Groups want to turn off violence

Two community groups are planning a free program for families and their youngsters to encourage them to take part in wholesome activities as an alternative to viewing violence on TV or in movies. The program will be Thursday, Oct. 12, at Bailey Recreation Center.

Two Westland groups want parents and their middle school students to pull the plug on TV violence and mayhem on the movie screen.

The groups are providing what they feel is a positive alternative — free games and entertainment in a nationally observed "Turn Off the Violence" program next Thursday night, Oct. 12.

The sponsors are planning family games and activities at the Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh, including a free swim at the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA indoor pool.

Purpose of the free 6-9 p.m. program is to bring about an awareness of the frequency of violence on TV and movies and provide non-violent choices for entertainment, said Margaret Harlow.

She is a member of the two organizations putting on the program — the Mayor's Task Force on Substance Abuse and Violence and the Westland Rotary Club.

"The task force interviewed middle school students and found that a constant problem is that they are afraid of all the violence all around them," Harlow said.

"We hope to turn the tide and get families to regain high standards."

She and the sponsors are hoping that families will read, talk or walk together as a group, either at home or at the Bailey Recreation Center on Thursday, Oct. 12.

At the center, there will be family-oriented games and activities with prizes awarded, she said.

Another Rotarian, Kim Shunkwiler, is helping Harlow and task force members with the program's activities.

In relation to the program, the YMCA, on Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill, will offer its facilities free to families 6-9 p.m. with a free swim in the indoor pool from 7-8 p.m.

It's a room that "knocks your socks off" when you walk in.

That's how Dennis Laurain, vocational specialist for Livonia Public Schools' Career/Technical Center, described the state-of-the-art technology labs now up and running in the district's three high schools and four middle schools.

Churchill High, which serves the northwestern section of Westland, showed off its new maroon, gray and blue high-tech room Monday to a bevy of administrators and school trustees dazzled by all

PLACES & FACES

Happy birthdays

There were two big birthday greetings at the Westland City Council Monday night.

One was directed to Mildred Evans, longtime city council watcher, who initiated the news that her 79th birthday was Tuesday, Oct. 3. The birthday disclosure surfaced when she asked Mayor Robert Thomas why she didn't receive a congratulatory letter from him. The mayor sends letters to people during the month they observe a birthday.

The mayor told Mrs. Evans that he has been having troubles with his computerized birthday lists.

"I expect a card from you next year," she said.

The other birthday was that of City Clerk Diane Fritz, who was surprised with a banner displayed by council members marking her "39th" birthday. She didn't disclose her age.

As always, Mrs. Evans didn't let the council meeting go by without a dig about the council president curbing residents who want to talk during the "citizens' requests" of each business meeting.

She claimed that the council's attempts to limit her freedom of speech won't work on her.

Mrs. Evans also objected to being called "an old horse" by another resident at an earlier council meeting.

More than 76 trombones

Marching band lovers will have two major events to enjoy within the next two weeks. The first one is the second annual Franklin High School Americana Invitational, to be held from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, at the Franklin football field. Among the 13 bands will be Franklin, to play at 3:30 p.m., and Wayne Memorial. Tickets are $5 for adults and students 12 and older and $2 for children under 12. Refreshments will be sold during the day.

In two weeks, the John Glenn High School band will host its annual invitational, starting at 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, at the school's football field. The band boosters will provide more details closer to the event.

Contestants sought

High school senior girls are wanted to enter the annual Wayne-Westland Junior Miss scholarship program, for which the deadline to apply is 3 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 12. Contestants must be residents of Westland or Wayne or attend a Wayne-Westland school district high school. Applications are available at public schools as well as Divine Child, Ladywood, Lutheran High West and Huron Valley. Interested seniors may call Pat or Dennis Hermatz at 721-5220.

Monday marked the official dedication of the labs, with plaques being presented to administrators to hang in each high school.

"Livonia is in the forefront of technological education," said Tom Close, owner of Northville-based Advanced Technologies, which supplied much of the technology for the labs. "People from all over, even Newfoundland, have come to visit these labs."

The labs are the 21st Century version of the old industrial arts rooms, where students over the decades learned woodworking and other shop subjects.

The labs were all paid for by Livonia taxpayers when they approved a $62.5 million bond issue in 1992.

Each semester, students pick eight lab stations to work at, said Jeff Hadley, Churchill tech lab teacher.

"As the instructor, I'm the manager of the room," Hadley said. "I'm not there to spoon feed them information. They pick a partner and do things themselves. It's self-directed learning."

on Saturday, Oct. 14.

"We are asking people to turn off violent TV, movies, and music to plan enjoyable, non-violent alternatives. Make plans with family or friends to take a walk, read to children or hold a family Olympics," the national Turn Off the Violence committee, which was formed four years ago in Minneapolis, Minn., said in its printed information.

Westland City Council approved a resolution Monday night supporting the activities.

The resolution, prepared by the program's planners, said Oct. 12 is a day for people to "begin using their individual power to choose to turn off violent television programs, not to listen to violent music, and not to go to violent movies. Further, citizens are encouraged to examine the way they resolve anger and conflicts and to begin to resolve them without violent words or actions."

Shunkwiler told the council Monday that "turn off the violence" is an idea which has struck a chord with many people.

The Thursday night program will have Rotary sponsored games behind the recreation center, an appearance by the John Glenn High School marching band, and trips to the top of the fire department's aerial ladder truck, he said.

"We hope this will be the first of an annual event," he said.

Homeowners are encouraged to turn on their porch lights that night to signal their support of the no-violence program.

The national organization was initiated in 1991 as a coalition of law enforcement, education and social service providers working together to educate the public about the problem of violence, the committee said.

It is guided through a steering committee and administered by the Minnesota Citizens Council on Crime and Violence.

Local residents split on verdict in O.J. case

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

■ 'They were there for a year. It's got to be fair. I don't agree with it, but that's beside the point.'

Carl Gresen
Westland resident

Some local residents say the verdict in O.J. Simpson's murder trial was fair, while others continue to believe he killed Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Several agree that Los Angeles police Detective Mark Fuhrman's testimony was damaging to the prosecution's case.

Residents gave their opinions on a rainy Tuesday afternoon at the Westland Post Office, Wayne Road south of Hunter.

Westland resident Don Kolehmainen said he initially believed Simpson was guilty of the murders. But he said he had a shred of doubt after Fuhrman took the witness stand.

"I think it was the way the evidence was presented," Kolehmainen said. "I think he (Fuhrman) hurt the case."

Carl Gresen of Westland said he still believes Simpson committed the murders, but he added that the jury saw and heard much more testimony that he did.

"They were there for a year. It's got to be fair," he said of the verdict. "I don't agree with it, but that's beside the point."

Winifred Engleby of Westland said she expected Simpson to be acquitted.

"I was expecting what the jury said," Engleby said, "but I don't know if it was fair. O.J. had so much money that he could spend. And they (prosecutors) didn't really prove their case without a reasonable doubt."

Margaret Allen of Canton Township said she doesn't believe the verdict was fair.

"I just think the evidence proved that he did it," Allen said.

However, she said O.J. Simpson was supported by many senior citizens who live at the nursing home where she works. They didn't believe Simpson committed the murders, she said.

"They let out a big yell" when the verdict was announced, Allen said.

A woman who asked that she only be identified by her initials, E.B., said she supported Simpson from the beginning.

"From the very beginning I thought he was innocent," she said. "He loved Nicole, and I don't think he would kill her."

There are three weeks left to nominate people for the 10th annual First Citizen of Westland community service award.

The recognition program, cosponsored by the Westland Observer and the Westland Chamber of Commerce, has a deadline of 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Nominees will be considered by a panel of judges, to be named later this month, on the basis of their community service activities and the impact those activities have had on the city or a segment of its residents.

In the past nine years, the backgrounds of First Citizen recipients have included fire safety, government, education, business organizations, recreation and social services for low-income families.

Nominees must have made a significant contribution to helping improve the quality of life for the community in general or a segment of the community.

While the previous First Citizens have been local residents, residency isn't a requirement.

Nominators should provide detailed information about those to be considered for the award and the nominees' impact on the community or groups of people.

The community service award was initiated by the two co-sponsors in the fall of 1986 to honor volunteers whose efforts are many times overlooked.

The 1995 First Citizen will be publicly honored at the chamber's monthly membership luncheon program on Tuesday, Nov. 14, scheduled for the Hellenic Cultural Center. Besides receiving plaques or certificates from the Observer and the chamber, federal, state, county and city officials are also expected to honor the First Citizen.

Last year's recipients, Tom and Mary Wieske, marked the first time that a couple won the award.

Past winners have been, in order, Joseph Benyo, Thomas Brown, Sam Corrado, Linda Pratt, Sharon Scott, Margaret Harlow, Madeleine Schroeder and Susan Powers.

Nominations must be in writing and directed to:

Westland Observer Editorial Department, First Citizen Award, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Our fax number is 591-7279.

Grant recipients announced

Widman Foundation, a Michigan grant-making organization which provides funding to programs that people with developmental disabilities, has announced its 1995 grant recipients.

The first recipient, Arc (Associated of Retarded Citizens) of Northwest Wayne County, has been awarded $10,000 to initiate "SELFPOWER" and "KIDPOWER," two programs that provide an opportunity for children with developmental disabilities and their siblings to come together in a fun, supportive atmosphere and share common concerns that affect their lives.

In the Northwest Arc group, "KIDPOWER" is based on the concept of working with siblings to help them feel comfortable and get some time to themselves, said Sylvia Kloc, executive director.

"The siblings get a chance to work out some very difficult feelings in a unique atmosphere. That is not always easy for kids to do."

A side benefit of "KIDPOWER," says Kloc, is that the parents get a much needed break. Arc is part of the largest national, voluntary health organization in the U.S., a foundation spokeswoman said.

The other grant was presented to Detroit Radio Information Service (DRIS) which will use the $5,000 check to add "Access to Information: Programs for the Disabled" to its programming content, the spokeswoman said.

Using special, single-frequency, pretuned radio receivers, DRIS broadcasters and volunteers read newspapers, make announcements and follow special programs and developments for the area's visually and physically impaired.

The grant will enable the service to create a special radio series featuring topics and discussions from events and seminars specifically targeted to those with developmental disabilities.

Information is power. Knowledge is the key to the world. Maybe these sound cliche, but they are certainly true, according to Kimberly Walsh, DRIS director.

"The worst handicap of all is that of not being informed," said Walsh who will implement "Access to Information."

Teen pleads guilty to molesting charge

In a move that averted a trial, Scott William Mills pleaded guilty Monday to one count of third-degree criminal sexual conduct.

He could face a maximum 15-year prison term when he is sentenced Oct. 25 by Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Robert Evans.

Mills had originally been charged with one count of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and two counts of second-degree CSC. He could have faced life in prison if he had been convicted as charged.

Mills was originally accused of having the girl perform oral sex on him. He also was accused of touching her genitals and having her touch him, Westland police have said.

The girl was molested between January and April, Westland police Sgt. Terry Donohue has said.

Mills and the girl lived in the same house with other relatives at the time, Donohue said.

When we say we screen our doctors, it's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves.

Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

Next, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met.

Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association.

Only after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure of going through this process all over again every two years for as long as they're with us.

Our doctors go through a screening process that's so detailed, it puts them on the other end of the microscope. For a change.

Now, that is a tall order to fill. But if we're going to take the guesswork out of selecting a doctor, we should try our hardest to provide you with a sizable list of quality personal care physicians and specialists. It's as simple as that.

Blue Care Network

SCC has health care magazine L

Starting today residents of southeastern Michigan will be reading LifeLine, a brand new health care magazine published by Specialty Communications, Inc.

According to its editor, Cathy Smillie, LifeLine is designed for people who need complete, easy-to-read tips on how to keep themselves well.

"Our readers live fast-paced, busy lives," Smillie said. "They're looking for clear perspectives and accurate information that is useful in their daily activities."

All stories take a local slant, using experts from area hospitals, clinics and other health care facilities. Although the magazine covers complex medical issues, most articles are written in the "how-to" format, such as how to pack nutritious lunches that kids will eat, or what to look for when browsing for fresh fruits and vegetables at the local farm market.

"Now more than ever, we are encouraged to take responsibility for our own health," Smillie says. "But where do we start? The medical field can be costly and confusing, and insurance companies make matters even more complex."

October's feature story, "Whole Health," explores the emerging managed care environment and aims to help readers better understand its components, including the role of the primary care physician, when you should see a specialist, and how to use nurse midwives, osteopathic physicians and other providers.

Specialty Communications is a subsidiary of Suburban Communications Corporation, publisher of Observer & Eccentric and Hometown newspapers. LifeLine will be distributed through the Suburban network in Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Local panel addresses foreign aid

A panel which includes U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, will discuss foreign aid at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 15 in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer Street (north of Main and east of Sheldon Road).

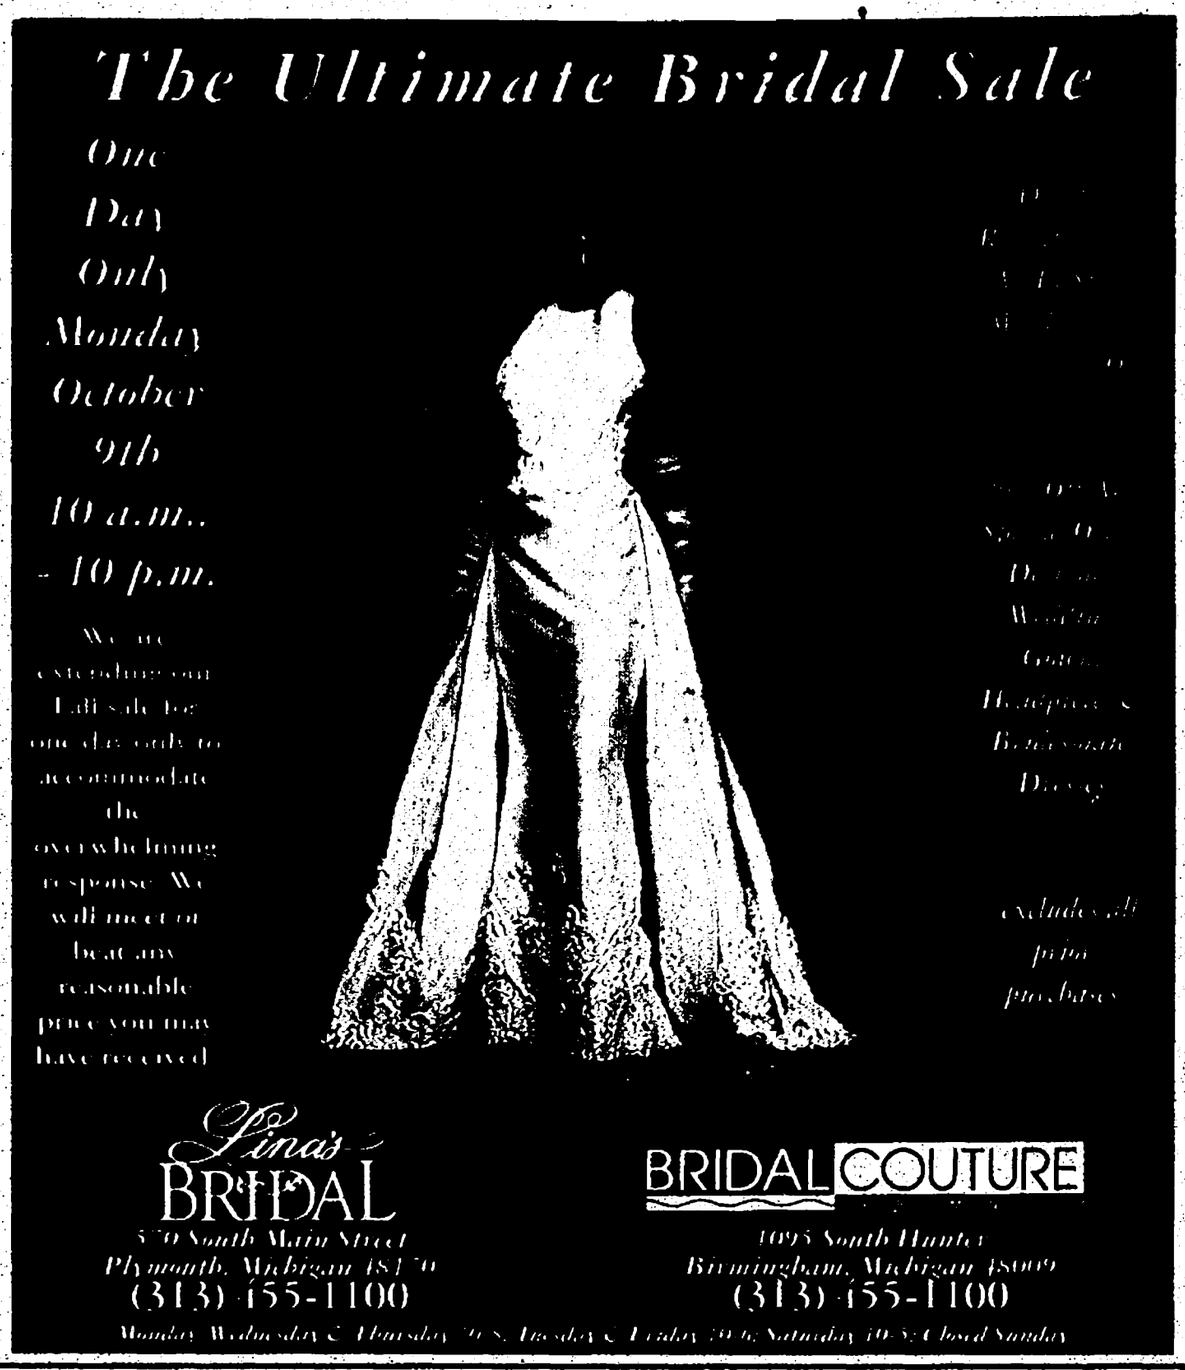

Rivers — whose district includes Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and part of Livonia — will be joined on the panel by Mike Presants, state coordinator of the Concord Coalition; Sam Daley-Harris, executive director of RESULTS; and Margie Hazelton, a Peace Corps volunteer.

Moderator will be Paul Huth, associate professor of political science at the University of Michigan.

The panel members will share their views on foreign aid and respond to questions pertaining to: "Is foreign aid a form of embezzlement from U.S. taxpayers or an investment in our future?"

The discussion is being held to mark the fifth anniversary of the World Summit for Children. RESULTS (Responsibility for Ending Starvation Using Legislative, Trimtabs and Support) is a non-profit, grass-roots citizens lobby committed to creating the political will to end hunder and the worst aspects of poverty.

Free exam offered to detect depression

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

The fifth National Depression Screening Day takes place today (Thursday, Oct. 5) at a number of locations in the metro Detroit area, free of charge. Last year there were 31 area sites where more than 1,300 people were screened. Nationally, over 85,000 people were seen at more than 2,000 locations. Of those screened, 76.4 percent scored positive for depression.

While one out of every four women and one out of 10 men will experience one or more depressive episodes at some point in their lives, currently only about one-third of those who suffer from a depressive illness will seek professional help.

Depression is not just "a case of the blues." It is not a flaw in character or a personal weakness that the victim can "pull themselves out of." It is a serious biological illness that can be successfully treated in 80 to 90 percent of cases with medication, therapy or a combination of the two.

"I think that many people tend to see depression as something very obvious — this guy is really depressed, he's suicidal or what have you,' said Dr. William Hart, psychologist and clinical program director at Suburban West Community Center in Redford Township, one of the sites offering screening today.

"It's not unusual for people to be depressed, to be suffering from depression and not realize it. It's kind of like having a very negative, dim view of life and thinking that's the way things are."

The most common types of depressive illness are unipolar (deep, prolonged depression) and bipolar or manic depression (cycles of deep depression followed by inappropriate highs).

The screening questionnaire to aid in detecting depression takes only about 10 minutes to fill out. A professional will go over information individually with each participant and, if screened positive for depression, will be able to offer a variety of resources for follow-up care.

"Most of the people that have come in the past have been able to go home with a lot of educational material," noted Linda Lupo, secretary for the Department of Behavioral Medicine at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

"There's a wealth of information that they can get at the screening along with speaking to someone individually."

St. Mary has participated in the National Depression Screening Day every year since its inception.

The Oct. 5 screening day program at most locations will offer a video presentation as well as presentations and question and answer sessions conducted by medical professionals. The entire program runs from one and a half to two hours. Those seeking screening or information are encouraged to come in for all or part of the program.

Even if a potential depression sufferer is unwilling to come in for screening, Hart encouraged friends or family members to stop by for information.

Lupo pointed out that it is also helpful to have a friend or relative come along with the person being screened.

"It's good to have somebody there who can hear what's being presented along with the person who feels they might be dealing with depression," she explained. "It just reaffirms how they are feeling and lets somebody else in their family understand what they are going through so they can help them identify and deal with it."

Although the Suburban West Community Center is a facility that provides services for adults 18 years and older, Hart pointed out that "the depression screening is available for children and adolescents as well." Referrals will be made to proper treatment facilities for that age group.

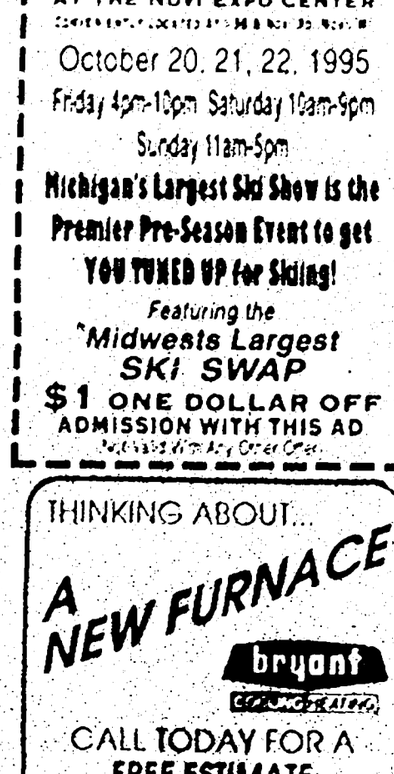

There is no cost for the depression screenings at any location on Oct. 5. St. Mary will offer the program at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Thursday. Suburban West has set screening times of 2-4 p.m.

Many facilities, including St. Mary and Suburban West, offer free assessments for mental health difficulties at other times as well. The Marian Center at St. Mary offers a screening day for anxiety and depression on an alternating basis each month. Upcoming anxiety screening days are Oct. 12 and Dec. 14. Depression screening day is scheduled for Nov. 9. New dates for 1996 will be announced later. For appointments call: (313) 591-3314 or 1-800-494-1615.

County canoe rental to open

A new county-operated canoe rental concession opens this weekend at the Oak Grove Area of Hines Park, Ann Arbor Trail one-quarter mile west of Farmington Road.

The canoe concession will operate Saturdays and Sundays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in October.

There is a $20 deposit fee and $10 for a maximum of two hours.

The three-mile trip from Newburgh Lake to Nankin Lake takes about 90 minutes, according to county officials.

"This is an important symbol of our efforts to clean up the Rouge River," said Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara.

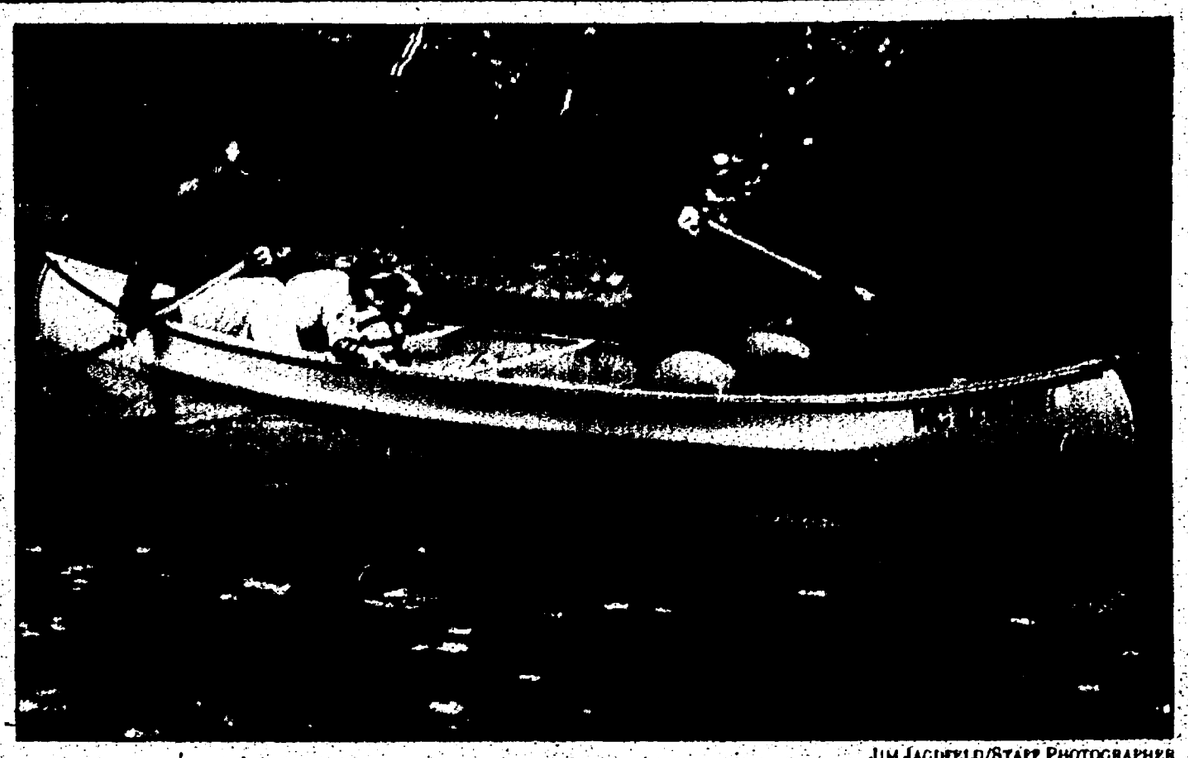

"We plan to make the Rouge a national model of how to take a river that once was thought to be helplessly polluted and return it to a state where people can use it and enjoy it."

