Plan expected to up EMS rates

City council members are expected to approve increases as they overhaul the Westland Fire Department's billing system for emergency medical services. The vote is expected at a Tuesday meeting at Westland City Hall.

Westland residents will likely face higher medical rescue bills under a new plan unveiled Monday by fire officials.

City council members are expected to approve the increases as they overhaul the Westland Fire Department's billing system for emergency medical services.

A council majority has indicated that higher rates and a new billing system will be adopted during a 7 p.m. Tuesday meeting at Westland City Hall.

Here's how the rate changes would affect patients and their insurance providers:

■ Residents suffering heart attacks, strokes and other life-threatening emergencies would see their bills for Advanced Life Support (ALS) services climb from $400 to $500.

■ Residents only needing Basic Life Support (BLS) services would see their tab jump from $100 to $168 - the full amount that officials say Medicare would cover.

■ Non-residents using Westland medical services would pay the same new rates. They already paid $500 for ALS, but their tab for basic services would climb from $125 to $168.

New fees would boost annual revenues by $150,000 to $200,000, Fire Chief Mark Neal said.

Neal proposed the new fees as the city moves to hire an outside firm, Medaphis, to take over its emergency medical services billing system.

Neal said an outside firm will improve bill collection efforts. He estimated that Medaphis could boost the percentage of bills collected from 68 percent to 85 percent, boosting revenues by another $100,000 each year.

"We're losing revenues every day," Neal said Monday during a council study session.

Revenues for 1998-99 are projected at $690,000. New fees and better collection efforts are expected to boost Westland got a sampling of winter weather Sunday afternoon just in time for WinterFest.

An afternoon of mostly free children's activities sponsored by the city was held Sunday at the Bailey Center in Westland.

The turnout was "awesome," according to Robert Kosowski, director of Parks and Recreation for Westland.

He estimated about 600 people attended the various events. Some people also filled out surveys about the events and almost all of

Proposal to house boys aired

BY DARRELL CLEM

Spectrum Human Services Inc. is proposing to house as many as 24 troubled boys at its Westland facility on Joy Road between Middlebelt and Inkster.

Spectrum officials say the plan differs sharply from a 1997 proposal to house delinquent and abused girls on the same site - once a psychiatric hospital.

The girls' home was rejected by Westland City Council members following a storm of protest from Westland and Livonia residents who said the youngsters posed a danger to their neighborhoods.

"This (new) program will not - I repeat, will not - accept any delinquent youths," Spectrum president Roger Swanger said.

He and Spectrum clinical director Jerry Csokasy unveiled the nonprofit company's latest plan Monday during a Westland City Council study session.

Only one resident, Michael Kelly, attended the session to voice opposition

Chief: Use offender list with caution

BY DARRELL CLEM

Westland police urge residents to use restraint if they learn from the Internet that sex offenders are living in their neighborhoods.

Chief Emery Price said his department has received phone calls from residents who have perused a sex offender list - www.msp.state.mi.us - posted on the Internet by Michigan State Police.

Some residents want to know what they should do after they learn that sex offenders may be living near them.

"There isn't really a lot they can do except for being aware and advising their kids of the individuals who may or may not live in their neighborhood - and just to be careful," Price said.

Computer users find names and addresses of sex offenders by typing in ZIP codes, but Price urged residents to use caution.

"As long as people don't overreact to it - that's probably what concerns us most," Price said. "I'm kind of uneasy about it right now until we have more time to review it."

In Westland's two postal codes, 87 names are listed for a variety of sex crimes ranging from attempted sexual contact to first-degree criminal sexual conduct, which involves penetration.

Price and other area police chiefs voiced some fears that innocent people

Resident wins chance to be 'Ally McBeal' extra

BY DUNCAN E. WHITE

Ann DeGhetto went from working as records manager for the Plymouth Township Police Department to television star a few weeks ago ... (and then back to records manager).

DeGhetto, a Westland resident, won a contest through Best Buy last summer to appear as an extra on the "Ally McBeal" show and visited the Los Angeles set in late January with longtime friend Mary Falzon of Northville.

Winning the contest was the easy part, though, as she simply mailed in a card and was selected in a random drawing.

And the kicker is that she didn't even buy anything that day at Best Buy.

"It said 'no purchase necessary,'" she said. "I just mailed it in. I love that store and I've bought stuff there before. Just not on that particular day."

What she won, exactly, was a "walk-on, non-speaking role" on the show, two round-trip tickets to Los Angeles, hotel accommodations for two days and two nights, a limousine ride to and from the set of the show and $500.

revenues to $940,000 to $990,000.

Resident John McGuire criticized the fee changes.

"To bill the citizens $500 or $600, I don't think it's fair," he said. "I think you're more interested in the money than the citizens."

Neal said the city has to find ways to help pay for medical services.

Meanwhile, Neal also said billing system changes will help the city correct problems that has placed it at odds with government compliance rules.

"We're out of compliance every day," Neal said.

One problem area has been the city's past practice of charging nonresidents more money than residents for medical services. Neal said fire officials have learned that the two-tiered billing practice is "a violation" of government regulations.

Some cities, such as New York City, have been socked with millions of dollars in fines for failing to address billing system problems, Neal said.

abreast of ever-changing compliance rules. Medaphis, recommended from three companies studied, would receive 8 percent of the amount it collects for the city.

Neal said Medaphis - unlike the city - usually bills patients within 48 hours of a medical run. The fire chief said customers are less likely to pay their bill as time passes.

Some council members said they don't want Medaphis to strong-arm residents who simply can't afford to pay their bills.

"My issue is, I don't want these folks badgered," Councilman Richard LeBlanc said.

The city's past practice has been to waive bills for poor people who don't have insurance or to work with patients to arrange a payment plan.

"The $500 sounds harsh to me if it was folks without insurance," Councilwoman Justine Barns said.

Some council members questioned how the new system would affect city employees. Neal said only one part-time secretarial position would be lost.

Play time: The Westland All-Stars Youth Drama Troupe and Westland Parks and Recreation will present "Not a Lion," a play about three children and a cat who go off to a magical land. Above, dressed for their parts in the play, are (left to right) Alicia Knight, 11, of Canton as a beaver; Jason Kantner, 11, of Westland as a penguin and Anne Sanford, 14, of Westland as a calico cat. Thirty-two students, ages 7-17, will perform at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 12-13, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14, at Wayne Memorial High School's Stockmeyer Auditorium, 3001 Fourth St., off Glenwood in Wayne. Admission is $5. Tickets are available at the door or at the Bailey Recreation Center.

could potentially suffer because of problems with the sex offenders list.

"I've heard of a case where they listed the address of the sex offender's parents. He's still in prison," Garden City Police Chief David Kocais said. "That's quite an invasion on the parents."

Price urged residents not to harass people whose names or addresses appear on the Internet list - or they could face criminal charges themselves.

"Those kinds of things can backfire," Price said.

Police officials say the public has a right to know of sex offenders in their neighborhoods.

"As long as the list is accurate and valid, parents in particular have a right to know who is living in their neighborhood and make their decisions accordingly," Farmington Public Safety Director Gary Goss said.

"The intent was good for the legislation," Price said, "if people use it just for information purposes."

He and other police officials share some concerns that an address may be mistakenly listed on the Internet. Convicted sex offenders are supposed to notify authorities when they move, but some don't.

Staff writers LeAnne Rogers and Larry O'Connor contributed to this report.

Friends and extras: Longtime friends Ann DeGhetto of Westland (who works in Plymouth), left, and Mary Falzon of South Lyon (who works in Canton) share their tales of working as "extras" in the television series, "Ally McBeal."

Despite being whisked away to the coast, the two women found out the hard way that the glamour of Hollywood comes with a price. "We worked on the set from 9 in the morning to 12:30 at night," said DeGhetto. "I think we really learned a lot though, as far as how they operate and what goes into it. It's amazing how many crew members they have." Falzon wasn't quite as excited about the long day. "My workday ends at 5," she said. "I was tired. I wanted to go back to the hotel." The work that the two did while a part of the "Ally McBeal" cast won't appear on a particular episode though. They said that several different scenes were cut during their day in the spotlight.

"They'll all be outdoor scenes," said DeGhetto. "I don't think they'll all be from the same show because (the cast) went through several wardrobe changes." Of the two, DeGhetto believes that she has a better chance to stay off the editing room floor. "In one scene, I walked right in front of (the main character) Calista Flockhart," she said. "I cut right in front of her so, if that scene makes it, you'll definitely be able to see me." Fittingly, the scenes that they worked on were to take place in the winter, and these Michiganders came prepared. "The casting director said that we would be shooting outside," said DeGhetto. "It was supposed to be Boston and it was supposed to be cold so we were to bring two winter coats, a hat, mittens and gloves. So, here I am, going to California and I'm not packing shorts and a bathing suit." "We definitely had the right equipment to bring," added Falzon. DeGhetto and Falzon, who grew up together and became good friends in high school, had one day to themselves during the trip and took full advantage of the opportunity. "We walked along Rodeo Drive and looked in the windows," said DeGhetto. "We didn't buy anything, of course. And we went to a place called the Ivy Restaurant. Gil Bellows (who plays Billy Allen Thomas on the show) recommended it to us when we met him on the set." "Ally McBeal" is on 9 p.m. Mondays on Fox (Channel 2 in Detroit).

to the boys' home, but he predicted that his neighbors will battle Spectrum as word of the latest plan spreads. Spectrum officials want to house boys, ages 11 to 16, who have been troubled by Attention Deficit Disorder and hyperactivity. Officials say the youngsters have had school and home problems that warrant placing them in a 24-hour supervised program. "I just don't want them coming through my neighborhood," Kelly said. The boys would attend an on-site school and would be supervised when they leave the facility for recreational outings to places like city parks and YMCAs, Swaninger said. Their average stay would be six months. A Spectrum report notes that the boys may have "behavioral and impulse control problems" and may exhibit behaviors such as quarreling, fighting and refusing to obey adults. "These children also have substantial school problems," the report said. "I think the ADD kid just grows up and gets in a little more trouble," Csokasy said. Spectrum officials say the program's goal is to help the boys return to their homes and neighborhoods without resuming old behavior problems. It's possible some youths could go home on weekends, Swaninger said. Boys would be referred to Spectrum by Wayne County Community Mental Health - not from criminal courts. Most of the youths have, until now, been served on an outpatient basis, Csokasy said. Responding to remarks that the boys aren't wanted in local neighborhoods, Csokasy said most of them already live in the western Wayne County area. "They're already there," he said. "We're not bringing kids in ... If these kids aren't serviced, they can get into bigger problems. They're already walking in your neighborhood." Spectrum hasn't sealed an agreement with Wayne County Community Mental Health. Rather, company officials wanted to gauge city reaction before moving ahead. Administration officials have agreed to discuss the proposal at length with Spectrum officials before issuing any recommendations to the city council. Swaninger conceded that Spectrum got off to a rocky start with neighbors with the previous proposal for a girls' home. But he said he remains hopeful that the new plan will be more acceptable. "We still would like to put some sort of residential program in there," he said, referring to the 53,000-square-foot facility that also houses Spectrum administrative offices. Special use approval The company needs a special use approval from the city to start the youth program. During day hours, Spectrum would provide one staff person for every four boys, Swaninger said. The ratio would increase to about six boys for each staffer at night. Some council members already have warned Spectrum that they wouldn't approve a program that could disrupt the neighborhood. "That's my No. 1 concern is that there is no disruption to the neighbors up in that area," Councilman Glenn Anderson said. Spectrum operates four other programs for troubled youths in southeast Michigan, including one Westland home near Merriam and Warren where sexually abused girls get help. The company also has 32 adult group homes.

Denny's manager says angry man attacked him

A Denny's restaurant manager told Westland police he was attacked by an angry man demanding to know why his daughter had been fired. The girl hadn't even been fired, a police report indicated. The employee of Denny's, 7725 N. Wayne, told police he was in his office counting money on the evening of Jan. 31 when his attacker walked in waving his fists. The employee tried to block the man's punches but ended up having to defend himself by hitting the attacker and knocking him down, a police report said. The manager's version of the incident was confirmed by another Denny's employee whom the attacker had encountered. The manager dragged the man outside and left him there, but the man told police officers that he had been punched and kicked before he crawled out of Denny's on his own, according to a police report. The man suffered a fractured ankle and was taken to Oakwood Hospital/Annapolis Center-Wayne. The man admitted to police that he had gone to Denny's to confront the employee after drinking beer, police said. Even so, the man told police he now wants to see the Denny's employee prosecuted, although a police report noted that it was the man's own actions that brought about his injuries. The matter has been turned over to the city prosecutor's office for review. Store break-in An intruder broke into a Westland party store early Friday, stealing 50 cartons of cigarettes and hundreds of lottery tickets, a police report said. The incident occurred shortly before 5 a.m. when an intruder smashed out the front door glass at Westland Wine & Deli on North Wayne Road. Items missing included 50 cartons of cigarettes valued at $1,500 and lottery tickets totaling $100, the police report said. No arrest has been made.

Men charged in robbery

BY LEANNE ROGERS STAFF WRITER lrogers@oc.homecomm.net Bonds were set at $1 million cash on each of two Westland men charged in connection with a gas station robbery in which the clerk was seriously beaten. Kevin Scott Patterson, 30, and Steven Hendrick Johnson, 32, were arraigned Friday in Garden City's 21st District Court on charges of armed robbery. Patterson is also charged as a habitual offender, while Johnson is charged with assault with intent to commit murder. The robbery took place about 5 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 4, at the Sunoco gasoline station on Warren at Venoy in Garden City. A Dearborn Heights man, 29, was working at the gas station when two men entered. One man beat the clerk with a blunt object, police were told. "The clerk wrote the license plate number of their van on his hand," said Detective Sgt. Michael Lindman. "They took five or 10 packs of cigarettes. They tried to open the cash register but couldn't." The clerk flagged down passing motorists to get assistance. Patrol officers traced the license plate number to a home on Flamingo in Westland. A short time later, Patterson and Johnson were taken into custody at the residence where they have been living. Searching the van, police recovered the object suspected of being used in the assault - a tire knocker, which is similar to a small metal nightstick and used by big rig drivers to check tire pressures. Officers also confiscated a quantity of hair from the home. "Both suspects had shaved their heads. We (confiscated) that on the search warrant, along with cigarettes taken in the robbery," said Lindman, noting the cigarettes are identifiable through tax identification numbers. One suspect made a statement to officers admitting the theft of cigarettes but blaming the other man for the assault and robbery. The clerk, who was taken to the University of Michigan Hospital after initial treatment at Garden City Hospital, was released over the weekend. Patterson and Johnson were both being held in lieu of bond. Preliminary examinations are scheduled for Tuesday in 21st District Court

...these were positive, he said. The festival dates back to 1995, and started as a three-day festival. But this year the festival was cut back to an afternoon of children's activities.

Because of the success this year, the separate children's activities will continue if the event is held next year, Kosowski said.

Among this year's attractions were: large, inflatable slides and other playthings in the Bailey Center gymnasium; shows featuring puppets and music; a show featuring live birds, snakes and other living things; an arts and crafts show where kids could create their own keepsakes and food such as pizza and popcorn.

Carriage rides with horse-drawn carriages from the Northville Carriage Co. of South Lyon were also popular. The snow actually helped out in the popularity of the carriage rides, Kosowski said.

The mayor and council did a good job putting the festival together, he said, especially with the work of event co-chair Sharon Scott and Diane Fritz.

INFORMATION
Sometimes, small or unusual books get hidden and ignored in the library stacks. Cyndi Edgerton's "Redeye" is put in the western genre, but it is unlike any other western novel you may have read. In 1857, a troop of Mormons attacked a wagon train of pioneers near Salt Lake City. Orders from Brigham Young were to leave none alive to tell the tale. But someone obviously did tell. And what a tale it is - featuring an embalmer, an orphan, a bishop, a mute grandma, a philosopher Indian, a Quaker anthropologist and his mummy and the dog Redeye.

