Senator joins trail of 'Friends'

Lobbying efforts are heating up as a citizens' group and a state senator try to convince the Wayne-Westland school board to protect a 64-acre wooded area from development. A board vote is expected July 8.

Wayne-Westland school board members are coming under heavy political pressure to protect Sassafras Trails, a 64-acre wooded area, from residential development.

Republican state Sen. Loren Bennett, who represents Westland, has issued a statement urging city residents to lobby the school board to protect Sassafras Trails, a sprawling nature area northeast of Palmer and Wildwood roads.

"The Sassafras Trails nature area is a unique piece of property in the middle of an urban area," Bennett said in a statement to the Observer. "The nature area provides an opportunity for children and their families to experience nature without having to drive a long way."

Bennett said the school board should accept a $520,000 offer from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that would allow the state to buy the development rights and protect the site.

School officials say the moneystrapped district could receive more than $1 million, based on appraisals, by selling Sassafras Trails for development.

No formal offers have been made to buy the property, said Patricia Brand, assistant superintendent of

Bennett, in his statement, said. "Now is the time for the people of Westland to let their school board know that they would like to see the Sassafras Trails preserved."

His comments fueled criticism from board member Patricia Brown. who has often blamed state legislators for failing to provide enough money for public education.

"It's a shame that he doesn't think it's important to adequately fund public education and give us the money we need to run our schools."

"This is all volunteer. I'm leaving my practice for two weeks," said Sczecienski. "This is the largest sporting event in the world. Nothing else comes close. The Olympics have a very deep-seated history."

Sczecienski, whose Westland office is decorated with autographed jerseys from members of the Red Wings, had first applied to work at the Olympics 10 years ago.

The chance for the trio to volunteer services at the Olympics came through one of Schildberg's former patients. At one time the fourthbeat high hurdler in the world, Kim Willis took a position as safety director with Pepsi.

"She signed on to work on the Olympics medical staff and asked if I'd do it," said Schildberg. "It's

Schools sell Titus, Adams property

BY LEONARD POGER

A charter school or private school and 50 new single-family homes are planned to be located on two former Wayne-Westland school district properties.

The school board last week approved the sale of the former C, P. Titus Elementary School and adjacent property, on Henry Ruff south of Cherry Hill, Inkster, to Lecester L. Allen, president of the Academy of Detroit-North, a private, non-profit corporation.

In the purchase offer, Allen said that he plans to open a private school or charter school in the Titus School, which was one of four elementaries closed a year ago because of declining enrollments and money

Allen's corporation will pay $501,000 for the building and adjacent property, which includes a parking lot and playground.

On another former Wayne-Westland property, a residential development is planned for the west 13 acres of vacant land next to Adams Middle School, on the south side of Palmer west of Venoy.

Buying the property for $149,500 is Kathy Makino, who told the Observer Monday that she plans to develop the parcel for 50 homes, to be financed through the Michigan State Housing Development Author ity for modest-income families. Under MSHDA guidelines, she said, the homes will be offered to a family of two with an income of at least $18,000 a year or a family of four with an income of $25,000. Maximum income for any potential buyer is $30,000, she said.

Makino said the homes will be rented to families.

Her corporation will ideally start applying for MSHDA credit this summer with construction to start next spring, she said.

Makino is also heading a development of apartments for limited-income people a mile away, near the Merriman-Dorsey area of the Norwayne community.

In that development, Makino said, the vacant Norris School, which was most recently used as a special education center, has been demolished to make way for 60 apartments.

Patricia Brand, the school disassistant trict's superintendent/business, said the Adams property wasn't advertised publicly. The board isn't required to advertise surplus property for potential sale.

Concerning the Titus property, the school district did solicit bids, receiving two and approving the highest bid.

In board discussion, trustee Ed Turner urged his colleagues to adopt a board policy requiring all surplus property to be advertised publicly before being sold.

she said.

Brown referred specifically to the financial difficulties that the school board will face when a 3-mill tax expires next June. The board, barred by state legislation from asking local voters to renew the millage, will lose about $4.2 million a year.

The board is expected to vote on the Sassafras Trails issue at its July 8 meeting, when new members David Cox and Robin Moore will join board holdovers Brown, Debra Fowlkes, David James, Mathew McCusker and Martha Pitsenbarger.

A citizens' group, Friends of Sassafras Trails, is lobbying board members to protect the land.

On the revamped board, James and Fowlkes support the sale while McCusker and Pitsenbarger oppose it.

Brown was absent June 20 when board members split 3-3 on the issue. Departing board member Ed Turner opposed the sale, while exiting board member Francis "Bud" Winter supported it.

Brown declined to say Tuesday how she will vote July 8. She said she believes the new board will need to meet in closed session to discuss the

Cox and Moore, contacted at their respective offices Tues-

"I haven't really decided," Moore said. "I'm flipflopping back and forth on it."

Teresa Robbins, a Friends of Sassafras Trails member, said Cox told her during his campaign that he supported saving Sassafras Trails.

"Yes, that's true," Cox confirmed Tuesday. "I still favor saving it. I also favor being a millionaire, but that doesn't mean it's going to happen.

"I favor keeping it in a natural state," he added later. "Whether or not the money is going to be there to do that is another thing."

Cox said he has to study the issues before he reaches a decithe vote, he said. Robbins commended Bennett for his public support and also praised elected officials such as state Reps. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, and Thomas Kelly, D-Wayne, who showed up for an Earth Day cleanup of Sassafras Trails.

"You urge them not to drink anything but that. What if someone gave them something laced?" said Mary Jane Schildberg. "The whole idea is to keep a level playing field where they win on ability and not with performance-enhancing drugs."

All the people selected to volunteer at the games have to be vouched for by someone on the Olympics organizing committee and successfully undergo an in-depth background check, including fingerprinting. The volunteers have also been visiting Atlanta in advance of the games for training and orientation.

"They said to be an escort you needed to be able to look stern and tell people to pee," said Mary Jane Schildberg with a laugh. "I can do that. I was a schoolteacher."

Downtown Atlanta is being rejuvenated by the Olympics, Warren Schildberg said, noting medical and housing facilities built for the games are being donated.

Livonia district says no to state's schools of choice

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Livonia Public Schools, which serves the northern section of Westland, will say no to opening its doors to students from throughout Wayne County.

In doing so, the district gives up the chance to boost enrollment beyond its projected 17,357 students for the next school year. It thus loses the extra $5,300 each new student would have produced.

Following Monday's school board vote, the district joins numerous suburban districts, such as Farmington, Rochester, Birmingham and Garden City, which also have opted out of the school of choice plan contained in the 1996-97 school aid bill.

The Wayne-Westland school board last week approved the acceptance of non-resident students, if there is space available in requested schools.

Wayne-Westland is also going through a student enrollment decline.

"This would be repugnant to (district residents), filling empty seats to make money when our concern here is lower class size," said Livonia Superintendent. Ken Watson.

The Livonia district will opt out of the new county-wide choice program on the deadline the flames. His injury occurred date set by the state for districts to decide whether to join. son through a window to some-

Trustees debated the question in a committee meeting Monday and unanimously agreed with the administrative recommendation not to join the program.

All Michigan districts have until July 1 to decide whether they will participate in the program and accept non-resident students.

'This would be repugnant to (district residents), filling empty seats to make money when our concern here is lower class size.'

The legislation lets students attend any school in the Intermediate School District that will accept them, without paying tuition. In southeast Michigan, intermediate districts generally follow county lines. The legislation prohibits the student's home district from rejecting the trans-

"Any of our students can now go to Wyandotte or Highland Park or Detroit," Watson said.

Under the law, students transferring into their new district bring their $5,300 state grant with them. This would turn into a money-losing deal for Livonia, which expects to get $6,913 next year for each student.

"The big winner here is the state," Watson said. "The receiving district gets the lower of the two amounts."

Livonia district administrators believe the program will create friction between districts.

"Any transfer is at someone else's expense and this will lead to unfriendly meetings of superintendents and staff," Watson said. "They'll be taking money from one district to bolster their own. If districts lose students, they will not be pleased."

Supporters believe choice opens up districts to competition, and competition eventually will improve all schools.

Judge reaffirms teen-ager's innocence

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

An Oakland County circuit judge has upheld a lower court's ruling that cleared a former Westland teen-ager of arson

Judge Alice Gilbert, in a recent decision, sided with Oakland Probate Judge Joan Young, who ruled in January that Alex Diakonis wasn't guilty of starting a fire at the Venoy Pines apartment complex near Venoy and Warren.

Diakonis was charged with arson following a March 30, 1994, afternoon fire that injured five people and destroyed six apartments.

Young ruled in January that a jury's earlier conviction of Diakonis should be reversed because of a lack of evidence implicating the teen-ager.

Oakland County prosecutors appealed Young's decision, but Gilbert upheld it.

Prosecutors have now filed a motion with the Michigan Court of Appeals in an attempt to have Gilbert's decision overturned.

"It's a very vindictive action that they're taking," defense attorney Allen Ingle said Tuesday. "This family has been through a lot. Here's a mother trying to raise three children. and they're good church-abiding

"Prosecutors know damn well that they can't prove the case, because there's no way they can prove how the fire started," Ingle

Oakland County judges handled the case because Diakonis had moved there from Westland.

Gilbert's opinion started, "The evidence was devoid of any showing that (Diakonis) specifically burned the dwelling house or any of its contents and that he willfully and intentionally did the same knowing that it would cause damage to either a person or property."

Westland police and fire offi-

Wayne-Westland asks state to settle Fischer dispute

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland school officials are appealing to the state in hopes of transferring the former Fischer Elementary to the Crestwood school district, which doesn't want it.

The appeal to the state Board of Education comes in the wake of a June 12 decision by county school officials to leave the property in Wayne-Westland's control.

Local officials, after selling Fischer for $925,000, want to stop providing special education services for students of a private school — the Dearborn Heights Montessori Center - that bought the building.

Officials have estimated the costs at $70,000 a year.

State law requires Wayne-Westland to pay for special education services such as speech therapy even though public school students no longer attend the school.

Wayne-Westland officials closed Fischer and three other elementaries a year ago because of declining enrollment and money problems.

Because the building is in Dearborn Heights and borders the Crestwood district, Wayne-Westland officials now want the property to be declared in Crestwood.

"I don't think they're going to rush on this one," she said.

Following unsuccessful talks with Crestwood, Wayne-Westland officials in March adopted a resolution asking county school officials to intervene and declare the old Fischer building part of the Crestwood district. Crestwood business manager Paul Martini had a biting response when Wayne-Westland passed the original resolution.

"Isn't that wonderful?" he said. "They sell the building, pocket the money and then say, 'Here, you take it."

Last Thursday, the Wayne-Westland board approved a resolution for the state appeal in a 6-0 vote.

The resolution notes that "both districts indicated in advance that they would appeal an adverse decision" from the coun-

Celebrity: Media and spectators mob Jay Leno as he approaches the 1929 Duesenberg convertible owned by Bill Chorkey of Famington Hills.

Eight Mile Road was packed with spectators Sunday to watch as 1,400 vehicles rolled along a 3.5 mile stretch from Ryan Road to the Michigan State Fairgrounds at Woodward Avenue. The Auto 100 Parade was held in honor of the 100th anniversary of the automobile industry.

Serving as grand marshal was the Tonight Show's Jay Leno, a known car enthusiast, Leno led the parade, driving in a 1929 convertible Duesenberg owned by Bill Chorkey of Farmington

Commission vote OKs park plan

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN STAPP WRITER

The Wayne County Commission voted down the project list for the proposed parks millage June 20, but a second vote in the same meeting resulted in approval.

Wayne County Parks Director Hurley Coleman Jr. watched in horror as the list, a plan for use of the money generated by the proposed quarter-mill tax increase for parks, didn't get enough yes votes, and failed 7-5. Fifteen commissioners make up the commission and eight votes are needed for approval. Two commissioners were absent and two commissioners were out of the room during the first vote.

- Wayne County voters will decide the issue in the Aug. 6 primary election. The proposal would cost the owner of a $100,000 house $12.50 a year more in taxes.

As the commission went on with other items before them on the agenda, Coleman worked in the background to get the item brought up for reconsideration.

Commissioner Susan Hubbard of Dearborn, who voted against the item, agreed to

Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, voted in favor. Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, was absent. Plawecki also represents Redford Township and Livonia east of Middlebelt. Beard also represents Garden

"We can consider this an agreement that the plan to spend the millage is appropriate," a relieved Coleman said after the meeting.

But McCotter is concerned that the plan doesn't include enough benefits for western Wayne County. "We're not getting back what we may pay into it," McCotter said.

Once the parameters to spend the money are set, it's going to be hard to get them changed, he said.

The proposed project list includes plans for spending $26.3 million on parks projects with $13,750,000 to go to three Detroit projects. A water park and improvements at historic Fort Wayne are included.

Also included are improvements at Hines Park and the Holliday Forest Nature Preserve in Westland,

36251 SCHOOLCRAFT, LIVONIA, MICHIGAN 48150

Save the trail

Don't sell Sassafras preserve

Good works are wiped out

The Wayne-Westland Board of Education should preserve the Sassafras Trail nature area.

The controversy should be put to rest when the newly organized board convenes early next month.

The school board split 3-3 last week on a proposal to sell the 64-acre nature preserve on the northeast corner of Palmer and Wildwood. Without a majority vote for approval of the property sale, the dispute remains alive.

Supporting the sale was board president Francis (Bud) Winter, whose term ends Sunday, along with David James and Debra Fowlkes. Opposing the sale were Ed Turner, whose term also ends Sunday, Mathew McCusker and Martha Pitsenbarger.

Winter and Turner will be replaced next week by David Cox and Robin Moore, winners of the June 10 school board election.

Cox. Moore and trustee Patricia Brown, who was absent from last week's meeting because of a death and family illness, will play key roles in breaking the deadlock.

Hopefully, the board will realize the longterm gain of retaining the nature preserve and avoid caving in to pressures for shortterm financial needs.

Admittedly, there is an attraction of selling the property for single-family houses which would then generate more students and increased state revenues.

But families buy homes in a community for more than just the reputation of the local school system. They also consider the quality of life, including parks and recreational facilities that are nearby.

