Residents carry woes to council

Westland residents say they are plagued with health problems some six weeks after a sewer project snafu backed sewer water up into their basements. Meanwhile, a second group of residents has filed a lawsuit.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Westland residents, claiming they are sick from raw sewage that has soiled their basements for seven weeks, accused city officials of abandoning them in the aftermath of a sewer backup that flooded more than 400 homes.

More homeowners are threatening to join two class action lawsuits filed in Wayne County Circuit Court unless they receive immediate help with home cleanup and repairs.

Moreover, some of the 150 to 200 residents who packed a heated Westland City Council meeting Monday night warned that they will reject efforts to depreciate their property.

They demanded that their basements be restored to conditions prior to massive sewer-system flooding that caused an estimated $6 million in damages to 402 homes on Feb. 20-21,

Roselawn resident Diana LeBlanc, who suffers from asthma along with her son, said she worries about breathing air because of mold and damaged asbestos tiles in her basement.

"My health is at risk," she told city officials. "People die from asbestos poisoning."

She also noted that her husband - who has a long-term back injury - suffered a staphylococcus infection in his foot from trying to clean out the basement. She pleaded for help from the city.

"Nothing is getting done," she said, "and it has been long enough."
Resident Sandra Servalish said her basement contains $20,000 in knotty pine that is rotting.

"I don't know what to do. I'm worried about my health," she said. "I'm worried about my husband's health."

Second suit is filed

By DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Some Westland residents who don't like Geoffrey Fieger's ties to assisted suicide doctor Jack Kevorkian have chosen a different attorney for a second lawsuit stemming from a sewer backup that damaged north-end homes.

"This is 'sewer-cide,' not suicide," Merritt Drive resident Cheryl Bates said. "We don't like Geoffrey Fieger. We don't want an ambulance-chaser representing us. This is a predominantly quiet, Catholic community.

Bates and her husband, William, joined several other north-end couples in a separate class-action lawsuit filed Monday in Wayne County Circuit Court by attorney Steven Liddle.

Liddle's suit — like Fieger's blames the city of Westland and three contractors for a blocked sewer chamber that forced raw sewage into 402 Westland homes Feb. 20-21.

School hopefuls hit the campaign trail six people — including two incumbents — will vie for two seats on the Wayne-Westland Board of Education this June, while five candidates will square off for two open seats on the Livonia school board, where no incumbents are seeking office.

All terms are for four years.

Thursday by 4 p.m. is the last date that candidates can withdraw from the race. If they do not withdraw by that date, their names will automatically appear on the June 9 bellot.

Voters in the Livonia Public Schools also face two tex proposals. They include: a one-year ,25-mill tax increase to raise $505,000 to reconstruct pools at Franklin and Apresson high schools; and a one-year ,30-mill tax increase to raising $1,066,000 to partially demalish and remodel the Bentley Center.

School officials on countdown to computer glitch

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

The clock is ticking toward Jan. 4, 2000 — the first business day of the 21st Century.

Plante & Moran suggests school districts start tackling the problem now, because dates beyond the year 2000 will be cropping up in computers more and more in the months to come.

The auditor cites the following solutions: fix the software, replace the software, or have the work done on a computer that can do the job accurately.

Westland community DAREs to have fun at fund-raiser with Red Wings alumni and police Supporters view them as winners for helping to raise $2,000 for DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education), an anti-drug program that takes officers into local classrooms.

The money will be used to buy classroom materials and DARE "incentives," such as T-shirts and pencils, that are distributed to students, Hooper said.

Some young hockey fans enjoyed the game more than others because they got to ride in a chauffeurdriven limousine from the city's Dorsey Center to the ice arena. Westland, other communities face area code change this year

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

Unanticipated changes in the telecommunications industry have led the way for additional modifications to area codes in Wayne, Oakland, Monroe, Livingston and Washtenaw counties.

"The changes can be attributed to the explosion of telecommunication services," said Sara Snyder Ameritech spokesperson. "Second phone lines, fax machines, cellular phones and modems all effect the need for new numbers."

Unforeseen technological advances call for additional phone lines including, said Snyder, the credit card devices found on most gas station pumps that require a dedicated phone line for operation.

"Three years ago those were unheard of," said Snyder.

A new area code will be implemented optionally for a majority of Wayne County and small segments of Monroe and Washtenaw counties as of Dec. 13. Residents will be able to dial 313 and until they are required to dial 734 exclusively, effective July 25, 1998.

The only cities that will continue to make use of the 313 area code are: Detroit, Hamtramck, Highland Park, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Redford, Lincoln Park, Ecorse, Harper Woods, the Grosse Pointes and River Rouge.

In addition, southeastern Michigan residents including most of Oakland County and very limited portions of Wayne, Washtenaw and Livingston counties, who now use the 810 area code, will have optional dialing privileges of the new 248 area code effective May 10.

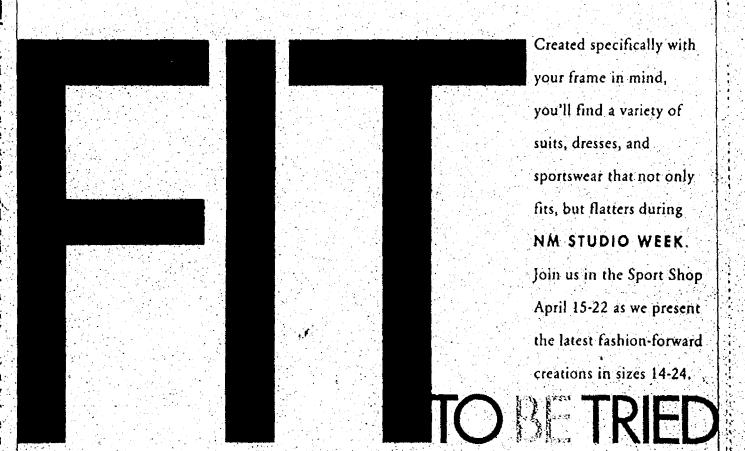

Snyder said optional dialing allows consumers to dial both area codes, 810 and 248, until required dialing takes effect

Snyder said Ameritech has accurately forecasted changes for consumers beginning with the

734 beginning in December October 1995 announcement that additional area codes would be essential in the next five years. Updates, said the Ameritech spokesperson, were made in July 1996 with the announcement of the 248 areacode and again in October 1996

"We are currently working on our communication plan and how we will meet the future needs of our customers," said Snyder, "but we are continually providing face-to-face communications through the distribution of business kits, press releases, the media and visits by yellow page sales representatives.'

Snyder said no one can predict the direction telecommunication services will follow and ideally we would all have one number that we carried with us for the rest of our lives. "As favorable as that sounds we need to deal with the short-term situation," said

Motorists caught in traffic along 1-96 and 1-275 in Livonia soon will have the option of taking alternative routes, thanks to three message boards and eight cameras soon to be installed along those two stretches of highway.

"In order to ensure motorists are getting where they need to go safely and in the most convenient way possible, cameras will soon be installed to monitor traffic and watch for back-upe," said state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

City Attorney Angelo Plakas told residents that he is hopeful of a breakthrough today (Thursday) in negotiations that could lead to residential cleanup and repairs.

Insurance companies representing three firms hired for a sewer-separation project may reach an agreement today, following weeks of negotiations aimed at assessing the cost that each firm should assume, he said.

"We are optimistic that it will be resolved soon ... in favor of the homeowners who were affected by the flooding," Plakas told homeowners Monday

His comments followed encouraging talks earlier Monday that included mediator Laurence Conner - brought in by negotiators to try to resolve differ-

"This is the first meeting I left with any optimism," Plakas said.

He confirmed that two of the three firms involved in the sewer project have agreed to release money for cleanup and home repairs. Companies that may share the cost include Peter Basile & Sons Construction of Livonia, Lanzo Construction Inc. of Birmingham, and Orchard, Hiltz and McCliment Engineering Consultants of Livonia.

Merritt Drive resident Cheryl Bates said city officials made promises of home repairs being completed within four to six weeks of the sewer flooding promises that haven't been kept,

"We've been left in the dark," she

Bates said her 7-year-old dog Homely, a boxer-shepherd mix, had a paw partially "eaten off" by streptococcus, a parasitic bacteria.

Although residents have cleaned and disinfected their basements, many say they can't reach sewage that seeped behind walls or into ventilation sys-

Many residents don't have the money to have their basements ripped out and repaired themselves, while they await settlements from the city, Bates said. "People are living with it, and they're getting sick."

Sewage backed into north-end homes Feb. 20-21 when a sewer chamber improperly sealed off by concrete blocked the flow of sewage into a 72inch pipe near Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail.

The problem occurred during a federally mandated, $10 million sewer-separation project. Some residents voiced concerns Monday that more flooding will emerge as the ongoing project continues, but city officials said no additional problems are likely.

Angry homeowners told city officials Monday that they want their damaged

"Nobody is going to depreciate anything that I have lost," she said. "We've all been sick. We've all had major depression after this. We've all lost half of our living space, and I think it should be taken care of."

Shari resident Barbara Bateman, 69, questioned how a price tag can be placed on belongings such as her childhood photographs or her high school

plained that some post-flooding trash removed from their basements remained on the curb for five weeks before the city picked it up.

Mayor Robert Thomas responded that city crews have made regular rounds through the neighborhood to try to keep the area clean.

Mackenzie resident Steve Kiefer said that his water-sewer bill rose from $40 to $113 in one quarterly cycle and that his residential assessment rose $3,000

"I really don't think our property is worth what it was before this flood," he

Raw sewage flooded northend homes Feb. 20-21 after a sewer chamber - improperly blocked by a concrete wall failed to empty into a 72-inch pipe near Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail.

During a heated Westland City Council meeting Monday night, angry residents who have refrained from joining either lawsuit threatened to climb aboard unless they receive help soon with home

Plakas told residents that the lawsuits still have to be officially certified as classaction in Wayne County Circuit Court. Once that occurs, he said, residents seeking to opt out of the suits will have to complete forms that they will receive by mail. "We hope to avoid the litigation," Plakas said, adding that Westland residents will pay the tab stemming from any successful lawsuits.

"It comes out of everyone's pocket, no matter how you look at it," he said.

Plakas voiced hope that insurance companies representing the city-hired contractors will agree to pool enough money by week's end to begin paying for home repairs.

Homeowners who aren't satisfied with a settlement offer for repairs will have an option of allowing a mediator to decide what they should be paid, Plakas said.

Homeowners who join lawsuits could face longer delays for home repairs because of potentially lengthy court batlies, he said.

want to forget the three 'Rs.' " Turner also believes "we have to get more people involved in the district — we have to have an open ear."

Green, of Wilshire in Westland, is running on a slate with Brown — one of his former students for whom he said he has a great deal of admiration. A former teacher and assistant principal for 32 years in Wayne-Westland, the retired Green said he wants to use his educational background as a trustee.

"I'm concerned about kids," he said. "I think we're doing a good job, but I think we can do better. There's a lot to be done and I'd like to part of it." Green said he is particularly concerned that programs for bright children are considered and that at-risk children are reached at an early age.

The three other Wayne-Westland candidates could not be reached for comment this week.

McCusker works for Ford Motor Co. and lives on Birchwood. He first served on the Wayne-Westland board from December 1982 to June 1991, then was re-elected in June 1993. A school district spokeswoman said that McCusker could not be reached, as he was hospitalized earlier this week.

Stange, a resident of Knolson, was a school board candidate last year. Wright lives on Judith Street.

In Livonia schools

In Livonia, residents are assured of new faces as Pat Tancill and Suzanne Clulow have decided not to seek reelection.

Of the five candidates running, four have been school candidates before of whom one has served on the board.

Candidates are: Dan Lessard, 11083 Flamingo, a retiree who has served on the board; Patrick D. Nalley, 37674 Bristol Ct., a teacher who twice has run for the board; Jane Teska of 15936 Foch, a teacher who ran last year: Kirsten Galka of 16563 Ronnie, a homemaker who ran last year; and Thomas Kasper of 37155 Muirfield, a student and first-time challenger.

Kasper is a lifelong resident of Livonia and a senior at Livonia Stevenson High who hopes to pursue a career in secondary education.

"Some people have said to me, You are only a student; you lack experience.' But I have 12 years experience and would bring a very unique perspective to the board," he said. "I would be a person who would bring new ideas and a different viewpoint to the board."

Galka, a resident of Livonia for five years and an instructor for Madonna University, is active in Hoover PTA, a Sunday School teacher, a Masterworks and Early Literacy volunteer, a parent computer assistant at the Enrichment Center, and a Reading Mom.

Lessard retired after working 32 years with Michigan Bell. He has served with McKinley and Emerson PTAs, as legislative committee for Franklin High and for the PTA Council. Besides serving for one year on the Livonia Board of Education, Lessard also was a school board member in Eastpointe.

Teska, a Livonia resident for 11 years, earned a master of science degree from Madonna University and is an instructor for Southfield Public Schools, Schoolcraft College and Madonna. She is active with the Michigan Education Association and worked with the Livonia Education Association Uniserve Director Internship Program in 1995.

Teska has worked as a volunteer program supervisor for the Partners Against Crime organization in Wayne County in 1992-93 and was president of Phi Delta Kappa.

Nalley has been a teacher for 26 years for Wayne-Westland Community Schools. Active with Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Nalley has been involved with Cass PTA, YMCA Indian Guides, and youth programs with the schools and city.

Career fair scheduled Saturday in Westland

Job applicants should mark other types of companies. their calendars for the upcoming Jobs & Careers Fair to be held this Saturday, April 11 at the Westland Shopping Center at Warren and Wayne roads.

The Westland Chamber of Commerce is hosting the event with the hopes of matching qualified job applicants with local businesses.

"Our goal is to serve the business community by providing job applicants," said Barbara Barrell, vice president for Business and Economic Development for the Westland Chamber of Commerce. "The Westland Center is a central location - and will bring a lot of traffic."

The chamber expects some 5,000 job applicants and those interested in enhancing their careers to attend the event, which will have a variety of 80 employers participating. The fair runs from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and will include retail, manufacturing, engineering, professional, health care, trades, financial, office/clerical, organizational and

Chamber Executive Director

Linda Shapona said tables are selling well. "The employers are hungry for excellent employees and want a chance to meet with them," she said. "We are looking for a great turnout."

It is suggested that job applicants bring at least 50 copies of their resumes to share with employers. There will also be an "ask the professional" segment of the fair at which job-seekers can obtain information on a given field.

Chamber members will be available at the fair to help match prospective applicants and employers, Barrell said.

In the future, organizers hope the event will expand to include educators as well as business people. "We hope to get more colleges involved," Barrell added.

"It's an open market for them." Shapona said with the interest, it is likely that such an event could become an annual

Patching machine smooths out freeway potholes

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

The condition of state, county and local roads throughout the winter months and into the spring season remain in a state of deterioration as independent contractors and county workers labor to patch and repair hazardous holes and cracks.

Travelers accustomed to seeing patching crews filling holes the cold patch method - large premixed emulsion coated stones shoveled into pavement breaks and openings - may be seeing more repairs performed by a machine that extends the longevity of the patch.

The seal patch machine has been utilized by county workers and independent contractors since 1990, according to Dick Gould, district maintenance engineer with the Michigan Department of Transportation.

It's just another way of doing it," said Gould. "The equipment is much more expensive but you can get pretty good production results.

Machine patch

In contrast to the cold patch method, seal patching requires an operator to blow out loose materials from the pothole with a hand operated gun. From the same device, small stones coated with emulsion fills the hole followed by untreated stones (1/8 to 1/4 in size); then a powdered layer of dust secures the material to prevent it from cracking.

Gould said unfavorable consequences include dust complaints resulting from inexperienced operators, sewer congestion created when loose stones are carried away by storm run-off and the fact that the task is very physically demanding on the operator.

The state road engineer added the seal patch machine is only capable of doing one job as opposed to multiple uses repair crews gain from dump trucks that carry cold patch materials.

"Often times cold patch, under ideal conditions, can have a service life from three to five years," said Gould. "In the hopes that it's deposited into the hole and tapped down by a road crew worker or a passing vehicle, cold patch works just as well."

Complaints soar

A Wayne County Department of Public Service Roads Hotline spokesperson said the telephone service receives dozens of complaints per day regarding declining stretches of road throughout the county. In particular highways including 1-275 and 1-96 as well as busy thoroughfare intersections such as Cherry Hill and Middlebelt roads in Westland. leave weary motorists at the mercy of the road.

Scott Kingan, public information officer county roads, said with the onset of the spring season complaints lodged regarding road conditions have increased by 200 percent compared to this same period in 1996.

"The weather is partly to blame for the shape of the roads as well as the fact that they're continuing to get older. Just like a 100,000 miles on a car, all

Kingan said the county however, is actively seeking new methods to improve driving conditions through the acquisition of a new pothole patching unit referred to as a "hot patcher." The machine carries heated high performance cold patch materi-

"Cold patching is a meticulous job that requires workers to pound by hand the product into the hole," said Kingan. "During the winter months cold patch gets hard and is difficult to manipulate but hot patch remains heated and flexible."

