"It was sprung on us at the last minute," he said. "But there were legitimate concerns, and I do accept full responsibility for the mix-up."

Parks and Recreation Director Charles Skene said a permit, mandated by city ordinance, was never sought by organizers.

"They never even requested it," he said.

That's why they are among the first group of 12 volunteers to sign up for the city of Weatland's Neighborhood Watch program in which they will ride in city cars, keep an eye on crime problems and call police.

Patterson's comments at the formal announcement of the program Monday atternion by Mayor Robert Thomas and police Chief Rmery Price reflected the motivation of volunteens who will get involved in the program starting this wookend.

"Neighbors should get more involved," she said. "My son-in-law and daughter have had problems at their apartment complex in Westland involving break-ins, theft of vehicles and vandaliam.

"Something must be done," said Patterson, a 35-year Westland resident who works as an administrative analatant for a Hewlett-Packard sales office in Novi.

Her son-in-law, Trosit, 27, has a more obvious reason to volunteer for the crime prevention program.

Trout, a postal worker, has reported to police 10 incidents involving his CATS.

Turner said he volunteered because he is interested in what's going on and the new program is a good move.

The other volunteers are Michael Conant, May Harris, Ernie Johnson, Jo Johnson, Earl and Darlene Lamp, Anthony Thomas, Ralph Turnbull and Paul Valovick.

The crime prevention program was conceived nearly two years ago. The mayor said at a ceremony held in front of the police station that some residents' calls for police help can't be met because of a lack of officers.

As an example, he said, a caller reported a rash of vehicles being vandalized in an apartment complex. The caller wanted an officer to be sta-

Probation ordered in park dispute

BY DARNELL CLEM STAFF WAITER

A Westland man has been placed on probation for two years for driving toward an Inkster teen and hitting him with a car during a dispute that began at Garden City Park and ended in Westland.

David Douglas Barr, 19, was sentenced Tuesday after being convicted earlier of felonious assault during a bench trial before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Wendy Baxter.

Barr could have received a maximum sentence of four years in prison for driving over a curb and hitting Brian Warner, 17. The incident occurred at 7:45 p.m. July 9 of last year in the 300 block of Henry Ruff, south of Cherry Hill.

Other than probation, Barr also was ordered to pay restitution to Warner, though an amount hasn't yet been determined, a court clerk said. Barr also was ordered to pay court fines totaling $720, the clerk said.

The assault occurred after the two had engaged in a dispute at a carnival in Garden City Park, at Cherry Hill and Merriman.

Several days later, Warner testified during a preliminary hearing in Westland 18th District Court that the dispute started when Barr shoved his way through a crowd of Warner's friends in the park. Barr was accompanied by a friend.

The shoving led to a fight between Warner and Barr, and Warner said that Barr also spit on him. Garden City police Intervened, and Warner testified that he left the park.

A short time later, he was walking with a friend along Henry Ruff, near Titus Elementary School in Westland, when Barr drove up and got out of his car, Warner has said in court. The two fought again, and then Barr returned to his car, Warner said.

Barr then drove toward Warner, who jumped into the air to try to avoid being hit, Warner said. However, he landed on the car's windshield and suffered severe cuts on his head and on his right arm.

Barr, still accompanied by a friend, was driving an estimated 25 to 30 mph when he hit Warner, court testimony has indicated.

Warner testified that Barr and his companion then drove away, laughing as they fled the scene.

Warner walked to a nearby friend's house for help, and his injuries caused him to be hospitalized for a couple of days.

Livonia schools beef up security measures

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Mark Schultz, a former police officer who also has counseled Livonia School District middle school students, has been named to the latest new post in the district's administration.

The creation of Schultz's new job, supervisor of public safety, shows the new emphasis school districts must now put on the safety of both students and teachers.

The Livonia district includes the northern portion of Westland. "We're trying to be proactive in implementing procedures before emergency situations arise," said Superintendent Ken Watson. "Intoday's society, the climate has changed to the point there's more danger to both students and staff.

"We have 2,000 employees, 17,500 kids and 30-plus school buildings. We must make our schools as safe as possible."

After leaving the Livonia police force, Schultz went to work in the district's four middle schools, where he has aided and counseled students in their often-turbulent middle school years.

In seeking the right person for the new job, Watson said the district sought an expert in security who also has a law enforcement background. Schults, with his nearly 19 years on the Livonia police force, apparently filled the bill perfectly.

His job description reads like a laundry list of responsibilities dealing with the overall security of Wayne County's second largest school district. Duties range from serving as liaison with such outalde agencies as police and courts, to investigating thefts in school buildings, to monitoring gang-related activities.

One of his major responsibilities will be to monitor the district's security system. The district plans to switch from the system it has had for 20 years to a new one which encompasses the latest in new technology.

"Principals, counselors, psychologists will work directly with Schultz," Watson said.

Most problems Schultz will deal with, Watson said, do not arise in the schools, but start elsewhere.

to fix things they didn't create. We're now being asked to fix a number of things that are unrelated to our overall charge, which is education."

Unlike some nearby school districts, the Livonia administration has no plans yet to put a security officer in the three high schools. The district does have aides who monitor activity in high school parking lots.

The crime prevention program was conceived nearly two years ago. The mayor said at a ceremony held in front of the police station that some residents' calls for police help can't be met. because of a lack of officers.

there," he said.

Mexicotte, a former Westland Cable Commission member, Historical Society member and public-access enthusiast, appeared surprised to learn of the issues in the 11th hour.

Skene said city officials waited until Saturday to halt the concert because they didn't know whom to contact about it. With no permit being sought, officials learned of the concert from fliers, he said. Mericotte questioned why he wasn't contacted beforehand, and he noted that his name and a phone number were on the fliers. Still, he said he hopes to follow proper procedures in hopes that "Wildwood Stock" can be held before summer's end.

He said he has already learned that he could get a $1 million liability insurance policy by paying a $300 premium.

However, Skene said he hopes that Mexicotte doesn't seek a policy before talking to him about the event.

Mexicotte had hoped to stage two concerts this summer, one on Saturday and another on Aug. 26. Hundreds of people were expected to attend, he said. The shows were to be non-profit, though he said a hat was to be passed around at the end to seek donations for the Wayne County Family Shelter in Westland.

A few donations already were made for Saturday's show and will be given to the shelter, he said.

Mexicotte had promoted "Wildwood Stock" in response to the rising cost of entertainment. Specifically, the flier noted that 1994's "Woodstock II" concert cost $50 just to see it on pay-perview television.

Area bands such as Downer's Grove, Blue-Eyed Soul, X Seed, Neuromancer, Death & Tazes, and Sinister Fiend were scheduled to play. Other planned attractions included a classic car show, a dunk tank, sumo wrestling and an art show, among other events.

Meanwhile, Mexicotte has formed the Wildwood Events Committee, spawned by "community support" that he said has been expressed by residents in the immediate area of Jaycee Park.

"This will be a panel of volunteers providing suggestions, security and other coordination as needed to maintain safety, health and enjoyment of event-goers, other park users and the surrounding community," he said in a letter to nearby residents. As of yet, no date has been confirmed for another concert. Mexicotte said he would like to see the event staged annually.

People interested in volunteer. ing for the program may call deputy mayor George Gillies, at 467-3200, or Price, 722-9600.

Volunteers join fight: Among the first group of 12 volunteers who signed up for the new crime prevention program were Ralph Turnbull (left) and Karen Patterson, joined by police Chief Emery Price (right) and fire chief Michael Reddy (rear). Westland police have said that Cohterro was legally drunk when he drove his 1988 Mercury Marquis into oncoming traffic and struck Hartley's 1987 Chrysler LeBaron convertible.

Weatland police officer Dan Karrick said the defendant had a ,21 blood-alcohol level, more than

Auto thefts on the rise here after 8-year decline

BY LEANNE ROOFRE STAYF WRITER

The addition of one police officor to a regional task force doesn't sound like a big deal, but it was significant for the Western Wayne Auto Theft Elimination Effort for two reasons.

"No other task force got an increase in manpower, and the Detroit Police Department has never sent an officer out to a task force outside the city," said Michigan State Police Lt. Sandra Miller, who heads the WWATEE unit,

"Detroit has been willing to work on a task force in their city," she said. "Most of the vehicles. stolen in western Wayne County communities end up in Detroit." Officers working on the auto theft unit are provided by the Michigan State Police and participating local police departments including the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, Inkster, Northville and Sumpter townships, Canton Township has housed the unit since its inception in 1987.

Although not all of the local statistics for 1994 are available, Miller said claims reported by insurance agenta indicate vehicle thefts are on the rise after an eight-year decrease,

In the Metro Detroit area, vehicle theft and associated crimes such as chop shops are serious business.

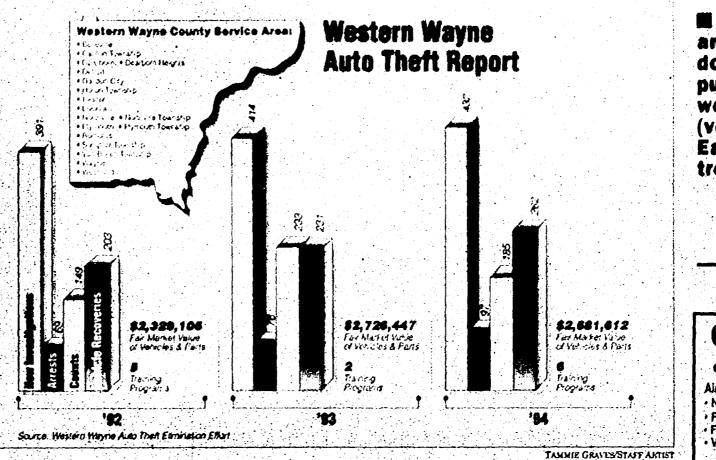

"In this part of the state, vehicle thefts aren't joy riders ... Thefts are for business." said Miller.

. The auto theft unit initiated 432 new investigations in 1994 and made 97 arrests on 185 counts. The 262 vehicles recovered by the unit had a fair market value of $2.6 million for vehicles and parts.

Among the types of investigations handled by the auto theft unit are chop shops, retagging operations, auto theft rings, insurance frauds, title frauds, and larceny from vehicles.

One large fraud case was centered on Van Buren Township. In that case, the suspect purchased damaged, newer model luxury cars but never physically took the vehicles from the salvage yard.

"He would take the title to a dealership salesman. The title is filled out like the dealership bought the vehicle," said Miller. "Then the dealership sells it to chased 40 extensively damaged another conspirator who reports the vehicle stolen.' In this case, the suspect pur-vehicles from the salvage yard, surance companies for vehicles paying nearly $267.000. The suspects were then collecting $30,000-$35,000 from their inwhich existed only on paper. In

A lot of auto theft and chop shops are done for fraudulent purposes. That's why we need a national (vehicle) titling law. Each state has to treat titles the same.'

Golfers set to tee off for scholarships BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

"It's all Frank's fault," says Nancy Swanborg, tossing a chuckle toward Frank Hickey of Farmington.

Her office at the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College is filled with signs and the beginnings of table decorations that will be given out at the WRC's first annual golf outing Friday, Sept. 8, at the Cattalls Golf Club in South Lyon.

Sporting a shirt that says he's on stall at the club, the retired Clarenceville school teacher grins at her comment. Yes, he admits he was the instigator . . . and with good reason. His wife Mary Kaye is a volunteer at the center.

"One of the reasons I put the hook out on it (the golf outing), was I would hear a lot of things about the center and stories about what it does," Hickey said. "But if someone asked me what the Women's Resource Center does, I couldn't tell them about all the assistance that goes on.

"This is something many people should know about, and this is a way of telling them about it while having fun?

And fun is what organizing committee - Hickey, Sylvia Vukmirovich and Sandy Gelman, both of Schoolcraft College, Julie Sproul of St. Mary Hospital and school principal Barbara Mansfield - hope participants will have fun while at the golf outing.

"It's (the course) challenging and just as beautiful as the ones up north," said Sproul of the fouryear-old, par 72 golf course. "It's very fair for women and for men in the placing of the tees."

The scrambles-style tournament will start with registration at 10 a.m. with the shotgun start at 1 p.m. For $65 per person, golfers will be treated to 18 holes of golf with a cart, a small bucket of range balls, hot dog lunch, and country cookout, featuring barbecued ribs and roasted chicken, and prizes like a certificate to cut your own Christmas tree at Bill Helse's tree farm near Ann Arbor. The cookout also is available for fun-loving non-golfers at $25 per person.

School elections director tells of disappointments

Bleanor Harrington, who put in her last day Monday as the Wayne-Westland school district's elections director, said she has two major disappointments in her position.

The main one is. not having enough time "to do my job as it should be done," referring to the maintaining of election records of 65,000 to 68,000 registered voters in the district and making sure that elections are run flawlessly.

The other major disappointment is the low turnout of voters in past elections.

"People don't get out to vote," said Harrington, a Westland resident who has been in her post for eight years and a district employee for 27 years.

In most local school elections, the turnout is between 5 and 10 percent, with the exception of those ballots which have property tax millage proposals.

Harrington, interviewed in her office tucked in behind the business department in the central administrative offices, pointed out that her work has to be done regardless of how many voters turn out on election day.

Harrington, 59, started working with the district as a library clerk at Edison Elementary School, moving up later to a media processing clerk to catalog audiovisual and equipment materials.

Stressing she has no definite plans for the future, Harrington said that "I'll sit back and enjoy myself for a year."

While she has her professional disappointments, Harrington had to take a long moment to tell what her major sources of pride were in the eight years she has handled local school elections.

She eventually replied that she is most proud of the school millage and bond proposals approved by voters which eliminated the need for school spending cuts.

"People" are also a major source of pride in the job she completed this week, she said. Her replacement, Cynthia Gor-

JIM JACOPELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Tee time: Frank Hickey of Farmington (from left), Julie Sproul of St. Mary Hospital, Sylvia Vukmirovich and Nancy Swanborg, both of Schoolcraft College, are looking for hole sponsors like the University of Michigan HealthCenters and golfers to make the Women's Resoruce Center's first annual golf outing Sept. 8 a big success.

Hole sponsorships cost $100 and the committee has lined up sponsors for almost half of the 18 holes. Signs that resemble. golf balls on tees and bearing the sponsors' names are being made in the WRC's trademark maroon and white colors. They have been donated by Madeline Daoust of Livonia, owner of American Sign Shops in Ann Arbor.

The reservation deadline for the golf outing is Sept. 6, while businesses have until Sept. 1 to sign up as hole sponsors. For more information, call the Women's Resource Center at (313) 462-4443.

The committee is hoping the low cost for the outing will attract 100 men and women golfers. And with the shotgun start (foursomes tee off at a different hole at the same time), up to scholarships for women. At a time when federal support is. declining, the center is seeing more and more women in need of assistance. Last year, buoyed by a $15,000 donation, the center provided $34,882 in scholarships, covering tuition, books, child care and licensing, to 152 different individuals.

"While enrollment at the college is down, ours is up 14 percent in the federal programs," said Swanborg. "Displaced homemakers, single parents need to supplement what the federal programs don't cover --books, child care. There's a tremendous need although we can't expect to cover those needs 100 percent. If the golf outing is successful, we can continue to do things like this." Vukmirovich points to the college's licensed practical ter session, leaving some scrambling to pay for the remaining 12 weeks. The WRC on occasion has helped out.

"From my perspective, all these men and women who would otherwise fall through the cracks, need scholarships," said Vukmirovich, who works in the college's orunseling department. "They can get enough out of the Pell Grants for tuition, but what about books? What about child care?"

They also see the outing as a way of making new friends for the center.

"People always rember golf outings," Hickey said. "I remember the ones I've been on because of the new people I've meet."

"Whatever we get, we know where it's going to go," added

Auto theft from page 5A addition, nearly $750,000 in auto financing had been obtained before any insurance claims were made. Three people were arrested after search warrants were executed in 15 cities in the Metro Detroit area. WWATEE anticipates at least 30 additional arrests in this case.

In other instances, owners who have traded their vehicles for drugs will report their vehicles stolen as will owners who arrange a theft when they can't meet their auto payments, "A lot of auto theft and chop shops are done for fraudulent purposes," said Miller. "That's why we need a national (vehicle) titling law. Each state has to treat titles the same.'

around the state were formed in 1987 with funding through the Automobile Theft Prevention Authority. Under the authority, $1 from insurance premiums paid on passenger vehicles goes to underwrite the theft prevention programs.

"The amount has never changed and the number of registered passenger vehicles will re-main the same," said Miller. "Our costs have gone up, but the revenue has remained the same. ATP will be appealing to the Legislature. We had 127 funded officers in 1987 and now we are only able WWATEE and similar units to fund 76 officers. We can't do the same job."

One solution to the funding crunch would be adding the charge to commercial and rental vehicles.

"We still investigate cases involving those vehicles. They get the benefit without paying," said Miller.

"The other choice would be to raise the fee, and there is always reluctance to do that."

Rare breed Romney shaped a strong state

ichigan today could use another George Romney. He was a rare breed in the 1960s as Constitutional Convention delegate and governor. When he died July 26 in his Bloomfield Hills home at the age of 88, he had become a rare breed again.

Michigan's politics in the 1950s and today is dominated by business-vs.-labor-union interests. Romney denounced that thinking and talked of "consumerism." Michigan's thinking today is dominated by me-first economics, profits and payrolls. Romney preached volunteerism.

By the 1950s, state governments were hollow shells overshadowed by the federal government. Romney's thrust was to rejuvenate state government so that it could do its job efficiently, accountably and in full view of its consumers.

"Citizens for Michigan" was the name of Romney's bipartisan, public interest organization. It also was his creed. Romney didn't accomplish all the reforms alone but was leader, spokesman and lightning rod for a new breed of creative problem-solvers.

He had an early start in supporting public institutions in the early 1950s, when he chaired a citizens' committee which later convinced Detroit Public School voters to approve a massive bond program to renovate old schools and build new ones.

Later and with little cheering from the political parties, the Romney movement persuaded voters to call a state Constitutional Convention. Romney was elected as a Republican delegate. The GOP on paper had a 2-1 majority, but in actuality it was split between the Farmers' Caucus and the Romney moderates.

The Romneyites prevailed. In the new con-natorial authority to cut spending when rev- 4 enues fell short.

A new State Board of Education with the duty to lead and supervise K-12 and adult education. We note sadly the current governor and State Board leaders want to abandon this duty and return schools to 18th century parochialism.

Separate governing boards for regional universities.

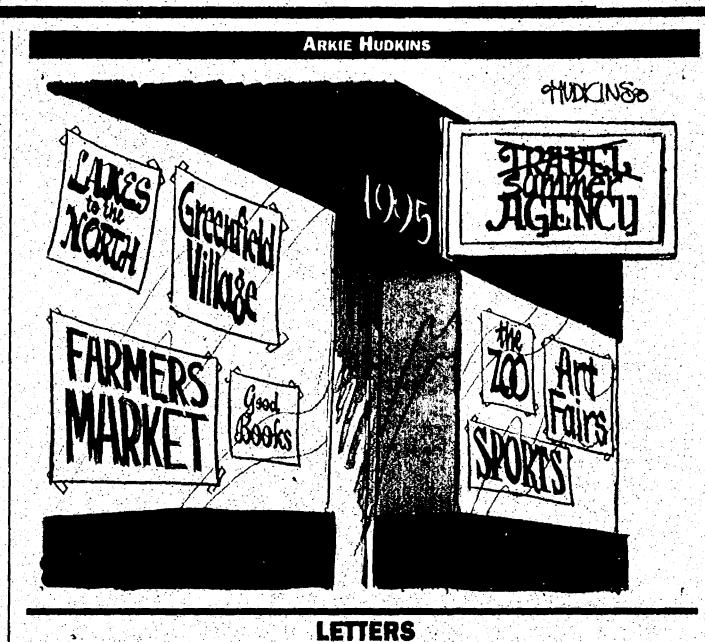

Home rule for counties and provision for multi-purpose metropolitan authorities,

Romney led a host of GOP Con-Con delegates into leadership in state government: Dick VanDusen into a series of roles; Glenn Allen into the budget department and Court of Appeals; Weldon Yeager into the administration and GOP leadership; Richard Kuhn, now a circuit judge. Democrats also launched careers from Con-Con: Richard Austin, secretary of state; Jack Faxon, 30 years in the Legislature; Coleman Young, mayor of Detroit; Bill Ford, 30 years in Congress. And so on.

Many say that if Romney could have become president, America would have seen the Vietnam war shortened and no Watergate scandal that destroyed many people's faith in government and lawyers. They may well be correct.

Romney was an intense, extremely serious, candid person. He was ridiculed late in 1961 when he said he would pray for divine guidance on whether to run for governor. There were many pious frauds in politics, then and now, but Romney was serious about God.

Romney hurt his presidential bid by admitting he had been "brainwashed" by the military on the Vietnam war. Time has shown he was quicker than most to wise up.

Get story straight

ederal Reserve Chairman Allan
 Greenspan doesn't seem to be able to get his story straight on the economy.

A couple of weeks ago, he declared a recession to be imminent — and lowered interest rates. The very next day, economic data was released showing job creation to be up and consumer spending strong.

A couple weeks later, Greenspan determined that miraculously the economy was now healthy again. And, that same day the stock market took a big dive, and weekly unemployment claims rose above 400,000 for the first time in several years. Greenspan seems to be running from pillar to post. What gives? Chairman Greenspan and other so-called 'financial analysts" have what I would call "Wall Street Disease." Wall Street Disease is an irrepressible urge to attach cosmic economic significance to short-term economic numbers. These shortterm numbers should be seen for what they really are --- merely economic "background noise."

be up or down — in real terms — in 10 or 20 years? My hunch: down. If you are investing long term why not look only at long-term trends — and forget the so-called "historical" data that the mutual fund sales people are pushing.

In the new global economy, the trend is your friend — but history is bunk, now more than ever.

Host a student, spread goodwill

osting a high school student from another land can't help but leave a lasting impression on your family. Sure, some experiences are richer than others and expectations may fall short of reality. But the anticipation is part of the fun in welcoming a foreign exchange student into your home.

Through groups like Homestay, Nacel Cultural Exchanges, Youth for Understanding and World Youth, teens from around the world learn a new language, experience another culture and make friends that often last a lifetime while living with volunteer host families.

St. Paul, Minn.-based Nacel works with German-, French- and Spanish-speaking students.

Both Nacel and YFU consider individual interests in matching motivated students with married couples, single parents and families with teens.

Some folks shy away from opening their home and their heart for fear they'll be forced to fulfill expensive needs. But visiting students expect to do what their host families typically do. The students bring spending money and have medical and liability insurance.

Plymouth Township residents Lynne and Gideon Levenbach are looking for host families for the coming school year.

The students all speak English.

The Levenbachs particularly want to find hosts for the following two students:

Antti, a 16-year-old Norwegian boy who will not be permitted to leave Norway unless a host family is found in the next three weeks. He is represented by Program American Exchange.

Almira, a 17-year-old girl from the former Soviet Union who arrives Aug. 11 and was promised a year in suburban Detroit. She is represented by the International Education Forum.

For more information on these students, call the Levenbachs at (313) 453-8562 or (313) 453-6851. For information on Nacel students call (810) 626-6641. Jennifer Berry, (313) 283-9118, is the regional director of World Youth.

Consider opening your home and your heart to a spirited teen-ager from another land. Wall Street financial analysts are willing to change their "world view" on the economy daily — if not hourly — to match the most recently released economic data.

Short-term numbers like, for instance, monthly car sales at the Big Three tell you more about the weather than they tell about the economy. Yet, Wall Street attaches cosmic significance to these numbers. Yearly car sales are often "projected" off these monthly numbers. This is pure nonsense.

To be economically significant, I believe only established trends of one to 10 years should be considered. In the wild new "global economy," trends longer than 10 years should be viewed with skepticism as interesting historical curiosities.

Looking only at one: to 10-year trends this economy is very, very scary. Consider these long-established trends:

The trade deficit — up. The U.S. dollar down. Consumer debt — up. Average real wages — down. The budget deficit — up. The savings rate — down. Service jobs — up. Manufacturing jobs — down.

