Some tax supporters maintained hope despite early precinct totals that brought gloomy news. When unofficial citywide results came in, however, voters had defeated the 1.5-mill, six-year tax plan by a 3-to-2 margin.

With a dismal-14-percent turnout among Westland's 54,319 voters, the Project 2000 plan failed 60 percent

In raw numbers, 4,136 voters rejected the tax proposal while 2,751 supported it.

Thomas vowed that he won't rechis current four-year term, which ends next December. But he didn't rule out another try if he wins reelection in 1997.

"I will not bring it back for at least four years," he said Tuesday night. "I'm not going to come back year after year."

Republican state House nominee Dennis LeMaitre is attributing his narrow victory over Michael Novak to an unrelenting effort by his supporters to win votes.

LeMaitre, a Westland business owner, now faces 18th District Democratic incumbent Edeen DeHart in a Nov. 5 race that some political observers believe will be

"I'm very elated," LeMaitre said early Wednesday morning after unofficial vote totals showed that he beat Novak by a 66-vote margin. "I can only thank the 18th District voters for giving me the nomination."

In Westland, LeMaitre carried the GOP race with 1,502 votes compared to Novak's 1,354, according to unofficial results.

"We have a very strong effort from a lot of volunteers," LeMaitre said.

In a small portion of Canton Township that lies in the 18th District, Novak outpaced LeMaitre 129 votes to 47.

"I'm not surprised by the margin of victory," LeMaitre said. "We knew it would be a difficult race."

LeMaitre's supporters have said that he had more name recognition in Westland because of his longtime ties to the community. He owns a printing business and also is a longtime Chamber of Commerce mem-

Parks millage passes without suburban support

Wayne County's proposal to increase taxes to fund parks projects lost in western Wayne County, but won with Detroit's vote Tuesday.

Westland voters followed the suburban trend, with residents voting 2,815 in favor and 4,132 against the proposal. Taxes will increase by a quarter mill, which to the owner of a $100,000 house means a $12.50 a year tax increase.

"It's not a resounding victory, but a very, very important statement," Coleman said.

The vote was close in many communities. "We were facing an incredible wave of anti-tax and anti-government sentiment," he said.

"This says something about parks, and that's the kind of thing we'll have to build on," he said.

A master plan approved by the Wayne County Commission in July will become the action plan, Coleman said. A process will be developed to start the projects, and then

Critics vocal about proposal for new buildings

A $17 million proposal to build new city and court buildings, lure Sears to Westland Center and improve Nankin Boulevard drew criticism Monday from a few Westland residents, including a council member.

City administration officials want a 16-year extension of a Tax Increment Finance Authority (TIFA) plan that captures a portion of tax revenues to aid public improvements such as a new library, slated to open in November.

Councilman Charles Pickering, the only council member in opposition to the ballot proposal, said voters didn't believe that the city needed the $11.5 millionover six years that the tax measure would have generated.

"I think the voters felt the same way I did, that the administration and the council didn't look at other funding alternatives," Pickering said.

Thomas had wanted a citywide community policing program that would have brought seven new officers into specific neighborhoods to become familiar with citizens and business owners.

He predicted that a pilot program in the Norwayne area will continue for at least another year.

Thomas also had sought the tax to pay for a full-fledged Advanced Life Support, or paramedic, program that would have boosted the medical skills of Westland firefighters.

Rather than having paramedics at all four Westland fire stations, the city will have to settle for one full-time ALS unit that will respond from the cen-Chief Michael Reddy said.

"I'm terribly disappointed with the vote," he said. "But we'll go back to the drawing board and provide the best possible service that we can afford to provide."

Some political observers said the tax proposal suffered, in part, because of criticism from Pickering, Mehl and Brown.

Others said the campaign could've been hurt by a stinging piece of literature that reached some residents last weekend. Fliers encouraged voters to oppose Project 2000, and it criticized police officers and firefighters who don't live in Westland.

The literature contained two tral station on Ford Road, Fire acronyms for COPS (Citizens Oppose Political Shams) and FIRE (Fight Irresponsible Regue Entities), and it urged voters to

"just say no to thugs." No one has claimed responsibility for the fliers, which listed a fictitious address in "Wasteland."

"That's the most tactless, classless and tacky piece of literature I've ever seen," the mayor said.

But he said he doubted that the fliers swayed many people. He said he believes that residents simply don't want to chip away at the property tax break they received in 1994 with the passage of Proposal A.

LeMaitre supporters became a little worried at one point early Wednesday morning, when they miscalculated and believed that he had beaten Novak by only two votes. But a closer analysis showed a 66vote margin.

Novak's loss came two years after he won the 18th District GOP nomination. But he was defeated by DeHart in the general election.

Juarez victory prompts face-off in November

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

Garden City resident Carol Juarez has emerged from the Republican primary to take on longtime Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard of Westland in November.

Juarez, wife of Garden City Councilman Ed Juarez, beat Westland resident Bhagwan Dashairya by an unofficial tally of 2,686 to 676.

Juarez prevailed in Garden City 668 to 133, in Westland 1,874 to 493 and in Inkster 144 to 50.

Beard, a commissioner since 1978 and vice chairwoman for the last two years, will likely be a formidable opponent. Although unopposed in her primary, Beard gathered 963 votes in Garden City, 3,086 in Westland and 1,325 in Inkster for a total of 5,374. Juarez and Dashairya combined for 3,362

"I've got to solidly win Garden City and Westland to win this election," Juarez said.

Dashairya said he will endorse Juarez. "Naturally. It's the Republican party. We have to stick

But can she beat Beard? "No," Dashajrya said. "I don't think so."

Dashairya has been beaten by Beard in the last two general elections.

Juarez said she will run a clean campaign. "I will not speak badly of anyone," she said. "That's not my nature."

Still, Juarez criticizes Beard for being disconnected from the community.

"The only time Kay is seen is at a social function or a Democratic meeting," she said. "My husband has been on the city council for three years, and not once has (Beard) been to a council meeting. Not once has she ever called him and asked an

"To register for a Walk Michigan event, simply attend the and head over to Hines Park to event, and fill out a registration card," said Wayne County Parks Director Hurley Coleman. "Each time you come to a Walk Michigan event you will fill out a registration card. The cards will be entered in the drawing for the grand prize trip for two to Mackinac Island and the governor's annual bridge walk," he said. The drawing will be held the end of July 1997 for the 1997

Labor Day Bridge Walk, he said.

The 1996 Wayne County Parks Walk Michigan Grand Prize winners were drawn on July 27 this year, after a Walk Michigan event at Nankin Mills in Westland. Representing Wayne County Parks at the Labor Day Bridge Walk will be Richard Prince of Livonia and Pat Dee of Dearborn Heights.

"Walking is one of the most practical forms of cardiovascular exercise, and it is something almost anyone can do. Millions of Americans walk for exercise," said Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. "The great scenic routes during the walks give the impression that they have escaped into the country. It is a great way to relax and an easy way to stay healthy."

STATE NEWS

Capitol capsules:

Wait 'til next year. That's when the big shift of state shared revenue from older, big cities to outstate townships will start.

Gov. John Engler has signed a new Revenue Sharing Act that changes the formula beginning in fiscal 1998, which starts Oct. 1, 1997. The distribution formula will allocate growth revenues on a per-capita basis instead of the "relative tax effort" basis, which rewarded cities with high tax rates.

"This most historic reform in revenue sharing since the program began more than two decades ago," Engler called it -"a dramatic step forward for fairness, equity and common e n s e

The new formula won't affect old" revenues - just "growth" revenues. Growth money will be deposited in a reserve fund.

DNR boosted

The Department of Natural Resources will be able to train and hire 21 more conservation officers in the fiscal year beginning this Oct. 1, Engler said as he signed its budget bill.

He urged the Legislature to pass bills hiking fishing and hunting license fees to further protect state resources. Currently, the DNR budget for fiscal 1997 is $214.8 million, with $50.5 million coming from the general fund, the rest from specific fees.

The new budget re-creates DNR's Office of Information & Education, aimed at giving students and adults information on recreation, hunting, fishing and ecosystem management.

The budget contains a $750,000 gift from Detroit Edison for planting about four million trees on state-owned land and $1.8 million for 13 local recreation projects from the Recreation Bond Fund.

Adoptions up

Adoptions through private agencies inched up 3 percent in 1995 under the first full year of laws designed to make them eas-

"It's a little too early to measure any trends based on firstyear data," said Verlie Ruffin, associate director of the Michigan Federation of Private Child and Family Agencies. "Hopefully, we'll be able to see a trend of direct consent as another adoption alternative as more people learn about it."

She referred to a series of laws passed by the 1993-94 Legislature that took effect Jan. 1, 1995, at the urging of a commission headed by Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld with many suburban officials and activists as mem-

Biggest single change: an 8 percent increase in adoptions of children with "special needs" older, suffering from emotional, physical or behavioral problems, usually state wards.

Biggest block of adoptions were "voluntary release" where the birth mother consents to adoption and releases the child to an agency. There were 475 voluntary release adoptions, or 24 percent of the total.

How they voted

Here is how area state representatives voted on final passage of Senate Bill 668, which allows the state to permit cities to create low-tax "renaissance zones." The bill was approved 63-34 at the end of a brief July session:

OBSERVER

YES - Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, Tom Kelly, D-Wayne.

Deborah Whyman, R. Canton. ---DeHart, D-Westland, Gerald Law, R-Plymouth.

What they said

The Renaissance Zone act split both parties deeply and drew negative comments in the House Journal from all shades of opinion. Samples:

Rep. David Jaye, R-Macomb County, a vocal conservative: "This legislation exempts billionaires and millionaires from all state and local taxes. Worse yet, the working men and women of the rest of the state are forced to make up the revenue lost by the city, college, K-12 schools in which the Renaissance Zone is located. People in these zones will even be allowed to vote on future tax increases which they will never have to pay."

Rep. Ed Vaughn, D-Detroit: "You help the needy. You have nothing for the greedy ... For Detroit you said: No on Highland Park Community College, no on casino gambling, no on equitable revenue sharing, no on maintain Recorder's Court ... So

NO - James Ryan, R-Redford, to beat up on Detroit, here you _come like Freaks bearing gifts ... NOT VOTING - Eileen if Mayor Archer won't stand up for the people of Detroit, then I

> Rep. Howard Wetters, D. Kawkawlin: "SB 668 is an unwarranted intrusion into the private business sector. We have no idea what this costs. This bill will also allow rich people to establish their 'make believe' residence in a Renaissance Zone and escape all state income taxes."

> Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto, who sponsored the bill: "This isn't about cutting taxes. It's about restoring opportunity. It calls for up to nine tax-free zones to be located in a maximum of six urban and four rural economicallydepressed areas. Every countycan apply for a zone, as well as cities, villages and townships in eligible distressed areas.

"All state and local taxes except the sales tax and bonded indebtedness will be waived for businesses and residences in the zone for up to 15 years. Both existing and new properties will after all your racist undertones receive the tax break."

Crime fighters

The Westland police department has good news for the residents and businesses it

Over the past six years, the rate of crime has declined, in most cases, by substantial percentages.

The department last week released its annual crime statistics.

The analysis for the 1990 to 1995 period shows a decrease in robberies, burglaries, larcenies, arson, vandalism, weapons possession and sex offenses other than rape.

During the same period, crime rates increased for rape, car thefts, narcotics violations and drunken driving cases.

A comparison of crime statistics over that period reveals some startling good news.

On the decline are burglaries, down 19.1 percent; larcenies, down 25.7 percent; vandalism, down 20.5 percent; arson cases, down 73.2 percent; robberies, down 20.9 percent; and weapons possession violations, down 22.8 percent.

There are several reasons for the drop in the categories that most residents are concerned about.

One is the expansion of the police force

The police department had 99 sworn officers on the job in 1995, compared to 86 in 1990:

Another factor is the growth of the Neighborhood Watch program, a national crime prevention effort which encourages residents to keep an eye out for suspicious behavior in their area and call police when criminal activity is observed.

Certainly, there will be never be enough money to have the department assign an officer on each corner.

But there are some ways to deploy officers that are more effective than the traditional. officer in a patrol car.

For example, within the past year, the department assigned two officers to the Norwayne neighborhood as a first step in initiating a community policing program.

An example of the deployment is the increase in drug- and alcohol-related traffic violations. The increase isn't caused necessarily because more people are using narcotics or liquor, but that the enforcement has been stepped up.

In the meantime, the department/community shouldn't rest on its laurels and relax efforts in the ongoing crime fighting cam-

Residents must continue to be alert to potential problems in their neighborhood and call the department.

At the same time, the department must also look for ways to use its officers more effectively to make sure there is no increases in crime categories.

Team is praised

Recently, July 18-20, coach Bobby Allen, his staff and the Westland Youth Athletic Association Pony All-Star Baseball Team participated in a tournament in the Bay City area.

"What is most impressive is not that they won one game and narrowly lost two; but that they played very well, never gave up, and represented the city of Westland in action and behavior of an exemplary nature.

On the road and against adversity (much of it of an incompetent official kind) that would have broken the spirit of lesser athletes of character, they maintained their poise, sportsmanship, and competitiveness.

In this day of so much bad press for our youth, it is important that we recognize the good and excellent when it occurs.

Our All-Stars have been good and excellent and the city can be proud of all of them.

Congratulations to Bobby Allen and the Westland All-Stars and thank you for making up proud!

Plymouth community, I am appealing to adults in the community to donate blood for the benefit of those in need.

While, summertime means fun times for people of all ages - summertime is a critical time for the American Red Cross.

During the summer months, the Red Cross experiences a decline in blood collections primarily due to school closings, family vacations, and changes in business operations. However, the need for blood donations continues. Hospitals throughout southeastern Michigan rely on the Red Cross to supply blood for ill and injured patients.

In turn, the Red Cross depends on the support and commitment of caring people in the community to donate blood. A single donation can help save the lives of up to four patients.

We need blood donations to win the battle against blood shortages. An appointment to donate blood can be made by calling 1-800-GIVE-LIFE.

Good news on Newburgh Lake

A plan announced last week to dredge Newburgh Lake for the first time in more than three decades is good news on two fronts ecological and financial.

The lake straddles the border of Livonia and Plymouth Township in Hines Park. It is also one of the few recreational lakes in mostly land-locked western Wayne County.

For years though, through the 1970s and '80s, recreational uses of Newburgh Lake took a back seat to industrial ones. Storm drain runoff and illicit sewer connections have also had an adverse effect on water quality. The result has been contamination by PCBs and sewage, which have settled on the lake bot-

Swimming hasn't been allowed for years. And although new fishing piers were built along with a boat launch in 1993, advisories against eating fish caught there are posted beside the lake.

The dredging process, in which the lake will be drained and sediment from the lake bed carted away, will allow for the eventual, full return of both activities. A dam built in the early 1900s will also be repaired. The faulty dam has contributed to the flood of pollutants in the 105-acre lake.

Hines Drive between Newburgh and Haggerty will be closed for about 18 months beginning early next year. The dredging work should be done by mid-1998.

Once the lake is cleaned, Wayne County plans to stock it with bluegill, largemouth bass and other fish. Rebuilding a swimmable. lake will take a little longer, about 10 years, according to officials.

We don't mind the wait or the inconvenience.

Dredging the lake will not only enhance the quality of life for local residents, it will clean up a longstanding environmental problem. The effort goes hand-in-hand with a 10year campaign to make the Rouge River system - which includes the lake - environmentally sound.

Bids are expected to come in this week for the dam repair and the entire project has an estimated cost of $5-$10 million. That's where the other good news comes in.

The bill for these improvements will be paid by the federal government, as part of a nearly $300 million funding package that goes with the Rouge River National Wet Weather Demonstration Project.

Western Wayne County residents and businesses, by nature of their income, send a large amount of money to Washington when compared to other urban and suburban regions. It's going to be nice to see some of that flowing back to the area in the form of a clean, fully usable lake that will benefit all.

Presidential deceptions

It seems President Bill Clinton has a problem with the stories he tells. He tells one lie one day and the next day he changes the lie to satisfy a different audience. I cannot see how he gets much satisfaction out of fooling the stupider side of America. Surely he cannot think of all these lies himself. He must have a lying corporation of his own.

The groundwork for this disposition must have occurred in Arkansas where he could tell a lie and the "good ole boys" affirmed it. Now with the whole nation looking and hearing him it's not so easy to tell an untrue statement that will be accepted, but you do have a group that will believe anything he says. I feel sorry for these people.

They will be waiting for something that will never happen. How many of these disappointments does it take for them to realize there is no Camelot!

I just received today a piece of trash in the mail that is supposed to be campaign literature from a Jeff Schroder.

I felt like I was transported back in time to Nazi Germany.

I don't know who this person is, what he does, where he stands on issues effecting our government, our taxes, the economy, what he has to offer by way of intelligence, background and expertise to handle the problems of county government and bring about sound, thoughtful resolutions.

All I know of him is the disgusting, hatemongering, divisive, low-level trip he prints up which panders to the very lowest instincts in human nature.

POINTS OF VIEW

Ads no longer give viewers a sporting chance

This time, they went to Atlanta. They went to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the greatest spectacle of international competition. They went for this quadrennial extravaganza which brings together, from all corners of the globe, the greatest advertisers the world has ever seen.

They have names like Nike, Reebok, Miller, Anheuser-Busch and McDonald's. In previous years, the venues have included such ancient and historical cities as Berlin, Tokyo and Rome, but this time ... they went to Atlanta; home of Coca-Cola, CNN and The Weather Channel. (NOTE: For greater dramatic effect, you should be reading this slowly, in a deep voice like John Tesh does.)

What is truly amazing about the just-concluded Olympics is all that proud sponsoring went on amid frequent outbursts of people playing sports. With all the interruptions of running, throwing, swimming and jumping going on, it was absolutely astounding that all those commercials made it into the broadcasts. These interruptions were not just caused by all the foreigners who don't understand the Rules of Olympic Advertising Etiquette, even the American athletes seemed to be horning in on the airtime.

Of course, it's not just the Olympics. Professional sports of all kinds have become one giant ad. Nearly every golf tournament has a corporate sponsor, and every televised game will feature several bogus awards like the "Arrid Offensive Player of the Game" and the "Ex-Lax Fast Break Award."

Hockey and baseball used to be above such crass commercialization. but not anymore. The dasher boards, once pure white, are now covered with ads. Indeed, every flat surface which will be seen by the camera can be sold for ad space. When the center field camera gives us the pitcher's point-ofview, we see an ad; when a hockey player takes off on a breakaway, we see a beer logo showing right through the surface of the ice!

For years, athletes have endorsed various products. Now Michael Jordan, it seems, endorses every product, even if they have nothing whatsoever to do with basketball. The logic that connects his athletic prowess to his choice of hot dogs and underwear is lost on me. The strangest athlete endorsement I know of was golfer Ray Floyd's association with Amana. Now, Ray Floyd is a fine golfer, and Amana makes swell appliances, but, once again, I don't get the connection. I've played quite a bit of golf, but I can never recall standing over my golf ball and saying to my playing partners: "Hey, I've got a real tough bunker shot here - does anybody have a frost-free side-by-side refrigerator I. can use?"

