Pardon Our Phones

The Observer Newspapers apologizes for any inconvenience our advertisers, readers and carrier force may have experienced in calling our Livonia office late last week. A new telephone system has been installed and like most new technology the "bugs" are still being worked out. We regret any delays this may have caused in connecting with our customers. We are improving our phone system to meet our company's needs into and beyond 2000. We appreciate your understanding and patience.

Chuck gives up library position

The Westland library board will keep a policy prohibiting the hiring of board family members, following action taken during a Wednesday night meeting.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

Westland library board President Jim Chuck resigned Wednesday night amid a controversy that erupted when his wife was hired for a part-time job in violation of a library nepotism policy. "I knew it would be tough, but this will be my last meeting," he said, his voice cracking with emotion. The board came under fire from some residents after Chuck's wife, Cheryl, started a $12-an-hour, 30-hour-a-week job in the children's room on Oct. 18. The situation only deteriorated after library board members indicated they might drop the nepotism policy in the wake of Cheryl Chuck's hiring. Bowing to public criticism, Jim Chuck announced his resignation on the same night the board chose to keep a policy prohibiting the hiring of library board immediate family members.

Cheryl Chuck had kept her library job all along, despite mounting public criticism on the issue.

Board members and Library Director Sandra Wilson on Wednesday praised Jim Chuck's job as president and said he will be sorely missed.

"I think we've done a really good job with your leadership," tearful board member Sharon Clark said.

"Jim has done a great job," board member Marty Wagner said. "He has always been positive in fighting whatever issue we had to resolve."

Wagner said Chuck's leadership has established "a benchmark for others to follow."

Wilson, also fighting back tears, presented a farewell plaque to Chuck.

Outside the meeting room, she strongly commended his accomplishments for Westland's highly successful, three-year-old library.

She credited him with starting programs such as an annual employee picnic and worker merit raises based on job performance.

Yuletide memories sparkle still at Marquette House

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER
jbrown@oe.homecomm.net

As the December sun streams through the windows, the residents take turns describing their Christmas memories. There's laughter, and agreement, as memories combine into common themes.

The place is Marquette House assisted living in Westland, down across from John Glenn High School. Resident Mildred Vicary recalled seeing not a thing of Christmas until Christmas morning, in sharp contrast to today's early start.

Edward Zezulka agreed, adding that walnuts given to a child at Christmas meant the child had been bad. "They'd put them in your stockings."

Marjorie Watson lived on a farm in Wallaceburg, Ontario. "It was a small place and you had to order everything from a catalog."

Watson wanted a special doll. She was getting suspicious about Santa, and her older brother said he saw Mrs. Claus fixing the doll's finger broken in shipping.

"It was my mother," Watson said.

Zezulka said outdoor decorations didn't come along until big department stores started the trend. He remembered taking his kids to the Ford Rotunda, which later burned down. His children believed Santa lived there.

"It was really nice," he said of the Ford Rotunda. "They had animals, deer. They had everything."

He remembered his parents as being good at hiding presents. "Boy, could they hide, I swear."

Margaret Ramsdell remembered her sister being in the Detroit parade in the 1940s. "In those days, it was a real Christmas," she said. "Now, it's so commercialized."

Jeanette Snider remembered being

Changes on tap at YMCA

BY DARRELL CLEM

dclem@oe.homecomm.net

The Wayne-Westland YMCA has a new leader who confirmed Tuesday that a new facility could be built on the 827 S. Wayne Road site.

But Rick Rainville, in a new post as team operations leader for Wayne-Westland, Livonia and Downriver YMCAs, said new construction isn't certain.

"There is a possibility that the YMCA of Metropolitan Detroit will work with a developer to construct a new facility on the current site," Rainville said. "But that's very much still in the discussion stage. It's being explored."

A renovation and partial new construction also is possible, he said.

Either way, talks are aimed at finding ways to improve child-care services and senior citizen activities at the Wayne-Westland center, Rainville said.

Otherwise, the latest developments shouldn't bring any major changes or disruptions in service for YMCA users, he said.

"We're planning on continuing with services pretty much as we have in the past," Rainville said.

More precise details about a possible new facility could come as early as February, he said.

An electrical contractor renting a Westland apartment was shot Saturday afternoon when he returned from an out-of-town trip and found a stranger in his residence, a police official said.

Roger Burns, a Tennessee native, survived a single shot from a .40-caliber automatic handgun after he entered his Venoy Terrace apartment, on Venoy south of Palmer, at 12:20 p.m. Saturday. Lt. Marc Stobbe said.

Traffic stop by real policeman nabs impersonator

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

A fake police officer picked the wrong motorist when he activated flashing lights and tried stopping a real Westland patrolman in an unmarked car.

The incident happened while Westland Officer Michael Matich was driving near Hunter and Yale, a half-mile south of Westland Shopping Center.

Matich and the fake officer arrived at a stop sign at the same time last Friday at 5:30 p.m., and the suspicious driver started trailing Matich in a 1998 Dodge Dakota truck, a police report said.

The impersonator activated flashing lights mounted on the dash of his vehicle and also turned on flashing headlights, but Matich was suspicious of the vehicle.

"I did not stop until I caught up with traffic at Hunter and Wayne," Matich wrote in his report. "The vehicle stopped behind me for a short time, then turned into the parking lot of CVS (drugstore)."

Matich started trailing the suspicious car and called for help from marked police cars.

While waiting for the marked cars to arrive, Matich said the suspicious driver drove toward him, and Matich was able to identify himself as a police officer by showing his badge and identification.

"I ordered the subject who was the driver to stop, which he did," the report said.

Officers in marked cars arrived, and Matich asked the impersonator for his driver's license and paperwork.

The fake officer could only produce

■ 'If they believe it's not a real police officer, they should keep on driving ...'

an expired license and no paperwork, and he told officers he was a Romulus firefighter who had forgotten his identification and badge, police reports said.

He then changed his story again, and officers placed him under arrest. His vehicle was impounded.

The suspect has been charged with impersonating a police officer, reckless driving and not having a driver's license. Lt. Marc Stobbe said. The defendant could face a one-year jail term and fines of $1,000 if convicted.

The impersonator's vehicle was equipped with a siren, special headlights, a front window-mounted strobe light, and strobes on the front and rear turn signals.

The fake police officer was identified as a 25-year-old white male from Wayne.

Meanwhile, Stobbe offered advice for motorists who believe a fake officer is trying to pull them over.

"If they believe it's not a real police officer, they should keep on driving at a safe speed and pull into a police station or a populated area," Stobbe said. "A real police officer won't mind."

Stobbe also suggested that in addition to driving at safe speeds to a safe area, it could be helpful to wave or signal to the supposed police car so that a real officer will know that he isn't being ignored.

Sports fan a homer in business

BY LEONARD POGER
STAFF WRITER
lpogers@ec.eccentric.com

Greg Every practices what he preaches while making money doing what he loves best - boosting local sports.

But he doesn't get involved with all sports teams, just those in southeast Michigan. "I could see a lot of New York Yankees and Notre Dame items, but I don't. I'm a homer," he said, evidenced by his wardrobe of a Detroit Tiger cap and golf shirt and Red Wing jacket.

The owner of Fanatic U has something for everyone who is a fan of the Tigers, Red Wings, Lions, Pistons, University of Michigan and Michigan State University.

Added to his inventory are autographed jerseys.

The latest is a wide-angle shot of the last game at Tiger Stadium on Sept. 27 and initiated by Tiger Rob Frick, who hit a grand slam homer in the stadium finale.

He has expanded his business of popular sports apparel and souvenirs from what used to be temporary roadside locations during major sports events.

Now he opened his second location, on the southwest corner of Ford Road and Henry Ruff, between Middlebelt and Merriman.

The former Westland resident, who now lives in Plymouth, has been a sports nut since he was 5 years old.

He recalls clearly that as an 8-year-old, he retrieved golf balls from the fourth hole of the near-by Hawthorne Golf Course on Merriman north of Warren Road.

"I lived off the fourth hole, which was next to my back yard (on Carrousel Street in Westland)," said Every, 36.

A 1981 graduate of Livonia Franklin High School, Every and a friend bought some T-shirts near the end of the Tigers' 1984 season in which the team won the American League pennant and the World Series.

"It was the T-shirt with the 'Bless You Boys' slogan from TV's Al Ackerman," Every recalled.

"We sold shirts the night the Tigers clinched the pennant and more than 500 the night they won the World Series," he said.

That started the business career of Every who had specialized shirts and souvenirs made for championship teams and "went on the road" across the country.

The business was so successful that the 1991 World Champion Atlanta Braves "helped me buy my first house" and the Red Wings capturing the 1997 Stanley Cup helped in the purchase of his second home.

After the 1984 Tigers' championship season, Every took his business on the road with the next big event being Super Bowl XX, held in Palo Alto, Calif.

In 1996, he put down his foundations in opening the souvenir and apparel business in a small storefront location on Joy Road and Inkster. Later, he relocated to a strip retail center on Five Mile and Merriman.

The Garden City location is his second.

The business helps Every with family get-togethers as he can conveniently provide souvenirs or clothing for young relatives.

Every said his wife, Jodi, sometimes reminds him to "put on a normal shirt," instead of the sports items.

He also said that while he enjoys competing in football, golf, volleyball and softball, he will cut back because of the birth of their first child, a son, six weeks ago.

Benefit a boon to ailing youth

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER
sdaniel@oe.homecomm.net

As a hockey player, Jerry Ball was used to fighting for every goal and every win.

Now, the 15-year-old Wayne resident is fighting for something much more important — his life. A little more than a year ago, Ball was diagnosed with an inoperable brain tumor.

Since then, he has had radiation and chemotherapy treatments to stop the tumor's growth.

"It's not killing the cancer," said his mother, Gloria Ball. "But it's not allowing it to progress."

A bone marrow transplant may be the teenager's best bet. Fortunately for Ball, the new procedure is done locally at the Karmanos Cancer Institute at Harper Hospital in Detroit.

The only rub is money. Medical insurance will not cover the procedure, which may cost in excess of $100,000.

"The doctors feel this is what he needs," said Gloria. "His body can only take so much chemotherapy."

Genesis Salon of Canton is holding a benefit for Ball noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Stylist Lisa Rodriguez, a family friend of Jerry's, organized the event.

"We do a lot together," she said of the teen's family. "They're great people."

At least five stylists will be cutting hair Sunday. A minimum donation of $10 will be asked for. No appointment is necessary.

All donations and tips will go to benefit Ball. Genesis Salon is in a strip mall on Sheldon Center Road north of Warren.

Gloria Ball remembers the day the tumor was found: Nov. 12, 1998. Jerry was playing in a hockey game.

"He kept falling down," she said. "He was off balance because of the tumor."

She took her son to the family's pediatrician to find out what was wrong. Ball said she was skeptical when a doctor said

Jerry simply had an allergy.

They went to Garden City Hospital the next day for a second opinion. An MRI revealed the tumor, which was lodged too close to his spinal cord to allow for an operation.

Four days after the discovery, Jerry was undergoing radiation. Treatments continued for six months. Gloria Ball said her son did well during the period and was actually able to return to the ice briefly.

By July, however, the teenager had double vision in his left eye and his condition was worsening. Chemotherapy started shortly afterwards.

While the chemotherapy was relatively mild, Ball said it was tough on her son.

"His moods have fluctuated a lot," she said.

Chemotherapy, Ball added, will not cure her son. Transplanting bone marrow could.

The teen's bone marrow would be removed. He would then receive a "super" chemotherapy treatment to kill the cancer. Ball's own bone marrow would then be transplanted back to him.

The family is appealing Blue Cross/Blue Shield's decision not to pay for the procedure.

"We're on our third appeal," said Ball.

Besides the Genesis Salon benefit, the Wayne Wheels held a charity game on Nov. 5. Another game is planned.

"He was the one that offered the leadership," Wilson said. "He was for the staff. I think this will be a real loss to the staff unless his eventual replacement is like that."

Former Mayor Tom Taylor has been tapped to replace Chuck on Jan. 3, but the five-member board still has two vacancies.

One of those vacancies was created when former board member Jo Johnson, saying she opposed the nepotism policy violation, resigned after Cheryl Chuck was hired.

Early in Wednesday's meeting, another former library board member, Marjorie Kay Daniels, hinted that Jim Chuck could be damaging any future political ambitions he may have.

"Things have a way of coming back when you least expect it," Daniels said.

Chuck had entered the Westland City Council race this year but was eliminated in the Sept. 14 primary.

Resident Jim Cook also reminded the board that nepotism "is not something that anybody is going to think highly of."

Chuck described his library board experience as a monthly meeting of friends who gathered to improve a top-notch facility

'I made friends, and that's what I'm going to take away from here.'

"that speaks for itself"

In November, alone, the library's circulation included 62,209 materials. The door count was 25,257 people.

Chuck's colleagues credited his leadership for some of that success.

Chuck said the library board has always had a "we" philosophy at improving the facility.

"I made friends, and that's what I'm going to take from here," he said Wednesday night.

Wilson was responsible for hiring Cheryl Chuck and has apologized for it. She said she has been "desperate" to find and retain good employees — some of whom have left for higher-paying jobs at other libraries.

But critics had warned library officials that refusing to address the nepotism flap would tarnish the library's image.

Sentencing date set in attack on woman

Four men face a January sentencing in an attack last spring on a 39-year-old Detroit woman.

Scott Hartmeyer and Keith Ziebron, of Livonia, Erik Michaud of Canton Township and Ryan Corey of Westland could face up to 10 years in prison. They each pleaded no contest in Wayne County Circuit Court last month to a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm in the March 29 attack on the woman, who was working as a prostitute.

The four had originally been charged with four counts each of first-degree criminal sexual conduct. Those charges were dropped.

The four are to appear before Circuit Judge Yonda Evans on Friday, Jan. 7, for sentencing.

In an April preliminary hearing in 16th District Court, the victim testified that the four sexually assaulted her in a house on Five Mile near Middlebelt. All but Hartmeyer punched her and threatened her life, she said.

She was uncertain, however, which man began the assault by threatening her with a knife.

Rainville started his new, broader duties as team operations leader for Wayne-Westland, Livonia and Downriver YMCAs on Dec. 1.

He assumed his position as former Wayne-Westland Director Rich Perlowski left his job on Nov. 30 for what YMCA officials described as personal reasons.

"He seemed to be wanting to advance, and there was no advancement here," Wayne-Westland YMCA board Chairman Ed Turner said. "He left completely on his own."

Turner said Perlowski had "feelers out" but didn't have another position in place when he left. Turner and others offered to give him a good recommendation.

"The staff here all love him," Turner said, adding later, "Rich is a super nice guy. I hate to see him go."

Rainville also commended Perlowski, who had been in his Wayne-Westland job about eight years.

"Rich Perlowski performed one outstanding job at the Wayne-Westland YMCA," Rainville said. "He was there for eight years, and he was stellar in his performance. We are going to miss him."

Rainville will not be stepping into Perlowski's position. Rather, he will oversee the facility while hiring a branch operations director to handle daily duties.

"My primary job right now is to find new staff leadership for the Wayne-Westland YMCA," Rainville said. "That person will oversee day-to-day operations at that branch but will get support through my position."

Rainville had worked as the Livonia YMCA's executive director for 2 1/2 years before he was tapped for his new team operations leader job.

Turner said officials hope to hire Wayne-Westland's branch director soon.

"We'd like to get it done before the first of the year," he said.

in an extension group which did some sewing. "We made our own stuff. They taught us to sew and make dresses. I did more sewing than I did anything else."

The residents saw a lot of their neighbors at Christmas. Mildred Vicary would stay at her grandmother's "so that we would be there Christmas morning." Later, she told her own children the real Santa was at downtown Hudson's.

Some funny stories emerge as the residents tell their memories. Margaret Ramsdell's brother-in-law decorated a Christmas tree in the basement, for a surprise. Unfortunately, the narrow staircase damaged some bulbs. The tree was still nice, she recalled.

Don Newell lived on an 80-acre farm, some 30 acres of it wooded. "That was an event," he said of cutting down the family Christmas tree. They also tapped maples for syrup.

"We had a happy childhood," said Newell, who worked at the Ford Rotunda when it burned.

Jeanette Snider and others recalled buying Christmas trees late to get the best price, during the Depression. When World War II came, many items weren't available.

Margaret Ramsdell remembered being unable to buy metal for garlands, and using crepe paper for decorations.

Memories: Mildred Vicary remembers Christmases past.

Mildred Vicary remembered getting a Christmas tree, drilling holes in the trunk and putting branches in "to fill up the tree real nice."

She also remembered plenty of holiday baking, including the family fruitcake. "Oh, that was luscious cake." Her children didn't like it, however.