The county public information officer added the spring season is typically the most detrimental to roads as moisture begins to be released from the frozen ground

Residents track down elusive Beanie Babies

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

Armed with a cellular phone and a list of demands, they move into action. Not a perilous gunman or a dangerous kidnapper, but Beanie Babies fanatics preparing to maraud the latest shipment of trendy collectibles.

Small in size but phenomenally popular, those pint-size creatures have captured a marketable audience of consumers, both young and old, with their nominal price and generous appeal.

'We can't keep them on the sales floor," said Plymouth Marketplace co-owner Jim Tanski. "We sold 1,000 in two hours last week and must average 20 calls a day from customers inquiring about our next shipment."

Back ordered since December, Tanski said Ty Incorporated manufacturer of Beanie Babies, can't keep up the orders he and thousands of other retailers have placed since the craze first hit Michigan last summer.

Keeping up with the frenzy only adds to the excitement, said Plymouth Marketplace floral manager, Char Rowe.

"In the 26 years I've been in retail I haven't seen anything like this," said Rowe, an admitted veteran of the Cabbage Patch wars of the mid 1980s. "You can't help but stand back and laugh. It's absolutely insane when we bring them out on the Rowe said all of the approximately 75 animals in the Beanie Babies collection sell for the same price, in unlimited quantities at the Plymouth Marketplace. The floral manager said they have not tried to take advantage of demand by raising prices compared to several merchants selling the animals for up to $20 a piece.

"We put no limits or restrictions on the quantity customers can purchase," said Rowe. "It's just plain old fun, pure and simple. There's nothing evil or wicked about Beanie Babies."

The Plymouth retailer provides a phone service for customers wishing to be notified when the next shipment will arrive. Rowe estimates between 50 to 70 shoppers are contacted each week.

It's shipment day however, when Tanski and Rowe say the genuine excitement is brought about by chaotic shoppers trying to snatch the pint-size creatures.

"I've seen grown women on their cellular phones frantically calling their friends to find out which ones they want or need for their collection," said Tanski,

The Plymouth retailer said age is not an issue when it Two female patrons, over the thought of them!".

Another customer, recalled Rowe, was less than subtle about her stuffed spoils.

"I found her laying spread eagle on the floor with her phone in hand," said Rowe. "I thought she had a heart attack but she was just an aggressive shopper protecting the 20 Beanie Babies she didn't want anyone else to

Since their debut in 1996, nearly 75 animals have been distributed nationally with the unanticipated retirement of 16. Tanski said Ty, Incorp. doesn't announce the characters they put into retirement, so some become more popular because shoppers attempt to forecast their withdrawal from circula-

Rowe said its also possible to have a back order from last year arrive with Beanies Babies already placed into retirement.

"That's when you get some hot items," said Rowe. "Some of the most treasured and sought after can appear long beyond retire-

Attached to every Beanie Baby is a poem, name and birth date. Rowe said collectors, particularly children, try and locate or exchange babies with the date closest to their own birthday. "That's when the fun begins," said Rowe.

Popular targets of trade include Garcia, bear; Snip, cat; Pouch, kangaroo; Congo, monkey; Nut, squirrel; and Hoppy, bunny.

This week was no exception for the Beanie bedlam. Tanski and his employees stood back as 3,500 babies came and went in a matter of hours.

"I think they're so popular because the price is reasonable and they've hit a great market," comes to the collectors compet- said Rowe, Kids today have ing for the been-filled animals, money, I wish I would have

Canton woman runs to show you can beat cancer

BY DONNA MULCAHY SPECIAL WRITER

Janis Puskar of Canton is many things - a wife, mother. competitive athlete and aerobics instructor.

But the one thing she thought she'd never be is a breast cancer survivor. That's because she wasn't supposed to get the disease in the first place.

"I did all the right things," the 38-year-old mother of two said. "I never smoked, I ate right ---there's very little fat in my diet - and I've been an aerobics instructor for 17 years now. I've even trained for aerobics competitions. I've always been healthy."

Plus, no one in her family ever had the disease.

But soon after giving birth to her daughter, Jordan, now 6, Puskar noticed a lump in her breast. She mentioned it to her doctor, but he said it was a harmless fibroid tumor and that she shouldn't be concerned.

Taking action.

Still, it continued to bother her. About two years after she first noticed the lump, she told her doctor that she wanted a plastic surgeon to remove it, just to allay her fears.

The surgeon ordered something that Puskar had never had before, a mammography. When the results of that X-ray came Puskar said she felt scared. depressed and defeated, but only for about two weeks.

"By that time, I had talked to some breast cancer survivors, and I started to think, no one can raise your kids and dress the Detroit Race for the Cure them like you can, so you've got to get your head together and fight this thing," she said.

She had a mastectomy in June of 1993, soon after being diagnosed with cancer, From July through December, she underwent a series of chemotherapy treatments, and when it was over, she had her healthy breast removed, just to be safe.

Through it all, she refused to feel sorry for herself, for her sake and her family's. She drove herself to her chemotherapy treatments and continued to teach aerobics classes. "I think the fact that I continued to teach helped me," she said, "because the exercise helped me stay healthy, and the students in my class were just wonderful. They didn't treat me any differently than they did before. So what if I didn't have hair? It didn't matter. I was still their teacher."

Race beckoned

In April 1994, just four months after completing her chemotherapy, Puskar ran in the Race for the Cure at the Detroit Zoo. The annual, 5 kilometer (3,1 mile) race is part of a national series of races that raises money for breast cancer research. "I took along a group from my aerobics class, because I thought it would be a good activity for us to do," she said. "My goal at that point was just to finish the race, and I hoped that my dollar would be the one to help find the cure."

She finished the race in 32 minutes. "But I'm very competitive; I wanted to do better," she said.

So in July of 1994, she drove to Ohio and competed in Toledo's Race for the Cure. She finished the race in 28 minutes and received a special award for coming in second place among the breast cancer survivors who competed that day.

"I didn't even know that they had a special category for breast cancer survivors," Pusker said. "I was just out to beat my previous time. In April 1995, she competed in again. Her son, Jonathan, who was 6 at the time, said she would win first place among the breast cancer survivors and she did, finishing the race in 26 min-

She's been racking up wins ever since. She won the first place award for breast cancer survivors at the Race for the Cure in Toledo in 1995 and 1996, and in Detroit last year. where she had her best time yet, 24 minutes, 52 seconds.

Race goal

The 1997 Detroit Race for the Cure will be held Saturday, April 19 at the Detroit Zoo. Puskar hopes to finish the race in 24 minutes flat this year. But if it takes her longer, and if she doesn't win first place, it doesn't matter. She's not in it for the awards.

"I do it because, every time I finish the race, I get this little extra feeling of, "I'm still alive," she said. "It's hard to describe. But by running in the race, I've proven to myself that this thing (cancer) is not going to beat me. It's not going to overtake me."

Puskar founded a support group for breast cancer survivors, called Women Celebrating Life, in 1994. The group meets Downriver, where Puskar and her husband, John, used to live before moving to Canton last

The group helps women who have been diagnosed with breast cancer in many ways: by introducing them to other breast cancer survivors, and by helping newly diagnosed women purchase wigs, prosthetics, makeovers and anything else that might help them feel better about themselves.

"We'd also like to do a videotape of the families of some breast cancer survivors, to show what they go through," she said. what's going to happen. So make "There are support groups out the most out of the time you do there for families, but a lot of men won't go to them, because they think they wouldn't feel comfortable. If we had a videotape, they could see what other people have gone through and realize that they're not alone."

Other roles

In addition to her work with the support group, Pusker teaches aerobics part-time at Canton's new community center, and is a speaker and breast educator for the Karmanos Cancer Institute.

As a breast educator, she stresses how important it is for women to take control of their bodies and health care.

*Nobody knows your body better than you, not even your doctor," she said. So if you think there is a problem, you should get it checked out. After all, if I hadn't insisted on having the lump in my breast removed, who knows if I would still be here today."

Mammograms

Most health insurance providers won't pay for a woman to get a mammogram before the age of 40, unless she has a higher than normal risk of developing breast cancer, due to her lifestyle and factors in her background.

"But if you think you need a mammogram get one, even if your insurance doesn't pay for it," Puskar said. "You don't hesitate to spend $200 on an outfit, so why not to save your life?"

Since her chemotherapy, Puskar has been cancer free. But the experience has taught her to live each day as if it were her last.

"I don't measure things in terms of age or how many years you have left," she said. "I look at the number of days you have left and nobody knows what that is. And I don't feel that way because the cancer might come back. It's because I could go out to get my mail tomorrow and get hit by a car. You just never know have and don't worry about the little things."

Local students to use Rouge as 'living' lab

Students and teachers from schools through Wayne and Oakland counties will turn the Rouge River into a living science lab on Saturday, April 12.

Elementary, middle and high school students, along with their teachers, parents and school administrators, will be participating in the first step of the annual Rouge Education Project, sponsored by the Friends of the Rouge.

Students will converge on the Rouge at Detroit Country Day Middle School, 22400. Hillview Lane, off Lahser Road one block south of 13 Mile Road in Birmingham, to learn a series of chemical, biological and physical tests they will use in May to monitor the water quality of the Rouge River.

Wayne County schools registered to participate in Saturday's tests included Garden City High School; Fisher Elementary School, Redford Township; Bird Elementary. Plymouth; and Huren Valler Lutheran High School, Westland.

The students will test the water to determine its level of life sustaining oxygen, and check levels of nutrients and other pollution sources in the Rouge. They'll also search for water insects, which can provide clues about water quality. On May 8, students from the 90 schools participating in the Rouge Education Project will go to separate sites throughout the 470-square mile river basin to perform the tests they have learned at the Saturday workshop.

The results of their tests. which they can share with other students both locally and internationally over the Internot, are used to develop an annual overall water quality index for the four branches of the 126-mile Rouge River.

County authority to work with local officials

BY KEN ARRAMCZYK STAPF WRITER

Wayne County commissioners took the first steps last week to work with local communities to clean contaminated sites to establish new or relocated busi-

Commissioners set a public hearing for May 15 to create a countywide Brownfield Redevelopment Authority, which uses tax revenue collected similarly to Tax Increment Finance Authorities.

After that hearing commissioners will be asked to approve a $3 million revolving fund and approve the 11-member board of directors of Wayne County's Economic Development Corporation to serve on the brownfield authority's board of directors.

increases on taxable property values on all millages within that established authority and use the money to clean up contaminated sites. The cleanup fund will be reimbursed through increases in property values from new development, so it acts as a "revolving fund,"

"First of all we want to create an authority for our county to work in concert with local communities," said Tim Johnson, director of Wayne County's marketing and communications division for the Department of Jobs and Economic Development. "Seven communities want to work with us, but a lot of them have opted out on their own."

Two that have decided to set up a separate Brownfield Devel-

The authority will capture opment Authority are Garden City and Westland.

Wayne County expects to work with communities where cleanup sites are located, but the county does not have a list of priority projects yet, Johnson said.

Brownfield authorities can outline projects that involve cleanup, removal, containment, isolation, destruction or treatment of hazardous substances released or threatened to be released into the environment. Work plans also include monitoring, maintenance or other action to minimize or prevent injury to the public stemming from the site's contamination.

The concept is that the tax capture will finance the cleanup. Once the cleanup is completed, planners believe developers or business entrepreneurs will locate at the formerly contaminated site.

The contaminated site must house a hazardous substance that exceeds legal concentrations or other cleanup criteria that has been released, deposited or disposed on the property. Those properties also must be located adjacent to property where development is expected to increase the captured taxable value there.

"(A proposed contaminated site) is property you normally don't get any millage from any. way," said Al Bogdan, Wayne County planning director. "You won't get the millage until you get that investment on the property."

Commission road

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Wayne County commissioners approved a resolution April 3 asking the state Legislature to order a financial and operational audit of the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The resolution is the latest missive fired in the road transportation funding war that has pitted governmental agencies, political parties and elected officials against each other.

The resolution was introduced by Wayne County Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, and approved on a 11-2

Backing Beard's resolution were all the Democrats who were present, including Commission Chair Ricardo Solomon, Vice Chair Pro Tem Edna Bell, Commissioners Chris Cavanagh, Ken Cockrel, George Cushingberry, Susan Hubbard, William O'Neil, Bernard Parker, Michelle Plawecki and Jewel

Opposed were Commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia. and Bruce Patterson, R-Canton. Commissioner Robert Black-

well, D-Detroit, was absent. Beard's resolution states that Michigan receives $42,168 per mile of road, according to information made available by the Michigan Department of Transportation, in comparison to $11,518 for cities and $4,604 per mile of road for counties. Michigan's per capita expenditures on roads rank Michigan 48th in the Wayne County receives 78 cents from Lansing for every dollar it sends to the Michigan Transportation Fund.

Beard's resolution states that the Michigan House of Representatives Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation has identified $100 million for which MDOT cannot account for at least each of the last five years. Beard said the state Auditor General has identified an additional $28 million transferred from the Michigan Transportation Fund between 1994-96 to pubsidize the operations of various state departments.

"We're really just asking the Governor to live up to his responsibility to preserve the public's trust in the same manner as he has asked everyone else to do so." Beard said. "To not do so is the equivalent of condoning mismanagement."

"We're concerned about the possible diversion of funds the $28 million from MDOT - and other state departments The general public needs to know what's going on. Elected officials are concerned because we're not getting our fair share."

Beard believes an audit of MDOT is necessary to preserve the public trust at a time when emotions over this issue are running high and to reciprocate the bipartisan efforts of elected officials from throughout Michigan.

Beard's resolution comes several months after the state auditor general wanted access to county financial records to complete an audit of Wayne County road funding.

State Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, requested state Auditor General Thomas McTavish complete an audit of county road funds for the years of 1993-96 because he believed Canton was not receiving its fair share of funds for roads from Wayne County, Wayne County receives state aid for transportation and contracts projects out for major Bennett was not available for comment this week on Beard's resolution, but Bennett's legislative aide Bill Sullivan said her resolution had "no point" to it. as the state already conducts two performance audits on MDOT.

"The resolution says the state is doing this thing (audit) to us. and we'll do something back at you," Sullivan said.

County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter called the resolution a "partisan tit-for-tat." "This is a payback for the road audit." McCotter said.

The Michigan Congressional delegation has made bipartisan efforts to seek additional federal revenue for roads when the Transportation budget is approved later this year. Last week U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham, R-Michigan, appeared at a Canton luncheon and said he hoped to change Michigan's status as a "donor" state in delivering tax dollars to Washington. Michigan sends $700 million to Washington for roads, but only receives $550 million in return, Abraham said. Abraham said he was working on a "turnback" proposal that would eliminate a federal subsidy of 12 cents from the 18-cent gas tax earmarked for roads and instead allow states to pick up that revenue.

Legislators in Lansing also have proposed a number of ideas to increase revenue without raising the gas tax. Sullivan said House lawmakers may act a recently approved Senate proposal as soon as this week.

Board seeks public input on Wayne State's future

The board of governors of scheduled two public forums to receive comments from students, faculty and staff, alumni and the community about the policy issues, challenges and opportunities the new president will face in the next several years.

The two-hour sessions will be held 3:30-5:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 23, and 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Thursday, April 24, in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center on campus.

Comments may be made orally at the forums or in writing.

The deadline for written remarks or requests to make an oral presentation is Friday.

Sex offenders

Take care in how list is used

s of April 1, residents can walk into their local police departments, including here in Westland, and ask for a list of people in their neighborhoods who are convicted of – or have pleaded guilty to – sex

While some families may be comforted by the ability to find out who their neighbors are and their histories, we urge residents to use caution and sensitivity.

If people do not understand what they are looking at, the information will only create suspicion and hysteria in our neighborhoods.

Residents are urged to use common sense if they obtain the list. The best way to understand this list is to educate yourself on the myriad of charges for which anyone may be arrested. Urinating in public, for example, is considered indecent exposure and a sexual

But in the spectrum of serious crimes, it doesn't much compare with charges of rape or child molestation.

Let's remember that in this country when you have served your prison sentence – the punishment meted out for your crime – you have served your debt to society. When you are released from prison – barring any probational sentences – you are as free as your neighbors.

It's human nature to be concerned when you learn that your neighbor has served time for any crime, let alone a sexual offense.

State Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, said he sponsored the legislation to help people protect their families.

But let's also keep in mind that people who have served their prison sentence are entitled to start their lives over. Many of these people will have families in our local communities. Let us be mindful of how easily these children and families may be hurt by the information provided.

However, there are expert opinions that contend that certain sex offenders, such as pedophiles, cannot be rehabilitated.

If anything, this law should prompt citizens to ask questions about sentencing. If concern remains about the ability of someone released from prison to live in a law-abiding society, there is definitely a problem and the availability of this list won't solve it.

The list that is now available is designed to provide information to help you protect your families. But it can also hurt others.

Police are still doing their jobs. The availability of this list in no way deputizes neighbors to form vigilante groups.

We urge neighbors to use caution, common sense and sensitivity with the list of offenders

About air bags

A fter you buy a new $20,000 automobile to help take a few Little League ballplayers to a ball game, isn't it great to get mail that says, "Warning, Death or Serious Injury can occur — children under 12 can be killed by the air bag in the front seat of this car."

There is no offer of refund, no explanation of why this fiasco happened, no fix to make the car useful. If you can't use the front seat, how many kids can you put in back? More Fed regulations required!