It is these important long-term numbers that we should be concentrating on. It is because of these "scary" numbers that so many thinking people are gloomy about the U.S. economy.

But, what about all the "long-term" mutual fund investors who are "investing" for retirement or college expenses? Will their portfolios

Base line explained

n response to your "Why are the street signs green?" column in last Thursday's paper:

Q: Why do the street signs say Eight Mile on the Oakland County side, but Base Line in Wayne County? What's a base line, anyway? Is it true that if you extended Eight Mile (or is it Base Line?) due west, it would eventually be the Wisconsin-Illinois border?"

A: Since the time of the earliest surveys (this whole thing was Thomas Jefferson's idea), townships and sections were located with respect to two principal axes passing through an origin called an initial point; the north-south axis called the principal meridian, and the east-west axis, being a true parallel of latitude, called the base line.

Yes, Base Line Road follows approximately the established "base line" which passes through the initial point established for Michigan. I would imagine that since Wayne County was populated earlier than Oakland, the historical name stuck. Note that when the road goes through Northville, and swings towards the north, it's not appropriate to call it Base Line any longer. There is a local residential street in Northville that is called Base Line, probably from its historical evolution.

Secondary axes, established at 36-mile intervals east or west of the principal meridian and north and south of the base line, divide land into many of our modern municipalities. Thus the reason why Livonia, Novi, Canton, Troy, etc. are all approximately six miles by six miles in size. Looking at a map you can see that Redford Township was originally the area between Eight Mile and Joy, from Inkster Road east to Greenfield.

If the Wisconsin-Illinois dividing line is along the same latitude then yes, it would be the same as Fight Mile Road.

an you imagine your grandmother or great-grandmother as an activist? Tens of thousands were in the mid-1800s.

Thousanda of women marched, lobbled, campaigned, wrote books, pamphlets, and editorials, spoke publicly on street corners or in large assembly halls, picketed, and even went on hunger strikes. They were taunted by their families, degraded by their opponents, and jailed by authorities.

But their purpose never weakened. They were determined to win suffrage for themselves and those of us who would follow. In August 1920, after nearly 70 years of strife and perseverance, their dream became reality as the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was signed into law.

This year, thanks to women like Lucretia Coffin Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lucy Stone, and Susan B. Anthony, American women will celebrate 75 years of freedom to vote freedom to speak out and to write freely about issues affecting their lives.

Many women were instrumental in bringing women's rights into the forefront, but few were as resourceful and compassionate as Sarah Moore Grimke. Her revolutionary style complemented her drive to preach about women's rights and the need for equality between the sexes.

Grimke addressed her audiences with logic and emotion and all within the boundaries of the only source "acceptable" to women rhetoricians of her day — the Bible. Grimke's independent philosophy and heartfelt concern for women's issues drove her to become a catalyst for the American feminist movement. Unfortunately, today, nearly 150 years later, women are still struggling with many of those same concerns involving equality and oppression.

As an adult Grimke converted to Quakerism in support of her ideologies about equality and the right of women to speak publicly. The Quaker doctrine allowed all persons, male or female, the guidance for moral actions through an "inner light" of consciousness. This doctrine established a moral equality for the sexes and promoted an independent spirit in Quaker women.

Grimke, too, had that spirit but needed another means by which to express her inner soul. The power and freedom of the printed word did not exist for Grimke and so she was forced to tell her story through Biblical scriptures and hope that her message would motivate others to re-evaluate the issues and take action.

In her "Letters on the Equality of the Sexes and the Condition of Women," Grimke refers to the Old Testament and how "man," not God, has put limits upon woman.

"The Lord Jesus defines the duties in his Sermon on the Mount. He lays down grand principles by which they should be governed, without any reference to sex or condition - 'Ye are the light of the world. . . Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in Heaven.' I follow him through all his precepts, and find him giving the same directions to women as to men, never even referring to the distinction now so strenuously insisted upon between masculine and feminine virtues: This is one of the anti-Christian 'traditions of men' which are taught instead of the 'commandments of God.' Men and women were CRE-ATED EQUAL; they are both moral and accountable beings, and whatever is right for man to do, is right for woman.'

Grimke spoke to her audience of men and women about the unjust, anti-Christian virtues traditionally held concerning women's place in society. She used this scripture to illustrate that God never intended that a distinction be made between masculine and feminine virtues. He spoke to all his people and told them to believe in him, to do good, and to make him proud.

In Letter IV on "Social Intercourse on the Sexes," Grimke reiterates the constraints men have put on women and how she urges women to take action and reclaim their sacred, human rights,

"... Man has inflicted an unspeakable injury upon woman, by holding up to her view her animal nature, and placing in the background her moral and intellectual being. Woman has inflicted an injury upon herself by submitting to be thus regarded; and she is now called upon to rise from the station where man, not God, has placed her, and claim those sacred and inalienable rights, as a moral and responsible being, with which her Creator has invested her."

Grimke felt marriage denied women autonomy as moral and intelligent beings who were accountable only to God not their husbands.

Grimke appealed to women's emotions and urged them to take action and reclaim their human rights that God invested in them. She implied that husbands regarded their wives, not as moral and intellectual companions, but as instruments for domestic comfort and physical pleasure. Grimke. believed men thought of women as ornaments, tools, toys — a means rather than an end in themselves.

And to make matters worse, women were to blame for allowing these conditions to occur in the first place. They were taught to expect such treatment and considered themselves inferior to men. This notion, according to Grimke, was the real cause of women's suffering and degradation in marriage.

As an American female, I am constantly reminded of the injustices inflicted on women in relationships, inequalities in the workplace, in education, and within the family structure.

Unlike Grimke, I don't believe these inequities are the direct result of marriage. Our society is anxious, stressed and taxed, and our marriages must absorb that tension.

I do believe the majority of today's husbands respect their wives and value their intelligence and morality. But as the American family deteriorates and domestic violence increases, I wonder just how far Grimke would say we've come. Too far? Or not far enough?

Equality only a myth

ow I've heard that truth is what's left when all the crap is washed away. What is the truth about equality? My thoughts on the topic of equality are in contrast to what has been written and spoken lately.

There are so many claims about that which is called equality. We're all supposed to have it. Yet from my own observations, experiences, and knowledge, I fear that equality, however one wishes to define it, is a term of which little is known and none is practiced. It health, maturity, and habits of both parents. There are potential detrimental effects from inherited diseases, uses of legal and illegal drugs, alcohol, tobacco, viruses, diet, allergies, etc. All these can have an effect on the unborn.

Then there are injuries or accidents at birth or low birth weight. So from the very beginning, however you wish to define that term, there is no equalization.

During preschool years the home environment may or may not provide positive opportunities. Parenting skills (especially those related to patience vs. abuse), nutrition and adequate diet, moral and cultural development, educational encouragement, sufficient money, hygiene, etc., all contribute more to inequality than sameness. LETTERS

The school-aged child enters an educational system which from kindergarten level on is not equitable. Some districts back a pupil with as much as $10,000, some only $5,000.

Some districts provide excellent special education or advanced student programs. Others do not.

While parental involvement more than money has been proven more of a determinant of a pupil's educational success, the better teachers remain or transfer to where there are books, supplies, equipment, and discipline. Some students state that it is easier to get opposed to the government's forced curriculum and agenda. Still looking for uniformity? Not in the schools! Other factors lead to inequality as well. There are certainly differences in peoples' intelligence and ability levels. These in turn are related to their future occupations and wages. So still no matches in the workplace! Money, power, and the opportunities they buy and create do not demonstrate equality. Further, neither our economic nor political statuses make us parallel. Even physical appearance, athletic prowess, and apparel are related to access, ages and physical or mental handicaps.

To be now included are the latest recognized victims of reverse racism and bigotry. These are so obviously evident that it is a waste to delineate them separately. "Equality" is a goal for every self-designated group and these multiply as the quests grow for attention and special rights or any rights even those called inalienable.

All these play roles in one's ability to perform on that illusive or rather, truthfully, a nonexistent "level playing field." The fact is that humans are no more equal than the proverbial pigs on the "Animal Farm."

is a myth. A platitude. An ideal. A dream. In reality, quite clearly the norm instead is inequality.

 $\langle \cdot \rangle$

From a being's conception, development is dependent on the genetics, drugs in school than textbooks. But even here affluent or sacrificial parents choose services from private, parochial, or home schools which reflect their own values and standards as success in this society. # Relax — it's still summer t was depressing last week to visit my local superduper market. Flannel shirts. Heavy jackets. Signs advertising "Back to School" ales.

Back to school?!? The notion strikes terror into the hearts of young boys devoted to vacation, and old boys, too. Drudgery is just around the corner — yippce, say the stores.

Don't our geniuses of private enterprise know summer is hardly half over? The hockey playoffs ended barely yesterday. Baseball's World Series is more than two months away. It's still summer.

I inspected blueberry patches the third week of July and found many were barely producing fruit. Our tomato patch, enriched on Mother's Day by eight bags of cow and horse manure from a Lyon Township farm, has just begun to produce tomatoes for salads, with the promise of beefsteak tomatoes within days. Only in the last week has the golden flavor of wax beans from the yard graced our palates.

The "sweet corn" sign is barely up on the farm stand on the corner. Sure, you can get something that looks like corn most of the year, but the only good stuff comes from local farms now. You can't get the almost sugary flavor unless you boil or roast corn the same day it's picked. Where does mercantile America get the notion it's back to school time?

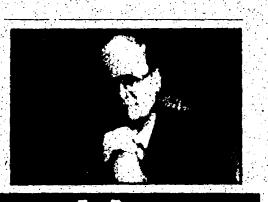

On Lake Michigan, the warm roller waves don't come in until August. Lake Superior is swimmable only one month of the year, and that's now. Superior's waters are bracing and refreshing and tolerable in August; carlier or later, they're like frigid hammers on your feet.

True, the trout fishing isn't much now with the streams low, but now is when the best deepwater bluegill and perch fishing is done. The ol' cane pole that will put the balt on bottom in at least 12 feet of water is the magic wand of the August angler.

Panfish, sweet corn and tomatoes ---- forget your turkey and yams and mince ple. August is the time to be thankful for the best eatin' of the year. Let's not have "back to school" sales spoiling it.

I pray that the merchants, those fountains of wisdom in conservative political philosophy, don't mess up August the way they messed up. Christmas.

Christman season, theologically, starts on

TIM RICHARD

Merchants have jumped the season so wildly that the peak shopping weeks end two or three weeks before Christmas. Shopping actually tapers off after Dec. 15. Go into many stores on Christmas Eve, and you'll see clerks taking down the Christmas decorations. On the radio, you won't hear a carol or a hymn after 11:30 Christmas morning.

So strong is the commercial spirit of Christmas that people get depressed the day Christmas arrives because there's such a crash, a letdown. Psychologists have a name for the syndrome, but my memory has blissfully obliterated it from my mind.

When I was a kid, back in the days when there was a Hudson's in downtown Detroit, Christmas advertising began on Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas shopping the day after. Then it began Nov. 1, Oct. 1, and now in September.

Once I proposed that our editorial board condemn, in print and by name, the first merchant to start a Christmas promotion, even if the polecat was one of our advertisers. We'd have to begin watching around Labor Day. Wiser heads talked me out of it, because a local religious group might be the winner with its September crafts show.

My advice is: Ignore the merchants' premature ada. This is not the "back to school" season. It's still summer, with a good month of warm weather and outdoor fun, with a full month before even northern Michigan feels the rains of September.

There's plenty of time to enjoy it before you begin torturing your kids by making them try on stiff, clean achool clothes. Look at the warm blue skies and listen to the voice of the Creator. This is summer - the best part of summer. Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events. His Touch-Tone voice mail number is (313) 953-2047 Ext. 1881.

ocrates. Remember him? The Greek guy from long ago who thought great thoughts and taught great things? And remember how he wasn't a lecture kind of teacher, but rather a question-asker, asking question after question until his pupils finished answering all the questions? And once they'd done that, the pupils knew what they were supposed to know. And that was known as the Socratic method of teaching. Sure, you remember that.

Well, today, I'm employing what I call the modified Socratic method. I emphasize "modified" because I can't possibly stick to that no lecture credo of Socrates. I am, you know, a Mom, which stands for Many Opinions Mentioned. So anyway, here goes. The Socratic/Mom style of discussion.

What do you like dishing out more? Criticism or compliments? Do you feel more effective with a bunch of barbs, brickbats and burning arrows? Or would you feel more comfortable supplied with a pile of praise, applause and kudos?

And let me ask you this. What's more likely to make your day? Getting criticized? Or getting complimented? Does getting a compliment make you feel like you want to skip around the kitchen and turn your favorite song up on the radio and sing right out loud and fix chocolate pudding for your children for no good reason? Or is it criticism that makes you feel that way? Buoyant and benevolent and capable of reaching higher heights?

someone who collects old Plymouths," he said.

Car of his dreams.

The experience has been a bit different for fellow Concours d'Elegance participant Mike Wagner of Westland. He knew he found the car of his dreams as soon as he saw the Hudson Essex Terraplane International club notice that it had found a two-door 1952 Hudson Hornet convertible out West.

When he arrived in Novada, the car he saw stranded in the desert was the farthest thing from a dream.

"It was all deteriorated and all the interior had rotted," Wagner said. "But it never had any rust on it.

Still, he and his wife rented a truck and shipped it back to their Westland home. The two have been restoring the car themselves since they purchased it in the late 1970s. "We completely restored it --- every nut and bolt.

And the work still isn't finished.

"Nobody ever finishes a restoration," he said. "There always one more nut, one more bolt, one more thing to do with it."

This is the first year that Wagner has been invited to the event.

Members of the Concours d'Elegance board of directors were aware of the rarity of his Jupiter gray 1952 Hudson Hornet convertible, he said. It is only four of the seven remaining cars that are serviceable.

Not only is it a collector's item in his home, it is also Wagner's primary vehicle. Before he sent it. downriver to get buffed and shined for the event, he was driv. ing the car everyday to the Ford-Wixom plant where he installs windshields for a living.

"I don't collect antique cars, per se," he said. "The Hudson has always really interested me because it is one of the finest cars ever made, period."

The innovative step-down design of the car was ahead of its time, he said. Cars made now are modeled after the Hudson's dealgn.

Although his car is award-winning in his heart, Wagner isn't interested in the prizes that the Concours d'Elegance awards.

"Just being there is the reward," he said. "It's like going through four years of college. When you finish, you receive your diploma. This is like getting a diploma."

The 17th year for Concours d'Elegance classic car show benefits Meadow Brook Hall and this year focuses on "Great German Classics" like the 1937 Mercedes Benz 540 Special Roadster, and the 1938 Adler Lemans Speedster.

Ralph Lauren's 1930 Mercedes Bens, "Count Trosal" SSK will also be among the headline cars at Meadow Brook. Featured in the 1995 official poster, the car is named for Italian race car driver Count Felice Trossi who originally owned and raced it.

A rakish red and silver 1936 Duesenberg SSJ Bobtalled Speedster often photographed with its owner, Clark Gable, will also be featured. Rumors abound regarding how Gable got the car. Some say Carole Lombard gave it to him; others say he bought it in competition with Gary Cooper.

There will also be an international art show, fashion show and historic races held in conjunction. with the event.

Concours d'Elegance takes 9 place 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, 18 Aug. 6, on the grounds of Oakland 13 University, Adams Road and Walton Boulevard, Rochester, m Admission is $15 for adults (in the cluding a souvenir program), $5'ia for children ages 5-12, and free for st children younger than 4. Here's what I think: compliments. Those are best. Criticism is just rotten business, the giving of and receiving of. It doesn't feel nice to give it and it feels even. worse receiving it.

I've found that folks who serve up criticism with ease have the notion that they're doing you a favor. That they're doing it out of the goodness of their heart. That by criticizing you, they are somehow motivating you to do better. Do better? I don't think so. The only thing a chronic criticizer motivates you to do is put a tack on his chair.

A compliment, though, is truly one of the world's best motivators. A word of praise motivates a person like sunshine and water motivate a flower. With sunshineand water, the flower reaches ever upward, reaching higher heights. Criticism, on the other hand, withers the flower and dries it up. I've seen it happen.

During one of the baseball games my son played in this summer. a dad/coach-type person used the criticism style of coaching. You know what? It didn't work. You could actually see the criticisms levied against the boys weigh them down. They hung their heads; their shoulders slumped; they looked several inches shorter. They kicked at the dirt and lost the game, big time, to my son's team.

I didn't know the poor kids on that other team, but I felt a really strong urge to go out on the pitcher's mound and call them all together and give each one a big hug and tell them they could have an ice cream cone after the game because they were trying so hard and that's all that really mattered. I didn't, of course. And I should be criticized for that.

And how does it work the other way, the compliment side? Does It really motivate? Absolutely.

I've seen that happen, too . . . to me. As a columnist who writes about family things and parenting things and one who uses personal experience to illustrate, I receive comments and suggestions which are, themselves, pretty personal. Some are . . . hmmmmm . . . hostile. But most are unbelievably complimentary and friendly. And every time, without exception, the friendly, complimentary type feels good.

And I've found that compliments are tremendous motivators. For instance, here's a recent comment from a reader: "Your articles are outstanding. I love reading them. And they're very inspirational to me. I have to say you've got to be an outstanding mother. Thank you, You give me a lot of insight into my own life. I appreciate it. Thank you."

Holy smokes! Now that's a compliment! And motivating? Who wouldn't be motivated by that? What Mom wouldn't try even harder and sing out loud and treat everyone to chocolate pudding for no good reason?

Everyone, especially Moms, should have a compliment like that said to them. A compliment to Mom will make her feel jaunty and taller and willing to reach even higher heights. Like the flower with its sunshine and rain. And something else about compliments. When you get them they make you feel so damn good that you can't help but give them out yourself. It's a kind of infectious thing.

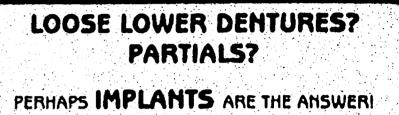

And that kind of infection should go unchecked everywhere. Ball diamonds, family rooms, classrooms, you name it. That kind of infection needs no cure.

Compliment or criticism? So?

2 scouts earn Gold Award

Two Livonia teens have earned the highest honor in Girl Scouting, the prestigious Gold Award.

Erin Minor and Amber Bielby, of Livonia received the award at the recent Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council's All Council Honor Reception. They were among 20 girls who received the Gold Award this year.

To earn the Gold Award, girls must learn about themselves, explore careers, and assume positions of leadership. Additionally, they must plan and implement a community service project that utilizea their talents and skills.

Brin, a 12th grader at Livonia Churchill High School, is a member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 1175. As her service project, she collected books and donated them. to Botsford General Hospital to be used in the pediatrics ward, emergency room and obstetrics waiting room.

"Girl Scouting has taught me many skills for life," said Brin, the daughter of Dennis and Kathy Minor. "It has provided me with opportunities to interact with a variety of people."

Amber, also a 12th grader at Churchill High School, is a member of Senior Girl Scout Troop 2553. As her service project, Amber collected and distributed

INTRODUCING The New Life Center at Providence Park

Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births* The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

THE CHOICES ARE MANY

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF. But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to

Writer is intelligent woman who yearns for knowledge am 24 years old, married and have a daughter namod Christine (21 months). I have an associate of arts from Madonna University in Livonia

LORENE and am prepar-GREEN ing to complete my bachelor's degree at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor in the fail. I am studying kinesiology/ movement science. On the one hand, I can't wait to be finished. On the other hand, I love to learn and would like to continue my education.

I have always been fascinated with handwriting analysis and am interested to learn what you have to say about mine. I am right-handed but am ambidextrous in many areas. I rarely use cursive when I write, but did so for the analysis.

Thank you for your time. D.L., Dearborn

Today we are analyzing the handwriting of quite a mature 24year-old woman. Her interests cover a broad spectrum.

It comes as no surprise when ahe says she loves to learn. She is an intelligent young woman who yearns for knowledge. She enjoys delving into new information and analyzing it to her satisfaction. She has also been blessed with intuition as well as a retentive memory.

Our writer can see and act on the essentials in life. Her organized mind is objective, constructive and purposeful as she pursues her daily routine. She can apply what she has previously learned to current situations. It is unlikely she will make the same mistakes over and over. In addition, she has many good ideas to improve her efficiency and the quality of her work.

She is a productive and conscientious worker. Her goal is to do everything as efficiently as she possibly can. Very little is left to chance. She pays assiduous attention even to each little detail. So if she is criticized her sensitive nature comes into play and she feels hurt.

To those around her, she presents an aura of outer calm and reserve. She does not allow many of her feelings to surface. In an emergency, she probably is unflappable.

This young woman enjoys poople from many walks of life. She is a peace lover who seeks to avoid friction and discord. Authority figures may be a tad difficult for her at times. Rudeness in others is frowned upon.

Because she is open to new and varied relationships, she is probably blessed with many friends. Confidantes, however, are probably limited to a smaller number as she is rather reticent about what she is willing to share of her personal life.

At times, she may entertain thoughte that she would like to break away from her traditional background and venture into new vistas. Is it her desire to keep the peace that keeps her grounded?

She has a strong need to be in control of her life. She is also disinclined to make hasty decisions. Before jumping into something new, she will stop to considor how it will affect her her age, however. At times she appersonally. Her head often rules her heart.

And yet she has a great deal of empathy for others. With those she loves, she is protective.

She seems to perceive herself differently in various situations. I don't think this is too unusual for

Zonta of Northwest installs new officers

The Zonta Club of Northwest Wayne County Area is beginning a new year of community service with a new slate of officers.

Zonta International is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions, working to improve the legal, political, economic and professional status of women.

Heading up the Northwest Wayne club for 1995-96 are Pat Harris as president, Karen Milton as vice-president, Barbara Mansfield as secretary, Dorothy Fairbanks as treasurer, Evelyn Mundy and Sylvia Vukmirovich as directors. The were installed by Jacquie Gudmundsen, District 15 governor.

In closing out the past year, the club presented Schoolcraft College, and the college's Women's Resource Center, and the Y-Man Program of the Livonia Community Commission on Drug Abuse with financial awards.

The club also honored three women associated with the organizations --- Nancy Swanborg, WRC director; Barbara Geil, Schoolcraft vice-president; and Jacque Martin-Downs, Y-Map director - for their personal and professional contributions to the status of women.

Providence Hospital...

Family Birthing Center of

Often imitated - never duplicated.

Many places claim to be birthing centers, but the Pamily Birthing Center of Providence Hospital has the credentials. It is the only center in Michigan accredited by The Commission for Accreditation of Freestanding Birth Centers, a division of the National Association of Childbearing Centers.

The Family Binhing Center is a unique alternative for childbearing families. The staff is committed to providing each family with a birth experience which neets their individual needs in a safe environment. Our philosophy is based on the belief that birth is a normal process, and routine medical intervention is not needed for most labors and births. We provide a partnership with families that encourages education, participation in decision making and more control over the birth experience. Extended families, including siblings, can participate in the birth event, and mothers and babies are not separated after birth. Your care may be provided by an obstetrician, family practice physician or certified nurse midwife with privileges at Providence Hospital.

In addition to our home-like atmosphere, the Family Birthing Center offers the safety of nearby Providence Hospital with its quality high-risk services in case of a problem.

We offer a comprehensive program of childbirth education, including your choice of normal birth or Christian birth classes, breastfeeding education and support, preparation for early discharge and sibling classes. Our services also include one-to-one nursing care, early discharge with extensive follow-up and a home visit by one of our nurses. Homemaker assistance is also available as part of our program.

We are located in the Fisher Center attached to Providence on Nine. Mile Road in Southfield. Come visit us and see for yourself. We want to belo make the birth of your child the personal experience it should be. There is a difference.

"Things like that stimulate me," he said. For Hale, the surface of a car land University in Rochester Hills Sunday, Aug. 6.

Prize poster

Hale's poster, available to the public Aug. 4, conveys a sense of fantasy. The featured car, a 1930 Mercedes-Benz "Count Trossi" SSK, is shown from the rear; its wings and tail almost cloaklike, wisps of smoketrailing up from the exhaust. Part of its shape is repeated under the vehicle like a light shadow. The ground and trees and giant Iris surrounding the car are swirls of green, yellow and violet. Meadow Brook Hall is a soft, misty structure in the background. The scene strikes the viewer the way the elegant mansion and rolling grounds impress the visitor to Meadow Brook: The feeling is one of entering a fairy-tale world.

