tarting today the Observer Newspapers takes a look at roads and road funding in western Wayne County. Reporter Beth Sundrla Jachman outlines traffic volumes on area roads and talks to county officials on how roads are rated for construction and maintenance. For more stories on local roads, see pages 8A and 10B. Look for more stories focusing on the reaction of local officials in Monday's Observer.

ROAD MONEY:

Not enough to do the job, official says

By BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN

You pay county property taxes, and you expect some of the money to be used to fix the roads, right?

What many people don't realize is that county property taxes don't go for road construction projects. Road money comes from federal grants funded by the federal gas tax and state funds from fees such as gas and weight taxes.

County road officials say that funding isn't enough and hasn't been for years. "In fact, there is just not enough money today," said Russell A. Gronevelt, assistant county executive and director of public services.

A hole in road funding hasn't been filled: We've been living on a fixed income since 1984," he said.

The state gas tax was capped at 15 cents in 1984. If the original formula had been allowed to work, today the gas tax would be about 20 cents a gallon, and about $1.4 billion of revenue would already be invested in the road system. Gronevelt said.

Gronevelt is among those people who favor an increase in the state gas tax to fund road repairs. "If people had a say they'd make roads a higher priority," he said.

But some officials think the road funding system should be revamped. Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, favors rewriting Act 51, which legislates state road funding, to have road

Clinton, underscoring the importance of Lindberg's education, said later that computer-nided manufacturing is among the programs that "will tear down the walls between academics and vocational education."

Even though Lindberg was impressed by Clinton, he didn't promise to vote for him in November.

"I'll plead the Fifth (Amendment) on that one," he told reporters.

After Lindberg had his turn with Clinton. Ford center teacher Todd Hoag showed Clinton how to use a computer numerical control lathe machine. Clinton learned that the skills he saw require not only technical ability, but high levels of math, communication and teamwork.

Jessie Jackson to urge registrations

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Jesse Jackson will try to inspire area residents to register to vote in November during a rally scheduled for Monday at Inkster High School.

Jackson, in an address that is free and open to the public, is slated to appear during a program scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Monday in the high school auditorium.

Jackson is expected to try to boost voter registration and to underscore for students the importance. of voting, said longtime Wayne resident Jim Netter, a former Jackson congressional coordinator.

"This rally is about kids," Netter said.

A Rocket boost: President Clinton's presidential campaign roared into Westland Tuesday afternoon and was welcomed by an enthusiastic crowd of 10,000 to 12,000 persons at the John Glenn High School football field. think he's nice, too.'

Flanked on stage by local, state and national politicians, Clinton spoke following a tour of the next-door William D. Ford Career Technical Center.

from page1A

Other than some brief heckling from behind the football field stage. Clinton drew strong support as he swung through blue-collar territory in search of votes.

Wayne-Westland school Superintendent Duane Moore, thanking Clinton for visiting the 15,000-student, 2,000-employee district. praised the president for addressing education "not only in word, but in action and deed."

Brian Duka, a 1993 John Glenn graduate employed by the Ford Livonia Transmission Plant, had the honor of introducing Clinton.

Duka, who wants to seek a mechanical engineering degree or become a skilled trades apprentice, recalled how he worked for minimum wage in high school at a fast-food restaurant.

"We can't make a living off of that," he said, urging his generation to work for better opportunities.

"Too many of us have been waiting for our parents to open the doors," Duka said.

A new parent, Duka also attended the Ford center when he was at John Glenn, learning skills that have helped him on his job.

Clinton said of Duka, "Brian Duka has a bright future because of the education he received here and because of the work he is doing right now."

In the audience, Kim Koltyk, 14, said she wanted to see Clinton for

"He is the president," she said. "I wanted to see the president." Although Clinton visited John Glenn, many students from the district's other high school, Wayne Memorial, also attended the rally.

"It's the first time I've ever seen President Clinton in person," said 16-year-old Wayne Memorial student Mesha Smith of Inkster.

John Glenn band director Scott Cramer said his students became "extremely excited" when they learned that they would be playing for Clinton. They performed their "Indiana Jones" show, the Rockets' fight song and "Stars and Stripes," among other selections.

John Glenn's choir sang the national anthem. Clinton praised the school and also read a letter from former astronaut/U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who said having the school named after him was a career highlight.

Speaking prior to Clinton, U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, said that Westland area residents are among the people cited by Clinton when he boasts elsewhere about the workers who make American cars. "If there is one word that sums up today for me, it's pride," Rivers said Tuesday, during Clinton's nearly two-hour visit.

During his speech, Clinton touted several statistics in an effort to show progress during his administration. The president said that:

- U.S. unemployment has reached a 7-year low.
- Some 10 million new jobs have been created.
- There are 4 million new homeowners. • The deficit has been reduced for four years in a row.
- There are 1.8 million fewer people on welfare.
- The country's crime rate dropped 9 percent last year.

"I'm not declaring victory against crime," he said. "I'm just saying we're moving in the right direction."

On education, Clinton said access to computer technology, such as the "information superhighway," will make schools comparable whether they are in poor or rich areas.

"All of our schools will have equal access to learning," he said.

Meanwhile, Westland Police Chief EmeryPrice said the day went smoothly for his department, which was involved in security, traffic control and crowd control.

"Everything went off really well," he said.

Tuesday marked the first assignment for a new motorcycle police unit.

Price said his department helped escort the president to Ford Road and I-275, where Clinton's entourage headed to Metro Airport for a flight to Chicago.

Clinton was accompanied on his tour by Ford center principal Bill Richardson and U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor.

The president arrived by motorcade from Metro Airport shortly before 1 p.m., about three hours after a barrage of reporters began gathering next door at school district headquarters in the Dyer

His stop in Westland - billed as the first for any U.S. president lasted about two hours before he departed for Chicago.

Clinton's visit marked his second to the Wayne-Westland district, although it was his first as president. He addressed Wayne Memorial High School students in 1992 on the eve of the Michigan presidential primary.

Reacting to Clinton...

Presidential visit draws diverse crowd to Glenn

President Bill Clinton's Tuesday visit to Westland provided numerous story opportunities from people who were willing to take time off from work, to those who showed up in opposition. Everyone had a story to tell — here are the tidbits.

• Garden City Mayor Michael Breen took time off from work at Ford Motor Co. to attend the rally on the John Glenn High School football field and sport his personalized "Mayor Michael Breen for Clinton and Gore" campaign badge.

He said "this is a receptive crowd" and "it looks like the Democrats are alive and well in Westland and Wayne County."

•Crowd members cheered as the president spent 30 minutes shaking hands with those who packed the high school stadium to see him. Jessie Barkett, of Inkster, was one of those who shook Clinton's hand. It was a treat for the woman who had taken time off from work and had her daughter, 10, taken out of school for the rally.

"I feel wonderful," Mrs. Barkett said. "He's a wonderful man and a people person."

•Not everyone was there to cheer for the president. There were a few displaying signs for Republican nominee Robert Dole and running mate Jack Kemp.

Several of the signs were just behind and to the side of the stage where Clinton and other officials were seated and clearly visible to the photographers' stand, near the rear of the crowd.

One woman with a sign along the walk to the main section of the crowd refused to give her name or where she lived. "Dole is a better man," was all she'd say.

•Some media types were getting hunger pains waiting for the Clinton entourage to arrive at the William Ford Career and Technical Center's computer-aided manufacturing class.

"Why didn't he come to the center's culinary arts program instead," asked a TV crew member.

•At the Ford Center, one photographer with an excellent view was John Prusek, the school's video and photography teacher. He told the Observer that he had stadents assigned to handle still photos and videos throughout the building. Their works will be later displayed and discussed in class.

• Having a better view with his camera was John Glenn High assistant principal Lynn Gregg.

4Joan Sedik, another Glenn assistant principal, commented on the hectic weekend work planning the visit and arranging details. They, with other school administrators, worked 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

•The visit to Westland was like a homecoming for Joseph Cameron, 28, member of the presidential food services staff and graduate of the Ford Center in 1985. He met wife President Bill Clinton's Tuesday sit to Westland provided numer- grad, while both attended culinary arts classes at the Ford Center.

He and another food service staffer handle the president's meals when he is on the road.

•On the subject of food, Westland's Phillip Lawicki, a Ford Center culinary arts student, was excited about serving the president during a pre-rally lunch at the center's Marquette Room. By the way, the president left a dollar tip.

•Rick Hamrick, Ford Center assistant principal, had no trouble recalling how he learned about the president's visit to the center.

About 5:45 p.m. Wednesday, Sep. 11, he was preparing for the evening classes when he noticed a team of about 15 persons by the front entrance with cellular phones and laptop portable computers.

"I walked out to them and asked if I could help them. They didn't look like a typical group of new students."

An aide to U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers responded that they are looking over the center for a possible visit, but couldn't provide details.

•In a Friday letter to all faculty members and employees, the administration listed two pages of tips.

Among them:

"Few people ever get to see the president in person. Some students may be inconvenienced on Tuesday because of the parking situation, or because they may have to stand longer than they would like to, but the trade-off is well worth it.

"Remind students that we will have a lot of guests in our building Monday and Tuesday. We want to show them our best side.

"Inappropriate comments from anyone will not be tolerated. Just as at the airport, no one should 'joke' about matters dealing with the security of the President!"

•An unhappy father of a Wayne Memorial High School student called the Observer Tuesday morning to complain about several issues relating to the president's visit.

"Who is paying the school employees' expenses of setting up fences and other work for what is a campaign rally," he questioned. The father declined to have his name published.

"Schools complain they are short of money," he continued. He was also concerned about the legal liability of the district for Wayne Memorial students who would be on their own for the half-day.

A school administrator responded to the man's initial question saying, the Clinton-Gore campaign committee will pay for the expenses incurred in holding the rally.

State House passes bill to raise minimum wage

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

The state House of Representatives has passed and sent to the Senate a minimum wage hike bill that a critic said should be called the "Youth Unemployment Act."

The vote was an overwhelming 94-12. But the Sept. 10 vote belied the flurry of amendments aimed either giving it more teeth or filing them down.

"This bill takes care of hourly workers who do not fall under the federal minimum wage laws," said Republican Sandra Hill of Montrose. "It is the only fair thing to do, and it needed to be done quickly."

"This amendment, like the one before it, should be titled the Youth Unemployment Act," Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, said at one point in the debate.

"Young people, predominantly teenagers working part-time, will have a harder time finding a job if these amendments are enacted into law in Lansing. Numerous economic studies have shown that jobs have been eliminated when amendments such as these have been enacted in the past. These amendments are job killers."

Kaza voted no on final passage as did 11 other Republi- fry wage for employees who get cans, including Penny Crissman of Rochester, Gerald Law of Plymouth and Dan Gustafson of Williamston.

Opposing the bill was the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB). Lobbyist Charles Owens said its members tend to be familyowned businesses.

Gov. John Engler indicated he would sign this version if it reaches his desk.

"Most businesses in the state already pay above the minimum wage in order to attract and retain quality workers," Owens said. "NFIB and its more than 23,000 Michigan members believe the marketplace, not the government, should determine the wage and prices of business and commerce."

House Bill 6180:

■ Increases the state minimum wage from $3.35 per hour to $4.75 beginning Oct. 1. It's the first state increase since 1981, said sponsor Bob Emerson, D-Flint, who chided Republicans for waiting 20 months to act on his bill.

■ Increases the wage to $5.15 an hour on Sept. 1, 1997.

■ Sets the "tip-credit" wage at 75 percent of the minimum wage. Thus, the service-industips rises to $3.56 an hour Oct. 1 and $3.86 an hour on Sept. 1, 1997. ■ Applies to an estimated 130,000 workers.

■ Boosts the "training wage" for workers under age 20 from $3.35 to $4.25 for the first 90 days of employment.

Allows employees who work overtime to choose between a pay rate of 1.5 times the wage or to take off compensatory time of 1.5 hours for each hour over overtime.

■ Applies to businesses not covered by the federal overtime act _ those with gross receipts of less than $500,000 a year that aren't engaged in interstate commerce.

The new bill brings Michigan's wage law in line with a recently passed federal law. The federal rate, however, was increased to $4.25 in 1991.

The House softened the bill for businesses that employ seasonal summer help. The new rates become effective at the end of the summers and set the training wage period 90 days, the length of the summer sea-funds administered by the local conferences such as the Conference of Western Wayne, rather than by the county.

Funding for the conferences would be based on population and economic development and the conferences would then appropriate the money, he said. "That way we feel we would have more accountability," he said.

McCotter also favors using general fund money for roads. Out of a $343 million county general fund, money could be found to be used for roads, he

But, instead of increasing, the funding the county is receiving for roads decreased in 1996 compared to 1995, according to Alan Richardson, deputy director of the roads division of the county's Department of Public Services. In 1996, $100,359,628 is expected in revenues, down from $108,111,725 in 1995.

Projects are being delayed because of a lack of funding, Richardson said. "We'd like to be able to tell people that we agree a road is bad" and fix it, he said.

The only thing increasing funding is increased fuel consumption, and the fuel efficiency of automobiles works in the opposite direction, Gronevelt 1995.

Money for roads is collected from several areas including:

■ State funds including gas and weight taxes. In 1996, Wayne County is receiving about $74 million to run the county system of roads and maintain state roads in the county, from state-generated funds. That compares to $71 million in 1993, $80 million in 1994, and $76.6 million in 1995.

Federal gas tax dollars. The federal tax on gas is 18.4 cents a gallon, with about 14.4 cents going to roads. Federal grants require a 20 percent match. The county's match money comes from the weight and gas tax. In 1996, the federal funding to Wayne County is almost $12.2 million. That compares to $7.3 million in 1993, $9.68 million in 1994 and almost $18 million in 1995. (The 1995 figure includes about $8 million in federal funding for the Merriman Road railroad track project.)

■ Local match funds. Communities help pay a percentage of road projects and that has increased in recent years. In 1996, $2.3 million in local match money is budgeted, compared to $952,107 in 1993, $1.99 million in 1994 and $1.36 million in

■ Other revenue sources. These include service charges for services provided by the Department of Public Services to county departments, $5.5 million in 1996, and miscellaneous items such as rent on buildings and interest earned, $6 million.

Expenditures are broken down this way for 1996:

■ $58.5 million for the roads division including maintenance activities, salaries, benefits, materials and equipment; compared to past years of $59.7 million in 1993, $57 million in 1994; and $59 million in 1995. Maintenance activities include cutting the grass along roadways, pothole and pavement repair, ice and snow removal and maintaining safety features such as guardrails.

■ $27.7 million for construction contracts; compared to $18.8 million for 1993; $24.3 million for 1994 and $33.5 million for

■$6 million for debt retirement; compared to $5.6 million for 1993; $5.7 million for 1994 and $6 million for 1995.

■ $1.5 million for lawsuits: compared to $1.3 million for 1993; $1.49 million for 1994 and $1.19 in 1995.

■$6.2 million for administrative costs; compared to $8.96

million in 1993; $7.8 million in 1994 and $6.89 million in 1995.

Outdated system?

Gronevelt questions many gas tax and fee rules already in

■ The diesel discount allows truckers to buy a sticker for $90 a year and receive a 6-cent discount on the gas tax - so instead of 15 cents a gallon it's 9 cents for truckers, he said. If the diesel discount were taken away, $15 million a year would be generated, he said.

■ Raising driver's license fees $2 a year would raise $45 million, Gronevelt said.

■ Raising truck registration fees would generate $52 million, he said.

■ Some commercial vehicles pay registration based on weight, rather than on value. About $20 million would be generated if all trucks and vans paid the same, he said.

■ There's no reason diesel fuel and gasoline should be taxed at the same amount, especially when most users of diesel fuel produce more wear and tear with vehicles than 1,000 vehicles, he said.

Road money

How to sweeten the pot

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

It's all in the back rooms - if indeed there is any action at all.

State lawmakers, Gov. John Engler's administration, regional planners, county officials and business interests like truckers and fuel producers are negotiating on how to sweeten the $1.3 billion pot of road money amid wide agreement that Michigan's roads are the worst in the Midwest.

Major issues:

■ Which road taxes should be raised?

Since 1982 the state fuel tax has been 15 cents per gallon. Odds are this tax, 45th in the nation, will be increased.

But the petroleum lobby points out the state also levies its 6 percent sales tax on gasoline - roughly 6.4 cents per gallon. That revenue goes mainly for schools, not roads. So Michigan's total fuel tax is 21.4 cents – 10th in the nation.

In round numbers, here are the major revenue streams flowing into the transportation lake: gasoline (15 cents/gal.), $700 million; diesel (15 cents/gal.

minus a 6-cents discount for commercial vehicles), $100 million; motor vehicle weight tax (increased 92 percent in the last decade), $500 million.

Road interests call the 6-cent diesel discount is a "loophole" that should be repealed. It's a tax break for truckers to keep them from filling up in Indiana before entering Michigan.

■Which taxes should be cut?

Clearly the sales tax on fuel will be a target, but school interests will resist giving it up. Road interests argue, however, that all road-oriented taxes should be dedicated to transportation.

And if the fuel tax is raised, business groups argue other taxes should be cut - preferably the single business tax.

■Who should get the bulk of the new money?

Currently, the Michigan Department of Transportation by law gets 39.1 percent, the counties 39.1 percent, and cities and villages 21.8 percent.

Engler wants any new tax revenue to go entirely to the state road system - those with an I

County will test computerized traffic control

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN STAFF WRITER

Computerized traffic control. for years part of Oakland County's traffic mix, is coming to Wayne County.

During the holiday shopping season, traffic around Southland Mall in Taylor will be controlled by a computer. The computer on a small number of traffic sigwill take in data at set-intersections and sort out who gets a green light and how long they need a green light, according to Victoria J. Holland, assistant engineer of traffic operations.

"It won't be as high-tech as Oakland County," Holland said. The project is an experiment nals in a high-traffic area. A computer in the roads office can interact with the computer in the field, she said.

Then county engineers will evaluate the information. Officials probably won't know until a year after the system is installed how successful it is, she said.

But the county is just looking at the high-traffic area in Taylor for now. "We're pretty happy with our timed corridors," she said. Timed corridors are areas where signals on a stretch of road are set on a timer to ease traffic flow.

But at Southland Mall, no matter how the traffic signals are timed, there's a traffic problem, she said.

"Eureka Road during the Christmas holidays has such an influx of traffic that it's a constant bottleneck," she said.

"As an engineer, there's nothing I can do to move the cars through there," she said.

The decision to start the project is based on traffic counts and that is part of Holland's responsibilities. Traffic is counted on primary roads once every three years and is part of how the county studies roads.

Congestion is determined by how many lanes the road is compared to how much traffic. On a two-lane road, more than 15,000 cars a day is considered congest-

Timed-traffic

To help ease congestion, the department works with timedtraffic signal corridors in which long segments of road are targeted to have all the signals replaced and set to allow traffic traveling at the speed limit to hit green lights.

"The beauty of the new controlling devices is that you can set a relationship between a Plymouth Road to Six Mile is whole slew of signals, and they will stay that way unless something goes really wrong," she under a federal program which provides 80 percent federal funding, 10 percent is then matched by the county and 10 percent by the cities involved.

The corridors are qualified for federal money because they allow increased traffic movement and cut down on increased stopping and starting and therefore on noxious fumes.

There are 25 corridors scattered throughout the county. Farmington Road and Wayne Road are being completed this year while Newburgh Road from scheduled later this year.

(for interstate), U.S. and M-numbers. As former MDOT director Pat Nowak said, "Which wound does the doctor treat - a severed artery or a scratched finger?"

County road associations say local roads need a piece of the pie, too, pointing to other states where the transportation department takes a smaller share than MDOT. Their favorite argument: The state has only 8 percent of the total road system - 9,700 of the 118,000 miles.

The counties also argue that MDOT soaks up 75 percent of all federal aid coming into Michi-Engler precipitated a political crisis late in 1995 when he unilaterally decreed that MDOT should take three years' worth of federal aid from counties and cities. The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments engineered a compromise under which MDOT took a lion's share for one year but reverted to the old formula in the second and third years.

Which part of the state' should benefit most?

Money is parceled out on a mind-boggling formula that considers miles of "primary" and "secondary" roads in each unit. Urban and suburban communities argue their roads are like craters on the moon while farm roads are like velvet.

No urban attempt to shift more money to Oakland and Wayne counties' mile roads. however, has succeeded in the past. And with Grand Rapids-Holland politicos in charge of both chambers of the Legislature, a shift is unlikely this year.

Active days. Discussion groups where every voice is important. Gardening where friendships bloom as well as flowers. And daily routines where people are secure knowing that trained, caring staff is nearby to offer assistance if necessary.

That's life at Springhouse, an assisted living facility for those who need extra help in their day-to-day routine, with things like dressing, bathing, and taking medications, but still want to enjoy life to its fullest. We customize care for our residents, giving them only the services they need or request. This helps them remain as independent as possible.

Friendship is one of the hallmarks of the Springhouse experience. In fact, it's never been easier for some of our residents as they are free to join each other for activities like walking and lectures. But residents can be on their own, too, setting their own routines. If they want to enjoy a quiet meal in their own apartment, they can. In short, residents make the choices that let them: maintain control of their own lives.

We've designed Springhouse to be a safe and secure environment, with licensed health care professionals, staff and personal care assistants just seconds away—24 hours a day. ### Cooper wants high court to retain independence

RENEE SKOGLUND STAFF WRITER

Jessica Cooper, who is running as an independent for Michigan Supreme Court judge, sat in the conference room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia last Thursday. She was the noon-time guest speaker. But there was no audience.

"I think somebody running for the Michigan Supreme Court doesn't get much attention. It's not a media event," said Thomas Eggebeen, pastor at St. Paul's. "I would dare say that most folks don't know what the Michigan Supreme Court does, much more than an occasional ruling, myself included."

Cooper, currently an Oakland County Circuit Court judge, took her lack of an audience in stride. A minister and a reporter would have to

She has a single campaign goal for election to the Michigan Supreme Court: "Getting the word out about maintaining the independence of the Court and maintaining it by integrity."

