Child care site prompts outcry

Nearly 40 people have signed petitions seeking to block a child care business in a Westland neighborhood. The business is geared to dual-income working families, especially those who work evenings.

A Westland woman wants to start a new child care business geared toward dual-income working parents, particularly those who work evenings, but she is facing strong opposition.

Terry Leberle said her business would provide daytime care but also would fill a void for parents who work evenings and need a place to leave their children.

She and two business partners want to run their business 18 hours a day, from 6:30 a.m. to 12:30 a.m., at a former medical office at Warren Road and Bison, in a predominantly residential neighborhood.

"It's mainly geared toward families who have a dual income who are on the second shift," Leberle said. "That kind of child care facility is virtually nonexistent."

And some residents want to keep it that way in their neighborhood. Nearly 40 people have signed petitions trying to block the business, saying it would cause too much traffic and threaten the safety of local children.

"People are mostly concerned about the traffic," said one Warren Road resident who didn't want her name used.

Westland Planning Director Tod Kilroy said some opponents also are claiming soil contamination on the site, "and that's totally untrue."

Leberle wants to run the business with her mother, Elaine Maldonado of Westland, and her mother's sister-in-law, Colleen Maldonado of Livonia, but they need special land use approval from the Westland City Council.

City administration and planning department officials are recommending approval of the project, although some council members have said they aren't convinced of the merits.

A showdown between Leberle's side and residents could come Aug. 17, when the council will consider the proposal during a 7 p.m. meeting.

The now-vacant facility would be modified to reduce the size of a parking area and build a fenced-in, outdoor

No one ever could say the people at the William P. Faust Public Library of Westland are a bunch of clowns.

Clowns did, however, make their presence known Saturday, Aug. 1, at the library. A local troupe, Clowns Around Redford, appeared at a program to kick off National Clown Week.

"It's a summer concert series for children," said Meaghan Battle, children's services librarian II. The series, presented by Westland Parks and Recreation, ended this weekend with Saturday's performance.

The programs have attracted newborns on up to 12-year-olds, along with some older people, Battle said. "They're really family programs." The steel drum performance drew listeners of all ages.

The Friends of the Library group is a co-sponsor of the series, held at the library on Central City Parkway.

Fire puts family in street

Fire swept through a Westland duplex Friday afternoon, leaving a family of six homeless but injuring no one, officials said.

The mother and her four children were at home along with two other youngsters she was baby-sitting when the 1:15 p.m. fire started, Assistant Fire Chief Patrick Harder said.

They managed to escape, but the duplex at 32308 Kalamazoo in the city's Norwayne neighborhood was badly damaged, Harder said.

The mother told firefighters that she believes the flames started in her laundry room, possibly in a clothes dryer, Harder said.

Even as smoke rose over Kalamazoo, Lt. Charles Yockey of the nearby Salvation Army quickly announced plans to help the family by seeking donations of clothing.

The children include a 14-year-old girl and three boys, ages 1, 2 and 12, Yockey said. Neither their exact sizes nor their parents' were known Friday, but Yockey said anyone willing to help may call the Salvation Army for more information at (734) 722-3660.

The office is open 9 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, but anyone calling Sunday can leave a message on an answering machine, an office worker said.

Yockey also said the Salvation Army would arrange for the family to stay in a hotel this weekend before trying to help them find more permanent shelter this week.

Harder said it appears that the children were napping when the fire started. The flames damaged more than 50 percent of the residence, he said.

Firefighters were mopping up about 3:15 p.m. Friday, some two hours after the fire was reported, Harder said.

Inventor soaks up the pleasures of achievement

Randall Harris of Westland hopes his pursuit of the perfect suntan will make him rich.

Harris, a General Motors Corp. retiree turned inventor, has designed and patented a Sun Bathing Sponge Applicator to put oils and lotions on those hard-to-reach places like the back.

"I would go to tanning beds or just go outside in the sun, and I had no way of getting the lotion all over my back," Harris, 54, said.

"My back was burning, but I couldn't get the lotion back there," he said.

Frustrated, he found a wooden paint stir in his basement and tightly attached a cloth to one end of it. He poured sunscreen on the rag and - voila - an invention was born.

To make it more sophisticated and marketable, Harris designed two versions of a 12-inch applicator that National Invention Services Inc. is touting to prospective manufacturers.

One version has a hollow plastic or wooden handle with a small circular opening that allows sunscreen to be poured inside. Then a slide mechanism pushes the sunscreen into a porous sponge on the other end, allowing it to seep out so it can be applied to skin.

A simpler version, more like Harris' homemade stick-and-cloth applicator, simply allows sunbathers to pour lotion directly onto the sponge before applying it.

Harris said his 24-year-old son, Randy, suggested that he patent the idea, "and my wife (Sharon Jean) said, 'Go for it.'"

He did, and National Invention Services Inc. in late July began sending applicator drawings and brochures to more than 50 manufacturers, trying to draw interest.

Harris had to put up $10,000 of his own money to help cover marketing costs, but he stands to gain much more if his invention is manufactured and becomes a hot seller in the lucrative

Prosecutors seek reversal on condo flap decision

A Westland judge will be asked to reconsider her decision to drop criminal charges against two businessmen who were accused of illegally taking money from two couples seeking to buy condominiums.

Prosecutors hope that Westland 18th District Judge Gail McKnight will reverse her July 23 decision to dismiss charges against Michael Edward Morche and Alvin Berton Bright Jr., involved in an upscale condominium development on the city's northwest side.

Two couples, Renée and Larry Panther and Marilyn and Amir Kashat, claim they lost tens of thousands trying to buy condominiums at Anthony's Pond, on Mix Road between Warren and Joy.

"There is additional law not previously submitted to the judge that we believe the judge might find persuasive," Wayne County Assistant Deputy Chief Prosecutor Raymond Walsh said.

McKnight ruled July 23 that Morche and Bright shouldn't be tried on felony charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Rather, she said the case should be settled in civil court, where lawsuits already are pending.

McKnight indicated that the men didn't intentionally cheat the Panthers and Kashats out of money, but that they had a complex business arrangement that ran into financial difficulties.

Following McKnight's ruling, Bright said he was encouraged that "finally the truth is beginning to be put forth." Morche declined to comment.

But Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Jane Cramer said she believes there is enough evidence to order Morche and Bright to stand trial.

"We will be filing a motion asking the judge to reconsider her decision," she said.

Prosecuting and defense attorneys will likely have to argue their positions again if McKnight agrees to reconsider her earlier ruling, Cramer said.

Prosecutors may appeal McKnight's earlier decision to Wayne County Circuit Court if she refuses the motion to reconsider, Cramer said.

"I'd have to further discuss it with my boss," she said.

Please see CONDO, A2

The Kashats lost $130,000 on a condominium that another family now lives in. Police reports have indicated that the Kashats were buying their home from Morche when it was forfeited to Bright, who blocked them from moving in.

They now live in a Westland apartment as they wait for the case to be resolved.

The Panthers lost $65,000 on a condominium that was never finished. It still stands partially built without a roof at Anthony's Pond, and neighbors say it has been a scar on the neighborhood for two years.

The Panthers have since bought another house but still hope to recoup the money they lost.

Defense attorneys have said that Morche and Bright also lost money at Anthony's Pond and that they have been wrongly portrayed as trying to intentionally cheat the Panthers and the Kashats.

suntanning industry.

"Now I'm just waiting for a manufacturer to take notice of it," Harris said.

Although targeted for sunbathers, the applicator also could be used to apply everyday lotions or even medical solutions, he said.

It could come in useful for vacationers, beach-goers, boaters, fishing enthusiasts, golfers, cyclists, campers and people who suffer back pain, among many others.

Harris' invention also is advertised as sanitary because it is washable. The sponge also could be replaced.

So what will this Westland man do if he strikes it rich?

"Probably the first thing I'd do is buy the biggest house I could get in Westland," he said.

A Tennessee native, he has lived in Westland for 27 years and has no plans to leave—not even for a place in the sun like California or Florida.

"I like Westland," he said, although he admits he would do a lot more traveling. "The first place I'd go would be Hawaii."

Look at that: Randall Harris with his invention.

play area, Kilroy said. As a result, motorists couldn't cut through the site from Warren to Bison.

The child care facility would include 2,295 square feet of indoor space and a 1,322-square-foot play area protected by a 6-foot, chain-link fence, Kilroy said.

No more than 40 youngsters would be housed at the facility at any given time, Leberle said, and children ages 2 1/2 to 10 would be accepted.

The three owners would hire five more people, including two program directors who would have associate's degrees plus a minimum 12 hours of training in child care development, Leberle said.

Children would receive age-appropriate help with social skills, table manners, school homework and art projects, among other areas, and "they would learn how to share and play together."

"It would do a lot for their self-esteem," Leberle said, adding that children who attend day care "are more academically prepared" when they start school.

Leberle hasn't convinced residents that the building at Warren and Bison is where her child care business should be located. On Aug. 17, she'll know whether she can convince council members.

Orthodontics

by Josephine Finazzo, D.M.D.

THE EARLIER, THE BETTER?

The American Association of Orthodontists recommends that children be evaluated for orthodontic treatment at about age seven. Early treatment is often undertaken in recognition of the fact that facial bones are malleable prior to puberty. Orthodontists may take advantage of this to modify jaws that so often give rise to problems. For instance, an overbite (excessive upper-jaw protrusion) may be corrected in younger patients by stimulating growth in the lower jaw with an appliance that holds the jaw forward. By the same token, orthodontists may take advantage of a yet-to-be-fused suture in the upper jaw to expand the roof of the mouth in an effort to avoid tooth crowding. In these cases, early intervention poses the best solution.

Orthodontics is a wonderful, life-long gift from you to your child. He or she will thank you for as long as they live. When you entrust your precious child to our care, we are paid the highest complement. We will do our best to prove worthy of your trust. Chambers planning expo for businesses

Local businesses will have a chance to show off their products and services at the Five Star Expo.

The event, scheduled for 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, at Joy Manor in Westland, is being sponsored by the Canton, Westland, Garden City, Dearborn Heights and Wayne chambers of commerce.

For over a decade, these communities have worked jointly as the Five Star Chamber of Commerce. This is the first time the chambers have joined forces on an expo — one that highlights business south of I-96.

"This will give our businesses an opportunity to let other businesses and residents know about their products and services," said Garden City's chamber Director Amelia Oliverio.

The Five Star chambers try to have a conference annually. Oliverio mentioned her idea of organizing a Garden City business expo to Westland chamber Director Linda Shapona and discussions with the other chamber directors resulted in the Five Star Expo.

"We're definitely excited about this. We'd like to see this become an annual event," said Oliverio. "We will be doing a lot of advertising and citywide mailings."

The chambers hope that the Expo will draw 70-100 business participants. Non-members are welcome along with nonprofit groups that might want greater exposure.

The costs range from $300 for a contributing sponsor with additional advertising and complimentary admission tickets to $100 for member exhibition space — $50 for nonprofit groups.

Also featured will be area restaurants participating in the Taste of Five Communities. More restaurants are being sought to show-off their menu items.

There will be drawings throughout the day for door prizes such as a color television, Sony Playstation, a reciprocating saw and a drill driver set.

Appliance Doctor Joe Gagnon, a radio personality at WJR and a columnist for Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, both major sponsors of the Expo, will be on hand to answer appliance and consumer questions.

"We have a lot of businesses that this can accommodate well. It's like Hershey Shoes (on Ford Road in Garden City). People may think they have to go to Westland to buy shoes," said Oliverio.

The Five Star Expo also provides a good opportunity for businesses to network with each other and set up possible future joint projects, Oliverio said.

For more information about the Five Star Expo, contact the Garden City chamber at 422-1601; the Canton chamber at 453-4040; or the Westland chamber at 326-7222.

■ USE OF LIBRARIES IS UP

A poll conducted by the Gallup Organization for the American Library Association found that two out of three Americans are using the library 13 percent more than 20 years ago despite the proliferation of bookstores, video stores and home computers during that time. The poll also found that 66 percent of patrons used a public library at least once a year, with 65 percent consulting a librarian. The majority of users, 64 percent, still visited the library in person, with 81 percent checking out a book.

The survey showed that 17 percent of library patrons used the Internet on site, and 9 percent connected to the library online from a remote location. Ninety percent believed that libraries will still be needed in the future, despite advancements in information available from computers. (From Library Hotline, July 1998)

Team to recommend best use for Cooper site

Once, going back to the 1940s, the Cooper school site on Ann Arbor Trail was a sand and gravel mine.

Then, as the sand and gravel ran out, the hole remaining became a landfill where Detroiters left such household trash as old bricks, glass, shoes and even cinder ash from coal furnaces.

When the dump was full, bulldozers covered it with a thin layer of dirt, smashing to smithereens all the glass that lay buried below.

Then, in the 1960s, Livonia Public Schools bought the land and built Cooper Elementary. In doing so, the builders dug out all the trash buried near the school site and carted it off. The dirt right under and immediately around the school building is most likely the only part of the 4 1/2-acre site that is trash-free.

That's the historical picture of the Cooper school site painted by geologist Curt Cramer Thursday to area residents as a development team, using "brownfield" legislation, seeks a way to turn the abandoned, fenced-in eyesore in Westland into some type of profit-making venture.

The team, led by Jackson-based Consumers Renaissance Development Corp., has 120 days to determine through soil studies what type of facility would be best for the site.

Team members expect to give their recommendations for the site to Livonia schools by Oct. 29. Possibilities range from high-rise apartments to some type of commercial or recreational enterprise.

The developer, Jonna Realty Ventures Inc., has ruled out subdivision-type homes and industrial development.

"The developer will not try to construct something the community does not embrace," said

Bruce Rasher, CRDC vice-president.

On Aug. 17, working from a tractor-like machine, environmental consultants from Arcadis, Geraghty and Miller will take 4-foot borings from spots around the site not previously analyzed.

At Thursday's meeting with residents, Cramer, who works for the environmental company, showed maps where more than 45 soil samples have already been taken from the site by the Michigan Department of Health and Michigan's Department of Environmental Quality.

Cramer said he walked the property recently and found lots of woodchuck holes where broken glass lay exposed.

"My feeling is that we will have to cap the site," Cramer said. "The site won't be cleaned up. But there's no reason someone can't build on the surface.

Former Cooper School site
A team plans future use of former school built over a garbage dump.

The question is, how can we put this site to better use? We don't have a problem here that can't be solved by just covering it up."

For example, Cramer said parking and road space could cover some of the land, and buildings built atop 8 inches of new soil could cover other parts.

Under this scenario, any land not asphalted or built on would be capped with a layer of soil, he said.

The report from the environmental consultants should not vary significantly from previous studies made, he said.

Rasher said the final report, expected Oct. 29, should contain the following:

- Recommendations on how Livonia schools can either sell or lease the land.

- Ways a new buyer can be protected from any liability in owning contaminated property.

- Plans to demolish the school.

- Plans to make sure no toxic conditions are created during the demolition.

- Recommendations on what to build on the site, and where to build it.

- Considerations set by Westland, including zoning and site plan regulations.

- Grant or loan possibilities.

"We hope the developer will decide there's some profitable new use of the property, and may seek to acquire it, or enter into a partnership with the district," Rasher said.

At this stage, none of the team members have preconceived opinions as to what should be built on the site, said Grant Trigger, attorney for Honigman, Miller, Schwartz and Cohn.

"We have no concrete concept to force fit onto the property," Trigger said.

Last year, the city of Westland formed a Brownfield Redevelopment Authority under state legislation passed in 1995.

Westland incorporated the site into its redevelopment plan. Westland's authority allows the city to use captured tax dollars to cap and redevelop the site, as well as other sites in Westland.

Guilty pleas cap duo's woes

The question loomed large when a Pennsylvania man and his son - accused of trying to cash in 9,000 returnable cans and bottles in Michigan - walked from the Wayne County jail after posting bond in June.

Would the pair return from Pennsylvania to answer fraud charges in Westland 18th District Court? Or would they be, well, non-returnables?

