Street repairs big session topic

A Tuesday study session of the Westland City Council included apparent agreement on the need to improve neighborhood streets. Officials aim to compile a priority list for resurfacing work.

Westland city officials have no long-range priority list for resurfacing neighborhood streets, even though they concede that motorists face some bumpy rides.

But drivers dodging the next pothole could have reason to hope that their ride will eventually get better.

Administration officials and council members appeared to agree during a Tuesday study session that Westland should survey its street-repair needs and develop a priority list.

"Currently there is no survey done for Westland," Public Services Director Richard Dittmar said. "We just go out and drive around and say this area should be done next."

The issue arose after Councilman Richard LeBlanc questioned whether the city has a street-needs priority list. He raised his concern during talks about resurfacing Spring Valley in the Holliday Park Townhouses neighborhood, on Westland's north side.

LeBlanc said he'd like to see roads rated and placed on a list for improvements.

Council President Sandra Cicirelli agreed and said such a list should include cost estimates.

Council members reached a consensus to seek bids next spring for Spring Valley's resurfacing, even before the project officially gets placed in the city budget next July 1.

"It is one of the worst," Mayor Robert Thomas said of Spring Valley's condition.

Dittmar said the Spring Valley asphalt resurfacing will cost about $65,000 and could start as early as June.

Councilman Glenn Anderson questioned why the project couldn't be bid this fall to allow work to begin earlier, but administration officials said they believed the latest decision would satisfy Holliday Park residents.

"I think the people will be happy if

Guarding safety of students

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Teachers are certainly essential to good education, but they're not the only school professionals who help children.

"They're vital," Madison Elementary Principal Mary Goedert said of school crossing guards. "They are just so important to the safety of the school."

The guards work with the student safety patrol, she said, and help control traffic, reminding motorists that children are crossing.

The guards are the "eyes and ears" of the school, Goedert said, recalling a former crossing guard who helped out when a child fell last year. "He told me what happened and I was able to communicate with the mother" of the child, now fine.

The Livonia Public School district pays its crossing guards, said Sgt. Peter Brokas of the Westland Police Department. In the rest of Westland, the paid guards work for the city.

"They're all trained by us and equipped by us," Brokas said. Drivers are bound by the stop signs held by guards, and there have been a few incidents in Westland of drivers ignoring the signs.

"And we prosecute those people," he said.

Those who wish to become crossing guards must be healthy. They are put through a background check and a training program, both for new guards and a refresher for veterans. Brokas said there's no upper age limit.

The sergeant said it's essential for motorists "to expect the unexpected" from students as school starts. "One of them may run out into the street."

It's not a good combination to have harried parents getting kids to school and themselves to work in the morning, he said.

"Be cautious, because they are more apt to do these crazy types of things." Children are less likely to act up when they're alone.

The burden of caring for kids around school falls on adult motorists, Brokas said. "They're not going to be cautious so it's up to us."

Kids need to avoid walking in the street, he said, and should look both ways when crossing streets. Young people who walk in the street rather than on the sidewalk could be issued a violation and sent to juvenile court.

Fast-food giant McDonald's Corp. plans to serve up some fast redevelopment on a dilapidated Westland corner.

The company intends to open a new restaurant by year's end on the northeast corner of Wayne and Palmer roads - after demolishing a boarded-up bank and an existing McDonald's.

The company plans to tear down a former NBD building and an older McDonald's on a 1.7-acre site, replacing them with a new restaurant. A portion of land north of the new McDonald's will be landscaped but will remain vacant until a new business chooses to locate there.

Company officials announced the time line Tuesday after receiving sweeping approval from Westland City Council members to move ahead.

Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin said the plan will mark "a dramatic improvement" for one of Westland's major intersections.

DeHart, state rep, shares knowledge with seniors

State Rep. Eileen DeHart, guest of honor Tuesday morning at Marquette House in Westland, diplomatically refrained from criticizing Republican Gov. John Engler.

Instead, in her visit to the assisted living facility near John Glenn High School, the veteran legislator discussed such things as the Y2K crisis. "In another couple of months, we're going to reach a new milestone," DeHart, D-Westland, said of the year 2000. There are concerns about computer readiness. "It's amazing how our world revolves around computers," she told the group gathered in the dining room. Every day, we use more than 200 microchips, she said.

"And we are going to be OK," she said. "I'm not here to alarm you. We're going to be fine." Smart people are working on the Y2K problem, DeHart said.

DeHart described herself as a "moderate Democrat" in response to a question. "You're very lucky because not all seniors have those benefits," she told a Ford Motor Co. retiree.

The legislator discussed tobacco suit settlement money, which she advocates

Gas station pump ignites when struck Sunday

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

A gas pump burst into flames Sunday after a Westland man backed his pickup truck into it, fleeing as fire threatened to engulf an Amoco station at Wayne and Palmer, fire and police officials said.

A shutoff valve likely prevented what Fire Chief Mark Neal said "could have been a much worse fire."

Authorities reported no serious injuries, but Neal estimated damages at $50,000.

"The flames from the fire destroyed the pump and the canopy above the pump area," Neal said.

The fire erupted at 7:50 p.m. Sunday at an Amoco station on the southeast corner of Wayne and Palmer.

A Ford pickup driver who knocked the gas pump off its foundation "got out of the vehicle and ran around the lot frantically before he got back into the vehicle and fled," a police report said.

An alert witness trailed the 19-year-old suspect to a house on nearby Freeman, where police said the pickup driver met up with his sister and a third person.

With the suspect now a passenger, the trio headed north on Wayne Road only to be stopped near Farragut by a police officer who saw the getaway truck, the police report said.

The suspect's sister told police she was with him when the accident occurred - and that they were returning to the gas station.

But the pickup driver finally admitted he was alone after learning that witnesses saw only him in the truck, the police report said.

"He stated that he was using the pay phone at the station and then, before he knew it, the pickup went out of gear and went backwards into the pumps," the report said. "He stated that when it caught fire he got scared and fled the location."

using for health care costs and smoking prevention efforts. Many in DeHart's family have, or have died, from smoking-related illnesses, she said, and the majority of her five children have smoked at some time. "We need to crack down on those people who are selling cigarettes to 13-year-olds." DeHart shared with the residents that she's nearly 51 and a member of the American Association of Retired Persons. DeHart also went through a book she distributed on senior services, covering tax credits, health care, housing, transportation and other issues. She had visited the assisted living facility previously. "We've been trying to get more experience for our residents into government," said Cindy Jedinak, administrator at Marquette House. Westland Mayor Robert Thomas recently visited. "The residents really enjoyed that," Jedinak said. She's seen a lot of interest among the seniors in voting, "which I think is great." The facility currently houses 70 people. Tuesday morning, DeHart brought a proclamation to Marquette House in recognition of assisted living.

Alm high: Devin Scillian, an anchorman for WDIV-TV (Channel 4) urges the chamber of commerce audience to have high expectations of television programming. Scillian spoke Tuesday at Roma's of Garden City.

Speaker urges TV viewers to seek quality in content

BY LEONARD POGER
STAFF WRITER
lpoger@oe.homecomm.net

TV news viewers should demand more serious content from their local stations to improve the quality of news programs, an estimated 170 suburban business and professional people were told Tuesday by a newscaster.

Devin Scillian, a WDIV-TV (Channel 4) anchorman, told the members of five suburban chambers of commerce that they should be more demanding of serious TV news stories instead of those stories that are merely interesting.

He admitted that he is disturbed at what he sees on TV.

Scillian, with Channel 4 for four years, urged his audience to urge station managers to have more serious news stories - the same message he gives his own bosses, he said.

Attending the luncheon program in the Roma Hall banquet hall in Garden City were members of the chambers of Garden City, Westland, Redford Township, Wayne and Dearborn Heights.

Two chamber members interviewed after Scillian's talk agreed with the speaker.

"People should be more careful of what they watch," said Will Tipton, a Garden City-based real estate business owner. "Then we'll get better programs to view."

Diane Abbott, the city of Westland's municipal cable TV and community relations contractor, felt that Scillian's comments were "well-thought out and well-founded," adding that she enjoys Scillian's newscasts.

The anchorman told the chambers' members that TV consultants, with the support of station owners, are behind the change in news and other TV programming.

He recalled that during the golden age of TV during the 1950s and '60s, most families gathered around the TV set at 6 p.m. to watch the evening news.

"But now there is no longer a need to watch TV news," he said because stations are no longer satisfying the viewers' needs.

"I tell my bosses that good, sound journalism can make money and draw viewers," Scillian said.

He told his audience that "you should demand good TV journalism - then you'll get it."

The anchorman told his audience that "you have remarkable power to make changes (in TV news programs) and you should harness that power."

"You should consult your TV guide" to decide what to watch, "reward good television and take back control of TV news."

An example of how TV news and audience have changed since the 1960s is the Washington Post's continuous coverage of the Watergate issue although it was largely ignored by the public. The issue led to the 1974 resignation of President Richard Nixon.

But in the past 20-plus years, there have been many major technological changes in TV news, such as scores of new cable channels, satellites and the Internet, Scillian said.

Now, he pointed out, "people can get what they want, when they want it."

Chamber leaders also reminded their audience of the Five Star Expo program to be held 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday in Joy Manor, on Joy between Inkster Road and Middlebelt in Westland.

New world: There have been many changes which influence TV programming, Devin Scillian told his audience.

Livonia Mall now has a Crowley's Value City

Borrowing on the name of its predecessor, a longtime Detroit-area retailer, Value City opened at Livonia Mall last week.

Called Crowley's Value City, the store offers name-brand and designer goods at below-department-store prices, said John Willey, a regional vice president with the company. The Livonia location was one of three Value City stores in the Detroit area that officially opened in former Crowley's stores on Sept. 2.

"We've welcomed them like a good neighbor," said Livonia Mall manager Carl Zarbo. "I think this community's going to be very very pleased with their presence."

"Livonia did exceedingly well" in sales on its first day, Willey said. Another new Crowley's Value City in Roseville, which had a "soft" opening a few weeks ago, became the chain's top store, Willey said.

The Columbus, Ohio-based company has about 100 Value City stores in the Midwest, East and South.

At Livonia Mall, there are about 220 Value City employees, and the store is continuing to hire, Willey said.

Zarbo said a survey done during the Sept. 2 opening showed Value City was bringing people to Livonia Mall from beyond the mall's primary trade area - about a three-mile radius. Many shoppers said it was their first time at the mall, or their first time in at least a year, Zarbo said.

"We're obviously extremely pleased with that type of a situation," he said.

The new Crowley's Value City stores in Livonia, Roseville and Warren join established Value City locations in Westland and Taylor.

PLACES & FACES

Carnival time

Nightingale West Healthcare Center is sponsoring an annual carnival Sunday, Sept. 19, at the facility, 8365 Newburgh in Westland. Hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Games, music, food and fun will be featured at the carnival, which is open to the public. For information, call Birdie Goynes, (734) 416-2000.

Fair winner

Dorothy Tinkle of the Holliday Park Townhouses in Westland won three ribbons at the Michigan State Fair Community Arts Section. They were for a dress she sewed, a knitted sweater and a crocheted sweater. This makes 17 ribbons she has won at the Michigan State Fair in the last four years.

Jaycees Road Rally

The Westland Jaycees will have a Polaroid Road Rally Saturday, Sept. 25, starting at American Power Wash on Wayne Road (registration 5 p.m., start 5:30 p.m.) and ending 7:30 p.m. at

Blarney Bay Pub on Warren

Price of $50 per team (two- to five-person) includes two rolls of film, one bucket of wings and a medium pizza, and a coupon book valued at $400. Registration should be done by Sept. 22; call (734) 480-4984. Grand prize is $300.

Alzheimer's

The Marquette House Alzheimer's Support Group will meet 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 30, at the facility, on Marquette across from John Glenn High School in Westland. The group is open to families and friends of people with Alzheimer's disease. For information, call Peggy Hebling, (734) 326-6537.

Walking along

The Westland Walkers meet the second Wednesday of each month, except during the summer. Westland Center opens its doors to walkers 7 a.m. at Arcade 2 by Olga's Kitchen. Mall walking ends 10 a.m.

it's done next year," Dittmar said.

Officials named several other streets that they said are in dire need of repairs. Thomas called one north-end street, Donna, the "absolute worst" but said the project will cost "big bucks."

Councilman David Cox said some streets in the city's south-east end are deteriorating.

Administration officials noted that a 1-mill tax increase would generate $1.4 million a year for local street repairs, but the issue fueled little discussion Tuesday — one week before a council primary.

Thomas also said the city could study long-term financing options for citywide street improvements.

Anderson, who has made Westland's "crumbling infrastructure" one of his top campaign issues, said Tuesday that the city desperately needs a priority list for street repairs.

"We're talking about just putting out fires right now, rather than looking at the big picture," he said.

take place," Councilman Glenn Anderson said Tuesday during a meeting.

Council members supported the golden arches development by approving a site plan and a special land use proposal. McDonald's had publicly unveiled its vision for the Wayne-Palmer site one month ago.

Griffin said the plan will mark new development in a Wayne Road commercial corridor that the city is trying to spruce up.

"I think it's a vast improvement along our downtown development area," he said.

Council members in August had indicated that their support for the project could hinge on whether McDonald's would agree to demolish an abandoned restaurant on Merriman north of Van Born. But city officials learned that McDonald's is engaged in talks with a possible buyer who is considering a sit-down only restaurant at the Merriman site.

McDonald's pledged Tuesday that if negotiations aren't successful within 90 days, the company will proceed with demolishing the building.

Livonia teachers picketing

By MARIE CHESTNEY
 STAFF WRITER
 mchestney@oe.hometown.com

Pickets carried by Stevenson High teachers Tuesday put the spotlight squarely on what Superintendent Ken Watson, in the latest issue of the district's newsletter, calls Livonia Public Schools' "secure financial position."

"Big surplus, but teachers get shortchanged," read one sign carried by a Stevenson teacher outside administrative offices at 15125 Farmington Road.

The district's hefty rainy day fund — about $25 million — is a figure that can't be ignored during negotiations on a teachers' contract that expired Aug. 16.

"We not objecting to opening up our pocketbook; it's just a matter of how wide," said Steven Smith, assistant superintendent for personnel and one of the district's negotiators.

Both sides returned to the bargaining table Wednesday under a contract that has been extended to Sept. 30.

Picketing is slated to take place both at district headquarters and at the high schools into next week in the teachers' attempt to reach a contract settlement.

On Tuesday, Karen Zyczynski, president of the Livonia Education Association and an elementary teacher, joined the Stevenson teachers during their hour-

■ 'We're willing to talk through the weekend to get a contract.'

Steven Smith
 —assistant superintendent long picketing duty. She said that a settlement could be close at hand.

Smith said negotiations could continue throughout the weekend.

"We're willing to talk through the weekend to get a contract," Smith said. "We believe we made some progress last week."

He declined to be specific but added: "At this stage, everything is pretty significant."

All week, a new group of teachers is expected to picket district headquarters after school. Churchill teachers were expected Wednesday, Franklin today and a mixture of teachers from various schools on Friday.

In addition to the healthy rainy day fund, Livonia teachers also have spotlighted the word "quality."

"Quality work deserves quality pay," read one sign carried Tuesday by a Stevenson teacher.

"We won't let the community down," Zyczynski said. "We intend to provide students with the same high quality education we've always provided. We have quality schools, a quality teaching staff and a quality working environment. We want to be sure to maintain all this."

Like the teachers, all school district employees are working under an extended contract, either formal or informal.

Three groups of workers represented by the LEA — paraprofessionals, secretaries and supervisory personnel — have a signed contract extension which ends Sept. 30, the same day the teachers' contract extension ends.

Two other groups, administrators and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, have informal extensions with the district.

"We'll bargain after the teachers' contract is settled," said Karen Winters, president of the administrators' union, Livonia Educational Administrators and Supervisors.

"No employee is working without a contract," Smith said. Smith called "unusual" the fact that all contracts expired this summer.

Last year, possibly to offset a barrage of bargaining all taking place at the same time, the district offered its 1,200 teachers a one-year contract extension. Teachers rejected the offer.

Raises negotiated by teachers generally set the stage for the pay hikes given to the other unions.

"We're willing to wait, but we're anxious to get started," Winters said.

Consumers urged to be protect personal information

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

"Identity theft" -- crimes in which the perpetrators use personal information about the victims to run up debts or drain bank accounts -- is on the rise, and the Michigan Attorney General's office is warning state residents to take precautions.

Attorney General Jennifer Granholm issued a consumer alert Thursday urging residents to guard personal bank account and credit card information against theft.

"This is an extremely difficult area to get a handle on," Stanley Pruss, chief of the AG's Consumer Protection division, said. "Nationally, it has become a $40 billion a year problem. In Michigan, if you were to count all identity frauds in which someone, using fraudulent means, impersonated another to run up credit card debt or drain a bank account, there must be hundreds if not thousands of instances."

And thieves are coming up with new ways to obtain that personal information about their victims.

"We have recently heard of a 'year 2000' scam, preying on people's fears, in which a caller states they are from the consumer's bank and requests account information saying that the information is needed to ensure that the bank can comply with 'year 2000' requirements. Once the thief gets the information, the fraud artist accesses and depletes the consumer's accounts," the consumer alert stated.

This reported scam occurred out of the state, but Pruss said he believes the ruse may be in use here as well.

Personal information can be stolen in a variety of ways, by stealing wallets or searching of the mail or trash from the victim's to find old bank or credit card statements.

"Identity thieves have a distasteful habit of going through trash; it's called 'dumpster diving.' It may be trash to you, but it can be a gold mine for them," the AG's office stated.

More sophisticated techniques of using computers to read and store information from the magnetic strip of an ATM or credit card are also being used. Identity thieves have even been known to call financial institutions, pretending to be the customer, and trick employees into releasing personal account information, the consumer alert states.

The AG's office offers the following tips to protect yourself:

- Guard your personal identifying information. Before giving personal or financial information, know how it will be used and whether it will be transferred to third parties. Often, there are choices. If you have a choice, opt out of releasing personal or financial information.

- Use care in disposing of charge receipts, insurance forms, bank checks and statements, even credit offers and applications.

- Use caution when placing outgoing mail, such as credit card payments, in your mailbox and raising the flag for the postal carrier. This can be an invitation to an identity thief to steal your mail and obtain valuable information.

- Carefully review credit card and bank statements for unauthorized activity and discrepancies.

- Do not provide your credit card number or other personal information over the telephone unless you have initiated the call.

- If you shop over the Internet, check on security measures before entering personal information or your credit card number and be sure you are dealing with a reputable business. If you don't know the company, check it out first.