In addition to recent county efforts to improve water quality, McNamara credited the volunteer efforts to the Friends of the Rouge, who have been working to clean up the river for more than a decade, and U.S. Rep. John Dingell who helped secure federal funding to clean up the Rouge River watershed.

The first canoe trip was expected to be taken earlier today by Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan and his children. Duggan, who headed a recent project to clear logjams from the river, said that even though other parts of the Rouge are still polluted, the stretch of the Rouge used for the canoes is clean enough to allay any health concerns.

"From Newburgh Road to Farmington Road, the water in the Rouge is passing all tests for human contact," Duggan said. "The canoeing here will be safe — otherwise I would not have brought my children."

Although the Newburgh-Farmington stretch has been cleared, Wayne County Environmental Health Director Glenn Brown stressed that the rest of the Rouge does not yet meet health standards and should still be considered hazardous to human health.

Anti-violence backing urged

Why can't people, young and old, solve their problems without killing or hurting each other?

The Observer, sadly, is seeing on a more frequent basis incidents of homicides or serious injuries when people have an argument over something, usually of no consequence, with one of the combatants pulling out a gun and shooting the other.

For example, witnesses testified at a district court hearing in August that a teen-ager shot and killed a man who was attempting to break up a fight in the middle of a residential neighborhood in broad daylight.

The Observer sees far too many police reports telling of fights in homes, bars and other places where one person gets into a spat about something and ends up in a hospital emergency room or morgue.

But instead of tacitly accepting this irrational behavior, two local groups are working hard to address the problem as it relates to middle school students.

The groups, the Mayor's Task Force on Substance Abuse and Violence, backed by the Westland Rotary Club, are planning a "turn off the violence" program for middle school students and their families next Thursday night, Oct. 12.

The program focuses on helping families realize the volume of violence on TV and in the movies and that there are better ways to resolve conflicts.

The Observer hopes that families mark that date on their calendar and make it a top priority to attend.

The program, to be held 6-9 p.m. in the Bailey Recreation Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh, is free.

Offered are a free swim at the Wayne-Westland YMCA's indoor pool, on Wayne Road south of Cherry Hill, and family activities.

One of the organizers of the program, Margaret Harlow, said that the two sponsoring groups hope that families will use the event to read, walk or talk with each other at home that night or come to Bailey Center for organized family activities.

At the same time, the sponsoring groups are urging families to make a conscious effort to "turn off" the TV, which has violence in many of its programs, and shun movies or videos which also include blood and gore.

The national organization which initiated the "Turn Off the Violence" program four years ago wants Westlanders to achieve the two main goals of its mission: Provide people with non-violent ways to deal with anger and conflict, and also help people realize how violent entertainment can contribute to the social acceptance of violence.

Next Thursday's program shouldn't be viewed merely as a now-and-then reminder that TV and movie violence can be harmful, but that family relationships can be vastly improved by eliminating violence from personal lives.

While local schools have initiated conflict resolution programs, the Oct. 12 program is an excellent step forward to involve parents as well as students in dealing with the problem.

The Observer hopes to see hundreds of family members at Thursday's program relating to each other in a positive way.

Pro ball in suburbia? No joke

Broadcaster Ernie Harwell had a little joke when he narrated Detroit Tigers baseball games in the 1970s, '80s and early '90s.

"That pop foul was caught by a fan from Allen Park That home run was nabbed by a fan from Kalamazoo That slice into the right-field stands was picked up by a fan from Okemos."

Of course, Harwell had no way of knowing where the fans came from, but it was the Tigers' way of acknowledging that people from over two-thirds of Michigan came to games.

Joke time may be over. A new competitor is emerging for baseball fans' attention, and it is eyeing the metro Detroit suburbs.

We refer to minor league baseball. Already the West Michigan Whitecaps are attracting folks to their new ballpark in Grand Rapids. Lansing is putting up a stadium for a team with the unlikely name of Lugnuts. Battle Creek's team, the Battle Cats, started play this year.

Earlier in 1995, a group of outstate investors approached the city of Novi with an idea for a minor league stadium.

And a couple of weeks ago, the Palace approached Oakland Community College with an unwritten proposal for a minor league stadium on 20 acres of OCC property on the Auburn Hills Campus.

Anyone can see the point. The notion of a minor league baseball team and stadium near I-75, I-96, I-696 or even I-94 is far from crazy.

And if the horse racing business goes belly-up, as the owners of Ladbroke DRC in Livonia threaten, a good chunk of land and parking lot may come on the commercial real estate market sufficient to accommodate a minor-league ballpark.

Tiger crowds used to push the two million mark in a season. Lately they've been lucky to exceed one million. There was one players' strike too many in 1994 that cost loyal fans a World Series. "Fans" comes from the word "fanatic." That's how much baseball watchers love the sport. To deny them a World Series is an act bordering on desecrating the flag. And that's just about what the major leagues did.

During former owner Tom Monaghan's machinations for a new stadium, it became abundantly clear that most suburbs wanted no part of a major league stadium, with 50,000 seats and a parking need for tens of thousands of cars and buses. But a minor-league team? That may be food for thought.

Minor-league stadiums are built for 10,000 or fewer fans. Minor-league stadiums don't demand the $55 million the Michigan Strategic Fund intends to use for "public infrastructure and land assembly" for a new Tiger Stadium.

A dozen metropolitan Detroit suburbs are large enough in population to qualify as a hometown for a new minor-league club.

If the PBS television series "Baseball," produced by former Ann Arborite Ken Burns, taught us anything, it's that major-league ball wasn't always played in palatial surroundings seating 60,000 people with luxury boxes for the corporate types. Smaller-town baseball can be just as satisfying, easier to get in and out of, cheaper to take the family to see, and easier on the state treasury than major-league ball, at which current Tigers' owner Mike Ilitch confesses he's losing $10 million to $15 million a year while producing disappointing quality.

Think about it. Baseball in a small-city setting in the suburbs, the way it used to be played.

COMMUNITY VOICE

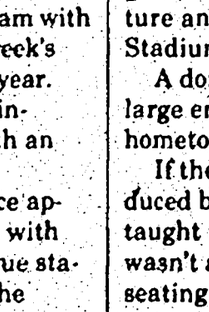

QUESTION:

What do you think of the Detroit Tigers' future now that manager Sparky Anderson has resigned?

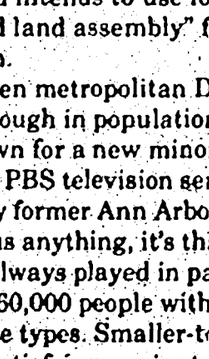

We asked this question at the Westland Big Boy Restaurant, on Wayne Road at Hunter.

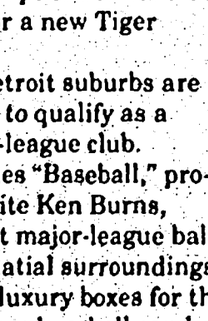

'I don't know anything about it. I don't know anything about baseball.'
Daphne Beck

'The Tigers will be lost without him. I was hoping he would stay. He was a part of the team.'
Julie Oswalt

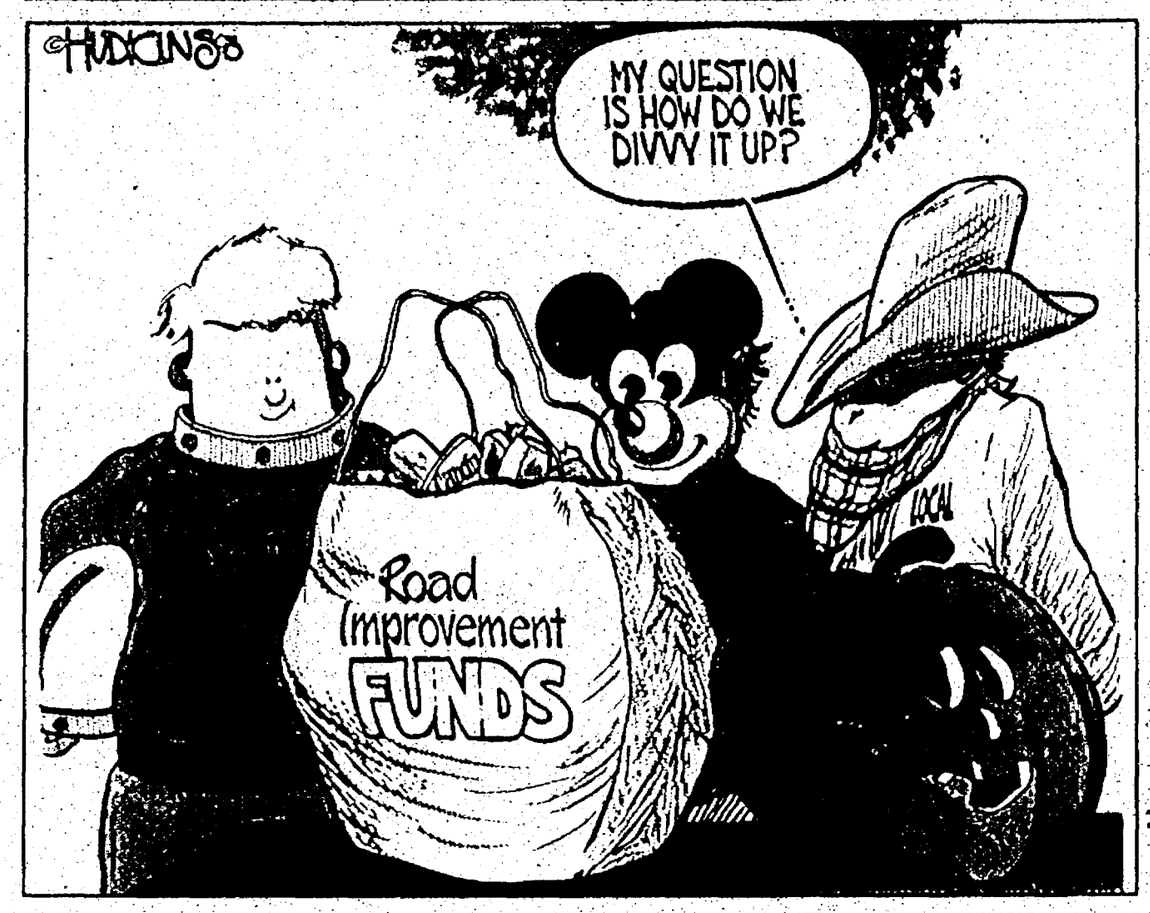

'It will be sad for the next five years. There are many youngsters (on the Tigers). Then they will have a shot.'
Pete Maker

'It's good to go with younger players. They are cleaning out from the top to bottom. It's a good move for the future.'

I would like you to know what I think of some of Philip Power's distorted views published in the Observer Newspapers. He, a man of position and influence, should be ashamed the way he has interpreted the Michigan Constitution. It is obvious that he has never read it.

In the Sept. 21 Observer, he tried to vilify anyone who was in favor of the Cropsey concealed weapons bill, he said many things which I believe should deeply offend and outrage any law-abiding constitutionally minded citizen.

How dare you state that the interpretation of the U.S. and Michigan constitutions of Cropsey, Washington and their allies — as relates to the proposed legislation, concerning the setting up of gun boards, "Shall Issue" permits to anybody who isn't explicitly ruled out" — is nonsense!

What part of the state Constitution doesn't Mr. Power understand? I noticed that you omitted quoting it. Was that accidental? Article 1, Section 6 states, "Any law abiding citizen exercising their inalienable and constitutional right must logically be prepared to defend themselves any where that their life could be in danger."

Doesn't it only seem logical that Mr. Power would need the means to do that, not only in your home, but anywhere that you could be in danger?

Notice that the state Constitution states that the right to defend oneself ("himself") is an individual right, not some socialist idea of group rights or group or individual privilege. How dare you suggest that any one or any group or U.S. legislative body degrade the state Constitution by totally ignoring or misrepresenting the intent or the application of the law.

The article says: "Notice that the perspective embedded in this argument is that of the individual, entitled to protect himself when faced with menace."

Next it stated, "If you switch the perspective, however, from the individual to society as a whole "

This is exactly what is wrong with your interpretation of the law. Possibly Mr. Power may wish to ignore this law, or maybe your switching of the perspective might fit your skewed argument conveniently; but it is not the law. Article 1, Section 6 of the Michigan Constitution emphatically states the rights of the individual.

It is when these individuals come together in a lawful spirit and mind that they comprise one of the legal, effective, citizen deterrents to combat crime; unlike the many ridiculous laws that have proven to be failures. Law enforcement voluntarily admits that it is not their job to protect every individual and they could not, even if it was.

Therefore, ready personal protection is not only a constitutionally guaranteed right, but the necessary and logical answer if you or your loved ones are threatened bodily. Witnessing the rise in crime would therefore lend the Boy Scout motto "Be prepared" appropriate.

A truly lawful society is a polite society. In Michigan, especially, that included being armed.

David Pierson, Westland

PC criticized

The recent murder of an Oakland University coed who was studying prostitution as a "school project" raises a problem that we should all be concerned about. I call it the "ghettoization" of American culture.

Many impressionable suburban and rural young people have been taken in by the liberal media's glorification of urban underclass culture. Life in the underclass is being portrayed as "hip," "cool," and "exciting." All, of course, in the name of "inclusion" and "diversity." Popular movies and rap music portray "home boys" and "gang life" in a romanticized way. And "ghetto" fashions have become pervasive in suburban high schools. Many middle-class youths are spending large amounts of money trying to obtain a "home boy" look previously reserved for the urban poor.

The question is — why?

The liberal political and social agenda of an "inclusionary yet diverse" society seems to have degenerated into an attempt to bring ghetto values to the suburbs — rather than to bring suburban middle class values to the urban underclass. It appears the liberals believe it is always easier to go to the lowest cultural common denominator.

Our schools are pushing "inclusion" and "diversity training" on the kids — yet our upper-middle-class teachers go off each night to protected and safe communities, leaving their impressionable students behind.

So, young people, beware — the "cultural relativism" of the liberal establishment, and the schools and universities, can be very hazardous to your health. Don't let "political correctness" be a substitute for common sense.

POINTS OF VIEW

'Tough' bills would incarcerate public safety

GUEST COLUMNIST

GEORGE WARD

Now you can experience the distress that recently gripped the California-based editors of the staunchly Republican Investor's Business Daily without ever leaving Michigan.

The IBD scribes were recalling how Gov. Pete Wilson had campaigned for "three strikes and you're out" legislation but has now established quotas on the number of parole violators he'll take back into prison.

A Michigan version of "Speak Loudly, and Carry a Featherduster" consists of a package of three bills — HB 5033, 5034 and 5035 — introduced by Reps. James Ryan and Eric Bush.

These bills would abolish consecutive sentences for new felonies committed by parolees through the drastic measure of stripping the prosecutor of authority even to file new charges; render parolees unsupervisable by eliminating their risk of prompt re-incarceration for parole violations; and destroy the public safety leverage of parole revocation, which law-abiding society must possess over the re-entering felony convict — all under the camouflage of an empty but tough-sounding provision which merely makes a name change from minimum sentence to determinate sentence.

In August, Rep. Ryan told Ronna Romney's WJR talk-show audience that under his bills, if a sentencing judge selects a sentence of 12 years, "that person will serve 12 years in prison, not one day less." But that's not even close. Section 33 of HB 3054 provides that sentence shortening credits of 84 days per year are to be calculated exactly as before and "deducted from the prisoner's determinate sentence in order to determine his or her discharge date." Whatever happened to truth in sentencing?

Let's consider other elements of what the public understands by determinate sentence. Take manslaughter, for example. The present statutory sentence is 15 years. To voters, getting rid of parole means that the manslaughter convict will stay in prison for the full 15 years.

But that's not what Ryan and Bush mean. Just as now, they pass the buck to judges in each case to fix a so-called determinate sentence. Legislative guidelines are talked about, but there's no provision for ever bringing them to closure. Some idea of determinateness.

But the biggest objection to Ryan/Bush is how it would undermine public safety.

The real purpose of this hodgepodge of provisions is to covertly repeal the consecutive sentences for re-offending felony parolees which were enacted by the Legislature in 1988 and upheld by Judge Susan Bieke-Neilson in O'Hair vs. Gregory Young.

But the package is so pro-convict it even intrudes upon the prosecutor's authority to file new charges. Section 8A of HB 5033 vests the last sentencing judge of the prisoner on supervised release with "exclusive jurisdiction to impose a penalty" for any violation alleged to be a felony. It's hard to believe the inmates themselves didn't write this one.

We've known for three decades that society's only chance to deter criminality is with a credible threat of swift and certain punishment. That threat cannot exist as to first offenders. They're presumed innocent, and most are out on bond for the six months or more it takes to complete their first criminal trial.

The conditions necessary for swift and certain punishment exist only for offenders already in convict status. That's why MCL 791 has long provided that a parole violation subjects the parolee to prompt re-incarceration for the unexpired term of his or her maximum sentence.

How, with recidivism rates as high as they are, can we repeal the unserved maximum sentence? Yet, under the guise of getting tough, section 38 of HB 5035 would abolish this important leverage.

Almost 20 percent of the offenders against whom new prosecutions are instituted in Wayne County are already in convict status. Prosecutor John D. O'Hair has estimated that taxpayers in Wayne County alone could save $6 to $10 million a year if the state would just use the punishment authority of existing unused sentences. The parole board refuses to do so on the false ground that it lacks subpoena power.

Now legislators, including a number from Wayne County, propose to compound the state's past sins against their own county taxpayers by abandoning what they should insist be used.

But don't take my word for it. Read the Ryan/Bush package for yourself. If you care about public safety, I'll bet you conclude as the IBD editors did about the comparable California situation. "It's an administrative shift," they said, "worthy of Mike Dukakis."

Law-enforcement lobby misfires on concealed weapons

TIM RICHARD

If Sen. Joe McCarthy, of 1950s Commie-hunting infamy, had said it, liberals would have said he reached new depths of smearing and depravity.

The statement was that would-be handgun carriers are "criminals who have avoided conviction, hot-heads, alcohol abusers, drug abusers and people prone to domestic violence."

It came from John O'Hair, Democratic prosecutor of Wayne County. A former judge, O'Hair appeared to have forgotten that a person is innocent until accused, tried and convicted. Moreover, his wording was so all-encompassing that it muddied all persons interested in CW (concealed weapon) permits.

Also in the fray was Ron Deziel, Dearborn police chief, with statistics about what happened to crime rates in Florida after it liberalized its handgun laws. Deziel wrote of crime and shootings soaring in 1987-91, after the sunshine state's gun law was changed.

Very slippery. Deziel hopes you will be tricked into assuming that the newly issued CW permit handguns were used. He never proves it. In fact, he never even tries to prove it. It's reminiscent of those hokey statistics that showed New York City with a ballooning birth rate nine months after a power failure.

Center of attention is House Bill 4720, sponsored by state Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, to change the rules under which CW handgun permits are issued. There are two issues, and most commentators mix them up.

1. Should Michigan do away with 83 separate gun boards and have a single state office regulate permits? The answer should be a resounding "yes."

2. Should Michigan become a "shall issue" state — that is, should it be required to issue a CW permit to anyone who isn't a felon, awaiting trial or in some way demonstrably loony? Here there may be room for negotiation, as the attorneys say.

But not a lot of room. Consider the language of the Michigan Constitution, Art. I, Sec. 6: "Every person has a right to keep and bear arms for the defense of himself and the state." That is the entire section.

I am most bothered by the current 83 county gun boards. These are three-member panels: the sheriff, the prosecutor and the local state police commander. And what groups are lobbying hardest for retention of the present boards, even to the point of issuing smears and hokey statistics? Prosecutors, local police and the Michigan State Police.

The purpose of gun rights, as patriots since the days of Thomas Jefferson have pointed out, is to allow citizens to defend themselves against not only hostiles and criminals — but against government itself.

Have you ever been in a police state? The first rule is that only cops have guns. The citizenry is disarmed.

One of the more potent groups in the Michigan Legislature calls itself the Law Enforcement Caucus, many former cops and prosecutors. Some of its members recently introduced a constitutional amendment allowing the death penalty, but only for cop killers.

Governor hits a foul ball on Tiger Stadium funding

PHILIP POWER

I was a big baseball fan when I was a kid.

I lived and died with what happened to the Tigers. I knew all the standings, memorized all the statistics and thought that Johnny Groth, a journeyman Tiger outfielder in the '50s, was the most perfect being ever put on this earth.

But now, like most folks I know, every year I get grumpier and grumpier at what's happening in professional sports.

The players' collective greed and arrogance is matched only by that of the owners, who suffer the additional delusion that owning a professional team entitles them to demand and receive public money for new sports stadiums erected primarily to enrich themselves. Moreover, matters of professional sport appear to attract politicians in a way as profound and as pointless as a light attracting a moth.

In the weird world of professional sport, nothing ever seems to add up.

The recent news that Gov. John Engler and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer have cut the deal to kick in $90 million in public funds to build a new baseball stadium for the Tigers is a perfect case in point. Some Q and A will show how.

Is a new stadium really needed?

Probably not. The old Tiger Stadium could almost certainly be renovated at far less cost than the current estimate of $250 million or so for building a new stadium.

So why build a new stadium?

Good question. There seem to be three reasons.

The unstated reason is simple profit. Tiger owner Mike Ilitch will make lots more money with a new stadium than with the old, not to mention the enormous gain in value for his Fox Theatre, Second City comedy club and two restaurants. He isn't going to put $140 million of his own money into the deal just to be public spirited.

The stated reason from the politicians is economic development. A new stadium, it is asserted, is a great way to bring more folks to downtown Detroit and, hence, will provide lots of new jobs and contribute to the renaissance of the city.

The real reason is that building a new ballpark is the price to be paid to keep Ilitch from moving the Tigers out of the city. It isn't full-blown blackmail, but it's close.

Does the economic development argument make any sense?

Not much. After construction is over, a new stadium itself won't generate many more jobs than the old one. Some argue that the new stadiums in Baltimore and Cleveland stimulated the rebirth now going on there. It seems far more likely that the rebirth was going on well before any new stadium was built.

The state's ante in this deal is $55 million from the Strategic Fund. Is gutting the fund in the interest of all the people of Michigan?

No. Started during the Blanchard Administration, the Michigan Strategic Fund was supposed to put long-term investment money into stimulating research, technology transfer and entrepreneurial business startups around Michigan's universities. While the results have been disappointing, it's very difficult to argue that a new stadium for the Tigers is going to build a more solid economic base than investing in high-tech business ventures.

Engler's a smart politician. What's he getting out of this?

It doesn't add up.

Certainly, it's not good public policy. The governor first killed the Greektown Indian gambling casino, arguing, "There are no shortcuts . . . no magic." Most economists think neither a new stadium nor legalized gambling are magic routes to prosperity, but there is no doubt that of the two, gambling offers far more jobs.

Votes? Engler's western Michigan base cannot be happy, while solidly Democratic Detroit is not likely to turn around solely on the basis of building a new stadium. The suburbanites I talk to mostly don't care.

After all, it's only our tax dollars, hard at work.

Fire prevention begins at home

National Fire Prevention Week will be observed next week. It's scheduled then, near the eighth of October, because it was Oct. 8 when, in 1871, Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over that kerosene lamp in that downtown Chicago cowshed and started the "great Chicago fire."

Things were a lot different back then. First of all, there were cowsheds with cows in them in the middle of the city. And second, not a lot of thought went into fire prevention or building codes or even fire safety awareness. And that is why 250 people perished and 100,000 were left homeless and 17,000 buildings were destroyed. Yet, out of the ashes something good arose. Better-built, stronger, fire-resistant buildings were constructed. And a keen awareness of the swift and brutal nature of fire came to pass. And eventually, Fire Prevention Week.

Now, I didn't know much about this, Fire Prevention Week and its history, until a couple of weeks ago when the fire chief told me a little about it while offering advice on conducting my own fire safety program right at home. It was sheer coincidence that what I, on my own, had thought of doing was what fire departments across the nation encourage everyone to do dur-

Costume story: There a story behind each Polish folklore costume and it will be told at a fashion benefit Oct. 15, according to Suzan Marzec who models a costume from the Lowicz region. Other costumes will be from the Krakow region (top photo at left), the village of Przworsko in the Reszeszow and the Pocznow region.

Dancers show off costumes

When Suzan Marzec dons one her Polish folklore costumes, it's takes more than a few minutes. And it's no wonder the ensemble — skirt and blouse, apron and vest — tips the scales at close to 25 pounds. And that doesn't include the head scarf and mid-calf high lace-up boots.