This may have started in sports, but now the whole world is beginning to look like a stock car race. Leisure wear has become nothing more than wearable labels. You pay six bucks for a movie ticket; and you get 10 minutes of ads before the film starts. Even public television is on the verge of trading its integrity for more rev-

If there is to be no refuge from advertising, maybe we should get creative about using it to our advantage. How about getting the kids tattooed with corporate logos in exchange for college scholarships, or selling ad space on the sides of caskets to defray the high cost of those pesky funeral expenses?

Since our kids are already being pitched candy, pop and pimple cream under the guise of education during the Channel One broadcast they see daily, how long will it be before some crafty "entrepreneur" creates "sponsored academies"? Why not cover the walls, desks and blackboards with ads in exchange for big corporate dollars?

Our only salvation may be found in the example of one institution; in order to be free of undue editorial influence, Mad magazine has never accepted advertising. I find it refreshing that one of America's funniest, most irreverent publications stands as a paragon of integrity. As Alfred E. Newman might say: "What, me sell out?" Hang in there, Alfred. You are a true beacon in the deepening darkness.

Religious Right substitutes for Big Labor in '90s politics

One night last month, Pat Robertson promised his "700 Club" TV audience an expose of the Internal Revenue Service, a federal agency he deplored as dangerous and tyrannical Other media told "the rest of the story."

 Robertson's Christian Coalition gets an entire chapter in a new book called "Dirty Little Secrets: The Persistence of Corruption in American Politics" by Larry Sabato (a political scientist at the University of Virginia in Robertson's home state) and Glenn Simpson (investigative reporter now with the Wall Street Journal).

The gist: The Christian Coalition was set up as a tax-exempt "social welfare organization," but was quickly turned by Ralph Reed into a political campaign organization, though its articles of incorporation made no mention of plans to do political campaigning. It found itself constantly under attack from the Federal Election Commission and the IRS. (Michigan is identified as a particular hotbed of CC activity, as readers of this column for the last four years know.)

 The Federal Election Commission on July 30 filed suit in U.S. District Court charging the CC improperly aided Republican candidates with its voter guides.

• Mitchell Research and Communi cations, an outfit well-known in the western suburbs, conducted a poll for The Detroit News indicating Republican voters in Michigan are disturbed and divided about the clout of antiabortion forces - their "my way or the highway" attitude.

That poll focuses too much on Right to Life. In reality, there are a batch of organizations that overlap into what is loosely called the "religious right." Robertson's CC is the big one; Michigan Family Forum, an affiliate of another national outfit, is another. Nationally and particularly in Michigan, the Grand Old Party has a big problem with the religious right's alienation of moderates. Time magazine, in its cover story last winter on the CC's Ralph Reed, said it best: The religious right can't nominate a topof-the-ticket candidate, but it can prevent anyone it doesn't like from being nominated.

Democrats, again particularly in Michigan, have had the same trouble with their iron-fisted domination by the AFL-CIO, especially its publicemployee unions wing.

What, then, is wrong with such groups' playing the political game and winning? Shouldn't we admire them for strategizing, working and winning? Yes, but:

 Both big labor and big religion have a propensity to label their side as "right" or "saints" and all others as "wrong" or "sinners." You are "for the workers" or "for the family" or else their sworn enemy.

 Both cry "persecution" constantly. Big labor - which never would tolerate bias on the bases of race, creed or sexual orientation - finds economic class warfare acceptable; those damnable corporations oppress workers. Big religion portrays itself as persecuted by government, as under attack because it believes in heterosexual procreation and Jesus.

• Big religion's goal is a theocracy. religious control of government. It goes far beyond outlawing abortion and assisted suicide. It seeks government-sponsored prayer, governmentsponsored Bible reading, governmentrecognized status for "creationism" in science classes, government money for religious schools (which first are to be relieved of the burdens of "bureaucratic red tape" such as qualified teachers, qualified administrators and a core curriculum).

In 1994, Democratic gubernatorial nominee Howard Wolpe had a public employees' union tiger by the tail, and it ate him up. This year, Bob Dole and Gov. John Engler have a religious tiger by the tail.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional Communities join forces to test new firefighter recruits

By BETH SUNDRIA JACHMAN STAFF WRITER

A more structured approach to testing firefighters has been adopted by communities in the Conference of Western Wayne.

The conference is a consortium of 18 western Wayne County communities, including Canton Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Westland, Garden City, Redford Township and Livonia.

From now on all firefighter applicants for those communities will be drawn from a pool of those who have passed a certification test, which includes basic written and physical agility

Schoolcraft College began administering the tests in July and will offer the tests on a regular basis.

"Successful completion is now required by the Conference of Western Wayne," Bob Pearce, director of public safety education at Schoolcraft College, said.

It possibly could expand and become a requirement in other communities, Pearce said. The program is modeled after one given for prospective police officers, under the Michigan Law Enforcement Training Council.

More than a year in the planning, the program began after local community officials requested it. "Communities were coming to us saying we need this." Daniel Gilmartin, executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne, said. The advantages for communities are it offers a standardized test, which communities can add their own requirements to, and it transfers the cost of testing to the applicant.

The 100 question written test measures mechanical knowledge and reading comprehension, according to John Smilnak, advanced fire training coordinator at Schoolcraft. The physical

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

Paradise found, a vacation lost

Editor's note: For the faithful readers of Karen Meier, the saga of her summer vacation in South Carolina came to a very abrupt end last week. We wish we could say Hurricane Bertha caused it, but we can't. And rather than waste time explaining the intricacies of the newsroom, we give Part 2 of her column, complete and unabridged.

My Summer Vacation-Part 1, or How We Lost Battle with Bertha: It was the start of our week in the tiny village on the big ocean when suddenly we were told to leave. Hurricane Bertha was coming. Now, Part 2. My family of seven held on. For a bit. After all, it'd been two years since we'd had a week to ourselves, as a family, leaving jobs, routines, even scrubbing tile, behind. Like birds who beat their wings and beat their wings. we caught an updraft. Every family needs that, to regenerate together, to soar together.

It should be law - minimum one week, every year. Leave it all behind. And notice things stars, cornfields, cumulus clouds, the faces of those who mean everything to you. No if's, and's, but's about this. Gotta do it.

We had that drive. And we had a Midwestern tornado mind-set. A tornado, visce, is ugly look ing, green skies, torrential rains, maybe wild hail and TV, radio and siren warnings and, you move, immediately, to safety, and then boom, the warning and the danger are over the skies clear, and more often than not, everything's just fine, This hurricane jazz is way different. The skies

■ When fire raced through the Gratiot Central Market in June 1995, Rod and Diana Kallungi's thriving meat business was destroyed. A year later, they are back in business with their Eastern Market of Canton.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

Diana Kallungi of Plymouth Township believes that everything happens for a reason.

When a June 1995 fire destroyed her family's business, Kallungi Meats in Eastern Market's Gratiot Central Market, she held on to that belief as her hopes dwindled that the market would be rebuilt.

"They told us they were going to rebuild it, but we've had no contact from anyone," explained Kallungi, who runs the business with her husband, Rod. "All we know is what we read about in the paper. We can't put our life on hold until they rebuild the market. By the time they do, we could starve to death."

On Friday, July 26, Kallungi Meats found new life as Eastern Market of Canton in the Pine Tree Plaza on Joy Road just east of I-275.

The Kallungis took on the new name to remind old and new customers that they're the same customer-oriented company that was rooted in Eastern Market for 20

"This is a good area for this," Kallungi said. "A lot of people we talked to said there was room for another good meat market. People get tired of going to the grocery store and walking 20 miles to get a

All the meat in the store is fresh cut, Kallungi said, and her husband makes his own sausage.

"We'll cut it the way you want it. It's your choice. You're the

The move to the suburbs has allowed the Kallungis to expand their business to include condiments, a deli and cheese counter, some frozen foods, specialty coffees and a cafe service.

"We were going to start out with just meats but we figured that out in the suburbs we need to be more than just a meat market," she said. "We don't want to be a grovery store. We're not a Farmer Jack or Meijer. But if you had a steak and you wanted A-1, we have it."

The store has only been open for nearly two weeks, but the Kallungis have already seensome of the old faces trickling in.

"Some old customers have been faxing in orders," she said. "Ltake care of them. We freeze wrap everything so when you go home all you have to do is put the meat away. We take real good care of our customers.

"When the old customers see our new customers, they even tell them, 'Don't worry. They'll take care of you. You're in good hands here.'

Rod Kallungi started his business in 1974, 10 years before he married Diana. The two worked together to build the store into a bustling meat market with 20 employees behind the counter.

Just as the couple returned home June 22, 1995, they got a phone call with the bad news.

"It took us 15 minutes to get down there; we could see the smoke from Telegraph and the Jeffries," Kallungi said. "From the reports I heard on the radio, I knew it was our building."

The intense fire completely destroyed everything in the building - the scales, the meat counters, antiques that were kept in the basement, and all its stock. The cause was never determined.

Although insurance covered most of the loss, purchasing new equipment proved to be a costly venture. The new equipment cost nearly 100 percent more than what it cost 10 years ago.

The Kallungis decorated their new store with antique butcher equipment. The old model scales and knives on the wall contrast the new computerized scales and cash registers. Kallungi said she's pleased with the new location.

"It's fun out here; the people are great and they seem to be happy that we're here," she said. 'It's a lot more fun. In the city, there was a lot of pressure with the business. There was an intense business out there. On holidays, I'd make 5,000 shish kebabs in two days with another 5,000 on hold. It was nice. That meant that you made money.

"But at the end of the day, we'll all be too exhausted to enjoy the holiday. I don't think we'll see that kind of intensity out here.'

If anything, the move to Canton has brought the family together. Diana Kallungi's daughter, Tracey Harris, runs the deli, while her sons, Mike and Matt Harris, help out around the store. "I just believe that things happen for a reason. Maybe it was meant to bring us out to this location or to bring the family together."

Eastern Market of Canton is in the Pine Tree Plaza, 39493 Joy Road, between Hix and Haggerty roads, Canton. For more information, call (313) 459-0120.

are blue, the ocean, too, the smell of pancakes and maple syrup still hangs in the air in the kitchen as you do the breakfast dishes and then a guy in a fire truck tells you to get out of town, off the whole island, now.

This is NOT how we do it in the Midwest.

And what about the five remaining nights of our reservation? The soul-refueling unrealized? The $130 of groceries we bought on arrival for the seven of us for the week neatly put away in the kitchen's pantry, refrigerator and freezer? The shells not yet collected, the lighthouse steps unwalked, the next day's fishing boat adventure unventured, and those beautiful blue Wednesday morning skies and ocean waves beckoning out my window? And North Carolina hurricane season not due for seven to nine weeks?

What about all that? Sigh.

Of course, we left. We had to. But not till everyone else had. Not till an old salt told us after sundown that Wednesday the bit about the ocean's storm surge combining with Thursday's 5 a.m. high tide (Thursday - my 15th wedding anniversary) and how the road would likely wash out then (the only road off the island) 11/2 days before Bertha would come busting ashore.

Then, in the dark of Wednesday night, with everyone else gone, even the office by that time, and the waves pounding ominously close by, with tornado mind-set finally put aside, and a huge gulp of salty water (not sea water, tear water), we vacated, we evacuated.

The older children knew this was it and they cried. The younger ones didn't and they slept. We headed north. Once on the mainland, near Norfolk, Va., we stopped at the first place we could. It was not good. Morning, thankfully, came. The rest of the day - our anniversary day, yikes traffic jam after traffic jam. Hours, all day, heat, children crying and afflicted with unexplainable decreased bladder. capacity, smelly pet turtle, pillows falling into smelly pet turtle's tank, big tempers, little fuses, tight quarters, re-bagged groceries unbagging into smelly pet turtle's tank, finally ending day laugh.

just before sunset in a very old, scary, hot, equipped-with-akitchen hotel room in the heart of a big east coast city.

The hotel was reassuringly and invitingly displayed in a tourist guide pamphlet we'd just picked up at a Tourist Center/Rest Area. Turns out, the room for us (eight including Cecil, the Boy Scout summer project turtle) was on the third floor of this hotel whose parking was expensive and 1% blocks away. No working elevator in the hotel, instead creaky, narrow stairs in dark, narrow stairwells led to the door of our room. Ron unlocked the door and pushed it hard (it had swelled in the oppressive heat). This room, the room for seven hurricane refugees and a smelly turtle, after a 10-hour grueling drive, had ONE bed.

We retreated. We slogged our way back to the far away parking deck and began our accommodation hunt anew, but not without first tearing a big hole in the vinyl luggage carrier atop the van on the cement supports of the parking deck.

Two more hours in congested metropolitan traffic and a 10 p.m. supper at Wendy's, we found a name-brand, chain motel. With a vacancy. And clerk behind bullet-proof glass.

The room had two beds. We all squeezed in. The floor was inhospitable, at least for twolegged creatures. "Happy anniversary," Ron and I whispered to each other in that crowded room, just before midnight. And we quietly laughed a "we'll laugh about this some

Exercise equipment has roots in therapy

BESUE MASON STAFF WRITER

Imagine signing up for a fitness class and ending up spending most of your time sitting, bouncing or laying on a large red ball.

Now, don't confuse this ball with the medicine ball you spent hours keeping airborne during physical education classes in school. And by no means is it like the children's toy that looks like a ball that's been stuffed through the hole in a flat plastic doughnut.

We're talking Fitball, a large beach ball-style, vinyl ball that has made the transition from therapeutic exercise, physical therapy and rehabilitation programs to the fitness world.

"There's a lot of people-out there who don't like to jog, who don't like to sweat," said Kathi Carzon. "There are people out there who are tired of jumping around. When you're on the ball, your joints are supported so you can stretch safely and more effectively.

"I'm really excited about doing this class. This is like being a kid again and a lot of fun."

Fitball is one of two new fitness programs being offered this fall by Carzon's American Health and Fitness in conjunction with the Livonia Public Schools: It will be offered 6-7 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Bentley Center gymnasium, Five Mile Road at Hubbard, Livonia.

Range of motion

According to Carzon, Fitball increases range of motion, enhances stretching, improves balance and coordination and improves body alignment and posture, not to mention works the body as one connected piece.

In short, when you sit on the ball, you practice active sitting. Your muscles are being actively used to help maintain balance, and because the ball is round, it's difficult to "cheat" by trying to balance without using mus-and the heart rate can be increased for the cardiovascular workout by adding in arm movements, all done with little or no impact and feet planted squarely on the floor.

"You get a full stretch, not hyperextension; it's a full stretch and you end up using every muscle to stay balanced on it," Carzon said. "It's just a good workout."

WEDDINGS

Omilian-Westrick

Deanna Marie Westrick and Michael Richard Omilian were married Sept. 2, 1995, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in St. Clair.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Westrick of St. Clair; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Omilian of Livonia.

The bride, a Michigan State University graduate, is an accountant for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Detroit.

A graduate of Eastern Michigan University, the groom is an actuarial analyst for Gabriel, Roeder, Smith and Company in Southfield.

They received guests at the Thomas Edison Inn in Port Huron before leaving on a honeymoon trip to St. Lucia. They are making their home in Garden City.

"I'M HAPPIER KNOWING THAT MOM IS IN GOOD HANDS. SHE'S JUST HAPPIER, PERIOD."

Active days. Discussion groups where every voice is important. Gardening where friendships bloom as well as flowers. And daily routines where people are secure knowing that trained, caring staff is nearby to offer assistance if necessary.

That's life at Springhouse, an assisted living facility for those who need extra help in their day-to-day routine, with things like dressing, bathing, and taking medications, but still want to enjoy life to its fullest. We customize care for our residents, giving them only the services they need or request. This helps them remain as independent as possible.

Friendship is one of the hallmarks of the Springhouse experience. In fact, it's never been easier for some of our residents as they are free to join each other for activities like walking and lectures. But residents can be on their own, too, setting their own routines. If they want to enjoy a quiet meal in their own apartment, they can. In short, residents make the choices that let them maintain control of their own lives.

We've designed Springhouse to be a safe and secure environment, with licensed health care professionals, staff and personal care assistants just seconds away—24 hours a day. So while residents are leading secure, active lives, their loved ones enjoy the peace of mind that comes from such special care—and Manor HealthCare's 35 year tradition of excellence in health care.

For a free brochure, call us or send in the coupon below. And if you'd like, schedule a tour to see firsthand how we make a difference in the lives of our residents.

Respect sun to

By Johanna Chapel, M.D. and Thomas A. Chapel, M.D.

It is estimated that one in five Americans will develop skin cancer. The good news is that, with protection from the sun, most skin cancers can be prevented.

The sun's ultraviolet energy produces cumulative life-long damage to the skin. By age 10, the average person receives 50 percent of their total life-long sun exposure, and by age 30, more than 80 percent. This means protection from the sun should start in infancy and continue throughout life.

Infants under the age of six months should be kept out of the sun. However, children older than six months and adults also need sun protection. A simple way to minimize sun exposure is to avoid outdoor activities between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m - the period of peak. ultraviolet irradiation.

Protective clothing is important. A cotton tee shirt has a sun protective factor (SPF) of only five and this meager defense is reduced if the shirt gets wet. Protective clothing is now available with SPF 30 and greater. Hats can shield the face from the sun's rays and are most effective if they have a rim that is three inches or larger.

Sunscreens should be worn regularly, and an SPF of 15 or higher is recommended. The best protection is afforded by sunscreen products that protect against both ultraviolet A and B rays. For maximum protection; sunscreens should be applied 30 minutes before sun exposure and reapplied with every one-and-one-half to two hours of sun exposure.

People must respect the sun and its potential to harm skin. However, by following a few simple guidelines, we can still enjoy summer. activities and at the same time minimize the risks of skin cancer.

Polanski wins junior event

Stephen Polanski of Livonia shot a 72 Sunday to capture first place by five shots in the Boys 14-16 segment of the Power-Bilt Michigan PGA Junior Tour event at The Meadows Golf Club in Allendale.

Only five golfers were below 80 in the Boys 14-15 age group and Polanski easily outdistanced his two nearest challengers.

Chris Kiehler and Dave Higham, both of Livonia, finished third and tied for fourth, respectively, in the Boys 16 & up division. Kiehler was two shots off the pace of the winner.

Evan Chall of Westland was third in the Boys 13 & under category, shooting an 82 that was two shots out of second and seven strokes behind the winner.

Higham shot a 76 Friday at Bedford Valley to finish tied for fifth in the Boys 16 & up division of the Ping Junior Classic, another Power-Bilt Michigan PGA Junior Tour event.

Chris Tompkins of Westland won a playoff and finished third in the Boys 14-15 division with a round of 82. He was three shots out of first.

Golfer wins $5,000

George Theophelis, 51, of Livonia, won $5,000 after carding an ace on the 150-yard, No. 4 hole July 5 at Griffin Gates in Lexington, Ky.

Theophelis used a pitching wedge.

He captured the prize money in a promotion staged by Marriott.

Bavarian golf outing

Bavarian Village Ski & Golf, along with WDFN Radio, will stage its All-Sports golf outing to battle Multiple Sclerosis, Monday, Aug. 26 at Tanglewood Golf Course in South Lyon.

Among those scheduled to play include Kris Draper, Darren McCarty, Eli Zaret, Milt Wilcox, Mike Stone, Tim McCormick, Fred Heumann, Bill Gadsby, Dave Rozema, Gary Danielson, Lem Barney, Jamie Samulson, Jennifer Hammond, Jason Thompson, Ray Lane, Dan Petry, Vinnie Johnson, Dexter Bussey, James Hunter, Novo Bojovich and Ron Kramer.