- File a police report and get a copy of the report. Credit card companies, financial institutions and insurance companies may require a police report to verify the crime.

- Report the fraud to your credit card issuers and financial institutions.

- Notify the Federal Trade Commission. The 1998 Identity Theft and Assumption Deterrence Act directs the FTC to maintain a database of identity fraud complaints and to refer victims to the appropriate authorities.

If you are a victim of identity theft take immediate action to minimize the damage. Contact the fraud department of the three major credit bureaus listed below. Request that your file be flagged with a fraud alert advising creditors to call you prior to opening new accounts in your name.

Nankin Mills hosts botany hike

The Rouge River's floodplain habitat may not be the bayou, but it provides the perfect environment for a variety of floodplain plants like the Green Dragon and Hackberry. Nature enthusiasts are invited to enjoy a day of "botanizing" 1:30-3:30 p.m. Saturday at the Nankin Mills Interpretive Center.

Plant lovers of all ages can learn about floodplain plants on a two-mile hike through the Ellsworth Section of the Holliday Nature Preserve. Participants will also hike along the bike trail to view other plants that call Hines Park their home.

Enthusiasts are encouraged to wear water-resistant shoes as the area may be muddy. They should also be prepared for any lingering mosquitoes. Suitable for ages 8 and up, the fee is $1 per person and advance registration is required.

The program is made possible through the funding from the parks millage.

The Nankin Mills Interpretive Center is located on Hines Drive just east of Ann Arbor Trail in Westland. Parking is available off Hines Drive and can be reached even if the road is barricaded for flooding.

For information on this or any other parks event, call (734) 261-1990.

Commission OKs rodent control program

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oc.homecomm.net

Wayne County soon will be re-establishing a rodent prevention and control program.

On Aug. 31, county commissioners approved a $2.7 billion budget, which included $60,000 for the rodent control program.

A rodent control ordinance, introduced by Commissioner Kathleen Husk, R-Redford, also is expected to be officially read for a second time before commissioners on Sept. 16, which makes the ordinance legal upon publication.

Husk introduced the ordinance to assist residents who complained about rats, particularly in the community of Dearborn Heights. "They were concerned and upset," Husk said. "There was a program about 20 years ago, but after the funds ran out, Wayne County stopped the pro-need for it."

Some Redford residents also have complained of rodents, but Husk hasn't received quite as many complaints from that community as she has from Dearborn Heights.

Husk hopes the state can obtain additional funds. "The Department of Agriculture is working on a grant from the federal government," Husk said.

Husk's ordinance authorizes that an environmental health education program will be developed to stop neighborhood rodent infestations, and authorizes Wayne County's division of public health services to enter into cooperative agreements with municipalities to start a joint rodent prevention and control program.

The resolution also states:

■ Rat infestations have become a "substantial if not yet serious threat" to the public health in many Wayne County communities;

■ Rat populations can multiply rapidly in any area in which household food garbage is placed in plastic disposal bags, but the bags are not stored in rat-proof containers.

■ Rats are known to carry fleas, lice, ticks and several diseases, which can be transmitted to pets and sometimes to humans.

■ Low levels of rat infestation are rarely noticed. Homeowners tend to self-help when rat populations rise to the level of becoming commonly visible and set traps and poison baits. The use of rat traps and baits, however, presents hazards to pets and children.

Hearings set on deregulation

Residents who wish to discuss telephone deregulation or electric or natural gas restructuring can attend a consumer forum at 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 30, at Westland City Hall's council chambers, 36601 Ford Road.

Members of the Michigan Public Service Commission will discuss changes in the natural gas, electric and telephone industries and how these affect consumers.

After years of receiving utility service from monopoly providers, some customer now have a choice in selecting their natural gas and electric supplier. The telephone industry is also changing — introducing new services, features and charges.

Topics include the experiences of telephone deregulation, the benefits and difficulties; and electric and natural gas restructuring — what it is and what consumers can expect.

The Michigan Public Service Commission is an agency within the Department of Consumer and Industry Services.

Michigan stronger against recession

Michigan workers are more likely to keep their jobs throughout the business cycle, with 25,000 fewer job losses in the next recession, according to a study commissioned by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

The study, conducted by the Anderson Economic Group, found that Michigan's economy today provides a higher return to Michigan workers, both in income growth and employment growth, with less risk, than at any previous time in the last quarter century.

"We wanted to take an objective look at whether Michigan's economy has become significantly more diversified in the last 25 years," said Doug Rothwell, president and CEO of the Michigan Economic Development Corporation. "These results lend credence to the idea that Michigan is becoming more diverse."

The study also indicates that changes in Michigan's economy have lessened the likely severity of the next recession.

"With the recessions of the 1960s and '70s, Michigan got hit hard, with up to a 4 percent loss in employment," Rothwell said. "This survey shows that if a recession hit today, our losses would be about 20 percent less severe due to diversification."

That's 25,000 people insulated from the effects of the next downturn in the business cycle, Rothwell said.

The study noted several other improvements, including:

■ Michigan's manufacturing sector, which accounted for 30 percent of employment 25 years ago, now makes up only about half that share. However, Michigan still has a larger percentage share of manufacturing employment than the U.S. as a whole;

■ Much of the manufacturing decline comes from the automotive industry, but accounts for only a few less workers in absolute numbers, since larger growth has occurred in other industry sectors;

■ Michigan's manufacturers are "better prepared" to compete nationally;

■ The service sector of Michigan's economy has doubled in the last 25 years, from 15 to 30 percent. This sector includes those in the health care industry, accountants, attorneys, engineers and many other high-skill jobs.

To view this study online, visit the Michigan Economic Development Corporation website at www.michigan.org.

County begins first Head Start training

Wayne County will be conducting its first training session since taking over the out-county Head Start grant this spring.

The daylong training will bring together more than 600 Head Start workers Sept. 24 at the Cobo Center in Detroit. The training session, "Working with Families in the New Millennium," runs from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and features several workshops, covering topics such as family intervention services, the promotion of family literacy and getting men involved in the program.

Wayne County's Head Start program is just getting under way.

Wayne County was notified by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in May that it was awarded $20.6 million for an out-county Head Start Program. Of that, approximately $16 million was awarded in federal funds, and the balance in in-kind services from schools, social service agencies and other programs.

Wayne County took over operations Sept. 1 from Wayne County Regional Educational Services Agency.

One of the county's goals is to increase enrollment. "With 30,000 eligible children, we're working hard to get the word out that we want to increase enrollment," said Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara. Wayne County's program is among the five largest in the Midwest.

The program is available in 25 out-county communities. Children participating in Head Start receive assistance with education, health, nutrition and literacy. The program also assists the families of the children in areas of health care, employment and housing.

For further information about the training, contact (734) 334-1300 or (313) 224-5454.

Madonna offers math for elementary teachers

Madonna University in Livonia has launched a new academic major - mathematics for elementary teachers. The new program has been approved by the Michigan Department of Education.

"This area of study is specifically designed for students who want to teach mathematics at the K-8 level," said Sister Kathleen Wlodarczak, chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department.

The major is based on the guidelines of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education. Five new courses have been introduced to help elementary teachers gain a deeper understanding of the mathematics they teach and the methods they use to help children learn. The courses are: algebraic thinking and proportional reasoning, geometry for elementary teachers, reasoning and proof in the elementary mathematics classroom, technology in the elementary mathematics classroom and senior seminar in elementary mathematics education.

For more information about the mathematics for elementary teachers program, call the admissions office at (734) 432-5339.

Road crew and 'Intimidator' pave I-275, north of 5 Mile

kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

Once again, motorists who use Seven Mile to access I-275 can expect detours while ramps accessing the freeway's northbound lanes are paved today.

On Tuesday, construction workers from John Carlo started paving new northbound lanes for I-275 north of Five Mile Road. Those crews and equipment will include the infamous "Intimidator," a spreader that can pour concrete about 36 feet wide or about three lanes, one lane more than the traditional spreaders complete.

Once crews reached the Six Mile Road interchange, they closed entrance and exit ramps there for new ramps to be paved. Those ramps are expected to be completed by today (Thursday), if it didn't rain Wednesday.

Officials at the Michigan Department of Transportation expected crews to reach the Seven Mile interchange by today or Friday, at which time those ramps will be closed for new pavement to be poured and cured for new ramps there.

"That's if the weather cooperates," said Robin Pannecouk, spokesperson for the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Once that is completed, crews will proceed north to Eight Mile. Those ramps are expected to be paved next week. The freeway's four lanes and two shoulders will be rebuilt, along with entrance and exit ramps and bridge decks.

Northbound traffic on Michigan's second busiest freeway has been shifted since June to the southbound side starting north of Five Mile Road. It is slated for completion in October.

The northbound freeway's four lanes and two shoulders will be rebuilt, along with entrance and exit ramps and bridge decks.

Travel Michigan reports a record summer season

(PRNewswire) - "We thought it couldn't get any better than the summer of '98, but from what we are hearing from our partners in the industry - it did!" said Susy Avery, vice president of Travel Michigan, Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

An economy that just "keeps on ticking," exceptional weather conditions, and a robust response by travelers to Michigan's "Great Lakes. Great Times" campaign have kept record numbers of travelers on the move in Michigan this summer. "Our prediction for a four percent increase in summer travel in the state appears to be right on target, and may even be surpassed once final figures are in later this year," Avery added.

With the last official weekend of the summer on tap, an informal regional sampling of the state revealed nearly carbon copy reports about Michigan's summer travel season:

"I never thought we could beat the 'summer of all summers' (1998), but we did!" said Carol Potter, executive director of the Cadillac Area Visitors Bureau. "Restaurants are busy, lodging facilities' occupancy rates are way up - this has really been a grand summer!"

The Southwestern Michigan Tourist Council (SMTC) which represents Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties, reported that area attractions and lodging facilities have experienced anywhere from two percent to 25 percent increases over last year.

"Our area is a favorite destination for families due to all of the recreational activities and attractions that are so prevalent here," said Phyllis Dowsett, executive director of the SMTC. "Southwestern Michigan business owners and their staffs provide good friendly service to their customers, and they enjoy coming back to visit year after year," she added.

Tom Ferguson, executive director of Michigan's Sunrise Side, which represents Michigan's northeastern quadrant of the Lower Peninsula, couldn't agree more. "We've had an above average summer with people traveling around the region," he said. "There is plenty to see and do here - great golf and great times!"

Farther north, the Upper Peninsula Travel & Recreation Association reported that the summer of '99 has been "busier than ever."

And Travel Michigan doesn't see things slowing anytime soon. "Michigan is going to be 'the place to be' for great fall color this year," added Avery.

Travelers may call Travel Michigan's toll-free line, 888-78-GREAT, to receive free Michigan travel publications, including the new 1999-2000 Michigan Fall/Winter Calendar of Events & Travel Guide. Michigan fall-color conditions may also be accessed by calling 888-78-GREAT, 24-hours a day.

Schoolcraft; Madonna collaborate on online education

Lynda Mammel always believed she would have been further along in her career if she had a college degree, but she was never willing to give up the time it would take to earn a degree.

Now she studies three hours a night and spends most of Saturday and Sunday doing homework.

Mammel is a member of the first group of OMNIBUS students, the Online Multi-degrees in National and International Business program that is a collaboration between Schoolcraft College and Madonna University. OMNIBUS students earn three-degrees in four years, all online, in one of the few completely online multi-degree programs in the country.

"When OMNIBUS came along, it was a blessing," said Mammel, a senior recruiter for an automotive engineering consulting firm who lives in Livonia.

"I will be 50 this month, and I need to do this quickly. A person's work life is only so long. That's why OMNIBUS appealed to me," Mammel added that she can get her degree, and "do something with it."

The 19 OMNIBUS students received their associate degrees from Schoolcraft College in May and are on to Madonna University where they will earn a bachelor's degree in November 2000 and a master's degree in July 2001. Even though OMNIBUS is an accelerated curriculum, all 19 placed on the Schoolcraft dean's list.

OMNIBUS is designed for working adults without college degrees who have achieved a measure of success and made the decision to move forward in their careers. Students apply once, and the $185 per credit tuition, including all fees, books and course materials, is guaranteed for four years, making the $28,000 cost for three degrees an affordable prospect.

The 19 students in the first cohort average 35 to 40 years old and tend to be in middle management. Several have attended college, but because of families, transfers or other complications, do not have degrees. The majority of students in the second cohort work in the automotive industry, with wide experience in factory set ups and international business.

Kathleen Goncalves, another member of the first cohort, had 2-1/2 years of premed studies when she decided to travel around the world instead. A Farmington Hills resident, she has worked for Northwest Airlines for 30 years and plans to seek a new career when she finishes OMNIBUS with her master's degree.

"For adult education, this is the wave of the future," Goncalves said of the online program. "A bachelor's degree is not the answer for a person who really wants to go far in her career. OMNIBUS gets a person from step A to step Z, and when you leave the program, you have your master's."

"This is a very intelligent program Schoolcraft and Madonna have put together, and the people involved have been dedicated to making it work well."

OMNIBUS students do their work, their team projects and communication online. The program stresses core business skills, information retrieval from electronic as well as traditional sources, skills in managing work using information technology, teamwork skills and global management and leadership skills. The work is divided into three 12-week terms and one four-week intersession, with no classes in August and December.

OMNIBUS student Oliver Bosnjakovski, a software/network engineer, travels and spends late hours at work to finish projects.

"Because of work, I probably would miss most of the classes if I had to show up on campus," he said. "Usually I am so exhausted from work, I wouldn't want to sit in a classroom for several hours. To a point, OMNIBUS lets me set my own schedule and pace."

Bosnjakovski said going online also means more interaction than in a traditional classroom. "In most classrooms, only a few students participate and the rest listen," he said. "OMNIBUS makes everyone interact with each other. I know I am much more active and learn more in this environment."

As for being distracted by hearth and home, Bosnjakovski said it doesn't happen.

"Would I rather be stuck in a classroom in the middle of summer looking out the window, or would I rather be home, relaxed, with my books in front of me? The answer is obvious."

Of course, not everything happens online. Mammel said she made sure she got everyone's phone number at orientation, and she has formed a support group with other students who talk on the phone almost daily. When some students had trouble with algebra, Schoolcraft provided tutoring help, and they traveled to the campus twice a week for assistance.

The tutor made sure the OMNIBUS students understood how they got answers to the algebra problems they received online.

Jeanne Bonner, Schoolcraft associate dean for liberal arts, independent and distance learning, said often course work is integrated so that, as an example, students taking political science, economics and statistics courses might work on one project for all three classes, perhaps examining a political science topic from statistical and economic points of view.

"Everyone has to participate online, so everyone has to consider each other's ideas," said Bonner. "Some employers give our students permission to do classwork from their office after work. We encourage the students to go outside traditional lines and explore the Web. Last spring in art appreciation, they took a virtual tour of the Louvre and other world-class museums."

Planning for OMNIBUS began in 1995 with representatives of both schools, and the curriculum they developed meets both schools' requirements. There are monthly meetings with all faculty and staff.

Bonner said the biggest challenge has been to help faculty rethink a traditional 16-week course into a 12-week online interactive learning experience.

Applications currently are being accepted for the fall term, which begins with orientation the weekend of Sept. 11-12.

Engler, local road agencies square off on road priorities

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

The state Legislature's effort to rewrite Public Act 51, the law that details how roads taxes are divided up, is rapidly turning into a showdown between local road agencies and Gov. John Engler.

A coalition of local agencies - represented by the County Road Association of Michigan, the Michigan Association of Counties, the Michigan Farm Bureau, the Michigan Municipal League, the Michigan Public Transit Association and the 3-C Transportation Planning Director's Association - presented recommendations to the state's Transportation Funding Study Committee Thursday, Sept. 2. The coalition was quickly labeled by committee members as "the Band of Six."

And the proposals were not well received.

"I'm disappointed that the Band of Six has endorsed the status quo. You don't do your members any favors endorsing a formula that takes in $1.7 billion to the Michigan Transportation Fund and nets out $1.38 billion," Sen. Phil Hoffman, R-Jackson, a member of study committee, said. "If you are going to endorse the status quo, why are you wasting our time? Embracing the status quo is unacceptable. What we need to be doing is developing a new transportation formula."

The criticism was echoed by Greg Rosine, spokesman for the Engler administration.

"This governor will not accept the status quo," he said. "He will not accept a proposal that nibbles around the edges but does not add strategic investment in our roads. It's irresponsible."

Local agencies weren't happy with the response.

"I'm a little surprised," said Craig Bryson of the Oakland County Road Commission. "I think Sen. Hoffman sold the proposal a little short. There are new ideas in there, but they were also designed not to incite disagreement. Before we go making changes to the formula, we need to do an objective, scientific needs study."

Local road agencies are calling for the study to document the road improvements needed on all roads - state, county and local. They argue that Act 51 has never before been amended without first conducting a needs study.

But the Michigan Department of Transportation and the administration oppose a needs study, "probably because they know it would show needs on local road which the MDOT would prefer to ignore," Bryson said.

Not so, according to Gary Naeyaert, director of communications for the MDOT. The only thing a needs study will show, he says, is the need for more taxes.

"What we need is a prioritized investment strategy for the money we have," Naeyaert argued. "We agree there is not enough money to satisfy the needs, wants and desires of everyone in the state, but we have $600 million in new dollars that we have just started collecting from the 4-cent gas tax increase ... That increase passed - let me do the math - with zero votes to spare in the Legislature. This governor is not going to accept another gas tax increase."

Naeyaert said: "All a study will do is create this massive Christmas list of 'needs' and show that more money is needed to meet them. It will show we have $10 gazillion in needs, but we only have $4 gazillion in funding."

And so it goes, on nearly every point, with local agencies butting heads with the Engler administration, as the state tries to rewrite its road finance formula. First passed in 1951, Public Act 51 specifies that the Michigan Transportation Fund is to be divided so that 39.1 percent goes to the state, 39.1 percent goes to counties and 21.8 percent goes to cities and villages. The formula has seen no end to controversy as local agencies and the MDOT have jostled the amount of money necessary to maintain and improve their assigned roads.

To force a resolution, the Legislature voted to let Act 51 expire. The date has changed several times, but currently it is due to expire in September 2000. In response, Engler appointed a nine-member study committee including Hoffman, Sen. Joseph Young, Jr., D-Detroit, Rep. Rick Johnson, R-LeRoy, and Rep. Thomas Kelly, D-Wayne.

Also on the panel are Sam Hart, a resident of Livonia and the business manager of the International Union of Operating Engineers; Robert Hetzler of Bay City; Jordan Tatter of Watervliet; Richard White, Corporate Council of AAA Michigan; and Bob Welke, an independent engineer.

