House foes debate taxes

Both congressional candidates agreed on the need for campaign reform and for helping small businesses, but split on support of the Brady Bill and ban on assault weapons.

BY LEONARD POGER

Two congressional candidates talked about money - money for economic expansion, money that is wasted by the federal government and money that is part of a tax system.

Money issues dominated the Westland Chamber of Commerce candidates' forum Tuesday.

On center stage were U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, seeking her second two-year term at the Nov. 5 election, and Joseph Fitzsimmons, her Republican opponent and former head of UMI Inc. of Ann Arbor.

The 13th Congressional District includes Westland, Garden City, Canton, Plymouth city and township and part of Livonia.

In prepared comments and answers to chamber members in the audience, Rivers and Fitzsimmons covered what they would do for small businesses, tax reform, campaign spending, welfare reform and gun control.

On helping home-based businesses, Fitzsimmons said he would provide assistance through his platform of expanding the national economy through cuts in the personal income tax, cutting the capital gains tax in half and allowing businesses to deduct health care premiums.

"I want to create the best climate for small businesses to grow," he said.

Rivers' position is to improve productivity through increased savings which would lead to more money for potential investments.

On the related issue of federal tax cuts and balanced budgets, Rivers said that "we must balance the bud-

3 suspects questioned in robberies

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Three suspects, captured Sunday after Westland and other police officers surrounded an Inkster house, face possible armed robbery charges for a string of holdups in western Wayne County, authorities said.

The standoff ended without gunfire shortly before 5 a.m. Sunday after police officers from several departments closed in on an Inkster house where two juvenile male suspects were holed up with two friends, police said. Police arrested a third suspect, an adult male, later Sunday at a Romulus hotel, Romulus police Lt. David Early said.

The arrests followed surveillance efforts by several western Wayne County police departments, including Westland.

"We will be getting numerous armed robbery warrants," Early said Tuesday.

Westland Police Chief Emery Price said Monday that the suspects are believed to be connected to a Though she is from western Kentucky and privately rooting for the Cardinals, she didn't display her feelings during the game, which Louisville won.

The employee asked that her identify be kept confidential – probably to avoid retaliation by angry Spartan fans.

Patchin school plan is revised

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Some parents oppose a revised residential development plan that would encroach on a Patchin Elementary playground and dump more traffic on the neighborhood.

Others support the new plan because it would create a nature study area on wooded property near the school, located on Newburgh Road south of Warren.

Wayne-Westland Superintendent Duane Moore unveiled the modified proposal to about 30 residents during a Monday afternoon meeting at the school.

He predicted that a majority of Wayne-Westland school board members will support the proposal that could be decided as early as Tuesday, during a 7 p.m. session at district offices on Marquette east of New-

Some parents aren't convinced that 12 acres of Patchin land should be sold for $360,000 to Dearborn Real Estate Co., which wants to build condominiums on property south and east of the school.

Leigh Krull said her first-grade son, Maxwell, is upset that Patchin will lose some playground space.

"My son is devastated," she said after hearing Moore's presentation.

Moore cited several proposed changes to a development plan approved by the school board in January.

• A condominium entrance on Newburgh Road, south of Patchin, would be widened to 240 feet, double the original 120 feet. Some parents remain concerned about increased traffic near the school.

• One playground area would have to be moved, but Moore said the developer has offered $10,000 for new equipment. Parents suggested more money should be sought,

• A wooded area east of the school would become a nature study area, allowing students to walk trails and use a new nature center. The structure, possibly no larger than a classroom, would likely be a pavilion, Patricia Brand, assistant superintendent of business, said.

 Trees and a fence would provide a buffer between Patchin and the condominiums, and a student crosswalk would be provided at the development's entrance. Some parents suggested two crosswalks are needed.

• Two of three baseball fields would be lost, but Moore said the school would retain 11 acres of playground area that could be restructured. A soccer field would remain.

Developers want to shift some of the development closer to Newburgh Road because soil borings east of the school revealed a 2.4-acre area unsuitable for building due to a high water table, Moore said.

Resident Dallas Brown, 81, said he opposes the new plan because it will encroach on a kindergarten play-

"I think most of us are concerned about these 6-yearold babies having no place to play," he said.

Brown also was among the residents who questioned why school officials negotiated with only one developer, rather than placing the Patchin property on the open market for bids.

Parent Frank Cote told Moore that officials should "open up a bidding war" among developers, in hopes of getting more money for the land.

"I just don't understand the one-developer quick-sale,"

Moore responded that school officials aren't required to seek bids, and he added that the board received "a good offer."

A three-member school board finance committee has recommended that the revised plan be submitted for approval to the full seven-member board, indicating that only one more vote is needed for a majority.

When asked by residents if he believes the board will approve the amended plan, Moore said Monday, "I suspect so if I make the recommendation."

Some residents indicated that they hope to sway school board members before a vote is taken.

Moore said new development could bring in more students to the 15,000-pupil district, which is expected to see an enrollment decline of 300 to 400 students a year.

"The more development that comes into the area, it certainly would help our population," Moore told the parents Monday.

Some residents said school board members had implied that single-family homes, rather than condominiums, would be built on the site. Moore said he has "always" discussed the project as a condominium development.

"I never wavered from that," he said.

Westland resident Teresa Robbins was among those who said the nature center makes the project more appealing. School officials say the developer plans to pay

"I think that's a very good trade-off," Robbins said.

Parent Lisa Price, whose first-grade son Justin attends Patchin, didn't seem receptive to the new plan or the old

"I don't like either one," she said after she heard Moore's presentation. "But I don't think we have a choice."

City council honors former department head

In an emotional presentation that prompted a standing ovation, the Westland City Council on Monday gave a certificate of appreciation to former Public Services Director Carl Clark, a Lou Gehrig's disease sufferer who retired earlier this year.

Accompanied by his wife and his daughter, Clark accepted a plaque from council President Sandra Cicirelli in honor of his 16-year tenure

"The years I've served this city, I appreciate it," Clark said, singling out some of his former administration colleagues for praise.

In presenting the plaque, Cicirelli noted, "All of us on the council looked to Carl for a lot of help when he was here with the city."

She added that Clark always responded promptly to questions posed by city council members.

Clark also was consistent in responding quickly with information requested by the Observer.

Councilwoman Sharon Scott couldn't be at Monday's council meeting, but she said in a letter read by Cicirelli that Clark was an "excellent" public services director who also is a good friend.

In another presentation, the council honored the Wayne-Westland Federal Credit Union for raising money to help needy children, such as buying winter coats, mittens and boots.

The council also presented a plaque to Thelma Wright, the credit union's chief executive officer, and to Andrew Spisak, credit union president.

get before we cut taxes."

She said history has shown that the supply side economics theory supported by Republican presidential nominee Robert Dole hasn't been successful.

Dole's plan to cut income taxes 15 percent is supported by Fitzsimmons, who said "we must have it to stimulate the economy."

He also insisted that if taxes are cut, there must also be a reduction in government spend-

On campaign reform, both agreed that something must be Fitzsimmons said that he plans to spend $1 million in the campaign and has been successful so far in raising money.

Rivers said that while she has received money from Political Action Committees and individuals, she will match her opponent's campaign spending.

The incumbent said campaign reform is needed to enable qualified people to run for public office.

"We need ideas, not dollars" in campaigns, she added.

In a question about his being a "career politician and being influenced by special interest groups," Fitzsimmons said he believes in term limits and that if elected next month would only serve three terms.

He said he is receiving few donations from PACs.

On welfare reform, Rivers said she supports Michigan Gov. John Engler's plan to give more flexibility in administering federal programs and that she voted for Engler's request for waivers of requirements.

But "we must give people the tools to be self-sufficient," such as job training and child care, Rivers said.

Fitzsimmons said that Engler and Michigan "have done a wonderful job on welfare reform."

"The best welfare is a job," he his plan to expand the economy to create jobs.

He also said he favors the use of private organizations to get. involved in helping people.

On other issues, there was a major difference between the two candidates on gun control.

Rivers said she supports the existing Brady Bill and ban on assault weapons, although she is willing to review the list of those weapons.

"The community made it very clear that it wants the ban on assault weapons continued," Rivers said.

Fitzsimmons said he feels that everyone has the right to have a gun in the home for protection or, a weapon for hunting.

But he would repeal the Brady Bill and replace it with an "instant check" system to keep guns away from criminals.

The Republican nominee said he is mostly concerned with the root causes of the gun problem, saying that drugs are behind 75 percent of crimes.

"We need to educate kids and parents" about drugs, he said.

Is the Internal Revenue Service a friend or enemy of small business?

"That depends on what you are asking for," Rivers said.

She admitted that some people in government "don't have the" mission of serving people."

"Certainly the IRS is not a friend to business," Fitzsimmons said, citing the high cost of complying with government forms and regulations.

He said that cost is $600 billion nationally, or about double the defense budget.

Church event triggers protest

BY BILL CASPER-STAFF WRITER

An educational powwow at an area church Saturday afternoon was the target of a protest by several Native Americans upset by possible misrepresentation of a traditional, American Indian activity.

About 25 people walked picket lines in protest of the powwow at Unity of Livonia church. Church officials allowed the event to continue after a two-hour meeting with three Native American representatives and issuing a verbal disclaimer to people attending the event.

"We are happy to share information about our culture and traditions with the non-native population, but it is essential that the information be accurate and authentic," said Chippewa Indian George Fuhst of Redford in a written statement.

"The term powwow connotes Indian sponsorship and we object to these events being advertised as though our people were authenticating them."

Fuhst, who owns an electrical contracting business in Redford, is vice president of Indian World and vice president of the Redford Union Board of Education.

"The powwow was an inaccurate representation of our native culture," said Thurman Bear of American Indian Health and Family Services in Detroit. "My intention was to talk to people sponsoring the powwow and the crowd attending to inform them that the native ceremonies were not accurate or authentic. I was afforded the opportunity to address the crowd.'

The disclaimer informed people attending the powwow that the event was not an accurate representation of Native American culture and not sanctioned by American natives, Bear said.

"I told them it's very commendable to want to learn about other cultures because that's how we will all get along. We will gladly share information about our culture with anyone, but people should come to the correct source for the right information.

"I did not see anyone of American native descent, who could conduct an authentic ceremony," Bear said.

nformalities when deemed in the best interest of the City.

People attending the event were made aware of an option to attend an authentic powwow that day at Eastern Michigan University for an accurate representation of the activity, Bear said.

After he spoke, some people left when they realized the powwow was not an accurate representation, but a lot of people stayed, he said.

"I think the church minister and board chairman got the message of our concern that the presentation was not accurate," Bear said.

Linda Schuyler, who was among the picketers, said she talked to some teachers and they told her they were attending for a learning experience.

"Fall is the season when awareness of Native Americans peaks and we're glad to share our culture," said Schuyler, a Minnesota Chippewa whose home reservation is in White Earth, Minn. "I became upset because people were dressing up and playing Indian. But no native Indians were involved in the powwow and I think these people were perpetuating stereotypes and myths about Native Americans.

"The ceremonies and costumes were not authentic." she said. "My concern is that non-Indians were involved in the ceremonies that did not highlight the Native American way."

Church officials apologized to the picketers, Schuyler said. They didn't know they were doing anything wrong, she said.

"It was a matter of misinformation and a lack of understanding," Schuyler said. "People attending the event thought the activities were being performed by Native Americans, and some left when they realized American Indians were not involved."

Picketers distributed informational fact sheets to church officials and people attending the powwow, Schuyler said.

The fact sheets also list American Indian agencies- in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Saturday's church-sponsored powwow was the fourth year in a row for the event, but church officials were not aware they were doing anything wrong, said Derek Dube, the church's events coordinator.

Chili event in area will help ailing youngsters

By JEFF COUNTS STAFF WRITER

The weather forecast for Sunday calls for partly sunny skies and chili.

That's not the official forecast. It's the one put together by Plymouth art gallery owner Annette Horn for Plymouth's Great Chili Cook-Off which is slated to run from noon to 6 p.m. in The Gathering adjacent to Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

There, more than 20 cooks will be doing their best with hot chilies, beans and beef, vying for a top prize of $500 and a chance to go to the state cook-off sponsored by the International Chili Society. The winner of that event goes to the national cook-off.

"The winner of the national cook-off last week in Reno was Georgia Weller of West Bloomfield," said Horn, a chili cook who is organizing the Plymouth

She said Weller is the first Midwest cook to win the national competition.

"There's this thing that only people from the West can cook chili," she said. Money raised by the Plymouth event will go to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, which grants wishes to children with serious ailments.

"There's been a lot of interest," said Horn. "I've already received a $250 check for the foundation. People are excited because the money will stay in Michigan." The event starts at noon when the folks in the chili competition start cooking. The chili judging will take place from 3-4:30 p.m., with the awards presentation at

One way that those who are attending the cook-off can ensure that their money goes to charity is to buy tickets to taste the chili, said Horn. The cost is 25 cents per taste.

The tickets will be available after 3 p.m. Also, to raise money, the Plymouth Landing and Station 885 are making chili that will be sold in 8-ounce cups.

Pursell calls stadium tax 'abuse of power'

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

David Ramsey disagrees with the proposed use of tax dollars to build a new stadium in Detroit.

"It's like me going to (Canton Township supervisor) Tom Yack and asking him to build me a new building," said Ramsey, a Canton Rotarian who is selfemployed in real estate.

Ramsey had just heard Carl Pursell, a former U.S. Congressional member, criticize Proposition S at a lunch Monday for the Canton Rotary Club.

The proposition involves a series of taxes to help build a new Detroit Lions football stadium. It asks for an excise tax of 1 percent on hotel rooms and 2 percent on motor vehicle rentals to give to a stadium authority.

The tax would last 30 years. The proposition involves $245 million for a Lions football stadium adjacent to a new Tiger stadium, including $80 million in excise taxes, if voters say yes.

Pursell has initiated a drive against the ballot proposal. He now co-chairs Taxpayers Against Proposition S (TAPS).

On Monday, he called county officials' drive to place the progosal on the ballot "an inept abuse of power." He criticized the county commission, where he once served 26 years ago.

The commissioners conducted public hearings, but they did not advertise in general publication newspapers, as they are required to do under the Open Meetings Act, Pursell said. They did not advertise in the Detroit News or Free Press, but rather with the Detroit Legal News.

Pursell accused the commissioners of "ramming this thing' through," on a 12-3 vote.

But Pursell spent much of his time criticizing the tax itself.

"This $30 million is an encumbrance for us in Wayne County," Pursell said. "If it passes, I think there will be a tax revolt."

About 250 cars a day are rented in Plymouth by business people, or family members staying in town with relatives, Pursell said. "We're all paying this tax directly," Pursell said. "Our hotel and motel tax is more expensive than other communities."

Pursell said many public officials do not see the significance of the tax on communities. He recalled a quote used by others during political campaigns: "You cannot tax yourself into prosper-

"Many people believe the bigger that government gets, the more services it can provide to people trying to raise a family," Pursell said.

Pursell called the Detroit school system the "worst in the state," but yet William Clay Ford, the owner of the Lions, wanted tax money for a stadium. Pursell said another taxpayer funded program in Detroit - empowerment zones - earmarks no money for reading pro-

"Let's use our tax dollars for the right purposes, not the wrong ones," he said.

Other Rotarians supported Pursell's position.

Ramsey called using tax dollars to fund a stadium "a crime." He disagreed with assertions from stadium supporters that Detroit businesses will benefit from the new facilities.

"(Sports fans) will go to the stadium, but they'll get in their cars, drive home and will still eat dinner near their homes," Ramsey said.

John Schwartz, a building manager for the Canton library, also agreed with Pursell's argument.

"These guys are all business" people," Schwartz said, pointing to other Rotarians. "To build their businesses, they've had to borrow money."

Schwartz said there was nothing to reimburse taxpayers for the stadium, while owners do not pay taxes on them.

Ed Schulz, a certified public accountant in Plymouth, said the speech helped him affirm his beliefs that Wayne County commissioners should have sought more public input before approving the ballot proposal.

"I thought (Pursell's speech) was very factual. You need representation from all aspects of the community," Schulz said.

"I do support his position and I'm for privatization of the stadi-

But Schulz concluded that Wayne County voters should have the final say, which they will do on Nov. 5.

Metro expansion to cost more than $1 billion

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Commissioner Kay Beard, D. Westland, called Wednesday a historic day for Wayne County."

"We'll have the kind of airport to make us one of the big players in terms of global economics." Beard said.

A $1.2 billion plan to expand Detroit Metropolitan Airport was approved by Wayne County commissioners between Wayne County and Northwest Airlines.

But the agreement still needs approval from at least 85 percent of the other airline carriers at Metro.

The project development agreement calls for construction of a new midfield passenger terminal with 64 domestic and 10 international gates, a power plant, garage and taxiways. Plans also call for a fourth parallel runway for an estimated $116 million near the west side of the airport.

Construction is expected to be completed by early 2001.

The project outlined a domestic terminal for $413 million, midfield aprons and taxiways for $108 million, international terminal for $85 million, an interim improvement program for $60 million, power plant and utilities for $45 million, a cargo, maintenance and mail facility for $38 million, and terminal roadways for $34 million.

Northwest Airlines will be responsible for overseeing the midfield terminal building project, a new cargo facility, maintenance facility and mail handling facility.

Construction of the midfield terminal and the capital improvement program will be financed through $496 million in airport revenue bonds, $240 million in "pay-as-you go" passenger facility charges, $228 in federal grants, and $65 million in state

McNamara praised the commissioners and thanked them for their vote.

"I think it's the largest construction project in the state of Michigan," he said. The commission voted 14-0 with one abstention (Susan Hubbard D-Dearborn).

Detroit Metro was the only airport in the U.S. to fly directly from the United States to Beijing, China, McNamara said. China will be a great market for American companies, and the expanded airport will help the county and state attract more business, McNamara said.

Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, proposed a resolution which was approved that called for $115 million to be spent on noise mitigation and. would not be diverted from that purpose. Patterson's district contains Metro Airport.

Patterson was joined by Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, in introducing the resolution. Patterson said he was concerned about costs.

McCotter believed the resolution "clears up" the issue of noise mitigation. "We believe it is in the best interest of the taxpayers and the traveling public," McCotter said. "We also believe this will prevent the expansion of Willow Run."

Patterson and McCotter were concerned about that issue, as nearby residents were opposed to that airport's expansion.

McCotter believed private business will have more incentive to seek lower bids on the construction work, Northwest will handle many of the contracts for the midfield terminal and oversight responsibility for construction and financial controls.

Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Redford Township. echoed their concerns about the noise.

"Departures over District 9 (Dearborn Heights, Redford Township and part of Livonia) decreased by 88 percent in four years," Plawecki said. "But arrivals are still an issue for me and my constituents.

"But I supported the expansion for the jobs and the economic development."

helped parents and grandparents finance youngsters' college tuition. Even Doug Roberts (state treasurer under Gov. John Engler) bought in. The current governor said it (MET) is not cost-effective. (The challenge at WSU is) to bring the university into the 21st Century, reassess programs, form collaborative programs with public schools and community colleges." She endorsed the Clinton Administration's efforts to provide aid to college students.

Charter schools

What is the university policy toward chartering public school academies?

Anthony (R): "That is still in evaluation. Wayne hasn't been aggressive in granting charters." Miller (D): "I served 24 years on the State Board of Education. I heard Minnesota's Gov. Perpich on charter schools. It never occurred to me they would be used against public education. They should be magnet schools."

Fecko (R): "I favor innovation and charters. But you (chartering authority) also have the responsibility to supervise the schools you charter. Central Michigan University has chartered 32 or more, but it hasn't supervised them."

Jackson (D): "Wayne State helped Detroit solve its problems (by chartering a school). I supported the first one." He added he has "misgivings" about some of the other schools chartered in Michigan.

Faculty teaching

Students sometimes complain that top faculty members do research and don't teach undergraduate students. Is that a problem?

Jackson (D): "Most students have professors in their classes. Professors teach, by and large. At Wayne, we don't have that problem."

Anthony (R): "We don't have a major problem at Wayne. Professors are necessary especially for counseling. We use graduate student assistants but under the leadership of a professor."

. Miller (D): "I just completed a program in art history at Wayne. The professors were most willing to talk with us, individually and as a group."

Fecko (R): "Education is No. 1. Research and public service follow. They (professors) have an obligation to teach. If they do research, they should have students in the lab."

Candidates were quoted in the order in which they spoke. A 30minute segment of the program was videotaped. To see it, call' you local cable TV company and ask it to obtain a copy of the Sept. 26 AAUW program from Time Warner of Livonia.

Patient's rights bills get unanimous House OK

By TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

The state House of Representatives was one vote short of unanimous as it passed a bill banning a "date rape" drug.

But it gave 100 percent approval to lame-duck Rep. John Jamian's "Patient's Bill of Rights" package. The bills go next to the Senate.

The House handed Jamian a going-away present by giving unanimous approval, on votes of more than 100-0, to a package of bills he steered through his Health Policy Committee. They would:

■ Protect patients with preexisting conditions.

■ Protect workers against losing health insurance if they moved or changed jobs.

Help people, particularly retirees, understand their health insurance coverage by requiring health insurers to tell customers exactly what is covered.

Require insurers to establish a 90-day grievance process for customers who disagree with coverage decisions.

"I was shocked at the lack of debate and controversy surrounding the bills when they hit the House floor," said Jamian. "I the special interest groups and involved this summer."

House Bills 5570-5574 face an uncertain future in the Senate. Jamian said he is concerned that senators may gut some of the important protections on which his panel worked for months.

The House gave 102-1 approval to a bill regulating Rohypnol, a sedative many times stronger than Valium that can not only knock out a young woman but cause short-term memory loss.

The bill, by Rep. Eric Bush, R-Battle Creek, will classify Rohypnol as a Schedule I drug instead of Schedule IV. Possession would be a two-year felony offense, manufacture and sale a seven-year felony, and rape a 20-year felony.

