Turner is tops in school race

Low voter turnout in both Wayne-Westland and Livonia school races brought some new faces onto local boards of education. In Wayne-Westland, challenger Ed Turner topped the field.

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

Incumbent school trustee Mathew McCusker and former trustee Ed Turner upset one-term incumbent Patricia Brown and three other challengers to capture four-year terms on the Wayne-Westland Board of Education Monday.

Despite a sparse 2.9-percent turnout by voters at the 1997 annual school election, retired airline employee Turner captured a majority of the votes, sweeping 12 of 17 precincts - including absentee ballots - by more than 430 votes over current board president Brown, according to official vote tallies.

Only 1,968 of an estimated 66,000 registered voters in the district turned out at the polls, casting 3,680 votes, according to information obtained from the district, Turner captured 1,047 votes, McCusker 725, and Brown 615 while challenger and retired educator Gary Green logged 638 votes, social worker Marshall Wright 405 votes and engineer Jack Stange 240.

Writing test scores down

BY MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

With a statewide drop in scores on the writing proficiency test, English teachers will now feel the same heat as their counterparts did in math and science.

Juniors in Livonia Public Schools who took the 1997 science and math tests scored higher than the Livonia juniors who took the same tests in 1990. But on the writing test, this year's crop of iuniors faltered. Livonia schools includes a portion of northern

Help wanted: Bring time, lots of elbow grease

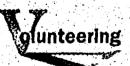

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STATE WRITER

ome wasn't built in a day and it wasn't done alone.

The same can be said for the Westland Playscape project as coordinators begin recruiting volunteers of all ages and skill levels to donate time to its construction.

According to general coordinator Kelly Furtaw, the entire process from beginning to end will require the assistance of more than 5,000 volunteers throughout the six-day building schedule. Workers are needed for preliminary construction, child care, food preparation/distribution, errand running, shoveling, painting and staining.

"The guidelines we are following for the approximate number of volunteers we'll need are based on a medium-size build," said Furtaw. "The Westland Playscape will be the largest in Michigan so our estimations are on the low side."

The 30,000-square-foot wooden play structure was designed by the New York architectural firm of Robert Leathers & Associates, which has more than 1,200 adventure playgrounds to its credit, including local examples in Canton, Plymouth Township, Northville, Farmington Hills and Saline.

Construction scheduled

A three-tier construction schedule has been established for the Sept. 9-14 building dates beginning with a shift from 8 a.m. to noon, 12:30-5 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. to dark. Furtaw said lunch and dinner will be served from noon to 12:30 p.m. and 5-5:30 p.m. daily and child care will be provided for volunteers with young children.

Workers can contribute their time and expertise in the prefabrication area where wood will be cut, stained and painted. Also, individuals who feel comfortable operating power tools will be delegated to the Westland. Last year, 41.6 percent earned a proficient rating in writing. This year, the percentage fell to 35.40. Statewide writing scores dropped to 30.8 percent; last year they were 34.4.

"We're surprised at the writing drop; it's unexplainable," said Al Edwards, the district's research and evaluation specialist.

LIVONIA SCHOOLS

Edwards tends to agree with educators statewide who believe the drop may be due to the fact that students got a variety of topics to write on, this year as well as last year. This year's topics may have been more complex than last year's.

"How well did students relate to the topic they were given by the state?" Edwards asked. "Were they less interested?"

Livonia Superintendent Ken Watson wondered if there might have been more computer scoring glitches than the one which surfaced, was widely reported, and which held back the release of scores for two days. In Livonia, the glitch only affected Churchill High's writing scores.

Whatever the cause, Livonia will work with English teachers to hone writing skills, said Marlene Bihlmeyer, curriculum director.

The writing test challenges juniors with three different types of writing:

An impromptu piece, where organization is less important.

A highly organized paper that takes 110 minutes to complete.

A reflection piece, where students bring in one of their own pieces of writing, pick it apart, and reflect on their skills as a writer.

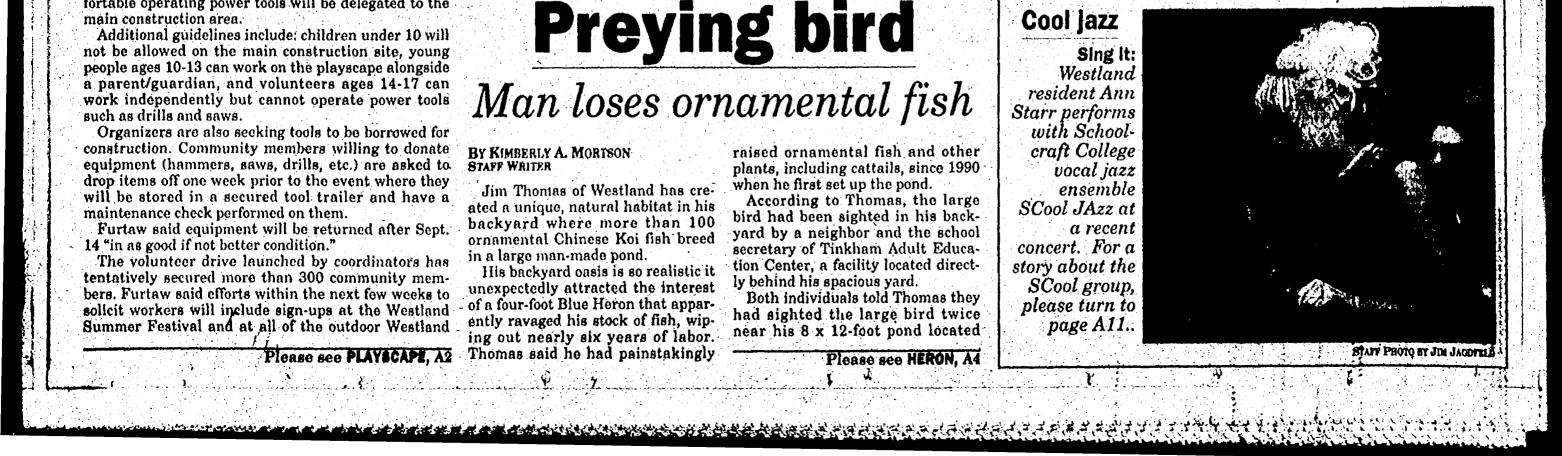

In addition, the reading test asks juniors to write essays on articles they read.

In grading the papers, judges key in on how well papers are developed, how well students stick to the topic, and the kinds of words students use to make their points, Bihlmeyer said

"Correct grammar and spelling is only one of the four elements that are judged," she said. "They place more emphasis on the clarity and

Events to raise $180,000 needed to cover the costs of construction have been scheduled with the most recent activities involving a raffle, bowling tournament and the sale of Westland Playscape T-shirts, hats and sweat shirts.

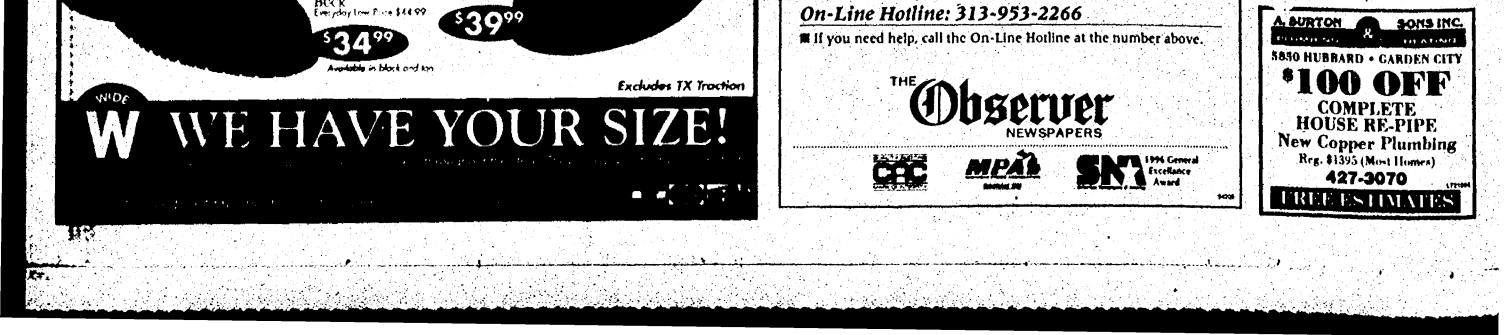

The June 7 raffle sponsored by the Civitan Club of Westland awarded a life-size playhouse to winning ticket-holder Cody Watkins of Wayne. Other winners included: K. Starcevich (Northville), $100 JC Penney gift certificate; J. Dutchak (Westland), women's gold watch from Modern Jewelers: Pat Guziak (Westland), $100 savings bond, Cherry Hill NBD Bank; Lori Brist (Westland), $50 savings bond, Cherry Hill NBD Bank; and Darlene Russ (Belleville), dinner for two at Alexander the Great restaurant.

Playscape coordinators will have a booth set up at the Westland Summer Festival for an ongoing fund-raiser that enables individuals to purchase ceramic tiles to decorate with their hand print and name. The 8-by-8-inch tiles are sold for $10 and will be fired and included in the final design of the play structure. Volunteers can also sign up for shifts during the six-day construction schedule at the same booth.

"The volunteer help and community spirit needed to build the playscape is every bit as important as the endless fun our children will enjoy," said playscape chairman Bob Kosowski. "Please consider all the different ways to help - and volunteer today."

Another playhouse has been built by the William D. Ford Career/Technical construction students and will be awarded later in the summer through a raffle. For every hour worked at the construction site, volunteers can earn one free raffle ticket or purchase them for $1 each or six for $5.

Exceptional effort Westland adult education graduates share their stories of success and life aren Milam refers to the letter congratulating her on the successful completion of her GED as her "first refrigerator paper."

The 37-year-old mother of two went back to school in January after losing a secretarial job with a Detroit trucking company, having never "practiced what she preached" to her eldest son, Kory.

"He was pressuring me to go back to school and get my GED," said Milam," so my hands were tied when I lost my job. He used that to pressure me into going back to school."

Among the 60 other Tinkham Adult Education students who received their GED and high school diploma last Friday was Milam's son – Kory – and the program's oldest graduate, Westland resident Duncan Ferguson.

Kory and his mother were schoolmates earlier this year when she began taking day classes simultaneously with the 17-year-old who fell behind with his credits as a Wayne Memorial High School sophomore.

Neither of Kory's parents completed high school according to Caren who quit in the 10th grade when she became pregnant. Her husband, Mark, dropped out later in his senior year.

"At the time I thought it was very, very much a big mistake," said Caren, "but since then, nothing but good has come from having Kory."

Caren began taking adult education classes at Tinkham in January and said the experience was a "whole lot different when you want it for yourself."

"I felt the pressure when I was testing," said Caren, "because I knew if I didn't get my GED I could never look at Kory again."

The Wayne wife and mother said she has always been hard on Kory to finish school and get his diploma, particularly after he fell behind in the 1994-95 school year, not wanting her son to make the mistake she and her husband had made.

Caren went on to add that her son was discouraged by adults who said it would be virtually impossible for him to receive his diploma on time with his fellow classmates who were expecting to graduate in the spring of 1997.

"That made him work harder," said Caren, "and he knew he'd have to take classes at Tinkham and the voc-tec (William D. Ford Career/Technical Center) in order to graduate on time."

Adult/Community Education graduates include:

Donna Sue Andrews, Jennifer Lynn Augustine, Bradley S. Bacckus, Vaolire Lynn Baker, Cristo L. Broadnax, Chad Che' Brown, Robert A. Chrzanowski III, Jeremy D. Clark, Michael J. Comerio, Bryan james Cooke, Keith Jay Cunningham, Matthew Dalton, Raymond C. Dodds, Cherie Lynn Duke, Jada Olivia Elliott, Michael-Paul Fack, Duncan Darrach Ferguson, Eric L. Kory's mom said not only has he taken classes day and night, getting home most days at 10 p.m., but he hasn't complained or nagged about the workload since he made the promise to her.

"He hasn't been able to get a job or his license because he's wanted to graduate so bad and his schedule has been too busy to accommodate that. He's all grown up now and he's the hero."

Caren says her family members, including husband Mark and daughter Kelly, 15, have been very supportive of her pursuit to received a GED.

"My husband is worse than happy," said Caren. "You'd think he was the one graduating – not me."

According to Wayne-Westland Adult Education coordinator Beth Clarke, it's unique to have graduates like the Milams and their eldest student, Duncan Ferguson, to enter and complete their studies considering the circumstances.

Ferguson, who will turn 73 in August, never received his high school diploma because he was drafted by the United States Army in 1943. At the time he was an 18year-old student apprentice involved with a program he began in the 10th grade.

"I was stationed overseas ..." said Ferguson. "We were the first to fly over Berlin and bomb it in 1944."

After serving in the Army until 1947, Ferguson returned to the U.S. and began working for McLouth Steel as a bricklayer until he retired in 1992.

His wife, Jane, said she was glad he decided to return to school just over a year ago.

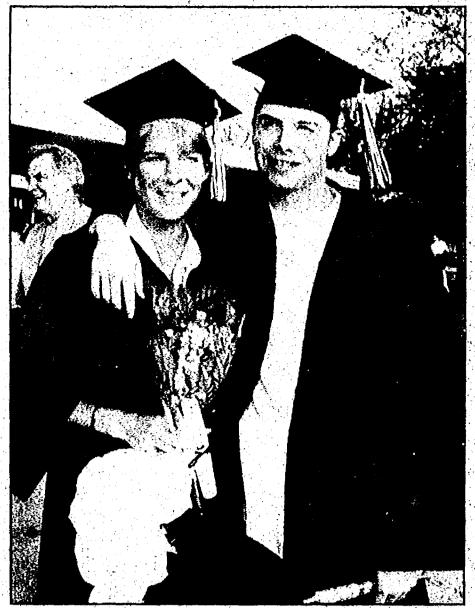

"When he first retired, he sat at home all day and watched television," said Jane. "People have to get out and keep busy. I was glad he had something to do."

The 23-year Westland resident said his biggest challenge wasn't the academics but "dealing with young people."

"I was nervous," said Ferguson.

Eighteen months after entering the adult education program and having completed courses in literature, communications, mathematics and biology, Ferguson received his diploma.

"I didn't want a GED," said Ferguson, "I wanted my diploma. Now I've got it and I people to thank," said McCusker by phone Tuesday afternoon, "but Kevin and Teresa took on the major thrust of my campaign and were doing things on my behalf of which I am very grateful."

Robbins said it was the community who deserved acknowledgment for the win because "they got out and exercised their democratic right to vote."

"Ed is very open-minded and is always concerned about being available to have a listening ear to his constituents," said Robbins. "His primary interest is the students and Mat's record speaks for itself."

Defeated incumbent Brown, a communications consultant who sought re-election for a second term in office, said she hoped to congratulate the two winning candidates on their election success as well as thanking her supporters.

"I ran a decent and hard campaign. I am proud of what I've accomplished and proud to have served on the board," said Brown.

Although she didn't speak to the anonymous hate flier distributed just prior to the election and directed at her, some questioned the adverse effects it might have had on her campaign. An investigation of the flier's origin continues.

Also speculated to have an impact was the controversy that surfaced recently over an antidiscrimination policy approved by the board in January; the board has agreed to review that policy, which protects all staff, board members and students from discrimination on the basis of race, gender and sexual orientation.

Brown's final school board meeting is June 19. Turner will be officially seated as a trustee July 14 at the annual organizational meeting of the board where he and McCusker will be sworn in.

The first task for the district will be to move programs out of Bentley that are housed in areas slated for demolition.

One of the biggest moves involves the Head Start program. Throughout the summer months, the Perrinville building at Farmington and Ann Arbor Trail will be remodeled to house the federal program for preschoolers. "Our goal is to have Head Start start at Perrinville this fall," Watson

A grass-roots group, the Bentley Backers, emerged to sell residents the idea of giving the center a three-year reprieve. If the tax increase had not passed, school administrators had said the entire building could be razed.

The Bentley Backers eventually merged with parents and students working to get convince voters to pay the bill to deepen the two pools.

The co-leaders of Bentley Backers are Terry Godfroid. Marecki, graduate of the Bentley Class of '74, and Jason Maciejewski, graduate of the Franklin Class of '87. Both said they were pleased with the 65 percent voter approval of the two tax proposals.

"We didn't expect that." Maciejewski said. "This is a great opportunity for the city to create a jewel." On the swimming pool tax question, 3,722 resi. dents voted yes, 1,989 voted no.

On the Bentley question, 3,697 district residents voted yes, 2,014 voted no.

Daniel Lessard, who regained the school board seat he once had and lost, attributed the success of both proposals to the fact that neither tax will last for more than one year.

"It's not a lot of money, and it's only for one year," said Lessard. "People know a good thing when they see it, and support it."

Both taxes together will cost the average Livonia homeowner less than $30.

Patrick Nalley was the top vote getter in the race for two four-year seats on the Livonia board.