Uphill battle

Cooper is running as an independent — minus a base of political power. That suits her just fine. She is following in the footsteps of retiring Justice Charles Levin, the first to run for the high court as an indeELECTION '96

"We have a perception of partisanship. It comes from the fact that there is a partisan nomination. After that nomination, judges are expected to turn around and become non-partisan," said Cooper, who is facing two Democrats, two Republicans and two libertarians for the Supreme Court seat.

Without the financial help from big party coffers, Cooper has mounted a grassroots campaign. On a projected budget hovering around $100,000, she has hand-delivered literature, sent out mailings, scheduled interviews, done a few public radio and public television spots, and given speeches "anywhere there are two or three people."

"Whether that is strong enough in the face of the hundreds of thousands of dollars others have, I don't know. I've never lost before. Getting on the ballot is and of itself a win."

Goal-setter

Cooper has been a goal-setter all her life. After graduating from Wayne State University Law School in 1973, she worked as an assistant defender in the State Appellate Defender's office. In 1975, she opened her own general law practice in Bloomfield Township with a special emphasis in civil rights litiga-

She was elected district judge in the Southfield 46th District Court in 1978 and reelected in 1984. She was elected to the Oakland County Circuit Court in 1986 and reelected in

Judge Jessica Cooper, Independent Candidate

received her teaching certification from the National Institute for Tri l Advocacy. She also is a founding member of the National Association of Women Judges.

Besides serving on several community service boards, Cooper is the first woman president of Temple Shir Shalom in Orchard Lake.

Cooper said judges should be accountable for their w rk ethic, fairness and academics, not their politics or personal beliefs. "That said.

Cooper is a firm believer in the academic application of law. "I have the desire to go back to the academic roots. I would like to see the concentration go back to academics in the appellate court."

At the appellate level, the academic approach is defined by "stare" decisis," the concept that all appellate law is based on the law the went before. It's a slow process.

"It's meant to be a slow process because that is the check and balance."

Cooper said a trial is composed of two basic components: the law and the facts. "At a trial, you take the facts as you find them to be and apply the law. On an appellate level, you apply the law to the facts as they are established on the record, and you have to have that record. You have to make decisions based on a record."

High-profile trials

But some decisions are difficult and clear precedents are few. Cooper presided over the highly publicized and controversial trial of retired pathologist Jack Kevorkian earlier this year. At the end of this month, she must determine sentencing for Itsumi Koga, the Japanese woman from Farmington Hills who pleaded does not belong on the bench," she "guilty but mentally ill" to voluntary manslaughter in the death of her infant son.

> Other decisions, while less complicated, are painful. There are people I have seen who have no humanity. There are 16-year-olds who are killers. They are immoral. Even though you can't understand this, you have to take them off the street. You don't see any humanity in their eyes and it's scary," said Cooper.

An idealist

In spite of having dealt with a criminal system, Cooper describes herself as an idealist. "My best characteristic is my worst characteristic." She believes that most of human nature is good. "I believe we take our strengths from all people. Our personal strengths come from our unity."

The election is just seven weeks away. Cooper stands on her record. I have seen things I haven't wanted to see, made decisions I haven't wanted to make, but that's my job. I am not a politician. That's the issue. I talk solely about the court system. I'm a judge and that's what we want on bench

by Chris Elder IS OWNERS TITLE INSURANCE A GOOD IDEA?

If you finance your home, the lender will require you to purchase title insurance for the amount of your mortgage. You will be given the option of increasing the coverage to include your equity in the property. Most experts agree that the additional coverage is a good idea.

Before your sale is finalized, the title company will inspect the public records and confirm the sellers ownership of the property. They will look for any liens that may have been filed against the property that must be paid off before if can be sold. Even the most careful search, however, cannot guarantee that there was not an error at some point in the transfer of title during the chain of ownership. The owner's coverage fee is a one-time charge that protects your equity in your new home, including its appreciated value. It's one of those things you will probably never need, but if you do, you will be very glad you have

Entertainment set for seniors

Concerto Grosso and Flo Sopko headline the entertainment for the second Western Wayne County Senior Celebration Day on Saturday, Sept. 28, at Burton Manor in Livonia.

The event from 9, a.m. to 1:30 p.m. also features a consumer and health fair continental breakfast, lunch, gifts, raffles and informal discussions with several elected officials. Registration fee is $1.

Concerto Grosso is a nine-member senior citizens group founded three years ago by Dawson Campbell of Dearborn Heights.

The group has sold out many performances with its orchestra-like ensemble of electric keyboard players. Among their many songs, the group plays tangos, rumbas and polkas from the '40s, '50s, and '60s.

"This year's entertainment line up promises to be a blockbuster," said state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, an event sponsor. "The performers will play music that senior citizens can truly appreciate. The sounds of the Big Band era, as well as other favorites, will come alive."

Flo Sopko of Livonia plays the piano and conducts sing-a-longs to tunes such as "Sweet Georgia Brown" and "Ain't She Sweet" during her performance. A popular entertainer at many area senior citizen homes, she has played the piano since childhood.

Other acts scheduled to perform include the Smooth Steppin's Seniors from Taylor, the Satin Dolls, and the Prime Care Line Dancers.

DAVID FRANCIS HOPKINS

Visitation for David Francis Hopkins, former Westland resident who built the Super Bowl in Canton, will be from 3 p.m. - 9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 19 at the O'Brien Chapel-Ted C. Sullivan Funeral Home, 41555 Grand River in Novi. The rosary will be said at 7

A funeral Mass is scheduled for 10 a.m., Friday, Sept. 20 at the Church of the Holy Family, 24505 Meadowbrook Road, between 10 Mile Road and Grand River in Novi.

Hopkins, 68, of Brighton was Irish and proud of his heritage. In fact, it was while fulfilling his dream of returning to his. father's homeland of Ireland that he was called home by his heavenly father Sept. 13, said his family.

Born April 12, 1928 in Detroit, Hopkins' athletic pursuits began at Catholic Central High School where he played varsity football. He was honorably discharged from the Armed Services in October 1956.

Hopkins began his lifelong career in the bowling business as a pin setter at the Detroit Athletic Club. He later managed Oxford Lanes, Town & Country Lanes, and Westland Bowl. In 1976, he reached the pinnacle of his business aspirations when he and his partner built the Super Bowl.

Bowling was in his blood, said his wife Lillian, who recalled how scary it was to build in Canton when it was mostly farmland. "He started leagues for kids, gave lessons and started up moonlight bowling. He absolutely loved it."

In retirement, Hopkins was an outdoorsman par none: an avid duck hunter, fisherman, woodsman, athlete and. runner. He even developed a pond on his homestead stocked with ducks and fish. He especially enjoyed summer days fishing on his boat in northern Michigan.

"Married 36 years to Lillian, his abiding love for her was clear to the observer," said his sister-in-law Marylyn Thompson of Clarkston. "They shared a love of the outdoors and together they transformed five acres of rough woodlands into a landscaping masterpiece to surround their home, built largely from the trees felled by David on the property."

Hopkins adored his daughters, Colleen Bussey and Lisa Smith, and took great pride in their accomplishments. Following in her father's footsteps in business, Smith is human resources manager at Magne Tek. Bussey shared her father's interest in athletics, particularly scuba diving and running.

"He was a man for all seasons and truly a hero to his daughters," said Thompson. "Every inch a family man, Dave was a willing playmate and 'Papa' to his grandchildren, Davey, 5; Breanna, 4; Mikanoush, 3; Ashley, 3; Melissa, 2; and Marshall, 5 weeks.

Dave will be missed by everyone who had the good fortune to know him and love him." Hopkins is also survived by brothers-inlaw John Mitchell of Livonia and Richard

Thompson of Clarkston; nephews Steve (Chris) Little, and Susan (Paul) DeCelle. Burial will be at Holy Sepulchre in Southfield. Memorials may be made to the American Heart Association.

HARRY J. ENGLAND

Services for Mr. England, 77, of Garden City were Sept. 18 from the Santeiu & Son Funeral Home, followed by cremation. Interment was in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens, Novi.

Sister RitamaryPyzick of St. Raphael Church officiated.

Mr. England, a long-time Garden City board of education member in the 1960s and '70s, died Sept. 16 in Garden City. Born June 5, 1919, in Bindloss, Alberta, Canada, he was a sales representative.

Memorials may be donated to the Mary I. England Library Fund, in care of St. Raphael Catholic School.

Survivors include: daughters, Mary (Jack) Newby, Kathryn (Chris) Fortier and Nancy England; sons, James (Lori) and Patrick, and grandchildren, Katie, Jennifer, Morgan and will be the first new school building constructed by the Detroit Archdiocese in 32 years. "Our primary goal and our primary mission is bringing quality Catholic education to young people in this area of western Wayne County," said Cardinal Adam Maida who officiated at the ground breaking. "I'm very excited and very hopeful and it's just so wonderful to see so much excitement about this new endeavor and this new school." Among those whose sparkling chrome shovels took the first bites of dirt along with Cardinal Maida were the pastors from the four supporting parishes: Rev. Richard Perfetto, Resurrection; Rev. George Charnley, St. John Neumann; Rev. William Petit, St. Kenneth; and Rev. C. Richard Kelly, Jr., St. Thomas A'Becket. But the real earth moving took place when the multitude of children (many, future students) were invited to come forward with their multi-colored plastic spades to participate in the festivities. Cardinal Maida and newly named principal of the school, Mary

Rita Allen, didn't hesitate to join the children in the mist of the sand pile melee.

Allen, a 17-year resident of Canton and of St. John Neumann parish, has worked as a teacher and principal in both public and Catholic schools. Since 1995 she has served as associate superintendent of schools for the Detroit Archdiocese.

Enthusiastic about her new position Allen said, "I'm really excited because this is a wonderful undertaking on the part of the archdiocese. The first goals will be, of course, to address the Catholic identity of our school as well as the academic excellence that will be expected. I'm looking forward to the challenge of it."

Allen had been a part of a group in 1982, involved in the effort of opening a Catholic school in Canton. That effort did not succeed, "si I was very excited when I learned this school was starting,

POW/MIA event planned Friday

The annual POW/MIA Remembrance Day will be observed with a ceremony at the Westland Vietnam Memorial, near the City Hall entrance, at 6 p.m., Friday.

The ceremony, open to the public, is being planned by the Vietnam Veterans Association, Wolverine Chapter 387 and VFW Post 9885.

There will be a black balloon released for each Michigan service person listed as a prisoner of war or being missing

The local ceremony is part of a national remembrance program.

COUNTY NEWS

Consortium forms commitee to examine secession issues

The issue of secession won't go away - at least quietly.

Municipal officials attending the Sept. 13 meeting of the Conference of Western Wayne passed a resolution to set up a committee to formally study the issues of secession.

"I've been asked to come back next month having a plan of action on how to formally and responsibly look into the issue," said Daniel Gilmartin, executive director of the Conference. The Conference's 18 members will meet in Northville on Friday, Oct. 11.

Gilmartin said he will present an outline on the proposed study that will address the financial and legal issues of secession, as well as changes in the county charter regarding voting ratios.

"It will be a priority issue for the Conference and its members," Gilmartin said. He added that outlining the pros and cons of secession at this point would be premature.

Kay Beard, vice chair of the Wayne County Commission, advocates a cautious approach to secession. "There has to be a lot of research. There are constitutional restrictions that apply." She said the communities must consider issues of division of property and community debt, location, and the building new seats of government.

"I think it would be difficult to have happen. Before I took a position I would want to see the legal and financial ramifications. There are too many unanswered questions. I can understand the frustrations."

Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who district includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville, Northville Township and most of Livonia, said secession is not a new topic.

"As far as secession itself, we've had discussions for two years in the conference. It usually happens after the county does something unjust, like the park tax."

Sparking the discussion was a recent letter from Westland Mayor Robert Thomas to Gilmartin expressing resentment for perceived unfair taxation in countywide millages. Thomas's viewpoint is shared by many western suburban mayors and supervisors.

"The recent parks millage is a perfect example of this problem," Thomas wrote. "Westland voters turned down the proposal two-to-one, yet it passed countywide. Westland voters will send over $300,000 to the County Parks Department with no guarantee of any direct benefit from that money.'

passed in August, with only Highland Park, Trenton and Detroit voters in favor of the tax. "All of our communities have parks and recreations programs. They know where their money should be spent," said Gilmartin:

Gilmartin cited the 1988 1mill jail tax as another example of a countywide tax without a majority benefit. He said the cost of transporting prisoners from the suburbs to the Hamtranck facility is too costly. "It costs Canton less to take prisoners to other sites in Michigan."

McCotter said a viable option to forming a new county might be to consolidate with an existing county, like Oakland or Washtenaw. "It would spare the expense of building an infrastructure," he said.

According to McCotter, the political tone of the suburbs is becoming more Republican. Eventually, the 15-member county commission will reflect this. Presently, only three members are Republican.

"The Republicans have consistently voted against tax increases," said McCotter Cotter. "Within 10 years, you'll have a majority of Republicans.'

Bill O'Neil, county commissioner from Allen Park, said the Downriver Community Conference wanted to be included in future talks on secession. Some of the southernmost communities in the Downriver area had considered forming an Erie County in the past.

"I've never been in favor of an Erie County because it wasn't inclusive enough: I believe it was racist," he said.

"This is not a race issue," said Thomas. "It's an unfair taxation issue. We are all charged with being good community leaders and we must look at all issues."

Mike Duggan, deputy county The county parks millage was executive, responded by saying, "There is little in the letter (Thomas's) I disagree with and I strongly support our amending the charter to reflect a super majority on tax issues."

The board of commissioners presently passes tax issues on a simple majority, eight out of 15. "I prefer 15 out of 15, but a twothirds or four-fifths would be acceptable," said McCotter.

Spruce up

Businesses to beautify sites

A re there businesses that want to get government off their backs? Want to do something to improve business with just a small investment of a few bucks?

Then take the advice of Mayor Robert Thomas and the newly-created Downtown Development Authority and spruce up your business frontages and properties.

That was the message from city officials at last week's Westland Chamber of Commerce program which had members hear an update of the group formed in mid-May.

First impressions are important and that's why business owners are being urged to plant flowers and spruce up their property frontage.

To help its first priority, the city did receive a $60,000 state grant, to be matched by city funds, to plant trees along the business strip in the DDA district which includes frontage along a strip of Ford between the city's eastern and western limits and the length of Wayne Road between Ford and Glenwood.

Clinton gets a royal welcome

resident Clinton's Tuesday visit to the city of Westland gave the community and the host Wayne-Westland school district a deserved boost of civic pride.

Admittedly the president came to town to support the election campaigns of area Democratic incumbents.

But there was plenty to be proud of as well as educational benefits.

John Glenn High School social studies students had their class assignments heightened because of the Clinton visit to the adjacent William Ford Career Technical Center and the rally at the Glenn football field.

Local residents beamed with pride as the local TV stations and networks carried images of the two schools nationwide.

The entire visit, which lasted less than two hours, showed that the community in general and the school district specifically can be gra-

Tests should measure skills

■ he Michigan Department of Education has released the scores from last springs's new battery of state proficiency tests for 5th, 8th and 11th graders. The disappointingly low scores will begin another round of hand wringing by parents and school administrators.

The Observer Newspapers have long supported proficiency tests and believe that they are valuable tools in helping school districts to focus their curricula to reach an accepted standard of proficiency and in giving parents a way to evaluate their school system and schools within the system.

But the new tests results raise some serious questions.

First, do the tests demand unrealistically high standards?

Livonia Public Schools Superintendent Kenneth Watson said that every indicator shows that the tests "represent a reasonable expectation of what students should achieve. These are not minimal competency goals."-

Watson said Livonia and other districts will try to improve areas where students show less proficiency.

But, clearly, the tests suggest that most school districts do not prepare their students to meet the benchmarks set by the state. Adjustments are in order.

Second, the tests again emphasize that students in districts with a higher socioeconomic profile score significantly higher. Higher scores, also, generally reflect higher per student spending. "The money behind the students is reflected in the outcome. You will always see a discrepancy between schools that get money and schools that don't," said Watson.

It is too early to tell whether changes in the way Michigan finances its schools will result in improved scores at some school districts.

Watson said per student spending was only one of the factors that resulted in improved scores in richer districts, but it was a factor.

Another factor, of course, is the home and neighborhood environment. Schools can do only so much. Children who receive little or no cultural/educational reinforcement at home or who are hungry, abused or emotionally upset will not perform well in school or on tests. To improve the educational quality in these districts, it will also be necessary to improve the economic outlook in general.

Third, the new 11th grade tests in math, science, reading and writing have replaced the multiple-choice style with more open-ended essay and multi-step problem-solving questions. The new tests take more than 11 hours to complete.

Watson said professional educators had a great deal of input in the new tests and the questions are well devised, but that giving the tests was a "major problem." He said that at a time when parents and the state are demanding more classroom time, 11 hours for competency tests are too long. He said the quality of the tests need not be compromised by a shortened format.

Fourth, students who reach the proficient level on the 11th grade test receive a state endorsement of their diplomas. Since less than half of the 11th graders have reached proficiency, most students will not have a state endorsement. (But students do have several opportunities to retake the tests.)

Watson said he hasn't been able to find a relationship between a proficiency rating and a student's success after school.

"The endorsement has no validity," he said.

Finally, state tests should be used by school districts to help define educational objectives and identify strengths and weaknesses in a district's curriculum. They should not be used to demean students or to unfairly compare districts with totally dissimilar social and economic dynamics.

Voters thanked

wanted to thank the voters of Westland for going to the polls on Aug. 6. For those of you who voted yes on Project 2000, thanks for your support and consid-

For those of you who voted no, thank you for considering the proposal. At least you gave us the chance to put the question before you to decide.

We can ask for no more from our citizens

Now that the proposal has been turned down, we want to reassure you of some of the promises that we stated during the process.

We will not put this proposal for a millage increase back before the voters for at least four years. Even then, there would have to considerable interest by you to see the question come before you again.

While I believe it is proper for us to ask you to consider an increase in taxes for increased services, I also believe that we should abide by your decision. I don't believe in bringing the same request back year after year.

We also promised that we would still be committed to bringing you some form of Advanced Life Support regardless of whether or not the millage passed, and we are still committed to that.

While we will not have the additional seven firefighters that Project 2000 would have given us, we still hope to have some limited Advanced Life Support system in place by the end of the year. Keep in mind not everyone who calls for ALS will get it. If the unit is on a run when another call comes in, we will have to respond with a basic unit, not an Advanced Life Support rescue. However, one ALS unit is much better than none.

Again, while these are not ideal conditions, it is much better than we have now.

As to the community policing part of Project 2000, we will not be able to provide city-wide community policing.

As you know, we have two community police officers in the Norwayne subdivision now, but we had to take those two officers off normal road patrol to do that.

If we add any more community police officers, we would have to once again remove an officer from the road, which defeats the end

In closing, we will do what we have always pledged to do and that is to provide you with the most service possible for the money and that will continue to be our goal.

Keep Bentley alive

M arie Chestney's article on the possible demise of Bentley Center for Adult Education struck a nerve with me.

Not only have they done a terrific job with young adults, but have helped many senior citizens to advance their education.

Personally I have attended Bentley every year since my retirement and graduated from high school at age 70.

Sentiment or fond memories are, of course, not good reasons to continue Bentley. But its central location and ample space makes it ideal. A one-time tax of 1.5 mill seems a small price to pay to keep this fine school going. As a retiree on fixed income, I would support the tax levy 100 percent. We are too quick to tear down, otherwise sound structures, because of repair or upgrad-

Want nurses back

A s a regular donor to the Red Cross in my commu-Anity, I was quite upset to learn that the Red Cross is planning to replace the nurses, who do the pre-screenings and drawing of blood, with unlicensed technicians.

I personally know how important it is to give blood. I do it several times a year and I'm glad to do it because it saves lives.

In these days of fatal diseases that are passed through blood, it is important to me that someone trained and able to handle medical situations is there with me.

The nurses of the Red Cross have always been there for us — I want them to remain so I can feel safe about donating.

Use business model for new stadiums

BY ART NAUJOCK GUEST COLUMNIST

his new stadium complex in Detroit is going to be a very big money maker (so says the people with a vested interest in having sports stadi-

What is needed in this debate is to identify who is going to be the financial winner. So far the city of Pontiac in not claiming that the years the Lions spent there were winners; likewise, the Tigers have not provided the life blood for any significant number of Detroit residents.

Professional sports are big business. Like any other business they will try as hard as they can to squeeze out as much profit as they can with the least expenditure of their own money.

Professional sports teams are franchises the same as any other business franchise. The owners spend large sums of money to buy the franchise because they expect a financial return on their investment, just like any other franchised business. So, let's state flatly that sports franchises are businesses like McDonald's, Taco Bell, Businesses are expected to build their own buildings, provide their own security for employees and customers, provide their own parking lots, and pay taxes on the total property. What makes the Tigers or Lions any different than a Domino's or Little Caesar's pizza store?

Many businesses encourage their employees to invest in their company. This builds a strong desire on the employees part to do what they can to make the business successful.

Is it true that the new stadium/sports complex/entertainment center in the heart of Detroit will be a great financial success? The Wayne County Executive and Detroit

GUEST COLUMN

Mayor think so and are all set to "invest" out tax dollars in this scheme. But the main beneficiaries of these stadiums, such as the players, are going to get a free ride.

The solution for sports stadiums in Michigan and around the nation is to create a stadium construction/management company. It would be a private stock company with strong ties to the players and team owners. Its primary motive would be to provide a financial return for investors.

The investors would be the people who expect to benefit the most from the existence of these stadiums. All the players should be expected to invest a percentage of their gross pay into shares of the company.

The requirement to invest, unlike the current local tax schemes, would not be geographically limited. The incentive here is to keep the stadiums full and making profit which in turn could become part of the players' pension fund.

This would not be a significant burden on the players as their current compensation packages far exceed the lifetime earnings of a majority of ordinary taxpayers.

The stadiums are the ball players' and team owners' places of business. Private enterprise must be responsible for their own properties and provide a service to customers. That service should have a perceived total value equal to the price charged.

When taxpayers foot the bill for the stadiums there is no risk of failure and thus no incentive to excel by the teams or players.

