New Norwayne project proposed

City officials say they are hopeful that newly proposed development in the Norwayne area could spur a neighborhood rebirth. Norwayne is roughly bounded by Palmer Road to the north, Merriman to the east, Glenwood to the south and Wildwood to the west.

Westland's aging Norwayne area, stagnant for two decades in residential development, has been proposed for a new apartment complex by investors who are seeking tax breaks from the Westland City Council.

Some council members say the proposal for a four-building, 60-apartment complex, southwest of Palmer and Merriman, could help to revitalize a neighborhood where residents complain of being neglected.

Other council members say they believe they can support the project, but they want to study the financial implications of the tax breaks before they give sweeping approval to the plan.

The development would offer low-rent and government-assisted housing for low-income families. Four brick buildings would be built to house three-bedroom apartments up to 1,290 square feet in size.

The complex would be built on a 5.5-acre site of the now-demolished, former Norris School.

"I'm thrilled at this," Councilman David Cox said during Monday's council meeting. "I think it's an excellent project."

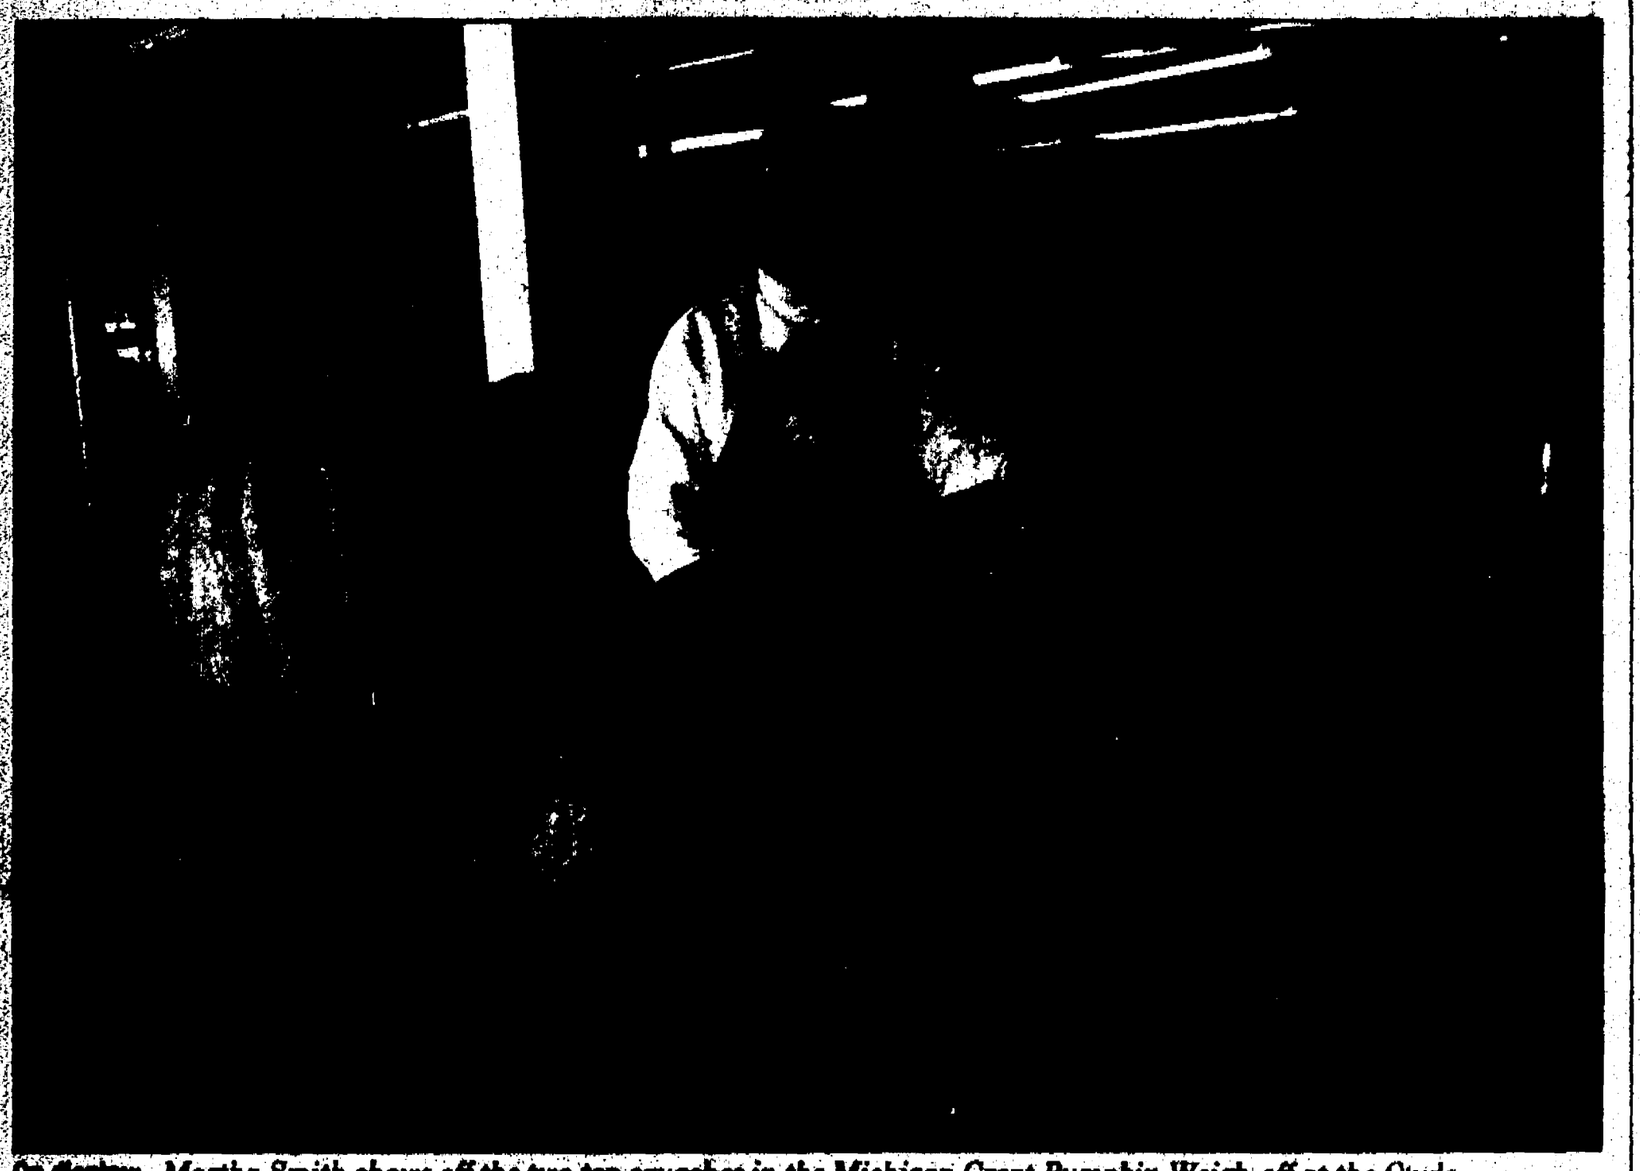

The proposal comes from the Norris Limited Dividend Housing Partnership, which has financial backing from several sources.

General partner Kathy Makino has a 51-percent interest in the project, with the remaining 49 percent coming from three of Westland's top-ranking fire officials: Fire Chief Michael Reddy and Assistant Chiefs George Riley and Patrick Harder.

To avoid perceptions of impropriety, the fire officials are having

County says odors no health threat

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Contrary to some residents' fears, smokestack emissions from the Textron Automotive Interiors plant on Newburgh near Palmer pose no health threats to the neighborhood, county officials said Tuesday night.

But several residents of the Curtis Woods subdivision refuse to accept the findings and say strong odors are making them ill.

Air-quality studies at Textron, in the surrounding neighborhood and in the nearby Cherry Hill industrial park found no cause for alarm, said Kay Bedenis, director of enforcement for the Wayne County Department of the Environment, air quality management division.

"These results do not show a problem with the air quality in the neighborhood," Bedenis said during a public meeting attended by about 30 people at Westland City Hall.

At the Textron plant in particular, odor concentrations in the smokestacks "are significantly below" any potentially harmful levels, she said.

"We are unable to verify any of the odor complaints that are attributed to Textron," Bedenis said. "We have been going to the area actively looking to find a problem."

George Riley, assistant Westland fire chief, told residents that some strong odors reported in recent months have been traced to other sources.

One odor that blanketed part of Westland last summer stemmed from a landfill at I-275 and Hannan Road, where foul-smelling compost was buried with approval of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Riley said.

Gas leak forces business evacuation

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A natural gas leak Monday evening forced the temporary closing of Inkster Road near Joy and prompted the evacuation of several businesses near the intersection, a Westland fire official said.

Fortunately no explosion occurred when a contractor working on a water main accidentally struck a gas line about 6:15 p.m., said George Riley, assistant Westland fire chief.

But the incident proved to be costly for the Copper Door, a bar on the southwest corner of Inkster and Joy where more than 200 members of a Harley-Davidson motorcycle club had planned a meeting.

"We had to stay closed down all night," said bartender Kim James. "We lost a lot of money. That's a big night for us.

"Our bar was filled up with gas," she said. "You could smell gas all over."

The motorcycle club had planned to have its monthly meeting in the downstairs level of the bar.

The Copper Door also lost the upper-level business of its typical Monday night crowd, James said.

The gas leak also proved briefly to be a hassle for Inkster Road motorists.

A portion of Inkster just south of Joy Road was temporarily closed until investigators could be certain that the area was safe, Riley said.

Any natural gas line rupture brings the potential for an explosion, he said.

Both Consumers Power and MichCon workers were on the scene, but the damaged 2-inch gas line was found to be one of Consumers Power's lines, Riley said.

"It was fairly quickly handled," he said.

In fact, workers left the scene about 8 p.m., less than two hours after the rupture occurred, Riley said.

Dearborn Heights firefighters also came to the scene, prepared to assist if the Westland Fire Department needed help during an emergency, Riley said.

The area had returned to normal the following day, with the Copper Door open again for business, James said.

Neighbors upset at store's addition

BY DARRELL CLEM

A Westland furniture store, under fire from neighbors and city officials alike, has been ordered to stop selling merchandise out of a new building addition.

Art Van Furniture's decision to use the new addition at its 8300 N. Wayne Road store before receiving a city occupancy certificate has prompted threats of a lawsuit from the Westland City Council.

The company on Monday was issued a violation ordering it not to use the new addition in the rear of the store, city building director Robert Frits said.

On Tuesday, company spokesman Berl Falbaum called the problem "an oversight" and said Art Van will move swiftly to obtain the proper permits. He said the company wouldn't purposely ignore proper procedures.

In another development, residents who live in a neighborhood behind Art Van implored the City Council Monday night to force the company to improve the landscaping that borders their properties.

"This is our back yard," Marina Court resident Danny Cook said. "Do not allow Art Van to show their arrogance and disdain for ordinances."

A landscaping berm that was supposed to shield Art Van from the neighborhood wasn't properly installed, City Council members said.

"To me, it looks like a sandpile was tossed together in a hurry," council President Thomas Brown said, adding later, "They have not in any way

Pipe bomb try nets 10-year sentence

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland man has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for trying to have his estranged girlfriend blown up with a pipe bomb in 1993, U.S. Attorney Saul A. Green announced.

William Rose Jr., 21, received the maximum statutory sentence in a decision handed down by U.S. District Judge Lawrence Zatkoff.

The sentencing came after Rose pleaded guilty to the offense on Aug. 2.

Authorities have accused Rose of being involved "in an abusive relationship in which he beat his girlfriend, shaved off her hair for disobeying him, and burned her flesh with cigarettes," assistant U.S. attorney Kenneth R. Chadwell said.

After the Wayne girlfriend reported her problems to the Wayne Police Department, Rose retaliated by getting another defendant, Deandre Almond, to blow up the house where the woman lived with her grandmother, Chadwell said.

Almond previously pleaded guilty to possession of a destructive device and was sentenced on July 11 to five years in prison.

Almond was given pipe bombs and Molotov cocktails on Nov. 9, 1993, and told to blow up the house, but he only threw one pipe bomb in the house, Chadwell said.

No one was injured in the bombing, but Chadwell said the house was seriously damaged.

"If he had thrown everything that he had in that house, there wouldn't have been anything left," Chadwell said Tuesday.

Rose didn't pay Almond to blow up the house, Chadwell said during a telephone interview.

"It was more of a situation of intimidation," he said.

Rose cannot receive parole on his 10-year sentence on a charge of procuring and inducing the possession of a destructive device.

Green commended the Wayne Police Department and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for an investigation leading to Rose's arrest.

Another problem was linked to a water odor problem at Ford Motor Co. facilities in Wayne.

Several citizens refused to accept the findings. One resident, Jerry McGue, called the county's report "a diversionary tactic" and said odors in his neighborhood sometimes burn his nasal membranes.

When odors have been reported to county officials, residents said, the problem has often subsided before officials arrive in the neighborhood to conduct tests.

McGue continued to demand that Textron install scrubbers on its smokestacks.

But, Bedenis said, "We don't have a basis upon which to make a requirement for a scrubber."

Westland resident Cheryl Graunstadt suggested that federal officials should be called in to investigate.

■ 'We are unable to verify any of the odor complaints that are attributed to Textron.'
Kay Bedenis

State Rep. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, also said she would like to see the state conduct independent tests.

Riley said the investigation won't be closed and that reports of odors will continue to be investigated.

Textron officials who attended Tuesday's meeting said they will continue to cooperate with investigators.

Judge rejects new trial in molesting conviction

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

■ Drain sentenced Falkiewicz in August to eight to 20 years in prison on two counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct. The defendant could have received a maximum sentence of life in prison.

A former Westland man, convicted of sexually molesting his stepdaughter and his niece, has lost his bid for a new trial in Detroit Recorder's Court.

Scott Alan Falkiewicz, 34, had asked Recorder's Court Judge Gershwin Drain for a retrial after being convicted and sentenced in August on multiple counts of criminal sexual conduct.

In a decision announced Friday, Drain not only denied that motion, but also refused to give Falkiewicz a new sentencing. The judge also rejected a motion for a bond reduction pending Falkiewicz's bid to the Michigan Court of Appeals for a new trial.

Falkiewicz was convicted of molesting the victims, ages 10 and 11, between August 1993 and early April 1994. The sexual assaults occurred at the defendant's former Westland residence.

The stepdaughter lived at the house at the time, and the niece was a frequent visitor, Westland police Sgt. Michael Terry has said.

Drain sentenced Falkiewicz in August to eight to 20 years in prison on two counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct. The defendant could have received a maximum sentence of life in prison.

The judge also sentenced Falkiewicz to five to 15 years in prison on five counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct, which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison.

The outcome of the bench trial prompted Falkiewicz's attorney to file motions on several issues, according to assistant Wayne County prosecutor David McClorey.

Falkiewicz wanted a new trial on the basis of allegations that Drain was wrong in rendering his verdict, based on the facts of the case, McClorey said.

The defendant also sought a new sentencing on the grounds that the judge didn't use the proper sentencing guidelines, McClorey said.

McClorey also was accused in court of violating an agreement that he made with the defense. He said he had agreed not to raise questions in the courtroom about sexual molestings that may have occurred outside of Westland.

McClorey conceded that he raised questions in court about whether Falkiewicz took his stepdaughter and his niece to other cities, but he said he never asked whether they had been molested in those locations.

In the end, Drain decided Friday that McClorey didn't overstep his boundaries or violate any agreement.

Slow down reform train, local educators urge

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

Some reforms recently recommended by the Michigan State Board of Education may be good for public education. Other reforms may be bad.

But no debate is taking place to separate the wheat from the chaff, said Livonia Public Schools Superintendent Ken Watson Monday in urging the state to slow down its push to reform public education.

"The state ignores stakeholders in education in its rush to change," Watson said, whose district includes the northern section of Westland.

"There have been no public hearings. We are unwilling to accept change based on political decisions without input from parents, educators and school boards. We're not opposed to change, but opposed to changes taking place without input of those who have a stake in education. This is being pushed through rapidly without an opportunity for dialog."

The Livonia school board Monday unanimously voted to oppose adoption of the school code reform proposals until all stakeholders have the chance to study them.

The trustees also urged parents, school workers and school groups to lobby lawmakers to halt the educational reform train until such a dialog takes place.

"Our lawmakers should not be steamrolled into hasty action by the board and the governor," Watson said.

Saying families, children and educators will profit as a result, the state Board of Education Aug. 16 adopted a resolution recommending the Legislature reform Michigan's system of public education. Lawmakers are planning to discuss the recommendations this month and next.

The state board believes that charter schools and marketplace competition will improve education. The marketplace, it believes, will weed out bad schools and let good ones survive.

Michigan's public schools, said state board president Clark Durant, are now defined by attendance boundaries and administrative bureaucracy — not by their mission of teaching children to learn.

The state, not parents and teachers, determines curriculum and controls schools, Durant said..

The proposed reforms, he said, would ensure that public schools focus on their mission. They would give parents a wide array of public school choices — their local district, neighboring districts, public school academies, new districts and empowered schools.

The proposed reforms would reduce 300 pages of school code laws enacted since 1976 to an 80-page document, a cut so immense that no one at this point really knows what they contain and how public education will be affected, Watson said.

"This is so large in scope, our attorneys have not yet sorted through all of this," Watson said.

In a one-hour meeting Friday in Westland, representatives of area districts lashed out at one major part of the proposed reforms, schools-of-choice.

A proposed state Senate bill that would broaden the concept of schools-of-choice by allowing students to cross district boundaries is being strongly opposed by the 10-district Michigan Association for Improved School Legislation (MAISL). MAISL includes Wayne-Westland, Livonia, Garden City, Redford Union, Inkster, Dearborn, Romulus, Northville, Taylor and Westwood.

"We agreed that for Southeast Michigan, this is public policy where there are no winners," Watson said.

Trustee Frank Kokenakes saw the Livonia district and taxpayers gaining little from schools-of-choice.

District property owners paid extra taxes to repair and update schools and to put the latest in technology into all schools, he said.

"Parents wanting to transfer their child here would get the benefits of the generosity of our taxpayers without having to pay themselves," Kokenakes said. "Also, they'll not have the financial incentive to pass millages in their old community."

Educators fear the changes are being proposed by persons who have no experience either with school boards or with public education.

"It's a political response, and we're dealing with millions of young people in this state," Watson said. "We'll be holding our kids hostage to a political philosophy."

The reforms also include eliminating the state's mandated core curriculum and substituting, instead, a model one.

"This move is counter to the public demand for positive education reform which will better prepare all children for the challenges they face after graduation," said Julius Maddox, president of the Michigan Education Association, which has also urged parents statewide to demand hearings on the proposed reforms.

"We suggest parents take time to tell their legislators that they were right when they voted for education reform two short years ago," Maddox said.

"Every child has a right to attend an accredited school that maintains standards, such as certified teachers, and offers an academic core curriculum for all students."

Library gets state check, money for reading room

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland's public library received a huge boost Monday as the state came through on its promise to give $1,375,000 to the project.

"The check's not in the mail. It's here," Mayor Robert Thomas said, unveiling it Monday night during a Westland City Council meeting.

City officials credited the late state Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, with securing the $1.3 million grant, and the library has been named in his honor.

Faust died at age 65 in January, one month after he had a triple bypass heart operation.

Thomas unveiled the state check on the same night that the Friends of Sen. Faust committee gave an $11,539.80 check for a library reading room that will be equipped with a fireplace.

Friends member and Westland City Council liaison Joseph Benyo presented the check to library board members, the City Council and the mayor "in an effort to encourage others who would like to donate."

Benyo also unveiled some blue book marks that contain some biographical information of Faust, underneath a drawing his face. Benyo said 3,500 of the markers will be available.

The latest developments came as construction of the library moves forward on the west side of Central City Parkway, between Ford Road and Warren.

"The steel is up, and the blocks are going up," Benyo noted Monday.

The library is expected to open in little more than a year.

Library board Chairwoman Marjorie Kay Daniels said Faust would be proud of the project.

"I'm sure he would be proud to see this library going up," she said.

Man arrested in break-ins

A good description of a vehicle from a witness led to the arrest of a 22-year-old Westland man suspected of breaking into numerous houses in Westland, Livonia and Dearborn Heights.

Arron Feldhofer was arraigned Monday before Livonia District Judge Robert Brzezinski on a charge of second-degree home invasion. Bond was set at $100,000.

If convicted, his sentence could be doubled because of two prior convictions, said Livonia Police Lt. Peter Kunst.

Redford Township police arrested Feldhofer at 9:15 p.m. Saturday after Livonia police broadcast a description similar to his vehicle, a white compact pickup truck with a cap and logo on the door.

At 8:30 p.m. Saturday, a resident of Lamont in Livonia called Livonia police to report a break-in in progress on that street. The resident gave a description of the pickup.

When police arrived they found the front door had been forced in and all upstairs rooms ransacked.

Police broadcast a description of the pickup. Redford police stopped Feldhofer's vehicle on Cathedral east of Inkster and arrested the driver without incident.

"With the arrest, we believe we have cleared up 14 home B & Es (breaking and entering) in the sound end of Livonia, and Westland and Dearborn Heights police believe they have cleared up about eight," Kunst said.

Norwayne wants gangs stopped

As fear of crime mounts in the city's Norwayne neighborhood, another resident pleaded Monday for help from the Westland City Council.

Dixie McNa, the latest Norwayne resident to implore the council for help in curbing south-end crime, cited several recent incidents that have rattled nerves in her neighborhood.

- Large youth groups, believed to be carrying weapons, have been known to walk the streets chanting threats.
- A teen was beaten in a local park, and a woman who started to go to his aid was warned by the attackers to go home.
- A man toting a semiautomatic handgun was seen randomly walking Norwayne streets, and he wasn't caught by police.
- A 10-year-old Lincoln Elementary student, a neighbor of McNa's, was robbed by teen-agers on his way to school.
- On Friday the 13th, a teen was beaten near the school.

The Norwayne area of Westland is roughly bounded by Palmer to the north, Merriman to the east, Glenwood to the south and Wildwood to the west.

McNa said some Norwayne residents recently met with police department representatives to discuss the situation, but she said their concerns haven't been addressed.

She told the council that residents feel as though they're not being treated with respect, or even taken seriously, by officers who respond to violence in the neighborhood.

"In our area we are not second-class citizens," said McNa, whose father was a longtime police officer. "And attitudes must change because we will not be discriminated against."

Council president Thomas Brown pledged that the council would look into McNa's concerns.

"We will address it," he said.

McNa conceded that some problems caused by youths could be curbed if parents accepted more responsibility for their children.

But she said the city could take steps to ease the problem. For example, she said the city could seal off some back pathways that allow troublemakers to escape easily from police officers.

Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin noted that two police officers have been placed on gang-related duties, in a move that could help to address problems.

Council members pledged to support whatever efforts the police department can undertake to curb the problems.

"We definitely care, and we will stand beside you until we correct the problem," Councilman Glenn Anderson said to McNa and others who accompanied her to the meeting.

McNa is only the latest of several Norwayne residents who have voiced concerns about violence in their neighborhoods.

One father in recent weeks told the council that his young son was huddling on the floor of his home, trembling because gunshots were ringing through the neighborhood.

Makino handle all issues coming before the city council.

The group wants tax exemptions similar to those that spurred the development of Taylor Towers, Greenwood Villa, Westhaven Manor and Westgate Tower.

Rather than paying taxes, the partnership for 30 years would pay the city 4 percent of the annual rents obtained on the property, according to a proposed resolution. That agreement would exclude utility charges.

Tenants would pay roughly 20 percent to 60 percent of what their rent would otherwise be on the open market, Riley said Tuesday.

On Monday, Makino sought approval of three proposals. Some council members voted against the measures because they wanted more time to study them.

In a 5-2 vote, the council rezoned the property from two-family residential homes to garden-style apartments. Councilmen Glenn Anderson and Charles Pickering voted against the proposal, while council members Cox, Thomas Brown, Sandra Cicirelli, Charles "Trav" Griffin and Sharon Scott supported it.

In a 4-3 vote, a site plan was approved by Brown, Cox, Griffin and Scott. Cicirelli joined Anderson and Pickering in opposing it.

In a 6-1 vote, the tax break proposal was rejected because council members want a study session. Cox said he had already studied the issue and was prepared to approve it.

complied with what was promised to the council."

Cook said neighbors have been frustrated for 14 months by Art Van's disregard for their concerns. Residents have met six times with company officials but have seen no results, he said.

Marina Court resident Lorri Morgan told the council that Art Van trucks pull into the rear of the building as early as 5 a.m. with their headlights shining on her home, due to poor landscaping.

Falbaum responded Tuesday by saying, "We believe we built it (the berm) to plans."

Falbaum contended that Art Van went "beyond" what was required, and he said the berm will be more attractive once it has been sodded.

He added, however, that the company is willing to discuss the situation if city officials and residents aren't satisfied.

Even so, Councilman Charles Pickering said Wednesday morning that Art Van cancelled a meeting that had been scheduled for that afternoon.

Brown said during Monday's meeting, "I feel that they're going to have to agree with us or we're really going to go after them."

He said he believes the company, under pressure from the city, will bring the site into compliance.

But the neighbors, who said the company has consistently ignored their concerns, cautioned city officials not to be optimistic about a cooperative effort.

City attorney Angelo Plakas said he is prepared to move forward with a lawsuit unless the company addresses the problems.

But city officials indicated that a court battle can be avoided if Art Van simply keeps the promises it made when it built the new addition earlier this year.

Judge denies lower bond in hit-run death

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Detroit judge has refused to reduce a $500,000 cash bond for Paul Raymond Sadler, the Garden City driver accused of hitting and killing a Westland jogger in Hines Park.

Christine Byndas, the sister of victim Caryn Casaz, said she believes the large courtroom presence of her sister's family members, friends and co-workers left an impression on Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Helen E. Brown.

Other friends and Ford Motor Co. co-workers who couldn't be in court faxed more than 100 messages opposing any reduction in Sadler's bond during his arraignment Friday in Recorder's Court, Byndas said.

Brown also heard a plea from Casaz's mother, Mary Casaz, not to reduce the bond, Byndas said.

"He's not a responsible person," Byndas said of Sadler, 42.

Sadler faces trial on charges of second-degree murder and leaving the scene of the fatal accident. He could face a maximum sentence of life in prison if convicted.

Casaz was killed Sept. 13 while jogging along Hines Drive near Merriman. She had been training for the recent Free Press/Mazda Marathon in which Byndas and other supporters participated.

More than 200 people, many of them runners, wore T-shirts bearing Casaz's image on the back. On the front, the words "Running like MADD for Caryn" were silk-screened.

Proceeds from the shirt sales will be used to help raise money for a bike path on Hines Drive, in the area where Casaz was running when she was killed, Byndas has said.

Witnesses have testified that Sadler's car veered off of Hines Drive and struck Casaz. One witness followed Sadler home and then reported his address to police.

Sadler has claimed that he didn't know he hit Casaz. As he was being led from Westland District Court during an earlier preliminary hearing, he told a defense attorney, "I didn't do this on purpose."

Observer wins 9 state awards

The Observer Newspapers received nine awards in the 1995 Better Newspaper Contest sponsored by the Michigan Press Association.

The contest set new records for the number of newspapers participating and the number of entries submitted, according to MPA officials.

Members of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association studied the nearly 3,000 entries submitted by 155 Michigan newspapers.

Observer editions capturing awards included the Plymouth, Canton and Livonia editions.

Winning staff members and their entries are:

■ Plymouth Editor Jeff Counts received a second place award in the spot/breaking news category for the "Two Die In Ford Plant" story which appeared on Jan. 9, 1995.

Judges called the story "good factual reporting without sensationalism or unnecessary emotional hype."

■ Tedd Schneider, formerly a reporter for Livonia and now the Redford editor, took third place in the local news reporting category for "Dreamweavers," an account of the Beverly Park playground project and the volunteer effort during construction week in May 1994.

Judges called Schneider's report "a nice piece that captures the backbone of most any successful community project — people coming together and working hard to accomplish a goal."

■ The Farmington Observer received a second place for design. Judges liked the "nice feature layouts and easy-to-read main news section. Copy Editor Beth Sundrla designs the newspaper. She shares the award with editor Tom Baer, staff writers Larry O'Connor and Bill Coutant, community life editor Diane Gale, photographer Sharon LeMieux, and office receptionist Rose Butler.

■ Sue Mason, community life editor for the Observer editions in Wayne County, took first place in the feature category for "A Move Toward Zero Tolerance," a report that examined the different stages that victims of domestic abuse go through and society's need to be more understanding and compassionate. Judges called the report "extremely well-written."

■ Mason and reporter Christina Fuoco share an honorable mention award for the Observer's Community Life section. Judges called it "lively, colorful and topical with a religion calendar that is helpful."

■ Farmington Editor Tom Baer took first place for editorial writing. Judges cited Baer's work as good ideas with good summaries.

■ Sharon LeMieux took second place in the feature picture category for "Looking Sharp," in the March 6 edition. Judges called LeMieux's entry a "creative and imaginative photo."

