Children 'race' against drugs

By Donna Mulcahy

Drivers were racing through the parking lot at the Kmart on Wayne Road in Westland last weekend and yes, the police got involved.

But it was all in good fun. The young drivers were just taking part in the Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs event, which was held at the Store Saturday and Sunday

"I thought it was exciting for the kids," said Rick Jamroz of Westland, who took his grandsons, 10year-old Anthony, 8-year-old Justin, and 5-year-old Kyle Zarb, all of Livonia, to the free event.

"The youngest one was a little disappointed, because he was too young to race, but they gave him a free hat and shirt, just for showing up," Jamroz said.

The race was open to children

Serious instruction: Corey Borisch, 9, finished the course. She received instructions from Westland Explorer Jason Manning of Westland. Children ages 7-12 drove special tractors in Kmart's Race Against Drugs at the Westland Kmart store on Saturday.

Council acts to protect trees

■ The Westland City Council has acted to protect trees by updating a city ordinance. The language is designed to preserve the greenery and encourage developers to be "sensitive" to the environment.

BY KIMBERLY A. Mortson Staff Writer

Save the trees. That's the intent of a recent addition to a Westland building ordinance that is expected to make developers and builders more "sensitive" to the environment by establishing tree preservation requirements.

First proposed in February 1996 by newly elected City Council member Richard LeBlanc and approved by the council Aug. 4, the language takes into consideration the "rapid growth, spread of development and increasing demands upon natural resources (that) have had the effect of encroaching upon, despoiling, or eliminating many of the trees, vegetation, and natural

The final draft of the proposal states that "if preserved and maintained in an undisturbed and natural condition, constitute important physical, aesthetic, recreational, health and economic assets to existing and future residents

"This in no way disallows development of property," said LeBlanc, "but does guarantee the preservation of greenery with the integrity of develop-

The ordinance requires any commercial developer and single-use residential development over five acres to be sensitive to the environmental concerns of the property. The ordinance's purpose is:

Mehl supported by Brown, Thomas says charges two city council members

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON

Mayoral candidate Kenneth Mehl can add three more names to his list of supporters as he received a public "thumbs up" from veteran politician Thomas Brown and current city council members Glenn Anderson and Charles Pickering.

The trio announced their endorsements Monday at a press conference in the office of Pickering's Westland business. Mehl and Dixie Johnson McNa are challenging Mayor Robert Thomas in a primary election on Sept. 9.

City may install Web site to promote community

By Kimberly A. Mortson Staff Writer

Not unlike other cities across the United States, Westland is considering the installation of a Web site on the Internet to improve citizen communications, automate city services and promote economic development. "I see it as a service to residents as opposed to a fun thing on the Internet," said city council member Richard day with Municipal Web Services spokesperson Curt Anderson.

MWS, a Birmingham-based municipal Web custom service provider, is one of several companies the city of Westland has contacted. They currently have a $4,000 contract with the city of Niles, Mich., to design and host their city's Web site, in addition to proposals with the communities of Grosse Pointe access, 24 hours a day, in addition to Woods, Grosse Pointe Park, Mackinaw providing information on city services, Lake Village.

"It's important to determine what your site's objective will be," said Anderson. "I don't think of Westland as a destination for tourists so the purpose of your Web site would be very different from that of Mackinaw City's."

Anderson emphasized the technology can be used as a tool for government LeBlanc during a study session Mon- City, Lathrup Village and Orchard upcoming events; applications for per mits, refuse pickup schedules; or to help companies considering relocation or new franchise placement to get to know your city.

"The design should also reflect the culture of the city," added Anderson.

City council member Justine Barns said she would be interested in seeing as much of the history of the city available on the web site as possible, including information regarding housing ages 7 through 12. They got to ride soupedup looking lawn tractors around a 75-by-185-foot race track, which was designed to look like a professional speedway. The blades had been removed from the tractors for safety's sake and the maximum speed possible was 5 miles an hour.

Each driver was accompanied by an adult "safety rider," who sat on a separate seat on the back of the vehicle and controlled a kill switch to the engine. The drivers rode one at a time, against the clock, and were required to wear helmets and safety belts.

"They seem to be pretty safe about it, which makes me comfortable, because that was a concern of mine," Lynn Sayles of Westland said, as her children, Stephanie Fisher, 8, and Bobby Fisher, 7, waited in line for their turn to race.

Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs is a national program that's funded through corporate sponsorships. The racing tour will stop at more than 300 Kmart and Super Kmart locations this year.

The program, now in its second year, was developed by the Kmart Family Foundation, a non-profit organization aimed at preventing and fighting drug abuse.

The purpose of the program is to attract children with a fun and exciting event, and then to give them the message that it's important to be drug-free.

To help get that message across, the foundation enlists the help of the local Drug Abuse Resistance Education program in every city the race visits. The foundation donates $5 for every child who races at that location to the local DARE organization.

About 500 children participated in the Westland race, so the city's DARE program will receive about $2,500, Westland police Sgt. Dave Hooper said Monday.

DARE is a cooperative effort between police departments and school districts in some 10,000 cities nationwide. In the program, police officers visit schools and conduct DARE classes, which teach children the importance of, and skills for living, drugand violence-free lives.

Representatives of Westland's DARE program and other Westland police officers helped Kmart volunteers oversee the race track, and handed out DARE badges and coloring books during the event.

Members of the Westland Police Department's Explorer Program served as safety riders. Explorers are volunteers ages 18 to 22 who are interested in a career in law enforcement. They help out at various community events.

The racers appeared to be getting the antidrug message – sort of.

When asked by a reporter what they had learned that day, several said, "how to drive a tractor." Others just shrugged their shoulders.

But when asked if they had learned that it's important not to do drugs, they mentioned that they were aware it was an antidrug event.

All entrants received a commemorative hat, T-shirt, bumper sticker and certificate.

They competed in three age groups: 7-8, 9-10, and 11-12. Their finish times were recorded and the winners in each age group will be notified by mail. They will advance to the regional race-off Aug. 23.

The regional winners will compete for three $10,000 scholarships at the National Championships in Orlando, Fla., in January.

Bell-ringer: Tim Heiser, 10, of Livonia rings the bell that rings up another $5 to fight drug abuse. Children ages 7-12 years old had the opportunity to drive tractors at the second annual Kmart "Kids Race Against Drugs" in Westland.

The Michigan Humane Society is asking for canned pet food donations in recognition of "National Homeless Animals Day" on Saturday, Aug. 16 to increase public awareness about the plight of homeless animals.

Homeless Animals Day was created to commemorate the approximately 15 million dogs and cats, puppies and kittens, that are euthanized each year in our nation's shelters.

"Pet overpopulation is an enormous problem," said Michele Mitchell, MHS community relations director. "The majority of animals we take in are healthy, good-natured pets that are put to death simply because there are not enough homes available. Responsible pet ownership includes sterilizing your pet."

Those wishing to donate canned pet food in support of Homeless Animals Day can visit the MHS shelter at 37255 Marquette in Westland. Everyone who donates will receive an "I Helped A Homeless Animal" sticker.

Other ways people can help homeless animals include adopt an animal from the Michigan Humane Society or local shelter, make sure pets are properly identified; do not adopt a pet unless you are willing to make a lifetime commitment; and volunteer time at the MHS or the local shelter.

All the food will help feed homeless or abandoned animals at the MHS. The MHS is a private, nonprofit organization dedicated to serving the animals since 1877. The MHS operates three full service shelters and charitable animal hospitals in the metro Detroit area.

costs, economic development, annual general fund expenditures and year-to-year tax information.

MWS preliminary discussion included the potential to be the site host provider, details on incorporating a sites first year of maintenance into their fee and a $45 per hour charge for its complete design with an average construction period of 60 days.

Anderson said MWS specializes in municipal Web designs and will offer ways to reduce costs, provide better services, foresee trends in municipal Web sites and promote self maintenance of the site if desired by city employees.

"Your success is our success," said Anderson.

Other services the Birmingham company provides involve Internet technology consulting, on-site training, digital photography, PC and network installation and Internet-based surveying.

A committee, under the direction of City Clerk Diane Fritz, is being established to study the objectives of a Westland Web site and what benefits the community and the city will gain from its creation. The issue isn't expect to be on the city council agenda for some time.

Assistive Devices—Help Beyond Hearing Alds

Most of us think of hearing aids as the only solution for a hearing loss. But you can experience a whole new world of independence with Assistive Devices.

Assistive devices are non-hearing aid products that compensate for hearing loss by employing flashing lights, vibrations, message displays or electronic amplification. They range from practical to lifesaving—vibrating and flashing alarm clocks, telephone signalers, flashing doorbell and smoke alarms, and baby alerting systems. And from small to large-scale—TV and phone amplifiers and infrared systems used in theaters and auditoriums.

Used with or without hearing aids and for even slight hearing losses, these products quickly become a necessity for the hearing-impaired person who lives alone, is ill, or is socially active. In addition to the safety benefits, assistive devices can enhance social, educational, spiritual, cultural and recreational experiences.

Your audiologist's goal is hearing rehabilitation that is as complete as possible. Assistive devices are routinely recommended as part of total hearing health care and to help patients with a hearing loss achieve a lifestyle that is as normal as possible. Your audiological examincludes a listening needs assessment that helps determine which assistive devices best fit your needs.

Cause of Textron fire is still undetermined

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON STAFF WRITER

Damage from a fire on Aug. 6 that smoldered within the stacks of car headliners at the Textron plant, is estimated to be in the millions, according to Patrick Harder, Westland assistant fire chief.

Although the investigation is only one week old, fire officials are labeling the cause of the blaze as "undetermined" and expect to wrap up inquiries shortly.

"The investigation is not complete but we're calling the cause undetermined," said Harder.

Firefighters from Westland, with mutual aid from the city of Wayne, battled the blaze for more than seven hours after answering an emergency call from second shift workers at 10:47 p.m.

The location of the fire, in the south portion of the building, engulfed headliners (liners for roof interiors) manufactured for automobiles. The finished goods were stacked on top of each other, which made it difficult extinguish the fire due to the close quarters of the smoldering inventory.

Harder said his department has been put off as to an exact monetary value of the damages, but understands the damaged goods are going to be "scrapped out" by Textron.

Employees working at the time of the fire were safely evacuated. One Westland fire fighter, Ken Leftwich, suffered injuries at the scene.

"His injuries were not life threatening," said Harder. "He's recovering at home now."

County air quality officials have scheduled a public hearing for Wednesday, Aug. 20 to hear comments related to air permits for Textron. The hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at John Glenn High School.

Transplant postponed for Westland man

BY RICHARD PEARL STAFF WRITER

All things in their time.

That seems a good philosophy these days for Westland's Richard Popp Sr., whose planned kidney transplant recently took a backseat to a bout with prostate cancer.

According to his wife, Carol, the 57-year-old is recovering extremely well from prostate surgery June 2, but the kidney transplant from his daughter, Amy Ryder of Inkster, will have to wait until next year.

Which means that Popp, who suffers from renal (kidney) failure, is having to continue his thrice-weekly treks to Novi for four-hour-long kidney dialysis treatments.

However, "There are many silver linings in storm clouds," said Carol, and one is the delay, which gave Amy more time to recuperate from son Hunter's birth five months ago.

Still, she said, "Everybody is unhappy this (transplant) can't be over with."

Popp, a retired Garden High School teacher and assistant football coach, had learned in April that his daughter had decided to be tested and to

Then, in May, about three weeks before the transplant, doctors confirmed via biopsy the prostate cancer, which had been only suspected in prostate antigen tests. Surgery was done June 2 at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

His doctors "are totally amazed" at his rapid recovery, said Carol, "He has such a wonderful attitude. And I am absolutely convinced that that's as important as any medicine."

However, Popp must be cancer-free a year before a transplant. His immune system is suppressed after transplant to prevent organ rejection, he said; "so if there is any cancer, it goes wild. It was a good thing they found it."

Another family frustration was son Richard Popp Jr.'s decision to take a year off from coaching football.

The young Southfield-Lathrup High School head coach, whose success with the Chargers had earned him strong mention for the newly vacated Garden City High post, wanted more time with his young family.

His parents felt disappointed "because Richie had always looked forward to coaching at Garden City," said his mother, who remembers him shagging footballs on extra-point kicks at Garden City Junior High.

And, says his father, "I was going to help him coach if I could," But the parents support his decision.

Now, with winter around the corner, Richard Popp Sr. looks toward a fourth year of trudging through the snow for dialysis.

Library's device gives the blind an 'edge' in learning information

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Ask Joe Burchill about the William Faust Library in Westland and he will say it truly has a reading edge.

But it isn't the newness of the 9-month-old library, nor the volume of books, that gives the library an edge.

It's a new reading machine - a Kurzweil reading edge - that can help those who need it.

"For those who have problems with their sight, they can use the Kurzweil reading edge," said Burchill, administrative assistant at the library.

The edge acts as eyes and a narrator for those who are blind or have visual difficulties. It scans books, recognizes the text, converts the text to synthesized speech and reads the text aloud.

All that's by placing the book open to the page desired to be read on what looks like a copier machine. But the machine reads the writing.

"It can read books and legal forms, but not handwriting," said Patty Goonis, a librarian. "It can read typewritten letters.

"It's a way to broaden our services to handicapped persons."

Indeed, the services include a large print collection; books on tape; large screen computer monitors for all computer resources, including the Internet; a magnification viewer; and a courtesy wheelchair.

But the $5,000 reading edge can read virtually any printed or typeset document, including textbooks, encyclopedias and school assignments.

It also can read in a variety of voices. "Some people can hear a female voice, some can hear a male voice," Goonis said. "It also has foreign language capabilities."

For those who wish to take the document home in audio form, the edge also tapes the document to be played back.

Burchill hopes the new equipment can be used by those with visual handicaps, but he realizes they may not know it is located at the library.

The library is located at 6123 Central City Parkway in Westland. Call 326-6123 for more

Seedlings Braille Books group seeks new home

One of the groups affected by the looming demolition of parts of Bentley Center is Seedlings Braille Books for Children.

Livonia Public Schools has told the nonprofit organization which makes low-cost braille books for children to vacate its rented space at Bentley by Nov. 1. The 1,200 square-foot room is in one of the wings that will be torn down once demolition gets under Debra Bonde, Seedlings director who lives in Livonia, has been out looking for low-cost space to rent in Livonia, but so far she's had no luck.

One of the biggest obstacles to keeping the rent payment low is the need for air conditioning. Without air conditioning, humidity affects the paper and the braille-imprinting process.

High school grad honored

A once-troubled Wayne Memorial High School graduate who turned her life around with help from the Westland Youth Assistance Program has been honored for her achievements.

Kimberly Jackson, in a program sponsored by Citizens for Wayne County Youth, was recently honored at the 9th Annual Judicial Jazz Program at the Detroit Yacht Club.

She was given a plaque that reads: "I have to learn to do things for myself; no one else can do them for me."

Jackson made that same statement to the Observer during a recent interview for a story that focused on her successes. Her grades and attitude toward life changed dramatically after she was paired with mentor Carol Sparks of Westland, through the city's Youth Assistance Program.

Jackson attended the award ceremony with Sparks, Youth Assistance director Ronaele Bowman and Westland 18th District Judge Gail McKnight, who serves on the Youth Assistance advisory board.

"Westland's Youth Assistance Program is viewed as one of, if not the best, programs in the county," McKnight said in a press release. "It was a joy to see Kim honored for her success in the program which she achieved with the help of her mentor and the Youth Assistance Program staff."

A western Wayne County commissioner says he's not in favor of a major plan to build a $110 million courthouse in downtown Detroit.

Commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, has introduced a proposal to build a new court facility to house a revamped court system, which was prompted by the state-mandated merger of Detroit Recorder's Court and Wayne County Circuit Court Oct. 1.

Court officials also plan to create a new family court division.

Cushingberry's plan for a new courthouse allows for all the courts to be housed in a single building, instead of spread throughout downtown Detroit. While the idea may have merit, implementation may be a bit harder to come

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also serves Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said modern technology could save the county a lot of money without the expense of a new building.

"I do not support the idea of a new courthouse," McCotter told the Observer. "We have existing structures we can look at renovating. There is no need for more indebtedness."

"We have faxes, modems and E-mail which can tie the courts together," said McCotter. "George put out the idea to stimulate debate, and it certainly did

Cushingberry said the county could rent from the courts to pay off the bonds. He would like to see a new facility constructed by the year 2000.

"I'm not convinced we need a new building," said Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, vice-chairman of the judiciary committee. "We have a lot of existing buildings which might house all the courts. If not, we can have geographic proximity even if we can't have one building," sell bonds to finance the project, with becoming more popular, the issue of a single building may not be a big one. However, I would be willing to at least give it some consideration.'

"And, with video arraignments"

Patterson, also notes that with all the current construction in the Detroit area - Metro Airport expansion, new baseball and football stadiums, and future casino construction - it might be hard to get competitive bids and find workers to construct a court.

mayor no longer seeks out the opinions of the seven-member council and believes he can run the city without their input or support.

"He counts four votes whenever he wants to and that's not serving the citizens well," said Anderson.

"There is no communication coming from his office because he knows he's got the support he needs," stated Pickering, "He doesn't ask because he doesn't. want my opinion."

Trouble with mayor

Former mayor, state representative and city council member Tom Brown said he too experienced difficulty in working with Thomas over his tenure on the council. Brown said he never intended to fight with the mayor but he got "no cooperation from him and couldn't depend on any promises he made."

"The last two years have spelled out for me what's wrong with the city," said Brown.

Brown used the current closure of Newburgh Road between Cherry Hill and Palmer roads as "an example of something that never should have happened."