The history of broken contracts and sweetheart deals between politicians and sports team owners has not served the people of Detroit or Pontiac very well in the past.

The same is true across the nation as various rich team owners blackmail local communities to make more and more concessions which in the end only benefit the owners and play-

Now is the time to put an end to it. Putting taxpayers money into a playground for the Lions or Tigers will not make them play better or attract more fans. Its time to stop treating these millionaires just like poor kids playing on the sand lot across the street just for the fun of it.

How the two political conventions differed

ow were the national conventions in San Diego and Chicago? How did they differ?

A. Many friends and colleagues asked. Both conventions were fun lots of nice parties and conversation. More seriously:

 There was nothing of substance for delegates to decide. The presidential candidates were picked five months ago or longer. They handpicked the vice-presidential candidates. Nobody paid much attention to the platforms.

 Delegates paid $2,000 or $3,000 apiece to be a television audience. Twice GOP chieftain Betsy DeVos warned Michiganians against dozing off when the cameras were on.

• The conventions were run as TV shows, but commercial TV turned its back because ratings were abysmal. Both halls were too small. Both parprint medium, the only one to do thorough reporting.

• Both parties' speeches were stage-managed — particularly the Republicans, who shut out big state governors. With one or two exceptions, Republican speakers said, "Negative media, Bobdole, Bobdole, Bobdole (15 times), Godbless America."

• The utilities and big companies particularly Ameritech — fed delegates at both conventions. Especially Ameritech. It's no wonder the two parties platforms agree on only one thing — communications technology.

I have been saying for 12 years that the national conventions are obsolete. They could be run in a halfday with delegates meeting in their home states, viewing by closed-circuit TV, and voting electronically. Delegates would have $2,000 more to donate to their parties, making them less dependent on lobbyists.

Finally, some national columnists ties systematically squeezed down the are catching on, predicting these will be the last four-day conventions.

Q. What about the differences?

A. Just one. Republicans do things as a state delegation. Democrats split off into cross-state interest groups — Israel, Arabs, women, labor, teachers, etc. Democratic delegates were somewhat tougher to track down.

As a kid, I was taught to respect volunteers who work for causes they believe in. I still do, and they still do. Both parties.

Q. What about the state conven-

A. Actually, no one asked about them. Too bad. They are far more important than the nationals, because Supreme Court and education board candidates are nominated there.

Detroit TV almost totally ignored them in its brainless passion for murders, fires and canned medical features. The Free Press passed up the GOP's Saturday convention because it doesn't publish a main news section on Sunday. Democrats shut out both the News and Freep on Sunday because of the 14-month strike.

Q. Any differences between the two state conventions?

A. Yes, the rhetoric.

Republicans have picked up the South's line about parents overruling school officials. They see the parents as prime consumers of education. Their speeches are clones of the plaintiffs' briefs in the Tennessee, Alabama and Louisiana fundamentalist cases challenging the literature and science curricula of public schools. (The fundamentalists lost in court, but are the dominant voice in the Republican Democratic rhetoric was epitomized when the head of the Michigan Federation of Teachers nominated a university board candidate, saying she looked out for "students, faculty members and employees" — in other words, the unions.

Phil Power has been writing, and I concur, that the ultimate consumers of education are job-hunting graduates and the employers. I'll let the boss speak for himself on how he liked the state conventions.

Myself, I thought both parties missed the mark, wildly. Too bad we don't have another George Romney, who said government shouldn't be run by "company interests or union interests but for the public interest."

Tim Richard covered both national and both state conventions from gavel to gavel and reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

State education positions will make holders humble

ake it from me. I've been there. The best known cure for a political swelled head is to run for one of the education posts that are elected statewide every two years.

It makes no difference whether you're running for the University of Michigan Board of Regents, Michigan State University Board of Trustees, Wayne State University Board of Governors or a seat on the State Board of Education. The reaction always is the same: "You're who? You're running for what?

The system is bizarre. Nobody knows who you are or what office you're running for, let alone what your credentials might be or what your views on education might be.

With the Nov. 5 ballot crowded with sexier and, to be sure, more important races, media coverage of the educational races is meager. Radio and TV ignore the contests entirely. Excepting endorsements in the Detroit papers and the Booth Newspapers, editorial analysis is perfunctory.

This year, the only news coverage given the nomination of candidates for education posts concerned a quarrel at the Republican convention over whether a hitherto unknown lawyer with impeccable anti-abortion credentials should displace a distinguished woman from Grand Rapids who happens to be pro-choice. (He did. Please help me, somebody, by explaining what on earth one's views on abortion have to do with higher education policy.)

With the candidates and their views so little known, it's not surprising that few people bother to vote for educational posts. The usual falloff from the vote for governor to the vote for university boards is more than 20 percent.

This is too bad, because people on state education boards make a big difference. University boards deal with things like college tuition and whether a new football coach is more important than recruiting a new physics professor. The current State Board of Education is busy boosting charter schools and trying to bust the constitutional prohibition against public funds being spent on religious schools.

Over the years, I've tried to change things. I even wrote to my colleagues at the Michigan Press Association, suggesting that MPA sponsor a candidates night to make it convenient for reporters to listen to the candidates. "After much discussion," the turndown letter read, "the board determined that providing such a forum for statewide candidates would not serve the interest of all our members and is more properly the responsibility of the candidates and their parties."

So much for the news media.

Now comes the Livonia branch of the American Association of University Women trying to make things better. On Thursday, Sept. 26, in Livonia City Hall, the AAUW is holding a bipartisan, issues-based candidates forum. Beginning at 6 p.m., they will interview successively candidates for U-M, State Board of Education, MSU and Wayne State.

More important, they've arranged with Time-Warner Cable, the outfit that has the Livonia cable TV franchise, to videotape the entire program. These tapes will be made available, for free, to all multiple systems cable TV operators in Michigan after Oct. 1.

So if you want a unique opportunity to learn about the various candidates for state education offices, call your local cable system and ask them to get the tapes and show 'em. And while you're at it, call this newspaper and ask it to publicize the show with date, time and channel.

Then, if you're anything like me, you'll give a big cheer for Time-Warner, the Livonia AAUW, together with coordinators Yvonne Constas and Carol Dubuque, for their valuable public service. This program is something that should become a regular part of every election year.

In addition to being chairman of the company that owns this newspaper, Phil Power is also an elected regent of the University of Michigan. Time-Warner Cable in Livonia can be reached at (313) 422-2819. Ms. Constas can be reached at 🕝 (313) 261-7717 and Ms. Dubuque at (810) 477-0399.

Sewer workers unsung heroes

Earlier this month, America recognized her workers and honored them with a day off. And that's good. But there are workers out there who didn't receive much recognition and they certainly didn't get a day off. If they had, we'd all have noticed. Big time.

I saw these workers just this summer and believe you me, they deserve recognition and praise. And it wouldn't be out of line to offer them a great big "thank you" for the work they do. We all need these workers, whether we admit it in mixed company or not. The workers I'm talking about are the ones who operate our waste water treatment plant. That's right. Our waste water treatment plant.

Had it not been for my oldest son, Tony, I might never have gained the insight or appreciation or the respect for this group of workers I now have. (Frankly, I'd never given them much thought before.) Tony, turns out, needed to tour the waste water treatment plant in order to fulfill a requirement for one of his Boy Scout Merit Badges, the "soil and water conservation" badge. (I'm telling you, the Boy Scout program is wonderful, for the boys AND their families. We've all learned so much, and all of it valuable and applicable and inspiring!)

Anyway, this waste water treatment plant tour was something I'll never forget, nor should

Gang shares God's word with kids

First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth was looking for a way to keep kids in church. God's Gang puppeteers answered the call.

BY SALLY TATO

God's Gang puppeteers are getting in their annual dose of puppet aerobics this month.

To the beat and instruction of a puppet aerobic instructor, 13 kids from First Presbyterian Church, ·701 W. Church St., Plymouth, hold their hands above their heads and exercise their puppeteering skills to get them back in shape for this year's season which kicks off Oct. 25 with a Halloween show at the church. For ticket information, call (313) 453-6464.

"We have puppet aerobics to strengthen their arms," said God's Gang assistant director Lynne Porter of Northville. "You can't believe how hard it is to hold your hand up above your head for a long period of time,"

But the kids behind the scenes do. Matthew Dobos is proud that he can hold his hand up for 10 minutes and that's still 110 minutes less than the record holder.

A one-year veteran of God's Gang, Dobos didn't know if he'd enjoy becoming a puppeteer for the church's puppet ministry. But the 13-year-old Livonia resident hit it off with the hand-held puppets. His favorite is a boy puppet named P.K., short for Peter

"It's fun," Dobos said. "I like going to performances and I like doing this because it's something to do so I don't have to get started on homework right away."

Using hand-held puppets and rod them," Porter said.

suppets, similar to a "Sesame Street" puppet, the God's Gang puppeteers crouch behind a two-tier stage and spread religious messages to songs that parody popular tunes.

Instead of dancing to Michael Jackson's "Beat It," for example, the puppets rock to "Read It" - the Bible, that is. And instead of moving to the groove of Three Dog Night's lyric "Jeremiah was a bullfrog," the puppets lip sync "Jeremiah was a prophet."

Porter said puppeteering gives the kids an opportunity to use their talent, without showing their faces.

"These kids are wonderful and great, but they'd just as soon stay behind the curtain," she said of the group's fourth-through 12th-graders. "I think it's wonderful that these young kids are doing something like this.'

It also helps keep them in church. Six years ago, the church's Christian education director was looking for a way to keep the children involved. So the puppet ministry was created, Porter said.

Since then the group has developed its talent, performing 13 shows last year at local churches and senior citizen homes. They won a gold medal at a puppeteering competition in Battle Creek.

And they definitely had some help from the puppets. The puppets have personalities of their own, said Porter who makes the puppets using felt, velour, padding, and fake fur or yarn for hair.

Among the stage showstoppers are: Violet, a purple puppet; Mrs. San Martino, an older woman with frosted hair; Marguerite, a Mexican woman; and Wilbur, a bald-headed puppet with big ears and big green

Camp gives children sense of healing

Thirty-two children and a large group of Community Hospice Services' trained facilitators enjoyed sunshine, rustic surroundings, and most importantly the sense of healing at Camp Phoenix, a children's weekend bereavement camp held Aug. 23-

The weekend provided the children with the opportunity to identify, address, and begin to cope with some of the often complex and confusing feelings associated with death.

"Through group interaction, art and play activities, children learned how to give themselves permission to grieve and feel safe again - all while having fun," explained Yvonne Strand, CHS director of social services.

"The children were assigned to small, age-specific groups. Specially trained counselors presented information on how the healthy expression of feelings promotes healing. The ultimate goal of this type of learning process is to help the children develop life-long coping strategies for dealing with grief."

During the weekend, the children - who came from Western Wayne, Southern Oakland and Eastern Washtenaw counties -'took part in events such as professional ropes course and a family unit called "Smoklerville." The idea behind this 1800s family old west town setting is that children are broken up into groups (families) and told they have to survive in their wilderness situations for one year. When a member of the family breaks the rules, they are jailed. The thrust of the lock-up is that without participation from each member of the family, the team has difficulty functioning. By working together, the children learned that no matter what the role, each member is essential.

Pam Miller, whose children recently lost their grandmother to cancer, said that her 10-yearold and 6-year-old sons enjoyed this experience most of all.

"Overall, they learned that a family can consist of many people (relatives and non relatives) and that when we lose a member to death, the surviving members can join together in strength and offer each other support."

With a laugh, she added, They also liked being thrown in iail on occasion."

Besides Camp Phoenix, CHS offers bereavement programs for children throughout the year.

"Losing my father at a very young age taught me the importance of addressing the needs of grieving children," said CHS Executive Director Maureen Butrico.

"At CHS we continue to expand and enhance our children's programs. A variety of support groups and six-week recovery programs have been developed for children and parents alike.'

With offices in Westland and Plymouth, Community Hospice Services has been serving the needs of incurably ill and their families for more than 15 years. CHS offers services based on need, rather than ability to pay. To make a referral or for more information about hospice, call (313) 522-4244.

Stress can contribute to eating disorders

Every year, thousands of young teenage girls and women in the U.S. develop serious eating disorders, most related to our increasingly stressful and complicated society that seems to obsess about dieting and body image.

"We strive for 'perfection' in every aspect of our lives," said Dr. Frederic D. Frigoletto Jr., president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. "Unfortunately, these messages are helping to contribute to serious, and many times life-threatening, eating Anorexia is the most potentially deadly eating disorder. A person with anorexia is obsessed with the notion that she is fat when in fact she may be no more than skin and bone. What may have started out as a simple diet becomes a life-threatening condition. She refuses to eat, and if she does, she eats perhaps just an apple a day.

In addition to severe weight loss, other symptoms include amenorrhea (absence of menstrual periods), anemia, dehydration, hair loss, heart and liver problems, and osteoporosis.

Someone with anorexia has a high risk of death from starvation, suicide, electrolyte imbalance or organ failure.

Symptoms of anorexia may include a distorted body image, an intense fear of gaining weight, excessive weight loss, excessive body or facial hair and compulsive exercise.

Bulimia is more common than anorexia, although someone can fluctuate between the two disorders. Women who binge eat and ■ Symptoms of anorexia may include a distorted body image, an intense fear of gaining weight, excessive weight loss, excessive body or facial hair and compulsive exercise.

abuse diuretics or laxatives at least twice a week for three months have bulimia, Bulimics tend to binge on enormous quantities of food at one time and then force themselves to vomit to rid themselves of the food - and the guilt.

Some symptoms of bulimia to look for include a preoccupation with food, binge eating in secret, vomiting and extreme use of laxatives and diuretics after binges, menstrual irregularities and compulsive exercise.

Another eating disorder, pica, is the eating of non-food substances, such as clay or laundry starch. Pica is more often found among children and some mentally retarded individuals, but can affect some pregnant women as well. There is speculation that pica is caused by a nutritional deficiency that makes one crave and eat certain non-food items.

The exact causes of anorexia and bulimia are unknown. If you have an eating disorder, professional help is absolutely necessary. Talk to a doctor or mental health professional.

"The sooner you start treatment, the better your odds of overcoming your eating disorder," Frigoletto said.

I. It was an awe-inspiring experience! I'm serious. For Tony and me. And Joe, my 4 year old. (He too donned a hard hat and took the "sewer stroll" because of babysitting dilemmas.)

Now I have to say, the three of us felt a bit sheepish about having such an exclusive, professionally guided tour. I mean there were only the three of us. And the tour took an hour. But this didn't seem to annoy our guide. He seemed enthusiastic for the interested audience. I explained to him that in Tony's troop the merit badges are selected and worked on primarily by the individual boy. And that's why there wasn't a group of Scouts in this case, just one and the one's chauffeur and a curious, nose-holding tagger-

The facility is in Ypsilanti, a good half hour away, in Washtenaw County. This facility serves many of the communities in Wayne County, including my

This waste water treatment plant was spotless. It wasn't grubby or yucky or untidy. And having never before been in one, case. It did, I admit, smell. Some heard that a Scout was in the parts worse than others. But here's the thing. I saw the raw stuff coming in to the facility, and that was nasty - the incoming gook. It smelled nasty, it looked nasty, but it was kept tidy and organized. And then I saw the stuff coming out of the plant, which gets pumped into the Rouge River, and that was crystal clear. Even though during the hour tour I saw the route the stuff made within the facility and the work that was done along the way, I was astounded by the crystal clearness of the outcome.

The workers we encountered on the tour were very friendly and welcomed the three of us with enthusiasm. And they all had enthusiasm for their jobs. One woman who worked, if you will, in the bowels of the operation, said to Tony, "I'm very proud of my job. And I'm proud of how well I do it." That spoke volumes to my sons. And me. Especially given the job she was so proud of. You could just see the pride in the way she held her head, the way she swept her hand through the air.

And one employee, who wasn't I figured that wouldn't been the on the tour route, somehow station and introduced himself. He, too, had long ago been a Scout, and had attained Eagle Scout status. His Eagle Scout project he told us was a soil conservation project, an extensive and impressive one. And he was proud of that and proud of his chosen career.

None of the workers apologized. None diminished themselves, even given the surroundings. They felt, as we all would if we could see this amazing process, that working at a the waste water treatment plant was one of the most important and rewarding jobs one could have. They knew that without their expertise and that facility, we would all be in deep, deep ... trouble.

I love finding these unsung heroes. The woman I found area and emerged from his work working in the laundromat last week, the people who help baby Steven, the bagger at that Canadian grocery store, and the many others, all proud of what they do, assured that what they are doing is making things better for others. And that without them, the rest of us would be in over our heads.

I think I'll send them a copy of this column and write across the top of it, "From all of us who need you (and that would be ALL of us), Thank You! Keep up the good work. My family and I think of you often!"

NEWBURG NIGHT OUT

Newburg Night Out, Newburg. United Methodist Church's Thursday evenings of education, fellowship, drama and music for all ages, begins Thursday, Sept. 19, and continues until Nov. 14. (There is no class on Oct. 31). Dinner is served between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. at a cost of $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children aged 10 and younger. Reservations are not necessary. There are a host of classes. Educational opportunities include "Noah's Ark," (6:30-8 p,m.) an evening of Bible stories, activities, crafts and films for preschoolers through second graders; "Love is a Decision" (6:30-8 p.m.) uses the video presentations of Gary Smalley and discussions to discover the keys that unlock the secrets to healthy relationships; "Write Your Life Story" (6:30-8) p.m.) teaches students how to effectively jot down life memories; "When Bad Things Happen to Good People" (6:30-8:30 p.m.) explores the good of the same name by Rabbi Kushner; "Disciple Bible Study (Disciple 1)" (6:30-9 p.m.) is a 34-week course in which members read 80 percent of the Bible and have the opportunity to create a small faith community in which to explore God's word and how it intersects their lives; "Man of Faith" (6:30-8 p.m.) is Newburg's Promise Keepers group; and a "Quilting" (6:30-8 p.m.) class. Musical opportunities include three choirs - the "Cherub Choir" (6-6:45 p.m.), the "Children's Choir" (6:45-7:30 p.m.), and "Youth Choir" (7:30-8:45 p.m.). Drama classes are also offered for youths in grades

7-12 (6:30-7:30 p.m.) and children ingrades 3-6. (7:30-8 p.m.) The church is located at 36500 Ann Arbor Trail in Livonia. For more information, call (313) 422-0149.

BLOOD DRIVE

The Red Cross will be operating a blood drive at St. Edith's parish, 15089 Newburgh Road, Livonia, from 2-8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20, in the church hall. For more information, call (313) 464-1222

CARMAN IN CONCERT

Christian artist Carman and special guest Gary Oliver will perform at The Palace of Auburn Hills at 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20. Tickets are $4 and available at all Ticketmaster outlets. Dubbed the "R.I.O.T. (Righteous Invasion of Truth) Tour," the show features state-of-the-art staging, lighting, sound and video. The modular stage has multiple levels, the tallest one reaching seven feet high allowing for dressing rooms and walkways underneath the stage for Carman's six dancers to make numerous costume changes. A four-camera live show will interact with video playback throughout the show and be projected onto 13x17 foot screens mounted above the stage. For more information about the show, call (810) 377-0100 or (810) 645-6666.

SPACHETTI DINNER

St. John the Baptist Roman Catholic Church is having a benefit all-you-can-eat spaghetti dinner from 4-7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21. Advance tickets are $5 or $5.50 at the door. The cost is $2.50 for children aged 5-13, and free for those younger than 5. Dinner will include salad, bread, dessert and beverage. The church is located at 26123 McDonald, Dearborn Heights. ### Study drives road repair

Engineer rates county roads

ow would you rate the roads? Many people have their own answer to that question, but one man has all the answers -Wayne County road engineer Ali

El-Haji who rates all the county roads. During a two-month span each fall he drives all 733 miles of primary county roads. "Traffic is like circulation of blood throughout the body — a continuous procedure — and so is the repair," El-Haji said.

"That's why rating is very important here it puts the best candidate up for repair," he said. And with one person doing it, it can be approached fairly, according to El-Hajj. He uses the same approach for each road, driving 20.25 miles per hour and stopping and putting flashers on, to make his rating. "I drive slow so I can read the road better — sense the pavement better," he said.

His rating is divided into two parts. One is the field survey, in which he goes out and drives the roads, filling out a rating sheet for each segment of road. Then he goes back to the office and enters what he collected into the computer.

From this information, a map and a primary road inventory book are produced and used to determine road work priorities. A five-year list is compiled and is updated every year in the fall so the information can be studied during the

All 733 miles of county roads are divided into segments. He rates all that pavement one segment at a time. Segments can be as short as a 10th of a mile or a long as a mile. Segments are defined by variations in the road, such as width changes, ditches or no ditches, curbs or no curbs, type of pavement and condition rating, making about 2,500 segments.

After looking at and driving all those roads, he knows their idiosyncrasies:

Road Report: Road Engineer Ali El-Hajj compiles data on county road conditions.

Roads seem different with variations in the weather — moisture and temperature are factors. Moisture on the roads makes the cracks show more. When it's freezing, cracks and joints show more and the road becomes rougher as moisture tends to freeze in the cracks.

A sunny day makes the road seem different. than it does on a dull day. If driving against the sun, cracks tend to show better; if the sun is at the back, cracks don't show as much, El-Haji said. Roads are rated on a scale of 1 to 5.5 - 11.5 is very good, 2-2.5 is good, 3-3.5 is fair, 4-4.5 said. is poor, 5-5.5 is very poor.

Some of the conditions for rating the road are surface, drainage, hazards and characteristics which include need for improvements and need to widen or patch.

Condition and roughness are also rated ranging from no roughness, to smooth, to light roughness, to moderate roughness to very rough.

You can look at a surface and say it looks good, but drive it and it is very rough, he said. El-Hajj, a native of Lebanon, came to the United States in 1980 to study at Lawrence Technical College (now university). He earned his bachelor's degree there and a master's degree at Wayne State University.

He said he hears complaints about road conditions all the time, but personally feels the county road program is better than it was when he started eight years ago — work is more fairly scheduled and planned.