Sassafras, which may seem an eyesore to some, represents more than just trees, flowers and squirrels.

Hopefully, the board will keep the pledge that some board members previously gave to the Friends of Sassafras Trails to protect the property. The board should accept the $520,000 development rights grant from the state natural resources department.

Jim Netter of Wayne was right when he told the school board last week that "God isn't making any more land," a sentiment echoed by McCusker.

When residents visit Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth or Central City Park behind Westland City Hall, they can see the long-lasting benefits gained when local officials had a long-range vision for their community.

Hopefully, the Wayne-Westland school board will do the same when it convenes with its two new members, Cox and Moore, early next month.

I am one of many concerned citizens, in the Wayne/Westland area, to find some sort of acceptable solution to the problem of the intersection of Venoy and Palmer roads.

This would eliminate part of the problem. When asked about the accidents at that intersection, Andy, from the party store on the northwest corner commented, "I hear them happen so often, I don't even look anymore. Just pick up the phone, and dial 911."

They actually speed up, swing around the other car, and speed through and over the hill onto the other side. Many of those times they find another car at that intersection, and end up with an accident. The Westland Police Department, Traffic Bureau, has a "Top 10 Worst Accident Intersection List." In 1994, this Venoy and Palmer intersection rated No. 9. In 1995, it had 22 accidents. The computer hasn't figured 1996 as of yet.

Voters detached?

Your recent editorial about the abysmally low turnout in the Wayne-Westland school board election was an excellent argument in favor of charter schools. Why?

It is obvious from the low participation rates of Wayne-Westland voters that they feel detached from the current education system. Many people feel that the schools have been completely taken over by wealthy and powerful special interests – like the teachers' union. Many parents and taxpayers feel shut out of the system by an elite dictatorial bureaucracy that takes its orders from a school board "hand-picked" by the school unions and beholden to those unions.

Charter schools, on the other hand, require even demand - that parents and students make choices. If people are required to make choices their incentive to become engaged and to participate increases.

The current system has reduced parents and students to a form of education slavery. As slaves of the education monopoly, its rigid bureaucracy, its elite unions and special interests, many of us simply feel that "participation" is futile and not worth the effort.

Appalled at letter

I would like to tell you how appalled I was to read what Anne Johnson wrote in the Observer on May 16 about Churchill High School's new athletic director. Her referral to his kissing anyone's backside is what I find disgusting.

Having a female on board as an athletic director would be nice, however, in order for this to happen a female must first apply and this was not the case. Also, Ms. Johnson and the rest of the taxpayers may rest assured many students and parents of Churchill, are extremely happy with the appointment of Marc Hage as the new athletic director.

He is of outstanding character. While employed with Livonia Public Schools he has worked above and beyond his call of duty. He displays enthusiasm, energy, skill, and stami-

His exciting ideas and true interest in each student is shown by his presence and actions towards them.

Being an alumni of C.H.S. he is very proud and deeply dedicated. Many are proud at Mr. Hages new position and hope he will remain at C.H.S. for many years to come!

Furthermore: An athletic director's position is mostly that of organization, meetings, and communication. Thus, having the title director and not coach.

Don't sell land

To all concerned residents: Wayne-Westland residents need to be "up in arms." Our elected officials are again in the process of misrepresenting the people. The potential sale of Sassafras Trails is ridiculous.

Are we, as a community, so desperate that we will sell 64 acres of land for only $680,000 more than we have been offered by the state Department of Natural Resources to preserve it?

Please, educate me. With a budget of $92 million how many days will the sale of Sassafras Trails finance in our district? Will it finance one day? Two days? Once sold, this property can never be recovered, for ourselves or our children.

Board members David James, Francis Winter and Debra Fowlkes have implied recently that the fiscally responsible thing to do is to sell the property. The Department of Natural Resources has offered $520,000 to purchase the property development fights to this property.

Remember, the property will remain in our school district's possession for our enjoyment and educational enhancement. Once we accept the PDR grant, we can begin to tap into the many government and corporate educational grants available for scientific education programs.

Tell me, Wayne-Westland School board, was it fiscally responsible to sell the excess Patchin School property for $3,069.76 less per acre than the 1994 appraisal of that same parcel of land? This is 1996, haven't property values gone up?

Is Sassafras Trails only worth $12,592 per acre? (This figure is based on the difference of the DNR offer and what you say is the appraised value.) Can you truly justify this sale? What if the purchasers of this parcel of land are mainly middleaged or senior citizens? Where will your increased student money be?

Please remember that the 2 percent sales tax increase finances schools now, not property values.

FROM OUR READERS

(Trustee) David James, you have said we need more students. We are selling off schools and their property. Where will you put the new students? Do you have room now for the students that will come from the new developments off Cherry Hill across from John Glenn? Do you have schools for the children in the homes off Central City Parkway? What if parents in Westland feel that they really do have a voice and decide to bring their children to you, from parochial schools and home schooling? Can you promise us that $5,574 for each student will provide the quality education we want our children to have? The problem is not too much land, the problem is not enough money per student.

Due to an inequitable distribution of the 2 percent sales tax increase, Wayne-Westland schools are operat-

$5,574 per student. We are ranked 28th out of 34 school districts in Wayne County. We, the people, understand this, Draft an amendment to State Constitution, using the word equitable in reference to education financing. Call on your "grass roots' movers and shakers," but remember some of us are only willing to help people who stand behind their word, listen to the parents' goals and care about the future of our children.

Senator backs trail

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources made a fair offer to the (school) board (to buy the development rights to Sassafras Trail) and I hope they accept. The nice thing about the offer is that the board will still maintain ownership of the property for educational use, the state is only purchasing the development rights. Now an argument can be made that the board could get more money for the property from a developer, but the people of Westland have made it clear to me that they would like to see Sassafras Trails stay the way it is.

That is why I have been working so closely with the Friends of Sassafras Trails for over a year now to make this yery worthwhile project happen.

Now is the time for the people of Westland to let their school board know that they would like to see the Sassafras Trails preserved.

Please write or call your school board representatives and let them know how you feel. With community support Sassafras Trails can be preserved for our children.

Regulating genetic tests will be tomorrow's issue

"The next big issue," said state Rep. Gerald Law, "will be use of genetic tests by insurers."

We chatted on the House floor during a lull in the school aid debate.

Law, R-Plymouth, had just seen his bill to license hospices signed by Gov.

John Engler. Law is working on pain management bills with Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, in a bipartisan group on the Health Policy Committee.

Clearly, Law was thinking ahead — and he was right.

On June 18, the New York Times reported, the New Jersey Legislature passed a law banning health insurers from denying access, or setting higher rates, to individuals who are genetically predisposed to certain diseases.

Eleven states have such laws. New Jersey's is considered the most comprehensive, said the Times, because it covers both genetic testing and genetic information, such as family history.

A group called Council for Responsible Genetics was quoted as saying it identified more than 200 cases of insurance and job discrimination around the U.S. based on genetic information.

Here is the worker's problem: If you find at 30 that you carry a gene that programs you to get breast cancer or Alzheimer's or cystic fibrosis in your 40s and you apply for a big job, an employer's health insurance carrier won't want you hired because you will cost them a pile of money. Results: You don't get a job, are discarded on an economic scrap heap and can't buy health insurance from anyone who knows about your genes.

when it can weed out bad risks and cream off good ones. Understandably insurers want to be protected against self-selection.'

The New Jersey law considers genetic information to be private property. Without it, the insurer has to treat everybody pretty much alike, so everybody has a crack at the job.

TIM RICHARD

An insurer does well when it can weed out bad risks and cream off good ones. Understandably, insurers want to be protected against "self-selection" — a bad risk who knows he carries bad genes for colon cancer, keeps it a secret and tries to buy a ton of life insurance. The statute has some safeguards.

It's the same as if someone could foretell the future. Ladbroke DRC and Northville Downs wouldn't let him near the betting windows.

Genes are the units of heredity.

Genetics is the science that showed how Darwin's theory of evolution worked.

Thirty years ago, Dr. Leroy Augenstein began talking about the impact of genetics on human life and moral laws. He campaigned for the U.S. Senate on the issue of the biological revolution. A biophysicist at Michigan State University, Augenstein spoke on who makes decisions, and how, on such questions as:

 "Of three possible patients, who should get one open place on a kidney machine?"

• "If the odds are one in four you and your spouse will have a child so retarded it wouldn't know who or what it is, would you procreate?"

 "Would you deliberately choose to have a child with an IQ of 200?"

 "Should the immediate family be the ones to decide whether a person in a terminal illness should or should not be treated even if there is a fairly large inheritance involved?"

 "Should parents use mind manipulation or behavior manipulation techniques to make sure what values are in their children?" He raised the questions 200 or 300 times a year before PTAs, Jaycees, Kiwanians, fellow Republicans and anyone else. He put it in a book called Come, Let Us Play God. He was the most sought-after speaker on the MSU faculty.

Augenstein won a seat on the State Board of Education in 1966 and was gearing for a bigger job with this pitch: No one in the U.S. Congress was scientifically prepared to deal with these issues or was even raising the moral questions that genetics was raising. He was 41 when he died in a 1969 plane crash near Charlotte.

Many of his questions still are with us. Sometimes they pop up in the assisted suicide context; other times, in an insurance context, as Law suggests, or an abortion context. But in today's moron-level campaigns, we are unlikely to see them discussed in a TV debate.

Patriotism struggles for definition in era of Koresh

BY GARY BELANGER GUEST COLUMNIST

It's hard to believe that it has been nearly 20 years since we celebrated our nation's 200th birthday. In 1976, our patriotism gave cause for celebration, but in 1996, our patriotism struggles for definition, and gives cause for great concern. We have gone from fireworks to explosions, from John Philip Sousa to David Koresh, from the open arms of the Statue of Liberty to the closed minds and fences of the Freemen in Justus Township Yet, throughout the drastic shift in our nation's patriotic focus, one document remains at the center of it all, holding everything together – the Constitution. Our founding fathers did an incredible job crafting the principles of a more perfect Union, especially with the Bill of Rights. My only criticism being the spelling error in the Second Amendment, "the right to bear arms" – I'm sure they did not want to see a proliferation of assault weapons, they must have meant we could wear short-sleeved shirts.

It is difficult to rank these amendments since they all are of such great significance, but as a writer, and as a citizen, I believe the First Amendment is the most widely applied, and therefore the most important of all of our constitutional rights. It is also the most widely abused of all of our rights, and, therefore, it is rapidly becoming the most threatened.

The beauty and the abuse of this law both stem from the same characteristic – the fact that it does not get specific about what kind of speech may be deemed inappropriate. Its protection is so broad that it allows everything from the political vitriol of Rush Limbaugh to the rhythmic mutterings of Snoop Doggy Dogg, from the doomsday preaching of televangelists to the putrid filth of child pornographers on the Internet. Whether we are peacefully petitioning our government for change, or if we are sitting on a bar stool dispensing simplistic wisdom through a gin-induced fog, we do it all under the First Amendment.

The greatest threats to this precious freedom do not come from those who abuse it, but rather from those who seek to "protect" us from such abuse. Groups like the Christian Coalition and the vaguely defined Religious Right want to legally establish what is proper and decent. This may bring the wrath of the family values crowd, but any time I hear someone preach about "decency" and "morality" I start to gag. I cringe at the thought that the middle-class, white bread "traditional Christian values" rhetoric might be the basis for establishing a nationally endorsed code of conduct.

It is for this reason that I felt a sense of victory when a federal appeals court struck down the four-month-old Communications Decency Act as unconstitutional. The judges said the law, which was intended to restrict children's access to pornography on the Internet, was overly broad and violated the First Amendment.

I agree with the judges that such government attempts are "profoundly repugnant" to the guarantee of free speech. I am certainly not an advocate for peddling porno to kids any more than I am a proponent of racial or sexual bigotry, but I strongly believe that the control of these things lies in the hands of the individual, not the government. The highest power of censorship is held by us as viewers or listeners—when confronted with something we find offensive, we usually have the choice to turn it off or walk away.

The clamor over abuses of free speech, or any other rights, should not be for governmental intervention, it should be for individual responsibility of the creators, producers, sponsors and, ultimately, the consumers of questionable material. As long as the right to free speech and a free press is vital to the existence of a democratic society, we must be willing to pay the price, and the price of any freedom is putting up with those who abuse it.

Leading the way to a healthier tomorrow. With your help.

Dear Friend:

Oakwood Healthcare System has recently completed the data gathering and planning phase of our transition process, which involved more than 400 people (including 147 physicians and dozens representing communities we serve) during the past six months. We are now moving ahead to ensure a healthier tomorrow for our patients/members and our organization as a whole.

Earlier this month, Oakwood's board adopted recommendations emerging from the process, and approved new strategies for the organization through the year 2000. You will hear more about these from us during the next several months.

Why do we feel new strategies are necessary?

Changes in healthcare are occurring in the Detroit area and in virtually every community in the United States. They are affecting every hospital and healthcare system nationwide. These changes include a decrease in inpatient volume, and increase in the demand for outpatient care and other non-acute services, the future decline of Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement, increased pressure from payers and purchasers to reduce costs and increase efficiencies, and managed-care reimbursement which sets fixed dollars per person and dictates a shift toward wellness.

We need to listen to our customers or we won't be in business long. And, we owe it to you and others to be as healthy and strong as possible — so we can meet and exceed your expectations for years to come.

Like any good business, we need to step up and make the adjustments necessary to meet our customers' long-term needs. Those adjustments will require large investments of time and money. However, we recognize our responsibility to make decisions — as difficult as they may be — keeping tightly focused on the best, long-term interests of all those we serve. We've set the strategies and, as customer demands dictate, we will make specific decisions on ways to follow them.

What will the changes achieve? They will ensure that you benefit from consistent, high-quality care across the Oakwood system; make it easier for you to access Oakwood services; make it easier, effective and more desirable for you to move out of the hospital and into the most appropriate non-hospital settings (such as being treated in doctors' offices or at home); promote wellness by increasing education on prevention; and replace unneeded hospital beds with a network of 24 outpatient centers.