I was once almost suffocated in a car, when a band director tried to carry too many kids coming home from a concert. As a former automotive engineer, I thought dual air bags were great. Like others, I was misled by the government's "sales pitch" which did not give the pros and cons of the systems.

To the driver, air bags are invisible, yet lurk there armed, charged, ready to go off with explosive force at the whim of its self-acting trigger. They can kill or wound a person that isn't positioned correctly.

I think a wise decision would be to employ a normally-on switch that the driver can use to disarm the system if he prefers. If you trust the Feds to do your thinking, never touch the switch. If you prefer to stay informed, and make your own life and death decisions, you have an option. I think it is the right of free choice.

'No' to lottery terminals at tracks his is an historic development in Michigan's horse racing industry which will help bring it successfully into the 21st century and enable it to compete effectively in the increasing competitive environment in which it finds itself."

So said state racing commissioner Nelson Westrin on Jan. 9, 1996, when Gov. John Engler signed a law allowing Michigan's eight horse racing tracks to offer wagering on simulcast programs — that is, races broadcast here from other tracks.

That bill went even further, allowing yearround simulcasting at Michigan tracks to "supplement" live programs. The 1996 law was to provide funds for county fairs, 4-H programs and the horse industry.

Well, the tracks are back for more. Specifically, the race tracks now are interested in a legislative package (House Bills 4409-4411) to allow video lottery terminals by the hundreds in bars and race tracks. Some of the proceeds—rah, rah—would be used on our roads.

Chief beneficiaries would be the area tracks: Ladbroke DRC in Livonia, the only thoroughbred track in the state; Northville Downs and Hazel Park Raceway, two harness race tracks.

The tracks' position is all the more annoying because Ladbroke officials refer to "an expanding entertainment market." Entertainment, your eye. There is no employment for artists, no encouragement for young musicians and ballerinas, no market for stand-up comedians, no soothing of the soul.

They are talking about gambling, where people throw money in a pot, the government takes its share, the operators take their shares, and what's left is distributed on the basis of luck. Not one car, not one pair of shoes, not one book, not one bottle of ginger ale, not one cabbage, not one stack of roofing shingles — no product of economic benefit is produced. Just something loosely called "entertainment."

The horse racing interests argue their industry may go down the tubes in the face of casino gambling. Well, let it. Horse racing, as colorful and exciting as it is, may have outlived its usefulness.

Time was when wagering was friendly game among fans who were genuinely interested in horses and improving the breed. The state's share of the proceeds did indeed advance the interests of agriculture through county fairs, 4-H, better purses for the horses, and so on.

Today, few people use horses for plowing, none use horses to pull their carriages to town on Saturday, and few even ride for pleasure.

Engler, raised on a beef farm, stated the issue fairly bluntly in our 1994 interview with him:

"Horse racing nationally is an industry that's in trouble. We've seen attendance at tracks all across America decline. Demographics have been working against the horse racing industry."

Engler lauded racing commissioner
Westrin, his appointee, for bringing the disparate horse interests together. But he hinted at what we openly suggest: Horse racing is dying, and a proliferation of gambling devices shouldn't be used to save it. The time may be near when we bid Ladbroke DRC a fond adieu

The industry has exaggerated its economic impact, making it sound as if $2 billion in economic activity and 40,000 jobs are at stake. It arrived at that bloated figure in part by counting even the newspaper reporters who cover racing.

In fact, Ladbroke's track eats up a huge hunk of land along Livonia's "golden mile" industrial belt. The land could be redeveloped for industry – you know, real jobs – that would be worth 67 times as much as a grandstand and horse barns, according to the assessor's office.

Northville Downs is located on attractive land just downhill from a charming downtown. Hazel Park Raceway's land is nicely located near freeways and could hold other commercial uses.

It would be nice to see a fine old sport like horse racing survive. But if it takes hundreds of video lottery terminals seducing the gullible to help it, then we are better off letting horse racing die a dignified and natural death, along with hoopskirts and celluloid collars.

Level campaign finance playing field

hy did Ross Perot in 1992 and Steve Forbes in 1996 run for president? One answer is they are among the few people who can afford the rising cost of campaigning.

The president and the Congress spent $1.6 billion on 1996 campaign expenditures. Spending by House and Senate candidates in the general election exceeded $626 million, representing a 60 percent increase from 1990.

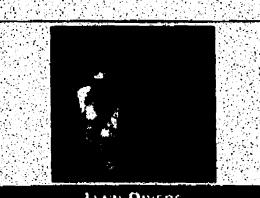

Amazingly, these numbers do not reflect total campaign expenditures since some contributions are unregulated and therefore not disclosed to the public.

How did candidates raise all this money? This is where being a million aire comes in handy. Under rules established by the Federal Election Campaign Act, candidates may spend an unlimited amount of personal money to run for office. For those members of Congress who are not millionaires, my category, campaigns are financed by individuals, groups, political action committees or political parties.

Political campaigns are financed by two types of money, "hard" and "soft." While both types may be raised by individuals or groups, the fundamental issue is whether the contributions are regulated by law. Hard money contributions are subject to limitations and prohibitions established by the campaign act. Importantly, all donations are fully disclosed. By contrast, soft money contributions are unrestricted and often undocumented donations given under the guise of "party building" activities and "getout-the-vote" drives. In essence, soft money funnels contributions to candidates through the back door.

To encourage more competitiveness in elections and restore public confidence in the electoral system, we must control the use of soft money. In the 1976 Supreme Court decision Buckley vs. Valeo, the court ruled that reasonable contribution limits could be justified in the interest of protecting the system from "real or apparent corruption arising from donations to or activity coordinated with candidates."

The Federal Election Campaign Act, a law based on the court's decision, sought to limit the influence of special interests on lawmakers by establishing contribution limits: However, soft money constitutes a loophole in the law which allows special interests to continue to press their influence. In the 1996 election, presidential campaigns and political parties raised an estimated $250 million in soft money, nearly a three-fold increase from 1992. For the first time, the parties spent millions of dollars to finance TV advertisements, largely negative, directly attacking the positions of congressional candidates.

Congress will soon be considering several proposals to reform the way campaigns are financed. Achieving legislative reform will be difficult because Democrats and Republicans do not see eye to eye on this issue.

In general, Democrats would like tough spending limits put in place in conjunction with a system of public financing, allowing federal funds for candidates who adhere to spending limits.

Republicans would like to eliminate the limits on individual contributions and oppose public financing of congressional campaigns. One proposal gaining support in Congress is the bipartisan initiative offered by Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., and Sen. Russell D. Feingold, D-Wis.

This bill would provide incentives for candidates to adhere to voluntary spending limits and place a ban on soft-money contributions

President Bill Clinton, in his State of the Union address, urged the Congress to pass the McCain-Feingold bill by Independence Day.

I strongly believe we need to level the playing field, both for candidates and constituents. From the perspective of congressional candidates, enormous personal wealth should not be a criteria for public service; from the perspective of constituents, ability to communicate with your representative should not be dependent on political contributions.

Without campaign finance reform, the dream of public service will slip beyond the reach and bank accounts of too many ordinary people.

Congresswoman Lynn N. Rivers represents the 13th District, which includes Livonia, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Westland and Garden City.

Court reform unexciting, but it affects lives

fter lamenting the Michigan Supreme Court's inability to decide cases with a majority vote, I now give credit to the justices and the judiciary for undertaking an immense reform.

What? The courts are doing something right? Yes, though they get little reader interest and even less news coverage.

Readers care little about court operations until they get involved in their own divorce, child custody or juvenile case. Then the court becomes the center of their world, and they quickly develop hot opinions on personnel and their efficiency.

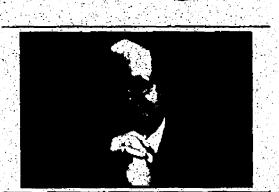

Michigan in the last two years has seen the biggest judicial changes since the 1960s when we junked the rural justice of the peace system. It's almost as big a change to the judiciary as Proposal A was to school finance.

Many good people have advocated "court reform" on its merits, but the story really begins in the growing Wayne, Oakland and Washtenaw suburbs with demands for more judges. Nope, said cost-conscious Gov. John Engler - not until we deploy our existing judicial resources more efficiently. We have 181 circuit judges, 107 probate judges, 260 district judges ... and so on.

Reform is happening.

Last year, the Legislature passed Public Act 388 requiring that family litigation handled by circuit and probate courts be handled in a new "family division" on the principle of "one family, one judge." Deadline for establishing plans: this July 1.

The change in paperwork alone boggles the mind - combining functions of circuit and probate courts, filing papers, telling lawyers where to file and retrieve documents, retraining staff, etc. It's a major step toward combining circuit and probate courts, a system few voters understand any-Way.

But the deployment of resources is even more daunting. The Supreme Court tapped 27 good minds for a Family Court Division Implementation Task Force just to identify the

It reported back Feb. 14, recommending that family division judges be assigned full time. It called for plans to transfer cases from currently assigned judges to family division judges.

■ Meanwhile, Chief Justice Conrad Mallett Jr. is moving ahead with ideas that will make lazy judges as jumpy as cats on a hot tin roof.

He wants 6 percent more in his $200 million budget to "monitor trial" court operations and budgets by adding one accountant and six auditors" to his staff.

By Oct. 1, he wants "a detailed recommendation of the number of circuit, probate and district court judges needed to dispose of the court workload" and "a recommendation for the number of judges assigned to the family division of circuit court based on workload."

Newswise, court reform is not as picturesque as the car that went off of the Mackinac Bridge. But it affects far more lives - perhaps yours, and probably for the better.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional

Pursuing college degree not only path to a career

ear high school seniors: Congratulations! You're in the last stretch. Senior year is just about over, and you're ready to order your caps and gowns for commencement.

You may have discovered already that one of the hardest things you face is trying to fend off various well-meaning folks who keep asking, "What are you going to do after you graduate from high school?" I hope you'll tell 'em you have no idea. I certainly didn't at your age. Moreover, I suspect the real origin of this kind of boringly intrusive question lies in the fact that most adults can't figure out anything else to ask kids about.

Certainly, with Michigan's unemployment numbers - currently below 5 percent - at an alltime low, you won't have much problem finding a job after you leave school, assuming you have mastered the arts of breathing and standing on two legs.

But I suspect that a lot of your friends and family - including especially your parents - are putting a lot of pressure on you to go to college. After all, the presumption goes, it's the route to the high-skill, high-income part of the economy (sort of true), and it's concrete proof that you have at least half a brain (not necessarily so).

Certainly, according to a study released by Michigan Future Inc., a respected local think tank, some people who go to a university and graduate school can expect pretty good incomes. Doctors in the Great Lakes states, for example, can expect median earnings of $99,088, while the median lawyer and judge should earn $64,958. Electrical and electronic engineers should earn $56,583, and so on.

But what your parents, their friends and most of your family won't tell you is that there are plenty of high-skilled, challenging, goodpaying jobs out there that don't require a university degree. According to the Michigan Future study, "there is a path to good-paying work other than earning a four-year college degree. Clearly, the best-paying work is professional, but it is not the exclusive path to goodpaying work."

The study then recited 23 occupations whose median earnings are at least 10 percent above median earnings for full-time, year-around workers, Some examples and their median ernings:

Purchasing agents and buyers: $39,506 Police and detective: $38,301.

Bcience technicians: $35,104.

Tool and die makers: $34,587.

PHILIP POWER

Plumbers: $34,531.

These are non-trivial income numbers, especially when you consider that a four-year residential college degree costs on average around $50,000 these days. As most middle-income families know, this isn't the kind of money you can earn yourself to work your way through college. So just in terms of the economics, staying out of debt and getting a good (non-university degree) job might be a good deal.

Oakland Community College, for example, offers one-year certificates and two-year associates degrees that fit exactly the 80 percent of all new jobs in the year 2000 that require more than a high school diploma but less than a university baccalaureate.

The Big Three expect to replace 129,000 auto workers who will be retiring in the next few years. That's why the Michigan Virtual Automotive College, which is geared toward teaching skills for workers in the automotive industry, will start classes this fall. Former University of Michigan President James Duderstadt, who will head M-VAC, says it "will utilize the most appropriate delivery medium - whether it's satellite TV 'narrowcasts' or CD-ROM on the World Wide Web or something that's still in a testing lab - to get information to students when they need it ... and where they need it."

These are important developments because they strike to an unfortunate trend in our society: to look down on young people who are able and ambitious but who do not want to attend a university.

So, graduates-to-be, congratulations and good luck! Please feel free to clip, save and brandish this column at your parents, family and friends whenever you please.

Twinkling students stars at Bulman omething I saw a couple weeks ago sparkled and shone just like the Hale-Bopp comet in the night sky. It was that visible, that noticeable, that newsworthy. It was really quite extraordinary.

It was an elementary school some miles up the road. The school, built in the late '40s, was tucked in a Redford neighborhood full of neat, regular-sized homes with neat regular-sized yards. And there were tall trees lining the street indicating that this neighborhood, along with the school, had been around for some time.

I'd been invited to this school to read some favorite stories to a classroom of children, part of their National Reading Month celebration. And I must say, the students and the teachers and the principal at Bulman Elementary were like an earth-bound Hale-Bopp - sparkling, shining and shedding light on the future.

From the moment I arrived at 8:30 that Friday morning, I could see this extraordinary "light." Escorted by a courteous young boy to a small room on the left, I noticed a sign hanging in front of the room. The sign simply said "Library." I thought that was pretty neat.

The term "library," it seems, is becoming oldfashioned, dated in this world of ours. In many schools that room with all those books on the shelves is called something else, and that something else usually has the word "media" in it.

Cozier, inviting 'word'

"Library" though, is a much cozier, more inviting sort of word; it even conjures up a smell, a book smell. All libraries have it, that cozy book smell. Anyway, the library was the gathering place for the guests who'd been invited to help celebrate reading and celebrate books that day.

Valorie Williams greeted us as a group and individually as well. She's the "helmsman" of this elementary school ship; she's the principal there and she's very nice. She was so happy to be celebrating books and reading and to be making a general hubbub over it all.

After a bit, the 16 guests, including myself and Lyn Bankes of the Michigan House of Representatives, Bill Bushart, editor of the Redford Connection, Michelle Plawecki, a Wayne County commissioner, Jack Bailey, station manager for WCAR, and Kim Potter, a Redford Township librarian - we all went to the gym.

It was a small gym, even by elementary school standards. There was a little curtained stage at one end and near the stage on one side were choir risers and a piano and on the other were chairs for the guests.

We sat down and then the children, kindergarten through sixth grade, began filing in and taking their seats on the floor. There was something almost palpable in the air: excitement, spirit, electricity, enthusiasm, all rolled into one. And principal Williams was at the helm. She was as much a generator of this "something in the air" as anyone else.

Marvelous rapport

Once everyone was seated, she spoke. Librarian Potter, seated next to me, whispered some observations she'd made. This principal, she couldn't help noticing, had such a marvelous rapport with her students, and she'd seen many other schools and principals over the years. But this principal made an impression on her. Well, she made an impression on me, too. A sparkling, joyful impression!

After some brief remarks by principal Williams, the children all stood to say the Pledge of Allegiance. Now, let me tell you, these children did not mumble, did not fool around, shuffle feet, they did not gaze about, no. With hands on their hearts, eyes on the flag, they, every one of them, said the pledge with conviction and with spirit. And such clarity of voice, it almost sounded like a cheer. A cheer for being American.

Tears sprang to my eyes. All these young children feeling proud enough and respectful enough and spirited enough to let those words ring out like they did. Good for them! Good for their teachers who taught them well! Good for the principal at the helm!

With the pledge said, the children, except the second-graders, sat down on the choir risers. They'd prepared a song for this occasion. This colebration of reading. Their music teacher, Sydnie Lyn Benson, seated herself at the piano and accompanied the young singers. Not only did Sydnie play the piano, but she wrote the words to the song:

The books on my shelves are exciting. A place

Business cleans up by cleaning others

A floor scrubber in the corner of his office is a reminder of his early days in the cleaning business, when the tools of the trade fit in the trunk of his car. Now his oneman show has 500 employees and needs 7,500 square feet of space.

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

When Stephen Ray bought his first piece of cleaning equipment in 1975, a $5 used vacuum cleaner from a garage sale, he had no idea that was just the start of his multimillion dollar business.

With no spare change for business cards, he cut three-by-five cards in half and used different colors of ink to make his office cleaning business stand out in the minds of his clients.

"I didn't have any money," Ray recalled. "I was right out of high school and I started by going doorto-door to little dry cleaning shops and little places."

Ray started cleaning offices while he was still in high school, working for Rich Sullivan, who still maintains an office cleaning business in Plymouth.

After graduating from Plymouth Salem High School in 1973, the pair would work a 24-hour weekend, so Ray would have time to pursue some college studies.

"We'd start at 6 in the morning on Saturday and we'd get done at 6 in the morning on Sunday," Ray said. "I was a grunt. I just cleaned toilets and scrubbed floors and vacuumed."

Branching out

When he decided he wanted to branch out on his own, Ray said Sullivan "was gracious enough to help me out instead of considering me a competitor." It was a kindness that Ray would repeat several times over as his own business grew.