For $125 to a worthwhile cause, participants will be able to play 18 holes of golf with a cart and celebrity, be served lunch and dinner, and have a chance to win hole and door prizes, as well as special prizes.

Registration forms are available at any local Bavarian Village Ski & Golf shop.

Cronenwett ends drought

Westland's Steve Cronenwett ended a twoyear drought Saturday by winning the 30-lap America Racing Club Association Late Model feature race at Flat Rock Speedway.

The Late Model contest was all green flag as Cronenwett battled with Joey Shuryan at the start to grab the lead. Cronenwett, staying in the high groove the entire way, held off Shuryan to ice his first win of 1996.

He now ranks third in the point standings.

Mark Pace, also of Westland, took 10th in the 20-lap ARCA Figure 8 Feature, while Livonian Mike Jaynes won his heat in the ARCA Streek Stock division. Redford's Tom Selmi and Rich Frantz took fifth and seventh, respectively, in the 20-lap feature.

The Twisters threatened on two other drives in the second have, but an interception and fumble thwarted the scoring bids.

The Twisters' defense, led by Aaron Brothers, tightened up in the second half although the Rebels scored another TD with less than two minutes remaining.

"We're a very young team, but we are improving each quarter," head coach Kevin Bradford said. "These guys will never give up and they will be rewarded soon. We show the inexperience of a first-year team, and we have to be patient. The players really went to do well for the community."

Sometimes brute force does it. And sometimes it takes Finesse.

That's Finesse as in the Finesse 18-under softball team that became the state's first United States Slo-Pitch Softball Association champion since 1983 when it won the World Championship in Lexington, S.C., during the weekend.

Finesse lost one game and capped its weekend tournament run with a 4-1 record Sunday against teams from Georgia it had not beaten all season long.

The Finesse 16-under team finished third in its World Championship tournament in Hutchinson, Kans.

Finesse placed five players on the USSSA All-World team. They included Jenny Myslinski (Harrison, WMU), who hit .600 and scored 14 runs in the tournament as the team's leadoff hitter and Vonne Jenks (Garden City, WMU), the shortstop acclaimed the tournament's Defensive MVP who also batted .500 and drove in eight runs.

The others were Christina Boguslawski, who hit 600; Sherry Foster, SOFTBALL

All-Star gridders wind up winners

By Dan O'Meara STAFF WRITER

Observerland's gridiron talent went on the offensive Saturday in the Michigan High School Football Coaches All-Star Game.

Eric Curl (Livonia Stevenson), Ron Hunter (Plymouth Canton) and Jake Siskosky (Farmington) saw action on offense and helped the East win 20-12 over the West at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing.

The East led 14-0 at halftime and, after the West got within two points early in the fourth quarter, clinched the victory when Dion Grubbs (Detroit Cooley) sprinted 32 yards on a draw with just under four minutes remaining.

Curl, a standout two-way lineman for Stevenson, played offensive tackle and still enjoyed the game as much as he would have if we had been on defense.

"I still got some pretty good licks," said the 6-foot-3, 246-pound Curl. "I had a pretty good idea I'd be playing that; I just wasn't sure if it would be guard or tackle.

"I love offense just as much; I love hitting. On a couple pulls, I really got the linebacker. On a draw, I hit the linebacker so hard his head snapped back."

That block helped the East advance 15 yards but wasn't the only personal highlight for Curl.

On a bootleg pass play in which the quarterback rolled the opposite way, Curl "peeled around" when his first objective, the defensive tackle, went inside and "leveled the defensive end."

Curl, who is going to perennial Mid-American Conference contender Bowling Green on scholarship, butted heads with plenty of Big Ten players during the week of practice leading up to the game.

"I was looking at that, just to prove to myself I could hang with everybody," Curl said. "I was real happy with my performance."

One of the best friends Curl made during the all-star experience was fellow East offensive tackle Dave Sucura from Sterling Heights Stevenson who is headed to Michigan State.

"I got to know a lot of my teammates well," Curl said. "It was such an awesome experience, meeting all these talented players. I had a Hunter, a 6-foot-3, 195-pound wide receiver, caught only one pass, but it helped set up the East's first touchdown. The 35-yard gain was the longest pass play of the day and put the ball on the West 26-yard line. The East scored three plays later. Hunter would like to have seen the ball a little more, however.

"A lot more," he said. "But we won; so I'm happy."

Hunter discounted the idea it was difficult to install an adequate passing game with only a week of practice time. East quarterbacks Kevin Kreger (Dearborn) and Matt Loughead (Mount Clemens Chippewa Valley) were 6-of-16 for 80 yards.

"Our passing game was pretty good," Hunter said. "We just needed to use it a little more. The coaches thought we could with the run; we

Jack Roberts has been Executive Director for the Michigan High School Athletic Association for a decade now.

And if he has any say about it, he will continue on the same course for the next 10.

"The fundamental Jack Roberts issues remain scholarship, safety, sportsmanship and the overall scope of the program," said Roberts, who met with Detroit-atmosphere that surrounds the field, a regional soccer match; and a will be with us 10 years from now. It will always be a defining issue."

The 19-member MHSAA Representative Council approved a 13point package in May which calls for expanded sportsmanship efforts in education, encouragement and enforcement.

The package also added a fourth element, exposure for those coaches and programs which are consistently poor in their behavior and sportsmanship efforts.

The Council is reacting to three embarrassing incidents during the fall of 1995, which included a coach throwing a chair during a district girls basketball tourney game; a Troy Hilton. "Sportsmanship, the coach head-butting an official during Roberts said there were 132 schools where three or more unsportsmanlike reports were submitted during 1995-96.

To end that, the Council approved proposals to have the names of those schools which receive three or more negative officials reports in a single school year, and to publish the names of coaches who are ejected from contests, to be published in the MHSAA Bulletin.

Also, players who receive three ejections in one year will be banned from post-season play.

The Council also announced some new wrinkles for the 1995-96 sea-

 Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn will host the Lower Peninsula Cross Country Finals (all classes). Nearly 1,900 student-athletes from approximately 500 MHSAA member schools will gather at MIS, negotiating a course which begins on the infield of the facility, proceeds to an adjacent wooded area for nearly one-half of each race, and finishes in front of the main grandstand. Two-thirds of the race will be visible to spectators, but binoculars are recommended.

TRAILER NOTES

If hauting a trailer behind the family car or truck is in your vacation plans, here are some hints that may ensure safe motoring: To begin with, avoid the possibility of overloading by understanding that the maximum Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR); which is comprised of the weight of the loaded vehicle including cargo and passengers, should not be exceeded. Nor should the listed Gross

Combined Weight (GCW) of the vehicle and trailer be exceeded. To do so risks compromising safety and causing damage to the vehicle. When loading the trailer, place 60 percent of the cargo weight in the forward and keep the cargo low to the floor. Be sure to inflate the tires in both the tow vehicle and trailer to the precise recommendations of the tire manufacturer for your particular load.

Finally, shorten the maintenance intervals for chances of you and your cargo arriving at your destination safely. At HOLIDAY CHEVROLET INC., we are diligent in solving automotive problems and swift in diagnosis. We offer friendly hometown service, with one-on-one relationships between the technician and you

Campau, a 1989 Churchill graduate and math teacher, was the leading candidate to replace O'Shea.

Chad has done a very nice job with the boys program and now we're going to give him total control of the entire soccer program," Hage said. "He's very excited and he's looking forward to building the program, both athletically and academically.'

Campau and wife Amy, recently married, just returned from their honeymoon in Florida and the Carribean. They also took in the Olympic gold medal women's soccer final held last week at the University of Georgia in Athens.

"Just watching that game got me fired up about soccer," Campau said. "It was an incredible experience just being there.

He got a late start with the boys team last fall when he was hired only a week prior to practice after John Boots resigned unexpectedly.

"I'm hoping the extra month will help, we've had second week of July," Campau said. "We have some young kids, but I think we'll have a pretty good team.'

Campau also has high hopes for the girls squad next spring despite the loss of All-Stater Marie Spac-carotella (Michigan), the school's all-time leading scorer.

"I worked only one of their games last year so I want to take a look to see who we have back returning," Campau said. "But I know we lose only a few to graduation. We have quite a few starters back and a

"They (soccer teams) are separate, but it's also a unit as far as one pro-gram," said Campau, a Michigan State University graduate. "And I'll be able to keep an eye on all of them since I'm in the build-

Victory pushes Bulls into AABC Series

The Michigan Bulls are on their way to the American Amateur Baseball Congress World Series in McKinnon, Texas.

The Mickey Mantle ballclub (ages 15-16) won five of six games last weekend in Coldwater and won the championship of the Central Regional tourña-

Coach Jim Ferguson's team was led once again by its outstanding pitching staff; which recorded its 10th consecutive complete game in the process.

Jeff Trzos (North Farmington) won two games, including the title-clinching, 4-2 victory over Steel's of Macomb County.

The 6-foot-6 southpaw was voted the most valuable player in the regional and was one of four Bulls named to the all-tournament team.

He was joined by teammates Sean Heard (Westland John Glenn). Kevin Thomas (Detroit Catholic Central) and Brian Drieselman (Dearborn Divine Child) on the all-star squad.

Also winning a game were pitchers Kirk Taylor (North Farmington), Thomas and Matt Ksiazek (Catholic Central).

"I thought we'd win it because of our pitching," Ferguson said, ROUNDUP adding the Bulls filled a need at shortstop by adding Drieselman. "That tightened up our defense, but pitching-was the main thing. Our first four are tough guys."

The Bulls will be one of eight teams in the national tournament and will face Cincinnati Midland in their first game at 5 p.m. Friday.

"The other teams from Puerto Rico and the West Coast are good teams, but we'll do OK,' Ferguson said. "We won't embarrass ourselves.

"We played all 18-year-old teams in our tournaments, so there's isn't much we haven't seen. I think we were well prepared for Coldwater, and I think we'll be prepared for Dallas.'

Trzos went the distance in the final game, striking out nine and scattering five hits. Heard had three of the team's five hits. including a pair of doubles, and

In the opener, Trzos pitched a 10-0, shutout against Burnsville, Minn. He fanned 12, allowed four hits and walked two in the six-inning mercy.

Heard had two hits, including a two-run homer, to spark the victory.

Taylor posted 10 strikeouts and walked just one in the next game as the Bulls won 6-3 over Parkhill, Minn.

Thomas was the winning pitcher and helped his cause with a grand slam in Game 3, which resulted in a 15-2 rout of Steel's. He struck out 12 and Trzos offered hitting support in the way of two home runs and three RBI.

Ksiazek pitched the 10th straight complete game, scattering four hits over seven innings. He fanned seven and walked four in the 7-2 victory over Burnsville.

Adam Stachurski (Orchard Lake St. Mary's) closed the door on the Minnesotans with a three-run homer to give the Bulls their 7-2 lead.

With Steel's needing to win twice in the championship round, they defeated Bulls in the first game, 8-4.

pitched the first 3 2/3 innings, but the loss went to tournament draftee Tim York (Royal Oak Kimball).

Evan Feldman (North Farmington) hit a solo homer for the Bulls, who are 32-16 overall.

South Farmington falls

The Barons had a poor start in .the tournament Wednesday, losing their first game to the Morgan Hitting Club of Grand Rapids, 6-4.

Chris Karney was 2-for-4 with two RBI, and Todd Miller hit a two-run single. Nick Latra, had a hit and a walk, was hit by a pitch, scored two runs and had one RBI. Luke Humphreys got the loss.

South Farmington edged American Legion Post 205 from Lansing in its next game later Wednesday, 7-6.

Latra entered with the score tied 5-5 and pitched the last three innings to earn the win.

Mike Daguanno scored the goahead run on a first-and-third double steal. Dave Viane, who went to third when Lansing tried to get Daguanno at the John Larson (Brother Rice) plate, scored on a suicide squeeze by Humphreys.

Lansing had runners at second and third when the game ended. Latra fanned the last two hat-

The Barons finish the season with a 32-9 record.

"It's the end of a long line with this group," Barons coach Dick Miller said. "They've been together since they were 10 years old and accomplished a lot. They won close to 20 tournaments.

"If we had played the way we did in the district, it might have been different. We've been to the regional the last two years, but just couldn't take it to the next level."

Always part of the South Farmington Baseball organization, the team was known as the Sox originally and as the Barons the last four years, including two at the Mickey Mantle level.

"The Barons were well Miller was 3-for-4 to lead the received by everyone and known for good sportsmanship," Miller said. "If nothing else, we set a standard.

"If you called two weeks after a tournament was closed, all you had to say is 'We're the Barons,' and they'd find a spot for you. They knew they were getting a good team that played with class."

WYAA Pony Stars 2nd

The Westland Youth Athletic Ryan Tripp surrendered the Association All-Stars (ages 13-14) finished second last weekend in the Wayne Late Summer Pony Classic at Anderson and Waltz fields.

> WYAA finished 3-2 overall, losing twice to eventual champion Trenton in the double-elimination tournament.

> Pitchers Brad Forrest and Chris Akerman each worked three innings in a 9-0 shutout over Monroe in the opener on Friday.

> On Saturday, Westland led 5-4 after one inning before losing to Trenton, 18-8.

They rebounded later in the day for a 9-6 win over Commerce Township behind the pitching by Forrest and Akerman.

On Sunday, the Westland All-Stars overcame a 4-1 deficit after four innings to beat Carleton, 9-5, as Eric Guillon delivered a key bases-loaded double. Forrest and Akerman once again shared the pitching duties. Although out-hitting Trenton, WYAA lost the championship final, 18-6.

Other players for the WYAA All-Stars include: Ryan Rattray, Dave Lewandowski, Nick Rogiero, J.T. Pillsbury, Curtis Cichocki, Sam Blouse, Dave Holloway, Dan Fedulchak, Darren Harvey, Ryan Tracy, Bobby Allen and Eddie Orehek.

The head coach is Bobby Allen. His assistants include Jack Cichocki and Steve Fedulchak. The business manager is Tony Varcoe.

"For the MHSAA to consider running a tourney, we either have to have 10 percent or 70 schools involved," he said. "It's a sport that is there, but only half of the teams are recognized by their school boards. The rest are considered club teams."

Roberts also said the misapplication of overtime rules in the Plymouth Canton-Livonia Churchill district girls game last May was a clear-cut issue.

"It was amazing to us that each school had an equal opportunity to speak at the time in question," the MHSAA Executive Director said. "That was one of the easier ones to deal with because of what is clearly stated in our (MHSAA) Handbook, and

Lakers grab Metro title, 7-6

BY CJ. RISAK STAFF WRITER

First of all, to get to the championship circle, dial up the intensity

Both the Broncos and the Lakers did just that in the Metro Summer Hockey League's title game Sunday at the Plymouth Cultural Center. The result was a hard-fought, hard-hitting game that wasn't decided until the final buzzer.

And it took a dramatic three-goal. final-period rally by the Lakers to emerge with the crown, as they edged the Broncos 7-6.

The Broncos' got a goal from Brian Consolino, his second of the game, with 8:06 remaining in the final period to take a 6-4 lead.

After Consolino's third-period score, the Lakers struck quickly. Daye Daavettila punched home a goal 31 seconds after Consolino's score to pull the Lakers to within 6-5; then, 1:09 later, Paolo Decina beat Bronco goalie Chris Thomas to tie it at 6-all.

The game-winner came with just :01 left, with the Lakers' Aaron Daavettila netting it -- his second of the game, to go with one assist. Dave Daavettila had two goals and an assist, Mike Harris also had a goal for the winners, with Charley Ciuffetelli netting three assists, and Steve Jones and Vic Decina getting two apiece.

Consolino totaled two goals and three assists for the Broncos, with Brent Bessey scoring twice and both Scott Hands and Jeramie Murray getting one goal apiece. Darren Hands had two assists.

Healthy Harmful

Breast implant debate continues

By Casey Hans Staff Writer

Gloria Bywalec has awakened from what she calls her "silicone nightmare," and wants to send a wake-up call to other women as

Meanwhile, the former leading manufacturer of silicon breast implants continues to maintain the safety of these products some four years after they stopped producing them, and the safety of using silicone in other medical implements.

Bywalec, a Canton resident and registered nurse who had saline breast implants encased in silicone for 15 months, said she went through such trauma and physical pain because of her body's rejection of the silicone, that she is sharing her experience in a book.

Called "Betrayed," the book is written and published by Bywalec and her sister, Anna Marie Rzeppa, who also lives in Canton and is an RN. A portion of the proceeds of the book will be donated to the Silicone Implant Follow-Up Service, a clinic in Memphis, Tenn. which treats patients who have had implants and subsequent medical prob-

A one-year project, the book shares Bywalec's story and the stories of others. They also began a networking process around the world with others who have had similar experiences. "Our book . . . is about the innocent victims. It's designed to open the eyes of the unbelievers, close the wounds of the broken-hearted and offer truth, hope, help and understanding," said has physical tremors, trouble functioning and some memory impairment which she said she did not experience before the implants.

Writing the book was also a therapy for these women. "It was definitely a healing process for me," she added.

Representatives from Midlandbased Dow Corning, the largest manufacturer of silicone breast implants until 1992, cite some 13 studies, including some done by Johns Hopkins, the Mayo Clinic, and several large universities which refute the relationship between these physical problems and breast implants.

Dow Corning, owned by parent companies Dow Chemical of Midland and Corning, Inc. of New York, has been operating under Chapter II federal bankruptcy protection since May 1995 because of the more than $4 billion in claims from a class-action suit stemming from silicone implant lawsuits.

'We still stand 100 percent behind the safety of the product," said Barb Muessig, media relations manager for Dow Corning, She added that, although there has been a moratorium on using silicon implants for breast augmentation since 1992, they are still used for breast reconstruction, and saline implants like those for Bywalec are still being sold on the open market and approved by the FDA.

Bywalec no longer works due to her disability, and travels Harper Hospital twice each month for blood cleansing treatments which cost her insurance carrier between $4,000 and $6,000 per treatment.

She estimates some 400,000 women have had similar experiences "and those are only the ones we know about," she said. She said although many think saline implants are safe, they are still encased in silicone and her experience belies this. Silicone in a woman's body can also pass through the placenta and through a nursing mother's milk to babies, she said, which is something many women are not told.

The book's cover shows a shadow figure of a woman and was designed by Rzeppa's eight-yearold son and Bywalec's nephew, Nathan. According to the authors, the figure represents "The 'Eve' of a New Beginning" for many women, and is designed to be a symbol for women to honor and respect themselves and to respect their bodies as they are: without surgical alteration.

"I have come to realize that I am much more than my body image," said Bywalec, who had her implants in February 1993, while in her early 40s, and had them removed on Memorial Day weekend in 1994. "I learned to love yourself for what you are.'

"Sometimes it takes losing our health to realize what we're all

She said she hopes her situation has opened the eyes of her adult daughters, although she is concerned about the message she may have sent by having the implants put in. She also feels hurt by her medical profession, she said, which offered misinformation, and "betrayed" her — thus the name of her book.