Many of the residents' memories touch on food, ranging from homebrew to apple cider to fried mush. "We had lots of fried mush," said Newell, adding it's still on the menu at Bob Evans.

Richard Blue recalled going to Noble School on Middlebelt, where the teacher would have them sing Christmas carols. He remembers California navel oranges as presents, and candle decorations on the tree; those candles had to be watched carefully.

"Today, everybody has to have turkey," Blue remembered duck or goose being served.

The residents saw many changes in their lives. Newell, born west of Toledo, remembers most people having names like Smith. "Then we come to the big city and it's a polyglot."

Other residents sharing holiday memories include Christine Sandel, Ellen Mills, Helen Owen and Sonia Weiner. They enjoy Christmas, and Christmas food today, but still look back.

"Nothing tastes like grandmother," Vicary said.

right chest and was found in an apartment wall. Burns, 42, was treated at Oakwood Hospital/Annapolis in Wayne but refused to stay for observation. Stobbe said.

Police investigating the incident learned that Burns had let a friend use his apartment while he was out of town - and the friend in turn allowed a third man to use it.

Burns and the third man, accused in the shooting, didn't know one another.

"The original renter (Burns) came home and found this guy in his apartment, and they had a confrontation because neither one knew each other," Stobbe said. "The visitor had a .40-caliber automatic handgun. He pulled it out and aimed it at Burns. He fired one shot and then (Burns) disarmed him and took the gun away from him."

Accused shooter Theodore Marcum, 39, was arraigned Tuesday morning in Westland 18th District Court on a charge of felonious assault.

Marcum, described as an electrical worker from Kansas, could face a four-year prison term if convicted as charged.

A not-guilty plea has been placed on record for him, and he is scheduled to return to court Dec. 22 for a preliminary hearing that will determine whether he should stand trial.

He was jailed in lieu of a $50,000/10 percent bond.

Slamming complaints decline after state crack down

The number of slamming complaints received by the Michigan Public Service Commission has declined significantly, from a high of more than 500 in March to 150 or fewer during the last three months.

"Michigan has become a very unfriendly state for telephone slammers to do business, with the commission assessing fines totaling more than $1.6 million against several telephone service providers accused of slamming customers," commission Chairman John Strand said.

"The commission initiated 13 'show cause' actions against companies accused of slamming customers and has ordered customer restitution for as much as $10,000. We have approved a number of settlement agreements between customers who have allegedly been slammed and the telephone service provider accused of the slamming."

Slamming is a practice in which telephone customers are switched to other telephone service providers without the customers' permission. On July 16, 1998, Gov. John Engler signed into-law Public Acts 259 and 260, which strictly forbid slamming and authorized the commission to establish procedures to ensure that telephone service is not switched without proper customer verification.

The acts give the commission authority to assess severe penalties to protect customers who have suffered damages as a result of slamming. On Sept. 23, 1998, the commission established anti-slamming procedures. The procedures require:

- strict standards to verify requests to change telephone service providers;
- local telephone carriers to offer carrier freeze protection programs to all customers who want the protection;
- telephone service-provider registration with the commission; prompt customer notification of any changes in the customer's service provider.

The commission continues to encourage customers who have documented proof that they have been slammed to pursue lawful remedies with the commission. "While we have clearly turned the corner, there are still far too many instances of slamming in Michigan," Strand said.

MPSC staff continue to work closely with customers seeking restitution for having their telephone service switched without authorization. Consumers may contact the MPSC at 1-800-292-9555 or e-mail their complaint to <http://cis.state.mi.us/mpsc/execsec/consumer/>

Consumers may also mail complaints to: Michigan Public Service Commission, Communications Division, P.O. Box 30221, Lansing, MI 48909.

Keely Wygonik named assistant managing editor

Keely Wygonik has been promoted to the position of assistant managing editor for features for the Observer Newspapers.

Wygonik will supervise operations for the common Observer feature sections - At Home, Taste, Arts & Leisure, Entertainment, Health and Business and Wayne Community Life. She will also be a member of the Observer's editorial management team.

Wygonik has been the Taste, Arts & Leisure and Entertainment editor for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers since 1991. The Arts & Leisure section took second place for all lifestyle sections in the 1997 Suburban Newspaper Association awards.

"Keely is an outstanding community journalist," said Hugh Gallagher, Observer managing editor. "She is extremely hard-working and dedicated to serving the needs of readers. She has been a friendly and helpful voice to many Observer readers who have called with questions about recipes in Taste or to find information about where to eat or be entertained for the weekend. She has developed our feature sections to serve the particular needs of our readers. I know she'll continue to make them the best they can be."

Wygonik said she's looking forward to the challenge.

"I have a great team, and together we'll work hard to deliver the kinds of stories you'll want to read," she said. "Our goal is to become a resource that you can rely on for information about home decorating and improvement, food, business, health, community life, dining out, entertainment, and the arts. We'll serve you interesting tidbits about local restaurants, take you behind the scenes of local entertainment venues such as Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia, and paint colorful portraits of the vibrant role arts play in our communities. I welcome your input and suggestions, and hope to hear from you soon."

Wygonik joined the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers in 1989 as a copy editor. She was named the Observer & Eccentric's Journalist of the Year in 1994.

Prior to joining the O&E, she was the administrative editor of The Citizen in Hamtramck.

Wygonik is a 1982 graduate of Michigan State University. She is currently pursuing a master of business administration degree from Walsh College of Business.

Wygonik and her husband, David, live in Dearborn.

You can reach Wygonik by phone at (734) 953-2105, by e-mail at kwygonik@oe.com, homecomputer by fax at (734) 591-7279.

PSC warns to be ready for Y2K

When Jan. 1, 2000, rolls around, we all want to know lights and heat will be working in our home or business and that the telephone will generate calls.

The Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) believes that regulated utility companies are taking the Year 2000, Y2K, problem seriously and addressing it competently.

Throughout the year, the MPSC has been working with regulated utilities on Y2K issues. Further, the MPSC believes Y2K will not bring any significant interruptions in electric, natural gas, or telephone services due to computer failures.

However, if you are concerned about your utility companies' ability to provide you with reliable service in the Year 2000, the MPSC recommends you contact the companies directly to find out more about what actions they have taken to protect customers against significant interruptions in service.

Even if there are no disruptions on Jan. 1, 2000, it is a good practice to always be prepared for power outages of any sort - ice, snow storm, or a vehicle hitting a power pole. You can be prepared for power outages by:

- Setting aside and designating for emergency use:
 - Battery-powered radio
 - Extra batteries
 - Blankets
 - First-aid kit
 - Bottled water
 - Battery-operated lantern
 - Candles and matches
 - Non-perishable packaged or canned food and a manual can opener

■ Keeping a list of emergency numbers near the telephone.

■ Protecting electrical equipment such as a TV, VCR, microwave oven, or home computer with a voltage surge suppressor. A suppressor can eliminate the surge before it enters the equipment, thus protecting it from damage. A variety of devices are available for different forms of protection. Unplug unprotected equipment before a storm to avoid lightning damage.

When power is lost:

■ Check the fuse box to see if a fuse is blown or tripped. Check with the neighbors to see if their power is out.

■ Call your local utility company and let its personnel know that you have lost power. Also, advise if there is emergency medical equipment in the home.

■ Turn off and unplug most lights and appliances to prevent electrical overload when power is restored.

■ Keep the refrigerator door closed as much as possible. Move milk, cheese, meats, etc. into the freezer compartment of the refrigerator. If the freezer is only partially full, group packages together so they form an igloo to keep each other cold. Purchase dry ice and place in freezer - it will help keep food frozen for an extended period of time. Cover the top of the refrigerator with a blanket.

■ Make sure you have access to a telephone that does not require electricity to operate.

Be aware that the telephone system is not designed so that everyone in the United States can place a call at the same time. If, for example, everyone tries to make a telephone call at 12:05 a.m. on January 1, 2000, it is possible there will be jammed lines and the calls will not go through.

For more tips, contact the MPSC at (800) 292-9555 or <http://www.state.mi.us/mpsc> to get a copy of the brochure "Surviving Electric Power Outages."

Workers at Sheldon Road Assembly donate $5,000 to Nankin Mills fund

Workers at Ford Motor Co.'s Sheldon Road Assembly Plant donated $5,000 to the Friends of Nankin Mills to help fund displays at the new center which opens next fall.

The contribution of the UAW workers at the Sheldon Road plant through their Sheldon Plant Community Service Committee is the largest single contribution made to the Friends of Nankin Mills in its 10 year history. The donation was recognized by the group and by Wayne County Parks at their annual holiday tree lighting on Saturday, Dec. 4.

Rodger Caldwell, president of Local 845, accepted a certificate in recognition of the donation. A plaque will also be on permanent display inside the interpretive center.

This is not the building's first connection with the Ford Motor Co. Once a working grist mill, Henry Ford bought the building in the 1920s to produce auto parts for his Detroit assembly plants. It was one of the Village Industries he created along the Rouge River.

The Interpretive Center will tell the Ford Story, along with those of the settlers and Native Americans who lived here, and of the Rouge River that still influences our communities.

For information on the Interpretive Center, call Carol Clements, Wayne County Parks, at (734) 261-1850.

Singers perform at LightFest

As the holiday season moves into full swing, Wayne County LightFest is bringing together the sights and the sounds of the season.

Every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m., area choirs will perform at LightFest as part of the event's "Light Up the Night with Song" series. Choirs will offer songs to celebrate the season at the Warrendale site.

On Wednesday, Dec. 22, the Renaissance Choir from Detroit's Renaissance High School will add their voices to the night at "Light Up the Night with Song." Under the direction of Nina Scott, this choir will sing classical and contemporary holiday music.

The sixth annual Wayne County LightFest is located along scenic Middle Rouge Parkway in Westland (enter at Merriam Road and Hines Drive.) LightFest is open now through Dec. 30, 7-10 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday. (Closed Mondays, Tuesdays and Christmas Day.) Donation is $5 per car.

Legislature makes a deal on residency

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK

kabrancyk@ee.comcon.net

State governments will no longer be able to require their employees to live in town, under a settlement reached last week by Michigan lawmakers.

But municipalities can limit the distance workers reside from their city of employment to no more than 20 miles.

State lawmakers accepted the 20-mile-radius compromise Wednesday, Dec. 8, in a 66-44 vote in the House and a 26-9 vote in the Senate.

The bill was presented to the governor Friday, Dec. 10. Gov. John Engler has said he will sign the bill.

But debate over the issue may not be over. Democrats who oppose the bill have promised to launch a petition drive to overturn it. Rep. Mike Hanley (D-Saginaw) and Sen. Virgil Smith (D-Detroit) said they'll work with groups like the Michigan Municipal League to reverse the new law.

Smith, who argued the state ban on residency rules will cause further deterioration of the city of Detroit as employees there seek to leave town, said the bill would result in a $20 million loss for that community in the coming census count.

Noting that 90 communities throughout the state have some type of residency rule for employees, Smith promised to put the issue on the ballot next fall.

"This is about civil liberties in the state of Michigan," Sen. Loren Bennett (R-Canton), primary sponsor of the bill, said. "This is about the rights of individuals to live where they want to live. It's about putting the interests of people ahead of the interests of government, as our founding fathers said they should be."

Senate Bill 198 initially was written to ban residency rules altogether, but when the House watered the bill down to make residency requirements a subject of collective bargaining, the legislation was thrown into conference committee.

The version produced by the committee would block cities from having rules about residency other than requiring that employees live within a 20-mile radius of the city limits. A special residency rule would apply to married couples when both spouses work in cities which have residency rules. The couple would be required to live within 20 miles of only one of those two towns.

In the House, representatives voted 66-44 for the conference report.

Here's how local legislators voted: Reps. Bob Brown (D-Dearborn Heights), Eileen DeHart (D-Westland), Gerald Le (R-Plymouth), Bruce Patterson (R-Canton), Andrew Raczowski (R-Farmington Hills) and Laura Toy (R-Livonia) voted yes.

Rep. Tom Kelly (D-Wayne) voted no.

Sens. Loren Bennett (R-Canton), and Thaddeus McCotter (R-Livonia) voted yes.

Sen. George Z. Hart (D Dearborn) did not vote.

Chief cautious on local alternative plan

Westland Police Chief Emery Price thinks a Wayne County ordinance on alternative, community-based programs for local ordinance violators is a good idea.

But Price believes the ordinance should have more specifics about the fees for alternative programs, namely tethering, before the document is proposed to the Wayne County Commission.

"I appreciate that they want our input on the ordinance, but I can see we will have problems with it," Price told members of the Conference of Western Wayne Friday. The CWW is a consortium of the cities of Belleville, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Romulus, Wayne and Westland and the townships of Canton, Huron, Northville, Plymouth, Redford, Sumpter and Van Buren.

Price believes the local district courts and police agencies should have more of a say in the program that will be used on violators who are sentenced to Wayne County jail and could be determined eligible for a community-based program by the Department of Community Justice, according to the ordinance.

"Once they are placed in the Wayne County jail, communities won't have a say in this," Price said of the proposal. The ordinance doesn't mention tethering at all, nor the costs associated with tethering and who should pay, Price said.

James Curran, deputy director of the Wayne County Department of Community Justice, informed Marsha Bianconi, CWW's executive director, of the proposed community-based program fee ordinance expected to be introduced to the Wayne County Commission early next year.

Curran highlighted the following items from the ordinance:

■ The county may collect fees from communities for ordinance violators who are in programs that are alternatives to incarceration.

■ The cost shall be determined by the lesser of the fees for incarceration or the alternative program's actual costs.

■ The county's chief financial officer shall annually certify to the county commission the cost of each program.

■ The court may collect a fee from the ordinance violator for participation in the program.

"The Department of Community Justice is working to identify programs that can assist ordinance violators, particularly chronic violators, in breaking their cycle of criminal behavior," Curran stated in a letter to the CWW.

"The services we are attempting to identify are both residential and outpatient substance abuse treatment, education, life skill and employment services. To date we have positive feedback from the Salvation Army and we are waiting to hear from others."

CWW officials encouraged Price to meet with other police chiefs and return with a recommendation at the next CWW meeting in January.

In 1997, a CWW Jail Millage Committee was created to address the CWW's concerns that Wayne County lacked space to house ordinance violators. Price was on the committee with Bianconi.

"All parties were in agreement that current Wayne County facilities are inadequate to meet future needs for jail space," Bianconi said. Two years ago, the CWW asked for an ordinance governing alternative programs before CWW officials backed the millage renewal. The CWW actually had opposed the millage until they had discussed concerns over jail usage with county officials.

County officials assured the CWW at that time an ordinance would be introduced later.

Rivers' coffee klatch draws a wide range of questions

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER
rskoglund@oc.homedcomm.net

Topics were as varied as the doughnut selection Tuesday morning at Tim Horton's on Ford Road in Canton during U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, coffee hour with constituents. They ranged from health care to Yas-sar Arafat.

A question about the escalating costs of prescription drugs and pharmacies selling customer information to pharmaceuticals trailed into a discussion about privacy rights. Rivers said the recently passed Financial Services Modernization Act, S. 900, was a boon to the financial industry, specifically mortgage and insurance companies. However, it may be a threat to consumers' privacy.

"Between these companies, information can flow." (Rivers voted against the bill. See related story.)

Chris Ravert, 17, who attended the coffee with a small contingent of students from Faithway Baptist School in Ypsilanti, asked how safe it was to do holiday shopping on the Internet.

Ask them about their privacy policy, Rivers warned. "You take a risk just as you do when you make a telephone purchase."

Joyce Harrington of Plymouth, a senior citizen, offered some practical advice when faced with disclosing your Social Security number for an e-mail purchase: "Just fill in 111 11 1111."

Rivers gave the students a quick lesson on campaign contributions and the high costs of financing a congressional campaign in the United States: "One million dollars on each side."

An advocate for campaign finance reform, Rivers favors moving to publicly financed campaigns with even playing fields for all candidates. "It's silly to argue that money doesn't make a difference," she said. Rivers has a no-gifts policy in her office.

Talk gradually turned toward getting citizens involved in the political process. "The political arena is where every decision is made," said Rivers. If the public doesn't pay attention to mailings and television spots, and parents often resent teachers talking politics in school, how do you educate people, asked Rivers.

"As far as people being involved in government, that may have happened in Seattle. That may have been our Boston Tea Party," said Art Sutton, a senior citizen from Belleville, referring to the upheaval at the recent World Trade Organization meeting.

Many of those demonstrators were anarchists, replied Rivers.

Women need to get more involved in politics, said Rivers. They represent 52 percent of the population but make up just 15 percent of elected officials.

Winter transportation: A family in a country-style sleigh poses at the corner of Norris and Biddle in Wayne, Mich. Note the sleigh bells hanging from the sleigh's shaft. Picture is dated March 4, 1901.

