City puts limits on 7-Eleven store

Homeowners in the Joy-Merriman area are somewhat pleased that the city council limited the hours of a planned 7-Eleven convenience store. The limits were part of the council's split vote Monday in approving the business's site plan.

The Westland City Council, risking a lawsuit, approved a site plan limiting business hours for a new 7-Eleven convenience store on the southeast corner of Joy and Merriman.

The council's split decision pleased — to a degree — some 15 neighboring homeowners who were opposed to any 7-Eleven on the parcel, but City Attorney Angelo Plakas said the city has no right to set operating hours as part of a site plan review.

The planning commission last month recommended site plan approval on a 5-3 vote.

Residents in the area complained to the council Monday night that an all-night business would create crime, traffic and noise problems as well as potentially harming their property values.

About a half-dozen persons voiced their opposition to the site plan, with Councilman Charles Pickering leading the argument for limiting the hours for the planned business.

He wanted the store closed from midnight to 6 a.m. as well as the installation of surveillance cameras to deter robberies and vandalism and the prohibition of left turns from the parking lot onto Joy and Merriman.

A 7-Eleven representative, Ted Zuchlewski, told the council he would agree with the cameras and left-turn ban, but not the limiting of hours.

Besides Pickering, council members voting to approve the site plan with restrictions were Glenn Anderson, Charles Griffin and Justine Barns. Opposed were Council mem-

The former nurse, who is now the college's provost and top administrator of the center, talked about the up-and-down history of the college and the center, built on 100 acres in Van Buren Township, near Belleville.

She and colleagues at the center admit that enrollment is only 150, the equivalent of five elementary school classrooms, but that there are plans to boost it to 500 or possibly 1,000 by next fall.

Chairman of the college's board is Ted Scott, former Westland fire chief who was elected to the board from the western Wayne County district in the late 1980s.

The college center has its roots in Westland, opening some 25 years ago and operating at night in several John Glenn High School class-

School tax collection date moved up

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

Wayne-Westland school district homeowners who pay property taxes directly to the city will pay more this summer, due to a billing change.

The Wayne-Westland school board Monday received city council permission to have all of the district's property taxes collected in the summer instead of the past practice of having the bill divided between the winter and summer collections.

City Finance Director Michael Gorman told the council Monday that the action means residents in a home valued at $85,000 will have to pay about $277 more this summer.

But he and council members stressed that the extra money doesn't mean a tax increase, only a shift, since their winter property tax bills will be lower than past years.

The main reason the school board is collecting all property taxes this summer is to improve cash flow and avoid paying $700,000 to $900,000 a year in interest. This will avoid past practice of borrowing to meet cash flow needs.

Councilman Charles Griffin said Monday that the council really has no choice in granting the school board's request. If the city denied the request, collections would be made at local banks which would create major problems for residents as well as the city's finance department.

Under state law, the city also levies a 1 percent fee on all property taxes collected, or $525,000 a year.

City officials made it clear to school administration that homeowners affected by the change must be told in advance the change is only a shift, not a tax increase.

Westland budget director calls it quits

■ Hocking, 38, quit his job on Feb. 21 as the administration was preparing a 1996-97 budget that has to be submitted to the Westland City Council by April 1.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland Budget Director Ronald Hocking has quit his $44,082-a-year job, little more than a year after he started it, city officials confirmed Tuesday.

Even though Hocking had differences with some administration officials, such as Finance Director Michael Gorman, he left his post voluntarily, Mayor Robert Thomas said.

"He wasn't fired. He quit himself," Thomas said, adding later that Hocking "didn't really share with me why he was quitting."

Hocking, 38, quit his job on Feb. 21 as the administration was preparing a 1996-97 budget that has to be submitted to the Westland City Council by April 1.

"I think Ron had a tough time adjusting to the work schedule and the work that needed to be done," Gorman said, adding that Hocking had problems meeting deadlines.

Hocking couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday.

The bulk of Hocking's job pertained to budgeting and auditing responsibilities, Gorman said.

Despite his departure, there will be no delay in presenting a timely budget proposal to the Westland City Council, Gorman said. In fact, a $37 million general fund budget has been virtually completed by Gorman's office.

Thomas couldn't say with certainty when Hocking would be replaced, but he said he would prefer to have a new budget director on the job by June.

Administration officials may consider previous candidates who had applied for the job that was awarded to Hocking last year, Thomas said. Hocking began his duties on Feb. 2, 1995.

Hocking had worked in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., as a utilities rate and finance administrator before taking the Westland job. Earlier, he had worked for the city of Southfield as public works financial coordinator.

Continental Cable merges with U.S. West Media

BY MARGARET O'BRIEN
STAFF WRITER

Continental Cable, which provides cable service to some 23,000 Westland customers, completed a merger agreement Tuesday with U.S. West Media Group.

Continental is the nation's fourth largest cable operator with 4.2 million customers.

The company has served Westland since 1984 and has its area offices and studios in Dearborn Heights, which it also serves.

The announced merger will make the Media Group one of the largest cable operators in the country, but subscribers probably won't notice changes anytime soon, according to Continental spokesman Bill Black.

"We don't anticipate any effect on rates or employment," Black said, adding that the existing management structure and staff at Continental will remain in place.

"This will likely speed up existing plans to provide high speed Internet access and long distance phone service. U.S. West brings a lot of resources in this area," Black said adding that the two companies are a good match.

"Both companies share a vision of the future of telecommunications," he said adding that their territories don't overlap.

Once the merger is formally closed, the Media Group will have 4.7 million cable subscribers and will share in the management of an additional 11.5 million domestically. Internationally, the joint company will have access to 13.9 million homes.

"The Continental properties are widely recognized as some of the best-run and best-clustered cable systems in the world. They make an excellent addition to our Media One subsidiary in Atlanta and our Time Warner Entertainment Partnership with Time Warner," Chuck Lillis, president and CEO of U.S. West Media Group, said.

"With rapid advances in technology and with the fundamental realignment taking place in the telecommunication world, this merger comes at a critical time for our company," he said. "I look forward to working with U.S. West to lead the next wave of growth and expansion in the cable industry.

■ 'We don't anticipate any effect on rates or employment.'

Bill Black
Continental spokesman

In the merger transaction, U.S. West will purchase all of Continental's stock for $5.3 billion and assume its $5.6 million in debt.

In return, Continental will get $1 billion in U.S. West preferred stock, $2.8 to $3.3 billion in common stock and $1 to $1.5 billion in cash.

Lillis said Continental was appealing because it has been aggressive in developing hybrid fiber-coaxial networks and is among the industry leaders in the amount of fiber in its systems. He said its clusters in five large domestic markets — Chicago, Michigan/Ohio, New England, California and Florida — were also an asset.

Continental also has interests in Australia, Argentina and Singapore; a 10 percent interest in Primestar; advertising and insertions businesses; telephone access businesses in Florida and Virginia; and programming interests in Turner Broadcasting, E! Entertainment Television, the Golf Channel and the Food Channel.

The merger is expected to close at the end of the year. It is subject to a number of conditions, including regulatory and other approvals, including that of Continental's shareholders.

bers Richard LeBlanc and Sandra Cicirelli.

Anderson earlier tried to have the site plan vote postponed for two weeks because he hadn't received a report on the building's planned elevations. But his request went down after a 3-3 tie vote.

Planning director Tod Kilroy told the council that the proposed building would have red brick.

The property was rezoned for its current commercial use in 1985, noted Cicirelli.

One resident near the planned 7-Eleven, Rose Milavec, was the most vocal opponent of the development, calling it an "outrage."

She said there are three other 7-Eleven businesses in the area and one which had been closed.

Milavec and neighbors also complained about the problems from the nearby McDonald's restaurant which they claimed had harmed property values.

She concluded that her neighbors now face "Slurpee" cups on their property from the convenience store.

In defending his vote, Griffin commented that the city will probably lose in court if the site plan is rejected.

With the plan being approved with restrictions, "we may still wind up in court as a test case," referring to the council's putting limits on the store's hours.

At the Feb. 6 planning commission meeting, neighbors submitted petitions signed by some 70 residents opposing the store.

Their complaints centered on the traffic problems on Joy and Merriman, loss of property values initiated by the opening of McDonald's several years ago, and that residents may be forced to clean up debris generated by the store's customers.

Without that notification, the city may be deluged with phone calls from homeowners, officials said.

Several council members also want the school board to pay for postage to inform homeowners of the change, since the district is saving up to $900,000 in loan finance charges.

The tax collection change is also expected to affect retirees living on a fixed income, council members noted.

Pet store reopens near burned site

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

At a storefront near its burned out former location, Larry Lempicki has found a temporary home for his House of Pets store on Ford west of Middlebelt.

"I'm here because of the people. The day after the fire, people kept coming up to us — little kids giving us $1 to rebuild," said Lempicki. "It was very heartwarming."

An electrical short was blamed for the fire which destroyed the House of Pets, owned for 18 years by Lempicki. The business was popular for its exotic animals and a place to bring the youngsters for some window shopping.

"Sometimes I feel like is it worth it? The people make it worth it. It's hard to start over after 18 years," said Lempicki. "When I had only a couple items in the temporary store, regular customers came in to buy things to help. With support from local area customers, Lempicki said the House of Pets is rather a local landmark drawing customers from a wide area.

The January fire destroyed the store, leaving only the cinder block walls standing, and all of the contents including animals, fish and reptiles. The total damages can't really be calculated, Lempicki said.

"Let's just say the loss was more than we were insured for. We started complying a list of inventory and stopped because it was over our insurance," he said. "We had some animals you can't classify the value."

Among the rare animals lost in the fire were a Potto and a Slow Loris — both slow moving nocturnal creatures at the bottom of the primate chain.

"Those animals aren't available anymore. A lot of them were personal pets," said Lempicki. "We had large birds here. A lot of them were were not for sale. They were here so people could enjoy them. We spend a lot of time in the shop, so we could care better for them."

The temporary store was to have only some limited items but the stock was being expanded last week with salt water fish joining exotic birds, reptiles and hamsters.

Larry Lempicki

"We were going to set up a few dry goods to sell but people kept asking for fish," Lempicki said. "We got established again. It's a matter of personal pride."

Before he moves ahead with rebuilding the store, Lempicki needs to resolve efforts to buy a 20-foot vacant strip west of the burned building from the city. The city has accepted Lempicki's bid for the parcel, but needs to resolve some title issues before completing the sale.

"We grew to a plateau. We jammed the shop from ceiling to floor. We need to rebuild here, which I'd prefer, or look at another place," he said. "It doesn't make sense to rebuild to the same size. I'd rather stay here in Garden City."

Located just east of its former location, House of Pets is open daily 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

On a county-wide basis, WCCC reached a peak enrollment of 25,000 and dropped to a low of under 10,000 during the highly-publicized squabbles between the board and several presidents.

Jounson said the enrollment has now rebounded to about 13,000.

The western center opened 15 years ago with an enrollment of 1,500 to 2,000 students, more than 10 times its current level.

Johnson, who has a bachelor's and master's degree in nursing and a doctorate in education, told the Observer in an interview Monday that the college will survey current students and residents to determine their needs of classes and programs.

"Then we will organize classes to meet those needs," she said. "After that, we will market the programs and classes at area high schools and businesses and tell them what we have to offer."

The center, in the middle of an expected population growth area in southwestern Wayne County, wants to focus on its strengths in transfer students, transportation programs, and health sciences.

In one group of potential students are high schoolers or others in the work world who want an associate degree or later transfer to a four-year university to earn a bachelor's degree.

One new "tenant" at the 16-year-old center on Haggerty, three miles south of Michigan Avenue, is Corporate Services, which plans training and educational classes and programs for area businesses. The division, previously housed at the college's main office in downtown Detroit, is headed by Ethel Cronk Todd.

In trying to boost the enrollment at the center, the college has contracted with Russell Tuttle as a community outreach consultant.

Tuttle, a Westland resident, is familiar to many residents as a former city councilman and public relations director for the defunct Peoples Community Hospital Authority and later at Botsford Hospital.

He said his six-month contract runs through July, but he expects to have it renewed.

Discussing the center were Johnson, Tuttle, counselor John Bowker and George Davis, WCCC's regional director for public affairs and community outreach, who talked about the college's past, present and future.

Davis was proud to brag about that 52 percent of nurses in the county are WCCC graduates.

"Our nursing students score higher on state boards than those from many four-year universities," Davis said. "Our dental hygienist students all score in the 90s on their state boards."

WCCC has the only dietetic technicians program among 29 Michigan community colleges, he added.

Bowker noted that the college has more doctorate faculty members teaching in classrooms than any other four-year university.

The college was in the center of ongoing highly-publicized battles between its board and a series of presidents for many years, although the college now has peace.

Part of the college's problem in western Wayne is that the Van Buren Township center had been located too far from its population center and that the exterior appearance of the two-story building looks more like a manufacturing building.

The massive, gray exterior masks the colorful interior which has classrooms, a 24-hour child care center, computer labs, and sections for the transportation service and maintenance program.

Another program that Bowker likes to brag about is the STARS service which is aimed at 1,000 at-risk middle and high school students in seven western Wayne districts, encouraging to think about college and offering help on how to enter and succeed.

Information about the college's Western Center may be obtained by calling (313) 699-7614.

Despite group's demand, incinerator won't close

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

Despite a demand that a regional incinerator immediately shut down, the facility which burns local garbage will remain open.

The executive director of the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority emphatically denied the call by the Sierra Club of Southeastern Michigan, an environmentalist organization, to shut down immediately.

J. Eric Schaeffer, the authority's chief administrator, also disputed many of the claims made by the Sierra Club in a written statement to area newspapers.

He also discounted claims by the group saying that landfills are preferable to incinerators.

Despite claims by the Sierra Club that the authority has received many violations from the federal Environmental Protection Agency, Schaeffer said that some were for minor infractions.

More importantly, the EPA has given the authority a clean bill of health in a December 1995 letter to a Westland resident who wrote the agency about incinerator violations.

The incinerator was built in 1962 on Inkster Road near Annapolis, Dearborn Heights, to burn rubbish from that city as well as Garden City, Westland, Inkster and Wayne. More recently, the city of Taylor contracted with the authority to burn its rubbish.

In its statement, the Sierra Club not only wanted the incinerator shut down immediately but also called for a health study of children at an elementary school just south of the facility to determine if there are health problems.

The organization claimed that an EPA study in September 1994 showed that the incinerator produced dioxins which are carcinogenic and "extremely potent hormone disrupters with reproductive, immunological and behavioral effects."

But an EPA letter sent to Westland's Charles Pare late last year concluded that a 1994 test showed that the equipment is in "compliance with permit limits."

Generally, the EPA said, the facility is operating with all rules and construction permits covering the emission of particulates, nitrogen dioxide, sulfur dioxide, carbon monoxide, hydrochloric acid, organ compounds, and metals such as lead, cadmium and chromium.

Schaeffer, when asked to respond to the Sierra Club's criticisms, pointed out what while the incinerator received several violation notices from the EPA, there were all related to minor malfunctions of monitoring equipment or conditions that resulted from an exceptionally wet period.

"The inspecting agency (of the EPA) accepted the authority's explanations and were satisfied that the matter would be rectified by the authority. In none of those few instances was there any indication that the authority was actually higher than permitted levels of pollutants," the director said.

Schaeffer also noted that the authority is currently working with a private partnership to install expensive equipment that would allow it to create energy from the burning of rubbish and sell it to Detroit Edison, or heat that is "currently wasted up the stack."

The partnership will finance, construct and operate the new energy recovery system as part of the overall project without any financial burden to local residents, Schaeffer said.

The Sierra Club also called for a Wayne County Health Department study of students at the nearby elementary school, part of the Taylor school district, to determine if there is any health hazard.

The club was also critical in its statement of the state Legislature's "haste" last December to exempt the authority's incinerator from a law prohibiting the operation of incinerators within 1,000 feet of schools, hospitals, homes, day care centers, nursing homes or hospitals.

Environmental groups, including the Sierra Club, feel that the new law extending exemptions was passed in haste and should be amended to rescind the exclusions.

"Because of exclusions, this law is worse than irrelevant," the club's statement said. "It is tragedy that there are children who continue to be callously exempted from protections," said Sierra Club spokesman Ed McCardle. "For too long, legislators and regulators have ignored harmful incinerators, such as the one operated by Central Wayne (County Sanitation Authority), which are among the largest sources of toxic pollution in the Great Lakes region."

The Sierra Club leader also called for suburban rubbish to be dumped in landfills, a position strongly opposed by Schaeffer.

He said that landfills are a major source of air pollution, which arises from the dust, odor, seagulls and related activities related to operating a dump.

Sen. Bennett tops list of lawmakers to get bills passed

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Sen. Loren Bennett, a freshman from Canton, was western Wayne County's 1995 champion at getting his bills enacted into law.

Bennett's name is on six laws, mostly environmental acts and one utility act. Only four other legislators topped that mark.

He had two advantages. He's a Republican whose party controls both chambers. And he chairs the Natural Resources Committee, which had a major role in advancing Gov. John Engler's pro-business agenda.

Reps. James Ryan, R-Redford, and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, got two laws enacted. Ryan's success rate was unusual since he's a freshman. Law is a veteran legislator. Both serve on the Judiciary Committee, which produces a great number of popular anti-crime bills. Ryan introduced 18 bills; Law, 40.

Both Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, saw two laws enacted. They are on their respective Appropriations Committees, which produce budget bills that must be enacted to implement $8 billion in general fund spending.

Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, saw one of her 13 bills become law. She serves on the Tax Policy Committee, which reported out chairman Willis Bullard's bills. Bullard, R-Milford, topped all House members with eight bills becoming law.

Three western Wayne lawmakers — all Democrats — got nothing passed. Sen. George Hart of Dearborn introduced 11 bills; Rep. Eileen DeHart of Westland, 20 bills; Rep. Tom Kelly of Wayne, one.

That was politics as usual in the Capitol. The Legislature enacted 124 bills sponsored by Republicans and 20 sponsored by Democrats. Minority party lawmakers count their successes not in bills passed but in tying amendments onto GOP bills to make them more palatable.

Sometimes Democrats have to be content to see Republicans cannibalize Democratic bills and take credit for them. It worked the same way when Democrats controlled the Senate until 1984 and the House until last year.

Three Republican senators shared top honors for getting 10 bills passed — Mike Bouchard of Birmingham, Glenn Steil of Grand Rapids and Joanne Emmons of Big Rapids. Bouchard chairs the Senate Financial Services Committee; Emmons, the tax-writing Finance Committee.

The record was based on 1995 performance. The last compilation was published Dec. 31 by the Legislative Service Bureau. Bills passed in 1996 have not been counted.

Getting bills passed into law is only one measure of a legislator's clout. House Speaker Paul Hillegonds, R-Holland, didn't introduce a single bill. House minority leader Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, batted zero for one.

County courts work to split dockets

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

The bugs are still being worked out in circuit court in wake of a state Supreme Court administrative order to send criminal cases originating in Wayne County outside of Detroit out of Recorder's Court back to the 3rd Circuit Court.

A plan to "demerge" the docket began Nov. 9 after the October order, according to Judge James J. Rashid, chief judge of Wayne County's 3rd Circuit Court.

About 250 pending out-county criminal cases have been reassigned to circuit court, he said. But, some cases haven't been moved to circuit court, because it wouldn't make sense administratively to switch judges on some cases in mid-trial, Rashid said.

"We hope to have that resolved by April or May," he said.

Five circuit court judges at a time rotate to felony crime cases for a three-month period. In addition, two circuit court judges handle arraignments on a permanent basis, Rashid said.

In the past, a case could be assigned to a Recorder's Court judge or a rotating Circuit Court judge in Detroit's Recorder's Court at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice, but now the cases will be handled in courtrooms at the City-County Building in Detroit, Rashid said.

That's presented a problem for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, according to Sheriff Robert A. Ficano.

The lockup at the City-County Building isn't as big or as sophisticated as the one for Recorder's Court, Ficano said. That has meant more trips to transport inmates for trial as male and female inmates have to be kept separate and not as many can be housed in the City-County Building lockup, he said.

The sheriff's department has the expense of bringing defendants over from the jail and keeping two police officers in the courtroom during proceedings, Ficano said.

The circuit court judges are trying to work with the prosecutor's office and sheriff's department to minimize the problem for them, Rashid said.

For the prosecutor's office the change is working out so far. "We're accommodating the demerger," said George Ward, chief assistant prosecuting attorney.

It's been so far so good for the added cases on the docket of circuit court judges, according to Rashid.

In some ways it will be more work just because of the way the court has chosen to handle criminal cases, he said.

At one time criminal cases were rotated to different judges at various points in the proceedings, but now the cases are being handled in a way similar to civil cases — the case is assigned to a judge who is responsible for disposing of it, Rashid said.

The plan is to continue the rotation of criminal cases to circuit judges, because it helps the prosecutor's office. If more of the court's 35 judges go into the rotation, "they'd have to have a lot more prosecutors," Rashid said.

Sending cases to Recorder's Court began in the late 1980s. It was viewed as a way of helping the overall criminal docket, and also saved on security and prosecutors' resources, Rashid said. But that plan met with opposition in part because Recorder's Court judges are elected by Detroit residents only.

"Ideally it would be nice if we could do it all in one building," Rashid said.

In the late 1980s, about 2,200 criminal cases a year came from Wayne County outside of Detroit, but that number has more than doubled to 5,000 a year, Rashid said. He said he doesn't know what percentage of the cases was being handled by Recorder's Court judges.

Clothing drive to aid battered women, homeless

Vista Maria's VOYAGE program will be having a clothing drive at the Main Campus, 20651 W. Warren, Dearborn Heights, until March 15.

Thirteen girls, ages 14-16, will coordinate, sort, clean and deliver the donated clothing to a shelter for battered women, a homeless shelter, and COTS.

The VOYAGE program offers day treatment services for first-time juvenile offenders. The goal is to keep the girls home and out of high-cost residential programs.

"The girls involved in this clothing drive want to give something back to the community. Vista Maria has helped them, now they are helping others," said Diane Bostic Robinson, executive director.

Gently used clothing can be donated; drop-off boxes are available on campus.

Vista Maria is a private, non-profit agency providing education, counseling, and care to teen-age girls with emotional and behavioral problems resulting from abuse and neglect.

Since 1883, Vista Maria has been providing services to young women and families from southeastern Michigan.

Check out home inspections, brothers say

Brian Lee of Canton Township and Craig Lee of Livonia are running the HomeTeam Inspection Service, serving Canton, Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Redford and Westland.

Brian started in the business, and Craig joined him in November.

The home inspection business has really taken off in the 1990s, Craig Lee said.

"Home buyers, for spending as much as they are on their homes, are looking for value," he said. "They want to know what they are buying is secure."

Also, many people are working all the time, and they don't know that much about the home they are buying, he said.

The HomeTeam service uses a team of inspectors, including a licensed heating and cooling inspector. Areas an inspector looks at include the roof, mechanical and electrical systems, exterior siding, windows, decks and garages, interior walls and ceilings, steps and floors, plumbing and all appliances.

Realtors and homeowners are looking for a shorter time period for inspections, Craig Lee said.

The Lees suggest that home inspections should tell not only what is wrong with a house, but what is right with it. Inspections also should offer advice on maintenance of a home, Craig Lee said.

Home inspectors look for major visual defects, Craig Lee said, but "we're not there to fix the problem; we're not part of a construction company."

"The point is to give an unbiased opinion of the home," he said. If inspectors see a major visual defect, it's recommended that the home be looked at by a licensed professional in that area, he said.

The Lees suggest that questions should be asked about home inspections:

- Does the inspection company have an interest in or a connection to a repair or remodeling company? Such an affiliation might cause a conflict of interest, according to Craig Lee.
- How long will the inspection take and how soon will you receive the written report? Is it detailed and easy to read? Ask to see a copy of an actual report.
- Exactly what will the inspection include? How much will the inspection cost?
- Does the company encourage the home buyer to attend the inspection and ask questions? Being present during the inspection allows you to see the home from a different perspective and provides valuable information on the care and maintenance your home will require in the years to come.
- Can the inspection company offer specialized inspections performed by a qualified professional?
- What sort of insurance does the company carry? A reputable firm will carry professional errors and omissions insurance, general business liability and workers compensation.
- Does the company follow the guidelines of any professional organizations such as the American Inspectors Association or the American Society of Home Inspectors? Does the company provide additional services such as termite and other pest inspections, radon testing, asbestos testing and other environmental testing?

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

The basic cost for a home inspection is about $220, which Craig Lee said can be viewed as an unneeded added expense by uneducated buyers. But if a buyer is investing in a home, the last thing a tight budget needs is an unexpected repair bill, he said.

World Wide Web sites help unlock auto industry

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

The automobile industry is gaining an increasing presence on the Internet with sites on the World Wide Web.

To celebrate the 100th anniversary of the American automobile industry, the American Automobile Centennial Commission (AACC) has launched a Web site at http://www.auto100.org/auto100.html.

Highlights include "Zero-100 in five seconds flat!" which allows users the evolution of the automobile from the first 1896 Duryea Motor Wagon to a 1996 model car.

Another feature links to Detroit's Center for Creative Studies so users can watch firsthand as senior engineering students design and develop cutting-edge concept cars.

"Car Crazy" is designed to appeal to everyone who has nostalgic memories of cars and cruisin', featuring an eclectic collection of fun and unusual automobile facts, trivia, anecdotes, events and photos spanning the last century. Examples include the top 25 car songs of all time, favorite car films, and the 10 greatest cars that were never made.

