Grief-stricken Livonia Franklin High School students are mourning the loss of 14-year-old Alycia Madgwick, a popular pompon squad member who died from injuries she suffered in a car that plunged into a Westland ditch on a rainy Wednesday night.

"She was always a happy, smiling person," 10th-grader Erin Huber said. "What I will remember most about her was she had the prettiest smile," 10th-grader Andrew Morales said. Madgwick died shortly before 3:30 p.m. Thursday after she was taken off of life support at the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor. The Westland girl's death came 20 hours after she and four friends were involved in a one-car accident on Joy Road at Ingram, west of Merriman.

"Alycia will always be remembered for her smiling, sparkling personality," 10th-grader and pompon squad member Dana Toll said.

Franklin pompon coach Tesha Thomas said practice won't be the same without Alycia.

"Every day at practice I could look forward to seeing Alycia's shining smile and her beautiful red hair,' Thomas said. "But it wasn't just her looks that made her so lovely. She was one of the hardest workers on the team and never once complained.

"She was one of the sweetest girls I've known," Thomas concluded. "I will truly miss her."

for friends to sign - banners that will be given to Madgwick's family. Friends also started a memorial at the accident site.

Before she died, Madgwick, a Franklin freshman, was on her way to a hockey game between her school and rival Livonia Churchill High, Westland police officer Jack McIntosh said.

With five teen-agers in a 1996 Pontiac Sunfire. Madgwick was seated between two friends in the back seat when the driver, a 16-year-old girl, lost control while turning left onto Joy from northbound Merriman, McIntosh said.

"It was rainy, and visibility was pretty diminished." he said.

The accident occurred at 7:11 p.m. Wednesday in an area where Joy Road narrows from five lanes to two, and McIntosh said the Sunfire veered off the Livonia side of Joy, "fish-tailed" and crashed into a ditch on the Westland side of the road.

The car flipped over and the rear window broke, and Madgwick's body was half-ejected, McIntosh said.

"The vehicle came to rest on her head," he said.

The car landed upside down in a rain-soaked ditch.

Madgwick was believed to be dead at the scene, then doctors revived her at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia and arranged for her to be flown to U-M Medical Center.

But the outlook was bleak, and she succumbed to her injuries Thursday afternoon.

McIntosh said it will be the decision of county prosecutors whether to file charges against the driver, a former Franklin student now attending Walled Lake Western High School. But he stressed that alcohol was not a factor in the crash.

Madgwick was the only teen not wearing a seat belt, McIntosh said. The other teens, including two Franklin students and two Walled Lake Western students, escaped serious injury.

"They all got out of the car after the accident," McIntosh said.

He described all the teens as "good students."

Madgwick's death marked the fourth Westland fatality of 1997. One of those included another 14-year-old Franklin student, Nicole Mugurian, who died March 10 in a one-car accident on Ann Arbor Trail near Hines Drive.

On the squad: Fourteen-year-old Alycia Madgwick, a popular pompon squad member, died from injuries she suffered in a car that plunged into a Westland ditch on a rainy Wednesday night.

Madgwick's recovery as she lay unconscious in a hospital bed.

"Alycia was always there to listen," ninthgrade classmate Brianne Johnson said. "We would often go skating together."

Dana Georde, a 10th-grader, said Madgwick always worked tirelessly to achieve her goals.

"She was hardworking, energetic and never gave up," Georde said.

Services for Madgwick will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Griffin Funeral Home, 7707 Middlebelt, Westland. Burial will be in Roseland Park at Woodward and 12 Mile, Berkley.

Program's funding knocked

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Westland city officials erred by spending $10,000 to support a Wayne-Westland school district program that helps families get help for problems ranging from truancy to domestic abuse, a city resident said.

Westland City Council members shouldn't pay for Wayne-Westland programs unless they also give money to other districts, such as Livonia and Inkster, that serve portions of Westland, council watcher Dorothy Smith said.

"We're involved again with Wayne-Westland schools," she said Monday during a council meeting.

"I'm in the Inkster school district," she added later, "and I could care less about this in Wayne-Westland."

The latest city-school controversy came after Wayne-Westland school board member Mathew McCusker in November suggested that the city should spend more money on youth programs. McCusker said he wishes the city would spend as much money on youth programs as it does on the senior citizen Friendship Center, which he referred to as "the temple on Newburgh Road."

The council's vote Monday pertained to a $10,000 allocation for a Family Resource Center based at Lincoln Elementary. The center steers local families to agencies that can help them with problems such as truancy, drug abuse and domestic abuse, among others.

James Gilbert, Westland housing/community development director, said the city agreed to help the Family Resource Center because Wayne-Westland officials considered closing it due to a budget shortfall.

"This is some special assistance that the council gave them," he said.

inform other school districts "if you continue to do this." Gilbert said his department sometimes refers parents to the Family Resource Center, which he said meets a need in the Lincoln Elementary area. The city grant marks only a portion of the center's funding, he said.

"If they (school officials) had come to us and asked us to fund the entire program, we would have told them no," Gilbert said.

Mayor Robert Thomas said Wayne-Westland officials were told that they would receive help for only two years. The latest allocation marks the second year the city has donated to the program, he said.

The city provided the money not for the school district, but to help children and their parents, Thomas said.

But Smith insisted that the city is spending money that it shouldn't spend to support school district programs.

"I don't know why you insist on doing this," she said.

Stolen air bags recovered in raid

BY LEANNE ROGERS STAFF WRITER

Police recovered 2,000 stolen air bags during a raid on an Detroit auto parts business Monday night,

The air bags have a retail value estimated at $1 million, said Michigan State Police Lt. William Darnell of the Western Wayne Auto Theft Unit. The business which was raided. C & J Metro Automotive Supply, located in the Greenfield-Jeffries area, hød paid an estimated $200,000 for the air bags.

"Some of the air bags were identified with numbers. The ones we ran came back stolen.' said Darnell. "The air bags are real popular to steal, big time. A guy can get $65 or $100 per air bag. For a couple minutes work he's got a $100 in his pocket." While the Western Wayne Auto Theft unit has taken over the investigation which was initiated by the Metro Street Enforcement Team, which has officers from Westland; Garden City, Wayne and Inkster.

"Most of the credit goes to MSET. They got information on a guy possibly ripping off air bags," said Darnell. "They had him under surveillance and saw him walk into a place in Detroit with a bunch of air bags."

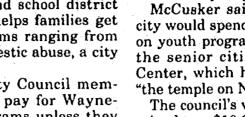

MSET surveillance units had been unable to locate the Detroit man but were keeping an eye on his girlfriend hoping she would lead them to the suspect, said Westland Sgt. James Ridener, who heads MSET. "We didn't locate them together except for when they were fencing the air bags," said Ridener. "He was a suspect in air bag thefts in Farmington Hills, Wayne, Westland and Garden City. He had been arrested in August in Livonia."

After the couple sold air bags to the auto supply business, Ridener said the man was arrested on outstanding warrants on charges including bad checks and breaking into autos. The investigation in this case is continuing and charges are pending.

"If the number of air bags is correct, $1 million is probably conservative," said Ridener. "We ended up in Detroit so we'll let Western Wayne take over as the State Police. Autos are their area of expertise and forte."---

Darnell indicated charge were unlikely against the auto parts business operators since they had complied with state law by obtaining identification from those selling the air bags and maintained proper records.

Meanwhile at Franklin, principal Michael Fenchel said news of Wednesday's accident was explained over the public announcement system to dispel rumors and ensure that students heard the facts. Written statements also went to staff members.

Some students sought help from counselors on Friday, one day after they had hoped for 9 p.m. Monday at the funeral home.

Madgwick is survived by her parents, David and Melanie Madgwick; an 11-year-old brother, Ryan; a 5-year-old sister, Shayna; and grandparents, David Sr. and Jane Madgwick, Mike and Helen Tocco and Victoria Reeves.

The Westland Community Foundation needs people to support its effort to collect Christmas toys for needy children, foundation president Glenn Shaw said Friday.

Concert to aid toy drive

The foundation is sponsoring a holiday classical concert at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday at the new St. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church, 36375 Joy Road, adjacent to the Hellenic Cultural Center.

Rather than charging an admission, the foundation is asking those attending to bring an unwrapped toy that can be given to a needy child at Christmas.

Performing during the concert will be the Franklin High School Choir and La Corda String Ensemble. The choir will perform at 6:45 p.m., followed by a 7:30 p.m. reception. The La Corda String Ensemble will perform at 8 p.m.

Anyone planning to attend should call 595-7727.

Also this season, the foundation is celebrating the holidays by donating its Christmas card budget to the children of Patchin, Edison, Lincoln, P.D. Graham, Hayes and Johnson elementaries.

Rather than buying cards, the foundation is giving money to the schools and having children design personal cards that are being sent out in the community.

Money given to the schools will, in turn, be donated to charities chosen by each school.

Marshall holds food drive

A Thanksgiving food drive at Marshall Middle School in Westland resulted in the collection of 2,040 food items.

Items were donated by the sixth-, seventh- and eighthgrade students at Marshall from Nov. 10 to Nov. 21.

The food was donated to the Salvation Army to make food baskets for the needy.

The items were picked up by a Rotary Club member who had to make two trips with his pickup truck, according to Trish Zupko, student council adviser.

Student Council also sponsored a contest between classes to see who could bring in the most cans.

The winning class won a pizza party.

"It's one of the community service projects that we do," Zupko said.

Students herald heritage

"Some fourth-grade students at Patchin Elementary in Westland got back to their roots recently.

As part of national Family Heritage Month in November. the fourth-grade students in Barbara Dankert's class have researched the country of their ancestors.

They also interviewed members of their own families to seek out traditions and family history, according to Dankert.

Then on Wednesday, Nov. 26, the students displayed the artifacts and research materials for parents and guests.

They also brought in pre-

Swedish meatballs and wish cookies, German gingerbread, strudel and wurst, Mexican tacos and pastries, Polish kielbasa, kolache, pierogi and kabushka, Irish corned beef, cabbage and potatoes, Puerto Rican rice and beans, Slovakian jam cookies, Czech cabbage rolls, African cornbread, Scottish shortbread and Italian pizza.

Several students also dressed in native costumes and there was also a program of songs, poems, and readings from the students' ancestral countries.

Schools fund computer glitch fix

By MARIE CHESTNEY STAFF WRITER

It will cost Livonia Public Schools at least $720,000 to solve the "Year 2000" computer glitch.

Left unsolved, the glitch would distort all the district's record keeping after the beginning of that year, including report cards, bus schedules and payroll checks.

The district has set aside $885,000 in its 1998-99 budget to cover the worse-case scenario in costs.

"We have enough money budgeted this year to pay for it all," said Randy Liepa, assistant superintendent for business.

"Any money saved up to now (before the 1997-98 budget) will be used to change classroom technology."

To solve the problem, the district plans to spend at least $377,000 to buy new Pentamation software and hardware.

That cost could rise to $483,000, depending on the number of software options the district buys.

At the same time, it also plans to spend at least $236,000 to buy new personal computers which would replace the 10-year-old ones now used by district employees.

This cost could rise to $345,000, depending on the number of computers bought. The district expects to replace between 150-200 computers.

It has been estimated that crossing into the next century could cost business and industry some $500 billion worldwide.

The arrival of the year 2000 will automatically turn many computer clocks back to the year 1900 because clocks are based on two-digit numbers (00 to 99).

Without intervention, departments hit hardest in the Livonia school district would be accounting, warehouse inventory, food service inventory, payroll, student registration and student attendance, all of which handle a large number of dates.

While knowing the glitch was looming, systems users like the Livonia schools have waited to see if old equipment could be upgraded or converted before investing in new systems, Liepa said.

The Board of Education is expected to sign a contract with Pentamation as soon as all details are worked out. Hardware would be installed in the summer of 1998.

The system would then be tested for about six months.

The district would then have one year to train employees before arrival of the year 2000.

Solving the computer glitch issue jump-started replacement of the 10-year-old personal computers used by staff, Liepa said.

"We would have liked to wait two-three years to change the old ones," he said.

'We would have been forced into doing something sooner or later, because the old computers are.obsolete.

"The old ones still work, but we can't run new programs on them. Their time has come. But we would have loved to push it out for another two years.

By signing now with Pentamation, the district will get a 50 percent discount on software.

"The closer you get to 2000. there will be no discounts,' Liepa said.

EPA praises efforts to clean Rouge River

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

A federal official from Washington, D.C., met Wednesday with local government leaders. praising the Rouge River National Wet Weather Demonstration Project.

Robert Perciasepe, assistant administrator for water with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, met with local officials, legislators, plus state and federal representatives, at Warren Valley Golf Club in Dearborn Heights.

"The beauty of the Rouge cleanup project is the way the 48 communities are working together to restore the viability of the river," said Perciasepe. "Each community along the river needs to work in conjunction with its neighbors, and this is what we're trying to push nationally.

"Looking at the problem and trying to attack it with a logical approach is a key point."

an update on the comprehensive program to restore the water quality of the Rouge River. The program is funded through EPA grants, and Perciasepe believes the federal government will continue to support the project.

"I think federal funds will always be part of implementing these programs," revealed Perciasepe. "This project has received a lot of demonstration monies to help the rest of the country learn."

U.S. John Dingell, D-16th District, warns that while the federal government is committed to the Rouge River project, there is only so much money to be received from the feds.

"The federal government plans to put up 55 percent of the estimated $1.3 billion cost," said Dingell. "We now have about $330 million of federal money in this. However, the local units of government and the state will have to start coming up with Nearly 100 people met to get 'huge sums of money, which could mean significant increases in water bills and sewage charges."

> Redford Township Supervisor Kevin Kelley believes the gathering helped local communities get a message to the EPA.

> "While we want to clean up the Rouge watershed, we can only foot so much of the bill," said Kelley. "Our message to Washington is that we need to have more considerations as it pertains to money and time frames. While we are working hard to clean up the Rouge, we can't have it done by their timetable of 2005."

