City crime rate drops

Westland police are pleased with 1996 statistics which show a decline in violent crime. Chief Emery Price attributes some of the drop to a good economy and increased police efforts.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Violent crimes dropped 14.8 percent in Westland in 1996 - fueled by a one-year decline in assaults, rape and murder, a newly released report shows.

"It's a step in the right direction,"

Police Chief Emery Price said Tuesday.

The decrease would have been more dramatic, had it not been for a 25.4 percent upswing in robberies, according to a report prepared by Westland police Lt. Lennis Hayes. Among crimes considered most serious by the FBI, Westland saw a decrease in murder, rape, aggravated assault, burglary and vehicle theft, Hayes noted.

"Crimes of violence were down a significant 14.8 percent in 1996 in the city," his report said.

Price said it is difficult to pinpoint specific reasons for a decline in violent crimes, and he cautioned that statistics can fluctuate from year to year.

Energy cost-reduction measures have saved Wayne-Westland schools $300,000 in the past year, and officials say even higher annual savings are looming.

Although the district has spent $4.7 million to make school buildings more energy-efficient, annual energy cost reductions will usher in long-term savings, Jerry Weidemann, executive director of maintenance and operations; said Tuesday. ;

Wayne-Westland hired Johnson Controls of Plymouth Township to examine school buildings and reconimend energy-saying projects such as replacing boilers and cooling systems. The projects also addressed safety regulations and led to a better learning environment, Johnson Controls representative Bill Harper told the Wayne-Westland school board Mon+ day night. Lighting systems have been replaced districtwide, causing a 50, percent drop in consumption, Harger said. Large air-conditioning units called chillers" have been installed at Wayne Memorial High School, Stevenson Middle School, the adult/alternative education Tin: kham Center and three elemen taries: Hoover, P.D. Graham and Wildwood. To improve heating, smaller and more efficient boilers have been installed at 13 buildings: Wayne Memorial, Tinkham, Stevenson; Stottlemyer Early Childhood Center and Hamilton, Hoover, Jefferson, Lincoln, Madison, Schweitzer, Van denberg, Walker-Winter and Wild-wood elementaries, "The (previous) boilers were very old," Harper said. School board member Debra Fowlkes said she is pleased the old boilers have been replaced by more efficient ones. Some younger stjdents were afraid to walk by the old boilers, she said. "Those things frankly are scary looking," she said. Three buildings - Stevenson, Wildwood and Tinkham - also have made the transition from electric heat to gas, Weidemann said. To adjust heating controls down at night and up during school hours computerized system from the school administration office on Mar quette is linked to the district's two high schools and four middle schools. School officials eventually hope to expand the computerized system into the district's 17 elementaries a move that would save money in the long run. Annual savings from energy-cost reductions will allow the district to move ahead with more projects in coming years, Weidemann said.

Local closings

Westland city offices and Westland 18th District Court will be closed Monday to observe President's Day. The court also will have no evening probation sessions. Also, the court will have no work program this Saturday.

Meanwhile, Wayne-Westland school district students and employees are preparing for a week off beginning Monday, due to mid-winter recess.

Caring students

Taft-Galloway Elementary students, parents and employees sent Valentine's cards and baked goods to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Ann Arbor. Cub Scout Pack 1740 also joined in the project, as did AMVETS Post 171 in Westland.

The cards and baked goods have been delivered by the auxiliary members of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7575 in Garden City.

Good cause

Eighth-graders at Marshall Middle School held their second annual special basketball fund-raiser Feb. 6, raising several hundred dollars for the school's student fund. Student athletes and musicians participated in the event, which pitted students against teachers.

"We try to encourage as many students as possible to promote our student pride," said organizer and eight-grade history teacher Reavis Olive. "They really played their hearts out." Money from the event will be used to pay for transportation for a student field trip later in the year.

Benefit planned

The fifth annual dinner-dance to benefit Community Hospice Services is scheduled for Saturday, March 8, at the St. Mary's Cultural Center in Livonia. Tickets are $40 for patron, $75 for sponsor and $125 for benefactor, or $1,000 for a 10-person corporate table.

Admission fee includes open bar, full-course meal, entertainment, dancing and door prizes.

First-grade teacher Donna Colaianne explained that students began the process last fall, counting the days until they reached 100. It was part of an annual early elementary school project to teach students math. Kindergarteners also participated in parts of the project.

"It is an outgrowth of our math program called Math Their Way," she said. "Here at Elliott, we planned a day of activities. Students spent about 20 minutes at each."

Throughout the morning students had a choice of some 30 planned activities. They bounced balls 100 times, blew 100 bubbles, made 100 faces, and stacked 100 blocks, among other fun. In the afternoon, teachers took the opportunity to continue the "100 days of school" theme in their classes.

The project also crossed age groups, as some 60 fifthgraders helped with the activities. Parente also came in to help, she said.

Elliott is located on Bennington in the Wayne-Westland school district.

Westland man is injured in shooting at Jamie's

BY LEANNE ROGERS STAFF WRITER

A Warren man is being held in lieu of $500,000 bond after being arraigned on charges of shooting five people, including one Westland man, in the parking lot of Jamie's early Sunday,

Antonion Gonzalez, 25, is charged with five counts of assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder and one felony firearm count. He was arraigned Monday in 21st District

There had been a fight inside the Garden City bar - on Ford near Wildwood on the Westland border - between Gonzalez, his companion and a Westland man, said Garden City Police Lt. David Harvey. All three men had been ejected from the bar just before the shootings at 12:15 a.m.

"The har employees got them all out of the bar through separate doors but they met up again in the parking lot," he said. "At least one suspect pulled a handgun."

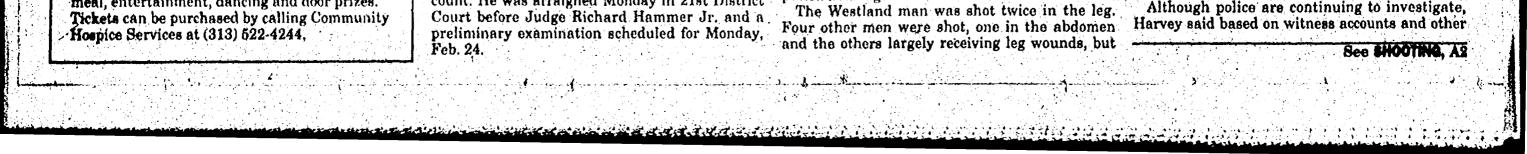

Harvey said it was unclear whether they were shot intentionally or by ricocheting bullets.

"All we know is that the other four victims were not directly related to the fight, which was probably over a girl," Harvey said. "None of the injuries was life-threatening."

Suspect captured in pizzeria holdup

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A lone bandit robbed a Westland pizzeria of $320 Saturday, but a quick tip from an employee led police officers to a suspect, Sgt. Jon Handzlik said.

A man wearing a bandana over his face remained at large briefly following a robbery that occurred about 8:30 p.m. at Hungry Howie's on Ford Road west of Venoy.

According to police, the man jumped over a customer counter and ordered an employee - who was taking a telephone order to turn over money from a cash register, Handzlik said.

The bandit didn't say that he had a weapon, but he held his hand under his coat as if to imply that he had one, Handzlik said.

"The defendant made some movement that concerned the employee," the sergeant said.

The employee - one of several people in the pizzeria - complied with the man's orders.

He then demanded money from the pizzeria's safe, but the employee couldn't comply.

"Employees don't keep the combination," Handzlik said. As the robbery unfolded, a Hungry Howie's manager fled through a rear door and phoned for Westland police, the sergeant said.

A customer who fled through the front door also sought help. "They both called the police," captured a suspect within minutes as he fled on foot in a nearby neighborhood, Handzlik said. All of the stolen money was recovered, he said.

On Monday, Westland 18th District Judge Gail McKnight arraigned Joshua Hnat, 19, residence unknown, on a charge of unarmed robbery, punishable by a maximum 15-year prison term upon conviction.

At the time of his arrest, the defendant had no known address and was unemployed, Handzlik said. He has no criminal history.

McKnight ordered the suspect surety bond.

The judge also scheduled a Feb. 20 preliminary hearing that will determine whether Hnat should stand trial on the charges in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Livonia elementary students learn about pets' needs

The Pet-a-Pet Club visited Randolph Elementary earlier this month to help educate students about the needs of pets and how to care for them.

Lori Clinton, a club volunteer, and her golden retriever Chelsey on Feb. 4 visited the students in Judy Kirkeby's classroom.

Through the Pet Education Through. Schools (PETS) program, children learn about different breeds of animals, feeding, work, need a lot of love, and can feel pain the same way humans do.

PETS, the humane education program that is part of the Pet-a-Pet Club, started five years ago in Livonia Public Schools. It has since been introduced in other school districts.

Micki Huysken, a teacher for Livonia Public Schools, is running the PETS program in Livonia.

Cultural learning: Students at Lincoln Elementary in Westland learned about world cultures recently through music during a presentation by Guy Louis and the Chautauqua Express. Students enjoyed a collection of musical instruments from around the world including: A sitar and table drums from India, a Renaissance lute, a variety of African drums and percussion instruments and a Fender Stratocaster electric guitar. Clothing Depot store helps families in need

By MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

Tucked away in an old school building in Livonia are four rooms and a hallway crammed with every type of clothing imaginable, from sleepers for babies to bathrobes for senior citizens. The clothes, stacked in piles, hanging on racks or stuffed in boxes, are in great condition and sometimes even brand new. But they are not for sale.

The Clothing Depot, run by the Livonia PTA Council and Livonia Public Schools for more than 30 years, gives the clothing free to local families who are dealing with some kind of financial crisis.

"Some families come twice a year, spring and winter," said Marie Collins of Westland who oversees the 12 full time volunteers who man the center located in the old Jefferson School at Henry Ruff and W. Chicago. "Some come in as babies; then they graduate to clothes in other rooms.'

A Clothing Depot sounds like it deals strictly in clothes. Not so here. Every nook and cranny in the depot is packed with the small items a struggling family might need but can't afford: Table-top appliances, dishes, lamps, sheets, underwear, shoes, luggage, mittens, jeans, blankets, jewelry, toys, stuffed animals. boots.

Some are items depot volunteers bought on sale and got reimbursed for by the PTA. Most items are donated by local families, who get a tax deductible receipt.

"We have about everything but. large household items," Collins said.

In 1996, the Clothing Depot helped 240 families. The staff puts no limit on what a family can walk away with.

I 'Some familles come twice a year, spring and winter . . . Some come in as bables; then they graduate to clothes in other rooms."

Marie Collins -Westland resident and volunteer coordinator who lives in Livonia.

Who comes to the clothing depot? Brothers like Caleb and Bart, who live with their uncle in Livonia during the week and their aunt, Nikki Liner of Berkley, during the weekend. They attend Roosevelt Elementary.

Both Liner and her brother have families of their own: Liner is a widow with two sons. So taking care of two more children is an expense neither can hardly afford.

Liner brought both brothers to the depot recently to get new wardrobes. Helped by volunteer Myra Fries, they went through the racks and walked out with two plastic bags filled with baseball hats, coats, pants and shirts. Bart latched onto a "Goose bumps" collection by R.L. Stine.

Before leaving, children are allowed to pick one toy. Bart took a Creepy Crawler Oven; Caleb got new Moon Boots. "They feel blessed," Liner said.

"They have been through so much.'

Besides Collins and Sippola. other full time depot volunteers are: Iris Bingham, Bobby Lou Hinchman, Pat Kirby, Myrna Lukacs, Jane Lupton, Peggy McCallum of Livonia; Myra Fries of Northville; Doris Grace and Jean Lewis of Farmington sorting through donated clothes, sizing them and putting them in their proper spot.

"It's a great feeling you get, when you see someone go out with a smile," Sippola said.

Depot hours are 9-12 a.m. every Tuesday and Thursday. during the school year. The depot opens during the summer months if there is an emergency; it often helps out fire victims. The phone number is (313) 425-7680.

Referrals come mainly from local social agencies, teachers, counselors and principals. Each family gets an appointment, time reserved just for them so that both adults and children can try on clothes in privacy.

"Most people are overwheimed when they see how. nice the stuff is that we have here," Collins said.

Most amazing are closets filled with brand new athletic shoes. all sized, from toddler to adult. Volunteers restock the bins when the shoes go on sale in stores.

Most youngsters just take off their old shoes, throw them away, and happily walk out in their new ones.

Collins recently was up near Houghton Lake when the local Kmart held a "Blue Light" special: underwear for 35 cents each. She bought $100 worth and sent the bill to the PTA. "You take advantage of bargains where you find them," she said.

Despite all the donations, the staff still has items that are much needed but hard to come by. Especially needed are boys' pants, size 6-16; boys' and girls' coats; and boots in all sizes and for both sexes.

Bentley's fate Livonia trustees put issue to voters on June school ballot

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

The Livonia Board of Education Monday scrapped two plans on what to do with the Bentley Center and turned to a third, compromise proposal.

If approved by voters in the June 9 school election, the proposal would breathe new life into a building under siege.

The Livonia schools includes a portion of the city of Westland. If approved, the compromise proposal will give the owner of a home valued at $100,000 a onetime-only tax payment of $16.50.

The previous plan being considered but now rejected, a 1.5mill tax increase, would have given the same owner a onetime-only bill of $75.

Under the compromise, money raised from the newly proposed 0.35-mill tax increase would be used to demolish parts of Bent-

Under the plan, no money would be used to renovate or upgrade the portions of the building saved except to seal off areas left open by demolition and to build a new entrance into the old library.

Also under the plan, a decision on Bentley's fate will be put off for at least three years. This 36month reprieve will give Livonia city officials and the school district a chance to explore options on what to do with the community education center at Five Mile and Hubbard.

"There's no immediate loser here; we have a three-year window of opportunity to determine what we want to do with the

of two which will appear on the June 9 ballot.

In the second question, voters will be asked to approve a 0.25mill, one-time-only tax increase to deepen the swimming pools at Stevenson and Franklin High. This tax proposal would give the owner of a $100,000 house a one-time-only bill of $12.50.

If voters approve both tax issues, owners of a $100,000 home would pay an extra $29 on their next tax bill to accomplish both jobs, deepen the pools and demolish certain parts of Bent-

The compromise reprieve for Bentley surfaced when it appeared there was only lukewarm support among the trustees for putting the 1.5-mill tax increase to renovate Bentley on the ballot.

It appears a majority of the trustees did not want to be saddled with paying the $360,000 yearly cost to operate a renovated Bentley Center. Renovation costs, paid for by the 1.5-mill tax increase, were estimated at $5 million.

The compromise also surfaced in the wake of intense lobbying by Bentley users to save the building and its programs, and because of renewed interest on the part of the city to build a recreational center on the 37acre site.

It's still uncertain what will happen to Bentley if voters reject the proposed .35-mill tax increase to raze sections on the east and north portions of the building.

The trustees called the compromise proposal a "win-win" proposal for everyone: Bentley users would continue to use the building for another three years. Taxpayers would pick up the tab for demolition, but get a smaller tax increase.

With a downsized center, the district would see its expenses there cut dramatically. And the city and district get an ample amount of time to explore options for the site.

"This takes the pressure off the city to come up with a solution and the district begins costsaving immediately," Watson said.

Under the compromise, the following would be demolished: classrooms on the east side, new and old home economics rooms, wood, auto and welding shop, new library, auditorium and music room.

The following would be saved: science wing, old library, original building, alumni room, cafeteria, gymnasium, pool and multi-purpose room.

If voters approve the compromise plan, Watson said the Head Start program would be moved elsewhere. Renters in razed sections could be moved to the second floor of the old library section, he said.

A grassroots group to save at least a portion of Bentley, Bentley Backers, will meet at 7:30 p.m. Feb, 26 to discuss whether to back the compromise, said cochair Jason Maciejewski, Wayne-Westland Community Schools will again offer district residents a Schools of Choice program for the 1997-98 school year.

The program provides parents with the opportunity to move their child from one school to another within the boundaries of the school district provided there is room available in the school. Transportation toand-from the school of choice must be provided by the parent or guardian.

Current choice program students must reapply to remain eligible for the program next year.

Following is application information:

Schools of Choice applications for the 1997-98 school year are now available in every Wayne-Westland school.

Applications for middle and high school students will be accepted in the Pupil Accounting Office at the Board of Education, 36745 Marquette Road, Westland, through March 7.

Applications for elementary school students will be accepted in the Pupil Accounting Office between March 17 and April 14, 1997.

Applications received according to these time lines will permit, as space permits, selected students to begin the 1997-98 school year in their school of choice.

If more students apply for a grade and/or building than there are openings, a random selection process will be used to select students. The names of students not selected at that time will be placed on a waiting list.

Pet grief: Group offers support our pets never question you. They don't talk too much and are always glad to see you.

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Some will tell you sincerely they've preferred the company of a particular dog or cat to most people they've known. So when the pet dies, grief can be real. Plymouth's First Presbyterian Church has been home for eight years to a pet loss support group, the first formed in Michigan.

"We started it just as a six-month pilot program, through the Southeast Michigan Veterinary Medicine Association," said Kathy Diehl, an Ann Arbor psychologist with a background in grief counseling who heads the group.

"I've been through pet loss myself. Just because you facilitate a group doesn't give you any edge," she said.

The group meets 7:30-9 p.m. the second and fourth Mondays of each month at the church at Main and Church streets.

"People who are strongly attached to their pets have feelings of grief very similar to losing any family member," Diehl said. "Our society seems to always be in a hurry. We try to rush people through the grieving process."

"A lot of people feel it's just a dog, just a cat, you can get another one. But people don't say it's just a husband or just a wife - get another one. The intensity of grief seems to be correlated to the intensity of the relationship," she said. "Some people will say I didn't feel this bad when my brother died."

Four to eight people show up for each meeting. The group is free.

How do those attending help each other? "It's not a therapy group. It's a group that offers support and understanding, they'll say, 'I've felt that way too, they will help each other,' " Diehl said.

They will say this is the process I went through, and that they're not unusual or weird."

Diehl said it's typical for grieving pet owners to express guilt. "Sometimes accidents happen. They say I wonder if I had gotten a second opinion, or I wonder if I euthanized too soon. It seems to be a real relief for people to share those things," she said. 'It's real relief to hear you did do a good job with the information you had."

Some people who come mourn birds or horses that have died, but most mourn dogs or cats. Diehl is the group facilitator, and she often has a local veterinarian on hand to answer medical questions.

It's typical for those attending to do so for a few weeks. But Diehl said a few have attended for several months. "The people who tend to get a lot of benefit from the group live alone, or have children grown and out of the household," Diehl said.

