgage had an interest rate on their mortgage of less than 8 percent in 1993.

Federal officials use the data to monitor fair housing guidelines, said Sue Lord, a survey statistician with the Census Bureau. Builders and remodelers use the information to gauge potential markets.

Homeowners group battles businesses

Jerry Deneil couldn't get a full replacement value insurance policy for his house in case his southern Florida house was hit by another hurricane.

So he contacted the American Homeowners Association (AHA), an organization which seeks to be for homeowners what AAA is for automobile owners — providing services that save its members time and money.

"When I pulled back part of the water-damaged roof and realized that the builder had used cardboard, I said this is the last straw — and called AHA. I wonder if the county building inspector wants to switch homes with me, if he could find my place — he probably missed the entire development," Deneil says with a grin.

"I'd like to have my builder, inspector, lender and state insurance commissioner over for dinner during the next hurricane." AHA aims to help groups such as new buyers, Baby Boomers, and aging homeowners with aging houses avoid common pitfalls in buying, maintaining and improving their houses.

Deneil is having a Mortgage Monitor audit done on his mortgage.

"They wanted to charge me $25 for each copy of a document," says Deneil. "When I was in the lending business, we didn't have the gall to charge our customers to check our mistakes."

AHA members receive free or reduced priced services from a nationwide network of more than 100,000 pre-screened Realtors, contractors, lawyers, and retailers. They can also utilize AHA's A.R.M. Watch, Automatic Mortgage Savings Plan, Property Tax Reduction Kit, and other house-related services.

To help consumers sort through the maze of confusing choices and offers, AHA issues the AHA Approved Product Seal. It indicates providers, products and services which are pre-screened for value and effectiveness, fully guaranteed and offer special terms to AHA members.

AHA's Washington, D.C.-based consumer education and research center is creating the largest central source for useful homeowner related information, accessible to both the public and press through publications, a fax-on-demand system, and a forthcoming computerized online service.

For free information on joining the American Homeowners Association, or to order its Escrow Refund Guide, homeowners may call 800-470-2AHA (470-2242) or write to AHA's Membership Services Center: 2121 Precinct Line Road, #3000, Hurst TX 76054.

Design shows off open plan

The Columbus: The overall dimensions of this house are 62 feet by 62 feet. It has 2,970 square feet of living space and another 618 square feet in the garage.

The 2,970-square-foot Columbus is a unique house that combines traditional styling with a spacious, modern floor plan. Today's multi-faceted families will appreciate this open floor design. With the sleeping areas on different levels, this house will appeal to a variety of family situations. Retired couples can seal off the entire second floor until children and grandchildren come to visit. Mom and Dad can have the privacy of a first floor master suite, while teenagers, also needing a certain amount of privacy, have the run of the upper level.

A covered porch dominates the front and wraps to the side, offering a shady escape from the summer heat. The attractive exterior brick suggests a solid permanence.

Inside the vaulted entry, open to the second floor, the excellent use of space is evident. To the left of the entry sits a comfortable living room, with windows all around to drink in the view. To the right, the formal dining room is conveniently near the kitchen.

The isolated master site is sure to please. Amenities here include a huge walk-in closet, home security system to insure your safety and a private bathroom with shower, twin basins, linen storage and skylit spa. There is also access to a small private deck.

The vaulted family is where you and your guests can gather to watch videos and munch popcorn, while the corner fireplace keeps everyone cozy.

The location of the kitchen allows you to serve food anywhere with ease. Featured here are a walk-in pantry, double ovens, central cooktop, garden window and adjoining nook. When the weather is nice, set up the barbecue on the back deck and invite the whole gang.

Step through the utility room, with pull-down ironing board and laundry chute, into a two-car garage equipped with a shop/storage area.

A central staircase brings you to the second level. Here a vaulted den bisects the top floor with two bedrooms and a bath on one side and a single bedroom with private bath on the opposite.