"(I wanted to) capturo this surreal quality of the event. I didn't want to paint every brick on . Meadow Brook."

The car is presented from the rear because of its distinction.

"I wanted the feeling that you could almost step right into the car.

"(The car is) such a powerful subject we can all relate to." Thirteen other artists from all, over the world will exhibit pieces for the Concours d'Elegance. A preview of their works will be at the new Chrysler Tech Center in Auburn Hills.

Personal touch

Hale was commissioned for the Concours d'Elegance poster in December 1993. Through someone he knew in a restoration company he was able to get permission to use the $5 million car, owned by Ralph Lauren, as the. model for the poster. He was supported in his inclination to "take a risk, try something adventuresome."

The artist photographed the car as part of his research. He made preliminary sketches on legal pads, adding notes. He wasn't going for a high level of realism. The painting for the poster was six by four feet.

The annual Concours d'Elegance, now in its 17th year, is known worldwide, "So I felt pretty good." While the commission was a little intimidating, Hale still thought, "What a wonderful assignment.

"I feel really good about it. I feel it's a good piece of art."

The work has a deeper, special meaning for Hale. It was the last painting his wife of 32 years. Micki, was involved with, offering ideas and critiques. She died in December.

"There's a lot of her in that painting."

At work

Hale works at his home in a studio he built about four years ago. It's a warm, open place filled with light, with a view looking out at woods.

"Every day is a work day."

Hale's awards include the Gold Medal of Honor, the highest award of the American Watercolor Society. He has been honored with an artist-in-residence award by the Farmington Area Arts Commission.

"I never have a problem with (inspiration for) paintings. They take me so long, weeks and months.

"It's a challenge. I'm never short of ideas for paintings, just short of time."

Next on Hale's busy artistic agenda is the Pebble Beach Classic Car Show in California. He is making an art work of the Chrysler Viper. The artist is also working on a series of Southwest images.

"I like to do architectural things."

Attraction Hale had a long fascination with cars.

"I wanted to be a car designer. That was all I wanted to do from the time I was 7 years old."

He worked as a styling designer. for 20 years for General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors. In 1985 he and Micki talked about how much he enjoyed art. He decided to take up painting. full time.

"I never looked back, not for a moment.

"Nobody could pay me for the freedom that I have,"

Hale shows his work all over the world and has a major buyer in Japan. He took part again in last month's Ann Arbor Art Fair. This is the kind of show he especially enjoys, one that gives him a chance to talk with the viewers. Sometimes a person will buy one of his works simply because he or she likes the art.

"That's exciting. I like that kind of a sale,

"I do things in painting that some people respond to."

A youngster wrote Hale a letter after seeing his work in a show. The boy told him he liked his pictures, asked how he made them shiny and enclosed a drawing of his own. Hale wrote back to the youngster, encouraging him to "draw every day."

"Everything about the art is exciting. I meet interesting people I would never have a reason to meet. Ordinary people. The art takes me to some amazing placés.

BY LINDA ANN CROMIN PROTAL WRITTER

Two years ago doctors discovered award-winning artist Nancy Hurd suffers from Parkinson's, a discase characterized by the severe trembling in its victim's hands.

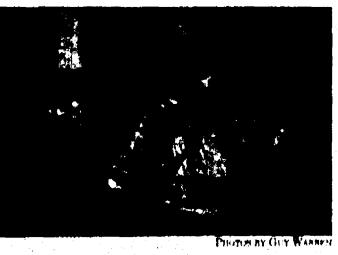

Hurd retired two weeks ago from her position as a graphics technician for the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, Although the tremor in Hurd's left hand does not prevent her from drawing because she's right handed. tomorrow or even today, that could all change

In the meantime, Hurd works furiously rendering beautiful and sensitive colored pencil portraits of friends along with surreal scenarios the viewer must put together like a jigaaw puzzle.

The Livonia Arts Commission is sponsoring a 32 piece exhibit of Hurd's works on paper as well as a few of her figurative clay aculptures through Aug. 31 in the Civic Center Library Fine Arta Gallery, Five Mile and Farmington Roads in Livonia.

Award winning artist Nancy Hurd draws sensitive, and sometimes surreal, portraits.

in hand gathering up members of her family. Her aunt's death as well that of her own mother last year triggered a maze of emotional pain with which Hurd's had to deal. Her art serves as a vehicle for expressing sometimes subconscious thoughts and feelings:

"Sho was always taking care of others," said Wird of her aunt. "I work out a lot of stuff on paper. If I can put it down on paper, it seems more valid to me, Trees and roots are reoccuring due to family matters. I use flowers as symbols of a soft side of a person."

Born and raised in Ann Arbor, Hurd graduated from the University of Michigan with majors in painting, ceramics and sculpture. Her degree was in design. For 18 years after graduation family life took top priorty as she raised four children.

During this time Hurd painted only for her own pleasure. She began seriously painting after returning from a trip to Europe where she spent a year working in ceramic sculpture at Lancaster Polytechnic in Coventry, One of the major influences on her life and painting was a trip to the International Women's Con-6 ference in Nairobi, Kenya 10 years ago. "Going to Africa influenced mon lot. It was like another world there, another dimension. It was enlightening to see how women are workhorses; When you think of technology in this country you think of computers.

In Renya, technology is cooking on a piece of tin' over rocks instead of just cooking on the rocks," said Hurd who taught drawing classes in Livonia's community education program for 10 years.

Hurd starts her colored pencil work by doing thumbnail sketches of subjects from photographs "to see where the oye is going to be led; to indicate a play of lights and darks."

She then transfers these images onto a medium value paper instead of plain white. As colored pencil is a time consuming medium, the pastel colored paper lays the groundwork or background for her subjects.

"The paper becomes very important. It's always influencing the color shining through the paper."

I FOLKLIFE FESTIVAL

Christian Tramp of Garden City will be a featured artist at the Michigan State University Museum Festival of Michigan Folklife 11 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 5-6 and 12-13 on MSU's Landon Field. Tramp takes knot tying and rigging to an art. The Coast Guard reservist now stationed at Belle Isle is amazed by all the attention he's received for his skills when sailors have practiced the art for centuries. Tramp's career in the Coast Guard helps explore this year's Folklife Festival theme, "Creativity at Work." The ninth annual festival uses the theme to celebrate the role of creativity in traditional occupations. A special area features building restoration work, stained glass and stone carving. Admission is $20 at the gate with day passes at $5 each. Children under 10 are free.

I ON THE MOVE

Observerland artists are busy this summer exhibiting their work in a variety of places around the metro Detroit area. Among them is ceramicist Judy Buresh of Garden City, who will bring her Eastern and pre-Columbian influenced pottery to the Ferndale Art Fair Aug. 5-6.

Redford Township sculptor Randell Lentz takes part in a group show "Artel Figurative Works II" continuing through Aug. 21 at the Urban Park Gallery, 508 Monroe St. in Detroit's Greektown.

Redford Township artists Marlan Mudie, James Pujdowski and Sergio De Giusti are among the artists in "Fire" continuing through Aug. 12 at the Michigan Gallery, 2661 Michigan Ave. in Detroit.

Curated by Carl Kamulski, "Firo" is the final segment of the element series of exhibitions. The Livonia Arts Commission presents a series of artists in the Civic Center Complex on Five Mile east of Farmington Road: colored pencil artist Nancy Hurd of Livonia exhibits portraits and surreal scenes through Aug. 31 in the Civic Center Library Fine Arts Gallery; and Plymouth watercolorist Jean Weber who uses a full palette of vibrant colors, also through Aug. 31, in the lobby at Livonia City Hall.

I CALL FOR ARTISTS

Attention all Observerland artists. Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn is looking for you to exhibit in its ninth annual juried Holiday Arts and Crafts Boutique to be held Saturday, Nov. 11.

Sponsored by the HFCC Alumni Association, the show features more than 70 artists and crafters from Michigan and Ohio. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $1 and parking is free.

Proceeds go to support scholarships and other programs and projects at HFCC.

For a craft show application, please call the Office of the Vice President/Dean of Student Services, (313) 848-9610, 8-10 a.m. Monday through Friday.

> Bevy of Birds: Visitors to the 21st annual Livonia Woodcarvers Club Show, August 5-6, will find everything from decoy ducks to this cagle carved by Barney Robinson.

Paintings capture flash of 'grease lightning'

BY MARY KLEMIC STAFY WRITER

The sleek motorcars sipping along the race track flash in and out of view like lightning. But these instants linger with artists who catch the beauty and power of the vehicles and transfer that appeal to paintings and sculpture.

"It's serious art," said Jack Juratovic of Lake Orion, a founding member of the Automotive, Fine Arts Society.

One of Juratovic's paintings bears this out: a dramatic image of an elegant 1935 auto tearing ahead of a giant locomotive, each vehicle's angled look giving it an intensity, the blazing sky filled with exhaust and clouds.

Charles Maher of Bloomfield Hills is another artist serious about the subject. His paintings of race cars seem to vibrate with motion, showing vibrantly colored vehicles surrounded with streaks and spots of color, flecks apparently spinning from blurred wheels.

"That's one of the reasons I like (auto art) . . . (is to) get into the energy," Maher said. Juratovic and Maher are among the 13 automotive artists featured in an invitational show that is part of TDM Meadow Brook Historic Races XI, taking place Friday-Sunday, Aug. 4-6, at the Waterford Hills Race Track in Clarkston.

The art exhibit has grown to become the largest motorcar art show. The race event, in conjunction with the Concours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook at Oakland University in Rochester, includes an ice cream social, music and a silent auction. Charles Morgan, joint managing director of the Morgan Motor Co., is grand marshal.

"It's real casual and comfortable," Maher said.

The Waterford Hills Race Track, a small, tight track, is "very visitor friendly," Juratovic said.

These events are more related. to motorcars going back through the 1930s while the Concours d'Elegance is more related to classic cars, the artists said.

The art tent will be set up at the track both Saturday and Sunday. The wide price range for the works begins at around $25.

Besides Juratovic and Maher, the other Michigan artists are Bill Couch Jr. of Dryden and Harvey Winn of Ferndale. The remaining painters and sculptors come from Canada and Great Britain as well as California, Indiana, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Couch grew up with Hot Wheels toy race cars and watching actual races.

"M; generation grew up watching that," he said. "... Live it all over again. There's some sort of bond there. I enjoy that aspect,

"There's some sort of allure, some connection there."

Maher is attracted by the bold graphics and colors on NASCAR vehicles.

"It's all just an instant thing," he said. "Two seconds later, it's gone."

Juratovic favors the motorcars. from the '30s to '50s.

"I just happen to like the cars from that era. (They were) heroic. Things were evolving . . . quickly back then," he said.

Admission is free Friday (practice day) and $10 each day. The track opens 10 a.m. and official racing begins 3 p.m. each day. To get to the race track, take the Sashabaw (Pine Knob) exit to Pelton. Call (810) 650-5566 for information.

You'll have to suspend disbelief to get through 'The Net'

BY DOLORES BARCLAY AP NEWSPEATURES

How do you know a movie is in trouble? When it opens with a puffy Ken Howard talking into a cellular phone, muttering, "So this is really reality?" and then committing suicide because he's been diagnosed with AIDS.

That's how Irwin Winkler's "The Net" starts out. We later learn that Howard, a congressman, didn't really have AIDS. His records were changed by the forces behind a nefarious scheme to control all government, private #### and institutional data.

But what should be a caution. ary thriller about the threat to privacy is morely a silly little ex-ercise, "The Net" (the shortened lingo among computer users for the Internet) almost makes it, but lacks edge and grit.

Even the movie's excursions in cyber-dynamics are fairly pedestrian. Far better computer suspense has been played out in "Sneakers" and "War Games."

The Snake — Shane MacGowan and the Popes

With his whiskey-soaked demeanor and a mouthful of blackened, twiated teeth, Shane MacGowan's reputation precedes him. Back in the '80s, the exsinger of the Pogues' cartoony persona became more famous than his nowrevered band, one of the first to marry traditional Irish music with modern rock.

The idea of the Pogues was always better than the real thing (the uninspired trashing of "Honky. tonk Women" found on "Pogues Essential borders on sacrilege) and the same goes for "The Snake." Blending penny whistles and fuzzed-up guitars is an intriguing idea, but thanks to MacGowan and Dave Jordan's flat production, intended ravers, like "That's Woman's Got Me Drinking" and "A Mexican Funeral in Paris" merely sound cluttered. Only the opening "The Church of the Holy Spook," a rollicking tale of religious family tradition, succeeds with this formula. Traditional jigs like "Nancy Whiskey" and "The Rising of the Moon" may be instantly memorable, but only because MacGowan's vocal melody and the whistle melody are exactly the same on every such song. During the course of 15 tracks, this effect gets annoying quickly.

The real tragedy here is "Haunted," a duet with Sinead O'Connor. Placed near the album's end and coming after nearly an hour of MacGowan's passionless gruntings, O'Connor's vocals are startling and breathtaking. Then the grim reality seeps in: a duet means two singers. Soon O'Connor's spell is rudely broken by her host's attempt at crooning along. Sung alone by O'Connor, "Haunted" could have been a classic, which attests to MacGowan's songwriting skills but also makes his vocal shortcomings embarrassingly obvious

As bad as his reputation may be, MacGowan is capable of producing some of his own magic, as evidenced on bis remake of "What A Wonderful World" with Nick Cave a few years ago. While his sense of humor and lyrical gifts sometimes shine here, particularly on "Victoria," the album just doesn't add up musically. In the end, the album's lyric sheet is better reading than "I no Shako" is listening.

Singer returns from self exile

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STATE WRITER

When Peter Murphy completed his 1992 "Holy Smoke" world tour, he needed to make a clean break. He dissolved his longtime backing band. The Hundred Men, and moved his family from London to Turkey hoping to recharge his musical career.

"I set out to burn bridges, to give myself a feeling of freshness and vitality," Murphy said. "That burning of bridges went as far as potentially accepting that I'd finished in the music business. It was a purging period - making a clean break. The splitting up of the band, although as much for economic reasons as any, seemed to be an appropriate part of that."

As he rose to the surface of his selfimposed hiatus, he realized that his music career wasn't over with. The result is 'Cascade'' (Beggars Banquet/ Atlantic), a release that leaves the dance club vibe behind and goes full force into the adult alternative market. The first single "The Scarlet Thing In You" is his lyrical sequel to his 1990 hit single "Cuts You Up" from the album "Deep." Lush, introspective songs like the hook-laden "Gliding Like The Whale" and 'Subway" carry most of the album.

Lyrically, the album has a stamp of Turk culture on it. "Wild Birds Flock To Me" takes its cue from the aspirant poetry of the 13th century mystic, Jelaladdin Rumi. Musically, there would seem to be a distinctly Turkish. influence on "Cascade," but Murphy said it was quite the opposite.

"This is the first album which doesn't have a Turkish instrument on it." he said via telephone from his Orlando, Fla., hotel room. Murphy could have been on Mars and not be affected.

"I've always written in private space. I've never been one to branch out and socialize music. My music's always been quite introspective. Yes, there's obviously some influences there. (Moving to Turkey) has probably clarified a few things for me."

No thanks: Former Bauhaus singer Peter Murphy, who plays Industry on Monday, Aug. 14, said none of the current music he hears impresses him except for maybe Seal.

ly new band together. Because of that, it brought us all into that sort of area where we were starting from scratch. It has a sense of danger to it really, I let myself be taken by that sort of very basic need activity of getting the songs happening and played well." "It's taken me back to the early days where you are on the edge and you're on the line.' Murphy is the former lead singer for the ground-breaking goth band Bauhaus, which broke up in 1983. He's seen the "alternative" scene come and go and frankly he's not impressed with what he sees now, except for Seal. "A lot of the instrumental music keeps me interested. I like a lot of classical music. I like a lot of the jazz music. I'm totally disconnected from all that. I don't know whether that's good or bad. On MTV I see a Nine Inch Nails there; Nirvana constantly. ... MTV seems like repetitions of the same sort of theme of that very. vibrant but yet unfortunately senseless youthful rage, but it does spark up a lot of energy which kind of justifies it in a way."

I 'l set out to burn bridges, to give myself a feeling of freshness and vitality. That burning of bridges went as far as potentially accepting that I'd finished in the music business. It was a purging period — making a clean break.

"Cascade" is Murphy's first album since 1991's "Holy Smoke." Although he took a break from the industry, most of the last four years have been spent perfecting the lyrics and music of "Cascade." His financial situation doesn't allow him to hone his skills in the studio during the recording of the album.

"I'm not like a U2 who has the money to hire the studio for two years solid and play around with the ideals until we get it right. I have to get it right from the word go. . . . I don't have the luxury to really think about different ideas. It's pretty much a one-shot thing."

Murphy is now in the midst of a U.S. tour in support of the new album with his new band. For his live shows, which comes to Industry in Pontlac on Monday, Aug. 14, Murphy said he's concentrating less on the visual aspect and more on the musical presentation.

"I've taken it down a notch in terms of The Hundred Men. We pretty much take it where we left off and start to reshape it. I had to get a total-

Parents must decide appropriateness of Kids'

For those who believe that children are the future, "Kids" is the bleakest, most depressing movie ever made. What occurs on screen is every parent's nightmare: shoplifting, profanity, random violence, casual drug use,

and unprotected sex.

Is this really the lifestyle of choice for kids on the streets of New York and elsewhere? No doubt.

Do we really need to see a film about it? That depends.

'Kids' opens with 16-year-old Telly (I.co Fitzpatrick) attempting to deflower one in a long line of virgins. He turns on the charm, tells the nervous girl to trust him. then bursts out the door minutes later to brag to his friends.

The rest of the movie charts a day in the life of Telly and company on a hot summer day, It shows them beating up a stranger in the park, breaking into a pool, partying at trashed Manhattan apartments or at the ubiquitous raves.

Meanwhile, Telly's on the prowl for another virgin, the 13year-old sister of a friend.

Photographer Larry Clark, who makes his film debut with "Kids," probably approached this low-budget movie with good intentions, He and 19-year-old screenwriter Harmony Korine have created a documentary-style cautionary tale where kids run wild.

Clark's band of inexperienced actors won't win any Oscars, but they have a realness about them that transcends the slurred lines and jerky camera work. And unlike movies where 20-year-olds play teens, these kids really look their ages: 12 to 16.

Fitzpatrick's gawky Telly epitomizes shallow, self-centered, hormone-driven adolescence better than anyone on film. Chloe Sevigny's Jennie offers a glimpse of compassion and maturity in the film, though she is ultimately doomed by the AIDS virus.

Parents and other adults have only a limited place in these kids' lives. A quick scene with Telly's mom shows that she has absolutely no control over her son while another with a cab driver

Some scenes really work in "Kids," which is at the core just an over-the-top After School Special: In one, the movie cross-cuts between boys and girls for their

Though the movie stops short of full frontal nudity, the graphic sexual situations in "Kids" make you question the use of such young actors. Here Clark, whose work has long focused on street. kids, walks the thin line between realist and child pornographer.

Unhappy with the MPAA's decision to brand the film NC-17 (no one under 17 admitted), the movie's distributors have released who attempts to communicate it without a rating. This means that minors must be accompanied by an adult or legal guardian, a rule which will most likely be enforced in its exclusive run at Royal Oak's Main Art Theatre.

And if it forces some dialogue between real kids and their parents, this might be good. While Chicago critic Gene Siskel believes that everyone 16 and over should see "Kids," ultimately it's the parents who will decide to give the movie thumbs up or down.

Scots gather for Highland Games

It seems appropriate that the historic grounds of the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House will be the site for the oldest Highland Games in all of North America. The St. Andrew's Society of Detroit will host its 146th annual Highland Games from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 5, at the Ford House.

Throughout the day, the sound of baguipes and drums; the smell of Scottish shortbread, tea cakes and other delectable fare; the lively exchange of merchants selling everything from kilts to bagpipes to Highland dancers; and, best of all, the sight of athletes competing in traditional Scottish athletics, make the Highland Games a visual and historic feast.

One of this year's highlights will be the presence of Allan Wells of Edinburgh, Scotland, this year's honored guest. In 1980, Wells was a gold and silver medalist on the British Olympic team, taking the gold in the 100meter run and the silver in the 200-meter run.

In addition to Wells, athletes from throughout the United States and Canada will particivate in traditional Scottish games including The Stone Put, Weights for Distance, Weight for Height, Hammers, Challenge Caber, Farmer's Walk and Caber Toss. The Caber Toss is the most spectacular event at any Highland gathering. A feat of strength, balance and agility, it has remained basically unchanged over the centuries and is referred to in ancient records as "ye casting of ye bar."

There will also be music and dancing competitions. In all, there will be 20 massed bands, 200 dancers and 40 clans entertaining thousands of spectators. Yet another highlight will be the sights and sounds of the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society.

"The Detroit Highland Games let everyone show off a wee bit of their Scottish pride, just as St. Patrick's Day gives everyone an opportunity to be Irish for a day."

Because of the variety of events and entertainment, the Highland being plentiful . . . and free . . . Games is a fun family event. Opening ceremonies begin at 9 a.m. with an invocation and national anthems, followed by massed pipes and drums, the parade of the Clans, the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society, the presentation of dancers and athletes, and a lament for the deceased. Registration for amateur events also begins at 9 a.m. Presentation of awards and a brief closing ceremony will begin at 5 p.m., as the time in between is filled with all sorts of activities and events.

Tickets for the day can be bought at the gate for $8. Children under 12 are admitted free, Parking is $2. The Edsel and Eleanor Ford House is at 1100 Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Shores, between Vernier and Nine Mile roads.

Athletes to compete

The St. Andrew's Society of Detroit Annual Highland Games will feature traditional Highland events. Professional athletes from Canada and the United States will compete in the Games, and daring amateurs are also invited to sign up for competition at their own level.

Events include:

The Stone Put - With stones it is not difficult to understand why Scots have been tossing stones for as long as there have been Highland Games. The stone is thrown with one hand in any fashion, from behind a wooden "trig," or toe board. A foul is called if the athlete steps on the trig. Measurement is taken from the center of the trig to the nearest break of ground. The stone is a 20-pounder found on the shore of Lake Huron. Each athlete gets three throws.

Weights for Distance - The weight throw events enable the competitor to showcase his strength, speed and his degree of athletic ability. The weight is a metal ball attached to a ring han. dle by a short chain, no more than 18 inches long. There are two weights, 28 and 56 pounds. The weight is thrown for a distance with one hand only. The athlete is allowed to take a nine foot approach behind the trig and the same foul rules apply as in the stone throw. Each athlete gets three tries, with his best attempt counted.

Weight for Height --- The 56pound weight is also used in this event. The competitor uses one hand only and tries to deliver the weight up and over a crossbar set at a predetermined distance from the ground. Each thrower is given three attempts at each height. The bar is moved up until only one competitor is able to clear the bar. If the weight touches or dislodges the bar, the throw is ruled a foul.

Test of strength: An athlete competes in the weights for distance even at last year's Highland Games which come around once again Saturday, Aug. 5, sponsored by the St. Andrew's Society of Detroit.

Hammers — The throwing of the hammer was a popular test of strength among the lads in the tries with the longest throw blacksmith shops and stone quar- counting.

ries of the Scottish Highlands The hammers have spherical a heads. The 16-pound hammer is attached to a chain, the 28-pound :* hammer is attached to a 50-inch i hickory handle. The athlete must stand behind the trig and cannot 2 turn his legs until after the release of the hammer over his. shoulder. Each athlete gets three

Richard Lewis plays Chaplin's

Richard Lewis, the neurotic comedian, will be appearing August 4 and 5 at Chaplin's Comedy Club East as part of his "Magical Misery Tour." Showtimes are 8:30 and 10:30 Friday and Saturday August 4-5. Tickets are $20 and can be purchased in advance by calling (810) 792-1902. Chaplin's East is at 34244 Groesbeck Highway (just south of 15 Mile Road) in Clinton Township. No passes or discounts will be accepted. Must be 21 or older.