"They're returnables," court administrator David Wiacek said Thursday.

The 51-year-old father and his 24-year-old son, caught trying to cash in returnables at the Westland Kroger at Michigan Avenue and Merriman, recently returned and pleaded guilty to fraud charges, Wiacek said.

The pair had hoped to capitalize on Michigan's 10-cent refund by hauling returnables here in a moving trailer attached to a 1991 Chevy van, police said.

In the end, however, 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos fined them $600 each and ordered them to stay out of trouble, Wiacek said.

returnable dispenser at Kroger when a security guard took notice on the evening of June 17, police reports said.

The father, a Russia native, spoke little English, but his son told police that they had been given the returnables by an Ohio gas station attendant while en route to Michigan to pick up building supplies.

Although they lost money, they could consider themselves lucky. Bokos could have sent them to jail for 90 days.

Charges dropped against gardener

Westland gardener Walter Warren won't have to answer in court to allegations that thick brush in his yard amounts to ordinance-violating blight.

In court Thursday, 18th District Judge Gail McKnight dismissed charges against Warren, who was handcuffed and arrested in front of his neighbors on April 23.

Warren and Mayor Robert Thomas have clashed publicly over Warren's yard, which, despite criticism, has been used to grow things like grape vines, squash vines and rose bushes.

Warren calls his yard an "English garden" and said his work last year earned him 33 ribbons at the Michigan State Fair.

Warren, noting that McKnight ruled he had not been properly served with notices by city inspectors, said he accepted the judge's ruling.

However, he said he would

In a statement he issued to the press, however, Warren said Thursday that he just wants to get on with his life and 'get the hell out of Westland.'

like to have "kicked some butt on the merits" of the case, which he has previously labeled senseless.

Hours after his arrest, Warren had threatened a lawsuit against the city. In a statement he issued to the press, however, Warren said Thursday that he just wants to get on with his life and "get the hell out of Westland."

Warren has gained a reputation for taking on city hall and for writing frequent letters to local newspapers - often to complain governmental matters.

CITY OF GARDEN CITY
PROPOSED ORDINANCE NO. 98-

An Ordinance extending the term of the Cable Communications Franchise Agreement with Comcast Cablevision, Inc.

WHEREAS, Comcast Cablevision, Inc., ("Comcast") is the successor Grantee under a cable television franchise (the "Franchise") granted by the City of Garden City (the "City") dated July 26, 1992; and

WHEREAS, Comcast has requested a renewal of the Franchise; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to Comcast's request for a renewal, the City conveyed a proposal to Comcast for a new franchise for Comcast's consideration of April 10, 1997; and

WHEREAS, Comcast has also requested that the term of the Franchise be extended beyond July 28, 1997, subject to the rights and obligations established in the Franchise, to consider issues relating to franchise renewal; and

WHEREAS, the City has authority to extend the term of the Franchise under applicable law, including Article 7, Section 29 of the 1963 Michigan Constitution, the Home Rule Cities Act, Section 5.02(4) of the Charter and Sections III(C) and IC(E) of the Franchise, and in the exercise of its police powers; and

WHEREAS, the public health, safety, and welfare warrant extension of the Franchise term for a limited period of time in order to complete the processes for consideration of renewal in an orderly fashion; and

WHEREAS, the City has determined that it is necessary, reasonable, and appropriate to extend the term of the Franchise to January 31, 1999 in order to preserve and protect the public health, safety, and welfare and to respond to Comcast's request.

THE CITY OF GARDEN CITY HEREBY ORDAINS:

Section 1. Granting of the Extension of the Franchise Agreement.
Pursuant to Section 5.02(4) of the City Charter and in accordance with Chapter 123 of the Code of Ordinances of the City of Garden City (the "City Code"), incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein, the 1982 non-exclusive Cable Television Franchise granted to Comcast Cablevision, Inc., as a successor Grantee, is hereby extended to January 31, 1999, effective August 1, 1998. All rights and obligations of Comcast Cablevision, Inc., as set forth in Chapter 123 of the City Code and the Franchise shall continue in full force and effect.

Section 2. Consent to Extension.
The Ordinance shall be void and of no effect, if Comcast fails to provide to the City Comcast's written consent to, and acceptance of the extension of the Franchise within thirty days of adoption of this Ordinance.

Section 3. Conflicting Provisions.
In the event of any conflict or inconsistency between this Ordinance and the provisions of any other Ordinance, the provisions of this Ordinance shall prevail.

Section 4. Effective Date.
This Ordinance is declared to be effective upon publication as required by law.

Exchange program seeks host families for students

Plymouth Township resident Gideon Levenbach followed last month's World Cup Soccer with particular interest. As a representative of PAX-Program of Academic Exchange, Levenbach is currently seeking host families for two young soccer players, Celine from France and Eduardo from Brazil. Their homelands competed in the final match.

'As soccer enthusiasm grows in the U.S., there should be many families eager to welcome these students.'

Gideon Levenbach
—Plymouth Township resident foundation which arranges semester and school year homestays for students from 20 different countries.

"PAX enrolls students from Sweden, Hungary, China, Morocco, Spain and Yugoslavia," explains Levenbach. "The great majority of them play soccer. As soccer enthusiasm grows in the U.S., there should be many families eager to welcome these students."

PAX students are between 15 and 18 and have basic English skills, their own spending money and are filled with curiosity about the USA. A host family provides PAX students with a place to sleep and study, meals and the support and affection that any teenager needs. Students arrive in August.

Currently PAX has more than 25 percent (225 students) still without a host family for this school year.

To arrange for an interview and to review student applications, call Gideon Levenbach in Plymouth at (734) 453-8562 or Peggy Jackson in the PAX national office at 1-800-555-6211.

Exchange: PAX foreign students Celine from France and Eduardo from Brazil would like to share the spirit of World Cup Soccer with host families.

Register now for classes

Registration is in progress for Schoolcraft College's fall Continuing Education Services classes.

Residents interested in classes can choose from more than 400 courses and programs designed to enlighten and enrich the mind, enhance job skills, tone muscles or prepare for the holidays.

New classes will focus on how to research the history of old homes, prepare stunning buffets and hors d'oeuvres, plan for a spectacular wedding, give a horse a therapeutic massage, get fit through aquatic exercise or construct a custom-made home entertainment center.

Special programs include the American Management Association Certificate Program, a series for the small business entrepreneur, public safety education for law enforcement officers and firefighters, a large selection of classes especially for seniors and English horseback riding instruction. Noted area chefs teach a varied selection of culinary courses, and computer classes serve everyone from the novice to the Web page originator.

Learn how to buy that dream house, prepare financially for retirement, play guitar or make floral arrangements for the holidays.

Classes are offered at convenient times in Livonia, Canton, Garden City and Northville. Registration forms are available in the CES catalog or by calling (734) 462-4448. Forms may be faxed to (734) 462-4572. Walk-in registration begins Sept. 8 in the McDowell Center on the Livonia campus.

Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road in Livonia, between Six and Seven Mile roads, just west of I-275.

Applications accepted at Learning Center

The Learning Center at Madonna University in Livonia is currently accepting applications for its fall term, which begins Monday, Sept. 21.

The tutorial sessions are designed for students from the first through 12th grades who are experiencing difficulty in reading and its related skills. Individual or group instruction (two students) is available.

Prior to admission, each student will be informally assessed, and a tailored remedial plan will be designed. Instruction is designed to enable the student to be a more successful and independent reader and will include strategies for reading fiction and non-fiction text, process writing and study skills. Students will develop a portfolio of their work during the session.

With more than 46 years of providing service to children who are experiencing difficulty in reading and writing, Madonna University's Learning Center has assisted thousands of children, from public and private schools representing some 20 different school districts.

For more information, call (734) 432-5586 or Sister Mary Duane, director, at (734) 432-6585.

Train derails: CSX workers walk toward a train that derailed Thursday morning in Northville Township. Investigators believe the derailment caused a fuel tank on an engine to rupture and spill at least 700 gallons of fuel, some of which flowed into the middle branch of the Rouge River. Cleanup efforts are expected to continue through the weekend.

Train derails, spills fuel; cleanup efforts continue

At least 700 gallons of fuel spilled Thursday from an engine of a train that derailed in Northville Township.

Officials did not know how much fuel spilled into the middle branch of the Rouge River, but were confident that most of it would be removed this weekend and did not present a health hazard downstream along the Rouge.

The CSX train derailed at about 8:15 a.m. between Five and Six Mile roads and about 100 yards from Mill Street. The tracks run parallel to Northville Road and the Rouge.

Northville Township firefighters, and officials from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the Environmental Protection Agency were called to the scene once it was reported that a possible hazardous material had spilled.

No injuries were reported and no evacuations were necessary, according to Fire Lt. Ron Lane.

Enough rain fell and ran off onto an area adjacent to the tracks to flood it about 15 feet deep, Lane said. "There was just so much water all over the track," Lane said.

Earl Friese, environmental quality analyst with the DEQ, said the water apparently washed out some of the railroad bed causing the derailment. "Something also must have flown up from the debris and punctured the fuel tank," Friese said.

Two engines and four box cars went off the tracks, officials said.

Ditches flanked each side of the tracks. On the east side of the tracks, Friese estimated that 400 to 500 gallons of fuel ran down the ditch and flowed into the north end of a 100-by-200 foot, 10-foot deep pond, where it floated and remained where cleanup crews worked to contain it.

On the other side of the tracks, fuel proceeded down the ditch about 200 feet to the Rouge. The high flood waters helped push the fuel toward the railroad grade, Friese said, but some of the fuel managed to enter the river.

Booms were set up to trap the fuel, floating on top of the water. Friese did not know why earlier estimates placed the spill amount at 1,900 gallons, but believes that figure was revised after CSX officials had computed the amount from examining miles traveled since the last time the engine had refueled.

CSX officials did not return phone calls to comment on their accident investigation.

Cleanup crews used equipment to remove the fuel floating on the water's surface. "It looks like a big vacuum and they use it to vacuum the top of the water," Lane said.

The cleanup continued throughout the day Friday. Cleanup efforts extended downstream about six or seven miles to Newburgh Lake.

Friese doubted that any of the fuel had flowed beyond Newburgh Lake, which is in the process of a $10 million restoration project to remove, ironically, polychlorinated biphenyl contaminants.

Temple Baptist hosts Kids Blast

Want to improve your basketball skills? How about learning a new hairstyle? Or work on your vocal music style?

First through fifth graders will have a blast doing those things at Kids Blast '98 Monday-Friday, Aug. 10-14, at Temple Baptist Church, 49555 North Territorial, at Ridge, Plymouth Township.

During the week, youngsters can select one of four activity clinics and spend the week developing their talents. The clinics include sports (baseball, volleyball, basketball, roller hockey and soccer), arts (calligraphy, photography, drawing, needle crafts, hairstyle and care, cake decorating and crafts), drama (vocal music, drama and creative movement) and languages (Spanish and French).

The clinics will run 6-8:30 p.m., and parents will be able to join their children in the auditorium for a half-hour closing drama presentation at 8:30 p.m.

The program costs $15 per child. For more information, call Temple Baptist at (734) 414-7777, Ext. 702.

Dentistry in the 90s
by Herbert M. Gardner, D.D.S.

FOLLOWING THE CONTOURS

With the exception of the central incisors (front teeth) and canines (eye teeth), the smile lines of the teeth in both jaws should be relatively even. Teeth that are otherwise tipped, overlapped, or erupted unevenly may contribute to a jagged, unattractive smile line. To correct these irregularities, the dentist may resort to aesthetic contouring. This involves selectively grinding off small sections of enamel on each tooth to effect a better tooth shape. Contouring only affects the apparent position of the teeth, not their actual positions. Thus, it may be necessary to treat severely tipped, misaligned, or overlapping teeth with a more demanding course of treatment.

For cosmetic dentistry such as contouring utilizing modern and up-to-date procedures, we invite you to call LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES at 478-2110. We are currently accepting new patients and welcome the opportunity to provide you with gentle, professional dental care in a warm and caring environment. We're located at 19171 Merriman Road, where we stress preventive health care - and we believe good dental health requires constant attention. Smiles are our business.

Is Cigar Smoking Safe?
NO!

By: Oscar Signori, M.D.

A recent report, entitled "Cigars: Health Effects and Trends" by the National Cancer Institute, shows that smoking cigars daily causes cancer of the lip, tongue, mouth, throat, larynx, esophagus and lung. Cigar smoking may also cause emphysema and coronary artery disease.

Cigar consumption in the United States has increased nearly 50% since 1993 with the greatest rise in cigar smoking occurring among men between the ages of 18 and 24. Cigar smoking has also become more "glamorous" with the media reporting cigar boutiques and parties featuring celebrities and expensive cigars.

Cigar and cigarette smoke contain toxins (carbon monoxide, hydrogen cyanide, ammonia, nicotine, etc.), as well as carcinogens (benzene, arsenic, cadmium, nitrosamines, etc.). Those chemicals are found in greater amounts in cigar smoke. There is 20 times more ammonia and 90 times more nitrosamines due to the larger size of cigars compared to cigarettes, the nature of cigar wrappers, aging, and fermentation of cigar leaves.

The majority of cigar smokers do so occasionally and do not inhale. This gives them a lower risk for cancer, heart and lung diseases than smokers. It also gives them a false sense of security. Smoking three to four cigars daily raises the risk of oral (mouth) cancers five times that of non-smokers, while increasing the risk of esophageal cancers four-fold. Also, the lung cancer risk from inhaling moderately when smoking five cigars per day is comparable to that from smoking one pack of cigarettes per day.

Thus be wise, if you smoke, stop. If you don't, why start?

Oscar Signori, M.D., is the Section Chief, Hematology and Oncology at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center in Dearborn and the Associate Leader of the Genitourinary Cancer Multidisciplinary Team. He is board certified in Oncology and Geriatrics.

Just because something is old doesn't mean it isn't valuable.

I can relate to that, maybe that's why I'm never in a rush with these guys. Standing out a dent here and there, restoring the gears... soon I'll have all the time in the world for them, just like they have for me. That's the beauty of retirement. And now that it's almost here, I'm grateful that I started planning early -- with U.S. Savings Bonds. I started buying Savings Bonds when I got my first real job, through a Payroll Savings plan. I put aside something every payday. And little by little, it really added up. Bonds are guaranteed safe, too, and earn interest up to 30 years.

In a few more years, you'll find me out here in the workshop more and more, fixing a hinge or polishing a case. I know that there's a lot of life left in these old guys. I can relate to that.

Ask your employer or banker about saving with U.S. Savings Bonds. For all the right reasons.

Preserve your memories of summer produce

Mid-August always transports me back to early childhood days when I remember being the only one able to stand up straight in my Irish-born grandmother's cellar. It had a dirt floor, and a musty dampness.

August and early September was a festival of foods. My grandmother would refer to this time as "putting food by." I believe that was an old Irish, or perhaps, country way of saying "food preservation."

Having come to this country as a young girl from Ireland, and then living through the Great Depression, she was used to saving today for what she would need tomorrow. In grandmother's time, you couldn't get fresh peaches in the middle of winter. Imagine a winter without peaches, apple sauce, cherry chutney, or tomatoes. However, by "putting food by," all these fabulous foods, and more, would sit dormant in the dark cellar waiting for you to open them and unleash the memory of summer.

Inspired by memories, I started gardening when I purchased my home in Royal Oak six years ago. At last count, I've already harvested 31 tomatoes. This season, my Beefsteaks are slotted for an Italian style Olive Tomato Bruschetta. I'll let you know how my new concoction fared this winter.

Preserving fruits and vegetables appears to me to be part of America's renewed passion for homestyle favorites from our grandmother's tables. If you don't have a garden, visit local farm markets, which offer a huge variety of organic produce at reasonable prices. Home preservation can bring tastes to your table that you never thought possible. Be creative, take notes on combinations. You're limited only your imagination, and some basic chemistry rules.

