Council notes concern over potential crowds

By Darrell Clem STAFF WRITER

Two trouble-makers resembling MTV's Beavis and Butt-head reportedly lurked outside of Westland City Hall on Monday night, eating nachos as they awaited a decision from city leaders on a possible rock concert that could draw 5,000 people.

"I hear the youngest city council member is, like, 38 years old. These people probably just listen to country music," the Beavis look-alike said. "Uh, yeah, they probably never even heard of Metallica or Ozzy Osbourne," his Butt-head-like companion

Disgusted, the pair walked away, never knowing that Westland City Council members voted 4-2 to allow a six-hour concert on Aug. 9 behind the Wayne Ford Civic League on Wayne Road south of Ford.

Is that cool? Or is that inviting trouble? Kidding aside, council members offered differing views before approving a request from civic league president Neil Greenfield for a concert on a baseball "I'm concerned with the safety of 4,000 to 5,000 people who might come into this community," Councilwoman Justine Barns said. Colleague Glenn Anderson joined Barns in opposition. "I just think it's too risky for us to approve," he

Volunteers: The basis for a strong community

Volunteering builds a stronger community, say those who offer their time and coordinate volunteer services in the Westland area.

Many believe the recent national Presidents' Summit in Philadelphia — which called for a national vol-

Doreen Vivyan, director of volunteering for Community Hospice Services and a 10-year veteran in the volunteer arena, believes the national summit will give credence to the idea of volunteering. The April meeting was just the start of something that will likely grow, she said.

"I've seen the face of volunteering change over the years," she said, adding that the idea of corporations giving employees incentives to offer their time is becoming more popular. "We're seeing so many volunteers come from the corbrate level — maybe wanting to help with one event. Companies are encouraging their employees to get

Mayor arrives home from hospital

Mayor Robert Thomas was home Tuesday recovering from bleeding ulcers after spending two nights at Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center-Wayne, where he narrowly avoided a blood transfusion.

Thomas, 46, said by telephone that he expects to be out of his office for a couple of weeks, although he is handling business from home.

"I'm doing it by phone," he said. Thomas said his directors are keeping him abreast of any issues that he needs to address.

Test scores mixed

High School Proficiency Tests are in for Wayne-Westland juniors, with increases in several areas, but a decline in writing. The district still lags behind state scores.

BY DARRELL CLEM

Wayne-Westland 11th-graders made gains in math, reading and science on newly released High School Proficiency Test scores, but their writing skills declined.

The trends mirrored statewide gains and losses on the 1997 HSPT, taken by high school juniors in February. Even though Wayne-Westland scores lagged behind state averages in all four subject areas, local students narrowed some gaps.

"We have made greater gains in some of the areas than the state did," Jane Kuckel, assistant superintendent for instruction, said Wednesday during an interview in her office.

"We're still below state averages in every area, but we're seeing some of the gaps close," she concluded.

In the district, Wayne Memorial High School made significant strides to narrow gaps in scores with John Glenn High School — a move that Kuckel attributed to a uniform cur-

"Our curriculum is more consistent now," Kuckel said, noting that district educators are in the third year of a five-year curriculumimprovement plan.

John Glenn students still posted higher scores than their Wayne Memorial counterparts, but gaps that fuel negative perceptions have begun to close, officials said.

"We're narrowing the gap between the two schools," Kuckel said.

The arts face extinction if funding doesn't improve

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

More than a century ago, people were not considered educated if they lacked exposure and knowledge of classical and fine arts.

Progressively, cultural programs became an integral component of the curriculum, including dance, visual arts, theater, vocal and instrumental music.

As we approach the 21st century, however, funding is less than satisfactory and the arts are often considered financial luxuries - trimmed when budgets need minimizing.

Districts such as Plymouth-Canton, Wayne-Westland, Redford Union, South Redford, Livonia and Garden City provide varying degrees of optional courses and extracurricular activities related to music, drama, and art.

In the last decade, however, desperate efforts have been made to salvage the arts at the elementary and secondary level despite limited funding and their incidental position to core academics such as English, mathematics, government, science and foreign language.

"Expression of the inner soul is the route of human existence," said Steve Kosinski, Churchill High School Creative And Performing Arts (CAPA) director.

As the instructor of a unique arts program in the Livonia Public School District, Kosinski said he has witnessed the program change significantly since he took over leadership nine years ago. Due to outside financial burdens, offerings and support staff have been pared down since CAPA was established in 1986, said Kosinski.

The Livonia instructor said he fears the trend to lessen creative offerings in school curriculums and make way for the "technology bandwagon" will result in the loss of a national art movement.

"Where will our next poet laureate, van Gogh or Leonard Bernstein come from if we continue to make technology a priority?" said Kosinski, who added that the increased use of computer graphics will lead to a generation of adults who can't draw or express themselves creatively without computers.

"We already don't need to know how to spell anymore," said Kosinski, "pretty soon we won't know how to draw, either."

Sign of the times

A reality of the strain budgeting has placed on the arts, remains to be seen in the numbers. Kosinski said in the early years, CAPA maintained a staff of six to eight full-time teachers to approximately 80 stu-

Today, the program, that requires students to audition for eligibility and commit two class periods each day, now supports a staff of 2.5 fulltime instructors to an enrollment of approximately 210 students.

"It's one of those sad realities," anid Kosinski.

Also, because of budget problems, visual arts and instrumental music have been eliminated from the CAPA program.

Kosinski said he makes this lecture from his "soap box" time and

National standards provide gauge of arts proficiency

The following National Standards for Arts Education are a statement of what every young American should know and be able to do in four arts: disciplines - dance, music, theater and the visual arts. The scope is grades K-12, and they speak to both developed by the Consortium of National Arts Education Associations with the passage of the Goals

2000: Educate America Act.

Students should be able to communicate at a basic level in the four arts disciplines - dance, music, theater and the visual arts. This includes knowledge and skills in the use of the basic vocabularies, matecontent and achievement. They were rials, tools, techniques and intellectual methods of each arts discipline.

Incinerator foes continue fight

BY MATT JACHMAN AND CASEY HANS STAFF WRITERS

Some 30 people braved the rain Saturday to picket and protest at an open house for the Central Wayne Incinerator in Dearborn Heights, which serves Westland.

Spearheaded by the Sierra Club and a coalition of environmental and church groups, the peaceful protest began at the gates and culminated with visits and literature drops to area neighborhoods.

"I think it was a successful outreach," said Alison Horton, director of the Mackinac Chapter of the Sierra Club. "We offered people fliers with information that was an opportunity to draw some visibility to our concerns."

During the day, some 200 residents signed postcards protesting the proposed permit to expand the incinerator; those will be forwarded to the state Department of Environmental Quality.

Sierra Club members are also approaching local city councils, they said, asking for support.

In that vein, the city of Livonia has become the newest battleground in the war of words over the incinerator.

Opponents and supporters of the proposed remodeling of the incinerator into a waste-to-energy plant turned out at a May 28 Livonia City Council meeting to speak on a resolution against the plan, gaining council support on a 4-3 vote.

Council members voting against it said the council should respect decisions made by officials in the five cities that use the incinerator - Garden City, Westland, Wayne, Inkster and Dearborn Heights.

The resolution came out of appearances at a May 19 study session by environmental activists Scott Heinzman of Livonia and Ed McArdle of Melvindale. They said the plan to restart a closed furnace and burn up to 800 tons of trash a day will mean increased toxic emissions and pose a greater ash-disposal problem for many communities, including Livonia.

"You create a pollution that wasn't there in the first place by burning plastics," McArdle said Thursday.

But those involved in the plan urged local officials to hear them

"I'm very disappointed that public officials are not, at a minimum, interested in hearing from both sides on an issue of this importance," said Tom Barnett, project manager for Central Wayne Energy Recovery.

McCardle said in addition to Livonia, his group has received support so far from Melvindale and Huron Township, and may approach two or three other communities in the near future, but declined to name them. He said the group has received some resistance from Dearborn and Dearborn Heights, but hopes to win officials there over.

The coalition also plans to approach mayors and city managers of the incinerator's member cities, including Westland and Garden City. On Monday, Westland resident Katherine Pare appeared before the Westland City Council urging that a resolution similar to Livonia's be adopted by the Westland City Council.

How it would work

The $100 million plan for the incinerator would turn it into a waste-to-energy plant with the latest pollution-control equipment. Barnett said. Emissions would be monitored continuously, he said, and "dramatic reductions" in mercury and dioxin levels are anticipated.

Central Wayne Energy Recovery is a private partnership that has a 35-year contract over the incinerator with the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority, which represents the five communities that use it. The cities would pay CWER to burn their trash, and the partnership would then sell the electricity to Detroit Edison.

The plant is now allowed to burn up to 500 tons of trash per day in two furnaces. Two years ago, CWER applied for permission to install new equipment and reopen the mothballed furnace. Both Wayne County and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency reviewed the application, and a decision from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality is expected this summer.

The public will be invited to comment before that.

'Eager for help' - Young woman's life turns around

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Kimberly Jackson was only 12 years old when her life took a downturn.

"I started hanging out with older people and staying out late," she said. "I would come home drunk and skip school the next day."

Jackson said her Westland parents didn't seem to care, so her behavior only worsened. Then she got caught shoplifting a hat when she was 14 years old.

Only then did Jackson receive the help she needed when juvenile authorities placed her in the city of Westland's Youth Assistance Program, where director Ronaele Bowman paired her with mentor Carol Sparks.

"Kim was eager for help. She was ready to have leadership," Sparks, 58, said. "She wanted someone to care about her. She wanted a mentor in her life."

On Monday afternoon, Jackson and Sparks smiled often - a sign of better times - as they sat in Bowman's second-floor office in Westland's Bailey Recreation Center.

Now 18, Jackson is counting the days until her graduation Saturday from Wayne Memorial High School, where she maintains a "B" average. She has been offered a summer job by Ford Motor Co., one that holds promise for full-time work. And she has been accepted next fall at the Detroit College of Business, where she wants to study to become a computer programmer.

Jackson lives in Wayne with her 23-yearold boyfriend; she moved in with him because she had to escape a home life that she said was destructive.

"She had to have a place to live," Bowman said.

Jackson seems confident now - in charge of her destiny. "Kim had the desire," Sparks said. "I just tried to help her."

Bowman paired Jackson with her mentor four years ago - a match that proved successful.

"We would talk and go for walks, or we'd go see a movie," Sparks said. "Kim took an interest in school because I would always ask to see her report card. We would go to the library, too, and I'd help her as much as I could with school.'

The pair spent no more than a couple of hours a week together, but it was quality. time that let Jackson know she had a friend who cared. Sparks served as Jackson's mentor for eight months, but they have stayed in touch. Sparks brought flowers and a card to Jackson on Monday.

Jackson, who was a Franklin Middle School student when she met Sparks, had been receiving "D" grades until she was placed in the Youth Assistance Program.

As she prepares to graduate Saturday, she has two perfect attendance marks on her record and an academic letter that she earned in the 1994-95 school year.

Sparks has served as mentor to three other youths, she said, "but Kim is my biggest suc-

Jackson's parents have divorced, and she is forging new ties with her father. She eventually hopes to have a relationship with her mother, although that hasn't happened yet. She talks to two of her three older sisters.

Jackson said she learned valuable lessons in life from the Youth Assistance Program.

"I don't want to end up like my parents. I learned that I have to go to school and to work. It doesn't matter if I stay out until 3 in the morning; this is my responsibility," she said. "I feel better about myself now that I've been going to school. I have more selfesteem. I know that I have to do things for myself; no one else can do it for me."

Over at the William P. Faust Library in Westland, Joe Burchill serves as volunteer coordinator and hopes to build a solid corps of volunteers for a variety of services.

"I'm kind of riding Bill Clinton's coattails," he said. "It trickles right down to my library. We want to be a place where people can make that difference - you take it beyond 'people as a patron,' " he said. Using volunteers, he added, "truly makes it a library of the peo-

At the library, volunteers are used to shelve books, checking books that are already shelved to ensure they are properly placed, and even local garden clubs and other groups are welcome to volunteer to beautify the grounds. on the board. Like most, he believes the national summit will draw attention to other opportunities. "I'm not really sure I know what will come of the presidential summit," he added. "It put a lot of emphasis on corporate America, i see more and more companies - especially Fortune 500 - getting more involved.

"It does so much good for people in the business community to work with group that need help."

The senior community is one which is no stranger to the concept of volunteering

"I believe any kind of encouragement from the president of the United States will help, but I believe you also have to have good leadership in your local community," said Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, director of senior resources for the city of Westland, which operates the Friendship Center on Newburgh Road. Some 150 people volunteer at the center in any given year.

"People volunteer because they want to feel needed and useful." she explained. "People retire, they mission. I feel good about serving think that's what they want. Volunteering helps to fill that void."

Not only to groups need to solicit volunteer help, once you get volunteers "you have to make them feel rewarded and thanked." Kozorosky-Wiacek added.

Store robbed

A gun-toting suspect robbed the 7-Eleven at 172 S. John Hix on May 25 and escaped with a small amount of cash, a Westland police report said.

The male suspect walked into the store, demanded money from a female clerk and revealed what was described as "a long gun" tucked inside his coat, the victim told police. The clerk complied after initially trying to pretend that she didn't hear the suspect, the report said.

The suspect, who fled on foot, was described as a white male, 35 to 40 years old, about 5-foot-6, with a medium build. He had curly blond hair and wore a black three-quarter length coat, a striped/hooded sweatshirt and white baggy pants.

City decision upheld in federal court

A Westland City Council decision rejecting a facility for federal prisoners nearing their release has been upheld in U.S. District Court in Detroit, City Attorney Angelo Plakas said Monday.

A council majority in December refused to allow Community Treatment Centers (CTC) Inc. to house 35 supposedly nonviolent male offenders in a 7,200square-foot facility near Michigan Avenue and Henry Ruff development.

A lawsuit filed in federal court challenged the city decision and also sought damages, but Plakas announced during a council meeting Monday that the council has prevailed.

He added, however, that an appeal is possible.

Council members ruled that the prisoner facility didn't comply with zoning requirements in an area slated for office/business

The facility would have housed prisoners allowed to leave only for work or to seek jobs, as they prepare to reenter society.

The federal court decision followed an earlier, separate ruling in Wayne County Circuit Court that also upheld the council vote.

Councilwoman Sharon Scott commended Plakas for his efforts at defending the council's decision in court, saying his skills have saved the city money.

10 years celebrated

Celebrating 10 years in business in June, Toarmina's Pizza will award a $1,000 scholarship, donate 6,000 pizzas and raise $30,000 for local schools, the Make A Wish Foundation and the Salvation Army.

They will celebrate the final day of the promotion, June 10, with a ceremony at 4 p.m. at the store at 1311 S. Wayne Road, where prices will be rolled back to 1987 all day.

The pizza business is owned by Lou Toarmina and was founded in Westland. It now has 18 stores in the area. For more information, call 729-1882.

Playscape, housing, senior center get money

BY DONNA MULCAHY SPECIAL WRITER

A proposed playscape for Central City Park, an addition at the Westland Friendship Center, and affordable housing activities in the Carver Subdivision are just some of the things targeted for federal funds under a city program.

The 1997-98 Housing and Community Development Consolidated Plan Action Plan consists of the city's proposed Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) budget and HOME program budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

Both programs are administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The Westland City Council approved the budget in May.

Congress enacted the CDBG program in 1974 to address the problem of deteriorating cities and neighborhoods. In the program, federal funds are made available to cities for use on activities that:

■ Benefit low- and moderateincome families.

Aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight.

Address an urgent threat to the health or safety of the community.

The city has participated in the CDBG program for the past 23 years and in the HOME program for the past three years. Under HOME, cities receive federal funds for the purpose of making affordable housing available to the public.

Procedure waived

The city council waived its normal procedure by introducing and approving the consolidated plan all on the same night. However, the CDBG and HOME budgets were available for public review from April 15 through May 15, and four public hearings were held on them, including one at the April 21 meeting of the city council.

James Gilbert, director of Community Development, said the approval expedites HUD's approval process.

"This is something that was literally seen by the public on several occasions. We had four public hearings on the matter, and it just seemed silly to drag out the process any further," Gilbert said.

No changes to the plan were requested at any of the public hearings, he added. "I think that's because we're kind of keeping with what people want. We listen to what the public wants."

The plan now goes to HUD, which has 45 days to review the document before deciding whether to approve it. If approved, HUD will release funds in late August.

The city anticipates receiving $1,317,242 in CDBG funds for the upcoming fiscal year. That includes a regular block grant allocation of $1,260,000, and $57,242 from loan and grant repayments in the CDBG-funded Housing Rehabilitation Pro-

The city also expects to receive $356,000 in HOME funds, according to the consolidated

Under the CDBG budget, $100,000 would be set aside for a matching grant program for the Central City Park playscape. For every dollar raised by the Playscape Committee from nongovernmental sources, the city would donate $1 in CDBG funds, up to a maximum of $100,000.

CDBG money can be used only for purchase of materials and equipment or the rental of equipment for the playscape. The 30,000-square-foot, wooden playscape is to be built in Central City Park, south of the Bailey Recreation Center, with all volunteer labor. The total estimated cost for the structure is $180,000.

In another project, $158,150 in CDBG funds would go toward the construction of a 4,620square-foot addition to the Westland Friendship Center. The estimated maximum cost of the addition is $930,000, excluding help pay for the project, the city plans to use $100,000 in CDBG funds that it budgeted for the addition last year, and take out a $530,000 loan from HUD. The city-plans to repay the loan over five years.

Housing projects

The HOME program budget includes $71,200, to be set aside for the People's Community Hope for Homes Inc. The nonprofit organization has been designated by the city to conduct affordable housing projects and programs in the Carver Subdivision, in an effort to revitalize that neighborhood.

Planned activities include infill housing and the acquisition, rehabilitation and resale of homes that are currently vacant.

In addition to money for the playscape and the addition to the Westland Friendship Center, the proposed CDBG budget includes the following: $247,790 for the Community Development Administration, $82,222 for the Rehabilitation Administration, and $100,000 for Housing Rehabilitation.

Also, $178,500 for senior programs, $7,000 for N.S.A. transportation, $24,680 for the Community Commission on Drug Abuse/Hegira Programs, $19,700 each for First Step and the Child & Family Neighbor-interest on the financing. To The 30,000-square-foot, wooden playscape is to be built in Central City Park, south of the Bailey Recreation Center, with all volunteer labor. The total estimated cost for the structure is $180,000.

> hood Program, $14,500 for the Youth Assistance Program, and $105,000 for phase two of the Van Born Watermain Replacement project.

In addition, $95,000 for phase two of easement removal in the Norwayne Subdivision, $125,000 for phase two of the infrastructure project on Currier Street in the Carver Subdivision, and $20,000 each for phase four of the Stottlemyer Park Development and upgrades to Norwayne Park.

The proposed HOME budget Subdivision.

includes the following: $105,000 for the HOME Rental Rehabilitation Program in the Norwayne and Carver subdivisions, and $104,200, for the Westland HomeBuyer Program in the Norwayne and Carver Subdivisions.

Also, $40,000 for a special HOME Project Set Aside for senior housing, $35,600 for administration of the HOME funds, and the previously mentioned $71,200 to the PCHFH for revitalization of the Carver council members Charles Pickering. Sharon Scott, Richard cleanup of surrounding property. LeBlanc and Sandra Cicirelli favored the concert, following arguments that events like the Westland Summer Festival and high school football games draw similarly large crowds.