Dems balk then join GOP to cut state income tax

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER
trichard@oe.homecomm.net

Democrats fought awhile but in the end joined Senate Republicans in approving an across-the-board cut in Michigan's personal income tax rate.

Final tally on Feb. 3 was 36-1, with Democrat Alma Wheeler Smith of Salem the only dissenter. The package will cut the rate from 4.4 to 3.9 percent over five years. Taxpayers will see the effect in 2001 when they file returns for the year 2000.

The bills were similar but not identical to a package passed a day earlier by the House. A conference of three senators and three representatives is expected to iron out differences.

Among sponsors of the Senate package (SB 1-5) were Republicans Loren Bennett of Canton and Bill Bullard of Milford.

Democrats offered their own version of tax cuts, raising personal exemptions, but mustered only 17 votes in favor with 20 against. Two Republicans joined 15 Democrats in the yes vote.

All area senators voted with their parties on the Democratic amendment.

Expecting taxes to be a campaign issue in 2000, senators inserted their speeches into the Senate Journal for posterity.

Alma Smith, D-Salem: "The tax cut package was akin to a very high-speed train with a gleaming cow catcher on the front that was capable of removing herds of opposition. Ten percent of the taxpayers - the top 10 percent - would receive the tenderloin, the prime rib and the prime cut of steak. The rest of us, 90 percent, will get the ground hamburger, the rump roast and the ox tail."
"The tax cut is $1 billion - virtually 100 percent of the support for community colleges, 100 percent of the support for higher education and corrections. We will make program cuts when this economy turns."

Smith said that since 1991, tuitions have risen 50 percent at Michigan State University, 77.8 percent at the University of Michigan, 80.8 percent at Oakland University and 85 percent at Lake Superior State University.

Bill Schuette, R-Midland: "We're talking about an 11 percent across-the-board tax cut for families. Remember years ago, Ronald Reagan would talk about a 10 percent tax cut?"

Chris Dingell, D-Trenton: "During consideration of SB 1, I went around amongst my Republican colleagues handing most of them a roll of Lifesavers, explaining that the bill would provide the worth of a roll of Lifesavers to a working family in terms of tax relief." Democrats argued that for someone earning $40,000 a year, the tax savings would be 50 cents a week the first year.

John Cherry, D-Clio: "I don't see it being any great surprise that a number of people on this (Democratic) side of the aisle voted for SB 1. I'm a bit disappointed that it does so (cut taxes) in the future - we're at perhaps the height of this economic recovery right now. Additionally, I'm a bit disappointed that it's not accompanied by an increase in the personal exemption."

When fully phased in, the cuts would reduce general fund by $1.1 billion annually. Currently, the general fund stands at $9 billion. The income tax produces about $5 billion of that.

Civil War group moves to Plymouth

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER
jbrown@oe.homecomm.net

A piece of history is coming to Plymouth. The Abraham Lincoln Civil War Round Table, which had been meeting at the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills, will now meet at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

Meetings will be 8 p.m. the third Thursday of the month at the museum, 155 S. Main at Church in Plymouth. The next will be Feb. 18.

"We are open to the public, and we welcome guests," said Liz Stringer of Farmington Hills, president of the Abraham Lincoln Civil War Round Table. The group has about 125 members, with attendance at monthly meetings averaging 70-75.

The group doesn't meet in July, August or December, she added.

"It's a natural fit," said Dan LeBlond of Plymouth Township, president of the Plymouth Historical Society. "Lincoln has come to Plymouth and now we have a Lincoln Civil War Round Table group."

He was referring to the museum's acquisition of the Lincoln collection of Weldon Petz. Petz, who frequently lectures on the Civil War and other topics, is a founding member of the round table which Stringer, also a Plymouth Historical Society member, heads.

Change of ownership at the Botsford Inn necessitated a new meeting location, she said. The Petz connection "brought the Plymouth museum to mind." Several members suggested the museum.

Meetings include a brief business session, along with a lecture on different aspects of the Civil War. "We've had impersonators come in," she said, citing an upcoming Mary Todd Lincoln portrayal. Lectures vary, so members don't hear the same thing over and over again.

The Midwest Civil War Round Table Conference will be April 23-24 at the Best Western, 12 Mile and Orchard Lake roads in Farmington Hills. It is hosted by several round tables in southeastern Michigan.

For information on the conference, or on the Abraham Lincoln Civil War Round Table, call Liz Stringer at (248) 473-4118.

Bowlathon to benefit local kids

Livonia Parents of the Visually Impaired will host their second annual Bowlathon Saturday, March 6, at Woodland Lanes in Livonia, with all money raised providing programs and technological equipment for children in western Wayne County.

Local businesses, families and friends are invited to contribute $100 to sponsor a lane or provide gift certificates.

Last year, the group raised more than $4,000 and provided a summer day camp that taught and reinforced living and social skills that children must learn to lead an independent life. LPVI is a federal tax-exempt 501 (C)(3) organization made up entirely of volunteers. The organization serves youngsters in Livonia, South Redford, Redford Union, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City and the Wayne Westland areas, among others.

For details, call Lucy Fritz at (248) 471-3940 or Bonnie Sheridan at (734) 459-3439.

New hospice stamp

At post office: Elaine Flagg, a Community Hospice volunteer from Livonia; Gladys Jolla, Westland postmaster; Ginny Vreeland, a Community Hospice volunteer from Plymouth; and Val Shafer, window services supervisor, attend the introduction of the hospice stamp at Westland post office.

Hospice Care stamp issued by post office

The United States Postal Service Tuesday issued a new commemorative first-class 33 cent stamp in recognition of hospices.

The Hospice Care stamp design is a butterfly over a home, symbolizing life's journey to its final stage. More than 100 million of these stamps will be issued and are available at every post office in the country.

To publicize the stamp's debut, Community Hospice and Home Care Services of Westland welcomed people as they entered the Westland Post Office on Tuesday. The volunteers were wearing T-shirts bearing the likeness of the Hospice Care stamp and distributed information on hospice to anyone interested in learning about it.

"We could not be more grateful to the United States Post Office for their generosity in dedicating talent and resources to salute all those associated with the hospice movement," said Maureen Butrico, executive director of Community Hospice and Home Care Services of Westland. "The end of human life remains one of the most sensitive subjects for discussion, but increased public education on hospice is a healthy and constructive way to let people know they do have options that give them more control over their last journey," she said.

"The USPS receives about 40,000 requests a year for themes for commemorative stamps, so this is a very selective process," Gladys Jolla, Westland postmaster, said.

Area businesses, residents help 'Wheels' meet goal

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

Local organizers of a wheelchair drive for handicapped people around the world are overwhelmed by the outpouring of generosity from area residents and major corporations.

"The answer to our prayers came with two very special phone calls," said Dorothy Pitsch, Wheels for the World Detroit-area chairwoman.

One call came from Shurgard Storage with an offer to donate storage sites in Livonia; Plymouth; Southfield; Rochester/Utica; Southfield; Troy/Oakland Mall and Walled Lake. The company is giving $80 worth of coupons for storage to anyone who donates a wheelchair at any of its locations. Also, Classic Storage has donated space in Detroit.

The second special call came from DaimlerChrysler offering the use of truck trailers to collect all of the wheelchairs donated through April. The trailers will be parked at an undecided Farmington Hills parking lot where high school students will help tag and load the shipment. A DaimlerChrysler driver will take the load to a Nashville, Tenn., prison where they will be refurbished before being shipped to a Third World country.

Pitsch has received between 35 and 45 calls daily with offers of wheelchairs and storage space for the chairs since articles in the Observer & Eccentric told about her plea for the organization.

No more storage space is needed, she added.

"Things have worked out so well that we believe that God has directed this," said Jan Glovak, a Farmington Hills resident and Wheels for the World volunteer.

"I've been to Third World countries and they don't have medical supplies," she said. "A lot of these people have never even seen a wheelchair."

Wheels for the World began in 1992 by Joni Eareckson Tada, a paraplegic who was paralyzed by a diving accident. She launched JAF (Joni and Friends) Wheels for the World, which has placed 6,000 wheelchairs worldwide. Meanwhile, Pitsch's phone rings, sometimes until 11 p.m., with offers of donations. One call came from a Farmington Hills woman who wanted to donate her mother's wheelchair.

"She said she didn't want to just give it to a charity who would put it in a corner collecting dust," Pitsch said.

"A Farmington Hills physician said the hospital he works for is holding three wheelchairs for him," Pitsch said. "He also said he posted the article in his waiting room so his patients will be aware of the need."

And a Canton man called to donate a wheelchair he found in a ditch near Smith's Creek, Mich. He tried to track down the owner, but it hadn't been reported lost or stolen. After reading about Wheels for the World, the man said, he finally discovered a way to put it to good use.

"Wheels for the World stresses the need for good quality wheelchairs," Pitsch said. "These chairs are going to Third World countries that have no means to maintain them. People who receive a donated chair will be using it for a lifetime."

Donations for shipping costs are also needed. Make checks payable to JAF Ministries Wheels for the World, in care of Dorothy Pitsch, 37283 Fox Glen, Farmington Hills, 48331. Pitsch will send the money to the JAF headquarters in California.

"We're hoping to separate money for southeastern Michigan so that it can go to shipping of these wheelchairs," Glovak said.

Anyone interested in donating wheelchairs, crutches or walkers should call Shurgard Storage in Livonia at (734) 522-7811; in Rochester/Utica at (810) 254-0740; in Southfield at (248) 357-1137; in Troy/Oakland Mall at (248) 588-0742; in Plymouth at (734) 459-2200; and in Walled Lake at (248) 669-4020.

Classic Storage in Detroit can be reached at (313) 842-6449. Those people interested in tax receipts should include their names and addresses taped to the wheelchair.

For more information, Pitsch can be reached at (248) 661-3317 and Glovak at (248) 661-0964.

Road construction

Come hear what's in store for I-275

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK

kabracyk@oe.homecomm.net

Area motorists will be dealing with the headaches of construction cones and traffic detours this spring as work crews begin resurfacing I-275 between M-14 and I-696 in April.

Livonia city officials have examined construction plans for the seven miles of freeway proposed by the Michigan Department of Transportation, and area residents can do the same at a meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 18 with MDOT and Livonia City Council in the Livonia Civic Center auditorium, 33000 Civic Center Drive, near Five Mile and Farmington roads.

The construction will inconvenience the more than 190,000 motorists who drive that section of I-275 each day and residents in nearby communities such as Plymouth, Northville and Farmington Hills, but at least they won't deal with the project over a two-year period, as was originally planned.

"They are accelerating the timeline from two years to one year," said Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey.

MDOT has hired contractor John Carlo to resurface a seven-mile stretch of freeway, Kirksey said. Bridge decks over the freeway will be repaired on 6, 7 and 8 Mile roads, as will entrance and exit ramps from those roads, Kirksey said.

"Haggerty and Newburgh will be more heavily traveled as they will be alternate routes," Kirksey said. Because contractors will be working an accelerated schedule, work crews will be working at night, which could be a concern to nearby residents depending on the hours.

"I'm sure there will be some potential for aggravation," Kirksey said.

Livonia City Engineer Bob Schron said freeway "intersections" — or entrance and exit ramps — will be closed for 6

Mile, 7 Mile and 8 Mile roads, one intersection area at a time.

Construction season generally lasts from April through November. MDOT officials were working on the final details of the construction this week.

This construction phase comes on the heels of the two-year resurfacing project of I-275 between I-96 and I-75 in Wayne and Monroe counties, completed last year. When the work is finished, I-275 will have been resurfaced for its entire length.

"The meeting will give the people the best possible information of what this project is all about," said Jack Engbretson, Livonia's city council president. Residents can raise their concerns, and the state can address them during the meeting, Engbretson said.

"We had similar discussions with residents and businesses during the Seven Mile project," Engbretson said. "As a result of this, disruption was minimized."

Construction site
I-275 will be under construction from April through November 1999 in Farmington Hills and the M-14/I-696 interchange in Livonia.

New equipment will help county tackle big snow

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

In an effort to improve snow removal operations, Wayne County has purchased a $90,000 Oshkosh SnoGo from Houghton County, which removes heavy snow.

The new machine can move 2,000 tons of snow an hour and blow snow up to 100 feet. Wayne County is the only road agency in southeast Michigan with the equipment.

In addition to the new equipment, county officials are meetings with local officials to discuss ways in which the county can work with local municipalities to improve service.

County representatives met Wednesday with local officials in District No. 2, which includes Livonia, Northville, Plymouth and Redford. Garden City, Westland and Canton belong to District No. 3, which will meet on Wednesday, Feb. 17, with Wayne County.

Cameron Priebe, Wayne County's director of public services and assistant county executive, and Robert Mahoney, director of the Wayne County division of roads, are seeking feedback, explaining county priorities and looking for ways to provide more consistent service.

The county wants to promote direct communication between local officials and county district yards. Wayne County will add "call out only" phones in yards to free up other phone lines.

Wayne County road officials admit they could have handled certain aspects of the snow removal in western Wayne County differently in the Jan. 2 snowstorm.

But they also defended their overall job performance in battling a snowstorm that dropped 10 inches on Jan. 2, followed the next day by wind gusts of 40 mph which re-covered plowed and salted roads, then temperatures that fell in the teens and single digits, rendering salt (which crews nearly ran out of) useless.

Goodbye snow: The Oshkosh SnowGo can move 2,000 tons of snow per hour. County officials say it will be particularly helpful in clearing snow from urban freeways.

District supervisors decided to pair trucks to work together, first on the freeways, since those roads have the most traffic. That priority change caused delays in plowing some of the county's primary roads.

"What put us back was the continuing snow," said Priebe.

"We'd get 2 inches of snow, then we would put (road crews) back on the primary roads again. We had temperatures extremely low. We worked 130 truck operators, but I don't have 130 operators to replace them."

Crews are pulled together, then they work together on other roads, as part of snow removal procedures during heavy snowfalls, said Mahoney. That meant trucks were pulled off Michigan Avenue in Canton for 22 hours.

For District No. 3, which included Canton, that meant the snow remained on the roads.

"In District 3, we didn't do as well as we should have," Priebe said. "There were areas we should have gotten to that we didn't."

Usually the county's 725 miles of primary roads, state trunklines and freeways are the first priority. "Where the system crumbled, we pulled them off one route and put them on a different route," Mahoney said.

But Mahoney and Priebe also point to statistics that show that less than 1 percent of the Detroit-area snowfalls over the past 26 years have exceeded 9 inches over the past 26 years, based on an average of 35 snow events a year.

Mahoney said: "We're set up to melt snow. Most of the other counties were in the same shape."

The county nearly ran out of salt in the Phoenix yard in Northville Township, so salt was brought from the New Boston yard.

"Morton Salt even delivered from Canada, which I have never heard of them doing before," Mahoney said.

County commissioners approved a salt contract with Morton Salt in November, but the salt isn't stockpiled for the contract's entire amount. Instead it is delivered on an "as-needed" basis. The salt must be delivered within five days of the order or the firm is penalized 20 cents per ton on the price of salt.

"Of course, I'd rather have the salt," Priebe said of the penalty.

Mahoney and Priebe say the county roads division cannot afford to spend more on snow removal. To clear county roads within 18 hours after a similar snowstorm, they estimated Wayne County would need 115 trucks with plows, front-end loaders and graders and 115 employees to operate them at a cost of nearly $17.5 million. That cost does not include cost of garages, mechanics salaries or driver overtime.

"The reality is we couldn't afford it and we couldn't realistically use them for the rest of the year," Priebe said.