Traffic is the primary cause of road deterioration, El-Haji said, but the numbers show the roads aren't all bad. In 1987, there were 125 miles of very poor roads, and in 1996, 30 miles of very poor roads, he said. In 1987, 80-85 miles of excellent roads, and in 1996, 210-215 miles of excellent roads, he said.

In 1987, 17 percent of the roads were rated very poor, and 12.5 percent were rated very good. In 1996, 4.3 percent are rated very poor and 30 percent are rated very good.

Asphalt can be expected to last 15-20 years with crack sealing and patching, while concrete could last 30 years, depending on traffic, El-Haji said. Heavy traffic shortens the lifespan greatly, he said. Michigan is also an industrial state, with heavy traffic and heavy weight traffic, he

His explanation for many people's perceptions that most of the roads are bad in Michigan? People with bad roads are more conscious of it. he said.

"If they drive on good roads, they take it for granted," he said.

He also says the public is deceived by the idea that other states have much better roads. When traveling, people mostly use the freeways. They don't go to the regular roads, they don't see the degree of deterioration.

Because they live here they see good and bad roads, he said.

If it's a Wayne County road, call the Central Maintenance Yard at (313) 955-9920, which is a 24-hour hot line and a crew will respond within 24-36 hours.

Wayne County is responsible for most major mile roads, and maintains state roads such as the freeways, Telegraph and Ford roads.

Crews are out every day working on patching potholes on county roads, and also respond to any reports of hazardous road conditions, according to John Roach, public information manager for the county's roads department.

About 5,000 road complaints came in last year, ranging from complaints about potholes, muddy roads or dusty roads, to requests for signals, Roach said.

Moore wins bronze

Westland's Brandon Moore, a 6-foot-5 inch blackbelt student at Kicks in Wayne, captured a bronze medal Sept. 14 in the International Friendship Junior Tae Kwon Do tournament in Hanoi, Vietnam.

Moore was one of six participants from the U.S. to compete in the tournament. His coach, Master Ron Rose, owner of Kicks, acted as an international referee.

Moore, a 1996 Wayne Memorial High School product (1996) who graduated with honors (3.75 grade-point average), got started in Tae Kwon Do only three years ago under the tutelage of

He was inspired by watching Bruce Lee movies and the Ninja Turtles.

"Once I got involved, I started really enjoying the competition aspect," said Moore, who hopes to compete for the U.S. Olympic squad in 2000. "I've competed in tournaments throughout the state and U.S., but this was the first time I left the country to compete."

Moore currently is attending Wayne State University and is a pre-med student.

"It's a lot of dedication and commitment to each thing you do," Moore said. "When I train for a competition, I train six hours a day, seven days a well. I'm never alone training. Kicks is like a second family to me. All the team members train with you even if you're not training in a tournament. This is something I love to do and plan on doing all my life."

He has captured three titles since 1995, including the state Tae Kwon Do, 1994 and 1996, and the 1995 Michigan Sparring Tournament.

Rocks solid vs. Churchill, 3-1

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem's Rocks blasted away Monday night, turning Livonia Churchill's soccer field into a quarry with a 3-1 victory in a Western Lakes boys crossover match.

The defending state Class A champions, now under the guidance of first-year coach Ed McCarthy, improved to 4-1-1 overall.

Churchill, which couldn't dig itself out of a 3-0 second-half hole, dropped its second straight game to fall to 4-2 overall.

The Konley brothers, Brett and Ryan, were dynamite for the Rocks along with Andy Power.

Brett, a junior, fed the senior Ryan for the game's first goal with 17:10 left in the opening half. Power. then hustled the ball away from Churchill goalkeeper Mike Skolnik, resulting in a penalty kick for Brett, who drilled a shot with 1:51 left in the half to make it 2-0 for the Rocks.

Power then scored on a header in the second half off a cross from Timmy Makins to give Salem 3-0 advantage early in the second half.

Churchill's Corey Berzac broke the shutout bid with 24:24 remaining on an assist from Mark Sicilia. The Chargers then applied heavy pressure over the final 15 minutes, but it was not enough to move the Rocks.

"We really showed up to play tonight," McCarthy said. "I thought Nick Szczechowski (sophomore defender) played terrific in the back and both Konleys played well.

"We've got six or seven players with terrific shots. That's our strong suit and a blessing to have. I just hope it stays strong when we need it in the later games.'

Churchill coach Chad Campau went into the game somewhat handicapped after two starters. Rob Bartoletti, who scored the lone goal in Saturday's 5-1 non-league loss to Troy, and Matt Buzewski, were each red-carded (ejected), automatically given one game suspensions for the next game. (Mike Healey led Troy, 6-1, with two goals and one assist).

Another player, Jeff Garcia, was also out (illness).

"I thought we played well since we didn't have a lot of subs," Campau said. "We did a nice job but it was not enough.

"Salem is obviously one of the better teams in the conference, but we hope to get another crack at them down the road."

The Chargers showed signs of being a league contender during the latter stages of the game. 7

"Once we moved David George (a junior) up into the midfield it helped us offensively," Campau said. "He always plays tough. "At times, when we put the ball on the field and were able to see the field, we made some good runs, especially at the end. If one or two of those had bounced our way, it could have been a close ballgame."

when a header from Berzac dangled on the line, only to be cleared just in time by Salem junior defender Rob Zdrodowski.

"Churchill is a great squad and they didn't give up," McCarthy said. "They really peppered us the last 10 minutes of the game. It hurt when we lost Nick (Szczechowski) 10 minutes because of a yellow card.

"We were well tested in the back. They (Churchill) made three or four good rushes and you're susceptible to a quick counter-attack when you're doing a lot of shooting at the other end. It's one of the things we want to address.

The Chargers, however, felt the constant pressure throughout the game on the defensive end.

"It's tough when you have guys shooting left-footed and right-footed and rocketing the ball from 30 yards out," Campau said. "But I thought our goalie (Skolnik) played well. He made a lot of tough saves."

Chargers display winning attitude

BY NEAL ZIPSER

In four years as coach of the Livonia Churchill girls basketball team, Dave Balog has learned all too well what it's like to lose.

The same can't be said for Marshall Henry, now in his 14th season at the helm for the Garden City squad.

But in a reversal of roles, Balog is experiencing what it's like to be on the winning side, as the Chargers improved to 3-4 Tuesday with a 51-42 victory over the visiting Cougars.

It was Churchill's second straight win _ something that hasn't happened since Balog's rookie season. On Thursday, the Chargers have a chance to win its third straight and go to 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association when they play Farmington.

"I've won three straight before but it wasn't when I was coaching here," said Balog, whose team finished 1-20 last season. "There have been some lean times here but this is a good group of kids here. We have enough depth this season to play with anyone except the big guns."

On the other side of the court, Garden City fell to 1-4. At this time last season the Cougars were 5-0. The problem for Garden City was turnovers, as the Cougars made 37 miscues, most of them as a result of the Churchill press.

The Cougars played without their top player, senior center Jenni Talbot, who was sick. Back-up point guard Kelly Stone (broken finger GIRLS HOOPS also missed the game, and Andrea Williams saw limited action with an injured knee. "We have four starters on the team without experience and even started a sophomore (Sarah Talbot)," Henry said. "The inexperience factor really hurts us both offensively and defensively. We had way too many unforced turnovers. The press bothered us more than I thought it would."

The Cougars had their chances despite trailing the entire game. Churchill led by as many as eight in the first quarter and had its largest first-half lead at 19-10 midway through the second quarter.

Garden City scored the last five points of the first half, with the final three coming on a trey by Mary

The Chargers could have been ahead by more than the 19-15 advantage they enjoyed, but converted only five-of-14 free throw attempts. "You could say there were a few words about free throws at halftime," Balog said. The second half was a different

No. 1 Shamrocks escape Pioneer

After losing to Redford Catholic Central 35-6 in the second week of the 1995 football season, Ann Arbor Pioneer coach Tony Annese said it was obvious his players had to work harder in the off season.

They must have listened. Pioneer gave CC all it could handle Saturday night before the defending Class AA champion Shamrocks scored a late touchdown to win the non-league game 19-13 at Livonia Clarenceville.

The outcome left Pioneer, a 27-6 loser to East Lansing in the season opener, winless in two games. CC, a 24-6 winner in the first week over Detroit Pershing, is 2-0.

The Shamrocks broke a 13-13 tie with a 71-yard, 13-play drive that: was capped by Chris Dueweke's 1-

Pioneer, trying to rally, crossed midfield but turned the ball over on downs near the Shamrock 40.

Gino DiGiandomenico sacked quarterback Christian Chapman on third-and-10. On fourth down, Chapman was tackled after gaining 2 yards, giving CC its final possession to run out the clock.

Pioneer outgained CC 202-184 in total yards. The Pioneers had 168 yards rushing, with Chapman and running back Tom Weinmann

Big weekend

Wayne-Monroe game; Moshimer's 200th?

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

As legendary showman Ed Sullivan used to say, "We have a really big shew for you tonight."

As it relates to grid picks, that means there are some really big games on the schedule in Week 3 of the prep football season.

Two games will match undefeated teams against each other. Monroe visits Wayne in a key Mega Conference-Red Division game Friday, and Detroit Catholic Central is at Warren DeLaSalle for the Catholic League Central Division opener Saturday night.

In the Western Lakes Activities Association, defending champ Farmington Harrison and Walled Lake Western get the Western Division race, expected to close and maybe the most competitive ever, started Saturday.

Observerland has two other unbeaten teams: Westland John Glenn and Plymouth Salem. The latter hopes to give coach Tom Moshimer his 200th career victory Saturday at North Farming-

As for the fall campaign between incumbent Brad Emons and challenger Dan O'Meara: The vote count stands as such: Enons 27-5, O'Meara 26-6.

It was a draw last week as both sports editors were 13-2. Emons was correct picking Carlson over Redford Thurston, O'Meara taking Mount Clemens over Bishop Borgess. Both missed on Plymouth Canton's victory over Walled Lake Cen-

Garden City at Dearborn, 4 p.m.: Uh, oh, don't look now, but Dearborn has another shutout string going. The Pioneers (2-0) didn't allow a point in their outscored two opponents 83-0 this year. The latest win was a 39-0 rout of Taylor Kennedy. The host Cougars (0-2) are coming off a 26-13 loss to Southgate. PICK: The first win will have to wait for Garden City.

Monroe at Wayne, 7 p.m.: Monroe (2-0) looks like the real deal after pummeling Mega-Red favorite Dearborn Fordson, 32-12. But how will the Trojans respond to back-to-back challenges and playing another contender. Wayne (2-0) hopes to catch Monroe flat after its big win. Meanwhile, the Zebras look good themselves following a 28-12 win over Lincoln Park. PICK: Emons says the Zebras roll on; It's a temporary setback for Wayne, says O'Meara.

Redford Union at Kennedy: The Panthers (0-2) are looking for their first victory, and they could get it this week. One of their three wins last year was a 20-13 decision over Taylor Kennedy (1-1). The Eagles, who were winless a year ago, atoned for a 35-6 loss to Taylor Center by beating their rivals in the opener, 6-0. Kennedy endured a 39-0 shellacking by Dearborn last week, and RU was beaten 32-0 by Dearborn Edsel Ford. PICK: A flip of the coin; it's RU by Franklin at Churchill: The Patriots (1) 1) can lock up the Livonia city championship in just two weeks. They rebounded from their loss to No. 1 Sterling Heights Stevenson with a convincing. 29.7 win over Livonia Stevenson, Wins this week and next could be a big boost going into consecutive games against Canton, Western and Harrison, The Chargers (0-2) are coming off a 21-0 loss to Farmington in which they had six turnovers. PICK: Is there a trophy for Ecanklin?

Stevenson at John Glenn: This has been a close, hard-fought game the last: two years. The Spartans (1-1) have wonboth times, 13-10 in 1994 and 14-7. and gone on to represent the Lakes Division in the WLAA championship game. The state-ranked Rockets (2-0) hope to change that. They passed a big test last week by beating Walled Lake Western. PICK: A victory gives Glenn a clear shot at the Lakes title.

Northville at Canton: This much we anybody thought. The Chiefs (1-1) played a close game with unbeaten

Monroe and beat favored Walled Lake Central 27-20 Friday. The Mustangs (O-2) were smothered by South Lyon in the opener 48-0 and were in the game until the end against Plymouth Salem, losing 17-14 on a late field goal: PICK: Canton puts a deuce in the win column. Farmington at W.L. Central: Both teams are 1-1, but the Falcons have momentum after a win while the Vikings are coming off the loss to Canton. Farmington will try to get tailback Jon Zomphier, who had a Jake Siskosky like 133 yards on 32 carries in a 21-0 win over Churchill, outside for long gainers. The Falcons face a big challenge against a Central line that features 6-4, 300pound Josh Heitsch and 6-6, 290 Dave Cardinal at the tackles. PICK: It's a reversal of fortune as the Vikings win

> SATURDAY GAMES (all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Salem at N. Farmington: The undefeated Rocks (2-0) are the surprise: team in Observerland with wins over Belleville and Northville. The Rocks hopes their success extends beyond teams with ville in their names. Brian James' field goal with :06 left enabled Salem to beat Northville, 17-14. The Raiders (0-2) are reeling after one-sides losses to Hartland and Harrison, and they need a victory to right the ship. PICK: Moshimer reaches a milestone with a Salem.win

W.L. Western at Harrison: The Hawks (2-0) have won the Western Division title 13 times and all but once. That was in 1992 when the Warriors took their only victory over Harrison, won the Western Lakes championship and were runners-up in Class A. It's a tough row to hoe as Western (1-1) tries to rebound from its loss to Glenn. Harrison has: outscored its opponents 79.6 and hasn't been tested in easy wins over Oxford and North Farmington (37-0). PICK: The Hawks are tough to beat anywhere but especially at home.

Clarenceville at Cranbrook: The host Cranes are 2-0, the visiting Trojans 0-2. But are the records here deceiving? Cranbrook beat winless Hamtramck last ek. 14-7, and routed Lutheran Northwest. The Cranes had only one win last year and have a new coach in Gary Gerson. Clarenceville has been in both games, losing 21-19 to Grosse Pointe Liggett and 14-0 to Macomb Lutheran North. PICK: The Cranes have reason to whoop and holler.

Hamtramck at Luth. Westland: The host Warriors (1-1) looked like possible Metro Conierence contenders when they stomped Liggett 32-12 last week. Halfback Albert Cook and quarterback Luke Horton are a pretty good offensive combination. The Cosmos (0-2) have slipped a notch this year, losing to Cranbrook and River Rouge (42-0). PICK: Go ahead, plan the victory celebration, War-

St. Agatha at Cardinal Mooney: One team goes home a first-time winner as both enter the game 0-2. The Aggies lost to Pickford of the Upper Peninsula, 26-7; the Cardinals have lost to Morrice and Royal Oak Shrine, 19-0. Mooney, of the Catholic D-Section, beat C-Section St. Agatha twice last year, 14-0 in the regular season and 27-21 in the league playoffs. PICK: Who has more rank, a saint or a cardinal? In this case, it's Mooney.

Crestwood at Thurston: O'Meara fell off the Thurston bandwagon (actually, he went flying) when one of its wheels hit a big rock Friday. The obstacle was a Gibraltar Carlson team that beat the Eagles, 34-7. Thurston (1-1) tries to get back on track against a good Crestwood ballclub. The Chargers have the same record, but their 29-8 loss to Allén Park is understandable. PICK: Crestwood leaves Thurston thirsting for another Redford CC at DeLaSalle, 7:30: The Shamrocks (2-0) escaped with a 19-13 win over Ann Arbor as the Pioneers refused to roll over as they did last year. It looks as if CC will have its hands full again versus the Pilots (2-0). DeLaSalle edged Riverview 28-27 in the opener and beat Holt, the school CC defeated in the AA championship last November, 12-6. PICK: It's a hard-earned road win for the Shamrocks.

Bishop Borgess vs. Inkster, 7:30 at Garden City Jr. High: It's another toss-up game for the Class C Spartans (1-1). who drilled Ecorse in the opener, then fost 28-0 to Mount Clemens. Borgess faces another Class B opponent in the Vikings (0-2), who have lost to Detroit Southwestern (20-0) and Detroit Benedictine (26-0). PICK: Borgess makes a comeback this week.

Turnovers hurt Churchill in bid vs. Farmington

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

Farmington High is known as a running football team, but it was the forward pass that got the Falcons started Saturday.

Junior Dave Viane's 44yard touchdown reception in the first quarter put Farmington on the path to a 21-0 victory over visiting Livonia Churchill.

"That was critical," Falcons coach Lauri Niskanen said. "When you run, people are going to gang up on you, and you have to be able to throw the ball."

Farmington's first scoring drive followed the first of six Churchill turnovers.

The first six plays were runs; then junior quarterback Joel Lewis looked right and threw left to a wide-open Viane, who ran away from the defenders before they could Junior Jon Zomphier scored on a 3-yard run in the second quarter, and Lewis had a 1-yard sneak for a third-quarter score. Aram Sahiner kicked three extra points.

"With this young group of kids, it's better to build confidence by winning," Niskanen said. "Like I say, as long as they put time on the board and keep score, winning is important."

The Falcons are 1-1 and have won three of their last four, dating back to last season. The Chargers are 0-2 this year and have lost their last 21 games.

"Injuries have required our kids to play a lot of two positions," Churchill coach Steve Naumcheff said. "The next tier came to play today. I respect them very much for the battle they're waging to get this turned around."

Farmington turned just one Churchill turnover into points, but the loss of possession kept the Chargers from establishing their offense.

"Turnovers certainly were a factor, but they had to convert them, too; it's a two-way street." Naumcheff said. "But it changed the field position. every time; it tilted the field."

Field position was a factor in the second half. Churchill, after a clipping penalty on the kickoff, had to start at its 6yard line and later the 13.

Farmington fumbled (one of four turnovers) at the Churchill 5 early in the third quarter but, after a short punt by the Chargers, came back with a 42-yard scoring drive. Zomphier got most of the yards, and Lewis made it 20-0.

In the tradition of Farmington tailbacks, Zomphier carried the ball 32 times for 133

Lewis was 3-of-8 passing for 60 yards. The Falcons had a 221-166 edge in total yards. Senior quarterback Nate Jerome was Churchill's leading rusher (14-for-99) but was only 5-of-19 passing for 24.

"Jon is going to be a nice back for us," Niskanen said. "It's a matter of getting acclimated to our style of football. We're going to run him. He has to work on blocking and faking, so when we run bootlegs people have to be tackling him.

Steve knew that when he scored only four points in Junior Varsity Basketball during his own high school days, that he had a better chance writing about sports than playing them. about covering community sports, he told us, "The people we deal with, from the coaches to the student-athletes, they truly appreciate the coverage—we cover a good group of schools from the smallest to the largest."

Brad began reading the major league box scores when he was still in grade school, wrote in high school and earned a degree in journalism from Franklin College in Indiana. He's been writing for your hometown newspapers since he graduated in 1977.

How does our coverage stack up? Brad says that unlike the metropolitan newspapers, "We cover a variety of prep sports and do it in-depth—both boys and girls. We're able to hit more than the highlights. We get to know nearly every high school coach and athletic director by their first names."

Spartans rule city meet again

Stevenson kept up its domi- Enrenfeld (Stevenson), 20:00. nance in the Livonia Public Schools cross country meet Saturday at Cass Benton Park.

The Spartan boys, sweeping the first three places, won for the 10th consecutive year with 21 points. Franklin was second with 42 and Churchill was third with Rob Block ran a strong race in capturing individual boys honors. The Stevenson junior set a school record on the Cass Benton course with a time of 16 minutes, 52 seconds.

Junior Mike Felczak was second in 17:41, while senior Scott Kwiatkowski was third in 17:55.

Meanwhile, Stevenson's girls won for the seventh straight year with 20 points, followed by Churchill, 46, and Franklin, 76.

Churchill sophomore Ashley Fillion, though, won individual honors with a clocking of 19:14. It was the third meet in a row the first-year Charger harrier has crossed the line in first.

Fillion also captured the Schoolcraft Invitational and Farmington City Meet.

Stevenson took the next five places led by junior Kelly McNeilance (19:57), junior Kelly Travis (20:04), freshman Andra Parker (20:45), sophomore Kim McNeilance (20:48) and junior Delia Dumitrescu (21:31).

"Kelly McNeilance and Andrea Parker had great races," said Stevenson girls coach Paul Holmberg, whose team should be among the favorites this year in Class A. "Our depth should pay off this year.

"If one or two kids have bad races, someone else will be there to step up. We had a couple of sick today and the others took up the slack.'

Churchill also received eight points apiece from Andrea Galindo, Sheehan and Stacey Supanich (11 rebounds).

with nine points. Herron chipped in with eight points, and junior Shannon Faber played her best game of the year with five points, six steals and eight rebounds.

Neither team shot well as the Cougars made only 14-of-51 shots (27 percent) and Churchill hit only 16-of-62 shots (26 percent).

- "I tell the kids that if they have an open shot than they. have the green light," Balog said. "For too many years here we were tentative. Now the kids are willing to shoot and I'll let them. And they won't get discouraged Bako paced the Cougar attack if they don't make their shots."

Lady Crusaders pound foes

BY C.J. RISAK

There are two ways to look at Madonna University's current surge in volleyball:

Geez, I wish they could save his stuff for the end of the sea-

That's the pessimistic point of iew; the team's peaking too early. The optimist, on the other and, is saying, "This is only the eginning.'

If the optimist is right, then he rest of the NAIA should watch out. Because these Lady Crusaders are awfully good right

They showed it Tuesday when hey overpowered Hillsdale in traight sets, 15-8, 15-7, 15-8, at

And they showed it last weeknd, when they made their trip o Melbourne, Fla., for the Converse Classic, hosted by Florida Institute of Technology, a successful one by sweeping through the tournament with fourstraight match victories.

The streak has improved Madonna's record to 13-2.

And coach Jerry Abraham is pleased with the Crusaders' play, which he termed "excellent. Just outstanding.

"(In Florida) we hit the ball well, we passed the ball well -everything was on setting-wise. They just put it all together.