Scott noted that city police and fire officials have the power to shut down the concert if unforeseen problems arise.

Said police Chief Emery Price: "I assure you that we will police it as much as we can during the concert."

Greenfield said he is leaning toward a rock concert, although he didn't rule out the possibility of a country music lineup.

Most details still are pending, but Greenfield said the concert would raise money for the Wayne Ford Civic League - a private, nonprofit organization that sponsors youth athletic programs and other charitable events.

Greenfield will have to address several issues in planning the concert. He must:

Provide proof to the city that the event has proper insurance coverage.

Hire security, estimated by himself at more than 100

■ Receive approval from the state Liquor Control Commission to serve alcohol.

Publish: June 5, 1997

Post a bond for potential Greenfield also had to agree to a time frame for addressing fire code violations cited indoors at the civic league, in areas such as a storage balcony and the kitchen. Assistant Westland fire Chief Patrick Harder told council members Monday that some problems date back to 1993.

Barns noted that Greenfield's request marked the first time the council has voted on a concert that will draw such a large crowd.

Greenfield said the event won't draw any more patrons than the civic league's annual carnival does "on a good day." Anderson, however, noted that patrons come and go at a carnival, unlike a concert where thousands will stay put for hours.

"It's just a real concern I have," he said.

Meanwhile, in a late-breaking development, the Beavis and Butt-nead clones seen in Westland apparently learned of the council vote on Tuesday, while playing a game of laser tag at Laser Quest on Nankin Boulevard.

Do they plan to attend? In unison, they said, "Uh, we don't have any money.'

shares for the arts won't have the opportunity to flourish within the next generation.

He is not alone. "Funding for the arts throughout the United States is minimal," said Redford Union art teacher Tom Grove. "Generally in our culture the arts aren't held in high esteem and we aren't sure where they fit into things - but the popularity of art festivals and craft shows proves otherwise."

John Glenn drama teacher Sherri Smith said the arts being viewed as "less important than other academic areas" is regarded as a "personal insult" to her educator. "It's a tragedy for both students. and the community as a whole," said Smith. Smith receives a budget of $500 for the entire school year to produce a fall and spring production in conjunction with other theator-related activities. Not surprisingly, fund-raising becomes one of the few workable solutions.

Infinite benefits

Music, drama, and visual art teachers offer example after example of the arts link between learning and elevated levels of curriculum performance and achievement.

Garden City High School art instructor Kay Paupore said "getting back to the basics" with less of a concentration on the arts is "short-sighted."

"The arts provide an outlet for problem-solving and require high orders of thinking," said Paupore. "They help students solve comprehensive problems through abstract thinking with a link to their emotions. You don't get that in most curriculum

Educators and other experts maintain that the arts promote thinking and creativity, and teach the importance and overall value of teamwork - traits any employer would consider essential to working situations.

The benefits are immeasurable but distinctly rewarding.

"The arts are a necessary part of the curriculum that should not be considered frivolous," said Judith Braun, Plymouth-Canton art instructor. "They help stimulate right-brain functions and enhance life in general. People don't realize how prominent art is in our lives."

Although attempts have been made to retain structured art programming, some grades have been reduced to after-school programs, weekly offerings or those available a la carte, with boxes of art materials carried from classroom to classroom for 45minute intervals.

Teachers know the financial strains each district operates under, perceiving the lack of funding as commonplace, but largely insufficient.

"District administrators do show support but I think their hands are tied in most situations," said Smith, "and it's tradition to go after the arts first."

Surprisingly, many creative courses don't benefit from individual school budgets whose only source of funding is spent on a teacher's salary or a nominal purse for supplies such as paper and pencils.

"We've been quite successful in financing ourselves," said Gloria Logan.

Logan, a 27-year educator with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, said the department's first performance in 1971, drew a crowd of approximately 75 people. This past month, the spring musical "South Pacific," entertained more than 4,000 audience members, many of whom do not have children in the Plymouth-Canton school dis-

"Often times, people will call from different cities wanting to know what's going on with our theater because they enjoy the quality entertainment we put forth," said Logan.

A minimal budget for contracted services such as conductor and ushers is provided to Logan, but she said she receives no money from the school district to fund high school productions.

"South Pacific," she estimated, cost $20,000 to produce, including royalties, scenery materials, advertising, makeup and costumes. Fund-raising and ticket sales help support the entire project, said Logan.

External challenges

Unfortunately, it is the student who suffers the greatest consequence when various forms of expression are challenged by obstacles such as lack of classroom supplies, limited course offerings and schedule conflicts.

Teachers find themselves burdened with the task of maintaining a constant flow of income generated from fund-raisers.

The distraction from candy sales and money collections can overtake a 55- minute class period with minimal quality time remaining for drawing, singing and acting.

"It's a hassle trying to collect money and teach class," said Gina Strand, Wayne Memorial High School forensic coach. "I feel more like a bank teller some Fund-raising through student initiatives or booster organizations accounts for a majority of funds used to purchase sheets of music, royalty authorization for the production of a play, competition fees, transportation to and from outside events, uniforms and instruments.

"We won't have a marching band that competes next year if we can't raise another $5,000 for new drums," said Wayne Memorial High School band instructor Dana Allen.

Redford Union High School band booster president Mike Potter said the parent-oriented organization in conjunction with the Redford Union Task Force tries to support and improve academic and arts-related programming through fund-raising and grants.

"I was really surprised at how much funding comes from the boosters and the task force," said

Westland John Glenn band instructor Scott Cramer said his district supports the arts "as much as they possibly can" but 90 percent of what it takes to finance the band program comes from fund-raising and boosters.

A lack of funding has undoubtedly left programming across the state minimized, but teachers remain frustrated yet hopeful that the winds of change may "dance" their way.

"Financing does limit what we can offer our students," said Plymouth-Canton art teacher Braun, "but they know it's a fact of life that supplies are expensive and they have to respect

As a result of developing these capabilities, students can arrive at their own knowledge, beliefs and values for making personal and artistic decisions. In other terms, they can arrive at a broad-based, well-grounded understanding of the nature, value and meaning of the arts as a part of their own humanity.

Importance of arts

Knowing and practicing the arts discipline is fundamental to the healthy development of children's minds and spirits.

■ The arts are worth studying simply because of what they are. Their impact can't be denied. Throughout history, all the arts have served to connect our imaginations with the deepest questions of human existence: Who am I? What must I do? Where am I going?

■ The arts are used to achieve a multitude of human purposes: to present issues, ideas, to teach or persuade, to entertain, to decorate or to please. Becoming lit-

■ The arts are integral to every person's daily life.

Our personal, social, economical and cultural environments are shaped by the arts at every turn - from the design on a child's breakfast placemat, to the songs on the commuter's car radio, to the family's night-time TV drama, to the teen-ager's Saturday dance, to the enduring influences of the classics.

■ The arts offer unique sources of enjoyment and refreshment for the imagination. They explore relationships between ideas and objects and serve as links between thought and action. Their continuing gift is to help us see and grasp life in many ways.

■ There is ample evidence that the arts help students develop the attitudes, characteristics, and intellectual skills required to participate effectively in today's society and economy.

Probe continues about dog

By Marie Chestney

The owner of an injured German shepherd found wandering in Hines Park told investigators he had taken the dog to a friend, said Dewey Fradly, animal control officer for West-

"But he didn't identify the friend," said Fradly, who is now investigating how a dog hit by a van on Five Mile in Livonia wound up abandoned near Ann Arbor Trail and Farmington Initially, animal control officers in Westland and Livonia were unsure just where the dog was found and which city had jurisdiction. It has since been determined the dog was picked up in Westland.

"So it's in Westland's hands," said Vickey Steier, animal control officer for Livonia. "They, must figure out what to do."

According to Fradly, someone saw the dog, named Bubba, dropped off near Hines Park.

"I called him, left my number, and am waiting for him to call back. We need a witness. If there is no witness, we have nothing."

If the witness can identify the former owner as the person who dropped the dog off, Fradly said either Westland's animal control department or Westland police can prosecute.

"He would be cited for cruelty, a four-year felony if pursued by the detective bureau," Fradsaid. "Sometimes they put it back in animal control's lap. Then we'd issue a ticket for a misdemeanor."

The owner has since relinquished ownership of the dog to the Michigan Humane Society. The dog is now under medical care in Westland's shelter; he is not yet available for adoption.

Bubba suffered bruises and cuts after being struck by a van near Five Mile and Harrison. He was dragged nearly a block before the van stopped.

Fradly said the dog's former owner said Bubba was a stray he was caring for and feeding. The former owner is now in Sweden.

Barbara Scherr, assistant city attorney for Livonia, said she was disappointed when jurisdiction turned out to belong to Westland. "This city has a good track record of prosecution where we can in cruelty cases," Scherr said. "We would pursue this if we had jurisdiction."

Scherr said she will turn information in the case over to the Wayne County prosecutor's office, to see if they are interested in pursuing the case.

Witnesses to the accident in Livonia saw the owner put the dog in a car and drive off. Witnesses said the owner said he would take the dog to a veterinarian.

Trustees praise McDowell for 'highly effective' leadership

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Citing his "highly effective administrative and leadership abilities," trustees at Schoolcraft College commended college president Richard McDowell for a job well done during his annual evaluation late last mont; h.

Trustees evaluated McDowell May 28 at a closed session, then awarded him a 2.5 percent

Earlier that evening, board members ratified 2.5 percent increases to 12 executive administrators, and 77 full-time classified staff and regular part-time employees.

McDowell's abilities have "resulted in a qualified and stable work force, a strong financial base, and academic and community recognition for the college," according to written comments released Thursday by the board of trustees.

"(McDowell's) continued enthusiasm is unmatched and the college continues to grow in stature. He is a visionary. There is a high degree of integration among the administration, faculty and staff in the decision-making process."

Board chair Patricia Watson said the board was "extremely pleased" with his performance.

"It's a pleasure to work with him. He's demonstrated leadership throughout the years. The college's growth is a credit to him."

Accomplishments

McDowell's accomplishments for the 1996-97 year included:

■The celebration of the college's 35th anniver-

■The Business Development Center received the Trainer of the Year Award from the state of Michigan. (McDowell is responsible for the creation of the Business Development Center, which was established in 1985. To date, the center has helped area businesses obtain $804 million in government and state grants.)

■The college has expanded its distance learning program and student enrollment increases each year for distance learning courses. This year the college added classes on E-mail, and a program using the college's interactive classroom was developed to provide courses for local K-12

Student retention has been a major initiative. Programs and services were developed to meet individual needs, including individual tutoring and learning communities.

Schoolcraft has remained debt-free. No project or program is initiated until an in-depth analysis has been completed. Long-range planning has led to new courses, new facilities and new programs that meet budget guidelines.

■A facilities master plan was developed to maintain, improve and expand college buildings, some of which has been in existence for 35 years.

The college's finances are strong under McDowell's leadership, Watson added. "Schoolcraft is one of the few colleges that is debt-free," Watson said.

Watson said the board asked McDowell to continue to examine cost-cutting measures in his objectives next year. McDowell is expected to outline those objectives on June 25 for the board.

"We've asked him to look at insurance coverage again next year," Watson said. "We would like to explore better communication between the Schoolcraft board and K-12 school boards. We have a good relationship (with the districts) and we'd like to enhance them.

"We'd like to work with area legislators, to publicize what we're doing and educate them on these issues."

Trustees agree

Board vice chair John Walsh said McDowell has remained effective as a college president in a position that, at other schools, generally has a high

"His tenure has resulted in a lot of success at the college," Walsh said. "He has been here 15 years, and his approach to the college is still fresh and innovative."

Trustee Richard DeVries said: "Everybody's happy with Dick McDowell. He's a creative administrator. In the review of his objectives, he did

"He's recognized as one of the top 50 administrators of community colleges in the country."

Trustee Steve Ragan reiterated DeVries' state-

"The college is in excellent financial shape," Ragan said. "He's a president who is active in the Ragan said the board believes McDowell should continue to pursue cost savings and cost-cutting initiatives.

"It's important to keep the tuition increases to a minimum. We also want to strengthen our relationships with K-12 districts."

Water, Gas, Electricity, Broadband. Broadband? Yes Broadband You see ye

Broadband? Yes, Broadband. You see, very soon Broadband will become one of your home's most vital, most essential connections. It's the way the future will find its way to your house. When water, gas and electricity came to our homes, they fundamentally changed the way we lived. Our lives were made easier. We had more time to pursue our dreams, to take that next step. We believe Broadband will have that kind of impact. This one connection will. fundamentally change the way you use your television, your computer, your telephone. Broadband will give your computer the power to be as entertaining as your TV. Your TV will become as smart as your computer. And you will be able to communicate in ways you never thought you could. Broadband is simply a wire with enormous capacity, a wire with two-way capabilities. The wire you now think of as bringing you cable TV is being transformed into something that can literally bring you the future. Right now Broadband is allowing people to download from the Internet up to 50 times faster than ordinary telephone wire.

Broadband's unique two-way capabilities make the word "interactive" take on an entirely new meaning.

You will no longer simply receive the world's greatest movies. Broadband gives you the power to send your own home movies through your computer. Broadband will not only connect your family to the world of ideas. Our digital TV service will give you the best connection to the world of entertainment. With flawless reception and all the movies, sports and entertainment you want, there's no better way to hook up to a whole lot of fun. In time, much like water, gas and electricity, Broadband will become such a powerful connection, such an integral part of your day-to-day life, that it will be hard to imagine life without it. For more information, call I-888-843-9294

Third try

Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, is confident he will be luckier on his third try for a pet sterilization law.

His House Bill 4239 would regulate public and private animal shelters, pet shops and dog pounds. The would be required to either sterilize dogs, cats or ferrets or require persons adopting animals to have them sterilized in a specified period of time.

"One year the governor vetoed it," said Law. Gov. John Engler objected that it contained reporting requirements that could have Headlee amendment consequences as unfunded state mandates, "Last year it died. This year it has gone through both chambers," said Law.

There were complications: Hunters wanted assurances their dogs, if found, wouldn't be automatically neutered or spayed. Law said it wasn't necessary because the hunter would be reclaiming his dog, not adopt-

"But I had to put in something for them because they were neryous," he said.

Each year more than 200,000 dogs and cats are euthanized in shelters, while others are abandoned and die from sickness. hunger or injury. Only one in five of the 70,000 puppies and kittens born every day in the U.S. will be cared for its entire lifetime.

The Kent County Animal Control Shelter, however, has seen a 61 percent decrease in euthanasia since the inception of its mandatory spay/neuter program. Washtenaw County reported a 67 percent decline in euthanasia, according to testimony in legislative hearings.

Community sustains art involvement after the school bell

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

It is the community that steps in, like an understudy in a play, providing a seamless transition for school districts that have been forced to curtail music and art classes due to a lack of money.

Venues where visual arts and music are offered range from the pavilion stage of Westland's new outdoor amphitheater to the store front window of The Art Gallery in Garden City.

In most communities the focus is broad and offerings appeal to all ages whether you're a 5-yearold painter or an 80-year-old musician.

Westland, Plymouth, Canton, Redford, Garden City and Livonia all offer after-school programming either at the elementary or secondary level with some sampling of the arts, bridging gaps where lack of funding has left voids.

Not all of the communities have symphonies or theater troupes, but their location and convenience to each other makes exposure feasible. Year-round activities help keep the arts visible within every Observer area community from an early summer juried art show to a December symphonic concert.

Kathleen Salla, volunteer coordinator of Canton Project Arts, said community organizations need to make the arts a priority to maintain a strong connection between learning and creative expression.

We make every effort to develop cultural arts and activi- children's artwork went on disties that are both visual and play last summer.

enjoyable for the community," said Salla. "Young people in particular should be stimulated to gain a deep appreciation of the arts that will last a lifetime."

Nurturing creativity

Artist Sharon Dillenbeck said her new Canton studio (D&M Studio) relocated from Plymouth, strives to nurture creativity in everyone from her youngest 3year-old students to senior artisans. Multi-age camps and instudio classes enable novice oil painters or cartoonists to have contact with distinguished community artists on a day-to-day basis.

Dillenbeck said the lack of exposure children have to the arts comes from a shortage of consistency in the classroom. Funding in some communities is so minimal, said Dillenbeck, there's a different teacher every

"Children need something to do besides play.'

Dillenbeck also noted the frustration teachers feel when workshops aren't offered with a focus on the arts. "Teachers themselves need to be taught to incorporate the arts in their classroom because they help shape small motor skills and build selfesteem," said Dillenbeck.

Not only does D&M Studio provide a locale for creativity but also encourages students to market their work, teach classes at the studio and provides an arena for public showing at the annual Liberty Festival in Canton where more than 1,000 pieces of

The Plymouth Community Arts Council, established in 1968, facilitates a program that blends outside talents in the classroom through the Art Volunteer Program, formerly known as Art Lady. Since 1969, volunteers make monthly presentations with cultural items such as music, reprints, posters and sculptures to local classrooms where speakers discuss and display art work.

Jennifer Tobin, Plymouth Arts Council executive director, said continuing education beyond the end of a school day is necessary to augment what's happening in the classroom and not "copy it."

Local teachers can apply to receive grants from the council for that very purpose, said Tobin. Amounts ranging from $100 to $400 are used for trips to the symphony or to conduct school-wide art projects.

"Our purpose is to expand programming and not let things get any worse," said Tobin. "Parents and community members need to go before school boards and say We are serious about the situation the arts are in and you should be too.'

Realizing formal and outward measures need to be taken to insure the livelihood of the arts, the communities of Plymouth and Canton recently formed the Arts Alliance and adopted an objective to make sure the arts are brought back into schools.

Working together

Tobin said Plymouth and Canton community-based organizations are also collaborating to design a calendar to avoid event conflicts and provide better communication with the media.

Garden City member and director of The Art Gallery Norma McQueen said her involvement with the arts came late in life but she finds the benefits innumerable.

"Art feeds the soul," said McQueen, "yet in the schools they're considered so much less essential than other areas of the curriculum."

Although the gallery generally features artists 18 years and older, the business offers classes for young children including a clay sculpture course for students 6 to 12 years old.

"Our gallery looks to be as supportive and encouraging as possible to spur an appreciation for the arts in everyone," said McQueen.

Other local examples of programming for children include: ■ Theatre Guild of Redford-Livonia supports the Creative and Performing Arts (CAPA) program at Churchill High School. Students are exposed to live theater and are trained onstage and behind the curtain to act, build sceneries, design costumes and conduct performances.

"The theater gives children something constructive to do with their lives," said director Blanche Graham. "It's not all fun and play, and the training requires so much more than hitting a ball."

Acting workshops for kindergarten-age children are also accessible.

■ The Westland All-Stars is a theater troupe for first through senior high school children, supported by the Bailey Recreation Center and under the direction of Marshall Middle School choir teacher Bill Ingersoll.

■ Civic Center Library of Livonia hosts an annual student exhibit in the spring where hundreds of young artists are featured and given the opportunity to display their work publicly.

Many leaders from the arts community agree initiatives made by their organizations are only beneficial to children if parents and teachers are resourceful and seek out their offerings,

"Children should be given an opportunity to whet their appetite for creativity," said Beh Sheridan, Garden City Fine Arts Association president.

"The arts, whether you're in a classroom or involved with a community program, fostor a natural and innate appreciation you can't gain from mathematics or social studies."