You will learn more about these changes and how they will affect you and your family. In the meantime, a special toll-free phone line has been activated through September 30th to receive your questions and comments on this. Please call 1-800-861-4630 to offer a question or comment that can be considered by us in future communications with you. Also, please feel free to write to any of us with your ideas and thoughts at: A Healthier Tomorrow, Oakwood Healthcare System P.O. Box 2500, Dearborn, Michigan 48123-2500.

We are excited about these changes, and need your support and thoughts as we move forward,

Thank you.

Pioneer spirit saves the day

Pioneers in horse-drawn wagons crossing this great land of ours endured really bad stuff. And survived. And had energy left over to settle territories and clear the way for kith and kin. And they have my respect. Especially after my recent, slight brush with pioneering.

This brush, although slight and cushy, definitely had elements of pioneering: the fair distance traveled, the fair-sized brood traveling, wretched, inescapable heat and supplies - limited and organized. Our family flew on an airplane last Friday - the children's first flight.

We'd readied ourselves for this, packing supplies for the seven of us for three days. One suitcase contained all our clothes which resulted in clothes wafers. They'd be fine by the following day when Aunt Margret and Uncle Bob renewed their 50-year-old wedding vows in an old church on Cape Cod.

At the airport, we went to our plane, which wasn't there - it was delayed an hour. We unladened ourselves in the waiting area. We put the car seat down with Steven in it and the open-topped canvas bag, containing 487 pounds of very essential stuff. We put mild Jack down and my purse crammed full with Joe's blankie, three cameras, directions to the Cape Cod church, a song sheet, and Tylenol.

Time passed. Lunchtime neared. Jack's Jackness intensified. We were hungry. Hot. The Tylenol was lost in Joe's blankie. We were not

Hometown visit becomes 'big event'

Jack Riggs came up with an idea of heading back to his hometown of Portsmouth, Ohio, with a "few" of his buddies. Little did he know it would turn out to be a "big" event in the Buckeye State.

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

Riggs Jack thought it was a good idea ... taking a few of his buddies and their wives back to his old hometown for a visit.

A native of Portsmouth, Ohio, Riggs left the town of 29,000 in 1960 and came to Michigan in search of work. So why not take "10-12 guys" back to see what's going on there? Maybe the two shoe factories have closed and it's no longer the largest producer of steel in the area, but it's a town steeped in a history that even touches Detroit.

Well, it seems that little visit has turned into something much bigger.

A Mason for 32 years, the Garden City resident will be among 100 Masons from Michigan and another 600-700 Masons from Kentucky and Ohio converging on Portsmouth the weekend of July 12-14.

"I'm not really surprised, I'm elated," said Riggs, a 33rd degree Mason and worshipful master of Garden City Blue Lodge 587. "This is good for Masonry because people don't understand what a Mason is.'

"I loved the idea of a visitation." said C.R. Woody, a 14-year Mason and lodge ritualist. "I've already signed up. I lived in Toledo one time, but never been to Portsmouth."

within a town" of New Boston are welcoming visitors by making them honorary citizens, a courtesy extended by the city of Garden City to members of the Portsmouth Aurora Lodge 48. And William Clay Ford, also a Portsmouth and its "town

33rd degree Mason and owner of the Detroit Lions, has indicated the Lions organization will provide a gift for lodge member to present to the Portsmouth lodge.

The visitation includes an afterglow on the banks of the river under Grant Bridge, Saturday morning Maize and Blue vs. Buckeyes golf tournament, a banquet and performance of Woody. "Rose on the Altar" by the Valley of Cincinnati acting teams.

There also will be time to see the city's flood .3-mile long flood wall, covered with some 40 murals, depicting Portsmouth's history and historical personalities, painted by master of mural art Robert Dafford. While the men turn out at the

Vern Riffe Center for the Performing Arts for a combined Masonic ritual during which Blue Lodge member Doug Louisville of Livonia will become a master Mason, their wives will be treated to a concert fast fund and the sale of 500

at the Masonic Lodge.

"Each state has its own ritual for the master Mason degree, so there will be two portions," Riggs. said. "We will do one portion, using a pro-tem candidate, and the Aurora Lodge will do the second section, the Ohio rite."

"We'll have special paper aprons as keepsakes and to wear during the degree work," added

Three Aurora Loage members also will be made honorary lifetime members of the Blue Lodge and vice versa, during the weekend. And closing out the weekend will be a "hillbilly breakfast" at the Aurora Lodge on Sunday morning.

Helping out

The breakfast is nothing new to Blue Lodge which has its own all-you-can-eat-for-$3-per-person "hillbilly breakfast, served 8-11 a.m. the second Saturday of the month. Money from the break-commemorative badges - available at $2 each are - helps pay for the visitation.

"I hope to make it an annual event," Riggs said. "It all depends on how it turns out. There may be a reciprocal agreement that next year, they come up here."

The visitation is just one of the many things the lodge does. Through dues and fund-raisers, the lodge is able to provide community scholarships, help needy families at Christmas time, contribute to the Masonic Home in Alma, and support the Shrine Children's Program for burned and crippled children.

"Nationally, the Masons spend $1 million a day on its Shrine hospitals and philanthropies,' Riggs said.

With 402 members, 25 percent of whom live in Florida and have reached lifetime status, so they no longer pay dues, the Blue Lodge is feeling the pinch of an aging society.

Membership is by invitation, and the lodge has opened its doors to all and now counts Muslims, who take their oath on the Koran rather than a Bible, among its members.

Riggs has been active in the Scottish Rite and the Shriners for 20 years before returning to the Blue Lodge five years ago. He also served on the Development Committee for the state Masonic organization, which tapped his talents in membership, earning him, in part, his 33rd degree. Woody, who served as the lodge's worshipful master in 1984, has been retired for 14 years and admits that his workat the lodge "is all I do." "Woody puts in 12-14 hours a day here," Riggs said. "He sure is my right-hand man." But for now, the two men are busy finishing up plans for the visitation.

"I like to feel that this will be great to get the word out about Free Masonry," Riggs said. "It's hard to cover all the areas, so you usually end up hitting the bigger, more active ones.

"This will be a big plug for Masonry in Ohio."

returned. We ate standing up as airport etiquette dictates. Shortly after, we boarded the aircraft.

With carry-ons in hand, we bumped and lugged and oofed ourselves into the plane, down the narrow aisle and into our seats. The flight was smooth and breathtaking. My first time flyers were awestruck. Even wild Jack. The incredible power, unbelievable speed, and the 31,000 feet between the flying machine and earth - all very humbling. We safely landed in Boston's Logan Airport, located on its own land hunk in the Atlantic Ocean.

It's about 70 miles from Boston to Cape Cod by way of Route 3, an interstate highway, according to the map. And the highway goes right through Plymouth, where the pilgrims landed. A fun and historical drive was in store for us.

We picked up our rental vehi-and four large Pepsis later, he cle, a seven-passenger van and began our journey to the Cape. We'd never done this before this rental car thing. It was kind of cool. Well, not really. We got on the clogged one-way road, leading to the tunnel that gets you to the mainland into the heart of Boston, when the radio told us it was 93 degrees and many percents humidity. We turned the air-conditioning on. Heat came out. We shut the air-conditioning off and opened all windows. But that didn't help because we were in the tunnel clogged and stopped up all the way to the end.

So there we were, under the ocean, the seven of us, in a tunnel, windows open, vehicles pulsing and fuming beside us, behind us, ahead of us. I suggested singing songs from Carmen's song sheet she got at school two days before at her third-grade music program, still blankie.

"Keep it stuffed," someone mumbled.

Eleven miles ticked by on the odometer during the next 2 1/2 hours. Jack became the most unglued of us. Near Braintree, Mass., he did his 50th anniversary, I'm in a car, I'm too hot, uncles and airports and a gobbled hot dog trick. There was no place to pull over in that bumper-to-bumper, Friday afternoon, Boston to Cape Cod traffic. So from the 497-pound canvas bag I pulled a paper cup and many baby wipes, and then from nowhere in particular I pulled some pioneer spirit and worked with what I had and did what I had to do.

And then in the middle of it, Joe announced he was about to be sick, too. I talked him out of it. But I couldn't talk him out of having to go potty. Out came another paper cup. And then stuffed in my purse beside Joe's another for Carmen because her tooth was loose and all the commotion somehow made it looser. We passed through Plymouth some hours later. I felt a deep kinship with my Mayflower ancestors. And then a bit later, we arrived on Cape Cod. The next day, Aunt Margret and Uncle Bob renewed their vows in very old, white clapboard church with a steeple on top on the village square. All five of their children were present. And their families. And friends and relatives from far and wide. They'd all come. It was fitting. Because through thick and thin, far and wide, the anniversary couple had traveled to stand before the preacher. Inspiring the rest of us, blazing the way, settling territory.

Sure, we endured some bad stuff on Route 3. But it paled in comparison to the endurance of real pioneers and pilgrims and couples in love for 50 years.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, a Plymouth resident, call her at 953 -2047, mailbox 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write to her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

"It's an invitation to go to the rock and roll mecca."

Dombroski along with guitarists Joey Mazzola and Mike Cross, bassist Tim Cross and drummer Charlie Grover will head into United Sound studios in Detroit Sunday night for an interview and performance for the nationally syndicated radio show "Modern Rock Live," which is heard locally on CIMX-FM 88.7 (89X).

If all this is any indication of Sponge's future, the modern rock world better watch out. "Wax Ecstatic," recorded at The Loft in Saline with Tim Patalan once again co-producing with the band, will assuredly be one of the big albums of 1995. A marked improvement over the pop personality of "Rotting Pinata," "Wax Ecstatic" is a strong, straightahead rock effort that oozes of saxophones, sultry grooves, and relentlessly hook-laden songs. A host of guest musicians add cellos, trombones and trumpets to create the intimate feel of "Wax Ecstatic." Former Psychedelic Furs vocalist Richard Butler, now of Love Spit Love, lends his vocals to the chorus of "I Am Anastasia."

Dombroski explained that the maturation of the band's music came about through months of touring and the strong will to write new songs.

"We were actually touring (in support of 'Rotting Pinata') in early 1994 and the record wasn't even released until August 1994. We were playing those songs for a long time on the road. At the same time, we were writing a lot of new things so the evolution of the band was really accelerated due to all the constant writing and playing that we were doing," Dombroski

"By the time we got off the road in December 1995, we had more than enough material for the record. We had even put together a bunch of new songs that we added to the initial pile of songs. Then we found it the perfect opportunity to redefine what soulful slide guitars, grand pianos, Sponge was all about. I guess peo-

Initially, "Wax Ecstatic" was meant as a concept album about the life of a drag queen, but the band ditched that idea when they found it too limiting.

"We were going to do this whole thing based on the experience of this particular drag queen but decided to scrap the idea. It was too confining for us. We were going to do something like Al Green meets Iggy Stardust and mix it up a bit but it was too confining.

Some of the songs, however, stuck around. "Death of a Drag Queen," "Velveteen," "My Purity," and the title track.

"Wax Ecstatic" follows in the footsteps of "Rotting Pinata" which has sold more than one million copies and is still going strong with the singles "Plowed" and "Molly (Sixteen Candles)" inundating the airwaves thanks to the band's MTV Buzz Bin status. Besides touring the world, Sponge also spent the last few years appearing on David Letterman and Conan O'Brien shows. The track "Speed Racer" appeared on the "Saturday Morning Cartoons" compilation (MCA).

The band's growth musically on "Wax Ecstatic" goes hand in hand with Dombroski's growth as a lyricist. The song "Got To Be A Bore" is the "essence of what it is that we're trying to say on the record," he explained in his deadpan man-painting looks like a mask, another like a deer. That's what's so nice about abstracts. If you get tired of them, you can just turn them around," said Kachnowski.

-Using a variety of techniques including spattering painting like Jackson Pollack of the New York School, Kachnowski manipulates the works into representational Scotch pines, fishes and even the Milky Way. Colors like teal and purple are intense and joyful as Kachnowski herself.

"The whole world gives me ideas from a tree to a swatch of fabric or a mood I'm feeling," said Kachnowski.

And the mood she feels is happy-happy because she landed her first "real" job at Midwest Publishing four months ago after graduating from Eastern Michigan University in 1995, happy because she is making plans to get married later this year.

The fact that her daughter would become an artist comes as no surprise to Rose Kachnowski because she and husband Dan have worked for years as volunteers for community arts organizations including the Livonia Arts Commission and the Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

"Julie has always been multitalented. She worked her way through school decorating cakes and continues to do so on the side" said Rose Kachnowski.

"I'll just be sad to see all these paintings go when she gets married."

Julie Kachnowski, who began painting at Livonia's Steveson High School under the tutelage of Connie Cronenwett and John Wagner, is an artist just beginning life.

It will be interesting to see how her work evolves over the years and life's experiences. One thing's for sure, Kachnowski will continue to utilize her creativity no matter which road her life takes.

Prices range from $300-450 for the watercolors.

What you see: Julie Kachnowski paints trees, the cosmos, and earth in an abstract style to provoke viewers into thought.

SPECIAL EVENTS Clothes help set scene in 'Miss Saigon'

"Miss Saigon" plays at the Masonic Temple Theatre in Detroit through July 27. Tickets range from $16 to $60, call the Masonic Temple Theatre box office, (313) 832-2232 or Ticketmaster (810) 645-6666. BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

Back stage, Ricky Kelly, wardrobe supervisor for "Miss Saigon," opening Friday at the Masonic Temple Theatre, has his hands full. There are 43 people in the cast, and 450 costumes in the show. "The challenge is training the 13 dressers who will help the cast," said Kelly whose first professional job was dressing Raphael, the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle on theirnational rock concert tour. "We don't treat them like they're just swinging clothes around. We want them to feel like they're part of the show."

"Miss Saigon," which plays at the Masonic through July 27, is the newest musical by Alain Boublil and Claude-Michel Schonberg, the creators of "Les Miserables." Music for "Miss Saigon" is by Schonberg, with lyrics by Boublil and Richard Maltby Jr., adapted from the original French lyrics by Boublil.

"Miss Saigon" tells a story of love and self-sacrifice between a young Vietnamese girl and an American soldier at the time of the fall of Saigon in 1975. The costumes help set the scene making what the cast does on stage more believable. Attention to detail, and an effort to be as authentic as possible with costumes, are some of the things th at make "Miss Saigon" a blockbuster musical.