Sleigh bells ring, are you listening?

Good as new: The Wayne Historical Museum loaned this Prouty & Glass Portland cutter to First Congregational Church of Wayne for a Christmas display.

THE PORTLAND CUTTER

This was the most popular sleigh design ever made, even more popular than the Albany sleigh, which tended to cramp the occupants. The Portland cutter was developed by Charles P. Kimball of Portland, Maine. It was roomy enough to let your feet stretch out, and its big "bay" could easily accommodate the fur robes that people piled all around themselves.

The Portland cutter was set low to ground, so there was less danger of upset, which was a common accident when sleighing. Turning took place in one big sweeping movement - horse and sleigh all coming around in a wide arc.

Most Portland cutters could have been purchased for under $20 at the time of its construction. In 1908, Sears and Roebuck advertised models for $16.75.

Sleighful: Thirteen men managed to climb aboard this Prouty & Glass Portland sleigh.

Dashing through the snow, in a one-horse open sleigh...

In the mid-1880s, Fayette Prouty, who owned a wood-working shop in Detroit, began making trips to Wayne in search of a factory site. He found five acres of land near Elizabeth Street and the railroad along Michigan Avenue. In 1888, he opened the Prouty & Glass Carriage Co. with his son, W. C. Prouty, and his son-in-law John S. Glass.

The company soon was producing 125 cutters and a 100 carriages a month, with some models available through the Sears and Roebuck catalog. Eventually, it became one of the largest manufacturers of sleighs and cutters in the country.

"Salesman traveled all over the United States with that catalog," said Virginia Presson, manager of Wayne Historical Museum, which houses a Prouty & Glass cutter. Orders were sent back, and the sleighs were shipped by rail.

At its peak at the turn of the century, Prouty & Glass manufactured 60 different types of sleighs - single- and double-seaters, spring and springless, and open and protected. However, the automobile dealt a death blow to the carriage trade, and the company began to flounder. It ceased operations in 1915.

The facilities went through a succession of new identities, including a military training academy for boys during World War I, saw mill, belt factory, and steering wheel factory. It was almost totally destroyed by fire in 1929.

"I remember when it burned," said Presson. "I was nine years old and in third grade. We stood in the (school's) south windows and watched the smoke.

Memories

A hundred years ago, long before counties plowed snowy roads, farmers switched from wheels to runners come winter. It was much easier to haul heavy loads on sleds than on wagons. After three seasons of work in the field, farmers looked forward to visiting neighbors during winter.

It was a time for heavy lap robes, foot warmers and sleigh bells.

Jay Richards, 73, of Plymouth Township doesn't know if the snappy, two-seated cutter he and his brother and two sisters rode in was made by Prouty & Glass. All he remembers is that it was a cold, 2-1/2 mile ride down Haggerty from his family's 21-acre farm on Joy Road to the one-room Hough School on Warren Road in Canton Township.

"If you had too high a snow, it might tip," he said. He recalled at least one spill. "It sort of scared the heck out of us."

Richards sold the sleigh several years ago to a Detroit florist, who used it as part of a display. He kept only the set of sleigh bells, which he said were somewhere in his attic. And Stardust, the Kentucky thoroughbred who pulled the Richards clan (and who purportedly once belonged to the famed Detroit boxer Joe Louis), died peacefully of old age.

"It was just wonderful. In the sleigh you could hear the bells ring. You were just at peace with everyone," said Betty Stevens of Ypsilanti in a January 1998 Westland Observer article on the community's WinterFest.

Stevens grew up on a farm located on the grounds of John Glenn High School in Westland. She would ride in the family's bobsled covered with blankets made at the Monroe Woolen Mills from wool sheared from her father's sheep. Her family also owned a snappy two-seater cutter, which she donated to the Westland Historical Museum several years ago. "My father had that sleigh for always," she said. Pat Bunyea comes from a farming family. She and her husband farmed at two locations in Plymouth Township before moving to a 152-acre farm in Ann Arbor a few years ago. Her family didn't have a sleigh, but her grandmother, Anna Kaiser, had one on her farm in Flat Rock.

Back in the '40s, when Bunyea and her siblings visited Grandma Kaiser in the winter, they would hitch up their Uncle Charlie's horse to the sleigh for a ride around the farm and down Telegraph Road. Thanks to Grandma Kaiser's blanket, the children stayed warm.

"She used to call it her buffalo robe, but it wasn't really buffalo. It was terribly picky but very warm," said Bunyea.

Today, few barns harbor any more sleighs, and few people have experienced the joy of riding through a wintry countryside in a one-horse open sleigh. But for those who have, the echo of sleigh bells rings on.

Sleigh-makers: The 50-plus employees of Prouty & Glass Carriage Co. take a break from work to have their picture taken for posterity. All the men save one are wearing hats. Picture may have been taken shortly after the turn of the century.

Rivers opposes banking bill, says it may threaten privacy

Although the Financial Services Modernization Act helps financial services and insurance firms become more globally competitive by breaking down barriers between them, it may threaten personal privacy, says U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, in her monthly newsletter, "Capital Corner."

"Domestically, however, the bill means that these affiliated institutions can share information about their customers. Ostensibly, this will allow companies to improve customer service, but the possibility that it will also allow them to deny service or discriminate is simply too great. For this reason, I voted against the bill."

The following are key aspects of Act. S. 900:

■ The bill requires financial institutions to "clearly and conspicuously" tell consumers their practices and policies regarding the disclosure of non-public personal information to affiliates and non-affiliated third parties.

■ Consumers may "opt out" of sharing their personal information with non-affiliated third parties. The provision prohibits banks from releasing information only if the consumer has specifically instructed the institution not to share information.

■ Customers cannot opt out of sharing their information with third parties contracted to perform services on behalf of the financial institution. Once consumers decide not to opt out of sharing their personal information, however, they cannot change their minds, only switch financial institutions.

■ Non-affiliated third parties given access to customers' personal information may not pass this information on to any other non-affiliated third parties.

■ Unless the firm is contracted by the financial institution, financial institutions may not disclose customers' account numbers or similar access numbers to non-affiliated third parties for use in telemarketing, direct mail marketing, or e-mail marketing.

Under Act. S. 900, it is the consumers responsibility to protect personal information from misuse, warns Rivers. "I encourage you to look at the fine print when dealing with insurance companies and financial institutions."

school district's Plymouth-Carleton Paraprofessional Association, agreed. She said many women in her union didn't vote or let their husbands vote for them. "I'd tell them, 'Well, honey, when you get in that booth, you're hubby is not pulling that lever. You are.' Such wussie people."

Several of the attendees thanked Rivers for starting her community coffee hours and said getting to know your representative in Congress was the best way to understand politics. "You've got a firm supporter," said Jim Ball of Belleville. "I can spot a phony from here to the gas station."

Ravert inquired about a law allowing people to carry concealed weapons. "It won't stop everything, but it will cut down on crime," he said. Rivers explained that such law refers to the threat of deadly harm. You can't shoot someone for stealing your car unless your life was threatened. "It's a lesson people would learn after the fact," she said.

Rivers predicted Congress will deal with proposed bills on crime and taxes during the upcoming election year. "Bills not intended to pass into law but which inflame the electorate."

County parks ready for winter

What's the best cure for cabin fever and wintertime blues? Head for the friendly hills of Wayne County Parks for lots of fresh air and exercise.

Wax those skis and strap on those boots. Cross-country skiing on groomed trails is available this season from dawn until dusk in a variety of locations, including: Elizabeth Park in Trenton; Hines-Park Nankin Mills area in Westland; Hines Drive and Ann Arbor Road, just east of I-275 at Newburgh Lake; and Crosswinds Marsh Wetland Interpretive Preserve in Sumpter Township.

Fancy yourself a would-be Michelle Kwan? The park systems has several ice rink locations to accommodate skating enthusiasts throughout the county. Rinks are open at Newburgh Lake at Newburgh Pointe in Livonia (designated areas), Elizabeth Park in Trenton, Wilcox Lake in Plymouth (designated areas), Hines Park-Perrin area, and Hines Park Nankin Mills area in Westland.

All rinks will be open during the day, weather permitting. In addition, the rinks at Elizabeth Park and Hines Park Nankin

Mills are lighted and will be open for night skating until 9 p.m.

If you get your thrills from sledding, Wayne County Parks has installed two ramps at the Hines Park-Cass Benton area just for you. There's also enhanced parking to provide a safe experience for children of all ages. The Hines Park-Cass Benton sledding hill is located off of Hines Drive between Six and Seven Mile Roads in Northville.

For information on skiing, skating and sledding conditions, call (734) 261-1990.

Grants available for county schools

In November, the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, announced a new initiative, Operation Achievement, that makes available $2 million in funding for educators in Wayne County's 34 public school districts. Educators interested in applying for grants of $50,000 to $500,000 must apply before Jan. 5, 2000.

"The goal of Operation Achievement is simple: to dramatically increase achievement for ALL students in Wayne County," said Mike Flanagan, county superintendent. "Everyone at Wayne RESA shares responsibility with the local school districts for the education of the nearly half-million children in the county. We need to work together to identify new ways to reach more students, teachers and administrators and truly impact learning."

Applications for Operation Achievement are available online at www.resa.net or by calling (734)334-1311. All projects submitted for consideration should demonstrate what impact the project will have on student achievement, maximize use of technology, demonstrate capacity building, link to the Michigan Curriculum Framework and must be completed by August 18, 2000. Preference will be given to applications that reach the largest potential audience, e.g. all middle school science teachers in Wayne County or all students interested in advanced placement courses.

Senate passes bills to make 'dangerous animals' illegal

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

The sale and possession of dangerous animals, including wolf-dog crosses and other "large carnivores" such as bears or undomesticated cats, would be illegal under a set of bills approved by the Michigan Senate.

But critics were concerned some family dogs might be confused for wolf-dogs.

Members voted 33-2 on Senate Bill 782, sponsored by Sen. Bill Bullard (R-Highland), and 29-5 on Senate Bill 205, sponsored by Sen. Leon Stille (R-Spring Lake), outlawing the dangerous animals Thursday, Dec. 2.

Both bills would allow those who already own such exotic animals to keep their pets, but they would be subject to a set of new rules. Current owners would be required to post their property to warn passersby that a dangerous animal is housed there, would not be allowed to leash their animals unattended in the yard, and would have to get an annual permit from local animal control officers.

Both bills allow for destruction of those animals if they harm a human.

Sen. David Jaye (R-Macomb) argued that both bills would erode personal liberties, but he was especially concerned about the ban on wolf-dogs.

"You're going to condemn a lot of innocent people to lose their pets, their loyal family dog, and people with modest incomes will not have enough money to contest the claims by others that their dog is not a wolf-dog," he said.

"There is no scientific way to visually, medically, or any way through DNA testing to identify what is a wolf dog ... I wonder how many of you would think that the Siberian husky is or isn't a wolf dog? What about an Alaskan malamute?"

Sen. John Cherry (D-Clio) noted that there are characteristics which can be used to identify wolf-dogs.

■ 'There is no scientific way to visually, medically, or any way through DNA testing to identify what is a wolf dog ... I wonder how many of you would think that the Siberian husky is or isn't a wolf dog?'

Sen. David Jaye

"A wolf tracks in a straight line," he said. "Hardly any dogs do that. Is the tail curled or straight?" Dogs' tails are curled.

Cherry offered an amendment to the bill to identify wolf dogs that have all of four traits mentioned in the law. Previously, the bill defined an animal as a wolf-dog if it possessed any one of the four traits.

"Every wolf-dog is a danger," he said, explaining why their sale should be outlawed.

Both bills now move to the House for approval.

All local senators voted for the measures.

Judge denies motion to stop deer hunting

BY TRAN LONGMOORE

Deer culls at Huron-Clinton Metroparks went on as planned recently. Dec. 3, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Barry Howard denied a motion which would have stopped upcoming controlled deer hunts at Hudson Mills and Stony Creek, and a plan to use sharpshooters at Kensington.

"Everything is going to happen as planned, and as permitted by state law," said Steven Roach, lawyer for the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

Judge Howard ruled that the metroparks' plans were in compliance with state laws and that the overpopulation of deer threatened vegetation, other wildlife and drivers on nearby roads.

"Judge Howard's ruling was absolutely correct," Roach said.

Nearly 600 deer in the three parks will be trimmed bringing the population down to desired levels.

The lawsuit, which sought to delay the deer hunts until further studies were done, was filed in Federal Court last Wednesday by the Milford-based Metroparks Deer Preservation Council and California-based Animal Protection Institute. U.S. District Court Judge Avern Cohn referred the case to Oakland County Circuit Court.

Judy Brock, president of the Metroparks Deer Preservation Council, was disappointed by Judge Howard's ruling.

"But during the suit, we've won several small victories," Brock said.

Judge Howard has ordered the parks to submit reports detailing the number of deer killed. Since Stony Creek Park abuts homes, park officials will now be required to notify residents when hunting is taking place. Judge Howard also ordered that all meat from the deer culling will be donated to soup kitchens and shelters.

The court will also maintain jurisdiction with regard to the implementation of the ruling.

According to Roach, this means that either party can come back to the court should there be further dispute.

Brock is also pleased because a member of her council has been invited to sit on the Wildlife Advisory Committee for the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

"So we've made some difference, and we'll continue to do so," Brock said.

Her council still disputes metroparks' deer counts which show a need for a trim in population. She also said there are more humane ways to trim populations, such as immune contraception or sterilization.

But Dave Moulanen, spokesman for the parks, said deer counts are about as accurate as possible.

"I invite them to rent a helicopter and count themselves," said Moulanen.

Hunting remains the most efficient way to trim the population, he said.

"We've explored the other options and they just aren't practical," Moulanen said. "Spotting, catching and sterilizing our deer can take 90 minutes. We don't have the time, money or people to attempt something for 100 deer"

Firearms hunts will take place at Stony Creek Dec. 17-19. A controlled archery hunt took place Dec. 10-11 at Hudson Mills. At Kensington, park rangers are currently training to kill deer at night. The Kensington cull should take place sometime in January.

In good taste

Chamber gala winner for all

It wasn't a holiday event, but "Taste of the Arts" certainly had a festive air. The Nov. 30 gala at the Hellenic Cultural Center featured a silent auction of student artwork. Tasty food, courtesy of area food vendors, was in abundant supply. The first-ever event drew some 600 revelers, who enjoyed good company, good food and a good time.

It wasn't all for fun, however, as proceeds supported the Family Resource Center and the chamber of commerce. The Lincoln Elementary-based Family Resource Center, which depends on grants and donations for its survival, will benefit from the program.

A total of $5,000 is going to the Family Resource Center, which helps families cope with such problems ranging from substance abuse to truant students.

The Family Resource Center donation will be made during a Jan. 11 chamber luncheon that will feature Wayne-Westland Superintendent Greg Baracy's State of the Schools address.

"We're very grateful, not only for the chamber's support but the community's support and the restaurateurs," Baracy said.

Lori Brist, chamber executive director, had anticipated the Nov. 30 event would result in about $1,000 for the Family Resource Center. She and other organizers were thrilled with Congratulations are in order for all who worked on "Taste of the Arts," for student artists who participated and for those who showed support with their presence. The Family Resource Center, which finds itself more in demand than ever, is the beneficiary of all that hard work.

Families who use center services will benefit, too. May "Taste of the Arts" continue and thrive!

Regional approach boosts arts

While new casinos and sport stadiums may soon offer marquee attractions, the notion of what is considered "culture" in metro Detroit shouldn't simply be defined by the Big Three, sports standings and a roll of the dice.

There is compelling evidence to put an end to parochial thinking about what is needed to "improve the quality of life" in our communities.

A recently released exhaustive analysis of audiences attending classical concerts, dance performances, opera, theater and exhibits at art and historical museums revealed that nearly 58 percent of the households in the seven-county southeastern Michigan region attend cultural events. That figure is considerably above the national average of 49 percent for major U.S. metro areas.

The report, "Southeastern Michigan Geodemographic and Database Analysis," was coordinated by ArtServe Michigan of Southfield, a statewide arts advocacy agency. The findings were made public 10 days ago, and have overtaken the controversy over the abrupt closing of the "shock art" exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts as the main topic of conversation throughout the arts community.

And this discussion about the future of art is worth sustaining.

Funded by a $75,000 grant from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, the analysis conducted by the Artmarket Consulting of Bozeman, Mont., offers an unprecedented profile of audiences who attend everything from a concert by their local symphony to a major exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Several Wayne County arts groups and cultural institutions were among the 59 participating organizations, including Canton Project Arts, Plymouth Community Arts Council, Detroit Institute of Arts, Henry Ford Museum/Greenfield Village and Michigan Opera Theatre.

Since for-profit venues were not considered in the research, experts contend that audiences at cultural and entertainment events are even larger than reported.