Nalley garnered 2,661 votes; Lessard 2,417 votes. Kirsten Galka placed third. She garnered 2.241 votes. Coming in fourth was Jane Teska with 1,369 votes. With 988 votes, Thomas Kasper. a recent Stevenson graduate, placed fifth.

Waterproof Your Ears With Swim Plugs

Some ears retain water more than others. But today's custom swim plugs can keep you in the swim this summer, and all year round.

Water, water everywhere. At the beach, in the pool, even in the shower. Water is a key ingredient for summer fun. But it can also pose a real problem for some people. especially those who have had perforated eardrums or had tubes inserted due to previous infections. Water retained in the ear canal can not only be irritating, it can also cause infections when trapped in the ear canal.

Protect your ears and your family's with custom swim plugs. They are made to fit your ears comfortably and snugly through an impression-taking process similar to the one used to make earmolds for hearing instruments. Many of today's swim plugs also feature

Over the Memorial Day weekend, Thomas said he attempted to feed the fish twice but noticed none came to the surface of the water for food. It wasn't until Monday that he himself spotted the 48 to 54 inch bird feeding on his fish.

The Westland homeowner said he estimates six of his large Chieaten in addition to five white fan-tailed fish approximately 12 inches in length, and nearly sixdozen small to medium fish.

Unfortunately one of the fish the bird consumed was a pet of his neighbor's niece who asked Thomas if the fish could make it's home in the pond since it outgrew it's own tank.

According to Tom Weise, endangered species coordinator for the Lansing Wildlife Division of the Department of Natural Resources, the Blue Heron is a protected bird that typically

Court to decide who gets how much in school case

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

Local property taxpayers - not school districts - are entitled to the hundreds of millions the state must cough up under a Michigan Supreme Court order, says Dick Headlee.

"The money should go back in the form of tax relief. It should not be a local government windfall," said Headlee from his retirement home in Utah, where he got word of the high court's decision far ahead of reporters.

He said property owners made up the shortfall in state funds through higher millage rates; therefore, property owners should get any money the high court awards.

"And it opens up the filing cabinets for local government claims. There are 450 files in the bowels of the bureaucracy (in which local units claim the state owes them money for mandating services without paying for them). The Local Government Claims Review Board met in 1985 for its first and only meeting."

At least 84 mostly suburban school districts are entitled to recover. Local public school districts who filed as plaintiffs in the case include Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union and South Redford.

Many others weren't part of the suit — like Garden City but have filed claims. Total estimates range from $500 million to $3.5 billion.

The Supreme Court issued a two-page order late Tuesday, saying the state owes money to the school districts for failure to pay the state's share of special. education and special ed transportation, as required by the 1978 Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution. The state also must pay the districts' attorneys' costs.

The school districts' big win is certain to result in a legislative debate over how to pay off the claims.

Headlee was a Farmington Hills insurance executive when voters 19 years ago approved the lengthy amendment to Art. 9 that bears his name. Sec. 29 prohibits the state from requiring "a new activity or an increase in the level of any activity. beyond that required by existing law. . . unless a state appropriation is made and disbursed to pay the unit of local government.

In 1980 Donald Durant of Warren Fitzgerald School District filed the suit, argued by Birmingham attorney Dennis Pollard, saying the state shorted them, particularly on special education. The suit became know as "the Durant case."

The Supreme Court gave the parties 21 days to file briefs on the question Headlee raised plus these other questions: "If a remedy should include monetary relief." What would be a reasonable schedule of payments?" implying it could be scheduled over several years. Should any monetary remedy include interest. . .?" Should the state be given credit for federal funding received by the local units. . .?" How far back in time should the payments go?

The high court said it would issue its opinion after the supplemental briefs have been filed.

"I've been called a jackass by two different governors," said a gleeful Headlee, referring to William Milliken (1969-82) and James Blanchard (1983-90), "and the third (John Engler, since 1991) is probably thinking the same thing to himself.

"I encouraged Engler to settle this one," said Headlee, the 1982 Republican gubernatorial nominee against Democrat Blanchard. Whether the state can come to terms with Pollard and the school districts remains to be seen.

Effect of the high court order was to uphold the Court of Appeals, which in turn upheld the findings of a "special master," Wayne Circuit Judge James Mies, now of Plymouth Township. Mies was handed the case after the first special master, Macomb Circuit Judge George Deneweth, died several years ago.

The school districts' big win is certain to result in a legislative debate over how to pay off the claims. The lowest estimate, $500 million, is about 6 percent of one year's general fund budget; the highest, $3.5 billion, is about 40 percent of a year's GF budget.

Lawmakers face two questions:

Should they, as an Engler administration official has suggeated, reduce the problem by reducing how much special ed the state mandates? The federal government mandates special ed from ages 3 to 21; the state, from birth to 26. Parents of special ed students for months have been warning legislators against cutting service.

quality of ideas."

To boost writing skills, school districts are handicapped because they don't get to see the papers written.

In the past, English teachers have had a lot of autonomy in teaching English, Bihlmeyer said. Impromptu writing has not been stressed. And students who often start papers in class and finish them at home have not had to write under time pressures.

Now, the district will seek more "uniform, common standards," she said. "We'll have more common expectations for English teachers."

This will include more practice writing assignments, she said.

Math and science teachers who already have felt the pressure to boost scores have watched scores in those area consistently rise.

Math scores top all test scores both in Livonia and statewide. In 1996, 53.50 percent of Livonia's 11th- graders were proficient in math. In 1997, the percentage jumped eight points, to 61.5. The percentage statewide is 52.9.

also have steadily climbed. In 1996, 35.5 percent of the juniors earned a proficient rating in science. In 1997, the percent is 40. The percentage statewide is 38.5.

Reading scores barely budged. In 1996, 47.5 percent of the juniors earned a proficient rating in reading. In 1997, the percentage barely rose, to 47.9. The percentage statewide is 41.1.

All of Livonia's scores on the proficiency tests beat statewide scores.

The state puts scores in three categories: proficient, novice and not-yet-novice. On all four tests, a very low percentage of Livonia's juniors wound up in the not-yet-novice category, the lowest category.

Whether a student wound up in the other two categories depended on where the arbitrary line was drawn, said Watson, who offered his own, personal insight into the test results.

"The average scores of all students who took the test are far more important to me than those who got an A," Watson said.

Students who earn a proficiency rating on any of the four tests get a sticker on their diplomas. So far, neither employers or col-The district's science scores leges have shown interest in the sticker.

Local commissioners split on pay hike for county officials

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Wayne County elected officials received 2.5 percent pay raises Thursday after county commissioners fell short of a two-thirds majority needed to deny them.

County Executive Ed McNamara, Prosecuting Attorney John O'Hair, County Clerk Teola Hunter, Sheriff Robert Ficano, County Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz and 15 county commissioners will receive two 2.5 percent pay hikes, one retroactive to Jan. 1, 1997 and a second raise on Jan. 1, 1998.

Pay raises for the county's elected officials are tied directly to recommendations from the State Officers Compensation Commission, while they receive salaries based on a percentage of Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn them to vote to enact or reject agenda for 1997-98 before many the governor's salary. The SOCC meets in December of even-numbered years to decide on salaries of Michigan Supreme Court justices and state elected officials. Commissioners must obtain a two-thirds vote supporting a rejection of the pay hikes to deny them. That resolution was defeated, 9-4, with one commissioner abstaining and one commissioner absent.

The four commissioners supporting rejection of the salary hikes were Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia; Bruce Patterson, R-Canton; Susan Hubbard, D. Dearborn, and Jewel Ware, D-Detroit.

Opposing the resolution were Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland; and Commissioners Heights, who represents Redford Township and part of Livonia; Chris Cavanagh, D-Grosse Pointe: Detroit Democrats Chairman Ricardo Solomon, Vice Chair Pro Tem Edna Bell, and Commissioners Robert Blackwell, Ken Cockrel, George Cushingberry and Bernard Parker.

In essence, a "no" vote allowed the pay raise to go through.

Commissioner William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, abstained, while Commissioner Edward Boike, D-Taylor, was absent.

Solomon added the pay hike to the unfinished business portion of the agenda. Cushingberry then reminded the commissionthe pay raises.

Patterson asked Solomon when he placed the item on the agenda, because the pay raises were not listed on it.

Solomon responded that he placed it on the agenda "severalmade aware of it, but I just don't know," Solomon said. Solomon could not be reached to elaborate on his comments.

Patterson believed the commission's action would be more appropriate if the pay raises were published on an agenda to inform the public. The commission also was acting on the item that day, after Solomon outlined other public officials.

"Here you have hordes of people and then they leave, and you want to vote on it," Patterson said. "I think it looks a lot better if you publish it."

Then commissioners voted on days ago." "Actually I was just it, and the rejection resolution failed, so the pay hikes are effective.

> McNamara's salary is based on 97 percent of the governor's salary. In December the SOCC recommended Gov. John Engler receive two 2.5 percent annual hikes for 1997 and 1998 to bring Engler's salary to $127,300 next year.

McNamara will earn $123,481 ers a county ordinance required the commission's legislative next year, up $3,012 from this Commission Chairman Ricardo Solomon, $61,392; Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, and Vice Chair Pro Tempore Kay Bell, D-Detroit, $55,392.

Thousands help rescue Rouge

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Ä10*

Red Wing fans may have carried their brooms downtown Saturday for a sweep, but they weren't the first people in metro Detroit to carry around cleanup equipment that day.

· Actually thousands of volunfeers brought gloves, boots and chain saws that day to 15 cleanup sites on the Rouge River throughout Wayne and Oakland counties.

With temperatures in the 70s and sunshine prevailing, an estimated 2,000 volunteers converged on the Rouge River, ranging from the rear of a police shooting range in Detroit's Rouge Park to the banks of Tonquish Creek in Westland.

Jim Graham, executive director of the Friends of the Rouge, did not have a final figure of the tons of debris pulled out, but believed that most sites had at least one full 30-cubic-yard Dumpster.

It is a smaller amount of debris in the Dumpster for a reason: the Rouge Rescue volunteers now pile up wood from logjams on the ground where it will remain, rather than placing it in a trash bin where it would be dumped in a landfill.

"What we're trying to do is pile the stuff out of the habitat," Graham said. "It's an effort to enhance the habitat and save the landfill."

Volunteers still pull out shopping carts, carpeting and concrete from the river. About 45 volunteers in Livonia, which included residents from Livonia. Farmington and Northville. pulled out about 45 yards, Graham said.

Westland brought about 200 volunteers to the site at Tonquish Creek at the William Holliday Park at Newburgh just north of Warren. Volunteers pulled several logiams from that creek, planted trees, built birdhouses and a footbridge.

Redford Township featured neighbors and Cub Scouts, also picking up debris and carrying up logs from logjams. Plymouth volunteers pulled out about 80 yards of debris.

Largler Loursee.

Graham said Southfield volunteers cleared 20 logjams and several 100 yards of debris. A site at Dearborn High School featured 150 people, many of them students, who went as far as writing letters to businesses along the Rouge to remind business owners of the importance of keeping the river clean.

"Farmington Hills also had a great turnout," Graham said. About 250 people gathered there.

Four large trees were pulled from the river in Detroit, near the police shooting range, by volunteers. While logjams consist of natural debris, it still contributes to bank erosion.

"That stuff just carries up the river, until it hits a bend, and then it just clogs it up," Graham said. "It will help until we can do something to stabilize flow rates. The (retention) basins will help some."

Graham hopes the annual rescues carry a strong, environmental message about the Rouge. "I hope the message is that people are more concerned about being more responsible and taking care of the river."

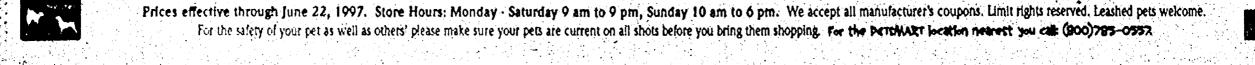

S'craft singers tune up for Russian jazz festival

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

Crooners from Schoolcraft College's two vocal jazz performance groups are counting the days until they depart on an international trip as the first America choir group to perform in the Russian Music Festival in Cheboksary.

The SCool JAzz and SCool JAzz Prime groups consist of college and community members, with both amateur and professional experience, who perform at a variety of venues including benefit concerts, community programs, and annual school performances such as the Madrigal and Mardi Gras events.

Twenty-members in all, representing both vocal groups, will leave for the city of Cheboksary, located between Moscow and St. Petersburg, for an unprecedented 12-day tour beginning June 21.

According to Jean Bonner, Schoolcraft College associate dean of liberal arts, the invitation to perform at the prestigious Russian Music Festival, came to the college vocal group from the Russian Ministry of Culture, Alexander N. Demchenko.

As the first American jazz group to tour Russia, the prestigious honor came with a heavy price tag - it would require the group to raise approximately $40,000 to adequately fund their two-week itinerary.

Steven SeGraves, Schoolcraft program director of vocal music, said he and 19 members of the school jazz program have been preparing for the cultural and musical exchange since last fall when they first learned of the invitation initiated through a partnership with the International Fine Arts Institute in Wisconsin.

Preparation has not only included rehearsing more than 30 American jazz songs (ragtime and blues) but performing at additional fund-raising events to insure the groups financial ability to make the trip.

"We've performed at two community concerts in Livonia and Ann Arbor where we had afterglows following the programs to fund the trip," said SeGraves.

Annual Schoolcraft events such as the Madigral concert: and Mardi Gras also helped subsidize the cost. Bonner said each ensemble member contributed $500 toward their $40,000 goal and the college donated money through the Schoolcraft Foundation.

Their intense travel and performance schedule will include up to five outdoor venues a day at parks, soccer fields, city squares, festivals and parades where 16 members from both groups expect to sing, three will provide instrumental accompaniments and SeGraves conducting. "I'm looking forward to the cultural differences," said SeGraves. "The singing is a big part but it will be interesting to see what Russia is like and meet with so many different people."

The group will not only be carrying the spirit of Schoolcraft abroad, but that of their native state and country as local Sen. Alma Wheeler-Smith, D-Salem, bestowed upon the group flags from the state of Michigan and the United States. The vocal music director said he looks forward to an opportunity to present the flags and some certificates to various Russian digni-

SeGraves, a Wayne State University graduate and former member of the university men's glee club and chamber singers, has been a part-time adjunct faculty member at the Livonia college since 1993 in addition to maintaining directorship of the Farmington/Farmington Hills

Community Choir.

Although the collegiate jazz ensemble is less than $1,000 away from their $40,000 goal -SeGraves said the college welcomes tax-deductible donations that will benefit other international endeavors such as an upcoming trip to the St. Petersburg Conservatory in Russian by eight Schoolcraft piano program students.

"Our music program is flourishing," said Bonner, "and international trips of this nature demonstrate the kinds of opporstudents. This has been a learning experience for all of us."

The PCBs lie in soil and sediment at the lake's bottom and are suspected of bioaccumulating in organisms and fish there.

Rotenone is a natural substance derived from several tropical and subtropical plants. Natives in Central and South America have used the juices of these plants for centuries to help them collect fish for food.

Scientists have learned that dried roots of rotenone-producing plants can be ground into a powder that is useful as a garden insecticide. For many years it was applied to crops. and livestock to control insect pests.

Because rotenone-producing plants grow only in the wild, rotenone production is dependent on natives who locate, dig, and dry the roots for sale to wholesalers. While its use in agriculture has declined, fishery uses continue.

Here are some questions and answers about rotenone from the U.S. Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Service.

What is rotenone?

Rotenone is a white, odored less. crystalline, natural substance contained in the stems and roots of certain tropical plants, such as the jewel vine or flame tree, lacepod or hoary pea.

What other uses are there for rotenone?

It is used as a garden insecticide to control chewing insects, used as a dust on cattle, a dog. and sheep "dip," in addition to its use as a fish control agent. How does it work?

ki will earn $53,392 next year in chairing the Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Services.

Commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, will earn $49,932 next year.

Patterson believes the 15 commissioners: "as a whole" don't deserve the raise.

"I don't agree that we need to give commissioners pay raises all the time," Patterson said.

"If you look at all 15 districts, my district, with five of the top 10 fastest growing communities in Wayne County, is more active than the other 14 districts; but I don't believe there should be an increase in my district or any of the 15 districts."

McCotter said he has always opposed pay hikes for commis-

Commissioner Michelle Plawec- sioners. "For what they do, they're paid enough. They're part-time. They can go out and seek other employment opportunities, and some do.

> "The Wayne County Commission's spending has always been a problem." McCotter believes salary increases will soon follow for commission staffers, and commissioners won't examine budget cuts seriously.

> Plawecki said she could not vote against the pay hike, "because it would be hypocritical to vote against it, then to accept the money," Plawecki said.

> Both Plawecki and Beard pointed out the raise equalled about $1,200 a year.

"It's a small increase," Beard said. "It doesn't compare with the top county officials, $100 a month isn't that much."

cal process at the cellular level making it impossible for fish to use oxygen in the release of energy needed for body processes.

Is rotenone a selective pesticide?

Although rotenone has some toxicity to all oxygen breathing animals, it is selective to fish at concentrations used by fishery biologists.

