Money talked in the June 10 Wayne-Westland school board race, with winners David Cox and Robin Moore emerging as the top two spenders among five candidates, campaign expense reports show.

As they plunked down more money than their competitors, however, the victors ended their campaigns in debt, the Observer learned from county records. 42-year-old Moore, a accountant/controller from Wayne. shelled out $3,267 for a school board seat that pays $1,560 a year. But she ended her campaign with her political committee owing $1,976, according to her financial statements.

money that she loaned to her own campaign.

"I paid the bulk of my expenses from my own money," she said Friday.

Top vote-getter Cox, a 38-year-old insurance agent, followed closely behind Moore in spending by shelling out $3,179, but he ended the race $4,623 in debt, expense reports show.

However, virtually all of Cox's political debts were carried over from his unsuccessful bid last November to keep his former Westland City Council seat. His commit-

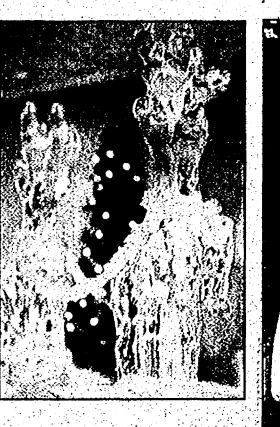

Moore attributed the debt to tee still owed $4,499 in that race when he launched his school board campaign, according to expense reports.

Again, the bulk of the debt could be traced to money that Cox's committee owed to him for personal loans.

Cox couldn't be reached for comment Friday because he was out of town.

Ed Turner, a school board appointee who lost his election bid by finishing third, spent $1,937 on his campaign and ended the race

A Westland man studying for a law enforcement career got some early on-the-job training last week when he nabbed a crime suspect for a local police officer.

Scott Cratty, a 27-year-old father of two, is being recommended for a civilian award for chasing down a suspect and restraining him until Westland police officer John Stone could make an arrest.

"I think he's just wonderful," Cratty's wife, Michelle, said. "I'm real proud of him."

So is officer Stone.

"It's really nice and refreshing that this guy would help out like that," he said. "He truly went above and beyond the call of duty."

Cratty, a former Canton Township resident, is studying criminal justice Base. He was wearing his military at Schoolcraft College, and he hopes to enter a police academy next summer.

He already is a Plymouth reserve police officer and a Navy reserve officer in the military police. Somehow he finds time to earn a living at Don's Vending Service of Livonia.

His praise-winning brush with crime occurred July 14 while he was on his way to duty at Selfridge Air uniform.

Cratty had stopped at a traffic light at Wayne Road and Cherry Hill when he saw a young man get out of an Eagle Talon, approach the car in front of him, tear off the sunroof and climb inside.

The suspect was tailing a woman he knew and, near the heavily traveled intersection, he forced her out

Shooting of teen-ager nets year behind bars

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF. WRITER

A 20-year-old Westland man is serving a one-year jail term for wounding a 16-year-old boy with a short-barrel shotgun.

Joseph Wiper is being held in the Wayne County jail for an Oct. 26 incident that occurred in the 32000 block of Muskegon, near Palmer and Venoy.

Officers elected

The William P. Faust Public Library of Westland board has new officers, following last week's election by board members, Leading the board will be president Jim Chuck, who succeeds long-time president Marjorie Kay Daniels, who was elected secretary; vice president Albert Wagner, and treasurer Sharon Clark. Also on the board is Richard LeBlanc.

The library is now 76 percent complete with a opening ceremony planned for Thursday, Nov. 7. The structure is located on the west side of Central City Parkway, between Ford and Hunter.

Taxpayers received their annual summer property tax break, thanks to routine action last week by the Westland City Council. ''

Wiper shot the teen-ager in the hip while "monkeying around" with the shotgun, Westland police have said.

The victim survived the gunshot but underwent surgery several times at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Wiper is serving a one-year jail term following a sentence handed down several weeks ago by Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Richard Hathaway, a court clerk said Thursday.

Wiper had earlier pleaded guilty as charged to possession of a shortbarrel shotgun and the reckless use of a firearm resulting in an injury. Hathaway gave Wiper credit for 48 days that he had already spent in jail, the clerk said.

The judge also ordered Wiper to remain on probation for five years, she said.

Wiper's case had been sent to Detroit Recorder's Court in November after he decided to waive his preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court.

He averted a trial, however, by pleading guilty as charged. The 16-year-old victim suffered a

Toasting new officers

The Holy Smoke Masters Toastmasters Club, which promotes public speaking skills, has a new set of officers for the 1996-97 year. They are president John Elbe; vice president/education Marc Sullivan; vice president/membership Bob Vichinsky; vice president/public relations Tim Olsen; secretaries Mary Brooks and Mary Neve; and treasurer Mark Fairless. Elbe will also be the group's sergeant at arms.

The organization, open to the public, meets every Thursday evening at Denny's Restaurant, Wayne Road at Central City Parkway. Those interested may contact Sullivan at 455-1635.

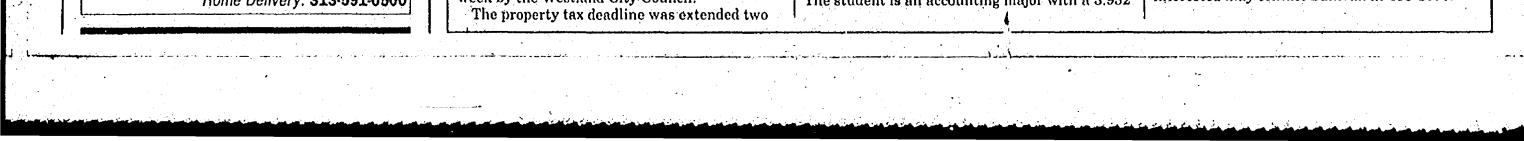

weeks to Aug. 30. Bills are payable by mail at the city finance department in City Hall, 36601 Ford, between Wayne Road and Newburgh, during weekday business hours.

Students honored

Westland's Matthew Balge was named to the dean's list at Northland College, Ashland, Wis., for having a grade point average of 3.5 or higher. The son of Carol and David Balge, he is a biology major. Lynn Bain received the 1995-96 school year's Highest Achievement Award at Madonna University's School of Business Honors Convocation. The student is an accounting major with a 3.932

Dog enriches couple's life

Christy and Andy Spaman have added a new member to their family and he has already won the hearts of the Westland couple.

They have become Paws With A Cause "Foster Parents" and are raising Gifford, an 8-month-old yellow Labrador retriever.

Their newest addition was placed in their home when he was just 12 weeks old and will be living with them until he is about 15 months old.

The Paws With A Cause "Foster Puppy Program" gives families, like the Spamans, an opportunity to raise a puppy that will some day be trained to assist a physically challenged or hearing impaired person, said spokeswoman Lynn Hoekstra.

She said the responsibility of the foster family is quite simple:

"To give the puppy lots of love, teach it good manners through enrollment of basic obedience classes, and to socialize the puppy as much as possible."

Christy and her husband are enjoying their foster parént role.

The couple, who haven't any children, have decided to participate in the Paws Foster Puppy Program and raise puppies for Paws.

Gifford is their first Paws puppy and they are delighted to be raising a dog that will someday assist someone who faces physical challenges.

"This is a way we can be parents and have 10 or 20 children," said Spaman. She adds that, "Parents want their kids to grow up to have great achievements . . . to be doctors and lawyers. We want our puppy to grow up to give somebody a life."

The Spamans share the responsibility of raising Gifford. They both work with him in obedience and take him to public places. He has gone to shopping malls, Home Depot, Children's Hospital and has even gone to work with Christy at Michigan Blue/Cross and Blue/Shield. Spaman says that, "Gifford is like a member of the family . . . he goes where we go.'

Hoekstra said the primary purpose of the Spamans taking Gifford to so many public places is to make the puppy feel more comfortable and confident. All Paws Assistance Dogs have complete public access, so by exposing a young puppy to new settings will help prepare him for his future.

The Spamans say that Gifford is a wonderful dog, he is laid-back and gets along with adults, children and other animals.

"He is so good and has learned so much," says Spaman. "We will both cry our eyes out when he goes back to school, but I know he is going to be a perfect service dog."