Lewis' stand-up has led him to do three cable specials, the latest of which is the ACE-nominated "I'm Doomed" which sired on HBO. His "Late Night with David Letterman" appearances now number more than :50.

His movie appearances include the recent release, "Wagons Bast" with John Candy as well as Mel Brooks' "Robin Hood: Men in Tights." Lewis has also just completed "Drunks" starring Amanda Plummer and Paye Dunaway, as well as co-starring with Jack Lemon in "Weekend in the Country."

Emmy-winning comedian Chip Chinery will be headlining Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, August 9-13. Call (810) 542-9900 for showtimes and reservations.

Folk trio comes full circle with 'Lifelines'

BY MARK E, GALLO SPECIAL WRITER

Peter, Paul & Mary will be ap. pearing at Ping Knob, 7:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 4. Tickets $22.50 pavilion, $12.50 lawn. Call (810) 645-6666. For information, call (810) 377-0100

Speaking with "Noel" Paul Stookey by phone from his home In Blue Hill Falls, Maine, recently, I was struck by his gentle and gracious demeanor. In close to 20 vears of interviewing musicians, famous and obscure, he is one of the few I'd recommend as a next door neighbor.

The 1958 Birmingham (now Seaholm) High School graduate is heat known, of course, as the middle name in the most famous folk trio of all time: Peter, Paul & Mary. Their concert tour will bring them to Pine Knob on Friday, Aug. 4, in support of their 18th album in 33 years, "Lifelines." Billed as by PPM&, it is a disc that ranks among their best, as well as, surprisingly, among the most impressive collections of 1995 in any genre.

Thirty-five years ago Michigan State University student and aspiring comic Stookey met fledgling folk singer Mary Travers and singer and Cornell-degreed paychologist Peter Yarrow in Greenwich Village, New York. The Village was a hotbed of activity for folk music at the time and the new trio was the first of many later name acts to emerge from the fertile scene. In 1962 they released their eponymous debut for Warner Brothers Records, the label for whom they still record, and their version of "If I Had A Hammer" became something of an anthemn for the Civil Rights movement.

In the early days they were instrumental in introducing the musical world to Gordon Lightfoot, John Denver and a Minnesota boy who came to be known as Bob Dylan.

With the release of "Lifelines," they've come full circle in many ways. They share the recording with many musical guests ---hence the "PPM&" credit. Some come from the early Greenwich Village days - Dave Van Ronk on a poignant medley of "Wanderin'/Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out," with John Sebastian on harmonica; Ramblin' Jack Elliott on Woody Guthrie's "Deportee." Some they met early on along the road ----Holly Near on the wonderful "Home is Where the Heart Is"; Judy Collins on Peter's "Take the Chance"; Richie Havens, Carly and Lucy Simon on a remake of "The Great Mandala (The Wheel of Life)". And some came later --Emmy Lou Harris with Stookey on his "For the Love of it All." The current crop of folk performers is also well represented on the album with Cheryl Wheeler and Sally Fingerett featured.

The musical magic shared with B.B. King and the remaining three members of the Weavers --Pete Seeger, Ronnie Gilbert and Fred Hellerman - are emotional highlights, as well.

TRAVEL

Upon completion of this new disc, Stookey recalls that Mary lamented that the collection had no thematic connection, "and I gave a litany on how each piece was like a -- I didn't call it a lifeline, it was a life journey. Peter said that was a great title, but I thought it sounded too much like a retrospective.

"The first idea was to have Mary and B.B. King do 'House of the Rising Sun.' Then once you cross a threshold ...," he laughed, the sentence unfinished. The intention was to work with "people we'd marched with and cried with and laughed with.

"There were notables we missed," he sighed. "If we do it again, for the PBS special we're about to do, or for another album, we'd have to include John Denver, Gordon Lightfoot, Tom Parton, Lou Gossett . . .

Lou Gossett? The actor? "He played congas in the Village when we were there," Stookey said.

How about Dylan?

"I don't think he'd care. He's moved on to other things."

If older fans of the trio have moved on, this will be the collection to bring them back, whether they think of the group in political terms or strictly as a singalong musical aggregation.

"I think our fans, the ones who come to a lot of our shows, tend to think of us . . . not quite so politically," Stookey said. After all, this is a fourth generation coming to these performances; the young crowd who came to the early shows often brought their parents.

- will perform Friday at Pine Knob.

"I think anything we have in common tends to work toward identification," he said. "If you marched with us, you'd have a certain bias. You'd yearn for a world with no racial animosity, no bigotry. In the 1960s, it felt like we had a handle on it. We had a glimpse before drugs took it out the other side of reality. To the extent that the dream was not realized, a lot of people turned off to what I call the 'gentle politic,' the love. Loves moves slower than the political process. Some of those people became cynics."

Stookey said he is pleased that his trio still shares an optimism that's not naive.

The trio still performs about 12 of the 20 really big hits from the PP&M songbook.

"It's pretty hard to get off the stage without doing 'Puff' ("Puff the Magic Dragon"), 'Jet,' ("Leaving on A Jet Plane"), 'Blowin' ("Blowing in the Wind") and " 'Hammer' ("If I Had a." Hammer")."

He hastens to add that it doesn't get old, still, all these years later.

On the subject of age, Stookey is on record for the new album with his "Old Enough" (Ode to an Aging Rocker), on which he sings, "I realize that even at an old age I could still do this. Age will overlook the musical genre. But it ain't true for rock and roll. I could go on stage at 80 and do what I do, but it would be pretty weird to do this in spander. You can't count on persona and special effects."

Peter Yarrow, Paul Stookey and Mary Travers will probably still? be asked to volunteer their services for various anti-war causes and other social issues when they're 80, and as long as fate conspires to keep them in our midst, you can be sure that when there is cause for a good sing out, they'll be the first to take the stage.

At Bombay Curry House in Garden City, some like it hot, some like it medium, and some like it mild. We're talking curry. Wonderful, authentic curry. Keep in mind, however, that even if a timid palate makes you order mild, it's going to be a bit spicy. But that's the delight of Indian food, Open only seven months, small, unpretentious Bombay Curry, which shares a strip mall with a few other Indian businesses, is developing a loyal following. When asked who his customers are, owner Nar Jaywor said; "mostly Indian and American." Most are quite familiar with Indian food, Some are new, then. they keep coming back.

Jaywor credits much of his restaurant's budding reputation to his chef, Haji Banaras, who has cooked for state dignitaries. in India and Pakistan, "He's quite well-known in the Pakistani as well as the Indian communities," said Jaywor. "his specialties are chicken and lamb dishes, tandoori dishes and biriyani dishes."

Chef Banaras's "Chicken Tikka 'Masala" may well be the house specialty. It consists of boneless ·chicken marinated overnight in homemade yogurt and spices then cooked in a tandoor (the traditional Indian clay oven). with tomatoes, ginger root, onion and green pepper.

Biriyani entrees also are becoming a favorite with many customers according to Jaywor. Biriyanis are basmati rice dishes layered with fresh herbs, meat, chicken, seafood or vegetables. Some have nuts and raisins. All are slow-cooked for several hours to harmonize the flavors,

Ram Prasad, a Dearborn resident and a physician at the Medical Center in Detroit, is a weekly Bombay Curry customer. "I enjoy the food here," he said. "Today I had chicken biriyani, but I've tried all of them at different times. It's excellent." The heart of Bombay Curry is truly its kitchen, and the menu reflects this. It's varied and nicely balanced between vegetarian and meat entrees. Dishes arrive at the table well-presented and piping hot. Also, everything is quite affordable, another reason to come back a second time.

Items like "Masala Dosa," a vegetarian potato and onion dish layered with crispy, thin pastry and served with chutney, at $4.99, is especially appealing. So is "Lamb Korma," cooked with yogurt, almonds and some spices, at $7.99. Also, there are numerous special breads, some stuffed with vegetables or meats. Livonia, 49-8 overall, advances to the AABC Regional Tournament beginning Friday in Oregon, Ohlo.

Chris Woodruff's 3-run homer capped a six-hit, seven-run first inning surge for Livonia against Charlotte.

Other hitting heroes include Bob Malek, who was 3-for-5; Roy Rabe, two hits and three RBI; Chad Davia and Dale Hayes, two hits apiece.

Derek Fox was the winning pitcher.

Davis went 3-for-4 and Mark Mink contributed two hits and three RBI in a 17-4 semifinal victory over the Ann Arbor Angels.

In the opening round, Livonia beat Charlotte, 15-9, behind Malek's three hits. Rabe, Mink and For each added two hits.

Livonia also defeated the Port Huron Sor, 4-3, as winning pitcher Justin Draughn went the distance on a five-hitter.

Ryan Wilmering's two-run double in the bottom of the sixth proved to be the game-winner for Livonia.

Other members of the Livonia squad, which finished second in the Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation with an 18-4 record, include: Casey Rogowski, Brad Tracy, Justin Lance, Mario D'Herin and home run derby champ Brett Wells.

the four Observerland players in the game since that meant they were on the winning side.

Parmington Hills Harrison's Kevin Bryant was among the statistical leaders with some modest numbers.

He was one of two receivers with more than one catch (two each) for a game-high total of 17 yards, and he returned two kickoffs for 65 yards.

"It was a real conservative game," Bryant said. "In an all-star game, I think you should do some crazy stuff.

- double passes, triple reverses. "They were running dives on third down and 12; I don't understand. But we won."

Bryant, who reported Monday to the University of Michigan where he expects to play defensive back, relished the chance to play wide receiver one last time.

Both receptions - Birmingham Brother Rice guarterback Derek Canine and Bryant were 2-for-2 - were made in the right flat for gains of 5 and 12 yards in the first half.

The second went for a first down at the West 5 and led to Canine's scoring toss to Raymond Curry for the tying touchdown (7-7).

Possibly the most exciting play of the game belonged to Bryant, who returned his first kick (after the West touchdown) 44 yards on a reverse to Decision Consultants Inc. pitcher Dan Pydyn wanted to earn a trip to Johnstown, Pa. and he wasn't going to let one of his collegiate teammates get in the way.

Pydyn threw a four-hitter in a 7-2 victory Sunday over Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury in the championship game of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs at Livonia's Ford Fleid.

Pydyn and Hines Park starting and losing pitcher Craig Benedict happen to be teammates at Madonna Univer-

DCI scored three runs in the fifth inning, highlighted by a two-run home run by Greg Kiempisty, to build its lead to 5-1 and send Benedict to the bench.

DCI, which finished second behind Hines Park in the regular-season standings, advances to the All-American Amateur Baseball Association national tournament starting Aug. 12 in Johnstown.

The LCBL playoff winner has had to win a regional the last two years to qualify for the national tournament. The LCBL champion receives an automatic bid this year and coach Mike George is probably relieved since his teams at Madonna have gotten close but never won an NAIA regional.

After winning their first two games, the Blues lost back-toback games Saturday to Westland (6-5) and the Pennzoil Indians of Macomb County (11-6) in the district tournament at Plymouth Salem.

Westland scored twice in the top of the seventh inning to take a 6-4 lead and win the game despite being outhit 10-4. Four errors and seven walks proved costly for the Blues, who battled back to tie (4-4) after falling behind 3.0 in the first inning

Tim Morris, who pitched six innings and took the loss, had two doubles and Adam Smerecki two hits, including an RBI single in the seventh. Tim Miller also had a run-scoring single.

South Farmington outhit the Indians 10-5, but nine walks and more errors hurt the Blues. A five-run fifth inning by Macomb broke a 6-6 tie.

time, but they've adjusted and are playing well.

The only discouragement for George was knowing Benedict was the losing pitcher.

"Benny's a class kid and I'm. just glad I have him at Madonna," George said. "People say He's wearing different colors in the summer,' but I love him to peath.'

Pydyn beat Hines Park once in relief during the regular season, but failed to win in three starts gainst coach Dave Carroll's leam.

But DCI pitchers handcuffed flines Park hitters throughout the playoffs. After winning the shutout in a 6-0 win over Hines Park on Saturday.

Hines Park rebounded with a 5-1 win over Honig's on a pitching gem by Brian Paluk (Plymouth/ Redford CC) to advance to the championship round, but needed to defeat DCI in two straight on Sunday to win the playoffs and a berth to Johnstown.

This was the third-straight summer Hines Park has won the regular season championship and not won the playoffs.

"I thought for sure we had the team but they outplayed us," Carroll said. "We didn't hit the bail. We had batting practice every single day last week. The kids hit lead in the top of the first inning as Jeff Lance (Redford Thurston) walked and scored on a two-out single by Derek Besco.

But DCI tied the score in the bottom of the first. McGavin led off with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored on Petersen's two-out single.

Brian Hicks (Redford Catholic Central) led off the third with a double and came home on Kiempisty's single to put DCI ahead to stay, 2-1.

Petersen led off the fifth with a double and Kiempisty, playing despite a hamstring injury, gave DCI more breathing room with a homer over the left-field fence.

Decision rules district field

The Decision Consultants Inc. Connie Mack baseball team won a district last weekend in Macomb County despite finishing in sixth place during the regular season in the Little Caesars League.

Here's what makes that even more impressive; DCI dressed only 11 players for the district, which means some of the teams it played had nearly as many players on the bench as DCI had on the field.

DCI finished the district with a 5-1 record, including a 5-3 victory in the final over Great American to send coach Norm Brusseau's team into the regional at Battle Creek's Bailey Park.

Observerland stars, past and present, Pete Quinn (Redford Thurston), Greg Rogers (Redford Catholic Central), Mike Brusseau (Redford CC), Justin Stankewicz (Redford CC) and Brad Lear (Plymouth Salem) have been consistent performers for Brusseau, the coach.

"One of the parents on one of the teams said 'Norm, you got to be doing it with rubber bands, duct tapes and gum," said Brusseau, marveling at his team's togetherness and defense. "We've got it all oiled and in good shape. We don't have the best pitching, but we have the best defense in Connie Mack baseball. If you hit and we catch it and we do that seven innings without throwing the ball away, we win,"

DCI made only five errors in six district games despite playing without starting third baseman Mike Burgess (Dearborn Edsel Ford), who was out of town. DCI also played without twins Brett and Jim Imsland (Detroit Country Day), who were at a football camp, and Chris Gilhuly (University of Detroit-Jesuit), who was out of town.

missed, considering he led the your car, "Brusseau said. team with a .450 average, 10 doubles, seven home runs, 36 RBI and an .838 slugging percentage.

DCI persevered, however, beating Ann Arbor, 19-2, Birmingham, 7.0, and No. 1 seed Steele's 9.3 in the first three games. Great American handed DCI its first defeat, 6.5, before DCI came back and defeated Steele's a second time, 4-2, to advance into the final.

Recent pickups Brent Tajiri (Wayne Memorial) and Chris Demar (Milford Lakeland) won two pitching decisions each in the district, First baseman Mike Allison (Livonia Stevenson) also has been a key addition, picked up after the regular season with the two pitchers in a player draft. DCI also picked up a versatile player, Jessie Wozniak (Garden City), who can play the infield and pitch.

Mike Brusseau gives DCI spark at the top of the lineup with a .357 average, Rogers, who batted leadoff at CC as a senior last spring, hits ninth and has a .333 average. He had one of the more memorable at-bats of the season when he drove in two runners (without the benefit of an error) on a suicide squeeze during one of the district games.

Rogers follows Steve Sopo (Riverview) and Mark Taylor (Gibralter Carlson) in the lineup.

Coach Brusseau said the speed at the bottom of the lineup is remarkable based on Sopo having 18 bunts for singles, Taylor 24 and Rogers 14.

"They'll bunt you to death," Brusseau said.

DCI's top pitcher has been Stankewicz, who has a 5-4 record

Lady Crusaders' coach Abraham brings in big recruiting class

By C.J. RISAK STAPP Walter

When Jerry Abraham assumed coaching Madonna University's softball in addition to volleyball, he knew the team needed bolstering. By the time his third season on the job begins next spring, that goal will be realized.

At least in part.

Numbers-wise.

Abraham took a young - no seniors and just two juniors ----Lady Crusaders' team to the NAIA Great Lakes Regional last spring. They finished the season 25-18.

With 11 players certain to return (including all three pitchers), most coaches wouldn't have been too worried about recruiting. But Abraham isn't that sort.

The Madonna coach, who guided the Crusaders to the NAIA World Series in '93, not only re-adding there wasn't "a single question mark in the bunch."

In other words: "These are good, sound kids, with a good work ethic and with great attitudes."

That just about says it all. Or does it?

Not quite. Because the number of players Abraham was interest. ed in bringing to Madonna was not five or six, enough to keep his roster at 15 or 16. He has more. than doubled his team's size; 14 newcomers have committed to the Crusaders.

How did he do it? Well first. there's the aforementioned factor - a bit of luck. Everybody he went after, he got.

Secondly, it helps being the volleyball coach. Two of his recruits will also play on the Crusaders'

"I was impressed with the way she handled the bat in high school," said Abraham of Deane, a volleyball middle-hitter he envisions at first base or in the outfield. "When she gets shold of it, she can really drive it. Which is lust what I want - hopefully we can get some power out of her.

Russell, a 5-foot-8 outside hitter/defensive specialist in volleyball, can pitch and play several other positions. "Where she'll contribute, I really don't know," Abraham said.

But both should contribute, Still, considering the number of players Abraham has coming in, no one is irreplaceable,

And there are those who can, and indeed will, step in and help immediately. Five of his recruits are junior college players: Shawna Greene, Dawn Shaffer and Jamie Vickers, all from Oakland Community College; Melissa McGue, remaining; the other three will be juniors. Greene can, and very probably will, play several spots. A Clarkston grad, she has "good speed and good hat control." She hit over .400 at OCC.

Shaffer, a third baseman at OCC from Flint Linden, has a "great arm and is very gutsy," A .400 hitter, she is projected as a possible starter. Vickers, a .385 hitter, is another one who will challenge for playing time, probably in the infield. A Waterford Mott grad, she played second and shortstop at OCC.

McGue played at Taylor Kennedy (which is where Abraham saw her — he coached Taylor Center's softball team until last spring) before playing outfield at Henry Ford CC. "She hustles," Abraham said. "She's a Pete Rose-type player." She also hit .456 for the Hawks.

Piontkowski was voted the top catcher by Michigan's junior college coaches this past season; she boasts a strong arm and solid defense, and should combine with returning starter Jennifer Pinter to give Madonna a solid one-two tandem behind the plate.

Among the others coming to Madonna is Ann Bagazinski, another Franklin grad. Bagazinski led the Patriot regulars in hitting, batting .417, with 12 doubles, five triples, two home runs and 27 runs batted in. A shortstop and outfielder as a senior, she should at least add depth next season.

Jennifer Kuzara (Taylor Center), Kara Gizicki (Riverview Gabriel Richard), Janell Leschinger (Alpena), Marissa Mittleman (L'Anse Creuse), Catherine Ragsdale (New Boston Huron) and Jamie Heins (a transfer from Siena Heights University) join Bagazinski as walk-ons.

Kuzara is a second haseman noted for her speed; Gizicki is a left-handed finesse pitcher who plays several other positions; Leschinger was also a pitcher, noted for her control, but she played a variety of positions and hit .342; Mittleman was her team's MVP, hitting .472 with three homers and 22 RBI: Raga, dale is a solid defensive catcher (and team MVP) who hit .380; and Heins is a just-added transfer. with sophomore eligibility who played third base with the Saints... "Basically, it's been a wonderful year," summarized Abraham. "What we wanted from our recruiting was, No. 1, the best players we can get; No. 2, they should have a great work ethic - they have to want to play a lot of games; and No. 3, they have to be. good students,

III ELITE WINS FINALE

Ann Arbor Elite ended its inaugural U.S. Inter-regional Soccer League season with a pair of victories over the Detroit Wheels last weekend.

The Elite won 5-4 in a shootout Saturday before a crowd of 900 at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School and 4-2 Sunday at Bordon Park in Sterling Heights.

After a goal by the Elite's Justin Dunckel, the Wheels scored three straight goals Saturday, but goals by Scott Weiger and Joe Nora tied the score.

Bill Joker's goal with a minute left created a 4-4 tie and forced overtime. The 15-minute sudden death period was scoreless.

Elite goalkeeper Scotty Hauman stopped the first three Wheels shots, and Nors, Wayne Woross Jr. and Joker scored consecutive goals for the Blite.

Woross and Nora scored second-half goals Sunday to break a 2-2 halftime tie. Nora and Steve Weiger scored in the first half. Matt Tudor was in goal for the Elite.

We feel we're the best team in southeast Michigan," Blite owner Wayne Worosz Sr. said, adding the Blite also won the Michigan Amateur Cup. "Although ou record (5-13) is not impressive, we lost five games by 1-0 scores and three more by 2-1 scores."

Worosz plans to move his team to Livonia and field a professional unit next year, A site hasn't been selected yet. Woross said he plans to retain five or six players but continue to utilize Observerland talent.

E UNITED 3-ON-S CHAMPS

O&E sponsors Zoo 5K

BY CHRIS MAYER STAFF WRITER

Nike Inc. encourages people to "Just Do It", but the Michigan Coalition on Donation is inviting you to "Just Zoo It!".

Although aporty-looking athletic shoes won't be the main attractions, plenty of them will be hitting the pavement Saturday, Aug. 12 when the Michigan Coalition on Donation, a host of sponsors including the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, and the Motor City Striders stage "Just Zoo It! - A Run For Life" at The Detroit Z00.

The first benefit, scheduled to promote public awareness of organ donation and transplantation, will feature a 5K run sanctioned by the U.S. Track and Field Association and a timed 11/4 mile fun walk within the zoo.

"This is not a fund-raiser so we're not trying to make money,"

We chose to support Just Zoo It! because of its mission to educate the public through an event the entire family can attend," said Pamela Blount, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers' promotion manager. "While organ and tissue donation remains a very personal decision, information is vital in that process."

The Michigan Coalition on Donation held a smaller promotional event in April of 1994, but Gravel expects upwards of 1,200 participants for "Just Zoo Itl". And he could be right, based on the current number of completed registration forms.

"Actually we're getting in return entries at a faster pace than any other race this year except for maybe the Race For The Cure (in April)," Ed Kozloff said. Kozloff is president of the Motor City Striders, which organizes a num ber of local running events each year and is the host club for "Just Zoo It!." "The Detroit Zoo is a popular spot and centrally located and that's a factor," Kozloff added. "And this is a slightly different event. Usually at most races people just come out for the competition or the workout aspect. They run, have some refreshments and maybe stay for the awards and then they're on their way. The races may not be the focal point of this day. 'We're trying to reach people that may not have ever considered donation," Gravel said. "We want to have a day that's family-oriented and that demonstrates transplant patients lead productive lives. Some people believe transplant patients remain debilitated or housebound, but that's not the case." If you would like to volunteer to help at the event, contact Bob Garyple at (313) 408-8297, The Detroit Zoo is located on Woodward Ayenue just south of I-696,

Getting defensive

The apparent lack of offense was OK with Torrey Thomas of Redford Bishop Bo Townsend, however. Thomas rotated at inside linebacker and covered kickoffs, and Townsend played defensive tackle and noseguard. Townsend (6.4, 255) had two goals for the week of practice and the game itself. One was to prove he could compete against betterknown linemen. For most of the game, Townsend battled 262-pound tackle Ron Acheson (Lowell/Michigan) and 300-pound center Jason Stealy (Marshall/Indiana) and held his own.

Townsend didn't have any official tackles, but he managed to stop a play nonetheless.

"One time I plugged up a double team," he said. "I went to my knees like they teach you, and the running back tripped over everybody.

Townsend expected to play offensive tackle but was pleased, even relieved, when he was given a defensive role,

"You don't have an assignment but a responsibility (on defense), he said, "It's not dead set, but you have a job. The defensive guys have a lot more fun, too."

said Mark Gravel, the Michigan Coalition on Donation's events chairman. "Our goal is to make people aware of donations and transplants and let people knowwhat they can do."

Organ transplantation recently made national headlines with the saga of former New York Yankees slugger and baseball Hall of Famer Mickey Mantle, who required a life-saving liver transplant in June.