"When we pass well, our offense plays well."

Three Crusaders -- seniors Kelly McCausland (from Redford Union), Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) and Meg Paris -were named to the all-tournament team, with McCausland earning most valuable player accolades.

"I was extremely impressed with our four seniors (McCausland, Martin, Paris and Heather Steinhelper), who played well all weekend. In the championship game, they played in front of a packed house and they rose to the occasion."

Saturday's championship match was against the host team, Florida Tech. The first three sets were somewhat close, with Madonna winning the first two, 15-9, 15-9. Tech won the third game, 15-11, but the Crusaders bounced back to win the fourth with ease, 15-5.

The three all-tournament players were the standouts for Madonna. McCausland pounded Tech with 18 kills; she also collected five digs and three block

Martin had 11 kills, one solo block and seven block assists, and Paris finished with five kills. 39 assists-to-kills and 10 digs.

Abraham also applauded the play of Steinhelper (20 digs, four block assists) and outside hitter Karin Sisung (six kills, 20 digs).

"We got some great hitting, and not just from our middle hitters," he said. "Sisung had a dynamite tournament on the outside."

Before knocking out Tech, which slipped to 8-2 with the loss, Madonna ripped West Georgia College 15-0, 15-7, 15-2 Saturday, with Martin getting 16 kills and six blocks, McCausland adding seven kills and eight digs, and Paris dishing out 27 assists.

On Friday, Madonna whipped South Carolina-Aiken 15-9, 15-3, 15-3 (McCausland 12 kills, eight digs and six blocks; Martin nine blocks; Paris 27 assists and six blocks; and Sisung six kills and 15 digs) and Lenoir-Rhyne College (N.C.) 15-5, 14-16, 15-7, 15-11 (McCausland 16 kills, seven blocks, six digs; Martin 10 kills, 14 blocks; Paris 46 assists, eight digs, five blocks; Sisung nine kills, 17 digs, four blocks).

Against Hillsdale Tuesday, the play was much the same -- all Madonna. McCausland led the Crusaders with 11 kills; she also had six digs and four blocks. Martin added eight kills and three blocks, Paris had 29 assists and 10 digs, Sisung contributed six kills and nine digs, and Steinhelper finished with five kills and eight digs.

So what does it signify? Is this a team that's peaking too early, or is just hitting its stride?

Abraham's answer: "At this point in the season I am very pleased with where we are.

"I expect nothing but improvement the rest of the way."

SC loses league opener

It was an inauspicious start for Schoolcraft College's women's volleyball team.

Coach Tom Teeters believes this could be one of his best teams. But on Tuesday, in their Eastern Conference opener at Mott CC, the Lady Ocelots weren't quite good enough, losing to Mott in straight sets,15-12, 16-14, 15-8.

There were some highlights for SC. Michelle MacRae had eightkills and Yvette Sixbey (from Garden City) had six. Amber Wells (Plymouth Canton) collected 13 assists-to-kills, and Jamie Clark (Livonia Churchill) had eight assists.

The loss left the Ocelots at 0-1 in the conference, 5-2 overall. Last Saturday at the Muskegon CC Invitational, SC compiled a 5-1 match record, reaching the tournament final before losing to Henry Ford CC.

SC beat Lake County (III.), Kalamazoo Valley CC, Elgin CC, Morton (Ill.) CC and Vincennes (Ind.) CC to make it to the finals, where Henry Ford topped the Ocelots, 15-12, 15-10.

SC is now 5-2 overall.

COLLEGE SOCCER ROUNDUP

Schoolcraft rebounds nicely from slow start

confronting Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team was misplaced, apparently.

After a surprisingly winless start through its first four matches, the Ocelots seemed to be facing a rare situation: a season without any post-season.

That isn't the case any more, not after a five-day stretch in which SC blasted three opponents by a combined score of 16-

The streak improved the Ocelots' record to 3-3-2 overall, 2-1 in the NJCAA's Region 12. With the revised post-season format that includes a Region 12 playoff tournament featuring the top two NJCAA teams in Michigan and the top two in Ohio, SC is almost assured of a berth.

And the Ocelots will host the regional playoff, Oct. 26-27.

"Yes, we do have a league race," admitted SC coach Van Dimitriou. "Lakeland beat us 4-3, but it wasn't because they outplayed us. Our kids didn't know how to relax and enjoy the game.

"They hadn't yet won a game. Against Lakeland, they had the opportunity to put it away but didn't. The kids didn't know how to play as a unit."

That isn't the situation any longer. On Monday in a nonregion match against Michigan Christian College, SC got two goals from Vokopola Igli in rolling to a 5-0 triumph at SC.

The Ocelots built a 3-0 lead by halftime, with two goals coming from Igli (one assist from Livonia Stevenson grad Mike Mini-Any concern over the season York) and another from Bill Krips (from Pete Lechowicz).

Minicilli and York got secondhalf goals. Ryan Scheid started and played the first half in goal; Travis Miller (from Redford Catholic Central) played the sec-

On Saturday against regional foe Cuyahoga, the Ocelots dominated from start to finish in posting a 6-1 triumph at SC.

Garrett Maki was a one-man show in the victory, pouring in three goals for the second-consecutive game. Maki and Brian Luck netted first-half goals, with Mike Dean assisting on both. Maki scored twice early in the second half to push SC's lead to 4-0, the second on a penalty kick after being dragged down in the Krips (from York) and Kevin Fritz (on Dean's third assist) drove the Ocelot lead to 6-0 before Cuyahoga scored with 10 minutes left.

Scheid started and again played the first half in goal. Miller relieved to start the second; Joe McCarty finished, going the final 15 minutes.

"I wasn't disappointed (losing to Lakeland)," Dimitriou said. "I don't like losing, but this was a very good team we were playing.

"We're very young (11 freshmen start). We went to St. Clair after Lakeland, and they were the same type of team, but you could see we were progressing."

SC tied St. Clair 2-2, then last Wednesday beat first-year team Kellogg 5-0.

"Against Kellogg, the kids put cilli, the second from David it together and have kept putting it together," Dimitriou said. "The way we're playing right now, we'd love to play (Lakeland) again. I have no doubt by the end of the season, we'll be on top."

Things certainly are looking

•MADONNA 13, ST. MARY'S 0: Madonna University coach Pete Alexander will swear that such a score was not his intent.

But when your team scores four goals in the match's first 10 minutes, what can you do? Tell your players to shoot wide, or not to shoot at all?

Alexander said he did just about everything else. That may be evident in the scoring for Monday's match against a first-year program, held at Livonia

Ten players scored in the game for Madonna, three of them getting two goals apiece: Shamus Rustin, Brock Becker and Christian Emert, Jason Stempien added a goal and three Other goal-scorers for the Fighting Crusaders were Scott Emert, John Hazinski (Redford Thurston), Mark Zathey (Livonia Churchill), Cam Grahl and Kent Geistler. One of the goals was put in by a St. Mary's defender.

Mike Schroeder and Dave Hart split time in goal for Madonna, but their opponents managed just one shot on Last Saturday, Madonna took on another building program - Saginaw Valley State. The Crusaders won, 4-0. thanks to Christian Emert's three goals. Andy Makins (Plymouth Salem) got the fourth.

The two wins lifted Madenna's record

I thought my Dad had been collecting U.S. Savings Bonds. Then I realized that he wasn't just "collecting" but "saving" to help insure our future. Savings Bonds are backed by the full faith and

A new video designed to aid physicians in explaining multiple sclerosis is available through the Multiple Sclerosis Association. The 8-minute video, called "MS Challengers" was created to offer physicians a new tool in explaining MS and how patients cope with its often crippling effects. It focuses on both the medical and personal side of multiple sclerosis.

"Every aspect of the video is based on real-life experiences," said MSAA President John G. Hodson, Jr. "In addition to describing the clinical aspects of MS, the video features five of our patient-members who discuss their personal experiences, struggles and extraordinary courage in adopting their lifestyle to stay productive." The video recently won the 1996 Telly Award for best video in the field of health and medicine. The national competition drew more than 9,000 entries this year.

Crying for good care

Oakwood's "Baby Track" program was awarded a 1996 Community Service Award by the Michigan Health & Hospital Association, a Lansing-based association. The award recognizes healthcare providers who partner with local individuals and organizations to improve the health and well-being of area citizens.

Programs were judged on a set of criteria that focused on true collaboration. representatives from the MHA specifically noted that the OHS Baby Track program has been successful in improving immunization rates among babies born at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn. In one year, the immunization rate among the actively tracked babies increased from 63 percent to 90.5 percent.

Study for LIFE

The University of Michigan is looking for people who have hypertension to take part in a LIFE study. The LIFE study (Losartan Intervention For Endpoint Reduction in Hypertension) will determine whether the incidence of a disease known as left ventricular hypertrophy (LVH) and its health consequences can be reduced.

LVH is a type of heart enlargement that puts those who suffer from it at an increased risk of angina, heart attack, heart failure and stroke. LVH is often caused by chronic high blood pressure. Volunteers will receive one of two high blood_pressure medications both widely used to treat hypertension. Anyone interested in volunteering should call (313)

Top accreditation given

St. Mary Hospital in Livonia has been Accredited with Commendation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO). Accreditation with Commendation is the highest level of accreditation awarded by the Joint Commission, recognizing excellence by the nation's largest accrediting organization.

HFH launches trial

Henry Ford Hospital is launching a clinical trial of the first topical gel in advanced clinical studies to treat Kaposi's sarcoma, a form of skin cancer that affects nearly 20 percent of people living with HIV and AIDS. KS is the most common tumor in people with AIDS and is often the first visible manifestation of the disease.

The treatment gel, called ALRT 1057, is a naturally occurring hormone that patients apply to the lesions. It appears to utilize the body's normal mechanisms for ridding itself of unwanted tissue. Interested individuals should call (800) 761-9293 or (313) 876-1984.

Healthy

Countywide movement takes new look at how we live

Imagine "health" not in terms of illness and the hospital emergency room, but looking at a community's well-being and its residents' quality of life,

A countywide initiative with that focus is underway to look at some rather unique items as they relate to health: sidewalks, green belts and park areas, well-marked roads, strong family units, responsive police and fire departments, more family recreation and better public transportation.

Many of these things affect individual health and safety which, in turn, affects the overall health of communities, say those involved. For example, having good park areas in which to relax can affect mental and emotional health. And, if a community's transportation system isn't up to par, residents may have a hard time getting to the doctor.

"We're trying to help educate people in a new vision of health," said Marianne Simancek, a health educator at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, who is co-chairing one of six groups in Wayne County which are addressing this issue in a regional project. Her group is comprised of the its what contributes to a healthy lifestyle," she added.

"It think it's very exciting and it's long overdue," said Sandy Hudson of the Oakwood Healthcare System, who is co-chairing another group which oversees the Westland and Garden City areas. "Education was always the schools" problem, crime was a police problem and poor health was the hospital's problem. All of the challenges are really the community's problem. We're saying 'Let's take own-ership for these challenges'."

The overall county project is labeled "County Health Assessment Project." and was prompted by a national health initiative, which has funneled down through state health departments to counties. In Wayne County, health officials facilitating the project decided to divide the coun ty into six regions — excluding the city of Detroit which is doing its own

Those involved believe the impetus to involve people in a "healthy community" process may eventually impact state-level health planning, staffing and possible acces-TANDIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST sibility to grants

Observer-area communities are represented in two of these groups: Livonia, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville, Northville Township, and Canton Township are in Region 4, calling their project the "Northwest Wayne Partners for a. Healthy Community."

■ Garden City and Westland are grouped with Wayne, Inkster, Dearborn and Dearborn Heights in Region 3 calling themselves "Partners Strengthening Our Community" or

Areas in southern Wayne County, those surrounded by Detroit and on the far east side are represented in the other three Simancek said her group is currently completing a survey tool which will be taken personally to community organizations, churches and schools, where members plan to interview and explain their project. The results, she said, will be taken back to community leaders where they can be developed into action plans and where resources can be culled to make needed improvements.

Hudson, director of Oakwood's Community Focused Health Promotion Network, said he expects his group to begin assembling community task forces by the end of the year. The committee is still soliciting community support, and is currently brainstorming "what makes up a healthy community."

Hudson's co-chair is Andrea Kenyon-Unitas, a health consultant from Wayne County RESA, the county's intermediate school district. She said the program is trying to set a "healthy climate" in the entire Wayne County area.

"The more we look at (a community's) assets, the more prevention-oriented we can be," she said. "Generally, as health professionals, we sit down and identify risks instead of focusing on risks, we're looking at community assets.

"How can we take the good things there and share them with others?" Community organizers expect their efforts to continue well into the future, once goals are targeted and action plans underway. "I would like to be able to say that our group . . . will continue as a partner in support of a healthy community," Simancek added. "And that we can look back and say I opened the door for that - and look where people are walking." Wayne County Health Department Planning Manager Esther Twitty said she likes this new way of looking at health, which actually takes health departments back to their roots. Twitty is a liaison for the county project, and sits in on monthly meetings for all six groups.

"Health departments were originally founded for protecting the health of a community," she said. "This is really putting the 'public' back into public health.'

She said each group in the initiative is taking a different approach, based on the unique aspects of their region. However, Twitty said, all are similar in the following ways: All are taking a "vision" approach versus a problem-based approach. Instead of looking at statistics and concerns, they want to know each community's wish list and resources, and how these can be shared.

All are defining health as "best measured by citizens' sense of well-being" instead of approaching it as a "lack of illness."

Most have developed mission statements, and are using an eight-step process which moves from organizing the group, to forming an action plan and evaluating the results.

Free screenings offered for prostate awareness

In the past year, prostate cancer surpassed lung cancer as the most prevalent form of cancer among American men — an estimated 317,000 men will be diagnosed with the disease and more than 41,400 men will die from prostate cancer.

During Prostate Cancer Awareness Week, Sept. 24-30, several area hospitals are helping fight this most common form of cancer among men. and an expert from the University of Michigan will speak in Livonia in a free community program.

The U-M seminar "Prostate Cancer: How to Treat It. How to Beat It" will be held Thursday, Sept. 26 from 7-8:30 p.m. at the Marriott Hotel at Laurel Park Place, I-275 and Six Mile Road in Livonia featuring Joseph Oesterling, M.D., director of the U-M Prostate Program, Sponsored by the U-M Comprehensive Cancer Center, registration for the free program is not required. For more information call (800) 865-1125.

As part of the eighth annual Public Education and Screening program, sponsored by the Prostate Cancer Education Council and Medical Centers and Sinai Hospital will offer free prostate screenings for men 40 to 70 years of age at several locations.

Sinai is hosting its free screening on. Wednesday, Sept. 25 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Sinai Berry Surgery Center, 28500 Orchard Lake Road, second floor, Farmington Hills.

WAYNE BUSINESS

Finance

Now you can tune in to Internet

adio is gaining an increasing presence on the Internet and that trend has moved into southeastern Michigan where the Internet Broadcasting Company in Rochester is on the air and expanding its broadcasting offerings.

The IBC started earlier this summer but used Labor Day as a benchmark from which it would launch expanded programming. Visitors to the site at http://www.theibc.com will find Detroit-area radio personalities broadcasting from this site as well as news, information and entertainment. The IBC uses Real Audio, the software of choice for almost everyone offering sound on the Internet. Real Audio can be used on both a Mac and a PC, although IBM-based PCs do require Windows. The software, which takes about 2 megabytes on your hardware, can be downloaded free from the IBC site.

IBC is an Internet-only radio station with several formats: news/talk, children's broadcasting and music. Among the offerings are: Mary Jane and Charlie," the children's broadcasting feature of IBC, has a variety of children stories available that can be chosen and listened to at any time. Thus, children can listen to a new story every day or listen to a favorite story over and over. Children also can sing along to favorite or new songs.

The Wire" is an all news talk audio segment that includes political issues, world events, medical, home improvement and business issues. Users can join talks on these issues at regularly scheduled times each day. Hot List" promotes new records from a variety of recording artists. Users won't have to wait for a radio station to play a song they heard once and are waiting to hear again.

Concert Connection" features previously recorded interviews and concerts of local and renowned artists, performing anywhere from Pine Knob to the New Jersey Meadowlands. There also will be scheduled live concerts.

■ Another key is flexibility. . . as users can switch broadcasts with the click of a mouse and surf from pop-music to news/talk . . . with great ease.

The Cafe" is a live audio station offering selected music from adult alternative artists such as "Hootie & The Blowfish," "Cranberries," "Gin Blossoms and "Sting."

John Bornoty, president of IBC, said the ability of a Web audio site to interact with users, and vice versa, is the most exciting feature of this new medium. "For example, you can E-mail song requests directly to the Internet Jockey or vote for your favorite new and upcoming band."

Another key is flexibility, said Bornoty, as users can switch broadcasts with the click of a mouse and surf from pop-music to news/talk to new bands to the children station with great ease.

Entertainment Jewels

RadioTower at http://www.radiotower.com is an extensive directory of radio stations broadcasting live over the Internet. Tune into live audio from around the world, featuring news, business, theater, music, sports and church.

WorldCam at http://www.ovd.com/ is a collection of live-cams which regularly monitor a hallway at Premiere Radio Networks to a back stage cam from Holland. Personally, I think cams on the Internet is a novelty of limited use. But that's what Internet radio was a year ago so stay tolerant about this technology.

If you downloaded Real Audio to listen to the IBC than you are all set to go to http://1212.com/, as Europe's professional music industry directory makes its way online. Here you will find casting files designed for audio, video and film sound producers. Bursting from its seams are singing sessions, voice overs, film composers and equipment for sale.

Net new music at http://www.parnasse.com/netnewmusic.shtml will keep you informed on new MIDI and/or audio files that have been launched online. There is a pretty complete assortment of composer files and specialized collections.

■ John Lennon — Working Class Hero can be accessed with a bit of typing at http://www.hollywoodrec.com/HollywoodReco rds/Musicians/JohnLennon/JohnLennonM.ht ml. This is one of the longest addresses I've seen in some time so type slowly and carefully. When you finally arrive at this Hollywood Records site you will find an all-star tribute entitled "Peace" with such bands as the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Blues Traveler, George Clinton, and Cheap Trick. While its official release date isn't until October 10th, Web audiences can obtain a special sneak preview complete with sound clips and lyrics. There also is a complete collection of John Lennon links.

Armed with Netscape 2.0 and Shockwave, you will get the most out of visiting "The Film 100" at http://www.film100.com/. Here is a directory of the top hundred players in movie-making history, complete with biographies, a listing of each winner's accomplishments.

Joe Satriani is a talented guitarist who has put some of his songs, brand new to most of us, at his Web site at http://www.satriani.com/. Besides his songs, there also is a continuously updated collection of tour dates, news, video clips and photos of Joe and the band on the road. You will view the video clips best with QuickTime.

Birthday Bash: The University of Michigan Museum of Art celebrates its 50th birthday Sept. 22 with music, cake, children's games and a special exhibit of elephant paintings.

ake, music, children's games, and behind-the-scene tours: the only element missing from the University of Michigan Museum of Art's 50th Birthday Bash is the elephant. Although Renee was unable to travel from the Toledo Zoo to help celebrate, the African pachyderm sent five of her abstract paintings for the special exhibit "Komar, Melamid, and Renee." It's not that director William J. Hennessey didn't ask.

"We tried very hard to get her here, but the zoo asked, would you lend us one of your most expensive paintings to display with the elephants at the Toledo Zoo. And by the way, it's harder to move a painting than a 6,000 pound elephant," said William J. Hennessey with a twinkle in his eye.

Nonetheless, the birthday bash will go on to celebrate 50 years of fine painting, sculpture, drawing, photography and installations. Among the sponsors are the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association and the Selo Shevel Gallery in Ann Arbor.

"It's an opportunity to get the word out. Our museum is a place where we bring art and people. together in a service of understanding. You have the ability to learn about other times and places. It's a window into other civilizations and what we are today," said think American museums haven't

Built in 1911 as a memorial to University of Michigan alumni who died in the Spanish-American and Civil Wars, the museum of art moved into part of the building in 1946 with the intent of existing as a resource for art and art history students. Over the years, it has grown to fill the building.

After the Detroit Institute of Arts, the museum houses the second largest art collection in Michigan, and one of the finest university art collections in the U.S. From Han Dynasty tomb figures and Italian Renaissance panel paintings to Central African art, 18th century textiles and a reproduction of an authentic Japanese Tea Room, the museum is a treasure trove of more than 14,000 fine and decorative objects including more than 150 prints and drawings by James McNeil Whistler, contemporary photography, ceramics and sculpture.

"The University of Michigan's been accumulating works of art since the 1840s. At first keeping them in storage and basements until 1946 when it was moved here," said Hennessey. "Over the years we've shifted our programming to make our museum as much a community resource as an academic, and be intellectual and interesting to a majority of the population. The challenge was how to make all that magic.

"The hardest job we have is to get them to come in the door. -I

Melamid, and Renee.'

Featuring the work of Russian emigre painters Vitaly Komar and Alex Melamid in collaboration with the mild-mannered elephant named Renee, the exhibit is a testimony to man's attraction to animals as relayed in art through the centuries. From Egyptian mosaics to paintings by Henri Rousseau, man has celebrated and interpreted his relationship to animals in art. Now, man is making art with animals like Renee who wields a paint brush with her trunk.

Komar and Melamid met in a Moscow morgue in 1963 when they were students at the Stroganov Institute of Art and Design. After graduating, they began collaborating, exploring and creating their commentary on Soviet propaganda in a style they call "Sots," a hybrid of Soviet Realism and Pop Art. They emigrated to the United States in 1978. Since then their work has sparked laughter, insight and controversy. It's no wonder they chose to paint with an elephant,

Born in Africa in 1979, Renee arrived in Toledo in 1992. She has been painting for 10 years under the tutelage of Don RedFox, her trainer and elephant manager for the zoo. In July 1995, Komar and Melamid traveled to the Toledo Zoo to paint for a week with Renee who has a fondness for the color blue. The two will discuss the process

"We're the first museum to show this art. The fact that it's funny and a little outrageous led us to schedule the exhibition. The idea was to make visitors smile but also think about serious issues. We've always thought the only species that can make art is human beings. Does this make you want to stop and reconsider?" asked Hennessey. "How about collaboration. They were collaborating with this remarkable animal. If you believe we can communicate and swim with dolphins, why can't we collaborate with an elephant who does gestural abstract painting?"