Jim Murray, director of Wayne County's Department of Environment, said the participating communities were at a "crucial stage in the project."

"In the next year and a half, we'll be getting data on what we're doing, and what's going to be the next generation of pollution control," Murray said.

Elmo.

"Everything is Elmo, Elmo," according to the Wixom resident.

He already has two of the Sesame Street character that shakes, talks and sent parents into a frenzy last year as they tried to find them for their children. You don't have to be a baby to like Elmo.

Justin Priver, 6, a Plymouth resident and first-grader at Allen Elementary School, was at Toys R Us in Westland and couldn't resist a Tickle Me Cookie Monster that shakes and talks just like Elmo.

"I like Tickle Me Elmo better," Justin clarified. It was just that Elmo was on a higher shelf and couldn't be reached as easily. He also wants Legos, a Tamagotchi, Play-doh and remote control cars.

Tim Evans of Livonia was previewing the merchandise with his three sons, Brad, 8; Tad, 6; and Chad, 4. The purpose of the 90-minute trip to the toy mecca was to get ideas for Christmas presents.

Brad wants radio control cars; Tad also wants radio control cars and they both want Star Wars items.

Two lanes down, Chad Fuller, 13, was shopping with his father. The Canton teenager, who attends Pioneer Middle School, wants Play Station video games, especially Gameday '98.

"I'm trying to get new games for Christmas," he said.

At Meijer in Canton, Lauren Price, 9, said she wants Tamagotchis; and Barbie dolls, especially Shopping Barbie, because the fourth-grader from Bird Elementary School in Plymouth, likes to shop.

Price also likes "baby dolls." Her father, Bruce, seemed to be taking mental notes about her choices as her three brothers, Kyle, 10, Devin, 5, and Alex, 2, finished grocery shopping with their mother, Kimberly.

Bruce knows exactly what his crew wants. The older boys like Laser Tag and the youngest wants Rugrats and Arthur toys.

Alyssa Guerin, 10, of Plymouth closely Prepared with a note pad and marker, Evans inspected Tamagotchis and Giga Pets. The fifth-grader from Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth wants Nintendo and Laser Challenge under the Christmas tree this year. These gift ideas, from the people who know best, will certainly ring-in the holidays on area cash_registers.

Christmas lights should be checked

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

Area fire officials say holiday lights and warm fires are a traditional part of the holiday season, however they want to make sure it's a safe time of year with some timely tips.

Canton Township Fire Marshal Dave Champagne says one of the most important rules homeowners can follow is making sure their store-bought lights are approved by a nationally-recognized testing laboratory,

When buying lights, make certain they've been tested by groups such as Underwriters Laboratories or Factory Mutual, relates Champagne. "These nonprofit testing agencies make certain the lights meet tough quality standards."

If you already have lights put away, make sure you examine them before putting them on the tree.

"Inspect them thoroughly, to make sure there are no bare wires, cracks or bad plugs," warns Champagne. "They're generally not repairable, so if you have any questions at all, dispose of them and purchase a new set."

"If you have a real tree, make sure it's freshly cut and watered regularly," Champagne reminds us. "Use additives that help the tree absorb water so it doesn't dry out, making it a fire hazard." Champagne says artificial trees should be flame resistant, and no lights should ever be put on aluminum trees. Opt instead for a colored spotlight. Redford Township Fire Marshal Les Wedge notes that while people enjoy the look of holiday lights, they should make sure to turn them off whenever leaving the house.

"The heat generated in just one minute by the fire from a tree is enough to destroy an entire room," Wedge said.

"When purchasing lights from the store, read the package to determine how many strings can be plugged together," Wedge said.

"You may have to plug multiple strings directly into an outlet. And if you use an extension cord, make sure you use one that can handle the electrical load."

Wedge also reminds homeowners to avoid heating ducts when putting up a fresh Christmas tree, because the heat will dry out the tree, making it more flammable.

For outside decorations, Champagne has these suggestions.

"Make sure the lights you purchase are intended for outdoor use, and be careful not to overload the circuit."

Many families like the warm crackle of wood burning in the fireplace during the winter.

"The number one problem with fireplaces is maintenance," said Bob Fields, Westland fire department's chief of the public education division. "We see a number of chimney fires related to a build-up of creosote, a by-product of burning wood, catching fire. Chimneys should be cleaned annually to avoid the danger."

Fields also reminds us "to keep the glass doors and screens closed when using the fireplace to keep the embers from shooting into the house, causing a fire. Also, remember to open the flue, otherwise you'll force smoke into the room."

When using wood burning stoves, Livonia Fire Marshal Rockney Whitehead says homeowners "should burn it on hot for 15 to 30 minutes a day, to burn off the creosote build-up and lessen the dangers for a chimney fire."

And, while many homeowners want a clean wood burning stove, Whitehead has some suggestions.

"Keep a couple of inches of sand or ashes on the bottom of the stove," recommends Whitehead. "That will keep the heat from radiating to the floor, possibly causing combustible material from catching fire."

Concerning kerosene space heaters, Whitehead alerts us to be careful.

"Don't use them in closed rooms like a bedroom," he advises. "Use mainly in open rooms, like a living or family room, to decrease the chances of carbon monoxide poisoning."

"And, make sure you don't accidentally use gasoline, instead of kerosene," warns Whitehead. "That definitely could cause the unit to catch on fire."

Trustees set Dec. 15 deadline for residents to apply for board

By KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

John Walsh officially leaves the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees on Dec. 31, but he attended his last official board meeting on Nov. 19.

Walsh received a certificate of appreciation from the board for his dedication to quality education and commitment to community colleges. Walsh was appointed to the board in February 1993 and then elected for a six-year term in June 1993.

Trustees commended Walsh for his time served on the board.

Board Chair Patricia Watson commended Walsh for his time served on the board, calling him an "ambassador" for the board.

"He was always willing to serve on committees," Watson said. "He has served and served well.'

While Walsh is looking forward to sitting on the Livonia City Council, he said he was somewhat saddened because he has enjoyed his time on the Schoolcraft board.

"I've made strong friendships and appreciate your support and comments," Walsh said.

Successor sought

Schoolcraft College is seeking a successor to John Walsh's seat on the board.

Trustees are accepting letters from interested candidates. The only qualifications are that they must live in the college district and they must be registered vot-

Persons wishing to apply for the position must be residents of the college district which includes the Plymouth-Canton. Garden Livonia. City, Clarenceville. Northville and part of the Novi school districts. The replacement will serve through June 30, 1999. The election for that seat will be in June 1999.

Trustees set a deadline of Dec. 15 for applications. Trustees also scheduled a Jan. 7 meeting to receive the applications, at which time they will discuss how to narrow that field. Tentative meeting dates were scheduled for Jan. 17 for interviews and Jan. 24, if the field of candidates is large enough to merit the need.

Trustees plan to approve a final candidate on Jan. 28.

Applicants will be asked to provide general biographical information and write a letter to the board on why they want to serve.

Applications are available in the Office of the President, Room 190, in the Administration Building. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

For information, call (313) 462-4420.

FOCUS ON WINE

Working magic with wine and food

66 good is food and wine is wine, but magic can happen when you combine the two," says Simi Winery's Executive Chef Mary Evely. Evely has family roots in Michigan and in her just-published "The Vintner's Table Cookbook," she shares discoveries about why certain food flavors and textures pair magically with some wines and not with others.

Many authors have attempted to do what Evely has done. But they have either overwhelmed readers with technicalities or were so general in setting down principals that nothing they wrote was useful to the home cook.

Flavor and textures

Evely gets you going at the beginning by discussing flavor and texture, the major palate influences on food and wine harmonies. However, "sometimes a brilliant combination can be made by using contrasting rather than similar flavor or textures," she writes. She makes pairings based on color, using her trained artist's eyes and instructs readers on how to analyze a recipe for its potential wine affinity. Calling them chameleon foods and recipes, Evely, ever so helpfully, notes recipes that can, with minor alterations, be made to work with more than one wine. She sticks to the basics and doesn't go overboard with esoteric wines. Recipes included in the cookbook pair food with sauvignon blanc, chardonnay, rosé and blush wines, pinot noir, zinfandel, cabernet sauvignon, merlot and meritage bottlings. Relations between wines and dessert form the concluding chapter.

WITH A FEW/MODERN FOOD/GIFTS

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER

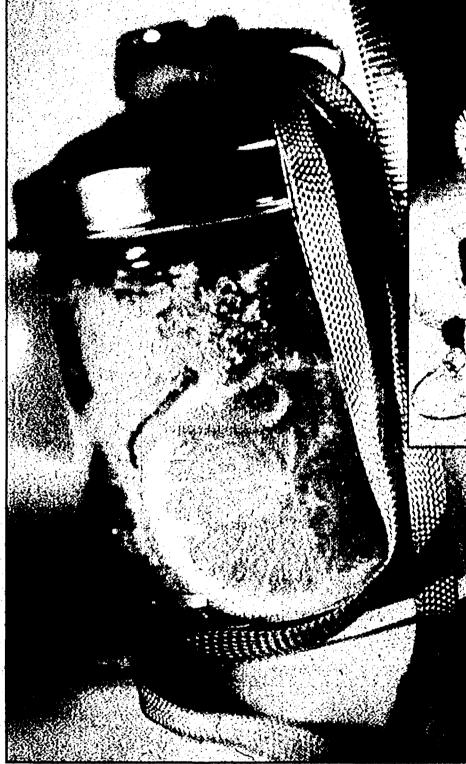

Food - one size fits all - it's the perfect gift.

"If you're on a budget, it can be very cost effective," said Martha Gill, a graphic designer, and author of "Modern Food Gifts," (Longstreet Press, 1997, hardcover $18.95). "It's more personal. It shows you went out of your way to do something special."

Gill who is the creative director, principal and owner of Gill Design in Atlanta, began giving food gifts out of necessity. "I was trying to say thank-you to clients, but I didn't have a lot of time, or money."

Her gifts were so popular that clients started calling to ask if she could put gifts together for them. Clever packaging is her secret - "freshening-up food gifts and taking them into the new millennium."

Instead of wrapping up shortbread in aluminum foil with a ribbon, Gill puts them into a pretty ceramic teapot. "If you want to spend your whole Saturday baking that's fine," she said. "Or, you could go to the bakery." Some projects take, more time than others, but you're sure to be inspired by Gill's recipes for a variety of sure-to-be-enjoyed and appreciated food gifts, and explanations for wrapping them up. "The book also has a resource guide that tells you where we got everything so you won't go nuts trying to find everything," she said. "Use the book as a jumping off point for your own creativity." Her list of "favored merchants" includes a number of stores in your neighborhood - Ace Hardware, The Home Depot, Linens 'N Home Made in the Kitchen Things,

Pinot noir

Because of our fondness for pinot noir, we focused on the usefulness of Evely's book and this wine. There are 14 recipe pairings for pinot noir and two "chameleon" recipes. Included are soup, salads, pastas, a gourmet pizza, seafoods, duck, beef and pork. This covers the gamut, sensitively recognizing options for those preferring meatless.

Noting food affinities such as seafood, meat and poultry, herbs and spices, sauces, cheese and nuts plus vegetables and fruits, Evely names pinot noir food conflicts for all but meat and poultry. Pinot noir does not match oysters, smoked fish orsushi. It is in conflict with cilantro, cumin, curry, cream sauces, aged Gouda, blue cheese and cheddar. It is unfriendly to artichokes, asparagus and green beans.

"Remember, keep it simple and give the gift your own personal style," she writes. "Please don't make yourself crazy if you can't find the exact ribbon; a loosely tied shoestring will look great."

Flavored sugar - made by layering white or raw sugar with flavoring ingredients such as split vanilla beans, candied citrus fruits, and cinnamon sticks – is an example of what Gill calls "the quintessential modern food gift.

"Namely, that simple, inexpensive ingredients and everyday items can be combined in inexpensive ways to produce objects of wit and style."

"Flavored sugar is a good office gift," said Gill. "It's a small luxury.

You can stir it into tea or coffee. Everyone's like 'ooh we have flavored sugar.' It's special."

"Modern Food Gifts," is available at Williams-Sonoma, Barnes & Noble and other bookstores. Every gift idea is beautifully illustrated. It's a thoughtful gift by itself, or packaged with a gift certificate for one of the stores listed in the book.

Look for Gill's "Modern Cocktails & Appetizers" in the spring, and "Modern Parties," in the fall. "We're excited about the series," said Gill. "It's all about lifestyle. You can have splendor without the stress!"

"Home Made in the Kitchen: Traditional Recipes and Household Projects Updated and Made Easy," by Barry Bluestein & Kevin Morrissey, (Penguin Studio, 1996) is another source of creative gift-giving ideas. Bluestein and Morrissey also offer suggestions for attractively packaging your gifts, and a resource guide so you can find everything you'll need.

"In an era of dissatisfaction with the manufactured and the mundane, 'Home Made in the Kitchen' offers simple, quick and inexpensive ideas for entertaining with grace, creating unique gifts, and adding elegant personal touches to the dinner table and buffet," write the authors.

"Everyone loves something baked for the holidays," said baker-author Ken Haedrich who starts his holiday baking the first weekend after Thanksgiving.

"I know the weeks right before Christmas will be extra busy, so I turn to tried and true favorites that freeze well," he said. Quick breads, made with pumpkin, walnuts and pecans, fresh and dried cranberries, apples and pears are at the top of his makeahead gift ideas.

Loaf-type breads, said Haedrich are actually better baked ahead because their flavors meld and they become easier to slice. Bake your favorite quick bread in disposable mini foil pans from the grocery store, and freeze. Quick breads have a shelf life of 3 to 5 days.

For gift-giving Haedrich recommends wrapping mini quick bread loaves in clear cellophane gift bags which are available in party and stationery stores. Tie with a bow and attach a tiny ornament or fresh holly. See recipes & suggestions inside.