In general, most common aquatic invertebrates are less sensitive than fish to rotenone. but some of the zoo plankton are equally sensitive. Snails and clams are quite tolerant. With respect to fish, trout and salmon are the most sensitive, sunfish. are less sensitive and catfish are the most resistant.

Why is rotenone so selective?

Fish, insects, birds and mammals have natural enzymes that will detoxify sub-lethal amounts of rotenone. Fish are highly susceptible because rotenone is readily absorbed through their gills and they cannot escape exposure to it.

Can the toxic effects of rotenone be neutralized?

If biologists want to neutralize the effects of rotenone, potassium permanganate or chlorine can be used. (Potassium permanganate will be used in Newburgh Lake. Potassium permanganate is a dark-purple crystalline substance used as an oxidizing agent, disinfectant and antiseptic.)

These are added to the water at a 1:1 ratio with the concentration of rotenone applied plus sufficient additional compound to satisfy chemical oxidation needs. What happens to rotenone after it has been applied?

Rotenone is an unstable compound that breaks down when exposed to light, heat, oxygen and alkaline water.

Scientists have identified about 20 degradation products, most of which spontaneously break down to lesser non-toxic substances. Ultimately, rotenone breaks down into carbon dioxide and water.

How long does it last?

How fast rotenone breaks down is affected by temperature, light, oxygen and alkalinity.

Generally, most treatments are made during the summer months. At 80 degrees, treated water will detoxify naturally in less than four days. As water cools, biological and chemical processes slow down and the breakdown of rotenone also slows. At 45 degrees, the toxicity to fish may last for 33 days.

Rotenone is unstable and will degrade rapidly with exposure to light, heat, oxygen and alkaline water. Toxicity can be removed by adding oxidizing chemicals, such as potassium permanganate or chlorine, to accelerate the natural breakdown of rotenone.

How does rotenone affect the environment?

Rotenone is non-persistent so there is no accumulation in the water, soil, plants or surviving animals. Because it breaks down so rapidly, its environmental significance does not extend beyond one year.

While adult frogs and other amphibians would not be seriously affected, tadpoles and young salamanders probably would be killed. For these species, it would be the next breeding season before more animals would be produced and the populations would be slower to recover.

How safe is rotenone to people?

In 1973, a Spanish investigator claimed that rotenone fed to six rats resulted in mammary tumors in three of the animals. Many investigators have since tested rotenone on large numbers of animals; some using the very same approach as the Spanish study. None has observed any tymor-inducing effects. The Environmental Protection Agency has ruled that the Spanish study was not valid and that the allegations are not supported by sound scientific evidence.

Toxicity tests show that a 150-pound man would have to consume almost 1/2 pound of pure rotenone to obtain a lethal dose or drink 2.4 gallons from the shipping container.

It can cause injury if inhaled or swallowed in substantial doses. Acute exposure by inhalation may cause numbress, nausea and tremors. People should not breath spray mist and do not get in eyes, on skin or on clothing.

Just how well was rotenone studied before EPA reached its conclusion that it does not cause cancer?

Rotenone was fed daily to rats. mice and dogs in studies that ranged from six months to two years. No tumor induction was observed, even when 75 parts per million was fed daily to rats or when 1,200 ppm was fed to mice.

In the tests with both males and females of each species. there was no firm evidence that rotenone caused any increase in the incidence of tumors. In some lots, treated animals had significantly fewer tumors than untreated groups.

What is the likelihood that stocked fish might accumu. late rotenone and be unfit for consumption?

Restocking would not be done until the rotenone had degraded to non-toxic levels.

Since stocked fish are small. two other factors would also prevent residue buildups. First, the fish would grow rapidly; as a result, there would be a great dilution of residue levels due to increases in the body mass. Secondly, because of the 18 to 30 months required for the fish to reach catchable size, there will be a long period during which any residues would be excreted.

What would be the effect on gulls, ducks and other birds that might be using the water area?

There is no likelihood that hirds would be affected by rotenone, even if applied at rates many times that used in fish control operations, because of the low toxicity, low intake and low exposure.

Is rotenone likely to kill warm-blooded animals if they live around a treated pond?

The maximum allowed application rate is 5 milligrams of formulation per liter of water. The amount of rotenone contained in. such an application rate would be 0.25 mg/liter.

A 22-pound dog would have to drink 4.2 gallons of water.

may see a few frogs die, but I doubt it. Pollywogs may die, some insects underwater will perish, but a lot will survive.

"Rotenone is a natural-occurring compound. It's been used for hundreds of years by native South American Indians to kill fish, and they consume that fish. Animals that eat fish killed with rotenone are not in any danger at all."

Scientists have figured through toxicity tests on animals that a 150-pound man would have to consume almost 1/2pound of pure rotenone to obtain a lethal dose or drink 2.4 gallons from the shipping container. A 5 percent concentration will be used at Newburgh.

River gets application

Rotenone will be applied on the Rouge River at Wilcox Dam, which is about 2.5 miles upstream of the head of Newburgh Lake. From boats and on land, work crews will spray downstream into the lake itself up to the lake's dam at Newburgh Road.

Near Newburgh Road potassium permanganate will be sprayed on the water to detoxify the rotenone. A dve is expected to be used to mark the "front line" on the water of where the rotenone is applied to indicate where the potassium permanganate should be sprayed.

Environmental Consulting & Technology of Detroit will apply the rotenone and potassium permanganate, while county work crews and volunteers from sportsmen's clubs will collect and sort the dead been mixed, the pamphlet states.

fish for the Department of Natural Resources, fisheries division. EC&T has received state permits to conduct the application. The dead fish will be counted, and species recorded to confirm the DNR's earlier surveys of the lake's species.

County officials had discussed the possibility of expanding the fish kill downstream to Nankin Lake after state officials were concerned that Newburgh Lake was drawn too low. State officials believe many contaminated fish may have swam downstream during the lake's drawdown last month.

But Roger Van Omen, chief engineer for Wayne County Department of Public Works, believes the fish have remained in the lake.

"We just don't believe that those fish have moved," Van Omen said. The upstream parts are very shallow (an area that was 'drawn down'), and the fish that were in the lake would not have inhabited those areas.

"As soon as those fish feel a current, they swim away from it."

The lake remains closed to the public during its $10 million restoration.

Rotenone works quickly

According to a DNR fisheries pamphlet detailing rotenone applications, fish should begin to appear at the water's surface within an hour after the rotenone is applied.

Fish continue to die for two days or more, depending on the size of the lake and how well the chemical has

Small fish die quicker than large fish, and fish in colder water also are the last to die. Trout, pike, bass and bluegills are affected first, while carp, green sunfish and bullheads take longer to kill.

According to a 1995 survey, 3,539 fish were collected from the lake and 12 species were represented. Nearly 75 percent of the fish were bluegills, followed by white suckers (7.7 percent) and pumpkinseed (7.5 percent). The remaining 10 percent consisted of black crappies, golden shiners, bullheads, largemouth bass, carp, northern pike, rock bass, yellow perch, green sunfish and brown trout

Van Omen doesn't expect nearby residents to smell the dead fish. The fish will be collected with landing nets as soon as they come to the surface by the volunteers and work crews who will be in boats and on the shore. Once they are sorted and counted, the fish will be transported to a landfill in Salem Township.

A light rain would not cause a postponement of the fish kill, but a heavy rain might. Van Omen said. The permit allows for the rotenone application through July 15.

Soil excavated

Presently, PCB-contaminated soil is being removed and transported by truck to a landfill in Salem Township. County officials have closed Hines Drive to vehicles, bicyclists and pedestrians between Jughandle Road, just west of Newburgh Road, to Haggerty Road.

That portion will remain closed until July 1998.

You've just planted your flowers.

After admiring the wonderful job you just completed, you pick up the plastic flower flat and say, "Oh, it's plastic. I'll place it in my recycle bin."

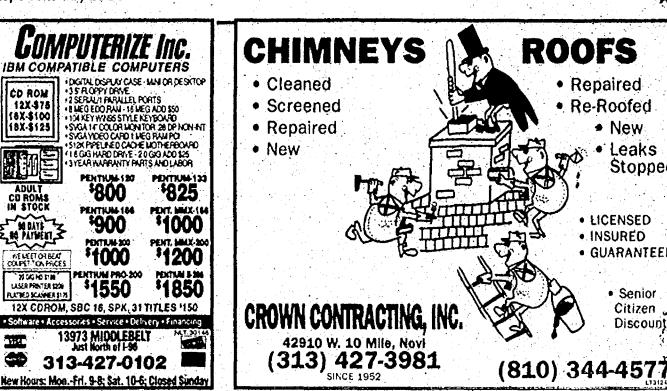

Wrong answer.

Even though you may think you're doing your part by recycling it, you are really causing serious problems for recyclers and risk contaminating an entire load of plastic.

"Each year, we receive thousands of plastic flower flats and someone's dentures.

"We were not sure if they were just leaning over their bin, and they fell out, or they really wanted to recycle them.'

Waste Management of Metro Detroit advises recyclers to contact their nursery or greenhouse for possible reuse of those plastic trays and pots.

On with life

Best wishes to our local grads

he Westland community should be offering congratulations and best wishes to students graduating from John Glenn, Wayne Memorial, Tinkham Center, Lutheran High School-Westland and Huron Valley High School, among others in this area.

A16(W)

As of Saturday, the collective Class of '97 had left the hallowed halls of their respective high schools to enter adulthood and the beginning of new lives.

In recent years, education has often become mired in controversy caused by politics, union-district issues and pressure put on our schools by MEAP and high school proficiency test results.

What and how kids are taught has come under close examination by the public, politicians and educators.

Lost in the shuffle have been the kids.

In receiving their diplomas, these young people became adults who are looking to get a foothold in life. Some will go to colleges and universities and others into the armed forces. Some will attend technical or trade schools and others will look for jobs.

But it's what those young adults learned in high school - and throughout their educational careers - that will set them on whatever path they choose to follow in life. Often it is a special teacher, fellowship with other students or teammates or the lifelong friendships which develop in high school that help to shape future decision-making and life choices.

The question that parents, teachers, school administrators and school board members should be asking themselves at this time of year is: Did we do the best we possibly could for these graduates?

Too often education gets bogged down in political bickering and the personal agendas of those involved in education.

Let's set all that aside and concentrate on educating the kids - and offering best wishes and support those who are leaving our education system.

Good luck, Class of '97. Welcome to adulthood.

Graduation pomp: As of this week, most area seniors have taken the walk down the commencement aisle. Here, seniors from John Glenn High School in Westland enter the Crisler Arena in Ann Arbor last Saturday to receive their diplomas. Wayne Memorial students also received their diplomas Saturday, with distinguished alumnus Westland Mayor Robert Thomas giving the commencement address.

erance for all.

Yet in the late 1990s, we are seeing a increased lack of tolerance for each other. We see hate and intolerance masquerading as a patriotic cry to protect our society from any person, thought or philosophy that is different.

Some of this intolerance is born of fear, some of ignorance, and some just plain dislike and hate.

Instead of following the adage "Live and let live," we are fast becoming a society that follows a new rule of: "Live freely, but do it my way."

That stabs at the heart of our society's foundation. Our ancestors traveled here some against all odds - seeking what America promised: religious and ethnic freedom and tolerance, economic freedom, freedom of expression and thought.

We wonder what has happened to that foundation as we look at recent incidents in our western Wayne County communities:

At the urging of some parents, school officials denied access to a Westland psychic invited to entertain at the Plymouth-Canton high schools prom. Even the mayor of Livonia takes such entertainment in the right light: Jack Kirksey had a two psychics as entertainment at his annual Mayor's Ball.

A group has spoken out against a Wayne-Westland school policy designed to protect against discrimination and harassment of any kind - including race, religion, national origin, marital status and sexual orientation. How can anyone protest a rule or policy that keeps people from being abused? The very people who want to ban such a policy would be the aggressors in a harassment situation.

Along the same line, the current Wayne-Westland school board president, a Canton resident and incumbent candidate in Monday's election, has received threats designed to intimidate. A hate flier has been distributed anonymously and we believe has cast a shadow of shame over our communities. She was ousted from her seat in Monday's election.

In Garden City, city council members bowed to local pressures, continuing a ban on fortunetelling for profit, affecting a local businesswoman who operates Gundella's Witch Ways and Wares. She had requested that the city repeal that ordinance, allowing her to do business. Opponents accused the woman, who follows the Wicca religion, of "devil worshiping" and prostitution."

In Redford, the harassment of a black family some months ago was a horrible incident, although we applaud the community's response to decrying the bigotry and pulling together to denounce such incidents.

It is the responsibility of all of us to stand firm against bigotry, hate and intolerance. Freedom is a fragile thing. When one's person's freedom is damaged, we are all damaged.

A terrorist doesn't need to carry a weapon to cause damage. Terrorism comes in many forms, including hiding behind righteousness and the push for religious, ethnic and social superiority.

Hate mail, intimidating graffiti, verbal accusations, attempts to demean and hurt reputations and the creation of organizations designed to denigrate others are the tools of the intolerant.

Negative thoughts and words are just as destructive as weapons, and can cut as brutally as a knife.

The court deals solely with matters of religious law and is not related to any government court. We are not anti-government and we are not a cult. This is clearly stated in all documentation released by the court. The court is open to all Christians, Jews, and Muslims. Only when someone is in violation of a religious principle will they be rejected.

The court exists, primarily, for the following three reasons: To mediate between religious people to avoid the government courts if possible. This will save time, money, and grief for the parties involved. Second, to investigate unscrupulous business people who claim to be moral. Boycotts, informational picketing, etc. could be the remedy for a business that misrepresents itself. Third, if someone's religious beliefs are attacked we will respond such as when a psychic recently said that she "prays to the same Jesus that they do."

The Bible, Koran and Talmud are all clear in their condemnation of the occult, and so an investigation was initiated. The psychic refused her chance to be heard; she lost by default and now we can safely assume she is a "kangaroo" Christian.

Decisions of the court will be publicized on the Internet, fax networks, bulletin boards, church congregations, Observer Newspapers etc., and it will be the most moral obligation of the religious community to abide by the decisions for the sake of unity.

If you would like to participate, please write to: Ecclesiastical Court of Wayne County, P.O. Box 858231, Westland 48185, Attn: Peter James, clerk.

How to fill potholes

A n open letter to Gov. Engler: First, please let me compliment you on the great job you are doing. I am for the four-cent raise in gas tax for the road plan. I spent $900 this year on two tires and a rim because of potholes.

My greatest complaint is that we do not utilize prisoners in our state. Why can't they fill potholes and build new roads? Why should they sit and watch TV while we pay their way?

Also, why can't they manufacture goods that are too costly to do in the U.S.? Why let China or others do it? Why would anyone complain?

It's it we worry about total productivity and, quit worrying about what unions and politicians think, and do the right thing.

Dad takes the cake and wins the prize hen I was 8 years old, my father made his first cake. Except for cooking, daddy was a Renaissance man (not that I knew what that was). All my sister and I knew was that our daddy could do anything. Our house was full of his paintings. He whittled figures of Indians in full war bonnets, alligators, sailing ships and tiny horses. He told wonderful stories.

Best of all, he could fix anything. It was a good thing, too, because we bought everything secondhand. New stuff didn't fit the budget. My mother's stove, for example, was elderly and temperamental. Because he had replaced every part at one time or another, daddy was intimate with its insides, but he had never actually used it.

Our church held a cake contest for men only in celebration of Father's Day. Daddy wouldn't have entered the contest if my sister and I hadn't talked him into it, but we knew that our daddy could cook better than anyone else except mama. Daddy was not so sure and suggested a cake mix. Mama was horrified. Cake mixes were for the inept or the lazy.

Daddy sighed. If he had to make a cake from scratch, he might as well make the best. He would make the special dark chocolate cake that he and I always wanted mama to bake for our birthdays. More bitter than sweet, rich and delicate, the icing made the cake distinctive. Not the usual uncooked powdered sugar mixture, it was cooked, with a dark, finegrained dull sheen.

Our church wisely allowed wives to help their husbands. Men of daddy's generation mostly stayed out of the kitchen. Daddy was no exception, but he was used to figuring things out for himself and he thought he could streamline the whole process. He wanted to know why baking was so inefficient. Why did the flour have to be sifted three times? Why sift it anyway? Why were the eggs added one at a time? What difference did it make? He argued with mama over every step. She insisted, "I don't know why it has to be done that way, but if you don't follow the recipe, it won't be fit to eat."

Daddy wasn't too intimidated to argue, but he was too intimidated to disobey. Grimly he measured and stirred, tongue between clenched teeth. Weary and flour-covered, he smoothed the last dab of icing and plopped down in his favorite chair with his pipe. He looked dazed.

Daddy's smooth chocolate cake looked plain next to the rows of pastel towers covered with their cloying gobs of icing. As we waited anxiously, the judges tasted each entry and made little marks upon a sheet.