If the $6 million winter maintenance budget were increased, it would mean adjustments in the $100 million road budget. That would mean less money for pothole patching, pavement repairs and traffic signals and other maintenance items in that $46 million budget, or less than the current $34 million construction budget, federal aid projects where the money cannot be used for snow removal or maintenance.

"Every (budget) area is a priority," said John Roach, public information manager for the Department of Public Services. "It's a tricky thing to juggle them within a budget."

Affordable training helps firms meet quality standards

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

For area automotive manufacturing suppliers, meeting the stringent ISO/QS 9000 requirements imposed by major auto companies has been like swallowing a hefty dose of cough medicine: sometimes difficult, but good for what ails you.

The suppliers hold no grudges against Ford Motor Co.; General Motors Corp. or DaimlerChrysler, who began doling out prescriptions for uniform quality control over three years ago; however, they're wary of training experts who often present them with exorbitant bids.

ISO/QS 9000 certification demonstrates a supplier's capability to control the processes that determine the acceptability of the product or service being supplied. The ISO quality standards, which were adopted by the International Organization for Standardization in 1987, consist of 20 elements, including: management responsibility, design control, inspection and testing, internal quality audits, and training.

QS 9000 quality standards represent additional elements unique to Ford, GM and DaimlerChrysler.

In many cases, acquiring ISO/QS 9000 certification is a hostage situation. "You're getting the message from your customers that you have to be ISO. These companies can charge you whatever they want because you have to be certified to remain in business," said Claudia Mora, logistics manager for Rassini International Inc., which has administrative offices in Plymouth.

Karen Davis, president of Rich Davis Enterprises, a Dearborn-based transportation company, hauls steel for companies like Steel Technologies in Canton and Hyform Products in Livonia. She took over the helm a year ago after her husband died.

Davis already was practicing several ISO procedures when Ford said her company must be ISO certified by December 1999. She contacted several training companies.

"I was in tears," she said about the quotes. "This money is not something I can say, 'You can have it.' I'm not that big of a company."

ISO/QS trainer

Todd Shamie, owner of Total Management Services Inc. in Canton and Quality Circle Network & Publication in Livonia, founded TMS in 1989 primarily to provide consultation to companies preparing for ISO 9000 certification. Last year, he developed training software for most any type of organization initiating ISO/QS 9000 and ISO 14000 certification.

Shamie now has 14 administrative staff members. He now provides a central location for ISO 9000 training and invites companies to participate. Based on 30 people to a class, the cost is approximately $100 a head, instead of $1,800.

Shamie said he isn't out to slay a marketplace Goliath, just cut the giant down to size and make him competitive. "They throw the bids on the table and it's just ridiculous. Where do they come up with $150,000?"

He recently invited several of his clients, including Davis and Mora, to meet and discuss both the benefits of ISO or QS 9000 certification as well as the difficulties of locating cost-effective training.

Davis, who said her company's ISO certification has put her "ahead of other trucking companies," recently received a performance rating of 92.3 percent from one of her customers. She is aiming higher. "Ninety-eight or 99 percent would be OK."

Ticket shock

Shamie said Davis had received training bids as high as $40,000 and $60,000. Through TMS, he accomplished training for $9,700.

Rassini International, a Tier One OEM that produces torsion bars and brake parts among other commodities for the auto industry, has four production factories in Mexico and a shipping warehouse in Eagle Pass, Texas.

Claudia Mora, logistics manager, experienced ticket shock when she shopped for an ISO trainer. "I found another company whose prices were twice as much as Todd's." Shamie charged Rassini $24,000 for "soup-to-nuts" quality control training for two facilities.

Since becoming ISO-certified, the warehouse's performance ratings have increased. Previously, the facility experienced a 10 percent error rate on 80 loads, said Mora.

Lyon Manufacturing, Inc. in Livonia, a Tier One fastening house, has a long track record with the auto industry. "It's been one quality control program after another," said Jim Lyon, whose grandfather founded the company in 1940. To meet GM and DaimlerChrysler requirements, Lyon instituted his own QS 9000 training in 1994. The process took him 15 months.

Lyon approached Shamie after his company achieved QS 9000 certification and was looking for a way to manage ongoing training.

He said he would have saved money had he initially contacted TMS. "Definitely. Our in-house training costs would have been reduced if we had a resource like TMS to help us with the origination of the program from the beginning."

Shamie is confident his idea of bringing divergent automotive industry suppliers together for common training will meet with success. "I would teach the same internal auditing process to a company that makes fasteners and a company that makes uniforms."

Mora agrees. "If we all come together to share the cost of training, the lower the cost."

S'craft business center helps areas firms get state training grants

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Bruce Sweet, director of Schoolcraft College Business Development Center sympathizes with automotive suppliers faced with the financial costs of becoming ISO/QS 9000 compliant. The Big Three wield a lot of power.

"This is not an easy environment for suppliers to make a buck these days," he said.

Schoolcraft's center helps funnel money from the Economic Development Job Training Program, which is administered by the Michigan Jobs Commission, to qualified employers. The dollars are out there — $30 million was awarded in the 1998-99 grant year, said jobs commission spokeswoman Susan Shafer — but the application process is competitive.

Twenty-six community colleges throughout the state received grant money for the 1998-99 grant year. Of the 21 businesses that applied through the Schoolcraft's center last October, 11 were awarded grants totaling almost $1.1 million.

Generating new jobs is not the only deciding factor in awarding EDJT grants, said Sweet. The state also allows better operations as an outcome, and ISO/QS 9000 training falls under this category. However, Sweet said the state encourages hiring displaced workers, the unemployed and the low-income.

State law requires that no EDJT funds be awarded directly to businesses. Business development centers, like Schoolcraft's, earmark and manage funds for grant recipients.

Sweet said the purpose of the Michigan Jobs Commission is to let companies know funds are available. He added that it is difficult for business development centers to get the word out about

EDJT dollars. "People in the manufacturing business are so busy."

Shafer said the jobs commission has area representatives assigned to inform businesses about funding, but funds are limited and dependent on legislative appropriations.

Job training

The Economic Development Job Training Program, initially under the auspices of the Department of Education, began in 1993 with $40 million. In 1997-98, appropriations totaled $31 million. By 1998-99, program funds "dwindled" to $30 million, said Shafer.

Despite its competitive grant-application process, the program does benefit companies that potentially incur the most financial hardship in instituting quality control programs like ISO and QS 9000: Small businesses with 500 or less employees.

According to data supplied by Shafer, 72 percent of grants went to small businesses in 1995-96; 64 percent in 1996-97; and 73 percent in 1997-98. No figures are available yet for 1998-99.

The following area companies received EDJT grants through Schoolcraft Business Development Center for 1998-99:

Ace Controls, Inc. of Farmington, $70,248; Canadian Machinery Movers of Livonia, Mortz Bros. Corp. of Farmington Hills, and Shaw Electric Co. of Livonia, all three part of a 12-member construction consortium sharing $239,415; E & E Manufacturing of Plymouth, $52,227; General Fasteners Company of Livonia/Kalamazoo, $106,674; Hella North America of Plymouth, $20,919; Link Engineering Co. of Plymouth, $69,362; and LucasVarity of Livonia, $152,226.

In addition to EDJT grants, Shafer said $30 million in Michigan Technology Education Center grants were awarded to eight of 26 state community colleges, including Henry Ford Community College and Oakland Community College. Schoolcraft College applied but did not receive a grant.

Shafer also said state-level help for job training may soon be available through the Michigan Virtual University (formerly Michigan Virtual Automotive College.) The university will offer courses over the Internet.

"Hopefully, things like that may drive the cost down," said Shafer.

Opportunity

Time to study rec center idea

The exorbitant cost of the land the city was eyeing for a proposed recreation center has put the project on hold – and that may be for the best for now.

Last year, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas proposed building a new state-of-the-art recreation complex to take the place of the city's current recreation center, the Bailey Center. He wants to use money gleaned from a special taxing district to build the center without raising tax bills.

The city has been looking at land near the library, north of Ford Road near Central City Parkway, for the rec complex, but the owner of the property is asking more than the city is willing to pay – a glitch which put the project on hold last week.

However, we think the city should take this opportunity to step back and take a closer look at the whole plan.

While a recently released survey says that a majority of Westland residents support a new recreation center, the survey's tone has been questioned. Some have said the survey's questions were worded in such a way as to elicit a positive response.

The survey also said that many people would be willing to pay to use a new recreation facility. But we're wondering if that will hold true if the center ends up needing more taxpayer support to stay open.

How many people would like to pay a user fee to use the center on top of potentially having part of their tax bill go to keep the center open? Some officials are saying that won't happen – but never say never – that's always a possibility.

Canton Township's Summit on the Park is often held up as the ideal for Westland, but the Summit includes banquet facilities which would seem to add to its money-making potential.

Meanwhile, Westland faces much opposition to the idea of including banquet facilities that would compete with at least three local banquet facilities.

Since the new recreation center has been put on hold, Thomas has suggested that renovating or replacing the Bailey Center on its current site could be one option.

Maybe that needs another look. But, meanwhile, the survey cited a number of problems with the Bailey Center, which seemed to include safety issues such as smoke detectors.

If that is the case, why haven't those issues been looked at before now? For our own piece of mind, we hope the Bailey Center's deficiencies have been exaggerated to convince people of the need for a new center, rather than raising the issue of the city ignoring real safety issues.

Of course, all of this comes down to money. If building a new center on the Bailey site – or near it – isn't affordable because it's outside of the special taxing district, then maybe there are other ways the city can upgrade its recreation services.

There are always ideas out there. Here's a chance to rethink things and make sure they're the best plans for the city. We think this setback can only help the city in getting the most for its money.

MEAP plan deserves praise

Suburban school people – which includes parents as well as teachers and principals – should be praising Gov. John Engler's proposed Michigan Merit Award plan, announced Jan. 28 in his State of the State address.

John Engler

Eleventh-graders who pass their state MEAP proficiency exams would receive $2,500 apiece for study at their Michigan college of choice. Seventh- and eighth-graders who pass their MEAP exams would get $500 apiece – a total of $3,000 to help defray the rising cost of higher education.

Too many kids have been skipping the rigorous exams in reading, writing, math and science. Too many parents have been spoiling their kids by letting them skip the exams. Under Engler's plan, kids still could skip the tests, but it could cost them $3,000 in college money. Not many parents, however wealthy, will let a kid toss away a sure $3,000.

The MEAP exams are designed to test thinking and problem-solving skills, not just rote memory. They test the kinds of skills industry needs in a global economy. Indeed, it was industrial human resources people who prodded the state, during Gov. James Blanchard's years, to go this route.

And the merit awards have drawn praise from the Democratic side of the aisle. Democrats liken it to President Clinton's "Hope" scholarships. It's heartwarming to see the two parties close to agreement on the use of monetary carrots to improve test scores. And it's good that Engler recommended using tobacco industry settlement money to set up a trust fund whose earnings would support the program.

We raise, however, two caveats about Engler's merit award.

■ Kids attending private, parochial or "home" schools would be eligible to take the MEAP tests and win the awards. That's fine. But would nonpublic schools be willing to publish their test results by submitting them to the state Department of Education? Nonpublic schools have an unfortunate habit of being tight-lipped about their test scores. They should be required to break that bad habit.

■ Engler said the scholarship money could be spent "at a Michigan school of your choice," not at a state university or community college. There's no need for the state to subsidize private universities, colleges or trade schools, directly or indirectly.

Engler's MEAP scholarship plan rewards hard work. His plan deserves careful consideration. It's good for education and good for Michigan.

Neighborhood hero

Sometimes, a dog running loose can be a predator. This is one reason why we have the dogcatcher. But, sensitivity training may be in line for dogcatchers whose dealings are primarily with dogs. "Old Fido" may get better treatment when he's picked up. But what about the frustrated dogcatcher whose near misses have him down and out as he bears the constant badgering from angry neighborhood residents? After all, he wants respect.

My experience deals directly with our dogcatcher. He is hopeful he will one day catch my dog, "Chico." Chico is a squirmy, dodging, fast little dog that has eluded capture for two years. My poor dogcatcher! Break after break he's given me concerning my masterful escape artist. Like him, I am too frustrated and can lose a clear train of thought.

Then the day arrives, the dogcatcher confronts the frustrated dog owner. Has Chico misbehaved all week? Has the dogcatcher succeeded in his weekly commitments?

Today the heads butted, with my not being sensitive to his endless run-ins with Chico, and he wondering why I'm screaming at him has conjured unlawful conduct on my part.

There's something to learn here, responsibility lies on behalf of the dog owner. No matter how miserable old Fido is making you, remember someone else has to worry whether or not your loose dog is a predator. Our community and most importantly our children depend on this responsibility and when it's neglected the dogcatcher comes to the rescue. He is a community hero.

Learn about Jaycees

I am the community development vice president for the Westland Jaycees. The Westland Jaycees is a leadership training organization for people ages 21 to 39. Much of the leadership training we provide is accomplished through planning and participation in community service and fund-raising activities.

Every year, we run projects such as our Easter egg hunt, Muscular Dystrophy Association softball and bowling and back-to-school shopping, which provides school clothes to children from a local abuse shelter. Other projects we run are holiday food baskets and adopt-a-family which provides food, clothes and toys to underprivileged Westland children at Christmas time. The Westland Jaycees run more than 60 great projects a year so you can see the projects listed are just a handful.

The Westland Jaycees conduct meetings on the first Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Bova VFW hall at 6440 Hix in Westland. The hall is on Hix just south of Warren Road. If you would like any information on our organization, please feel free to attend one of our meetings or call our Westland Jaycee hotline at (734) 480-4984.

20th century food

The American fast-food diet is killing us. It's larded with fat and laced with unhealthy amounts of salt and processed sugar. But, how did we get into this mess? Consider:

Back in the 1890s, our Victorian ancestors were nervous. And, they had a lot to be nervous about. Industrialization and urbanization were turning us from an agrarian nation of farmers into an industrial nation of factory workers.

Farm families knew, more or less, where their next meal was coming from. It was going to come from their field, barn yard or garden. But, urban factory workers weren't so lucky.

Urban dwellers had to buy their food. The meat was sometimes bad, and the old cracker barrel often had a surprise at the bottom – a family of mice.

Demand for sanitary, ready-to-eat food grew apace. New companies sprang up promoting the sanitary, health-giving qualities of their products.

Nabisco in Chicago and Kellogg and Post in Battle Creek all began as "health food" companies. And, Coca-Cola and Dr Pepper were originally sold in drugstores as nerve tonics along with a drink called Moxie Nerve Food. Eventually, drugstores began dispensing these nerve tonics and elixirs to their customers by the glass – and the drugstore soda fountain was born.

It would be nice if our major junk food companies and franchise restaurants would remember the health food origins from which they sprang. Furthermore, the public should demand that they be held accountable just like tobacco companies.

After all, our grandparents did manage to get the mice out of the cracker barrel.

POINTS OF VIEW

Haunting Holocaust question: Could it happen here?

Could it happen here?

That was one of many questions raised during our Contemporary Books discussion late last month in the Plymouth District Library. We read Ursula Hegi's "Stones From the River," an account of a dwarf in Germany and her town before, during and immediately after World War II.

We like to think an Adolf Hitler and the Nazis couldn't possibly come to power in our United States. One man at the discussion raised the issue of our government's abominable treatment of Japanese-Americans during World War II. Many were placed in camps on the West Coast, their homes and businesses taken from them.

That's deplorable, but still doesn't seem to compare with the actions of Nazis in systematically killing millions of Jews and others during their era in power. Of course, our government's bombings at Hiroshima and Nagasaki still generate controversy more than 60 years later.

The book we read for the library discussion, written by a woman raised in Germany and now living in the U.S., raises the question of just how such an atrocity as the Holocaust could happen. We discussed the views of "revisionist" historians in Germany, who seek to rewrite the story of their country's genocide.