Welke, who is the panel's chairman, said he wants to have recommendations for revisions to Act 51 in draft form early in October.

But the committee is getting way ahead of itself, according to Ron DeCook, deputy director of the County Road Association of Michigan. The MDOT jumped the gun a few meetings back when it submitted a list of recommendations to the study committee. The list of recommendations drafted by the local road agencies is largely in response to that, DeCook explained.

"I don't think our recommendations are an endorsement of the status quo," Jim Miller of the Michigan Farm Bureau said. "They are reactive to what we have heard in the past few months, particularly from the MDOT."

"This is not a status-quo proposal," Dan Gilmartin of the Michigan Municipal League agreed. "The edges they say we are nibbling around look more like cliffs to some of us ... It's irresponsible to offer changes without a clear vision of the needs. It's important to do the study."

Other issues in dispute are: ■ A proposal by local agencies that recognition be given that "all roads are equal."

"At some point, you have to get off that state highway and use county and local roads to get where you are going," DeCook said. "I think to residents of the state, it is important that all those roads be in good condition."

Responds Naeyaert: "Clearly, not all roads are equal." The MDOT wants the function and utility of a road, as well as traffic counts to be accounted for in the formula. The MDOT has jurisdiction of only a small percentage of the state's roadways, but since those roads are expressways and highways, they carry the lion's share of traffic. Function and traffic counts are not currently considered in the formula, he said.

■ Local agencies called for an increase in diesel taxes to match the tax currently applies to gasoline sales. "That's chump change," said Naeyaert. The MDOT wants the increase applied to commercial trucks as well.

■ The MDOT wants to require that local partnerships end differences in how municipalities treat roads within their jurisdictions. Local agencies say they are cooperating now and the MDOT should stay out of it.

Heaven's angels? Motorcyclists display heart

Don't judge a book by its cover. You've heard that advice, perhaps from your mother. It certainly rings true in the case of the Motor City Chapter of HOG (Harley Owners Group).

The motorcyclists are gearing up for a Sept. 19 "toy run" to start and end in Westland, winding through neighboring communities. Chapter members hope to collect an abundance of toys and thousands of dollars for charities they support.

David Higgins, chapter director, said the toy run started five years ago in honor of a couple of deceased members. Higgins, a Westland resident known by the nickname "Mother Dave," said each motorcyclist donates $5 and a new toy.

The Salvation Army, Head Start and other organizations have received support from the

HOG chapter event.

You may have an image in mind of a black-leather-clad biker, sneering and generally causing trouble. These local motorcyclists show that appearances can be deceiving — and that good hearts can beat under the ribs of all.

Higgins can be reached at (734) 421-7614, and any rider can show up on Sept. 19. The run will leave Westland City Hall at noon, last about an hour and end at AMVETS Post 171 in Westland. Higgins is hoping for a few hundred bikers.

Those who don't ride are welcome to contribute. Let's give this community endeavor support.

Vote: Make your voice heard

The field of Westland City Council candidates currently includes 10 people, and soon will get narrower. Eight will get through the Tuesday, Sept. 14, primary and seek four seats in the Nov. 2 general election. Voters may vote for four in the primary.

The Observer has endorsed incumbent Glenn Anderson and challengers James Godbout, Michael Rintz and Dorothy Smith. After interviews with the 10 candidates, we chose these four, believing they are independent, fair-minded individuals who will serve the community well and vote their consciences.

Perhaps you favor someone else, and that's fine. We encourage all Westland residents to head to the polls, which will be open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday. It's your chance to choose your city council, and we encourage you to take advantage of the opportunity.

Edison's 'excuses' sound old

It's become the summertime routine around here the last few years. The minute the winds begin to pick up and the skies darken, grab your flashlight and your battery-operated radio — you're going to need them. Scattered power outages during thunderstorms or other tumultuous weather are understandable. Tree branches do come down, sometimes taking overhead power lines with them.

Edison officials, who have tracked the weather, note that nine storms over the last 14 months in metro Detroit included winds that were clocked at 60-85 mph, as opposed to a total of six in the five years before that.

But outages in western Wayne and southern Oakland counties are becoming the norm, not the exception. And not all are storm-related. That has us concerned. So does the response of Detroit Edison to its customers.

Most of the utility's recent public relations campaign alternates between invocation of the old "Act of God" clause with pleas for customers to dial up that thermostat while doing the laundry and other electricity-sapping chores at odd hours. Sounds kind of shallow if you're rooting around a musty cellar trying to stay cool — as many area residents have been in recent months.

Sections of Livonia, Northville and Farmington Hills suffered repeated outages throughout July and early August. In Redford Township, a July 30 transformer explosion sprayed mineral oil over the backyard and into the home of Dean and Cheryl Bessega. The Bessega's 6-year-old daughter was using a swingset underneath the transformer moments before it exploded and the family was concerned about PCB contamination, although the utility said it hasn't used the chemical in its transformers since the mid-1980s.

Edison cited overloaded circuits due to heavy air conditioner use for the Redford incident. In Northville, utility officials say older equipment, along with birds and squirrels who gnaw on power lines as contributing factors.

Ron May, Detroit Edison regional vice president for energy delivery and service, said the utility will spend $450-$500 million on maintenance and system improvements during 1999, consistent with its expenditures of the last several years. That figure includes $40 million for tree trimming, $6 million more than last year.

Edison maintains it is doing a better than adequate job keeping the power flowing, pointing out that it finished 11th in a 1998 survey of 41 electric utilities in that area. Edison customers suffered an average of 1.01 interruptions (outages of five minutes or longer) last year, according to the survey. "There were no outages reported for better than 50 percent of our customers," May said.

Still, May concedes that some 9,000-10,000 residential and business customers — those with repeat outage problems — have a right to complain. "They have a legitimate right to say I deserve better than this," he said.

Given the older nature of many area subdivisions the Observer wonders if the utility is doing enough to keep the system viable, especially while it still possesses a near monopoly on service. If burying lines underground isn't the answer — and Edison maintains it isn't — then what is? We're tired of seeing a utility that goes into "disaster mode" every summer.

Forget gutter language

Itake strong exception to Mr. Hugh Gallagher's views (in the Sept. 2 Observer) regarding the book "Fallen Angels" recently removed from the required reading list by Livonia Public School officials. He conveys the idea that it's OK to use books filled with vulgar, profane, obscene language, as long as a story is told and cultural or moral issues are raised and discussed. Frankly, I don't think parents or taxpayers want their schools used to teach gutter language, so I congratulate the parent who protested the book and also the school trustees for removing the book.

As far as the "power and meaning" of words, if I was mature and adventurous enough to use vivid and shocking profanity to convey my ideas in this article, wouldn't the Observer edit (i.e., censor) the objectionable words out? It should be the same for schools when they consider what type of books they select.

Cemetery neglected

This summer, I visited Clarenceville Cemetery. On June 23, 1896, my grandparents, Charles and Augusta Geistler, bought the southeast corner of Eight Mile and Middlebelt and had a farm there.

Charles' parents, Ferdinand and Maria (Harm), came to America in 1868. Now, they, and Charles and Augusta and several of their children are buried there, plus many, many other relatives.

I was astounded at the condition of the cemetery — vandalism and neglect have taken its toll. Broken monuments, broken markers, stones, upheaved monuments from growing trees and roots and weeds abound.

I am wondering why this cemetery has been neglected so. Who has the care of it? I am under the impression it is the city of Livonia. Is this correct? If not, what could be done?

Beautiful music

On the last Thursday of August, the Livonia Symphony Orchestra (with all of their instruments and equipment) and the audience of music-loving Livonia residents made a sudden pilgrimage from Civic Center Park to St. Maurice Church. The rainy weather had interfered with the concert which was being presented that night.

It was an amazing sight to watch. Cars poured into the parking lot, the orchestra members lugged their equipment into the church and set up quickly and — not one word of complaint was heard. Everyone was good-natured about the transition and smiles were everywhere in evidence.

When people were settled in the pews (and chairs), the concert resumed and each selection was greeted with wild applause. The soloist's beautiful soprano voice charmed the audience and she was given a standing ovation. People were so happy to be there.

The people who attended the concert did more than arrive — they willingly gathered up their chairs (and their children) and made the trip. They entered into the moment, singing and keeping time with the music, allowing themselves to feel the emotions which the music evoked.

The summer concerts have been a portrait of all that is best in America, a time when young and old gather to enjoy the gift of living in the United States of America.

People's money

In his column of Sept. 2, Philip Power falls for the liberal Democratic line that the Republican tax cut will hurt Social Security and Medicare.

The fact is that both Republicans and Democrats are committed to saving Social Security and Medicare. However, President Clinton, Al Gore and Debbie Stabenow want to spend the rest of the money on more liberal programs.

Republicans and Sen. Abraham, on the other hand, want to give the rest of the money back to the people. It is their money after all!

That is why Democrats are so shrill with their "scare" campaign. They are afraid they won't have those extra billions for more spending.

POINTS OF VIEW

When it comes to Nixon, he provides hindsight

A recent week marked the 25th anniversary of the resignation of President Richard Nixon, and it seems like everybody who even had a brief glimpse of the guy is on TV remembering when.

I never saw Richard Nixon, even though I chased him around for a long day in one of the most unlikely places possible, Michigan's Thumb.

Just mentioning the Thumb in polite company in suburban Detroit and you get blank stares. You can tell people can't envision what the place even looks like, although it's only an hour or so away.

Mention Higgins Lake, Tawas City, Traverse City or even Mount Pleasant, and there will be some recognition.

But when you mention Wisner, Watrousville, Parisville or Kingston, you get a blank stare. As obscure as some of those villages and towns are, they were visited by Nixon in his last year as president.

None of the TV pundits have brought that up, so I figured I should, even though I never saw the president that day.

Nixon was in Michigan to campaign for a Republican congressman who was running in an off-year election against a popular local Democrat. The Republican had been the aide of the former congressman and was an inside Washington-type guy.

It wasn't a good year to be either a Republican or a political insider.

The election was seen as a test of Nixon's political strength, and central Michigan and the Thumb were crawling with reporters from across the nation and the world.

New York Times reporters in their blue three-piece suits were becoming as ubiquitous as baseball caps with seed company logos on them in the Thumb.

The reporters were combing the Thumb for a story and papers like the Wall Street Journal and The New York Times were doing more digging than sugar beet farmers that fall.

JEFF COUNTS

Just for the record, if the Thumb could easily be picked up and plopped down in the middle of Nebraska, neither Thumb residents nor Nebraskans would notice much difference.

The Thumb is mostly flat, and the big crops are sugar beets, navy beans and corn. The people tend to have German or Polish backgrounds. It was common to hear German words used on the streets of Thumb towns. So, when all the reporters showed up, it was a real event. Sugar beet farmers were all the media rage for a short time.

Their opinions were poked and probed. There were public opinion polls done. In fact, there was so much reporting done that fall in the Thumb that some of the people got weary of being interviewed.

At the time I was working at The Bay City Times, the youngest reporter on the staff and thus not trusted with such difficult subjects as Richard Nixon.

The White House released the list of towns Nixon was to visit. He stayed away from the Democratic industrial towns of Saginaw and Bay City. On the list were obscure Thumb towns.

In an effort to stay away from any sort of Watergate protest, the White House scheduled visits in a couple of towns that had ceased to exist. There were no residents left, just a grain elevator and a faded sign outside of town.

I figured I'd get a chance to see Nixon in one of those towns. As it turned out, I was assigned to hang out at the airport to make sure his plane took off and didn't crash.

Anyway, I spent hours driving around corn fields in Saginaw County to find the runways of Tri-City Airport.

I felt defeated. I couldn't see a damn thing for all the corn stalks. I pulled the car over and parked on the side of a farm road. I looked up, and there it went, Air Force One.

I had a view of it's rear end. And that's how I remember Nixon.

Perhaps it's appropriate.

Here's a chance to tell utilities what they need to know

MIKE MALOTT

Ever encounter a mountain in your travels?

It can be a real challenge to find a way over, around, under or through such a mountain so you can continue on your way to your destination. But the important thing to remember is that the mountain bears you no ill will. That's right, despite the difficulties it poses, it holds no malice for you. For the mountain, it's not personal. You're insignificant to it.

On the other hand, don't expect it to be accommodating either. It won't smooth your path, no matter how much you might deserve a break as a result of your valiant effort. Rage against the mountain all you like, it remains unmoved. It just does what mountains do.

Utilities are a lot like mountains.

The gas, electric and telephone companies just do what massive corporate bureaucracies do. They follow policies. No one working for them, I'm sure, sets out purposely to torment customers. It's not personal. But anyone who has had a service or billing problem with a utility company, especially if the customer is asking for some kind of departure from policy, knows how frustrating it can be. A single customer can rage against the utility all he or she likes, it will likely remain unmoved.

That's why we have an organization like the Michigan Public Service Commission. Speaking for customers collectively, and with the weight of state government behind it, the PSC is significant enough to get the mountain's attention.

Over the course of the coming month, the PSC will hold a series of six Consumer Forums across the state to chat with utility customers - that includes all of us - and gather input on upcoming issues.

The main topics of discussion will be deregulation - how deregulation has gone so far with the telephone industry and what consumers can expect from the coming deregulation of the gas and electric power industries. The PSC will come prepared with a presentation on deregulation.

But members will open the floor up to discussion with local residents who have had concerns with their current utility service, such as problems with service delivery or billing problems.

It's an excellent opportunity for area residents to speak their minds to those appointed to oversee Michigan utilities. The forums begin Sept. 15 and will run through Oct. 5. Forums to be held locally include one in Pontiac 6 p.m. Monday, Sept. 27, at the council chambers of Pontiac City Hall, 450 E. Wide Track Drive, and in Westland 6 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 30, at the council chambers of City Hall, 36601 Ford Road.

There are a great many issues for customers to discuss with the members of the PSC. For one, southeast Michigan customers have been complaining for years about the frequency of power outages. Edison says it's made improvements, but some of us have trouble seeing them when the lights go out.

This year, of course, the state also saw two incidents in which broken gas mains, apparently the result of construction work, ignited serious fires.

And since the topic is deregulation, customers might want to chat about telephone deregulation as well. Deregulation was supposed to be a benefit to consumers, and it has increased competition in some areas of telephone service, and it has broadened the services available. But customers still have a lot of trouble with the phone network. Evidence of this dissatisfaction over telephone service can be seen in the fact that complaints filed to the PSC against telephone utilities jumped nearly 50 percent in 1998 over the previous year.

And that experience with deregulation probably leaves more than a few people gun shy over gas and electric utility deregulation. Will it be more hassle than the savings are worth? Will deregulation just make getting gas and electricity delivered - now a pretty simple matter - terribly complex?

For individual customers, dealing with issues such as these can be like trying to move a mountain. So much better to talk to people who decide how the mountain will be shaped and what the mountain will look like.

School strike overwhelms Mike Duggan's good works

It's the iron law in the news business: The good news always gets drowned out by the bad.

We saw a perfect example over the past week when the labor relations mess at the Detroit public schools made big news, while Wayne County Deputy Executive Mike Duggan's success in fixing up school buildings went largely unnoticed.

That's too bad, because Duggan and his team of volunteers deserve a big pat on the back for a job well done.

Back in May, David Adamany, the school system's interim superintendent, tapped Duggan to spearhead a program to repair and renovate 8,000 shabby, neglected classrooms in the district.

"Duggan has a long record for getting things done," said Adamany at the time, "and he gets them done right." Widely regarded as Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara's house pit bull, Duggan had a high profile in brokering the deal to build two stadiums in downtown Detroit and in the county's $840 million agreement with Northwest Airlines to build the new midfield terminal at Metropolitan Airport.

But, clearly, this job was not going to be easy. Leaky roofs, bathrooms without working toilets, broken windows, creaky floors and fallen ceilings all had contributed to the educational failure of a 182,000-student district where less than one-third graduate after four years of high school. Years of financial mismanagement bordering on the criminal coupled with micro-meddling by the Detroit School Board, which coddled building contractors and custodial staff alike, created chaos in the management of the district's 263 buildings.

But Duggan quickly got to work, organized a top-flight team of volunteer managers and coordinators, and called on contractors throughout the region. Ninety-three buildings with serious roofing problems were repaired. Lockers and light fixtures were put in. More than 10,000 new toilets and bath roof fixtures were installed. Classroom doors were replaced and walls painted.

And by the time the school year was ready to start and contract negotiations between Adamany and the Detroit Federation of Teachers broke down, Duggan had completed the $80 million job, on time and on budget.

I've known Mike Duggan, now 40, since he was a kid growing up in Livonia. He is the son of

PHIL POWER

Pat Duggan, a successful lawyer and now a federal judge, and Joan, who was Ed McNamara's spark plug while he was Livonia's mayor. He went to the University of Michigan, became a lawyer, got married, coached soccer. And he continued the family tradition of working with McNamara when Ed got elected chief executive.

For somebody who's politically ambitious - he'll run to succeed longtime Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair next November - taking on the Detroit school assignment was a risk. After all, voters in Detroit's often race-based politics might resent a white guy from Livonia messing around with their schools, while doing the job right wouldn't necessarily bring a lot of additional votes from the Wayne County suburbs.

"I see a chance to improve the deplorable conditions these kids have to go to school in every day," Duggan said when he was appointed. "It's a personal thing with me."

I don't know what's going to happen in the Detroit school imbroglio, when strong-willed people are trying to change a system that has taken decades to collapse, the situation inevitably becomes very volatile. Nor do I know how the election for prosecutor will turn out.

But I do know that Mike Duggan has done his job and, by all reports, done it well.

It's just too bad that piece of good news got overtaken by the bad. But that's life in the news business, folks.

JACQUE MARTIN-DOWNS

Teaching kids lessons of responsibility

In the newspaper the other day, a letter to the editor suggested that more and more people initially lack good judgment, then foist the blame onto others.

The example described in the letter was this:

It seems that a woman got sucked into online gambling and charged a $70,000 debt to her credit card. Now, she is suing the credit card company for "aiding and abetting illegal Internet gambling and making lots of money off of it."

I, too, was privy to a situation that got me wondering: doesn't anyone see what they are doing?

While on vacation in British Columbia, I had the good fortune to visit the sparkling city of Victoria.

We took a tour of the city on one of the stately double-decker buses and enjoyed the running commentary about the city from our driver.

He gave us an opportunity mid-trip, to stop and watch a school of seals sunbathing at a marina (of all places), and kindly asked us to make sure we limited our visit to 20 minutes, so that he could continue the tour.