■ Basically, the cultural tax would be a half-mill assessment on a homeowner's property with revenue earmarked to fund the operating budgets of the region's cultural institutions and provide county grants.

On one level, the report's findings offer small arts organizations detailed marketing information and opportunities to further identify prospective audiences. Yet on another level, the report makes obvious that arts organizations must collaborate and work together for their common interests. Apparently, the creative spirit must go hand-in-hand with entrepreneurial ingenuity and networking.

Of course, ArtServe's immediate challenge is to assist local arts groups in disseminating and properly utilizing the information in the report.

Advocates for a regional cultural tax are predictably thrilled with the report. Basically, the cultural tax would be a half-mill assessment on a homeowner's property with revenue earmarked to fund the operating budgets of the region's cultural institutions and provide county grants to cultivate arts participation at the local level.

While the geodemographic and database analysis presents a compelling portrait of the grassroots support for cultural institutions and arts organizations, until now the public discussion has lagged behind the cultural realities.

It's worth noting that while most people attend events in their own communities, Wayne County draws the most crossover from other counties.

A new century may hold many challenges. But, perhaps the cynicism about regional cooperation will also be put to rest.

Don't expand charters

The League of Women Voters recently completed a three-year study on charter schools in Michigan. We believe the Legislature should not lift its ban on the number of schools chartered by universities. The 150 charter schools already authorized are still an experiment and have not proven themselves to be beneficial to the public school system.

Collecting data to measure the effectiveness of the charter schools in Michigan has been extremely difficult. The public should have access to test scores, student and teacher turnover, evidence of teacher certification and the role of management companies.

The management companies hired by the chartering institutions are generally not community-based and have a standard curriculum and organization for all of their schools, which could lead to a lessening of teacher and parental influence. In addition, compliance with policies and procedures set by our state Board of Education that other public schools must follow is not being monitored.

Should charter schools not have the same measures of accountability that other public schools adhere to?

We must give this experiment in education some additional time before we permit an expansion of the charter school program which has simply not proven itself to be the panacea so many were hoping it would be.

Paula E. Bowman

then driving their car back and forth across it, we have monkeys smearing paint all over a canvas, we have shows which feature a naked woman covered with chocolate and inviting men to come up and lick it off and another in which a man opens the show by defecating on the floor in full view, and this is being pawed off on us as "art" - and we are accepting it.

Shame on us. We used to be more discriminating.

If these types of "artists" want to show their works unopposed and unrestricted, then I strongly suggest they all get together and build their own museum and theater, perhaps naming it The Filth and Trash Art Center and then all the connoisseurs(?) of art can go see all the junk they want to see.

However, I, and millions like me, do NOT want our tax dollars being spent on so-called art that insults and ridicules those we love and, by extension, us, such as paintings of Jesus in a jar of urine. We also want our children, grandchildren and all future generations to grow up having better goals and reaching for loftier heights inspired onward and upward by the various types of art that improve society rather than what degrades it and tears it down to the lowest gutter.

Upset by toys

As a law enforcer retired, I feel that the A games kids today play where killings and shootings take place on malls and videos has had a larger effect on the killings of our children than gun errors.

Do I hear anything from the Brady bunch about taking such items from the hands of our children?

Heck, no. I wonder if maybe they are part of the problem, that they know of our government leaders who own the companies that make these items and the profit that they receive from such sales.

Sorry, I am upset against the people who profit on such items and plan on this election to do everything I can to change things.

DIA ban supported

Regarding the decision by the Detroit Institute of Arts director to not show the art(?) of Jeff Bourgeau, I fully support him.

I grew up with the understanding that art, whether in music, books or paintings, was generally used to inspire, uplift and encourage people to do more to improve life and our relationships with others. The trash was there if you chose to buy it, but it was generally looked down upon and not considered to be worthy of being called art.

How things have changed, which only shows the moral decadence of our society.

Now we have pictures such as of Jesus Christ in a jar of urine, we have people pouring various colors of paint on a canvas and

POINTS OF VIEW

Hello, sports fans!

Love of athletics develops slowly, with some help

It started out slowly.

I wasn't much of a sports fan. I must confess, although I did enjoy a good game of baseball. The other major team sports didn't do much for me; in fact, I'd only been to one Red Wings game in my life, and had never seen hockey at Olympia. (My late grandmother did take us to see the Ice Capades there.)

Anyway, time went by and in September of 1989 I married Mark Rembecki, a super sports fan. Mark was shocked that I didn't have cable and had only a small black and white television. Things had to change, and they did.

Before too long, we had a substantial color TV and cable service. ESPN brought us the latest in sports. Cable TV sports coverage grew over time. After awhile, we had ESPN Classic, bringing us games from days gone by, along with interviews with top athletes recalling their glory days.

A trip to Cooperstown seemed in order, so we made the trek through Ontario to New York to visit the Baseball Hall of Fame. It was great, and we've now been four times. It's fun to pick out the Tigers, ranging from Ty Cobb to Al Kaline, and other baseball greats, and to learn of their exploits.

A trip to Canton, Ohio, for the Pro Football Hall of Fame wasn't quite as exciting for me, as I'm not much of a football fan. We went with friends from England, one of whom loves what the British call "American football." Seeing his excitement made the trip worthwhile.

During their visit, we went to the Silverdome to see the Chicago Bears take on the Lions. Our friend liked the game and all the hoopla. I'd been worried about boorish fans, but the crowd was well-behaved.

Recently, the Canadian Football League's Calgary and Hamilton competed in the Grey Cup, a must-watch event in our house. It's good to know I even have a little knowledge about sports north of the border.

I still like to curl up with a good book now and then, or to watch TV with something other than sports. It's nice, though, to know more of what people are talking about at work when they discuss sports.

I've been to an additional Wings game and also one of the Plymouth Whalers. We took our final trip to Tiger Stadium this past season, seeing the Tigers and Milwaukee Brewers. We'll probably go to the new park next year, and certainly will head back to Cooperstown.

I'm not ready to become a sports-writer or to coach a youth team, but learning about sports has enriched my life in many ways. There's more to learn. I'll never learn it all, but it's fun.

Tree brings forth visions of vanished children

BY ANGELA FRANCES TODD
GUEST COLUMNIST

It was the tree ... that haunted me. At Christmas in the Park in downtown San Jose, Santa Clara County, Calif., in the Year of Our Lord, 1993 ... amongst all of the Christmas displays, there was a tree ... one particular tree that stood out from all the rest. I now feel compelled to relate to you my findings.

"Honorable Mention" was the title given to this entry in the tree-decorating contest decorated by the Notre Dame High School Associated Student Body. Crowning the tree was a large golden angel, complete with a shiny golden dress, golden wings, and a sparkling golden halo ... very gold! Many miniature angels also adorned the rest of the tree, as well as the usual red bows, candy canes and reindeer.

But the most striking of all of the decorations on this tree were photos which showed the faces of the children ... the missing children ... surrounded by the angels. I have dubbed this tree "The Tree of the Vanished Children."

To the left of the tree was a large white sign - trimmed in red - with matching bows on each of the four corners. All was set upon four wooden stakes, hammered into the ground. Yet another miniature angel was attached to the bottom right corner of the sign itself.

The sign began with the caption, "One School, One Spirit," under which the following message appeared: "Let us pray that the angels of God will protect the souls of the missing children ... and that the families of friends of the children will not lose sight of hope. Though they are missing, they are not forgotten from our hearts and minds."

Under the message was the name and phone number of an organization called Vanished Children's Alliance.

As I stood there, bundled up in the cold of the night, transfixed upon this tree of awareness - a tree of sorts of knowledge and truth - thoughts began to form. That is, after the shock of seeing all of the faces on the tree began to subside.

"Where ARE these children during the holidays?" I wondered. What tortures are they enduring this very minute ... while we stand here delighting at these beautiful displays?

As my eyes filled with tears, I felt a sense of bonding with these children

GUEST COLUMN

... and for just a moment, I began to feel as if they were all my own children. My own missing children.

"Who still lives ... and who does not?"

I began to feel almost as if the tree itself were alive ... and talking to me, pleading with me to pray for the children.

This was no ordinary tree. That was a fact. This was a tree with a very hypnotic personality! A tree with a message ... and a prayer. A tree of deep meaning, and thought. A tree of kindness, compassion and caring ...

A sacred tree ... full of impact ... and all who gazed upon it viewed it in silence and wore the expression of sadness ... as they walked away.

I just wanted to share with you this whole very emotional experience of "The Tree of the Vanished Children," and to tell you of the golden angels ... and of all the new faces of all of the children who want to come home for Christmas.

Of all of the trees that were, don't ever forget this one. And take time to pray ... pray for the children ... until all of the lost are lost no more.

Westland resident Angela Frances Todd wrote this over two Christmas seasons, 1993-94. She received a warm response from Gail Wood of the Vanished Children's Alliance, and continues to hear from the organization at Christmas.

Hubris strikes John Engler

The big political news last week was the Legislature's failure to authorize more charter schools, despite weeks of intensive arm twisting by Gov. John Engler.

Amazingly, the defeat was bipartisan. House Democrats have never been enthused by the charter school movement, though some reps from Detroit find them a better alternative than the public schools. Although most Republicans are ideologically pro-charter, the governor's key failure was to win over a handful of moderate GOP legislators, some of whom had been endorsed by the very anti-charter teachers' union, the Michigan Education Association.

Engler's spinmeisters tried to put on a brave face. But this defeat, so unexpected, got me to musing about this governor, now in his third term in office.

After the Republican landslide last November, everybody expected John Engler to bestride the state like a colossus. His Republican Party controlled both houses of the Legislature, had a 5-2 iron grip on the Supreme Court and won all the executive offices except for attorney general. The governor had only to nod his head, so the conventional wisdom went.

But it hasn't quite worked out that way. Consider three examples.

First was this fall's bungled attempt to clip the wings of Attorney General Jennifer Granholm, the only Democrat to survive last year's debacle. Republican bills attempting to cut back the force of her opinions were roundly criticized as a naked power grab, and when documents were leaked proving the whole plot was initiated in the governor's office, John Engler wound up with lots of egg on his face.

Second was the governor's attempt to persuade Secretary of State Candice Miller to be a team player and run against popular U.S. Rep. David Bonior, the Democratic minority leader in the House of Representatives and a favorite GOP target. A component in the calculation was that such a campaign likely would have derailed Miller's interest in running for governor against Engler's hand-picked candidate, Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus. Miller eventually said "thanks, but no thanks." Recently, she's been talking about her interest in running for governor.

Third is the still unresolved spat over a constitutional amendment to allow direct public support for private and religious schools. Headed by billionaire Dick DeVos, the husband of state Republican Party Chairwoman Betsy DeVos, a bunch of hard line GOP stalwarts are hellbent on collecting enough signatures to put the measure on the ballot next November. Engler has been trying his damndest to kill the drive because he's afraid passions ignited by the measure might increase turnout next November and thus jeopardize U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham's campaign for re-election.

It's not a pretty sight for any colossus, least of all John Engler. All of which brings to my mind the Iron Rule of Michigan Politics: No governor in his/her right mind should run for a third term.

The reasons are compelling. After eight long years in office, all the good ideas a governor came in with are pretty much used up. Moreover, most of the bright people who had the good ideas have been drained dry after eight years and have gone on to better jobs.

Finally, any governor worth his/her salt will inevitably make enemies in the course of daily governing. After eight years, any governor thinking about a third term better also think of the number of snakes lying in the high grass.

Worst, after eight years as governor, an office abounding with perks and awash with sycophants, even the most balanced person will be under tremendous pressure to let it go to his/her head. The ancient Greeks called it "hubris," which my dictionary defines as "overbearing pride or presumption." Whether it's hubris or a swelled head, it's most unattractive, and you see it most in third terms.

History endorses the "no third term under any circumstances" doctrine. Engler himself talked grandly about "two terms and out" at the start of his governorship. Well, he's a year into his third term. I wonder if he worries about how the next couple of years are going to turn out. Or is his heavy involvement in the presidential campaign of Texas Gov. George W. Bush his strategy for an early exit from third term woes?

COMMON SENSORS

JACQUE MARTIN-DOWNS

Nifty gifts that cost nothing

With the holiday season fast approaching, we often overlook four of the niftiest gifts we can give ... and they're free.

Favors: In this day and age of busy schedules and snippets of free time, acts of service are few and far between. Everyone appreciated it when you do something nice for them.

Wives may do cartwheels when their husbands empty the dishwasher.

Husbands love having their car filled up with gasoline.

Colleagues appreciate it when you can lighten their workload. Copy something they need as you are walking down towards the copier room.

Anonymous acts of service are also great fun for the giver. Try putting a cup of coffee and a bagel on someone's desk just before they arrive.

Compliments: Joleen, a quiet but efficient cashier at Kmart was very moved when a customer remarked that she had a sparkling smile. She lit up instantly and continued glowing long after the customer left. I told a clerk how pleasant she was during a hectic time of the day and then went and told her supervisor, too.

Children always like compliments about things they've done that prove they are capable.

After Stephen, a 4-year-old, set the table for dinner, his mom said, "You have really gotten good at setting the table, Stephen. I like how you've folded the napkins so perfectly." Children and teens feel good inside when they hear something nice about themselves.

Cheerful disposition: Pull out your effervescence and positive attitude and you could really surprise someone who wasn't expecting it. Walk in with a smile on your face. It may cause them to smile back.

Time: Jack was a busy executive. His job left little spare time for his children and wife. When thinking about what to get his family for Christmas, he decided he would take two days off before the 25th and be home with them.

They were plainly shocked when he was the first one up, making breakfast one morning. And their astonishment increased when they saw him decorating the entire house.

Your time and presence may seem like nothing to you, but may be a special present to those who love you.

These are gifts that can change and improve relationships. They speak volumes more than material gifts because it shows others you care about them.

Stitchers' bears help break ice in emergencies

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

When a 3-year-old girl faced the possibility of having her finger amputated Westland firefighter Robert Arbini learned firsthand how important teddy bears are as ice breakers during emergencies involving children.

The teddy bear seemed to work wonders to calm the toddler during the 90-minute ordeal to remove her index finger that was lodged in a baby car seat.

When every attempt to release her finger failed, an emergency room doctor recommended the toddler be transported to the University of Michigan Hospital for a possible amputation.

At the last moment, however, Westland firefighters were able to free the finger, Arbini said.

"She was crying constantly," he said. "We gave her a bear and it comforted her quite a bit."

The Love Stitchers, a group of women ranging in age from "30-something" to "50-something" at Timothy Lutheran Church on Wayne Road in Livonia, want to make sure that other children are comforted by a teddy bear in their times of need.

The group donated 50 hand-sewn stuffed animals to the Westland Fire Department.

Love Stitchers chair Jean Coleman happened on the idea of making teddy bears at an American Stitches demonstration at the Novi Expo Center last October. The company travels nationwide exhibiting fashion, sewing, quilting and needle arts.

On the table

Everywhere the company travels, one table is set up for the non-profit "Cuddles for Kids" project that involves making teddy bears for emergency workers to give away.

A sewing machine is available during their demonstrations and anyone who happens by is welcome to stitch a teddy bear.

"It's exciting, heart wrenching and heart warming," explained Sue Lazarecki, American Stitches consultant. "We have policemen who will come by and sit down and sew a teddy bear."

Other charitable groups have adopted the Cuddle Project nationwide. Between 100 and 200 teddy bears are made during each show, Lazarecki said. The bears have been given to the Detroit Police Department and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Coleman, a retired home economics teacher in Livonia, liked what she saw at the Novi Expo Center and decided to bring the concept to her church sewing group. She bought the bear pattern and church members purchased the fleece, as well as the child-safe eyes and noses that are assembled with washers, so they can't be pulled out and swallowed.

In two months, the Livonia church

Must be Santa Ellie Kwasnik's children and grandchildren delight in watching Santa Claus during their annual tree trimming weekend in Ohio.