I'd like to think Americans are more independent, not necessarily better, but less given to group-think.

JULIE BROWN

Our group members also wondered aloud what, if anything, we would have done to help Jews and others.

Still, I know many of us enjoy our creature comforts, and I wonder how we would react if we thought our way of life was threatened.

Our group members also wondered aloud what, if anything, we would have done to help Jews and others if we had lived in the Europe of the Nazi regime. It's tough to know how we'd react, without living through that era. I like to think I would have helped, but confess it would have worried me to place my family in danger.

What can we do to help here and now? The celebrations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s life were encouraging; it was good to see so many, black and white, remember King's message of peace and equality. Surely, we can all strive to treat each other well, to obey the Golden Rule: Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Originally, I hadn't wanted to read Ursula Hegi's book. I didn't really care for the idea of reading about Nazis during the Christmas season. I'm glad I did pick up, and finish, the lengthy book. I learned about evil, about how evil men can come to power, and maybe even a little about how to overcome that evil.

All in all, a pretty good trade-off.

Federalist Society makes its presence known on state courts

There's a new and potent force in Michigan's judiciary - the Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies. Its name almost never appears in the popular press. So what is it?

I first heard about the Federalist Society while interviewing Supreme Court Justice Clifford Taylor. Since then, I've learned that Justices Maura Corrigan, Robert Young and Chief Justice Elizabeth Weaver are members. So are most of Gov. John Engler's appointees to the Court of Appeals and Wayne County bench. Man, that's clout.

Federalist Society chapters, I find from the Web sites, are organized at law schools, including the University of Michigan's and Harvard's. FS calls itself "conservative and libertarian." I have some doubts about "conservative."

Central thesis is that judges too often make the law, intruding upon the policy-making powers of legislative bodies. The FS's mantra is from No. 78 of The Federalist Papers by Alexander Hamilton: "The Courts must declare the sense of the law; and if they should be disposed to exercise WILL instead of JUDGMENT, the consequences would be the substitution of their pleasure for that of the legislative body."

FS bypasses another Hamilton quote from No. 78: "No legislative act, therefore, contrary to the Constitution, can be valid."

High guru appears to be U.S. Justice Antonin Scalia, whose name will forever stick in my mind because he voted to uphold a Texas law requiring the teaching of fundamentalist creationism on a par with evolution. Allowing a legislature to ram religion into a science class is hardly "conservative."

The Chicago-Kent College of Law chapter says: "Law schools and the legal profession are currently strongly dominated by a form of orthodox liberal ideology which advocates a centralized and uniform society ... by and large they are taught simultaneously with (and indeed as if they were) the law."

The U-M chapter has sponsored

debates on the death penalty, civil rights law, affirmative action and other legal topics.

It's commonplace to say the Michigan Supreme Court is 5-2 Republican after the 1998 election and the resignation of one Democrat. Actually, the lineup is four FS, one Republican (James Brickley) and two Democrats (Marilyn Kelly and Michael Cavanagh).

The new court could affect your life. In 1998 the high court decided 4-3 that an Adrian teacher should get an extra year of seniority for the time she drew worker's compensation pay after breaking a leg. State law says seniority accumulates for longevity pay, overtime, vacation, holidays, and sick leave - but never mentions worker's comp.

Kelly's ruling took what she called an "expansive" view and said worker's comp is the same as sick pay.

Taylor, my FS contact, practically blew his stack in his dissent: "The Legislature comprehensively defined the scope of what is, and what is not, compensation. We do not have the authority to expand, or contract, its definitions." He branded it judge-made law.

A 1999 court would have ruled against the teacher.

In the 1998 Jackson landlord case, Kelly wrote a 4-2 opinion saying two unmarried couples' civil rights were violated when they were refused an apartment. The landlord cited an 1846 law making it a misdemeanor for an unwed couple "who shall lewdly and lasciviously associate and cohabit..." Kelly sniffed that the law was "antiquated and rarely enforced."

Dissenting, Justice Patricia Boyle, joined by FS member Weaver, said the Legislature never repealed the 1846 law, and the fact it has not been successfully prosecuted doesn't make it void.

As a Court of Appeals judge, Taylor had ruled for the landlord. I'm impressed by Taylor's analysis - in these two cases. But when FS members like Scalia blister "judge-made law," I have to ask:

Wasn't the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 decision against school segregation judge-made law?

Wasn't the Miranda case on use of confessions judge-made law?

Wasn't the Gideon case, in which the court said Florida had to provide an indigent an attorney when he faced a prison term, judge-made law?

Judge-made law may be bad, but it's not all bad.

GOP leads way in job training

There's nothing like a good detailed discussion of workforce training, administered through regional workforce boards, mixed in with a little school to work transition policy to glaze over the eyes of even the most dedicated policy wonk.

That's too bad.

The current shortage of qualified workers is already viewed by business folks as Michigan's biggest economic problem. Employers can't find qualified, skilled workers. And when they do, they're likely to be stolen away by another company in short order. As anybody reading the signs in the McDonald's store knows, unskilled hamburger flippers now get upwards of $9 per hour.

It's going to get worse.

Don Grimes, an economist who studies the workings of the Michigan economy at the University of Michigan, says job growth "essentially comes to a halt" in 2010, when the baby boomers start retiring. Problem is that there simply aren't enough members of the "baby bust" generation to replace the boomers. "I think people have to look in terms of long-term labor shortages," says Grimes.

Maybe that's why a passage in Gov. Engler's State of the State speech received such underwhelming attention from the news media. Engler proposes to split the Michigan Jobs Commission in two: the Department of Career Development, a new cabinet-level department devoted to workforce issues and the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, a semipublic economic development corporation. Most reporters yawned when the Career Development department came up.

I didn't. I served as the chair of the Michigan Job Training Coordinating Commission while Jim Blanchard was governor, at one point gaining the dubious distinction of being the nation's longest-serving job training commissioner, so I've got some background to understand what Engler has in mind.

According to Doug Rothwell, the able and energetic guy who's been running the Jobs Commission for the last six years and who is the architect of the proposal, the basic idea is to shift the focus from job training and job placement to long-term career development. By developing a set of skills that are marketable and transferable from job to job, a worker can forge an entire career rather than simply taking a job.

Over the past 25 years, thinking about the labor force has changed dramatically. Policymakers used to worry about how to get poor and unskilled people into government-subsidized dead-end jobs. They now talk about lifelong learning as an essential skill that enables workers to design careers that take them from the time they leave school to retirement.

According to Rothwell, the Jobs Commission had become so big and complicated it risked losing tight focus on its two distinct missions: worker careers and economic development. A new Department of Career Development will be able to focus coherently on that one topic.

The new department will work closely with "one stop" regional workforce boards that are designed to consolidate countless bureaucratic worker training programs and bring local employers to the table. The department will also try to exploit the potential of the Michigan Virtual University by delivering training through the Internet and other high tech devices.

All in all, Rothwell and Engler deserve lots of credit for figuring out a way to reorganize a spreading bureaucracy so as to focus sharply on what needs to be done to help Michigan workers gain careers and Michigan employers to find qualified workers.

Despite sad bureaucratic history, I hope the reorganization works. After all, history will show that during the Engler administration, worker training was originally in the Department of Education, then was moved to the Department of Labor. Then Engler shut down the Labor department and shifted worker training to the Jobs Commission. Now it goes to yet another state department.

But I quibble.

For full-blown assignment of discredit, look to Michigan's Democrats, ostensibly the party concerned with working folks, who have largely ignored job training and career development. Once again, Engler and his folks have beaten them to the punch.

Parents do have influence over children

"Mrs. Simmons asked her 14-year-old daughter, Linda, to wash a few dishes. Linda muttered in a nasty tone that she'd do it later. Earlier, she had slipped home after staying out all night without permission.

"Mrs. Simmons was sick of fearing that any time she asked her daughter to do anything, she would be met with defiance and subjected to a barrage of curses and threats.

"Linda had expected everything to be on her terms both at home and at school. At school, she had vandalized property, verbally abused teachers, and recognized no obligation to anyone. When she was accused of wrongdoing, she'd complain about others creating problems."

This true story was taken from Stanton Samenow's book, "Before It's Too Late." Was this child a product of poor parenting or a neurological anomaly?

If you were to read Judith Harris' best seller titled, "The Nurture Assumption: Why Children Turn Out the Way They Do: Parents Matter Less Than You Think and Peers Matter More," you would believe that par-

Club gathers sweats for First Step

"Adding salt to the wounds of rape survivors, police confiscate the victims' clothing upon admission to a hospital. Many of the survivors are discharged wearing nothing but a hospital gown."

After hearing that, Mark Ott and the rest of the Plymouth-Canton Kiwanis Breakfast Club set out on a mission last year to collect sweat suits for First Step in Plymouth so that rape survivors wouldn't have to wear paper gowns again.

"About a year ago, Judy Ellis (First Step's executive director) came to our club and did a presentation about First Step," said Ott, a Canton resident and vice president of the club. "After that, we tried to look for something as a group that would make an impact and help them out a little bit. When we heard how the sweat suits are used, it struck a nerve with everybody."

After a successful collection last year, the Plymouth-Canton Kiwanis Breakfast Club is doing it again throughout February.

The sweat suits will be donated to First Step which will in turn give them to volunteers to keep in their cars.

"The volunteers grab them and take them with them to the hospital," Ott said. "That's why they have to be new. It's not a used clothing drive."

The club is looking for sweat suits for men, women and children in all sizes.

"What will happen is if a woman is taken to the hospital she could have her children with her, or it could be an assault on a young child. That could happen just as easily," Ott said.

Eight locations throughout Plymouth and Canton are collecting the sweat suits:

- The Canton Public Library, 1200 S. Canton Center Road, Canton.
- Papa Romano's Pizza, 555 W. Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth.
- Dunkin' Donuts/Amoco, 39600 E.

Yum, yum: Give 3-year-old Taylor Kaye a choice of cookies and she goes right for the peanut butter cookies, one of the eight types of cookies Scouts of the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council are selling through March 28.

Scouts ready to sell cookies

Have a craving for a Samoa, Thin Mint or Do-Si-Do? How about licking the peanut butter off a Tagalog?

If you've got that craving, the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council has the answer - the 1999 Girl Scout cookie sale.

Girl Scouts throughout Wayne and Oakland counties are taking orders for eight varieties of cookies now through March 28.

And booth sales at area banks, grocery stores and other locations throughout most of Wayne and Oakland counties will take place Feb. 27 through March 28.

Little Brownie Bakers of Louisville, Ky., have come up with the eight selections this year. Favorites like Samoas, Thin Mints, Trefoils, Tagalongs and Do-Si-Dos are back along with new additions - a reduced fat Apple Cinnamon cookie, sugar-free Lemon Drop and chocolate chip.

The cookies cost $3 per box. They can be ordered from area scouts, or on the council's Web site, <http://www.mmgscc.org>.

For help locating a cookie booth in the service area, call the Cookie Hotline at (313) 964-4475, Ext. 297, or (800) 326-0309, Ext. 297.

Convenient packaging is offered for orders placed on the Web site, using Visa or MasterCard. Cookies are available by the case - four boxes per case, and the price per case is $16, including shipping and handling.

Available now are the Chocolate Lover's Case (two boxes of Thin Mints, one box of Samoas and one box of Tagalongs), Dieter's DeLite Case (two boxes of Trefoils and two boxes of reduced fat Apple Cinnamon) and the Traditionalist's Case (one box of Thin Mints, one box of Trefoils, one box of Do-Si-Dos and one box of Samoas.)

A Custom Case (choose any four of varieties to make up your case) will be available after March 1.

Proceeds benefit a variety of programs for 41,000 girls in Wayne and Oakland counties.

The cookie sale keeps Girl Scouting affordable for girls and volunteers and subsidizes nearly all local Girl Scout activities.

The sale's proceeds account for about half of a council's operating budget. The money raised helps in maintaining scout camps and other program sites, providing professional training to Girl Scout troop leaders and funding membership extension efforts that enable the council to reach girls from societal groups that are underserved.

The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council has completed the first portion of its cookie sale and will tackle booth sales Feb. 13-March 12.

This year's varieties include Thin Mint, Caramel

Oakwood & You

When it comes to commitment, think like the Tortoise

Are you ready to set aside blame, excuses, rationalizations and fear? Are you ready to welcome a real and sincere connection into your life? Need some solid relationship advice this Valentine's Day?

According to Steven Carter, who, with Julia Sokol, authored a book on the fear of commitment, "Men Who Can't Love," people need to think like a tortoise, not like a hare.

"Valentine's Day will always bring an extra helping of romantic emotions, emotional vulnerability and relationship pressure," said Carter, whose latest book is "Getting to Commitment: Overcoming the 8 Greatest Obstacles to Lasting Connection" (M. Evans & Co.), also with Sokol.

"We can't change that, but we can change how we handle ourselves and our partners when the pressure is on. In matters of the heart, slow but steady wins the race," he said.

Carter has spent more than a decade observing relationship patterns and behaviors during Cupid's holiday and uses the children's fable of "The Tortoise and the Hare" to fashion some solid grown-up advice:

Not Smart: The Hare gets lost in a whirlwind of her own Valentine's Day fantasies.

Smart: The slower Tortoise keeps at least one foot firmly attached to the floor - even on Valentine's Day.

Not Smart: The Hare is anxious to "close the deal" in time for Valentine's Day and may issue unreasonable ultimatums.

Smart: The slower Tortoise knows that pushing for more on Valentine's Day pushes most men away.

Not Smart: The Hare is quick to blame her partner for Valentine's Day disappointments.

Smart: The slower Tortoise takes responsibility for the role she plays in any Valentine's Day drama.

Not Smart: The Hare is quick to judge potential Valentines and uses stereotypes and labels.

Smart: The slower Tortoise takes the time to experience every man as an individual.

Not Smart: The Hare abandons self-protective instincts, chasing a Valentine's Day love.

Smart: The slower Tortoise knows that she must take good care of her own heart in order to find a loving partner.

Not Smart: The Hare gets upset if she hasn't found the perfect Valentine partner this year.

Smart: The slower Tortoise focuses on all of the love she does have right now and knows that her patience will bring her to a loving partner.

Carter and Sokol have been writing together about relationship issues since 1986. Their first book, "Men Who Can't Love" (M. Evans & Co.), introduced the term "commitment-phobia" into the American vocabulary. "Getting to Commitment," is the long-awaited follow-up to the relationship classic.

Carter and Sokol are considered to be the leading authorities on the topic of commitment fear. Their books are known for their no-nonsense approach to challenging relationship issues and for their in-depth, honest, personal interviews that shape and support the work.

"People want love and commitment in their lives," Carter said. "This is something I hear every day, even from people with tremendous fear. But everyone is frustrated and confused. The desire is there, but they don't know how to move forward."

"Commitment is not a simple thing. It is challenging, it is hard work, and it can be very frightening."

Commitment is supposed to be a little scary, he said. It is a "huge" life passage where so much is being given up and gained at the very same time. The fear is healthy and normal, but what people do with that fear is the real issue.

According to Carter, it is the "negative stuff" from the past that often stops people from moving forward in the present. Every time they try to connect, all of their history of both successful and failed connections is stirred. It can paralyze them, even if they have no conscious memory of it.

"Commitment is all about connection, making a deep and powerful emotional connection over time with someone you care about," he said. "But so many people struggle with deep connection. They may feel connected by pure attraction, or by having sex, but they don't let themselves get emotionally invested."

"They don't reveal themselves and they don't take risks - not consistently and regularly. This makes it much easier for them to suddenly leave. When you are truly connected it isn't easy to leave."

And, Carter says, people shouldn't give up.

"The fear of commitment doesn't have to be a life sentence unless that is what you want it to be," he said.