If you're canning for the first time, pick up the home canner's bible - the "Ball Blue Book Guide to Home, Canning, Freezing & Dehydration," available wherever canning supplies are sold, or call 1-(800)-240-3340.

Here are some basic canning tips:

■ Hot pack fruit verses raw pack

- Fruit has very porous tissues that contain the juice we love. These pores also hold air, which, if not exhausted from the fruit, can cause floating, or discoloration in home canned fruit. Hot packing fruit helps exhaust this air. The prepared fruit is added to boiling syrup or liquid, brought back to a boil, and simmered for a few minutes. Removing air from the jars is one of the goals of canning. The less air in the jar, the better the results. Removing air from the fruit tissues shrinks the fruit allowing you to pack more in each jar. Raw or cold packing fruit results in inferior products.

■ Lids - Always use new lids for every home canning project. Never attempt to reuse a lid that has been previously placed on a jar for storage or processing. Once the sealing compound on the lid has taken the imprint of a jar, it will not seal properly a second time.

■ Mason jars - Use only mason jars for home canning. Because these jars are made of a heavier weight of glass than commercial food jars, they are more tolerant to the high processing temperatures reached in boiling water and pressure canners. Mason jars can be reused several times. Always check the rims of your jars for nicks and imperfections before beginning a home canning project. Discard jars that have imperfections or nicks.

■ Air bubbles - When filling jars, air bubbles may become trapped between pieces of food, or between the glass and food. If left inside the jar, air bubbles can cause food to discolor. During processing the air bubbles

TEACH YOUR KIDS HOW TO EAT AND BE WELL

BY PEGGY MARTINELLI-EVERTS
REGISTERED DIETITIAN

Healthy eating in childhood promotes lifelong good health, optimal growth, intellectual development and helps prevent long-term health problems. It saddens me to see overweight children struggling, and huffing and puffing on the playground.

I want to intervene when I see kids guzzling soda pop and eating empty calorie junk foods. These children will likely have physical, intellectual and emotional problems.

You can help your child attain their full educational and health potential by providing them with the tools and reinforcement they need to make healthy food choices.

Children who are hungry or undernourished have difficulty resisting infection, and are more likely to be irritable, get sick, miss school, fall behind in class, have low energy, and trouble concentrating.

Here are some USDA guidelines for children:

Eat a variety of foods - You can't always control what your kids eat when they're out, but you can control what you put in your cupboards.

Take your time grocery shopping, and choose foods from all the food groups. Yogurt and oranges are healthy choices, but not if your child eats them day in and day out. Variety is the key. Don't purchase the same foods all the time. For example, fruits can be purchased whole, cut up, frozen, canned or dried. Try them all. Variety is probably the most important aspect of food nutrition.

Balance the food you eat with physical activity - I believe watching TV is a major contributor to childhood weight problems. Children who are slumped in front of a TV for hours miss out on the benefits of play such as strengthening muscles and improving coordination. Turn off the TV. Get your kids to play outside.

Choose a diet with plenty of grain products, vegetables and fruits - Encourage your children to eat unprocessed foods. Some studies have found that 50 percent of school-age children eat fewer than two servings of fruits or vegetables daily. There are lots of good options such as breadsticks, ready-to-eat cereals (watch out for those with artificial coloring), mini-bagels, muffins and all kinds of interesting fruits and vegetables. Keep these out and hide the chips and pop. Enjoy seasonal fruits, grow your own vegetables, get your children interested in the bounty from the earth.

Choose a diet low in fat, saturated fat and cholesterol - Some kids aren't good meat eaters, and we may tend to think their fat intake is low, too. However, packaged cookies and chips are loaded with fat, and can contribute substantially to your child's fat intake. Fast food is high in fat and calories relative to the nutrients it provides. Try to get your kids to accept low fat milk and cheese. Look for alternatives to high fat snacks.

Choose a diet moderate in sugars - Soda pop is probably the worst evil in a child's diet. Regular soda has 9 to 12 teaspoons of sugar per can. These aren't just empty calories

Making edible memories

Helping children understand where food comes from can be fun and interesting.

Here's ways you can bring your kids closer to the source of their food:

- Buy ice cream cones and milk at a dairy farm
- Watch apples being pressed into cider at a cider mill
- Pick blueberries, raspberries or strawberries
- Buy produce at a farmer's market, or corn at a roadside stand
- Go fishing and eat a fish you catch
- Plant vegetables and fruits in your backyard
- Bake bread
- Roast a chicken
- Make a pie from apples you picked together

If your child tries something new because he grew it, picked it, or helped make it, it's worth the extra work involved. You'll have fun together and make good memories too. In my work with seniors I find that memories about food are some of their best.

makes a popular hors d'oeuvre for me because I can prepare it ahead of time. Leftovers are not a problem. I never have any. I'm going to share the winter version with an update for the summer. You'll want to serve the summer version slightly chilled or even at room temperature to capture the full flavor of the herbs and tomatoes.

I prepare my own sun-dried tomatoes in oil with garlic. It's much less expensive than buying them, and they have more flavor. Dried tomatoes are available in the produce section of most grocery stores. Simply wash and pop them into hot water to rehydrate. Dry them, and layer in a glass jar with garlic and oil. I've included my recipe in case you need more specific information.

For the summer version, nothing tastes better than home-grown cherry or plum tomatoes, quartered and seeded as a stand-in for the dried tomatoes. Be liberal with the fresh basil. Triple or quadruple the amount. Take advantage of the summer price. Substitute fresh oregano for the dried herb in the dressing. Three teaspoons of chopped fresh oregano leaves is not too much.

Nutritionally, the fresh tomatoes and herbs add vitamin C and lots of cancer-fighting phytochemicals. Dietary fiber is also increased. Be sure to wash the vegetables well. Washing fruits and vegetables thoroughly has become important to prevent food borne diseases. Even packaged salads need another dunking.

I chose tuna for this recipe because it's something I keep on hand in my pantry. But you can substitute shrimp, scallops or other cooked fish. I like to rinse the tuna several times. It reduces the sodium by almost 75 percent. Both shellfish and water-packed albacore tuna are good sources of Omega-3 fatty acids. These help to lower cholesterol and triglycerides as you know.

I used ready prepared nonfat Italian salad dressing, but spiked up the flavor with olive oil, lemon juice and oregano. I am a lazy cook, as you know, particularly during the summer.

The salad can also be served mixed with other summer greens such as romaine, leaf lettuce, Boston or bibb lettuce, for a main course or as an appetizer. Don't count on leftovers.

A PASTA SALAD FOR ALL SEASONS

- 1/2 pound bow tie pasta
- 2 cans (6 ounces) White Albacore Tuna, water packed, rinsed, drained and chunked
- 1/4 cup (3/4 cup for summer) fresh basil, chopped
- 3/4 cup Special Italian Dressing (see recipe below)
- 2 ounces prepared sun-dried tomatoes, or 1 quart fresh cherry or plum tomatoes (see recipe below)
- Salad greens, optional

Cook pasta according to package directions. Drain and cool to room temperature. Drain sun-dried tomatoes, reserving 1 tablespoon of oil for Special Italian Dressing. Cut sun-dried tomatoes into wide strips. If using fresh tomatoes, wash, quarter and seed.

At serving time, toss pasta, tomatoes, tuna and basil with Special Italian Dressing and optional greens. Serves 4 as a main dish, 10 as an appetizer.

These fun round sandwiches are kid-tested

See related Peggy Everts-Martinelli story on Taste front. Recipes compliments of HDS Services.

"Rounds" are favorites with kids in our area. They're sandwiches in the shape of a ball, great for car trips, picnics, or school lunches. Ten-year-old Analena Iacobelli of Clarkston created this recipe for Pizza Rounds. From her idea we developed the Tuna Rounds and PB&J Rounds. All have been kid-tested, and overwhelmingly approved.

ANA'S PIZZA ROUNDS

- 1 loaf frozen bread dough
- 8 tablespoons pizza sauce
- 32 slices turkey pepperoni
- 2/3 cup shredded low-fat mozzarella cheese
- Chopped green pepper, onion, or other favorite vegetable,

optional
1/4 cup corn meal

It is important to use low-fat, fully cooked ingredients in this recipe.

Thaw bread dough according to package instructions.

Preheat oven to 375°F. On a floured surface, roll out dough into a rectangle until it is about 1/4-inch thick (this is quite thin). Cut dough into 8 squares. Place 1 tablespoon of pizza sauce in the center of each dough square. On top of sauce, put 4 pepperoni slices, then divide mozzarella cheese evenly among squares and place on top of pepperoni.

Pull up edges of each dough square and seal so dough completely covers pizza ingredients. Seal tightly, making sure no sauce or cheese leaks out. The dough will now look like a little ball. Spread corn meal evenly over a cookie sheet or pizza stone. The corn meal prevents dough from sticking to the cookie sheet.

Place dough balls, seam side down, on cookie sheet and bake for approximately 15-20 minutes, until outside is browned. Serve warm. Serves 8.

Nutrition information per serving, excluding optional vegetables: Calories 211, protein 10g, fat 5g, sodium 547mg, carbohydrates 27.

TUNA ROUNDS

- 1 loaf frozen bread dough
- 1 (6 ounce) can chunk light tuna packed in water and drained
- 1 stalk celery, minced
- 1 carrot, finely minced or shredded

- 1 tablespoon onion, minced
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/3 cup fat-free sour cream
- Pepper to taste
- 1/4 cup corn meal

Thaw bread dough according to package instructions. Preheat oven to 375°F. On a floured surface, roll out dough into a rectangle until it is about 1/4-inch thick (this is quite thin). Cut dough into 8 squares. Combine remaining ingredients, except corn meal. Place a heaping spoonful of the tuna mixture in the center of each dough square, dividing tuna mixture evenly among dough. Pull up edges of each dough square and seal so dough completely covers tuna mixture and tuna is sealed tightly inside. The dough will now look like a little ball. Spread corn meal evenly over cookie sheet or pizza stone (the corn meal prevents the dough from sticking to the cookie sheet.) Place dough balls, seam side down, on cookie sheet and bake 15-20 minutes, until outside is browned. Serve warm or refrigerate for serving cold. Serves 8.

Nutrition information per serving: 256 calories, 15g protein, 3g fat, 602mg sodium, 32g carbohydrates.

PB&J ROUNDS

- 1 loaf frozen bread dough
- 10 tablespoons jelly or jam of your choice
- 5 tablespoons peanut butter (we prefer chunky)
- 1/4 cup corn meal

Thaw bread dough according to package instructions. Preheat oven to 375°F. On a floured surface, roll out dough into a rectangle until it is about 1/4-inch thick

(this is quite thin). Cut dough into 10 squares.

Place 1/2 tablespoon of peanut butter in the center of each square. Place 1 tablespoon of jelly on top of peanut butter. Pull off edges of each dough square and seal so dough completely covers peanut butter and jelly and it is sealed tightly inside. The dough will now look like a little ball.

Spread corn meal evenly over a cookie sheet or pizza stone. (The corn meal prevents the dough from sticking to the cookie sheet.) Place dough balls, seam side down, on cookie sheet and bake 15-20 minutes, until outside is browned. Serve warm or refrigerate for serving cold. Serves 10.

may rise to the top of the jar creating too much headspace, and preventing a tight seal. Remove air bubbles by sliding a spatula along the inside of the jar, gently shifting the food and allowing the bubbles to rise to the surface. Be sure to adjust the headspace to the level indicated in the recipe.

Proper utensils - Use glass, stainless steel or enamel saucepans and utensils, not only for tomatoes, but also for all other home canning projects. Naturally occurring food acids can react with aluminum, copper, brass, galvanized or iron equipment to produce bitter flavors and undesirable colors. Wooden spoons can absorb flavors and colors from foods and carry them to the next food in which they are used.

Fruit selection - When making jams without the addition of commercial pectin, use 1/4 slightly under ripe fruit and 3/4 just ripe fruit. Slightly under ripe fruit contains more pectin, which makes jams and jellies set. Slightly under ripe fruit will be firm to the touch, and will not have the expected rich coloring of fully ripe fruit.

Processing - After processing. Remove jars from canner and allow to stand undisturbed for 24 hours. Do not invert jars. Inverting jars places the weight of the food against the lid putting pressure on the sealing compound, which is not yet fully set. This weight may prevent or break the airtight seal. When jars have cooled for 24 hours, check for airtight seals. A concave lid that shows no movement when pressed with your fingertips indicates a good seal. Remove screw bands.

Mason jar sterilization - When the processing time is less than 10 minutes, mason jars must be sterilized before filling. Place them on a rack in a boiling water canner and boil 10 minutes. Do not attempt to sterilize jars in the oven or dishwasher. Heating jars in an oven subjects them to uneven temperature extremes, which can cause breakage. Even on a sterilizing cycle, dishwasher temperatures may not be high enough or long enough to provide adequate sterilization.

Lid preparation - Immediately before using lids, place them in boiling water and boil for 5 minutes. This sanitizes the lids and, more importantly, softens the red sealing compound. Softened compound has the ability to fit snugly around the rim of the jar to form an airtight seal. Omitting this step increases the chance of seal failure.

Cooking techniques - Knowing the difference between a boil and simmer is essential to the success of many home canning recipes. When a home canning recipe says "boil" it means that the mixture is bubbling rapidly, and that stirring will not stop this action. This short intense heating of the mixture is essential, especially in recipes prepared with added fruit pectin. In jam and jelly preparation, long, slow simmering can destroy pectin and result in an inferior product.

Preventing discoloration - Preventing discoloration in fruits such as peaches and pears begins with the use of high quality produce, free of bruises. Second, minimize the exposure of fruit to air. There are also products such as Fresh Fruit Color Protector that help reduce the discoloration of fruits.

Root vegetables - Carrots and beets tend to be very dense and are sometimes woody or fibrous. They require considerable cooking time to heat uniformly. This is why processing times for these vegetables, even when pickled, are longer than other products.

Storing home canned products - Home canned goods keep best when stored in a dark, dry, cool area. Exposure to light can cause preserves to darken. High temperatures can also affect quality and lead to spoilage. Storage in a dry area protects against corrosion of lids.

PREPARED SUN-DRIED TOMATOES

- 2 ounces sun-dried tomatoes
- 1 1/2 tablespoons olive oil
- 4 cloves garlic, chopped

Reconstitute tomatoes by washing and then soaking in hot water for 1/2 hour. Drain. Place on paper towels. Layer tomatoes and garlic in a small glass dish in which 1 1/2 tablespoons of olive oil has been placed. Marinate overnight in refrigerator.

SPECIAL ITALIAN DRESSING

- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano or 3 teaspoons fresh oregano leaves, chopped
- Shake well to blend either. Some soda pop has artificial coloring, artificial flavoring and caffeine. Yuck! What kid needs that? Plus, if your child is drinking pop that means they're probably not drinking milk which contains important nutrients their growing body needs. Artificially sweetened pop is even worse. These sweeteners have not been in use long enough that their long-term safety can be proven.

Get creative and offer other beverages. Buy bottled water in 8 to 12 ounce sizes. Refill the containers if the cost gets out of hand. Mix fruit juice and carbonated water for a refreshing change. Other sources of sugar such as sugar sweetened cereals, cookies, cake, pie and other baked goods, in moderation, can probably fit into a healthy diet, but not soda pop.

Choose a diet moderate in salt and sodium - It's not that you see kids using the salt shaker, it's just all the processed and convenience foods they eat. Encourage your child to eat a variety of foods and balance these with exercise. All of your efforts will be wasted, however, if you, and the rest of your family do not "walk the talk." You must be committed to eating healthy to enable your child to make good choices.

Refreshing melons are the perfect summer food

Cantaloupe, watermelon, and honeydew - their eye-pleasing hues and cool, juicy sweetness make them a perfect summer food. What's more, melons are low in calories, high in fiber, and offer a variety of the vitamins, minerals and phytochemicals that health experts, such as the American Institute for Cancer Research, recommend to lower cancer and other chronic diseases.