Elementary budgets force arts to take a back seat to reading, writing

By Kimberly A. Mortson Staff Writer

By far, elementary-level exposure to visual arts and music has suffered the most dramatic changes in quality, frequency and volume.

Art teachers at the elementary level are either non-existent, divide their day between more than one school or find themselves managing "mobile" classrooms.

While administrators and school boards search for ways to upgrade offerings to students who are at a critical junction for learning, funding ties their hands to limit, or at worst, dissolve structured art classes.

Garden City public schools, due to severe budget cutbacks, were forced to eliminate formal art and music classes several years ago.

Judy Pizzuti, Garden City curriculum director, said while it has not been approved, the district is hopeful they will be able to reinstate art and music in the elementary program for fall 1997.

Currently, the two are incorporated into the curriculum among mathematics, social studies, English, and reading. Sixthgrade students, however, are offered an instrumental music program at Garden City High School each week, said Pizzuti. Likewise, Redford Union and South Redford also offer instrumental programs for students beginning in the fifth and sixth grades compared to Wayne-West-land and Plymouth-Canton students who must wait until junior high or middle school to take up an instrument.

Livonia does not offer instrumental music during school but established a partnership with the Livonia Community Education Center to host an afterschool instrumental enrichment program for fifth- and sixthgraders.

"We have made a commitment to the arts," said Marlene Bihlmeyer, Livonia director of curriculum. "We have a rich secondary offering and are constantly trying to improve what we offer our elementary students."

greatest impact on the kinds of classes the district can offer. "The arts are still in place," said Kuckel. "We would rather pare them down a bit before eliminating them at all." Kuckel said the arts at the elementary level are critical to "laying down a foundation for a wellrounded student." Plymouth-Canton also knows the restrictions a budget can have on programming.

"We value the arts and want to.

keep them in the academic curriculum to the extent that the budget allows us," said Verna Anible, director of K-12 instruction in the Plymouth Canton district. "We try and strike a fair balance between the two."

Secondary education teachers and community-based art organizations note the lack of experience elementary children bring to the classroom later on in their education. Wayne Memorial High School shortcomings are evident at state competitions where students from Class A schools are challenged to play against children from similar districts who continue to enjoy instrumental programming at the elementary

"They start later and have had less time to prepare," said Allen. "Sometimes they are far less experienced and struggle at the level they should be playing."

It's not hard to imagine that differences would also occur in other arts-related disciplines where classes have been reduced or eliminated.

"We have to respect the arts enough to guarantee we have a generation and an audience who will see to their survival," said Canton artist/director Cindy Zeitz. "At the rate we're going there's no assurance they'll be able to appreciate classical music or recognize a Seurat painting."

OPINION

36251 SCHOOLCRAFT, LIVONIA, MICHIGAN 48150

June 9 election

Galka and Nalley our choices

n Monday, June 9, Westland voters will go to the polls in the annual school election to select school trustees.

For the Livonia Board of Education, the candidates running for two four-year seats are Thomas Kasper, Kristen Galka, Jane Teska, Patrick Nalley, and Dan Lessard. No incumbents are seeking election this year.

The Westland Observer endorses Kirsten Galka as most qualified. Galka regularly attends school board meetings, something not true of the other four. She has a deep background of involvement at the school level in the PTA and as a volunteer.

Galka also has a background in public health, including supervision and consulting, which will add a different perspective to the board. She is bright, articulate, analytical, and thinks well on her feet. Her knowledge of the district will stand her in good stead if elected.

For the second choice, the Observer was torn in two directions in trying to decide whom to endorse. The final decision came down to community and district involvement and varied professional background which is why we endorse Patrick D. Nalley for the board.

An educator, Nalley has taught special education at the elementary, middle school and high school level for Wayne-Westland Public > Schools as well as being a high school debate, speech and composition instructor. He also has administrative experience, having served Wayne-Westland as director of adult/community education for 10 years.

Community involvement includes being a board member of the Livonia Community Foundation, serving as president of the Laurel Park

South II Homeowners' Association, and volunteering for Youth Make a Difference and Just Say No as well as being active in the PTA. Nalley was stronger last year responding to issue questions in our interview and may have been more passive this year anticipating we would not endorse him.

But we know Nalley to have strong views, to be committed to those positions, and be able to communicate with residents.

We urge all our readers to vote on Monday, June 9, and recommend candidates Kirsten Galka and Patrick Nalley.

A vote for students

n June 9, the citizens of Wayne-Westland have the opportunity to make a good character choice in school government.

The globalization of our economy creates a greater need for strong-mindedness and dedicated thinking in the trustees of our school board. The inflationary entrapment in which we find ourselves requires a school board trustee who can make hard choices and has no personal agenda.

The good of the community and the best for our youth have been Ed Turner's living agenda. To use the school board for self-promotion or as a steppingstone to higher office is not Ed Turner's agenda. His agenda is the students. Vote for the best, Ed Turner.

he fate of Chuck Skene is now in the hands of the courts, most likely a Wayne County jury of his peers.

The fired Westland recreation director faces felony charges for allegedly embezzling money from recreation department coffers to fuel gambling trips from August of last year through as recently as last month. Following testimony, a Wayne visiting district judge found enough evidence last week during a preliminary exam to bind him over to circuit court for trial.

Court testimony will offer more information as the case unfolds downtown.

Westland officials have said they are now taking a closer look at money-handling procedures for parks and recreation and for other city departments. We can only hope that Westland city officials continue to keep an eagle eye on the city books and are setting up

Certainly, there should be some level of trust given someone in an appointed, director's position answerable to the mayor's office. However, there should also be some checks and balances to avoid possible problems - no one person should have clear access to city funds without a check and balance system.

There should also be a strict policy on "borrowing" of money from cash drawers. Although some private companies have a "voucher" system of loaning small amounts of money to employees, this should be strictly controlled so as not to offer a temptation for

Wilson Woody Combs

Westland Why is the district broke?

Poor campaigning

While I was watching the 1997 Wayne-Westland Memorial Day Parade, I was appalled when approached by a person actively campaigning for a candidate for the Wayne-Westland school board: Ed Turner.

This parade is to honor and show respect for departed veterans and their families - not to do political campaigning.

I would like to say to Mr. Turner: SHAME ON YOU!!! This shows me that you and your campaign workers feel it is more important to campaign than to have and show respect for those men and women who have fought for our great country. In my opinion, you don't deserve to hold an elected position and especially one on the school board making decisions for our young people's education. You have lost my vote along with many others that were along that parade route.

Diane Browning Westland

Change current board

n light of the recent revelation of the anti-■ discrimination policy passed by the Wayne-Westland school board, it is time to get rid of our present board and get some new people in their place.

We do not need people on the board to try to pass self-serving policies on our children. The students of today have enough problems to face without having to worry about saying something that might be interpreted to violate someone else's rights.

The members of the school board have to remember that they are elected by the people of the district; they owe it to the people to read and know thoroughly what they are voting on and be willing to answer to the people for the policies they pass.

With the school board elections on June 9, the people of the Wayne-Westland school district need to exercise their constitutional right and get out and vote. If we sit back and do nothing, then we give up our rights and enough of them are being taken away from us

> Michael Donovan Wayne

Need a new board

W e all know that the Wayne-Westland school district is in bad shape financially and emotionally. The school district is one of the higher, big-time spenders in the state of Michigan, yet they are broke, even asking Gov. Engler for more money.

Why? What happened to all our tax dollars?

Our school board members and administrators need to manage the school district more like a business and quit wasting our tax dollars. We need new board members and new administrators. We need a new start to change our district for the better. Maybe it would be better if Gov. Engler had the state take over Wayne-Westland schools.

I think if we vote out the board members that are up June 9 and vote in new members that would be a start.

Your children and your tax dollars are precious our children are our future - the school district needs to take better caré of our children and our tax dollars.

OUR MISSION: "Because we publish community newspapers, we think about community journalism in a fundamentally different way than our bigger competition. They consider themselves to be independent from the stories and communities they cover, swooping in to write the unusual or sensational and then dashing off to cover something else. We regard ourselves as both accurate journalists and as caring citizens of the communities where we work."

POINTS OF VIEW

Sealing court records keeps public in dark tate Rep. Karen Willard is the latest to lead the battle to stop secret government payouts in Michigan. Willard, D-Fairhaven, sponsored a bill to prohibit governmental agencies from entering into sealed lawsuit settlements.

Lots of luck, ma'am. Rep. Michael Griffin, D-Jackson, got the same bill through the House a few years ago after a big fight, but the Senate killed

Why? Public officials want to hide their personal misdeeds and their squandering of the exchequer from taxpayers.

So they agree to settle before a case goes to trial, insist the plaintiff agree to secrecy as a condition of settlement, get the judge to seal the records, then lump the payoff into the attorney's fee.

Griffin got hot on the issue when the Jackson County Sheriff's Department paid off a prisoner who was beaten up by other prisoners due to lax security. Then there was the case where a western Wayne County school board paid off a female teacher who sued for gender discrimination when passed over for promotion. Can't let the local libbers find out about that, can we?

Former Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, wanted to extend the open records doctrine to cover suits against corporations where the public health and safety were involved. He was lucky to escape alive.

My own notion is that court records never should be sealed when government or a publicly-traded corporation, like Upjohn, is involved.

One great benefit of open records is told in a 1996 book called "The Chain Gang" by Richard McCord. To demonstrate that Gannett Co., the newspaper publishing giant, used dirty tactics against the competition, McCord journeyed to the federal courthouse in Salem, Ore., and asked to see file 78-865, Community Press v. Gannett.

TIM RICHARD

The file was marked "CONFIDEN-TIAL - SUBJECT TO PROTECTIVE ORDER ... DO NOT DUPLICATE."

A court aide made a mistake and let McCord see the file. He took copious notes showing Gannett wasn't content to produce a better paper, sell more advertising and earn bigger profits; it also developed "Operation Demolition" to drive the rival paper out of business. Depositions showed Gannett:

■ Told its sales people to start rumors the Community Press was about to fold.

Gave its salespeople bonuses not for selling ads but for persuading advertisers to quit using the rival

Bribed advertisers with rebates and credits for dropping out of the rival paper.

Went over the head of the regional Kmart honchos and complained to Kmart headquarters in Troy that the rival was going bust, that local Kmart management was making "poor media judgments" (page 66), and that if Kmart didn't pull out of the rival, its ads wouldn't be accepted by the Gannett paper once the rival was demolished (page 68).

And so on, for 283 pages. Gannett's brass, including chairman Al Neuharth, refused to reply to McCord's story. McCord was unable to obtain the court file of Gannett's responses, so he couldn't tell the chain's side of it.

If Gannett won't defend itself, I'll say something nice about it. It promotes women into management. And it defends public access to public documents and public meetings both in print and with its foundation money.

(But not to corporate documents.) McCord concludes the incident:

"Unwilling to have its practices revealed in an open court, Gannett made a private settlement with CPI a week before the trial was to begin. The dollar amount was not revealed. As it had for the pretrial file, Gannett demanded that the terms of the payout be kept secret. Other conditions insisted upon by Gannett were that all evidence be sealed from public view forever, and that all parties be ordered never to discuss the case."

When big shots in government and business hide something, it's usually because they have something to hide.

A good plan

d Turner has been a member of the Wayne-Westland community for the past 40 years. He has given freely of his time to different groups, businesses and organizations for the betterment of the community. He is a loyal, dependable, tireless worker devoted to the enrichment of the children of this community.

Witness to this is the fact that he was the only one who voted not to sell the property at the Patchin Elementary School. He is a man who, once elected, would listen to his constituents, not play politics with them. He also believes that our operating budget needs to be fixed now, and he also believes that the best way to do that is to match our operating budget with our income.

He further plans not only developing, but implementing a long-term educational plan. One that matches our resources to our needs. A plan to increase our buying power and eliminate duplication and waste. A plan that includes everyone and children, parents, citizens, unions, businesses and government. In simple terms: A plan for the future.

On June 9, vote for Ed Turner for school board. Be a part of the plan.

A vote for McCusker

If the voters of Wayne-Westland were to take a close look at the candidates running for their school board, they would notice that among those running is a leader. A true Leader. Someone not only with the ability to lead others in accomplishing goals, but also the willingness and dedication to make those goals part of the way they live their life. If you were to look closely, you would find that Mathew McCusker is a true leader.

Matt began his commitment to the school system 20 years ago when his children started school in the district. Matt belonged to the Wildwood PTA, was a member of the Marshall and John Glenn band boosters and was the president of the John Glenn Football Booster Club. Even now, Matt is still directly involved by being the voice of the John Glenn Rocket Football Team. A big part of Matt's life has been and still is - dedicated to personally being involved with helping our kids.

Matt has served our school district as an elected official in the capacity of trustee, board secretary, board vice president and three times as board president. He has also served this district on the state and national levels as director and vice president of the Michigan Association of School boards and as a member of the Nation al School Board Association. Matt was also one of the first school board members in Michigan to become certified and remains the only current board member to hold this certification.

Matt's ability to lead has proven itself time and time again, not only in the amount of times this community has chosen him to lead us, but also by the number of times his peers have chosen him to lead them.

Through his leadership and his dedication to the Wayne-Westland school district, Mathew McCusker has proven his worth to this district and proven himself a true leader.

Vote for Mathew McCusker for school board. Kevin M. Headrick

Team players

Michael Jordan has won the scoring title and was a strong candidate for Most Valuable Player. A player who can score, distribute the ball, and rebound a little ought to be recognized. Michael McAdoo Jordan is not nearly the allaround player that Bird proved to be.

Present-day players like Barkley, Pippen, Mullin and Hardaway are complete players.

Cunningham gave area his vision, hope first met Father Bill (William just doesn't work) Cunningham in the late 1960s, shortly after he founded Focus: HOPE in response to the 1967 Detroit riots.

He was an implausible figure then - an Irish priest who rode a Harley, wore his hair long and had a salesman's glitter in his eye that belied the passion in his heart. And he remained an implausible figure through the years when he was building Focus: HOPE into the largest private civil rights and social service organization in southeastern Michigan - by a wide margin the single best promoter in the state, unassailable in his clerical collar and passionate commitment to social justice.

By the time he died this past Memorial Day. Father Cunningham had built Focus: HOPE from a small neighborhood feeding program into a giant firm with a product line ranging from food to day care, from remedial education to job training and master's degrees in mechanical engineering.

The last time I saw him, he was walking gleefully through his state-of-the-art auto parts plant, all lime green hand railings and gray rubberized tile floors, running a job training operation for machinists and engineers that had just received a federal grant in excess of $1 mil-

That was a far cry from the days just after the riots, when the real question - not the abstract proposition but the hard reality - was whether Detroit would simply implode from racial bitterness and poverty and despair, an implosion that would take most of southeastern Michigan down with it.

Together with his extraordinary collaborator, Eleanor Josaitis, originally a homemaker from Taylor, he founded Focus: HOPE in 1968. The two of them made a great pair. Bill Cunningham had the vision, the passion and the charisma, while Eleanor Josaitis plowed along with him, bringing order out of chaos, cleaning up after the occasional mess when vision vaulted too far ahead of practicality.

Focus: HOPE was originally a volunteerbased feeding program for poor people, mostly single mothers with babies who would come into an abandoned factory on Oakland Boulevard looking scared and a little hostile and come out with a sense that somebody cared.

But pretty soon it became clear that merely. feeding poor people wasn't going to cut it. Father Cunningham used to like the line about it being far better to give a starving man a fishing rod and teach him to fish than to give him fish to eat, day after day. Which explains why Focus: HOPE quickly got taken up with issues of skills and training and self-help, thanks to Bill Cunningham's great gift of figuring out how to build one thing on top of another. Some mothers originally coming in for a meal found themselves being asked to help out in the child-care center, while others quickly were taught to manage the warehouse and schedule the steady stream of volunteers.

Job training grants brought in unskilled men to learn to use lathes and read blueprints, an activity quickly converted into a parts supplier organization which rebuilt old parts and sold them to the automobile industry. And that in turn led to a Machinists Training Institute and Center for Advanced Technologies, which have trained something like 5,000 engineers, precision machinists, technicians and manufacturing designers.

By the time Bill Cunningham died, Focus: HOPE had an annual budget pushing $80 million and something in excess of 800 employees.

But what Father Cunningham did for this region goes far beyond size and scope. His life's gift was to prove conclusively that a remorseless pragmatism coupled with a passionate vision could go far beyond do-goodism and well-intentioned charity. He gave this entire region a vision and, yes, a hope that with hard work from everybody things could be better.

That's what heroes do. I've never known many heroes, but Father Bill Cunningham was one. And I'll sure miss him.

Oh, to finish what I started ur phone went out last week. The phone repair guys left in the middle of doing their job. They never reconnected us.

Still out, too, was our computer (still is). The electric company, actually the subcontractor guys, had trouble reconnecting stuff, too. And THOSE guys left.

Boy, I sure hope this isn't a guy thing. I have all these sons! I don't want them walking out before the job's done, or leaving if they mess up. "You stick around. You see it through. You started it, you finish it." I tell them this all the time.

And last week, even though the phone and computer were down, I couldn't be bogged down. I had stuff to do. Wednesday morning, I packed up the double stroller, a stocked baby bag, my Very Important Folder (VIF) and my three athome children. In the van we went. I parked downtown. I got the stroller out and in hopped 3year-old Jack in the front and Steven I put in the back. He sat up so nicely, enjoying the sights of the rare warm May day. Off we went, with my VIF tucked under my arm and a goal tucked under my tenacity.

Getting "corporate" sponsors for an athletic/ charity event was my goal for two of the days last week. Doing this for the "Champions for Charity" Gymnastic Exhibition has been just one of the 10 jillion tasks involved with this. (And because of the way of the world, I've had to tackle most all 10 jillion on my own. That's another

The host gym for this event is the one my daughter belongs to, the one I take her to six days a week for her practices. This gym I know well. It's a privately owned gym and it will, through this event, be heeding the call President Clinton and the former presidents of the U.S. made a few weeks ago, the call to volunteerism, to reach out and help those less fortunate than ourselves.

This gym, the Michigan Academy of Gymnastics located on Hix in Westland, has a big heart and a community spirit. It's quite a place! And quite a place in other respects as well. One of my Stanley Cup fever and a "good" case of laryngitis have been contracted by area Detroit Red Wing hockey enthusiasts like the general manager of Crestwood Dodge in Garden City.

The local dealership will be the host site of a National Hockey League (NHL)-sponsored "Cup Crazy" promotion 2-4 p.m. Friday, June 6, where participants will have an opportunity to win two tickets for Saturday night's Stanley Cup

According to long time Red Wing fan and Crestwood Dodge General Manger Oneita Fellows, the dealership is eager to share in the enthusiasm with their community by hosting the event.

Fellows, a die-hard Steve Yzerman admirer, has only missed one play-off game since April and doesn't expect to regain her voice until after the Stanley Cup is in the hallowed halls of Joe Louis.

"I've had laryngitis since the regular play-off games and I'm loving it," said Fellows. "I'm ecstatic about the Wings and have been an avid fan, win or lose, going way back."

The New Dodge "Cup Crazy" caravan will bring two convoys, consisting of a tractor trailer, two Dodge Dakotas and a Dodge mini-van to the dealership where participants can enjoy interactive hockey activities, Slap Shot Cage, music, prizes, giveaways and more.