"We have not allowed sufficient time," said dissenter Michael Bennane, D-Detroit, "to gather all the pertinent facts and information. This is not the type of decision you can thoughtfully contemplate, thoroughly explore and decide in 24 hours.

"The federal Food and Drug Administration has been studying the issue of rescheduling Rohypnol for several months, and a decision is expected short-

"Rohypnol is not significantly different from other compounds in the benzodiazepine family, All other benzodiazepines are in Schedule IV. Rescheduling sends an an inaccurate message to physicians, patients and governments in other countries where it is used safely and effectively for the treatment of sleep disorders," said Bennane, who isn't seeking re-election.

But Bush, a former police commander, said, "The use of Rohypnol in connection with rape cases has already reached epidemic proportions in Florida and Texas. Once again, Michigan is one step ahead of the federal government."

The State News, campus newspaper at Michigan State University, endorsed the measure editorially but said the drug still could be smuggled into the U.S. "However, if the drug had more color and taste, Rohypnol-related crimes would undoubtedly drop even further by alerting those who are often slipped into an unsuspectslipped the drug," it said.

The odorless, tasteless drug is ing person's drink.

Westland Observer OPINION

36251 SCHOOLCRAFT, LIVONIA, MICHIGAN 48150

Problem returns Schools facing headache

he state government has done it again. It has given local school districts the royal shaft in the wallet.

What happened last week is that an appeals court ruling favored the local school districts suing the state for failing to pay for mandated school programs and services, as required in the 1978 Headlee Amendment to the state Constitution.

The court case, initiated 16 years ago, represents a $532 million windfall to the K-12 districts which sued. For the other districts not part of the suit, the potential cost to the local school boards may represent several billion dollars.

But local taxpayers shouldn't expect the state's reimbursement check in the mail any time soon, if ever.

The reason was pointed out in interviews last week and published in Monday's Observer.

According to published reports this week, Gov. John Engler made it clear that there will be a review of all state spending in an effort to find money to pay the judgment.

Local school officials are speaking from past experiences with the state when it comes to money for local schools.

If the state indeed repays the money for special education and specified purposes, such as transportation and at-risk students, the local districts will then be shorted in its basic K-12 foundation grant.

Almost immediately after learning of the appeals court ruling, Engler look for ways to cut state spending, including enacting a hiring freeze on state jobs.

In all, 84 districts stand to receive from $111,842 (Augres-Sims) to $41.3 million (Pontiac). The Fitzgerald district in Macomb County initiated the lawsuit in 1980 and was joined over the years by other school districts.

In essence, the out-of-formula districts claimed in their suit that the Headlee Amendment prohibited the state from reducing aid to schools to below the pre-1978 levels.

Wayne-Westland and Garden City, in-formula districts, didn't join the suit but may join with others to reclaim some of the disputed money.

The districts said they should be entitled to be reimbursed for what they spent on the programs since 1979 when Headlee went into effect.

On Wednesday, Oct. 2, faced with the judgment, Gov. John Engler placed a freeze on state hiring.

The problem started shortly after the Headlee Amendment took affect 18 years ago because state legislators got around providing funds as required for state programs or services by making those items "optional, not required."

But the legislators then provided for a financial penalty if school districts didn't take part in the new program or service.

Let's just say that the recent appeals court ruling is justice – but, unfortunately, that won't pay school district bills.

While the Senate bill, sponsored by Sen.

Dale Shugars, R-Portage, doesn't offer a com-

Mayor is proud

Well, the presidential visit is over and as mayor I want to thank all of our city employees for the fantastic job they did in order to make this a smooth presidential visit.

As a matter of fact, it went so well that both the Secret Service and the president's staff informed us this was the easiest city they have worked in so far.

They said our employees were more than willing to do everything possible to make the event a great one. Our AFSCME employees did a fine job cleaning up the area, fixing the banners and signs, setting up barricades, etc. Our fire department provided ambulance service and even did rescue runs during the event on the new 10-speed bikes to help people when the ambulance couldn't get to them because of the crowd.

. The police department did an excellent job with security and working with the motorcade. My staff worked at getting a lot of people there and to coordinate everything with the president's staff and U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers' office. Thank you everyone for making Westland shine!

Even though this was indeed a campaign stop, we must realize that it was still a presidential visit. Westland's first, I might add.

I'm sure that the president selected Westland for various reasons, but we also believe it's because we have matured and become a city that has to be recognized and acknowledged as a place that needs to be considered, even by presidential candidates and governors.

That's probably why Gov. John Engler visited us two days after the president's visit. It is nice to see Westland finally get the attention I believe we deserve. I'm hoping we can get the governor to visit Westland again sometime this year.

Westland residents should be proud.
We have become a city that has sustained tremendous growth over the last several years. We have increased our tax base by over $400 million since 1990.

Our unemployment rate was only 2.6 percent in June of 1996; that's about half the national average. We have also seen thousands of new jobs created during that time. We'll have about 350 more new jobs next year when our new Sears store opens for business at the Westland Center next October.

Yes, now that the presidential visit is over we can sit back with a smile on our face and know that we are proud of Westland, proud of our community, and proud of our citizens who make Westland what it is. A place to live, work and shop. A place that offers so much to its residents. In short, "The Place To Be!"

Mayor Robert Thomas

Rivers is best

am writing in response to a letter to the editor from the Sept. 26 edition about the campaign between U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers and challenger Joe Fitzsimmons.

It seems the Fitzsimmons campaign is now trying to paint Rivers as a negative campaigner and a whiner. It is negative campaigning to point out that a candidate who claims to stand up for education has voted in only one school election in the past 10 years, and only then after announcing his candidacy. Rivers served her community for nine years on the Ann Arbor school board. Fitzsimmons claims he wants to protect education funding, make student loans more affordable and create more opportunities for higher education. Aren't these exactly what the Gingrich-led Republican Congress tried to cut in the last budget battle?

Now the Fitzsimmons people are tired of Rivers telling her life story and explaining how it qualifies her to represent us in Congress. I for one feel very comfortable having someone who has struggled a little in her life, is married to a UAW member, went to night school for her law degree representing me and my family.

While it is truly commendable to have run a successful business, I don't know how this qualifies someone to understand and relate to the issues affecting the middle class families of the district. Not only is Rivers supremely qualified, but she also has the experience of serving two years in the Michigan House and now two years in Congress.

Joe Fitzsimmons may be a millionaire, but Lynn Rivers is the kind of person we need in Washington.

Liberalism has left us a noble legacy

hen I was young I disavowed the label "liberal."

Unlike the current Republicans who use the label as an odious pejorative in the phrase "tax-and-spend liberal," I thought liberals didn't go far enough, weren't radical enough. I agreed with Phil Ochs in his song "Love Me, I'm a Liberal" that liberals were both sanctimonious and ineffective.

I was wrong.

Liberalism has been the great force for social change within a stable democratic society. Radicals may have been the front runners, the innovators, the true believers in social equality, but it was liberals who brought social justice and economic opportunity to an ever-expanding number of Americans.

What is liberalism anyway that it makes Bob Dole hold his nose when he speaks the word and even has Bill Clinton denying that he is a liberal. For Dole such political posturing is to be expected, but for Clinton it is political cowardice that he should reject the proud tradition of a great political movement, though he is more a pragmatist than a traditional liberal.

The terms "liberal" and "conservative" are relative and have changed over time to reflect the political situa-

Actually, few people are totally liberal or conservative. Their views are a mixture of both based on their life experiences and their current situation in life.

Modern liberalism began at the turn of the century with Republican progressives like Theodore Roosevelt and Democrats like Woodrow Wilson, who were influenced by the concerns for economic justice raised by populists, socialists and trade unionists.

When the term is used today, it generally refers to those who advocate the New Deal principles and ideals of Franklin Roosevelt's Democratic Party.

Conservatives argue that Roosevelt didn't end the Depression, World War II did. Partially true, but Roosevelt kept millions of people alive while the "free enterprise" system dithered and the super rich got richer at the expense of everyone else. He prevented either fascism or communism from gaining a strong foothold. He led the United States toward internationalism, which is another hallmark of liberalism as conservatives were - and often still are - isolationists.

Many of his programs failed. Many of the programs of those who followed his lead also failed. Lyndon Johnson made the costly mistake of trying to end poverty and fight communism at the same time. Entitlement programs are poorly funded and need to be rethought. The number of government programs and the amount of red tape have become intolerable.

But for most of us, liberalism has left a legacy of accomplishments that have made it possible for us to lead better lives, for it was liberalism that took children out of mines and factories, expanded the voting franchise, created public schools, expanded free speech, secured a living retirement, helped pay for a higher education, ended legal segregation, provided the means and wherewithal to fight and win a war against fascism, and on and on and on.

Liberalism is a noble word and a noble political heritage.

Conservatives in their times either maintained segregation or turned a blind eye to it, crushed unions in the name of public order, banned books because they dared to question convention, fought extending the voting franchise to women and blacks and those without land, opposed the war and appeased the Nazis in the name of America First, fought every piece of social legislation in the last 60 years while voting for every special business interest, crushed free speech in the name of Americanism (a particularly virulent form of political correctness), and continued to fund an already bloated military at a great cost to the public treasury.

Excuse me, Ronna, but I think conservatism is the dirty word.

Moderates' gubernatorial prospects dim

ichigan's Democratic Party is rigidly controlled by big labor, with emphasis on the public employees' unions.

Michigan's Republican Party is almost as rigidly controlled by the religious right, an amalgam of Right to Life, evangelicals and authoritarian types, sometimes mislabeled "conservatives."

Is there any room in either party for centrists - people more interested in solving problems than peddling ideology? Are there any active moderates since the departures of Bill Milliken, Carl Pursell and George Romney?

I've talked to two in recent weeks: Democrat Doug Ross and Republican John (Joe) Schwarz. Both are interested in running for governor in 1998. They are among the intellectual lights of their parties. Sadly, their gubernatorial prospects are dim.

A dozen years ago, I never would have dreamed I'd be calling Doug Ross a moderate. He had been a shrill voice in the Michigan Citizens Lobby and Common Cause. Sometime in his term as a state senator from Southfield, however, he decided business people were human beings, too, and was transformed almost as quickly as the lightning bolt converted St. Paul. He served in former Gov. Jim Blanchard's Labor and Commerce departments and in President Bill Clinton's Labor Department.

Ross and 130 friends - mostly Democrats but a few Republicans have produced a book called "Winning Again - a Citizens' Action Agenda." Much of it, in the style of George Romney, is what citizens and communities, not government, can do to boost Michigan's economy. One good quote tells it all:

"The Right has no answer for the sons and daughters of working families who can't afford college; or for the laid-off managers who need new job skills; or for recently divorced mothers without any means of support ... 'Government is the problem,' the Right chants ... It cares more for ideology than people. And it often lacks a tolerance and acceptance of those who are different ...

"Those on the Left offer compassion, but too often lack common sense. They are rightly concerned about income inequality but show little interest in the economic growth and business success ..."

On Sunday's Channel 7 "Spotlight" show, Ross said he is considering a run for governor. Good luck. I hear labor has ordained Larry Owen.

Joe Schwarz is a physician and surgeon, former mayor of Battle Creek and third-term senator. I have heard the buzzing on the Senate floor stop only for a) the invocation and b) a Schwarz speech. He is (or was) John Engler's favorite senator. He is Phil Power's favorite senator.

An abortion foe, Schwarz lost a bid for Congress after he voted against an extreme "informed consent" bill on which Right to Life wouldn't give an inch. Unlike most outstate Republicans, he doesn't consider the area south of M-59 and east of US-23 as a sociological cesspool.

He voted against abolishing Detroit Recorder's Court. His degrees are from the University of Michigan and Wayne State, and he did his internship in Detroit. "An independent run (for governor)? Sure, I've thought about it," said Schwarz, saying he'd need a relatively modest 31,000 valid petition signatures. "I wouldn't totally rule it out, though it'd be a relative long shot.

"I classify myself fiscally as relatively conservative, not clamoring for new taxes and new sources of revenue," he said, adding he's moderate because "you can't let people not have medical care; you can't pull out big parts of the social safety net like child care and Medicaid."

Can either win? A Schwarz-Ross or Ross-Schwarz ticket is unlikely. But a million voters would like to see either party move toward what Eisenhower called "the middle of the road."

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Election reform could lead to informed voters

ou wouldn't know it happened if you get your news from the big city papers or TV. But the House Local Government Committee recently held a hearing in the State Capitol on a timely topic - school elections and when to hold them.

It's important because holding elections costs money, and when elections are held often decides turnout and, thus, the outcome.

Currently, school districts have the option of holding elections whenever they choose. Here's a sample of comment from the hearing about why this system is wrong:

 Former Ingham County clerk, Rep. Lingg Brewer, D-Holt: "We have almost endless, ongoing elections with turnouts of 3, 4 or 5 percent."

• Tony Brehler, a retiree from Livonia and spokesman for a letter-writing group, "Grumpies": "It's kind of sad" that most elections are held on a June Monday. In Livonia, an election costs $32,000; with 4,120 voting, the cost is $7.77 per vote.

• Brewer again: "When you have 70 percent voting for president and 7 percent voting for school board, something is wrong. I've seen school people as cynical as Chicago ward heelers. They say, 'We've got a multi-million dollar project. Let's sneak this through with Monday elections."

What to do?

First, urge your local lawmaker to support HB 4447, introduced by Rep. Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance, which would allow Michigan elections to be held on just three dates: Tuesdays after the first Mondays in 1) May, 2) August (i.e., the August primary election); and 3) November (i.e., the general election).

School people don't like the proposal, on the stated argument that restricting school elections to certain dates reduces local control. Poppycock! Having a uniform speed limit on expressways limits local control, but it also provides a consistent speed standard for all drivers to follow, regardless of destination.

I suspect the fascination with local control has far more to do with the common practice of school boards (often in conspiracy with teachers unions) sliding big ticket items through an election held at a time specifically designed to ensure low turnout and disproportionate effect from a committed (self-interested?) minority.

PHILIP POWER

■ it's important because holding elections costs money, and when elections are held often decides turnout and, thus, the outcome.

Second, urge your local lawmaker to mutter words of encouragement to Rep. Bob Brackenridge, R-St. Joseph, the thoughtful former Berrien County clerk who is pushing an overdue reconsideration of Michigan's election scheduling laws.

Suggest that while our lawmakers are considering rationalizing school elections, they should widen their focus to include also elections for statewide education posts and judges. Surprise! These folks are also elected in November! But you sure wouldn't know it by reading a big city newspaper or watching TV. These folks get elected essentially at random by an almost totally uninformed electorate.

One can argue that we should appoint our judges and university board members. But we in Michigan have chosen to elect them, and the odds of our changing the Constitution in this regard are negligible.

So we should consolidate voting for these posts with the proposed school elections in May.

That way, we'd get the news media off their butts and have some searching coverage of people and issues - school boards, millages, university boards and judges - that might inform voters in a democracy.

Family Room surfs the Net

urfing the Net. Downloading. Clicking the mouse. Uploading. Webs. Bytes. Fatal errors.

These things sound terrible, don't they? Like one of those "Indiana Jones" movies where he goes to some far-off land across the sea and spiders and rodents and evil scary things lurk in dark places like caves and pits.

That's what all that sounds like. But it really isn't any of that. At least that's what my husband says, it's just Internet stuff. And I'm just now learning about "Internet stuff" because last Friday husband Ron got me in line, or on-line, or whatever it is.

Sd. let's see. The Internet. It's a spider web sort of thing. I think. And it's all woven together by computer cords and telephone wires, and somehow they get crisscrossed and connected up across town, across the country, across the planet. And people communicate that way. It's very big and very mysterious.

Truly mystifying

And I don't get it. It mystifies me. But, to tell you the truth, doorbells and toilets mystify me. Self-sticking postage stamps mystify me. Most everything mystifies and amazes me.

Being amazed to this degree is rather embar rassing. How could anyone my age understand so little about so much? And then, here comes this Internet thing. It stuns me. It stuns me in a flabbergasted, awestruck sort of way.

I mean, who could've ever thought of this? This is really cool! People actually "talk" to each other all over the planet and it's not a long distance

And then it stuns me in the stun gun, frozen in your tracks, sort of way. I wonder how those things work anyway? Stun guns. Do you get "shot" by something or other and that makes you just stand there, not moving, and you're frozen? Or do you fall over? Or what? I've never had this experience, so I don't know, and I certainly hope I never will, but the point is this ... What was the See? I'm stunned and all frozen up just thinking about this, this Internet. That's because I worry I'm going to break it. I'll goof something up out there in the spider web of telephone wires and computer cords. And I'll get in big trouble.

Well, anyway. I'm on-line. The "Family Room" lady is on-line. So if you've an idea, thought, complaint, suggestion, question, answer, whatever, for the "Family Room" column, send me a message on the Internet.

Ron told me to let you know I have my own "address" on this Internet. This address looks like what Joey (who is 4) "types" on our computer (a bunch of willy nilly gobbledygook), but here goes. Here's my "address:" FamilyRoom@world-

Ron assures me that these letters placed in this way with those punctuation marks will work, they will get your message to me so long as you have a computer, a modem, access to the Internet, and, of course, a message.

Exciting proposition

Now, I'm pretty excited about this - this new way of communicating. I love communicating. With you. And I love when you communicate with me. It keeps me on my toes, it keeps me humble, it keeps me going.

Over the years, the calls I've retrieved from the Observer phone message system and the cards and letters forwarded to me from the Observer office have provided me with lots of incentive and ideas. People have told me the "Family Room" is a "coffee break column," they sit down with a cup of coffee and the paper and read the "Family Room." And I've been told the "Family Room" is "easy to take," it's "comfortable," it's "ordinary life," it's a "simple break from serious business and rotten news."

And one reader recently wrote, "The Family Room' reminds me ..." Or is it "The Family Room rom ..." something? "Roams?" Or "ram ...?" "Rambles?" I can't quite make out the handwriting. Anyway, in some way it's like "a conversation." And that's good. But up till now it's just been me talking and talking and talking, and you just having to sit there listening and listening and drinking coffee, but now you can jump in, you can actually "talk" back, right away and I'll "hear" you right away, that day.

Now, if I'm to understand this E-mail process, there'll be no delays in getting your message directly to me, at my house, to my very own computer, in the den upstairs. No mail delays, no forwarding delays, no phone message retrieval snafus. Ron tells me the whole thing's easy as can be.

Double day

Twin sisters share their trip down the aisle

As twins, Melanie and Melissa Higgins have shared a lot the last 24 years. Come Saturday, they'll share the most important day of their individual lives with each other.

BY SUE MASON

Melissa Melanie Higgins have a lot in common. They like the same style in clothing and the same kind of music. They have a lot of the same friends.

Come Saturday, they'll have even more in common - their wedding

The twin sisters will say their "I do's" in a double wedding ceremony. at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia. It's a first for the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Eggebeen, who will have small name cards on the kneelers to keep track of the two couples.

But the sharing goes beyond the ceremony and the reception. The sisters and their husbands will share their honeymoon destinations - Tampa-St. Pete - and when they get home, live side by side in Red-

"It seems like it's been forever coming, almost like a dream," said Melanie of her pending nuptials. Fiance Steven Myers nods in agreement. "I thought it'd never come."

"Yeah, I remember when we had a year to go," added Melissa, who is marrying Terry Poole.

Melanie was in eighth grade when she met Steve 11 years ago at the ACE Hardware. They started dating in 1988 and he popped the question in December 1993.

"The timing was right," said Steven, who grew up in Farmington Hills. "We were both friends for a long time before we got serious; thing just progressed into something a lot more special."

Melissa meet Terry at the Diamond and Spurs lounge in Mt. Clemens in February 1994. Terry's friend approached her, telling her that "that guy over there wants to dance with you, but he's too shy to

They did dance and she did gave him her telephone number, but the former Mt. Clemens resident hesitated about calling her.

"I thought she gave me a bogus phone number," he recalled. "Some people give out the number for Attracted by her love and affection, Terry asked her to marry him four months later. He decided to pop the question at her grandparents' 50th wedding anniversary party.

"She's a very loving, caring person and the love and caring she showed me ... things just progressed," Terry said.

The sisters credit their mother, Cheryl, with the idea for a double wedding. Melissa had been considering a May wedding when their mother suggested they "get it over with all at once."

"There's no way I could do this again," said their mother who, according to her daughters, has "gone all out and over budget" for the big event.

Melissa was excited about the prospect and eventually Melanie agreed. Their fiances also agreed.

"I think they both wanted their own show and tell and having a double wedding would take away from one," said Terry. "But it's easier for the parents; it saves them money.

"And it was fine with me. I've never seen a double wedding, let alone been in one."

The sisters went back and forth on the date. They wanted an October date because their parents and brother were married during that month and first selected Oct. 21. They moved it to Oct. 12 after coming to the conclusion that all of the halls would be booked by couples who selected Sweetest Day for their nuptials.

The sharing ends there. Each sale next door to the one Melanie bride will have four attendants. There also will be three ushers and a ring bearer for the ceremony. Melissa, by virtue of being 11 minutes older, will be the first to walk down the aisle with their father, Harold.

"Seems like she always goes first," quipped Melanie in discussing the wedding arrangements.

They also will have separate wedding cakes. Melissa has chosen banana nut and cherry marble, while Melanie has opted for the standards - yellow, white and choco-

Now, when it comes to the honeymoon and side-by-side homes, the fingers point at Melanie and Steven. Terry and Melissa originally were looking at honeymooning in Myrtle Beach, S.C., and living in an apartment in Wixom.

The housing arrangements went out the window when Melissa fell in love with the house that went up for and Steven bought last year.

"At Christmas time, Steve called and said, 'Hey, want to be our neighbors?' " recalled Terry: "Melissa took one look at the house and fell in love with it."

"It wasn't planned," she added. "It just happened." As for the honeymoon, it's unclear how they were swayed, although Steven admits that "we had to coax them into buying the house and coax them into going to Florida."