To choose the best melon, know what to look for when you go to the grocery store or farmer's market. In general, a melon should feel heavier than it looks, smell sweet and fruity, and yield to gentle pressure at the stem end. Tapping a watermelon gently with your knuckles also works, since ripe ones sound hollow. For the best flavor, store and serve melons at room temperature. Wait to remove the seeds until right before eating because they keep the fruit moist.

In hot weather, melon is the most refreshing with little or no preparation, perhaps a spritz of lime or a sprinkling of ground ginger. For occasions that require a more elaborate presentation, dress a colorful salad of cantaloupe, honeydew and watermelon balls with a lively ginger-lime syrup. Simply simmer together the juice of fresh limes, water, sugar and minced fresh ginger for about 5 minutes.

For the best flavor, store and serve melons at room temperature. Wait to remove the seeds until right before eating because they keep the fruit moist.

Cool the syrup before gently tossing it with the melon balls. Chill the fruit a few hours before serving.

Small chunks of cantaloupe coated with lemon juice, honey and plain yogurt are the foundation of a savory summer chef salad. Fold in toasted sesame seeds, and several cubes of cooked chicken breast and lean ham. Serve the salad on a bed of red-leaf lettuce.

Melon salsa makes a plain grilled chicken breast something to celebrate. Toss together diced ripe honeydew and cantaloupe, grated fresh ginger, minced scallion, seeded and minced jalapeno, fresh lime juice and salt and pepper to taste. Chill before serving.

What's more refreshing, exciting and nutritious than a cold soda on a sultry summer day? A watermelon spritzer, of course. Mix chopped, seeded watermelon, sugar, lime juice and citrus-flavored seltzer or tonic water in a blender or food processor and puree until smooth. Serve over ice cubes and garnish each glass with water mini watermelon wedges.

The best warm-weather meals offer bold flavors that won't weight you down or add to the heat. Cold Melon Soup is a sprightly concoction combining snappy mint, tangy lime and spicy cinnamon tones.

COLD MELON SOUP

- 1 ripe cantaloupe or honeydew
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 1/2 cups orange juice
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh mint

In a food processor or blender, combine the cantaloupe, cinnamon, orange juice, lime juice and honey. Puree until smooth.

Pour the soup into a bowl. Stir in the mint, cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour.

Each of the four servings contains 135 calories and less than 1 gram of fat.

Recipe and information provided by the American Institute for Cancer Research.

Refreshing: Try eye-catching Cold Melon Soup as a first course for a warm-weather luncheon or even as a light dessert.

CRANBERRY SPREAD

- 3 1/2 cups cranberries
- 1 1/4 cups red wine vinegar
- 1 1/2 cups cider vinegar
- 4 whole allspice berries
- 8 whole cloves
- 1 cinnamon stick
- 2 cups brown sugar

Step one: Combine cranberries, vinegar and water in a large non-reactive saucepan. Tie allspice, cloves and cinnamon sticks in a piece of cheese cloth. Bring to a boil and reduce. Heat to medium low, stirring often. Simmer until cranberries are cooked through and tender.

Step two: Remove spice bag and press cranberries with metal spoon through strainer. Discard cranberry skins from strainer. Return pulp to saucepan. Add sugar and simmer approximately 8-12 minutes until sugar is dissolved and sauce has thickened.

Step three: Spoon into hot sterilized jars, wipe rims clean with damp towel and seal tight with clean new metal rims. Process 10 minutes in hot water bath. Remove and cool. Double check seals before storage. Makes 2 pint jars.

This recipe is a favorite of Chef Mike's and makes about 5-6 cups.

JALAPENO JELLY

- 3/4 pound whole jalapeno peppers
- 6 cups sugar
- 2 cups cider vinegar (5 percent acidity)

- 3 ounces liquid pectin
- 10 drops green food coloring, if desired

Wash and halve jalapeno peppers lengthwise. Remove stems and seeds

In a food processor, blend peppers and one half of the vinegar until smooth.

In an eight quart saucepan, combine sugar, pepper mixture and remaining vinegar. Bring mixture to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 10 minutes, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat, stir in liquid pectin. Return to heat and bring to a full rolling boil for one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, stir in food coloring and skim foam.

Immediately fill hot sterilized half-pint jars leaving 1/4-inch headspace. Wipe jar tops and threads clean. Place hot lids on jars and screw bands on firmly. Process in boiling water canner for 5 minutes.

PINE NUT AND HONEY NUT SPREAD

- 6 1/2 ounces pine nuts
- 15 ounces honey
- 2 1/2 teaspoons finely grated orange zest
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Sterilize jars and lids. Combine pine nuts, honey, orange zest and cinnamon. Stir to mix well. Pour honey spread into jars. Store at room temperature up to 2 months. Mix well before using. Makes about 2 cups.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Coffee cup crud

A study from the University of Arizona cites your coffee cup as a potential hiding place for coliform bacteria. "Hippocrates" magazine's February 1998 issue reports on the efforts of food specialist Ralph Meer and his colleagues, who collected 53 coffee mugs from office kitchens around campus and discovered 22 hosted the bacteria.

How to avoid coffee cup crud? Meer suggests staying away from the office sponge. Commonly shared sponges or dish cloths provide a good environment for germs from all over the office. The study noted that mugs cleaned with these items often were more contaminated than before they were washed.

If you must use the sponge, run it through a dishwasher regularly or dampen it and throw it in the microwave for a few minutes to kill any bacteria.

Viagra

Is Viagra the newest wonder drug, or are there some important issues being overlooked in all the media hype? That's the topic Botsford General Hospital's HIM (Help for Impotent Men) Support Group in August.

The nation's No. 1 prescription treatment for impotency - reportedly used by over 100,000 men - Viagra will be examined by a panel of experts, including Botsford urologist Steven Roth and Ed Czarnecki, a therapist and psychologist who specializes in sexual dysfunction. A representative from the pharmaceutical firm Pfizer Inc., the drug's manufacturer, also will be at the meeting.

This free HIM Support Group meets at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 11, at Vladimir's Banquet Hall, 28125 Grand River in Farmington Hills. For more information on HIM, which meets the second Tuesday of every month, call (248) 477-6100.

Elderly worriers

"What? Me worry?" is the inexhaustible topic of discussion for Botsford General Hospital's ElderMed luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 11. Botsford Chaplain Kurt Stuzz and ElderMed Director Sandy Baumann team up to talk about the effect of worry and anxiety on health. They will offer coping strategies that include positive self-talk, prayer and meditation, relaxation, physical activity and journal writing. Cost: $8 members and $9 others. Vladimir's Banquet Hall, 28125 Grand River in Farmington Hills. Registration and payment required by Aug. 11. Call (248) 471-8020.

Caring for the caregiver

The Angela Hospice bereavement department will offer a support group for caregivers beginning in September. Bereavement Coordinator Ruth Favor said it is common for people involved in the physical care of another to have feelings of frustration, anger and guilt. Day sessions of the caregivers' support group will be from 1-2 p.m. on the first and third Tuesday of each month. Evening sessions will meet from 6:30-7:30 p.m. the first and third Wednesday of each month. Call (734) 953-6012.

MENOPAUSE

WSU seeks area women for study

Women in the Detroit area who suffer from frequent hot flashes are being sought to participate in a nationwide study of an investigational treatment for this common symptom of menopause.

Women may be eligible to participate in the study if they experience multiple daily hot flashes, are between the ages of 45 and 65, have not had a menstrual period in six months and have not had a hysterectomy.

Wayne State University is one of 36 sites across the U.S. participating in a study to assess the effectiveness and safety of a hormone replacement skin patch to treat hot flashes associated with menopause. The study will involve 400 subjects nationwide and test the effectiveness of the patch on the frequency and severity of hot flashes. The patch is a type of hormone replacement therapy that releases a combination of estrogen and progesterin, a synthetic version of progesterone.

"The best treatment for hot flashes is estrogen, but many people have concerns about risks associated with this hormone," said Dr. Wulf Utian, lead investigator and director, department of obstetrics and gynecology, University MacDonal Women's Hospital, Case Western Reserve University.

"This study looks at the benefits of combining estrogen with synthetic progesterone to alleviate hot flashes and reduce the risks that may come with using estrogen alone," Utian added.

Menopause is the end of menstruation and fertility and results when the ovaries decrease their production of the sex hormones estrogen and progesterone. A woman is considered to have reached menopause when she has not had a menstrual period for 12 consecutive months and there is no other biological or physiological cause.

The average age of menopause for U.S. women is 51, in the U.S. and Canada, approximately 4,000 women reach menopause every day.

The hot flash is the most common symptom of menopause and perimenopause, the three years before and after menopause. A hot flash is a sudden feeling of heat that spreads over the body, resulting from a change in the body's circulation caused by increased blood flow, a rise in temperature and an accelerated heart rate - all precipitated by falling estrogen.

Hot flashes may be triggered by a hot environment, spicy or hot foods, hot drinks, alcohol, caffeine or stress. They can last from 30 seconds to several minutes and can occur any time, day or night. As many as 75 percent of menopausal women in the U.S. will experience hot flashes, and 35 percent of these women describe them as "severe."

"Some women experience an occasional hot flash as they go through menopause and they consider it no big deal," Utian said. "But hot flashes are a very big deal for many women who suffer from several a day, perhaps as many as 55 or 60 a week. With this investigational study, we hope to show the effectiveness and safety of the patch in treating hot flashes so these women can get on with their lives."

Other menopause-related changes might include irregular menstrual patterns, fatigue, mood swings, vaginal dryness, fluctuations in sexual desire or response, forgetfulness and difficulty sleeping.

Participants in the study will receive free investigational medication, study-related medical treatment and financial compensation. Half of the participants will receive placebo (no active medication) patches.

For more information on the study, call 493-6580.

Hot flash facts:

- Menopause is the end of menstruation and fertility, which results when the ovaries decrease production of the sex hormones estrogen and progesterone.
- Normal menopause-related changes such as irregular periods and hot flashes are caused by fluctuations in hormone levels produced by aging ovaries.
- Menopause itself is only one day in a woman's life - the day she has ceased having menstrual periods for one year - but a woman may experience menopause-related changes in the three years before and after menopause, or perimenopause.
- Approximately 4,000 women reach menopause every day in the U.S. and Canada.
- The average age of menopause in the U.S. is 51, but women can reach menopause at any time between age 30 and 60. Age at menopause is not influenced by race, height, age at first menstrual period, number of children or whether oral contraceptives were taken.
- Nearly 75 percent of menopausal women in the U.S. will experience hot flashes, the most common symptom of menopause, resulting from a change in the body's circulation caused by increased blood flow, a rise in temperature and an accelerated heart rate - all precipitated by falling estrogen.
- Hot flashes can last 30 seconds to several minutes, happen any time day or night and be triggered by a hot environment, spicy or hot foods, hot drinks, alcohol, caffeine or stress.
- Menopause-related changes also might include fatigue, mood swings, vaginal dryness, fluctuations in sexual desire or response, forgetfulness or difficulty sleeping.
- Lifestyle modification, nonprescription remedies and prescription therapies are among the options women can discuss with their health care providers when deciding how to manage short- and long-term effects of menopause.
- Prescription estrogen replacement therapy has been widely studied and used for more than 50 years to treat menopause-related disturbances. It is available in oral tablets, skin patches or by injection.
- Some estrogen replacement therapy products may prevent osteoporosis, a long-term consequence of lowered estrogen levels, and evidence shows that estrogen replacement therapy may reduce the risk of heart disease in menopausal women by up to 50 percent.
- For women who have experienced menopause and still have their uterus, estrogen replacement therapy alone has been associated with an increased risk of endometrial cancer. But, by combining estrogen with progesterin, a synthetic version of progesterone, the risk of endometrial cancer is greatly reduced, almost to the level of taking no hormones at all.
- Combining progesterin and estrogen is called hormone replacement therapy.

Study facts

- The clinical research study will test the effectiveness and safety of an estrogen/progesterin (hormone replacement therapy) skin patch on the frequency and severity of moderate to severe hot flashes in menopausal women.
 - The study will be conducted at 36 medical center sites in the United States with approximately 400 women who experience multiple, daily hot flashes.
 - Women must be between the ages of 45 and 65, have not had a period in six months, and have not had a hysterectomy.
 - Over a three-month course of treatment, study participants will have periodic office visits and tests designed to monitor their hot flashes at no charge.
 - Half the participants will receive placebo (no active medication) patches.
 - Participants will be paid.
- For more information, call (313) 493-6580.

How many infections are too many?

Steven V. Stryk, M.D.

As a board-certified allergy and immunology specialist, I am frequently asked by concerned parents how many infections are too many infections. Most people with young children can attest to the fact that their infants and toddlers seem to be sick as much of the time as they are well.

Colds, ear infections and sinus infections force parents to visit their pediatricians regularly. Antibiotics like amoxicillin are used often, and parents wonder if something can be done to reduce the number of infections their children get.

The typical healthy child will have between six and 10 upper respiratory infections per year. Each upper respiratory infection can last between seven and 10 days. Frequent ear infections, which can occur five to seven times a year, may follow the upper respiratory infection. The average child will run the risk of gastrointestinal viral infection one to two times a year, causing vomiting and diarrhea.

Exposure to other children in day care, older siblings, smoke exposure and nasal allergies can markedly increase the rate of the ear, sinus and upper respiratory infections.

■ 'Exposure to other children in day care, older siblings, smoke exposure and nasal allergies can markedly increase the rate of the ear, sinus and upper respiratory infections.'

—Steven V. Stryk, M.D.

If you add up the days a typical child with a healthy immune system may be ill, it seems like a fair proportion of the year simply because ... it IS a fair proportion of the year.

Given these statistics, when should a parent become concerned at the frequency of infections his child has? The following information is a general guideline I use, but any parent who is concerned should see a board-certified allergy and immunology specialist. Some of the information is based on the absolute number of infections and some is based on what kind of infection the child has and how well the child responds to antibiotics:

■ Greater than eight individual ear infections within one year or repeated ear infections with complications such as perforated tympanic membrane (ear drum) or mastoiditis (infection of the bone around the ear).

■ More than two sinus infections that fail to respond to appropriate antibiotic courses of up to three to six weeks.

■ Two or more bacterial pneumonias per year.

■ Recurrent abscesses of any organ or deep skin infection.

■ Two or more infections such as meningitis, sepsis or bone infection and the need for intravenous antibiotics to clear infections should all raise suspicion.

The frequency of non HIV immune deficiency can be as high as one in 400; however, most children with frequent infections have normal immune systems.

Often the cause of the increased rate of infection is allergic in nature. Nasal allergies can cause inflammation (swelling) and increased mucus production in the nasal passages, blocking the sinus drainage points and interfering with the function of the eustachian tube going to the ear. The blockage of these pathways can increase sinus and ear infections.

If allergies are found to be a contributing factor, then avoidance measures and treatment of the allergies with medication, allergy shots, or both can reduce the number of infections.

Keeping small children at home or enrolling them in small-group day care reduces exposure to other ill children. Second-hand smoke exposure has been shown to increase the risk of colds, bronchitis, asthma and, in a study I conducted, sinus infections. All children should avoid tobacco smoke.

If a parent is concerned, regardless of the type and frequency of infections, a consultation with a physician will help alleviate concerns. Treatment recommendations may provide relief from the health problem.

Skin-deep exams

Skin self-exams could save 4,500 lives each year. The Michigan State Medical Society suggests checking yourself after your shower in a well-lit area with full-length and hand-held mirror. Check for moles and birthmarks you've had since birth. Look for changes in color, size, shape and texture. Next, look at the front of your body in the mirror, checking for any new bumps or marks. Also check your arms, elbows, palms and fingernails. Check behind the backs of your knees and between the toes. Your head also should be checked, not only your face, but your scalp. Comb through your hair and neck for any new marks or bumps. If you find anything discolored or suspicious, call your dermatologist and request a full-body exam.

Couple finds fine investment data online

MIKE WENDLAND

Ted and his wife, Lynne, have a New Year's Day tradition. After breakfast, while their two kids watch the Rose Bowl parade on television, the couple sit down at the kitchen table over coffee and make a list of goals for the new year.