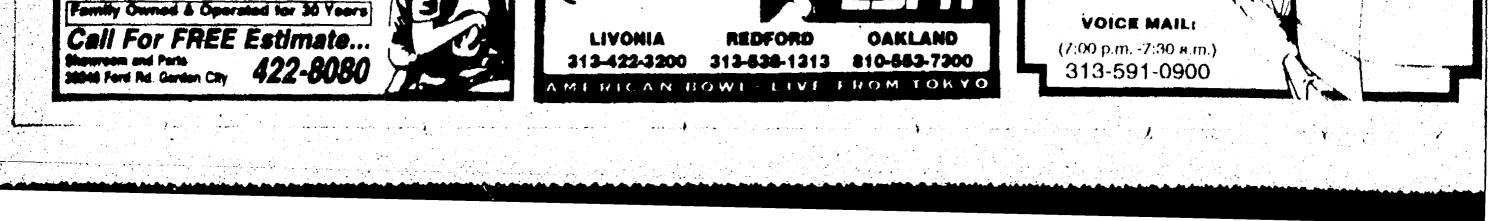

"We want all people to be educated about donation," Gravel said. "It's not just the Mickey Mantles who receive organs. It's the common, everyday people also. This is about adults and. children given a second chance at life."

In addition, Gravel stressed the importance of "Just Zoo It!" being a family-oriented affair. Family entertainment, including a special appearance by the Detroit Firefighter's Clowns, will be offered from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the main picnic area of the Detroit Zoo.

Girls Olympic Development program adds talent

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

Opinions differ, that's certain -which is to be expected. But anyone bothering to keep a tally on such things must note that Michigan's success placing players in the Olympic Development Program's regional girls soccer pool is superb.

For the second-straight year, Michigan boasted the largest number of qualifiers among the 13 states (and 14 teams - Ohio has two teams) to the four agegroup teams. A total of 25 players from the state were selected for the regional pools at the U.S. Youth Soccer Association's Midwest Regional Camp, held July 6-16 in DeKalb, Ill.

Each state sent a team of 18 players (Ohio sent two) in each of the four age groups (born in 1981-82; 1979-80; 1978; and 1976-77), making a total of 252 players per age group trying to make the regional pool. Players were selected to their state team pools in a process that began last August.

Those from the state that were chosen to the Midwest regional pool (a group of 30 field players and four keepers) included 17 from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area.

In the '76-77 age group, reigning Class A state champion Birmingham Seaholm was represented by Heather Brown, selected as-Miss Soccer, Jessica Glazer and Melissa Janetta. Class A runnerup Plymouth Salem was represented by Kelly Lukasik and Mari Hoff.

Five others from the state were chosen for the '76-77 pool, including Troy's Jessica Limauro, North Farmington's All Lord and Livonia Churchill'a Margaret Wirth.

In the '78 division, four of the five picked were Eccentric-area players: Troy Athens' Laura Montecillo and Emily Schmitt, Troy's Shannon Poole and Rochester's Jaclyn Clark.

The '79-80 division was much the same, with three-of-four players from the O&E area: Farmington Harrison's Sara Kloostermann, Seaholm's Alison Rackley and Redford Thurston's Kristah Manteuffel.

And in the '81-82 (pre-high school) division, there's Andrea Sied from Livonia and Kristin Fisher from Rochester.

How important is it to make the regional pool? "In the U.S., this is the way to identify the top players for Olympic and national teams," explained Nick O'Shea, the ODP program's assistant state coach who oversees the girls program, O'Shea also coaches girls teams at Oakland University and Livonia Churchill High School.

In other words, anyone wishing to someday represent the country. in the Olympics and/or the World Championships should start here.

The process is not an easy one. It will begin anew in two weeks, when the state ODP program holds tryouts for its state teams Aug. 12-13 at Founders Park in Farmington Hills. For $50 (if preregistered), players go through 81/2 hours of a camp and tryout.

A state pool consisting of 30 players is then selected in each age group. From that pool, the age group's coaches pick teams of 18 players to compete in tournaments, the biggest over Christmas in Cocoa Beach, Fla. Four winter workouts are also conducted indoors at the University of Michlgan and Michigan State football facilities

After a break for the high school girls' season, the state teams reconvene to prepare for the USYSA Midwest Regional.

Throughout all these processes, O'Shea's strategy is different than normal coaching philosophy. "Our goal," he said, "is to place as many players on the regional team as we can. If we win the (regional team) title along the way, great."

In other words, this is one time a player is not asked to sacrifice her individual skills for the sake of the team. Indeed, O'Shea encourages the opposite -- display your passing ability, your dribbling talents, because that's the best way to make the regional pool.

His approach has apparently worked. "We had more than anyone last year, too," he said.

Convincing others this is the proper way isn't easy. O'Shea faces opposition from local club coaches who are certain the ODP. program is nothing more than a tool for select teams to rob them of their best players.

And then there's the selection process for state and regional pools, which, O'Shea said, club coaches believe "is all political." The end result is they tell their top players not to bother going to the ODP tryouts.

"We have players who are very good who don't even tryout," he said.

Marauders stop Hattricks to advance in GLMSL

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

In Monday's plus-90 degree heat, the Marauders could see their chance for a Great Lakes Men's Soccer League title melting away.

But as evening approached, the weather cooled and the Marauders' intensity - missing in action for more than a week - was reheated, in time to deliver a 3-1 victory over the Ann Arbor Hattricks and the accompanying berth in the league final.

As cycles go, the Marauders were not at the top. They had followed seven-straight wins with some lackadarsical play and it cost them consecutive losses to quarterfinal, ending in a 9-0 Marauder romp.

Which put them into Monday's league semifinal against the Hattricks. The match had originally been slated for Sunday, but a scheduling conflict forced a postponement.

That, in turn, provided as good a reason as any for the Marauders' play at the start. "The first 15 or 20 minutes, we were really out of it," said their player/coach, Dan O'Shea. "I think our guys came in thinking it would be like Friday's game, and it wasn't. "These guys are runners."

Which the Hattricks displayed in the opening minute. With the Marauders hesitant, they took

In came Hattrick forward Eric Nelson. He elbowed Nichols down and out of the way, then popped the ball over a stationary Kaliszewski to give his team a 1-0 lead.

It was not the kind of play champions are made of, a title the Marauders are accustomed to carrying. But it took another 20 minutes before they righted themselves.

In the 28th minute, Brady Ericson quickly inbounded the ball to Steve Weiger deep in the Hattrick end. Weiger centered it, and Bob Hayes finished the play, tying it at 1-1.

Hayes sparked the Marauder offense after that. He put together third minute of the second half. A Marauder direct kick by John Gentile from 20 yards out deflected off a Hattrick defender and bounced in, giving the Marauders the lead for good.

The win did not come without some anxious moments, the greatest on a pair of odd calls in front of the Marauder net in the 56th minute. A Hattrick player was pulled down in the box, but the official ruled it an indirect kick instead of awarding a penalty kick.

The protest, however, came from Marauder defender Jeff Thomas, who said something unprintable to the official and was red-carded. The Hattricks could not convert on the indirect from 10 yards out, but they still had the extra attacker for the remainder of the match.

OUTDOON champion MSIGHTS

PARKER 35-year-old

Birmingham resident runs the range and is quickly turning it into a world-class shooting facility.

World

The owner of Wings & Clays, a mail-order shotgun outfitting company featuring upscale equipment, Woo wanted to open a retail outlet in the area. When the lease on Bald Mountain became available last year he jumped at the chance to take it over.

"We knew the lease was becoming available," explained Woo. "I learned to shoot here and it's always been a nice facility, but it was becoming a little stagnant. Since Michigan has the highest number of registered shotgun shooters in the Midwest, and since I wanted to open a retail outlet for Wings & Clays, I thought Bald Mountain would be a good place." Going through changes Woo took over the running of the concession and the range at Bald Mountain last September. He rents it from the Department of Natural Rersources.

Since taking over Woo upgraded the skeet and trap range and brought in new equipment, added a five-stand compact sporting clays range, and is opening a state-of-the-art, handicap-accessible sporting clays course on Saturday.

Baid Mountain also leatures a large, outdoor rifle and pistol range and a walk-through archery range. Five-stand compact sporting clays will be an exhibition sport at the Summer Olympics next year in Atlanta, Georgia.

"We get a lot of beginners and a lot of executives that just want to come out and enjoy the shooting sports, but the majority of people who come out here are hunters," explained Woo. "Our main focus is for people to. come out here and enjoy themselves."

To ald in that effort Bald Mountain has a staff of certified shooting instructors including Birmingham's Terri Bankey, an '88 Olympian and 10-time member of the U.S Shooting Team and Davison's Pat Lieske, whom Woo feels is "probably the best instructor in the Midwest."

Although all the ranges bring a steady flow of visitors, the 25station sporting clays course is the focus of attention right now. Golf with a shotgun

Often referred to as golf with a shotgun, sporting clays tests the shooters skills in assessing the distance, speed and trajectory of a target. Shooters travel along a walk-through, wooded course and stop at stations along the way. Each station simulates an actual hunting situation. For instance, the shooter may encounter a clay, which is flying straight up much like the flight pattern of a rising teal. At another station a clay may skip across the ground simulating a running rabbit, while still another may be sailing toward the shooter much like a settling duck.

"Unlike skeet and trap shooting, the shooter in sporting clays has to analyze and read the targets as they come out." said Woo. "You have a lot of varying target presentations because every stand simulates a different hunting situation. The art of setting up a sporting clays course is to make the shots deceiving." According to numbers from the National Sporting Clays Association in San Antonia, Texas, competitive sporting clays is gaining in popularity by about 30 percent per year. Last year there were more than 12,000 registered competitors nationwide. The National Shooting Sports Foundation estimates that over 600,000 people have shot sporting clays recreationally since it landed in the United States in the mid-1980s. The sport originated in England.

In Michigan, there are 20 NSCA sanctioned sporting clays ranges including the one at Bald Mountain, one at the Detroit Gun Club in Walled Lake and one at Hunter's Ridge Hunt Club in Oxford, which was host to the Jeep Claybird Classic National Championship in June.

Championship-style

The Bald Mountain course features two fully automatic, remote-controlled traps at each station. Normally, for practice rounds, stations feature a single machine at each station. The Bald Mountain course has two automatic traps at each station. "Everyone in sporting clays in the area is excited about this course," said Woo. "With two automatic traps at each station you can practice on a championship-style course every day. This will be the most state-ofthe-art course in Michigan.'

Although Woo is new to the business of running a shooting range, he's a skilled veteran when it comes to skeet and trap shooting. Last year he won the 28 gauge division at the Skeet & Trap World Championships in San Antonio. He's tied the world record of shooting a perfect 500-of-500 on six different occasions, He set the long-run world record with a 28 gauge in 1990 by breaking 1,349 clays in a row, a run which spanned 14 tournaments.

Vintage WWII aircraft tour state to celebrate V-J Day

Area residents will have six "golden" opportunities to rediscover an Important part of America's history, while paying tribute to this country's World War II veterans during this commemorative year.

This month, two of the most legendary World War II bombers. the B-24 "Liberator" and the B-17 "Plying Portress," wing their way through Michigan as part of the "Schlitz Salute to Veterana" Tour."

This "flying museum" will first touch down in Lansing Aug. 8-8, followed by stops in Mt. Pleasant (Aug. 8-9), Saginaw (Aug. 9-12), Waterford (Aug. 12-13) and Flint (Aug. 13-14).

The warbirds will make their final Michigan stop in Ann Arbor just in time to celebrate V-J (Vic-

Learning center accepting fall applications

Madohna University's Learning Center is accepting applications for enrollment in the fall term, which runs Sept. 18 to Dec. 7.

The tutorial sessions are designed for pupils in grades 1-12 who have trouble reading. Individual or group sessions, consisting of two pupils, are available.

Participants meet weekly on whatever day is most convenient: 4:30-5:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday, or 4:25-5:30 p.m. Thursdays.

Costa include a $20 registration fee, an $85 assessment fee and $168 for group sessions, or $204 for individual sessions.

year, is sponsored by Schlits beer and coordinated by the nonprofit Collings Foundation, which recovered and restored the aircraft to their original wartime condition.

Public tours at each location coat $7 for adults and $3 for children:

At each stop, public tours begin upon aircraft arrival (approxlmately 3 p.m.) until dusk on the first day, 8:30 a.m. until dusk on the second day, and from 8:30 a.m. until departure on the final day.

Exceptions to this schedule are spoke wheel covers

Mt. Pleasant and Flint, with the planes leaving on the second day at 2 p.m., and Waterford, where the bombers will join other aircraft at the Aug. 13 Oakland/Pontiac Airport Open House from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

This tour provides an opportunlty since the "Schlitz Golden Girl All American" B-24 and the "Nine O-Nine" B-17 are two of the very few World War II vintage bombers restored to flying condition.

Those salvaged from "bomber graveyards" usually serve as museum displays. The "All American" is the only B-24 "Liberator" bomber completely restored and operational in the world.

i The warbirds will make their flasi Michigan stop in Ann Arbor ust in time to cojebrate V-J (Victory in Japan) Day on Aug. 14.

Exhibitors needed for resource fair

The Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County (CAPCO) is seeking exhibitors from the citles of Redford, Garden City and Livonia to participate in its fourth annual "Celebrate Pamilies" Community Resource Pair to be held 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21,

For more information, contact Tricia Cole-Klass at (313) 721-5901.

This is an opportunity for human service and nonprofit agencies to inform the community of the assistance and support they offer. Families of all sizes, ages, and cultures have significantly benefited from the wealth of information distributed in the past from "Celebrate Families," according to organizers.

Car raffle aids homeless pets

The purchase of a $2 raffle ticket gives area residents a chance to win a new Pontlac Sunfire and help homeless animals at the same time.

Second and third prizes are a 25-inch color TV and a confless telephone.

The annual raffle, appenaored by the Michigan Humane Society, raised $34,000 in 1994 to benefit the organization's Crueity Investigation and Rescue Divisions.

Tickets ($2 such or three for $5) are available at any of the three Michigan Humane Society locations in Detroit, Rochester Hills and Wastland, and will also be sold during the two-day Animal Care Fair, to be held Aug. 26 and 27 at the Southfield Civic Center,

The raffle drawing will be Sept. 16 at the MHS Fall Mutt March, held at the Nankin Mills Station on Edward Hines Drive in Westland. You need not be present to win.

The Michigan Humane Society responded to over 6,000 complaints of animal cruelty last year, and reasoned over 7,000 stray, Inturest and at-risk animals.

NBD announces new fee system

"relationship pricing," an en-hanced fee walver system through which customers' monthly checking fees will be waived based on the balances in their loan accounts as well as their deposit accounts.

If a customer's deposit and loan account balances meet a total relationship balance requirement, NBD will waive his or her monthly checking account fees.

The change to relationship pricing takes effect automatically with the first statement period beginning on or after Aug. 1 for all NBD customers with regular and interest checking accounts.

This includes customers of NBD banks in Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. While some banks offer this type of relationship pricing to targeted customers only, NBD is of-

NBD Bancorp has introduced foring it broadly to all of our regular and interest checking account customers," said NBD Vice President Robert Hobbs in a press release

Hobbs said approximately 85,000 NBD checking account customers across the five states will see their fees waived automatically with their first statemente in September.

NBD will now consider the balances in the following eligible NBD accounts:

Deposit accounts: certificates of deposit, IRAs (except self directed), money market accounts and savings.

Loan/Credit Accounts: consumer loans (excluding mortgages), credit lines, (checking, personal, home equity), credit cards.

Judge rejects DSS guardian fee policy

Judge Richard C. Kaufman of Wayne County Circuit Court last week struck down the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) policy change that limits to $60 per month the amount Medicaid recipients could spend on guardian services.

Judge Kaufman also reinstated a rule allowing Probate Court judges to award reasonable guardlan fees based on clients' specific needs and the services provided.

Medicald pays most of the cost of nursing home care for indigent people, Professional guardians are appointed by Probate Court for Medicald recipients when they are incapable of making their own decisions and have no competent adult willing to take responsibility for them.

Guardiana are responsible for making medical decisions for their clients. They also monitor their clients' care programs, pay their bills, provide basic necessities like clothing, visit clients regularly, and generally serve as surrogate family members

The DSS policy change, made in October 1994, prompted a lawsuit on behalf of all adult, legally incapacitated Medicald recipients who reside in institutions.

The suit was filed by Allied Health Management Associates Inc. (AHMA) of West Bloomfield, a company that provides care management, guardian, and facility placement services.

"The $60 per month cap would have deprived many legally incapacitated Medicald recipients in nursing homes of their right to have their medical and basic personal needs met in a caring and dignified fashion," according to Steven Siporin, director of AHMA, who researched and initiated this action.

In Goulson vs. Michigan Department of Social Services. Judge Kaufman held that the DSS failed to follow procedures as required by the Michigan Admin-Intrative Procedures Act.

The judge also ruled that the DSS violated federal law when it failed to consult the Michigan Medical Care Advisory Committee, a panel of consumer and provider representatives, prior to adopting the policy change.

Observer redesigns newsboxes

They're new, they're exciting and they're ours.

For more than 11 years, loyal readers have looked for the blue Observer newsbox on a nearby corner or in front of a favorite neighborhood store. But The Observer is rewarding those who've become accustomed to years of muted color with a bold display of patriotism.

You may have seen the red, white and blue boxes, spruced up for $150 each, in Livonia.

The first boxes hit the streets In Livonia in late June.

The Observer, which is published twice a week on Mondays and Thursdays, has a program of refurbishing the news racks, but changing the color scheme is something dynamic — something that indicates modernization.

The new boxes are the work of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers creative services director Glenny Merillat, Observer Publisher Banks Dishmon and Eccentric circulation manager Mary Scott.

Aside from showing The Observer name across four sides, the box shows white as the predominant color.

"We run red and blue in our masthead and they are patriotic colors," said Dishmon.

"White is different for this market and combined with stripes it is a bold, exciting look. We wanted something that would catch the attention of the average passerby," said Dishmon.

Enhancing the aesthetics of the boxes is a faceplate bearing the town name and the price of the paper.

Every month, more newsboxes will be refurbished according to

United Way sets $58.8 million Torch Drive goal

United Way Community Services announced Monday that the goal for the 1995 Torch Drive will be $58.8 million.

The announcement was made by John Lobble, chairman and CEO of Detroit Edison and United Way Community Services chairman of the board.

It was also announced that Theodor R. Cunningham, executive vice president sales and marketing and general manager minivan operations, Chrysler Corporation, will chair the 1995 Torch

"Ted Cunningham is a leader in our community and cares deeply about people in need," said Lobbia, "He has recruited a top notch volunteer campaign team and is committed to not only reaching this year's goal, but surpassing it."

"The need for services in the metropolitan Detroit area is great," said Cunningham. "It is essential that each individual in H 'The tri-county area has always shown great compassion for helping those in need and that tradition must continue.' Theodor R. Cunningham

Sept. 13 with the second annual Torch Drive Unity Run, which will begin in Pontiac and continue to Hart Plaza.

A ceremonial torch will be carried during the Unity Run and will "light" the Torch Drive torch at the foot of Woodward at Jefferson, followed by a 5K run/walk.

The campaign will run through Nov. 9. Last year's campaign goal was $58.5 million and $59.2 million was raised.

More than 1.7 million people received services through United Way-supported agencies and programs in 1994.

United Way Community Services raises and distributes funds to more than 130 health and human service agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties that help people with critical problems such as spouse abuse, child abuse and neglect, infant mortality, illiteracy, homelessness, juvenile delinquency and crime, care for the elderly and families under stress, among others.

Art Moran Pontlac GMC and Compuware reward top sales staff with afternoon escapes to Tamara's spa in Farmington Hills to melt away job stress with a full body massage.

Not only does it rejuvenate high performance employees, it shows others what is expected," says spa owner Tamara Friedman.

While such pampering might draw envy from other toiling workers, employees from a wide range of local businesses - from offices to hospitals to the factory floor - are enjoying perks these days beyond the traditional paid holidays and medical benefits.

Botsford Hospital whisks away employees marking 15 years of service with an annual mystery day trip. Recent outings have included a trip to Birch Run Outlet Mall where each honored guest was given a $100 check and 90 minutes for a shopping spree, followed by dinner at Zehnders in Frankenmuth. Another year, the celebration centered on an international theme, with honored employees visiting Mexican Town for hors d'oeuvres, Greektown for lunch, and the Whitney for French pastry.

Special recognition

"We've done a couple of cruises. It's a very special recognition for 15 years," said Beverly Weiss, manager of compensation and benefits for Botsford, which employs 2,400 workers. Workers start their special day with brunch and a ceremony where each one receives a watch and a self portrait.

When we say we screen our doctors. It's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves. Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area. Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care. And, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met. Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association. Oh, and after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure

Wood crafts business thrives here

BY LARRY O'CONNOR STAFF WRITER

A chance to chuck the day job to open a business: Why wood you knot?, reasoned John Kanyo whose Something Wood sits in Farmington's Village Mall.

Mahogany and cedar aromas replenish the senses. Kanyo sita behind the counter, reading a novel set in 18th Century Scotland. Classical music filters through a speaker.

Customers come in quietly, carefully surveying the selection of ornate woodcrafts:

manager for an oil company until he found he traveled on one business trip too many.

Often, he'd leave on a Sunday and return on a Friday. He saw more of runways than his family. One time he was nearly missing the birth of his daughter when he was away in Indianapolis, Ind. He made it to the hospital five minutes before Jennifer, 5, was born.

Tired of being a frequent flier instead of a husband and father around the house, Kayno guit. He opened Something Wood in the Grand River and Farmington

"The way my wife (Diane) and I looked at, the absolute worst thing that could happen is that I'd have to go and look for another position," Kanyo said.

He's already had to look, but it was in search of more space for his fledgling business. In October, Something Wood will move within the Village Mall.

Kanyo will carry highly sought collectibles such as Tom Clark's "Gnomes" and Timothy Wolfe's "Wood Spirits."

Wood crafts are his specialty, though.

Kanyo has been working with wood since his teens at Allen Park High. He kept with the hobby, acquiring more power tools along the way.

Book shelves, baker racks and birdhouses are examples of his handiwork.

Several artistins have their wares on display in Kanyo's shop.

A series of decoy ducks are the work of a Huntington Woods police officer. A bright yellow wood caboose was made by an artist who works on the railroad.

Along with a profit, Kanyo shares a kindred spirit with other woodworkers.

"There's a rich and warm feeling: It's an accomplishment when you've made something," Kanyo. said. "(Wood) does smell good."

Woodworking is a form of relaxation, he said. Starting a business selling woodcrafts can provoke anxiety:

Slow times initially didn't pacify those fears.

"It was unnerving," Kanyo said. "I know I have to pay the rent in 30 days and nobody is walking into the store."

Things have been on an upswing since. Kanyo has been particularly heartened by the support in history. When the Kanyos

3 major unions

announce merger

The United Autoworkers Union, United Steelworkers of America and International Association of Machinists have announced that they will merge into a new international union by 2000.

The unification will create the largest and most diverse union in North America with two million active, and 1.4 million retired members.

The unification of the three unions will occur gradually until completion by the year 2000, according to a UAW press release.

In the intervening years, each union has agreed to make necessary changes to facilitate creating the new union.

The UAW, headquartered in Detroit, has 1.3 million active and retired members, most of whom work or have worked in the auto industry.

The United Steelworkers of America, headquartered in Pittsburgh, Pa., represents 705,000 active and 400,000 retired members following completion of a merger July 1 with the United Rubber Workers of Akron, Ohio.

Since its creation in 1936, the USWA has completed eight mergers with other unions.

The International Association of Machinists in Upper Marlboro, Md., represents 492,000 active and 232,000 retired and other members.

Nineteen railroad machinists founded the IAM in a locomotive pit in Atlants, Ga. in 1888. From its beginnings as a rail. road union it has become a diversified organization and is the largest union in both the aerospace and air transport industries.

"Uniting these three great organizations will create the high performance union that can serve our members and carry out our mission of fighting for economic and social justice. I am proud to be a part of their effort," UAW President Stephen P. Yokich said.

