Land cost haits rec center talks

One week after a new survey showed residents' support for a new recreation center, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas called for a halt in negotiations to buy land near Ford Road and Central City Parkway.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER dclem@oe.homecomm.net

A dejected Mayor Robert Thomas announced abruptly Monday that he has abandoned his dream of building a new recreation center northwest of Ford Road and Central City Parkway.

Thomas called for a halt in negotiations to buy land behind a Kroger-anchored strip center, citing a huge gap between the asking price and what the city is willing to pay.

"At this point I'd recommend that we just break off negotiations for the property," Thomas told Westland City Council members during a Monday night meeting.

The decision came just one week after a new survey indicated that a majority of Westland residents supported building a new recreation center. The mayor also wanted to build a new city hall on the proposed site.

"I could almost cry to tell the council that it's time to walk away from negotiations," Thomas said after the meeting. "I'm unhappy."

The sudden turn of events apparently killed plans for building a new, multimillion city complex in a special taxing area - known as a Tax Increment Finance Authority district - north of Ford Road.

"It was the only land site in the district that worked (for new buildings)," Thomas said.

The mayor had proposed using TIFA

- estimated to cost about $15 million but officials would've had to find other ways to pay for a new city hall.

dollars to build a new recreation center

Dejected mayor

Frustrated and glum over his loss, Thomas nonetheless said the city will move ahead with efforts to improve recreation services in this city of some 90,000 residents.

"We will continue to improve our parks and recreation department no matter what," he said.

Pact OK'd on Ravine Street woes

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER dclem@oe.homecomm.net

A delicate compromise has been reached among once-divided neighbors who live near a controversial Westland school bus stop.

Many parents became angry last fall when the city erected no-parking signs to ease traffic congestion along a dirt road, Ravine, just south of Joy Road.

The action followed complaints from corner homeowners Larry and Peggy Sullivan, who said parents driving to the bus stop created unsafe conditions. The couple's property also was damaged by cars crowding along Ravine.

Starting Feb. 11, the city will cover up the signs and give parents an 80-

Whirlwinds to skate away with new costumes

BY SCOTT DANIEL STAFF WRITER

sdaniel@oe.homecomm.net

When members of the Whirlwind Precision Skating team of Westland Sports Arena take to the ice next week in Alabama, it'll be in some of the prettiest costumes anywhere.

Like most outfits worn by 8- to 11year-olds at the competition, a lot of thought, time and energy will have gone into each. But only the Whirlwinds will have costumes that so many people went to such great lengths to put together. Friday's fire at the Canton Crossings

Apartments destroyed the team's costumes. All 13 dresses were stored in the townhouse of Dorothy and Eric Johnson, who lost nearly everything in the fire.

Since then, several local businesses have banded together to replace the costumes. Kathie MacLean, who works in Canton, and a small army of volunteers will do the bulk of the work to get the dresses ready when the team heads to Huntsville Tuesday.

"I made the original dresses," said MacLean, a Westland resident. "They can't go without theit dresses. It wouldn't be right." "Whirlwinds" is based in Westland and features two squads. One is comprised of 8- to 11-year-olds and the other of teenagers. Youngsters from Westland, Plymouth, Canton and Farmington, among other communities, participate in local and regional competitions.

Monarch Cleaners of Canton stepped forward to donate material for the new costumes. Owner John Rybski simply wanted to help.

"I understand the devastation people go through when they have a crisis like this," he said. "Everybody needs help sometimes.'

Rybski, who has been in the cleaning business for nearly two decades, specializes in restoring garments damaged by fire and other disasters.

He, in fact, was able to salvage 19 dresses belonging to the Whirlwinds' older team. The dresses, which were

Council President Sandra Cicirelli agreed that officials shouldn't give up hope for new city build-

"We're not done exploring our options," she said after Monday's meeting.

One option that Thomas said may be unfeasible would be to completely tear down and replace the aging Bailey Recreation Center and City Hall.

The city can't use special TIFA tax dollars for improvements south of Ford Road, meaning that officials could face a dilemma over whether to propose a tax increase, Thomas said. "I won't do that," he said.

Thomas did note that the city could abolish the TIFA district and start using those tax revenues citywide - a nearly $1 million annual amount that could bolster a south-of-Ford plan.

Meanwhile, the mayor said he isn't optimistic that new talks can be started for the possible purchase of land near the Ford Road Kroger store.

Jeff Sobel, the chief negotiator with whom the city dealt, didn't return a phone call to comment on whether the city's decision to cease talks might prompt a lower asking price.

Pact unlikely

Thomas and other officials deemed it unlikely that the two sides could reach an agreement -, even if Sobel and his colleagues sought to resume talks.

"It's not out of the question," Thomas said, "but it's close to being out of the question. I thought we made a good, honest offer on that property."

The mayor declined to publicly reveal the asking price or what the city was willing to pay.

Thomas said the city could've forcibly taken the proposed land by condemning it and gaining title to it. But he said council members - already divided on the site - didn't favor that route due to a potentially ugly court battle.

"That means a jury would decide how much we would pay for the land," the mayor said.

Some council members, such as Glenn Anderson, have said the city should place more emphasis on improving the Bailey Center and city parks rather than focusing entirely on a new recreation complex.

Councilman Richard LeBlanc said Tuesday that the latest developments give the city an opportunity to explore options south of Ford Road, including possible new buildings.

"I see this as an opportunity to do things in the area where they should be done," he said.

Abolishing the TIFA district could help pay for south-of-Ford plans, he said.

In other developments Monday, three Westland residents voiced opposition to a new recreation center during the council meeting. They suggested the city hold an election before embarking on any

While the blast left one dead and nearly two dozen injured, at least one Westland man was among those seriously injured in the explosion.

"It is one of our residents that was severely injured this afternoon," Westland City Councilman Glenn Anderson said during a Monday night meeting.

To protect his privacy and that of his family, Anderson didn't divulge the man's name. The man was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital, where his family still hadn't seen him around 10 p.m. Monday.

Anderson publicly offered hope that the man's condition would improve. The man lives in Anderson's neighborhood.

Monday afternoon, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas said the city sent help to Dearborn.

"We sent down a fire truck and an ambulance and a couple of (police) squad cars to help with traffic," Thomas said.

The mayor held out hope that Westland's paramedics could help some of the injured.

Thomas said Dearborn Mayor Michael Guido voiced his thanks for the help from Westland.

"I'm sure they'll come and assist us if we ever have a problem like that," the mayor said. "Hopefully we won't."

Some parents have indicated they will obey rules that preceded the signs, such as not blocking the Sullivans' driveway and parking at least 30 feet away from a corner stop sign.

"I am still naive enough to believe that we can work this aut together as a neighborhood," parent Virginia Klein said Monday night in convincing Westland City Council members to approve the compromise.

City officials will remove the signs altogether if neighborhood harmony appears to be restored following an 80-day trial period.

However, the city will make the no-parking rules permanent if problems resurface near the Sullivans' property.

Mayor: Buy may hurt competition

Westland cable-TV subscribers could potentially lose one of two companies providing local service, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas said Monday.

Thomas fears that SBC, a communications company, will unplug Americast cable service if it buys parent company Ameritech.

"I think they'll drop us in a heartbeat," Thomas said Mon-

That could threaten cable competition just as Americast has competing with MediaOne, a company that had a longtime stronghold on the Westland market. To try to combat SBC's plans,

Thomas, City Attorney Angelo Plakas and attorney Patrick Miles went to Washington, D.C., last Friday to testify before a Federal Communications Corp. advisory board.

Thomas said he previously received a letter from SBC stating that the company would look at the monetary benefits to its shareholders as it makes decisions about whether to continue in the cable business.

But the mayor said he believes that SBC has had "every intention of terminating the franchise agreement between Americast and Westland."

In hopes of preserving cable competition, Thomas said he, Plakas and Miles went to the FCC advisory board hearing to argue against any measures that would hurt local consumers.

Thomas said he made a presentation to show the "human" side of how SBC's plans could hurt Westland.

Thomas is among the Westland residents who have switched from MediaOne to Americast as local cable competition has increased during the last year. The mayor said Americast has now begun offering service in most areas of the city.

Thomas said it would be a shame for consumers to lose Americast after years of pleading with city officials to try to usher in cable competition.

"It almost seems like it couldn't happen," he said.

Thomas said he didn't know when to expect word on an FCC

Woman's tip saves pizzeria from fire

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER dclem@oe.homecomm.net

A Westland pizzeria was saved from a potentially devastating fire Sunday night after a woman who drove by the business reported seeing smoke, Fire Chief Mark Neal said.

Neal commended the woman for getting involved and said he hopes that her actions will inspire others to be more aware of possible fires.

The woman reported a potential fire when she saw smoke coming from Great Lakes Pizza on Warren near Venoy at 10:53 p.m. Sunday, Neal said. "She was driving by and early enough to save a building."

noticed a small wisp of smoke," he said. "She wasn't sure if it was a fire, but she thought it was important enough that she called 911 when she got home. She just lives around the corner.'

Firefighters found that a trash can inside the pizzeria had caught fire, and they suspected it started from a cigarette that wasn't completely put out before employees left for the night, Neal said.

"It wasn't a big fire, but it was about to be," he said. "We put it out. That woman's call saved the business. It doesn't happen that often that someone actually calls Firefighters quickly doused the blaze, and the pizzeria suffered only minor smoke damage but no structural damages, Neal said.

'Fire doubles in size every 19 seconds," he said. "If you could imagine the devastation that would have occurred a short time later, it would have destroyed that business.'

Neal hadn't released the woman's name early this week because he hadn't been able to reach her to see if she minded public attention.

However, he said he hopes the woman will be honored by city officials, possibly during a future Westland City Council meeting.

Westland man's robbery has ties to other cases

BY MATT JACHMAN STAFF WRITER mjachman@oe.homecomm.net

One suspect is in custody in the Dec. 21 holdup of a gas station on Seven Mile in Livonia.

Another was killed last month in an unrelated shooting in Detroit.

Mustapha Francis Hunter, 18. was sent to trial on a charge of armed robbery after a preliminary hearing Jan. 28 in Livonia's 16th District Court. Police say Hunter and Ahmed Alderwish, both of Dearborn, appear on a videotape taken during the holdup of the Speedway station on Seven Mile and Newburgh.

Livonia officers arrested Hunter Jan. 19 at a bar in Detroit, a police report said. He is in the Wayne County Jail on a $100,000 cash or surety bond. His case now moves to Wayne County Circuit Court.

Alderwish, 19, the gunman in the video, was killed in a robbery attempt two days after the Livonia holdup.

Scholarship pie to be eaten up by tobacco settlement details

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER trichard@oe.homecomm.net

What looks like a big pie for Michigan high school graduates may become a Pop Tart as details of Gov. John Engler's scholarship plan are unveiled.

Engler on Jan. 28 advocated offering students who pass their middle school and 11th-grade MEAP proficiency tests up to $3,000 apiece to use at the public or private college of their choice.

"The Michigan Merit Award Trust Fund will be endowed by money from the recent tobacco settlement," he said. "Legislation creating the trust fund and scholarship will soon be before you," he told cheering representatives and senators.

He didn't say how many scholarships might be awarded or what the total annual cost would be. Some have calculated the annual cost at $52.5 million; others at $200 million.

But if students respond to the carrot, more students that ever will take the test and try to get proficiency scores, running up the cost.

How much will Michigan get? In his final weeks as attorney general in 1998, Frank Kelley provided some details of "the tobacco settlement" that show much of the money will go into anti-smoking campaigns.

Kelley said Michigan will get a total of $8.178 billion over 25 years as "the tobacco companies pay for their damages and change the practices that have. in part, led to the deaths and injuries of millions of Michigan citizens over the decades."

That amounts to $327 million a year, on average. It's the equivalent of one-fourth of what the Legislature appropriates for assuming it all goes into scholar- Kelley said. ships - if all of it went to scholarships.

That $25 million is nationwide, not just in Michigan alone. Kelley went on: "The settlement creates an industry-funded $1.45 billion national public edu-

Of course, the lawyers get a cut. "The settlement requires the industry to pay for outside attorneys hired by the states," said Kelley. It's unclear whether the attorneys' cut is in addition to or part of the $8.178 billion

Schoolcraft profs to receive national excellence awards

Two Schoolcraft College teachers have been selected to receive 1999 National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development Excellence Awards.

Donald Morelock, professor of music, and William Schlick, assistant professor of computer information systems/electronics technology, will receive their awards at the NISOD conference May 23-26 in Austin, Texas.