"He doesn't care about people," said Brown. "He had meetings with those business people and promised at no time it (the road)

Both council members said the would be closed and now in fact - it's closed. It's because they didn't carry through with the alternative road at the railroad

"These are the kinds of things that bother me.'

Anderson, Brown and Pickering all say they see Mehl as the answer to a mayor "too comfortable in office.'

"For the primary election our candidate is Ken Mehl," said Brown, speaking on behalf of his political colleagues.

Pickering, who served in 1982 as mayor while Mehl occupied a seat on the council, remembers the pair didn't always agree on issues but managed to remain civil and that Mehl was known for pushing issues of fiscal responsibility and restrictive spending during a time when the city faced an economic down

"That's the kind of mayor we need," said Pickering "Mehl will be both receptive to the city and listen to our concerns. Thomas has changed from the way he started out as mayor."

Anderson, a public supporter of Thomas until recently, said he never would have pictured himself endorsing Mehl just three years ago, but now recognizes the change in the mayor and hopes his constituents will realize something is wrong with the administration in light of the political shift.

'I will communicate as much as possible with the council. The council's input is not being sought and Thomas isn't asking any questions.'

> Ken Mehl -mayoral candidate

"I can't and will not be in his corner," said Anderson. "Ken Mehl is going to make changes that will be good for the city and important for our community's fiscal position."

No compass

Anderson went on to say Thomas is "morally and ethically bankrupt" and has no compass to guide him. "He doesn't deserve to be in office.'

What he did say Thomas has become is a "heavy-handed" ruler with his directors, who Anderson believes receive no direction expect when it comes to politics. "Half the time the mayor isn't in city hall. For him to be gone as much leads his directors to not have any direcsome administrators get together socially. It has nothing to do with politics, said Thomas.

He also added that communications with the council are not nonexistent and one example are the "Our Town" cable shows where the council and administrators appear together to discuss various community and municipal issues.

"That's false," said Thomas, "and for years the council has been involved with the administration more often than it ever

The mayor said he was particularly surprised to hear Anderson and Pickering question the council's involvement with the administration when the pair failed to complete work on a City Search Project after the 1993 election.

Thomas said they had three of four meetings together then both city council members dropped the ball on the project. They needed to be tracked down and they never did finish the work, said Thomas.

Former mayor and state representative Tom Brown said Monday. Thomas broke a promise to several Westland business owners that Newburgh Road would never be closed due to construction at the railroad tracks.

"Tom Brown knows better," said Thomas. "That road will only be closed for a two-week period to get the bypass road open. Their just flat out lying.

"It's necessary sometimes that you have to close a road to traffic during construction. By the time you print my retraction, the bypass road will probably be open already."

The mayor said Anderson, Pickering and Browns attempts to tear him down demonstrate they have "nothing positive to say about their candidate."

"They're being ridiculous and they're being childish and they should be ashamed at what they're attempting to do to the issues," said Thomas.

One thing she is ready to talk about is the possibility of a mayoral forum prior to the primary election in September.

"I'm definitely interested in a debate," said McNa, "but I heard the mayor refused. I'll participate if someone from the outside. like the newspaper, asks the questions and not people handpicked from the mayor's staff."

County Web site provides road particulars

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

Despite the fact many radio stations broadcast frequent road construction updates, do you often find yourself right in the middle of gridlock when the report is aired?

Well, no longer do you need to find road repair crews by accident.

Wayne County officials have just begun putting that same information on the Internet. That means you can become an informed driver by looking for construction problems anytime on the Web, before getting trapped.

"I put up-to-date details concerning roads projects, and other interesting information, on the Internet," said John Roach, public information officer for the department of public services. "When you consider how many people read the site, I think it's a cost-effective way to reach the public."

"If you traffic (promote) the site, you can get an extreme return on your investment," added Marybeth Atzinger, program manager of Bowne Internet Solutions in Birmingham, who put together Wayne County's Web site. "If done right, it's like word of mouth with a visual."

Atzinger's job is not only to make an interesting Web site, but to promote it.

"Anyone can launch a Web page, but the idea is to advertise the site and submit it to various search engines so people can find it," said Atzinger.

"John has done a good job with content," said 'Atzinger. "Our job is to make sure people look at It."

Atzinger says the latest figures show the site is getting between 10,000 and 20,000 hits, or visitors, a month. She considers that on the high side for a Web site.

Roach says there are six different areas you can click on to get information about the county's road system.

"There are a lot of ongoing and upcoming road projects motorists can view," said Roach. "I also put in a fun feature detailing the birth of a pothole."

Another area maps out the roads.

"You can look at a map of the primary road system and the services we provide," said Roach. "You'll find we're about more than just fixing roads. We have information on road signage, traffic signals, guard rail repair, and other facets of the department."

You can also look for current conditions of major roads on a color-coded map, and as well as visit a feature detailing the inner workings of Wayne County's four movable bridges.

"I believe the Web site will help reduce the frustrations of motorists," said Roach. "When we talk to people about road conditions, we hear their frustrations. The perception is we aren't doing much to improve road conditions. This way, we can disseminate information and make people aware of what we are doing. It's an open line of communication between Wayne County and the people we are serving."

Wayne County's home page consists of two areas. One is the newly created roads system, which has been on line about a week; and the other deals with economic development, details about the county and specific communities, which has been around for about a year and a half.

The Web site cost $3,500, which Atzinger says is a bargain. Many home pages can cost up to $5,000.

"We worked within the county's budget to get them started," said Atzinger. "We saw this as a real opportunity to become involved in the commu-

Congressman pleased by new income tax law

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

"It's a good, strong half-loaf. We all won," said U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Township, of the new income tax law passed by Congress and signed by President Bill Clinton.

Knollenberg, a third-term lawmaker and still a Speaker Newt Gingrich loyalist, has dropped talk of running for governor now that Michelle Engler says her husband will seek a third term. And Knollenberg hasn't made up. his mind yet about a 2000 GOP presidential candidate but is losely watching Ohio's U.S. Rep. John Kasich, chair of the budget committee.

The congressman, whose 11th Congressional District includes much of Oakland and northwestern Wayne counties, was interlowed in his Farmington Hills office at the end of the congresional session. Highlights:

Q. This tax law has been called the Accountant's Full Employment Act. Is that jus-

Knollenberg: Any time you have changes of the magnitude yog have here - tax cuts, capital gains cuts, child tax credits, estate tax relief, educational credits, IRAs with more people striving to take advantage of these - that's going to greatly expand the involvement of filing. There's some truth it will increase some paperwork.

At the same time, it's going to benefit the American people. Anybody concerned about the pagerwork ought to be thankful beçause they'll get one heckuva benefit - from 28 to 20 percent on capital gains; some folks earning less than $41,000 will sed it cut from 28 to 10. It's certainly worth while to take the time to file.

Q. From a Republican point of view, what policy goals have you accomplished?

Knollenberg: It's the first tax cucin 16 years. We've balanced the budget, and that hasn't been done in 28 years; we've reduced the (annual) deficit to a point the president is even saying it's less than $40 billion. There's talk of brunging it to zero, even next Pile that on top of the fact that we've already cut some 292 programs, some $53 billion, out of discretionary spending; that's one-third of the budget. The discretionary part will slow down to 0.5 percent growth a year.

The other thing is the Contract with America, pretty much inspired by Newt Gingrich, but we all contributed - 85 percent is now in force.

I went to Congress in 1993. We had no power. The president rolled out a tax increase, the largest in history. Four years later, the same president is willing to cut taxes, reduce the size of government, slow down the growth.

Q. On Gingrich: You were kind of close to Dick Armey. floor leader from Texas. Were you part of or close to the plot to unseat Gingrich?

Knollenberg: No on all counts. I've been a supporter of Newt right along. The dissidents in number were probably a hardcore of five, expanding to 12 on a given day, so they were a distinct minority.

There probably were some faults in the leadership; they didn't communicate properly; it was a particular fault of the lieutenants, Armey included... They all pledged loyalty and fidelity to Newt in this three-hour conference you may have heard about. It was put behind us.

Q. There's an impression, right or wrong, Gingrich has done more to give younger guys and newer members yourself, Pete Hoekstra and (former Rep.) Dick Chrysler exposure and leadership than speakers in the past. Correct?

Knollenberg: I believe he has. I haven't made a study of previous speakers. But maybe to a fault, Newt has brought in leadership; giving them chairmanships of task forces. He's been very open and interested in expanding roles for people.

Trent Wisecup, Knollenberg's press aide: Putting you on Appropriations in your second folks he put into the leadership were the ones he had problems with, so I'm sure it's bittersweet.

Knollenberg: Some of the

Q. My impression of the Contract with America is not just that it was a program, but a lot of these things had never even been voted on.

Knollenberg: I believe (your memory is correct). He talked about congressional accountability (applying the laws of the nation to Congress and its staffs).

He himself can't serve more than four terms as speaker. Removing proxy voting. Reducing the size of committees by almost 25 percent.

Strange to me, these went through with overwhelming majorities. They could never get out of committee, before, Q. Joe, you were elected in 1992. You had some thoughts on term limits then (he said he would observe the Michigan decision to limit U.S. representatives to three terms, but that was overturned in court). What are your thoughts on term limits now.

Knollenberg: In my brochure, I pledged to serve no more than six two-year terms, 12 years total. I still hold to that.

That vote (to amend the U.S. Constitution for congressional term limits) was held, but there wasn't a two-thirds vote. We couldn't guarantee its passage, but we did bring it up.

Wisecup: 87 percent Republicans and 17 percent Democrats voted yes.

Q. Republicans resisted the Democrats' "Motor Voter Act," in large part because it required so much registration effort in social services agencies. How has it worked out, in your view, in partisan impact?

Knollenberg: We heard from clerks all the time about the more and more people to the imposition. They are literally, they tell us, unable to refuse anybody at the last minute because the documentation they (registrant) must provide is min-

Blackwell Ford in Plymouth has established a scholarship at choolcraft College in memory of Longtime employee Peter W. Mitchell of Livonia.

Mitchell, a 35-year veteran of the automobile industry, joined Blackwell Ford in 1983 as general manager, overseeing sales, parts, service and the body shop.

"Pete was a very loyal employee," said owner John Blackwell. "He was a mentor, a friend, a trusted and knowledgeable professional. I learned a lot from him."

Mitchell grew up in Canada before coming to the United States and joining the U.S. Marine Corps. He came to the Detroit area in 1935 to help care for his ailing father.

He is survived by June, his wife of 38 years, a son, daughter and two grandchildren.

unfunded mandate.

I'm still against the idea.

Q. You supported NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) very vigorously. Are you happy or. ...

Knollenberg: Happy. We said at the beginning this would not be without some dislocations, but that had started years ago. Any time you can produce a product here and sell to Mexico without tariffs. . .

That's why Chile is on a fast track for consideration in NAFTA this fall.

I'll be supporting that. The Boniors out there and Gephardt (House minority leader) will fight.

Clinton's on this. We have a friend in Bill Clinton when it comes to trade. He's turning more and more Republican.

There's also the CBI, where a person lives. It's an Caribbean Basin Initiative. I was on a subcommittee trip down there. The economic and foreign ministers very much want that. That was in the bill, but it was taken out. I don't know the story behind that.

> Q. Do you share the concerns of those who say the stock market is overheated?

Knollenberg: When we took over in 1994, the stock market (Dow Jones Industrial Average) was 3,900. Now it's over 8,000. Unemployment is low, employment is high, interest rates are down 2 percent. Inflation is holding. There aren't those factors that induce worry.

The growth in the stock market is real; I don't think it's superficial.

Q. Somebody ran a poll of CEOs (corporate chief executives) on who was responsible for the strong economy -

Reagan's policies, Bush's policies, Clinton, the Congress, the Federal Reserve Board.

Knollenberg: All of the above.

I can't tell you Bill Clinton had any original thought until the Republican Congress came into view, and then he realized he had to work with reality.

You have to give Alan Greenspan (FRB chair) some credit for keeping interest rates down. He was an appointee of Bush.

Q. Who is on your short list of presidential nominee prospects for 2000?

Knollenberg: I haven't made a decision. (Sen.) Fred Thompson (of Tennessee) could be attractive. You have the usual: Steve Forbes, Jack Kemp, Gov. George Bush of Texas; John Engler could emerge.

I'm forgetting John Kasich, and I shouldn't.

Q. Is he the sleeper in all this?

Knollenberg: John Kasich (is a remarkably talented fellow. He does err occasionally, but he's resilient, he bounces back. He's a gifted speaker, great recall; knows the budget, is folkey. And I think he's interested. If some. thing happens in 1999, you could see him emerge very quickly.

John is not an ideologue. He goes after corporate welfare; sometime to a point where he overdoes it. He just got married; He's writing a book, which could be a prelude to something bigger. He's always looking a step ahead of you.

Maybe people are tired of Lamar Alexander, Kemp, John McCain.

Kemp willishave a hard time getting the nomination.

County economy gets boost from advertising campaign

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

Wayne County officials "Wish You Were Here," doing business in and around metro Detroit.

It's all part of a big-time advertising campaign enticing business to locate in one of the nation's largest counties.

"It's getting very competitive when it comes to economic development," said Tim Johnson, director of marketing and public relations in the county's office of jobs and economic development. "There are so many counties, states and countries looking to attract new business and create an identity for themselves." Johnson says Wayne County has the assets to compete with other areas of the country - two airports, Metro and Willow Run, for cargo and international travel; excellent highway and rail networks; and international access via the Ambassador Bridge.

"We have all the tools business is looking for, now we just have to let the world know," stated Johnson.

That thought is echoed by Betty Jean Hebel, associate professor of marketing at Madonna University.

"It's an excellent idea to give Wayne County a chance to differentiate itself from other areas," said Hebel. "The positive changes in Detroit, such as the stadiums and casinos, will help. But you still have to get your name out there for people to notice." How can World the county view: afford This is expensive ad one of campaign? the advertising agency asking if they could develop a campaign for free," said Johnson. "I knew they help many organizations with free services, so I thought I'd give it a shot. We certainly don't have the budget to develop a campaign and then place it in various publications."

Well, it worked. "We do a number of projects from our Detroit office which we consider public service," said Blaise Newman, vice president at J. Walter Thompson in Detroit. "Our president's philosophy is to put something back into the community when we can. Certainly, what's good for Wayne County is good for us."

"We've done work for other worthwhile organizations for free, like providing campaigns for the American Cancer Society and United Way of Southeastern Michigan."

Newman declined to say how much J. Walter Thompson would charge for such Realtors

"I sent a letter to J. Walter Thompson an effort, only noting the cost would looking for warehouse space and possihave been "five figures."

> "It took us seven weeks to complete the campaign," added Newman.

> Johnson says the only cost to the county is the $50,000 budget to put the ad in several business and industry publications.

"I think it's a dynamite ad campaign," said Johnson. "If we get just one investor to come to the area because of the ad, it will more than pay for itself through jobs that will be created and an increased tax base."

Canton woman ready to make a new home for herself

BY VALERIE OLANDER STAFF WRITER

Tina Randall is packed and ready to make a new home for herself and her two children after being notified in late June that her landlord at Canton Commons Apartments lost his license to receive Section 8 federal housing subsidy for low-income tenants.

The complex is located at Haggerty and Palmer roads on the east side of Canton.

Although Randall was reissued a monthly housing voucher of $526 from the Plymouth Housing Commission to help pay for a new apartment, she was notified last week by HUD that the voucher is temporarily on hold.

Apparently HUD is renegotiating its contract with Jack Friedman and Milton and Joseph Dresner of Highland Management Company, owners of Candevelopments. The contract was revoked because of an ill-managed unit in Colorado.

"I lost 10 pounds since this whole thing started and I was only 94 pounds to begin with," said Randall.

"I don't know what we are supposed to do. Are we supposed to continue to look (for new housing)? They told us they don't even know if the vouchers will be available," she said.

One of her biggest concerns is where to register her children, ages 5 and 7, for school since she doesn't know whether she will still be in the Plymouth-Canton School District by the new deadline of Sept. 30 — after the school year has already started.

Another tenant, Mary Helm, planned to move to Florida to be near relatives with her housing voucher of $597. The residents repeatedly were told by HUD ton Commons and 13 other housing and the Plymouth Housing Commission that the beauty of housing vouchers in comparison to project-based subsidy is the availability to move anywhere within the U.S.

> Helm took advantage of the situation, boxed up all of her belongings and scheduled a moving truck for July 27. Then she was informed the housing voucher was on hold.

> "I feel that we as human beings are being treated no differently than as if we were cattle ... They can't play games with people's lives like this," she said.

A deadline originally set for tenants to move out of Canton Commons by July 31 was extended to Aug. 31 after there was an outcry from residents who said the 30-day notice was an unrealistic timeframe to find new subsidized hous-

In the latest letter residents received, Robert Brown, director of multifamily the contract HUD has with Canton Commons will remain in place until Sept. 30, "The issued vouchers will not become operable until such time as HUD's final policy concerning Canton Commons is determined," he wrote.

Brown declined comment when reached by the Observer and referred all questions to its Detroit public affairs division, which in turn referred questions to its Washington office where Alex Sachs was unavailable for com-

Plymouth Housing Commission director Sharon Thomas said she was just as much in the dark about what was transpiring between HUD and Highland Management as residents living in Canton Commons.

"We don't know diddly squat. All I know is they put us on hold," she said.

The Plymouth Housing Commission housing at HUD's Detroit office, said was asked by HUD to administer the housing vouchers to the 340 residents of the 450-unit apartment complex. However, after meeting with 140 of the tenants on July 2 and 6, the commission was told by HUD that the voucher program was on hold. Only 40 families have valid housing vouchers, Thomas

She also doesn't believe HUD ran out of money as is always speculation as Congress attempts to revamp the country's welfare system.