Don't throw your weight during holidays

tips:

the New Year. But first, we need to SENSIBLY get through the upcoming holidays -Hanukkah and Christmas. Holidays produce a lot of anxiety for many individuals. You've worked hard all year in reforming your diet. Perhaps you lost a significant amount of weight or became a vegetarian. Many of my clients worry that they will undo everything positive that they have accomplished all year. BEVERLY How can you prevent yourself from PRICE falling into the holiday food trap? Get a hold of yourself from the getgo. Develop a strategy to at least maintain'your current weight during the holiday season, here are some and gorged yourself, think about how you felt afterward. At this year's holiday gatherings, have a plateful of what is being served and call it your meal. Make meat the side dish versus the main course, and fill up on side dishes. Avoid going back for seconds and thirds. If you want dessert, take a small piece. Research shows that you only taste the first, second and last bite anyway.

Think about how hard you have worked to keep your body fit

Picture your goal in one hand, and that piece of heesecake in the other hand. Is a rich dessert worth that fleeing moment of bliss? Although an evening of indulging won't put your weight back on, a week or month of indulging could. Bake healthy holiday goodies You can use nutritious fat substitutes such as Wonderslim or Lighter Bake, which consist of pureed plums or prunes, in place of fat called for in a recipes such as butter or shortening. You can also use brown rice syrup or barley malt in place of sugar in a recipes. In addition, use whole wheat flour in place of white flour - use 1/8 of a cup less of wheat flour. Your end product will be so much more nutritious.

Eat lightly before going to Hanukkah or Christmas dinner

If you save up all of your calories for the "big meal," you'll be so famished that you may eat everything in sight. Drink water throughout the day, too - sometimes we're actually thirsty, not hungry.

📕 Relax Give yourself some breathing room. Make time daily to deep breathe. This can redirect your energy, and improve digestion and uptake of nutrients. You can even listen to soft music or relaxation tapes. Keep up with your exercise routine It is important to take that exercise break, especially during this time of year. You will increase your Recipes from "The Vintner's Table Cookbook" to pair with pinot noir wines.

MUSHROOM PANADE

- 3/4 ounce dried porcini mushrooms (available in Italian and specialty stores).
- 3 cups hot water

B2*

- 8 ounces shiitake mushrooms 12 ounces portobello, crimini and/or white mushrooms 1 large onion
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 or 2 bay leaves

2 (14-ounce) cans vegetable broth or defatted chicken

- broth 1 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground
- black pepper
- 8 ounces stale French or Italian bread, crusts removed 1/2 to 1 cup half-and-half (optional)

Soak the porcini in hot water in a bowl. Clean fresh mushrooms with a brush of paper towel and reserve a few for garnish. Chop fresh mushrooms.

Sauté onion in heated olive oil in a heavy saucepan over medium heat for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add fresh mushrooms and cook for 3 minutes longer, stirring constantly.

ROASTED DUCK LEGS WITH POMEGRANATE

4 duck legs with thighs salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

1 pomegranate 8 ounces Brussels sprouts

4 slices lean bacon, cut into

- 1/4-inch strips 1/4 cup duck or chicken stock
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar 2 tablespoons unsweetened
- pomegranate juice (available in health food stores)

Preheat oven to 400°F. Rinse duck and pat dry. Season with salt and pepper. Place skin side down in a heated sauté pan. Cook over medium heat until golden brown on both sides.

Remove duck to a small roasting pan. Roast for 40-60 minutes or until very tender and crisp.

Break open the pomegranate; separate and reserve seeds. Remove green outer leaves of Brussels sprouts. (Reserve cores for use in a soup).

Wipe the sauté pan used for browning duck. Add bacon and sauté until golden brown. Remove to paper towel with a slotted spoon. Drain pan, reserving 2 tablespoons drippings.

Stir-fry Brussels sprouts leaves in reserved drippings for 1-2 minutes. Add stock, vinegar and pomegranate juice. Cook for 1 minute longer, stirring constantly; leaves should remain dark green. Add bacon and pepper to taste.

Spoon onto warmed plates. Place duck on top and sprinkle with reserved pomegranate seeds. Serve immediately. Serves four.

work equally well with an elegant dinner or a backyard grill," Evely notes.

Discussing her Mushroom Panade she explains, "I have always loved thick, hearty soups, and they are preferable with wine as they provide some contrast in texture. Using leftover

"Pinot noir has the style to bread as a thickening agent appeals to my thrifty nature as well as to my interest in low-fat cooking. It also suits pinot noir, which can be overwhelmed by dishes with a lot of fat. Chicken or vegetable broth also keeps flavors in a more delicate range.".

Evely has always been interested in the way her chef colleagues view matches. The idea for Roasted Duck Legs with Pomegranate comes from Richard Allen, Chef of the Willowside Café in Santa Rosa, Calif. "I tried this with a bottle of pinot noir and was blown away by the combination," she admits. "Keep your eyes peeled for pomegranates in the market in December and jump on this. Pomegranate has just the right amount of delicate fruit and acidity to match that of pinot noir, giving a lift to the richness of the duck. In the recipe, the quick stir-frying of the Brussels sprouts leaves results in a total-

What you need

White sugar and/or raw sugar Selection of flavoring ingredients, such as organic rosebuds, crystallized ginger, citrus fruits, cinnamon sticks, and split vanilla beans

- Containers such as sugar dispensers, vinegar and oil cruets, flour shakers and bottles with stoppers
- Fabric ribbons

Pour sugar into a container to a depth of half an inch. Add a small amount of your chosen flavoring ingredient. (If using cinnamon sticks to flavor the sugar, break the sticks into small pieces). Continue layering the sugar and the flavoring, ending with the sugar 1/4-inch from the top of the container.

Replace lid. Loosely tie a ribbon around the neck or top of the container.

CRANBERRY CHUTNEY

3 pounds of cranberries Zest and juice of 2 oranges and 1 lemon 3/4 to 1 cup sugar 1/2 cup distilled vinegar

2 teaspoons chopped fresh ginger

- 1 to 2 teaspoons each of ground cumin, ground coriander seeds, and red pepper flakes
- 1 fresh mango, peeled and chopped into 1/4-inch chunks, or other fruits such as blackberries or strawberries

Wash cranberries and place in a medium saucepan. Add 1 cup of the sugar, the vinegar, and the zest and juice. Bring to a low boil and cook just until the berries burst. Add the ginger, spices, and mango or other fruit and stir once. Taste, adding additional sugar if necessary. (Mixture should be a little tart). Allow to cool. The chutney jell slightly as it cools. Chutney will keep for 1 week in the refrigerator. Makes about 3 cups.

How to package it - Pour prepared relish into jam jar. Put lid and spoon in place. Tie a ribbon around the lid.

Search futile for a 24-hour pharmacy

My husband and I took our 2-year-old daughter to the emergency room about 11 p.m. on a recent Saturday night. She had a high fever that we couldn't bring down.

We left the hospital about three hours later with a very tired - but less feverish - little girl, and a prescription for an antibiotic that we needed to get filled in time for her next dose, which was due at 6 a.m.

We asked a nurse if we could get the prescription filled at the hospital pharmacy. She said she was sorry, but that it was closed.

est 24-hour pharmacy was. Again, she said she was sorry, but that she didn't know. Oh well, we thought.

We're bound to pass one on the way home.

We asked her if she

Top toys draw shoppers to the checkout

The quest for Ernie and Barbie have shoppers on the prowl this season, but leading toy stores assure Santa's helpers that their retail shelves are being stocked anew each evening.

BY BARB PERT TEMPLETON SPECIAL WRITER

Wish lists are long and supplies often short, but landing a Sing and Snore Ernie, or Talk With Me Barbie, may prove worth the search for many toy shoppers this holiday season.

And if the customers are anything like the ones that greeted Lisa Rowland outside of the Target store in Rochester last week, it's safe to say many are very determined.

"It has just been phenomenal, we had customers lined up halfway around this plaza the day after Thanksgiving," said Rowland, who is the store's Toy Team Leader. "When we opened at 7 a.m. they just all ran towards the toys."

The infamous "Ernie" doll by Tyco retails for $29.99 and Target has been hard-pressed to keep any of them on their shelves for more than a few hours.

"We don't have any in stock right now. I wish we did," smiled Rowland. "But also fortunately for us, the merchandise has been flowing in pretty steadily and we can re-stock our shelves every night."

Star Wars action figures and Hot Wheels cars remain popular among the elementary school set but again a stuffed toy is harboring the top spot on many Christmas lists. The Real Bubba Bear by Tyco talks and interacts with the child. The chatty bear, which is dressed in overalls and a big straw hat, retails for $39.99.

We had some of the Bubba Bear come in here today and they just flew out of here," said Rowland.

Friday night fun: The Pressman Toy Co. has reintroduced Carcers. a 40-year-old board game of fame, fortune and happiness for a new generation of families. For 2-6 players, ages 8 and up, $9.99 at Target, Toys R Us and Wal-Mart.

year too. Girls want the "Clueless" head set which is a hands-free phone spun from the popular movie of the same title. It retails for $24.99.

Teen boys want Game.com by Tiger which costs $69.99. The toy is a handheld computer game that can also be hooked up to a personal computer The Talk With Me Barbie, and Barbie CD Rom, are in demand by both adolescent Parker Brothers' Star Wars Monopoly and Milton Bradley's Chicken Croquet are the preferred games.

Target stores are experiencing a similar demand for games but their shelves are stocked with more than just the latest board games.

"I'd say the basic games, the oldres but goodies like Battleship and Cluc are all selling well, too," Rowland said

But we didn't. Every drugstore we passed When we got home, we put Kathryn to bed and got out the Yellow

Pages. There were many pharmacy listings, but none of them said whether or not they were open 24 hours, and the seven or so that we called, were closed.

I decided to get on the Internet, hoping that it would speed up our search. I thought some of the chain pharmacies in our area might have store locator guides and sure enough, they did.

But, as with the Yellow Pages listings, none indicated whether or not they were 24-hour stores.

The Rite Aid site gave a 1-800 number to call for more information. I called it and had to go through its menu several times before a computer voice told me that it was going to connect me to Rite Aid's nearest 24-hour pharmacy.

Pay dirt, I thought.

But the phone just rang and rang. Nobody answered, and I had no idea where that store was or what its outside phone number was - the computer voice never said.

So I called the 1-800 number again and went through the menu several more times until I finally reached a different extension at that same store.

"Where are you located," I desperately, asked the woman who answered the phone.

"Six Mile and Newburgh," she said.

"Great," I told her. And then, just to be safe, I said, "You have a 24-hour pharmacy, right?"

'Yes, we do . . . but it's not open tonight," she answered.

"Why not?" I asked, in utter disbelief.

"Well, our pharmacist called in sick and we couldn't get anyone to fill in," she explained.

(Arrggh!)

She told me that the nearest 24-hour pharmacy was on Schaefer in Dearborn. But that's about 40 minutes from my house and by this time, it was 3:30 a.m. and I didn't trust myself to make that long drive because I was so tired.

Needless to say, Kathryn's next dose of medicine was late. I don't want this to happen to any other sick child - or adult, for that matter. So I decided to compile a list of 24-hour pharmacies in Wayne and Oakland counties.

I talked to spokespeople and representatives for Kmart, Kroger, Farmer Jack, Arbor Drugs, F & M, and Metjer, and was surprised to learn that none of them have a 24-hour pharmacy in Detroit. They do have some 24-hour retail stores in the area, but none of them include a 24-hour pharmacy.

To my knowledge, Rite Aid is the only company that has any all-night pharmacies in Detroit, Eleven of its locations are open 24-hours-a-day, 365 days a year.

Group sells gifts to help needy

Perhaps this year, Uncle Elmer doesn't need another tie. Maybe a business associate would really prefer something other than canned ham, mixed nuts or fruitcake.

If making a gift of charity would make the holiday more meaningful, there is a international relief organization, Alternative Gifts International, of Pasadena, California, that offers food, job training, medicines, eye surgery, solar cookers and even adoption of rain forest acreage.

AGI helps organizations, churches and schools develop alternate markets to sell trees, medicine, food, livestock, handmade crafts, tools and more. The gifts that donors give in honor of family and friends may bring new life and hope to people in the developing world and to people living in poverty in the United States.

Donors receive a gift card with their gift inscribed, to be mailed to the recipient of their choice.

For more information, call AGI at 1-800-842-2243.

Double-duty merchandise aids charities

Holiday shoppers at Hudson's may purchase special gifts that will return a portion of their sales to national charities.

Through a special holiday arrangement, six organizations that assist sick or dependent children and adults, will benefit from the project. • Every cent of the $13 retail price of M.A.C. Viva Glam and Viva Glam II lipsticks are donated to the fight against AIDS. Two cookbooks, exclusive to Hudson's, will benefit the United Way, Potluck for 33.000. $10.95 and With Warmest Regards, $11.95. • Save the Children sterling silver jewelry, $20 - $30, donates a percentage of the profits to Save the Children, an international fund. These Christopher Radko holiday ornaments each benefit a different cause: A Caring Clown, $36, benefits AIDS Awareness; Kitty Cares, $30, benefits 1997 Pediatric Cancer research, and Watch Over Me, $28, benefits the Polish Children's Home. • The Ronald McDonald House ornament, $7.50, benefits the "house that love built" for children with lengthy illnesses and their families. • Through a special program between Hudson's and Help Me Grow, each P. J. Huggabee teddy bear purchase buys two. You can brighten a child's smile in your life as well as a foster child in need of a smile. Every time there is a purchase of P. J. Huggabee, $20, another bear will be given to a child entering the foster care system in their state.

CURATIVE or QUACKERY?

BY RICHARD PEARL STAFF WRITER

For an ancient Chinese "secret," magnets are attracting a lot of attention in some metro-Detroit health and sports circles these days.

Their "pull" is being felt in golf shops and by sports teams, through cable television infomercials and in some medical practitioners' offices - and even at the university level.