As for the future, it's a resounding no about having children at the same time.

"We want to be happy first," Melissa said.

With their wedding day a few days off, the sisters admit they're getting excited. While they fret about fainting during the service, Terry and Steven want to make sure everything goes well.

"That's going to be doubly hard,"

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

When Linda Macinkowicz's son Matthew, 7, and daughter Megan, 5, were born, she felt isolated and alone.

Two years ago, she heard about the support group FEMALE, an acronym for "Formerly Employed Mothers at the Leading Edge." The national non-profit organization is aimed at women, most of whom have left the full-time paid work force to raise their families at home.

Until the birth of her children, Macinkowicz had worked full-time as a secretary for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. Thrust into the role of full-time motherhood with little or no training for the job, she had no one to turn to when problems or questions arose about child-rearing.

"In society today, you don't have a mother or grandmother living with you," said Macinkowicz who first belonged to the Warren chapter before moving to Livonia. "Most of the neighbors work and your pediatrician can only give you so much time and usually only deals with illness."

Macinkowicz now belongs to the Novi-Area Chapter that meets 7-9 p.m. twice monthly on the second Wednesday and fourth Tuesday at the Mission Health Professional Center on Ten Mile and Haggerty roads in Novi. Social opportunities included in membership are a monthly mom's night out and play groups; the last one in late September provided mothers and children a chance to visit the Detroit Zoo as a group.

For a woman dealing with transitions between paid employment and at-home motherhood, the choices are never easy; problems involving losses of identity and financial autonomy are many, A September meeting of the FEMALE group covered topics ranging from jobsharing to how long is too long to breast feed. The members took turns telling their stories.

"We support all women whether working or staying at home with their children. Besides the regular meetings. our mom's night out gives women a chance to sit around a table where no food is being thrown and initiate friendships, said co-leader Dawn Fraser of Novi.

Fraser, who runs an in-home monogramming business, has four children between the ages of 21 months and 11 years. Shebegan the meeting by informing members she had a broken arm at her house this week. She sees that as one good reason among many to belong to FEMALE.

"You need a buffer board; someone to ask, 'What do you think?' Raising children is a real challenge. You don't know if you're overprotective or underprotective," Fraser said. "When you have very small children, from mid-October to May, you don't see another adult human being during the day. In FEMALE, we trade ideas, take the ideas and try them for what works in potty training."

Susan Sidock, who has a 1and a 4-year-old, works full-time as an engineer for General Motors. She is grateful to GM in Pontiac for allowing her to work flexible hours, so she can be there to provide guidance for her children. She agrees with Fraser about the need for FEMALE,

"It's a support system. It gives you the chance to get out with other women and swap information. It's moral support until the whiny stages end," said Sidock of Waterford.

Pediatrician Val Lazarchuk is the mother of twin 22-month-old sons. She works part-time in Southfield at Hospice of Southeast Michigan. Before becoming pregnant, she participated in an infertility support group.

"My immediate problem is they're taking over the house. Everything is taped down," quipped Lazarchuk of Northville. "But seriously, the group gives me the support to counter all the guilt of staying home after I'd done all the years of investing in education and about derailing my career.

"It helps me deal with the way our mothers were raised to stav home, and how society devalues us because this is what I choose to do."

Added Fraser who just like Tracy Feliksa of Wixom struggles with tremendous societal pressures on a daily basis, "My daughter came home saying her teacher told her she couldn't be just a stay-at-home mother."

Janet Caldwell of Farmington Hills chooses to stay home with her two daughters, ages six months and 2 1/2 years, instead of returning to her full-time position at a brokerage firm. One of the main reasons she joined the group was for companionship.

"I wanted to meet other people. I didn't know a lot of people who stayed home," said Caldwell, who is group treasurer and play group coordinator.

At the national level, FEMALE, which held its first Midwest conference Oct. 4-5 in Illinois, advocates changes to make business communities, government and society more accountable to families' needs and well-being by conducting letter-writing campaigns and drawing media attention to work/family issues.

While some mothers prefer not to work at all, others wish to work part-time or job share as Gale Crowley and Deanna McDermott do as executive secretaries in the legal department at Waste Management in Livonia. Gale had worked full-time for nine years, Deanne for five before approaching management. with the idea that also allows them to share child-caring responsibilities. The company benefits because the two have 14 years combined experience in the position, and management did not have to train a new. employee.

"Women are going to start demanding more part-time jobs and job sharing with health benefits," said Crowley, a student at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The Novi-Area Chapter of FEMALE is seeking to increase membership. For more information call Fraser at (810) 349-4886 or Macinkowicz at (313)

Exhibit showcases First Ladies

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

As program chairwoman, Jane Soltesz was looking for guest speakers to appear at Livonia Historical Society events. What she found instead, thanks to the Plymouth Historical Society, has led to the society's biggest event.

"First Ladies of Fashion" is an exhibit of 14 replicas of gowns worn by First Ladies. It is on display through Thursday, Oct. 31, at the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road, east of Farmington Road, Livo-

The Plymouth Historical Museum, which had previously housed the exhibit, suggested that it would make a good program for the society.

"It is an election year and I thought it might be something that would bring out people who are interested in that," Soltesz

The "First Ladies of Fashion" exhibit features replicas of gowns worn by Martha Washington, Dolly Madison, Louisa Adams, Sarah Polk, Abigail Fillmore, Julia Grant, Helen Taft. Florence Harding, Grace Coolidge, Lou Hoover, Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, Lady Bird Johnson, Patricia Nixon and Rosalyn Carter.

The gowns are on loan from the Frankenmuth Historical Association, which purchased the 14 gowns.

The exhibit was created by Michigan designers Don Nagel and David Zeese who were commissioned by the Republican Party in 1971 to do the work.

Since photographs of the original gowns found in the Smithsonian Museum were not allowed, the designers had to work from drawings they made. Research for the exhibit took eight months. The complete collection of 23 gowns (Frankenmuth Historical Association received 14) was completed in three months. Under the management of Dr.

and Mrs. Ed Deer, the first showing was in Detroit. Since then, the gowns have been shown in every state. The 14 pieces in the exhibit were selected for two reasons to show the progression of fashion, and to give insight into the various periods. To celebrate the event, the Livonia Historical Society held a gala opening party on Sept. 28 to benefit the Alexander Blue House at Greenmead Historical Village. The event raised $2,600. The group's next program in conjunction with the "First Ladies of Fashion" exhibit is 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20, when Weldon Petz will discuss and present a slide show, entitled "Mary Todd Lincoln: Wife, Mother and First Lady."

The event serves as the society's membership tea.

For more information about the society, call Soltesz at (313)

You're as young as you feel. And you're feeling "groovy." Which explains why you prefer Motown LPs over rap CDs. Why you prefer to call them "my comfortable jeans," not "my loose fit jeans."

And why you still haven't started to save for retirement.

Exactly what are you waiting for? The first day of your retirement, when you find yourself with no more job and no more paychecks?

Give your retirement savings program a solid foundation by investing in U.S. Savings Bonds. They're backed by the full faith and credit of the United States and guaranteed to earn interest.* And they're easy to buy for just a few dollars each payday through your employer's U.S. Savings Bonds Payroll Savings Plan. Or buy them at your bank.

Plus, the interest earned on U.S. Savings Bonds is exempt from state and local income taxes and can be deferred for federal income tax purposes for up to 30 years.

Ask your banker or your employer about including U.S. Savings Bonds in your retirement savings program. And who knows? Your bonds just might mature before you do.

Changing styles: As styles changed so did the gowns worn by First LadiesHelen Taft (right) and Grace Coolidge

'Halloween Bash' benefits Community Hospice

The Community Hospice Foundation will hold its fourth annual Cabaret to benefit the terminally ill and their families.

This year's theme is "Halloween Bash," and guests are encouraged to come in costume. The cabaret will be Friday, Oct. 25, at the Msgr. Alex J. Brunett Activity Center at St. Aidan's Catholic Church, 17500 Farmington Road, Livonia.

7 "We are delighted to present a teally fun evening for our guests that also provides Community Hospice Foundation members an opportunity to answer questions and provide information about the spectrum of services that Community Hospice Services provides for families," said Cabaret chair Beth Lurtz.

The evening will begins with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and entertainment by Mike Jellick, followed by dinner and a variety

The show will feature comedians Alyce Faye and Jim McLean, musicians Ray Schmidt, Stephen King, Chris McCall, Lynne Neinhaus and the Howards Band.

Members of the children's choir in the current production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" also will perform.

Directing the "Halloween Bash'" are Ray and Michele Schmidt of Redford. Ray is the vocal music director of the Redford Youth Theatre Choir and was instrumental in the choir being selected for the Detroit production of "Joseph."

The entertainers for the benefit are well known and share impressive performance venues. Jellick, a 16-year-old Livonia resident, has been a guest soloist with the Rochester Symphony Orchestra and the Macomb Symphony Orchestra.

Faye is co-founder and coowner of "Motor City Women and Comedy."

McLean, comedian, actor and writer, has been the opening act to Tim Allen, Dennis Miller, Jim Carrey and Richard Jeni.

The Howards Band, with Kevin Kuhlman, Vic Spicer, Lou Wysocki and Lou Polselli, have performed for more than 16 years, while Stephen King, Chris McCall, Lynne Neinhaus and Ray Schmidt have been performing in the Detroit area for more than 20 years.

Tickets for the benefit are $40 per person and are available at the Community Hospice Services offices at 127 S. Main St., Ply-

'Amazing' stars: Members of the Redford Youth Theatre Choir who perform in the children's choir for the current production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" in Detroit will share the stage with such notable area entertainers as comedians Alyce Faye and Jim McLean at the Community Hospice Foundation's "Halloween Bash" Friday, Oct. 25.

FREE "LIVING TRUST" SEMINAR "What You Ought to Know About Living Trusts"

(What you don't know could cost your family thousands of dollars!)

f you own a home...or you have assets worth at least $100,000...you owe it to yourself—and your family—to get the facts on living trusts. If you think you're protected with a simple Will...think again... A Will guarantees that your estate will go through probate, which means that your family may not be able to take possession of your estate for many months, or even years!

Plus, if your estate is over $600,000, your family may owe estate taxes which could amount to 37-55% of the value of your estate. This means that your family may have to sell some assets just to pay the estate taxes!

A living trust avoids all this by avoiding probate and minimizing estate taxes. Plus, a living trust will protect your estate if you become incapacitated during your lifetime by avoiding a conservatorship. This means your estate will be managed as you see fit, not as a court-appointed guardian sees fit.

To find out more about the benefits of living trusts, attend one of these free seminars...

The young people who deliver your hometown newspaper could one day be famous.

Walt Disney, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Red Skelton, John Wayne, Carl Sandburg, John Glenn, Tom Brokaw, Wayne Gretzkey, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Herbert Hoover, Martin Luther King, Jr. and Harry Truman are just a few of the famous personalities who are part of the Newspaper Association of America's Carrier Hall of Fame.

Who knows? The young person who delivers your Observer Newspaper could be our next president, screen star or famous athlete.

But whether or not a single one of them goes on to great heights isn't as important as their current commitment to their route and their achievement of customer satisfaction. We appreciate their energy and determination as they deliver the hometown news week after week regardless of what, in Michigan, can be some pretty extreme weather. We hear a lot about character these days and we think a carrier route is a great way to build good character.

Saturday, October 12, 1996 is International Newspaper Carrier Day. We salute our carriers and want each of you to know that while you have a few more years before you achieve fame and fortune, each of you is a stan-today. The Observer

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene, always found have always found your column very interesting. I have DOW some extra time in my life pursue activities I have been unable to do in the past, like writing to you. You see my husband and I are now "empty nesters." My youngest daughter left for college a few weeks ago. My oldest daughter is a senior at a different college. I would appreciate your analysis of my handwriting. Maybe I will learn of some aspects of my personality that will help my adjustment to an "empty nester."

Southfield This page of handwriting is completely filled from side to side and is shortened to conserve on space. As I study it I She adheres to her traditional sequential and methodical. What have. know we are analyzing the handwriting of a woman who wants to live life to the hilt. She loves being busy and actively involved in daily life.

Her greatest area of interest appears to be in the here and the now. Social life has an important role. She has a good relationship with her friends and likes to be around them.

There is a special sensitivity about her that allows her to communicate well. Compassion. empathy and affection are abundantly present. Diplomacy and humor further ingratiate her to those around her. She probably fits smoothly into any situation she encounters. Beauty and harmony are as necessary as the breath of life. While she is a social person and popular with others, there is also a private side to her personality. Rarely does she share her innermost feelings with others. Some secretiveness is seen. Strong maternal influence from early life can be found. She loves her home and is protective of family and loved ones.

Ford Field loses true baseball fan

Bob Cox had a passion for baseball, and Livonia's Ford Field lost a dear friend when the sandlot enthusiast passed away because of heart failure Sept. 20 at Detroit's Harper Hospital.

Cox, 79, was certainly a fixture during the summer sandlot season.

He was a regular for years at the corner of Lyndon and Farmington, part of a core of faithful followers who support the amateur game.

"We're saving an open seat for Bob at Ford Field," said longtime friend Dan Wandzel. "He was a good guy and a big part of our lives. He never missed a game when my kids were playing. He was like family member. We did a lot of things together."

Cox also loved basketball and football and was a staunch follower of Redford Catholic Central* High sports.

Ford Field, however, was like a second home for Cox, who spent time watching games from G League to the Collegiate circuit.

"He'd always call me up and give me hell about my lineup," said John Moraitis, who is manager of Little Caesars in the Livonia College circuit. "He knew so much about baseball . . . He'd always say, 'You should see that 7- or 8-year-old so and so . . . you should see how good he is.' And sure enough, once he got to the Collegiate League, he was right."

A resident of Livonia for 25 years, Cox was a lifelong insurance adjuster who retired in 1992 at age 75. He also owned a pottery shop in Livonia during the 1970s.

He also coached in the Catholic Youth Organization, including a stint during the early 1980s at St. Michaels Grade School in Livonia.

Cox graduated from Detroit St. Theresa in 1936, and played under coach George Dufour, where he was considered one of the finest fielding center fielders in the Catholic League.

He went on to attend Michigan State College where he majored in business. Cox also served military duty in Europe for the U.S. Army (1941-45).

Cox is survived by two sisters, Jean Cox and Louella Daun (of Ohio), along with several nieces and nephews.

A memorial service is pending for Cox, who ### was a member of St. Genevieve Parish. Laramore outing successful

The memory of Rick Laramore is alive and well after 132 golfers and 209 dinner attendees raised in excess of $12,000 toward a scholarship fund on Sept. 11.

A total of $3,000 in scholarships are given annually to four varsity hockey players representing the three Livonia high schools.

The second annual Laramore Memorial golf outing and dinner was established in 1995 to honor the former Livonia Churchill High hockey player, who died at age 17 of lymphoma cancer.

"Sharing a desire to search for something positive to come from this terrible loss and great pain, a small group, which included Rick's parents, met to begin the task of making the memorial fund a reality," said Rose Madge, who is the Laramore Fund secretary. "Feeling a kinship to Rick's school, Churchill High, and a special loyalty to his varsity hockey team, Rick's parents desired a scholarship, administered by the Livonia Public Schools, be established to aid in college assistance for deserving varsity hockey players."

Golfers were treated to a day on the links at Idyl Wyld (and you couldn't beat the hot dogs), followed the dinner at the Italian-American Center

The first Laramore outing, held on Sept. 13, 1995, raised $13,500 for the fund, bringing the two-year total in excess of $21,000. Contributions also came from hole sponsors, community donors and volunteers.

The fund committee has now elected to become self-sustained with the remaining proceeds going to an area of pediatric cancer.

I would hope the surrounding hockey community would continue to support this worthwhile cause. Mark on your calendars Wednesday, Sept. 10, 1997 for the third annual Laramore outing.

Gridiron odds and ends

•If I were to rank the top five football teams in Observerland my choices would be: 1. Westland John Glenn; 2. Redford Catholic Central; 3. Farmington Hills Harrison; 4. Wayne Memorial; 5. Livonia Franklin.

•However, it's alarming to see the number of area teams going into the sixth week of the season still looking for their first wins: Livonia Churchill, Garden City, North Farmington, Redford Union and Redford St. Agatha.

•I liked the way the Livonia Clarenceville football team competed last Friday against Lutheran Westland. Kudos for not giving up, guys.

Best bets for post-season/playoff berths are John Glenn and Harrison (what else is new?).

Menzies 1st in O&E field

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

Here's how two-day golf tournaments like the Observer & Eccentric's seem to work out:

•The first day is a barometer, a trial to see just how well you're playing. Either your in the hunt, hoping to finish in the money, or just playing for the fun of it. If you're more than five strokes out of first after the opening round, you're probably relegated to the last of those mentioned.

•The second day -- if you're in the hunt, then comes the challenge. The second day's best scorer is often the winner. Can't play too cautious, can't play overly aggressive.

That is exactly the route Alan Menzies, from Plymouth, followed to the O&E title Saturday and Sunday at Livonia's Whispering Willows. On Saturday he played very well, but his three-over par 73 only put him in a tie for third with John Burr (from Redford). Two others -- Chris Lemmon and Paul Deedler -- fired one-over par 71s.

But it wasn't the great first-day scores that stood up. Both Lemmon and Deedler came back to earth a bit on Sunday, Deedler shooting a 77 and Lemmon a 78.

Menzies, however, posted the day's best round, shooting a 74 that propelled him to a one-stroke victory in the championship flight with a 147 total. Deedler, from Canton, finished second with his 71-77/148, and Lemmon, from Westland, took third with his 71-78/149.

Here's some bad news for everyone else in championship flight: Menzies said he "decided to get into (the tournament) at the last minute."

GOLF TOURNEY

The reason? "My wife's expecting a child. I wasn't even sure if I'd be able to play today."

Her due-date isn't until late next week, but these things are never certain. At any rate, Menzies played Sunday's round half-expecting his beeper to sound, summoning him to the hospital.

Fortunately for him, it never did. And he stuck to the strategy he scripted for himself: "I just tried to keep it away from any double-bogeys (on Saturday). Today, I stuck to the same game plan. I can't control what the other guys do.

"I wanted to hit a lot of greens and avoid those double-bogeys."

He did just that throughout Sunday's round, but if there was a stretch that won it for him, it was on holes 13 and 14. No. 13 is a short (301 yards) par-4; No. 14 is a little longer (365 yards), but more open.

Menzies put his approach shots up close to the holes on both, then sank short birdie putts. "Anything longer, I get nervous," Menzies said after his eight-foot birdie putt on 14.

"Those two straight birdies on 13 and 14," he said later. "They got me going."

Right to the top.

Other flight winners

Menzies took home a gift certificate worth $220 and a trophy for winning the O&E Tournament. Deedler's reward for second place: a $170 certificate and a trophy, while Lemmon got $120 certificate and a trophy.

In first flight, Michael Caruso

Churchill's Kraus WLAA king

Salem wins team title

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

It wasn't ideal golf weather when Livonia Churchill's Gary Kraus arrived early Tuesday morning for the Western Lakes Activities Association boys meet.

With the summer-like conditions abruptly gone, it was more like late fall, cool and brisk.

But Kraus got out his hot irons and burned up the 6,500-yard layout at Hudson Mills Metropark Golf Course near Dexter with a 1-over 72 to win individual medalist honors in the WLAA.

Plymouth Salem, meanwhile, took the team title by edging Walled Lake Western, 410-411. Based on league meet finish and dual meet record, Salem also took the overall crown. See statistical summary on page 5C.

The 6-foot-2, 200-pound Kraus

The 6-foot-2, 200-pound Kraus had two birdies and only three bogeys to edge Western's Chris King by a stroke.

Also earning All-Conference honors were sophomore Steve Polanski, who led Livonia Stevenson to a third-place finish with a 75; junior Craig Piscopink, who shot a 76 to help Westland John Glenn to a fourth-place finish; and Salem's Brian Fox, who carded a 77.

The chilly weather failed to faze Kraus, who birdied a pair of par-3s the 143-yard No. 12 and the 227-yard No. 16. Both shots, an 8- and 3-iron, respectively, were each launched off the tee within four feet of the cup.

"Once I got to the course I didn't go into the clubhouse, I stayed outside and tried to adapt to the cold weather," he said. "I just tried to keep focused on all my shots and not let the coldness bother me.

"I hit my irons real well and I had a lot of short putts. I was swinging and hitting the ball real well. This was a big match for me. I was more focused for this tourney than the previous ones."

As a sophomore, Kraus finished in the top 15 at the WLAA meet, but as a junior he stumbled, although the Chargers won the conference and went on to qualify for the state meet (where he was Class A regional comedalist with teammate Chris Kiehler).

This season, Kraus has won the Stevenson Invitational with a 1-under 34; finished runner-up in the Pinckney Invitational with a 73; and taken fourth at the Brighton Invitational with a 73.

During the summer he placed high in several events splitting time between the American Junior Golf Association and Power-Bilt Junior tours.

Kraus would like to continue his

Tying for medalist honors with rounds of 78 were Wayne Memorial's Jamison Beevers and Dearborn's John Savickis.

Corey tied for second place with Matt McGuire of Wyandotte with rounds of 79. Wirth hung tough in the cool temperatures and gusting winds with a round of 81 to tie for fifth place.

As for the state playoff race, several teams remain in the hunt including Glenn, Franklin, Plymouth Salem, Wayne, Farmington Hills Harrison and Lutheran High Westland, Redford CC, with two losses now, is a longshot in Class A Region-III.

Here is a look at this week's card.