Madonna offers gerontology workshop

Interested in cultivating their lives and making their elder years a time of meaning, joy, wisdom and connection to God?

Madonna University will offer a Spiritual Eldering Workshop, "From Age-ing to Sage-ing," 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 23, on campus, Schoolcraft and Levan, Livonia.

The workshop is based on the work of Rabbi Zalman Schachter-Shalomi who developed Spiritual Eldering, a process that can lessen the difficulties of aging, promote intergenerational healing and achieve spiritual empowerment on a personal and communal level.

Participants will gain insight into the role of spirituality in the later years as it relates to life review and life repair, conscious living and dying and leaving a legacy.

They also develop skills for both supporting and facilitating spiritual eldering in older adults.

Madonna faculty members Anita Herman and Paula Cooney will conduct the workshop.

Herman, professor and chair of Madonna's gerontology department, has made numerous presentations on issues related to the aging process.

Cooney, adjunct professor in gerontology, is administrator of Maryhaven, a Ryan Senior Residence in Southgate. She has served as an Immaculate Heart of Mary Provincial, a retreat director and as a team member for senior religious, focusing on spirituality and aging.

The workshop has been approved by the Michigan Nursing Home Administrator's Board for six hours of continuing education credit. The fee is $65 and covers all conference materials, refreshment breaks and lunch.

Space is limited and the deadline for registering is Monday, Feb. 15. To register or for more information, call (734) 432-5532.

enting skills do not make any difference in how your children turn out.

No difference

She says in her book, "Virtually nothing parents do or say - no kind words or hugs, slaps or tirades, neither permissiveness nor authoritarianism, neither encouragement nor scorn - make a smidgen of difference to what kind of adult the child becomes."

Would this suggest that Mrs. Simmons' daughter Linda learned defiant surly behaviors from her peers?

Frank Farely, president of a division of the American Psychological Association, asked: "Consider what might happen if parents believe this stuff. Will it free some parents to mistreat their kids since it doesn't matter? Will it tell parents who are tired after a long day that they needn't bother even paying attention to the kids since 'It doesn't matter?'"

Before you dismiss Harris' book as loony, consider your own children. Look at how kids who come from the same egg and sperm pool can be so different. Have you even met fraternal twins with alike personalities?

Next consider the colicky or sickly baby. Sometimes, they influence parenting styles. After all it's easier to be more loving toward a smiling, snuggling baby.

Finally, your children's friends can have influence over your kids. Depending on your child's confidence, peers can cajole or coerce your child to do any number of things. Teaching them to stand up to strong adversity will help them to be firm about your family's value system.

Preventive strategies

Getting back to the story of Linda Simmons. Stamenow recommends two preventive strategies for parents:

■ If your child begins to exhibit self-serving uncompromising, coercive and deceptive behaviors, don't deny they're going on. Confront them and get help for the child.

He suggests that, "Unfortunately, many parents engage in such strong denial that they do not perceive a need to consult anyone until their youngster is knee-deep in criminal behavior."

■ He recommends being firm and consistent with this kind of child. "These children exploit to the hilt the parent who fails to be firm. From an early age, they perceive leniency as a sign that the parent is weak and exploitable. Even a strong parent's resoluteness gets tested to the limit by these youngsters."

Whether we believe that DNA, peers or parents have the greatest influence over our children, we do have a responsibility to love them, train them and discipline them. It's an awesome task that each of us should take very seriously. After all, they will be our keepers when we are older and less independent.

Kiwanis Breakfast Club collected 75 sweat suits. This year, it is shooting for 100-150 sweat suits. Ellis added that the purchase of the sweat suits is tax-deductible.

"This is the single greatest effort to secure those ongoing needs of the sweat suits," Ellis explained. "People don't realize that if you're a victim of sexual assault or a violent crime, your clothes are confiscated as evidence. When people go to the hospital, they are sent home in a paper gown unless somebody thought to bring them something. This gives them something warm, something comfortable for them to leave in.

"Some groups also put together hygiene kits so that they can clean up and freshen up before they leave the hospital. There isn't funds in the budget to buy things like that. This is something that we really, really appreciate and really, really rely on."

Flower power: Blooms have way of perking up spirits

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER
smason@oe.homecomm.net

When Carolyn Arlen looks at a teapot, she doesn't think of a nice cup of tea. She sees it as a vase, something to display the gentler side of Mother Nature.

"I celebrate all of the seasons," said Arlen. "I always have fresh flowers on my table. They perk up my spirits especially in this weather."

Arlen, owner of Carolyn's Creation: Flowers with a Flair, didn't let fickle January weather dampen her presentation at the first of Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center's three winter luncheons. Instead, she talked about her work and relationship with flowers.

The former Livonia resident has been working with flowers for more than 15 years. Initially, she worked with only silk flowers, but a declining economy 10 years ago led her to accept a request to do a fresh arrangement for a small wedding. Now, almost all of her business is fresh wedding arrangements.

"I relate flowers and nature to the supreme being - God," Arlen said. "Flowers are like the seasons of life. You start with a seed that grows into a plant that goes from a new bloom to full bloom ... and then you have potpourri." Arlen describes her home-based business as a one-man show. She studied at Schoolcraft and jokes that she has her DBA - doing business as. Now based in Northville, she helped decorate the Botsford Inn and the Henry Ford Estate in the early days of her business.

Realism of silks

She is astounded by the realism of today's silk flowers, admitting that she finds herself stopping to sniff and encouraged her audience to pay more money up front for their silks to get better quality.

She also sees silks as a plus with green thumb-challenged individuals.

"They're great for people with brown thumbs who kill everything," Arlen said. "And don't hesitate to throw them out when they're spent; get rid of them. And the same with fresh plants. There's nothing worse than seeing sickly scraggly plants."

"I threaten to put my plants on the patio and they seem to come back."

When it comes to flowers, Arlen works with only the freshest blooms. That means the tightest flower, a choice that's contrary to today's fashionable full bloom look.

"I'd rather be on this side of full bloom than have the flower drop petals," she said. "You can't rush Mother Nature."

The reasons for sending flowers are many - a marriage, birth of a child, death or to say thank you, but wedding arrangements are "very stressful," according to Arlen.

She has learned to be up front with brides, telling them when a flower isn't available because of the season or not with their "beer and champagne budget."

"I showed a bride an orchid and she said, 'No, no, I can't have yellow in my wedding,'" Arlen recalled. "The bride was talking about the yellow in the throat of the orchid. I told her I can't change the way they come from Mother Nature."

Arlen had a few tips for people who love to give and receive roses. When buying fresh roses from a display case, squeeze the flower at its base. If it's firm, the flower is fresh. If it's soft, it doesn't have a long shelf life.

Roses are "heavy water drinkers," and for those that develop bent heads, the cause could be an air bubble in the stem or a rose cut too before it has developed a strong stem.

In the case of an air bubble, Arlen recommends cutting the stem under warm water, then placing the flower in a vase of warm water. It can bring the flower back to life although it doesn't work all of the time, she added.

And while on the subject of roses, Arlen related a bit of Anglo-Saxon folklore.

"If you offer a pregnant woman a lily, the symbol of motherhood, and she chooses the rose, she'll have a girl," she said. "If she chooses the lily, it's a boy."

The luncheon series continues on Friday, Feb. 19, with romance novelist Shelly Thacker as the guest. The author of "Timeless" and "His Forbidden Touch," she'll give luncheon-goers a look into romance writing.

The luncheon is 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the college's Waterman Campus Center, on Haggerty, north of Seven Mile. Seating is limited. Tickets are $14 in advance only and are available by calling the Women's Resource Center at (734) 462-4443.

Area ministers participate in pilgrimage to Holy Land

Two area ministers are among 12 Michigan pastors who are making a religious pilgrimage to the Holy Land, sponsored by the Grand Commandery Knights Templar of Michigan, a Christian order of York Rite of Freemasonry.

The Rev. Charles Wik of Chery Hill United Methodist Church in Canton and the Rev. Chuck Sonquist of St. Matthew's United Methodist Church in Livonia are a part of the group. Both men are sponsored by the Northville Commandery No. 39.

The group left from Detroit Metropolitan Airport on Feb. 2. They will return on Saturday, Feb. 13.

They are following an itinerary specifically design for Christian ministers and visit such biblical sites as the birthplace of Jesus, Mountain of Beatitudes where Jesus gave his Sermon on the Mount, the Garden of Gethsemane and numerous other historical memorials.

"To walk, stand and reflect on the experiences of Jesus and his disciples from a first-person perspective changes everything," said Sonquist.

Sonquist has ministered in Michigan since 1967 when he moved here from Iowa. He served in Royal Oak, Southfield and Troy before becoming pastor of St. Matthew's.

He holds degrees from Cornell University in Iowa, Southern Methodist University and the Ecumenical Theological Seminary in Detroit.

He also has done postgraduate and continuing education programs through the University of Bern, Switzerland, Professional Development Program and Institute of Worshipful Work.

"I foresee this trip to Israel as another amazing opportunity for spiritual growth," said Wik. "And I'm very indebted to the Knights Templar for their generous investment in my future ministry."

Wik grew up in the Detroit area and attended Farmington First United Methodist Church. He did his seminary education at Chandler School of Theology and Emory University in Atlanta.

He graduated from Wayne State University in 1969 with a degree in vocal music education, but his plans to teach high school music were rerouted by two traveling experiences, one with the WBU Men's Glee Club and Chamber Singers trip to Europe and the other with the Methodist Youth Chorale in Great Britain.

"Those tours put me in touch with my Methodist roots and began a period in my life of deep soul searching," he said. "In these struggles, I eventually discerned God's call to ordained ministry."

According to Sir Knight Ronald Bone of the Northville Commandery, "The purpose of the trip is to offer outstanding ministers from various Christian faiths an opportunity for spiritual enrichment and educational experience."

"It's exciting to see the ministers return from the pilgrimage to the Holy Land and share their experiences with their congregations," Bone added.

Sonquist agrees. He is looking forward to the background and living detail the trip will provide for biblical and confirmation classes he will be leading at St. Matthew's and "more firmly rooted illustrations for preaching."

This is the 22nd pilgrimage the Knights Templar has sponsored to the Holy Land.

East Kentwood rules SC tourney

GIRLS VOLLEYBALL

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Five times a bridesmaid at the Schoolcraft College Invitational girls volleyball tournament, East Kentwood finally stepped up to the altar and got the ring Saturday with a 4-15, 15-2, 15-10 victory over Walled Lake Central in the championship final.

Ranked third in Class A, East Kentwood reached the title match with a 15-9, 16-14 victory over defending state champion Temperance Bedford, which had captured the SC title five of the past six years.

The 32-team field featured four of the state's top six ranked teams in Class A. All four advanced to the semifinals at SC.

Shannon Doyle, East Kentwood's only senior, had 11 kills and 12 digs in the final. The outside-hitter, bound for Kent State, was named tournament MVP.

Junior setter Kele Eveland, also named to the All-Tournament squad, racked up 38 assist-to-kills. Front row specialist Susan Poll, a 6-foot-1 middle blocker, led with 12 kills against Central.

"This was the first time we've won it," said East Kentwood coach Roxane Steenhuisen, whose team is 46-13 overall. "It was a fun day. We got on the floor and dug a lot of balls."

"Poll had an outstanding day. She's an emotional leader. She competes hard. She's like the energizer bunny."

While coaching at Grand Rapids South Christian, Steenhuisen also suffered through the frustration of losing 25-23 in a rally-scored third game few years back to Plymouth Salem in an SC elimination match.

That's what made winning Schoolcraft so gratifying.

Salem, meanwhile, reached the semifinals, only to lose to Walled Lake Central for the second time this season, 15-9, 16-14.

"I knew it would be a tight one and we knew it would be a war," Central coach Mike Lindstrom said. "We had the same kind of match in January."

Salem's Angie Sillmon, named to the All-Tourney team along with teammate Amanda Suder, was on target most of the day with a total of 54 kills.

"We had trouble stopping her," Lindstrom said. "But we had a good idea on how to play them."

Dearborn drops Glenn in cage shootout, 90-80

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Perhaps it was a prelude to the Daytona 500. Or maybe was it a warmup for the track season.

Zippering up and down the floor with reckless abandon, Dearborn High emerged with a 90-80 non-league boys basketball victory Tuesday at Westland John Glenn.

That's right, 170 points generated by the two teams.

The difference? Dearborn made more free throws (22 of 30) and executed better than Glenn in the decisive fourth quarter. The Pioneers, now 13-2 overall, committed just three turnovers in each half.

Glenn's demise was foul shooting (nine of 19) to go along with 15 turnovers.

The Rockets shot well enough from the floor — 33 of 57 for 57.8 percent — to win the game.

But did anybody mention defense yet?

"We like to run like they do," Dearborn coach Dave Mifsud said. "And their guards are every bit as quick. They're athletic and really talented."

Mifsud pulled his team out of full-court press midway through the third quarter to tone down the speed of the game.

"We went a little too long with our press and too many bad things were happening," Mifsud said. "We slowed them down and were able to get better shots. Then our scoring picked up."

Dearborn jumped out to a 25-20 first-quarter lead, but Glenn answered with a 22-14 second-period run to lead 42-39 at halftime.

The Rockets led by seven points on two different occasions in third quarter.

But the Pioneers trailed by only one,

62-61, at the end of three quarters thanks to a triple by Colin O'Donnell.

The Dearborn guard then trilled a pair of 'threes' to start the fourth period and the Pioneers would never look back.

Glenn trailed by just three, 77-74, with 1:42 left on a basket by Ty Haygood, but Dearborn answered by making 10 of 12 free throws down the stretch and capped by an O'Donnell three-pointer at the buzzer.

Senior guard Colin Wilkinson led the Pioneers with 23 points, while running mate C.J. Kreger, who plays point-guard, added a career-high 19. O'Donnell had 17 and Ryan Golem netted 10.

"Colin (O'Donnell) is shooting close to 50 percent from the three-point line and if he gets the opportunity, he'll score," Mifsud said. "He gave us a lift tonight and a ton of momentum."

"And C.J. played well offensively. If you guard him too tight, he'll go by you. He usually gets his 12 to 13 points, but tonight he picked it up for us."

Glenn, which dropped to 8-5 overall, had four of its five starters score in double figures led by junior guard Eric Jones' 21.

Stephen Woods added 15, while Haygood and Bill Foder chipped in with 13 and 12, respectively. Point-guard Reggie Spearman had nine.

"We hustled with them and I thought we handled their pressure, if only we had made those lousy free throws, many of them front ends of one-and-ones," Glenn coach Mike Schuette said.

But it was the guard play of Kreger, Wilkinson and O'Donnell that tipped the scales in Dearborn's favor.

"Kreger protected the ball real nice and number 12 (O'Donnell) came out in the second half and hit two big 'threes,'" Schuette said. "They hit their shots. They have three or four guys who can really put the ball in the basket."

MEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

OCC stuns S'craft, 117-97

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

Bigby's back. Unfortunately for Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team, it made no difference.

At least not in Monday's game against visiting Oakland Community College. After winning 16-straight games and their first six encounters in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference, the Ocelots have lost three times in five games.

Lamar Bigby, SC's leading scorer at 16 points a game, missed the Schoolcraft's last three games, including a critical loss to Flint Mott. Two games were due to an eligibility issue and the other a violation of team rules.

He was cleared to play against OCC Monday afternoon. But Bigby wasn't enough to derail the hot-shooting Raiders, who came into the game with a losing record both overall and in conference play but still routed SC, 117-97.

They showed no respect for the nationally-ranked Ocelots. OCC started fast and never relented, rolling to a 59-45 lead by halftime and increasing that to 30 points with three minutes left.

First-year Raiders' coach Dymetrius Ware wouldn't take credit for the lopsided win. "I wasn't shooting it," he replied when an onlooker complimented him on his coaching. "I just watched, like you did."