For now, Gifford only has to enjoy being a puppy. When he is 15 months old he will be returned to Paws Training Center & Headquarters in Wayland, Mich., where he will receive advanced training.

He is so good and has learned so much.'

Christy Spaman

He will learn how to do a variety of tasks such as help move a wheelchair, open and close doors, turn on and off light switches, or retrieve fallen items such as keys.

Learning such skills is necessary for the day he graduates and is placed with his new owner. Generally, larger breeds of dogs, such as Labradors and golden retrievers, are trained as Paws Service Dogs to assist physically challenged people.

Paws Hearing Dogs are taught to alert their owner to noises in the home or work place, such as the sound of a TTD telephone, the doorbell, an alarm clock or even a baby crying. Size nor breed is not a factor for Paws Hearing Dogs.

Paws With A Cause is a nonprofit organization that receives funding from United Way, civic and community organizations as well as private donations.

For information about Paws or the Paws Foster Puppy Program contact 1-800-253-PAWS or contact the regional office at (810) 693-9789.

"I wasn't going to overspend," he said. "I told my campaign treasurer that if we didn't have the money, we couldn't spend it." Turner said he will likely use his money in a comeback attempt in next year's school board election.

Although Moore and Cox each spent $3 to Turner's $2, the defeated incumbent said he believes that voter apathy and a low turnout at election polls cost him the race.

Only 1,800 of the district's 65,000 registered voters cast ballots June 10, marking a 2.7 percent turnout, according to figures from district elections officials.

Political newcomers Marshall. Wright and Jack Stange, who finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the board race, didn't have to file campaign expense reports because each spent less than $1,000.

Personal loans aside, Cox's largest contribution in the school board race came from the Wayne-Westland Education Association, a teachers union that gave $700.

He also received a sizable donation from current school board member David James, a real estate agent who gave $450, according to expense reports.

Other contributors to Cox's campaign included Ronald Makino ($100); Westland City Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin ($100); Citizens for (Mayor Robert) Thomas ($100); Councilwoman Justine Barns ($75); of the campaign.

of a passenger seat and into his car.

"She was crying," Cratty said." Fueled by the adrenaline that comes with police instincts, he began following the suspect west on Cherry Hill. By chance, another witness phoned the Westland Police Department.

Cratty, soon joined by Stone's police car, followed the suspect onto southbound Manufacturer's campaign manager Carol Gillentine ($160); city Finance Director Michael Gorman ($50); Assistant Westland Fire Chief Patrick Harder ($25); newly elected school board president Patricia Brown ($25); Councilwoman Sharon Scott ($50); and state Rep. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland ($50), among others.

Moore and her relatives picked up most of her tab, but she also received money from Wayne-Westland principals Leo Schuster and William Camp ($20 each); Westland Fire Chief Michael Reddy ($50); developer Kathy Makino ($80); Wayne Police ($50); the Metro Wayne Democratic Club ($100); and Ronald and Kathleen Graham ($20).

Moore said it was important for her to spend a sizable amount in the board election because it marked her first bid for public office, and she lacked name recognition.

Turner received donations from such sources as former school board member Vicki Welty ($100); Westland Councilman Richard LeBlanc ($50): DeHart ($25); 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos ($25): Councilman Glenn Anderson ($40); former school board member Laurel Raisanen ($30); Citizens for Thomas ($100); and former school board member David Moranty ($25), among others.

Turner, too, loaned money to his own campaign, although his debts had been paid by the end

St. Nick, hockey great join forces to help others

It doesn't get much better than this. On a muggy July evening, local business and political leaders had a chance to meet two winter-season icons: Santa Claus and former Detroit Red Wings hockey legend Gordie Howe.

It was all part of the second annual "Christmas in July" benefit, held Thursday by the newly formed Westland Community Foundation.

Glenn Shaw, foundation president, said the group raised some $50,000 for the Wayne-Westland Salvation Army Corps, based at 2300 S. Venoy, Westland, for its summer camp program.

The highlight of the benefit was the personal appearance of Gordie Howe

At a similar autograph session last December at John Glenn High School, the Howes attracted some 1,000 people, some of whom had from five to 10 copies of the book for Christmas presents.

The crowd, estimated by Shaw as being between 250 to 300 people, clearly enjoyed hearing the Howes talk about their lives in hockey and raising their family in the Detroit area.

Colleen Howe stressed that she is making so many visits to Westland that the community "should adopt us."

Both Howes talked about their need to give instead of receiving.

Referring to the "Christmas in July" theme for that night's benefit, Colleen said, "It's fun to hug Santa Claus in the help. middle of the year."

She also praised the December book signing at John Glenn as the "prototype" of other benefits. The Glenn event was the first of many held for charity and non-profit organizations as fundraisers.

To date, the book sales have raised some $250,000 for those groups.

Gordie Howe also praised Westland for being a "very receptive community" and thanked the Reddy family for its Santa Claus, the John Glenn Singers singing Christmas carols, and the Salvation Army Band.

Also on hand were comedian Jim McLean, magician Doug Sheer and a "Neil Diamond Special" by David James, a Wayne-Westland school board member and a local Realtor.

To make sure donors and visitors got into the holiday mood, they dropped of canned food or grocery staples, placed under a Christmas tree located in the Hellenic Center's lobby.

Plant manager blazes new trails

By JEFF COUNTS STAFF WRITER

4A(W)

In the old days, chances were the manager of a Ford Motor Co. was a male engineer.

But all that is changing at Ford. And that became apparent recently when Paula Winkler-Doman was appointed manager of the auto maker's Sheldon Road Plant, on Sheldon at M-14. The plant employs many local residents.

"I'm one of four women plant managers," said Winkler-Doman, 43, whose background is in law and psychology, not engineering.

"It used to be that people came up in the chimney system and stayed in their area," she said. "There's a big emphasis on diversity."

She said Ford wants to use people better to break down that old chimney system.

"They want the top leadership cross-trained," she said, adding that provides more opportunity for people.

Also, she said it's part of a new openness at Ford.

Since she didn't become the plant manager by taking a traditional path, she said she spends much of her 60 hours a week at work on the plant floor.

"That's where you really learn what's going on," she said. "Those people know the job better than anybody else."

The plant, which opened in 1967, employs more than 2,000 people.

The plant manufactures heater cores, radiators, injectionmolded housings and assemblies, and air conditioning and heater units.

The products go into almost all Ford and Lincoln-Mercury vehicles.

Since the plant is a parts supplier, there is pressure on it to be competitive.

· "Our entire system is under pressure because the market experience to shake us up. We need to do something before that happens," she said.

Because of that competitiveness in the auto parts industry, she said there "is a lot of fear' that the plant is going to close.

"There's no truth to that. Because I'm a lawyer, there were rumors in the plant that I was here to close it down. It's not true," she said.

In fact, there is renovation work going on at the plant.

"We're painting and improving the lighting. People work better in a good environment," she said.

Expelled teen's family threatens lawsuit

Fighting words

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

An expelled Wayne-Westland student's father is threatening a lawsuit against the school district, claiming that his son was wrongly accused of ethnic intimidation and denied an education.

"I'm going to have to sue the district," Otis Wilder of Wayne said. "I can't just let it drop."

His remarks came Thursday, one day after a Detroit juvenile court judge cleared his 16-year-old son, Mario, of ethnic intimidation.

The judge also reduced a charge of malicious destruction of property over $100, ruling that markings on a Tinkham Center bathroom wall amounted to a misdemeanor with damages less than $100.

The boy returns to court Aug. 30 for disposition on the misdemeanor charge.

The Wayne-Westland school board expelled Mario Wilder on April 22, after he was accused of making death threats against an employee of the alternative education Tinkham Center on Venoy Road south of Cherry Hill.

But Otis Wilder said his son was falsely accused of certain slurs written on a bathroom wall on Feb. 9.

The scrawlings referred to a female employee as "a Jew bitch" and indicated that she could be killed, Westland police said.

Otis Wilder said another student - not his son - was involved in the threats.

Mario Wilder said Thursday that he had difficulty adjusting to being expelled from school.

"It was really hard for me because I was out of school for a long time," Mario Wilder said. "I just didn't think it was fair to put me through all of this."