FRIDAY'S GAMES

(all at 7:30 p.m. unless noted) Southgate at Redford Union (7 p.m.): RU (0-5, 0-3) is still searching for its first victory after getting dumped last week by Chelsea, 35-0. Southgate (3-2, 3-1), a Mega-Red team last year, is one game off the pace in the Mega-White after downing Taylor Kennedy last week, 19-2, as junior Mike Gratz rushed for 145:yards, including three TDs, one of which was a 100-yard return on a blocked field goal. PICKS: Southgate swings past the Panthers.

hurchill, 1-58 for the 90s, played a respectable game last week in a 27-14 loss to Farmington Hills Harrison. The Chargers (0.5, 0.3) will be an underdog addin this week against Canton (2-3, 1-

Liv. Franklin at W.L. Western: A win by the Patriots (4-1, 3-0) could be a springboard to bigger and better things the rest of the season. Franklin's defense has only given up 22 points since a season-opening 40-21 loss to top-ranked Sterling Heights Stevenson. Special teams could decide this one. Western (4-1, 3-0) relies on kicker/punter Pat Gibson, one of the best in the state, and kick returner Kevin Thomas, a dangerous threat. PICKS: Western gets two votes.

Liv. Stevenson at Ply. Salem: Stevenson (3-2, 2-1), winners of two straight. appears to be picking up steam. The Spartans' senior tailback Gade Clark has rushed for 477 yards in his last two outings. Plymouth Salem (4-1, 2-1) is certainly the surprise team in Observerland so far. PICKS: Emons and O'Meara stick with the Spartans in a close one.

W.L. Central at Westland Glenn: State-ranked Glenn (5-0, 3-0) has clearly been the most consistent team this year in the WLAA. The Rockets, who lost starting outside linebacker Nick Nieshewat to injury two weeks ago, continues to plug holes and not lose anything. Central (3-2, 2-1) was stunned last week by Stevenson, 28-21. Glenn also remembers last year's stinging 21-20 loss to the Vikings last season. PICKS: Glenn stays perfect.

Garden City at Taylor Kennedy: This Mega-White encounter pits a pair of teams that are struggling. GC (0-5, 0-3) had its hands full last week in a 40-7 loss to unbeaten Trenton. Kennedy (2-3, 1-3), meanwhile, is coming off a 19-2 defeat to Southgate. JFK has wins over RU and Taylor Center. PICKS: JFK wins for the home fans.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Belleville at Wayne: Wayne Memorial (41, 3-1) hit its mid-season snag once again in a 14-0 loss to Wyandotte. Ply, Canton at Liv. Churchill: Turnovers (7) and an inability to score inside the 10 leaves doubts just how good the Zebras really are. Belleville (3-2, 3-1) has now won three straight after dropping its first two games of the year against Salem and Wyandotte. Senior fullback Willie Patton had 145 yards in a 27-6 win over Woodhaven. The loser of this game is pretty much out of the division race. PICKS: Wayne regroups to beat its longtime nemesls.

Farmington at N. Farmington: Staying out of the cellar in the Lakes Division of the WLAA is at stake. Both teams were blown out last week by good teams. Farmington to Salem (42-12) and North to Glenn (42-6). PICKS: Flip a coin, Emons and O'Meara take North.

Northville at F.H. Harrison: Harrison is very much in the hunt for a playoff spot in Class A-Region III after beating Churchill last week, 27:14, as Nick Shaleb rushed for 130 yards and three TDs. Northville (0-5, 0-3) is having a rare off year. PICKS: Harrison keeps Taylor Center at Thurston: Taylor Center (1-4, 1-3) is closing its doors at the end of the year. The Rams were picked dead last before the year in the Mega-Blue. Thurston (2-3, 1-2) must find a way to stop people defensively if it. entertains thoughts of having a winning season. The Eagles stayed close for a half last week before losing to Melvindale, 30-6. PICKS: The Eagles are flying high again.

Clarenceville at Lutheran Northwest: Trojan coach Chuck Donaldson may have summed it up by saying "We're the best 1-4 team I've seen." Who could argue after Clarenceville (1-4, 1-4) took Lutheran Westland to the wire in a 14-13 loss. Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest (0-5, 0-4) got ripped last week by Hamtramck, 48-8. PICKS: Clarenceville all the way to a Metro win.

Lutheran North at Luth. Westland: This is a key game in the Metro Conference. Harper Woods still leads, but Lutheran Westland (4-1, 4-1) is only a game out. The Warriors, however, are banged up and need a full lineup to beat North (3-2, 3-2), which pulled off a surprise last week with a 13-12 win over Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook. Quarterback Paul Drudel passed for 196 yards (22 of. 32), including the game-winning TD with only 30 seconds left. PICKS: North stops the Warriors, according to both Redford CC at O.L. St. Mary (1:30 p.m.): The Shamrocks (3-2, 0-1) must last minute losses to unbeaten Birmingham Brother Rice and Detroit DePorres. Orchard Lake St. Mary (3-2, 0-2) is no slouch, however. The Eaglets took

Catholic Central stuffed by Rice in 21-14 OT loss

By MARTY BUDNER STAFF WRITER

They should get some pizza company to sponsor the annual Boys Bowl game.

Why?

Every time Redford Catholic Central and Birmingham Brother Rice get together they deliver a classic.

Sunday was a perfect example when, for the second straight year, CC and Rice needed overtime to decide the Boys Bowl champion.

Catholic Central survived last year's clash, 26-23. This year it was Brother Rice's turn to celebrate before a crowd – estimated at more than 7,000 - crammed into Pontiac's Wisner Stadium on a perfect football afternoon.

The Warriors won 21-14 when senior quarterback Eric Marcy hooked up with senior Ben Rowden for a 7-yard touchdown pass on their second overtime play. Kicker Kevin Gerbeck booted the crucial extra point.

Catholic Central then picked up just one yard on its overtime possession. On the last play of the game, Shamrock quarterback Greg Call's pass into the end zone was batted down by junior linebacker Jaymon Small to ensure the victory.

"It feels great. I lost two times to these guys last year and there's nothing else like winning," said Rowden. "It's tough to play them. They're a good team every year and they usually out-size us. But it's just a great rivalry - the best rivalry in the state.

"It's fun to play in a game like this," he said. "I feel lucky and privileged to play them.

Catholic Central had all the fun in the first half. The Shamrocks scored twice during a fiveminute span midway through ROUNDUP the second quarter to take a 14-0 halstime lead.

Call opened the game's scoring by diving into the end zone to cap a 14-yard option-left play. Defensive back Jason Marzeck scored CC's other touchdown on a bizarre play. Teammate Nick Mastroionni intercepted Marcy's pass at the CC 10-yard line and ran it back 20 yards before lateralling the ball to Marzeck who ran the rest of the way to complete a 90-yard interception

The Warriors, however, controlled the second half and tied Marcy scored in the third quarter on a one-yard sneak to cap a 45-yard drive on Rice's first possession of the second half. Senior tailback Brian Marshall tied the game on an 8-yard run with four minutes remaining in the game.

"We wanted to take the opening kick-off (of the second half) down the field and try to get something established," said CC coach Tom Mach. "They stopped us and they had great field position in the second half. From that point on it seemed like we were kind of pinned in our own

"I think the credit goes to them. They did what they had to do in the second half," he said. "They came back from 14 down and that's a tough thing to do in high school. But the credit goes to them for making the right things happen."

The win kept Rice's record a perfect 5-0. Catholic Central has lost two straight games and is 3-2 on the season. Rice took a 16-15 Boys Bowl series lead since the teams started playing each other in 1966.

Stevenson impresses at Pioneer girls meet

Livonia Stevenson was impressive Saturday, winning its fifth girls cross country invitational of the season at Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The Spartans, ranked No. 1 in Class A, scored 35 points to lead the 16-team field.

Host Pioneer and Plymouth Salem finished second and third, respectively, with 55 and 87 points.

Livonia Churchill's Ashley Fillion, a sophomore, was the individual winner. She covered the 5,000-meter course in 18:49.

"Ashley ran a tough race and I'm proud of the way she ran against some stiff competition." Churchill coach Sue Tatigian.

Stevenson placed seven of the top 15 runners, led by juniors Kelly Travis and Kelly McNeilance, who took fourth and fifth with times of 19:05 and 19:06, respectively.

Other Stevenson finishers included Andrea Parker, sixth (19:44); Kim McNeilance, eighth (19:51); Danielle Harris, 12th (20:20); Leslie Knapp, 13th (20:25); Christy Tzilos, 15th (20:26).

"This was a pretty outstanding field," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "Brian Westfall (the Pioneer coach) said that prior to this year, only five girls had broken 20 minutes in over 30 years.

"This was a big test because it was tough competition. We feel real good after Saturday."

Eight girls cracked the 20minute barrier, including Lutheran High Westland's Jodi Werman, who placed seventh in Salem was led by Nicole Bolton, who took ninth in 20:17, and Kristie Giddings, who was 13th in 20:24.

Spartans wrap up Lakes title

Livonia Stevenson clinched the Lakes Division boys soccer title in the Western Lakes Activities Association with a 6-2 victory Monday night over visiting Farmington.

The Spartans, winners of 11 straight since a season-opening 1-0 loss to Troy, finished 5-0 in the Lakes and will travel to meet Western Division champion Plymouth Canton in the WLAA championship game, 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 16 at Centennial Educational Park.

Stevenson, which outshot Farmington 20-6, held a 3-0 halftime lead. Both Falcon goals came late in the match.

On Friday, Stevenson defeated Lakes foe North Farmington, 4-0, as Matt Freeborn, Thomas Eller, Mark Dietrich and Scott Babinski tallied goals.

. CHURCHILL 3, W.L. WESTERN O: Livonia Churchill improved to 10-4 overall and 7-2 in the WLAA with a win Monday at Walled Lake Western. Rob Bartoletti, Pete Pososki and Corey Berzac tailled goals for the Chargers. •FRANKLIN 2, W.L. CENTRAL 0: Goalkeeper Shaun MacGillis took a turn on offense, scoring off a corner kick from Steve Finneran at the 35-minute mark of the first half to pace Livonia Franklin (7-9) to a WLAA crossover win over visiting Walled Lake Central. Jose Cazares, back from an injury which kept him out of six games, scored on a direct free kick from 25 yards out.

Diamond sparkles for FSU

By Brad Emons Staff Writer

"Whatever it takes."

That's been the Patty Diamond approach ever since she was recruited out of Livonia Stevenson High School to play volleyball for the Florida State University Seminoles.

The fourth-year senior captain has been a blessing for coach Cecile Reynaud, who has already used Diamond at three different positions this season because of injuries.

The 5-foot-10 Diamond came to FSU as a setter and outside hitter, but recently was pressed into service as a middle blocker.

"Patty did some middle blocking for us this spring because we needed somebody that's tall, agile and quick," Reynaud said. "And she's a good enough block-

"She can play just about every position, and she'll do whatever it takes. She knows the game."

Diamond came into the season ranked ninth all-time on the FSU career list for set-assists. She also posted double-digit performances (assists and digs) 10 times in 1995 and eight times in 1994.

The FSU coach, however, didn't hesitate to call on Diamond even though most of her previous experience occurred as a primary passer and right-side attacker.

"Patty is one of the hardest workers we've had here in the last five to 10 years," Reynaud said. "There's many times when I've had to tell her to back off because of all the extra time she's put in. But that's the way she's always been. She's pushed the younger kids and I have a lot of respect for that.

"And all the Michigan players I've had are fighters, they just have that attitude. They've been fantastic people and good students as well."

Diamond, ever the competitor, is trying to kick-start an FSU team that has struggled this season (4-10 so far). The Lady Seminoles were 11-19 in 1995 and 17-16 in 1994 after going 24-10 and earning an NCAA Tournament berth in 1993 (Diamond's freshman year).

A co-captain as a junior, Diamond has assumed the team's leadership role this year. She is the only senior on the roster.

Diamond maintains a positive focus, even after tough losses, like losing in five hard-fought "Playing middle blocker is getting a little easier, I've been at it 21/2 weeks," said Diamond, who started the season playing with a badly bruised thumb. "Sometimes things get so messed up because it's a big change. It's hard when you're not the controller (setter).

"But our play is improving and it was an exciting weekend. And that's what it's all about."

Diamond, however, spends more time than just doing extra training.

She is heavily involved in several off-campus activities doing volunteer work for the "Say No to Drugs" campaign, Bowl-A-Thon for Cerebral Palsey and Health Aids Quilt.

Diamond, a Nutrition and Fitness major who is scheduled to graduate in December of 1997, also serves on the FSU President's Athletic Academic Council. And last summer, Diamond also served as a volunteer at the soccer venue in Birmingham, Ala. as part of the 1996 Olympic

Courtwright, McClowry spark Spartan triumph

Livonia Stevenson picked up its first girls basketball victory of the season in the Western lakes Activities Association Tuesday by beating crosstown rival Livonia Churchill 54-39.

The visiting Spartans (4-8 overall, 1-5 in the WLAA) broke open a tight game by outscoring the Chargers 18-7 in the fourth quarter.

Carolyn Courtwright scored eight of her game-high 16 points in the fourth quarter for Stevenson. Jackie McClowry added 13 points and 10 rebounds, and Lindsay Wilhelm chipped in with nine points and six boards.

"We talked about being more patient and looking for the gaps," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said. "We got higher percentage shots. Our press wasn't real good the whole game, but effective enough to cause damage."

The Chargers (3-9, 1-5) received nine points each from seniors Dawn Perttula and Jessie Jenkins.

"They made shots and executed and we just didn't do it,' Churchill coach Dave Balog said. "They were bigger than us and dominant inside. We didn't box out well enough."

•W.L. CENTRAL 57, FRANKLIN 31: Walled Lake Central took care of host Livonia Franklin early Tuesday, by jumping out to a 19-2 first-quarter lead.

Becky Cummings and Jenny Keeler scored 15 points apiece to lead the Vikings (5-6 overall, 4-2 in the WLAA).

Julie Warner's 10 points paced the Patriots (3-9, 1-5). Tera Morrill chipped in with seven points.

•NORTHVILLE 69, JOHN GLENN 28: State-ranked Northville jumped out to a 28-2 first-quarter lead Tuesday and never looked back.

The Mustangs (9-2 overall, 6-0 in the WLAA) was led by Lauren Metaj, who poured in 14 points. Christine Herndon added 10.

Kathie Suda tallied eight points for the Rockets (0-11, 0-5).

•MARIAN 70, LADYWOOD 44: Livonia Ladywood played Birmingham Marian tough Tuesday for a half, before the host Mustangs pulled away in the second half with a 32-16 outburst.

Junior center Sarah Poglits led the Ladywood attack with 11 points. Senior guard Kara McDonald added eight for the Blazers (2-8 overall, 0-5 in the Catholic League).

Breean Walas scored 15 for Marian (8-2, 4-1). Stacy Yankovich added 13.

·LUTHERAN WEST 54, LIGGETT 38: Lutheran Westland's win at Tuesday at Grosse Pointe University of Liggett set up Thursday's showdown against Macomb Lutheran North for the lead in the Metro Conference.

Both teams will enter the game at 8-O. The Warriors are 10-1 overall.

A 12-0 rally to begin the third quarter proved to be the difference. In the quarter, Liggett's star sophomore, Keli Bonner, was taken to the hospital after blowing out her knee.

Senior forward Jenny Blaine made seven of 10 shots en route to her gamehigh 16 points. Janell Twietmeyer and Jenny Twietmeyer added 14 and 10 points, respectively. The defense was sparked by senior guard Stephanie Davis, making her first start of the year. Karah Knope's 12 points led Liggett

.LUTH. EAST 42, CLARENCEVILLE 20: Livonia Clarenceville played better than it had been as of late Tuesday but still lost to visiting Lutheran East. Jenna Gerds and Melissa Stadelbarer scored 11 and 10 points, respectively, for East (8-3 overall, 5-3 in the Metro). The Trojans (2-9, 1-6) were led by

Joanna Skrela's six points. • WAYNE 47, RU 40: Wayne Memorial rallied from a 35-30 deficit entering the fourth quarter Tuesday to pull out the victory at Redford Union. Two three pointers by Yolanda Holt put the Zebras ahead for good late in the fourth quarter, as the Panthers committed seven turnovers in the quarter. Holt scored 19 of her game high 24 in the second haif. Tonya Crawford added eight points for Wayne (7-4 overall, 2-1 in the Mega Red). Kasie Mathena led the Panthers with 11 points. RU (5-6, 0-3) also received 10 points apiece from Shannon Bjerke and Vanessa Urban and 12 rebounds from Jenny Szaal. . HURON VALLEY 62, ZOE 25: Sophomore forward Kim Nelson, called up from the JV squad last week, poured in a cåreer-high 18 points Tuesday as Westland Huron Valley Lutheran won on the The Hawks (7-4 overall, 4-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference) also received 12 points from Melissa Gumbis and 10 from Amy Others who turned in solid performances for SC were Michelle MacRae with 26 kills (a .268 percentage); Hermina Angeles with 10 kills; Stacy Sailus with four blocks; and Sarah Gregerson with three blocks, all in the fifth game.

Madonna falls at OU

Madonna University found the going rough at Oakland University Tuesday.

The Lady Crusaders winning streak against NCAA Division II teams ended, with the Lady Pioneers collecting a 15-10, 7-15, 15-12, 15-9 triumph.

OU improved to 14-6 overall; Madonna fell to 21-3. Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) led the Crusaders with 12 kills and four blocks, but Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) was held in check, getting only eight kills. Karin Sisung chipped in with 11 kills, and Meg Paris had 35 assists to kills. OU was led by Stephanie Sasek, with 15 kills and 10 digs Rachel Clor (Redford Union) added six kills and three blocks.

MU boots Aquinas

There's a first time for everything, and Madonna University's soccer team couldn't be happier that their time has come.

On Saturday, the Fighting Crusaders repelled a determined Aquinas College squad at Aguinas to record a 2-0 triumph. It marked the first-time ever Madonna had beaten the Saints: Aquinas was 4-0 over the past two years.

The victory did not come easily. "They were one of the better teams we've faced, actually," said Madonna coach Pete Alexander, his team now 8-2 (Aquinas is 8-4). "They pressured us a lot. They came out at the start of the game on fire, but we just kind of played with them."

The result was a scoreless match until the 19th minute, when Madonna's Christian Emert turned a pass from Roberto Vega into a goal and a 1-0 Crusader lead.

It remained that way for the rest of the half. But 12 minutes into the second half, Andy Makins doubled Madonna's advantage, converting a pass from Ryan Mollien to make it 2-

The two teams will meet again (Oct. 29 at Madonna), but this win will give the Crusaders a boost in their NAIA ranking in the Great Lakes Region. At present, Madonna is tied for the best record in the region, "so it was a real big game for us," noted Alexander.

cedure involves the brake fluid. The reason that brake fluid is one of the most neglected and improperly serviced components is that many auto service manuals suggest draining and flushing the brake system only if there is evidence of fluid contamination or observable deterioration. Contamination and fluid deterioration, however, are inevitable and usually unnoticeable. By the time their effects are noticeable, damage has already occurred. Brake fluid is exceedingly hygroscool, meaning that it absorbs moisture from the atmosphere, likely through microscopic openings in flexible brake hoses or through openings around rubber seals. Once the brake fluid is contaminated by moisture, it begins to break down and its ability to prevent corrosion declines along with its boiling, point and lubricating properties. This increases the likelihood of dragging brakes and lost braking

Checking all fluids – whether brake or transmission or wiper – before going on a long trip is a good idea to help prevent breakdown on the road. At HOLIDAY CHEYROLET, INC., we are known in this community for the quality service we deliver. We welcome your questions – we're here to answer them, Call us at 474-0500. HINT: Dragging brakes refers to a condition in which the brakes remain partially applied, even though the foot has been taken off the pedal.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

New cancer funding

Legislation passed by the State Senate gives additional funding breast and prostate cancer research through a new check-off box on state income tax returns.

Senate Bills 740, 741 and 1181 establish the check-off box which gives taxpayers the option to donate $2 or more from their tax refund to go towards the Breast Cancer and Prostate Cancer Fund. The new box is expected to raise up to $20 million over the next few years. Funds will be used to develop statewide plans to control these cancers and provide information on cancer screening and early detections through the Michigan Department of Community Health.

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. It is estimated that this cancer kills 1,600 women annually in Michigan and that prostate cancer kills approximately 1,500 Michigan men annually.

Solving problems

Parents of children two to 12 years old can learn about discipline, self-esteem, communication and family enrichment as part of the Oakwood "Active Parenting Today" program.

The program includes six two-hour sessions and is designed to help parents develop responsible, cooperative and courageous children. Cost is $35 per couple and registration is required. Call (800) 543-WELL for information.

Free drugs

A 32-page booklet is available to those looking to get drugs free, or at a discounted price.

"Free & Low Cost Prescription Drugs" is published by the Cost Containment Research Institute in Washington D.C. at a cost of $3 for postage/handling. "Many major drug companies provide free or low-cost medication, but rarely, if ever publicize the programs," said Heather Kerrigan, director of the Institute. "We've published an A to Z listing of all the drugs that are available to certain qualified groups for free or at very low cost directly from the manufacturer."

Consumers can receive a copy by sending $3 to: Free & Low 'Cost Prescription Drugs, Booklet #PD370, 611 Pennsylvania Ave. SE, Suite 1010, Washington, D.C. 20003-4303.

Trainer volunteers

Jeff Kline, a Redford resident and Oakwood employee, recently participated in the Paralympic Games volunteering his medical skills and services at the 1996 Atlanta Paralympic Games in Atlanta over the summer. The games, designed for elite athletes with physical or visual impairments, includes many sports similar to the Olympic Games. The event, held in August, has more than 3,500 athletes from 127 countries.

"These athletes were sincere, intense and the desire to compete and win was overwhelming, more so than some of the disabilities," Kline said. His primary assignment was at the Georgia Tech Aquatic Center, the site of swimming competition for Olympics and Paralympics. There he spent a week evaluating and treating athletic injuries, aiding in the rehabilitation of injuries, acute trauma, modalities, massaging, assisting in stretching and general medical care for the swimmers.