"Originally, the sandals the cast wore were made from the threads of old car tires, and the straps were made from bike tubes, just like they wore in Vietnam.

PREVIEW

"But they didn't hold up, so we had to come up with an alternative that looked authentic," explained Kelly.

The Vietnamese wedding dress worn at a small wedding in one of the scenes was made by a Vietnamese dressmaker.

The civilian clothes, circa 1970s, including Polyester bell bottoms, were found in a warehouse in New York. "They were brand new," exclaimed Kelly.

Dressers need to understand what the show is all about so they won't mistakenly mend clothes that are supposed to look tattered.

For example, after Saigon falls, the people are in hiding, and their clothes reflect their anguish.

"It's important that the dressers know that peasant clothing is supposed to be dirty and ripped."

Clothes help the audience distinguish between tourists, vendors, and a gang of hustlers in a scene that takes place in-Bangkok's Red Light District in the 1970s. They help define the difference between North and South Vietnamese soldiers too.

"The costumes really help classify people in the show," explains Kelly. "It adds another dimension. It's subtle, but makes a bold statement without knocking you over the head."

MOVIES Hugo's 'Hunchback' gets

classic Disney treatment

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

'I'm a strong believer that these are truly the golden days of Disney animation. From the Little Mermaid to Beauty and the Beast and even Pocahontas, the last decade has seen some of the studio's more indelible creations come to life on screen. If "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" disappoints even a little, it's only because of a feeling of Disney deja vu. We have, after all, seen countless animated protagonists who grow into heroes through the urging of little buddies, in this case a trio of talking gargoyle statues. What we haven't experienced before is the darkness that pervades even the happiest scenes in "Hunchback." The buildings and characters that populate 15th century Paris. are so oppressive and the music so overwhelmingly operatic that kids and some adults may squirm from the sheer weight of the whole experience.

Quasimodo (voice by Tom Hulce, a native of Plymouth) has spent his 20 years on earth locked behind the walls of Notre Dame cathedral, caring for the bells and gazing longingly on the bustling streets below.

Unlike the Victor Hugo original (and the excellent film versions that preceded this one), the title character is not deaf and slow-witted, but plucky and quick-witted, definitely more Lion King than Elephant Man Aside from the "cutefication" of Quasimodo, we also have a militant Esmerelda, the beautiful gypsy girl who nobly defies the authorities and is hunted through much of the movie because of it. She's your classic modern Disney heroine, with a Barbie doll body (voice and phys-

The film does justice to the famous "Feast of Fools" scene where Quasimodo and Esmerelda first meet. Thinking he must be wearing a mask, she participates in crowning him King of Fools until she realizes the cruel joke. Soon she seeks shelter with Quasimodo in the cathedral, claiming literal sanctuary from Paris law.

Every Disney film needs a villain and here we have Judge Frollo (Tony Jay). He has raised Quasimodo in the seclusion of the cathedral as a penance for killing the boy's mother. You'll hear other familiar voices as well. Kevin Kline does Phoebus, the noble captain of the guards who also becomes an outcast when he refuses to follow Frollo's orders. "Seinfeld's" Jason Alexander and "Murphy Brown's" stuffy Charles Kimbrough play two of the three gargoyles that encourage their friend Quasi to appreciate his back," even rhyming "Adonis" and "Croissant is" at one point. It's no coincidence that the score sounds a bit like "Les Miserables," another Hugo story served well by an epic musical.

The animators really show their stuff with the depictions of the world's most famous Gothic cathedral, with its carved stone columns and eerie statuary. Calling this Disney's least colorful feature is actually a compliment to the animators' evocative visual style, though I wish they had gone a step further and made the entire film in black and white. Ultimately, "The Hunchback" falls in the top half of Disney's 34 animated features.

While "Toy Story" and "James and the Giant Peach" have given us a peek into the next century. it's comforting to know that classic animation techniques continue to find sanctuary at the Disney studios.

Comic-strip 'Phantom' is fun

BY JOHN ROGERS ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Comic strips are like fast food for the mind.

Read one. And just try to remember afterward what it was aboutthat colorful good guy-bad confrontation in this week's serial that so intrigued you.

"The Phantom," from Paramount Pictures, this year's comic-strip entrant into the bigbudget movie sweepstakes, is like that, too.

You can revel in the slam-bang action sequences, marvel at the lushly filmed exotic locales from Thailand to Australia, then you leave the theater feeling, well, not hungry exactly, but not full

The story is comic-strip simple. Evil New York City businessman Xander Drax (and with a name like that how he could be anything but evil?) has dispatched his henchmen to the Bengalla jungle. Their mission: to swipe one of the mysterious Skulls of Touganda.

Bengalla, as every comic-strip aficionado knows, is patrolled by the Phantom himself, played here with delightful good-guy innocence and enthusiasm by Billy Zane.

The henchmen make off with the skull, of course, while the Phantom stops to rescue a little boy they've left tied up in atruck that's about to topple off a bridge into a picturesque gorge.

The catch is that Drax needs three skulls before he can harness the mysterious power that will allow him to conquer the world.

The Phantom quickly tails him to New York, loses him, gets back on the trail and eventually confronts him in a fight for Skull No. 3 that takes place on an underground island somewhere under a Bermuda Triangle-like section of ocean.

Along the way, the Phantom gets help from (and must repeatedly rescue) Diana Palmer (Kristy Swanson), who, by lucky coincidence, is the old college flame of the Phantom's alter-ego, Kit Walker.

Well, this being a comic strip, it would seem pretty clear from the get-go which side is going to triumph in a battle of good versus evil.

Thus the fun must be derived in getting to that final showdown, and in wondering whether the Phantom will win over Diana's affections. Or, for that matter, if she'll figure out that the big handsome lug in the purple tights and mask is the same guy who dumped her after college to go riding through the jungle on his white horse fighting bad guys.

In this, "The Phantom" generally delivers. The chemistry between Zane and Swanson is there, and some of the slam-bang special effects scenes directed by Simon Wincer, including one in which the pair escape Drax's men by going from an airplane to horseback, is nothing less than spectacular.

Diana, meantime, is no shrinking violet, but a woman able to deliver a good kick below the belt or a round-house right to the head with about as much gusto as her protector does.

The Phantom, meanwhile, might seem at first to be at a bit of a disadvantage to other comicstrip heroes who have made it to the big screen. He has special powers like Superman, after all. and no dark demons haunting his soul like Batman, who as a child saw his parents slain by criminals and vowed revenge.

But Zane, who was mean as they come in the film "Dead Calm," makes the character work here by being such a nice guy. Also, having a deceased former Phantom father (Patrick McGoohan in a role played so wryly that one wishes there was more to it) showing up at key moments to offer paternal advice doesn't hurt either.

Not that there aren't problems. Screenwriter Jeffrey Boam, whose previous credits include "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade" and the last two "Lethal Weapon" movies, seems to be trying so hard to give the characters snappy dialogue that they risk self-parody at times.

Treat Williams' evil Drax also isn't quite far enough over the top, as say Jack Nicholson's "Joker" was in Batman.

And one can't help feeling that we've seen all this before in one form or another. Jungle locales, daring rescues, evil vil-

Check out any of the Indiana Jones films or James Bond or Batman.

But, hey, it's a comic strip. It's not supposed to be deep. It's supposed to be fun. And it is.

Human beings, who hunger for meaning, are trapped in a meaningless universe that some have called absurd, amoral, or just plain "crazy."

But how do we live in a crazy world without becoming crazy ourselves? Rejecting what Wine calls the "false security" of traditional religious solutions, as well as the passivity of scientific determinism. Wine insisits that we have the tools to forge a meaningful life for ourselves and for others. These tools are reason and the freedom of choice that its use implies.

Wine then proceeds to defend a rational way of life against contemporary attacks that claim reason, if it exists at all, is "cold," too analytical, and out of touch with our inner reality, the unconscious. True, counters Wine, reason is not emotional

In the second half of the book, Wine applies his philosophic principles to the subject of living with dignity and courage. In his "Ten Steps to Sanity" the author helps us answer fundamental questions of life. For example, what is the nature of constructive love, and how do we practice it? The annual Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association All-Star Game featured some of the top seniors Monday at Tiger Stadium.

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Though they were on the losing team. Monday, the high school all-star baseball game was still a winning experience for two area players. Farmington's Joe Kalczynski (Brother Rice) and Mike Daguanno (Catholic Central) couldn't stop the East from losing 3-0 to the West but enjoyed playing in the annual event at Tiger Stadium.

It was the first time on the Major League diamond for Daguanno but the third visit for Kalczynski, who played there in the last two Catholic League championship games.

Kalczynski, a catcher who signed with Michigan State, helped the Warriors win the league title over Orchard Lake St. Mary's this year after a runner-up finish as a junior.

"It's just fun going out there," he said. "You have the best players in the state there. You get to see best players from the West, too. You never hear about them, but obviously they can play."

"It would have been great to win the league championship (on the same field), but it was nice to play in Tiger Stadium," Daguanno said. "When I heard I was picked to play in this game, I was really happy."

"The game wasn't boring, but there weren't many hits, and it was real hot and humid. I think I was sorta in awe most of the time."

Daguanno, a good-hitting first baseman who has signed with the University of Detroit, went 0-for-2 but hit the ball hard each time to center field. Kalczynski was 0-for-1 with a walk. "I was just excited; I was kinda nervous the first time up," Kalczynski said. "I went out for five innings and came back; I was more relaxed and ended up walking. It's always fun, getting to hit in Tiger Stadium."

Ironically, neither player started the game at his usual position. Daguanno entered in the second

"I made a nice grab in left field; I was pretty happy with myself," Daguanno said. "I haven't played that position in 31/2 years, probably since I was a freshman.

"They told me the day before they were going to put me in left field to get me some innings, because they wanted someone else to play first. I didn't have a problem with that, because I'll probably play some out-

Kalczynski, who played CYO baseball along with Daguanno at Our Lady of Sorrows and was on the same summer team as him until last year, was impressed by his former teammate's outfield play.

"I was happy to see him do well." Kalczynski said. "He stole a double from the kid; it was unbelievable. He doesn't even play left field, and he made it look easy.

Kalczynski was drafted in the 32nd round by the Detroit Tigers in the Major League draft this month; but a decision has been put on hold until August. As of now, his plans are to attend MSU in the fall. "(Tigers scout Glenn Murdock) said they already had five catchers down in Florida, and I might not get a fair shot," Kalczynski said. "He suggested I stay here and play summer ball, and they'll re-evaluate me Aug. 12. They're bringing all of their draft picks to Tiger Stadium for a tryout that day.

"They drafted a catcher in the fifth round from Cal State-Fullerton who is supposed to be real good, and I'm not sure where he is."

including a first-place finish in the Livonia Public Schools tournament. "I have been blessed with players wno are dedicated and not airaid to work hard to achieve those goals,' said Hardwidge, who was named Observerland Coach of the Year for the second time. "It's a coach's dream to be able to work with the great attitudes I had this year. I'll miss the chemistry on this team this Six of our seven losses were by one run, and the other loss was by only two. That's incredible in itself."

But the Indiana club took the lead for good on pitcher Chris Diller's homer in the fourth.

Concealed earned a berth in the finals by downing Little Caesars Federation rival Michigan Indians, 19-4, as Anthony Volpe (Farmington) led a 15-hit attack by going 3-for-3 with three RBI.

Kyle Miller, Greg Hocking (Farmington), Rigley and Shaun Murray (Redford) added two hits apiece, while Mark Pirronello (Livonia), Andrew Soley and Mark Monterey (Farmington) chipped in with one each.

Against Dearborn, LBC rallied from a 4-0 third-inning deficit to earn the tie as starter John Ritzler (Stevenson) settled down and received timely defense over the final seven inning to keep Dearborn at bay.

LBC tallied three runs in the sixth and added another in the seventh to send the game into extra innings.

The Greater Detroit Bowling Association and Detroit Women's Bowling Association held their annual banquet recently at the Polish Century

This is the occasion for awards to be presented in recognition of exceptional scores in sanctioned league play. The allcity teams are recogalso nized.

It is also the time and place for the city tournament champions to receive their accolades. For years we have had the nation's largest bowling population and these two associations are the largest anywhere.

This site for the banquet has become a long-standing tradition with all the good Polish kielbasa, pork chops and chicken served family style-along with all the rest of the fare. Very good, very filling.

We go off the diet again for Tom McKay served as Master of Ceremonies, the honorable David Szymanski, judge of probate court, swore in the newlyinstalled officers.

Westland to Donald LaMothe.

As usual, the many fine bowlers from the Observerland communities took home much of the hardware.

The men's all-city first team had Garden City's Rick Eiermann along with Steve Roberts, Vernon Peterson, John Britt, Jr. and Ken Wyatt. The top lady in the local scene was Lisa Bishop of Belleville with 214.5 points, followed closely by Farmington Hills' Tamika Glenn and Redford Township's Cheryl Stipcak with 214 points each.

How close can you get? Those three made the first team along with Carmeletha Allen and Altramese Webb. while the second team has Tina Mikolowski, Aleta Sill, Sandra Winbigler, Charlyn Gerbasi-Kruliski and Jayne Nizza. Bowlers Man of the Year honors went to Bob Goike of Belleville. Southfield's Ruth Beutner was named as co-winner of Secretary of the Year along with Luphilia Higginbotham for the ladies leagues. John Meyka was named Secretary of the Year by the men's leagues.

In the GCBA City Tournament, Classics Pro Shops won the actual pinfall title with 3,626, while S & B No. 4 took the regular division title with 3,460, plus 327 handicap for a 3.787 total.

Eiermann was the singles actual champion with 797 and he also took all events with Michael Barr of WJR AM-760 was presented with the meritorious service award for some outstanding activities during the past year, including his 24hour marathon for the cancer foundation.

Other O & E area bowlers who received honors included Bryan Macek of Canton, Troy Stus of Garden City and Jon Reed and Julius Maisano from Redford Township.
In the DWBA City Tournament, it was Contour Power Grips who proved to be unbeatable. Led by West Bloomfield's Kathy Haislip and Garden City's Jeanne Gebbia, they won both the actual and handicap titles.

The singles was won by Allen, while Bishop added to her many laurels with the allevents title.

The most improved woman bowler in the city was Barbara L. Motte, who went from 110 to 149, up 39 pins.