You also will find links to the Ford Historical Library, AutoZone's Classic Car Museum, the Tucker Homepage, and other automotive Web sites.

Auto 100 site also provides a calendar of events for the Centennial's year-long nationwide celebration. Users interested in learning more about the celebration can refer to the Partner Program calendar for a list of Centennial events in their community.

Buick enters fray

Buick Motor Division has launched a site on the WWW featuring a comprehensive look at its new products including a virtual walk-around of the 1996 Riviera, an interactive "Build Your Own Car" section, and a Buick dealer locator, as well as PGA Tour golf sponsorship and auto show information.

Point to http:/www.buick.com and visit the "Showroom" which features 1996 product photographs and detailed information on the Buick car line. This feature allows you to do some "research shopping" at home without a salesman hovering nearby.

A "Build Your Own Car" section provides the user with the opportunity to create his or her own 1996 Riviera or Regal from a complete available options listing.

When ready to buy, users can access a Buick dealer locator by entering its ZIP code. The locator will find the closest Buick dealership and provide the name, address and phone number.

The golf section includes information on Buick's sponsorship of four PGA Tour golf tournaments featuring same-day coverage and benefiting charities, Buick-sponsored PGA Tour players and a complete 1996 PGA Tour schedule.

The tournament section includes same-day coverage of each event, information on past champions and events, and golf course hole-by-hole images and descriptions.

General Motors Acceptance Corporation, the financing arm of General Motors, has joined GM, Buick, Chevrolet, Pontiac, Cadillac and Saturn on the World Wide Web.

The theme of the GMAC Financial Services consumer site is "SmartTown," a place where consumers will find information on buying or leasing a new car or truck. Point to http:/www.gmacfs.com.

"SmartTown" has a payment calculator to assist the consumer in comparing financing options. This calculator also is offered at other GM sites, such as Chevy's Website.

Coming soon, "SmartTown" will have a section that provides up-to-date information on the latest news from GMAC and a section for consumers to tell GMAC what's on their minds.

Anyone interested in Chevrolet or Geo should bookmark "The Chevy Spot" at http://www.chevrolet.com.

Chevy also can be linked to at the GM website at http://www.gm.com which also links to Buick, Pontiac, Cadillac, Saturn and GMAC — to provide a total of 1,300 pages and 15,300 links. At "The Chevy Spot" three product sections are offered on Chevy cars, Chevy trucks or Geo. Find out what's "New" and "Cool" from Chevy, like free software and products for purchase, such as clothing items.

Other options offer a payment estimator for purchases or leases, and information on dealer locations. Users are encouraged to tell their favorite product stories, ask for brochures or suggest ways to change the Website.

As of February some 12 Cadillac dealers were participating in a pilot program that began in December 1995. The Cadillac site has a "Dealer locator" feature which allows customers to find the four closest dealers in their ZIP code area. Information given on each dealer includes address, phone number, hours of operation, a map, etc. If you are shopping for a Cadillac, first take a visit to http://www.cadillac.com.

Ford Motor Company is developing Websites but so far their sites are for internal use, for media use, or dealer use and not the public at-large. Chrysler has some fine Websites, but this column is too long as it is.

For health care, you can pay now or you'll pay later

TOM HOGAN

Do you remember the ad on the television in which a mechanic comes on the tube and tells you how regular oil changes protect your engine?

He concludes by saying you can pay me now (oil change) or you can pay me later (repair of engine). Waiting until later can be very expensive, as replacing your engine is tremendously more expensive than regular oil changes. It's the same with the purchase of long-term health care coverage, the premiums for the coverage, which some people think are rather expensive, are less in cost than the actual expense of providing for a loved one's care in an extended care facility on an out-of-pocket basis.

As is true in most cases, a pay as you go system is always more expensive than planning ahead for your expenditure.

The average premium cost for a long-term health care policy for a person age 63-64 is $1,350 annually, according to Ed Rich, marketing specialist of M & O Marketing in Dearborn. The cost in today's dollars for long-term care facilities services can be up to $40,000 per year. Home health care is generally less expensive and can start at $20,000 per year.

What are the odds that you will actually use the coverages? In an article from Health Magazine of October 1993, it was stated that 43 percent of Americans over age 65 will spend some time in a nursing home. For every person in a nursing home at any given time, there are three more who require care in their home. In April of 1993, a report in U.S. News and World Report indicated that the use of nursing homes is expected to grow by 70 percent in the next 30 years.

"Purchasing long-term health care coverage is like investing, you can start easily with a small deposit annually to create a potentially large benefit at the end. It's worth saving a few cents on every dollar to protect one's life savings," Kenneth W. Lyon, a financial planner from Livonia, said recently.

"Many individuals feel Medicare will cover these expenses," Lyon said. According to an article in the Sept. 25, 1995, New York Times, this is not true. "While Medicare covers acute illnesses like heart attacks and cancer, it does not cover prolonged stays in nursing homes and largely neglects care for chronic, degenerative diseases," the article states.

If Medicare does not cover it, surely Medicaid will pick up the bill. This is correct, however, "Medicaid doesn't come to your rescue until you have lost everything but your home, your car and $2,000 in other assets," as reported by the San Francisco Chronicle, July 11, 1994. The vast majority of nursing home care expenditures are handled out-of-pocket or by private insurance coverage. This method usually continues until the patient and family go broke. Then Medicaid will step in and provide for these charges.

The bottom line is, you can plan for long-term health care now, or you can pay for it later when it is much more expensive.

■ FINANCING PACT

Universal Self Care Inc. of Livonia has secured a financing agreement with Daiwa Securities America.

The agreement allows for funding to a maximum of $20 million. The availability of the funding will be determined by the company's capital needs and receivables. The facility is credit rated AA by Duff & Phelps.

Universal Self Care, through its subsidiary Diabetes Self Care, is a specialty provider of supplies and support services for individuals with diabetes.

■ AUTOMATIC PAYMENT

Additional utility companies have joined with the Michigan Automated Clearing House Association system of automatic bill payment.

Ameritech, Barry County Telephone Company, Cherryland Electric Cooperative, Frontier Communications of Michigan, GTE and Lansing Board of Water & Light have joined the 1996 automatic bill payment program. Companies that participated in 1994 and 1995 include: Consumers Power, Detroit Edison, Battle Creek Gas, Citizens Gas Fuel Company, Indiana Michigan Power, MichCon, Michigan Gas Co., Michigan Gas Utilities and Southeastern Michigan Gas Co.

Each Michigan Automated Clearing House Association member financial institution and the participating companies have 1996 forms available for customers to sign up for automatic bill payment. By completing the authorization form, the customer allows the utility company to withdraw the monthly payment electronically.

"With automatic bill payment consumers no longer have to write checks or buy stamps to mail their payments," association president William Thornton said. "Each of these companies will continue to send monthly usage statements to their customers advising them of the amount due and the date it will be withdrawn from their account."

"Automatic bill payment utilizes the same network as Direct Deposit. Over half of all Social Security benefit payments, as well as millions of payroll items, are made this way. The system is proven, safe and reliable," Thornton said.

Schools' loss

'Bud' Winter will be missed

When longtime educator Francis "Bud" Winter was elected to the Wayne-Westland School Board four years ago, he vowed that his decisions would be motivated by what was best for students. As he prepares to leave his post in June to retire to Arizona with his wife, Maggie, Winter can be proud that the district has seen some long-overdue improvements during his board tenure.

With help from his board colleagues and school administrators, Winter succeeded in accomplishing the goals that he cited as his top priorities in seeking a four-year term.

Winter said he wanted to see improvements in the district's instructional program, which had been in dire need of a tune-up for a decade. Led by Jane Kuckel, the district's top instructional official, many positive curriculum changes have been implemented, despite the district's continuing money problems. Student scores on the state MEAP test have improved.

Winter supported shifting the district to a middle school structure, with sixth-graders being moved out of the elementaries and ninth-graders being shifted to the high schools. The change didn't occur without problems, but the transition has been much easier than it could have been.

Winter wanted to see attendance boundaries redrawn, in a move that also accompanied the closing of four elementary schools. Winter recently called the closings "painful," but he recognized that they were necessary to streamline a financially ailing district.

Winter encountered his share of controversy. When he won a four-year term, he joined a board that had been engaged for years in political fighting. That didn't end immediately, and Winter was among a board majority that ousted former Superintendent Larry Thomas. Ironically, it was Thomas' administration that carried out many of the goals that Winter wanted to see achieved.

Winter also took on Westland city officials for refusing to help the school district pay to put a police officer in John Glenn High School. Winter thought the two should split the cost, as the district and the city of Wayne had done at Wayne Memorial High School. When Westland balked, Winter publicly criticized Westland officials.

His school board accomplishments aside, Winter will be remembered most for his 35-year career as a Wayne-Westland teacher and principal. He retired from his last post as Wayne Memorial principal in 1989. Many of his peers have commended his dedication to the district.

Now, Winter has his sights set on Arizona, and we wish him a happy retirement. He will be missed.

Don't pick taxpayers' pockets

The Detroit Lions organization will be the next major entertainment facility in Michigan to get in line for state tax dollars to support a private venture.

The Detroit Tigers are in line, by invitation, for $55 million in public funding for road improvements, site development, parking, and other infrastructure improvements for a new ball stadium. This is wrong but is not the first time Michigan has made this error.

The state first committed this error when asked for public funding by these same Lions for road expansion and infrastructure surrounding the Pontiac Silverdome followed by annual operating subsidies. That was wrong, but we did it.

Now the Lions are "unhappy" with lease arrangements the club signed and wants the city of Pontiac, which owns the Silverdome, to renegotiate. If Pontiac won't offer better terms, the Lions say they will build a new stadium elsewhere. And if the state won't help them build a new stadium elsewhere, the Fords will sell the club to someone who will move the Lions out of the state.

Feeling like a hostage yet?

Don't. We should not allow ourselves to be held hostage.

Public funding of a new stadium for the Lions simply should not be discussed because it should not be an option. The Lions are a family-owned business. The state simply should not subsidize a private business.

Another objection is that state funding of a new Lions stadium would be counterproductive. Michigan taxpayers have supported the Silverdome, both with infrastructure and annual subsidies for nearly 20 years, expecting professional football teams to be the main users. Why should we now spend more tax dollars to destroy the purpose of our original expenditure? Did we originally pump our tax dollars into a large stadium only for rodeos, circuses, tractor pulls and big-time wrestling?

■ Once we spend tax dollars on baseball or football stadiums, we might as well spend public funds to improve the competitive status of Pine Knob, Masonic Temple, the Fox, etc.

State-of-the-art stadiums, like technology, change. The indoor Silverdome, with its dome and large screen TVs, was state-of-the-art when built in the 1970s. Now stadiums need more luxury suites to generate the income needed to be competitive. What will they need in 10 years? The challenge is to the Ford family, not the Engler family.

Bill Davidson built and privately financed a beautiful, functional, and fully competitive facility in The Palace of Auburn Hills to house the Detroit Pistons. Bill Ford and Mike Ilitch can do the same. Let's give them the opportunity to do so.

Once we spend tax dollars on baseball or football stadiums, we might as well spend public funds to improve the competitive status of Pine Knob, Masonic Temple, the Fox, etc.

There likely is an answer for the Lions' financial woes, but the fix is not in taxpayers' pocketbooks.

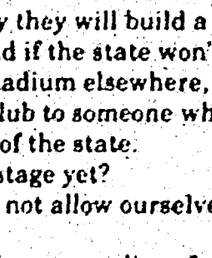
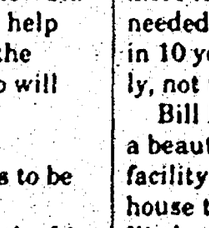
QUESTION:

President Bill Clinton was in town Monday. If you could talk with the president, what would you ask him?

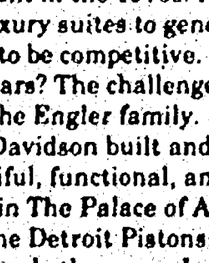
We asked this question of Westland residents at Kroger.



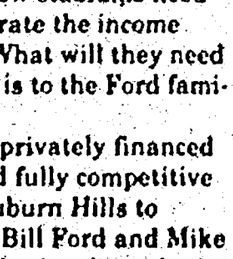
'Gosh, I don't know. I guess I'd want to know why he went to Taylor and not to Westland. I'm upset that some companies don't have to pay taxes.'
Sandy Bazner



'Is there any way he can help with the Detroit newspaper strike?'
Chris Tompkins



'I would certainly want to know his position on affirmative action. I don't think the progress of the last 20 years should be thrown away.'
Diane McCaffrey



'I've met him before. He's a real nice guy. Overall it would be the lack of medical coverage for the elderly and people working in low income jobs.'

Schools mark week

National Lutheran Schools Week is being observed this week by St. Matthew Lutheran School, on Venoy north of Ford. The theme for the week is "Celebrating Love; Sharing Christ."

The week is set aside as a special time in which hundreds of thousands of children and families together with teachers, administrators, congregations and our international church body, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, celebrate the love of God demonstrated through the blessings of Lutheran schools.

At St. Matthew, we have spent this school year with an acting principal, Clayton Kelley, who is a retired Garden City High School teacher, guidance counselor and coach. He is a member of our congregation who served this year after our previous principal/director of Christian education, Dave McNeil, accepted a call in family life ministry in a neighboring congregation and we were unable to obtain a called replacement. He has been aided this year by Chris Elliott, our seventh-/eighth-grade teacher, as acting assistant principal.

We have a very solid, fully accredited school which is closely tied in with Lutheran High Westland which is located only a mile from our congregation. We currently have 36 students attending Lutheran High Westland from our congregation.

Our student enrollment is 145 students in kindergarten through eighth grade plus 40 students in our preschool program. Ann Pfeiffer, with 16 years experience, handles our preschool and kindergarten program, assisted by Sandy Mayberry.

Pam Schroeder, with 11 years experience, is the wife of a pastor in nearby Saline and serves as our first-grade teacher.

Barb Hinck, with 15 years experience, is the wife of a Lutheran school teacher at neighboring St. Michael's in Wayne, and handles our second and third grade. The two also handle our day school choirs.

Judy Matthews is in her second year of teaching. She is a single staff member and teaches the third- and fourth-grade class.

Kevin Stressman, with 15 years experience, teaches the fifth- and sixth-grade class. He serves as athletic director and coaches a number of our sport teams. His wife, Diane, was on the staff at Lutheran High Westland until her recent maternity leave and now teaches Spanish to our fifth- through eighth-grade classes on a part-time basis.

Assistant principal Elliott, with two years experience, teaches our seventh- and eighth-grade class. He serves as our youth coordinator and coaches several sports.

There will be special event days throughout the week in honor of National Lutheran Schools Week.

Carolyn Shough
St. Matthew publicity director

Engler knocked

I would like to express my views on Gov. John Engler's decision to cut funds from adult education programs.

He has said that young people over 20 should not have the privilege of attending school free of charge.

One thing wrong with this proposal is that if the young adults haven't graduated yet, there is a really good chance that they don't have a good enough job to afford tuition. Personally, this does not affect me because I am only 18; however, the adult education program has helped me and many others to straighten out our lives.

I also believe that everyone has or should have the right to a free education. I think that Gov. Engler should stop and consider what he is doing to the millions of people that would like to proceed with their high school education and make positive changes in their lives.

Adult education to me is like another chance to better myself and receive my high school diploma.

Michael Mars
adult education student

About suicide

In the media blitz of the Kevorkian trial, it is easy to side with those who are suffering and request suicide as the solution to their pain.

It is argued that approving suicide would give one control of his own life and death. This argument implies that one can choose to live or die, that the decision is one that relates only to self.

I am concerned, however, for the time when assisted suicide becomes not only acceptable, but expected as the unselfish act, the decision that releases our loved ones of the burden of our care.

Is this the civilization we hope to emulate?

Signs of spring

GUEST COLUMNIST

DOROTHY MATSU

Observe the signals sneaking up on us. Fantastic winds blast away the tiresome gray and sidewalks start to dry. You won't catch me whining about the supernatural storm pattern that dipsy-doodled around us for a relatively balmy winter. I didn't have the heart to indulge in gloating when folks back East shared their harrowing winter woes.

There were a couple of cold snaps that made traipsing to the mailbox a study in cryogenics, and I swear this sad house sounded as if it were breaking in two some nights when the furnace came roaring on.

The big breezes this past Saturday were so powerful that even with all the hatches battened I might've flown a kite in the kitchen. See that yellow stuff? Sun!

Enthusiastically, you throw open your windows with wild ideas of cleaning and airing the house. Selfishly, you stretch out in a sunbeam with a good book. I imagine the pleasure of a bike ride without the merciless muffling, skip out to the yard and plunge impressively up to my ankles in fresh mud.

I try to appreciate that earthy aroma as struggles to extricate myself cause the muck to suck my shoes off. I debate giving my steely steed a wash, but decide the salt and rust are holding it together until its 2000 mile checkup.

Off I twirl on an everchanging, educational tour of new and fascinating potholes for future reference and long for the leaves that will soon spare my eyes streaming tears of glare.

A somewhat sillier sign of spring must surely be the two love-smitten raccoons that have chosen the branch directly outside the bedroom window for their laughably loud trysting in the trees.

I must admit to a certain fondness for the quiet of winter walks in the woods, a pleasure squelched last week when a band of madmen brought the non-stop yelping of dogsleds on wheels.

Better weather transforms the parks into obstacle courses where many appear intent on conquering nature rather than communing with it. Suddenly the solemn sanctuary is stuffed with people tearing about on everything but their own two feet.

One can only sneak a peek at their surroundings while dodging fleets of cycling families whizzing past scores of untalented Rollerbladers flailing into joggers with perpetual agony plastered on their faces.

I prefer to saunter myself, a pace unpopular with frenzied weekend warriors. I recall only acting nonchalant while trying to read the intent of some huge hounds slobbering by unattended when beautiful horses came clip-clopping round the bend.

Pausing to admire their magnificence, the head cowgal screeched at me to get away from the path.

Bewildered and embarassed, I careened onto what looked like a safe footpath. I hardly feared getting lost as the shrill squeals of assorted offspring rang thoughout the woods.

If you ever wish to meet the rudest creatures on earth, they are to be round on what I soon discovered was not a footpath, but a mountain bike trail.

They cared not that I had to bail out into the brambles as they lurched past me, spitting and swearing like Spandex sailors. For now, I will savor the soft, slow approach of spring, this slip of a season with all its sweet surprises.

A vote for uncommitted could make a difference

TIM RICHARD

The Republican-voting lady gave me her impressions of Dole, Buchanan, Forbes and Alexander (all bad) and asked: "Can I vote for None of The Above?"

No, but you have two other options in the March 19 Republican presidential primary: 1) Write in another name — say, Kemp or Powell or Wilson — or 2) vote "Uncommitted."

As a practical matter, a write-in vote has been a waste of time ever since the demise of the paper ballot. It's hard to recall an election where a write-in effort had any impact.

But "Uncommitted" is another matter. A party may send "Uncommitted" delegates to its national convention. In a tight contest, they could make a difference. We'd have a brokered convention, just like we had through the first half of the century. As it is, the parties throw four-day conventions for which the results are known weeks in advance; delegates must spend a lot of money and use up vacation time but exercise no power.

Brokered conventions have an undeserved bad name, conjuring up images of bosses in smoke-filled rooms. Actually, delegates often know the inside dirt about candidates. I doubt Tom Eagleton or Spiro Agnew would have been nominated if delegates had free choices.

Michigan Democrats will have "Uncommitted" on their March 16 caucus ballots, too, in case anyone is less than fully enchanted with Bill Clinton.

The idea of voting for NOTA — "none of the above" — has a bit of support. House Bill 4794, sponsored by state Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, would allow a NOTA option. To get it through committee, Kaza had it amended to apply only to his 42nd House District in the Aug. 6 primary. If it happens, the NOTA vote would be only advisory.

"In an ideal world," Kaza said, "if NOTA got enough votes, the election would have to be conducted over again." California legislators are considering such an ideal bill.

Kaza handed me a sheaf of paper from Nevada, where NOTC ("None Of These Candidates") has been on the ballot since 1976. Some results are startling. In the 1980 primary, NOTC got more votes for president than George Bush (R) and Ted Kennedy (D). NOTC led the 1986 Democratic ticket for state treasurer. NOTC beat the two Republican contenders for U.S representative in 1976 and '78 and the Republican secretary of state candidates in 1978.

But the novelty seems to have worn off, and lately fewer Nevadans vote NOTC.

In Michigan, NOTA is supported by Ted Bohlen of Plymouth and Vicky Beeman of Novi, both active in Ross Perot's United We Stand America movement. "It's time we put an end to the Tweedledee, Tweedledum candidates choices," Beeman wrote to Kaza.

I doubt the "Uncommitted" turnout will be much higher in the March 16 Democratic caucus and March 19 Republican primary, despite the lady quoted in the opening paragraph. My hunch is that Pat Buchanan will lead everybody, in part because of the religious right, in part because of unhappy workers, and in large part because Democrats will cross over and do mischief to the Republicans.

Michiganians are like that.

New state proficiency tests an important development

Starting this week, some 110,000 students in 11th grade will take the new Michigan High School Proficiency Test. It won't be easy.

Covering math, science, reading and writing, the new test will consume more than 11 hours over a two-week period. Much tougher than the old Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) that it replaces, the new proficiency tests stress writing and creative problem-solving skills and downgrade multiple-choice questions.

The writing test, for example, will ask students to analyze their own writing as well as to write original essays on assigned topics. The reading portion will involve three passages on the same theme; students will be asked to identify the theme and analyze it.

The new tests will determine whether students get a state endorsement on their high school diplomas. Given the current climate in Lansing, they will also likely play a role in whether individual schools receive accreditation for full state funding.

Like upgrading for the MEAP tests, scoring the new tests cannot be done entirely by computer. The majority of the grading will be done by the contractor which is administering the test for the state. Results are not expected until August.

With the new test, Michigan joins a national movement to assess what students actually learn in school. Seventeen states have tests that students must pass in order to graduate, and three others — now including Michigan — offer a state diploma endorsement for students who demonstrate satisfactory achievement in given subjects.

Not surprisingly, the new test is causing a fair amount of anxiety.

Kids are worried over the length of the tests and their reputed difficulty. Parents who have seen their 11th-graders sweat over the MEAP test are wondering why the kids must go through the whole rigamarole again. Teachers wonder whether they have prepared their students properly. Administrators grumble about having to jam an additional 11 hours for test-taking into an already crowded schedule.

Beyond the short-term aggravation, many wonder just how much difference the new proficiency test is going to make. Will colleges really base their admissions decisions on test results, or will they stick with the national ACT and SAT scores? Will employers, who have been complaining for years that high school diplomas are meaningless, really start looking for state endorsements while conducting job interviews?

PHILIP POWER

■ But at the end of the day, I firmly believe that the new proficiency tests mark yet another milestone on the way to fundamental improvement in our public schools.

I can sympathize with much of the concern. Examination periods for my 13-year-old son aren't exactly delicious times around my own household.

But at the end of the day, I firmly believe that the new proficiency tests mark yet another milestone on the way to fundamental improvement in our public schools.

Many criticized the use of MEAP tests to evaluate what children learn, on the perfectly legitimate grounds that this was not what MEAP was designed for. But most agreed that some data were better than no data, especially if the data gave parents and school people an objective way of evaluating their success in helping kids learn.

Now we have the new proficiency test, explicitly designed to assess what kids actually learn. Sure it will be tough, and certainly it will force teachers and parents to rethink just how they teach and review what they teach.

After all, as they used to say at IBM, "You cannot manage what you cannot measure." Over time, these new tests will provide the customers of our school system — students, parents, teachers, employers, taxpayers — a measure of outcome. And once we have a measure of outcome, we can begin the task of managing the process by which our children learn.

Good luck, 11th-graders! It probably won't do you any good when you're sweating over a tough math problem, but you should realize that you are taking the first step in an important leap forward for our schools.

Are you a Compulsive Overeater?

	Yes	No
1. Do you eat when you're not hungry?	☐	☐
2. Do you go on eating binges for no apparent reason?	☐	☐
3. Do you have feelings of guilt and remorse after overeating?	☐	☐
4. Do you give too much time and thought to food?	☐	☐
5. Is your weight affecting the way you live your life?	☐	☐
6. Do you use fasting, strenuous exercise, vomiting or laxatives to control your weight?	☐	☐
7. Have you tried to diet for a week (or longer), only to fall short of your goal?	☐	☐

If you answer "yes" to three or more of these questions, you may be a compulsive overeater. You are not alone. Millions of Americans suffer from this disease.

Compulsive overeating is a painful, relentless illness that interferes with every aspect of life. It is a disease that gets progressively worse if left untreated.

Weight gain often accompanies this illness. But not always. Many compulsive overeaters maintain normal body weight by strict diets, fasting, strenuous exercise, vomiting, or excessive laxative use. These methods are ineffective and medically dangerous.

Weight is not the problem, and dieting is not the solution. The problem is the disease of compulsive overeating, and the solution is a program of treatment and recovery.

The Eating Disorders Clinic (EDC) of St. Mary Hospital offers an outpatient treatment program that leads to lasting recovery. Our approach is comprehensive. We help our patients make lifestyle changes that give them renewed confidence in themselves and more control over their lives. Gradually, the chronic binge/diet cycle is replaced by a healthy, more satisfying, and more productive way of life. With food in its proper place, weight normalizes.