"You could call them resolutions," says the 34-year-old engineer, "we prefer goals. We've been married 10 years now and we are both very busy. People laugh at us because we both carry around these Franklin Planners, but we've learned that if you don't write something down, it gets lost. So we discuss and write down our goals every year. Then we prioritize them and do our best to reach them during the year."

In 1988, when the Bartons started the tradition, their top goal was a new house. It was the same goal in 1989, 1990 and 1992. In 1993, they moved into a new colonial in a nice suburb in Western Wayne County (they don't want their city publicized). In 1994, their No. 1 goal was furniture for the new house. In 1995, the Bartons set a goal to become financially independent by the time Ted turned 45. "That meant we had to learn to save and invest wisely," he said. "But neither one of us knew beans about the stock market or investing. I had a 401(k) at work, Lynne contributed to an IRA at her job, but all our energies up to then had been concentrated in getting out of debt, paying bills and buying the house."

Ted earns about $65,000 a year from his job. Lynne gets about $32,000 as a buyer for a large retail chain. They had about $6,000 in a savings account that they decided to invest and they budgeted $800 a month as a continuing investment. But where to learn?

"We met with a couple of brokers and financial planners, but they basically talked in circles," Barton recounts. "We figured, 'Why pay them to take care of our money when we should be taking care of it ourselves?' So I turned to the computer and did a search one night on personal investing. That led me to a site on the Internet called Motley Fool."

Motley Fool (www.fool.com) bills itself as an online financial forum for the individual investor and it is an immensely popular site that attracts both novice investors and Wall Street veterans. "I think its better than a college economics class," says Barton.

"There are all sorts of tips and suggestions about money and the economy and how to use them both when investing. When I first got online, I probably spent two weeks reading everything I could find on the site and then I started going through the message boards where individual people write in tips and stuff. I asked a few questions, got answers and started to understand things. It was all very laid back."

The first thing Barton learned was to increase his contributions to his company's 401(k), up to the maximum rate. "They have this little guide on Motley Fool for getting ready to invest and it showed how investing tax-deferred in a 401(k) is the best single way to accumulate a big nest egg. Lynne did the same with her IRA."

Next, the Bartons went shopping for a discount broker, following advice from other people online to stay clear of the full service brokers if they wanted to save money. They used e-mail to request information from a dozen or so discount brokers they found online, made a few phone calls and used more e-mail to sort out the field before finally settling on the company who, for low fees, would execute the trades the Bartons wanted.

"The big factor in choosing the broker we eventually went with was that they let me do my trades right over my computer," Barton explains. "They sent me special software and because I was doing all the work, they even discounted their regular discount fee."

Barton studied several investment strategies before settling on a plan called the Dow Dividend Approach, in which he took the initial $6,000 investment stake and divided it into four stocks carefully chosen from information found on Motley Fool and other Internet financial sites.

"In about a year and a half, our initial $6,000 has increased in value to over $20,000," Barton says. "The monthly amounts we've budgeted has given us close to another $20,000. I think that's pretty impressive after about 18 months. I'm learning more and more every time I go online. I can't tell you how many great sites there are out there."

One site Barton particularly recommends is the Trader's Financial Resource Guide (www.stocks.com), a Web site maintained by a Pennsylvania investor named Jack Beausang, a veteran institutional broker and a stock trader who maintains an extremely detailed list of links to various online sites geared towards personal investing.

"Our family is more secure financially because of the information I've found from the Internet," says Barton. "I can't think of any better testimonial than that."

BUSINESS MARKETPLACE

Employees get ownership

Ferrellgas employees across the country will soon become owners of the company, Michael LaBuda, district manager, announced recently.

Dan Sheldon, president and chief executive office of the Canton-based company, told employees they will acquire majority ownership of the company from Ferrellgas Chairman James E. Ferrell through a federally qualified employee stock ownership plan.

The remaining equity of the company is owned by public unit holders and will continue to trade on the New York Stock Exchange.

FCI Automotive

FCI Automotive has received QS-9000 compliance certification for all the company's North American manufacturing facilities, which are located in Boyne City and Westland, Mich; Brecksville, Ohio; and Markham, Ontario, Canada.

Framatome Connectors International headquartered in Paris, La Defense, France, is the world's third largest producer of connectors and interconnection systems with total 1997 sales of $1 billion.

FCI Automotive supplies terminals, connector systems and insert-molded products for nearly any application to the global automotive market, with 14 manufacturing locations and close to 2,000 employees around the world.

Developed by the Big Three, QS-9000 is a supplement to the ISO 9001 quality standard enacted by the International Organization of Standardization. FCI Automotive began work on QS-9000 compliance two years ago and is currently seeking TS-9000 compliance.

Employment market

Although the U.S. unemployment rate edged up in June, chiefly due to the General Motors strike and Asia's economic woes, "the employment market remains extremely tight and job growth continued with 205,000 new jobs created nationally last month," said Loraine Stover, branch manager of Snelling Personnel Services in Livonia.

Stover said the unemployment rate in June was well below the 5 percent rate (seasonally adjusted) of a year ago. "There are more jobs available here than qualified individuals to fill them."

Happy anniversary

Gage Marketing in Plymouth celebrated 40 years of being a major community-based business Friday, Aug. 7.

William C. Scott opened Distribution Services Inc. in 1958 to manage Ford's massive marketing program to more than 5,600 dealers. The company moved into the then-vacated Daisy Air Rifle building in 1964. In 1967, the company name was changed to Adistra Corp. Adistra became part of Gage Marketing Group out of Minneapolis in 1991.

Love and revenge: Raymond G. Roberts sings the lead tenor role in "Carmen" Aug. 28 at the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn.

Friends bring love and passion to stage, audience

Raymond G. Roberts finds language the most challenging part of singing the lead tenor part in "Carmen." The 37-year old Redford resident struggles not with portraying an obsessive love for Carmen that eventually leads him to kill her, but with the French in Bizet's romantic, but tragic opera.

Roberts sings the role of Don Jose, the soldier brought to ruin by his passion for the gypsy girl, in a concert version presented by the Friends of the Opera of Michigan Aug. 28 at the Henry Ford Centennial Library in Dearborn. Roberts began rehearsing with Dorothy Duensing, (Carmen) and the rest of the cast members in June.

"It's more the language than anything else," said Roberts. "I prefer to sing in English."

Language is never a barrier in opera because the drama of the music tells the tale.

Good music

"Opera is good music, nice to listen to," said Roberts. "Opera plots aren't that heavy. It's the music you listen to. You listen to the music and then you feel what they're feeling."

Roberts, who began singing at age 4, tries to instill a love of music in his students at Grant and Hoover Elementary Schools in Livonia. He started two choirs at Grant Elementary and one at Nankin Mills "to get students interested in singing."

To encourage an appreciation for opera, Roberts played a portion of a cassette recording in his students' earlier this year. "I think if they're exposed to opera, they like it," said Roberts, "and 'Les Miserables' and 'Phantom of the Opera' have done a lot for opera. But even more important to exposing them to opera, we need to give them the chance to perform it. Also musicals are a good step toward opera."

Roberts grew up in Livonia listening to country music so it wasn't as if he'd heard opera from an early age. Even after performing opera for the first time while a student at Albion College, Roberts never thought seriously about singing the role of The Duke in "Rigoletto." It wasn't until after he received a bachelor of music degree and was teaching school in Nebraska that Roberts apprenticed with the Des Moines Opera Company.

Roberts performs 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 20, with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and Verdi Opera Theatre Company of Michigan at the Italian American Club in Livonia. Tickets are $15. The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's 1998-99 season begins Saturday, Oct. 17, call (734) 451-2112 for information.

TILING

A WAY TO BRING US TOGETHER

Rodney and Lisa Cooper love making ceramic tile. This time-honored craft gives them a chance to spend time together. During the day Rodney sets up web sites for Chrysler at Ross Roy Communication in Bloomfield Hills, and Lisa consults on projects at EDS in Southfield.

Married five years ago in October, they became interested in architectural tiles after buying a 1939 bungalow in Livonia's Old Rosedale Gardens. An appreciation for Pewabic tiles and the Arts and Crafts movement led them to take classes at Pewabic Pottery to learn more about crafting tiles for their home. The Coopers, along with more than 60 artists from Seattle to Boston, will sell their tiles at Pewabic Pottery's Antique and Contemporary Art Tile Fair Aug. 16.

"Tile making is really important because our jobs keep us separate," said Lisa, 31. "We really enjoy it. It keeps us happy all around."

"It's a good way to be together and share," added Rodney, 35. The Coopers exhibited in the first Pewabic tile fair three years ago. The show was in conjunction with a symposium held by the Tile Heritage Foundation, a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting an awareness and appreciation for the history and preservation of ceramic surfaces in the United States.

Among the items the Coopers will sell Aug. 16 are iris and sea shell tiles, a cafe-style table for indoors or outdoors, and ceramic flowers which were best sellers at Art in the Park in Plymouth in July.

Rodney grew up in Toledo and has bachelor and master degrees in visual communications from Bowling Green State University in Ohio. He's always had an interest in art and design and worked in the graphic arts field in Ohio before moving to Michigan. Both he and Lisa are inspired by the wooded setting of Old Rosedale Gardens.

He's currently making preliminary sketches for a bear who's just caught lunch out of a river. Lisa is carving clay for a mold featuring a porcupine. They're also working on a ceramic sign to be placed on the brick pillars leading into their subdivision.

"The thing with ceramics is the options are endless," said Lisa, who graduated with a business degree from the University of Florida. "The difficult part is settling on one particular idea at a time."

Rodney and Lisa have yet to find time to handcraft ceramic surfaces for their kitchen since starting KOP (pronounced cope), a custom handcrafted tile business, in 1994. In addition to selling tiles at Architectural Artifacts in Toledo, the Coopers accept commissions for custom work and currently are creating tiles in an acorn and oak leaf design for a kitchen in an 1890 Toledo home, and a Scandinavian design of a deer for a backsplash in a Livonia kitchen. "Tile is coming back but in no particular style," said Lisa. "I think people have an appreciation for that type of surface, and there are a lot of do-it-yourselfers who can create something unique for their home with our help."

Spending weekends together at romantic Bed 'n' Breakfasts in Michigan, and antiquing are also favorite pastimes. They recently returned from a vacation in Allen near the Irish Hills area where they visited several antique shops.

"We look for antiques we can incorporate with our tile," said Lisa. "Our interest really lies in combining tile with iron work and furniture."

Kathy Rae

Kathy Rae, an antique dealer from Bloomfield Hills who will sell vintage tiles from the 1880s to 1950s at the fair, says tiles have grown in popularity in the last few years, not only as framed art, but decorative surfaces for furniture. She retrieves antique tiles from Victorian homes about to be demolished. Tiles were at the peak of their popularity during the Victorian period in America. Tile stoves, friezes, and surrounds for fireplaces decorated many homes built in Grosse Pointe and Indian Village earlier this century.

"Arts and Crafts is very popular but Victorian was the height of tiles," said Rae. "In England, they tiled everything. In hospitals, it was the walls, the floors, for sanitary reasons because it can be washed down so easily."

According to Rae, Art Nouveau tiles are gaining respect for their floral themes. But tiles of all designs can be found in homes and businesses today including the 55 tiles above the food court at Somerset Mall in Troy.

"A lot of people install them in contemporary homes," said Rae. "We're having a big revival of tiles. A lot of architects and builders are using them. Tiles are as big now as during the Arts and Crafts movement."

Livonia tile makers Nancy Guido and Diane Dunn will join the Coopers and Rae for the Aug. 16 fair presented by Pewabic Pottery. Other artists include Deborah Hecht and Sarah Frank of Bloomfield Hills; Elaine Goldman and Debbie Liberman, Southfield; Dianne Stewart, Troy; and numer-

AT THE GALLERY

It may be endearingly loony, but collectors simply call it "Art"

At any moment, you expect the sound of carrot-chomping, and a lovable, cocky white-tail rabbit to pop up from beneath the polished hardwood floors at the austere Park West Gallery.

With a casual disdain of James Dean and the cool appeal of a perturbed rock star, you expect that wascally wabbit to look around at the paintings of Renoir, Monet and Miro and pronounce the three most recognizable words in the Looney Tune lexicon: "What's up, doc?"

But even Bugs Bunny's cool defiance would melt just thinking about the emergence of animation as a collectible, perhaps the definitive American fine art.

The recently opened exhibit of animated art at Park West in Southfield offers a compelling case that Bugs and his loony colleagues Daffy, Porky, Wile E. Coyote, Road Runner, Pepe LePew, Sylvester and Tweedy aren't just satirical products of their smart-aleck creators.

Rather, perhaps the wacky world of these all-too-human cartoons reflects a universe of symbolic truths about our own wacky world.

If pop art raised awareness of the relationship between advertising images and art, then animation art slam dunks any vestiges between amusement and "serious art."

American art form

Like many of his colleagues, Park West Gallery owner Albert Scaglione wasn't convinced that the artistry of animation was on the level of collectible paintings and sculptures.

"I did my research," said Scaglione, who noted that he conducted an informal survey of collectors at auctions around the country and aboard cruise ships where Park West coordinates the bidding on pieces of fine art.

With the prodding of his son, Marc Scaglione, merchandise manager at Park West, the elder Scaglione became a believer.

"Not only is there a market for animated art, but I place this (art) on the level with jazz and the Broadway musical as a purely American art form," said the elder Scaglione.

Today, outside of Disney and Warner merchandise stores, Park West is the largest animator art-seller in the world. Last year, they reported sales of about $10 million.

Park West's exhibit, curated by the younger Scaglione, features the work of Chuck Jones, one of the most distinguished and influential animators from what is considered the Golden Age of Animation, the mid 1940s to the early 1960s.

Jones' animation and directing work on Looney Tunes cartoons, and MGM classics such as "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" and "Horton Hears a Who," earned him two Academy Awards, and honorary degrees from the American Film Institute and the Directors Guild of America Life Membership Award.

Filmmakers Steven Spielberg and George Lucas have claimed that Jones has been a major influence on their filmmaking.

At 85, Jones continues to draw and paint from his home in southern California. He sends autographed drawings to children who have written to him in search of a word from Bugs or the other Looney Tunes.

The wit behind that sharp-tongued hare has hardly diminished.

Shortly thereafter, he decided to study for a master of music degree in vocal performance at the University of Michigan.

Roberts has performed with the Detroit Symphony Chorale, Midland Symphony, Ft. Wayne Philharmonic and the Michigan Opera Theatre's community program. His first Friends of the Opera of Michigan production was nearly three years ago. Various productions around town keep him busy singing.

On Sept. 20, Roberts will join the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and Verdi Opera Theatre Company of Michigan for a concert at the Italian American Club in Livonia.

Opera's Italian roots

Enrica Piccirilli founded Friends of the Opera of Michigan 10 years ago, in honor of her father Fausto Di Vico to give talent, like Roberts, the opportunity to perform. Di Vico belonged to a similar opera organization in Italy.

"My father was always the one who was behind me to sing opera," said Piccirilli. "When he died, I wanted to keep a part of what he loved alive."

Born and raised in Italy, Piccirilli became familiar with the music of Puccini at an early age. She studied voice at the G. Rossini Conservatory of Music in Pesaro and sang opera in Italy before marrying and moving to Michigan 30 years ago. On a two week trip to visit her mother in Italy in late July, there were people who still remembered hearing her sing.

"I think, it's just Italy that attracted me to opera," said Piccirilli, a Dearborn resident. "I grew up hearing women singing while they're doing their chores. We always sing in Italy. It's like getting up in the morning and saying your prayers. You get up in the morning, say your prayers and start singing."

The Friends of the Opera of Michigan produce seven to eight operas a year primarily in the Dearborn area but also in Detroit and Warren. Piccirilli selected "Carmen" for the Friends of the Opera's summer concert because of the story line and the fact that the weather is warm.

"It's an appropriate piece, a story of the passion and love this woman has, and summer is a time for this," said Piccirilli. "Carmen is all about love, passion and revenge."