Kline is a Central Michigan graduate who works at the Oakwood Sports Medicine and Physical Therapy Center in Dearborn and also is an athletic trainer at Divine Child High School.

Hemophelia settlement

A nationwide settlement for individuals with hemophilia who contracted Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) from clotting factor concentrates between 1978 and 1985 is being offered by four plasma companies.

To be eligible, the individual or executors of estates must respond by Oct. 15 to legal documents issued by the District Court of Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division.

For more information, call the Hemophilia Foundation of Michigan at (800) 482-3041.

he music is Big Band and there is no waiting to use the exercise equipment at Garden City Hospital's cardiac rehabilitation unit.

Two or three times each week, patients who have had heart problems or are trying to stave off a potential problem meet for a workout and some camaraderie.

"They tell me I had a silent heart attack. It left me with extensive heart damage and it's inoperable," said Don Carroll, 72, of Garden City. "This is part of my life twice a week now. It keeps me on a program. I know twice a week I'll get my exercise."

Although he has to rest occasionally, the semi-retired businessman said he is able to stay active — except for not being allowed to drink alcohol and a few other things.

T've been coming for a year. I find it helpful. I can get out of bed now," said Garden City resident Joan Hotz, a retired Livonia school bus driver. "I'd miss it if I didn't come."

Now 63, Hotz suffered a heart attack on Easter Sunday in 1995. Coming for her twice-a-week workouts has been part of her recuperation.

"The people are friendly. You don't have to wait in line for the machines like a health club," said Hotz. "We're right in the hospital so if something happens they can deal with it."

Monitoring the patients physical condition is an important aspect of the cardiac rehabilitation program, especially for phase II patients who have recently had a heart attack, angioplasty, by-pass surgery or some other cardiac event, said cardiac rehabilitation nurse Marianne Couchman.

Phase II patients must be referred by a physician to participate in the six week program of exercise, nutrition and education.

The program goals are:

Improving the patient's function work capacity and quality of life through exercise, nutrition and education

Educating patients and their families about health enhancement and cardiac risk factor modification

Assisting the participant in developing a lifelong exercise program and healthy eating habits

Participants in this program are thoroughly screened to determine current cardiopulmonary status, fitness level and blood cholesterol profile. A graded stress test is required before beginning the program.

The 12-week phase III program is open to people who have completed the phase II program and those who haven't had heart problems.

"Anyone can come into phase III, you don't need to be a heart patient," said Couchman. "Some come because they want to keep from having a heart attack. They might be at-risk and want to make some changes."

Patients participating in the two programs range in age from 29 to the oldest patient at 88 years old.

years old. "Phase I

"Phase III patients want to learn what to do to be healthier. They feel safe exercising here. We monitor their blood pressure and pulse," said Couchman. "They also get a lot of support. They exercise with the same people all the time. It's kind of like a club."

Between half and one-third of the participants aren't Garden City Hospital patients, she said, having been referred by outside physicians.

The hospital also offers Heartpals, a cardiac support group that meets 7-9 p.m. the first Monday of each month in classroom No. 5 in Harrison School, on Harrison at Maplewood in Garden City. For more information, call 458-3242.

Madonna, St. Mary's the latest to join the Web

he real Madonna now has a site on the World Wide Web.

Internet users outside this area probably will continue to arrive at the Material Girl's site when instructed to visit Madonna.

But southeast Michigan netters have an alternative destination — the new Web site of Madonna DANIELS University in Livonia.

The address for Madonna University is http://www.munet.edu/. A quick look at the address will tell you that this site was designed by put together by the university staff and students. The hint is that the URL (Universal Resource Locator) has the .edu extension rather than .com. This indicates the Web site is on a server at an educational institution rather than on a commercial server.

From the message below you learn that Madonna is the second-largest Catholic university in Michigan, is the largest Franciscan independent university in the U.S., and has a student/faculty ratio of 18:1.

Surf through the Web site and you will find links to the university's 50th anniversary events - Homecoming Weekend which was Sept. 27-30 and the Madonna University Golden Golf Classic which was Sept. 30 at The Golden Fox in Plymouth.

Other links include "About Madonna University," "Events at Madonna University," "Schools and Colleges," "Admissions," "Student Life," "Faculty,"
"Library Services," "Academic Computer Services," "Special Programs," and "Alumni Information."

The site also has a link to an Information Center which allows you to fill out a request for information about whatever program you are interested in and a search engine to search the Web site by using keywords or words describing a concept.

Andrea Nodge, community relations director Madonna, helped oversee the Web site which was developed by technology staff and computer students at Madonna.

St. Mary Hospital

St. Mary Hospital in Livonia also has its on site on the World Wide Web.

Because the hospital doesn't have a pool of computer students to develop a Web site for them, the hospital asked O&E On-line to handle that task for them and Sue Dorris and Greg Day gladly agreed.

■ Community Health Services is loaded with information on such classes and activities as The Back School, CPR, weight management, CareLink, screenings for cholesterol, depression, or blood pressure andothers.

To visit St. Mary's site point your Web http://www.stmaryhospital.org/. Upon arrival you will find a very colorful home page that includes an aerial view of the hospital at Five Mile and Levan. Visitors reading the text on the home page learn St. Mary is a 304-bed acute care community hospital sponsored by the Felician Sisters and affiliated with Beaumont Hospital.

Links on the home page include "Our Mission," "Medical Services," "For a Physician Referral," "Community Health Services," "Location and parking guide," "Frequently Called telephone numbers," "Building the Future," and "News and Information."

"Community Health Services" is loaded with information on such classes and activities as The Back School, CPR, weight management, CareLink, screenings for cholesterol, depression, or blood pressure, Eating Disorders Clinic, Home Health Care, Medicare assistance, Health-O-Rama, speakers bureau, volunteers, the Wonder Walkers Club, women's and family health programs. support groups, and much more.

The "news and information" page contains announcements such as the "Hollywood Nights IV" fund raiser set for Oct. 17 featuring The Diamonds and Johnny Trudell. Trivia experts will know that The Diamonds had such hit tunes as "Silhouettes" and "Little Darlin'." The site also has a listing of fall activities at the hospital.

Speaking of hospitals, the Internet now has its own Hospital Locator which can be accessed at http://www.medaccess.com/hospitals/s-hospt.htm.Stop by and search for U.S hospitals by type, city, state or by zip code.

Canton Township

Canton Township has a local government page on the Web on a trial basis.

The test program consists of noninteractive web pages with detailed information about the Canton community and the Canton Police Department. The page can be accessed at http://www.cantontwp.org.

The site has links to "Fire Station Report," "Officer Profile," "Community Policing," and "Our Mission." The page was created and designed by Ken Voyles, a former journalist now working as communications coordinator for Canton Township.

The main focus of the township government pilot program is to find out how many people visit the site and whether there is interest by the general population. If the trial is successful, a permanent municipal-wide home page will be developed.

"Unlike most communities I have checked on," says Voyles, "we did it all in-house. I learned the software, our computer guys took care of the technical questions and we worked closely with the Canton Library and folks at Metronet" (the net consortium of libraries in Michigan). Voyles learned how to build a Web site in about nine weeks. Take a look at http://www.cantontwp.org and see for yourself how well

The Canton Public Library uses the MetroNet service to provide a link to the Web. The library Web site has established a center with general information on Canton Township. Point to http://www.metronet.lib.mi.us/CANT/T WP/home.html and you will find links to public safety, municipal government and community information, a community calendar and to the Canton Public Library.

MESC report predicts job growth throughout Michigan

By Laurie Humphrey STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Employment Security Commission is calling it a sign of progress, the rest of us call it a sign for help — "Help Wanted".

A recently published MESC report predicts an explosion of jobs for Michigan residents over the next nine years. In fact, they believe the trend began in 1994.

"Over our 11-year forecast period from 1994-2005, we foresee industry in the state adding 565,000 new jobs," MESC Director F. Robert Edwards predicted. "This is a 13.6 percent increase and very close to the expected national growth rate of 14.9 percent."

Some chamber representatives can already see growth at the local level.

"There's just help wanted signs all over Westland," said Linda Shapona, executive director of the city's Chamber of Commerce. "There is a tremendous amount of opportunity out there."

MESC officials attribute the auto industry for some of the growth. "As a result of the resurgence of the auto industry . . . the state's manufacturing sector will add 36,000 jobs between 1994 and 2005," reads the report.

Edwards points out that "manufacturing employment is already on the rebound with an increase of 31,000 jobs since 1990."

How will this affect local residents?

Rod Crider, executive director for the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, said any news of growth is good for the area.

■ 'Over our 11-year forecast period from 1994-2005, we foresee industry in the state adding 565,000 new jobs.'

> F. Robert Edwards -MESC director

Benefits would extend to the greater Livonia community also. he points out.

"It would help residents too, because it's almost 50-50" in taxes. Money generated from Livonia businesses has "allowed Livonia to provide city services and amenities that have made Livonia such a good place to live and work."

Mary Jo Mullen, Redford's

"(And) more manufacturing director, hasn't seen the MESC jobs would be real positive for report yet, but she is optimistic Livonia, with auto businesses about the future, saying she has seen "Help Wanted" signs.

"(But) there are some companies that are trying to hire people and they are not getting the applicants," she said.

Crider reports the same problem in Livonia.

A topic of conversation at a recent meeting of the city's 60-80 top employers was the availability of employees - qualified employees.

"Several indicated that they were having difficulty getting jobs filled (with qualified people)," said Crider. "Technical skills are becoming more and more important now; even in entry level positions, as companies become more hi-tech."

The MESC report supports Crider's theory. "The business services sector is projected to have the largest employment gain, increasing by 141,000 new jobs" in engineering, computer and management consulting ser-

The health service industry can also expect gains, despite job reductions at certain hospitals. Edwards forecasts 90,000 more jobs, but adds that they will be found at practitioners' offices, outpatient facilities and home health care agencies.

"These are the health care segments that are benefiting from the growing trend toward HMO and other managed care programs," he explained.

That should be interesting news for Amelia Oliverio, a former Garden City Hospital employee turned Garden City Chamber of Commerce executive director. Filling in since the recent departure of Philip Davies, Oliverio is still learning about the city's businesses and their issues.

In the broad trade sector, retail trade and food services will show the greatest growth, up 58,000 and 46,000 jobs, respectively. Wholesale trade will increase by 27,000 during the period.

The future for construction employment also looks promising, assuming there are no sharp increases in long-term interest rates. Employment should increase by 21,000.

aking music magical is the secret to their success, and ivonia and Plymouth Symphony Orchestras have a few tricks up their sleeve this season, which begins Oct. 19.

Livonia Symphony Orchestra is presenting a "Magical Musical Christmas" program Dec. 14 featuring Magician Al the Only and Young Artist competition winner, vocalist. Kimberly Haynes.

Follow the sorcerer on a magical musical adventure Feb. 16 when the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra presents "Family Fantasia," featuring the winner of the Youth Artist Competition. On the program is "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," by Dukas and Williams' "Star Wars."

"I am excited about helping the Plymouth Symphony take on new challenges and grow as it begins its 51st year as a community orchestra," said Bonnie Holyoak of Canton, symphony executive director. "I want our symphony to continue as a well-loved community resource that will serve to ignite a desire in people of all ages to love music, encourage musicians, and push for music and cultural programs in the schools and the community."

• PSO, under the direction of Russell Reed, begins its season 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, in the auditorium at Plymouth-Salem High School with a "Grand Opening" concert featuring cellist Robert Reed performing Haydn's "Concerto in C. Also on the program are Wagner's challenging "Flying Dutchman," and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5.

A Gala Afterglow will be held after the concert at Damon's - The Place for Ribs, 43750 Ford Road in Canton. Afterglow admission is $5, call (313) 451-2112 for information.

In addition to the "Family Fantasia" concert in February, season highlights are "The Nutcracker" Bailet presented Dec. 13-15 by the orchestra and Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company, and the Caribbean Cruise Pops concert with the PSO and Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band at Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth.

"Get your Nutcracker tickets early," suggested administrative assistant Pat Derderian, "we always sell out."

"A Spanish Connection," on Nov. 16 showcases popular Spanish classical music, including Bizet's Carmen Suite No. 1, and renowned guitarist Philip Candelaria.

A Chamber Concert on Jan. 25 will feature outstanding PSO musicians and ensembles, the presentation of the winner of the Youth Artist Competition.

"March Musical Madness" on March 15 includes performances by guest soloist Bryan Kennedy, French horn, and string players of the Plymouth-Canton schools in a program of works by Mozart and Strauss.

When you're not attending their concerts, you can enjoy "Sound Waves" the Plymouth Symphony's CD, which provides over an hour of pleasurable listening. Call the PSO office for information.

• The Livonia Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Volodymyr Schesiuk, former resident conductor of the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow, will present an "Evening Fantasy," the first concert of their 24th season, 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, in the J.P. Carli Auditorium, Churchill High School, Schesiuk, and guest soloist Yuri Mazurkevich, are childhood friends. "He's a beautiful violinist, and professor of violin at Boston University," said Schesiuk. The program includes music of Paine, Tchaikovsky, Bilik's "American Civil War Fantasy," Chabrier's "Espana by Bruch. "Behind the notes must be life," said Schesiuk. "Like a picture, music can help you imagine the scene. Espana Rhapsody has a Rhapsody," and "Scottish Fantasy," Spanish theme."

Because of popular demand, the LSO is bringing back its Chamber Music Series at the Civic Center Library with concerts on Nov. 15 and Jan. 24. "An Evening of Classical Guitar," on Nov. 15 will feature guest artist Victor Sakalauskas performing Vivaldi's Guitar Concerto, Audiences will be treated to performances by Schesniuk on violin, his wife, Luba, an accomplished planist, and James Poe, bassoon, on Jan. 24.

"James Poe has been in the orchestra for a number of years," said Schesniuk. "He's an executive at Ford Motor Company, and plays to relieve stress. He donates his time to the orchestra, and is a very good musician."

Bringing together some of the finest musicians in metro Detroit, the Livonia Symphony Orchestra presents programs that appeal to a variety of musical tastes, and encourages young musicians through its Young Artist Competition. Last year's winners -Kimberly Haynes, vocalist, Benjamin Robison, violin; and Karl Shymanovitz, piano will be featured at concerts on Dec. 14, Feb. 8, and March 15.

"Dance Internationale," Feb. 8 features a variety of spirited and entertaining international dance selections including Chopin's Polonaise, and "Symphonic Dances from West Side Story" by Bernstein.

 Join the symphony after the March 15 Spring Concert celebrating the music of Wagner, Khatchaturian, Von Suppe and Dvoorak at an afterglow at DePalma's, Ristorante in Livonia. The afterglow cost is $10 per person, call (313) 421-1111 for details.

LSO "Season Finale" on May 2 features works by Bach/Stokowski, Beethoven, Bizet and Brahms. Featured soloist is Ukrainian pianist Anna Sorohtej. An afterglow follows at Water Club Grille in Plymouth. The cost is $10 per person. Call the symphony for details.

Police officer captures athletes in action

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Although Clay Monte enjoys creating action-packed portraits of professional sports figures in colored pencil, the real challenge begins afterward when he sends or takes the artwork to the athlete, stadium or team and asks them to autograph it for him. Barry Sanders, Steve Yzerman, Chris Spielman and Michael Jordan are part of a 15-piece exhibit of portraits by Monte in the Livonia Arts Commission's showcases at the Livonia Civic Center Library.

"The fun part is getting it autographed. I tell the athlete that the autographed picture will remain in my possession and will not be sold," said Monte, a 25-year-old Livonia resi-; dent whose first love is working for the Wayne County Sheriff Department.

Monte admits to being a sports junkie. He frequently attends hockey, Detroit Lions and University of Michigan games. through Oct. 11 at the First Presbyterian Church, 200 E. Main Street in Northville.

Presented by the church, the show is fast becoming a respected competition in the southeast Michigan region. The juror this year was Farmington Hills artist 125 pieces for the exhibit. First Edee Joppich, owner of Joppich's Bay Street Gallery in Northport and a teacher at the Visual Arts Association in Livonia. She will give a gallery talk to discuss the juried works of art in the show today at 1 p.m. Admission is

"It was a challenge to jury the show because there were so many good pieces submitted. I was impressed by the caliber of work and the personal thought that the artist had something to say," said Joppich who looked for an unusual approach or interpretation by the artist when jurying

Prize went to Nancy Meyer of "Forget Plymouth for Predictions: Learn to Love Chaos," a black, white and gray quilt accented with red and purple fabric.

"It's a very exciting work. It's beautifully designed and has an architectural feeling. Color can be seductive. When you eliminate color as Nancy has you expose yourself because you're working strictly with composition," said Joppich.

A quilter for more than a dozen years, Meyer created the piece after reading a headline in the Maui News while on vacation. Winning top honors is becoming a regular occurrence for Meyer who won Best Of Show at the "Celebrate Life" competition in Birmingham a few years

"I'm thrilled to have won. It's fantastic," said Meyer, a quilting teacher at Quiltworks in Plymouth.

Canton artist Connie Lucas won the Award of Excellence for "Perilous Journey," a water color commentary on abortion. Lucas likes to focus on controversial political and social issues in her work and frequently uses symbols such as children's toys like the stuffed elephants in this thought-provoking piece. Special Recognition awards went to Jean Weber of Plymouth and Regina Dunne of Livonia, and an Honorable Mention to Evelyn Henry of Redford.

All of the artists owe a heartfelt thank you to the more than 100 volunteers at the church who made the show possible. Venues for local artists showing work are few and far between. The church's Visual Arts Committee should be applauded.

Sharing fine art is nothing new for the church. In fact, "Sharing the Gift" is but one of many programs being presented during its sixth annual Fine Arts Series which includes concerts featuring piano, organ and brass. The church initiated the series in 1991 after installing a new Casavant Organ in the renovated sanctuary. It was a time of celebration and sharing.

The art show originated after an idea from former church member Judith Sechler who had heard of the "Celebrate Life" show in Birmingham. The name and concept for the Northville church's exhibit "Sharing the Gift Within You" comes from the Book of Timothy.

"We saw Sharing the Gift as an outreach to the community and the artists" creativity as a gift from God," said promotion person Norma Peltz. Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday and until 8 p.m. Friday.

Hot cooks fired-up for Plymouth chili cook-off

Some of metro Detroit's "hottest" cooks will be competing in Plymouth's Great Chili Cookoff 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13 in downtown Plymouth, call (313) 455-8838 for more information. Up to 40 cooks are expected at Michigan District Competition, which is sanctioned Society. In addition to chili, Plymouth's Great Chili Cook-off will feature a salsa competition, live country entertainment, including the David Kirsch Band from Nashville, Tenn., line dancing, a Western barbecue and classic Harley Davidson show. Event proceeds will be donated to Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan. "We'll have a limited-edition poster to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the International Chili Society," said Horn. "The artist is R.C. Gorman of Arizona. It will retail for $20, and $15 will go to Make-A-Wish. We'll also have T-shirts for sale, and anyone who wants to can make a donation to Make-A-Wish.

"After the chili is submitted for judging, you can buy samples for 25 cents a taste. Local restaurants, including Plymouth Landing and Station 885, will be making chili and selling it for $2 a bowl. Western barbecue dinners, hot dogs and other foods will also be offered for sale.

Here's the special event schedule - Live bands, noon to 6 p.m.; Line dancing, throughout the day; Jalapeno Eating Contest, 1 by the International Chili and 4 p.m.; Classic Harley Davidson show, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Western barbecue - noon to 5 p.m.

Chili will be submitted for judging at 3 p.m. The awards presentation is at 5 p.m.

It's not too late to make a batch of salsa, and compete in the salsa contest, which is part of the festivities.

Bring 1 pint of your salsa for judging 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13 to the Masonic Temple, next to the Gathering in downtown Plymouth on Penniman next to the Penn Theatre. For more information call number listed above.

You must be at least 18 years old to enter the salsa contest. There is a $10 entry fee. There are basically no rules as to ingredients or preparation.

Writers' conference slated at OU

Web, privacy issues, and working principles and mental attitudes for success in the writing game, plus what local editors look to publish and self-publishing, are among session topics for the 35th annual Writers' Conference, Friday-Saturday, Oct. 18-19, at Oakland University Rochester.

Co-sponsored by OU's Division of Continuing Education and Detroit Women Writers, the prestigious 1-1/2-day conference will offer 36 concurrent sessions for beginning through published writers, ranging from the basics of writing, fiction, poetry and screenplays to successfully marketing them. In addition, three local editors and two New York Writing for the World Wide editors will discuss what they publish.

Other presenters during the 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. conference include agents, poets, playwright/screenwriters authors in a range of genres.

The Oct. 19 keynoter will be Sharyn McCrumb, best-selling. author of three different book series, speaking on "Keepers of the Legend." A voice for the people of the mountain South, McCrumb's ballads explore the legends, natural wonders and issues of Appalachia. She also is acclaimed for her mysteries and satires of science fiction.

Suspenseful 'Bound' bends film noir formula

We've seen the story a million times before: a street smart guy, recently released from prison, trying to keep his nose clean, meets a sexy woman by chance. A little innuendo-filled banter follows and soon they're in bed together, literally and figuratively, plotting to rip someone

What makes "Bound" so unusual is that this familiar "film noir" archetype is actually a woman. The lesbian twist, along with some unusual camera work, keeps us watching this first effort by writer/directors Larry and Andy Wachowski. "Bound" isn't as clever as it thinks it is, but it has some nice flourishes, usually involving the camera. The movie is awash in deep blacks, muted browns and blues, as close as you can get to making a black-and-white movie

it seems to arrive in buckets, you're all the more shocked. It spatters into toilet boils, spreads across apartment-house floors, drips slow-motion into a sea of spilled white paint, and saturates thick Oriental rugs. I guarantee you'll never be able to look at a pair of pruning shears the same way again.