Peterson stands out as the one to watch, competing in his first year of adult competition straight out of the youth leagues.

The GDBA and DWBA prove year in and year out that they are not only the biggest, but the best as well.

• The boys and girls club of Troy became the beneficiary of a tournament by the General Motors Truck Division in which they took pledges based on the number of fallen pins per entrant.

It is part of a movement by GM to get their own employees more involved in community activities.

It turned out to be a bonanza for the boys and girls club as they were handed a check for $7,000 which was raised for them while at Thunderbird Lanes.

Accoding to Bill Rietow, of the GM North American Truck Group, "this was a great success and everybody had a lot of fun doing it."

• Jeff Dishong of Westland has been well known to the local bowlers for a long time as a pro shop operator and an allstar bowler.

How about a hole in one for Jeff while playing at Brae Burn Golf Course last week. This is a nice companion trophy to go along with his eight 300 games in bowling, including one this past season.

A 300 game is rare enough. A hole in one is just as hard, but to do both?

A rare feat indeed, although his wife, Debra, said, "He seemed so calm about it.

This is much more than a lucky shot. Jeff is an excellent golfer, recently trying out for a PGA card in which he was among three who made it out of 75 entrants and on his first try.

So Jeff, are there other mountains to climb?

Barons take Homeplate Tourney with 20-1 win

South Farmington Barons baseball coach Dick Miller attributed a Monday loss to the post-weekend blues and a worthy opponent.

After winning the Homeplate Tournament in St. Clair Shores on Sunday, the Barons suffered an 8-3 loss to the Adrian Lookouts in Connie Mack action at Farmington High.

The Barons won five straight games in the tournament, beginning with a 6-0 defeat of the Lakeland (West Bloomfield) Ath-

David Viane went 3-for-4 with a two-run homer and three RBI. Ryan Andrzejewski pitched a three-hit complete game with 11 strikeouts and one walk.

South Farmington rolled over the (Walled) Lake Athletics as the Barons supported pitcher Steve Waller with 20 hits.

Waller went the distance, scattering eight hits and retiring the last nine batters in a row.

Mike Daguanno went 4-for-6 with six RBI to lead the hitting barrage. His hits included two doubles and a two-run homer; he also scored three runs.

C.J. Ghannam and Ryan Rumberger went 3-for-5, and Andrzejewski hit a grand slam, Ghannam had two RBI and Rumberger a solo homer.

Chris Karney, Viane, Garet Burch and Todd Miller chipped in two hits apiece. Karney scored three runs and had two RBI, Burch and Miller two runs and two RBI each.

The third game was the pivotal contest as South Farmington edged Ann Arbor 5-4, breaking a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning when Miller hit a ground ball through the left side to score Burch.

Viane gave the Barons another complete game on the mound, striking out nine and walking five while allowing seven hits. He struck out the final batter with runners at first and second.

Andrzejewski hit a solo homer, and Viane was the only one with two hits. Rumberger, Burch and Karney drove in one run each.

Marty Wilk pitched a four-hitter with seven strikeouts as the Barons defeated the North Oakland Stars 11-2. The Barons scored seven runs in the sixth to BASEBAL expand a 4-2 lead.

Viane went 3-for-4 with four RBI, and Burch slugged a threerun homer. Karney and Ghannam had two hits and scored three runs each. Daguanno had two RBI with a sacrifice and a walk.

The championship game was hardly a contest as South Farmington whipped the Fort Wayne Falcons 20-1 in a five-inning mercy. Ryan McGrath pitched four innings for the win.

Ghannam was 3-for-3 and scored five runs; Burch went 3for-4 with two RBI and scored three times. Jason Elinburger (CMU) and Wilk had two hits and four RBI each.

"We used the tournament to kick off the season, because we hadn't had a lot of practice time," Miller said. "We got very hot with the hitting and stung the ball. We went over there to work the kinks out and kept getting better and better."

On Monday, the Lookouts scored five runs in the top of the fourth to take a 7-0 lead.

Karney hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the fourth. The Barons scored twice in the sixth when Daguanno followed a Karney single and Ghannam double with a two-run double.

Karney and Ghannam had two hits apiece. The Barons, who are part of the South Farmington Baseball organization, were outhit 9-5. Nick Latra pitched a complete game for the Barons.

Fortuna tosses no hitter

Maring Fortuna (Catholic Central) pitched a no-hitter Saturday as the South Farmington Diamondbacks defeated North Farmington 7-0 in Palomino baseball.

The offense was led by Judah May (CC) with three hits, two RBI and two runs scored.

Dave Gosselin (North Farmington) and Ben Meyer (Lutheran Westland) had two hits and two RBI apiece.

The Diamondbacks compete in the Oakland County League, which is comprised of 10 teams from Clarkston to Farmington.

*Because of her tremendous speed, we made Jenny into a left-handed slapper who made things happen when she was on base," Hardwidge said. "Jenny was also the stabilizing force defensively, always maintaining her poise and concentration, regardless of the situation."

Angela Montagano, catcher. Thurston: The junior batted .523 (23 for 44) and had an on-base percentage of .649 in 14 division games en route to All-Mega Blue honors.

She scored 21 runs, with seven doubles, two triples and one homer.

"Angela was a hitter all year long." Thurston coach Al Nagy said. "She caught every inning of every game and never complained. She just does her job. I wish I had more like her."

Montagano, who led the Eagles to the Mega-Blue Division title, was voted team MVP and made Class B All-District.

Stefanle Volpe, catcher, Salem: What Volpe did to opposing pitchers was merciless. And yet, as bad as it was. there's worse news - Volpe is just a sophomore.

Which means opponents must endure two more seasons of this: a .573 batting average; 10 doubles, five triples. seven home runs and 48 runs batted in: 43 runs scored; and just four strikeouts in 82 at-bats.

A lefthanded-hitter, Volpe led Salem 10-for-11 and helped the Marlins win in each of those offensive categories except doubles. She was an all-WLAA first team selection.

And her defense showed promise, as well. She started at catcher for the first December and asked her to take control among her 29 hits. She batted .363. time; last season, she played third base for Salem.

"She's got a real good arm," said her coach, Bonnie Southerland.

Still, it's her offense that draws raves. 'She's got great bat speed," Southerland added. "She'll play in college, there's no doubt in my mind.

"You're going to hear a lot about her."

Lauren Wright, infleider, Redford er. She made three unassisted double Union: The senior shortstop, a first-team All-Observer pick a year ago, batted .419 with a team-high 39 RBI. She had 36 hits, scored 26 runs and had an onbase percentage of .564 with a slugging percentage of .605.

"Lauren had a quick bat and was hard to strike out," RU coach Gary DeRoche said of the three-year starter, who bounced back after sitting out her sophomore year with knee surgery. "She delivered with people on base. Her eyes would light up and she made some outstanding defensive plays. She could go in the hole and throw people out because she has a great arm. She's one of the top two players I've coached at RU (along with Andrea Roedding)."

Wright, who also stood out in volleyball and basketball, is headed to play hoops at Grand Valley State.

Heldl Wahl, Infielder, Mercy: The senior shortstop was a four-year varsity regular for the Marlins, playing third base part of the time, too.

Wahl was one of Mercy's leading hitters this year with a .343 batting average, a slugging percentage of .629 and an on-base percentage of .488.

Her two dozen hits included six doubles, four triples and two home runs. Wahl had 18 RBI and scored 14 runs. She also had a .978 fielding percentage Colleen Wutke, outflelder, Garden City: No surprise here. Wutke, a senior, was picked for the all-Observer team for the second-straight year.

She was also chosen to the all-state team for the second consecutive year. Both were earned by an athlete with an impressive array of skills.

Wutke, a senior centerfielder, hit .391 with five doubles and three triples, tying Bauer for the team lead in RBI with 29. She also scored 22 runs and stole nine bases.

In the field, Wutke made just one error. She was named to the all-Mega Red Division team once again, too.

"Colleen's just a very talented athlete," said her coach, Barry Patterson. "She's big, powerful, and has good speed - kind of the whole package."

Condo conversion expert likes Rochester

Michigan Condominium Corp. has converted thousands of apartment units to condominiums over the years.

It's most recent transformation is Oak Hill Apartments to Hills of Rochester Condominium off University a short walk to downtown Rochester.

A one bedroom flat of 610 square feet is priced at $39,990, a two-bedroom flat of 750 square feet at $54,990 and a two-story townhouse with two bedrooms and some 950 square feet at $65,990.

There's a $2,000 premium for flats on the first floor. However, buyers can knock $4.500 to $5,500 off the purchase price if they accept a unit as-is without renovations or new appliances.

The apartments were built in five, two-story buildings between the middle 1960s and early 1970s.

About half of the 71 units have sold, said P. Craig Cubba, vice president with Michigan Condominium.

"We're able to acquire properties at a good price, work hard to control costs in the renovation program and pass that savings along to customers," he said.

"The first thing that attracted us to this development, acquiring this piece of property, was to downtown proximity Rochester. I believe we're a quarter mile from Main Street.

"Second was the mixture of units. We had a variety of townhouses, one-bedroom and twobedroom flats so we could offer consumers a variety of housing choices," Cubba said.

A small park is a short walkaway and you pass Paint Creek, the library and post office between Hills of Rochester and downtown.

Since taking control of the property in April, Michigan Condominium has reshingled all the roofs and refinished the parking lot. Common hallways will be re-carpted, wall-papered and receive a new chandelier-type Brass kick-plates will be installed on exterior entry doors, new light fixtures outside the doors. Siding and wood will be painted.

Each unit, when reconditioned, will get a new range, refrigerator and dishwasher; new kitchen cabinets, countertop, and faucets; new carpeting in the living area and bedrooms; new bathroom sink, faucets and cabinet; new vinyl floor in the kitchen and all rooms painted.

Each unit will have at least one wall air conditioner. Most of the units will have one parking space in a carport.

The townhouses will have private basements with hook-ups for washers and dryers. The flats will have pay laundry facilities and storage areas in common basements.

Water, sewer, baseboard steam heat and trash removal are included in the monthly maintenance fee, set at $107 for a one bedroom unit, $128 for a two bedroom and $142 for a town-buyers, older retirees, younger singles and, with townhouses, younger families," Cubba said. "The price seems to be attractive. To get something in the Rochester area at this price is unusual, I guess.

Brick is the primary exterior material with some aluminum siding and wood.

Ownership opportunity: Buyers can acquire a one-bedroom apartment to condo conversion for $39,990 at the Hills of Rochester Condominium.

'The best part is location, the complex itself and improvements we're doing.'

> Gloria Phillips sales rep

"I think the Rochester school district is excellent. You're close to entertainment and night life. It's a growing area.

"The basic idea is what you see "We're getting a mixture of is what you get. For some people, it's a good starter home. People are impressed when they come visit about the extensive renovations we have planned and are in process," Cubba said.

A one bedroom model with upgrades has been reconditioned. Prospects also can poke around a two-bedroom and a townhouse to get a sense of floor plan, but those units haven't been spruced up.

The property tax rate for 1996 is estimated at $34.53 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $54,990 condo in the Hills of Rochester would pay about $950 the first year.

"The best part is location, the complex itself and improvements we're doing," said Gloria Phillips, sales rep. "Visitors love the neighborhood, that they can walk right into town. And the price is right."

Tony Burgi bought a town-

"I just moved to Michigan, relocated from Florida. I didn't really want to spend $250,000 for a new house," he said. "It's fairly inexpensive to own it while I check out different areas.

"For a reconditioned townhouse, it's a pretty decent price. Being two blocks off the main street is pretty nice. I think it will have good resale or rent potential," Burgi said.

Robert Patrician said he's buying two units - a townhouse to live in and a two-bedroom to be rented as an investment. "I'm president of my own property management corporation," he said. "For the money, it seems like a good buy. From what I can tell, they do fairly high-quality work for the money.

"In the next 10 years, Rochester should appreciate close to what Birmingham has done," Patrician said.

The sales office at the Hills of Rochester Condominium, (810) 651-9751, is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Portable circular saw is handy on the job

straight cut, a portable circular saw is a good alternative to a cumbersome table saw.

A portable circular saw consists of a motor that drives a disc-shaped blade. The motor is enclosed in a case with handles, and blade guards. Locking devices help to make the saw safe, provided that they are always used.

Types of circular saws

The size of a circular saw is determined by the diameter of its blade. The 7 1/4-inch models are by far the most popular and practical. Generally, a 1-horsepower (or 11-ampere) motor drives a 7 1/4-inch blade efficiently for most jobs. Weight also helps a saw cut smoother, but make sure a model is not so heavy that it is fatiguing and hard to control.

Two kinds of circular saw blades work for most jobs, a general-purpose combination blade with 20 to 24 teeth and a fine cutting blade with about 40 teeth. As a rule, it's best to get carbide-tipped blades. They stay sharp longer, but they're expensive and more brittle and can be damaged if improperly handled.

If you plan to cut metal, use a special metal-cutting blade - and brace yourself for a shower of sparks. To ensure safety, wear earplugs and goggles or a full face-mask. Work far away - say 50 feet - from as likely to catch fire. When sawing metal use a metal blade guard; plastic melts.

Preparation

When used carelessly, a circular saw can be dangerous. To avoid kickback, a prime cause of circular saw accidents, make sure the blade is sharp and clean. Clamp the work to a firm surface. Don't saw

(AP) - For most household jobs that require a quick wet wood. Be especially careful when sawing warped or knotty wood.

A portable circular saw cuts upward. The teeth of the blade often splinter the wood as they emerge. For a neat cut, mark cutting lines on the back of a piece and clamp the piece face down.

To make more accurate cuts with a circular saw, mark the cutting line on the front of the saw's base plate with paint or an indelible felt marker.

Want your saw to glide as it cuts? Heat the surface slightly with a hair dryer, then rub a block of paraffin wax on the

Using the saw

Maintain a firm footing and never reach too far with the saw. Stand to the side so you're out of the way if the saw does kick back. Keep a firm grip on the saw. Start the saw before the blade touches the work. Release the trigger immediately if the saw starts to bind. At the end of the cut, hold the saw firmly to keep it from dropping. Wait for the blade to stop before removing it from the work.

underside of the saw's baseplate.