Quinto Milito sings the part of Escamillo, the toreador who takes the place of Don Jose in Carmen's heart. Milito made his singing debut at the Spoleto Festival in Italy after graduating from G. Rossini Conservatory of Music in Pesaro. He's appeared as Tonio and Silvio with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci." He also performed in "The Three Baritones" with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra at Orchestra Hall in November, and with Kessler and the Redford Civic Symphony in June. He is artistic director of the Friends of the Opera of Michigan.

"We mainly produce new work by unknown composers to give local people the chance to perform and the audience the chance to hear little known music," said Milito.

Soprano Dina Kessler will sing the role of Micaela, Don Jose's childhood sweetheart, in "Carmen." She sang music from "Showboat" with the Redford Civic Symphony at a music in the park series June 30. Kessler also sang the role of Violetta in "La Traviata" with the Friends of the Opera in March. She earned a master of music degree from Bowling Green State University in Ohio and a bachelor of music from Western Michigan University. Kessler sang the lead role in "Little Red Riding Hood" with the Michigan Opera Theatre's touring program and Papagena in Toledo Opera's Mainstage production of "The Magic Flute."

Historic beginnings

Founded in 1903 at the height of the Arts and Crafts movement by Mary Chase Perry Stratton and Horace Caulkins, Pewabic Pottery offers classes, lectures, workshops, tours, exhibits, and the production of handcrafted vessels and architectural tile for public and private installations. Located on East Jefferson across from Waterworks Park east of downtown Detroit, Pewabic has created installations for Christ Church at Cranbrook, Holy Redeemer, Detroit's Guardian Building, Scott Fountain on Belle Isle, the People Mover stations, the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C., Nebraska State Capitol and the New York Metro Transit Authority's Herald Square.

"There was a period during the Depression when people couldn't afford handmade tile," said Pewabic development director Sandra Koukoulis, "but today, nationally, tile has grown; it's huge. The fair is a great way for people to see as much tile as possible. It's endless what you can do with tile, the styles and the subject matter. It's collectible, functional, and can be used for murals, back splashes, tables. It's not only something you put on the floor."

OPENS NATIONWIDE FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 11

"We like to say, 'French Impression started as an art and became a business, and animation started as a business and became an art,'" said Jones.

The bottom line: Humor

In exhibits adjacent to Jones' series of oil paintings, hand-painted cels, and drawings, hang the work of notable animators Friz Freleng and Robert McKimson.

Jones, Freleng, McKimson along with Tex Avery and Bob Clampett - working in the Warner Brothers Studios - collaborated in inventing Looney Tunes, a stable of some of the most familiar cartoon characters in American movie history. The creative team oversaw the stories, animation, production and editing of hundreds of classic cartoons.

In the early years of animation, Disney Studios focused on full-length animated features, such as "Steamboat Willie," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Pinocchio," and "Fantasia."

Whereas Disney pushed the medium, the artists at Warner Brothers were pushing their own humor, creating cartoons shorts, said Jones, where the only standard was that they had to be funny to the creators.

Because of tight budgets, the animators at Warner Brothers ground out an assembly line of characters and short-films, which ran prior to the main attraction in movie theaters.

Animation art: "Iced Tease" is one of the hand-painted limited edition cels signed by Chuck Jones on display at Park West Gallery.

"We made cartoons for ourselves," said Jones. "All of us grew up during the Depression. We were just trying to make people laugh."

Along the way, however, they - with animators at Disney and Hanna-Barbera - created an art form that as much as any incorporates distinctive American values of technology and pure escapism.

Not so loony

Like all animators, Jones pays homage to Disney for pushing an art form that goes to the other side of make-believe to create reality from the Celluloid stardust of human emotion.

With the international success of Disney's "The Lion King," prime-time acceptance of "The Simpsons" and the appeal of the Cartoon Network, even Walt Disney might be surprised at how pervasive animation has become.

Perhaps it all seems a little loony. But who's to say? We live in an age where people believe "if it's on TV, it must be true."

In animation art, reality is not only suspended, it's obliterated. Yet the world of Bugs Bunny and his wacky friends isn't all slapstick.

"We found it much easier to humanize animals than to humanize humans," said Jones.

Who else but Bugs Bunny and his puppeteer Jones could break the elitist barriers of the art world? Remember: this was the same team, along with Elmer Fudd who made Wagner's "Der Ring Des Nibelungen" accessible in their breakthrough, "What's Opera, Doc?"

That 1957 film was the first animated short subject inducted into the National Film Registry.

Maybe animation art isn't so loony, after all. "What's up, doc?" just might be more of a rhetorical reminder that adults take the world much too seriously.

And that just might be a bit of wisdom worth collecting.

Sanjay Mody: Plays with a 'presence' beyond his years

The ringing acoustics from the Steinway & Sons piano dissolve into the recital hall at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Sanjay Mody rises from the piano bench and holds out his hand. It's the same right hand that moments before had coaxed the rousing melody from Mendelssohn's concerto in G minor.

He offers a polite greeting, and doesn't appear to realize how he makes such a difficult task of playing piano sound like flowing water through shifting currents.

As pianists go, Mody's hands are appropriately thin and agile. Anyone who listens to him perform will appreciate his proficient technique that defies his 12 years of age.

But anyone who watches him hover over the keys like a precocious Vladimir Horowitz will wonder how a child can interpret a series of notes into an emotionally mature landscape.

Recently, Mody of Birmingham who is a student at Roeper School, traveled to Russia for an intensive piano-studies program. His Russian hosts had an appropriate word to describe Mody's playing.

They simply called it "presence."

From love

In just two days, Mody learned the Mendelssohn piece that he'll perform this Wednesday in a recital at Schoolcraft.

"I see in Sanjay a tremendous curiosity and ability to concentrate deeply," said Donald Morelock, director of the piano department at Schoolcraft.

From the early teaching sessions three years ago, Mody had an uncanny ability to memorize and interpret increasingly difficult pieces, said Morelock.

"Sanjay thinks like a professional," he said. "He relates to the structure of a piece, adds his own interpretations and brings his own emotional variety."

Morelock has developed an "imaginative connection" with Mody, said Sanjay's father, Parimal Mody.

Rather than dissect and memorize music, Morelock's approach is to encourage his students to create a personal narrative, or vivid imagery to associate with the various passages of a piece.

Typically, Mody practices, rigorously keeping time with a metronome. The last time through a piece he sets aside the metronome and "just has fun with it."

"You have to put together a piece because you love it," said Mody.

The nuances in his playing style, he said, come from interpretations of the composer's life and milieu.

Beethoven is his favorite.

"I love the emotion and loud chords," he said. "I also love that Beethoven had to write music as a way to overcome his deafness."

Like his sense of rhythm, perspective comes easily to Mody.

He asks: Why do anything for any other reason than out of love.

A balanced view

From an early age, the Mody knew that their son was endowed with a sophisticated sense of rhythm. While other kids were pounding on toys, he was keeping time by drumming with the nearest available sticks.

While other kids gave up on their Legos, Mody persisted until he completed building what he set out to build.

The persistence, said Mody, comes from his father, an engineering manager with Robert Bosch, who immigrated from India 14 years ago.

The ability to create visual metaphors to go along with music, he said, was inherited from his mother, Julie, a writing teacher at Oakland University.

Then, the young Mody goes on to list all the traits he's inherited from his ancestors and how they all figure into his musicianship.

Apparently, the tributary of generational talent coalesce every time he pulls up a seat and runs his fingers across the ivory keys.

"He has a wide repertoire," said Morelock. "Sanjay is a natural performer and communicator."

As a teacher, Morelock's intent is not to throw too much at the young pianist. That's more difficult than it sounds.

In just three months, Mody learned, memorized and performed the complete 15 two-part inventions of Bach.

"We're still laying the foundation," said Morelock.

The musical foundation will be built, Mody hopes, that will lead him to Julliard School of Performing Arts in six years.

By then, Mody will be a little more filled in, taller and probably walking with the swagger of a teenager.

But his steady hands and nimble fingers will never really change.

"I don't want to sound like some of the people I meet who say, 'I used to play piano. I wish I still were playing.' That doesn't make any sense to me."

Only a 12-year-old could imagine a life without regrets.

To be young, gifted. And so wise.

Flowing: Sanjay Mody rehearses for an upcoming recital.

CALL FOR ARTISTS

Canton Project Arts is looking for artists for its fifth annual Fine Arts Exhibition Oct. 31 to Nov. 6 at Summit on the Park in Canton. Fine art works in all mediums are being sought. Cash prizes totaling $1,500 will be awarded to Best of Show, Second, Third Place, and Merit Award winners.

Deadline for entry is Sept. 10. For more information, call (734) 397-6450.

Juror for the show is Marjorie Hogan Chellstorp, a Madonna

University assistant professor of art and humanities. For more than 25 years Hogan Chellstorp, a Farmington Hills resident, has exhibited in invitationals such as the Michigan Water Color Society's 50th anniversary show at the Detroit Institute of Arts and the 1996 Our Town exhibit at The Community House in Birmingham. Her work has been shown in more than 20 museums and galleries. She has been commissioned to paint murals or has work in the collections of Comerica Bank, Consolidated Gas Co., and Ford Aerospace.

Canton Project Arts is also seeking volunteers to help coordinate the exhibit. Art lovers, artists, business owners, and residents are invited to volunteer a few hours to staff the show during the week, or hang art works and install sculptures. Call number listed above.

NEW EXHIBIT SEASON

Schoolcraft College is looking for artists to show their work in the Harvest Room restaurant.

"We're looking for themes or subjects such as nature, scenery, something bright and beautiful, and pleasing to the eye while people are eating," said Ellen Hochberg, who's coordinating the exhibits.

Art works should be ready to hang. The space can accommodate about 35 to 45 pieces depending on size.

For more information, call Hochberg at (734) 462-4400, ext. 5009.

Fired up: Create your own silver jewelry at You're Fired in West Bloomfield.

Naked pots await your artistic flair

If you liked art class as a child, then you'd have a great time at any of the contemporary ceramics studios that have popped up in the area over the last few years.

What is a contemporary ceramics studio? It's a place where people of all ages can buy and paint ceramic items, just for fun.

SHOPPING CENTERED

DONNA MULCAHY

Walk into one of these studios and you'll see shelves filled with bisque ware — "naked" ceramic items that have been fired once in a kiln and are ready to be painted. Dinner plates, bowls, mugs, statues and seasonal decorations are just some of the many things to choose from.

You pick out the item you want and then decorate it with stencils, paints and glazes. When you're done, you leave the item at the studio, so that staff members can apply a final glaze and fire the item once more. The finished item is usually ready to be picked up in about a week to 10 days. You pay for the ceramic item ($5 or less for a small tile or kiddie statue to $60 or more for a large vase or lamp), plus a per-hour fee for the amount of time you spent painting the item in the studio (usually about $6-$8 an hour, depending on the place). In-store party packages are available for birthdays, bridal showers, corporate team-building exercises, etc.

The difference between "contemporary" and "regular" ceramics studios is that at contemporary studios, all of the hard work — shaping, smoothing and cleaning the pre-fired clay item ("greenware") — has been done. All you have to do is paint. Local contemporary ceramics studios include: Kaput Kapot at 151 S. Bates in Birmingham, The Painted Pot at 421 Walnut in Rochester, and You're Fired at 6925 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield.

You're Fired recently was chosen to participate in a pilot project by Mitsubishi Material Corp. in Japan. As a result, customers now can make silver jewelry at the studio in addition to painting ceramic pieces. The project involves a new material that Mitsubishi developed, called Precious Metal Clay (PMC). The material consists of precious metal particles (in this case, silver) that are suspended in a clay-like binder. PMC can be shaped any which way. Afterwards, it is fired in a kiln. The clay binder burns away, leaving a precious metal object that is the same shape and about half the size of the original clay piece. The cost is $40 per ounce, plus $8 an hour for studio time or about $4 per object if a customer works on the PMC at home and then brings it back to be fired.

In the Livonia-Plymouth area, Wayne Plastercraft and Bisque, located at 2379 Venoy in Westland, sells bisque and plaster items for customers to paint at home. Customers can bring the painted piece back to have it glazed and fired for a small fee. Party packages are available. One-on-one painting lessons are also available. Phone (313) 729-9282.

"It's a good creative outlet," said Stacey Laker, owner of You're Fired, explaining the studios' popularity. "It's something anybody can do. A good mother-daughter project. A good place to bring the monthly book club. It's the perfect thing to do on a date. You're not eating, you're not going out for coffee. You can just sit and have a conversation and be creative, all at the same time."

STREET SEEN

Of bowlers & 'brollies'

At this year's Fash Bash, British Isles Style filled the runway with modern pinstripe suiting, mod-rocker outerwear, romantic velvets, Gaelic tweeds, tartan plaids and opulent furs. But the sidewalks outside the Fox Theatre teemed with Detroit's fashionista who turned heads in original creations. While hardly fit for the Queen, the innovative street wear was astoundingly outrageous and refreshingly improper.

News of special events for shoppers is included in this calendar. Send information to: Malls & Mainstreets, c/o Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 East Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009; or fax (248) 644-1314. Deadline: Wednesday 5 p.m. for publication on Sunday.

SUNDAY, AUG. 9

Who delivers the goods?

We're looking for your favorites. All of us spend lots of time in the malls and downtown shops. In fact, shopping is now the nation's favorite vacation activity, so we're even traveling distances to shop.

Are malls and mainstreets worth the trip? Since you've visited countless stores, dealt with all kinds of salespeople and bought reams of merchandise, you're the shopping experts.

Now you can share your experiences with us. We're publishing "The Best of Malls & Mainstreets" on Sunday, Sept. 13. You be the judge. Feel free to make up your own categories.

We want to know where you shop, which stores offer the best service, who gives the greatest manicures, where you go to be pampered, which malls have the best amenities, where you find your favorite lipstick, where you go for lingerie, shoes, housewares, sheets, furniture, antiques, dry cleaning, haircuts.

Share your secrets - only the best ones! And be creative. We want the cream of the crop in the retail business.

Mail or fax your nominations to Best of Malls & Mainstreets, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax: (248) 644-1314.

TRAVEL

Frequent flyer shares strategies in travel class

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Be Kind to Gate Agents!
After logging numerous flight hours on Northwest Airlines, hovering for several hours over airports and playing air fare roulette, Bob Cowen has learned that the agent at the gate can be a time saver and a money saver.
Cowen of Farmington Hills is sharing this and other travel knowledge in three-hour classes for the Southfield and Farmington community education programs.
As a salesman for a communications software company, Cowen does a lot of traveling and he's taken notes on his experiences from "Halifax to Mexico and the southern Caribbean to Vancouver."
"I feel sick when I see people paying what they are paying for air fares and hotels and know they don't have to if they know what they're doing," he said.
Two years ago, he decided to do something about it.
"I like selling and I like teaching, so I developed a class. I went to Southfield schools and they said OK, so I taught there for a year and then went to Farmington," he said.
His original plan was to help businesses save money on their necessary travel expenses. Though he originally designed the class for business, 80 percent of the students were leisure travelers.
Using an overhead projector, Cowen has carefully planned his class to combine the humor borne of traveller frustration with a planned attack that as one student phrased it in a survey card "Puts me on a level field with the airlines."

And Cowen finds that he often learns as much as teaches.
"The class is three hours but it often runs 3-1/2 hours and more. There is a real interchange of ideas in each class," he said.
Cowen outlines his class on two of his transparencies under "Travel Secrets": Save up to 50 percent on air fares, more frequent flyer mileage, first class seating, best seat on the airplane, eliminate connecting flights, get to the front of any line, find the best travel agent, preview resort/cruise, get lower hotel rates, reduce rental car charges, travel smarter, avoid delays and cancellations and change a "no change" ticket.
Cowen said there is no one way to get the best air deal, but offers several strategies that he has found to be helpful.
"I have a top dozen ways to get the best fares," he said.
Among his suggestions is to drive a little and fly out of Lansing or Toledo, where fares are cheaper; split your ticket and fly to a midway city on one airline and complete your flight on another airline, carefully planned it could save you hundreds of dollars; fly into a nearby city that is less fashionable, for instance fly to San Jose rather than nearby San Francisco.
"On trusting airlines, my advice is never trust airlines," Cowen said, only half facetiously.
"If you call Northwest directly, each time you will get a different price. They don't have time to work with you. A travel agent will work with you," Cowen said.