Morelock is an ambassador for Schoolcraft and the arts, offering programs, events and competitions that bring more than 10,000 people to the campus each year. His yearly agenda includes free noon concerts, the Schoolcraft Piano Academy, which has grown to include 90 students; the annual Bach Festival: the Schoolcraft Honors Competition; the Piano Teachers Workshop; and student achievement testing by the Michigan Music Teachers Association, the Federation of Music Clubs and the National Piano Guild.

Morelock, co-director of the Russian Music Institute, takes piano students to study in Russia each summer, and presents a concert when they return. His piano students have gone on to in the country.

Almost 100 music majors from Schoolcraft have been accepted at the University of Michigan Music School.

Morelock's students have been first-place winners in national competitions, placed fifth in the International Queen Elizabeth of Belgium Piano Competition and competed in the 1998 International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow. They have soloed with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, studied at the Moscow Conservatory and produced CDs.

"We need music now more than ever, because we live in such a technological world," Morelock said. "It's a great pleasure, sitting down at the piano and making music rather than turning on a CD. We need the aesthetic pleasure the arts give Schlick, a Schoolcraft alumni, says his goal is to prepare students for technological innovations. To meet this goal, he has developed new classes that include a comprehensive course in computer networking, a Windows NT class, and an electron-almost every major music school ics class on the Internet. He worked with the collegiate skills department to help students upgrade their skills for electronics classes and taught computer programming to metallurgy students so they could build and control an electronic furnace in 16 weeks.

Schlick said changing education is one of his goals, and he welcomes the challenge of doing something that has never been done. His students go into industry, and Schlick said he wants employers to call him the second day of a student's new job and tell him the student was productive the first day and needed no training to get up to speed. He said he sets up challenges for students they didn't know they would welcome, structures their studies so they strive for an A instead of a C, and helps them grow from being unsure they can handle the class to becoming national honors recipients.

He will co-host and be among the judges at the VICA Electronics Technology Competition Feb. 5 at Schoolcraft, which is a regional competition for high school vocational and community college technical students.

Pay hikes Local commissioners say county increases 'too much'

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

When the state Senate decided not to act on a House resolution to reject pay raises for Gov. John Engler, state senators and House members, their salaries increased Monday.

They also set the table for Wayne County elected officials to receive the same increase as Engler -18 percent over two years - unless county commissioners reject the pay raise on a two-thirds Commissioners may act on the pay hike today.

According to the county charter, the county executive receives 97 percent of the governor's salary. The prosecutor, sheriff, clerk, register of deeds and county commissioners, in turn, receive percentages based on the county executive's pay.

Those salaries are Bankes: Called adjusted on Jan. 1 of each year that the governor is granted a salary adjust- increase 'outrament, unless it is rejected geous. by a two-thirds vote of the commission, which "vote shall be taken," according to the charter.

Unless commissioners reject the raise, Engler's pay hike means County Executive Edward McNamara will earn $134,594 this year and $146,707 in 2000, up from his 1998 salary of $123,481. As of > Monday, Engler receives $138,757 annually and will be compensated $151,245 in 2000.

the proposed

County Prosecutor John O'Hair's salary would receive the same percentage pay hikes, to $132,036 in 2000, as the prosecutor's salary is 90 percent of the county executive. Wayne County Clerk Teola Hunter, Register of Deeds Forest. Youngblood, Sheriff Robert Ficano and Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz would receive 75 percent of McNamara's salary.

and I'm not supbringing those salaries to $110,030 in 2000. County commissioners would earn $53,838 this year, and $58,682 in 2000.

Last year they earned a $49,392 salary, adjusted to 40 percent of the county executive's salary. Commission Chair Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit, earns an additional $12,000 more per year as the chairman, while Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, and Vice Chair Pro Tem Jewel Ware, D-Detroit earn $6,000 more annually in their respective leadership positions. Six commission committee chairs receive an additional $4,000 a year.

County Executive Edward McNamara said if people averaged out pay raises over the past 10 years and accounted for years when state lawmakers and county elected officials did not receive pay hikes, increases for those officials would probably be less than what the general public receives.

"When you look at the salary we (the governor and McNamara) make, the job is probably worth twice that much, but I think either one of us would do it for about half of what we're paid, happy" with the

we're doing."

Sullivan: He's "more than because we enjoy what current salary.

Wayne County has a budget over $1 billion and employs 6,000 people, McNamara said. "If you relate that to the private sector, the compensation for the CEO for a similar sized company would be high." McNamara said.

Engler still earns less than Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer despite leading a state of 10 million residents, McNamara said.

McNamara didn't seem too concerned about the public's perception of the pay raise. "Given the salary increases, the public may criticize the amounts, but you have to let it roll off your back."

Commissioner Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, called the increase "outrageous," and expected to vote against it. "I think that's a lot, I think that's a hel-

Bankes said she supported only one pay raise in her 13 years as a state legislator, and that was a 3.5 percent pay raise over two years. "But this (9 percent) increase is huge."

While she traditionally votes against the pay raise, Bankes has grown accustomed to the public's general opposition to any increases.

"There's no way to compensate a politician with tax money that's fair to everyone." Bankes said. Politicians are expected to do work for the public as public service, Bankes said, and "it doesn't matter what we get paid, it's too much." Commissioner Kathleen Husk, R-Redford, said the pay hike was too high and she would vote

"It's way above inflation, and I'm not going to be supporting it," Husk said.

Husk had hoped to introduce a resolution opposing it, but decided not to, once she spoke with Solomon, and found she would not get the twothirds opposition to it.

Husk said 2.5 percent pay hikes in recent years were more reasonable amounts. The commission salary of $58,000 scheduled for next year probably falls higher than many of the households in her district, Husk said. "For a middle-class family, it's a lot."

Commissioner John Sullivan, D-Wayne, said he would have to discuss the issue with other commissioners before rejecting the pay raise. Sullivan said he is "more than happy" with his current

"I would be more than happy to reject the pay raise, but for me to deny a raise to the other commissioners who have been here for many years, I could not do that without talking to them first. I would need to look at it."

Area woman puts liquor commission on a steady course

BY TIM RICHARD STAFF WRITER trichard@oe.homecomm.net

Things have been quiet at the state Liquor Control Commission since 1997 when Chairman Phil Arthurhultz paid back $4,000 in improper travel and telephone reimbursements and resigned.

Chairing LCC is Jacquelyn A. Stewart, a familiar face in western Wayne and Oakland County politics and government. Stewart presides at hearings in Lansing and, since May of 1998, in an office building on Drake Road, south of Grand River Avenue, in Farmington.

"I had heard stories of $80 million missing," Stewart said in a recent interview. "But in the audit, we came out real good." Gov. John Engler had assigned Arthurhultz to privatize the warehousing of liquor, though the state still runs the business. A Treasury Department audit, requested by the agency, concluded: "We generally found that internal control procedures were proper and effective."

The audit said LCC should try to keep its inventory to a minimum and recommended some better paperwork. In general, Kathy Wilbur, director of the LCC's parent, the Department of Consumer and Industry Services, called the audit good and praised Stewart's work.

LCC was formed in 1933, at the end of Prohibition as a bipartisan, five-member agency. It oversees liquor distribution, licenses dealers, collects taxes on spirits, beer and wine, and enforces liquor

Stewart had lunch at her desk as she was interviewed about her working career and asked for a civics lesson on LCC operations.

Q. Is your job full time? What do you do?

A. "Yes. There are five commissioners. Two are hearings commissioners - they hear all the liquor violations cases all over the state sales to minors, sales to drunks, food stamp fraud).

"Then there are three administrative commissioners (including herself) who do the day-to-day operations. We sit on the appeal board to hear any licensee objecting to a penalty handed down by a hearing commissioner.

"We do appeals on Tuesday in Lansing, and we probably handle five to seven cases. Then we do appeals in Farmington, and today we had seven."

Q. Is the job easier now that Gov. Engler wants the state out of the wholesale liquor business?

A. "Let me clarify that. The state is not out of the wholesale business. What we're out of is warehousing and distribution. That has been turned over to the private sector.

"We place the order with the industry. The industry sends the product to the ADA (three authorized distribution agents - General Wine & Liquor Co. in Highland Park, NWS Michigan Inc. in Brownstown, and Trans-Con Co. in Bloomfield Hills).

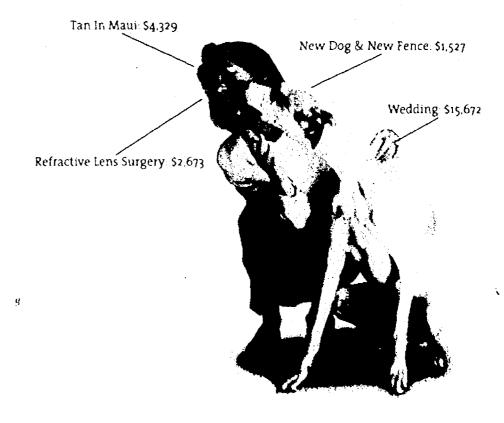

"We've gone from 400 to 164 employees. We have a finance department (20), licensing division (45) and our enforcement division (70).

Q. How many licenses are there? A. "We have 14,000 onpremise licenses (restaurants, hotels, bars) and off- ? premise, which are SDD and SDM (specially designated distributor and merchant), which are your party stores; we have 3,500."

Williams (later governor and Supreme Court justice) and the last political job of former Senate majority floor leader Phil Arthurhultz. Is LCC a good jumping off spot for politics?

A. "Years ago, when we had 100 state stores, they were all over the state. I imagine if you were a good chair and your employees liked you, they could help you. I've heard stories that Williams did use the position as a catalyst to become governor.

"I don't plan on running for governor."

Q. How do you get this kind of a job?

A. "I had a law enforcement background. I've done a lot of work in the political arena. I worked for (then-Oakland Prosecutor) Brooks Patterson for 16 years. And I worked with Congressman Jack McDonald, I worked long and hard in the field for the Republican Party."

(Stewart attended Henry Ford Community College in 1963, studying political science. After a run for the Legislature in 1970, Stewart worked for 19th District U.S. Rep. McDonald, "a friend of the family," in 1972, coordinated Patterson's cam-and 1982, and handled a number of party posts, including the Republican National Committee and housing director for the Michigan delegation at New Orleans in 1988.)

"When Brooks called me (after the 1972 election) and wanted me to come to work for him, I said, Brooks, I'm not an attorney. I'm not a secretary. I have no clue what I could do there.'

"Well, he said he wanted to hire me as an investigator because he had a lot of projects he wanted to research, like welfare fraud and bad check poli-

"He said, 'Hey, in six months if it doesn't work you can leave, and if I don't think you're working I'll tell you, and you can leave.' Sixteen years later, I was still working for him."

(In 1978, she graduated from Oakland Community College's law enforcement academy, and in 1980, she married Huntington Woods Police Chief Jim Stewart, later a U.S. marshal. He's now retired. They live in Farmington

(The LCC must be bipartisan. Stewart was appointed in 1989 by Democratic Gov. James Blanchard and reappointed by paigns for prosecutor in 1972 Republican Gov. John Engler for four-year terms)

Q. As chair of the Liquor Control Commission, you're under the Department of Consumer and Industry Affairs. This is a regulatory and business job, right?

A. "Correct. We're a business and operate as a business. We netted, last fiscal year, $96.5 million, after all expenses. We took in $589 million. That's just spirits, not beer and wine. We're like a Fortune 500 company."

Q. Any changes you'd like to see in the next Engler four-year term?

A. "We're looking to change 53 rules to streamline our licensing process to make it more userfriendly. Many are archaic and conflict with cities'. We want to streamline that so when people do apply for a liquor license, it's not going to take eight to nine

"We are doing decoy operations. Last year, we did 3,100. The commission alone did that. Statewide, about a third of the people where we made stops did sell alcohol to a minor. And a little over 50 percent asked for identification and still sold to

"We want to impress not only licensees but their employees which is investigated very thor-that they have to be more diligent."

Q. You must have been reading the cases of young people killing themselves or getting raped under the influence. We seem to be getting more campus binge cases.

A. "Absolutely. I think it's going to take education. The commission can only enforce its liquor laws on licensees. We can suspend, we can fine, we can revoke their license.

"When you get into the college campuses, the commission has no authority there. That's for the local prosecutor and law enforcement people. But the highway safety people and community health people are putting together programs to make young people aware of the dangers of overconsuming.