At EDC, we work as a team -- psychiatrist, physician, nutritionist, and specially trained therapists -- to diagnose and treat eating disorders. This experienced staff provides treatment with understanding and sensitivity.

If compulsive overeating is a problem for you, or someone you love, take the first step toward recovery. Call us today at (313) 655-2936 or 1-800-494-1654. WE CAN HELP.

Redford man is grand marshal for St. Pat's parade

Shamrocks will be sprouting on Michigan Avenue as the 38th Annual St. Patrick's Parade — Detroit's largest ethnic event of the year — steps off at 2 p.m., Sunday.

Presiding over this year's parade will be Grand Marshal James I. Butler of Redford Township.

The parade begins at Michigan Avenue and Third Street in downtown Detroit, proceeding westward on Michigan Avenue to 14th St.

Sponsored by the United Irish Societies of Detroit, the theme of this year's parade is "A Nation Once Again," symbolizing the hope that peace talks will result in the re-unification of Ireland.

The UIS is a federation of 21 Irish-American clubs and groups in the metropolitan area. It sponsors and organizes the parade through delegates from each member organization.

Expected to attract more than 100,000 people, local communities will be represented by bands, clowns and floats and marchers. Families will march in a special unit entitled "the Calling of the Clans."

Unanimously elected as 1996 grand marshal was Jim Butler, a delegate from the Knights of Equity, an Irish fraternal society. "Butler was chosen out of recognition for his tireless dedication to Detroit's Irish community," said parade chairman Joe Parsky.

A symbolic "Painting of the Shamrocks" on Michigan Avenue will highlight pre-parade festivities at 11:45 a.m., Friday, March 8. The event — to be followed by a complimentary boiled dinner — will take place in front of the Gaelic League/Irish-American Club, 2068 Michigan Avenue near Wabash.

Kicking off Sunday's parade festivities will be the 1996 Corktown Races in front of Tiger Stadium. Sponsored by the Motor City Striders, the race benefits the St. Patrick's senior center in Cass Corridor which serves hundreds of elderly and homeless every day of the year.

On tap are a quarter-mile run/walk at 12:30 p.m.; a one-and-a-half mile run/walk at 12:30; and a four-mile run at 1 p.m.

Parade Day Mass is set for 10:30 a.m., Sunday March 10 at St. Patrick's Church, 58 Parsons Avenue in Detroit.

S'craft looks for ways to serve older students

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

The face of the community college student is changing — it's aging.

Along with that changing student comes issues such as more night courses and the need to add security on campus, faculty members who need to understand how to work with older students rather than just 18-year-olds and an increased emphasis on child care, he said.

Many colleges are facing dropping enrollments, Jeffress said. A reason for that is the decline in the number of people in the traditional college age group, he said.

Schools are failing to reposition themselves, he said.

"One of the major shifts you see here is from credit to noncredit courses," he said. Students in continuing education or non-credit courses are the fastest growing segment at Schoolcraft with nearly 28,000 students, Jeffress said.

Credit students are still basically of typical college age, while continuing education students range from small children in the talented and gifted program to senior citizens.

Continuing education services are now an "absolute major player," he said. Schoolcraft's program is the third largest in Michigan, smaller only than Lansing and Macomb community colleges. There are no nearby competitors, not even Oakland Community College, he said.

The number of students attending classes on weekends or through telecourses is also increasing, with 8 percent of students in those programs.

Also, many of the college's courses begin in the evening now. But even though nearly all of the continuing education courses are evening courses, the college still gears most of its resources toward the daytime, Jeffress said.

"But customer-wise we're looking more and more evening with each passing term," he said.

Another change in the face of the college student, is the creation and success of the business and industry segment of the college, he said.

The college of business development is primarily funded through grants, and is now bringing in more than $1 million a year. It began almost 15 years ago, and now has between 4,000 and 5,000 students.

Jeffress cautioned that raising tuition to meet rising costs and putting a large part of the tuition increase burden on out-of-district students could be a mistake. "I have a serious concern about the way we increase our tuition," he said.

The college always places the burden on out-of-district students, which make up 40 percent of the enrollment, he said. "You can't price yourself out of 40 percent of the enrollment," he said.

Other policy implications include child care, security and lighting.

"This can be a fairly frightening place at 10 or 10:30 at night," he said.

Saundra Florek, dean of marketing at the college, said the security and lighting issue is being looked at by the college, and signs, lights and security are being increased.

Traveling down a different road

I'm traveling down a road I've never traveled before. And since you're here with me, I'll share the journey with you.

Our family, as you might already know, was blessed with the birth of baby Steven on Feb. 16. I wrote of his dramatic arrival en route to the hospital last week. What I didn't tell you then, but I knew, was that this very special baby, this miracle of ours, was born with Down syndrome.

My family — husband Ron, sons Tony, Joe and Jack, daughter Carmen and I — have been entrusted with the precious life of a baby so gentle and quiet. He's touched and changed our lives for the good, forever. All of us, including not yet 2-year-old Jack, have gathered baby Steven into our arms and into our hearts and we're never letting go.

From his miraculous birth in the van on that bitter cold, winter night, with just Ron and me and God there, our gentle baby continues to beat the odds. As I type these words on the computer screen in my den, Steven is sleeping near me. We're now home. And that's the best feeling. The whole family is together and that, although to many may not seem like much, is everything. He is, at this writing, 11 days old and he is growing and blooming and eating.

Eating, though, wasn't easy those first days of his life. I learned that this is both common and serious. A Down syndrome baby typically

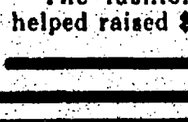
BPW 'welcomes' spring with style

Spring may arrive March 21, but its official welcome won't be until March 24. That's when the Garden City Business and Professional Women's Club hosts its third annual "Parade of Fashion" scholarship fund-raiser.



Jyl Forsythe

Spring will arrive in style when Barbara Carey and Barbara Mazer of "Take Time Fashion" introduce spring fashions from the stores of Twelve Oaks Mall at the Garden City Business and Professional Women's third annual "Parade of Fashion" fund-raiser Sunday, March 24.

"We're so happy to be able to put on a fashion show for the community," said Joyce Pappas, who with BPW members Amelia Oliverio, Polly Wroblewski, Doris Closser, Margaret Woodruff and Beth Csicsila have been planning the benefit. "This club is very community-oriented and the members have a wonderful time doing this."

The "talk" fashion show will feature clothes from Twelve Oaks' Lillie Rubin, Hudson's, Ann Taylor and Liz Claiborne stores. A variety of daytime, evening and casual wear will be featured.

Jyl Forsyth of WYCD-FM "Young Country" radio will serve as the celebrity mistress of ceremonies.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Garden City BPW Scholarship Fund and the local organization. The BPW awards annual scholarships of more than $1,500 to women who are returning to the workforce and who need training.

The fashion show has also helped raised $1,000 that will be used for an honor scholarship for a graduating senior at Garden City High School, Pappas said.

The benefit will start at 12:30 p.m. at the Italian American Banquet Center, 39200 Five Mile, between Haggerty and Newburgh roads in Livonia. Tickets are $25 and include lunch and a chance to win one of the more than 75 special door prizes.

Prizes include gift certificates for travel, personal services, jewelry, gift packages for an overnight stay at Bay Valley Resort and dinners at Genitti's, Montanna's, New Peking and the Red Robin and aboard the Star Clipper Dinner Train.

Gift certificates also have been donated by Merricraft Florist of Livonia, the Hair Hut of Garden City, Misty's of Garden City and Gordon Chevrolet.

Also included is a watercolor, "Baraka," by Todd Marsee, a graphic artist from Plymouth who has exhibited in galleries and at art shows throughout Michigan and Ohio.

A special raffle will held for the scholarship fund. Tickets are $1 each or six for $5.

First- and second-prize winners will receive a midweek overnight stay at the Sugar Loaf Resort in northern Michigan. The package also includes 18 holes of golf with cart for two and complimentary Leelanaw Sands Casino player passbook.

Third prize is overnight stay at

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

The visual sense of some animals is incredible. Some species have eyesight capabilities that far exceed ours. But despite their sensitivity, animals can be lured to artificial decoys that have only a resemblance to the original animal.

It has always seemed ironic to me that animals can be tricked into getting caught or lured to a certain area despite their keen awareness. What does the animal see, or not see when it is attracted to a decoy? Different situations appear to be initiated by different stimuli.

Karl Von Frisch, a Nobel Prize winner in animal behavior, did some classic work with small fish known as a stickleback. Males during the breeding season, develop a red belly. When an intruding male enters the territory of another male, he is attacked.

By using models of various shapes, Von Frisch determined that the color red was the stimulus that caused the male stickleback to attack. It even showed signs of aggression when a red mail truck passed in its view.

In the case of the stickleback, it was the color red that caused the fish to attack a model that did not look like a fish. Artificial flys used by people who go flyfishing resemble an insect, but to our eyes they certainly don't look exactly like an insect, especially when there is a large hook attached to it.

Yet fish are fooled by these artificial insects that have been refined into works of art. Trout seem to cue in on the color of abundant insects they are feeding on at the time. If offered a fly that is different in color and size than the insects they are currently typically feeding on, they will often refuse to take it. This illustrates they can discriminate size and color, but they do not see the hook extending below the feathers of the artificial fly.

Animals have been conditioned over time to focus only on the prey item, its shape, color and movement and ignore the rest of the object. This seems to be the case with red-tailed hawks that are captured in traps enclosing a mouse. Loops tied like a lasso are secured to a wire cage with a mouse inside. When the hawk tries to capture the mouse, its leg gets caught in a loop and the lasso tightens as it tries to leave.

Now, a hawk is believed to have eyesight equivalent to someone using a pair of binoculars, but with much greater resolving power. So why do they get caught in a trap they can easily see?

It probably has to do with concentration and the stimulus of size, color, shape and movement of the prey. Predators that concentrate intently on their prey are more likely to be successful. When they see something that elicits the attack-capture response, they go for it. For years, they did not have to be concerned about fake prey, until man came along and exploited this quirk of behavior.

Recognizing this kind of behavior can allow us to study and view wildlife more closely.

has what experts call "low muscle tone." That means the muscles are floppy and not strong. And this "low muscle tone" affects even the muscles in the jaw, making eating difficult. The tiny baby must be "taught" to eat.

This was so very different for me. My other four children were very eager eaters from the very start, from the first moments after birth. I remember remarking as I nursed that very first time with the baby just minutes old, "Where do they learn how to do this? This is amazing!"

And so with baby Steven, things were much different. He didn't have the strength or the muscle tone to take in nourishment. And when you weigh only 7 pounds, 11 ounces, you don't want to let too many hours go by without eating. Too many hours did. I tried all the things recommended by the nurses and doctors and in the books I'd received in the two days following Steven's birth.

Through the five hours following our release from the hospital that Sunday afternoon, the tiny child became virtually motionless. We couldn't keep him awake, if we even could get him awake. He hadn't eaten in more than 12 hours. And his body temperature was dropping.

I was told to bring him to Urgent Care immediately. So Grandma and Grandpa, who'd traveled across the state to meet their new grandson that very afternoon, and my sister, who also came to welcome Steven, stayed with our four other children while Ron and I drove to Urgent Care, located in the same facility Steven and I had just been released from that afternoon.

■ I wished I could get through to my baby to tell him that this is not at all what life is about, that life is fun and hopeful and good and doesn't hurt so awful much.

What ensued in that place was heart-wrenching. For three hours our baby, so new to this world and so utterly defenseless, was handed more pain than even I, a 38-year-old woman with five children and a surgically repaired knee, have ever endured. His little veins were so small that many trials were needed to get an IV going. They poked him for blood samples many times. They filled small vials, slowly, his blood just wasn't coming out into the tubes fast enough. The oxygen blown in his nose made a strange hissing sound, a sound a newborn shouldn't have to listen to.

The beeps of the monitors and the tourniquets on his tiny, lax arms made me me sad. I wished I could get through to my baby to tell him that this is not at all what life is about, that life is fun and hopeful and good and doesn't hurt so much. It's soft blankets and bright toys and warm milk and gentle arms encircling you. And piano music and laughter and smells of brownies baking in the oven.

Baby Steven was admitted to the hospital that night. I stayed with him, in his room on the pediatric floor. Although there was a cot in the room for me, I couldn't sleep. I prayed and watched. He was in an incubator with an oxygen shield over his head. He had an IV for food and an IV for antibiotics hooked into his tiny foot, he had wires on his chest, a wire on his toe, and a TV-like monitor suspended from the ceiling over his head which beeped when something wasn't right. It was a scary and long night, the scariest and longest I've ever known.

The next three days I stayed at his side and watched. We didn't have many visitors, his condition was precarious. But the prayers of friends and relatives worked miracles, and the doctors and nurses worked their miracles, and Steven is home now. Where he belongs, in the arms and forever the hearts of his family.

Surgical Breakthroughs
Family Reunion.

This morning she was in surgery. Tonight, she's back home with her family. Later this week she'll return to work. And to think that just a few years ago, this same procedure would have meant many days in the hospital and weeks of recovery. Not a "family reunion" the same day.

New techniques like laser and laparoscopic surgery are revolutionizing gallbladder and appendix removal, laser prostatectomy, gynecological procedures and more. The result is less pain and faster recuperation for the patient.

Surgeons at St. Mary Hospital have taken the lead in offering these breakthroughs to our patients. They know how important it is to have the strengths and staffing of a full-service hospital available, should special needs arise. And they understand that the sooner a family member can return home and to work, the better it is for that family's economic and emotional health.

If being reunited with your family the same day you have surgery appeals to you, call us. We'll tell you more about laparoscopy and laser surgery.

ANNIVERSARIES

McQueen

Bennie and Pauline McQueen of Redford will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary by returning to the same Tennessee town in which they were married.

Their four children — Bennie, Gwen, Grover and Greg — will host a dinner for the golden jubilarians, family and friends at the Lakeview Dining Room on Reelfoot Lake in Tiptonville, Tenn.

The McQueens exchanged vows in Union City, Tenn.

He retired from the Continental Can Co. in Melvindale in 1982, and she retired from the former Fisher Body in Livonia in 1985.

Fein

Jack and Kathy Fein at Garden City were the guests of honor at a dinner celebration, marking their 25th wedding anniversary and his 50th birthday.

The Feins exchanged vows on March 26, 1971, in Plymouth. She is the former Kathy Waling.

The couple lived in Colorado for nine years before moving to Garden City. He works at Fairway Construction in Southfield, while she works at Pauli's Hallmark Shop in Garden City.

Wilhelmi

The couple exchanged wedding vows on Feb. 19, 1946, in Langdon, N.D. She is the former Lucy Reidhammer.

The Wilhelmis have lived in Garden City for 39½ years. They have nine children — Wayne, Sharon, Glenn, Thomas, Terrence, Daniel, Mary Ann, Steven and Sandra — and 13 grandchildren.

Dyer shows how to 'Awaken the Miracle'

"Staying on the Path" with Dr. Wayne W. Dyer can be both challenging and fun. The booklet is a compilation of some of his more pithy sayings.

But if you want to experience radical change in your inner and outer world, you might follow Sue Berlin's path. She purchased Dyer's tape "Meditations for Manifesting: Morning and Evening Meditations to Literally Create Your Heart's Desire," and her life has never been the same.

Founder and president of Sue Serlin Enterprises in Southfield, she began listening to the tape and practicing the power sounds.

"It's amazing," she said. "My business increased so dramatically that I had difficulty keeping up with the inquiries."

Serlin sells long-term care insurance to assure coverage for those who don't wish to choose between their homes and long-term care. She believes that "Meditations" made it possible for her to reach a larger segment of the population.

Dyer is one of the most widely read authors in the human potential field. He has sold more than 40 million books worldwide, including "Your Erroneous Zones," "Real Magic" and "Your Sacred Self."

Serlin believes that in addition to her increased prosperity, Dyer's work has enabled her to experience an inner feeling of peace. People have been coming up to her and asking, "What have you been doing? You look great. You seem changed in some way."

People who would like to experience what Serlin has can when Dyer comes to Hill Auditorium on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor on Saturday, March 9, to teach participants how to "Awaken the Miracle Within." The three-hour program begins at 10 a.m.

Sponsored by Pyramyd Productions, Inc., in association with the University of Michigan Office of Major Events, tickets are $29.50 and are available through the UM ticket office at (313) 763-TKTS, or through all TicketMaster outlets, (810) 645-6666.

Writing shows she is proud and independent person

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I find reading your column extremely interesting because of the diversity of all the analyzed handwriting. I am 39 years old, married and the mother of two teen-age sons. I work outside my home part time and enjoy dancing as a hobby; if time permits. I am constantly busy and also involved in civic duty when needed. I'm interested in your reply on my cursive technique! I am right-handed, and I do enjoy writing.

D.,
Dearborn Heights

Today's writer is a young woman who is proud and independent. She feels everything deeply, happy or sad. She appears to be prepared to defend her strong convictions.

Early in life, she wanted to be independent and may have been a tad resistant to parental authority. Her need to be in control is strong.

Methodical, careful and sequential would describe her thinking pattern. She is not gullible and dislikes being rushed. She enjoys things which are a challenge to her mind.

Most of the time, she is self-motivated and self-reliant. Order and organization are important to her.

Determination is outstanding and pervasive. Among other things this speaks of her ability to make decisions and follow through with action.

She appears to be good at problem-solving. She can eliminate the superfluous and has limited room in her thinking for non-essentials.

Intutition serves her well in both thinking and acting. She is capable of making judgments from quick impressions.

This is an achiever! She sets challenging goals for herself. She seems inclined to formulate her plans as she moves along in her work and activities.

She is a busy woman and is well-acquainted with the fact that judicious use of time is one the major contributors to her success.

Our writer has been blessed with a sense of humor. She can laugh at herself as well as the antics of others. In addition, she is good natured, well-mannered and considerate of others.

She enjoys people and her activities with them. But she also reserves time for her personal interests and/or talents. Seemingly, she is feeling some concern about the future or someone in it.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

FREE "LIVING TRUST" SEMINAR
What You Ought to Know About Living Trusts"
(What you don't know could cost your family thousands of dollars!)

If you own a home...or you have assets worth at least $100,000...you owe it to yourself—and your family—to get the facts on living trusts. If you think you're protected with a simple Will...think again... A Will guarantees that your estate will go through probate, which means that your family may not be able to take possession of your estate for many months, or even years!

Plus, if your estate is over $600,000, your family may owe estate taxes which could amount to 37-55% of the value of your estate. This means that your family may have to sell some assets just to pay the estate taxes!

A living trust avoids all this by avoiding probate and minimizing estate taxes. Plus, a living trust will protect your estate if you become incapacitated during your lifetime by avoiding a conservatorship. This means your estate will be managed as you see fit, not as a court-appointed guardian sees fit.

To find out more about the benefits of living trusts, attend one of these free seminars...

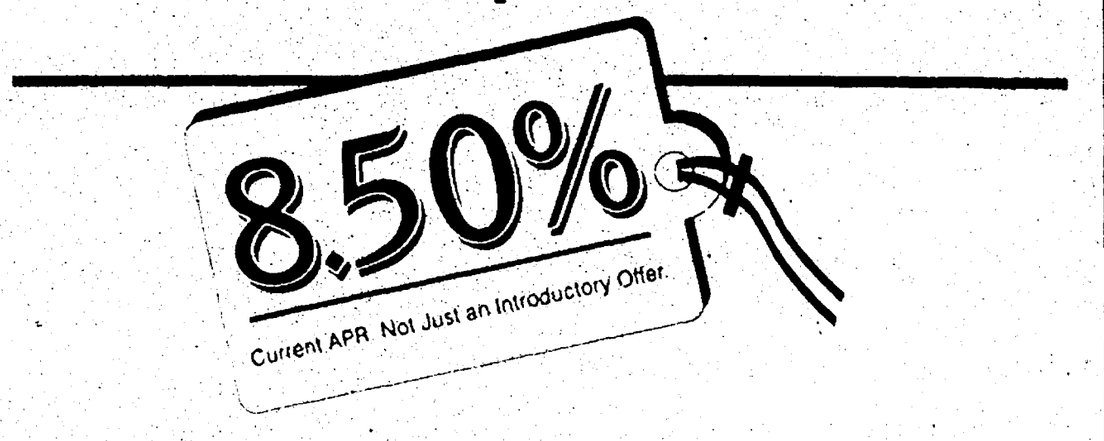
We've Lowered The Rate
So Pick Up The Phone



Huntington Bank's Prime For Life equity line of credit offers you one of the lowest interest rates in the country. Prime plus 0% for the life of the line. It's the rate you may have thought was reserved for large commercial customers. But now it's available to you in an equity credit line that has no closing costs. We've also made it easy to apply. Just call Huntington Direct at 1-800-642-INFO. Then you can stop shopping around for a low interest rate. Because this is it.

EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

"Prime" means the "Bank Prime Loan" rate published by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in its statistical release H. 15(519) entitled "Selected Interest Rates." Use of the word "Prime" does not indicate that the rate is the best or the lowest rate offered by any lender. There is a $96 annual fee. The APR may vary each month, but will never be higher than 18%. There may be a charge for cancellation of your account within the first 3 years. Insurance must be carried on the real property securing the account. All accounts are subject to credit approval and an acceptable property appraisal and title search. Huntington® and Huntington Direct® are federally registered service marks of Huntington Bancshares Incorporated. ©1996 Huntington Bancshares Incorporated.

RELIGION CALENDAR

Items for the religion calendar should be submitted no later than noon Friday for the next Thursday's issue.

■ BIBLE DISPLAY
A rare collection of ancient Bibles and manuscripts will be displayed 6 p.m. Sunday, March 10, and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, March 11-13, at the First Baptist Church, 30268 Marquette, at Henry Ruff, Garden City.

The Bibles and manuscripts date back to 2040 B.C. The writing includes cuneiform, Hebrew, Greek, Latin and English done on clay, vellum, papyrus and paper.

The collection has been carefully planned to inform people about the development of the English Bible and is a part of "Your Biblical Heritage," a history of the English Bible, to be presented by the Rev. Jewell E. Smith of Temple Baptist Church in Orlando, Fla.

■ SPAGHETTI DINNER
Congregation Beit Kodesh will have its annual spaghetti dinner at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, March 10, at the synagogue, 31840 W. Seven Mile, Livonia. Reservations are necessary. The cost is $5 for those age 13 and older and $2.50 for children. For more information, call Toby Breuer at (810) 569-5299.

■ 'EVENING WITH SIMON PETER'
St. Maurice Parish will present a Rock Eagle Seminar, "An Evening with Simon Peter," at 7 p.m. Sunday and Monday, March 10-11, at the church, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia. Admission will be $5. For more information or tickets, call 522-1616.

■ 'DAY AFTER'
The Livonia Assembly of God will present the drama "The Day After Death" at 7 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday, March 10-13, at the church, 33015 W. Seven Mile, Livonia. For a free ticket or more information, call the church at (810) 471-5282.

■ BABY SHOWERS
Seven churches will be holding baby showers Sunday, March 10, as part of Right to Life-Lifespan's seventh annual benefit for pregnancy help centers. The public is invited to bring new and old (but still usable) baby or maternity items to the shower.

The showers will be 2-3:30 p.m. at St. Maurice Church Hall, 32765 Lyndon, Livonia; the rectory meeting room of St. Valentine Church, 25881 Dow, Redford; Resurrection Church, 46001 Warren Road, Canton; the Activity Building at St. Dunstan Church, 1646 Belton, Garden City; the Activities Building at St. Raphael Church, 5775 Merriman, Garden City; St. Genevieve Church, 29015 Jamison, Livonia; and St. Kenneth Church, 14951 Haggerty, Plymouth Township.

For more information about the showers, call (313) 533-9090.

■ CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
The radio series "What Is This Christian Science and Who Are These Christian Scientists?," a weekly program to answer questions about the religion, is being broadcast 8:30 a.m. Sundays on CKLW-AM 800. Topics include "Spiritual Healing, How Can I Be Sure It Works?" on March 10, "What Is It Like To Be a Christian Scientist Today?" on March 17 and "Ministering and Ministers" on March 24. The series also can be heard at 1:30 p.m. Sundays on WQBH-AM 1400. It is produced by the Christian Science Committee on Publication for Michigan and sponsored by local Christian Science churches. For more information, call 1-800-886-1212.

■ 'GLORY OF EASTER'
Tickets will go on sale Monday, March 11, for Temple Baptist Church's "The Glory of Easter." The dramatic musical, based on the "real" meaning of Easter, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 29-30, Thursday, April 4, and Saturday, April 6, and at 5 p.m. Sunday, March 31, and Sunday, April 7.

Tickets are priced at $4 and $6 for main floor and balcony seating. Tickets can be ordered by mail at 23800 W. Chicago, Redford 48239, or by calling the ticket hotline at (313) 255-3339.

■ LENTEN DINNERS
Dinner and services will be held at Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia, on Wednesdays during Lent. Dinners will be served in the Parish Center 5:45-6:30 p.m. Services will begin at 7 p.m. Dinners will be served buffet style and feature a "family friendly" menu appealing to all ages. Worship services will present short contemporary dramas to illustrate themes of repentance and renewal.

Dinner costs $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Reservations are required and can be made by calling (313) 522-6830.

St. Agatha Parish is sponsoring Lenten seafood dinners on Fridays — March 8, 15, 22 and 29 and April 5. The dinners include fish and chips ($4.25), shrimp ($4.75), baked cod ($5.50), macaroni and cheese ($3) and combination plate ($6.75) and will be served 3-8 p.m. in the grade school lunchroom.