Otis Wilder said his son is now attending a Job Corps program and is working on his General Education Development (GED) certificate.

Mario Wilder said he hopes to attend college. He was a 10th-grader when he was expelled in April from the Wayne-Westland district.

Otis Wilder said he is upset that his son was "singled out" for expulsion when, according to the father, another student was responsible for the threatening statements toward the district employee.

The father said he believes that his son was accused because the boy didn't get along with some school district employees.

School Superintendent Duane Moore wasn't available late last week for comment on Otis Wilder's threatened lawsuit.

Tinkham Center principal Joe Orban hadn't heard about the outcome of the Wilder case on Thursday and couldn't comment on it.

Covering Olympics broadcaster's dream

BY DIANE GALE SPECIAL WRITER

Dreams come true at the Olympics even if you're not an athlete.

Just ask Bonnie Kaye, a former area resident.

Landing a job as feature reporter for CBS radio and television stations covering the 1996 Olympics was to the 33- year-old journalist what the gold medal would be to the athletes she'll be interviewing.

And it all began, she said, when Kaye started doing morning announcements at Plymouth-Canton High School, which she graduated 15 years

"I had a dream many, many years ago that I would become a famous and successful reporter or broadcaster of some sort," she said from her Denver, Colo.

Kaye worked as a fitness instructor since high school. pyschology counselor for emotionally disturbed children in California and first violinist with Ukiah Chamber Players and Ukiah Symphony. "I decided I didn't want to continue to practice alone for six hours a day," she said adding that the violin remains a "huge passion of mine." She still plays jazz and the blues with various bands.

"I had a lot of interests and different skills and I explored several things and I hit on what really worked for me," Kaye explained. "The minute I went on the air on radio, I knew this was where I wanted to be."

Her message to young people just starting is: Your dreams can come true if you want something deeply, work hard and are willing to make financial sacrifices taking low paying jobs. Kaye's radio and television career has taken her through California, Florida and Montana. During the summer of 1985, Kaye, who changed her name from Bonnie Knaus (pronounced Ka-nas), was given her first break.

been called in at the last minute as a substitute.

"Two minutes before air time the program director said: 'You're not going on the air as Knaus?' He said lose it."

She picked up the telephone book for ideas, decided on Kaye and that's what she's been using ever since.

Like an Olympian, Kaye's training hasn't been easy or glamorous. In fact, there was little sparkle or glitter involved when she was bit by a horse and another time when she hurt her shoulder covering stories.

All that was ground work to prepare her to convince CBS to name her anchor of "Atlanta One-on-One," a series of feature reports showcasing the fun, offbeat, and human side of the athletes during the Summer Games.

Another big break came recently when she found a way to combine 15 years in the fitness industry with her eight years in radio and television. She developed her own niche as a fitness reporter with "Inside Fitness with Bonnie Kaye," which airs on 140 CBS television stations throughout the country. In the Detroit area, ABCs Channel 7 airs the show on Sunday mornings. Kaye is producer, writer and reporter.

AVIA and CBS got together and formed a partnership to help me produce Inside Fitness," she said.

Kaye's life may have taken a different turn during high school when she auditioned for a part on the television movie, "Word of Honor." A lead role was between her and another girl. Kaye later learned that the other girl got the part, because she looked more like the television family. She did, however, get a bit part in the movie playing a beauty contestant.

"If I had won that role, I wouldn't have gone into journalism," Kaye said.

With the Olympics contract, Kaye said, she's making more in three weeks than in the last five years and best of all the assignment could open other doors.

Like any athlete, reaching one goal means setting new ones.

She said she is trying to get employees to work together. Parenting skills given a boost through organization's efforts

All parents wonder if they are doing a good job parenting. Even a mother and father of a well-behaved child may question their parenting ability.

There are several key predictors of whether a child will grow up well adjusted, according to child behavioral psychologist and consultant Dr. Arnold Rincover, consultant to the Independent Order of Foresters' Better Parenting Program.

•Cooperation is the single best predictor of a child's future. Your child must learn about rules and boundaries of acceptable behavior at home. •It is crucial to give explanations, rather than just punishing your child. An explanation will show your child the difference between right and wrong.

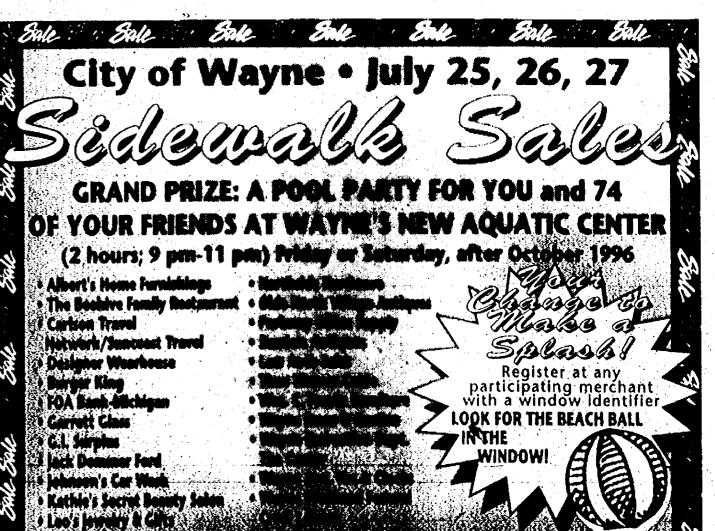

•Fostering independence in children is healthy and teaches the child to take responsibility for personal actions.

•A best friend is the most effective teacher of sharing and compromise. Your child will develop empathy and adjust easier than will children without close friends.

PAC challenges O'Hair's TV ads

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN STAFF WRITER

The director of Citizens for Justice, a political action committee, says he is going to court in an effort to get Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair's campaign ads pulled from local TV station Channel 7.

A show-cause hearing is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Wednesday in Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien's courtroom. The hearing is in Oakland County because Channel 7 is in that county.

O'Hair is campaigning to win re-election as Wayne County prosecuting attorney. He faces Democratic opposition in the Aug. 6 primary from state Sen. Virgil Clark Smith of Detroit.

O'Hair's ads make a false claim of a 92 percent conviction rate, Darin Chase, director of Citizens for Justice, said. O'Hair's conviction rate is really around 70 percent, he said.

O'Hair, who said he had not been notified of the hearing as of Friday morning, said he welcomes any opportunity to defend his conviction rate statistics. "We believe in the truth," he said, adding he has no idea where Chase is getting his figures. His office's conviction rate includes those cases disposed of by plea, which includes 75-85 percent of the cases on the trial track, so the conviction rate would at least be that high O'Hair said. Of those that went to trial, O'Hair's office had a 67percent conviction rate in 1994, the latest figures included in the. annual report of the prosecutor's office. Factored together, those figures mean a conviction rate of more than 90 percent, he said.

Chase said his figures come from several studies of the prosecutor's office.

O'Hair is also being criticized by John Hamilton, owner of several topless bars. Hamilton issued a response to O'Hair's July 9 press conference where he announced his plan to continue to prosecute bars that allow lap dancing despite political opposition. Hamilton, who was ticketed, says he has contributed $12,000 to Citizens for Justice in an effort to get O'Hair defeated.

"Not one customer was touched, and they wrote me three tickets," he said. A forced seven-day closing by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission is "hanging over my head," because of the tickets, Hamiltonsaid

The tickets have not yet gone to court even though they were issued in April, he said. "I'm not afraid of him. I will beat him in court," Hamilton said.

O'Hair's actions have probably put 1,000 people out of work from among the bars targeted, Hamilton said, adding he had to lay off 200 people because he doesn't have as much business since O'Hair's crackdown in the spring.

Hamilton also questioned why

O'Hair's crackdown happened so long after a Supreme Court decision called lap dancing lewd. The "Dizzy Duck" ruling, named for a Detroit establishment, was issued last July, but the crackdown began in April. "John O'Hair knew about it for nine months before starting enforcement," he said, calling the current actions a campaign ploy.

The decision from the Supreme Court was remanded to circuit court, and once there was a resolution in circuit court, a notice was sent out to bars clarifying the law and giving them the opportunity to comply voluntarily, O'Hair said. When the bars didn't comply, the task force was formed in the spring, he said.