Q. Are there political restrictions against having a liquor license?

A. "I think (State Rep.) Keith Stallworth had a license; he just sold his. There was a prohibition on a police officer having a liquor license in the jurisdiction where he works:

"An applicant wanting a license fills out an application oughly. I think it was Mayor (Donald) Fracassi of Southfield who held a license, and they said he couldn't, so he took the commission to court, and he won."

Q. There's a lot of population movement within the state. Detroit has lost half its population, Flint one-third ... Is there a lot of shuffling of liquor licenses from losing areas to areas that are gain-

A. "Detroit, because of what you said, has about 160 licenses that are over quota. (Quotas are based on population; LCC doesn't lift licenses when a city is over quota.) But if these licensees go out of business. they're allowed to put that license in escrow for a year.

"Last year, the Legislature passed a law that allows all liquor licenses within a county's jurisdiction to be transferred if the local governing unit will accept the transfer. For example, if I wanted a license in Farmington Hills and there were no local licenses available but Pontiac had one, if the city council of Farmington Hills agreed, a Class C (on premises) license could be transferred.

"So we're looking at all those escrowed licenses, extending them a year so they can try to sell them. Then we will be look. ing at doing away with them."

Q. There has been a trend in the Engler administration to de-regulate, have fewer inspectors. How does this play out in the LCC?

A. "On the contrary, the governor was responsible for getting us $700,000 more for additional investigators and (an assistant) attorney general to do decoy operations. He has been very pro-enforcement when it comes to sales to minors."

Rink idea needs more study proposal to set up temporary outdoor ice rinks at some Wayne-Westland schools needs some sharpening up before anyone starts lacing up their skates.

Wayne-Westland school board trustee Teresa Robbins has proposed outdoor ice rinks for some local schools. She proposes that the rinks could be dug out by district court workvers and filled with water by the fire department.

· Robbins also proposes that city officials should consider building an outdoor rink behind the Bailey Recreation Center.

We agree that outdoor ice skating is a fun activity that provides a lot of exercise as well as memories for kids. But, while the idea of offering young people an opportunity to play and exercise outside at a free skating facility is an admirable one, we think the idea needs more thorough study before it could be imple-

It's no secret that young people lack places to congregate after school. Also, city officials in the past have talked about the need to offer more activities for young people.

But the ice rinks proposal leaves many unanswered questions. Wayne-Westland Schools Superintendent Greg Baracy, who opposes the idea, has expressed concerns over liability and maintenance and we have some too.

For example, who would monitor the rinks to make sure they are safely frozen enough to hold skaters? Small children can drown in even shallow water.

Who would keep children off of the rinks when they aren't safely frozen? Obviously the rinks couldn't be policed 24 hours a day.

What would become of the skating area when it thaws? We envision a muddy mess come spring for areas that were dug up for a

Also, ultimately, who would be liable if there were an accident of some kind?

The district already faces liability issues with school playground equipment and this wouldn't cause more of a liability, according to Robbins. Meanwhile, Baracy disagrees, saying this would bring added liability and even attract undesirables from other communities to congregate after school hours.

We're not sure where the liability would fall; that would, of course, require the opinion of legal experts.

While we don't want to see the idea dismissed completely, we urge that safety be a top consideration. Skating is a great activity, but not all parents keep close track of their children and what they're doing after school hours. It would be unfortunate if someone were hurt or killed in pursuit of a fun winter activity.

One had to decipher if one's response was to be doubt/no doubt; the type of proposition which leads one to wonder if yes means no or no means yes. Furthermore, many of these particular statements were outright lies or issues which had been solved years ago but were presented as if they continued to be today's concerns. Again, in contrast to the earlier simple Democratic questions, those related to the Republicans' views or actions were offered in such a way that I was forced to ask the operator to repeat several which were so confusing that I needed to be certain that I correctly understood the state-

And justice for all? The media has bombarded our homes with the words "high crimes and misdemeanors' for months now. As we watched our nation become a global embarrassment by the obsession to prosecute a "personal indiscretion," true crimes against people are ignored. Where is the judicial process against high crimes, felonies and abuse of executive power here in Michigan?

John Engler has dismantled and destroyed everything he has gotten his greedy hands on. What he has done to the environment, infrastructure, education, mental health, job safety, job security and consumer protection, to name a few, is deplorable. The most heinous act is Engler's use of executive power to relinquish any accountability for the devastation resulting from his corrupt agenda. The escalation of monetary debt he has caused has been redirected to the taxpayers of this state. He wastes no time in grabbing his executive pen to sign bills where the state cannot be held liable for damages caused by his actions. Here are just a few examples.

He has neglected our roads and we have watched our infrastructure deteriorate before our eyes. What does he care? He signed the bill that revoked the citizens of this state from filing claims on vehicle damage caused by his neglect. Instead, the damage to our vehicles from potholes and flying road debris is sending our insurance rates soaring. Engler seized the road funds and redirected the expense back to the people in the increase of the gas tax. Engler is responsible for the millions of dollars his neglect has caused, not the people. But he thinks he deserves an 18.8 percent pay Engler has imposed every roadblock that would ensure a safe job site. The result is the injury and death rate is increasing by alarming numbers. Engler should be indicted in these crimes of wrongful death.

We do not even have a right to vote in this state under Engler. We voted against his phony auto insurance reform and he revoked our right hy passing it anyway, not once, but twice. In Michigan, it's Engler's way or no way, even though the people say "no."

Engler has requested a 25 percent increase in his expense allowance. An honest man would volunteer documentation (the vouchers) to justify the request. But no, he refuses to submit them by saying they're private. If something is held in secrecy you know there is corruption and abuse.

Government is for the people and by the people. Engler has shown total disregard to the people of this state. Our rights have been revoked and this is a crime of the highest degree in a true democracy. He needs to be held accountable for his actions against the people of Michigan.

Engler has range of proposals

Our news reports on Gov. John Engler's Jan. 28 State of the State address concentrated, naturally, on his plan to use tobacco settlement money for $3,000 scholarships for every kid who passes the MEAP proficiency tests. Engler had other proposals, mainly good, some bad.

GOOD: You missed it if you watched TV, because the ailing governor cut short his speech. He is seeking to prevent misuse of netic and personal medical information.  pecifically, genetic testing must not be a econdition for obtaining health insurance. the genetic testing must not be allowed as a Recondition of employment," he said. Voters rejected an initiative that would Trive regulated physician-assisted suicide, and The Legislature passed pain-management Isls. "So to build on what we've done," the evernor said, "I will appoint a Commission on Tying to blunt the demand of some for aid in QUESTIONARIE. End-of-Life Care." No details, but clearly he's Tatic President Bill Clinton with approval for saying that "all states and school districts must turn around their worst performing hools – or close them down" and was cheered Republicans.

Unfortunately, Engler called for raising the Sid on the number of charter schools – among the worst performers in the state. He needs to inderstand that many of his charter schools are bad and should be shut down.

GOOD: In 1990, when candidate Engler was asked about "urban sprawl," he greeted his questioner with a blank stare as if the person were speaking Sanskrit or Swahili. He has changed, apparently, saying, "As we work together to implement Clean Michigan (the voter-approved bond issue), save farmland and reduce urban sprawl, we will make sure that Michigan's rich legacy of natural beauty d well-managed resources is preserved for future generations."

HOPEFUL: The governor's budget isn't due until Feb. 11, but we hear there will be more money for a Jobs Commission program of grants to community colleges for information technology programs. Oakland and Henry Ford community colleges have received $5 million apiece. Schoolcraft and other fine community colleges were shut out in round one. Maybe they'll do better in round two.

The governor seems fully to have absorbed the lesson that "career development, including on-the-job training, apprenticeships in a skilled trade, or high-tech training at a community college or university" is every bit as important as agricultural economics, his own college major. Bless him.

PROBABLY GOOD: Engler promises to produce a formula to make sense of how we fund our 15 state universities.

DOUBTFUL: The governor wants to empower the mayor of Detroit – who already has a full plate with snow removal, trash pickup and bad housing - power to change the governance of Detroit public schools.

BAD: Engler's nasty attacks on the State Board of Education continue. We observe:

Once state voc-tech training was in the Department of Education. Engler moved it to the Department of Labor. Then he shut down the Department of Labor and moved it to the Jobs Commission. This year he wants to move the Office of Workforce Development out of the Jobs Commission and set it up as a separate department. No. Workforce training logically belongs in the Department of Education.

Engler invited the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals to his address. But although half his address was on education and making Michigan "the smart state," he didn't invite the elected, constitutional State Board of Education. It was a malicious snub, It's no wonder so many public school people distrust him, even when he does many good things.

POINTS OF VIEW

Sex offender list publication not answer to problem

(Editor's note: Michigan's State Police Department plans to release a list of convicted sex offenders via the Internet. Questions about the accuracy of the list and whether it should be released have been raised.)

t is irrelevant to publish the names and addresses of convicted child molesters who have served sentences for their crimes. I don't understand how this information, correct or incorrect, is useful.

It wouldn't have helped my parents protect me from the man who repeatedly molested me when I was 9.

He was just a guy in the neighborhood. If you had known him as the other adults in that community did. you wouldn't have suspected he was a child molester. There was nothing alarming about him. He must have been very careful to earn our trust so as to obtain easy access to his target. Just because someone is a child molester doesn't mean they've been convicted. It doesn't mean they've been suspected of molesting a child, or even arrested. In my case, his name wouldn't have appeared on such a list.

Under the circumstances, there was no way for my parents to know this had happened until 12 years later, when I was finally and painfully able to discuss it. It was entirely too late to discover the man's identity or even to begin to think about an attempt to prosecute him.

He was that manipulative, which is one reason why it took me, and my parents, so long to realize what was happening. When he molested me, he told me we were "wrestling." So when my parents questioned why I didn't like him to come over and baby-sit, I told them I didn't like to wrestle. Since I have two brothers, the thought of some rough-housing in my parents' absence seemed normal to them. If I were my parents, I wouldn't think there was anything more to it than that.

And what if he had been on a list? What would you do - move? Sure, you can move. Are you safe now? What about all the people not on the list? Where do they live?

There are more things to consider. What if someone in your neighborhood is on the list? You can't do anything about it, except move or avoid them. You can make decisions to avoid people on your own. You don't need a list. And anyway, is the neighbor justifiably listed? Maybe not. The police admit up to 40 percent of the names and/or addresses on the list are incorrect.

And if a person isn't on the list, then he or she must be OK, right?

Publication of this list might give some people a false sense of security. Or confirm for them that it's always the person you least suspect. Or suggest they should suspect everyone. Or

Can any of us realistically go about our daily lives with constant caution against all lurking dangers?

As someone who spent a few years in therapy dedicated to rising above her own molestation, I don't think publishing this list is the answer to the question of how can we protect our children from child molesters.

I don't claim to have the answer. Perhaps a child molester could tell us It's comforting to think that publicizing a list of convicted child molesters would be a step in the direction of enabling citizens to protect themselves and their children. But I don't think it is.

Culture that doesn't respect education impedes learning any suburban legislators are sweating over a question that doesn't directly concern suburban schools. It's Gov. John Engler's proposal to allow "urban" mayors to appoint new five-member school boards.

"Urban" means Detroit, certainly, and possibly Lansing.

The idea makes our legislators uncomfortable because if the state can replace school boards in one district. it can do so in "my" district. Moreover, suburban legislators don't want to irritate Detroit colleagues unnecessarily.

"This is not a racial issue," said Engler. He was wrong, of course. The president of the Detroit school board, Darryl Redmond, was blunt in our Channel 7 "Spotlight" interview last Sunday when he cited an African proverb that you spend a lifetime learning the rules only to have someone (state government) change the rules when it's your turn to be on top.

Detroit kids' test scores and graduation rate are so bad, however, that Engler is willing to run the risk of a racism charge to turn things around. We all should be sympathetic to the notion that educating kids for the global economy and ideals of citizenship is more important than local - or even racial - control.

I posed this question to Senate Majority Leader Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, who will sponsor Engler's bill:

Suppose you let the mayor appoint a new school board. It hires a good superintendent and doesn't try to micromanage the system. Maybe you improve the business operations of the schools.

But how does that affect kids in the classroom? How does it improve MEAP test scores? How does it improve graduation rates?

Remember, DeGrow is one of the better class of Republicans in the Legislature - pro-public school, against vouchers, no darling of the religious right.

DeGrow replied that his father was a public school superintendent and that a superintendent can turn things around.

An incomplete answer, in my view. I'd like to know how the macro changes at the top being proposed by Engler are going to affect kids.

Sen. Joe Young Jr. and four other Detroit Democrats said: "Before this Detroit caucus will even consider a school takeover plan, that plan must include plans for a core curriculum, mandated small class size, teacher training, technology improvements and after-school programs."