In the wake of claims by professional golfer Jim Colbert that magnets saved his career, at least two metro-area golf shops - Carl's Golfland of Bloomfield Hills and Gorman Golf Products, Inc., of Southfield - have begun selling magnets for backs and wrists and as shoe inserts.

And at least one chiropractor, Dr. Dave Taylor of Redford who practices in Garden City and Livonia, believes they're "the wave of the future, the missing link in the philosophy of chiropractic." (See related story.)

But despite that - and the fact magnets have been used as health and healing aids in the Orient and elsewhere for hundreds, if not thousands, of years - the question in Detroit and the United States remains: are they real or is it quackerv?

Or, as a Dearborn Heights magnets user and believer said in trying to guess why the U.S. medical establishment is seemingly resistant, if not opposed, to using magnets: "There's a lot of snake oil out there."

Because of the general lack of scientific research in the U.S. on magnets and health - a fact lamented by a University of Michigan professor - most of the available information is "anecdotal." which has tended to leave the topic in the realm of so-called "alternative medicine."

Personal experiences have ranged from senior golfer Colbert - who was quoted in a Detroit publication as saying he was "driving farther" since to a wide variety of therapies such as acupuncture wearing magnets to relieve back spasms - to everyday folk claiming relief from everything from insomnia and allergies to migraine headaches and arthritis. Others have claimed rapid post-operative healing while still others have even claimed being cured of, or at least seen diminished suffering from, such illnesses as multiple sclerosis and cancer.

Alternative medicine, which ranges from vitamins, minerals, herbs and other food supplements and aromatherapy, has nor deny it.

He did say, however, "There is a scientific basis for using" magnets in healing.

He explained that blood and other liquids, which contain sodium and potassium that have dissolvedmetal ions carrying electrical charges, are always moving inside the body. "Anytime a charge moves, there is the possibility of a magnetic field being generated, so when you bring another magnet upon these moving charges, the movement will be influenced.

Stop smoking clinic

The city of Livonia is sponsoring the Stop Smoking Clinic conducted by Dr. Arthur Weaver. The seven night program will be held at Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road, just east of Farmington Road. No set fee is charged, although donations are accepted. Dates will include: Thursday, Jan. 8; Monday, Jan. 12 through Friday, Jan. 16; and Tuesday, Jan. 20. All sessions begin at 7:30 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. For more information, call Livonia City Hall at (313) 466-2535 weekdays.

Sunday health club

Magnetic power: Bill Evans, University of Michigan professor of chemistry, is posed with a spectro-meter that allows researchers, like Evans, to study magnetic material and the compounds of which they are comprised. Evans says the spectro-meter is one of the most powerful pieces of equipment team and Detroit Pistons basavailable to study magnetic materials found in such things as therapeutic devices (shoe inserts, jewelry, magnetic patches).

become a major medical phenomenon in the U.S., with billions of dollars being spent annually hydemericans seek-ing answers dey feel they are not getting from conventional medicine.

"People are turning in desperation" to such things as magnets, said Dr. Bill Evans, a chemistry professor at the University of Michigan who has been studying such alternatives "since I went off to college."

Evans, a solid-state chemist who has taught and researched at U-M for 27 years, has been a consultant to companies making magnetic coatings for computer diskettes and cassette tapes. While he believes magnets "probably are not useful in" acute illness situations" such as MS or cancer, he does believe they have medicinal use.

For example, he said, magneto therapy "has been demonstrated to be effective in sports medicine" such as in treating ankle sprains: "Just lay a magnet on (the sprain) and it will stimulate the healing process," the professor said.

Indeed, rumor has it the Detroit Red Wings hockey ketball team have used magnets in therapy, although Evans could neither confirm

"So if you have an injury and there's a wound there, and you're trying to take away decaying tissue and bring in the healing fluids of the body, then putting a magnet up to that injury site will influence the flow of the fluids," said Dr. Evans.

In arthritis, for example, "inflammation is fluidflow to the joints" and either fluids are not getting to the area or are not getting out, he said. "You want to bring nutrients to the area and take away wastes and a magnet will influence that process."

Use of magnets "has been around for a long time," said Dr. Evans. It extends to an ancient Chinese practice known as geomancy, in which home builders as long as 3,000 years ago used magnets to decide where to build a house and which way it should face.

And one medical history book, he said, tells of an 18th-century English medical practitioner who built a magnetized conjugal bed to help conception.

Today, magnets are being promoted through network marketing and on television infomercials. Some companies offer only better sleep and more energy, while others have claimed medical cures.

However, the federal Food and Drug Administration has moved against the latter due to lack of scientific proof.

Today, in the absence of such proof, a person must take the stories with a grain of salt, said U-M's Evans, "because who's to say it's not a placebo effect" - a person feels better because he believes he will.

The bottom line is, said Evans, "Magneto therapy is here, whether we like it or not and we doctors and scientists have to put it on a sound basis in order to live up to our responsibility to the public."

He believes such research is coming. However, "At the moment, I think, except for some personal testimony, there is not a lot of basis" to claims about magnets.

"But look, if you're trying to get well, it doesn't really matter whether it's science or art" as long as

Positive results turn skeptic into a believer

BY RICHARD PEARL STAFF WRITER

Daniel McManaman of Dearborn Heights believes in the effectiveness of magnets.

When he came home from the hospital after quadruple-bypass open-heart surgery last year, "We put magnets all over him and he was off pain medication in three weeks," says his wife Nelda.

"He had cut way back on his medications even before that," she says. And when he went to his cardiologist six weeks after the surgery, "he was told he was two months ahead of schedule" in terms of recovery.

Daniel also uses them on his ankle to relieve the discomfort of the incisions from the vein grafts, says Nelda. "It keeps the swelling down and makes the discomfort go away."

Her husband "was skeptical at first," she says. "Like all guys - they kind of hold back," but once she put the magnets on him and they started working, he was a believer.

Nelda, who's been plagued for years by allergies and back problems, has been involved with "alternative nealth and nutrition," as she describes it, for 16 years and calls magnets "another wonderful alternative to help people enhance their lives and well-being."

the various nutritional products she takes for her allergies. She says they've also helped her backach-

A woman to whom she loaned some magnets said they helped her with jet lag on a flight to and from Italy.

Magnets, Nelda says, "keep the body in a harmonious state.

"It's not like taking a pill. It continues helping and enhancing your lifestyle, it puts balance in your lifestyle.

"My belief is that every human being needs magnetism - they just don't know it yet," she says.

However, magnetic therapy "is a kind of cloudy area in chiropractic," says Dr. Dave Taylor, an associate chiropractor with Gregg Chiropractic Life Centers in Garden City and Livonia.

"It's like massage therapy" in that it is "beyond the scope of the law, a kind of gray area."

While that keeps him from prescribing magnets in his practice, he nevertheless believes such therapy "is the wave of the future - the missing link in the philosophy of chiropractic."

The reason chiropractors touch people's backs is,

nature is magnetic flow."

He's seen magnets reduce discomfort and stress. "and we need to do everything we can to reduce stress." Getting a really good night's sleep - which he says magnet help provide - is one way to reduce stress, but the public hasn't been taught the importance of a good night's sleep.

"Sleeping on your stomach with six pillows on the mattress, making it soft and cushiony, is contraindicated as far as spinal health is concerned," says the doctor.

But he doesn't see a quick move anytime soon by medical men in the United States to embrace and prescribe magnets. "After all, it took the medical profession 200 years to accept the thermometer," he notes sardonically.

Is more research into magnets needed. "You can research something to death," he says.

Mike Fogarty, manager and buyer for Carl's Golfland in Bloomfield Hills, says his company sells magnets by Tectonics.

The magnetic pads can be worn in wraparounds for the back or taped to various areas like the neck, calf, knee and even the knuckles, and magnetic mattress pads are available. Although the debate rages as to the effectiveness of magnets, Fogarty believes "there's some very good validity" to the argument for them.

She sleeps on a magnetic mattress and pillow, which she believes helps her body to better utilize he says, "we're nerve doctors, not back doctors" and it's through the nerves that electric current and magnetic current travel.

"But none of our (chiropractic) textbooks mention magnetic flow, and yet the most powerful force in

Low-income workers and their families in Michigan can sign up now to receive free eve care in March through a program called VISION USA.

Optometrists who are members of the Michigan Optometric Association are among nearly 8,000 optometrists nationwide who are donating their services through VISION USA to provide free comprehensive eye exams to low-income people in March.

To qualify for the free eye care, people must have a job or live in a household in which at least one member is working part-time; have no health insurance that covers eye exams; meet certain income criteria based on household size; and not have had an eye exam at a doctor's office within the last two years.

Individuals or families can obtain an application form by writing: VISION USA, 243 N. Lindbergh Blvd., St. Louis, MO 63141. Completed forms must be postmarked by Jan. 23, 1998, according to Dr. Ross H. Williams, the VISION USA coordinator for Michigan.

HEALTH TIP

Applicants will also be screened for eligibility by phone only from Jan. 2 through 30th, 1998. The number to call then is (800) 766-4466. Phone lines will be open weekdays from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

"There is no doubt in my mind that many people in low-income families are being held down because they can't see well enough to do their jobs or to learn in school," said Williams. "Some also have eye health conditions that could cause blindness if left untreated."

The Michigan VISION USA coordinator said approximately 220,000 low-income children and adults have received free eye care in the first seven years of the program. Among the 20,000 examined last year, more than seven out of every 100 had eye health conditions and seven out of 10 needed a new eyeglass prescription.

Don't go over the 'top' at holidays

The mad rush of the holidays can be like a dance in which we try to manage too many steps in too many directions.

"You can sidestep the holiday hustle, though," said Diane Lucas, representative of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) ... "Just follow these three principles.'

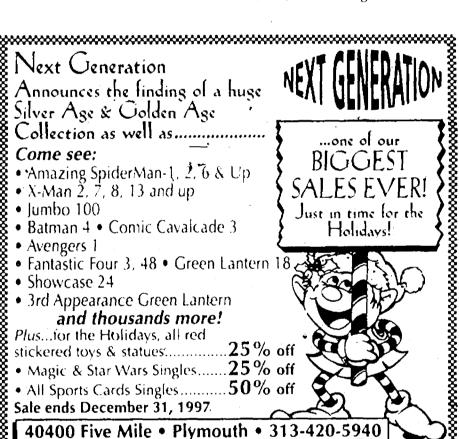

Simplify: "Streamline whenever you can," said Lucas. "This means different things to different people. It might mean you bake one kind of homemade cookies this year instead of a half-dozen varieties. Maybe it means that you take shortcuts on your decorating to achieve the effect you want without a lot of fuss."

Set priorities: Decide what's really important to you, and forego the rest. "What really gets people in over their heads," said Lucas, "is when they can't say no to anything. And so they make the rounds of a half-dozen parties, ferry their kids to ten activities in two weeks, bake until they drop, and host several gatherings of their own. No wonder they're burned out.

Cover the basics first: Sensible eating, regular exercise, and adequate sleep are more important than ever during this busy period. They provide energy, stamina, and mental perspective for enjoying the holidays.

To learn more about TOPS, visit their Web site at http://www.tops.org To locate a chapter in your area, call Barb Lamontagne at (313) 724-0603 or toll free 800-932-8677.

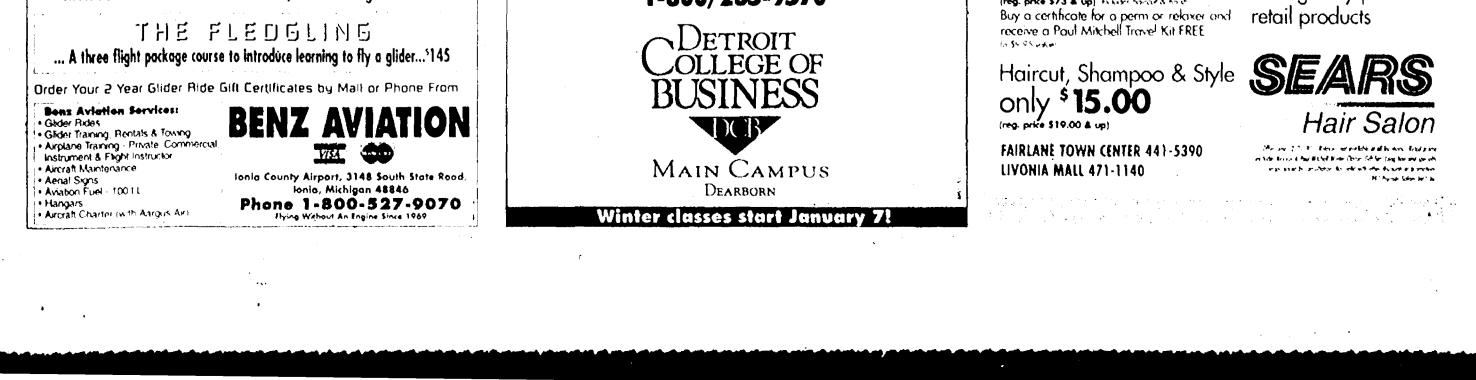

As a business owner you get to call the shots. Control your own destiny. So if you want to own a business, DCB's entrepreneurship programs can help. Offered at both the MBA and associate's degree levels, these programs prepare you for all aspects of business ownership--from accounting and human resources to marketing and management. Because even if you don't have to do it all as a business owner, you essentially have to know it all. Which is why "the big cheese" gets paid "the big bucks!"

■he latest surveys now estimate that 56 million American adults use the Internet. That works out to almost 27 percent of the population 16 and older.

C6*

The survey, from the Intelliquest Information Group, says another 16 million are expecting to be online by this time next year. I put a lot of stock in this survey. Intelliquest has spent much of the past two years. carefully measuring and tracking online user demographics, usage patterns and growth rates and their study has a sampling reliability of plus or minus 1.5 percent. What the company found is that the Internet has become a habit in many peoples lives. Fully two thirds of those 56 • help desk at DirectPC says that shouldn't happen. million Net users now have access from home.