Hamilton said he plans to continue donating $4,000 for each frivolous ticket or violation issued to his businesses.

Chase wouldn't confirm whether Citizens for Justice received Hamilton's donation. "We will gladly take a contribution from anyone with no strings attached," Chase said.

Citizens for Justice is the political action arm of the Budzyn & Nevers Defense Fund. Walter Budzyn and Larry Nevers were Detroit police officers convicted in the death of Malice Green. O'Hair is responsible for the disregard of Budzyn and Nevers' due process rights, Chase said.

"We have good reason to be outraged over what happened at the trial," Chase said. The Michigan Supreme Court has agreed to hear an appeal of the case, beginning in late September or early October, Chase said. "I'd like him (O'Hair) to make a public statement on Nevers and Budzyn," he said.

"I think these matters should be decided in court," O'Hair said.

"I have no resentment that the case is there (Supreme Court)," he said, calling the Malice Green case the most significant one to go through his office.

"I had a duty to perform and I did it to the best of my ability," O'Hair said.

Neither Hamilton nor Citizens for Justice have made an endorsement in the primary.

Firm to help county get line on phone bills telephone bills of the past five years studied in what could turn up an estimated $200,000 a year in overcharges.

Under a contract approved Thursday by the Wayne County Commission, TelAdjust Inc. of Bloomfield Hills will audit all county telephone bills for the past five years to determine if misbillings and overbillings have occurred.

TelAdjust will receive 40 percent of the value of the refunded amount owed to the county as compensation. No payment will be made to TelAdjust if no refund is received.

A telephone equipment inventory will also be conducted.

One commissioner said the county could see refunds of about $200,000 a year, but county employee Steve Brown said there is no firm figure. "We're Wayne County will have its very confident we will realize significant savings."

More audits

A plan to hire two auditors to work on the audit of Wayne County airports, at an estimated cost of $65,909 for the rest of 1996, was referred to the commission's Ways and Means Committee.

The proposal was up for approval, but questions were raised about which county department would pay for the auditors. The plan on the agenda called for taking the money out of the Corporation Counsel budget, but Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, introduced an amendment calling for the expense to come out of the county commission's budget. Another commissioner called for the cost

COUNTY NEWS

A $1.6 billion expansion is planned for Metro Airport. "It' is imperative that the Auditor General participate from the beginning," Auditor General Ramona Henderson Pearson wrote in her proposal to hire more auditors.

Road work

A Michigan Department of Transportation Intergovernmental Agreement worth $6,150,000 to work on Eight Mile Road was approved Thursday by Wayne County commissioners.

The agreement, between MDOT, Wayne County, the Oakland County Road Commission, and the cities of Livonia, Farmington and Farmington Hills allows for the reconstruction of Eight Mile Road from Halsted to Farmington Roads.

The state contribution is $4,920,000. The cities will pay for new sidewalks at a cost of $28,000. The rest of the cost, $1,202,000, will be paid for... equally by Oakland County, Livonia, Farmington Hills and Wayne County at a cost of $303,500 each.

Carts OK'd

Commissioners approved a contract with Club Car Inc. of Livonia for $382,175 to pay for new golf carts and a five-year cart maintenance agreement for Warren Valley Golf Course.

The contract failed at a commission meeting earlier this month, when it failed to get enough yes votes for approval. Commissioners approved it

Thursday, with local commissioners Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township, and Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, among the no votes. Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, and Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, voted in favor.

Patterson said he was surprised to find in an audit of the county-owned golf course that it seems to be losing money on each round played. But Vice Chair Pro Tem Edna Bell said the figures are skewed because they include expenses at the Inkster Valley Golf Course, which is under construction in Inkster and Westland. "I would like to see us go to something as dramatic as privatizing the golf course," Patterson said.

Victim assistance

An ordinance establishing a fund to compensate crime victims for certain types of losses was sent back to committee Thursday.

Some county commissioners expressed concerns about funding, while others said the program is self-funded.

The proposal calls for collecting jail costs from sentenced inmates of the Wayne County jail who have assets and using the money to compensate crime: victims.

The proposal would also set up a board to develop rules, accept applications from crime victims and make payments.

Road officials can be sued if they fail to post warning signs or signals at hazardous spots such as intersections, the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled.

The highest state court decided 4-3 against the Gratiot County Road Commission in a 1988 suit resulting from a collision at Roosevelt and Crapo, two gravel roads where visibility was blocked by an orchard on private property. The justices ruled there was a "duty to warn."

"We were very pleased when Pick (victory) came down," said Wayne J. Miller, Bingham Farms attorney who filed a brief on behalf of the Brain Injury Association of Michigan. "We have had one case on hold for two years pending the result of Pick.

"Motor vehicle accidents are a very significant cause of brain injuries," said Miller.

"When there are less means of compensation, there is less of an Finally a majority incentive (for road agencies) to do a good job."

Miller said recent appellate court decisions have swung "so far to the right" in favor of road agencies that it was "gratifying the Supreme Court drew the line on this insanity."

He blamed "the Engler administration and the Republican hierarchy" in the Legislature for reducing injured people's chances to collect and taking the pressure off safety efforts.

Miller rated the Oakland County Road Commission "outstanding" in its safety efforts but found "lots of cases" in Jackson County.

Statewide impact

"This isn't a one-time case for Gratiot County. The duty applies to highway authorities throughout the state," said assistant attorney general Brenda Turner. She filed an amicus brief on behalf of the Michigan Department of Transportation. although MDOT wasn't a party to the suit. "DOT has always signed and continues to sign," she said. "The effect is statewide," said Ted Stroud, Lansing attorney who handled the appeal by John Pick, an injured driver suing the road commission, and his wife Sally. "This case is far more important than one accident.

"Even before the Pick opinion, it was very rare to have a rural intersection with no signs at all. After this accident, the Gratiot County Road Commission didn't wait to put up signs.

"There was a 55 mph speed limit and no advance warning sign," said Stroud.

Damages to the Pick couple have yet to be determined. The Supreme Court reversed Circuit Judge Timothy M. Green's decision to dismiss the case without a trial. The Supreme Court sent it back to Green for either trial or settlement.

It reversed Green as a matter of law but had no comment on the facts.

Gratiot is a farming county straddling US-127 between Lansing and Mt. Pleasant.

Both Pick and the other driver. Jan Szymczak, were injured, but Szymczak wasn't a party to the appeal. No one was killed.

Justice Michael Cavanagh, maintain and repair all roadwriting the majority opinion, noted both he and Chief Justice James Brickley called previous Supreme Court opinions on road liability "badly fractured" because no viewpoint had a majority of four votes.

But on June 5 there was a majority: Cavanagh, Brickley, Charles Levin and Conrad Mallett Jr. produced a 17-page opinion.

Justice Patricia Boyle produced nine pages concurring in part and dissenting in part.

Justices Dorothy Comstock Riley and Elizabeth Weaver dissented in a 26-page opinion – as long as the other two put together.

Stroud argued for the Picks that the county road commission had a statutory duty to design, ways and intersections "so they are reasonably safe and fit for public travel."

He said there were no signals, stop signs or yield signs at the Roosevelt-Crapo intersection. The road commission argued that the drivers' vision was obstructed by an orchard on private property, outside the improved roadway.

A Court of Appeals panel agreed 2-1, saying the orchards "cannot be classified as being part of the improved portion of the highway.'

Cavanagh noted, however, that the Picks also charged defective design, lack of traffic devices and warning signs and general failure to maintain keep the intersection "safe for vehicular traffic."

Cavanagh said "we expressly hold that a duty to provide adequate warning signs or traffic control devices at known points of hazard arises under the highway exception to the governmental tort liability act. . . And the duty of maintenance includes the duty to erect adequate warning signs or traffic control devices at a 'point of hazard' or a 'point of special danger.'...(T)he defendant has a duty to warn motorists."

Cavanagh replied bluntly in footnotes to Boyle's partial dissent: "Justice Boyle's creation of a motorist's duty of due care is an unwarranted engraftment onto a statutory provision that addresses only the duty of the the dissenters said.