That was a slightly better answer, though money-oriented.

When Richard Nixon became president, he said the problem with America wasn't its people, who were hardworking and patriotic, but with its Washington leadership.

In Detroit, the problem is people. If you've followed the Detroit papers coverage over the years, you've read that young black males have a disdain for schools because they're run by women. You've read feature stories where girls who try to do well in class are accused by classmates of "acting white."

A black friend who attained a managerial post with a major utility told me how he was ridiculed by other kids for taking books home for study.

A white suburban friend teaches in Detroit. She's excellent – I've visited her class. Yet her hostile colleagues accuse her of "taking a job away from; a black man."

You can hear the same kinds of stories in white "Michigan hillbilly" areas, but they are most pervasive in "urban" areas. You don't hear those kinds of stories in Cassopolis, where Dennis Archer was raised.

The problem is people in a culture that has little respect for education and teachers. Unless Engler and ' DeGrow know something that I don't there is little hope that changing the school board, the superintendent, the business manager and business methods can help students learn.

In other words, I don't think top governmental officials have a magic wand that can change people's attitudes. I hope I'm wrong and they're ov. John Engler's State of the State speech last week got a lot of favorable comment, especially for his Michigan Merit Award plan that would give 11th-graders who pass their state MEAP proficiency exams $2,500 each for study at their Michigan college of choice. Seventh- and eighth- graders who pass their MEAP exams would also get $500 placed in escrow, kind of a down payment to encourage the kids to keep studying.

Engler plan has merit, needs work

"It is important we reward our students who play by the rules, study hard, achieve on their tests and meet high standards," said the gover-

Money for the program is supposed to come from the annual payments Michigan will receive from the national legal settlement between the tobacco industry and various

Here's the math: If half the graduating seniors each year qualify for the full $3,000 scholarship, the cost would be around $200 million each year. State officials are estimating that Michigan's share of the national tobacco settlement should be around $8.2 billion over the next 25 years, which works out to around $330 million annually. In theory, this leaves some money left over for anti-smoking pro-

After a week's reflection, I still think Engler's plan is on balance a good idea, but is needing

First, kids attending private, parochial or home schools would be eligible to take the MEAP test and win the awards. Fine. But if they are going to get public money for their Michigan Merit Award, their test results should be made public, just like anybody else's. Nonpublic schools have had a bad habit of clamming up about test scores; now is a good time to break that habit.

Second, Engler said the scholarship money could be spent "at a Michigan school of your choice," suggesting it could go to private universities, colleges or trade schools. Private schools have been feeding off the public trough for years, and there's no need now for further public subsidies for private institutions.

Overall, in addition to encouraging kids to study hard, Engler's proposal also offers a important incentive for kids to take the state high school proficiency tests seriously. In recent years, far too many kids in well-to-do school districts have been skipping the rigorous MEAP tests in reading, writing, science and math. Those who skip don't get state-certified diplomas, but otherwise they have been getting off scot-free.

The governor's initiative changes all that.

Even parents who have been whining that their little geniuses can't possibly be asked to take a MEAP proficiency exam in addition to the SAT and ACT tests they need to take for college admission aren't likely to toss a check for $3,000 out the window.

What is needed now is for the business community, whose complaining about underprepared kids entering the job market provoked the MEAP test in the first place, to get on the stick. Ask most the human resources folks who actually do the hiring at Michigan businesses if they require MEAP test results on their interview forms; you're likely to get back a bewildered stare.

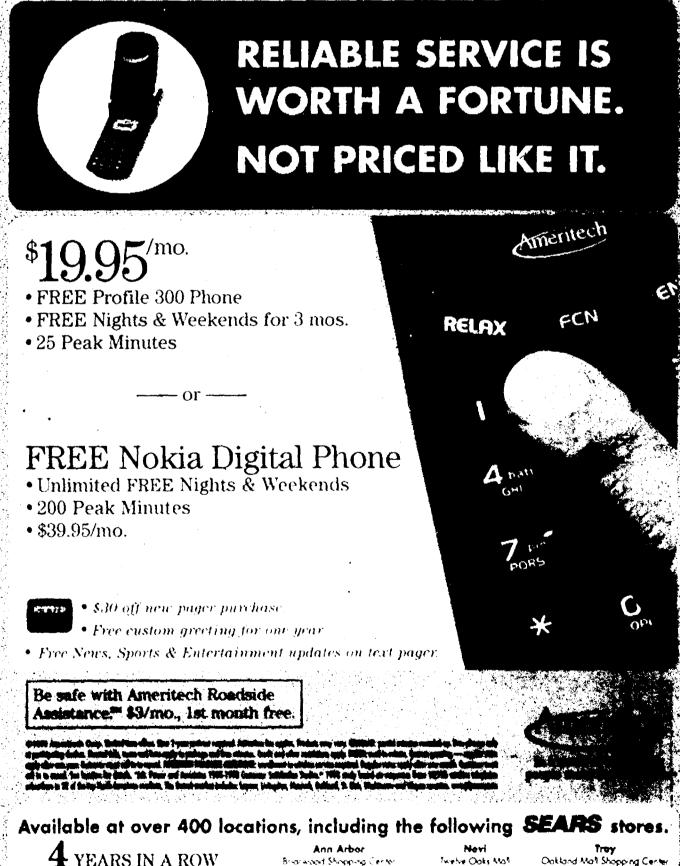

State universities should get the same message, too. Admissions offices scorn a state MEAP proficiency test on the grounds the ACT and SAT scores predict likely academic success in college perfectly well. Nobody knows, of course, and if colleges actually required test results on their admissions forms kids would realize people are serious about taking the proficiency tests in the first place.

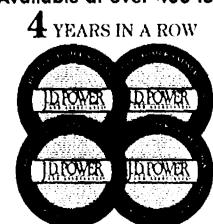

Perhaps now is the time for everybody to get together and cut a deal on the MEAP test.

The governor has put a good idea on the table. The State Board of Education, which has been trying valiantly to get uniform assessment of K-12 academic proficiency accepted as the bedrock of school improvement, has an interest in seeing the governor's idea adopted. The business community should be invited to put up or shut up. And the universities should be asked to quit complaining and try to help solve the prob-

Ameritech hit

-Ameritech, the Chicago-based telephone company, continues to get its lumps from critics.

Attorney General Jennifer Granholm has joined opponents of a planned takeover of Ameritech by SBC Communications Inc., of Texas. Despite state efforts to foster competition, Granholm said Ameritech still serves more than 96 percent of access lines in its territo-

Ameritech "is opposed to fair competition," said Richard McLellan, chair of the Michigan Competitive Telecommunications Providers Association. He referred to Ameritech's decision to appeal a Michigan Public Service Commission order to allow increased competition for shorthaul long distance calls. McLellan said Ameritech charges Michigan homes $100 a year more per line than in Illinois.

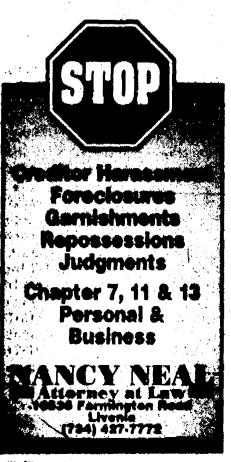

MMCTPA also blistered Ameritech for raising rates 1.29 percent for business and residential customers at the end of February 1999. It's the seventh raise since the Legislature in 1995 rewrote the Michigan Telecommunications Act, said McLellan.

Official stuff: Educationalor frivolous?

ost amid the hype of presidential impeachment, the bombing of ■Iraq and the Blizzard of '99, a major piece of legislation squeaked through the Michigan Legislature just before the 1998 session drew to a close. Signed into law by Gov. John Engler at 7:15 p.m. on Dec. 29, 1998, House Bill 4923 became Public Act 454 on Dec. 30.

Getting the legislation passed was a hard-fought battle, and near the end, it was threatened with a gubernatorial veto. But Engler relented at the last minute and approved the legislation, designating the dwarf lake iris as Michigan's official state wildflower.

According to an Engler spokesman, the veto threat had nothing to do with the dispute over whether the dwarf lake iris or the trillium should get the official recognition, but with a concern over the number of such bills that are introduced every year.

"With all of the weighty issues out there, we seem to spend a lot of time debating trivia," John Truscott told a reporter last year. "Where is it going to end?"

It's a legitimate concern. Other bills introduced in the Michigan Legislature last year would have designated the morel mushroom the official state fungus, the green darner dragonfly (Anax junius) as the official state insect, the cherry as the official state fruit, the "cherry burger" (made with Michigan cherries) as the official burger and the spring peeper as the official state amphibian.

Children's education

Many of these ideas, not just in Michigan but in other states, originate in elementary school classrooms. The morel mushroom bill originated with a group of Lake Orion fourthgraders, who had spent four months studying the tasty fungus.

The students and their teacher, Howard Sawicke, approached state Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, with their proposal, and she introduced a bill to designate the morel as "the official fungus of this state."

Not only did the students manage to get the bill introduced, but they went to Lansing where they testified before the House Agriculture Committee, where the bill eventually died.

Sawicke says the experience taught the students a great deal about the legislative process that they wouldn't have gotten from a textbook. He's probably right.

But some people, including some lawmakers, think that the Legislature shouldn't be dealing with bills that they consider "frivolous." They say there are cheaper ways of teaching students about the legislative process, since processing each bill costs thousands of dollars.

Rep. Howard Wetters, D-Kawkawlin, who chaired the agriculture committee to which the morel bill was assigned, said while he wasn't opposed to giving kids a hearing on such bills, "I don't think we can do this for every fourth-grade class in Michigan."

A look at other state symbols might give you the idea that that's exactly what legislatures have been doing.

Michigan already has a state reptile, state geln, state stone, state fish and state soil, in addition to the more traditional symbols like the state flag and coat of arms, state tree, state flower and state bird. But there is some controversy here.

A bill introduced last year would have repealed earlier legislation that established the apple blossom as the state flower (in 1897) and the white pine as the state tree (in 1955) and would have made the trillium the state flower and the crab apple tree the state tree. That bill died in the Committee on House Oversight and Ethics.

Way out west

Out in Nevada, which already had a state tree (the piñon pine) the legislature adopted "another state tree"

'News junkie' helps build station appeal

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER cfuoco@oe.homecomm.net

As a Miami University broadcast student, Julie Maxwell anxiously awaited news about Detroit radio. Radio was her hobby at Plymouth Canton High School but the medium crept into her psyche.

The 1984 Plymouth Canton High School graduate's heart sank when the rock station WLLZ-FM and the alternative outlet WABX-FM changed formats.

"Those were all the stations I grew up with. Even though I was down there, I always kept up on the Detroit area because my family is still here," she said.

And it was Maxwell's family who gave her an earful when WQRS-FM switched from classical music to alternative rock's WXDG-FM "The Edge."

"My mom's favorite station was 'QRS. Boy did I hear about that twice. When they switched, I got the, 'Why, why, why did they do this to my favorite station?' " said Maxwell.

The second time was when she was hired as the promotion and marketing director in October 1998 for her mother's archenemy - The Edge.

"When I got the job, it was, 'Well, I'm glad you're working, but did you have to work for them? That's the station that took away my 'QRS.' "

Maxwell has frequently heard that sentiment. But the real challenge has been trying to win over the audiences of other Detroit-area alternative stations such as CIMX-FM and WPLT-

"We had to prove what every station has to prove - a quality product, staying power, attractive programming and good prizes," Maxwell said. WXDG, one of three stations that make up the Greater Detroit Radio Group in Ferndale, had a little help.

"We're real fortunate because our

"I was always a news junkie," Maxwell said during an interview in her Ferndale office which houses dolls of "Dylan" from "Beverly Hills 90210" and "Jay" and "Silent Bob" Maxwell, the daughter of Benton from the movie "Mallrats." "I loved and Ann Lindamood of Plymouth, the radio. I remember having my

It was all these really far-off places that are coming to you from this little box. I just have always been fascinated with that voices in the box."

At Plymouth Canton, Maxwell worked on the CEP Perspective newspaper and the student radio station, WSDP-FM, as a news reporter.

"I thought it would be newspapers all through high school, radio was just a hobby," she said. "I worked at 'SDP (WSDP-FM) in high school. Then I got this part-time job at a commercial station (WOXY-FM) while I was in college and I thought, 'Wait a minute. I'm having fun at

Choir tunes up for international festival

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI

Livonia resident Alan Brace plans to be an ambassador of peace and love while he participates in the annual International Church Music Festival.