"We tell them it's OK to grieve. Sometimes that's all they really need to hear. I tell them it is a legitimate sadness, pets fulfill a lot or roles in life - a family member, confidant, court jester. For some people the healing process is facilitated by talking about it."

"Everybody who comes to the group had a pet that was the most outstanding, smartest, most wonderful. most talented, everyone has some wonderful and memorable stories," Diehl said.

"One retired woman who came to the group for a while felt she owed her life to her dog. She was assaulted in her carport. The dog was in the house, and while she was being assaulted her dog was going crazy, the neighbors called the police," Diehl recalled. "She felt her life had been saved."

Child abuse and neglect reports showed a slight increase, climbing from 126 incidents to 132 during the one-year period.

Fewer gun-owners registered firearms in 1996 - 958 compared to 1,125 in 1995, Hayes noted.

With many crimes on the decline, it might seem fitting that Westland police officers traveled more miles in 1996: Police cars totaled 1,246,670 miles last year, compared to 871,231 during 1995.

In a report from Deputy Police John Reddy to the chief that was included in Price's year-end report, Reddy noted positive results from beefed-up efforts to patrol the core retail area around Westland Shopping Center during the Christmas holiday season.

"There were no armed robberies, no purse snatchings, no serious assaults, and we did not experience a violent felony in the core area," Reddy concluded.

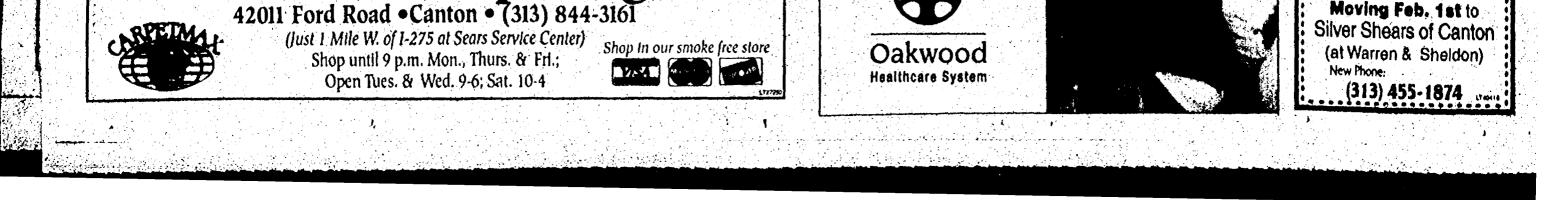

Police recorded three stolen vehicles from the core retail area during the holiday season, compared to four in 1995. "Overall criminal activity was down again this year" in the Westland Center area, Reddy said. "This is the sixth straight year."

Most problems cited in the core retail area centered on nonviolent offenses such as embezzlement, retail fraud and traffic violations.

Congressional agenda

Budget, campaign reform key issues for Rivers

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Congresswoman Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, believes balancing the budget and reforming campaign finance top the 1997 Congressional agenda.

Rivers began her second twoyear term in January, representing Canton and Plymouth townships, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, a portion of Livonia and 15 other communities in Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

Rivers met with reporters Friday at her office in Wayne to discuss Clinton's State of the Union address he gave three days earlier. Rivers expects to focus on campaign finance reform with the public at a yet-to-be-scheduled "issues roundtable."

"I think (campaign finance reform) will be one of the biggest issues in Congress," Rivers said.

Last year Rivers opposed a bill introduced on campaign finance reform and cited last week by President Clinton.

"But I made a decision to support it this year, because I think we need some changes," Rivers said. "I think it will take a compromise from all parties."

Rivers wants to see Congressional members end the use of staff people for campaigns.

Balancing the budget is another goal of Congress, Rivers said. Changes in the tax laws will be discussed. Rivers expects legislation will address economic disparities in taxes.

Rivers hopes to increase her contact with the public on these issues.

Rivers has added the "issues roundtables" and gatherings at coffee shops to meet with the public and help her constituents. Rivers said her caseload increased from 423 in 1995 to 648 in 1996.

The roundtables will feature officials representing both sides of an issue to discuss and exchange ideas. Another "roundtable" may focus on air bags.

The Michigan Congressional delegation also will be watching landfill issues, particularly with Michigan landfills designated to accept trash from Canada.

"The Supreme Court decision

Meeting set on budget issue

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, has scheduled a meeting to discuss the issue of a balanced budget amendment from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday, March 1 in Sterling Silver Restaurant, 62 Ecorse Road, just south of Michigan Avenue in Ypsilanti.

Anyone who has questions or concerns about a balanced budget amendment is welcome to attend. Anyone who would like to receive information that has been prepared should call or stop by Rivers' district offices in Wayne at 3716 Newberry (313) 722-1411, or in Ann Arbor; 106 E. said trash is international trade and (the ruling says) states can't infringe on international trade," Rivers said.

Congress is expected to discuss the issue, but "for reasons I don't understand, there has been a reluctance to do that," Rivers said.

Congress has started slowly, Rivers said, with only three or four sessions conducted since Congressional members were inaugurated Jan. 7.

"While there is a lot of talk of moving beyond bipartisanship and working together, there still are some lingering battles. I thought the battle with (Speaker of the House Newt) Gingrich created more." Rivers expects to attend a bipartisan retreat in March, as Democrats and Republicans are scheduled to discuss their differences and how they might work on getting along better.

Rivers discussed other national and international issues:

In Clinton's plan to increase aid to $2 billion to Bosnia, Rivers remains skeptical about U.S. involvement in that region.

Rivers opposed sending troops to the war torn region last year because she feared U.S. troops would remain for an indefinite period and lives would be lost while no peace was negotiated.

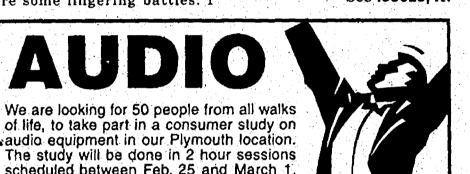

While peace still remains elusive and free elections have not been conducted yet, American troops have not been involved in battles and peace is cautious and tentative, at best.

"That didn't happen so far," Rivers said. "I'm not sure if it will continue, but I was pleased that I was wrong. But I don't know if that (area) won't erupt."

MOn the Republican's Contract with America: "We may see an incremental provision of that (contract)," probably focusing on torte reform.

Lawmaker opposes Clinton cuts to curb airport noise programs

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

President Clinton has proposed that $143 million for noise mitigation programs at U.S. airports should be slashed to $23 million, a move that may affect a similar program at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport.

Clinton outlined the cut in his proposed budget in a move directed toward curbing federal spending and ultimately balancing the budget by 2002.

But the cost-cutting measure certainly could affect a $133 million noise mitigation plan, a program designed to curb noise through the purchase of property and insulating homes to soundproof them.

Wayne County obtained a letter of intent last year from the Federal Aviation Administration that guaranteed $5 million each year for the next seven years for noise mitigation, which puts it higher on a priority list for those programs, a Congressional spokesperson said. That will give it some weight during Congressional budget hearings. The president's proposals are preliminary, and much of what he proposed will he revised by Congress before this year's budget is approved. The cut could be offset by increases in taxes on airline tickets.

The noise mitigation cut concerns Congresswoman Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor. Her district, the 13th, includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, a portion of Livonia and 15 other communities in Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

"That is completely unacceptable," Rivers said.

As of January 1996, Wayne County has spent more than $23 million on noise mitigation with 80 percent coming from the Federal Aviation Administration and 20 percent from

New commercial park planned near avenue

BY VALERIE OLANDER STAFF WRITER

A 1.2-million to 1.5-million-square-foot research park on 99 acres of property at Haggerty between Palmer and Michigan Avenue is expected to set off a new development frenzy of industrial projects in neighboring Canton.

Ongoing improvements to Michigan Avenue won't hurt either.

Michigan Avenue is expected to be rebuilt through Canton next year. The four-lane divided highway with median will have expansion room for six lanes if development persists.

The north side of Michigan Avenue is zoned light industrial and master planned for industrial, said Canton Community Planner Jeff Goulet.

"Industrial land is important because it creates employment for our residents and creates a stable tax base to offset the residential tax burden," Goulet added.

Haggerty II Corporate Park is a $75 million project by Troy-based developer Stanley Frankel. The Canton Planning Commission will debate the special land use request for warehousing and distribution in the Research Park District on January 20. It will mostly consist of manufacturing, testing and light industrial facilities.

The Corporate Park will encompass the east and west side of Haggerty Road:

■ The 66 acres west of Haggerty will include a campus of buildings ranging in size from 25,000 to 80,000 square feet. Frankel will retain ownership of the land and plans to build to suit potential tenants. Goulet said a large buffer will separate the research park from Canton Hills subdivision located off of Lilley Road.

On the east side of Haggerty, several larger buildings will be located on the 33 acres bounded by I-275 and the Rouge River to the south. The blueprints show three buildings ranging from 100,000 to 200,000 square feet.

Individual site plans will be submitted when tenants are selected.

Frankel is contributing towards the special assessment district to pave Haggerty Road between Palmer and Michigan Avenue - the only section of Haggerty that is unpaved. Construction has already begun, which set in motion the plan for the Corporate Park, Goulet said.

Other areas of Canton are booming as well. The first project in a research park district further north along Haggerty is a 410,000-squarefoot expansion of American Yazaki Corp. The technical center will be located across the street from Yazaki's headquarters on Haggerty, west of I-275 on the north side of the township.

So far this year 23 industrial projects totaling more than 1 million-square-feet were submitted to the planning staff, not including the new Haggerty II Corporate Park. The figure also doubles last year's 453,000-square-feet of industrial projects, Goulet said.

Tax abatements are likely, Goulet said. However, more than half of a proposed $75 million research park will still offset Canton's tax rolls. Requests for tax abatements must be made during the six months after building permits are issued.

Engler budget diverts money for road repairs

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Some common questions on Gov. John Engler's budget proposal for fiscal 1998:

Q. A reporter colleague. working on a story on county roads, asked: "Gov. Engler, in his State of the State, asked $70 million more for roads - $40 million for local and $30 million for state trunklines. Did he say where it's coming from, if we don't have a fuel tax increase?"

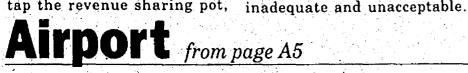

A. Engler didn't say on Jan. 28, but budget director Mark Murray did on Feb. 6 when he unvoiled the $8.5 billion general fund budget.

The 15 state universities would get just a 2.5 percent increase for operations (same as the rate of consumer price inflation) versus the 5.5 percent they got in fiscal 1997.

The 28 community colleges also would get 2.5 percent more for operations.

That's where Engler will save in order to put more money into state roads.

On local roads, he intends to tap the revenue sharing pot, passenger facility charges (PFCs), a federal surcharge on airline tickets used as federal aid for airport construction and renovations.

Detroit Metro Airport's noise compatibility plan includes school sound insulation, residential purchases, residential sound insulation, residential purchase assurance, noise berms and land use planning.

According to a status report on the airport's noise mitigation study released in January 1996, the following work has been $4.6 million.

About $18.1 million was spent on purchasing 121 homes.

million to municipalities.

Homeowners within certain noise levels also can participate in a purchase assurance program, which guarantees the home's value in exchange for an aviation easement. If the home is sold for less than the assurance, Detroit Metro would make up the difference.

Other homeowners would be eligible for new windows and doors in the residential sound insulation program.

E For community colleges, Engler is adding in technology money, building authority money and "renalssance zone" tax reimbursements to get the 4.6 percent. The college presidents have yet to react, but they are likely to be dismayed... but colleges really operate on the Higher Education Price Index, which is higher.

The current budget (for the year ending Sept. 30) is up 5.5 percent. Tuition will have to go up." Murray's response: "Universities are up 34 percent for the 1990s.' Sen. Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph, chair of the Senate panel: "If we

"(The proposed cut) is unacceptable," Rivers said. "These are quality-of-life issues."

Airport officials could not be reached for comment.

Wayne County Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who chairs the Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Services, said Detroit Metro was a priority because it is one of the nation's major airports.

"I am relieved to know that we have a letter of intent of $35 million over the next seven years" whether or not he lied, but there together the majority. The conwas no determination on the allegation of tax fraud.

"There is also a flaw in that if a member agreed to a charge, the investigation stops completely. The tax fraud was turned over to the IRS."

Rivers said some Congressional members believe the investigation went too far and others not far enough. "On both sides, there was a desire to hold cern was it would fall apart." Rivers believes Gingrich should be fined and pay out of his own pocket.

"I think he is damaged. He is damaged within his own caucus."

But it appears Congress will remain focused on balancing the budget, Rivers believes. Last year's balanced budget amendment was flawed because it has a provision that does not allow for increasing Social Security spending to be earmarked out of a surplus.

A balance must be created between rising Social Security needs and Medicare. "Will it deteriorate into partisan politics and sniping? We'll see."

his first term on Appropriations: 'I think they (Engler administration) are crazy." He disliked the idea of the state's tapping revenue sharing and earmarking it for local roads. "If it's available, ust send it to the locals. They'll know what to do with it."

Gesturing toward Gast, Kelly added: "I like this guy."

Kelly will be a key player vice chair of the transportation appropriations subcommittee.

O. Hold it. You're saying state aid to higher education and community colleges would rise just 2.5 percent, but others are saying there's 3.5 more for higher ed and 4.6 more for community colleges. Straighten this out.

A. Sure. There's 2.5 percent more for operations. In addition, Engler is adding in debt service for university building costs and tax credits for families paying tuition and counting it as part of the higher ed budget.

For community colleges, Engler is adding in technology money, building authority money and "renaissance zone" tax reimbursements to get the 4.6 percent.

Technically, the accounting change gives a clearer picture of where state resources are going. But in order to make a year-toyear, apples-to-apples compárison, the 2.5 percent hike for operations is a better number.

The college presidents have yet to react, but they are likely to be dismayed. Reason: Engler wants to give them 2.5 percent, the increase in the Consumer Price Index, but colleges really operate on the Higher Education Price Index, which is higher. Families and colleges buy different market baskets of goods. Colleges pay health and retirement benefits, which are more inflationary than groceries and cloth-correct?

A. Murray said Michigan dipped into the general fund for roads in the 1980s, but other-Rep. Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, in wise Jellema was correct -Michigan has long supported roads from a restricted transportation fund fed by gasoline and weight taxes, and few others.

> Murray is boosting the road money with something called "securitization" of child care arrearages - collecting overdue child support payment and plunking $10 million into roads.

> Q. Democrats protested vehemently last year when Engler and the Republicans cut adult education from $185 million to $80 million. Now that Democrats have regained control of the House, what do they plan to do?

A. Kelly: "We'll try to bring it back to the former level of $185 million. Rep. Kirk Profit (D-Ypsilanti) has a bill on that."

Senate minority leader John Cherry, D-Clio, said the same thing announcing the Senate Democratic Caucus agenda. "Adult ed. ... must be restored," said Cherry, whose district stretches to northern Oakland County.

Q. Where will the battleground be?

A. Watch the Jobs Commission - it's Engler's favorite department, just as Commerce was Gov. James Blanchard's favorite in the late 1980s.

Engler has packed in all sorts of programs that used to be in Labor and Education. Look for Democrats to try to raid the Jobs Commission, and maybe get help from Republicans.

Q. You didn't report much last week on Engler's plan to set up "a statewide framework for career preparation," a term he prefers to "vocational training."

A. Under pressure of deadline,

Oxender worked on it together. Their bills twice passed the House and died in the Senate.

They got a lot of flak from upscale suburban parents who want to think only in college terms for their offspring.

Perhaps career preparation is a bipartisan idea whose time has come. Engler noted that "better than seven out of 10 jobs in America today don't need a college degree. But more and more. high school graduates are attending college - about two out of three do enroll in a college program, (but) only about half ever earn a degree."

Q. Let's see - your newspaper group has another representatives on Appropriations besides Tom Kelly. Any comment?

A. Lame duck Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, praised the administration for addressing women's care in the community health budget. In the welfare reform movement, she urged attention to child care and transportation needs of people seeking to get into the labor market. Bankes will serve on the community health, welfare, retirement and transportation subcommittees.

Q. Rep. Hubert Price, D-Pontiac, was fuming about the mental health budget. Why?

A. "The continued downsizing of state operated facilities with consolidations slated for Pheasant Ridge, Detroit Psychiatric Institute and Clinton Valley Center," according to the budget text.

Translation: "Consolidation" means closing CVC and the Detroit institute. Murray told Price "state facilities are costly to maintain, and CVC (in Pontiac) is one of the older ones."

Price objected 1) that 600 jobs will be affected and 2) "we're transitioning to a lot of private facilities with no assurances of quality of care. . . Sometimes they (private hospitals) throw them (patients) on the street."

Murray: CVC is down to 230 t was overlooked, but it's likely adult patients; other facilities

DNR seeks public comment on Rouge watershed plan

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources will hold three meetings in the area next week to gather public comments on a draft of the Rouge River watershed assessment.

The first hearing will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Livonia Civic Center Auditorium, 32777 Five Mile Rd., in Livonia.

The assessment identifies problems and opportunities for fisheries, water quality and recreational issues associated with the Rouge River basin. The fisheries division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources completed the draft as one of a series of documents on Michigan rivers.

The DNR's report aims at developing a better understanding of aquatic ecosystems, an appreciation of the river's history and understand changes to the system.

River assessments help identify opportunities to improve the river and solve problems. They provide a mechanism for public involvement in decisions affecting the Rouge.

Jeff Braunscheidel, a biologist with the fisheries management division of the state Department of Natural Resources, spent two years working on the assessment draft. Much of the report was written by Jennifer Beam, also a fisheries biologist.

Written comments

Public comments will be collected at the meetings or can be submitted in writing to the DNR. Once these are collected, the DNR will decide on appropriate comments for inclusion in the final draft, Braunscheidel said.

"We hope the report will be used by various groups in the watershed," Braunscheidel said. Those groups will include city and the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan Advisory Council.

The report does not include any costs because some of the recommendations include a range of activities with a wide range of costs. That responsibility of choosing recommendations is generally left to local governmental units and their elected officials to decide whether to spend money on these expenses, Braunscheidel said.

"Some of these options can be done at different levels," Braunscheidel said.

Fish stock

Braunscheidel's portion of the March 28. report researched fish. Much of it drew the same conclusions reached by University of Michigan adjunct professor and DNR researcher Paul Seelbach, who told RAP council members in December he believed the river's water temperature could maintain several species of game fish if the water's quality could improve.

findings.

"One of the big surprises during the research is the temperature range evident in the river," Braunscheidel said. "The river is a lot colder than you would expect for this region.

"The habitat and general enviwater quality comes back."