Those costumes will be at the center of a Stroje Ludowe, a Polish folklore fashion show luncheon Sunday, Oct. 15, at Ss. Peter and Paul Banquet Hall in Dearborn Heights.

It is, in part, an observance of Polish Heritage Month, but more importantly it is to raise money for the Polish National Alliance Centennial Dancers who will be traveling to Poland in July 1996.

The dancers have been invited to participate in the children's festival in Krosno as well as at the X Swiatowy Festival in Rzeszow.

"We're trying to raise $200 for each dancer to cover their stay in the area they will be dancing," said Marcez, the troupe's director. She estimates that 40-50 dancers will make the trip.

One in eight American women will develop breast cancer... If it's found early, about 90% of them will survive

The key to beating breast cancer is finding it before it spreads. While it's still 90% curable. With the best chance of saving the breast.

At Providence, we're committed to providing a quality program to screen for breast cancer and teach women about breast examinations using:

- low-dose radiation
- fully accredited mammography equipment

Providence provides all the care you need if the diagnosis is breast cancer, from surgery, radiation and chemotherapy to reconstructive surgery. A multidisciplinary working group of physicians and other health care professionals assists patients in deciding which treatment is best for them, then streamlines that treatment so care can begin in a matter of days rather than weeks.

Providence oncologists have access to the latest cancer-fighting drugs and treatment protocols through membership in several national research organizations. The Hospital's radiation oncology program is affiliated with University of Michigan, bringing state-of-the-art care right here for Providence patients.

And we offer something more: The support, care and compassion cancer patients and their families need at a time that challenges body, mind and spirit.

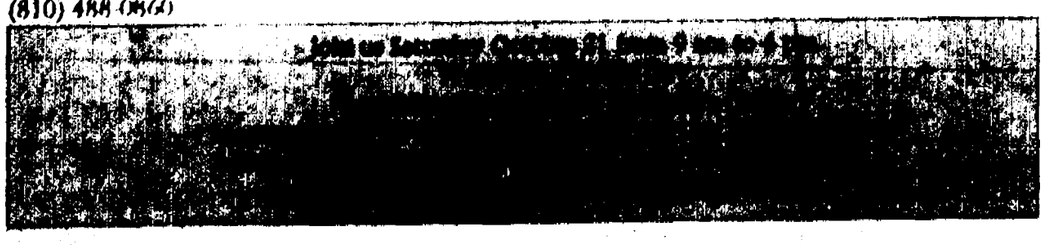

Please call one of our four locations to begin your breast care program today. And practice it for life.

The fund-raiser will start with a social hour at 2:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 3:30 p.m., at Sts. Peter and Paul, 750 N. Beech Daly. There will be Polish food and baked goods, artifacts and authentic men's and women's costumes from some 15-20 Polish regions.

Among those modeled will be the aforementioned heavyweight from the Lowicz Region. The costume features panels made with beadwork and is considered the prettiest costume of Polish folklore, Marzec said.

The collection also includes a long-sleeved city vest from the Krakow region that dates back to the 18th century, a vest from the village of Pzworsk in the Rzeszow region.

"These costumes are influenced by Austrian and Slovakian folklore and most are wine-colored because they produce wine in the region," Marzec said of the city vest. "The ornamentation can tell a story about the culture and you have to look closely at the detail to tell the story."

Yet another costume that will be modeled is from the Opoczno region and is distinguished by its colorful striped material and very fine detailed embroidery influenced by German and Jewish immigrants.

The Centennial Dancers are made up of young people ages 3-20 from many of the western suburbs — Livonia, Plymouth, Westland, Wayne, Romulus and Northville — as well as such Oakland County communities as West Bloomfield. And a few from Mount Clemens also make it to Livonia for the Wednesday and Thursday evening practices.

Tickets for the Stroje Ludowe cost $20, and reservations can be made through Oct. 8 by calling (313) 535-9094, (313) 525-0556 or (313) 422-1731. Checks or money orders can be sent to the Centennial Dancers, 29161 Lori, Livonia 48154.

People interested in helping finance the trip can send donations — checks made payable to the Centennial Dancers, P.N.A. Lodge 53, P.O. Box 700379, Plymouth 48170.

Writer favors intellectual pursuits

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

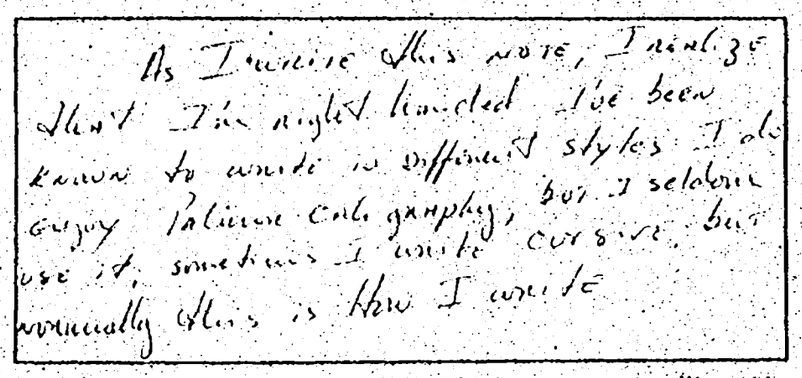

I'm a terrific and energetic young man of 32 years of age.

I'm currently seeking employment in the business and technical field. I have been employed by the same corporation for the last 7 years.

As I write this note, I realize that I'm right handed. I've been known to write in different styles. I do enjoy Palmer calligraphy, but I seldom use it; sometimes I write cursive, but usually this is how I write.

Thank you for your response and assessment.

C.W.,
Farmington Hills

This is the handwriting of a young man whose orientation is toward intellectual pursuits. His astute mind can concentrate on the essentials and rapidly distinguish the important from the unimportant. He thrives on mental challenges.

This is a quick, intuitive thinker. He is able to appraise a situation and formulate his answer. Often, this can be done on gut feelings.

He is concise in speaking and writing. His succinct style helps him move things right along. He wants information minus embellishment.

In his work, he is very productive. He dislikes distracting influences, procrastination or delay. Wasted time or materials can be upsetting. He prefers to work with his mind rather than his hands and may work more effectively alone than in a group situation.

This young man utilizes his time very efficiently. He does not waste it on window dressing. Time is money and he has more than a passing interest in this.

On the day this letter was written, he was feeling extremely euphoric. However, it is not possible to be certain how long he can maintain this level of optimism without seeing samples written at other times.

Some indications in this handwriting sample suggest he might run a little hot and cold in relations. He appears to need time by himself and does not require a great amount of company. Friends, I believe, would be people with similar intellectual leanings.

The writer is independent and self-protective. We are not going to know him more intimately than he wishes.

At times, the writer is restless. He seeks new vistas and wants to break with some of the old ways.

He is also quite versatile. He can do many different things, and probably all of them well.

When his huge illegible signature is compared to the body of his writing, it presents quite a contrast. It suggests he wants to project a bolder image than he may be able to sustain. The illegibility says he wants to be an enigma, or is.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

ring the early October observance of Fire Prevention Week.

No cows or kerosene lamps were the impetus behind my unofficial Fire Prevention Week. Instead, a stranger burning leaves and branches on a windy day in our subdivision, rather near our house, was. The flames appeared to shoot 10-12 feet high and every time more brush got thrown in, sparks showered upward toward the trees and flew everywhere.

The children worried. And I worried. But then I worry about spontaneous combustion in the clothes closet. I worry about the furnace this time of year when it first is put into use after months of being dormant. And I worry about our cozy fireplace. And I worry about the wires crisscrossing behind my walls and coming into contact with unknown flammable things in there and the dreaded, unexpected, inexplicable short circuit and the clothes dryer with its flame right behind that bottom panel. And at night, when all of the children are snuggled in their beds fast asleep, sleeping peacefully and knowing all is well, I worry that all might not be well.

And so, after seeing those shooting flames against the night sky a couple weeks ago, the worry translated itself into Fire Prevention Week at the Meiers'.

This is how it went. First we talked. We discussed how each of us can avoid fires. Most of that was review, of course. I cover these things periodically throughout the year on an as-needed, "I don't have time to explain it all right this instant or else you won't be safe anymore" basis. But this time I explained — calmly and clearly.

I explained why the kitchen is off-limits for throwing games and bumping games while I'm cooking and baking. And why the family room becomes a non-rumpus zone while I'm ironing. And why the fireplace is best enjoyed from a safe distance. And why something as small as a match can be a monstrous danger.

As I talked about these dangerous, rather frightening things with the children, I wondered if I were perhaps doing them psychological harm. Was this going to lead to nightmares?

But then I realized that not knowing what to do in a situation where fire is involved goes way beyond frightening, it goes straight to deadly. So I figured a little bit of psychological harm today and a nightmare tonight might be necessary to save tomorrow.

So we discussed. And then we tested the smoke alarms. We talked about what we must do if we hear that signal. We talked about crawling or moving like a snake on the floor and feeling doors before opening them and not hiding in a closet or under a bed and how we should always, always leave THINGS behind and think only of getting to safety.

We talked about the fire extinguishers we have on each floor. We looked at the escape routes I'd drawn on paper. And we went to our meeting place out on the sidewalk. And then we had a fire drill, which put everything we'd talked about into action.

I can only imagine (and I hope that's all I'll ever have to do, is imagine) what a real fire emergency would be like. And I realize that even though the practice and the drills and calm discussions will have preceded such a situation, panic will flare up anyway just like the flames. But knowledge will be there to help neutralize, to squirt water on the panic.

So even though that stranger's fire a couple weeks back was scary and bad, good arose from it, just as good arose from Mrs. O'Leary's cow and the great Chicago fire of 1871. Awareness, I'm convinced, is always good.

A benefit for women's, children's and infants' health Family Tradition.

Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times . . . they also share the risk of certain illnesses.
Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations, you can put time and technology on your side.
We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.
Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

It is an expression of the Christian faith through the convergence of three streams — liturgy, openness to the Holy Spirit and the evangelical belief in a personal relationship with Jesus Christ with the Bible as the word of God.

Inquirer's classes are forming to introduce people to the characteristic beliefs and practices of the Charismatic Evangelical Church. Participation does not require a commitment to be confirmed or be received into the church. For more information, call the Rev. Kenneth Bieber at (313) 397-7132.

Organizational skills worth learning for the busy '90s

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Barbara Hemphill has been helping people organize their personal and professional lives for about 17 years. But the expert has a confession to make.

"I'm naturally kind of a messy person; I'm not naturally a neat person," she said. "When I take off my clothes, I'm real happy to just drop them on the floor or drop them on the chair."

That reflects her belief that the old saying "a place for everything and everything in its place" is only half right.

"I can quickly put them (the clothes) in the right place because they have a right place. The stress comes when people don't have a place to put them," she explained.

Hemphill, the author of "Taming the Paper Tiger" (Kiplinger Books), was in town recently for seminar at Staples in Westland.

Since forming her company Hemphill & Associates in 1978 with a $7 advertisement in a New York newspaper, Hemphill has provided organization skills for homes and offices. She has appeared on numerous television shows, including "CBS This Morning" and "CNN Nightly News," and has written for publications like Reader's Digest, Redbook, USA Today, Kiplinger's Personal Finance and The Washington Post.

Hemphill, who once worked in India with Mother Theresa, shares her wealth of information because she feels organization skills are an important skill to learn, especially in the busy '90s.

Complicated lives

"Our personal lives are more complicated," said the immediate past president of the National Association of Professional Organizers. "We have dual-career families. Children have more complicated lives than ever before. Their schedules are more complicated and many of us now are dealing with aging parents. It becomes very complex."

She became interested in helping people organize their lives because it's a "mechanism to get to know the people." She and her staff organize anything a client desires, from kitchen cupboards to entire corporations.

"When you help them organize their stuff, you get to know all about them," she said. "When I used to do people's homes, I had people who put my name in their safe deposit box because they said when they died there was no one who knew more about their affairs than I did."

Although the basic principles are the same, she sees corporations as more challenging than households.

"There's virtually nothing you could show me in a household that I haven't seen before," Hemphill said. "Corporations and businesses are becoming more and more complicated all the time. The technology issues, the international issues, and the economic issues — all those things make it more and more complicated."

Different reasons

Hemphill, who is now based in Raleigh, N.C., said there are plenty of people she has met who are unwilling to be organized for a number of different reasons. One of these is they feel they don't have the time.

But Hemphill counters: "They don't have the time because they're not organized. This morning a woman said she spent 45 minutes looking for a piece of paper she needed in her office yesterday. She said she didn't have the time to get organized but yet she had to spend 45 minutes looking for something that if her filing system (was up to par), it would have taken her three minutes to find. It's kind of a Catch-22."

Others don't know how to organize.

"Unfortunately, in our school systems, it's not a skill we teach," she said. "As a mother of five, I'm concerned about why we don't teach this in school. It's just as important as learning math."

Finally, people think that there are certain ways to be organized and creative people find that restrictive and boring, Hemphill said.

"My definition of organized is, 'Does the situation work and do you like it?' I spent a lot of time today with someone who had specific questions. All these people are creative people who are not fixed. They need flexibility and creativity about how they organize."

The key to organizing, she said, is to keep it up.

Alliance: Mental illness real disease

Mental illness is a disease. And like physical diseases, it has nothing to do with personal strengths or weaknesses, will power or morality. It has specific symptoms. It can be accurately diagnosed and effectively treated.

That is the message the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill and the Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Michigan are trying to get out during Mental Illness Awareness Week now through Saturday, Oct. 7 . . . "Treatment works."

"We try to educate the community about what people with mental illness can do," said Hope Cummins of AMI of Michigan. "We want to help the community understand that mental illness is a biological condition, that it is a serious illness that is treatable and that treatment works."

What began as a move to increase congressional awareness of mental illness has become a nationwide observance the first week in October. This is the 12th year that a grass-roots effort has been launched to "bring information, hope and treatment to millions."

"We want to emphasize that one key to increasing awareness and decreasing stigma is to emphasize that with proper access to treatment, people with severe mental illness can live productive lives," said Farrell Fitch of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill.

This year's observance is co-sponsored by The American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, American Psychiatric Association, Center for Mental Health Services, National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, National Depressive and Manic-Depressive Association, National Institute of Mental Health, and National Mental Health Association.

Mental illness is a term used for a group of disorders causing severe disturbances in thinking, feeling and relating. It can affect people of any age — children, adolescents, adults and the elderly — and occur in any family.

Probably, the most serious and disabling is schizophrenia, which affects approximately one person in 100. It affects men and women equally and onset is usually in the late teens or early 20s.

Schizophrenics may have poor reasoning, memory and judgment, high levels of anxiety, eating and sleep disorders, hallucinations and delusions, to name a few of the symptoms. Contrary to myths about the disorder, they do not have "split personalities," and are not prone to criminal violence.

Likewise, their illness isn't caused by bad parenting or the result of weakness of character. It is due to a biochemical disturbance of the brain.

Affective disorders are the most common of the psychiatric disorders. Generally less persistently disabling than schizophrenia, the primary disturbance in these disorders is manic-depressive (bipolar) illness and persistent severe depression (unipolar).

People with bipolar illness usually have such symptoms as boundless energy, enthusiasm and need for activity, decreased need for sleep, impulsive and erratic behavior, and rapidly switch to severe depression.

On the other hand, people with severe unipolar illness have difficulty sleeping; loss of interest in daily activities; loss of appetite; feelings of worthlessness, guilt and hopelessness; and suicidal thoughts and even actions.

Anxiety disorders, when severe, may also be considered mental illnesses. Likewise, personality or behavioral disorders and the abuse of drugs and alcohol may also be so disabling as to be labeled mental illness.

Working to improve the quality of life for people with long-term mental illness is the Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Michigan. Based in Southfield, its purposes also include providing support and advocacy for families and educating the public to dispel myths and overcome the stigma associated with mental illness and open opportunities for the mentally ill in the community.

The organization also advocates for legislation, at the state and national levels, which would improve the care of the mentally ill; and advocates and supports research into the causes, treatment and prevention of mental illness.

People interested in more information may contact AMI by calling (810) 552-9485 or by writing to it at 24133 Northwestern Highway, Southfield 48075.

It's time to send in holiday cards

Each year, starting in November, each of the five O&E offices invites readers to come in and look over a scrapbook we compile, showing the cards available.

Samples of holiday cards offered for sale by charitable organizations are already beginning to arrive in the offices of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Each year, starting in November, each of the five O&E offices invites readers to come in and look over a scrapbook we compile, showing the cards available.

If your nonprofit group is selling holiday cards to raise money, send us five samples of each card, which will be distributed to our offices in Birmingham, Rochester, Farmington, Livonia and Plymouth. Be sure to include information on how the cards may be ordered.

Deadline to receive cards and information is Thursday, Oct. 19, in order for your organization to be included in the scrapbooks, which will placed in our offices Thursday, Nov. 2.

Cards can be mailed to Ethel Simmons, Suburban Life editor, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009, or Sue Mason, Community Life editor, The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

For more information, call Simmons at (810) 901-2576 or Mason at (313) 953-2131.

Chapter eyes jewelry trend

When the Michigan chapter of Gemological Institute of America Alumni and Associates meets on Sunday, Oct. 8, the topic will be a new trend in the jewelry industry — synthetic diamonds.

The keynote speaker will be Sharon Wakefield, a well-known gemological author, according to chapter president Melinda Adducci, who with Joseph DuMouchelle operates Michigan Gemological Services, a Plymouth-based jewelry appraisal and brokerage business.

The afternoon meeting will be at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn and is open to the educated professional, daily practitioner, gem hobbyist, and person who loves and owns gems and jewelry, Adducci said.

The program will include a slide presentation, samples of synthetic diamonds and lunch.

Synthetic diamonds are man-made materials that essentially duplicate the optical, physical and chemical properties of natural diamonds, which are grown under natural conditions unaided by man. Synthetic diamonds should not be confused with simulated diamonds, which are imitations or fakes like cubic zirconia.

For more information about the meeting, call Adducci at (313) 455-2856.

PSO celebrates 50 years of harmony

This year marks the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's golden birthday, and a celebratory concert season is about to begin. On Oct. 15, the orchestra will replay its first concert at Plymouth-Salem High School Auditorium. Titled "Come Home to Plymouth," the program features award-winning violinist Scott Yoo and includes many Plymouth Symphony alumni.

"It's a pleasure and an honor to conduct the orchestra during such a momentous year," said Russell Reed, the symphony's present conductor, who is beginning his ninth season. "There's always been a great sense of pride for the musical product and a great commitment from the members of the orchestra."

When it comes to the musicians' commitment to the orchestra, longevity seems to be the rule. "It's not unusual to play for 20 years in the Plymouth Symphony. It's because it started out as a family and a community kind of feeling," said Christa Grix, PSO executive director, and a free-lance harpist.

Edith Schutze of Plymouth, a cellist, holds the honor of being the orchestra's longest-standing member. She joined in 1945, shortly after 10 Plymouth musicians met in Carl and Evelyn Groschke's home on North Mill to organize a string orchestra. "There were so few of us at that time. We were so excited," she said.

While Schutze cannot recall specifics of those early years, she does remember that sometime during the first 10 years, "Life" magazine did an article on the orchestra. "'Life' wrote us up as being one of the best community orchestras. They focused on the fact that we were all volunteers," she said.

At age 90, Louise Bradley, also a cellist, is the oldest member of the Plymouth Symphony. In

At a recent gathering of the guild board in the Troy home of treasurer Posey Macedonia, they enthusiastically listed dozens of reasons why beads have fascinated mankind for thousands of years. Although cultures from the North American Indians to the Ovumbundu in Africa considered beads so valuable as to use them as currency in trade, beads continue to stand the test of time primarily because of their decorative capabilities.

"Most women do some kind of needlework and embellishment with beads. That's why beadworking is experiencing a resurgence in popularity. Quilters and artists are using them. Young girls are making friendship bracelets, and anklets," said Macedonia, who intricately knits beads into new purses as well as restores antique evening bags at Complements in Lake Orion.

"Beads have gone beyond personal adornment. There are many people who use beads. Ukrainians do an awful lot with them in their folk art."

If you collect beads, string them as jewelry, add them as embellishments to clothing or simply love the way the ornamentations sparkle in the light, don't miss the Great Lakes Beadworkers Guild's First Bead Bonanza Sunday, Oct. 8, at The Plaza Hotel in Southfield.

Nearly 30 vendors will offer hard-to-find seed beads, antique, stone, glass, clay polymer and ethnic beads from Austria to Czechoslovakia. A guild exhibit of beadwork, "Beadlieve It or Not," will illustrate the many different objects capable of being created with beads.

Nationally known glass artists Don Schneider of Plymouth along with Fred Birkhill, art professor at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and Stevi Belle of Chicago will demonstrate their lampworking skills turning out one-of-a-kind beads throughout the day.

"This is an exciting time to be a glass artist as there are a tremendous amount of glass beads being made as of late. Glass beadmaking preceded the invention of the blow pipe by about 2,500 years," said Schneider, a glass artist who is in constant demand nationally as a lecturer and demonstrator due to the beauty of his millefiori beads.

"Lampworked glass is being looked at now from an art perspective. People interested in beads or glass should come to the Bead Bonanza. It's a chance to see artists working with different glass techniques. There will be beads from all over the world. As this is the first event we need people to come out and support the craftsman."

Many of the exhibitors in the Bead Bonanza began beading before reading. Gail Frederickson, who teaches beadwork in Birmingham Public Schools adult education classes, started at her grandmother's knee. Frederickson's loom-woven fiber necklaces are miniature works of art much like tapestries. Her mini-purse necklaces using peyote stitch will be on display in the guild exhibit.

"I grew up in northern Minnesota on the edge of a reservation and everybody beaded. Stringing as jewelry is what most people think of when they think of beads, but you can do bead weaving, knitting and crocheting, embroidery, and on and off loom weaving. You can even weave baskets from beads," said Frederickson of Beverly Hills.

Pattee Goodman, a child development worker at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield, says quite frequently exhibits she enjoys at the JCC's Janice Charach Epstein Museum allery incorporate some type of bead in the art, whether it's quilts or paintings.

"You can create wall hangings with beads. Anything you do you can use beads. It's not just your basic stringing. Beads spark your creativity," said Goodman, whose Egyptian style multi-strand seed bead necklace will be on display.

Besides being versatile, beads create a comfortable state of mind. Sylvus Tarn of Detroit sees beading as a form of Zen, providing plenty of time for meditation and escape from the stresses of the day.

"Beads date back 30,000 years. Some of the first were made of seeds, shell and amber because they're easy to drill. Glass beadmaking peaked when Louis XIV gathered up all the artists on the island of Murano to work over alcohol lamps but now it's enjoying a renaissance in this country due in large part to Dale Chihuly," said Tarn, who frequently uses spacer bars and a Japanese technique called maruda as design elements in the jewelry she sells at arts and craft shows and festivals.

"As far as beading, it's an inexpensive hobby to get into. You can start with a pair of pliers, beads and some string. You don't need $3,000 worth of equipment."

The Great Lakes Beadworkers Guild, a non-profit organization dedicated to education and promoting an awareness of beadwork being created in the Great Lakes region, meets monthly at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 814 N. Campbell in Royal Oak.

fact, she is the oldest playing member of any community orchestra in the state. "You have a real feeling for something special that keeps you alive inside. I hat to think of my life without music," she said. Since joining in 1963, Bradley recalls missing only one performance, when she was recovering from surgery.

When Bill Beitner of Plymouth joined the Symphony in 1947, he didn't have to audition. They needed his trumpet. "I never played an audition. They took everybody they could at the beginning. The principal players usually filled the section with whom they wanted. You needed somebody who could play, be compatible, someone who could fit. It was like family, always. We rehearsed in an old barn behind the high school." Beitner retired in 1983.

Throughout the years, the Plymouth Symphony has maintained its singular musical voice. "For many years, 20 years or so, Wayne Dunlap was the voice of the Plymouth Symphony. That kind of feeling is still continuing with Russell Reed. The orchestra members love him, and he feels the same way about them," said Grix.

"He gives his players a great deal of freedom to interpret. His vision is clear. I think stylistically we're all in the same boat," said two-year member Betsy Bogner, a flutist and the symphony's personnel manager.

Under Reed, the Plymouth Symphony continues to challenge its members, playing difficult pieces like "Night Rivers" by Anthony Iannaccone and the complicated Verdi Requiem. Also, it's no stranger to introducing new works. "We are premiering a piece in November that was recorded in Warsaw. It's a clarinet concerto. The first United States performance will be with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra," said Reed.

The orchestra realizes its programming must evolve to meet the audience's needs. That includes reaching out to children, its future supporters. This February's "A Carnival of the Animals" will duplicate last year's program by inviting children — and their teddy bears — to take an orchestra safari.

"They walk through the orchestra as the musicians are playing so that they can really experience the music intimately," said Grix. "That's the kind of thing that's unique to the PSO."

The Symphony recently received some "hot, hot news," said Grix. It was awarded a $5,000 grant from The Michigan Counsel of the Arts and Cultural Affairs to commission a special 50th birthday work. Grix said she knew nothing of the proposed work other than it would be "a celebratory fanfare." The birthday piece will be part of the Verdi Requiem program on March 23.

Except for a short time a few years ago, the Plymouth Symphony's home always has been Plymouth. During their "homeless" period, the orchestra reached out and made new friends in neighboring communities.

"We were welcomed with wide open arms by Belleville and Novi. They were thrilled to have us in their community. We had sold-out auditoriums. That brought to light how valuable this orchestra is," said Grix.