"I think it's a special opportunity to represent our country, to represent Ward Church and to have an opportunity to fellowship with Christians from other parts of the world," said Brace, who has been a member of Ward Presbyterian Church for 20 years.

Brace joins 49 other members of the Ward choir who will be singing with 500 singers from churches across the globe June 8-11 in Bern, Switzerland. The festival has drawn a diverse conglomeration of Christian choirs in an annual event since 1984, excluding 1991 when it was canceled because of the Persian Gulf War.

"There's a sacred spirit that comes out of people's hearts during these festivals," said Jerry Smith, Ward choir director.

The Ward choir has been part of other music festivals, but this is the first year it will participate in the International Church Music Festi-

Smith recently met with Paul Leddington Wright, festival artistic director since 1991, at the Holiday Inn in Livonia. As the two men talked about the event, the plastic table and chairs by the hotel pool were replaced with thoughts of angelic voices, representing people of varied nations singing in harmony to praise

Music would become their universal language that transcends any differences.

Wright traveled from England during a whirlwind visit to the United States to meet with eight choirs throughout the country. "The idea was to bring choirs together from all over the world," said Wright, who worked as organist and director of the Music at Coventry Cathedral in England from 1984 until 1995. The festival is held in the Coventry Cathedral every other year.

"If people come away from the festival and as a result of the music, develop fellowship and enjoyment, and if their faith for the living Godis stronger, then it's been effective," Wright

The festival also provides scholarship opportunities for choirs, mostly in Eastern Europe, with limited resources. "They would not normally be able to travel abroad, but because of the scholarship program they can do this," Wright said. "There are great after students from Ely, Nev., suggested the bristlecone pine as a state symbol. And the Nevada state Web site has a page inviting other students to submit their ideas for new state symbols because "some states have symbols which we don't have."

What Nevada does not have is a state tartan. But Georgia does. That land of peanuts and Vidalia onions adopted the "Georgia tartan" as the "official state tartan" in 1997. And those onions and peanuts? The Vidalia onion is Georgia's "official state vegetable" and the peanut is the "official state crop."

Massachusetts is a land of symbols. In addition to a state gem AND a state mineral, it has a state rock, state historical rock, state explorer rock and state building rock and monument stone. It also has a state beverage (cranberry juice), a state muffin (the corn muffin, petitioned by schoolchildren in 1986), a state dog (the Boston terrier), state cat (the tabby cat, also petitioned by schoolchildren) and a state heroine (Deborah Samson, who fought in the War of Independence while posing as a man).

Texas has a state dish (chili).
California (among its 26 state symbols) lists a state poet laureate and a state fife and drum corps while Alabama recognizes a state freshwater fish (largemouth bass), state saltwater fish (tarpon), state nut (pecan) and a state Bible.

Both Nebraska and Utah adopted the honey bee as the official state insect after lobbying efforts by elementary school students who had studied the insect as class projects. And in Illinois the state flower, tree, bird, insect, fish and animal were all selected by schoolchildren.

But a state fungus? Well, there's precedent for that, too. At least one other state, Minnesota, has an official state fungus. And it is, you guessed it, the morel mushroom.

Ohio) student radio station, WMSR-FM, and the National Public Radio affiliate, WMUB-FM. When Maxwell was a senior, she was hired by WOXY-FM, the commercial alternative station in the Cincinnati area.

She graduated from Miami in 1989 with a triple major of media management, broadcast production and broadcast journalism.

"It was really media-intensive," Maxwell said. "They'd be handing out triple majors left and right, if people are smart enough to figure out it was all scheduling."

Meanwhile, Maxwell worked for WOXY for 11 years, starting out working weekends and covering local and school politics for the morning show. She climbed the ladder at the station, moving from part-time weekends to morning show co-host where she stayed for five years. Yearning for a "normal" schedule, Maxwell moved to the promotions department for six years.

"At the time I thought it would be better hours; I quickly found out that instead of getting up at 4 a.m. I was out until 4 a.m.," she said. "I saw it as something new to try. It gave me more contacts with people in the indus-

Life changes

In fall 1998, Maxwell's life took a turn. She got engaged to Daniel J. Argonis, the owner of Venture Outdoors in Plymouth. She left Cincinnati to come home and plan her May wedding ceremony.

"When I quit, I was without a job – talk about flying by the seat of my pants. It wasn't hard until I got home, moved in and didn't have a job to go to the next Monday morning," Maxwell said with a smile.

If 'She brings a young, fresh spin to promotions we do. She identifies with the listeners because she's a listener, meaning she knows the cool lifestyle-oriented events to put together so that the station's not just about the music, but also about hobbies and the interests of the listeners.'

-WXDG's music director/morning show personality

But it only took her a month to land the job of promotions and marketing director for WXDG "The Edge."

She and her team of six to eight interns plan bar promotions, "Edge Sessions" where major-label bands play small recording studios, events like "Tubing with Kid Rock" at Alpine Valley and give-aways. Helping her is 1990 Plymouth Canton High School graduate Tim Krukowski, weekend air personality and marketing and programming coordinator.

"It's really a collaborative effort amongst everyone here," Maxwell said. "I'm responsible for pulling it all together. The department is responsible for taking the ideas, finalizing and figuring out all the details and making it work."

According to "Spike," WXDG's music director and morning show personality, it's working.

"She brings a young, fresh spin to promotions we do," said Spike, a former Farmington Hills resident now living in Ferndale. "She identifies with the listeners because she's a listener, meaning she knows the cool lifestyle-oriented events to put together so that the station's not just about the music, but also about hobbies and the interests of the listeners."

The "Edge Sessions" have become a staple of WXDG. Performers such as Eagle Eye Cherry, Semisonic, Better Than Ezra and Dave Matthews have played for small audiences at Harmonie Park and Overture studios in Detroit and Novi, respectively.

"The idea behind it is to give people the opportunity to see these bands up close and personal and be able to have an interaction with them, and the chance to ask questions or take pictures," Maxwell said. "We had Dave Matthews in our conference room before Christmas. It was amazing. We created this whole sort of vibe and feel, so when you walked in you weren't walking into a conference room anymore.

"We put zebra drapes up along two walls. We got an oriental rug, we had floor pillows. We had color spotlights to make it a real cozy and intimate atmosphere. That's something that you can't buy."

While some would see planning a private concert with Matthews as a sign of success, Maxwell said success comes from within.

"When I graduated from high school, it was 'good riddance' (to Plymouth). At 18, you're so full of yourself. You're confident and naive. You think you're not going to come home until you're a big success. But coming back home is what made me a success."

Betty Currier, a longtime Ward choir member, says she looks forward to singing with such a large group and in taking part in the missionary work. Everyone who attends the festival, including Currier and Brace, will leave with their own stories, Wright said.

Year after year, Wright's story remains intact and inspiring. Coventry Cathedral has an interesting history that coincides with the intent of the festival.

Decimated by bombs during World War II, the church was rebuilt years later. The rubble from the original church was kept at the site to remind people of the "wickedness of war and the wickedness" of Good Friday, marking the death of Christ, Wright said.

An inscription on a cornerstone of the new church explains: "Worship without music does not easily soar." And that, Wright said, describes the essence of the festival.

Putting hardships aside, the music "allows us to be one step closer to God."

Dance marathon benefits Children's Miracle Network

BY SUE MASON STAFF WRITER smason@oe,homecomm.net

When more than 243 dancers put their best foot forward at a 30-hour dance marathon this weekend, they'll be just a small part of a massive student-organized effort to benefit the Children's Miracle Network.

Organized and conducted by the students, the second annual marathon - "Making Kids Smile, Maize and Blue Style!" - will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday-Sunday, Feb. 6-7, at the University of Michigan Indoor Track Building on State Street in Ann Arbor.

"It's a huge building and we're using the entire track area for the dancers and volunteers. spectators and families," said Jen Riesenberger, public relations chairwoman. "Every square inch will be used."

This is the second year for the student-organized event which will raise money for the Children's Miracle Network, a nonprofit organization whose mission is to generate money and awareness programs to help hospitalized children served by CMN-affiliated hospitals.

All the money raised at the marathon goes to the local CMNaffiliated hospitals, William Beaumont Hospital's facilities in Troy and Royal Oak. In all, there are 170 CMN-affiliated hospitals throughout the United States and Canada.

The money raised at the marathon will go to the children's physical and occupational therapy wards at the Beaumont

Major undertaking

The marathon is a major undertaking for the students who started organizing this year's event in March 1998. The dance marathon is the largest student-run philanthropic event in the country. It got its start in 1993 when the first one was held at Pennsylvania State University. Now, more than 18 colleges and universities organize dance marathons to raise money for their local CMN-affiliated hospi-

Last year, the marathon attracted 75 dancers and raised $30,000 for CMN. No financial goal was set for this year, rather organizers have focused on increasing student participation.

"This is much bigger than last really excited we tripled the number of dancers over last year."

The dancers have paid $30 to be a part of the marathon, plus they have agreed to raise at least $200 for CMN. Friends, family members, organizations and student-run events like Beaumont Family Field Day, a Swing Night and other fund-raisers and activities have helped then meet or exceed the $200 goal.

"Many of the dancers have gone over and above the $200," said Riesenberger. "I know many who have raised $500."

While the marathon runs 30 hours, participants will not dance continuously. They must stay on their feet, but in addition to music provided by three different disc jockeys, there will be up to keep them moving.

Each dancer also will also have a cadre of volunteers moralers - who will work shifts to keep dancers motivated during the marathon.

Riesenberger estimates that more than 1,500 U-M students have volunteered their time for the benefit. working on the various committees, as moralers and security guards.

Signing up

Among students who have signed up for the marathon are Avni Patel, Megan Anderson, Robb Smylie, Elizabeth Senk, Ani Shehigian, Natalie Ross and Jill Van Tiem, all of Livonia; Suman Palakodeti, Rupa Patel and Angkana Roy, all of Plymouth, and Niketa Kulkarni, year," said Riesenberger, "We're a basketball court and games set Poonan Desai, Kelly Maltese.

Neha Sha, Dina Patel and Pritee Patel, all of Canton.

The volunteers also have lined up a number of area businesses like General Mills, Jiffy Mix, General Electric, EDS Corp., Microsoft, Wendy's and the Michigan Union Bookstore as its sponsors.

A spectator area has been set aside for people to watch the marathon. Admission is free.

Families and children who benefit from the marathon also will be in attendance, as well as physicians and physical therapists from the hospitals. Riesenberger expects several families to be there. "Some will be there the entire time. Others will come and go," she said. "Seeing them there the last 10 hours is what keeps the kids (dancers) going."

Shamrocks edge Stevenson by 3

No one was surprised to see Redford Catholic Central walk off with the championship trophy of the eighth annual Observerland Wrestling Tournament Saturday at Livonia Churchill.

But the Shamrocks didn't simply walk away with the title, as Livonia Stevenson injected a dose of suspense into the competition and made it interesting with a strong upset bid.

CC needed a victory from senior Brocc Naysmith in the last bout of the tournament to overcome the Spartans and capture its third team championship.

The Shamrocks, who trailed Stevenson by three points going into the 215pound final, finished with 207 and the Spartans 204. Garden City was a distant third (132). Defending champion Plymouth Salem had a prior commitment to a tournament at Holt.

Clarenceville made its strongest showing with a fourth-place finish, and Livonia Churchill, Plymouth Canton, Redford Thurston and Wayne Memorial scored 100 or more points apiece.

"It's just nice to win it," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said. "We've been down all year long as far as our record. These guys just put their hearts and souls together to win it.

"This is a good tournament for us. All year we get ripped on, and here in our own backyard we have a chance to shine a little bit.

"Stevenson is a tough team. We're going to hit them again in the district, so this is not the end."

CC, which is 7-7 in dual meets with two remaining against Clarkston and Rochester Adams, and Stevenson had four individual champions each.

"I'm able to get around more as the years go by and get more respect," Rucker said. "As you get older you know what it takes to get the job done. And you know the system a lot better."

After averaging 10 points and six rebounds as a freshman, Rucker slipped last season to 6.6 rebounds and 3.3 rebounds in 31 games (starting 20).

Some observers felt Rucker gained too much weight, hovering around 280, and lost some of his mobility. Others said he missed his closest ally on the team, All-Big Ten point-guard Andre Woolridge (now playing professionally in Turkey).

"Andre was almost a big brother to me, somebody I could ga. to," Rucker said. "He was there to give me advice. He was a big help and he knew how to get me the ball. He knew where to pass it and when to pass it.