Hennessey mixed in the elephant paintings with abstract paintings from the museum's permanent collection because he wants visitors to ask could any of these other paintings have been painted by an elephant. Which marks did the elephant make and which did the human beings make? Only one is obvious. A footprint made by Renee becomes the focal point of a large-scale painting.

"Just as Jackson Pollock used to step into his painting, she did too. Jackson Pollock said one of the goals was to transfer a mood to a canvas. He would drip, splatter and walk on his canvas. He used to say it was like a dance and the marks he was making communi-

Theatergoers tired of musicals and revivals of old time favorites will find that something different they're looking for at Meadow Brook.

This year's season plays up works written within the last six years. "There is a lot of good modern work that has not seen the light of day in regional theater," said artistic director Geoffrey Sherman. "These are wellwritten, highly entertaining and moving plays. We want to give our audience good play here."

A highlight is "I Am A Man," by University of Michigan professor OyamO, which is based on events from the 1968 Memphis sanitation workers' strike. It will be co-produced with Detroit's Plowshares Theatre Company.

"Appalachian Strings," a new musical which premiered at the Denver Center Theatre Company last spring, where it played to sold out houses, follows a family as it leaves Ireland during the 1840s and settles in America's Eastern mountains. Through story and song the succeeding generations tell of living off the land, in mines and on the road. An on stage band backs up the cast.

FINE ARTS

Photography exhibit showcases Cranbrook grounds

The Unitarian Universalist Church Farmington's Artists Group held a shoot-out at Cranbrook Educational Community in Bloomfield Hills in early May. At sunrise with their cameras in hand, ten members recorded Eliel Saarinen's breathtaking architecture, Carl Milles sculpture, the Japanese gardens and duck ponds that make the grounds so beautiful. The results comprise the photography exhibit "Sunrise Shoot-Out" opening Sept. 22 at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 25301 Halsted, Farmington

"The photographers are all church members, men and women who have an interest, from those deeply into photography to those of us who are amateurs," said Livonia artist Jack Olds who is not an amateur having taught photography at the University of Iowa in the 1950s. Olds was director of project grants for the Michigan Council of Arts until retiring in 1990.

"A shoot-out is very different from telling people what to shoot, a certain subject. You just show up on a certain day and shoot with whatever you've got, which can be difficult."

It was a grey, overcast day when members arrived to shoot a roll or more of film apiece. Olds began snapping color photos of the Cranbrook Science Center fountain from different angles in order to explore the possibilities. The result was an image that reveals a rhythm relayed by the sculptor through the fountain's figures. Another image of yet another fountain Olds shot on his back "to give a different perspective."

Each member is allowed to exhibit two images. Hosting art exhibitions is nothing new at the church. For the last eight years members have spotlighted a variety of mediums from watercolors by Connie Lucas of Canton to an exhibit from the permanent collection of Swords into Plowshares Peace Center and Gallery. Photography has been exhibited for three years. Each year a different location is chosen for the shoot-out. In 1995, it was Northville's historic Mill Race Pond, and in 1994, Ann Arbor.

Besides Olds, other photographers in the exhibit include Lynn Seaton of Livonia; Barry

Brown, Westland; Joel Goldberg, Farmington Hills; Dan Lenardon and Larry Works, Northville; Linda Rourk, Novi; Ted Goldberg, Walled Lake, and Amy and Bill Kern, Farmington Hills. Bill Kern has a commercial photography business on the side. During the day he works for Ford Motor Co. as a manufacturing engineer doing computer graphics and design. In one of Kern's black and white photographs, rain stains line the wall of a Cranbrook building revealing the flaws of this aging beauty.

"I normally do studio photography, so at Cranbrook I was way out of my element. It was a challenge. I wasn't using $30,000 of equipment, but hardly anything but a 35mm camera," said Bill Kern who's also taught photography and juried exhibits. "I tend to wander around and think about what I'd like to shoot. Having a technical background in photography, I'm hardly every surprised by what I get. That's the mark of a good photographer to know visually what I'm going to get as far as composition and design before it's printed."

The exhibit runs through Oct. 13. Hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, until 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, and until noon Observer Newspapers.

Sunday.

In January, members will shoot "Dark Corners." That could be a very interesting show depending on the creativity of the photographers.

"What is a dark corner? That's open to a lot of interpretation depending on whether you're thinking about a coal bin, or dark corners of people," said girl dating a nice Christian boy, them on her dinner plate. Chris Cringle who works in advertising. Sarah's parents would rather she marry someone of her own faith, and preferably a doctor. To satisfy them, she hires an actor who happens to be a gentile, to play the role of her Since Bob toured in "Fiddler on the Roof" and played a doctor on the TV series "St. Elsewhere," deceiving Sarah's parents should be a piece of kugel. When Sarah and Bob fall in love, things get even more complicated.

Henrietta Hermelin of West Bloomfield portrays Sarah's mother, Miriam. With four children and one grandson, Hermelin said she can identify very closely with her character. "I come from a close family," said Hermelin who is making her Meadow Brook debut in "Beau Jest." These are nice people. They care about each other."

Comedy just bubbles out. When Sarah tells her parents she's stopped dating Chris, her mom starts clipping out ads from the singles column, and puts

"Love will heal all because her parents love her, and want her to be happy," said Hermelin. "My daughter feels I want to see her marry a Jewish man. I'm thrilled she's dating, but she's too frightened to test the waters.'

Although it's a story about a Jewish family, playwright James Sherman, a former member of Chicago's Second City, and playwright-in-residence at Chicago's Victory Garden, said "Beau Jest" seems to ascend all levels of ethnicity.

"You don't have to be Jewish to enjoy it," he said. "Years ago I read a story about the new angry playwrights, and I thought, I'm not angry, I had a happy childhood and loved my parents. I wanted to write a play where the parents were the heroes."

"Beau Jest" brought him and his wife Linnea Todd together. "She was cast in the play then we got acquainted," he said. "I wrote the sequel, "Jest a Second!" with her in mind, but she didn't get to play the role Todd, Sherman and their two sons are staying on campus in married student housing during the run of the show. "We really like to keep the family together," he said. "I'm working on another romantic comedy.'

Family relationships are a reoccurring theme in Sherman's work. "I had a storyline in mind, and it occurred to me that it could be done with the same set of characters," he said.

In "Jest a Second," the story continues. Bob and Sarah are happily married and pregnant. But, Sarah's brother Joel, wants to bring his new love, Randy the pediatrician, to family dinner. Ordinarily, the Goldmans would be happy that a doctor is coming over, but Randy is a guy. Moments before the introduction, Joel loses his nerve, so Bob goes into his closet and pulls out the dress he wore in "La Cage Aux Folles," and impersonates a female Randy.

"It's something that exists," said Sherman. "My best friend is because our second son was a gay man with children. In grad school i had no idea ne was gay It was interesting to me, it was a surprise, but it didn't have an adverse effect on our friendship. It was educational, a gay man with children is not as rare as you might think. I thought it would be an interesting story to

> In "Beau Jest!" Joel mentions he's divorced and has two children, but there's no mention of him being gay. "I didn't know he was gay in 'Beau Jest,' " said Sherman.

"There seems to be an appeal for this play and this family, and 'Jest a Second!' is a chance to spend a little more time with them.'

The plays also star David Ellenstein as Joel, Robert Grossman (Abe), Wayne David Parker (Chris), and John Seibert

"Beau Jest" and "Jest A Second!" can be seen on the same day or successive days at Meadow Brook during the week of Oct. 23-27.

'Dreamcoat' fits Sam Harris well in Donny's place

BY KEELY WYGONIK

Osmond returns the week of Sept. 25 to see "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." Sam Harris, who replaced Osmond after he suffered a vocal chord injury during the final weeks of the show's recent Boston engagement, shines as Joseph.

Produced by Livent (US) Inc. and The Really Useful Theatre Company, "Joseph" with lyrics by Tim Rice and music by Andrew Lloyd Webber, was first seen by Detroit audiences last fall at the Masonic Temple Theatre.

Osmond, who has triumphed in the role, and performed to sold-out audiences, is under doctor's orders to refrain from singing Andrew Lloyd Webber's demanding role based on the biblical story of "Joseph" found in Chapters 37-46 of Genesis.

Handsome, and humble, Don't wait until Donny Harris has an innocence that makes him look the part of Joseph, the favored son of Jacob, played by James Harms, who is sold by his 11 envious brothers into slavery.

> Joseph's captors take him to Egypt where he gains his freedom and a position in Pharaoh's court through his interpretation Star of the American touring > production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," Harris works hard to earn the respect of an audience disappointed they're seeing him on stage instead of Osmond, and earned a standing ovation after a recent performance.

Harris, who received raves for his Broadway debut in "Grease" before heading across "America" in "Joseph," proves he's capable Wednesdays: 1 and 1 p.m. Thursdays; 8 p.m. Fridays; 2 and 8 p.m. Saturdays; 1 and 5:30 p.m. Sundays through Oct, 12. Donny Osmond is expected to return to the role of Joseph during performances the week of Sept. 25.

Tickets: Range in price from $10 to $57.50 and can be purchased at the Fox Theatre box office, or charged by phone at (810) 433-1515. For information, call (313) 983-6611.

of the challenge of leading the company of 34 actors and a 46member children's choir.

A native of Oklahoma, he got his start as the grand champion of "Star Search" in its premiere and songwriter, Broadway and TV actor, writer and director. His latest recording is "Standard Time/Different Stages," a double CD of popular and Broadway standards. Although the story is serious, "Joseph," is not. It was intended. to be 20 minute entertainment for a school choir for a prize-giving ceremony at a London prep school in 1968, and evolved into a colorful blockbuster musical.

The lyrics are memorable and the tunes humable. After Joseph's envious brothers sell him into slavery, they sing "One More Angel in Heaven," with a humorous country twang.

There are lots of great songs - "Any Dream Will Do," "Close Every Door," and "Go, Go, Go Joseph," season. Throughout his career he with a variety of musical styles, calypso, French chanson, and even rock-and-roll inspired by Elvis Presley. When Jacob and his sons are starving during a famine, the music is somber French chanson. Kelli James Chase co-stars as the narrator who tells the story, and Johnny Seaton portrays Pharoah, ruler of ancient Egypt. Seaton's Pharoah is the "King of Kings," looks and sounds a lot like Elvis down to his blue suede shoes. Pharoah's ancient Egypt resembles Las Vegas complete with a slot machine. As the narrator, Chase blends into the action, guiding the audience, but doesn't interrupt it.

Jacob's sons and their wives work together well as an ensemble, and seem to be having fun on stage. No one tries to stand Moods are created on stage out, they're a team.

"Joseph" is about dreams, and has worn many hats - singer and electrifying dancing - pop, believing in yourself no matter what happens. Children are the original dreamers, and they play a big part appearing in almost every scene.

Four children's choirs, including the Redford Youth Theatre Choir, were combined to create the two groups who perform in rotation in each of the shows. Grouped together to reflect the rainbow of colors in Joseph's coat, the children give the show everything they've got, dancing, smiling and looking serious on.

Music, and dancing, some of it aerobic, elevate the energy of "Joseph." Harris is hoisted way above the stage in the finale, to phenomenal heights. Even though the cast is doing all the work you'll be out of breath at the end.

Figuring out who-dunnit is murder in 'Postmortem'

BY BOB WEIBEL

If you love a good "who-dunnit" — you'll have a good time fingering the murderer in The Dearborn Players Guild's sparkling production of "Postmortem." And no, the butler didn't do it! But this Ken Ludwig play trots out about every other murder mystery device. For openers, the setting is 1922 at the "Gillette Castle." (Which actually exists in Connecticut, and was built by William Gillette who wrote "Sherlock Holmes" in collaboration with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. He created and starred in the role of the master detective on stages across America for 30 years.)

And guess what. In "Postmortem" the same Mr. Gillette, played superbly by Thomas Hoagland, invites theatrical friends to a spine-tingling seance to his castle.

Hoagland's commanding stage presence (and his eerie resemblance to the classic image of Sherlock Holmes) provides cohesiveness during the show's. spoofy moments. The seance reveals that one of the guests is the sister of Maude Redding, Gillette's former lover, whom we see pictured on a wall. The point of the whole exercise is to learn which of the invited guests killed her one year ago to the day.

Gillette suspects the sister, but after a variety of intrigues, it seems that every guest has a motive. Most end up pointing a gun at each other, and Gillette eve gets shot in the arm. With all the false indicators, one even wonders if that too is fake. True to the who dunnit genre, a surprise ending reveals the killer. And the reason is even more startling.

from. Edward Howell seems to have stepped out of an F. Scott Fitzgerald novel as the fatuous Bobby Carlyle. But is Bobby's charming exterior a false front? Tami Tabacchi is very good as

Why is it that she arrives with Bobby and is soon in Gillette's arms?

Joanne Duckman and Jeff

Bartos score as an acerbic and argumentative couple, Marion and Leo Barrett. Are they capable of something really sinister?

Loretta Wilson is excellent as Gillette's sister, Lilly Warner. She seems to hover over Gillette's every move. Would she kill to get another woman out of Gillette's life?

It couldn't possibly be Louise Paffadine, who helped plan the seance with Gillette, could it?

Why would she shoot Gillette? Jacqueline Turfi Bacus is deliciously theatrical in the role and just might be capable of anything. Director, Elna J. Johnson, has paced the show well (it runs, about two hours including intermission) and the stage setting, costumes and props have an authentic 1920s look. Special effects are well done, although the cast was required to cover nicely for a balky revolving panel in castle wall.

When he's not writing about plays, Bob Weibel of Westland is performing, or directing them. He's a longtime Observer critic who is active in local community theater groups. .

Featured violinist: World-renowned violinist and former child prodigy, Midori will help the Detroit Symphony Orchestra open its 1996-97 "International Season," Sept. 19-22 at Orchestra Hall in Detroit.

DSO launches 1996-97 season

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra's 1996-97 season offers a lineup of instrumentalists, conductors and vocalists. from around the globe.

In 1996-97, the DSO will again present a 26-week classical season, with Jarvi leading the orchestra in 42 performances. Orchestra Hall will also host the successful Pops Series, the Christmas Festival, the Ameritech Jazz Series, the Detroit News/Target Stores Young People's Concert Series and the Tiny Tots Series, plus special events. Presenting stars of the international music scene, the DSO will perform with Itzhak Perlman, Midori, Pinchas Zukerman, Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg and Andre Watts, among others. Ten artists making their debut on the classical series will be introduced, including Mexican pianist Jorge Federico Osorio and Fisteen works will be given their first-ever performance by the DSO, including the U.S. premiere of the "Rock Symphony" by Kalnins and the world premier of "Thoughts that Sing, Breathe and Burn" by Michigan composer Leslie Bassett. In October, the DSO will present works by American composers Aaron Copland and Roy Harris, followed in April by more music from Americans, Charles Ives and Paul Creston.

Season opener

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra with Music Director Neeme Jarvi, who lifts his baton for a seventh season, are joined by international violin heavyweight, Midori.

They will perform an all-Beethoven program, which showcases his orchestral work "Consecration of the House," as well as the lightning-fast finger work of the Violin Concerto in D Major. They conclude with Beethoven's Symphony No. 7.

When: Performances 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Sept. 19-20; 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 21; and 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 22 at Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Friday preconcert conversation 7 p.m. with Neeme Jarvi, and moderator Mark Volpe, Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Executive Director.

Tickets: Range from $38 to $15 (Box seats: $55), call the DSO Box Office (313) 833-3700. Season tickets still available.

Highlights: DSO's Volunteer council will host a series of festive afterglows which include hors d'oeuvres, desserts and a chance to meet Jarvi. These special events will be held after each performance on the Orchestra Hall box level. Tickets are $50, and can be obtained by calling (313) 962-1000, ext. 285. Orchestra Hall will be adorned with beautiful flowers thanks to longtime DSO supporters, Cindy Pasky and Paul Huxley, of Strategic Staffing Solutions. The couple discovered that the Blue Corn Flower is the national flower of Estonia — and so as a tribute to Jarvi's homeland, the donated floral arrangements will be sprinkled with these blue "Estonian" blossoms.

Next week: Features renowned conductor James DePreist and Hungarian planist Peter Frankl in a program of French, German and Russian works. Concerts 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26-27; and 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 28 at Orchestra Hall. Tickets range from $16 to $40 (Box Seats: $58)

Concert series spotlighting specific composers throughout the season include opening night's all-Beethoven program; a performance of Schubert's "Great" symphony (No. 9) for the composer's 200th birthday anniversary, Jan. 3-5; and a Brahms festival in March with two weekends of concerts commemorating the 100th

There is an audience out The movie was actually held back nearly a year as its releasing company, Fine Line, searched Minnesota" and for a desirable window to open it I don't think I in. Without Keanu Reeves as star, it might have gone straight any of it. This to video. tedious black "Feeling Minnesota" finds a comedy from pair of brothers in love with the the producers of same woman, Sam (played by "Pulp Fiction" Vincent D'Onofrio) starts out the "Get loser, a bookkeeper for a localdrug and flesh peddler who gives ' Shorty" will him a sexy bride (Carmen Diaz) as a bonus. She wants nothing to him into the bathroom for quick sex then begs him to take her with him, which of course he does, tailed by the vengeful groom. The surprises intended for the movie's second half are almost insulting.

First-time writer/director Steven Baigelman has either seen too many movies or not enough, fashioning a mystery that even the most casual moviegoer will successfully secondguess. The movie calls for a strong leading man to negotiate the noirish twists and turns but has Reeves instead. He's such a lousy actor that the few good situations (like Jiaks' masked stickup of a gas station where the attendant immediately identifies him) fall flat.

D'Onofrio, first seen as a private pushed to the limit in "Full Metal Jacket," has made a career out of off-kilter characters. He tries to bring some poignance to the dumb-as-rocks Sam, who is too stupid to be either menacing or funny.

The big loser in "Feeling Minnesota" is Cameron Diaz, who-opens with this and the misfire Ed Burns comedy "She's the One" within the same month. She's actually sexy and funny in the early scenes, a wild child in a dirty wedding dress looking for a way out. Not every movie has to have a message, but black comedies work best when they do.

From "Dr. Strangelove" to the recent "To Die For," they use death and violence as means to an end, not their whole reason for being. The violence in the movie is numbing, nearly two hours of the brothers chewing each others' ears off and engaging in ritualistic games of Rock, Paper Scissors. (Think of it as The Three Stooges, but with blood). "Feeling Minnesota" hits one note in its view of men as overgrown kids who still pelt rocks at each other. In the end, it's the audience that feels pummeled, by a movie as stupid and pathetic as its main characters.

Band continues to rage against political injustices

CHRIISTINA

Rage Against The Machine's show Thursday, Sept. 19, at the 12,191-seat Cobo Arena is one for the Rage record book.

"Detroit will be the largest show that we have ever headlined. This is lined. This is leaving aside festivals. The previous one was in Warsaw," guitarist Tom Morello said.

Rage Against the Machine is winding up its tour in support of its sophomore diatribe "Evil Empire," produced by Brendan O'Brien. Like its self-titled debut, Rage Against the Machine mixes hard rock and hip-hop—and doesn't make any bones about its political beliefs.

"We are completely unapologetic about our politics and that while it is the thing that we are most criticized for, it is the thing we are most sure of. Some people say that our politics are extreme and we agree. You don't cure an extreme illness with a moderate medicine. On this record and through the causes we've embraced, we keep pushing the envelope of what it is the rock band can accomplish," Morello explained.

"The band continues to support Leonard Peltier, Mumia Abu-Jamal, the Zapistas fighting for true democracy in Mexico: The video for (the single) 'People of the Sun' addresses that issue. The overall message is that people should rebel and not passively accept oppression. ... Sitting back passively in front of a television set is just not good enough and we hope that through music we can use it as a tool to organize as well as to rock you."

Peltier, a Native American, was convicted on two counts of first-degree murder and sentenced to two consecutive life sentences in a June 26, 1975, shoot-out with FBI agents at Jumping Bull Ranch on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota. On its debut album, Rage Against the Machine made Peltier the subject of the video for its song "Freedom." Abu-Jamal, a journalist, sits on death row for shooting a police officer in Philadelphia. Rage Against the Machine and a host of others, believe that both men were wrongly convicted.

Rage Against the Machine has made its intentions clear since its first show in 1991 in an Orange County, California, living room. Besides regularly headlining Rock For Choice benefits, the group created a silent protest against censorship at the Lollapalooza on July 18, 1993, in Philadelphia by standing naked on stage for 25 minutes without singing or playing a note. Each band member had duct tape across his mouth and a letter scrawled on his chest, spelling out "P-M-R-C," which stands for the Parents' Music Resource Coalition, Tipper Gore's organization that helps parents monitor the music their children lis-Morello explained that the band doesn't plan on hiding its beliefs any time soon.

"I think that it's a message that we don't hide very well. On every song and in every T-shirt, we make our intentions extremely clear. I don't see how you can be a fan and ignore it. Toad the Wet Sprocket are in the studio working on a new album with producer Gavin MacKillop, who also did "Fear."

"Dulcinea," and most of "In Light Syrup." Some of the working song titles are "Whatever I Fear," "Dam Would Break," "Don't Fade," "Desire," and "Little Man, Big Man." The album will hit the stores early next year. Meanwhile Toad has contributed the song "Crazy Life" (previously available only on the "Empire Records" soundtrack album) to "Honor The Earth," a two-CD benefit album featuring tracks by Matthew Sweet, Soul Asylum, Luka Bloom, Exene Cervenka, Bonnie Raitt, Rusted Root, Jane Siberry, Victoria Williams and American musical artists will also contribute to the project which is intended to benefit the Honor The Earth fund, an organization that assists Native Americans in protection of sacred sites and ecosystems, as well as the building of sustainable communities. For more information about Toad the Wet Sprocket, see their on-line site http://www.sony.com/Music/ArtistInfo/Toad, or via their mailing list P.O. Box 1761, Santa Monica, Calif. 90406-1761.