Cutting depth

Always set the blade to the depth needed for a particular job. Don't just set it to its full depth and leave it there regardless of the depth of cut. Doing so is dangerous because it can cause kickback.

Here's an easy way to measure and set your circular saw's cutting depth without having to pull out a measuring tape every time. Mark one-halfinch, three-fourths-inch and 1 1/2-inch blade depth measurements on the saw's blade guard with a fine-point permanent marker. Then line up the bottom of the saw's soleplate with the appropriate

The association is in the process of moving its headquarters from the Penobscot Building, where it has been since August 1984, to 2100 Buhl Building. The Accounting Aid Society has formed the Jeanne R. Vogt Celebration of Leadership award. The annual award - being established in honor or retiring Accounting Aid Society President Jeanne Vogt - it designed to recognize individuals or organizations that exemplify creative and effective leadership in their service to the community. Recipients of the award may represent the nonprofit, public or private sectors, or a combination. The purpose of the award is two-fold: to commemorate Vogt's career, and to recognize others who demonstrate commitment and effectiveness, according to Aid Society President Cynthia Tanner, who was named as Vogt's successor. "Jeanne made indelible marks throughout Michigan during her 18 years at the Accounting Aid Society," Tanner said. "She has tirelessly shared her expertise in organizational, planning, diversity training and board development, and in advocacy for community-based organizations. The celebration of leadership will acknowledge the highest standards and best practices of service to the community." Nomination applications will be available at the beginning of next year. The first winner will be announced at the 25th anniversary gala of the society in June 1997.

INVITING IDEAS

Flowers, flowers everywhere - even on pizza

MOSSOK JOHNSTON

I know spending a lot of time in my garden has its effects on me - it gives me a great sense of communing with nature, a sense of accomplishment, a quiet time for restructuring my priorities, and a challenge to my creativity ... these are all good things well, except for my creative compulsivity for flowers!!!

There are now flowers affoat in my soups, flowers suspended in my ice cubes, flowers adding color to my butter, flowers embedded in my homemade pasta, flowers (non-edible ones) in my vases - flowers scattered in my salads (the edible ones) and now, flowers on my pizza!

Wait till my zucchini blossoms start popping - for those, I do a tempura batter and fry, or stuff with cheese and serve as an appetizer! So much for the Retro Mania of the '60's, this is my interpretation/expression of a true flower child...where's my beaded headband?

With all flowers for eating - make sure they are edible (check your resources!) - make sure they have not been dipped in dye - make sure they are chemical and pesticide free!! The safest way of utilizing petals and flowers, is to grow them from seed yourself. If growing them is not an option, make sure you find an organic source.

Herb flowers are wonderful to use, they are usually small and delicate, and can be used whole - they all have different flavors. When using different types of herb flowers, I never use more than three types at a time - don't confuse the flavors by adding too many of them. I particularly love the flowers from the rosemary, basil, and thyme plants. If I'm using chives or nasturtiums, I usually don't mix more than two flowers because of their size. Nasturtiums can be used whole, or just use the petals.

BLOOMING PIZZA

Yield: Two large round pizzas

When making this pizza, feel free to add your own favorite ingredients - be creative, and keep in mind your use of color. Have some dried red pepper flakes on hand, or add some fresh herbs to give your pizza more flavor - experiment! Serve this colorful goodie as an appetizer or a main dish - add a crisp light white wine - serve outdoors and enjoy the warm summer air.

GARDEN SPOT

Reap garden delights from books

"The Transplanted Gardener," Charles Elliott (Lyons & Buford, $22.95), will delight those readers of Horticulture magazine who have enjoyed Elliott's writings.

He is an American editor in London for Alfred A. Knopf now living in the United Kingdom who writes about any subject concerning gardening there. His essays run the gamut from shovels, bedding out, garden visiting to vegetables.

We meet well-known and not-so-well-known gardeners and learn about their eccentricities, ideas and thoughts in a writing style that is both scintillating and serious. This is an enjoyable "take-to-bed" book as a prelude to a relaxing sleep.

"Step-by-step Gardening Techniques Illustrated," Elaine Sears (Garden Way, $22.95), is long overdue. Since 1984 the step-by-step series has taught readers of Horticulture magazine the correct way to perform many garden chores and now they are here in one volume.

Each subject is clearly illustrated with black and white line drawings by Sears and no-nonsense instructions by experts such as Nancy Bubel, Lee Reich and Janet Sanchez.

Whether you want to take rose cuttings, make manure tea, lay a flagstone path, improve the soil, raise ferns from spores or work on any other of the 86 projects, you will find the correct procedures here. Keep it for reference.

"Morning Glories & Moonflowers," Anne Halpin (Simon & Schuster, $22.50), explains how to use vines in many areas, how to support them and the correct supports needed, where and when to plant them, in the ground or containers.

Halpin has chosen her favorites and includes horticulture requirements from watering, fertilization, rejuvenation training and more. One section is devoted to profiles of her favorite plants, which makes the book complete. If a vine is in your garden plans, this book will give excellent guidance.

"The Garden in Winter," Rosemary Verey (Timber Press, $24.95, paper), beautifully illustrates the importance of structure in the garden from plants to hard structures such as statues or architectural details.

Whether snow-covered or not, plants that are chosen for their form and foliage color will provide their own winter beauty. We can provide a surprising array of color in this type of garden.

Season's readings: Garden books make good summer reading.

Included are lists of chores for maintenance as well as things to do at this time of year for pleasure such as feeding the birds. The plant portraits will open new possibilities for winter interest.

"The Poetry of Roses," Carolyn Parker (Abrams, $19.95), will be appreciated by all lovers of poetry and the beauty of the rose: Parker has photographed roses from her California garden with great care and has captured them exquisitely from a perfect single rose or bud to an armful.

She has chosen poems from long ago, such as "In the garden mystery glows the secret is hidden in the rose" (Farid un-Din Attar, 1119-1230), "Unbent by winds, unchill'd by snows, Far from the winter of the west, By every breeze and season blest, Returns the sweets by nature given in softest incense back to Heaven..." (George Gordon, Lord Byron, 1788-1824), to Dorothy Parker's "One Perfect Rose." A lovely gift.

"The 3,000-mile Garden," Leslie Land and Roger Phillips (Viking, $24.95), is the correspondence between these two gardeners about gardening, food and their everyday lives.

LET'S REMODEL

Here's what to expect when remodeling

Q: We have just purchased our first home and know that the bathroom needs to be remodeled. We have had no previous experience with any type of remodeling and would like to know what we should expect the project to cover and how long will it take?

A: Many people purchase their first house only to find that once they have moved in, unpacked the boxes, and arranged the furniture that it is time to start making it feel like home. With the creation of indoor plumbing out goes the days when a plain wooden shack with a creaking door, cold wooden seat and lack of proper lighting do we find. that one room can require so many choices. Bathrooms come in many sizes and have become the one room in the house that needs to offer its owners and users the widest variety of functions, style and durability. So let's take a look at some of the features and areas that will need to be addressed from determining a practical budget to the finishing touches.

The Budget: This area is that starting point for which all future decisions will be impacted the most. Most total bathroom remodels start at about $6,000 and may go as high as $20,000.

That means that there are a lot of options to choose from.

The Contractor: Select a contractor who has built a good reputation within the area that he services. Ask how long he has been in business and ask for his referral list. Check to see that they are properly licensed and insured and the time in which the work will be performed and completed. Make sure that the proper permits/inspections will be obtained by the contractor. Take the time to follow up with phone calls to the people on the referral list and understand that this process may take time due to everyone working different schedules. Many problems arise from entire project with your contractor to not taking the time to select a contractor that meets your expectations.

The Fixtures: Ask if there is a showroom available for you to visit and select the specific items for your bathroom. The range of items should not be limited to one manufacturer or color. Don't be afraid to ask what options are available and their impact on your budget. Selecting poor quality items can start you down the path to a poor quality bathroom. If your contractor sends you to the local discount home center for your selections, then that may be the first indication that your contractor may not know the full range of product lines available.

Installation: From the time the old fixtures are removed, to the time that walls, floor structures, electrical and plumbing services are completely checked and ready do we start the rebuilding process. Two inspections will be necessary during the project. One at the completion of the rough-in stage and one at the completion of all work. Any items that fail these inspections should be addressed right away.

Insulation keeps temperature just right

One of the ways a house loses and gains heat is through conduction. Conduction is the movement of heat through solid objects, such as walls, the ground, floors and ceilings.

Heat always moves toward the cold, trying to equalize the temperature, and does move through solid material. Heat inside a warm house will always try to escape and, in the summer, the heat outside tries to get in.

Insulation in floors, ceilings and walls is helpful because it traps tiny pockets of air that retard the transfer of heat. Insulation won't stop heat entirely, but will slow it down.

Insulation's effectiveness is indicated by its "R-value," which is its ability to resist heat flow from warmer to cooler areas. The higher the R-value, the more effective the insulation. It is important to remember that a material's insulating ability is based on R-value, not thickness. In Michigan, the recommended R-value is R-38.

Types of insulation are:

 Batts and blankets — fiberglass. The R-value per inch is 3.1 to 3.5. It is best suited for standard joists, studs or rafter spacing in attics, walls and the underside of floors.

• Loose fill - cellulose, fiberglass and vermiculite. The R-value per inch is 2.2 to 3.7. It is best suited for non-standard spacing, infill of block walls and when spacing between joists that have obstructions.

• Rigid board — polystyrene, polyisocyanurate, urethane and bead board. The R-value per inch is 3.5 to 5.5. It is best suited for basement walls, foundations, exterior walls, interior walls and cathedral ceilings.

When adding insulation in the attic, keep at least 1-1/4 inches of space between the insulation and the sheathing to allow air from the soffit/eave vents to flow to the ridge and/or gable

You can expect to pay 65 cents to $1 per square foot for insulation, including labor and materials. Many homeowners reduce their cost significantly by adding insulation themselves, something that is easy in almost all homes.

In the attic, a contractor will install about nine inches of insulation. If you have a 1,000-square foot attic at an insulation cost of $650 to $1,000, you can expect savings of $125 to $200 per year, depending on the climate. Your payback would occur in five to six

Insulating walls can be an economic loser without careful planning. It, years. An even better option is to requires drilling holes, filling walls and using an infrared scanner. Walls also have much more square footage to insulate than the attic. With 4,000 square feet of walls in an average house, the cost may be $3,500 to $4,500 professionally installed. You may not break even on your investment for 15 to 20

Smoothtop ranges are hot in the kitchen

In the 1980s, smoothtop ranges were relatively rare. You were lucky to find more than one of them to choose from in a single appliance store. However, times have changed. These good-looking, easy-to-clean smoothtops have become so popular that appliance dealers now offer dozens of models from every major range and cooktop manufacturer. If you're considering a new range for your home, here is some helpful background information to help you with your search for smoothtop.

First, about the smoothtop material. Though it looks like glass, on the vast majority of smoothtop ranges and cooktops, the material is in fact an extraordinary glass-ceramic material called Ceran. Ceran® glass-ceramic is translucent (you can see the heating elements underneath), is exceedingly strong, can withstand very high temperatures and is unaffected by sudden, extreme changes in temperature, like ice water spilled on red-hot cooking sur-

What's more, it's easy to clean, almost never stains and is highly resistant to scratching. Ceran is the only glassceramic material that has been in use in Europe for more than 20 years and has withstood the test of time.

Ceran glass-ceramic panels direct heat upwards into the pan, rather than spreading it to the side. As a result, pots and pans heat evenly and quickly, but the rest of the Ceran panel remains. cool under normal cooking conditions.

The basic Ceran material is black, but surface decorations are added to designate the various cooking zones and to help mask smudges and fingerprints. The surface decoration is permanently "baked in" to the glass-ceramic panel during the manufacturing process, so it will no rub, scratch or wear off with age.

The most recent development has been multiple color surface decorations. The Ceran panel can be decorated with up to four different colors, making it a distinct design element in the kitchen.

The other major differences in smoothtops are in the various types of heating elements that are used. Basically, there are three types, but only two are commonly used. Radiant elements use electrical resistance to create and reach maximum temperature in 3 to 10 seconds. Halogen elements use halogen lamps to generate heat. It's sometimes called "cooking with light."

The halogen elements themselves light up and reach their maximum temperatures almost instantly. The third and most expensive type of heating element, called induction, generates a magnetic field which in turn creates heat within a ferromagnetic pot or pan. and very precise temperature control, but will not work with nonmagnetic materials like stainless steel or aluminum.

rate hot-surface indicator lights, which are an important safety extra. Hot-surface indicator lights glow while the corresponding cooking zone is hot to the touch. As a safety feature, the heat indicator light stays on even after the unit Induction units provide quick heating is turned off and remains on until the Ceran surface is cool to the touch. These indicators combined with the visible glow of heating elements through the Ceran panel, help ensure safe operation of the cooktop.

usan Cobb's brightly colored and unusually shaped area rugs are stacked about two rooms of her West Bloomfield home, suggesting a modernist, Art Deco bazaar in the midst of suburbia. This garden of rugs also conveys the joy that Cobb receives from the art she creates.

"It's such a fun job. It took me until I was 40 to find my passion," she said.

Cobb started out years ago to become a court reporter at a school in California, but the interest in art was already forming.

"I met with a girl who worked at the art museum and that inspired me to take art classes. I did it as a side thing and I always enjoyed it. I write songs, short stories. I've had a few published but nothing much," she said.

Cobb moved to Washington, D.C., got married and moved back to her native Michigan. She gave up court reporting to start a family but took her first steps toward creating art. She started a small business painting clothing. It became popular, but the demands of growing children forced her to give it up.

Five years ago, a separation led Cobb to search for ways to support herself and her family with art.

She said a neighbor and friend, Wally DeNike, encouraged her by showing her a notebook of creative ideas that ing her a notebook of creative ideas that included rug making. Cobb already had some of the basics from her clothing design work.

"When I started painting clothing, I learned a lot about color and design," she said.

Cobb threw herself into every aspect of carpet design. She visited carpet stores and warehouses. She relearned math and the use of a compass and protractor.

I started out thinking if I could sell just one rug a month I would be the happiest girl around. The first year I did three a month. Last year there were not less than 50 orders on my board at a time," Cobb said.