"Uniting our three unions will give us new opportunities to change course and set the agenda to benefit our collective memberships and give voice to the disenfranchised," IAM President George Kourplas said.

Michigan State APL-CIO President Frank Garrison issued the following statement.

"This merger is bold, innovative and definitely the wave of the future. During the past two decades corporations have been merging to become stronger and more efficient.

"Unions must do the same to survive against increased corporate clout in a hostile political environment. I expect the trend of union mergers to continue, and this will be good not only for strengthening the present labor movement, but also will enhance the prospects of unions organizing more of the unorganized workers in this nation.'

UP woman edges out Livonia man to win $5,000 lottery prize

When Eleanor Pera returns to Kingsford, ahe'll be humming a happy tune. That's because Pera Non the game prize of $5,000 Saturday night on "Megabucks Qiveaway," the Michigan Lottery's weekly television game show.

A one-time rural route mail carirer, Pera, 70, said she and her busband, George, will spend some of her winnings on a vacation to the Carolinas and Georgia and her children.

At the end of four rounds of ay in the Merabucks same Pera was tied with Len Wilkie of Livonia. Each had accumulated $1,000 — the highest of any of the contestants - by winning cash prizes concealed behind letters on the P-O-R-T-U-N-E game board. In order to break the tie, each had to select another game board letter that revealed a number, The one uncovering the highest number would win the game prize of $5,000 and a chance to capture the $50,000 top prize locked in the Megabucks Vault. In the playoff round, Wilkie went first. He chose the letter T which revealed the number 35. Pera went next, selecting the letter N. It uncovered the number 47. This made Pera the winner of the $5,000 game prize and gave her the chance to win the $50,000 top prize locked in the Megabucks Vault Pers then had to select the correct key from behind four numbered doors to open the vault containing the $50,000 top prize. Pera asked for key number 2, but it was key number 4 that unlocked the safe containing the $50,000 top prize.

In addition to Pera, the five other Megabucks contestants had these plans for their winnings: # Wilkie, 51, won $1,000. The field service manager with 3M said he needs the winnings to help pay for his July 8 wedding expenses. Wilkie also is saving for a trip to Scotland and Ireland with his new wife. Golf, traveling and flying are his pastimes. Estelle Henderson, 65, of Escanaba, won $900. Now retired after many years as a seamstress at Fair Store in Escanaba, Henderson will use her winnings for a trip to visit family in California. Marvin C. Pavlik, 65, of Grand Blanc won $700. ■ George Goga, 78, of Livonia won $700. The Ford Motor Co. retiree said he will use his winnings to help pay off his mortgage. Sandy Goga, also of Livonia, played for her father.

Chamber honors Roberts for service

Michigan's State Treasurer Doug Roberts' record of long public service to Michigan was recognized last week when he received the Michigan Chamber of Commerce's Award for Outstanding Service in the Public Sector. Roberts received the award during the Michigan Chamber Board of Directors meeting last week at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

Past award winners include former Michigan Supreme Court Justice Robert Griffin, the late Governors G. Mennen Williams and George Romney, Secretary of State Richard Austin and Dr. Gerald Miller, current director of the Department of Social Services.

Roberts began his 23-year tenure in state government as a legislative staff aide, before moving on th positions as director of the office of the state employer, deputy and acting director of the department of management and budget, deputy superintendent of public instruction and director of the senate fiscal agency.

Since 1991, Roberts has served 48 the Michigan state treasurer.

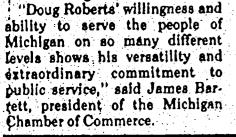

fective and competitive reforms," said Randy Agley, chairman of the chamber's Board of Directors and chairman of The Talon Group.

"I'm happy to be part of this program recognizing his service," Agley added.

The award was presented during the chamber's annual summer meeting July 27 at the Grand. The Michigan Chamber of Commerce represents 6,300 businesses across Michigan. About twothirds of members are small businesses, with fewer than 100 employees, in the service and manufacturing sectors.

There some pretty serious checkers players at the University of Alberta in Cana-These guys are so intent that they created a chess-playing computer, called Chinook, and created a site on the World Wide Web to recruit expert players to assist in the task of capturing the world championship title.

The checkers research effort was started in 1989 by the computer science department at the University of Alberta in Edmonton.

Among the many checkers links are publications, end game databases, world championship matches, American and British checker federations, International Checkers Hall of Fame, grandmasters and masters.

The end game database count has posted 400 billion resolved positions, so you can see how serious these guys are. If you think you can help, or are simply curious, visit the Chinook Checkers site at http://web.cs.ualberta.ca/( tilde mark)chinook.

For kids

One of the new sites on the Internet for kids is Cyberkids. There are a lot of games, puzzles and contests at this site but, unfortunately, it is not free. In fact, it's pricy. They offer discounts to soften the impact of the prices they are asking (as I recall, $70 a year).

On racing

There are two interesting sites I found for car racing fans, and one on the way. Motorsport News International electronic magazine, placed on the Internet in 1994, can be accessed at http://www.metrosport.com/. There is news of racing events coming up, results, and race reports about motorsports of all types. The site offers access to the Usenet news group recautos.sport.info.

The Indy Car Racing magazine also is on the Net at http:// www.lcr.com/indy/default.html. Racing fan will find current news here and point standings, When I visited, there were results from a Toronto race and preview of the Cleveland race, The site also has some photo galleries worth viewing.

Auto racing reports from the Indianapolis Star and Indianapolis News have found a home page called SpeedNet. The debut was timed to provide full coverage of the NASCAR Brickyard 400 race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The URL is http:// www.starnews.com/speednet/.

The site also will offer profiles of popular race drivers, cars and teams, a guide to the Indianapolis area for race fans coming to town, a photo gallery of racing images, statistics and reports from last year's Brickyard 400 and this year's Indy 500, and opportunities for race fans to ask questions of racing celebrities, staff writers and other experts.

"You can get complete auto rac: ing coverage - everything from The Star and The News plus some exclusive reports - on SpeedNet on the Web," said Jay Small, SpeedNet editor. "And NASCAR fans can see our Brickyard reports on American On Line. It's a great one-two punch, Future expansion of this service will include local and national news coverage from both papers in addition to current headline news.

Plante & Moran receives first statewide Athena award

The Michigan Chamber of Commerce last week honored two member companies for their significant contributions to the protessional advancement of women in the work place with its first statewide ATHENA awards.

The awards were presented to Plante & Moran, LLP of Southfield, and Second Chance Body Armor Inc. of Central Lake, by Martha Mayhood Mertz, founder of the national ATHENA Founistion.

Plante & Moran received the award for a company with 100 or more employees. Maree Mulvoy, a partner with the firm's Bloomfield Hills office, accepted the award for Plante & Moran.

Second Chance Body Armor Inc. represented companies with nder 100 employees. Clinton E. Davis, chairman of the board and executive vice president, accepted the award for Second Chance. "We are pleased to acknowledge. the exemplary efforts of these companies in building and retaining diverse and competitive workforces,' said Jim Barrett, chamber president and CEO.

Provided opportunities

"The recipients have demonstrated business philosophies and value systems centered on providing opportunities for professional advancement and personal development to all of their employees, regardless of gender."

The largest Michigan-based public accounting and management consulting firm, Plante & Moran has grown from 350 staff members to more than 700 in the last 10 years. A leader in creating career opportunities for men and women; they add the ATHENA award to several other prestigious awards.

"We are extremely happy and proud to receive the first ATHE-NA Award given in the state of Michigan,' said Davis.

Employees share award

"This recognition by the State Chamber of Commerce will be shared by all employees, who take great pride in being a part of the Second Chance Life Saving Team.'

The statewide award is patterned after the community-based ATHENA awards currently given to individuals by local chambers

Corp. and First of America Bank Corp., both of which also sponsored the Michigan Chamber's state awards.

Bill Blough, national leasing manager for Oldsmobile, and Bill Cole, chairman and CEO of First of America Bank-Michigan, represented the sponsoring companies at the award presentation....

Award criteria

The awards were based on the following criteria: The company must have demonstrated excellence in business practices and conduct. The company must exhibit civic and community involvement.

The company must provide leadership opportunities for women.

Madonna University offers master's program in China

Madonna University and the Zhuhai Association for International Exchange of Personnel have signed an agreement for the establishment of a master's degree program to be offered in Guangdong Province, People's Republic of China.

Also signing the agreement was American Three West International, Los Angeles, Calif., which will serve as a liaison between Madonna and the Zhuhai International Human Resources Exchange Center.

The 20-month program will be available for a class of 15 to 45 students and will lead to a master of science in administration degree with a specialty in business administration.

The students will sttend classes for four terms in China and two terms on the Madonna campus in Livonia. To qualify for admittance, the students must have completed a baccalaureate degree and appropriate work experience.

Scheduled to begin in November, the program's emphasis is on leadership and management and will include such courses as Future Society and Leadership, Information Systems for Managers, Change Management, Strategio Planning, Management Skill Development, and Ethical Considerations in Leadership.

Students will visit the Madonna campus to complete their course work in the winter and spring terms of 1997.

"Our faculty have international experience partially due to the master's program we have offered in Taiwan over the past six years," said Charlotte Neuhauser, dean, school of business, in a press release. "It was because of the Taiwan program that American Three West Internations approached us.

They had heard it was a quality program and visited us to learn more about our university,'

Neuhauser added that teaching the students in Guangdong Province will provide increased opportunities for faculty professional development and will enhance cultural links for the students and Madonna. She said that 88 percent of the full-time faculty in the school of business have taught and studied in Europe and Asia within the past five years.

Madonna University is the largest Catholic Franciscan university in the United States. Academics combine a liberal arts foundation with career preparation in more than 50 undergraduate majors. ### Arbor Place builder offers flexible options

NEW HONES

BY DOUG FUNKE

Ken Brandt says he's one flexible builder when it comes to Arbor Place Condominiums in Plymouth Township.

The outside footprint, they're all identical," he said of the mod-ern Cape Cod design, "We can do almost anything on the first floor or second floor with purchaser input,"

Only 16 detached units - each two-story with basement or walkout - will arise on the 41/2-acre site at the Ann Arbor Road-Canton Center Road intersection.

Bach will contain about 1,820 square feet of living space not including an unfinished basement.

The master suite and laundry on all four basic floor plans are on the main floor.

Other standard elements include attached two-car garage, fireplace, air conditioning, dishwasher and a deck.

Base price is $198,900 for three. bedrooms, 21/2 baths and regular basement, $215,900 for three bedrooms, 214 baths with walk-out

"We are catering more to the end user, retired, tired of cutting grass, shoveling snow," Brandt said. "Some people we've had through are single, professional people.

"We've tried to create something reasonably maintenance free - architectural shingles with a 25-year guarantee, all-wood trim. We use a stain so paint won't roll off.

'We've designed it for total first-floor living," Brandt said. "We have two bedrooms and a bath upstairs for people like myself who have kids or grandkids coming back." A spec unit under construction shows a room with cathedral ceiling that can be used as a den or formal dining room off a two-story foyer.

moved and the adjacent master suite expanded.

A great room with sloped celling and fireplace flows from the kitchen/eating nook. A desk can be built into the kitchen, cupboard space expanded.

Of the two upstairs bedrooms, one has a cathedral ceiling, the other a large walk-in closet. Or, as an alternative, one of the bedrooms can be converted into a loft.

"I work with a lot of builders," Nickerson said. "These guys pay attention to detail. They're very one-on-one with the customer. The buyer gets to be the designer. of the floor plan.

"A lot of people comment on quality of construction," he said. "The entranceway has a lot of impact. It's open, lighted, airy which I think a lot of people are looking for."

"Just being in Plymouth Township has an impact," Brandt said. "We're away from downtown city traffic, but people here are in close proximity to everything the Arbor Place is in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The property tax rate is about $24.68 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $198,900 condo would pay $2,444 the first year.

Renee Sayegh and son, Ryan, recently moved into Arbor Place.

"I love the city of Plymouth, first of all, and my son wants to go to Plymouth High School. He has friends here," she said.

"I like the peace and quiet most of all," Sayegh said. "I love the lush trees.

"The condo, itself, is so bright, so cheerful. The aun is in here all day long. I love the open plan the kitchen to the living room to the library. The finished basement is excellent. It's so elegant in here," she said.

Alan and Ann O'Shaughnessy are building in Arbor Place.

"The kitchen is a good size. There's a master bedroom down and two up. That gives you privacy," Ann said.

"I love the idea it's close to town but not right in the middle of everything. That was a big fac- have to walk up and down so tor." she added. "It's detached many steps.

The Americans dream is alive

WASHINGTON, PRNewswire - To help commemorate their 20th anniversary, the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) conducted a survey to determine attitudes about interior design and how people foresee they will live in the future. The results demonstrate a general optimism and a sense of confidence about future residences.

The survey was conducted by Yankelovich Partners and consisted of 500 men and 500 women weighted to be nationally representative. Americans are not only optimistic about their future housing .... they are also relatively happy with their present homes. The American Dream is alive! The vast majority of people under the age of 40 are confident that they'll live in a nicer home 20 years from now (87 percent agreed), and people overwhelmingly preferred both their current housing and furniture compared to that with which they grew up (64 percent and 78 percent respectively),

Light is appreciated in both the home and office. While lighting is most commonly cited as an important feature in both environments, whether people find windows important in the office depends on where they live. Nearly 90 percent of respondents in the West listed a window as an important feature in the workplace versus 68 percent in the Northeast. It must be the view.

Location, location, location was surpassed by concerns for safety. In fact, safety/security was named the most important feature in the home by nearly half of those surveyed (47 percent). This finding suggests that while people may be happy with their interiors, they are much less sure about what is outside.

Younger Americans are concerned about keeping fit, and would like to combine work with working-out. Nearly half of those aged 16 to 29 listed an exercise facility as something they would like to have at the office. This is compared to only 23 percent of those over 30 years of age.

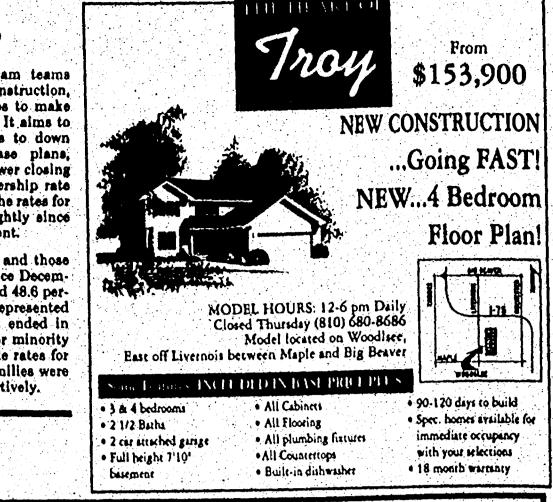

So while younger America may not appreciate colors as much as their elders do, no one can say the young are lazy.

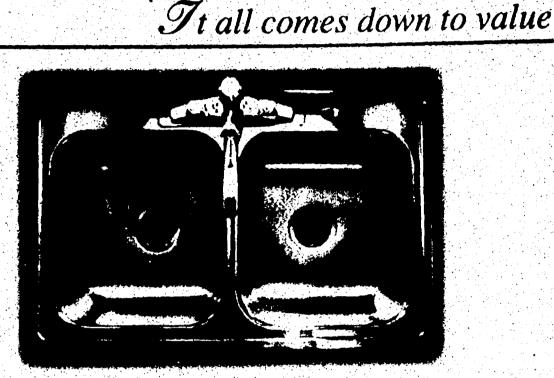

ASID has the largest commercial and residential membership of all the professional organizations for interior designers with 49 chapters throughout the United States and more than 450 international members.

Clinton's homeownership program teams officials in banking, real estate, construction, government and community groups to make buying houses cheaper and easier. It aims to increase awareness of alternatives to down payments, such as lease-purchase plans, streamline the loan process and lower closing costs. While the overall homeownership rate has gone up since the end of 1994, the rates for minority homeowners dropped slightly since then, from 43.7 percent to 43.5 percent.

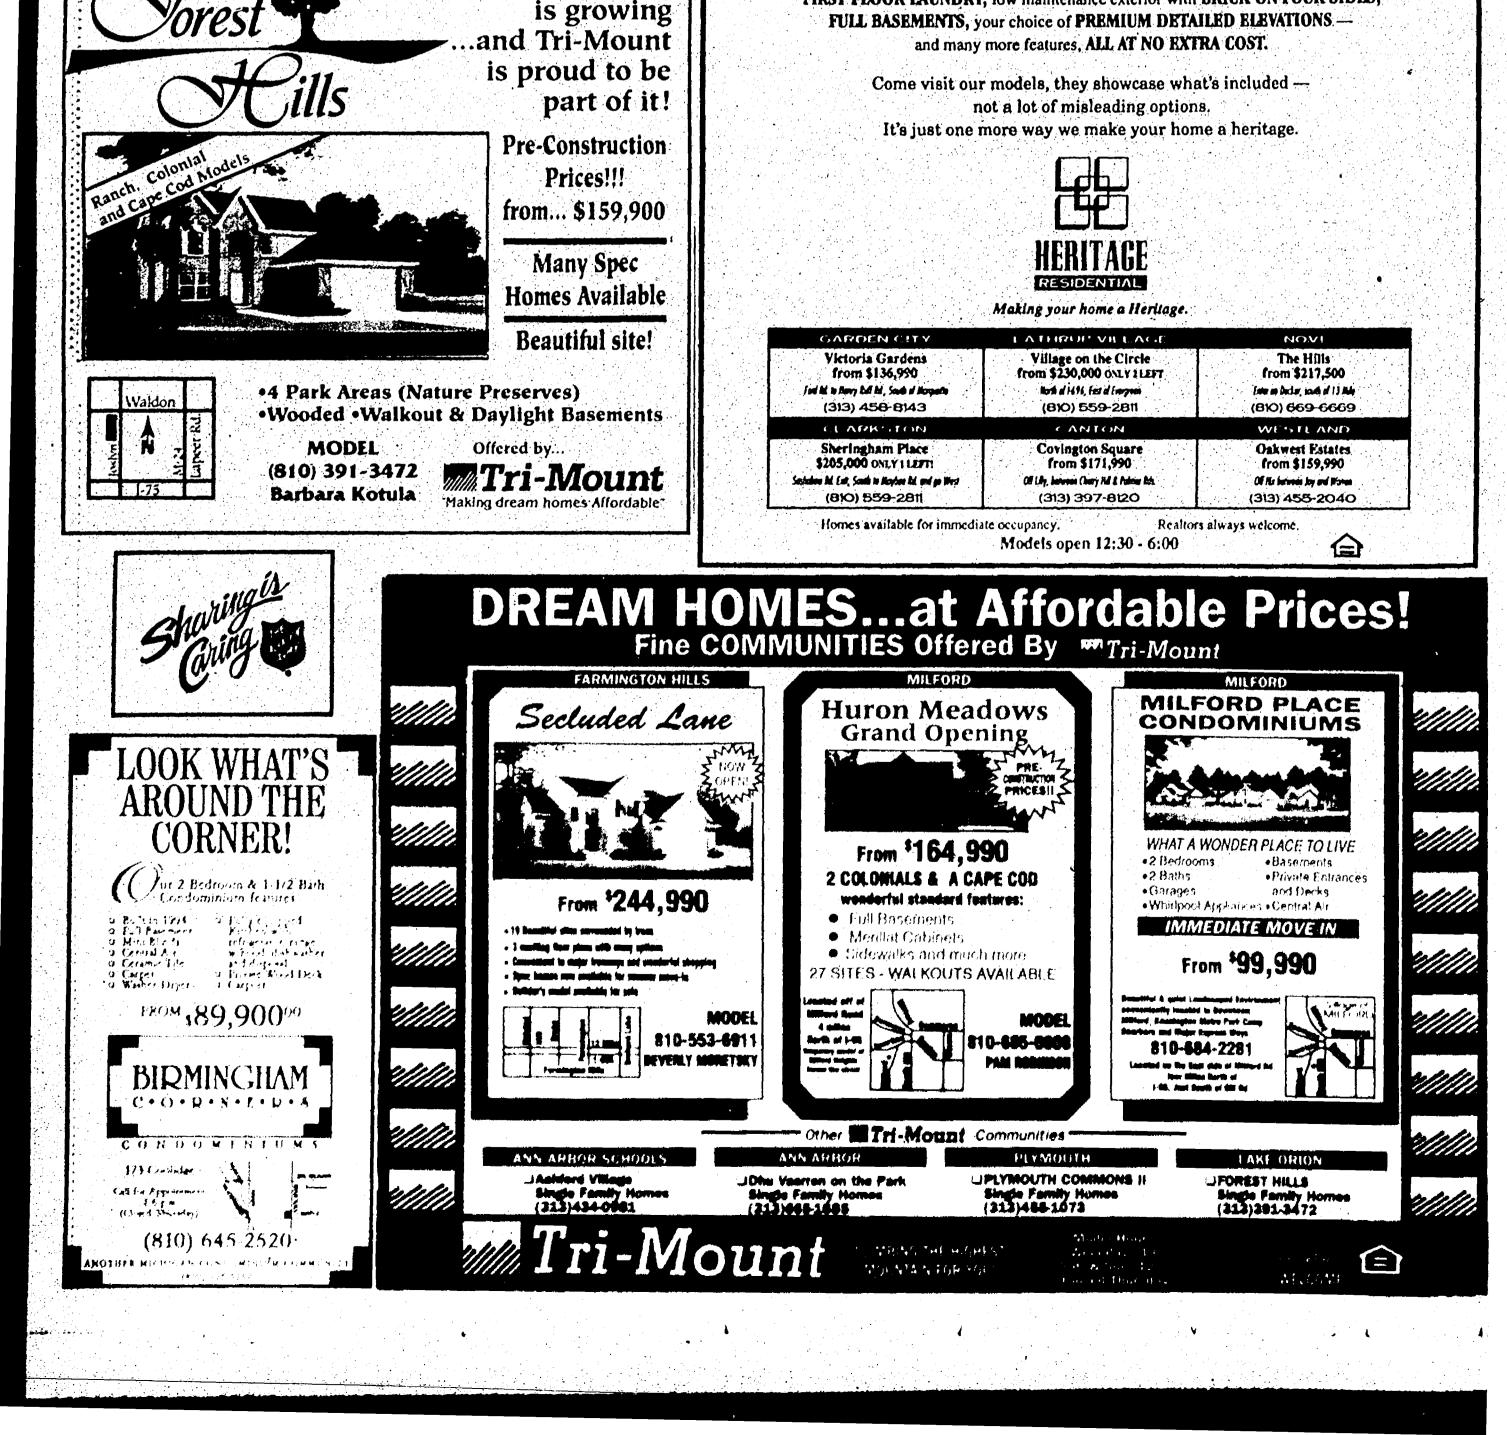

Rates for homeowners under 35 and those with lower incomes fell slightly since December 1994 as well, to 56.9 percent and 48.6 percent respectively. But those rates represented an increase over the quarter that ended in March. For that period, the rate for minority homeowners was 42.9 percent, while rates for homeowners under 35 and poor families were 56.2 percent and 48.1 percent respectively.

Home sales stay strong in every region of U.S.

BY JOHN D. MCCLAIN AP NEWSFRATURES

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fresh reports show the economy growing moderately without stirring inflation. Existing-home sales rose in June for a second straight month and employment costs increased at the slowest pace on record.

The reports came last week as a new survey showed a rebound in consumer confidence in the economy in July that included expanded plans to purchase homes and cars.

In June, sales of previously owned homes jumped 6.5 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3,78 million, highest since a 3.82 million rate last October, the National Association of Realtors reported. At the same time, the Labor Department said its Employment Cost Index advanced just 2.9 percent in the year ended in June, matching the smallest gain since the series began in 1981.

The reports fueled the stock market, with the Dow Jones industrial average gaining 45.78 points to close at 4714.45. The bond market, after initially falling on the news, recovered and posted a slight gain. The Employment Cost Index, which measures growth in Americans' wages, salaries and benefits, also had risen 2.9 percent in the year ended in March.

"The performance of the ECI points to something different about this (business) cycle," said economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch & Co. "Inflation remains dormant in the fifth year of an expansion," he added. "Indeed, the second quarter performance represented both the low for the current cycle and the low for the history of the ECI."