Tree trimming weekends provide lasting memories

BY ELLIE KWASNIK
SPECIAL TO THE OBSERVER

Our tree trimming tradition started the first week of December 17 years ago, when I had two granddaughters, age 4, and two grandsons under 1-year-old. The family has increased to 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild, along with my six children, their spouses and four animals. We all travel to my daughter and son-in-law's large home in Shaker Heights, Ohio, where they accommodate our group of 25 plus the animals. To attend the tree trimming, everyone must make a papier-mâché ornament to place on the tree. The 15-foot Douglas fir becomes a tree of memories, decorated with handmade ornaments from a pacifier, first pulled tooth, hallet alippers, lollipops, butterflies, pizza, sports replicas, bugs, animals, and the bright star that tops the tree. As the boxes are opened by grandma, each child wants to hang up their own ornament, reminding them of previous years. After the tree is decorated, we quickly eat dinner, get dressed in our fuzzy and listen to carols from a lovely antique music box. Suddenly, we hear the familiar bells, the dogs start barking, the children's eyes widen as the special visitor arrives. We've had the same Santa for 17 years who looks like a tall version of Edmund Owen from "Miracle on 34th Street" with his own white hair, whiskers, mustache, eyebrows and such a kind face. He has seen the children grow up from toddlers to adults in college. We all get to sit on Santa's lap, telling him what is on our wish list and he has a bag of surprises for all, including the pets. Later, he has dessert with us, taking some home for Mrs. Claus, while the children serenade him with Christmas carols. Santa bids us good-bye with a reminder he will see us next year, if God's willing and compassionate. Young and old alike are delighted with Santa's visit. No one is ready to retire, so we all go to the studio on the top floor where the children dress up in estate sales clothes and put on skits for the adults. Needless to say, the weekend speeds by much too quickly, however, we have another year's wonderful tree trimming memory to store for another year. Ellie Kwasnik lives in Livonia.

women clocked close to 100 hours of time, hoping to make a difference in a child's life. Some of the women traced the patterns: some cut; some sewed; some stuffed; and others stitched the backs and applied the eyes and noses. "We have people who sew and people who don't," said Coleman, who also taught sewing to senior citizens in continuing education programs. "We have people who say, 'I can't sew,' and I say: That doesn't matter, we need a variety of skills." "It's an outreach effort, a way to help others and to be a service to the community. We do this because Jesus commands us to show compassion to our less fortunate neighbors." First-hand stories Coleman hears firsthand stories from her daughter, a Dearborn firefighter, about how teddy bears can calm a child who is frightened or hurt. "We use the teddy bears any-

Usually children who receive the bears are 5 years old or younger, depending on the situation. "It has a calming effect and helps us to communicate a little better," Fields said. "We usually keep a couple on each rescue." The Westland Fire Department give away anywhere between 500 and 600 teddy bears annually. Fields said the teddy bears donated by Timothy Lutheran come at a good time because their stock had dwindled to nothing. The Westland Fire Department has received donations from Civitans and occasionally Target during the more than 13 years the department has given away stuffed animals. Since its inception last summer, the stitching group has done other charitable sewing projects, like making palm pads for people who have suffered stroke. They were donated to Lutheran Social Services which gave them to area nursing homes. Love Stitchers also made hats to be donated to an oncology department for women who have lost their hair from chemotherapy treatments. "They're prettier than the turbans," said Coleman who runs a quilting business. Creative Quilting, from her home in Livonia. "It's very nice to know that you're doing something for someone else in need." The Cuddles Project is likely something that will remain a project at Timothy Lutheran, said Coleman, adding that the group has enough fabric to make 25 more teddy bears. "We thought we'd pick up after Christmas and make more," she said.

Santa's helpers: Shutterbugs capture spirit of season

Smile, please: Amber Spisz, 15, tries to get a baby's attention to take a picture of the child with Santa Claus at Laurel Park Place in Livonia

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@ec.homecomm.net

The true spirit of the holidays does not come from ornaments, trees or candles. It comes from the light in the eyes of a child. And perhaps no one knows it better than those who see thousands of good little girls and boys every season.

In 1993, I spent the holidays working with Ole Saint Nick himself, as an elf. With my tiny stature - a mere 5-foot-1 1/2 inches - I felt suited to the role of Santa's Helper. And my adoration of children fit right into the equation.

Those days I spent tripping from one mall to the next, dressing in my furry red hat and encouraging smiles in front of my camera, are all treasured times. This is a tribute to those who followed the same path and chose to see the spirit of the season for themselves.

Laurel Park Place in Livonia is decked in holiday cheer from top to bottom. Cheerful carols are piped into the mall's corridors. And as expected, the guest of honor has made daily visits since Nov. 18.

But Santa's job is made much easier with a little help from his elfin friends.

Alana Collins, manager of Cherry Hill Photography, organizes Santa's helpers at the mall. Cherry Hill also services other area malls with holiday helpers, including Wonderland Mall in Livonia, Twelve Oaks Mall in Novi and the Fairlane Towne Center in Dearborn.

"It gets you in the holiday

■ 'You gotta like kids, and you gotta be a shutterbug.'

Dana Hill
Santa's helper

mood," said Collins. In her fourth season, it is the reaction of children coming to visit with Santa that makes her job worth doing.

"It's something different every day," she said.

Personality a plus

Most "elves" must be 16 or older. It is often a first job for teens. Dana Hill, who usually works at the Twelve Oaks Mall display, said personality is the key to a good Santa's helper.

"You gotta like kids and you gotta be a shutterbug," she said with a gleeful voice and contagious smile. Hill didn't have any prior experience with a camera, but took to the job easily.

All elves are trained to take pictures and assist Santa's visitors. The most important part of an elf's responsibility is to "play along," said Collins.

She was asked for Santa Claus's fax number by a mother who intended to let her son - who was present at the time - fax Santa a list of presents he hoped to receive. Collins went along with the request and gave a fax number to the woman and her son.

One aspect has changed over the years - the technology associated with taking photos. Children who sat with Santa once had to wait for a Polaroid photo. If anyone was caught with an eye closed or a funny expression, the photograph had to be retaken.

With today's advances in digital photography, small adjustments can be made without a retake. Collins said the new system offers a "higher quality color picture."

Hill agreed and said the new method is faster - an important difference when a line of young children are eagerly awaiting their turn on Santa's lap.

Santa's helpers do use expedient tricks to keep that line moving. Linda Lawing, whose alter ego is Mrs. Claus, said the helpers try to find out which picture-package a parent wants before the child has his or her turn, so a parent can focus on what that child tells Santa to bring for Christmas.

Children are free to just visit with Santa; pictures are never required. And Collins said parents may bring their own camera and take snapshots. The elves may even offer to take a photo of mom and dad with their little one on Santa's lap using a personal camera. It's truly a family tradition.

Keeping 'em happy

"Santa's goal is to spend quality time with the kids," said Lawing, adding that it isn't unusual to see Santa calling a child by name, or to see a child tugging to find out if his beard is real.

If the line gets too long and parents start to get "a little unappreciative," as Collins puts it, it's the elves' responsibility to keep them happy.

"We just smile away," she said. In some ways, photographs of Santa mark a child's growth from year to year. Before age 6, it's sometimes scary for a child to take a photo with Santa. And between age 11 and 13, many kids will refuse to talk to the bearded man in a red suit.

But women like Anne Burns and Mary Kay Canville prove you never outgrow a chat with Santa Claus. They stopped to have their photos taken with Mr. Claus when they noticed no children were in line.

The women claimed they didn't want Santa to feel lonely.

"He's a great Santa," said Burns, a Plymouth resident who did have her picture retaken. "I liked it so much I went back twice."

Canville, a Canton resident, said the Santa's helpers were "the best." She called them "cute."

"It doesn't take too much to make us happy," added Burns before they walked off merrily with their holiday photos.

Anyone interested in working as a seasonal helper should contact the management office at the mall where he or she intends to work two to three months prior to the holiday. Mall management can assist interested applicants in contacting the company they use for special events, such as Christmas and Easter mall displays.

Holiday toy shopping: tips for making better choices

During the holiday season, stores are flooded with new and exciting toys. But how can parents know which ones to buy?

Early childhood educators at Children's World Learning Centers agree that toys play a significant role in helping all children from infancy through school age develop important educational concepts and life skills.

Good toys should entertain and occupy. One of the main values of a good toy is to extend a child's attention.

Among the points that should be considered before buying are:

■ Will the toy appeal to the child's personal likes and dislikes? (This is a vital consideration because not all children of the same age share similar interests.) Is the appeal based on the child's real interests or because a friend has a toy or it's been seen on TV?

■ Is the toy durable and well built? Will it survive typical child use?

■ Will the toy hold the child's interest over a period of time? Most toys are designed just to satisfy a child's initial interest.

■ Will the child be capable of enjoying the toy? Some toys are just too complicated or too simple for a specific age group.

■ Is the toy safe?

The topic of safety is particularly relevant when selecting toys for children of all ages. Parents should select toys with rounded edges and no points, not to mention unbreakable and able to withstand use and abuse.

Rattles and toys for infants should be carefully checked for poor construction and parts that a child could swallow. Make sure that they can't be opened by mistake or through normal use.

Paints on toys also should be non-toxic and lead-free. Be sure to check the materials used in stuffed toys and make sure materials on toys, such as dolls, including clothing, are flame retardant.

Follow package guidelines for age appropriateness to prevent getting a toy that is too complex for a child's age and development.

■ Because an infant (birth to 12 months) will put everything into his or her mouth to explore his or her sense of taste and touch, it's essential to select toys that can't be easily swallowed.

Even large toys should be carefully inspected to ensure they contain no buttons or other detachable parts that could be swallowed.

■ Active and ready to explore, toddlers (12-36 months) direct their energy toward investigating, experimenting and interacting with the world around them.

Among their toys that help them develop are dolls which provide both boys and girls with the opportunity to express their emotional needs. Blocks help build a toddler's motor skills while exercising imagination and push and pull toys exercise large motor development and coordination skills.

■ Toys that allow a preschool child

(ages 3-5) to express his or her creativity include hand puppets and the whole range of art supplies from finger paints to modeling clay, crayons and felt pens. Construction toys teach children spatial relationships, hand-eye coordination and thinking skills.

■ For school-aged children (ages 6-12), bicycles are excellent for improving motor skills, coordination and developing balance, and board games because they combine fun with learning to play games with rules.

Musical instruments enhance the importance of rhythm, sequence and love of music, and scientific and mechanical toys encourage children's natural interests in the real world and in figuring out how things work.

Church gives away offering and gets even more in return

According to the word of Jesus, "it is more blessed to give than to receive." While most churches focus on receiving an offering each week, such was not the case at Trinity Presbyterian Church in Plymouth earlier this year.

Dr. William C. Moore, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian, was speaking on the "parable of the talents" and to emphasize its point asked the ushers to come forward for the offering.

The parable is about a businessman who in going abroad, hands over capital sums of money to three men in his employment so they can trade for profit in his absence. The amount of money given to each man varied according to his proven business ability.

When the businessman returned, he took an accounting. The two who had increased the initial investment were commended. The third, who had hidden his investment so that it remained unused and untouched, was criticized.

The point of the parable was that people use their God-given capabilities and resources to benefit His Kingdom.

Instead of asking the congregation to give an offering, Moore asked each one to take an envelope form the plate as they were passed around. Each envelope contained $5, a resource to be invested in God's kingdom in whatever way the individual wanted.

Each person was asked to make an accounting of how the money was used four months later.

The church gave out envelopes containing $720 and received $1,400 back, but the results far exceeded the monetary return.

"We combined our money to send a child to 'Joy for Jesus' camp. The newspaper matched our donation, so two children could attend," said one church member.

Another donated $5 to his god-child to help pay for her trip to South Dakota where she worked as a youth missionary, and another's children, ages 7 and 10, had a lemonade stand and made $10 for the Christian's Children Fund.

"My husband gave a trucker the two $5 bills entrusted to us so he could have a meal on his way back home to Kentucky," said one member.

"We combined our family's money for a young couple working in the inner city of Chicago," added another.

One teenager wrote: "I was sitting in the car when I saw a man with all of his belongings hanging off the handles of his bike. I got out of the car, walked up to him and he looked very surprised. I handed him the envelope and said, 'This is for you.'"

So what accounts for the income of $1,400, if much of the money was given away for donations?

"My husband and I put our $5 together, bought $1 and $2 garage sale items, sold them on ebay and our ultimate profit was $390.21."

"With the money, I picked strawberries and made jam that was given away for donations."

"I bought two flats of flowers, planted them for others and asked for a donation, repeated the process and turned the original $5 into $92.50."

"I found an antique doll beat a garage sale for $5 and after painting it, sold it for $75. This was reinvested in antiques and the profit came to $250."

"We hosted and ice cream social and our $10 blessing became $70."

One person wrote of a different experience.

"Pastor Moore, I am returning the $5," the member wrote. "With sad regret, I must report that I did not apply this gift in a manner that would please God. No excuses, I just simply forgot. However, I believe I have learned a valuable lesson. No gift is too small for God to use in His work."

AWARD WINNER

Marvin Moser of Livonia will receive the Christus Primus Award during the winter commencement ceremony at Concordia College in Ann Arbor. The service award is presented to clergy, educators or laypeople of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, based on distinguished service to the church and community.

Moser is being honored for his tireless and dedicated labors in the church and furthering the church's mission of higher education. He served as a member of the college's Board of Regents from 1993 to 1996, was honored as Lutheran Layman of the Year and Historic Trinity Lutheran Layman.

He also has served three Lutheran churches, including Christ Our Savior Lutheran in Livonia where he is a founding member.

LIVING TREE

Plymouth Church of the Nazarene will have its 18th annual presentation of the living Christmas tree and live Nativity Friday-Sunday, Dec. 17-19, at the church, 45801 W. Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth.

The presentation is being done as a present to the community and features a 25-foot high tree, decorated with thousands of lights and filled with 60-plus singers. Performances will take place at 7 and 8 p.m. each night. The live Nativity will presented 6:30-8:30 p.m. each night.

The teens of Fair Haven Baptist Church in Westland will present at live Nativity at 7 and 8 p.m. Thursday-Friday, Dec. 17-18, at the church, 34850 Marquette, Westland. The presentation is free of charge.

CHRISTMAS CONCERTS

Organist Tony O'Brien is giving a Christmas concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 17, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, 27475 Five Mile Road, west of Inkster Road, Livonia. There's a suggested donation of $7.50 at the door. For more information, call (734) 422-1470.

The Adult Choir of Memorial Church of Christ will present its cantata, "A Light Still Shines," celebrating the light that shone from Bethlehem that is still shining today, at 9:30 and 10:45 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 19, at the church, 35475 Five Mile Road, Livonia.

The Jesus Jammers (children in grades one through six) will perform "A Star Is Born" at 6:30 p.m. that evening. Set in Memorial's musical studio, the Jammers plan to convince the main "star," Sophia, that the one and only "star" is Jesus. For more information, call (734) 464-8216.

The Riverside Park Church of God Sanctuary Choir will present its Christmas musical, "Joy in This Place," at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 19, at the church, 11771 Newburgh Road, Livonia.

The musical will feature familiar carols and a biblically-based narration of the Christmas story. Pastor Ralph Anderson has extended an invitation to the community to attend. A time of food and fellowship will follow the performance.

The Sunday School and weekday school children of Faith Lutheran Church are explaining the symbolism of Christmas in their Advent pageant, "Christmas Is Coming," at 9:40 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 19, at the church, 30000 Five Mile Road, Livonia. The program includes music, bell ringing, singing and more. For more information, call (734) 421-7249.

The children and youth of Newburg United Methodist Church are acting out the story of Jesus's birth as seen through the eyes of the stable animals, in their Christmas pageant, "The Mouse's Tale."

Performance times are the 9 and 11 a.m. worship services Sunday, Dec. 19, at the church, 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, Livonia. For more information, call (734)

422-0149

The children of the Sunday school are participating in the St. Andrew Episcopal Church annual Christmas pageant at 10 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 19, at the church, 16360 Hubbard, between Five and Six Mile roads, Livonia. For more information, call (734) 421-8451.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES

Why do people light luminaries at Christmastime? The children of Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church will explore the question when they present "The Christmas Path" at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 19, at the church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia.

The pageant relates the cherished tradition of lighting candle lanterns, called luminaries, to the biblical Christmas story. It is based on the children's book,

"The Christmas Path: A Legend of the Luminaries" by Sue Wright. Spanish missionaries introduced the custom of lighting luminaries along walkways and around homes more than 400 years ago.

The children also will present

"Star of Wonder" during the 11 a.m. worship service. A staffed nursery will be available for children up to age 3. For more information, call the church at (734) 522-6830.

ADVENT SERVICE

Holy Trinity Lutheran Church has Advent Bible study at 7 p.m.

Providence
HOSPITAL AND MEDICAL CENTERS

When you've found a better way to know it. That's why St. Joseph's and Providence Hospital and Medical Centers joined together to create a new center.

The power of this merger is even greater than we had foreseen. In all the ways that matter to our patients, we've taken a vow to stay just the way we are — close to home, familiar, compassionate.

And in all the ways that matter to insurers and business colleagues, we will make the most of our opportunities to share resources.

That means directing you to the most appropriate and cost effective setting for all your health care needs. Reducing duplication to lower costs without sacrificing quality. Using the expertise that comes with experience.

- 1,500 open heart surgeries
- 10,000 babies born each year
- 5,200 new cancer cases
- A staff of 2,500 doctors at 16
- 175 medical specialties

Together, we're creating a new center.