Cobb's rugs show a jazz age love for geometric designs, unusual shapes and colors and rhythmic juxtapositions.

"I'm a deco person, known for pieces with odd things sticking off the edge or wavy parts," she said.

Cobb creates her rugs from pieces that she cuts, shapes and backs in her own unique way. She buys the carpet from three mills.

"It's nylon, very high quality that can stand abuse. Great for foyer, kitchen, bathroom," she

She sold her first piece to a gallery but now sells mainly through word of mouth or art fairs. She works closely with her customers to meet their special needs.

"I go to people's homes, take carpet samples, match colors to windows, walls, art work," she said.

"Whether they want a fun piece or a more sedate piece, I come home and do a rendering, color them in, mail them back and work from that."

Cobb takes her rugs to the Ann Arbor and Birmingham art fairs.

"Last year was my first year at the Ann Arbor show," she said. "I sent in an application and I was stunned when I got in. I sold to celebrities and one guy bought five rugs. Last year one lady bought everything I had that was gray."

But it is her local success that has been most gratifying. She has won the support of many neighbors.

"In West Bloomfield your reputation is important. When someone finds something they like, they pass your name around," she said.

Cobb's rugs sell for an average $25 a foot but can range from $13 a foot to $40 a foot based on the complexity of the design.

Sparkle up shots with July 4 fireworks

Having a blast: By leaving his shutter open for many bursts of fireworks, Monte Nagler was able to produce this memorable Fourth of July picture.

MONTE NAGLER This Fourth of July will be a special one, so why not get in on the action? You can add "flare" to your photographs, "sparkle" up your shots with lots of color, and add a new "burst" of excitement to your pictures.

How can you do all this? Shooting the fireworks, of course! Photographing fireworks isn't as difficult as you might think. Follow the advice here and you'll reward yourself with truly memorable holiday shots.

If shooting color, use daylight balanced film. Despite the fact that the color temperature of fireworks is that of tungston films, tungston balanced films will give your pictures too cold a look. We expect fireworks to look warm and "alive" and daylight film will do just this.

For black and white shooters, don't think that the spectacular colors of fireworks will be lost. Not at all! Black and white film will produce truly dramatic effects, too, as shown in the accompanying photograph.

At public displays, it's possible to hand hold your camera using exposures of about 1/60 second at wide open aperture with ASA 100 film. But the faster shutter speeds required for hand holding won't give your photographs that certain mystique and impact that a longer shutter speed will.

ANDERSEN

QUALITY YOU EXPECT

... AND DESERVE!

Solution: Use a tripod. A tripod will enable you to set your camera on "B," which in turn offers a wide range of options.

First, a long shutter speed will allow light patterns from the fireworks to spread into a more exciting design. Also, with your camera on "B," you'll be able to wait for several bursts to explode, capturing them all on a single frame of film. Remember, in the intervals of darkness, nothing is being recorded on the film.

Try tilting, panning, even wiggling your camera during exposure to exaggerate the spread of fireworks across the frame. Think of the abstract patterns you can produce!

Do you have a zoom lens? Try zooming in and out during exposure for a remarkable effect.

You can even hold colored filters over the lens, changing colors after each burst. Imagine the colorful images you'll be able to create.

Want to try something exciting at home? Wait until dark, set your camera on a tripod with the shutter on "B" with a small aperture. Have a friend or family member stand in front of the camera and twirl a sparkler in either an abstract pattern or a recognizable word or shape. All of this will be recorded on the film! And if you want the person in the finished picture, snap off your flash at the end of the exposure.

So make this Fourth of July a real "blast" — not just for you, but for your photo album, too!

Carpet may be decor's centerpiece

(AP) - Because it provides a unifying focus that ties together walls, window treatments and furnishings, carpet may be the single most important element used in interior decoration.

The most common carpet construction is called tufting. The tufting machine pierces the carpet backing material with loops of yarn which form the carpet pile. If the loops of yarn are uniform in size and height, the carpet is a level-loop pile. Berber styles are level-loop carpets that have tight loops and maximum fiber density. Carpet with loops of uneven height is called multilevel loop. If some of the loops are cut and the carpet height is even, it's called cut loop. If some of the loops are intact and some are cut, but the pile height is uneven, the pile is called random shear.

If all carpet pile loops are cut and form a uniform one-half-inch high pile, the carpet is called Saxony. A Saxony pile that's more than one-half-inch high and less dense may be called velvet, plush or textured plush. A carpet that has a mixture of straight tufts with twisted or curled tufts is called random frieze. Friezes or twists, with their curled tufts, form a resilient textured pile that resists matting, doesn't show footprints and is sometimes referred to as trackless. The most durable carpets are the loop-pile styles _ a good choice for high traffic areas.

Density and weight also help determine carpet durability. Density refers to the number of fibers found in 1 square inch of carpet, and is referred to as either stitches per inch (spi) or stitches per 3 inches. The minimum spi for residential carpeting should be 9 to 10. Berbers should have a minimum of 5 to 6 spi and level-loop or commercial carpets should have 10-12 spi.

When selecting carpet, check for tightness of fibers. Bend the carpet sample so it forms a 90 angle and check how much backing material you can see. The less visible the backing, the tighter the fibers and the more durable the carpet.

Also check the carpet's pile yarn weight. Select a carpet that has no less than a 40-ounce pile weight (higher pile weight is better) for Saxonys, plushes or berbers. Note that pile weight refers to the weight of the carpet pile only. The total weight of the carpet, which includes the pile plus the backing, will also be listed.

Carpet yarn may be nylon, olefin, polyester, polypropylene or natural fibers such as wool or cotton. The most durable carpets are made with olefin. By Popular Mechanics for AP Special Features

Join fan club for special cool decor

One size, one color, one function. Buying a ceiling fan used to be simple. That was before an explosion of styles, colors and features swept the ceiling fan mar-

Home decor wasn't a top priority with John Hunter and his son, James, when they invented the ceiling fan in 1886. They were interested in air circulation, and their invention was a model of efficiency and function. Over the years function was integrated with fashion. Modern ceiling fans are supposed to work hard and look good.

Today, the Hunter Fan Co. alone markets more than 350 models of ceiling fans. What once was a strictly utilitarian machine is now a stylish decor enhancement, and in some cases even a room's focal point. With so many fan choices available, it's important to know what to look for when buying a ceiling

Several factors should be considered before buying a ceiling fan, said Holly Vinson, a lighting design consultant in Memphis, Tenn. Such factors as style, color, size, features and function are part of the selection process.

The first step in selecting a ceiling fan is to determine the fan's function before you start shopping. Is the fan to be a source of cooling, or is it to lend atmosphere? Is it to be used as a light source? Will it play a prominent role in the decorating scheme? Answering these questions will focus your thinking and make the selection process easier.

Fan club: Snoopy's Action Fan<sup>TM</sup>, a 48-inch, low-profile ceiling fan from Hunter Fan Co., has three flame-tempered wood and aluminum blades resembling propellers. The famous Peanuts® character and his plane are a durable, lightweight applique that mounts between the fan and the ceiling.

Next, consider the type of room where you will install the fan. If it's a sunroom, porch or gazebo, you'll need a fan designed specifically for indoor/outdoor use. Vinson suggests Hunter's Original Outdoor fan for two reasons: It's weather-resistant and has cloth blade covers available in four different colors that are machine washable.

Also, consider whether the fan will be used as a light source. A model that can be equipped with a 150-watt halogen light bulb will provide the perfect ambiance for a bright kitchen. However, the same light kit might be inappropriate for the subtle lighting usually found in bedrooms.

Know the dimensions of the room where you want to install the fan.

"Many customers neglect to measure the room where the ceiling fan will be installed and are surprised to discover that fans come in several different sizes and profiles," Vinson said.

Fans range from 32-inch models designed for rooms of 64 square feet, to 52-inch fans that are suited for rooms up to 400 square feet. Ceiling height is also an important factor to consider. Rooms with tall ceilings require a longer down rod than those rooms with traditional dimensions that require a more low-profile fan.

Determining the fan's prominence in the room will help you narrow down the options when choosing from the myriad of style, design and color choices. Ask yourself what role the fan will play in the overall decorating scheme. Will the fan serve simply to complement the room's decor, or will it be a focal point?

Hunter Fan's 1886 Series fan in burnished brass is a top seller, primarily because it blends with a wide variety of colors, said Vinson. Other fans, however, are attention-grabbers suitable only for certain types of decorating schemes.

"An interesting idea for a child's room is to install the Snoopy Action Fan, then paint the ceiling sky blue with white clouds scattered about. It creates a charming atmosphere that kids, especially little boys, love."

Because ceiling fans aren't limited to any one type of room or decor, your choices abound when selecting style and color. With a little homework, a perfect match can be found, whether selecting a fan for a small art deco bathroom or a traditional living room.

Most of our customers have a feel for the look that they're striving for. We just point them in the right direction."

As with any home improvement, cost is an important factor. Quality ceiling fans range in price from under $100 to several hundred dollars, depending on the size, style and options selected. However, since the higher quality fans offer extended or lifetime warranties, and because the fans can make a noticeable dent in energy bills, the payoff is usually well worth the invest-texTM and insulation all have in common? The ability to keep items cool under certain conditions and warm under others. And with the warmer months upon us, keeping cool becomes a major priority — whether it is a cool drink or a cool home. If you think your home could feel more appealing, temperature-wise, during the warmer seasons, follow this checklist for greater indoor comfort:

Look in your attic and inspect your insulation level. If it is less than R-38 or your home was constructed before 1980, chances are you need more insulation. Call an insulation contractor to upgrade your insulation.

■ Take a walk around the outside of your property. Look to see where trees and shrubs are planted. You may want to add more deciduous trees - those that drop their leaves in the fall. Planted in front of sunny windows, they can Make sure your fireplace flue is closed. It can draw warmer air from the outside into your home if left open.

■ Caulk and weatherstrip around all windows and doors to prevent cool air leaking out and warm air from entering your home.

Ceramic tile is durable but not maintenance-free

durable material that is especially popular above bathtubs and inside show- molds grow in them, holding more ers. It's so popular that alternative surface materials are often offered in styles that imitate the look of the real

However, tiles aren't maintenancefree. When problems arise, you'll have two simple choices. You can fix them now, for a few dollars, or you can fix them later, for hundreds more. Once water penetrates the tile grout, wall damage can be extensive.

The problems almost always begin with damaged grout joints, and for one of two reasons. In today's housing market, installers need to move through a job quickly. The problem is that tilework resists speed with two obstacles. The first is that tile mastic cures too slowly, the second is that grout cures

The mastic used to glue tile to walls will set in a day, but takes days longer to cure. If the spaces between the tiles are grouted too soon, the gases that must escape in curing create tiny pinholes in the grout.

As for curing the grout, the best approach is a wet cure, where the normal drying rate is prolonged. When cured properly, the grout becomes hard and water resistant. If allowed to dry too quickly, the grout will have a soft, chalky surface that absorbs water. As the water is absorbed, the grout swells, fractures and falls away.

In either case, water reaches the drywall behind the tiles and destroys it.

You should also closely examine the caulked seams in the corners and where tiles meet the tub. Where you find spots of dark discoloration or cracks, a repair is in order.

Before you can regrout and recaulk, you must properly prepare the tiles. Use a carpet knife to remove any loose or degraded grout and caulk. Dig out grout a few inches on either side of a discoloration, and extended openings where grout may have already fallen out. Remove discolored and cracked caulk with a sharp knife or razor-type scraper. Simply cut along each edge of the caulk seam. This will loosen the caulk so that you can pull it away in strips.

With the damaged grout and caulk removed, clean the entire surface thoroughly so that new grout, caulk and sealer can adhere properly. Any of the tub and tile cleaners on the market will

Keeping feeders clean promotes public health

If you're among the 63 million bird lovers who fill bird feeders, here's some serious advice from the experts - you can help prevent the spread of diseases among your wild birds by giving your bird feeder a good cleaning now and by keeping it sanitary through the year.

When bird feeders get contaminated with bacteria or viruses, they become dangerous contact points in the spread of disease, say the experts at Rubbermaid Specialty Products Inc. They recommend taking your feeder down and giving it a thorough inspection and wash with soap, water and household 🖰 bleach, followed by a monthly washing schedule. Hummingbird feeders, which are used to dispense a sugar-rich liquid food, need to be washed every two or three days in very hot water and rinsed thoroughly.

Seed hulls that collect under your feeders can be equally dangerous in transmitting an infection among birds; rake up the winter collection of hulls now, and make a point to give the area under your feeder a periodic cleanup.

Rubbermaid, well known for its innovative products for home, farm and garden, is also a leading manufacturer of bird feeders and accessories, ranging from large-capacity, weather-resistant seed dispensers to several liquid feeders for hummingbirds. Rubbermaid bird feeders are designed to make a stylish contribution to their surroundings and to make filling, cleaning and maintenance easy and efficient.

New this year from Rubbermaid are two Stacker<sup>TM</sup> Tube Style Feeders that offer easy filling and cleaning. Both are designed to eliminate "dead areas," where seeds can collect; the transparent tubes, which make it easy to check the feed level, are top rack dishwasher safe. Lids screw on and off for easy filling and as a deterrent to squirrels. The new tube style feeders come with both small bird and finch style feeding ports and wood perches.

Also new from Rubbermaid and directed toward the serious bird enthusiast are the Deluxe Gazebo Bird Feeder, which holds 10 pounds of seed and offers resistance to rot and rust; a new deck-mount accessory pole, and a new ball-mounted 20-inch squirrel guard, designed to foil the most persistent marauder.

Here are a few suggestions from Rubbermaid to make your bird feeding even more enjoyable:

 Take your feeder down for cleaning and give it a critical examination with an eye toward repair or replacement. Look for leaks, rust, rot and spots where seed can be trapped.

 Don't stop feeding your wild birds when the weather turns warm. Birds will continue visiting their accustomed winter feeding spots even after natural foods, such as seeds and insects, become plentiful. In fact, when birds come to depend on the feeder, feeding should continue year-round. Continuing to feed now will also allow you to enjoy watching the songbirds emerge in their colorful summer plumage.

·Always store your bird seed in a sealed rodent-proof container. Mice and rats can carry bird diseases, even if they don't get infected themselves.