DINING

Mountain Jack's has new menu and mission

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

New wall coverings, carpeting, lighting fixtures, upholstery, table settings and art work help. create the modern, contemporary look of the newly renovated Mountain Jack Steakhouses.

Jazz and Big Band music plays softly in the dining room, which is decorated in rich browns, burgundy, purple and forest green.

A new menu, and trained staff who can suggest wine and food pairings also await diners.

"People as a rule are unfamiliar with wine, and intimidated by it," said James Anderson, general manager of the Livonia location. "Our staff training addressed that. Now we can describe wines better, and suggest wine and food pairings."

For those remaining undecided about a selection, Mountain Jack's Steakhouse offers the Wine Sampler which consists of a two-ounce sample of any three wines available by the glass for

"We spent a lot of time talking with customers about what they want from a steakhouse in terms of flavor, style, service and over-all ambience," said Dan Silverman, vice president of marketing for Paragon Steakhouse Restaurants, Inc. "One of the most valuable realizations on our part was that we need to redefine what we are — a classic American steakhouse - and what we do best - steak and prime rib. By focusing on our heritage, we are now committed to providing the best steakhouse experience for under $20."

The new Jump Start appetizer platter, $4.95 per person, offers an assortment of crab stuffed mushrooms, BBQ baby back ribs, potato skins, onion rings and fried zucchini.

Baked potatoes are still available by request, but the new Potato Trio consisting of scalloped, red roasted and basil mashed potatoes gives diners more options. Potato Trio is served family-style to the entire family in a three-bowl server.

chefs have also developed Half Cut entree selections for those seeking smaller portions. Half Cut entrees include 11 beef, seafood and poultry choices, all served with either a crock of clam chowder or tableside salad bar, and Potato Trio.

"Our Half Cut portions enable guests to enjoy the same experience with all of the extras, at a significantly lower price," said Silverman. "We recognized that we were not offering enough of a price range, which may have led some customers to believe that we were too upscale."

For instance, a top sirloin full cut is $13.95, and a half cut is $9.95 on the dinner menu. A full cut of Citrus Ginger Chicken is $12.95, and a half cut is $9.95. A full cut of Grilled Swordfish with Cilantro Salsa is $15.95 and a half cut is $11.95.

Mouth-watering side dishes include caramelized onions or sauteed mushrooms, Hollandaise or Whiskey Peppercorn Sauce, and Citrus Ginger Vegetable Medley.

New on the dessert menu is The Big Finish for guests who either can't make up their mind, or want to sample a little bit of every dessert. The cost for two or more persons is $3.95.

"Rather than leaving the burden of ordering dessert to one table member, we are trying to make it simple for the entire party to indulge," said Silverman. The Big Finish is a dessert platter featuring an assortment of favorites such as Bailey's Irish Cream mousse, mudd pie, turtle cheesecake and raspberry bread pudding.

Mountain Jack's has also made a commitment to better serve the communities their restaurants serve.

"We recently completed a major renovation to enhance our annearance and ambience, and realized that we wanted to revitalize our image with the community as well," said Judith Herndon, general manager of the Mountain Jack's steakhouse of Bloomfield Hills, "These programs represent a renewed comof life for everyone."

In an effort to recognize individual efforts and achievements, Moutain Jack's Steakhouse has developed the "Local Heroes" program. The program will honor a "Local Hero" every month.

Bring your own design to Green Acres

Green Acres consists of just seven half-acre lots on Five Mile between Middlebelt and Merriman in Livonia.

Privacy, wooded lots, plenty of shopping within walking distance and nearby freeway access will draw buyers who aren't necessarily looking for a lot of neighbors.

Tri-West Development, which has constructed eight houses in scattered locations throughout the metro area in its four years of existence, is the developer/builder in Green

"I'm a custom builder. Every house I've done is different," said Sam Baki, who also serves as sales rep. "We try to leave open options for customers."

A spec ranch of 1,850 square feet with three bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths is under construction.

The house features an open great room with a cathedral ceiling, dining room, kitchen with island and dishwasher, first floor laundry, two car attached garage and basement.

The master suite will have a separate whirlpool tub and shower and a walk-in closet. Each of the other two bedrooms will have a sitting ledge around

"This house comes with a fireplace, bay windows, air conditioning - all standard features plus an upgraded 25-year warrantied shingle," Baki said. "We prep basements for a bathroom and don't charge more. We put in all vinyl windows to keep it maintenance free."

Sales price is $209,900 including the lot.

"With prices of new construction going up, we try to use all of the space we have," Baki said. "There's no dead space. All are good-sized bedrooms. We try to use all the space we can and give people the right house for the Four of the lots toward the back of the property carry premiums ranging from $5,000 to $10,000.

Vinyl siding and brick are the primary exterior materials with some wood accents.

Baki makes the point that Tri-West is flexible and can work off ideas prospective buyers may bring to the site.

"The people who were just in here showed us plans of a house they visited. They like the style, but want something different. We can do everything. If you want a side entry or three-car garage, we can do that at added cost."

Tri-West also plans to build a speculative 2,100-square-foot colonial at Green Acres that will carry a price similar to the ranch, Baki said.

"Everyone tells me we offer more for the money," he said. "Houses aren't too compacted together. There's lots of trees. It's a private setting - seven home sites with a private road."

Green Acres is within the Livonia school boundaries. Riley Middle School is right across the street. Homeowners will be serviced by city water and sewers. There will be no sidewalks.

The property tax rate is $31.31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID MULLY

An existing home

Imagine this scenario: You have just found your home after a lengthy house search. You need to apply for your mortgage within the next few days. Where do you start to look? In the Yellow Pages? In the newspaper? Maybe, but another good place to start would be with your real estate agent. Agents are a good source because they deal with mortgage lenders on a daily basis and know first hand who is competitive and at the same time who provide good

Brian Schwartz from Century 21 Today in Livonia says, "I always recommend for my clients to talk with at least two lenders that I know who have competitive rates and have been proven to be VERY efficient with my previous clients." Yet, there are people who will prefer to call several lenders to find the lowest rate possible without regard to the lender's experience or reliability. I believe this to be very short-sighted. These people are taking for granted that, no matter who they pick, the service will be good. You may not discover the truth until it becomes too people regret their selection of a mortgage lender. Most often, they find out at closing that the rate or closing costs are higher than they were led to believe. dream Another problem is that the lender or the loan officer will tell the client that they are preapproved (or even fully approved) and, when it comes time to close them mortgage, additional information is requested that should have been requested long before.

There have been numerous

> Another reason for the delay in gaining information may be because the lender uses several investors and doesn't know until closing which one they will use. Because investor requirements for documentation vary, they may need to return to the borrower for extra information. To save yourself unnecessary aggravation and disappointment. I suggest you follow the advice of Brian Schwartz and investigate a lender's experience. "I tell them not to be afraid to ask how long they have been in business because experience and knowledge can make a big difference."

> In most cases, I attribute this to inexperience on the loan officer's

A new construction home Let's talk today about the important role a lender plays when building your own home. Lenders commonly refer to this as a "self build." First, you must select a lender who has the proper loan program in place for a self builder.

For people who are building

licensed builders, this is important because they need a lender who is experienced in specific needs of new construction. Many self builders are doing so for the first time and need to work with a knowledgeable and experienced lender who can help make the building process as uncomplicated as possible.

One such lender is a company called Marflax Corporation. Marflax has specialized in financing construction loans to individuals acting as their own builders for the past 40 years. Typically, banks and mortgage companies require the construction loan borrower to be a licensed builder or an individual working through a licensed builder. Marflax does not. Marflax only finances construction loans, that is, during the process of construction. They will finance from any stage of construction. When the house is completely built, you will refinance through a bank, mortgage company, etc., of your choice for your long-term mortgage. This gives you the flexibility to choose from the many long-term mortgage options available today.

Construction loan approval time is normally as little as two days, and there is no application fee. Marflax's program allows for unlimited draws at no cost per draw with disbursement the same day. A waiver of lien is provided with each draw. Marslax has offices throughout southeast Michigan. Their direct number is 810-354-3330.

Refinancing your home If you currently have an times that I have heard or seen—their own home and are not—adjustable rate mortgage (ARM), you may want to think about refinancing to their a fixed rate or another ARM. While refinancing does have costs associated with it, many times it is worth the cost of refinancing.

> First, find out your current rate and how much you paid in points and closing costs when you originally took out the mortgage. This information will be on your HUD-1 closing statement. Make a note of your adjustment or anniversary date, the date when your rate can change.

Then call some of the various mortgage lenders and give this information to the loan officer. With some simple calculations. the loan officer should be able to tell you if it would-be worth your while to refinance or not. It would also be helpful for the loan officer to know a rough estimate of how much longer you plan on staying in your home.

Before you convert, make sure there is no prepayment penalty on your current loan or the new loan. If you choose a new ARM, I would recommend a convertible program, which means that usually after the first 13 months, you have the option of converting your ARM into a fixed-rate mortgage for a $200 fee.

It's nice to work with a lender that will keep up the servicing of your loan because, should you decide to refinance again for lower rates or any other reason, you may save some of the closing town guests.

Use electricity efficiently

The following energy saving tips, are simple, low-, or no-cost, and will help you get more control over your home's electric bills according to the Edison Electric Institute, the national association of electric companies.

The tips cover the two largest energy using appliances in your home - heating/cooling and water heating. In becoming more efficient, you'll also improve your home's comfort and convenience. You'll make it kinder to the environment too.

Household heating and cooling

■ Change your air conditioner's or heat pump's filter every month or two, depending on how dirty it is. You should be able to see light clearly through the filter. If not, it needs to be

During hot summer days, keep curtains drawn and shades pulled over windows facing east, south, and west.

■ Move furniture away from the air registers, allowing for the free flow of cooled or heated air.

Consider a set-back thermostat to control your heating and cooling systems. Most air conditioners can bring your home's temperature down to a set level within a half an hour. This thermostat limits the air conditioner's use to when people are at home.

Place your thermostat on an inside wall, away from windows and doors. Drafts will cause the thermostat to keep the heating or cooling system running, even if the rest of the house is comfortable.

Close cooling vents in unused rooms. Also, when using window air conditioners, don't forget to close doors to unused rooms.

Water heating

In the average house, the water heater is the second largest energy user after space heating. ■ Select the right size water heater for the household. Keeping more hot water on hand than needed wastes electricity.

■ Set the water heater at 120 degrees for normal use; for dishwashers without temperature boosters, set the heater at 140 degrees. (Use a regular thermometer under a faucet to check the temperature.)

■ If the sides of the water heater feel warm to the touch, wrap a water-heater blanket around the water heater, especially if the water heater is located in an unheated area of the

GARDEN SPOT

Now is the time to begin planting shrubs

MART\ FIGLE

This is a good time to choose a new tree or shrub for the land-scape, plant it and let it establish a good root system before cold weather arrives - gosh, doesn't that sound ominous?

climate, so perhaps the following suggestions will help with your selection.

The first thing to decide is whether you want a conifer, a deciduous tree (one that drops its leaves each fall), a broadleaf evergreen or a flowering shrub. The next question is, "Where will we plant this new addition in our land-scape?"

Other things to be considered are the soil requirements (pH, soil structure, etc.) and the time you want to spend (or have time for) maintenance (pruning, etc.). One other thing to consider is the susceptibility of the plant to disease or insects.

After this has all been considered, it's time to make a choice. When you look for a new tree or shrub, it's a good idea to know the botanical name, at least of the species, which will help when reading the hang tag.

In the confer category look for Junipers, Juniperus species; American Larch/Tamarack, Larix laricina; Spruces, Picea Abies or P. glauca, P. pungens and others. Pines, Pinus aristata (Bristlecone Pine) or Mugo Pine, P. Mugo.

The family of the Eastern White Cedar/Arborvitae, Thuja occidentalis, has many varieties and so does the Canadian Hemlock, Tsuga canadensis.

Many deciduous trees are quite hardy in our northern climate and the selection is great. Maple trees are in the Acer family while Serviceberry is an Amelanchier. Ashes are Fraxinus, Flowering Crabapples are the Malus species. Oaks are Quercus, Ash, Sorbus. The Japanese Tree Lilac, Syringa reticula, is one that would fit in any garden.

Hardy flowering shrubs are often a focal point in a garden. Burning Bush, Euonymus alata and other Euonymus varieties or Winterberry, Ilex verticillata are two. Or consider a Potentilla, Potentilla (several colors of bloom). Lilacs, Syringa, Viburnum, Viburnum species and Weigela species are available in several varieties.

Azaleas and Rhododendrons, Rhododendron species, shouldn't be overlooked as these broadleaf evergreens add a handsome note to many gardens.

New book

A new book, "Hardy Trees and Shrubs: A Guide to Disease-resistant Varieties for the North," Robert Osborne, photographs, Beth Powning (Key Porter Books, $19.95, soft), contains all of this information and more. Many of the plants described in detail in the book are hardy from zones 2 to 5. The author gives beautiful descriptions as well as practical advice.

There are chapters about general care, pruning and nurturing, pests and diseases. The appendix gives all pertinent information at a glance, broken down by species, Latin and common name, hardiness zone and average mature height. This book is very well organized and deserves a place in your home.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Group hears consumer appliance complaints

The Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel is located in Chicago and its purpose is to help consumers who have a complaint with a major home appli-

In 1970, complaints filed by consumer on premature product failures were running rampant across this country. Following the '60s, which was a great lesson on the subject of protest. homeowners wouldn't stand still for an appliance which kept breaking down. The manufacturers expanded their customer relations effort by forming this association along with the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association and the National Retail Merchants Association. MACAP will work on complaints filed about refrigerators, dishwashers, gas and electric ranges, garbage disposals, trash compactors, water heaters, washers and dryers, room air conditioners and dehumidifiers. They claim that 90 percent of their complaints are eventually resolved to the satisfaction of both parties.

Let me give you a few facts on why I think this association may be as busy today as it was back in 1970. Today, even more so than back in '70, the independent service company is really isolated from the manufacturer who makes a product. We like the consumer are not given information on a particular problem which may result after production unless there is a national recall. You may ask how this could lead to a MACAP organization being formed. Let me give you an example.

Within this past year, a leading manufacturer of dishwashers announced through the national media a recall and a potential fire hazard on a wiring problem in their product. This concerns several million which are already in the consumers' homes. They announced that repairs would be at no charge for homeowners who called their toll free number, but what about the many people who had a service company come out and repair this problem and had to pay for it. What about the millions spent by many who had no knowledge that this was a product failure which was a direct fault of the manufacturer. If the bulletins which describe these problems to the service force which is directly tied in with the manufacturer would have been given to the independents, many consumers would have saved money.

My company did not know about this problem and to be put in that position is not good for both myself and the consumer. I do have some information which is filtered to me by some friends in the industry who are tied in with the manufacturer, but that amount if small compared to the service bulletins which are sent out every month. The companies which produce appliances in this country need to wake up and realize that their customers won't be buying their products again after they have paid for a free repair.

If you have a problem with a major home appliance and you have a reasonable complaint, I would suggest that you write to MACAP, 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60606, or telephone, 1-800-621-0477.

If you couldn't resolve the problem through contact with the dealer, the service company or the manufacturer. this will be your last resort outside of going to small claims court. Be truthful and to the point in your complaint and keep your fingers crossed that MACAP will be able to help you.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

NTERIOR MOTIVES

Coffee table can be convivial centerpiece

It must be stated that in the history of furniture "coffee tables" didn't exist. The coffee table is a 20th century invention. The need for this important adjunct to everyday living is obvious. and accounts for its popularity.

Grouping your seating pieces around a coffee table is convivial. It makes room for a bowl of flowers, or a bowl of nuts or wrapped candy for the enjoyment of your guests. You will even like putting your feet up and relaxing.

You can visit a furniture store and find many examples that can fit the circumstances. The first consideration is the style of your room. Modern? Keep the selection very simple. "Parsons" design is square, with the legs and apron at right angles (see illustration). The material involved can be metal or wood. The selection of the wood ranges from ash, maple and walnut to mahogany and ebony, stained from natural to very dark.

Creating a coffee table could be a challenge. Think how proud you would be to exhibit your own design. It isn't as difficult as you imagine. Finding a craftsperson is first on your agenda - a woodworking shop is a beginning - or even a metalsmith to work in steel or brass. Glass will often be a byproduct in either venue. When you "do it your way" size is also "your way."

If you need a coffee table for a more rustic space one could be fashioned using silver birch wooden legs. Never to be found in a furniture store.

You aim for traditional? Not as simple as squared modern. Probably you cannot make it yourself, but there are ways to individualize it. Painting or lacquering a modestly priced table to fit your surroundings will personalize it.

Another way to execute your own table is to add a glass top to a drum table. Allow the glass to overhang, not too much to be tippy. Glass, detailed with a deep beveled edge, perfects it.

Some years ago I found some charming antique Delft tiles that I set into a black lacquer frame, and mounted it on legs. My client-still adores it, probably enhanced because no one else has one

I haven't mentioned marble or granite. What is there to say? There is nothing more luxurious yet durable. There is a myriad of choices. The colors are unending, and the graining can be mesmerizing. Place a slab on metal or wooden legs. The slab has more panache if it is thicker than standard. Explore all the possibilities.

LET'S REMODEL

Firm guidelines make budgeting easier

• Q: Are there any guidelines for determining how much you should spend on remodeling your home?

A: You probably have a notebook full of ideas and a "wish" list for your home that includes everything you have ever dreamed for a home . . . you even know who has the skill to make it come true. Now all you need is to decide how to pay for it. Financing can be a major source of stress in any remodeling proiect. The NARI-Michigan Remodeling Association suggests several options for establishing a budget:

■ Keep the cost of the remodeling project in perspective. According to the American Homeowner Foundation, moving to a new home typically costs 8-10 percent of the current value of your home. This is a good figure for establishing your remodeling budget.

- How much should you spend? The answer varies by circumstance. However, you should spend as much as is necessary to create your dream home if your are staying in the home for a long time and can afford to do so. However, if you are planning on moving, be sure to remodel within the standards for the homes in your particular neighborhood and a reasonable budget.
- Once you determine how much you can afford to spend on a remodeling job, decrease that amount by 10-20 percent. This money should be put in a reserve account to cover any change orders or incidental charges accrued along the way, which will prevent a frantic scramble for additional funds at the end of the project.
- Keep change orders to a minimum and remember the phrases like, "... while you _, could you just _," can quickly destroy a budget. Remember that any work not specified in the original contract will have a new and additional cost attached to it.
- You may want to obtain financing for your project. There are various financing plans readily available to homeowners. Among the most popular is the equity line of credit which bases the loan amount on the equity of your
- Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loans specifically for home improvements are available through many banks and lending institutions. EHA, however, requires that the contractor be approved by the lender; but be careful, it does not guarantee the contractor's work.
- Some institutions will allow you to borrow against the anticipated equity in your home once your remodeling project is complete. Check your local banks and lending institutions for more details about this form of financing.
- A professional remodeling contractor is familiar with many of the financing options available and can often help you arrange the financing you need. However, it is important for you to research various sources of funding to compare individual qualification guidelines, interest rates, terms and tax considerations.

. Whichever financing plan you choose, stick to it. If you decide that your budget is "X" and your reserve fund in "Y" tell your contractor to work within those figures. It is easy to say, "A little more on this faucet won't matter. It is a small amount of money." Unfortunately, this is also an easy way to overextend your prepared budget.

"I own property on the corner (of Ford Road) and I was going to use it as a parking lot. The planning commission said they didn't want to change zoning to parking. We figured we'd just have to fix up the house."

Amelia Oliverio, the new executive director of the Garden City Chamber of Commerce, has a long association with Garden City. She worked for Garden City Hospital for 20 years.

As a hobby she had started making furniture, learning from a friend of her mother's. Her living room has several examples of her craftsmanship. Her success at furniture making was the inspiration for attempting the

"We had to float cement to bring it up and make it level, reinforcing it pretty good," Robert said.

Robert said Sartor was one of the few companies that

In the large basement, the Oliverios were able to rescue the furnace. With new parts and a green paint job, the furnace was restored to working order. Amelia also had the ducts blown out to remove years of dust.

Amelia and a girlfriend worked on the landscaping. Flowers and a green lawn decorate the front. The backyard has been seeded and Amelia plans to have a patio.

Week celebrates families who dine together

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Now that my son has entered High School with it's long hours, it seems our family time has changed. Mandatory sports programs have replaced our family dinner times.

Other families (single parent or two parent) are experiencing that same situation – not necessarily due to after school games. While 73 percent of 1,000 people surveyed, felt eating together is very important, it seems that conflicting schedules and "no time to prepare" topped the list of why families do not eat together. Of course in this survey, the fast food component was not averaged in.

We often spend a great deal of time planning parties or get-togethers for guests, and forget the importance of those family meals. Some of the activities I'm finding helpful in this area; charting when my child will be home so meals can be either prepared or prepped and ready to go, assigning food prep and clean-up so these tasks can be shared, keeping my pantry stocked with easy put togethers for meals, making large batches of soups and sauces, and freezing it.

The National Pork Producers Council is co-sponsoring a week with the Produce for Better Health Foundation, devoted to encourage families to eat together. Sept. 30 to Oct. 6 is the first annual National Eat Dinner Together Wook

In honor of this special week, the NPPC and 5 A Day developed recipes that includes a week of fun family meals, an activity book that includes puzzles and games that teach about food and nutrition, as well as a grouping of recipes created for budding chefs. To receive this fun package — send a self-addressed mailing label to: National Eat Dinner Together Week, c/o National Pork Producers Council, P.O. Box 10383, Des Moines, Iowa 50306.

Here's my recipe for beef bouillononion soup, this is a very large batch, but freezes well. I've always processed this soup smooth - how many of your children would eat it if they knew it had onions in it?

You can top this soup with cheese and place under the broiler to melt – it is rich enough on it's own, but is especially delicious with melted cheese on top! Make sure the bowls you are using are oven proof.