Two plastic surgeons from the Houston, Tex. area approached Dow Corning with the idea of manufacturing the original silicone implants in the early 1960s. They became popular in the mid-1960s, and today between 750,000 and one million of implants manufactured by several large companies have been surgically implanted, according to Dow Corning information. Epidemiologist Patti Klein, a Dow Corning scientist, said that, although today's studies show no link between implants and illness, that much of this research wasn't available when the surge of complaints began to surface in the early 1990s. She said pressure from patients, attorneys and negative media coverage fueled the process, until it was out of control. "It wasn't that the company wasn't able to get it together," she

New school offers healthy dose of learning

he need for a more skilled work force in the health care industry. is prompting a new public, charter high school program to open this fall field.' in Wayne County, and two competing hospitals to partner in the venture.

The first of its kind in Michigan, and only one of a handful of health care trade academies in the country, the Michigan Health Academy is seeking out high school juniors and seniors who are interested in getting specialized health care career training while earning their high school diplomas.

"This is really innovative for us we've always been major competitors," said Sandy Hudson, director of Oakwood's Community Focused Health Promotion Network and president of the new school's board of trustees, in discussing the part-

'It's real life ... the academy will help to channel these skills into something real and practical. It really will make them much more aware of what's out there. It gives them a bird's eye view of the health care nership between Oakwood Healthcare System and Henry Ford Health System. "We see this as an opportunity to develop a work force, and also to develop something special in our community."

"Charter school" status for the Michigan Health Academy was granted by Saginaw Valley State University, which will oversee the school's operational charter.

The specialized high school will accommodate up to 200 students -100 in each grade - and will receive per-pupil funding from the state, just as other public schools do. The first year will focus on traditional high schools courses, as well as selecting a study emphasis from three areas:

■ therapeutic - which could include careers such as nursing assistants, patient care assistants, pharmacy and operating room technicians and respiratory aides;

diagnostic - which could include radiology technicians, phlebotomists, ultrasound and EKG technicians and cardiac catheterization technicians: and information services - which could include admitting and patient accounting clerks, record management and unit coordination study.

The second year of study offers both classroom and on-site, handson education at Oakwood and Henry ... Ford facilities.

The Michigan Health Academy is located in the Downriver Community Conference (DCC) building in Southgate, but organizers hope to draw from all over the metro area, and are, this month, targeting students in the Westland, Redford and Plymouth areas through an infor-

PoliticsNow

Go online for the best in political flavor

Extensive coverage this summer's national political conventions can be found easily on the Internet, especially if you point to the PoliticsNow site at http://www.politicsnow.com.

The site is sponsored by ABC News, the Washington Post, National Journal, Newsweek and the Los Angeles Times.

News reports of what people in southeastern Michigan are doing at both conventions will be filed by the Observer &

Eccentric's own Tim Richard on the News Stand site operated by O&E Online. After the gavel drops, point to http://oeonline.com/news.html. PoliticsNow will take you to the floorand Politics Now will take you to the floor and behind the scenes of both the Republican and Democratic national conventions with in-depth coverage and interactive features that let you express yourself as a "virtual delegate" on the issues facing both parties.

If you are not in San Diego or Chicago, you still can chat with the politicians and the political experts online. You may not be on the GOP Platform Committee but you will be able to read the entire Republican platform online and compare it to the 1992 planks.

PoliticsNow round-the-clock convention coverage will include:

■ All the speeches, real-time results from the roll call votes on the floor, all the floor fights, and all the news form the floor as well as real-time audio of major speeches, daily video and audio clips of convention highlights.

■ A variety of interactive features to allow users to casts votes on important convention issues. Users also will be able to vote online for Bob Dole's choice for a running mate.

■ Exclusive interviews and live auditorium events with key convention participants, major politicians, and leading journalists such as David Broder, Peter Jennings, David Brinkley, George Will, Sam Donaldson, Hal Bruno or Howard Fineman.

Online discussions as each day's events nfold.

Prior to the conventions, users can go to PoliticsNow for interactive biographies of Bill Clinton and Bob Dole and or to enter a contest to win a trip to the Presidential Point your Web browser to http://hcs.harvard.edu/~hpr/ to find the Harvard Political Review, a non-partisan journal of both domestic and international issues. accessible style.

"The Interactive Biographies of Clinton and Dole" presents the biographies of both using a storytelling format, rich with video, audio and photographs.

What do Bob Dole's army buddies have to say about him? Want to listen to Clinton playing the sax? How did Dole fumble during the 1976 vice-presidential debates? Have you heard Clinton's infamous letter to the ROTC officer?

These moments, plus hundreds more from their personal and political lives, can be found along with a photo timeline from 1923 to the present to chronicle the lives of both side-by-side.

A feature called "Generation Gap" compares Clinton the Baby Boomer with "GI Generation" Dole at the same stage in their lives and looks at the culture of the time. For example, when Dole was a teenager Glen Miller was hot; in Clinton's teen years, Roy Orbison and the Beatles topped the charts.

Another feature called "Time Capsule" looks at where each man was at a turning point in history, such as the Kennedy assassination, as well as where each stood on pivotal issues such as Roe vs. Wade.

"The Inaugural Bowl" is a new political trivia game available on PoliticsNow with the grand prize being a trip for two to Washington, D.C., for the Inauguration valued at $3,500. To play the game, players select states, each of which has point values equal to the number of votes each state has in the Electoral College, and then answer questions for each state. The goal is to get 270 electoral votes (the amount needed to win the presidency). Once in office, each player must correctly answer one final question to be eligible for the grand prize drawing. Entrants must be 18 or older and entries must be received by Nov. 1, 1996.

Phone chief: he's getting a new phone number too

If there were a better way, the president of Ameritech wouldn't be getting a new phone num-

That's according to Bob Cooper, new president of Ameritech. He spoke to area business and political leaders at a recent luncheon.

Forty-five new area codes will go into effect in the United States this year. This story is repeating itself all over," he said. Pagers, faxes, personal computers, and cellular phones have combined to exhaust area codes more quickly than any one could have imagined even 10 years ago.

With all the changes happening in the local phone service, long distance and cable TV industries, Ameritech is looking at how Michigan can capitalize on the changes, Cooper said.

Advanced telecommunications are a tool that can be used to drive and manage growth, he said. Technology puts money in people's pockets and puts technology in businesses and schools, he said. Ameritech is making a significant investment, with a $521 million budget in Michigan, Cooper

Some people say Ameritech's investment is because of competition, but they are ignoring history, he said. One hundred years have been spent building the telephone company, he said.

"It means that Michigan residents can be the big winners," he said.

Cooper said his mother, who is 85, often wonders why she has to deal with multiple companies for long distance and local phone service.

"It's clear to me, my mother and the people of this state deserve to have that choice," he said. Companies have "had a hammerlock too long,"

he said. Long distance companies have raised prices at their own will, he said. More and more companies like Ameritech are getting into long distance, he said. And Ameritech is entering the cable TV business in nine communities in Wayne County, including Plymouth and Plymouth Township. This competition brings better service from existing cable companies, and "it's going to get even better as we continue to ratchet," he said.

"Competition creates its own growth," he said. "The pie gets bigger with competition."

"We welcome the competition. We always have because we're ready.'

Set to perform: The Motor City Women of Comedy's "Laugh's Across America" benefit at the Royal Oak Music Theatre features the organization's co-founders Mary Miller (left) and Alyce Faye, as well as Sean Kanan who plays "A.J. Quartermaine" on the ABC soap "General Hospital."

COMEDIANS GET SERIOUS FOR

When her best friend's daughter was diagnosed with cancer, Farmington comedian Alyce Faye wasn't sure how to react.

"It came with a whole emotional bag that we just didn't know how to deal with," Faye said. "We didn't know what to say. You're afraid you're going to say the wrong thing. It was like walking on egg shells. Here is a child that my son played with on a regular basis. When you have children you sit around and talk about well, When they grow up, maybe they'll do this, maybe they'll do that.' Never did we think that Stephanie wouldn't grow up."

So when Faye read about Gilda's Club, a cancer support center named after comedian Gilda Radner who died of the disease, she immediately wanted to be a part of it.

"I want to commit my life to raising funds for this because I feel that we are blessed with so many good medical facilities that can treat the condition, but we really didn't have a place that dealt with all the emotions and the psychological effects of the disease."

"When somebody gets cancer, people don't know how to react to them. Sometimes they stop calling. They're afraid they might say the wrong thing. They don't stop over. That's what Gilda's Club is about. It's a network system for cancer patients, their families and friends and it deals with the emotional, psychological and educational parts of this disease."

After less than three years of fund-raising and searching for an appropriate site, Gilda's Club, Metro Detroit has purchased a threestory, 5,300-square-foot building at 3517 Rochester Road, Royal Oak. It is symbolic for the club that the purchase coincides with the former Detroiter's 50th birthday.

To continue to help the club and to pay tribute to her mentor, Faye has organized "Laughs Across America," a benefit comedy performance at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, at the Royal Oak Music Theatre, 318 W. Fourth St., Royal Oak. Tickets for the 21 and older show are $75 for suite seating that includes buffet dinner, $55 VIP preferred seating, and $35 for regular seating. The show is dedicated to two of Faye's friends Dee Krosnick of Franklin and Carol Silverman of Bloomfield Hills who recently died of cancer. Former Berkley resident Mary Miller, who co-founded the Motor City Women of Comedy with Faye, lost her mother to cancer a

The Motor City Women of Comedy benefit is also a registration site for the third annual Gilda's Club Family Walk and Block Party which will be held on Sunday, Sept. 29, at Cobo Center, Detroit, For more information about that event, call (810) 851-6557.

The Royal Oak Music Theatre performance features the rest of the Motor City Women of Comedy - Coco of Detroit, WNIC's Stacey DuFord of Bloomfield Hills, ex-Warren resident Lisa Goich of Los Angeles, Gilda Hauser of Southfield, Jennie McNulty of Royal Oak, Maria Menozzi of Grosse Pointe, and WDIV-TV's Jill Washburn of Rochester – sketch comedy by Karen and Darrin Brege of Totally Unrehearsed Theater, and special guest Sean Kanan who plays "A.J. Quartermaine" on the ABC daytime soap "General Hospital."

Faye, who will serve as emcee with Miller, explained that it is fitting that Kanan is participating because his character's mother on the show had breast cancer.

"Alyce Faye is a friend of mine," Kanan said via telephone from his Los Angeles home. "I came in and did a show at Gadzook's (comedy club in White Lake Township) and she asked me do it. I was more than happy to help."

Kanan, who will play Fran Drescher's love interest for the first few episodes of the "Nanny" this fall, explained that he tries to do stand-up comedy at least once a month. Most of his material comes from "General Hospital" but he said he also does impersonations.

Faye co-founded the Motor City Women of Comedy with Miller in 1993 "to use their comedic talents to promote good will and assist select organizations in raising funds." The group's line-up changes every year.

"It seemed to be like a good old boys network out there. The men got tired of hearing us say that, but we feel it's true. We really wanted to show that women are funny. A lot of times when they hear 'a woman comedian,' they think that's all we can do is get up there and male bash or talk about feminine hygiene products," Faye explained.

"A lot of us don't even talk about that because we're already labeled. They think that we can't be funny. But we can be just as funny as our male friends."

But, she stressed, men are just as welcome as "We do many things and we can invite men in and have men as guests. We don't want people to think that we only perform for women. We're very interested in women's issues because we are women. We're very interested in promoting women in business and in anything that we can do. But we love those men. We're willing to do shows for men and we're willing to help men because we know they need humor and they need laughter."

The Motor City Women of Comedy's goal is to raise $1 million for different charities. So far, the group has raised $80,000 for various organizations and charities, with $33,000 of it going to Gilda's Club.

"We would like to take ('Laughs Across America') across America and put on different shows in different cities for different functions. It can be for whatever is needed in the community. We really like to do stuff with cancer research. It's really something that Mary and I are committed to.

Listen closely while walking through the "Peace Through Art" exhibition at Livonia City Hall and you can almost hear the artists chanting "all we are saying is give peace a chance."

Laura Callow, Human Rights Commission chairperson, let her eyes and heart guide her in organizing the show of painting, photography, assemblage and collage. The late German printmaker Fritz Eichenberg lived John Lennon's philosophy. His "Peace Endangered" wood engraving continues to move people like Callow.

On loan from the permanent collection of Swords into Plowshares Peace Center and Gallery in Detroit's Theater District, the group exhibition of art ranges from commentaries on the flag by Canton graph of a child's bedroom, "Nuclear Accident: Chernobyl," is wrought with emotion. Shenkarenko, who suffered radiation poisoning symptoms from the "accident," is thought to have died as a result of his exposure.

While most works were created by artists old enough to have lived through the Vietnam War, it is the art of children, wise beyond their years, that stimulates viewers to consider a world of peace and love for all living things. One collage by students of North Ohio Elementary in Gaylord features slogans urging the keeping of peace in the Middle East as well as a plea to protect wild animals.

"The Human Relations Commission is interested in creating good will and harmony. The Peace Center's goals are the same," said Laura Callow who curated the exhibit with Roberta Young.

"The topic of peace is of interest to everyone," said Young. "With the bombing of TWA and all the terrorism in the world today, we all have to work for peace and that's what the exhibit is all about."

Well known for his illustrations of books in the '30s and '40s, Fritz Eichenberg (1901-1990) dedicated his life and work to peace. The haunting black and white wood engravings for Dostoevsky's "Crime and Punishment" and "The Brothers Karamozov," "The Tales of Edgar Allen Poe" and other classics by Tolstoy, Pushkin, Goethe, Erasamus, and the Bronte sisters were particularly well suited to portraying the tragedies of war. Born in Cologne Eichenberg, at the age of 16, was introduced to the work of Goya and Daumier Township watercolorist Connie Lucas to "We wanted to show the way artists whose dark documentaries of war fed his Detroit artist Carl Owens' "In Memory of interpret peace because I believe power desire to become an artist with a message. Performing in Atlanta during Olympics thrills dancers

Electricity filled the air at Joanne's Dance Extension as members of the senior company began a final dress rehearsal performances at the Cola Olympic Center in downtown Atlanta. Dance students ages 13 to 21, along with an array of professional international performers, singers, dancers and musicians entertained Centennial Olympic Games tourists at the venue across the street from Centennial Park.

"It was a huge shock to be invited in the first place. We are the only dancers from Michigan," said Joanne Zavisa who founded the Plymouth studio 12 years ago. On top of that we were given an elite status because we didn't have to audition."

Team captain Marie Harrison led the 36 dancers hailing from Plymouth, Canton, Westland, Novi, Northville, South Lyon, Belleville, Taylor, and Brighton. The company had worked tirelessly for the last six months washing cars and selling cookbooks and flowers to raise $900 each in order to go. Blackwell Ford, C. D. Sparling and attorney Fred Brunk provided strong financial support. Donations of toothbrushes, bottled water and sports drinks, and various sundries were solicited and collected by Kim Hancock, one of the dancers mother's

The dancing and the trip both give them organizational and time management skills," said Zavisa who was up until 2 a.m. the previous night doing the necessary paperwork.

Although the trip was a glorious proposition, it was also a tiring affair. Dancers rose at 4:30 a.m. to board a bus for a two hour ride to Atlanta. Once there, they rehearsed, ate, performed, and boarded the bus for the ride back to the dorms at the University of Georgia.

For the last two weeks. dancers prepared for the heat by practicing their routines in the parking lot every day. From a video, they learned to sing and dance the Coca Cola Family routine that had them singing and dancing while a three-story bottle of the beverage was uncapped. Nothing, not even the bomb in Centennial Park, deterred their enthusiasm and determination to participate in this one-in-a-lifetime experience. A student at Plymouth Canton High School, Harrison, seemed cautious about the trip but not

"We were a little concerned at first but they've tightened security. The standards are pretty high," said Harrison who was excited about dancing with professionals.

but you have to put it in perspective," said Amanda Nora, a Mercy High School student. Added Zavisa, before the performance. "They'll probably be safer than going to a rock concert."

"Going back is a little scary

Mark Christiansen, Plymouth's new finance director, wasn't really worried his 13year-old daughter Lauren would be traveling to Atlanta.

The benefits of Lauren's dancing, including increased selfesteem and development of discipline as well as the chance to display her talents, far outweighs the risks.

"Lauren's dancing has provided her with numerous opportunities like dancing at Disneyland. Being at the Olympics is a once in a lifetime opportunity. In light of the events that occurred there's a concern but I think they have security under con-. trol," said Mark Christiansen.

Lauren, a student at Cook Elementary in Plymouth, was oblivious to everything but the fact she was going.

"It's real exciting," Lauren Christiansen said, before leaving for the trip. "The Olympics is such a big thing."

Entry is open to any artist who is of Polish descent or married to someone of Polish descent, was born in Michigan, or is a current Michigan resident.

All media may be submitted for judging. Enti / fee is $15, adults, $10, college students. Three pieces per artist may be entered. Artists must deliver works to the Orchard Lake Schools Galeria 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 28. Cash prizes will be awarded including $200 for Best of Show; $150, first prize; $100, second prize, and $25 each for three honorable mentions. For entry forms, or more information, call B. John Surmat (810) 541-3697 or Edward W. Wojtan, (313) 425.

QUARTER CENTURY RETROSPECTIVE

Redford artist Jack Keijo Steele will exhibit 25 years of paintings Aug. 18 through Sept. 8 at the Scarab Club, 217 Farnsworth, behind the Detroit Institute of Arts. The public is invited to attend an opening reception 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug.

A native of Ironwood, Steele attended Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills. In 1994 his early works, which earned him recognition as one of the Urban Realists of the 40s and 50s, were featured in an exhibit at Cranbrook. The paintings in the Scarab Club exhibit have never been shown before. Hours are noon to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. For information call (313) 831-1250.

JAZZ CONCERT

Ursula Walker and the Buddy Budson Band are special guest artists in the Jazzical Nites series 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10 at the Plymouth Community Arts Council, 774 N. Sheldon. Tickets are $12.50 and available in Plymouth at Frances Jewelry Gallery, the arts council office or by calling (313) 416-4ART.

Walker won a CLIO for best vocal performance. Over the years, she's worked with Matt Michaels at the London Chop House and Bess Bonier. Budson, who's been married to Walker for 20 years, is an accomplished composer and orchestrator. He has played with the Four Tops, Henry Mancini and Buddy Rich.

ARTISTS OF THE MONTH

The Livonia Arts Commission will host a variety of mediums and subject matters at its three venues during the month of August. "Peace Through Art," a mixed media exhibit curated by, the city's Human Relations Commission, gives viewers plenty of food for thought in these troubling times of terrorist bombings. The work by recognized local and international artists continues on display through Aug. 30 at Livonia City Hall. Hours: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Norma McQueen of Garden City shows original paintings of florals, landscapes and genre scenes in the showcases at the Livonia Civic Center Library through Aug. 28. McQueen, who strives to leave the world with her personal interpretation of beauty captured on canvas and paper, is director of The Art Gallery in Garden City.

Egg tempera painting is rarely shown except in mixed media group exhibitions and then only one or two examples of this ancient method are included because few artists have the patience to work in the medium. Livonia artist Victor Vicini specializes in the intricate, time consuming art. His recent egg tempera paintings will be on display in the fine arts gallery at the Livonia Civic Center Library through Aug. 30.

The use of egg tempera originated in medieval Europe. Artists who worked primarily in this pain staking medium include Botticelli, Giotto, Fra Angelico, and contemporary painter Andrew Wyeth. Vicini recently began incorporating gold leaf into his paintings. Hours for shows at the Civic Center Library are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday, and until 5 p.m. Friday and Satur-

Ceramist is DIA artist in residency

In conjunction with the exhibit "African Form and Imagery: Detroit Collects," which continues through Jan. 5, the Detroit Institute of Arts hosts Nairobiborn ceramist Magdalene Odundo for an artist-in-residency program in August.