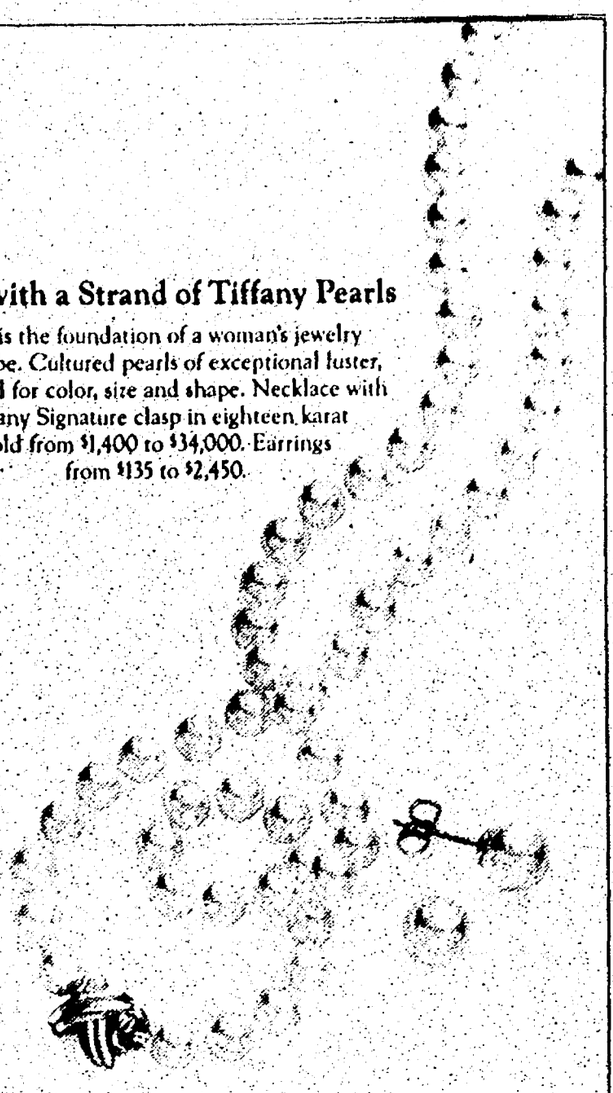

■ C.J. Risak, sports editor for the Plymouth and Canton Observere took first place in the sports column category for his piece on Dan Gruenwald, an undersized wrestler who succeeded despite his size limitations. Judges called "Canton's Gruenwald has what it takes" a "thorough, thoughtful treatment of a sport where the heavyweights get most of the ink."

"After reading C.J.'s column, we feel we know the boy. We can think of no higher compliment."

■ Risak also took second place for sports coverage. Judges called the Plymouth and Canton Observer sports section "very readable - a nice variety to front pages showcasing a myriad of sports in the coverage area."

Volunteers needed to aid seniors

If you are interested in helping senior citizens with routine snow removal, household chores or minor home repairs, a program in western Wayne County would like to hear from you.

The Chore Referral Program links seniors with workers who can rake leaves, shovel snow, wash windows, repair faucets, install weatherstripping, do minor roof repairs and other similar tasks.

The Senior Alliance, a nonprofit agency serving seniors in western Wayne County, acts as a liaison between seniors and workers. Workers, who are asked to charge the seniors no more than $6 an hour, must provide three references, including two work references.

Workers who meet the requirements will be placed on the Senior Alliance referral list. Once a senior chooses and hires a worker, it is the responsibility of the senior to set up a work schedule and pay the worker.

If you or someone you know would like to join the Senior Alliance Chore Referral Program and help a senior citizen, call (313) 722-2830 for more details.

Fund-raiser benefits hospital renovation

The dance floor at the Crowne Plaza Holiday Inn was packed as supporters of the Garden City Hospital Motown Magic fund-raiser danced to music of The Contours.

Nearly 300 guests demonstrated their version of the The Mashed Potato, The Swim, and The Twist on the way to raising $35,000 for renovations in the hospital's emergency department.

The Contours performed their 1962 hit song, "Do You Love Me," as well as other Motown hits.

Guests were treated to a buffet-style dinner of casual food such as build-your-own burgers, sausage and baked chicken. As the evening went on, a sundae bar and chili dogs were also available.

Giving a boost to the fund-raising were 50/50 raffles and specialty drawings held throughout the evening. Gregory Monroe won a blue topaz bracelet while Lisa Bode was the winner of a basketball autographed by Detroit Pistons players.

Raffle tickets were sold by Garden City Hospital employees before Saturday's event and employees were entered into incentive drawings. Winners were Bonnie Barringer, two Motown Magic tickets; Helen Prinz, Moto Magin tickets; Gloria Bradley, amethyst bracelet and Mary Rhine, dinner for two at Mountain Jack's Restaurant.

Other winners of raffle prizes included Dave Orow, condo for a week on Amelia Island courtesy of Dennis Sal & Associates; R. Martell, a Tornoto vacation for two via train, hotel accommodations and theater tickets, courtesy of the Travel Desk in Garden City and Esther Hulsing, a $250 shopping spree at Orin Jewelers, courtesy of Orin Jewelers.

Money raised at Saturday's event will fund renovations at the hospital's emergency department which has experienced a steady increase in patients, according to hospital officials. The department now serves some 96 patients per day.

Peter Lawrie is wrapping up command of the Reserve Intelligence Command of Area 11.

The change of command ceremony will occur Saturday, Oct. 21, at Selfridge Air National Guard Base in Mt. Clemens. Area 11 includes Michigan, Ohio and New York.

Captain Lawrie, who has a 30-year career in the U.S. Navy and Navy Reserve, has lived in Livonia with wife Marjorie for the past 25 years.

Lawrie enlisted in the U.S. Navy as an airman apprentice in 1957 and became an electronics technician and flight crew member who went on more than 92 patrols of the North Atlantic Barrier.

After being released from active duty in 1961, Lawrie attended Eastern Michigan University where he earned a bachelor's degree in history and a master's degree in school administration.

Lawrie joined the Naval Reserve in 1969 when he was commissioned as an ensign and assigned to Grosse Ile. He was transferred to Selfridge as an intelligence analyst in 1970 and became an intelligence officer, executive officer and commanding officer.

After serving as commanding officer for an intelligence unit in Buffalo, NY, Capt. Lawrie in 1993 was named area commander for Reserve Intelligence Area 11.

In civilian life, Lawrie has recently retired after serving 30 years as a teacher and principal for Wayne-Westland Community Schools. He is a member of Ward Presbyterian Church of Livonia, where he serves as a deacon and usher.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE GARDEN CITY SCHOOL DISTRICT

Michigan law requires that each school district publish a financial statement which is a composite of their annual audit. In compliance with the law, Garden City Public Schools offers this information to residents so that they might keep fully informed of the fiscal operations of Garden City Public Schools and the use of our public's resources.

During the past year, we have been able to continue providing our students with a wide range of curriculum offerings and programs. We have continued to stress basic skills at all levels. We feel that mastery of these skills is an essential "building block" for our students as they prepare for their respective futures.

Math and reading are taught daily to students through junior high school. Our high school students may take 6 hours of class work per day and they must satisfy the requirements of our more demanding high school graduation requirements. All of this is possible because of your interest and support.

Although this report focuses on the financial activities of the district, please keep in mind that these dollars translate into educational opportunities for our students.

This report covers the fiscal operations of the Garden City School District for the 1994-95 school year. If you have any questions about this report, please contact us at 425-4900.

Respectfully submitted,
MICHAEL WILMOT
Superintendent

State land use report reveals quiet crisis, major changes

■ Much higher local taxes will be needed to maintain the infrastructure (roads, water, sewer, etc.) for Michigan's growing number of scattered low density development projects.

MSPO report

The developing sprawl in rural areas has a high cost for Michigan residents in terms of dollars and quality of life.

That's the finding of a recently released study by the Michigan Society of Planning Officials, an Oakland County association that serves numerous planning commissions throughout the area.

The report, "Patterns on the Land: Our Choices — Our Future," documents a quiet crisis linked to a major shift in population from urban to rural areas.

The shift has caused profound changes in communities that affect the way people live and work.

Many of the changes come at high costs to residents in terms of dollars and quality of life, the report states.

The report completes a 20-month study called "Michigan's Trend Future Project," which documents long-term patterns in land development across Michigan.

According to the report, the predominant land use pattern today is "sprawl," in contrast to compact development patterns of the past. Sprawl is energy and land consumptive, and auto dependent. It is creating permanent changes on the landscape in many parts of Michigan.

Sponsored by the Rochester-based Michigan Society of Planning Officials and funded with grants from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation and the Frey Foundation of Grand Rapids, the Trend Future Project identifies and discusses the implications of continuing current land use patterns in Michigan.

Some of the most disturbing findings and issues addressed in the report, according to the MSPO, are:

■ More than 854,000 acres of Michigan farmland were converted to other uses between 1982 and 1992 and are continuing to decline at the rate of 10 acres per hour of every day.

■ Much higher local taxes will be needed to maintain the infrastructure (roads, water, sewer, etc.) for Michigan's growing number of scattered low density development projects.

■ Groundwater contamination will become a greater problem as more rural land is developed.

■ Major resource-based industries like agriculture, timber harvesting, mining and tourism are being adversely affected by sprawl.

■ Urban areas will continue to deteriorate if trends continue.

■ The impact on renewable resources and mineral deposits will be irreversible in some areas if current trends go unchecked.

■ The biological diversity in the state will continue to decline.

■ The next generation will have greater debt, less assets and fewer choices.

■ Population will increase 11.8 percent from 1990 to 2020, but land area occupied by urban development will increase by 63.87 percent as a result of low-density development.

Who's to blame?

Government policies and structure have helped create the problems because:

■ Federal and state governments have traditionally provided incentives for low-density residential housing via tax policies;

■ Michigan has a complex and fragmented system of government regarding land use issues.

More than 1,800 local governments exercise local zoning and planning authority. There are no effective requirements for integrated and coordinated planning. As a result, local communities and planning officials tend to plan as if the world ended at their boundaries.

A Trend Future public opinion survey determined that only 11.5 percent of Michigan residents considered themselves well informed on land use issues and more than 73 percent believe more land use planning is needed.

The final Trend Future report is based on information from the following working papers:

■ Land Use Issues Identification
■ Agriculture
■ Public Lands and Forestry
■ Transportation
■ Sewer, Water & Other Infrastructure
■ Institutional Structure for Land Use Decision-Making
■ Minerals
■ Jobs and Built Environment
■ Tourism and Recreation
■ Demographics
■ Natural Resources/Environment

The purpose of the final Trend Future report is to help citizens and stakeholder groups make informed decisions regarding land use planning in the future. Those who wish to obtain a copy of the final report, or working papers, should call MSPO at (810) 651-3339.

MSPO is a non-profit educational organization with 4,000 members. It was established in 1945 to encourage sound community planning to improve the quality of life in Michigan. MSPO develops and sponsors a variety of education programs for local planning and zoning commissioners, members of zoning boards of appeal and elected officials.

Family Matters.

If you're ready for a new branch on the family tree, chances are your anticipation is growing as quickly as your baby.

And you're not the only one. Having babies is a family affair, and everyone else involved is also wondering what to expect from the new arrival. That's why St. Mary Hospital offers classes designed to give a well-rounded, family-oriented view of childbirth.

Whether you expect to be a new parent or plan on enlarging your family, you can learn a great deal from our nurses and other staff who are also family people. And you'll have the chance to be with a group of soon-to-be parents who have many of the same concerns and questions that you do.

If these kinds of family matters matter to you, talk with your doctor about St. Mary Hospital. Or call us at (313) 464-WELL. We will answer all your questions and help you find a physician if you need one. Because when it comes to family-centered childbirth . . . we deliver.

Times change
Library's political rating gains

What a difference a few years in the city's political life can make. It seems like yesterday that voters were rejecting a proposed millage rate increase to pay for the construction and operation of the city's first independent library.

At the time, in the mid- and late 1980s, few politicians cared.

A few did, but they were whistling in the wind.

Now, with money found without raising the millage rate and the steel work largely done, the new library is moving to the top of the list of priorities of many city council candidates interviewed by the Observer last week.

It's about time.

The new library, expected to open late next year, will be an important asset as city officials try to develop a higher quality of life as well as stronger sense of community for their estimated 85,000 men, women and children.

The Observer is pleased that the new library, pushed two years ago by Mayor Robert Thomas, gained the support of the city council.

The newspaper is very pleased that several council incumbents and challengers on the Nov. 7 ballot are supporting the completion of the library and making it a high priority instead of listening to a small number of naysayers.

When the library is finished and in use late next year, everyone will appreciate the change of attitude toward the improvement.

Award to honor local volunteer

The Westland First Citizen will be honored soon for an outstanding record of community service.

Readers can make sure that there is a full range of candidates by nominating someone in their church, PTA chapter, service club, or athletic association.

Deadline for nominations for the award is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25, with information on the nominee's community service background and the person's impact on the community or a segment of the city's population due to the Westland Observer Editorial Department, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Our fax number is 591-7279.

Observer readers should make sure that their favorite candidates are nominated.

Ideologues stymie school reform

Scores of educational, business and political leaders have been speaking out for more than 12 years about the declining quality of public schools. It all started in April 1983, when a federal study commission published its landmark report, "A Nation at Risk," which detailed statistics about the deteriorating standards of public schools and how that threatens our national economy and the abilities of businesses to compete with other countries.

In Michigan, there has been a steady stream of reform proposals and action plans to help address the problem and raise the standards of public schools and enhance the skills and abilities of high school graduates.

But let's take a closer look at some actions by our "leaders" in Lansing and examine some of the ideologues who deserve at least some blame for slowing down educational progress.

According to a veteran curriculum director in the Observer's circulation area, there have been numerous requirements and mandates issued by Lansing, forcing local schools to spend money and staff hours to address them. Then Lansing changes its mind and drops the mandates or promised equipment.

This leads local school officials to become frustrated over getting continually mixed signals and directives from the state government.

One problem is that the constantly changing targets set for local schools prevent or at least slow down the academic progress the state wants to see through the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test results and other measures.

Everyone — the state government, local schools, parents and employers — wants a higher quality of results from public schools. The state sets the standards and deadlines and the local school districts then move ahead to meet those standards and deadlines.

Then, guess what? The rules of the curriculum and education game are changed and the local school districts have to start all over again — after spending lots of your public tax dollars on not only planning changes but also training teachers to handle the changes.

Two examples of what drives local curriculum leaders and teachers crazy concern accreditation of junior highs and a comprehensive health curriculum.

In the accreditation proposal, many local schools volunteered to take part. During the second year of the project, the state pulled the plug and scuttled it. Two years ago, the state renewed the project, inviting schools to send teams of educators for six days of training again.

Guess what happened next? The state dumped it again and changed the rules.

In the health curriculum mandate, the plan was touted as one of the best in the nation. All schools were encouraged to adopt it; thousands of dollars were spent on teaching, training, buying curriculum materials. Educators and legislators from all over the country wanted to copy it.

But then the religious right started to complain about a small section of the program dealing with sexuality. The state education and health departments had to back off and then the curriculum was watered down and pretty much rendered ineffective as teachers were afraid to teach it.

What local schools need are standards and expectations by the state with the community educators being responsible for meeting those without mid-course rules changes based on the ideological whims of Lansing.

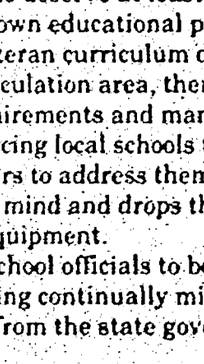

Now we have buzz words like freedom and choice taking center stage take over any credible data on educational excellence.

Reforming public education is hard enough when everyone involved knows the rules and what's expected.

No real choices

The upcoming Westland City Council election offers voters the usual choice between Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

The politically powerful Westland public employees unions have already secured generous long-term labor contracts that assure them exorbitant pay raises until the end of this century.

So, the job of the local politicos for the next few years will be to find new and creative "back-door" ways to fleece the taxpayers for even more money. Or, alternately to make creative excuses for the inevitable service cutbacks.

Already, at this month's "town meeting" the mayor warned that our ridiculously high water bills will keep going one way — up, up and up. Water bills have become nearly as oppressive as taxes, in my opinion.

In these degenerate political times — the best that most council candidates can do is to come up with "hot button" platitudes — that cause any reasonably intelligent voter to roll his eyes in incredulity. One candidate claims to be "environmental." Another claims to be "pro-business." Yet only a few mention the pain of the long-suffering Westland taxpayers. Taxpayers are the most under-represented group at city hall.

Who will I vote for under these sad and degenerate circumstances? The "outsiders." The "iconoclasts." Those candidates who occasionally mention that important but politically terrifying word — "taxpayers."

I support Kenneth Mehl, Dorothy Smith and Richard LeBlanc for City Council.

Walter Warren, Westland

Doyle says goodbye

This letter is to inform my readers that I will be discontinuing my "Doc Doyle" column. Having purchased a home in Arizona, it is difficult to "feel the pulse" of education in Michigan from the third tee at the Sun Lakes Golf and Country Club.

Sometimes great sacrifices have to be made, and I choose the Sun Lakes retirement villa for those over 50 young years of age (often times I think Sun Lakes is the site where they gathered the material for the movie "Grumpy Old Men").

In any case, I wish to thank my friends and colleagues at the Observer for allowing me the opportunity to share with their readers the 35 years of experience I had in what I consider the world's greatest and most important profession — education.

Of all my titles (assistant superintendent, etc.), the most important role I held while in the profession were the years I spent in the classroom as a teacher. It all begins and ends in the classroom and teachers, please, never say to anyone, "I'm just a teacher."

You teach the parents' most precious possession, their child, and as you age and retire, your memory as I have found will not be of teacher meetings or contract negotiations or writing articles but of those children who as adults come up to you, smile and say, "Remember me. You were my teacher."

UF therapies help

There is good news in the greater Detroit metropolitan area and I get to observe it in action every day! Steady support of United Way of Southeastern Michigan has made it possible for over 4,000 handicapped children to receive specialized physical, occupational and speech therapy. This therapy has improved the quality of life for these children and their families.

I wish every person who contributes to the Torch Drive could have the opportunity to see a handicapped child play for the first time. Imagine being locked in a body that doesn't work. You see, you understand, but you can't move purposefully. One day a therapist sets you up at a computer that you can control through tapping your head from side to side. The computer directs a robot that stacks blocks and can knock them down on your command. Your eyes light up! For the very first time in your life you can physically change something.

This type of experience would not be possible without the generous support of United Way in the metropolitan area. Ultimately this handicapped child may be able to live and work independently. This is good news. The community has fostered this "miracle" through contributions to United Way. We ask for your continued concern and support in this year's United Way campaign. We are grateful for your support.

POINTS OF VIEW

A trip to Salem brings back old memories

GUEST COLUMNIST

DOROTHY MATSU

■ I will chill my spine sitting on the great granite steps of the Customs House where as a clerk Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote while looking out over Derby Wharf.

Zounds.

After a nerve-jangling year tethered to my troubled tumbledown home, I find myself remiss in paying respects to kith and kin back in New England.

Given reliably rough winter weather both here and there, the strategy of swooping down on our extensive families during the increasing frenzy of year-end festivities is hardly a sound one. So, home for the holiday means Halloween in Salem, Mass.

Getting a grip on homesickness hasn't been a cinch, but Plymouth has been very comforting with a certain familiar character and admirable self-respect. Frankly, I'm shaking like an autumn leaf at the prospect of this long overdue visit.

My family is exceptionally close-knit, and I couldn't imagine finer in-laws, not to mention fabulous, faithful friends. Perhaps I've got the jitters because I am nurturing an affection for Plymouth deep enough now that I fear something might shake my cage. Pretty scary.

It would help if we had some word from the amazing disappearing landlady, but she remains as elusive as Professor Moriarty. I imagine coming back from a jaunt to find my disenchanted cottage razed.

Packing up our clown cats for a road trip is another lunatic undertaking.

So I shall steel myself for a journey and kindle the courage to make the most of visiting my seaside haunts. Salem was a real ghost town until a whirlwind of historic restoration 20 years ago re-established its fascinating maritime heritage.

Regardless of the popular tourist boon, the Witchcraft Trials are a historic tragedy treated by most with the solemnity they deserve. I will chill my spine sitting on the great granite steps of the Customs House where as a clerk Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote while looking out over Derby Wharf.

It is to laugh, recalling some of my stints as a Jacky of all trades, such as a spell in the little store at the House of Seven Gables. My boss was a Chinese harridan with a bray like Ethel Merman. Up front were the typical knicks and knacks, out back were the inevitable "antiques" including questionable statues of Greco-Roman wrestlers.

I'll stroll old burial grounds, wander the lookouts of Winter Island, and float over to Salem Willows to ride the eerie carousel, wrecking my teeth on molasses popcorn as folks have done there for well over a century.

At the Deacon Giles pub, the only man tried for witchcraft was pressed to death on that very spot — ow!

Reeling by In a Pig's Eye, I'll pray that here in Old Village a grill will never be named The Drooling Moose — ugh!

Years attempting to turn a terrifying traffic rotary at Salem's center into a baffling straightaway has superseded weather as the local whine.

Infamous Massachusetts drivers generated enough centrifugal force on this peculiarity to send dental fillings flying. The only hope was that another madman might force you off onto a spoke connecting the diabolical Ferris wheel of quaint one-way streets to limbo.

On foot, dignified seniors and truculent teens alike must hop, skip and jump like goats if they ever hope to see the other side of town again. Our ties to the clan and sea are very strong, yet Plymouth's calm and uncluttered charm find me mysteriously yearning to return already.

Choice for better schools just lawmaker's dream

Adam Smith was no pie-in-the-sky dreamer. Before writing The Wealth of Nations in 1776, the Glasgow professor had visited a pin factory, sheep farms, wool weavers, flax spinners, linen dyers, rope-makers, shipyards, French silk manufacturers, a nail factory and users of steam engines. Then he developed his theories of economic liberalism and the marketplace.

Bill Schuette, however, is a pie-in-the-sky dreamer. The state senator from Midland is sponsor of a schools of choice measure with the bloated title of "Michigan Education Freedom Act." He opines that letting parents choose to send their kids to another school district will improve educational quality.

"I am convinced," he said under questioning in the Senate Education Committee. "I think it will improve." Why does he think that? No particular reason. "Greater competition," he answered. He repeats his "principles" of freedom and competition, which aren't principles, when you get down to it, but mere speculation.

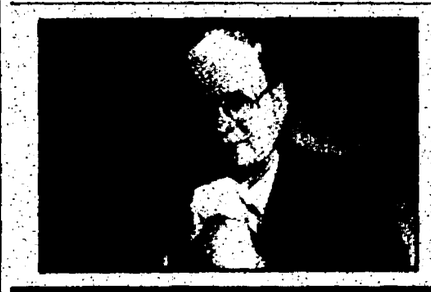

In an article, Schuette wrote, "A public school with exceptional programs for students with special needs or for gifted children, or with an in-depth curriculum in science or creative arts or vocational education, may be what parents want and what is best suited to their children."

Underline that word "may," about 10 times, and then let us visit the real world, the way Adam Smith visited it.

In practice, it's tough to find parents who want to send their kids to another public school district that offers Latin or rote or science or a particular academic program. Parents simply don't make those kinds of judgments. Real life examples:

■ A Lake County mother, one of Schuette's own witnesses, cited "strong social contacts" as her reason for wanting to transfer the kids to a Newaygo County school district. She talked about the kids' scouting contacts. She talked about the kids' grandparents. Never did she mention educational quality.

■ A Barry County father teaches in Allegan and his wife in Kalamazoo counties. Their solution was to have dad take two of the kids to the school where he works and mom to take two where she works. "It's a logistical choice," said dad. If a kid gets sick, it's easier for the parent to pick him or her up. It makes sense, but it had nothing to do with educational quality.

TIM RICHARD

■ Rural school board members favored Schuette's bill because it would relieve them of making tough choices on whether to release a kid. But they said nothing about how this might improve educational quality.

■ The only person who came close to supporting Schuette's speculation was an Adrian mother who wanted to send her child to Sand Creek, where they use the phonics method. But she left a note of suspicion when she said, "Our children belong to us, the parents" — the ancient Roman notion of children as property.

Covering the State Board of Education, I have perused many parental requests to transfer their property from District A to District B. They don't cite educational reasons. They say they work in District B, they grew up in District B, their doctor and Sunday school and babysitter are in District B. But they never say the science or creative arts instruction is better in B.

Meanwhile, there was a mound of evidence from school administrators and counselors that prior to 1982 schools were being "competitive" by creaming the brightest students from neighboring districts; that "choices" were made for athletic, socioeconomic and racial reasons.

That's how the market works, too. Lenders and insurers, for example, have been known to "redline" certain neighborhoods. It takes governmental regulation, unfortunately, to prevent them from abandoning those neighborhoods. That's a fact of life. Are we then to abandon public education to such "choices" and such a "marketplace"?

Schuette is doing in the Senate the same thing the Clark Durant crowd is doing at the State Board of Education: refusing to do research and mouthing gaseous abstractions.

Professor Adam Smith would have flunked the lot of them.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Drunken drivers must pay for costs of their arrests

Lights flashing and siren blaring, the police cruiser wasted no time in pulling over the late-model Buick that had been erratically plunging back and forth across the road.

"Drunk driver," I thought to myself. "Glad the cops got him before he got somebody."

As I drove away, I saw the officer taking out his clipboard, gleaming brightly in the flashing lights, preparing the reams of paper that would accompany an arrest, a Breathalyzer test, a booking, possibly an appearance before a judge.

Have you ever wondered how much an arrest like that costs?

A lot, it turns out. If the officer is on straight time and the paperwork load is about usual, it takes two to three hours of direct police labor per arrest.

At $25 an hour (not an unusual wage, when fringes are factored in), that comes to $50 to $75 per arrest. If you account for all the indirect labor (clerks, filing, overhead, court costs and so forth), it costs the taxpayers more than $100 per arrest.

Now answer this question: How come you and I — the law-abiding taxpayers in this little drama — should pay the $100 or so to arrest somebody who has drunk too much? After all, we weren't the ones who had one for the road in that nice little bar. It wasn't us who chose — drinking too much is, after all, an individual choice — to drive when drunk.

In fact, why shouldn't the drunk driver be made to reimburse the taxpayers for his arrest? Good question.

It turns out in a growing number of Michigan communities, the drunk driver is required to pay the costs of his or her own arrest.

In South Lyon, for example, when you're arrested for driving under the influence, the city clerk sends a bill to cover the costs. So far, the average bill is around $75, and the compliance rate is around 50 percent. In effect for four years, the South Lyon ordinance also has a provision to take nonpayers to small claims court, although it hasn't been used yet.

The Oakland County cities of Birmingham, Oak Park and Pontiac have similar ordinances, as do a number of communities in Macomb County, which is where the idea got started in the late 1980s. Livonia has a similar ordinance, although it's not much enforced because officials there think it takes as much time and money to process the paperwork as the costs recovered.

PHILIP POWER

Regardless of how you slice the accounting, making lawbreakers pay the full costs of their infractions is plainly an idea whose time has come.

In the Middle Ages, the penalties for breaking the law were visited not only on the lawbreaker but on the family as well. The idea that the public at-large should be responsible for all the costs associated with the criminal justice system is a relatively modern one, probably the result of the thought that it's unfair to penalize an innocent relative for a crime committed by another.

On the other hand, when families realize they have a direct economic stake in the proper and law-abiding behavior of their members, they have a concrete incentive to dissuade family members from misbehaving.

Will this eliminate crime? No way.

But it might deter a few people. And it might begin to make more than a few reflect a bit on the idea that personal responsibility goes far beyond the police officer making an arrest.

One in eight American women will develop breast cancer... If it's found early, about 90% of them will survive

The key to beating breast cancer is finding it before it spreads. While it's still 90% curable. With the best chance of saving the breast.

At Providence, we're committed to providing a quality program to screen for breast cancer and teach women about breast examinations using:

- low-dose radiation
- fully accredited mammography equipment
- specially trained radiologists and technologists
- four locations with convenient hours
- acceptance of most insurance plans

Providence provides all the care you need if the diagnosis is breast cancer, from surgery, radiation and chemotherapy to reconstructive surgery. A multidisciplinary working group of physicians and other health care professionals assists patients in deciding which treatment is best for them, then streamlines that treatment so care can begin in a matter of days rather than weeks.

Providence oncologists have access to the latest cancer-fighting drugs and treatment protocols through membership in several national research organizations. The Hospital's radiation oncology program is affiliated with University of Michigan, bringing state-of-the-art care right here for Providence patients.

And we offer something more: The support, care and compassion cancer patients and their families need at a time that challenges body, mind and spirit.

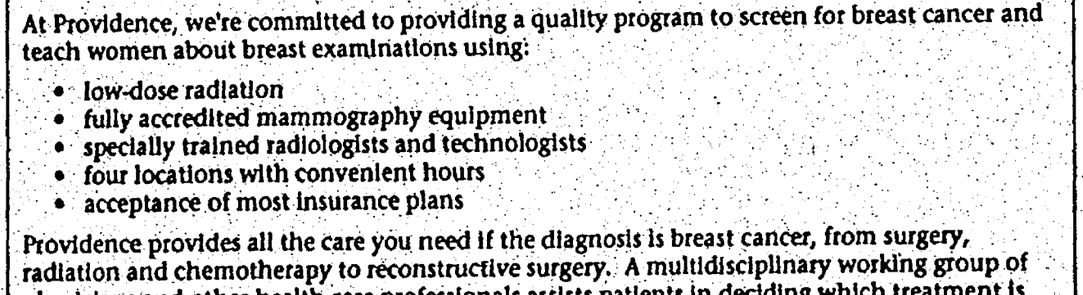

Please call one of our four locations to begin your breast care program today. And practice it for life.

Your opinions count... Tell us and your neighbors what you think about the opinions expressed by writing a letter to the editor at: The Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150. Or, if you have a Touch-Tone® phone, you can leave a voice mail message for our columnists. Their numbers are listed at the end of each column.

When you receive 25 awards, there are only two words you can sincerely say:

"Thank You."

Certainly the judges in the Michigan Press Association's 1995 Better Newspaper Contest deserve our gratitude for such abundant recognition, but without the dedication and effort put forth by our Editorial staff, the judges would have had significantly less excellent work to consider.

Week after week, our writers and photographers are out in their communities covering the news. Our editors spend long hours in front of flickering computer screens checking facts, getting the truth, and writing about the issues that are important to you, our readers. And while our writing staff is looking for the best approach to the news, our photographers match their efforts with creative pictures of civic functions, local athletic contests, parades. . . think for a moment of what your hometown newspapers would be like without pictures. Nor does their work end with the snap of a shutter; hours of darkroom time are necessary to bring you those visual memories of your community.

And so it is with a great deal of pride that we say a heartfelt Thank You to the talented journalists who staff our newsrooms.

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

The importance and value of 5

We go way back, Carla and I. Thirty-one years to be exact. We were seven when we first became friends, just after my family moved in to the little town with the real Main Steet and the one stoplight. We were little. The town was little. But our dreams were big.

We grew up together, went off to colleges separately, became teachers, got married, stayed married, got advanced degrees, worked in high-rise office buildings in different states, and in the midst of it all, began raising children. Last count she had three and I had four.