The judges conferred for what seemed like a long time before announcing the winner. The complex, sophisticated taste of my daddy's cake astounded the judges, and he proudly claimed first prize, a copy of the "I Hate To Cook Book" by Peg Bracken. Daddy was so pleased with winning he didn't realize at first it meant mama had been right; all those steps in the recipe were necessary.

(PWGc)A17

Daddy hated being wrong, so he decided to learn cooking. He has become quite accomplished, but he still hates to be shackled by a recipe and he questions everything. Even so, his first and best specialty is the chocolate cake he makes from my mama's recipe. And he follows the directions exactly.

Schools more important than political plans his degree is going to come in pretty handy when I start looking for a job, perhaps in 2003."

So said John M. Engler last Friday evening as he received an honorary degree from Oakland Community College. It wasn't in the governor's prepared text. But if I remember one lesson from my own college days, it's that you read the text as it's delivered and note any additions or deletions.

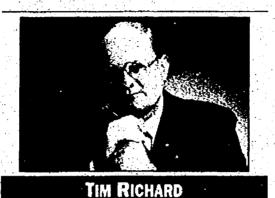

Engler has yet to announce whether he will seek a third term in 1998, so his statement that he will need a job when that term ends in 2002 is noteworthy.

"John, did I hear what I thought I heard?" I asked as I caught up to him in the corridor of The Palace of Auburn Hills after his speech.

'It was meant to be tongue-inheek," Engler replied. "I think they ripple in the audience, and to me he sounded serious about a third term. Frankly, I was surprised. I'm in the minority that thinks he will bow out in 1998.

I came to that conclusion at his 1996 Christmas party for the inkstained wretches of the press. Someone loosed the 3-year-old triplets into the room. The assemblage didn't ooh and ahhh, just watched Margaret, Hannah and Madeleine play with a boxful of toys.

A man would have to be bleeping nuts to want to spend Friday nights giving commencement speeches, Tuesdays through Thursdays at Lincoln Day banquets, weekends at Mackinac Island conclaves and governors' conferences, and Mondays at school officials conventions and miss seeing those exquisite human jewels reach 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 years of age. His OCC audience gave two wild rounds of applause to his references to the Red Wings but turned somnolent when he said the state has hiked perstudent funding for community colleges by 50 percent under his watch.

But I had a more pressing query. Colleague Matt Bach of the Livingston County Press had called that afternoon with a question of white-hot importance to "growth" suburbs and their most precious asset, the public schools. ary and September of the same year and are averaged. This hurts growth areas, which have 300 to 500 more pupils at the end of the school year than at the beginning. Those districts are in Livingston, outer Oakland and western Wayne counties.

The Senate amended the House school aid bill to give just 40 percent weight to the previous February count and 60 percent to the September count, which should thrill the growth areas. But how would the governor take to that?

"Schools take attendance every day," Engler began. "The best method is the average daily attendance of the current year." He deplored the "old A sc pernicious practice, now gone," where superintendents would dragoon kids to school for the official "fourth Friday" enrollment count and then never worry if the kids came back. Tim Engler is right. I used to cover impliced technologies and the official "fourth for the official to cover the superintendents. The best method that it is that it is the average daily attendance of the sion with the official "fourth for the official "fourth fourth for the official "fourth fourth fourth for the official to cover the implication of the superintendents. The best method is the sion with the superintendents would dragoon kids to school for the official "fourth fourth fo cial enrollment day, the superintendent and business manager would go out to the migrant workers' shacks and haul in kids to inflate the count.

"The best way for budgeting is last year's count," said Engler. "It's a real number. It's audited. It's accurate."

Now, at first that might appear to be a year-old figure, but look twice. If state aid were based on the average attendance over 180 days, schools with high attendance – such as the growth suburbs – would be rewarded.

At this point, the House and Senate are at loggerheads over so many bills that it's difficult to guess which version will pass.

A school budget isn't as sensational, as the Stanley Cup or Engler's political plans. But to our kids, it's far more important.

Proficiency testing evolves as it should esults from the second Michigan High School Proficiency Test (HSPT) were released last week. Overall, this year's juniors scored slightly higher than last year's in reading, science and mathematics, but with a slight decline in writing performance.

In math, 52.9 percent of students taking the test achieved proficient scores, a 10.9 percent gain over last year;

■ In science, 38.5 percent of students were ranked proficient, a whopping 20.3 percent gain over last year;

■ In reading, 41.1 percent of students earned proficient scores, a slight increase of 2.2 percent compared with last year.

Writing scores declined, with 30.4 percent of students obtaining proficient ratings, compared with 34.4 percent of students last year, a drdp of 4.1 percentage points.

Most educators were pleased with the HSPT results. "We're delighted to see improvements in math, reading and science scores," said Kathleen Straus, president of the State Board of Education, "but we're very concerned with the decline in writing."

Originally proposed as a better instrument for assessing what students actually learn than the old Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP), the test's grading nomenclature - "proficient," "novice" and "not yet novice" draw a lot of flak. How, parents wondered, can a child who is getting good grades and achieving high marks on college entry examinations be stigmatized with a "novice" rating on a new test?

Such concerns led some parents in Birmingham, Troy and other upper-income school districts to hold their children out of taking the test earlier this year. State lawmakers jumped into the dispute, introducing bills to delete the offending words from test results and holding hearings around the state.

Politics aside, there are some intrinsic difficulties in developing an entirely new test for all of Michigan's high school juniors, especially in something like writing, which is notoriously subjective to evaluate. The essay in this year's HSPT was graded by graduate students in North Carolina. Moreover, it appears there were at least two versions of the writing test, which may account for variations in results between them.

posts great ACT and SAT scores, has a high GPA, and is already accepted to a major university, and at the same time scores extremely low on the reading and writing portions of the (HSPT) test," said Northville school Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski.

To make matters worse, school officials this year do not have access to the actual work sheets students turned in, so they cannot show where things went wrong. The state is contracting for an interactive computer program to help show teachers what is expected in the test by including corrected essays used to train test graders.

My reaction to all this: Things are going exactly as they should. Of course there will be complaints and criticisms. That's how things improve, little by little and year by year (assuming, of course, that the Legislature restrains its often overpowering impulse to interfere).

The whole point here is to provide an objective device to measure what kids in school actually learn, year by year. An independent benchmark allows teachers to improve their teaching methods, school officials to get better textbooks and parents to evaluate how the schools do their job.

Possibly the best perspective was offered by Kay Cornell, assistant superintendent for instruction in Royal Oak: "It's a very good test. It's a test we want all of our kids to be able to pass. But it's such a shift in the way we've been doing things for 100 years. Unlike the auto companies, we don't have time to stop and retool. We're being compared, assessed and beat up politically while we're trying to retool."

SC drops application fee for new students

In an effort to make embarking on a college career easier, Schoolcraft College has eliminated its $10 admission fee. The Board of Trustees approved the move in April effective June

"We dropped the $10 admission process easier for prospective students and to continue our efforts to provide the best customer service to our students," said John Tomey, dean of student services.

Applicants may use the 1996-97 catalog application form and simply disregard the application fee; new catalogs and application forms are available in the Admissions Office, located in the McDowell Center.

"We looked at the issue as one of college open access," said Julieanne Tobin, director of enrollment management. "We are really staying true to our mission of easy access in applying to college," Tobin said the move also anticipates the near future when applications will be made electronically on the Web.

Imagine Yourself In A Mercury.

"And that's not all," she proclaimed, "sometimes, he just decides that he doesn't want to go to school and sleeps in. I just don't know what to do with him anymore."

I asked her what she attributed this behavior to; she went on to talk about three things.

"First, he has always had trouble in school. He's never liked school and didn't get good grades. Then to make matters worse, he wasn't respectful to his teachers. Second, he has never had a close relationship with his dad. Dad has been busy with his work and I think my son feels like he doesn't really care about him. And, last, I guess I haven't always been consistent with him. Like when he was in the third and fourth grades and asked if he could stay home from school, I let him

"Just the other day, he wanted us to buy him a baseball glove, so we told him he had to go to school for a week. He agreed, so we bought the glove and now, well, today for example, he went to school, but he went in an hour late. I guess it's better that he went at all, that's why I'm not getting after him for his tardiness."

need not be put on hold for the summer.

Camps, summer schools and special programs can be the ingredients for a summer filled; with healthy dose of fun and a dash of learning. Area YMCAs, Boys and Girls Clubs and the like offer a summer lineup of weeklong day camps for kids, but for those looking for something a bit different one place to start is the Trinity House Theatre in Livonia, which for a seventh year is offering two apprenticeship programs for children ages 10 and older.

"A lot of younger children want to be on stage and should have that opportunity, said Laura Gumina, who with Trudy Mason will be directing the two three-week workshops. "Students receive hands-on training in a fully equipped theater under the direction of professionals. It's a working building they take over for three weeks." Gumina will direct the first session June 30-July 19 in which participants will work on a revised version of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." The comedy has been pared down to 1 1/2 hours - "To Shakespeare, it's kind of sacrilegious." which will be performed with full sets and costumes at 4 and 8 p.m. July 18 at the theater. They will receive instruction in the technical aspects, with emphasis on acting, training and academics, although " a majority of the time will be spent in rehearsal, the best way of learning," according to Gumina.

Pack some fun into summer at park, museum, zoo

Looking for something to do on a warm, sunny summer day? The perfect spot is one of the metropolitan area's many parks and nature areas. Many offer special programs for children and families, in addition to plenty of space for picnics, playtime and just plain fun.

And don't forget the Detroit and Belle Isle zoos and aquarium, also great destinations for families.

If that's not their cup of tea, or should we say bottle of pop, there's classes in beginning French and Japanese, sign language for children, drawing, music-making for children, ceramic and ceramic wheel throwing to name a few more. Fees average $71-78, somewhat less for one-day programs and more for the two-week creative dramatics camp. Fax and mail-in registration runs through June 23, with walk-in registration at the McDowell Center, Room 255, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. June 23-24.

The Children's Workshop will be offered June 23-Aug. 7 in three different sessions for beginners and advanced dancers. There will be classes in beginning ballet, tap, jazz and advanced ballet and jazz. This mom's 14-year-old was out of control. He now tells her what he is or is not going to do. Scary? Yes. Uncommon? No. And yet this woman had answers to her own dilemma right within her grasp.

Correct assumption

First, she is correct in assuming that his lack of desire stems from having too few successes in school. Children who cannot gain self-regard through academic achievement spiral downhill quite rapidly. Often, their M.O. in school precludes them from being well-liked by the teacher because they sabotage themselves through their bad behavior. In their mind, the believe, "If I'm stupid, I must be a bad person, too, so I'll live up to that."

Rarely are insolent students the most successful. This self-fulfilling prophecy is hard to change. It takes energy on the part of the parents and teacher to show the child where they can succeed and how to do it. You have to follow them carefully and pick up on any and every little success.

Second, mom is probably right that the boy's relationship with the dad lacks any depth. Dads are extremely important in the adolescent's life. More often than not, they don't realize the significance they have on teens and how teens can flounder severely if the father is not present or doesn't seem to take an interest in the child. In this family, if dad were to spend a hour a week with his son, the turnabout could be amazing. If dad did no more than take the son fishing on Saturday morning where they had an opportunity to just "shoot the bull," there'd be a difference.

The third, and perhaps most important, thing this mom shared was about the manner in which she gave consequences and rewards. Children as young as a 1-year-old know who is the boss. Your toddler tries to crawl into the kitchen while you are washing the floor. "No," you say firmly in. your business-like voice. "Sit right there until I'm done." If the toddler persists, you reiterate more forcefully, and maybe put him or her in the playpen.

They learn that they cannot just do anything they want. Similarly, the third-grader tries it again by whining that he or she just doesn't want to go to school today. Rather than fight, it's easier to just allow him or her to stay home. One can see where this mom paid a price later for her behavior when he was in elementary school.

Golden opportunity

The parents had a golden opportunity to allow the child to do the right thing consistently (for example, go to school) had they merely set up the goal differently: "You know, we would like to buy you the baseball glove, but feel that it's also important for you to be in school. So, if we can see that you can get to school on time for three weeks, we will buy the glove for you."

Kids are more proud of their accomplishments when they have to really work for them. Three weeks may seem too long for a child who doesn't go to school regularly, but a great way to build self-regard, if he can indeed get himself to school on time for 15 days.

each side of the car - or, in my case, each side of the van.

I've looked everywhere for these flags and I can't find them. No one sells them. Oh, sure – they sell those other flags - for $15 or more - the ones venerating a bunch of hot-headed, toothimpaired, overpaid, overgrown children playing a children's winter game in mid-June. Those flags are everywhere. Way too common. Like mosquitoes.

The flag I'm searching for must be one in a million. A rarity. A gem! I'm looking for a flag that depicts something that I can cheer for, that I must cheer for, that I go crazy excited over year in and year out. I'm searching for the kind of flag that when it unfurls as I accelerate and travel the roads - everyone will know where my allegiance is and my loyalty!

I need a flag that has silkscreened upon its fabric a snapshot on my children. That's right - my children - my team of five. The team to live and die for, the team worthy of my veneration and loyalty and car-flag waving!

Forget the professional sports teams - they have all the support and money and encouragement and attention they'll ever need. And they're not even related. Not to me, and certainly not to all those flag-bearing drivers out there.

You know, I've never understood the big deal with professional. commercial sports. What's up with that anyway? It absolutely escapes me. Sure, I like to play the games myself for the sport of it. Can't do it much anymore - too many other, more pressing matters now. Besides, I get my fill with cheering my children on. They are involved in sport. And their games and competitions are worthy of my attention and great excitement.

And I'll even go as far as rooting for a college team - an underdog college team. It has to be underdog - really, really underdog, big time Cinderellastory underdog, whomever that might be at the time, for me to cheer them on. Moderately – in the privacy of my home. They need it. They deserve it,

But beyond underdog college teams and into the professional arena, I just can't get excited can't go crazy. I like sports to be pure, old-fashioned. Untarnished by greed or commercialism. I can't cheer if I'm coerced, brainwashed or suckered into it. All that media attention and silly hype makes me run the other way. I can't get hysterical over rich strangers who don't care a fig about anybody except for the green in their pockets.

I save and spend my wild screaming and overboard cheering for important things. I save and spend my time for important things.

And I'll gladly save and spend $15 to fly the flag of my team the team no one coerces, brainwashes, or suckers me into cheering for. The team that gets my attention and undying loyalty - forever. The team whose flag will unfurl in my heart every time – as I travel down this road of life.

Stevenson: Soccertown USA

Something extraordinary occurred Saturday afternoon in the world of high school sports and too bad much of it was lost in the Red Wings' Stanley Cup euphoria.

Yes, Soccertown USA took a back seat to Hockeytown USA.

They were "locked in" defensively, led by their backline play of senior Melissa Jacobs, freshman Andrea Sied and junior Stacey Nastase.

And it was no accident that goalkeeper Jenny Barker, who has as sure of hands as Mike Vernon, finished the year with 22 shutouts (44 for her career). They had a deep bench and plenty of scoring punch to

And the assistant coaches -Ragen Coyne, Laura Fedrigo and Nancy Thursham, along with trainer Kelly Garbig - seemed to relate very well with the players.

Adrian pitcher See blanks Wayne Memorial

BY TONY BRUSCATO SPECIAL WRITER

It had been 17 years since Wayne Memorial baseball coach Jim Chronowski had taken a team beyond district competition.

And while he was excited about his team reaching the Class A regional at Ann Arbor Huron, he knew his club would be challenged by an Adrian team ranked among the top in the state with a pitcher who Chronowski says "has great potential" to make the Major Leagues.

And Maples pitcher Andrew See didn't disappoint anyone as he was a one-man wrecking crew against the Zebras in a 6-0 victory.

With the bat, See connected for three solid hits, including a 3-run homer, and a total of five RBI. On the mound he allowed just two hits, while striking out six batters in in five innings. "I told Andrew that he's one of the best in the state," Chronowski said. "I've coached some good players over the past 32 years, including Pat Sheridan, who played for the Tigers, and he

(See) certainly has potential." The first two innings were the tale of the game. On the mound, See struck out four of the first six batters he faced.

Offensively, See connected for his homer in the first and collected an RBI single in the second to give the Maples a 4-0 lead.

See, along with teammate Eric Russell, each had RBI hits in the fourth inning to close out the scoring.

"I've been friends with Andrew ever since we played on Team Michigan together," said Zebras pitcher John Clendening, who gave up See's opposite-fieldd homer. 'I tried to pitch him outside, but he got shold of it."

See, who is headed to the University of Georgia on a baseball scholarship, said "I was look. ing fastball, and it came in high and away, 1 just went with the pitch."

The Zebras collected only three hits off two Adrian pitchers - singles by Derek Townsend and Ron King, along with a double by Dennis McGill. Only one runner reached as far as sec ond base.

Adrian increased its record to 30-4, while Wayne finishes its season at 18-11.

"Our kids had a good season and I'm proud af them," Chronowski said. "Next year we'll have to reload after losing six starters."

Eight Zebras graduated Saturday including Clendening, King, McGill, Rob Baker, Kevin Wetmore, Joel Kehrer, Jeff Temple and Clark Boston.