LHM programs offer holiday messages

Lutheran Hour Ministries will offer a series of messages on radio and television this week to help people handle the holidays.

For decades, audiences have delighted in the inspiring story of a family faced with the threat of the Nazi regime in the classic movie, "The Sound of Music."

In the "Woman to Woman" Christmas special, "The Sound of Music: A Melody of Faith," host Phyllis Wallace will talk with Maria von Trapp, who will recount her family's escape from Nazi-controlled Austria prior to World War II and God's intervention in their lives.

Produced by Lutheran Hour Ministries, the special will air at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 19, on WAAM-AM (1600 on the radio dial).

"The courageous story of the von Trapps is a testament to the hope that can be found in Jesus Christ in even the bleakest of times," said Wallace. "It is a delight to provide Maria von Trapp with a forum through which to embellish the beloved story and inspire others to trust in Christ."

The Lutheran Hour will air at 6:05 a.m. on WOMC-FM and 10 a.m. on WMUZ-AM on Sunday, Dec. 19. Dr. Dale Meyer will share his message of "The World at Peace."

On television, "Red Boots for Christmas," the story of a bitter shoemaker who is visited by an angel on Christmas Eve, will air at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 23, on cable's Fox Family Channel.

In addition to the television special, the characters will appear in full color in cyberspace at www.redboots.org, offering free storybooks and background information.

Lutheran Hour Ministries with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo., is a service of the International Lutheran Laymen's League, a volunteer organization of 150,000 members. The league is an auxiliary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and Lutheran Church-Canada.

Monday, Dec. 20, and 7:15 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 21, following Advent vespers at 6:30 p.m., at the church, 39020 Five Mile Road, Livonia. For more information, call the church at (734) 464-0211.

TLC STORYTIME

Hospice's tree honors loved ones

During the holiday season, thoughts of family, friends and loved ones abound.

One way to remember those who have touched our lives is with a golden angel ornament on the Community Hospice and Home Care Services Inc.'s Tree of Memories.

For a donation, people can write the name of a loved one on the back of the angel and have it hang on the tree through Dec. 27. The tree is on display at Borders Books and Music on Mercury Drive off Ford Road in Dearborn.

Several area credit unions also are participating with their own on-site trees. Members can donate and have an angel ornament hung on those Tree of Memories.

The credit unions include:

■ Crestwood Credit Union in Garden City.

■ Co-Op Services Credit Union in Livonia, Westland, Dearborn, Wyandotte and Walled Lake.

■ Community Choice Credit Union in Redford and Livonia.

■ Associated Metro Credit Union and Contrak Credit Union, both in Dearborn.

■ Warrendale Community Credit Union, Communicating Arts Credit Union and Detroit Edison Credit Union, all in Detroit.

■ Public Service Credit Union

in Romulus and Detroit (two locations on Woodward and Clifford).

■ Municipal and Public Health Service Credit Union in Pontiac.

Proceeds from the tree directly benefit patient care, and all donations are tax deductible to the fullest extent allowable.

"In past years, there have been such touching notes written on the back of the angels," said Maureen Butrico, CHHCS executive director. "It makes people feel very good to reconnect with their loved ones in some meaningful way during the holiday season and can have a healing effect on survivors trying to get through the holidays.

"When people walk by and see the name of a loved one, they, too, share in the memory." Community Hospice and Home Care Services is a fully licensed, not-for-profit agency serving the needs of terminally ill people and their families in Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw and Monroe Counties.

For more information about the Tree of Memories, call (734) 522-4244.

Pats runner-up to state champ

Livonia Franklin gave area girls volleyball teams something to think about after finishing runner-up Saturday in the 16-team Portage Northern Invitational.

The Patriots also had the distinction of taking a game off the host team and 10-time state Class A champions, losing 2-15, 15-13, 3-15 in the final.

"There were a lot of top-ranked teams in this tournament and I think a huge mental barrier was broken for us," said Franklin coach Mary Helen Diegel, whose team finished 5-2 on the day (both losses to defending state champion Northern).

The Patriots reached the final going without 6-foot-1 middle blocker Kerstin Marshall, who sprained an ankle in a second-round pool-play victory over Allegan (15-13, 15-10).

Franklin also defeated Bay City Central (15-13, 15-9) and Flushing (15-6, 15-10), while losing to Northern in pool play (7-15, 4-15).

In the elimination round of eight, Franklin knocked off Livonia Ladywood (15-9, 15-8).

In the semifinals, Diegel beat her alma mater, Birmingham Marian (16-14, 15-10), coached by former Mustang teammate Stephanie Storen.

Setter Lindsay Sopko made good on 256 of 261 sets on the day with 95 assists, while middle hitter Andrea Kmet had a team-high 54 kills (99 of 113 good hits).

Right-side hitter Tera Morrill added 43 kills (109 of 115 good hits). She also had eight service aces along with left-side hitter Rachel Bramlett (60 of 64 good hits).

Left-side hitter Alexis Bowman came up with 15 kills on 58 of 70 successful hits.

Franklin also got sterling play from middle-hitter Kelly Ann Zawacki and defensive specialist Monica Little.

Franklin among area's best bets

Like a snowball getting rolled around the yard after a late spring storm, volleyball keeps getting bigger and better.

Five of the 12 All-Area first-team volleyball selections from last season return to grace area gymnasiums this winter, including Andrea Kmet, Tera Morrill and Lyndsay Sopko — all of Livonia Franklin.

Franklin's volleyball program kind of encapsulates the way volleyball has exploded over the past few seasons.

Under the guidance of Ann Hutchins, the Patriots' program moved to the forefront of the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division teams, winning two division crowns in a row.

Hutchins, who wanted to watch her daughter, Kelley, perform for Livonia Stevenson, resigned and turned things over to Mary Helen Diegel last season.

Diegel took Franklin to another Western Division championship, then the Patriots' first district title ever in a field which included Stevenson and Livonia Ladywood.

The Patriots lost in the regional final to Plymouth Salem, but Diegel was the Observerland's Coach of the Year.

"Now her team is wearing the crown and Diegel isn't at all uneasy about it."

She feels Franklin is just as good as its 37-14-1 record of a year ago and should be quite comfortable about being a WLAA power.

"A lot of teams have been preparing very well," Diegel said. "There are a lot of good programs in our league. A good indicator of that will come when the districts roll around."

"Our league is probably one of the top two in the east side of the state. It's difficult to compare to the west side since the majority of the state champions are from the west side. However I believe we can compete with those teams."

"Volleyball is becoming more of a competitive sport in the state of Michigan," Livonia Stevenson's Kelly Graham observes. "A lot of girls are getting involved in the summer with AAU programs, which is a plus for high school teams. Thus we're getting better volleyball players."

To stay solid, the Patriots have to replace Nicole Boyd, second-team All-Area, and Lindsay Duprey, All-Area honorable mention, from last year's team but are fortunate to have a wealth of experienced stars to do so.

Area returnees in setter Sopko and right outside hitter Morrill and middle blocker Kmet.

Morrill is a left-handed outside hitter with exceptional all-around volleyball skills. She hits, sets, digs and serves extremely well and does it with mobility. She was All-Western Lakes and All-Region.

Morrill put down her kills with a 426 success rate last year, served 76 aces and was 92 percent successful on digs.

Sopko also made All-WLAA and All-Region. Nearly 42 percent of her 2,012 sets ended up as points or sideouts for Franklin last season. She also served 38 aces and had 59 block-assists.

Kmet, a middle hitter, turned nearly 40 percent of her kill attempts into non-returnables. She also had 32 solo blocks and 85 assists along with 229 digs.

In addition to those three, Diegel has All-Area honorable mentions Alexis Bowman and 6-1 junior Kerstin Marshall plus outside hitter Rachel Bramlett and defender Monica Little.

Challenging Franklin in the Western Division will be Livonia Churchill, who Mike Hughes says will be stronger this year.

"I'm looking forward to a good year," said Hughes, a 25-year veteran who guided the Chargers to the 1990 state Class A title. "But there's some tough competition in our conference."

"What's really going to make a difference for us is whether we play good defense. And how our sophomores develop. We're going to block better than we have in 10 years."

Honorable mention honor winner Shannon Munn, a middle hitter, is the leading returning starter but Hughes has experience in Kristin Leszczynski, setter Colleen Guardiola plus outside hitters Amy Cadovich and Megan Sheehan.

Hughes gushes over his trio of sophomores: outside hitter Sarah Phillips, middle hitter Sheila Gillies and outside hitter Beth Bushey.

Quick start, foul shooting lift Chargers by Franklin

The free throw line proved to be comfortable spot Tuesday night for the Livonia Churchill boys basketball team.

The Chargers, led by Brad Bescoe's 15 of 17 charity shooting, held off a second-half run by host Livonia Franklin to earn a 65-59 victory.

Churchill is now 2-1, while Franklin dips to 0-3 overall. The game did not count in the Western Lakes Activities Association standings.

Churchill, 27 of 38 overall from the line (73 percent), including 15 of 20 in the final quarter.

"After you create a lead like we did you have a tendency to play less aggressive," Churchill coach Rick Austin said. "We were aggressive the first half, much higher tuned than the third quarter."

Churchill took just 14 shots from the floor in the second half.

"You can't stop the clock with ticky-tack fouls," Austin said. "A lot of teams struggle with that. In the fourth quarter we tried to up-tempo and get up the floor. We were able to do that about four possessions."

Bescoe, a 6-foot-1 senior guard, finished with 19 points to pace the Chargers.

Senior forward John Bennett added 18 for Churchill, which led by as many as 21 points in the third quarter after enjoying a 35-16 halftime lead.

Franklin junior forward Joe Ruggiero, who finished with a game-high 23 points, paced a 26-9 Franklin during a 10-minute stretch between the third and fourth quarters.

Ruggiero's two free throws with 3:14 left cut the deficit to 52-46, but Churchill never let the Patriots get any closer as Randall Boboige hit a key hoop with 2:17 remaining to give his team a 10-point cushion. Bescoe followed by hitting eight of 10 free throws.

"That was a good job by Brad tonight," Austin said. "He's been really consistent."

Franklin had problems in the opening half, turning the ball over 15 times against Churchill's three-quarter court zone press.

The Patriots, however, only turned it over four times during the final 16 minutes.

"We have to show we can consistently handle the ball under struggle to overcome their lack of experience.

Gratham, in her seventh season, believes Stevenson will make noise in the WLA's Lakes Division.

Third-team pick Kate LaBina, a middle blocker plus junior setter Hutchins, Carly Wedworth and Cassie Ehlendt — all honorable mentions — are back to spearhead the Spartans.

Westland John Glenn is in its sixth season with coach Stacy Carey, who feels she has the Rockets pointed in the right direction.

"I think we're a little more versatile," she said. "Having the freshman program last year is really going to help."

Among the Glenn returnees are Noelle Swartz, who missed all year with a knee injury; Nicole Panyard, Jamie McLeod, Jessica Sanchez, Sarah Paek, Lacey Catarino, Samantha Dean, Holly Deedler and Lindsay Beard.

Outside the WLAA, coach Larry Wyatt enters his second season at always tough Livonia Ladywood.

Wyatt must replace Jenny Young, stellar outside hitter to led Ladywood to its eighth straight Catholic League championship. She is now at Central Michigan.

He feels depth will do it, with hitters Patty Horal, Jenni Gregor, Cameron Kompoltowicz, Jessica Tilson, Kelly Carey, Kelly Predmesky, Erin Bartee, Desiree Betts and Carolyn Whalen are the players who will form the front row combinations for the Blazers.

At Wayne Memorial, Laura Oliver enters her fourth season. The Sabras will be led by setter Amy Paking. They will be loaded with underclassmen this season.

Here's all you need to know about the Livonia Clarenceville program, under the direction of nine-year veteran coach Alisha Love: her graduates come back to help her coach on the fundamentals.

The Trojans lost first-team All-Area selection Danielle Sleds and also must replace Kristina Skrela, but fortunately have plenty of veterans coming back.

Coach Joan Ollinger at Lutheran High School Westland has a shot at defending the Metro Conference title shared with Livonia Clarenceville last season. The Trojans will be in the hunt again, too.

Key returnees include powerful hitter Sarah Marody plus Amanda Salea, Heather Haller, Jen Dash, Liz Unger, Rene O'Brien and Anna Rolf.

Westland Huron Valley Lutheran's volleyball team has a new coach, Kris Springstroh, who just finished up her first season as basketball coach.

Stacie Graves and Rachel Zahn head the list of returnees.

CAPSULE OUTLOOK OF LIVONIA-WESTLAND VOLLEYBALL TEAMS

LIVONIA CHURCHILL
Head coach: Mike Hughes, 25th season
League affiliation: Western Lakes Activities Association (Western Division)
Last year's overall record: 29-12-3
Titles won last year: Macomb Invitational
Notable losses to graduation: Lauren Ruprecht (All-Area first team), Courtney Lim (All-Area third team), Luba Steca, Becky Weber, Jessica Mackay, Fernando Lette
Leading returnees: Shannon Lunn, Sr. MH, 5-9; Kristin Leszczynski, Sr. setter, 5-7; Colleen Guardiola, Sr. setter, 5-2; Amy Cadovich, Sr. OH, 5-7; Megan Sheehan, Sr. OH, 5-4; Carey Ziomek, Sr. def. specialist, 5-4; Corey Mack, Jr. MH, 5-10; Katie Hopp, Jr. OH, 5-5; Michelle Espanza, Jr. def. specialist, 5-5; Kelly Pfeifer, Jr. OH, 5-8
Promising newcomers: Sarah Phillips, Soph. OH, 5-10; Sheila Gillies, Soph. MH, 6-0; Beth Bushey, Soph. OH, 5-8
Hughes' '99-00 outlook: "We have some good solid senior experience, especially at the setting positions."
"We should get some good offensive power from Cadovich and Lunn in the middle. Sheehan has a chance to help us as an outside hitter, she's small but she really jumps. And we'll get some defense from Ziomek."
"I'm ecstatic with our sophomores. Gillies is going to start for us in the middle. She's got a lot of desire. Phillips played junior varsity as a freshman and has turned out to be an excellent blocker and made steady progress. She's pushed her way into the starting lineup on the right side."
"They're going to make some mistakes. But they're going to be good."
"Our four juniors are going to be solid, especially defensively. Mack is coming along in the middle."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN
Head coach: Mary Helen Dege, second season
League affiliation: WLAA (Western Division)
Last year's overall record: 37-14-1
Titles won last year: WLAA Western Division, Class A district champions
Notable losses to graduation: Nicole Boyd (All-Area second team), Lindsay Duprey Leading returnees: Lindsay Sopko, Sr. setter, 5-10 (All-Area first team); Tara Morrill, Sr. OH, 5-11 (All-Area first team); Andre Kmet, Sr. MB, 5-10 (All-Area first team); Alexis Bowman, Sr. OH, 5-7; Rachel Bramlett, Sr. OH, 5-9; Kerstin Marshall, Jr. MH, 6-2; Monica Little, Sr. def. specialist, 5-7
Promising newcomers: Kelly Ann Zawacki, Jr. MH, 5-10; Kara Wisniewski, Soph. def. specialist, 5-5; Cassie Bentley, Jr. setter, 5-8; Sarah Baxter, Jr. OH, 5-8; Kendra Andrews, Soph. MH, 5-5 Diegel's '99-00 outlook: "I think we are a true contender this year. We're experienced and we're athletic."
"We're a close team. I think we understand where we need to improve and where we can capitalize.

"I think this year will be again, another highly competitive year. The senior class throughout the league is very strong. It's going to be a very difficult year."