The housing vouchers would have cost the government more, considering tenants such as Helm paid $15 per month toward the $370 two-bedroom apartment rent under the project-based system. The voucher was worth $597 based on housing costs in southeastern Michigan and a sliding scale that included 30 percent of her income.

Whatever the future may bring, this is what will bring it. The fact is no one really knows for sure what the future will bring. It's the reason 1984 wasn't like "1984". And why 2001 will be nothing like "2001." But there is one thing we do know - in the future, our entertainment, our information and our communications will all come from Broadband. OK, so what is Broadband? Simply put, it's a wire with enormous capacity, a wire with two-way capabilities. The wire you now think of as bringing you cable TV is being transformed into something that can literally bring you the future. Broadband will give your computer the power to be as entertaining as your TV. Your TV will become as smart as your computer. And you will be ableto communicate in ways you never imagined. O Right now, in communities around Boston, Detroit and Jacksonville, where our networks are already in place, Broadband is allowing people to download from the Internet up to 50 times faster, providing the fastest Internet connection to the home. A supersonic speed that is changing the way people are using the Net. 10 Broadband is making ideas travel faster. The exchange of knowledge is increasing exponentially. Once you are connected, you will no longer merely be entertained; Broadband's unique two-way capabilities will let you send home videos through your computer, entertaining others. You won't just sit back and be informed. You will inform. Nothing will remain static.

Over the next few years, a whole new culture will emerge. Not just through our computers, but through our TV as well. Broadband is about a new level of involvement and interactivity. You will no longer be strictly on > the receiving end of genius. And once your big idea connects with your friend's amazing inspiration, there will be no end to the brilliance that can come from Broadband in the next hundred years. If you are

Volunteers Paint the Town with their heartfelt efforts

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

Thousands of volunteers converged throughout Wayne County last weekend to participate in Paint the Town, painting and sprucing up homes of those who were unable to do it themselves.

Among those participating in the effort were 60 employees from Wayne County, who gave up a Saturday to help those in need.

Assistant County Executive Dale Jurcisin of Livonia has been participating in Paint the Town for most of the organization's 10-year history. Jurcisin

Michigan legislators won't be idle in fall

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER

With the 1998 budget and road taxes out of the way, the Michigan Legislature will have a full plate of work when it returns to Lansing the fourth week of September.

Some jobs involve state regulation of churches, consumer protection and an effort to push term limits onto Congress.

'Religious freedom'

The Senate Judiciary Committee on Sept. 23 will receive Rep. Kirk Profit's House Bill 4376, designed to correct the effects of a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

Profit, D-Ypsilanti, said his bill would protect against state laws and local ordinances which would prohibit the constitutional right to free exercise of religion. It would prohibit laws and ordinances from restricting the exercise of religion unless the unit of government demonstrates a compelling interest.

The House overwhelmingly approved his bill July 10.

The Supreme Court on June 25 ruled in favor of the city of Boerne, Texas, in what was essentially a zoning case. The city had denied a building permit to expand St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Parish because it was in a neighborhood zoned for historic preservation.

The parish challenged the city's refusal of a permit, citing the federal Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The city responded by challenging the constitutionality of that act and won in federal court in San Antonio. That act was passed in 1990 as Congress responded to an Oregon group which argued it had a constitutional exemption from Oregon's narcotics laws.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans reversed and was itself reversed by the Supreme Court.

The highest court ruled 6-3 that Congress exceeded its power in passing the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The opinion by Justice Anthony Kennedy said struck down as a "considerable intrusion into the states' traditional prerogative and general authority to regulate for the health and welfare of their citizens."

Kennedy said Justice Congress' action was too "sweeping" and intrusive, "displacing laws and prohibiting actions of almost every description and regardless of subject matter." Kennedy found "no evidence of a widespread pattern of religious discrimination in this country."

Consumer bills

House Democrats will push a 27-bill package of consumer protection laws. Among co-sponsors are Reps. Eileen DeHart of Westland and Bob Brown of to limit themselves to three Dearborn Heights.

Voluntary limit

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, is pushing a state constitutional amendment allowing congressional candidates to submit a pledge form to the Secretary of State that they will observe term limits.

The Kaza legislation would allow U.S. senators to limit themselves to two terms (of six years) and U.S. representatives

The Secretary of State would be authorized to print on the ballot "signed term limits pledge" or "broke term limits pledge" next to the name of the candidate.

With little hope that both chambers of the Legislature will summon up the two-thirds majorities to place the amendment on the ballot, Kaza said he is working on a petition drive. "It's basically the same group that did it in 1992," he said.

Voters approved a constitutional amendment applying to Congress, the governor and administrative board, and the Legislature. But the courts struck down the section of the amendment applying to the U.S. Senate and House.

Dropouts

Stress importance of diploma

The Michigan Department of Education recently released its annual report, which highlighted important statistics about Michigan schools, such as test scores and dropout rates.

That report indicated that Wayne-Westland schools' dropout rate jumped from 8.9 percent in 1994-95 to 11.7 percent in 1995-96.

Any increase in the dropout rate should not be taken lightly, but last year's rate increase is significant. Interim Superintendent Greg Baracy said the district needed to investigate why the district's figure was increasing into double digits. Some school officials question the accuracy of these figures, namely Livonia Superintendent Ken Watson, who has a basic mistrust of these figures.

Still, any number of dropouts is too high. And many of these young adults don't believe that they need a high school diploma to get what they want in life. That is not the mature' attitude they will need to understand the discipline necessary for the daily rigors of work. That is not the strong foundation that is needed to lead a solid life.

But enough of the lectures. The district needs to ensure that it has a retention program that can keep these students in school. When these students drop out, school administrators and counselors need to follow up, find out why they're out of school and get them back in, if possible.

It also comes down to parents. They're still the strongest adult figures in their children's lives.

Parents should consider acting on a few things to lower the dropout rate:

Get involved in your children's lives.

Take an interest in your children's friends and their sports or other activities they participate in ■ Stress the importance of an education. No one can take it away from your child. And studies show that those with high school diplomas earn more on the average than those who do not.

■ Keep them active. Involve them in sports.

■ If you haven't, take them to the William Faust Public Library on Central City Parkway. It is a new facility, your tax dollars paid for it, why not use it? Get your children into the computers, books and music there.

The dropout rate needs attention, and it takes efforts from all parties; and those are students, parents, school administrators, teachers and counselors.

And the winner is ...

Prepare students for jobs

tion of the paper ... We have so many good jobs, we can't fill them fast enough ... jobs our grandparents never imagined, involving computers, robots and lasers. Time magazine called these jobs 'gold collar' since they can pay as much as $30 to $40 an hour. Interestingly, most of these gold collar jobs don't require a four-year college degree. What they do require is extensive training, especially work-based education."

- Gov. John Engler, 1997 State of the State nessage.

"The real problem is that the unskilled U.S. workers who once had good factory jobs are inevitably being replaced, either by lower-wage foreign workers or by computers and robots. They need newer and better skills Stop trying to protect yesterday's jobs. Join us in preparing people for tomorrow' jobs ...

"The AFL-CIO is dying a quiet death and has been doing so for years."

Robert Reich, former U.S. secretary of Labor, in "Locked in the Cabinet," Knopf 1997.

"More than 70 percent of the jobs in America will not require a college education by the year

- National Center on Education and the Economy, 1990.

There is bipartisan agreement: A university degree isn't quite as important as we thought it was. Job training is more important than we expected.

To the shock of many, Michigan recently was revealed to rank 38th among the 50 states in the proportion of students earning four-year baccalaureate degrees from universities.

The fear is ill-placed. What we need to be looking at is the quality of high school education and the quality and quantity of job preparation kids get before they start their careers.

After World War II, the federal government set up a "GI bill of rights" so that returning soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen could go to college. Those veterans also had high aspirations for their children with the good life in the green suburbs and a college education. The federal government, states and private donors did a superb job of getting an ever-increasing proportion of high school graduates into college. It even happened in Michigan, where college wasn't quite so necessary because of the abundance of highly paid factory jobs.

Michigan fell behind in college funding in the 1970s and '80s as the welfare load ate up shrinking state revenues. Tuitions rose, barring many students and their families from the university market. Since the mid-1980s and throughout the 1990s, however, Govs. James Blanchard and Engler have restored much of the funding and put a drag on tuition hikes.

What crept up on us was the changing economy for those in the lower half of the labor market. Those highly paid factory jobs dissolved, when plants were moved to Mexico or replaced by robots and computers.

No longer can a young man of dubious academic skills swagger but of the classroom and into a factory job. No longer can a young woman marry at 18 and be secure for life; she must be prepared to work if there's a separation, divorce or loss of a husband's job.

Last week, many western Wayne County residents were shocked at the 1997 Michigan Annual Report issued by the governor's office. It showed dropout rates rising. It shocked many local school officials, too, who had spotted no such increase in dropouts.

This newspaper's experience tells us to trust local statistics over Lansing-generated statistics. Odds are the dropout numbers aren't nearly as bad as the governor's distillation suggests.

But let us keep the key point in mind: High school, community college and trade school educations are far more important to success in the global economy than in 1945.

Every parent, counselor and teacher needs to make sure young people understand the importance of education and job skills while they're still in high school, and not 10 years later when they find themselves at a minimum wage dead-end.

A history primer

I recently perused an article in the Sunday, June 29, 1997, Westland Observer written by staff writer Darrell Clem. This article is titled "Neighborhood offers solidarity, sense of history." I observed what a good writing he made of it with such good but routine historical information given to him.

I moved here to "Annapolis Park" July, 1966. Believe it or not, I didn't realize I was moving into a middle-class neighborhood nor did I know I was moving into the City of Westland; the objective was to move in a house my wife liked, regardless of all else. Shortly after establishing my family here, Henry Nichols asked me to attend a meeting where the agenda and subject matter would be to revitalize the "Home Owners Association." I accepted the invitation and believe me, it was one of the better things I had done since becoming a homeowner in the 28th Precinct.

After the second meeting, the bylaws committee presented bylaws and constitution for approval. The preamble read: "This Association is founded for the purpose of organizing all residents of the Southeastern District of Westland into one body, to promote a unity in purpose, to build a better community and encourage civic betterment. This Association is a non-political and non-profit organization. Article I – This organization is to be known as the Southeast Homeowner Association of Westland. Article II – Membership in this organization shall be open to all residents of the 28th voting Precinct."

While the Bylaws Committee was reading all this, Mack Mayfield was listening with absorption and intensity, his eyes were looking out with what seemed like hidden mysteries, his face was drawn so tight it appeared to have been hewn from stone. When this much of the document was read, his face broke into a partial grin, he knew he had been elected President. He also knew he had been given the opportunity and responsibility to unite the 28th Precinct.

The entire situation made me think of two lines in a song that says, "After God told Noah what to do, Noah began to cut and hew. One hundred years he hammered and sawed, building an ark by the grace of God." To perform for a period of one hundred years is out of the question for us today, but within two years Mack Mayfield had achieved the "improbable" for this Precinct; he had negotiated for African Americans to serve on all Boards and Commissions in Westland. This is why, when I talked to staff writer Darrell Clem, I stated I am against outsiders speaking on issues involving this precinct, especially issues concerning internal affairs. We have all types of activists in this Precinct. As of now, we have not less than three NAACP Executive Board members right here in the Park. It has always been policy to contact the Homeowners Association if you are in doubt about something, have a problem, or to act on any internal matters. It is a proven fact this precinct can successfully fight its own battles. We do not go out picking a fight, but we fight when our cause is right.

Accomplishments and achievements made under the Mayfield administration were meaningful and continuous. In fact, policies, standards, and even methods are alive today and we are benefiting with them and from them.

As I recall, voter registrations were a must. Only candidates for office who had compassion for working people and minorities were recommended for endorsement. "Meet the Candidate Nights" were initiated. An "Ordinance Man" was appointed so that the people could know and follow ordinance laws and when B & Es surfaced, meetings were held with the police.

So, when you talk about solidarity and sense of history in the 28th Precinct, leaving out the Southeast Homeowners Association of Westland could very well put one in error with history.

The Southeast Homeowners Association of Westland is alive and trying to build on the foundation laid by our former leaders. We will not minimize our efforts until unity, justice, equality, and equal opportunities flow like peaceful rivers of water up and down every street, avenue, and boulevard in this Precinct.

Where you meet with hate and racism, take a stand against it.

POINTS OF VIEW

Future without smoking isn't just pipe dream

ey, Mom, what's a cigarette?" Mike asked as he bounded into the kitchen. Puzzled by his unusual query, Mike's mother asked, "What makes you ask about that?"

"Well, we were watching a movie in history class today and this guy had something hanging out of his mouth that seemed to be on fire and none of us could figure out what it was so we asked the teacher, but he didn't want to talk about it. He just said it was something people used to use a lot and then changed the subject. Tony said his great-grandma used to talk about them when he would visit her and he said they were called 'cigarettes.'

Mike's mom took a deep breath, pondering how to discuss this issue with her 14-year-old. She knew it was something he might ask about someday, but she had hardly prepared herself for how to answer him.

"Mike, when Grandma and Grandpa were younger, cigarettes were still made and sold to people who wanted them."

"But Tony said they killed his great-grandma."

That may be true. Cigarettes contributed to many deaths back in the 1990s. They were responsible for more deaths than AIDS, homicides, suicides, alcohol, drugs, fires, car accidents and plane crashes combined! I remember writing a report in my history class about smoking and tobacco products and that they were related to over 400,000 deaths each year up until the late 1990s."

"If they were so bad, why did people use them? Why didn't they just stop buying them?"

"It was a lot more complicated than that. There was a chemical in the cigarettes and other types of tobacco called nicotine. It was a drug that was very addicting and made it very hard to stop. Plus, there were a lot of politics involved. Tobacco made a lot of money for a lot of people so it wasn't as easy as it sounds today."

"But it hurt people. They were showing pictures in this book of Tony's with people on machines that breathed for them and people with all kinds of cancers. It was gross! Why wouldn't our teacher talk about it? I thought he was supposed to answer our questions about history, not ignore them."

"Some people are still very hurt by what was called the Tobacco Wars. Some people lost parents, husbands, wives, even children to the effects of tobacco and secondhand smoke. Maybe he was too upset to talk about it."

"What's 'secondhand smoke'? Is that where you use both hands?"

"Secondhand smoke was the smoke that non-smokers were exposed to when they were around a person who was smoking. We learned over time that even this involuntary or passive smoke was very dangerous," Mom said.

"How did all this stop? I mean, we never hear about it or see anything like cigarettes now," Mike asked.

"It took many years for people to learn how to avoid tobacco. People stopped blaming smokers and started helping them quit. Health care professionals discovered successful ways to help people stay away from tobacco.

Laws were enacted so kids were not exposed to tobacco products, tobacco companies were not able to sell their products everywhere and pretty soon people got tired of spending their money and wasting their health on cigarettes."

"Mom, I am so glad we don't have to worry about all that anymore." "Me too, Mike. Me too."

A story in our future? We can only hope.

Every crowd has its share of bad apples, peaches too eader Arlene Victor wrote in response to my column castigating Mackinac Center for saying business always does things better than government:

"I'm always looking for cogent arguments in defense of government roles with the many (smug) entrepreneurs I know who believe anything government can do, they can do better. How do you reply to their somewhat justified claim that government employees are often inefficient, ineffective and unmotivated?"

My fishin' buddy, an insurance claims adjuster, and I explored this at length when they weren't biting one Saturday morning.

His work experience is that 85 percent of insurance claimants just want their losses restored; 10 percent will try to chisel a few extra bucks; and 5, percent are crooks.

I had already come up with identical numbers: 85 percent of people want to do an honest day's work, pay their share of taxes and raise their families in peace; 10 percent goof off and cut corners on their work and taxes; and 5 percent are evil and should be imprisoned, sterilized or disbarred.

These percentages hold, we agreed, whether the group is Catholic, Buddhist, Baptist, white, black, yellow, green with purple polka dots, in business, in trades, in professions, or in government. There always is an 85-10-5 breakdown.

No religious, ethnic or economic group has a monopoly on virtue. None is totally rotten.

Business and government are different.

First, businesses seek market nich es. Private freight companies carve out small package markets over frequently used routes. They don't attempt to do what Congress, 200 years ago, decreed the post office should do: unify the nation politically by delivering a one-ounce letter for the same price to any corner of the continent:

TIM RICHARD

Government serves everyone. Public schools take anyone who can walk or be wheeled in the door. Private schools tend to skim the cream.

Second, government's powers – hence its flexibility – are limited by constitutions and laws. To offer a new product, such as a state park, it must go through two legislative chambers, an annual appropriations battle or even the voters.

Government can't make a snap decision the way a business executive can – and in a republic, we wouldn't want it to have that power. Nor can government raise its prices, in secret and overnight, as business does.

Government was decades ahead of business in lowering hiring bars on the bases of race and gender.

I get annoyed at liberal Democrats who protect the rights of ethnic groups, welfare recipients, sexual perverts and draft-dodgers but then castigate corporate managers. Such liberals are as bigoted as any Dixiecrat ever thought of being.

Ditto with the Mackinac Center, which believes with rock-headed firmness that government is always wrong and business always right.

The profit motive doesn't always motivate managers to treat customers right. I'll always remember the GM service department manager who practically laughed me out the door when I asked if he had touch-up paint for an eight-year-old Chevy. And every Kmart shopper has horror stories about unresponsive or invisible help.

Remember the old-time public librarians who always "sh-h-h'd" you, sneered and scowled? Nowadays, even without the profit motive, public librarians knock themselves out to be helpful.

The state Department of Natural Resources, under two governors, has made an effort to teach field staffers to be nicer to the public; Gov. John Engler holds, and insists his department heads hold, public office hours; and the U.S. Postal Service clerks are either mellowing or being trained in courtesy.