The St. Agatha Grade School is at 19800 Beech Daly, north of Grand River. For more information, call (313) 531-0371.

The First United Methodist Church of Wayne will have a Lenten dinner program 6:30-8 p.m. Wednesdays at the church, 3 Town Square (across from the post office), Wayne. Participants should bring a dish to pass, with the meat provided.

The dinner will be 6:30 p.m., followed by entertainment at 7:15 p.m. The entree and entertainment will be meatloaf and Strings of Faith (string instruments from South Lyon United Methodist Church) on March 13, ham and the Wayne Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Enhancement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America on March 20 and turkey and dressing and the Vocal Dimension of Wayne Memorial High School on March 27.

A freewill offering will be accepted. For more information, call the church at (313) 721-4801.

Newburg United Methodist Church will have a Lenten dinner and program 5:30 p.m. Sunday, March 17, and Thursday, March 28, at the church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia.

The entree will be Swiss steak and the musical ministry of Sharon and Robin on March 17, and turkey and Dr. James E. Tutle of Calvary United Methodist Church in Flint on March 28.

For more information, call the church at (313) 433-0149.

■ LENTEN SERVICES
Lola Park Lutheran Church is having midweek Lenten services at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays at the church, 14750 Kinloch, Redford. The Rev. Gregory Gibbons is basing this year's meditations on "The Seven Words from the Cross." For more information, call the church at (313) 532-8655.

■ CHARISMATIC PRAYER
A charismatic prayer group meets at 6 p.m. Sundays in Patio Classroom 1 on the ground floor of the University Center at Madonna University, Schoolcraft and Levan, Livonia. For more information, call Shawn at (313) 464-9057.

In concert: The Royalheirs from Flint will perform at an 11 a.m. worship service Sunday, March 10, at the Salvation Army, 2300 Venoy Road, Westland. Organized in 1995 for the primary purpose of singing southern Gospel music, The Royalheirs — Duane Grimes, Skip Overly and Chuck Robbins — sing only music which is Christ-centered and uplifts the name of Jesus.

Rosedale thespian troups presents 'Calamity Jane'

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

The sights and sounds of the Wild West will come alive in the basement of Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church this weekend when its in-house thespian troupe presents its annual musical, "Calamity Jane."

This is the 25th year the church has presented a musical, and the 25th year Martha Kuykendall has been at the helm as director. Helping her is a cast and crew of 50 church members.

"The first one we did was a 'Let's do a musical' and we did it and we got hooked," said Kuykendall. "And most of the people who are in it now were in it when we started."

The musical is an adaptation by Charles K. Freeman of the 1950s film of the same name that starred starring Doris Day. Taking on the role of Jane is church music director Carolyn Banta with Dan Williams as "Wild Bill" Hickok.

Katie Brown is pulling double duty as the musical's choreographer and as Catherine Stage, while David Conrad has been cast in the role of Lt. Danny Gilmartin.

Kuykendall has been responsible for bringing such renowned musicals as "The Sound of Music," "Fiddler on the Roof" and "South Pacific" to life on the basement stage of the church. But with 25 years of productions under the belt, the troupe faced a dilemma in selecting this year's musical.

"We're getting down to where there's not a lot left we can do in the church basement unless we repeat," Kykendall said.

The musical is a made-up story about the Calamity Jane Canary in Deadwood, S.D., and according to Kykendall, it's a family show, "a light-hearted show everyone will enjoy."

Work on the play began in January with auditions and true to its beginnings, anyone who signed up is in the production. Those not cast in title roles are members of the chorus, according to Kuykendall.

And with 24 years of musicals behind them, there are plenty of props around for this year's production. That's good news for Caroline Dunphy, who's in charge of sets. And lighting up the place will be Richard Burgess, who's in charge of the technical side of the production.

The musical's three performances are usually a sellout. Kuykendall credits that to the "following" the thespian troupe has attracted over the years.

"People are surprised when they hear we do a musical in the church basement," Kuykendall said. "They come to see what we're doing and become loyal fans.

"We now have a following. I have people ask me in April what we're going to do the next year."

Curtain times for this year's musical are at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, March 8-9, and 4 p.m. Sunday, March 10. Tickets are priced at $5 for adults and $2.50 for students.

Tickets are available by calling the church at (313) 422-0494.

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

I have cheered twice for Babe the Gallant Pig in the last year – once when he won the national sheep herding finals and again, last month, when he nosed his way into an Oscar nomination for Best Picture of 1995.

Another "Doctor Doolittle," some groaned, recalling the embarassing 1968 nomination (it lost to "In the Heat of the Night"), but with one big difference: "Babe" really was the best film of last year. See it and you might agree.

Looking back, the most amazing thing about 1995 wasn't the quality of films that Hollywood produced – it was a mediocre year at best. It's how much sense (and sensibility) the industry showed in its nominations for this 68th edition of the Academy Awards.

Below you will find a rundown of the major categories, pretty much in the order they'll be presented on March 25. Be warned in advance that, despite the pretense of assurance below, my predictions are usually shakey at best. Just what did happen to Anna Paquin, anyway?

ANDREW COOPER

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS

Joan Allen and Kathleen Quinlan played "Stand By Your Man" in "Nixon" and "Apollo 13." Kate Winslet cried "How Can You Mend a Broken Heart?" in "Sense and Sensibility." Marc Winningham performed a whole slew of songs in "Georgia," but no one paid to listen. It was Mira Sorvino who hit all the right notes as the most memorable Woody Allen creation since "Annie Hall." And you remember how Oscar liked her. The Winner: Mira Sorvino in "Mighty Aphrodite."

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR

You can pick this one pretty much by process of elimination. Kevin Spacey and Tim Roth might deserve it, but both are still paying dues. Method act as he might, Brad Pitt still hasn't proven himself as anything but the sexiest man alive. James Cromwell as "Babe's" keeper? No chance. The only question here: Will this well-known character actor wear his lucky Mission Control vest to the festivities? The Winner: Ed Harris in "Apollo 13"

BEST ACTRESS

Not a fan of the actress or the material, I thoroughly enjoyed Meryl Streep in "The Bridges of Madison County." It's just not her year. Susan Sarandon must still suffer for using the Oscar podium for political ramblings. Sharon Stone and Elisabeth Shue both logged quality time in Vegas but won't come home any richer. The real winner is Emma Thompson, who delivered a one-two punch as writer and star of the best literary adaptation in years. The Winner: Emma Thompson in "Sense and Sensibility."

BEST ACTOR

BEST DIRECTOR

Follow me here: a few years ago bland actor Kevin Costner did the Orson Welles thing in "Dances With Wolves." He won. Mel Gibson produced, directed, and starred in "Braveheart" with even better results. Now consider that Tim Robbins is the only familiar name among the other nominees, and you'll have to concur. The Winner: Mel Gibson in "Braveheart."

BEST PICTURE

Traditionally the Best Director nod is a good indication of the Best Picture winner. Not so this year. For all its epic grandeur, "Braveheart" just doesn't have it. "Babe" does, but still won't be taken seriously enough to win. "Sense and Sensibility" is far too intelligent for the industry voters. The Italian-made "Postman" won't deliver. Bet instead on a movie so well-liked, so well-reviewed, and so darned American that it almost can't lose. Step right up to the microphone, Opie. The Winner: "Apollo 13."

For the sake of that passionate pig, I'd love to be proven wrong.

Motherhood inspires artist's rebirth

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

It seems natural that Lisa Grden would donate a piece of art work to the auction benefitting New Morning School.

Her "Mother and Child" clay wall relief is a statement about the preciousness of children.

As a mother and Brownie troop leader, the Livonia sculptor radiates what the Plymouth pre-K through eighth grade non-profit parent cooperative school is all about – the selfless giving of one's time to the children.

"Becoming a mother was one of the most powerful experiences I've ever had. There's nothing more sacred than that bond. I've had to learn to put my needs on hold temporarily, and take energy and put it into the children. It's a growing experience," said the 32-year-old Grden.

She wears her heart in the art. Grden's lyrical flowing figures, in most instances, portray familial scenes of tender touching and holding. Her female figures are not perfect Venus goddesses but women with sagging breasts. Unlike male sculptors, Grden shows women as they are: not older but better, improved and wisened by their years.

"The finished product is born from a life experience. I tell people everyone is an artist. You have to take risks especially when it comes to content."

When Grden graduated from the University of Michigan-Dearborn with a bachelor's degree in education in 1986, art was the furthest profession from her mind. She wanted to teach school but instead married and had two children, Rebecca, 6, and Christopher, 4, led her to discover clay on a shopping trip to Frank's Nursery. The three soon were making little boys and teddy bears from Sculpy, a form of modeling clay hardened in an ordinary home oven.

"My passion for clay took off from there. I love clay because it's three dimensional. It's of the earth, pliable and flexible. You can change and manipulate it. There's so many options. You can make it functional or sculptural."

Artists find support through ARTS Anonymous

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

At times I find myself delaying a story when I should be sitting at my computer writing. Most times it's because the subject matter deals with an important art exhibition or individual respected in the field.

Writing about 400-year-old paintings by Venetian masters like Titian, Tintoretto and Tiepolo now on display at the Detroit Institute of Arts is intimidating. Did I bring to life the history behind the paintings and convey the importance of the exhibit never to be seen again in this country?

Last week I learned, I am not the exception. Creative people have a lot in common including the avoidance of producing a work. They frequently clean house, run errands, or find other projects to become involved with instead of writing, painting, sculpting or composing music.

Now ARTS Anonymous, an international support group for artists involved in not only the visual but performing arts such as music, dancing and acting, is helping creative individuals like Julie through a 12-step program modeled after Alcoholics Anonymous. In fact, that's how she found out about the group which meets 2 p.m. every Saturday in the Northwest Alano Club at Farmington Road and Ann Arbor Trail in Westland.

Julie has been attending Adult Children of Alcoholics meetings there for the last two years. For 20 years she laid aside all creative urges to raise her children as a single parent. Now, it's time for her.

"It helps being with like-minded people. We prefer to remain anonymous because a lot of them are dealing with alcohol, drugs, anorexia, bulimia or an abusive relationships. At meetings, we're sharing our gut stories. These are people in severe pain hiding their artistic abilities," said Julie of Westland.

Judi M. is a former member of the Michigan Art Exchange, the non-profit artists' cooperative gallery that closed its doors last April in Plymouth. Although the MAE offered some support from fellow artists, it primary purpose was marketing the finished work. An unemployed graphic artist, Judi M. founded the Westland chapter of ARTS Anonymous last December to encourage her creativity. Previously, she had attended meetings in Royal Oak before the group folded. Strengthened by the experience of meeting with supportive creative people, Judi M. initiated the paperwork. The group has no dues or fees. It is self supported by contributions at meetings.

ARTS Anonymous was founded in 1984 in New York City by Abigial. She originally sought help from the Debtors Anonymous program because it was the only group available at that time but it failed to meet her needs as an artist. So she established ARTS Anonymous as a 12-step group focused on fulfilling a person's creative potential in their chosen art.

"We're talking about the process of creation more than the product. We set goals for the week. Part of it is finishing something from beginning to end," said Judi M. of Plymouth.

That's not April's dilemma. Without hesitation, the Dearborn Heights resident finishes the mixed media wall pieces to sell at Creative Hands in Taylor.

"The main basis is frustration. Do I market my work to interior designers or home decorating shops?" April said.

"ARTS Anonymous encourages us not to give up but to go on."

Judi M., Julie and April are now in the process of starting a company to reproduce artists' work on coffee mugs and other merchandise. After all, that's what ARTS Anonymous is all about — artists helping artists.

Call Judi M., (313) 459-6214 or Julie, (313) 721-5761 for more information on ARTS Anonymous.

Grden works evenings after the children are in bed. During the daytime she is too busy mothering her two and leading Brownie Troop No. 1572 of Hull Elementary on field trips to make clay tiles at OCC with Piepenburg. Talk about devoted. It's not easy keeping track of 17 six year olds among the piles of clay. Grden's teaching background is at play here.

"We're making a wall mural and donating it to the school to learn the lesson of sharing," she said.

Denny Englehart likes Grden's work so much that she's taken on her ceramic wall relief and female figurative sculptures at Chameleon Galleries on Main Street in Plymouth.

"Lisa's pieces have feeling. It's not like a clay bowl that's cold, her work has life to it," said Englehart.

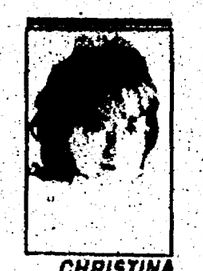
Spacehog's timing couldn't have been better



CHRISTINA FUOCO

Spacehog lead guitarist Richard Steel had this feeling when he met drummer Jonny Cragg that they had a musical future together.

"We just liked each other," Steel said during an interview from Rochester, N.Y. "You know how you get a vibe about somebody? You don't know why they're groovy but you know they are groovy."

The two tried to jam together numerous times but the timing was always wrong. But when Cragg, vocalist/bassist Royston Langdon and his brother guitarist/vocalist Antony, and Steel finally got together to form Spacehog the timing couldn't have been better.

The band's debut album "Resident Alien" has spawned the Mott the Hoople-ish successful single "In The Meantime" and earned Spacehog a spot opening for the Red Hot Chili Peppers. (The tour comes to The Palace of Auburn Hills on Thursday, March 7.)

Members of Spacehog hail from Leeds, England, but hooked up as a band in New York's East Village, where they all moved one-by-one. Where some English musicians look down on the United States, Spacehog thinks differently.

"I love it, but I definitely have a distorted view. They've been very nice to us. In a way, I don't feel like a 'British band.' We're an alternative rock band who was born and bred in England but now lives in the United States."

■ Local rockers Benny and The Jets will perform 4-6 p.m. Thursday-Friday, March 7-8, as Mitch Albom's house band during his WJR radio show.

When the Plymouth natives aren't on the air, they're playing Reisers Keyboard Lounge, 1870 S. Wayne Road, Westland, every Tuesday, and The Office Bar, 15414 Telegraph Road (north of Five Mile Road), Redford, Thursdays-Sundays. For more information about the band, call their hotline (313) 730-1627.

■ Notable shows this week: The Irish pop band The Corrs, who played The Peach Pit After Dark on the New Year's Eve episode of "Beverly Hills 90210" plays a free show on Sunday, March 10, at the 7th House, 7 N. Saginaw, Pontiac, (810) 335-8100. . . . Canadian popsters Pure, whose drummer missed the band's last Detroit appearance due to "illness" (translated: busted at the border), returns to St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Tuesday, March 12, to play with a full band, (313) 961-MELT. . . . Fresh from their spot opening for Oasis at the State Theatre in Detroit on Sunday, The Vudu Hippies play 3-D, 1815 N. Main St., Royal Oak, on Thursday, March 14, (810) 589-3344.

If you have a question or comment for Christina Fuoco, you can write to her at the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or via e-mail at CFuoco@aol.com. You can also leave her a message by calling, with a Touch-Tone phone, (313) 953-2047, mailbox No. 2130.

LSO Spring Concert features outstanding pianist

■ PREVIEW

Pianist Richard Ridenour will be featured at the Livonia Symphony's Spring Concert 8 p.m. Saturday, March 9 at Churchill High School's James P. Carli Auditorium in Livonia.

Tickets are $12 adults, $10 senior citizens, and $8 students, and are available for purchase at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Hammell Music, Madonna University, and at the door. Churchill High School's Carli Auditorium is on Newburgh, between Ann Arbor and Joy Roads in Livonia.

For concert and ticket information, call the Symphony's 24-hour Hotline (313) 421-1111.

The concert, sponsored by Ford Motor Company, and conducted by Volodymyr Schesiuk, will feature the "music of the masters," with famous pieces by Shostakovich, Mozart, Beethoven, and Rogers and Hammerstein. Ridenour will perform Rachmaninov's Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor.

Also of note:

■ Plymouth Symphony Orchestra continues its season 8 p.m. Saturday, March 23 with "A Verdi Requiem" at Novi High School. Talented instrumentalists and vocalists will join together to present Verdi's masterpiece. Call (313) 451-2112 for ticket information.

■ The Livonia Symphony Society will present "Cabaret '96," 7 p.m. Friday, March 29 at Burton Manor in Livonia. The Spring dance will feature Jack Brokensha Quartet, show tunes by Emcee/Vocalist Stephen King, and light popular music by the Livonia Symphony. The concert will be presented by the LSO's Conductor Emeritus, Francesco Di Blasi.

Hot and cold hors d'oeuvres will be served at 6:30 p.m.; the Cabaret will begin at 7 p.m. Tickets are $22 per person, or tables of 10 for $220. All tickets will be held at the door. To reserve, call Betty Jean Awrey (313) 522-1100 or the Symphony's 24-hour Hotline (313) 421-1111.

TRAVEL

Valet offers tips for looking your best

Traveling takes its toll on your body, spirit and even your appearance. The Four Seasons Hotel Toronto's resident valet Nick D'Ugo is put to the daily challenge of keeping guests looking and feeling their best.

With 33 years of valet experience, D'Ugo offers some of his favorite tips to help you stay perfectly pressed.

■ Never press delicate fabrics directly with a steam iron. Before pressing, dampen a cotton cloth with cold water and place over the garment. Simply press over the damp cloth to avoid damaging the garment or causing the fabric to shine.

■ To iron a shirt professionally, press in the following order: collar, left front panel, the back, right front panel, both sleeves, and finish by ironing the collar a second time to ensure that it is crisp.

■ If your clothes are wrinkled after being packed in a suitcase, hang the wrinkled garment in the washroom after taking a bath or shower; the steam will help to remove some of the wrinkles.

■ Always use distilled water in your steam iron, this prevents mineral deposits from forming and causing the iron to clog.

■ Hang damp clothing on plastic or coated wire hangers. If hanging silk or delicate fabrics that tend to slip, secure a small piece of sponge on the corners of the hanger to prevent the garment from slipping.

■ Never attempt to remove any type of stain to a garment with water. This will only spread the stain and make removal virtually impossible. Take the garment to a professional cleaner as soon as possible.

■ Never attempt to remove any type of stain to a garment with water. This will only spread the stain and make removal virtually impossible. Take the garment to a professional cleaner as soon as possible.

■ To remove stains on your shirt collar, simply rub the stain with a bar of soap and scrub with a nylon brush. Once the stain has been removed, wash the garment as usual.

■ When taking suits to the dry cleaners, ask that they stuff the shoulders and arms with tissue after pressing to preserve their shape during storage.

Located in the Yorkville shopping district, the 380-room Four Seasons Toronto is managed by Four Seasons Regent Hotels and Resorts, which currently manages 38 hotels in 16 countries with four properties scheduled to open before year end in 1996.

Coens deliver thriller in Fargo'

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Plodding through knee-deep snow, sheriff Marge Gunderson pauses for a second while examining a shooting victim in a bloody triple murder. She thinks she may vomit, not because of the grisliness of the scene, but because of morning sickness. She's six months pregnant.

"Fargo" may be my least favorite of the six films written, produced and directed by brothers Joel and Ethan Coen. But it does deliver something special: a police investigator unlike any that has walked across the screen.

Actress Frances McDormand, interviewed with the directors in New York recently, calls Marge "Midwestern nice." She works with the people she's interrogating, draws them out with a friendly "work with me here," but then gets tough if they don't treat her with equal courtesy.

"She's never trying to build herself up as smarter or dumber than she actually is," McDormand says. "She's just doing exactly what needs to be done right then. It's a very Midwestern trait: you do not expend any energy unless absolutely necessary, and then, if it's necessary, you take control."

Marge holds the film together. When she's off screen you miss her, left with a fairly routine murder mystery laced with quirky Coen touches. Marge trails a shady Brainerd, Minnesota, car dealer behind in his payments (William H. Macy) who plots to have his wife kidnapped so he can split the ransom money with thugs-for-hire (Steve Buscemi and Peter Stormare).

Though you'll never get them to admit it, this very Midwestern murder mystery reads like the Coens' allergic reaction to just about everything popular in Hollywood, reason enough to give it your support.

The shakey camera of TV police dramas is replaced here by classical composition and almost painfully slow pacing. The banter between gunmen that Quentin Tarantino has led us to expect is now one guy talking to a human wall. Much of the humor here is based on the characters' accents, so thickly Scandinavian that the Coens' former Minnesota neighbors will probably be put off.

"Even 'Raising Arizona,' about as innocuous a movie as you can imagine, offended some people in Arizona for whatever reason," Ethan says. "If you're at all specific in terms of region or anything, some people tend to be offended and nothing will stop them."

Even their use of Steve Buscemi is underplayed. Where the popeyed Mr. Pink almost ascends to the level of folklore in the recent "Things To Do in Denver When You're Dead," Fargo provides just another quirky part, which the actor probably appreciates.

And in many ways "Fargo" is a reaction to the big money spent (and lost) on "The Hudsucker Proxy." Still my favorite of the Coens' movies, it proved a financial disaster that has temporarily sunk their relations with the big studios.

Their budget on "Fargo" was a measly $7 million, which probably could have been less if the weather had cooperated. They had the bad luck to shoot the large number of winter exteriors in a season where Upper Minnesota snowfall was at a record low, forcing cast and crew to head farther north.

Gramercy Pictures, the company distributing "Fargo," has wisely chosen to open it on only a handful of screens. Though showing exclusively at the Star John R in Madison Heights, the movie may go wide if ecstatic reviews (Siskel and Ebert among them) bring people out.

Before the opening credits, the Coens make a big deal out of the story being based on real events, but they're characteristically cagey when interviewed about what is real and what fiction. You wonder after awhile if there really was a case like this at all.

Did they set the movie in 1987 to be more faithful to the real story? No, they just wanted a particular topical reference to Johnny Carson.

And why did they call the movie "Fargo," when virtually all of the action takes place in Minnesota? "You know, the marketing people wondered about that too," says Ethan, though he hardly seems concerned. "It sounded better than Brainerd."

A sampling of what's playing at alternative movie theaters across metro Detroit as reviewed by John Monaghan

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"Eyes Without a Face" (France - 1959). 7, 9:30 p.m. March 8-9. Director Georges Franju concocted this little-seen French horror film, what he liked to call a "poetic fantasy." Here a demented surgeon tries to rebuild the face of his disfigured daughter — at any cost. The film itself has undergone a little reconstructive surgery, since most American viewers know the film under its dubbed and re-edited version, "The Horror Chamber of Dr. Faustus."

"I Am Cuba" (Cuba/USSR - 1964). 4, 7 p.m. March 10. The camera is the real star in this dizzying tribute to Cuban Communism. Numerous requests prompted the DFT to give us another look at this eye-popping propaganda film, especially timely with our current tense relations with Castro.

"Tales from the Brothers Quay." 7 p.m. March 11. Identical twins born in Philadelphia, the Quays have turned the animation world upside down with their visionary films, often using found objects and surreal imagery. Among the titles: "Are We Still Married?," "Rehearsals for Extinct Anatomies," and "Street of Crocodiles."

■ KINOTEK
Windsor Film Theatre, 2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor. Call (519) 254-FILM for information. ($4.50 Canadian; $4 U.S.)

Chris Marker — "La Jetee" (France - 1962) and "Sans Soleil" (France - 1982). Starting at 8:30 p.m. March 11-12. His short film, "La Jetee," served as inspiration for Terry Gilliam's "Twelve Monkeys." Now see the original, with its creative manipulation of still images in an early exploration of the subjectivity of time and the invalidity of memory. It precedes the feature-length "Sans Soleil," a cross-cultural travelogue spanning the globe.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information. ($5)

Ape Fest — "Planet of the Apes" (USA - 1968) 8:30 p.m. and "Conquest of the Planet of the Apes" (USA - 1972) 10:30 p.m. March 8. Two of the best-loved entries in the popular "Apes" saga. The original stars Charlton Heston as the astronaut who discovers a world where men are now ruled by apes. "Conquest," the fourth in the series, charts how the apes got the upper hand in the first place. A rare chance to see these camp classics in wide screen.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Restoration" (Britain - 1995). In this long-promised period piece, Robert Downey Jr. plays a notorious womanizer in the court of Charles II who may have been stung by true love. Sam Neill, Meg Ryan, and Sir Ian McKellan co-star.

"French Twist" (France - 1995). When Victoria Abril discovers that her realtor husband is cheating on her, she gets sweet revenge when a tenderhearted woman (played by the director, Josiane Balasko) has her van break down in front of the house.

"A Midwinter's Tale" (USA - 1995). Kenneth Branagh's latest comedy is a tribute to hutzpah when a struggling, on-the-ropes actor attempts to mount a production of "Hamlet" with only a handful of actors. Joan Collins appears among the memorable cameos. Starts Friday.

■ MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"Leaving Las Vegas" (USA - 1995). In this uncompromisingly depressing drama, Nicolas Cage plays a hopeless alcoholic who finds true love too late in a Las Vegas prostitute (Elizabeth Shue). Tough going, but the kind of movie that haunts you long after seeing it.

■ REDFORD THEATRE
13670 Lahser, Detroit. Call (313) 537-2560 for information. ($2.50)

"Chariots of Fire" (USA - 1981). 8 p.m. March 8; 2, 8 p.m. Mar. 9 (organ overture begins a half hour before showtime). The inspirational story of two runners, a Jewish Cambridge student and a devout Scottish missionary, who compete in the 1924 Olympics. The year's Oscar winner for best picture features Vangelis' now-famous electronic score.