Even though their Plymouth home is once more secure, the orchestra continues to give one concert a year in Novi and one in Belleville. "We are really trying to make ourselves the orchestra for Western Wayne County," said Grix.

After 50 years, the Plymouth Symphony's identity has been enriched by tradition and innovation.

Grix summed up the orchestra members sentiments by saying, "We're not the Detroit Symphony, and we're not trying to be the Detroit Symphony. But the Detroit Symphony is not the Plymouth Symphony either."

Spend the day exploring Hidden Lake Gardens

BY DAWN NEEDHAM
SPECIAL WRITER

Owned and operated by Michigan State University, Hidden Lake Gardens in Lenawee County in the tiny village of Tipton, is a virtually undiscovered treasure. The land in the Irish Hills area was donated to MSU by Harry Fee of Adrian, a businessman with an interest in horticulture. He purchased Hidden Lake, and about 200 surrounding acres, in 1926. Intending to farm, he found the rolling, rocky Irish Hills area was not conducive to conventional farming, explained Hidden Lake Gardens' coordinator of education, Tina Podboy Laughner.

He then turned the place into a nursery, but when the Depression hit, the wealthy Fee closed so he wouldn't compete with people who really needed the money, Laughner explained.

In 1945, he entered into an agreement with MSU "to preserve the area for the benefit and education of the public," Laughner said.

Fee chose MSU — then known as Michigan State College — for its agricultural connections and its horticulture department, to which he frequently turned for advice about his ventures.

This year is the 50th anniversary of Hidden Lake Gardens' affiliation with MSU, and a celebration is being planned Saturday, Oct. 14.

In those five decades, Hidden Lake Gardens has grown to about 755 acres through accumulation of contiguous property.

Hidden Lake Gardens is more like a beautifully landscaped park than a conventional public garden. There are five miles of hiking trails, picnic areas and a six-mile one way paved drive that gets used by walkers and drivers alike.

The fall color displays attract many visitors, and AAA calls weekly to monitor the percentage of fall color for a list the automotive club compiles. Laughner said Hidden Lake has "great fall color" from maple and sassafras plantings, as well as serviceberry and Virginia creeper, two of the first plants to change color in autumn.

Hidden Lake Gardens is "designed for four-season interest," Laughner said. In the winter, some access is limited, depending on snowfall, but visitors can walk anywhere.

Visitors to the gardens, on M-50 west of M-52, first approach a gatehouse where they pay admission and receive a map. From there, it's an individual decision on how to proceed. Sticking to the main loop of the drive, first you go through a huge expanse of lawn and evergreens, beyond which is a pond constructed by Fee.

The drive continues around Hidden Lake. The lake has a pair of resident swans which had eight cygnets this spring; seven are still alive, Laughner said.

At the north end of the lake, visitors can park and choose a hiking trail. The first quarter-mile is extremely level asphalt, eight-feet wide, that's even accessible for wheelchairs. Past that is a wooded area that opens into a panoramic view.

Next along the drive is the shelter/picnic area, with water and rest areas, followed by a new planting called "Trees for Tomorrow," installed by some master gardeners from Jackson.

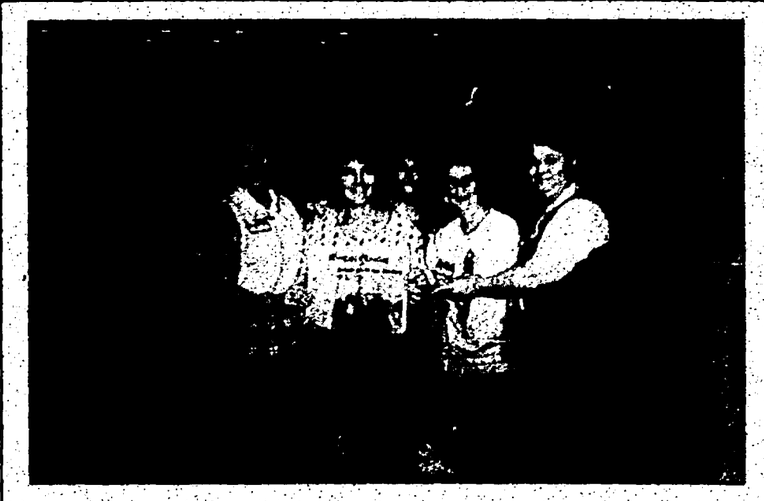

There's no time limit for guests, and it's easy to while away a few hours or an entire day. Visitors are encouraged to picnic, walk on the grass, and examine plantings up close. Bikes are allowed any day except Sunday; in-line skates and skateboards are prohibited.

"It really is a hidden gem," Laughner said, adding that while much of the Irish Hills area has become more commercial and tourist-oriented, Hidden Lake Gardens has worked very hard to maintain its pristine nature, atmosphere.

Hidden Gardens is in Lenawee County. Take I-275 south to US-12 west to M-52 south to M-50 west. It's on the north side of the road.
Hours: Open 365 days a year, 8 a.m. to dusk through October, and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. November thorugh March. Admission is $1 per person weekdays, $3 holidays and weekends.
■ The Visitors' Center sells a limited selection of candy bars, chips, pop and juice; visitors are encouraged to pack lunches for picnics.

Heist goes wrong in 'Dead Presidents'

JOHN MONAGHAN

"Dead Presidents" means cash, which Allen and Albert Hughes have a lot more of since directing their debut feature "Menace II Society" in 1993. The success of that film, a gripping account of life and death on L.A. streets, gave the 20-year-old twins the chance to tackle an ambitious project about the effects of the Vietnam War on black America.

It would be great to say that these former Detroiters, raised here through the age of eight, have produced another winner. But "Dead Presidents," which opens wide Friday, is an uneven and often routine look at what they call "the American dream gone wrong."

Anthony Curtis (Larenz Tate from "Menace") is young and going nowhere when he decides to join the Marines in 1968. After a nightmarish five years overseas, he returns home to find that his neighborhood has changed, the girlfriend and baby girl he left behind now visited by a flashy pimp.

When he loses his job at the local butcher shop, Anthony starts hitting the bottle. Desperate to provide real money for his family, he plots an armored car heist with his old army buddies and his Revolution-obsessed sister-in-law.

According to Albert Hughes, in town recently with his brother to promote the film, "We like the story because it's about one person going through so many experiences, and how he deals with those extremes . . . we like to see him go through the ups and downs."

KC BAILEY

To see the ads for "Dead Presidents" you'd think that it's a heist movie. "We realize that," said Albert, "but we didn't want anything attached to that other Vietnam picture that came out last year. The whole one-sheet poster was in direct response to that."

That other movie, "The Walking Dead" was made by another Detroiter, a low-budget story of a Marine unit with each member recalling how they got to the Nam in the first place. The Hughes call it a "stinker" (which it was at the box office), quickly assembled after word of their project got out.

Actually, the brothers could learn a few things from that film, especially in terms of plot structure. Characters come and go in "Dead Presidents" and then pretty much disappear, among them Anthony's brother and a drug dealer that helps push him to the edge.

REVIEW

Though Allen and Albert Hughes were barely alive when the Vietnam War was raging, they did their homework. Much of the film is based on stories from the book "Bloods," a riveting collection of black veterans' memories.

The late '60s/early '70s atmosphere, from clothes to black velvet paintings, is especially vivid. "We heard from a lot of people who liked the authenticity of those scenes in "Menace," says Allen. "We designed a whole lot of the look on my dad's photo album from 1972."

After "The Usual Suspects" and "Reservoir Dogs," however, it's difficult to watch the routine heist scenes in "Dead Presidents" without drawing some comparisons. "We definitely went for a more linear type of movie making," said Allen. "We didn't want to simply retread what was already done before."

The movie does have some moments it can call its own. One of the best finds Anthony leaping over backyard fences then cuts immediately to him jumping over obstacles in the fields of Vietnam.

Whatever the shortcoming of "Dead Presidents," the brothers are understandably enthusiastic. The movie was selected for screening at the prestigious New York Film Festival while they're already at work on their next project in a four-picture deal — Allen dealing with actors, Albert setting up the visuals behind the camera.

"The Phantom of the Opera" (USA - 1925). 8 p.m. Oct. 7; 2 p.m. Oct. 8. The theater, which usually hosts community theater, has completed restoration of its 1926 theater pipe organ in time for two showings of the horror classic. This is the silent version, with Lon Chaney as the organ-playing maestro who keeps a beautiful singer locked beneath the old Opera house.

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"Black Is . . . Black Ain't" (USA - 1995). 7 p.m. Oct. 9. An exploration into what it means to be African-American. Director Marlon Riggs recently died, leaving behind a legacy that included the equally controversial "Tongues Untied."

■ KINOTEK, WINDSOR FILM THEATRE
2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor, Canada. Call (519) 254-FILM for more information. ($4.50; $4 US)

"Why Does Herr R. Run Amok?" (West Germany - 1969). 9 p.m. Oct. 9-10. A rare screening of an early work by director Rainer Werner Fassbinder, stringing together apparently mundane scenes of a petit-bourgeois wage slave who slowly unravels, spiraling toward violence and death.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information.

"Hard-Boiled" (Hong Kong - 1993). 8 p.m. Oct. 5. Action master John Woo gave an explosive goodbye to his native Hong Kong in this high-powered crime thriller. The final 40 minutes, set in a hospital, include some of the most over-the-top action ever filmed. ($5)

"Belle de Jour" (France - 1967). 7:30 p.m. Oct. 10, 12. Catherine Deneuve stars as a bored Parisian housewife who spends her afternoons as a prostitute. Luis Bunuel directs with his usual eye for the absurd, especially as it involves the social classes, religion, and modern morality. ($4)

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Jeffrey" (USA - 1995). A gay actor/waiter living in New York vows celibacy in fear of contracting AIDS, but then meets the man of his dreams who just happens to be HIV-positive. "Star Trek's" Patrick Stewart recalls his stage actor origins in his turn as a flamboyant interior decorator.

"The Usual Suspects" (USA - 1995). Five guys who meet in a police lineup join for a simple heist. What happens next will keep you guessing in this cleverly scripted caper starring Gabriel Byrne, Kevin Spacey, and Chazz Palminteri.

"The Brothers McMullen" (USA - 1995). For what some people spend on a new car, Edward Burns made this engaging first feature about a young screenwriter and his two brothers in contemporary Long Island. Burns calls his audience pleaser a "romantic comedy for guys" and what it lacks in acting and production values it more than makes up in charm.

■ MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"Run of the Country" (Irish - 1995). After his mother's death, a Catholic lad from Northern Ireland rebels against his police-sergeant father (Albert Finney) with disastrous results.

"How to Make an American Quilt" (USA - 1995). Winona Ryder wants advice about marriage, so visits her grandmother and great aunt (Ellen Burstyn and Anne Bancroft) who are already in the process of creating her a wedding quilt. Along the way they tell stories about their own lives and loves. Directed by Jocelyn Moorhouse ("Proof").

"The Brothers McMullen" (USA - 1995). See Main Art Theatre listing above.

STREET BEAT

Playful R.E.M. builds frenzy

BY TODD WICKS
STAFF WRITER

Michael Stipe hates balloons — at least the black ones from a local radio station that floated around Michigan State University's Breslin Center Sept. 27.

Midway through R.E.M.'s set, the Q106 balloons, which had drifted lazily through the air during Radiohead's languid set, invoked the wrath of the bald singer. "I don't know why, but those balloons are really bugging me," Stipe announced between songs. He then accepted one from a security guard, and with a little help from bassist Mike Mills, popped it with a microphone stand to wild applause.

Funny little scenes like this were scattered throughout R.E.M.'s show in East Lansing last week. On the final leg of the grueling tour in support of its latest album "Monster," the band seemed relaxed and playful. Barely 30 minutes after Radiohead's set ended, the lights went down as R.E.M. strolled casually onstage and leaned into the midtempo "I Took Your Name." But something about the scene wasn't quite right. Light flooded in from the exits, and the bleachers circling the floor seats never let anyone forget that this was, after all, just a mid-sized basketball arena. As the first song ended, both the crowd and the band seemed uncertain about what kind of night this was going to be.

However, several crowd-pleasers in quick succession roused the sedate crowd. A vested, surgery-free Peter Buck and a Les Paul led the charge through "What's the Frequency, Kenneth?", "Crush With Eyeliner," and the electric hip-hop version of "Drive" with gusto. Mills, in a white Nudie suit and long curls, stomped about the stage with his bass slung low, banishing his former nerdy, shirt-sleeves image to the '80s forever. His perfect background harmonies also saved a few songs from Stipe's purposely erratic pitch. Drummer Billy Berry was typically non-descript, donning a baseball hat for his turn at bass during a disturbing "Country Feedback," which Stipe introduced as "our favorite song."

For all of their scissor kicks and crowd-working, Stipe remained the show's focal point. Under thick black eye makeup and the quickly shifting stage lights, he alternately resembled an angry zombie and a playful, restless child. Untalkative at The Palace show this past summer, Stipe was exceptionally verbose between songs. "This one is ladies' choice," he announced as a disco ball dropped for roller-rink effect on "Tongue." At one point, harrassed by an overzealous fan at stage right, Stipe looked perplexed and said, "Uh, I'm going to go over here now," walking left to enormous laughter.

Like The Palace visit, the show contained a good number of new songs consistent with the gritty, glamorous, guitar bent "Monster." "Departure" and the Beastie Boy-ish "Revolution" were highlights of material slated for an upcoming album. R.E.M.'s road-tested muscle also rejuvenated overplayed gems like "Losing My Religion" and "Man on the Moon," turning the latter into the most propulsive, rousing song of the evening. Reaching back for 1986's "Begin the Begin," Buck's Spanish riff was hypnotic above Berry's tribal rhythm. Although the set's fast song-slow song-new song pattern occasionally distrupted a good groove, it also provided for a wealth of diverse material, from the slowest of the slow ("Everybody Hurts") to the slamming ("Star 69").

Stipe seemed especially excited bringing out Detroit legend Patti Smith for their encore. After an under-rehearsed but moving duet on "Let Me In," and a lovey-dovey chat near the drum riser, Stipe left the spotlight as Smith fronted the band for the night's only cover, her classic "Dancing Barefoot."

However, the night's best treat was yet to come. The closer, "It's the End of the World as We Know It (and I Feel Fine)" was given a trashier veneer than its album counterpart, with Stipe ranting the stream-of-consciousness lyrics way out of time. As the song built and built, the crowd, who had remained excited but orderly the entire show, finally broke loose, flooding the aisles in a rush to the stage.

After several stressful and injury-prone months on the road, R.E.M.'s performance was full of fire and gristle. Overcoming a slow start, it had professionally worked the crowd into a frenzy. Now it was time to have some fun. So Mills, Buck and Stipe, immediately noticing the crush, moved forward like good old-fashioned rock stars, closer to the broiling masses, posing, jumping and teasing the crowd joyfully as the night spun to a frenzied close.

R.E.M. and special guest Grant Lee Buffalo perform at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, at Crisler Arena, 333 E. Stadium, Ann Arbor. The show is sold out. For more information, call (313) 763-4636.

Roseville's The Ritz becomes Palladium

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

After 11 years as The Ritz, the Roseville club has changed its name, its facade and is in the process of revamping its image.

The Palladium, as it's now called, will turn its focus toward Top 40 and alternative music.

"We've always been known as a long-hair heavy metal band club," said manager John Cathers. "We're making a change in format to Top 40 dance and bands."

"We want to become more of an event-oriented room. We want to bring in bands, comedians, anything really," he added.

Charm Farm shifts musical gears

BY TODD WICKS
STAFF WRITER

It's a rare band that can successfully change musical styles over the course of its career. The Rolling Stones have done it a few times, from rock to country to disco to punk and back. U2 reinvented themselves from earth-toned missionaries into black-leathered technobrats a few years ago with "Achtung Baby."

Detroit's Charm Farm doesn't resemble either of those bands, but doesn't need a 10-year career to start genre-hopping, either. On their third album, "Pervert" (PRA Records), they do it within the course of a few songs. The head-turning jump from the straight-ahead rock of "I'm a Man" to straight-faced disco on the first single "Superstar" is an undeniable shock. Likewise, the whispery funk of the title track unexpectedly gives way to "Sick" and stereo guitars like something by Queen.

These kinds of surprises delight the members of Charm Farm. After four years, the band has become a staple of the Detroit scene. Singer/songwriter Dennis White and guitarist Steve Zuccaro, both of Grosse Pointe Park, enjoy their ongoing expeditions in musical perversity.

"It's a very, very diverse record," said White of "Pervert," released Sept. 19. "I must confess, I don't listen to music a lot. If I do listen to a full CD, it's because it went all over the place. Even if (a CD) is great all the way through, if the instrumentation doesn't change up a lot, I can't be interested in it. And of course, if I'm making a record, it's something I want to be interested in."

Zucarro said despite the musical changes there's an underlying theme to the songs.

"There are a lot of different areas we're going into, but there's still a common denominator in all of the songs. The production value should bring it all together and make for a cool record. When we were recording it, we were thinking about that. We knew that these were all different styles, so we tried to make sure that the production was similar on each song so it would be cohesive."

Particularly for White, "Pervert" marks a distinct change from the styles on 1993's "Flirt," which spawned the radio hit "La La Hey."

"Those songs (on "Flirt") were written when I was between 22 and 24, and that's a pretty happy record," said White, who is 28 now. "I had just finished playing with Inner City (a groundbreaking Detroit techno project with Kevin Saunderson). I had been travelling around the world at someone else's expense, and it was just models, parties and good times. I came home and wrote a record that sounded exactly like that . . . which is why no one cares about it now, why it died a pretty quick death artistically."

White, who produced both albums, shared the public's apathy.

"'Flirt' was out of sight, out of mind for me four days after I got the CD," he said.

He sees the superior lyrical quality of "Pervert" as a personal triumph.

■ 'There are a lot of different areas we're going into, but there's still a common denominator in all of the songs. The production value should bring it all together and make for a cool record. When we were recording it, we were thinking about that. We knew that these were all different styles, so we tried to make sure that the production was similar on each song so it would be cohesive.'
Steve Zuccaro, Charm Farm

"I have a record now that I really believe in. I'm very proud of this. I can actually listen to this and be interested in what we came up with in the studio. I want as many people to hear it as possible."

Interestingly, "Pervert's" more wounded, emotional approach was completedly unplanned.

"I didn't go into this album saying, 'Here's what's on my mind and I'm going to get it down,'" White said.

"Only after I finished everything and put the songs in order did I start to notice that it was the kind of record that a guy who's getting older makes. In retrospect, thematically, the record is about the pangs of getting older and getting on, more about coming to terms with the way life really is as opposed to the fantasy of what we hope it will be. There are the fantasies we entertain about it when we're 16 and then there is the way that it really is."

Besides "Pervert," a new development that should widen Charm Farm's audience is a band project called "Underground Television" (U.T.V.) on local public access cable channels. The show features interviews with the band, acoustic performances, and old Charm Farm footage. Having his own TV show excites White.

"The minute I learned that cable operators had to let you have your own TV show if you wanted one, I was all over that in a second. You can spend a lot of time trying to promote a little concert and hope that 400 or 500 people show up, or you can spend the same amount of time putting a TV show together. Even if it's on these little dinky cable stations, at least 5,000 people are going to see it. We hope to not just get exposure for ourselves, but to get exposure for things that we're into."

Zuccaro said that the TV show is "a big deal to us."

"This could really help spread the word. Plus it's something you don't really see a band do, at least not since the '70s, since the Osmond Family or something."

The members of Charm Farm — which also includes bassist Dino Zoyes, background singer Taj Bell, keyboardist Ken Roberts, and drummer Eric Meyer — are pleased to have become a multi-media experience. The group is one of the few Detroit bands who have its own World Wide Web site.

"It does a lot more to empower individuals and give them a lot more access to information and exposure. Like us! A couple of dorks can get their own TV show, exposing themselves to tens of thousands of people. We have a web site, and tens of millions of people have access on the Internet now," White said.

He paused sounding cowed by such numbers. "Look for Charm Farm to worry less about playing shows around the area and more about maintaining a really cool television show and having a really good site online. We want to have a lot of ways for people to interact with the group besides the same old, boring, 'We're playing a show at a club' thing."

Technology and advancement aside, Charm Farm members are still old-school rockers enough to throw a good bash the U2 "Where the Streets Have No Name" or the Beatles' last gig way. Without coming right out and saying it, Zuccaro hinted that Charm Farm would be visiting downtown Royal Oak very soon in a very special sort of live show.

Charm Farm, with special guest DJ Kenny Larkin, celebrates the release of "Pervert" with a party and performance at 10 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6, at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Tickets are $6 for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (810) 544-3030. They will also perform Thursday, Oct. 26, at Industry, 15 S. Saginaw, Pontiac, (810) 334-1999. Jude Cole drops heartbreak for happiness

STAFF WRITER

St. Jude and singer/songwriter Jude Cole have a lot in common. St. Jude is the religious icon to turn to for hopeless causes, and since the late 1980s Cole's fans have looked to him when relationships have crumbled.

Now they'll have to turn elsewhere. The man who specialized in break-up songs like "Get Me Through The Night," "Time for Letting Go," and "Tell The Truth" is much happier, thank you.

His latest album "I Don't Know Why I Act This Way" (Island) reflects this sentiment.

"I'm a pretty happy person. I'm very out of step with what else is going on, musically speaking. The thing that tickles me the most about this record is I'm not 'alternative.' It's not an angry record," Cole explained.

On "Believe In You" he sings "There's too much talk about the clouds of gray/when there's a great big sky of blue/I turn off the TV, and look in your eyes/and I know that I've found something true/ just believe in you/and I'll believe in me."

That's a far cry from his heartbreak songs like the 1990 single "This Time It's Us" on "A View From Third Street" (Reprise) where he says, "I never thought it could happen to us/ Now we're going 'round, breakin' down/Each other's hearts/So go on and blame me/For whatever you must/But we've become just like the ones/We laughed about/This time, this time it's us."

It's kind of a surprise that "I Don't Know Why I Act This Way" turned out as optimistic as it did. It's been a rough ride for Cole since the recording of 1992's "Start The Car" (Reprise). Cole kicked a drug and alcohol problem four years ago, which is chronicled in the song "Heaven's Last Attempt".

"All that came to a head when I was recording the 'Start the Car' record. That first year of being sober is not the most fun place to be. Every time something goes wrong, and things always go wrong because you're edgy, you want to run to the closest bar or whatever. That was the hardest year of my life. Now I've settled into it and I'm having a lot of fun."

Around the time he was settling into it, his longtime manager Ed Leffler died of cancer which is reflected on the mostly acoustic "I Don't Know Why I Act This Way."

"That is why the record is more softer and more introspective, possibly. With a baby on the way and a very close friend and manager dying, I wasn't really in the mood to rock out."

The positive mood of the album is a result of the musical reawakening that Cole went through while preparing to record "I Don't Know Why I Act This Way."

"I'm not too interested in writing about turbulent love anymore. There was a lot of songs that were about that. I know I can do that and a little voice inside my head told me to go onto other things," Cole said.

His songs still trace some sort of conflict but they have a happier ending.

"I find it hard to sing about optimism without some sort of conflict first," Cole said. "Like 'Speed of Life,' it's very optimistic. 'Believe In You,' is very optimistic. 'Take the Reins,' they're all about optimism."

"They all come from maybe a more down-on-your-luck perspective. I've found it more interesting to be down on your luck and to fight twice as hard. That's been my life and my career anyway. It's not something I'm fabricating from my million dollar home."

Cole has definitely had to "fight twice as hard" in his career. The singer, who released "Start The Car" and "A View From 3rd Street" on Reprise Records, never reached the star status that he deserved. Those two albums along with his self-titled debut are bursting at the seams with pop gems.

Granted "House Full of Reasons," "Baby It's Tonight" and "Worlds Apart" achieved some airplay on contemporary hits radio, but had the records been pushed to his standards by his former label, he would have been all over the radio.

"I still love listening to those records. They withstood the test of time for me. I don't have any animosity (for the label) but I don't think they did a great service.

Jude Cole, and special guest Chris Bennett, perform Tuesday, Oct. 10, at 7th House, 7 N. Saginaw St., Pontiac. Doors open at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (810) 335-8100.

Happier times: Jude Cole's latest CD "I Don't Know Why I Act This Way" is more uplifting and positive than his past efforts. Cole plays an acoustic show on Tuesday, Oct. 10, at the 7th House in Pontiac.

Spectadium scores with sports fans

Nothing of the two-thirds-pound cheese burger was left on his plate.

Sherer was having a business lunch with his son, Jon, also of Troy, and Greg Capp of Ann Arbor.

Jon was merely half-way through a huge Mediterranean salad, of beets, Calamata olives, feta cheese, onions, pepperocini, chick peas on mixed greens. He ordered the herb vinaigrette dressing on the side and pronounced the salad full of "great flavors."

Capp had finished a Philly Cheese Steak sandwich which he described as "good and spicy." Their 40-ounce glasses of soda pop and iced tea appeared to need no refills.

At another table, Beverly Hills resident Theresa Dziubek had eaten lunch at her Troy office, but was indulging in one of two desserts on the menu, the deep dish apple pie. "It was exquisite," she said.