His very first account was the One Hour Martinizing store on Ford Road in Canton. He would go in there every two weeks and strip and wax the floors.

At that time, all of his business equipment would fit into the back of his little Pinto station wagon. With very little capital to work with, Ray became accomplished at creative bargaining. He needed to add a floor scrubber to his business equipment, but it was too cost-prohibitive until he spotted one at a little automotive shop in Plymouth.

"I walked into the office and it was sitting in the back, all dusty," Ray said. "I made the guy a deal that I would clean his office for four today." He said, Take it now and clean for One-man operation months in trade for that machine. four months and after that, you can For the first 12 years his business start billing me.' "

One of a kind: Steve Ray and his wife, Janet, paid $1,000 to buy back the floor polisher that he originally acquired by cleaning an office for four months during the early days of Distinctive Maintenance Inc.. The multi-million dollar business now uses newer, more sophisticated equipment..

That same floor scrubber, later sold and then repurchased for $1,000, is now a permanent fixture in Ray's office.

Ray married his wife, Janet, a 1975 Plymouth Salem graduate, in 1976. He was grossing about $700 a month by that time and 100-120hour work weeks were not unusual.

In 1982, the Ray family, which by then included 4 1/2-year-old Cindy and 1 1/2-year-old Jesse, went to Europe for a year. This time, Ray made a deal with his partner, Tom Kelly, before leaving.

"If he took care of the business while I was gone," said Ray, "I would pay him half of all the receipts."

One year and 8,000 touring miles later, the Rays returned to find that Ray's partner had done a good job with the business.

"I kept my end of the bargain," said Ray, "I gave him half of the business, half of my accounts, half of my equipment. He started his own company and still is in business was pretty much a one-man show. Ray's office was his dining room table. He would clean all night and during the day meet with clients and do paperwork at his dining room table.

In 1986, he purchased a van to carry his equipment and went "bigtime." The next year was a significant turning point for the business. Ray formed a corporation and expanded the business.

"I saw the kids were going to want to go to college, and a one-man operation just couldn't feed the system anymore," Ray said.

So Ray's company became Distinctive Maintenance Inc. in January 1987. He hired a few friends and had two or three crews going out in the evening. The addition of a computer that year was one of the most significant changes and had a tremendous impact on his ability to expand, Ray said.

The computer was a hand-medown gift from his brother-in-law, Bill Reynolds. The computer sat idle on Ray's desk for three months because, he confessed, he was afraid to use it. Reynolds made trips from Ohio on the weekends to help his brother-in-law become computer-

"I owe him a great debt of gratitude," said Ray, who now utilizes state-of-the-art computers at DMI.

As DMI continued to expand, Ray "realized I couldn't keep doing these little jobs once or twice a week," so he restructured everything in 1988-89. He started going after the bigger buildings that needed cleaning fivesix nights a week and dropping off the smaller ones.

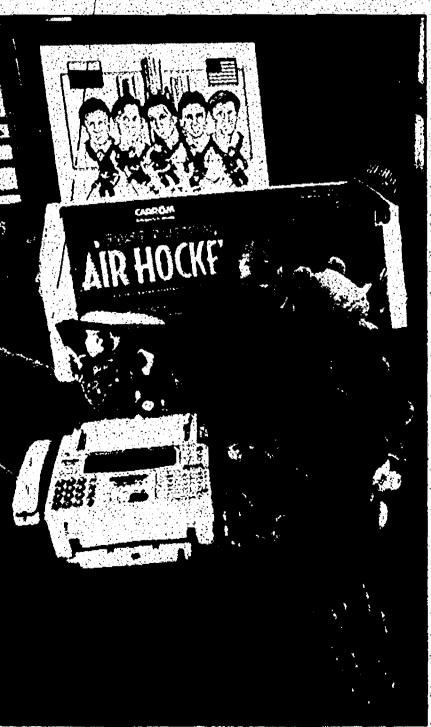

That necessitated hiring more people, and "then we had to change the whole system," said Ray. In 1990, he used his creative bargaining once again and made a deal with the owner of a warehouse in Plymouth. Ray offered to clean his building for free, if he would let them have 1,000 square feet of space in the back.

"We didn't have money for partitions so we bought plywood and we painted it white and I stood them up and wired them to the ceiling so they wouldn't fall over," Ray recalled.

Ray admits that his wife Janet,

New Morning goes high-tech for auction

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

The items up for bid at the 21st annual benefit auction for New Morning School in Plymouth have practically made patrons salivate.

"We have a day where guys and gals can go to learn how to be a fighter pilot; they actually fly fighter planes - not flight simulators said Marti Chamberlain of Plymouth, the chairwoman of this year's event. "We talked about this at a meeting and the guys in the audience were panti-

The auction takes place from 5. p.m. to midnight Saturday, April 19, at Laurel Manor, 39000 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia. The $55 tickets include admission to the auction, hors d'oeuvres, dinner, an open bar and a late-night pizza snack, Complimentary photos of guests will be taken.

Change of scenery: In infancy, DMI's offices were Steve Ray's dining room table. Now he has an office and computer to keep track of business. The original floor polisher adds to the office decor, but doesn't generally serve as his coat rack.

who's president of the company, has always been a tremendous support and partner. They recently celebrated their 20th anniversary.

"She is great," Ray said. Janet comes up with the majority of the good ideas and I implement them. She's the thinker and comes up with the good ideas. I'm the entrepreneur and make them happen." Janet has home-schooled their four children - Cindy, 19, Jesse, 16, Charlotte, 10, and Emily, 5 since 1980. Cindy and Jesse now attend Washtenaw Community College and maintain 4.0 grade point averages. They also work at DMI and have done everything from office work to cleaning buildings in the evening. For the past three years, Cindy has handled all the purchasing, inventory and receivables.

"Someday, when they take over this company, nobody will say they were given it on a silver spoon," Ray said. "They earned every penny of it."

A growing business Since 1990, DMI has moved two more times, including its current location at 34400 Capitol in Livonia, occupying 7,500 square feet of space. The oneman operation has grown to 500 permanent employees with 15 new employees hired each week for full- and part-time positions.

DMI is now one of the largest building service companies in Michigan, cleaning and maintaining nearly five million square fee of commercial building space for clients in the western suburbs. Last year, it did $5 million in business, and Ray estimates that in the next few years, the company will do $10-15 million dollars worth of business a year.

And in the next few months, Ray plans to start a subsidiary of his company called Building Services. He hopes to be able to offer more services, among them parking lot sweeping, ceiling cleaning, painting and construction cleanups.

Part of DMI's phenomenal growth must be attributed to Ray's professional image and to the quality of his employees who undergo a careful screening before they are hired.

Ray also confessed that he has learned how to hire "smart people" and how to delegate.

"We have an excellent Human Resource Department," said Ray. "I've always considered a good operations manager or a good human resource manager not as an expense, but as an investment.

Joan Morrison has been the human resource manager at DMI for the past three years. Birthday cards, yearly recognition, cookies and a Cedar Pointtrip during Employee Appreciation Week are just some of the special touches she oversees.

"The employees are the most valuable asset," said Morrison.

"The success of this company depends on the quality of people that we are able to hire and to retain.

In order to maintain a professional quality in his business, Ray, who serves as general manager at DMI, earned a certified building service executive designation. With eight other service contractors, he helped co-found Affiliated Building Service Contractors in Michigan. He has served on the board and as acting communications chairman of since 1993.

"We wanted to improve the image of our industry," said Ray. "We wanted to work together to influence Lansing, which we've done. We also wanted to work together to improve relations with our customers. Instead of everybody fighting each other, we work together."

Ray has delighted in watching his company grow. He still personally writes a monthly newsletter for his employees and clients providing lots of recognition and kudos for both. The days of his 100-plus-hour work weeks are a thing of the past.

But he has no problem filling his spare time. Faith and family are priorities in Ray's life. Besides conducting a bimonthly Bible study in Ann Arbor, Ray has written his first book, a story of his family's religious conversion, "Crossing the Tiber" (Ignatius Press), and is working on a second book, due out in 1998. He also is busy producing Bible study notes.

When asked about the reason or the phenomenal success of DMI, Ray sums it up with one sentence: "I think the bottom line is that when I put the Kingdom of God first that He's blessed everything else that to the University of Michigan-Ohio State University game and tickets to see the Michigan State University football team, the Detroit Lions, Tigers and Red Wings are up for grabs.

Fitness and leisure lovers can bid for a variety of items including a five-person paddle boat, a trampoline, a Healthrider and memberships to the YMCA, Med Health and Polo Fields.

Once again, trips will be available to the highest bidder. Patrons can possibly stay at a five-star time share condo anywhere in the world, a condo in Silver Creek, Colo., or a condo in Fort Myers, Fla., or Boyne City. Higgins Lake, Washington, D.C., and upstate New York getaways are up for grabs, as well as a rounds of golf and an overnight stay at Sugar Loaf resort.

Returning this year is the "Deal for Wheels" check. The highest bidder of the $6,000 check can use the money as a down payment for a vehicle at Dick Scott Dodge, Blackwell Ford, Jaguar of Plymouth, Saturn, Hines Park Lincoln Mercury or Bob Jeannotte Pontiac, GMC and Buick.

A two-year, 24,000-mile lease for a fully loaded Mercury Mountaineer from Hines Park Lincoln Mercury will be raffled off. Only 250 tickets priced at $100 will be sold. Winners, subject to Ford Motor Credit approval, will be responsible for insurance and licensing. If less than 150 tickets are sold, the prize will be 50 percent of the gross ticket revenue with a $500 minimum prize.

"The raffle is new this year ... One in 250 are pretty good odds." Chamberlain said.

Television fans will be vying for autographs of Brian Austin Green, who plays David on "Beverly Hills 90210," and the cast of "Frasier," "Clueless" and "Mad About You."

Chamberlain said that within the last couple years, the auction has earned a reputation as a quality event.

"It seems as if the reputation is building. In the past it's pretty much been families (of children enrolled at New Morning School), and friends of families, Chamberlain said.

Co-chairwoman Ellen Arble of Plymouth added, "Now it's peo- A great adventure, worlds full of ple outside of the school who dreams. Places I've never seen. "Somebody's going to get a want information on the event."

Genitti's, comedians team up to help Arbor Center

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER

They say laughter is the best medicine and that's just what a group of local comedians will be serving up as part of special benefit at Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall in Northville Sunday, April 13.

The combination dinner and evening of laughter, billed as "Laughing on the Outside," will benefit Arbor Center, which provides bereavement services for children, teens and adults. The center opened its doors at 200 N. Center St., Northville, March 31,

The evening has been organized by Arbor Hospice's Starting Over (under age 45) and B'Tweeners (over age 45) grief support groups. It features two dinner sentings at 5:30 and 6:45 p.m. and two comedy shows at 7 and 8:30 p.m. in the adjacent historic theater.

"The concept for the show was developed while on a Starting Over retreat," said Cathy Clough, director of adult bereavement services who started the group for young widows and widowers. "They were talking about how they missed

Clough coordinates the adult services while Sally Dunning is director of children's services.

The center's opening "is kind of a dream come true," according to Clough. It is a place people can call for information about grief support groups and individual counseling.

Adult services are offered free of charge, while scholarships are available for children's individual counseling, provided by certified social workers.

"It's not just a drop-in center, it's a resource center," she explained. "It's a place where professionals can call. We'll be available to go schools to talk to children and offer training for people who want to start support groups. If you have a question, we can find the answers." Staffing includes specialists dealing with grief issues, social workers and child life specialists as well as a cadre of volunteers. Volunteers are an important part of the Arbor Center outreach, Initially, 19 people were trained to work in the center, and a second training session has been schedule for Saturday, April 11.

Among participants in the first group were Denise Luckow, Nancy Stoner, John Bros, Charli Johnston, Wilma Sedor and Gloria Mackay, all of Livonia, and Ada Calleja, Marge Mandarachia and Pat Eddy, all of Plymouth.

"Some day we hope to have our own building," said Glough. "We need a room for painting and a room to play in. It's our dream and the comedy showcase is a step toward it."

The center is open 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information, call (810) 348-4980 or (810) 349-5712.

Gender is conference focus

The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council will present "Voice and Choice," a conference on gender equity for educators and youth leaders Saturday, April 19, at Weber's Inn, Ann Arbor.

The conference will present information on the impact of gender equity issues on girls' learning and development. It will start with registration and a continental breakfast at 8:45 a.m. and end at 3:15 p.m.

The keynote address will be 9:30-11:30 a.m. and will feature David Sadker and Phyllis Lerner. They will talk about "Gender Communication Gap: From the Classroom to the Board Room."

Sadker, a professor at American University, co-wrote "Failing in Fairness: How Our Schools Treat Girls" with his late wife Myra Sadker. He was extensively involved with a national survey conducted by the American Association of University Women which found that girls' self-esteem drops during preadolescence.

Lerner is director of inter-

Three additional presenters will conduct break-out discussion sessions 1:15-2:15 p.m. They are Angela Laycock, director of Workplace teaming for Washtenaw Community College, Cinda-Sue Davis, director of the University of Michigan Women in Science and Engineering Program, and psychologist Sonya

Gunnings-Moton. The break-out sessions will cover careers, physical education and sports, body image and the role of the media, group strategies for promoting equity, and science, math and technology

STATE PROTO BY TON HAWLEY

Magic's game brought out nation's elite

You would think most NBA general managers had something better to do on Sunday afternoon. But there they were, coming in droves to the baggage area of Northwest Airlines at Metro Air-

I was there to pick up family members back from Florida.

Meanwhile, the NBA GMs and scouts were headed to the Palace of Auburn Hills, my eventual destination as well, to watch the nation's top players at Magic Johnson's Roundball

First it was Mike Dunleavy of the Bucks, then it was Wayne Embry of the Cavaliers, and soon Jerry Krause of the Bulls walked in.

Connecticut head coach Jim Calhoun also walked through. Twenty-five years ago Moses Malone was a novelty, a freak of nature. He was a high school player from Petersburg,

Va. who eventually proved he was physically and mentally ready to bypass college and go straight

Back then it was big news, but now it's the '90s and it's becoming common place. It's no

Kevin Garnett started the trend again, followed by Kobe Bryant, and now it's Tracy McGrady's turn.

I joked with Dunleavy as he was picking up his bags: "When are you guys going to start scouting junior high players?" He got a chuckle, but that may not be so far fetched as we enter the next century. South American and Europeon soccer clubs begin developing talent in their pre-teens, and Major League baseball teams give $1 million bonuses to high prep draft picks. Cava scout Phil Hubbard was overheard in the press room saying: *Other sports do it. what's the difference?" And Dick Vitale may have summed it up best when he said: "How can you blame anybody for getting on the job training, and in the process, get paid millions?" It's just like famous line in the movie Jerry McGuire: "Just show me the money!"

But these weren't ordinary high school basketball players, these were the cream of the crop.

College coaches were also in abundance because several of Magic's Roundball participants have not committed. Sitting a few rows up was Gary Williams

(Maryland), Tubby Smith (Georgia), Tom Izzo (Michigan State), Bill Banyo (UNLV) and Clem Haskins (Minnesota). Assistants from Iowa and Arizona were also on hand to make pitches for Ironically, one Magic Roundballer, 6-foot-9 Lamar Odom of Ozone Park, N.Y., announced before the game that he was going the conventional route. UNLY instead of the riches of the NBA.

But really, what's the difference? UNLV, Kentucky or the NBA?

They seem to be very professional organizations with lots of money.

This game enabled our own Lorenzo Guess of Wayne Memorial a chance to prove he belonged among the best in the country.

It also gave Guess a chance to play with future Michigan State teammate Chartie Bell of Flint Southwestern Academy. The two are also summer teammates on the Michigan Mustange, an AAU club spousered by Adides.
And the $-3 Queen, like his 1994 Magic Round-paller predecessor Guy Rucker of Westland John Glean, did little to dispell they can play big-time

Franklin captures city crown

Franklin unseated host Stevenson (1:38.0). as Livonia Public Schools boys track champion on Tuesday,

The Patriots fought off cold, blustery and snowy conditions to score a second with 56 and Churchill was a close third with 51.

the catalyst and top point producer the 100 with a time of 11.5. for Franklin winning three events.

Terek, who was coming off a meet record pole vault of 15 feet, 8 inches at Saturday's Spartan Relays at Michigan State University's Jenison Fieldhouse, won the long jump, 19-12, 100-meter dash (11.4) and pole vault (12-0).

Other Franklin firsts were recorded by Matt Lawson, shot put (47-6); Jay Myrand, discus (130-8); Dan Colip, high jump (6-0); and Jim Skaggs, 200 (25.4).

"Obviously Terek stood out." Franklin coach Dale Lee said. "We did well in the field events and we've filled some gaping holes we had in the distance events last year."

Junior Rob Block paced Stevenson with firsts in the 1,600 (4:36.0) and 3,200 (10:34.0) runs, Matt Freeborn added a first in the 400 (56.5).

The Spartans won three of four relay events, including the 400 when Franklin was disqualified for an illegal baton exchange.