■ STAR JOHN R
John R at 14 Mile, Madison Heights. Call (810) 585-2070 ($6.50; $3.50 matinee/twilight)

"Fargo" (USA - 1995). In this sixth film from Joel and Ethan Coen, Frances McDormand plays a pregnant sheriff investigating a bizarre murder case in the Upper Minnesota snowbelt. Dryer and less satisfying than the Coens' other pictures ("Raising Arizona" and "The Hudsucker Proxy" among them) but still one of the most unique and uncompromising films of the year. Steve Buscemi co-stars.

■ STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 961-5450 for information. ($1)

"Caddyshack" (USA - 1980). 9 p.m. Mar. 11. It ranks as the favorite film of professional athletes and does have its hilarious moments. Rodney Dangerfield has rarely been funnier, not to mention Bill Murray's Ahab-like hunt for an elusive gopher.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

SCHEDULED TO OPEN Friday, March 8

"BOTTLE ROCKET"
The story of three would-be thieves who learn the importance of friendship, honor and duty as they ineptly pursue a life of crime.

"HEAVY METAL"
The milestone animated science fiction fantasy classic returns with re-mastered SDDS sound track featuring Black Sabbath, Blue Oyster, Cult, Cheap Trick and others.

"IF LUCY FELL"
Lucy and Joe are looking for love and they've made a pact. If they don't find it by their 30th birthday they've vowed to jump off the Brooklyn Bridge together. With the clock ticking and their date of with the bridge looming they just might find true love after all. Romantic comedy stars Jessica Parker.

"HELLRAISER IV: BLOODLINE"
From the mind of Clive Barker comes a terrifying new chapter in the chilling series he introduced almost a decade ago.

"THE BIRDCAGE"
Remake of the classic 1978 comedy "La Cage Aux Folles" about two gay men who hide their relationship when their son brings home his fiancee and her family.

"FARGO"
From the Coen Brothers, a crime thriller about a car dealer and his scheme to have his own wife kidnapped for ransom.

SPECIAL EVENTS

St. Dunstan's hosts contest for sisters

Share a favorite story about your sister(s) to win surprises for two, and tickets to St. Dunstan's Theatre Guild of Cranbrook's production of Wendy Wasserstein's "The Sisters Rosensweig" opening 8 p.m. Friday, March 22, and continuing weekends to Saturday, March 30.

The story can be funny, poignant, or unusual. Please limit the length to 250 words or less. Deadline to enter contest is noon Friday, March 15. The winning entry will be printed in the March 21 edition of Arts & Entertainment.

Send entries to: Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. To fax entries, call (313) 591-7279. Call (313) 953-2105 for information.

You must be 18 or older to enter, and employees of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are not eligible.

■ The first prize winner will receive two tickets to St. Dunstan's production of "The Sisters Rosensweig," A St. Dunstan's t-shirt, Tea for Two at the Townsend Hotel in downtown Birmingham, a copy of the book "Sisters" by Carol Saline, from Borders Book Shop in Birmingham, and picture frame for your cherished memory from Orthogonality in Birmingham.

■ Second prize is two tickets to "The Sisters Rosensweig," and Tea for Two at the Townsend Hotel.

■ Third prize is two tickets to "The Sisters Rosensweig," and a copy of the book "Sisters."

■ Fourth prize is two tickets to "The Sisters Rosensweig," and a picture frame from Orthogonality.

Tickets will be for the closing night performance 8 p.m. Saturday, March 30, with different nights substituted upon availability.

"The Sisters Rosensweig," runs 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, March 22-23 and March 29-30 at St. Dunstan's Playhouse, 400 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills (between Woodward and Lahser).

General admission is $10; students and senior citizens $8. For ticket information, call (810) 644-0527. Free parking is available across from the theater at Christ Church Cranbrook, and there is a complimentary shuttle service.

Voted Best Broadway Play of the 1992-1993 season by the Outer Critics Circle, "The Sisters Rosensweig" explores the relationships between three middle-aged sisters and how they interact with each other, their children, and their men.

"It's a story about families, both immediate and extended. About deciding to embrace your heritage or redefine it," said director Amy Smith. "It's a funny show, but there are some tears too."

Wasserstein is also the author of the popular "The Heidi Chronicles," recently made into a television movie starring Jamie Lee Curtis, and "Uncommon Women and Others," which she wrote while attending Yale's School of Drama. "The Sister's Rosensweig" was presented last year at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit.

Liz Carroll headlines 11th annual Irish Fest

The 11th annual St. Patrick's Day Irish Fest begins 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 16 at Bonnie Brook Country Club, 19950 Telegraph Road, between Seven and Eight Mile Roads. Tickets are $10 at the door.

The evening of traditional Irish music, "The Gathering" features Liz Carroll — two-time all Ireland champion fiddler and recipient of the 1994 National Endowment for the Arts Heritage Award.

The celebration continues 3 p.m. Sunday, March 17 with a host of Irish musicians, dancers and pipers at Bonnie Brook Country Club. Tickets are $7 at the door. Food and cash bar will be available at both events. Call (313) 537-3489, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. for more information.

Carroll has recorded and performed with the Irish folk group "Green Fields of American," "Cherish the Ladies," and "Trian" and has two solo albums to her credit.

Accompanying Carroll in concert will be singer/guitarist Jim Dewan. After the concert musicians are invited to join Carroll and local musicians Marty Somberg, Mick Gavin, Terence McKinney and others in a jam session.

Glenn gymnasts qualify

The Westland John Glenn gymnastics team finished a mere three-tenths of a point shy of qualifying for the state meet at Saturday's MHSAA Region II gymnastics regional at Plymouth Canton.

"Our big problem Saturday was on the beam where he had more falls than we usually have and it turns out that we missed state by just one of those falls," Glenn coach Debbie Hosein said.

But the season was far from a loss as four Rockets will compete as individuals in Saturday's state meet at Troy High.

Qualifying for the third time in their careers are seniors Shelley Underwood and Sarah Coombs. Both will compete in all-around.

Also qualifying were sophomore Stephanie Thompson in bars and freshman Jessica Beach in floor.

"I think Shelley and Sarah will improve on their fourth place finishes and Stephanie and Jessica will hold their own," Hosein said.

Collegiate notes

The University of Michigan baseball team began its 1996 season this week with a pair of Observerland players in starting roles.

The Wolverines started 0-3 with three losses to the University of Houston — 11-4 on Saturday; 5-4 Sunday; and 11-5 Monday.

Derek Besco (Westland Glenn) was leading the team in batting average (.500) after going 5-for-10 and in RBI (3).

He also had the only home run and scored three runs. Besco had started two games in right field and one at first base.

Bryan Besco (Westland Glenn) made a pitching appearance Sunday, going 1⅓ innings and leaving with a 4-3 lead. He also started one game at first base.

■ Scott DeWolf, a 1992 Livonia Stevenson graduate, will have his chance to make the 1996 U.S. Olympic swim team.

DeWolf, now a senior for the nationally-ranked Texas A&M swim team, qualified in the 200-meter butterfly. DeWolf will compete against the nation's top swimmers on Friday at the Olympic trials in Indianapolis, Ind. The top two swimmers in the 200 butterfly advance.

A 1995 Olympic Development Camp pick, he ranks second in the A&M all-time records in the 200 butterfly with a time of 1:47.6. DeWolf is also a two-time academic All-American and represents A&M on the 22-member GTE/SWC Academic Honor Team.

■ Bethany College (W.Va.) senior cross country runner Emily Schoenfeldt (Livonia/Avonworth) was recently named to the Presidents' Athletic Conference Academic Honor Roll. Schoenfeldt, an Interdisiplinary major, carries a 4.0 grade-point average.

Warrior icers roll

The Westland Warriors Pee Wee B enter the state playoffs on a winning note after they captured the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association District 1 playoff championship.

Westland beat the Dearborn Cyclones 5-2 in the title match behind a three-goal outburst in the third period. The Warriors, who were 17-1 in league play, avenged their only league loss as they eliminated the Cyclones.

Hockey correction

Monday's Livonia Observer mistakenly identified Livonia Churchill senior Ed Rossetto as taking over as goaltender in the Chargers' 4-0 regional loss Saturday to Trenton.

In fact, it was senior Alex Rossetto who took over in goal. Alex's brother, Ed, is a freshman right wing for the Chargers.

Botsford runner clinic

Botsford General Hospital's Total Rehabilitation and Athletic Conditioning Center (TRACC) will hold a clinic for runners 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturay, March 16, at the Botsford Center for Health Improvement, 29750 Grand River, Novi.

TRACC sports medicine professionals will demonstrate warm up and cool down exercises, offer flexibility and nutritional information, along with performance screenings, including muscle testing, body composition and gait analysis.

The cost to register is $20.

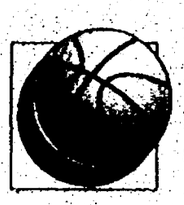
CC staves off stingy Spartans



Redford Catholic Central had to fight off a determined Livonia Stevenson boys basketball team down the stretch for a 65-55 Class A district semifinal triumph. CC (18-4) faces Detroit Henry Ford (6-12) next.

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

It was sweaty palm time Wednesday night for host Redford Catholic Central in the Class A boys basketball district semifinals.

The Catholic League A-B Division champions needed a clutch three-point shot by senior guard Chris Misiak with 1:04 remaining to put away pesky Livonia Stevenson, 65-55.

Misiak and Marc McDonald each tallied 16 points to lead the winners. Justin Hoener and 6-foot-8 sophomore Chris Young (off the bench) each added 11.

The matchup was nearly reminiscent of the first-round state football playoff game played last November between the two schools (won by heavily favored CC 14-6).

The 11-11 Spartans, the fifth-place team in the Western Lakes Activities Association, nearly climbed all the way back from a 45-29 halftime deficit. Stevenson outscored the Shamrocks 14-9 in the third period and pulled to within five, 55-50, with 2:37 remaining when senior point-guard Jim Grewe, not usually known for his scoring, drove down the lane for a layup.

CC then took and ill-advised shot and the Spartans had a chance to cut the deficit even further.

But the Spartans could not convert and Misiak came through with his pivotal outside shot to give CC an eight-point cushion.

Grewe came back with three-pointer with only 46 seconds left, but CC held off the Spartans by making seven of eight free throws over the final 41 seconds.

"We had a super effort the last two ballgames," said Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre, whose team upset Public School League runner-up Detroit Redford on Monday, 67-64. "The seniors went out on an excellent note.

"And what I liked most is that the kids played without being fearful of who they played."

But Stevenson tightened the screws on its zone defense for the second half. CC made just five of 23 over the final two quarters. McDonald, who had 14 first-half points, was limited to a pair of free throws.

"In the first half we had it both ways, inside and outside," said CC coach Rick Coratti, whose team is 18-4 overall. "But in the second half we quit going inside and we didn't hit from the perimeter. We live and die by the 'three.' Misiak and McDonald are usually around 40 to 45 percent. Tonight they just were not falling, but Misiak hit the big one and that was the ballgame."

While the Shamrocks shot 39.2 percent for the game (20 of 51), Stevenson had even more problems with its shooting accuracy.

Stevenson was 22 of 61 from the field (31.8 percent). The Spartans' Erick Giovannini, who led all scorers with 24 points, was nine of 27.

Matt Quinter added 11 points, while Eric Curl chipped in with eight points and 11 rebounds for the Spartans.

The Shamrocks now face 6-foot-10 shot-blocker Kenyatta Johnson and Detroit Henry Ford in Friday's district final. Game time is 7 p.m. at CC.

80-70: Wayne's World

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Staggered, a bit dazed and on the ropes during the second quarter — trailing by as many as 16 points — Wayne Memorial's boys basketball team came back with a flurry over the final 16 minutes to beat rival Westland John Glenn before a jam-packed crowd in the Class A district tourney at Belleville, 80-70.

The 19-2 Zebras, who will try to repeat as district champs beginning at 7 p.m. Friday against either host Belleville or Garden City, didn't know what had hit them during the early going.

And it certainly wasn't the same Glenn team that got pasted 75-49 by Wayne on Jan. 16.

"I don't think I've burned two timeouts in the first half all year," Wayne coach Chuck Henry said. "I challenged our kids at halftime about defensive pressure and unity on offense.

"In the first half we had four guys watching the other guy do his thing. And we had nobody on the boards."

They came out like fighters, nailing their first seven shots.

Shamrocks fall

No. 1 Trenton takes advantage in 9-3 victory

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

■ HOCKEY

He didn't think one of them would accidentally lose a helmet, leading to the go-ahead goal in Trenton's 9-3 Class A quarterfinal playoff victory Wednesday night at Oak Park's Compuware Arena.

With the Shamrocks already playing shorthanded late in the second period, Scot Curtin was given a two-minute penalty for failing to go directly to the bench after his helmet accidentally fell to the ice behind the CC net.

Trenton, 26-0 overall, scored at 11:06 during the two-man advantage to break a 3-3 tie and added five more unanswered goals to advance to the Final Four in Flint.

CC, which last two earlier games to Trenton, finished 16-6-3 overall. The Trojans will be going after their seventh state title, their last coming in 1991.

St. John was pleased with the way the Shamrocks played the first two periods, especially after falling behind 2-0 before the game was four minutes old on goals by Durbin and Rob Watson.

"It was a legitimate call," St. John said about the penalty against Curtin. "It was unfortunate, because it left us two men short. I thought if we could stay out of the box, we could play them close. We'll be back next year, nipping at someone's heels."

Greg DeSana scored the go-ahead goal on a perfect set-up off a face-off by center Jason Durbin. The Shamrocks had successfully killed three earlier penalties so Durbin tried something new.

Instead of trying to win the draw back to the point, he went forward with the puck. With a CC defenseman and goaltender Rickey Marnon concentrating on Durbin, he slid the puck to DeSana, who had the entire left side of the net open.

"Their goalie was out of the net, the defense was spread and I decided to change up the draw, try something new," Durbin said. "We needed a few to get rolling. We have two more hard games. I hope we can hang a banner."

The Trojans added a goal off a rebound by Chris Turner to make the lead 5-3 at 12:32, two seconds after Curtin's penalty expired. It won't go in the books as a power play goal, but it was for all intents and purposes since Curtin had not yet joined the play after leaving the penalty box.

The Trojans added goals by John Peffer, Watson, Scott Peffer and Ian Mcleish in the third period — the last two coming in the final minute of play.

Marnon deserved better, stopping 19 of the 28 Trenton shots on goal. CC finished with 16 shots directed at Trenton's goalie Brian Gray.

The Trojans had not allowed a goal in the state playoffs, outscoring three opponents, 27-0.

CC broke the drought at 9:00 of the first period when Brad Karabelski scored unassisted after stealing the puck deep in Trenton's end.

Trenton went ahead 3-1 with a nifty goal by Jeremy Giles in the slot off a pass by Guidi, but the Shamrocks got consecutive goals from John Rogin and Kevin Beaudoin to tie the score at 3.

Stevenson pulls surprise against PSL runner-up

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

March Madness had barely settled in Monday night when Livonia Stevenson pulled off a shocker in the Class A district opener at Detroit Catholic Central.

The Spartans ousted Public School League runner-up Detroit Redford, 67-64, in a brilliant display of basketball. The last time Stevenson knocked off a PSL team was in the late '70s when Dave Hall led the Spartans past Detroit Mackenzie in the regional.

Stevenson (11-11 overall) shot a blistering 64.4 percent from the floor (29 of 45) and used an effective 2-1-2 zone defense to frustrate the Huskies, who bowed out at 12-7 overall.

All five Stevenson starters played pivotal roles in the upset victory.

Erick Giovannini, a 6-foot-2 senior guard, led the winners with a game-high 24 points, including six 3-pointers.

Point guard Jim Grewe, a 5-9 senior, did not score a point, but was the trigger-man against Redford's pressure defense.

And 6-2 forward Eric Curl, who played during crunch time despite heaving on the bench, chipped in with eight points.

"I drank too much water and got hit (on a play) and it knocked the wind out of me," said Curl, a burly senior headed to Bowling Green State University on a football scholarship.

"Our game plan was to work the ball around and make them play defense, and get easy baskets.

"We definitely came out to win and not to play a close game. We all believed we could win, but maybe a lot of people out there didn't expect it."

It was nip-and-tuck throughout three quarters — 17-all after one period, 30-all at intermission and 49-47 in favor of Redford entering the fourth.

But the Spartans caught fire to start the final period, going on a 16-4 run as Balow and Giovannini each scored eight.

Stevenson led 67-59 with 1:11 to play on a basket by Giovannini, but Redford would not quit, pulling to within three, 67-64, on a triple by Michael Green with only 56 seconds left.

The Spartans then missed the front-ends of three consecutive one-and-one free throw attempts, but Redford could not answer as the Huskies missed a pair of triple tries in the final 16 seconds.

"'Newms' took over the practices and he made our offense more methodical," McIntyre said. "We tried to use every option, go inside-and-out and a lot of ball reversal. Tonight we had all five guys touching the ball and more combinations. Tonight we stayed within the pattern."

Grewe's traffic directing became key.

"The kid weighs about 100 pounds, but he has the stamina . . . he just keeps going and going," McIntyre said. "He takes one heck of a load and made some super passes. He even picked their pocket a couple of times in the second half. He did a nice job."

Steven Reynolds, a promising 6-6 sophomore, led Redford with 22 points. Guards Rod Wells and Green added 17 and 12, respectively.

It was Redford's third straight loss following the PSL final against No. 1-ranked Detroit Pershing. The Huskies also played without starting guard Kenneth Flowers, who suffered a broken nose in Saturday's Operation-Friendship consolation game loss to Detroit Benedictine.

"It's no secret, we're in a slump," said Redford coach Derrick McDowell, a former assistant at the University of Detroit and Central Michigan. "We just fell apart at the end of the season and collapsed."

The Huskies shot only 24 of 64 from the floor (37.5 percent).

"We don't play much against zones in our league, but every state tournament you're going to be surprised by something like that," McDowell said. "We gave up easy baskets inside and outside. But when you play with inexperienced guys, that's going to happen. Block to block against their screens, we didn't do a good job."

Trojans stopped, 86-81

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

Things are down for Livonia Clarenceville now, but they may be looking up in the near future.

Host Clarenceville was eliminated Monday night, 86-81, by Pontiac Notre Dame Prep in the opener at District 75 of the Michigan High School Basketbal tournament.

■ DISTRICTS

But it was just the end of the season, not the end of the world.

Although the record might not have been a success by Detroit Pershing standards, it was just the second winning season for the Trojans in memory.

"Our season was a huge success," coach Rick Larson said. "We tied the school record for wins. It's the most in the last 20 years. The only other winning record we've had was when our two assistant coaches were here in '93-94.

"That's the first time we were above .500, that I know of.

"We've made a lot of demands on our basketball players — to be athletes and student-athletes. They've responded very well.

The game turned on a dry spell the Trojans had early in the second quarter, when the Fighting Irish, 15-6, expanded their first-period lead from 21-18 to 34-20.

Clarenceville spent the remainder of the game trying to get out of that hole. It pulled to within three, 70-67, with 3:28 to play but Pontiac Notre Dame sank two free throws and Clarenceville missed two shots on its next possession.

"We didn't get as many second shots as we normally get," Larson said. "Justin did get eight offensive rebounds for put-backs."

Pontiac Notre Dame, the Catholic League C-D Division champion despite having just one senior on its squad, got 27 points from sophomore David McGlown, 20 from sophomore Kobia Scruggs, 16 from junior David Cordova and 10 from junior Pat Heslip.

The Trojans made 9-of-12 free throws but the Fighting Irish had 36 tries and made 26. The difference was Notre Dame's ability to slash to the basket offensively (especially against the press) while at the same time keeping Clarenceville from effectively getting either bodies or ball to the basket.

"We pressed them. They pressed us," said Larson, whose normal senior starter Scott Barnhard played limited minutes because of an ankle injury. "We've never won a district game. That I know of."

Churchill eliminated by Mustangs, 79-66

Northville converted 27 of 35 free throws, including 19 of 22 in the decisive fourth quarter as the Mustangs won their Class A district boys basketball opener against Livonia Churchill, 79-66, at Novi.

Northville improved to 15-6 overall, while Churchill bowed out at 9-12.

The Chargers trailed 33-26 at intermission, but rallied to take a brief lead late in the third quarter.

Allen Polanski, a senior guard, led Churchill with 27. Dwight Andrews chipped in with 16 and Matt Hughes added 10.

■ REDFORD CC 83, SOUTHFIELD 72: Redford Catholic Central's three-guard attack accounted for 60 points in a Class A district opener against the visiting Blue Jays (9-12).

Senior guard Justin Hoener led the winners with 24 points, while junior guard Marc McDonald added 22. Senior guard Chris Mislak chipped in with 12 for the Shamrocks (17-4 overall).

■ BASKETBALL

■ BENEDICTINE 86, LUTH. WESTLAND 52: Detroit Benedictine, the A-East/West Catholic League champions, cruised in the Class C district opener Tuesday at Livonia Clarenceville as four players scored in double figures.

Senior forward Martise Corley scored 16 points to lead the Ravens, now 17-4 overall. Others in double figures include senior forward William Chesternut (14), senior center Cedric Wade (13) and sophomore forward Jason Williams (11).

Ryan Donaldson led Lutheran Westland (11-10) with 12 points. Sam Patterson added 11. Leading scorer Joe Pruchnik was held to six.

"We pressed them and had a little too much quickness for them," Benedictine coach Andre White said. "But to their credit, Westland played us hard throughout the entire game."

The Ravens jumped out to a 20-5 first-quarter lead and were never headed.

■ MOUNT CARMEL 63, HURON VALLEY 52: Westland Huron Valley Lutheran's season came to a heart-breaking end Tuesday when two free throws with five seconds remaining in overtime swished through the basket.

The loss was even more disheartening for Huron Valley (9-12) because it let a 28-20 halftime lead slip away.

The Hawks struggled in the third quarter and found themselves down 38-35 entering the fourth quarter. Huron Valley rallied to send the game into overtime, but the Comets outscored the Hawks 6-5 in the extra session.

"We struggled in the third quarter after leading by as many as 11," Huron Valley coach Tod Bartholomew said. "It wasn't that we were taking bad shots; the shots just wouldn't go down.

"We had the lead and couldn't finish. We should have won. We gave them the opportunity and they took advantage of it."

Dan Zahn's 16 points and six assists led Huron Valley. Scott Ohlsson added 12 points and seven rebounds.

Maki's game-high 24 points paced the Comets. Steve Yaris poured in four three-pointers en route to 19 points.

Junior guard Lorenzo Guess, who was only three of 11 from the floor during the first half, warmed up along with his teammates. His three-pointer with 3:41 left in the third gave Wayne a lead it would never relinquish, 42-41.

The Zebras, who made 11 of 16 shots from the floor after going nine of 39 in the opening half, outscored Glenn 29-12 in the third quarter.

Guess had 10 points during the surge, while Roland Patterson added three triples. Richard Johnson came off the bench to add six.

Meanwhile, Glenn was hanging tough behind the play of senior guard Albert Jones, who finished with a game-high 33 points, including seven triples.

Wayne gradually pulled away in the final period and padded its lead by making 15 of 20 free throws. The Zebras outscored Glenn in the fourth, 28-22.

"We were able to get a steal, a pass and a layup," Henry said. "Our team defense led to team offense."

Jameel Wooden and Guess each finished with 18 points, while Patterson added 16. Lavelle Guess contributed 11, including nine of 10 from the line, not to mention a huge three-point play near the end of the first half.

Jones, who appeared to be on a personal mission all night long, got scoring support from Jarrett and reserve De'Korey Albright. Each finished with 10.

"I'm not surprised the way they played," Henry said of the 13-7 Rockets. "I threw out the tape from the first time we played after I saw them Friday against (Plymouth) Canton (a 63-60 overtime loss for the WLAA crown).

"They're not even the same team when we played them the first time. You can see they've gone from point A to point B, and that's the mark of good coaching."

Schuette said his team was determined to give Wayne a better fight in the rematch.

"We talked before the game and everybody's expectation was to be the best player they can be," the Glenn coach said. "We were not going to be outhustled or outhearted. We forced them to play their best basketball in the third quarter and they rose to the occasion, and played hard.

"They had some big threes in the third quarter. We left them open and they converted."

The Rockets, who had 22 turnovers to Wayne's 12, were also going against a seasoned and experienced Zebra team which reached the state quarterfinals a year ago.

"They have five people who are so quick, and they anticipate well," Schuette said. "And they don't make silly mistakes. And all of those guys make it tough to move the ball up the court."

Jones, the 6-foot-2 senior, certainly went down swinging in his final game as a Rocket.

"The thing I'll always remember about Albert is his competitiveness," Schuette said. "He goes at you 100 percent.

"He's had his silly and flashy moments, but deep down he gives us 100 percent all the time. There was no quit in any of these guys."

Schoolcraft men's cagers fall to Michigan Christian

Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team fell victim to a three-point shooting onslaught inflicted by Michigan Christian Monday at SC.

SC took a 9-20 record into the Region 12 Basketball Tournament, which started Wednesday in Muskegon. The Ocelots played Cuyahoga CC in their opening game.

Against Michigan Christian, SC trailed 45-42 at the half — only because the Warriors' Ty Clark nailed a three-pointer at the buzzer. They had eight triples in the opening 20 minutes.

And they never slowed up, adding six more in the second half. Clark finished with five treys, scoring 27 points. Jesse Heck scored 14 points, Damon Henry and Myron Brown got 12 apiece, and Paul Robak netted 11.