"If you aren't here in 20 minutes," he exclaimed, "I will assume that you want to stay until the next bus comes around."

■ When teaching our children these lessons of responsibility, a great way to not feel guilty about the "mess-ups" is to think of them as gifts to your child. Rescuing them provides them with an out, and it's likely they may repeat it again.

After enjoying the playful seals, we returned to the bus only to encounter an irate woman, climbing aboard. To anyone who would listen, she shouted, "The last bus left me here, just because I was one minute late getting back to the bus!"

And to add insult to injury, her family members had the gall to leave on the bus without her.

My suspicion was that her habit of tardiness had worn thin with the family, and they decided that this time they would let the consequence fall naturally.

I could just hear them chuckling to themselves as their bus pulled away: "Maybe that'll show her."

But probably it wouldn't. She saw nothing irresponsible in her actions. After all, she was only one minute late.

As we see all too often, bad behavior is rationalized by the doer and blame put elsewhere.

When teaching our children these lessons of responsibility, a great way to not feel guilty about the "mess-ups" is to think of them as gifts to your child. Rescuing them provides them with an out, and it's likely they may repeat it again.

When Sam forgot his lunch and called mom at work to say, "You forgot to remind me to take my lunch and now I don't have it," an on-the-ball mom shrugs her shoulders and says, "Sorry you forgot it. I'll bet you won't forget it next time."

Goof-ups are the gift of change.

Fitness takes on a new kick

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA

Tracey Weber talks about tae-bo as if it were the most-addictive aerobic workout to hit health clubs in years.

Judging from those who attend, she may be right. "Once people come, they're totally addicted," said Weber of the well-attended class she teaches at Gold's Gym in Canton.

A professional fitness instructor and personal trainer, Weber has been working in the field of health and fitness for 22 years. She knows a good thing when she sees one, and now offers her own version of tae-bo by incorporating interval training. The class meets Mondays at 6:30 p.m. and Thursdays at 7 p.m.

"I do more than the tae-bo you see on TV," said Weber, who's taught aerobics for the past 15 years. By switching between the kickboxing techniques associated with tae-bo and resistance training, Weber has created a varied workout for her students.

"It burns a ton of calories," she said. "We do abs and legs. I created this on my own."

The workout is just as beneficial for beginners as it is for those who joined the class when she opened it last year, she said. Students can work at their own pace.

Beginners might concentrate more on balancing and getting the routine right, rather than incorporating hand weights or using a step — which adds to the workout.

"The big challenge is coordination," said Weber. "Week by week, you see people get better."

She holds a pre-class to teach the proper way to kick and punch before students begin the class.

Seeing a difference

John Drabek of Canton said he saw the difference tae-bo made within the first few weeks of his workout. Four months ago he joined Weber's class and has already noticed weight loss and improvement in his general well-being.

"I can't believe the difference in my weight," said Drabek, who attends twice a week. "Most guys think it's for girls. It's not."

Gregory Balteff, manager of the gym and Westland resident, said he enjoys tae-bo and agreed it isn't just for women. He said there is a cultural bias that links women to aerobics and men to weight training. His solution? Balteff tells gym members to "just do it."

"Tae-bo incorporates all the muscle groups in a synchronization," he said. "There's a very low, low impact on the body."

Balteff said tae-bo's popularity is attributed to being a "new" way to workout. But whether it's a fad or mainstay at the gym, he said the important thing to remember is that tae-bo encourages people to workout.

"There is nothing more important than your health," said Balteff.

Charlene Mercado takes exercising seriously. She said she won't work on Mondays, so she can make it to Weber's class.

"I live in Redford, and I come all the way out here," she said.

The tae-bo class is different from other aerobics-based exercises because of the way it incorporates all muscle groups. It also teaches coordination and balance, using techniques like front kicks and back kicks. Weber said it's a low impact workout that's safer than aerobics which require jarring movements or jumping that can be hard on the joints.

Cindy Fella calls it "a great all-over body workout."

"The challenge is making it through the class," she quipped. "Weber is really good at making it kind of creative."

Couple shares love, clowning

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

When Ron and Sue Kardynski of Westland were married in 1991, they prepared for their nuptials much like any other couple — with some differences.

She wore something blue, something red, something yellow and something green. She spent a good deal of time making sure her makeup and hair looked right ... the grease paint was matted down with powder and her bright red hair fell into place nicely. The train on her dress chugged around in a little circle.

His baggy, multicolored trousers were cleaned and wrinkle-free. His oversized shoes were all laced up, and his red hair was without tangles.

The invitation should have been the first clue this wasn't an ordinary wedding. A blue image of a circus tent was printed above the words, "A clown wedding."

That's right. The Kardynskis, who met while clowning around at a clown camp in Wisconsin, were married as clowns in California. A few members of the wedding party also dressed as clowns.

But good clowning around, they say, is no laughing matter. As owners of "Clown Antics," an Internet clown supply store and teachers of a "Be a Clown: An Introduction," they know what it takes to be a good clown — and how to avoid being the clown that frightens people. Their class is offered through the Livonia Public Schools' community education department.

For starters, hobo clowns must still look neat. White-face clowns must not show any natural skin tones, even on the hands or neck. Costumes must be laundered or cleaned before performances.

"We still believe in the ethics of clowning very strongly," Ron said. His motto when entertaining at adult parties is "Be seen, not obscene." When the party attendants learn his routine is clean, they're relieved, he added.

"We get a lot of favorable comments," he added.

The Kardynskis assume different personas when they're clowning. Ron's favorite is "Snudek," a Polish word for a mischievous troublemaker. Snudek is a white-faced clown.

Sue's favorite is "Soomi," a name she lifted from a Native American friend. Soomi is an "Auguste" clown with a pink face.

It might be surprising to learn that Sue, a clown since 1980, ran from clowns as a little girl. "I was petrified of clowns," she said. "I was really afraid."

And when she saw her husband-to-be after he applied his white-face paint, she admits she wondered "What am I doing?" But she overcame her fears and tied the knot.

The fear of clowns, the Kardynskis say, comes from "bad" clowns ruining the art for all clowns. They describe these clowns as being "Halloween" clowns who frighten children. Many adults are afraid of clowns as well.

The Kardynskis have taught their clown class for six years. They've given diplomas to 187 clown students at a 93 percent success rate.

For the "final exam," students must get into full clown gear and perform in public. The Kardynskis say that for some clown hopefuls, this test is far more frightening than any paper one.

One student who did well through the whole class didn't show for her final. She later said she had stage fright but wanted to take the class again.

The Kardynskis say being real, working clowns gives them credibility when teaching. The students also benefit by having both teachers of both sexes.

"They get a male and female point of view," Sue said.

Learning the basics

During the class, students learn the basics of makeup, costume and, most important, how to act like a clown. Students are also required to outfit themselves - which can be done for under $100, Sue said.

But some aspects of clowning can't be taught.

"You need to have a little bit of caring and compassion for people," she said. "You have to know when they're afraid and back off. You need maturity."

Clowning provides a rush that keeps the Kardynskis coming back time after time.

"If you're performing and see a little sparkle in a child's eye, it's a high," Sue said. "It's really a great feeling. You can't get that from drugs, and you can't get that from alcohol."

Ron said he likes the interac-

Clowns, clowns and more clowns

Here is a sampling of some of the different types of clowns:

■ White face has two types: the "neat," with tiny features and "grotesque," with larger features and a false nose.

■ "Auguste" clowns have pink- or peach-colored faces with white, emphasizing the eye and mouth area. They also wear false noses.

■ "Tramp" or "hobo" clowns can be either true hoboes with torn, tattered clothing or "down-on-their-luck" hoboes who look as though they might have been a Wall Street executive. Both usually wear sad expressions and have 5 o'clock shadow.

■ Character clowns can be doctors, nurses or "Keystone Kops."

tion clowning provides.

"I like to be entertained by people," he said, adding he gets a kick out of people when they fall for his tricks.

Surprisingly, some of the most successful clowns the Kardynskis have known are actually introverts.

"It's surprising how many quiet, shy people we have taking the class," Ron said. Their transformation, he added, can be remarkable.

"All of a sudden, for the first time in their life, they let their inner self out," he said.

In the beginning, people tend to hide behind their makeup, Sue said.

"Later, in the class, they're no longer hiding," she said.

Culler is president of DAR chapter

When the Ezra Parker Chapter of the national Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution meets on Friday, Sept. 10, Judy Culler will be there.

The Redford Township resident is serving as regent of the chapter which meets at noon at the First Presbyterian Church, 529 Hendrix at Sixth Street in Royal Oak.

The first meeting of the season will be a sandwich luncheon. The program will focus on "Storybook Quilts."

Culler joined the chapter in 1991. She has served as American history chairman for two years and first vice-regent for four years. She's attended several state conferences and state Awards Days and currently serves as piano player for those events.

She also has been a delegate to the Continental Congress in Washington, D.C., in 1998 and 1999.

A native of Sylvania, Ohio, she received her bachelor of music and master of music degrees from the University of Michigan. She taught orchestra, general music, vocal music and mathematics in the South Redford, Highland Park, Troy and Livonia schools district until her retirement in 1994.

Culler also was a conductor with the Livonia Youth Symphony from 1977 to 1982 and with the Metropolitan Youth String Orchestra from 1982 to 1988 and taught the violin, viola, cello, string bass and piano privately.

A deacon and member of the handbell and adult choirs at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Livonia, she is a member of the Sigma Alpha Iota, the professional music fraternity for women, the Pontchartrain Alumnae Chapter in the Detroit area and the editor of Alumnae Notes for Pan Pipes, the national magazine of Sigma Alpha Iota.

Married, she and her husband David have two sons, Kevin and Kurt, and two granddaughters, Jaclyn and Katelyn.

Joining Culler as chapter officers for 1999-2000 are Marcia Cramer as first vice-regent, Diane Segel as second vice-regent, Daphne Cushman as chaplain, Marjean Schneider as recording secretary, Jean Wright as recording secretary, Joan Balogh as treasurer, Oneida Stevens as financial secretary, Evada Brown as registrar, Lois Lance as historian, Lois Ellis as librarian and Mary Lou Williams as director.

cerned. "My job as an instructor is to keep people progressing," said Weber.

Her students, like Mercado, said she's more than an instructor, she's a motivator.

"It's not as easy as it looks," Mercado said. "We learn new things every week."

Drabek called Weber a "dream instructor" who "really gets you coordinated."

So what keeps people coming back to class?

Weber said she believes it's the way the workout makes you feel.

"It's an exhilarating way to expand your heart rate and your cardiovascular (fitness)," said Weber. "It makes your heart stronger and when your heart's strong, your body runs a lot more efficiently."

Erin Lindsey of Canton has been doing tae-bo regularly for six months. She began at home using workout tapes but now attends the class at Gold's Gym.

"I've seen a lot of cardiovascular improvement," she said. She noticed physical results more quickly than she did with step aerobics, she said.

But Lindsey also mentioned that the exercise has boosted her confidence. By learning the kick-boxing style and technique, she feels more able to defend herself if she were ever in a dangerous situation.

"Make it a part of your life," said Weber.

Classes at Gold's Gym fill up quickly, so call (734) 459-0020 to reserve a spot. The cost is $8 per class and is open to the public. Packages are available.

Better schools for kids - debate recycles old concepts

HOOKED ON HISTORY

VIRGINIA PARKER

September ... It means three things are certain. The weather is mild - a perfect transition between hot summer and glorious autumn. Kids are back in school with their shiny new school supplies.

And it's time to renew our debates about how to improve our educational system.

We tend to think that education was easier - some would say better - in the days of the one-room schoolhouse. Certainly, it was more straightforward since teachers only worried about teaching the "3 R's," right? Well, let's see.

Since one-room schools were located in rural and other isolated areas across the United States, they housed whatever students were available, whether three or 60!

Men and women who taught in these schools often had only an eighth grade education. With so little training, they faced a formidable task, teaching children of mixed ages, especially when female teachers were often younger and smaller than the strapping, teenage, farm boys they taught.

Mid-19th century one-room schoolhouses took many forms besides the gabled, oblong structures that immediately come to mind. Some were octagons. Some were highly stylized and ornate. However, as the population moved west across the prairies, these simple schools were frequently canvas tents, shed-roof tarpaper shanties, dug outs, and sod houses.

No wonder, then, that teachers often had to scramble to teach that simple 3-R curriculum of reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. They used whatever books they could obtain, whether McGuffey's Readers, the Bible, hymnals or even an atlas!

Paying teachers

Teachers' salaries were figured a little differently. Women teachers were, of course, paid less than men. So how much might a woman be paid? In 1827, records show that Mary Barber was paid the annual salary of $32 to teach at Hough School in Canton.

Often, contracts stipulated that the teacher would board 'round, which meant she would live at the students' homes for two-week intervals.

Pity the poor teacher who was at the mercy of a lousy cook. Worse, privacy was minimal, and accommodations often included sharing the children's beds.

Imagine the lawsuits that would bring today! There were reformers, both architectural and educational. Some tackled international comparisons, which, interestingly, extended to teacher salaries. Authors of a 1918 book about reforming rural education decried the practice of teachers receiving lower pay in the United States than Europe.

There were reformers much before that, however, and some raised environmental issues. As early as 1832, one schoolmaster won an award from the American Institute of Instruction for his innovative concepts regarding modifications in furniture and windows, provision of educational equipment and allowance for fresh air and recess space.

Expanding curriculum

Early in the 1880s, educators began an earnest effort to improve and expand the curriculum. They referred to it as "the new education." Often through the concept of consolidated schools, rural communities began offering additional subjects.

However, plans were also devised for this to occur within the one-room school. Plans included traveling libraries and manual training for the boys. Less attention was given to domestic skills for girls. These activities were not carried on in separate rooms, but in alcoves set apart for those purposes.

Additionally, the school garden, a concept with its roots in antiquity, was revived and encouraged. Arbor Day became an annual celebration with speeches, songs, and tree planting.

Ideas of sanitation were somewhat different from today. It was considered a healthful practice to separate the boys' and girls' cloakrooms. There was also frequently a girls' door and a boys' door to enter the building.

Two decades into this century, two educational reformers argued that "modern" one-room schools should have toilets that were as sanitary as in well-equipped city schools. Their provocative chapter, "Outhouses Made Decent," outlined steps rural schools should take where circumstances precluded flush toilets.

Proper heating and good ventilation, seen in terms of cubic space and natural circulation for fresh, outdoor air, likewise drew attention. Tinted or papered walls, plaster casts to decorate the room, framed copies of the masters, plants, books and an aquarium, if possible, were recommended.

All this was to give a homey, yet scholastic feel to these humble environments, which some considered a "temple of learning." It would encourage "less dragging of heavy feet to the school." This was part of a philosophy that maintained school should be for the students and not the subject.

As we carry on our own, multifaceted debates about quality education and reforms, maybe we should be slow to pat ourselves on our 21st century backs. The technology may have changed, but there's nothing new about the basic issues.

Historian and author Virginia Bailey Parker has a bachelor's degree in history and a master's degree in historic preservation. She lives in Canton Township.

Zonta stages 'Fashion with a Flair!'

The Zonta Club of Northwest Wayne County Area is teaming up with Parisian at Laurel Park Place to sponsor "Fashion with a Flair!"

The luncheon and fall fashion show will be Saturday, Sept. 25, at the Marriott Hotel Banquet Facility at Laurel Park. The festivities begin at 11 a.m., with lunch served at 11:30 a.m., followed by informal modeling.

There also will be door prizes, goodie bags and discounts at Parisian. Tickets cost $30 (includes a $10 donation). They can be ordered by calling (734) 420-2923.

Pat Harris is chairing the fashion show fund-raiser, with the help of Evelyn Shuput, Evelyn Mundy, Mary Bowersock and Mary Jo Plante.

Zonta International is a service organization of executive women dedicated to world peace, providing community service and improving the status of women worldwide.

local organizations, such as the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College, the Wayne County Homeless Shelter, Seedlings Braille Books for Children, and Greenmead Historical Village in Livonia.

In addition to the fashion show, the organization's other fund raising project is its annual sale of Koeze Nuts Products, available for delivery in early November. All of the proceeds are used for the various service projects. International projects include scholarships for women. Members also invest time, talent, and energy in women's development, health, education and cultural needs.

Scout unit sponsors sale

Girl Scout NSU 33 will host a used uniform sale 5-9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 16, in the day camp building of Heritage Park, on Farmington Road between 10 and 11 Mile roads in Farmington Hills. People with uniforms to sell or interested in making a donation can call Cathy at (248) 477-6996. Handbooks and other Girl Scout items are welcomed for the sale.

OBSERVER SPORTS SCENE

Collegiate soccer notes

• Siena Heights University junior forward Nicole Tobin (Livonia Stevenson) scored five goals and added an assist last week for the Saints en route to Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference women's soccer player-of-the-week honors.

She had all three goals in the Saints' 3-2 victory over Findlay (Ohio) and the game-tying goal in a 1-1 deadlock with Green Mountain (Vt.).

• University of Detroit Mercy senior defender Matt Quinter (Stevenson) earned All-Tournament honors last weekend at the Bowling Green State University Soccer Classic.

The Titans (1-2) opened their season with a 5-0 loss to Oakland University, but rebounded to beat DePaul, 4-3, before losing to Western Kentucky, 3-1.

• Lizz Szkrzybalo (Livonia Churchill) leads the University of Missouri-Rolla Lady Miners (2-1) in scoring with 11 points. Szkrzybalo had four goals in two assists in Saturday's 11-0 route of Southwest Baptist.

• Andrea Galindo (Churchill) had both goals in Central Michigan's 4-2 loss Sunday to Oakland University. Anne Fedrigo (Stevenson) assisted on the second goal for CMU (2-1-1).

Women's Suburban golf

Carolyn Benninger (Northville) shot an 83 (Sept. 3) to capture the first flight low gross honors at the Women's Suburban Golf Association stop at Fellows Creek.

Diane Wazney (Dearborn) was runner-up with a 91.

First flight low net went to Mary Allen (Wayne) with a 74. Jan Anteau (Brighton) was second with a 76.

In the second flight, Mary Gene Stefanac (Dearborn) carded a 96 to capture low gross. Gloria Hudson (Southfield) was second with a 102.

Mary Ann Kraft (Dearborn Heights) captured low net with a 67, edging Pat Wilson (Dearborn Heights) by one stroke.

Parent-Child golf outing

The Millford Police Athletic League will be staging a parent-child golf outing Sunday, Oct. 10 at Mystic Creek Golf Course (inside Camp Dearborn).