COURTS

relevant governmental entity." Justices Riley and Weaver said in their dissent: "There is no... obligation to warn motorists. about dangers that do not arise from the condition of the roadbed itself. "Hence the Gratiot County Road Commission is protected from liability as a matter of law because plaintiffs' claims about the alleged dangers (an upcom-) ing intersection and an apple orchard obstructing the motorists' view) were unrelated to the highway roadbed itself,"

Parents cope in aftermath of accident

Tough times

BY MATT JACHMAN STAFF WRITER

One minute you're having breakfast and the next minute your life is turned upside down.

That's how Rebecca Cesario of Livonia describes the Mother's Day events that put her infant daughter in the hospital with serious injuries and caused problems she and her family will likely be coping with for a long time.

Rebecca and George Cesario and their two daughters were getting ready to leave the Golden Lantern in Livonia that morning, May 12, when a car plowed through the glass wall of the restaurant's "greenhouse," where they and members of their extended family had gathered.

The crash threw Mikaela Cesario, just 29 days old, out of the building.

Mikaela's skull was fractured, both legs were broken and she was scraped, bruised and cut.

She was airlifted to Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor, had a CAT scan, and underwent surgery on her legs the next day.

Other family members suffered minor injuries and were treated at local hospitals and released.

But the trauma of the accident and the intense concern for Mikaela's immediate welfare and her future left psychological wounds on everyone there, the Cesarios said.

"I'm a mess, just emotionally. It's just hard," Rebecca Cesario said during an interview at her house in Livonia.

George Cesario said he is "doing OK with it," in large part because of support they've received from their church, Temple Baptist in Redford Township.

More than anything, "I've been very grateful she's alive," he said.

"That's a tragedy," he added, pointing to a television report on a freeway crash that killed a 3-year-old.

Their other daughter. Stefanie, who is nearly 2, doesn't talk about what happened but has reacted to it.

She is scared of noise and commotion and sticks close to her parents.

M The healing of her legs – her right tibia (the shinbone) and left femur (the long bone of the leg) were broken - is complicated because Mikaela has a lot of growing to do. Surgery to accommodate that growth is a 50-50 possibility.

"She's really attached to us and doesn't want to be away from us," George Cesario said.

Now three months old, Mikaela is out of the body cast that reached nearly to her chin.

She has regular checkups at a University of Michigan Hospitals outpatient clinic, and a physical therapist visits. Another CAT scan is scheduled for September.

Rebecca Cesario, a nurse at the Holden Perinatal Hospital, part of the U-M medical system, has taken a leave to care for her daughter.

Doctors monitoring her progress are optimistic, and the Cesarios try to keep that in mind.

But the uncertainty about the long-term effects of Mikaela's head injury and the worry about possible future surgeries on her legs are tough to cope with, they said.

The healing of her legs — her right tibia (the shinbone) and left femur (the long bone of the leg) were broken - is complicated because Mikaela has a lot of growing to do. Surgery to accommodate that growth is a 50-50 possibility.

"I don't want to think about that if that's something that may or may not happen," Rebecca Cesario said.

The legs could end up growing unevenly, which could cause knee, hip and back problems.

Her tender age also makes it difficult to judge the severity of the skull fracture.

FAMILIES

It's too early to tell if it will have a longterm effect, and the Cesarios have little precrash behavior by which to measure her current behavior.

"We only had a month before this happened," said George Cesario, a Ford Motor Co. electrical engineer.

The fracture, however, is not displaced -that is, the broken bone did not shift.

Other family members have been affected, too.

Her father and her 3-year-old nephew, who were at the restaurant, are having an especially hard time emotionally, Rebecca Cesario said.

Her sister's husband had been plagued by a lingering injury.

In the seconds after the crash, everyone's first thought was for Mikaela, the Cesarios said.

No one is sure what happened, but evidence suggests she was picked up from her infant car seat by a spinning tire on the 1996 Ford Contour and thrown clear of it, they said.

She had been sitting in the car seat on the floor. She was found unconscious.

After an investigation, the driver of the car, an 88-year-old Lincoln Park man, was ticketed for careless driving, a civil infraction.

The Cesarios have hired an attorney to sort out bills and insurance claims.

They say their main concern is that Mikaela's future medical expenses are cov-ered.

They are grateful for the help — and prayers — they've received from members of their church, from the community, and even from strangers.

A lot of people at the Golden Lantern that morning pitched in, they said

"All the people that helped, that was really nice," Rebecca Cesario said.

Adopt a vegetarian lifestyle for health lbert Einstein, Sir Isaac Newton, Percy Bysshe Shelly and George Bernard Shaw all had one thing in common: all were vegetarians. You can add entertainers Paul and Linda McCartney, sports figures Martina Navratilova and Billy Jean King, and two or three days out of the week, you can even include yours truly. In fact, vegetarians have been around for hundreds of years -- Ovid, Plutarch, even Plato were all vegetarians. More than 12 million Americans have adopted a vegetarian lifestyle for reasons that include better health, a better environment and defending the rights of animals. Many people, however, are afraid to make this lifestyle change because they believe that a vegetarian diet cannot provide adequate protein, iron or calcium, or that they will spend their lives eating nothing but vegetables.

Great cookbook

In their latest book "The Vegetarian Times Vegetarian Beginners Guide" (copyright, 1996, MacMillan Books, $12.95), the authors themselves argue about what exactly it is that makes one a "vegetarian."

Webster's describes the adjective "vegetarian" as in "vegetarian diet" as "consisting wholly of vegetables." We know this is wrong. Being a vegetarian, write the authors, "means many different things to many different people."

The book never really elaborates, but instead provides vital, up-to-date information about why a vegetarian diet is one of the best choices you can make for everyone and everything that surrounds you. Short on recipes, but loaded with information, the "Vegetarian Times Vegetarian Beginner's Guide" should be a must read for anyone contemplating this lifestyle change. If you're looking for more of an in-depth recipe collection with sidebars about food preparation tips, you might be interested in picking up a copy of "The Occasional Vegetarian" by Karen Lee (copyright 1995, Warner Books, $24.95). This book provides useful advice on everythingfrom stocking the pantry to shopping efficiently, organizing your kitchen, planning menus and preparing meals. Each page has "professional" secrets" that are cooking related and very helpful to a beginner. Unfortunately. Lee dubs her book "everything you need to become the occasional vegetarian," in my opinion, the book needs to place a little more emphasis on nutritiously balanced combinations rather than just good sounding recipes. Suffering from pretty much the same malady as "The Occasional Vegetarian," Bharti Kirchner, author of "The Bold Vegetarian" (copyright 1995, Harper Perennial Publishers, $16) offers an assortment of over 150 innovative international vegetarian recipes. This book is nothing but recipes, recipes and more recipes, and you'l find it somewhat mind boggling if you have never before toasted hazelnuts, purchased tofu, or have any idea what sambal-oelek is (an Indonesian ground chile paste). If I was indeed anticipating a change over to veganism, I would, without a doubt, procure a copy of Steven Raichlen's "High Flavor Low Fat Vegetarian Cooking" (copyright, 1995 Viking Books, $24.95). Coupled with the "Vegetarian Times Beginner's Guide," Raichlen's book offers outstanding recipes, nutritional information, mailorder sources, ingredient guide, metric guides and a very generous breakdown of recipes like pasta dishes, vegetable dishes, grain dishes, bean, soy, sandwiches, etc. Unlike many other vegetarian cookbooks, Raichlen's book does not rely on high fat dairy products for flavor. The author claims that the use of intense flavors and spices, in addition to savvy cooking techniques, can make low fat vegetarian cooking a delight to eat.

Meatless meals

I'll be the first to admit that you'll see donkeys fly before yours truly ever decides to give up a perfectly cooked steak or properly roasted game bird. But in the meantime. I do try and attempt a somewhat healthful lifestyle. About three times a week. I make meals with beans, legumes, soy products and pasta. Funny thing though, when I do cook vegan, it doesn't "hit" me as doing something drastic. I love a good bowl of black bean soup (made with a vegetable base instead of a ham base) and during the summer, dinner frequently consists of some fresh cooked pasta tossed with a handful of fresh basil, some chopped fresh tomatoes and a sprinkling of olive oil.

Ice cream is hard to resist any time of year but especially during the summer. Is it any wonder Congress declared July National Ice Cream Month in 1984 in recognition of its reputation as the "perfect dessert and snack food."