SC did counter, knocking down nine threes of its own. Dwaun Warmack paced the Ocelots with 18 points, with Tim Burns scoring 17, Dave Pavlak 15, Jason Maschke (from Livonia Franklin) 14 and Rudy Hatfield (Livonia Churchill) 10. Doug Walters and Chris Hebner (Wayne Memorial) added eight points apiece.

Hatfield also grabbed 12 rebounds, with Burns getting nine. Warmack dished out eight assists and Walters six.

Pavlak was the most impressive in the second half, particularly from long range, nailing four threes. Burns wasn't far behind, with three triples and 15 of his points over the final 20 minutes.

The Ocelots had one representative on the all-Eastern Conference team: forward Tim Burns. Matt Paupore, a sophomore for Henry Ford CC from Plymouth Canton HS, was named to the all-state and all-Eastern Conference teams.

Mott's E.J. Haralson was heralded as the conference's player of the year in a vote taken by the conference's coaches. Mott coach Steve Schmidt was named coach of the year after guiding his team to its second-consecutive championship.

Reinke spearheads CC effort at Catholic meet

Well, Detroit Catholic Central compiled 297.5 points in Sunday's Catholic League Meet at Royal Oak Dondero and still finished a distant second place to the Warriors.

Harper Woods Notre Dame was third (183), followed by U-D Jesuit (162.5) and Warren De-LaSalle (96).

The Shamrocks finished first in four events and achieved five state cuts.

Senior Kevin Reinke was a double winner, taking first place in the 100 yard freestyle in a time of 49.72 seconds and the 100 backstroke (56.84).

His preliminary times of 49.30 in the 100 freestyle and 54.94 in the 100 backstroke both were state qualifying efforts in Class A.

Rice flexed its muscles especially in the 200 freestyle, sweeping the top three places, led by champion Chris Sanker (1:49.75).

The other CC champions were sophomore Nick Sosnowski, 200 individual medley (2:03.75), and Jason Markou, 100 butterfly (56.65). Sosnowski's time was a state cut.

Brian Greene of CC was third in the 100 butterfly (50.37).

The Shamrocks took second in the 200 freestyle relay (1:37.15) and second in the 400 freestyle relay behind Greene, J.P. Merchant, Reinke and Sosnowski (3:21.50).

The 400 freestyle time was a state cut.

The 200 medley relay team of Reinke, Paul Connolly, Sosnowski and Greene also qualified for the state meet with a time of 1:42.20.

Plymouth site breaks ground for OHL team

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

HOCKEY

Work is expected to start in Plymouth Township this week on a 4,000-seat hockey arena that will be the home of the Detroit Whalers, formerly the Junior Red Wings.

The arena is being built on a 26-acre parcel of land on Beck Road between M-14 and Five Mile Road.

Work is expected to be completed in time for the 1996 season in late August, according to Peter Karmanos Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Compuware. He is building the arena along with Thomas Thewes and Thomas Mullen.

Karmanos and Thewes own the National Hockey League's Hartford Whalers and are the founders of the Farmington Hills-based Compuware Corp.

The Junior Whalers are a class A hockey team and play in the Ontario Hockey League. It's expected the team will play 33 games a year at the arena.

The arena will contain a small number of private boxes, a restaurant and pro shop. It also will include a second ice surface slightly larger than Olympic size.

The arena will also be the home of the Detroit Ambassadors of the North American Hockey League and seven Compuware-sponsored teams for youths aged 7 to 16. Also, the arena will be used for figure skating, summer hockey schools, tournaments, adult league hockey and public skating.

Compuware has sponsored youth teams since 1974, and since 1984 has managed the Compuware Oak Park Arena.

Former Compuware players in the NHL include Eric Lindros of Philadelphia, Pat LaFontaine of Buffalo, Al Iafrate of Boston and Mike Modano of Dallas.

A total of 13 Compuware players have been drafted in the first round of the NHL draft. Last year, the Ottawa Senators made Whaler defenseman Bryan Berard the first pick overall.

The Junior Whalers were runners up for the Canadian junior championship last season and are in first place this year. The players are 16- to 20-year-olds, some of whom will end up playing in the NHL.

Bear-baiting proposal likely on fall ballot

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Anti-hunting forces are attempting to undermine Michigan bear hunting through a ballot initiative. In all likelihood a proposal to ban baiting and the use of hounds for bear hunting will be on the ballot when the polls open for the presidential election on Nov. 5.

Volunteers representing anti-hunting groups are currently circulating petitions across the state in an effort to put the issue to a public vote. They have until May 29 to gather the 280,000 signatures needed to put the proposal on the ballot.

On the surface, the proposal may not seem like a big deal. After all, it doesn't appear that they're trying to end bear hunting, just limit the ways we hunt bear, right? But the truth is, in Michigan 96 percent of the annual bear harvest comes directly from the use of bait or hounds. In Michigan, it's nearly impossible to "glass" bear from mountain top to mountain top like they do out west, or "drive" bear from cover like they do in some of the eastern states. With the enormous, thick tracts of forests and swamps which make up Michigan's bear country these techniques are non-productive.

A healthy population

Michigan's bear population is in excellent shape with between 8,000 and 10,000 bear residing in the Upper Peninsula and the northern Lower Peninsula. This healthy population is a direct reflection on the superb job the Michigan Department of Natural Resources biologists are doing in managing the black bear. Managed hunting is a big part of that management plan.

"The DNR is committed to managing the black bear resource in the best way possible," said then DNR director Michael Moore in a press release issued last month. "This includes the annual harvest of some animals through hunting to maintain bear numbers at a desired level and to help avoid unwelcome bear encounters. In Michigan, the use of bait and the use of hounds for bear hunting currently play an important role in this effort. In addition, cubs and female bears with cubs are protected from hunting in this states so that many of the young animals will survive and become an important part of the state's future bear population."

Last year, 5,592 hunters killed 1,455 bear for a 26-percent success rate statewide. Approximately 76-percent of that harvest was taken over bait and 20-percent was taken behind hounds. Take away these two time-honored techniques and you'll effectively end bear hunting and the DNR's ability to manage the bear population.

If we lose this battle, what will they come after next? Will it be hunting rabbits, pheasants or ducks with dogs, or maybe bow hunting?

"It's more than an attack on hunting. It's an attempt to do away with scientific wildlife management," said Tom Eurich, president of the Michigan Bear Hunters Association. "I can't think of anything more damaging to all wildlife."

An expensive fight

It will take millions of dollars to win this referendum. Anti-hunting groups will buy television and radio time and use it to try to convince the non-hunting public that our proven scientific management techniques are wrong. We must counter these attacks with equal TV and radio time to spread the truth about hunting and wildlife management. Who do you want managing our wildlife, professional biologists or emotional animal rightists?

Hunting groups have joined forces to fight this initiative. The Michigan Sportsmen's Defense Alliance (MSDA) started raising money last year and recently pledged $100,000 to Citizens for Professional Wildlife Management (CPWM), which is a coalition of groups formed by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. Fund-raising efforts such as raffles and gathering pledges are ongoing. One of the more exciting raffles, sponsored by the Upper Peninsula Sportsmen's Alliance, offers a new log cabin and 40 acres of hunting land as the grand prize. (Call Bill Sutherland at (313) 728-6696 for ticket information).

Get the answers

The Michigan Bear Hunters Association and the Michigan Bear Hunter's Conservation Association are holding their annual convention on Friday and Saturday, March 15-16, at the Troy Marriott. If you want to find out more about this threat and how we can win I encourage you to attend the convention.

Saturday's daytime program features a lineup of speakers who will address all aspects of the initiative including the state of Michigan's bear population; how to communicate a pro-hunting message; details on animal rights attacks across the country and what's being done in Michigan to win this referendum; information about governor Englers Hunting and Fishing Heritage Task Force, formed last year to seek ways to preserve our outdoor pursuits; and much more.

Tickets for Saturday's daytime program, which begins at 9 a.m., are $5 each. Tickets for the Saturday evening banquet, emceed by former Detroit Tiger great and avid hunter Jim Northrup, are $40 each and cover the daytime program, a cocktail hour, a prime rib dinner and a grand auction. On Friday night there will be a special event featuring an open bar, a dinner buffet and a hunting and fishing trip auction. Friday's program will be emceed by Bob Garner, host and producer of the television show Michigan Out-of-Doors. Tickets for Friday's program are also $40. For more information and to order tickets call (313) 878-5845 during the evenings and on weekends.

Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Greniuk-Wioncek

Kristal Greniuk-Wioncek has joined her practice of general dentistry with Donald G. Liddicoat at 29582 Five Mile, one block west of Middlebelt in Livonia.

She has been accepting new and transfer patients since Feb. 1. Saturday and evening hours are available by appointment.

Greniuk-Wioncek graduated from the University of Detroit Mercy, and received numerous awards.

Kenneth B. Jeffery of Canton has joined the professional investment advisory staff of Heber Fuger Wendin Inc., an investment advisory firm in Bloomfield Hills.

In his new role, Jeffery will serve as an investment adviser to the firm's community banks. Most recently, Jeffery headed his own management consulting firm specializing in business analysis, strategic planning, customer service, teamwork and communication development, training systems and change management projects for retail and service companies.

He will also make these services available to Heber Fuger Wendin's financial institutions. Previously, he was learning and development director and a consultant to Amoco Oil Company. He attained an MBA in finance and economics as well as bachelor's degrees from the University of Michigan. He and his family live in Canton.

The Michigan Restaurant Association has named six new members to its board of directors. Selected from a statewide field of restaurant industry candidates, nominees were chosen based on their commitment and experience in the hospitality industry as well as their dedication to the development of Michigan's hospitality industry.

The newly elected board members are: Gail Farrell, partner of H&H Restaurants, Lansing; George Goulson, senior vice president of development, A&W Restaurants, Livonia; Audrey Jaggi, corporate secretary, Audie's Restaurant, Mackinaw City; Charles H. Liu, president of Ching Tao, Inc., Clinton Township; Thomas Miller, of Treasure Island Restaurant and Conference Center, Saginaw; and Richard D. Scott, owner, Scotty's, Ludington.

Randy T. Redmond of Detroit Financial Group has recently earned his chartered life underwriter, chartered financial consultant and licensed insurance counselor designations.

The designations are awarded by the American College after several years of experience and testing in the areas of law, insurance and the internal revenue code. In addition, ethical requirements must be met.

Redmond is a Million Dollar Round Table Member who specializes in the areas of estate, business and accumulation planning. He is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and lives in Canton with his wife, Michelle, and their three daughters, Kali, Erica, and Rachel.

Later that year, she was named manager of employee communications at Chevrolet-Pontiac-GM of Canada Group and subsequently held other public affairs jobs within the group. In 1988, Sarris was appointed manager of community relations at New United Motor Manufacturing Inc. (NUMMI), a GM-Toyota joint venture at Fremont, Calif. She moved to the Technical Staffs Group in Warren in 1991 as director of organizational and employee development, communications and Quality Network.

Most recently, she served as director of communications for the GM Technical Center, managing communications for GM's Vehicle Development and Technical Operations group. Sarris has a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan. Prior to joining GM, she taught in the Livonia Public Schools and worked at the Michigan Department of Education. Sarris is a member of the Detroit College of Business Foundation. Previously, she was a member of the Fremont (Calif.) Chamber of Commerce and the Fremont (Calif.) Child Care Committee.

Noppe

Terrie S. Noppe has been promoted from assistant vice president-cash management sales representative III to vice president-cash management sales representative III of First of America Bank-Michigan.

Noppe began her career in 1993 as assistant vice president-cash management sales representative. She is a member of the Detroit Treasury Management Association and the Treasury Management Association. She is also a certified cash manager. She lives in Livonia.

First of America Bank Corp., headquartered in Livonia, is a $23 billion bank holding company.

Glenn R. Davis, a 27-year Fruehauf veteran, has been named branch manager of Fruehauf's Detroit branch.

In his new position, he will direct local sales efforts for Fruehauf's line of truck-trailers, parts and service area branch. This facility, at 38600 Ford Road in Westland, is one of 31 company-owned-and-operated branches and is part of the North American truck-trailer industry's largest customer service network.

Most recently, Davis was service and parts manager for the trailer maker's Detroit branch. Beginning his career with Fruehauf at the Detroit branch in 1969, Davis has held various management positions there, including regional service manager — Midwest region. He replaces Bill Schmidt, who retired recently after 40 years with Fruehauf.

A native of Detroit, Davis attended Michigan State University in East Lansing. He is a member of the Michigan Trucking Association and the Aggregate Carriers Association.

Loiselle & Herriman, a Plymouth-based firm specializing in condominium management and accounting services, has named Beverly A. Ellis to a newly created position of operations manager.

Ellis was hired in June 1995 and has since been given responsibility for managing office staff, developing new service standards and implementing the firm's overall strategic plan.

Prior to joining Loiselle & Herriman, Ellis was executive assistant of Michigan Association of Community Bankers in East Lansing, and vice president of regional operations of Michigan National Bank in Lansing. Ellis lives in Plymouth Township with her husband, Michael M. Ellis. She is active in and a past board member of Plymouth Newcomers.

Henry Ford system gets $12,000 donation for Ukrainian hospital

The Regional Clinical Hospital in the Ukrainian city of L'viv will soon receive a desperately needed "mobile isolette" to carry premature and seriously ill newborns from around the region to the hospital.

The purchase of the $12,000 isolette, or infant transporter, which provides oxygen and warmth to newborns, was made possible by the Ukrainian Village Corp., the operating arm of the Ukrainian Village senior housing center in Warren. It presented a $12,000 check last month to the Henry Ford Health System/L'viv Oblast Clinical Hospital Partnership program.

For more than three years, the Ukrainian Village Corp. has followed the partnership, established to modernize medical care at the Regional Clinical Hospital, which is short of medical equipment and supplies.

Henry Ford's Dr. Sudhakar Ezhuthachan, neonatology division head, and clinical nurse specialist Christine Newman coordinated the neonatology portion of the partnership. Newman is a Livonia resident.

"Our attempts to help our friends in the Ukraine would fail if not for the backing of the Ukrainian community and other friends of this project," Ezhuthachan said. "We are so grateful for all their support."

Members of the Ukrainian Village Corp., comprised mainly of elderly Ukrainian-Americans, wanted to participate in the program, because it helps their compatriots in the former Soviet Republic, said Stephen Wichar, president of the Ukrainian Village Corp.

Ezhuthachan said an infant transporter is vital because of the regional hospital's neonatal unit treats premature and seriously ill newborns from miles around the city of 600,000.

Begun in 1993, Henry Ford Hospital's partnership with the Regional Clinical Hospital is sponsored by the American International Health Alliance through funding from the U.S. Agency for International Development.

For more information, contact Al Case, assistant vice president, Network Hospital Relations, Henry Ford Health Systems, at (313) 876-8485.

M-Care, the Ann Arbor-based managed care organization designed by the University of Michigan, recently filled two professional benefit consultant positions.

Robin Pfeiffer will be responsible for M-Care sales and service in a territory including parts of Genesee, Macomb, Lapeer, Oakland, Shiawassee, St. Clair and Wayne counties. Prior to joining M-Care, he was staff assistant to Democratic Congressman Dale Kildee, a secondary education teacher, and a partner and vice president in private consulting.

Pfeiffer, who graduated with honors from the University of Michigan, also served with the U.S. Army on active duty and in the National Guard.

Christine M. Farah will be responsible for sales and service efforts in parts of Macomb, Oakland, St. Clair and Wayne counties.

Prior to joining the organization, she spent five years in the health insurance industry recruiting, training and servicing agents in the sale of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan and Blue Care Network products. She also worked in the life insurance and financial services industries.

M-Care has more than 3,000 physicians and 40 hospitals in its network. It currently offers HMO, point of service and Medicaid health plans and is developing a Medicare plan.

Dr. Michael S. Meininger recently joined northwest Detroit's Grace Hospital Department of Surgery. This, following a fellowship at the Reconstructive Surgery Foundation under Dr. Carl Hartrampf, the originator of the living tissue breast reconstruction procedure in Atlanta. Meininger is one of 20 in the nation to be trained by Hartrampf in living tissue breast reconstruction and microvascular surgery.

Meininger received his medical degree from University of Cincinnati and his residency in general surgery was completed at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. He lives in Royal Oak.

Dr. Steven C. Marks was recently appointed chief of the Department of Otolaryngology at Grace Hospital. He joins the hospital after serving as assistant chief of service at Johns Hopkins University.

Marks received his medical degree from Johns Hopkins in Baltimore and completed his residency in general surgery and otolaryngology/head and neck surgery. He is a resident of Troy.

BOOK BREAK

ESTHER LITTMANN

Some people spend more time thinking about what kind of pizza to order than they do about investing $10,000 in a touted stock.

Strikes home, doesn't it? It's a comment that Warren Buffet or Peter Lynch could have made but didn't. These are the words of 17-year-old Matt Seto who has already appeared on the front page of the Wall Street Journal (March 1994) for creating a private mutual fund that gained 38 percent in 1993, outperforming 90 percent of all funds in its category.

The Troy teenager's latest achievement is a book, co-authored by Steven Levingston, called "The Whiz Kids of Wall Street's Investment Guide" (William Morrow, 1996, $22). In a style both lucid and entertaining, the author insists that picking a good stock isn't magic but common sense compounded by dedication.

The product of his Chinese parents' Confucian philosophy and solid Midwestern values, Seto approaches investment with three principles in mind: 1) education, 2) independent thinking and 3) logic. In his book, our young guide leads us through the steps he takes when selecting a good stock.

Don't depend on the advice of your friends or your broker, the author insists. Research the stock yourself. The library is full of informative sources such as "Value Line" and "Standard and Poor's Stock Reports." Then, make a decision based on the numbers: the company's debt, inventory level, cash flow, book value and price-earnings ratio. Seto defines his terms and explains each process in layman's language, referring to visuals such as an annotated page from "Value Line."

Seto also explodes what he considers the diversification myth. Those who diversify, he claims, lack confidence in their ability to pick stocks. But "the more effort you put into assessing each stock pick, the more confident you will be about it." The slogan he lives by is "Buy the best, forget the rest."

What is so astounding is that the young man speaks from a wealth of experience. After all, he began his reading, analysis and assessment eight years ago when the stock market crashed in 1987. At the time, he was 9 years old.

Although the whiz kid of Wall Street doesn't invest in mutual funds — he created his own, remember? — he admits that "a professional at the wheel," one who does the research you can't do, will be helpful to people with time constraints. But even then, Seto cautions, it's important to do your homework. Identify your goals, read relevant publications, even the fund's prospectus before making a selection.

Matt Seto's "Investment Guide" is both humbling and inspirational. Older readers will want to emulate him and will find anecdotes describing his financial encounters with Best Buy, Blockbuster and American Express fascinating reading.

Working with color

Spring brings out the home decorator in all of us. Smudges on the wall, dull hues, and outdated color schemes cry out for home improvement. But what if we're on a budget? What if we have neither much time nor money to invest? Then color is the answer, writes Virginia Carr, interior designer, local TV and radio color consultant and newspaper columnist ("Ask the Color Wizard").

Color can alter the perception of size, create a mood, make us feel either warm or cool, and camouflage the objectionable — all at reasonable cost. To help people coordinate their color scheme, Carr has written "Making Color Work" (Smart Home Moves Press, $15.95). It's chock full of practical advice on how to colorize the home, both inside and out. A workbook section replete with graph paper for floor plans and furniture templates helps the do-it-yourself decorator plan every inch of the house. Spring is on the way. "Making Color Work" advances the timetable.

Poets to visit Cranbrook

The second annual "In Seed Time — The William and Nancy Beckwith Memorial Reading" will take place 2:30 p.m. Sunday, March 17, in the deSalle Auditorium at Cranbrook Art Museum, 1221 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills.

Live Irish music and poetry will be featured. Admission is free with no seats reserved. Call (810) 335-0021 for information.

With renowned poets and musicians from Ireland and America, "In Seed Time" should be an unforgettable afternoon for those looking for "authenticity" or just fun.

Irish poet and playwright Paula Meehan will come from her home in Dublin for the event. She is the author of four books of poetry, most recently "Pillow Talk" (1994). In her native Ireland, a number of her poems have been choreographed and set to music. She has also collaborated with visual artists in creating multimedia presentations.

Irish-American poet and writer Thomas Lynch will also be featured. He lives most of the year in Milford, where he is a funeral director, and spends part of the year in Ireland, where he has restored his family's ancestral cottage. The author of two collections of poetry, "Skating with Heather Grace" (1987) and "Grimalkin & Other Poems" (1994), Lynch has published poems and essays in The New Yorker, The Paris Review, The London Review of Books, Harper's and other leading periodicals.

The Ann Arbor Irish Ensemble will present traditional Irish music, with fiddle, guitar, tin whistle and bodhram (the Irish handheld drum).

Poet, essayist and critic Richard Tillinghast of Ann Arbor, who lived for a year in Ireland and spends part of the summer writing, giving readings and teaching there, will be master of ceremonies. Tillinghast and famed Irish poet and writer Eilean Ni Chuilleanain launched the "In Seed Time" series in 1995.

Bookwoman of Year names sought

The Women's National Book Association, Detroit Chapter, is seeking nominations for its 1996 Bookwoman of the Year Award.

This award honors Michigan women who have made significant or outstanding contributions to libraries, publishing, reading or writing. The recipient will be honored at the chapter's annual meeting scheduled for May.

Nomination forms may be requested from Lois VanStipdonk at (313) 721-1185. Or, a letter of nomination citing the nominee's position, affiliation and accomplishments may be mailed to VanStipdonk at 3432 Westridge Ct., Wayne 48184. Nominations must be received by Saturday, April 20.

Previous awardees have been chosen for accomplishments such as instituting the Detroit Free Press holiday Gift of Books program, the Seedlings Braille Books for Children, lifetime achievement in serving libraries and founding the Detroit Black Writers' Guild.

Call of the wild

It's a jungle in here: Cocooning baby boomers are spicing up their homes with wild accessories sure to make the staunchest couch potato sit up and take note. Chase offers a variety of safari-inspired fine porcelain china patterns that will ensure your next dinner party is a roaring good time. In addition to setting an exceptional table, owners of Chase china are supporting a worthy cause. A portion of all proceeds from the dinnerware are donated to the Chase Wildlife Foundation. So as Lou Reed suggested in song, it's time to "take a walk on the wild side." Available at Jules R. Schubot Jewelers in Troy, the china retails for $65 to $250. Call (810) 649-1122.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

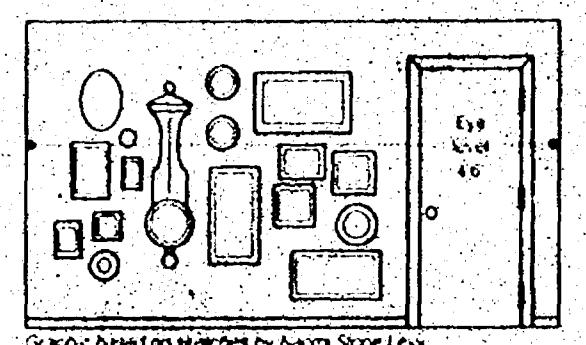
NAOMI STONE LEVY

Where, why and how we decorate our walls will display the importance of our crowning glory. Whether your collection of art work is prodigious or innocuous, putting it in its proper perspective speaks volumes about you.

Nothing looks as amateurish as a very small painting (even if it is an authentic Vincent van Gogh) that is lost on a very large wall. If you are trying to feature that single magnificent work it needs to be hung in a smaller space. One very large painting or its equivalent should occupy that large wall. If you don't own one large painting or print, this is the time to consider a group of lesser acquisitions.

Do you own a collection of silhouettes; perhaps cutouts of your own or family profiles? Do you own a banjo clock or a barometer? All of these could comprise an inordinate grouping, whereas they have no punch when scattered "hit or miss" throughout several rooms and hallways. Small prints or paintings should find their home; I envision (here is what I think is an imaginative spatial setup.



Graphic based on sketches by Naomi Stone Levy

Grouping

The configuration of this group is critical to its success. Place the banjo clock or barometer slightly off-center and then align several small framed bits and pieces at the smaller end of the wall. Larger pictures or paintings will be better on the opposite, or larger side of the clock.

If this vertical arrangement meets your standard be certain that the height is also correct. The horizontal center should be at eye level, approximately four feet six inches from the floor, not necessarily in a rigid straight line, with suitable items above and below. Determine the original line at the outset. Some time ago in a previous column I suggested using the floor below your intended collection to achieve a final layout before hammering in the nails. Measure carefully, don't trust to luck. (See illustration.)

In this balance it is important to consider color. Black and white seems lighter in scale than strong color; therefore striking paintings and prints require more space around them. To counterbalance the aforementioned wall configuration another composition has rigid and equalized possibilities.

Variety

Do you own a set of Audubon prints? If necessary, reframe them appropriately. If you wish to fill a larger space it behooves you to substantially enlarge the matts before selecting the frames. The matt might even be deemed out of proportion to the size of the print, but be ever more effective. My recommendation is that the matts be a neutral color, preferably off-white.

I might mention any other set of prints you own, whether in color, or even a set of small black and white photographs. Monographs, lithographs and woodblocks, all of which comprise great collecting, will have a singular esthetic effect and will resonate your good taste.

Other eclectic collectibles worthy of display are cross stitch samplers and fracturs. Early American or Country French devotees will be appreciative of their presence. A singular colorful quilt, whether new or old, makes a delightful wallhanging. The Amish produce artful new examples. "Square within a square" designs are awesome.