"Crestwood Dodge certainly supports the Red Wings and their quest for the Stanley Cup and we're glad we can have the Cup Crazy Caravan here for all of our customers to come and participate," said Joe Himmelspach, Crestwood general sales manager. Him-

melspach said all of Crestwood's 85 employees have been rallying behind the Wings and are excited to be involved with the NHL activities.

Upon arrival, consumers will be directed to the nhl.com registration booth, where they will be introduced to the NHL's Web site and pick up their "Cup Crazy" goody bag and ticket sweepstakes entry card.

Other promotions will include a broadcast, sponsored by ESPN and the FOX network, featuring videos. FOX affiliate personalities also will be on hand for autographs sessions. New Dodge/Cup Crazy key chains will be distributed, and "Cup Crazy" staff members will assist in teaching and coaching novice players on their techniques.

Cup Crazies can also have their photographs taken with the Foxbots (mascots in costume).

Hockey enthusiasts, young and old, will have the chance to test their skill in the Franklin Goal Gallery, featuring three cuswooden goalie cut outs with

Participants take three shots per round to win prizes (one per event) and goal lights will be activated when the targets are hit. Up to six Sony Play Stations also will be placed on-site, with Sony providing directions, game information and giveaways. Staff members also will assist on playing instructions and tips.

"The Crazy Cup Caravan will be lots of fun," said Fellows. "We look forward to showing our support for the team and with all Wings fans in the area.

"Hockey has been a long time tradition for us since Detroit's original 16 and Gordie Howe."

Fellows said Garden City dealership owner Rob Robbins has been an avid supporter of the Western Conference Champions, long before he became a season ticket holder in 1984 and shares his enthusiasm with his employees.

This is the first Cup Crazy promotion hosted by Crestwood Dodge of Garden City and a new event sponsored by The New Dodge and the Previously, the caravan traveled to each of the "Final Four" market places, including New York, Colorado and Philadelphia. It will make its final appearance in the metropolitan Detroit area as the Stanley Cup finals draw to an end.

'Little People' alumni gather for retirement picnic

Slip, sliding away: A warm spring day was good reason for Jimmy DiMilia and Abby Staber to take to the slide at Bernice Lawrence's Little People's Place. Lawrence is holding a reunion for Little People alumni on Sunday to mark the closing of the day care center after 27 years.

By Christina Fuoco STAFF WRITER

Plymouth child care provider Bernice Lawrence and her husband, John, have a new journey ahead of them.

After owning and operating The Little People's Place for 27 years, Lawrence is retiring Friday, June 13, to take care of her husband who is in the last stages of Parkinson's disease.

"My husband's illness had prompted me to close earlier than I expected," she said. "I wanted to continue working as long as my health would hold out.

"I really have mixed emotions about it. I really planned on continuing (for a while). In time, things will fall into place. When I look at my new opportunity, I see more quality time for myself."

In celebration of her retirement, Bernice Lawrence is inviting current and former "little" people" and their families to a retirement picnic and graduation program at noon Sunday. June 8, at the Top of the Hill area of Maybury State Park. For more information, call (313) 453-5842. The party is an expansion new adventure."

of her annual graduation ceremony and picnic.

"We usually have games for the children. With some of the games, the child competes against the parents. That seems to go well," she said with a laugh.

The Lawrences - who have two children, Connie, 34, of Farmington Hills, and Jack, 42, of Clarkston - will spend winters in Florida and summers in Traverse City. She admits that she will miss being close to her six grandchildren.

But she is excited about taking up new hobbies.

"I'm anxious to get into fishing," she said. "We have the casting rods all ready to go. I just have to learn how to cast. It'll be a new adventure. That's what we have to look forward to is a

The Little People's Place, licensed for 12 children in the basement of the Lawrence home, offered breakfast, a snack, and lunch. The cost was based on a sliding scale. During the child's stay at her center, she involved them with a number of projects to help increase their socialization skills, as well as math, biology and cooking.

"In caring for the children, can you imagine the count of how many diapers we've changed in 27 years? How many shoelaces we've tied? How many little noses we've had to wipe?," said Lawrence, who earned two associate's degrees from Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

"It goes on and on."

Running the child care center takes up most of her time, she said. She and her assistants spend nearly 11 hours with the children, then Lawrence plans her lessons at night.

Besides running her center, Lawrence is a former president of the Plymouth Elks Club's women's auxiliary, Vivian's Club, and a former member of the Sweet Adeline's Chorus in Farmington Hills. A hospice volunteer, Lawrence is founder and president of the Pink Rose Club, an organization dedicated to the members' mothers.

"On Mother's Day, we were taking corsages to some of the mothers in the nursing home and the senior home," she said. We would (also) have guest speakers (at meetings). We had a few women attorneys who spoke about how their mother played a role in achieving their present careers."

Besides her mother, Lawrence said, the children she's cared for for 27 years inspire her.

"It seems as though they've touched our lives in same way we've touched theirs," she said. "I want to express my appreciation to all the parents who have entrusted me with the honor and privilege of caring of their children for all these years."

And there are other former Olympians coaching here, from Bulgaria. This gym, with its high-caliber coaching staff, is the very one reaching out beyond its walls and into the community to help. Just like the presidents asked. And who are they reaching out to? These athletes? These young girls and boys representing some of the strongest and most talented and promising gymnasts in the area? They're reaching out to some 500,000 developmentally disabled people in the U.S., the people with Down syndrome.

Since I was the one who came up with the idea in the first place, I got to pick the charity for this year. It's the charity I'm partial to, the one raising money for Down syndrome research, Friends of Tri. Each year, as I'd proposed back in February, a different charity will be selected to be the beneficiary of the Champions for Charity Exhibition.

I have to say, I'm quite proud of this idea and I'm quite proud of the fact that it's going to be reality in just a few short days, on Sunday, June 8. That's when the athletes, ages 6-17, boys and girls, and parents and families and friends will enter into the "inner sanctum" of the gym, A place rarely seen up close except through the lobby windows.

There will be a "meet" portion of the program. And an exhibition portion. And like a real meet, there will be a concession stand, bleachers, programs, souvenir T-shirts, tickets, the whole ball of wax. And corporate sponsors, businesses who've helped defray the cost of ribbon/awards, printing of the programs, coaches' fees, etc.

Company of children

So for two days last week, I signed up businesses, approaching them the old-fashioned way, door-to-door and explaining the who, what, where, all that stuff. With three little ones (no babysitting available, no one else to do that task either), we made about two dozen stops. The stops sandwiched in between ferrying school-aged children to and from school, after-school practices and games, and preparation of meals, and all that regular stuff.

In the middle of the first sales day, I took the children home to feed them lunch and run about the yard a bit. Slight problem in accomplishing that. I'd lock the keys in the van still parked downtown. Well, home is only about a mile or so away and the sky was clear and it was warm, so away we went. Mary, a friend, spotted us and drove us home.

We ate, cleaned up, and began our walk back to the van downtown. We stopped in a few more places on the way. My little ones are not ideal sales call companions. I think it's probably best to do a sales call on one's own. I seriously think that. But I didn't have that luxury.

In the plumbing supply place, with the showroom of toilets, Jack decided, or maybe it was the power of suggestion, that he had to "go" and how handy it was to have a whole room of toilets. Luckily, I can hear two conversations at once and comprehend them. I excused myself from the person I was speaking with and saved Jack and his family a significant amount of embarrassment and mess. And I got a sponsor!

The next day I made another dozen stops, in the rain, out of the rain, with little ones. Out of the 24 stops in 30 hours, I had four businesses become sponsors. A bunch told me to come back, for some it would be a second time, or third time, one, a fourth.

I persisted.

Stick to it. See it through. Finish what you start. Really, it's the only way.

Canton auto dealer wins 1-of-a-kind Waterford 'car'

Canton resident Thomas Shankie walked away with a one-of-a-kind "new car" after winning a special raffle held to benefit the Henry Ford Estate.

The owner and president of Friendly Ford in Monroe won a crystal Model T Ford, created and donated by Waterford Ltd.,

Only 250 tickets, costing $250 each, were sold for the raffle. The ticket was drawn at the April 26 Henry Ford Estate Dinner Dance, held at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn, Edsel B. Ford II, honorary chair of the event with his wife, Cynthia, drew the lucky ticket.

Shankie and his wife Judy received the crystal work of art at a celebratory luncheon held of the Henry Ford Estate.

'Lutheran Hour' lands on Internet

The radio broadcast that for nearly 70 years has reached millions worldwide with the Gospel been launched into

"The Lutheran Hour," the world's oldest continually broadcast Gospel radio program, is now available on-demand via the Internet. The weekly broadcast is heard locally on WAAM-1600 at 8:30 a.m. Sundays and CKWW-580 at 7:30 a.m. Sun-

The half-hour program, first broadcast in 1930, is the flagship radio program of Lutheran Hour Ministries. It features addresses by Dr. Dale Meyer and Dr. Wallace Schulz.

The program's availability on the World Wide Web at Lutheran Hour Ministries' Web site, 'Wired with the Word" (hftp://www.lhm.org), provides computer users with online access to the Gospel-based messages.

The "The Lutheran Hour' in RealAudio messages made its Internet debut on Easter Sunday with an Easter sermon delivered by Schulz and a historic 1937 Easter sermon, "The Resurrection Reality,' from the original "Lutheran Hour" Dr. Walter A. Maier.

The inaugural Webcast" drew 335 Internet listeners on Easter Sunday and an additional 674 listeners during Easter week. Easter Sunday was the most active day ever for the Lutheran Hour Ministries Web site, with a record 12,000 visits reported.

Lutheran Hour Ministries has been online on the World Wide Web since October 1995:

"The broadcast of 'The Lutheran Hour' across the Internet marks the latest step for the organization, a strategic reinvention of our international ministry using digital communication technology," said Jim Telle, director of marketing and communication. "The historic move reaffirms the Lutheran Hour Ministries mission of bringing Christ to the nations and the nations to the church' through every appropriate means and medium available to Christians.

"Digital technology and the World Wide Web are creating new opportunities for Christian ministry. In the case of 'The Lutheran Hour,' the Internet means extending our potential weekly means extending our potential weekly audience from thousands to millions, 'The Lutheran Hour' in RealAudio is the pioneer program for even more multimedia ministry in the future."

Consistently ranked by the National Radio Broadcasters Association as the most listenedto weekly Christian radio program, "The Lutheran Hour" is heard on more than 1,200 stations throughout North America and in numerous countries around the world.

The weekly online Webcasts from Lutheran Hour Ministries are made available using the cutting-edge technical resources of the Gospel Communications Network (GCN), an online strategic alliance of ministries, religious and news service organizations. It (hftp:/twww.gospelcom.net) is the largest Christian resource on the Internet, averaging 500,000 accesses by Internet users daily.

Lutheran Hour Ministries is a service of the International Lutheran Laymen's League, a volunteer organization of 150,000 members. The league is an auxiliary of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and Lutheran Church-Canada.

State final next as Stevenson rolls

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Wednesday was graduation night at Livonia Stevenson High School, but much of the pomp and circumstance occurred 60 miles away.

In the state Class A semifinals at Jackson's Mehall Field, the Spartan girls soccer team held an unofficial ceremony afterwards for three seniors as they celebrated a convincing 5.0 victory over Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central.

The win catapaults Stevenson, now 20-0-2 overall, into Saturday's state championship matchup with Brighton.

It will be Stevenson's first appearance in the final since 1990 when now assistant coach Ragen Coyne led the Spartans to a 2-1 win over Rochester Adams.

Stevenson, under third-year coach Jim Kimble, will be gunning for its fourth girls state crown. Game time is 1 p.m. Saturday at Plymouth Canton's CEP Field.

Brighton (23-0-2) advanced in the other semifinal with a 2-1 win Wednesday over Troy, setting up a battle between the state's top two ranked teams.

And the Spartans, who have allowed only one goal all year, posted their 21st shutout of the season when junior keeper Jenny Barker punched away Emily Whetter's shot, which grazed the crossbar with only two seconds remaining.

The 6-foot-2, 210-pound Rutherford, a right-handed pitcher, worked out prior to the draft for three different Major League clubs — Cincinnati. Arizona and the Yankees. He also had contacts with the Florida Marlins and the Phillies.

"It's an absolute dream come true and I'm lucky to get the opportunity," said Rutherford. "I just hope to go out and do the best I can do,"

Rutherford is expected to talk contract and receive an offer from a Phillies scout on Saturday. His first stop may be Batavia, N.Y. of the New York-Penn League.

Terek breaks vault record at state meet

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Livonia Franklin pole vaulter Paul Terek had a simple motto during the spring track season.

"Work hard, think positive and good things will happen," said the 6-foot-2, 180-pound senior. "I think somebody from West Point sent that quote to me while I was being recruited there."

Despite a 5½-hour wait before his first attempt, everything fell into place for Terek as he broke the state record for all classes in the pole vault, clearing 16 feet, 6 inches in the Class A meet held at Rockford High School. Terek shattered the mark of 16-% set by Midland Dow's Steve Hills in He waited nearly six hours to launch his first practice jump at 14-

clears 16-6

4 and he took two attempts before clearing his opening height at 14-7 (the final heights of the second and third-place finishers). He followed by making his first attempts at 15-1, 15-6 and 16-112 (breaking Hill's record).

"Everybody seemed to be doing personal bests and I was feeling I would be able to do it, too, " said Terek, who cleared 16-1 in a dual meet earlier this season against Northville.

Terek, who was second a year ago in Class A, was able to put together his best performance before teammates, coaches, family and relatives (from as far as West Virginia).

"The whole clan was there," Terek said. "I smiled after I made it (the state record), but I didn't jump up and down.

"We went out to dinner afterwards, then we came right home. My dad (Joe Paul) told me I did a good job. It hasn't quite hit me yet."

By the time the rest of the field had been eliminated, the pressure was off, and Terek was jumping for show and looking to increase his mark in the Michigan High School Athletic Association record books.

"My first vault at 16.6 was not good," Terek said. "Mickey Turchak, who coaches at Taylor Center, said I was too far underneath the bar and I wasnt' getting back far enough. I vaulted with his son and he's helped me out a lot."

Terek said he cleared 16-6 by "three or four inches," but grazed his hip on the bar on the way down. The bar, however, stood still.

Terek then asked for the bar to be raised to 16-9.

"My first two attempts were horrible and the third I came up a little short," he said.

Terek, who is headed to Michigan State University on a track scholarship, will get another chance as he will represent Michigan in the Midwest Meet of Champions, Saturday, June 14 at Ohio Wesleyan in Delaware, Ohio.

Franklin coach Dale Lee doesn't expect to coach another athlete again like Terek, who also excelled in the long jump (second best in Observerland), 100 and 200-meter dashes (11.1 and 22.7, respectively), and 400 (Western Lakes champion

"I was loading him down all year in other events for us to score points, but he never complains," Lee said. "When the pressure is on him, even when he's missed two vaults, he always gets it done.

"Even in the bad weather we've had all spring, he just puts his head down and goes at it. He can focus on things pretty well."

"I doubt if I'll ever see one like him again, He's the best vaulter in the history of the state of Michigan." Lee said Terek accomplished the

Livonia Stevenson? A baseball

Soccer and swimming still take center stage when it comes to earning statewide reputations, but coach Mike Keller's baseball team is making people take

The Spartans won their second straight Class A district championship, dominating Saturday's four-team field at Redford Catholic Central.

Stevenson beat cross-town rival Livonia Churchill, 9-1, in a semifinal before smacking upstart Plymouth Canton, 16-8, in the championship game.

Canton, 13-16 overall, had reached the final with a 9-8 victory over host CC.

The game against Canton was a stark contrast to the first two meetings between the two Western Lakes Activities Association schools. Canton won the first game, 8-7, and Stevenson won the second game, 2-1, in 10 innings.

Keller, who formerly coached-Walter's Appliance in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, hopes to see some of his former colleagues come calling when they need players in the future.

The Spartans are now 15-9 overall.

years on the baseball end of it." Keller said. "We're slowly turning it around. People looking at ballplayers haven't thought about Stevenson in the past. Somewhere down the road they will start coming around."

Stevenson senior left-hander Mike Allison, who fell behind 1-0 on a solo home run by Canton's David Kwiatkowski in the top of the second inning, earned the pitching victory. Allison, also one of Stevenson's heavy hitters, contributed to a 12-run second inning by the Spartans that put him in command the rest of the

The Spartans also received a complete-game pitching performance by Jon Ritzler in the win over Churchill.

"We don't have a number one on our club," Keller said. "Mike and John both have been the best for us. It didn't matter who we threw. If you win the district, you have to win two ballgames. It's been nice to win it two years in a row. We're just happy to be there and taking it one game at a time. We're trying to move on a little bit farther."

Stevenson collected eight hits in the second inning to chase Canton starter Ben Tucker. Ryan Dahlman, Mike Rourk and Jeff Page followed on the mound for

Canton edges Shamrocks, 9-8

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton baseball coach Scott Dickey played for Dearborn Divine Child, which has had some success against Redford Catholic Central.

"We beat them 2-1 to go to Tiger Stadium (for the 1984) Catholic League championship),' recalled Dickey, a 1985 DC graduate.

More than a decade later, Dickey's team at Canton pinned a 9-8 loss on the Shamrocks in Saturday's Class A district semifinal hosted by CC.

The win earned the Chiefs the right to meet Livonia Stevenson in the championship game, played in intermittent rain and won by the Spartans, 16-8.

To hear Dickey tell it, Saturday's win against CC would have been better than the one 13 years ago even if it earned the Chiefs the right to play in someone's backyard during a driving

"Any success the kids have is better than any I had as a player," Dickey said. 'This is by far a lot better. This is why we coach."

Pat Marsac's line drive single with the bases loaded and no outs in the bottom of the seventh brought Andrew Copenhaver home to break an 8-8 tie and send CC home with a rare district loss.

Not only was this the first time in years CC failed to win a district, it may have been the Shamrocks' first district loss that didn't come in a championship game since 1981, accord-

Canton ace Jason Mortiere was resilient through 4% innings. before getting relief help from Ben Tucker, who got credit for the victory.

Mortiere scattered 11 hits, struck out five and walked four. The Shamrocks took a brief 8-7 lead when they scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth, including a pair that came home on a double by Casey Rogowski, and two others that came in on wild pitches.

That's when Dickey summoned Tucker.

"I had it but then the 'blue (umpires)' didn't give me a couple calls and then I lost it," Mortiere said. "I knew two through six they are real tough. The second time around I got them down, the third time they knew my stuff. That's probably the best hitting team I've seen a Il year. They refused to go down with two outs."

The Chiefs had 12 hits off four CC pitchers, beginning with starter Tony Nozewski, who lasted two innings.

Anthony Tomey pitched one inning in relief, followed by Mike Haller (three innings) and Ryan Kolb, who pitched to two batters. Haller suffered the loss, allowing two runs on one hit, one walk and three strikeouts.

Spartans eliminate Churchill

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Livonia Churchill defeated Livonia Stevenson, 5-0, in last month's Livonia City Tournament championship baseball game.

It took Stevenson less than one inning to reverse the score in Saturday's rematch in the Class A district semifinal hosted by Redford Catholic Central. The Spartans scored five first-inning runs en route to a 9-1 victory and a berth in the district championship game against Plymouth Canton, a 9-8 upset winner over host CC.

Senior right-hander Mark Felker, who handcuffed the Spartans on five hits in the previous meeting, was the victim this time.

Felker lasted only one-third of an inning, surrendering a three-run home run to Mike Allison and a two-run shot to Eric Yuhasz.