SC coach Carlos Briggs was forced to watch, too, and it wasn't pretty. "It was ugly," was Briggs' game appraisal. "We were selfish, and (OCC) played like a team."

Most of the damage was inflicted by the Raiders' backcourt. Point guard Montez Briggs lit up the Ocelots for 46 points, converting 13-of-21 shots (62 percent) from the floor (including 6-of-9 three-pointers) and all 14 of his free throws. Briggs also had eight rebounds, six assists and four steals.

Edward Wallace, a Livonia Franklin High graduate, was also on fire. He poured in 26 points, hitting 7-of-14 from the field (50 percent) and 4-of-7 triples (57 percent), many of those from extremely long range. Wallace was 8-for-8 from the line.

OCC was 32-of-38 from the stripe (84.2 percent) compared to SC's 23-of-39 (59 percent). The Raiders made 13-of-22 threes (59 percent), including 9-of-12 in the first half (75 percent); SC was 8-of-28 on triples (31 percent).

The loss dropped SC to 18-3 overall, 8-3 in the conference. OCC evened its record at 11-11 overall, 6-6 in the conference.

"You're supposed to win when you play like that," SC's Briggs said of OCC's performance. "By the same token, we have had a lot of distractions, what with Lamar's situation. But we've talked to them about it. They know other teams are going to come in here and get after Schoolcraft."

There were other indications that the Ocelots were not ready for Monday's game. OCC had a wide edge in rebounding — 45-27, including a 14-9 advantage on the offensive boards. And although Bigby did score 17 points, six of those came in the final minute on dunks after the outcome had long been decided.

Other Ocelots expected to provide the bulk of the offense were even less productive: Derek McKelvey scored just four points, Dashawn Williams had 11 and starting point guard David McGlowan was limited to eight, although he did dish out nine assists.

Quentin Mitchell came off the bench to lead SC with 18 points. Reggie Kirkland and Mario Montgomery added 11 points apiece (Montgomery also had five assists), and Mike Murray netted 10.

OCC also got 11 points from Randy Kelly, 10 points from Brad Burlingame (from Walled Lake Central) and seven points and 11 boards from Aaron Kemp. Albert Jones (from Westland John Glenn) contributed eight points, eight rebounds (six of them offensive) and four assists.

If there was a play that sealed SC's fate, it came midway through the second half. Three-pointers by Bigby and Mitchell had trimmed the Raider lead to 79-63; momentum was switching. Then it seemed the Ocelots had forced a turnover when the ball was batted away from OCC's Kelly, but Kelly outbattled three SC players for the loose ball and dished it to Briggs, who nailed a three-pointer.

A Schoolcraft turnover followed, with Wallace drilling a 30-footer to increase the Raider lead to 22 with nine minutes left.

Instead of a fast-break basket that would have narrowed the deficit to 14, the Ocelots twice lost possession — and momen-

Crusaders fall to Rochester, shade WHAC foe

Rochester College had four players score in double figures Monday in an 87-68 men's basketball win over Madonna in a game played at Wayne State University.

The loss drops the Fighting Crusaders to 7-19 overall.

Bob Kofahl led the Warriors with 26 points, while Mike Robinson and John Bodzick contributed 17 and 16, respectively. Robinson also grabbed 12 rebounds.

Garden City's Pete Males, who played for Schoolcraft Community College, added 10 points in 28 minutes.

Mike Massey, despite shooting five of 17 from the floor, led Madonna with 23 points. He hit 12 of 14 free throws.

Center Mike Maryanski added 18 points and nine rebounds. Jason Skoczylas chipped in with 11 points.

Madonna shot just 35 percent from the floor (22 of 63), while Rochester was 49 percent (29 of 59).

MADONNA 85, CONCORDIA 77 (2 OTs): Maryanski scored eight of his 16 points in the second overtime, and Mike Massey added seven of his 20 to propel Madonna past host Concordia College Saturday in Ann Arbor.

Madonna, 3-7 in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference, had to battle back from a 31-20 halftime deficit, but it took a three-pointer by the Cardinals' Wes Hazel at the buzzer to knot the score at 55-all and force overtime.

Concordia (3-23, 0-10) then opened up a 62-58 lead with 1:58 left in the first OT on a triple by Kareem Hairston, but the Crusaders overcame that, eventually tying it and forcing a second OT on a basket by Massey with eight seconds left.

Massey and Maryanski took command after that, combining for eight of Madonna's first nine points in the second OT as the Crusaders jumped out to a 75-66 lead. The Cards never got closer than five.

Chad Putnam, a junior forward from Redford Thurston, came off the bench to score 21 points for Madonna on 6-of-7 floor shooting (including 3-for-3 on threes). Massey had four rebounds and four assists to go with his 20 points, and Maryanski totaled 11 rebounds and three blocked shots. Jason Skoczylas had 17 points and three assists.

Concordia got 25 points and 10 boards from Mike Mead.

Spartans splash CC minus team leader

Livonia Stevenson's swim team had a lot more than a dual meet with Redford Catholic Central to worry about on Tuesday night.

The Spartans were concerned about the condition of senior Mike McGowan, who may have lost the tip of his middle finger on one of his hands in a freak accident over the weekend.

Despite the loss of one of their top breaststrokes and emotional leaders, the Spartans beat the Shamrocks with ease, 111-75.

It's unknown if McGowan can return to the Spartans' lineup before the end of the year, coach Doug Buckler said. First and foremost, Buckler hopes McGowan can return to his regular day to day routines.

"He's questionable but we're going to keep riding him on a bike," Buckler said. "But I bet you if we get him in the water at the league meet — if the doctor says so — he goes a lot faster."

The meet figured to be more tightly-contested between two state-ranked Class A teams but the Spartans proved to have too much depth.

Buckler said his swimmers got fired up before the meet began when the Shamrocks broke out in one of their famous chants.

"They shouldn't have been cheering 'This is the winning side, this is the losing side,'" said Buckler, laughing. "It charged my team up. I didn't have to do much coaching."

Keith Falk, Mike Malik and Joe Bublitz won two events each and also swam on a winning relay.

Falk won the 200 yard freestyle in 1 minute, 53.52 seconds and the 100 freestyle (49.08). He anchored the winning 200 medley relay (1:45.30). Also on the 200 medley relay were Bublitz, Kevin Van Tiem and Brendon Truscott.

Bublitz won the 100 butterfly (55.45) and the 100 backstroke (55.78).

Malik won the 200 individual medley (2:07.50) and the 500 freestyle (5:08.46). Brad Buckler, Randy Truscott, Malik and Pat

BOYS SWIMMING

Rodemeyer teamed to win the 200 freestyle relay (1:38.84).

The 100 breaststroke was won by Van Tiem (1:05.58).

In four of the individual events one by the Spartans, they also had the second-place swimmer.

Among the second-place swimmers for the Spartans were Justin Ketterer, in the 200 freestyle (1:56.21) and 500 freestyle (5:09.06); Mike Nemer, individual medley (2:12.71) and 100 breaststroke (1:06.06).

The win improved the Spartans to 7-3 in dual meets.

"One-two is 10 points and we had almost every fifth place too," Buckler said.

CC's wins came from Ryan Meekins in the 50 freestyle (22.81) and Greg Brazianus in the diving with 218.35 points. Meekins also swam on the Shamrocks' winning 400 freestyle relay team (3:24.16).

"We thought it would be a close meet, had the capabilities of being a good meet. We swam a little better, they were a little off and it became a runaway. CC is a very good swim team and Danny (Knipper) is a good coach."

Livonia Stevenson's girls volleyball team is getting very close to the top.

Plymouth Salem won a tight three-game battle from Stevenson, 15-8, 10-15, 15-8, Monday night in a Western Lakes Activities Association match.

"Salem is a very good team," Spartans' assistant coach Mazie Pilut said, "but Stevenson played well. There are going to be some good battles once we get to the (league and state) playoffs."

Stephanie Dulz hammered home 24 kills, had five blocks and 12 digs. Kate LeBlanc recorded 11 kills and four blocks and Kelly Hutchins had 20 assists.

The loss was host Stevenson's second in WLAA action to go with five victories. The Spartans are 23-9-2 overall.

Salem is 31-6 overall and 6-1 in the WLAA.

Passing grade: Glenn's Lacey Catarino makes the play in Monday's win over Farmington High.

On Saturday, Churchill reached the quarterfinals of the Schoolcraft College Invitational before being eliminated by runner-up Walled Lake Central, 15-6, 15-8 (see related story).

Churchill finished 3-0 in pool play with wins over Midland (15-6, 13-15, 15-13), Carleton-Airport (15-6, 15-12) and Livonia Clarenceville (15-2, 8-15, 15-8). The Chargers then ousted Walled Lake Western in the Sweet 16.

Steca and Ruprecht led Churchill with 34 and 30 kills, respectively.

Coach Mike Hughes also saluted the all-round play of Munn and Leite, along with the excellent setting of Kristin Leszczynski and Colleen Guardiola.

Patriots rip North Farmington

Tera Morrill (eight kills) and Andrea Kmet (six kills) led the way as Livonia Franklin (13-11-1, 6-1) romped to a 15-8, 15-4 Western Lakes win at North Farmington.

Rachel Bramlett and Daniela Gapp each added two aces, while setter Lyndsay Sopko had 12 assists.

VOLLEYBALL WRAP

In Saturday's Schoolcraft College Invitational, Franklin reached the quarterfinals before losing to eventual champion East Kentwood.

Morrill and Nicole Boyd each hit at a .350 clip for the Patriots on the day. Kmet recorded a .315 percentage. Sopko averaged seven assists per game.

Wayne Memorial topples Cougars

Senior middle hitter Kristin Kreher had 17 kills Monday, propelling host Wayne Memorial (11-16, 2-5) to a Mega Conference White Division triumph over Garden City.

Senior outside hitter Rachel Raines added six kills and eight aces, while sophomore setter Amy Paling contributed 28 assists.

Senior outside hitter Julie Gunther also contributed defensively and had two kills.

"We've been having a lot of trouble as far as chemistry, but last night there was a lot of progress made all around," Wayne coach Laura Fisher said. "Garden City has a great setter (Crystal Young). She gave us most of our problems, but defensively we played well."

In Saturday's Ann Arbor Pioneer Invitational, Wayne finished third in its pool, losing to Pioneer and Chelsea, while defeating Taylor Truman.

Raines and Paling were standouts on the day for Wayne, according to Fisher.

Huron Valley beats Fairlane

In a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference match Tuesday at Livonia St. Paul's, host Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (8-4, 6-1) trimmed Dearborn Heights Fairlane Christian, as junior Jessica Whitaker had three aces and one kill.

Junior setter Stacie Graves served seven straight points in the second game and also added a kill.

Glenn notches 1st WLAA win

Westland John Glenn notched its first WLAA volleyball victory in six tries this season with a 4-15, 15-12, 15-4 victory Monday night at Farmington.

Sophomore outside hitter Lacey Catarino, junior middle hitter Nicole Panyard and junior middle hitter Jamie McLeod each had six kills for the Rockets.

McLeod also had four blocks and nine digs. Outside hitter Kristen Krohn had eight digs and served five aces while defensive specialist Amanda Bell had eight digs.

Churchill corrals Mustangs

Livonia Churchill ran its overall record to 17-9-2 overall and 4-3 in the WLAA with a 15-12, 15-5 win Monday against visiting Northville.

Courtney Lim served six points in the opening game for the victorious Chargers.

Top hitters included Luba Steca, six kills; Shannon Munn and Lauren Ruprecht, five kills each; and Fernanda Leite, four kills. Ruprecht also contributed four blocks.

Senior Leah Douglas was Central's top hitter on the day with 58 kills. She also had 35 blocks.

Setter Becca Saldana, who has made a verbal commitment to Oakland University, came up with 125 assists. The 6-foot senior also recorded 17 aces and 24 blocks.

Amanda Mendenhall, a 5-10 senior, added 48 kills. Both Saldana and Mendenhall were named All-Tourney.

Amanda Yaklin (28 digs), who served 10 points in one game against Salem, and Erin Rishell, "who was all over the place," according to Lindstrom, paced the defense.

Sarah Schreiber, Kalie Miller, Amy Emerine, Colleen Saldana and Kalie Miller also provided steady play for the Lady Vikings.

"It was a long day and I think we just ran out of gas," Lindstrom said. "We'd like to play them again."

"Our concentration broke after the first game. We had been serving pretty hard, but after the second game when they took it to us, we never really recovered. It carried over to the third game."

Salem's standouts on the day included Suder, a junior, who finished with 37 kills, 43 digs and 15 aces, and setter Laine Sterling, who had 121 assists and 43 digs. Andrea Pruett contributed 29 kills.

"I was also pleased with the contribution from Erica Stein, that was an unexpected plus," Salem coach Tom Teeters said. "She didn't get a lot of touches, but she opens a lot of things up for us. If not for her setting, we wouldn't have caught up after being down 11-2 (against Central) to actually leading 14-13 (in the second game). She did some nice things out there along with Angie."

"And Jill Dombrowski (16 kills) did a nice job of running the slide play."

Following Schoolcraft action, the No. 6 Rocks are 30-6 overall while No. 5 Central is 28-4.

If there were any tournament surprises, it occurred in Pool F where Livonia Stevenson, one of the upper echelon teams in the Western Lakes, finished behind both Dearborn and Birmingham Marian.

Another mild surprise was Livonia Franklin, which won Pool B with a perfect 3-0 record and then upset last year's runner-up Livonia Ladywood in the Sweet 16, 15-5, 7-15, 15-13.

But unfortunately for the Patriots, they lost to eventual champion East Kentwood in the quarterfinals, 3-15, 3-15.

Interrogation, intrigue, suspense, drama, describe two productions opening this week at Meadow Brook Theatre, and by the Jewish Ensemble Theatre in the Aaron DeRoy Theatre.

Meadow Brook presents the Michigan premiere of "Scotland Road," by Jeffrey Hatcher, through March 7.

Jewish Ensemble Theatre explores capital punishment, the media and judicial system in "Never the Sinner," by John Logan, which continues through March 7.

Both plays are edge-of-the-seat dramas where the audience isn't quite sure what will happen next.

David Ellenstein portrays John, the great grandson of John Jacob Astor, the richest man in the world when he perished with the Titanic in 1912.

Ellenstein's wife, Denise Michelle Young, plays a young woman found in the present day clinging to an iceberg in the Atlantic Ocean. She says only one word, "Titanic," and claims to be a survivor. She is wet, cold, and wearing clothes from 1912.

Astor intercepts the woman, who is on her way to a hospital in Boston, and questions her story.

"I am obsessed with every detail about the Titanic and preserving its pristine memory," said Ellenstein about his character. "The woman thinks she's in 1912."

Astor takes the woman to a clinic and interrogates her, with help from Halberch, a female clinician portrayed by Susan Arnold, in an attempt to prove the woman is a fraud.

"It's not a play about the Titanic," said Ellenstein. "It's about loneliness, desperation, reincarnation. What it means to be alive at a certain time, or are we part of a collective unconscious?"

Ellenstein described "Scotland Road" as a taut drama, that has a lot of twists and turns. "It questions more than it answers," he said. "There's some humor, and it's fun trying to figure out what is going on. You're left guessing for a long time."

Young's character is silent during the first part of the play. "She refuses to speak," explained Young. "She's someone who was on the Titanic. It's part science fiction, part Twilight Zone. Much of the play is a mystery."

"Scotland Road" takes place over a number of days. Astor tries to interrogate the woman, but she doesn't respond. "It's interesting how the relationships play out," said Young. "I really liked the part. She's an interesting, strong character. As things unfold it becomes more confus-

Cutting edge dance company challenges rules

BY HUGH GALLAGHER

Banu Ogan was a biology student at the University of North Carolina when she was called by the lord of the dance, Merce Cunningham.