Serve with crusty bread and a deep green salad. The traditional crouton on the bottom of the soup can be done, we prefer our bread on the side.

SOUP

- 4 tablespoons of olive oil
- 20 cups sliced Spanish onions (approximately 10)
- 4-5 tablespoons of sugar
- 24 cups of beef bouillon (homemade or prepared)

Salt

Place olive oil in a very large non reactive pot. Heat the oil over medium high heat and add the onion slices, stirring to saute.

Cover the pot and reduce the heat to medium, let onions become soft and golden (approximately 20-25 minutes). Sprinkle the sugar over the onions and stir to Add the bouillon - let cook over low heat 45 minutes. Season to taste. Cook another 15 minutes to make sure flavors are well blended.

Let the soup cool down. Once cool, remove in small batches to a blender, food processor or Vita MixIM and process until smooth. Place processed soup into a large bowl or pot, continue processing the rest of the soup until all has been processed. Either rewarm to serve, or freeze in individual containers.

■ If looking for French Jelly jars for freezing, try Kitchen Glamor Stores or the Back Room at Horn of Plenty in Birmingham.

The following recipe has been provided by the National Pork Producers Council specifically for the Eat Dinner Together Week (Day 2):

GARDEN FRESH PORK FAJITAS

- 1 pound boneless pork tenderloin. cut into thin strips
- 1/4 cup reduced fat Italian dressing
- 1/2 medium onion, sliced
- 1 cup sliced bell pepper (green, red, and yellow)
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 4 (8-inch) flour tortillas, warmed

In heavy plastic bag, combine pork strips and dressing. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Drain off liquid. Heat a 12-inch nonstick skillet over medium-high heat; stir-fry pork and onion slices for 5 minutes. Stir in peppers and cook 5 more minutes. Add garlic powder and lemon juice; toss to coat. Serve in warm tortillas. Serve with four fruit salad. Yield: 4 servings

FOUR FRUIT SALAD

- 3/4 cup seedless grapes
- 3/4 cup orange segments
- 1 large apple, cut-up
- 1 large pear cut-up

Toss all ingredients together.

Serving Suggestions:

- 1. Serve on lettuce lined plate with scoop of low fat cottage cheese and lite dressing.
- 2. Serve in glass dish with scoop of sherbet on top.
  - 3. Serve in bowl topped with yogurt.

b festival provides some enlightening ideas

The Holland Bulb Festival in freelance garden columnist for the Northville will feature local and international gardening experts to answer questions on bulb gardening and gardening in general and demonstrate bulb planting.

Featured at the festival will be Marty Figley, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers garden writer; Peter Van Eeden of Hillegom, Holland; and Nancy Szerlag, Detroit News and WDIV-TV.

The Holland Bulb Festival will take place 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 28-29, at Brickscape Gardens, on Old Novi Road, just north of Eight Mile and just east of Novi Road at the Northville/Novi limit. For more information, call Brickscape Gardens at (810) 348-2500.

Figley will answer questions and share gardening tips noon to 3 p.m. Sept. 29. Figley lectures widely, has been writing gardening articles for almost 10 years and has also written book reviews for Oakland County and state master gardener publications and the Herb Society of America.

Szerlag, a master gardener who has been writing for two years, will be at the festival to meet her viewers and readers noon to 3 p.m. Sept. 28.

One of the industry's foremost bulb experts, Van Eeden will be at the festival 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

Also featured at the festival will be entertainment by the ornately costumed Dutch Wooden Shoe Dancers of Holland, Mich., contests, free pony rides, cider and doughnuts.

Power washing preserves paint job

BY READER'S DIGEST BOOKS FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Power washing your house every year with a high-pressure water spray can not only keep it looking good but can cut the need to repaint as often.

Power washing aluminum, steel, vinyl or wood siding removes grit that grinds away the surface like sandpaper when it's agitated by wind or rain. Power washing is also a good way to prepare a house's surface for repainting. If you're lucky, once the siding is clean you may find that you don't need to paint after all.

If your house does need repainting, a thorough power washing removes not only dirt, mildew and moss but also peeling, flaking and chalking paint. You can easily wash even a large house in a single day.

Power washers are available for rent, usually by the day, from tool rental stores and some paint specialty stores. Make sure someone demonstrates how the equipment works and answers all your questions before you leave the store with the washer.

Power washers are rated by the pressure of their spray, measured in pounds per square inch (psi). For the average house, a rating from 1,200 to 2,500 psi, compared to about 60 psi for a garden hose, is sufficient. Less than 1,200 psi won't do the job effectively, and more than 2,500 psi could do damage if not handled skillfully.

Power washing with clear water usually does the trick. But to remove chalking, moss or mildew, you'll probably need a general cleaning agent, available where you rent the equipment.

Nozzle design and spray width are important. The recommended nozzle sizes are 15, 25 and 40 degrees with the 15- and 25-degree nozzles the ones that achieve the best results.

Power wash from the bottom up, to prevent dirt and the cleaning agent from running down onto the unwashed surface and leaving streaks. Rinse from the top down, to wash away the cleaning agent and dirt thoroughly and avoid leaving streaks on the clean surface.

Here are some more tips:

Always wear safety goggles to protect your eyes from splashback or accidental direct spray.

■ Make sure all windows are closed tightly.

Turn off the power to light fixtures and electrical outlets at your home's main service panel. Cover them with plastic bags or film secured with duct tape.

■ If it's windy, don't wash.

■ Keep the nozzle 10 to 12 inches from the surface, at about a 45-degree angle.

Use extra caution when cleaning aluminum or steel siding. A power washer can bend sections — even blow them right off the house.

■ Windows can break if you spray directly at them.

■ Don't spray under the laps of horizontal siding; it can lift them. And don't spray directly into crawl spaces or gable-end vents.

Don't let children operate a power

■ When it's operating, never put your hand near the tip of the wand or aim it at a person or animal. The water will penetrate and cause severe injury.

■ Keep at least 10 feet from any power lines.

You'll be working with a lot of water pressure but with a little practice you should be able to control the wand. Keep in mind that a telescoping wand — which you'll need to reach higher floors — can kick back 3 to 4 feet each time you depress the handle.

Dishwasher works better when cleaned

By Popular Mechanics For AP Special Features

Your household appliances will work more efficiently and have an increased useful service life if you perform simple routine maintenance. In the case of your dishwasher, for example, usually all that's needed to keep it in good working order is to keep its door gasket and spray arms clean and fish out the kitchen jetsam from under the heating element.

While the door gasket may appear clean where it is plainly visible, there's a good chance its bottom section is covered with a slimy dirt that can cause the door to leak. Hold a hand mirror to the bottom of the door to reveal any accumulation of dirt.

Use a strong, nonabrasive household cleaner to remove the dirt from the gasket and door panel. You might also lift the water level float from the base of the cabinet to check for dirt. If the float gets too dirty, it can stick in place, throwing the water level out of whack.

While you're at it, check the openings in the spray arms for small shreds of plastic. Remove these shreds with a pair of tweezers.

Also check the drain area regularly for bread sack fasteners, small measuring spoons or other kitchen items. Not only can these items be baked onto the heating element, they may break up and chip the food grinding impellers located in the drain.

Finally, make sure some water remains in the base of the dishwasher. If you seldom use your dishwasher, add water periodically. If left to dry out, the pump seals may leak when the dishwasher is used.

When it comes to maintaining your washer and dryer, the best you can do for these appliances is to keep them level and clean. If they are out of level, their moving parts will wear unevenly and excessively. Any service technician can tell you that most of the laundry appliances he encounters are completely out of level. In some cases, "self-leveling" legs compound the problem, as they don't always level the appliance, but extend to close the gap between themselves and the floor.

Place a small level on the top frame of the appliance to determine where the problem lies. Then, thread the legs up or down accordingly, or in the case of the self-leveling legs, lift the low side of the appliance until that leg extends to the proper height.

To keep the finish on these appliances looking good, wash them regularly with a mild detergent. Clothing dyes can stain the insides of washers and dryers, so clean their drums frequently, especially after washing new clothes. Some components, such as the fabric softener reservoir on a washing machine, can be removed for better cleaning. The reservoir is often held in place by a friction ring. Just lift this ring and the reservoir will detach from the agitator.

And, finally, you should fasten the washer discharge hose to the plumbing stand pipe. A washer discharge pump is capable of moving 50 to 60 gallons of water per minute. That much pressure has a tendency to lift the discharge hose right out of its plumbing pipe. There are several devices made for this problem, including a friction-fit gasket.

Lacking a factory-made solution, use wire or duct tape to secure the hose. A loose discharge hose can do hundreds of dollars in water damage.

Because dryers produce so much lint, you'll need to pay particular attention to the lint trap and the dryer vent tube. Remove and clean the lint trap with each load. Failing to clean the lint trap regularly can cause the dryer to overheat and can start a fire. It also affects efficiency.

Also, check the vent tube twice a year, especially if your dryer vents up, as most dryers located in basements do. Pull the dryer out to get behind it. Then pull the vent from the dryer connection. This will allow you to shake any lint and debris accumulation from the tube.

Tips on caring for computer disks

(NAPS) — Here are some tips for taking care of your computer disks from the Consumer Electronics Manufacturers Association.

- Buy storage containers to protect your disks which are susceptible to magnetic fields and can be accidentally erased or damaged if not stored properly. Disk storage cases are available for all types of disks and can be bought at most consumer electronics retailers.
- To make disks last longer, heed these precautions:

Write on the disk label before you attach it to the disk.

Once the label is attached, write on it with a felt-tip pen, not a ball-point.

Don't touch the magnetic surface.

Don't bend the disk or attach notes to it with paper clips.

Don't force the disk into the disk

Don't put magnets on the disk and keep disks at least three inches away from magnetic fields such as stereo or TV speakers or transformers, even if the disks are in a storage case.

Don't leave a disk in direct sunlight. Don't smoke around your disks.

Don't place anything on top of disks (tools, books, etc.).

Don't expose disks to extreme hot or them at room temperature at least two hours before using.

■ If chocolate, correction fluid or other non-water-soluble liquids spill on your disk, contact the manufacturer for advice on removing them...

■ To protect disks from the static electricity and other adverse conditions during mailing, use special disk-mailing envelopes lined with foam.

Beyond taking care of your disks, regularly clean your disk drive. Check your computer's instruction manual. The manufacturer may recommend a head cleaning kit which is usually available from retailers.

Whether it's a fish market in a quaint seaside village or a large flea market near your hometown, you're never far away from the opportunity to photograph in a

It's always easy to shoot pictures unobserved in markets because there is usually plenty of activity and people are generally preoccupied with the business of wheeling and dealing. Most market people are extrovert in character, which offers even a better chance of good subject material.

The most difficult problem in photographing a market is being selective. A market is a busy place, making it easy to take pictures that are too busy and confusing. So it's best to choose a viewpoint and compose your shots in such a way that extraneous details are excluded and attention is focused firmly on the central subject.

Often a telephoto lens is best because you can isolate a smaller area of the scene and throw distracting background details out of focus. This is particularly useful when you want to single out a certain face from the crowd.

An outdoor market in Moscow provided me opportunity for many good shots. In all the hustle and bustle, many candid shots were available. But this woman selling potatoes cooperated fully with the camera. A 90mm telephoto lens enabled me to get in close for impact while at the same time subdue the background.

Anywhere you travel, or even close to home, market places are fun and rewarding. Not only might you bring home that special gift or souvenir, but you'll bring home prize-winning photographs, too.

Chemicals prevent wood-rotting fungus

BY READER'S DIGEST BOOKS FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Crumbling foundations. Mushy windowsills. Falling fence posts. For years, homeowners were doomed to replace rotted wood.

But the battle may finally be over. Some manufacturers now guarantee _ not merely claim _ that their pressuretreated wood products will withstand termites and decay for life.

The basic problem? Wood rots. The source of this destruction? Fungus. Not just one type of fungus, either. There's an entire army of fungus species that thrives on wood. They eat the wood and cause the fiber to dissolve.

But fungi cannot infest wood everywhere. They need air, water and a 50-to-90-degree temperature range to thrive. Otherwise, they lie dormant or die.

Wood for foundation and outdoor use is a prime candidate for rot when it gets wet and doesn't have a chance to dry out.

The idea of preserving wood with chemicals began with the natural defenses of rot-resistant wood, notably redwood and cedar. The darker colored heartwood of these trees contains chemicals toxic to most fungus species. The lighter colored sapwood, toward the outside of the tree, is no more resistant than other woods.

Currently, there are three types of chemicals commonly used for preserving wood: pentachlorophenol (called penta), creosote and chromated copper arsenate (CCA). All are applied commercially only and are not available to homeowners. Penta and creosote are used mainly in industrial applications. Most of the treated lumber a homeowner can buy is treated with CCA (or a similar chemical), which can be identified by the distinctively greenish color of the wood. CCA is dissolved in water and forced deep into the wood under pressure. It bonds with the wood fibers as the wood dries. After that, it won't leach out and protects the wood indefinitely.

The quality of treated wood varies, depending on the species of tree and on how deeply the preservative penetrates. To be effective the preservative should penetrate at least 2 1/2 inches into the wood. If you cut through a 2-by-4, the greenish tint should show throughout, although it will become lighter toward the center. An AWPA (American Wood Preservers Association) stamp or tag on the lumber is a sign of quality control. A lifetime guarantee tag is another good quality indicator.

Also, note that brushing on a preservative, or soaking or dipping a piece of wood in a preservative, is not as good as pressure treatment. With repeated wetting and drying, such surface-treated wood develops deep cracks, exposing untreated areas where fungus can grow.

Like any other wood, pressure-treated wood will warp, crack and swell from exposure to moisture. But once it's dry, most treated wood can be stained, painted or treated with water repellent to protect it from the elements and keep it stable.

The preservatives in treated wood can be harmful and should be treated with respect. Don't use pressure-treated wood where human or animal food can be exposed to it, such as for countertops, cutting boards and pet dishes. Wash any parts of your skin that come in contact with pressure-treated wood.

Don't use it indoors or where there might be frequent skin contact with it unless it's sealed with at least two coats of polyurethane, epoxy or shellac. For more details, read the consumer information pamphlets available wherever treated wood is sold.

Also, wear a dust mask to avoid inhaling sawdust when cutting treated wood. Don't burn the sawdust or scrap pieces; chemicals in the smoke can be inhaled. Dispose of the scraps in your ordinary trash collection or bury it.

Rents top out in these offices

By Doug Funke STAFF WRITER

In Birmingham, the highest office asking rents are Munder Capital Center, 480 Pierce, $22.50 per square foot per year, and 260 Brown Street, $21.50-$24 per square foot annually.

Both buildings were filled to capacity as of June.

In Livonia, the highest asking rents include Powerscourt Executive Office Complex, 17199 Laurel Park Dr. North, $19.75, and Seven Mile Crossing I and II, $19.50.

Vacancy in those three office buildings, each with more than 100,000 square feet of space and close to I-275, is 8 percent or less.

Higher rents and fewer vacancies are typical throughout the suburbs, according to a mid-year review by the Hayman Co., a commercial real estate/property management firm in Troy.

"The market has tightened up. These asking rates are being sustained," said Peter J. Ulrich, executive vice president for Hayman.

"Location is key, quality of building, quality of service provided to tenants in a buildings," he said.

Neighbors also will reflect commercial real estate rates.

"Who do you want to be adjacent to a back office banking operation or a Fortune 500 company or a major law firm in the metro market?" Ulrich asked.

Commercial real estate rates also are very much determined by supply and demand.

"If demand remains constant and supply goes away, the rate goes up. If supply is abundant, the rate goes down," Ulrich said.

"We've seen the market shifting. There's no new supply. That's part of it. The auto industry also has been performing very well. That empowers firms that supply services and prod-

Class A buildings command the most rent.

Typically, institutional owners like here (Prudential Town Center) will have a higher-quality building," said Bill Pankhurst, vice president of marketing for Premisys Real estate Services. "They will put more money in granite in the lobbies, marble.

"In addition, there's the type of services you offer," he continued. "Here, we have a barber shop, florist, Federal Express. We have two banks, a printing center. We have stockbro-

"It's kind of a city concept. You don't have to leave the development to conduct daily business activities," he said.

Covered parking and good freeway access also tend to boost rents, Pankhurst said.

Developers know that executives often want to work near where they live. So Bloomfield Hills offices, for example, will reflect the prestige and affluence of the rest of that communi-

That 242,000-square-foot building is 93-percent occupied.

Forest Park Office Center, 31300 Northwestern, has the highest asking rate in Parmington Hills, $20 per square foot. The 45,000-square-foot building was 22-percent vacant.

Office status: Asking rents are generally higher and vacancies are lower in suburban office submarkets. Seven Mile Crossing (left) is one of the most expensive office lease areas in Livonia.

The four Arboretum buildings totaling nearly 600,000 square feet on W. 12 Mile in Farmington Hills asks $18.95. Occupancy at Arboretum ranged from 100 to 91 percent.

In Troy, the Standard Federal Building, 2600 W. Big Beaver, asks $25 per square foot, Columbia Center, 201 W. Big Beaver, $22,50.

Both are close to I-75 and both, 450,000 and 253,000 square feet, respectively, are full.

Ulrich pointed out several reasons why municipalities would covet a healthy commercial office market.

"Tax revenue. If fully occupied, building are fully assessed. A portion of that money goes to community ser-

"It also adds to the sociological mix of a town," he added. "It also tends to be an indicator of how well the economy is doing. It's a piece of the puz-

Bloomfield Centre I, 1533 N. Woodward, and Pinehurst, 1400 N. Woodward, ask $23.50 per square foot in Bloomfield Hills.

Bloomfield Centre, 137,000 square feet, is 98 percent occupied, Pinehurst, 147,000 square feet, nearly 93 percent.

In West Bloomfield, Orchard Pointe, 7125 Orchard Lake Road, and Yorktowne Executive Offices, 5777 Maple, ask $18.50 per square foot.

Orchard Pointe, twice as large as Yorktowne with 64,000 square feet, has a vacancy rate of 19 percent, Yorktowne, 11 percent. In Auburn Hills, the Woodcreek Building, 811 South Boulevard, asks $18 and the 28,000-square-foot building is half vacant.

Concorde Office Centre, 691 N. Squirrel, asks $17.50. That building, 147,000 square feet, is only 5 percent

According to Hayman, 14 of the 29 office buildings surveyed in Birmingham, 45 of 103 in Troy, 10 of 26 in Livonia and 19 of 60 in Farmington Hills had no vacancy.

Even in Southfield, which has had come up. "Everyone benefits."

the highest vacancy rate in the suburbs, 24 of 126 buildings surveyed were full.

Another indication of the tightening office market here is that vacancies are low even in many lower-cost rent buildings - traditionally older, smaller and not as opulent or well located.

South Adams Square in Birmingham asks $14 per square foot and is 98 percent leased. The Stoddard Building and Winthrop Place in Bloomfield Hills ask $16 and are fully occupied.

Other comparable low-rent buildings with no available space include 11878 Hubbard, $6.50, and 29500 Five Mile, $7, both in Livonia, and 165 Kirts, $7.85, and 255 Kirts, $8.75, both in Troy.

Those four buildings encompass about 120,000 square feet combined.

"Tightening of the market is like a rising tide," Ulrich said. "As that goes up, Class B's come up and Class C's the Fair Housing Act.

A. This is a growing area of concern for community associations, particularly because of the policy initiated by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in enforcing the Fair Housing Act.

Administrative law judges have held that homeowners associations can impose restriction on children, such as minimum ages to use the pool, only if the rules are motivated by legitimate concerns for the health and safety of the children. A rule that noise that would interfere with adult's

Another court has held that, as a general rule, safety judgments are for informed parents to make, not landlords. All such rules must be designed to protect the health, safety and welfare of the child.

Rules should require all users to have swimming skills, not just children. Use restrictions should not give special privileges to any age group.

As an example, one may not be able to arbitrarily set a minimum age for children unless accompanied by a parent or guardian and, again, it must be designed to protect the health, safety and welfare of

Do I have anything to worry about?

A. Chances are you do not have a concern regarding your co-tenant's attempt to exclude you from the use of the property.

As a joint tenant, neither party can recover exclusive possession of the property. They can only recover the right to jointly use the property. In effect, in this situation if the parties cannot agree, the appropriate relief is the sale or partition of the property.

You are best advised to consult an attorney to advise you on your rights.

Michigan ties for house affordability

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Michigan and North Dakota were tied right at the top of the national rankings for the lowest percentage of monthly household income needed to buy a house last year, according to a tracking service based in Canton.

Moreover, Michigan was in the top third of national rankings for the lowest average monthly mortgage payment, and Detroit fell right in the middle of 31 metropolitan areas for monthly housing costs. The report was prepared by U.S. Housing Markets.

state," said Brian Bragg, editor of the publication. "The economy has been very strong, one of the strongest in the country.

"Plus interest rates - even though they're up a little bit, they're at an affordable level. That affects monthly payment dramatically," Bragg added.

According to the survey, 16.2 percent of household income was used to pay the principal and interest, property taxes and homeowners insurance on the average purchase, a composite of existing and new houses, last year in Michigan and North Dakota.

Iowa ranked 10th at 17.3 percent, South Dakota 20th at 18.6 percent, Alabama, 30th, 20.9 percent, North Carolina, 40th, 22.2 percent, and Hawaii, 50th, 27.5 percent. The average monthly house payment on 1995 house purchases in Michigan was $840, according to U.S. Housing Markets.

wood windows with tough, longlasting exteriors." Clad windows are easy to keep clean. Light surface dirt is usually washed off by normal rainfall, and thicker dirt can be removed with a wash and a rinse with clear water. After rinsing well are a great alternative for cus-

and drying you can use car wax to add shine. "Exterior finish is an important aspect of cladding," Siegle says. "To reduce fading or chalking, you'll want to look for a commercial-grade finish that meets and exceeds the American Architectural Manufacturing Association's specifications." Fading is due to UV rays breaking down pigment in the coating. Chalking occurs when the resin in the cladding is damaged over time. Recently improved production techniques allow thick, lowmaintenance extruded aluminum cladding to be shaped with round tops and circular windows.