The most fouled-up service in government, to my knowledge, is the Michigan State Parks campground reservation system, which is run by a private contractor.

There are good business folks and bad ones. There are good public servants and bad ones. Stick with the 85-10-5 rule.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Fieger grabs the spotlight

t makes me smile to think of Geoffrey Fieger running for governor.

Although he has been called many things, no one has thought to have labeled the West Bloomfield attorney, famous for his defense of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and assisted suicide, a politician.

At least not our modern-day version.

He is not a conciliator. He doesn't cozy up to those in power. He doesn't win friends even as he influences people.

In fact, Fieger does quite the opposite.
He makes personal attacks on folks in high places; the governor, the Legislature, county prosecutors, to name a few. He challenges court procedures and be-robed judges. He walks a legal tightrope.

Ethics charges brought by the state Attorney Grievance Commission against Fieger were dismissed by an Attorney Discipline Board panel late last year. They included calling Appeals Court Judge Clifford Taylor "amazingly stupid" and accusing Ionia County Prosecutor Raymond Voet of "covering up a murder."

In their ruling, the discipline panel said all of Fieger's alleged statements were either true or expressions of opinion that were protected by the First Amendment.

Fieger has always been a provocateur. Back in the pre-Kevorkian days, when he and attorney partner Michael Schwartz were active in local West Bloomfield politics, he was often muzzled by his own faction. Schwartz was the spokesman of choice (later elected to and then toppled from the township board), because Fieger was likely to offend.

But it's Fieger who's running for the Democratic nomination for governor. And he'll open his campaign Aug. 21, a Thursday, at Rochester Municipal Park. "It's just an informal picnic in the park," said Sigrid Grace with the Rochester-Area Democratic Club. "We invited all the candidates and we're just thrilled at the opportunity to meet some of them."

Fieger's also scheduled to meet in the next two months with Oakland County Democrats, Livingston County Democrats and the Farmington Hills Democratic Club.

"So far, the response has been very positive," Fieger's legal assistant Donna Werth said. "The only ones complaining are some of his clients, and that's only because they still want him as their attorney."

JUDITH DONER BERNE

Not to worry. I predict he'll still be their attorney. Because even though Fieger studied acting in college, I don't think he's quite up to the part of governor of Michigan. In fact, he could well be running as a lark.

He likes the soapbox. He likes publicity. And it's certainly a way to further spotlight the assisted suicide issue, that has become a true passion.

Gov. Engler, even in the role of "Pothole John," is a formidable incumbent, though it's doubtful Fieger will go that far. Because on the Democratic side, he'll have to beat out the likes of fellow Oakland County resident Doug Ross.

Ross has serious political credentials, serving under former Michigan Gov. Jim Blanchard and in the Clinton Administration under former Labor Secretary Robert Reich. And he has a reputation for commitment and ideals.

Still, Fieger will certainly inject some spirit into a campaign that might not otherwise rouse Michigan voters.

When his opening statement in Kevorkian's fourth assisted suicide trial earlier this year resulted in a mistrial, Fieger shrugged off accusations that he deliberately incited the jury. "That's what I do for a living – I get ahold of them, and I win."

Sure enough, the prosecutor in that case, again the maligned Voet, announced he was dropping the charges against Kevorkian. "What would stop Geoffrey Fieger from again pulling another stunt of some sort to derail a fair trial?" he said.

I'd sure want Fieger as my attorney. I sure don't want him as my governor.

Wee bit batty for bat houses was sitting on the patio the other night, kind of late, about 10 p.m. It had rained earlier and I could smell the fragrance of the citronella plant that we bought to keep mosquitoes away. Just as I was plugging in the bug light, The Feminist comes out.

"We should get a bat house," she said.

"A what?"

"A bat house."

"What is a bat house"?

"A house for bats." "And why would we want a bat house? I asked. "To attract bats." She sounded exasperated. "But why would we want to attract bats?"

"They eat mosquitoes."

"They get rabies."

"No more so than any other animal," she said. "That's just a myth." "Uh-huh. Where did you hear about bat houses anyway?" "I don't know. I read about them somewhere."

At work the next day, I picked up a copy of the Observer's At Home section. There, leading the "Marketplace" items on Page 3, was a picture of - what else? - a bat house. Available for only $29.98 at the four English Gardens locations.

"This must be where she saw it," I muttered. "Just wait till I get my hands on Mary Klemic." (She's the editor of that section.)

But I kept reading.

"Bats," according to the caption, are "no more prone to rabies than any other mammal" and one bat can eat "more than 3,000 mosquitoes in one night,"

Great. Just what I want in my backyard. Flying carnivores. Rodents with wings. Little baby Draculas. Maybe she'll forget about it.

A few days later we're at the local Sears Hardware store, looking for an electric lawn edger (her idea). I picked out a cheap one.

"Let's get a leaf blower," she said. "So you can clean up the mess after you mow the lawn."

"No." I insisted. "I'll look like a lawn Nazi. No blower."

A few minutes later, while I was loading the grass/leaf blower plus vacuum into the shopping cart, she disappeared. I found her in the bird house aisle.

"What are you doing?" "Looking for bat houses."

Fortunately, they didn't have any. But I figured I'd better do some research.

"Do people actually buy these things?" I asked. "I mean, suburbanites?"

Well, yes, according to Skip Hickey, a master gardener, certified nurseryman and general practitioner at the English Gardens store in Dearborn Heights. This year, Hickey said, the Dearborn store sold seven Bat Houses for the going price of $29.98. The West Bloomfield store sold six.

The Dearborn store sold two versions of a higher priced model, the Bat Chalet, for $39.98. In West Bloomfield, six chalets were sold.

Does the chalet attract a higher class of bat? Hickey didn't know. But he did say that "A lot of people are trying to attract bats." "Why?"

"Bats are very beneficial mammals," he said. "They eat many times their weight in mosquitoes. They are a kind of organic mosquito control." "Yeah, well, what about my bug "Doesn't work," he said, "Mosquitoes are blind. They aren't attracted to the light.' "And my citronella plant?"

"That'll work," he said, "but it hasto give off aroma. And to give off aroma it has to be constantly bruised. You have to keep brushing the plantto make it work."

"What about those candles?" I asked, I thought I had him.

"They work a little better than the plants," he said, "because they're constantly giving off aroma. But it isn't that much. It depends on how much candlepower you've got."

All right. So I'm convinced. Bats are

Good news meant for sharing

Say cheese: While Dawn and Doug Kinnell and sons D.J., 9, and Drew, 8 months, focused on dinner, 7-year-old Derek's attention was quickly turned from pizza to posing when the camera started clicking Monday evening. Derek has been diagnosed with tuberous sclerosis complex. In hopes of developing a genetic test for the disease, the family has signed on for further testing after researchers last week announced they had identified a second gene that causes the disease.

Gene's discovery is cause for cheer

Dawn and Doug Kinnell are ready to roll up their sleeves and those of their three sons to give blood to help develop a genetic test to diagnosis the disease that has left one son with seizures and a mild form of autism.

BY SUE MASON

An article in the Aug. 8 edition of the journal Science is enough to make Dawn Kinnell ecstatic. After 10 years of searching, researchers have identified the TSC1 gene of chromosome 9.

For some, it is another step toward unlocking the mysteries of the human body. For Kinnell and her husband, Doug, it is a huge step toward the diagnosis and treatment of the disease that has left their 7-year-old son with seizures and mild autism.

"We're very happy about the gene being found and we hope that a cure. will be found one day," said Kinnell. "We've already asked to be one of the families in the genetic testing."

The TSC1 gene is one of two genes that have been identified that can cause tuberous sclerosis complex, an autosomal dominant gene disorder. First identified in the late 1800s, it affects every one in 5,500 births. It causes a variety of physical and neurological disorders, including seizures, mental retardation and tumors of the brain, kidneys, eyes, heart and other. organs.

The Kinnells' son, Derek, is one of some 2 million people worldwide who have been diagnosed with TSC. Their 9-year-old, D.J., has not been affected and, with no known diagnostic genetic tests for TSC, they wait and wonder if 8-month-old Drew has the disease.

They also wonder if either of them have the TSC gene or if Derek's condition has been caused by a mutation. They worry more since Doug found a white spot on his skin. It may be a telltale sign of TSC.

Difficult diagnosis

Derek was 2 years old when signs of TSC began surfacing. He began having momentary seizures, and Kinnell immediately thought her son had a large brain tumor. But the EEG showed no abnormalities, and the pediatrician refused her request for a CT

They went to a neurologist who determined he had epilepsy. Three months later, after more seizures, the doctor prescribed Tegretol, an antiseizure medication. The medication seemed to help Derek who was more happy and less frustrated.

But the seizures returned around Christmas and a frustrated Kinnell went to the pediatrician for a referral to a new doctor. They saw him in February, and by then Derek was having 10.20 seizures a day.

"They're not the kind of seizures that most people are familiar with," Kinnell said. "He was never unconscious and there never was any shaking. The episodes were more facial; he'd have a glassy look in his eyes. They'd last around 30 seconds, and when he came out of them he would immediately go to sleep. They seemed to take all of his energy."

Kinnell pressed for an MRI, but the doctor wanted to get the seizures under control. He took Derek off the Tegretol and put him on a different seizure at the University of Michigan.

medication, Depakote, with devastating results.

Within two weeks' time, the toddler was no longer talking, he was "totally isolated and a very unhappy child." He also started showing signs of autism. He couldn't sit still, was still having "20-30-40 seizures a day and seemed to be getting worse."

Ten months after his initial seizure, an MRI was done at Children's Hospital of Michigan. Three days before Easter, the doctors called with a diagnosis. Derek had TSC. The white spots on his brain that had shown up during the MRI were tubers or lesions. They also were found in his heart and showed up as white patches on his

"I had never heard of it until then." said Kinnell. "I stopped at the library to get a book and that was my first big mistake. It said a majority of TSC patients don't live past the age of 30. It was devastating."

But Kinnell kept educating herself. Even with the diagnosis, Derek's condition didn't improve. The Depakote wasn't helping, and he exhibited its side effects of hyperactivity, mood changes and behavioral problems.

"I was told they used Depakote in the psychiatric wards to calm people down, but it had the complete opposite effect on Derek," Kinnell said. "I pleaded with the doctor to do something and she asked, 'Would you rather have seizures or behavior problems?' I told her seizures because he was still having them."

The decision was to scale back the dosage of Depakote and give him another drug, Zarontin, to see if that would help. There were no major changes, so once again the Kinnells moved on, taking their son to a doctor

Time for change

After telling him what Derek had and what had happened to him, he agreed to wean him off of Depakote. The toddler had been on so much of it, that he had become overmedicated and it took three months for it to work its way out of his system.

"The change was an overnight thing," Kinnell recalled. "When he went to bed, he was an unhappy child, but when he got up, we had our happy child back. It was the happiest time of our lives. Not only was he happy, he became seizure , free for 2 1/2 years."

The family lived in Garden City at the time and Derek was enrolled in speech and language therapy through the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. He also attended a preschool class at Lathers Elementary School in Garden City. A form of special education, all of the students were speech delayed, but Derek even more so.

When the Kinnells moved to Livonia, Derek was speaking at the level of a 2year-old. He has come a long way through the preschool program at McKinley Elementary, kindergarten at Garfield and some first grade at Buchanan. He knows the who, why and where and can do a lot, according to his mother,

"I've cried every day for him," Kinnell said. "He lost eight months of his life because of the medication."

Since finishing kindergarten, Derek's seizures have returned and he has developed behavioral problems. The goal is to get the seizures under control and the Kinnells have turned to the Michigan Institute of Neurological Disorders.

In September, Derek will have a video EEG done over a four-day périod

Museum gets ready for Lincoln collection

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Historical Museum needs to see at least 3.8 million more copper faces of Lincoln to acquire, preserve and display one of the most comprehensive collections dedicated to the former president.

So far, the museum has raised $112,000 of the required $150,000 for the Abraham Lincoln collection of Dr. Weldon Petz, a well-respected Lincoln scholar from Oakland County. Ford Motor Co. has been a major donor, providing a $50,000 grant to the fund.

"Ford believes that by being in the community, and as Plymouth's largest employer, employees need to give something back to the community," said Dan LaBlonde, secretary of the community resource committee (CRC) at Ford's Sheldon Road plant, and president of the Plymouth Historical Society.

LaBlonde, a Ford Motor Co. retiree, presented the

■ A suntan is not healthy. It's the body's defense against skin damage cause by the dangerous ultraviolet rays of the sun.

The sun's ultraviolet rays are strongest between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Exposure at these times should be avoided and protective clothing should be worn.

■ Maximum protection from the sun's harmful rays is offered by a sunscreen with a sun protective factor (SPF) of 15 or highusing a sunscreen with a SPF value of 15 can stay in the sun 15 times longer than without the sunscreen before obtaining the same degree of sunburn. The higher the SPF, the better. Sunscreen should be applied 15 to 30 minutes before going outdoors. It should be reapplied if you perspire heavily or swim no sunscreen will last all day.

■ You don't have to be hot to suffer sunburn. Snow reflects as much as. 85 percent of the sun's rays.

■ Don't count on being safe on a cloudy day or under water. Seventy to 80 percent of the destructive ultraviolet rays, which are responsible for sunburns, penetrate clouds and water.

Individuals should practice regular skin self-examination and request skin examinations from their health care providers as part of their cancer-related checkups. Radiation from tanning beds is as dangerous as the rays from the sun and can contribute to skin cancer and skin aging. Tanning parlor radiation also may cause additional damage to your eyes and immune system.

Hospices team up to offer revamped Camp Phoenix

Gathering: There was plenty of room on the grass on the shore of the lake at Camp Tamarack for children to gather during one of the many activities offered during last year's Camp Phoenix.

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

When Community Hospice and Home Care Services Inc. decided something special needed to be done for children who had lost a significant loved one, it came up with idea of a weekend camp.

So, in 1994, CHHCS gathered up its staff, volunteers and the children and headed to Ortonville for a weekend of games, activities and a memorial service at Camp Tamarack in Ortonville.

Camp Phoenix was so popular, CHHCS decided to offer it again. Now, in its fourth year, the western Wayne County agency is preparing to unveil its new and improved Camp Phoenix, a joint venture with Hospices of Henry Ford Health System.

"It's really showing our commitment to help children," said Maureen Butrico, CHHCS executive director. "It shows that even though we compete, we can still do things together for quality care in hospice."

"We are excited to combine our children's programming knowledge and experience with Community Hospice's already estab. lished children's camp," said Jean Butrico, child life specialist at Hospices of Henry Ford Health System.

This year's Camp Phoenix will be Friday through Sunday, Aug. 22-24. The camp is for children ages 6-17 who have experienced a significant loss due to death within the past 24 months.

There will be opening and closing circles, an adventure challenge rope course, five specialized age-appropriate grief sessions and a picnic on Sunday afternoon for campers and their parents.

"The rope course is designed as a group exercise, trust exercise and an individual challenge," said Kathy Dattolo, CHHCS director of social work. "It's meant to help build confidence, trust and self-esteem."

There also will be a specialized memorial service on Saturday evening, led by CHHCS bereavement director Michael Meyer. He also will play the guitar and lead the campers in singing around a campfire following the service.

"The children also will create a journal and write their own story," said Dattolo. "There also will be a unity puzzle with every child getting a puzzle piece. They're all well-mapped and tried-out activities."

But the Camp Phoenix experience won't end when the children leave on Sunday afternoon. There will be a Christmas reunion, an evening of food and fun, and a chance to share stories and celebrate life, Dattolo

"We know we're doing the right thing for children," she said. "And thanks to Henry Ford, we will have children from all over the place,"

It was CHHCS's Butrico who approached her counterpart at Hospices of Henry Ford, Sondra Seely, about sharing resources to benefit the children. The two women are members of the board of the Hospice Coalition of Michigan.

By sharing resources, the camp experienced a doubling in the number of campers, financial commitment, staff and volunteers. With a grant from the Women's Committee for Hospice Care and donations from businesses like Kmart and Meijer and groups like the Alpha Delta national women's sorority, the hospices have been able to purchase better supplies and equipment for the camp.

The husband of the president of the local sorority chapter was a CHHCS patient which led to the organization's commitment

Pioneer spirit turns up at Greenmead

It was 150 years ago that pioneers of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints made their way into Salt Lake Valley in Utah.

To celebrate the anniversary members of the Livonia Ward ioined with congregations around the world in contributing a day of service to their local communities.

Sixty-five ward members donated almost 200 community hours at the Greenmead Historical Village on July 19.

"It was expected that some 23,000 congregations would contribute a minimum of 150 hours each of local community service," said Livonia Ward activities chairperson Gina Thorderson of the Worldwide Pioneer Heritage Day of Service.

"This is equivalent to more than 3.5 million hours or 400 man-years of community service."

"Our goal for the service day was 50 volunteers to work for 3 hours, and we exceeded it with 65 volunteers," added Michael Kosla, bishop of the Livonia Ward. "I was really pleased with the group of volunteers who came out to work and celebrate."

Volunteers did some weeding and gardening and joined in to paint a barn at the historical vil-

"It isn't typical for work and fun to be used in the same sentence but our work project really was a lot of fun," Thorderson said. "I think a great bonding takes place when people work together, and we certainly experienced that this week."

Greenmead coordinator Marian Renaud was "impressed" by the church members' effort.

"We were pleased with the work they accomplished and the enthusiastic way they did it in," she said. "It was good to see people come together and work like family."

According to Trish Michalek, director of public affairs for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, service day activities in the metropolitan Detroit area ranged from beautification projects like the work at Greenmead to Special Olympics.

"We are amazed at the magnitude of the projects that were planned and the dedication of those who participated," said Michalek. "What a wonderful tribute to those who laid the groundwork of our faith."