 Pesky squirrels are always looking for a handout, and they can be ingenious in reaching a bird feeder unless it's protected by a well-designed squirrel guard.

Rubbermaid Specialty Products manufactures approximately two dozen different models of bird feeders, along with mounting poles and squirrel guards, and large and small pet shelters. Rubbermaid bird feeders and accessories are available nationally at hardware stores, home centers and garden supply stores. Products not available readily in you locale may be purchased directly from the Everything Rubbermaid Store in Wooster, OH (330)-264-7119.

If you like watching birds in the winter, summer will bring a whole new world of entertainment to your yard.

All year long, birds bring color, sound and activity to a back yard or garden. However, feeding and caring for wild birds in the summer can give you many pleasures that you cannot experience during other times of the year. That's why so many people continue to feed the birds throughout the summer

"Summer is a most interesting time to attract birds to your back yard," said Chris Gardner, owner of the Rochester Hills Wild Birds Unlimited.

"Busy parents will stop by your bird feeder for a quick snack in between duties of raising their young. Plus, summer gives you the opportunity to observe fledglings as their parents bring them to the feeder to feed and teach them how to eat from the feeder."

To make a splash with the birds, just add water. By adding water to your back yard, you can dramatically increase the number of birds that will visit your yard and attract species that normally don't feed at your bird feeders, such as warblers, thrushes and fly-

"Most birds come to water to drink or to bathe. And, every species of birds has its own unique behavior around water that is fun to watch.

"There are many ways you can offer birds water. Water can be supplied in a birdbath, a small pool, a recirculating waterfall, a shallow dish or through a dripper or mister."

Feeding and caring for wild birds is an activity your whole family will enjoy. Get your children involved through Wild Birds Unlimited's Kid's Project Days that will help your youngsters learn about how fun it is to provide birds with the four basic elements of a places to raise young.

The Kid's Project Days are:

Redecorating for summer has its fans

By BARBARA MAYER FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

To redecorate or not for the summer? These days, with air conditioning and synthetic carpeting fairly common, the original reasons have faded for taking down heavy curtains, picking up wool rugs and covering sofas with coolto-the-touch cotton slipcovers.

Keeping the thermometer at 75 degrees F or less minimizes the need to put away heavy rugs and upholstery fabrics. And when the sun is beating down, shrouding the windows in lightdarkening draperies insulates the interior against the heat.

Still, many people prefer a change

"Any home will benefit by a seasonal change of color," says Trudy Dujardin, a decorator in Westport, Conn. "Our grandmothers' practices, such as slipcovering the sofa and chairs, are still a good idea when summer comes."

Dujardin likes to shift from the darker, richer colors that look fine in winter to light-colored solids and summer prints. Her personal favorites are white cotton slipcovers with navy blue welting. Throw cushions in summery prints add to the mood.

Miniature prints and ticking stripes are also fresh, clean and cool fabrics for slipcovers.

Another tradition is to roll up the rugs and store them or send them out to be cleaned, substituting either bare floors or putting down summer rugs.

"Those who have wall-to-wall carpeting probably don't want to pick it up," Dujardin says. "But they can put down a summer rug on top of it for a change of pace."

Houseplants benefit by spending summer outdoors, but moving them leaves a decorative vacuum that can be filled inexpensively and colorfully with flowering annuals such as geraniums and impatiens.

These will bloom indoors if given enough light, water and fertilizer. To carry out the summer theme, straw baskets and terra cotta flowerpots are good containers.

For summer, wicker seating can be added to a sun room or porch for casual gatherings of family and friends. Old cots - made comfortable with cushions and colorful throws - can be used as lounge furniture and can double as beds for overnight guests.

Dujardin does not include a TV set on her sun porch because she says summer is a time "when the family and guests can find as much enjoyment just sitting and talking and listening to the night sounds."

For porch or patio meals, a tall hurricane globe over a large candle is a welcome accessory. "It makes our evening meals festive," she says.

And instead of paper goods, she sets out inexpensive unbreakable glasses, colorful dishes and washable cotton napkins.

Stanley Hura, a decorator in New York, positions fans near the windows of his New York apartment, where they catch and augment whatever breezes that happen to be available. On days when it's too hot and he has to use an air conditioner, Hura still enjoys looking at the fans. "Just to see them makes me feel cool," he says.

And Gail Green, a decorator with homes in New York and in Southampton, on New York's Long Island, says there's "really no reason for a summer change."

She uses year-round the informal home furnishings that once were thought of as purely for summer. These include cotton slipcovers, white-washed pine furniture, skirted tables and whimsical painted tables.

"I am decorating in a seasonless way these days, so that rooms are functional year-round," she says. "I use neutral colors such as peach, light green,. white and ivory, as opposed to deep reds and dark blues, which are winter colden equipment maker HomeLite has compiled 75 safety tips for homeowners and equipment operators.

String Trimmers

- Use your string trimmer only for weeds and grass: It's not designed to trim shrubbery, climbing ivy or other greenery not at ground level.

Metro Detroit is still a red-hot sellers market.

Listings of houses and condominiums available for sale through the first five months of this year increased by 11 percent compared to the January-May period of 1995.

Sales volume also was up by 11 per-

But the number of residential properties available for sale as of June 1 was down by 3 percent.

"Listings are on the market for a much shorter period of time," said Nita Anderson, a broker with Prudential Great Lakes and president of the Birmingham Bloomfield Rochester South Oakland Association of Real-

"If it's nice and priced right, it's gone within days," said Marce Cyrowski, broker/owner of Century 21 Cyrowski and president of the North Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"There is less product to sell which means it's wonderful when you go to sell, but tough when you want to buy," said Mary McLeod, an associate broker with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer and president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Real-

"Now, you need to make an instant decision and you may still be in competition to buy a house," McLeod said.

Sales prices increased markedly through May in every Observer & Eccentric community - some by more than 20 percent - compared to the first five months of '95. Numbers were provided by Realcomp II. a giant multilisting service. including the Western Wayne/Oakland County, Birmingham-Bloomfield, Rochester, South Oakland, North Oakland, Detroit, Dearborn and Livingston realty boards. As of June 1, 9,839 houses were available for sale compared to 10,144 on June 1, 1995 and 12,555 on June 1 two years ago. There were 12,921 sales through May of this year compared to 11,632 through the first five months of 1995 and 11,246 in '94. Listings through May of this year totalled 24,732 compared to 22,248 in 1995 and 25,179 in '94. "Real sharp houses in certain price ranges, $100,000 to about $240,000, will have two or three offers on them," McLeod said. "The thing is mint condition - updated, very clean, maybe freshly painted, no clutter. "I heard one house had nine offers in either Birmingham or Bloomfield," she said.

Houses priced higher than $250,000 tend not to sell as quickly because there are fewer buyers, McLeod said. Starter homes under $100,000 in communities like Redford, Westland and Garden City always are in demand. '

"The ones that sell fastest are in good shape, well maintained, priced right," Cyrowski said.

Buyers can do several things to expedite their housing search.

"Hook up with an agent active in the market who works in an office with high inventory," McLeod said. "Call and interview people. Check newspaper ads. If they have no list-ings, they re not advertising." "They need to be prequalified by a lender and have a certificate that they're ready to buy, guaranteed approval subject to appraisal on the house," Anderson said. "The seller knows they have a winner here as a buyer."

"They've got to be flexible with their time," McLeod added. "When they get a phone call that we have a house they might want to look at, they have to drop everything. If you're not available tonight, by tomorrow it may be sold." Agents also scramble when housing stock shrinks. "You have to be checking every single day what's available." Anderson said. "It's one of those classic things: if you snooze, you lose."

"I have agents that drive around two or three times a week getting addresses and phone numbers of for sale by owners," Cyrowski said.

Agents figure if they help FSBOs now with information like comparative market studies and seller disclosure forms, the sellers will call on them later if the property languishes.

"We go to the computer a lot more, read newspaper ads, drive around subs looking for signs," McLeod said. "It's a lot more hours on our part."

Both Anderson and McLeod say they spend more time networking with other agents in a hot sellers market like this.

Cumulative listings through the first five months of this year increased substantially in Canton. 756 compared to 601 in 1995, Redford, 798 versus 652, Clarkston, 341-294, West Bloomfield, 813-704, and Southfield, 731-639, Realcomp II reported.

Listings decreased in Rochester Hills by 10 percent, 623-696, and less substantially in Livonia, 930-972, Oxford, 123-129, and Troy, 671-676.

Gains of at least 20 percent in median (half above, half below) sales price January through May of this year compared to last were reported in Clarkston, $171,000-$137,500; Oxford, $155,000-$125,000; and Orion Township, $144,950-$119,000.

Those areas currently are hotbeds for residential construction, which affects price as much as supply and demand. "New construction brings up all values," Cyrowski said.

Median sales price increased by at least 10 percent in Redford, $78,000-$68,850; West Bloomfield, $185,125-$164,750; Birmingham, $188,000-$166,500; Westland, $86,000-$77,000; Livonia, $123,000-$109,500; Canton, $146,000-$130,000; Troy, $163,250-$147,500; and Garden City, $82,250-$74,900.

Does 'no soliciting' sign prohibit petition drive?

Q: We have no soliciting signs posted on two entrances to our complex. Recently one of our neighbors walked door to door asking fellow residents if they wanted to sign a petition asking for an item to be placed on the primary ballot for the township. Our association president ordered the person to stop. The question I have is does the vote on an issue such as this have priority over not solicitation signs which I always assumed were to keep door-to-door sellers and charitable fund-raisers out.

A: You have raised an extremely interesting question which, to my knowledge, has not been contested in the courts. I believe that the solicitation of votes may not be within the intent of the drafter of the documents when he/she requested that there be no solicitation signs in the project unless such no solicitation signs were established by the association, in which event it may have a more clear determination of what

However, we may get into constitutional questions involved such as the right to petition as opposed to the interests of the association in maintaining the health and safety of the members of the association from door-to-door solicitation.

This is not an easy question which can be answered by a simple yes or no and I would recommend that the association retain counsel to advise it on the legal and constitutional questions involved in implementing the policy of no solicitation by the association.

Q: I was closing on a real estate property and was required to place in escrow a deposit for the water bill as well as the occupancy of the unit which I would continue to occupy after closing. The form that was provided to me provided the signature of the buyer or seller and the money was to be held by the title company in behalf of the escrow agent, although there was no designation on the escrow agreement as to who the escrow agent was. Should there have been?

A: I have seen documents at various closings prepared by the title company where there is a clear indication as to who the escrow agent is or what the terms and conditions of the escrow arrangement are: As in any other contract, all of the parties to the contract should sign to acknowledge their willingness to abide by the terms and conditions of the contract.

Surely, therefore, the escrow agent who was holding the money should sign. If the title company is actual. ly holding the monies on its own behalf, it should sign as the escrow agent.

If, on the other hand, the escrow agent is the real estate firm, then it should sign as the escrow agent. In any event, you should insist upon these documents being thoroughly reviewed by counsel before closing.

mortgage amount) charged at closing. The lender may charge the homebuyers a 1 percent loan origination fee.

Guidelines for borrowers:

As a borrower, you must not exceed the maximum annual family gross income limit of $43,575, including income for all adult members of the household who will be living in the home you buy. There is no adjustment to income for family size. Single individuals and families are eligible to obtain MSHDA mortgage loans.

In addition, you must have acceptable credit and the ability to repay the mortgage loan and occupy the home as your principal residence after the loan is closed. In some areas of Michigan, borrowers must be firsttime homebuyers (not having owned a house as your principal residence within the last three years). However, many areas are. exempt from this regulation, especially outstate areas and some unincorporated areas of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The loan may not be used to refinance an existing mortgage or a land contract, finance and type of rental property, or used in conjunction with the Michigan Mortgage Credit Certificate (MCC) program.

Again, the MSHDA mortgage offering is an excellent opportunity which may help many more homebuyers obtain a home of their own. To make an application for a MSHDA loan, take a signed purchase agreement to any participating lender. If you'd like more information about this program, contact MSHDA at 401 S. Washington Sq., Lansing, MI 48933 or call (517)373-6840 or (TDD) 1-800-382-4568.

Block air leaks to save on heating

By Popular Mechanics FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Q: With the price of home heating oil rising, our monthly fuel bill is really putting a strain on our family budget. We've tightened up our house trom an insulation standpoint. We also realize that our old furnace is not as efficient as the newer models, but it's still in good condition. What would you suggest, besides lowering the thermostat, to bring our heating bills under

A: One vital key to reducing your home utility bills is to block air leaks with insulation, weatherstripping, or caulk. Whether the air is "conditioned" for winter heating or summer cooling, it is essential that you do not let conditioned air escape to the outside. Contractors and energy inspectors tell us that two of the most commonly overlooked cracks in the house are the crack where the bottom or mud sill of the framing meets the concrete basement wall, and the bottom of the exterior doors where the door meets the threshold.

The crack between the mud sill and concrete basement wall is the longest continuous crack in the house, because it includes the total circumference of the house. Check the crack to see how large it is. If the crack is very large you can fill it with plumber's oakum or twists of fiberglass insulation, then caulk the crack tight. After filling the crack, cut fiberglass insulation bats to fit the space where floor joists, rim joists and mud sill meet.

Advances in door weatherstripping include bottom strips or door sweeps that are made of vinyl, and often have multiple, overlapping layers to ensure a seal between the door bottom and the threshold.

Inspect the door sweep on all exterior doors and install the best sweep you can find at replacement time. Remember, too, that the sweeps keep out summer dust and insects, as well as winter's cold winds.

Q: The water pressure in our tub is good. However, when we turn on the shower. some water continues to come out of the tub faucet, and the water pressure from the shower is reduced. How can we correct this problem?

A: The problem is with the tub-shower diverter valve. When the valve is functioning properly, all the water should be channeled to the tub or shower.

There are two common types of diverters. In the tub spout diverter, a small gate valve is attached to the base of a plunger shaft located in the spout. It is held in the up position for the shower by water pressure. When the water is turned off, the gate drops and opens the tub spout. To remove it for repair, unscrew the tub spout from the threaded water pipe.

The other diverter works by rotating the valve stem so the parts in the valve body open to either the tub spout or the show-