"The thousands of users we have interviewed over the course of this study are telling us that the medium is becoming more mainstream in their lives," says Tom Fornoff, Intelliquest's managing director for Internet Services.

"They're getting online from more locations, spending more time online, performing a wider variety of activities and finding it to be a highly useful channel for shopping and buying."

The survey also shows that the amount of time spent online is also increasing, from just under seven hours a week last year to 9.8 hours today.

With so many now online, the number one need is speed. Speed of access. Modem speeds have indeed been increasing and with billions to be made in profits, the telecommunications giants are jumping all over themselves to repair and expand the Internet infrastructure. But there are some other exciting Internet access means available.

Satellite access

I just installed a new DirectPC satellite system from the Hughes Network Systems group. It consists of a 20-by-36-inch satellite receiving dish mounted on my roof and hooked directly into the back of my PC, using an adapter card that took all of about two minutes to install.

I have the DirectDuo system, that also provides over a hundred satellite-beamed movie and sports channels to my TV.

But it's the Internet access that intrigues me the most. Using their software, I dial into my regular Internet provider, make connection and then get patched through the Net to the DirectPC operations center, which, in turn, links my computer to 'a satellite.

Because you still need to have an account with an Internet Service Provider to make your dial-up connection, you'll be spending around $20 a month for access. Add to that the $50-a month cost for the DirectDuo connection and you'll be spending around $70 a month for everything.

That sounds steep. Hey... that is steep. But when you consider that $50 a month is what it costs in most places for cable TV access, the Direct Duo fee is not that outrageous because you're getting the extra TV programming and the fast Internet access.

The only area where I haven't noticed an improvement in downloading time is with e-mail. The DirectPC connection is actually slower in downloading my e-mail then my 28.8 modem. The

But, on my system, it does. And they; haven't been able to help me fix it.

Still, overall, I'm impressed. I use the Net a lot. I'm always downloading files. And the satellite link makes my net time a lot more effective.

You can spec out your system and learn more from the Hughes Web site at www.direcpc.com {{{CQ}}}}

Cable TV access

This is increasingly becoming an attractive option in many parts of the nation and the Metro Detroit area as cable television companies make very high speed Internet access available over the same coaxial cable that brings television programs into your house. Cable television Internet access typically costs about $49.95 a month. Right now, Cable TV speeds receive at very fast rates, even beyond that of a T1. But they send at slower speeds, about that of a 56 kbps modem. Check out www.comcast.com or www.mediaone.com for information on cable TV access.

Fast phone line access

There are two telephone services that provide fast Internet access.

The least costly is through a high-quality telephone line called an ISDN line, for Integrated Services Digital Network. An ISDN line is about four times as fast as a 28.8 modem. The phone company typically charges about $50 a month for one of these lines.

Then there's another telephone line called ADSL, for Asymmetric Digital Subscriber Line. These will run around $100 a month, on top of a pretty hefty $500 installation fee. ADSL connections operate at speeds from 10 to 50 times faster

Internet service, nearly 14 times faster then my normal 28.8 modem connection. In practical terms, 2 megabyte movie clip that would normally take me about 9 minutes to download with a 28.8 modem takes about 40 seconds with my DirectPC satellite connection. Besides the vast improvement in download speeds, what I notice most about this is how fast web pages load, especially those with lots of graphics

The installation costs around $200. Technicians come to your home, install the dish, tune it into the satellite (you need a good clear view of the southwestern sky) and run the cables to your TV and computer.

But if you want to watch your local TV stations, you're going to need to buy and install an outside TV antenna. Depending on where you live, that can add another $200 to the bill.

What does that do? It gives me blazingly fast , than an ISDN, or 200 times as fast as a 28.8 modem.

The SCool JAzz and SCool JAzz PRime vocal ensembles new CD brings back fond memories of the groups' Russian tour. Director Steven SeGraves and members of the ensemble were invited to tour Russia by Alexander N. Demchenko, Ministry of Culture, last June. The Schoolcraft College ensembles chose the selections according to the response of Russian audiences.

Recorded with Jack Brokensha in his home studio, the CD puts listeners in a mellow mood with jazz classics such as "Take the A Train," "Tve Got the World on a String," "All the Things You Are," and "Angel Eyes."

"We narrowed it down by how the Russian people reacted to a song, if they loved it so much, they had us do it again," said SeGraves. "The group is financing the CD. We decided it was so important to put forth our own money because we want to get this music out there. It was a significant investment

($5,000) but we're interested only in breaking even. It's a great stocking stuffer and people would be supporting college students."

The CD's ($15) and tapes ($10) will be on sale at the groups' annual "Jazz Up the Holidays" concert 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 10, in the community room at Schoolcraft College's Radcliff Center in Garden City. The concert is free, but donations accepted at the door go toward music scholarships and funding future tours.

"When people hear the word jazz sometimes they get scared that it's wild and crazy," said SeGraves. "We use imaginative arrangements. It's like a big band that has been translated into voices. Ella Fitzgerald's and Louis Armstrong's scat singing were unique instrumente."

hear a lot about," said SeGraves. "It's difficult, challenging and rewarding."

SCool JAzz and SCool JAzz PRime were the first American college jazz choirs ever to be invited to tour Russia. Before the trip, the groups received a letter from President Clinton congratulating them and relaying the importance of fostering understanding between the cultures.

For SeGraves, the highlight of the 12-day Russian tour was the folk and dance festival in Cheboksary where a crowd of 30,000 lined the Volga River. The groups marched in a three-hour parade leading up to the festival. "The people were very warm and generous and kind," said SeGraves. "The Cheboksary festival was my favorite part of the tour because we had the chance to get in amongst the people. The people is where you really get a sense of Russia. There's more similarities than differences. The children are like children anywhere - some of them got into mischief, some didn't."

An American commodity, SeGraves says jazz is growing in popularity since its introduction during the years following the dissolution of the U.S.S.R. in 1991, The group performed middle-of-the-road arrangements so as to slowly acclimate its audiences to the fine nuances of vocal jazz.

"We did run into one Russian jazz band, but we were a unique thing there," said SeGraves. "People were fascinated with us as Americans. The young people love it because it has a beat and includes a band."

The groups traveled with an interpreter who, when the group asked if they could go down to the river, replied, "it's a free country." SeGraves said the interpreter repeated this phrase again and again.

"The impression I got was that they were happy with their freedom and wouldn't want to go back to the old days," said SeGraves. When asked if they would like to tour Rus-"Vocal jazz is an art that many people don't | sia again, SeGraves replied enthusiastically.

"We would do it again in a heart beat," he said. "The CD came out of that. We were so pleased with the tour we decided to record the music to communicate the tour but also that's what quality groups do. It's also good publicity for the college and can be used as a tool in recruiting."

Founded by Bradley Bloom in 1968, SCool JAzz was formed so students could learn about vocal jazz, sing jazz, learn about its history and work on the singers' skills. SeGraves took over the group four years ago. The first year, he decided to divide SCool JAzz into two ensembles according to age and experience, SCool JAzz is primarily comprised of undergraduates ranging in age from 18 to 22 because Schoolcraft is basically a two-year institution and SeGraves sometimes only has students for one year. SCool JAzz PRime is similar to a community chorus and consists of singers selected for their experience and talent.

The CD is the first the group has recorded. And if SeGraves has his way it won't be the last. The groups plan to perform at the 1999 Montreaux Jazz Festival in Switzerland pending approval by the school and available funds. It takes $35,000 to $40,000 to produce a tour.

"We want to thank the school for supporting us and helping with the more than $30,000 in expenses," said SeGraves. "Jean Bonner, in particular, went to bat for us because she believed in us."

If you miss SCool JAzz and SCool JAzz PRime's Dec. 10 concert, they'll be back singing during the annual Mardi Gras Celebration of jazz and creole cooking 7:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20, at Schoolcraft College. For information, call (313) 462-4417.

Artist molds international reputation

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN STAFF WRITER

John Murphy could hardly believe the letter stating he was one of two American clay artists accepted into the fifth International Triennial of Contemporary Porcelain taking place June 12 through Oct. 11 in Nyon, Switzerland. Murphy is an advanced ceramics instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. A jury of international ceramists and museum curators selected him and 13 other artists from 253 entries from 35 countries. Murphy and Wayne Higby will represent the United States. "I'm very honored to be one of two chosen to represent this country in this international exhibition," said Murphy. "It's been worth the 20 years of hard work to find oneself in this position. This is really a great honor; I'm looking forward to sending my work. Murphy credits his success as a clay artist to the fact he is responsible for every square inch of the work, a premise learned while studying for his master's degree at Wayne State University. Even the insides and bottoms of the vessels are finished with Murphy's trademark black and white surface decoration.

"I use black and white as a symbol of good and evil, positive and negative," said Murphy. "I'm very aware of racial issues because my wife's African American. But I worked in black and white before I met her. Maybe it's subconscious, but I'm not consciously trying to make a statement that black and white can work together."

Murphy's first contact with clay came at a potter's wheel more than two decades ago. Over the years, throwing clay gradually evolved into a lengthy process

"I'd been intrigued with shields in African art, more for their geometric shape than as a means of protection," said Murphy. "I thought it was fitting to hang them up on the walls because that's the way they're displayed in museums."

For the next step, Murphy places a mold on top of a potter's wheel. He rolls out the clay with a pin then places it in the mold.

"I've been changing the format from a vessel to sculptural closed forms to wall forms," said Murphy. "My work is constantly evolving." --

One of the problems, Murphy encountered is designing the shield so that it could be displayed on a wall. He arrived at a clay in the plaster mold. He then builds up a lip for the back by throwing the work on a wheel. "I wanted the shield to be self-sufficient, to hang on its own," said Murphy. "This way the shield seals to the wall and is aesthetically pleasing even when viewed from the side."

Murphy utilizes repetition and geometric shapes in his work in an attempt to marry design elements.

"Even though I work in raku and stoneware, I love porcelain. It's clean and smooth and nice and white," said Murphy. "But porcelain is more difficult to con-

Murphy's first shield evolved from a demonstration for his students at Schoolcraft College. He will teach advanced ceramics and raku during the winter term.

As a child, Murphy snuck into his father's workshop to use the tools. Later on in life, he crafted jewelry before turning to clay. Murphy's "always had this urge to work with his hands." But over the years, it's become a passion. In order to create art, he works full time building experimental engines for Ford Motor Company.

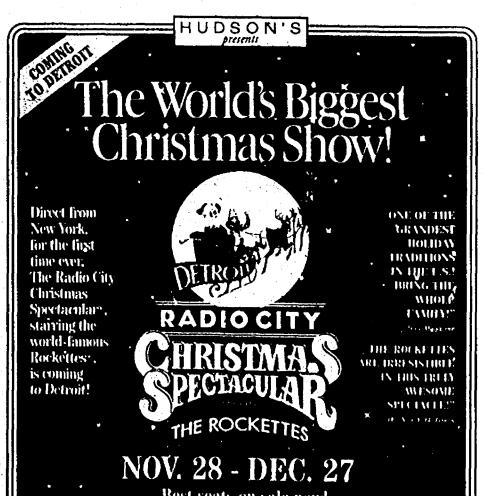

Is Murphy worried about shipping the fragile porcelain pieces to Europe? No. in fact several of Murphy's works recently were mailed to Penn State University for a national exhibition. Murphy says, he'll "just package them very carefully."

Murphy exhibits his work as often as possible. His clay art has been included in shows at Gallery Functionart in Pontiac; the Ann Arbor Art Association; San Angelo Museum of Fine Art. Texas, and Louisville Visual Arts Center, Kentucky.

His work is currently on exhibit in "Earthly Treasure." Pewabic Pottery's annual Holiday Invitational, which continues through Dec. 31.

Murphy's works are also on display at the Swann Gallery. Detroit, and in "Undefining the Holidays," a show continuing through Dec. 23 at the Detroit Artists Market.

BOOKS New Ann Arbor mystery explores history, family

B'ack Dlamond By Susan Holtzer

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1997 -

computer expert Anneke Haagen returns in this fourth-in-aseries mystery novel. This time around, she's joined by new pal Zoe Kaplan, introduced to readers in Haagen's last adven-

Who committed this rather untidy crime? And why? And where has the "crazy" Gerald Swann been all these years?"

Soon, Zoe, Anneke and Lt. Karl Genesko of the Ann Arbor P.D. will be hot on the trail of the killer – a trail that will take them all the way to the forests of northern Michigan and eventually on trip into the state's rowdy past.

It's a big plus for this series that its star character seems to take on just a bit more life with each episode, and Holtzer usually manages to integrate this fleshing-out of Anneke Haagen rather seamlessly into her curlicued plots. With this story much of which revolves around the intricacies of familial relationships - Anneke herself wrestles with the difficulties of parenting grown children, as daughter Emma refuses to accept her relationship with Genesko because she considers him a "dumb jock cop." Speaking of Genesko, the former Wolverine linebacker is also taking on his own strong identity. Picture a teddy bear with a lively brain and a predilection for lamb vindaloo, and you begin to get the picture of what Anneke Haagen's intended is like. He participates so actively. by the way, in solving this crime that a reader may wonder why the book is marketed only as "A mystery featuring Anneke Haa-gen and Zoe Kaplan."

As to Kaplan, readers may also wonder if she's a permanent addition to the Haagen series. Whatever happens in that case. she's certainly a natural for this particular story which has as part of its focus a strong friendship between two women of the 19th century.

Holtzer's extensive research into Michigan's logging history is truly remarkable. And her ability to-bring this background to life can be fascinating (if you'd like to get acquainted with Michigan's very own "wild west" era, start here). But her characters from the past – revealed as they are only through letters written years earlier - don't ever come alive the way most of her multi-dimensional, contemporary cast does, and this gives "Black Diamond" a slight, bothersome imbalance overall. (Two of her characters - train robber John Smalley and prostitute Cora Brown - are based on fact.