Congregation members from East Shores helped 300 mentally challenged children in a Special Olympics, sponsored by the United States Army Tank Com-

The Walled Lake and Farmington Hills congregations joined forces to beautify stretches of Pontiac Trail, while church members in the Troy area packed picnic lunches and spent the day at the Troy Historical and repaired buildings and made costumes used by workers in the museum.

the first church members into a an arduous journey from the Midwest. Thousands followed.

Today, Salt Lake City remains the world headquarters of the nearly 10 million-member faith.

"The pioneers fled Nauvoo, Ill., Museum, where they painted because they were seeking religious freedom," said Thorderson, who as a former missionary for It was 150 years ago this Historic Temple Square in Salt that same kind of effort." month that Brigham Young led Lake City. "They didn't have desolate mountain valley after made most of these pioneers walk more than 1,300 miles pushing and pulling handcarts with only their most basic possessions.

"Ultimately some 70,000 pioneers started a new life in the Great Salt Lake Valley. They had to learn to work hard and I think it's only appropriate that the church, conducted tours at we celebrated their success with

Temple Baptist reaches out with music, seminars

Wayne Kurtycz quickly tells you that Temple Baptist Church's vision is to be a center for Christian discovery and development. Its purpose, he adds, is to lead people to a life of faith in Christ and then to a life of full devotion to Christ.

His office is tiny in comparison to the 2,158-seat auditorium where pastor Brad Powell conducts services, but it is from that small room that he helps the church reach out to young people through concerts.

A Christian since 1969, Kurtyci is the outreach events/singles pastor at the Plymouth Township church. As such, he helps bring some of the brightest stars in contemporary Christian music to the church, long known for its musical presentations and lineup of notable guest speakers.

One of the things I love about my Christian life is the people and the music I'm involved with," Kurtycz said. "This church has 30 years of experience with Christian artists and speakers, and my desire is to do my very best and bring the top musicians in Christendom to Temple Baptist ... And I get to bring them to such an awesome church.'

At one time located on West Chicago east of Telegraph Road in Redford, Temple Baptist opened the doors to its new church on North Territorial west of Ridge Road in March.

The church didn't have its annual Easter musical drama because of the move, but instead welcomed some 2,000 people to hear the music of mega Christian singer Sandy Patti.

"It was great," said Kurtycz who has put the finishing touches on a fall lineup that includes four concerts and three seminars along with the annual Christmas drama, "Glory of ChristBusy fall lineup

The schedule kicks off when

Rich Mullins and Band, with special guests This Train and introducing Mitch McVicker, take to Temple Baptist's stage for a 7:30 p.m. concert Friday, Aug. 15. Tickets are $12.75 in advance and $14.75 at the door.

More into folk than rock, Mullins has written such songs as "Awesome God," "Step By Step" and Amy Grant's first mega hit, "Give Your Praise to the Lord."

On Sept. 19, Phillips, Craig and Dean and the father-son duo of Aaron Geoffrey take center stage for a 7:30 p.m. concert, followed the "incredible" vocals of Susan Ashton at 6 p.m. Sept. 27.

On Oct. 10, Temple Baptist welcomes The Big Voice Tour, so named for its three artists who are popular vocalists - Crystal Lewis, Brian Duncan and

Also in October is a leadership seminar (8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 2) with George Barna who will help to church leaders understand values and how to respond to changing environments.

"His thing is helping churches in marketing and statistic," Kurtycz said. "He's done tons of research on Disney, VISA and Billy Graham's organization."

Florence Whitnauer, wellknown Christian author, will lead a conference for women, "Women of Virtue," 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25, and well-known author and popular speaker on "Focus on Families" Gary Smalley will come to Temple for a twoday seminar in November.

Smalley, who has been a guest on such TV talk shows as "Oprah" and "Sally Jesse Raphael," will lead his "Love Is a Decision" seminar 6-10:30 p.m. Nov. 7 and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov.

Gifford and Kathy Lee and has built hundreds of thousands of relationship around the world," said Kurtycz.

For kids and families

Sandwiched in the busy schedule is a visit by singer-storyteller Mary Rice-Hopkins, who will present a program for children 6-7 p.m. Oct. 11, followed by Fall Fling, a time of games and fun for children on Oct. 18.

The church will present popular Christmas musical on eight different days, beginning Dec. 6. The presentation will feature a new stage production and new sets. "Seating will be "very intimate" for the production, according to Kurtycz, who anticipates attendance topping 25,000 for this year's production.

If that's not enough, plans are already being firmed up for next year. Headliners include Petra Praise on Jan. 9, Phil Keaggy,

"He's a counselor for Frank Wes King and Scott Dent on Jan. 30, Audio Adrenaline on-Feb. 13, Michael Card on Feb. 20, Clay Crosse and Jaci Valesquez on March 13 and Steve Green on May 29, with Dr. John Maxwell highlighting a May 14-15 leadership confer-

> "The music ministry has been in full blown for about the last six years," said Kurtycz of the concerts. "Temple has been using contemporary artists to reach out to young people and our youth and single ministries are growing as a result.

> "Church doesn't have to be boring. We're about people and helping them reach their purpose."

> More information about the upcoming programs at Temple Baptist is available by calling the church at (313) 414-7777. Concert tickets can be ordered by calling 1-800-585-3737.

Collegiate champs: Mike Enberg of Farmington (third from left) and his Brown University teammates celebrate a national championship in four-man crew.

Meteoric rise

Farmington rower reaches pinnacle

By Dan O'Meara STAFF WRITER

When Mike Enberg took up the sport of rowing, he "finally found something" at which he "could excel."

There's no doubt the 21-year-old Farmington resident has certainly found his athletic niche.

Enberg achieved the pinnacle of collegiate competition in May when he and his Brown University teammates won the national championship in fourman crew.

A distance swimmer at Farmington High School, Enberg began rowing three years ago when a fellow student suggested he try it as a Colgate University freshman.

"It was more an activity than a sport there," he said. "It wasn't competitive enough for me to be satisfied with it.

"I asked 'Who has the best college program? Brown!' So I transferred there."

Enberg has enjoyed a meteoric rise in the sport at an Ivy League school that has won three national titles in the last

"I felt I would be pushed there," he said. "I wanted to see how far I could go in the sport. A lot of good rowers come out of Brown. It's a great feeder into the national program.'

The 6-foot-3 Brown, who has added 30 pounds since high school and weighs 215, found he fit the prototypical mold

"Most are tall and lanky; the average size is 6-3 and 200," he said. "I didn't have the level of coordination to play soccer or basketball. Crew is a good sport if you're still very competitive.

"Crew fit my body type; crew is something I was made for. Swimming is an upper body sport. In crew, a large part of your power comes from the legs. That's where I've put on the most weight - in the legs - because I hadn't used them.'

In the four-man category, Enberg and three others power a narrow boat measuring 14 inches wide by 35 feet long, but there's also competition in eight-man varsity, eight-man JV and four-man with a coxswain.

Most people are familiar with rowing as an Olympic sport they've seen on TV. Watching the boats glide through the water in an almost graceful manner, someone might think it's not as challenging as it really is.

"It also needs to be said those are the best people in the world and, to be good, you have to have perfect timing (among team members)," Enberg said.

"All your body weights have to moving at the same time. And, yes, it hurts. If anyone doesn't think so, they should come out and practice with us."

Over the last 600 meters of a 2,000meter race, a rower begins to lose feeling in his limbs as the body reaches a point of exhaustion, according to

"You pray you've done the motion so often you can just do it," he said. "The body goes on auto pilot. If you keep your mind at the point in a race when people lose their concentration and get out of sync with each other, you'll be successful."

The difference between winning and finishing second or third is often a matter of only a few seconds, which makes training and coaching critical to suc-

"To win a championship, you need a coach who can teach the technique of rowing," Enberg said. "When it gets down to it, it's the nit-picky stuff. It's game of inches. The crew has to move together, so it's synergy.

"And you have to have motivated athletes. Athletes tend to get frustrated, feel they want to quit, when they're tired. But the ones who keep themselves focused and motivated to train are the ones who are successful."

Enberg, who rows and trains 50 weeks a year, credits his high school swim coach, Ross Bandy, for helping him to develop the competitiveness and commitment that has served him well in rowing.

"He taught us to be competitive, and he taught me a great deal about work ethic," he said, adding that's why he wasn't content at Colgate. "I was used to winning or trying hard to be on the right track to win."

Buick rough experience for Grebeck

GOLF

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

Randy Grebeck's first Buick was a

Grebeck, the assistant pro at Western Golf and Country Club in Redford Township, turned in two of his worst rounds in recent memory at the Buick Open last Thursday and Friday in Grand Blanc.

Just like you get a car once in a great while that isn't up to standards, the same can be said about Grebeck's performance. Grebeck failed to make the cut at Warwick Hills, recording a twoday total of 177 (89-88).

But Grebeck, who grew up in Livonia and attended Bentley and Churchill high schools, wouldn't trade the experience for a record low round somewhere

Grebeck was gracious and classy afterward, happy just to walk the same fairways as some of golf's greatest

The best Buick Open field in years was highlighted by the appearance of 21-year-old phenom Tiger Woods.

"I just lacked confidence in my golf swing, you either got it or you don't, that's the bottom line. Golf is a brutal game," said Grebeck, a Ferris State graduate. "I played with a great couple of guys (Jack O'Keefe and Bradley Hughes), both fine players. I never played in a tour event and this is overwhelming to say the least.

"Whatever happens, I'll be the same man to my family when I get home. I beat a lot of guys to get here and I've got fond memories. I'm just blessed to be here and look forward to making it again next year."

Grebeck, 28, earned an invitation to play after taking second place at last month's Michigan PGA Qualifier at The Fortress up north. He recorded a 70 to finish in a tie for second behind Tom Gieselman of Rochester HIA3, then beat Kevin Muir in a playoff to earn the Buick Open invite.

Gieselman also missed the Butck Open cut, finishing with a two-day total of 149 (74-75).

That leader Ernie Els was 13-under par through two rounds was remarkable, according to Grebeck.

"To me it's a hard course," Grebeck said. "It's long for me, having to hit a 2, 3, 4 iron almost every hole. My putting was fine - you're putting on big humps here pal."

Grebeck didn't formally meet Woods although they hit golf balls the same time in practice on the driving range. Their tee times each day were about four hours apart. "I teed off early the first day and he teed off late, and vice versa on Friday, so we were always opposite each other," Grebeck said. "Where he goes, the crowd goes, which is kind of nice (for the rest of the golfers)." Except for one member of the gallery that wanted to remind Grebeck of his sub-standard golf, the Redford resident said the fans were gracious for the most part. One hole Grebeck did everything but throw the ball to the gallery in appreciation of their cheering. "I gave them a big bow, nodded my head, it was fun," Grebeck said. Grebeck suffered through a quadruple bogey on the par 4 401-yard No. 4 on Thursday after his tee shot landed out of bounds and second shot landed in the bunker. He had 12 bogeys, six double bogeys and two triple bogeys, leading to his misfortune over two days: He had one birdie and 14 pars.

Bad luck played a role in one of his triple bogeys on Thursday that came on the first day on the par 3, 197-yard

17th hole. "The ball hit the cart path, rolled" uphill, then hit a tree - a guy there said he hadn't seen that in 10 years,"

Grebeck said. "Today I made par there, hit the pin on the fly." Grebeck's caddy was long-time friend Ed Utley, a golf instructor at the Golf Academy near Atlanta, Ga. Grebeck was open to any tips he had. "Nobody could help me this week, but he's good," Grebeck said.

Next up for Grebeck is the Michigan PGA, held Aug. 20-24 at Boyne Golf Club, but he is more interested in keeping the members of his club and his employers happy.

"The guys on the Tour do this for a living," Grebeck said. "My goal is to be a head pro someday and this is a sidebar for me."

Ocelots add reinforcements

BY C.J. RISAK

Nothin' quite like the week prior to the start of pre-season practice.

How can a coach, in whatever sport, be anything but positive?

For Van Dimitriou, coach of Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team for more than a dozen years, such optimism is what keeps him going. It's part of the job; it's expected.

If there was a time for his perpetually positive outlook to be challenged, wouldn't this be it? After all, his team is coming off a disappointing 9-7-3 1996 season; for one of the few times in Dimitriou's tenure, the Ocelots did not win the NJCAA Region 12 title, and they did not advance to the Inter-Regional Tour-

I suppose the obvious reply to the aforementioned question is affirmative. The rest of the answer is, Dimitriou is ready to answer the chal-

He believes he has recruited one of his most talented freshmen classes ever. The difference this year is, a large portion of this group of freshmen may not get a whole lot of playing time.

Or to put it in proper perspective, they'll have to earn what playing time they get.

COLLEGE SOCCER

That's because Dimitrion has 10 players from his '96 squad returning, including eight starters and a ninth who was pencilled in as a starter before cracking his collarbone prior to the season and sitting out the entire campaign.

"That's a great number (of returnees)," the SC coach said. "It's just a matter of putting the pieces together again, but I like our chances a whole lot better than I did a year ago at this time."

So how good are his newcomers? Good enough to push at least some of the eight returning starters for playing time: "Six or seven (freshmen) will be in and out, either starting or as ton subs," said Dimitriou.

OK - the next question seems both logical and obvious: How good are the returning starters?

The answer: Good enough to earn SC a No. 12 ranking in the NJCAA pre-season poll.

"The talent is there," insisted Dimitriou. "It's just a matter of learning to play together."

Of the returning starters, several are noteworthy: Billy Krips (from Brighton), the team's most valuable: player last year at stopper; Chris Jaskolski (Plymouth Salem), voted the team's best defender as a marking back; Pete Lechowicz (Livonia Stevenson) at midfield: Garrett Maki (Dearborn Crestwood) at forward; Travis Miller (Redford Catholic Central) at goalkeeper; Matt Keller (Rochester) at midfield; and David York (Novi) at forward/midfield.

Kevin Fritz (Brighton), a midfielder who earned a starting spot by the end of the '96 season, also returns. So does Shaun Pratt (Sterling Heights), the starting sweeper who broke his collarbone last pre-season.

Of the newcomers, Dimitriou figures those who will see plenty of action are keeper Eric O'Neil, midfielder/forward Jim Bullock, midfielder/defender Paul Tokarsky, and midfielder/forward Bart Mays, all of whom helped guide Stevenson to the Class A state championship last year.

Dimitriou called Tokarsky, Bullock and Mays versatile players with excellent skills, while O'Neil should pose an immediate challenge to the returning starting keeper, Miller, who was solid in goal in '96.

A player who should bolster SC's offense, which sputtered at times last season, is forward Ryan Konley (Plymouth Salem). "He has a terrific shot and a nose for the ball," said coach

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Ex-Tiger Collins named new varsity coach at Mercy

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

Dave Collins got around when he played major league baseball. But it's nothing to what he's doing as a high school coach.

Farmington Hills Mercy Athletic Director Nancy Malinowski announced the hiring of Collins to succeed highly successful Larry Baker as coach of the Marlins' basketball team.

Collins, 46, will coach the Mercy girls basketball team in the fall and then change over to the Lake Orion boys basketball team in the winter. He also coaches the Lake Orion baseball team in the spring.

He has coached at Lake Orion the last three seasons.

He is still remembered in these parts as a speedster who played one season with the Detroit Tigers in a 15-year major league career that reads like an ad for a travel agency.

Collins played for the California Angels, Seattle Mariners. Cincinnati twice, New York Yankees, Toronto and Oakland.

"As soon as I saw him," Malinowski said, "I said, 'I remember you."

He loved to run as a player and clearly he's still a man on Collins got into coaching basketball while he was still a baseball player at the major league level. Hey, it was something to do in the winter and it gave a winter-time outlet to his competitive fires.

He first started coaching high school basketball in 1975, the year he broke in as a rookie with' the California (now Anaheim) Angels. It was with Anaheim High School.

Collins has coached at four different public schools plus a correctional facility.

His Lake Orion teams have won 38 games in his three sea-

"I was an All-State player in high school," Collins said. "I had several scholarship offers. But I knew that basketball wasn't going to be my ticket.

"I knew baseball was going to be my best opportunity to play HIGH SCHOOL ball down the road. So that's what I decided to do."

Collins the player compiled a 273 lifetime batting average in 1,602 games. He led the league in two categories — hitting 15 triples in 1984 with Toronto and pinch-hitting 64 times for Cincinnati in 1978.

He was blessed with exceptional speed and stole 388 bases during his career, with a high of 79 in 1980 and 60 in 1984.

During his season with Detroit, 1986, Collins batted .270, stole 27 bases, hit one home run and drove in 27 runs.

Coaching girls basketball isn't something Collins had put on his agenda. But a good friend of his, Bill Norton, put a bug in Collins' ear - and pretty soon the bug burrowed deep in his brain.

Norton didn't just fall out of the apple tree, either. He won a state championship with Birmingham Brother Rice's boys team, took a sojourn to Michigan State as an assistant and now is back helping out at Brother Rice.

"I first heard about (the Mercy job) from the newspaper," Collins said. "I didn't think that much about it until I got to talking to Bill Norton.

"I casually brought it up. He started to talk to me about the program over there. He knows Larry (Baker). He talked about him and the great job he's done.

"Bill told me about the league. I was interested enough after that conversation to call over and inquire about the job. The more I found about it, the more interested I became,

"I met with Nancy. And the more we talked, the more impressed I was with them."

Must have been mutual. Mercy, under a bit of a deadline because the girls team starts working out soon, took about as long to hire Collins as Collins used to take going from first to second with a loopy right-hander

"I think he sounds like the person we wanted," Malinowski said. "We were looking for somebody to come in and fill some very big shoes, those worn by Larry Baker

"He's real positive. He's real dedicated to doing what we're looking for.