Braunscheidel said before any improvements occur in the fish habitat, the water quality and flow fluctuations must also be improved. Water quality remains poor except in upstream areas and in headwater areas of the Rouge.

New retention basins, some opened only a few months ago and some still under construccombined sewer overflows of raw ford, (313) 531-5960 sewage and stormwater.

and recreations departments research over the last two years, Braunscheidel said. "Nutrients from fertilizers, contaminants from off the roads and sediment from erosion all work their way into the river," Braunscheidel said.

Copies of the draft can be obtained from Jeff Braunscheidel, fisheries division, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, 38980 Seven Mile Road, Livonia, MI 48152-1006. Braunscheidel can be reached at (313) 953-1481. Written comments can be sent to Braunscheidel at the same address.

Westland Observer OPINION 36251 SCHOOLCRAFT, LIVONIA, MICHIGAN 48150

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1997

Longevity pay It's part of the whole package

t appears to be a matter of semantics: Is the longevity pay recently approved for Westland Mayor Robert Thomas a "fringe benefit" or a part of the mayor's salary?

Westland Councilman Glenn Anderson has requested through State Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, an opinion from the state Attorney General. That opinion is expected in six to eight weeks and we will certainly accept the result – whatever it may be.

But we believe that any type of compensation – whether a health benefit, life insurance, annuity, regular paycheck, expense policies or longevity pay – should be considered as an entire package, especially for top-level officials.

And we believe it should be considered together by the Local Officers Compensation Commission and a recommendation given before a council vote.

Let's look at the definition of "compensation" according to Webster: "a compensating or being compensated" or "payment for service; wages or remuneration."

The local LOCC ordinance No. 185, which was adopted in 1975, calls for the commission to determine the salaries of local elected officials. We believe the ordinance language should be updated to include all types of compensation, better reflecting the name of the commission. "Salary" equates with all types of "compensation" in this case.

It's more than a check and balance. By acting on only a part of the mayor's pay package, the council took away part of the LOCC's authority. How can this group act on one portion of compensation without considering all parts? And why shouldn't this group have the authority to look at the whole picture – and recommend accordingly? It is important that we have an impartial body review all compenThe seven-member LOCC is appointed by the mayor, and subject to confirmation by city council. sation issues for local officials.

The seven-member LOCC is appointed by the mayor, and subject to confirmation by city council. The council would still have the final say on the issue, but council members would have the input from another group designated to study such issues.

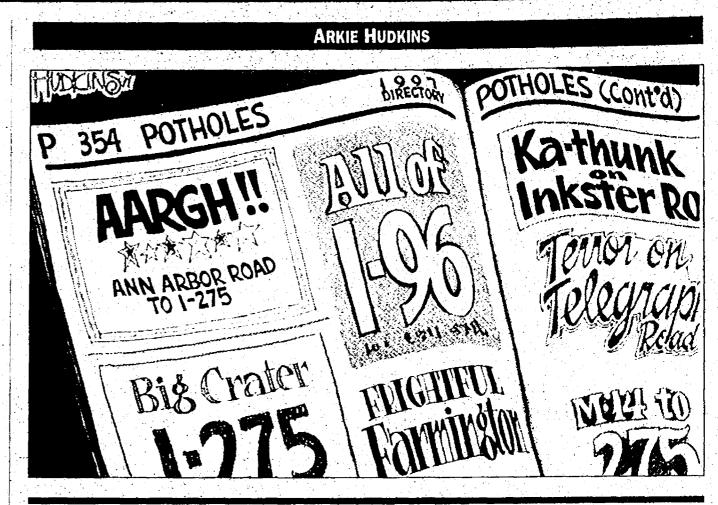

There is another issue to be considered and that is how longevity pay – or a similar benefit – should be considered for elected officials. In Mayor Thomas' case, that would involve his time as current mayor and as a previous longterm hourly employee of the city.

Should Mayor Thomas' previous tenure in the public works department be considered along with his current elected status – or should they be looked at separately? Should he be considered an "employee" or an "elected official" or are they one and the same?

These are issues best left to the compensation commission appointed to study them.

With all of the issues and decisions that come before the city council in a year, we believe council members would welcome more input on such decisions – regardless of the outcome.

It's time to re-evalute and update the process of compensation as it relates to our elected officials.

Disappointed with council

The Jan. 21 Westland City Council meeting left me more than just a little bit confused about the workings of our local government. In fact, I wonder if I'm the only one who thought the whole evening was a comedy of errors.

Early in the meeting, the council voted to deny Spectrum Health and Human Services the right to occupy its own building,

Later in the same meeting, the council listened to concerns from a group of citizens protesting the proposed Maplehurst Condominiums on what used to be Patchin Elementary School's playground. The council told this group that they could not stop somebody from building on their own land.

How can the council stop one group (Maplehurst) from building on property that they do not even actually own yet? Then the council, at the recommendation of the planning commission, voted to approve the site for Maplehurst. To top off the evening's festivities, several council members had the nerve to puff themselves up and pontificate about how it was the state's Proposal A's fault that the schools needed so much money. One of them talked about the importance of condominiums to the tax base. At least one of them complimented Uniland on its other work in Westland, as if they were all old friends. The elementary school children who would have liked to keep all of their playground would not get help from the council on this day either. The council was by no means even half to blame for the school board selling the playground, but they were bound and determined not have anything to do with trying to help them either. It really is too bad. If those 400 school children were voters, I bet they'd have their playground still.

issue, but total disregard for many of her constituents throughout the district. She refused to allow the board renaming committee to discuss the matter with the residents of the Walker area as well as the teachers and PTA.

Most appalling of all was the way she orchestrated the "plants" in the crowd to comment on Mr. Winter's behalf and the prepared written statements she had read by Superintendent Duane Moore supporting her in what appeared to be an obsession with this issue.

Ms. Brown, do you think the people of this community are stupid? You fooled no one! Your theatrical performance is a far cry from qualifying for an Academy Award. In fact, I will give you a grade of "E."

Do the children of this community and school district a favor and resign the board of education now and let someone who really desires to work for children and improving the district take over.

Pay attention to action in Lansing

he new Federalism – a broad shift in power from the federal government to Michigan and other states – has yet to materialize and may never take root the way leaders in Congress envisioned just two years ago. The philosophy, largely a byproduct of the Republican takeover of the U.S. House, faces roadblocks ranging from a second-term Democratic president to state lawmakers' skepticism over movement by the federal bureaucracy.

But incremental changes are occurring, particularly in welfare and government-funded health care. And a recent survey by the National Conference of State Legislatures shows other issues once thought to be strictly the federal government's domain are increasingly becoming state issues as well. The deregulation of the telecommunications industry and other utilities are examples of areas where Michigan lawmakers have increased clout.

These new responsibilities are being added to an agenda filled with traditional state obligations such as roads and public education.

What does all this mean to western Wayne County residents? Plenty, if you think about it. But how may people even know the name of their state representative or state senator?

Here's a quick primer. The representatives in the Observer area are: Lyn Bankes (Livonia and Redford), Bob Brown (Redford), Eileen DeHart (Westland and part of Canton), Thomas Kelly (Garden City), Gerald Law (Plymouth, Plymouth Township and part of Livonia) and Deborah Whyman (Canton). The state senators are Robert Geake (Livonia, Redford, Plymouth and part of Canton), Loren Bennett (part of Canton and Westland) and George Hart (Garden City).

In Michigan, the governor's office has been the focal point for state government for decades. That's partly because a number of strong personalities – from "Soapy" Williams to John Engler – have occupied the chair. The legislative branch, though, tends to function as a low-level blip on most people's radar screens. With term limits coming into play next year, turnover in the legislature will be even greater.

The people we send to Lansing every few years will more than ever play a fundamental role in how we live our lives. Collectively, they will map out our priorities – whether government's primary purpose is ensuring a fair and equitable life for all, or providing services to those who foot the bill with tax dollars and campaign contributions. They will decide how much government we get and who pays for it.

The current split in party control – Republican-controlled Senate, Democratic majority in the House – may make things even more difficult. While partisan gridlock tends to slow government, it also creates some unnatural compromises, particularly at the state level. (Proposal A is a good example.) Legislatures in 31 states including Michigan share this partisan split, the highest number in more than a decade, according to the conference.

The days when a part-time legislature might have worked in Michigan are long gone. With state lawmakers delving into broader and deeper issues, public input takes on increasing importance. Residents need to make their state representatives and senators aware of their views. Jon T. Possibri Westland have been a Canton resident for 47 years and had children attend Sheldon School on Geddes Road.

Appalled at behavior

After reading two recent articles in the local paper regarding the controversial decision made by the Wayne-Westland Board of Education to rename Walker Elementary School, I decided to watch the cable broadcast myself at a friend's home in Wayne.

I am absolutely appalled at the behavior in which board president (Patricia) Brown conducted herself. Not only did she have total disregard for some of her fellow board members when they requested to table the renaming Gerald Green Canton

Who pays?

The condition of the roads is atrocious but that's not the worst of it.

If you hit a chuck hole, blow a tire, lose control of the vehicle and wind up hitting a pole or tree, you are at fault.

Under our state insurance law, you hit the chuck hole so you are at fault. You are not only liable for the deductible but are assessed a socalled surcharge to be paid yearly for three years.

My question is, who makes our state insurance laws — the legislators in Lansing or the insurance companies?

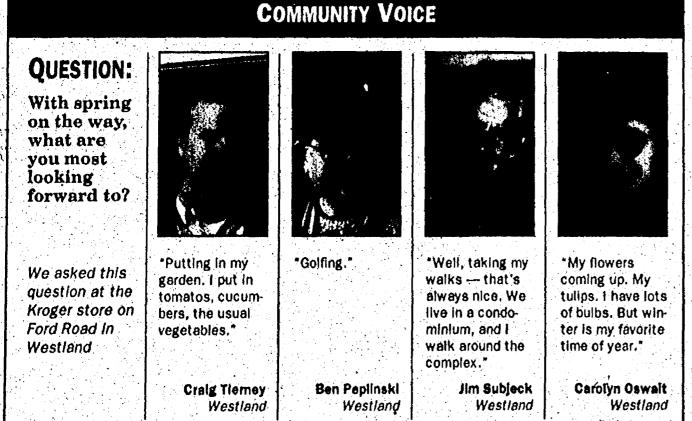

I fail to understand how you can be called the guilty party for hitting a chuck hole in a street you pay taxes to maintain.

It's no secret that the insurance companies control a huge percent of the country's money and, apparently, they intend to keep it. Ross Rhinehart

OUR MISSION: "Because we publish community newspapers, we think about community journalism in a fundamentally different way than our bigger competition. They consider themselves to be independent from the stories and communities they cover, swooping in to write the unusual or sensational and then dashing off to cover something else. We regard ourselves as both accurate journalists and as caring citizens of the communities where we work."

POINTS OF VIEW

Chamber works to better business any of us have used the services of a chamber of commerce when traveling. We may call or write to the chamber for information about the community, including places to stay, things to do and how to get there.

However, few people know what a chamber of commerce is, how it is organized, and how these services are made possible.

The chamber is not a civic club or a charitable organization. Nor is it a part of a private, nonprofit, taxpaying corporation in which members pursue business and community development by pooling resources. A chamber's investors - mostly businesses and organizations - act as advocates and leaders in the community.

Chambers of commerce have been in existence in the United States for more than 200 years. Chambers have changed in many ways, but the concept of volunteers working together for a more prosperous business climate has stayed the same.

What has changed is the scope and sophistication of business and services and community development. Chambers today are made up of a volunteer board of directors elected by the membership, and facilitated by a paid staff, Volunteers, with staff assistance, work on committees to accomplish the programs and events that a chamber has planned.

Chambers are financially supported by member dues, fund-raising, contributions, and sometimes local economic development and tourism funding. As a result, the chamber serves its members and the community through providing information, being a business advocate, fostering community development and networking forums.

On a daily basis the chamber handles requests for community maps, and information such as demographics, schools, housing and recreation opportunities.

The chamber is the first place consumers and businesses call to ask for a referral to a reputable company, Most chambers of commerce send a monthly newsletter or magazine to. their members, keeping members informed of events, committee progress, legislative issues and member news.

Chambers of commerce serve as a liaison between governmental units and the business community in many ways. Providing a forum for businesses to express their needs to local, state and federal representatives is done by way of governmental speakers, monthly newsletter articles, regularity assistance, and current updates of legislation that affects them. Some chambers form political action councils that lobby on behalf of area businesses.

Examples of areas of concern to businesses are transportation, infrastructure, environment, safety, taxes, employment law, state and federal regulations, health insurance and local ordinances.

Being a community leader is also. part of a chamber's mission. City and county festivals, farm markets, parades and cook-offs are but a few events sponsored or assisted by the local chamber.

Linda Shapona is the director of the Westland Chamber of Commerce. For membership information call (313) 326-7222. (Guest columns by readers are encouraged. They may be sent to Casey Hans, Westland Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.)

Universities aren't free to pick laws to obey

ne can almost hear the snarling and gnashing of teeth in East Lansing and Ann Arbor. Michigan State University lost a big decision Jan. 14 in the State Court of Appeals. The state's second highest court ruled firmly that MSU's board violated the Open Meetings Act in 1992 with its "search committee" machinations when it hired Peter McPherson as president.

The Legislature has legalized secret search committees, but here is what most reports missed: The court rejected MSU's argument that a university established by the state constitution is somehow exempt from the state Open Meetings Act (OMA).

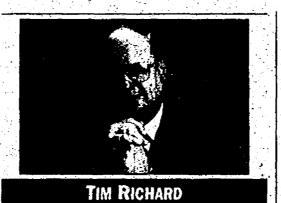

The University of Michigan, which filed a brief on its kid sister's behalf, long has held, in the imperious words of former President James Duderstadt, that it is a "coordinate" branch of government, with the president

In a 2-1 decision, Appeals Judges E. Thomas Fitzgerald and Janet Neff wrote: "We therefore hold that the Open Meetings Act may be constitutionally applied to constitutionally established universities in their selection of a president."

It's an old, old argument the universities have lost before.

In 1895, the Legislature passed a law requiring U-M to set up a college of homeopathic medicine in Detroit. U-M refused. The Supreme Court ruled for U-M: "The Legislature, therefore, does not possess the power ... to compel the discontinuance of the existing homeopathic medical college at Ann Arbor, and its re-establishment at Detroit." It was the board of regents' job, under the constitution of 1850, to run the university.

U-M and MSU tried to take that narrow victory to extremes, and lost. In 1948, an MSU employee named subject to the workers' comp laws. The Supreme Court ruled against MSU because: "The Workers' Compensation Act does not undertake to change or disturb the educational activities of the defendant board." (Italics added.)

In 1969, a group of interns, residents and postdoctoral fellows at University Hospital sought collective bargaining with U-M, which declared it would unilaterally determine their pay. A state labor board said no, U-M must observe the Public Employees Relations Act and bargain.

The Supreme Court ruled 7-0 against U-M. Justice John B. Swainson noted that in the 19th Century, it was "comparatively easy to isolate the university and keep it free from outside interference. The complexities of modern times make this impossible." Swainson quoted an appeals court decision in a similar case that said:

"The U-M is an independent branch of the government of the State of Michigan, but it is not an island. Within the confines of the operation and the allocation of funds of the university, it is supreme. Without these confines, however, there is no reason to allow the regents to use their independence to thwart the clearly established public policy of the people of Michigan," (Italics added.)

Citing those cases, the 1997 Court of Appeals ruled the Open Meetings Act doesn't interfere with the MSU process of selecting a university president be done in public, it does not tell the board what the criteria should be for that selection, how to select a candidate, or whom to select as president." The law merely requires open interviews.

Dissenting, Jackson Circuit Judge Charles A. Nelson, sitting on the appeals court by assignment, said the OMA's public policy interferes with the universities' constitutional duty to select a president "because it results in good candidates withdrawing their names from consideration."

As Attorney General Frank Kelley said in a similar case against Western Michigan University, a university . isn't free to pick and choose which laws it will obey.

Our universities are quick to obey the appropriations act. Let them obey the "sunshine" and labor laws, too.

Politician's hypocrisy reinforces skepticism

HYPOCRITE: one who affects virtues or qualities he does not have.

n addition to this dictionary definition, consider the practical meaning of this important political noun as displayed in the post-election behavior of one former Michigan congressman, Dick Chrysler, R-Brighton.

Elected to the U.S. House in 1994 as one of Speaker Newt Gingrich's hard-charters, Chrysler became one of the most vocal budget hawks in Washington. Newspapers in his district were regularly informed via press release of the congressman's unwavering opposition to governmental waste and spending. Chrysler called repeatedly, for example, for the complete elimination of the Department of Commerce as well as scores of other government programs.

Chrysler's hard-right positions turned out to be inconsistent with the views of a majority of voters in his district, which includes Livingston County, part of Ingham County and some communities in western Oakland County. He was defeated last November by Debbie Stabenow, D. Lansing.

Imagine my surprise last weekend when I read the lead in an Associated Press story: "Lame duck Rep. Dick Chrysler took a trip to Florida at taxpayer expense to ride on a Navy jet fighter a month after Michigan voters had turned him out of the House."

Evidently Chrysler was flown last Dec. 9 at the Navy's expense from Washington to Jacksonville. He took off from Cecil Field in a Navy FA-18 fighter for a three-hour flight that included touch-and-go landings on an aircraft carrier and in-flight maneuvers, according to naval officials, after which he was flown back to Detroit.

The AP story continued: "Chrysler billed the military $323 for his plane tickets, $110 more for two nights' lodging, $21.50 for meals and $2 for baggage handling."

Who knows how much aviation fuel costs for a three-hour jaunt in a FA-18, not to mention the three hours of pay for the fighter pilot and the other costs associated with caring for, feeding, briefing and influencing the lame-duck congressman? (Congress was out of session last December: the new Congress took office Jan. 7.)

Lt. Cmdr. Scott Harris of the Naval Office of Legislative Affairs was quoted by the AP to the effect that "Chrysler's trip was set up 100 per-is all about." One wonders whether the Naval Office of Legislative Affairs shouldn't be one of those governmental programs that ought to be eliminated.

Certainly, hypocrisy in politics is nothing new, although former U.S. Rep. Chrysler's behavior strikes me as particularly galling. "Character," as the guy who responded to President Bill Clinton's State of the Union speech said, "is what you do when there's nobody watching."

On and off again, I've been in the newspaper business for nearly 40 years now, and I have been struck over and over again at the stark contrast between the public posture and the private behavior of certain politicians who affect the role of strident moralist.