Odundo, world-renowned for her unusual style of hand-working clay, creates pieces that aren't only strikingly beautiful but also combine various associations and meanings with funcwest as well as methods used by 20th century peoples of sub-Saharan Africa, to derive an approach to transforming clay into compelling, provocative ceramic statements.

While her work may be viewed on one level for its exquisite beauty, her pieces evoke a feeling that there is a deeper meaning within them. The DIA, is at 5200 Woodward, call (313) 833-7900 for more information.

TRAVEL

Don't pass up transportation, museum bargains

BY JENNIFER MERIN AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Cities throughout Europe. Asia and the United States offer discounts on public transit fares and admissions to museums and other attractions.

Though the pre-paid passes are meant as savings for tourists, locals may find them economical, too.

Rebecca Werner of Las Vegas, on a two-day sightseeing spree in London, paid $4.50 for a One Day Travelcard and figured she saved $15.

"I'm riding the Underground for free, at this point," she said. "My one-day transit pass was paid for when I entered the Tube the third time. This is ride six, and I still have three more places I want to go this afternoon. Then this evening, I'm planning a long double-decker bus ride just to people-watch."

Except for the Gatwick train and Heathrow Airbus, Travelcards are good for unlimited travel on Britrail trains within London, the Underground and public buses. Public transit in London is based on distance traveled. The passes, sold at all Underground stations, are $4.50 for Central London and $6 for a six-zone pass. They are valid from 9:30 a.m. on weekdays and all day on weekends and holi-

Werner also bought a White Card, an all-inclusive pass to 13 of London's top museums, including the Victoria & Albert, Imperial War Museum, the Museums of Science and Natural History, Museum of the Moving Image and the Royal Academy. The White Card is $31 for three days, $45 for seven days. Regular admission averages $8 to $9, so the savings is substantial.

In Amsterdam, where a transit ticket averages just under $2, a Daypass is about $8 for one day, $10.50 for two days and $2.50 for each additional day. Passes are sold at train and subway stations. In addition, one-day passes are available from bus and tram drivers.

The Amsterdam Pass covers admission or offers discounts to 28 attractions. It is $17 for three days at any city tourist kiosk or office. The Rijksmuseum and

Van Gogh Museum are included, but the Anne Frank House is

In Paris, tourists may buy transit passes at Metro and RER

(commuter train) stations. The Formule 1, a one-day pass, ranges from $6.50 to $21 depending on the number of zones. A Paris-Visite pass, good for up to five days, is $14.50 to $66.50, depending on the number of days and the zones. On average, five rides would cover the cost of a one-day pass.

La Carte Musees et Monuments is $13 for one day, $27 for three days and $38 for five days. It covers admissions to the Louvre, Musee d'Orsay, the Picasso and Rodin museums, Centre Georges Pompidou and 60 other

On the Pacific Rim, the Tokyo Free Kippu offers unlimited use of subway and rail lines within Tokyo and of the Kanto Bus Lines. The pass is $15.50 per day at any subway or railroad station. Subway rides normally cost about $2 to $3 each.

In Australia, Sydney's transit pass is a real deal at $30 for three days, $39 for five days or $65 for seven days. It covers airport buses; the red Sydney Explorer tour buses, which make 22 stops around town; the Rocks-Darling Harbour Tramway Bus and all State Transit ferry and bus services. The pass is valid from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. It is sold at the airport, on Explorer buses and at State Transit ticket offices.

Sydney also offers an excellent museum access package. Essential Sydney Ticket covers admissions to the Sydney Opera House Tour, Australian National Maritime Museum, Centrepoint Tower, Taronga Zoo and other stops. It is $33 for seven days at participating institutions.

San Francisco leads other U.S. cities in value and convenience of public transit and other passes for tourists. The Muni Pass, $6 for one day, $10 for three days and $15 for seven days, offers unlimited use of Muni light rail and buses and cable cars. BART (Bay Area Rapid Transit) routes are not included. Passes are sold at downtown Muni stations and visitor information kiosks. A day pass pays Museum of Art and Museum of for itself in seven rides.

The city's Explorer Pass, $12.50, saves about 50 percent on admissions to the California Academy of Sciences, de Young Museum, Asian Art Museum, Japanese Tea Garden and Conservatory of Flowers. It is valid until all five museums have been visited and is available at any participating institution, visitor information kiosks and the Union Square TIX booth.

In Los Angeles, a Cee-LA pass is $25 for 30 days. It pays for up to four family members at each of 18 museums, including the Page Museum, Armand Hammer Contemporary Art.

The L.A. County Art Museum. and Norton Simon Museum are not included. Assuming the pass was used to the maximum, savings on a total of 72 admissions. would be substantial.

All passes are non-refundable. Costs vary from city to city, as do rules on their use. Check on availability with hotel concierges and local tourist offices. Before buying, calculate savings based on limits and plan an itinerary that maximizes usage. Keep in mind that some transit systems shut down overnight.

Blues: Johnnie Johnson performs Friday at the Magic Bag in Ferndale during the Detroit Blues Festival.

Detroit Blues Festival moves to Magic Bag

The Detroit Blues Festival is the Kingpins, Madcat and making its return Friday, Aug. 9-Saturday, Aug. 10, with a new name and a new venue.

"The First Annual Dog Days of Summer Blues Festival" moves from Hart Plaza to the Magic Bag, 22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale, and features 10 bands.

Tickets are $15 in advance, ar $25 for a "Blues Dog 2 Day

Grammy nominee Johnnie Johnson, "The Grandfather of Rock 'n' Roll Piano," is slated to headline the first night with openers George Bedard and Kane, Mudpuppy and Garfield Blues Band. Johnson, who's been performing for 63 of his 71 years, began playing piano for Chuck Berry in 1952 and years later is credited for being a major musical influence by fans like Keith Richards, George Thorogood, and Eric Clapton.

Saturday's headliner, Sonny Landreth has the distinct honor of being one of the first artists to play Centennial Park in Atlanta after it was reopened Tuesday, July 30. The blues artist's scheduled performances for Sunday, July 28, and Monday, July 29, had to be rescheduled after a pipe bomb exploded killing one person. James Wailin' and Wailin' Inc., Randy Volin and the Sonic Blues, Johnny "Yarddog" Jones, and Jim McCarty and Mystery Train warm up the audience for Landreth, who is on the road promoting his latest album "South of I-10" (Zoo/Praxis).

For more information about the 18 and older show, call (810) 544-3030 or (810) 645-6666.

MOVIES

'Emma' continues Jane Austen tradition

MONAGHAN

You hardly need to be a Jane Austen scholar to figure out early on who will marry who by the end of the new movie "Emma." If you've : . . seen other recent tions, even the Austen-inspired teen movie "Clueless," you know that the title heroine will end up with the most sensible man in the county. Of course getting to the altar is half the fun and "Emma," currently at the Main Theatre in Royal Oak, ably holds its own against those other Austen films,  "Sense and Sensibility" and "Persuasion." Though produced by different studios, with - radically different casts, each has done justice to the original work while creating something of a cottage industry around Britain's first great female novelist.Gwyneth Paltrow's Emma is a 21-year-old woman who fancies herself a matchmaker. She has successfully united her former governess with a wealthy widower and now wants to work the same magic for her gawky friend Miss Smith (Toni Collette). The friend wants to marry a local farmer, but Emma won't hear of it, manipulating Miss Smith's affections away from the man and to other bachelors of higher standing. Emma believes that my friend of here is entitled to superior match Emma's own prospects for matrimony are intentionally grim.

Celibacy is tolerable with enough money and social standing, she, says. Only poverty can make you an old maid.Part of your enjoyment of the movie will depend on how much you like the title heroine. A vocal audience member during a preview screening loudly wished that Emma wouldn't end up happy at all, using the B-word (it wasn't busybody) to describe her personality.

with the moneyed landholders in Austen's novels who have nothing better to do than worry about the romantic entanglements of others.

For me Emma irresistible After the somewhat martyred main heroines in those other Austens, she is almost refreshing in her weaknesses Paltrow, seen peripherally in "Seven" and "Moonlight and Valentino," handles her first starring role well. Her impossibly long and elegant neck looks great with the period costumes and, unlike fellow model-turned-actress Andie MacDowell, she really can act, subtly making Austen's formal 19th century dialect her own. She's helped by a camera which focuses on her good points as much as it does the physical flaws of others.

In one clever scene, the camera pans away, along with the sound, from a conversation she's desperately trying to listen to as she's harassed by a persistent suitor. The rest of the movie is well-cast with classic Austen characters. Toni Collette, who made such a mailbox 1866.

Sequel to the 1981 sci-fi action adventure:

deranged daughter before)she unleashes a splash in "Muriel's Wedding, brings a sincere nerdiness to Miss Smith while Jergmy Northam typifies 19th century. steadfastness as Emma's older friend and confidante.

Ultimately, "Emma" is escapist entertainment for the literate, who find steeping themselves in the social crises of others as cathartic as saving the world from aften invasion. And with the movie's guaranteed success, the new breed of Austen fans will be glad to know that she has other novels just waiting for the big screen. John Monaghan welcomes your calls and comments. To leave him a voice mail message, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone,

Spearhead joins 'Olympic' tour of black bands

Monday.

Riding on the. success of its debut album "Home" (Capitol), the soulful band

Spearhead is getting ready to release its sophomore effort

"Chocolate Supa Highway" this fall. But Spearhead fans can get a preview of the album at the "House of Blues Smokin' Grooves Tour" when it comes to Pine Knob on Dubbed "Urban Lollapalooza," the tour features Spearhead along with Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, Cypress Hill. Busta Rhymes, The Fugees with NAS, and A Tribe Called Quest.

"Smokin' Grooves is an opportunity to bring together new ideas from black artists and new. perspectives in black music," said Spearhead's Michael Franti. "In the midst of the Summer Olympics, where many black athletes are coming together to represent the U.S. on courts and playing fields, six outspoken and socially conscious black artists are coming together in appreciation of black music."

. The tour, Franti said, is "pretty fun just because I'm a fan of all the groups that are on it - Tribe, Fugees, Cypress, Ziggy, Busta Rhymes. It's like having season tickets to the (NBA's Chicago)

Franti explained that unlike Lollapalooza there's one stage and not a lot of sideshow hype.

"It's not as developed as that. At some venues they have a B stage with some funk and acid jazz groups that have been play-

Previewing new material: Spearhead - from left, Ras I. Zulu, Michael Franti, Carl Young, and Trinna Simmons - will debut material from its upcoming album "Chocolate Superhighway" (Capital) at the "House of Blues Smokin' Grooves Tour" which hits Pine Knob Music Theatre at 6 p.m. Monday, Aug. 12. Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, Cypress Hill, The Fugees with NAS, A Tribe Called Quest, and Busta Rhymes are also on the bill. "Chocolate Superhighway" is due out in October.

ing. They have some booths where vendors are selling oils and incense and little stuff like that. But it's not like Lollapalooza."

"One thing that the organizers of the tour made really cool about this show is with most of the acts there's a one-minute change over. A lot of time hiphop shows and rock shows they notoriously have hours between each band, but here the crew is super efficient and works really hard.'

"Chocolate Supa Highway" was recorded in Franti's home studio, which allowed the band to take its time with the album.

"We spent a lot of time working on the grooves and making the music and the beats be real strong. We would do three or four different versions of the same song before we came to decide on what version we were going to go with," said Franti, who co-produced the album with Prince Charles Alexander (Notorious B.I.G., Total).

Spearhead's debut LP "Home" spawned the singles "People In Tha Middle," MTV Buzz Bin favorite and CLIO winner "Hole

Changes come down the 'Pike' at popular restaurant

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

From Livonia, it was a long drive north on Telegraph to Pike Street Restaurant in Pontiac, but newly promoted general manger Brian McNamara, who lives in Redford, and makes the drive every day, assured me it would be worth it.

"Pontiac is very exciting," said McNamara. "It's very alive. I wish more people would come

McNamara, who has been with the restaurant for six years, is also proud of Pike Street's success. The restaurant, which also caters private parties, has won numerous awards, and recognition in national mag-

Newly promoted executive chef Randy Emert, previously sous chef, is captain of the Michigan Culinary Team headed for the World Culinary Art Salon this September in Germany, and follows in the footsteps of Brian Polcyn, now of Five Lakes Grille and Derin Moore, executive chef of Bay Harbor Yacht Club outside of Petoskey.

The World Culinary Art Salon, held every four years, is to chefs what the Olympics is to athletes. "It teaches you a lot about food," explained Emert who lives in Farmington Hills and graduated from Schoolcraft College in Livonia. "You learn from your mistakes. I'm not on the line cooking as much as I'd like. One day I'd like to become a Certified Master Chef. Competing helps me fine-tune my skills."

In talking about his recent promotion, Emert, who has been at Pike Street for seven years, and won numerous awards in Food Salon competitions, is quick to credit Brian and Derin. "They taught me to cook from the heart, to use the freshest ingredients possible, and to have respect for the food," said Emert. Popular entrees such as duck. beef tenderloin, pickerel and lamb remain, but garnishes, accompaniments, and menu specials reflect the changing seasons. You'll find venison, elk and other game on fall and winter menus, but not in the summer.

Some of the new selections include Breast of Chicken with Morel Mushroom Cognac Sauce and Veal Chop with Tomato-Artichoke Ragout.

"I've been trying to use leaner sauces without as much butter or cream, and I'm using more herbs and spices for flavor," said Emert, who also added some vegetarian items to the menu. Daily specials reflect foods of the season, and allow patrons the opportunity to try something different.

"A lot of people have never been here," said McNamara.
"Pike Street is hosting — A Late Summer Night — to raise money for Lighthouse (see chart), and to recognize our pro-soul into th place. It will be very beautiful. One room will be filled with hors d'oeuvres and there will be ice sculptures too. It will give first time customers a chance to see the restaurant. We'll have live entertainment and dancing."

I admit, I was curious. There's been a lot of renovation going on in downtown Pontiac. New restaurants are opening, the Strand Theatre on Saginaw is being redone, and there are night clubs and galleries you can walk to.

Pike Street used to be occupied by Michigan Bell. The brick, warehouse type structure was abandoned for a long time before a previous owner opened a restaurant. The new owner, Jim Fitzpatrick, has helped create an elegant, upscale urban setting. It's warm, and inviting.

What customers don't see are the two banquet rooms upstairs that are used for catering business meetings, weddings, showers and other special events. You can even rent the whole restaurant if you want to.

"We've had couples get engaged in the Wine Cellar," said McNamara, opening the door to a cozy brick room in the basement whose name speaks for itself. "It's fun and charm-

McNamara's and Emert's enthusiasm is contagious. "We have great employees," he said. "No one leaves. It's a fun place."

Popular dinner entrees, which include house salad, are the Char-Broiled Atlantic Salmon served with Smoked Salmon Horseradish Crust, Sauteed

Magic touch continues at Village Square

The Herman Frankel Organization has opened the second phase of Village Square, a platted residential subdivision off Farmington Road between 14 Mile and Maple in West Bloomfield.

The houses are fairly pricey, starting at $339,900, but prospects are drawn into the development by the Frankel reputation for quality, spacious floor plans and West Bloomfield schools.

Only a handful of the 65 lots in phase one, which opened in April of '94, are available. Several of the 50 lots in the second phase have already sold.

Who's buying?
"Many of them are family, friends and co-workers of people who already live here or in another Frankel development," said Donna Harris, sales rep at Village Square.

"They love the fact it's West Bloomfield and West Bloomfield schools," she said. "Of course, location is an asset. You can get to I-96 real easy. Northwestern Highway is easy. It's convenient to shopping."

"We have a knock-on-any-door policy," Laurie Frankel, director of sales and marketing, said of references. "I think we build them as good as you can get."

them as good as you can get."
"Our floor plans are always strong," said Mark Frick, operations director. "We work them to death prior to bringing them to market. That's one of our trademarks."

But Frankel isn't so rigid that what you see is what you get.

"One of our strengths is customizing these homes," Frick said. "Being able to accommodate peoples' needs is real important."

"We don't trade drama for function," added Laurie Frankel. Six basic floor plans are available.

They range in price from $339,900 for a 3,400-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths to $378,900 for a two story of 3,600 square feet with four bedrooms including first floor master, two full baths and two half-baths.

All include at base price air conditioning, fireplace, separate shower and jet tub in master suite, 20 recessed lights, two-car garage with automatic opener, dishwasher, double oven, cooktop and basement.

A first-floor laundry is standard on every plan except one. Four models have been constructed.

The Kensington, probably the most popular plan in the sub, features a living room with two-story ceiling, dining room, kitchen/nook with island and walk-in pantry, family room and den on the main floor.

The master has a pair of walkin closets, dressing area and dual-sink vanity. Three other bedrooms and a full bath are upstairs.

Base price is $339,900 for the 3,400-square-foot colonial.

"The kitchen is to die for, and the master suite is second to none," Frankel said.

The Parkside, similar in size to the Kensington with the same basic layout, features a curved staircase and places the kitchen sink in an island overlooking the nook and family room.

Again, the master is upstairs along with three other bedrooms and a second full bath.

Base price is $344,900.

The Breckenridge is a multilevel of about 3,500 square feet.

The living room, dining room and family room are on the first level off the front door and main fover.

The library and master suite, with cathedral ceiling, walk-in closet, two separate vanities, are a couple steps up on the master wing. The kids' wing, with a game room, three bedrooms and a full bath, are a couple of steps up from the master wing on a third level.

Parkside beauty: This four-bedroom colonial features a curved staircase and the kitchen sink in an island over-looking the nook and family room.

The laundry and garage entrance are a couple of steps down from the first floor, the basement, below that.

Base price of the Breckenridge, 3,500 square feet, is $342,900.

The Village Manor, the fourth model, is a four-bedroom colonial with a bridge extended over a large family/dining room combination that features lots of windows.

Base price is $347,900.
Exterior materials on all plans include brick and wood siding – no vinyl or aluminum.

Village Square, which has sidewalks, is serviced by city water and sewers.

The property tax rate currently is $30.37 per $1,000 of ation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $345,000 house in the sub would pay about $5.240 the first year.

The annual fee to maintain entrances and common areas is $300 per house.

Chris and Marlys Olenech, along with children Conner and Peyton, moved into a Parkside about three months ago.

"We were very impressed with the construction Herman Frankel produces," Marlys said. "We had seen a model of his about four years ago and fell in love with it but weren't ready to make a move yet.

"The main thing we like is the staircase," she said. "We like the openness of the entire floor plan, the family room floor-to-ceiling windows.

"Everyone from start to finish was wonderful. If there was something we came across, they were on top of it immediately," Marlys said.

Keith and Marylou Waineo are having a Kensington built for themselves and son, Matthew.

"My sister built there and had a very positive experience," Marylou said. "Herman Frankel has an excellent reputation. We definitely looked at that. We found them willing to work with

"I wanted a big family room and a big kitchen" she added. "That's where we find we spend all of our time. I got both of them."

The sales office at Village Square, (810) 661-5353, is open noon to 6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

rowers are not required to tell the lender their current income or provide past records of income.