"I had been in ballet dance and I was missing it, so I took a modern dance class. My teacher worshipped Merce and showed his videotape. ... I just fell in love with his ideas. The technique I thought was quite amazing."

Ogan gave up biology for dance and after graduation she went to New York where she eventually joined the Merce Cunningham Dance Company.

The company, now in a weeklong residence at the University of Michigan, will give performances Friday and Saturday at Ann Arbor's Power Center.

Cunningham, 79, is a legendary figure in modern dance, credited with changing the rules of dance as a dancer, beginning with Martha Graham in the early '40s, and as a choreographer who merged modern dance with new music and design.

"He broke away from traditional dance," Ogan said. "Dance had been narrative and he made it just pure movement. He separated music from dance and decor and then all the elements come together on opening night."

For Cunningham, dance was no longer tied to a literary concept or even to the rhythms and melodies of a com-

Depending on the audience's response at this Sunday's Birmingham Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra concert, one local news anchor may never again be considered as "just a broadcast journalist."

Preceding the concert of "light and warm" classical music, honorary host Devin Scillian will serenade patrons with "Too Long in the Rain," a country style song written by the WDIV-TV news anchor.

News anchor turned crooner? Well, it might sound a bit surprising, but it's hardly a novel performance for Scillian, who has compiled a couple of commercial cassettes of his own ing. Once she speaks, she says a mouthful, and you don't know what's going to happen."

Describing the play, Young says it's about being lonely, and people who aren't happy and are searching for something.

Both actors, Ellenstein and Young found each other when Ellenstein directed her in a show.

Together for nine years, married for 4-1/2, they make their home in Los Angeles. Both have performed at Meadow Brook Theatre before.

"We like it here," said Young.

"We've made a lot of friends," adds Ellenstein.

Geoffrey Sherman, artistic director of Meadow Brook Theatre is directing this production. "We met in Portland, Ore., and have done three shows together," said Ellenstein. "It's always great to work with him."

A courtroom is the scene of the drama played out in JET's production of "Never the Sinner."

It's a story about the first "Crime of the Century" — two teens who kill a 14-year-old boy for the thrill of it. Clarence Darrow, 74, defends 18-year-old Nathan Leopold, Jr., and his friend Richard Loeb, 19, in this play which takes place in Chicago during the summer of 1924.

Both boys are good looking, from affluent families and well educated. When she first read the play last spring, Evelyn Orbach, artistic director of JET, put it in her reject pile.

"It is such a negative thing," she said. "To see two young, affluent men who have everything going for them. But then I started to see all these things in the news about violent, seemingly meaningless deaths involving young people — someone shooting up a school, kids killing their parents, and then I began thinking about it."

Besides being a great drama, Orbach thought "Never the Sinner" raised some important issues that should be discussed in the community.

"After striking the last blow," Loeb explodes into giggles. Keep calm old Buddy," he tells his friend Leopold. "It's just like swatting a fly."

The boys killed 14-year-old Bobby Franks believing they committed the perfect crime.

"They were toying with philosophy and believed they were supermen," said Orbach.

The case also represents a landmark decision about capital punishment, and looks at how the media sways public opinion.

"What's terrible is they're (Leopold and Loeb) appealing and that's appalling," said Orbach. "Girls sent them love letters."

JET is hosting community forums that will focus on some of the issues raised in "Never the Sinner," at the Aaron DeRoy Theatre after Thursday evening performances and Sunday matinees.

Discussions will be facilitated by psychologists, media, legal, and social services professionals. "We're trying to get people who are really concerned about these issues," said Orbach. Clementine Barfield of So Sad, Save our Sons and Daughters, will be the featured speaker on Thursday, Feb. 25. She will be bringing along three or four teens.

This group was formed to help families deal with the loss of a child through violence.

poser. The composer wrote the music, the designer designed the sets and the choreographer mapped out dance movements without consulting each other. On opening night there was a clash or a convergence of ideas.

Over the years Cunningham has worked with composers such as John Cage, David Tudor and Brian Eno and contemporary artists such as Robert Rauschenberg, Frank Stella, Jasper Johns and Roy Lichtenstein. He's also experimented in film and video.

"His approach is more intellectual than emotional," Ogan said.

That intellectual approach has kept Cunningham on the cutting edge of dance and using technology to advance his choreography. With the help of scientist and choreographer Theola Schiphorst, Cunningham has been using a computer, Life-Forms, to help design his dances since the late 1980s.

"He uses it for ideas," Ogan said. "I think of it as this little guy. ... He'll see what he can do and try to give it to us to see if we can do that. Of course on the computer there's no gravity. The little guy can go up and make five moves in the air. We come up with what we're able to do."

As a dancer, Cunningham often seemed to defy gravity, space and time and he tries to pass along some of that pure motion to his company of young dancers. Ogan said the choreographer builds his dances an element at a time beginning with the feet, then the torso and finally the arms. She said sometimes it seems stiff and formatted. But between the necessary time cues, Cunningham builds in moments for free movement.

As a dancer, Merce Cunningham often seemed to defy gravity, space and time, and he tries to pass along some of that pure motion to his company of young dancers.

"Because of the computer thing, it's really difficult to make your feet dance or even to make your feet move at all. Phrases are difficult to learn. After eight or nine arm positions, you say 'If he gives me any more arm I'll lose it,'" Ogan said.

She said it is also difficult to ignore the music sometimes. She said that usually on opening night, when dancers hear the music for the first time, they are so nervous about their movements that it isn't a problem. But as time goes on they have to fight "dancing to the music."

She said when they performed in Minnesota, they wanted to pay homage to the hometown composer, the artist formerly known as Prince, and use his music.

"It's very hard not to dance to Prince's music," she said.

Ogan will dance in several of the works this weekend. She said "Rondo" is divided into two sections. In the first section company members never know what they're going to dance. Everyone learns all the solo and multiple parts.

"The order changes every night on who does which dance. You don't know what you're doing until that night. The B section is mayhem. The feel of the piece changes completely," she said.

At 29, Ogan is finding that dance can be wearying but rewarding.

A performance last June at the Paris Opera on a stage with a five degree rake was exhausting but "the highlight of my career."

Just as the music, sets and choreography come together, so, too, do the dancers who give themselves to Cunningham's vision of pure movement.

St. Dunstan's puts heart into musical revue

St. Dunstan's Theatre Guild of Cranbrook presents "Heart and Music: Broadway's Best in Song" — a musical revue fund-raiser to benefit lighting equipment improvements for the Cranbrook outdoor Greek Theatre. Performances 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Feb. 12-13 at the theater 400 Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills. Tickets are $15 per person (show only), $30 per person, reception and show, call (248) 644-0527 or (248) 584-0698.

By MARY JANE DOERR
SPECIAL WRITER

In this season of romance, there is a love song for everyone's musical taste at St. Dunstan's Theatre Guild's cabaret "Heart & Music, Broadway's Best in Song." So delightful are these group of seven dancing singers, this musical revue should be called St. Dunstan's Best in Song.

Jamie Richards directs this distinctive affair (and stars in it) with flair. Numbers are woven together through the common Valentine theme accented by John Mattiello's carefully planned choreography and the stylish costume changes from Steven Petix and Body Works, Inc. A blackened stage highlights artistic and colorful slides featuring the names of each Broadway musical as the singers feature the show's hits. No commentary is needed to disrupt the smooth flow of the mood swings.

The selections is mostly from the contemporary musicals including — "A Chorus Line," "Big," "Godspell," and "Rent" — with a little Bob Fosse (to show off Mattiello's fine choreography) and some Stephen Sondheim in between.

Marlene Loucks on the keyboard, Carl Stewart on drums, and Eleanor Strubel on bass meshed all of these love songs into a medley.

Given the energetic style of this group of singers, they sparkled in the music from "Rent," and in the grouped Fosse numbers, "All That Jazz," "Me and My Baby," and "Razzle Dazzle." Without the heavy amplification, the music from "Rent" was melodic and appreciable.

Always, when so many songs are presented in an evening, the musical range is demanding. Each singer in this cast had an impressive personal style featured to advantage by the carefully chosen memorable repertoire. No one who sees the show will forget Joey Johnson's version of "Love Changes Everything" from Andrew Lloyd Webber. Johnson is in his range in this ballad tune and puts his heart into the music to make it a highlight. He also scored strongly for his rendition of "Bring Him Home" from "Les Miserables," even taking the finale in lovely falsetto.

Peggy Lee has personality in her voice. Her jazzy rhythm and timing was perfect for the show stopping "24 Hours of Lovin'," and her vocal agility was wonderful for the embellishments in "Day by Day." Particularly versatile in her acting and singing was Kendall Doman changing herself from the brainless Audrey in "Somewhere That's Green" ("Little Shop of Horrors") to a sophisticated love duet with Scott MacDonald in "Unworthy Of Your Love."

MacDonald not only accompanied Joey's solo "One Song Glory" ("Rent") on the guitar but had the vocal depth to sing a powerful "Stars" from Les Miserables.

Two moving performances came from Kim Brown who sang heart throbbing "I dreamed a dream" ("Les Miserables") and "Don't Cry for Me Argentina" (Evita). Teaming up beautifully was Jeff Drewno and Kryselyn Irvine in a natural "Last Night of the World" ("Miss Saigon"). Drewno also teamed up well with Jamie Richards in a clearly articulated "All for the Best" ("Godspell"). Nicki Stacey also articulated well in her narrative numbers like "Stop Time."

With a show like this, with all of its musical and artistic appeal, there really was no good time to end the evening of show stoppers.

music. While a melancholic country song is quite a melodic distance from the traditional classical concert offerings, the BBSO hopes Scillian's name recognition will help to attract patrons to the dinner reception and silent auction prior to the benefit concert at Temple Beth El in Bloomfield Hills.

"Most people who come to our concerts support the other arts as well," said Carla Lamphere, BBSO executive director.

The key, according to Lam-phere, is to broaden audiences for the BBSO by bringing in new musicians and musical styles.

Part of the appeal for Sunday's concert, said Lamphere, is the collaboration between violist Hart Hollman, the principle chair with the BBSO, and music students from Wayne State.

"We're trying to cultivate music appreciation throughout the community," said Lamphere.

To demonstrate their commitment, the BBSO is sponsoring a Young Artist Competition, to be held April 26-27. The competition will begin 4 p.m. each day at Lahser High School in Bloomfield Hills.

BBSO is in the fourth of a six-concert season that stretches to mid May. For the past six years, the 200-member orchestra has been named best community orchestra at the Motor City Music Awards.

Typically, about 60 musicians perform at each concert. All members have professional experience. Many members also play for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and in Michigan Opera Theatre productions.

The annual benefit is the largest fund-raiser of the year for the BBSO.

The program includes Vaughan Williams' "Flos Campi" (The Flowers of the Field), Mendelssohn's "Incidental Music to 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,'" excerpts from the ballet "Gayne" by Khachaturian, and Rimsky-Korsakov's "Russian Easter Overture."

The concert is underwritten by Bloomfield Plaza, Pontiac & GMC, Kent and Yvonne Shafer, and Raymonde and Lynn Wert II.

Lisa is directing, dad Don designed the sets, and brothers Nicholas and Austin are altar boys.

The Plymouth Theatre Guild recently reduced its membership fee to $1 a year to attract more help in putting on its productions. The Andresses were one of the families who responded to the call.

"The Sound of Music" brings back fond memories for Lisa and Don who played parts in the dramatic musical two weeks after returning from their honeymoon. High school sweethearts, the two first met in Drama Club in 1975 at Churchill High School in Livonia. They attended the revised version of "The Sound of Music" on Broadway last October.

"We try to keep it fresh," said Andres, a 15-year veteran of directing. "I'm putting some of the changes from the Broadway version into it. We're trying to make it a lot more like the movie starring Julie Andrews. If they come to see it they'll be the first to see the revised version if they can't afford to see it on Broadway."

Don and Lisa have worked on dozens of theater productions over the years. Whenever Lisa directs a production, Don designs and builds the sets.

"This is a challenge because there's no fly space to drop sets to change scenes and there are no wings, so I had to figure out a way with a track system to move sets in and out," said Don. "Instead of black outs, we'll change the scenes while the production is running. It's going to be a great show. It's a great group of people."

Continuing the family tradition, Brooke began early to polish her dance steps at Miss Bunny's and Miss Harriet's dance schools in Livonia. After graduating from the Creative and Performing Arts program at Churchill High School where she is studying theater, Brooke hopes to attend Yale before trying to make it on Broadway. Next to meeting the actress who plays Maria in the revised Broadway production of "The Sound of Music," the biggest thrill of Brooke's life was auditioning for the Broadway play "Parade" last May.

"It was the most incredible experience," said Brooke. "It was at the Ford Theater where they were rehearsing 'Ragtime' and we got to watch and meet some of the cast."

Since age three when she was in the chorus of "Wizard of Oz," Brooke has wanted to be an actress. After plenty of hard work, Brooke's dreams have been coming true. The 15-year old was in the children's choir of "Music Man" at the Fisher Theater. She also sang in the chorus of "La Boheme" for the Michigan Opera Theatre's grand opening of its refurbished Detroit Opera House.

The Donovans met Don and Lisa 17 years ago while acting in the Players Guild of Dearborn's "Gypsy." Now, Kim and Joe and their four children are rehearsing for one production or another all year long.

"This is our third time doing 'The Sound of Music,'" said Kim of Farmington Hills. "I love it because it's a love story and children have such a wonderful part in it. We find theater to be a nice fun family hobby and a lot of shows kids can be in the chorus."

Singing the high notes can be a little tricky for Paul Luoma, Jr. because his voice is changing but acting the part of Kurt Von Trapp is a piece of cake. The 13-year old said being relaxed and having fun eliminates any tension he might feel on the set his father Paul, Sr. helped build.

"It's been a great experience to meet new people and make new friends," said Luoma, Sr. of Farmington Hills. So far, Kristen Curle is the only member of her family in the Plymouth Theatre Guild. As producer, Curle makes sure that lighting, property and sound crews are all on cue. "The camaraderie is special," said Curle. "Twelve weeks before a show opens you start with 30 strangers. By closing night, you tell each other favorite stories. I'm always amazed at how people become a family."

Romantic comedy 'Simply Irresistible'

If movies were culinary treats, you would not find "Simply Irresistible" in any meat-and-potatoes category. It is no loaf of bread. It is no jug of wine. It is not even a box of chocolates. Instead, it is a big, airy mouthful of cotton candy, sort of pretty to look at and distracting enough while it lasts, but ultimately not delivering much more than air and sweetness.

Still, there's something to be said for spun sugar, and a piece of fluff can hit the spot now and then. Especially if you're living on love, and looking for a cute "date movie" around Valentine's Day, you might find that "Simply Irresistible" will suit your taste and please your palate, down to the last, loopy love scene.

Sarah Michelle Gellar (of TV's "Buffy, the Vampire Slayer") plays Amanda Shelton, owner of a small Manhattan restaurant that's about to bite the dust. There are two good reasons for this: (1) The landlord has just raised the rent on the place, and (2) Amanda can't cook.

One day, while shopping for the restaurant at an outdoor market, she meets Tom Bartlett (Sean Patrick Flanery), a young hotshot who's about to open a cushy new dining spot inside Fifth Avenue's Henri Bendel. The two exchange meaningful glances and some flirtations chitchat before going their own, very separate ways.

But what neither of them knows is that their meeting has been arranged purposefully by somebody calling himself O'Reilly, who's posing as a crab vendor at the market. Also what they don't know is that this O'Reilly guy (Christopher Durang) is a big, angelic Cupid, and one of the crustaceans he sells to Amanda is his crafty aide.