Up to l'affaire Chrysler, my best example of this phenomenon was Charles Keating, the banker who got caught and convicted in the S&L scandals of the 1980s and who got former Sen. Don Riegle into trouble with campaign contributions. Keating first made his political mark in his native Cincinnati as the moralistic and virulently outspoken leader of a citizens antipornography campaign.

Dick Chrysler certainly isn't the first politician to get caught looking like an advanced hypocrite, and he surely won't be the last.

But tawdry episodes like this one reinforce the skepticism bordering on cynicism that most old reporters have baked deep into their being. And surely they reinforce public concern about the kinds of deep-seated psychological needs that impel certain people to pursue a political career.

Language has place as art form here is a subject taught in local schools called language arts. Tony, my seventhgrader, knows all about this; he's in a language arts class.

I asked him the other day, "Tony, what is language arts?"

"Mo-om, Whaddya mean? Language arts! It's, y'know, language arts."

"Oh, I see," but I didn't. I thought I should know; I'd taught English and composition and essay writing classes back when I was a school teacher. But I never taught language arts. What is that?

Not knowing this bothered me. Why, "language arts" could mean any number of things. It could mean the art of language. Or the language of art. Or all art forms that use language. And there are a lot of those, too many to cover in one class.

I asked Tony about all those possibilities. He looked at me as though I were an alien, a very dangerous green one, I might add, So I tried this: clamming up about the whole matter until I'd finished the dishes and had a chance to think more about this.

"So, so, so," I thought and rinsed. "You have industrial arts, martial arts, culinary arts, language arts. All 'arts,' they must all be arts. As opposed to sciences. So, hmm. That must be it ..." Just as I was going to think of the exact "it" it must be, the phone rang. Joe tripped Jack. The dryer full of Ron's permanent press shirts buzzed. So I had to stop thinking for a bit and just do.

Supporters find merit in children's pageants

Some pageant organizers and parents say not all children's pageants are bad, that children are made up to look far older than their years. But they also admit that there are those parents who have "tiara fever" who will stop at nothing to get a crown for their daughters.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Costume designer Riley Carney calls it "tiara fever."

The symptoms are obsessive parents who take their daughters anywhere in the United States to participate in pageants, enroll the girls in multiple courses in modeling or dance, and dress their children like adults.

It seems to have swept the nation. "There seems to be two kinds of people - the novice first-timer, that's usually enough for them right there; and there's those people who have what I have coined 'pageant fever' or 'tiara fever,'" Carney said. "The only cure for tiara fever is a tiara. There are people who will walk on hands and knees across broken glass to get into a pageant."

The pageant phenomenon is a result of the glamorization of the events, said Riley, who owns Sassy's Custom Costumes in Redford.

"Each year when I do pageants, people are spending more and more money," he said. "It's getting to be people who have the $500,000 housexplained and in which JonBenet Ramsey, the little beauty queen who was found dead in her affluent parents' home, participated.

Susan Franceschi, a pediatric nurse, and executive director of the Renaissance USA World and Little Miss Renaissance, has spent the last 10 years evolving the pageants into something that's positive for children.

The Livonia resident's experi-

Dealing with the 'arts'

Since there was a bunch of doing left that evening, it was pretty late by the time I got back to thinking again. But I had to figure this out because the next day I was to make a presentation to Tony's language arts class. I just couldn't do that without knowing what the deal was with language arts.

As I thought, I thought more about industrial arts, martial arts, culinary arts, language arts. Wasn't industrial arts "shop class," where you put goggles on and learned safety rules and operated big noisy machinery and came out with a cool project with miters and varnish? Rules and directions came first in there and THEN the creativity - the art. Is that how it was?

And martial arts - that's karate and judo and such like. Specific kicks, certain spins, controlled chops, respectful bows, and readiness to confront any situation. Again, rules and techniques first, THEN creativity.

And then, culinary arts. Although following recipes, using certain basic ingredients, and cooking at specific temperatures are part of it, it's the creation beyond that that makes it an art.

And so, language arts. I ironed it all out after the last story was read and the last good night said. Here's the way it works. Start with the rules, techniques, directions, basic ingredients like spelling, punctuation, and grammar. Master those. Become a good technician of language, then create art with it.

When you become a language artist, THEN you try out new things. You create, break rules (but only break rules, if you know you are breaking them and only if you remember what the original rules are), and play.

Remember, work THEN play.

Learn the rules, then do the art.

Especially (most espeshully) learn how to spell. Learn how to spell and how to use a dictionary. Otherwise it could mean, and I am not making this up, the difference between life and death. A misspelled medical term on a chart has killed before.

A window on abilities

And then, not as critical, but right up there, a misspelled word can mean the difference between landing a job and getting dismissed out of hand, without a second thought. Those job applications are a window into your abilities. You mess up with a misspelling right off the bat, it's bad news.

You see, whether you like it or not, you're judged not only on what you write on those applications, but how you write it. And people make judgments (not judgements) on whether to hire or not hire based on spelling errors. And if it seems unfair, it probably is, but it's fact.

Spelling correctly is like having good manners, only on paper. Just as you would say, "Please" and "Thank you" and take your place at the back of the line when you're out and about, you must take care and show some manners with your spelling. You don't burp in church, you don't leave your dirty tray on the table in the cafeteria, you don't walk through the house with es or the people who have the houses on Sylvan Lake."

Pageant contestants make up about 20 percent of Carney's business. He used to do more, but Michigan's not a big pageant place.

Pageant people

"Some states really live, breathe, eat and think pageants, like the South especially," he said. "I've had so many mothers come through with their daughters pushing, pushing and pushing.

"I've seen so many pushy mothers that make Joan Collins look like a Sunday school teacher.

Those mothers are like steamrollers, according to Carney. They have molded the child that "by the time she comes here she's like this little wind-up doll that performs on cue."

"They have usually no opinion; they look at their mother," he added. "That's my clue that the mother is in charge and the child has no thoughts, no feelings. I'm sure she does but she doesn't have a chance. to express it."

While there are "pageant mothers" in the area, all the mothers in this story stressed that it was their daughters' decisions to enter pageants. Most of the events are low-key compared to those Riley ences with pageants were, for the most part, anything but positive. She entered them because she wanted to meet all the people she could. But there were women who really wanted to win for the reason of winning. They would cut up people's dresses and sabotage other people for winning. They were "poor sports backstage.

"I thought Why can't someone run a pageant that you can feel really good and feel like a celebrity, feel that you're worth a million without it being rigged or fixed?' " she said. "That's what I set out to prove. I ran a children's pageant to prove a point. It kept snowballing.'

'Everyone's a winner.'

Her pageants for children are: "much different than what you see on television." Everybody comes home a winner, and makeup is not allowed.

"We don't allow makeup in our pageant; the makeup issue is a big thing," Franceschi said. "I looked at that pictures of JonBenet and it makes me cringe. I almost think they look like call girls."

Franceschi said it's frustrating trying to prove to people that her pageant is on the up and up.

"The bad thing is a lot of people think you're one of those other ones.

do,' " she said. "The stereotypical very tough job to do something different. After 10 years, it takes more energy to prove a point than it is

I have to say, Wait. It's not what we feels Franceschi's frustration. Since the JonBenet Ramsey murder, she's had to defend daughter Chelsea's decision to participate in pageants.

"People react different than before," she said. "When I used to tell people before, they would smile. and ask questions, Now you should

As Mae Yong Ogletree explains it, she got bitten by the figure skating bug the first time she strapped on skates. Lessons quickly gave way to a private coach and competition.

Her first skates were inexpensive and off the shelf. Nine months later, she paid $350 for Reidell boots and blades.

"I had no plans of learning to skate," said Ogletree, sitting on the top bleacher of the Westland Sports Arena after a one-hour practice, "I was shocked how the skating just, reached out and grabbed me."

Ogletree isn't your typical youngster with aspirations of Olympic gold. Far from it. She was introduced to the sport two years ago at age 42. Her daughter, Robyn, then age 8, expressed an interest in figure skating.

She signed Robyn up for lessons and enrolled herself in an adult class at the Eddie Edgar Arena in Livonia. Now she's skating "against the book" and winning medals in Ice Skating Institute of America competition.

"I never planned to skate, I just found myself on this path," the Livonia resident said. "(Personal coach) Kim Herbert) strongly recommended I compete and something inside wouldn't allow me to turn away."

Ogletree started group lessons in November 1994 and stuck with them until March 1995 when she switched to private lessons with her then instructor Kathy Henning She switched to Henning's tutelage that she competed for the first time. It was an ISIA state competition held. in Southgate.

"I was very, very new and didn't know what to anticipate," said Ogletree. "This was uncharted waters for me. I was the only adult in a skating outfit and I felt very singular."

Her family wasn't there to see her walk awaywith a silver medal in the Gamma program. Husband Rob was at home, caring for Robyn who had eye surgery a day earlier. However, a girlfriend had accompanied her to offer moral support.

"I'm glad because without her, I would have been the only adult in the award room," Ogletree recalled, adding that "my goal wasn't to win or medal; it was to get through the program without falling on my face."

Gamma is the third of four levels (Alpha, Beta, Gamma and Delta) of beginning skating. After that, skaters move into freestyle which has 10 levels.

In the Gamma program, Ogletree had to show her mastery of a left three turn, a right three turn, hockey stop, left open mohawk and right open mohawk done to one piece of music. She managed to do it all with only one two-footed maneuver.

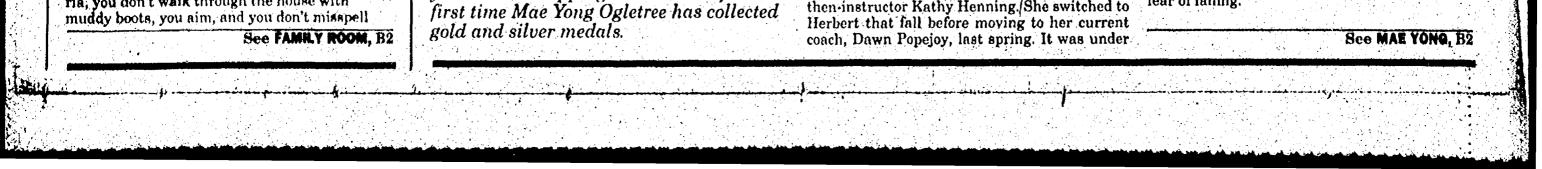

In Freestyle I, Ogletree started learning jumps. She was introduced to the waltz jump last May and admits that she wasn't comfortable with it until last October. Part of it was her fear of falling.

"When I called there they said that that was not the norm for what you would expect in the state pageant," Amann said. "They were looking more for the natural beauty."

Pageant officials told her that making up little girls to look like adults was more predominant in the South.

"It's so different from how I do my girls," Amann said, "I wouldn't put them in makeup or tease their hair up to here. Michigan has not come to the level that they're at in the South.

"I don't know if Ashley did well if we'd go to the national level. I would really check into it more."

Bonnie Bringold's 11-year-old daughter, Rachel, recently competed in the Premier Pageants and Performing Arts Competition. The Garden City resident said the natural look was stressed there as well.

"They reminded me of what most people would classify as a dance recital," Bringold said about the event. "Premier Pageants are a little bit lower key. I can't see getting all dressed up for it."

Dori Matkowski, owner of Dance Dynamics in Northville and Walled Lake which serves the Plymouth area, recommends that kids wait until they're 13 to begin participating in pageants.

"At 13, they understand winning and losing and that pageants are for making more friends; they have more of a sense of reality because when they are older, kids do it for themselves," said Matkowski. who has worked with the Miss America program for 20 years. Franceschi agrees.

"Pageants here are much different than what you see on television," she said. "I don't feel that children are ready for competition per se that involves looks and things that are out of their control.

"Basically, there's still that want to children to be looking beautiful and feeling beautiful, wearing and crown and riding in parades.'

Staff writer Laurie Humphrey contributed to this story.

Gee whiz, I sure went on a tirade today. Sorry about that. Well, no - I'm not sorry about that. It's important. What I said to the language arts class the other day was important. Spelling, grammar, all of it, "language science" IS important, very important. It can mean life reach her at her E-mail address:

"Compared to my first time, I had a wonderful time; I had fun." she said. "When I started my program, I could look at the audience. That made the program really joyful. Now I know I can find pleasure in competing."

Ogletree has found her family very supportive of her skating, While her husband did take some lessons when he was younger and ferried sister Suzy around, skating isn't his thing.

And Suzy, who was a "fabulous figure skater" and represented the Detroit Skating Club nationally, according to Ogletree, has provided plenty of advice.

Robyn skates a little bit, but spends most of her time watching her mother. Ogletree sees it as a reversal of roles with Robyn as the mom.

As for her future, Ogletree is working on FSII and such moves as a ballet jump, half lutz, half toe wally and forward arabesque. How quickly she progresses is up to her and if she will be able to compete this fall.

"It's slow, but the more I learn the quicker I pick it up," she said. "Things I've learned before have carried over to the next thing,

"I don't know how far I'll go, but I envision myself still skating, maybe in dance, when I. retire."

and Share your Decision - Be an Organ Donor

lim White and his family understand the value of time. They waited a long time for a liver donor. However, lim was fortunate - Every year, an estimated 3,000 people die while waiting for organ transplants.

"When the call came about the organ donation I was shocked and surprised," said lim. "I looked at Sandy's face (his wife) and she was flushed. I knew the wait was over."

As any transplant patient could tell you, time is not an unlimited resource. One day you might find yourself as one of the approximately. 47,000 Americans waiting for an organ transplant.

Become an organ donor simply by signing a donor card, and by telling your family. Then, contact the Transplant Society of Michigan. To register your gift,

IT'S EASY TO BE A DONOR, TELL YOUR FAMILY, FILL OUT THIS CARD, AND KEEP IT IN YOUR WALLET.

Recognized nationally, Henry Ford Hospital helps patients by offering transplants for bone marrow, heart, kidney, liver, lung, and pancreas. For transplant services, Henry Ford Health System accepts most insurances, including: Alliance Health and life Insurance Company, Blue Cross Blue Shield, HAP, Omnicare and SelectCare.

Unless more people become organ donors, many patients will have to play the waiting game until one is found. In some cases, patients will die waiting.

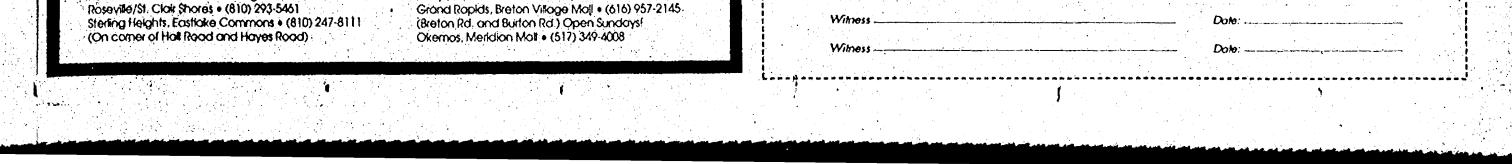

Jim White was lucky. A donor was found in time, giving him the chance to watch his kids grow up. Shouldn't everyone get the same chance?

Writer is intuitive thinker

GRAPHOLOGY Dear Ms. PROFILES Green, I am studying in the U.S.A. and playing tennis for my college team.

I was born in Turkey. I am 21 years old and right GREEN handed. I was born on May 31, 1975. I have never had my handwriting analyzed before and am looking forward to your analysis.

Thank you very much.

E.B. Printing is an entire study in itself. And it would be helpful to know why the person adopted this style. Whether it was learned in school or just adopted for legibility, it does reveal a preference for quick, intuitive thinking

She can probably appraise a situation quickly and arrive at an answer on gut feeling. It also creates a certain amount of emotional isolation.

Printing also effectively conceals many subtle aspects of one's personality. For this reason it can be one of the many signs of evasiveness.

Outwardly, this young woman presents an aura of poise. She is not impulsive. Before she starts into a new experience, task, or anything significant, she considers the effect it will have on her. In emergency situations, she can remain calm.

The excitement of new horizons thrill her. Perhaps this influenced her decision to move to the U.S.A. for education and the opportunity to play college tennis. The theater also appears to hold a great deal of interest.

Her heavy pressure tells us she has the stamina to withstand stress. She can also handle the discipline to put in long hours of practice necessary to become the number one player on her college squad.

Her astute mind is as sharp as the proverbial tack. She can probably converse intelligently on almost any subject that is mentioned.

Our printer is self-disciplined, goal directed, conscientious and an excellent student. Everything must be done to meet the high standards she imposes on herself. Even the little details are important and carefully handled.

Ideas are often creative and she has the convictions to carry them out. She enjoys companions who are interesting and lively.

Most of the time she is upbeat and will look on the bright side of life and living. Occasionally, this can change, causing blue moods. At these times a little sarcasm creeps in.

She appears to be a woman of both talents and conflicts. She may have a little difficulty understanding herself on occasion.

When a signature is written larger, bolder and rather illegibly, it suggests the writer is somewhat of an enigma to others, either by choice or unknowingly.

Enjoy your stay in the U.S.A.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

Shaloubs mark 25th year

The members of St. Mary's Antiochian Orthodox Church in Livonia are putting the finishing touches on a celebration of the spirit on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 15-16.

The celebration will honor St. Mary's pastor, the Rev. George Shaloub, and his wife, Nouhad, on the 25-year tenure at the church's helm. It also observes the couple's 25th wedding anniversary and the rebuilding of the church, which was devastated by a fire in April 1996.

The weekend festivities include a soldout grand banquet at 6 p.m. Saturday. Some 600 guests expected to attend. A heirarchial divine liturgy, officiated by the Right Rev. Demetri, auxiliary bishop of the Antiochian Christian Archdiocese, will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, followed by a brunch at 1 p.m. Brunch tickets cost $10 for adults and $5 for children. The Shaloubs exchanged vows on Jan. 28, 1972, in Toledo, Ohio, just nine days before he was ordained as a priest. A week later, on Feb. 13, 1972, he was assigned to lead the newly established St. Mary's Antiochian Orthodox Church. Under Shaloub's leadership and with the help of the Archdiocese of Toledo, the parish was able to purchase property in Livonia in September 1972 and broke ground for a church in May 1974. Construction began a year later with Shaloub celebrating the first divine liturgy in the new church on March 14, 1976.

In 1980, the church added six Sunday School classes and a social hall, and in 1981, purchased two adjacent acres from the Livonia Public Schools for further expansion.

Ground was broken for St. Mary's Cultural Center in 1988, with construction starting in the fall of 1990, just a few months after the church bought an additional 4.5 acres of land north of its property at 18100 Merriman Road. Following the church fire, the parish conducted services at St. Michael Russian Orthodox Church for several months before returning to its home church in October 1996. While tending to his work at dren - Lila Ann, Alex George, St. Mary's Shaloub also continued his studies, earning a bachelor of science degree in sociology and psychology from Eastern Michigan University in 1979, a master of theological studies

Child Care Credit

Normally, a child must be a dependent in order for the parent(s) to qualify for the child care credit.