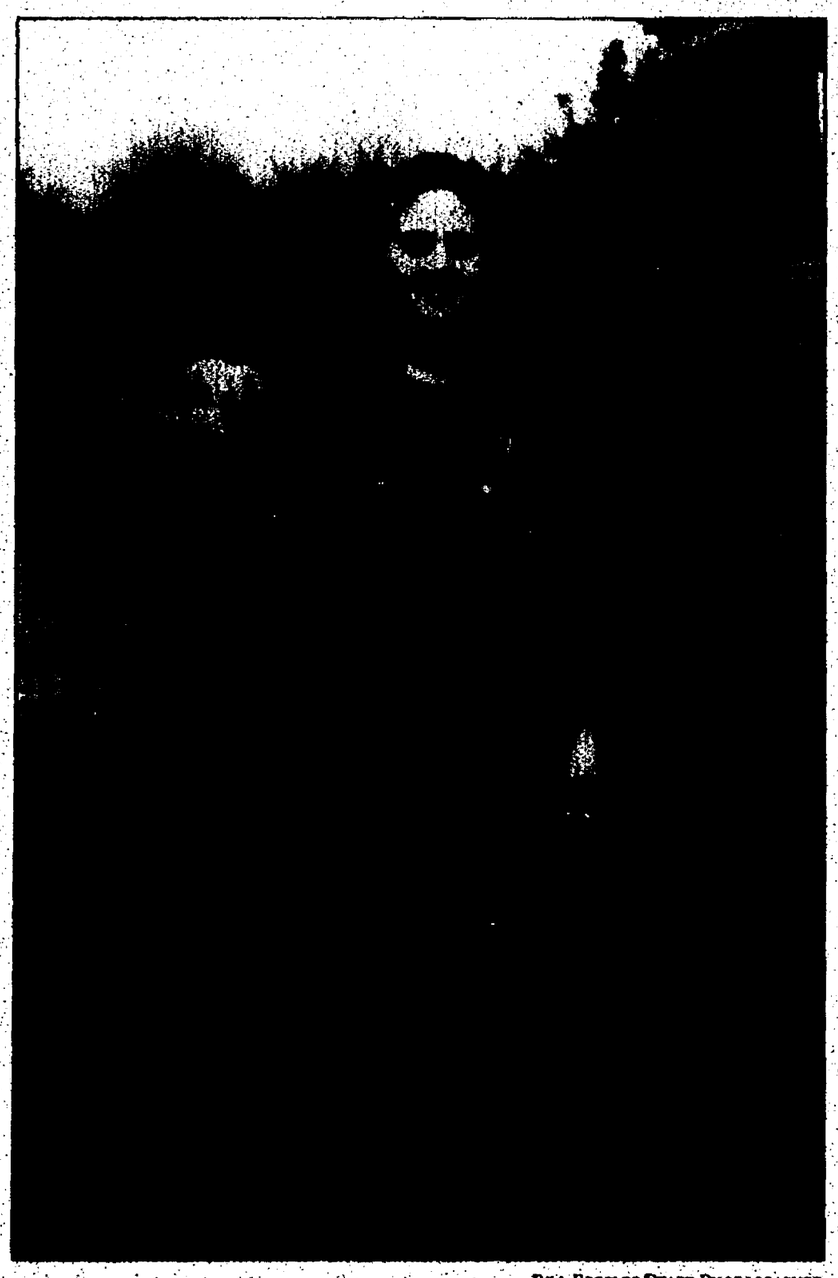

Looking back, I guess we've lived rather parallel lives these past 31 years.

We're still close, even though she lives in another time zone. We talk on the phone, and at least once a year get together in our old hometown.

We spoke during the summer, I think, sometime in July. She told me she had news I'd better sit down for. And right then, I knew. She was having another baby. After 31 years of being best friends, her inflection told me. I shouted into the phone, "You're having another baby!? How wonderful! How exciting! How are you feeling? Is everything going OK? When are you due?"

She couldn't get a word in edgewise.

She finds 'world' in Beijing, China

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

It's a long distance between the apple orchards of her family's Plymouth home and Beijing, China, the host city of the United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women. But logistics have never been a problem for Jodie Emmett, 20. And neither has determination.

"I will do anything to get out and see the world," she said.

On Aug. 29, she did just that. She boarded a plane to Beijing as part of a U.S. contingent of nongovernmental officials to the conference. She returned Sept. 14, her horizons definitely widened.

Emmett, who grew up helping her mother on the family-owned Plymouth Orchards and Cider Mill, has a history of activism. She was involved in student government at Plymouth Salem High School, and as a third-year student at the University of Colorado at Boulder, she is a member of the campus Model United Nations.

When a friend with connections to U.S. Network for Beijing and Beyond, an organizing group for the conference based in Washington, D.C., called and asked if she was interested in going to Beijing, the self-described feminist said, "Absolutely."

One of many

Emmett was one of 30,000 delegates attending a parallel, nongovernmental conference held in Huairou, a remote northern suburb about a 45-minute drive from Beijing. Delegates were housed in government-built apartments that were used as hotels during the conference.

"Yes," she finally got to say, "everything's just fine. But that's not why you're supposed to sit down. I'm not having a baby." And then there was a giant pregnant pause on the line. "I'm having two. I'm having twins."

"Twins?!" I shouted. Twice as loud this time. And then I talked, twice as fast. And I asked questions, twice as many. We made the phone company doubly happy. Everything about that phone call was multiplied by two.

We said our goodbyes and hung up. Carla, a mother of five. I marveled at how funny and wonderful and fresh and coincidental life can be. And then I looked down at my own expanding waistline. I hadn't told Carla my news, yet. I, too, was going to be a mother of five.

Some weeks later, I called and told her my news. We talked and laughed and talked — about coincidence and fate and faith. And we talked about having five children in the '90s, how it didn't seem too popular or too sensible to a lot of folks. But then they probably hadn't given much thought to the importance and value of. . . five.

Five fingers on a hand, for instance. That's normal and good. Five toes on a foot. For balance. Five points on a star — beauty and light. The five senses — to experience the richness of life. The five Great Lakes — without them all we wouldn't have H-O-M-E-S. The five lines on a musical staff, five rings in the Olympic symbol, five days in a work week, five markings between the hours on a clock. Five letters in Carla and five in Karen.

Five, we decided, was not bad. It's just how you look at it. Comes down to that really, just how you look at it.

Oh, speaking of looking at it, I just have to tell you this — two weeks ago I looked at my unborn baby. Via ultrasound. Now I have this tendency to be completely awestruck by ultrasound screenings, but the bit of discomfort that goes with them sort of keeps my feet on the ground.

The ultrasound test requires the drinking of lots of water, 32 ounces to be exact. No more, no less. And the water must be downed an hour before the test which can take 45 minutes or longer. And (and this is a very important AND) you mustn't get rid of any of the water until after the test.

■ And we talked about having five children in the '90s, how it didn't seem too popular or too sensible to a lot of folks.

After I finished the 32nd ounce of water, I felt like crying, really, really hard, buckets — just to relieve the unspeakable pressure. Later, in the waiting room, I paged through a magazine so I wouldn't have to look at the nearby water fountain. But the advertisement on page 14 was bad. The one where the orange juice comes pouring from the pitcher and splashes all over the place.

So I just sat, trying to clear my mind of splashing, when I overheard an elderly couple across the way talking about their recent Alaskan cruise where they explored fiords and rivers and endured wet, misty winds. This was almost my ruination, but then my name was called.

Somehow I made it into the screening room, not gracefully, but I made it. And then I saw my baby wave its hand, open its mouth, turn its head, kick its legs. I saw its tiny little heart beating. Number five seemed to be doing just fine.

And Carla's number four and five, now only weeks away from being born, are doing fine as well. She reassured me of that when I saw her a couple weekends ago. We both were visiting our old hometown. The one with the Main Street. And the one stoplight. And the big dreams of those long-ago little girls.

TO THE CITIZENS OF LIVONIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Michigan law requires that each year the school district must publish a financial statement which is a composite of our annual audit. In compliance with the law this information is offered to our citizens in an effort to keep our community fully informed of our fiscal operations and our use of the public's resources.

Every effort has been made by the Board of Education and the staff to control expenditures so that all available dollars may be earmarked for the education of children.

The Board of Education has worked hard to maintain the fine opportunities that have been available to the students in the Livonia Public School District. This will continue to be a great challenge because of the change in school funding which basically puts the district's financial condition in the hands of the State. Even though the report focuses primarily on the financial activities of the district, we must never lose sight of the fact that these dollars ultimately translate into educational opportunities for students.

The accompanying figures cover the full scope of the fiscal operations of the school district for the school year 1994 - 95. An audit report is available for review by any interested citizen. If you have questions concerning any part of the attached report, or you would care to see a copy of the audit, please feel free to contact the Finance Office of the Livonia Public Schools, telephone 523 - 5118.

Respectfully Submitted,

Kenneth C. Watson

Kenneth C. Watson, Jr., Ed.D.
Superintendent of Schools

Having an Oakwood Doctor is like having a Doctor in the family

Most families have someone that they turn to for advice and reassurance. A trusted individual who always seems to have the right answer or knows exactly what to say. That's what it's like having a doctor through the Oakwood Healthcare System.

Oakwood practitioners are caring, dedicated physicians who are fully involved in the healthcare of your family. From babies to adults, they provide the kind of care you want for your loved ones. Our physicians take the time to work with you to maintain your family's health. And they bring a wealth of experience to your care.

You can enjoy peace of mind knowing that excellent care is right in your neighborhood. Our facilities are conveniently located throughout Southeastern Michigan and offer a full range of specialty services and the latest in diagnostic technology. And at our hospitals, we offer 24-hour emergency care, should you ever need it.

For a referral to an Oakwood physician, please call 1-800-543-WELL. Most major insurances accepted including SelectCare, Blue Care Network and M-Care.

Committed to your health.

'Pilgrim's Progress' comes to St. Paul's

In churches and theaters across the United States and Canada, "Pilgrim's Progress," the all-time best seller of Christian literature, is making a come back from near-obscurity.

Ronald C. Smeenge is bringing John Bunyan's classic allegory to life in a unique one-person drama, which will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, 27675 Five Mile, west of Inkster, Livonia. A free will offering will be collected at the door.

In presenting this 17th century narrative of salvation as journey, Smeenge steps into the role of many of its vivid and enduring characters.

Second only to the Bible in publication, "Pilgrim's Progress" gave the world a lasting cultural contribution in concretely carved figures like Christian Pilgrim, Faithful, Giant Despair as well as immediately recognizable settings like Doubtful Castle, the Slough of Despair and Vanity Fair.

The work not only swept England's reading public but favorably impressed and influenced many leading authors of its own and later centuries, no small achievement for an unschooled itinerant preacher belonging to a religious movement so out of favor that he began his writing career in a jail cell.

For Smeenge, a retired minister from Ann Arbor, performing Bunyan rekindles a more personal interest. He first presented excerpts of "Pilgrim's Progress" 40 years ago in a senior recital as a speech major at Marion College.

"Having now experienced some of the ventures Bunyan suggests in the story, I have a new perspective of the allegory," Smeenge said.

Audiences are glad he did not let his interest die.

"The acting is strong and evocative, filled with passion born of Smeenge's personal conviction," said Michael Lindvall, senior pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Ann Arbor. "His rendering makes for powerful chancel drama and it is likely to move many to re-examine both this classic of the Christian faith and their faith journey."

For more information about the presentation, call St. Paul's at (313) 422-1470.

St. Genevieve School will have a rummage sale 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, at the school, 28933 Jamison, south of Five Mile and east of Middlebelt, Livonia.

Ss. Simon and Jude Church will have a rummage sale 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26-28, in the church hall, 32500 Palmer, between Merriman and Venoy, Westland. There will be books, toys, clothes, household goods and more. Proceeds will go to the church's building/ renovation fund.

■ OKTOBERFEST

Nativity United Church of Christ will have an Oktoberfest 6:30-8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, at the church, 5401 Henry Ruff at West Chicago, Livonia. There will be entertainment; desserts and refreshments will be provided in the Social Hall. Admission is free, however, donations will be accepted. For more information, call Donald Lintelman at (313) 421-5406.

■ MISSION OF RENEWAL

The Rev. Rian Clancy, a Passionist priest from Chicago, Ill., will conduct a mission of renewal Sunday through Thursday, Oct. 22-26, at St. Raphael Catholic Church, on Merriman, one block north of Ford, Garden City. Clancy will deliver the homily at all Masses on Sunday and make a one-hour presentation at 7 p.m. Sunday through Thursday.

The theme of the renewal will be the Our Father. On Sunday, he will lecture on "Our Father in Heaven: Image of God." The other lectures will be "Forgive Us Our Sins: Getting Rid of Evil" on Monday, "Your Will on Earth: Jesus Christ" on Tuesday, "Your Kingdom Come: The Catholic Church" on Wednesday and "Our Daily Bread: Eucharist" on Thursday.

Clancy has spent seven years in the Detroit area working with Marriage Encounter. For the past 15 years, he has been involved with AA—Alanon retreats. He also has written four books on the Passionists in China, Japan, the Philippines and Alabama and has just finished a book on the disabled, "Justice Not Pity."

Refreshments will be served following the presentations on Sunday and Thursday evenings. For more information, call the church at (313) 427-1533.

■ 'POWER PLAY'

The Livonia Assembly of God will present "Power Play," a new film by Worldwide Pictures, featuring Billy Graham, at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, at the church, 33051 W. Seven Mile, Livonia. The film is about a Vancouver attorney with a reputation for cutthroat practices whose life is changed when she meets an aging hockey player who has traded in his reputation as a brawler to become a Christian. There is no admission, and a nursery is available for children 5 years and under. For more information, call (810) 471-5282.

■ GUEST PASTOR

Dr. Oswald J. Hoffman, honorary speaker of "The Lutheran Hour," will be the guest pastor at the 9:15 and 11 a.m. services Sunday, Oct. 22, at Grace Lutheran Church, 25630 Grand River, Redford. At 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, he will be guest pastor at a service of dedication of the Martin Luther monument at Glen Eden Memorial Park, 35667 W. Eight Mile, Livonia. The public is invited to attend the services.

■ 'LEARNING STYLES'

Cynthia Ulrich Tobias, M.Ed. and president of Learning Styles Unlimited, will give three workshops on "learning styles" at Ward Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington Road, Livonia, Sunday and Monday, Oct. 22-23.

At the 7 p.m. Sunday program, her topic will be "No Two Alike!," an overview of learning styles for parents. There will be a noon luncheon on Monday for professional Christian educators on the topic "In All Our Ways . . . Acknowledging Him." Tickets are $5 and available through Ward Christian Education Department. Monday evening, Tobias will speak about "Not Just Another Day of School!" for lay Christian educators at 7:30 p.m.

Tobias is a best-selling author of "The Way They Learn" and "The Way We Work." She has been a popular guest on "Focus on the Family" radio broadcasts.

For more information, call the Ward Christian Education Department at (313) 422-1836.

Banquet features Wycliffe missionary

Sue Harshberger, who spent two years teaching at a West African school, will share her dramatic story at a 9:30 a.m. banquet Saturday, Oct. 21, at the Holiday Inn West in Livonia.

The complimentary meal is sponsored by Wycliffe Associates, a support ministry of Wycliffe Bible Translators.

Harshberger, a missionary with Wycliffe Bible Translators, left her job in an American public school to pursue her dream of teaching in Africa.

"I never realized my education degree could be utilized in the mission field," she said. "I found working in Cameroon with children of many different races, cultures and backgrounds to be very rewarding, but I also saw how important it was to the overall Bible translation process to educate the children, especially in literacy."

Harshberger is working as a personnel assistant in Wycliffe's Children's Education Department at the Wycliffe Bible Translators headquarters in Orange, Calif.

Founded by Cameron Townsend in 1934, Wycliffe Bible Translators has more than 5,200 missionaries working throughout the world to translate the Bible into people's native languages.

Translators work where the scriptures don't exist in the local language, and in cooperation with churches, missions, governments, universities and other local organizations. They live with the people to learn their language and culture. They develop an alphabet for the language, analyze the grammar, then produce primers and teach people to read.

Wycliffe is a hands-on ministry that provides opportunities for those interested in helping translate the Bible for indigenous people through volunteer programs in their community or overseas.

Such programs include the Banquet Ministry, where in 400 cities per year, banquets are held, featuring Wycliffe missionaries who provide timely information about the worldwide progress of Bible translation.

For complimentary tickets to the banquet, call (313) 565-7132.

Writer has desires for peace and harmony in her life

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I am a 42-year-old woman who teaches English composition and literature at a local college. As you can imagine, I do a great deal of writing, and when I write in longhand, I use my right hand. Although I find graphology fascinating, I have never before had my handwriting analyzed. Since I value knowledge, particularly self-knowledge, I am interested in any insight you can offer me.

P.P.,

Today's writer has a marvelous facility for handling language, both oral and written. Her intellect is also well-developed.

She has a strong desire for peace and harmony in her life, and is not one to make waves. Rather than cause disharmony, she tends to acquiesce. She has a special sensitivity that allows her to feel with and for other people.

In her desire for congenial relationships, she has developed diplomacy to an art form. She can blend comfortably with individuals or conditions of the moment. She wants approval and support so much that she will attempt to live up to other people's standards, even though she may not always concur with their views and opinions.

Our writer is social and enjoys people of all pursuits and persuasions. They in turn can pick up on this and are attracted to her charisma and caring.

In addition, she can be quite flexible. She has learned to flow with the crowd, sometimes taking the line of least resistance to sidestep unpleasantness and also to be liked.

This young woman is unaffected and modest. She does not have a big ego to nurture. She adapts herself to others, especially those who are significant in her life.

A little caution moves slowly through her handwriting. This allows her to stop and consider the consequences before jumping into situations with both feet.

Her highly developed imagination and spirit of adventure are gifts which allow her to take an ordinary topic and fill it with excitement. She can probably make her literature classes come alive for her students.

People who use lined paper, as our reader did, usually need structure, rules and regulations in their daily life. Order and precision are other traits she values.

When things do not work out as she might wish them to, she has a tendency to rationalize and can usually come up with plausible reasons.

Criticism can be devastating to her. Even when none is intended, she may expect it. A quick retort or a little aggressive behavior can surface when she feels injured.

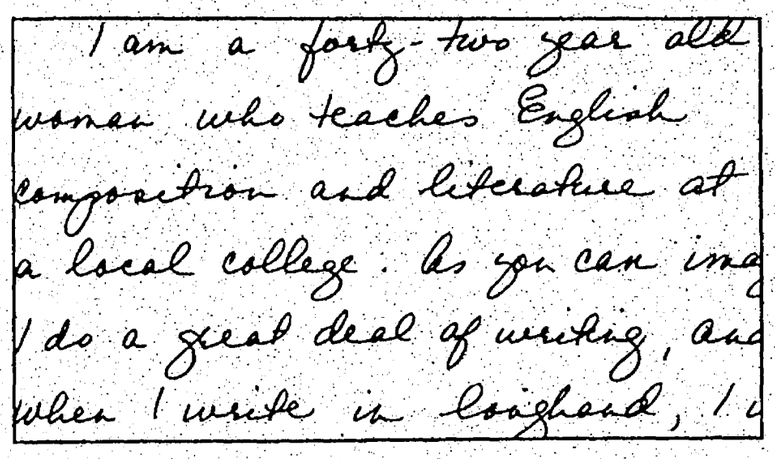

Our writer is not a stranger to some of life's finer things. She enjoys reading, singing to herself (probably in the shower) and can find beauty in nature.

This handwriting suggests she has chosen her career wisely and her students are fortunate to have her. A good teacher is a wonderful gift!

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

Chore workers needed for Senior Alliance list

If you are interested in helping seniors with routine snow removal, household chores or minor home repairs, representatives of a program in western Wayne County would like to hear from you.

The Chore Referral Program links senior citizens with workers who can rake leaves, shovel snow, wash windows, repair faucets, install weatherstripping, do minor roof repairs and similar tasks.

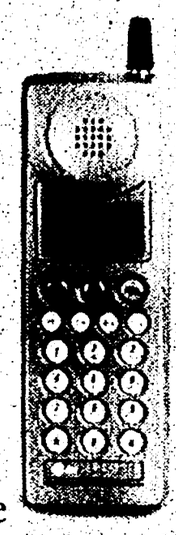

The Senior Alliance, a nonprofit agency serving seniors in western Wayne County, acts as a liaison between seniors and workers. Workers are asked to charge the seniors no more than $6 an hour and must provide three references, including two work references.

Workers who meet the requirements will be placed on The Senior Alliance referral list. Once a senior chooses and likes a worker, it is the responsibility of the senior to set up a work schedule and make payment.

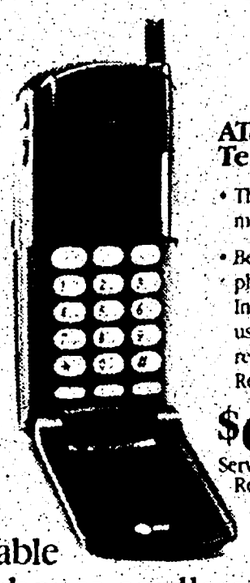

If you or someone you know would like to join The Senior Alliance Chore Referral Program and help a senior citizen, call (313) 722-2830 for more information.

Program explores eating disorders

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Do you know someone who has an unusually low intake of food or is one for severe diets or fasts? How about someone who is preoccupied with and constantly talks about food and/or weight?

Those are just two warning signs of anorexia nervosa and bulimia nervosa, and people who exhibit them may benefit from Eating Feelings, a five-part educational program being offered by Family Service Detroit and Wayne County at its Livonia office beginning Nov. 14.

"A lot of things center around food and one of the things this class does is sort out the relationship with food," said Brenda Plecha of Family Services. "It's not that you weigh this much or that much. It's a control thing, especially with anorexics and bulimics."

Eating Feelings was originally developed by Jewish Family Services in San Antonio, Texas, in 1988. There was such a tremendous response to the five-part program that the agency put together a training program and offered it to Family Service agencies across the country. FS agencies in 10 states have picked up the program, including Michigan.

A cooperative effort between 14 FS agencies in the state and the Forest View Psychiatric Hospital in Grand Rapids, the program isn't a weight loss or weight gain program. Rather it addresses eating disorders and provides a way for individuals to learn how they can change their relationship with food. It also offers an eating profile assessment of what participants need to overcome an eating disorder, counseling and support groups for individuals and family members.

FS Detroit Wayne County began offering Eating Feelings in September at its Dearborn office. Since then, it has offered it at its Trenton and Meyers/McNichols (Detroit) offices. The response, according to Plecha, has been positive.

Opportunity to learn

"There's a lot of shame and guilt involved with eating disorders and when people see an opportunity to find out more, they take it," she said. "These people think it would be easier to be an alcoholic because you don't need alcohol to live. But you need food, so it's harder to deal with an eating disorder."

More than 90 percent of those affected by an eating disorder are adolescent and young adult women and eating disorders tend to run in families with female relatives most often affected.

Eating disorders also have among the highest mortality rates of all mental disorders, killing up to 10 percent of their victims.

There are warning signs that a person may have an eating disorder. Anorexics display extreme or significant weight loss, a reduced food intake and ritualistic eating habits like cutting food into extremely small bites or chewing every bite a large number of times.

"For an anorexic, everything is really controlled and planned," Plecha said. "And when they do eat, they may say something like 'Yeah, I had a Cheerio,' and they mean one Cheerio."

While anorexics, when they do eat, select only low fat and low calorie foods, bulimics frequently eat large amounts of food, often high in calories and do not gain weight. Other warning signs are making excuses to go to the restroom after most meals, mood swings and unusual swelling around the jaw.

"You always find someone who says they did that (purging) a couple of times), no big deal, but for others, it is a big deal because again, it's the feelings they have," Plecha said. "It's like what steroids are to boys who want to bulk up. For girls, it's small and thin."

Loss of control

Compulsive overeaters feel a loss of control when eating as well as guilt or shame after eating. They experience repeated and unsuccessful attempts at weight loss and eat for emotional comfort, Plecha said. However, overeaters have more willpower than most people but, self depreciation prevents them from succeeding.

"It's a fact of life, you have to breathe air, you have to protest your body, you have to eat," Plecha said. "You can decide not to have sexual relationships, but you have to eat."

The program can accommodate 10-15 people and is geared for men and women, young and old alike. The presenters are therapists, some of whom have personally dealt with eating disorders, Plecha said.

There is a $75 charge for the five sessions, which will be 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning Nov. 14. The fee is due in full prior to the first session. For people who decide to follow up the class with therapy or treatment, Family Service has a sliding fee scale for qualified participants. Services also are covered by most insurances.

Family Service's Livonia office is at 16755 Middlebelt. For more information, call the office at (313) 427-9310, or the Eating Feelings hot line at (800) 934-4438. The hot line is linked to Forest View Psychiatric Hospital, which is handling the prescreening for the program.

Emmett worked with 20 or 30 other college-aged women from around the world, forming a youth group.

"I really wasn't sure what to expect," she said. "Our group was based on reading through the platform for action that was proposed by the United Nations, then making changes we thought were needed."

After Emmett's group made changes, two or three authorized delegates brought the final suggestions to the conference in Beijing. Participants in the conference had to be accredited by the Chinese government, and accreditation was severely limited, especially for groups.

Even though Emmett did not attend actual conference sessions, her experience definitely was not marginal.

"I've come back a lot more aware of women's issues, the media, and how the United Nations actually works," she said.

Emmett said the issues discussed were varied and often determined by regionalism. For the United States, the issues included domestic violence, workplace issues and health care for aging baby boomers. For the Middle East, it was religious restrictions, and for developing Third World countries, it was lack of responsibility by multi-nationals toward women, their largest workforce. Although foreign to Western cultures, dowries and child marriages ranked as important issues.

While Emmett was satisfied with the conference's general tone, she was frustrated by the subtle downplaying of the youth perspective.

"There's always a projection on youth — and a lot of the young people there picked this up — that we are the leaders to tomorrow," she said. "We have issues now. We have work to do now. We aren't the future. We're the present."

Emmett's group discussed several young women's issues — equal education, divorced families, incest and molestation, the environment and teenage relationships. About the latter, she said, "A lot of people think it's one of those 'staged' things, but it's really the learning ground for many young women for their future relationships, pregnancy, future cases of domestic abuse."

Lesson in bureaucracy

The conference also provided Emmett with a lesson in bureaucratic realism.

"Let's say if the United States or the United Nations gives money to a certain cause, it kind of trickles out. It's diluted. People on one side see how they (causes) are getting all this, and people on the other side see how it's not working."

The media frustrated Emmett, especially U.S. coverage.

"I've never been involved with anything so newsworthy before, so it was interesting to see how the media acted and what they published," she said. "They refused to look at what was really going on, what the women were talking about, and what issues were being dealt with. Instead, they were sensationalizing bits and pieces, bringing in other things, such as Chinese-United States governmental relations, and diluting what was really going on."

When asked about the impact of Hillary Clinton's visit, Emmett said that "just her coming said she was a part of it, a part of what's going on. But I don't think she changed anything about the conference, didn't make it more or less than it would have been without her."

Emmett's Beijing experience was not all work and no play. After the conference, she traveled by herself around the country for four days, visiting the cities of Tianjin and Bedaike.

"I couldn't even say where I wanted to go to the cab drivers without a half hour of pantomiming," she said.

What fascinated her most about her post-conference travels was the fact the everyone wanted to speak to her.

"Clearly, I was a foreigner," she said. "They'd ask me what I was, and I'd say American. Then they would say, 'U-S-A!'"

Emmett's mother said her daughter was born determined. However, she believes her sense of determination was honed by life on their farm and the demands of running a business.

Emmett took a semester off from her studies. She's helping run Foreman's Orchards in Northville for the season. She's also putting together a slide presentation of her trip to be shown at Plymouth Salem High School and the Detroit Refugee Coalition. She loves photography and is doing the developing herself.

WRIF has its blood donors rock, roll up sleeves forRC

■ 'WRIF's longtime commitment to collecting blood for patients in our area is admirable . . .'

Dr. Dan Waxman

The American Red Cross and WRIF-FM 101.1 are asking area residents rock and roll up their sleeves at the 12th annual WRIF Blood Drive at locations in Livonia and Warren Friday, Oct. 20.

Laurel Manor in Livonia will kick off the event at 6 a.m. and will run until 8 p.m. The Home Depot at 25879 Hoover, Warren, will host the drive 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

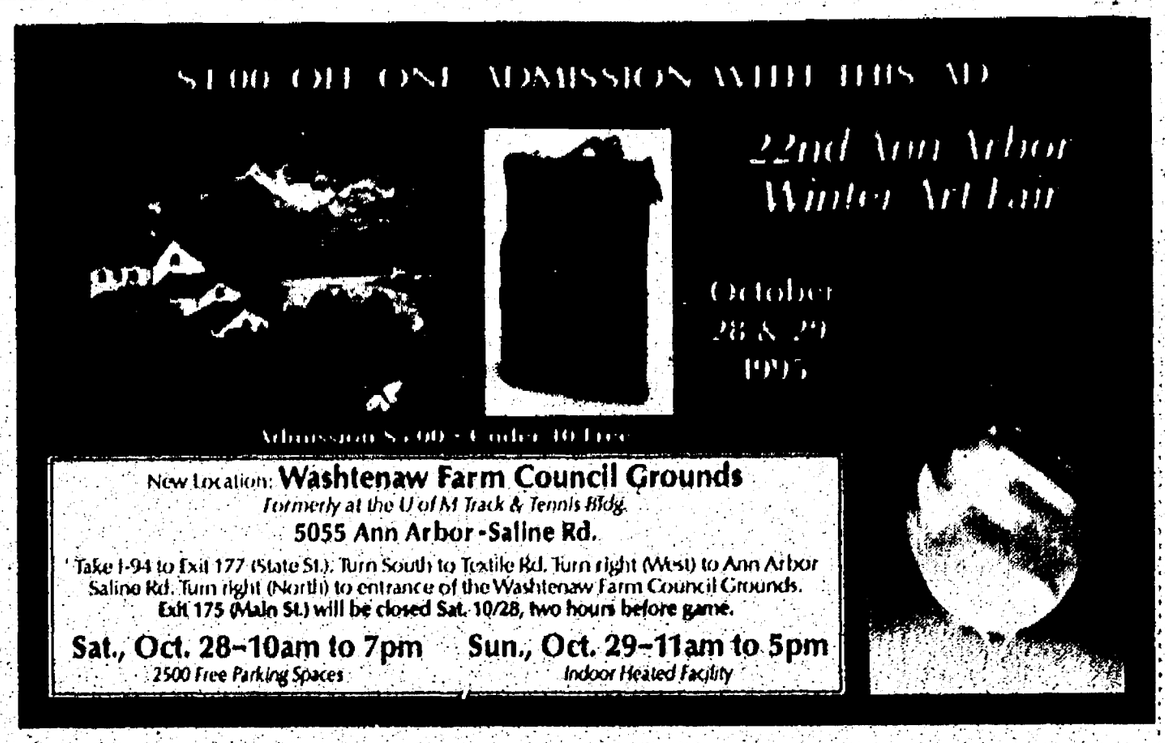

WRIF's Trudi Daniels will report live from Laurel Manor 6-10 a.m., while Doug Podell will broadcast from Home Depot 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mike Staff and Rob Schaefer will report live from either site beginning at 2 p.m.