Jennifer Tilly, best remembered as a gangster's girlfriend in "Bullets Over Broadway," plays another one here. This time the willowy actress with the baby voice is Violet, girl-

So when the blood comes, and friend of Mafioso Caesar (Joe Pantalino), who just happens to have a suitcase of literally laundered (and ironed) money in the apartment. Corky, working as a plumber and painter in the apartment next door, gets sucked into a scheme to take the money. When Caesar discovers it missing, he'll have no choice but to run. According to Violet, the total take should exceed two million dollars.

> "Bound" should remind you of a lot of other movies, especially the classic "film noir" dramas "Double and Indemnity" and "The Postman Always Rings Twice." There's also a great deal of Hitchcock here, especially in Don Davis' music, which takes its cues from Bernard Herrmann and "North By Northwest."

> Those other movie making brothers, the Coens, also seem to be lurking around every corner of this complicated mystery. Remember that their first feature, "Blood Simple," was a similarly claustrophobic study of unsafe sex and violent murder.

What makes the Wachowski brothers different from the Coens is sense of humor, or at least well-drawn irony. The only chuckles here come from Caesar, who catches on way too late that his wife could possibly have an affair with another woman.

They can't help themselves from staging elaborate shots. When the camera shoots Corky from a high angle, dwarfing her on the way into the apartment building, you know that fate is playing a major hand.

Other shots are there simply for show, including a multiple image shot through a wall of glass bricks. The performances are fine, providing you're not too irritated by Tilly's voice, which you'd hardly be able to listen to in real-life without stifling a laugh. Gershon's con, with her full lips, dirty leather jacket, and rusted Chevy truck, effectively turns the tables on a woman's place in the movies.

The gender-bending concept remains the best thing about "Bound," which otherwise takes itself way too seriously. While their movie is occasionally cool and often suspenseful, the Wachowskis have forgotten that .-even the bloodiest movies need ... to have a sense of fun.

Nil Lara slides across cultures mixing pop with folk

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Music is a artist who produces it and that's never been so evident than with crosscultural singer/songwriter Nil Lara. A simple 30second voice mail message sums up the Miami-based Lara. He rolls his R's, slides between American and Spanish accents, and although he has every reason to be pretentious, Lara ends the message sweetly with "I'll be waiting for your phone call."

In case you haven't figured it out. Lara's music is an unpretentious mix of American pop, Cuban rhythms and Venezuelan folkloric traditions. He effortlessly interchanges the Cuban threetoned "tres" guitar, the "cuatro," a Venezuelan four-stringed instrument, the electric guitar and indigenous percussion instruments. And that voice; at one minute it's richly melodic, the next a primal wail. Lara is a master at his craft. Standing outside a phone booth in the cold of Vermont, Lara isn't quite sure what to say about his music.

"I'm at your service," he says. First a little background. Lara was born in Newark, N.J., to Cuban parents but lived in Venezuela until moving to Miami while he was in junior high. Mubic lessons in Venezuela exposed him to that country's folkloric traditions.

At age 8, he learned how to play the cuatro and eventually graduated to guitar. While studying microwave analysis at the University of Miami, Lara spent his spare time fine tuning his songwriting craft and eventually reflection of the stumbled on to the "tres."

"As a child I used to watch live performances by 'guajiro' (Cuban country) artists and noticed a peculiar tonality which was present all the time. I later discovered that to be the 'tres.' It wasn't until I saw it and heard it in person that I fell for it and started to really appreciate the root of the 'son,' which is basically the blues of Cuban music."

Previous to his self-titled debut album released in March. Lara put out two albums on his own label, Beluga Blue Records. It was after a feature in Billboard magazine's Continental Divide column that label reps from Metro Blue, a subsidiary of Capitol Records, came knocking.

Lara's self-titled debut album was released in March to critical acclaim. Lara's songs are portraits of broken-hearted lovers, feelings of longing and loss, and nostalgia. "Bleeding," a muscular pop song that serves as the centerpiece of the album, showcases Lara's knack for writing soulsearing lyrics: "I feel you've got me near the end/Yes you have me bleeding/And so you've got me where you want/I feel you've got me on my knees/Yes you have me bleeding/Try to believe I am drained/I don't want to bleed no more."

The first single, "Baby" is an painful plead to a lover complimented with a Dominican tambora and a Bahamian junkanoo drum: "Baby doesn't know what she wants any more/Baby doesn't know what she wants/Baby doesn't know how to love anyone/Baby doesn't know how to love/Baby doesn't know what she wants to believe." Lara follows that up with "Be my savior/Won't you bring me home tonight?"

As a further paean to his heritage, three of the 11 songs on

"Nil Lara" are sung in Spanish. Through relentless touring of the U.S., Lara gained a grassroots following, having played a variety of small venues Alvin's to the 7th House locally. Success hasn't spoiled Lara. "I'm humbled by it. I did my work. I had a good time in the studio. My music and my culture come first. We just did a European thing. That was beautiful. I brought home an oriental instrument that has three strings. It's like a banjo for them but it doesn't sound so banjo-y. The skin is made out of dog,' Lara said squeamishly.

Lara said that although he has a few songs written, he's going to take his time for the next album.

"We're livin' the experience, you know. We have songs that I could put on a record already but I'm going to try to live a little bit and experience everything that's going on."

Nil Lara makes two area appearances next week. He headlines a show at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 15, at the 7th House, 7 N. Saginaw, Pontiac. Tickets are $6 in advance for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (810) 335-8100.

Corsi's serves homemade dishes with pride

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAPF WRITER

There's a lot of pride and hard work behind the Corsi name, and after 30 years in business, they're still trying to do things better.

: Since opening Corsi's Italian Restaurant in 1966 they've expanded three times, and recently remodeled their banquet center, which also provides overflow seating for the restaurant, which seats 75-80 people. Because customers requested booths, they got rid of the tables. and put in more booths.

Corsi's caters parties large and small, ranging from 50 to 400 beople - weddings, reunions, funeral lunches, business meetings, retirement and holiday parties.

. If everyone's coming to your house for dinner, but you don't have time to cook, Corsi's can help. Homemade pasta dishes, including lasagna (serves 10-12), salads, meatballs, chicken, and other items can be ordered for pick-up. They'll also help you put together a buffet menu with choice of meats, pasta, salad, and bread. The delivery fee is $25 for a minimum of 50 people.

Everything on the menu is homemade, and prepared with loving care under the direction of Adelia Corsi who oversees the kitchen.

Married in 1954, Adelia and her husband Rocco immigrated to the U.S. from Italy with nothing but dreams. Rocco worked at the Ford Rouge Plant in Dearborn, and when he got laid off, Adelia worked nights parttime in a pizzeria.

They talked about owning their own restaurant some day, and opened a pizzeria on the corner of Eight Mile Road and Grand River in 1959. In 1966 the couple moved their business to its present location on Seven Mile Road (between Inkster and Middlebelt) in Livonia.

Rocco is retired, but still makes the spaghetti sauce. "I learned from my mother in the old country," he said. "I still use my mother's recipe, and go by texture, and taste."

Adelia is known for her soups, especially minestrone, and chickCorsi's Italian Restaurant & Banquet Center en, which are always on the menu. Their sons Dean, a graduate of Schoolcraft College's culinary arts program, and Louie, also work in the restaurant.

"We were brought up here," said Louie. After school the brothers would go to the restaurant, eat dinner, do their homework, watch TV, and when they. got older, help out before going Dean is still single, but Louie is taken. "She came in for a job," said Louie explaining how he met his wife Penny who grew up in Redford. "We were eating lunch. My mother said 'there's a nice looking chicken, give her a job.' We called her a week later. and hired her."

Penny worked at the restaurant as a waitress while attend-Eastern Michigan University. She and Louie have been married 17 years, and have two daughters ages 14 and 11. Penny supervises waitresses, is banquet manager, and special events coordinator.

"We're all here, we don't count the hours. We work hard," said

"A lot of people have managers who run their restaurants, we're here all the time. This is a hands-on family operation. There's a lot of pride, this is home," adds Louie.

Corsi's is well-known for their delicious pizza, pasta dishes especially gnocchi and lasagna. For those who can't make up their minds there's a combo plate — lasagna, gnocchi, spaghetti and ravioli. Pasta is also available in half orders with meat or tomato sauce.

Specialty entrees include tripe, Veal Parmesan, Veal Scaloppini, and Chicken Cacciatore. The Greek salad is an often-requested item. Corsi's also offers an 8 ounce New York Strip Steak, chicken dinner, roast beef dinner, pork chops, and barbecue ribs. Be sure to ask about daily specials.

The recipes are winners, and most haven't changed in 30 years. "We put a marinara sauce on the menu for people who don't want meat," said Dean.

"We know our customers, and they know us," said Louie. "We have people who have been coming here 30 years." Many have moved to South Lyon, Brighton, and Howell, but they come back for the pizza and pasta.

"We use stick pepperoni and fresh ingredients," said Louie, "the sauce is not out of a can. everything is homemade."

Adelia enjoys gardening in her spare time. Her family says she can grown anything, and that's how she relaxes. She tends a garden at home, and in addition to vegetables, grows basil, parsley, sage and chives.

Adelia loves flowers, especially colorful unusual ones like the purple rooster crown. When she's not in the kitchen, you might find her outside taking care of her flowers - mums, roses, moonlight, and dahlias, which decorate the front and side of the restaurant.

West Bay offers luxury on lake setting

Luxury appointments in spacious units with spectacular views.

All of that - and more describes West Bay on Pine Lake, 10 attached condominiums in three buildings on Orchard Lake Road just north of Long Lake Road in West Bloomfield.

John Richards Homes, a Birmingham company whose custom-built offerings can be found throughout the northern and western suburbs, has nurtured West Bay on Pine Lake.

"We're on one of the most premier, all-sports lakes in the area at a price under $600,000," said John Shekerjian, president and CEO for John Richards. "It can't be duplicated.

"I like to do things first class," he added. "I think what distinguishes us is attention to detail." Prices go from $526,000 to $566,000 depending on square footage, location of the unit and view. Available space including the main living area, secondfloor bedrooms and lower walkout ranges from 3,796 to 4,166 square feet.

All units will include as standard features fireplace, air conditioning, whirlpool tub in the master suite and double oven, cooktop, dishwasher and microwave in the kitchen.

Also included at base price are a two-car garage (three-car garage in Unit 3), first-floor laundry, walkout with roughedin plumbing and drywall, deck off the family room and a boat slip.

"Empty nesters who like to be by water and want to downsize will be looking in here ... plus young professionals who like to have everything taken care of and be by water," said M. Louis Sabatini, vice president of sales and operations for John Richards.

Lisa Seal, a sales representative, has taken several people through the units now under construction.

"The view is probably most impressive," she said. "Also, ceiling height gives a feeling of volume and spaciousness inside. The elevator (option) has been a real plus. And, of course, the

"Imagine waking up every morning and looking at the lake," Sabatini said from a master suite.

"And the sounds of a waterfall and fountain," Seal added.

"It's a beautiful view summer and winter," Shekerjian said. "The lake changes daily."

Different units provide different floor plans. However, a view of the water is available from the foyer of every one.

Unit 3 under construction features a walk-up master with pan ceiling, a dressing/make-up area and two walk-in closets.

A room next to the master can be used as an additional bedroom - two others are upstairs along with a full bath - or it can be opened to the master and used as an exercise room, media room, craft room or office.

Occupying almost the entire left section of the house, this sumptuous refuge has all the amenities to assure your complete comfort and privacy. A coffered vault graces the ceiling above the sleeping area. A large bay window admits the available light and provides a fine view of the landscape. The well-appointed private bathroom features an oversized tub, separate shower and twin basins. An enormous walk-in closet, fitted with shelves, has room for the most extensive wardrobe.

The remainder of the home, starting with the attractive brick-and-siding exterior, is equally as splendid. Stately columns frame the recessed entry. Immediately inside, a convenient half-bath and coat closet are at the disposal of your visitors.

The living room and dining room, both vaulted, are open to each other. Whether you are dining formally or enjoying a lively conversation in the living room, this configuration enhances the spaciousness of the central area. Adjoining the dining room, the walk-through kitchen opens into the well-lit breakfast nook and family room. This is the expanse where most of the informal gathering will take place and is heated by a generous fireplace. In addition to being well placed for easy serving, the kitchen features a central eating bar with built-in range, walk-in pantry and a separate oven.

The two secondary bedrooms are separated by a full bathroom. The larger one has a projecting bay window and will serve nicely as guest quarters. The smaller, if not in use, can easily be converted to a home office or exercise room. Each has ample closet space.

Whether you are a weekend hobbyist or dedicated to working on household projects, there is plenty of room in the garage to house all your tools in the shop area. The 319-square-foot attic can be developed as a bonus room or used as extra storage space.

Wallboard takes care

Wallboard, a fixer-upper's best friend, is used as a backing throughout houses in the United States. Because it is so common, repairs are going to be needed at some time turning your tenure as a homeowner. mark all joist locations on the wall plates so you know where to nail after panels are in place. Start on one wall and lift the first panel into place and attach to joists with 1-1/4-inch ring-shank wallboard nails or 1-1/3-

These repairs range from fixing minor dents to replacing entire sections of a wall. The key element in wall repair is that once you're done with the repairs, the repaired area should blend in with the surround surface.

Standard wallboard is composed of a fire-resistant gypsum core sandwiched between two layers of paper. There are also waterproof panels available for use in the bathroom and other damp areas.

Preparation

Plan your layout in advance so you know how many supplies you will need. The larger the size panel, the fewer seams you'll have in your wall, so consider using long panels, such as 10- or 12-foot sizes. Panels can be hung horizontally or vertically, but horizontal placement is stronger.

Stack the wallboard against the last wall you plan to cover to leave maximum floor space available for working.

Examine the framing and straighten bowed or crooked studs by planing down high spots. Install blocking wherever joists are not available to give ceiling panels edge support. Make sure all electrical boxes are flush with the finished wall. Wires should be at least 1-1/4 inches from faces of studs or joists. If they aren't, nail on metal protectors.

It might be a good idea to rent a wallboard jack if you plan to redo the ceiling. The jack cradles a full sheet of wallboard and can raise or lower it with a crank. The jack is also mounted on wheels so you can position the wallboard however you choose.

Ceiling panels

mark all joist locations on the wall plates so you know where to nail after panels are in place. Start on one wall and lift the first panel into place and attach to joists with 1-1/4-inch ring-shank wallboard nails or 1-1/3-inch type W screws. Start in the center and work outward, spacing nails seven inches apart, 12 inches if using the double-nail technique. Screws should be placed 12 inches apart. Nails/screws should be at least 3/8 inch from the panel edge and embedded slightly into the paper.

Once the first panel is up, measure, cut to fit and install remaining panels. Measure and mark holes for electrical outlets, flues or other obstructions and cut out with a wallboard saw. Gaps around the obstructions should be no more that 1/4 inch.

Wall panels

Once again, the first thing you should do is mark all stud locations on the ceiling and floor. For horizontal panels, place top panel first and snug it up against the ceiling. Bring the bottom panel snug up against the top panel and fill in any gaps below with strips of wallboard. Before attaching wallboard to the studs, snap vertical lines to indicate stud locations. Use screws or nails to attach the panels in place. Space nails eight inches apart, while screws should be 12 inches apart. Cover all outside corners with metal corner beads and make sure to angle nails away from the corner.

Taping

You will need a number of specialized tools to tape and fill joints properly. Those include three sizes of putty knives (a three- or four-inch, six-inch and a 10- or 12-inch), an angled knife for corners, a tray to hold compound, a sanding block, wallboard tape, joint compound and tapping compound.

There are three applications joints. Initially, mix the compound with a limited amount of water and spread a layer of compound along the joint. Wet the tape and lay it over the joint/compound and smooth it with a three- or four-inch putty knife.

When the second application is dry, sand again and apply a third coat with the 10- or 12-inch knife. Don't forget to coat nail dimples.

Once the compound is dry, sand again and check to see if a fourth coat is necessary.

Painting

Before you paint wallboard, it must be sealed to prevent absorption of paint into the panels. Polyvinyl acetate (PVA) is the most common primer on the market and creates an acceptable surface for most latex paints. Don't use PVA primer where you will be using wallpaper. It prevents wallpaper from adhering to the wallboard. If you plan to use oilbased paints, use an alkaline primer.

Closing costs can add up

wants to know about interest rates and which lender has the lowest rate. But that's only part of the mortgage equation. What about the closing cost? What do they all mean? And why do you have to pay them?

Let's consider all these fees called closing costs. First of all, you need to understand the difference between third party fees and so-called "lender fees." Third party fees are fees the lender charges you while the lender, in turn, pays the third party with his money for services rendered. For instance, an appraisal fee, survey fee, credit report fee and closing fee are some examples of these fees. The lender is typically not making a profit on these fees. This is important to remember because popular opinion may cause you to believe that closing costs are just for the lender to make extra profit. The mortgage business is so competitive that any type of pure fee income has become very thin, at best.

point. Exactly what fees are considered fee income for the lender? Fees such as document preparation fees, underwriting fees, processing fees and, in some Everybody cases, a tax service fee, may be used for extra income. This is not etched in stone. These fees can be necessary fees for some lenders. Be sure to ask for an explanation of what the money being collected will be used for. You may have noticed that I have not mentioned pre-paid costs which include interest, property taxes and homeowner insurance. I will address this type of cost in a future column.

For the purchase of a new construction home:

While I am on the topic of closing costs, I would like to point out and clarify the requirement for title insurance cost for a new construction home.

A title insurance policy is most costly for a new construction home because the home has never had a title policy, whereas an existing home will have had a policy already in effect. Hence, the cost to update the title work is less expensive than the cost of initiating a brand new policy. Therefore, on a new home, an owner's policy and a lender's policy must be simultaneously gen-

That brings me to my next erated from scratch. Thus, the reason for the higher expense.

> To illustrate the difference, we'll consider a $150,000 new mortgage. The title insurance cost for this would be $695, But on an existing home, where a policy has already been in effect,. the cost would be much less at $278. The difference of $417 is a lot. For this reason, when shopping for a new mortgage, you should specify to the lender that the mortgage is for a new home so you get accurate closing cost estimates. The amount of title insurance is usually based on the new mortgage amount. Most lenders use the same chart to quote the fee so it should not differ much from one lender to the next.

For the refinancing of you current home:

When refinancing, closing cost can be a little different. In fact you may not have to pay any at all. First, the amount of the closing cost can depend on several factors, including the length of time since you first obtained your mortgage. Next, consider whether or not you are using the same lender who did you first mortgage. If so, the cost may be lower. The fee for a survey can, in most instances, be waived if you still have your original copy of the survey. As long as you have not made any structural changes to the home, the cost will usually be waived.

Title insurance cost discussed above can also vary depending on whether you provide your original policy and if the lender takes the time to obtain credit on your behalf. The main thing to remember is that there are ways to save money so don't be afraid to ask your loan officer for ideas of how to cut costs on your mort-

Think paint when it's time to redecorate

By Popular Mechanics FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

When it's time for some interior decorating in your home, think paint. Not only is interior painting an easy way to make a room look clean and fresh, it's relatively inexpensive, too. Thanks to the many fine companies that offer historical paint lines, old-house owners won't sacrifice authenticity when making this choice.

Of course, like everything else, paint and the way it's made has changed over the years - for the better. Some paint companies base their historical paint lines on documentary research.

Usually this includes old color cards, product information and books. Some go a step further and actually base a historical paint color on physical research conducted on existing period buildings. Layer after layer of old paint is carefully removed until the original coating is found. Samples are taken of this original coating and through laboratory analysis a reproduction color, based on its pigment, is duplicated in a modern paint.

You must remember, though, that our tastes today aren't necessarily the same as those of our ancestors. With this in mind, some companies have modified period colors to appeal to the modern eye. Unfortunately, many suppliers don't tell you when they've done this. So if you're striving for a museumlike reproduction in your home, you'll have to study the color cards carefully. If not, these slight adaptations shouldn't matter.

Looking at the way paint has changed through the ages, prior to 1700, whitewash was a popular interior paint used in the colonies. An inexpensive and easily available mixture of slaked lime and water, it resembled liquid plaster. (You can still find whitewash paints in some historic lines). Easy to use, whitewash was a way to make things look clean and neat. One problem with whitewash, though, was its impermanence. It didn't last long and washed off easily with water. Another early paint that goes back to the founding of this country is milk paint. Often preferred for interior work because it didn't have an unpleasant odor - like the also available oil-based paints - milk, as its name implies, was used as the water and binder. No matter what type of paint you're talking about, if it was made before the onset of the commercial paint industry (around 1860-1870), it was hand-mixed. So you didn't see the uniform consistency that we take for granted today - it had a different texture and was a bit streaky.

Interior Motives

'Why don't you' ... try some of these ideas

NAOMI STONE LEVY

A tribute to Diana Vreeland's column in Harper's Bazaar magazine that relates to your interiors says, "Why don't you?"

Why don't you rip up that dated wall-to-wall carpeting and replace it with a significant area rug that will set the note for an entire new lifestyle? From it will emanate new colors and patterns. Be discerning in your selections.

Why don't you remove the also "dated" cabinet doors in your kitchen and breakfast area? Even paint the interior a contrasting color. Putty in the hinge holes, paint and leave the shelves open to exhibit your china, crystal, a vase or two, a bit of sculpture – whatever.

Why don't you tack up a large piece of canvas in your child's room, arm him or her with colored felt pens and let the child do his or her own thing? You never know, Cezanne may be living under your roof.

Why don't you buy a group of colorcoordinated, terry, fingertip-size guest towels? They will perk up the powder room, and guests will enjoy using their own towel.

Why don't you have your new residence designed to enjoy one large space that accommodates all the activities of a living/dining area, a library and a den? People like being together in a convivial group. The dining area is used only an hour or so daily. Don't waste the space.

Why don't you find a wonderful quilt that becomes the focal point of a bedroom?

If it is an antique, and perishable, it could even hang on the wall as a tapestry. It also can function as a bed-spread. Color coordinate the rest of the bedroom. Paint the walls a resonant color, and the woodwork all white.