However, there is an exception that applies to parents who are separated or divorced or have lived apart for all of the last six months of the year. It allows the custodial parent to treat the child as qualifying for the child care credit even if the other parent is entitled to claim the child as a dependent on his or her tax return. The custodial parent is considered as such if he or she has physical custody of the child for the longer period during the year. These rules apply only if one or both parents provide over half the child's support during the calendar year, and one or both parents have custody of the child for more than half the calendar year. To qualify for the child care credit; a child must be under the age of 13.

Doctors need to educate women about No. 1 killer

Let's face it, if Frank Sinatra had been a woman who suffered a heart attack, she probably would have gone to bed thinking she was just having a really bad case of indigestion - and may well have died.

More than half of women (52 percent) in the U.S., underestimate their No. 1 nemesis, a heart attack, according to a national survey of 1,002 women over age 18 for "Prevention" Magazine by Peter D. Hart Research Associates.

And their doctors aren't helping, even though a third of the nation's women (34 percent) want to improve their health and fitness more than finances, career, family life, romance or cent. marriage.

"Surveys are meant to be helpful. What this one tells us is that women patients – and all of us who care for them – need much more education about what really threatens their lives: ignorance," said Dr. Marianne Legato, director of the Partnership for Women's Health at Columbia University. "It is our responsibility as doctors to help women take intelligent care of themselves to prevent the diseases that are killing them."

The "Prevention" survey confirms a recent Gallup poll indicating that many primary care doctors aren't sure of the warning signs of heart disease for women and aren't checking even the most basic risk factors.

The information is based on a nationwide telephone survey. conducted among 1,002 women age 18 or older. The margin of error is plus or minus 3.2 per-

The survey shows that:

• 59 percent of women say their doctor has not talked to them about heart disease or reducing the risk of heart attack, and 44 percent of women age 55 or older say their doctor has not think it is very likely that they spoken to them about their risks. • 50 percent of women say their doctor doesn't check cholesterol, so it's no wonder that seven of 10 women (71 percent) don't know their cholesterol numbers.

• 87 percent of women say their doctor doesn't check their hip/waist ratio, a key indicator of potential heart problems.

"This is an important issue for women," said Dr. Bernadine Healy, dean of the College of Medicine at Ohio State University. "They shouldn't wait for doctors to raise the subject of heart disease before they begin taking preventive measures."

than half of the nation's women (46 percent) understand their women than any other single cause, including breast cancer, only 14 percent of U.S. women' will have a heart attack at some point in their lifetime, and only 32 percent think it is somewhat likely,

"The good news from the 'Prevention' survey is that women who are informed about health issues are more likely than others to take the steps necessary to ensure their heart health," said Edwin Slaughter, director of Research at "Prevention" Magazine. "Women need to know that taking on a healthy lifestyle at an early age can significantly reduce their risk of heart disease."

Many women are already tak-their cholesterol checked, and 53 percent are not getting regular moderate exercise.

Nearly nine out of 10 women (87 percent) reported feeling happy in the two weeks prior to being interviewed for the survey. However, three-quarters (75 percent) of the nation's women felt stressed in the past two weeks and more than half (53 percent). reported being angry and upset.

In addition, a third of women (34 percent) reported that they often or occasionally felt ical Center.

depressed in the two weeks before being interviewed, and 31 percent said they experienced feelings of loneliness.

Anger and depression are key indicators of coronary disease in men and women - as much as. cholesterol, smoking, high blood pressure, and a sedentary lifestyle, according to Dr. Red-ford Williams, professor of psychiatry and director of the Behavioral Medicine Research Center at Duke University Med-

Patriots split Rocks, in playoffs

2 OT thriller

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Livonia Franklin's Kevin Biga doesn't have a nickname, but maybe they should call him "Mr. Clutch."

The 6-foot-1 senior guard came up with some Jerry West-like heroics down the stretch as the host Patriots pulled a mild surprise by beating Plymouth Salem, 77-74, in double overtime.

The win also assured Franklin. now 8-7 overall and 5-5 in the Western Lakes Activities Association, of a spot next week in the eight-team WLAA boys basketball playoffs.

Salem, 12-4 overall, remained in second place (tied with Farmington Hills Harrison) despite the loss. The Rocks are 7-3 in the WLAA.

Biga scored nine of his 15 points in the second overtime as Franklin outscored the Rocks, 12-6, to put the game away.

But more importantly, it was his three-pointer buzzer-beater from the corner which tied the game at 60-all at the end of regulation play.

"Everything was just going in - I was feeling it," Biga said. "The team got me open looks. They were coming in on Bow' (6-foot-8 center Matt Bauman), so he kicked it out and I got open.

"We knew this was a big game and coach (Dan Robinson) told us that all week. We had lost some disappointing games, but we needed this to get into the playoffs."

Bauman, headed for the University of Detroit Mercy, turned in one of his best offensive efforts of the year with a game-high 34 points (one below his career high). He was 14 of 22 from the floor, including a three-pointer. He also grabbed nine rebounds and blocked five shots. "He (Bauman) played well," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "We tried everything defensively against him, We tried the whole bag of tricks and he still scored, no matter what we tried."

Spartans rule mats in 4-peat at WLAA WRESTLING

BY BILL PARKER STAFF WRITER

The Spartans are back on top. After losing its hold on the Lakes Division dual-meet championship for the first time in five years, Livonia Stevenson's wrestling team regained bragging rights as the top team in the Western Lakes Activities Association tournament Saturday.

The Spartans placed (top eight) in 11 of the 14 weight classes, wrestled in seven championship matches and scored 208.5 points to win their fourth straight league title.

Tournament host Walled Lake Central, which edged Stevenson by a point to win the dual-meet division crown, was second with 199.

The Spartans and Vikings were followed by Plymouth Salem (181), Westland John Glenn (158) and Western Division champion Northville (155.5)."It was wide open this year. There wasn't a clear-cut favorite," said Stevenson coach Don Berg, whose team won the Observerland championship a week ago.

"We had a lot of people step up and come through for us today. With only five seniors on the team, that was the key for us. The kids have been working very hard for the last six weeks and it showed today. "I'm proud of the way we wrestled, but we couldn't have done it without the support of our principal, Dr. (Dale) Coller, our athletic director, Roger Frayer, my valiant assistants and all the parents." The runner-up finish was a disappointment for veteran Central coach Carl McBride. "We wanted to win it," he said. "Stevenson just came in here and had a better day than us. They wrestled very well. "In my opinion, we lost this meet last week when we lost our 125pounder (Scott Aubry, who was 24-10) at Northville when he got slammed and won by injury default.

Scholar-Athlete nominees

Redford Catholic Central students Matthew Bieniek (hockey), Greg Call (football), John DiBella (baseball), Yale Jallos (skiing), Andrew Kawel (track), Chris Marco (tennis), Ryan Schrieber (cross country) and Mike Zelenock (wrestling) were nominees for the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete Award sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance.

JV volleyball champs

The Livonia Stevenson junior varsity volleyball team, coached by Mazie Pilut, won the Franklin JV Invitational last weekend by defeating the host Patriots in the semifinals and Walled Lake Central in the finals.

Earlier this season the JV Spartans also downed Plymouth Salem to win the Madonna Holiday Classic.

Members of the Stevenson JV squad include: Kristi Copi, Stephanie Dulz, Cassie Ehlendt, Cheryl Fox, Kate LeBlanc, Wendy Leung, Allison Luczak, Jennifer Murphy, Brenda Petersen, Katie Shannon, Kristin Suokas, Sarah Wittrock and Emily Yambasky.

The assistant coach is Katy Foley.

3-on-3 hoop tourney

A three-on-three basketball tournament will be held Friday through Sunday, March 14-16 at Redford St. AgathaHigh School.

There will be two age groups for boys and girls --- grades 5-6 and 7-8.

Each team is limited to four players.

The event is being presented by Value Center Market, Massey Cadillac, Michigan Fire Systems, Melody Farms, Kroger and Newburgh Plaza.

Junior guard Nick Mongeau also contributed 16 points, including four triples, for the Patriots. "They came ready to play and we didn't," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "We couldn't stop number 50 (Bauman) or number 30 (Mongeau) their shooter."

Brodie said his team didn't underestimate the Patriots.

"They just beat (Livonia) Stevenson had and we had to go to the wire with Stevenson, and I reminded our guys about that," he said. They were playing for a playoff berth and they came out with all their guns smoking."

Belleville nips CC, 77-74

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Everyone likes being a hero, but Joe Jonna's time to shine for Redford Catholic Central came a few seconds. sooner than he would have hoped,

Jonna's reverse layup with four seconds left tied the score at 74, but that was way too much time for Belleville's star forward Rob Griffin to operate.

After a timeout, Griffin made a running three-point shot from about 22 feet out before the buzzer sounded to give Belleville a stunning 77-74 non-league victory Tuesday over host Catholic Central,

"It was something I had to make," said Griffin, whose winning basket gave him a team-high 24 points to go with 11 rebounds. "Earlier in the year versus Romulus that's what it came down to and it went in and out. I practice that shot every day."

It was a test CC needed, but not necessarily the results, as the Shamrocks get ready for their Catholic League first-round playoff game against Detroit DePorres at 5 p.m. Saturday at University of Detroit-Mercy's Calihan Hall.

CC's 6-foot-10 junior center Chris Young scored a career-high 34 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Senior guard Marc McDonald added 25 points, but the rest of the team combined for only 15 points.

Belleville, a member of the Mega Conference Red Division, improved to 8-7 overall. The Shamrocks dropped to 11.6.

Despite the fast pace, each team committed only five turnovers in the second half.

"Belleville played awful good defense, better than we've seen in the last few weeks," CC coach Rick Coratti said. "We'll see the same thing Saturday." It was Seniors Night, marking the last regular-season home game for seniors Josh DelCorvo, Robert Domol,

PREP BOYS BASKETBALI

The loss was especially agonizing for the Shamrocks since it appeared they were headed for overtime after erasing a six-point deficit in the last three minutes.

Belleville looked to have a safe 74-68 lead after Kevin Edwards hit his second-straight three-point shot from the wing.

But Jonna scored four points and Young two during a 6-0 CC run that tied the score at 74.

Young's dunk with 1:08 remaining cut the deficit to 74-72. Young stole an in-bounds pass with 45 seconds left, giving the Shamrocks a final chance to force overtime.

CC missed a shot in the paint but regained possession when the referees ruled Belleville touched the ball last with 16 seconds left. The Shamrocks missed three straight shots during a scramble under the basket before Jonna ended up with a rebound and reverse layup to tie the score.

Problem was, :02 showed on the clock. The referees added two seconds to the clock because they ruled Belleville called timeout as soon as the ball came through the net.

"It would have been a little nicer if time ran out," said Jonna, who finished with seven points and six rebounds after battling first-half foul trouble. "There were still a few seconds left, unfortunately."

After a Belleville timeout, Griffin raced through the CC defense untouched before launching his winning shot.

"The idea was to get the ball to him in the middle and have guys on both sides of him," Bellewille coach Rod

"Because of that, he wasn't able to wrestle today. I believe he would have made up the points for us."

The Spartans finished with two champions in 103-pound junior Katsuhiko Sueda and 145-pound senior Nick Petryk.

Sueda improved to 32-5 as he posted three victories en route to repeating as the WLAA champion at 103. He earned a technical fall over Northville's Ben Ashby in the final.

Petryk, who boasts a 35-3 record, also repeated as the WLAA champion with an 8-2 victory over Central's Randy Morgan in the final.

"I was looking forward, to wrestling Morgan in the finals," Petryk said. "We hadn't wrestled before today, but he's beaten a lot of good wrestlers and I knew it would be a tough match.

"He took me down in the first period it kinda woke me up, and I got back to my game plan."

Five wrestlers placed second for Stevenson and two grabbed thirdplace honors.

Richard Bramer (275), Chris Goins (112), Jeff Brach (125), Dan Seder (130) and Mike Allison (160) finished second while Brian Barker (140) and Derek Wieland (215) placed third.

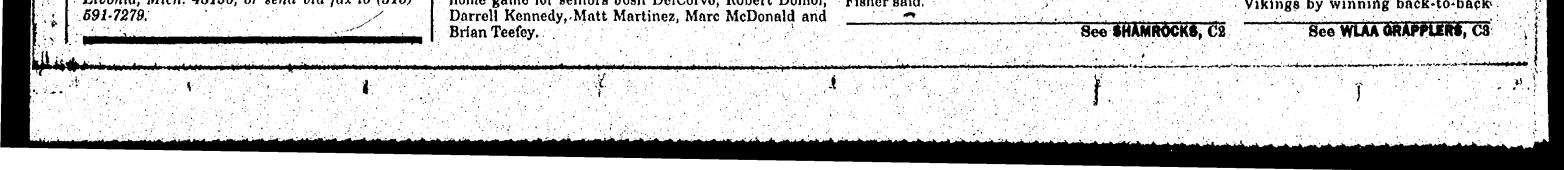

"When we came in here, we wanted to win because we've won it the last three years and we didn't want to give it up." Petryk said.

"We lost to Central by a point and lost the dual meet title, but we felt we could beat them.

"As a senior it's great to win the team championship and go out as a champion. Everybody stepped up and nearly everybody placed. That was the difference for us."

Central went head-to-head with Stevenson in three championship bouts and won two. The Vikings finished with three champions -- one more than the Spartans - but couldn't overcome Stevenson's depth.

Chargers pull surprise

Hard work and teamwork pay off.

Not every night, mind you, but they do pay off. Livonia Churchill stuck with new coach Rick Austin's game plan Tuesday night and walked away with a 45.43 boys basketball victory over North Farmington in a Western Lakes Activities Association game.

"It was a total team defensive night for Churchill," Austin said after the host Chargers picked up only their second victory of the season. "Our kids did an excellent job.

"Kevin Renaud did an excellent job of containing Julian Cochran, their fine point guard. Once he gave it up, Kevin never allowed him to have it back."

Renaud finished with 12 points including a short baseline jumper with five seconds to play that broke a 45-43 tie.

Matt Van Buren led Churchill with 18 points and the Chargers won it at the free throw line, making 11-of-15 free throws to just 4-of-14 for the Raiders.

Carter Campbell led North Farmington with 13 points and Scott Gold had nine. The Raiders dropped to 6-10 overall, 4-6 in the WLAA while the Chargers rose to 2-14 overall, 2-8 in the league.

"Van Buren once again played his heart out," Austin said. "He guarded Carter Campbell and also had 10 rebounds."

The score was tied with 10 seconds left when Churchill called timeout at its own end. Renaud passed the ball in, got it back, dribbled baseline and drove until he had a pullup jumper which went in.

North Farmington got the ball down in time but a potential game-winner fell short and time expired.

"I give them credit," Austin said. "They went for the win.

"I also give a lot of credit to the offensive play of Adam Carter, leading our point in key situations against their superior quickness.

"And Eric Uhlinger played a key role as a sub."

The score was tied at 7-7 after one period and North Farmington held a 19-18 lead halfway through the game.

The Raiders outscored the Chargers, 16-13, in the third period but Churchill's defense limited North Farmington to just eight points in the fourth quarter.

•CANTON 52, JOHN GLENN 37: Poor shooting against a tough defensive team like Plymouth Canton sent Westland John Glenn to its fourth loss in nine WLAA games.

The Rockets played strong defensively but were never able to get untracked as the Chiefs improved to 10-6 overall, 6-4 in the WLAA. John Glenn is 7-8 overall.

Jon Becher scored 13 points, freshman Eric Jones had nine and Brad Wilde six for the Rockets, David Jarrett was limited to just three points and did not start due to a hip injury suffered against Walled Lake Central. - Nick Hurley paced host Canton with 14 points and Matt Ammons added 13. The Chiefs jumped out to leads of 10-4 and 22-13 after the first two periods.

A Becher basket late in the third quarter cut the margin to nine and Jarrett's only hoop dropped it to seven early in the fourth, but Canton responded with a 7-0 run to put the game away •HARRISON 61, STEVENSON 60: Farmington Hills Harrison was good when it counted Tuesday night, and that was enough to affect the bottom line.

Kareem Smartt's layup with seven seconds remaining gave the Hawks a 61-60 victory over visiting Livonia Stevenson in boys basketball.

Until then, the Hawks had spent nearly a full game making a nervous wreck of coach Mike Teachman and their fans.

"It was a stomach wrencher," the Harrison coachsaid. "(The Spartans) won the first 31:53; we won the last seven seconds. We were behind the whole night and had to play catch-up."

With the Hawks down a point, senior guard Kevin Bambenek drove the lane and drew three. Stevenson defenders to Kevin Bambenek, who had the game-winning assist, scored a game high 22 points, which was one shy of his career high. He also had five assists and six steals.

Brian Lewis tossed in 11 points, Smartt 10 and Matt Derocher nine for Harrison, which is 7-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 12-3 overall.

Senior Tony Dattilio scored 15 points for Stevenson, 3-7 and 5-9. Mike Voutsinas added 11 and Tyrone Davidson 10.

.LUTHERAN N'WEST 73, CLARENCEVILLE 67: Justin Villanueva's 20 points and 15 rebounds just weren't enough Tuesday night for host Livonia Clarencevilled.

Visiting Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest got 22 points from Todd Pontillo and 21 from Jason Ehlfeldt to improve to 6-6 in the Metro Conference.

The Trojans, 8-8 overall and 7-5 in the league, were plagued by turnovers in the middle of the game.

Albert Deljosevic made five of seven three-point shots in a 19-point night. He also had five assists.

Donahue Fulton scored 14 points for Clarenceville.

•HAMTRAMCK 86, LUTHERAN WESTLAND 51: Senior guard Cardenas Huffman had 22 points and 10 assists, while Leo Wells contributed 16 points and 10 rebounds as the host Cosmos (12-3 overall) rolled to the Metro Conference win Tuesday over Lutheran High Westland (7-8, 6-7).

Senior forward Joe Pruchnik led the Warriors with 16 points

• ZOE CHRISTIAN 46, HURON VALLEY 13: Shooting less than 10 percent, Westland Huron Valley Lutheran made just three points in the first two quarters on Tuesday.

The halftime score was 26-3 as host Warren Zoe Christian improved to 4-2 in the MIAC and dropped winless Huron Valley to 0-13 overall, 0-6 in the league.