Tony Dattilio led off with a single and Todd Wilson walked, setting the stage for Allison's homer that cleared the centerfield fence about 350 feet from home plate.

The Spartans gained a 5-0 lead after Yuhasz hit a homer for hitting them, but that's a down the left-field line following a single by Justin Kerr.

"I didn't think it was going out. I thought it was going to be a long fly ball out," Allison said. "It's nice to get a lead on him. We were pretty happy to see him. We hit the ball a lot in the city tournament, but right at people, and we couldn't get a big inning going."

Stevenson coach Mike Keller said: "We kind of felt he'd be the guy throwing against us. he did such a good job the first time. I don't know if we were concerned. We were not too concerned about who was throwing against us."

Churchill coach Herb Osterland said neither homer would have had a chance to clear the fences at Ford Field, where the Chargers' city championship took place.

But that's of little consolation to the Chargers, who finished 7-14 overall.

"Allison's ball over the centerfield fence, that's a catchable ball at Ford Field," Osterland said. "You say Wow that's two home runs in the first inning.' You give them credit pretty small park.

"You've got to give Stevenson a lot of credit. They were very aggressive, on a mission. They have a lot of seniors in the lineup and a lot of seniors delivered for them." Earning the pitching victory was a sophomore, Jon Ritzler, who struck out 13 and walked

"He mixed his pitches up very well, got the ball over,' Osterland said. The Spartans added four runs after the first inning. three earned, against Churchill reliever Corey Cook. Cook scattered seven hits, struck out six and walked two in 6% innings of work. Justin Kerr led Stevenson's 11-hit attack, going 3-for-3 while also receiving a walk.

Churchill's lone run came on Adam Carter's homer in the third inning.

Eric Lightle led Churchill, going 2-for-3 at the plate. Cook, Lightle and junior outfielder Brett Wells are three of the players Churchill will count on in the future.

Anderson said. "My talent hasn't decreased."

"We do our homework," said Ken Madeja, the Michigan scout who followed Anderson for the Mariners. "We look into things like signability.

"He's a guy we followed the whole year, in fact, ever since hewas 16. So we've seen a whole lot of him. He was there when we picked, so we couldn't let him

The Tigers, who had the No. 1 pick overall, opted for another Anderson, Matt, right-hander who helped Rice University reach the College World Series.

"I wasn't surprised at all," said Anderson, who is 5-2 this year with the Falcons and has a strikeout-to-inning ratio of nearly 3-to-1. "I sort of expected it."

By a quirk, Seattle happens to be playing Detroit in a fourgame series staring tonight. Anderson figures to be there for one or more of the games - on his own dime since his dad wants him to remain eligible to go to the University of Michigan should Seattle and his son fail to come to terms. 'We're tickled to death," his father said of the choice by Seattle. "Going down the list (after Detroit), they were the first one. Then New York (Yankees), Cleveland, then (Arizona) the Diamondbacks."

When the Mariners visited the Tigers earlier this season, Anderson sought out Johnson for counseling. It's no coincidence Anderson wears Johnson's No. 51 at Dearborn Divine Child.

Gus Anderson had 24- by 36inch picture of Johnson and Anderson together. He has three copies and already arranged for Johnson to sign them. That will take place this weekend and Johnson gets one copy for him-

Negotiations can't begin until Anderson's high school career is over. The Falcons are still in the running for the state Class B crown. (They play in the Grosse Ile regional this Saturday.)

"There's not much more we can tell you at this point," Madeja said. "Once he finishes his season, then we'll get down and do some talking. I think Ryan's a good kid,"

"I want to start," the young pitcher said. "And as soon as possible.

"Now that Seattle has got him," his father said. "This is only the first step. The next step is negotiations. The final step is a contract signed. That's our

"We're viewing it the same way Alan Hendricks is viewing it. But I don't want to talk about money. And that's the way it should be."

It's hard to believe Seattle drafted Anderson just to look at, though.

It drafted him to pitch. And if drafted him to pitch, one has to believe the Mariners will get him and sometimes in the low 90s. He finished 9-3 with 51 strikeouts and 74% innings with an earned run average of 4.48. In nine Mid-American Conference starts he was 6-1 with a 2.3 ERA, allowing just two carned runs in his final four outings (26 innings).

In addition to making firstteam All-MAC as a pitcher, Rutherford was also a second-team All-Conference selection as a designated hitter where he finished with a .388 batting average, including a team-high 11 homers to go along with 48 RBI,

"I just had a lot more confidence and was a lot more comfortable this season because of experience," said the 22-year-old Rutherford. "I attribute that to working out. My velocity was about 4 MPH better. I worked on strengthening my forearms and that made me a better hitter." When asked who his favorite Phillie was, Rutherford, who is not sure whether he'll be a reliever or starter, came up with a couple of worthy choices. "Steve Carlton's one for sure, or how about Pete Rose, he was a Phillie," Rutherford said. For now, Philly would settle for somebody like Curt Schilling.

Rain dampens Franklin bid

It was cold and damp Satur-day, not a perfect day for a walk, unless you happen to be playing baseball.

Garden City's baseball team, taking advantage of Livonia Franklin ace Dave Wampler's control problems, won a Class A district semifinal, 7-2, on Saturday at Garden City Park.

A steady rain fell throughout the morning and Wampler had trouble adjusting as he issued eight walks and one hit batter.

All seven Cougars' runs, five earned, came against Wampler, who lasted 4% innings.

Franklin reliever Matt Downs pitched 2% innings of scoreless ball, allowing two hits and no walks. Wampler's personal record fell to 2-5-1 and the Patriots ended their season with a 6. 18 overall record. "I just wish we had better conditions," Franklin coach Jim Karoub said. "As hard a thrower as David is, it hurt him too much." Garden City's starter, Devin Cole, also had trouble with control, walking three and hitting a batter in 2% innings of work. The Patriots collected four hits off him, four more off reliever Bryan Krause, who entered the game with Franklin threatening to add to its 2-1 lead in the third inning.

The Patriots had loaded the bases with walks to Wampler, Nick Anagnostopoulus and Tom Jones but Krause struck out the first two batters he faced to keep the deficit at

The Patriots didn't threaten again, mostly due to the Cougars' flawless defense, according to Karoub.

"They played some great defense, made some great plays," Karoub said.

Brian Waldo led Franklin with two hits and an RBI. The other RBI came from Tom Jones, who was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to score

R.J. Casey was unstoppable for Garden City, going 3-for-3 with a walk and scoring a run. Casey's bases-loaded single in the fourth scored two runs and gave Garden City the lead for good, 3-2. The three Garden City runners had reached base with walks.

GC loaded the bases again in the fifth with two walks and a Franklin error. Once again, Casey came through, clubbing a triple to clear the bases and give the Cougars a 6-2 lead. Enter Downs, who pitched well the rest of the way according to Karoub.

The Patriots started strong, taking a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on a single by Waldo that scored Ryan Davis, who had walked and stole second

"It was kind of like the weather - not real good," Karoub said. "But we played a lot of young kids so we will be a lot better next year."

Zebras snap district drought

BY NEAL ZIPSER STAFF WRITER

Perhaps Wayne outfielder Clark Boston had a premonition.

The senior didn't order a cap and gown for the school's graduation activities on Saturday. Instead, he figured he would be playing in the Class A regional tournament.

Despite facing a 17-year dry spell of winning a district title, Boston's plans will go on as scheduled as the Zebras will face stateranked Adrian at the Ann Arbor Huron regional.

Wayne ended its district drought Wednesday with an 8-2 victory over Belleville, at the Class A district hosted by the

The Zebras advanced to the final by defeating rival Westland John Glenn 6-1 on Saturday.

Unfortunately for the Zebras, eight seniors will have to make a decision between walking in the graduation ceremonies or playing in the regional game - both of which begin at 2 p.m.

"It's unfortunate, but these are two once-in-a-lifetime activities happening in the same day," said Wayne coach Jim Chronowski, who said many of his seniors have told him they will pick baseball.

The Zebras can thank Charley Leverenz for Saturday dilemma. The junior went 4-for-4 with four RBI after being promoted to the clean-up spot.

Leverenz (6-1) also shined on the mound where he allowed just four hits as he shutout the Tigers for six innings. He struck out nine and walked five.

■ PREP BASEBALL

Mother Nature proved to be the biggest hurdle on the road to the championship. Following Wayne's victory Saturday, the subsequent game and district final were rescheduled to Monday because of sloppy conditions.

The rain continued and Monday's games were also rained out and rescheduled for Wednesday.

But the wait was well worth it for Wayne which must now try to win its first regional title in 17

On Saturday, Glenn jumped on top early but that would to be the end of the scoring against Wayne hurler John Clendening.

The stocky righthander went the distance and held a good hitting Glenn team to just four hits. The senior struck out five and walked three. But Clendening (5-2) couldn't have pulled out the win if it hadn't been for his battery-mate. Leverenz again came up big for the Zebras at the plate.

Leverenz sparked Wayne's offense by leading off the fourth inning with a triple over centerfielder Justin Fendelet's head. He then tied the game at 1-1 when he once in 86 at bats. scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of senior Ron King.

The Zebras took the lead in the fifth when Dennis McGill doubled and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Kevin Wetmore.

McGill opened the seventh inning with a walk and moved to third on a one-out double by Wetmore. Jason Robertson then intentionally walked the dangerous Boston (two singles, two walks, two stolen bases) to set the stage for Clendening who was 0-for-3 and had stranded three runners. Clendening was again unable to deliver as he struck out.

But Leverenz rescued Clendening by ripping a bases clearing double to leftcenter field. King then drove in Leverenz with a sin-

"John pitched well but needed the help of his friends," Chronowski said. "He got help from his catcher who cleared the sacks with a double and earlier hit the triple to get us going. We also got the help we needed from the bottom part of the order."

The Rockets had jumped on top in the first when junior Gordie Smith sent a two-strike pitch into right for a single. Smith finished the season without striking out

Smith then scored on a double to the opposite field by Robertson.

But the Rockets lacked the help they needed from the bottom of their order. Each of the first four hitters for Glenn recorded one hit while the bottom five went a combined 0-for-13.

"Clendening threw the ball really well, we only had four hits," said Glenn coach Todd Duffield, whose team bowed out at 15-14 overall. "We lose 14 games this year and in 10 we score six or more runs. We hit the ball this year, maybe not as powerful as the 1994 team (state Class A semifinalists), but just as well."

The Zebras (18-10), who collected seven hits off Robertson (5-4), received four hits, three walks, five RBI and four runs from their ... bottom five in the lineup.

"The guys have hung together on this team and have turned out to be late bloomers," Chronowski said.

The Rockets, who had won the district title last season, return a good nucleus of players for next season including all-league. infielder Tim Reeves (.477, 29 RBI), Smith (.419), Chet Rees (.394), Greg McCollum (5-2, 3.96 ERA) and John Fedulchak (.359).

Southfield Christian routs Trojans, Warriors

Southfield Christian showed little mercy in routing two Metro Conference area baseball teams in Saturday's Class C district tournament held at Livonia Clarenceville.

Lutheran Westland, the Metro Conference outright champions, mustered only two hits in six innings off Southfield Christian starter and winner Adam Rebant. He had seven strikeouts.

Joe Pruchnik and Ben Meyer had the only hits for the Warriors.

Mike Dittmar was the losing pitcher.

Lutheran Westland claims 1st district crown since '94 season while Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes (25-3) takes on Armada (27-3) at 10 a.m. The final starts at 2:30 p.m.

"Our spring sports had a great season and we were probably the only team not to win the Metro Conference," Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz said. "We didn't want to cry over spilled milk, we iust wanted to refocus. We played some of our better ball and seemed to play relaxed."

The Lady Warriors overcame a

6-3 deficit with four runs in the top of the fifth inning. Two Southfield Christian errors a pair of two-run singles by Kierra Decker and Both Heiden sparked the rally.

The Lady Warriors also made a couple of clutch plays in the fifth and sixth innings. Second baseman Holly Kaye survived a violent collision with a Southfield Christian runner on a race to the first base bag, but held on for the out.

"She's as steady as we have defensively," Gentz said.

Sarah Hoffmeier led Lutheran Westland with three hits and three RBI, while Heiden, Decker and Joy Tiernan each contributed two hits.

Michelle Wiersig, who came on for Decker, the starter, in the third, was the winning pitcher.

In the opening round, Lutheran Westland eliminated the host Trojans, 20-9, as Tiernan had four hits and two RBI.

Lindsay Allor and Jenny Blaine each contributed three hits and three RBI. Jenny Schultz also had three hits.

Season ends for Livonia teams

Freebies kill.

It's a lesson high school softball players, by the conclusion of their senior season, know all too well.

You just can't give the opposition a break. Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill both got a detailed clinic in that lesson at Saturday's Class A state district softball tournament, hosted by Livonia Ladywood.

In Saturday's first district semifinal, Stevenson had three firstinning wild pitches, walked five and committed two costly errors in losing 9-5 to Plymouth Salem; in the second, Churchill walked nine in an 8-1 loss to Plymouth Canton.

Canton, the champion of the Western Lakes Activities Association, ended up winning the district crown with a 13-1 triumph over Salem.

"We're a young team," said Stevenson coach Art Anselm. "We've got a lot of 10th graders (five starting) . . . One error led to all those runs.

'We don't normally do that." The Spartans got off to a quick start, scoring twice in the first inning. But Salem answered with four runs in the bottom of the first - on one hit, four walks and three costly wild pitches.

With a runner at first and two out, Stevenson starter LeAnne Schraufnagle walked the next two batters to load the bases. A wild pitch brought home the Rocks first run; a single by Maureen Buchanan drove in the second.

Buchanan stole second to put runners at second and third, and then Schraufnagle tossed two more wild pitches to bring in two more runs, making it 4-2. In the third, the Spartans added a run on a two-out single by Stephanie Ladd, trimming Salem's lead to 4.3.

But that was as close as they would come. The Rocks pulled away with a five-run fourth, all starting with two out and no one on base. A walk and two errors brought home the first Salem run in the inning. Three straight hits followed - just the second, third and four hits of the game for the Rocks the first a two-run triple by Becky Esper, the second an RBI triple hy Carah Best. Stefanie

Volpe's single delivered the fifth run of the inning, making it 9-3. The Spartans got something going in the sixth, putting the first two batters on base on a hit batsman and a walk. With one out,

Teri Fox doubled to bring in two But Salem pitcher Shannon Coultas averted further trouble with a strikeout and, with the bases loaded, a pop out. Neither team hit particularly well: Salem had five hits, Stevenson four. The loss finished Stevenson's season with a 10-17 record. In the Canton-vs.-Churchill semifinal, the Chiefs scored twice in the second inning and Churchill never recovered.

Consecutive singles to start the second by Amber LaGrow, Sara Freels and Nikki Kovachevich led to the first Chiefs' run, Kovachevich getting the RBI on a squeeze bunt. A single by Jillian Gross delivered the second run of the inning.

A base-running error cost Canton in the second inning, when

Nikki Kovachevich was called out at home after sliding in to the plate, but not tagging it; in the next inning, a runner failed to touch third and was called out. The Chiefs added a run in the fifth on a walk to Gross, a wild pitch, a sacrifice bunt by Tara Biro and a ground out by Angela Litwin that drove in the run. Churchill's only run came in the sixth. After Tina Naif reached base on an error, Jessie Jenkins tripled her home. Canton broke the game open with a five-run sixth off Charger starter Raegan Tisher. A double by Freels started it; after a walk, however, the next two batters were retired, leaving runners at second and third.

A passed ball brought home the first Canton run of the inning. A Biro single brought home the second, and Litwin followed with a base hit to drive in the third. After a walk to Elizabeth Elsner, Jenny Sikora singled to deliver a run, and an error in the outfield allowed Elsner to race home.

"They're just solid," said Churchill coach Dana Hardwidge of Canton. "We knew we couldn't give them many runs, because we wouldn't score many."

One surprise did greet the Chargers: Canton coach Jim Arnold started senior Sarah Carson, his No. 2 pitcher.

"I was (surprised)," Hardwidge said. "We'd faced them twice before, and it was always (Gretchen) Hudson, I know he goes on a kind of rotation basis, and I guess it was her turn."

Carson stopped Churchill (15-14) on three hits, with no walks; the only run off of her was unearned.

Rockets' long jumper 2nd

Paul Terek's record-shattering performance (see related story) in the pole vault somewhat overshadowed some outstanding performances by area athletes in last week's Class A boys and girls track meets held Saturday in Rockwood.

On the boys side, Westland John Glenn senior David Jarrett was runner-up in the long jump.

Jon Hall of Pontiac Central won the event with a leap of 22 feet, 6 inches. Jarrett, who had gone an Observerland best of 23-6% earlier this year, was second in 21-11%

Plymouth Salem junior Ian Searcy finished third in the 800meter run with a time of 1:55.42. Nick Gow of Milford Lakeland was first in 1:54.8.

Livonia Churchill sophomore Ryan Kearney set a school record with a time of 39.45 in the 300 intermediate hurdles, good enough for fifth place. Arthur Bouyer of Lansing Sexton was first in 37.74.

Another fifth-place finisher was Redford Catholic Central senior Brian Teefey, who clocked a personal best of 49.22. Godfrey Herring, a three-even winner from state champion Pontiac Northern, was first in 46.95.

Wayne Memorial senior Ron Pennington was sixth in the shot put with a personal best toss of 54-9% Todd Duckett of Kalamazoo Loy Norrix broke the state record with heave of 63-6.

Farmington Hills Harrison's Nick Shaieb was eighth at 54-3. Harrison's 800 and 400 relay teams finished fifth and eighth, respectively. Glenn's Mike Samples was 10th in the shot put with a personal-best 53-0. The Rockets' 400 relay team, without top sprinter Harden James (pulled quad). had the ninth-best time behind the efforts of Reggie Spearmon, Steve Hester, Aaron Stephens and Jarrett.

Livonia Stevenson's Rob Block was 12th in the 3,200 at 9:47.8, a personal best for the junior.

attained it. It was very impressive."

Terek had a good feeling about his weekend when Lee was able to find a nearby Old Country Buffet on Friday night in the Grand Rapids area;

"I made coach Lee look it up in the phone book," said Terek, who was along for the ride with fellow state qualifiers and teammates Matt Lawson (shot put) and Josh Burt (3,200). "I ate a lot of pasta. I had a full stomach, for sure, and a nice sleep.

"Then in the morning we went out to breakfast bar and for once in my life I ate mostly healthy things only one piece of bacon, cereal, a banana and fruit." Yes, everything did fall into place.

Portage Northern's Sharon Van Tuyl, the state record holder, won the 3.200 in 10:31.16. She was also first in the 1,600 (4:57.82).

Stevenson's 3,200 relay team of Travis, McNeilance, Danielle Harris and Andrea Parker was fourth in 9:29.39 (a season best and a school record). Plymouth Salem was fifth in 9:31.6.

In the long jump, Plymouth Canton Nkechi Okwumabua was third with a leap of 17-5%. John Glenn's Nicolette Jarrett, a junior, was fourth at 17-41.

Jarrett also took eighth in the 200 (26.14).

In the 800 run, Katie Bonner of Salem was seventh with an Observerland-best 2:18.45. North Farmington's Melissa Gratz was fifth in the discus (128-5).

Class C results

Lutheran High Westland rode the strong legs of senior Jodi Werman, who finished third in the 1,600 run (5:14.11) and seventh in the 3,200 run (11:39.45) at Saturday's state Class C meet at Comstock Park.