Tim Lamb, Steve Hicks, Eric Kusner and Mike Lenardon combined for a time of 49.13 in the 400 relay, while the quartet of Ryan Tobin, Hicks, Lenardon and Freeborn added a first in the 800 relay Sand storm: Churchill's Pete Styles lands softly into the long jump pit.

Block, Freeborn, Scott Kwiatkowaki and Brad Carroll took the 3,200 relay (no time available).

Churchill was led by sophomore team-high 68 points. Stevenson was Ryan Kearney, who swept the 110and 300-meter hurdles with times of 15.2 and 42.3, respectively. He also Senior Paul Terek once again was finished a close second to Terek in > Nathan Jerome added a first in the 800 run (2:17.2), and teamed up with Brazilian exchange student Daros DaSilva, Eric Schwab and Matt Weber to win the 1,600 relay (no time available).

But it was Franklin's day as the Patriots wrapped up the meet after the pole vault results were tabulat-

"It was a pretty competitive meet despite the conditions," Churchill second-year coach Rick Austin said. "Franklin displayed a very balanced attack."

Spartans offset Wensing

Livonia Franklin junior Danielle Wensing captured four individual events Tuesday, but visiting Livonia Stevenson came away with a 96 1/2-31% girls dual meet track victory.

Wensing won three sprint races the 100-meter dash (13.6), 200 (28.8) and 400 (1:04.7). She also captured the shot put with a toss of 34-61/2 to account for 20 team points.

On Saturday, Wensing was second in the Spartans Relays with a toss of 38-2, just six inches shy of first

"She's worked very hard in the offseason," Franklin coach Rick Lee said. "It's hard to run all three sprint events at the time of year, and win the shot put, too."

Stevenson won the 11 other events led by Christie Tzilos, who figured in four firsts.

Tzilos swept the 100- and 300meter hurdles in 17.3 and 50.8, respectively. She also teamed up with Nicole Dettloff, Katie Mitchell and Katie Sherron to win the 800 relay (1:59.1). The foursome of Tzilos, Sherron, Kelly McNeilance and Cassie Ehlendt also added a first in the 1,600 relay (4:48.0).

Kelly Travis, a junior, won the 1,600 (5:35.0) and 3,200 (12:06.0)

Other Stevenson first-place finishers included Emily Yambasky, discus (95-7); Jennifer Boyer, high jump (4-5); and McNeilance, 800

Kim McNeilance, Beth Peterson, Katie Gardner and Danielle Harris took the 3,200 relay in 11:37.0, while the foursome of Angela Alfonsi, Kelly Moryc, Carolyn Suveg and Boyer won the 400 relay (58.9).

Blazers shut out Foley in opener

When is 13 a lucky number? Any time Cathy Hermann strikes out 13 batters.

The Livonia Ladywood senior hurler fanned 13/would-be batters man third baseman Kate King had a pair Heights Bishop Foley to one hit in leading the Blazers to a 6-0 girls softball victory in their mutual season opener.

The second game of the scheduled softball double-header was called because of snow and a wind-chill that neared invisibility.

Hermann walked one batter in her seven innings of work and got support from Danielle Raub, whose lone hit was a solo home run. Jessica Roman, Melanie Grewe, Annie Bolognino and Margaret Day had one hit apiece while Grewe had an Ladywood had nine stolen bases in the game.

.FRANKLIN 7, THURSTON 3: Junior Lori Jendrusik struck out 12 batters in five innings Typeday and Livonia Franklin, with the help of hand-warmers, won in a seeson starting game for both teams.

Jendrusik traiked three on her home field and the Patriots biltzed Thurston for sk runs in the first before they, well, ecoled off in the near-freezing weather.

Problemen first papernen Tora Morrill west, 2-for 2 frith an R21, Jestie Ziem mers Helly Keye and Junior left fielder had a two-righ elingie in the Sirst and Serah Hollmeler each collected two hits. Many Sepistori had a hit. Hollmeler stee drove in two runs.

Outlook appears bright for upcoming campaign

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

Like an uphill putt that nestles softly into the cup, girls high school golf in Livonia is doing very well.

Livonia Stevenson, Churchill, Franklin and Ladywood all have the potential to be better than they were a year ago.

The area's top young woman player could well be Livonia Stevenson's Kelly Kristy, a fouryear starter for Coach John Wagner. She is college material and will be tough to beat in any match.

Stevenson was unbeaten last year, winning the Western Lakes Activities Association title, taking its regional and just missing a top-ten finish in the state meet.

"Our golfers are freezing," Wagner said. "We have had a chance to get on a course twice this year, and Monday was one of them. It was brutally cold.

"We're just praying for decent weather so the kids could have a fun, competitive season. We've been given a swat in the face so far, but hopefully that will turn around."

Four-year starter Jenny McLaughlin leads Livonia Churchill, which went 7-6 a year

"We expect a pretty decent year," Chargers' coach Sharon Laskowski said. "Our girls are experienced, they did well last year, and they should do better this year.

"Some teams are really loaded. We should be pretty good next

Things are looking up at Livonia Franklin. But then, when you don't win a match the previous season, things have to look

The Patriots have a new coach. Well, not really a new coach, just a new person at the helm of the girls golf team.

Larry Jackson, boys varsity basketball coach for some 20 seasons, is taking over instructing the girls of Franklin on the finer points of golf.

"I wouldn't say anyone twisted my arm," Jackson said. "I went willingly. You like new challenges.

"This is something in the back of my mind I'd always been toying with. The opportunity came up when Diane Burk became. assistant principal. She had to give the (golf coaching) job up."

Jackson has three key golfers coming back - Beth Parnell, Karen Hollenbeck and Pam Wishard. He'll have plenty of young talent to back them up.

Phil Heyer at Ladywood may have a tough time matching last. season's 8-3 record. Then again,

"We lost two players," Heyer said, but they happen to be my No. 1 and No. 2 - Laura Kowalski, who is now playing at Florida State, and Elize Pratt."

But four year veteran Jackie Correck returns to lead three sophomores who lettered as freehmen last season.

"We finished second in the Catholic League last year behind (Farmington Hills) Mercy, Heyer said, And I'm sure Mercy is going to be strong again. They are every year.

"They'll be our main competition again. I believe we play them next week. So we'll find out where we're at as far as our league goes."

Livonia Ladywood

The three freshmen who lettered last year were Gretchen Siebert, Katy Zimmerman and Becca Andersen. Also on the team are talented senior twins Amy and Laurie Roemer.

"The three sophomores, abilitywise, made some big strides from last year to this year," fifthyear man Heyer said. "With the other girls, at least balancewise, we could be even better than we were last year. We're going to be awfully young, but...

The Blazers open Tuesday at Whispering Willows against Bloomfield Hills Marian.

Livonia Churchill

Laskowski has to replace two key golfers from last season, Becky Gaida and Emily Bischoff. In addition to Jenny McLaughlin, she has second-year member Amber Mikkela, also a senior, plus a pair of returning juniors in Lauren Boucher and Megan Vollick.

Churchill also has a Russian exchange student, Ann Alavidze,

"She has no experience," Laskowski said, but she wanted to come out. She said her dad watches golf on TV but doesn't play golf.

The father in the home where Alavidze is staving golfs, howev-

Sophomores Stacey Loucks and Michelle Rubarth are also on the team along with freshmen Ashley Johnson, Jenny Lusa, Erin Martell, Julie McLaughlin (Jenny's sister), Sheila Snodgrass and Laura Turner.

A couple of the girls go to golf camp and that helps an awful lot," said Laskowski, in her fourth season at Churchill after coaching at Ladywood for seven seasons. Things are looking pretty bright.

Churchill opens. April 16 against WLAA newcomer Farmington, which doesn't have a home course, at Fox Creek.

Livonia Franklin

Jackson lost just one senior, Monica Rowley, offsets that with the return of a two-letter winner who didn't play her junior year, Kristan Koleczko.

Franklin opens April 14 at Dearborn.

The Patriots have two talented freshmen in Katie Beasley and Sabine Barrows.

Those two have some good futures ahead of them," Jackson said. "They're pretty good as freshmen."

He also has three other freshmen - Renee Haddad, Sarah Markcum and Devina Sneats sophomore Nicole plus Loughran.

*Our future is fairly bright," Jackson said. *Beasley and Barrows are easily going to be in the top six of the team and could end up possibly being in the top four players on the team.

"Beth Parnell, our best player the last couple of years, is back and going to be the mainstay of our team. Karen will back her up, then hopefully Kristen and Pam will be 3-4 with the freshmen being 5-6 — but they're very capable of moving up."

Livonia Stevenson

Wagner's squad opened Wednesday against Farmington, a combo team of Harrison, Farmington and North Farmington students.

Kristy will be captain and leader of Stevenson's team along with Lisa Lapenta and Julie Kosior, a third-year golfer.

Others includ seniors Mandy Carlson, Andrea D'Alessandro, Kristen Leaga and Jill LeBlanc plus juniors Carrie Jarvis and Audrey Lefler.

Wagner has two sophomore golfers. Mara Mazzoni and Melissa Williamson, in addition to freshmen Teresa Layman, Larua Haddock, Andrea Greco, Carli Heppner and Jessica Makowski.

We lost our No. 2 and 4 from last years squad, Andrea Khory and Kristin Bartholomew," Wagner said. "We're going to miss them greatly but we're going to have girls coming up that have worked hard over the summer.

"We could be as close to competitive as we were last year. Only time will tell. But they certainly have the potential to do it.

"We certainly are looking forward to a good league season. But we don't know a great deal about the competition. And with Farmington being brand new this year, that's a question

He came up with 10 points (on five of 12 shooting), along with a team-high seven rebounds and four steals. He also had three assists in 20 minutes.

It was a typical Guess outing.

In a game normally dominated by spectacular dunks and dazzling offensive plays, Guess was clearly the defensive standout.

"I was impressed with every asset of his game," said Louis Reynaud of DeLaSalle High of Concord, Calif., co-coach of the victorious West All-Stars. "He's strong defensively because he has quick reflexes. He's very aggressive and that's half of playing good defense. Technically he's good and he shows a lot of pride."

Guess did not have a turnover as he helped orchestrate a convincing 124-106 West victory over the East before an ESPN-2 national TV audience and 14,163 Palace

"It was really a fun, competitive game," Guess said. "It was a lot of fun to play with bigtime hoopers."

McGrady, a smooth 6-8 forward from Auburndale, Fla. who played for national power Mount Zion Academy in Durham, N.C., had to impress NBA scouts with multi-talented athletic skills.

McGrady, who was playing his last amateur game, finished with 13 points on six of seven shooting. He also wooed the crowd afterwards with his efforts in the slam dunk con-

But so did 6-10 Melvin Ely of Harvey, Ill., who is going to be hooked up with Tark the Shark at Fresno State. He was the East MVP with a gamehigh 24 points (on 11 of 13 shooting).

And the East MVP was 6-7 Ricky Davis of Davenport, Ia., who will be teamed up with the rapidly-improving 6-10 Rucker next season at Iowa.

Davis, who showed an consistent outside shot, finished with a game-high 29 points on 13 of 16 from the field.

Nobody looked out of place in this game, not even lastminute replacement Greg Grave of Southfield-Lathrup. an alternate who shook off a sluggish start to finish with 10 points.

"Everybody here can play, that's for sure," said Guess, who will head June 15 to MSU to begin summer school class-

Guess had gone head-to-head against many of these players in national AAU tourneys during the summers, so he wasn't intimidated or awed by the surroundings.

It's just hard to believe these guys were high school players because they're beginning to look more and more like the

But the game is more than dunks and fancy plays, Magic Johnson warned.

It's more about fundamentals, something Guess may have a leg up on his future competition.

Bassn' Gals fare well in Texas tournament

PARKER

With the recent cold spell which blew through southeastern Michigan earlier this week open water fishing prob-ably isn't embedded in everyone's mind just yet. The success of a few area bass pro's may provide the spark you need to get into the open water mode.

Canton Bass'n Gals Linda Benand nett: Mary Ashteneau recently competed in the National Bass'n Gals Texas Invitational held on Sam Rayburn Reservoir. Although rain, cold and high winds dampened the success rates, the two Michigan anglers fared well in the 100-woman field.

Bennett weighed nine keepers in the two-day event for a total weight of 19 pounds, 24 ounces. She finished 35th and earned 66 points in the race to qualify for the Bassn' Gals Classic Star, the women's equivalent to the BASSMAS-TER Classic.

Ashteneau caught eight keepers which totaled 16 pounds. She finished 55th in the standings and earned 46 points toward qualifying for the Classic.

• Chuck Economou found the right pattern recently in the BASSMASTER Georgia Top 100 tournament on Lake Sinclair in Milledgeville, Georgia.

The Lake Orion angler, a regular on the BASSMASTER national tournament trail, finished 11th overall in the 112man field with a three-day limit catch of 15 fish which totaled 26 pounds, 10 ounces.

Economou earned $6,000 and 90 points in the race for the BASSMASTER Top 100 Tour Angler of the Year. He is currently 20th overall in the Angler of the Year competition with 308 points. Davy Hite leads the division with 427 points. BASSMASTER Classic champion David Fritts is second with 403, Rick Clune is third with 401, Denny Brauer is fourth with 389 and Michigan's Kevin VanDam is fifth with 395. Economou leads such noted anglers as Jim Bitter, Gary Klein, Roland Martin and Guido Hibdon.

Campground hosts

If you get a kick out of camping and enjoy helping others the Michigan Depart-ment of Natural Resources has a deal for you.

Free camping is available for anyone who volunteers as a campground host at a Michigan State Park or State Forest. The program allows individuals to camp for free in exchange for providing assistance in the campground. Duties include greeting campers and directing them to their sites, explaining camping fees, light maintenance, answering questions about the park or forest, arranging activities, and pro-viding other services depend-ing on the hosts talents and interests. Campground hosts can be individuals or teams. Retired couples, teachers and students, as well as families have preformed the duties of a campground host in the past.

Requirements for being a campground host are: you must be at least 18 years of age; must attend a training session May 14-16; must serve for at least four weeks; must provide your own camping equipment and personal items; must be available as a host for at least five days a week (approximately 30 hours) including weekends and holidays Anyone interested in volunteering as a campground host should call Monica Terrell at (517) 373-9483 for more infor-

Each year many local businesses, chambers of commerce, and fishing clubs sponsor "how-to" clinics. The DNR is looking for first-time and returning sponsors to again sponsor a clinic on Free Fishing Weekend.

Free Fishing Weekend has become a tradition in Michigan over the years - its a great opportunity to take time out and enjoy the great outdoor experience that fishing has to offer with family and friends," said John Robertson, DNR Fisheries Division chief. "Fishing holds a special place in Michigan's history and heritage as well. By celebrating the fishing tradition in Michigan during this special weekend, we can pass on the principles of stewardship of our rich aquatic resources to a new generation of anglers."

Michigan has a vast array of fishing opportunities with over 3,000 miles Great Lakes shoreline, over 11,000 lakes, and some 36,350 miles of rivers and streams including 12,500 miles of trout waters.

If you or your organization is interested in sponsoring a clinic call the DNR Fisheries Division at (517) 373-1280.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged, Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Boston paces Zebras to win

It was icy cold Tuesday afternoon, but Wayne Memorial's Clark Boston provided some warm moments as the Zebras earned a 8-3 baseball victory at Taylor Kennedy.

Boston tossed seven strong innings, throwing 115 pitches as Wayne improved to 2-1 overall. He struck out eight, walked four and allowed just one earned run on six hits.

"Considering the elements, Clark did a good job," Wayne coach Jim Chronowski said.

Boston also had a triple, a pair of singles and knocked in two runs.

Wayne mounted a 13-hit attack as Charlie Leverenz enjoyed a big day going 4-for-4 with two runs scored.

John Clendenning belted a two-run homer in

Rally yields Crusaders 5-4 victory

In six of the previous seven games, the pitching for Madonna University's baseball team had been solid. Which is why five of those games had ended in victo-

So perhaps a letdown was to be expected in the second game of Sunday's double-header against visiting Siena Heights College.

But after Sunday's dramatic finish in the first game, in which the Fighting Crusaders battled back to edge Siena Heights 5-4 on the strength of Aaron Shrewsbury's bat, a better sequel had to be hoped for.

Madonna didn't get it, though. The pitching let up, with four pitchers getting tagged for 11 runs in an 11-5 Saints' victory.

The split left Madonna with a 9-15 record. Siena Heights is 13-16. Madonna's double-header at Northwood University Saturday was rained out; the Crusader softball team had twinbills Saturday against Calvin College and Sunday at Heidelberg College rained out as well.

The Crusaders had lost in eight innings the previous weekend at Siena Heights, leading to a Saints' sweep — and planting the seed of revenge.

They got it in the opener, thanks to Shrewsbury. He drove in all five Madonna runs, slugging home runs in the fourth (a solo) and sixth (two runs), each narrowing the Siena Heights lead to a run, 2-1 in the fourth and 4-3 in the sixth.

The score was still 4-3 in the seventh when Shrewsbury came to the plate with runners in scoring position and two out. Kevin Barkholz replaced Siena Heights' starter Bryan Gearhart on the mound, but Barkholz wasn't much more successful, surrendering a game-winning, two run double to Shrewsbury.