It's all great fun, though. And nobody writes about Ann Arbor today like Susan Holtzer does. Don't miss it, especially it you're a fan of Michigan mystery novels.

ture, "Bleeding Maize and Blue." The non-stop action (mental and physical) begins here with the discovery of a lifeless body in the old University of Michigan dormitory known as East Quad, that "rambling pile of brick and concrete and oak fronting directly onto ... East University ... (and) flanked by pizza mills, copy shops, drugstores and the usual commercial slurb that surrounds any campus area." The murder victim - discovered by Zoe and her dorm-mate, Clare - is Gerald Swann, at one time a brilliant, highly eccentric professor of anthropology at the university. Twelve years earlier, he had walked out on his family and "disappeared." Now, in a sense, he has returned: Gerald Swann is Clare's father, and it is in her dorm room that his body is found.

ready to fall into place when we need to reconnect.

Not so for persons displaced by the devastation of war. Entire families are annihilated; the place of birth is either a distant memory or merely a spot on the map. Photo albums, family china, treasured books - even birth certificates - all are lost.

Such was the case for author Helen Epstein. When her mother died in a New York City hospital, she longed to take comfort in the knowledge of her roots. Yet the past lay in Czechoslovakia, where her great-grandmother, grandmother and mother had been born and raised. A series of political upheavals had all but obliterated the signs of their existence. Although Epstein's seamstress mother told many stories, she could never make the discrete parts fit, the way she could when attaching a bodice to a skirt.

"These dysfunctions fascinated me," writes the author of "Children of the Holocaust" and affiliate of Harvard University's Center for European Studies. Using sewing as a metaphor for storytelling, Epstein reveals, "I was never much interested in the construction of clothes but always drawn to the construction of stories, to what was said and what was withheld."

Thus, the former journalist began the long and arduous process of putting the pieces of her family history together through travel, research, and interviews that spanned three continents. The result is "Where She Came From: A Daughter's Search for her Mother's History." In this book she lovingly brings three generations of increasingly secular and liberated women to life and integrates their experiences with the political and social changes taking place in Czechoslovakia.

Epstein begins with greatgrandmother Theresa, an innkeeper's daughter who came in daily contact with her father's mainly non-Jewish clientele. Before assimilation became the norm, she fell in love with a Christian but was hurriedly married off to a poor Jewish peddler. Crippled by despair when her oldest son died, she leaped from a fourth-story window, leaving three orphaned children behind.

Theresa's 8-year-old daughter became the charge of an orthodox aunt.

Dedication to her craft turned Pepi into a successful seamstress, with her own salon in Prague and frequent trips to the fashion capitals of Europe. a private tutor with Una Later, her talented daughter, Franci, attended the best French and German schools and followed in her mother's footsteps by entering the world of business and high fashion.

Theirs was a life of hard work but also of privilege and freedom. For Pepi and Franci. Judaism belonged to a past characterized by superstition and needless restriction. Under the liberal and humanistic leadership of Thomas Masaryk, they enjoyed an era of enlightment and tolerance when creativity. not class or custom, determined one's value to society.

Yet their lives changed dramatically when Hitler's army marched into Czechoslovakia. When the first transports to the concentration camps of Theresienstadt and Auschwitz took place, neither Franci's loyalty to the Czech republic. nor her father's love of German music and literature, nor her mother's sterling reputation as a highfashion dressmaker could save them. From then on: survival depended on chance plus an uncommon supply of mental and physical fortitude.

The author's attempt to reconstruct her family's history testifies to our human need for continuity. When we stitch the past to the present, Epstein seems to say, we make life more bearable and create hope for a more meaningful future.

DANCE

Dancing in the neighborhoods

'Festival of Dance' spotlights emerging Farmington area

BY FRANK PROVENZANO STAFF WRITER

On the fifth floor gymnasium above Christ Church on Woodward Avenue in downtown Detroit, Barbara Selinger conducts a group of dancers slinking to a bewitching zydeco beat.

Selinger's Detroit Dance Collective has found a home in a rather strategic location in the heart of the region's burgeoning entertainment center, not to mention halfway between heaven and those who cast their spiritual appeals upward.

Back in suburbia at Eric Johnston's Dance Studio in Birmingham, the familiar swell of Tchaikovsky's sugar plum melody rattles the thin walls. It's a conspicuous sign that the former principal dancer of the London Ballet Company is preparing another production of "The Nutcracker."

By dancers' standards. Selinger, 50, and Johnston, 41 both of Farmington Hills - are past their prime. By any other measure, however, they're not only hitting their stride, they're bringing a community of dancers along with them.

This week, their talent along with other dancers, choreographers and teachers will be on display during the First Annual Festival of Dance in Farmington, a celebration of ballet, jazz, modern. lyrical, folk and ballroom dancing.

"There just isn't much recognition of dance, yet we have more and more people interested in dance," said Johnston, who provided the original idea for the festival. "I want the art to be accessible. It's the only way to build an audience for dance."

The festival will showcase a range of dance while providing a public venue for local dancers. Ten local dance companies. including more than 50 dancers will participate at the Friday evening concert at Farmington High School.

"Some people feel you have to understand dance." said Selinger. "You just have to open yourself up and let the movement speak to you. It's like looking at an abstract painting. Everyone will go away with a different interpretation."

For those awaiting a sign of a dance revival, take note: prayers answered.

Now listen to the movement.

From the grassroots

The weeklong celebration of dance includes an open dress rehearsal of the Detroit Dance Collective and their concert. Space. Time and Energy." which combines performances and teaching to students from Farmington, Farmington Hills, Berkley and Waterford school districts.

The festival culminates on Friday with performances by dancers from throughout the Farmington area, highlighted by an appearance of the Dance Collective, featuring Selinger. named 1997 artist of the year by the Farmington Arts Commission.

"Many of the community bands, orchestras, choirs and arts groups were here before we were a city," said Dan W. Potter, director of special services, who oversees the parks and recreation department. "The nucleus for the arts has been here. But now, we're speaking with a unified voice."

Apparently, voters are also responding with a unified appeal.

A proposed performing arts center at Novi Road and Grand River Avenue is under consideration by the City of Novi, said Reid, who noted that partnerships in the arts could extend beyond city boundaries.

Considering that a new art center may cost as much as $30 million, Potter is cautious about the possibility. "People aren't in a mood to support additional taxes," he said. "It might be down the line, but right now we're just in the walking stage."

For this week, Potter might want to change his assessment. Clearly, the current stage is all about dancing.

BY BARBARA MICHALS SPECIAL WRITER

Despite its intriguing title and billing as a comedy, the Jewish Ensemble Theatre's world premiere of Rebecca Ritchie's "The Shiva Queen" is neither clever nor funny. Instead, a very fine cast does its best with very mediocre material.

Act One is the exchange of letters between two singles who meet through a "personals" ad and write to each other's P.O. box numbers. Lee (Charles McGraw) is a hypochondriae geneticist so afraid of commitment that he besitates to even give out his name to his pen pal. Shirl (Michelle Mountain), anxious to find a mate, is so wishy! washy that, she offers to make herself into anything Lee wishes.

Five years later Act Two finds

a successful endodontist who has just lost the wife he adored and turns into a helpless child when pounced upon by his overbearing all-business mother Bess (Jovce Fuerring).

Turns out that Bess is some sort of famous fatal expert, and when Lee calls at the house in pursuit of genetic research on the deceased, Bess's domineering personality brings out his devoted servility. Meanwhile, Shirl now has enough self-confidence to quietly stand up to Bess and thus earns Roger's gratitude and affection. If there is a point to all this, it seems to be suggesting that one should be neither too weak nor too strong-willed. Perhaps there is comic potential here somewhere, but on opening night "The Shiva Queen" drew only an isolated chuckle now and then. A "Hello Dolly" it is not.

All four players are very talented actors who make their characters as believable as possible, with Mountain meeting the greatest challenge in giving substance to Shirl. Under director Joanna Hastings Woodcock, nearly all aspects of the production seem as fine-tuned as the material allows.

The costuming is sometimes questionable, though. Putting Roger in his pajamas certainly enhances the image of him as a floundering child, but would a man really wear this on his way Shirl has been married and widowed. She now earns a living organizing the shiva, the traditional Jewish ritual period of seven days of deep mourning, for those too grief-stricken to handle the details themselves.

She has been called in to help Roger (John Michael Manfredi), home just because he'd been staying overnight at the hospital with his dying wife? It's appropriately symbolic that Lee wears a facial mask to keep him apart from the families he interviews, but why a pointed mask that makes him look like a clown?

Cruises take worry out of family trip

BY BETTY SWARTZ TRAVEL AGENT

CRUISE SELECTIONS INC.

Do we take them or leave them when we choose to cruise.

We're not talking about clothing - we're talking about children, families. Is a cruise appropriate for a family? By all means, so much so that those land vacations of past years may seem like nightmares.

Brochures do a great job of selling romance on the seas and all of the frills to ignite the spark. Yes, cruising is romantic but just imagine having the romance as well as having your children with you and sharing this great vacation experience with them; the memories will last for years to come. Today's families lead a lifestyle that is so demanding, which results in an absence of conversation around the kitchen table. Guilt may at times invade the mind when you're not able to be together, as a family, for any length of time. Consequently, the family vacation is an important event. However, a cruise may not come to mind to fulfill this need but it should be at the top of the list.

Cruising is no longer for older adults waiting in line for the shuffle board. Cruising is for everyone. Most major cruise lines, today, position themselves as family experiences. The extensive programs for children, geared to age groups 3 to 17 years, is indicative of the need to serve the younger set as well as adults. Playrooms, computer rooms and teen discos are just a few of the designated areas for children. Parents may feel that their children will always want to be with them - just like home. Not so, once they see and meet their peers they will join in the fun provided by trained counselors. In fact, parents may feel abandoned by the children! That's the time they can enjoy being alone and being satisfied knowing the kids are having a great time - as the saying goes, "We're happy when our kids are happy." Remember those land vacations when everyone wanted to eat at a different fast-food restaurant - those times certainly did not make for a happy experience. In contrast, a cruise is great for a family children don't have to eat gourmet food, as in the olden days of cruising. Today, children's menus are available to satisfy the young palate. Pizza parlors and buffet dining (not only for breakfast and lunch but also for dinner) are available in a casual atmosphere enjoyed by children and adults as well. Casual dining on board is becoming quite popular. Mom and Dad can accompany the children to a casual dining area, even prepare for a more formal dinner and get a sitter for the evening, if the ship does not provide evening activities for the kids.

Cruise lines have gone so far as to plan shore excursions geared to families. In fact, one cruise line has Alaskan shore excursions for "children only." Imagine the dinner conversations that night - everyone trying to get a word in about their day!

Yes, cruising is for families. Take the opportunity to expose your children to different places and different surroundings. A cruise will give them all of those experiences and more - watch their independence blossom. You're together but each is enjoying his or her own thing.

Prices are reduced for a third or fourth person sharing a cabin (sometimes a standard cabin will accommodate a fifth person, depending on the cruise line. Many of the new ships have family suites; they

Families enjoy kid-friendly cruises

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF. WRITER

When someone mentions going on a cruise, the first thought might be of a romantic get-away - just the two of you. Or, maybe, if you're single a cruise is a chance to meet a stranger across a crowded deck.

But many people are finding that a Caribbean cruise makes the perfect, all-inclusive family vacation.

"We've never vacationed without him and didn't consider not taking him," said Suzanne Colvin, explaining why she and her husband, Dan, took their 3year-old son, Thomas, on a cruise.

The Colvins of Farmington Hills sailed for four days in April on the Royal Caribbean's Sovereign of the Sea to the Bahamas and Key West. And while they enjoyed adult activi--ties, Thomas had his own appointments to keep.

"They had a kids program every evening from 8 to 10 p.m. There was a special room where he could go and play just for 3- to 5-year-olds. They did crafts and talent shows. He looked forward to it. He got to play with other children," Colvin said.

Cruise lines have always emphasized that they take care of everything from dining to recreation to sleeping arrangements for a worry-free vacation. But the marketing has usually been directed toward couples, singles and older travelers.

Recently the trend has moved toward promoting family excursions (see the accompanying article by travel agent Betty Swartz). Even DisneyWorld offers a cruise ship/resort pack-

"It was wonderful," Alent said. "We loved it so much we went again and will go again this year if prices are right. We had never been on a cruise before, but Carnival was offering a special deal, adults were about $700 apiece but children free and the second year the kids were only $129." Alent, his wife, Grace, and children, Jeffrey, 9, and Diane, 7, sailed on Carnival's Sensation both times. Like, Royal Caribbean, Carnival offers special programs appealing to children, called Camp Carnival.

"They would wake up and didn't want to be with us, they wanted to get to the programs," Alent said. "They ran from 6 a.m. to 10 at night. Certain other nights were sleepovers. The kids enjoyed it. It was well supervised and well organized."

Kalamazoo Christian basketball coach Bill Hoffman could stand watching the film of Redford Bishop Borgess' Class C state quarter final game against Sandusky.

He probably won't ask to see reruns of Friday's semifinal between his team and Borgess, played in Central Michigan University's Rose Arena.

Borgess sprinted to a 31-9 halftime lead and cruised in the second half to a 77-36 victory before 1,310 fans.

The win put the Spartans, 26-1 overall, in the finals for the fourth time in the last five years. They played the winner of Friday's other semifinal between Hancock and Shelby in the championship game Saturday.

This wasn't the same Borgess team

Hoffman saw on film methodically beat Sandusky, 41-26, three days earlier.

"I thought coming in we had a shot based on what we saw on film," Hoffman said. "What we saw tonight. They didn't shoot a lick against Sandusky and tonight they shot the way they're capable of every night. We also saw tenacious half court defense."

Borgess made 30 of 47 (64 percent) and limited the Comets to 10 of 44 (23 percent), including 2 of 14 in the first half.