Both locations will offer special appreciation gifts, such as a 12th annual WRIF Blood Drive T-shirt and a coupon for a free gallon of Sierra anti-freeze, to anyone who attempts to donate blood. The first 200 people (combined total from both sites) will receive a pair of Vipers hockey tickets.

Additionally, one person from each site will be the lucky winner of a pair of tickets to sit in the WRIF suite at an upcoming Detroit Lions game.

"In the past 11 years that WRIF has been sponsoring blood drives, it has collected a total of 2,764 pints of blood," said Dr. Dan Waxman, principal officer for the Southeastern Michigan Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "WRIF's longtime commitment to collecting blood for patients in our area is admirable and they do it in a way that lets the donors have some fun."

Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh more than 110 pounds and be in good general health. Appointments can be made by calling (800) GIVE-LIFE. Walk-ins also are welcome.

Frightening fun

BY DIANE HANSON

Crash! Groan! Slam! Screech! Ah, the familiar sounds of those foreboding abodes, which materialize each October.

Better known as haunted houses, the dire dungeons of doom and despair are designed to scare the bejabbers out of the bravest of souls, even though in our heart of hearts, we know they are developed and manned by some kindly folks with families and normal occupations by day.

Why is it then, that so many demur and law-abiding citizens are drawn like mystical magnets to those harrowing habitats of horrendous happenings?

"People like the thrill of being scared," explained Sue Sirada, clinical psychologist at Northwestern Community Services in Livonia.

Cranbrook Institute of Science in Bloomfield Hills, manages to expertly combine the intrigue of science and the fun of Halloween with activities like a glow-in-the-dark paleontology dig, a "Science Seance" to show how those fake illusions are created and a laser light show to the tune of "Monster Mash."

"This is definitely a family event," said public relations specialist, Carrie Murphy. "We like to call it a slightly scary, somewhat scientific family event."

HAUNTING EVENTS

• Haunted Forest: Youngsters ages 6-12 are invited to tour the haunted forest behind the YMCA on Stark Road, north of Schoolcraft in Livonia. Admission: $2 per person. See witches, ghosts and goblins, 7:30-9:30 p.m., Friday & Saturday, Oct. 27-28, call (313) 261-2161.

• Haunted Museum: "The Magic School Bus" at the Detroit Science Center 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursday-Tuesday, Oct. 26-31. Children ages 4-10 will perform creepy chemistry, see "Monster Mash" Laser Show, and enjoy two hours of fun and refreshments. Reservations are required. Non-members, $20 for one adult and one child, $5 each additional family member. Members, $8 for one adult and one child, $2 each additional family member. (313) 577-8400.

• Zoo Boo: Detroit Zoo, 10 Mile Road at Woodward, Royal Oak, 5-8 p.m. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 29-31. Cost: $3; children under 2 free, parking free. Children will walk through a 1/2 mile Halloween trail with a zoo-loaned flashlight to collect treats from costumed volunteers at treat stations. Don Jones' Halloween Magic Show at trail's end. Hot doughnuts and cider available for sale. Tickets sold daily 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at box office until sold out. (810) 541-5835.

• Cranbrook Institute of Science: "Halloween Science," 6-8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27-28. Children come dressed in costume to see a haunting laser-light show, and collect science-related gadgets at hands-on activities stations. The Institute is at 1221 N. Woodward Ave., Bloomfield Hills. Cost: $6 per person (includes admission to museum), refreshments. Reservations required. (810) 645-3260.

ENTERTAINMENT

• Marquis Children's Theatre, 135 E. Main, Northville presents "The Pale Pink Dragon," 2:30 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Oct. 21-22; Oct. 28-29; 7:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20 & 27. Theater is decorated for Halloween. Tickets $5 at door, box office or ordered by phone, (810) 349-8110.

• Farmington Community Band Concert at Twelve Oaks Mall, 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 29. The band will be in costume.

• Mall Magic: A family Halloween Magic Show 6:30 p.m. & 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28 in the Center Court of Westland Mall, (313) 425-5001.

• Detroit Symphony Orchestra: Young People's Concert and Costume Parade. On Oct. 28 the DSO will be joined by the Bob Brown Puppets to perform the story of "Peter Pan" 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. At approximately 12:45 p.m., children will be invited to parade across stage to the strains of spooky Halloweenish music. Prizes will be awarded. Tickets $17 to $7, call (313) 833-3700 or (810) 645-6666.

SPECIAL WRITER

Did you know that before the late 19th century, skyscrapers were but a dream of a few eccentric architects?

Or, that the towering structures of the Renaissance Center would never have existed without the invention of electricity?

In Ralph Glenn's "Dynamic Detroit Architecture" class at Madonna University in Livonia, students are learning facts like these to increase their awareness of architectural history in the area.

To reinforce the message, Glenn arranged for a 40 piece exhibit of antique architectural toys from the Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson Collection to fill the six Exhibit Gallery showcases on campus through the month of October.

Skyscrapers like the Flat Iron building, early airports and Lincoln Logs tell a story of the art of architecture from 1850 through the 1980s.

By viewing the toys and learning more about their history, lessons of civilization's evolution come to life.

"It's sort of a tie-in. I wanted to show American architecture to enrich the contents of the class and to make students aware of their architectural heritage in the metro area," said Glenn, art department chairman.

Student field trips to downtown Detroit structures like the Guardian, Buhl and Fisher buildings relay little known facts about early skyscrapers.

The first were constructed in Chicago not New York City. Devastated by the Great Fire of 1871, the Windy City began to rebuild, unfettered by older structures and traditions which could have influenced the architecture.

"We learned that before electricity there weren't any skyscrapers because no electricity meant no elevators. In this area the Top of the Troy building is the same shape as the Flat Iron building. The triangular shaped New York City structure built in 1902 has an iron skeleton with a stone exterior. This was a relatively new phenomena as improvement in the strength of structural iron and steel made increasing heights possible," said Glenn.

According to Mary Niman, the New York City structure bears a French Renaissance blanket of ornament that covers the facade. Niman knows a lot

Art exhibits feature a variety of works

■ ARTS COMMISSION SHOWS

Monthly art exhibits sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission continue at three locations in the city.

Mixed media work by members of Art Block, Inc. has been installed in the lobby of Livonia City Hall until Nov. 2. The show, consisting of artists from Novi, Walled Lake, South Lyon and New Hudson is the last one scheduled for this year. Exhibits resume in January. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Nature and wildlife paintings by Ruth Ann Mersino fill the second-floor showcases at the Civic Center Library until Oct. 30.

In the library's fine arts gallery mixed media by Connie Cronenwett, Stevenson High School art department chairwoman, takes over the exhibit space through Nov. 9. Library hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

about the building because as director of operations for the Detroit Antique Toy Museum, she studies the history of each toy.

A non-profit operating foundation, the museum lends the historic toys to other museums, galleries and related organizations for educational purposes.

The collection was assembled over a period of more than 30 years by Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson, great-grandson of James E. Scripps who established the Detroit News in 1873 and was instrumental in the founding of the Detroit Institute of Arts. The toys illustrate the historical progress of the 19th and 20th century with an emphasis on post-Industrial Revolution in the United States.

The playthings reflect scientific, educational, geographic, and social advances in time. Art and architecture have relayed a history of cultures from the era when woman and mankind lived in caves. In the early decades of the 20th century architecture, like painting and sculpture, began to challenge the basic concepts by which art had been created since the Renaissance.

"The triangular shape of the Flat Iron building became a symbol of Manhattan and a topic of interest for artists and photographers. By studying and understanding what year the toy's from, you start learning history and American popular culture," said Niman.

The New York City skyscraper on the corner of 23rd and Broadway is where the term "23 Skidoo" originated. Policemen used it as a code to rid the area of men gathered there to gawk at the ladies as they passed by, their flappable skirts blown every which way in the strong downdraft produced by the structure.

More than 7,000 toys similar to those in the Madonna University exhibit make up the entire Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson Collection, part of which are on display in the Detroit Antique Toy Museum Gallery at the Detroit Historical Museum. Dolls, cast iron and stamped metal toys, board games, and trains tell the story of our evolution.

Lure of the wild fascinates nature, waterfowl painter

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Ruth Ann Mersino paints what she loves and it shows. Waterfowl resting on ponds, deer feasting in winter corn fields, and geese making one last stop before heading south till Spring, all of these scenes illustrate her fondness for wildlife and nature.

Much of the subject matter is home grown, taken from the countryside surrounding the artist's 10-acre farm in Ortonville. In most instances, the serene landscape served as the inspiration necessary to create the paintings published on the covers of magazines like "Michigan Out-of-Doors" and "Waterfowl USA."

The Livonia Arts Commission presents a first-hand look at Mersino's artwork with an exhibit of oil and watercolor paintings through Oct. 30 in the Livonia Civic Center Library's second floor showcases.

Mersino, who's donated many of her paintings to benefit groups such as Ducks Limited, took her first adult education painting class in Oxford 25 years ago. She's painted nonstop ever since.

Today, her work is found in locations ranging from The Artful Framer in Clarkston to Heritage Home Framing & Gallery in Lake Orion and Creative Framing & Gallery in Plymouth.

A lover of birds and animals, the mother of four (grandmother of 12), captures wildlife and nature unharmed to remind the viewer of their beauty. She has released 19 reasonably-priced limited edition prints of her paintings so that others can afford to enjoy them as well.

"My motto is painting is cheaper than a psychiatrist. I paint what I love, I love the country. We're farmers who grow our own vegetables and fruit. We built our own home and dug the pond," said Mersino, a graduate of Oxford High School.

Nature artist: Ruth-Ann Mersino with her painting "Merganser Hideaway."

Every Spring, Mersino and Stanley, her husband of 32 years, raise mallards and pheasants purchased locally from a breeder, then returns them to the wild.

"We put the eggs under our chickens. The day-old ducklings clone us as their parents until they're old enough to fly. By this time they're calling in wild ducks. When the pond starts freezing they leave."

Trips to such places as Oba Lake in Northern Ontario provide Mersino with inspiration as well. Along with the rest of her camping gear, she packs watercolor paints to make color sketches for future oil paintings.

"It's really wild. You can only take the train or fly in. We have bears in camp and you can watch the animals raise their young during the last week in June there."

Exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. For more information call Alanskas at (313) 464-2741.

THEATER REVIEW

VICTORIA DIAZ

If you're looking to get into the spirit of Halloween, wend your way toward The Theatre Guild on a dark night during this spooky season, and experience their new, spine-tickling production, 'A Host of Ghosts.'

Advertised as "a devilishly delightful evening of ghostly tales, spooky stories, and chilling chuckles," it's an original work, put together and directed by Dale Van Dorp. (A man of many hats, Van Dorp also produced, and appeared in the show on opening night, when one of the performers became unavailable shortly before showtime.)

The four-person performance — featuring Van Dorp, Collene Hackney (also a last-minute replacement), Maxine Parshall, and Thom Hinks — contains some scarifying treats, although it's a bit rough and tricky around the edges.

You'll be introduced to the ghost of Dylan Thomas, plus a Connecticut lighthouse ghost, even an apparition in a South Carolina furniture factory. And, if you're one of those who thinks all ghost stories originated in a bygone age, you may be especially intrigued by brief accounts of modern-day apparitions, especially those that have been spotted here in Michigan in recent years. (No, Elvis' ghost does not make an appearance.)

Highlights of the production include a re-enactment of W.W. Jacobs' famous short story, "The Monkey's Paw," and "The Brighton Road," one of those stranded-on-a-lonely-thoroughfare nightmare tales, in which the main character (played nicely here by Van Dorp) may not be at all where he thinks he is.

Maxine Parshall effectively portrays an aged woman who has a strange story to tell about the "death" of her small son, Maxie. Thom Hinks, all decked out in white, has fun as a garrulous Mark Twain, relating the ghostly "The Golden Arm," a blood-curdler with a playful, surprise twist at the end.

This theatre-in-the-round production with the ghostly theme cries out for more imaginative lighting design, however. Players relate many of these stories in this tiny theatre underneath standard white lighting, when a bit more creativity in this direction would go far toward establishing the right mood. (It's not for nothing, is it, that we usually tell ghost stories after dark, or around a campfire, or employ the old lighted-flashlight-beneath-the-chin trick?) When lighting effects are used more creatively, as in the opening "ceremony" (lit by candles), and another scene in which Abe Lincoln (van Dorp) relates a peculiar dream he has had about his own death, it's instant improvement.

The cast seems occasionally haunted by a tendency to bubble and sparkle. Nothing wrong with bubble and sparkle, of course, in the right place. But sometimes, bubble and sparkle can scare a ghost to death.

- REVOLUTION: A GALLERY PROJECT
  Solo exhibits by Jim Melchert and Annabeth Rosen will continue to Dec. 2 at 23257 Woodward, Ferndale. Artists' talk 6:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 20; reception for the artists 5:30-8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21. Through the processes of breaking, stacking, joining and glazing commercially fabricated tiles, Melchert creates a collaged field which, in its beautiful play of ceramic surfaces, brings together the shattered structure. Highly dimensional and covered with luscious colored lead glazes, Rosen's decorative tiles are a beautiful departure from the overly flat and thin ones currently produced by industry; her motifs of nature and geometry are set in grid patterns, often diagonally. Melchert was director of the National Endowment for the Arts 1977-81. Rosen earned a master of fine arts degree from the Cranbrook Academy of Art.

'Shorty' remains faithful to Leonard

JOHN MONAGHAN

"It's all in the look," advises Chili Palmer, the loan- shark-turned-movie-producer played by John Travolta. It's a look that says you're nothing to me, nothing more than a number in a ledger.

Several times in "Get Shorty," someone will try to use "the look." For movie star Martin Weir, it brings accolades from those trying to get him to act in their latest project. For Harry Zimm, a low-budget moviemaker who aims it on a Miami beach wiseguy, it lands him a punch in the mouth.

It's touches like this that work so well in "Get Shorty," one of the few film adaptations of an Elmore Leonard novel that really hits the mark. These aren't realistic gangsters and movie moguls, but caricatures of them, with quirks and coincidences as fun to watch as to read.

A tip on an insurance fraud lures Chili to the West Coast, where a chance meeting with Harry gives him the idea that, if this guy can be a movie producer, then he can too. Harry usually makes Roger Corman-like monster epics, but for once has gotten ahold of something substantial.

The only hitch: the screenwriter's widow (Bette Midler) wants a small fortune for it and Harry is up to his ears in debt. This is where Chili and "the look" make their entrance. He helps Harry hold off a pair of loan sharks, come up with some real cash, and also attract a major star to the project.

On top of that $300,000 insurance settlement, there's another half million in an airport storage locker. But that's almost another story entirely.

Director Barry Sonnenfeld has the right eye for this brand of subtle comedy, effortlessly coaxing knockout performances from some of the screen's best character actors. Danny DeVito, who produced the movie, has just enough screen time as a megalomaniac actor, an easy mark for master manipulator Chili.

Hackman dons a pointy beard and turtle neck sweaters under tweed jackets as Harry, well-known in the Hollywood community but never a major player. "Clockers'" Delroy Lindo plays a loan shark, Rene Russo a grade-Z movie queen, always on the fringe of success so all the more hungry for it.

LINDA CHEN

Making It: Chili Pamer (John Travolta), a Miami loan-shark sent to Los Angeles to collect on a gambling debt, and Karen Flores (Rene Russo), a B-movie actress, team up in MGM's "Get Shorty."

Chili, a movie buff, would appreciate "Get Shorty's" homages to old Hollywood, from Midler's semi-grieving widow straight out of "The Maltese Falcon" to the carnival-style music from "Touch of Evil," a movie that Chili can recite word for word.

If the movie proves anything it's that John Travola's performance in "Pulp Fiction" was no fluke. His black-clad Chili is smart, handsome, and confident enough to drive not a long black sedan but a sleek mini-van with all the options.

After four decades of watching his novels butchered on the big screen, Birmingham's Elmore Leonard should be happy to find his name on one of the year's cleverest comedies.

To leave a message for John Monaghan, dial 953-2047, mailbox number 1866, on a Touch-Tone phone, fax him a note at 591-7279 or write him in care of Entertainment, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

STREET SCENE

A sampling of what's playing at alternative movie theaters across metro Detroit as reviewed by John Monaghan.

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE, Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call 313-833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"Persuasion" (Britain - 1995). 7, 9:30 p.m. Oct. 20 - 21; 4, 7 p.m. Oct. 22. A woman is given a second chance at the love of her life in this acclaimed adaptation of Jane Austen's final novel.

"Mina Tannenbaum" (France - 1994). 7 p.m. Oct. 23. This directorial debut from Martine Dugowson charts the 25-year friendship between Mina and Ethel from children in the '60s to adults in the '90s.

■ KINOTEK, WINDSOR FILM THEATRE
2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor, Canada. Call 519-254-FILM for more information. ($4.50 Canadian; $4 US)

"The Doll" (Sweden - 1962). 9 p.m. Oct. 23 - 24. Banned in England during its initial release, this little-seen film finds a lonely night watchman taking home a female mannequin from the department store. He starts talking to it, brings it food and clothing, but then it wants more: a social life. Followed by a screening of the classic "Twilight Zone" episode, "After Hours."

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call 810-544-3030 for information. ($3)

"Mirror, Mirror" (USA - 1992). 7:30 p.m. Oct. 24. Karen Black stars in this locally produced feature, a psychological thriller with more than a passing nod to Hitchcock.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call 810- 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Jeffrey" (USA - 1995). A gay actor/waiter living in New York vows celibacy in fear of contracting AIDS, but then meets the man of his dreams who just happens to be HIV-positive. "Star Trek's" Patrick Stewart recalls his stage actor origins in his turn as a flamboyant interior decorator.

"The Brothers McMullen" (USA - 1995). For what some people spend on a new car, Edward Burns made this engaging first feature about a young screenwriter and his two brothers in contemporary Long Island. Burns calls his audience pleaser a "romantic comedy for guys" and what it lacks in acting and production values it more than makes up in charm.

■ MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call 810-855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"How to Make an American Quilt" (USA - 1995). Winona Ryder wants advice about marriage, so visits her grandmother and great aunt (Ellen Burstyn and Anne Bancroft) who are already in the process ofcreating her wedding quilt. Along the way they tell stories about their own lives and loves. Directed by Jocelyn Moorhouse ("Proof").

"Blue in the Face" (USA - 1995). Director Wayne Wang wrapped early on his low-budget art house hit "Smoke," so he invited some friends and colleagues over to improvise a second movie. This one is still set in the Harvey Keitel's tobacco shop but the customers now include Jim Jarmusch, Lou Reed, Madonna, and Michael J. Fox. It promises to be a blast. Starts Friday.

Livonia-based Skolars are ultimate Rude Boys

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Skolars lead singer Jef "Sanguis" is sitting at a table at My Granny's restaurant with three other members of his Livonia-based ska band. He's friendly, polite, and maybe even charming.

But at the end of lunch he stresses that he's really the quintessential "Rude Boy."

"I insult everybody because I feel like it. . . . I like to be abrasive but it's all done in fun," the Redford resident said.

"A Rude Boy is exactly what it sounds like. Rude Boy is just rude. Too many people think it's someone who likes ska. They generally adhere to ska and oi music. The generalization of it all is people who like to say Rude Boys like ska, Rude Girls like ska. But sometimes we like to get silly and take it literally."

Rancid fans will be able to witness his on-stage abrasive attitude when the Livonia-based Skolars open for the Spin magazine coverboys at the State Theatre in Detroit on Thursday, Oct. 22.

Although he possesses a carefree attitude, he and the Skolars are self-conscious about opening for Rancid.

"You like to see the people you respect like your music . . . You like to see your peers enjoy what you're doing as well," he said.

Rancid may have already heard The Skolars' music. "Sanguis," who booked members of Rancid's former band Operation Ivy at Blondie's in Detroit and has since kept in touch, slipped band members tapes of The Skolars' music but he's "oblivious" as to if they've ever listened to it.

The Skolars — which also includes guitarist Mark Penza of Garden City, trumpetor John Reynolds, saxophonist Ben Johnson, drummer Art Curtis and trombonist Steve Kachnowski of Livonia, and bassist Randy Schroeder of Westland — aren't getting their hopes up high about the show but they are wishing for the best. Already the band members have noticed that more people recognize the band's name.

"It's doing wonders for us. We've been handling out fliers to people we know have never seen us before. It's presumptuous for us to have high expectations. Just because it's a great show it doesn't mean we're a great band."

The Skolars are using the show as a way to promote their just-released vinyl EP "Something Old, Something New, Something Borrowed, Um, Something Else" (Regression Records). Besides playing their own punk-flavored ska music, the band pays tribute to fellow Detroit-area ska bands.

A member of the Suicide Machines is on the cover, while the face of The Exceptions' guitarist Ryan Reeves is on the center of the single.

"It's our tribute to Ryan," he said. "He had no idea until it came out that he was on the record. Royce from the Suicide Machines is on the cover. We pay homage to a few fellow bands."

The Skolars open for Rancid and The Lunachicks, 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, at the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Tickets are $10 in advance for the all-ages show. For more information, call (313) 961-5451.

Hoping for acceptance: The Skolars, shown here with a couple of their friends, are intimidated by opening for Rancid on Sunday, Oct. 22, at the State Theatre in Detroit.

Rootsy Son Volt plays Blind Pig

Son Volt
Jay Farrar: guitar/vocals
Mike Heidorn: drums
Jim Boquist: bass/vocals
Dave Boquist: guitar/banjo/fiddle/lap steel guitar

Release: Trace (Warner Bros.)

Jay Farrar is a man of few words. For Farrar, asking him how his experiences as lead singer for Uncle Tupelo influenced his new band is like pulling teeth.

"I don't know. I try to stay away from comparing the two. Different bands, different people."

When Uncle Tupelo broke up, most of the band formed Wilco, one of the few groups that deserves every bit of hype it gets, and embellished Uncle Tupelo's roots rock sound. Son Volt — which also includes ex-Uncle Tupelo member Mike Heidorn — plays up the elements of country, folk, and blues with a bit of rock thrown in for good measure.

When writing songs, Farrar plays on the deadline pressure.

"Most of the songs, I guess, were written right up to and while we were in the studio. That's actually the way it seems to work. I usually don't seem to write songs on the road. I write the majority of the songs right before the studio."

The band will is scheduled to play the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor, on Saturday, Oct. 21. Farrar didn't seem too moved by it is last visit to the area.

"Uncle Tupelo played there once. It was OK."

Doors open at 9:30 p.m. for the Oct. 21 show. Tickets are $7 in advance. Those 19 and older will be admitted. For more information, call (313) 996-8555.

'A Taste of Ireland' tour will focus on Great Famine

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

It's a long way from an Irish house party to the Mercy High School auditorium, but Comhaltas Ceoltoiri Eireann (Musicians Association of Ireland) will bridge that gap at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, with a "Taste of Ireland" concert featuring Ireland's finest.

Farmington Hills has been selected as one of 18 North American venues by champion musicians and dancers who will bring a bit of the auld sod into the hearts of what's expected to be a capacity crowd.

Livonia's Gertie O'Kennedy, a member of the local Comhaltas chapter, says concert-goers will be treated to an enlightening, entertaining evening of Celtic culture.

"This year's event is going to have as its theme the Great Famine," said O'Kennedy. "This is the 150th anniversary of the famine in Ireland, and it's being commemorated all around the country, and in places all around Ireland they're putting up monuments."

The famine took the lives of one million people from 1846-49.

"The Comhaltas concert is always a great night, because you have all of these musicians and dancers who have competed since they were, some of them, 6 and 7 years old. The performers compete in Ireland, and the ones who come out on top are given a chance to come over here," she said.

Entertainers, who hail from all over Ireland as well as Leeds and Manchester, England, will perform on the harp, fiddle, pipes, flute, concertina, banjo and accordion. Dancers, singers and storytellers also are on tour.

Concert co-chair Mickey Neenan of Redford promises "entertainment to lighten your heart, banish your cares and gladden your spirits, as it did in the homes of Ireland for centuries."

"Even in the midst of strife and hardship, our people left the house dance in the dawn hours of day regenerated and ready to brave any challenge," said Stephen Conroy, Comhaltas tour manager. "Music truly has the power to heal, motivate and inspire. May it be so for you during this, our cultural presentation from Ireland."

A musical ceili will follow the concert at the Ancient Order of Hibernians Hall, Grand River and Telegraph.

Concert tickets are $15 per person and $12 for Comhaltas members, retirees and students. Tickets may be reserved by calling (810) 335-6327, (313) 386-3936, and (810) 255-7677.

Locally, Comhaltas offers music, dance and Irish lessons for adults and children at the White Heather Club in Ferndale. For more information, call Karen Law at (810) 547-1461 or Frank Edgley at (519) 948-9149.

Founded in Ireland in 1951 to revive traditional Irish music and explore the rich heritage of Ireland, Comhaltas now has branches in England, Italy, Canada, Australia, and throughout Europe and the U.S.

Livonia Symphony features 2 flutists in season opener

Livonia Symphony Orchestra opens its 1995-96 season with a concert featuring flutists Robynn Rhodes and Alexander Zonjic, and the Schoolcraft Community Choir, 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 21, at James P. Carli Auditorium (Churchill High School, Newburgh Road between Ann Arbor Road and Joy Road), Livonia.

Tickets are $12, senior citizens $10, students $8, and available at the door or in advance by calling (313) 421-1111. Season tickets are also available.

Newly appointed music director Volodymyr Schesiuk will be conducting the orchestra. Don Stromberg will direct the choir.

The program includes Mozart's "Requiem," Verdi's "Nabucco," Concerto in G Major — Allegro — Cimarosa for two flutes and orchestra, "Sentimentale from the Suite for two Flutes" by Bolling, Beethoven's "Symphony No. 3" and selections by Spartacus and Khachaturian.

For Schesiuk who was conductor-in-residence of the Bolshoi Theatre of Moscow, and chief conductor of the Kyrgyzstan State Opera and Ballet Theater before moving to the United States from the former Soviet Union in 1991, the concert is the start of what he hopes will be a very good season.

"This orchestra has great potential," he said. "We can do great stuff."

Schesiuk lives in Garden City, and is not a stranger to the Livonia Symphony. He played with the group as a violinist, and became a guest conductor in 1992.

There are about 60 musicians in the symphony — college students, professional musicians, people with degrees in music, and even corporate executives.

DINING

It's a 'Fantravaganza'

BY KATHLEEN SPRING
SPECIAL WRITER

An expertly prepared gourmet dinner, accompanied by a fine glass of wine, is a work of art.

People who enjoy both the visual aspects and the taste of a fine meal often are the same people who enjoy the arts in general.

An opportunity to enjoy fine foods and, at the same time, support the arts, is presenting itself Saturday, October 28, at the American Center Building, when the Fanclub Foundation for the Arts will be presenting its annual Fantravaganza taste fest party.

"It's a good cause, and it's a good group of people to reach. It's a two way street for us," said Fantravaganza participant Tom Brandol, owner of Tom's Oyster Bar, Royal Oak, with a soon-to-be-opened location in Southfield. "It's a social event. You meet people who are educated and interested in the arts and who like to dine out. The first time I met Chef Milos (Golden Mushroom) was at a taste fest."

The Fanclub has been hosting this annual party for ten years. Their funds help support emerging non-profit arts organizations. This year's grant recipients are Hilberry Theater (Wayne State University's graduate repertory theater), Youtheatre (which was associated with the Detroit Art Institute for 25 years, until the Michigan arts budget cuts), Orchards Children's Services (which has a summer arts program for abused children), and Walled Lake Central High School Art Program.

In addition to choosing foods from 30 of the finest restaurants in the Detroit area, participants can enjoy at the open bar Fris, Beefeaters, Kalua and hummers (courtesy of Hiram Walker & Sons). The Merchants Warehouse will also be providing a tasting of Wines-of-the-World, including an all champagne table. John Jonna, with 30 years of experience in the wine business, will be there to answer questions.

"This is your opportunity to start your own mini wine cellar," said John Bloom, executive director of the Fanclub and main organizer of the event. "There are so many new wines coming out, and I think it's an exciting way to taste the new wines and match them with different kinds of food."

And, as if this weren't enough, the Fantravaganza dust happens to take place the weekend before Halloween, with an opportunity for guests to wear a costume and compete for $500 in prizes. There's no fear of "being the only one in costume" because the entertainment includes costumed people from the Taylor Ballet Company, the Troy Dance Company, the Canadian Dance Motivators and from the 10 Heidi's hair salons.

The theme for this year's event is a fantasy circus. Cirque du Surreal is reminiscent of Salvador Dali's famous works, including the limp watch. Various volunteer professionals, along with the Walled Lake Central High School Honors Art students, have produced surreal, grotesque circus images that will grab your attention at the door, and the two DJs will keep your feet moving as you stroll down the food aisles.

Block lead marathoner

It was cold and blustery Sunday, but Livonian Chuck Block ran one of his best races ever at the Detroit Free Press/Mazda International Marathon.