Divisions include 10-, 12-, 14-, 16- and-over, along with 17-and-over. The cost is $45 per person (includes 18 holes, cart, buffet lunch and trophies to the top two teams in each division).

For more information, call Rick Sharpe at (248) 684-1322.

Prep golf correction

Jeremy Fendeleit, who shot a 1-over 37, should have been identified as medalist in Westland John Glenn's 203-212 boys golf victory Sept. 2 over Wayne Memorial at Fellows Creek (Sunday, Sept. 5 edition).

Youth baseball tryouts

• Tryouts for a Livonia 12-and-under Little Caesars travel baseball club will be from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12 at Bicentennial Park (field No. 5).

The team will play 40 games during the 2000 season (mid-May through mid-July), 22 regular season games, plus three to four tournaments.

For more information, call Bob Olson at (734) 464-7930.

• Tryouts for the 15-year-old Michigan Bulls Federation baseball team will be from noon to 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 19 and 26 at Farmington High School, located on 32000 Shiloh (between 10 Mile and Grand River). The team will be comprised of players with advanced baseball skills, born between Aug. 1, 1984 and Dec. 31, 1985.

For more information, call coach Eric Sams at (248) 647-5301.

Tommy Titan races

The annual Tommy Titan 5-kilometer run will start at 10 a.m. Saturday at Cass Benton Park, located on Hines Drive just south of Seven Mile and Sheldon roads in Northville.

The entry fee is $5. T-shirts are also available for an additional $10 donation.

Following the open 5K event, the University of Detroit Mercy will host a collegiate meet featuring state-area schools.

For more information, call UDM coach Guy Murray at (313) 993-1724.

Hard-earned win

Rockets turn back feisty Wayne, 44-34

GIRLS HOOPS

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

Wayne Memorial presented a challenge. Westland John Glenn met it.

John Glenn repulsed a third-quarter threat by Wayne on Tuesday night to take a 44-34 victory in the second game of the girls high school basketball for each team. Both are now 1-1.

"Our kids played hard," new Coach Wayne Woodard of host Wayne said. "They fought all the way. And when they got it down to 34-30 in the third quarter, it could have gone either way."

"With a break here or there, we could have been right there."

"But they're a good team. They lost that first game to (state-ranked) Belleville. . . They're big, strong and well-coached."

John Glenn took a 10-9 first quarter lead and ran it out to 27-17 by half-time, at which time Wayne could have come apart like a thin stuffed pita.

The margin went up to 32-19 with 3:45 left in the third quarter when the Zebras stirred up the home crowd.

Feisty Sheila Honeycutt converted a fast break layup off a steal by Amy Pailing, was fouled and made the add-on free throw to shave the deficit to 10.

Pailing made another steal and drove in for a layup with 2:29 to play to slice the deficit to 32-24.

Samantha Crews threaded John Glenn with two free throws 12 seconds later and the teams then traded turnovers and missed shots until Christina Gaines made two free throws with 55 seconds to play, making it 34-26.

Crystal Harris stole the ball and went down the floor to make a layup and Honeycutt did the same to reduce the margin to 34-30 entering the final eight minutes of play.

"Wayne did a great job of hanging around," Coach Joel Lloyd of the Rockets said. "They made a little run at the end of the third quarter."

"And in their gym, with a decent crowd, things could have swung in their favor."

But Samantha Crews and her sophomore sister Stephanie scored four points apiece and keyed a strong defense that helped John Glenn outscore Wayne 10-4 in the final quarter.

Samantha Crews ended with a game-high 16 points, 13 coming in the middle two periods, while Stephanie Crews had 10. Sarah Pack scored eight and Lacey Catarino six.

Harris paced Wayne Memorial with 11 points.

Appoint Ken Starr to investigate

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

That's more like it! Both of your Observerland grid prognosticators, who have yet to disagree on a pick after two weeks of the season, got in the groove last week, correctly choosing 14 of 15 winners.

The only glitch was Garden City's 19-14 victory over Mega Conference White Division favorite Allen Park.

So both now stand 25-7 on the year. (The first week we finished 11-6, but that's understandable considering it was the season opener.)

Without alluding to any conspiracy theories, it's a safe bet that yours truly and the smiling Irishman (Dan O'Meara) may have a few disagreements this week.

Former Observer sports editor Doug Funke promises to appoint an independent counsel and bring back Ken Starr to investigate Week No. 3 (if the picks remain the same).

Anyway, here is a capsule look at this week's games, featuring three Thursday night encounters due to Rosh Hashanah.

THURSDAY'S GAMES

Luth. Westland (0-2, 0-1) at B.H. Cranbrook (1-1, 1-1), 5 p.m.: The Warriors, trying to squelch an 11-game losing streak dating back to the start of the 1998 season, have produced little offense so far in 1999. Cranbrook, an upset winner, the opening week over Hamtramck, came back down to earth in last Friday's 20-0 loss to Harper Woods. PICKS: Cranbrook wins this Metro Conference twilighter.

W.L. Central (0-2, 0-0) at Liv. Stevenson (2-0, 0-0): It's the Lakes Division opener for both schools. Stevenson charged back from a 14-2 halftime deficit to beat city rival Franklin, 24-14, while Central was hammered by Farmington

GRID PREDICTIONS

Hills Harrison, 35-12. PICKS: Central may be bigger, but Stevenson is too quick.

Westland Glenn (2-0, 0-0) at N. Farmington (1-1, 0-0): The Rockets proved they have more than one running back when Dan Smithman pounded out 102 yards in seven carries to support Eric Jones' 180 on 23 carries in a 30-6 win over Livonia Churchill. North, a 45-14 loser last week to Northville, will be a decided underdog. PICKS: Rockets blast off in the Lakes opener.

FRIDAY GAMES

(all at 7 p.m. unless noted)

Ply. Canton (1-1, 0-0) at Liv. Franklin (1-1, 0-0): It's the Western Division opener for both teams. Franklin played well for a half before succumbing to city rival Stevenson, while Canton was plagued by mistakes and penalties en route to a 27-0 loss to formidable Farmington. PICKS: Flip a coin; both go with the Patriots.

Wayne (0-2, 0-1) at Monroe (1-1, 0-1): Give coach Floyd Carter the Zebras credit, they have played both Romulus and Dearborn Fordson tough, before losing a pair of close ones. They also missed captain Mike Shaw, a three-year starting lineman who broke his leg in practice (Aug. 30), but still gave the Tractors fits before falling 13-6. Monroe, shackled by Saginaw in the season opener, bounced back last week to beat Lincoln Park, 26-6. PICKS: Monroe absorbs the shock, topples Wayne.

Garden City (2-0, 1-0) at Woodhaven (1-1, 0-1): The Cougars are the talk of Observerland right now after stunning Mega-White favorite Allen Park last week. Running back Mike Sparks appears to be a good one. As for Woodhaven, they managed just 80 yards total offense in a 26-0 loss Friday to Ypsilanti. PICKS: Let's go with the Cougars again.

Redford Union (0-2) at Belleville (2-0): This Mega crossover features two outstanding offensive threats. RU's Mike Mack and Belleville's Kevin Harrison. RU, jumping up to the Mega White, is taking on a perennial Mega Red contender in the Tigers. Last week Belleville squeaked by Dearborn, 13-6, while RU fell to Dearborn Edsel Ford, 42-21.

Clareville (2-0, 2-0) at Hamtramck (1-1, 1-1), 7:30 p.m.: This is a key game in the Metro Conference. The Trojans, led by sophomore running back Tim Shaw, who has 336 yards in two games, will face an outstanding running back in Hamtramck's Aaron Brock, who rushed for 2,093 yards last season and had 101 last week in a 21-14 win over Macomb Lutheran North. Quarterback Stan Garback also tossed a couple of TD passes in that one for the Cosmos. PICKS: Keyworth Stadium's new carpet is to Clareville's liking.

Churchill (1-1, 0-0) at F.H. Harrison (1-1, 0-0), 7:30 p.m.: Don't forget Harrison is still the reigning Western Division and Western Lakes Association champion. The Hawks, led by running backs Kevin Woods and Lou Hadley, racked up 300 yards on the ground last week against Central. Churchill, who got a blocked field goal and interception last week from Rob Wilson in a lopsided loss to Glenn, will have to contain the Hawks' speed to mount any kind of upset bid. PICKS: It's the Hawks off and running again.

Farmington (1-1, 0-0) at Salem (0-2, 0-0), 7:30 p.m.: The Falcons, who outgained Canton 354-185 in total yards last week, return to the same field where they played on the previous week looking for more success. Salem's defense stood tough last week against explosive Western in a 17-3 defeat. But the Rocks will need a lot more than their meager 18 yards on the ground. PICKS: Farmington makes it two straight at Centennial Educational Park.

Red. Thurston (1-1, 0-1) at Trenton (1-1, 1-0), 7:30 p.m.: Thurston, coming off a 27-12 loss to Gibraltar Carlson, needs a victory to stay afloat in the Mega Blue race. The Eagles will have to contain Trenton running back Justin Neasome, who rambled for 177 yards in just 11 carries in last week's 20-6 victory over Southgate Anderson. PICKS: Trenton wins it in the trenches.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

St. Agatha (2-0, 1-0) at Taylor Light & Life (0-2, 0-1), 1 p.m.: This is a Catholic League D-Sec.

Talented Spartans set for '99

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

Bolstered by a strong returning nucleus and a promising freshman class, Livonia Stevenson girls swim coach Greg Phill can't be but optimistic about the upcoming season.

That comes despite the fact the Spartans dropped their season opener Tuesday against Grosse Pointe North. (See statistical summary.)

The Spartans, who will be gunning for their ninth straight Western Lakes Activities Association title, should be well stocked again in 1999.

"If we keep working like we are right now, it will be a good year," said Phill, now in his 14th year. "We have some good returnees and some nice freshmen."

Phill's 74-member squad should be able to absorb the loss of first-team All-Observer freestyler Julie Kern, who took fourth at the state meet in the 500 freestyle (5:00.82) and won both the 200- and 500 freestyle events at the WLAA meet.

Phill will also miss league placer Meghan Lesnau and 50 freestyle and relay standout Marti McKenzie (second-team All-Area) to graduation.

However, two first-team All-Area picks return.

Jessica Makowski, a senior, was the WLAA champ in the 100 freestyle and posted a best time of 55.14. In the 50 freestyle she finished undefeated in dual meets and was runner-up in the WLAA with a personal best of 25.11.

Diver Katy Ballantine, another senior, finished eighth in the state with 330 points and was second in the WLAA (379.20). She led Observerland with the best six-dive total of 256.75 points.

Another talented returnee is senior Katie Clark, a second-team All-Observer choice who qualified in five events at the state meet.

Clark took 10th in the 100 butterfly at state meet (1:00.12) and was WLAA champ in the same event. She also finished second in the league in the 200 IM (2:16.44). Her season bests in both events were 59.36 and 2:13.77, respectively.

Adding depth in the freestyle relay events is second-team All-Observer selection Meghan Mocerri.

As a junior, Mocerri took 12th in the state in the 500 freestyle (5:15.34) and finished third and fourth in the 500 and 200 freestyles, respectively, at the WLAA meet. Her WLAA time in the 200 was 2:01.54.

State qualifier Lindsay Dolin, a junior, and league placers Elizabeth Hurn, a junior who was sixth in the 100 breaststroke, and Jessica Koch, a sophomore, who was seventh in the 200 IM, both give Stevenson even more depth.

Senior Amanda Polkowski (sprint freestyles) also shows promise, while junior diver Michelle Cain performed well at last year's regional. Sophomore Stephanie Cummings, who can also swim in the distance freestyle, IM and backstroke, will also score points for the Spartans.

And if that's not enough, two freshmen will have an immediate impact, according to Phill.

Andrea Hurn, who swims out of the Bulldog Aquatic Club, adds depth in the 200 IM, 100 breaststroke and freestyle events.

School names are all these two had in common Saturday at Redford's Hilbert Junior High. Redford Catholic Central turned its non-league football game against London Catholic Central into a laugher, winning 43-0 after enjoying a 31-0 halftime advantage.

The Shamrocks scored six touchdowns, most after long drives, and a 48-yard field goal just before the half by junior Mike Sgroi, who made four of six extra-point attempts.

Senior tailback John Kava had a pair of seven-yard TD runs and quarterback John Hill threw touchdown passes of six and nine yards to Kevin Entsminger and Matt Loidas, respectively.

Hill, who didn't complete a pass in Week 1, was six for 12 for 49 yards.

Reserve runningback Chris Davis scored on his only carry, which covered 72 yards. Also scoring

Warriors searching for offense to break skid

Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett got three touchdowns Saturday from Charles Loewe to hand host Lutheran High Westland its 11th straight football defeat dating back to the 1998 season, 46-0.

The Warriors, off to an 0-2 start in 1999, were outgained by Liggett in total yardage, 307-99.

The Knights, who improved to 2-0 overall and 2-0 in the Metro Conference, led 32-0 at intermission.

Loewe had scoring runs of 48 and 44 yards. He also returned an interception 55 yards for a score.

Liggett's Mark Brammer booted five extra points and had a 22-yard field goal in the second quarter.

Charlie Hoeft (13 for 43) and Josh Moldenhauer (seven for 35) were Lutheran Westland's leading rushers on the day.

Moldenhauer and Kevin Packard were the Warriors' leading tacklers with seven apiece. Richard Wilson, Andrew McLaughlin and Brett Braun each registered six.

Matt Glenn had three kick returns for 68 yards (22.6 average), while Hoeft punted four times for a 40.0 average.

tion game with the Aggies overwhelming favorites. In a 19-6 win last week over Hamtramck St. Florian, sophomore Dan Boulter ran for 147 yards and quarterback Jeff Smith was four of six for 134 yards. Taylor Light & Life is coming off a 41-14 loss to Dearborn St. Alphonsus. PICKS: The Aggies make it three straight. Bishop Borgess (1-1) at R.O. Shrine (2-0), 2 p.m.: The Spartans may have bitten off more than they could chew in last week's 44-6 loss to Central West Division foe Dearborn Divine Child. Shrine, coached by former Agatha coach

John Goddard, now in his seventh year, rolled to a 42-0 win over Allen Park Cabrini as Justin Henry rushed for 177 yards and five TDs. PICKS: We'd like to see Goddard take a victory dip in the Rouge River or even his own backyard pool, but the pick is Borgess. Redford CC (2-0) vs. Birm. Brother Rice (2-0), 2:30 p.m. at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium: This is definitely the marquee matchup of the weekend. It's not the Boys Bowl anymore, but it's still big. But under the new playoff system, a loss by either team won't kill their chances at the postseason. Rice is coming off an impressive 27-7 win Saturday at Chicago Brother Rice as fullback Mark Goebel, who has committed to Michigan State, rushed for 205 yards in 37 carries. Rice quarterback Matt Baker also threw a pair of touchdown passes. CC, meanwhile, continued to roll with a 43-0 win over London (Ontario) Catholic Central as fullback John Kava and quarterback John Hill each scored a pair of touchdowns. PICKS: Emons goes out on a limb, takes Rice-a-Roni, the San Francisco treat. O'Meara needs a good-luck symbol. Hey, how 'bout a Shamrock? Go CC!

Under duress: Wayne's Amy Paling is check by John Glenn's Lacey Catarino.

10 points, Honeycutt scored eight and Gaines six. "They did a good job in the first quarter of keeping the ball out of Stephanie's hands," Lloyd said. "She's a big girl, and for her stature she runs the floor very well. Plus she has court awareness and is a good defensive back. She anticipates well."

While she was hounded on defense, she more than repaid the favor by anticipating passes or sagging down low to disrupt the Zebra offense.

"It's always disappointing when you lose," Woodard said. "But hopefully this will better prepare us for our league season."

"We saw some of our weaknesses. We threw the ball away on passes too many times. We're giving away five or six inches at some position and it's tough for us to practice against that because we're all basically the same size."

"We have some drills that we do to simulate this, but it's not the same."

Wayne did not do well at the foul line, making only 6-of-22. John Glenn hit 8-of-10 in the first half, 17-of-33 for the game. The Rockets missed 11 free throws in the final quarter.

"I told our girls we might have made more field goals they did," Woodard said.

John Glenn started out scoring eight of the game's first 10 points before Wayne closed the first quarter on a 7-2 run. The Zebras didn't hit their first field goal of the second quarter until there was 4:11 to play and only made two field goals in the period.

"We had a couple of girls step up," Lloyd said. "It was a good game to win."

"That first win ... it's tough until you get it. It's good to know in your mind that you can do that."

Franklin rallies past Cougars

The steamy Cougar gym must have heated Livonia Franklin up for its 49-44 comeback girls basketball victory Tuesday over Garden City.

The Cougars jumped out to a 15-9 lead after one quarter of play and the Patriots were only able to shave one point off the margin halfway through the game.

But a 12-7 third quarter and a 15-10 fourth period turned things around for Coach Gary Warner's team.

"After halftime, the girls played harder," Warner said. "They turned the game around and came through at the end. It was anybody's ballgame until towards the end."

Tera Morrill scored 19 points and Kerstin Marshall added 10 for the Patriots, now 2-1.

Liz Cochran contributed eight points and Stephanie Polkowksi sank five free throws down the stretch to help keep Franklin on top.

Taryn McCloud scored 16 points for Garden City while Jill Merriman added 10.

"It must have been the humidity in the gym," Warner said. "We got hotter after our slow start."

Franklin made only 12-of-28 free throws but Garden City, 0-2, fared little better, sinking 7-of-19.

LADYWOOD 61, WOODHAVEN 24: Livonia Ladywood (2-1) came up with 18 offensive rebounds and 22 steals en route to an easy non-league victory Tuesday over visiting Woodhaven (0-3).

"We had a height advantage, we were quicker and more aggressive," Ladywood coach Andrea Gorski said. "A lot of those steals led to layups."

Ladywood jumped out to a 19-4 first-quarter lead. The Blazers shot 46 percent from the floor. Sophomore center Liz Obrecht scored eight of her team-high 14 points on putbacks. She also grabbed seven rebounds.

Junior forward Michelle Harakas added eight points and four rebounds. Sophomore point-guard Jana Beumeo had six steals, while junior guard Kristen Barnes scored seven points.

Woodhaven got nine points from Heather Lambert.

WYANDOTTE 49, STEVENSON 34: Wyandotte Roosevelt remained undefeated with its victory over the visiting Spartans.

Senior center Beth Fortuna paced Wyandotte with 13, but Livonia Stevenson (1-2) had the game's high scorer in junior guard Lindsey Gustek, who had 16 points.