Shrewsbury's 3-for-3, five RBI game made a winner out of Dan Pydyn (from Plymouth), who started and went all seven innings for Madonna, giving up four runs on eight hits and a walk, with three strikeouts. Pydyn is now 3-3.

In the second game, the Crusaders played catch-up again this time, unsuccessfully. Bob Mason started and took the loss (he's 1-2), lasting 4 1/3 innings and allowing six runs (five earned). He was followed by Mark Serra (no innings, one run), Tim Holland (2/3 of an inning, one run) and Jason Carter (two innings, three runs).

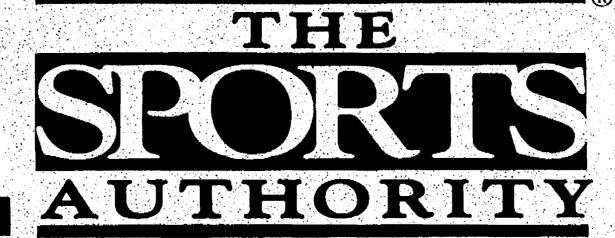

Steve Keider was the starter and winner for Siena Heights. Kevin Foley led Madonna's offense with two hits, including a double, and two RBI. Eric Marcotte (Plymouth Canton) also had two hits, scoring two runs, and E.J. Roman slammed a solo home run. Jason Martines had two doubles among his three hits, with two RBI, for the Saints, and Kris Hemry had two hits, three RBI and one of three Siena Heighta' homers. Josh Reeber had two hite one a solo homer, and Jason Folgmann had a pinch-hit home

Dreams really do come true, The West Bloomfield-based Ann Arbor Thunderbirds Wheelchair basketball team featuring local players Chuck Dillon of Canton, Jerry Sarasin of West Bloomfield and Lou Cherwak of Troy watched its season-long dream turn to reality Saturday afternoon in Birmingham, Alabama when the Thirds won the championship of Division II in the 49th National Wheelchair Basketball Association's National Tournament.

Having already won sectional and regional championships in the 64-team invitational tournament, which is structured similar to the NCAA National Basketball Tournament, the Thunderbirds won the national crown with a 63-50 triumph over the Pacific Spartans (California) in the championship game. The Thunderbirds knocked off the Austin River City Mavericks (Texas) in the semifinals, 67-51.

"This is the biggest accomplishment for me in any kind of sport," said Sarasin. "It's like a dream come true. I have friends that have won it and I've gone and watched them play, but and I never thought it would happen to me. I've waited five years for this and it easily could have been 15 or 20 years like some of the guys on the team. I feel very fortunate to be on a team of this BASKETBALL caliber, with all of the talent. It's a great feeling."

In the championship game against Pacific, the Thunderbirds held a narrow 27-26 lead at halftime and didn't pull away until midway through the second

With the score tied at 33-all, the Thunderbirds got into a jam when star player Kris Lenzo was forced to the bench with his fourth personal foul. But in form with a true championship team, the Thunderbirds' bench rose to the occasion and took control of the game.

The game remained close and was tied at 35-35 and 37-37 before the Tbirds went on an 11-4 run. When Cherwak scored on a layup following a basket by Donald Moore the Thunderbirds found themselves in control, 48-41. The Spartans cut the deficit to four, 54-50, but the Thunderbirds stepped up defensively and shut out the Spartans in the final 3:20 of the game. The Thunderbirds closed the game with a 9-0 run for the final margin of victory.

"We got into foul trouble in the second half and our bench really stepped up," said Thunderbirds coach Dr. Jeff Pierce, of West Bloomfield. "Don (Moore) and Lou (Cherwak) really picked it up. That kind of took the steam out of (Pacific). It was a very exciting game and the whole team contributed."

Erick Corsaut, the tournament MVP, paced the Thunderbirds in the title game with 20 point, one block and one steal. Moore, Mike Sprau and Jimmy Ladouceur chipped in with nine points each and Glen Ashlock led the team in rebounds with 17. Sprau and Ladouceur dished off five assists Pacific had three players reach double figures led by Rod Williams with 16.

Corsaut's 16 points led four players who finished in double figures for the T'birds in the semifinal victory over the Mavericks. Corsaut also grabbed 13 rebounds dished of three assists and had one steal. Ashlock finished with 13 points, 13 rebounds and two assists; Ladouceur meshed in 12 points (to triples), dished off seven assists and had one steal; and Moore finished with 12 points and six rebounds.

The Thunderbirds took the lead for good at 11-9 just 10 minutes into the game. They gradually built the lead and held advantages of 22-16 at halftime, 30-20 with 16:10 remaining in the game, and 56-31 with just over seven minutes remaining on the clock.

Passing eye: Chuck Dillon of Canton Township was a member of the Thunderbirds which captured the championship, 63-50, in the National Wheelchair Basketball Tournament last weekend in Birmingham, Ala.

Azaleas are a spring bright sight

MARTY FIGLEY

. I leave tomorrow for a boat trip up the Mississippi River on Mississippi Queen and am sure I will enjoy the many luscious plants and beautiful gardens on this Gardens of the River Cruise. Perhaps you will want to join us another time.

The lovely blossoms of azaleas (Rhododendron) will remind me that spring has really come to Michigan, as we travel from New Orleans to Memphis and stop along the way to enjoy the southern gardens.

Most of the azaleas that we will see are evergreen and grow south of zone 6. Nevertheless, the blossoms on the deciduous plants that we grow here are h as lovely and welcome in the spring Michigan as they are in the South.

Late April or mid-September is in best time to plant these beauties here the plants are very small they can be bought and planted bare-root, but they are medium to large in size, only those balled and burlapped.

in the spring they can be plante while in full bloom, which will you to select just the color you wante need for your garden. If you plant the while they are in bloom, be prepared water them weekly during the follows red, sometimes blotched yellow – always have red stamens), blooms in mid-June; R. calendulaceum (orange, yellow or scarlet), early June; R. canadensis (light lilac, rose-purple), needs very acid and moist soil; or R. roseum (bright pink), late May. You may want to look at the Exbury, Ghent, Mollis or other hybrids, which vary in form and color with the cultivars.

The most important cultural requirement for azaleas is acid soil, which most of them need. A pH of 4.5 to 5.5 is ideal with the acidity 12 to 18 inches. Root systems on these plants are shallow, so it isn't too difficult to amend the soil to satisfy their needs. Mollis hybrids and R. schlippenbachii (purplish pink, white with brown dots in throat; mid-May bloom) will grow in less acidic soil so you may want to investigate these.

If you wish to replace the existing soil in a hole, dig to a depth of 18 inches, make sure the drainage is good, and mix the existing soil or bought topsoil with acid peat. The mixture needs to be 50-50 or 25-75 (75 being the peat). An alternative is to construct a raised bed, but again, be sure about the drainage.

If you are already growing azaleas and wish to move them, spring is the time to do it, just before they leaf out. Cut through the roots just outside the drip line, completely around the plant. Dig down 10 to 12 inches (underneath the root ball) and lift it from the hole. Follow the planting instructions as with newly bought ones.

The flowers of azaleas are pretty, bloom in a variety of bright shades and are beautifully formed. Used as a specimen plant or in a border or grouping, they will be a welcome sight in the spring garden.

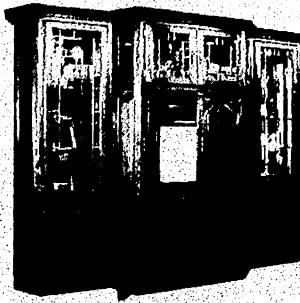

The history of azaleas began in the 17th century when several species were discovered in Virginia, then sent to Europe where American and European plantsmen worked with them. In the early 1800s breeding of azaleas increased rapidly and today there are many varieties on the market.

Here's how to ready air conditioner

JOE GAGNON

It is now a matter of only a few weeks before you arrive home from work and walk into a home which feels sticky and hot.

You'll more the thermostat setting from heat to cool and expect everything to come on like it with last year.

For the sake of your wallet. I hope everything works OK, but if it doesn't, let me give you some facts

The heating and air conditioning industry can not handle all the service calls that come their way during the first few hot spells of the year. You can expect a waiting period before the technician arrives to remedy the situation. New federal laws mandate that the A/C. industry must recycle and capture the freon in your system before it goes into the atmosphere. New technology and training have been implemented by these companies and the result is a larger amount of dollars collected from the consumer.

The media constantly reminds us that there are a few unethical companies who will hose a consumer to the tune of thousands of dollars. You need to be sure about who you are calling to come out to your home.

If your air conditioning needs to be taken care of by a room air conditioner instead of a central system, let me remind you of a yearly occurrence. With any prolonged heat wave during the. summer, you will not be able to purchase a new room air conditioner. The stores just simply run out of stock." Another fact is that of the several million units sold each year, many of the disposed units had very little wrong with them. Let me try to save some aggravation for the readers of this column by telling you what I do as the cooling season approaches.

You should not operate your central

A/C when the temperature outside is cooler than 65 degrees. Your condenser which is located outside should be free of debris such as leaves, twigs etc. and should be cleaned using a garden hose with a high pressure nozzle. On one of the firs warm days, I will replace the furnace filter and shut off the humidifier on the furnace. I find that taking the humidifier apart and cleaning if then is much more convenient than waiting until next winter to do it. I also like to replace the pad each year instead of cleaning it. I remind myself of what causes Legionaires disease and it makes it easier to spend a few dollars for a new pad.

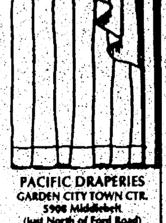

I also take apart the condensate pump that some of us have which pumps the water from the furnace to a sink or a drain. I use white vingegar to clean it and I pour a pint through the system to clean the drain tubes. Every two years I take the furnace plenum apart and clean the A-Coil which is located Inside.

I use a vacuum cleaner and soft brush to accomplish this delicate task. The last thing I do is reinstall the two cartridge fuses I removed last fall to make sure nobody could turn on the A/C during the winter months.

Please note with attention, the last thing I do - I set the thermostat for cooling making sure that the temperature setting is high enough so that the A/C does not come on - I do not want the unit to begin running unit) a low wattage bearer tault into the bottom of the compressor outside has been given a few hours to heat the oil in the bottom of the compressor - Only then will I turn down the thermostat to a temperature which will allow the unit to open ate. After the A7C has been on a half hour, I will perform a simple test to tell me if the freon level is OK. I use a good probe type thermometer which I place in one of the registers. If the temperature coming out is 20 degrees cooler than the outside temperature, everything is working fine for this year.

Restoration: Alexander Julian's Restoration pieces blend well with items from his other collections. The designer wants his furniture to be comfortable and timeless.

Chapel Hill: A flowing argyte pattern adoms glass and hardware of some of Julian's designs. The glass fronts were inspired by the haberdashery displays at his father's clothing store.

Julian: Feel comfortable expressing yourself

BY MARY KLEMIC At Home Editor

The saying, "There's no place like home," has special significance for designer Alexander Julian.

The home is a special place for expression. And Julian's home - his background and community - is special inspiration for many of his furniture pieces. (It takes him "50 years and five minutes" to complete a design, he said.)

"My things are somewhat eclectic," Julian said when he visited the Scott Shuptrine l'ine Furniture Showroom in Troy recently for a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan that raised almost $8,000.

"(They're designed) for more of a mind set than an age ... The kind of person that wants to live in an expressive yet very comfortable lifestyle."

The award-winning designer was friendly and gracious as he toured the room displays of his furniture. You choose to express yourself with what you wear and with what you surround yourself, he explained. Your home allows a different kind of expression.

"With your home, you're editing. You're choosing who comes in there."

At his Troy appearance, Julian introduced his three new furniture collections: Chapel Hill, Old East and Restoration. The collections feature elements of Julian's life and career as a fashion designer. The pieces are graceful and timeless, both elegant and casual. They blend well with one another.

A flowing argyle pattern adorns glass fronts, hardware and chair backs. Legs have slipper feet.

Restoration features include paisley fret work. Old East is named for the original building on the campus of Julian's alma mater, the University of North Carolina, A curving design came from the wingtip of a 1920s shoe Julian found. Drawers and doors are prima yera with a light mahogany finish. Knobs were inspired by cufflinks.

Chapel Hill is the name of the North Carolina college town where Julian was born. The items in the Chapel Hill collection have a mahogany finish, and some feature accents of quartered cherry and holly inlays. Carved fanned shells are among other details. Some tables have necktie patterns.

The glass fronts on cabinets were inspired by the haberdashery displays at the clothing store owned by Julian's father. Julian began managing the store when he was 16. The cabinets become a form of art, as what is behind them is on view; also, as you are getting ready, you can be deciding what to wear as the pieces of clothing are caught by the corner of your eye, Julian suggested.

"I contend you can get dressed about five minutes faster," he said with a smile. Comfort and longevity are important to Julian's designs, especially as people are spending more time at home. "It's anti-plastic wrap furniture.

"I can't stand planned obsolescence."

Julian won the prestigious Coty Award for fashion design in 1977, before he was 30; he has received other honors as well. He is the youngest designer ever inducted into the Coty Hall of Fame. Julian created the wardrobe for the male actors in the movie "The Player."

He is the first fashion designer involved in professional sports, creating uniforms for the Charlotte Hornets basketball team, and the car color and crew colors and apperel for the Mario and Michael Andretti racing team. Julian designed uniforms for the Tar Heels basketball team of his alma mater.

Pottery backstamps solve mystery

By Nancy and Frank Boos Special Writers

Dear Nancy and Frank:

We have a Royal Doulton pitcher and bowl, The marks are, "Doulton Burslem England," with a crown or coronet over the words and the numbers 11549 and 156418. We would be interested in knowing the approximate value of it.

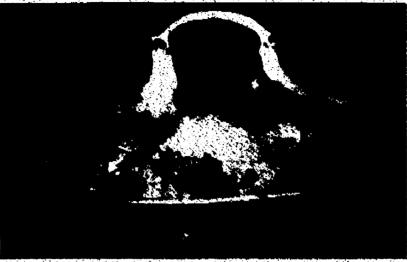

> R.F.M., Troy

Dear R.F.:

So many inquiries come in about Royal Doulton pottery that we decided it was finally time to tackle the subject.

There are many unresolved issues, contradictions and omissions regarding the recording of Royal Doulton production, but here's our attempt to not be afraid of the dark and to shed a little light on the subject.

Britain's history is recorded in Royal Doulton figurines via renderings of kings, queens, common laborers, notable and general figures in society bly made around 1891 to 1893, are unusual and attractive.

and characters from fiction, theater and legend.

Dating and authenticating the pieces is based on deciphering marks consisting of letters, numbers and words called backstamps found on the pottery. With every move, change of ownership, introduction of new designs, etc., marks changed and weren't always accurately recorded. Therein lies the confusion. Herein, it is hoped, lies a little clarifica-tion.

History

1815, the year Napoleon was defeated at Waterloo, is also monumental in British history as the year John Doulton joined the Vauxhall Pottery Works in Lambeth, which was known as Jones, Watts and Doulton.

A large part of the production of this factory at this time was garden statuary, which we usually don't associate with Royal Doulton. Keep your eyes open for such items, as they would be treasure finds indeed.

In 1826 the firm moved to Lambeth and became known as Lambeth Pottery. In 1835, John's son, Henry, joined the firm. Henry was responsible for Royal Doulton's monumental success. He became an economic force and social commentator. Henry was knighted by Queen Victoria in 1887, the first potter to be so honored.

Doulton was a major industrial enterprise. In addition to being involved in the development of industrial ceramics for use by electrical, chemical and sanitation engineers, Henry decided to further pursue the artistic development of the pottery.

In 1877, Henry acquired a factory in Burslem for the purpose of producing the more artistic wares and renamed the company Doulton & Co., Burslem, in 1882. Other local potters called it the "Doulton Invasion."

The most commonly known decorative figurines were introduced in the early 1900s. In 1913, Doulton introduced a series of small figures called the HN series, named after Harry Nixon, the firm's most important colorist.

Most of the designs were retained until 1938, but are still considered rare, even though not antiques, because they were produced in limited editions that became even more limited due to production interruptions caused by the period before, during and after World. War II Even the large editions weren't huge compared to the productions of other pottery factories.

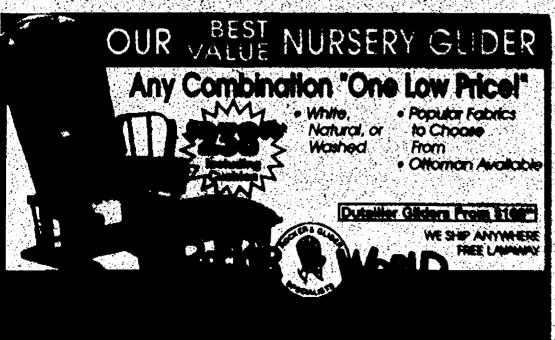

Stamping

In 1932, a line of miniature figures was introduced that initially carried the HN number, which was later changed to M (for miniature) numbers. Eventually the number system for this series was dropped altogether. After World War II, Royal Doulton discontinued the early HN line and forged ahead with massive productions of new series. Obviously, the older pre-World War I items are extremely desirable.

Special editions are marked with specific color stamping information. For example, the Dickensware introduced in 1908 was backstamped in brown until 1930, when it was changed to black until 1960. Some pieces turn up without series numbers. Getting the picture?