Both events were won by Bethany Brewster of Saginaw Valley Lutheran in 5:00.55 and 11:09.33, respectively.

Hana Hughes added a fifth in the 300 hurdles with a personalbest 46.73.

The Warriors 400 relay team of Stephanie Davis, Hughes, and the Clark sisters, Laura and Amy, finished fifth 51.79. The 800 relay quartet of Rebekah Hoffmeier, Hughes and the Clark sisters added fifth in the 1,600 relay (4:11.49).

Tiffany Simon of Redford Bishop Borgess was runner-up to Alanna Mestelle of White Pigeon in the 200 dash. Mestelle was clocked in 25.36, while Simon posted a time of 26.163. Detroit Renaissance won the girls team championship. In the boys meet, Corey Davis of Borgess was eighth in the 400 (50.94).

Detroit St. Martin DePorres captured the boys team title with 42 points. New Haven was second with 33½.

Be careful when tiling

Q. We are planning on installing ceramic tile in our kitchen. We have had two contractors give us estimates, and they were somewhat different. Which method is better - (1) gluing the tile to the plywood subfloor or (2) putting down a "mud" base?

A. A single layer of plywood is completely insufficient. You must add "underlayment" prior to installing the ceramic tile. However, it is important to inspect the floor joist spans before you proceed. Ceramic tile is a very rigid material. Most ceramic tiles will crack if there is movement underneath the tile. Some wood floor systems when designed to minimum standards have too much flex in them. The flex or "bounce" will crack tiles.

Floor joists are basically wood "I" beans for a given floor joist. You can increase the distance between supports, but the joist will deflect a greater amount. Floor joists beneath ceramic tile floors must not deflect more than 1/360th of their span. Assuming your joists are No. 1 grand and the span is no greater that 16'9", you can proceed.

You have two choices of underlayment: 3/8-inch cementitious board. Both will perform exceptionally as long as you install them carefully. Your existing subfloor should be securely attached to the floor joists. Drywall screws work well, but use ones that have coarse

If you choose to use exterior plywood, the spacing of the sheets is critical. The 3/8-inch plywood edges must be offset from existing plywood edges at least 2 inches in each direction. You must also be sure to maintain a 1/8-inch spacing around each sheet of plywood. Plywood expands with changes in humidity. If spaced too tightly, the plywood will buckle and crack the tile.

Attach the plywood with nails or screws that will penetrate the floor joists at 3/4 inch. Be sure to screw the edges. Cementitious board makes a great underlayment, but it requires some additional labor. It is necessary to install the cementitious board in a layer of fresh thin set or dry set mortar. This material acts as a filler for any low spots. in the plywood. Without this layer of thin set, the board may flex under fool traffic, causing the ceramic tile to crack. The cementitious board is attached to the existing plywood and floor joists with galvanized nails and screws. If you choose exterior plywood as underlayment, you must use an organic adhesive or an epoxy mortar as a bonding agent between the tile and the wood. A latex premodified Portland cement mortar will create long-lasting adhesion should you decide to use the cementitious board underlayment.

Universal appeal

Celestial reasonings: The combination of an armillary sphere and globe makes these bookends a great Father's Day gift for the son or daughter who wants to give Dad both Heaven and Earth. Handcrafted in Italy, the bookends are reproduced in the Renaissance Florentine tradition. This astronomical model of a 17th century armillary sphere, featuring an Earth model that rotates, is used to display the supposed relationships between the principal celestial bodies, including signs of the zodiac. Both spheres measure six inches high and rest on a finished wood base. Pyramid power

Special angle: Move over, Beanie, there's a new baby in town. Michael Tonda and Michael Snell, owners of Raphael's Magnificent Possessions, have witnessed a retail phenomenon in their store at 1799 Coolidge in Berkley: the Wishing Pyramid.

Once customers buy one as a gift, they return to buy more in multiples; the demand is so great the store can barely keep the pyramids on the shelves. In the 13th century, a Czecho-slovakian engineer rediscovered that the pyramid shape could be used as a tool for concentrating and channeling energy. In recent years, the popularity of pyramids has grown with people looking to improve their lives with alternative methods. Raphael's carries a wide variety of Wishing Pyramids in four different sizes, in rich colors ranging from emerald green to iridescent black and priced from $14 to $34. Call (248) 546-0194.

`Fore' Father's Day

Going for golf: Friends will be green with envy when Dad sports the latest in golf-themed accessories from Tiffany & Co. In the Somerset Collection, Big Beaver Road and Coolidge In Troy. Sterling silver gold-motif cufflinks are the perfect gift for everyone who dreams of "getting in nine before sundown." The matching pen keeps track of Dad's birdles with style, while the sporty key ring and bookmark are a hole in one. The golf ball-and-tee bookmark is priced at $35, the pen at $75, the key ring at $90 and the cufflinks at $170 per pair. Call (248) 637-2800.

The old days taught many things

JOE GAGNON

The year was 1972 and I had just clocked 65,000 miles on a brand-new Ford Torino driving back and forth across the state of Michigan.

My job for the Amana Corporation was to take care of customer relations and to find and teach independent service companies how to repair Amana products. It was a period of long hours and many service meetings, but it afforded me knowledge of what was going on in my industry.

We had just moved into a renovated building on Eight Mile near Woodward in Ferndale that was then our offices and warehouse facility serving the Michigan area.

My boss, Jack Plating, found us a warehouse manager by the name of Louie Florio, who had spent years working for the Philco Corporation, and we brought him out of retirement.

I remember during his interview when he showed me how to load a large side-by-side refrigerator onto a dolly. This little robust guy made me look like an amateur as he grabbed that wire band around the box and with one hand accomplished what I couldn't do with two

He was always so pleasant and we shared old stories from his earlier years in the business that were fun to listen to.

A few years ago someone told me that Louie had passed away, and I felt guilty at not keeping in touch. Yesterday I was going through the weekly mail I receive at the radio station when a return address on an envelope jumped out at me. The name was Dennis Florio and I'd like to print here what his short letter said:

"Joe - I really enjoy your program. My father talks about you a lot. He used to work with you at Amana. (Louie Florio). Give him a call if you get a chance. His number is Thanks, Dennis."

Folks, I read that short note and I can't tell you how so few words could mean so much. I will be calling Louie before this column is in your hands.

Today, the Amana Corporation is up for sale, and I understand a foreign manufacturer is seriously looking at the purchase. With the few major players left in the appliance industry, this is big news in my business.

What good it will do for consumers is yet to be told, but whoever buys them will be already receiving a first-class company.

In the old days there came a time when we had to hire a new secretary for the Amana branch and once again Louie was put to good use.

He knew a lady who had retired from Philco, and we were blessed to hire Charlene Charlesworth. She worked for us for several years before retiring again, and there was no finer lady in the world.

A few years back I was doing a consumer seminar for a group of seniors in Plymouth and as is normal I was late getting there.

I ran down the hall to the stage area and standing in a group in front of the entrance door were eight of the past employees of the Amana Corporation.

I stopped in front of them with great surprise, as they informed me that they had set up this seminar. I was choked with emotion as the tears flowed down my cheeks and I embraced each one of them.

The old days never leave me as I remember all that I learned during those years. Each one of the employees was a friend, and we all treated each other with great affection.

It's no wonder that the president and founder of Amana, George Forestner, once said, "Joe, you have the greatest bunch of people in your branch than any other in the country." They made it happen.

Planning garden brings great results

MARTY FIGIEY

I visited "Spring Fling," the cheerful garden of Dr. David and Kathleen Schneider of Royal Oak in late April and found a garden filled with yellow Daffodils and blueflowering Vinca.

Soon Forget-menots filled in the area to camouflage the foliage as the bulbs died down.

"The Forget-me-nots were given to me by my mother and they are now all over the yard, and the neighborhood," Kathleen said.

This garden requires little mainte-

It has taken the Schneiders six years to achieve this beautiful setting for their home.

They have done all the work themselves and in this time single bulbs of Unsurpassable Daffodils have now formed clumps. A few King Alfreds are also part of the setting.

A curving walk leads to the front door and is flanked by these bright yellow bulbs. Near the house, deep crimson Azaleas bloom to add depth:

Along the side of the house, tiny "Tete a tete" daffs keep company with perennials, which will bloom later in the season.

For the past two years a friend has given them a gift of 100 mixed bulbs from White Flower Farm, so they call this area, which is along the side of the back yard and directs one to the back, "Mary's Walk."

A large yellow Forsythia holds court near a bench and chairs, providing a pleasant place for resting.

"In the spring we concentrate on yellow, white and blue, then later in the season there are pinks, blues, light blues, purples, mauves and light yellows. I was inspired by Ellen's Garden at Cranbrook."

As the season progresses, the window boxes repeat these colors.

This garden is a perfect example of what can be accomplished when a plan is made and then executed.

Although tender summer-flowering bulbs usually are planted a week to 10 days before the last frost date (May 10-20 in zone 5), there's still time to plant them, especially since we have had such a cool spring. It's best to have a plan, as the Schneiders have done, for the best show.

Because these plants are quite attractive, and sometimes have a short bloom period, choose a place where they can be enjoyed to their fullest. Keep in mind that bulbs need a soil that is moisture-retentive and well-draining – they won't tolerate waterlogged soil.

Most tender bulbs need to be dug and stored each season, so be ready to care for them after they have brightened your garden while others are replaced each year. Here are some suggestions:

Dahlias are one of the most popular and there are many kinds – tall, short, large, small, single and double. They are most happy in well-drained, loamy soil mixed with humus or decayed leaf mold. The tall ones need to be staked – don't crowd them.

Gladiolus are grown from corms and are in the Iridaceae family. There is a very large selection from which to choose (including colors) and they are wonderful as cut flowers.

Bone meal should be worked into the planting hole under the corms and provide a side dressing of an all-purpose

Animation: Cels have big appeal

LISA LUCKOW-HEALY

Do you remember when your parents took you to see Disney's "Snow White" or "Lady and the Tramp" for the first time?

Now that we are parents, we may often find ourselves reliving our childhood through our children's versions of these movies, which are now on videocassette.

Regardless of your age, there's another way to enjoy the sheer appeal of animation and it's not through home video or the abundance of toys on the market. Collecting animation cels is fun for the entire family.

"As far as a collectible goes, it's something you can put up on a wall in your home and everyone can enjoy looking at all the time," said Bob Athey, owner of Gallery Animato in Birmingham.

"Collecting cels isn't like collecting baseball cards or stamps that often get filed in a case or a book. It's something emotional, like Grandma taking Mom to see 'Snow White' for the first time as a child. As a parent, Mom goes out and purchases a 'Snow White' cel to commemorate her experience."

If your family is contemplating the idea of starting a collection, consider these thoughts:

- Cels are generally very happy collectibles - they evoke happiness.
- Cels tend to take your mind off the daily grind.
- You don't have to have a degree in art history to understand the art form. "Everyone recognizes animation art. Parents grew up with Snow White, 'Fantasia,' Mickey Mouse and the Jetsons and Flintstones of the '60s. Many children recognize the Ninja Turtle craze of the '80s."

Before you decide on any cel purchase, it's important to understand the differences between cels. There are three major types of cels: sericels, limited edition cels and production cels.

Sericels are silkscreens on acetate cels, generally sold in limited editions. They are generally the most affordable of the three types of cels, starting at about $200. A family could buy a "Snow White" sericel for about $250.

Limited edition cels are created in limited quantities for sale. They don't appear in an actual cartoon. A limited edition cel of "Snow White" might sell for around $800.

Production cels are the actual handpainted cel used in a given cartoon. Although the cel may have been cut from the final film, or be a color model used for color quality control, production cels are either copied onto the cel using a Xerographic process or handinked from the original pencil sketch.

Production cel prices vary, depending on the rarity of the character.

"Take time in selecting a cel. Learn about what makes one $275 and another $6,000.

"For example, a 1930s Mickey Mouse production cel is probably over $10,000 but a 1950s Mickey Mouse can sell for anywhere from $1,200 to $2,000. Limited editions are popular because you always get that perfect scene. Some cels are signed by the artist."

Whether you're considering a production cel, limited edition cel or sericel, all three choices are very good keepsakes to start your family collection, commemorate a birth or mark a new milestone in your family

Gazebos: Popular way to hit the deck

On the cover: Going gazebo: An Elite-Spindle style gazebo is a lovely way to enjoy the outdoors.

BY MARY KLEMIC At Home Editor

That's the idea on land more and more as temperatures climb and homeowners look for relaxation on decks, patios and porches. And a gazebo is a popular version of a deck, both romantic and practical.

The owner of a Milford gazebo business attributes to TV the popularity of the outdoor structures.

"More soap operas are pushing them big," said loe Poplars, owner of Gazebos LTD, 140 Summit (call (800) 701-6767). "There's either murder or romance or something going on there (on the shows). It's become a backyard status symbol."

An advantage of a gazebo over a screened-in porch is that a gazebo gives you a view from every direction,

"It's a backyard retreat, just to get away.... We have other people who put electrical outlets there where they can make toast and cook eggs."

A gazebo is a good spot to enjoy coffee, a picnic or a book. It gives youngsters a place to be with their friends that is private but still in parents' view. It can enclose a hot tub. During winter months, it can house such summertime items as outdoor furniture and pool

Lynda Long first bought a gazebo to hide a propane tank. She ended up buying three gazebos, including a 12-sided, 160-square foot Countryside-Lattice style to house a hot tub. Planters and an L-shaped deck enhance the gazebo's beauty.

"I love it," the Gazebos LTD customer said. "I was very impressed with the quality."

When Poplars and his brother, Earl, started Gazebos LTD in 1981; it was ahead of the trend in Michigan, he said. Now the business sends gazebos all over the world as well as all over the area.

The gazebos come in nine sizes and four styles: Monarch-Window, Countryside-Lattice, Classic-Spindle and Elite-Spindle. Shapes are square, rectangle, eight-sided, 10-sided and 12-sided, be added include cupolas, skylights and sliding win-

They are do-it-yourself units. Parts are pre-cut and pre-drilled, and most are pre-assembled.

The homeowner could take the gazebo to a new restdence - but Poplars knows a customer who bought three of the structures. Every time the customer wanted to take the gazebo along on a move, the new owners said it was one of the reasons they wanted the house.

The gazebos last 70 years, Poplars said. He recommended using a penetrating preserver on the wood, rather than a surface sealer, as a surface sealer tends to Preserver isn't the only thing to keep in mind about maintaining a deck.

"Decks are pretty maintenance free," said Doug Hoisington of Power Clean in Oxford.

"It's a good idea to keep it clean The ideal (cleaning) is once in the spring and once in the fall."

Ultraviolet rays from the sun, grit, pollution, mildew and pollen destroy the top layer of bare wood and make the deck look grimy and gray, Hoisington said. Moss can make it slippery.

Grit on a deck is "just like sand on your carpet," Hoisington said. "It cuts the fiber."

Decks are cleaned by pressure washing and/or Prices range from $399 to $9,000. Features that can chemicals. Hoisington has tips and tools to, as he puts it, "take pressure off power washing."

> Power or pressure washing uses plain water at anywhere from 1,500 to 3,000 pounds per square inch to remove dirt from the surface...

> It also takes off the soft grain of the wood, which can make an uneven surface and lead to splinters and sharp edges of wood sticking up, Hoisington said. He advised the following:

 Before cleaning with high pressure, cover electrical outlets so the water won't get into the house. Replace any weak or cracked boards and drive in any loose nails. Be sure shrubs and plants are protected.

• If you rent a power washer, start on a part of the deck that doesn't show, until you get the hang of the machine. Be careful, as you can hurt yourself or the deck even if you glance away for only a moment. If you hire a cleaning business, get its certificate of insurance and references.

· Attic vents should always be cleaned by hand. Take care of screens and canvas awnings. Bricks shouldn't be cleaned with a power washer as the highpressure washing damages the mortar.

Hoisington is the local distributor for The Miracle Soaper, a low-pressure cleaning device with a plastic tube attached to a solid brass fixture.

It is used with a garden hose and common household cleaning products. The other end of the tube is placed in the cleaning solution, and a dial on the fixture is turned until the liquid rises up the tube.

The Miracle Soaper costs $49.95 and can be used for other jobs around the house, including fertilizing the Radon mitigation: See our new spacious showroom where we offer a greater selection of all our products! Create a new look with DOORS specializing in double doors & sidelite units

In prior columns, we discussed what adon is and inexpensive methods for Radon is a naturally occurring adioactive gas that is ranked behind smoking as the second-leading cause of lung cancer. The EPA estimates that one out of every 15 homes in the United States has radon levels above the recommended action level.

This column will deal with easy and relatively inexpensive methods to reduce elevated levels of radon.

Who can fix radon problems?

If elevated radon is found in your home, help is just a phone call away. The state of Michigan has a list of EPA-listed radon mitigators (called RCPs for Radon Contractor Proficiency) who can fix your home fast and inexpensively.

The state also has plenty of free consumer information that it will quickly send in the mail. The state radon office can be reached at (800) RADON-GAS.

The RCP program measures the proficiency of an individual contractor, not the company. All EPA-listed radon mitigators are given a photo ID card. We suggest that you check this card and that you verify contractors are fully insured and licensed with the state. Ask the contractor to certify, in writing, that any installation they perform will meet local codes and insist that a permit be pulled.

How are radon levels reduced?

While there are various methods for radon reduction, the most common methods work through soil suction. In this newspaper's readership area, the cost for such a system is typically $800 to $1,000.

Soil suction methods work exceedingly well for a couple of reasons. First, soil suction helps to remove radon before it enters the house; this usually eliminates the need to exchange air or take other more expensive steps to reduce levels in the home.

Second, the air pressure inside the home is usually lower than it is in the soil around the home's foundation. Science tells us that nature constantly strives for equilibrium, thus radon-containing soil gas infiltrates as a means of correcting the imbalance. Soil suction mechanically corrects the imbalance, lessening the higher air pressure in the soil under the home.

Of the various types of soil suction methods, the two most commonly used are sump suction and active subslab suction.

If the home has a sump pit, the pit is capped with an airtight cover in which a radon suction pipe is installed. Usually made out of four-inch PVC (like modern plumbing drains), the suction pipe is fertilizer when the flowers are forming,

Galtonia, or Summer Hyacinth, is a member of the Liliacete family and vaguely resembles tall hyacinths with white flower spikes. They need to be handled the same way as gladiolus.

Another plant you may wish to grow is the Tigridia, or Tiger Flower, which is also in the Iris family. Tigridias grow from corms; flower colors range from shades of purple and rose to white, yellow and orange.

Set them in the ground three to four inches deep and six to 10 inches apart. They grow best in a sunny location.

Begonias can perform well in a shady easier. area and are generally bought as bedding plants here. Set the tubers just at the surface of the soil 12 to 18 inches apart.

When the weather is very hot, a light spray of water will be appreciated. When flowering declines, cut the foliage back to four to six inches and stop watering.

Dig tubers, allow to dry, remove remaining follage. Next season start new growth several weeks before time to set them in the garden.

focus on photography

Cultural composition: Fran Valentine took this carefully composed photograph of the Orpheus Fountain at famed Cranbrook Academy. Along with many other pictures, it hangs proudly in her home.

Get some exposure

MONTE NAGLER

If you're like many amateur photographers, your pictures don't get much exposure - in your home, that is. Many of your good shots are packed away in drawers and closets, not on the wall where they belong.