The Rocks forged ahead by two after three quarters, 49-47, and appeared to have the upper hand with 2:11 to go after Bhavin Patel converted a three-point play for a 60-57 Salem advantage.

But Salem couldn't close the deal in the final 35 seconds, missing the front-end of a oneand-one twice.

Franklin then called timeout with 13.2 seconds left to set up a final three-point attempt. The Patriots worked the ball around and Biga found himself open in the corner for the game-tying hoop,

And that held true Tuesday.

The Tigers managed to contain CC's talented sophomore point guard Nick Moore, who was held to four points while grabbing eight rebounds.

Wayne also grabbed a pair of seconds — senior Jim Siwula (152), lost an 11-4 decision to Aaron Greene of Wyandotte; and senior Patrick Grzecki (189), who lost 11-7 in the finals to Ryan Cox of Wyandotte.

Siwula is 23-4, while Grzecki is 35-9.

The Zebras also won a pair of consolation finals to gain thirds - senior Jamah Booze (125), who decisioned Tim Luna of Wyandotte, 13-6; and senior Sean McInerney (160), who won by void. Booze is 24-12, while McInerney is 19-15.

After the Division I team dual district tournament Wednesday (at home), the Zebras turn their attention to the individual district, beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday at Temperance Bedford. The top four finishers advance to the regional.

"We could get through as many as eight or nine," Davis said. "Five should get through for sure, and three or four more are capable."

championships at 160 and 171, respectively.

Dan Aubry (130) won Central's other championship in one of the more exciting matches of the day.

Trailing Stevenson's Seder 3-1 entering the third period, Aubry scored a reverse with just 38 seconds left in regulation to tie the match, 3-3.

In overtime, Aubry got the takedown in 18 seconds to clinch the title. Seder had beaten Aubry 9-5 in a dual meet Jan. 30.

"I wreatled him before and knew he had me beat on my feet." admitted Aubry, who improved to 31-6.

"The past week I really worked hard on that. I knew he had a great double-leg, and I tried to take that away from him. I knew what he wanted to do, and I didn't let him have it."

Corey Vos earned a 7-4 decision over Allison in the finals, and Derek followed with a 8-0 victory over John Glenn's Tim Reeves in a match pitting two defending league champions.

Reeves was the WLAA champ at 171 last year, and Vos was the league champ at 189.

"It feels good for us to win back-to-back like that," said Corey, who stands 30-4 on the year. "We stand behind each other whether we win or lose. We back each other up and help each other out."

Salem and Glenn were the only other teams with multiple champions.

Anwar Crutchfield (152) and Teono Wilson (189) won an individual championship for the Rocks. Glenn's winners included John Fedulchak (140) and Marc Dugas (275).

The other champions were Livonia Churchill's Bob Fowler (215), Northville's Rick Torrence (112), Walled Lake Western's Steve Atwell (119), Livonia Franklin's Aaron Haddad (125) and Farmington's Charlie Jaeger (135).

Ladywood gears up for 6th straight title.

Birmingham Marian, which ended Livonia Ladywood's fiveyear unbeaten streak in the Catholic League (Jan. 30), will face the Blazers at 7 tonight for the Central-AA championship at Madonna University,

The Blazers (38-4 overall), who will be after their sixth consecutive Catholic League crown, scored a 15-2, 15-12 win Monday at home over Farmington Hills Mercy as junior Sarah Poglits had 10 kills and Jenny Lachapelle added nine.

Marian, meanwhile, advanced with a 15-13, 15-2 victory over Riverview Gabriel Richard, 15-13, 15-3.

Setter Nicole Vondracek set at a .667 clip with 21 assists.

She also had eight digs, while Cathy Hermann, Mary Lu Hemme and Poglits added six each.

On Saturday, it was No. 1 vs. No. 1. in Class A as Portage Northern beat the Blazers in the Comstock Invitational final, 17-15, 15-9, as Jenny Young came up with nine kills and no errors.

Ladywood advanced to the championship with a 15-6, 15-13 victory over East Kentwood. In pool play, the Blazers downed Grand Rapids South Christian (15-3, 15-2), Portage Central (16-14, 15-12) and Vicksburg (15-13, 16-14).

Poglits was the top attacker (.440 percentage) on the day.

Clarenceville rolls

Livonia Clarenceville improved to 18-11-1 overall with a convincing 15-9, 15-2 Metro Conference victory Monday at Hamtramck.

Amy Jones paced the Lady Trojans with seven ace serves.

Michelle Berry added four kills, one ace and one solo block, while Nicole Riedl contributed seven assists and four aces.

The future continues to brighten for Westland John Glenn's gymnastics team.

The Rockets defeated Walled Lake's combined team by less than a point Tuesday night, 129.6-129, for its second victory of the Western Lakes Activities Association season.

John Glenn is now 2-4 in the WLAA to go with a 4-4 overall record.

Jamie Arble won the vault with an 8.5 score.

Junior Stephanie Thompson won the parallel bars with an 8.25 score. She was fourth in the vault at 8.0 and sixth in floor exercise with an 8.15 score.

Katie Boogren won the balance beam with an 8.75, was third in the vault (8.35), fourth in the parallel bars (7.7) and fifth in floor exercise (8.3).

Junior Kristy Broadrick took second in the floor exercise with an 8.65 score. She was fourth in the vault (8.3) and seventh in beam (7.65.

Sophomore Jessica Beach scored an 8.35 to tie for third in the vault and was fifth in floor exercise (8.25).

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

It's one of those seminal incidents that's going to be funny -- in about 10 years.

But it's tough to laugh when you feel like Pinocchio, somebody jerking your strings to make you dance.

"I heard the rumors before Christmas break," Michigan State freshman lacrosse player Mike Smiley said. "I mentioned Michigan State lacrosse playit to my parents, but I didn't ers to bolt out of town like think much of it because it was just that -- rumors."

So Smiley, a Livonia native who attended high school at Detroit Catholic Central in Redford, returned to Wilson Hall on MSU's beautiful campus and got back into the routine of classes, practices and studies, Things were normal for about two weeks. Then, in mid-January, Coach Rich Kimball called his players aside following a Tuesday practice. And, in effect, put a chokehold on their emotions.

He told them the powers that be at Michigan State were eliminating men's lacrosse and fencing as varsity sports while elevating women's crew to varsity status in a gender-equity motivated move.

"It was pretty much out of the blue for everybody," Smiley said. "I was not a happy camper, to say the least.

"The majority of our team wasn't. In fact, three of our guys left almost on the spot. Two went to Syracuse and one went to Delaware."

There were good reasons for the move and it probably wasn't made without careful deliberation. But human lives and destinies were involved, and people tend to get a bit touchy when their backsides hit the floor after the rug's been pulled

It was a prudent decision. Playing as a varsity team would have cost every player who participated a season's eligibility.

"Even though a lot of kids wanted to play," Smiley said, "we decided not to. It would be hurting the other guys that didn't want to lose the year (of eligibility). So everyone decided not to.

"After this year, we'll probably lose three-quarters of the team."

The coaches will probably be gone not long after the ice leaves the banks of the Red Cedar. Their contracts are up at the end of the year and club team coaches can't be paid with university funds.

Smiley is waffling about what to do. He'd love to stay at Michigan State, near home, but he'd also love to go somewhere and play varsity lacrosse.

"I played high school (lacrosse) here. I could have gone to some other schools, but to go I would have had to pay out-of-state tuition.

"You don't play this sport for the money. My best option was Michigan State. If they cut this option, I've got to go out of state. I might have to pay $5,000 more (in tuition) just to play the sport I love."

One school contacted Smiley recently, holding out the possibility of aid if he'd come west to their fairly new varsity lacrosse squad.

"I'm right in between," he said. "The coach told me their chancellor and athletic director are behind their program. That would be nice."

So for a while he'll think. Of what could be. And what could have been.

CARL was so excited when he found his dream home in The Observer & Eccentric Classifieds. Forget about worms. Earl got his house. He didn't wait. He hopped right over and bought it.

He and his wife always check the classifieds and have on more than one occasion found some really great bargains. In fact, Earl got his car and his job through our classified ads.

Our AT HOME section is another favorite with Earl and the Mrs. They check it every week for interesting ideas about gardening, decorating and stories about local people doing neat home-type things.

Star-spangled: Pledge allegiance on Presidents' Day with Uncle Sam folk art. This handmade plush figure is perfectly patriotic wearing a star-studded shirt and red and white striped pants. Button kneecaps and shoulders allow Uncle Sam to be posed in different positions. Toting an American flag tied to a tree branch and donning time-worn clothes and accessories, this 15-inch-high figure appears to have weathered the trials and triumphs of America, Available for $34.95 at The Village Shopkeeper, 470 Forest Place Mall, Plymouth. Call (313) 455-6060.

'The Kiss' Embracing art: There is no better way to capture the heart of an art enthusiast than with "The Kiss" sculpture. It embodies passion, romance and love - the very essence of Valentine's Day. Artist Auguste Rodin first made a model of this now famous embrace in 1886. This sculpture is an authentic reproduction of the original in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. Made of white alvastone, the sculpture rests on a black square base and measures 12 inches high. "The Kiss" retails for $140 at DIA in the Somerset Collection, on Big Beaver Road, one mile west of I-75 in Troy.

celebrating families Heartfelt ways to strength family

Tomorrow is Valentine's Day. What comes to mind when you think of this holiday? Dinner for two at a Irés chic. restaurant? How much one dozen roses have gone up in price over Iast year's order? What time the children go to bed so you and your spouse can have that candlelight dinner for two?

Did you ever think about how much you can show the rest of the family you care? Valentine's Day may be billed as the day for lovers; but who said you must stick with tradition? Valentine's Day is a wonderful opportunity to strengthen family ties among loved ones.

Set aside a portion of the day to do something special as a family. Schedule a family portrait sitting for early evening if you can still find one available. If you have to schedule one for a later time, take the opportunity to talk about what everyone wants to wear while seated at dinner Friday evening.

My sister, Julie, did something very special for me for my baby shower several years ago.

She found old photographs of the two of us in our early grade school days. We were dressed up in my grandmother's dresses, costume jewelry and high

Bring out the romance all year long

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

We are always reminded to express love on Valentine's Day - what about the rest of the year when we don't have Hallmark to prod us into doing something thoughtful. Romance and those little expressions of love can, and should go on, throughout the year

- not just on one designated day. I'm not knocking Valentine's Day - I'm suggesting that it be ongoing.

When love is new and fresh, it's easy to be romantic. When relationships become comfortable, 'old hat' or just plain in need of a "jump start" – we need to be creative to regenerate that "old feeling." Plan some romantic interludes, make them all different – from a cozy evening for two to a special "afternoon delight." Pick out an array of romantic music, choose a movie that will be just right, plan a picnic (indoors, this time of year), write a special little handwritten note to include in a packed lunch, or one left coyly under a dinner plate.

If planning a romantic rendezvous for two at dinner, bring out the candles (not scented ones, they interfere with the food), fine china, linens, and champagne. Serve a delicious menu; perhaps an artichoke to share, some chilled Carrot-Orange Soup, or some warmed chèvre cheese in a light tomato sauce, and onto an entree of juicy Prime Rib, Bison Bolognese, or Stir-Fried Tofu and delicate, crisp vegetables.

Accompaniments should be favorites, and desserts can be sinful, or

There is a provide the second s delicate and light. A sweet for your sweet can be vanilla or chocolate – sensual sweets are an easy task; a special piece of fine chocolate, a delicious Crème Brûlèe, a warmed bread pudding with either vanilla or chocolate sauce, a light chocolate mousse or a delicious ice cream drink with some shaved chocolate on top.

A picnic is always romantic – your setting this time of year is left to lots of creativity. Have your picnic in front of the fireplace with a crackling fire aglow, a picnic in place of breakfast in bed, a midnight picnic for two, or a luncheon picnic in your library or den with an open book of Shakespeare's Sonnets, or your favorite romantic prose.

Be creative with your setting, your background music, your menu, and those little extras (give a try at writing a poem). Remember, a little love note goes a long way!

BISON BOLOGNESE

Yield: 12 servings

This recipe is a takeoff on a traditional Italian Bolognese, minus the fat, it's lo-cal and delicious. You can certainly replace the ground bison with ground beef. If you want to make it a truly traditional Bolognese recipe use beef chuck ground twice and add a small bit of chopped pancetta. Serve this flavorful sauce over the pasta of your choice – I usually prefer it over spaghetti.

2 tablespoons light olive oil

6 medium onions, chopped

2 small carrots, peeled (scraped), and shredded

1 rib celery, trimmed, and finely chopped

2 pounds ground buffalo/bison meat

1 cup dry white wine

1-2 cans (should equal 2 pounds) seasoned diced tomatoes (Dei Fratelli if possible)

2 tablespoons tomato paste

4 cups chicken stock (home made or prepared)

1/2 cup 1/2 percent milk

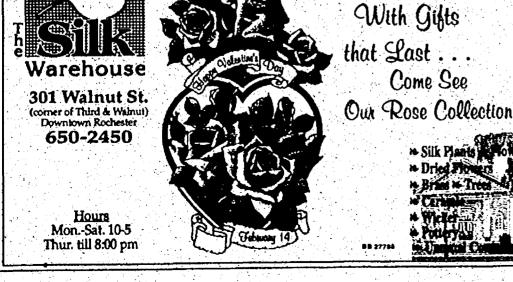

Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper

Spaghetti (or any type of pasta) or Freshly steamed crisp green beans

Heat the light olive oil in a heavy French or Dutch oven over medium heat. Add the onions, carrots, and celery for 15 to 20 minutes or until the vegetables are sauteed but not browned. Add the ground bison meat and simmer and stir frequently, until lightly browned, remove and discard any excess liquid in the pot with a baster.

Add the wine and let evaporate for 5-6 minutes.

In a food processor or blender, puree the canned tomatoes along with the liquid contained in the can. Add the pureed tomatoes to the meat, add the tomato paste. Bring the mixture to a boil and add 1/2 cup of the chicken broth. Bring to another boil, then lower the heat and gently simmer partially covered, for 5 hours, adding the remaining chicken broth in 1/2 cup increments until the chicken broth is gone.

City scene: Tremonti and Brown is a stylish showroom in downtown Birmingham.

> Welcome: Features and accessories give the Tremonti and Brown showroom the look and feel of a home

Custom furniture fits in many ways

BY MARY KLEMIC At Home Editor

"I like interesting, eclectic things;" former Birmingham resident Michelle Silberstein said.

Silberstein loves to window shop for such items in New York, where she lives. A recent visit to downtown Birmingham turned her fantasizing about furniture into reality.

Silberstein stopped in at Tremonti and Brown, 280 Merrill, and ordered two couches made to order for the apartment where she and her and her husband live.

"Really cool," she said of the finished pieces. 'They fit perfectly."

The couches fit in every way - with the couple's individual styles, in the apartment and even through the narrow hallway that had hampered furniture deliveries to other residents.

Susan Tremonti and Andrea Brown opened their custom upholstered furniture business last year. It offers a variety of styles and furnishings,including about nine different sofas, seven different chairs and six different ottomans. Headboards, lounges and daybeds are also available.

"Basically what we are is a showroom of samples, styles and sizes," Brown said.

"What you see can be altered. A loveseat can be (modified) - 60 inches can become 65 inches or 62 inches."

"(Pieces are) functional as well as comfortable and elegant," Tremonti said.

The two women are longtime triends, and it shows in their cheerful manner and in the pleasant atmosphere of the showroom.

The lyrics "Our house is a very very very nice house" come to mind as you enter the shop, which features a large mural by artist Mike McCath. Finished furnishings are everywhere, along with accent pieces. Such elements as a fireplace at one wall and a bookcase at another make sections of the showroom like mini rooms, helping give the idea of how a furnishing would look at a home.

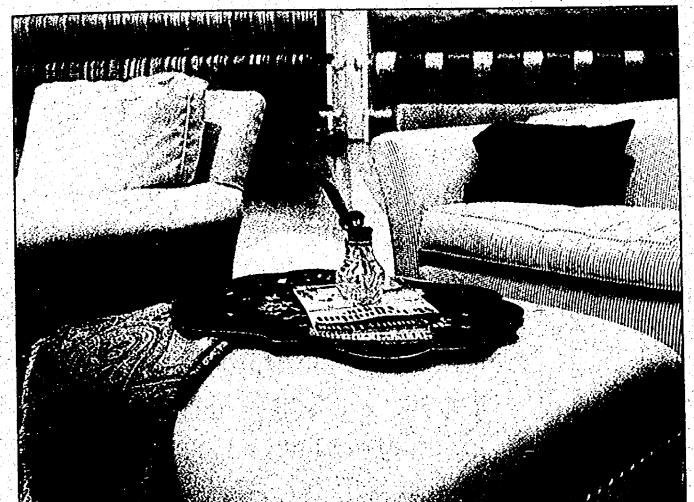

Fabric samples are displayed in large rolls

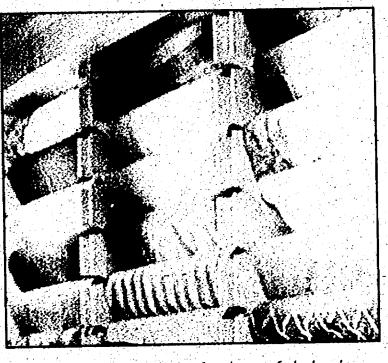

Tremonti and Brown has filled orders for office lounges as well as for residences. The women estimate that their customers have ranged in age from 27 to 60s. "It's different with each person," Tremonti said. "Sometimes they come in knowing exactly what they want."

Tremonti and Brown offers design consultaalong one wall. The samples are cut in yard sizes, plenty to drape over furniture, another feature that helps customers visualize something done in the material.

"We specialize in our fabrics," Brown said. Frames are handcut from kiln-dried hardwoods. Springs are heavy steel coil, tied by hand eight ways into wide bands of interwoven jute webbing. Arms and legs of furniture can be mixed and matched.

An order takes eight to 10 weeks, from the day it is placed to delivery. The construction is done at a workshop in North Carolina. Finished pieces are shipped to a warehouse, from which they are delivered to the customer.

tion as well

Asked about trends they have seen, Brown and Tremonti replied that large, firm ottomans used as coffee tables are popular.

Brown's background is in interior design, Tremonti's in psychology. They researched what the business would present.

After Silberstein selected the style of furniture for her order, Brown and Tremonti worked with the paint, molding, rug and colors in the couple's apartment and sent fabric cuttings for approval. They incorporated the size of the hallway in the measurements so delivery would be more easily accommodated.

One of the couches, in an art deco style, featured a linen fabric that had an off-white background and a colorful pattern. Brown and Tremonti came up with peacock blue throw pillows as accents. The other piece, a loveseat in green velvet material, fit the requirements of Silberstein's husband.