Soon - this time posing as a New York cabbie - O'Reilly gets the couple together again. The scene is Amanda's restaurant, Southern Cross (named for the heavenly constellation?). Amanda is in the kitchen with her sous chef, Nolan (Larry Gilliard Jr.), and Tom is seated at a table with his snobby date, eagerly awaiting the Crab Napoleon he has ordered.

The only problem: Amanda has no idea how to prepare Crab Napoleon, and neither does Nolan.

But all that, as if by magic, is about to change. In fact, her whole life, as if by magic, is about to change.

Voila! She's concocted the perfect Crab Napoleon. We don't know exactly how, and neither does she or anybody else. But this is romantic comedy, so don't think about it too much. Her new talent seems to have something to do with the aforementioned crab, who is now in the restaurant's kitchen, hiding out beneath a lettuce leaf.

In any case, the Crab Napoleon, looking luscious as love itself and festive as Christmas (if nothing else, this movie will make you ravenous) is served to the anticipatory Tom. He is, of course, done for at first magical bite. (With each apparently succulent mouthful, Flanery does a not-bad, lower-keyed version of Meg Ryan's memorable restaurant scene in "When Harry Met Sally.")

Before long, Amanda and Tom are so strongly smitten that many of their surroundings turn into a land of "dreamy dreams," just like in the movies. They could be Fred and Ginger, whirling and twirling across a mirror-lined, zebra-striped stage. They could be Scarlett and

K.C. BAILEY

Rhett, disappearing into movieland fog. Once, when they kiss, their feet actually leave the ground and their heads bump at the ceiling, as Amanda tries a line from a Disney movie to break the spell. It's all a little bizarre, and it's certainly extremely silly. But it sort of moves along, anyway (despite some lines that fall flat now and then) in that boy-meets-girl, boy-loses-girl, boy-gets-girl way, until it all culminates in a feast for the gods, only it's served to mere mortals on opening night at the new Henri Bendel restaurant. Amanda is at the helm in the kitchen, her trusty sous chef (and that persistent crustacean) by her side. Her Prince Charming is waiting in the wings, violins and vanilla orchids are the order of the day, there's a charming bit with a paper airplane and, oh my, ain't love grand, even when it goes all gushy and goey. Gellar makes a bewitching Amanda. Flanery comes across as a bit of a dork now and then, and it's not always possible to tell if it's his character or that we're seeing Dylan Baker in a delightfully uptight Jonathan Bendel, who's efficiently seduced by Tom's assistant (Patricia Clarkson), wielding a couple of heavenly caramel eclairs.

'Message in a Bottle' well cast, but doesn't keep story afloat

BY ANNE LEHMANN
SPECIAL WRITER

Two ingredients are key to making a movie worth seeing: a solid story told by evocative actors. Eliminate either of these elements - and the result is a film forced to limp along on one leg.

Such is the case with "Message in a Bottle," a much-promoted Kevin Costner vehicle which, despite offering a high-octane mix of talent, is unable to keep the leaden story afloat. Besides Costner, the film features Robin Wright Penn and distinguished veteran actor Paul Newman.

Based on Nicholas Sparks' bestselling novel, "Message in a Bottle" tells the story of Theresa Osborne (Wright Penn), a wounded divorcee who quietly devotes her life to her son and work as a researcher for The Chicago Tribune. While on vacation she finds a bottle that has washed ashore. In it is a stirring letter written by a man unable to shake his consuming devotion to a lost love. Intrigued by the romance, Osborne sets out to find the writer of this soulful letter.

Garret Blake (Costner), a North Carolina boat builder, has been unable to find the balance that was once his life since the death of his artist wife Catherine. Helping him is his father, Dodge (Newman), who, having confronted some uphill battles of his own, cares deeply about his troubled son.

Osborne's research leads her to Blake, and a predictable love story unfolds. The couple share campfires on the beach, salmon-colored sunsets, night sails and battles with marshmallow "ammo." And while the cinematography is beautifully wrought by three-time Oscar nominee Caleb Deschanel, the dialogue is embarrassingly heavy handed, with Dodge urging his son to "take a risk," and Blake describing his wife as someone who "could brighten up a whole room ... a whole town." This continues for over two hours.

Wright Penn is well cast and does a commendable job of trying to rescue the hard-to-swallow plot. She cannot, however, generate enough heat to make her passion convincing, especially since Costner seems so stilted and uncomfortable in his role. Newman is winning as the life-worn father whose quips offer some sweet moments of comic relief.

The Cardigans leave 'retro' sound

CHRISTINA FUOCO

"I think it's much more interesting to take another step from album to album," said drummer Bengt Lagerberg via telephone from his band's Malmo, Sweden, rehearsal space.

"It's been two years since we recorded the last album ('First Band on the Moon') and that means a lot of touring, and that definitely influenced the new stuff. Also, we felt that before we sounded kind of retro. Now it's more up to date or modern. We thought we couldn't take it any further with the retro sound."

So vocalist Nina Persson, guitarist Peter Svensson, bassist Magnus Sveningsson and keyboardist/acoustic guitarist Lasse Johansson headed to Country Hell Studios with longtime producer Tore Johansson to revamp their sound.

"Gran Turismo" marks the first time that The Cardigans and Tore Johansson have used computers in the recording studio. "Gran Turismo" switches gears from dreamy, ethereal pop to hard-driving rock, to slick pop. "Gran Turismo" hasn't had the kind of platinum success that "First Band on the Moon" had in the United States. Nonetheless, it has given The Cardigans the respect it longed for elsewhere.

"Actually for the first time we'd done really, really well here in Sweden. We used to be like the band that got really really great reviews but didn't sell any albums. Now it's both - great reviews and we sell a lot of albums. For the first time we're playing arenas here."

"That's because of a lot of things. I think one big thing is the Swedes have seen that we're very successful outside of Sweden as well in the States and the U.K. That has an influence on the Swedes as well. I think also the whole scene is getting more into the kind of music that we're making."

The Cardigans have rehearsed for three weeks to prepare for its U.S. tour.

"On the previous albums and previous tours we were trying to make something completely different when we play live from what you hear on the albums. This time it's the opposite. We're trying to almost copy the album, which means that we bring a lot of electronic stuff, sequencers. It's going to be a lot more heavy."

Learning to sync live music with computer-generated samples has been a feat in itself, he said. "We've had a lot of (mistakes) with the computers. We hope that doesn't happen on the stage. I don't know if we're taking water above our heads but we'll see what happens."

The Cardigans and Kent perform Friday, Feb. 12, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Doors open at 6 p.m. for the all-ages show. Tickets are $13 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT or visit <http://www.961melt.com>.

Capitol Records is celebrating the release of the "Divas Exotica" compilation disc with - what else - the search for the ultimate drag queen. The prancing begins at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 17, at Backstreet (16606 Joy, Detroit), followed by the final round at 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21 at Menjo's (928 W. McNichols, Detroit).

Contestants, ages 21 and older, will perform songs off the "Divas Exotica" album, which features songs by Marilyn Monroe, Sophia Loren, Ann-Margret, Maya Angelou, Eartha Kitt and Jayne Mansfield. Both nights will be hosted by drag queen Amanda Collins. For more information, call Backstreet at (313) 272-8959 or Menjo's at (313) 863-3934.

Now that it is close to selling out two shows at The Palace of Auburn Hills, 'N Sync is moving on to bigger things - namely the Pontiac Silverdome. The group along with fellow teen heartthrobs FIVE and former New Kid on the Block Jordan Knight will play the Silverdome on Saturday, July 31. Tickets, $32.50, go on sale at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 13, at all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge by phone, call (248) 645-6666.

Surf-rocking The Volcanos work hard to set the mood

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER
cfuoco@ee.homecomm.net

The instrumental surf/rock band The Volcanos is all about setting a mood.

The opening track of "Finish Line Fever," The Volcanos' second album for Bellingham, Wash.-based Estrus Records, is a tension-building, hot rod number appropriately called "Finish Line Fever."

"Doheny Dawn" is a beach-combing, watch-the-sunset song. "San Andreas Fault" is bumpy and bashy just like an earthquake. The beat goes on throughout the 14-song album released in November 1998.

"We just try to set a mood with music. That's the challenging part - getting the mood across to people. It's a bit more challenging than just playing music," said Chris Flanagan, guitarist.

"Finish Line Fever" was recorded at the Tempermill studio in Ferndale with producers Dave Feeny, a Livonia native, and Jim Diamond. The album was recorded live throughout 1998.

"We don't work like a band who is working for a big label. We go in and record three songs from start to finish. We go in and just run through the song until we get one that we like. It gives it more of an accurate representation of what we are live," said Flanagan, a Troy native who now lives in Oak Park.

Working with Diamond and Feeny was a relaxing effort.

"Jim's a nice guy, a professional engineer," Diamond, he said, has the ability to pinpoint a song's awkward moments and feel comfortable enough to discuss ways of improving it.

Originally, the Volcanos - guitarist/songwriter Rick Mills of Clawson, drummer Bill Bowen of Ferndale, and bassist Dave Fragale of Hamtramck, formerly of Birmingham - wanted to make "Finish Line Fever" in the same vein as classic surf albums. They were hoping to alternate between instrumental and vocal tunes.

"But we didn't have enough songs with vocals," he said with a laugh.

He and Fragale have written songs with vocals, however, to perform live.

"We use those songs live to break up the set. We will probably put some on the next record. Most of the songs that made it on the album were too good. We didn't want to leave any off," he said.

Now that swing and ska have had their 15 minutes of fame, Flanagan hopes that instrumental surf music will be next. He added that someday the clean, melodic riffs of surf will be considered a true form of American music.

"We just need someone to spearhead it. It's already gotten some notoriety, like with Dick Dale, although he's getting more and more off the track," he said. "Look at swing and now big it is now. Brian Setzer was already a well-known person. (His involvement in swing) brings it to another level."

"We need someone in pop to fuse it with whatever they're doing. Chris Isaak did somewhat with the guitar in 'San Francisco Days.' Maybe Quentin Tarantino can do another soundtrack. He gave it the original lift. He gave Dick Dale another career."

The Volcanos perform Friday, Feb. 12, at the Magic Bag, 22920 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Doors open at 8 p.m. for the 18 and older show. Cover charge is $6. For more information, call (248) 541-3030 or visit <http://www.themagicbag.com>. Estrus Records can be reached at P.O. Box 2126, Bellingham, Wash., 98227.

Here's a vote for the power of the arts

BACKSTAGE PASS

ANN DELISI

As I prepare this column on a computer that permits me to access information from around the world, edits me as I write and corrects my spelling and grammar, it's tempting to give technology much of the credit (or blame) for how addressing social issues. His personal struggles with indigence and bigotry transformed his work as an artist, revealed in the DIA's "Half Past Autumn: The Art of Gordon Parks."

graphic achievements, is his enthusiasm and skill for bringing his vision to other media. In 1969, Parks became the first African American to direct a major studio film with "The Learning Tree." He has also made several documentaries for public television. The Detroit Dance Collective will perform in the studios of Channel 56 in a Backstage Pass edition, airing Sunday, Feb. 14, and repeated Thursday at 5:30 p.m. and Friday at midnight on Detroit Public Television.

America has unfolded in the 20th century.

But here's a vote for the arts as a major factor in shaping our nation and the way we live. After all, technology may have allowed us to walk on the moon, but few of us would be motivated to buy a condo there.

The arts have demonstrated a unique ability to change the way people feel, and inspire them to change the things that aren't working. Specifically, the art of photography has produced images that not only chronicle the times, but charge the emotions whenever we see them. Not having lived through it, would we really feel the same about the Great Depression without the works of New Deal photographers like Dorothea Lange and Walker Evans? More recently, how did disturbing images from Vietnam and the Civil Rights Movement strengthen our resolve to achieve peace and racial equality?

It was those Depression-era photos that launched the creative journey of Gordon Parks, whose multi-media contributions are being exhibited at the Detroit Institute of Arts, and celebrated in the next edition of Backstage Pass on Detroit Public Television.

Parks credits the photos he witnessed in 1937 of dust bowl refugees caught in their confusion and poverty with his discovery of the power of film in

DINING

La Difference finds roots in classic French cooking

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

You don't need to know a word of French to catch the basic meaning of La Difference. In English, it's difference. Yet, in French, this difference carries a sense of divergence — to go or move in a different direction. Newly opened La Difference in West Bloomfield, does just that.

With respect to cuisine, it's rooted in classic French cooking, displayed with American flare in a warm, comfortable white tablecloth atmosphere with upscale service. For the sake of simplicity, let's call it southern French, Provençal style.

Decor fits there too. Walls are Provençal yellow with bright artwork and there's a mural with a Mediterranean feel. Eighty-six diners are seated comfortably at tables or well-appointed, cozy booths.

With a closer look for other eye stimulation, you notice a copper sink with proper utensils for ritual hand washing. A more careful inspection of the menu reveals only vegetable, pasta and fish dishes. This is the divergent element. The menu at La Difference, while French in design, adheres to all kosher dietary conditions.

La Difference had a soft opening at the end of December and has been discovered principally by word of mouth. It is the unique creation of Southfield resident Paul Kohn, who for 20 years, has owned and operated Quality Kosher Catering, based in congregation Shaarey Zedek, Credit cards: all majors accepted.

Southfield. "Over the past two decades, I became friends with my clients," Kohn said. "They wanted to have kosher dining in other than a catered environment. People with dietary restrictions, whether that be vegetarian or kosher, should not have to compromise. La Difference is an introduction to kosher cooking without all the traditions that back it up."

But you don't have to be Jewish to enjoy La Difference. It's a creative dining experience in more than one way. For example, there's always a unique, crunchy plate garnish, such as deep-fried yucca root chips and crisp-fried Michigan beet chips. Why crunchy elements?

Because owner Paul Kohn likes crunch! In addition to divergence (that concept again) they "add form and definition to other foods on the plate," Kohn pointed out.

Fish is delivered three times each week exclusively from M.F. Foley Company in Boston. Kohn believes Foley's seafood is higher in the important Omega-3 than that provided by any local purveyor.

A liquor license has been applied for and when granted, Kohn promises the best selection of mevushal kosher wines available.

Turning ingredients into succulent and savory portions is executive chef John Schmidt, former sous chef for Quality Kosher Catering. He collaborated with Chef Michael Miller of Quality Kosher Catering and was inspired by Schoolcraft Culinary department's Chef Dan Hugelier in focusing menu selections.

Among notable appetizers is housemade North Atlantic Smoked Salmon that's fruit wood, cold-smoked and presented on a crisp potato latke with caviar and sour cream, garnished with fried capers. House Chowder, a rich fume of selected fish, potatoes and vegetables and Traditional Mushroom Barley Soup are the regularly-featured. Soup du jour is usually a cream soup such as Roasted Butternut Squash with ginger and red pepper coulis.

Developing as the most-requested entree is Lake Superior Whitefish in various presentations. "It's our ultimate comfort food," Kohn noted. A close second is Macadamia Crusted Chilean Sea Bass, toasted macadamia nuts crusting a fresh fillet served on smashed potatoes with fresh vegetables.

Leave room for desserts prepared by Pastry Chef Karen Pearson. A listing on the menu does not tell the whole story. Components offer not only fabulous taste, but extraordinary eye appeal — a perfect ending to an embracing experience.

La Difference has a children's menu, $6, with four kid appealing items. If you'd like to bring your kids along, but would rather dine without them, My Place is a baby sitting service, located next door at $4.75 per hour. La Difference offers a $2 coupon to defray the cost.

Backing up fine service and running the front of the house as general manager is John Wood, a veteran of the area restaurant scene, having worked 20 years in the Machus organization.

La Difference and divergence may denote moving in a different direction, but this movement has the intelligent focus of people-centered, inspired dining in a gracious, welcoming atmosphere.