Husband and wife Rick and Judy Shatter are carrying on the delicious tradition started by Vicky Arnold-Meloche at Vicky's Homemade Ice Cream in Redford. People have been known to travel from as far away as Ohio for a scoop of Vicky's ice cream.

"We have recipes for up to 75 flavors, and we're always inventing new ones," said Rick. "We always have 40 available. We use all natural ingredients - farm-fresh cream, whole nuts and fresh fruit purees."

Vicky's has flavors you've never heard of -Turtle, made with fudge, caramel and pecans like the candy, Smores, which will remind you of the Smores you made at camp - marshmallows, graham crackers and chocolate, and Moosetracks, a tasty combination of peanut butter cups and fudge. They also offer vanilla, butter pecan, chocolate, and every kid's favorite - Blue Moon.

"We could make broccoli ice cream if we wanted to," said Vicky. "Some of the flavors were suggested by customers." Her advice to anyone making ice cream is to be inventive.

Americans began making ice cream at home in 1786 when a freezer with rotary paddles was invented – this kept the product smooth while freezing. After a short time, the market was flooded with similar inventions. Jacob Fussell, a milk dealer, pioneered the manufacturing of ice cream and opened the first wholesale ice cream company in Washington, D.C. in

During the late 1890s, in response to religious criticism for eating those "sinfully" rich ice cream sodas on Sundays, ice cream merchants left out the carbonated water, because soda could not be sold on Sunday, and invented the ice cream "Sunday." Ice cream was served with syrup instead of soda. To remove any connection with the Sabbath, the spelling was later changed to "sundae."

The first ice cream cone was served at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair. A dish was needed for serving ice cream, so a wafer-like waffle was rolled in the shape of a cone and filled with ice cream. It was an instant hit! The Eskimo Pie was invented in 1921, the Good Humor Bar in 1923, and soft-serve ice cream in 1939

Some of the very best premium brands of ice cream are made in Michigan. Stroh's, which began making ice cream in 1919 as a result of Prohibition, is celebrating its 77th anniversary this year. Currently it produces over four million gallons of Stroh's, Mooney's and Nafziger's premium ice cream annually.

The company has grown and expanded since then to become the largest privately owned diary and beverage distribution company in Michigan and northern Ohio. Based in Livonia, Melody Farms, Inc. started making ice cream in 1975, and has developed over 60 flavors. In 1990, Melody Farms created Prestige super premium ice cream and yogurt. Blueberries make summer appearance

BY MELANIE POLK SPECIAL WRITER

If there was any doubt that we've reach the heart of summer, it disappears at the peak of the blueberry season in July, which is National Blueberry Month. Farmers' markets and supermarket produce shelves overflow with beautiful powdery blueberries at the height of their flavor and nutrition. Michigan's u-pick blueberry season has just started, and will continue to mid-August.

With the variety of ingredients found in seafood salads, you don't have to use large amounts of fish and shellfish to create a rich-tasting entree; with some smart substitutions you can. even avoid the unwanted calories or added fat provided by most salad dressings. Tuna salad fans can broaden their horizons and boost fiber intake by creating a seafood slaw made by mixing a cup of drained, flaked tuna, a tablespoon each of minced parsley and finely chopped onions, a half cup low-fat mayonnaise and two tablespoons lemon juice. Blueberry sauces are versatile and can lend their distinctive flavor to more than one dish. Blueberry-ginger sauce is a tangy companion to cold poached chicken or salmon, and can also be served as a dressing over a salad of thinly-sliced oranges

In a blender, pure 1/2 cup blueberries, three tablespoons water, one tablespoon vegetable oil, two teaspoons fresh lemon juice, 3/4 teaspoon minded ginger root, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, and 1/8 teaspoon salt. The sauce will separate if allowed to sit, so make it just prior to serving.

BECOMING DESENSITIZED

One of the problems that accompanies receding gums as we get older is hypersensitivity. This occurs as a result of the tooth root becoming exposed. Because it has a softer surface than the rest of the tooth, it is more vulnerable to heat, cold, or pressure. When this happens, a switch to a desensitizing toothpaste can help. This product works by shielding the nerve endings and disrupting the transmission of pain signals from the nerves. The active ingredient in desensitizing toothpastes that makes this possible may either be strontium chloride or potassium nitrate. If one or the needed. Once an effective toothpaste is found, it should be used until the problem is brought under control. Then, a switch should be made back to a regular brand.

According to American Cancer Society spokesperson Karen Murphy, 800,000 new cases of skin cancer are expected to be diagnosed across the country in 1996. Because the sun is one of the leading causes of skin cancer, it makes good sense to protect yourself against its' damaging ultra violet rays. Murphy says with about 9,000 people estimated to die from skin cancer this year alone, she takes no chances.

Promoting the new Somerset Collection North as "the shopping center for families," developers Forbes-Cohen booked Disney legends Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Goofy and Pluto to entertain the public at a special, complimentary, pre-opening. party, Thursday, Aug. 15 from 6-10 p.m.

The "Sneak Preview Celebration" was announced at a press conference last week with Rebecca Maccardini, director of operations, explaining that the event was created "so kids of all ages can enjoy an evening of family fun throughout the Somerset Collection, North and South, plus get a first look at the new stores."

The official grand opening of the 950,000-square foot tri-level mall is the following morning, Friday, Aug. 16 at 10 a.m. when Nordstrom, Hudson's and 107 other retailers begin regular business hours at the northeast corner of Big Beaver and Coolidge.

The Sneak Preview Celebration kicks-off at 6:30 p.m. in the new mall's Grand Court, with "Rock Around The Mouse", a 20-minute musical featuring popular tunes from the 1950s. The performance will be staged three times throughout the evening.

In addition, other Magic Kingdom

Somerset Collection North visitors will find it continues the decor theme of the Somerset Collection South across the street, with numerous skylights, elegantly paneled mankato stone pillars, marble floors, and glass partitions that promote tri-level visibility.

ered on the baby oil for that bronze look that was all the rage. Now I wear a sunscreen and try to stay out of the sun as much as possible," Murphy said.

Pat Sachs is not a sun worshipper that's why last year's diagnosis of melanoma by her doctor came as a shock. Now when the regional director of the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute is under the sun she wears a hat, long sleeves and a sunscreen.

"Experts say sun exposure from the past, a bad sunburn as a kid is all it takes to increase your chances of getting skin cancer," said Sachs who underwent surgery and medical treatment to remove the melanoma."Our purpose at the Karmanos Cancer Institute is to tell the community there are preventative measures to take. Knowledge is a good weapon against cancer."

Redford dermatologist Dr. Thomas Bonino advises his patients to wear a hat and use a SPF 30 sunscreen for any length of time in the sun.

"What I tell patients is, any time they're going to be in the sun longer than 20 minutes between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., they should wear a sunscreen. That's when the ultraviolet energy is the strongest. Use a double application because sunscreen doesn't become effective until the second time," Dr. Bonino cautioned.

"I recommend Coppertone Sport 30 because when you put it on it doesn't feel greasy and oily, plus grass and sand won't stick to your skin. It stings less on your face or when you get it in your eyes than some brands. If you're sweating or swimming, reapply every 20 minutes to half hour. I like Sport 30 because it stays on longer."

Coppertone Sport 30 with UVA/UVB protection is $8.59 for 8 ounces at K-Mart in Livonia. Also by Coppertone is Kids 30 Sunblock Lotion at the same price.

Added Dr. Bonino, "one of the best protectants is an occlusive hat with a 4 to 5 inch brim; a hat you can hold up to the light and can't see through."

One of Karen MacDonald's favorite products is The Body Shop's watermelon scented sun lotion with sunscreen priced at $14.50 for 8 ounces. It has watermelon juice to cool and refresh the skin. As communications manager for The Taubman Co. (Twelve Oaks, Fairlane, Lakeside and Briarwood shopping centers) MacDonald surveyed stores for products to protect shoppers from harmful rays.

The receipts-for-credit program that had shoppers using their purchases for credits toward school supplies begins again, Monday, July 29 through January 1997 at Lakeside Sterling Heights, Twelve Oaks Novi, Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn and Briarwood in Ann Arbor.