"He wanted something a little squishier," Tremonti said.

Writer remembers singer Fat Bob

What I am about to write is written for many of you who have contributed to the Fat Bob Music Scholarship at Eastern Michigan University. It was a request of Bob's that this fund be established in music and drama. Last Thursday I attended a function at this school and was thanked by many people for doing what has been done. The raising of more than $28,000 is no small feat for anyone, but with the help of his widow, Carole Taylor and the blessing of WJR, we have accomplished this dollar figure and will continue to go for more.

It is to you the public that I say thank you. I say it because it comes from Robert Edward Taylor himself.

William Shakespeare once wrote, "What's in a name?" In the case of Fat Bob, The Singing Plumber, the "what's" Jare many.

Fat Bob was a multi-talented performer whose "act" spanned all facets of the musical scene. In the night clubs or on the banquet stage his routine would take the audience from musical comedy to opera to country western to pop with an easy comedy background. Over the years, Bob had developed a sharp, clean, comedy delivery that helped him present his musical talents in an unusual, original and exciting manner.

This rare ability had made him a much sought after MC and after dinner performer. Bob was born in Leamington, Ontario, Canada, and moved to the United States with his parents and completed high school in east Lansing. He joined the Air Force and was assigned to Special Services, putting on shows, performing on television and he wound up as the program director of the base radio station. He also was the staff vocalist with WOIA-TV in San Antonio, Texas. After the service, he spent some years in the plumbing business, after which Bob decided to study music seriously and spent two years in the drama and music department at EMU. He then transferred to the University of Michigan and started a serious opera career.

He won the Metropolitan Opera Contest for the Great Lakes Region and went to New York, where he performed at the "Old Met." He was offered a position with this company and returned to Ann Árbor for further study.

He intended to join the Met but this never happened. That all, Bob happened to be listening to WJR one morning while working as a plumber on a construction project. (He did this between semesters to pay for his schooling). The D.J. was the well known and popular J.P. McCarthy, who was claiming that the recording of the "Vesti La Guiba" he was playing has been sung by himself. As a joke, Bob called J.P. and told him on the air that he was flat. J.P. challenged Bob to sing the aria on the phone. Bob sang the first line and WJR went off the air for five seconds. The amazed J.P. came back with "What's your name pal?" Off the top of his head Bob said, "I'm Fat Bob the Plumber from Ann Arbor." J.P. retorted, "You're now Fat Bob the Singing Plumber from Ann Arbor."

To be continued next week. More on Fat Bob, who he was, how he halped so many and why the writer of this column will keep his memory alive.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Design/Build helps develop budget

Q: Last year we hired an architect to design an addition to our home. To make a long story short, after months of planning and many meetings we found we could not have the addition built with all the items we wanted for a cost we could afford. While we really need the added space, we are not sure we want to pursue the project as currently planned. Should we get more quotes on the plans we have (we currently have six quotes). Where can we go from here?

A. First of all, I wouldn't pursue more quotes. I think it would be grossly unfair for you to call any other contractors to present a quote on a job that could not be built as planned for your budget by any of the six contractors who had bid the job. The problem is not the contractor.

Unfortunately, your plan does not match your budget. You may want to consider using a Design/Build contractor to help you. Design/Build contractors tie design, needs, wants and budget together from the get go. Everything, including your budget is laid out in the first meeting to see if it is possible. If the space you are planning doesn't meet your budgetary constraints then there has to be an honest conversation about what compromises can be made to keep your remodeling project in budget while it satisfies our "needs."

What you need, and what you want, are often two different things. Developing a plan that addresses your spatial, physical, aesthetic and monetary needs first may help. After developing your "needs" list then, if your budget allows, move on to your "wants" list. I would suggest you interview no more than three design/build contractors. Pick the one you like and trust, check his or her references and lay out a plan and budget.

If everyone is in agreement, you can move forward with the project. Keep in mind that with the design/build contractor, a budget is always monitored and discussed, through all phases of planning and buildings. Be aware of the fact that committing to a Design/Build contractor will mean you are gaining his expertise in tying budget to design. They also are able to listen to your wants and needs and put it together in a building package that is affordable.

In Design/Build expect to pay fees to the contractor ahead of time to help develop plans and specifications that can be developed to meet your needs. A well thought out plan with specifications can take up to 80 hours of working time for a Design/Build contractor to

Take heart: Make Valentines last

Tomorrow is Valentine's Day and I'll bet the florists are busy getting beautiful and meaningful bouquets ready for delivery. There are some things you can do when the gift arrives to prolong the length of time you can enjoy the flowers.

Before putting the bouquet in a container, cut an inch off the bottom of the stems, at an angle. If a packet of flower -preservative is included, follow the directions and use it, unless you put the flowers in a metal container (which can change the chemical balance).

A piece of charcoal will keep the water sweet, some people rely on aspirin or a few drops of chlorine bleach, others think a small amount of sugar is beneficial. I believe the preservative is the best.

Heat and low humidity aren't good for flowers. Put them in a place where you can enjoy them although it's best not to set them in direct sunlight or on a television, which can get warm on the top. Place them in a cooler area where the temperature drops to the 40s or 50s at night.

Keep the water level "topped up."

Love-ly present: Cut flowers are a perfect valentine's gift. These are carnations.

Flowers can drink an amazing amount of water in a day. If you can, change the water every couple of days and when you do, recut the stems so that they can absorb more water.

After doing this a time or two you might want to use a shorter container to keep the arrangement in proportion. I often end up with two or three of the longer-lasting flowers in a small vase to enjoy the blooms as long as possible.

Hints for buyers

Now, here are some hints for you who are buying the flowers.

When you choose them, remember that strongly scented flowers such as hyacinth, jasmine and the Casablanca lily should be mixed only with unscented flowers or foliage because their fragrance alone is enough.

To make the gift even more special, buy a wonderful container, perhaps a tall crystal vase, a short, fat terra cotta or clay pitcher, something made of hemmered brass or an antique silver piece. Present it with the flowers, or take it to the florist so that the flowers you choose will complement the container.

Perhaps the flowers will be arranged in their own basket or bowl. Care is the same except it won't be possible to recut the stems. Remove the flowers as they fade and eventually you may want to transfer the remaining ones to another container. Keep the oasis moist.

Cactus question

Don Hodges of Farmington Hills and Kerry Krivoshein of Troy have solved our question about the cactus 1 wrote about Jan. 23.

They tell me the "growth" on the top isn't a bloom at all but is a Gynmocalycium (a desert) cactus that is grafted onto a Hylocerues, a jungle cactus. The species is Mihanovcchii. There is no chlorophyll in this top plant so it needs to be grafted to another plant that contains chlorophyll, so it will grow.

With the absence of chlorophyll, the colors range from red, orange, yellow. This cactus, native to South America, needs cooler temperatures than the Hylocerues, which likes warmer conditions.

These plants are considered novelty items and aren't very long-lived because of their different temperature requirements. Hodges told me he had kept one for four or five years. I think that's a pretty good record. Many thanks to you both for the information.

• Rock Gardening, 7-9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, Feb. 25 and 27, $30 - The class concentrates on the principles involved in rock gardening including site selection and preparation, soil preparation, planting strategies and construction of the rock work, including the characteristics of various rocks. In addition, there will be demonstrations and a discussion of the requirements of different species, including alpines, dry land and desert plants, and cliff and ledge plants. Since diversity is beneficial in the garden as well as in the wild, different techniques for growing plants from seeds, plus sources for different seeds and plants will be explored. Radon remains a health concern

BY RICK BOWLING Special Writer

Radon gas continues to be a source of many phone calls to home inspection companies. Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas that is found outdoors as well as indoors. Radon is formed as a part of the decay chain of uranium found in the Earth's rock and soil.

Outdoors, Radon is of little concern, as it quickly dissipates and levels are almost always low. Indoors, Radon can concentrate in high levels and thus become a health concern. The EPA ranks Radon gas behind smoking as the second leading cause of lung cancer. Radon is estimated to contribute to between 7,000 and 30,000 lung cancer deaths each year.

While most residences don't have significantly elevated Radon levels, enough do for the EPA to recommend that all. homes be tested. The EPA estimates that nearly one out of every 15 residences in the United States has Radon levels above the recommended action level.

Testing is inexpensive and correction of elevated Radon levels isn't difficult. The EPA's efforts are directed at finding the residences with high levels and encouraging remediation of them.

In our next column, we will discuss common Radon test technologies and their advantages and disadvantages. It is important that only EPA listed laboratories and test companies be hired for Radon testing. For a list of approved companies, contact one of the resources listed at the end of this column.

How does Radon get indoors?

Radon is the only step in the uranium radioactive decay chain in which a gas is formed. As a gas, it is colorless and odorless and can move easily through soil and can be absorbed by water. It can also easily move into structures, through the normal cracks and building component penetrations found in nearly all dwellings.

Because soil gas is usually under higher pressure than air pressure in the residence, particularly on lower levels, Radon-containing soil gas is driven into the structure to equalize air pressure.

Radon can be found in houses of all ages and construction styles. Historical houses are no less likely to have elevated Radon levels than new construction. Houses on slabs or crawl spaces are no more immune than houses with full basements.

Certain home construction techniques can reduce the risk of elevated Radon, if planned in advance of construction. If you are having a home built, contact one of the information sources below, for more information on Radon-resistant building techniques.

is if really a hazard?

As Radon decays, it turns into radioactive lead, polonium and bismuth solids. These decay products attach to dust and smoke and can then be inhaled. Extended exposure will cause lung tissue damage, potentially leading to cancer.

Smokers are at greater risk than nonsmokers, due to smoking's damage to the naturally protective lining of the lungs. There is little scientific dispute that prolonged exposure to elevated Radon gas is a health hazard.

There is, however, scientific debate over what level Radon should be mitigated (reduced). The EPA and the American Lung Association have established four picocuries per litre as the recommended action level for this country. This is considered to be about the same probability as drowning.

This isn't so much a health-based number as it is a technology-based level. Most residences have Radon levels reduced to levels below four with little difficulty.

Some scientists believe that the level is artificially low and that homeowners shouldn't be concerned until levels are higher. Other countries have action levels ranging from four to 22. Some recent studies seem to confirm that Radon levels below four show no signs of significant added health risk.

The EPA, American Lung Association and World Health Organization all say that the best scientific evidence suggests a strong link between prolonged exposure to elevated Radon and lung cancer.

As a means of prevention, EPA and the Office of the Surgeon General recommend that all homes below the third floor be tested for Radon.

Southfield featured in antiques show

On the WTVS-TV program "Antiques Roadshow" airing 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 15, specialists from the country's great auction houses will appraise all sorts of Americana in Southfield.

Host Chris Jussel will tour the city, and appraisers at the Southfield Civic Center will be thrilled to find a magnificent example of Duncan Phyle furniture and an important watercolor painting: The Duncan Phyfe table will be appraised by twin brothers Leigh Keno of Leigh Keno American Antiques and Leslie Keno of Sotheby's.

The program will also feature experts' tips and trade secrets. Viewers will see glimpses of many cultural backgrounds in the objects featured on the show.

Nicholas Dawes, an independent dealer based in New York City, will show viewers some objects with a particular resonance for this area around the Motor City: Lalique hood ornaments. Wendell Garrett, an Americana specialist at Sotheby's, will have some observations on Henry Ford, the man who once said, "History is more or less bunk." Leslie Keno will visit the Henry Ford Museum to see a famous piece of American furniture: the so-called Brewster Fake.

The owner of the Duncan Phyle table had bought the mahogany sewing table/desk from an antiques shop. She was once offered $25,000 for it from an antiques dealer, but refused the offer, knowing somehow it was probably worth more. The appraisers identify the table as a Duncan Phyfe "masterpiece" dating back to 1805-10. Because of its extraordinary craftsmanship and mint condition, they value the table at $100,000.

Colleene Fesko of Skinner appraises a Carl Haag painting. The owner's family had the watercolor painting, signed and dated 1867, since after World War II. Fesko reveals that at one time it may have hung in Windsor Castle. Because the painting, titled "Happiness in the Desert," is a great example of the artist's style and is a large format piece, it is valued at $50,000 to $75,000.

A New Zealand tiki doll necklace is appraised in another highlight on the show. The owner received the necklace from her mother, and it had been hanging as a decoration on the living room wall. Appraiser Don Ellis of Ontario identifies the beautifully carved, green limestone piece as dating to before 1850 and estimates its value at $10,000 to $15,000.

"Antiques Roadshow," which premiered in January, is part adventure, part history lesson and part treasure hunt.

Specialists from the country's leading auction houses and independent dealers from across the nation travel throughout the United States offering free appraisals of antiques and collectibles. Owners recount tales of family heirlooms, yard sale bargains and long-neglected items salvaged from attics and basements, and experts reveal the fascinating truths about these finds. Along the way, Jussel introduces viewers to important historical and cultural sites at each city.

Program spotlights Europe

The Detroit Garden Center invites the public to "European Landscape Ideas for American Gardens" 12:30 p.m. Sunday, March 2, at the Detroit Yacht Club on Belle Isle.

Cost is $22 for lecture and dinner, $5 for lecture only. For reservations, call the Detroit Garden Center at (313) 259-6363.

This luncheon program features slides by Grosse Pointe landscape designer Marguerite Decker. View the famous gardens of Belgium, Holland and England, and learn from Decker how to incorporate ideas from these gardens into your own landscape.

Romantic comedy: Matthew Perry stars as Alex Whitman, an east coast fish-out-ofwater who discovers Isabel Fuentes (Salma Hayek) the love of his life in Las Vegas in "Fools Rush In."

In Hollywood opposites attract

For Dalton, romance begins with respect

BY JOHN MONAGHAN SPECIAL WRITER

For the actor formerly known as James Bond, truly romantic movies are the ones in which true love arises out of difficulty and that bring together polar opposites in search of common ground.

"Good relationships in life are those that are earned, where you actually have respect for each other ... All of those ones where you fall in love with a pretty face end up in disaster because they're superficial," said Timothy Dalton, in town recently to, promote his new movie "Beautician and the Beast."

The concept has been ingrained in him since his first movie, where he played the youngest son to the fighting king and queen in 1968's "The Lion in Winter."

"That movie is about two extremely powerful people who were fighting each other all the time," he said, "but in a way that fueled their passion.

"I suppose "(Who's Afraid of) Virginia Woolf" is a great romance in a way because the characters loved each other, yet tore each other apart."

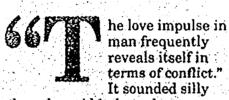

"Beautician and Beast" follows a similar story. It stars Fran Drescher (TV's. "The Nanny") as a cosmetology school graduate who arrives in a tiny Eastern European nation as teacher to the children of a Stalin-like dictator. Through the course of the movie, she charms his kids and eventually him.

"We start with two people completely opposite who don't even like each other - he certainly doesn't like her," Dalton said. "Yet through some kind of struggle, through getting to know what each other is really about, a certain kind of love and respect is gained."

when she said it, but when Katharine Hepburn quoted her psychiatrist to a bewildered Cary Grant in "Bringing Up Baby," she was touching a fundamental cornerstone of Hollywood romance. If there really are only variations of seven basic stories, the idea of love arising from a good battle comes in at least three of them.

While Rick and Ilsa, Bonnie and Clyde, and Romeo and Juliet exist as star-crossed lovers who simply meet at the wrong time, many people relate more to this notion: the person you'd least expect to be with at the beginning of the movie is standing next to you on the altar as the screen fades to black.

The idea of mismatched couples kindles our imagination. Would the marriage of Julia Roberts to Lyle Lovett have been such a big deal if Hollywood's most eligible bachelorette hadn't married a guy that much of the world thought looked like a geek?

According to Hollywood, love makes no sense. It's a good screenwriter's job to some how work it all out.

• "Everyone Says | Love You" -Woody Allen has always been a master of the mismatched. It's strange enough to see him jogging after Julia Roberts through the streets of Venice. Things get really weird when Tim Roth's death row inmate starts flirting (and scoring) with Yuppie Drew Barrymore.

• "Fools Rush In" - Matthew Perry plays a strait-laced Manhattan corporate type whose one-nighter with a Las Vegas dancer (Salma Hayek) turns into a long-term romance.

• "Hamlet" - Talk about conflict. Not only does Shakespeare's great Dane drive true love Ophelia to the drink, there's also that weirdness going on between Hamlet and his mother, though Kenneth Branagh has apparently toned this down in his four-hour version.

"In Love and War" - According to literary legend, Ernest Hemingway had his first affair with an older woman, a nurse who cared for him during his Doughboy days in World War I. Her refusal to take him seriously (she called him "Kid") supposedly resulted in wounds of the heart from which the writer never quite recovered. "One Fine Day"- In classic screwball comedy style, Michelle Pfeiffer and George Clooney play single parents thrown together on one chaotic day. The only thing they have in common is their fear of falling in love again. Guess what happens?

Encouraging new writers is one of the most important missions of a theater. Few community theaters attempt public performances, because of uncertain results. Over the years, no one can say that The Theatre Guild has ever lacked theatrical courage, however. Their audiences have come to expect the unexpected and look forward to unique experiences- like seeing a playwright's ideas take shape on the stage.

Enthusiastic young cast shines in 'Hello Dolly'

Westland All-Stars Youth Theatre presents "Hello Dolly," 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 14-15, Wayne Memorial High School, 3001 Fourth Street, Wayne. Tickets $5, (313) 722-7620. BY LIBBY PRYSBY SPECIAL WRITER

As the curtain opens to the well-known musical "Hello Dolly," children of all ages are seen in their places ready to sing "Call on Dolly,' the opening number in this production by the Westland All-Stars and Westland and Recreation Parks Department. The young thespians, grades one through 12, sing with smiles and expression, showing how many hours they have rehearsed for this production.

The talented actors, nice costumes, and simple but effective sets add to this entertaining performance. The natural antics of the voungest players also steal the audiences' hearts.

B. Buddington, who is in the seventh grade at Stevenson Middle School, portrays Dolly Levi. A very talented actress and singer. Buddington entertains the audience with her exuberant body gestures while teasing us with her playful mannerisms. Buddington is ideal for the role.

Another actress of note is Bree LaFortune, she plays Mrs. Rose, an old lady. Her fantastic "Yonkers" accent and well-developed moves, the way she hobbles across the stage is so believable. make this chorus member a show stopper. LaFortune proves us wrong in believing that she is very old when she does a cartwheel across the stage. LaFortune is truly a talented young woman.