My granddaughter used a group of my sample books, cut the varied fabrics into triangles and sewed them into squares. After joining the squares and tie-tacking them onto a backing, she made me the most astonishing quilt. I will forever treasure it.

Why don't you choose a strongly patterned, vividly colored wallpaper and completely line a guest closet, walls and ceiling? Buy brass hangers, and your guests will love it. No need to worry that it is too much, because a closet is used so little you won't tire of Last but not least, why don't you gather all of your family photographs and mount them onto a folding screen? It can separate two areas, or it can stand in a corner and be your most significant possession.

Buy some grosgrain ribbon to outline each panel. Ask a professional wallpaper hanger to do the pasting if you doubt your own ability.

Do Choucroute for cool fall evenings

KUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Alsatian farmers are busy harvesting white cabbage through November – deliciously large cabbages to ferment (for making fresh sauerkraut), and to ultimately make their most prized winter dish – Choucroute. This cured-kraut based dish is combined with smoked meats (pork), sausages and local wine.

The Chefs of Alsace, in eastern France, were strongly influenced by German ingredients and food ideas - these influences traveled throughout the country, and now centuries later, it is most common to find Choucroute being served as a "specialty" in the Brasseries of Strasbourg and Paris.

Choucroute recipes vary from city to city, from family to family – all recipes include sauerkraut (either home cured or store bought) and a variety of pork products (pork knuckles, salt pork, spareribs, pork belly, fatty bacon, cured boneless pork shoulder butt, boned pork loin, smoked sausages, and frankfurters). Seasonings and spices are the choice of the Chef – some recipes will include champagne instead of wine, some will include onions, but all proper recipes will have potatoes on top as a garnish.

My dear and longtime friend, Liliane Rattner, just happens to be French (was born and raised in Nancy, in eastern France, the capital of Lorraine) and also happens to be a fabulous cook (I certainly know how to pick my friends!!). As a child, Liliane learned from her mother, how to make Choucroute.

She offers me a piece of advice, "make sure you place small containers of white vinegar around the house as you cook this, the smells are powerful—the vinegar will help absorb the strong odor."

Liliane has carried on the family tradition of making Choucroute, but usually makes it for special occasions, especially on Thanksgiving – one of her traditions. Liliane has modified her mother's original recipe to accommodate the low-fat trends of today – while her ingredients have remained true to her teaching (except for the salt pork), she now boils most of her meats to eliminate the added fat.

For a cool fall evening prepare Choucroute as a special one-dish meal for family and friends. Serve with a hearty bread or baguette, and make sure you have some Dijon or grainy mustard on hand to use as a condiment for those sausages. Liliane suggests that you accompany this dish with a good quality beer or a Panaché (half 7-Up and half beer) - (you can use diet 7-Up and faux beer, if you so choose). Like all good home-cooks, her old family recipe has no specific amounts attached, so Liliane has talked me through her recipe:

LILIANE RATTNER'S CHOUCROUTE

Sauerkraut

Juniper berries

White wine (jug of Chardonnay or a dry white table wine)

A variety of: smoked beef sausages, smoked kielbasa, pork hocks, a piece of ham, hot dogs (beef, pork, and or turkey), and smoked pork chops.

Potatoes (Firm potatoes - you can use red potatoes or any that will not fall apart when cooking) - peeled and quartered.

- a 2 pound can of sauerkraut will be sufficient for approximately 4

- each type of sausage, should be cut to feed four people
- none pork hock for 2-3 people
- ham used comes from the refrigerated section of the grocery store already cooked, usually comes in a plastic package packed with jelly very lean
- buy smoked pork chops that are already cooked can be purchased in upscale markets or specialty meat shops if serving as leftovers discard any potatoes left they get too mushy.

In a heavy pot, place the pork hocks in enough water to cover — lid the pot, boil gently for approximately 2 hours.

When cool enough to handle, leave half of the hocks used whole, the others, skin and cut meat into pieces.

In another pot, boil sausages and smoked kielbasa (not hot dogs, ham or pork chops) – cover the sausages with water and place over medium boil, when boiling, turn heat down, lid the pot, and cook for approximately 1 hour. Drain and rinse the sausages – discard water and set aside.

Rinse the sauerkraut in a colander and drain. In a large heavy non-reactive pot (7 quart Le Creuset – enamel over cast iron French oven) place drained sauerkraut. Place enough wine in the pot to cover the sauerkraut – put in juniper berries (use 2 berries per can of kraut) place over medium heat, bringing the sauerkraut and wine to a gentle boilturn heat down to a simmer, add the preboiled pork hocks and bury in the sauerkraut – cover and cook for approximately 2 hours.

Add the sausages (bury in the sauerkraut) — make sure there is enough wine to cover — add more wine if necessary — add a few tablespoons at a time. Lid the pot and cook for 1 hour over simmer.

Add the pork chops and ham, place some of the sauerkraut over the meat – just cover lightly do not bury - add the hot dogs on top and lid the pot. Cook over simmer for another hour, mix in hot dogs as cooking.

When ready to serve, use a large platter, top Choucroute with drained boiled potatoes – and bring meats to the top.

Additional note: Le Creuset Cookware - beautiful rich-deep colored enamel over cast iron provides a surface that won't absorb flavors or odors, easy to clean, and can be used over any heat source - gas, electric, induction, or ceramic top ranges. The cast iron may be weighty, but the evenly distributed heat is worth it! Warranted for 101 years - these products, are a once in a lifetime purchase.

THE HEIGHT OF GOOD REASON

The height of a countertop should be determined by the tasks performed on the surface and the comfort of the user. Standard kitchen countertop height is 36" above the floor. This dimension accommodates appliances such as dishwashers and ranges, and is a comfortable standing height for most people. Table, desk, and special activity counters (pastry -making) are usually 30" above the floor. Higher and lower heights are appropriate in some instances by Jeff Beuckelaere, because of special needs.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Checklist will help hire qualified roofers

The roof is 20 years old and beginning to look like Ruffles. You think you may have heard that terrible "drip. drip, drip" sound last night and you've decided it's time to have that new roof installed. The questions are many. How much? Whom do I trust? How do I know I'm getting a good job?

The questions are important. Many of the homes we inspect have new roofs and many have defective workmanship. One brand-new roof we reviewed was missing some roof flashings, had the wrong type of flashings in areas and had improperly installed valleys, and the shingles didn't even come to the edge of the roof!

In some cases, fly-by-night companies will offer a free roof inspection and then insist the roof needs immediate replacement. Never ever have a roof reshingled under these conditions. Always seek out additional estimates and reviews to be sure you aren't being

Guide

- 1. Use only licensed contractors. The salesperson should have a copy of state licensure with them.
- 2. Ask who will be doing the work an employee or a part-time subcontractor.
- 3. Find out how long the company has been in the roofing business and ask for references from two or three years ago. Check them out.
- 4. Ask for the company's insurance company to send you current proof of insurance. You want to see both liability and workers compensation insurance. Without it, if a worker falls off the roof, you become liable. It is important that the insurance company send the document directly (don't worry, they do this all the time); otherwise the insurance may have expired for nonpayment.
- 5. Obtain a copy of the roofer's warranty. Make sure it is specific. Insist that the contractor be responsible for workmanship problems should the shingle manufacturer state the job wasn't installed according to its specifications.
- 6. Ask the company to agree, in writing, to meet National Roofing Contractors Association and the shingle manufacturer's standards of practice. This is fair to both you and the roofer because it establishes a written standard of practice by which the job can be judged. It eliminates subjective notions that you or the contractor may have.

7. Insist that the contractor pull a city permit. A contractor who doesn't pull a permit, or worse, asks for the homeowner to pull a permit is likely not reputable and increases the likelihood that you will be unhappy.

8. Don't pay more than 25 percent down on the job. A roofer who asks for more may not be financially sound and may walk away before a satisfactory job is completed. Obtain a Full Waiver of Lien, once the job is paid for, to avoid a lien being placed on the home.

9. Don't worry about claims about asphalt vs. fiberglass shingles. Despite claims to the contrary, both products can provide satisfactory performance for years to come. Asphalt shingles have the edge for cold weather installations (they break less easily) and may hide surface distortions better, but otherwise a 20-year fiberglass shingle should perform like a 20-year asphalt shingle.

10. Ask that the roofer install ice and weather shield at the roof edges, around through roof projections such as chimneys, and in any valleys or difficult-to-seal areas on the roof. This remarkable product has prevented more roof leaks than any other roofing innovation in decades.

11. Have the roofer calculate the need for new vents. The majority of roofs we inspect are underventilated. Adequate ventilation can help to protect the roof from decay and extend the life of shingles. In Michigan's hot, humid climate, proper ventilation is a must.

12. Develop a checklist like this and present it to the roofer. Tell the roofers that their quote will be compared against others on the same basis.

By following a few rules of practice, you can lessen the likelihood of getting an unsatisfactory roofing job. By using a checklist to compare all companies who bid, you will quickly eliminate some of the fly-by-night companies and provide an advantage to the reputable companies from whom you really want

Granite makes an excellent countertop

Q: I am having a new home built and cannot decide on which type of countertops to put in my kitchen. We are looking at solid surface materials such as granite. Any suggestions?

A: There are two types of solid surface materials. Man-made and natural. Although both types of materials are good, you need to be sure of the advantages and disadvantages of each mate-

Solid-surfacing synthetic materials are all similar in their characteristics. The man-made materials are softer and therefore scratch easily. Hot pans cannot be set on the surface and household appliances such as a coffee-maker can burn and discolor the counters. Staining is also highly probable. Many homeowners do not like the look of a solid synthetic because of the dull matte finish. Homeowners do like the fact that many sheets can be molded together and create a countertop without seams.

Marble is a natural stone but is not recommended for kitchen countertops but often used in bathrooms. It is porous and can harbor dangerous bacteria. Because it is soft it can easily

Granite is a natural stone (not manmade). The common characteristics of all types of natural stone is the fact that they took thousands of years to create. Granite is very dense and nonporous and would be my recommendation for a choice of countertop. The hardness of this stone is equivalent to 70 percent of diamond. Staining on most granites is almost impossible with an absorption rate as low as .01 per-

Unaffected by acids or caustic agents and the ability to set hot items directly on the surface are some great reasons to consider granite. Cleaning granite is made easy because of the bright polished surface.

Both granite and solid surface materials come in a range of colors, although their looks are very different. The cost of granite is always a factor, but because of new mining methods and handling procedures, as well as the increase in volume buying, granite has become much more economical. Certain color varieties of granite are more available and may be less expensive than the norm.

When making the selection of your countertop, it is always wise to seek the services of a qualified stone designer. They can help you in choosing the right product based on the location and the use in your home. They can also save thousands of dollars down the road by the choice of product.

Remember that you need to take care in the handling of any of these countertop materials. Find out which type of cleaning product is recommended for your countertop.

ennifer Freece, a fourth year student at the University of Michigan, has had compatible roommates and incompatible roommates. But this year she's going it alone.

The Canton resident, who graduated from Ann Arbor Green Hills, has created her own special place at the University's Bursley Hall that expresses her interests and creativity.

"I have a huge construction paper tree outside the door. I'm involved with a lot of Christian groups on campus and the tree has leaves with different parts of scripture on it," she said.

"When you step inside I have warm rose-colored carpeting. I like to have people in to talk, so I have two bean bags, pillows, TV, VCR, stereo. The major colors are rose and forest green."

Her wall posters, a constant with all college students, show her dual concerns. They are either about her Christian faith or her devotion to music. Freece is a music major. One poster shows an old man playing piano and speaks about the spirit.

"We went to property disposal and bought the desk. My father, who's a mechanical engineer, cut a hole in the desk and put my computer in it so the monitor sticks through and there's a CD and tape deck. It's pretty high tech."

Freece said she had a roommate her freshman year who came from a different background and had different interests. It didn't work out. The next two years she had a roommate that she really got along with. This year her parents suggested that a single would be best for concentrating on her studies.

Every year thousands of college students are faced with the problem of making a comfortable home away from home. They often have limited budgets, limited space in dorm rooms or shared houses and limited privacy. Most also have to learn the fine art of compromise in dealing with roommates and house rules.

Kmart Corp., recognizing the budget problems faced by students, hired a design consultant to decorate a dorm room at Eastern Michigan University.

"When we were interested in working on a dorm room project, we went to Eastern because we already had a relationship with the university through NICE (National Institute for Consumer Education) at Eastern," said Kmart spokeswoman Laura Mahle. "I called the director of housing and since they already have showcase rooms, they thought it would be nice to have a room designed by Kmart."

Kmart hired Jodi Anger, a 24-yearold Eastern graduate, to do the decorating in a standard 12-by-18-foot two-person dorm room.

Anger said the biggest problems were the tight space and the strict dorm codes. She said the codes prohibit removing window treatments and painting the walls. She said that using prints and coverups solve the code problem and creative storage makes better use of space.

Storage is a major problem for students who bring their clothes, books

See SPACE, 10G

Here are some tips from Kmart design consultant Jodie Anger on how to decorate a college dorm room economically:

- Purchase space-saving containers to conveniently store your most prized possessions.
- Invest in a Multi-Use Cart with storage bins. Anger selected one equipped with wheels so that it could easily be moved around the room. She placed a microwave on top of the cart and stored food and supplies in the bins.
- Coordinate a student's work area with a desk organizer lamp that has compartments to hold desk supplies like pencils, pens and post-it notes.
- Consider a futon which serves as a couch by day and bed by night.
- Use the colors in your comforter as a starting point to color coordinate your room.
- A dome-touch lamp with a three-way lighting feature sheds just the right amount of light especially when one student burns the midnight oil while roomies sleep.
- Transition a dorm room decoratively with area rugs.
- Change the curtains supplied by the housing office, but be careful not to break housing codes.
- When it comes to appliances, pool your resources. If you don't continue to live with your roommate(s), buy the other partner(s) possession at the end of the year.

GARDEN SPOT

Winter nurturing saves plants

Haven't the geraniums been outstanding this year? We enjoy the bright as well as the pastel colors of the blooms, but they haven't always been the main attraction.

As early as the 1800s geraniums were used as "carpet bed" plants and were prevented from flowering because the foliage was the most important component in these gardens. The fancy leaves had bands of colors in gold, cream, green and red that provided wonderful contrast to other foliage in the design. One of these old plants still survives, a hybrid, "Madame Salleroi," which never has bloomed!

These geraniums belong to the genus Pelargonium and, although they are still called geraniums today, should be called by their botanical name. When the plants were taken from South Africa to Britain, they were called geraniums because they resembled the hardy, herbaceous species of the genus Geranium, used extensively in Europe then.

The pretty ivy-leafed one, P. peltatum, reached England in 1701, while P. zonal (the plants with horseshoe markings on the leaves) arrived in 1710. It is the principal parent of the bedding geraniums — oops! pelargoniums.

It's about time to bring our pelargoniums indoors and I am excited about the successful way Ivan Zador of West Bloomfield has overwintered his plants for four years.

Ivan and his wife, Veronica, grow many beautiful, healthy pelargoniums with different bloom colors on and around their sunny raised deck during the summer. They are all grown in pots or window boxes attached to the deck railing and began their life in four-inch pots. Sometimes Ivan rescues "orphaned" plants and brings them back to luxuriant growth.

Ivan is in no hurry at this time to take the plants indoors. He traditionally waits until after Halloween, unless the temperature drops to 20 degrees, then it's "emergency time." Veronica, their children and friends help carry the pots into the basement and/or to his office.

Other than that time, Ivan said, "It's a slow process."

Before the move, he cuts back the dead branches and fading blooms but leaves the buds. The pelargoniums growing in the window boxes are transferred to others already in place in the basement. The basement is unfinished, with a cement floor and no additional heating, but it does have a large doorwall that lets in a lot of light, as do the windows in the basement and in Ivan's office where the overflow is stashed. No artificial lighting is used. The pots are turned regularly so that the growth is even.

Ivan keeps a strict routine that never changes as he cares for the flowers throughout the year. The first Sunday of each month the plants are fertilized with Miracle-Gro, mixed according to the package directions, and watered when needed. The plants, he said, "absolutely don't know what they're getting," and apparently aren't aware of the changing seasons.

MARTY FIGLEY

The Zadors caution readers that the plants do go into a temporary decline and he believes it is caused by the photosynthetic change of less light; they look their worst about Christmas time.

"But don't worry, about January/February they say 'Hey, spring is coming' and they start blooming."

The photographs I saw were amazing; a riot of colorful blooms filled the plants.

They have also noticed the bloom colors are deeper with a different color cast and even the foliage is darker, with no zonal markings when they are growing indoors. When the plants are returned outside around May 15 — "not before" — the colors are more natural and the zonal markings are again evident.

Ivan uses potting soil from Kmart and has found it quite sufficient. All of the containers have drainage holes, which is very important.

"I do this by intuition. I am from Czechoslovakia and everybody does it there. I remember everybody brings their plants in. I'm choosing to keep and nurture rather than destroy or replace continually."

"The idea is, with just a little involvement and concern things can stay beautiful and alive," Veronica said. "It's pleasant for the children to see their father have a deep respect for these beautiful flowers."

and other objects from home.

"You have a lot of great storage units available," Anger said. "We put them under the bed and around the room. We had a futon with a big drawer under it and used space saver units in the closet, under the bed and under the microwave."

Mahle said Rubbermaid's Keeper boxes are great stackable storage units.

Mahle said lighting was used to create private sectors. Three-way lights can be dimmed for use by late night scholars while letting tired roommates sleep.

Anger said the most important thing about living with a roommate is communication.

"Some have hand-me-downs, objects that have been passed down from someone else. It's important to call before you move in, maybe going shopping together or waiting until you move in," Anger said.

She emphasized that this is especially important with electronic equipment to avoid expense and duplication.

Mahle said the project was to show a typical room with suggestions for things a student would need to live and study comfortably. She said they tried to keep items at a reasonable price and were aware that in a real life situation students would be bringing many used items from home.

"We assume that people will bring their own things from home," she said. 'The first day that you move in, get to know people. Make the room the way you want to make it. I'm creative, I like a lot of posters, a big fish tank. I'm a colorful person. Some people think it looks gaudy, but I like color. It has to look like life, like it's lived in. But the best part of college is to take part in campus activities'

Lynette Buffa
Oakland University

"Only a few things are what students will need but we wanted to show the whole picture. Mixing and mingling what you have from home."

Comforters and rugs were used to bring the room together in a bright but coordinated color scheme. Anger chose a strong berber rug to add warmth to the linoleum covered floors. (See a list of other ideas on this page.)

Not all Eastern students are in tiny two-person rooms; Catherine Ghrist, a junior from Westland and graduate of John Glenn High School, shares a suite with two bedrooms and a living room with three other coeds at Goddard Hall.

"The room is very big. We have a huge living room, two bedrooms," Ghrist said.

She said she and her roommate have had no problems agreeing on decorations.

"We have lots of posters. Salvador Dali on the door," Ghrist said. "My roommate is into exotic animals. I have a poster of a frog. We have tigers and cheetahs. She's going to be a veternarian. We both have pictures of our friends"

Ghrist said storage is a problem, but a big bookshelf helps. The roommates have the requisite electronics - microwave, "big TV," VCR, Sega-Saturn, stereo-radio, three refrigerators and numerous alarm clocks.

This is Ghrist's first year at Eastern and she said the biggest adjustment has been personal.

"I didn't go here last year and it was hard to get to know people," she said. "My first week I kind of hated it, I'm much more comfortable now."

At Oakland University, roommates Lynette Buffa of Canton and Emily Maderal of Bloomfield have found that getting to know each other is a good start in compatible room sharing.

"We met last year and became good friends, I was spending a lot of time in her room and she in mine," said Buffa, a sophomore graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. "We got to know each other real well. We don't have conflicts. We do our own thing and do things together."

The roommates have separate large closet areas with Rubbermaid carriers, two refrigerators and the requisite microwave, TV and stereo.

"We don't have a great deal of space, but we don't feel crammed," Buffa said.

"I have a bulletin board. We will be putting up posters. We have some surrealist posters up and a movie poster, but we'll be adding more after we put our couch in."

The couch is a loveseat from Buffa's parents that proved a hit last year and is coming back for more service. Last year it sat atop a loft, but Buffa has grown leery of lofts as last year's proved unsturdy."

Buffa said she loves college life and the secret to making a dorm room "homey" is to fill it with people and color.

"The first day that you move in, get to know people," Buffa advised. "Make the room the way you want to make it. I'm creative, I like a lot of posters, a big fish tank. I'm a colorful person. Some people think it looks gaudy, but I like color. It has to look like life, like it's lived in. But the best part of college is to take part in campus activities."

Service contracts need careful checking

The other day listening to a news broadcast I heard a story on the subject of a consumers problem with service on her television set. She had purchased the set from Fretter Appliance and also signed up for the additional five year service contract. Now the set needed service and she couldn't get through to Fretters and she doesn't know what to do.

The news reporter tried as well without success, and finally upon a personal visit was told by an employee that she didn't have a clue as to what the consumer should do. In other words, tough

When Highland Appliance went out of business, and now Fretter, the situation may present a serious problem for the innocent customer who purchased an extended service contract. The money that you have paid up front for this contract has been set aside, and we would hope that the failing business has made provisions for the care of your product. If that's not the case, we would then think it appropriate that the monies would be returned to us. The past few years have shown us just the opposite is happening, so I recommend that whenever you purchase the additional service contract on a product, you make inquiries on what happens to your contract if the business should go out of business.

A radio listener called and asked what was going on inside his microwave because the food was only cooking on the left side of the oven cavity. Let me give you a picture of why this can happen and what the problem could be. Imagine an upstairs hallway with an overhead fan pushing air down the stairway. Without that fan the air can not travel downstairs and the same analogy applies to your microwave.