For self-employed borrowers, this program can be particularly attractive. First, it may help them qualify for a higher mortgage than they would have if the lender had used the actual tax returns to verify income. Because most self-employed individuals write off a large portion of their income for tax reasons and end up showing much lower income after expenses, their net income may look inordinately qualifying income, not the gross profit of a business. Therefore, the loan amount the person can qualify for based on the netincome figures is going to be much less.

In addition, self-employed borrowers can save time and money in the mortgage application process because they do not have to have their accountants specially prepare individual or business mortgage lender tax returns or year to date profit-and-loss statements. Oftentimes, lenders request updated financial statements on an applicant's business. If the time of -vear this request is made doesn't coincide with the business' year end, the special request can cost extra money in accountant's fees.

Others who may benefit from this program are people earning a large portion of their income from commissions or overtime.

So, this loan program has definite advantages for certain sectors of the house-buying market. Of course, each loan program carries with it certain requirements in order to qualify.

The following parameters were recently given to me by Old Kent The net income figure is what Bank, one area lender offering a the lender uses in determining TRUE no-income-verification

Interest rates in review:

Here are some recent interest rates that may be helpful to you in tracking the direction of rates. These are just a guide. Be sure to call a lender to get current rate quotes.

In Freddie Mac's Primary Mortgage Market Survey, the 30year fixed rate for the North Central area for the week ended Aug. 2, 1996, edged up slightly to 8.29 percent (U.S. average 8.23 percent).

A week ago, the average for the United States was 8:19 bercent, and one year ago, it was 7.82 percent. Current 15-year fixed-rate mortgages have risen slightly to an average 7.983 percent. Adjustable rate mortgages have also risen slightly to an overage 6.29 percent for our area of the county.

■ Germ killer

Sanit-Air of Troy (810) 879-0440 has become the sole Michigan distributor for the Ultra Germicidal Air Probe Sanitizer, an indoor air cleaner, odor-eradication sanitizer.

Consisting of a specially designed ultraviolet light kit and sensor, the unit is installed on the return side of the ductwork in a residential or commercial HVAC system. The probe is activated each time the system kicks on.

Cost of the unit, including installation, will average about $825. The bulb needs replacing every couple years at a cost of about $60.

"It will sanitize air in the whole house, not just one room," said Connie Morbach, Sanit-Air president. "You don't have the noise associated with room air cleaners."

Vertical glides will help you capture more storage

vertical glide

Cabinets are great places to store things. One of the main reasons people love them is because you can throw lots of things in them and then close the door!

This highlights, however, an important element to consider when buying storage products: Access and function are just as important as providing the storage space.

Closet Maid, the Storage Authority, is capturing and maximizing the storage space inside cabinets. The Vertical Glide is a prime example. The product is a vertical wall of wire that pulls out of a cabinet for easy access. It or hooks for quick, practical storage of lids, sponges, grill equip-

Capture cabinet storage with ment, hanging items and just about anything else you can imagine. The product is ideal for capturing unused cabinet space under the sink or in very narrow cabinets.

Closet Maid has a complete line of storage products for the inside of your cabinet. There is the Upper Cabinet line of basket systems designed to capture the entire cabinet area from shelf to shelf. There is the Ladder Rack Kit line, which is designed capture the back of cabinet and pantry doors. This line is completely adjustable and holds either hooks or baskets.

The bottom line; stop using cabinets to pile up your items is available with hanging baskets and start organizing the inside of cabinets to create a more effective and useful kitchen.

Nice House

The 2,397-square-foot Spectacular is one house that lives up to its name. The beautiful exterior, elegantly faced with brick and scalloped siding, is a perfect mate to the equally handsome interior floor design.

An old-fashioned front porch, covered and boasting attractive ornamental railing, is the first sight to greet your visitors. As they step into the vaulted entry, which reaches to the second floor, the openness of the Spectacular becomes evident.

With all the sleeping areas on the second level, the first floor is completely functional and allows ease of movement throughout. An enormous bay window extends the living room to the front, affording an excellent view and a green spot to spend an afternoon with a good book. Adjoining the living room is the formal dining area. To the right of the entry is a good-sized home office. Whether it is to be used for conducting business or managing household accounts, your seclusion and privacy are assured. There is room here for a personal computer, filing cabinets, chairs, etc.

To the rear is a spacious family room. It has a nice cozy fireplace, vaulted ceiling and sliding glass doors that lead to a railed deck.

The walk-through kitchen and breakfast nook provide a great place for informal meals and morning get-togethers. Kitchen features include a bar with mini-refrigerator, island cooktop and a utility room with a sink, sewing table and laundry chute from the second floor.

Plan each project to save yourself work

By Reader's Digest Books FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

You'll save time, money and a lot of frustration if you think a project through and carefully plan each step before beginning.

For almost any undertaking, large or small, you'll benefit by drawing up your plans on paper. A good set of plans lets you see what tools you'll need and aids in estimating the amount and cost of the materials you'll use. It also helps you see the complexity of the entire job, so that you can decide whether or not you'll need professional help.

When planning a large project, break it down into a series of small, manageable projects. This allows you to make timely purchases, organize your time and spot any work that requires a professional.

Begin by making a sketch or diagram of the project. It needn't be elaborate or artistic - simply clear enough to illustrate what you mean to do, showing all the parts and indicating the materials you plan to use. You can make simple outlines of the parts and use heavy dots of X's for the nails, screws or bolts.

Then, to ensure accurate results, transfer the sketch to graph paper, letting each square on the paper equal 1 measurement.

For large projects, if you don't want to draw your own plans, you can alter existing ones. Purchase ready-drawn plans at home centers, or copy plans from books or magazines. If your project is elaborate, some home centers offer personalized computer planning.

Once the plans for the project are drawn up, think the whole job through and make a list of the major steps. Put the steps in order, break them down into substeps, and number the steps and substeps.

Checking through the steps, make a list of all the tools you will want to have on hand. Then examine the steps and plans to determine the amount of materials you will need, including fasteners and the hardware.

Line up helpers if the job is going to require working with materials that are heavy or awkward to handle. Also, set up a space for working on the project and storing the materials.

If there will be a lot of waste material, decide how you will recycle or dispose of it. Remember that materials such as oils, paints, lacquers, varnishes, thinners, strippers and other solvents are foot or some other clear-cut flammable or toxic. Some are hazardous to the environ-

> Follow label directions for disposal. Or contact your local-government to learn how to dispose of them prop-

Before finalizing any building or renovation plans, review them with your local building inspector, so that you are familiar with any related codes, restrictions or requirements and have complied with the law if a permit is necessary.

Get a permit if you need one, and schedule any necessary inspections. Permits are usually required for major renovations, such as turning a garage into a guest room. But they also may be required for small jobs, such as walling in a patio, building a barbecue with a high chimney, breaking through a curb to install a driveway, and many plumbing and electrical jobs.

When working on a project that requires digging or excavating, such as putting in a sidewalk, ask your local utility and cable companies to mark the location of underground cables or pipelines before you start digging.

This will protect you from possible injury, liability and disruption of service.

SEE INSIDE FOR THE COVER STORY

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Some smells are impossible to forget

I was once a young boy of age 13 and raised in the very northern bush country of Northern Ontario. Outside of Timmins there ran these huge high tension power lines which I pictured went for thousands of miles through the wilderness. When these towers were built the forest and brush were removed and the path line had a 100 yard clearance. Sometimes when you found a flat spot, you could see for miles straight down the power line.

It was down these man made trails that my friends and I would pedal out withes loaded with sleeping bags and fishing poles until we came to the small creek loaded with fish, and we enjoyed the trouble free attitude that this atmosphere develops in young boys.

One one of these excursions after pumping our legs for about three miles, we came across an old deserted gravel pit which contained a brand new shiny car called a Thunderbird. Sitting inside the vehicle was a gentleman who had decided to end it all with a game of Russian roulette. It was not a pretty sight and one which took years to food has permeated into the walls and remove itself from my innocent brain. What did not leave was the odor that developed from a body which sat there for several weeks. That trip was set aside rather quickly, and I can assure you that we never traveled that part of the power line again.

In my work in the appliance industry, I have many times remembered the foul smell encountered as a young boy.

I remember in 1971 when I was a customer relations manager for the Amana Refrigeration company and I had to travel to Port Huron to investigate a compressor failure for a six month old Amana freezer. I walked into the house of a couple who had just returned from a three month vacation to find their large upright freezer had failed. It was loaded with game and fish that the couple had collected themselves. They were angry at Amana and wanted a new freezer and reimbursement on the lost food, which I took care of for them.

My other job was to take a small axe and destroy the freezer on site so that components could not be used by anyone. I removed the small metal tag which contained the model and serial numbers and placed it into a sealed envelope. The smell from the spoiled even the living room curtains. I arranged to have the fire department. use their large air moving fans to try and reduce this remembrance of age 13. My job was complete and Amana took care of the bill for painting the house, drycleaning, etc.

Many times I have smelled the same from service calls where food has spoiled. I swear that even after taking showers which last for an hour and end up in cold water, it stays with me. Every week I receive several calls from consumers who ask how to remove it in their product. Some homeowners think it comes from Freon, which it doesn't, and overlook something that has spoiled in the back of the crisper draw-

If you have this problem, let me suggest that you wash the product using pure tomato juice. When you're done washing and rinsing, then go to the hardware store and purchase a bottle of Smells Be Gone. If all of this is not good enough, then take the product and let the sun shine on it for several hours. The hotter and brighter the sun, the better. Remember me when I was 13, it's a tough story to forget.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM.

Neiman Marcus shows furniture by Birmingham design studio

Neiman Marcus at the Somerset Collection, Big Beaver at Coolidge in Troy, is displaying a retrospective of fine home furnishings by the Art-Harrison interior design studio of Birmingham.

The pieces are the result of a collaboration of designers Arturo Sanchez and Barry Harrison and are shown in the windows and throughout the store.

The retrospective, continuing through the first week in September, represents the best Art-Harrison made exclusively for Neiman Marcus over the years.

HOME ELECTRONICS

Photoelectric units have uses at home

Photoelectric units have been around for a long time. They frequently were used (and are still used) to open doors. But a homeowner can buy inexpensive photoelectric sensors for other uses.

A commercial example of photoelectric sensors you see often is the automatic door opener at, say, the local drug store. A photoelectric sensor is set up across the path of someone leaving the store. When someone passes in front of the sensor, light no longer falls on the sensor, so the electric door opener is told to open the door - so you don't have to open a door with your hands full of packages. (Pressure sensors are another way door-openers are controlled.)

The sun is a simpler and cheaper source of light to alert a photoelectric sensors - and frequent the best source of light.

The photoelectric sensor usually works by preventing current flow. How does this work? So long as light falls on the photoelectric cell, some action is STOPPED. But if less light is sensed, the current is no longer there to keep whatever it is from happening, so a door opens or an alarm sounds or a light goes on.

A homeowner can use a photoelectric sensor if he wants an outdoor light to come on at dusk to light the sidewalk. When the sun sets, the sensors notices the decline in sunlight and turns on the artificial light, making footing safer.

Photoelectric sensors also are available as part of free-standing "bollards," those short poles one sees along walkways or driveways that provide light at night. (They are often referred to as low-voltage landscape lighting.) The photoelectric sensor in each bollard senses when the light decreases below a factory-set or user-set amount and turns on the artificial light. A local retail electrical supply store sells bollard switch photoelectric sensors for $60 and up.

Sometimes, the bollards are solar powered: They absorb solar energy during the day and then release it when the light level falls too low.

Such bollards are available at some large retail stores or from lighting specialists.

Outside the home, one or more photoelectric sensors can control holiday lighting. Just be certain the power rating of all the strings of light powered through one photoelectric sensor does not exceed the safe rating for that sensor.

Often as a part of a home security system, several lights will be controlled by a central photoelectric sensor. When the sensor is triggered, it allows electrical energy to flow into the "security" lights around a home or garage or yard. Light has always been touted as a defense against crime. Hence the use of photoelectric sensors to turn night into day (or at least dusk).

But photoelectric sensors do not have to come only from a high-tech homesecurity service. Such sensors also are available for anyone who wants to have a light come on automatically after dark.

A homeowner can plug a photoelectric sensor into a yard light so that the yard light supplements the light provided the main street lights, but only when it is needed. This is especially valuable in those suburban areas where the street lights are few and relatively far between,

Your local supermarket or hardware store probably has photoelectric sensors that can be screwed into a normal incandescent light socket. The photoelectric sensor unit has an normal socket that a light bulb can then be screwed into and controlled by the sensor.

You just put the photoelectric sensor into a socket and screw a normal incandescent light bulb into the socket.

Most photoelectric sensors come with some type of control to allow you to adjust the level of light that will trigger the incandescent light. If they don't, you can use a piece of tape to cover part of the sensor opening. Do not use tape if the light bulb is below the sensor opening – the tape could dry out and catch fire from the heat of the light.

A small unit capable of safely controlling a 150-watt light bulb costs from $5 up.

Inside the home, one or more photoelectric sensors can be used if someone in the house needs additional light to see clearly. Once set, the photoelectric sensor will turn on additional lighting at the level you want. Depending on how sensitive you make the sensor, it will turn on additional lighting whether the cause of darkness is cloudiness or on-coming evening or closed drapes.

Other uses around the home for the little cells you can buy at the store are for stair wells (when the light declines, the incandescent light goes on).

This goes for safety night lighting, perhaps at the base of the stairs. No more groping at 2 a.m. in a sleep-induced stupor for the light switch if the night light has come on automatically.

With a tiny night light with a built-in photoelectric sensor, no child need face a totally dark bedroom. Yet, because the night light has a built-in photoelectric sensor, it will turn off at dawn. Something like this costs $4 at your local grocery or drug store.

One drawback is that even the little photoelectric sensors add several inches in height of the light bulb. So you can't add photoelectric sensors to some living room lamps.

But if you could use a light coming on automatically at dusk, visit your local hardware store and tell them you want to buy a photoelectric sensor.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Tools of trade aid in design planning

NAOMI STONE LEVY

A good designer needs to have knowledge of the many tools necessary to do a competent job. Design schools teach students how to use these tools with dexterity. I will now divulge this information to you, and with it you will be prepared to do a better job on your own.

The effortless way to "scale" out the area you wish to design is to buy graph paper that is lined into squares that are 1/4-inch in measure. Most blueprints are done in that scale.

You will need some very sharp pencils, a good eraser and a 12-inch ruler with a good edge. A "T" square, a compass, a "French curve" and two triangles (one with a 45-degree angle and one with a 30-degree angle) will be helpful, though not necessary. All of these can be found in an art supply store. They also have plastic sheets with all manner of furniture pieces cut out for tracing. Your tools will make life easier.

You now make your own cutouts of proposed furniture. A sofa is generally 84 inches long and 36 inches deep, so your cutout in this scale will be 1-3/4 inches by 3/4 inches. Of course there are many other sizes. Continue on in this manner for each table, chair, chest of drawers, etc. you plan to use. I find it helpful to point out a lamp wherever it should occur, with a corresponding outlet plug nearby. I indicate these using a small circle with a line crisscrossing it.

Next you will draw the area to be furnished, in scale, on the graph paper, being very sure to allot the windows and doorways their assigned space. Don't forget to indicate which way the doors open so that your furniture plan won't conflict.

Here comes the fun! Move the cutouts of the furniture pieces around on the plan, and envision how the conversation groups work out. How are the traffic patterns? It is always helpful to avoid conflicts of people.

Television is master of our fate, and it must be considered. Please don't line the walls with your pieces. Design students are required to make up "boards," a remarkable tool, showing the plan, with photographs of the furniture to be used and with swatches of the fabrics and wallpaper attached. Seeing it all together reinforces your judgment.

Many other tools will help execute your job. Probably the one that will resonate your taste will be fabric. There are shops that carry very good lines. At this juncture I advise spending the most you can afford. The cost of applying the fabric makes it foolish not to invest in durability. When you hear the adage "You get what you pay for," here is where it is enforced.

Another tool is wallpaper. Cost here isn't the criteria, although L find the better and more costly papers are inevitably the loveliest.

The last tool is your mind, and taste, and good judgment. Make haste slowly! A mesmerizing room requires a considerable amount of thought. Good design is never arrived at hastily. If you have a friend whose opinion you value, don't hesitate to include him or her in your thoughts; two heads may be better than one.

Cranbrook group marks 25th year

By MARTY FIGLEY SPECIAL WRITER

The gentle sound of carillon music from Christ Church Cranbrook greeted guests as they arrived for the silver anniversary of Cranbrook Gardens Auxiliary on a warm evening in June. The celebration will continue throughout the year.

Blue and silver balloons were festooned around the grounds of Cranbrook House, and lavish table decorations made with fruit, vegetables and flowers graced each table.

More than 500 men and women are members of Cranbrook House and Gardens Auxiliaries and spend countless hours keeping everything in tiptop shape. The house is open for public tours, without prior reservations, 11 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. Thursdays and 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Sundays, June through September. Luncheon at noon is also available with the Thursday tours by advance reservation. Arrangements may be made for groups to have private tours of the house with luncheon throughout the year.

The gardens are open to the public as follows: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, May to August; 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday-Sunday, September; and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, October. Arrangements may be made for groups to have private tours of the gardens throughout the year.

LET'S REMODEL

Don't skimp when installing windows

Q: We are looking for replacement windows and many contractors have suggested vinyl windows. Can you help with what we should look for?

A: The vinyl windows that can be purchased in today's market have many features that you should consider a must.

First and most important to remember is that you are buying windows to last as long as the house does.

Another mistake that people make when remodeling is the "lowest price" consideration. Always look for quality and value for the home.

Quite often, when asked what to look for I suggest that you make sure the vinyl window is a virgin PVC honeycombed chamber vinyl system. Virgin PVC means that the vinyl has been extruded once. This ensures the structural integrity of both the frame and the sash. The honey-combed chambers create dead air space which will give you an insulation value. If one of the chambers are filled with foam insulation, that is all the better.

The next most important feature to consider is the glass. The glass represents 70 percent of the window and is the most important component to consider in energy efficiency. The glass must be double-paned. Double-paned glass provides dead air space. This will give also give you an insulator. The glass should be "Low E Glass" which stands for low emissivity. Low E reduces the transfer of heat energy through a window so that you reduce heat loss in winter and heat gain in the summer.

Argon gas, which is heavier than air completes the glass insulation by filling the gap between the panes. This will add to the cost a bit but will give you the thermal performance needed.

The last thing I suggest you consider is looking at the company you are choosing to replace the windows. Be sure the company has a strong background with references and jobs you can go see. Once again be sure they are licensed and insured and if possible look for a showroom so that you can see the actual windows. Be sure to check on the warranties that are offered by the manufacturer.

Keep planting throughout summer

Zelenka Nursery Inc. encourages homeowners and garden enthusiasts to continue planting throughout the summer months with the "Selected for Summer Planting" Program.

The program is supported by local garden centers that will be receiving fresh plants at their peak in appearance and viability on a regular basis throughout July and August.

Each plant will be identified by an attractive tag stating that each plant has been specifically "Selected for Summer Planting."

There are tips on the back of this tag to guide one to a successful summer planting experience, including how to plant, mulch, water and fertilize those items planted in the summer.

When you're not at the Cape – go

MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Some memories just can't be surpassed — August weeks in Cape Cod is one. While my brother-in-law and his family would lie on the beach for two weeks — David and I (poor little Jordan included) would visit antique shops and eat seafood. Route 6A became our haven - some summers the pickens were great, the others sparse but the seafood and fish were always the best.