"Be True To Your School" debuted last August at the shopping centers and resulted in almost $300,000 for Michigan schools. Shoppers simply named their favorite schools and presented their receipts to mall personnel housed in Little Red Schoolhouse Booths. Running tabs were kept by computer. Schools were notified of their credit which could be used for any choice of learning materials.

"This program is a win-win proposition and the perfect example of what can be accomplished when businesses and the schools get together," said Kathleen Strauss, member of the state board of education. "Anything that brings attention to the significance of our schools and any project designed to help them, is very valuable."

Last year 312 Michigan schools benefitted from the program with new software, videos and reference. materials. Parents were reminded "to save their receipts" in PTA bulletins and signs at the malls.

The receipts are credited and returned to shoppers. They can be applied to any school in Michigan. The receipts can be credited for any mall purchase _ from a simple cup of coffee to a pair of shoes. Receipts do not need to be credited on the date of purchase.

As an added attraction and kickoff to the Back-To-School shopping season, both Lakeside and Twelve Oaks will host Fun Flicks video events that turn a portion of the mall into a production studio where shoppers star in their own mini movies.

Participants choose from hundreds of props and costumes, and dozens of scenes. Professional technicians create the film by videotaping the actors against a special background then super imposing the images onto another scene. The videos, which sell for $8.95 are free to shoppers spending $25 or more the day of the event.

Shoppers can fly over New York as Superman, zoom down the highway on a Harley, ride a magic carpet, swim with sharks, or lip sync an MTV-style music video for a unforgettable moment of fleeting fame, " said Elaine Kah of Twelve Oaks."One man even asked his girlfriend to marry him through a Fun Flicks Video."

The video event is set for Friday, Aug. 2, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Lakeside, and at the same time on Saturday, Aug. 3 at Twelve Oaks.

Neiman's reveals: How to shop a sale

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO STAFF WRITER

We're in the midst of "summer sale time" and every mall and main street retail district in town is drastically slashing prices to clear out merchandise to make room for fall.

If your neighborhood shops haven't held their annual sidewalk sales yet, be assured they are coming up this week and next.

Neiman Marcus in Troy began its "Last Call" sale July 18, and the store's personal shopper Judy Ivey used the occasion to present "How to Shop A Sale" to members of the Detroit Fashion Group.

"It's a good time to fill in the gaps of your wardrobe, the shelves in your linen closet, and maybe pick up something in the decorative arts for the empty spot on the dining room table or mantel," she advised. She said successful sale shopping is contingent upon "doing your homework" before you hit the stores.

• First, to avoid impulse buying or straying from your budget, look through your closet and make a list of what you need. Do you have a jacket you don't wear because it needs a skirt or pants? Do you have slacks that you'd wear more often if you had the right sweater? Remember to consider the closet up north and the condo closet in Florida, too.

Next, do the same for the closets of your husband and children, listing wardrobe gaps.

• Consider your events calendar. What are the special occasions coming up that you might need a new dress or pair of shoes for? Add these to your list. It would be great to buy any necessities on sale.

• Set a budget for peace of mind. Come up with a ball park figure of what you can spend and stick to it.

• Dress comfortably and simply, so you don't get tired trying things on. Also, bring along a pair of dress shoes to get the right effect when trying on occasion clothes.

• Relax, plan time to stop for lunch or tea.

• There are some don'ts to sale shopping as well. Don't shop with a friend. You'll only confuse and distract yourself with second opinions.

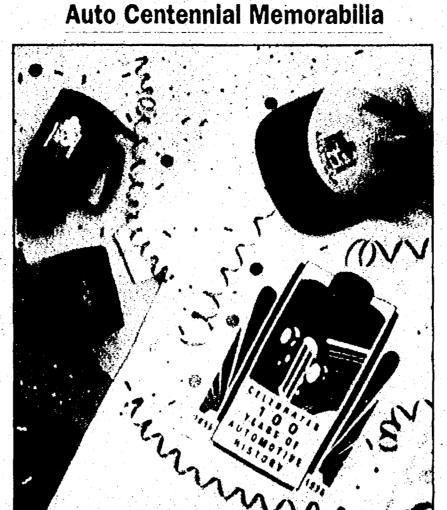

• Don't impulse shop. Always look for things that make sense in your wardrobe.

• Don't overdress. The key to successful bargain hunting is to remain comfortable and unstressed.

Resale shopping expert Jackie Greene of Garden City listened carefully to Ivey's thoughts, and then browsed through Neiman Marcus' sale items, some discounted 75-percent.

"She's right," Greene said. "The best bargains come from acquiring garments on sale that you need and wear often. But to this resale shopper, even a Donna Karan dress at $640 from $1,600 is still expensive."

Ivey also presented a brief look forward to fall, advising sale shoppers to watch for season must-haves like black turtlenecks, deep jewel-tone garments, solid pumps, and anything in matte jersey - the evening fabric of Fall '96.

Holowicki receives sure cure: 6 new players for '96-97

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

Coach Bernie Holowicki is putting the finishing touches on his first complete recruiting class for Madonna University's still-growing men's basketball program.

Holowicki has landed John Branch and Narvin Russaw, both of Milan, plus Erick Giovannini of Livonia Stevenson, Jason Maschke of Livonia Franklin, Chad Putnam of Redford Thurston and Mike Slone of Plymouth Salem.

"I thought we did all right," Holowicki said of the six incoming players, four of them freshmen, who should help the Crusaders mark their fourth straight year of improvement since the program's inception. "They're the kind of players I like, my kind of players.

"They're not well-known or anything. But I know they're competitive and hard-working. I kind of like the six players. They're feisty, aggressive."

Feisty and aggressive ... that would make them a reflection of their legendary coach, who by the way has hopes of getting another player or two enrolled at Madonna in time to play basketball this winter.

The six outnumber the returning veterans by one so if they don't start, the newcomers will most certainly see plenty of playing time if they are able. Coming back are senior guard Christian Emert (WL Central), junior center Mike Maryanski (MH Bishop Foley), senior forward Brandon Slone (Salem), sophomore forward Kyle Smith (North Branch) and junior forward Paul Whiting (WL Western). Mike Slone, 6-foot-4, is Brandon's brother and he transfers in from Schoolcraft, where he did not play basketball. "He's got a lot of talent," Holowicki said of the younger Slone, who will play shooting guard and/or small forward. "He knows how to make the big play." The 6-3 Maschke is a transfer from Schoolcraft out of both Catholic Central and Franklin who fits the coach's desire for players who work hard on both ends of the court. He's projected as an off-guard for the Crusaders. "He's got a great nose for the basketball," Holowicki said. "He knows how to score and he knows how to finish."

Putnam is a 6-7 forward who will shoot outside on offense but go inside where the traffic is to battle on the boards.

"He's a rugged rebounder," Holowicki said. "He's a hard-nosed type player."

The 6-1 Branch was recruited to play point guard for the Crusaders and is "very quick, a good leader and he handles the ball well," Holowicki said.

Russaw, his 6-5 teammate at Milan, is a sleeper similar to Putnam. "He's a rugged rebounder and he's very athletic. He's raw, but the athleticism is there.

"Both those (Milan) kids have great athletcism. That's why down the road we think they're going to be pretty good.

"The four of these (freshmen) guys, they didn't get much publicity. But that's okay. We have to go after these sleepers."

Technically this is not Holowicki's first recruiting class for Madonna. But it's the first time he's been able to go through a whole recruiting cycle for the Crusaders.

He was hired in May of 1995 to coach Madonna's third varsity season of men's basketball and thus was limited in the amount of recruiting he could do. If recruiting was a track race, that would be breaking from the start line while the rest of the field was completing Lap 3 of the mile.

This year Holowicki was able to eyeball high school seniors and junior college players almost the whole season: We say almost because the 64year-old, who spent 22 years building his legend as coach at Redford Catholic Central high, underwent quadruple bypass heart surgery in late February.

LBC overcame an early 5-0 deficit by scoring 10 runs in the bottom of the second inning, highlighted by a two-run triple by Jon Marlin (Livonia Stevenson) and a two-run single by John Ross (Churchill).

The playoffs are held this week.

Caesars ties Hines Park

Mercury played to a 2-2 tie Friday night in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League game halted after eight innings by the league time limit.