FLAT ROCK 54, LUTHERAN WESTLAND 30: The Warriors are feeling a little like a person with a migraine headache that's about two-thirds gone — the pain's still there, but it's not as bad as it was.

Lutheran High Westland dropped its second game in three outings Tuesday as the Warriors completed the difficult non-conference portion of their schedule against powerful teams.

The two losses were to Royal Oak Shrine and Flat Rock, both undefeated. Flat Rock is now 3-0.

"They're very experienced," Coach Ron Gentz of Lutheran Westland said. "They have a couple of players who aren't too bad. And a lot of seniors."

After getting drilled by Shrine, Gentz was looking for some improvement. He saw some.

"We played a lot better," he said. "I was pleased with some aspects of the game. We passed the ball, in the first half in particular, and got much better looks at the basket."

"Our shooting is still not quite where I'd like to see it. But our passing was better — at least in the first half."

Bethany Sieloff led Lutheran Westland with six points and six rebounds. Anna Rolf and Kelly Pruchnik each added six points.

Flat Rock led visiting Lutheran Westland, 25-16, at halftime and outscored the Warriors by an 18-9 margin in the third quarter.

Both teams were ordinary at the free throw line, Lutheran Westland making nine of 19 and Flat Rock nine of 15.

AGAPE 32, HURON VALLEY 31: The Hawks had a slim chance to win at the end but didn't have enough time to pull it off.

A jump ball following a missed free throw under Huron Valley's basket gave the Hawks the ball with a second to play.

They in-bounded the ball but were unable to get off a shot before time expired.

"They played good defense," Coach Kris Springstroh of Huron Valley said. "We could not get into our offensive mode."

PCA 59, CLARENCEVILLE 16: In the consolation game of the Eagle Classic Saturday, Laura Clark poured in 20 points and Kallie Gross contributed 18 as host Plymouth Christian (1-2) cruised past Livonia Clarenceville (0-2).

CROSS COUNTRY

Stress fracture keeps star DiGiovanni out of lineup

Redford Catholic Central junior John DiGiovanni has a stress fracture in his right knee and cross country coach Tony Magni is grateful it's only that.

It's the same stress fracture that bothered DiGiovanni enough to miss the track season last spring. And for a while it looked like it might be something worse; much worse.

The Shamrocks start the season at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the West Bloomfield Invitational, hosted by Birmingham Brother Rice.

"For a while they thought it might be a tumor," Magni said. "They brought him to the hospital, everyone was concerned, very concerned. It was the first time we prayed as a team for a stress fracture and thankfully that's what it was."

"He sat out all of track season, rested, ran all summer and had no problem. He ran a couple days at camp, felt a little twinge and that was it."

The Shamrocks finished third at last year's Class A state meet and Magni believes another top five finish would have been possible with DiGiovanni. Without him Magni is hoping the Shamrocks can qualify for the state meet and give the top 10 a run.

The Shamrocks, who won the Catholic League as well as the regional and Operation Friendship titles, also graduated all-stater Dan Jess. He was 31st at the state meet and is now at Indiana University.

Other graduation losses include starters Jim Curtiss, Brian Kuczynski and Mark Repasky.

"Without DiGiovanni we're a decent team," Magni said. "With him we'll be much, much better, top five material. We've got some kids that have to step up, it's as simple as that."

The top CC returnee is junior Matt Daley, 43rd in the state last year. Magni calls him a potential top 10 placer at the state meet.

"He's getting stronger and stronger every year, gaining more and more confidence," Magni said.

Senior Jeff Haller is No. 1 in his class, scoring a perfect 1,600 on the SAT, and he's No. 2 in the cross country lineup. He was a regular on the CC varsity last year.

He's also a rarity, being tabbed as captain by Magni.

"We're hoping he'll be somewhere in the high 20s (at the state meet)," Magni said. "If he can hang on there that will be great."

"Jeff is a very, very hard worker. I made him captain and I haven't had one in years. I always have designated leaders but he just takes over and the kids respect him."

Junior Doug Gibbons, a former soccer player, has looked good in his first year of running, Magni said. Seniors Adam and Robert Tymowski, twins, are up from the junior varsity.

"They were in the middle of the JV pack, did some work this summer and are ready to go," Magni said.

Senior Doug Snyder is also a first-time varsity performer. Senior Bryan Buchanan gained some varsity experience late in the season last year but spent most of the time on the JV.

The Shamrock starters are hard to match in the classroom where Daley, Snyder and Adam Tamasky join Haller as 4.0 grade point average students.

Blazers run by ND girls

Livonia Ladywood opened its cross country season Tuesday with a 22-38 dual meet victory over host Pontiac Notre Dame Prep.

Notre Dame's Megan Schneider won the 5,000-meter race in 21 minutes, 8 seconds.

Ladywood took five of the next six places led by Anna Plagany, who was second in 22:33.

Other Ladywood finishers included Jennifer Koterba, third (23:37); Brittany O'Keefe, fourth (23:41); Rachel Andersen, sixth (23:54); and Stacey Schroeder, seventh (23:58).

"The times weren't impressive because the track was muddy and they ran through a construction site," Ladywood first-year coach Lee Shaw said.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

YOUTH SOCCER CHAMPS
The Livonia Family Y Meteors, an under-13 girls soccer team, posted four shutouts in four games en route to a divisional title Aug. 27-9 at the Dearborn Invitational.
Members of the Meteors include: Annie Bernacki, Maureen Bielski, Melissa Brais, Allison Campbell, Amanda Carlisi, Kari Coleman, Mandy Hawley, Lauren Hess, Ele Keeler, Julie Mitchell, Jenny Perkins, Emily Pfaff, Tracy Repoz, Lindsay Rowe, Samantha Ryder, Stefanie Stephens, Sandy Swish and Maggie Vaillancourt.
The team is coached by Frank Baker. The trainer is Jeff Bobo, while the team manager is Paulette Baker.
YOUTH SOCCER RUNNER-UP
The Livonia Youth Soccer Club Wings, an under-13 Little Caesars boys team, finished second in the under-14 division at the 18th annual Remeo Peachfest Tournament over Labor Day weekend.

The Wings, trained by Adam Pichler, went undefeated during the preliminary round before losing to Holly in the championship final.
The Wings have lost only three games during their last four tourney appearances with one title and one runner-up trophy.
LEFT-HANDED GOLF CHAMPION
Recent Westland John Glenn grad Chris Tompkins shot a two-round total of 151 (78-73), not including a two-hole playoff, to capture the Left-handed State Golf Championships during the final weekend of August at the Meadows Cours at Grand Valley State in Allendale.

Tompkins, a former All-Observer selection now attending Eastern Michigan University, advances to the nationals next year in Myrtle Beach, S.C.
CARBO BASEBALL SCHOOL
Individual and small group skill sessions in power pitching, hitting and fielding skills are available at the Bernie Carbo Premier Baseball School.
Mark Rutherford, former Livonia Churchill High and former All-Mid-American Conference player now pitching in the Philadelphia Phillies organization, will assist in the coaching.
For more information, call Gordie Rutherford at (734) 421-4928.

former Stevenson state champion Anne Aristeo (now at Stanford), is another promising newcomer.

"We have some hard workers who have the experience," Phill said. "It will take awhile for the freshmen to step up, but right now I'm confident because they're training really well."

Livonia Churchill

The Chargers finished seventh last year in the WLAA and lost three seniors to graduation, including state qualifier Adrienne Doyle, along with Kristin Derwich and Brooke Allen.

But senior Angela Simetkosky, who placed 13th in the state meet in the 500 freestyle, will lead the Chargers. She finished runner-up behind Kern in the 500 freestyle at the WLAA (5:14.08) and third in the 200 freestyle (2:01.44).

Other key returnees include sophomore Beth Bushey, who can swim in the butterfly, IM and backstroke; senior Kelly Stahley, breaststroke-freestyle; sophomore Megan O'Keefe, distance freestyles; senior Laura Shereba, fly-IM-backstroke; Patricia McGowan, breaststroke-freestyle; senior Kristy Blazo, diving.

Churchill coach Ken Stark is also counting on sophomore diver Angela Anerios, who should return sometime this fall after suffering a broken ankle.

"Where we finish this year depends if the new kids step in," said Stark, who has a 43-member squad.

Livonia Franklin

The Patriots, 10th in the WLAA in 1998, will launch the season with a 33-member roster under coach Angela Peecher, who took over the final month of the season for Jean Pritchard.

"I really excited, the attitude of this team is much better," Peecher said. "The kids came out ready to work and I have a lot of high hopes.

"We're much better now than when I filled in at the end of last season. They got a taste of what I expect."

The Patriots lost two key members to graduation, diver Shiloh Wint, who finished ninth in the WLAA, and Terri Cobb.

Franklin's top returning swimmer is junior Amy Smith, who finished 11th in the 50 freestyle (26.48) and 12th in the 100 freestyle (59.55) at the WLAA meet.

Junior diver Julie Johnson, who was 12th in the WLAA, also returns along with senior Suzanne DuPuis, who will be a diver and compete on relays.

Peecher is also optimistic about freshman distance swimmer Stephanie Orvis, along with junior sprinter and breastroker Danielle Meah.

Westland John Glenn

There's nowhere to go but up for the Rockets, who finished last in the WLAA a year ago.

Coach Ron Staples, now in his 11th year, is not discouraged despite his team's 0-3 dual-meet start in 1999.

"We will be much improved this year," Staples said. "The Wayne-Westland Schools now have middle school swimming and I can look toward the future."

We have a three-year plan at John Glenn."

Staples also has plenty of help on the deck as former Ladywood head coach Randy Ferguson will serve as an assistant coach.

Senior diver Jennifer Down is the only Glenn returnee to place at the WLAA meet where she finished 11th.

Other key returnees include junior freestylers Amanda Ross and Jessica Seres.

Staples is also looking for contributions from sophomore Lindsay Ramas (200 IM/butterfly), senior Erica Robertson (backstroke relays), senior Renae Cosgrove (breaststroke), senior Abby Nichols (freestyle) and junior Nicole Cavender (freestyle).

Promising newcomers include junior diver Kristen Fisher, who is converting from the freestyle and butterfly, and freshman Brooke Alberry (freestyle).

Livonia Ladywood

The Blazers, 30 strong, are under new management this year as Redford Union boys coach Doug Schade takes over for Randy Ferguson.

Ladywood, without a home pool, stages practices nightly at Garden City High School.

The top returnee is junior Christina Mocerl, a second-team All-Observer choice who broke school records last year in the 200 freestyle (2:00.7), 200 IM (2:16.45), 100 butterfly (1:03.3) and 100 backstroke (59.84).

She was the first Blazer ever to score points in the state meet, taking eighth in the 100 backstroke. She also took second at the Catholic League meet in the 200 IM and 100 backstroke.

Other returnees include seniors Katie Timko and Lindsay McKay, along with juniors Jessica Kanelis and Dara Wehrmeister.

Two freshmen, Jenny Rice and Gina Seefeld, also show promise. Schade will be assisted this year by Tonya Thomas and Steve Soules.

Wayne Memorial

Fifth-year coach Mike Grueber hopes to improve on last year's 4-8 dual-meet record and seventh place finish in the Mega Conference's Red Division (where Monroe is the defending champion).

"We have some tough teams in our division, and if we can finish in the middle of the pack, it will be a good season," Grueber said. "We have a lot returning kids."

"And with the middle school program back, we hope that will make a difference down the road — it did before."

Grueber lost Sarah Gibelyou and Kristin Kehr to graduation, but the Wayne coach welcomes back four senior captains.

The list is led by Anne Bailey, who will perform in the 200 IM and 100 breaststroke; Kristina McCahill, 200 IM/100 backstroke; Kara Pardee, 50 freestyle/100 butterfly; and Erin Scott, freestyle sprints.

Also expected to contribute is sophomore Jenny Drennen (distance freestyles), junior Krissy Farago (freestyle sprints), junior Kayla Slezak (breaststroke) and junior Melissa Raymo (freestyle sprints) and Heather Dobrowski (relays/breaststroke).

BOYS SOCCER

Churchill grounded

Livonia Churchill dropped its third straight boys soccer game of the season Tuesday in a 2-0 loss to host Rochester.

The Chargers trailed 1-0 at halftime.

A goal by Churchill's Tim Kaminski was waved off because of an offside. The Chargers had seven shots on the Rochester goal.

"They (Rochester) outplayed us," Churchill first-year coach Reid Friedrichs said. "We had a couple of chances, but didn't finish them."

Churchill goalkeeper Brian Druchniak made two saves against the Falcons, now 2-0-1 on the year.

Lady Crusaders start fast, rule Tri-State Tournament

The second season of women's soccer at Madonna University is already looking a lot better.

In the program's first season, the Lady Crusaders posted a 3-12-1 overall record. Over the Labor Day weekend, they played two games at the Tri-State University Tournament in Angola, Ind., and came home with two victories.

Madonna defeated the University of Findlay 3-2 on Sunday, then knocked off Seton Hill College 2-1 on Monday.

Megan Thiry was the offensive star in the two wins. Thiry got the game-winner against both teams, scoring against Seton Hill with just 5:37 left to play as the Crusaders overcame an early deficit.

Seton Hill scored first, getting a goal at the 25:16 mark from Jody Felinczak. Madonna tied it with less than 14 minutes left on a goal by Lindsay Crawford, who knocked in a free kick taken by Kelly Delaney.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Thiry's game-winner was unassisted. Jennifer Dumm was in goal for the victory.

Madonna overcame two one-goal deficits in defeating Findlay. After Janna McKinley scored at the 18:16 mark for Findlay, Thiry tied it at the 39:34 mark by converting a great pass from Jill Gibson.

It remained tied at 1-1 until the final 17 minutes. Findlay recaptured the lead on a penalty kick by Jennifer Nickoson, but 5' minutes later the Crusaders re-tied it, this time Gibson putting in a pass from Thiry.

Thiry got another game-winner with only 1:22 remaining as Findlay keeper Missy Kreiling missed a save attempt and Thiry took advantage.

Jenny Barker (Livonia Stevenson) was in goal for Madonna.

Piraine scores 5 goals as Madonna goes 1-1

Even with the loss of a lot of offensive firepower from last season's 20-3 team, Madonna University's men's soccer team won't be hurting for goals.

Indeed, it wasn't the offense that was lacking when the Fighting Crusaders opened last weekend at Tri-State University. They put six goals on the board in their two games there.

Unfortunately, they surrendered five and ended up with a split, losing 3-2 to Tri-State Friday and winning 4-2 over Geneva College Saturday.

Sophomore Sam Piraine — switched from midfield to forward this season to help make up for the loss of Scott Emert, Madonna's career leader in goals — accounted for five of the Crusaders' six goals.

Piraine scored three times in the win over Geneva, giving Madonna a 2-0 lead with just 2:45 left in the first half and then adding two more in the second half before Geneva got two late scores.

Jim Misajlovich (Livonia Stevenson) got Madonna's first goal just 10:08 into the match. Brian Murphy assisted. Other assists went to Charlie Bell, Joe Suchara (Stevenson) and Seamus Rustin.

Dave Hart was in goal for Madonna, making eight saves in evening his record at 1-1.

On Friday, Wolverine-

Hoosier Athletic Conference rival Tri-State came after the Crusaders after falling behind 2-0 in the first nine minutes of the match. The Thundering Herd scored three second-half goals, the tying and game-winning markers coming from Tomas Frennesson on assists from Chris Rosokes.

Again, it was Piraine who did the scoring for Madonna. Misajlovich assisted on the first at the 1:46 mark; the second, coming just 8:26 into the match, was unassisted.

Hart was in goal for the Crusaders, who played without marking defender Ryan Thomason (Plymouth Christian Academy). Thomason has a leg injury.

TAYLOR

TO REVISIT BLUES ROOTS

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

As a headliner for this year's Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival, Sept. 17-19, KoKo Taylor can't wait to return to a city she connects with the early days of her career as the "Queen of Blues."

"I am very much looking forward to coming to Ann Arbor to do that show," said Taylor. "It's one of the first places I worked years ago. There was a little, tiny club called the Blind Pig." Surprised to hear that the club is not only still standing, and remains a hot spot for live music in Ann Arbor, Taylor reflected back on her blues roots.

"I worked in the Blind Pig, wow, I can't count the times. It was one of the clubs (I worked at) before I started traveling all over the world: Europe, Canada, New Zealand. I'm looking forward to it."

The Blind Pig is not one of the three venues hosting this year's Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival, but the Michigan Theater, Bird of Paradise jazz club, and Gallup Park are.

This time around, Taylor will be performing for a much larger crowd at the Michigan Theater.

In her signature slow, silky tone, Taylor, interviewed by phone from her home in Chicago, spoke about working with long-time friend Buddy Guy.

"He's one of my favorite guys, a good friend of mine," she said during the conversation on Sept. 1. "Buddy Guy played on my 'Wang Dang Doodle.'"

Though Taylor visits Detroit and Lansing at least once a year to perform, she hasn't been to the Ann Arbor area for quite some time. "I've been all over Michigan, I just

New set enhances the allure of 'Riverdance'

BY KEELY WYGONIK AND HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITERS

"Riverdance -- The Show" has a new set, and the "show's a lot more theatrical," said Felicity O'Brien, stage manager of the Lee Company, which is coming to Detroit, Sept. 16-19. "The band used to play on the side of the stage. Now they play at the back of the stage and your eyes are more focused on them."

Music plays an important role in "Riverdance," which focuses on the evolution of Irish dance, its similarities and influences on other cultures. "Music drives the energy of the show," explained O'Brien in a telephone interview from her hotel room in Cincinnati where the show was playing on Aug. 17. "They're the cream of Irish musicians."

Phenomenon: "Riverdance -- The Show" is a celebration of Irish music, song and dance.

haven't been to Ann Arbor (late-ly)," she said.

But if there is one way to draw her attention to the area, it's inviting her to a festival.

"Yes I do enjoy festivals," she said. "This is something women can go to who are mothers... You know what I mean? A lot of mothers would like to go. This way they can plan, bring a blanket, enjoy music, lay on the grass."

Performing at a club, said Taylor, eliminates a lot of women and older people who don't want to stay out late. With events like the Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival, Taylor, Guy and 13 other acts can reach a wide audience.

"While Taylor is working on new material for her upcoming album, don't expect to hear the new tunes just yet.

"The new album, I'm just about finished with it," said Taylor. "I'm doing it for Alligator Records here in Chicago. It'll be ready to roll in November."

But Taylor wouldn't call her newest collection of blues different from previous albums, such as her 1993 release "Force of Nature."