We found eight pound lobsters ready to cook, Cook's (a local out-East fastfood chain), which offered fried clams and lobster rolls, and enjoyed delicious fish lunches or dinners at the Impudent Oyster — who could ask for more? Of course our extended family prayed for sunshine, not us, even a cull or two hidden in our bags of lobsters couldn't have spoiled the moment.

Years later those tastes and memories still remain, and with good reason. I have the recipe for the Impudent Ovster's famous Barbecued Bluefin Tuna. Still offering fine dining, and the barbecued tuna on the menu, this delightful eatery at 15 Chatham Bars Ave. in Chatham, Mass., serves some of the best seafood and fish the Cape has to offer. If you're in Cape Cod

At home in Michigan, you can make your own fishy memories. Spend a delightful day trout fishing in nearby Dexter, Mich. Visit Spring Valley Trout Farm, 12190 Island Lake Road, only 15 minutes from Ann Arbor, (313) 426-4772. This trout farm is open 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday, and has trout you can catch, barbecue, or take home cleaned and ready for cooking or freezing.

It's a great outing for the entire family, kids and grandparents alike — they supply all the equipment, a great atmosphere, and of course, there's nothing like catching your own fish! Our family usually catches enough to enjoy fresh trout all winter long. Don't forget to bring a big thermal container to take your catch, home. Once I'm back home, I put the cleaned fish in zip-top plastic bags half filled with water, and freeze them flat in my basement freezer.

If you have no time to fish — pick some fish up at your local grocery or fish market — cook it on a grill, fry, bake, poach, steam, or broil the fish in your air conditioned kitchen. Host a clambake for friends, or an old-fashioned fish fry. Invest in a smoker and make your own smoked fish — smoked salmon makes wonderful gifts for friends and family!

No time to shop - go out to a restaurant for some great fish. If you're my age or older, you will remember Susie Q Restaurant on Woodward. My folks and I would occasionally pig out on those perfectly fried golden goodies. Guess who's serving up those old recipes now? The four Payne Kids (big kids that is). Payne's Woodward Inn on Woodward, two blocks north of 11 Mile Road. serves Susie Q's original recipes including Shrimpniks, Fish & Chips and the Fishwich Sandwich (that old cod favorite):

Payne's newest spot —Woody's Diner on Fifth Ave. in Royal Oak is serving up the Fishwich Sandwich and Fish & Chips (sorry, no Shrimpniks at this location!)

If you're ready for a big splurge, and not counting calories or fat intake, take a trip down memory lane and happily gorge yourself — what a fun evening to share with a group of friends — and they don't have to be old enough to remember the original Susie Q's!

Here's my beloved recipe from the Cape, compliments of the Impudent Oyster:

THE IMPUDENT OYSTER'S BARBECUED BLUEFIN TUNA

Yield: 6 servings

- 2 cups fresh orange juice
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1 cup red wine vinegar
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 onion, chopped
- 4 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 teaspoon dried hot red pepper

- 1 tablespoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 1/2 tablespoons whole mixed pickling spice
- 1 (6 ounce) can tomato paste
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 6 six-ounce bluefin or yellow fin tuna steaks (each about 1 inch thick)
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter

In a bowl, whisk together the orange juice, soy sauce, red wine vinegar, olive oil, chopped onion, garlic, red pepper flakes, cumin, black pepper, pickling spice, tomato paste, and the sugar.

Arrange the tuna steaks in a baking dish large enough to hold them in one layer, pour the marinade over them, and let the tuna steaks marinate, covered and chilled, overnight or up to 24 hours.

Drain the tuna steaks, reserving the. marinade in a bowl, and grill them on a lightly oiled rack set 3 to 4 inches over glowing coals for 3 minutes on each side. Return the tuna steaks to the baking dish, spoon 1 tablespoon of the reserved marinade over each, and bake the tuna steaks in the middle of a preheated 375 degree F. oven for 4 to 5 minutes, or until they are slightly rare. Top each tuna steak with one teaspoon of butter and freshly ground pepper to taste.

■ Cook's note — cook your fish to desired doneness.

Taking the past into the future school of goldfish dart through the narrow pond under two small waterfalls. Surrounding the pond is a rich field of flowers, 60 different varieties in a crazy quilt of colors. Stone and brick walkways wind invitingly through the small, carefully planned garden. A deep green wooden deck is a platform for viewing the regularly changing show.

This narrow, sideyard oasis is so right for the stately brick Italianate house that it seems it must have always been here. But the garden is a recent addition to the house that has been on Maple Street in Plymouth since 1879.

Suzanne Krueger, an artist and businesswoman, is the latest in a series of conscientious owners who have maintained and improved on the handsome house at 391 Maple built by John Hood. She bought the three-bedroom house in 1991 and immediately began to bring it up to modern standards without violating its original structure or destroying its Victorian appeal. And she added the magnificent garden.

The house, called the Hood-Behr house after John Hood family and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Behr who owned the house before Krueger and helped to renovate it, is now being offered for sale by Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke Inc. Krueger is anxious to move on to tackle another house renovation, a 1906 farmhouse in Beverly Hills.

The house she will leave behind is rich in history and architecturally distinguished.

John Hood was a Civil War veteran. He built the main section of the house in 1879 on land at the edge of the town. The house was adjacent to the town's fairgrounds, which were later destroyed by fire in 1904. A nearby street is still called Fairground. In 1881 Hood built an addition to the back that probably began as a carriage house but is now used as a family room with a wood-burning stove.

The house has been well preserved, but when Krueger moved in she knew changes were necessary.

"I did the major things we expect living in the '90s, new roof, new landscaping, sprinkler system, air conditioner, plumbing, electrical," she said. "When I came to the inside, I redecorated in keeping with the age of the house, tried to stay within the decade."

Krueger approached the house as an art project, an outlet for talents she wasn't using in her work as a manufacturer's rep.

"I'm an artist with a degree in business and art. While I was a manufacturer's rep, I wanted to use my artistic talents and this was my project," she said. "Two years ago I started Victorian Gallery which I sold. I started Decorative Accessories retail shop and then sold my inventory to Sweet Dreams in Northville. Now I'm supplying them my designs for florals and ribbon work."

Krueger's first decision was to maintain the structural integrity of Hood's classic Italianate Victorian house. The design is notable for its hipped roof, four square design, long, narrow windows and beautiful brick work.

A handout prepared for the sale of the house explains the appeal of this 19th century design, "There is a timeless air of good design and good taste about these amazingly 'modern' Victorian houses. Their floor plans are open and informal."

Krueger said many people have a misconception about the Victorian period that it was dark and heavy. But she said Victorians were actually fond of color and light, which was especially evident in their floral decorations and gardens.

The garden at the Hood-Behr house is off the small kitchen, which was moved inside the house from an outside lean-to in about 1910. The garden is Krueger's special pride and joy.

"It's been a five year project," she said.

Mounds of dirt, stone, brick and wood have been brought in to create a multi-leveled, twisting and turning environment with stone benches and hidden nooks and crannies.

"Everybody is so enthused about the ponds. I did build them myself and I did dig them myself," Krueger said.

The landscaping also extends to the front of the house, where very formal flower arrangements and mature trees set off the house's red brick.

"I've been interested in gardening all my adult life, but this is the first time I've had an extensive garden and I have the time to do it and study everything I can study," Krueger said.

Krueger is listing the house for $258,000.

She has recently closed on the house in Beverly Hills.

"This house (the Hood-Behr) is a very sophisticated Italianate Victorian. In Beverly Hills the house is a 1906

GARDEN SPOT

Determined plants grace garden, table

FIGLEY

This is a story about in your garden. perseverance. Someplants just don't seem to stop trying, especially in the case of a red rose that Tina Dupke of Birmingham planted many years ago.

The rose was planted against a fence between two small spreading yews and in close proximity to a small crab apple tree. It seemed to thrive for several years. After a while, the area became shady as the trees matured and Tina presumed the rose was dead.

However, one sturdy stalk of the rose persevered and proceeded to climb up the trunk and through the tail branches of the tree. This year when it finally reached the end of the branches and found the sunlight, it bloomed in a cascading bouquet of red splendor, to Tina's delight.

Its bright blossoms are happily blooming in the sunshine once again, looking down into her pretty garden. Thus, this Queen of the Garden is ruling her subjects wearing a crown of red

Another plant that perseveres is the Jerusalem artichoke, Helianthus tuberosus.

Barry Jensen of Birmingham grows this vegetable and said, "This plant always grows no matter what you do and it's so tall you can see it in the garden so it doesn't get lost."

He suggested I write about this native American sunflower, which isn't from Jerusalem nor an artichoke!

The vegetable traveled from this country to Spain and Italy and was called girasol and girasole. When the English people ate it there they misunderstood those words and thought the people were saying "Jerusalem," thus the name. It is also called sunchoke, sun root and Canadian potato and grows all over the North American con-

American Indians used the tubers of Jerusalem artichokes extensively in their diet; the tubers are a very versatile food. They contain no starch, so are suitable for diabetics and dieters.

Easy to grow

These herbaceous perennials are very easy to grow but not so easy to get rid. Tuesday, Aug. 13, is the deadline to of once they are planted so you might want to try them before putting them

Tubers are best planted in the spring, six inches deep in good garden soil about a foot apart in full sun or light shade. Plant them like potatoes with several "eyes" on each part. Jerusalem artichokes need very little attention other than some soil mounded up around the stems as they begin to grow.

They can grow to six feet tall so do well in the back of a border. They are quite attractive as they bloom with bright yellow flowers in late summer.

After the leaves fade in the fall, the tubers can be dug or left in the ground, mulched well and lifted when wanted.

Tubers are available from Park Seed Co. in the spring (call (800) 845-3369). A friend who grows them will probably be happy to share. One or two plants will be sufficient for most families.

You can use these vegetables any way you use potatoes. Raw, they are crisp and slightly sweet. They are good with dips and can be substituted for water chestnuts in stir-fries. If you put them in a tossed salad, drop the sliced tubers into water to which salt, vinegar or temon juice has been added to keep the flesh from darkening.

I promised Barry a recipe, and you may want to try it, too. A new vegetable on our table can whet our appetites and prove to be a gastronomic delight.

HERBED JERUSALEM ARTI-CHOKES

1 lb. chokes

4 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 tablespoon finely snipped chives

2 teaspoons lemon juice

1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed (or 1 teaspoon fresh, chopped)

1/8 teaspoon salt

freshly ground pepper

Pare the chokes (or just scrub them very well). Slice and drop into boiling salted water to cover, return to boiling and cook 25 to 35 minutes, until tender. Drain. Place in serving bowl. Melt butter in same saucepan, stir in remaining ingredients and cook briefly. Pour sauce ever chokes. Makes four servings

Plant your garden with presidents and botanists

Plant names, or nomenclature, are part of a worldwide standard of refer-

The system is basically the same as that established in 1753 by Carolus Linnaeus, a Swedish botanist also known as Carl von Linne. His system identified plants by visual aspects of their flower parts, thereby standardizing procedure and terminology.

Some plants are named after famous people. The Washingtonia palms, for example, honor George Washington, first president of the United States. The woodland herb Jeffersonia honors

Reasons for other names are as varied as the plants themselves. Besides then-famous people, some are named for their discoverer or the person who financed a plant-finding expedition.

Interiors: Oh! You beautiful dolls

By Barbara Mayer For AP Special Features

Maybe it's the cult of personal decorating, but dolls seem to have the run of the house rather than being banished to the kids' rooms.

It could also be that so-called collectible dolls are more an object of art than for a child's amusement.

"To tell you the truth, I enjoy my dolls more than my children ever did," Akira Blount, an artist from Bybee, Tenn., says.

Blount made her first doll 27 years ago, before the birth of her first child. Today, her dolls and those by a number of other artists are on exhibit at the Museum of American Folk Art in New York through Sept. 8.

"This is one of the first exhibitions of dolls at a general museum," says Krystyna Poray Goddu. Goddu is cocurator and co-author with Wendy Lavitt of "The Doll by Contemporary Artists," (Abbeville Press, $45), a primer on artist-made dolls.

The number of adults who collect dolls is unknown, but Goddu says there are three national magazines on the topic with a total circulation of more than 200,000, including Dolls, a magazine Goddu helped to found in 1982.

Adult interest in dolls began to rise in the early 1980s as the number of artists and craftsmen making dolls increased.

For serious collectors, the most desirable dolls are antiques, one-of-a-kind dolls made by contemporary artists and limited editions. Also desirable are dolls mass-produced in the 1940s, '50s and '60s, the golden age of doll-making with its early Barbies and Madame Alexander and Betsy McCall dolls.

Typically, the collector is a woman who is interested in period fashion and history. Or she may have started a collection by buying the dolls she wanted as a child but her family could ill afford.

Collectors go to great lengths to create a fitting environment for their dolls, so it's not uncommon for dealers to make house calls. For one recent client, Karen Shay and Barb Lovett, of A Victorian Doll Shoppe in Northville, Mich., set up a showcase of dolls and accessories such as a crystal lamp, candlesticks, an antique purse and pearls spilling out of a box.

Collectors also look to the magazines for display ideas, according to Goddu, now special projects editor at Dolls. In the June/July issues, both Dolls and Contemporary Doll Collector magazines feature articles on displaying dolls in the home.

'Some people buy an old wicker bassinet or a crib and fill it with dolls," Goddu says. "Others arrange dolls around a child-size table set for tea, or in a highchair in a dining room.

They also can be displayed on long shelves or on perches large enough for one or two. Lights under glass, such as in a large curio cabinet or a commercial display case, also are used. Those with unusually large collections may devote an entire room to a personal "museum."

"Owl Deva," by Akira Blount, is among dolls at the Museum of American Folk Art. The 22-inch female figure wears an owl mask and sits in a twig chair made by her husband, Larry Blount. The doll holds a nest with eggs

"A deva is a creative and protective spirit, and the doll is protecting the eggs," Akira Blount says. "On a symbolic level, the doll is about protecting species to make sure they survive. But on a simpler basis, I love animals and often incorporate them into my dolls."

The Blounts have built other vignettes to sell, and an Atlanta decorator recently chose a Blount doll as the main decorative element in the foyer of her home.

Dolls are also going to business. A 4foot vignette created by the Blounts is a permanent installation in the lobby of North Point Center East, an office building in downtown Atlanta.

"The fact that dolls are being used as art installations and as home accessories tells me that the attitude that dolls are just toys has really changed," Akira Blount says.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Give your photos a center of interest

MONT NAGLE

Many good pictures you see aren't the result of a fortunate accident or taken by chance. Most often, they have been planned and created by the photographer.

How do you create strong pictures? Begin by learning good techniques of composition, which include choosing an effective center of interest for your shot.

For example, have you ever composed a photograph in the viewfinder only to realize that something just isn't right? There's an element missing that if included will give your shot special impact.

Perhaps it's the sunset picture over the lake that just doesn't make it until you include the silhouette of the lighthouse in the viewfinder. Or maybe it's the landscape that lacks impact until you place the dramatic mountain peak in view.

You see, including a center of interest can turn a weak composition into one that's strong in viewer interest.

Avoid placing your center of interest in the center of the picture. In the center, your shot may look static and uninteresting. Use the "rule of thirds." When you divide your scene into thirds both vertically and horizontally, the dividing lines intersect in four places. Any of these intersections provides a pleasing position for your center of interest.

"Framing" techniques and "lead-in lines" that I've discussed in past columns also help add special impact to your main subject.

On a recent trip to England, I visited the historic Rievaulx Abbey, built more than 1,000 years ago. The composition was good, but something was missing. I needed a strong center of interest.

My prayers were answered when a white horse (the ideal color) walked into the viewfinder. Notice how the horse becomes the center of interest. I placed him in the lower right "third" and made sure I used a small aperture to render everything sharp and in focus. What resulted is a captivating picture with the flavor of Old England.

Horse sense: The white horse adds a strong center of interest to Monte Nagler's photograph of England's ancient Rievaulx Abbey.

Using a strong center of interest can improve your photographs dramatically.

A coffee table that will take you to your grave

BY NANCY ROBERTS TROTT ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WEBSTER, New Hampshire (AP) – Bill Hale is one of the few furniture makers who will guarantee his product for more than a lifetime.

Hale's coffee tables, bookcases, liquor cabinets and blanket chests all are designed to go with their owners to their graves.

"Everybody laughs at me at first, but once I explain it, everybody goes, 'Hmmm, good idea," says Hale, owner of the Down to Earth Coffin Co. in Webster.

Hale makes coffins. But because most people don't plan far enough ahead to buy their own coffins, he has found uses for his products before they reach their final resting places.

"It makes a great liquor cabinet," Hale says.

He also will install temporary shelves inside for books or put hinges on a specially made door so a coffin can double as a gun cabinet.

Virginia O'Connor of Plymouth keeps her coffin, a plain pine casket with rope handles, in her living room.

"We use it for a coffee table," says O'Connor, 70. "I call it my coffin table. The kids kneel down and do coloring books and puzzles on it. It's very, very handy."

O'Connor bought her coffin table two years ago from a Newport, R.I., artisan because she wanted to make sure she was buried in a simple pine box. When she got it home, it quickly became a conversation piece.

"It seemed practical. You know, be prepared," she says. "It brought a lot of conversation I didn't realize it would bring when I bought it."

O'Connor says she wanted her coffin to convey the message that people should not be afraid of dying, but that isn't always the effect. She says her family was entertaining some people from Wales at her coffin table when her daughter suggested she tell everyone what it was.

"One man got all upset. He got up and moved to the other side of the room," she says. Eventually, everyone had a laugh over it, however.

Hale chuckles at the jokes, but says his products could be seen more as a necessity than a novelty.

His handcrafted coffins range in price from about $700 for a simple pine coffin to about $2,200 for a black walnut coffin with moulded stiles and rails. The average price for a casket sold through a funeral home is about $2,000 and hand-carved caskets can cost as much as $8,000.

"People do plan their funerals," says Hale, 46. "Why not buy your box and save yourself some money? The only trick is you have to buy it before you need it '

Saving money isn't the only advantage for buyers.

"There are some people who want some input in what they're planted in," he says.

A reserved man who prefers to let his work speak for itself, Hale builds his coffins in a workshop at home. He paints or stains the coffins, which are then hand-stenciled. Fitted quilts for the inside are optional, but every coffin comes with a small wooden box for treasured possessions.

Ade Bethune, 82, of Newport, Rhode Island, made her own coffin more than 50 years ago when she decided she would not be buried in a funeral home asket.

"I didn't want to be caught dead in a plush-lined coffin," she says. "Once you're dead, you're not there anymore to get what you want, so you have to prepare ahead of time. I attended a few funerals and I realized, 'Hey, that's not what I want.' Then I better do something about it."

She uses her coffin, a plain wooden box with rope handles, as a hope chest. She keeps it in her front hall.

Hale dismisses the suggestion that to be in such a business is macabre.

"It's not something we can get away from, and why not approach it from this angle?," he says. "It's not that big a deal, really."

Keep home fires from burning

(NAPS) — Fire Prevention Week is October 6 to 12, and for good reason. Home fires are most likely to occur in the late fall and winter, reports ITT Hartford Insurance Group, a leading homeowner insurer and the developer of Junior Fire Marshal, the longest-operating fire safety education program for children. Heeding these hot tips from those experts can help you protect your home and family.