Robert J. Harris, as Barnaby Tucker, is another fine performer. This 12-year old employs outstanding facial expressions and body gestures throughout the musical. Various funny lines said by Harris add humor to the production and the somewhat boring lives of Barnaby and Cornelius Hackel, played by Ian McGuire.

Other actors who add to this production are Erin Lulek (Minnie Fay), Matt Balla, who plays the court clerk, Rachel Lulek (Ernestina Money), and Bryan Smith, who plays the judge. The chorus also does a great job dancing the polka, walking the city streets of Yonkers, and serving guests at the Harmonica Gardens.

The costumes are nicely done. Townspeople can be seen wearing different colored skirts and hats, comparable to those worn in the 1890s. Male cast members are dapper in their dress with caps, hats and suspenders.

Dolly's outfits, especially the dress worn at the Harmonica Gardens, gives a sense of style and elegance, certainly something that mark a person like Dolly Levi.

The sets for the various scenes are simple, but creative. The Yonkers Railroad Station even has a "trolley" that is pulled across the stage. The Harmonica Gardens (a restaurant) is enhanced with the use of curtains pulled open and closed by the characters to focus attention on specific words and actions.

While the production is mostly delightful, some of the musical numbers go beyond what is needed for enjoyment. Nothing

She's in love with someone else, married, but he's got power, so in order to satisfy him, everyone allows him to have this woman, even her own husband."

He can also appreciate oldfashioned romances, especially with Spencer Tracy, whose pairings with Katharine Hepburn remain favorites.

"I think that we spend a lot of our lives trying to figure out our own romances," Dalton says, "so I think romantic movies will always be popular."

Corner" (1940) — Jimmy • "Go Fish" (1994) - Girl-Stewart returns, this time scrapping with co-worker Margaret meets-girl on the streets of Chicago in this low-low budget Sullavan at a Budapest gift independent from first-time shop. Their love-hate relationship is only one of the joys of Ernst Lubitsch's too-rarely-seen romantic comedy. ♥ "Something Wild" (1986) ---

Jonathan Demme mixed screwball comedy and film noir when a basically boring guy (Jeff. Daniels) meets a wild woman (Melanie Griffith). He ends up doing things he never thought possible: running out on a restaurant check, masquerading as her husband at a high school reunion, and sparring with her psycho ex-boyfriend.

♥ "Woman of the Year" (1942) - The first Spencer Tracy-Katharine Hepburn yehicle hinted that something more than acting was taking place on screen. She played a worldfamous political commentator while he was an earthy sports reporter. Their conflict-filled relationship resulted in several cinematic permutations over the next three decades.

Latest Elmore Leonard movie has 'the Touch'

BY JOHN MONAGHAN SPECIAL WRITER

For Juvenal, the monk-turnedsocial worker, having "the touch" means the laying of hands on the sick. A second or two of blood flowing from his palms and the blind see, the leukemia patient grows hair, the emotionally barren find some meaning in their lives.

For Bill, the tent evangelist down on his luck, "the touch" is his meal ticket to the big time. His slickly negotiated book deals and talk show appearances for Juvenal will net him a modest 90 percent for his efforts.

For writer Elmore Leonard and director Paul Schrader, "Touch," which opens Friday, is an equally lucrative collaboration. For the second time in as many years. Hollywood has figured out how to adapt the work of Detroit's most famous writer for the screen.

The formula, shown in "Get Shorty," is simple: the story is the star. Hire a charismatic actor (Travolta in the last, newcomer Skeet Ulrich here) and make talented character actors.

Ulrich, currently on screen in Wes Craven's "Scream," has a winning blend of naivette, sex appeal, and charm. With his penetrating brown eyes and easygoing personality, he is the perfect embodiment of a modern saint. He is intensely calm, even when it's obvious that he's being taken advantage of.

"How can I be exploited when I'm allowing it to happen," he tells Lynn, the woman sent to investigate his powers but who ends up falling in love with him that you barely recognize the familiar performers. Bridget Fonda underplays Lynn as a woman who finds in Juvenal's touch a meaning in her life. And while I usually can't stand Tom Arnold, he's near-perfect as the clueless leader of Outrage, an ultra-conservative religious organization.

In one hilarious scene early on, he's in court for disrupting the musical portion of a Catholic mass (he thinks it should be spoken in Latin, not with guitars). He tells the presiding judge that he is unworthy to try this case because divorce makes him unclean in the eyes of the Lord. Christopher Walken, who has spent the better part of his career playing memorable villains, has one of his best roles in years as Bill, the shiny-suited evangelist responsible for the

The casting here is so offbeat world's tallest illuminated Jesus. You could see its blue neon light from the highway, he says, "sort of like Stuckeys."

These typically eccentric characters (the stock-in-trade of acclaimed novelist Leonard) are well-served by writer/director Schrader, another native Michigander still best-known for his work with Martin Scorsese. As scriptwriter on "Taxi Driver" and "Raging Bull," he showed an amazing depth of character that comes in handy here.

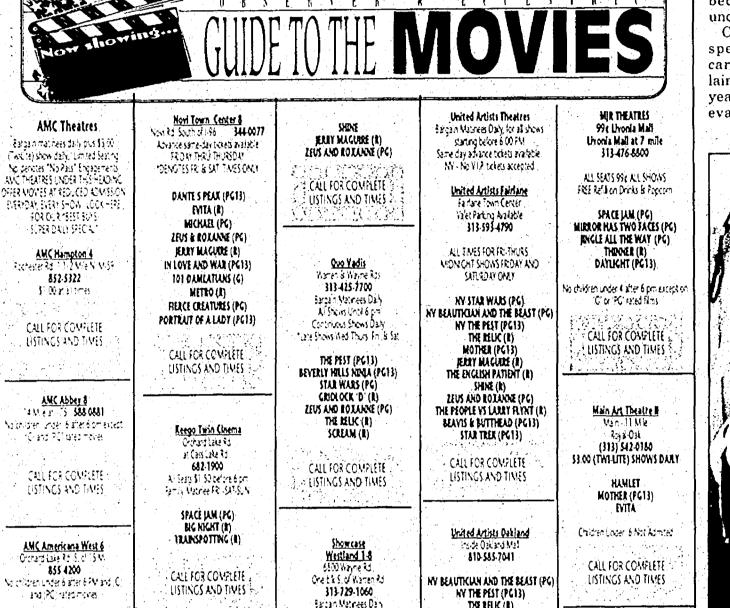

"Touch" is a little film (made on a miniscule $5 million budget) but it's also heartfelt and surprisingly, almost offhandedly, moving. Though written 20 years ago, the story has relevance today about how something as genuine as Juvenal is almost invariably turned into a media circus.

Expect to see more Leonard on the screen soon. Quentin Tarantino has optioned no less than four of the author's novels (the first, "Rum Punch," begins shooting soon) while Danny DeVito, who produced "Get Shorty," has another one in the works, which rumor has it will be filmed partially in Detroit.

"Touch" is proof positive that Leonard possesses something that most modern movies lack. There's something satisfying about Hollywood having to reach all the way to the Motor City to find someone who can pen a decent character for the screen.

John Monaghan welcomes your calls and comments. You can listen to him on Dave Dixon's Radio Show AM 1270, 8 p.m. to midnight Saturdays. To leave John a voice mail message, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, mailbox 1866.

Healer: Juvenal's (Skeet Urlrich) healing powers cure a blind woman (Conchata Ferrell) in "Touch."

Readers share foolish love stories

We asked readers to write to us about the most foolish thing they've ever done for love to receive two tickets to a preview screening of "Fools Rush In" on Feb. 11.

"Fools Rush In," a romantic comedy about a straight-laced. corporate type from Manhattan who falls in love with a Las Vegas dancer, opens Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters. The stories we received were heartwarming and fun, here are some of our favorites:

"I had planned to surprise my girlfriend with an engagement ring in her popcorn at the movies," wrote Don Steele of Waterford. "We got to the movies. I asked 'do you want any popcorn?' 'No,' she said. 'do you want anything?,' 'No,' she said. 'Are you sure?' I said 'I think I'm gonna get some popcorn.' She answered 'ok.' When I got back I said 'would you like some?' 'No,' she answered. 'Are you sure?' Then I got mad and said 'eat some.' She found the ring in the first handful."

Cindy Pauly of Waterford gave up a free cruise to the Bahamas with her office to throw a surprise 40th birthday party for her boyfriend who lived in Traverse City.

"He made me promise to call him at 4 a.m. before my office left for the airport," she wrote. "I'd been up until 2 a.m. wrapping, packing and planning for the trip up north for the big surprise. Then I pretended to be calling from the airport leaving him a message on his answering machine. My friends got him to the party, he was surprised. I was dressed as the Grim Rearer and everyone thought for sure he'd guess who I was, but he just shook my hand and walked by I handed him an invitation to read - he still didn't get it, and finally a card that said 'Some Buddy Loves You.' He knew."

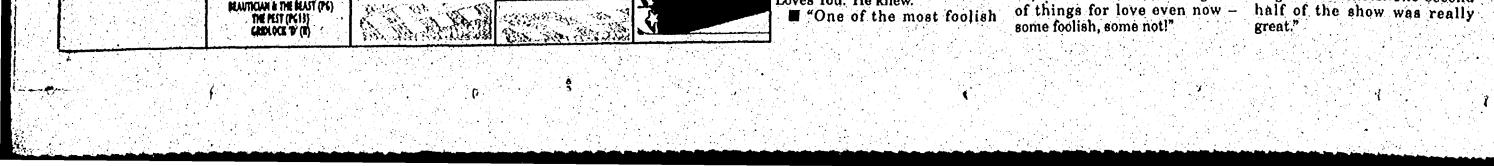

Comedy: Isabel (Salma Hayek) and Alex (Matthew Perry) star in "Fools Rush In."

things I've ever done for love was attempt to steal a statistics exam for my boyfriend (now husband) when we were in college, circa 1958-62," wrote Anna Levin of Southfield. My boyfriend wanted the exam and he convinced me to go into the lecture hall, sit by the door, and when the exams were passed out I could just exit quickly with the goods. He said I wouldn't be noticed. Foolishly I tucked my honesty away deep in the caverns of my body, entered the lecture hall, and sat by the door. Everyone kept looking at me even the professor! Ten minutes went by and I was beginning to glow like a light bulb. I looked around and realized how conspicuous I was; this was a lecture hall filled with guys; I was the only girl. I made a fast getaway without completing the deed. My boyfriend was disappointed and apologetic. He said that's what you get for sending a girl to do a man's job. My boyfriend and I married on June 16, 1963 and I am still doing lots-

The most foolish thing I ever did for love was follow a girl I was dating when she was picked up for a date by another guy," wrote Rick Lepsetz of Southfield. "After following them at a discrete distance. I watched as they parked the car and walked to a theater. I then got out of my car and let the air out of his tires. I talked to her the next day and asked how the date went. She told me the movie was ok but the evening ended quickly because the other guy was tired and dirty after spending a late night changing his tires on a wet, muddy street. Poor guy. I ended up marrying the girl."

Ed Burnett of Royal Oak "rushed out to buy two tickets to a concert to impress my girlfriend. We started the night with dinner at a restaurant. When we realized the show was about to start, we rushed to the arena, paid the parking attendant, found a parking spot two miles to the entrance, then raced for the doors. The foolish thing - I forgot the tickets. The second

"Everyone Says I Love You" USA-1996). So what if no one can carry a tune? Woody Allen's new musical comedy has the kooky characters and oddball casting you've come to expect, starring Drew Barrymore, Alan Alda, Tim Roth, Julia Roberts, and Goldie Hawn (in probably her best role ever).

■ "Shine" (Australia-1996). The story of David Helfgott, a concert pianist driven to the edge at an early age by an overbearing father. His ultimate success over adversity makes for an inspirational story.

Some Mother's Son" (Ireland-1996). The relationship of two women battling to save the lives of their sons who are involved in the tragic Irish hunger strike in 1981. Stars Helen Mirren and Fionnula. Flanagan.

"Mother" (USA-1996). Albert Brooks returns to directing and starring in this comedy about a twice-divorced man who tries to come to terms with his mother (Debbie Reynolds) when he moves back in with her.

"Hamlet" (USA-1997). Kenneth Branagh's latest version of the Shakespeare classic runs at its true length of nearly four hours (with intermission). But this shouldn't keep you away from the year's first epic film experience, a tour de force for star/director Branagh, who has compiled a most eclectic cast including Billy Crystal, Jack Lemmon, Kate Winslett, and Robin Williams.

sonnel for a sports team.

The firm owns and/or manages 26,000 apartment units,105 properties, throughout the Midwest.

"If you don't set the bar high, the likelihood of receiving high results is non-existent.

"I believe there's a please and thank you in everything you do.

"It's a sacrifice to be more successful in your field. You sacrifice, personally, some long hours. You do deals others shy away from because they're too tough. You take on adversity others walk away from.

"I believe in giving more than just what's expected.

"Here, there are no superstars." People in the field are more important than me. Front line people make or break an organization.

Getting there (high achievement) is probably easier than staying there. You get complacent, everyone: tries to knock you off, steal your people. You can't be so caught up in success you can't improve.

"In life, you have to be a student and a teacher.

Successful people are in command of all information necessary to make a good business decision. They don't need all the information.

They're comfortable with their own intuitive skills and perception skills. They hear a quack and know it's a duck. They don't have to see it."

Schwartz, 45, a West Bloomfield resident, was selected 1996 Executive of the Year by Multifamily Executive, a bimonthly magazine geared to developers, owners, managers and investors of multi-family housing.

Schwartz was honored as a trendsetter in the industry.

"His professionalism and customer service and heights to which he has taken Village Green were reasons for choosing Terry executive of the year," said Jodi Bromberg, managing editor for Multifamily Executive.

"He's our first one, and I think he'll be the benchmark we'll use to choose our future executives of the year," she. added.

Schwartz has worked in property management nearly his entire career, joining Village Green in 1984.

"An executive recruiter contacted me. I interviewed with Jonathan Holtzman (Village Green chairman). The next weekend, he invited me to his house. I spent a couple days. We hit it off. We talked about our dreams. It was a match."

Holtzman said Schwartz was one of his first key hires when the decision was made to become more than just a family business.

"I think we share the same vision," Holtzman said. "We care that growth performance to our partners and residents needs to be constantly improved,"

It doesn't take much to get Schwartz talking and, when he does, you better listen carefully The words come quickly.

"I'm the organization person," he said. "I'm the chief motivator, longrange planner. I consider myself director of player personnel.

"I look at how we're structured, how we're recruiting. I'm the budget guy. I focus on what it takes to keep moving ahead. Every week, I meet with department heads. We have on-going agendas," Schwartz said.

On what it takes to successfully manage apartments:

"You need common sense, good judgment, good problem-solving skills. It's a business of problems. We call it conflict resolution. You're good with people."

On how to deal with tenant complaints:

"We're in a service business. Bottom line, that is our responsibility. In talking with customers, it isn't that something wasn't done. It's that we didn't communicate properly. If there's going to be a delay or you have to order a part, no one told them. Communicate more than less."

On who's most important in the employee-tenant-investor relationship.

"I think all their destinies are intershouldn't sacrifice quality and that twined. If we don't have great people, we can't provide great service, and if we don't provide service to customers, we probably aren't going to be able to provide financial expectations clients have."

On how to make a good impression on the job:

"I would tell young people to perform. Perform at a standard above everyone else. If a report were due Friday, I gave them on Wednesday. If a minimum goal was 92 percent, I made sure we gave 94. If you perform - exhibit talent, work ethic - you will get recognized."

Susan Schwartz has known her husband, Terry, since their middle teen-age years.

"He's always, since the day I met him, had ambition," Susan said. "He has a lot of pride. Whatever he does, he has to do his best. He has to put his all into it. When he cleans the garage, he pulls everything out and brings out the disinfectant.

"It funny, he's a totally different person at home," she said. "When he comes home, it's playing with the dog, throwing the ball, having fun. When he comes home, he doesn't discuss business."

Terry Schwartz credits his wife and children, Michael and Melissa, for keeping his life balanced.

"They have a great sense of humor," Terry said. "We entertain each other."

Q. About 10 years ago I invested a substantial sum in a New York limited partnership that was to buy land and to build above-averagecost homes. It was originally projected that the limited partners were to receive their investments plus profits within four years. No returns have ever been received to date.

Although the partnership agreement stipulates that the general partner is to provide. financial and activity reports on a semi-annual basis, none has been received. In response to numerous complaints and requests from the limited partners, the general partner has provided generalized letters on three occasions, and the K-1 tax reports are provided on an annual basis.

The limited partners are suspicious as to what has happened. Do we have recourse to the federal government agencies and other legal remedies?

A. You clearly have a private legal remedy against Since you are not possessing a chattel, but real the general partner in the event that he has in any terms and obligations of the partnership agreement.

Whether you have recourse through any state agency in New York depends upon New York securities law. Whether or not the SEC has any jurisdiction again would depend upon the nature of the "security" offered to you by way of a limited partnership interest. The same may be exempt from Federal jurisdiction.

You are best advised to consult with an attorney of your choosing to advise you of what your remedies are, which, at a minimum, should include demanding an accounting from the general partner of all monies received and expended in behalf of the limited partnership.

Gas heaters provide more hot water, A.G.A. says

Natural gas water heaters provide more hot water faster and less expensively than electric water heaters, according to the American Gas Association.

Comparing the annual operating costs before buying a water heater can pay off in substantial savings, A.G.A. says, because the water heater is the second biggest energy user in a typical home, after the heating and cooling system.

Water heaters are required by federal law to carry an EnergyGuide label that shows the average annual cost of energy for the unit. Although electric water heaters are often less expensive to buy, operating a gas water heater will cost about half as much as operating an electric water heater, depending on local utility rates.

To select a unit to meet a home's hot water needs, look at the first hour rating on the label. This shows the most hot water that can be supplied in a one-hour period.

To get maximum efficiency from a water heater: from the faucet located at the bottom of the heater several times a year. Set the water heater at "normal," or about 120 degrees, in order to save energy. However, you may wish to set the water Drain a pail or two of water heater at 140 degrees if your dishwasher does not have a water heating booster as part of its automatic cycle; the hotter water will sanitize dishes.

Keep the burners clean.

If the pilot light goes out, follow the appliance instructions =and relight it. If any difficulty occurs, however, turn the controls off and call a plumber or heating dealer. If you smell gas, call your local gas company.

Non-existent houses sold of which have not even auctioned off.

The houses were auctioned for prices ranging from $170,000 to $270,000.

The subdivision developer wanted to sell the homes quickly to avoid the slow, post-September housing market, said Thomas Vetter, president of Accelerated Marketing Systems, the Danville, Calif.based company that held the auction. The auction also