In the 16th century magnificent tapestries served two functions: They were decorative of course, but they also were conducive to adding warmth to the unheated room. In the 20th century a dazzling contemporary tapestry will enhance your wall. Search one out in local craft shops.

Wall sculptures, constructions and plaster casts would diversity your wall decor. Stained glass, possibly an old church window, will lend wondrous color to the area. If you are enterprising you might even uncover a Frank Lloyd Wright window for a prodigious 1920s look. Even an antique framed mirror has value in a wall setup. Now proceed to hang the rest of your treasures.

Lighting

Many months ago I devoted an entire column to lighting. At that time I didn't mention illumination of collectibles. In another era there existed "over painting" lights. The ugly cord always hung below and the overall effect was horrible.

In our time, at worst, we can resort to several spot strip lights that are ceiling mounted and focus directly on our treasures, lending them the importance they deserve. At best we can install hi-hats with directional focus or bracket lights that are wall-mounted and also focus on the items displayed. A visit to a Michigan Chandelier showroom will explain all of the above. Very important!

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Posed group portraits can appear stiff and boring and many times won't result in relaxed, spontaneous expressions. Here's a new way to take portraits that is fun and exciting for all and will in all likelihood produce photographs that will capture the fleeting expressions so often elusive when people are posed.

Whether it's just two subjects or an entire family, you'll get great results that everyone will enjoy and treasure.

Here's what Dave did and what you can easily do, too. In his studio, he placed a chair in the center of the composition. I and all family members gathered around the chair and Dave began to count to five. His instructions were that during his count, we were to run quickly around the chair (similar to playing "musical chairs") and then when he said "freeze," we were to do just that and look at the camera! At that instant, he would snap the shutter.

See NAGLER, 7D

Some points to remember:

- Make sure you have enough space in the viewfinder so that no faces are "cut off" in all the excitement.
- Use an aperture small enough so that depth-of-field is adequate and no one appears out of focus.
- If indoors using flash as Dave did, you'll easily freeze the action. If outdoors, use a shutter speed fast enough to eliminate any movement.
- Remind everyone that on "freeze," they should be able to see the camera. If all your subjects can see the camera, then the lens will see them and no one's face is blocked.

Try Dave's idea the next time you're snapping the kids or other family members or friends. Even try it at a party. Think of all the fun everyone will have and of the exciting pictures you'll be able to produce!

Leonard to speak at luncheon

Join the city of Southfield's Cultural Arts Division in welcoming area writer Elmore Leonard to the Author's Luncheon Series 11:30 a.m. Sunday, May 5, at the Southfield Radisson Hotel.

This special afternoon will feature a lively lecture from western/mystery writer Leonard, crowned "the best American writer of crime fiction alive" by Newsweek magazine. Come discover how Leonard comes up with his wonderfully messed up characters and intricate storylines that have been described as so real and compassionate that "the reader forgets that it is fiction."

Admission is $15 for the luncheon and lecture, $5 for the lecture only. Call (810) 424-9039 for reservations or information.

The author has gained much fame in the past few months with the release of his 32nd novel, "Riding the Rap," as well as the release of the movie "Get Shorty," based on his book by the same name. The movie was a smash featuring John Travolta, Danny DeVito and Gene Hackman.

MODELS PORTRAY LIVED-IN FEELING

STORY BY DOUG FUNKE · STAFF WRITER

"If a model is done properly, prospects visually move in," said Laurie Frankel, vice president of sales and marketing for the Herman Frankel Organization in West Bloomfield. "The whole idea is to envision family lifestyles in the home."

Builders don't want prospective buyers to get so enraptured with furnishings, wall treatments and accessories that the model, itself, becomes a secondary attraction.

"One of the things a builder always specifies is they don't want us to make items so beautiful that people forget walking through," said Julie Baba, A.S.I.D., an interior designer with Gorman's Studio in Southfield.

"We tell designers who the market is," Frankel said. "We tell them who the family is and they decorate around it."

"You work on a precise location, price point and the general attitude of that area," Lucas said. "That will dictate the attitude of the house."

"You can buy a house in Novi for $250,000 and a house for $350,000. That jump will create a different homebuyer. I don't want to put something in too elaborate for someone in a $150,000 house," Lucas said.

"In a family room with an appeal to a younger group, sports-type things, things like golf clubs in the corner looks like you just walked in from outside," Baba said.

"A lot of people have animals. You might want to do something to introduce an animal theme – maybe photographs or put down a dog dish," she said.

"Putting out a basket with a lot of yarn, knitting needles gives a lived-in touch, a family touch," Baba said "I've done collection of photographs, frames on the wall and tables, maybe even put a camera out in the den or bedroom."

"What a customer wants to see is function and easy maintenance of a home," she said.

"Other things I do is put a New York Times out with a pair of glasses in the family room and fill up a bowl with M&Ms," Lucas said.

Furniture is placed so that prospects can measure what they already have to room sizes in the model. It's important that visitors can move freely.

"I want people to walk into a room and gaze upon it, look at moldings, look at corners," Lucas said. "It's important that a house looks like it will for a homeowner, not a vignette for a furniture store."

Baba concurs.

"Basically, the best thing we can do is coordinate a house so it has a certain flow to it. Visitors feel comfortable when colors don't jar. That's why we use a lot of mirroring to create open space."

Designers get their inspiration from a variety of places, said Steve Teich, A.S.I.D. and a principal with Teich-Davis Interiors in Royal Oak.

"We get ideas from trade shows, magazines, looking at other designs we see around town. We're all getting ideas from one another. It's a pretty compatible community," Teich said.

Because all of the furnishings in a model are purchased for a builder by a designer, it's important that they're neutral in color and can be used again and again, Frankel said.

"You mix in each room," she said. "You might have traditional upholstery with a contemporary cocktail table and some real modern art. You might do all contemporary and put in a couple of antiques to give it that blend."

"The greatest trend I see," Teich said, "whether contemporary or traditional is the tendency to go to the more classical look. Something that's not out of style in five years. Just well-made, simpler-line furniture."

Cost always is a factor.

"If you do the whole house with full appointments, it can easily run $30,000 to $50,000," Baba said. "They're buying draperies, wallpaper, not just furniture."

"The least expensive job I had was several thousand dollars," Lucas said. "It was more painting, wallcovering, a face lift to a spec model, no furnishings. A four bedroom colonial or two bedroom condo can run maybe $30,000, $40,000."

"We want them to be real livable and distinctive," Frankel said. "But not too distinctive."

Nursery specializes in tree peony hybrid

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

There are many horticultural businesses in Michigan, some of which specialize in the unusual or one particular type of plant.

Scott Reath of Reath's Nursery (County Road 577, N-195, Vulcan, Mich. 49892; phone (906) 563-9777; catalog, $1) specializes in herbaceous and tree peonies. Many of Reath's plants were hybridized by David Reath, Scott's father, who began hybridizing in 1961.

The plants are propagated and raised on this nursery, in zone 4, and are very winter-hardy. Their herbaceous varieties need no support and grow from 18 inches to five feet; tree peonies range in height from one to six feet. The spectacular blooms glow in a variety of colors.

Plan a sunny place for a peony this spring by incorporating manure into the ground two to three feet deep. They ship their plants in September — fall is the best time to plant them in well-drained fertile soil with a pH of 6 to 7.2. Each herbaceous plant sold is a large division with from three to five eyes.

"Peonies love a fertile soil and like summer dryness," Reath said. "As long as it rains every once in a while, no watering is necessary."

Herbaceous peonies naturally die down to the ground and Reath recommends cutting them to two inches of the ground after it is frozen. A winter mulch of pine or other bark mulch should be applied two inches deep, especially if they are in a cold pocket in the garden. For large blooms remove side buds; for landscape purposes leave them.

The buds vary with the variety, some of which are Faith Fenton, pink; Little Red Gem, with gray-green foliage; Rozella, double pink; or White Frost, with very white fragrant blooms.

Tree peonies are very long-lived and are kept in the nursery for four to five years before being sold. There is a lot of difference between flower forms and shapes. Some to try are Age of Gold, good for beginners; High Noon, sometimes reblooms; or Iphigenia, a single red. They only need a minimum amount of pruning. Remove old brown leaves as they occur and in eight years old stems should be cut out and then again every five years.

Kiwis

Want to grow a Kiwi vine? Hartmann's Plantation, Grand Junction, sells only wholesale, but the information company vice president Daniel Hartmann shared with me will help home gardeners who want to learn how to grow and care for the vines.

Some Kiwis are now winter-hearty; tests have been conducted in northern climates where they survived 25 degrees Fahrenheit below zero temperature.

Each cultivar has a different flavor, depending on how ripe the fruits are when harvested.

"The best flavor comes out of the fruits when they are left on the vine and receive cool nights in the autumn, since harvesting in Michigan occurs in late August for the first ripe fruit; but the best fruits will ripen through September," Hartmann said.

In Michigan the vines are planted in the spring five feet apart, using a single wire trellis. A mature plant can produce about 100 pounds of fruit, so the support has to be strong. A grower or gardener often develops a support system to suit his or her needs.

It is necessary to grow both species of Kiwis to realize fruit. One male plant will take care of six females. They like a sunny location and protection from the wind. They will grow in most any kind of soil, although organic matter should be incorporated into the planting hole. Good drainage is essential. These vines produce pretty white clematis-like flowers before they set fruit and don't need a lot of care, just fertilizer twice a year and pruning. They are pruned similarly to grapevines and are best trained to a single main trunk, with two permanent lateral side branches.

Some female vines for this area are Anna, Cordifolia or Geneva — males, Arctic Beauty or Number 1971. Your nurseryman can recommend suitable Kiwi varieties for your garden. It takes several years for these vines to produce, but they are pretty and will add to the landscape before the fruits can be enjoyed.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- Clean your garden tools if you failed to do so last fall.
- Flexible foam plastic tubing will cover metal handles on garden carts and be more comfortable than the cold metal on your hands.
- Remember where wild violets grew last summer? Dig up a chunk of frozen sod from the area and plant it in a broad container, keep it constantly moist and wait for bloom.
- Walk your grounds, draw and plan, study books and try something new in the garden this year.
- Build a trellis or other structure to hide an unsightly view, then plant a flowering vine to add beauty to an otherwise eyesore.

WHAT'S THE LATEST?

Presently, personal preference influences the selection of cabinetry more than any trend involving a particular period or style. If there is a look that is gaining in popularity, it is the influence of Shaker and Arts and Crafts. Interest in these two styles is based on a shared belief in honest styling and materials that are distinctly American. Each showcases the workmanship, quality and individuality that many now deem important. In addition, both Shaker and Arts and Crafts styles integrate well with other areas of the home in open designs. Arts and Crafts can be seen as the logical progression from the country style of cabinetry, utilizing stained glass and ceramic mosaics to introduce accessory colors. In terms of overall design, the trend is toward grilled units that vary in depth, width, and color to impart a sense of freestanding furniture to the kitchen in an attempt to make it look like other living areas of the home.

The design professionals at MODERN KITCHEN & BATH recognize that each customer has specific tastes and budget requirements. Our goal is to help you create a kitchen that suits your tastes and is ergonomically functional. Our Amera finely crafted contemporary and traditional cabinetry help meet your particular use and organizational requirements. No matter what your kitchen expectations are, from office and family center, to traditional or gourmet food preparation, your Amera kitchen will always be the useful and beautiful room you planned. Visit our showroom at 819 E. Fourth Street, Royal Oak, or call us at (810) 546-0660 for craftsmanship and service.

HINT: The increasing popularity of glass doors and such architectural elements as pilasters in kitchen cabinetry also underlines the trend toward distinctive design.

Make miniatures

In daylong workshops Friday-Saturday, May 10-11, Bill Lankford of Schererville, Ind., will cover the making of a miniature tree, built on a scale of one inch to the actual foot. The tree shelters a clubhouse in its branches and a lemonade stand on the ground. Lankford's work is displayed in important miniature museums nationwide.

Criss Goad of Birmingham, owner of Miniature Makers' Workshop at 4515 N. Woodward, offers a free spring brochure with details about classes, including Lankford's. The brochure describes sessions beginning March 9 and ending June 15. It is available by calling (810) 549-0633 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

Classes conducted by Sue Jaques of Farmington Hills include creation of a woven wicker Easter basket in a session Saturday, March 30, with children welcome. Other Jaques classes cover a long wicker planter, geraniums and a Victorian wicker dressing table and stool. Her instruction on a Victorian wicker crib Saturdays, June 8 and 15, is the first in a series on furnishings for the dollhouse nursery.

Subjects for the Saturday classes of Gail Braman of Farmington Hills are a table and bench March 23, when children are welcome, and a highback settle bench April 27.

Criss Goad will be instructor for classes on dollhouse exteriors, interior decorating and electrical wiring and a dollhouse wiring workshop. Tuition prices vary according to class length and materials furnished. Reservations for classes should be made a minimum of two weeks in advance.

LET'S REMODEL

Remodeling ugly bathrooms can be exciting

Q: We are considering remodeling a small bath in our 1956 ranch. We need ideas for adding space to the bathroom and any considerations we might want to give to design options. In addition, what type of questions should I ask a tile installer for totally redoing the tile?

A:If your bathroom is like many, commonly found in the ranch homes built in the 1950's era, sea-foam green tile running up the walls, peach and black countertops, or love marigold colored fixtures, then I'm sure it's been at the top of your "it's gotta go" list ever since you moved in. I find it amusing that so many prospective clients I meet tell me that their bathroom must be the ugliest bathroon I've ever encountered. Well I've seen my share and they all seem to have their own unique charm (or lack thereof).

On the up side, with all the new products on the market today remodeling a bathroom can be one of the most exciting rooms in your home to remodel! Solid surface countertops, numerous sizes and styles of ceramic tile, coordinating bathroom fixture ensembles, the selections and availability have vastly improved over the years.

The planning of your bathroom is a crucial step in the remodeling process. A bathroom can be one of the most expensive rooms in your home to remodel, so establish some budget guidelines and determine to what extent you wish to take this project first. For example you are indicating a need for increased space to your bathroom. This can be accomplished a couple of ways. First,if it is storage space you are looking for, consider increasing the amount of cabinetry in your bathroom. Also make them more accessible, cabinets with roll-out trays and drawers seem to give better storage than doors. Possibly add a tall linen cabinet or a wall cabinet over the toilet.

The only drawback here could be that because of tight clearances you might have to purchase custom cabinetry with reduced depths or special widths to fit some areas. This still might be more economical than some of your other options.

In addition to adding cabinetry, lack of counter-top space is a common problem. In many, bathrooms that we remodel, we often continue the countertop from the vanity over the toilet at a reduced depth, which offers approximately, 3 linear feet of added countertop space. This also gives us an opportunity, to add a full mirror over the countertops that gives the illusion of a larger bathroom,. Another way to give this illusion is to use recessed lighting, which concealed in the ceiling, does not close in a room like a bulky light bar or fixture.

If it is actual physical space that you are looking to gain, our options would be to add an addition off the bathroom or to steal some space from an adjacent room or closet. My experience has been that you don't have to drastically increase the square footage of a bathroom to improve the layout; in many cases gaining the area of a closet is sufficient. Although, if you are doing your own design you should consider how this will affect the room you are borrowing space from. If you take over a bedroom closet, I would suggest adding a closet in this room to replac it. In any case, once you figure out how to gain the space you need, and if you are able to keep the plumbing fixtures in the same location, your new layout should come together quite easily. In some cases though you may have to move the location of a toilet or tub to give you the layout you desire. If you are considering a contractor, a good design/build firm can provide you with the design layout as well as the materials and labor to complete all phases of the bathroom remodel.

MARTY FIGLEY

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

There aren't too many people who can claim a 50-year membership in an organization, but Ethel Rogalski of Redford can. 1995 marked her golden anniversary year as a member of the Detroit Rose Society, and what an active member she has been!

Ethel and her late husband attended their first rose show in 1945 at the Goodwill Industries in Detroit, and admired the 50 or so large roses on display.

"We thought we had superior bloom in our garden," she said.

At that time they had 50 rose bushes of different varieties in their yard. Many were "old-timers" such as hybrid teas, gradifloras and shrubs, with names such as "Chrysler Imperial," "Mardi Gras," "Confidence," "First Love" and "Showgirl."

Joining the society wasn't just a matter of filling out an application and paying the dues. Their garden was inspected to see if they qualified. They did, and their membership card reads June 1945.

Starting out

Their first rose garden was in Dearborn. Later they moved to Dearborn Heights and transplanted all the roses to the new yard, without losing any of them. When I asked how they had achieved this, she said they kept their fingers crossed, and the property had been a horse ranch — "best for roses."

When Ethel first joined the DRS, they did everything by the book and although they won several ribbons (they began displaying in rose shows right away), they felt that "nothing worked." They soon started experimenting on their own and became quite successful.

For instance, instead of buying one bush, they bought three, planted them in different sites in the yard to find out where that rose grew best and then transplanted the other two with the one that excelled.

They also watered the seven 50-foot beds (each contained 50 roses) with soaker hoses, connecting them with a pipe so they could water the beds at the same time. The water was turned on at night and off in the morning.

In the fall the roses were hilled and covered with bean baskets. No leaves were used. Soon other members of the DRS did the same.

They also tired of using chemicals and experimented with organic practices. In November they bought cow manure from a farmer and covered all the beds. Other than needing to use specific chemicals for specific problems such as black spot and mildew, they followed organic procedures.

"Most roses now are almost disease resistant."

Soon they added another bed of miniature roses, which they first saw around 1955 at a garden show in Chicago. They bought three plants and shared one with another rosarian. They all thrived and two years later the Rogalskis introduced them to the DRS membership. Now these roses are very popular.

"When we first joined DRS all the members took three or four pails of roses and often thousands of blooms were shown at a show. There wasn't a rose show we didn't miss.

"After we had been members for five or six years, we ate, drank and slept roses."

Keeping busy

Ethel has kept busy through all these years. She said that as the flowers in their gardens started to bloom in the season she began on one bed of roses, removing the spent blooms, and continued through the garden each day of the week. By the next Monday she had to start all over again and continue this necessary chore into late fall.

She also was the newsletter editor and the historian of the DRS and has received many of their awards, including the Ernest Schoensee Memorial Award, the highest honor given by them. She is also a life member in that society.

As the "rose career" waned, members of the society helped prune the 650 roses growing in the garden to get it ready for summer. Three years ago as she planned her move into a condominium she offered her roses to DRS members, who in a couple of weeks took all but 50 bushes, climbers and miniatures. The father of the new house owner was "thrilled to death" to find a rose garden already established.

Ethel shared her roses during all those years by placing two bouquets each Sunday on the altar of St. James United Church of Christ in Dearborn.

Once a rosarian, always a rosarian, Ethel still grows roses. She hangs two miniature roses on the lamppost near her condominium door and trains them to cascade over the pots.

"This spring they will be 2 years old and will be more full and plush, more of a grown plant."

Seasonal work

The roses grow in plastic pots in a sunny spot where they are watered and fed with a complete fertilizer the first of May, June, July and August. She follows the organic principles as in the past.

For winter care, around Nov. 15 she digs holes for the two roses in a protected area against a building and sinks each pot to its rim, then cuts off some stems and ties the rest together. She then mounds the soil over the pots, covers all with a rose cone and puts a brick on the cones to hold them in place.

Ethel watches the weather and in the spring when it is warm enough she digs the roses up, cleans the soil and adds more if necessary, and grooms the plants.

Usually there is enough moisture in the pot from its winter rest, so she lets the soil dry out before watering and waits to begin fertilizing in May.

"Before planting, always soak new bushes for at least a week in a pail of water to which fertilizer has been added.

"It takes a rose bush two years before you know what it will do, so don't give up."

Activities

DRS members who live in Birmingham, Westland, Clarkston, Taylor, Centerline, Warren and other nearby cities now number around 250.

Rose shows take place twice a year, in the spring and fall. The 1996 Spring Show will be June 15-16 at Universal Mall, Warren; the Fall Show Sept. 14-15 at Laurel Park Place, Livonia. Mark your calendars now!

In June 1996 the DRS, organized in 1930, will celebrate its 66th year. The society is the oldest in Michigan and first met at the Naval Armory on Belle Isle. Eleven members comprised its roster. The first rose show was at the Naval Armory in 1931.

For many years the DRS maintained the rose garden at Fairlane in Dearborn, and the Wayne County Extension Service rose garden. Now the society's efforts are concentrated on the rose gardens at Presbyterian Village, Redford.

General meetings take place at the Pleasant Ridge Community Center, Pleasant Ridge. For information, call Diane at (810) 649-6161 or Bruce at (313) 563-5691.

Workbench Furniture offering design services

Local Workbench Furniture officials have announced the introduction of design services for customers.

"This is something we've wanted to offer for some time now," said Kendra Craig, regional manager for Workbench. "It seems more and more of our customers are inquiring about design services, especially when they're buying furnishings for an entire rooom, such as the living or dining room."

Design services are available at all four Michigan Workbench Furniture stores in Birmingham, Rochester Hills, Novi and Ann Arbor.

The design services are managed and conducted by Warren Lewis, who has been the display manager at Workbench Furniture for more than 12 years. Lewis has also held design positions with Hudson's and Tyner Furniture in the Ann Arbor area. He earned his degree from the New York School of Interior Design. In all, Lewis brings more than 30 years of design experience to his new post with Workbench.

Workbench offers three levels of service, two of which are based on the amount of a furniture purchase.

The Basic Design Service, for purchases of $1,000 or more, includes a one-hour in-home consultation with the Workbench designer, who will help with decisions on sizes, colors and basic layouts.

Listings rebound: March usually brings an increase in houses available for sale from the relatively slow months of January and February.

Warmer weather will bring more sales

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Housing sales should climb to their usual spring and summer levels. So price your house properly: You want a price high enough for you get what the house is worth, but not so high no one will buy it.

If you're thinking of moving to a new house or condominium, we've turned the corner and are heading toward the prime listing and sales months of the year, statistically speaking.

Figures on both those fronts last year rebounded dramatically during March and April after hibernating through January and February, according to RealComp II.

The mammoth multi-listing service includes Western Wayne/Oakland County, Birmingham, Bloomfield, South Oakland, Rochester, North Oakland, Detroit, Dearborn and Livingston realty boards.

Nearly a third of the 55,755 listings reported to RealComp II during 1995 occurred during the months of May, June and July, said Karen Kage, director of the service.

Correspondingly, the three consecutive months last year with the most sales were June, July and August. Nearly a third of the 32,740 sales occurred then.

"That is typical," Kage said. "I've been doing this a long time now, 17 years, and summer is usually the busiest (for sales).

"In my opinion, when it's close to school being let out, a lot of people will list their house in attempts at selling and relocating before school starts," she said.

Last summer, agents bemoaned a shortage of houses for sale. As of June 1, RealComp reported 20 percent less inventory than was available on that date in 1994.

Things are still tight.

As of the end of January, 8,534 houses and condos were available for sale in the RealComp II network, a 5.5 percent decrease from what was available in January of 1995.

"Normally, as soon as the holidays are over, we're really busy," said Carol Kery, a partner and sales associate with the Prudential Accent Realty in Livonia. "That's not the case because we just don't have enough inventory to sell.

"It could be everyone has refinanced, they have low payments and might be reluctant to sell," she said.

"We have lots of buyers, people calling on houses," Kery said. "When we get a listing, it sells in a couple of days if it's priced right."

Larry Horn, an associate broker with Century 21 Today in Farmington Hills, attributes low inventory to refinancings and an increase in housing values so that people feel they're limited to what they can subsequently buy after selling.

Buyers and agents both have to move quickly today, Horn said.

"If a house is updated and in good shape, you don't have a day or two to think about it," he said. "Last week on Friday, I gave a customer 20 listings he wanted to drive by and look at. He called me on Sunday with eight he was interested in and only one was still available."

Mike Workman, sales manager for the Michigan Group Livonia office, shares that observation.

"You see a home you like, you better grab your checkbook," he said. "It's a big decision we're asking people to make instantaneously. I'd like to see more inventory."

An agent, apparently, must pay even more attention to detail when inventory shrinks.

"Last year, it was difficult for people to make the decision to sell and buy a new house after just refinancing," he said. "People are past the break-even point now (on refinancing expenses). I feel it's going to be a better year on that alone."

Agents farm inventory by contacting owners trying to sell their own houses and following up on expired listings.

"I'm bumping into a lot of real estate agents," Lipinski said. "When inventory is tight, more people are fighting for the few."

"Part of the problem is some people are still waiting for warmer weather," Workman said. "If you put your home on the market now, you can still move in June or July.

"Typically, you look at March as being an inventory explosion month. With the market being hot now, it may behoove the seller to move quicker."

Sales prices, reportedly, are holding firm.

"In many cases, we're getting multiple offers and sales are in excess of asking prices," Workman said.

Houses priced too high generally sit

Management company and lawyer may be liable

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I am extremely upset with my fellow condominium board members for basically being duped.

Our management company, which has turned out to be a dud, induced us to not use our present attorney, who was doing a good job, because they said that they could find a cheaper lawyer who would review the management contract with them at no charge.

The lawyer, in turn, reviewed the management contract, said it was in order, and then we hired the management company.

The management company strongly encouraged us to fire our old lawyer. The management company also wanted us to get the attorney who had done this free work for us.

It turned out that the attorney also had some previous involvement with the management company in a proprietary way and has been too busy to handle our work in a proper fashion in any event.

We think that both the attorney and the management company failed to disclose what their relationship was.

Can we pursue either the management company or the attorney?

A. Obviously, the management company had a fiduciary responsibility to operate in the best interests of the association and to disclose all relationships which it had with any persons it recommends to the association.