Spartans hang tough, but fall 4-2 to Monroe

BY TONY BRUSCATO SPECIAL WRITER

As the crowd and the players from Livonia Stevenson watched Monroe pitcher Matt Wilson warm up for Saturday's Class A regional baseball semifinal at Ann Arbor Huron, they knew it was going to be tough.

Wilson stands 6 feet, 5 inches, lanky and pushes off the mound with a blazing fastball that helped earn him a 9-0 record.

However, Spartan fans had Mike Allison on their side, a clutch player who was also unbeaten at 6-0.

In the early going each pitcher battled out of situations which could have broken the game wide open, But in the end, it was Monroe scoring three times in the final two innings, pulling off a hard-fought 4-2 win over Stevenson.

couldn't get the hit we needed. Monroe got a few breaks late in the game and we couldn't overcome them."

Monroe scored a run in the first on a walk, a double to right field and a line-shot single to left. Further damage was averted when Spartans catcher Mike Corrie fired a strike to second nailing a runner trying to steal. Allison struck out the next batter to end the inning.

The wasted Stevenson opportunities Keller spoke of included a runner stranded on second with one-out in the first, a man on second with two outs in the second, and runners on first and second with two outs in the fourth.

Stevenson finally cracked Wilson in the fifth --- after two outs.

The Spartans' Todd Wilson belted a 320-foot double to left, a shot just

The next hitter, Roy Rabe, smashed a hit to right, sending Allison to third. Rabe, however, was thrown out trying to stretch a single into a double, killing the rally.

One of the breaks Keller alluded to occurred in the top of the sixth. With one out and a Trojan runner on first, what appeared to be an easy roller to second took a hop over the shoulder of Tony Dattilio into right field. The lead runner eventually scored, giving Monroe a 2-1 lead.

The Trojans scored two more in the seventh on four hits and a steal. The floodgates opened when the lead-off batter hit a chopper to shortstop Justin Kerr, which took a. bad bounce over his shoulder.

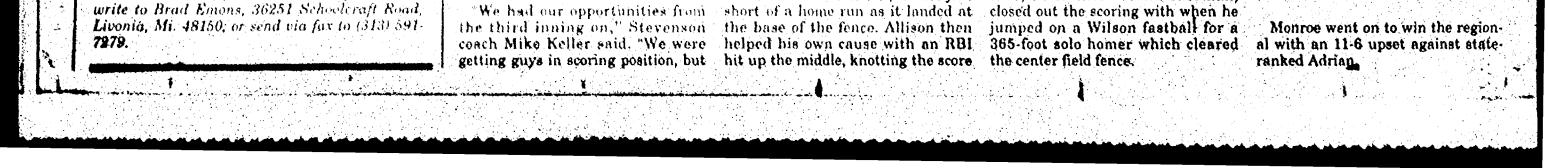

In the bottom of the seventh, Dattilio, the senior second baseman, Stevenson's season ends with 15-10 overall record.

"It's been a good season, the kids played well," said a dejected Keller after the game. "Overall we're happy with what we accomplished this year, but it's always tough when you have to say it's over."

"Stevenson is a good ballclub, said Monroe coach Tom Malik, whose team improved to 21-10-1 overall. "Matt Wilson is the story of our season. I shudder to think where we would be without him."

Keller will certainly have has work cut out for him next year as the Spartans lose ten seniors including Allison, Corrie, Dattilio, Kerr, Mark Dietrich, Todd Wilson, Joe Jeffrey, Eric Yuhasz, Kevin Marvin and Jason Greenwald.

Garden City's Cinderella run ends

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

"Are you kidding me?" High school girls softball fans must have been saying that when they heard a young and inexperienced Garden City High team won a Class A regional and advanced to a quarterfinal for the first time. since 1991.

"Are you kidding me?"

It's the phrase that could be heard from the mouth of coach Barry Patterson as he watched one of his players make a mental error in the Cougars' 4-0 loss to Harper Woods Regina in Tuesday's quarterfinal at Carleton-Airport.

Moral of the story is young teams can surprise you both with their success and failure, and that's part of the fun of being a coach.

The Cougars allowed three unearned runs and made a crucial base-running error but the success they enjoyed through a 37game season will never be forgotten. Garden City, which won nine of its last 10 games, finished the season with a 19-18 overall record. Patterson hopes the Cougars can build on this season's post-season success as only Katy Kendrick, Angie Hudson and Jenni Talbot will be lost to graduation. The losses are important, for sure, since Hudson is the pitcher, Talbot the catcher and Kendrick the first baseman.

For opponents, the trio were just as dangerous as the Bermuda Triangle.

GIRLS SOFTBALL

"I can't say enough how much they meant to the team," Patterson said. "Early in the season when things weren't going so good, they carried us emotionally. Unfortunately we didn't play our best game today but we had to play good to get here."

Hudson was one of several players wiping away tears after a postgame meeting with Patterson.

"That's tears of joy because they don't have to put up with me tomorrow," Patterson joked.

Not so, said Hudson, who scattered seven hits, struck out three and walked none. Hudson's cousins, Tracy Hudson and Chris Hudson, are teammates, but not the only reasons she felt comfortable.

"It's not so much losing today that hurts, it's that we got along so good," Hudson said. "Barry is awesome and I'm going to miss him. He's funny, nice. He yells, but only when we deserve it. This was like my second family. I spent every day with them and now it's over."

Hudson's counterpart, sophomore Kristin Bultinck, had a nohitter going through 3 2/3 innings and finished with a two-hitter, four strikeouts and no walks.

Jenni Talbot and Kelly Sylvester collected the hits and no Garden City runner reached scoring position. A potential extra base hit, a liner to right by Brandy Mulvaney, was hit right at the Regina right Regina advanced to a Final Four for the first time since 1989 when the Saddlelites won a state championship for legendary coach Diane Laffey, who has won 434 games in girls basketball and 633 in softball.

The trip to Battle Creek for a Final Four will be the third for one of Laffey's teams in the last two school years. Her basketball team advanced that far the last two seasons, losing in the semifinals both times.

"I have seven seniors, six who also played basketball," Laffey said. "When we lost in December, they said they want to come back in softball and win - that's how long they've been thinking about this. We knew we'd have our hands full today."

The Saddlelites got a scare early in the softball tournament, needing 18 innings to beat rival East Detroit, 8-5, in a district game.

This game barely lasted an hour, just like the first meeting won by Regina 1-0 at the Richmond Invitational.

"If you blinked, you missed it," Patterson said. "We made a couple mental mistakes and that was the difference in the game. Sarah (Talbot) made a lot of good plays up the middle, Angie threw a good game."

Regina scored two unearned runs in the second inning in a very weird way.

The leadoff batter, Shawn Perry, reached base safely despite striking out. She was given first base because the third strike was dropped and on the throw to first, Kendrick never touched first before Perry arrived.

The next batter, Chelsea Charles, lifted a fly ball to the outfield that was dropped, putting runners on first and second. The Saddlelites scored on consecutive ground balls hit by Bultinck and Lisa Frances, giving them a 2-0 lead.

The Saddlelites added insurance runs in the fifth and sixth.

Consecutive singles by Marissa Melchior and Demita Clark and a passed ball resulted in the third run. Regina made it 4-0 when Charles and Bultinck started the fifth with singles, Bultinck's coming on a bunt that hugged the line, and Frances' line drive single.

Bultinck fielded her position as well as she pitched, making four assists on ground balls up the middle. The other busy fielder for the Saddlelites was second baseman Frances, who had three assists and caught a pop-out to end the game.

Frances, the point guard on the Regina basketball team, doesn't mind sharing the wealth in softball.

"If she can get them, she can have them," Frances said.

Garden City shortstop Sarah Talbot made five assists and showed fine range.

"That shortstop is awesome," Regina assistant coach Jack Dailey said.

Bad inning costs Lady Warriors dearly

Chalk one up for experience as the Lutheran High Westland girls softball team was eliminated in the Class C regional semifinal by Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher, 11-0 (five-inning mercy rule).

The loss left Lutheran Westland with a final record of 15-13. Gallagher, which lost in the regional final to Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes, improved to 17:13 with the victory.

After two scoreless innings,

CLASS C REGIONAL

with an eight-run fourth inning on six walks, a hit batsman, two singles and a pair of Lutheran Westland errors. Gallagher ended it with two more runs in the fifth.

"We stayed with them the first few innings, and we then we couldn't find the strike zone from that point on," Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz said. "Then it was one of those, 'What are we doing here?' kind of thing this and that's the way life is sometimes."

Michelle Wiersig, the losing pitcher, worked the first four innings before giving way to Katie Heiden in the fifth.

Each team collected seven hits.

Sharon Greer reached base safely three times for the Warriors.

Lutheran Westland returns seven of nine starters next season.

Lindsay Allor started all 28 games this year for the Warriors. Also graduating is Holly Kaye, Jenny Blaine, Cherie Manning and Jackie Kemp.

"It's been kind of a rollercoaster season," Gentz said. "We played to a high level or either a low level, nothing in between. But the last half of the season was better than the first half, especially when we got into the districts.

Gallagher struck for a run in the third on a walk, two stolen bases and a wild pitch.

PREP SOCCER

High school All-Star encounter

features top Observerland talent

There's only one way to put this, really — when it comes to high school soccer, there's one place in this state to center it. And come Saturday, the best will be in the area that has commanded prep soccer since it became a sport sponsored by the Michigan High School Athletic Association 15 years ago.

On Saturday, Plymouth's Canton and Salem high schools will co-host the second-annual Michigan High School All-Star Soccer Games. Between these two schools and their Livonia rivals in their Western Lakes Activities Association — Stevenson and Churchill — there are eight boys and eight girls state titles.

That's out of a total of 30 available. And in case it's of interest, six times in boys and six times in girls one of those four teams has been the state runner-up.

'Nuff said.

BY C.J. RISAK

STAFF WRITER

Next best among Observer & Eccentric communities is Troy, with five appearances in the boys state finals and seven in the girls.

Stevenson, winner of both the boys and girls titles for the just completed school year, owns current bragging rights. However, Canton won last year's girls crown, and Salem was best in boys in '95.

Maybe that's why three of the four coaches selected to patrol the sidelines Saturday — the girls play at 6 p.m., the boys at 8 p.m. — all have WLAA experience, although none at the schools referred to above.

In the girls game, George Pacheco, often referred to as the Farmington school district's father of soccer, will coach the Purple Team, and Cathy Cole-Kansman returns to coach the Red Team.

It will be a relative clash.

Kansman calls Pacheco "Uncle George" (he's actually a cousin). Pacheco coached at North Farmington HS for seven years; Kansman coached both the boys and girls teams at Farmington and North Farmington.

Ed Bertram, the Farmington HS boys coach for eight years, will manage the Royal Team in the boys game, and Louis Stankovich, the Harper Woods Notre Dame boys coach for 11 years, will handle the Green Team.

At least one of the aforementioned coaches has experience in a similar atmosphere: Kansman coached one of the girls teams last year at the inaugural allstar classic. She was asked to return when Grosse Pointe North's Guido Regelbrugge had to cancel.

"I was like a kid in a candy store," Kansman recalls of last year's coaching return. As for coming back after a two-year layoff from coaching — she guided Farmington's girls team to the state semifinals in '89 — she had no reservations: "I still have an intense passion for the sport.

"I'm going to bring a pen and write everyone's name down this time. Once you got that right, you just let the girls do the work. As far as tactics are concerned, that's like riding a bike."

The talent alone should make this an evening well worth seeing.

In the girls game, among the local stars playing for Pacheco on the Purple Team will be Farmington Harrison keeper Sara Kloosterman, recently named girls high school player of the year.

Others from the O&E coverage area are Ann Cieszkowski from Detroit Country Day; Kim Van Cleef from Birmingham Marian; Anne Fedrigo from Stevenson; Jodi Coyle from Salem; Andrea Will from Churchill; Emile Meier from Canton; Jenna Kluska from Farmington Hills Mercy; Amy Simpson from Troy Athens; Wendy Graves from Troy; and Jill Rahnert from Canton.

For Kansman's Red Team, O&E players are Gina Dawson of Country Day; Shannon Beal of Athens; Shawn Chipelewski of Garden City; Liz Szkrybalo of Churchill; Laurin Hendrickson of Mercy; Jenny Parviainen of Canton; Stephanie Borgquist of Birmingham Groves; Lisa Bacyinski of Salem; Katherine Kobylak of Troy; Jaclyn Clark of Rochester; Jenny Long of Troy; and Kelly Thack of Athens.

In the boys game, Troy keeper Michael Sawyer — who helped take the Colts to the Class A state title match opposite Stevenson last fall — will play for the Royal Team.

Others on the Royals from the O&E area are Scott Babinski of Stevenson, Matt Sarkesian of Salem, Jason Bennett of Canton, Jonathan Wells of Athens, Jason Roy of Stevenson, Peter Pososki of Churchill, Ryan Konley of Salem, Michael Martin of Redford Catholic Central and Matt Ammons of Canton.

On the Green Team is Stevenson keeper Eric O'Neil. Others from the O&E area playing for the Greens are Kirk Hodges of Athens, Anthony Moucoulis of CC, Kevin Gniewek of Canton, Mike Healy of Troy, and Chris Curry of Salem.

Admission to the games is $4 for adults and $2 for students. The field is located on Canton Center Road, south of Joy. See recap on Livonia Stevenson's run to the state Class A girls championship on C1.

Serving S.E. Michigan since 1974

month This marks the two year period of my writing this column for this terrific newspaper. I have really enjoyed it and met so many of the readers who visit my store or are in attendance at lectures etc.

I certainly enjoy all the comments from many of you fine folks.

Many things have changed these past two years, both in the appliance world and in my personal and business life. My business has been in and out of Chapter 11 with a lot of hard work and hours behind it. The radio career on WJR has a solid contract with expansion in the plans and the listening audience continues to grow. My children are now all adults and I have grandchildren who I enjoy spoiling to no end. J.P. McCarthy and Fat Bob Taylor are both singing in God's Choir and Paul W. Smith has proven a worthy replacement. Dick Purtan has changed stations and taken his listeners with him.

All this and more and isn't it amazing that life continues to go on. When I'm up in northern Canada fishing, I realize that I'm an important at a drop of water in the vast lake where I catch all my fish.

The Maytag Co. has developed and tested a new front load washer about to hit the market soon. The only problem will be the price tag put on it which will limit sales to eventual doom and the Amana Co. is up for sale to the highest bidder.

The Appliance Repair Act has failed for the second time to go through the House in Lansing which affords the unethical repair companies to continue to rip off the Michigan consumer. Except for a few, I have the impression that the legislators have no guts and give a new meaning to the words self-serving.

The Tigers are playing ball with renewed interest by many for obvious reasons and the Pistons look promising.

The Lions have a new coach who reminds me of Scotty Bowman, who, by the way, brought home Lord Stanley, and I was there to see it. Exciting is not. the word to use because it was much more than that. The happiness, the joy and tears, the hugs and kisses and the jubilation described it all.

It's been a great two years for me folks and the writing of this column is on top of the list. To be able to put your personal feelings in print for all to see gives one a sense of power that should never be abused. This great newspaper you're reading today has placed their trust in me, and I can't tell you how good they are to me. As I've gotten to know many of these people in command,, it makes me realize how concerned they are for the readers interest. I'm proud of our efforts to bring you information that makes life more interesting and makes you the reader a more aware consumer. Thanks to you for allowing me to share my life with you. Stay tuned.

Shaker boxes hold amazing history

BY NANCY AND FRANK BOOS Special Writers

Dear Nancy and Frank:

I have these oval boxes that are about 10 inches and six inches long. Can you tell me what they are?

> Gregory, Farmington

Dear Gregory:

In 1736, in order to escape religious persecution in England, Ann Lee(s) brought seven followers to America.

Their religion closely resembled that of the Quakers. During their services, they became so agitated and emotional that they whirled and trembled in a shaking motion and were dubbed the "Shaker Quakers," which then was shortened to just "Shakers." You have oval Shaker boxes.

The Shakers believed in celibacy, subjugation to authority, equality of the sexes and communal living and ownership of material goods. The sect reached its maximum membership of about 6,000 in 1840.

They were quite amazing actually, and we use the word "were" because there are only approximately 12 members of that sect living today. Here's why. They believed that cohabitation was evil. Therefore, the members didn't have children. Membership grew by recruiting families and adopting their children.

Already existing families gained membership by signing an indenture waiving all rights to their children in exchange for their education, feeding, care and training in a trade. At 21 the children were free to decide to stay in the Shaker community or return to the outside world.

The Shakers' requirement of chastity and isolation from the outside world, together with the lure of the factories and good wages in the rapidly industrializing cities, made declining membership an accomplished fact.

Getting the point: The wrapped wood strips of Shaker boxes terminated in fingers or lappers, seen here.

In separating themselves from the outside world, the Shakers made themselves subject to rumors and suspicions about their lifestyle. Ultimately, their reputation for honesty, hard work, skills in craftmaking and agriculture earned them the respect and trust of the outside world.