See Treasure, page D11

Treasure

Designs were registered with coded numbers and letters in a diamond shape on Victorian china from 1842 to 1883. In 1884, a numbering system was put in place with certain numbers allocated to certain years.

Here is what we could best ascertain as to the dates and manufacturing locations as indicated by the following backstamps:

1850s - Doulton Lambeth

1869-77 - Doulton Lambeth in oval with date (later in circle with quatrefoil)

After 1877 - Either Doulton Lambeth or Doulton Burslem

1886 - A coronet was added at Burslem

After 1891 - The word "England" was added

1902 - The word "Royal" was added

Over years changes were made and a lion and a crown were added, which after 1913 were usually stamped.

After 1928 bone china products are marked "bone china" and often have the artist's name and a number in a rectangle together with a registration number at the British patent office.

In the 1950s and 1960s, script stamped lettering was used.

There are many variations on the above themes, too numerous to go into here. There are many good books on the subject.

Indications

Using the available information, the stamped "Doulton, Burslem" on your item indicates it was made at the Burslem location in 1877 or later. The coronet, added in 1886, indicates it was made after that. The stamped "England" indicates it was made after 1891 and before 1902 when "Royal" was added.

You have two registration numbers, which leads us to believe the decoration as redesigned and registered a second time. The first registration number, 11549, falls in the series allocated from January to December 1884, the time of the first design. The second registration number, 156418, falls into the series allocated from January to December 1890. The design registration usually preceded actual production by at least one year.

Taking all of this into consideration, we feel very comfortable stating that your items were produced around 1891 to 1893. Your pitcher and basin are unusual and very attractive. You say they're in excellent condition. We would put a conservative auction estimate on them in the range of $400 to $600, which means in a retail shop you'd expect to see it priced anywhere from $800 to $1,200.

Asian noodles savor the slurping

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Noodles always seem to be popular - pasta remains the prolific favorite with subtle and ethnic changes to flour (in some cases, rice flour) and water ... what we now have hat on the scene is Asian noodles, and in some locations, Noodle Bars.

In Japan, it's appropriate and polite to slurp noodles, never cut them - it's bad luck, they symbolize long life. Just ask Nina Simonds, author of the new book "Asian Noodles, Deliciously Simple to Twirl, Slurp and Savor," published by William Morrow & Co., Inc. a Hearst Book Group Co.,

"Noodles are so sensual and wonderful," says Simonds. "Everywhere in Asia where I've traveled and eaten, people suck them up noisily, with great relish and delight in every mouthful. It's a way to show your appreciation of the dish - in fact, if you don't make noise, the cook will be offended!"

Simonds lived in Taiwan for 3 1/2 years - to study Chinese culsine and culture, and has since written four other books related to Asian food. This fifth publication highlights the new food trend - Asian Noodles. In this book, she gives American cooks and their families irresistible incentives to loosen up their

"Noodles for Asians are like hamburgers for Americans" says Jessie Yan who owns Oodles Noodles (two restaurants in the Washington, D.C., and Maryland area). Yan like Simonds is trying to modle-educate the American public. Soba are Japanese buckwheat noodles, rice noodles come in a variety of sizes and shapes - thin Ramen and larger ones called Udon, then there are Chow Foon or He Fen, the broad flat rice noodles used in Pad Thai dishes. Many dried rice noodles must be soaked in cold water, boiling just doesn't do the trick.

Nina Simonds' book provides a comprehensive and practical introduction to Asian noodles along with a two page full-color spread showing every Asian noodle variety.

Don't let these "long-Life" symbols be daunting - let them be delicious in dishes that can be shared with family and friends, and don't forget, tell them all to slurp!

Some Simonds Noodle Knowledge and Recipes:

■ Don't boil rice noodles! Most varieties of rice noodles, cellophane and sweet potato noodles just need to be softened in hot water for 15 minutes. Then they are cooked for less than a minute in

Make puffy "birds nests" noodles cellophane noodles (bean threads), thin rice moddles (Asian Vermicelli) are quickly fried in very hot oil (425 degrees) until they appear puffy and golden in color.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

itting in a suite at The Ritz-Carlton hotel in Dearborn, John Cusack suspiciously resembles the hit man he plays in his latest film "Grosse Pointe Blank."

In his film, Cusack plays assassin Martin Blank who returns to his hometown of Grosse Pointe to finish his last hit, attend his 10-year class reunion, and reunite with his high school girlfriend, Debi (Minnie Driver). His uniform of choice is a black suit, skinny tie and dress shirt.

Reclining in a black leather chair with his leg resting on another, Cusack is dressed in a black suit, skinny black tie and white shirt. He has a mischievous look in his eye like he's going to pounce at any moment. The similarities do not end there. Making the film was a reunion of sorts for Cusack, who cowrote the screenplay and served as co-producer.

Cusack and fellow writers D.V. DeVincentis and Steve Pink were high school classmates who started the Chicago-based New Crime Theatre Company, which spawned New Crime Productions, one of the producers of the movie. Actor Jeremy Pivin, who plays real estate agent Paul, was also a classmate.

His sister Joan ("Nine Months," "Working Girl") stars as his receptionist Marcella; Another sister, Ann ("Jeff Foxworthy Show"), appears as Amy, and his brother, Bill, makes a cameo as a waiter.

"My brother and sister (Ann) did a day each just for fun. Joanie was in it. It was fantastic," said Cusack, an alumnus of films such as "Say Anything," "The Grifters," "City Hall," "Sixteen Candles" and "Better Off Dead."

"Grosse Pointe Blank," which opens at theaters on Friday, April 11, is the first film project for New Crime Productions. Cusack said that when he and his partners came across the story, written by native Detroiter Tom Jankiewicz, it didn't seem complete. But Cusack liked the idea.

"It was almost like a treatment version of the screenplay. It had the idea of a hit man named Martin Blank going back to his 10-year reunion and feeling like he wanted to get out of the business. I thought this is a great idea for a film if we really flesh it out," said Cusack, sipping a Diet

"It has tremendous potential - you know, the savage journey to the heart of the American dream stuff; American male values and denial; and sort of that schizophrenia, not equating your self image with your behavior. What a person does does not necessarily reflect who he is. He could be a killer at the office and a good Christian at home."

The trio thought they could extend the killer concept and make it "more of a metaphor for a certain sort of emotional detachment from reality that some people go through. They can do all these horrible things and they rationalize it. We thought that denial and rationalization were inherently comic themes."

As a result, Martin takes professional pride in his accomplishments just like any other businessman. However, he feels like his life is missing something so he uses the visit to Grosse Pointe to find himself. Dan Aykroyd stars as fellow hit man Grocer, with Alan Arkin as Martin's psychologist Dr. Oatman. Cusack said, much to his surprise, that the reaction to the film has been "actually great."

"I thought at least a good number of people would hate it because it's so strange. It's a little subversive in its nature. I think it's funny but maybe some of the ideas would be a little bit too radical for people. Maybe I was just being a snob about it. I was really thinking they wouldn't get the movie or something. But people have been really loving it."

One thing that Cusack loved was his fight scene where he beat an assassin named Felix to a pulp. Cusack has had little opportunity to do action scenes before. Ask him if he enjoys it and he sits up straight and answers with an enthusiastic "Yeah."

"Actually, it sort of hurt," he said with a laugh. "I've kickboxed ever since 'Say Anything.' I like to fight. It's a really good way to stay in shape. The guy I trained with is this master martial artist, The guy Benny (Urquidez) who played Felix in the movie, he's a martial arts legend. I worked with him so he helped me choreograph the fight. We just did it. We didn't have stunt

Although identifying signs are peppered fever-ishly throughout the movie, "Grosse Fullity Blank" was actually filmed in the small fown of Monroyia, Calif., with aerial shots of Lameshore Drive inserted within.

For five days we filmed in Grosse Points; mostly scenes of cars going through the city. We couldn't afford to bring the actors here. It was cheaper to shoot in Los Angeles, I'm sorry to say.

I wish we could have shot here." With "Grosse Pointe Blank." Cusack hopes to start a new genre of films rather than subverting the others.

"Just because it's funny doesn't mean it can't have romance in it, just because it's absurd. A black comedy doesn't mean you can't have real emotion in it. You can have really broad stuff."

Backing the film is a soundtrack that shoots straight out of the late-1980s. The Violent Femmes, The Clash, David Bowie and Queen, Johnny Nash, The Specials, Pete Townshend, The Jam, and Faith No More are among the performers chosen to set the scene. All those acts appear on the soundtrack to the film released on London

Former Clash singer/guitarist Joe Strummer

composed the original score. "I always thought that the Clash would have written a song about Martin. They could have written a song about a guy who got confused in high school and ended up in the military freaking out," Cusack said. "I always liked their edge and their black... absurdity. They always made tragedy seem like punk reggae circus music. That was a real definitive voice for my era, at least when I was growing up especially being a freshman in high school, Ronald Reagan being president, and I really felt like doom was the prevalent theme. There's so much intelligence and political sophistication and a real understanding of the way nations work and the myth of nationalism I just thought he was a great artist." Besides the intelligence of Strummer and the Clash, Cusack admits his film has some of the "best of the bad songs of the '80s. We have '99 Luftballons' (by Nena), 'Walk Like An Egyptian' (by the Bangles). We tried to put some real good, solid bad tunes in there."

Cusack hopes that audiences will enjoy the movie as much as he so his crew can make a

"We just felt that there was something great with this character, this movie and this idea. I just felt like I hadn't seen it before. I hadn't seen a killer who was processing the morality of killing while he was doing it. I had never seen a black comedy about that theme. I think maybe we are on to something."

Trinity House introduces The Boys Next Door's

Trinity House Theatre, 38840 W. Six Mile Road (northwest corner of 1-275 and Six Mile Road) presents "The Boys Next Door," 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 4 p.m. Sundays through May 3. Tickets $8, Call (313) 464-6302. BY DIANNE THOMAS SPECIAL WRITER

Arnold and Norman stand on the sidelines of the community house dance floor looking across at girls they'd like t be with. Norman has taken a fancy to Sheila, but he's afraid she wants too much from him.

Arnold wants to ask Helen to dance, but he's so unsure of himself, he makes excuses not to like her too much.

Two typical young men facing one of life's unusual challenges, but for Arnold, Norman and the rest of "The Boys Next Door," life is a bit more complicated.

Opening Friday at the Trinity House Theatre in Livonia, the 1986 comedy tells the story of four mentally challenged men who share an apartment in a suburban neighborhood.

Arnold (portrayed by Dan Gumina of Redford), Norman (Gary Brda of Westland), Lucien

Barry (mark Barrera) have been classified with varying degrees of retardation and mental illness. but are capable of living independly in a group home.

Watching over the "boys" is Jack (Randy Coble of Novi), a social worker facing a different set of challenges. A biter divorce and classic case of job burnout are making him frustrated and short-tempered even with people. he cares about.

The story could easily be one of dramatic tragedy, but author Tom Griffin has created a thought-provoking comedy, evoking laughter by showing how all troubles and triumphs are universal.

"These characters have a variety of endearing and annoying qualities, just like members of any other family," said Trudy Mason. "People laugh at situations, and their humanness."

"There's a dichotomy in that the lines have to be second nature, but come out fresh." Brda said.

A deep respect for the characters in the play, and for the mentally challenged in real life, is (Jason Birkby of Northville), and evident as the players rehearse their scenes, and discuss their charactrers.

"I consider it an honor to play a retarded person," Gumina said, adding that he has drawn on his own occasional feelings of being a "wallflower" to understand Arnold's sense of alientation.

Audiences who come to view "The Boys Next Door" will find themselves virtually a part of the young men's lives. The tiny. 85-seat Trinity House Theatre has been made even more intimate by the building of several platforms that extend the stage, and provide space for the numerous monologues that allow the audience to share intimate. moments with the various

And inevitably, they will be drawn into the action as Arnold. Norman, Lucien, Barry and Jack share their thoughts, hopes and dreams.

"The point is not to make people thinkn 'aren't we fortunate?' but to establish these men as human, with family problems like anybody else," Gumina said.

"He (Cosby) wants a say from beginning to end, to the point where he'll dictate stories from inception. We're following his lead," said Belanoff.

Cosby began his career writing material for his own brilliant stand-up routines. Bergen, on the other hand, came to television as a noted film actress. She makes only nominal changes in a finished script.

"One thing is when you're writing for a star driven show, you want to know, for instance, where Murphy (Bergen's TV character) is in this," Belanoff lating and frustrating.

"On a show anywhere from six to 15 writers are working on a situation comedy. They kick ideas around as a group, Belanoff said:

One of the writers will then prepare an outline. This outline will then get kicked around and a first draft of the script will be prepared by the outline writer, A second draft is also written for group appraisal.

"When it hits the table, each writer has his say," Belanoff said. "Then it goes to the actors. It's a free-for-all after that."

The process can be frustrating for many reasons. Belanoff said. there is a definite "pecking order" among the writers and that office politics often determine what remains in a script. Many ideas dear to a writer's heart get thrown away.

"You hope it's a meritocracy where people who have ideas: have an equal say at the table," he said. "Many talented people have trouble working under this situation because of egos."

He described turning a draft over to the other writers as letting "a pack of jackals attack your ideas." He said this is why - many writers prefer to write for movies where they have more time and a little more autonomy. But, he said, it's only in the rare independent project that a writer has complete control over a project.

Belanoff said another drawback to television writing is the long hours. He said during one stretch on "Cosby" the writers were working seven days a week.

The joy of working in TV is that you see produced what you wrote in hours and it's aired in weeks," he said, "With film it could take months and years."

Belanoff suggests prospective TV writers prepare a spec script. He advises if you're interested in writing for "Seinfeld" that you do a "Wings" script to show what you can do without setting yourself up for critcism by those who actually write the series.

And, he adds, if it's good, it has a chance.

Legendary jazz singers Williams, Wilson at Orchestra Hall tonight

PRANK PROVENZANO STAFF WRITER

In the days of graphic and inane lyrics - not to mention head-banging three-chord cathartic howls - a song might be the last place to expect subtlety. Silky jazz singers Joe Williams and Nancy Wilson prove, however, that emotional depth can be communicated sometimes by what isn't said.

Williams and Wilson perform tonight at Orchestra Hall, For the baritone Williams, the concert brings him to one of his favorite venues in his 50-year career in which he's performed with jazz greats Coleman Hawkins, Lionel Hampton and Count Basie.

"I love the lush sound of all the horns, strings and timpani. It really sends me soaring," said Williams, who lists among his most memorable performances concerts with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, Boston Pops and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. The two jazz legends will perform individually, and are expected to share the stage for several duets in the Ameritech Jazz Series concert.

Together, Williams and Wilson represent the heritage of American jazz - and oddly, its future. Williams, in particular, personifies what can be called the Tony Bennett phenomenon. Bennett, who for years was merely recognized for the 1960s hit "I Left My Heart in San Francisco," was inexplicitly rediscovered by a generation born during the days of Disco. His duets with k.d. lang and "Unplugged" appearance on MTV led to a mainstream breakthrough unknown to crooners since the days of Sinatra and Nat King Cole.

Ironically, a more influential singer like Williams has been helped by Bennett's success. Although his 45 albums proved that he had a loyal audience all

Williams, long known for his flawless diction and clipped singing, is considered a jazz legend for his longevity, sophisticated style and early work with Basie. Their 1954 recording "Every Day I Have the Blues" was placed in the Recording Industry Hall of Fame in 1983.

Meanwhile, the huge success of female singers Whitney Houston, Sade and Anita Baker has helped the careers of ground-breaking singers stars such as Wilson. Baker, for one, has readily admitted that Wilson was a major influence.

The way Wilson stretches a note and rushes through a crescendo and dips to a decrescendo offers the best evidence of her sustaining influence on the new generation of singers. For her immense talent and dignified style, Wilson is often called a "singer's singer."

Her impressive 60-album career ranks with legendary singers Ella Fitzgerald, Peggy Lee, Dinah Washington and Sarah Vaughn. Her first hit, "Save Your Love For Me" with Cannonball Adderley, scored high on the Billboard charts in 1962. By the mid 1960s, Wilson was Capitol's second best-selling artist behind the Beatles.

Currently, Wilson records with Columbia. In 1991, she received a Grammy nomination for "With My Lover Beside Me," a collection of previously unpublished lyrics by the late Johnny Mercer with music by Barry Manilow.

In addition to a recording

Jazz legend: Joe Williams, long known for his flawless diction and clipped singing, will be performing with Nancy Wilson at Orchestra Hall.

career, Wilson has appeared on several television series, including "The Cosby Show," Fox's "The Parent Hood," and in the 1993 Robert Townsend film, "The Meteor Man."

In the 1980s, Williams's popularity also grew steadily with regular performances on the "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson."

At what was once considered the twilight of their years, the careers of Williams, 78, and Wilson, 60, continue to soar, Today, their influence can be heard on such promising artists as Harry Conick, Jr. and Cassandra Wilson (no relation).

Yet perhaps Williams and Wilson's greatest contribution is affirming that talent can take you a long, long way.