Another Cowen rule is use a travel agent.
"I talk about how to find the best agent for you and for your type of travel," Cowen said.
He said recent cutbacks in agent fees paid by airlines have forced travel agents to charge for their services, but he said the work they do is worth the fee.
Cowen also teaches how to "survive and thrive" at airports, a subject that has become especially important in light of recent labor problems at Northwest, Detroit's hub airline.
"I have a Plan B if a flight is delayed," he said. "Who is the most powerful person at the airport and who can help you the most."
Cowen said he has been bumped twice from Northwest flights but has received credits and meal vouchers while others got nothing.
"Keep asking, keep asking, keep asking," Cowen said. He calls it his Mommy-Daddy strategy. If Mommy says "No," go ask Daddy.
Another bit of advice Cowen offers is to avoid E or electronic tickets. He says get a paper ticket so that if you have to change airlines you can do it at the gate rather than waiting in a line at a ticket counter. Airlines aren't required to exchange E tickets until late 1999.
As a software salesman, he is also a promoter of using the computer as a travel tool.
"On the first day of class, one of the things I ask is what kind of travel do you do and do you have internet access. I talk about what sites are good and which aren't," Cowen said.

The internet can be used to preview trips, find special travel agents, track down the latest changes in air fares and check the Department of State for travel advisories.
Cowen also shares some tips on hotel accommodations and car rentals. He advised taking advantage of every available discount such as AAA and AARP, sending for city brochures that often contain discount coupons and calling a hotel directly rather than calling a central 800 number.
On car rentals, Cowen advises walking the counters after you've called to get a price quote. He said rental companies will often have cheaper rates later in the day.
Several Cowen slides approach travel with humor to break the ice as the class begins. He advises you are traveling too much if: You go to a movie and reach for the seatbelts when you sit down; you don't mind coach to Europe because it's a short flight; the flight attendant recognizes you and knows your name.
But despite the humor, Cowen sees the traveler as a warrior who has to be properly armed.
"Beat them at their own game when it's coming out of your pocket," he said.
And, of course, once at the airport be nice to gate agents.
"They have to turn a plane around, unload and turn around in 30 minutes. You have to know when to leave them alone and when to hit them up for first class upgrade," he said.

Experienced traveler: Bob Cowen, at Detroit Metro Airport, uses his experience as a business traveler to pass along his secrets of traveling less expensively.

Cowen will be teaching his class 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Sept. 26, in Southfield and Saturday, Oct. 3, in Farmington and 6:30-9:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 19, in Farmington and Monday, Oct. 26, in Southfield.

Jobbitt nominated

Terry Jobbitt, hockey coach of Livonia Franklin High, is one of five finalists for the 1998 Special Olympics-National High School Athletic Coaches Association Coach of the Year.

Jobbitt has been involved with Special Olympics since 1977.

The list of his Special Olympics activities is a long one from competition director for Area 23 to golf outing chairman.

Jobbitt also stepped into the role of co-tournament director for the state's Summer Sports Classic for the past seven years.

Tompkins 3rd in Classic

Chris Tompkins, a senior at Westland John Glenn, shot a 73 Friday to finish third in the Power-Bilt Junior Classic at Bedford Valley Country Club in Battle Creek.

The top two finishers were Jone Kalmink of Kalamazoo, 71, and Hartland's Derek Arnett, the Golf Association of Michigan Junior champ, 72.

On Aug. 3-5, Tompkins finished tied for 12th in the Boys 15-17 age group at the PGA Junior Series at Izaty's Golf & Yacht Club in Onama, Minn.

Over 150 golfers from 28 states, Japan and Canada competed in division.

Tompkins shot three-round total of 234 with scores of 82-76-76.

Californian Alistar Hay won the event with a 79-75-74/228.

Women's Suburban golf

Joey Kraithoff of Novi shot a 79 to earn first flight low gross honors Friday in the Women's Suburban Golf Association stop at Hartland Glen.

Sandy Rivers of Rochester Hills was second with an 84.

Mary Allen (Wayne) and Jo Anne McVicar (Livonia) tied for low net with 63 each. Dolley Vettese (Northville) was second with a 69.

In the second flight, Penny Irwin (Westland) won low gross with a 91. Mary Ann Kraft (Dearborn Heights) was second with 100.

Mary Cunningham (Westland) took low net with a 67, one stroke ahead of Peggy Osip (Dearborn Heights) and Jinny Valentine (Dearborn).

Glenn cross country

The Westland John Glenn cross country team is looking for interested runners, particularly freshmen and sophomores who will be attending John Glenn High in the fall.

There will be a meeting at 9 a.m. Monday Aug. 10, at the school.

For more information, contact Jess Shough at (734) 729-4720.

GCYAA football signup

The Garden City Youth Athletic Association will be taking registrations for fall football. Freshmen (ages 8-10), junior varsity (10-12) and varsity (11-14) are eligible.

The registration fee is $125.

Practice starts 6:30-8:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 10 at Moeller Field, directly behind Gordon Chevrolet.

Late signups will be at the practice field.

An eight-game schedule is played with all home games slated for Saturday or Sunday.

Call Tim Graham at 721-3826 for more information.

Fall softball leagues

Canton Softball Center is now taking registrations for the fall softball league.

The six-week doubleheader league is offered for men's, women's and coed leagues with your choice of Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday playing days.

Team cost for the 12-game session is $395 plus a refundable $50 forfeit fee. The season begins the week of Sept. 8. For more information, call (734) 483-5600, Ext. 2.

Canton Softball Center continues its tournament schedule with the USSSA men's C state championship, Aug. 15-16, the USSSA last chance men's E qualifier, Aug. 22-23, and the USSA coed state championship, Aug. 29-30. These tournaments are open to all teams. For more information, call (734) 483-5600, Ext. 2.

Barrett bids adieu to Stevenson

Coach resigns to take EMU assistant's job

BOYS SOCCER

Livonia Stevenson's Walt Barrett, one of the nation's winningest high school boys soccer coaches, is headed to the collegiate ranks.

Barrett, who compiled an impressive 125-15-23 record in eight seasons with the Spartans, will join Eastern Michigan University's staff as an assistant coach under Brian Tinnion.

The move, rumored to be in the works for several months, was finalized early last week.

Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer announced that Barrett will be replaced by former Stevenson great and Detroit Rockers indoor professional Lars Richters, who has served as an assistant and co-coach the past four coach years. See related story.

Barrett leaves Stevenson with two state championships (1991 and '96) and one runner-up finish (1993).

"It was slow torture for three months," Barrett said. "I couldn't take it because it was the toughest decision I've ever made in my life."

"I enjoyed Stevenson and being part of the program. That's why it was so hard. It was a huge decision which took until the last moment."

"But this was a wonderful opportunity I couldn't pass up."

Barrett hopes to bolster EMU's recruiting efforts.

The Eagles finished 4-13-4 in Tinnion's fourth season.

"I'm excited to have him on board," Tinnion said of 37-year-old Barrett. "He will definitely help recruiting. He's been an Olympic Development Program coach at the regional level and obviously he's been a successful high school coach."

"I've known Walt for years and he's a good fit."

Barrett, a former player at Schoolcraft College and club player at Wayne State University, will pay strict attention to defense.

"I was disappointed last year because we gave too many goals away," Tinnion said. "I've watched him (Barrett) play, and although he was not the most gifted of talents, he was smart and had the physical attributes which compensated against more talented players."

"We plan to step it up defensively."

New direction: Walt Barrett leaves Livonia Stevenson High after compiling an impressive 125-15-23 overall record in eight years.

In 1997, Barrett took the Birmingham Blazers, an under-16 boys team, to the U.S. Youth Soccer Association championship game. His ODP under-17 regional teams have won national titles three of the past four years.

"I thought my soccer appetite had been satisfied with youth. Maybe I got too comfortable and I needed to be challenged. I had pretty much achieved all my goals in club and in high school."

"I was looking for something else. But I realize this (EMU) is going to be an uphill battle."

Barrett, who led unheralded Southfield High to an upset of Stevenson in the 1987 regional final, spent two seasons as a JV and assistant coach under the legendary Pete Scerri.

Scerri, who won four state titles and had two runner-up finishes, won his last state title in 1998, Barrett's first year as an assistant.

"I will always be grateful for Walt — who was a successful coach at Southfield — for coming over and being JV coach until Pete Scerri left," Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer said. "Not a lot of coaches would be willing to take a step back before taking a step forward."

"He took us to the same heights that Pete Scerri took us and hopefully Lars can continue at the same level."

The EMU assistant's position is not full-time. Barrett will continue to work for Telephone Support Systems of Farmington Hills, commuting back and forth to Ypsilanti.

Barrett told the Stevenson players last spring that the EMU position had been offered.

"I set the table early and I didn't want it to be a shock to them," Barrett said. "I just hope they keep tradition going."

Richters new varsity coach for Spartans

Livonia Stevenson High will fill its boys varsity soccer coaching position from within.

Lars Richters, one of the school's all-time greats, will begin his first practice Monday as head coach for the Spartans.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Stevenson athletic director Roger Frayer.

He replaces Walt Barrett, who resigned last week to take an assistant coaching position at Eastern Michigan University. See related story.

"I wasn't sure until the last minute that Wally would be leaving, but this is certainly a dream come true," said Richters, who led Stevenson to state championships in 1985 and '86, and played at Yale University. "I've been in coaching awhile, but some day I thought it would be really great to coach back at Stevenson. It's really exciting."

Richters spent the past seven years playing professional indoor soccer for the Detroit Rockers where the defender was among the NPSL leaders in blocks.

Richters, 29, has also coached for the Livonia YMCA Premier Soccer Club's Hawks and Wolves programs, and worked the Rockers summer camps.

Richters takes over for Barrett, who won a pair of state championships with a career record of 125-15-23 in eight seasons. He also played under Pete Scerri, who won four state titles and finished runner-up twice.

"Stevenson has a great tradition and my job is to build on that tradition," Richters said. "Both Wally and Pete had good ideas on how to be successful at the high school level. They've been doing a lot of things right for a lot of years."

"I have some ideas to add to what they've done. And I know it's not going to be easy."

Richters, who will do his student teaching this year, will likely retire from the professional ranks.

"My plan is to wrap up my

Turkish archer gobbles up field

Elif Altinkaynak overcame a lot of hurdles to win the U.S. Open at the National Archery Championships in Canton on Friday.

Oppressive heat and humidity. Nerves. And her own teammate, who went into the tournament ranked No. 1 in the world.

But Altinkaynak, a native of Antalya, Turkey, rose to the occasion. She overcame a two-point deficit in the final two rounds to defeat fellow countryman Natalia Nasaridze 114-109 for the gold medal.

"I'm very happy," said Altinkaynak, who spoke through an interpreter. "But I was expecting to win."

If that sounds like cockiness, it isn't. Altinkaynak, 23, took a bronze medal in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics using a recurve bow. She came into this week's action ranked No. 5 in the world.

Nasaridze bested Altinkaynak by 50 points in qualifying competition to earn the top seed for Friday's Open.

Nasaridze looked unbeatable as she mowed through four opponents to make it to the final. She then jumped out to a 57-55 lead after the first two rounds against Altinkaynak.

Both competitors shot three arrows, worth a maximum of 10 points each, from 70 meters for a total of four rounds. Altinkaynak made her move in round three by launching three perfect shots.

She, in fact, scored 59 out of a possible 60 points in the final two rounds to edge Nasaridze.

"It was not so easy," Altinkaynak said of shooting against her friend and teammate. "But we expect to have many more good competitions."

The U.S. Open culminated a week's worth of competition at the 114th U.S. National Archery Championships at Canton's Heritage Park.

More than 500 archers from all over the world and America took part. The U.S. Nationals, which featured competition in six classes with both recurve and compound bows, went from Monday through Friday morning.

She's No. 1: Recurve shooter Elif Altinkaynak of Turkey captured the gold medal in the Ladies U.S. Open Friday at Heritage Park in Canton Township.

National champions were supposed to be crowned Thursday, but rain canceled shooting that day.

The top 64 point getters in recurve and compound, regardless of age or class, earned tickets into Friday afternoon's U.S. Open. Archers then went head-to-head until only one was left standing.

While the two Turks took gold and silver in recurve, Norway's Wenche-Lin Hess garnered the bronze. She beat Connecticut-native Karen Scavotto 109-102.

In ladies compound, Sally Wunderle of Illinois won the gold. Ashley Kamuf got the silver and Tara Swanney earned a bronze.

On the men's side, Victor Wunderle defeated Barry Weiperl for the recurve gold. Butch Johnson, who was ranked No. 1 in the world going into the tournament, won the bronze.

Roger Hoyle was the men's compound gold medalist. Matt Kleelan got the silver and Chris Hansen the bronze.

While taking home hardware was the ultimate goal for every competitor at the Open, many archers were pleased to simply make it that far.

U.S. TARGET MEET

Cleveland, Ohio shooter Kim Armitage was one. She made the field of 64 by scoring 2,280 points in Nationals competition.

"I shot pretty well today," said Armitage, despite dropping her first round Open match.

She began shooting just four years. A college roommate got her to try the sport and she has been hooked ever since.

Even though she distinguished herself as one of the top 64 female archers in the U.S., Armitage doesn't take it too seriously. The idea, she said, is to have a good time.

"I have to keep in mind to have fun," Armitage explained, "because it's only a game."

Canadian archer Jacquie Saito takes the same attitude. But she also has some serious goals.

"I'm trying to make our world championship and Pan Am teams for next year," the 20-year-old said. "I'm hoping to be on the Olympic team in 2000."

Saito is a good bet to do just that. She won two straight Canadian junior championships. Saito also has two Canadian indoor titles to her credit.

The Edmonton, Alberta-native said she enjoyed the one-on-one format of the U.S. Open. She said she still has to focus on her shooting and not her opponent in such competitions.

"It's a mind-game for yourself," she added. "You can psych yourself out if you're thinking about the other person too much."

The left-hander made it to the final 32, but was then eliminated. She was proud to have won a match at the Open. "I was definitely the underdog," she said.

Briggs pulls off recruiting coup, signs Bauman

Carlos Briggs is still hot on the recruiting trail.

Matt Bauman Schoolcraft signee

The Schoolcraft College men's basketball coach landed perhaps his biggest recruit when he convinced University of Detroit Mercy transfer Matt Bauman, a 6-foot-8 center from Livonia Franklin High School, to play for the Ocelots this winter.

The signing occurred early Friday evening.

Briggs, who led SC to an astounding 24-7 record in his first season as head coach, now has seven players in the fold.

"What Matt gives us is a guy who can play the No. 5 spot (center), a position that we were lacking in last season," the second-year coach said. "He's an experienced player coming over from U-D, a local guy and a good student. And he'll bring in a lot of Division I schools to watch him, which should also be a plus and give our other players some exposure."

Bauman, who left U-D Mercy earlier this summer after completing his freshman year, originally had planned to enroll at Schoolcraft and sit out the season. The 1996-97 first-team All-Observer pick then planned to transfer during the second semester to Wayne State.

But Briggs apparently had other ideas.

COLLEGE HOOPS

"Matt can come in and play here one year and then go to the college of his choice, probably a mid-major Division I school for two years," the Schoolcraft coach said.

Bauman played in 17 games last year as a backup center, averaging 1.8 points and 1.2 rebounds per game as the Titans finished 25-6 overall and earned their first NCAA Tournament berth since 1979.

Before suffering a mid-season ankle injury, the 222-pound center saw valuable action against Michigan and Michigan State, while scoring a career-high eight points against Georgia State.