Shaker style

The Shakers made their own furniture and furnishings and put them into two categories: "dwelling" items for their personal use and "shop" items for sale to the public. The quality of both was equally good but their finishing touches were what set them apart.

Shakers believed that their furnishings had to meet the requirements of being simple, substantial, durable and unembellished. Nothing superfluous was allowed, as it added nothing to the durability or use of the item. They believed beauty in furnishings was found in their function and longevity. They felt if something wasn't useful and durable, it soon grew outdated and needed replacing. Their sensibility was

Father's Day - for those special dads

rath

In our single-parent steeped society – there are a lot of single fathers out there. No big family barbecues for that Sunday of honor; no family recognition for that single dad with a 3-year-old – about to spend their designated week-

end, including Sunday till three together. What about Grandpa left alone after Grandma has passed on, or that favorite Uncle that has never had children?

Think of Father's Day a little differently this year – include those fathers or special men in your life, that don't have a Beaver Cleaver Household – make a special day for them.

Or maybe have a Guy's Day event – all men and their kids ... coordinated by one of the guys. Make Father's Day special for those Special Fathers.

Plan Father-friendly meals - real guy stuff; barbecued burgers, steaks, or ribs, roast beef with roasted potatoes, huge sandwiches filled with bacon or favorite lunch meats, fried chicken, French fries and warm biscuits ... or pile a group in a van and head out on 175 going North to the Birch Run Exit (No. 136) to Tony's, For those of you that have not been to Tony's - you have to go there and experience the enormity of the portions to really appreciate it. Where else can you get a BLT with a whole pound of bacon? This restaurant is the TRUCK STOP HAVEN of truck stops! In business for 48 years, the Lagalo family has been over-filling tummies with sandwiches the size of a Volkswagen, dinner plates - platter-sized, towering sundaes actually towering, and slabs of pie that change the applicability of 'the pie' being used to explain fractions. Tony's is one of those unforgettable places, and at prices not to be believed - the onepound bacon BLT is only $5.75 and can easily be shared by two! You can always do a Tony's at home - give your special guy a choice of huge sandwiches (make sure you pick up lots of ingredients to fill the bill). Plan to use up the leftovers for meals during the following week. For Father's Day, have lots of sides available - things like - potato salad, big juicy pickles, potato chips and dip, and onion rings. Have the kids pitch in and make a menu for Dad - Tony's uses newsprint, you can do the same. The kids could draw actual sandwiches with markers or crayons, and then if they are not at the writing stage, an adult can assist by doing the captions or labeling.

If Dad is a steak lover, and the barbecue expert in the family, the new book "The SteakLover's Companion - 170 Savory Recipes From America's Greatest Chefs" by Frederick Simon, the executive Vice President of Omaha Steaks has just been released in time for the grilling season, and Father's Day gift giving. This book ($20), published by Harper-Collins has a forward by the famous chef Mark Miller of Coyote Cafe fame, lots of recipes, tips and techniques. Another nice book for Dad would be the new Williams-Sonoma Outdoor Cooking book, a Time-Life Book, division of Time Life Inc. This brand new addition to the Williams-Sonoma Library is available at major book stores and their own kitchen shops.

The following recipes are from the books mentioned, respectively:

THE "21" CLUB BURGERS

Serves 4

2 1/2 pounds freshly ground beef, equal parts top sirloin and top round Olive oil

Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

1 tablespoon dried thyme

4 slices rustic Italian bread, 1/2 inch thick and 5 inches in diameter

2 ripe beefsteak tomatoes, cut into 1/2-inch thick slices

1 red onion, cut into 4 slices, 1/2 inch thick

The ground beef for this recipe should be equal parts top sirloin and top round, and 80 percent lean. Michael advises: "Handle the beef as little as possible – in other words, don't knead the meat – because overhandling changes its texture, moistness, and flavor." The less compacted the burger, the juicier it will be. For the authentic "21" Club burger, you should use the peasant-style bread that Michael calls for in the recipe, but failing that, use a good-quality crusty bread and avoid the usual burger buns.

Prepare the grill.

Using your bare hands shape the meat into 4 round, firm, uniform patties about 1 1/2 inches thick. Lightly brush the grill with oil and cook the burgers over medium heat for about 7 to 8 minutes per side for medium or 9 to 10 minutes per side for well done.

Meanwhile, add the dried thyme to 1/4 cup of oil. Brush the bread, tomato, and onion slices with the thyme oil and season the onion and tomato with salt and pepper. Place the the bread, onion, and tomato on the grill and lightly grill both sides.

To serve, place each burger on a slice of the grilled bread and top with slices of tomato and onion.

"Because flank steaks are thin, the flavor of the sesame marinade will permeate them thoroughly, producing a wonderfully aromatic result," said cookbook author Frederick Simon. "This steak cooks quickly and is easy to do on a small grill or hibachi. Grilled baby bok choy and yellow bell peppers (capsicums) are good accompaniments."

SESAME FLANK STEAK

Serves 4 1/4 cup (2 fl oz/60 ml) vegetable oil

1/4 cup (2 fl oz/60 ml) Asian sesame oil

1/4 cup (2 fl oz/60 ml) soy sauce

2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

2 tablespoons peeled and grated fresh ginger

1 flank steak, about 11/2 lb (750 g)

To make the marinade, in a small bowl, whisk together the vegetable oil, sesame oil, soy sauce, lemon juice and ginger. Place the steak in a shallow nonaluminum dish large enough for it to lie flat. Pour the marinade over the steak and turn to coat evenly. Cover and refrigerate, turning the meat occasionally, for at least 3 hours, or all day if you wish.

Prepare a fire for direct-hear cooking in a grill. Position the grill rack 4-6 inches (10-15 cm) above the fire.

Remove the steak from the marinade and pat it dry with paper towels; reserve the marinade.

Place the steak on the rack. Grill, turning two or three times and brushing with the reserved marinade, until done to your liking, about 10 minutes total for rare, 12-14 minutes for medium.

Remove the steak from the grill and transfer to a cutting board. Let rest for about 3 minutes. To serve, cut into thin slices on the diagonal and across the grain. Arrange the slices on a warmed platter and serve at once.

to have their crafts outlast changes in fashion and taste.

Today's consumer-driven society is based on the laws of expendability. The Shakers' production was based on low maintenance and long life. Their products didn't wear out. That fact, together with the "C" word, "competition," caused demand for Shaker products to dwindle.

The Shakers' isolation from the world forced them to be totally independent and resourceful. Their accomplishments are to be admired, both as inventors and innovators.

Just a few examples of their inventions are the pegboard (used to hang furniture and equipment so rooms could be properly cleaned), the sash window (taken out for cleaning), the fire engine and the hose cart, clothespins (some readers may be too young to remember these), screw propeller, turbine waterwheel, threshing machine, mechanical device to core and quarter apples, the circular saw, the revolving oven and the flat broom.

Innovatively, they improved on trusses for hernias, beehives, sundials, washing machines and windmills. They were the first to package and sell seeds at the same time.

Considering their small membership and the decline in their production, there's not a lot of authentic Shaker furniture in the world. The simple style has experienced a resurgence as you will see if you visit your local furniture shops.

Boxes

The boxes were very popular in the "outside" world and were produced well into the 20th century, longer than anything else the Shakers sold. They're made of thin wood strips soaked in water orsteamed to make them pliable. Then the strips are wrapped around oval molds or shapers.

The wrapped wood strips terminated in fingers or lappers (as seen in the photo). The fingers (usually of maple) were secured with copper nuts and the tops and bottoms (usually of pine) were secured with wooden pegs. The more fingers and the more slender and delicate they are, the more valuable is the box.

Your box has only two broad fingers, one on the box and one on the lid. This is called the Harvard type.

"Shop" boxes sold to the outside world could be varnished and painted. "Dwelling" boxes could only be stained yellow or red, but never varnished, as varnish was superfluous and of no purpose. If anyone can advise us as to why red and yellow were allowed for. dwelling boxes, please let us know. We can only guess that it may have been a method of helping people determine what was inside the boxes without opening them.

When the Shakers first started marketing the boxes in the 1780s, they sold for around 20 cents, depending on size, etc. In the 1970s they were selling for $100 to $300. Today, the prices are escalating for the more highly prized ones.

Yours appear to be unpainted and unvarnished. If they're not reproduction and are authentic, we would estimate them at $300 to $500 for the two at auction. You could possibly double that at: retail. If they're reproduction, they're probably worth about $40 each.

Nancy and Frank Boos are with the Frank H. Boos Gallery, an appraisal firm and auction house at 420 Enterprise Court in Bloomfield Hills that has been in the auction business for more than 30 years. Do you have an item you would like to know about? Send in a good photo of it, along with its description (including size, working parts, etc.) and any known provenance (history) to Treasure Search/At Home, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. display of annuals using just one or two colors, which would really get the attention of the neighbors!

Perhaps you have a favorite color. Now is the time to use it in great quantity and share your passion with others. klassed plants with short stature would make the most impact.

If, for instance, your favorite color is blue or purple you could choose alyssum, viola, impatiens, ageratum, pansy, verbena, borage, petunia, etc.

You may prefer a yellow and white scheme and use viola, geranium, salvia and begonias, or your favorite color may be pink, so the choice could be nicotiana, vinca, petunia or begonia.

An orange garden would catch the attention of everyone with the bright hues of marigold, celosia, salvia and zinnia. Coral would be a more subtle scheme, but with a whole bed blooming in one color, the effect would be striking. Dianthus, geranium, petunia and zinnia are appropriate flowers.

What could be more traffic-stopping than a red valentine-shaped bed? Geranium, ornamental pepper, salvia, verbena, cockscomb, dianthus and zinnia would do the trick. A bed of coleus with their unusual colors would really be a show alone or combined with blooming plants.

An edging of white alyssum or another plant or the silver foliage of lamb's ears or silver mound would be perfect to draw the eye to the garden.

A complete bed of just one flower would be less difficult to manage. The choice is yours. Take your time as you stroll through the nursery and enjoy the experience and as you do, the ideas will begin to come to you.

The larger the bed, the more variety you can use. Smaller beds will be more attractive with fewer plants and shades of color.

The shape of the bed could be round, square, triangle, oval, etc. You might wish to grow the plants spilling out of a pot laid on its side, or use a wheelbarrow or other garden "prop."

It's important to prepare the bed well. Dig at least 12 inches down and fortify it with compost or good rich soil. Rake it smooth and have it ready when you arrive home from the nursery. This would be a good family project with Dad being the supervisor, in honor of Father's Day.

If you decide to create a one-color scheme garden, let me know via my voice mail.

After you complete your new garden, visit "The Garden Collection at Meadow Brook Hall," sponsored by the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association and Meadow Brook.

This landscape and garden show is at Meadow Brook Hall in Rochester. There will be lots to see and do 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, June 13-14, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, June 15.

If you haven't bought a gift for Father's Day, a new book, published by HarperPerennial, is a riot! I'm sure Dad and the whole family will get a chuckle or two.

It's touted as "the essential catalog for would-be gardeners" and the title is "SMYTH & HAWK'EM," by Tom Connor and Jim Downey.

And, Happy Father's Day to all you dads and prospective dads (we're anticipating the arrival of a new grandchild in late August).

Fa'ther: No textbook definition

When I looked up the textbook definition of the word father, I came up who has begotten a child; a male parent.

LISA LUCKOW-HEALY

with this: Father (fa'ther), n. 1. One Upon opening my coveted Roget's Super Thesaurus and leafing to father, I found: father, n. 1. MALE PARENT dad, daddy, papa, pappy, pop, pa, *old man, parent, sire, head of the household, protector, forefather, progenitor, forebear.

With Father's Day approaching, I thought to myself, What does being a father truly mean?

I could speculate that it has a similar meaning as that of a mother. But in all fairness to the wonderful dads in this world, I decided I should go to the right sources for my answer.

I approached my husband, Brett, and said, "What does being a father mean to you?"

"My main desire as a father is to set a good example for our children as a mentor and a friend," Brett said.

"If they leave our nest with self-confidence, a sense of adventure, respect for others, and a positive attitude about life, I'll feel I have truly achieved something as a father.

"Being a father is truly satisfying. It means providing my children with the love and guidance that will enable them to spread their wings and make mistakes in order to grow and thrive. I try to seize each moment with the boys for what it represents.

"I can think of two perfect examples of what being a father means to me. When our 3-year-old came out on stage with his classmates during a recent school concert, he was so proud and confident.

"A few weeks later, at a Memorial Day parade, I watched our boys sitting curbside waving their American flags. Their eyes lit up as a policeman and a ' big fire truck passed by. Both experiences brought tears to my eyes."

Then I thought, Does Daddy (my father) have the same sentiments?

When I asked him the same question I asked Brett, my dad, Mike Luckow, replied, "My thoughts immediately gravitate to my father and my children both parts being necessary in order to have the honor of being called 'Dad.'

"Father is synonymous with provider, anchor and rudder. It is about learning, then leading by example. As a cocky teenager, I remember thinking my father was quite hard on me. I didn't understand his discipline until I was a father.

"I am one-half of a team we refer to as parents. I become even further fulfilled by my grandchildren - thus a 'grand father."

Two unique perspectives. Hmmm. 1 wonder what being a father means to the other dads in my family, I thought.

Poppa, or Pop, as I've come to call my 86-year-old grandfather, is truly oneof-a-kind. Upon being posed the same question, he replied, "Being a father is a blessing from the good Lord. So many people abuse their children. It's unfortunate. I have the greatest satisfaction in the world of having a wonderful daughter.

"Growing up, I didn't have the same opportunities my child, grandchildren and even great-grandchildren have. Fatherhood means being able to see them enjoy those opportunities and successes."

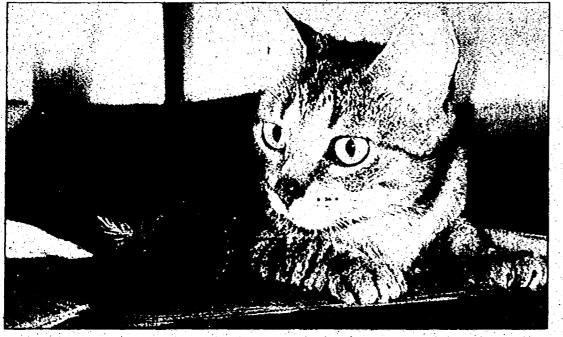

"Being a father arouses many emotions over a period of time," said Frank Healy, my father-in-law in Universal City, Texas. "At birth, you are proud and very thankful, yet fearful of the

"There's not a father alive that does not swell with pride and fear when his child tries his or her first step, first tries to swim or ride a bike or drive a car or choose a mate with whom to share the future. Being a father is the most important thing that can happen to a man."

Ed Collignon, my father-in-law residing in Stuart, Fla., offered his perspective on what being a father means to him.

"Being a father means preparing your children for a happy, satisfying, successful life. I've tried to instill good work habits through example and tried to teach my children to respect others. By the same token, I tried to prepare them to be aggressive enough to survive the hardships we all must endure in life.

"Often a father tends to push too hard to have his children meet his expectations, so we need to know when to back off. I don't feel we should make our children dependent on us. They should be able to make mistakes without criticism but with understanding.

"Being a father is raising children that love and respect you, want to spend some quality time with you, and forgive you for some of the mistakes you made while raising them."

"Being a father means two things to me," said Dale O'Brien, my brother-inlaw. "It's about responsibilities and rewards.

"The responsibilities include teaching, providing, and truly building a strong sense of family and of kindness in our children. The rewards are undeniably great because you have a chance to witness the growth, the triumphs and even the difficulties that are part of your children's lives."

In my quest to define what being a father truly means, I found that I had six completely different perspectives from six utterly wonderful fathers spanning three generations.

I learned that being a father means enabling your children to spread their wings and make mistakes in order to grow and thrive - having the honor of being called "Dad" - being able to enjoy your children's opportunities and successes - swelling with pride at your. child's firsts - preparing your children for a happy, satisfying, successful life and teaching, providing and truly building a strong sense of family. Contrary to the popular, limited dictionary definition, father means many things to many dads, daddies, papas, pops and fathers. For all that fathers are and all that they do, we love them. Happy Father's Day,

Sky's limit for exciting cloud photos

One subject that has always excited me that I've written about in the past is clouds. We've all found ourselves staring at a dramatic cloud pattern oblivious of our surroundings.

Clouds come in a

MONTE NAGLER variety of shapes, textures and colors. They can be huge and billowy or soft and wispy. They can be bold and dramatic and even frightening at times. Capturing them on film is exciting and will definitely enhance your photographs.

How to better photograph clouds? First, learn to really "see" them. Look for shapes and patterns as constantly changing cloud formations float across the sky.

See how clouds can become a colorful palette at an approaching sunset. Notice how a receding black storm cloud becomes a sensational backdrop for foreground objects being lit by the rays of an emerging sun.

Enjoy foggy and misty days as I do. Some of the very best mood-filled pictures are shot in this type of weather.