Spectadium owners say they are already filling their multi-tiered stadium-setting tables with fans for big games and sporting promotions. The 8,000 square foot restaurant is designed to resemble a miniature stadium. There are three 12-foot projection screen televisions, 20 31-inch televisions, and a state-of-the-art Surround Sound audio system. Linked to three satellite dishes.

But they are hoping the menu that Chuck Williams, former executive chef at Morton's Steak House in Southfield, has put together also will make them a contender for non-sporting types who just like high quality food in a relaxed atmosphere.

And they are eagerly awaiting the November day when the road construction on nearby Big Beaver is supposed to be completed and customers can get to them without a hassle.

"We're a restaurant first," said CEO Mark Alhermizi, a West Bloomfield resident who acknowledges he's had little time lately for his Farmington Hills law practice. "Chuck's a veteran executive chef. It is a genuine American concept — a little more upscale, a little more creative than the average sports bar," Williams says, of the cuisine. In particular, he is stressing "homemade" over "deep-fried."

- Appetizer: Maryland crabcake served with garlic Aioli and Hunter dipping sauces ($6.95).
- Salad: Mediterranean ($5.95).
- Sandwiches: Meatloaf served on potato bread with homemade country gravy ($5.95). (All sandwiches come with homemade Sarasota chips. Fries are $1 extra.)
- Entrees: Baby-back ribs — a full slab with Hoisin barbecue sauce ($15.95) including salad and choice of potato.

"I'm in love with our ribs," said Alhermizi. And he says a following is developing for the vegetarian chili.

Williams rib recipe calls for rubbing spices into the ribs themselves, then slow-cooking for six hours.

And the secret to the meatloaf, also offered as an entree, is "personalizing it in an individual one-pound meat loaf pan."

The five different peppers and cumin ketchup give it, he says, "a nice blend."

A few menu revisions have already been made in the several weeks Spectadium has been opened.

A weekday all-you-can-eat deli lunch buffet ($5.95) that can also be carried out has been added to lure the quick business lunches.

And a chilled banana strawberry soup is no longer seasonal.

Now that the staff is familiar with the menu, Williams says it's no problem to serve the 500 fans who watched the University of Michigan-Boston College game on a Saturday night or the blacked out Lions on a recent Sunday.

Brooks Player of Week

Ferris State University outside linebacker Mike Brooks (Livonia Churchill), who made 15 solo tackles and had seven assists in the Bulldogs' 30-21 win Saturday over Grand Valley State, was named Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference Player of the Week.

Brooks, who leads MIFC in total tackles (70 in four games), made a key stop on fourth down on the FSU 42 with 2:33 remaining to thwart a Grand Valley drive. Grand Valley's 21-point output was the lowest total this season.

Ferris (4-0) travels Saturday to Northern Michigan (4-0) in another showdown for first place in the MIFC.

More college notes

Starting forward Mike Minghine (Churchill), who had the game-winning goal in Siena Heights College's first men's soccer victory of the year, earned all-tournament honors at the fifth annual Mello Classic at Southwest Missouri State. The Saints lost to Luther (Ia.) College, 3-0, in Sunday's championship.

■ Oakland University freshman midfielder Jenny Wysocki (Churchill) has started in every match as the Pioneers are off to a 5-1-1 start in women's soccer. Wysocki played two matches wearing a face mask after suffering a broken nose. She played prep soccer at Churchill under OU coach Nick O'Shea.

■ Kalamazoo College sophomore defensive back Eric Kelly (Churchill) had three assisted tackles and one interception over the Hornets' first three games. Kalamazoo, which lost Saturday, 29-26, to University of Chicago, is 1-3 overall.

Punt, Pass & Kick

Mike Hoelscher of Westland totalled 262 feet to win the age 14 division Saturday at the NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass and Kick, sponsored by NFL Gatorade.

Twenty-two competitors vied for honors in eight different age divisions.

Others advancing to Sectional competition, Oct. 14 in Plymouth, include: Jason Westergard (Westland), age 15 (238 feet); Andrew Copeland, age 12 (226); Stephanie Crews (Westland), age 11 (220); Wilson Anderson, age 13 (196); Jason Lind (Westland), age 9 (153.5); Andy Lynett (Westland), age 10 (140.5); and John Franchi (Livonia), age 8 (132).

PASS airs pairings

The Michigan High School Athletic Association Football Playoff pairings, notifying the 128 qualifiers in eight different classes, will be announced at 9:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 29, on PASS Sports.

The 24-hour network is available to some 1.6 million cable subscribers on over 250 systems in Michigan and northwest Ohio.

The 30-minute program, featuring the region-by-region pairings, will be presented by Farm Bureau Insurance for the second year in a row. Game dates and times will also be announced if they have already been determined.

The broadcast will originate from the studios of TCI Cablevision in East Lansing, and will be hosted by Tim Staudt, sports director of WILX-TV. Staudt also serves as play-by-play announcer for the MHSAA finals telecasts in boys and girls basketball.

The Football Playoff Pairings Show is the first of the largest championship television package the MHSAA and PASS have teamed up to bring viewers.

In the fall, the finals in boys soccer, football and girls basketball tournament will air. Winter events on PASS include girls competitive cheer, ice hockey, lower peninsula girls volleyball and the boys basketball finals. Also, there will be four, one-hour programs shown of the 1996 MHSAA Lower Peninsula Individual Wrestling Finals, presented exclusively by the United Dairy Industry.

In the spring, the finals in girls soccer will be aired.

All of the events, except the boys basketball finals, the Class A and D championship games of the girls basketball tournament -- which air live -- will be shown on a tape-delayed basis. Other finals sponsors include True Value Hardware and Tombstone Pizza.

Mr. Hibbs answers O&E call

■ Adam Hibbs, a 1991 graduate of Farmington High School, battled stiff winds Sunday at Whispering Willows to win the championship flight at the O&E golf tournament.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It came down to the finish, quite literally.

The winner of the 1995 Observer & Eccentric Golf Tournament? Adam Hibbs of Farmington — with an assist from the weather.

Perhaps that isn't quite fair. After all, Hibbs — a 1991 Farmington HS graduate — hardly benefitted from the extremely high winds that buffeted Livonia's par-70 Whispering Willows Golf Course Sunday.

Hibbs won this tournament in Saturday's first round with a 72, which tied him for first going into Sunday's final 18 holes with Razmig Boghikian of Southfield. Next best was Karl Nagy of Livonia at 74.

So on Sunday, all Hibbs needed to do was basically survive. And he did, barely, with a 76 that included a 40 on the back nine.

"I was getting nervous," Hibbs admitted. "The way I was hitting the ball, I'm not deserving of this. I mean, I had 32 putts each day . . . that's not good.

"But it was good enough, I guess."

Hibbs posted his score Sunday early, then had to wait while the final foursome in the championship flight finished. Three members of that foursome — Alex McLuckie of Livonia, Ian Harris of West Bloomfield and Chris Zbanek of Farmington Hills — were within striking distance of Hibbs' clubhouse-leading total of 148.

"I was warming up on the putting green," Hibbs admitted. "I thought for sure I'd be in a playoff."

JIM JAGIELO/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Had any one of the final three parred the last two holes, that's just what would have happened. Harris had birdie opportunities at 15, 16 and 17, but missed all three. He three-putted at 18 to finish 77-73/150, tied for third with Zbanek (76-74/150), who missed the greens at 17 and 18 and bogeyed both.

Still, any veteran of the O&E Tournament would agree that the hard-luck title could easily be retired by McLuckie. He's finished second four times (including '94), twice by a single stroke.

On Sunday, a bad chip from just off the green at the 144-yard par-three 17th led to a bogey-four, which meant he had to birdie 18 to tie.

McLuckie nearly pulled it off. A strong drive and superb chip at the par-4, 394-yard finishing hole left him lying two, 11 feet from the cup. But his birdie putt skipped past, and McLuckie ended up with a 76-73/149 and another runners-up plaque.

It seemed almost unfair, the Livonia golfer unable to match his surname while Hibbs won in his first-ever attempt. Hibbs remained in a state of disbelief even after the final results were posted.

"The scores should have been five strokes lower," he said, citing the wind and inconsistent greens as reasons they were not. "Honestly, that was the toughest wind I ever played in."

And Boghiklan, the first-round co-leader? He shot a 78 Sunday to tie with Zbanek, Harris and Nagy (who carded a second-round 76) for third at 150.

The tournament's best round belonged to David Higham, a Livonia Churchill senior who fired a 71 Sunday. Unfortunately, Higham had an 81 Saturday; he finished tied for seventh overall with Kirk Osler of Livonia (77-75) at 152.

In second flight, the championship was captured by Canton's Craig Nehasil (80-88/168), who was a single stroke better than Livonia's Howard White (87-82/169). Livonia's Ken Plozai was third (90-83/173).

In third flight, Ron Retzlaff of Southfield won (98-104/202). Marshall Brenner of Farmington Hills took second (101-105/206), with Michael McComb of Redford third (109-102/211).

The field of 97 golfers was one of the smallest on record for the annual tournament. First place in the championship flight was worth a $275 gift certificate, with second place earning a $200 certificate. The best low net won $145.

Lutheran Westland squad continues winning streak

■ CROSS COUNTRY

It's been a banner season thus far for the Lutheran High Westland boys cross country team.

On Tuesday, the host Warriors ran their dual meet record to 8-0 with a 19-39 victory over Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook in a Metro Conference encounter at Nankin Mills.

Senior Sam Patterson led the 5,000-meter race with a first-place time of 16 minutes, 51 seconds. Teammate Brad Polkinghorne, also a senior, was second in 17:15.

Other Warriors in the top 10 included Jason Collins, fourth (17:36); Phil Kimmel, fifth (17:47); Andy Ebendick, seventh (18:08); and Justin Koch, ninth (18:32).

On Saturday, Lutheran Westland beat out 16 other Class B-C-D schools to win the Center Line Invitational.

The Warriors won their second invitational of the year with 59 points followed by second-place Clawson (6) and Madison Heights Lamphere (140).

Bruce Curtis of Warren Woods Tower was the overall champ in 15:57.

Patterson took eight (16:38); Polkinghorne, ninth (16:48); Kimmel, 12th (17:01); Ebendick, 13th (17:03); and Collins, 17th (17:13).

Glenn tops Wayne

City bragging rights were at stake Tuesday as Westland John Glenn earned its first dual meet win of the season, downing rival Wayne Memorial, 22-36, at Central City Parkway.

Glenn's Joe Wojtowicz (17:17) and Chris Gillen (18:02) finished one-two.

Others in the top 10 for the Rockets, now 1-4 overall, include Mark Lovett, fourth (19:29); Tim Moore, seventh (20:08); Jason Ennis, eighth (20:24); and Justin Keyes, ninth (20:34).

Wayne was led by third-place finisher Brandon LaFramboise (19:09). John Nichols and Scott Neuman took fifth and sixth, respectively, in 19:40 and 20:06.

On Saturday, Wojtowicz, posting a clocking of 16:53, took first overall at the Alpena Invitational. Gillen was fifth in 17:26.

Other Glenn finishers included Moore, 28th (18:40); Lovett, 30th; and Justin Keyes, 51st.

The host Wildcats scored 44 points to beat out nine other schools for the team title. Rogers City and Elk Rapids were second and third, respectively with 81 and 109. Glenn finished fourth.

Shamrocks beat Irish

Redford Catholic Central raised its dual meet record to 3-0 with Monday's 23-35 win over Harper Woods Notre Dame at Metro Beach.

Joe Leo won with a time of 16 minutes, 28 seconds. Notre Dame took the next two places.

Stevenson team sets new standard

■ GIRLS WRAP

Travis

Stevenson, placing five of the first six runners, set a new scoring record for the meet with a low of 18 points. Ann Arbor Huron was a distant second with 70 and Grosse Pointe South was third with 72.

Sophomore Kelly Travis, finishing first overall in 18 minutes, 31 seconds on the flat and fast 5,000 meter course, broke the school record of 18:36 set by Bridget MacKinnon in 1993.

Others in the top six included Jeannette Stojcevski, fourth (19:33); Laura Pilon, fifth (19:36); and Kim McNellance, sixth (19:39). Delia Dumitrescu added an 18th in 20:15.

"Those first five times were five of the seven fastest ever run by a Stevenson team on the same day," Spartans' coach Paul Holmberg said. "I was pretty happy two days earlier when five ran 20:30 or better at Cass Benton (Park).

"We had six kids in the top 12 at the mile mark and I thought they had gone out too fast, but I guess I was wrong."

It was Stevenson's fourth straight invitational title.

"Every meet we just keep getting faster," Holmberg said. "People are wondering is we're peaking too early, but we're still practicing hard.

Lutheran Westland 1st

Junior Jodi Werman, posting a time of 20:06, was second overall among 94 runners Saturday, leading Lutheran High Westland to the Division I (Class B-C-D teams) title at the Center Line Invitational.

The Warriors, getting a boost from fifth-place finisher Kate Sernett (20:59), scored 133 points to edge out Imlay City (137) and Macomb Lutheran North (142).

Other finishers for the first-place Lady Warriors included Debbie Unger, 33rd (23:17); Jill Gerlach, 38th (23:38); and Sarah Unger, 55th (24:15).

On Tuesday, Lutheran Westland ran its record to 4-0 in the Metro Conference with a forfeit win over Metro Conference foe Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook, which fielded only four runners.

Werman was first again in 20:23, followed by Sernett, third (22:03); Gerlach, sixth (24:22); Debbie Unger, seventh (24:24); and Heidi Schmoll, ninth (25:05).

Brooks leads Rockets

At Saturday's Alpena Invitational, Westland John Glenn's Marjorie Brooks was the first place overall finisher in 20:52.

Host Alpena took the team title with 44 points, while Glenn was seventh out of eight schools with 194.

Other Glenn finishers included Windy Coughanour, 32nd (24:14); Elaine Lewis, 34th (24:21); Nicci Jarrett, 63rd (29:38); Kim Lawrence, 64th (32:07) -- all personal bests.

On Tuesday, the Rockets won their first dual meet in two years with a 23-32 victory against rival Wayne Memorial at Central City Parkway.

Brooks led Glenn (1-3) with a first-place time of 21:14, followed by Coughanour, third (24:21); Lewis, fourth (25:24); Jarrett, seventh (28:05); and Kim Ison, eighth (28:09).

Wayne's Dawn Daniels was second in 24:06, followed by Amanda Jayska, fifth (26:46); Angela Hill, sixth (26:47); Sayrd Stack, ninth (29:10); and Angela Morau, 10th (29:30).

Prognosticators entering home stretch

BY DAN O'MEARA

As the high school football season enters its sixth week, divisional races and the playoff picture come into sharper focus.

Farmington Harrison and Livonia Stevenson are on course for a rematch in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game.

Westland John Glenn, as well as Livonia Franklin, Walled Lake Western and North Farmington, stand in the way of that happening.

Looking farther ahead, Class AA Glenn, Redford Catholic Central and Stevenson and Class A Harrison have good playoff chances. Redford St. Agatha (D) and Plymouth Canton (AA) are on the bubble.

■ A final word on the '95 Boys Bowl. It was quite possibly the best game in the long history of the event.

Brother Rice had the game won twice, 20-17 late in the fourth quarter and 23-20 in overtime. But CC rallied each time to win 26-23.

CC's last-minute drive to force overtime, a booming field goal by Eron Kosmowski and a decision on fourth-and-one to go for the winning TD in overtime provided plenty of high drama.

■ On the prediction front, Brad Emons gained another game and leads by seven over Dan O'Meara, 62-11 to 55-18. Emons was 12-3 last week, O'Meara 11-4.

■ GRID PICKS

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all times 7:30 p.m.)

Northville at Liv. Churchill: The Mustangs (2-1, 3-2) are smarting this week after losing 48-7 to Harrison in a game that could have been much closer. Northville's other loss was to South Lyon, the No. 1 team in Class A. The Chargers (0-3, 0-5) are still looking for their first win. PICKS: The Mustangs kick up their heels again.

Farmington at Westland Glenn: These teams played a great game last year when the Rockets (2-1, 4-1) won in overtime, 20-17. Glenn's win streak was stopped last week when underdog Walled Lake Central staged a surprising, 21-20 upset. The Falcons (1-2, 2-3) had hoped to be 5-0 going into this game but have had some bad breaks and just-misses. Farmington is coming off a 21-12 win over North Farmington. PICKS: Glenn wins a squeaker.

Ply. Salem at W.L. Central: Momentum belongs to the Vikings (2-1, 3-2), who suddenly became Lakes Division contenders with their big win over Glenn. Salem (1-2, 1-4) tries to rebound from a 27-6 loss to Lakes frontrunner Livonia Stevenson. Aside from their 35-34 win over Farmington, the Rocks have scored only 13 points and will need more to beat Central. PICKS: The Vikings stay in contention.

W.L. Western at Ply. Canton: This one looks like a tossup between even teams. Both are 2-1 in the Western Division (beating Churchill and Franklin) and 3-2 overall. The Chiefs have won two straight and hope the home-field advantage helps to make it three. PICKS: Canton keeps the streak going.

Wayne Memorial at Belleville: The Zebras (2-2, 2-3) appear to be coming together as a team, winning their last two games over Woodhaven and Wyandotte. Lorenzo Guess passed for two TDs and ran for another as Wayne beat the Bears 20-8. But now comes the big test against state-ranked Belleville (4-0, 5-0). PICKS: Ian Gold and the Tigers won't be stopped.

Taylor Kennedy at Garden City: The Cougars (1-2, 1-4) got their first win last week, trouncing Truman 35-14, and the confidence gained from it should help against winless Kennedy (0-4, 0-5). The Eagles aren't flying too high these days, losing 9-0 to Southgate last week and averaging just five points a game. PICKS: The Cougars get the deuce.

Redford Union at Southgate: The Panthers (1-2, 1-4) need some offense. They haven't scored a point since beating Kennedy three weeks ago. Southgate (3-1, 3-2) has a superior record, but the game will determine if the Titans are really a better team. PICKS: Southgate pulls out a win.

Red. Thurston at Taylor Center: The Eagles (0-4, 0-5) have their best chance to get something started since the second week of the season. Thurston has played Crestwood, Allen Park and Melvindale in its last three games, but the Rams (2-2, 3-2) won't exactly be pushovers either. Center has beaten Kennedy, Annapolis and Carlson. PICKS: Thurston has to wait longer for its first victory.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Franklin at F.H. Harrison: The Hawks (3-0, 4-1) are rolling after four straight wins, including a 48-7 thrashing of Northville last week in which Jason Granger rushed for 283 yards and five touchdowns. The hard-luck Patriots (0-3, 1-4) have lost three in a row and will try to rebound from a 17-6 loss to Walled Lake Western. PICKS: Harrison has a happy homecoming.

Liv. Stevenson at N. Farmington: The Spartans (3-0, 4-1) are alone in first place in the Lakes Division and could be headed for a second straight appearance in the WLAA championship game. Stevenson can't afford to be looking ahead to next week's showdown with John Glenn, however. The Raiders (0-3, 1-4) played well against Farmington and have the potential to give the Spartans a good game. PICKS: Two votes for Stevenson.

Clarenceville at Luth. Westland: Observerland's Metro Conference members meet this week, and both hope to end two-game losing streaks. The Warriors (2-2, 2-3) suffered a 33-8 loss to Lutheran East. John Rose caught two touchdown passes from Rob Ashton, but the Trojans (2-1, 2-3) lost 36-14 to Harper Woods. PICKS: Flip a coin. O'Meara takes Lutheran Westland; Emons goes with Clarenceville.

St. Agatha at O.L. Lakes: The Lakers are having a down year by their standards. Lakes is 3-2 overall but 2-0 in the Catholic C-Section following a 28-0 rout of Ann Arbor Richard. St. Agatha (1-1, 3-2) eked out a 7-6 win over Richard two weeks ago and lost to Royal Oak Shrine 21-0 Saturday. PICKS: Nobody said the Lakers were all wet.

Bishop Borgess vs. Benedictine, 2 p.m. at Garden City Jr. High: Borgess (1-1 Tri-Sectional, 3-2) saw its two-game win streak end in a 36-18 loss to Riverview Richard. The Ravens (0-2, 2-3) have lost three straight in the league after beating New Haven and Inkster. Benedictine held Allen Park Cabrini to a touchdown in a 7-0 loss a week ago. PICKS: Emons is an Edgar Allen Poe fan, so the Ravens are his choice. O'Meara's reply: Go Tell The Spartans.

Redford CC vs. O.L. St. Mary's, 7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville: The Eaglets (4-1) are having another good year, but OLSM isn't the awesome team that won the Class CC title in '94. The Shamrocks (5-0) will be thinking payback this week, having lost 20-0 to St. Mary's last year. CC has a new lease on life after rallying to beat Brother Rice 26-23 in overtime Sunday in the annual Boys Bowl. PICKS: St. Mary's (2-0) is ahead of the Shamrocks (1-0) in the new Central West Division, but that will change Saturday.

Guess-Rashad combo sneaks Wayne past Bears

Wayne Memorial's football team earned its second straight Mega Conference-Red Division victory Saturday against visiting Wyandotte Roosevelt, 20-8.

The Zebras are now 2-3 overall and 2-2 in the division. The loss drops the Bears to 2-3 and 1-3.

With 4:06 left in the first quarter, Guess hooked up with junior wide receiver Richard Rashard on an 82-yard TD. The score was set up by Jeff Temple's fumble recovery and subsequent 50-yard return.

But Wyandotte answered with 24 seconds left in the period on Brian Lukasik's 5-yard TD run. The Bears converted the two-pointer on a pass for an 8-6 lead.

With 3:38 left in the second quarter, Guess hit Rashad again, this time on a 12-yard scoring play. The Zebras converted the two-pointer to make it 14-8 at intermission.

Guess then put the game away with a 35-yard TD run with 10:06 left in the final period. He was four of 14 passing for 107 yards and one interception.

The Zebras' top rusher was Dwayne Jackson, who had 78 yards on 15 carries.

■ W.L. WESTERN 17, FRANKLIN 6: It wasn't a happy homecoming Saturday at Livonia Franklin as Walled Lake Western came up with the victory.

The victorious Warriors are 3-2 overall and 2-1 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Franklin falls to 1-4 overall and 0-3 in the division.

"We had a lot of mistakes," Franklin second-year coach Rick Lee said. "We worked hard all week at eliminating them, but you wouldn't have known it the way we played. We haven't had a good game since the Stevenson game (a 15-14 upset win). Maybe that game was a fluke."

The game was scoreless until 2:04 left in the second quarter when Donny Davis, who led all rushers with 99 yards in 13 carries, scored on a 25-yard TD run, capping a 71-yard, eight-play drive.

Franklin missed a chance to put some points on the board earlier in the quarter when Paul Terek intercepted a pass and returned it to the Warriors' 38.

But the drive stalled when Franklin was penalized twice, 12 yards for holding and another five for illegal procedure.

In the third quarter, junior Pat Gibson booted a 37-yard field goal to give Western a 10-0 advantage. Scott Naz then added a 2-yard touchdown run after the Patriots gave up a first down when Gibson was roughed on a field goal try.

Sophomore tailback Anthony Grech scored on a 2-yard run set up by Steve Ashbay's 18-run run to account for Franklin's lone points.

Franklin could muster only 15 net yards on the ground in 23 carries. The Patriots gave up 20 yards in sacks. Senior quarterback David McMullen was seven of 14 for 120 yards. Terek, a junior, had five catches for 88 yards.

Western racked up 240 yards, all on the ground. Jason Bishop was 0-for-9 passing.

Western led in first downs, 11-7.

■ LUTHERAN EAST 33, LUTH. WESTLAND 8: On Saturday, Harper Woods Lutheran East scored 19 unanswered points in the second half to beat host Lutheran High Westland in a Metro Conference game.

The Warriors fall to 2-3 overall and 2-2 in the Metro. East is 4-1 and 3-1.

East outgained the Warriors in total yardage, 253-158.

Marlon Fair rushed for 157 of East's 244 yards. He had a total of 24 carries, including a 46-yard TD run in the second quarter and a 36-yard score with two minutes left in the game.

After a scoreless first quarter, East took a 7-0 lead on Jason Riske's 20-yard pass to Kurt Tunnecliffe. Fair then added his first TD run off a draw play to make it 14-0.

"They (East) really didn't get that much yardage until the draw play," Lutheran Westland coach Scott Wiemer said.

The Warriors cut the deficit to 14-8 as Mat Baltz scored on a 4-yard TD run. Junior Albert Cook, who led Lutheran Westland in rushing with 61 yards in 13 carries, ran for the two-pointer.

Riske added a 3-yard TD run for East in the third quarter.

Cody Spencer (6-yard run) and Fair each scored TDs in the final five minutes.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Spartans put halt to losing skid; Warriors capture 9th straight

Livonia Stevenson broke its three-game losing streak Tuesday, thanks in part to the return of guard Katie Downarowicz.

Downarowicz suffered an ankle injury two weeks ago in a loss to Plymouth Canton. The Spartans then lost to Beverly Hills-Detroit Country Day and Farmington.

But Stevenson got back on track as Downarowicz returned to score 11 points and grab six rebounds in the Spartans' 49-39 victory over visiting Livonia Churchill.

The Spartans, now 6-4 overall and 2-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association, held a slim 21-20 advantage heading into the third quarter. Stevenson dominated the quarter, however, outscoring the Chargers 17-6.

Stacey Nichols scored nine of her game-high 18 points in the third. She also pulled down 10 rebounds.