It appears that the management company was attempting to bring in the attorney which, as you indicated, had some sort of financial interest in the management company to represent the interests of the association.

The attorney should have disclosed to you the relationship that it had with the management company. Also, the attorney who was fired because of this arrangement may have a cause of action against both the management company and the attorney. The management company and the attorney you hired may have conspired together to interfere with the contractual relations between the association and its former attorney.

Moreover, the new attorney itself may have breached both legal and ethical responsibilities to the association in connection with full disclosure to it.

You may also treat this as a learning experience in regard to interviewing management companies and attorneys.

Remember, you usually get what you pay for and that there is no such thing as a free lunch.

Q. My condominium project is approximately 18 years old. The percentages of value we use are based upon square footage. These percentages of value are used for the allocation of assessments.

We want to consider changing the master deed so that everyone pays equal assessments.

Can we do so?

A. That is a very complicated issue, but even under the amendments to the 1978 Condominium Act, which may or may not apply to your condominium, based upon one's reading of the savings clause of the 1978 Condominium Act, you cannot change one's percentage of value, without everyone's consent.

While you can probably amend your documents to give everyone an equal voting right, to the extent that the percentages of value are used for levying assessments, you would not be able to amend the percentage of value to accomplish that purpose.

You are best advised, however, to have an attorney give your condominium a complete legal audit as to your condominium documents, including your master deed, your articles of incorporation, and bylaws.

Be smart when you are hiring home improvement contractor

You're ready to have your kitchen or bathroom remodeled and you hope that the contractor you selected will do a good job and back up the work. You aren't alone.

According to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, people call the BBB to check on home improvement contractors more than any other type of business.

And, while calling the BBB can help you find out if there are any complaints on the company and its response record, homeowners can follow some simple rules to avoid the pain of being burned.

Keith Paul, president of Home Advantage Referral Service, specializes in matching honest contractors with consumers. His advice:

- Ask for references. By doing this, you receive valuable information about workmanship. Ask questions like, 'How was the quality of work?' and 'Would you use the contractor again?'
- Check for insurance. If the contractor doesn't have valid insurance and one of the workers is injured on your property, you could be on the hook paying medical bills.
- Ask for a written guarantee. This step is very important in case there's a discrepancy regarding workmanship or cost overruns. get a written, detailed cost analysis before the project begins to prevent problems between you and the contractor.
- Request a project completion schedule. Asking the contractor for a schedule that explains the tasks and time frames for the project should help minimize construction delays.
- Don't pay everything in advance. The only time contractors need money in advance is when they order a custom, non-refundable item for the project.

Never pay more than 20 percent up front. Paying for work as it's completed helps ensure it will be done to your specifications.

- Don't pick up the permit. Having the contractor pick up the building permit from your city or township serves two purposes.

First, when the contractor obtains the permit, it's proof that his or her building license is valid. Second, if there's a problem with workmanship, you can track the company by its license.

- Make your final payment after you receive a waiver of lien. This document from supply companies indicates that all of your materials have been paid. If your contractor doesn't pay for the materials, you could be liable for the debt.

Paul's company, (800) 733-3778, has developed a network of local contractors. He screens and checks references, licenses and insurance. There's no charge to consumers for referrals.

Builders take lead in setting standards for square footage

Suppose you wanted to know the square footage of your house. There's nothing to it, right? You just get out a tape measure or yardstick, go around the walls, take the measurements, multiply the length by the width, and you've got it. Your grade-school kid can do it even faster than you can.

But wait a minute! Here are some questions you might have:

- That fireplace over there — do you count it in?
- Here's a utility room. You don't use that floor space for general living. Does it count?
- Your living room has a little "jog" into which a window seat has been built. Does that floor area count?
- Your house has another nice feature — an enclosed porch. Does it count? And what about the unfinished basement?
- Over here is a closet that has room only for hanging clothes. Upstairs is another one -- a "walk-in" closet. Does either of them -- or both — count?
- A portion of your second floor is under the eaves, and part of its floor runs into an area where you can't stand up. Does all of the part that offers less than standing room count, or part of it, or none of it?

So you see, determining the square footage of your house isn't necessarily simple. Traditionally, these and other puzzling questions have been answered in different ways. The result is that if you ask a group of highly skilled professionals to measure your house and give you the square footage, they are likely to come up with different answers.

Architects have a set of rules for measuring square footage, but the system is designed for structures that are far larger and more complex than houses and is generally regarded as being too cumbersome for house building. Real estate appraisers, local building inspectors, and house builders all have methods that they use, but the methods are not identical, and sometimes there are differences within the professions.

House buyers are interested in knowing footage, and they would like to have numbers that can be compared. House builders are taking decisive steps to solve the problem. The National Association of Home Builders has commissioned its research arm, the NAHB Research Center, to develop a set of uniform standards for measuring the square footage of houses.

The Research Center formed a committee that includes representatives of federal agencies, real estate appraisers, architects, mortgage lenders, realty groups, building code officials, industry associations, house builders and homeowners. The group has been designated as an Accredited Standards Committee of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

This group is reconciling old differences and hammering out answers. Plans call for the committee to complete its work by Memorial Day and to forward its results to ANSI by Labor Day for adoption as an official ANSI Standard.

All of this means that, beginning in the fall of 1996, when your grade-schooler measures your house, he or she will get the same results as everyone else. It also means that you can compare houses, knowing that the figures reflect a uniform set of procedures.

Home builders face challenges in making housing for everyone

For more than 50 years, the National Association of Home Builders has dedicated its efforts to building high-quality housing attainable at all income levels, enhancing the legislative and regulatory climate for housing and the building industry, expanding homeownership opportunities and promoting policies to maintain housing as a national priority. And here in Michigan, the Michigan Association of Home Builders has worked with NAHB for more than 40 years to further these goals in our community.

Today, the housing industry faces many challenges. Among them are bringing homeownership opportunities to the millions of Americans who are still unable to purchase a house, maintaining the availability of housing and assuring an adequate supply of decent, affordable rental units. The housing industry also must promote innovation, develop new technology, foster competition and build a working partnership with all levels of government. A healthy and competitive housing sector will create millions of good jobs and generate demand for billions of dollars worth of goods and services, thereby fueling the economy.

By working together on the elements that make neighborhoods and communities a reality, house builders provide a good mix of housing opportunities and create a positive quality of life for all residents.

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

THIS WEEK'S HOME MORTGAGE SHOPPING TIP:

Beware of prepayment penalties when selecting a mortgage lender and a mortgage program.

Years ago, prepayment penalties were the norm. Over time, it became more uncommon for mortgages to include a prepayment penalty. Because these penalties are beginning to show up again, consumers should add the question "Do you have prepayment penalties on your mortgages?" to their list of questions to ask lenders when mortgage shopping.

First, with the boom in mortgage refinancing in the last few years, servicing lenders have lost a lot of money because many current customers refinanced to a lower rate, often with a different lender. Some of the customers who refinanced may have had the loan only a short time, possibly a few years or less. Lenders are hurt most by these short term loans because the profit they make only begins after they have covered the expense of originating the loan. Without charging a prepayment penalty, they are left without covering the original cost.

Secondly, customers who obtained a no point loan or no point/no closing cost loan may have refinanced too. These loans have all the costs built into the interest rate up front, resulting in an above-normal rate. Lenders offered those loans in hopes of recouping their up front costs over time in addition to the profits that would emerge after a few years of servicing the mortgage. When borrowers refinance, lenders are again left without the ability to cover originating costs of the loan.

The no point and no point/no closing cost loans are the ones most commonly carrying prepayment penalties today. In addition, adjustable rate mortgages typically carry prepayment penalties. Unfortunately, loan officers don't always offer this information up front when you are deciding on your loan product. Therefore, you need to make sure to read the fine print and ask questions.

Generally, prepayment penalties range from 1% to 2% of the loan balance at the time of payoff. The penalty generally only applies within the first 2 to 5 years of the mortgage. After that, there is no penalty. These parameters vary from lender to lender. Borrowers need to consider their future plans if possible when deciding on the type of loan that is best for them. A poor mortgage decision could end up being a costly mistake. For example, choosing to pay off ahead of schedule a loan with a balance of $125,000 could cost up to $2,500 in penalties for early payoff. Obviously it is something to consider when choosing a mortgage program.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION:

Q. We recently closed on our house and had a bad experience with the lender. At the closing, we were told for the very first time that there would be a prepayment penalty if we paid off the loan early. The lender said the penalty would be 1½% of the balance if we paid it off within the first 3 years. We know we are moving in 2 years because of my husband's job transfer. Is this prepayment penalty a normal charge and is there anything we can do about it?

A. First of all, I am surprised that the loan officer did not inform you of this fact during your initial application or when you selected your mortgage program. It really should have been verbally noted to you. Unfortunately for you, the prepayment penalty clause was most likely written on the application forms you signed and therefore, the lender fulfilled his requirement to inform you of it. Often, this type of misunderstanding happens when inexperienced loan officers inadvertently neglect to inform their clients of a prepayment clause. If your initial paperwork does not disclose the prepayment clause, consult your attorney for advice. Hopefully, other readers will learn from your experience and remember to ask this important question at the start of the mortgage process.

■ REALTY BOARD MOVES

The Birmingham Bloomfield Rochester South Oakland Association of Realtors has moved to 901 Tower Drive, Suite 190, Troy, from Bloomfield Hills. The new headquarters is off Crooks between Square Lake and Long Lake roads.

The phone number has also changed to (810) 879-5730.

The move better centralizes merged operations of some 2,500 members who previously belonged to one of three associations.

■ PRUDENTIAL ACQUISITION

Prudential Great Lakes Realty brokers Dan Stiehl and Jerome M. Baranski have announced expansion of the company's business operations with the acquisition of Dowsett Realtors in Davison.

"The company's presence in the Davison market is another element in our overall extension plans," Stiehl said. "It's a strong community and the area is experience a growth period."

The existing office building at 1040 S. State Road will be renovated, the sales force expanded. Former owner Jim Dowsett has been named vice president and will concentrate on commercial real estate.

Marina Pointe offers water, golf opportunities

BY MICHELE GLANCE
STAFF WRITER

In many ways, Marina Pointe in Orion Township is like two subdivisions in one.

For people who want to be in an executive house at an affordable price, Marina Pointe's off-water sites offer a lot of house for the money.

For people who yearn to live on a canal leading to Lake Orion and are willing to pay a lot premium starting at $75,000, Marina Pointe offers that lifestyle.

"It's possible to buy a really nice home on the lake, but it won't be in a subdivision like this," said Jeff Menzel, sales rep for Pulte Homes, the only builder at Marina Pointe.

There are a total of 88 lots in the subdivision. About two dozen are still available. Prices for the executive style houses start at $232,990 for the Baybrooke model and go up to $275,990 for the Wentworth on base lots.

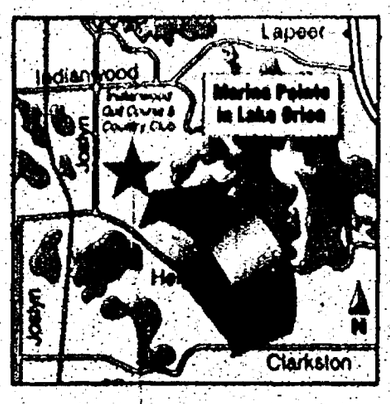
"It's very difficult to find homes of that quality and for that price on the water," said Deen Hyde, director of marketing for Pulte. "I guess you could say it's affordable lakefront living."

The typical Marina Pointe buyer has been working in the Auburn Hills or Troy area and is attracted to the idea of living in a peaceful setting near Lake Orion, Hyde said.

Dave and Kimberley Muncie lived in Troy for four years before they decided to move to Marina Poine. They have two daughters, Rachael and Lauren.

"We wanted to be on the water," Dave Muncie said. "It's a little more peaceful out here, and you feel that you're getting away from it all.

"It's a little bit farther drive for me coming out here, but it's worth it," he said. "Coming up Joslyn from the freeway is a nice hilly drive, and you pass lots of lakes. You feel like you're turning down the speed control on life a bit."



Robert and Jeannine Hamill moved to Marina Pointe from Portland, Ore. They live in a house that backs up to Indianwood Golf and Country Club.

Since the Hamill family was moving from out of state, choosing a spec house at Marina Pointe was very convenient. The Hamills also felt moving into a new subdivision would give their daughters, Briana, Chelsea and Madeline, a chance to make friends easily.

"I liked the fact that there are a lot of trees here and that it feels kind of secluded," Jeannine Hamill said. "There's a small town feeling here, and yet you're close to everything."

Even buyers who decide to pick a lot that doesn't overlook the lake will have easy access to boating and fishing since the public lake access site is just around the corner.

As if abutting Lake Orion isn't beautiful enough, Marina Pointe also offers homesites overlooking the lush Indianwood Golf Course. Houses backing up to the golf course carry a $10,000 premium.

There are five floor plans available. All have been nearly equal in popularity, Menzel said, with the Remington selling just slightly ahead of the others.

"People talk a lot about the nine-foot ceilings, the sense of open spaces and the fact that there is a staircase in both the front and the back of the house," Menzel said. "That's a feature that you don't usually see in a home selling for $300,000."

It features two staircases, including one that gently curves off the hardwood foyer. The back staircase leads to an overlook just off the master suite, which includes a private bath with a garden tub. The Remington has a base price of $266,990.

It features 2,498 square feet, four bedrooms and 2½ baths. One thing that makes this model particularly appealing is the roomy kitchen with a working island.

Chimneys need to be checked, cleaned regularly

If your house was built in the early 1900s or before, its old masonry chimneys are probably unlined. Although an unlined brick chimney was OK in its day — when labor was cheap, and we often saw the chimney sweep — it is considered substandard these days.

In many cases, old bricks and mortar have deteriorated and cracked. This creates spots where smoke and other flue gases can escape into your home. Should a chimney fire occur in an unlined system, the gaps become passageways for smoke and fire.

At the very least, an unlined old house chimney will need a flue lining. At the worst, a badly deteriorated stack will require a costly rebuild. A visual inspection of the chimney in the basement, attic and the section protruding through the roof is usually sufficient for a certified chimney sweep to evaluate chimney condition.

In addition to checking for external deterioration, you should also make sure a 2-inch clearance exists on all sides of an internal chimney. This clearance is necessary to allow heat from the masonry to dissipate. If your chimney doesn't adhere to this, some modifications and reframing work are necessary.

As far as the internal condition is concerned, if the chimney already has a liner it should also be inspected. It may need repair or replacement due to a chimney fire or improper installation. A newelectronic video-scan system, where a camera records the inside of the flue, is probably the best way to detect problems. This operation is done by qualified chimney sweeps. Depending on location, the costs of a video scan on a 2-story home stack range from $35 to $85.

If a chimney is unlined you can eliminate this step, since you should line it anyway. But before you choose a flue lining, decide if you want to add a wood stove or high efficiency insert to the fireplace as this will affect the size and style liner you'll need.

Adding a wood-burning stove or an insert to a fireplace changes what happens in the chimney. Since these appliances use a smaller, controlled amount of air than an open fireplace, they create less heat than a roaring open fire. Because the flue gases don't move through the chimney as quickly, they have time to cool and, due to the lower stack temperatures, condense on the flue walls forming creosote.

The safest and most efficient way to operate a heating appliance is with an insulated liner. It must be sized properly for the stove or insert's flue outlet and it must extend all the way to the top of the chimney.

Creosote builds up faster in an oversized flue where there's more space to heat. An insulated liner combats the condensation by keeping stack temperatures warmer. Basically, there are three types ofliners available for masonry chimneys — clay tile, stainless steel and cast-in-place.

Clay tile is the most commonly used in new construction. It's available in rectangular 2-foot sections, five-eighths inches thick and of various widths. For these to be installed properly, the chimney should be opened up every 2 feet so the joints can be sealed with refractory mortar.

Builders set footage standards

Suppose you wanted to know the square footage of your house. There's nothing to it, right? You just get out a tape measure or yardstick, go around the walls, take the measurements, multiply the length by the width, and you've got it. Your grade-school kid can do it even faster than you can.

But wait a minute! Here are some questions you might have:

- That fireplace over there — do you count it in?
- Here's a utility room. You don't use that floor space for general living. Does it count?
- Your living room has a little "jog" into which a window seat has been built. Does that floor area count?
- Your house has another nice feature — an enclosed porch. Does it count? And what about the unfinished basement?
- Over here is a closet that has room only for hanging clothes. Upstairs is another one — a "walk-in" closet. Does either of them — or both — count?
- A portion of your second floor is under the eaves, and part of its floor runs into an area where you can't stand up. Does all of the part that offers less than standing room count, or part of it, or none of it?

So you see, determining the square footage of your house isn't necessarily simple. Traditionally, these and other puzzling questions have been answered in different ways. The result is that if you ask a group of highly skilled professionals to measure your house and give you the square footage, they are likely to come up with different answers.

Architects have a set of rules for measuring square footage, but the system is designed for structures that are far larger and more complex than houses and is generally regarded as being too cumbersome for house building. Real-estate appraisers, local building inspectors, and house builders all have methods that they use, but the methods are not identical, and sometimes there are differences within the professions.

House buyers are interested in knowing footage, and they would like to have numbers that can be compared. House builders are taking decisive steps to solve the problem. The National Association of Home Builders has commissioned its research arm, the NAHB Research Center, to develop a set of uniform standards for measuring the square footage of houses.

Mortgage rates climb upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-year, fixed rate mortgages averaged 7.41 percent this week, up from 7.32 percent last week, according to a national survey released Thursday by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

It was the highest since last Nov. 2, when rates averaged 7.44 percent. Rates have risen for the last two weeks, from 6.94 percent during the week ended Feb. 15. The 6.94 percent was the lowest since Oct. 28, 1993, when they averaged 6.88 percent.

On one-year adjustable rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.38 percent, up from 5.34 percent last week.

Fifteen-year mortgages, a popular option for those refinancing mortgages, averaged 6.87 percent this week, up from 6.77 percent a week earlier.

Vera plan assures privacy

For a study kit of the Vera (404-07), send $10, to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-OE48, Eugene, OR 97402 (Be sure to specify plan name & number). For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular house plans, send $20 to Landmark, or call 1-800-562-1151.

A wide lot is required to built the 1,926-square-foot Vera. The configuration of this exciting new floor design has the isolated master suite on the left side of the house and the secondary bedrooms on the right.

With the common areas in the middle, privacy is assured not only for the occupants of the master suite, but those in the other bedrooms as well. This arrangement will be especially beneficial to a family with high-school students needing their own "space" or one with aging parents sharing the house.

Dignified columns frame the recessed entry and compliment the attractive brick and siding exterior of the Vera. Once inside, the commendable use of the available space is evident throughout the entire residence. The expansive master suite includes among its numerous amenities, a huge walk-in closet, raised television shelf and a private bathroom with twin basins.

This end of the house also contains a large storage area with access to the three-car garage and a handy utility room with a sink and built-in ironing board. Pull-down stairs in the garage take you up to an attic with an additional 480 square feet of storage capacity.

The up-to-date kitchen, easy to maneuver around in, features an island cooktop, walk-in pantry, appliance center, built-in desk and a bright breakfast nook. If the weather is agreeable, have your morning coffee on the adjacent covered patio.

The formal dining room with a beautiful built-in hutch and the front living room both have a coffered vault ceiling. When entertaining your guests in the comfortable living room, a combination gas/wood fireplace will keep everyone nice and cozy regardless of the conditions outside.

A skylit hallway leads to the secondary bedrooms. They are both good-sized and have plenty of windows along with ample closet space.

The smaller of the two bedrooms has a built-in file cabinet and, with the addition of a desk and computer, can easily be converted for use as a home office. Nearby are two spots for linen storage and a full bathroom with twin basins.

Maximum privacy: The master suite is widely separated from other bedrooms. The common living area is in the center. The plan also features a garage work area and lots of storage space.

Years ago, choosing a kitchen faucet didn't require much choice at all. Faucets were considered merely for their function. Style wasn't an option. There was basic chrome, with maybe a choice of one or two handles and a swinging head. For homeowners, creating kitchen style had virtually nothing to do with the faucet.

Not anymore.

Today, the array of features — both styling and function — is dazzling, as are many of the faucets themselves. Finishes run the gamut from polished brass to a spectrum of colors (or a combination of finishes). Manufacturers are putting an emphasis on faucets with aesthetic flair — so much so that a faucet has become a key element in kitchen design, adding snap and flair to the room's decor.

But with so many choices nowadays, how can a homeowner know which faucet is right for her? Here are a few tips on what to consider.

Faucets to fit today's lifestyles

"The kitchen is the center of attention in today's lifestyles," says Karen Mendelsohn of Delta Faucet Co. "Gone are the days when Mom was hidden away in a kitchen to bring meals out to the family or guests. In a dual-career family, everyone gathers in the kitchen to pull together the evening meal, and guests mingle in the kitchen to help cook or just socialize."

No matter what the decor, there are faucets to complement the style. Sleek, Eurostyle units impart contemporary flair for modern kitchens. Replicas of colonial designs, complete with porcelain cross-handles and other old-fashioned looks, are perfect for traditional kitchens. Waterfall spouts with sweeping arches are timeless choices for fashionable kitchens of almost any decor.

These days, plumbing products are regulated by strict code guidelines issued by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) and other code bodies. To be code-approved, universally designed faucets must operate at a force of five pounds or less and not require tight grasping or pinching.

These more accessible products, mandated by the Americans with Disabilities Act, are designed with physically challenged individuals and seniors in mind — but their universal, non-institutional design has appeal for all users.

"Accessibility is an important consideration for everyone, not just for the physically challenged," Mendelsohn points out. "We want Grandma and Grandpa to be able to use the faucets, when they visit. Baby-boomers are growing older, but we don't want institutional-looking faucets in our homes."

With water shortages and water conservation an ongoing concern, plumbing products must be designed to preserve the nation's potable water resources.

Many state and local regulations require water-conserving faucets to be installed in their jurisdictions. Most of these requirements are aimed at faucets in showers and lavatories, but low-flow heads are also useful in the kitchen.

Of more concern in the kitchen are faucets that prevent backflow and back siphonage. These problems are caused when pull-out spouts are immersed in used water. This may allow waste water into the clean water system, which can lead to water impurities.

To prevent backflow and back siphonage, select a faucet with a device to restrict the used water from flowing back into the system. Look for faucets that are equipped with an atmospheric vacuum breaker and backflow check valve built right into the body of the unit. Some companies charge a minimum of $50 extra if they do offer a vacuum breaker to meet code. However, adding a vacuum breaker may require a separate hole to be mounted in the sink or wall, adding more work and expense.

Code-approved units should meet backflow and back siphonage regulation standards recommended by the Building Officials and Code Administrators International (BOCA) on removable spray spouts, International Association of Plumbing and Mechanical Officers (IAPMO), Southern Building Code Congress International (SBCCI) and the City of Los Angeles.

■ 'The kitchen is the center of attention in today's lifestyles. Gone are the days when Mom was hidden away in a kitchen to bring meals out to the family or guests. In a dual-career family, everyone gathers in the kitchen to pull together the evening meal, and guests mingle in the kitchen to help cook or just socialize.'

Karen Mendelsohn
Delta Faucet Co.

What's inside is important

"Finally," points out Mendelsohn, "to be sure you're getting a good value as well as a good-looking faucet, look for a well-built product. Ask about the internal construction."

For instance, a stainless steel ball valve in a single-handle kitchen faucet is extremely reliable, without the maintenance and replacement part problems some other faucets have. Faucets that are fabricated from solid machined brass bar stock and copper tubing are not subject to internal cross leaks and waterway blockages, which occur in sand-castings. Additionally, sand-casted models typically leach more lead than fabricated brass units.

For long lasting and lustrous chrome faucets, look for models that are triple plated. To protect special finishes — polished brass, antique brass and satin brass — look for a powdered epoxy coating that is electrostatically applied and provides a water-tight, abrasion- and chemical-resistant overcoat.

The traditional look of wrought iron fencing has been making a strong comeback over the past few years. This type fence lends a distinctive elegance and charm in its appearance that other fences lack. However, the frequent painting and constant maintenance associated with it (not to mention the rust) have kept many people from purchasing wrought iron products.

Recently, many people have discovered a fence that offers the dignified appearance and protection of wrought iron without the bother or the rust. Jerith Manufacturing Co. in Philadelphia has created an ornamental fence that is fabricated from aluminum and is guaranteed for as long as you own your fence. Jerith fences are ideal for swimming pool enclosures, as well as for coastal areas where dampness causes wrought iron steel fencing to be a chore to maintain. Jerith's aluminum ornamental fence can not rust even under the most severe weather conditions.

Jerith fences never need painting and maintenance because their powder-coated finish is guaranteed not to peel, crack, or chip. In addition, Jerith's exclusive aluminum alloy allows a typical section of fence to support over 300 pounds, which makes it as strong as a steel section. This unique fence is available in a wide variety of colors, styles and heights to complement any type of architecture. As a manufacturer of aluminum products for over 40 years, Jerith has built a reputation for high quality and product durability. This is why Jerith includes a lifetime warranty on every item it sells.

For a free brochure displaying Jerith's full line of maintenance-free aluminum fences, write to Jerith Manufacturing Co., Dept. HT05, 3901 G Street, Philadelphia, PA 19124

CLARIFICATION

It was incorrectly reported in the Feb. 29 profile of Lakeshore in Waterford that John Schmidt was the builder/developer of the subdivision.