Once you "see" the clouds, how do you enhance your photographs of them? Begin with a good sense of composition by using a low-horizon line to accentuate the clouds and give your shot a feeling of spaciousness.

When shooting white, puffy clouds against a blue sky with color film, use a polarizer filter. Position yourself at a 45degree angle to the sun and rotate your polarizer until you see maximum blue.

The result will be an impact-filled photograph showing the white clouds contrasted against a rich, deep blue sky.

At sunrise and sunset add spice to your cloud pictures by using colored filters such as orange or red. The results (use slide film) will be truly dramatic. Black and white film "sees" white clouds and blue sky as identical tones and the clouds may become lost in the finished print. But filters in the yellow, orange and red values will achieve cloud/sky separation for you.

A yellow filter will give you normal cloud/sky separation. Orange produces more. And a red filter renders a blue sky almost black, producing very striking results.

Clouds seen from an airplane have a character all their own as they appear like a bed of fluffy cotton. Just set your camera at a fast shutter speed to eliminate the airplane's vibration and the shot is yours.

Do you get turned on by sunbeams bursting through a pattern of dramatic clouds? Underexpose slightly and you'll capture them on your film.

Here's another idea. Make a montage of slides of clouds with other images for an unusual look. Clouds superimposed over trees, a lighthouse or flying birds will result in vivid, striking photographs.

High efficiency systems will pay off

Q: I have a 2000-square-foot ranch that was built in the 1950s. The basement is patially finished. We are looking at purchasing a new furnace and would also like to know about humidifiers, air conditioners and air filters. Could you help?

A: The ranch homes built in the 50s do not have the "tightness" that today's homes enjoy with their increased efficiency of insulation, windows, doors etc. While more expensive initially, the addition of a new high efficiency furnace (90 percent efficient of better) you can actually save money on fuel bills because the more thse furnaces run, the more cost effective they are to own. In addition, high efficiency furnaces operate quietly. When looking for a furnace be sure the furnace includes a lifetime warranty on the heat exchanger. As you look for an air conditioner, you will want to find one with an extended warranty on compressors (up to 10 years). Again I recommend a high efficiency air conditioner as it will pay for itself in three years. The only downside to the high efficiency air conditioner is the size of the unit. I would recommend Detroit Edison's interruptible service box. Following is an excerpt from a letter by Detroit Edison lat year.

"...We'd like to take a moment to talk about the energy-saving program you take advantage of each year - the Interruptible Space Conditioning program.

You save about 25 percent over our standard rates.

We only interrupt when the weather is extremely warm.

■ When interruptions do occur, they are short – 10 minutes at a time, no more than 30 minutes in an hour.

Since 1990, we have averaged only two interruptions per year.

We typically don't interrup on weekends.

You shouldn't notice a difference in your home's internal temperature.

■ If the red light on your control unit is on, we're interrupting.

...Programs like this help us to lower our rates, in fact, we've been able to reduce rates to all customers in each of the last three years for a total of about 8 percent, even while inflation has gone up 10 percent."

There are two types of humidifers. The drum type has pads that need changed more than once each year and because there is a build up of spores, mold etc. they gather calcium and therefore do not hold water. I recommend flush-through, maintenance-free humidifiers. If you use city water you will need to change the pad every 3-4 years and well water once per year.

Electronic air cleaners are the best, especially the media type. The dirtier they become, the more efficient they are. Keep in mind that when purchasing high efficiency furnace or air conditioners, there are rebates available from some manufacturers and also utility companies.

Be sure to have your heating and cooling system cleaned and tuned annually.

Most contractors offer free in-home estimates and can give the homeowner their best options after seeing the job. Keep in mind, however, that the most common error a homeowner can make is making such a major purchase based on price alone!

Longtime Whitmore Lake scribe Loren Estleman will also make an appearance to sign copies of his new, highly-acclaimed "Never Street" along with prize-winning Montrose author Doug Allyn ("Black Water") and area novelist Lev Raphael ("Let's Get Criminal"). In addition, readers can meet Ann Arbor's Lee Meadows, author of "Silent Conspiracy"; Dexter architect/author, Tom Grace ("Spyder Web"); University of Michigan alum Jerry Prescott ("Deadly Sweet in Ann Arbor"), and Grand Rapids journalist/author, Chris Meehan, who will be signing the newlypublished "Murder on the Grand." Scheduled to round out the bill is Farmington Hills mystery writer-in-residence Shirley Schenkel (a.k.a. S.E. Schenkel), autographing her debut novel "In Blacker Moments." Set in the fictional Michigan community of Tanlgewood, the whodunit features retired husband and wife sleuthing team Ray and Kate Fredrick. For her next book, Schenkel says she's featuring a new sleuth and will be setting her story again in Michigan around a missing person's case. Publication date is not yet known. Assistant store manager Suzze Tiernan said plans for the bookstore event have been in the works for around six months now, starting with a hopeful E-mail request she sent to Holtzer about setting up a book signing next time the San Francisco author was in Detroit. After receiving an affirmative answer; for a mid-June date Tiernan said, "the idea just really snowballed." Authors Meadows and Grace each published new mysteries. Readers began to suggest other Michigan writers who might participate. Mystery maven Heising provided still other contacts and special advice. And all resulted in what the bookstore is calling "Michigan Mystery Author Spectacular." Special refreshments will be served at the event, said Tiernan, and readers who come in and visit with all the authors will get an opportunity to enter a drawing and win prizes of particular interest to whodunit fans. Murder, Mystery & Mayhem will offer its usual 20 percent discount on every hardcover mystery purchased. For more information, call (248) 471-7210.

hat was once a destination spot of local lore has grown into a hip and hospitable music gathering known as the Frog Island Festival. Now in its 16th year, the only excuse for jazz and blues buffs not to head to the Huron River banks during the third weekend of June is bad weather - and a bad memory.

Some suggest that in the early 1980s the festival established a new southeastern Michigan legend, replacing the somewhat bawdy references to Frog Island, which were cited in often-told alibis by fabricating locals.

With a name like Frog Island, you'd expect to hear endless bellowing and see plenty of leaping amphibians. But apparently, the only croaking, according to legend, was from husbands who'd come stumbling home long after midnight clinging to a flimsy excuse about hunting frogs down on the Huron River.

The name of the island - and probably a few marriages - belong to history. The music festival, however, continues to evolve, traditionally attracting modest crowds of 3,000 per day. Perhaps it is small by major music festival standards where upward to 100 acts perform. But many have remained loyal to the charm of the homespun Frog Island festival.

Under the direction of Jim Dulzo, artistic director and founder of the festival, the two-day celebration is considered one of the most intimate, open-to-the-public outdoor parties in metro Detroit. Dulzo is also executive director of the Montreaux-Detroit Jazz Festival, held annually over Labor Day weekend in downtown Detroit's Hart Plaza.

Southfield filmmaker makes drama of homeless

BY JOHN MONAGHAN SPECIAL WRITER

How many people does it take to shoot a feature film?If you're Southfield filmmaker Jonathan Rosenbaum, the answer is only three: a guy to push a dolly and set up lights, someone to hold a mic, and of course, the man behind the camera.

"When you're making a film for essentially nothing, it's difficult to get people to make the same kind of commit you're prepared to. You learn to work pretty much by yourself," says the 23-year-old director. His 16-millimeter feature "Storming Home" premieres Saturday, June 14, at 4:30 p.m. in a free screening at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor Rosenbaum has been working on the project ever since he graduated from the University of Michigan film program in 1995.

"Storming Home" is about a group of homeless people who band together, save their earnings in a massive underground vault, and essentially gain control of the city.

"It's a dark satire of how materialistic our society is," says the director. "I thought the best way to convey this is through, people who don't have anything, the homeless.

"In the movie, the mayor and his head of city security decide to answer the homeless threat with violence. The real villain of the movie, however, is a greedy city treasurer who understands the power that this group can potentially wield. For the lead homeless character, he employed Stoney Burke, whose greenpainted hair, preaching in the Diag, and public access cable surprisingly, he gravitated show have made him something of an Ann Arbor fixture. Other cast and crew members were comprised of fellow film students and friends. Rick Sherline of West Bloomfield, a regular in local films, plays "Hobo No. 3" while Tim Lovelace, from Farmington Hills, plays one of the rich guys. West Bloomfield's Ray Uturnatchitte helped on the crew. Rosenbaum has been preparing to make movies since he was a kid.

"I've always had a big imagination. I liked to be creative," he says. "At six I drew comic books and tried to sell them to my parents. I'd play with action figures for hours, Luke Skywalker versus Batman - kid stuff, but in a way I was blocking and working with actors even though they were little plastic figures. Not toward TV production when he got to Southfield Lathrup High School.

"I started really getting excited about making something out of nothing," he remembers.

Rosenbaum got the idea for "Storming Home" when he was still a student in Ann Arbor and would meet homeless people on the streets.

"It was kind of frightening," he says. "They'd look like you, they'd look like me. I'd ask 'why are you homeless?' They'd say, 'My whole family died in a plane crash' or 'I lost my job,' or 'I got disabled.' There's any number of ways that it can happen."

"Storming Home" was shot primarily in Ann Arbor, though bits also took place in Southfield, including a local Farmer Jack.

Detroit area an excellent place to shoot a low-budget film.

"I took a camera and tripod to the CMI Health and Tennis Club on Southfield," he says. "I needed a shot of an aerobics room and they couldn't have been more helpful. They think it's cool that you're shooting a movie. In Los Angeles, you can't even step out of a car without a shooting permit."

Though he is reluctant to talk about his budget, Rosenbaum notes that he was given access to camera and sound recording equipment from the University of Michigan. He contracted with the Detroit Filmmakers Coalition to use their editing facilities. Why film instead of video?

"Video is so fast food," he says. "If you don't like it, you can anything."

Overall he considers the reshoot it and do 100 takes. It looks kind of cheap. With film, if you screw up it's gonna mean expense. It forces you to be very careful how you do it each time," Rosenbaum not only wrote and directed "Storming Home." He also shares co-composer cred. its with friends John Hobart and Rod Sanchez. "There are all kinds of music in the score, but mostly it has a very cartoony, unrealistic feel," he says. For the director, making a feature film has been an invaluable learning experience. "I wrote the script, with the intent of facing every concievable filmmaking situation, except for explosions," he says. "I learned to work with extras, how to build sets, work on locations, work with animals, even about computer imaging. At this point, I feel like I can tackle its original intent, said Dulzo. "We saw it as a way to bring people together," he said. "Music is a healing force." Floating antidotes coming from beneath the large tent along the Huron River banks resonate with the sounds of jazz, blues, cajun zydeco, and rhythm and blues.

"We think of ourselves as a big neighborhood picnic," said Dulzo, a former music columnist for The Detroit News and past music director at WEMU. "We don't book a lot of real big names, but the absolute best available.

Since 1988, the festival has been a collaboration between the Ark, a nonprofit producing organization, and Eastern Michigan's WEMU-FM, the region's only alljazz radio station. Until nine years ago when it became a cosponsor, the Ark had exclusively produced folk, ethnic and other traditional music in the Ann Arbor area.

Headlining the 12-band lineup is Chicago blues great Son Seals, New Orleans brass band The hottest blues women who would Dirty Dozen, rising zydeco star

Half of the 12 headline acts are from the metro area, including clarinet-playing Charlie Gabriel, sax-man George Benson, pianist Bess Bonnier, vibraphonist Jack Brokensha, the explosive quintet Phil Lasley & Fire and the popular Blues Insurgents. A rare appearance by Johnnie Bassett and His Big Band is one of the surprises in Saturday's lineup.

In a trip back to her blues roots during Saturday evening, the soulful Thornetta Davis will accompany The Sharecroppers of Soul in what promises to inspire the type of low-swinging, getdown blues that'll induce plenty of painful croaking. Legends beware.

Our occasional, obsequious grabs at the coattails of fame simply serve to underscore a vaguely pathetic cultural envy. A mixture of intrigue and selfloathing surface when the local media "claim" certain stars whose often peripatetic upbringings routed them through the Metro area at some time during their formative years - Lily Tomlin. Robin Williams, Tim Allen. Right. When was the last time Robin Williams even violated Detroit's air space? But this frustrating picture of a bicoastal cultural oligopoly oversimplifies things.

Detroit is not just a 'starter kit' to one of the coasts in order to score really big money, who can blame them for going? Detroit simply doesn't have a marketing apparatus for artists on par with New York or L.A. Not much of an insult there - neither do great cities like Chicago, San Francisco and Boston. Each city has its own fame, history and regional economy. Detroit's relies heavily on building automobiles. L.A.'s regional economy centers almost solely on show business, which may make it a natural place for professional artists to go make some money, but at least in Detroit every waiter isn't "really hoping to direct."

The picture of the artist shaking the dust of our tiny burg from his or her sandals and never looking back never was entirely accurate. Tim Allen still maintains a home in suburban Detroit. Aretha Franklin raised her family here. Jeff Daniels' passion is the theater he founded in his hometown, The Purple Rose in Chelsea.

resurgence to make frequent forays home, and not just to see family; they're here to work. This week on Channel 56's "Backstage Pass," we'll see examples of both.

Tonight's show investigates Detroit Techno from two angles: Of course, we'll hear the music itself with a live performance from Detroit Techno artist Alan Oldham, aka DJ T-1000. But we'll also see art that this music's culture has spawned.

Not since Motown has a uniquely Detroit musical form created the kind of international identity for our city as Techno is doing today. In just one example of the worldwide importance and fame of Detroit Techno, at the recent Tribal Gathering at the Luton Hoo Estate in Bedfordshire, England, nine tents were erected to represent a worldwide roster of "tribes" from every continent. Each tent bore a title: Planet Earth, Amazon, TransAtlantic, Tropic, Arctic, Sahara, Pacific, Equator, and yes. Detroit. The Detroit tent's full title was "Detroit Techno: Hard Music for a Hard City." Certainly, the European dance scene dominated by this musical form created by Detroit's youth culture. In an example of an artist being drawn home to Detroit from success in New York, the Heartlande Theatre Company welcomes guest playwright Milan Stitt. A Michigan native. Stitt was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize for his play "The Runner Stumbles," taught playwriting at Yale School of Drama and served as the director of the Circle Rep School of Theatre in New York, where he now resides. He returns to Michigan to work with Heartlande on "Playscape '97," a festival of 10 plays in nine days at the Oakland University Campus in Rochester. They'll produce his short work, "Labor Day," and he'll deliver a lecture and moderate audience talkbacks. We'll hear the inside scoop with Jan Radcliff, the executive director of the Heartlande Theater Company.

We'll also explore the current exhibition at Cranbrook. "Location to be Announced: A Sample of Club Culture Design," which ties in nicely with our look at Techno. Cranbrook's curator of education, our own David Rau, will introduce us to the ephemeral art created for rave fliers. And, rounding out the show, bluesman Peter "Madcat" Ruth will perform in the Channel 56 studio to promote the Ann ArbHor Summer Festival. That's tonight on "Backstage Pass," at 7:30 p.m., rebroadcast Friday at 11:30 p.m. on Detroit Public Television. It's another packed show. Now get out there!

Swamp Band. The straightahead, yet highly danceable jazz of Danilo Perez from Panama is prelude for Saturday evening's "rocking blues party" of local and Chicago blues artists.

Dulzo compares Perez's relative unknown status to that of Wynton Marsalis before he broke out. Unlike Marsalis, Perez's music is much less formal. A recent CD release, "PanaMonk," is a Thelonius Monk-inspired album with a distinctive ness in the broadest sense."

Goulet in top form as 'Man of La Mancha'

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

The main attraction of the new "Man of La Mancha" production at Detroit's Fisher Theater is a robust Robert Goulet.

The musical comedy veteran's rich baritone has never been stronger and yet he bends it to an actor's purpose.

"Man of La Mancha" is a good but not great musical. The score (music by Mitch Leigh, lyrics by Joe Darion) tries to incorporate Spanish flourishes into a basic Broadway style with only some success. It has only three notable songs "I Don Quixote," "Dulcinea," and, of course, "The Quest (The Impossible Dream)."

The Dale Wasserman book condenses Cervantes' huge novel "Don Quixote" by wrapping a play within a play. Cervantes is temporaily imprisoned by upsetting the Inquisition and is forced to defend himself by the other prisoners. He does so by telling the idealistic story of the windmill slaying mad "knight," who desperately wants to return chivalry to a dangerous world. That theme was quite popular in the 1960s when the play first opened.

Goulet is excellent both as the strong if world weary Cervantes and the eccentric Quixote. His voice is still strong. But he is What: Man of La Mancha, starring Robert Goulet Where: The Fisher Theatre, Fisher Building in the New Center Area, Detroit When: Through June 22. Times, 8 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday; 7:30 p.m. Sunday; 2 p.m. Saturday-Sunday Tickets: $22-$58; (810)645-6666/(313)871-1132.

willing to forsake musicality for drama, as he does in an interesting, perfectly enunciated reading of "The Impossible Dream." He puts the emphasis on the words but finally lets his voice soar on the final rising notes. It is highly effective. Goulet also shows himself to be a much better actor than those who have seen him play variations on himself on numerous television shows. He fully understands this character and richly fills in the blanks in Wasserman's script.