"The first year was a great year, but I knew I still had room to improve."

But with Woolridge gone and freshmen guards Dean Oliver and Ricky Davis learning the ropes and experiencing growing pains, Iowa missed the NCAA tourney in 1998 and was knocked out in the first round of the NIT.

"I felt I could play with the weight in this system, but my job (in the press) was to put pressure on the guy taking out the ball," Rucker said. "This year I'm playing in the back of the press. I feel more comfortable being in the back blocking shots."

In a teleconference call the day prior to the Michigan game, Davis said Rucker was "holding fourth season if he completes his own" against the Big Ten's graduation requirements toward other centers.

"Guy may not be as big and quick as other some of the other centers in the league, but I'm anxious to see what he can do over the last eight games," said

Davis, whose contract will not be renewed after his 13th season. "He's a year older and he's learning as he goes on. Guy is a wonderful human being, a nice young man, a very considerate and concerned person."

Davis said Rucker's 1997-98 campaign "was hard on him."

"Because of the backcourt development with three inexperienced guards and playing a strong schedule, all the big guys didn't look as good," Davis said. "He's a guy who is critical of himself more than anyone else. He's a very senstive person. This year it didn't take much prompting from the coaching staff to get him motivated again.'

Rucker spent part of the summer in Iowa City and part of the summer at home working out with former Glenn teammate Tony Goins, Wayne State University's all-time career scoring leader.

He also got advice from Inkster native Michael Aaron, another former WSU standout and mentor of Goins.

"Michael is a real good motivator," Rucker said. "Tony also came out and played and I was able to get the weight down."

The 21-year-old Rucker and his girlfriend, Joyce Pledge, also added newborn baby daughter to the Hawkeyes' rotation, Amaja, born on Jan. 11.

"Joyce is a few years older and we're on good terms, we may get married in a couple of years," he said. "All things happen for a reason. I have a different outlook on life and different responsibilities now. I have to take it upon myself and go hard on the court every time out."

As Iowa takes a 15-4 overall record and 6-3 Big Ten mark into tonight's game at Purdue, the question begs: Where does Rucker fit into the mix?

A partial NCAA academic qualifier who red-shirted his freshman year, Rucker is eligible to come back next year for a a degree in African American worldwide studies.

But for now, Rucker can only hope he can obtain another year of eligibility and finish his career on a high note.

Ocelots fall flat vs. Mott

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Flint Mott took advantage of Lämar Bigby's absence to earn its second win over nationallyranked Schoolcraft College within six days.

With the Ocelots' top scorer. out of the lineup due to an eligiblity issue (see related story), the Bears took over sole possession of the first place in the Eastern Conference of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association with an 81-70 victory Monday night over the host Ocelots.

Mott, a 78-75 winner over SC on Jan. 27, is now 16-3 overall and 7-1 in the conference. SC falls to 17-2 and 6-2.

Daniel Lawson, a 6-foot-6 guard out of Detroit Mackenzie, led Mott with 17 points. Pointguard Richard Bryant added 15.

The Bears made 10 threepointers to Schoolcraft's three (all by Quentin Mitchell).

"Tonight we shot the ball much better from the three-point line even though we didn't make free throws (19 of 38)," Mott coach Steve Schmidt said. "But our trademark has been defense. To hold Schoolcraft to 75 points and then 70 - against a team that is averaging close to 100 points a game - that's what won us the game."

Mott trailed 27-26 with 3:42 left in the opening half, but went on a 12-2 run to gain 38-29 lead at intermission thanks to four straight triples.

Schoolcraft trailed by only one, 59-58, with exactly five minutes to go in the second half on Dashawn Williams each con- ray added nine. Mitchell's trey.

Bigby's eligibility status at issue

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Schoocraft College star forward Lamar Bigby, held out two games over an eligibility issue, could return to the lineup Monday against Oakland CC. Officials from the National Junior College Athletic Association were checking an eligiblity complaint lodged by Iowa Western CC coach Jim Morris. Bigby, averaging 18 points per game, missed Monday's firstplace showdown against Flint

Mott (an 80-71 SC loss). The 6-foot-5 forward was not given a release of the original letter-of-intent he signed last spring with the community college in Council Bluffs, Ia. Bigby later asked out of his commitment with Iowa Westernto play for SC's Carlos Briggs, who served as an assistant coach for his summer Detroit AAU basketball souad.

SC athletic director Ed Kavanaugh, who spoke with Morris on Tuesday night, was given assurances that SC's leading scorer would be released from his letter by Wednesday.

"I don't believe the NJCAA will impose any further penalties and the two games Lamar sat out will serve as punitive action," Kavanaugh said.

When contacted Tuesday at his office, Morris admitted he notified NJCAA officials about Bigby after "getting a tip" that forward was playing this season for the 13th-ranked Ocelots.

Morris would not say who was the source of his information.

"I thought the whole thing was highly irregular as far as them recruiting him and I felt they (Schoolcraft) were going around the rules," he said. "I would have given him a release if they would have followed the correct channels."

Morris admitted that by denying Bigby a release during the entire summer, he was hoping the forward would change his mind and honor his original commitment.

"I was going to hold it over their heads as long as I could," he said. "But once he didn't graduate from high school (at Northern), I just gave it up, but apparently he (Bigby) went back and got his GED (General Equivalency Diploma) and that made him eligible."

Morris said he did not want to deny Bigby the right to play.

"If they were to ask for a release today, that would be no problem," he said. "But they haven't done that yet. They could fax me a form and I'd release him."

After notifying the NCJAA in Colorado Springs of Bigby's asking out of his letter with Iowa Western, Briggs and Kavanaugh felt confident and assured by NJCAA officials (prior to the season) that the Detroit Northern product could play this season if he met certain conditions.

The first stipulation cited was that he could not receive an athletic grant-in-aid and would attend a junior college in the "nearest district or service area."

Bigby, who resides in Highland Park, was under the impression that he could play for any one of three community colleges that offer men's basketball in Wayne County including Schoolcraft, Henry Ford and Wayne County CC.

"I took a visit to Iowa Western and at the time I didn't have any other options and I felt kind of pressured to sign with them," Bigby said. "But later I was concerned about my mother. I didn't want her in a situation of living alone. I felt it would be better if I could play here (Schoolcraft) and stay around home."

Briggs maintains he did nothing improperly as far as Bigby coming to Schoolcraft.

"Lamar came to us and I told him he needed a release before he could play for us," Briggs said. "At no time did we recruit Lamar. And if he didn't get a release, we could not give him a scholarship.

"But we were given the O. that if we had met all the stipulations and complied with those rules, he would be eligible to play. And now this comes up at this time of the season. It doesn't make any sense."

Briggs' last conversation with Morris occurred in June. At the time, Morris told Briggs he would not grant Bigby a release from his letter-of-intent with Iowa Western.

But apparently Morris changed his mind after learning Bigby had been forced to sit out two games.

"Nobody cares about this kind of stuff when you're 0-20," Kavanaugh said. "But when you're 17-2 and nationally ranked, you're bringing more attention upon yourself."

It was a battle from that point on. A basket by Ross Willick with 1:18 left gave Aquinas a 59-55 lead, but those would be the final points scored by the Saints. Mike Massey hit five free throws (three after being fouled on a three-point attempt), Mark Mitchell got one

Lady Ocelots win 13th in row

BY C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

The complexion of the game changed in the final five minutes of the first half and the first six minutes of the second.

Flint Mott CC's Monisa McGee knocked down a shot with 5:07 left in the opening half to put the Lady Bears up 30-21. But for the remainder of the half, Schoolcraft College outscored Mott 8-2 to narrow the deficit to 32-29, then the Lady Ocelots opened the second half with a 15-3 run that put them in control to stay.

Final score: SC 68, Mott 62.

The win gave the Ocelots' women's basketball team some additional breathing room in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference. They are now 17-3 overall, 9-0 in the conference, and are riding a 13-game winning streak. Mott fell to 12-8 overall, 5-3 in the conference.

"I think we really broke it open when Stacy (Cavin) started hitting those threes," said SC coach Karen Lafata of a designed strategy. "We called it, and it worked."

For much of the first half, the 6-foot-2 Cavin had successfully posted up inside, but Mott's 6-2 Nicole Buford had disrupted her shooting. Cavin had just one basket and four points in the opening half.

It took her less than five minutes to double that total in the second half. Cavin drained a pair of three-pointers from the top of the key and added another twopoint basket to spark SC's second-half start. She finished with 16 points and nine rebounds in the game.

"I thought we played well for most of the first half," said Mott coach Wray Cannaday. "We had three straight possessions where we stopped them (late in the we forced a turifover in the clos- 'day of SC. But the Bears never got any closer. SC answered with a sixpoint run of its own and kept Mott at bay the remainder of the game, thanks largely to the offensive efforts of Samantha Theisen, who scored eight of her game-high 26 points in the last six minutes. If that isn't a formula for disaster. Madonna's loss Saturday at Aguinas left it with a 1-7 recording the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference, 12-11 overall. Aquinas is 8-13 overall, 3-5 in the WHAC.

The Lady Crusaders converted just 11-of-31 first-half floor shots (35.5) percent) and were just 24-of-63 for the game (38.1 percent). Aquinas hit 15-of-29 in the opening half (51:7 percent) and 31-of-60 for the game (51.7 percent). The Saints also enjoyed a commanding 44-29 edge on the boards.

Kathy Panganis' 18 points paced Madonna; she also grabbed five rebounds and two steals. Chris Dietrich added 14 points, a team-best seven boards and two steals, but committed six turnovers. Katie Cushman and Kristi Fiorenzi (from Plymouth Canton) added 11 points and two steals apiece, and Carissa Gizicki had eight points and four assists.

Filling those holes is the top priority on coach Pete Alexander's eff-season list. So far, he's succeeded.

Of course, it helps to have the kind of recognition Madonna has received in its first two years in the WHAC, both of them having ended with the Fighting Crusaders earning the championship. They were 20-3 overall this season, 14-0 in the WHAC.

This is the first time we've ever had any All-Americans," Alexander said of Emert. Mollien and junior midfielder Charlie Bell, who will return next season. "So far, our recruiting's done real well.

"But (the success) not only gives us recognition among the people we want to recruit, but also from teams across the country.

The losses of Emert and Redopolous will impair the offense, which is why Alexander went after some scoring help. He believes he found it in Ryan Konley, a Plymouth Salem and Schoolcraft College graduate, and Tim Rais, from Farmington.

He's a strong player who will help the younger players develop.

The Crusader defense will need some bolstering, too, with the loss of Gniewek and Mollien. Helping out there will be new recruite Bill Fischer, from Livonia Franklin, a sweeper/stopper/defensive midfielder type who "has a lot of strengths"; Jeff Parent, a defender from Plymouth Canton; Andy MacDonald, a defender/midfielder from Utica Eisenhower; P.J. Madonna keeper Dave Hart is entering his senior season, so Alexander will also bring in a couple of understudies in Walled Lake Central graduate Doug Campau ("He's very athletic - he'll learn a lot there next year," Alexander said) and Plymouth Canton grad Doug Koontz.

A couple decades ago, back when only girls wore earrings, Don Silvi made a list of guidelines for his high school football players.

Silvi, an assistant coach for more than 30 years in the metro area, died on Sunday of a heart attack in his Livonia home. A funeral service is at 11 a.m. today at Harry J. Will Funeral ordered eight by 10 prints.

Home in Livonia.

A Detroit Mackenzie graduate and former Redford Townshipp resident, Silvi rarely grew facial hair at home.

"Just during deer hunting season and I didn't have to look at him then," his wife of 48 years, Phyllis, said, smiling. "That was all right."

Silvi is a member of the Catholic League Coaches Hall of Fame and the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association Hall of Fame. He had coaching stints at Dearborn Divine Child, Detroit Catholic Central, Redford St. Agatha, Royal Oak Shrine, Dearborn Heights Annapolis and Crestwood and Farwell.

Even in retirement from the food service industry, Silvi couldn't give up coaching. While staying at their cottage up north, he was an assistant at Farwell, a state playoff qualifier last year.

One of the season's more memorable photos was of Silvi wearing a baseball hat backwards and dancing to a hip-hop song after a victory.

Silvi always believed in wearing the bill of the cap forward and preferred jazz or slow songs, but as a tribute to the players' hard work, he struck a pose they could appreciate.