The 39-year-old Block covered the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 42 minutes, 44 seconds, good enough for 27th among men and 28th overall.

"I ran a 2:39 a couple years back in Memphis, but for these conditions it's a PR (personal record) in my mind," said Block, a 1974 graduate of Franklin High School. "It was really windy, but I really cranked the last two miles in 5:47 and 5:44."

Block was also fifth in his age group (males 35-39).

Another outstanding performance was turned in by 53-year-old Bill Craig of Livonia, who was clocked in 2:50:40, finishing 53rd among men.

Craig was second to Ann Arbor's Wally Herrala (2:48:24) for males 50-54.

Other men from the area finishing in the top 100 included 35-year-old Rick Armes, 60th (2:52:21), and 21-year-old Matt Rowe, 98th (2:57:59). Both are from Livonia.

Six-time Free Press Marathon champ Doug Kurtis, a Stevenson High product who now resides in Northville, was men's masters (40 and over) champ and 11th overall in 2:33:28.

On the women's side, two competitors from the Livonia YMCA's Heart & Sole Running Club, 41-year-old Carol Poenisch (Northville) and 36-year-old Gabrielle Crandall (Plymouth) finished 10th and 17th, respectively, in 3:10:28 and 3:16:59. Poenisch was second overall in the women's masters to Patricia Stevenson of London, Ontario (2:59:55).

Former Livonia Ladywood High runner Neolle Dixon, 25, was 13th overall among women in 3:13:34. Westland's Christine Byndas, 26, was 69th (3:34:46).

Byndas was running in memory of her sister, Caryn Casaz, who was killed Sept. 13 in a hit-and-run accident on Hines Park.

Spartans, Chiefs tie for title

For the second straight year, Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Canton met to decide the Western Lakes Activities Association soccer championship. And for the second straight year, Canton upset Stevenson — this time without scoring a goal.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Don Smith wasn't exactly euphoric, but then again he wasn't upset. At least not like his Livonia Stevenson coaching counterpart, Walt Barrett.

But that's what happens when one team comes into a conference final as a heavy favorite — which the Spartans were going into Wednesday's Western Lakes Activities Association soccer final at Stevenson — and can't win.

The best light Barrett could shed on it was: "As things go, it's still better than losing."

Not much joy in that statement, coming from the coach of a WLAA co-champion. Which is why Smith's Plymouth Canton side gained more from the scoreless tie than did Stevenson.

Considering their excess of talent and No. 2 ranking in Class A, and an early-season 1-0 win over Canton, it figured the Spartans could handle the Chiefs.

But they couldn't.

"I think they ran into a good defensive team," Barrett said of his team. "Every time they came in near the goal, they ate grass. Canton tackled hard.

"They played well until the last 20 yards (of the field)."

JIM JAGDFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Defensive stalwarts: Just as Stevenson's Jim Misajlovich (8) and Canton's Tom O'Rourke displayed, defense ruled in the scoreless WLAA final.

That description was more evident in the first half. The Spartans' (now 15-0-2) magnificent midfield completely dominated play; however, despite the dominance, Stevenson got few good scoring chances.

The ones they did get either missed the target or were turned away by Canton's acrobatic keeper, George Tomasso.

"We played a good, solid defensive game," said Smith. "But they played good defense, too. They were, smack in our face, smack in our back, smack in our legs."

The wind favored the Chiefs in the second half, and so did the play. Stevenson's intensity seemed to slacken, allowing Canton's aggressive style to take command.

And yet, the Chiefs were no more effective within "the red zone," as football mavens like to call the area within the opponent's 20-yard line.

"I thought my defense (Scott Sersen, Jason Roy, Scott Babinski, Jim Bullock) and keeper (Jim Grewe) played brilliantly," said Barrett.

He wasn't as kind to the rest of his team. "Yeah, we controlled the ball a little more, but we had the better players (offensively) who should have found the back of the net," the irritated Stevenson coach said. "(Canton) did it with all heart."

Which has become the most notable trademark of a Don Smith-coached team: It always has a rugged, aggressive, hustling, difficult-to-beat defense.

Unfortunately, the offensive end has been nearly as ineffective for the Chiefs.

Still, the tie with Stevenson could only help his young team, Smith felt. "I think we gained some confidence going into the (state district) tournament," the coach of the defending Class A state champs said with a smile.

WLAA rematch

Spartans square off vs. Hawks again

BY DAN O'MEARA

FOOTBALL

It's really no surprise Farmington Hills Harrison and Livonia Stevenson will meet again to decide the Western Lakes Activities Association football championship.

The game offers a rematch of last year's final, in which Harrison survived a late comeback by Stevenson, stopping a two-point attempt to win 21-20.

Nobody has played for more WLAA titles than Harrison, which hopes to win a third straight and 11th overall 7:30 p.m. Friday at Stevenson.

Both teams have 6-1 records.

The Hawks had close calls in their last three final appearances, needing overtime to beat North Farmington (20-14) in 1991 and Westland John Glenn (7-6) in 1993.

"I sure hope it doesn't" end up being another cliffhanger, Harrison coach John Herrington said. "But, if the result is the same and we win, I guess I won't mind.

"Tim (Gabel) has done a real nice job in his first year (as Stevenson coach). They've had a lot of tight games and always seem to come out on top."

The Spartans made it back to the championship game under Gabel, who replaced longtime coach Jack Reardon, despite losing a lot of seniors from an 8-3 team.

"Honestly, I thought we had a chance to be pretty good," Gabel said. "We had a solid core of players back, and we had some good kids who would've been good players as juniors if we didn't the have kids who were there.

"The Farmington game was a real turning point, because the kids realized they could play with a good team. We've gotten better and better from there."

Both teams feature strong running games, although their team personas are the same as a year ago: Harrison is a finesse team; Stevenson plays ball control.

"As far as their team, I think it begins with (Jason) Granger," Gabel said. "He's a once-in-a-lifetime kind of talent.

"But the Harrison kids are so well schooled at every position they're going to be tough no matter who they have playing."

Granger set a single-game school record with 317 yards against Walled Lake Western last week and has rushed for 1,296 yards and 17 touchdowns on 153 attempts this year.

"I think because of Granger's style, you have to label them a finesse team," Gabel said. "Even though they line up in two tight ends, it starts like a power play and ends up being a run to daylight with Granger."

The Hawks rely almost exclusively on Granger. Fullback Nick Shaieb has rushed 31 times for 141 yards and four TDs.

Quarterback Kevin Bambenek is 40-of-73 passing for 483 yards and one TD. Ricky Bryant and Granger have 11 catches apiece for 119 and 61 yards, respectively.

"We had a little more power last year when we had (Nick) Williams," Herrington said. "We don't exactly finesse the ball a lot; we're not an option team, but we do rely more on our speed."

"The key is that we don't let them control the ball. If we can get the ball in our hands, I think we can do something with it."

Stevenson's top rusher is sen or Gade Clark, who has 752 yards and eight TDs on 129 carries. He also set the school record for career rushing TDs with 24 over three years.

"He's running hard and combining that with the good feet he's always had," Gabel said. In the Westland John Glenn game Friday, "he carried some people and ran some people over. It was a great hitting game, but he was doing some of the hitting."

One reason the Spartans are where they are is the improvement of the offensive line, according to Gabel.

Tackle Eric Curl was the only returning starter, but center Chris Arsenault, tackle George Murphy, guards Kevin Rosinski and Ehren

Shamrocks smash U-D Jesuit, 40-0

FOOTBALL

Redford Catholic Central's football team put on a clinic, both running and throwing the ball, in Saturday's 40-0 victory over host U-D Jesuit.

The Shamrocks, who improved to 7-0 overall, wrapped up the win after the first quarter for all intents and purposes.

Kevin Quay, Greg Alcala and Bryan Teefey scored rushing touchdowns and quarterback Greg Call, back in the lineup after missing a week with a leg injury, threw two touchdown passes to senior tight end Eric Gilbo. Call attempted only three passes and all were caught by Gilbo for a total of 51 yards.

Within less than a minute left in the first quarter, CC put 13 points on the board. The Shamrocks added two touchdowns in both the second and third quarters to win handily.

Quay scored on a four-yard run and Eron Kosmowski kicked the extra point to give CC a 7-0 lead with 2:31 left in the first quarter.

Junior linebacker Milam Brooks recovered a U-D fumble and on the next play Call threw a 35-yard TD pass to Gilbo with 1:58 left in the quarter. The extra point failed and CC led 13-0.

Gilbo caught a seven-yard TD pass to cap a seven-play 37-yard drive with 8:43 left in the second quarter. Kosmowski missed the extra point, but he made the next one he attempted following Alcala's four-yard run with 6:23 left in the half for a 26-0 lead.

Alcala's kick return came on the first play of the second half and took 14 seconds off the clock. The extra point made the score 33-0.

Teefey finished the scoring with a 25-yard run with 10:04 left in the third quarter.

The Shamrocks had 303 yards in total offense, 252 on the ground.

Quay led the Shamrocks with 86 yards in 13 carries. Teefey had 38 yards in five attempts, senior fullback John Spolsky gained 37 yards in five attempts and Alcala had 35 yards in four carries.

Junior nose guard Rich Deptula led the defense with 10 tackles, including two solo. Seniors Bryan Jeffords and Tom Smiley had nine and seven, respectively.

Title test

Kuespert and tight end Rob Drolet have taken up the challenge.

"(Line coach) Scott Shaw is intense every minute of every practice. He's kept on those kids, and they've gotten better and better," Gabel said.

Herrington doesn't want the Spartans to hold the ball, but he's also concerned about Stevenson quarterback Dean Bacheller, who hurt the Hawks with his passing last year.

"It looks like they line up and bring it right at you," Herrington said, "but we know from last year Bacheller is an effective passer. We can't jam up on their run without being prepared to stop their pass."

Bacheller has completed 33 of 90 passes for 476 yards and six TDs. Tom DuMont has 10 catches for 161 yards and two TDs, Clark eight for 105. Jeff Backus has been a big-play receiver with seven receptions for a 22½-yard average and three TDs.

"Dean's stats are not what he had hoped, but he executes well and makes good ball fakes," Gabel said. "When we've needed him to complete a pass, he's done so in just about every game."

A second reason for Stevenson's success is the contagious attitude of the defensive unit and its bend-but-don't-break style.

Curl is "an old-fashioned football player" and a rock on the defensive line. Noseguard Matt Bartlett and defensive end Ryan Culloty typify the hard work and improvement that has contributed to Stevenson having another title shot.

"Someone has stepped up and made a big play when we've needed it," Gabel said. "We weren't playing with much confidence early, and we still don't dominate anybody. But the kids have the attitude they're going to make a play, make something happen."

Harrison also plays sound defense, holding its first seven opponents scoreless in the third quarter.

Linebackers Shaieb and Ed Hight lead the Hawks with 66 and 63 tackles, respectively. Tackle Francis Gojcaj has 60, noseguard Shawn Mayberry 49, end Alex Stolnicki 49 and tackle Brad Donahue 46.

"We're stopping the run better than we have in the last two years," Herrington said. "Shaieb has been just outstanding. Gojcaj and Donahue are tough tackles, and Stolnicki is having an outstanding year."

Bryant has four interceptions and Jeff Aschoff three for the Hawks.

Luck of Irish or not, race tightens up

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Just when it looked like it was all over (but the shouting), we have a horse race taking shape in the grid predictions contest.

Yours truly showed he's still alive in the 1995 football season, making a comeback last week to get within five games of leader Brad Emons with two weeks left.

Dan O'Meara had a second straight 13-1 record and improved his season total to 81-20.

Emons gave ground with an 11-3 showing that put his overall mark at 86-15.

So can O'Meara, winner in six of the last eight years, do it again? Can he repeat the Great Comeback of 1990?

Is Emons concerned? Probably not! The odds are still stacked in his favor, but he would certainly like to land the KO punch this week.

So stay tuned. Follow the games and see if the grid picks contest will indeed be a race to the finish line.

GRID PICKS

Northville at Westland Glenn: Both teams have lost two of their last three games, which is surprising when you consider how they started the season. Northville (4-3) doesn't seem to be the same team after losing big to Harrison and Canton and struggling to beat Churchill. Glenn (5-2) would still be undefeated if close games with Walled Lake Central and Stevenson hadn't gone against it. PICKS: The Rockets have a successful re-launch.

W.L. Western at Ply. Salem: The Rocks (2-5) will try for their first back-to-back wins following a 27-12 win over North Farmington. After a rough start, Salem has won two of its last four. The Warriors (3-4) had a good start in September but have been drilled by Canton and Harrison the last two weeks. PICKS: O'Meara is ready to Rock-n-roll with Salem. Emons takes Horace Greeley's advice (sorta) and goes Western.

Wayne Memorial at Romulus: The Zebras (2-4 Mega Red, 2-5) have a good chance to pick up another victory in a season that has been short of wins. Wayne closes division play against struggling Romulus (1-5, 1-6). The Eagles have beaten only winless Woodhaven. PICKS: If the Zebras come to play, they'll win.

Redford Union at Taylor Truman: Can the Panthers (2-3 Mega White, 2-5) follow up on their 13-0 upset of Garden City and win two in a row to keep the momentum going? Truman (1-4, 3-4) has the better record but has lost three straight — a streak that began with a 35-12 loss to Garden City. PICKS: RU ready for a victory? O'Meara is! Harry S gets the Emons vote.

Lutheran North at Clarenceville: The host Trojans (3-2 Metro, 3-4) are upbeat after crushing Lutheran Northwest 51-18, and they have the same record as the Mustangs (3-3, 3-4). Lutheran North had won three straight until losing 10-7 to Hamtramck. PICKS: The Mustangs won't be corralled.

F.H. Harrison at Liv. Stevenson: If this game is anything like last year's meeting, it should be quite a contest. The same teams meet in a rematch of the '94 Western Lakes Activities Association championship game won by Harrison, 21-20. With little more than a minute remaining, Stevenson scored to make it 21-20, but Kevin Bryant knocked down an attempted two-point pass and preserved the Harrison lead. The Hawks (6-1) make their 13th appearance in the WLAA championship game and will try to win their 11th title. The Spartans (6-1) will play in their second WLAA final after winning their first outright Lakes Division crown. Both teams seem evenly matched once again, so Harrison tailback Jason Granger could make the difference. PICKS: Expect another close one with Harrison retaining its title.

SATURDAY GAMES
(all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Garden City at Edsel Ford, noon: Garden City (2-5) might have had a three-game winning streak going into this game, but Redford Union's 13-0 upset victory spoiled those hopes. Now the Cougars will try to rebound against a decent Dearborn Edsel Ford team (4-3). The T'birds have won two straight, including a 35-0 rout of Taylor Kennedy last week. PICKS: Edsel motors into high gear.

Liv. Franklin at Farmington: It's been a disappointing year for the Falcons (2-5), and it won't be any easier against Franklin (2-5). Farmington has lost two straight and four of its last five games. Tailback Jake Siskosky was held to a season low of 64 yards last week in a 23-7 loss to Walled Lake Central. Despite their record and struggling to beat Livonia Churchill 14-7 a week ago, the Patriots have played well. They did beat Lakes Division champ Livonia Stevenson (15-14) and almost beat Western Division winner Harrison (21-22). PICKS: It's a virtual toss-up, and opinions differ. Emons gives Franklin the edge; O'Meara favors Farmington.

Liv. Churchill at N. Farmington: In terms of records, this game might not have much appeal, but it should be a competitive contest. North Farmington (1-6) hasn't won since the first week, and Churchill (0-7) is still looking for its first win. The Chargers have been making progress and playing well late in the season. After scoring just 12 points in its first five games, Churchill was close — and, some might say, should have won — the last two weeks against Northville (27-21) and Franklin (14-7). PICKS: Both go with the home boys as Emons takes Churchill and O'Meara picks North.

Lutheran Westland at Peck: The host Pirates (5-2) should prove to be a formidable foe for the Warriors (2-5). Peck was undefeated through four games in the North Central Thumb League until losing to Kingston last week, 14-0. The Pirates had won five straight since dropping the season opener to Dryden, 16-12. Most of Peck's starters are two-way players since it has only 16 on the varsity. PICKS: The Pirates are few in numbers, but they're not short on the scoreboard.

Redford CC vs. Divine Child, 7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville: The Prep Bowl isn't until next week! In past years, this matchup would have been a heckuva Catholic League championship game, but now the two are in the same Central West Division. Divine Child (1-2, 3-5) had a two-game winning streak snapped by Detroit DePorres, 26-3. The Shamrocks (3-0, 7-0) have clinched the division title and will face Brother Rice again in the real Prep Bowl on Oct. 28. PICKS: Times have changed. The Falcons can't match up with CC this year.

Bishop Borgess vs. A.P. Cabrini, 7:30 p.m. at Garden City Jr. High: The host Monarchs (3-1 Tri-Sectional, 6-1) are having a season fit for royalty. Cabrini has won its last three games over Benedictine, Aquinas and East Catholic since losing to Riverview Richard. Borgess (1-3, 3-4) dropped its third straight Friday in a loss to Aquinas. PICKS: The Monarchs reign.

FRIDAY GAMES
(all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Red. Thurston at Trenton, 7:20 p.m.: The Eagles (1-5 Mega Blue, 1-6) took their first victory Saturday with a 21-14, homecoming conquest of Annapolis. But two in a row could be difficult to achieve against Trenton (3-3, 3-4). The Trojans snapped a string of two losses by beating one-time Mega Blue contender Crestwood. PICKS: Trenton reaches .500.

Ply. Canton at W.L. Central: The obvious favorite should be Canton (5-2) since the Chiefs defeated the Vikings 22-13 in the second week, but picking a winner isn't that easy. Walled Lake Central (5-2) rebounded from that loss and is having a fine season, too. The Vikings have won three straight since their only other loss, to Livonia Stevenson. Furthermore, a possible playoff berth is at stake for both teams. The winner can look to clinch in the season finale, and the loser can forget about the post-season. Canton won its fourth in a row last week by whipping Northville, 42-14. PICKS: The smart money says Canton.

Warriors rally for win

Lutheran High Westland proved to be the comeback kids Tuesday, rallying from a seven-point deficit early in the fourth quarter to beat host Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest in a key Metro Conference girls basketball game, 61-53.

The win, the 13th straight for Lutheran Westland, makes the Warriors 13-1 overall and 7-0 in the Metro, one game up on Macomb Lutheran North conference race.

Northwest falls to 11-3 and 5-2 (both losses coming against the Warriors).

Lutheran Westland outscored Northwest 21-12 in the decisive final period, but it was a one-point game with 2:57 left.

"The kids sucked it up and they were able to make a few defensive stops," Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz said. "We stayed in our half-court man-to-man, but we pressured the ball more.

"Plus, they were in foul trouble. We were able to get a few breaks, and we converted from the free-throw line."

The Warriors were 20 of 27 from the stripe (74 percent).

Senior guard Katie Ollinger scored a game-high 21 points, including seven of nine from the foul line. Junior guards Jenny Pwietmeyer and Kristy Guilfoyle contributed 11 and 10, respectively.

Sophomore forward Renee Graef and junior forward Jenny Schmidt each tallied 16 points for the Crusaders.

■ SALEM 54, FRANKLIN 41: Underdog Livonia Franklin (7-7, 3-5) put up quite a battle for one half, but a 12-0 third quarter run Tuesday propelled host Plymouth Salem (9-4, 5-2) to the Western Lakes Activities Association victory.

The Patriots, behind senior guard Tracy Rynkiewicz's 18 points, led 32-25 at intermission.

"Maybe we had too much time to think about it at halftime," Franklin coach Gary Warner said. "We had good shots in the third quarter, but they didn't fall. Salem pressured the ball harder, too.

"Overall, I thought we did an excellent job in the first half, especially on the boards. We proved we can play with the better teams, but we need to put two good halves together."

Rynkiewicz finished with a game-high 21 points, while Kellie Main and Julie Warner each contributed six. Main also grabbed 13 rebounds.

Senior center Shellye Sills scored 17 points and grabbed eight rebounds for the Rocks. Laurel Weinman added 11 points, all in the second period as the Rocks erased a 18-9 first-quarter deficit.

Freshman center Andrea Pruett contributed 10 points and 11 rebounds. Sophomore guard Amanda Abraham grabbed 10 rebounds and had four steals. Janelle Sterling, hitting a pair of three-pointers, tallied all eight of her points in the final period.

■ CANTON 58, JOHN GLENN 25: Senior center Sarah Warnke scored 15 points to pace a balanced Plymouth Canton attack, leading the Chiefs (11-3, 7-1) to a WLAA win over host Westland John Glenn (1-11, 0-8).

Canton, which jumped out to a 33-14 halftime lead, also had three others score in double figures — Kristi Fiorenzi (14), Melissa Marzolf (14) and Becky Vachow (10).

Guard Rochelle Harris led Glenn with 13 points.

■ N. FARMINGTON 61, CHURCHILL 39: Senior Carrie May scored 22 points Tuesday as North Farmington kept visiting Livonia Churchill winless in Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball, 61-39.

Kellee Fournier and Kathie Collins made four three-point baskets each, finishing with 12 points apiece for the Raiders, 5-3 in the WLAA and 9-4 overall.

North took a 30-12 lead in the first period and extended it to 43-20 at halftime and 59-28 after three quarters.

Jessie Jenkins, who sank seven of nine free throws, finished with 15 points and grabbed seven rebounds for the Chargers, 0-8 and 1-12. Alicia December added nine points.

■ HARRISON 45, STEVENSON 38: The Hawks rebounded Tuesday from losses to WLAA powers Walled Lake Central and Plymouth Canton last week.

Amy Jenkins had career-high totals of 10 points and 10 rebounds to lead host Farmington Hills Harrison.

Erika Greene led the Hawks with 11 points, and Amy Roble also scored 10. Kristine Knutson added eight points and five assists.

The victory improved Harrison to 6-2 in the league and 9-5 overall.

Stacey Nichols netted 13 points and Katie Downarowicz six for the Spartans, who fell to 2-6 were eliminated from the WLAA playoffs. Stevenson is 6-8.

Harrison led 12-6 in the first quarter, 26-18 at halftime and 41-32 at the end of three.

The Hawks made 13 of 18 free throws, the Spartans eight of 12.

■ FORDSON 45, WAYNE 40: Wayne Memorial (10-3, 5-2) dropped back into a first-place tie in the Mega Conference's Red Division on Tuesday, losing at home to Dearborn Fordson (6-7, 4-3).

The Zebras, now tied with Garden City and Wyandotte for first, shot only seven of 17 from the free-throw line (41.1 percent).

Fordson center Zeinab Mroueh gave Wayne fits in the post position, scoring a game-high 27 points.

Junior Rica Barge led the Zebras with 17.

"We have not played a single good quarter since the Garden City game," Wayne coach Chuck Henry said.

■ BETHESDA 35, HURON VALLEY 23: In a showdown for first place Tuesday in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, Sarah Simmons pumped in a game-high 19 points, leading visiting Warren Bethesda (11-4, 5-0) past Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (9-5, 3-2) at Marshall Middle School.

Sara Tacia and Michelle Ruth scored 10 and eight points, respectively, for the Hawks.

"We had been pointing for this game, and we kind of laid an egg, especially offensively," Huron Valley coach Tod Bartholomew said. "We still think we can beat them, but we didn't do it two times, and they proved they were the better team on the floor.

"We were playing tentatively and making bad decisions. It didn't happen until it was too late. We turned the ball over more than we should."

Accident claims Regina JV coach

Harper Woods Regina's 54-49 overtime girls basketball win Tuesday over host Livonia Ladywood took on a somber tone after it was learned that Regina junior varsity coach Chris Comito had died earlier in the day from a car accident on Detroit's east side.

Comito, a former Regina player, was en route to the school to pick up her players, according to Ladywood coach Lisa McPhee.

Players and spectators learned of the tragic news in between the JV and varsity games.

"We decided to go ahead and play, but everybody was upset and we just wanted the game to end," said McPhee, a former Regina player and assistant coach. "The gym was dead silent the whole game."

Jenny Springer led Regina with a game-high 24 points, while Renee LaBelle added 10.

Kathy Dankert and Erin LeSage scored 14 and 11, respectively, for the Blazers, who fall to 2-13 overall and 1-8 in the Catholic League's Central Division.

Regina is 4-5 in the Central.

Patriots stop North, 2-0

A highly successful soccer season is drawing to a close at Livonia Franklin.

On Monday, Franklin crossed over to North Farmington and defeated the host Raiders, 2-0, in the battle of Western Lakes Activities Association inter-division rivals.

The Patriots are now 12-6 this season, and their seventh shutout left them with a 9-4 WLAA record. The Raiders are now 6-8-1 overall and 4-7-1 in the WLAA.

Shawn McGillis got credit for the shutout in goal and got the obligatory scoring support from Joe Kosiba and Rich Banjo, both assisted by Steve Finneran.

Forward Dan Schloff took a pass at midfield to start Franklin's first goal, 7:23 into the first half. He sent the ball down the sideline to Finneran, who crossed it to Kosiba to finish a 55-yard play.

Finneran beat several Raider defenders to the end line and passed the ball across the face of the net so Banjo could one-time it home at 34:44 of the first half.

The Patriots, however, were not as successful Oct. 13, losing 6-1 to Beverly Hills-Detroit Country Day, ranked No. 1 in Class B and seven-time defending state champions.

DCD (12-0-3 overall) scored five unanswered goals in the second half after the game was tied at 1-1.

Eric Bowman opened the scoring for Franklin. Country Day's Mattai Astrom tied the contest with a goal just before the half.

In the second half, Maurice Ojeda scored twice for the Yellowjackets.

■ SOCCER

■ SALEM 4, CHURCHILL 0: In a battle of second-place WLAA teams, state-ranked Plymouth Salem (15-3 overall) avenged a 2-1 loss earlier in the year to Livonia Churchill (8-4-4) with the Western Lakes crossover win Monday at home.

Ronny Mashni, John Larson, Chris Curry and Andy Makins scored for the Rocks, who led 2-0 at intermission.

■ TROY 2, REDFORD CC 2: The Colts scored two goals in the final 15 minutes of the match Monday to tie visiting Redford Catholic Central in a non-league game.

The tie leaves the Shamrocks with a 9-4-3 overall record. It was a good performance after losing 5-1 the last time out last Wednesday against Detroit Country Day.

Tony Moucoulis and Shaun Kahanec scored the goals for CC.

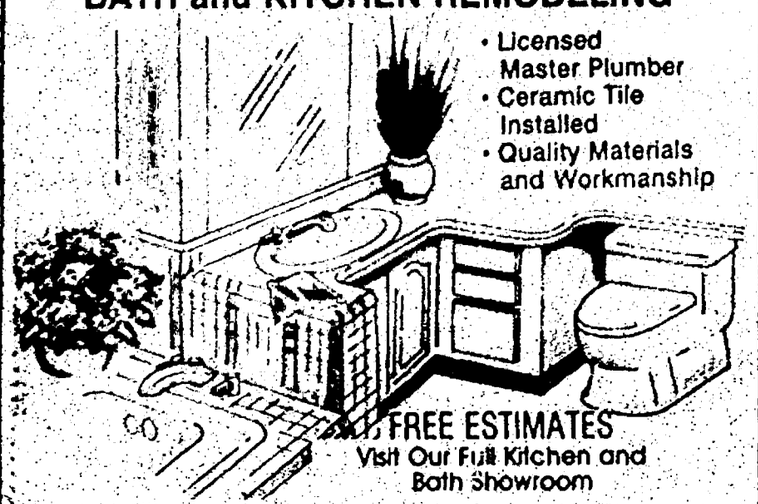

Moucoulis' goal came about midway through the first half from about 10 yards in front of the net. CC went ahead 2-0 with Kahanec's goal assisted by Dan Mulvihill.

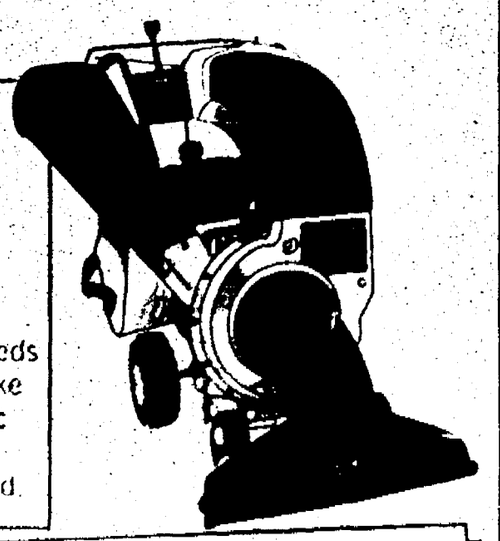

Sophomore Matt Kessler was the goalkeeper, making several key saves, according to LaJoy.

■ LUTH. WESTLAND 7, LUTHERAN EAST 0: Senior co-captain Kenny Shingledecker's hat trick and one assist Tuesday, leading Lutheran High Westland to the Metro Conference victory at Harper Woods Lutheran East.

Sophomore Scott Randall added a pair of goals for the victorious Warriors, now 8-7-2 overall and 4-7 in the Metro. Sophomore Brad Woehlke contributed a goal and three assists, while sophomore Eric Falkenberg tallied the other goal.

■ HURON VALLEY 8, AQUINAS 1: Joel Hartley pumped in four goals and chipped in with one assist Monday, host propelling Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (6-9-1 overall) to the non-league victory over Southgate Aquinas.

Lutheran Westland captures invite led by Polkinghorne

Lutheran High Westland continues to roll in boys cross country.

The Warriors won their fourth straight invitational title Saturday in the 12-school Division III race hosted by Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard at Buhr Park.

Lutheran Westland, behind Brad Polkinghorne's first-place time of 17:10 (5,000 meters), captured the team title with 27 points. Goodrich and Ann Arbor Greenhills took second and third, respectively, with 75 and 102.

Other Warriors in the top 10 included Sam Patterson, third (17:30); Andy Ebendick, fifth (17:46); and Jason Collins, seventh (17:50). Phil Kimmel added an 11th in 17:55.

On Tuesday, Lutheran Westland wrapped up its dual-meet season with a 16-47 Metro Conference win over Harper Woods at Hines Park.