Darryl Ferrer is an appealing Sancho Panza, funny but also clearly the reasonable half of the dynamic duo. Ferrer does well with "I Like Him," a weak song that tries to explain their relationship.

Susan Hoffman seems almost experience.

too hard as Aldonza, the object of Quixote's idealistic love, his Dulcinea. But she hae a strong voice and presence.

Other good performances include Chev Rodgers as Pedro, Ian Sullivan as Dr. Carrasco, Jack Dabdoub as the Innkeeper and David Wasson as the addled Padre.

But there are many things that work against these performances in this production. Except for a piano and on-stage guitar, the music is prerecorded and sounds flat.

Also flat is the choreography. The major "dance" piece is actually a stylized rape that seems stiff and awkward. Much of the dancing is overly stylized, seeming to draw on the flamenco style without every achieving the fire that characterizes that dance form.

The setting is a dungeon and a retractable stairway is the dominant feature. It is fine except when the play is supposed to move inside Cervantes mind, where a little more light would give contrast to the prison. The final confrontation with the mirrored knight, however, still has some magic.

And, best of all, Robert Goulet has more than enough magic to make this an enjoyable theater experience

Good voice: Robert Goulet is in fine voice in this production of "Man of La Mancha."

MOVIES Violent 'Con Air' soars for action movie fans

Hard IV." This time Nicolas Cage plays the poor guy whose trip home is blocked by terrorists he bring must down singlehandedly. And, like its predecessor, "Con Air" is a violent, sadis-tic bullet ballet that should leave its audience physically exhausted from the action onscreen. In a summer full of over-the-top entertainment, this one will be hard to beat for pure adrenaline. It starts tense from the opening credits and barely lets up.

Cage's Poe, a decorated soldier imprisoned after a barroom brawl, has finally been paroled. He just happens to be on a plane with the nastiest criminals in

You might as well call it "Die rapists who have enjoyed celebrity status on "Hard Copy" and

"Geraldo." Cyrus (John Malkovich), a "self-taught madman," is as well-read as he is crazy. Diamond Dog ("Pulp Fiction's" Ving Rhames) is a murderous black militant and author of an anti-white manifesto. Johnny 23 (Danny Trejo) is so named for the number of rapes he has been tried for, but, according to him, "it would be Johnny 600 if they really knew the truth."

The dirty dozen somehow get loose on the plane and immediately take over. When a planted FBI agent is shot in an unsuccessful standoff, the only hope lies in Poe, who uses his military skills to save a diabetic cellmate and somehow get home in one piece.

The story sounds pretty stupid on paper and it is. But first-time director Simon West keeps the world: mass murderers and things flying with formula efficiency. He has no idea how to film a scene of intimacy (either between Cage and his wife or best friend) but he sure knows how to stage an explosion.

For his part Cage makes the same snide asides as "Die Hard's" Bruce Willis, but also sports Kurt Russell's long locks from "Escape From New York." Pumped up more than you'd think possible, he makes a softspoken order like "put down the bunny" sound both threatening and funny. He's joined by an amazing ensemble cast, especially leader Malkovich, his head shaven and spouting the kind of lunatic/genius lines he was born to deliver.

Rhames, meanwhile, is an explosive character who informs Poe that he can jump to the white man's orders) until the time comes. I'm still not sure what to make of Steve Buscemi, the cult character actor (still

Despite the presence of Cage and Cusack, "Con Air" is defi- 🛫 nitely not a date flick. Bad guys meet their makers in the most indelicate of ways. Its violent and psychotic overtones make for a genuinely exciting, but often nasty, night at the movies.

Megadeth goes on-line for requests

Sipping coffee in a posh suite at the Atheneum Suites Hotel in Detroit, Megadeth singer

Megadeth singer Dave Mustaine realizes that he's tremendously overpaid. In an effort to earn his money, Mustaine is considering soliciting the Megadeth fan club online for song requests for future concerts. He and the rest of the band – lead guitarist Marty Friedman, bassist David Ellefson, and drummer Nick Menza – will take the suggestions and create a different set list for each city.

"Kids in San Francisco are not going to want to hear what people in Texas to want to hear. The bottom line is we get grossly overpaid and we're severely under worked. If we have to pull our hair out to draw 20 songs and put them in a row, poor boys, poor me."

Megadeth will soon begin touring in support of its latest album "Cryptic Writings" (Capitol) due in stores Tuesday, June 17. "Cryptic Writings" is a marked difference from 1994's "Youthanasia" thanks to Dannok Huff, the singer/guitarist of the late-1980s band Giant, who produced the record in Nashville.

The album has been called Megadeth's most accessible to date. Drummer Menza's friends call it "heavy."

"My friends that I've played it for think that it's a heavier album and my friends are into heavy, heavy stuff. I had one friend who said he didn't like it but he's into Slayer, Biohazard and Sepultura. They're so heavy that there's not a lot of melody. going on there. It's very atonal metal kind of stuff. This album has a lot of melody to it. You could say it's accessible. You could say it's mainstream. I think it's Megadeth," said Menza whose dad was a jazz sax player heard on "The Pink Panther."

New release: Megadeth – from left, bassist David Ellefson, drummer Nick Menza, vocalist/guitarist Dave Mustaine, and lead guitarist Marty Friedman – is celebrating the release of its new CD "Cryptic Writings" with a live webcast of its show at the Mesa Amphitheatre in Mesa, Ariz., at 10 p.m. Friday, June 13. The show can be found at the Capitol Records website, http://hollywoodandvine.com.

Huff chose to step out of his usual territory of country, gospel and pop to produce Megadeth because, Mustaine explained, "I think he recognized our talent and I think he thought it was the right thing to do."

It was the right thing for the band to do, too, according to Mustaine. Huff pushed the members of Megadeth hard to get the best performance.

"The last couple of records I felt like I was held back playingwise," Menza said. "He really let me just fly off the deep end to the point where I was trying to get him to tell me to not play things. I really, really had a good time. It was very free - no stress, no pressure. It felt good."

Mustaine added that the band "did stuff that we've never done before," saying that there were too many things to list. Vocally, it's completely matured to the extent where it is in its development right now. I don't know if I'm going to be singing differently on the next record," he said.

More importantly, he taught the band about ethics.

"He a very stable, dedicated family man and I learned a lot about being a responsible adult from him. And he also learned how to be a very immature spoiled rock star. I just hope he doesn't use any of the bad words I taught him when he's doing his next country gospel record," Mustaine explained.

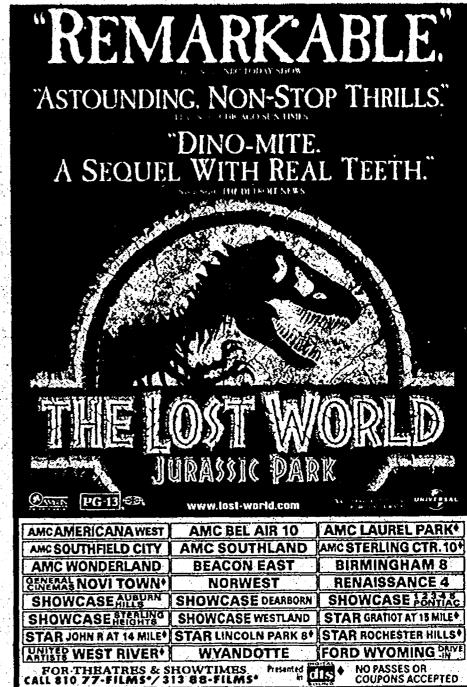

The Scottsdale, Ariz., based band will begin its U.S. tour Tuesday, July 22, with a tentative date to play Detroit on Tuesday, Aug. 12. Fans who can't wait that long can sign onto Capitol's website - http://holly-play smaller theaters and clubs and graduate up to arenas.

"That's the kind of stuff that makes Megadeth so much a band for the people. We don't have to play the 'enormodome.' We'll play in your bathroom if we fit," Mustaine explained.

"Detroit is a huge Megadeth city (but) I think what we've agreed to do - Nick, David, Marty and myself - is we wanted to make sure that we go through the States this time and play it really heads up and conservative and take the best show we can to our audience. That means not shooting our expectations way past the mark."

A. I would suggest that you call the Mexican Consumer Protection office in the location where you purchased the time share and advise them of the situation. If you were given a grace period by which to back out of the contract, you may have a basis to do so. That also, of course, depends upon the terms and conditions of the contract. It is always good to pay by way of a credit card, which would give you additional leverage in terms of paying the money due and owing. You may also have to contact a lawyer in Mexico to assist you in that regard and/ or consider retaining an attorney in the United States to write the appropriate companies involved. Unfortunately, the pressure tactics of many Mexican time share is putting the entire industry in a bad light.

Listen up, prospective home buyers. Here's what you need to know, what to look for and how to position yourselves to get the best deal you can when entering the housing market. In a nutshell:

Focus your search as to location, how much you're able/willing to spend and what your house absolutely, positively must have.

Mortgage pre-approval will save time throughout the process.

Get a copy of the seller's disclosure statement and lead-based paint disclosure, required by law, early on if you're. at all interested in a particular house.

A list of comparable neighborhood sales, provided by a Realtor, and the disclosure statements are great negotiating tools.

Don't get bogged down by the decor of a house during a walk-through.

Hire a professional home inspection service for an expert view of structural/mechanical soundness.

All prospective owners should agree that a house is right for them before buying.

"The number one recommendation with all my buyers is when you make an offer, make it contingent on ... getting a home inspected by a professional inspector," said Larry R. Dunn, a Realtor with Remerica Gold Key Homes in Redford.

"A good inspection will take two to three hours, and they will give a full written report," Dunn said. "It costs $180-$250 on average depending on the size of the house. When you consider the value of a house, it's a good investment."

Two layers of shingles on the roof with the top one looking scruffy, lead plumbing, fuses instead of circuit breakers in the electrical box could portend thousands of dollars in updating.

Prospects can either walk away or base a purchase offer on having the work done or doing it themselves.

"I always tell buyers you have to keep an eye open to what are you going to do when you get in," said James P. Howell, a Realtor with Cranbrook Associates in Birmingham.

"If it's a nice flow, don't worry how they have it decorated, set up. Probably 90 percent of people are going to redecorate, repaint.

"A lot of times, the home isn't wellmaintained," Howell said. "There's not a specific problem. It's dirty, messy, some hairline cracks in the wall, a window pane missing.

"A lot of times, that will turn people off. You can use that as a tool to come in lower. If a house is sitting on the market for a while - a Realtor can tell you that - there is a specific reason. You can use that as a tool to knock down the price," Howell said.

On mortgage pre-approvals for buyers: "They want to make themselves as strong as they can going in with an offer," said Sandra M. Palmer, a Realtor with RE/MAX Executive in Troy.

It's important that everyone has the same goals and objective when hunting for a house.

"Agree on what both want so that one doesn't go searching for the Garden of Eden and the other a rock garden," said Jean Golchuk, a Realtor with the Michigan Group in Plymouth.

payments. If it's not what they (both) want or close, they will be miserable," she said.

Don't just fall in love with a house because you have to live in a neighborhood. Walk into the backyard and around the block to see how the surrounding properties look. Are the neighbors' standards yours?

Are there parks nearby? How convenient are grocery stores?

Drive through the neighborhood at different times and different days to get a feel for the dynamics.

Is it important that you have playmates for children? How many kids are waiting at the school bus stop in the morning? Is there a lot of bike riding, rollerskating, play activity in the evenings, weekends? Basketball hoops usually indicate kids.

Here are some other things you might want to check out before making a purchase offer:

How much will you actually pay in property taxes?

Your payments could be substantially higher than the seller's because your tax will be based on purchase price. The seller's tax in recent years may have been capped by state law. That cap comes off when property changes hands.

How safe is the neighborhood in which you're considering making a buy? Crime prevention bureaus of local police departments probably can provide specific information.

What are school attendance bound aries? Are there significant differences in standardized test results? Who's "They're (both) going to be living in responsible for transportation to it, and they're (both) going to make school?

In the past, a consumer with a poor credit history or a high. debt-to-top income ratio struggled to finance the American dream of home ownership. In fact, credit history was cited as the number one reason for denying a mortgage application, according to the 1996 Home Mortgage Disclosure Act.

"Being denied a loan for what is often a life-long dream can be very frustrating," said Sandy Robertson, regional sales manager for Michigan branches of Norwest Mortgage Inc., the nation's leading provider of home mortgages. "However, that initial denial shouldn't be the end of the mortgage search. Today, there are many options. Getting a mortgage loan is no longer simply a question of 'yes' or 'no,' but rather a question of 'when."

All mortgage lenders base loan decisions on similar factors, including the borrower's income, assets, liabilities, employment history and credit history. But not all potential borrowers can satisfy the requirements of each of these criteria.

"There is a substantial market of potential borrowers that can't meet the traditional underwriting criteria." Robertson said. "Our industry has made huge gains in being able to help these people achieve the dream of home ownership, despite having lessthan-perfect credit."

Some mortgage lenders are entering a category called sub-prime lending. Sub-prime mortgage loans are granted to borrowers with less-than-perfect credit. Norwest Mortgage recently launched a national sub-prime program with Directors Acceptance Corp., which is part of the Norwest family.

For example, a sub-prime borrower is someone who may have had:

• problems due to job loss, medical expenses, or heavy debt usage causing late mortgage/ installment payments or bankruptcy/ foreclosure, or

• numerous loans or credit card balances consuming a majority of the buyer's monthly earnings causing high debt-to-income ratios.

Do's and don't's of hiring contractor

1. Plan your project well in advance. That way, you can ensure that the best contractor you selected can put it on his schedule. Allow four-six months for large remodeling jobs and one-two months for extensive repairs.

• Try to have architectural plans in advance so that you have a detailed idea of what you want.

• After you have selected an contractor, listen to his suggestions on the suitability of your plans. The contractor will frequently have excellent input and may have thought of details that you will not have.

• When looking for a contractor, consider using a contractor referral service to save time.

2. If you choose to do some or all of the research for contractor selection yourself, follow the tips below:

• Request a copy of his certificate of insurance. His insurance agency can fax or mail you one.

• Check with the state licensing bureau to ensure that his license is current. Ask whether there are outstanding complaints about the con-

• Was the contractor responsive and timely in following up on your telephone calls?

• Was the contractor timely in meeting essential deadlines?

• Was the contractor's bid and pricing reasonable and competitive?

• Did he meet your final schedule and meet the bid price quoted to you in the contract? If not, why not?

• Were you comfortable with the contractor's laborers and the subcontractors he brought to work on the job?

• Did the contractor resolve any problems that may have arisen in the course of completing the job?

 Would you recommend this contractor to others or have you recommended this contractor to others?

• "Do you know of anyone else who has recently used this contractor with whom I could speak?"

Note: Go and visit one or two big jobs that the contractor has completed if you are doing a very large remodeling project or building from scratch.

4. Get a written estimate on the ontractor's letterhead with a signameet him on a recent job site. 7. A 10-percent to 20-percent deposit is reasonable. NEVER pay everything up front.

• Tie the payments to the work and schedule: another 20 percent when rough framing is completed; another 20 percent when drywall is finished and the interior is painted.

• Be completely satisfied when the work is done before you make a final payment. For large jobs, consider having an independent inspection of the work by a qualified and licensed inspector before you make the final payment. This is slight additional expense is well worth it.

• For a bigger project, such as an entire home building or remodeling, check the contractor's credit history. Check with the courts to determine if the contractor has filed for protection under the bankruptcy laws.

8. You have certain rights under your contract. You can and should report an unresolvable problem to both the State Licensing Bureau and the Better Business Bureau. If the contractor is a member of the Better Business Bureau, the contractor may

The bureau can tell you the exact licensing requirements for your job. For instance, a painter doing $600 or more of work is required to have a license, A contractor with a Residential Builder's license is not licensed to do electrical or plumbing work.

• Check with the Better Business Bureau to ensure that there are no outstanding complaints regarding the contractor.

• Ask for a minimum of five recent references.

3. As a minimum, ask the following questions of the references:

• What type of work did the contractor do for you?

ture.

5. Get a written contract with a start and completion date signed by the contractor. Make the contract as specific as possible. There may be language in the contract allowing for "acts of God" or other unavoidable delays (usually weather-related). That is acceptable. Include the brand or product names, colors and sizes of items to be used in a remodeling job.

6. Look for signs of stability in the contractor's business operations, such as fax number, Internet address, voicemail/ answering service and/or office staff. For large jobs, try to visit the contractor's office or for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise-is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

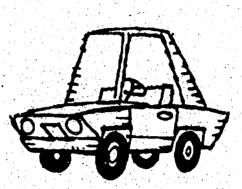

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the Item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

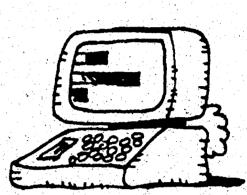

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in-kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

& Eccentric

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