"From my opinion it's no different," she said. "I have tunes on there — slow tunes — what most people call traditional Mississippi blues on there. There's also up tempo tunes for people who want to dance and listen to it while they ride in their cars."

Mixing both styles, Taylor will offer something for everyone on the new disc, which is un-named as of yet.

"I do it just like if I'm cooking a pot of soup," she said. "A little bit of this and a little bit of that and I've got a good, big pot of soup."

Since this new "pot of soup" isn't quite done cooking, Taylor will stick to the tunes her fans want to hear. Listen for songs like "I'm a Woman," "Let the Good Times Roll," and "I'd Rather Go Blind."

"I will be playing some tunes everyone can really enjoy and relate to," she said of her upcoming performance. "We can only do so many."

please the crowd. "What I do, I'm not doing to please myself. I try to do what I feel is the public's favorite. Everything I do, in the back of my mind, I sure hope the public will enjoy."

It isn't only the general public that's looking forward to catching Taylor's show. Two of her fans will be performing at the weekend festival as well. Peter Madcat Ruth and Shari Kane, known as blues duo Madcat and Kane, identified themselves as fans.

"I love that," said Kane when asked about playing the same event as Taylor and Guy. "That's always a thrill." She's felt fortunate in this profession to have played on the same bill and had a chance to meet some of her musical heroes, she said.

"I think it's going to be a great line-up," she said. "I think it's going to be a great festival. It's more than just coming to hear the music. It's supporting something we want to have in our town."

Both Ann Arbor residents, Madcat and Kane called the festival a historic event.

"There's really a lot of energy at the festival," added Kane. "People are really pumped up. What we end up playing depends on our mood." She said she's not sure if they will do an acoustic set or an electric set this time around, but she's looking forward to it.

Peter Madcat Ruth said he remembered the popularity of the Blues and Jazz Festival in the early 70s. He attended and has performed at it before. "It's nice to play for a hometown crowd," he said. "It's well run and in a nice location. It tends to be a great weekend."

with the show for a little over a year, and is looking forward to coming back to the Masonic Temple Theatre. "You're close to the audience," she said. "And the audiences in Detroit are always excellent."

Life on the road is very hectic, but the over 100 cast members, musicians and crew are like one big family. "We all know each other so well," said O'Brien.

Friends

Many of the performers have friends in metro Detroit. Mick Gavin of Redford is looking forward to the group's return.

"It's a great show, very well put together," said Gavin who saw it four times last year. "It's very interesting. You're always comparing one show to the next. I know a lot of the dancers and musicians."

When they're performing or rehearsing, Riverdance cast members get together with Gavin and other people from the metro Detroit Irish community.

"They've become friends," said O'Brien. "The musicians might go to an Irish pub or someone's house to play music together."

Keeping the show fresh is a challenge for O'Brien who organizes rehearsal schedules, and ensures that the artistic integrity of the show is maintained. She also takes care of costumes, and makes sure dancers aren't getting careless.

"I still get shivers up and down my spine watching the show," she said. "It's wonderful."

To keep the dancers fresh, various experts work with them to improve their posture and upper body strength. "We have a fitness expert that does warm-up exercises with the dancers, and yoga classes to strengthen and improve posture," she said.

Except for the set, "Riverdance" hasn't changed much over the years. "Various directors will come in and touch things up," said O'Brien. "The show has evolved. Little details are important, they make such a difference. The show is so much better now."

Mike Belvitch of Plymouth, a senior at Plymouth-Salem High School, just returned from a summer "Riverdance" tour. He spent one week in Edmonton, Alberta and two weeks in Portland, Ore.

"It's been a lot of work and a lot of fun at the same time," said Belvitch, who auditioned for and won a spot with the Logan Company in July 1998.

Belvitch said Riverdance appeals to his sense of wanderlust.

"It gives me the opportunity to meet a lot of new people and the opportunity to travel and see all different places," he said.

He has been involved in Irish dancing since he was 8. His mother's side of the family is Irish.

"It's kind of a nice reward after years of practice," said Belvitch.

Dancers range in age from 17 to 28, with the bulk being 22-23. They come from all over the world, but mostly Ireland. There are three companies, all named after rivers in Ireland. The Lee Company, named after a river in County Cork; the Logan Company, named after a river in Belfast; and the Liffey Company, touring Europe, named for a river in Dublin.

Paul Cussick, a Plymouth resident who graduated from Catholic Central this year, is part of the Liffey Company. His mother, Noreen, said he's enjoying life on the road.

"He's having a wonderful time," she said. "He's loving it."

So far he's visited Cologne and Stuttgart in Germany, Rotterdam, Brussels and Ghent in Belgium and Zurich, Switzerland. He's been a dancer since he was 5.

"I think it's wonderful," Cussick said. "I love to watch him dance."

It can take up to a year for a new dancer to learn all the moves they need to become part of the cast; 2 to 3 weeks to learn just one number.

"There's a lot of rehearsing, two to three hours a day," said O'Brien. "It's hard work, and requires concentration."

Some of the cast members toured with the original company. Many attended colleges and universities so they will have something to fall back on. "They're very skilled people who come to 'Riverdance,'" said O'Brien. "We thought it was just a three month phenomena but it's gone on for a very long time."

UK band proves that its 'Pretty' self can still rock

BY ALICE RHEIN
STAFF WRITER

An oxymoron if there ever were one: Pretty Things. The British band that time forgot was never, ever pretty. In their glam days they were bad-boy cute — that is — if you had a thing for men with long blond hair in silver satin pants.

But in the '60s and early '70s, the six-man group, which plays this Tuesday at the Magic Bag in Ferndale, pumped out a slew of raucous rock-and-roll albums. The band never really broke up, but the original Pretties are together again with a new album, "Rage Before Beauty" (Snapper Music).

A musician's band who can sing raunchy and still harmonize, the Pretties left a mark on such impressionable young men as David Bowie (who covered two tunes on "Pin Ups"), Johnny Rotten and those chaps from Led Zeppelin (who invited the band to record on its label Swan Song).

While Pretties guitarist Dick Taylor was an original member of the Rolling Stones, the band's music has always been more akin to the Kinks in its novelty and idealism. But like most bands in the '60s, Pretty Things had an ugly side.

They were the first rock-and-roll band in England to be busted for drugs, the first to set fire to an aircraft in mid-flight, the first to have their drummer beaten senseless by a heavyweight boxing champ.

When parents warned their teenagers about the immoral Beatles and those vulgar Rolling Stones, the band that truly deserved to be feared was Pretty Things.

The Pretties can also be credited with another first, the album S. F. Sorrow (1968) was the first rock opera, though the title was usurped a year later by The Who's "Tommy."

Whether it's fast-driving R&B or serious ballads, music has always come easy for lead singer and songwriter Phil May; hit singles haven't "Joey (in a dream)," from the glam-rock epic "Silk Torpedo" (1974) comes the closest. But any teenager worth his or her musical weight had a copy of the 1970 release "Parachute" and the rootsy "Freeway Madness" (1972).

In the 1980s, the band started work on "Rage before Beauty," which was released this year. Nineteen years to make an album that includes three cover tunes?

Yes, and no apologies necessary. While the cover of the Stone's "Play with Fire" never ignites, "Eve of Destruction" is as hauntingly poignant today. Ronnie Spector lends her vocals on a grinding version of "Mony Mony," which dignifies this song thought destined as a mere excuse to swear on the dance floor.

The bluesy "Vivian Prince" recounts the original outrageous drummer; "Goodbye, Goodbye" and "Fly Away" are smooth-as-silk ballads and the thrashing "Not Givin' In" could be the band's rendering of the quintessential Dylan Thomas poem.

The Bach Chorale lends its angelic voice to "Love Keeps Hanging On," but it's Mandy Miller's Inspirational Choir that sings in exhalation on "God Give Me the Strength."

Pretty Things were always a little too hip for their own good. While the British punk wave came and went, one of the best unknown bands kept right on with their revved-up harmonies and tightly wound ballads. And rock-and-roll has never been as pretty.

Ridgedale Players open season with 'Nunsense'

Ridgedale Players will present the musical comedy "Nunsense" Saturday, Sept. 11, Friday-Sunday, Sept. 17-19 and Sept. 24-26 at the theater, 205 W. Long Lake Road (between Crooks and Liver- nois) in Troy. Performances 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday; 3 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $13; seniors and students pay $12 on Sun- days, call (248) 988-7049. Sand- wich and coffee afterglow includ- ed with ticket price. Free previews of "Nunsense" are scheduled dur- ing Ridgedale's annual open house 1-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12 at the theater.

The director of the Ridgedale Players' upcoming staging of "Nunsense" wants the audience to forget all the stereotypes associated with the sisterhood.

In the play, the group of nuns works on rais- ing money to bury their fellow sisters, who were accidentally killed by the convent cook. In the meantime, the dead nuns are stored in the freezer.

"We have been rehearsing arduously for the past five to six weeks," said director/choreogra- pher Dan See of Troy. "What (the audience) really has to look forward to is the presentation of a very different image of nuns." See said. The cast is all female.

"Nunsense's" Mother Superior, played by Becky MacIntyre of Troy, is a former tightrope walker who has a hard time control- ling her flock. Sister Mary Hubert, played by Peggy Jones of Rochester Hills, wants Moth- er Superior's job. Sister Robert Anne, played by Lynn Koch of Troy, is street wise and wants to be a star. Sister Mary Annesia, portrayed by Tania Velinsky of Royal Oak, is a ventriloquist. Another nun, Sister Mary Leo, played by Rachel Pattison of Royal Oak, expresses her love for God through ballet.

In the play, the group of nuns work on raising money to bury their fellow sisters, who were accidentally killed by the con- vent cook. In the meantime, the dead nuns are stored in the freezer.

"It's hysterically funny and full of toe-tapping music," See said. The audience will be encouraged to interact with the cast during a bingo fund-raiser put on by the play's nuns.

"Nunsense," penned by Michi- gan resident Dan Goggin about 12 years ago, never made it to Broadway, but has been shown off-Broadway, See said.

"Now it's kind of a stock piece for community theater," he said.

Other upcoming Ridgedale productions include:

■ "Jest a Second" by James Sherman, Nov. 5-6, Nov. 12-14 and Nov. 19-21

■ "Deathtrap!" by Ira Levin, Jan. 14-15, Jan. 21-23 and Jan. 28-30

■ "Oklahoma" by Rodgers and Hammerstein March 10-11, March 12-13 and March 19-21 2000 and

■ "Moon Over the Brewery" May 5-7, 12-13 and 19-21

Tinderbox shows 'Godspell'

Tinderbox Productions pre- sents "Godspell" 8 p.m. Friday- Saturday, Sept. 10-11 and 17-18, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12 at the Scottish Rite Cathedral in the Masonic Temple, 500 Temple, Detroit. Tickets are $6-$10 and may be reserved in advance or obtained at the door. For more information, call (313) 535-8962.

Tinderbox Production's upcom- ing production of "Godspell" aims to show the audience the lighter side of being one of Jesus Christ's disciples.

Originally staged on the heels of 1970s-influenced "Jesus Christ Superstar," "Godspell" focuses on a band of disciples who tell each other bible parables through music and dance. Like "Super- star," "Godspell" also is set amid a 1970s-theme, said Nancy Florkowski, artistic director for Tinderbox Productions.

"The production of 'Godspell' will bring back many fond mem- ories," Florkowski said. "The cost- uming is very colorful and pret- ty far-out. There are a lot of (clothes) that don't match."

Director David M. Hartmann- has directed "Godspell" numer- ous times. The show runs about 2 1/2 hours.

Stars include Meaghan Duke and Kirsten Benjamin of Detroit, Rebecca Allen of West Bloom- field, Jody and Jenny Florkowski of Redford, Ben Ryberg of Farm- ington Hills, Morgan Johnson of Livonia, Kyle Grant of Livonia, and Shannon VanEsley of Red- ford.

Tinderbox Productions, which is sponsored by the Scottish Rite Masons as part of their family outreach program, was begun in 1990 by Florkowski as part of her master's theses project in children's theater. It was former- ly known as the Redford Youth Theatre, and was sponsored by and housed in South Redford Schools, until outgrowing its quarters and moving to Detroit.

The group won a spot in the 1996 Livent production of "Joseph and the Amazing Tech- nicolor Dreamcoat." The Tind- erbox Show Choir has performed at events such as the Festival of Trees at Cobo Hall and holiday concerts at Greenfield Village and senior homes.

General auditions for the 1999-2000 season will be 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25 following the 2 p.m. performance of "School House Rock" at Masonic Temple. Auditions for 1999-2000 season, non-paid positions, all ages, 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25. Call (313) 535-8962.

This year's productions include "The Little Prince" by Antoine de Saint-Exupery, "The Little Princess" by Frances H. Burnett and Music Theatre Internation- al's Broadway Junior "Annie."

'The Music Man' opens Avon Player's season

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

Avon Players is opening its sea- son Friday, Sept. 10 with the musical classic, "The Music Man."

Jean Garringer, vice president at large for Avon Players, said musicals give the players a real chance to shine.

"I would say that we put on wonderful musicals," Garringer said. "I think it's our forte."

The Avon Players typically open their season with a musi- cal.

"We try to pick a show that has children and teens involved," she said. "There are at least 10 teens and children involved in 'The Music Man'.

Children and teens from Avon's youth theater group typi- cally "graduate" to Avon's main stage productions, she said.

Avon's show, like the original, is set in the early 1900s. The plot involves the romance between a fast-talking con man and the librarian who cons him. The director is Debbie Schlutow of Auburn Hills.

Show dates for "The Music Man" are 8 p.m. Friday-Satur- day, Sept. 10-11, 17-18 and 24- 25, and Oct. 1-2; 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12, Sept. 19, and Sept. 26; 8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 20; and Thursday, Sept. 30. Perform- ances are at the theater 1185 Tienken Road, 1 1/4 miles east of Rochester Road in Rochester Hills. Tickets are $15. Senior and student discounts available for Thursday and Sunday perfor- mances. Season tickets are $65 and includes all five shows of the season. Call (248) 608-9077 for ticket information.

The upcoming Avon season:

■ "Wait Until Dark" a sus- pense thriller — Oct. 29-31; Nov. 5-7 and 11-13.

■ "Made in the U.S.A.: Encore!" a musical biennial salute to American song and dance. —Jan. 14-16, 21-23 and 27-29.

■ "Moon Over Buffalo," a hys- terical farce — March 3-5, 10-12 and 16-18, 2000.

Clarkston Village Players to present 'Murder by the Book'

The Clarkston Village Players will usher in its 39th season Friday, Sept. 10 with a murder mys- tery thriller — "Murder by the Book," a story about a London novelist and murders' real and fake.

Show times are 7:30 p.m. for Thursday shows and 8 p.m. for all other shows throughout the season. Tickets are $12 and can be purchased by calling (248) 625-8811. The Clarkston Village Players' Depot Theatre is located at 4861 White Lake Road, between Dixie Highway and Ander- sonville Road in Independence Township.

Show dates and times for "Murder by the Book" are 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Sept. 10-11, 17-18 and 24-25; 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 15; 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 16, and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 23.

Other shows in the season include:

■ "Close Ties," a family drama involving an aging matriarch, Nov. 5-6, 10-13 and 18-20.

■ "Weekend Comedy" by Jeanne and Sam Bobrick, Jan. 7-8, 13-15 and 20-22.

■ "A Case of Libel," by Henry Denker, March 10-11, 15-18 and 23-25.

■ "A Bad Year for Tomatoes," May 12-13, 18-20 and 25-27.

On Saturday, Oct. 2, at 8 p.m. the Players will present "Fall Concert 1999" featuring David Mosher, Bob Gerics and Dan Hall. Tickets are $10. Compact discs will be available following the show. Call (248) 625-8811 for more informa- tion.

'Mickey Blue Eyes' guilty of laugh-making

BY JON KATZ
SPECIAL WRITER

Hugh Grant has a problem. A lot of young actors achieve instant stardom and spend a career living up to the early hype. Hugh Grant seems to have to prove himself with each new release. It's possible that this summer's comedy quinnella, "Notting Hill" and "Mickey Blue Eyes," will let him go on to do his thing without the "Yeah, he's cute but can he act?" anchor around him.

Grant is cute, all right; he's also got the frenetic funnybone of that other Grant character, Cary. This allows him to be best when the walls are closing in, like the earlier Grant in "Front Page" and so many others.

In "Mickey," Hugh plays Michael, a suave Manhattan art dealer who runs an auction like Don Rickles with culture. Proposing to girlfriend Gina (Jeanne Tripplehorn) in a Chinese restaurant, a scene you'll recall next time you're in one, he's shocked when she turns him down. "You're ashamed of me," he reasons. "I talk funny and my hair's unusually fluffy."

But she's got a different explanation. If he becomes a member of the family, he becomes a member of...The Family. He's never met them, and protests that "I don't wanna marry your father." "You will," she warns, "and all his friends."

Downtown in Little Italy, he confronts the clan. There's Frankie, VinEE, RichEE, LouEE — that's how they say it on Mulberry Street. Frank, Gina's dad, is James Caan. He's an old crony to the big boss, Vito (Burt Young). Caan's equally at home playing serious gangsters ("The Godfather") and comedy gangsters ("Honeymoon in Vegas"), so the dees, dems and doses flow freely.

Before you can say "Fuhged-aboutit" — which Grant can't, as you've seen in the commercials — poor Michael's in up to his fluffy hairline doing favors for Dad. First laundering a little money through the art store, then covering up a little arson; finally, there's that little accessory to murder thing.

To stay alive as a rival crime family and the FBI are closing in, Michael poses as mobster Mickey Blue Eyes from Kansas City. There's a lot of "Analyze This" in this. Grant's and Billy Crystal's fishes-out-of-water come from the same pond. Supporting actor Joseph Viterelli plays the exact same role in both movies as a huge henchman. Even a few of the locations look the same, from the New Jersey bank of the Hudson River where they bury the bodies to the abandoned shipyard where the opposing Dons bury the hatchet.

"Mickey Blue Eyes" is a lightweight romantic comedy and has no aspirations to be anything more. Grant, Caan and Tripplehorn are guilty of laugh-making in at least the second degree. They are aided and abetted by a motley mob of comic like? Jon Katz is a free-lance writer who lives in Rochester.

'Outside Providence' makes growing up look comical

BY VICKI DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

Written by brothers Peter and Bobby Farrelly — who created last year's smash hit, "There's Something About Mary" — and director Michael Corrente ("American Buffalo"), "Outside Providence" is one of those slightly-sad, slightly-mad comedies about a group of kids who are at the edge of adulthood, trying to find their way in life.