'Lend Me a Tenor' cast receives laughs, applause

Theatre Guild presents "Lend Me A Tenor," 8 p.m. Friday, April 11-Saturday, April 12, and 2 p.m. Sunday, April 13, at the playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly, Redford. $10; $8 for seniors and students, (313) 531-0554 BY BOB WEIBEL SPECIAL WRITER

The cast of the Theatre Guild's "Lend Me a Tenor" received laughs and applause for their entertaining performances. They could have received even more, however, by taking greater chances with their characters to get the most out of the outrageous situations afforded by Ken awakes from his stupor - and Ludwig's riotous farce.

A famous, bigger than life Italian opera star cannot perform for the Cleveland Opera Company. He is thought dead (but really is only zonked out on barbiturates). He is replaced by a nerdy little gofer, who can hardly carry a tune in the shower. In a stunning transformation, our impostor is a resounding success. Once started, the conspiracy becomes increasingly complicated as the real singer (with both dressed in their The play's highlinks are built Otello costumes) mistaken idenaround an improbably situation. titles lead to all sorts of fun, muddled misunderstandings and misconceptions.

> Thom Hinks plays Saunders, the impresario of the opera company, with the broad visual and physical humor required of farce. Unfortunately, his fellow actors sometimes appear a bit lame by comparison, as if performing in a straight comedy. Too often, he somehow seems out of place, which tends to upset the comedic

Douglas Dawson, with a commanding stage presence, does a fine job as Tito Merelli, the great opera star. One wishes he would take a clue from his nickname (Il Stupendo) and give us even more grandiose, sweeping gestures and the majestic mannerisms of a womanizing, conceited performer.

Tommy Bettis has his moments as Max, the would-be singer and impostor. In some ways, he appears too competent at times. As if he could really carry off the scheme. And his Otello needs to be more exaggerated to mimic the real thing and magnify the ridiculousness of believable. Constance Fox as the situation.

Karen Foran scores as Maggie, a young lady in love with opera (and its stars) but stuck with the likes of Max. Emily Haas as Diana has a funny scene seducing Tito. She has aspirations of making it to the Met, but the delicious disposition of a local diva were missing. Carol Aubuchon looked perfect as Tito's long-suffering wife, Marie. One wishes she made a more bombastic entrance tomake her fiery temper more. Julia is a charming patron of the arts, who could be more of a shallow, dithering pest to the put. upon Saunders. Thom Griffin rounds out the cast as a befud. dled bellhop.

Director Troy Hughes added . an interesting reprise as part of the curtain call. Although too. long, it shows that the cast can perform with the energy, pacing, nonsense and gags sometimes. missing in the play itself.

Cusack's 'Grosse Pointe Blank' never hits its mark

"True Romance." 'RoboCop." Beverly Hills Cop." Even a character-driven drama like Scarecrow."

When Detroit lands on film, it's usually the end of the line, the last place in the world you'd want to find yourself for longer than an airport layover. So how does Detroit's most famous suburb fare in the new movie, "Grosse Pointe Blank?" Not well at all.

While the aptly-titled black comedy doesn't mine the usual pink-and-green preppy jokes, it also fails to treat the Pointes as the potentially unique locale that it truly is. The movie could take place in Des Moines, if it wasn't for all those shots of Lake

St. Clair. John Cusack plays a hit apart. While Cusack, wearing a reunion from Pointes High, where he left without a trace on prom night and hasn't been seen since. Mixing a little business with pleasure, he also has a contract to rub someone out. He arrives to discover that his family house has since been replaced by a convenience store. He visits his mother (Barbara Harris) in a nursing home, an embarassingly drawn out exchange in which she drifts between barely recognizing and flirting with him. It gets even more awkward when he stops in on his old girlfriend (Minnie Driver) at her radio disc jockey job. She insists that they hash out their personal problems on the air, how he stood her up on prom night 10 years ago and how he now expects them to just pick up where they left off. Of course they do, which is where "Grosse Pointe Blank" really starts to fall man en route to his 10-year black suit reminiscent of his great work in "The Griffers," is extremely watchable, Driver needs more direction. For all the time spent talking about the past, you never get any sense what these two were really like in high school.

> Let's give former Detroiter Tom Jankiewicz the benefit of the doubt, since his script, according to promotional materials, was "immediately optioned and tailored to Cusack's specifications." Cusack, one of four writers who had a hand in the rewrite, was originally supposed to direct. The reins were instead were handed to George Armitage, a veteran writer/director whose previous films "Hit Man" and the recent "Miami Blues" should have made him the right man for the job.

When the production company, Caravan Pictures, couldn't secure the rights to shoot in the Pointes, they created a surprisingly realistic replica near Los. Angeles The only time you really see the area is in a few establishing shots of the Ambassador Bridge and birds' eye views of a black car driving along the lake shore. Whatever Hollywood hubris you can blame him for, Cusack holds together what little there is of Grosse Pointe Blank." There are nice moments between him and a talented stable of character actors, among them his sister Joan as the loyal secretary he constantly communicates with on his cel phone. Dan Avkroyd also brings a sort of manie charm to his work as a rival hit man. In one of the movie's few funny scenes, the two meet in a diner and cautiously keep each other covered throughout conversation. They also engage in a blazing shootout as the two face off on opposite sides of a kitchen counter Armitage's action scenes are the best executed things in the movie, owing plenty to the "million bullets" philosophy of Hong Kong action epics. The movie's soundtrack samples alternative music of a decade ago. "Walk Like an Egyptian," 99 Luftballons," and "Blister in the Sun" overpower the fine incidental music score by former Clash member Joe Strummer, giving it, appropriately I suppose for the Class of 1986, the feel of MTV. Like its CIA-trained main character, "Grosse Pointe Blank" goes wrong despite its smartness. It has all the right elements of a solid film, but never quite hits its mark.

Birmingham's Burros get mileage out of film play

The Detroit area may not have CHRISTINA

been the primary filming locale John Cusack's latest movie "Grosse Pointe Blank. But . the Birmingham-based roots rock band The Burros will get its share of mileage out of the movie.

The band's song "Little uxuries," from its debut album Homestead* (Schoolkids Records), plays in the background as Cusack (Martin Blank) and co-star Minnie Driver (Debi) leave a bar.

"I like that song," Cusack said during a recent interview at The Ritz-Carlton hotel in Dearborn. "I was looking for very cool songs. We had so many great old '80s songs that we wanted some cool, young new bands as well."

John Harvey, who along with Bob Pereira make up The Burros, got the chance to meet Cusack during his visit to Detroit on Monday, March 31. Later that day Harvey attended an advance screening of "Grosse Pointe Blank" at the Main Art Theater in Royal Oak.

"He was very cool and it was good to meet him. He's a good guy. He's as genuine as he was on screen," said Harvey during a recent interview at the Muddy Waters Coffeehouse in Berkley,

"That's what made Monday such a strange experience. I meet Cusack and then I'm tak-

• It's amazing the things that men will do to get the attention of a beautiful woman. Crispian Mills, lead singer of the mystical Brit pop band Kula Shaker, has been a strong believer in Indian philosophies since he was 10 but two years later he narrowed in on an aspect of it to impress a girl.

"I came across that philosophy and some of the concepts when I was about 10 or 11. I became a vegetarian when I was 12 - not out of choice, initially I met a really beautiful girl who was a vegetarian. I didn't want to be uncool," he said with a laugh.

Mills's Indian influences can be found on Kula Shaker's album "K" (Columbia), a blend of '60s psychedelic rock, Charlatans U.K. style Hammond organs, Sanskrit lyrics, sitars, and tabla drums. It's a logical progression from Mills's life-changing experiences in India. Mills explained that he had graduated from college in 1991 and was suffering from depression so he traveled to India in 1993 to "see what's happening out there."

"I said, I'm going to go to all the places I read about. When I came back I was a little bit more hip to the scene and I understood it a little bit more, That was in 1993 and I've been back three or four times," said Mills calling from his home in England.

"I've always been interested in old legends, you know, whether it was Indian or King Arthur or Druids, or European mysticism. When I was 16 I got into some of the mysticism in pop music like Jim Morrison and the Beatles. Going to India was a natural thing for me. It always interested me more and more and I kind of advocate some of those philosophy."

"K" is Kula Shaker's debut album. Mills said he was "really nervous" about recording "K."

"I'm really ambitious and I couldn't wait to do the album.

It's a really colorful album.

There's lots of diversity on it. We were kind of nervous working with (famed producer) John Leckie. It took awhile to get confident, but I found that 'K' was really a learning experience." Since the release of "K" and the popularity of the first single "Tattva," Mills said "we've been really lucky."

The main thing is that when we first came over and 'Tattva' was on the radio, it was a luxury to travel all the way to the states and see people at the concert, The good thing is that it's growing really nicely. It's growing gradually. It's not some big hype, pop trash. I want to be around for more than 10 minutes and make more than one album." Kula Shaker performs Friday, April 11, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $4.89 for the all-ages show. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. For more information, call (313) 961.

WEST RIVER FOR A ONLY

Couple brings a taste of Chicago to Livonia

BY KEELY WYGONIX

Busband and wife John and Mylvia Jakupi moved from Chicago to Detroit to be closer to amily, but miss the Windy City, pecially the food.

We felt there was a need for a place that offered unique items -Chicago hot dogs, and beef sand. Wiches," explained John. "We wanted to give a taste of Chicago to the metro Detroit area," added

The couple's Windy City Cafe Was just an idea for the longest time. Then, in October, John, who studied to be an architect, and worked as a designer, and Sylvia. director of a day care center in Canton, put their careers on hold to follow their dream.

"We'd thought about it, and talked about it, and this opportunity came along," said Sylvia. "We franchise part of the business to Toarmina's Pizza - we're two restaurants in one."

The restaurant, only seats about 26-30, but the kitchen is huge. Windy City is a popular lunch spot, and after work destination for people with little time to cook. The menu includes a variety of fresh salads including Greek, Antipasto, and Chicken Caesar. There are five hot dog choices including Chicago Style hot dog - all beef hot dog, mustard, relish, chopped onions, sliced tomato, fresh cucumber, kosher pickles and hot peppers piled on a steamy poppy seed bun, Polish Sausage Dog and

Everything on the menu can be ordered for parties, and their are other items too such as vegetable trays, cold cut trays, barbecue and regular chicken.

We're flexible, you can dine in. dine out, or order from week. We deliver to offices and factories within a two mile radius of the restaurant," said John Another ingredient of the couple's success is their willing ness to listen and respend to customers. They added four varieties of grinders based on customer demand. We're a customer driven restaurant, and pay attention to what they want," said John.

Check the menu board for specials such as spagnetti. During Lent they offered fish and chips. Salads, which can be ordered in two sizes large and small, and sandwiches range from $1.30 to $4.25. sions, I have been advised by the office of my listing agent that someone was going to come to the home, sometimes at inconvenient hours. In a effort to sell my home, I accommodated them, only to find out that they did not show for the appointment and didn't even have the courtesy of calling me or the real estate agent. Is this a common phenomenon and if so, what can be done about it?

A. I. too, have heard from other persons who have complained about what would appear to be a lack of professionalism, courtesy and respect on the part of a number of real estate agents in this community as it relates to the showing of homes.

While I am sure that the discourteous ones are in the distinct minority, unfortunately, they are the ones that cast aspersions on the entire real estate profession as a whole.

I would suggest that you ask your real estate agent to notify the broker of the office of the person who made an appointment with you that was not kept and not properly canceled and, if necessary, file a complaint with the real estate board concerning this discourteous and unprofessional conduct.

Perhaps if more people bring their frustrations to the attention of the appropriate authorities, this practice will cease.

If everyone on the block has water in the basement due to a torrential rain, a sewer service won't do any good, said Jerry Neal Cockrell, owner of GJ Sewer Repair and Cleaning in Redford.

If it's just your basement, the problem probably is tree roots that can be cleared by a professional.

long as borrowers live in their homes.

"Scams and rip-offs are beginning to appear in this market," says center director Ken Scholen. But now we have a way to recognize lenders and counselors who pledge to uphold strict ethical standards." The center is an independent nonprofit organization that has specialized in consumer information and analysis on reverse mortgages since 1981.

To qualify as "preferred, " lenders and counselors must agree to a code of conduct and give a copy of the code to each customer upon initial contact. The code requires them to present all homeowner options, including a range of reverse mortgage choices and a variety of alternatives to reverse mortgages.

The options and alternatives are presented as an individually customized 13-page report titled Personal Reverse Mortgage Analysis." It provides detailed, objective, side-by-side comparisons of the benefits, total costs and leftover equity for up to 12 reverse mortgage choices.

"Seeing all your options is critically important," says Scholen, because no single reverse mortgage works best for everyone. One plan may give you tens of thousands of dollars more at a much lower cost than another plan. But for a different consumer, the other plan might be a much better deal. It all depends on your age, home value and

Jamey Kramer's REAL ESTATE FACTS

The Original Real Estate Couloms

Time is Money!

How long does It take to sell a home? As a property owner planning to self. YOU'll need the answer to that question. Fortunately, the answer is reactly available from your sales

Have you ever noticed that a stock prospectus states that future stock values cannot be predicted? The prospectus then goes on to outline the historical increases in the stock's value. In other words, while history cannot guarantee the future outcome, it's value is nevertheless significant.

How can the sale time of a home be predicted? Again, historical data is the most likely source. Ask your agent to provide the sale time of all homes which have sold in your area over the past year. The numbers are readily available from the agent's local Multiple Listing Service records.

Before beginning an analysis of the sale times provided, throw out the longest and shortest sales times. Next, average the rest.

The result will give you a 'ballpark' historical summary of recent sale times. From this figure, it is possible to predict with some accuracy the time it will take to sell your home.

Are there any other factors which may affect the projected sale time? Definitely. The condition of your home can either make or break your predicted sale time. Offer your home in peak condition and buyers may compete to own it. Offer it without needed repairs and improvements, and it may be totally ignored.

The best advice for selling in a reasonable length of time is to price it fairly, offer it in top condition, and consider each offer carefully. The marketing plan implemented by your agent will further insure an early sale.

Overall, lease rates were up 8 percent compared to first quarter 1996.

Leasing activity in the first quarter reached 2.2 million square feet, a slight increase from 1996's first quarter. Strong demand for warehouse and distribution space has been the driving factor, accounting for 62 percent of activity.

"The auto industry's increased demand for warehouse and distribution space and high-tech facilities continues to stretch availabilities to the limit while spurring new construction," said Jeff Shell, senior managing director at Cushman & Wakefield.

The summary showed that square footage under construction jumped 80 percent to just over 3 million square feet.

"Until recently, most speculative construction was in the small- to medium-size range, leaving large space needs unmet, which increased build-to-suit construction." Shell said.

In response to heavy demand, three major speculative warehouse/distribution projects are under construction.

In Brownstown, Ashley Capital is building the 495,000square-foot Brownstown Business Center III. Livonia is the site of First Industrial's twobuilding project totaling over 250,000 square feet.

Stuart Frankel is building Oakland Park, a project totaling 141,000 square feet at the former Chrysler Corp. headquarters in Highland Park.

"The rush on leasing and lack of quality available space have pushed lease rates up across the board, with overall rates up 8 percent compared to first quarter 1996 results," said Shell.

ownership a reality

with an increase of 15 percent. followed by high-tech rates. which were up 10 percent.

"Landlords get asking price because there just isn't any place else to go," Shell said. Southern Wayne County wit. nessed the largest overall lease rate increase of any submarket. Heavy demand for warehouse and distribution space, especially near expanding Metro Airport. pushed overall lease rates up 18 percent over the same quarter last year

"The first quarter showed tremendous strength for industrial real estate," said Shell; "But demand still outweighs supply of quality availabilities. and it remains to be seen if activity can continue at this pace without added inventory."

A recent survey released by Fannie Mae, the nation's largest purchaser of residential mortgage loans, found that three in five Americans believe this is a good time to buy a home.

Even with this increased optimism, the prospect of buying a home may still seem overwhelming for many first time purchasers.

Scott Van Dellen, director of affordable lending for the nation's largest independent mortgage lender and servicer, Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., recommends a few simple steps to help bring you closer to buying a home.

 Get prequalified - Pre-qualification assesses an applicant's ability to purchase a home, telling you exactly what you can afford. Countrywide offers free prequalification through its House America Counseling Center, an educational public service which recommends personalized plans to help you qualify for a home loan.

• Investigate affordable lending programs - Check out affordable lending programs such as Countrywide's House America, which requires as little as a three percent downpayment, as well as more flexibility in areas such as debt ratios, credit and employment history.

• Examine your credit record -It's a good idea to review your credit report with a mortgage lender before considering purchasing a home, especially if you have had any credit problems in the past.

Countrywide's Counseling Center offers a free credit repair manual, "Your Credit and You," which can help you resolve credit issues that may be preventing you from obtaining a home loan.

by...

I am a Senior Citizen. My father who is 90, says he is not. He says he has entered the "Age of Wisdom". In his wisdom, he has decided to remain in his home. He cooks, cleans, gerdens, drives, visits and has me for dinner once a week. He is also updating his house for when the day comes that his wise decision is to sell. I have been his gentle guide, because, not only am I his daughter, but I am a Realtor.

in honor of my father's wisdom, I have