Borgess enjoyed a 34-25 rebounding edge and had 14 steals that led to fast break points. Junior forward Tiffany Simon had a game high 19 points and senior forward Koren Merchant had 18 points on 8 of 9 shooting.

Senior guard Christina Anderson had 12 points and six assists and junior forward Shermaine Drake had nine points and six steals.

Zebras ready for life without Guess

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

There are no 'Guessing Games' in area boys high school basketball for the first time in four years.

Lorzeno Guess, and his twin brother LaVelle, have gone on to college from Wayne Memorial high school.

That's a loss for fans of quality play and good kids, but feel no pity for Coach Chuck Henry of the Zebras.

Henry has coached more than 300 winners during his superlative high school career and a good two-thirds of them came before the Guess brothers appeared on the scene.

"This is the first year without Lorenzo in four years," said Henry, who loses four of Tim Newman, respectively.

All three must replace 3.5 starters but all three report positive things happening in their programs as they seek to restore Livonia basketball to a place of prominence in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"I think Romulus is just loaded," said Henry, who is in the highest level (Red Division) of the Michigan Mega Conference. "I'm sure Plymouth Salem is looking for a big year with all the returning people they have.

"You have to start with who has the most coming back. Those are know of."

LHA Ducks win

The Livonia Hockey Association Mite Ducks won their divisional Farmington Hills Thanksgiving Hockey tournament. The Ducks, which is made of 8 and 9-year-olds, split their first two games, but finished strong relying on strong defense to win their final two games and capture the championship. The Ducks are coached by Jerry Harbowy and Tim Jahn.

Team members include: Kyle Bridges, Chad Cezon, Joseph Cummings, T.J. Gosselin, Jacob Harbowy, Ryan Hewitt, Mike Jahn, Justin Krauziewicz, Sean O'Neil, Matt Petrul, Josh Sidor, Mike Sherron (goalie-tourney MVP), T.J. Livonia residents Brady Crosby (boys 14), Erin Mazzoni (girls 12) and Kristen Palombo (girls 14) were invited to attend the United States Tennis Association Training Center (USTA) from September until May. The Detroit Area Training Centers are two of the 118 USTA Centers through out the country.

Forty of the most talented and promising boys and girls in the 12 and 14 and under groups were chosen based on their SEMTA and Western Rankings. The Training Center is an intense camp that is well coached by specially trained and selected group of coaches.

Crosby and Mazzoni are in the seventh grade at Holmes Junior High and Palombo is an eighth grader at St. Michael in Livonia. They play at the Sports Club in West Bloomfield.

"We'll coach the kids who are here, and hopefully teach them some good things. The greatest thing is to see them succeed when they go on.

"You love to see them get degrees and be successful in whatever they chose."

All of Wayne's departed starters have gone on to college ball, not surprising since_ the core of the team produced some 60 victories in three years and were habitually regional champions.

With Lorenzo Guess now apparently in line for some significant playing time as a freshman at Michigan State, the mantle of the area's best player falls to Michiganbound center Chris Young of Detroit Catholic Central.

The Shamrocks have a nice mix of size, speed, post play, inside strength, experience and youth. They should be a poll power all season long.

Whether they emerge as a state power won't be known until March. Because CC is in the state district as Detroit Redford again this year and Redford has four starters back from the team which bumped them off last year.

Marian, Country Day advance to state finals

The girls basketball teams from Birmingham Marian and Detroit Country Day were one win away from state championships in their respective classes after winning state semifinal games Thursday and Friday.

Detroit Country Day, the 1995 Class B state champion, defeated Flint Powers Catholic, the defending Class B champ, in Friday's semifinal game 59-42 at Central Michigan University's Rose Arena.

The Yellow Jackets (26-1) met Saginaw Swan Valley (25-2) in yesterday's Class B state championship game.

The Class B semifinal was close throughout the first half with the Yellow Jackets holding a slim 29-28 halftime lead. The teams traded baskets through the first three minutes of the third quarter before DCD went on a 13-0 spurt to break the game open.

Powers did not score until the 6:28 mark of the fourth quarter and by that time Country Day had a 12-point lead (48-36).

"Their desire and attitude that they had all year showed in the third quarter," DCD coach Frank Orlando said. "They weren't going to be denied. I felt all along we were going to win."

Jennifer Thomas played another strong game for Country Day. The jupior center scored a game-high 23 points and cleared 11 rebounds. She netted 12 of those points in the fourth quarter while playing with four fouls. Junior forward Katharine Hanks finished with 18 points and seven rebounds. Freshman forward Suzanne Morrison grabbed nine rebounds and sophomore guard Lindsey Smith had eight assists.

Birmingham Marian, the defending Class A state champion, qualified for this year's title game with Thursday's 56-52 overtime victory over Detroit Martin Luther King at Rose Arena. The Mustangs (22-4) played undefeated Grand Rapids Christian (27-0) yesterday in the Class A state championship game.

Eric Jones, a sophomore who after just one season has become one the area's top talents.

The Rockets will have guards and young frontcourt personnel and might be a team that will be a lot tougher by February. John Glenn suffers from being in the same division of the WLAA as Salem and Walled Lake Central but that could be a blessing by season's end.

Rick Coratti at Detroit Catholic Central has the same goals his WLAA counterparts have - a conference title, postseason tournament and the state tournament.

"We take it a step at a time and build it from there," he said. "The Detroit Catholic League is important to us. And we're the three-time defending champions. The state tournament is important to everyone. You build to that."

Part of that building is putting some meat in your pre-conference schedule. This year Coratti has CC in the River Rouge holiday tournament (Dec. 26-27).

"That should be tough. River Rouge and (Detroit St. Martin) de Porres are in and we play de Porres in the opener.

"Redford Bishop Borgess is going to be very good. (Warren) DeLaSalle is supposed to be - laner during free throws until pretty good and Birmingham Brother Rice is a big rival for us -- besides all the others."

In the Metro Conference, Lutheran Westland's Ramthun believes "Hamtramck will probably be the favorite again. (Grosse Pointe) University-Liggett and (Harper Woods) Lutheran East will probably be right up there also. That looks like the top three.

Bill Ohlsson takes over for Tod Bartholomew at Huron Valley Lutheran. He tabs Fairlane as the team to beat in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

He has 18-point scorer Jeremy Zahn, who holds the school single-game record of 43 points, as his key returnee.

"It should be different this. year." Ohlsson said. "There is a new attitude and the guys are working hard. We're a balanced team with nine players. We're fast but not big.'

Rules changes of note include not permitting players to encroach on the paint area (the the ball touches iron.

Teams also had a full timeout taken away, replaced with a pair of 20-second timeouts, during which players must remain on the floor.

"I don't think the rules changes are going to matter," Coratti said. "The biggest one is the free throw rule.

"It's going to be interesting with the 20-second timeout. It could be a momentum changer. There are a lot of times in game where you want to stop the game. That's going to be nice."

The new free throw rule, Austin said, could aid quickness:

"We enforced it at summer camp," he said. "It livens things up in the key on free throws. It used to be that the defensive team challenged for most of the rebounds.

"It's not going to be that way. Guys with quick hands and quickness will be getting a lot of buckets off free throws.

"Kids will learn. They're flexible and they adapt."

"It was a combination of many things," Harris said: "It was a solid team effort. Our kids realized it was a conference game. They played like they're capable of playing.

The Chargers took the lead when Dan Cook scored 5:28 into the final period (Martoia and Adam Krug recorded the assists). Troy tied the game with six minutes remaining.

North Farmington pitching ace signs with Michigan

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK STAFF WRITER

One way or another Jeff Trzos is headed for a dream team.

The 8-foot-5 North Farmington left-handed pitcher has signed a national letter of intent to throw baseballs for the University of Michigan next fall.

"Over 130 colleges were recruiting Jeff to play baseball," said his father, Ron Trzos. "All the top 20 that you hear about all the time, the Southern schools, were really after him.

"Ninety offered him a complete education. He really had a choice."

It's that way when you're left-handed, buzz a fastball in excess of 90 miles per hour — with control — can break off a nice curve and mix in a changeup.

But first the multi-talented athlete must negotiate his high school season. And maybe a professional baseball contract after that.

The major league teams are more than a little interested.

Right-handers who throw in the 90s can be found on every big league roster. Lefties who can banks, Alaska.

"I'll listen, definitely," Trzos said, "I'm anxious, You're not really sure where you're at until the draft comes around.

"It would be hard to turn down a college education, though. That would be a tough decision. Luckily, I've got a couple of months to make it."

Coach Geoff Zahn of Michigan, who last year lost recruit Ryan Anderson to the pros, has a bundle of hot prospects in his bid to make the Wolverines a national power in collegiate baseball.

"He's made the recruiting coups of the century,' Ron Trzos said. "He's telling people that if football equals Pasadena, baseball equals Omaha (site of the College World Series)."

Among the recruits Zahn has allegedly assembled are Andy Brown, a southpaw similar to Trzos who comes from Bloomington, Ind., and possibly another North Farmington southpaw, Kirk Taylor.

David Parrish, a catcher like his famous father Lance, has a shot to start as a freshman this spring and the Wolverines reportedly have a hotshot shortstop, Scott Tousa, a junior college transfer.

Brighton's Drew Henson signed a football tender should help there.

bring it are as rare as January sunshine in Fair- but his pitching and hitting credentials probably will get him drafted in the first round by some team

> "I hope the pros don't get too many of them," Ron Trzos said. "I'd like to see them take Michigan back to its former flory. But the money is just incredible."

> Trzos has gotten a lot of help from Jeff Kaiser, former major league pitcher who now helps kids out of the Downriver Baseball Center.

> Kaiser is a left-hander who's seen the ups and downs of major and minor league life. He pitched with Oakland, Detroit and Toronto as well as in the Tigers' minor league system.

> "He's really a nice guy," Ron Trzos said. "Jeff started seeing him some time ago. He really made some very demonstrable strides.

> "He helped me with my mechanics overall," Trzos said. "my balance, weight transfer, arm motion, making sure I'm square to the plate when I follow through."

> He's made the necessary adjustments at every level to get where he is today. Now he's got to push even harder to continue his climb.

Coming from a family of athletes and scholars

Ron Trzos played baseball as a youngster but .: couldn't get anywhere with it because "I ran in the same spot too long, as they say."

Older brother Bill preceeded Jeff at North Farmes ington and is majoring in criminal justice, with an at eye on an FBI career, at Michigan State Universi-

An even older sister also went to Michigan State. graduating in microbiology and psychology and continuing her education.

Staying close to family is one of the things that influenced Jeff to stick close to home with his choice of a college.

Michigan won out over UCLA, Pepperdine, Stan ford and Florida Atlantic.

"The Florida schools all said, You're going to be playing the top teams in the country if you sign with us.' Ron Trzos said. "The Texa's schools and the California schools all said, 'You're going to be playing the top schools in the country if you sign with us.'

"But Zahn said, 'We're going to play the best schedule we can (in the spring), then come back and play in the Big Ten and then try to get to the College World Series.' They're going to play all the teams he would have been playing anyway."

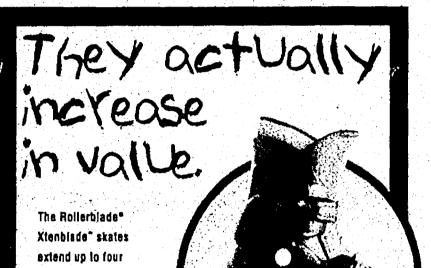

Canton could be facing first rebuilding season in years

BY C.J. RISAK SPORTS EDITOR

Time's up, Dan Young. The Plymouth Canton basketball coach is entering his fourth season as head coach, and for the first time he's doing so without a proven, dangerous lineup. "We're kind of redoing the > championships. In his three previous years, six players have gone on to play college-level basketball.

What the Chiefs lack this year is that stand-out kind of talent. Only one player returns from last year's top seven: Joe Cortellini, a 5-foot-11 junior guard who averaged about seven points a game, with a high of 21 vs. Farmington Harrison.

"He's a good shooter and a through it yet.

championship, three-straight smart player," said Young.

Six seniors have graduated. One who's back is Eric Larsen, a 6-4 post player who saw limited playing time last season. "He's a good rebounder and a good athlete," said Young.

Replacing those six graduated players, from a 16-7 team, will not be easy. Young admits it will take time to develop his team and determine roles.

"It's a new group, but they're working hard," he said. "I have a lot of young kids. They're good players, they just haven't been

"I think we'll see a real lot of improvement as the year goes on. We'll build as the season goes and hopefully, we'll be able to compete by season's end."

Three juniors Young will be looking to for some help are Scott Samulski, a 6-5 forward who's "a good perimeter player, but he must improve his defense and rebound for us"; Nate Rau, a 6-2 swingman who's "strong around the basket"; and Jason Darow, a 6-4 forward who Young wants "defense and rebounding" from.

who will get a long look, too Jason Waidman, a 6-4 forward with size and shooting ability Dan McLean, a 6-2 swingman who has displayed a good feel for the game; and Justin Romer, a 2 6-foot guard who's a good, solid worker.

A pair of freshmen Nick Cabauaton, a 5-10 guard with good quickness and shooting and Oliver Wolcott, a 5-11 guard with strong shooting and deci sion-making skills could get some playing time as well.

Rich is about to join the 3-2-1-SOLD! club.

Rich was up in the attic the other day and saw his old bowling gear. He'd like to sell it along with his wife's Vaughn Monroe record collection and a couple of other things, but doesn't want to spend a lot on an ad. Who does?

Our 3-2-1-SOLD! offer is just what you need when you have things to sell for under $200.

Here's how it works:

1. You get 3 lines to describe your item (remember, you have to be asking less than $200)

2. You get to run your ad for 2 days (one week)

3. You get 1 low price—just $19.26. That's only $3.21 per line!

You could say our 3-2-1 plan is as easy as 1-2-3! Rich did.

lot of skill, concentration and perhaps a certain amount of luck. The long string of consecutive strikes creates an excitement in this sport that is truly unique to bowling.