But his playing time diminished during the final stretch of the season as coach Perry Watson went with an eight-man rotation.

When he announced he was leaving U-D Mercy, Bauman said he "didn't buy into the coach's philosophy" and needed a year off to decide if and where he would play again.

"In a program like U-D's there's a lot of pressure on that level and some kids aren't ready for it," Briggs said. "I believe Matt will come here and improve as a player. He's a big guy who can score, and we haven't had that."

"For 6-8, he can shoot the basketball. He has good post moves and he can rebound. He's a good player."

Bauman was a four-year varsity player at Franklin, averaging 19.7 and 7.3 rebounds as a junior and 17.6 points and 8.4 rebounds as a senior.

He will try and offset the loss of four talented starters who graduated from last year's SC squad, including 6-6 JUCO All-American Kevin Melson, the nation's second leading scorer who will play this season at Wright State, a Division I school in Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

Three-point sharpshooter Derek McKelvey, however, returns, as do key backups David Jarrett (Westland John Glenn) and Mario Montgomery.

Briggs also recently announced the signing of Dave McGlow, a 5-9 guard from Pontiac Notre Dame Prep.

Other significant signings include 6-2 guard Michael Murray of Detroit Rogers Academy, the Public School League's leading scorer at 28 points per game, and Reggie Kirkland, a 6-2 guard-forward from state-ranked Romulus.

Others in the fold include Chris Colley, a 6-7 forward from Hazel Park; Quentin Turner, a 6-7 center from Wayne Memorial; Dwayne Holmes, a 6-6 forward from Taylor Truman; Lamar Bigby, a 6-5 guard from Detroit Northern; 6-5 Jim Rebeck of Clinton; and guard Ryan Males of Garden City.

Another transfer who could contribute is 6-5 Dashawn Williams (Detroit City) from Division II Mercyhurst (Pa.).

Soccer camp emphasizes positive

Lord knows it takes a number of different skills to play soccer well — at any level.

But according to Mario Scicluna, physical skill alone isn't enough. A solid mental approach is necessary for peak performance.

"We help the kids stay balanced," said Scicluna, Vice President of Redford-based Soccer Waza. "We teach them techniques in how to control their breathing. Some of the things we teach go beyond soccer."

The company conducts camps and clinics through out the metropolitan area using high trained, often professional, coaches and players.

Soccer Waza wrapped up the last of three camps Friday at Schoolcraft College.

"We had about 115 kids at each camp," Scicluna said. "We were trying to teach them the power of positive thinking. We don't let the kids think negatively."

Started a year ago, Soccer Waza has seen "400 percent" growth since opening, Scicluna said. The company has since expanded to the east coast.

"Teams come to us for professional training," he added.

And that's exactly what they receive.

The Schoolcraft camp featured instructor John-Bob Oyugi. Scicluna said he has trained in Brazil and Germany and is FIFA certified.

"He's our head technical advisor," said Scicluna. "So while others are teaching positive thinking, Oyugi is schooling youngsters in the finer points of soccer."

The improvement of campers, which ranged in age from 6 to 18-years-old, was "vast," said Scicluna.

About a dozen coaches worked with campers, which allowed for more individual attention. Campers came from as far away as Mason and Grosse Ile, said Scicluna.

requirements for a teaching degree and right now I won't plan on playing," he said. "Last year I went to school full-time, and when you throw in the coaching responsibility, that's going to have to due me in as a player."

Richters takes over a team that finished 10-3-4 a year ago.

"This year's team is a good group with some good senior leaders and some juniors who will be impact players," he said. "I think it's a good mix and I look forward to working with them.

"If you're there for a number of years, there will continue to be great players come through the system."

Frayer also announced that Chuck Backus will move in as junior varsity coach and assist Richters.

"Just as we had Walt come over from Southfield, we believe Lars coming in will be a great acquisition for us," Frayer said.

Grand Masters champions

Once again: The Livonia Stevenson pom pon squad was named Grand Champions at Grand Valley State University's camp. Sponsored by Mid-American Pom Pon, the camp was held July 8-11. To earn the title of Grand Champions, the Spartans had to take first place in three categories: speed learning, kickline and original routine. Not only did Stevenson show excellence in its ability, it also took the Squad Unity Award. The Spartans also had five squad members named to the Mid-American All Star Team: Katie Serge, Beth Guenzel, Jackie DiPonio, Jodie Perrin and Joanne DuMont. Other squad members include: Michelle Baiocco, Steffanie Dalian, Laura DiPonio, Erin Ennis, Whitney Girard, Amy Hartunian, Jessica Kurzeja, Jessica Lwrenchuk, Deana Lynch, Amy Markowski, Emily Marolla, Ashlee Miller, Marla Patlow, Katie Porath, Stephanie Rothenberg Liz Tyndell, Barb Wolfe and dedicated coaches Bridget Regan and Teresa Brooks.

Blue Jeans celebrate 20-year anniversary

GIRLS SOFTBALL

The 20th anniversary of the Livonia Blue Jean girls softball team, celebrating their qualification to play in the National ASA Slow-pitch Softball Tournament in Tifton, Ga. was held Aug. 1-2 during a banquet at Memorial Church of Christ in Livonia.

Players from Florida, Tennessee, Ohio, Missouri, Texas and Michigan attended the reunion.

The Blue Jeans were a successful team during the 1970s, starting out in 1972 in the 13-and-under Livonia Parks and Recreation League and finishing together in the 18-and-under league.

The Blue Jeans captured league titles in 1976-76-77-78.

They also captured the Michigan Parks and Recreation state championship tournament in 1976-77-78.

In 1978, they also won the Farmington League and finished among the top teams in the Sterling Heights Travel League.

To qualify for the ASA Nationals, the Blue Jeans took second in the ASA regional in Sterling Heights.

Apap to bow out after grid season

The Chuck Apap-era at Walled Lake Western is coming to an end. Heading into his 22nd season, Apap has decided to make 1998 his last year as head coach of the Western football program.

"It's time to let some of the new guys step in," Apap said. "We've got some great coaches on this staff, not good coaches, great coaches. I don't want to lose them, because they don't have a chance to be the head coach. Right now, this is the best thing for the Walled Lake Western football program."

Apap has compiled a 96-93-1 career record in his 21 seasons. After a slow start, the program appears to be peaking. Over the past three years, the varsity team has gone 25-8 with back-to-back playoff appearances the last two years. The JV was 21-6 and the freshman team 24-2.

In 1992, Apap guided Western to division and conference (Western Lakes Activities Association) championships, a Class A regional championship and the state runner-up trophy.

The Warriors again won divisional and regional titles in 1996 and returned to the state finals. This time Apap coached the Warriors to a thrilling, 34-18 victory over top-ranked Sterling Heights Stevenson in the AA championship game.

The Warriors went 8-1 in the 1997 regular season and knocked off No. 3 Brighton (29-28) in the first round of the playoffs before falling to eventual state runner-up Ann Arbor Huron (21-0) in a regional championship game.

RECREATION

Osprey making return from Upper Peninsula

The Metroparks have some new residents.

In a combined effort between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, the Huron-Clinton Metroparks, the Huron-Clinton Zoological Institute Authority, four osprey chicks were recently relocated from the Upper Peninsula to a hacking box overlooking Wildwing Lake at Kensington Metropark.

These majestic fish-eating raptors will be cared for and monitored until they can fly and feed on their own. The hope is that they will return to Kensington to nest in future years.

Osprey were once abundant in Michigan but the use of DDT and other harmful pesticides as well as habitat destruction reduced their numbers so much that Osprey were placed on the endangered species list in the mid 1960's.

Adult osprey weigh approximately four pounds and have massive wing spans that reach six-feet. Bullhead and carp are their main staple food and the new residents of Wildwing Lake should have little trouble finding food once they learn to fly and feed on their own.

The birds will be hacked (or raised) in these hacking boxes for several weeks until they fledge (fly). Biologists and volunteers will monitor the birds daily and feed each bird up to two pounds of fish per day. As the birds mature and begin to fly the "free hand outs" will be cut back to encourage the birds to feed on their own.

Osprey migrate to South America for the winter and return north when the weather warms. Traditionally, the male birds return to the area they were raised when they are sexually mature to nest. The hope is that these birds will return to Kensington and make it their permanent summer home.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

Early goose season

An early September Canada goose season will once again be held throughout most of the state in an effort to control the growing population of resident Giant Canada geese. This fall the early season will run Sept. 1-15 in the Lower Peninsula and Sept. 1-10 in the Upper Peninsula. The daily bag limit is five. The counties of Tuscola, Saginaw and Huron will be closed to early September goose hunting to avoid harvest of early arriving migrant geese from James Bay, Ontario.

Last year hunters harvested over 91,000 geese during the September hunt and this year should produce similar results with an estimated population of 440,000 locally produced giant Canada geese.

"Hunters that get out now and scout areas that birds use and secure permission to hunt on private land should do very well," said Greg Soulliere, waterfowl specialist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Grouse limits increased

Ruffed grouse hunters in the Upper Peninsula will have an increased bag limit this fall, but a proposal to restore the December season in the U.P. failed to gain support of the Natural Resource Commission.

In a 4-3 vote the Commission agreed with the DNR's recommendation to increase the daily bag limit in the U.P. from three birds to five. DNR research shows that liberal grouse hunting regulations are not detrimental to grouse populations in northern Michigan during times of moderate or high grouse abundance. Wildlife biologists feel the increased bag limits in the U.P. will not adversely affect grouse numbers.

A review of the ruffed grouse regulations was prompted by the fact that grouse populations in the U.P. and northern Lower have recovered substantially over the past few years. Grouse hunters in the northern Lower have enjoyed a five-bird daily limit and a split season (Sept. 15-Nov. 14 and Dec. 1-Jan. 1) for several years while Upper Peninsula hunters have been restricted to three birds per day and no December season.

St. Clair fishing maps

Fishing Hot Spots Inc. has introduced a new detailed map of Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair River.

The new maps were produced using the latest computer drafting and imagery technology for optimum accuracy and clarity. The maps are printed on waterproof paper and include GPS waypoints and a latitude and longitude grid that allows anglers to plot their own fishing and navigation coordinates.

The maps also show depth contours, boat landings and structure such as reefs, points, humps and holes. Weed beds, navigation buoys and shipping channels are also shown on the maps.

Detailed information about the different fisheries is also included.

For more information or to order a map for yourself call 1-800-ALL-MAPS.

(Anglers and hunters are urged to report your success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (248) 644-1314, send e-mail to bparker@oe.homecomm.net or call Bill Parker evenings at (248) 901-2573.)

Blue chicory's roots deep, history tells of wildflower

You don't have to look up to see the blue of the sky these days. Just look at an uncut roadside for chicory.

TIM NOWICKI

Chicory is that sky blue flower blooming along the staggered-looking stems of this wildflower.

Morning is the best time to notice this weed, according to some definitions, because it will often close up during the heat of the afternoon.

When you get a chance during the morning, stop to look at the flower. It is about an inch and a quarter in diameter. Each petal has a toothed outside edge.

Its blue color has been the inspiration for poems and analogies. Some people call this flower "ragged sailor."

Evidently the blue color reminded people of a sailor's uniform and the ragged edge of each petal an old uniform.

Ralph Waldo Emerson was impressed with its sky blue color when he wrote "succory to match the sky."

Another common name for chicory is succory. Succory comes from the latin succurre, "to run under," which refers to its deep roots.

Like many plants that live well in disturbed areas, chicory is an alien. It was brought to North America by Europeans during colonial times. Europeans used the dried roots as a coffee substitute or as a coffee.

A chicory drink was also thought to be good for liver and gall bladder ailments. The same chicory growing along the roadside is the same chicory cultivated and shipped to the U.S. as a coffee supplement.

A curious feature of chicory is that its blue flowers act like a litmus paper. Acid will turn the flower a light pink.

I tried this over an ant hill that I disturbed. Formic acid released by the disturbed ants started to turn the petals a faint pink.

Now that chicory is blooming, it can be very noticeable. But uncut plants persist long into winter. Their long stems with small scattered clusters of leaves are characteristic even during the winter. Seeds produced from the flowers are used by small animals like mice and birds.

Next time you drive to work in the morning look along the roadside for chicory. In fact the German name for this plant means "watcher of the road."

Germans give it their name because according to a German legend, a beautiful girl waited so long along the roadside for her lover to return, she died of a broken heart. The blue chicory flowers grew in the place where she died.

Canton's Kossick selected to Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame

This year's voting for the new inductees in the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame was a tough one for the electors to decide.

AL HARRISON

All nominees were well qualified and in the voting, each category was very close. In the men's category, Ken Kossick of Canton and Fred McClain of Allen Park were the choices. Sandra Winbiger won the honors in the women's category and Syl Thiel in the veteran's category.

Dorothy Thompson, who is serving as president of the D.W.B.A. takes the Thomas McKay award for long-time service to the bowling community.

Larry Paladino who now writes for the Birmingham Eccentric gets the Judge D. Watts Award, which I took home last year.

The Meritorious Service award goes to Doug Bradford, formerly the bowling writer for the Detroit News.

It was Bradford who carried the torch of information on bowling in the earlier years, setting a standard for those of us who came along later. It's nice to see that the electors recognize the value of the press when it comes to promoting the sport of bowling.

The winning nominees will receive their awards at the Hall of Fame Banquet, which will take place at the Stephenson Club on Nov. 1. For information on attending the banquet, call the D.W.B.A. office at (810) 773-3050.

•Many local bowling centers are getting a face-lift during the off season.

For some places, it may be a new paint job or bathroom fixtures, but for others major renovations are taking place. According to proprietor Henry Mistelet of Mayflower and Beech Lanes in Redford.

"Mayflower Lanes is a WOW in remodeling and re-equipping," said Mayflower and Beech Lanes proprietor Henry Mistelet.

In addition to adding Brunswick "Anvilane" (performs like wood) on the lane beds, new gutters and cupping, new ball returns, totally new seating, cosmic bowling and new reversing masking units have been added.

Beech Lanes has a new exterior paint job that's the talk of the town. Country Lanes in Farmington has taken out the quickie Bar and relocated the pro shop to that space. They've also upgraded some of the wash rooms, which is very important and often neglected. A new table for better seating behind the lanes and expanded locker facilities have also been added.

Bowl One Lanes in Troy is installing new pin decks and doing a bit of repainting here and there. Classic Lanes in Rochester has a new outside paint job and installed an automatic triggering system for the ball returns.

Silver Lanes in Garden City has some new paint and realigned the lanes where necessary. Wonderland Lanes in Livonia has a new air conditioning and heating system and is leveling the floor of the seating to the level of the lanes, eliminating the step.

Redford Lanes didn't have to make any improvements this year because they sold the place to the Aldi's food chain. Now, lane six becomes aisle three, fresh veggies and such.

There are leagues and teams all over the country looking for a few good men, ladies, seniors and kids who would like to join a team or bring a team into the league.

At Country Lanes, the Sunday Goodtimers has room for more with a 9:30 a.m. start time. Bagels with coffee are served in this sanctioned league, which features a nice bunch of guys.

The Greenfield Mixed on Fridays at 6:30 p.m. has a few openings, one of which is on my team for a lady bowler with a fairly good average. This league is both social and competitive (248) 348-2096.

Beech Lanes in Redford has picked up some bowlers from the now defunct Redford Lanes, still has room for more such as the Friday Nite men at 7 p.m. needing teams or individuals of medium averages.

The Tuesday I.H.M. Men's League at 6:30 p.m. and Our Lady of Loretto women's league on Mondays at 9 p.m. Call Beech at (313) 531-3800.

There are job openings for part timers at bowling centers everywhere. It's nice work for college kids who want to earn some money after school hours and weekends. Most bowling centers will accommodate the person's needs as to the kind of hours they are able to schedule and the pay is usually better than at the fast foods or other service industries.

It is also an opportunity for a person to learn a good trade if they want to work into the bowling scene.

Call or stop in at the local bowling center and ask for a job application if interested.