Your home should reflect your personality with a selection of photographs to complement the other furnishings in your rooms. Your own pictures and those of other photographers whose work you admire will add to the decor of your home and your enjoyment of it.

Of course, attractive matting and framing enhances the presentation of a photograph. Pre-cut mats in standard sizes can be bought from most art supply or camera shops.

You can also buy inexpensive mat cutters, and with a little practice you'll be cutting your own professional looking mats.

Simply measure equal borders around your already mounted photograph and carefully cut your mat. Make sure the blades are sharp and use fine sandpaper or an emery board to eliminate any rough spots on the edges.

To produce a collage of pictures, perhaps of the entire family, just cut as many "windows" out of the mat board as you'll need. Then tape each picture to the board from behind and back them with another piece of mat board. You're now ready to add a frame.

Frames come in many styles, colors and prices. For photography, simplicity is the best guideline.

Plain metal frames don't draw attention away from the impact of the photograph, yet at the same time they lend a complementary finishing touch to your picture.

Metal frame kits are available in all photo, art supply and frame shops. Buy sections in the lengths you need and your frame can be assembled easily in a matter of minutes.

Be sure to use glass, too. Glass not only protects your photograph, but also adds to the appearance of your finished work. Regular, single strength glass works best. Non-glare glass reduces the "snap" of your photo and makes the colors look dull.

Other types of frames are available. Plain wood frames will enhance many photographs, while more modern Lucite frames will add a contemporary touch.

Most pictures look best when hung at eve level.

How about some tasty tips

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Few things are as thrilling to me as looking out of my not so plumb 1840 kitchen window, and seeing apple green crowned stalks of asparagus popping out of their trench and through our sandy soil.

As much as I love my herb garden, and reap great benefit from its flourish, there is something almost magical about asparagus. The long anticipated wait of three years before harvest is well worth it.

This cherished member of the lily family (which also includes onions, leeks, and garlic), has roots in Greece, and dates back 2,500 years.

Not only elegant and tasty, asparagus is a good source of polassium, vitamins; B6, A, and C, triamin and folic acid (folacin) - low in calories, no fat, no cholesterol and is low in sodium.

Michigan is third in the nation for the production of asparagus, yielding over 25 million pounds of asparagus yearly and to celebrate, there is an annual festival held in Hart, Mich.

This year marks the 24th Annual National Asparagus Festival - "Stalking the Good Life," and Oceana County will make you plenty welcome with all kinds of activities on June 13-15.

For information check with the Michigan Asparagus Advisory Board, (517) 669-4250 or (517) 347-2530.

Asparagus tips:

■ If planting asparagus in your garden, make sure your soil is sandy plant in a trench and await the growth process. Year one: a crown forms with approximately six inches of root ending. Year two: the asparagus crown grows into a fern. Year three: time to harvest.

■ If buying asparagus, look for fresh, firm spears with a closed crown. A purple hue on the crown is no indication of age or discoloration. Buy stalks that are the same size in diameter for consisten cy in cooking time.

■ Your choice of pencil-thin or thicker stalked asparagus, is purely personal. One isn't finer or more tender than the other.

■ While some prefer only the tips, the stalks are quite delicious, especially in soups, or processed and pureed for a sauce.

Asparagus can be peeled or left unpeeled. Willams-Sonoma stores sell an asparagus peeler, or a small sharp knife will do. The asparagus peeler does provide for an extravagant gift during gift giving holidays, or an unusual hostess gift.

■ To keep fresh asparagus fresh, keep it clean, covered and cold, or wrap stem ends in moist paper towels, or stand upright into a few inches of cool water. Cook and eat asparagus as soon as possible. It will keep for a few days in the refrigerator.

- Asparagus can be steamed, boiled, sauteed, grilled, stir-fried, or baked in a casserole.
- Flavor the oil (with herbs, garlic or spices) in which you will be cooking the asparagus.
- Asparagus makes wonderful soup, a great ingredient for a quiche or stir-fry. Puree of asparagus is a wonderful base for sauces to top pastas, rice, or over a meat, fish or poultry entree. Cooked asparagus makes a delicious and nutritious side dish or salad.

Award-winning cookbook author and chef Joanne Welr has just come out with a new publication - this one is for Williams-Sonoma: "Spring-Recipes Inspired by Nature's Bounty" published by Time-Life Books, a division of Time Life Inc., 1997.

Joan has a few tips of her own; "Using a small, sharp knife, cut off the woody stem end of each asparagus spear. Alternatively, firmly grasp the end and snap it off; the stalk will break naturally at the proper point. Using a vegetable peeler, strip away the tough outer skin of the asparagus spear, starting 1-2 inches (2.5-5 cm) below the base of the tip and cutting sightly thicker as you near the end."

PARCHMENT-BAKED SCALLOPS AND ASPARAGUS

1 1/2 pound (750 g) asparagus spears 1/2 teaspoon grated orange zest

1 tablespoon fresh orange juice

1/4 cup (2 oz/60 g) unsalted butter, at room temperature salt and freshly ground pepper

2 pounds (1 kg) bay scallops Preheat oven to 425° F (220°C).

Cut or snap off the tough stem ends from the asparagus spears and discard. Cut the spears into 1 1/2-inch (4cm) lengths. Bring a large saucepan threefourths full of salted water to a boil. Add the asparagus and boil until bright green, about 1 minute. Drain well and set aside.

In a small bowl, using a fork mash together the orange zest, orange juice, butter and salt and pepper to taste.

Cut out 6 hearts from parchment paper, each one 12 inches (30 cm) high and 12 inches (30 cm) wide at its widest point. Spread the 6 parchment hearts in a single layer on a work surface. Divide: the scallops and asparagus evenly among them, placing them on the right half of each heart. Season to taste with salt and pepper and dot with the orange butter. Fold the left half of each heart over the filling and, beginning at one end, fold and crease the edges together securely so no juices will escape. Place in a single layer on a large baking sheet.

Bake until the packets have puffed considerably, 7-10 minutes. Remove from the oven and place on warmed individual plates. Cut open the top of each packet with scissors and serve immediately. Serves 6

COOK'S NOTES

Zest: thin strips of rind removed from a citrus fruit - only taking away the colored rind, leaving behind the white part. Zesters are available at all cooking shops - it is a tool specifically designed to remove the rind - this handled short bladed tool with sharp-edged small holes (usually 5) can be found at Willams-Sonoma, Bed, Bath and Beyond stores and the Kitchen Glamor Shops.

Parchment paper can be bought at upscale groceries (Hiller's Food Emporiums - formerly called Shopping Center Markets) or at kitchen shops.

The fan is connected to the home's electrical system (insist on a permit) and then runs continuously to draw soil gas out before if reaches the home's interior.

Active subslab suction works the same way, except that a hole must be cut into the basement floor. Often, only one entry point is needed to reduce radon levels effectively.

If very high levels of radon exist and/or there is poor air flow under the slab, more than one suction pipe and hole in the floor may be needed. In southeast Michigan, this is rarely the

When radon levels are relatively low, the fan can sometimes be eliminated, with the radon reduction system relying on passive exhausting of the soil gas from inside the house.

CUSTOM MADE Home Comfort is an inside job. That's why it makes sense to call Bergstrom's, a third generation company serving Metro Detroit since 1957. Since a central air conditioner is a major investment, we'll help you make an informed decision on which model unit to purchase. Our estimator will balance your comfort needs with your financial concerns. An air conditioner's SEER value, or Seasonable Energy Efficiency Ratio, is a measure of how efficiently an air conditioner uses electricity. This rating is similar in nature to the miles-per-gallon rating for cars, and provides a way for you to judge which models will be more economical to use. Most older air conditioners fall in the 6-8 SEER range whereas newer models rate in the 10-16 SEER range. In the summer, this commonly translates to a 30% savings on electric bills. Bergstrom's offers free estimates on new installations! For more information speak with a representative at Bergstrom's Inc. Plumbing and Heating. (313) 522-1350 rowing up on the eastside of Detroit in the 1940s and 1950s, the Tocco brothers were about as close as brothers could be.

They didn't have much choice. Eight boys shared a bedroom in a house of 13 siblings. The two youngest, Tony and James, shared more than a passion for music, an uncannily similar gait and bed sheets.

Following distinctively different paths, each sought a way to express a longing for ethereal harmony.

Nearly 50 years later, Tony and James have respectively found their own special verse in biblical scripture, and as one of the most established pianists in the classical music world. Today, their respective talents have found a natural partnership in a rapidly emerging local music festival that has come to symbolize universal brotherhood.

With Tony - a monseigneur pastor at St. Hugo of the Hills - providing one of the performing venues and James overseeing the artistic direction, the Tocco brothers' collaboration is the spiritual force behind the Great Lakes Chamber Music Festival. The two-week festival opens Saturday at Kirk in the Hills, an added venue this year.

Now in its fourth year, the festival has grown into one of the top international events considered on the level of prestigious chamber music festivals in Seattle, Sante Fe, Norfolk, Sarasota and Austria. This year's festival has been extended from one-week to two. It'll be held at three primary sites: Kirk in the Hills Church, Temple Beth El and St. Hugo.

Drawing on a Presbyterian sanctuary, a temple and Catholic church represents the cross-denominational appeal that organizers believe reflects "the ecumenical and spirituality of music."

Although the 11 performances by 30 musicians appears to be distinguished more by eclecticism than by theme, many of the pieces were selected to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Brahms' death and the 200th anniversary of Schubert's

"The key is James Tocco," said Maury Okun, executive director of the festival. "The musicians who'll be performing have either worked with him, or are coming here because of him.

In addition to Tocco, other highprofile artists include violinist Phillip Setzer of the Emerson Quartet, the lauded St. Lawrence: String Quartet and conductor Peter Oundjian. Local musicians participating include Detroiter pianist Ruth Laredo and the Detroit Chamber Winds.

"None of the artists are prima donnas," said James Tocco, who teaches at the University of Cincinnati Conservatory when he's not touring. "All the musicians at the festival are the type who consider the music more important than image. Because

Black Sabbath reunites at 'OzzFest'97'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAPP WRITER

Realizing that they're not the iron men that they once were, Ozzy Osbourne, Tony Iommi and Geezer Butler decided now was the time to put aside their differences and shock unsuspecting fans with a Black Sabbath reunion.

Paranoid about "getting old," Butler said they wanted to do it "while we still could do it. It was just a question of everybody getting on the phone and actually talking to each other, which we haven't done to see if it was going to work."

It worked just fine and as a result Black Sabbath will be the feature of "OzzFest '97" which comes to Pine Knob Music Theatre in Independence Township at 2 p.m. Thursday, June 12. For more information, call (248) 377-0100. (Black Sabbath's future plans include a live album with a few new songs.)

The dream of every black-clad metal head, "OzzFest" also includes performances by Osbourne, Pantera, Type O Negative, Fear Factory, Machine Head and Powerman 500 on the main stage, and "Sore feelings had to be cleared. Once that was out. Chamber, Slo Burn and Neurosis on the second

Although the reunited band has played two shows since Osbourne's departure in 1978 - 1985's Live Aid and the last show of Osbourne's 1992 world tour in Costa Mesa, Calif. - Butler said he never expected Black Sabbath would get back together.

Citing a turbulent past, Butler explained "as you get older you get more mellower and you realize what stupid little things that you fight over. It's nice to get back together.

"It's going to be great to hear the songs with the right singer doing them after all these incarnations Drain S.T.H., Downset, Vision of Disorder, Coal of Black Sabbath. Nothing is ever as good as the of the way a piece (of chamber music) is put together, it's very much a democracy."

That may be the case, but bringing in a marquee name certainly doesn't hurt the festival's growing international appeal.

Perhaps the most significant feature that elevates the featival to major international status is the presence of composer-in-residence John Corigliano, arguably the most popular composer in the United States. Corigliano's music will be featured throughout the festival. He'll be on hand to introduce his work at the Sunday, June 15, concert at Temple Beth El Chapel.

Winning three Grammys this past year, Corigliano is staking a claim to Leonard Berstein's mantel as America's musical spokesman. His first symphony, a somber commemorative to friends who died of AIDS, won the Grawemeyer award, a $150,000 prize presented to contemporary composers. In 1991, Corigliano's "Ghosts Versailles" was the first new opera at the Met in 25 years.

While some critics have lambasted Corigliano's compositions as trendy or bombastic, James Tocco and others contend that the work's accessibility and popularity is keeping contemporary

"I always wanted new music as part of the festival," said Tocco, who includes in his impressive repertoire a piece Corigliano composed for him years ago. "Serious music is being written today as it was 200 years ago. If we don't play music of our time, then we're merely propagating a dead art."

An integral part of Tocco's mission to sustain contemporary chamber music is the establishment of the Shouse Chamber Music Institute, made possibly by a grant from the Katherine Filene Shouse Foundation. During the two-week festival, five fledgling chamber ensembles will be coached by the wellestablished performing artists in attendance. "We can't run the risk in classical music to be perceived as relics," said Tocco.

Quite the contrary. Throughout his life, Tocco has either seemed precocious or at the leading edge of his art.

At nine years old, Tony recalled quitting piano lessons after becoming distressed that his younger brother by five years was already was proficient playing the complex music of Bach and Prokofiev.

"Jim was a virtuoso from the time he pushed the pedals on the player piano and memorized the keys," said Tony. "He'd practice for hours. We had to ask him - tell him - to stop!

Years later, the Tocco brothers have found a way to build a musical celebration as a monument to the special bond created long ago in their eastside Detroit home. The initial idea (for the festival) was to come back to the area and celebrate a family bond," said James.

The next step for the festival, according to Tony, is to broaden that bond beyond Bloomfield Hills. Discussions are underway to combine other regional arts events with the chamber music festival to widen the audience.

"It has to spread beyond our immediate area," he said. "This is not a festival exclusive to Bloomfield Hills." During his tenure at an eastside church and at St. Hugo, Tony has sought to make music an essential part of church life. "In Europe, festivals are usual. ly associated with churches. Young people over there know so much more about arts and let. ters," he said. "This is (also) a great way for different congrega.

tions to come together." While many call the festival a collection of some of the finest talent of chamber music music cians, the Tocco brothers simply refer to the next two-week cele. bration in more personal terms.

They call it a family reunion."

cent," he said with a laugh. Besides sets by Osbourne and Black Sabbath, "OzzFest '97" includes performances by a host of metal acts on the main stage.

■ Stalwart hard rockers Pantera will release its first live album "Official Live" on Elektra Records on Tuesday, July 29. Taken from the band's last three years of touring, "Official Live" will feature 10 live tracks plus two new studio songs. It is the follow-up to 1996's "The Great Southern Trendkill" which sold more than 700,000.

Type O Negative built a fan base with its first two albums but found fame with the goldselling "Bloody Kisses" (Roadrunner) which spawned the hits "Black No. 1" and "Christian Woman." Peter Steele, the 6-foot-6 inch bass voiced singer, wrote about 80 percent of the songs on his band's latest album "October Rust" (Roadrunner) where he tackles subjects like "My Girlfriend's Girlfriend" and his former job with the New York City Parks Department on "Green Man."

Angeles Los industrial/thrash quartet Fear

Factory has followed up the release of last year's power chord-laden "Demanufacture" (Roadrunner) with their second foray into remixing, "Remanufacture (Cloning Technology)." For this album they worked with Rhys Fulber of Front Line Assembly, Junkie XL, Kingsize, and DJ Dado. "Remixes help us see where our music can go and where we can take our ideas. These remixes are a tool for our next record and will continue to influence and inspire us as a band," said guitarist Dino Cazares.

Machine Head's debut, 1994's "Burn My Eyes" was the top-selling debut album in the history of Roadrunner Records. In recording its follow-up "The More Things Change ...," Machine Head maintained the ferociousness of its debut while adding new elements. "Some of the stuff on this album is weirder than anything we've ever done before but it's still along the same lines as far as the eerie, dark feeling that brings with it," said vocalist/guitarist Robb

Flynn. Powerman 5000, founded by Rob Zombie's brother/singer Spider, calls its sound on "Megal! Kung Fu Radio" (DreamWorks Records) "action rock." "Being in a band is as close as I could get to being an actual super hero," said PM5K singer/lyricist Spider. "That's what this is all about for me - it's like being in the Avengers or the Defenders." Groovy guitars and hard-driving vocals inundate "Megal! Kung Fu Radio," a reworking of its indie album "The Blood Splat Rating System." Fans of his brother's band shouldn't expect White Zombie Jr. "They make that assumption that we're like White Zombie but we're coming from another place."

The second stage theme is "Never Never Land" where each band plays 20-minute sets. Joining Downset, Neurosis, and Slo-Burn are:

Coal Chamber, called a "hybrid of Korn, Fear Factory, and White Zombie" by Kerrang! magazine, tapped into the personal lives of its members while writing lyrics for its self-titled debut (Roadrunner). Lead singer Dez's wife left him the day he began work on "Coal Chamber" inspiring the song "Unspoiled." (He had previously left the band for six months at her urging.) Making this record was the most difficult thing any of us has ever gone through. We were challenged physically, mentally, and emotionally, and it was pure hell, especially on my end. I needed to rid myself of all this emotion so that I could feel all right again," Dez said. ■ Drain S.T.H., an all-female this path.

Robert Goulet brings flair to "Man of La Mancha"

BY FRANK PROVENZANO STAFF WRITER

After years of prodding, one of the consummate Broadway performers apparently reached a new perspective when he agreed to play western literature's ultimate idealist, Don Quixote, Just don't expect Robert Goulet to think of it as a case of mellow-

"I turned down 'La Mancha' for 20 years," said Goulet, referring to the landmark Broadway play, "Man of La Mancha," playing at the Fisher Theatre.

Although he recorded one of the American stage's most popular anthems, "Impossible Dream" from the musical in the mid 1960s, the charismatic Goulet never could comfortably deflate his effervescent swagger to fit the melancholic role.

"It was too serious. Then I went up to Seattle where it was being performed. And for the first time, I saw some humor. It was dark and foreboding, but there was something human in it that attracted me."

Since his debut as Lancelot in the 1960 original production of "Camelot," the dapper and velvet-baritone Goulet has personified suave Broadway/Vegas performers. With Goulet, as it was said about the late Richard Burton, there's an unmistakable heroic attitude and stage presence that he has naturally translated into roles of kings and brash conquerors.

Those are intangible traits required to succeed at the demanding role Quixote/Cervantes that calls for Goulet to be on stage - and on his knees - for all but a few scenes. The story begins with Cervantes imprisoned for a minor offense.

He passes the time in the dungeon creating a mock trail. Cervantes defends himself by What: Man of La Mancha, starring Robert Goulet Where: The Fisher Theatre, Fisher Building in the New Center Area, Detroit

When: Through June 22 Times: 8 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday; 7:30 p.m. Sundays; 2 p.m. Saturday-Sunday Tickets: $22-$58 (810) 645-6666/(313) 871-1132.

acting out the story of Quixote. Throughout the tale, Goulet must undergo transformations from Cervantes to Quixote with most of the character changes occurring on stage. At one point, Goulet whitens his hair, moustache and goatee. Striking a philosophical posture. Goulet becomes the misguided knight Don Quixote de la Mancha from late 16th century Seville. Thereafter, he sets out to challenge villains and rescue distressed souls. Whether he's actually "making a difference" in the world or blindly "tipping at windmills" is one of the mostoften considered dilemmas in literature.