"Katie picked a nice time to come back with a strong game," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said. "She scored nine in the third when we were able to pull away and take control of the game."

Jenny Dulz added six points and eight rebounds for the Spartans.

Churchill slipped to 1-9 overall and 0-4 in the league. The Chargers were led by Jessie Jenkins and Alicia December, who scored 13 and 12 points, respectively.

ROUNDUP

■ W.L. CENTRAL 48, FRANKLIN 36: Livonia Franklin gave the WLAA's top team a tough ride Tuesday, but host Walled Lake Central was able to hold on for the victory.

The state-ranked Vikings, who improved to 8-0 overall and 4-0 in the WLAA, led 20-11 at halftime, but the Patriots rallied to cut the lead to just two in the third quarter.

"We ran out of gas and they were able to take advantage," Franklin coach Gary Warner said. "It was a great defensive game on Franklin's part. We came out and played some real good defense."

Senior guard Tracy Rynkiewicz poured in a game-high 26 points for the Patriots (5-5 overall, 1-2 in the WLAA).

Becky Cummings scored 14 to lead Central.

■ NORTHVILLE 69, JOHN GLENN 28: After leading 17-12 at the end of the first quarter Tuesday, the Mustangs ran away with the WLAA game at Westland John Glenn.

Northville increased its halftime lead to 35-19, and then outscored Glenn 34-9 in the second half.

"Northville has a transition game that is so tough, it's two dribbles and the ball is up the floor," Glenn coach Andy Denison said.

Samantha Leger scored a game-high 22 points for Northville (6-1 overall, 3-0 in the WLAA). Lauren Metaj added 16 and Gina Chiasson 12.

Rochelle Harris and Jami Grigal scored seven points each for the Rockets (1-7 overall, 0-4 WLAA).

■ LUTHERAN WESTLAND 50, LUTH. N'WEST 47: Lutheran Westland won its ninth straight game Tuesday, and more importantly, took sole possession of first place in the Metro Conference with its overtime victory over visiting Rochester Hill Lutheran Northwest.

After allowing the Crusadere to tie the game at 44-44 with 11 seconds remaining in regulation, the Warriors outscored Northwest 6-3 in the extra period.

The Warriors, now 3-0 in the league and 9-1 overall, took the lead for good on a Jackie Kemp layup. Jenny Twietmeyer added a pair of free throws to give Westland a cushion.

Twietmeyer led the Warrior attack with 17 points. Westland made 18 of their 27 free-throw attempts.

"There were only two undefeated teams in the Metro before tonight, and this win gives us sole possession of first place which feels good," Westland coach Ron Gentz said.

Freshman Kim Klitela scored 17 for the Crusaders (8-2, 2-1).

■ MARIAN 45, LADYWOOD 42: Livonia Ladywood's comeback fell short Tuesday as visiting Birmingham Marian escaped with the Catholic League Central Division victory.

Trailing 15-5 at the end of the first quarter and 19-13 at halftime, the Blazers rallied to tie the game at 34-34, but were never able to take the lead.

"We played a good second half, but we came out weak in the first half and that's what hurt us," Ladywood coach Lisa McPhee said.

The Blazers (1-8 overall, 0-5 in the league) were led by Erin LeSage who tallied 10. Stephanie Mussat added nine for Ladywood, which made 13 of 24 free throws.

The Mustangs (6-4 overall, 4-1 in the league) received 17 points from Brandi Bentley. They converted only five of 14 free-throw attempts.

■ WAYNE 44, REDFORD UNION 34: The duo of Yolanda Holt and Rica Barge led host Wayne Memorial to victory again Tuesday.

Holt and Barge scored 14 apiece as the Zebras picked up the Mega Conference Red Division win. Wayne is 7-2 overall and 2-1 in the division.

The difference was free throws, as the Zebras made 14 of 19 at the line. RU made only one of five attempts.

Senior forward Lauren Wright scored 15 to lead the Panthers (4-6 overall, 0-3 in the Mega Red). Sophomore guard Kasie Mathena chipped in with nine.

After a 7-7 tie at the end of the first quarter, the Zebras took a 20-16 halftime lead and extended that to 33-24 entering the final quarter.

"We actually had a run of six points to open the third and take the lead but we couldn't get the shots to fall when we needed them to," RU coach Marty Lowney said.

■ HURON VALLEY 40, FAIRLANE 26: Despite failing to score at the free-throw line Tuesday, Westland Huron Valley Lutheran had little trouble with visiting Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian.

The Hawks jumped out to a 16-3 lead and extended the lead to 20 later in the first half.

"We began the game with a full court press which they didn't handle well," Huron Valley coach Tod Bartholomew said.

Amy Mohacsi and Nikki Kightlinger led Huron Valley with 10 and eight points, respectively. The Lions were paced by Juretta Bailey's 11 points.

The Hawks are 7-4 overall and 1-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. The Lions are winless in eight games.

■ PLY. CHRISTIAN 43, CLARENCEVILLE 29: Plymouth Christian Academy jumped out to a 13-3 lead Tuesday and never looked back as the Eagles won the non-conference road game.

Senior center Kristine Zedan led all scorers with 18 points and 10 rebounds. PCA (6-4) also received eight points from senior guard Lisa Erickson and seven points and nine rebounds from freshman forward Jenny Sutherland.

The Trojans (0-9) were led by Melissa Cairns' eight points.

"It was a rough game," Clarenceville coach Bob Wolf said. "They were the bigger team, and we let them play rough inside."

The Eagles dominated at the free-throw line where they made 17 of 30 attempts. Clarenceville made five of its 14 tries.

"We got a lot of players' time tonight which was good," PCA coach Rod Windle said. "I thought we shot well in the first half. Our post play really helped us."

Keglers ride Foster's wave to Livonia

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

"Hang 10" was the buzzword recently at Woodland Lanes in Livonia as Livonia-based Action Distributors set up its surfboard in the lounge for individuals to try their hand, er feet, on a rolling and rocking surfboard. This was the first venture into the bowling scene for Action Distributors, according to spokesperson Pete Fazio.

Of course the object of the surfing was to promote Foster's beer, a product originating from Australia. The Aussies do their share of surfing, so by combining the popularity of the two activities, they hope to get local bowlers hooked.

The action occurred once again Wednesday at Mayflower Lanes in Redford. For more information about upcoming events, call Fazio (related to all-time bowling great Buzz Fazio) at (313) 591-3232.

■ The West Side Lutheran League is now in its 49th year. After spending each of the previous seasons bowling out of Redford Lanes, the league this season has moved to Novi Bowl.

In recent action, Don Johnson stole the show by rolling a block consisting of 237-243-300 games. Those scores added up to 780 and the highest three-game set ever bowled in the league.

Johnson's 300 game was his first and only the third rolled in the long history of the West Side Lutheran League.

Other high scores that night included a 621 series from Tim Collins, 605 from John Koepke and 603 by Randy Krohn.

■ The Professional Bowler's Tour returns to Taylor Lanes for the 11th consecutive year, beginning Friday and concluding next Wednesday with the televised finals. ESPN will air the stepladder finals live from 7:30-9 p.m. with PBA Hall of Famers Mike Durbin and Earl Anthony calling the action.

The event will begin with the pro-am, which will help raise funds for the Karmanos Cancer Institute to help in the fight against cancer through the celebrity squad which will bowl on Friday.

Churchill ties Canton, 1-1; Spartans' Urbats scores 4

BY C.J. RISAK

SOCCER

The final result was deserved, because neither Plymouth Canton nor Livonia Churchill proved itself better in Monday's soccer showdown for supremacy in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division.

Examining the division records reveals why. The Chiefs are now 3-0-1 against Western foes; Churchill had a scoreless tie against Northville, leaving it with a 2-0-2 mark.

The Chargers hosted Walled Lake Western last night in their final divisional match; Canton plays Monday at Western. If Churchill won and the Chiefs lost or tied, the Chargers would play Livonia Stevenson for the WLAA championship Wednesday, Oct. 18 at Stevenson.

But that is an unlikely scenario. As Canton assistant coach Jeff Neschich put it after Monday's 1-1 tie, "It's good enough for the division title."

Neither team displayed much in the way of offensive skill. The Chiefs scored first, in the 10th minute, with Evan Sabourin knocking in a loose ball. Churchill knotted it in the 28th minu on a goal by Peter Varga.

That's the way it remainec Both teams had opportunities in the second half; neither did anything with them. Shots went over the net, dribbled to keepers Bryan Stramecki (Churchill) or George Tomasso (Canton), or were swung at and missed. There were no close calls in the last 40 minutes; indeed, it was rare to see either team complete two-straight passes.

"It was a great game," insisted Churchill coach Chad Campau, his team now 6-2-4 overall. "I hate tying and I hate losing, but watching two teams like this is great. This was like a state tournament game already."

Canton's Don Smith did not quite agree with that assessment. But then, perhaps the differences in the coaches offers an explanation for that — Campau is in his first year of coaching; Smith guided the Chiefs to the Class A championship last year.

"We're not as skillful, but we're getting there," the Canton coach said. "Nobody really had an advantage (tonight). Nobody really had any real good shots."

After a moment of reflection, Smith provided a more blunt description of his team's offense: "We just stunk it up."

What are the Chiefs doing well? "Hustling, and we're playing fairly good defense. We're not giving up much," Smith said.

Unfortunately, they weren't getting much against Churchill, either. "We're not putting the ball to people's feet," said Smith, whose team is 9-3-2 overall. "But (Churchill's) defense was tough. They ran our forwards off the ball.

"Of course, we did the same thing to their forwards."

So it could be said both teams are perhaps halfway there. Of course, in the hotbed of soccer that this area has become, halfway won't get a team too far in the state playoffs.

What's ahead was something Campau was quick to point out to his team minutes after the game. "Keep your heads up — don't worry about it. We've got a lot of road ahead of us," he told them.

His meaning was all too clear: "Every game along the way from now on will be just like this. As a team, our first goal was to win the division. We can't do that now, but there are bigger and better things ahead."

■ STEVENSON 5, PIONEER 3: Four goals by Jeff Urbats carried the state's top-ranked team in Class A, Livonia Stevenson (11-0-1 overall), to the non-league victory Monday over visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Matt Quinter tallied the other goal for the Spartans, who were deadlocked 2-2 early in the second half.

■ SALEM 6, FRANKLIN 1: Drew Drummond tallied a pair of goals Monday, leading state-ranked Plymouth Salem (11-2 overall) to a Western Lakes crossover win at Livonia Franklin (8-5).

Salem jumped out to a 4-0 first-half lead.

"It was really a bad game for us, the worst we played all year," Franklin first-year coach Dave Hebeatreit said. "Hopefully, we learned a lesson. We had to get some things out of our system."

■ REDFORD CC 3, BISHOP FOLEY 2: Dan Mulvihill scored twice and back-up goalkeeper Matt Kessler, filling in for the injured Travis Miller, posted the shutout Tuesday, leading host Redford Catholic Central to the win over Madison Heights Bishop Foley.

The win gives CC a 9-2-1 overall record. The Shamrocks also stayed in the hunt for a Catholic League playoff berth. CC, 4-2-1 in division play, can earn a spot in playoffs with a win Saturday at Warren DeLaSalle.

Lindsay then scored in the final minute from Shaun Kahanec.

Lady Ocelots win twice during Chicago swing

The Ocelots led 2-0 at halftime and defeated DuPage, the No. 10-ranked team in the National Junior College Athletic Association, 3-0, in a Region 12 game played Saturday near Chicago.

The victory avenged a 3-2 loss earlier in the season to DuPage when Schoolcraft blew a one-goal lead in the last 10 minutes.

The Ocelots are 5-3 overall, 4-3 in Region 12.

"My girls were really up, they should have won the last time and they wanted to show they were better," Schoolcraft coach Nikki Johnson said. "We had a long team meeting Friday night. DuPage, no matter their (skill) level, always plays hard and we knew we had to play full out for 90 minutes to the whistle."

The Ocelots finished the weekend trip with a 6-1 victory Sunday against Moraine Valley, a school also located outside of Chicago.

Freshman goalkeeper Jennifer Audritsh (Garden City) made only three saves, but that was because she played more aggressively, which is the style encouraged by Johnson. Audritsh usually got to the ball before DuPage's forwards could get a shot on goal.

"When the ball went over the defenders heads, Jennifer asserted herself in coming out. She didn't hold back," Johnson said. "That's what we worked on with her."

Scoring chances for DuPage's star forward Debbie Markovich also were limited because of the defense of freshman defender Stacey Miller (Plymouth Canton).

"She is a really quick forward, but Stacey did an excellent job," Johnson said. "Debbie didn't get but one shot maybe the whole game."

Kimble scored first, converting a pass off a corner kick by Staci Muysenberg. The lead grew to 2-0 before halftime after Kimble stole a DuPage outlet pass and scored on a shot from about 18 yards out.

Miller, Erin Stacherski and Misty Heath collected assists.

SC men suffer lost weekend

■ SOCCER

It may not seem that way, but the results could not have been better for Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team.

What? You crazy? They lost and they tied!

True enough. The Ocelots' trip to the College of DuPage, to play the former top-ranked team in the NJCAA Saturday and then another tough team, Moraine Valley, on Sunday, ended up with a 3-0 loss to DuPage and a 4-4 tie against Moraine Valley.

Or is it?

It can be. As SC coach Van Dimitriou noted: "We got what we wanted out of the weekend — not in terms of wins and losses, certainly, but the kids found out how hard they will have to play to beat better teams.

"If anything, this will enhance our level of play. It taught us the importance of teamwork. And when you're playing away from home against teams of this caliber, that doesn't help us. But now they know what it will take."

And, to an extent, so does Dimitriou. Against DuPage, a strong wind made a big difference. SC had it at its back in the first half and controlled play, but failed to score. DuPage got a run upfield late in the half and a penalty kick was called, which it converted.

In the second half, with the wind against the Ocelots, the tide changed in favor of DuPage.

"We had our opportunities," said Dimitriou. "We just didn't convert. The wind was a major factor; they just took better advantage of it than we did."

Dimitriou wasn't at all pleased with the Ocelots' fold-up act in the second half against DuPage, something he made sure they knew prior to Sunday's match with Moraine Valley. The result: A fired-up SC team attacked aggressively, which led to a 4-1 halftime lead for the Ocelots.

"That was our best half of the year, against a very good team," said the SC coach.

Unfortunately, it also led to four yellow cards. With injuries limiting two others, Dimitriou suddenly had a very limited bench. A penalty-kick goal for Moraine Valley early in the second half helped turn things against SC and fueled the comeback.

Which ended with a goal scored by SC's Doug Walters into his own net. Walters was filling in at stopper, a position not entirely familiar to him.

SC got first-half goals from Mo Hijazi, Victor Rodopoulos (from Livonia Franklin), Ryan Phipps (Plymouth Canton) and from Rodopoulos again. Hijazi assisted on Rodopoulos' second goal, and Rodopoulos assisted on Phipps' goal.

"In the long run, this might help us," Dimitriou said. "It was an educational thing."

A pair of wins might have led the Ocelots toward overconfidence. Now they have a goal: A return trip to DuPage (which will host the NJCAA Inter-regional Tournament) still lies ahead. If SC is to go further, it must win that tourney.

Now they should know how to do it.

Comment spurs Madonna to victory

■ VOLLEYBALL

Sophomore Erin Comment recorded 14 kills and 21 digs Tuesday, powering Madonna University to a 15-1, 9-15, 16-14, 15-8 women's volleyball victory over stubborn University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Madonna is now 15-8 overall.

"We started off very fast in the first game — we put the opponent away," Madonna coach Jerry Abraham said. "But in the second game, we played softer and U-M probably played the best match they've played all year. Their setter really took control the second game."

The Lady Crusaders, however, bounced back as Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) added 13 kills and seven digs. Junior Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) contributed 15 digs and eight kills, while setter Meg Paris tallied 40 assists (10 per game).

"We came back in the fourth game and put them away," Abraham said. "We hadn't played in a week and it showed. But hopefully we're back on track now and can get rolling."

Teeters not discouraged

On Tuesday, Macomb CC moved into a first-place conference tie with Henry Ford after a 15-6, 9-15, 16-14, 19-17 win over the visiting Lady Ocelots.

"All of our losses have been to strong teams, but I'm pleased with the way our lineup is shaping up," said the SC coach, whose team is 14-9-3 overall. "We're going more toward a defensive setup."

Hermina Angeles led SC's offensive attack with 20 kills, while Michelle MacRae added seven blocks. Stacy Sailus had four ace serves.

Belleville, ranked No. 5 in the National Junior College Athletic Association, downed SC, 14-16, 15-4, 15-8, 15-11. Belleville posted a 3-0 record to win the tourney.

Second-place Parkland (Ill.) also beat the Lady Ocelots, 15-12, 15-17, 15-7, 15-6, while third-place West Plains (Mo.) outlasted SC, 15-12, 8-15, 13-15, 15-7, 15-11.

Offensively, Tracy Sledz (Livonia Clarenceville) led with 32 kills and Sailus added eight blocks.

On Sept. 29, SC lost to Henry Ford, 15-12, 15-4, 16-14, despite Clark's 22 passes on target and Sledz' 12 kills.

Macomb and Henry Ford are both 4-1 in the Eastern Conference of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association. SC is a game back at 3-2.

MARKET PLACE

Cutting edge

Artistic point: Artist Ted Miller creates a portrait of American Indian history with his handcrafted knives, which serve as uncommon accents to an American Indian decorating theme. The blade is etched with a portrait of an American Indian warrior in full garb. The handle, carved from wood, displays faces of wolves and warriors, inlaid with turquoise and other stones. Cost for the 12-inch knife with stand shown here is $395. Available at Native West Gallery, 863 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

GARDEN SPOT

Bulb seminar gives information, inspiration

MARTY FIGLEY

More than 40 people attended the recent two-day bulb seminar with Charles Cresson, which was sponsored by Telly's Greenhouse in Troy and The Gardeners Guild. Cresson provided much information and inspiration; I shall try to share some random thoughts.

Flowering plants that grow well with bulbs include forget-me-nots, wallflowers, pansies and dark blue grape hyacinths. Try color combinations of yellow and red, blue iris with violas and tall allium, white with deep purple, and orange and yellow mixtures. A few white blooms peeking out of pachysandra or vinca add interest, as do the yellow or white blooms of daffodils. Think of color combinations and bloom times when you plan the gardens.

A pedestal planter can be changed for the season and surrounded by wood hyacinths in the spring then over planted with annuals such as impatiens for the rest of the summer.

Placing

Plant early blooming things close to the house so you can enjoy them as soon as they appear. Dwarf species tulips do well in a rock garden or on a raised bulb bank.

Plant tulip bulbs eight to nine inches deep when they are to remain in the ground. Bedding tulips need only to be planted six inches deep. For optimum results, bulb sites should face in the following directions: first south, then east, west and finally north.

Evergreen boughs provide good mulch for bulb beds because they trap more snow, thus provide better cover. Don't tie bulb foliage because it absorbs the sunlight for energy to feed the bulbs.

Daffodils should be planted by mid-October to develop strong roots before winter. Mulch to keep the soil warm. Tulips and grape hyacinths can be chilled before planting. Fall blooming bulbs should be planted in early fall; the ideal time is mid-August — six inches deep. Two good crocus to grow are Thomasine and Crocus Speciosus. Narcissus hybrids will generally multiply best if planted four to six inches deep.

"If rodents eat the bulbs, kill them . . . after chipmunks have done a certain amount of damage, they're no longer too cute to kill," Cresson said.

He suggested making cages of ½-inch rat wire (or use plastic containers) and planting the bulbs in them. Squirrels can't eat crocus with wire placed six inches over the top of the bed. Scilla siberica isn't bothered by animals.

Hyacinths

Daffodil hybrids are better adapted to our gardens than are the species or wild ones. Species tulips are those found in the wild — not hybridized. Buy small hyacinth bulbs for the garden — they will produce blooms that don't fall over. If bulbs are diseased with either striped or mosaic virus, which is spread by aphids, dig all the infected bulb out and destroy. The soil should still be clean.

Fertilize all bulbs in the fall when roots begin to grow and again in the early spring when foliage begins to grow. Don't put fertilizer in the bottom of the planting hole — roots can be burned.

Force bulbs in small pots so they can be moved from one location to another to change the decorating scene as wanted. Large hyacinth bulbs are best for forcing. Two good bulbs for forcing are the tulip "Apricot Beauty" and daffodil "February Gold." Tulips that have been forced are usually not strong enough for future bloom, but daffodils will recover after forcing and gain full strength in the garden.

Bulbs require good drainage, rich soil, sun or light deciduous shade. Dig (and mix in amendments) to a depth of 12 inches; six to 7.5 is the ideal pH range. Generally plant 2-½ times the height of the bulb.

Forcing bulbs

Force hardy bulbs for early indoor bloom. Do it now, or store in refrigerator until needed.

Fill the pot ⅓ to two-thirds with free-draining potting mix. Place bulbs in the moist mixture, tamp to settle and recover bulbs with additional soil. Water until it drains out holes well, then place in plastic bag and seal. Chill in temperature between 32 and 45 degrees — a refrigerator is fine.

When you see top growth, remove plastic and set in a cool spot for a couple of days then in regular house temperature in a place with as much light as possible. Don't let soil dry out. Blossoms should appear in two to four weeks.

A European fairgrounds organ will entertain with Dutch and German tunes, "Clompen" dancers will perform, and Joe Vandervlugt will share bulb information as will professional gardener Barbara Reichard. For information, call (810) 348-2500.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- Plant a new shade tree or flowering shrub.
- Give evergreens and shrubs a long drink if it hasn't rained.
- Plant at least a dozen bulbs of the same variety for a dose of "wow" in the spring.
- Fertilize the lawn. A slow-release kind of fertilizer is excellent with a formula of 8-12-24.
- Start a compost pile with shredded leaves and garden debris — no diseased plants, though.

COVER STORY

On the job

STORY BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

In the future, it's not a matter of whether a home will have an office, but for what tasks it will be designed.

Combine the popularity of home computers with today's life in the fast lane and you have two good reasons why home office furniture sales are going through the roof.

Add to that the fact more and more people are working at home and it becomes evident why increasing numbers of people are buying home office furniture.

Dolores Carroll has a whole set of theories about the necessity for home offices in the future. She says busier lifestyles than our parents' generation (committee meetings for fund-raisers and the like, keeping a schedule of the children's karate or skating lessons) necessitate organizing a space where receipts, valuable papers and scribbled down appointments will no longer be kept in a shoebox.

According to LINK, a New York City research and consulting firm, nearly half a million people are now working at home, either as employees or independent business people. The invention of computer modems and E-mail to convey information (back to the office), coupled with the trend of more people starting their own businesses make it necessary for people to get organized. The key is to do it in style.

"The home office is coming out of the closet. People are going for beauty, the traditional wood office furniture because our work environment affects performance. How organized you are and the beauty of your surroundings makes you more efficient," said Carroll, a sales representative at Walker/Buzenberg Fine Furniture in Plymouth.

And what does a handsomely outfitted office complete with classic credenza, barrister bookcase inset with beveled glass, and a traditional leather sofa and chair say about you to clients?

"It's power dressing for the home office, the business suit look. What you work at says a lot about you as well. It says professional.

"A lot of people have a home office mostly because it organizes your life. Once you have one, you wonder how you ever did without one. It does decrease the stress level."

Determining present and future needs

The face of home offices is changing and that face has many different looks depending on space limitations. Do you need a home office to house a computer system complete with tower, printer, and fax machine? Is the office simply for keeping track of household papers? Does the room do double duty as a den, dining room or extra bedroom? Will the size of the space suffice if you plan on running a small business or meeting with clients there?

Along with measurements of the room, these are some of the questions you'll need to ask yourself before determining the style of furniture. Will it be a hideaway computer cabinet, credenza or rolltop desk, traditional or modular?

"The trend is to more and more modulars. A lot of people do go for the hutch because it does give you the vertical space for manuals and books. Fifteen years ago you couldn't find modular for the home, now with the computer it's become available," Carroll said.

The advent of affordable home computers is affecting the types of desks and cabinets furniture manufacturers design and produce. Tailoring their pieces with slide-out trays for keyboards, larger areas for work surfaces and equipment such as speakers for multimedia computers with CD-ROM, and locking storage for family computers, the manufacturers are trying to keep up with the electronics that seems to change every six months, says Pat Zatina, home office and occasional buyer for Scott Shuptrine in Troy.

"Technology is driving this category of furniture with students and adults depending more on their computers at home. The number one consideration of people is what components they will need to add eventually. They also need to consider the size of work surface needed for papers, and the type of lighting, determining the correct amount of light to reduce eye strain. A desk lamp is important if you plan to be working with or reading papers," Zatina said.

"We sell a lot of the cabinet type set-ups because you can throw this in any room and close it away when it's not in use. When it's closed it's a relatively nice looking piece of furniture."

Functional beauty

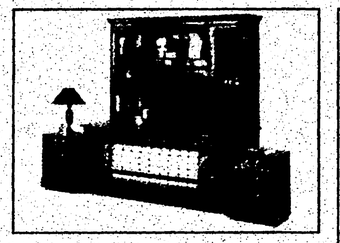

Corner hideaway computer cabinets offer beauty plus functionality. In general, cherry and oak pieces are the most popular because of the woods' classic look, says Walker/Buzenberg co-owner David Buzenberg, but whitewash is also available.