"He's got experience. We were looking for somebody with varsity experience. He wants to be there to coach the kids, to give to the kids. To help them become what they want to become."

Collins won't be taking over a program that's in tatters.

Baker was 381-143 in 22 seasons. He turned a down season two years ago into a 13-10 campaign that featured seven straight victories last fall. And his 19th MHSAA District title.

If that puts a little pressure on Collins, well, he certainly knows something about that. You don't last 15 years in the majors without being able to deflect pres-

Something that will be new to Collins is coaching girls. That will be the second adjustment he's had to make since deciding to make coaching his second life.

"I've never coached girls before," he said. "When I was thinking about pursuing the job, I talked to several people.

"I talked to girls coaches and people who've seen me coach. After talking to them, I felt like this was something I wanted to "Any time you're coaching boys and girls, you learn to treat people the way you want to be treat-

"I've seen some girls high school basketball. They're just as competitive as boys. They're just as determined.

"I was impressed. I'm not that concerned about it as far as coaching girls."

The first big adjustment Collins had to make was that coaching kids and being a professional athlete required two different intensity levles.

It took a season or three for Collins to ratchet his intense, hard-driving style down to a degree that would not intimidate high school student-athletes.

He has done that.

"One of the biggest adjustments I had in coaching high school kids," he said, "was learning they don't have the desire, determination and dedication that I have to sports.

"There's a fine line. As a coach, you've got to realize that all kids don't play for the same reasons that you may have played.

"I've changed my coaching philosophy over the years. Now I have three goals.

"One, to develop character kids. Two, to help those kids to become better students. And three, to teach them the team concept.

"Those are the things I strive to teach them in my program. It's a good message. And they can take that with them when they get out of high school."

That's Dave Collins, though. He came straight at you as a player and he doesn't attack from behind trees as a coach.

"I liked his honesty," Malinowski said. "I liked his reponses when I asked him questions about situations. He was really up front, honest. I admired that. "He said a lot of good positive things. I want somebody who is going to be positive with the kids.

"He's probably a disciplinarian, We're excited. We'll see what happens."

The Mercy program seems to be in good hands. There may be a transition period, though, because every coach has their own way of doing things.

If that requires a style change for Mercy basketball, there will be a period of adjustment. But hard work and hard play can overcome a lot of obstacles.

"It takes a little while to get your own program in," Collins said. "The year after this, my kids coming up from sixth grade (in Lake Orion) will be coming up as freshmen. My program will be coming through.

"Larry's done a tremendous job over there with the program. Going into a situation like that, to me, is a lot easier.

"The program is already at a pretty good level. My job is to try to get, well, there's a saying I use to my kids at Lake Orion, 'If better is possible, why settle for good?

"I think I'm going into a situation where the foundation is already there. They have a strong, rich tradition with basketball. I'm going in and try to take it to another level."

"If it-all comes about," Malinowski said, "I'll be very happy."

The Marlins better lay in a supply of basketball shoes for the fall. It's safe to assume they'll be going through at least one pair each.

His girls will discover the same thing the boys at Lake Orion have — that Collins is in it for the right reasons.

"I love kids," he said. "I feel like what I've done in sports, the best way to give back is to give back my experience. I try to teach the qualities that I think are important to young kids.

"I'm helping 16-, 17- and 18year-old kids become successful in their life. That's a really rewarding thing."

Bigger than wins and losses in the long run.

Rowing is also an excellent low-impact, aerobic activity, requiring much more than just strong arms.

"The boats have sliding seats, so when you go up to put the oars in the water, your legs are compressed. Then you drive the legs back," Enberg said.

"You lift with your back, and the arms finish it. You finish off with the weakest of the three muscle groups. The legs generate the majority of the power. It's definitely a full-body sport.

"Rowing combines the endurance of a runner with the strength you need for football, and you try to find a happy median," he added.

At the collegiate championships in Camden, N.J. men's crew is not sanctioned by the NCAA, but schools abide by NCAA rules -Enberg's team won the sixminute race by the huge margin of eight seconds over its nearest competitor.

"The month before we had a lot of intense practices, so we had our timing together," Enberg said. "We got out ahead of the field early and kept pounding on it. It was nice to know we were up on some of the better crews in the country.

"Going into the stretch I wasn't feeling well (from the strain), but I just focused on the fact we were ahead. Eight seconds is a very significant difference in rowing. A lot of races are decided by one, two or three seconds.

"We couldn't stop smiling for an hour. The last 600 to 700 meters is when you start burning sugar and losing the feeling in your limbs. But you to start taking steps."

Mike Enberg Brown University rower know you're winning, so the mind overcomes the body."

Enberg, a psychology major who rows in the summer months for the Wyandotte Boat Club, will start a new season at Brown in another month.

The fall season runs from September to late November. Enberg will work on weights and conditioning until February, because rowing isn't allowed during the winter in fairness to the cold-weather schools. The spring races start again in April.

"I have one more year of school. I'll look to improve my technique, get stronger and, hopefully, next year be able to make one of those (under-23 national team) boats," Enberg

Ideally, he would like to be on the U.S. Olympic team one

"That's the dream, but a lot of steps need to be taken before that," he said. "I have to improve my self at Brown and make a national team. The path is clear; I just need

Others to watch are Jeff Cullen (Haslett), a Class B allstater who will vie for playing time at midfield or forward, and two older players: midfielders Paul Graves (Milford) and Todd Vilanueva (Walled Lake Central), both 21 years old.

Vilanueva is no certainty. He was taking six credit hours during the summer session to qualify to play. "I tried to get this kid three years ago," said Dimitriou. "He would be a great addition. He has great leadership ability."

There are others who could break into the rotation, like stopper Mike Longlois (South Lyon); midfielder/forward Ruslan Blaiei (Southfield), a native of the Ukraine; forward Mike Stempien (Lakeland), who scored 13 goals as a senior; midfielder Kevin Graham (Redford CC), who didn't play in high school but shows plenty of promise; defender Andrew Stevens (Redford Thurston); midfielder/forward Blair Schmidt (Redford CC): keeper Mike Ferraro (Thurston); and three or four more.

The Ocelots won't have to wait long to prove themselves. Following their pre-season scrimmage Aug. 23 at Valparaiso (Ind.)University.

They'll officially open their season at the Springfield (Ill.) Tournament against the host team on Aug. 30.

The following day, they play Forest Park (from St. Louis); both teams finished among the top eight at the NJCAA last sea-

Golf pro Bolo to be honored al at Western Golf and Country Club in Redford Township since 1960, will be honored by club members, fellow pros and friends with a retirement party Saturday night, Sept. 13.

The party, held at Western, will be a community-wide celebration and is open to the general public. Western is at 14600 Kinloch, between Schoolcraft and Five Mile roads.

Bolo, who set the Western club scoring record with a 64 set in 1968, has one PGA Tour victory to his credit - the Del Rio (Texas) Open in 1965. He also has won the Michigan PGA Senior Championship four times (1988, '94, '95 and '96), earning the title of Michigan PGA Senior Player of the Year three times.

Bolo shot a round of 65 in 1977 at the fabled St. Andrews, playing in the International Four-Ball Pro-Am Invitational with three Western members. In 1983. Bolo's team captured the Pebble Beach Pro-Am title with a team of Ted Marsh, Greg Migliore and Al Rice. He also played with this select team in

Ray Bolo, the head profession- two Scottish tournaments and a Pro-Am event in Cannes, France. To cap off his Scotland trip in 1983, Bolo won the Senior Pro Division title at Gleneagles during the International Four-Ball Tournament.

"Ray Bolo has been a tremendous asset to Western Golf and Country Club and to Michigan during his career," said Dave Baughman, chairmand of the Retirement Committee and past president of the club. "And the Board of Directors want to honor Ray's contributions with this special day.'

Bolo and his wife, Marcia, have raised four daughters: Marcia Alyce, Deborah, Bonnie Rae and Andrea. Andrea, the youngest, enoyed a distinguished golfing career, winning the Michigan District Medal Tournament at Pinehurst with Tanya Manfert, qualifying for the U.S. Women's Amateur. She currently plays on the Belgium International Golf team.

University chancellor will speak at fall forum

The chancellor of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, James Renick, will speak on the role of higher education and its effect on regional economc development at a legislative forum next month monsored by the Southern Wayne County Chamher of Commerce in Southgate.

Since Renick was appointed chancellor at UM-Dearborn in 1993, the campus has been on a growth track. Enrollment is at an all-time high, three major state-funded buildings will be on line this year, and private support has increased to record levels.

"The most satisfying part of the job for me has been the opportunity to see the growing interactions between our campus and the people and communities we serve," Renick said. "High quality educational opportunities are critically important to the long-term economic vitality of the region, and UM-Dearborn has a significant role to play."

The Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce legislative forum series is a way to increase awareness of significant regional issues among the business community, according to Edward Clemente, vice president of economic development at the chamber.

"UM-Dearborn has been a genuine partner with businesses and public agencies in this area on a number of significant initiatives," said Clemente. "Business people in southern Wayne County will benefit from learning more about the campus and its commitment to this region."

The program will be held Sept. 22 at the Crystal Gardens restaurant, 16703 Fort St., in Southgate. Lunch begins at 11:30 a.m., followed by Renick's speech at noon.

To confirm reservations, which cost $10 including lunch, contact the chamber office at (313) 284-

Hang on to your modem, we're putting your 1987 Chevy on the World Wide Web.

So you don't have a 1987 Chevy. How about your car, or bike, or the stuff that's been hanging out in the attic for more years than you'd care to admit? We'll put whatever you've found on the internet in a hot new spot called "AD VILLAGE"—the first place where you can place an ad on the World Wide Web where it'll be seen by not hundreds, or thousands, but millions of people! If you're thinking: "This is going to cost a bundle," think again. It's reasonable. Economical. Affordable. Cheap.

And believe us when we say that getting this done is a heckuva lot easier than cleaning the attic.

All you do is call:

1-800-579-SELL

Or e-mail your ad to welcome@advillage.com Or FAX your ad to 313-953-2232. It's your call.

COMBINING TEXTURES

Even though the colors in an interior scheme, may be artfully combined; the space will appear dull if there is not enough surface contrast. When textures are combined properly, it tends a sense of interest and excitement. To do so, it is important to stay within the same families of styles and types of textures when coordinating textures together, use formal textures with other formal textures. If a casual-looking fabric or textured treatment is being called into play, use other casual elements and accessories in the same room or space. Avoid mixing one extreme style of texture with another. At the same time, it pays to play up the subtle contrasts, between hard and soft, as well as smooth and rough.

This week's column provides helpful tips on how to successfully combine textures. SCOTT SHUPTRINE is committed to creating beautiful interiors that reflect the personal tastes of each customer. Our interior designers combine academic study, on the job experience, and creativity. Founded in 1927, we are proud to be one of Michigan's most prestigious fine furniture chains offering a wide selection of furniture. Visit us at 977 E. 14 Mile Rd., Troy, (248-616-3585) or 43606 W. NAOMI STONE

You have selected all of the furnishings that should make for a lovely interior, but for some inexplicable reason it falls flat. What to do?

There are several options. My favorite way to go is the addition of plant material. But this must have style. Just some vines or a sansevieria (sword-shaped leaves) mixed together and placed tastelessly in pots won't make an impression.

Flower pots exist in a number of materials. Gather together varying sizes and styles of cement pots. These are both decorative and strong. Some designs are leaf-like. Some are architec-

Perhaps you will like all of the pots in one design. They become more effective when repeated, either in size or height.

Another material that has charisma as a flower pot is in basket form. Baskets, with or without handles, tall or short, natural wicker or stained, painted or decorated, all elicit their own atmosphere.

Clay pots are conducive to less formality. They evoke the natural look that we associate with plants. Florists don't give them consideration. They are just there Plastic or fiberglass pots are available in many colors, as well as black or white. These also are unlimited and exceptional in varied sizes.

You have the option of using arrangements in a foyer or living room. If used in a corner it is impressive if the tallest pot sets into the niche and the surrounding ones step down in size.

What is planted within this group also should be graduated in size and leaf structure. It is judicious to have the lowest growing varieties placed in the front. (See illustration.)

Consult a plant station for suggestions. There is always an attendant who knows more than I do. If I'm not comfortable with his or her ideas I talk to someone else. Take with you the measures of your wall or corner. Scale is so very important to ultimate success.

A very, very large Jade tree can be a focal point. It calls for the most simple pot because the tree itself has so much detail. Group your plants and pots together at the plant station to judge their effectiveness before you take it all home.

You are about to make a major investment. It doesn't have to be completed in one swoop. It would be prudent to have the finished project firmly set in your "mind's eye," to be acquired a little at a time. Is your display satisfactory?

Homeless animals day is set

In an effort to increase awareness of the plight of homeless animals, the Michigan Humane Society is asking for canned pet food donations in recognition of "National Homeless Animals Day" on Saturday, Aug. 16.

"Homeless Animals Day" was created to commemorate the approximately 15 million dogs and cats, puppies and kittens that are euthanized each year in our nation's shelters. "Pet overpopulation is an enormous problem. The majority of animals we take in are healthy, good natured pets that are put to death simply because there are not enough homes available," says Michele Mitchell, MHS Community Relations Director. "Responsible pet ownership includes steilizing your pet."

Those wishing to donate canned pet food in support of "Homeless Animals Day" can visit any of the three MHS shelters – 7401 Chrysler Drive in Detroit, 3600 Auburn Road in Rochester Hills and 37255 Marquette in Westland. Everyone who donates will receive an "I Helped a Homeless Animal" sticker.

Besides spaying or neutering your pet, other ways you can help homeless animals include:

- Adopt an animal from the Michigan Humane Society or your local shelter
- Make sure your pets wear proper identification at all times.
- Do not adopt a pet unless you are willing to make a lifetime commitment.

All food donated will help feed the more than 52,000 homeless, abandoned and injured animals cared for each year by the MHS.

Open look: Downtown home full of space

By MARY KLEMIC At Home Editor You might not think that a downtown residence would have the advantage of wide open spaces, But space is one of the reasons Roy Johnston and Laura Henderson are happy with living in a three-story, Commercial Italianate building in the heart of downtown Ypsilanti. The residence is one of six from the 19th and early 20th centuries on the listoric Home Tour of the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation, taking place noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 17.

The tour, an event of the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival, is marking its 20th anniversary this year. A special preservation-related slide presentation will be featured.

Johnston and Henderson bought the property in 1995, a year after Johnston was named head of the art department at Eastern Michigan University. They describe it as a 25-year-old apartment in a 125-year-old house. The main floor houses retail space, the basement Johnston's studio and workshop. The couple live on the upper stories.

They had considered buying a farm, with a barn where Johnston could work on his art. But the downtown structure attracted them.

"I like the open planned space," said Johnston, who can walk to EMU from the house.

"The wide open space, the high ceilings," Henderson said when asked what she liked about the place.

Henderson, who was an antique dealer in Hong Kong and San Francisco, has accumulated a variety of beautiful and fascinating antiques, many of them Oriental. The antiques and energetic paintings by Johnston are displayed to exquisite effect.

Johnston and Henderson removed the khaki paper that covered a wall extending from the second to third level, and painted the wall a brighter, cream color. Other renovations they did included other painting, putting new wallpaper in the kitchen and half-bath and restoring the maple floor in the foyer.

Rooms with views

Among the rooms on the second floor is a cozy sitting or TV room with a fireplace. Shutters that were on the front of the building now enclose a laundry room. A staircase winds upward through a large rectangular area cut by previous owners.

The third floor opens like a flower and contains the living room, dining room, kitchen, deck and half-bath. A skylight is in the center. The berber carpet, resembling sisal, running across the third level and on the stairs is in a cream color similar to the walls.

The living room is over the front of the building. Shades on the tall windows have gold lining, which gives a glow to the room. Ivy, ficus and rubber plants are graceful floral counterparts to the furnishings and accessories. One of the walls is brick.

"The living room lends itself very well to entertaining," Henderson said. "You can have a large group of people... and it doesn't feel crowded."

On the other side of the staircase is the dining room. An elegant chandelier hangs over the rectangular table, and a red Oriental screen stands near one wall. Two different types of chests, one from China and one from Japan, are in this room. Sashes called obis sometimes serve as runners on table-

> The half-bath features lacquer red wallpaper, and a corner cupboard that holds Oriental dolls.

> The kitchen, which leads to the deck, has brick walls on three sides. Wallpaper on one area bears a pattern of colorful fruit. The tall cupboards are back lit, and their surface matches that of the hood over the stove.

On the deck over the back of the building, petunias, marigolds, impatiens and other flowers are in planters lining the walls and pots on the floor. A pot of sunflowers adds a touch of Provence to the table. Herbs are also raised here.

"When you're out here and you see the church steeples and swallows and nighthawks you could be anywhere in the world," Henderson said.

The structure was built in 1870. A pharmacy and a milliner's shop were early occupants, followed by the Grinnell Brothers music store from 1908 to the early 1970s.

The building was vacant for several years, then used as office and counseling quarters for government social services before subsequent owners made residences out of the upper floors and ran businesses on the first

Proceeds from the Historic Home Tour support an annual scholarship, the Historic Structure Marker Awards, and educational programs related to preservation. Some of the proceeds this year will go to the ceiling mural restoration project at the landmark Hutchinson House.

Advance tickets for the tour are $7 for adults, $6 for seniors and $4 for children under 12, and available at Saxton's Garden Center in Plymouth and businesses in Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

After Thursday, tickets are full price ($8 for adults, $7 for seniors and $5 for children under 12) and available only during the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival, at ticket booths in Riverside Park and in front of the Ypsilanti Historical Museum at 220 N. Huron. Call (313) 482-8666 for information.