The index is considered one of the best gauges of inflation pressures, since employee compensation represents about two-thirds of the cost of a product. But Labor Secretary Robert Reich called the anemic compensation growth a "large cloud in an otherwise blue sky" and something that will eventually come to haunt employers.

"Productivity improvements are going into corporate profite, not workers' pockets," he said in an interview. "Workers are consumers. At some point, American workers won't have enough money in their pockets to buy all of the goods and services they are producing.

"The lack of inflation obviously is a plus for all Americans," Reich added. "But it's difficult for many Americana to enjoy it if their paychecks are drouping."

The Labor report showed that wages and salaries, nearly three-fourths of total compensation, rose 3.0 percent in the year ended June 30, the same rate of growth in the 12 months that ended March 31. Wages and salaries thus failed to keep up with the annualized 3,2 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index through the first six months of this year.

The cost of benefits, such as health care and pensions, increased 2.7 percent, slower than the 2.8 percent during the year ended in March and the smallest advance since this series began in 1982.

The June increase in sales of existing homes was the second monthly advance after rising 4.7 percent in May, to a 3.55 million rate, the real estate group reported. Still, sales in June were 5.7 percent below the same month a year ago, the result of slower job and income growth and higher mortgage rates earller this year.

Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. surveys show that 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.53 percent in June, down from 7.91 percent in May and 9.15 percent in January. That helped make homes more affordable. The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $699, while the payment on the same loan with a 9 percent rate is $805 --- a difference of $106,

The median price of an existing home in June was little changed $115,900, up 2.3 percent from $113,300 a year earlier. The median is the midpoint, meaning half the homes cost more and half cost less.

Regionally, sales shot up 9.6 percent in the Northeast, to a 570,000 annual rate. They rose 7 percent in the West, to 760,000. They were up 5.8 percent in the South, to 1.45 million, and 5.3 percent in the Midwest, to 1.0 million. Meanwhile, the Conference Board's consumer confidence index, based on a monthly survey of 5,000 U.S. households, rose to 99.9 in July from 94.6 in June. The index had reached 102.0 in May.

"While consumer confidence declined in June, the current reading is at a reassuringly strong level," said Fabian Linden, director of the New York group's consumer research unit. "Consumers remain optimistic about the health of the U.S. economy."

Representatives from eight Detroit-area fi-nancial institutions will present a Community Homebuyers Forum on Tuesday, Aug. 8, from 6-8 p.m. at the Greater Christ Baptist Church, 3544 Iroquois at Mack Avenue, as part of a series of workshops sponsored by Paint The Town.

This is the fifth in a series of seven presen-tations hosted in Detroit by Paint The Town in partnership with the Fellowship Nonprofit Housing Corporation and the Beniteau-Lillibridge-LeMay Association.

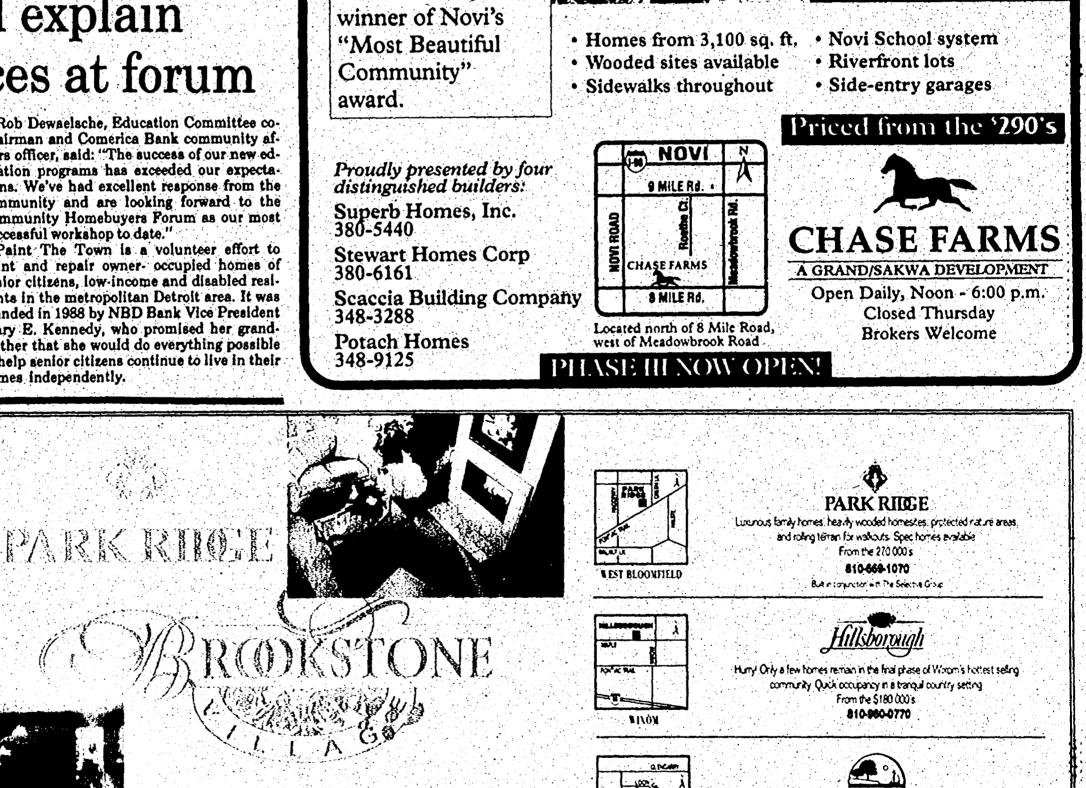

Paint the Town recipients are strongly encouraged to attend, and workshops are open to the public as well.

"The goal of this particular workshop is to give the attendee a greater awareness of the financial tools available to them. It's ideal for individuals who are interested in becoming first time homeowners, as well as for those who may want to refinance, or invest in rental who may want to refinance, or invest in rental property, said Glorianne Hymon, Pellowship Community neighborhood representative and Paint The Town board member. Representa-tives from Comerica Bank, First of America, First Pederal of Michigan, First Independ-ence, First Nationwide Bank, Michigan Na-tional Bank, Nichigan National Bank, NBD Bank and Standard Federal Bank will share information about their mortgage products, in addition to covering ba-sic information relating to credit, budgeting, pre-qualifying, the benefits of home ownership, and the application and closing process-

Rob Dewaelsche, Education Committee co-chairman and Comerica Bank community affairs officer, said: "The success of our new education programs has exceeded our expectations. We've had excellent response from the community and are looking forward to the Community Homebuyers Forum as our most successful workshop to date."

Paint The Town is a volunteer effort to paint and repair owner- occupied homes of senior citizens, low-income and disabled realdents in the metropolitan Detroit area. It was founded in 1988 by NBD Bank Vice President Mary E. Kennedy, who promised her grand-mother that she would do everything possible to help senior citizens continue to live in their homes independently.

feet eight inches high. Increase their height to eight feet or more. The dramatic effect is inexplicable. Another inordinate ceiling detail would be a series of very shallow recesses (each approximately 4-inch in depth) around the perimeter of the room.

Mantels are unnecessary in a contemporary venue. The fireplace and hearth, by building code, must be noncombustible. There are a prodigious number of remarkable marbles and granites. A visit to a marble yard will open your eyes. The best ones are labeled exotic. Keep the opening simple. Again you add to the pricing if you add to the detail with a reveal, but oh my goodness, what a "look." That "look" is why my ideas are more expensive.

As a last thought: stairways. The ubiquitous spindles, so necessary to hold up the handrail, could be made of wrought-iron or steel bars. There are also lucite bars, but these wouldn't be a favorite of mine. Spindles might be replaced with large separated panels of lucite. They could be tremendously effective. I'd like to interject the subject of covering of the treads. If the wood is beautifully finished and polished, why carpet them? However, if you choose a runner, leave a generous margin of hardwood on each side.

The enormous quantities of glass, now thermopaned to insulate the interior, are so significant to the contemporary look that architects and interior

Seeing the light on fixing windows

LET'S REMODEL

The Observer August 3, 1995

Q. Our home is 19 years old and many of the window seals are broken. We have 18 windows in just one room and many more throughout the home. We discovered the brand of windows used were of poor quality and would like to know if we can purchase windows of the same size to save the costs of cutting new openings.

A: Assuming your existing windows are wooden; there are three viable options I can suggest.

1. Sash Replacement Kits. There are manufacturers that have insulated sash replacement kits. These enable you to leave the window frame trim in tact. This is the most economical way of replacing windows. However, if your frames' woodwork is not in good shape, you will still be left with the existing wood. Another consideration is air infiltration around the frame which is not addressed by the sash replacement method.

2. Vinyl Replacement Windows. Vinyl replacement window packages include a frame, two insulated sashes and a screen. This unit is placed into the existing window frame in place of the old sash. The main advantage of this type of installation is that there is no need to change any of the existing window opening sizes. The disadvantage of this type of installation is that the addition of frame and sash into the existing opening reduces the height and width of glass. This allows less outside viewing and less light coming into your home.

3. Wood Replacement Windows. Today with the large number of wood replacement window manufacturers there are several companies that make windows in various standard sizes that are compatible with the existing windows in your home. And, if you should need a custom-sized window, the costs have been greatly reduced due to technological advances in the assembly process.

At Home

Wood replacement windows also allow the opportunity to fit the existing window opening, instead of the existing window frame. By removing the old frame, there is the opportunity to cheek or proper insulation around the winlows, to check for insect infestation, ind for water damage. This also allows ealignment of out-of-square openings. An added benefit is trim for the interior and exterior.

Whether it is sash replacement, vinyl Inserts (with frame and sash) or a complete wood replacement window, you will be able to retain the same existing opening sizes with the extensive list of options for today's replacement window consumer. The replacement windows can be customized for each individuals' taste.

My recommendation would be to contact at least two reputable contractors and meet with them in your home to have them analyze your situation. Ask as many questions as needed for you to feel comfortable and base your decision not only on cost, but value, reputation

Q: My kitchen floor slopes from all sides into one corner of the kitchen. We have actually rolled marbles around on the floor! Can you tell me what could be causing the slope and what can we do to repair it? We would like to tear up the old floor and have ceramic tile put down.

A: Without seeing the problem, it is difficult to determine what has caused the floor to sag.

There are many reasons why this might happen, including overspan, overloading, improper support, the age of the home or moisture problems. Assuming there is a basement or crawl space, a contractor can go beneath the existing floor and install adjustable stanchions (support posts) to possibly raise existing floor joists. This is done very slowly and carefully making sure the floor can be raised without causing additional problems. If stanchions are to be used, they must have a proper foundation below them.

Another solution may be to remove all existing floor covering to the sub floor and level or "feather out" the area by using shims, shingles, floor stone or varying the thickness of underlayment before installing the new floor.

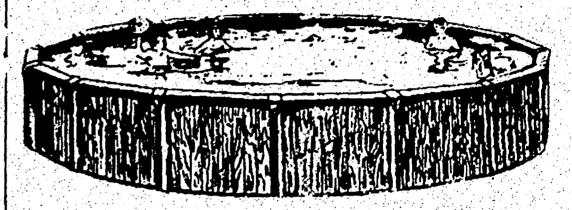

Upon inspection, if it is determined that there is not a structural problem, E There are many reasons why floors may sag, including overspan, overloading, improper support, the age of the home or moisture problems.

and the existing floor joists do not have to be supported, then often a professional tile contractor may be able to eliminate a great deal of the problem by varying the thickness of his cement base used before ceramic tile is installed. We definitely recommend a cement base versus mastic to insure a lasting tile installation.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR Everyday answers to appliance questions

In the everyday operation of an appliance repair business we personally meet dozens of consumers and we field somtimes over 200 phone calls per day. With all of this contact we learn a great deal about how a GAGNON product is made, how consumers feel about certain brands etc., what's good, what's bad, and, in general, we learn about the whole industry of major appliances from you the consumer.

You tell use everything because of your needs and your feehngs. I get all emotional when I think about the lack of involvement by the manufacturers in trying to gain from the knowledge that you give us. You would think that they would be on our doorstep asking to spend some time with you. They don't, and I doubt they ever will. We will continue to have much of the same as we have had for years. Meanwhile you need me and I need you and this newpapers involvement in consumer education such as this column can only make you a smarter consumer and save you some big bucks.

1. My built in dishwasher is not draining properly. --- In the majority of cases, the problem is not with the dishwasher, but has to do with the drain avstem. In some cases you have an air gap on the kitchen sink. This is a thing with a plastic or chrome cap on and its on top of the sink and is obvious. This device which is a requirement in many city codes, when installing a dishwasher is a gadget to prevent garbage from your disposer backing up into your dishwasher and contaminating your clean dishes. It can plug up and cause drain problems. Take off the cap and use a small brush to clean the inside of it. The drain line from your dishwasher hooks up to this and from the air gap another hose leads to the garbage disposer. The hose which hooks up to the side of the disposer should also be removed, and the spout that the hose is hooked up to should be cleaned inside with a butter knife. This is an

2. My plastic drain pan under the refrigerator has a hole in it. How much for a new one? - 20, 30 dollars, but you can fix the old one by lining it with several sheets of tinfoil. During self defrost of your refrigerator only a half cup or so of water goes into the pan. Now here's the health warning given to me by my friend Dr. Warren Schildberg, (he's the guy I stole the stethoscope from that you see on the cover of my book) the most contaminated area of the American home is the kitchen. The drain pan is located in a dirty, moist, dark condition. Little germs breed at an alarming rate in such conditions and most refrigerators have a fan underneath there which blows those little buggers right onto you. No wonder everybody gets sick. Remove the pan once a month and clean it with hot water and dishwasher detergent and before you put it back in place, put some peroxide in it to slow down the germ content. Now if you have a fairly new refrigerator you may not be able to remove it. Some manufacturers are now making it unremoveable. Now, why would they do that?

3. Should I have called the fire department because the laundry room filled with smoke when I was using the washer? — When you see smoke you should call the fire department, that's what they're there for. Washers don't usually catch on fire because the fire knows there is water in the tub. Seriously, what happens many times is the water pump which pumps the water into the tub will lock up. The pump has a pulley on it and when the pulley stops turning the motor continues to turn. The motor pulley is what is causing the problem. It is burning the belt. Shut the machine off and be on the ready. Every home should have a fire extinguisher in the vicinity of the washer and dryer and a smoke alarm.

4. The racks inside my dishwasher are beginning to form rust spots and marking my dinnerware. How much is a new rack? — Almost a hundred dollars, that's right, for each rack. Maytag and whirlpool both make a rack guard material that will repair the spots. You clean off the rust with an emery board and you apply this product with the little applicator in the bottle. Let it dry overnight and bingo, just like winning the lottery. Available at the Servali Co. parts store in your area for approximately $10.

There are 2,372,000 questions that can be asked about major home appliances. This means that there are a lot more columns to write.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is the author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

A garden tour shows how to plant without hurting the environment

STORY AND PHOTOS BY SPECIAL WRITER MARTY FIGLEY.

A GARDEN TOUR with a healthy focus will take place 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 5, in several Detroit area communities. The clusters of gardens have been divided geographically, and each includes five or more gardens. Sponsored by Southeastern Oakland County Resource and Recovery Association, tickets can be bought on the day of the tour starting 9:45 a.m. at the SOCRRA office, 3910 W. Webster, between Coolidge and Greenfield in Royal Oak, where visitors can tour the native woodland and compost SOCRRA gardens. Tickets are $3 for each cluster. You may choose the ones you wish to visit. Call (810) 288-5150 for information

Several gardens in the North area are included. The gardens of Betty Sturley of Beverly Hills is an artist's garden set out in painterly fashion and filled with hundreds of growing plants. She has designed the garden using this ability with color, texture and height, which

Artistic garden

As you approach the home, you'll know a gardener lives there because of the myriad array of plants. A white wooden arched gate opens to the side garden. Fairy pink cluster roses stand guard at each side, while single red Dortman roses with a hollyhock-type leaf climb overhead.

Ten square foot gardens bordered by treated lumber are stuffed with flowers, vegetables and herbs. You'll find many tall delphiniums, such as Pacific Giants and others in shades of blue, lilies, columbine, foxglove, poppies, campanulas and "always annual sweet peas." Many salvias of glorious colors "bloom their heads off all summer," Sturley said. A rosemary standard winters in the attached greenhouse and summers with basils, thymes, lavender and other herbs in the garden. At one side red raspberries provide a luscious treat; "You can't do without them."

The back yard contains beds that are packed with flowers. Sturley saves seeds of many plants and they are repeated in various gardens. Larkspur, which she loves, many lilies that she has collected for years, tree peonies, daisies, iris and roses such as "Jeanne La Joie," a robust grower with pink clusters, fill the spaces. Most of the roses grown are repeat bloomers that continue the color throughout the season. You'll see many David Austin roses and other kinds of roses in a bed especially devoted to this flower.

To keep the roses in peak condition, Sturley sprays them every 10 to 14 days with Orthinex to control insects and fungal diseases; Kelthene for spider mites.

"You cannot grow roses without spraying," she said, so she does follow a regimen.

Tall phlox came from her grandmother's garden, which she separates to open them up to control mildew. Another phlox (Stolenifera) is a ground cover. The bergamot is "cut down when it gets ratty."

Variety

Unusual plants grace the gardens and all of them are sited to perform well in a particular situation. A moist area with high shade contains turtle head (Chelone), monkshood, toad lily (Tricyrtis), corydalis, monkey plant, Lewisia, nemophila and mallow, "Buffalo Rose," which covers the forgetme-not as it dies. This is one of several micro-climates used to perfection. Another contains ferns and hostas.

Four small ponds terrace from the back porch to a woods and are visually connected with colorful paintings. Primulas, St. John's wort, sedums and other suitable plants abound while water lilies bloom on the ponds. A deck abuts the lower pond and provides a restful spot. Dragonflies and hummingbirds are frequent visitors.

Orchids live in the attached greenhouse along with some of the plants that she brings in from the garden for the winter. Sturley waters the gardens only when it is absolutely necessary. A well-composted rich manure mulch was dug at least one foot deep into the clay soil for the rose bed and the other beds were enriched with lots of compost from the enormous compost pile. Everything from the garden, vegetable and fruit peelings keep it "cooking." Fetrell products (a natural product that has many formulas and is suitable for any soil situation) is applied in late spring and fall. Leaves from the many trees control weeds, hold in moisture and add nutrients.

Creative gardens

A healthy garden demonstrates environmentally sound practices and this tour showcases the fact that beautiful, creative gardens can be the result. Three Birmingham gardens are included in the North cluster of the tour. One, 100 percent organic, is on the National Wildlife Federation's registry and contains a large pond; another contains lawn paths that wind through the plantings (many ideas here), while another features many planters and sculptures with the plants leaving little room for grass.

Three Troy gardens round out the tour. In the first you'll find companion planting that demonstrates integrated past management; while yellow and orange, blue and purple, and red and blue annuals and perennials grow in sandy soil that has been amended with compost and mulch. The owners raise butterflies and provide special food for them. A backyard wildlife features plants that will entice wildlife to suburban properties. Native and non-native species grow here.

Other geographical clusters are; South area (Royal Oak, Ferndale, Pleasant Ridge), St. Clair Shores (hosted by the Yardeners), Northwest Detroit (North Rosedale Park, Rosedale Park, Grandmont) and Southwest Detroit (Corktown area).

The tour is funded through a grant from the Michigan Department of Agriculture under the Groundwater and Freshwater Protection Act and the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. Proceeds benefit the SOCRRA Native Woodland Garden.

Iris can be planted, divided and moved especially when the clump puts out vigorous growth, but produces no bloom, generally every three to five years depending on the size of the clump. The rule of thumb,

MARTY according to Ann FIGLEY Cline, president of the Iris Club of Southeast Michigan, is to divide the plants a month after bloom is finished, which can be from July through September, depending on the variety.

'If it's very hot (90 degrees) for a while, wait until the temperature comes down," she said.

Discard the old central parts of the rhizomes and replant the younger outer parts. Dig a deep hole and make a mound of soil (level with the surrounding soil) in the center, set the rhizome horizontally on top of the mound and spread the roots down over it. Since irises increase off the back of the rhizome, position the front (the toe) away from the area you wish to have plants, for example toward the border edge to allow room for the increase toward the garden area.

Fill with soil, firm around the roots and water thoroughly. No additional water will be needed, unless we have another unusually dry period. Space tall bearded irises two to 2.1/2 feet apart, standard dwarfs 18 inches apart and miniature dwarfs eight inches apart.

These lovely plants, which have played an important part in the world of gardeners and artists for centuries, have two requirements: sun, at least six hours per day, and good drainage. Although they do like a rich organic soil, they will perform with moderate fertility.

Tall bearded irises are the best known and most widely grown, but there are others you may wish to grow. Irises are divided into classes: bearded, beardless, intermediate, Dutch, dwarf, Spuria, Siberian or Japanese types, with Spuria and Siberian being the hardiest

If you are familiar with the nomenclature of irises, the task of choosing them for your garden will be easier. The innermost petal-like structures are called "style branches." The upright petals are "standards." The three outer parts of the flower, the sepals, are "falls," which usually curve or droop downward. The bearded or pogon section la strip of hairy growth on the "fall") gives this particular iris its name

Iris belong to the Iridaceae family. In ancient mythology, Iris, symbolizing the rainbow, is sometimes referred to as the "goddess of the rainbow," but she just wasn't that important. She was the messenger and personal attendant of Hora, Zeus' wife.

Iris blooms have a particularly unusual color quality that changes under different light intensity and positions. This quality has given us the adjective "iridescent."

In earlier times, these plants were also known as "flags" or flower-de-luces. One such iris bloomed in a shade of gray-white, from which the fragrant powder orris root is derived. Orris root is used as a fixative in potpourri mixtures. It was known as I. florentina (Florentine iris). There were other varieties of this plant.

European forms, which had huge flowers and tall stems, were crossed with these old kinds and now there are innumerable varietics available.

Although I regret not having seen it, Marie Quester of Livonia called earlier in the season and said she had an iris that had grown four feet tall. It must have been a sight to see!

My sister-in-law gave me the plant three years ago and told me it was very special," she told me. "It did nothing the first year, then the second year it

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

Continue removing spent blooms of annuals to prolong their blooming period.

If you are rooting cuttings of plants with long or large leaves, cut off cs much as half of the leaf so there is room for more cuttings. Remove lower leaves and flower buds.

Aphida may "skiddadle" if they are sprayed twice a day until they are gone. Use a solution of soapy water (a nondetergent soap). Wet the aphids thoroughly. Or try one tablespoon dishwashing detergent and ¼ cup Murphy's Oil Soap liquid in one gallon warm water.

Il is blooms have a particularly unusual color quality that changes under different light intensity and positions. This quality has given us the adjective 'indescent.'

Be ready to pinch tips of leafy shoots to control growth, but not until after flowering.

If you have such pots into the ground, check to be sure roots aren't escaping from the bottom hole. Cut them away, turn for even development.

Study and observe trees where they are growing to help make a proper selection when planting time arrives this fall.

Writer tries cooking, then eating insects

BACKYARD NATURE

Have you ever tried eating insects? Other than the occasional one that you inhale accidentally, or the one that gets between the teeth of the happy Honda rider. We just might be missing something.

One of the most NOWICKI abundant sources of food during summer is insects. Summer is their season. They like the warmth of the long summer daylight periods and the lush green plants.

Numerous animals rely on this constant, adundant and reliable source of food. Many birds eat insects, like flycatchers, warblers and thrushes. In fact, typically seed eating birds like cardinals, feed their young nestlings insects because they are more nutritious. Insects as food is one reason migratory birds return from the tropics each spring. Less competition is another very good reason.

Mammala, like bats and shrews, will eat their share of insects. And lots of other insects eat insects - wasps and hornets are good examples.

Actually 80 percent of the world's human population eats insects. Europe and America are the two major areas that do not eat insects. If so many people and animals eat insects, can they be that bad?