■ Get your furnace and oil burners serviced before turning them on for the winter.

■ Have your flues and chimneys checked if you plan to use a fireplace or wood burning stove.

■ Keep space heaters, especially gas and kerosene ones, away from curtains, bedspreads, furniture and other flammable materials. Also, place space heaters in an area where they can't get knocked over.

■ Do not, under any circumstances, use the kitchen stove or other cooking appliance to heat a room.

New series examines world of design ideas

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

Though most people opt for traditional styles when decorating their homes or latch on to the latest trend, there are numerous alternatives to consider.

The new World Design series by Herbert Ypma takes a look at some interesting decorating options. The series is published by Stewart, Tabori & Chang, which specializes in large format art books. These design books are more in the style of art books than traditional books on interior decoration. The emphasis is as much on the stylish look of the books as it is on the design ideas being explored.

"London Minimum" begins with the understanding that most people think of British design as the opposite of minimalism. The pervasive influence of Victorian style has become synonymous with British design Ypma presents several modern examples of British minimalism and expertly links them to a rich British design tradition from the formality of Georgian architecture to the utilitarian emphasis of the Industrial Revolution to the British take on the International Style of the post World War I era.

Ypma's writing is clear and interesting. He uses good examples and explains how each represents the minimalist tradition. Though many might find minimalism a cold approach to architecture and interior design, Ypma makes a good argument for putting function first. He also provides examples of minimalism that retain some air of romance or historical reference points, while maintaining the intent of "getting to the essence of a place."

He explores textiles, furniture design and kitchen ware. He even shows how the classic English phone booth fits into the minimalist tradition. (It was an award winning design by Sir George Gilbert Scott in 1924.)

"Pacific Island" is a nice contrast to the gray light of London with the bright sun of the South Pacific. Ypma continues the same format, covering the historical background for the various styles, influenced both by island natives and missionaries. The design of the islands is richly influenced by the sea, the palms, the bright sun, religious rituals and a love of bright color. The architecture is a form of minimalism itself, but here in vibrant sunwashed colors. Ypma shows how modern architects and designers redefine these Polynesian influences.

Ypma, again, is a perfect guide. He writes short sections rich with examples and historical background.

Both of these board bound, large format books (suggested retail price $27.50) are sumptuously illustrated and attractively designed.

Though you may never want to adapt any of the designs discussed, the trip is still worth taking.

Old wood transformed into furniture

By BARBARA MAYER

FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Americans consider recycled furniture to be pieces rescued from Grandma's attic, picked up at garage sales or purchased as fine antiques.

Now there are other forms to ponder. New pieces are being made from old wood, or from other materials that don't rob nature or otherwise harm the environment.

This year, the first in the eight years that it has been in New York, the International Contemporary Furniture Fair mounted a display of about 25 such products.

"This is a new way of thinking that starts with the manufacturing process," says Susan Szenasy, editor of Metropolis magazine, a co-sponsor of the trade show.

Although recycling is the main idea, other concepts come into play. There's the use of readily-available and renewable resources such as plywood instead of scarcer materials like wood veneers and marble. There's the job of reformulating products to make them more benign and biodegradable.

Salvaged wood made an appearance at the ICFF as an elegant credenza with serpentine front made of recycled wood flooring.

"I started with old flooring out of ecological convictions, but now I also prefer the look of it," says Patrick Moore, who studied metal working at the University of Wisconsin before moving to New York.

Moore says the raw material is easy to find, though pulling out the nails cuts into his creative time.

"It's surprising what you can find on the streets," he says, "loaded into dumpsters at construction sites or simply sitting out waiting to be collected in the garbage."

At least 20 companies at the ICFF chose plywood as a more acceptable resource than wood veneer. Birch plywood pieces by David Kawecki for 3D Interiors of San Francisco are designed to be assembled at home by fitting tabs into slots.

"It's the design that makes the pieces interesting," says Patrice-Davis, owner of 3D Interiors. "The tabs and slots require a high degree of accuracy in cutting, which is possible only with Salvaged wood made an appearance laser cutters. Five years ago this furnithe ICFF as an elegant credenza ture couldn't have been made."

Wood paneling and natural stone facings are luxury materials and expensive to install. To reduce overall costs, Maya Romanoff Corp., a to-the-trade fabric and wallcoverings company in Chicago, introduced wallcoverings containing small quantities of wood or marble mixed with bonding agents and adhesives.

Wood-veneer wallpaper is made of paper-thin sheets of Chinese fig or pauonia wood bonded to a backing. It comes in a variety of patterns, including diamonds and squares. Other Romanoff wallcoverings combine wood pulp with rayon fabric, and pulverized marble is bonded to look like blocks of stone.

But for true cutting-edge design, pieces by recent design school graduates took the palm. Isabelle Moore of Redmond, Wash., created a sleek rocking chair from recycled detergent bottles and plywood at Parnham College in Dorset, England. The primary material, a high-density polyethylene, is known in the plastics trade as confetti because of the colors derived from a variety of bottles.

Inna Alesina collected egg cartons from New York City restaurants as the primary material for a stool she designed and made before graduating this spring from Parsons School of Design. The stool looks a bit like a giant Cheerio when not in use, more like an egg when sat upon.

Alesina's tool was a prototype made as part of a design contest. Moore's rocking chair, $990 and made by hand in her studio, is expensive considering it is made of recycled material. But the material is expensive to buy at the moment, and there is a substantial amount of hand labor, Moore says.

Both pieces will be on show at the Washington State Convention Center in Seattle July 11-Sept. 26 in an exhibition of award-winning, environmentally sound designs. The contest, now in its second year, is sponsored by the Clean Washington Center and other groups and administered by Johnson Design Studio of Seattle.

"Right now, environmental design is cutting edge," Szenasy says. "But there is grass roots sentiment for it, especially among kids who are growing up recycling their soda bottles and hearing about the environment from characters like Kermit the Frog."

Staying motivated: Dan Mullan, a Realtor with Mayfair, keeps pictures of his boat and favorite recreation activities, as well as motivational tapes and books, around his desk.

Doldrums visit Realtors, too

By Doug Funke

All jobs have their routine. We can't be on top of our game all the time. The doldrums hit everyone, including real estate agents.

Marlene Klimecki, an associate broker with RE/MAX West in Livonia, likes to get out the pen and paper and touch base with previous clients when things get slow.

"I take the time to write little notes ... thinking of you ... of course, including some of my cards," she said.

"They call and say, 'I couldn't believe you took the time to write to us, I can't believe you'd do that.' Especially if you can remember the names of their kids or pets."

Klimecki also has started sending copies of new listings on streets where previous clients currently live. Not only does it keep them informed about property values, but it keeps her name in their memory bank.

"Another thing, I think, is keeping your name in personal advertising, Klimecki added.

Mitch Wolf, a broker with Cranbrook Associates in Franklin, finds that things can slack off during the holiday season in November and December and also during mid summer when people vacation.

"When I get slow, an inner voice or something tells you you better hit the stick and get back to basics," Wolf said. "I have open houses, contact for sale by owners."

Then, good things happen to those who hustle. Wolf describes a specific instance when an unexpected pickme-up shook him out of the doldrums. "Aclient was transferring into town

Then someone else I had gone to do a listing within the last year but who decided to rent called (unexpectedly) and asked me to look at it again, Wolf said. "The minute I got the listing, I called the buyer who was going

"I told him it was $250,000, it was in a great neighborhood, it would sell for much more in a year or two and it was better than having an apartment. He bought it."

One renter became a buyer, another renter, the seller. And Wolf was in on

"It just gets you going, moves you, shows you can make your own business," he said. Dan Mullan, an associate broker with Mayfair in Livonia, said the doldrums usually hit every three or four months with ups and downs in busi-

"One of the things I do is go been in business 15 years - go through and call and ask for referrals," he said. "It's not exactly cold calling.

"I'll get down to calling and the seventh one actually will say, As a matter of fact, a guy I work with or my brother-in law ...

Then he's in business. But Mullan has other strategies,

"I'll pull out some of my (motivational) tapes. I'll keep books at my desk, a picture of Aspen, Colo., on my property, second. If I felt self-con- ly doesn't happen," and was looking in the $500,000 to bulletin board and a picture of my boat in the water.

"In December, the market does tend to slow down," he said. "Most agents just give up. Typically, my December ad bill is twice most other months."

Mullan also has a story of how maintaining a professional demeanor. in the wake of a major setback rocketed him from the outhouse to the pent-

"I remember a customer telling me after a long time that he was buying from a for sale by owner. That meant no commission. I was real disappointed. Then the buyer asked if I could recommend a building inspector. I went ahead and did that.

"Just by that service to him, the for sale by owner called me to work with them to find a house.

"You've got to come up punching, still be of service, still be positive, Mullan said.

Sally Witt, broker/owner of Heritage Real Estate in Livingston County/Better Homes and Gardens, doesn't find much excuse for agents to be in the dumper too long.

"We make our own business," she through a list of past clients - I've said. We can't wait for people to come into our office and call us. We have to generate business."

And she's always doing just that.

"Everyone has to live some place, Witt said. "Whether I'm in the grocery store, doctor's office, Builder's Square, I go up to people and say, 'Hi, how are you? I'm in real estate. Do you or can you think of anyone who wants to buy or sell a house?'

"Or I wear my name tag and they come to me," she said. "This is a communications business first, selling scious, I wouldn't be in the business." There are ways to avoid burnout and deal with it when it happens, Witt said:

"You need to take some time to smell the roses. You have to be a wellrounded person. You have to regenerate yourself.

"I think most of our people try to take time off for their family, do something special. Then you're ready to get back and do a good job."

That's the thinking of Bob Ogg, a Realtor with Max Broock in Birming-

"Go on vacation," he advises. "I'm serious. Take some time off and let your thoughts subside. Get away from the environment. Then come back and go back to the basics.

"I do a lot of open houses. It forces your talking to people. I do mailings to past clients. You call your circle of friends and ask if they know anyone; who's thinking of moving.

You don't need a builder's license to subcontract

MEISNER

Q. My wife and I are planning on building a new house and want to contract much of the work ourselves. Is it necessary or advisable to obtain a builder's license? If we do obtain a builder's license, are we exposing ourselves to any legal issues or liabilities?

A. Under MCL 339.2403 a person may engage in the business of or act in the capacity of a residential builder or a residential maintenance and alteration contractor or sales. person in the state of Michigan without having a license if the person is, among other things, an owner of property, with reference to a structure on the property for the owner's own use and occupancy. Accordingly, it would not be necessary for you to obtain a builder's license if you plan to reside in the house yourself.

On the other hand, obviously if you want to contract out for the construction of the house, the con- tion on minor children included in the condominium tractors who work on the house must be licensed.

Moreover, the more information you have about tion 804(c)(42 USC, Paragraph 3604(c)), which would regard to the construction of the house.

You may be well advised to hire a "general contractor" to assist you in letting the contracts to the subcontractors for the construction of the house.

If you were to obtain a builder's license, you would have to take classes and a test, which, would, no doubt, more familiarize you with the intricacies of building a house. In general, it is best advised to have as much assistance as possible in any endeavor, and that includes the construction of a house.

Q. We have a provision in our condominium documents restricting minor children. The president of the condominium association board of directors has indicated that since we are not enforcing this provision, we should not be violating any federal statute. Is this correct?

A: In a 1995 ruling by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (which enforces the Fair Housing Amendments), it ruled that a restricdocuments, even though not enforced, violated Sec- should not be construed as legal opinion.

contracting and building, the better you will do in make it illegal to make ... or publish, or caused to be made or be published, any notice or statement which indicates a preference against families with children.

Damages in that case were awarded in the amount of $1,500 for emotional distress, $500 to the children, $500 in actual damages, $750 penalty to the board member and a $1,500 civil penalty against the condominium association.

It is incumbent, therefore, upon condominium associations to amend their documents to eliminate any prohibitive reference to children in order to avoid possible sanctions, damages and other penalties.

By Popular Mechanics FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Q: I have just finished renovating my living room and am now at the stage where the wallboard work is completed. Can you give me some advice as far as painting is concerned?

A: Decorating newly finished wallboard can present a challenge for the amateur, because wallboard presents a problem surface for the painter. When painting wallboard you are actually painting two materials: the paper covering of the wallboard, and the compound that was used to treat nail or screw heads, seams, and corners. The paper face has a slightly rough or "calendered" surface, while the taping compound is glass-smooth. These two surfaces also present unequal absorption rates, and will soak up paint or primer unequally.

Because of these problems, wallboard manufacturers have always advised that you use a latex or water-based primer as a first coat on a new wallboard. Oil primers may dry slowly, soak into the paper face of the panels, and cause the paper nap to raise. Oil primers on wallboard will often cause very smooth spots where there is compound over seams or fasteners, and very tough areas where the nap of the paper has been raised. Thus all wallboard Association, a trade organization that represents all wallboard manufacturers, recommend a heavy-bodied latex paint as a first coat over new wallboard.

One major manufacturer, United States Gypsum, makes a special base coat for new wallboard, called, appropriately enough, First Coat. It is available premixed, or you can buy the primer in powder form and mix it with water. It is cheaper than ordinary primer, and will provide the coverage of primers and sealers, without the disadvantages of either of these two paint products. First Coat will seal the surface, and contains enough fillers to act as a primer, so it equalizes the suction on both the taping compound areas and the bare paper areas. The Gypsum Association advises professionals to shear coat the entire surface of the wall and-or ceiling with compound, so no bare 'paper is left.

In effect, one just plasters the entire surface with painting compound, so there is no difference in texture between paper and com-

However, troweling a complete room can be a messy job if you are not skilled with a trowel, so we advise using First Coat as a wallboard undercoater. Once the surface differences have been eliminated with First Coat, you can then recoat with any type of

BY POPULAR SCIENCE FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Many homeowners instinctively feel that fixed appliances (furnaces, central air conditioners and water heaters), are simply too permanent and complex to be included in a routine maintenance schedule. If this is your position, it's a costly one.

An investment of an hour or two of your time will not only extend the lives of these appliances, it'll save you plenty in operating costs

Of the three major appliances, central air conditioners cleaning is also a good idea. probably suffer the most from poor maintenance. The problem is dust. In less than a season, the compressor fin tubes can become completely clogged with dust. As a large volume of air must be drawn through these fins with every cooling cycle, a matting of dust will stress the fan and compressor motors, and greatly reduce efficiency. When years of accumulation go unchecked, the problem grows.

To correct the problem, we suggest cleaning the inside of debris are likely to have fallen your compressor unit each into the unit. Carefully lift the spring. A second, midsummer fan and clean out the debris.

When cleaning compressor units, begin by shutting off the power. This can usually be done at the dedicated disconnect switch near the unit. Remove the front access panel to reveal the compressor and the electrical and refrigeration connections. You'll then be able to undo the top panel that supports the fan and fan motor. As the top panel is largely open, shielded only by a coarse screen, leaves and other

With the area inside the condenser coil cleared, remove the shroud from around the coil. This will reveal the exterior of the coil where the fin tubes support the accumulation of dust.

Use a soft-bristle brush to sweep away the dust blanket. Don't press too hard or you'll bend the edges of the fin tubes, which will also reduce efficiency. When all of the dust has been swept from the coil, vacuum it up so it's not pulled back into the coils when the unit starts up.

Next, check for oil ports at the top of the compressor. If you purpose oil or turbine oil. If you find no oil ports, the compressor is sealed and no oil will be needed. With the compressor unit cleaned, replace the side and front panels, and restore electrical power.

Along with the outdoor condenser unit, your air conditioner will have an indoor evaporator coil, usually located within the furnace plenum. In most cases, you'll have no direct access to this coil, short of cutting through the plenum. If you find an access panel, clean the coil with water and bleach. The goal is to remove ing season.

see any, lubricate them with all- any accumulation of bacteria that may have collected at the base of the coil.

> And finally, keep an eye on the condensate hose attached to the evaporator coil. This tube; which typically runs from the evaporator coil atop the furnace to the nearest floor drain, can often become clogged with bacteria. The result is water spilling into the furnace or onto the floor. Your best preventive measure is to pour a 50-50 mix of water and household bleach through the rose midway through each cool

Mortgage agencies' future cloudy

It's been a politically turand Freddie Mac.

Congress is questioning whether the governmentbacked mortgage agencies are taking on too much risk. Four new government studies openly sasked whether lawmakers should make them independent and yank a $6 billion subsidy.

Despite these rumblings, one theme emerged from four oversight hearings by the House Banking subcommittee on capital markets, which concluded Wednesday.

Congress is unlikely to force the companies, formally known as the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., to become fully private this year, although less dramatic reforms are in the works.

"We are far from having.

WASHINGTON (AP) - an answer to consider privatization at this point," bulent year for Fannie Mae said Rep. Ken Bentsen, D-Texas.

> The focus of Congress' inquiry is the use of federal benefits by the two agencies. Both were created by Congress to expand the national mortgage market but have stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

> Both companies save about $400 million because they don't have to pay state or local corporate. income taxes or register their securities with the Securities and Exchange Commission. They also can fall back on U.S. Treasury credit lines of $2.25 billion, which allows them to borrow at almost the same rate as the federal Treasury.

> Banking committee members fear that with more than $1 trillion in outstanding mortgagebacked bonds, both compa nies may not have enough capital set aside to cover unexpected losses if the economy soured rapidly. If that happened, analysts assume taxpayers would be asked to help cover loss-

The companies' federal regulator, Aida Alvarez, director of the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight, said it would take an "unlikely scenario" - a 6-point increase in interest rates and high loan losses before the two companies would run out of capital.

"The results do illustrate, though, that the survival of both firms in a very high interest rate environment is not a sure thing," Alvarez said. She suggested both companies may have to increase their capital levels when her agency finishes a review of capital standards next Leland C. Brendsel Freddie Mac's chairman said it's misleading to compare his company's capital levels to banks or other lenders which engage in more diverse and riskier activities.

"Freddie Mac has only one line of business - the purchase of high-quality mortgage loans," Brendsel said in prepared remarks. Testimony of Brendsel and Robert B. Zoellick, Fannie Mae's executive vice president, was postponed due to a series of votes on the House floor.

In Zoellick's prepared testimony, he emphasized the positive aspects of the recent investigations. "All of the study agencies ... agree that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac reduce mortgage rates, and that mortgage rates would rise if our federal charter were revoked," he said.

Check contractor's background your kitchen or bathroom remodeled, and you hope that the contractor you selected will do a good job and back up the work. You aren't alone.

According to the Council Better Business Bureaus, people call the to your specifications. BBB to check on home improvement contractors more than any other type of business. And while calling the BBB can help you find out if there are any complaints on the company and its response record, homeowners can follow some simple rules to avoid the pain of being burned.

Keith Paul, president of Home Advantage Referral Service, specializes in matching honest contractors with consumers. His advice:

■ Ask for references. By doing this, you receive valuable information about workmanship. Ask questions like, 'How was the quality of work?' and "Would you use the contractor again?"

Check for insurance. If the contractor doesn't have valid insurance and one of the workers is injured on your property, you could be on the hook paying medical bills.

Ask for a written guarantee. This step is very important in case there's a discrepancy regarding workmanship or cost overruns. Get a written, detailed cost analysis before the project begins to preproblems between you and the contractor.

Request a project completion schedule. Asking the contractor for a schedule that explains the tasks and time frames for the project should help minimize construction delays. ■ Don't pay every-