Invest time in teaching kids value of saving

As parents, we a dollar. The children strategize how to want the best for spend it. our children. Our

There is a family-friendly solution to our dilemma. It begins with the formation of a family investment group.

If the word investment is too formidable for your children, try calling if the family cash club or the family fun fund. The name may change but the purpose remains the same: to save money rather than spend it.

Janet Bodnar, author of "Kiplinger's Money Smart Kids" (Kiplinger Books, Washington, D.C.), said that by the age of 11 or 12, about 10 percent of children advance from savings accounts to stocks and mutual funds.

"Buying your children shares in a company is the best way to get them started in the market," Bodnar said.

The problem many parents face is getting started in what appears to be a very gray area of understanding. How do you explain the stock market or charting a stock to your children when you don't understand it yourself?

Begin with a trip to your local library or bookstore, or consult on-line databases. For a basic understanding of the stock market, as well as other investment alternatives, check out some of the following resources:

 National Association of Investors Corp. - Provides basic information on investing as well as how to start an investment club. For free information on this resource, call (248) 583-6242.

 Value Line Investment Survey -Provides overviews of approximately 2,000 individual companies, including historical price information and earnings and dividends. Value Line also rates each stock. Check your local library for availability or call (800) 833-0046 to subscribe.

- On-line databases Resources such as America On Line's Personal Finance enables subscribers to monitor their own portfolios through features such as Ouote Track!

Creating a family investment group is a great way to spend quality time together while teaching your children that saving has tremendous rewards. After doing your initial research, set aside a few hours on a given evening for the whole family to meet and discuss what each of you will invest and where you will invest it.

Perhaps you wish to start your children off by buying 10 shares of a reliable blue-chip stock for each of them. Bluechip stocks are those of the biggest, most

Evergreens are carefully pruned along the front of the house and a small bed in the shape of a heart centers the

In two beds rug Junipers have been pruned very low to form a pattern. One surrounds a light fixture with sedum and begonias interspersed.

A purple lace-leaf Japanese maple has been planted about a foot higher than other plants in the second bed that also features the pruned Juniper. Red barberry frames it. The level of the tree was raised to provide good drainage. The lunipers are trimmed twice a year.

A lovely arbor festooned with pink/purple clematis, with colormatched blooms of liatris standing all alongside, leads into the back yard. Edward, Sharron's husband, created this handsome piece.

Water in valves can be dangerous

Several months ago the residents of a certain area of Westland were hit with a flooded condition in their basements of very serious magnitude. Several hundred homeowners were in a very serious frame of mind when I stood in front of them to discuss what should be done with appliances.

I talked about refrigerators and motors which might have been hurt during this flood and what to be careful of. At the conclusion of my short talk I. found it necessary to give them my viewpoint on the subject because I thought the audience might think it self serving for my business to tell them to replace the complete gas valve in their dryer. I felt that even though the gas valve is sealed it still has an orifice which allows gas to exit and burn during operation. It seemed apparent to me and later proven true that water would enter this orifice and cause corrosion to form inside the valve. The valve would operate for a while and I couldn't be sure how long that would be.

I tried to explain that this corrosive action could cause the valve to stay in the open position when it should be closed. As a result the gas would pour out of the valve and cause a deadly situation. Now couple the above with the fact that some of this flood water contained raw sewage and you have an even more explosive situation.

The very next morning a friend from another service company called me and told me that a certain manufacturer he called told him I was all wet with my theory. I stuck to my story and told him that we were not going into a home and fix or check out a dryer without changing the gas valve or at least informing the consumer. After some gentle persuasion on my part, he decided to do it my way. Several months have now passed since that flood and, yes, things have happened to gas valves to prove me cor-

My son Shawn, who has been doing service in your homes for the past 15 years, has never before seen so many gas valve failures. He has replaced many in the very homes which were flooded and a few of them almost exploded off the face of this earth. I have seen more homeowners bring their valves in for repair to my store. These customers were aware enough to smell the gas when the valve failed and wise enough to do the repairs themselves.

Flooded basements or laundry rooms are not uncommon in this part of the country. Please make a copy of this column and the next time your relative or friend tells you about their flooded basement, give them a copy.

To the readers of this column who live in that flooded neighborhood and have yet to have a problem with their gas valve on their clothes dryers, I say this, "Come and see me. I will show you how to remove your gas valve and you'll see how simple it is. I will change the gas valve bracket and coils etc. and you will pay exactly what I pay for it. There will be no labor charge for doing this and no profit mad by anyone except you." IT COULD SAVE YOUR LIFE.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area book-

Lemonade stands serve up aid for storm victims

The "Kids helping Kids" lemonade stands at Scott Shuptrine Fine Furniture's annual Tent Sale, which took place July 11-21, raised nearly $1,100 for the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund for the victims of the Storm of '97.

Each year, Scott Shuptrine donates all proceeds from the sale of refreshmentsduring its Tent Sale.

This year, the theme was "Kids helping Kids," where local children set up and ran lemonade stands. The lemonade was provided by Olga's Kitchen at 12 Oaks Mall in Novi and Oakland Mall in landscape. Brick chips as well as the white marble have been used in some areas.

In one bed a bottle brush has been trimmed like a small tree. Its tall purple foliage matches the smoke bush on one. side and a small maple tree (with a lighter shade) on the other.

"If I want something to grow out of the ordinary, I trim it until I get my desired results," Sharron said. "I have never lost a plant (due to pruning)."

There is something to see at every turn in this garden. "I love garden art," Sharron said, and many different examples have been used.

Driftwood has been artfully placed, wind-driven pieces add interest and wind chimes add a tinkling sound. Hanging baskets add color as do other containers set on bricks, logs, etc. If there isn't enough color to suit, artificial flowers are mixed with the real or used to fill Interesting textured patio stones are placed for easy access into the beds; one in the shape of a shoe print.

Edward drilled holes into a large lava rock that now holds impatiens and sedums. Along the back wall of the home, a climbing hydrangea and a honeysuckle add height.

Each individual plant such as hosta and lavender takes center stage where it can be enjoyed for its particular beauty. Sharron keeps them contained by pinching, which also makes them grow more profitable companies.

Another interesting structure caught my eye. A beautiful trellis has been installed into a center bed in the back yard. It is about six feet tall and is made of cement reinforcing rod.

On the other hand, give your children some freedom to select their own stocks. It's often a good idea to observe the companies that manufacture products that are becoming trends with young people, and potentially buy into them before the market becomes too saturated with competitors.

Once your kids have settled on a company, help them purchase a share or two by going through a discount broker to minimize commissions on small purchases."

A family investment group promotes family togetherness. Everyone has a common focus in tracking investment performance and comparing notes.

Perhaps you spend time with your children at the breakfast table reviewing their stock in the morning paper. Maybe your 8-year-old asks you to help him review his stock performance on-line after dinner each night.

As a family, agree to reconvene one

This is another of Edward's creations. He told Sharron, after seeing wroughtiron trellises in a magazine, that he could make her something - which turned out to be a Mother's Day present.

The design contains unusual curlicues (he used a garden hose as a pattern for this embellishment) and has been painted black to resemble iron. Sharron has planted climbing white roses to grow on it and anticipates successful results.

A sprinkler system is installed and used when necessary. The very healthy plants are treated with Miracle-Gro every three weeks; Muracid is used on the impatiens if they need it.

The lawn is dense with grass and, as with the gardens, are cared for by the Reskas. They use an off-brand fertilizer (generally one low in nitrogen such as 12-12-12) on the lawn beginning the end of May and apply it three times during the growing season. They find this fertilizer at Chap's Pet Store, Five Mile and Merriman in Livonia.

At the Fair: At night the State Fair looks especially magical. Family fun and entertainment await.

Pass the good word about Michigan's

BY KEELY WYGONIK AND CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITERS

t wasn't too long ago that people would say "doomed," when you asked them about the Michigan State Fair.

"Word of mouth is our best seller," said John Hertel who was appointed general manager by Gov. John Engler after attendance dropped to an alltime low of 163,000 people in 1993. "If we can get them here to see that it isn't dirty, rundown or unsafe, they'll come back."

When this year's fair opens Tuesday, Aug. 19, Hertel and his staff will be hoping for blue skies and sunshine, and that word gets out about all the positive changes - restorations of buildings, and emphasis on cleanliness, safety and quality - that have been happening at the fairgrounds since 1993. Last year attendance was more than 400,000. "We are located within one hour's drive time of five million people, half the people of the state," said Hertel. "Except for a sporting event, there are few places people from urban, suburban and rural communities come together in one place."

The Michigan State Fair, originally held in 1849, only 11 years after Michigan became a state, was conceived to foster communication between farmers and city folk.

It was thought that farmers could learn the benefits of the latest machinery by visiting Detroit, and city dwellers could learn about produce and livestock, where their food came from and how their food was produced. This concept evolved over years to include recreation and entertainment, but education is still one of the fair's most important missions.

You can visit with farmers and their livestock, check out the blue ribbon fruits and vegetables in Kellogg's Agricultural Building, and witness cows, ewes and sows giving birth at the Blue Cross and Blue Shield/Michigan Farm Bureau's Miracle of Live Birthing Exhibit, presented by the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has designed a 50,000-square-foot pocket park near the Community Arts Building to help visitors try out or learn about hunting, fishing and outdoor recreational activities.

"Through this exhibit we hope to encourage families and individuals to visit our state parks and forests, learn more about fishing and hunting, and seek out more ways in which they can participate in Michigan's great outdoors," said Bruce Matthews, chief of the DNR Office of Informa-

WEXITED TO ENE Bo Diddley ideal grand master of Woodward Cruise

BY FRANK PROVENZANO STAFF. WRITER

First, the driving beat. Add a few seventh chords to a I-IV-V progression and you've got accompanying music for a nostalgic cruise down Woodward. If the sound is coming from Bo Diddley, then you've got a rhythm and blues crusin' classic. Which might make the trip even more evocative.

These might be the retro '90s, but hey baby, hold on.

That "man amongst men" ain't some relic. Although pushing 70, Diddley proved that he's prepared to take his soulful rock and rhythms to the grave. Last year's acclaimed album, "A Man Amongst Men" prove that.

He may have broken through in the early 1950s, but Diddley is still pounding out what is now referred to as "classic rock." Has Bo Diddley gone traditional? Heck, his song catalog proves his hellbent outlook hasn't changed in 50 years.

Among his hits are "I'm a Man," "Pretty Thing," "Diddy Wah Diddy," "Who Do You Love," "Hey, Bo Diddley," and "Hush Your Mouth." A jive dialogue in his 1959 song, "Say Man," is considered a precursor to rap.

"Who else but a true legend of rock and roll should be here to epitomize the spirit of the 1950s and 1960s in the (Woodward) Dream Cruise," said Bethany Bain-Chamberlain, spokesperson of

Last February, she noted, Diddley received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Rhythm & Blues Foundation. In 1987, he was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall

While not formally nominated for the honor, Diddley might be the ideal choice as grand master of this weekend's crusin' parade up Woodward. His music spans the time when Woodward Avenue developed from a country road to a concrete path from the Detroit River through urban grittiness to suburban sprawl and affluence.

SRO serves up slice of pie

SRO Productions present Prancine Hachem's "A Piece of American Pie" 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Aug. 15-16 and 22-23 and 2 p.m. Sundays, Aug. 17 and 24 at The Burgh on the northeast corner of Civic Center Drive and Berg Road, one block east of Telegraph in Southfield. Tickets are $12 for general seating and includes entertainment and refreshments during admission. Call (248) 827-0700.

The best part of rehearsing for the upcoming production "A Piece of American Pie" for Sarah Buehler is singing Gloria Gaynor's "I Will Survive." The song boosts Buehler's spirits and she needs that now. Doctors wired Buehler's teeth in place last week after the Livonia resident was involved in a car accident. But Buehler troops on, rehearsing three days a week for the show about American women.

"It's fun and I love that song," said Buehler during a brief phone interview.

Buehler plays the role of a young woman in the musical revue. The show tracks the different phases of a woman's life and spans a period of time from Abigail Adams to Madonna. Actresses Kimberly Renfrew Gebbie of Rochester; Diane Sievers and Jodie Kuhn Ellison. Royal Oak and Francine Hachem and Rio Scafone, Ferndale, represent the other stages

American pie: Sarah Buehler of Livonia plays a young woman in an upcoming musical revue that celebrates American with songs such as "Take Me Out to the Ball Game, "Come In From the Rain," "Under the Boardwalk," "God Bless America," and a Judy Garland medley.

Buehler sings "Because You Love Me" to portray the importance of a young girl's formative years. The 17-year-old was inspired to pursue a career in musical theater after studying voice and theater in the Creative and Performing Arts Program at Livonia's Churchill High School. She begins studies at Wright

State University in Dayton, Ohio, this fall.

"The song shows how the love of your mentors and teachers makes you a stronger person and makes you who you are," said Buehler.

Francine Hachem created and directs the musical tribute to women. Hachem received her theater training at Willoway Apprentice Theater in Bloomfield Hills. Her directing credits include stints with the Plymouth Theatre Guild and West End Productions. The feminism of the 1970s urged equality for women in all aspects of American life. Women went to work full-time, in most instances while juggling a marriage and children. Hachem juggled theatrical endeavors and working in the accounting department at the Chrysler Corp. for 30 years until retiring in December. Now, Hachem plans to devote the rest of her life to theater.

"It's a slice we're taking from the pie to celebrate women of all ages," Hachem. "It's a consciousness raiser and has information people forgot or didn't know or understand."

"A Piece of American Pie" looks at life from a female perspective: the struggles, joys and power of women. The cast of five spent the last three months rehearsing the songs and monologues. Rio Scafone musically directs the cast to squeeze every drop of emotion from the lyrics.

the audience doesn't like you? All valid worries, but now take it to the next level: what if the audience just keeps on walking? That's street performing, the toughest job in the arts. And on tonight's Backstage Pass, we. enjoy the work of two former streetcorner artists who are achieving mainstream success. Madeline Peyroux learned her craft from the street musicians of Paris' Latin Quarter. When she was 16, she started as a hat passer for a group of busking musicians called The Riverboat Shufflers, eventually convincing them to let her sing. The results were so impressive that the leader of a competing busking troupe, The Lost Wandering Blues & Jazz Band, gave her an impromptu audition. He liked what he heard, and Madeline Madeline's voice is so hauntingly reminiscent of Billie Holiday that she cannot escape constant comparisons to the enigmatic blues diva. In fact, she lists a whole roster of influences, including Patsy Cline, Fats Waller and Bessie Smith. But perhaps her strongest influences come from the streets themselves. As Madeline says, "Songs

I learned from different friends will always be associated with those street musicians I met in Paris. With a song like 'Walkin' After Midnight,' there's more to it because you've lived it. And if you were sitting at home trying to make sense of a piece of sheet music. It's a whole other world," Peyroux recently made her Atlantic Records debut with her new CD, "Dreamland." Tonight, of the Fats Waller classic, "I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter." Closer to home, Robert Bradley got his chops on the streets of Detroit. His father moved the family to the Motor City in the mid '60s when he scored a job as an auto plant. Robert dropped out of high school and traveled the country performing music wherever he could - coffee houses, Baptist churches, and of course, on the

In 1968, he returned home to Detroit, for years a fixture passing the hat at Eastern Market.

Then one spring day in '92 while working the corner of Griswold and State, Robert's voice carried through an open window at White Room Studios, where the former members of EMI Records alternative band Second Self were playing. They loved what they heard and coaxed him into the studio to jam. They've been together ever since and recently released their self-titled debut CD, "Robert Bradley's Blackwater Surprise," on the RCA Record Label. Tonight, we'll air for you the first cut off their CD, a visceral blues riff called where do you picture it? In a museum? In an exclusive private collection? Well, we started a regular series of reports in our first season that fits the peripatetic theme of tonight's show: We set out to demonstrate that you can find art in the most unexpected places, and one of our Backstage Pass art correspondents, Gerry Craig, is a case in point. Gerry curates the Wildlife Interpretive Gallery at the Detroit Zoo and she continues to be our guide to art in unusual places all over Detroit.

"Belly Bone." When you think of fine art,

It all started with the personal tour she gave me of the Wildlife Interpretive Gallery, a permanent exhibit that can be seen seven days a week, with rotating shows in the exhibit hall throughout the year. The next temporary exhibit is "Coral Reef Masterpiece Photography," which opens Sept. 6.

Also on the Big Show, we look at the debut production by the Detroit Actors Guild at the Alley Theatre, Terrence McNally's "Frankie and Johnny in the Claire de Lune."

We were graced with a scene from the play performed by actors Mary Bremer and David Regal. While they're on summer hiatus from theatre production, the Alley is presenting "Detroit Unplugged," a showcase of local musical performers every Thursday night, including some Backstage Pass alumni. All this happens tonight at 9:30 on Channel 56. Now get out there!

Family tradition: Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

Within the last couple years, Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers have done the House of Blues Smokin' Grooves Tour, Lollapalooza, and a Canadian multiband tour. After hanging around with so many rock bands, Sharon Marley is feeling a little differently about her music.

"It's interesting the people they (booking agents) hook us up with. It's good for our mental capacity because we get to socialize with people from totally different backgrounds. But there's so many different rock groups that we've sung with that I feel like a rock group," she said with

"I was getting kind of bored with our last show because we were on the road for a year and a half. I kept asking, When are we going to change the format?' Finally we have this new album. I can't wait to get out there. It's very exciting," she explained.

"I have this feeling that Ziggy is getting very experimental. He's going to be doing some a capella stuff. There's conga drums, big bass drums so there's more like a chanting feeling to some of the songs. It's becoming more spiritual in the performance itself."