Based on Peter Farrelly's novel of the same name, it contains a bit of the spirit of Peter Yates' film, "Breaking Away," and Gus Van Sant's "Good Will Hunting," along with some of the boisterous raunch reminiscent of John Landis' "Animal House."

Set in Rhode Island and Connecticut in the shaggy '70s, "Outside Providence" focuses mainly on the life of one Timothy Dunphy (played winningly by Shawn Hatosy), a high school senior whose mother shoots ornaments off the family Christmas tree with an air rifle one year, and then turns a real gun on herself several years later.

Dunphy, though he definitely possesses a certain charm, could never be mistaken for an over-achiever in the blue-collar town of Pawtucket, Rhode Island where he lives with his curmudgeonly father, his crippled brother, and his three-legged, one-eyed dog. To find clues to Dunphy's identity, best to look in the dictionary under the word, "slacker."

The same goes for his pals. Drugs Delaney (Jon Abrahams)

is wasting much of his youth in a kind of chemically induced fog. Mousy (Jonathan Brandis) entertains child-like, dreamy dreams of somehow escaping gritty Pawtucket and making it in sunny California someday. Others in the group are birds of a similar feather. You could safely say that not one of these guys is exactly consumed by drive and ambition.

One night, while chauffeuring his buddies around town, Dunphy accidentally rams his car into a police cruiser. Nobody is hurt, but the event is the last straw as far as Dunphy's exasperated father is concerned. Just about as quickly as Dunphy can pack his trash-bag luggage, Old Man Dunphy (Alec Baldwin) has pulled the necessary strings, and sent his errant son off to an exclusive Connecticut prep school called Cornwall Academy.

Here, Dunphy is greeted by slimy resident director, Mr. Funderberk (Timothy Crowe), who assures him of the awful truth: "We at Cornwall expect more than those liberal institutions." Not surprisingly, the young diamond-in-the-rough learns some things about life and love as this story progresses. But, while the movie may be predictable and a little choppy at times, some right-on dialogue, appealing characterizations, and strong performances lift "Outside Providence" above the usual, garden-variety, teen-comes-of-age flick.

Cast as Old Man Dunphy, Alec Baldwin plays a middle-aged, working-class father struggling mightily to bring up his two motherless sons, and point them in what he considers the right direction. He's a mixed bag of thorns and tough love — a paternal type we've all seen on the screen before. However, Baldwin brings to the role a kind of poignant strength that not only gives extra dimension to the character, but adds substance to the film itself. One simple, but touching, scene in which he discusses with his son the manly art of tying neckties is a real keeper.

George Wendt is a winner as a poker player with a surprise up his sleeve, and newcomer Jack Ferver is a quiet riot as Dunphy's roommate, who often looks like he needs quick access to a barf bag. Amy Smart, playing "the coolest chick in school," is an All-American beauty, but she's clearly at a disadvantage here, since her part is much less interesting than the male roles in this picture.

Employing rather harsh lighting and grainy stock, director of photography Richard Crudo paints Pawtucket as a gray, slightly shadowy place with an almost-desolate feel. On the other hand, the prep school milieu is as colorful and lovely-to-look-at as Lollipop Land. One assumes Crudo meant to underscore the differences in these two worlds, but he may have gone slightly overboard. This "color scheming" gives the movie an odd feel overall, as if the two parts never quite meld together.

MUSIC

JoyDrop is Canada's latest modern rock candy

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homedcomm.net

With the sounds of Smashing Pumpkins "Siamese Dream" wafting in the background on the other end of the telephone line, Tom McKay explained he doesn't spend much time lounging around his living room in Toronto these days.

The bassist for the Canadian-based modern rock band, JoyDrop, said they've been touring incessantly since last January in support of their debut album "Metaxsexual," released by Tommy Boy Records. On Sept. 10, JoyDrop will stop in Detroit for the first time.

While the band's moniker conjures images of rock candy, its meaning is something more than sugar-sweet. McKay came up with the name while toying with words that described how the music makes him feel. He chose "Joy" because music has an ability to lift you up, he said. "Drop" was another word that encapsulated that idea, while also referring to something with weight, something that would not fly away in the wind. "JoyDrop" had a good feeling, a good weight to it."

The members of JoyDrop — McKay, vocalist Tara Stone, drummer Tony Rabalao, and guitarist Thomas Payne — came together in 1996 in Canada's urban center, Toronto. McKay and Rabalao knew each other prior to forming the band, and Stone auditioned after answering an ad in an entertainment newspaper.

"We knew she was the one," said McKay. "No one else stood out." Impressed by her powerful voice and obvious experience as a singer, Stone joined the band and "the chemistry evolved pretty quickly." For the first year JoyDrop was together, the band rehearsed six days a week working to solidify their material before performing in front of an audience.

Unlike his bandmates, McKay did not formally study music. "I was more the guy who left home a little early. I went to Britain." His objectives were to travel to a place he considered to be very cool and to get a record deal. In his early 20s, McKay achieved both aspirations, having lived in London and Glasgow, Scotland and getting signed to a record deal as a member of Five Guys Named Moe.

"It was really good training to be young and have a record deal. I learned a lot being 22 years old and having all that experience. It was like an apprenticeship."

An apprenticeship that has paid off, it would seem. JoyDrop has broken into the top 20 on Billboard's Modern Rock Charts with their first single "Beautiful." At number 20 on Sept. 4, the song is among McKay's favorites on the album.

"If you look at the top 20 songs, it's pretty stiff competition," he said. "These are bands that I have in my record collection. It's an amazing thing. The record company really helped get it there."

Seeing the single do well, said McKay, is a way of creating a bond between the band and

STREET SCENE

Reviving the 1980s: an experiment that paid off

STEPHANIE A. CASOLA

I hate to admit it, but I am a product of the 1980s.

It started with a pair of purple leg warmers I wore in second grade (scrunched to the ankles of course) and continued on to my later discovery of the curling iron (which led to big, over-hair sprayed hair), and culminated in my leather mini skirt phase. Somewhere between hair bands like Poison and an affinity for flannel shirts and Pearl Jam's "Ten," the decade came to a close.

What was gone, was not forgotten.

As often occurs within the cyclical nature of our society, the 1980s returned in the late 1990s, and did so in a big way. The hideous fashions may have come and gone, but the music has lingered on. Radio stations like WPLT 96.3 FM may be to blame with their continuous flashbacks and concerts featuring headliners like the Violent Femmes and Men at Work all re-born within the 1980s fever. You won't hear me complaining.

Reviving the recent past

Garett Michaels joined the radio station more than three years ago to become operations manager and program director. Experience working in radio at a Philadelphia station helped Michaels come to the realization that alternative music had reached a sort of peak. Working at Planet 96.3 where the target audience reaches 27-39 year-olds, he saw how this shift was causing that particular segment of alternative rock fans to "tune out." Generation Xers reaching their 30s cherished the alt-pop sounds of bands like Erasure and Human League, a synthesized resonance that faded from popular music by the time grunge took hold. As early alternative morphed into the folkier sounds of REM, and later the big rock reverberations of U2, those early fans were increasingly ignored by popular radio formats — or so Michaels thought. He took a concept he was experimenting with in Philadelphia and helped integrate it into what is today's Planet 96.3 sound. With support from the station's general manager Mike Fezzy, the 50 percent modern rock and 50 percent flashback and alternative-classics format became a recipe for success.

Instituting the "Flashback Lunch" re-introduced metro Detroiters to songs like "Tainted Love" by Soft Cell and "Rock the Casbah" by The Clash and allowed memories of a decade past to flood right back. Having older sisters who exposed me to popular music at a young age, I had a natural affinity to the sounds of 80s one-hit-wonders like Soft Cell and ground-breaking mainstays like The Cure. Besides, I already knew all the words.

Taking it to the streets

But I never knew what it felt like to dance to those songs until Clutch Cargo opened in downtown Pontiac and began "Saturday Night Flashbacks," a four-hour uninterrupted simulcast of flashback music from the club out through the radio waves. Once old enough to wander through the doors of the gothic-looking church-turned-nightclub,

I found myself dancing to the same music my older sisters had partied to in college, the same music that blared from my best friend's car as we squealed into our high school parking lot just in time for first hour. Flash back indeed.

"It's been three years now and it's hugely successful," said Michaels of the Saturday night ritual. "On any given (Saturday) night you'll see a couple thousand people there partying. The main room is always packed. People are getting down. It's an interesting looking crowd, a very diverse group of people."

Michaels said Generation Y isn't interested in flashback music, but instead they crave the sounds of the moment including Korn and Limp Bizkit. Plenty of radio stations, not to mention MTV, cater to that need. But this 80s revival could be spreading. He mentioned radio stations in California that are experimenting with similar retro formats. Whatever happens in years to come, Michaels hopes for continued success and intends to keep growing with the audience, rather than leaving them behind for the newest music trends. He's a man with long-term goals and strong connection to the early years of alternative rock. Michaels would like to see WPLT become something of a radio institution in Detroit, following in the footsteps of others like WRIF and WCSX. So far his ideas seem to be working just fine.

Flashing back: the live version

Men at Work, featured at last month's Planet Fest, will return to the metro area 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 9 at the Magic Bag, 22920 Woodward Ave. in Ferndale. Tickets are $15. Call the club for additional information at (248) 544-3030.

Michaels said anyone who didn't catch the band at Planet Fest should check them out this time around. "If people go out and see them, they'll be really pleased," he said. "They play nothing but their hits."

With songs like "Down Under" and "Who Can It Be Now," Men at Work performances are sure to draw audiences into a sonic time machine, taking them back to the 1980s, an era remembered for parachute pants, skinny ties, and cutting edge music that finally started getting the recognition it deserved.

its audience, which is something he strives for as a musician. While his musical influences are too many to name, McKay said the last live show he attended that made him feel that bond was a Marilyn Manson performance he caught while in Philadelphia.

"I expected it to be really good," he said, with a hint of excitement rising in his voice. "They were so good live. And I've seen a lot of bands. I did a complete double-take (and thought) that's the level we have to be at...I aspire to that."

But Marilyn Manson and JoyDrop are quite different in appearance, sound and style. McKay describes the JoyDrop sound as having a strong melody, good lyrics, and, well, it has to rock.

"You gotta have good lyrics," he said. "They can't be throw-away. There are too many good lyricists to live up to by now. We try to work on those a lot. We try to rock, and we do rock."

But what sets JoyDrop apart may be what McKay calls the "quirky elements" of the songs, those moments that reach into the psyche, the sound of a daydream: "I think there's an honesty in the sound," he said.

To bring out that honesty, JoyDrop worked with Ron St. Germain (Creed, Soundgarden and Tool), who produced and mixed the album. Working at Long View Farms Studio in Massachusetts, St. Germain got the performances out of JoyDrop that showcase their sound so purely on "Metaxual."

"It was a farmhouse setting," said McKay. "We were kind of connected to nature. Also there was a lot of wide open space to think. It was a time to breathe mentally."

The setting coupled with a producer that McKay referred to as an "Olympic Coach," allowed JoyDrop the space and time to come into its own.

"He looked for the strengths in each person," McKay said of St. Germain. "I'm indebted to that guy. He sort of let us be who we were." The bandmates worked collectively to write the 14 songs that make up their debut album. But for McKay, inspiration to write music and lyrics comes from the people he meets. "On a certain level, I can be inspired by the planet and things of beauty, but I'm more inspired by people, the dynamics between people in cities."

But the people that matter most in McKay's career, are those who own the new album and really "get it on all the levels." In his eyes, the band has already been successful because what truly matters to McKay are all the fans who've come to see JoyDrop and said that, in some way, the songs and lyrics touched them, helped them, or lifted their spirits.

"You write a song and you think you're inspired...but when someone says 'I'm inspired by your song,' you know you're doing something real...That to me is success; we're already there."

See JoyDrop live 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 10, at The Shelter, located downstairs from St. Andrews Hall at 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are on sale now for $6. All ages are welcome. Call (248) 645-6666 or www.ticketmaster.com.

Culinary Extravaganza blends familiar and new in Gourmet Gala

"Let the stoics say what they please, we do not eat for the good of living, but because the meat is savory and the appetite is keen"
— Ralph Waldo Emerson

A sampling of the newest of the new restaurants, old favorites, fine wines and tempting auction packages await diners at the eighth annual Schoolcraft College Culinary Extravaganza 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26.

The gourmet feast, which raises scholarship funds for Schoolcraft College students, will include a number of Schoolcraft Culinary Arts alumni among the almost 60 restaurants and food distributors attending.

Those with adventuresome souls might want to sample the fare at Bonfire Bistro & Brewery, La Bistecca Italian Grille, the Hilton Garden Inn and Buca Di Beppo, all restaurants new to the area.

Traditionalists will find old favorites such as Emily's, the Golden Mushroom, Water Club Restaurant, the Water Club Seafood Grill, Zingerman's, Rocky's and La Shish ready and waiting with fine examples of their fare.

For a taste of something farther afield, diners can sample offerings from Broadstreet of Linden, TBQ Pastries of Windsor, Kerrytown Bistro of Ann Arbor and The Farm Restaurant of Port Austin.

The American Harvest, the restaurant operated by Schoolcraft Culinary Arts students, tops the list of participants with

Schoolcraft College Culinary Extravaganza
When: 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26
Where: In the Waterman Center on the Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads, just west of I-275, in Livonia.
Cost: Tickets are $40 per person or $75 for two. Call (734) 462-4417.

close ties to Schoolcraft.

Others include Chef and Schoolcraft instructor Brian Polcyn's Five Lakes Grill, alumni Jeff Zak of Jeff Zak's Catering in Plymouth, Chef and instructor Jeff Gabriel's The Farm Restaurant, alumna and Chef Kelli Lewton's Too Unique Caterers, Buca de Beppo, whose chef Matt Chuchman is a Schoolcraft grad, and Intermezzo, whose owner Nick Apone has a son in the Culinary Arts program.

Patrons of Culinary Extravaganza VIII will experience a wide variety of culinary delights. Begin with Nantucket Bay scallop bisque from Excaliber, oysters on half shell from Tom's Oyster Bar, Angus beef bits with horseradish sauce and tortilla chips from the Hilton Garden Inn, wild mushroom kiwi bisque from the Michigan Star Clipper Dinner Train or chicken Wellington enroute from Embassy Suites Hotel.

Perhaps the next stop might be Norwegian salmon from Costco, smoked chicken risotto with sun dried tomatoes and chevre from the Golden Mushroom Grill, sea scallops with shitake salsa and taro hash from Broadstreet or char grilled breast of chicken from the University of Michigan Food and Nutrition Services.

Save room for ice cream sundaes from blue ribbon award-winning Ashby's Sterling Ice Cream, Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe or TBQ Pastries. Diners can compliment their food choices with wines from Michigan Grape and Wine Council, Pelee Island Winery or Fine Wine Source, Inc.; beverages from Central Distributors of Beer, Inc. and Craft Distribution; and flavored cappuccino and espresso from Cadillac Coffee Company.

During the event, Master Sommelier Madeline Triffon of Unique Restaurant Corp. will present a wine seminar, matching wines to the foods from selected restaurants and be available for individual commentary. Raffle winners will be announced and claim their prizes, which include two round-trip tickets on Northwest Airlines to anywhere in the continental U.S., a three-month auto lease from Saturn of Plymouth/Farmington Hills and an Orin Jewelers garnet and diamond ring.

Capping off the day, a live auction will feature packages

What's Cooking includes listings of new restaurants, special dinners, menu changes, restaurant anniversaries and renovations.

Bernardus Winery at Big Rock Chop & Brew House, 245 S. Eton, Birmingham (248) 647-7774, winemaker dinner 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 14. Cost $75 per person includes tax and gratuity. An hors d'oeuvres reception will be followed by a tantalizing five-course menu prepared by Executive Chef Scott Peterson and paired with the award-winning wines of Bernardus, in California's Carmel Valley. The entree highlight is Duck Three Ways — grilled, seared, and confit, served with the winery's signature red wine 1995 Bernardus Marinus. Winery Director of Operations Seri Sedlacek will be on hand to provide personal introduction to Bernardus wines.

Al's 13th Annual Chili Cookoff noon to 10 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12 at Al's Copper Mug, 1704 W. Maple, corner of Decker Road, in Walled Lake, donation $1. More chili cooks are needed, call Al or Patti (248) 624-9659 for details. The event is a fundraiser for Michael Babel for a bone marrow transplant. The Commerce resident has a match, he just needs help raising money to pay for it.

The chili cook-off will feature Sax Appeal 4-9 p.m. and Dan Valine 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Beer, hot dogs, Italian sausage, buffalo burgers and hamburgers will be cooked outside on the grill. No children or anyone under age 21 will be admitted.

Classical Flamenco Guitar Music and Latin Foods 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12 at Forté Restaurant, 201 S. Old Woodward, Birmingham (248) 594-7300. The cost is $40. The Troubadours, David Cocagne and Michael Blaskiewicz of Ferndale, both have a master's degree in music from Wayne State University and specialize in classical-flamenco guitar.

They will perform historical music from Brazil, Italy and Spain while you dine on a four-course international menu with foods from the same countries, prepared by Executive Chef Tim Voss. Admission for standing room only, without dinner, is $10. Reservations strongly advised.

Too Chez Restaurant, 27155 Sheraton Dr., Novi, Executive Chef Greg Upshur will treat patrons to a five course macrobiotic culinary extravaganza featuring fresh, all-organic ingredients, 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 21. The cost is $32 per person (excluding beverage, tax and gratuity). Call (248) 348-5555. Featured menu items include five different flavors of rolled nori served with a wild grape sauce, wild mushroom, Adzuki bean and Hiziki soup, and an organic apple pie with a natural wheat crust and elderberry sauce.

Two chefs from the Golden Mushroom restaurant in Southfield were chosen to compete on teams that will travel to the Culinary Olympics in Germany in August 2000.

Executive Chef Derin Moore was chosen as one of the five members of the United States National Culinary Team. Nigh chef Deni Smiljanovski will compete in Germany as a member of the Macomb Community College Culinary Team.

The U.S. Culinary Team was recently in Michigan, using the kitchens at Schoolcraft College in Livonia to test recipes and practice working together.

classic comedy with a twist
SEPT 15 THROUGH OCT 10
Thirty years ago, Neil Simon's hilarious comedy poked fun at a couple of guys' batching it. In 1986, Simon rewrote the play to show that mismatched female roomies can be just as odd — and even funnier — a couple! Florence Ungar and Olive Madison play Trivial Pursuit instead of poker, and the Costazuela brothers replace the Pigeon sisters, but the humor's still uproarious.