Polkinghorne and Patterson came in first together, both clocking 17:04s. Others in the top 10 for the Warriors included Kimmel, third (17:19); Ebendick, fourth (17:22); Collins, sixth (17:42); Greg Strang, eighth (18:26); and Justin Koch, ninth (19:29).

Lutheran Westland, 6-0 in the Metro, will defend its conference championship Tuesday at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

Stevenson girls 1st again at Richard

Livonia Stevenson's girls cross country squad continues to win everything in sight.

On Saturday, the Spartans captured their sixth invitational title of the year in an 11-school meet hosted by Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard at Buhr Park.

Stevenson led the field with 23 points followed by Pinckney (69), Plymouth Salem (114), South Lyon (129), Farmington Hills Mercy (138), Plymouth Canton (143), Portage Central (153), North Farmington (157), Berkley (255), Livonia Churchill (282) and Northville (did not finish).

Stevenson took four of the top six places led by first-place finisher Kelly Travis. The sophomore covered the 5,000-meter course in 19:19. Sisters Kelly and Kim McNeilance were second and third, respectively, in 19:45 and 19:58. Laura Pilon was sixth (20:22) and Jeanette Stojcevski took 11th (20:39).

On Tuesday, Stevenson wrapped up another Lakes Division title in the Western Lakes Activities Association with an 18-37 dual meet win over host Farmington at Oakland Community College.

Stevenson, which finished 5-0 in the WLAA-Lakes and 6-0 overall, took the first four places led by Travis (19:17), Kelly McNeilance (19:52), Kim McNeilance (20:08) and Stojcevski (20:11).

Farmington, which finished 4-1 in the Lakes and 6-1 overall, took the next three places — Anne Grimaldi (20:23), Kate Adams (20:39) and Theresa Derwinski (20:40).

Stevenson's Jessica Cyburt was eight (20:54), while the Falcons' Amy Cameron and Ellen Adams took ninth and 10th, respectively, in 21:00 and 21:04.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

WLAA MEET FRIDAY

Livonia Stevenson (girls) and Plymouth Canton (boys) will try and defend their titles Friday in the 12-school Western Lakes Activities Association cross country meet set for Cass Benton Park.

The boys varsity race starts at 4 p.m. followed by the varsity girls at 4:30 p.m. The JV races begin at 5 p.m.

COLLEGIATE NOTES

- Three-time NCAA Division III women's soccer All-America Kim Paterson, a 1986 Livonia Stevenson High graduate who also attended Livonia Bentley, will be inducted Friday into the Kalamazoo College Athletic Hall of Fame.

Paterson, a center-midfielder, will be the first women soccer player inducted into the hall.

Paterson is currently a manager for accounting at J.D. Dinan Co.

- University of Wisconsin junior defender Scott Lamphear (Livonia Churchill) was recently named Big 10 Player of the Week in men's soccer.

U-CAN-SHOOT CLINIC

On Sunday, Oct. 22, the Pat Miller U-Can-Shoot basketball clinics for boys and girls in grades 5-12 are coming to Garden City High School.

Miller, former Northwood University coach, has instructed pros like Jason Kidd (Dallas Mavericks), Kenny Anderson (New Jersey Nets) and Dennis Rodman (Chicago Bulls).

Cost for Session I is $20; it will last from 1-4 p.m. The more extensive Sessions I and II, held 1-6 p.m., cost $35. Shooting mechanics, three-point shooting, free-throw shooting and offensive footwork will be covered. All registered youngsters will receive a free basketball.

For further information, contact Kevin Wilkinson at (313) 274-5405.

The best health care starts in the waiting womb.

At Health Alliance Plan, we understand that maternity services should start well before your child is born. That's why we cover extensive prenatal care services. Our programs include early risk assessment, health promotion and medical, nutritional and psychosocial interventions and follow-up.

HAP covers PRENATAL care.

Progress for parents and children.
HAP providers offer a variety of maternity programs that provide prenatal care education for expectant parents. We're also researching ways to help reduce the incidence of low birth weight. This kind of progress comes from our commitment to help improve the health of all of our members - even the ones who haven't arrived yet.

A healthier you.
In addition to prenatal care, our preventive medicine programs cover mammograms, cholesterol screenings, office visits and routine eye exams. We even offer nutrition programs that can help you control your weight.

Join HAP today. Get the care that helps keep your family healthy and happy.

When we say we screen our doctors, it's not a slogan and it's not just some routine examination, either. This is a procedure we take very seriously. After all, your health is at stake here. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine one single patient, they must first survive a very detailed examination themselves.

Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against very specific written criteria. (Quality of care is what we're measuring here.) In addition, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area.

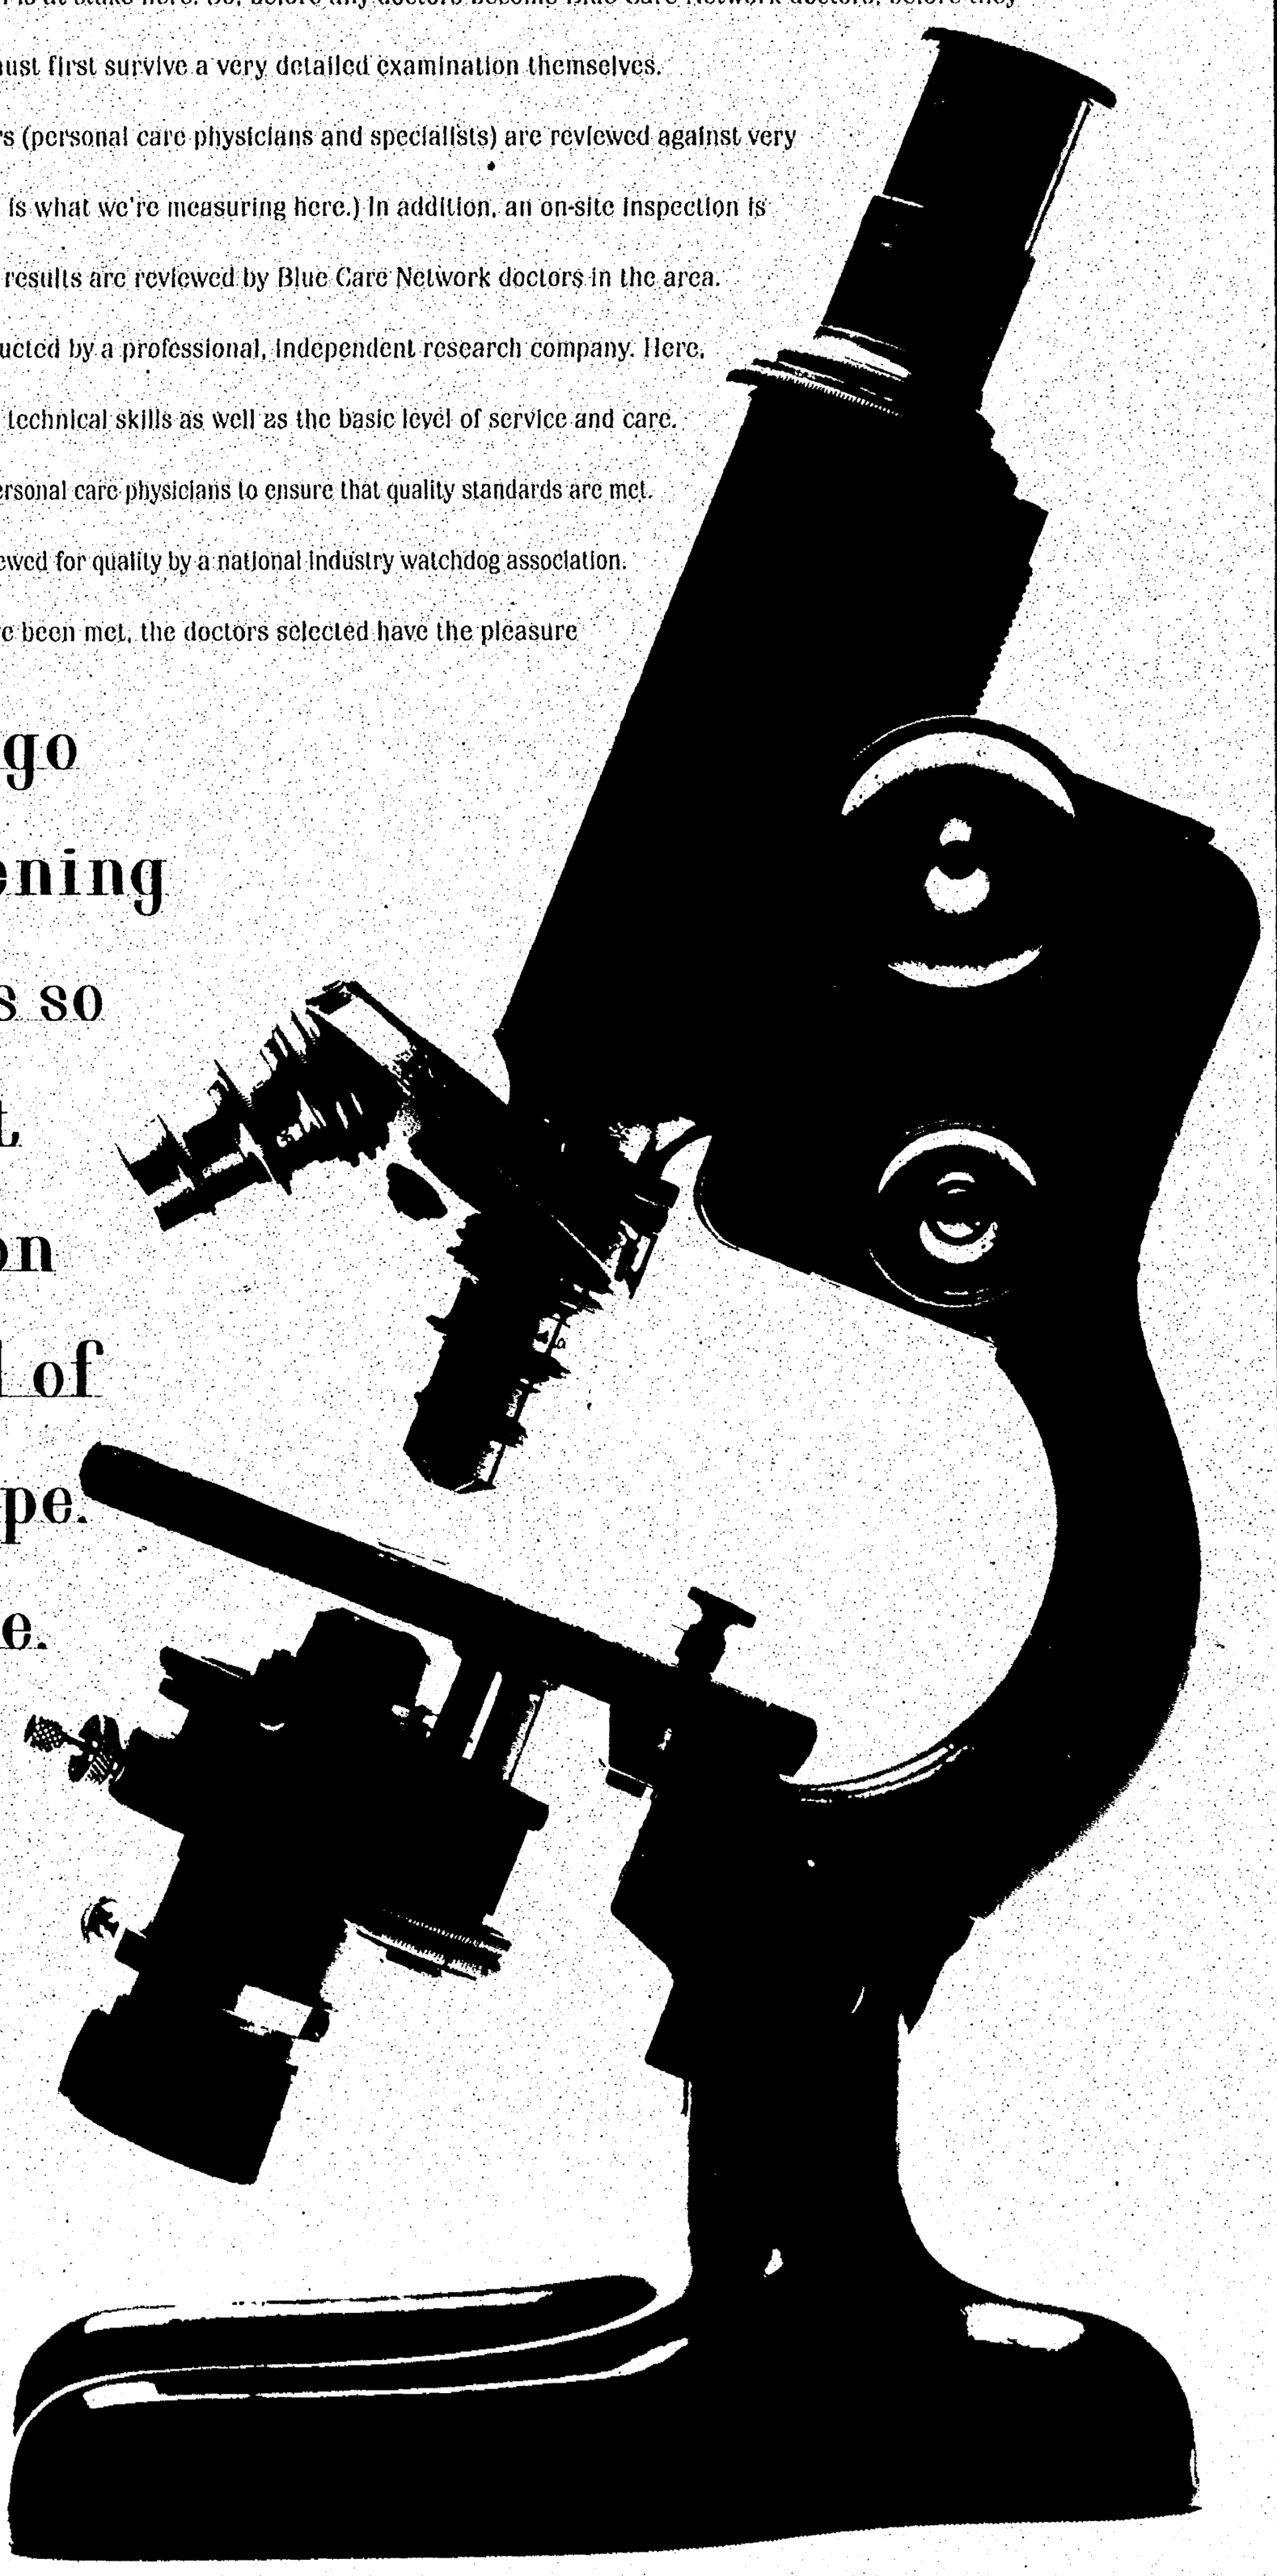

Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care.

And, Blue Care Network works with its personal care physicians to ensure that quality standards are met.

Finally, Blue Care Network itself is reviewed for quality by a national industry watchdog association.

Oh, and after all these standards have been met, the doctors selected have the pleasure of going through this process all over again every two years for as long as they're with us.

Our doctors go through a screening process that's so detailed, it puts them on the other end of the microscope. For a change.

Now, that is a tall order to fill. But if we're going to take the guesswork out of selecting a doctor, we should try our hardest to provide you with a sizable list of quality personal care physicians and specialists. It's as simple as that.

GARDEN SPOT

Fence brought down to create herb garden

MARTY FIGLEY

■ 'It's more fun being neighbors than having a fence.'

Gail London

Robert Frost said, "Good fences make good neighbors," but Gail London and Nicole Williams of Birmingham have found that by removing a portion of a fence they have become better neighbors.

A tall stockade fence separated their narrow side yards and they decided that there was a way to share a kitchen herb garden if some of the fence was removed. A cement slab abutted the fence on Nicole's property and plants edged a narrow stone path leading to Gail's back yard. Nine-year-old Kory London set to work and tore down a 20-foot section of the fence.

This open space, about eight by 20 feet, created a perfect area for this garden and has allowed them to share the work and the rewards from the very first.

"It's more fun being neighbors than having a fence," Gail said.

The first step was to remove the ground cover and give the perennials a new home. They dug out the existing soil and added fresh top soil and spaghnum peat then began planning just what would grow and thrive there.

The garden is designed with 16 squares edged with bricks. Each square contains an herb such as purple basil, tarragon, mint, dill, globe basil, sage, catmint and catnip (which they dry for the kitties), chives, thyme, garlic chives and chocolate mint (which Nicole puts in her iced tea).

Special herbs in clay pots set on another row of bricks and march down the middle, while others are strategically placed for optimum pizzazz. Two contain lavender topiaries, Gail said, "'Cause we love the look of the leaves," and two rosemary topiaries (both taken indoors for the winter). Two spicy globe basils and other favorites were transplanted from the pots into the squares at the end of the season.

In addition to the herb topiaries, a dwarf Alberta Spruce has been fashioned into a corkscrew topiary by Gail. It is growing in the ground in the center of the garden and is about 2-½ feet tall.

Marigolds were planted around the edges of the garden to deter bugs. These ladies are always on the lookout for insects and every week they spray the garden with a solution of Ivory soap and water. The plants that are taken indoors are also given this treatment: one teaspoon in a quart spray bottle.

They enjoyed lettuce early in the season as well as tomatoes and "wonderful" red peppers, which were caged to keep the squirrels from a feast. They have used the basil to make pesto, rosemary in bread and other herbs in barbecues and in lots of salads. Many bottles of herb-flavored oils and vinegars are set aside to be given away.

These two friends have cemented a friendship that will always be remembered. They both share the cost and the shopping, and, without a doubt, the rewards of growing their herbs and vegetables right in their own side yard.

"We've had a blast!" Gail said.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Broken dishwashers demand quick repair

JOE GAGNON

Over dinner the other night my sister-in-law Oaklee and I were discussing the purchase of a new 58-foot boat. I noted that my brother Larry had spent a great deal of his time taking care of his last boat and asked if it had been a strain on their relationship. Her reply stated just the opposite. "Taking good care of a boat is like a husband taking good care of his wife. The boat makes me appreciate him that much more." Her reply made me think of a column I should write on a dishwasher, so here it goes.

My years in the service industry have made me cognizant of how attached consumers can be with a dishwasher. If ever I've had to order a part to complete repairs on a dishwasher I have pressed for urgency in getting the part shipped to me. Call out the Marines and all the ships at sea and get me the part ASAP. It's either that or you've got one unhappy customer on the phone.

Now, my dear reader, do not take umbrage with the fact that I don't think you know how to use your dishwasher properly. That's correct, I Joe Gagnon know that the greater majority of homeowners do not know how to use a dishwasher properly. You ask how do I know it, and I reply that through my many seminars these past few years I have asked the audience, DO YOU ALWAYS TURN ON THE HOT WATER FAUCET TO REACH IT'S MAXIMUM HOT WATER TEMPERATURE BEFORE YOU TURN ON THE DISHWASHER? If you don't ladies and gentlemen, you are not using your dishwasher propery.

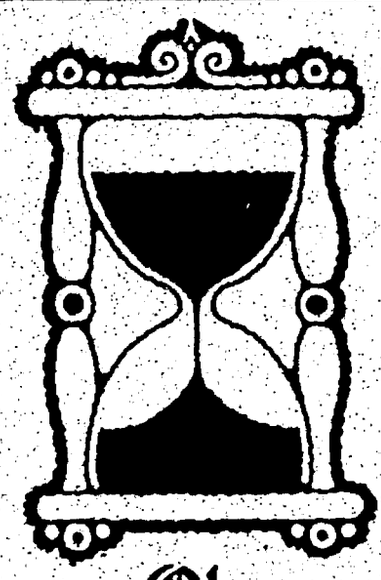

The temperature of the wash water must be 140 degrees in order to desolve the detergent. This undesolved detergent will build up in the spray arms and most importantly on the impeller arms which are attached to the motor. If the impellers are coated with detergent they will not cut through the water and give you a good flow of water through the spray arms.

In effect, your dishwasher efficiency has been greatly reduced because, the water is not hot enough. For those of you who have tried to save a few dollars in energy by turning down the hot water tank thermostat, think again. Would you rather eat from dishes that have not been thoroughly cleaned? For those of you who might present a danger to children or the elderly by having the hot water tank set on 140 degrees, please consider purchase of a hot water guard available at the retail level. It simply attaches to the faucet. To measure the temperature of water at the kitchen faucet you can use a candy thermometer.

Of the few hundreds of you wonderful readers who have written me through this newspaper, one lady asked, What does Tang do for your dishwasher? Let me reply.

A. Turn on the hot water to maximum temperature. B. Turn on the dishwasher, (empty) and let it run for 5 minutes and then shut it off. C. Open

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Not just for covering beds anymore, today's quilts are meant to be seen and touched. Unlike paintings, these contemporary textiles appeal to the hand as well as the eye. That makes them perfect for dressing up home interiors.

Quilts work especially well for decorating walls, halls, stairways, just about any place you could hang a painting. Award-winning quilt artist Nancy Meyer uses them all through the house. A quilt hung in the entryway of Meyer's Plymouth home welcomes guests warmly and with style.

Imagination is the key to creating multiple uses for quilts. Draped over a balcony railing, displayed over the back of a sofa or chair, stacked on a cedar chest, quilts define the personality of a room. A gold drapery rod hung on a wall in Meyer's kitchen showcases quilts that rotate depending on the season or occasion.

Artistic angle: "Greta Come Kiss Me," a quilt by Nancy Meyer of Plymouth, won an award in this year's "Celebrate Life" art show.

"Our house is set up for quilts. I interchange paintings with the quilts and change the look from season to season," Meyer said.

Meyer knows about quilting. She teaches the ancient craft at Quilt Works in Plymouth and the Quilter's Quarters in Chelsea. In between classes she's busy winning awards for her contemporary art quilts, most recently at the "Celebrate Life" multi-media show at the Congregational Church of Birmingham in Bloomfield Hills.

"Sometimes you make a quilt you don't find attractive or make mistakes on," Meyer said. "I like to throw those that don't hang straight over tables as covers or use them as table runners."

Home with a heart

Quilts change the look of a home by changing its focal point. Westland artist Saundra Weed says quilts as well as fabric paintings are a natural when it comes to home decorating.

Weed, a painting instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, has worked with textiles for more than 30 years as part of "Artistic Images," a business that restores and restyles vintage wedding dresses. Her recently published book, "Creative Sewing as a Business," focuses on how to make a living by creating works of art with a sewing machine. The book is an extension of the seminars she teaches all over the country.

"People used to decorate with doilies. Because we're spending more time at home, we want it to be comfortable. Any kind of fabric fills the home with warmth," Weed said.

"It's more appealing to look at quilts vertically, the visual impact is different. Quilts also allow you to change the colors in your home. People need to start thinking of quilts in the same way as selecting a painting to enhance the colors in a room. The new art quilts aren't even coming in traditional shapes anymore."

In Europe between the 14th and 17th centuries tapestries, which in many respects are similar to quilts, were used on walls instead of paintings. Quilts have an insulating effect when placed on beds, why not put them on walls?

"Quilts add warmth because it pads the walls," Weed said. "The old castles used tapestries to insulate. Because quilts contain batting, they also insulate."

Once, Judith Dila displayed her quilts only on beds. Now, the Orchard Lake resident enjoys them vertically on walls. Hung in a hallway on a pink wall is a quilt by Meyer titled "Emergence."

"It's very modern, very abstract with many different colors: purple, pink and black. Each time I look at it I see something new. This quilt is truly a work of art," Dila said.

Friendly spaces

Quilts provide contrasting texture in a home. Wood, metal and glass furniture cool a room. Quilts warm a space plus their nostalgic appeal bonds us with simpler times. Besides its ability to decorate, a quilt comforts the psyche as well, cradling memories of the past. Meyer touched her first quilt in childhood.

"The quilts I remember were at my grandmother's," Meyer said. "They were made out of wool from old suits and tied with red wool thread."

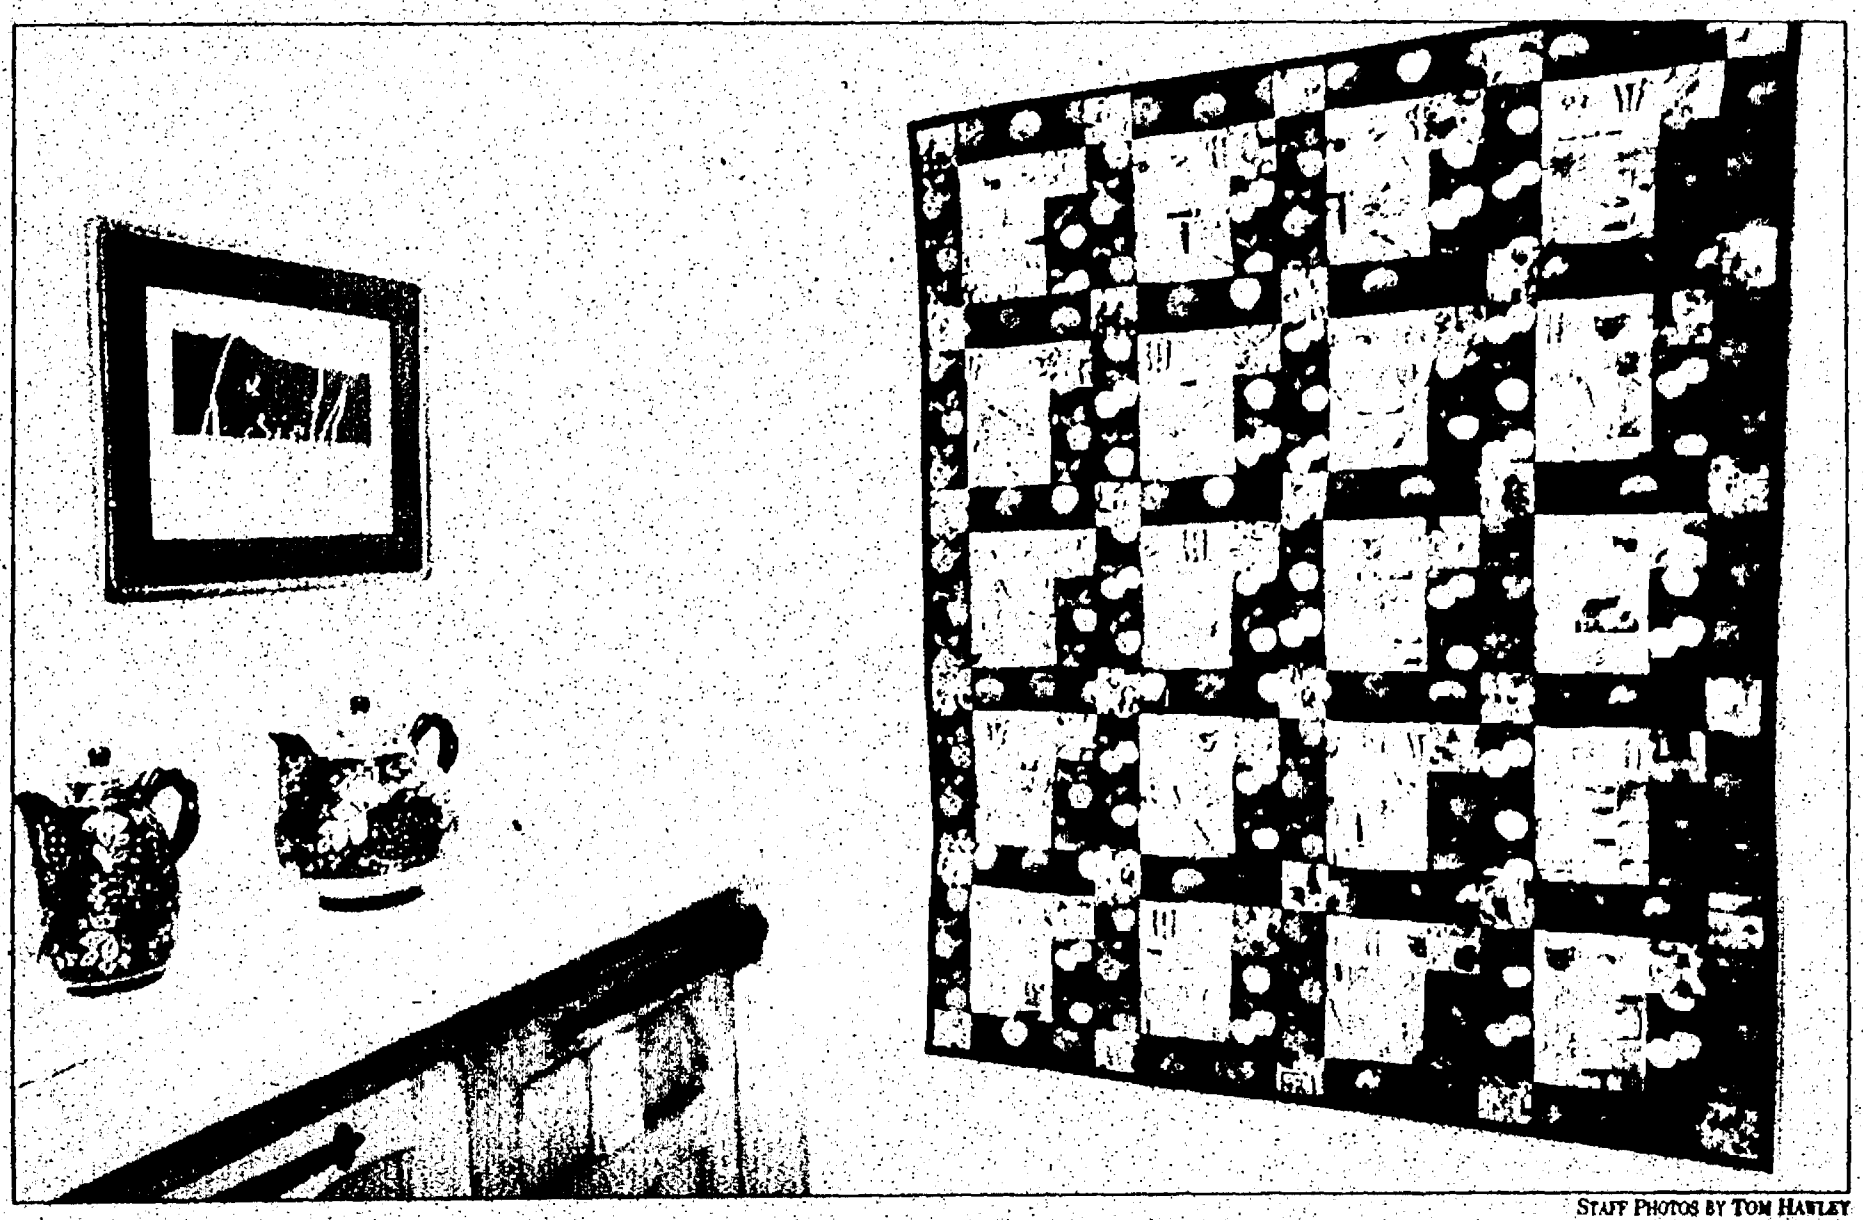

Piecing it together

References to quilted objects date back to 3,400 B.C. Actual pieces however, such as silk panels from the sixth to ninth centuries discovered in India, are rare due to the perishable nature of fiber. Rarer still are the 17th century American block quilts originated in the New World. These serviceable patchworks with basic stitching wore out from daily use and no longer exist.