"People want to do the traditional, and typically by nature, the office is not a room that's contemporary," Buzenberg said.

"We're seeing more wall units and credenzas, the wood pieces. Most address the filing needs, and provide storage for manuals and books. Everyone comes in with different sizes of equipment. If people bring in a floor plan of their room we can suggest a configuration."

The invention of computer modems and E-mail to convey information (back to the office), coupled with the trend of more people starting their own businesses make it necessary for people to get organized. The key is to do it in style.

Series focuses on antiques

Schoolcraft College, Haggerty and Seven Mile in Livonia, is offering a series to help you identify and evaluate antiques.

In the series, prominent professionals Frank Boos, owner of the Frank H. Boos Gallery in Bloomfield Hills, and James Krol, owner of Birmingham Gemological Services in Birmingham, will discuss what's "out there" in the market as well as what items to look for.

Art work, furniture and accessories and new and antique fine jewelry will be discussed. The four-session series begins 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, and continues Wednesdays, Oct. 25 and Nov. 1 and 8. Participants may attend individual sessions or the entire series. For a brochure or to register, call the college at (313) 462-4448.

Boos will lead classes on antique furniture; painting and prints; and silver, china and objets d'art. Krol will lead the final class, discussing jewelry and gemstones. Students will learn about carat weight, color, clarity and cutting.

'Miniature' workshops set

At open workshops every Friday, students may bring projects and join friends to work together on miniatures.

Students are asked to register for classes at least two weeks in advance to give instructors time to prepare. Class fees vary according to hours and the materials supplied.

Flowers will be created at three sessions by visiting instructor Sandy Wall of Inverness, Ill. Her classes Saturday, Oct. 28, will cover lilacs and iris. Morning glories will be the subject Sunday, Oct. 29.

A class Saturday, Oct. 21, covers the making of a miniature woven basket with hinged lid that can be finished with a holiday theme. The instructor is Sue Jaques of Farmington Hills.

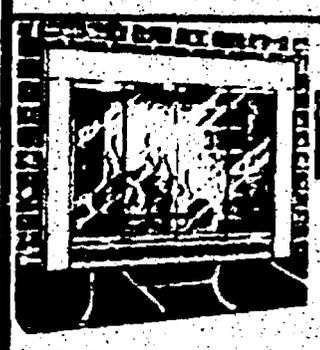

At a Saturday morning class Nov. 18, students will make and exchange miniature Christmas cookies so that everyone can take a large assortment home.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Often times a small area of a building such as an ornate doorknob or ivy-covered window ledge will create a photographic composition much stronger than the whole. The intimacy of a flower petal or the patterns of a breaking wave on the beach are often missed in our desire to concentrate on the totality of the subject.

Details of pattern, form and texture can tell us much about our subjects without the need to show their entirety. Isolating detail will give a new perspective and impact to your pictures not obtained by shooting the whole.

Any environment contains an inexhaustible supply of fascinating detail waiting for your camera. For example, in nature photography, try moving in close to isolate the texture of bark instead of shooting the whole cluster of trees. Photographing the lake in its entirety will give you a nice scenic picture, but don't overlook the delicate reeds and lilies at water's edge. Overall winter scenes are dramatic, but isolating that one unusual icicle will give you that special shot not obtainable in the whole.

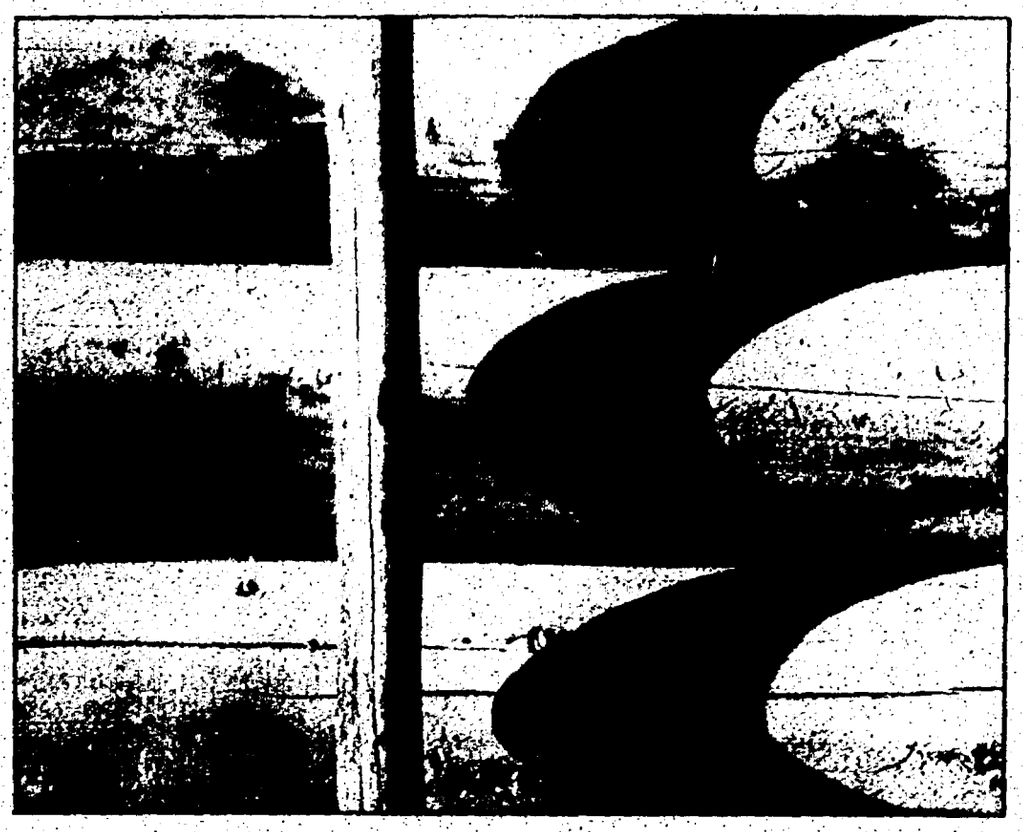

In architecture, the supply of detail is endless. Isolate a pattern of unusual brickwork or look for colorful window shutters. Move in close on a section of peeling paint. Churches offer details in statues as well as the many colors and patterns of stained glass.

Can you isolate parts of people? Of course! The hands of the elderly or the foot of an infant will produce photographs of special, personal impact.

Other than a keen eye, no elaborate equipment is needed to isolate detail although a viewing mask will prove invaluable as an aid in composing your shot. At times, closeup filters will help you to move in close and a tripod should be used to maximize sharpness and depth-of-field.

But the important ingredients in isolating detail are your vision and insight. Your aim in photographing detail should be to obtain a complete picture in itself while at the same time maintaining the flavor and essence of the whole.

BOOK BREAK

ESTHER LITTMANN

"Imagine the wonders of America. To begin with, there's the land. It's flowing with milk and honey. People make heaps of money, they make fortunes, they literally scoop up gold. And business is so good, it makes you dizzy. You can do anything you want. If you want a factory, you set up a factory. If you feel like opening a little store, you open a little store. And the size of the cities! The width of the streets! The height of the buildings!"

"That's all very well . . . but tell me: Don't people die in America, just like here? Or do they live on and on?"

— from Sholom Aleichem's "Beryl Isaac and the Wonders of America" (1948)

These sentiments, expressed by the Yiddish author whose stories form the basis of "Fiddler on the Roof," were shared by countless Jewish immigrants who came to America. They also provide the framework to "The Wonders of America" (Hill and Wang, 1994), a fascinating and informative book by Jenna Weissman Joselit, Princeton University professor and author of numerous works on popular culture.

When Jews came to America, the freedom to pursue happiness took many forms, religious as well as commercial and professional. But freedom of worship was only the beginning.

After that, writes the author, Jews claimed freedom to discard, modify, invent and reappropriate. Not for them a religious straitjacket of "ideological and behavioral consistency."America was the place to exercise choice, to practice indulgence rather than self-denial, to secure material well-being as well as spiritual welfare.

Grass-roots

Joselit has written a book of modern Jewish history in America like we've never read before. It's about a Judaism shaped by consumers rather than by the "cultural custodians," a grass-roots phenomenon, created by the people and for the people.

When time constraints made strict Sabbath observance too difficult, Jews channeled their energy and enthusiasm to another family event — the Bar Mitzvah celebration. When adherence to dietary laws began to wane, the love of Jewish cooking proliferated, dotting the urban landscape with bagel shops and delicatessens.

The author's 40-page bibliography contains no weighty tomes by biblical scholars. Instead, we find references to temple yearbooks, articles in popular Jewish magazines, personal letters to relatives still living in the "old country," and advertisements to entice the Jewish homemaker.

Along with the minutiae of daily living — marriage, childbirth, parenting and departing — Joselit includes some startling, little-known items of information.

Beginnings

For example, we learn that Bat Mitzvah (coming-of-age ceremony for girls) isn't a liberal innovation.

It started in the Conservative movement, and was even practiced by some Orthodox congregations before the Reform movement welcomed its inclusion. The latter, after all, already had a ceremony that acknowledged women's religious quality: Confirmation. Bat Mitzvah, purists claimed, was redundant. But who could ignore the tide of popular opinion?

Also interesting is Joselit's account of the double-ring ceremony. Although its roots were in non-Jewish 19th century Germany, the ritual was adopted in 1871, after several educated, cultured German-American Jewish brides asked if they could give their grooms a ring. Reluctant to be passive at the altar, they wanted "equal participation."

But whether the examples come from the kitchen (beef-frye, a meat product that resembled bacon) or the wedding (the electric chupa), Joselit's work is alive with amusing anecdotes and telling detail that describe what it means to be Jewish in America.

When the community's leaders "saw only deterioration," writes Joselit, "the folk, by contrast, saw color, liveliness, fun and good-natured sentimentality. When the elite believed consumption and religious ritual to be . . . adversarial, the folk joined them together."

During this holiday season, many Jewish clergy will, no doubt, address the issue of identity versus assimilation.

"Our distinctive characteristics are going," said one rabbi from a pulpit in Chicago. "Intermarriage is rising, and temple attendance is in decline."

That was 1893. Since then Jews have bemoaned the same trends and continue to ask, "Can we survive freedom?" Joselit's response is provocative: "The wonder of it all — and of America — is that the answer remains the same."

Jenna Weissman Joselit will speak on the topic "The Unaffiliated Jew" 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 13, at the Birmingham Temple in Farmington Hills as part of "Colloquium '95."

INVITING IDEAS

Your family will flip over these oatcakes

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Oat cuisine doesn't classify as serious food prepared in grand manner or necessarily topped with an elaborate sauce, but it does classify as a great breakfast comfort food.

Some oatcake "affectionados" believe all proper oatcakes are composed of leavened batter made of oatmeal, flour, milk, water, salt, sugar and yeast. When oatcakes are flipped they almost look like Indian Chapatis — you can stuff them or top them, but they still taste like pancakes, no matter how you flip 'em.

Here are some oaty ideas:

- Grate a hard cheese over the back of an oatcake, then fold over, roll over, or fold into quarters for easy handling.
- Using large oatcakes as a pizza base — add your favorite tomato sauce and shredded cheese (bacon or sausage too).
- Make a clown face out of an oatcake — use chocolate chips or raisins for eyes and mouth, a cherry for the nose, and make a whip cream or yogurt collar. This is fun for children's parties.
- Spread softened chevre cheese over the back of an oatcake, top with a slice of smoked salmon and roll up. This is perfect for even the most elegant brunch.
- Dress up plain oatcakes: add a cheese sauce, fruity chutney, warmed fruit topping, flavored yogurt or shredded coconut. Another option is bacon, mushroom and melted cheese. Top oatcakes with ice cream or frozen yogurt, whipped cream and chocolate chips, peanut butter chips or butterscotch chips, honey or real maple syrup.

Henry Ford, who was progressive in all things, had his personal party chef Ian Willemse making Soybean Oatmeal Pancakes in the 1930s. Long before our local health food stores, Henry Ford saw the possibilities of utilizing soy beans in food as well as the manufacturing of commercial products.

Here are some recipes to try.

Soybean Oatmeal Pancakes Or Waffles

3 egg whites
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup honey (or sugar)
1¾ cups milk
½ cup soybean oil (or melted soy margarine)
¾ cup soybean flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
¾ cup instant rolled oats
1 tablespoon baking soda

Beat the egg whites, salt and honey (or sugar) until foamy. Add the milk and oil and stir a little. Then fold in the flours, rolled oats, and baking soda. Heat a greased skillet to about 350 degrees F. Pour 2-ounce pancakes. Cook until they bubble, turn and brown the other side. Serve with honey or syrup. Yield 3½ dozen, 2-ounce pancakes.

Recipe from "Cooking For Henry" by Ian Willemse and Eleanor Eaton, published by The Doning Company, 1993.

Oat Pancakes

1½ cups rolled oats (not instant)
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
2½ cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ - 1 teaspoon salt
4 large eggs
2 cups buttermilk

In a large saucepan, combine rolled oats with 2½ cups water. Bring to a simmer over medium heat and cook stirring, frequently, for approximately 4-5 minutes. Remove from the heat source and stir the butter or margarine into the hot oatmeal until they are melted.

Sift together the flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, and salt into a large mixing bowl. In another bowl, whisk together the eggs and buttermilk.

Slowly stir in the oatmeal into the egg/milk mixture. Add oatmeal mixture to the dry ingredients — and stir just enough to mix.

Spray a grill, griddle or large frying pan with no-stick cooking spray, (butter or margarine can also be used). Preheat the pan or grill to very hot. Ladle out an eight-inch circle — cook until bubbly, then flip and cook the other side until it is as brown as desired.

Serve with your favorite topping. Yield 8, 8-inch pancakes.

This recipe is based on an old recipe dating back to the 19th century when batter of this type was left overnight to swell — and then rest.

Apple Oatcakes

Ingredients for the night before:
⅓ cup buckwheat flour (you can also use whole wheat)
1 cup all purpose flour
¼ cup rolled oats (not instant)
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1¼ cups buttermilk

Ingredients for the next morning:
2 eggs separated
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
½ cup grated fresh apple (peel can be left on or off)
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda

Place all of the dry ingredients (for the night before) into a large bowl and slowly drizzle the buttermilk in, stirring continually until the batter appears smooth.

Cover the bowl and place in the refrigerator overnight.

The next day, in a glass bowl, beat the egg yolks with the melted butter or margarine. Add the grated apple and cinnamon.

Stir the egg yolk/apple mixture into the flour batter — then add baking soda.

In another glass bowl whisk or beat the egg whites until stiff — when the peaks are produced, gently fold into the batter.

Grease or spray a griddle, frying pan or grill. Heat until medium hot and pour your oatcakes on to the desired size. When one side becomes bubbly, turn over and cook until they are the desired doneness. Serve hot with powdered sugar. Yield 12 large pancakes.

Realtors, friends pitch in to fix house

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Real estate agents and associates in the mortgage, title and insurance business love to sell houses.

That's how they make their living. For many, there's also a genuine affection for helping other people realize their dreams.

For the second year now, a group calling itself Realtors Who Care, affiliated with the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors, has renovated a house for a single mom with children who needed a helping hand.

"It felt wonderful," said Diane Winkelmann, a Realtor associate with Red Carpet Keim Midwest in Farmington and co-chairwoman of the improvement project.

"There was a sense of camaraderie, a sense we were accomplishing something."

Realtors Who Care solicited donations of supplies and cash to get the job done and, just as important, got down to the dirty business of doing much of the work themselves.

They installed a new furnace and water heater, rebuilt the front porch, put up new gutters and downspouts, replaced some doors, painted, landscaped and assembled play equipment.

"This is just tremendous dedication from everybody. Not just talkers, doers," said Al Marshall, marketing director at Great Lakes Title in Livonia and co-chairman of Realtors Who Care. "Every time you fix a house up, everybody benefits."

Lynn Bender, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Preferred in Plymouth, was painting the back of the house.

"We just want to help out wherever we can," she said. "It's going just great. I'm not the handiest person in the world, but I'm learning."

Pat Murphy, an agent with Realty Professionals in Farmington Hills, and Dan Haverty, manager for real estate lending at Dearborn Federal Credit Union, worked together replacing the front door.

"Home ownership is the American dream, right?" Murphy said. "We want to keep it that way for as many people as we can."

"It's continued community development, helping out in a community we do business in," Haverty said. "It's a good way to meet each other, a lot more casual. Basically, it's a whole lot of fun."

"This is what we do – houses," said Pam Assemany, a Realtor with the Michigan Group in Livonia.

"It's so heartwarming to see what happens following this," said Betty Bjarnesen, also a Realtor with the Michigan Group.

"The lady whose house we did last year, her son didn't want his friends to come to the house. He was embarrassed. The night we finished, the boy wanted to bring his friends over. It almost brings tears to your eyes."

Tom Isbell, broker/owner of Red Carpet Keim Midwest, was shoveling dirt into a wheelbarrow to be distributed around the yard.

"I get a lot of pleasure out of helping people," he said. "I do a lot of this through the church and the real estate association. Unless you do it and know the feeling, you don't understand it."

"I think it's important to help people," said Carol Hainline, a Realtor with Century 21 Row in Livonia as she stickered numbers on a new mailbox. "Everyone at some point in time needs some help in their life."

Tammy Sunman, who lives in the three-bedroom ranch in northeast Livonia with four children, works full time and attends Schoolcraft College. She was referred to Realtors Who Care by Livonia Head Start.

"This coincides with everything else in my life – getting off ADC, going to work, going back to school," Sunman said. "I'm very excited. I think it's awesome."

"This isn't a handout," Winkelmann said. "This is a reward. She's been busting her butt."

"You're talking necessities, not luxuries," Marshall said.

Sunman perhaps best summarized the work effort as she applied paint to the side of her house, "We do good work."

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Apparently Michigan Public Act 415 requires certain owners of real estate to file with the local assessor affidavits stating the value of real estate involving certain transactions. Does this apply to real estate transactions and should lawyers involved in other areas be concerned?

A. Public Act 415 was enacted to address the effect of the constitutional amendment limiting property assessment increases. Failure to file the affidavit required by the act results in a $5-per-day penalty.

Real property attorneys can therefore expect to file a transfer affidavit for clients any time property is conveyed by deed or land contract, subject to certain exceptions for conveyances into trust and between spouses.

Estate planning attorneys must review all conveyances into a trust, as well as all testate or intestate distributions to determine if Act 415 is triggered.

Business and corporate attorneys should analyze all transactions involving the sale of shares of stock in a corporation or the transfer of any interest in a partnership or other legal entity to determine if Act 415 applies. "Transfer of ownership" for the purposes of Act 415 encompasses certain stock transfers, long-term leases, and changes in designation of beneficiaries under a trust.

Q. Can you confirm a recent story I heard regarding some ghosts in a condominium and the response of the association in that regard? Did this really happen?

A. I am advised that in a Connecticut condominium, a pair of so-called "ghost hunters" asked a Catholic bishop to conduct an exorcism in a unit at the condominium project.

The residents of the condominium contacted the ghost hunters after experiencing paranormal activity in the unit, including the appearance of two ghosts and an "unseen force."

According to the Bristol Press, the owners promptly held a seance and determined that the unit was haunted by an evil human spirit and two demonic spirits.

The spirits were unleashed because of witchcraft rituals performed by previous tenants, according to the ghost hunter. There was no determination by the association, however, as to whether there had been any violation of the condominium documents, either by the alleged intrusion of the ghosts and/or by the exorcism.

Creative mortgages make dream home within reach

ON MORTGAGES

DAVID C. MULLY

The lowest interest rates in more than 20 years have many homeowners scrambling to refinance higher-rate mortgages. But as important as the low rates have been for reducing monthly payments, they're even more valuable for people looking to buy their first house.

By taking advantage of the current rates, consumers are discovering they can not just afford to buy a house for the first time, but they can buy more house than they ever dreamed possible.

When consumers apply for a house loan, the mortgage company looks at, among other things, income and down payment. According to lending guidelines, the monthly mortgage payment cannot exceed a certain percentage of monthly income. For example, if a couple had a combined yearly income of $34,285, this would work out to a monthly income of approximately $2,857. The maximum monthly mortgage payment, including interest and taxes, could not be more than $800.

When this interest rate was at 10% (which was not too long ago, by the way) the highest mortgage you could acquire would have been $91,116. If you take into account a 20% down payment, this means the most expensive house you could afford would list at $113,895. Not bad, but at today's rates, you can do a lot better.

Mthly Pmnt	$800	$800	$800
Mrtg Amount	$99,378	$108,991	$120,300
Price of House	$124,223	$136,239	$150,375

Let's take a look at three similar scenarios, with the same monthly income, and see the difference that low interest rates can make.

It's quite a dramatic difference. For the same monthly payment that bought you a $113,000 house at 10%, you can now afford a $150,000 house. Now, first-time homebuyers can start in a house of their dreams, instead of spending years building up equity in a house in which they're really not comfortable.

Of course, homeowners who already have substantial equity in their current residences and are looking to move up can now apply that equity toward a much more expensive house than they could have just a few years ago. To see how much house you can truly afford, talk to your local Realtor. Your real estate expert can give you the information you need to make an informed homebuying decision. But don't wait. These low interest rates may not be around for very long. If you're thinking about making a move, there's no better time than the present.

2 Prudential franchises merge to improve service

■ 'The company merger is a key element in our strategic plan of being a major force in the residential real estate marketplace.'

Daniel Stiehl

Two Prudential Real Estate franchises — Prudential Great Lakes Realty and Prudential Stiehl & Associates — have consolidated business activities and will conduct business as one company, Prudential Great Lakes Realty.

Daniel Stiehl will serve as chief executive officer. Jerome Baranski, previously broker/owner of Prudential Great Lakes Realty, will serve as chief operating officer.

"The company merger is a key element in our strategic plan of being a major force in the residential real estate marketplace," Stiehl said. "By combining our resources and office locations, the new company is positioned to offer expanded services to all of our clients."

"The merger will have great impact on the companies' clients and customers," Baranski said.

"We combined not only our internal resources of marketing, training and relocation, but we merged the business and people philosophies of two successful companies. These elements make a strong company stronger," he added.

The merged company is comprised of 215 sales agents and nine sales offices including Bloomfield Hills, Clarkston, Farmington Hills, Rochester Hills, Troy and West Bloomfield.

The Prudential Great Lakes Realty has been in existence since 1958, operating first as Chamberlain Realtors and in 1983 as Merrill Lynch Realty.

The company became part of the Prudential Real Estate Affiliates in 1989 with Prudential's acquisition of the Merrill Lynch Realty business.

The primary marketplace for Prudential Great Lakes is Oakland, western Wayne and northwest Macomb County.

Stiehl has been a residential real estate sales agent since 1979. He founded his agency in 1988 and became a Prudential affiliate in 1989.

The company is a leading broker in new home sales for residential developments in Genessee County and a prominent broker in north Oakland and Livingston counties.

As part of the Prudential family, the company has access to corporate support in the areas of national relocation services, national advertising, certified trainers, agent promotional materials, resort property and new homes marketing support materials.

Duct system improves air quality

Most Houses have conventional duct systems which contribute to indoor air quality problems. They don't heat or cool some parts of the house as well as others, and leak air at the joints. Frequently they are noisy, and offer no protection against potential microbia growth.

To overcome these problems, there' a rigid fiber glass duct system whose consistent high insulating value and minimal air leakage help to deliver warmed or cooled air at desired temperatures, with greater energy efficiency and improved comfort.

The system also absorbs noise, and is cleanable using standard duct-cleaning systems.

Its tough acrylic polymer airstream surface coating is even formulate with an EPA-registered anti-microbial agent for exceptional resistance to microbial growth.

For all the facts, obtain a copy of brochure AHS-210, from the Schuller Product Information Center, P.O. Box 5108, Denver, CO 80217, or call 1-800-654-3103.

Plum Creek offers one-of-a- kind luxury houses

But it's just an academic exercise, a starting point, to give prospects an idea what the Rochester builder can do.

"Houses in Plum Creek basically are one-of-a-kind built homes," Young said. "Really, houses we build in here we design from the ground up. We have a CAD designer and three architects on staff.

"Houses here will start at $350,000 and go up to $750,000 with a mid range of $400,000 to $500,000.

"We're a niche builder. Our typical buyer is someone who usually pays attention to detail more, expects more things in a house," Young said. "We're a smaller company. We do five to 10 houses a year."

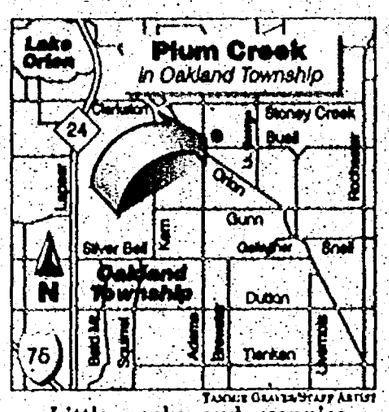

The model at Plum Creek, off Adams just north of Orion Road, has five bedrooms, 4½ baths and four fireplaces. The 3,940-square-foot, story-and-a-half lists for $475,000.

The main floor features a dining room with octagonal ceiling and a step-down family room with fireplace for more formal occasions, plus a kitchen/eating nook/hearth room with fireplace for less formal gatherings.

The first floor master suite has two walk-in closets, separate whirlpool tub and shower, two sink vanities and tray ceiling. A den with fireplace connects to the master.