Boy did they - some even

Silvi was an assistant coach at DC in the late 1960s under Bill McCartney, who would go on and be an assistant coach at the University of Michigan and a head coach at the University of Col-

"I talked to him Friday afternoon on the phone. I told him he sounded out of breath and he said 'I am out of breath, I was working out.' "

Silvi was a regular in the annual Catholic League Golf Outing, even last spring when he played with pal Jim Murphy, the former St. Agatha athletic director, despite shoulder surgery. But when Silvi and his wife didn't show up for a Super Bowl party on Sunday, Goddard knew something was wrong.

"He looked forward to any occasion for all the coaches to get several grandchildren.

together," Goddard said.

Silvi's loyalty to the head coach showed one night in 1991 when he kissed Goddard on the cheek after St. Agatha rallied for a victory over Shrine.

Goddard must have let Silvi call the plays. "The one thing about Don is no one could ever accuse him of being a 'yes' man," Goddard said. "He believed in certain things and would express those on the sidelines, in meetings. That's what made him a great coach and assistant.

"Don always said he couldn't be a head coach. Sometimes you've got to be a politician and Don never chose that. He told the referee, principal what he thought and everyone respected him."

In his spare time, Silvi loved to do woodwork and sing. He also did some auto racing.

Silvi also loved cats, having two at home: Max and Taz. "One time we found a stray cat in our neighborhood and Don volunteered to take him in," said Gloria Goddard, the wife of John Goddard. "He took it to the veterinarian, pumped all kinds of money into that little guy and it survived."

Besides his wife, Silvi is survived by his son John, daughters Peggy and Lynn, a brother and

Shamrocks rout South; Western edges Patriots

Playing in the tough Michigan Metro High School Hockey League, which includes eighttime Class A champion Trenton, it's not as if Redford Catholic Central has to travel four hours to find quality competition.

But the Shamrocks are looking forward to a new challenge, playing two games on consecutive days at the Alpena Tournament.

CC opens the tournament at 4 p.m. Friday against Calumet, which has won four of the last seven titles in Class B-C-D. CC has won three Class A titles, including two under coach Gordie St. John since 1994.

If the Shamrocks beat Calumet, they face the winner of the game between Alpena and Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook, on Saturday.

Alpena is a three-time Class A champion, winning the last time in 1993. Cranbrook won the B-C-D title in 1997 and was runner-up to Calumet in '96 and '98.

The Shamrocks warmed up for the tournament with a 7-1 victory Saturday over Grosse Pointe South at Redford Ica Arena.

They are 14-1 overall, 9-1 in the Metro.

"We're looking for a couple tough games," St. John said of the trip.

The Shamrocks plan to leave early Friday morning and play about four hours after they arrive. St. John doesn't expect conditioning to be a problem since CC made a similar trip minus the overnight stay earlier this year to East Kentwood and won 4-2.

"They're young, they'll have their legs," St. John said. "Any time you have to travel and play two games in 24 hours helps you get ready for state's."

South, the Class A runnerup last year to Trenton, was no match for the Shamrocks. CC, which lost to South in a regional final last year, led 2-0 after one period and 5-1 through two.

The Shamrocks enjoyed a 41-8 shots on goal advantage with Andrew McCoy and Matthew Modelski sharing time as goal-tenders.

Senior forward Keith Rowe led the Shamrocks with two goals and Chris Morelli, Pat O'Dea, David Moss, Jim Spiewak and Rick Buttery scored one goal

Morelli opened the scoring with a power play goal assisted

Whalers' Zepp earns shutout

The Plymouth Whalers' defense limited the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds to eight shots in the first two periods and just 23 for the game Saturday in posting a 4-0 shutout victory in front of 3,999 fans at Plymouth's Compuware Arena.

The win raised the Whalers' record to 37-9-3, first in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division. The Greyhounds are 23-19-5.

Rob Zepp had 23 saves in posting the shutout for Plymouth. Jake McCracken had 39 stops for the Greyhounds.

Kris Vernarsky and Damian Surma each collected a goal and an assist to lead the Whaler offense. Surma assisted on Vernarsky's second-period goal, his second of the season, which gave Plymouth a 1-0 lead. Adam Colagiacomo (No. 28) and Harold Druken (No. 44) added goals for the Whalers in the second period.

the Whalers in the second period.
Surma's ninth goal, scored short-handed, made it 4-0 with 6:31 left in the final period; Vernarsky assisted. Shaun Fisher added two assists for Plymouth.

Ambassadors still 1st

The Compuware Ambassadors will take the top record into the North American Hockey League all-star game break after beating the Danville Wings 5-1 Sunday, after losing 5-4 in a shootout to the Springfield Junior Blues Saturday.

Compuware is 27-9-4 overall, two points better than the streaking St. Louis Sting (26-11-4 with a 14-game unbeaten streak). In the win over Danville Sunday, the Wings scored first but the Ambassadors answered with five-straight goals. Pete Broccoli had a goal and two assists for Compuware, with Steve Jackson and Mark Mink contributing a goal and an assist.

Compuware's record means that Ambassadors' coach Mike Vellucci will guide Team North at the NAHL all-star game Saturday in Grand Rapids. The defending Robertson Cup playoff champions retain a narrow lead over St. Louis in a battle for first-place honors and the automatic bye into the Gold Cup National Junior A Championship Tournament.

by Moss and Sean McGowan at 10:38 of the first period. Moss made the lead 2-0 scoring on an assist from Matt Van Heest with 1:38 left in the first.

The Shamrocks raised the lead to 3.0 only 33 seconds into the second period when O'Dea scored with assists to Buttery and Derek Genrich. Morelli scored, assisted by John Bowers and Brad Holland, for a 4-0 lead before Spiewak's unassisted goal put the Shamrocks up 5-0.

a goal before the end of the second period.

A short-handed, unassisted goal by Buttery 38 seconds into the third period gave the Shamrocks a 6-1 lead. CC finished the scoring with a goal by Rowe, assisted by Holland midway through the third.

•W.L. WESTERN 4, FRANKLIN 3: Livonia Franklin couldn't overcome a 3-0 first period deficit Saturday as host Walled Lake Western skated to Suburban High School Hockey League win over the Patriots at Lakeland ice Arena.

Bryan Hillebrand and Justin Kahle each had a goal and assist for the victorious Warriors (6-12-1, 3-8-1). Rod Dolega and Kevin Dillon also tallied goals for the winners.

Dillon's unassisted goal came at 4:46 of the final period.

"We played very sloppy and were running around in the first period with no system," Franklin coach Terry Jobbitt said. "Their first goal and last goal were deflections off our defensemen."

Josh Garbutt got Franklin's on the board from Andy Garbutt and Brad Cauchi at 25 seconds of the third.

Andy Garbutt then scored from Tony Saia and Josh Garbutt at 6:27 followed by John Nichol's unassisted effort with 0:47 remaining after the Patriots pulled their goaltender for an extra attacker.

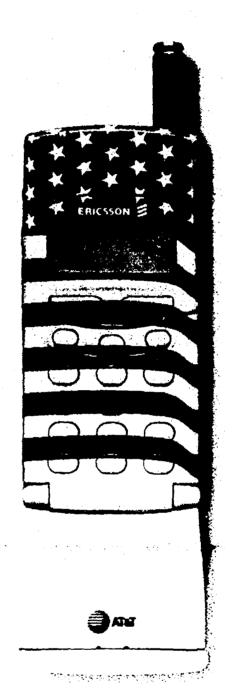

'The Western players played a new system and were more disciplined and much improved," Jobbitt said, "We made our adjustments and played great hockey, never quitting in the final two periods."

Western goaltender Rex Trott made 25 saves, while Franklin's Chris Garbutt made 15.

Franklin falls to 5-10-1 overall and 3-9-1 in the SHSHL.

lass clown of his Walled Lake Central High School class, Mark Ridley has been making people laugh for a long time.

On Jan. 4 he celebrated the 20th anniversary of the comedy club he started in the basement of The Meating Place, a restaurant in West Bloomfield.

Now one of the top comedy clubs in the country, Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle has called Royal Oak home since 1989.

Framed autographed pictures of today's comedy stars decorate the walls including Tim Allen, Jerry Seinfeld, Dave Coulier, David Letterman, Ellen DeGeneres and Richard Belzer.

Ridley chuckles as he remembers when he had to give people their money back after Paul Reiser performed. It was before those "Mad About You" days with Helen Hunt.

"People walked out, they didn't like his show," said Ridley.

Reiser's autographed picture is revealing - "To Mark & the Comedy Castle, certain parts were fun."

New direction

Always a lover of comedy, Ridley really wanted to make films. After graduating from Wayne State University with a bachelor's degree in TV, radio and film, Ridley applied to the University of Southern California film program.

While hanging out at the Comedy Store in 1978 California, waiting to hear if he made the cut for the program, he watched Richard Pryor, David Letterman and Steve Martin perform.

Ridley wasn't chosen for the program but came home with an idea - to open a comedy club like the Comedy Store. While working as a waiter, he began Featured local comics included Bill Thomas, Leo DuFour, and Dave Coulier. In those early. days, Tim Allen was his opening act when Ridley started Open Mike Night in February of 1979.

"Leo auditioned for me over the phone," said Ridley, "I didn't know what I was looking for Tim (Allen) approached it as a job. He was very professional and wore a suit when he performed."

Ridley's comedy nights took off right away, and pretty soon he was searching for a bigger place. His present location, the old press room for the Royal Oak Tribune, located just around the corner, is his seventh venue.

"I can't complain," said Ridley. "We've had well over a million customers, and a billion laughs."

"This could be Mike's big break," said David Gladstone of Off N Running Mgt. in Los Angeles. "Every television producer in the industry is there looking for next year's sitcom star."

he said in a bright booming voice that matches his playing style. "She went to a record store and ran into just the right record sales person. She brought home records by Bix Biederbecke, Louis Armstrong, Harry James, Roy Eldridge, Rex Stewart of the Duke Ellington Orchestra and early Miles Davis and Dizzy Gillespie.

"It was a great record collection. My brother has it now," Ferguson said. His brother, Percy. was also a musician, who started a jazz band that featured Maynard and another prominent Canadian jazz master, pianist Oscar Peterson.

At 16, Maynard Ferguson took over leadership of the band, while continuing his classical studies at the French Conservatory of Music. It was with this young band that he developed his ability to play at the sonic bending high range for which he is world famous.

His band opened for the top American bands that came to play - Charlie Barnet, Jimmy Dorsey and Stan Kenton. From 1950 to 1953 Ferguson established himself with his high register playing as the leader of Kenton's brass section.

Sometimes critics have praised Ferguson's technique while attacking his improvising skills or questioning his moves into popular music — including the megahit version of "Gonna Fly Now" (the theme from "Rocky").

"I've had such a happy career, I have to leave that to others," Ferguson said. "I have that control at the upper register and the tours of Japan and Europe, the stamina. I'm 71 years of age and still have it. It was a trademark. House of Blues in Los Angeles It doesn't bother me at all."

Ferguson tells young players they have to prepare for performing the way athletes prepare. He said that's why he's still able to reach the stratosphere.