Decorating with quilts can make a home cozy and comfortable. A few do's and don'ts will lengthen the life of fibers.

- Never decorate with an heirloom quilt. They're much too fragile. Care should be taken with any quilt not to expose it to light as this will destroy a quilt. Moisture, dampness, dirt and light are a quilt's worst enemies. Extreme humidity will enable mold and mildew to form. Dirt will wedge into a quilt's fibers and weaken them. Light causes colors to fade.
- Never tack, pin or nail a quilt to a wall. Use a wall-mounted quilt rod. When hanging any quilt, it's wise to remove it regularly and let it rest for a week or two. Seasonal quilts are great for reminding you to rest your quilts. With a little care, your quilts will remain beautiful for years to come.

the door and deposit a whole pint jar of Tang orange powdered (not liquid) breakfast drink directly into the water in the bottom of the dishwasher. D. Let it run through the complete cycle undisturbed and watch how sparkling clean your dishes come out from now on. E. Do this procedue twice a year. WARNING — If you have a carpeted floor in front of the dishwasher, and the door is leaking, the orange spots will be very hard to remove. ADVICE — I asked you to deposit the whole jar into the water, and I mean the contents of the jar. Do not do as one homeowner did. He filled the soap container and kept doing this until the jar was depleted. He did the procedure over and over again and must have spent 12 hours getting the job done. TIP — Many consumers have fixed the problem of a leaky door by using the Tang treatment.

A recent edition of Consumer Reports indicates that powdered detergent is preferred by homeowners. ADVICE — Purchase one box at a time and remove it from where you've been storing it all these years. The most humid area in the home, under the kitchen sink, Right. That humidity goes right to that box of opened detergent and makes it very hard. Get the picture. Store it in a closed plastic container and keep it away from humidity. Take a glass out of the cupboard and look at it. Wait until you're finished reading this column please. Hold that glass up to a light bulb and look at all the scratches. You did this. You use too much detergent in the container and it is called etching. Use one teaspoon for every grain of hardness in the water. Get a measuring spoon that fills to 8 teaspoons and use it constantly. Homeowners with water softeners should use 1 to 2 teaspoons.

Folks, the acidity and abrasive action of the Tang is the best method that I know of to create customer satisfaction with your dishwasher. Several million radio listeners have heard this story and many have called me to thank me for the tip. Several have reported that their local store has run out of Tang within days of the broadcast. So far, I have not heard from the manufacturer of the breakfast drink, but that's OK, my sister-in-law Oaklee will probably go out and purchase a large chunk of their open stock once she reads this column. Stay tuned next week for more secrets from the Appliance Dr.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor" available at area bookstores.

Debut novel 'Little' is like a large, living tapestry

VICTORIA DIAZ

"Little," by David Treuer ($22.95, 248 pp., Graywolf Press).

"The grave we dug for my brother Little remained empty even after we filled it back in."

Thus begins David Treuer's remarkable debut novel, "Little."

Think of this story as a large, living tapestry, woven mostly in the colors of the earth, especially the fierce shades of northern winters.

At the center of the tapestry is an Indian reservation in northern Minnesota. Within "the rez" is a small, tumbledown housing tract nicknamed Poverty by its seven inhabitants. Within this small circle lives the mysterious, claw-handed Native American boy of the title who, throughout his abbreviated life, chooses to utter only one word: "You." Throughout this story of connections to the earth and to each other, why he chooses to utter this word and no other serves as an interwoven thread.

Radiating outward from the center of the drama are images from the past belonging to each player: a jungle in Vietnam, a coal chute in a long-ago Minnesota church; a snowbound night in Wisconsin; the death of an infant toward the close of the historic logging era; the land "before it was logged the very first time" by white settlers — when the settlers "quarreled with the French for the land of Minnesota," or, earlier still, when the French trappers traded with the Indians. And then, of course, even earlier still, a time before all of this, where the white settlers' memory "could never go," and which was, consequently, never really "known" to white descendants.

But, even though history is a critical element in Treuer's story, this is not a historical novel. History colors the lives of the inhabitants of Poverty — as it colors all our lives — but "Little" is a story of the here and the now, and of how the present is fused to the past at the same time that it is a part of the mystery of the future.

The many-faceted story is told, appropriately, from several different viewpoints. Donovan, rescued as a boy from where he is about to perish in a snowstorm, seems the character closest to Little, and so acts as a kind of primary storyteller here. Other characters, in their way, are no less crucial, however.

The identical twins, Duke and Ellis, along with the flinty Jeannette are the senior members of the tightly knit circle. Duke and Ellis, who reside in a "mobil home" (a rusting Pontiac Catalina) on the edges of Poverty are so much alike that they seem to share, in a sense, even the same heart. Both of them, love Jeannette (whom they met in a church coat closet beneath an "arbor of wool"), and she loves them, equally. Such circumstances might have come off as implausible or even ridiculous at the hands of a writer less able than Treuer. Here, though, their crowded affair is not merely believable, but touching as well.

Others who tell their part of the story include the kind-hearted Stan, who has lost a friend and part of himself in Vietnam; Little's mother, Celia, marked by her own unspeakable past; and Stan's sister, Violet, who is also the mother of Donovan's cousin, Jackie. Each character's story touches and gives resonant shape to another. The newly arrived priest, Paul, appears less immediately connected than the Native Americans who endure reservation life together ("he had come too long after everything had already been set in motion"), but Treuer's depiction of the priest's desolate existence, and his portrait of a man who worships manmade structure (but is faced with the lavish messiness of nature) is stunning.

In fact, much of this highly-ambitious novel is stunning, though slightly flawed. One wishes Treuer had chosen to differentiate the voices of his characters a bit more. Though they tell their own well-delineated stories, sometimes the voice telling those stories sounds pretty much like the voice coming before or after it.

Another disappointment: The white participants in this drama are, for the most part, predictable: monstrous at worst, or weak and insular at best.

But, despite this novel's flaws and disappointments, there remains above all the lyricism of Treuer's prose. There is a song on these pages, to some of us at times faintly exotic in its rhythms, its tonalities, and its notes. But it is a song, nevertheless, an echo of this land's deep, deep past as it tocuhes our present and melds us to our future.

BACKYARD NATURE

Marshlands museum opens

TIM NOWICKI

Lake Erie Marshlands Museum at Lake Erie Metro Park in Rockwood was officially opened in mid-September. It's a beautiful building along one of the many waterways in the park. Inside are exhibits, a classroom, an observation area and offices.

Though the exhibits aren't yet complete, there will be an interactive marsh area on the lower level and displays and dioramas depicting waterfowl hunting along the marshland shores on the upper level.

Visiting the park to view the new museum is worthwhile in and of itself, but take some time to observe some of the bird life that inhabits or migrates through the area.

As you approach the museum you will cross a wet area bisected by the road. Check this shallow marsh for herons and ducks. As the season progresses there is less chance of seeing these birds, but when I was there in September there were at least 60 beautiful white great egrets.

Ducks can be seen in the marsh areas of the park and along the shore of Lake Erie. Habitats for both diving and puddle ducks are within a short walk. On your way to view ducks in the water, be sure to notice the incredibly large round leaves of the American lotus. They stand like inverted umbrellas supported by the long handle or stem about four feet above the water. In mid-September the creamy yellow flowers were near the end of their blooming cycle. Some of the flowers had already developed into an interesting seed pod. American lotus is an endangered plant in Michigan.

These lotus plants are visible from the observation area of the museum. If you want to see more uncommon species you can join Tim Smart and his group of hawk watchers in the wave pool parking lot. In mid-September they saw more than 100,000 broad-winged hawks, several peregrine falcons, osprey, merlin and other birds of prey. Early October is when the majority of the turkey vultures pass through, but if you get there in late October to early to mid-November you have a good chance of seeing a golden eagle.

Visit the park and the marshlands museum and take some time to explore the shoreline, marshes and sky for interesting forms of life. For more information, call the museum at (313) 379-5020, Ext. 736.

Your special pictures deserve custom treatment

MONTE NAGLER

Most one-hour minilabs generally do a fine job in quickly printing at low prices your everyday shots with color negative film. But their services are limited and there are many things they can't do. This is where a custom lab will be of great benefit to you.

For example, does your picture need cropping? Are there some highlights that are washed out or some shadow areas where detail has been lost? Are there some spots or scratches on the original negative that are showing up in the print? Or perhaps certain areas of your picture need lightening or darkening. Well, a custom lab can take care of all these things for you.

Custom labs can do more for you, too. Say you intentionally or unintentionally over or underexposed your film. A custom lab can compensate for this in the developing and printing of your roll.

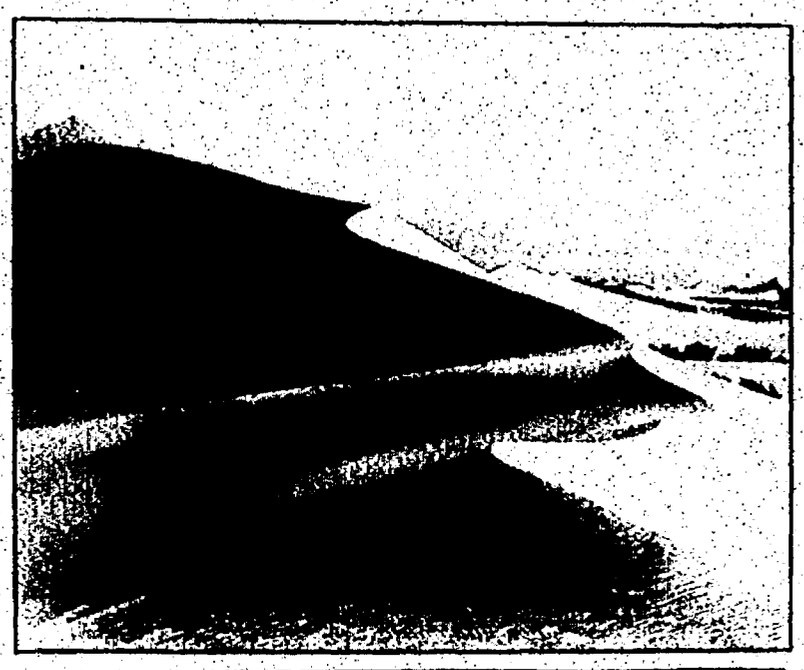

Custom labs can make slides from negatives or negatives from slides. They can even make slides from prints. They can print odd sizes, offer a variety of paper choices and can restore old, scratched photographs.

Custom labs offer a multitude of mounting and laminating services and will give assistance in the best way to present your images.

What's the best way to find a custom lab in your area? Word of mouth is always ideal. Ask a photographer friend or a professional photographer for a recommendation. Visit some labs to compare prices and services and to look at samples of their work.

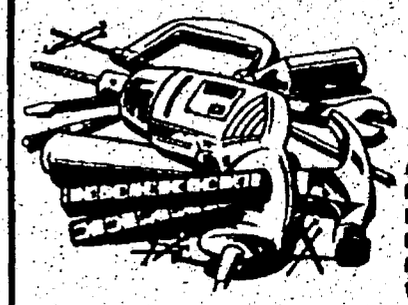

Good labs, as in all good businesses, value every customer, even those with small orders. So if you're being mistreated or ignored, look for another lab.

INVITING IDEAS

Celebrate Halloween with ghoulish treats

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

The pitter patter of little ghosts, goblins and Power Ranger's feet are sure to be treading upon our porch steps later this month. As adults we are always conjuring up unique and fun Halloween treats for the expectant faces that appear at our doors — caramel or candied apples, pumpkin-shaped cookies and chocolate goodies wrapped tightly in their foil-lined wrappers. The significance of Halloween for all of us are the goodies, not the celebration of All Hallows Day. The kids are going out for the treats, and we adults wait until our kids get home from trick or treating to go through their bundle and pick out a few treats for ourselves. What about ghoulish treats for the grown-ups?

Put a challenge into your Halloween entertaining — have your adult party theme be: old movie heroes. "I wish," career personalities, wild west characters, pairs of. . ., favorite board games, or literary heroes and their authors. Add a spark with some fun treats, grown-up stuff — no chips and dip, no apple cider and doughnuts!

Try using real pumpkins as vessels of all kinds — clean out medium to large sized pumpkins of their seeds and fibrous strings, and put some delicious soup inside, a beef (or buffalo) stew, even a bouillabaisse — use as a dish or cook your meal in the pumpkin so the pumpkin can serve as your veggie (if using to cook in — make sure you prick the cleaned interior of your cooking pumpkin with a fork and baste the inside with honey mustard or some interesting flavored sauce).

Make jack-o-lanterns and candle light them for your light source, do a pumpkin souffle, or ice cream and place in tiny Jack-Be-Little pumpkins for dessert. Make your own chocolates with Halloween themed chocolate molds or transform pretzels into sweets — with caramel, nut, toffee and chocolate toppings — make pumpkins, goblins, witches and bats out of marzipan (edible play-dough for adults made of ground almonds, sugar, and egg whites). Premade marzipan is available in the baking section of some markets and specialty shops. Color the "dough" with food coloring pastes). Creativity should include your menu, not just the costumes.

SHAKER PUMPKIN MUFFINS

Yield 1¼ dozen
¾ cup brown sugar
¼ cup molasses
½ cup soft butter (or margarine)
1 cup cooked mashed pumpkin (can used canned)
1¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 375°. Cook, drain and mash the pumpkin; put it through a strainer (or use canned pumpkin). Set aside momentarily. Cream sugar, molasses and butter (margarine); add egg and pumpkin and blend well. Mix the flour with the baking soda and salt; beat this mixture into the pumpkin batter. Fold in pecans. Fill well-greased muffin tins about half full with batter; bake for approximately 20 minutes or until done to the touch.

SAIDIE HEATTER'S POPOVERS

Yield: 10 large popovers
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
6 eggs, jumbo or extra-large
2 cups milk
3 ounces (6 tablespoons) butter, melted and cooled

If you are going to bake the popovers immediately, adjust the oven rack one-third up from the bottom and preheat to 375°. Butter individual oven-proof custard cups (ramekins — 4 or 6 ounce size — eight 6-ounce cups or ten 4-ounce cups. Arrange the ramekins on a jelly roll pan for easy handling, spacing them as far apart as possible.

Place the flour and salt in a large bowl. Beat the eggs lightly only to mix. Mix in the milk and melted and cooled butter.

Gradually beat the liquids into the dry ingredients — (with a wire whisk, beat as little as possible to blend the ingredients). Do not over beat — the batter should not be foamy. If it is lumpy, strain it.

If necessary, strain it again. Pour the batter into a pitcher or covered glass container if the batter is to be refrigerated over night, or until use. When ready to use — pour the batter into the prepared cups, filling them to about ⅛ inch from the tops.

Place in preheated oven. Bake 6-ounce cups for 1 hour; 4-ounce cups for 50 minutes. Do not open the oven door until the baking time is almost up — they should bake until well browned (if they aren't dark enough, they will be soggy instead of crisp). When done, before removing them from the oven, reach in carefully, and with a small, sharp knife quickly cut 2 or 3 slits in each popover to release the steam. Continue to bake for five more minutes. Remove the popovers from the oven and turn out of the cups immediately — if necessary, release with the aid of a sharp knife around the rim. Serve immediately.

"The agents commitment to excellence and quality service is evidenced by their completion of this program," said D. James Papageorgiou, broker/owner of Century 21 Premiere.

Agents honored: Karen Brown, left, and Mary Savoie-Huff, who have more than 40 years in the real estate business between them, have been selected Realtor of the Year by their respective professional associations.

STEPHEN CARTER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

2 women named Realtors of the Year

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Successful people in any line of work seem to share character traits that define their success. Realtors certainly are no exception.

Karen Brown describes herself as straightforward, honest and hard working.

Mary Savoie-Huff characterizes herself as energetic, positive, fun-loving and caring.

Both hold outstanding professional credentials and excel in their work.

Brown, an associate broker with Re/Max 100 in Novi, has been selected Realtor of the Year for the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors headquartered in Farmington.

Savoie-Huff, an associate broker with Hall & Hunter in Bloomfield Hills, was chosen Realtor of the Year for the Birmingham Bloomfield Rochester South Oakland Association of Realtors in Bloomfield Hills.

"I love marketing, and I love people, meeting people, finding out what makes them tick, helping sorting out their needs," Savoie-Huff said.

"I love closings when everyone goes in happy," Brown said. "That's the best, when people come out and say, 'I love this house. Thank you for your hard work.'"

Brown, 48, a Lyon Township resident, has been in the business for 18 years.

"I finished college and when I was done, I figured it was time to get a job," she said. "I pulled the classified ads in the paper, saw real estate ads and said, I can do this.'

"I try really hard to work for the customer _ buyer or seller," Brown said. "I try hard to find the house they want or selling to get a house sold."

Savoie-Huff, 62, a Bloomfield Township resident, was working as a motivational counselor when she decided to give real estate a shot some 22 years ago.

"A friend thought I would be good at it," Savoie-Huff recalled. "She thought it would give me flexibility of time.

"She owned several properties and said she was going to sell one and, if I got into the business, she would give me the listing. I found I just loved it," Savoie-Huff said.

Brown is an Accredited Buyer Representative, Certified Relocation Professional and Certified Residential Specialist.

She has served on several committees at the board and state level including professional standards, bylaws and risk reduction.

Brown also has served on her church's building committee.

Savoie-Huff is a Graduate Realtors Institute, Leadership Training Graduate, Certified Residential Specialist and Realtors Alumni of Michigan.

She's a past president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Board and played a major role in merging several Oakland County boards into one.

Savoie-Huff also has served on grievance, education and arbitration committees.

Mark Thomas, president of Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke in Birmingham, nominated Savoie-Huff for Realtor of the Year for her efforts to consolidate the boards.

"She took on the job during an unusually difficult time, trying to get so many interests working in the same direction," Thomas said. "I think she genuinely likes to serve others. She has high energy. I've always found her to be a very pleasant person."

Allen King, an associate broker with Prudential Great Lakes Realty in Farmington Hills, nominated Brown for Realtor of Year.

"I've served with Karen on the board of directors and was impressed with her professional grasp of the real estate movement," King said. "She's continually looking out for our membership."

Activity in professional associations offers many rewards, the honorees agree.

"Every time I go to a class, I learn something you might not know if you didn't go," Brown said. "It's amazing when you get people together what kind of ideas you can come up with."

"We need to share," Savoie-Huff said.

"True, serving on committees can be a very thankless job. But it has to be done. Grievances. Arbitration. If we don't do these things, they will be determined in some other ways that may not be advantageous to our industry," she added.

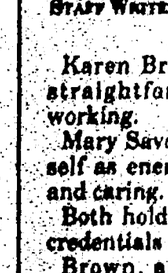

Both are optimistic about the future.

"I see our market as one of the most positive in the country now," Savoie-Huff said. "Houses are moving. Interest rates are favorable. The economy is wonderful."

"We've had an excellent market last year, this year and the third one is coming up," Brown said. "I think it all stems around interest rates."

After 15 years, fence becomes the legal boundary

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. My neighbor and I have been living next to each other for over 18 years and have had a fence dividing our property. Recently, I found out from a surveyor that the fence is actually three feet over onto his property from the true boundary line the surveyor found. I am concerned about whether my neighbor will have any basis or right to require me to return that three feet under the circumstances.

A. Between the parties for decades and there has been no disagreement as to what the boundary line was, chances are great that a court would rule that the fence was the true boundary line under a "theory of acquiescence." There are three types of acquiescence: 1) Acquiescence for the 15 year statutory period, 2) Acquiescence following a dispute or agreement, and 3) Acquiescence arising from an intention to deed to a marked boundary. In effect, the courts have held that where adjoining property owners acquiesced to a boundary line for at least 15 years, that line becomes the actual boundary line. Where there is acquiesce for the statutory period, a dispute or controversy does not exist, and many cases have held that maintenance of a fence for 15 years or more is a common boundary title.

Q. I have heard recently about recourse under a federal statute against townships who are unreasonable in regard to contractors who lose out on projects because of personal animus by the town government or on behalf of developers against township zoning boards who aren't awarded permits because someone on the zoning board dislikes them. Do you have any clarification on that?

A. In a recent decision in the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, the court found that under 42 USC pra. 1983, it is possible to pursue a township for certain conduct that allegedly violates the Equal Protection Clause of the United States Constitution.

What the court seemed to be saying is that a plaintiff can sue a municipality for damages if the plaintiff can show the unequal treatment or selective enforcement, as the case may be, was "the result solely of a vindictive campaign by the municipality."

In short, if the power of government is brought to bear on a harmless individual merely because a powerful state or local official harbors a malignant animosity toward him/her, the individual ought to have a remedy in federal court, says the 7th Circuit.

This obviously opens up an avenue for recourse on the part of developers and builders who have been maligned by a city or township unreasonably out of personal animosity.

Increasing your buying power

ON MORTGAGES

DAVID C. MULLY

(This is the second in a two-part series on increasing the amount of house you can afford.)

Last week I discussed several ways to increase your house-buying power, from reducing your debt to increasing your income. I also touched on private mortgage insurance (PMI) as a way of reducing your down payment. However, if those options aren't attractive to you, there are also federally-sponsored mortgage insurance programs you can participate in — the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and the Veterans Administration (VA).

With FHA insurance, you can also purchase a house with a very low down payment, just like with PMI. Unlike PMI, however, there is a maximum loan limit on FHA mortgages. The amount varies depending on the average cost of housing in a particular area of the country. For example, in Livingston and Washtenaw counties, the FHA maximum is $126,350. In Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, the FHA maximum loan amount is $$116,850.

The VA guarantee allows qualified veterans to buy a house worth up to $203,000 with no down payment whatsoever. In fact, the qualification guidelines for VA loans are much less strict for either FHA or conventional loans. If you are a qualified veteran, the VA program can be a very attractive financial alternative. If you're unsure about whether you qualify, check with your local real estate or mortgage professional.

In addition to these federally-sponsored programs, a number of states provide programs to help first-time house buyers qualify for mortgages.

Local housing agencies also offer attractive loan terms in some areas. These programs typically offer a low down payment or low interest rate to first-time buyers who meet specified income guidelines. The best way to find out what your local government has to offer is to check with your state housing authority. The phone number usually can be found in the government "blue pages" of your phone book.

Although they haven't been popular lately because of the record low interest rates, adjustable rate mortgages, or ARMS, can be a useful tool in getting you into your first house.

The mortgages I've talked about up to this point are known as fixed-rate mortgages. This means that the interest rate on your mortgage will never change during the term of your mortgage no matter what happens to interest rates in the meantime. With an adjustable rate mortgage, or ARM, the interest rate paid by the borrower changes from time to time with the changing market rates. This means that if rates go up, your monthly mortgage payments will go up as well, sometimes significantly.

That's the downside. What makes ARMs attractive to first-time borrowers is that the initial interest rate is lower than a fixed-rate mortgage at the beginning of the mortgage term. Since your monthly payments will start out lower, you could possibly qualify for a larger loan.

Of course, the chief drawback is that your monthly payments will increase as rates go up. However, if you expect your income to increase in the near future, this could help offset your higher housing costs. If rates continue to increase, you may want to consider an ARM if it's the only way you can buy the house you want and you're confident your income will increase enough to comfortably handle your higher payments.

If you're unsure of your financial situation in the next few years, you would probably do better to buy a house you can afford now and not gamble on the future.

One side note: Many financial companies offer a product known as a two-step mortgage. This is a new type of ARM in which the interest rate is adjusted just once, usually seven years after it is first taken out. The new rate will then remain in effect for the rest of the 23 years of the loan.

This loan also carries a lower beginning interest rate, and it protects the homeowner from rising rates during the early years of house ownership. Also, for homeowners who expect to move within seven years, this is a very appealing product.

In conclusion, the most important point is, if you truly desire to own a house, have a steady income and a solid credit history, there's probably a mortgage program out there that can get you into the house of your dreams.

Lenders are in the business of lending money and, contrary to what the public may believe sometimes, they don't like to reject mortgage applications.

That's why they've worked with the federal government, local and state governments and other housing associations, to provide the widest range of mortgage plans possible. They want to see as many people as possible realize their dreams of home ownership.

■ WOODS OF EDENDERRY

Cambridge Homes celebrates the grand opening of a new subdivision, Woods of Edenderry, on Six Mile between Sheldon and Beck in Northville.

Forty-one sites with winding roads and heavily wooded lots are available. Custom-built houses will start at $390,000 and average upwards of $500,000.

The model, (810) 348-3800, is open noon to 6 p.m. daily.

■ NEW REMERICA OFFICE

Cheryl L. Lindee and Marjorie L. Whetstine have opened Remerica Liberty at 109 Main in Northville. The two have 18 years of combined real estate experience.

"We realize the incredible potential of the Northville area," said Jim Courtney, Remerica Real Estate president.

"We want the community to understand our philosophy — that when they're ready to buy or sell a property, they can call Remerica and know they will receive the quality, expertise and service they expect and deserve."

The independently-owned and operated Remerica Liberty is the seventh office opened this year by Remerica Real Estate.

■ HOME FINANCING ABCS

A free seminar focusing on financing options, "Step by Step to Your Dream Home," presented 7 p.m., Monday, Oct. 23, at the Carl Sandburgh Library in Livonia.

Panelists: Peter Dotson, Republic Bancorp Mortgage; Ronald Thierry, Credit Reporting Information Services; and Paula Merollis, Modern Insurance Agency.

Reservations required at (810) 932-4701.

■ CORPORATE MOVES

Alan Whitson, an expert on corporate real estate and author of a manual on corporate relocations, presents a "Smart Moves Seminar" 8-10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Oct. 25, at the Skyline Club, 2000 Prudential Town Center, Southfield.

"Moving a company should be more than an education in logistics," Whitson said. "It's a great opportunity for a company to set in motion programs that will reduce costs and increase profits."

Cost, including breakfast, is $25 in advance, $35 at the door. To register, call (800) 452-4480.

■ ENVIRONMENTAL RESPONSE ACT SEMINAR

Applied Science & Technology, an environmental engineering/consulting firm, and the law firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen & Freeman conduct a seminar on recent changes to the Michigan Environmental Response Act 7:30-11 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 26 at the Novi Hilton.

Specific issues include clean-up classifications, soil relocation requirements, acceptance of local ordinances, clarified foreclosure options and new lender liability provisions.

The forum, co-sponsored by Commercial magazine, is intended for business property owners, commercial real estate developers and financial institutions.

Cost is $20. To register, call Lenna at (800) 395-2784.

6 Great Reasons to Consider The Michigan Group

BETTY BJARNESEN

1 I just can't imagine an office that could offer more than THE MICHIGAN GROUP. Here we have a perfect combination of independence, guidance, camaraderie among agents and a Great commission structure. All this and more in a beautiful setting.

PAM ASSEMANY

2 Professionalism, endless resources, beautiful facility, and total camaraderie are everything I need to have a successful and fun career. I have all of these things at THE MICHIGAN GROUP!

MARILYN HANDLOSER

3 For me THE MICHIGAN GROUP offers the perfect combination of independence and guidance. I am free to make my own decisions and the management is here when needed. The office and its location provide a great environment for me, my clients and customers.

DAVE MATHIEU

4 Being associated with THE MICHIGAN GROUP has helped me immeasureably. From the on going training and seminars, to the management and staff down to the professional environment and surroundings THE MICHIGAN GROUP is a first rate operation! P.S. The commission structure is the best in the business.

BARB BRUNETTE

5 After ten years in the business, I know how important it is to want to do my very best; I must surround myself with the best. There is no other company that offers what THE MICHIGAN GROUP does, I work with positive professionals, have a terrific support staff, and location is super. The program that THE MICHIGAN GROUP offers agents is unbeatable. When you're happy at the job, everything goes better.

BRANDON/LETA KEKICH

6 When we relocated to this area, our main concern was finding the right company to work for. We wanted to move only once. We interviewed with several brokers before we made the decision to come to THE MICHIGAN GROUP. The difference with THE MICHIGAN GROUP is the people. Everyone here works as a team and supports one another, including the broker, the manager, the agents and the support staff. We work in a modern, professional environment in a great location with easy access to all freeways. Plus, we have the best commission program available. Moving to THE MICHIGAN GROUP was not only the right decision, but an easy one.

"DAVE IN DETROIT"
ANTIQUE ARCHITECTURAL SALVAGE!
ONE DAY SALE SAT OCT 21

I am finally having my first big Public Sale which consists of a large selection of first time offered antique architectural items. All pieces date from the 19th century and no later than 1925. These items are great for exterior designers, decorators & house renovations. I have numerous columns, exterior ornate woodwork & stone, 14 oak, walnut, or cast iron Victorian newel posts & banisters. Also massive Detroit pieces, far to much to list. (I'm the person who has been supplying antique dealers in Livonia, Plymouth, Royal Oak, Detroit, and other areas for years.) It's always easier to buy direct from the source and eliminate the 50% to 100% mark up in their resale. All items in my 8 year accumulation are priced to sell. This sale is well worth your time. My area is safe for you & your car. Cash only - near by ATM by NBD & Comerica Banks.