Young has built a full bath next to the first floor laundry off the three-car garage. A half bath also is on the main floor.

Four bedrooms, each with a walk-in closet and ceiling light, and two full baths are on the second floor.

TAYLOR GRANT/STAFF ARTIST

Little nooks and crannies — window seats between the first and second floors and the main floor and walk-out, an opening over the fireplace in the hearth room for a TV and a planter shelf on the second level at the foyer — abound.

The model has two separate stair entrances, off the foyer and the hearth room, and a bridge at the second floor overlooking the main level.

Exterior materials include brick, limestone and wood siding.

"The house has a lot of recessed lighting," Young said. "That's a favorite of us. It gives more of a clean look.

"Several things we like to recommend. We like to put linen closets in every bath. In the laundry room, we recommend a place to fold things. If you're going to have a formal dining room without a view of the kitchen, we recommend a butler's pantry," Young added.

The model comes equipped with two furnaces, air conditioning, a 75-gallon water heater, and oven, microwave, cooktop and dishwasher.

"Almost everybody talks about quality as they go through," said Conrad Chojnacki, sales manager. "We tell them we don't furnish, we don't decorate. Here, they get to see the actual house. You can't hide anything here."

The typical buyer will have lived in several houses and probably built at least once, Young said.

"Plum Creek has some of the longest lots in the area, a lot of wooded walk-outs. We have a stream running through the area, a nature preserve in the area. There's a lot of wildlife. The topography drops off 70 feet from top to bottom," Young said.

Plum Creek is served by city sewers and a community water well. It's in the Lake Orion Community Schools.

The property tax rate is about $23 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $400,000 condo in the sub would pay about $4,600 the first year.

"We talked to some builders who said they could do what we wanted, but we got the feeling they always felt more comfortable working with their plans," Radford said.

"We sat down with Ruth Young (designer) and Chris and went on from there. It was really, 'Tell us what you want and we'll work it in.'"

The Joneses, longtime Rochester residents, wanted to remain nearby.

"My wife was driving in that area and saw the development," Radford said. "We liked the rolling hills, the woods, the way it was laid out."

The model at Plum Creek, (810) 693-6555, is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Take time to pick a builder committed to value

Now that you have decided you want to buy a new house, do you know how to find a builder who is committed to giving you the best value for your money? When selecting your builder, you'll want to choose him or her as carefully as you will choose the style of your house.

A good place to start your search is the real estate section of the newspaper. Look for the type of house you want and note who builds them. Make a list of the ones you like, then visit the developments. Take a look around, and pick up the promotional material they will have available. Talk to a sales person about the builder's history, the company's mission statement and what its customer service response system is. Remember that most of the information you will pick up will be oriented toward selling the house and will be written by the builder or someone the company employed.

Ask the builder for the addresses of the houses they recently built, and take a drive around the neighborhood. Saturday and Sunday are good days for your tour since you are more likely to catch people at house doing yard work and chores. Introduce yourself and tell them that you are considering purchasing a house from the builder who built their house and that you are collecting random opinions of the builder's quality and customer service. If no one is outside, don't be afraid to knock on their doors. Try to talk with at least three or four homeowners per neighborhood, and don't just rely on the views of one person. The more information you obtain, the better your decision will be.

After you have decided what sort of house you want, another good resource is your local house builders' association. You usually can get a list of builders who meet your criteria from the association. Check the Yellow Pages under HOMES or BUILDING to get the association's number.

Other reference sources include real estate agents and personal references. Please remember that real estate agents typically work for the seller of a property unless you retain them as buyer brokers. Be sure to talk to your friends and relatives and find out the builders they have had good experiences with.

In your search, be thorough, and don't be afraid to ask plenty of questions. Make sure the builders you are considering are fully licensed by the state. Before making your final decision, be sure you know the answers to these questions:

- Is the builder an established member of the community where you want to live?
- Does the builder offer a customer service program, and, if so, what does it cover?
- Can the builder give you references from satisfied customers?

Remember that when you are buying a new house, you are not just buying a structure, but a package of services, and the quality of those services will affect your enjoyment of your house. Do your research thoroughly, and you should have no trouble finding a builder who meets your high standards of quality.

Now is the time to plan for winter

For most homeowners, the chores around a house are never done. Fortunately, for many household maintenance and improvement projects, there also seems to be an appropriate season to undertake them.

As the weather gets crisper outside, attentions should focus on winterizing a house. While many homeowners automatically think of outdoor activities like replacing screens with storm windows and shutting off the water outside, it's even more important to think about winterizing a house on the inside as well.

If time gets short on you this season, consider hiring a professional insulation contractor. These contractors are experts at weatherizing houses and can undertake projects from adding an extra layer of insulation in an attic to insulating sidewalls and crawl spaces.

Insulation contractors can be located in the Yellow Pages, by calling friends and neighbors who may have had work done on their houses or by calling the local contractor's association in your town. An insulation contractor will then come out to your house, conduct an energy audit and suggest ways to winterize your house to make it more comfortable and efficient when the true cold hits.

If your contractor suggests an extra layer of fiber glass insulation to bring your house's attic up to today's energy standards, ask about the highest quality and safest products and systems on the market today. Contractors might mention Insul Safe III Blown-In Fiber Glass Insulation, a pure white material that feels and looks like cotton. It is highly thermally efficient, noncombustible and noncorrosive for the life of your house.

Another unique insulating method on the market today is the Blown-In Blanket System or B.I.B.S. A B.I.B.S. is ideal for insulating sidewalls in a house you are constructing or renovating. It involves applying a netting to the wall cavity, and mixing a small amount of adhesive into a blown-in insulation, which helps the material completely fill the cavity, even around pipes and wires.

Besides insulating, an insulation contractor can handle any number of winterizing projects including:

Caulking

One of the best means for sealing a house against drafts. Caulking can be applied to do the most thorough job around stationary parts of window and door frames, around wall and roof vents, skylightsand chimneys and where plumbing or electric wiring enters your house.

Weatherstripping

Drafty windows rob heat from houses. One of the most effective means for preventing this is sealing them with weatherstripping. This can involve channel stripping, which is most popular for double-hung windows, foam-filled or hollow vinyl tubing. Drafty doors can cause as much heat loss as several drafty windows. Insulation contractors can handle this project as well. The process normally involves sealing the sides and tops of the door and then sealing the bottom. Foam-edged wooden strips are the most popular forms of weatherstripping products available today.

Preparing Heating Systems for Winter

Inspect and service your system annually for safety and efficiency reasons. Some insulation contractors also specialize in this; otherwise, call a qualified heating technician. An inspection should include: checking for air leaks, cleaning and checking the filter system, combustion air blower and burner motor, examining the firing system, and adjusting the draft regulator.

For more information on hiring an insulation contractor or on installing blown-in insulation, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 or call 1-800-782-8777.

Websites cater to women users

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

A few months ago I wrote a column dealing with Internet sites of interest to women and invited women users to e-mail their favorite sites to be shared with others.

Actually only two persons did that, but I since have come across other sites that women surfers will want to check out.

Carol Dunitz, a writer from Ann Arbor, believes she might be the first to publish a romance novel on the Internet. Surfers and romance enthusiasts can find the first two chapters of "Already Spoken For" at http://lastword.com.

"Already Spoken For" is set in metropolitan Detroit. Readers have the opportunity to visit a number of landmark places there including historic Greenfield Village, the Detroit Zoo, and The Whitney, the residence built by turn-of-the-century lumber baron David Whitney. A scene in the first chapter occurs on Farmington Road in Livonia.

Dunitz has her doctorate in speech communication, theater and journalism. She writes, researches and produces speeches, scripts and promotional literature for business. She also is writing the music, script and lyrics for a musical stage play. "Already Spoken For" is available on computer disk for $5.59 plus postage, handling, and sales tax. Information on ordering the book is at Dunitz' Website as well as the first two chapters for on-line reading.

Another suggestion for women surfers came from Judith Weiss, who is an information specialist with Tradewave Galaxy. Weiss is involved with an organization called Assault Prevention Information Network (APIN) and has developed a website accessible through Galaxy.

To learn about APIN go to http://galaxy.tradewave.com, click on the "guest editors" link, scroll down to the ensuing list of guest editors until you come to Judith Weiss, and click on Assault Prevention Information Network. The APIN site has information about self-defense, domestic and workplace violence, martial arts, conflict resolution, and child safety.

I found interesting the information she provided on how to protect your child, real life self-defense stories, how to evaluate a self-defense course, and self-defense myths. Weiss' page has been chosen by the Feminist Majority for inclusion in its directory and a lot of feminist pages on the Internet link to Weiss' page.

The Feminist Majority Foundation has a World Wide Web site which is a pretty complete package at http:/www.feminist.org/textmenu.html. The site offers extensive background information on all aspects of feminist affairs and issues, including a weekly news summary focusing on U.S. events.

The site also has a Media Response Service which encourages women to send e-mail to Internet-connected media outlets. You will find here convenient links to a variety of media outlets, from the major television networks to newspapers and wire services to organizations which act as media critics.

When you arrive at the Feminist Majority site, you will find links to Feminist News, Feminist Internet Gateway, Feminist Publications, Feminist University Networks, and 911 For Women. Follow the links and you will find information about organizations for women, hotlines, shelters, career center, and more.

Another site I've learned about is Femina which can be visited at http:/www.femina.com. This site claims to be the first friendly and searchable database of links to information online relevant to women and girls. There are more than 500 links, and it's growing daily. This site sees itself as the "Yahoo" for women and girls, offering many links to specific sites of interest to women under such broad categories as art, business, computers, culture, education, entertainment, feminists, girls, health, etc.

Women's resources and more are offered at Cybergrrl Webstation at http:cybergrrl.com. Here you will find more online resources for women, a collection of cool links, and a lighter approach. Some of the topic areas include SafetyNet, Biz-Line, Health-Wise, Info-Zone, and Family-Life.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by e-mail with emory@oeonline.com or fax number 591-7279. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial (313)591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" and at "Key:" prompt type GL6NY2. Past columns may be accessed online at http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)emoryd/archive.html.

Seminar outlines reforms in unemployment laws

"Unemployment Insurance — What's New for 1996" will be the topic of a seminar scheduled Wednesday, Oct. 18 at the Michigan State University Management Education Center, 811 W. Square Lake Road, Troy.

This year's conference emphasizes several areas, including legislative reforms in the Michigan unemployment law. The recently passed legislation will bring changes to the unemployment insurance system in 1996-1997.

Von Logan, deputy director of financial and management services, MESC, will release his annual report at the conference.

During lunch, F. Robert Edwards, director of MESC, will explain his ideas of a reorganization of the MESC. This reorganization would flatten the structure of the agency.

At the workshop sessions, unemployment insurance experts will teach how to control costs by learning the basics of the unemployment insurance system, how to succeed at referee and MESC Board of Review hearings, and the basics of the employment law.

The seminar is sponsored by the Employers Unemployment Compensation Council, 23815 Northwestern Highway, Southfield. Phone registrations require payment on or before the conference date. Cancellations prior to Oct. 18 will be issued a full refund.

Cost is $50 for EUCC members; or $125 for non members. For additional information, call Michelle Conley, executive assistant, at (810) 354-7916.

Women fuel business growth - editor

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Lynn Povich knows a thing or two about working women. Her position as editor in chief of Working Woman magazine guarantees that.

"There's certainly still a glass ceiling in place," Povich told about 400 people at a Women's Economic Club luncheon last Thursday at the Westin Hotel in Detroit's Renaissance Center. Some industries, however, are making way for bright, talented women.

Povich, who previously worked at Newsweek for 25 years, has been at Working Woman about 4½ years. The magazine, with 750,000 circulation, deals with a variety of concerns of professional women.

Next year, the magazine will mark its 20th anniversary. Povich, who is the sister of TV's Maury Povich, cited several changes in its coverage in recent years.

There's more coverage of management issues and of personal finance. "Women are vitally interested in money," Povich said. Women live longer, earn less and are often not aggressive enough about investments.

Coverage of small businesses has increased. Some women are leaving large corporations to begin their own businesses or to work for smaller businesses with greater opportunities.

"That's where the jobs have been created and women have fueled the small business growth," she told her audience.

The publication has profiled the highest-paid corporate women and other leaders. "Working Woman is the only magazine to cover women business owners in depth," Povich said, citing Marian Ilitch of Little Caesars as one of the top women business owners.

There's been improvement for women, with 81 percent of Fortune 500 businesses having at least one woman on the board of directors, she said. Globalization means that well-trained, well-educated women in the work force are a secret weapon. Competitors such as Japan have no equivalent, and even European women lag behind their American counterparts in professional success, she said.

Men have a head start in development of computers. "But software in the world of the Internet is a different thing." Women need to acquire those skills, Povich said, particularly women who are disadvantaged.

She discussed work/family issues and women's management style. Women often have the ability to build consensus and to create a more collegial workplace, in part because of their experiences as mothers, said Povich, a wife and mother of two.

"It's not easy as managers to deal with flexibility." Such flexibility, however, helps employers attract and retain employees.

"We like to work on teams in projects. We all know that smarts only go so far." There's still a long way to go in solving work/family problems.

"So we still need to solve those problems for those of us now and for our daughters and sons," Povich said.

She took questions from the audience on a variety of topics, from female-to-female mentoring and ways in which Working Woman is family-friendly as an employer. One person wanted to know why so many celebrities grace the magazine covers; the economic realities of newsstand sales make that so, Povich said.

Reaction to Povich's speech was positive. "I thought she was so succinct in her definition of the key elements," said Eileen Sinclair White of Warren, who grew up in Garden City. White is associate director of marketing and public relations for Youtheatre at the Music Hall Center.

"As somebody starting my own business, it was encouraging to hear the success stories," said Christine Ilas of Northville Township, who does writing and design work. Ilas, former executive director of the Plymouth Community Arts Council, was pleased to hear women's issues addressed as issues for all.

"I think that's one of the most important things she said."

Editor in chief: Lynn Povich has made a number of changes during her tenure at Working Woman magazine. She recently spoke to the Women's Economic Club on "What Women Want Now: Key Issues in the Next Decade."

Hudson's opens gift showroom

On Friday, Oct. 13, Hudson's Corporate Gifts & Incentives division will debut its first showroom on the lower level of Hudson's Oakland.

The department will be located in the store's service area and will display a number of items available through the Gifts & Incentives program. In the past, many of these items were only available for viewing through catalogs.

The program was designed to make gift giving easy, especially in the business environment. There is no minimum number of orders required for participation in this service, which allows recipients to choose gifts that reflect their individual lifestyle. Offerings include everything from sporting goods to computers, accessories to yard equipment.

A merchandise specialist will be available in the showroom to meet individually with clients to assist them in developing a program that will fulfill their gift-giving needs. Clients may receive suggestions for specific gift purchases, incentive program awards or information on opportunities for recipients to select their own gifts.

Hudson's Corporate Gifts & Incentives program offers companies and individuals a series of gift selector catalogs that they may present to individuals for gift selection. The catalogs describe the merchandise options available to the recipient within the price range selected by the client. Catalogs are established in nine price points — $25, $50, $75, $100, $200, $300, $500, $750 and $1,000.

The showroom will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and by appointment. Appointments may be made by calling (810) 597-2260.

Corporate Gifts & Incentives offices may be reached by calling 1-800-655-5785 or by stopping by any Hudson's location. Hudson's was the first retailer to offer this type of mail-order program which delivers throughout the contiguous United States.

Investing requires study

TOM HOGAN

Many people put their money into investments with little thought or knowledge of what type of financial instrument their money is going into.

The first step in investing money is to acquire information about financial instruments that are available. This can be done by going to the library and obtaining an appropriate book, or attending a class or a seminar that is offered by financial institutions or financial advisers.

You also need to have balance in your cash flow between expenses and the need to save money for the future. For many people, saving 10 percent annually for retirement and living on 90 percent of what they earn is about right for the purpose of having balance between what is needed to live on and saving enough for the future.

If an individual is close to retirement with little in savings and investments, then they will have less time to accumulate adequate savings for retirement. Therefore, savings will have to be accumulated at a much faster pace, because there is less time to acquire the needed nest egg.

On the other hand, if you start the process at a very young age, you will not have to save as much yearly, because your assets will have longer to compound and grow.

A 25-year-old saving $2,000 per year, growing at 8 percent annually, will accumulate $518,113 by age 65. By contrast, a 45-year-old would have to save $12,228 annually to accumulate approximately the same amount by age 65.

People tend to overlook the fact that they need to maintain proper cash reserves to weather the financial storms that inevitably come along when you least expect them. A good rule of thumb is to have at least 90 to 180 days cost-of-living set aside in your savings account to handle financial emergencies. In addition, it is a good idea to have cash set aside for near-term purchases that need to be made over and above your normal budget. This avoids unnecessary use of credit cards and payment of the high finance charges.

Having adequate cash reserves also means that valuable investments will not have to be liquidated at an inopportune time in order to meet your needs. With proper cash management, one can stay fully invested long-term to maximize returns on investments.

Diversification is one of the most important aspects when investing. Two recent events clearly illustrate the benefits of diversification. On Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987, the Dow dropped in excess of 20 percent in one day. During the late summer of 1990, Iraq invaded Kuwait and it resulted in the fear of oil supplies being cut off. This contributed to stock markets worldwide taking a significant drop. If you were fully invested in stocks during both of these events, you would have felt the full force of the drop in the financial markets.

Through diversification into various securities, such as bonds and cash equivalents, you would have at least somewhat softened the blow, because not all of your money would have been in stocks.

You can also enhance your diversification by investing some of your money overseas. Since international financial markets can react differently than U.S. markets, a portion of your assets diversified overseas can enhance return while at the same time reducing volatility. These are just a few of the things that can be done to reduce the risk in your investment portfolio through diversification.

Invest prudently by acquiring knowledge, balance expenses and savings, maintain adequate cash reserves, and diversify your investment portfolio.

In a future article, we will discuss how asset allocation can help to diversify an investment portfolio to enhance return and reduce risk.

Tom Hogan is a former president of the southeastern Michigan chapter of the International Association for Financial Planning. He owns HFA Planning Corp. in Livonia.

Politics undermines action

STEWART L. TUBBS

Two items caught my attention recently. First, Newt Gingrich complained bitterly that those who were trying to smear him were doing so strictly out of political motivation. Second, in the recent Sean Connery movie "Just Cause," one of the main characters complains that a person from his community who tries to better himself by going to college is pulled back down into the barrel with the rest.

On a more personal level, each of us has undoubtedly been on the receiving end of personal criticisms or even attacks in a job situation. In fact, a recent article in the Journal of Accountancy reported the results of a national survey showing that "office politics" was the single greatest source of stress — more stressful than too many assignments, lack of job security, time pressures, stalled careers, and even frequent interruptions.

The question arises as to why this phenomenon exists. In large part, it exists due to people's assumption of what is called a "zero sum" condition. In this situation, if you get a larger piece of pie, it leaves less for the rest. When all the pieces are gone, the sum of what's left is zero. This is referred to by Stephen Covey as "the scarcity mentality."

When this point of view exists, it fosters antagonism between and among employees. Therefore, the opportunity and the temptation for political back-stabbing is rampant. In fact, your best strategy is to keep all others from getting ahead by making them look bad every time you get the chance. In a case such as the example in the movie, the person who tries to better himself or herself by going to college is threatening to others who have not achieved. They try to keep him from getting ahead by attacking him. The effect is to reduce achievements in the entire community and to perpetuate its impoverished condition.

However, a very different point of view is called the "non zero sum" condition, or the "abundance mentality." In this situation, you find ways to create a bigger pie so that if one person takes a larger piece, there is still enough left for others.

In business, for example, there is often tension between labor and management. Management always wants workers to be more productive, which is defined as increasing the ratio of output over input. Workers, on the other hand, always want to be better compensated, and find it astonishing when they see the large salaries of top executives.

How can this be resolved?

Recently, U.S. companies have adopted several practices that offer some help. First, with team-oriented employee involvement programs, employees help participate in finding ways to reduce costs and increase profits. This results in increased productivity. In effect, these activities enlarge the pie.

A good example of this is American Airlines. Through its employee suggestions, it decided to eliminate the seldom eaten olives from salads served in the first-class section. This alone saved $40,000. Overall, American Airlines has saved over $180 million because of employees' ideas.

Second, companies have been offering profit-sharing bonuses, thus rewarding employees for their efforts to increase productivity. When the company does better, everybody wins!

It seems that every organization could potentially benefit from trying to encourage an "abundance mentality." Even families and communities could practice more of this.

Politics in business is often defined as the activities of a subgroup that achieve the objective of the subgroup at the expense of the larger organization. On the other hand, organizations that reward activities which contribute to the success of the entire organization, as with profit-sharing bonuses, are more likely to see a reduction in "politics" and an increase in achievement.

Imagine what the world might be like if each of us in our daily lives decided to practice more of an abundance mentality and less of a scarcity mentality.

Newsletter targets area small business

Small businesses now have another avenue to reach out to potential markets through Independent Concepts, a quarterly newsletter published in Canton for distribution throughout the metro area.

"Many small companies couldn't afford to put out an independent newsletter — there's no time or not enough information to fill on a regular basis," said Carol Heminger, publisher of Independent Concepts.

"This idea just came to me one day — a cooperative newsletter — you can buy as much or as little space as necessary."

Heminger's small production company (10 on staff) has produced employee newsletters and promotional pieces for several years out of offices on North Lilley Road.

Now the focus has shifted to Independent Concepts, circulated to 3,000 small businesses in the Detroit area. The first quarterly issue debuted this past summer.

"We've had a phenomenal response," Heminger said. "Our goal is to eventually have between 30 and 40 zoned editions of each issue. We are currently in seven areas. We distribute to businesses free of charge. The fall edition is in production now and we're two-thirds sold for winter."

The idea behind the newsletter is to create a communications link between local businesses. In the first issue, a certified nurse midwife on staff at the Plymouth Health Center writes a column about pregnancy and new mother in the workplace issues.

An architect from Canton writes about selecting the right architect for a project. Other articles center on employee automotive purchase programs, tax reform, and keeping employees injury-free. Clients pay for publication of their articles based on column size and placement in the newsletter — with top prices for the front page.

The newsletter premiered in Plymouth and Canton in the summer. An October issue will begin publication in Ann Arbor and Livonia. In the winter, Westland, Northville, Novi and Wixom will be added. Farmington and Farmington Hills will premiere next spring.

"Every business has information that would help other businesses do business better. This is especially true of service-oriented businesses where the information a business possesses can be of crucial importance to its clients," said Heminger.

Participating businesses can pick the target publication area and the type of advertising, from display ads to feature articles, that's best for them.

"Since we handle the production and distribution, and even the writing if they want, it can be a very appealing option for even the busiest business owner."

BY CATHERINE M. PACINI
SPECIAL WRITER

Approximately 90 percent of all businesses in the U.S. are family owned, generating an estimated 50 percent of the gross national product and 50 percent of the total payroll in this country, according to Robert Kleiman, associate professor of finance at Oakland University's School of Business Administration.

The new Center for Family Business sponsored by Oakland University and eight corporate partners is devoted to providing educational and financial services for the survival of the family business. Kleiman, the center's director, said less than 30 percent of family businesses ever make the transition to a second generation and less than half of those will be transferred to a third generation.

"The top three problems facing family businesses are succession, inter-family dynamics, and estate planning," said Kleiman. "Our program is primarily oriented toward the established, $2 (million)-$3 million, family controlled enterprise. We are not attempting to duplicate the efforts of other institutions like Wayne State University or Walsh College. They have small business development centers that focus on start-up entities."

The Center for Family Business provides a variety of educational and informational services to family business owners and their advisers, as well as create access to resources to serve the needs of the principals of family business. With a $500 membership, businesses will be offered information on issues such as: personal financial planning, strategic planning, employment practices, family business relationships, government regulation updates, and tax law changes. Meetings and seminars will include topics such as: succession, valuation, estate planning and financing. Private counseling and specific family plans will require an additional fee.

Mitch Newman, of G-M Underwriters Agency in Rochester, attended the opening reception. He said his concerns "deal with passing this business to the next generation, or, if something happened to me suddenly and the business went to my wife and children, the tax ramifications."

Bernie Cipa of TCT Stainless Steel Service Center in Sterling Heights said, "In a family business, you're working with people that you've grown up with and love, but in a business situation, that can sometimes be difficult. Having this kind of center that can offer educational programs, including sibling rivalry, would be very helpful."

Corporate sponsors of the new center are: Derderian, Kann, Seyferth & Salucci, P.C., accounting services, Troy; Comerica Inc., commercial banking, Birmingham; Great Lakes Strategies, L.L.C., employee benefits, Birmingham; Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., life insurance, Farmington Hills; Meadowbrook Insurance Group, property and casualty insurer, Southfield; Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc., money management, Dearborn; Pepper Hamilton & Scheetz, legal services, Detroit; and Seidman & Co., investment banking, Ann Arbor.

In the forefront: The major problems facing family businesses are succession, inter-family dynamics, and estate planning, says Robert Kleiman, Center for Family Business director.

"Sponsors will assist in developing appropriate content and programming. They have been carefully chosen based upon their expertise in the established family business market. We have taken people from a wide variety of disciplines among the sponsor list," said Kleiman.

The Center for Family Business is one of Oakland University's initiatives related to public-private partnerships. The university has been engaged in other outreach activities with private industries.