Kevin Uzarski went all eight innings for Caesars, offsetting nine hits with 11 strikeouts. Steve Hornsberger went the first seven for Hines Park, also giving up nine hits but striking out four. Brian Reynolds went two thirds of an inning, allowing one hit, while Derric Terry walked two and struck out one before getting the final out.

The score was tied 1-1 until the seventh. Brian Cotner singled, Alex Orsette sacrificed him to second and Jason Schniers scored him with a single up the middle. Schniers went 3-for-3 with a double in the game.

Kurt Richards reached first on a fielder's choice in the bottom of the inning, advanced to second the same way and scored on singles by Hornsberger and Brian Kalczynski to retie the score.

Hines Park scored in the first. Kalczynski, who went 3-for-4, singled, stole second and reached third on the catcher's throwing error. Chris Kirian drove him in with a single.

Little Caesars tied the score in the fifth. Singles by Orsette, Schniers and Adrian Williams loaded the bases but Orsette was forced at the plate on a grounder to third Little Caesars and Hines Park Lincoln with the go-ahead run. Uzarski then lifted a fly to left and Williams came in -- only to be called out on appeal for leaving third base too early.

> Hines Park leads the Livonia Collegiate League with a 21-3-2 record while Decision Consultants Inc. is second at 20-5-1. Little Caesars is third, 9-16-1.

DCI shaded Little Caesars, 4-1, Wednesday in a game at Ford Field despite getting just four hits.

DCI broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh with three runs, helped along by two errors. A.J. Roman walked to start the rally and was picked off, only to reach third on a throwing error by the first baseman. Delano Voletti singled Roman home, taking second on the throw and scoring on Kris DeShetler's single to right. Leadoff hitter Eric Marcotte then hit a fly ball to right that was dropped for an error, permitting DeShetler to score.

Grey Ryan's home run over the right field fence gave DCI a 1-0 lead in the first. Jay Harrington gave up just the four hits in 6 2/3 innings, walking three and striking out four.

Steve Williams started for DCI and gave up one run and seven hits in 5 1/3 innings. Carter won it with 1 2/3 innings of one-hit, three strikcout relief.

Aaron Racey and Brian Coiner sand-

Freshman Giovannini is a 6-3 guard who specializes in filling it up from outside.

"He's an excellent shooter," his new coach said. "He's a slasher-type, go-to-the-basket player. And he plays great 'D."

He's taking part in a rehabilitation program three days at week at Providence Hospital, is working out to stay fit and, with the help of wife Barbara, is watching his diet.

"I'm getting better every day," Holowicki said. "It's a slow steady process."

And it is not expected to keep Holowicki from pacing the sidelines and sitting on the bench when the weather turns cold, the snow begins to swirl and leather hits hardwood.

"I still like it," he said of coaching. "I still enjoy it. I like the idea of competing."

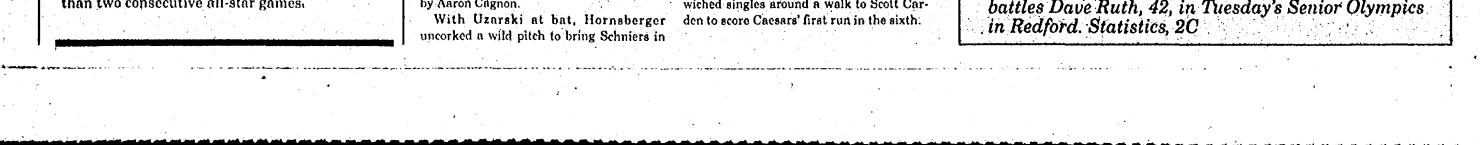

He spent time this summer working with the newcomers, getting to know them .

"We got to know each other," he said. "They worked hard. It was a : profitable summer as far as playing and scrimmaging was concerned. We scrimmaged against a couple of local colleges and some high schools."

Meet an Isuzu truck that's as American as you can get

By Anne Fracassa Avanti NewsFeatures

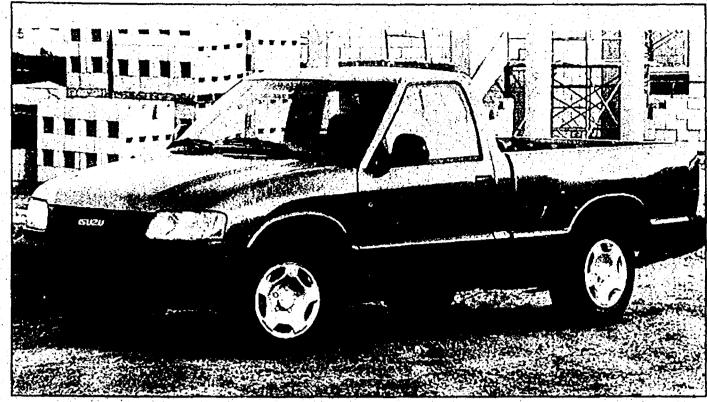

No wonder you're all confused.

Can you really buy a foreign car or truck and call it American? Yep.

Here's a vehicle that's got a "foreign" name, but it's really all-American.

This Isuzu Hombre is 92 percent U.S./Canadian parts content, has a powertrain and transmission built here in the U.S., has a General Motors platform and is assembled in Shreveport, La., at a General Motors truck plant right alongside the Chevrolet S-10.

That's more American than the last Mercury I owned. The remaining 8 percent of the Hombre is made by GM in Brazil, by the way. Hence the name, I guess.

It dates back to 1971, when GM started its mini-truck product category and introduced the Isuzu-built Chevrolet LUV truck in the U.S.

More than 600,000 were sold and owned by Americans who probably thought they were buying an "American" truck. After all, it said sister to the S-10, it's really quite different in a number of ways. The sculptured front fascia and smoother fender lines make it quite distinct and different from the S-10. It's got a more aggressive front, as well.

The large headlamps give the Hombre a sporty, fun-todrive look. Even the rear tailgate, taillamps, side moldings and wheelcovers aren't shared with its sister. I think this truck looks cuter than the S-10.

Yes, I said cuter. Some statistics say more than half of the people who buy compact trucks are women, so I can say "cuter."

Hombre is impressive. There's won't have a headache from the ride.

That nice ride comes from a box-section ladder-type frame with four bolted and riveted crossmembers. It's got front independent upper and lower "A" arms with coil springs and rear, two-stage springs handle load support and add to the ride's comfort.

The rear bed measures 72.6 inches by 56.6 inches. That translates into nearly 40 cubic feet of cargo space, more than enough to carry just about anything you need carted home. Towing capacity is 2,000 pounds - perfect for those jet skis.

reduced engine noise and great fuel economy - 23 mpg in the city and 30 mpg on the highway.

The only transmission available is a 5-speed manual with integral overdrive. All Hombre models are 2 wheel drive. That's a good choice because industry statistics show 76 percent of all lightduty pickup use calls for 2wheel- drive applications.

choose from: An S that has bench seats, or an upgraded XS, which has a 60/40 split bench seat. A driver's-side airbag is standard in both the S and XS.

The Isuzu Hombre XS is equipped with quite a bit of stuff usually reserved for the option list on most small pickup trucks out there, like a sliding rear window, cut-pile carpeting, rear step bumper, air conditioning, tachometer, digital clock and an AM/FM cassette stereo with four speakers.

The Hombre is safe. Sideimpact door beams, 3-point safety belts, 4-wheel anti-lock brakes, a collapsible steering column, side-guard door beams, safety-cage construction, intermittent windshield wipers, daytime running lamps and roadside assistance are there to protect you.

The Hombre also is equipped with 100,000-mile replacement spark plugs and month, 60,000 mile limited powertrain; and 72 month or 100,000 mile limited anti-corrosion.

That's all well and good. But what you need to know is, this mini-truck is solid, functional and fun to drive. A good choice for people who appreciate those qualities.

True or False? The radiator pressure cap on your car is designed to maintain cooling system pressure between 20 and 22 pounds per square inch.

False! Most cooling systems operate between 7 and 16 pounds. The system acts like a pressure cooker, which permits water to boil at a temperature higher than the normal 212 Degrees F. A hotter running engine, within specified limits, is a more efficient engine.

The pressure cap, which serves as the safety valve of the system, should be check periodically to be sure it is keeping pressure within range.