Date: Oct. 21, Sat. 10:00 to 4:00
Southwest Detroit: 7310 Gaither
Take I-75 South from downtown Detroit, exit Springwells, turn right, go down to Gaither, turn right.
My house is 3 minutes from all freeways in this area. If strong chance of rain then reschedule for next day - Sun 22nd. If it rains on the 22nd, then it will be the following Sat Oct 29th. No early sales. I'm an equal opportunity seller.

NEW HOMES

Plum Hollow offers affordable wooded sites

Lawrence Rosenberg's first major developing/building effort presents buyers with an opportunity to acquire a new 1,550-square-foot detached condominium with three bedrooms and 2½ baths in Southfield for $112,900.

Plum Hollow Woods will feature 29 units on an eight-acre parcel off Lahser between Eight and Nine Mile across the street from Plum Hollow Country Club.

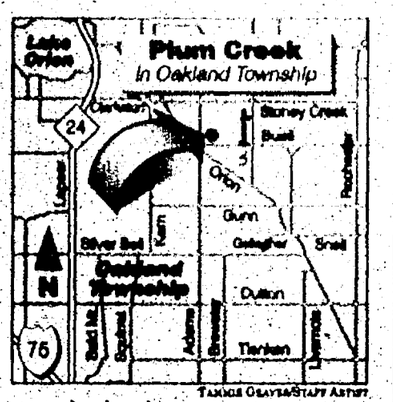

"It has everything I was looking for — topography, location, potential from site plan aspect," Rosenberg said. "We're offering an exclusive site. We're offering highly wooded, very affordable."

The model under construction has a family room with fireplace, kitchen/eating nook with sloped ceiling, laundry, half bath and first floor master suite.

The master has a tub/shower combination, dressing area and walk-in closet.

Two bedrooms and a second full bath are upstairs.

The model, like all other floor plans developed by Rosenberg for Plum Hollow Woods, includes at standard price a two-car garage, basement and dishwasher.

TARIQ OSEYRAN/STAFF ARTIST

The foyer is unique in that you walk up several steps inside the front door to the main level.

Digging a basement in an area with a high water table necessitated that design move, Rosenberg said.

Several other floor plans are available.

Those include an 1,800-square-foot, two story with three bedrooms, all upstairs, 2½ baths, with great room and living room on the main level for $124,900.

A four-bedroom plan of 2,100 square feet with the same basic layout as the the 1,800-square-foot two story costs $144,900, as does a four bedroom with a first-floor master minus a living room.

The exteriors on all units are brick and vinyl siding.

"We can customize these with Jacuzzi tubs, hard wood flooring, upgrade carpet packages," Rosenberg said. "What we're offering in the basic packages is a lot of house at a good price. Our philosophy is what we're showing is what we're offering."

Prices include landscaping in front of the units.

Four lots at the rear of the parcel carry a $5,000 premium. Lots along the south side with individual driveway approaches have a $3,000 premium. There's no premium for lots on the north side that share a driveway approach.

Pricing will appeal to people coming out of existing houses with built-up equity and first-time homeowners of any kind, Rosenberg said.

"I'm getting calls from people living in apartments now," said Alan Malisow, a Realtor with Century 21 Today who is marketing the development.

"The number one thing they are impressed with is the wooded area," he said of prospects. "It's so private in here. The price is very desirable. People can't believe we're putting in a new subdivision at these prices. Plans have been accepted very, very well."

The sub won't have sidewalks to maintain its natural identity.

"I think we did our homework when we negotiated the land to keep (price) down," Rosenberg said. "We can do any house on any lot. I'm not going to clear cut a site. We'll move a house a little bit to save a tree."

Plum Hollow Woods is serviced by city water and sewers. It's within the Southfield school district.

The property tax rate currently is projected at about $56.25 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $112,900 unit there would pay $3,175 the first year.

The monthly association fee is projected at $50.

Cassandra Jackson bought the three bedroom plan with family room and living room.

"I think the pricing is excellent," she said. "I was looking at houses in Southfield, older, not new, and they were more expensive. It's a great location."

Until the model is completed in November, call Malisow at (810) 948-7100 to make arrangements to see floor plans for Plum Hollow Woods.

Adaptable housing designed for seniors

You are thinking about building that great retirement dream house or second house that you have always wanted. You are at a new point in your life — no great rush to make any major decisions; the kids are gone, maybe grandkids are on the way, and you are discovering new activities. So what's the big deal?

The deal is that you are aging. You're beginning to think the opposite of the familiar phrase " . . . time is on our side." You're thinking twice about the dream and looking at motor homes instead. Consider thinking again.

"Adaptable" housing is a somewhat new-kid-on-the-block and is often misinterpreted as "accessible housing" or rather housing that accommodates people who are wheelchair-bound. To the unsuspecting visitor, adaptable housing looks like any other house. But there are differences. Even in a house's "unadapted" state, these differences tend to enhance the house's livability for people of all ages and physical capabilities. Some of these minor differences include telephone outlets and television jacks raised to 18 inches above the floor, doorways widened to 36 inches, all switch and thermostat controls lowered to 42 inches, and doorknobs replaced with attractive levers. Other differences, especially those in the kitchen and bathroom, are more individual in nature and are determined by the particular floorplan.

In addition to its basic accessibility, there are three principal elements identified by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Office of Policy Development and Research, of adaptable housing that distinguish it from accessible housing:

Removable base cabinets in kitchens and bathrooms, primarily to provide the "normal" appearance at first and removability to allow knee space should someone in a wheelchair use the space.

Adjustable counter heights, allowing standard 36-inch high counters to be lowered to 31 and 28 inches for use by people in wheelchairs, those who are shorter than "normal," or to provide anthropometrically better work stations (for example, a lowered kitchen countertop for mixing or a planning desk where someone could sit using a standard chair).

Reinforced wall areas in the bathrooms so that grab bars could be attached later around the tub, shower stall and toilet. Expensive remodeling would be avoided, allowing the grab bars to be attached to the wall as is.

Adaptable housing is beginning to be viewed by builders of seniors' housing as having a marketing advantage over standard-built housing. Builders can advertise that residents can "age-in-place" in their houses and communities, a feature that is very attractive to the aging buyer, the overwhelming percentage, as surveyed recently by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), of whom say they prefer remaining in their own house to moving into some type of congregate care facility.

Your future dream house can be more than just something in the future. It can be a dream come true now as you inevitably age; if, of course, you get off that motor home sales lot and consider the pleasures and benefits of building your new house.

New duct systems solves air quality problem

Most houses have conventional duct systems which contribute to indoor air quality problems. They don't heat or cool some parts of the house as well as others, and leak air at the joints. Frequently they are noisy, and offer no protection against potential microbia growth.

In addition, the air leakage, together with lack of insulation, wastes energy dollars.

To overcome these problems, there' a rigid fiber glass duct system whose consistent high insulating value and minimal air-leakage help to deliver warmed or cooled air at desired temperatures, with greater energy efficiency and improved comfort.

The system also absorbs noise, and is cleanable using standard duct-cleaning systems.

Its tough acrylic polymer airstream surface coating is even formulate with an EPA-registered anti-microbial agent for exceptional resistance to microbial growth.

Although this new SuperDuct system, manufactured by Schuller Interntional, offers the highest performance any duct system available, its installed cost is comparable to other systems. This means it's affordable for any house.

To assure system performane, SuperDuct is available only from Schuller factory-qualified contractors. So if you building or remodeling a house, you could save money and prevent indoor air quality problems by discussing this duct with your builder or contractor.

For all the facts, obtain a copy of brochure AHS-210, from the Schuller Product Information Center, P.O. Box 5108, Denver, CO 80217, or call 1-800-654-3103.

Webfoot is a stately and inviting home design

The medium-sized Webfoot design, carries 2098 square feet of living space enclosed in a stately brick and wood exterior. The covered front porch, with waist-high railing, is an inviting spot to sit and enjoy a warm summer evening. In the two-story Webfoot, the second floor has been delegated as the sleeping quarters, with all the family rooms on the main level.

To the immediate right of the entry, are a handy guest closet, and the stairway to the top floor. The living room is substantial, and a generous multi-paned window admits plenty of sunlight while providing a nice view. The dining room opens to the living room, establishing an expanse that seems larger than the blueprint suggests.

The walk-through kitchen is another example of the ease of movement throughout the Webfoot. With a convenient eating bar at the hub, this area could well become the favorite gathering place for thewhole clan. on one side of the kitchen, are double ovens, and a walk-in pantry that extends to a storage site beneath the stairs. on the other side, the well-lit breakfast nook is a great place to begin the day.

A cozy gas fireplace will warm the family room as everyone awaits the start of a television favorite. When the weather seems inviting, take the fun out onto the large back deck.

Completing the first floor design are a half-bath, and roomy utility room that includes a sink and closet. There is access to the garage.

Let's begin with the master suite on the second level. A big feature here is the private bathroom, featuring a shower, skylight, twin basins and a relaxing spa. The master suite also includes two windows and a walk-in closet.

Three additional bedrooms are on the second level. The front bedroom is secluded and yields a welcome view of the frontal landscape. The shared full bathroom, graced with a skylight, abuts a modest back bedroom. A good-sized loft has been appointed as bedroom number four. Linen storage is available off the hallway, and all three secondary bedrooms have sufficient closet space.

Keep furnace clean to heat efficiently

A clogged air filter causes undue wear on the blower motor and reduces heating efficiency by cutting airflow. You can install a washable filter that whistles when it's clogged — clean it monthly, too.

AP— Chances are that your house has a forced-air heating system, which is by far the most common type.

A forced-air system usually has a furnace that burns gas or oil inside a closed chamber called a heat exchanger. A large blower, in the furnace, forces cool air across the hot outer surface of the heat exchanger to heat the air. The heated air is then blown throughout the house by a system of ducts. Another system of ducts draws cool air back through return-air registers to be reheated and recirculated.

Once a year, have an oil burner and its controls cleaned and checked by a service technician — a gas burner usually needs professional attention somewhat less often.

Filters

To keep your furnace operating smoothly and efficiently, clean or replace the air filter monthly, after turning off the power at the safety switch. A clogged air filter causes undue wear on the blower motor and reduces heating efficiency by cutting airflow. You can install a washable filter that whistles when it's clogged — clean it monthly, too.

If you get caught short on disposable filters, you can temporarily recycle an old one to keep the furnace running. Simply remove the dirty filter and vacuum it with a brush attachment. Then hold it up to a bright light. If you can see the light through it, reinstall it, following the airflow arrows.

Check Blower, Belt

Once a year, remove the blower access panel and vacuum the area around the motor and the blower. Use the brush attachment to clean the blower blades.

If you have an older furnace with a blower driven by a fan belt, check the belt. If it is frayed or stiff, replace it with an exact duplicate. Also check the belt tension. It should deflect by one-half to three-fourths inches when you press on it. If it doesn't, loosen the motor mounting bolts and move the motor to tighten or loosen the tension on the belt.

A blower and motor pulley that are out of alignment may cause belt wear. To determine proper alignment, set a square against the outer faces of the pulleys. If the two pulleys aren't in line, loosenthe motor pulley's setscrew with a hex wrench. Then move the pulley in or out as needed. But first make sure that the motor is mounted securely. Loose mounting bolts can allow the motor itself to move out of alignment.

Motor

If the blower motor is not factory-lubricated, add three to six drops of SAE 10W30 oil. When you go to oil the motor, you may find that the tip of the extension-type oil container is too thick to fit into the small oil fitting on the motor. If you do, here's a trick to try. Cut off the needle part of a basketball inflation needle with a hacksaw and insert it into the container's plastic tube. If it's loose, wrap a twist-tie around the assembly.

Even if the oil container tip is narrow enough to fit, the oil holes in a furnace blower or blower motor can be hard to reach. However, there's no need to get the oil container right to the hole. Just insert a thin wire into the oil hole so that the wire is more or less vertical. Then drip the oil onto the wire — the oil will run into the hole.

Repairing old plaster perks up old houses

AP — Old houses are appealing on any number of levels. Some of us cherish the period detailing, while others appreciate the refined proportions that older buildings can have. And, some people are simply charmed by the sense of history that seems to float in every nook and cranny.

One of the most common characteristics shared by old houses is their pervasive use of plaster. It may not be in the best condition, but it certainly has more style than gypsum wallboard.

Fortunately, for those of us who own an old house, plaster is highly repairable. Cracks and holes can be filled, and plaster that has pulled away from the lath can be reattached.

Since refurbishing an old house is a messy and difficult business, repairing plaster instead of replacing it improves the efficiency of the process. Time and money that would have gone into replastering a wall or ceiling can be diverted to more pressing concerns, such as fixing a leaking roof or replacing aged kitchen cabinets.

Schedule your plaster repair so that work that can affect the finished plaster is done first. You don't want to fix a plaster ceiling only to have a roof leak ruin it.

Once a plaster surface is cleaned, repaired and painted, you'll notice a significant improvement in a room's appearance.

A plaster surface is composed of three or more coats of plaster secured to a lath. In turn, the lath is fastened to the house's framing. The lath may be wood, metal, paper, or strips of gypsum similar to drywall.

As the first coat of plaster is troweled on, it's pushed through the small spaces between the lath and oozes behind it. The plaster dries and is locked to the lath. The portion of the plaster that has dried behind and around the lath is called a key.

Usually, two or more coats of plaster follow the first coat. The three coats are quite heavy, and if the plaster keys behind the wall or ceiling surface break, the plaster sags away from the lath. Sagging plaster, especially on a ceiling, is a cause for some alarm. Vibration from above can break the keys completely and let the plaster fall in chunks.

Damaged plaster can be reinforced using drywall screws and plaster washers. Three saucer-shaped washers are punched from spring steel, and are perforated to hold patching plaster or drywall compound.

Screws (with plastic washers) are driven into the lath and framing surrounding the damaged plaster. The saucer-shaped washers nearly flatten out as the screw is driven home. Like a washer and bolt, a plaster washer pulls in on the surrounding surface as the screwhead bears down on it. The cupped nature of a plaster washer makes the screwhead easier to cover with a skim coat of drywall compound.

Hydration hardens concrete

AP — Q: I've been told that new concrete should be kept moist for at least three days while curing. I'm wondering just how much stronger can it get, and how long should it cure for maximum strength?

A: Keeping concrete moist helps the curing process. Concrete hardens as a result of a chemical reaction, called hydration, between cement and water, not because it dries. The hardening, or curing, continues as long as moisture remains in the concrete. If too much water is lost from the concrete through evaporation, hydration — and the hardening process — it slows down or ceases.

Concrete continues to gain strength after pouring for as long as it retains moisture, but the longer it moist-cures, the slower the rate of strength gain. Moist-curing concrete for 20 days more thandoubles its strength compared with four days of moist-curing, which is considered a minimum. Although the greatest gain is in the first week or two after pouring, the curing process continues for several months.

Concrete that is not moist-cured at all dries too rapidly, and reaches less than half its potential design strength. It will also have a greater number of shrinkage cracks.

The most frequent moist-curing method is to spread moisture-retaining fabric, such as burlap, over the concrete after it has hardened enough to prevent surface damage. The fabric should be kept thoroughly soaked with a garden hose so a film of water remains on the entire surface of the concrete throughout the curing period.

Q: I have a septic system problem. Once a year, I have to dig up my tank cover and clean out the tank. We have a water softener which uses about 20 pounds of salt weekly. We switched soaps, softeners, etc., but nothing helps. Waste foods and grease are kept to a very minimum. Can you help?

A: Cleaning or pumping out a septic tank once a year really is not that bad. Most health departments recommend that the tank should be cleaned every two to four years, depending on use. Even when a septic system is functioning properly, the tank should be cleaned periodically, or at least inspected for sludge buildup.

Apparently, the waste water from your water softener regeneration process discharges into your septic system. This is a potential problem, especially if the leaching field is installed in a finely textured clay-type soil. The salt brine in the waste water is not broken down by bacterial action as it passes through the septic tank on its way to the leaching field.

As the salt accumulates in the field it can, and often does, clog the voids in the soil, thereby damaging and shortening the life of the disposal field. The waste water from the water softener should not discharge into your septic system. It should run to a separate dry well or onto the ground surface away from the leaching field, plants and shrubs. Be sure, too, that this discharge area slopesaway from your water well if you have one.

Mutual fund offerings should keep on growing

TOM HOGAN

In 1980, the mutual fund industry managed $134 billion in about 564 funds. Since then, the industry has grown to $2.6 trillion under management in more than 5,655 mutual funds. All indications from experts are that it will continue to grow.

In a recent interview in his Chicago office, Don Phillips, president of Morningstar Mutual Funds, said "as the baby boom generation continues to approach age 50 in the next few years, they will continue to save more money for retirement and they will require more funds to do so."

Morningstar is one of the premier mutual fund tracking services available to individuals. It tracks performance statistics on most mutual funds and is very aware of what is taking place in the industry.

Not long ago, the fund industry was relatively simple in its offerings. Did you want to buy a stock fund, bond fund or money market fund? Today, you are offered just about everything. You can purchase funds in the following categories: domestic stocks, international stocks, specialty stock, hybrid funds, specialty bonds, corporate bonds, government bonds and municipal bonds and each one of these categories is broken down further into additional subcategories.

An example of this would be in the domestic stock category, which is subdivided into aggressive growth, equity-income, growth and income and small company funds. Most classes have at least that many subdivisions or more.

Besides the aging of the baby boom generation and party because of the baby boom generation, 401(k) contributions are becoming a more important source of growth for the fund industry.

"A large share of today's 401(k) contributions are going into mutual funds and these contributions continue to increase," said Phillips, who added that he believes the industry will continue to see steady flows into the next decade.

The auto industry is a good example. Besides the core investment options at General Motors and Ford Motor Co., they have 36 to 50 different mutual fund investment options, respectively. Just a short time ago, there were only a few options.

If all of this is not overwhelming enough, you also need to decide whether or not you should use a "no-load" fund versus a "load fund." Usually with a "no-load" you are dealing directly with the mutual fund company. You pick your own fund and call the fund company and place your own order.

With a "load fund" (sales charge) you receive the assistance of a financial adviser in picking the fund family that you want to deal with and what type of mutual fund categories in which you would like to invest.

"Load funds" are offered through stockbrokers, financial planners, banks and other similar financial institutions. They give you a value-added approach because of the counseling you can receive from the person with whom you are dealing one-on-one.

Recently, the competition between the loads and no-loads in the fund industry had spawned new classes of shares.

If it is not already confusing, you have to decide whether it is better for you to purchase A, B, or C shares when buying mutual funds. "A" shares have the sales charge up front in the first year while "B" share are usually back-end load (usually early withdrawal charges in the first five years). "C" shares are level load or sales charges such as 1 percent per year for several years.

Different circumstances can make one type of load more favorable for you than another. There also are other administrative and investment management charges that one needs to consider when looking at either type of fund.

What does an individual do in picking out a mutual fund to invest in? You can be your own student and do your own research.

"A lot of information is being published about mutual funds," said Susan Paluch, an analyst at Morningstar.

You can go to the library or your favorite bookstore and find great quantities of written information about mutual funds and the industry. In the process, you can become self-educated and make your own picks or you can use the talents of a professional to guide you through the maze of choices that you need to make when investing in mutual funds.

Two sources of information about mutual funds are Investment Company Institute, Washington, D.C., (202) 326-5800, and Morningstar Mutual Funds, 225 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago Ill., 60606, (800) 876-5005.

Businesses support Education Expo

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

If businesses want qualified workers to fill high-tech jobs in the 21st century, they should take part in educating young people today.

Local businesses sharing that philosophy will promote their latest products and services at Education Expo '95, a first-ever event that will showcase educational software, tutoring methods, learning workshops, books, videos and other materials aimed at providing kids with an "added edge" in school, said Alexis Bourkoulas, marketing director for Southfield-based Metro Parent Magazine, the event's sponsor.

The expo will run noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 22, in the Buell Management Building at Lawrence Technological University, 21000 W. 10 Mile Road, Southfield. Admission to the family oriented event is free.

Besides 60 booths filled with newfangled educational tools and teaching tricks, the expo will feature karate and gymnastic demonstrations, exhibits from the Living Science Foundation, Detroit Zoo, Michigan Opera Theater and Greenfield Village.

Hiller's Shopping Center Markets, in West Bloomfield and Commerce Township, will offer suggestions for healthy after-school snacks.

CompuQuest, a Birmingham firm that provides computer training and educational programs for 16 local school districts, will conduct hands-on demonstrations of the latest educational software.

Hammell Music in Livonia will be on hand to promote after-school piano lessons.

The day-long event will feature hourly giveaways of educational toys and materials, and kids will create works of art with Arts & Scraps, a unique after-school center based in Detroit.

In addition to displays, several Oakland and Wayne County schools and day-care centers will be on hand to discuss their curricula — Detroit Country Day, Beverly Hills; Academy of the Sacred Heart, Bloomfield Hills; Stepping Stone, Farmington; Kensington Academy, Bloomfield Hills, Gaudior Academy and Gibson School,

An open letter to our carriers:

Saturday, October 14, is International Newspaper Carrier Day.

This space is for you: to tell you how much we appreciate you.

In the year 2045 a lot of you will tell your grandchildren about the summer of '95.

How it was the hottest summer in recorded history. How the hometown newspapers you'd been delivering all year suddenly exploded in size (and weight) due to the Detroit Newspaper strike.

You'll remember this year.

And we'll remember how well you performed. How you went back over and over to collect from your customers. How you settled your accounts on time and in full. How you made the extra effort to put your customers' newspapers exactly where they want them.. How you proudly brought in new subscriptions.

It takes a lot of people to put these papers together, but in the end, we confidently place our trust in you to deliver the fruits of our labor.

Thanks for a job well done!

Fund-raising in the '90s: Charity in cyberspace

The Jail & Bail fund-raising effort of the March of Dimes has entered cyberspace via the Internet's World Wide Web and O&E Online.

The eighth annual Jail & Bail program opened in area shopping malls on Tuesday and continues through Friday, Oct. 20. But then it will continue for another two months in cyberspace giving on-liners ample opportunity to get involved.

The Internet venture is a brand-new effort by the March of Dimes. Cooperating with representatives are Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the Detroit Pistons, Detroit Rockers, Detroit Vipers and Detroit Neon.

"We are excited to be able to help the March of Dimes in this way," said Susan Dorris, marketing assistant for O&E On-Line. "With the use of the Internet, we can reach so many more people and raise so much more money for a very worthy cause. I can't think of a better use of the Internet."

In southeast Michigan, the mall portion of Jail & Bail is at Tel-Twelve Mall in Southfield, Wonderland Mall in Livonia, Arborland Mall in Ann Arbor, Macomb Mall in Roseville, Renaissance Center in Detroit, The Eatery in Flint, and the Frenchtown Mall in Monroe.

Jail & Bail is a simulated arrest where the prisoner is brought to a mall and placed in a mock jail. A judge then determines bail which the prisoner must raise from family, friends and colleagues in the form of pledges to the March of Dimes.

For only $25, you can have anyone arrested for any trumped-up charge your imagination can devise. After the judge sets bail, the prisoner is sentenced to one hour "hard labor" to get on the phone and raise the bail money. Prisoners are released after raising bail, or after one hour elapses.

The $25 fee and the bail pledges goes to the March of Dimes in its effort to combat birth defects. To arrange for an arrest, call (810) 423-3200 or (810) 423-3229.

So how does Jail & Bail work in cyberspace? To find out, visit the jail and bail site at http://oeonline.com/jailball.html. You will see upon arrival that this effort has been labeled "Jail & Bail: Jocks in Cyber-Jail." Next you will be offered a link for the rules and regulations. I never read directions when assembling stuff at home, so I didn't bother clicking on this link. But you organized users certainly can.

Next come the season schedules for the Detroit Pistons, Detroit Rockers and Detroit Vipers, followed by photographs and personal stats on members of the Neon, Pistons, Vipers and Rockers teams.

Each player is shown behind "prison bars" and if you click on their prison photos their biography pops onto the screen.

Alongside each player is a nifty team logo icon. Click on the logo and you are offered the opportunity to make a pledge. A minimum pledge of $25 qualifies you for a drawing for specialty items donated by the sports personality. That drawing will be Dec. 10 so the "Jocks in Cyber-Jail" site will be accessible for at least that long.

The speciality items include autographed balls, jerseys, hockey sticks, game tickets, etc. The players include: Neons Andy Chapman, Colin Jex, Ian Fairbrother; Pistons Grant Hill and Allan Houston; Vipers Daniel Berthiaume, Lonnie Loach, Peter Ciavaglia, Dave Smith; and Rockers goalkeeper Bryan Finnerty.

When you click on the pledge icon, a handy pledge form pops up. The default setting is to pay your pledge by writing a check. Another option is to pay by Visa or MasterCard. Fill out the form on-line, click on "submit your pledge" and you're done. Simple as pie, so give it a try.

The Internet is an ideal medium for fund-raising because of its demographics. Anyone visiting a Website automatically owns a personal computer with modem and graphical interface. The average surfer is college-educated, age 35-45, with discretionary income. A nice target for charity.

Second is ease of access. The charity does not have to disturb the potential donor by calling at home. The donor also doesn't have to leave his house to participate and can choose the time when the decision to give will be considered. Usually it will be during leisure time when he/she is not pressured or facing interruptions.

Another important issue is traffic. Not only is the Internet a hot item these days but the World Wide Web is the hottest thing on the Net. The Web has experienced phenomenal growth over the past year and continues to grow. American access to the WWW increased exponentially when the commercial providers (Prodigy, American On Line, and CompuServe) offered their subscribers access to the Web.

The Web has the right blend of color, graphics, text and user-friendly maneuverbility so that it is very easy for an Net surfer to arrive, bounce around, find the pledge form; make a pledge, and leave. Click, Click, Click, Click, $25 pledged, Click. The Web is even more empowered by c.g.i. programming that provides forms such as the pledge form at "Jocks in Cyber-Jail."

And at relatively low cost, a charity can hire someone to develop a website and make it available for weeks for an ongoing fund-raising drive.

both in Redford Township.

Parents can also attend 20-minute workshops covering a range of topics — new trends in education, kindergarten readiness, home schooling, financial planning for college and making homework a positive experience.

Metro Parent Magazine and the Association of Independent Michigan Schools, a tricounty organization, teamed up to present the expo at the request of Metro Parent readers.

"A lot of parents suggested staging one big event that would bring together schools and all the new educational materials in the marketplace," Bourkoulas said. "We took our cue from them."

The expo's co-sponsors are Microsoft, Chrysler Corp., Lawrence Technological University, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Southfield-based WWJ Newsradio 950, Southfield-based Star-97.1 FM and Hiller's. The O&E circulates twice-weekly newspapers in Oakland and western Wayne counties.

A representative for Lawrence Tech said she hopes children who attend the expo will remember the university when they begin to consider colleges.

"Children are the workforce of tomorrow, so anything businesses can do to enhance their education is a plus," said Stefee Kim, promotions manager for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. The O&E will provide information about Global Village Project, an on-line service that puts local schoolchildren in touch with pen pals in Australia. The program was conceived by a Rochester Hills school teacher.

Tom Cleavinger, co-owner of CompuQuest, will discuss the educational programs his firm provides for some 1,800 local schoolchildren every week. CompuQuest serves public schools in Troy, Bloomfield Hills, Rochester Hills, Farmington and Birmingham, as well as many private schools.

"Technology is changing so fast schools can't keep up," said Cleavinger, a Bloomfield Township resident. "Businesses must realize if they want a strong workforce tomorrow they have to get involved in education today."

Cleavinger will also head a workshop aimed at protecting children from pornography and other unsuitable material on the Internet.

Higher interest on higher balances. Unlimited check-writing.

cash MANAGEMENT CHECKING

Why let a good deal of money lie around in low-interest checking, savings or money-market accounts when it could be earning more in our Cash Management Checking account? The portion of your balance over $5,000 earns a higher return tied to the Fed Funds Rate.* You can write all the checks you want and use your ATM card anywhere. And it's FDIC insured. So stop by your local First of America office or dial 1-800-222-4FOA, Mon.-Fri., 8 a.m.-9 p.m; Sun., 9 a.m.-1 p.m., to open your account by phone.

Example APYs as of 9/24/95. Check with us for current rates.

FIRST of AMERICA Bank

The interest rate for the portion of the balance above $5,000 is tied to the weekly average Federal Funds Rate less not more than one percent, which, as of 9/24/95, is 4.81%. The portion of the balance $5,000 and below earns an interest rate determined by the bank, which, as of 9/24/95, is 1.15%. The APY ranges from 1.16% to 4.73% on $100,000. Annual Percentage Yields are subject to change after account opening. Fees may reduce earnings. Equal Housing Lender. Member FDIC. © 1995, FOA Bank Corporation. An Open Letter to the Community

First, let us indicate how troubled we are–like the rest of the community–that the two sides in the strike against the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press have been unable to resolve their differences. We believe all of us are adversely affected by this labor dispute.

Second, we want to indicate that we believe and support the collective bargaining process and hope the two sides will sit down–and do so soon–to settle this strike.

That said, let us also make it very clear that we at Art Van are not pro-management or pro-labor. We are neutral, a third party with no direct economic or political interest in the strike.

Thus, we find the continued pressure from the unions to remove our advertising from the newspapers along with their picketing of our stores, unfair and wrong, to say the least.

Advertising is the lifeline of our business as it is for the hundreds of other companies which have continued to advertise. It supports our business and helps pay the salaries, health care insurance and other benefits for some 2400 of our people. For the unions to ask us to jeopardize our business and the security of our people for a dispute in which we are not a party is wrong. In addition, some of the unions' practices violate federal law.

We are proud that throughout the years we have created new jobs in the State of Michigan–500 in the last three years–helping the State's economy. We also have supported many community programs. We intend to continue to do that but we can only do so with a healthy business. That requires our continued advertising in all avenues available to us.

We know little about the newspaper business or the issues involved in this strike, and we have no interest in being drawn into the dispute.

All we ask is that the striking unions show respect for our neutrality and independence, concern for the jobs of our people and the continued vitality of our business and the right of our customers to be left alone.

All the energies in this strike ought to be expended in settling this prolonged dispute. That would serve the best interests of everyone–the papers' management, the unions and the entire community.

Sincerely,

Art Van Furniture