Even with the high-tech equipment available to bowlers, the 300 game is still quite a feat but what about two in a row? It happened last week at Bowl One Lanes in Troy by 63-year old Hurston "Wally" Wallace.

Wally started play in the Frank Gavie Supply Senior Classic League with a 220 game, and yes fellow bowlers, that is a decent game. Now the rest of the story.

Wally finished the first game with three strikes and went the rest of the day without having to make a spare for he kept throwing strikes — 27 in a row.

He admitted he was just hoping to achieve his first 800 series, which he did with an 820, but around the middle of the last game, he started thinking about another 300.

Wally credits Bud's Pro Shop in Waterford for setting up his Columbia 'Boss' just right. The right equipment at the right time can do some amazing things on the lanes.

Wally, a Lake Orion resident, rolled a perfect game last Monday in the first game.

When asked how many perfect games she had recorded, Sill responded "about 26 or so, I think." Even with that many 300 games the thrill is still there and it makes for an exciting evening.

The evening became more exciting when Detroiter Rose Edwards fired her very first 300 game. Edwards, who is a fifth grade teacher, is a veteran bowler and this was her greatest thrill.

Edwards is a member of the Riverside Ford Team which had enjoyed a perfect game several weeks earlier, courtesy of teammate Gwen Finley.

Edwards was averaging 191 in the league, but her 724 series vill boost that average up a bit.

Lisa Bishop gave the gals a run for the money with 279 and 278 games and a 763 series, but that was topped by Karen Hagan's 783 series, which included a 269 game. Other top games were turned in by: Mickey Webb, 279; Consuela Cleveland, 269; Lisa McLenahan, 256; and Carmen Allen, 256.

It was a hot time on the lanes last week.

North Farmington's football program had struggled through losing seasons in recent years, but the Raiders came roaring back in 1997.

After finishing 1-8 a year ago, North Farmington rebounded with a 6-3 record this year.

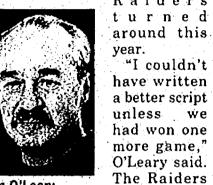

It was the school's first winning season since 1991 and a fitting farewell to coach Jim O'Leary, who retired after 15 years as head coach.

O'Leary has been named Observerland Coach of the Year for the job he did getting the Raiders the Class A playoffs if they had. "We had a winning season with a team no one expected to have a winning season. The kids played as hard as they could and believed in themselves. It was a great group of seniors to graduate with.' O'Leary, 55, will continue to teach biology classes at North. He coached football there for 33 years and had a 75-61 record as a varsity head coach. Observerland can boast of having the Class A and AA state champions, and the coaches of those teams, John Herrington (Farmington Harrison) and Tom-Mach (Redford Catholic Central), deserve recognition, too. Herrington's Hawks (13-0) won the Class A crown and their eighth state title. Mach's Shamrocks (12-1) are the AA winners and five-time state champions.

"I couldn't

Bryant was Harrison's big-play, deep-pass threat. A three-year starter on offense, he had 42 receptions for 858 yards and nine touchdowns.

He also returned punts and kickoffs. He had a punt return for a TD and one rushing touchdown. He was third in scoring with 72 points.

Bryant has also started for two years at free safety. He was first in interceptions (five) and fifth in tackles (85).

"Overall, Ricky is the most talented player on our team," Herrington said. "1 think he has a chance to make All-America next year. That's saying a lot, I know, but he has the talent. He'll be a four-year starter, and not even John Miller did that."

(Miller played four years on the varsity from 1981-84 but didn't start as a freshman.)

Justin Villanueva, end, Clarenceville: He caught 26 passes for 919 yards and eight touchdowns. He also returned two kickoffs for touchdowns and averaged 27 yards per kick return, 19 on punts.

Villanueva was an outside linebacker on defense and made 36 tackles.

"He's an electrifying football player," coach Chuck Donaldson said. "He was a threat to go all the way every time he touched the ball. He mixes size with speed; he's 6-foot-4 and runs well."

Eric Jones, wide receiver, John Glenn: There was no such thing as a sophomore jinx for Jones, who made 38 catches for 597 yards and six touchdowns.

"He was excellent at catching the ball in traffic," Gordon said. "He was a key guy on our team; he was a game-breaker. He just got better as the year went along."

Jared Hopkins, guarterback, Harrison: Hopkins was a three-year varsity player

He's a former fullback who volunteered to fill a need on offense as a sophomore.

8) _S

Foster was tough against the run, finishing third with 71 tackles. He also recovered a fumble for a key touchdown in the WLAA championship game and had an Interception.

"He was outstanding at pulling and blocking on the corner," Herrington said. "As a defensive end, he was very tough to move. His technique was excellent."

Chuck Spolsky, lineman; Redford CC: Spolsky was a two-year starter who played offensive guard and defensive tackle. He had 58 tackles (20 solos) and five sacks. His interception in the state final led to CC's first touchdown in a 23-7 victory.

"He was a great two-way player," Mach said. "He has great quickness and tenacity: a couple times he almost dominated. the game. He played much bigger than he was. He did a heckuva job against people who outweighed him."

Matt Struble, lineman, Harrison: Struble became a two-way starter this year and played well on both sides of the ball as an offensive guard and defensive end.

He made it difficult for opposing backs to get upfield, stringing out a play to the sideline. He made 65 tackles and was second in sacks (seven).

"He comes from a family of good football players," Herrington said. "He was the smallest of our lineman but did an outstanding job. He could stop the screen pass and was a good pass rusher. He stayed home to handle the reverse and counters."

Mike Carroll, lineman, Redford CC: Carroll was a tough, aggressive player at defensive end and a major reason the Shamrocks were so good on defense

FIRST-TEAM OFFENSE

Brian Lewis, lineman, Harrison: Lewis was a three-year starter on the offensive line, playing center the last two years, and called all of the blocking schemes.

He also started two years on defense, moving from end to tackle this year. Lewishad 63 total tackles and led the team with eight sacks. His last game, in the Silverdome for the state championship, might have been his best. He had eight. tackles, stole the ball from a Midland Dow back to set up a TD and recovered another fumble.

"He was a great team leader; we could always count on him," coach John Herrington said. "He was a leader on and off the field. He always knew who to block and was very tough to move when playing defense.

Noah Swartz, lineman, John Glenn: Swartz was a devastating blocker and dominating player at offensive tackle. He made nearly every post-season honor team and will play college ball. Totedo has already offered a scholarship.

"He's one of the best linemen we've ever had at John Glenn," coach Chuck Gordon said. "He has good balance, quick feet. He just keeps getting better and better."

Matt Lawson, lineman, Franklin: Lawson was a two-tackle for the Patriots and a repeat selection on the All-Observer first team. He carries a 3.3 grade point and is destined to play college ball. Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Toledo and Michigan State have expressed interest.

"He was the No. 1 guy on our team and one of the reasons we did have some success," coach Rick Lee said. "He was a lot more aggressive this year. He got after . people; he was quicker and stronger."

Mike Fisher, Ilneman, Harrison: Fisher was a three-year starter at right tackle on offense and a major reason the Harrison offensive line was so effective and highly regarded by opposing coaches.

He was a force on defense, too. As a two-way tackle, Fisher helped make the Hawks strong against the run. He was fourth on the tackle chart (67) and third in sacks with six,

"He's a big time prospect," Herrington said. "For a lineman, he could operate in the open field whether blocking or tackling. He was a captain who led by example, a very solid player."

Don Slankster, tight end, Redford CC: Slankster wasn't just a blocking tight end: He caught 28 passes for 485 yards and 12 touchdowns. He was second in . scoring behind Chris Dueweke. the probably made more big plays for usias a receiver than anyone I can renterber." Mach said. "He made tremendous catches when we needed them. When we got down, we usually went to him; he was so reliable. His speed and hands really made him a threat." Ricky Bryant, wide receiver, Harrison:

who became a starter this year and performed as well as Harrison quarterbacks before him, leading the Hawks to an eighth state championship.

He completed 59 percent of his passes (100 of 169) for 1,691 yards and 19 touchdowns. His TD pass to interception ratio was nearly 3-to-1 with just seven picks.

"He had an outstanding senior year. and he was a good team leader." Herrington said. "He was very good at throwing out of the pocket. He handled the offense well and made some excellent automatic calls."

Adam Tubaro, guarterback, CC: Tubaro also stepped into a starting role as a senior and led⁴the Shamrocks to a state championship. CC was more of a passing team, too, with Tubaro throwing for 1,229 yards and 17 touchdowns with only five interceptions. He completed 86 of 163 pass attempts for 53 percent. Tubaro also rushed for 223 yards and two touchdowns.

"He's like an extra coach on the staff," Mach said. "He does such a fine job of leading and setting an example for the rest of the team. He has all the qualities to become a good quarterback in college. He made plays when we had to have them."

Reggie Spearmon, back, John Glenn: Spearmon carried the ball 219 times for 1,259 yards and 11 touchdowns. It was his second-straight season over 1,000 yards. He also caught 13 passes for 100 yards. Spearmon played defense, too.

"We ask an awful lot of our tailback," Gordon said. "He rarely came off the field. He played well all the way around for us.*

Chris Dueweke, back, Redford CC: Dueweke filled the role of the hard-running back in CC's ground-oriented offense and was the go-to guy for most of the season. He rushed for 1,025 yards and 13 touchdowns on 233 carries.

*Chris gave us a strong, inside running game," Mach said. "He upheld that tradition of a strong fullback at CC. He did a tremendous-job, showing toughness, getting an extra yard when we needed it."

Anthony Grech, back, Franklin: A threeyear varsity player, Grech broke six school rushing records. He set career standards for rushing attempts (527) and yardage (2,563), season marks for carries (218) and yards (1,141) and single-game records for carries (38) and yards (222):

He has the third-longest touchdown run in school history (80 yards). Grech rushed for seven touchdowns this year and had one receiving touchdown. He also had 1,432 all purpose yards.

"He was our most explosive back since Joe Ransley," Lee said. The worked hard to get ready for his senior year and was very dedicated.*

Kirk Moundros, back, N. Farmington: Moundros set a single-season rushing record with 1,399 yards and 13 touchdowns on 226 carries, breaking Todd Anderson's mark of 1,353 yards.

He also returned kicks and punts, caught 16 passes and set another singleseason record with 2,041 yards in total offense. His two-year total of 3,254 allpurpose yards is a career record, too.

"He was the difference this year on offense," O'Leary said. *After the first game, everybody knew who was going to get the ball, and teams still had a difficult time stopping him.

"He was a great team player. He never cared about individual stats; he had no idea, until the end of the year, he was close to any kind of record. He just went out and played the game like it's supposed to be played."

again. He made 82 total tackles (21 solos), including six sacks.

"He has great speed, a nose for the ball and great tenacity," Mach said. "He doesn't know when to say quit. You've got to love a guy like him who wants to get to the ball that bad. He chases guys down and does whatever is necessary to get the iob done."

Sean Heard, linebacker, John Glenn: Heard was his team's leading tackler for the second year in a row with 61 first hits and 63 assisted tackles.

A three-year varsity player, he also played some fullback on offense, rushing for 126 yards and two touchdowns.

"He's a very smart player who really knows the game," Gordon said. "He's tough, physical and a good blocker."

Mike Hoad, linebacker, Harrison: Hoad was his team's leading tackter with 95 total hits (56 solos) and three sacks. He also had two interceptions. Hoad has started for two years at tight end, making 15 receptions for 326 yards and five touchdowns this year.

"We think he's one of the best linebackers we've ever had," Herrington said. "He has tremendous sense for where the ball is going. He's one of our toughest hitters on defense - and he's coming back!"

Sean Clark, linebacker, N. Farmington: Clark was the leading tackler in Oakland County with 70 solo stops and 61 assists. His 268 defensive points broke a 25-yearly different," O'Leary said, "He's not the mild-mannered kid I see in the hallway or ever coached because of his dedication. His knowledge of football, the amount of time spent studying film, is beyond anything we've had."

Joe Sgrof, Inebacker, Redford CC: Sgroi was the heart of the CC defense at middle linebacker, leading the Shamrocks with 102 tackles. He was a blocking back on offense but also carried 23 times for a 7.1 average and one touchdown. Sgroi was CC's long snapper, too.

"When he hits you, he hits you with great authority," Mach said. "He was the emotional leader on defense. He's also a very intelligent player. He made the calls on the field and the adjustments to different formations teams would give us."

Brett Burleson, Ilnebacker, Salem: Burleson was a three-year starter, and a three-time, all division player. He led the Rocks with 98 total tackles from his middie linebacker position. As a fullback, he rushed for 264 yards on 56 carries.

"He's one of the few three-year starters we've had (in 25 years)," coach Tom Moshimer said, adding Burleson was the captain of the front seven. "He had to read formations and get us in the right places. He'll certainly be hard to replace after three solid years."

Brett Wells, linebacker, Churchill: Wells was his team's leading tackler with 53 first hits and 30 assisted tackles. He also played tight end and made 12 receptions for 223 yards and three touchdowns. Wells caught the attention of recruiters and will likely play some college football.

FIRST-TEAM DEFENSE

Brett Foster, Ilneman, Harrison: Foster, the strongest player on the Harrison team, started at left guard and defensive end."

"Any improvement we made is largely attributable to Brett,* coach John Filia traut said. "He anchored our defense and was our go-to guy on offense." J Zack Cornwell, back, Harrison: Cornwell, who played quarterback as a freshman and golf as a sophomore, returned to football as a junior and became a two-way starter as a senior.

As the monsterback, he had 38 tackles athletes, always in the right place at the and four interceptions. As a fullback, he

Joe Jonna, back, Redford CC: Jonna did a little of everything for the Shamrocks as a defender, receiver and return specialist; and he could have played quarterback if needed. He had six interceptions, 18 solo tackles and 17 assists. He also caught 20 passes for 304 yards and three touchdowns