LIVONIA STEVENSON
Head coach: Kelly Graham, seventh season
League affiliation: WLAA (Lakes Division)
Last year's overall record: 34-15-2
Notable losses to graduation: Stephanie Duiz (All-Area first team), Kristi Culp, Brenda Peterson
Leading returnees: Kate LaBina, Sr. MB, 5-11 (All-Area third team), Carly Wadsworth, Sr. OH, 5-9; Cassie Ehlendt, Sr. OH, 5-10; Kelly Hutchins, Jr. setter, 5-7; Megan Urbats, Sr. OH, 5-8; Julie Pfeifer, Sr. def. specialist, 5-4
Promising newcomers: Katie Drews, Jr. MB, 6-0; Christine Matheson, Jr. def. specialist, 5-3; Dana White, Jr. setter, 5-6; Abbey Schrader, Jr. OH, 5-8; Abbey Larson, Jr. MH, 5-10
Graham's '99-00 outlook: "Compared to last year we're just about equal — but we have a few more assets we didn't have last year."
"We have a few more hitters and we're bigger."
"The conference is going to be just as competitive as last year, with Livonia Franklin, Walled Lake Central and Plymouth Salem."
"Our goals is to be in the top four again this year. Then see where we fall."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN
Head coach: Stacy Carey, sixth season
League affiliation: WLAA (Lakes Division)
Last year's overall record: 8-21-8
Notable losses to graduation: Kristen Krohn, Amanda Bell (All-Area honorable mentions), Melanie Panyard, Jessica LeTourneau (All-Area honorable mentions)
Leading returnees: Noelle Swartz, Sr. MH, 5-11; Nicole Panyard, Sr. MB, 5-10; Jamie McLeod, Sr. RSH, 5-10; Jessica Sanchez, Sr. setter, 5-6; Sarah Paek, Jr. OH, 5-7; Lacey Catarino, Jr. OH, 5-7; Samantha Dean, Sr. OH, 5-6; Holly Deedler, Jr. OH, 5-7; Lindsay Beard, Jr. def. specialist, 5-7
Promising newcomers: Jennifer Lack, Jr. OH, 5-6; Shelly Hein, Jr. MH, 5-9; Anne Machowicz, Jr. def. specialist, 5-5; Angie Peterson, Jr. def. specialist
Carey's '99-00 outlook: "Noelle is coming back from a knee injury from soccer. At first she was frustrated because she hadn't played in awhile, but now she's coming back strong. She's a definite asset in the middle. Now we can move Jamie (McLeod) to the outside where she is a strong hitter."
"We're going to be running a quicker offense. It's the first time we're using that. Key is serve receive and setting."
"This year we have a lot of returning starters, so we're more experienced and have more depth."

WAYNE MEMORIAL
Head coach: Laura Oliver, fourth season
League affiliation: Michigan Mega Conference (White Division)
Last year's overall record: 18-22-3
Titles won last year: Class A district champions
Notable losses to graduation: Kristen Kenner (All-Area honorable mention), Jennifer Wojte, Bethany Monitor (All-Area honorable mention)
Leading returnees: April Coats, Sr. MH, 5-10; Amy Paking, Jr. setter, 5-6 (All-Area honorable mention); Melissa Jones, Sr. def. specialist, 5-5
Promising newcomers: Heather Spyr, Jr. MH, 5-10; Nancy Bednarz, Jr. OH, 5-7; Kristen Zilka, Jr. OH, 5-6; Toni Watson, Jr. OH, 5-7; Crystal Little, Sr. OH, 5-6; Christina Kelly, Jr. OH, 5-7; Connie Craig, Sr. def. specialist, 5-4; Jennifer Kietton, Jr. setter, 5-4
Oliver's '99-00 outlook: "Amy Paking and Melissa Jones are returning starters from last year."
"Basically this is a rebounding year. We have a lot of work to do, but it looks promising. I think we'll be competitive in the Mega White."
"Our strength is that we have very diverse team. We also have leadership and a lot of dedication to them. They're so self-motivated."

LIVONIA LADYWOOD
Head coach: Larry Wyatt, second season
League affiliation: Catholic League (Central Division)
Last year's overall record: 30-17-2
Titles won last year: Catholic League Central and A-B Division champions
Notable losses to graduation: Jenny Young (All-Area first team), Tracey DeWitt (All-Area honorable mentions), Rebekah Thornton
Leading returnees: Patty Horal, Sr. OH, 5-8; Jenni Gregor, Sr. OH, 6-0; Cameron Kompoltowicz, Sr. MH, 5-10; Jessica Tilson, Sr. MH, 5-11; Kelly Carey, Sr. OH, 5-5; Kelly Predmesky, Sr. OH, 5-5; Erin Bartee, Jr. OH, 5-9 (All-Area honorable mention); Desiree Betts, Jr. OH, 5-4; Carolyn Whalen, Jr. MH, 5-11; Melissa Buckshaw, Jr. setter, 5-5; Megan Lantz, Jr. setter, 5-5
Promising newcomers: Kristen Bachor, Jr. OH, 5-9
Wyatt's '99-00 outlook: "You don't replace Jenny Young. Last year we were a young team, but now we have experience."
"I think we'll be competitive."
"Our two strengths are ball control, defense and balance. We have four future six kids who can put the ball down and keep teams honest."
"We need to sustain a high level of play. It really comes down to our setting."

LIVONIA CLARENCEVILLE
Head coach: Alisha Love, ninth season
League affiliation: Metro Conference
Last year's overall record: 33-14-3
Titles won last year: Metro Conference district champions
Notable losses to graduation: Danielle Sleds (All-Area first team), Kristina Skrela
Leading returnees: Rachael Koerke, Sr. OH, 5-4; Faye Croteau, Soph. MH/OH, 5-8; Nicole Kasparian, Sr. setter/OH, 5-5; Vera Skrela, Jr. OH, 5-6; Marjeta Prekelezaj, Jr. MH, 5-8; Michelle Moore, Jr. def. specialist, 5-4; Ashley Pearson, Jr. OH, 5-5; Sarah McNeilly, Jr. MH, 5-8; Laura Meili, Soph. MH/OH, 5-6
Promising newcomers: Felicia Hernandez, Jr. defensive specialist, 5-4; Jessica Kennedy, Jr. setter, 5-4; Jenny Haappa, Jr. def. specialist, 5-3; Sarah Babcock, Sr. OH, 5-6; Leah Shupardian, Sr. MH, 5-9
Love's '99-00 outlook: "Something we have a lot of this year is height."
"We don't have a lot of height. But we do have a lot of heart."
"We don't have an older team, so I think heart, along with tough serving, will make us competitive in our league again."
"Our leaders will be Koerke, Skrela, Kasparian, Croteau and Pearson."

LUTHERAN WESTLAND
Head coach: Joan Ollinger, fifth season
League affiliation: Metro Conference
Last year's overall record: 18-12-1
Titles won last year: Class C district champions and Metro Conference district champions
Notable losses to graduation: Anna Schwicke (All-Area third team), Stephanie Lynch, Bekah Hoffmeier
Leading returnees: Amanda Salea, Sr. OH, 5-9; Heather Haller, Sr. setter, 5-4; Sarah Marody, Sr. MH, 5-11; Jen Dash, Sr. OH, 5-8; Liz Unger, Sr. def. specialist, 5-6; Rene O'Brien, Sr. setter, 5-2; Anna Rolf, Sr. OH, 5-8
Promising newcomers: Kelly Pruchnik, Jr. OH, 5-9; Kristy Rose, Jr. S, 5-4; Emily Renke, Jr. OH, 5-7; Alicia Martin, Jr. OH, 5-10; Laurie Rush, Jr. OH, 5-7 (transfer from Lakeland)
Ollinger's '99-00 outlook: "I think we're going to be okay this year. One of our goals is to duplicate our success of last season."
"We've got some good hitters. Our new players are eager to learn."
"Put all of that together and I think things will turn out pretty well."

HURON VALLEY LUTHERAN
Head coach: Kris Springstroh, first season
League affiliation: Michigan Independent Athletic Conference
Last year's overall record: 11-10
Notable losses to graduation: Anna DeStefano, Stephanie Graves, Katie Grandon
Leading returnees: Stacie Graves, Sr. setter, 5-4; Rachel Zahn, Jr. OH, 5-7; Germaine Grossnik, Sr. OH, 5-9; Jessica Whitaker, Sr. OH, 5-8; Danielle Joly, Sr. utility, 5-4
Promising newcomers: Samantha Pellegrino, Jr. UT, 5-5; Laurer Merier, Jr. OH, 5-8
Springstroh's '99-00 outlook: "We've got a good core of upper class leadership."
"They should be able to improve on last season, when they finished second. They performed really well in the end and good fundamental

Stevenson holds off Churchill bid

Kharbush MVP as Spartans win Livonia meet

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.hometown.com

Livonia Stevenson will keep the city wrestling trophy for another year, but the Spartans had to earn every point in their championship quest Monday night.

Host Stevenson, winning six weight classes, held off a strong challenge from Churchill to win the coveted team title, 169 1/2 to 152. Livonia Clarenceville was third with 118 1/2, while Franklin took fourth with 106.

Among the individual champions for the Spartans were defending 103-pound state champion Josh Gunterman (112), Bill Bullock (119), Zack Yaffai (130), Mike Falzon (152), tournament MVP Imad Kharbush (171) and John MacFarland (189).

"Churchill is doing a nice job with their program," Stevenson first-year coach Joel Smith said. "They have a nice group of freshmen."

"And Clarenceville was tough in the upper weights, Franklin, with their new coach, Tony Venturini, is also doing some nice things. Tony brings a lot of skill and some good technique. I look for them to turn things around."

Bullock, a sophomore, was coming off a sixth-place finish in the Garden City Invitational. He held off Churchill's Steve Lenhardt in the finals, 15-10.

"Billy is really starting to blossom," Smith said. "Last year he wrestled varsity about 50 percent of the time and took some lumps.

"That was a key weight class for us."

Kharbush, who won the 160 division Saturday at Garden City, scored an impressive 9-0 over a formidable opponent, Franklin's Eric Toska.

"Imad is really hungry," Smith said. "He's tougher on himself than the coaches at times. Sometimes too tough on himself, but he's an extremely hard-working kid."

Churchill went without its top performer, 152-pounder Mike Carter, who was 33-1 a year ago. Carter was held out for precautionary reasons after injuring his shoulder in a 7-4 championship win Saturday over Falzon at Garden City.

"He wanted to wrestle, but I didn't want him to get hurt and not be there the rest of the season," Altounian said.

Churchill individual winners included Kyle Malo (103), Lev Mergian (135), Steve Abar (145) and Bryan Jones (160). Abar's father Bob won a city title in 1972.

"I was proud of the way our young kids came through," Altounian said. "We stuck (pinned) quite a bit early and that kept us close. We pretty much did what we thought. It was also a great effort by Stevenson."

The Chargers, who have eight underclassmen (grades 9-10 in the starting lineup, will only get better as the season goes on.

"If they stuck together this will be a tough bunch of kids," Altounian said. "The kids are not selfish. They put in the time. On Sunday, 25 of our 28 kids showed up and ran voluntarily to get ready for this."

Clarenceville individual winners included heavyweight Josh Rose and 140-pounder George Gostias.

"Josh has really improved and George is a three-year varsity wrestler," Clarenceville first-year coach Clint Kraft said. "The success of our team depends on the young guys and how much they learn. We have a long ways to go, but we hope to improve every single match throughout the year."

Franklin came away with one individual title from an unexpected source.

John Mervyn, who recently transferred from Plymouth Salem, won his final against Churchill's Nick Smith with a pin in 54 seconds.

Mervyn was 45-7 last year at Salem, finishing seventh in the 112-pound class (Division I). He is 121-27 in his career.

"John brings leadership to the team," Franklin first-year coach Tony Venturini said. "I know of him. He's an excellent wrestler with excellent technique."

"The rest of our kids basically did what I expected. We have a few bumps and bruises and we're still developing as a team."

Observer's best tops in state

State runner-up Farmington Hills Mercy again dominates the All-Observer girls swimming and diving team along with another area power, Livonia Stevenson, which finished eighth in the state.

Mercy has all three first-team relays, Stevenson three second-place teams. Those two schools also filled 12 of the 19 individual positions.

The 1999 All-Observer team serves as a farewell to several seniors who were four-year stand-outs — Mercy's Elizabeth Posvar, Kelly Carlin and Erin Downs, Stevenson's Katy Ballantine and Farmington Harrison's Lindsay Fetters.

All four are repeat, first-team selections along with Mercy's Amy McCullough and North Farmington's Lindsay McErlean.

Mercy's Elizabeth MacDonald and Kristin Loidas, Stevenson's Katie Clark and Livonia Ladywood's Christina Mocerri were second-team swimmers a year ago.

Jim Downs, who guided Mercy to a second-place finish in the Class A state finals, was named Coach of the Year for the second year in a row.

The Marlins also won their third consecutive Oakland County championship and yet another Catholic League title.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

200 medley relay, Mercy (Amy McCullough, Elizabeth Garlow, Erin Downs, Elizabeth Posvar): The Marlins won the state championship with a record time of 1:46.95, breaking the record of 1:47.23 by the 1992 Birmingham Seaholm team.

With Kelly Carlin on the team in place of Garlow, Mercy won the Oakland County and Catholic League titles, too. The Marlins set a league record of 1:52.41.

Kelly Carlin, 200 freestyle, Mercy: Carlin finished seventh in the state in the 200 free while swimming her best time (1:55.08). She also was fifth in the state in the 100 free (53.22).

Carlin is the Oakland County champion in the 100 free and was third in the backstroke. She is the Catholic League champion in the 50 free and helped the Marlins set a league record in winning the 400 free relay.

"Kelly was a senior co-captain who had a great work ethic for four years," coach Jim Downs said. "She earned eight all-state honors, and she's a six-time All-America with one more pending."

Lindsay Fetters, 200 IM, Harrison: Fetters was all-state three times in the IM and four times in the breaststroke. In this year's state meet, she placed fourth in the IM and had the area's best time (2:08.26). She was fifth in the breaststroke, accounting for Harrison's 15th place team finish.

Fetters, who will swim at Michigan State University, is the Oakland County champion in the breaststroke. She was WLA A champion twice in the IM and three times in the breaststroke. Fetters holds three individual school records and had a part in all three school-record relay teams.

"Lindsay is focused and shows good leadership qualities in all aspects of her life," coach Ross Bandy said. "She's an outstanding student and a genuine quality person."

Amy McCullough, 500 freestyle, Mercy: McCullough was second in the state in the 500 free (24:01) and third in the 500 free (4:57.51).

She set a Catholic League record in winning the 200 free and also was first in the 500 free. McCullough won both events in the MISCA and Oakland County meets, too. She has been all-state in four events.

"As a junior, Amy qualified in all open events except the breaststroke and estab-

ALL-AREA SECOND TEAM

Angela Smetkosky, 100 butterfly, Churchill: Smetkosky placed 58th in the state in the 100 butterfly with a time of 1:45.41.

Monica Glowki, 80 freestyle, Plymouth Salem: Glowki placed 59th in the state in the 80 freestyle with a time of 1:16.55.

Lindsay Doin, 100 breaststroke, Stevenson: Doin placed 60th in the state in the 100 breaststroke with a time of 1:39.47.

She was a state qualifier in the 200 IM (2:15.32) and 100 backstroke (1:01.83) where she placed second and third, respectively, in the Catholic League meet.

Mocerri also had season best of 55.35 in the 100 freestyle and 5:32.0 in the 500 freestyle.

"Christina showed tremendous spirit this season," Ladywood coach Doug Shade said. "She made a remarkable recovery fighting through her injury."

Monica Glowki, 80 freestyle, Ply. Salem: A sophomore, Glowki nosed out Stevenson's Jessica Makowski for second place at the WLA A finals in the 50 free, 25.37 to 25.41. It earned Glowki a state qualifying berth in the 50.

In the WLA A's 100 free final, it was Glowki who was edged, placing second to Northville's Stephanie Sabo, 55.96 to 56.01.

Michelle Kain, diving, Stevenson: A consistent performer all year long, the junior finished fourth in the WLA A meet (310.80 points for 12 dives) and 13th at the regional, just missing a state qualifying berth by one place.

Katie Clark, 100 butterfly, Stevenson: For the first time in four seasons Clark enjoyed an injury free year and she showed what she could accomplish by placing first in the WLA A meet and fifth in Class A (58.51).

Clark was named MVP of the Stevenson swim team.

Jeni Blacklock, 100 freestyle, Mercy: Blacklock had the fifth-best time in the 100 free (55.21) after Mercy teammates Posvar, Carlin, McCullough and MacDonald and one of the area's best in the 50 free as well (25.02). She was second in the 50 free in the Oakland County meet.

"She gave us her best efforts of the season at the state meet with a great leadoff leg in the 200 free relay, setting us up for sixth place, all state and All-America consideration," Downs said.

Angela Smetkosky, 500 freestyle, Churchill: The senior took eighth place at the state Class A meet (5:07.65) after setting school records at the WLA A meet in both the 200 freestyle (1:57.05) and 500 freestyle (5:08.88).

Smetkosky was named Churchill's team MVP.

The Churchill captain is a three-year Scholar-Athlete award winner.

"Angela has high goals," Churchill coach Ken Stark said. "She is one of the hardest working and fastest swimmers in Churchill history."

"She is getting stronger and faster and I can't wait to see her accomplishments in college swimming. She has been a good example to her teammates. She has been a pleasure to coach."

200 freestyle relay, Stevenson (Jessica Makowski, Michele Aristeo, Katie Clark, Amanda Polkwoski): Despite swimming only twice together as a group this season, early in the year and at the state meet, this Stevenson foursome managed to post Observeland's second best time at 1:42.94. Three members of the group are seniors with the exception of Aristeo, who is just a freshman.

Lindsay Doin, 100 backstroke, Stevenson: The junior was steady all season in the backstroke with a personal best of 1:01.59, which was good enough for a second place finish in the WLA A meet.