The microwave is sent down a passageway into the ceiling of the oven cavity and from there it has to be directed into the space where the food is placed. This is accomplished with the use of a stirrer blade which is under the ceiling cover which you should clean once in a while. That blade is set at certain angles to disperse the waves into the oven as evenly as possible.

Some of these blades are driven by air from a blower motor and others are driven by a little motor. If the motor should fail or the nut which holds the blade falls off, then you will cook in only one area. This is not such a serious problem which can't be renaired at a reasonable cost by a qualified technician. I would suggest that you check out the reputation of a service company before you take your microwave into them for repairs.

The other day a senior citizen reported that a manufacturer replaced the motor assembly on her washing machine even though another independent service company wouldn't repair it. I felt good for her until later when I discovered that her washer was 26 years old and she spent in excess of $200 to have the motor replaced. Just how much longer does she think that washer will work before a rust hole appears inside the inner drum? Does spending that amount of money on that old of a machine really justify itself? With the brand of machine this woman owns, I can assure you that it was not a wise investment on her part. Stop and think a few minutes before you commit to wasting your dollars.

If you have a question or complaint about the appliance sales and service industry, why don't you drop me a line and send it to the address of your local Observer & Eccentric newspaper. I'd love to help you.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly, radio program on WJR-AM.

Tips for a more secure home.

- ✓ Don't leave lights on when you're away on a trip—burglar will watch for homes that have lights burning at odd hours or on successive nights, clues that you are trying to outfox him.
- ✓ A nosy neighbor is a good neighbor, so let them know whether you're expecting anyone while you're out.
- ✓ If you go out for a short period of time, leave a radio on. Tune it to a talk show or all-news station if there is one in your area. The burglar will have a hard time deciding if the voices are coming from the radio.
- ✓ Never hide a key under the doormat, above the door, in the flower pots or window boxes, or in low shrubbery around the front door or porch.
- ✓ Cut breaks in your shrubbery. Prune the shrubbery well so a burglar will find it difficult to hind behind it.

Gorget acted as battle protection

BY NANCY AND FRANK BOOS SPECIAL WRITERS

Dear Nancy and Frank:

I bought this at an antique show. It is about five inches high, three inches wide and 1/8-inch thick. Please tell me something about it.

Daniel, Birmingham

Dear Daniel:

What you have there is probably an American Indian gorget (pronounced "gor jit").

A gorget is a piece of armor or some other protective device or crescent-shaped ornament worn around the throat. It originated with medieval armor and at that time consisted of a neck defense made in two halves that wrapped around the entire neck just under the helmet and just above the torso armor. Often the two halves were again made of several parts to allow flexibility and movement of the neck. The halves were fastened with pins or studs to hold them in place.

Obviously, the purpose of the gorget was to protect one of man's most likely areas to receive a death blow in battle, his throat. As a point of interest, these suits of armor were heaviest in the parts covering the most vulnerable areas and would weigh between 25 and 100 pounds, requiring the knight to have a valet's help to put it on and take

The American Indian also had some protective battle devices, such as shields, helmets of wood (painted with designs meant to frighten the enemy), bows and arrows, knives, clubs and the well-known tomahawk. Around the 1880s, they began to acquire rifles. Some tribes also had wooden slats tied together and wrapped around their bodies and held up with shoulder straps. Some used carved wooden collars (gorgets) that they wound around their necks.

As the Europeans began trading with the American Indians in the 17th century, they began influencing the Indians in their dress styles. By the 19th century, many Indian garments were copied directly from European dress.

However, there was one major exception, that being that the Indian refused to copy Western European style men's trousers. Leggings were de rigeur leg wear for the American Indian male, which makes sense. It would be difficult to wear form-fitting trousers to ride bareback, sit cross-legged on tepee floors, run in the woods, fish in the streams, etc.

We believe the gorgets worn by American Indians at this time were mostly of silver, mostly decorative and received in trade with the Germans. Your piece, however, could be a pre-European gorget, probably of slate. It is possibly pre-Columbian (before the time of Columbus) or prehistoric (for our purposes meaning before the time of written history in the United States). It has absolutely no European influence that we can see.

You'll notice the use of words like "could be," "probably," "possibly." This is because this is all conjecture, as there is no written or visual record of this time in our history. In talking with Joè Rivera, director of the highly respected and renowned American Indian gallery, Morningstar Gallery in Santa Fe, N.M., he absolutely agreed that conjecture was the best we could do.

It is also conjecture as to the purpose of this gorget. It seems to us that when suspended from the neck, it would be too small to provide much protection in battle. We therefore believe that it was ornamental and strictly a personal enhancement. We think it's possible that the engraving represents someone's status or a historical happening in the wearer's life, but the engraving looks somewhat contemporary compared to the piece and may have been a later addition.

We know one thing: You don't see gorgets of this type every day. If it's real and in good condition, we think a good auction value would be around $300 to $400 and possibly somewhere double that at retail.

Retailers, designers invited to seminar

Hunter Douglas Window Fashions will sponsor a full-day educational seminar in conjunction with Kaleidoscope Industries Inc. Thursday, Oct. 17, at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

"WorkSmart," the all-new "Quest for Excellence" seminar, will emphasize greater interaction and learning through demonstration by experts. Interior designers and window covering retailers will gain insight on such topics as improving business by fine-turning marketing strategies, gaining insight onto products and specialty applications, and using proven sales techniques in the face of competition.

Taking place 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Northfield Hilton, 5500 Crooks, the seminar is $49 per person prepaid for the full-day session, including lunch and continental breakfast; $59 at the door. Participants may attend a reception at Michigan Design Center immediately after Quest.

For more information or to register, call Kaleidoscope Industries at (800) 288-1986.

Departing from the lecture presentation format, the new sessions will recreate the look of an in-home and instore setting. Realistic sets will enable retailers to visualize real-life working situations they encounter with consumers every day.

"Our aim with this new format is to motivate dealers a the seminars to become more involved in the sessions, learning through demonstration," said Ron Spies, director of the Corporate Seminar Group.

Some of the real-life situations to be covered in the new WorkSmart programs will be how to find new customers, how to use merchandising materials, how to make the most of initial customer contact, how to develop relationships with customers, how to discover their real needs, and how to close a sale, Spies said.

The new sessions will continue to emphasize updated product information and a greater understanding of how to achieve maximum profitability, Spies said.

The guest professional speakers are Melanie Mills, an internationally recognized business trainer who will provide insight into successful customer interaction, and Jo Ann Brezette, a window fashions industry trainer and consultant whose discussion will focus on successful in-home and in-store selling strategies.

"We encourage retailers and interior designers to attend, even those who participated last year, as the new format is a great source of information," said Don York of Kaleidoscope Industries.

Kaleidoscope Industries, a full-line, exclusive fabricator of Hunter Douglas Window Fashions, is in Howell.

Did you know you can learn a lot about a photographer by closely studying his or her work? Look at the magnificent landscapes and vibrant print quality of an Ansel Adams photograph or the simple subtleties of an Imogen Cunningham still life. You'll learn a great deal. Also, your appreciation of photography will be enhanced and your own photographic growth stimulated.

Begin collecting books. Not just "how to" books, but photography picture books. Study the works of the masters. Learn technique and style. Photography books are an inexpensive way to have and enjoy many photographs.

Consider investing in photographic prints. There are many outstanding, young photographers whose work can be bought at very reasonable prices. Even the works of many well-known photographers can be obtained at prices less than you might think. Photography can be a handsome investment. But first and foremost, any purchase should be based primarily on your enjoyment and love of the print.

Reception to preview Holiday Tables

Holiday Tables, an elegant annual fund-raiser in historic Cranbrook House, kicks off with a Benefactor reception 6-8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 20, at the Townsend Hotel on Townsend Street in Birmingham.

At Cranbrook House, a Patron tea will be 2-5 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, and general viewing will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Nov. 22-23, and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 24.

Cranbrook House is at 380 Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills. Free shuttle parking is in Christ Church Cranbrook's lot across the street.

The reception will feature fashions by Saks Fifth Avenue and preview the November event with tables decorated by past exhibitors Janet Fluhr, Jeanne Hackett, Cindy Leonard, Lorraine Schultz, Ann Simons, Carol Worsley and Duffy Wineman.

Benefactor reception tickets are $100 for two people, with complimentary parking at the Townsend Hotel and one ticket for the Nov. 21 Patron tea included. Patron tea tickets are $35 each. General admission tickets are $8 in advance, $10 at the door. Call (810) 645-3147 for tickets or other information.

Tickets may also be bought in Birmingham at Harps Lingerie, Jacobson's, Magnolia's, Marley's and the Townsend Hotel; in Bloomfield Hills at Miner's; in Troy at Nordstrom, Hudson's and Telly's Greenhouse; and in Rochester at the Spotlight Studio.

Holiday Tables, presented by the Cranbrook House Auxiliary to raise restoration funds, features 21 tables gloriously decorated by local celebrities. Hostesses in exquisite vintage costumes from Aunt Violet's Collection in Rochester provide the proper aura in this elegant turn-of-the-century manor house built by George and Ellen Booth.

Honorary chairperson is Linda Solomon, a nationally recognized photo-journalist who specializes in photographing political, business and athletic celebrities. She has been a Detroit News columnist and a correspondent for the CBS affiliate in Detroit, and is a regular guest on "Good Morning America."

Her photographs are included in a recent book and have been in many national publications including Time, Newsweek and People. Solomon is enthusiastic about participating in Holiday Tables and promises an unusually decorated table.

In George Booth's newly renovated office is a whimsical display of pieces from the Cranbrook Collection, prepared by David Rau and Karen Serota, curators of the Cranbrook Art Museum. Jacobson's store in Birmingham is transforming the Sunset Room into a festive celebration, and Ginka Gerova-Ortega, noted flutist with her own chamber music concert series, is decorating a table.

Other exhibitors are Jeannette Keremedjian, noted area philanthropist - who shows her European mongal brass flower container in front of a fabulous, full-length Cranbrook House tapestry – and Wendell and Lynda Scales – who present an African Christmas table.

The list of exhibitors continues with the Bloomfield Hills Garden Club, Cranbrook Academy of Art, Edith Briskin, Pat Butzin, Maureen D'Avanzo, Jane Femmel, Zofia Kafarski, Joyce Koreman, Robert Kowalczyk, Jackie Krupp, Mary Beth MacGuidwin, Annie Margulis and Chris Negro.

Pets don't belong at showings

A dog may be man's best friend, but the family pet can become a complicating factor when it's time to sell.

"I've worked with buyers who wouldn't go into houses when they heard a dog barking," said Tom Tedesco, a Realtor with RE/MAX Executive in Troy.

Jane Solomon, a Realtor with Chamberlain in Birmingham, was once bitten by a dog while doing an inspection.

"I was told the dog was friendly," she said. "When I went to take him, he lunged and bit me. I was furious. I'm more wary now."

Then there are experiences with more exotic pets.

Sherry Hetkowski, an associate broker with Remerica Country Place Realtors in Canton, found the perfect house for a client except for two things - a family of boa constrictors and a tarantula in separate aquariums on the premises.

"It was unbelievable," Hetkowski said.

"I had a house once where a bird said, 'Bird shit," said Sheila Clark, a Realtor with Century 21 Today in Livonia. "I guess the bird picked it up from the owners. The prospects laughed. They weren't that offended. Problems are with animals that are Most folks are comfortable with their own pets and their pets with them. Owners are used to the smells, noises and the wear-and-tear generated by their animals.

The same isn't true for prospective buyers, strangers who show up with their own expectations and sensory "Pets tend to have odors," Solomon said. "We tend to live with them and not notice." "Cat odor is a big turn-off," Tedesco said. "A lot of people have allergies. I recommend they (sellers) call a professional company to try and eradicate that odor, if possible, and put potpourri through the house." "I had a condo listing that had a good-size dog," said Carol Copping, a Realtor with Real Estate One in Northville. "The sellers replaced carpeting that had smells and dog hairs and, during the time it was on the market, took the dog to a brother's house in the country. That was just great."

But Copping and her colleagues acknowledge that not everyone is willing or able to do that.

"Dogs to most people are like children," Solomon said. "It's hard to talk with people about pets."

Containment is the key.

"People need to make arrangements for a showing," Hetkowski said. "Either they put the dog in a cage in a utility room or get a neighbor to come to take the animal to their house." And out of sight isn't always out of

"I had a client once who had a dog in a cage, but it wouldn't stop barking," Copping said. "I suggested they take the dog for a walk when I have a showing.

"Then some people will take the dog for a ride - which is a nice thing to do - but leave a huge food bowl halffilled in an obvious place," she added.

Scratch marks around doors and windows also are telltale signs of pet on premises, Copping said.

Clark, who owns a Dalmatian, parrot and salt-water fish, recommends that sellers with pets hire a Realtor who either lives or has an office near-

"I have shoveled and cleaned dog poop before showings," Clark said. "I keep an air fresheper in the trunk of my car. If I took a listing in Canton, Redford and Plymouth and all had dogs, I'd be in trouble."

Birds can present special problems. "Most larger birds are likely to bite a stranger," Clark said. "You have to put a note on the cage, 'Please don't put fingers near the bird.' You bird. It could kill it."

Clark has techniques she uses to make friends with dogs.

"One thing I do is give people (sellers) a T-shirt or sock I've worn," she said. "I also rub a rawhide bone on my sock to get a scent on the bone.

"I always keep bones in my car that have my scent. When an animal sees me, it always seems to know me."

It also pays to be on friendly terms with neighbors and their pets.

"If neighbors have a yapping dog, hopefully you can get their cooperation and have the dog inside during a showing," Copping said. "Give the neighbor's dog a bone so it knows you," Clark said. "If you give him a chewy, the dog will hide, go eat and won't bother you." There are services that will clean up after pets in yards which may come in handy for a listing, a neighbor or both. Sometimes, it's worthwhile to spend the money. "I've even had to take a dog to a groomer myself because it was so dirty," Clark said.

Empathy is the watchword.

"Think about it in the eyes of the buyer," Solomon advised. "You want them to be as comfortable as in their own home. Do you want someone' coming in and playing with the dog or shouldn't spray an aerosol around a looking at the house?"

Condo owners pay more than their fair share

In fact, do you agree or disagree that many condominium owners pay more taxes proportionately than individual homeowners on city services received?

A. This is one of the major disparities among condominium owners that needs reevaluation by the municipalities. Unfortunately, the municipalities may not readily accept a determination of this disparity in treatment and, ultimately, only litigation may remedy this inherent

I have been approached on occasion by several associations desiring to commence legal proceedings to seek to remedy this wrong. However, the costs may be prohibitive for one association to defray, and it would appear that a concerted effort among many condominium association will be necessary in order

Q. Our city is proposing a tax to take on the Municipal League as well as any individual municipality.

Political pressure should continue, however, in behalf of condominium associations to address what would appear to be total inequality in regard to the costs of services being provided.

Q. I am a real estate broker who is distraught at the actions of some of my compatriots in this clearly seller's market. Some listing and/or selling brokers are lying to other brokers and their customers regarding simple matters of communication to provide information and to communicate offers in an effort to make sure that they get the very best offer in a competitive situation.

However, the listing broker has a fiduciary and legal responsibility owed to other brokers and to the public in connection with their conduct, including honesty and integrity.

If a selling or listing broker promises to be available to negotiate a transaction or to accept an offer and does not do so, or intentionally becomes evasive so as the broker is unable to reach the listing broker with an offer, that, in my judgment, is actionable conduct that can be pursued both legally and administratively through the various state agencies, local boards and/or the courts. Brokers are going to incur the wrath of the public in increasing numbers and litigation unless they stop and recognize that even in a hot seller's market, they owe fiduciary responsibilities to their fellow brokers

When doing fall house cleaning keep an eye out for valuables

Your redecorating could cost you nothing, claims author Tony Human, if you're careful when you clean

"Nearly everyone owns a few old things that can be sold to help cover the cost of the new " he says.

When parents clean out the junk their children have left behind, Hyman warns not to discard toys just because they're not very old.

Five of the 10 most valuable baseball cards date from the 1950s, as do revolving novelty lamps worth hundreds of dollars. Transistor radios from the 1960s have reached the $300 mark. So have calculators, comic books, dolls, model kits and rock 'n' roll posters, some of which have soared to $10,000

Items don't have to be old, rare or expensive to be valuable today. PEZ dispensers have brought $1,500, and some McDonald's Happy Meals boxes are worth hundreds of dollars. A plastic ring given away by "Quisp" cereal will put $1,000 in your pocket.

The key to getting these outlandish prices is finding the people willing to pay them. There is only one good buyer of cigar boxes in the whole country, and finding top buyers of things like cap guns can be equally difficult.

Stan Block in Connecticut says there are hundreds of 20th Century children's marbles that he will pay $1,000 or more for. If you want to - enough to pay for the house and know if you have one he's looking for, how do you find Block to ask him?

That's where Hyman enters the picture. Twice weekly, his syndicated radio show (heard on more than 150 stations) tells what to do and where to go to sell everything from airplane parts to cookie jars to meteorites. In 17 years, Hyman's put tens of millions of dollars in people's pockets. Now that inside information has been updated and put into print.

Whether you need to know about one item or a thousand, his book provides names, addresses and phone/fax numbers of reliable people ready to pay cash for more than a million different items you might

The book includes 600 pages of what collectors want to buy, who wants to buy them, where to go for free appraisals, and numerous tips on how to get top dollar for china, records and everything else you want to sell.

Hyman says you need his book because you can't sell most things locally for more than a fraction of their real value. He says it's easier, faster and far more profitable to dispose of your stuff over the phone or through the mail.

Two summers ago, a home in Nova Scotia was sold for $55,000. In that attic was a pile of comic books that the new homeowner sold for $79,000 then some.

Toys from the 1960s aren't the only valuables you might own. A California family recently sold an oboe at a vard sale. They charged $2 because they "wanted to get rid of it."

The woman who bought the oboe contacted instrument specialist Mickie Zekley, who gave her $7,000. How did she find out about Zekley? Zekley, like Block, is one of 1,500 expert reliable buyers recommended in Trash or Treasure II.

The book is sold only by mail. Send $29.95 plus $5 shipping and handling to Trash or Treasure, Box 3028-CF, Pismo Beach, CA 93448. Include the banner name from this newspaper, and you will get a free pad of form letters to use when writing to buyers. Prompt orders also will receive at no charge the 1997-98 edition of The World's Most Accurate Antiques and Collectibles Price Guide, an $8 value. MasterCard and Visa are accepted at 1-800-549-7500 (you won't hear it ring.) A 30-day money-back guarantee is given.

Don't underestimate the value of some rather ordinary-looking things, Hyman warns. A toy 1960 Volkswagen recently sold for $2,000. A G.I. Joe nurse doll is worth that much, as is one of the Washington Redskins bobbing head nodders. And, if you can find Dee Battle, she pays up to $1,000 for a single piece of plastic

House sales down in August but still high

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sales of previously owned homes fell 0.5 percent in August but remained above the 4 million rate for a sixth straight month. Sales rose in the Midwest and West but slipped in the Northeast and South.

The National Association of Realtors said today that sales of existing single-family homes totaled 4.13 million on a seasonally adjusted annual rate, down from 4.15 million in July.

percent decline, due in part to high The Realtors also reported July

Many analysts had expected a 1-sales were less strong than initially thought. They reported earlier that sales were at a 4.16 million rate.

Still, sales have remained above the 4 million mark since the rate reached 4.2 million in March. Sales for all of 1995 totaled 3.8 million.

"The nation's housing market has seen unprecedented movement this year, and it's only natural that the market will correct itself," said John A. Tuccillo, an economist for the Realtors' association. "The nation's housing market is easing in for a soft landing."

Although analysts say high mortgage rates have slowed sales, rates have been tapering off for several Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.95 percent in August, down from 8.25 percent in July and 8.32 percent in June.

The median price of an existing home was $122,300, up from $121,500 in July and $117,600 a year earlier. The median is the midpoint. meaning half the homes cost more and half cost less.

Regionally, sales jumped 5.6 percent in the West, to a 950,000 rate, at a median price of $154,600. They rose 0.9 percent, to 1.07 million, in the Midwest, where the median price was $104,900.

But sales plunged 9.5 percent in the Northeast, to a 570,000 rate, and 1.9 percent in the South, to 1.53 million. The median price in the Northeast was $144,500, in the South

Cleaning up? More power to you

(NAPS) - Are you waging a neverending war against dirt? These tips can help you rout it out and eliminate dirt wherever it may be hiding.

• Clean as you go. Don't let things pile up. Clear the dish rack before you go to bed, sweep up spills before they track through the house, and encourage family members to pick up after themselves.

• Clean from top to bottom. Dust before you vacuum. Eliminate unnecessary clutter to minimize dust.

• Alternate hard tasks with easy ones. Alternating energy levels can be reenergizing.

• One good tip when cleaning up is to carry all your tools with you wherever you go, so you can deal with dirt and pet hair on the spot, without having to make extra trips.

Cleaning tools, such as polish, dusters, sponges and cleaning solutions can be carried in a bucket or in a special apron, or as in the case of vacuum cleaners, become portable by using a powerful hand-held vacuum with a variety of efficient, optional attachments, such as the new Dirt Devil Ultra Hand Vac by Royal Appliance Mfg. Co.

 Arm yourself with the best tools available. Units, such as the Dirt Devil Hand Vac, offer a variety of features useful in cleaning the nooks and crannies of furniture and car upholstery, as well as complete flights of stairs.

A 4.0 amp motor gives the unit twice the power of their original hand vacs, and a two-speed switch and long 20-foot cord provide more cleaning freedom.

Cleaning power is accelerated by the double row revolving brush, while the built-in stretch hose and crevice tool equip the vac for a multitude of cleaning jobs.

The unit's disposable paper bag makes it easy to clean. Each unit is equipped with an attached storage strap to wrap up the cord when not in use.

An optional attachment kit including two extension wands, a dusting brush, upholstery tool and wall bracket provide many extended uses for the unit.