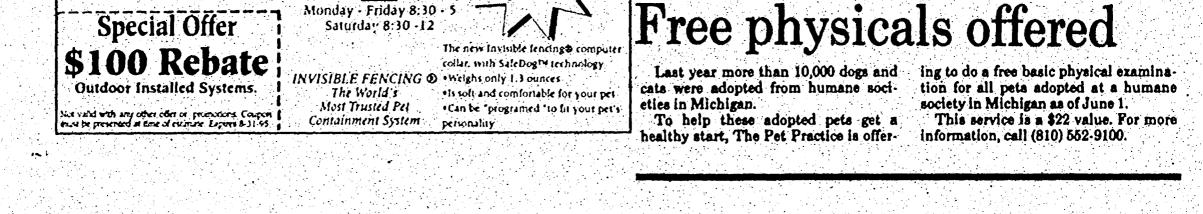

Well, recently I decided to try some insects as food to see what 80 percent of the world's population finds so appealing. I got some directions for preparing insects, and some recipes for cooking them from Dick Taylor, a retired entomologist. After looking through my choices, I decided to prepare some crickets and some mealworms.

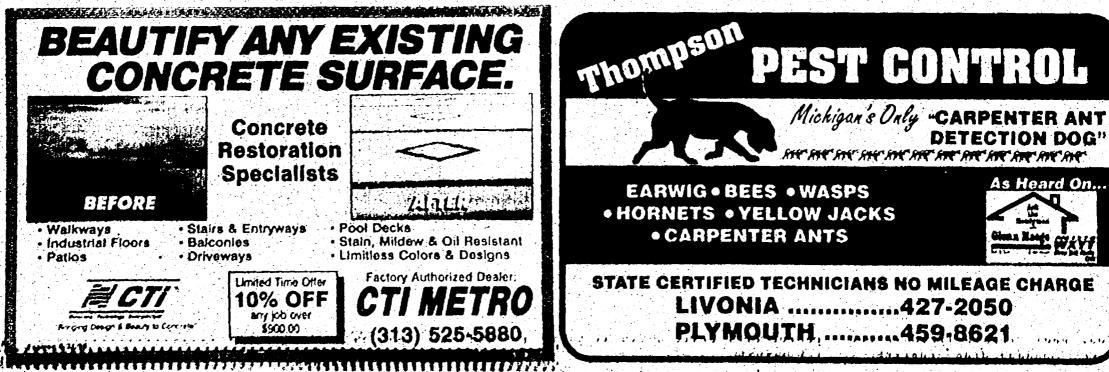

Both these insects are available in pet stores so they were easy to obtain, Preparing them for cooking involved removing the legs, wings, antennae and ovipositor on the crickets. This preparation was done after the crickets had been frozen. Nothing had to be done with the mealworms.

All the insects were washed and then roasted. Roasting until they were firm and almost crispy did not take long, probably less than ten minutes. Then I chose two methods of preparation, saute in garlic butter and dipped in chocolate. Both methods for both insects were very palatable, but my preference was the garlic butter technique.

Americana brought with them their aversion to eating insects, but if prepared properly they are not as distasteful as your imagination would think.

Dear A.G.: Talk about your genealogical lines and impeccable lineage!

The zither is a modern day version of the 15th century psaltery, which sprang from the santir, a 14th/15th century version of what later became the piano. It falls into the chordophone family of instruments in which sound is made by the vibration of strings. SOUTHFIELD, Mich., PRNewswire — Almost half of all American households (46 percent) now own a computer, says a new national survey conducted by Casey Communications/Shandwick in cooperation with EPIC-MRA.

Households with children own many more computers. — More people with higher incomes (over $60,000) own computers. — Residents of Western, Pacific and Northeastern states show greater computer ownership.

American consumers are also increasingly becoming wired to the Internet. Of all computer owners, 16 percent subscribe to on-line computer services with Internet access.

The nationwide study sampled 1,000 consumers to gather information about who owns computers and who plans to buy one. The margin of error in the survey was plus or minus three percent.

"This latest survey indicates that the computer — through the Internet — is becoming the medium of media. It is the only one of its type, capable of delivering information in print, graphics and video format," says Gerald Lundy, executive vice president of Casey Communications/Shandwick.

Here are the survey findings:

Who owns computers? — Many more younger men and women own computers. — College educated people are more likely to own computers. — Republican and partisan "Independents" own more computers than Democrats. — Computer ownership is higher among those who are pro-choice on abortion. — Catholics and those without stated religious. preference own "more computers, then Protestaple, — Who plans to buy a computer? Among the 54 percent of all survey respondents who said they did not own a computer, 17 percent said they intended to buy one within the next year. If these respondents are true to their word, computer ownership will increase from 46 to 56 percent of all households in the next year. Another 2 percent said someone else in the household would purchase a computer.

Who uses on-line services and why? Key demographic groups that show the greatest interest in on-line computer use are:

Democrats, especially democratic men; men, in general, especially white men; people without children; and, residents of northeastern and western states.

"To help with a home business" is a prime reason for computer owners to subscribe to on-line services (34 percent). Using the computer "for entertainment" ranked second (27 percent), "self-improvement" was third (25 percent) and "following news and current events" ranked as the fourth most important reason to use on-line services (19, percent), as a second services (19, percent),

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Tell about subject with environmental portraits

When most of us think of portraits, we picture the standard head shot of high school seniors or that executive in the newspaper who just received a promotion. These shots are OK but they certainly lack pictorial impact and stopping power. Imagine how thrilling it would be to produce portraits with a flair of excitement, pictures that really say something, pictures that tell a story about the subject. Wouldn't this type of portrait stand apart from the rest? You bet! They're called environmental portraits and they contain elements not found in standard head shots.

Basically, environmental portraits are taken in the subject's surroundings using elements and props common to that person's interest or field of expertise.

If photographing a friend who has strong string musical inclinations, doesn't it make sense to photograph him or her with violin in hand, perhaps in a room setting conducive to the mood? If your son is hooked on football, a portrait of him in full uniform right after the game when he's sweat- and dirt-covered will be impact-filled and memorable.

In the accompanying photograph, I gave much thought to how I could best depict cowboy Iverson Martin. First, I asked him to wear his hat and sheepskin gloves to add realism to the portrait. I selected the porch of the old cabin with the woodpile and decorative antler as the setting. I placed Iverson slightly to the left for compositional strength. His relaxed stance rounds out a neatly executed environmental portrait that says a lot about Iverson Martin and his interests.

Two acknowledged masters of the environmental portrait are Yousuf Karsh and Arnold Newman. It would certainly be worth your time to browse through their books during your next visit to your library or bookstore.

strings are metal, which the player presses with the thumb to produce a melody while plucking the other forty strings for the accompaniment. Zither music has an ephemeral, ethereal sound in our opinion. The haunting zither music from the movie "The Third Man" made zither music familiar to recent generations, although it has been known to have been played as early as the 8th century. Further evidencing its tranquilizing characteristics, in China the "gin" zither once held the privileged status of inspiring philosophical theories. The "Koto" is the classic long zither of Japan. Today zither music is mostly associated with folk music. Your zither bears labels for Franz Waldecker and Co., Washington, D.C., establishing that it is American made. and marketed, which is always a special added feature. The dovetailing, construction and appearance of the wood indicate that it's probably 19th century. One would wish it were mid-19th century; however, in checking with the Washington, D.C., Historical Society, It seems that isn't possible. The manufacturer and seller of this zither, the Waldecker Co., according to the society's records, was known to have been in business in Washington, D.C., from 1884 to 1928, thereby dating the piece to the late 19th or early 20th century. However, the zither isn't your hottest instrument today. We found little comparable prices in today's market, but we and our appraisers feel that it would be priced at $400 to $600 in a retail market.

In her book "You're A Genius — And I Can Prove It!" (Empower-Mind, 1995, $19.95), author Kimberly Kassner asks her readers, "Have you ever had your mom tell you, 'Make sure you go out and take a lot of risks today, honey, Go out

ESTHER today, honey, Go out LITTMAN and try the impossible, stretch yourself, do stretch yourself, do something you have never done before'?" Chances are the answer is "Never." Mom's admonitions were more likely to include "Be careful. Watch yourself. Be good."

That's also the problem with our educational system, maintains the former Commerce Township resident and graduate of Walled Lake Central High School. We're taught to abandon our imagination, to play it safe and conform to standardized methods of teaching and learning.

But not everyone learns the same way, says Kassner, who grew up with Attention Deficit Disorder. Plagued with symptoms such as "thought fragmentation, daydreaming and compulsive talking," yet confident that she was bright enough to learn and excel, Kassner began developing an individualized learning system to access her mind's potential.

After graduating from Michigan Central University with honors, teaching public speaking at Dale Carnegie and working for Pepsi-Cola, where she became one of the top performers in national sales, Kassner decided to take some risks. She left the corporate world to do what she loves best, which is studying how the brain processes information and creating new, effective teaching and learning techniques. The result of her research and experience is "EmpowerMind," a program that teaches learning fundamentals to the gifted, mentally challenged, and frustrated students in between.

Mucky Duck Mustard founded in 1983, originated as a family recipe and was dubbed Mucky Duck while the Marshall's British friends were visiting and discussing pub names having local cheeky add-ons - namely, The Black Swan fondly called, the Mucky Duck.

Mustard has been around for thousands of years and grows wild and weedy almost anywhere --- where it isn't, it can easily be propagated by tossing out a handful of tiny seeds. Make sure you want it before you start tossing - these weedy leaved greens are hard to get rid of once there. The very young leaves of white or black mustard plants are pungently edible, but the brown mustard plant leaves are often cultivated for "a mess of Southern greens" - a potherb that finds its family roots with those of the cabbage clan.

Processed mustard comes from the seeds - white or brown. Black mustard seeds are often used in Indian cooking. Plain ground mustard seed (mustard powder) has little aroma. Character develops when water, wine, vinegar or other liquids are added. Supermarkets and specialty food shops are loaded with varieties of prepared mustards. from all over the world - sweet to fiery hot, fighting for shelf space.

Experiment with mustard, try making your own.

TARRAGON MUSTARD

1/2 cup dry mustard 15 cup white wine vinegar (good quality)

- dinner) 2 tablespoons sugar sea salt
- 6 egg yolks

1 teaspoon dried tarragon

In a large bowl, mix together mustard powder, wine vinegar, wine and sugar. Add salt to taste. Let stand at room temperature for 2 hours. In the top of a double boiler, whisk in egg yolks and tarragon. Place over heat (make sure you've added water to the bottom pan) stirring constantly, cook over medium heat until mustard thickens.

Cool the mustard and use as a condiment. Refrigerated this mustard will keep for a month.

"You're A Genius — And I Can Prove It!" instructs students of all ages in such skills as memorization, note taking and concentration. The author's approach encompasses three basic activities: association, imagination and involvement.

"All learning comes from association," she writes.

To learn a new word or a new idea, Kassner advises, draw on your "association bubble," the sum total of your knowledge and experience. Then use your imagination. The more zany or outrageous the association, the easier it will be to remember. For instance, to recall that FE is the chemical symbol for iron, make up a silly sentence such as "We'll iron your clothes for a fee."

Association and imagination logically lead to the third activity, and that is involvement. The more involved we are in the learning process, Kassner reminds us, the better the result. Mimic the teacher when he or she lectures (silently, of course); to reinforce the words, imagine pictures over the teacher's head.

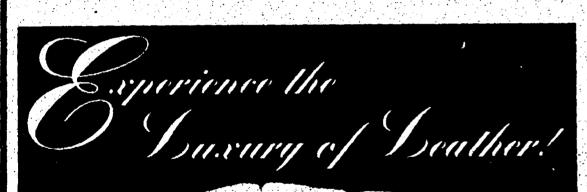

But Kimberly Kassner knows that students don't learn by the bread of cognitive skills alone. They also need confidence. Chapters devoted to developing self-esteem are full of humor, compassion and encouragement, as well as concrete ideas on how to enhance feelings of self-worth.

An experienced public speaker, Kassner's writing style "talks" to her readers: It is perky, conversational and entertaining. Occasionally, her own voice is interrupted by "Hacker," a fictional character she created to represent the typical student. He either confirms Kassner's insights and instructions, or chides her, as when she lapses into unnecessary jargon: "Keep it simple, Kimberly, so the readers (that's you adults, too) can understand it."

As students and teachers prepare for the coming academic year, many perform an annual ritual called "shopping for school." It would be nice if their purchases could include a fresh mindset, a brand-new attitude toward teaching and learning. Kimberly Kassner's book may not convert students into budding geniuses — at least not overnight — but it will help them begin tapping the mind power they do have, so that one day they can reach for "the impossible . . . something (they) have never done before."

Kassner's book can be bought at Barnes and Noble in Rochester, where she appeared for a signing, or by writing EmpowerMind, 212 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley, Calif. 94941.

IT'S A CLASSIC Concours will reflect autos' Golden Age

The Classic Car Club of America defines a classic car as one built between 1925 and 1948.

"They are the more expensive, unusual, luxury cars of the period — Cadillac, Packard, Rolls. There's quite a list. Also some less expensive cara such as Auburn, Pierce Arrow, Cord," said Brian Joseph, owner of Classic and Exotic Service in Troy which repairs and restores these cars.

This Sunday more than 300 of these cars will be on display at the Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance, one of the three most prestigious concours events in the world. The other two are the Concours at Bagatelle in Paris, France, and at Pebble Beach in California.

These long, richly appointed vehicles with their behemoth engines immediately draw oohs and ahhs from anyone who sees them. They speak of the style of another time and the wealth that could afford that style.

"Cars were being built with little regard to cost. They were interested in building quality vehicles. A lot of them have interesting, unique engineering," Joseph said. "There were cars for the many and cars for the few with money to squander."

Don Sommer, founder of the Concours in 1979 and a supplier and builder of parts for classic cars, said the Golden Age defined by the Classic Car Club was an age of innovation in styling and engineering.

"There was a drab period between 1912 and 1920. Then auto companies found that styling created obsolescence, which created excitement for new prodwhat you wanted."

When selecting cars for the Concours these features are important.

"We're looking for something unique with a lot of pizzazz to it," said Sommer, chairman of this year's selection committee. "But this is really about cars and people. We want to get exciting people to come to the show."

Featured vehicles this year are German cars, notably a 1930 Mercedes-Benz "Count Trossi" SSK owned by Ralph Lauren and a 1938 Adler Lemans Speedster. Adler, which is German for eagle, was a 1930s' marque noted for engineering advances. Also the English sports cars built by Morgan will be featured.

American cars will also be well represented including a 1936 Duesenberg SSJ Bobtailed Speedster built specially for Clark Gable. Only one other was made, for Gary Cooper.

Sommer, 62, said he began collecting cars when he was 9 years old and has been in the hobby "forever."

"I'm partial to Packards — also Chryslers, post war convertibles. You relate to cars that were popular when you were a kid. I grew up on a farm and didn't see Packards or Duesenbergs, mostly Model A's," Sommer said. "Packards had a long, lean, racy look

"Packards had a long, lean, racy look and a smooth engine."

Joseph's favorite is a 1928 Duesenberg with a double cam supercharged engine with 320 horsepower.

"It was the most impressive car built in America," Joseph said:

Joseph, who has been restoring cars for 20 years, said his interest is primarily in mechanics.

"The first place I worked, the first thing I did was work on a Duesenberg. It was the most expensive car in America. They sold the chassis, the body was ucts," said Sommer of Troy.

During the classic period, a car buyer would often buy the chassis from the automobile company and then a body from a coach maker.

"There were a lot of custom coach builders. You could buy a chassis and contract with a body builder and have it built anyway you wanted," said Joseph. "They ended up being unique."

"Also if you were to buy a run of the mill Fleetwood Cadillac, they (Cadillac) would accommodate you and give you more. A finished car would cost $12,000 in 1979. Today they bring $400,000 to $1.5 million," Joseph said.

Elegant, personally styled bodies; interiors of burled wood, soft, tufted leather and tapestry designs; powerful, complex, aluminum engines that glisten in the sun are all the elements of classic car design. They define an ers, they echo the design ideas of the late '20s and '30s and also inspired them. At Meadow Brook all this beauty comes together.

Real estate spans the generations

BY DOUG FUNKE

Brandon Kekich, 21, a real estate agent with the Michigan Group in Livonia, had a good teacher introduce him to the business his mom, Lota. Lota M. Kekich, 47, a real estate agent with the same firm, had a good role model, too her dad. Morris

"Sandy" Blakeman. Blakeman, 75, now retired, was the broker/owner of an agency and former president of the Downriver Association of Realtors.

fit's a coincidence that we have three generations in real estate," Blakeman said. "It was never planned. I think every one of us is independent."

Blakeman switched to real estate after a long career in commercial photography.

Leta waited until her children had grown up and first worked as a secretary.

Brandon got started as a part-time host at a condominium development while studying business in college.

No pressure and no pulling strings, the three agreed. All have made and are making their own marks in a highly-competitive business.

Blakeman is a former Realtor of the one such family in real estate. Year for the downriver association. Lets, a Rookie of the Year for the downriver association, has never tallied less than $3.6 million during any of her three full years selling. Brandon topped one million last year and is above that figure in just six months this year.

"I really enjoy being able to provide a necessary service," Lota said. "I enjoy the independence of this job. I don't consider it a job. I like that it changes every day. I love the challenge."

"I love the feeling of helping people," Brandon said, adding that he doesn't see his relative youthful age as a drawback. "Once I start talking, people say, 'Wow.'

"He has a great grasp of financing, an intelligent young man, computer literate," said Mike Workman, office manager.

"Customers loved him, and he learned quickly," Leta said of Brandon's early efforts. "I wanted to make him my assistant, but I'm glad I didn't because it would have been a waste of potential."

It's always a struggle to get established.

"There's no regular paycheck," Brandon said. "You don't get money until the seller gets money."

"That's why you have to plan your life as well as your business," Blakeman said

"I picked up the phone, sent letters to apartment renters," Brandon continued. Every for sale by owner in the paper I'd phone and send letters. I bugged people until they said, 'O.K., let's sit down and talk.'

All three family members are on the same wavelength when it comes to defining success.

"Self-motivation is one ingredient," Blakeman said. "But you must have education to thrive.

"Education is a must," added Leta, who holds a Graduate Realtors Institute designation.

"In the beginning, my mom said, "Any seminar you see, you go. I did. She went with me and we learned a lot." Brandon said.

ART EMANUELE/STARY PROTOGRAPHICK

Other elements of a successful agent?

"Long hours, hard work, self-sacrifice," Leta said.

"Getting out of the common-man mode." Blakeman said.

"You have to have honesty and integrity," Brandon said,

A career in real estate isn't for everyone.

"I've recruited friends in the business who are now out," Leta said. "They didn't love it.

"Maybe they didn't want to get beeped at 10 o'clock at night. They didn't want to do an open house on Sunday."

"I couldn't go to a 9 to 5 job now," Brandon said.

Leta figures that she's just getting started learning the business.

"There are so many avenues I can take, I've worked for a builder. I've done resale residential. I'd like to get into investing. Then there's property management.

"I'm very proud to be a real estate agent," she said. "I'm proud of the profession, I think if you're honest, hard-working, current with laws and educated, you rise to the top."

Contact the club before you're hit by flying golf balls

On the golf course shutting our REAL ESTATE condominium project, frequently QUERIES there are errant balls that are hit secidentally into our condominium and, in some instances, have caused damage to the units. The golf club is privately owned, Do we, as an association, or do any individual co-owners, have any cause of action against the golf club?

This is, of course, a very difficult question because presumably the ROBERT M purchasers of condominiums in the MEISNER project knew that they were buying on a golf course and that there was a likelihood that errant golf balls would traverse their property, However, I still believe that there is a responsibility on the part of the golfers and/or of the club to ensure, within reason, the security and safety of the neighbors and their real property.

club has not taken reasonable steps to avoid damage names of the condominium associations. to person or property, it may be liable. Obviously,

As a practical matter, I would have the association contact the golf club and consequently, the golf clubs' members, in an effort to alert them to the problem, to the extent that that has not already been done, and ask for whatever cooperation is necessary in order to attempt to eliminate the problem.

I have read recently about various embezzlements of condominium association money by management companies in various locales, Do you have any information on that?

Yes, Unfortunately, there is a major indictment of a number of management companies in the Manhattan; N.Y. area which is being processed. Also, in the Common Ground magazine of November/December 1994. there is reference to a Laguna Niguel, California, property manager who was arrested in August and charged with embezzling $340,000 from two homeowner associations.

Apparently, it is alleged that the managing agent began stealing money by forging names on bank sig-To the extent that you can establish that the golf nature cards and creating secret bank accounts in tho

He then allegedly transferred money to a bank-withdrawal slip with two forged signatures that matched the forged signature cards. Afterwards, he would deposit the cashier's check into an account that he created.

The investigators claim that the managing agent avoided detection by creating phony vendor invoices that made it appear that the money was used for valid expenditures.

This is similar to the allegations made against various managers in New York.

Obviously, condominium associations should take precautions to protect their money through a proper checks and balances system.

Consult with your condominium association CPA and attorney who should be in a position to assist you with any problems that you have with your managing agent.

Meeting will to show how to get more from loan

Representatives from eight Detroit-area financial institutions will present a Community Homebuyers Forum on Tuesday, Aug. 8, from 6-8 p.m. at the Greater Christ Baptist Church, 3544 Iroquois at Mack Avenue, as part of a series of workshops sponsored by Paint The Town.

This is the fifth in a series of seven presentations hosted in Detroit by Paint The Town in partnership with the Fellowship Nonprofit Housing Corporation and the Beniteau-Lillibridge-LeMay Association.

Paint the Town recipients are strongly encouraged to attend, and workshops are open to the public as well.

"The goal of this particular workshop is to give the attendee a greater awareness of the financial tools available to them. It's ideal for individuals who are interested in becoming first time homeowners, as well as for those who may want to refinance, or invest in rental property." said Glorianne Hymon, Fellowship Community neighborhood representative and Paint The Town board member. Representatives from Comerica Bank, First of America, First Federal of Michigan, First Independence, First Nationwide Bank, Michigan National Bank, NBD Bank and Standard Federal Bank will share information about their mortgage products, in addition to covering basic information relating to credit, budgeting, pre-qualifying, the benefits of house ownership, and the application and closing process-68. Rob Dewaelsche, Education Committee cochairman and Comerica Bank community affairs officer, said: "The success of our new education programs has exceeded our expectations. We've had excellent response from the community and are looking forward to the Community Homebuyers Forum as our most successful workshop to date." Paint The Town is a volunteer effort to paint and repair owner-occupied houses of senior citizens, low-income and disabled resi-dents in the metropolitan Detroit area. It was dents in the metropolitan Detion area. A founded in 1988 by NBD Bank Vice President Mary E. Kennedy, who promised her grand-mother that she would do everything possible to help senior citizens continue to live in their houses independently. #### GARAGE 21'3 X 21'9

House for 1st-time buyer

The 1,218-square-foot Huckleberry would make an excellent purchase for the first-time house buyer. For a family with small children, the floor design of the Huckleberry offers a substantial amount for your building dollar.

The handsome wood exterior projects a solid permanence and adds greatly to the curb appeal. The covered front porch leads to a recessed entry that has a vaulted ceiling and a roomy coat closet for the convenience of guests.

To the left of the entry are the sleeping areas. The master suite, for a house this size, is guite spacious and features a large walk-in closet with plenty of shelves, window to the back yard, and a private bathroom. Across the hall, and in perfect proximity for those with youngsters needing close attention, are two good-sized bedrooms. Each has sufficient closet space, and one contains a built-in desk. This room, if not needed for use as a bedroom, could functions as a sewing room, den or home office. In the hallway are a full bathroom and a linen closet.

The main section of this floor plan. where family activities and entertaining are centered, is designated as a great room. This combines the living room, family room and dining room into one huge uncluttered expanse. Here you and your visitors can enjoy a movie, board game or good conversation.

The adjacent walk-in kitchen is placed for maximum efficiency. Along with all the appliances, there is a step-in pantry and garden window. Meals are easily served in the dining area or, weather permitting, open the aliding glass doors and dine on the back patio.

An added feature is the direct access to the klichen from the garage. This allows you to carry groceries right into the house without worrying about the climate outside. A utility area is at the rear of the garage.