At 63 and planing hip-replacement surgery after his tour, Goulet flashes his trademark bravado when asked if facing his own mortality made him reexamine Cervantes story of a wandering idealist. "I simply never had any interest in the role," he said. "It absolutely had nothing to do with what I went through."

In 1993, Goulet was diagnosed with prostate cancer, Since "taking care of the problem" he has kept up his legendary grueling schedule. His 35-year career includes lead roles on stage in Camelot, Carousel, Gentleman Prefer Blonds, South Pacific, Meet Me In St. Louis, The Happy Time, Kiss Me Kate, The Fantasticks and Moon Over Buffalo. In 1992, he rejoined the cast of Camelot as King Arthur.

Goulet has also starred on television in "Murder She Wrote," "Love Boat," "Mission Impossible" and "Fantasy Island"), and most recently, in several films, including "Scrooged," "Beetlejuice" and "Mr. Wrong."

From his hotel room in St. Louis prior to arriving in Detroit, Goulet was all-too-ready to explain the epiphany of Quixote's dilemma. He recited a few lines from the musical before he found his place. "This is when he talks about being knighted," he offered as a set-up. Then, in a resonant all-too-familiar voice, he bellowed, "I wonder how sages of the future will describe this night when nothing is known except thy soul."

The inimitable Goulet quickly offered his interpretation. "When you die, if you believe in such things as your soul, you don't take any of the material world with you. Not your house, your car or your boat. So don't be so damn vain."

In a series of self-deprecating spots that aired on ESPN two years ago, Goulet reached yet another audience. He appeared, poking fun at himself, in ada to promote the network's college basketball coverage. Like Tony Bennett, a decade or so older than him, Goulet realizes that there's a new and younger audience who might not have heard about him.

In addition to planning to open in "The Wives of Henry the Eighth" next spring, Goulet is planning a new album "with a Henry Conick, Jr. sound" aimed at audiences born long after he first stepped into the role of Sir-Lancelot.

"There's a whole generation out there who've never seen a Broadway musical," said Goulet.

corner office, partnership in a prestigious law firm, and a wedding date with the boss' daughter. Best friend Richard, a parttime actor, takes his job as best man so seriously that he insists throwing Charlie a bachelor party. The mayhem that follows in "Trial and Error" is harmless enough and sometimes even funny. The teaming of every guy Jeff Daniels and "Seinfeld's" Michael Richards isn't a bad idea, especially if you take my advice and wait for this courtroom comedy on video.

Charlie has a

When Charlie is assigned to defend a future in-law in a dusty

Nevada desert town, Richard follows and brings some actor buddies with him. Charlie ends up sick from the party, so it's his friend who strolls into the courtroom to try the case.

You can't help but compare "Trial and Error" to "Liar Liar," the manic Jim Carrey comedy that remains one of the year's funniest. Courtroom movies are static by nature and this one needs something to liven it up. That something is supposed to be Richards. As Kramer on "Seinfeld," his entrances and pratfalls always draw applause and a laugh. Here they're almost grating, proving that, like many television actors, he's great in small doses but can't sustain an entire film.

He should be comfortable enough with the material, which is essentially TV-style situation comedy blown up for the big screen. The movie takes place in (she even has charts). When the ble of characters.

One of the problems with "Trial and Error" is that director Jonathan Lynn ("My Cousin Vinny") doesn't look around for potential weirdos in the woodwork. There must be some oddball yokels in this picturesque Nevada town, but we never get a chance to meet them.

Rip Torn proves an exception. He's well-cast as the defendant, a veteran con man who has bilked hundreds out of $17.99 for a copper engraving of Abraham Lincoln. What did they get for their money? A brand new penny.

There are other funny bits. Against Charlie's wishes, Richard brings in an expert witness, a New Age doctor who equates the defendant's sugarheavy diet with drug addiction

Poor Jeff Daniels. How many times has he played this regular Joe made perpetually uncomfortaround him? He even had the same name in Jonathan Demme's superior "Something Wild," another time his straightlaced, frustrated suburbanite was awakened by a frisky, freespirited woman.

Bosstones hit charts mighty hard with 'Impression'

CHRISTINA FUOCO

The Mighty Mighty Bosstones got into ska and punk rock as a way of avoiding the mainstream. Now that the band has scored a hit with the "The song Impression That I Get," saxo-phone player Tim "Johnny Vegas" Burton is thrown for a

"I'd rather they (mainstream radio listeners) listen to us than Whitney Houston. I think we have a better message than 'I Will Always Love You,' We have more substance," Burton said.

"It's cool, but personally I don't really hear it on the radio. That's not really what we're about. It thrills me more when we can go to a venue and play in front of 1,000 people. ... We consider ourselves primarily a live band. We've always felt that's the more direct and honest way to present yourself to people."

The Mighty Mighty Bosstones are joining Social Distortion, Pennywise, Royal Crown Revue, and others Wednesday, July 23. when the Warped Tour comes to Pine Knob Music Theatre in Independence Township. Tickets go on sale Saturday, June 7.

On "Let's Face It" (Mercury). the Boston band's latest album, The Mighty Mighty Bosstones retreat primarily to a straightahead ska sound while its most recent albums carried a hybrid of

So good that it debuted in the Lyrically, the album's major top 60 Billboard charts.

"The fact that ska music has stream is a big 'whatever' to me.

... I'm not going to say anything negative. No Doubt they paid their dues because they've been around for a long time so you The songs for the album were can't accuse No Doubt of jumping on some kind of bandwagon."

He's frustrated that mainstream acts influenced by ska are getting all the attention when traditional ska acts like a little bit more picky and a little the Toasters or Hepcat are largely ignored by journalists.

"I think a lot of the appeal that ska music has with the mainstream is what turned us on to ska music in the first place. The message is very similar to the punk rock message in the 1980s. It's very youth oriented, very do it yourself, and (encourages) racial diversity. Ska had that same kind of message."

"If I could be so bold to pontificate, the cool rock bands over the last eight years have been really hard bands. Your Green Days, your Red Hot Chili Peppers, and going back a little farther, Nirvana, Soundgarden have made dents in the airwaves so I think people might be looking for a more musical sound right now. I think ska has that. It's easier on the ears."

Tickets, $25 pavilion and $20 lawn, for the Warped Tour -Mighty Mighty Bosstones, Social Distortion, Pennywise, Royal Crown Revue, and others - go on sale Saturday, June 7, at all Ticketmaster outlets. For more information, call (248) 377-0100 or (248) 645-6666.

Yes, the legend of Motown has become a part of our Detroit mythology. And while we cherish that legacy, it's also become something of an albatross: you perform an amazing feat, and everybody heaps on the praise and recognition, which is great, except then they don't notice anything else about you ever again. Well, every week in this colemerged Marvin umn, and on Backstage Pass on Channel 56, we give you ammunition for those conversations by showcasing our area's artistic and cultural diversity. Sure we gave the world Motown, but we're also the worldwide nexus for techno music. With the likes of Sponge, The Verve Pipe, Vuou Hippies, et al, the major labels have zeroed in on Detroit as the current hotbed for hard-driving new rock. Kids learn about homes

STATT PHOTOS BY SHARON LEMBELT

I Know: Neill Kapron, a student at Our Lady of Sorrows, raises his hand to respond to a question about trees and their role in home construction.

Working plans: Adorno and Karen Piccinini share real blue prints of a condominium they actually build in the "Homes of Our Own"

Today's children are tomorrow's home owners.

That's why residential builders

Karen and Adorno Piccinini got involved with "Homes of Our Own," an education program developed by the National Association of Home Builders to explain the construction process at a kid's level of understanding.

Recently, the Piccininis entertained second graders at Our Lady of Sorrows School in Farmington Hills with a brief talk and video.

And the kids ate it up, coming away with a coloring book, a blueprint of a condo and a real pine seedling to plant

"I liked the movie, listening to the tree talk," said Lauren Kennedy.

"I learned you could make so much things from wood - squares, triangles," said Robert Dolecki.

"I didn't know how much trees you would use for a house (25, on average)," said Alicia Grant.

Sarah Rogers and Ryan Seitz said afterwards that they might enjoy getting into the business some day, themselves.

"My dad sells paints, and I may want to be a builder so my dad could sell paints to me and I give them to painters," Rogers said.

"It kind of looked fun," Seitz said.

The Piccininis, active in the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan, gently spoke with words the kids could understand.

"As developers, we buy land, dig up dirt, put in streets and fire hydrants," Karen said. "As builders, we build homes, apartments and condomini-

The Piccininis and the video made parallels between animals living in the woods and people living in houses, the various jobs involved in building a house and the recycling/replanting of wood products and trees.

The couple looked forward to personalizing the building industry to young people and dispelling some myths.

"Our industry gets a lot of negative press," Adorno said. "In reality, we're planting a lot more trees than we're taking down."

"We're conscious of the environment and regulations," Karen said. "We want to get that out by example."

"Skilled trades are so low (in numbers) now," Adorno said. "Maybe some day, young kids will think about becoming a builder or a skilled trades."

Laura Hryczyk, a social studies teacher at the school, helped coordinate the presentation.

"We've been studying community, she said. "It really fit in well. Houses have to do with needs and wants. Children get to see how many jobs (upwards of 200) building a house can

Tailor a home mortgage to your needs

DAVID C.

Many of the newest offerings in the constantly changing home finance market have been advantageous to consumers because they provide flexibility in either the length of the loan, the amount of the monthly payment, or the ability to obtain equity out of the home. On the other hand, conventional mortgages have worked well for many people.

They allow home buyers to make payments at a set amount for 15 or 30 years and, if they need cash, take out a home equity loan or refinance the mortgage.

I've recently been alerted to an innovative mortgage that puts home buyers in control of their mortgage and lets them tailor the mortgage exactly to their needs. Michigan National Bank now offers the "Tailored Home Loan" that lets home owners systematically increase their payments to build equity faster, access pre-paid principal if the need arises, and change other aspects of the mortgage throughout the term of the loan.

"This new program was developed for people who want the ability to change the terms of their mortgage as their financial needs change," said Mark Harwood, consumer segment marketing manager. "We believe this is the first program of its kind in the USA, and we believe it is going to be extremely popular."

The biggest shock for most home buyers comes when the lender presents the loan disclosure form and they realize just how much interest they are going to pay over a period of 15 to 30 years. The Tailored Home Loan offers new levels of flexibility and control for homeowners who wish to manage their mortgage throughout the life of that mortgage.

Homeowners can save thousands of dollars in interest by making accelerated payments and making additional lump sum payments, thus reducing the term of their mortgage and saving significant interest expense and having access to their principle for personal use. In addition, customers may lock in their rate for up to five years at various times during the life of their mortgage.

This product offers many of the advantages of different types of mortgage products, all rolled into one. It makes it possible to:

• Pay off the loan faster than most conventional mortgages.

• Save a significant amount of the money that would otherwise be spent on interest.

· Use the equity built up through previous principal payments. Switch from an adjustable to a fixed-rate (for periods of up to five Please see MULLY, F2 education program.

Renters

You really do need property insurance

Renters shouldn't overlook the need for insurance to protect their personal belongings.

"Unlike the owner of a house, who needs insurance coverage for both the dwelling and its contents, the renter needs a policy to protect just his personal belongings," Leanne Snay, executive director of the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies, said.

If the renter's building is destroyed, the insurance policy bought by the landlord or property owner will cover the building only. To recover for the loss of personal effects, including furhishing, the renter must have his own policy.

However, it is estimated that less that 20 percent of all renters nationally buy insurance to cover their belong-

There is a policy tailored to fit the needs of renters, according to the insurance industry spokeswoman. The renters policy or HO-4 covers damage to possessions that result from perils tion, theft and vandalism. It is similar to the package policy that can be bought by the owner of a home. The primary difference is that the renters policy doesn't include coverage on the dwelling structure.

Normally, the renters policy reimburses for losses on an actual cash value basis. This means that the insurance company will pay replacement cost, less depreciation. If the renter is willing to pay more, any insurer offer an endorsement to the policy that will cover contents on a replacement cost basis. The key is the words "replacement cost basis."

Although the renters policy covers personal belongings such as furniture, appliances, clothing and jewelry, there are limitations on amounts of coverage for certain types of personal property that are especially susceptible to loss. For example, coverage for cash generally has a $200 limit.

Other valuables, such as jewelry, such as explosion, fire or lightening, furs, firearms and silverware, have limwindstorm or hair, riot or civil commo- itations for their loss. These limits vary between $1,000 and $2,500. For an additional premium, the consumer can buy a policy endorsement that specifically describes each item and includes its dollar value. The key word to communicate with your agent is "floater.".

The renters policy usually includes several other coverages. Examples of these are:

 Additional living expenses that might be incurred if the residence is temporarily uninhabitable after a loss.

· Personal liability insurance for bodily injury/property damage claims or lawsuits.

 Alterations or improvements the renter has made to the building at his/her own expense.

Some other benefits include:

Automatic payment increases: Customers may request that their mortgage payment be automatically increased annually. The more principal paid, the shorter the time until the mortgage is paid off and the more money saved by not paying additional interest.

The automatic payment increase may be any amount up to 10 percent of the homeowner's regular mortgage payment. The, amount of the payment increase may also be changed or canceled during the life of the loan. The Tailored Home Loan is available for 15, 20, 25 and 30 years.

Accumulated equity and re-draw:

By systematically increasing payments, pre-paid principal is accumulated. This money may be accessed by the homeowner at any time after the pre-paid principal balance reaches $2,000 for a small transaction fee. This is called the "re-draw." The minimum amount that may be withdrawn is $2,000. Adjustable rate options:

Tailored Home Loan is available with a variety of adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs). These include a one-year ARM or the ability to lock in an interest rate for two, three, four or five years. Interest accrues on a daily simple interest basis, allowing customers to save even more if they make their payment before the scheduled due date.

and from the water supply into the If you turn off the power to the second tank, that tank will function as a preheater by raising the water temperature to that approaching room temperature before it enters the first tank. This reduces your energy costs.

In the case where more hot water is needed, there are several ways to deal with this problem. For instance, > a plumber may install the second water heater in parallel. Water heaters that are the same size and BTU input are usually installed this way - the advantage being that the system will provide large quantities of hot water at one time, since water is drawn from both tanks simultaneously. Also, this system allows you to shut off and drain one tank for periods where the extra hotwater capacity is not needed.

> Water heaters that are different sizes are often installed in series. The first and smaller tank functions as a preheater for the larger

Other options to consider would be installing the water heaters individually (so each serves a group of fixtures), installing an instantaneous water heater (a small gas or electric water heater adjacent to a tub/shower or sink) or installing a single large water heater. Each installation has advantages and drawbacks, and you should discuss each of these with the contractor who will perform the installation.

Q: I have a 4-zone, gas-fired, forced hot-water heating system. The water heater has started making a low moaning noise intermittently, almost a groan. The system is 26 years old and has had minimal maintenance. How can I stop the noise?

A: It sounds like the bearings are failing on the circulator pump. Over the years, the bearings wear - especially if they have not been adequately lubricated. Worn bearings get hot, overheat and develop a scraping noise, which is transmitted through the piping and can be heard in some sections of the house. If the sounds are coming from the circulator bearings, replace the circulator.

Circulator pump bearings should be lubricated at least once a year with motor oil, typically sold at hardware stores. Newer circulator pump motors, however, are usually permanently lubricated.

Built-in central vacuum simplifies household chores

(NAPS) - Since most of us don't have the luxury of a fairy god-mother, we rely on time-saving devices - not magic wands to help make tough household chores a little easier.

One way to do this is to invest in a central cleaning system. Affordable and easy to use, these systems simplify vacuuming and dusting while giving homeowners the ability to thoroughly clean just about every inch of their houses. Here's how it works: The power unit - the heart of the central cleaning system - can be conveniently installed in any area such as garage or basement, away from daily living activities. Tubing, run under the floor or in the attic. connects through the walls to unobtrusive inlets placed strategically throughout the house.

When it's time to vacuum, simply insert the hose into an inlet to automatically turn the system on. The strong vacuum power is instantaneous and the long, flexible hose enables you to clean from room to room, up and down stairs and in all of those hard-toreach places.

Experts at NuTone®, a leading manufacturer of central cleaning systems, cite other advantages:

 Superior dust pick-up. These systems are especially great for those who suffer from household dust allergies. They remove dust from the room and capture it with dual filtration inside the power unit instead of recycling fine particles of dust back into the air you breathe. · Convenience and easy carrying. Your days of lugging around a heavy vacuum cleaner could be over. Spend less time dusting and vacuuming and more time doing the things you want to do. The system's built-in power unit will really be appreciated when cleaning stairs.

• Quiet as you clean. Since the power unit is located away from living areas, so is most of the noise. This means the system is so quiet, you can even vacuum when you're on the phone.

· Added resale value of your home. One of the features most desired by homeowners today.

The company also offers a wide selection of tools and accessories to meet individual cleaning needs and an easy-to-use, timesaving automatic dustpan inlet called the VacPantM. This great innovation provides the daily convenience of cleaning smooth floors without bending or using a dustpan.

For an informative brochure about central cleaning systems including the automatic dustpan inlet, call: 1-800-543-8687.

Look for structural quality when buying home

With the warmer temperatures, many people begin searching for new homes or start working with their builders to custom design and construct the dwelling of their dreams. While looking at the beauty of the kitchen and master bedroom and bathroom in a model home, or while viewing plans, industry experts suggest buyers thoroughly examine the structural construction and materials to be used in the building of their homes.

"What it really comes down to is asking builders lots of questions and coming armed with information," explains David Boivin, vice president of marketing for building products manufacturer CertainTeed Corporation.

For instance, while quality can be easily demonstrated via such items as a hardwood floor or brand of appliance, some things within a home can be hidden or overlooked because they are not easily seen. One example of this is insulation. Insulation is usually not visible to the potential buyer, especially in sidewalls. How does a homeowner then know what material is in the wall and what the quality of the product is? This is especially important when you consider that insulation is a product that must be installed correctly otherwise thermal performance is sacrificed.

To ensure high quality insulation installations, the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) Research Center has developed a Certified Contractor Program, the only program of its kind where an independent third party certifies the installation of a building product in new homes.

"This program is setting new quality standards in the housing industry for the installation of insulation," explains nized quality system, effectively trained fied Program or a list of certified insula-Liza Bowles, NAHB Research Center president. "Now home builders that use stringent criteria in a thorough thirda certified insulation contractor and the buyers that purchase from these builders are assured of the overall quality of the insulation in their houses."

In only a year in operation nearly 100 insulation contractors have been certified in the program across the country and the NAHB Research Center wants to expand into other subcontracting fields.

Therefore when looking at prospective new homes or discussing a custom home with your builder ask him if he uses a certified contractor, as they have established a recog-

Below are some safety tips from the American Academy of Ophthalmolo-

Safety in the backyard: Stones, twigs, and other debris become dangerous projectiles after shooting out of the blades of a lawn mower and can injure eyes including those of innocent bystanders. Before using a lawn mower, power trimmer or edger, be sure to check for rocks and stones. When using pesticides around the yard, always point the spray-can nozzle away from your Eye protection around the home: Many household chemicals, such as cleaning fluids, detergents, and ammonia, are extremely hazardous and can burn the eye's delicate tissues. When using chemicals for home improvement, always read instructions and labels carefully, work in a well-ventilated area, and make sure spray nozzles point away from you before spraying. After use, wash your hands thoroughly! Use of tight-fitting goggles, available at hardware stores, is also advisable, especially when spraying or splashing is involved. The majority of eye injuries