She also led off Stevenson's third place 200 medley relay team.

Karl Foust, 100 backstroke, Ply. Salem: Foust, a junior, finished fourth at the WLA A finals in the 100 back, which was one of the fastest events at the meet. The top four placers all bettered the state qualifying standard. Foust, who had qualified earlier in the season at 1:01.59, was fourth in 1:02.36.

At state, Foust placed 18th in the 100 back in 1:01.66. At the WLA A finals, she also took an 11th in the 200 IM (2:25.11).

Elizabeth Garlow, 100 breaststroke, Mercy: Garlow, as a freshman in her first state meet, was sixth in the breaststroke with her best time (1:07.32), which received All-America consideration. She is the Catholic League champion and was second in Oakland County.

"She brought the crowd to its feet at the state finals with a 30.02 split in the breaststroke in the medley relay on the way to a state record," Downs said. "Ms. Pac Man is a competitor head-to-toe. Her future is so bright she needs shades."

400 freestyle relay, Stevenson (Katie Clark, Jessica Makowski, Michele Aristeo and Andrea Hurn): The foursome were second to only Mercy in the area with a time of 3:42.45. They also earned a 12th place in the state Class A finals with a time of 3:44.03.

"This is another relay that loses two seniors, and we're going to have to ask our underclassmen to step up next year," Downs said.

RING IN THE NEW YEAR Live & Loud

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@ee.homecomm.net

This isn't just any New Year approaching, it's the New Year 2000, the mark of the next millennium. Whether that pesky Y2K bug has you concerned or not, this year's festivities are sure to be memorable for years to come. That makes planning an awfully big responsibility.

If the thought of making New Year's Eve or New Year's Day a celebration worthy of its place in history gets you down, check out some of these options, they're sure to make it an unforgettable event:

Go ahead, sing along
If your Angel is a centerfold, take her to see J. Geil's Band with The Romantics as they rock in the new year singing some old favorites — 8:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 31 at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

Tickets range from $19.99 to $99.50, and include parking. Children 18 and under will be admitted free with adults. Charge tickets by phone at (248) 645-6666 or on the Web at www.ticketmaster.com.

■ Metallica hits Motown hard and heavy with very special guests — and infamous Michigan boys — Ted Nugent and Kid Rock for New Year's Eve. "Nothing Else Matters" for the millennium for Metallica fans. And how often can you spend an evening with a Michigan hunter and a self-proclaimed "Cowboy?" This is one to check out, but hurry — tickets are going fast — 4 p.m. Friday, Dec. 31 at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Tickets $29.50-$99.50. Call (248) 645-6666 or check the Web at www.ticketmaster.com

■ Join everybody's favorite Canadian alternative music-makers, the Barenaked Ladies as they perform mega-hits like "One Week" and "Jane" live. The energetic show also brings special guest Tal Bachman into view. Bachman is best-known for his song "She's So High" — 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 1 at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

Tickets $50 or $35. Charge by phone at (248) 645-6666 or on the Web at www.ticketmaster.com.

■ The O'Jays and The Whispers bring along special guest Gerald Levert to mark the millennium with legendary style. The O'Jays are known as one of the most powerful vocal groups of the 1970s. They had No. 1 R&B singles from 1972 to 1978, including "Love Train" (1973), "Give the People What They Want" (1975), and "Darlin' Darlin' Baby" (1976). The Whispers are called "soul survivors," known for slow jams like "Heaven" — 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 31 at the Fox Theatre in Detroit.

Tickets are $75 or $62.50. Call (248) 645-6666 or on the Web at www.ticketmaster.com.

■ Do it up local-style with Howling Diablos and Face performing for a few hundred of their closest friends. Bound to sell out like the Diablos usually do at Ferndale's Magic Bag. The band's vocalist, Tino said he's looking forward to the bash, Tino said the band chose the best possible venue for the millennium: "That's a theater right in the 'hood for us."

"They let us do our thing," he said. This New Year's the Diablos plan to "party hearty." "We're just going to get outta hand," promised Tino. If you can't afford to go to Times Square, you've got a personal invite from Tino to join the Diablos and witness the energetic celebration first-hand. Party-goers must be 21 and over — 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 31 at The Magic Bag, 22920 Woodward Avenue, Ferndale.

Tickets are a $20 bargain to start off the new year.

■ Some might say the Twisting Tarantulas are one of the best bands in the Metro area. Peter

The O'Jays
Poulos of Karl's Cabin in Plymouth is one of those people. He booked the Tarantulas, along with the Chef Chris Blues Band, to perform at a show for the millennium — 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 31 at Karl's Cabin, 9779 N. Territorial Road, Plymouth.

Tickets are $20 in advance or $25 at door. Call (734) 455-8450.

Here's the deal, the Michigan Gaming Commission was expected to vote on and approve a gaming license for the new $180 million temporary MotorCity Casino on Tuesday. If all goes according to schedule, the casino will be open by the time you read this article.

Save your nickels and quarters and get ready to bring home some bread, and we're not talking "Wonder."

The former home of Wonder Bread has been transformed into a glamorous casino. David Codd of Livonia, one of the card dealers, believes it's going to be the best casino in Detroit.

"Our company vision is fun," said Codd, a Vietnam veteran who learned about the job opportunity after reading an ad in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. "Win or lose, the idea is to have fun."

For Codd, being a card dealer is the perfect job. "I've loved to play cards all my life, but I hate to gamble. This is ideal," he said.

Applying for a job at the casino was a gamble for Michael Russell of Rochester Hills, a part-time instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, and one of 58 certified master chefs in the U.S.

"I sent my resume out, but I didn't think I'd qualify," said Russell who has been a chef for more than 38 years and worked at the Detroit Yacht Club, Travis Pointe Country Club (Ann Arbor), the Skyline Club (Southfield), the Kingsley Inn (Bloomfield Hills) and the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club. "I went from supervising a staff of 17 to 305. It's a great opportunity to do a lot. I love training and teaching people. The down side is I don't get to cook a lot, but I hope to once things get going. I'm very organized, we're all very down to earth, and we're all cooks. I have drawers full of ideas and books full of stuff I always wanted to do; now I can. My staff is great, they're so hungry for knowledge."

Are you game?: The main gaming pit on the second floor of the MotorCity Casino features a range of table games under its towering ceiling. Craps, blackjack, roulette and pai gow poker entertain the gamer with a wide variety of slots waiting in the wings.

Covering a space of approximately 20 acres bound by Grand River and the Lodge service drive, Trumbull and on the west, the Motor City Casino is not far from Tiger Stadium.

Except for Carl's Chophouse there's not a whole lot happening in this area. Continental Baking Co., which owned the former Wonder Bread factory, closed the 75-year-old facility on July 20, 1985.

MotorCity Casino is a joint venture between the Mandalay Resort Group, formerly Circus Circus Enterprises, and 114 local investors.

Terry Dougall of Dougall Design of California, Klai-Jupa of Las Vegas and BEI Associates of Detroit turned the former factory into a glamorous gaming area they describe as having a "sense of Las Vegas with a Detroit twist."

Architects visited homes in Detroit's New Center area to get ideas. Slot machine signage was custom designed out of old gears valves, gauges and other parts found in attics and basements. Signs beckons gamblers to try their luck "Detroit Dollars $1," "Fabulous Fins $5." Slot machines range from 5 cents to $100.

This casino is very open; the ceilings on the second floor are 26 feet high. MotorCity Casino is handicap accessible, and no smoking is allowed on the third floor. On the fourth floor, high rollers can take a rest from gambling in their very own lounge where they're served by butlers. Equipment such as the continuous shuffling machines at gambling tables are state-of-the-art.

Edward Avila of Dougall Design worked on converting the factory into a casino.

"We've done well with what we had to work with," he said. Artists in California did the Detroit themed murals, which include a photo of Henry Ford. Different patterns of carpeting and motifs define gaming areas.

Avila described the fourth floor as being very elegant and upscale. The third floor has a 1950s feel. The second floor is very "Motor City," with an automotive theme, and the first floor is more industrial. Copper is predominantly used on the first floor, gold on the second, and their third floor is a mixture of both.

"We want you to walk in and be surprised at every turn," said Avila.

When you visit the MotorCity Casino, you might want to consider signing up for a free Player's Card. The credit-card-like device plugs into slot machines and into the rail at gambling tables. The card tracks how long you play and where you're playing. As you play, you earn "comps" such as tickets to a concert, sporting event, or dinner.

If you visit the Motor City Casino, let me know what you thought about it. Send me an e-mail, fax (734) 591-7279, or note with your comments, attention: Keely Wygonik, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150.

Country music's Joseph James poised for stardom

STEPHANIE A. CASOLA

In Europe he's featured along side country mega-stars like Shania Twain and Faith Hill.

He gets e-mail messages from all over the world requesting autographed pictures and CDs. He's even interviewed the likes of Garth Brooks on his own radio show.

And yet country singer-songwriter Joseph James lives a quiet, unassuming life amid the quaint charm of Rochester Hills — just as he has for the past 21 years.

Born Joseph James Giordano, he took to singing at age 5, around a campfire at his grandmother's cottage. He picked up the guitar just four years later and prepared his solo act in the years that followed.

The Harper Woods native had a natural affinity for making music. Some of his favorite musicians growing up ran the gamut from Johnny Cash to James Taylor, but James claims he's remained a little bit country all along.

"(Country music) is music for people, about people," said James. "It tells a story about people. Also, there is a realness about country music and I think it'll always continue to be the everyday person's music."

His latest single "One Track Mind" has topped European record charts since its release last July. Poring over letters, e-mails and playlists from all over the country and the globe, he blushes a bit when speaking about his burgeoning success.

"I had the best musicians in Nashville," he said of those who played on his new, self-titled album. "The list is a who's who in country music."

That list includes bassist Mike Chapman and drummer Terry McMillian who worked with Garth Brooks. They're both part of James' self-proclaimed "dream team."

While he'd had his fill of playing the local club scene years ago with his former band Cold Water, James hasn't lost a bit of passion toward live performance. "What I like about (performing) is the tension release," said James, sitting in his comfortable Rochester Hills office. "I really love interacting with people. I'm a people person."

Taking it to the next level

He's simply trying to take his music to the next level. That means signing to a record label. While the buzz is strong in Nashville, no deals have been made just yet.

But James said the outlook is good. With so many women gaining accolades in country music, there's room for more male performers in the genre. If someone has to follow in the golden footsteps of the Dixie Chicks, James is ready and waiting.

Currently working on a new release early in 2000, James seems poised for success. "One Track Mind" has all the elements of a hit — it's a catchy, cross-over country song with a universal theme, attempting to get back a lost love. It doesn't get more country than that.

While James has a voice for song and a heart for touching lyrics, he's also been blessed with a head for business.

'The Green Mile' long, but awe-inspiring

BY JON KATZ
SPECIAL WRITER

There are two possible reasons why movie audiences leave a theater in total silence. They could be numbed by the movie's plot. Or, they could be numbed by the movie's length. "The Green Mile" will numb you both ways. The three-hour, seven-minute adaptation of Stephen King's serialized novel must have film editors clawing over each other for the chance to slice it to a more marketable 120-140 minutes. Scenes are overly long to the point of making you want to yell "cut" right there in the dark. Other scenes could have been lost entirely and not have been missed. It often seems like the projectionist got a rough edit by mistake. But on to better things: The story is undeniably awe-inspiring. A 7-foot black man condemned to death who can heal the sick and raise the dead? Merry Christmas. Speaking of which, the gentle giant's character name is John Coffey, and the significance of his initials hasn't been lost on anyone either. "Ole Sparky" is what they call the electric chair in Louisiana's Cold Mountain Penitentiary. It's 1935, and the eight-celled Death

Row is more like an assembly line to the hereafter. Tom Hanks is Paul Edgecomb, head guard of the Green Mile, so-named for the lime-colored linoleum that leads to Sparky's door. He is desensitized by the routine of execution, although not insensitive to the inmates themselves. And then he meets big John. Convicted of brutally raping and murdering two young girls, the new prisoner—as mild as he is massive—requests only that a light be left on. "Ah gits skeerd of the dark sometimes, Boss," he explains softly. This is the first of dozens of extreme close-ups on actor Michael Clarke Duncan ("Armageddon"). Be assured you will grow very fond of his sad, sweaty face while Edgecomb grows to question his guilt. More questions about John surface when it becomes apparent that he possesses spiritual, messianic powers. He cures Edgecomb's painful urinary infection with a touch and literally sucks a tumor out of the warden's wife's brain. Looking up at the stars, he points out the constellation Cassiopeia as if he knows the lady personally. This certainly is no murderer, despite his conviction. But there are courts and then there is a Higher Court, and each has pronounced a sentence that must be carried out to its own purposes. Hanks is low-key as Edgecomb, and it is fair to wonder how this nice guy fell into such a dead-end job, even in the Depression. But only his character could care about as well as guard men like these, and Hanks is wonderful to watch as always. Fellow guards David Morse, Barry Pepper and Jeffrey DeMunn are a tight team of competent actors. Veteran Dabbs Greer, whom you've seen in thousands of bit parts, gets a meatier turn here as the old Paul Edgecomb, our narrator.

The real villains of "The Green Mile" can add spotlight stealing to their crimes. Sam Rockwell is over-the-top as psychotic mass-murderer "Wild Bill" Wharton, who makes sport out of taunting ultra-sadistic guard Percy Wetmore (Doug Hutchison). Needless to say, justice is meted out to both of them in that long third hour. Written and directed by Frank Darabont (who did the same for "The Shawshank Redemption," another King prison tale), "The Green Mile" takes a strong stomach to handle. There are graphic electrocutions, eerie special effects and a curious urination fixation. Ultimately the film belongs to mountainous Michael Clarke Duncan. Surrounded by death and despair, he fills the screen with life and hope.

Clarke Duncan. Surrounded by death and despair, he fills the screen with life and hope.

Stay Tuned...

When is a bar more than just a bar? When it aims for a place in Detroit history. The Attie Bar in Hamtramck, known for its 70-year history of Detroit blues, is extending into a recording studio and record label project which will be known as the Hank Ford Blues Project. The project will seek to provide emergency funds for blues musicians in need, education on the blues, and other activities which will be overseen by a board of directors from the Detroit blues community. Hamtramck's own The Butler Twins became the first act recorded on this new label, from their Nov. 27 performance at the Attie Bar. Clarence and Curtis Butler also serve as president and vice president on the board. Joe Van Baal, co-owner of the Attie Bar, is the project director and Kari Jordan is the secretary and treasurer for this project. If names like Lee Alan, Tom Clay and Mickey Shorr ring a bell, you must be conjuring up memories of Detroit Radio. Those nostalgic thoughts are brought back to life in "Rockin' Down the Dial: The Detroit Sound of Radio," a new book by Royal Oak native and former deejay David Carson. Published by Momentum Books, Ltd., in Troy, the book offers 238 pages chronicling radio history in the Motor City, including behind the scenes stories of the record payola scandal that received national attention. It comes complete with a Radio Roundup reference for younger generations — who might've grown up on Casey Kasem. Buy it for $24.95 at your local bookstore, or call the publisher for a copy at (800) 758-1878. — STEPHANIE ANGELYN CAROLA

"Someone once said don't put your eggs in one basket," said James, who graduated from Wayne-State University with a degree in finance and economics. When he's not crooning country tunes, James is hard at work as president of Joseph James Financial Services, Inc. in Rochester Hills.

He doesn't have trouble balancing his financial business with his music. Over the years he's become so well-established that his business has allowed him to pursue his dreams in the music industry. It's also afforded him the business sense so crucial to survival in the industry.

His recipe for success? Make music as good as you can, take a realistic look at your talents, and get a strong understanding of the business side. While the business itself can force an artist to compromise some creativity and artistic freedom, he said, it also has the potential to reach a lot of people and get your music heard.

Taking it to heart

He's seen the effects of the industry already. James wrote a song called "Little Joshua." It detailed the story of a 7-year-old boy who was tragically murdered, and was a story that truly touched the sensitive songwriter. But he knew it wasn't exactly a radio-ready hit.

"I felt so moved by the story when I recorded it," said James. "I thought by talking about it, maybe it won't happen again."

But using his business sense, James decided to release "One Track Mind" instead. He holds "Little Joshua" dear, and hopes to record it on an album or perform it live in the future.

James, who primarily writes his own lyrics and music, is also a man who fulfills his promises. As a young guitar player taking lessons at Novak's Music store, he declared if he ever had the chance he would someday record his own version of "Nice to be with you," which was a hit in 1972 for Detroit's Jim Gold and his band, The Gallery.

James will likely release his own country version of "Nice to be with you" as his next single. A few words of advice, county music fans — keep an eye out Joseph James.