I think by listening to all that music we appreciate the different feelings you get from different music. It's a vibe thing really. With some music, you can really dance to it, and it's really fun. With other music you sit down and really listen to appreciate what's going on."

At home in Kingston, Jamaica. the Melody Makers keep busy recording and distributing their own music, while running 'Tuff Gong, Bob Marley's record company. The group also designs its own clothes and choreography.

"Apart from the music, we all have children to look after. We have the Bob Marley Museum, Makers grew up listening to a that also falls under our own

The worst thing is to go on stage and make a mistake. I think I am my own worst critic. I live up to my own expectations because, you see, while our father was around he didn't live up to anybody's expectations. He was an individual in himself. We're all individuals. We all have our different personalities."

Moore, Roberts sink in late summer screen entries two of Hollywood's most popular actresses. Demi Moore and Julia Roberts have a knack for picking doomed projects that serve neither their talents or their audiences.

This summer's examples: Moore baring brawn over breasts in "G.I. Jane," a grueling Navy training film directed by Ridley Scott. Then Roberts plays government agent to coverup-crazy Mel Gibson in "Conspiracy Theory." which, if not the worst film of the summer, is certainly the most misguided.

"G.I. Jane" recounts the trials and tribulations of the fictionalized first woman inducted into the elite Navy SEALS. She's given the opportunity by a vote-

Despite being hungry senator (Anne Bancroft), the bile-spewing D.I., but a performance in "My Best wo of Holly- who makes the progressive ges- decidedly cynical view of orga- Friend's Wedding," Julia Roberts ture assuming the woman won't stick it out.

And we have our doubts as well. The training is the kind of sadistic onslaught that is supposed to toughen up a young recruit for combat. The Master Sergeant, while calling you a maggot, will push your head into the mud with the steel toe of his boot and then justify it with, "What I'm doing could save your

Three quarters of the film is taken up by this kind of punishment, to the point where not just Moore, but the audience, feels like it has been standing out in the cold with a water-filled raft over its head. Do we really want to go through the ordeal?

Stanley Kubrick trod similar ground in the first half of "Full Metal Jacket," but there was a method to the madness. It not only boasted an Oscar-worthy performance by Lee Ermey as nized cruelty. "G.I. Jane" wants to have it both ways, demonizing the military while simultaneously waving the flag.

It's Moore's insatiable exhibitionism that gets on my nerves most in "G.I. Jane," Along with requisite shots of her in the shower and a bubble bath, we are treated to images of the newly buff Moore shaving her head (I haven't seen so many camera angles for one military cut since Elvis' induction) and performing pushups in sweaty slow motion.

The Navy SEALS have one idea right: when you get too tired to continue the program, simply ring a bell three times and you're out. Moviegoers have an even simpler option. They don't have to show up at all for this cinematic ordeal.

"Conspiracy Theory"

If it wasn't for her charming would be in big trouble. Her latest film would be just another in an uninterrupted series of bad moves ("Mary Reilly," "I Love Trouble," "The Pelican Brief" and a half dozen others) designed to display her questionable range. "Conspiracy Theory" is the worst of the bunch, an idea that obviously spun out of control since its original inception. Is it an eccentric black comedy? A nailbiting thriller? An unorthodox love story? The filmmakers apparently didn't know either, giving test audiences the final say by filming two different endings.

Mel Gibson plays an unlikely New York cabbie who sees government cover-up around every corner. In his cluttered, Mylarpapered apartment where even the Tupperware containers are kept under lock and key, he pounds out a newsletter about his latest suspicions.

He does manage to get the ear of an attractive young government agent (Roberts), who doesn't necessarily believe him but listens anyway.

When the CIA-connected Patrick Stewart threatens the cabby's life and those associated with him, both are forced to run for their lives.

Gibson's performance borders on the embarrassing. Even Roberts seems to stand off to the side, looking on like a deer in the headlights, as he goes into his overwrought version of Rain Man with a toothpick and stocking cap.

Just how sympathetic is his character supposed to be when he spends most of his nights peeping into Roberts' apartment with binoculars?

Any good conspiracy theorist will give you a thread of truth to

AlexSandra's Opa is authentically Greek

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY SPECIAL WRITER

Westsiders who love Greek food no longer have to travel to downtown Detroit to get a little OPAaaa!

Alexandra Sakellaris of Farmington Hills saw to that Wednesday, June 18, with the opening of her new restaurant.

"We wanted to bring a little bit of Greek Town to the west side," said the owner of AlexSandra's Qpa in Livonia. The restaurant, on the lower level of Bobby's Country House, "serves authentic Greek cuisine for a very good price."

The lunch menu boasts everything from orektika (appetizers) to kota (chicken) to thalassina (seafood) for an average of $5.95. For those desiring variety, there's AlexSandra's Duo or Trio - a combination plate offering moussaka, pastitsio and spanakotyropita for under $8.

Don't worry if you can't pronounce the names, the waitstaff at AlexSandra's Opa has been specially trained to provide a helping hand on pronunciation, food selections and wine.

"All of them have tasted the food and wine," said Sakellaris,

The dinner menu features many of the same dishes for a modest increase in price - $6.95-$16. There are a few surprises however, like the "famous Athenian-style broiled chicken."

"It takes 25 to 30 minutes to cook, but it is delicious."

And what would a Greek restaurant be without grape leaves? Patrons of AlexSandra's Opa will never have to find out. Dolmathes, or stuffed grape leaves, are made with seasoned ground beef and rice served with avgolemono (egg-lemon) sauce. A variety of Greek beers and coffee will top off the meal.

"When you feel like Greek food, you should come here,"

Food for celebrating: OPA!!, said waitress Kathy Tassis, (which means to celebrate in Greek) lights the Saganaki (flaming cheese) at AlexSandra's Opa in Livonia. The restaurant is owned by Alexandra Sakellaris (right). Lamb chops, Greek salad, and Trio which is moussaka, spinach pie and pastitsio are specialty dishes.

single mother of two.

When asked which meal would attract the most attention, she hesitated, then answered.

"We have a wonderful chicken with artichokes and lemon, but the emphasis is our excellent lamb chops." They are all served with a small Greek salad and a smile.

The man behind all of these Christos, who at 57 has been in the restaurant business most of his life. Although he received no formal culinary education, he has not heard any complaints.

"This comes natural to Greek people," said Sakellaris, who has the husband/wife team for 25 also been in the restaurant busi- years," she said. "He died last ness for years.

"I've been in the restaurant exclaimed the proud owner and authentic Greek delicacies is business since I was 15. I started in the original Seros on Griswold and State (in Detroit)."

One might say restaurateuring is in Sakellaris's blood.

"My parents were in the business, Bobby's family was in the business and Bobby and I were December, but this was his last wish - this restaurant. Six months to the date of his death, we opened the restaurant."

Her partner may be gone, but the legacy will continue in her sons, Yanni, 16, and Alexandros,

"They are my busboys," she said, "but they want to go into the business when they grow

Before turning over the reins however, Sakellaris will teach the boys the family restaurant philosophies: "Make the restaurant cozy," "all our employees are friends" and "all our customers become friends."

Sakellaris discovered just how many friends she had on Monday, June 16, the grand opening celebration of AlexSandra's Opa.

Even Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey paid a visit.

"We had over 1,000 people," she said. "We sent out 1,500 invitations but expected 800."

She handled the crowd easily, directing people to the bar and the hors d'oeuvres table, where they could sample some of the menu items.

"They loved it," she said, "and if they like the food on a chaffing dish, can you imagine how much they will like it when it comes straight from the kitchen?"

Aside from authentic Greek cuisine, patrons of AlexSandra's Opa will find authentic Greek antiques amidst the modern decor. One such item is a "koboloe" - or worry beads.

"I don't know why they call them worry beads, because the men weren't worrying," she said, "but there is a story behind them."

According to Sakellaris, men just had to do something with their hands, so they played with these beads. It's the historic equivalent to the modern act of jingling pocket change.

As for future plans, there is no immediate urge to open another AlexSandra's Opa, or even change the menu.

"We're not ruling it out, we just have enough to do now," she said. "We'll see what the public

All Sakellaris wants is for people to "enjoy the casual atmosphere and excellent Greek food" at AlexSandra's Opa. It's an opportunity she made possible thanks to the direction of her late husband, and friends Audrey Besso, Lee and Bob Alan-

"Bobby really started this, and he guided my all the way ... Lee, Bob and Audrey were always

Restrict users of clubhouse

Editor's Note: The uncorrected version of a reader's question ran last week by mistake. Here is the corrected version.

Q. We have a clubhouse in our condominium, which is limited to members and their guests. Do we have to comply with the Americans With Disabilities Act?

A. The U.S. Department of Justice has been clear in numerous technical guidance letters that community associations are only exempt from the Americans with Disabilities Act if the use of their facilities is limited to members and their

Therefore, if a community association engages in activities open to the general public, such as craft sales, Boy Scout meetings and swim teams consisting of non-residents, they are likely to be considered a "public accommodation" whose facilities are subject to the Americans with Disabilities Act.

You are best advised to consult with your association attorney in regard to the parameters of your latitude in this area.

Real estate is a people business. Some people aren't nice. That's why Realtors should be aware of personal safety as they go about their daily tasks.

"My experience is Realtors ... look for the best in people not the worst so they're most vulnerable," said Michael Peck, executive vice president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

Encountering strangers at open houses, working alone in the office at night and driving in unfamiliar neighborhoods create the potential for an unwelcome contact.

While attacks are rare, they do

"In 27 years, I'm aware of three Realtors who have been killed (none locally)," Peck said. "Probably 10 times in 27 years I can recall a Realtor being raped, assaulted, beat up."

Nancy Sielaff, a sales associate with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Bloomfield Hills and a karate black belt, says Realtors should always tune in to their surround-

"A lot of people go around with their heads up in the clouds," she said. "Listen to your own intu-

One of the first lessons of childhood especially applies here. Be cautious of strangers.

"When you meet someone for the first time, always meet in the office," Peck said. "You never meet someone for the first time in a vacant home. You take someone with you. If worse comes to worst, you don't meet them."

That bears repeating time and time again.

"Kiss off the listing before you put yourself at risk," said Michael E. Cole, president of Be Safe, Inc. in Troy. "That can be replaced. You can't.".

If you're uncomfortable, cancel an appointment and reschedule for another time when you can take along a colleague, Sielaff suggest-

Here are other things Realtors

"I'd prefer to do an open house with another person. For the safety of things in the house, I'd feel better. I just feel safety in numbers. That's a good time to take the new person in the office and get some exposure." - Sielaff.

"Cellular phones are a great idea. They've been a great boon to giving security. - Peck.

"I would always let clients lead the way in a house. They go first, you follow. You're not going to be cornered." - Sielaff.

■ "Don't verbally spar with anyone. First, it can entice a person to action that wouldn't otherwise develop and, second, it can easily be misinterpreted and lead to legal complications." - Cole.

■ "Don't wear expensive jewelry to an appointment." - Peck.

■ "Park where you have some light and people are around. Have your keys out as you're walking to your car. My car is always locked, even when I'm in it." - Sielaff. Here are a couple of suggestions from the Michigan Association of expected return time. Check in with the office periodically.

■ A whistle and pocket flashlight can be handy, unobtrusive personal protection devices.

■ If car trouble arises and you're alone with no cell phone, raise the hood, then remain locked in the car until help arrives. When someone stops, ask them to call for assistance.

Cole also raised the issue of environmental safety.

"As the agent approaches the home, they should be watchful of potential hazards. If the seller has children, there may be toys lying on in the yard of sidewalk. There may be water hoses from when the seller watered the grass or flowers.

"There could be loose cement or handrails on the stairs leading to the porch," Cole said.

"Be aware of which way the door opens. Some doors swing to the wide part of the porch, others swing to the short side. Someone could fall off the when the door is opened. Even a short fall can lead to some fairly serious problems.

"Watch for hanging plants, wires, lights and planters that could cause head or eye injuries," Cole said.

Bill Deacon, an associate broker with Century 21 Town & Country in Birmingham and president of the Michigan Association of Realtors, realizes that the vast majority of people Realtors contact are trustworthy.

But not all. "The intuition thing, it does work," Deacon said. "If it feels uncomfortable, take a pass. Don't show it. Take someone with you.

Don't be a victim of loan fraud

Part I of II

house, you enter into a long-term financial obligation. You fill out papers and sign legal documents based on those papers. It's important that you understand your responsibilities now, so that you won't be the victim of, or a participant in, a fraud.

When you buy a

When you apply for a mortgage loan, every piece of information you submit must be accurate and complete. Anything less is loan fraud.

Unfortunately, there are people who may try to convince you to lie about your qualifications, so they can illegally make money at your expense. Those people will appear to be your friends, saying that they're just trying to help you. They may downplay or deny the importance of complying with the FHA loan requirements, and suggest that it's all just "red tape" that everyone ignores. Don't be fooled by these lies.

Before you sign anything, read and make sure you understand it. In the process of buying a house, you sign many documents. You should understand everything. If you don't, don't sign. Your signature certifies that the information in a document is correct and you are agreeing to be legally bound by it.

Refuse to sign any blank document. If information is inserted, after you sign, you are bound by it. If that information is false, you are legally

Do not buy property for someone else. If that person is unable to pay the monthly mortgage payments, you will be responsible for those payments. It will affect your credit history and may prevent you from getting other credit or buying your own house.

Do not overstate your income. If you inflate your earnings to buy a house, you may not really be able to afford the monthly payments plus the related expenses (electricity, water, telephone, heat) that home ownership requires. You risk losing the property and all the money you have put into it.

Do not overstate how long you have been employed. If you have been employed for just a few months, this may not be the best time to buy a house. Before you get a mortgage loan, you must be sure that your job is permanent. Until then, you are simply not eligible to buy.

Do not overstate your assets. Be truthful about how much money you have that you can use to buy the house. If you need to borrow money for a down payment, you are taking on a new debt that will reduce your ability to pay your mortgage loan.

Accurately report your debts. Disclose all loans and debts, including money that may have been (or will be) borrowed for the down payment. If you don't qualify for a mortgage loan because of your debts, then you don't have enough money available to make your monthly payments. Wait until you have paid off some of your debts before buying a house.

Make good use of your garage

By Reader's Digest Books For AP Special Features

For most people, the garage is an extension of the house. Here are some tips to make it easier to use:

Weatherstripping

To keep out cold air, rodents and debris, install vinyl weatherstripping designed specifically for closing gaps around a garage door. You will save energy as well.

Before installing weatherstripping, sand the door bottom, wash it with a mild detergent and let it dry for two or three days. Then paint the area of the

If your garage floor is uneven, you can still create a good seal between the bottom of the door and the floor. Simply tack a three-fourths-inch foam pipe insulation to the bottom of the door with the slit facing down.

CAUTION: Remember that a wellsealed garage means an even greater danger of carbon monoxide buildup. Never run an engine inside a closed

Parking tips

Judging how far is enough when parking your car in the garage can be tricky. Hang a tennis ball from the ceiling. Park your car exactly where you want it. Then mount a screw eye in the ceiling and position the hanging ball so that it touches the windshield on the

Keep lawn mowers, bicycles and other equipment out of the way by painting white lines on the garage floor, outlining a space for each item. As long as all family members return the items to their designated spots, you won't have to get out of the car to move them before you can park.

Avoid damaging your car door when you open it by attaching a piece of scrap carpet to the wall.

Garage doors

If you have trouble centering the car door, set it at a comfortable level by and dry, and the water will be chansecuring a C-clamp or locking pliers on neled out to the driveway.

This is safer than propping the door with a chair or other object.

Periodically, apply a thin film of lightweight oil to the rollers and hinges. of a garage door. Go easy - too much oil will collect dirt. Keep tracks clean by wiping them occasionally with a damp cloth dampened with oil.

Channel weather's debris

Winter snow and ice create a mess when they melt. Confine the mess to the area under the car by gluing several strips of garage door bottom-strips to the floor with construction adhesive. When working on a manual garage Most of the garage floor will stay clean

"HONESTY AND FAIRNESS"

Believe it or not, honesty and fairness still work! We often hear of news stories wherein someone has attempted to bend the law by taking an unethical or illegal shortcut.

In real estate transactions, honesty is always the best policy. The good news is that you can buy and sell real estate profitably and accomplish it in an honorable manner. There are also some tools available today to assure you that the other party is being honest with you:

Seller disclosure form

Most states now mandate that the seller of a property fill out and sign a form attesting to the present known condition of every item in the house and remaining with the property. This information is made available to every potential purchaser who visits the property. If you make an offer on a home, based upon the information provided in the disclosure form, you can use it in the future if you find that things are not as they were represented.

Home inspections

Another valuable tool is the home inspection. Most offers are presented to the seller with the proviso that the buyer need not go through with the purchase if a physical inspection of the property by a qualified inspector reveals alarming information about the property's true condition. Based upon this new data, the buyer may decide to terminate the purchase or request a re-negotiation of the original terms.

A knowledgeable third party

Another important factor is your Realtor. A professional intermediary can help both buyers and sellers accomplish their goals in a win-win and honest fashion.

How to make money in three easy steps.

Step

to be a big hit with a beginner. Here's the point: Your former treasure can bring another pleasure. And if you've got a skill to market or service you'd like to provide-there's someone looking for you in classified.

Step 2.

Aim for an audience. After you've selected a solution for another to seize, bring that person to life. Think about your product or service and its original value to you, then detail its features and benefits to another individual. When you put those benefits into words, other like you will find value too. And that's of value to you!

Step 3.

Contact classified. Give us a call. You'll cash in on the speed and effectiveness of the dynamic classified marketplace. Each day, highly motivated readers are seeking services and solutions for a variety of needs. Turn to the classified pages, and you'll turn your item to be sold into money! It's as easy as 1-2-3!