"I'm careful of my health as I get older," he said. "It's an athletic thing. As you get older, when you want to get back in shape, at 70 it's like being a 37-year-old National Football guy who has to come back to camp early to get

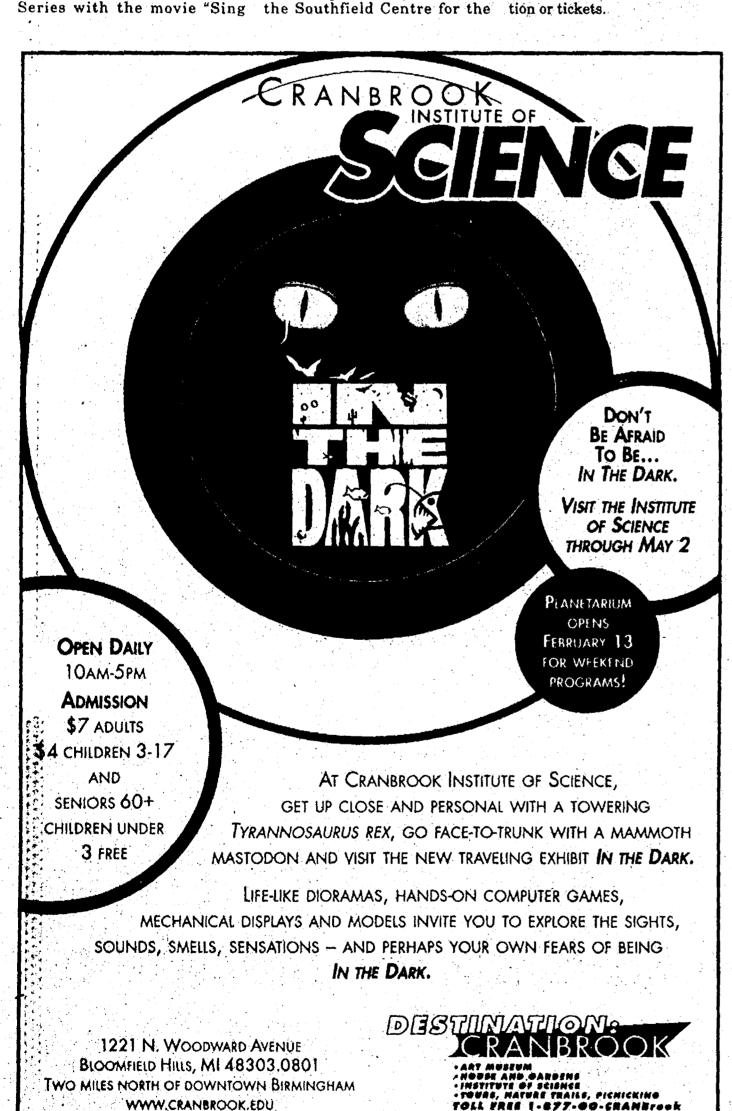

He said he's impressed with young musicians who can play at a wide range. In the old days, he said, a band would have a "screech" trumpet player who came in just to handle the high notes. Today, young trumpet players are able to move up and down the scale with versatility. He also credits music education for the fact that almost all musicians today can read music and improvise. The Big Bop Nouveau Band will be playing music from their new Concord album, "Brass Attitude," and other Ferguson favorites. The band is planning Blue Note in New York City, and numerous college dates across the country.

Set in 1936 Pittsburgh, "The Piano Lesson" explores the struggle of an African American family over their reverence for the past and their dreams for the future.

Boy Willie has a one time chance to buy the land he has farmed for others for many years. He realizes that selling the family's heirloom, a handcarved piano, will give him enough money to buy the deed and his dream. Mel Gibson gets his 'Payback' in latest flick

BY VICTORIA DIAZ SPECIAL WRITER

If you're yearning to feel bruised, bloodied, and beaten-up, there's no need to visit the Kronk gym and volunteer as a sparring partner for an up-andcoming prizefighter. Instead; check out Mel Gibson's latest rock-em, sock-em flick, "Payback." By movie's end, you'll probably hurt all over.

In almost every scene, some wretched dreg of humanity gets shot, kicked, punched, whipped, stomped on, stabbed, carved, hammered, ripped, or burnt. For good measure, somebody dies from an overdose of dirty heroin too. Imagine a cinematic carnival of pain, and you will begin to get he's as indestructible as Bugs a bead on "Payback."

Gibson is Porter, a thief who has been double-crossed by his partner-in-crime, Val Resnick, a creepy sort played with just the right reptilian touch by Greg Henry (moviegoers may well "Body Double."). Resnick not only swipes Porter's share of the duo's heist money, but he also sets things up so that Porter's wife shoots her husband in the back, and leaves him to die. (One memorable close-up involves Resnick grinding out a cigarette in a glistening puddle of Porter's blood.)

But Porter doesn't die. At least, not physically. In a way, Bunny - though not nearly as reasonable. And ultimately. though it makes an attempt at sepulchral humor now and then. this movie is no laughing matter.

After he recovers (following some sordid surgery that we witremember his chilling drill bit in ness up-close and personal), back he goes to the scene of the crime, discovering even more reason to see that his brand of justice is carried out.

> When he declares that "nice guys always finish last," somehow we just know justice is going to be the vigilante. To say that he is fixated on recovering his share of the heist money at this point is putting it mildly. Sure, he's going to have to get past the mob (here called "The Outfit") to do it, and wade through a heap of other human garbage as well. But he's past caring. He's like a machine, programmed to go after that $70,000, and anybody who gets in his way is going to be either (1) maimed or (2) dead.

Much of what is wrong with this picture has to do with Gibson's confusing, almost-robotic character. Who is this guy who's supposed to be our hero? He's not Dirty Harry Callahan. He's not Martin Riggs of "Lethal Weapon." He's not taxi driver, Travis Bickle. These were violent characters, but at least we knew enough about them to feel some of their pain. Porter, on the other hand, is not just a flawed individual, he often comes across like he's living a nightmare to which we have no real access. It's tiring. Then, it's tiresome. And, though Gibson struggles manfully with this odd role, eventually, we'd just like to go lie down someplace, very far away from this movie.

Director Brian Helgeland (who co-wrote the script with Terry Hayes) has assembled a supporting cast that deserves stronger showcasing. Just about all of the film's many villains especially make indelible marks. William Devane, leering as only he can, takes a particularly chilling turn as a jackal-like, second-level syndicate boss. James Coburn slithers onto the screen in a brief appearance as another underworld kingpin, and provides some of the film's comic relief. ("Now, that's mean!" he splutters when Gibson's hair-trigger character blows a hole in one of his expensive attaché cases. "That's just mean!") The best of the beastly bunch is Kris Kristofferweird enough for me." Although I'm unsure whether this quote attributed to writer Hunter S. Thompson is something he actually said, I can't think of a better mantra for this weirdest of all months.

"It's still not

February is a month that not only varies in length, but in popular pronunciation. When we hear one 'r' or two, we tend to cut each other some slack. After all, it's February.

In keeping with this spirit of weirdness, plenty of attractions are scheduled throughout the Detroit area and on Detroit Public TV's Backstage Pass program to increase your intake of the unusual.

Theatre Grottesco, which, by definition, means "outrageous and larger than life," uses in its current touring production a theatrical style known as Buffoonery, which melds humorous elements from comic and tragic themes. This week's engagement of "The Angels' Cradle" at Windsor's Capitol Theatre presented the story of a group of odd outcasts who have lived in the subbasement of an abandoned building for generations, and the culture clash when they are discovered by a homeless man. Buffoons originated in the European Middle Ages when anyone "different" was banished from society. In February of 1999, instead of banishing buffoons, I say we should celebrate them. Theatre Grottesco founder John Flax and company veteran Elizabeth Wiseman offer some fodder in this week's Backstage Pass. We can always count on the DIA's Detroit Film Theatre to serve up some quirkiness. Curator Elliot Wilhelm recommends "Six String Samurai," to be presented Feb. 15.

"It's an American-made postapocalyptic rock and roll film which features a mysterious hero and a cannibalistic 'Cleaver' family. Very funny and very strange," he says. I never trusted Eddie Haskell, and now I'm not so sure about June.

Weird Science, an ambitious exhibition which just opened at Cranbrook Educational Community, offers an artistic journey through the often peculiar pursuit of scientific discovery. A collaboration of Cranbrook's art museum and institute of science, the exhibit features the work of four artists, who through such use of specimen jars and a custom-built chicken coop, create a dramatic setting for the study of reptiles and amphibians, genetic engineering and space travel. sha Miro, who takes viewers on a tour of the exhibit. It has been a half-century since the heyday of the Hastings Street entertainment district, an area off I-75 near Wayne State University that thrived on such blues artists as John Lee Hooker, Harmonica Shaw and Uncle Jessie White. They created a recognizable sound that was largely unheralded nationally. "There were many artists that came out of the Hastings Street blues era, but, unfortunately, there was no local record label to support them," says Backstage Pass music producer Ron Pang-

"It may have been difficult for these artists to build Detroit's reputation as a center for blues because we're so close to Chicago, which had just about everything going for it in promoting the careers of blues musicians. Places like St. Louis and Memphis had the benefit of established record labels that helped build a blues tradition for those cities," Pangborn says. Now, here's the good news. Many of the great artists from Hastings Street are still around and performing, and their work will finally be available on a new "Hastings Street Grease" collection to be released later this year on Toledo-based Blue Suit Records. Harmonica Shaw, Uncle Jessie and others from Hastings Street share memories and music during an event at the Monroe Weird Science is a highlight on Library on February 17, and in the Detroit area's winter/spring our studios on Backstage Pass. arts calendar, according to Mar- airing Sunday, February 7, and repeated Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

and Friday at midnight.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER chiococoe.homecomm.net

The Flys vividly remember the days of lugging gear up stairs, running a van into the ground, and begging for gigs in L.A. clubs. Although the band, which has scored a hit with "Got You (Where I Want You)," has been together for 10 years, those days aren't so far off.

All those thoughts are coming back to the quintet as it headlines and judges the "Bandemonium" contest. It comes to St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress. in Detroit on Friday, Feb. 5.

Sponsored by Sam Goody, Pepsi, Loreal, and Gibson guitars, "Bandemonium" will feature two local bands competing for the chance to play MTV's "Spring Break." There are four to five judges at each Bandemonium event, including a member of The Flys.

"It's been pretty cool. We see some pretty cool bands, although we have to judge people, and I don't like to judge people," guitarist Peter Perdichizzi said.

"It's a bit weird. I see myself in a lot of these people and how we struggled for so long. I just don't want to make a judgment on anyone because everyone's doing their best and struggling," he added.

The Flys struggled for nine years before landing a record contract with Trauma Records, home to Bush and No Doubt. Its debut album "Holiday Man" will land at No. 1 on Billboard's "Heatseekers" chart in the Feb. 5

Perdichizzi, who formed the band with vocalist Adam Paskowitz and bassist James Book, calls The Flys, "an

In 1994, The Flys released "25 cents," and supported it by touring Europe and western United

"Even though we were based enough money to pay our rent at our studio, to pay our van payment, to pay our insurance payment, to keep our head above water and still be a band."

"We would tour around Europe everything happens.

Soon after recording "25 cents," The Flys added two new members to the band - vocalist/rapper Joshua Paskowitz and drummer Nick Lucero.

"We got rid of our old drummer. We found Nick, he was just tar work, and Lucero's drum sort of moping around L.A. looking for a gig. That relationship has worked out really cool because he's an amazing person. He's also on the cover of the record ('Holiday Man') skydiving.

He's the craziest one to do that." Tagging along on one of the European jaunts was Joshua, Adam's brother.

"Adam got sick really bad. He got some kind of Euro-flu. Josh had to step in and sing his brother's parts. He was helping us out. He just hung around and did his thing, and it was all good. We never made a ceremony to say, 'Hey man, you're in the band.' If you got something to say, step up and do it. If it's good, it's good, and it was. It was very natural. We still haven't let him in the band."

But it was Joshua Paskowitz who contributed the hook to The Flys' first hit, "Got You (Where I Want You) from "Holiday Man" (Trauma Records). The melancholy, bass-heavy "Got You" builds from a simple melody to Joshua Paskowitz's Jamaican dub rhymes.

Joshua Paskowitz offered the suggestion during the recording session at producer Chris Goss's studio.

"Before he did that it was just like of a guitar break, a riff and big loud guitar. He said, Well, first time we heard it, we said, 'it's done.' "

Most of "Holiday Man" was written about a year ago, except. for "Take U There," a frenetic blend of Josh Paskowitz's rhyming, Perdichizzi's crafty guiwork.

"That was last minute. They were pressing the record that week and we said, 'Let's put it on.' We had to stop the presses literally as they say."

A striking aspect of "Holiday Man," is the slow grooving "Afraid." Booming drums break up the psychedelic feel of the

"It's Nick's real drums. It's just a little studio trick that Chris Goss did. You're in a big drum room if you can imagine. You put room mics at the end of the room and then you put a distortion pedal in the board in the studio. It overdrives everything so you have this big roomy distorted drum sound," Perdichizzi explained.

But, shyly, he added, "We don't really do that part live because we don't know how to do that. It's a studio trick but we rock live. Live is our strong point."

After all, The Flys spent 10 years refining its live performances.

"We worked very hard and never gave up any of our dreams. We just went forward and we hooked up with Trauma Records and they've been very passionate about it too. It's sort of come out in a very big way. Obviously, it sort of blew up with this one song," he said about "Got You where did this band come from In reality, we've been around the block many, many times, working for this though. It's a great position to be in."

The Flys headline "Bandemo" nium" at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 5; St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $7 at the door for the all-ages show. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT or visit http://www. radioedge.com. The Flys can be" reached via e-mail at adamfly: aol.com or pep71@msn.com, or by inviting to 501 10th St., Santa Monica, Calif., 90402.

Besides "Holiday Man," "Got" You" also appears on "Hope in Hockeytown III," a benefit CD for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Metropolitan Detroit. It will be available for $14.99 beginning Friday, Feb. 5, at major record stores or by calling 1-800-WINGS-25.
