Man charged in child pornography case

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland man, accused of having a hidden room where he kept child pornography, was arraigned Friday on multiple charges of having sex with a 13-year-old boy.

Daniel Eric Greene, 39, was jailed on a $1 million bond for allegations he had sex with the boy and had him pose for pornographic videos, police Lt. James Ridener said.

The charges against Greene stem from incidents that police say happened from January 2002 through

Greene

December 2005 at Greene's then-residence, in the 31000 block of Avondale near Merriman.

Greene now lives in the Palmer-Hambleton area east of Wayne Road, where police executed a search warrant on Thursday morning and confiscated hundreds of pornographic materials, Ridener confirmed.

The victim was 13 at the time, but he is now in his late teens and living in the Grand Rapids area. He mentioned the incidents during a counseling session, leading to a tip to Westland police, Ridener said.

An investigation is continuing, and parents whose children had contact with Greene are asked to call Westland police at (734) 722-9600.

Greene was arraigned Friday by Westland 18th District Magistrate Donald Vandersloot on five counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct involving the boy, one count of second-degree CSC, two counts of child sexual abusive activity, one count of being a felon with a firearm, and one count of felony firearms.

Police found a gun at Greene's residence, but it wasn't used against the boy, Ridener said.

Greene is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Thursday in district court, and a not-guilty plea has been entered for him.

Police searched Greene's home on Thursday morning while he was away, confiscating video tapes, magazines, computer zip disks and CD-ROMs, Ridener said. He is accused of creating some materials with the 13-year-old boy.

Greene is a prior sex offender who had received probation, although official didn't immediately have details of the earlier case.

While searching Greene's house, police found a hidden door inside a closet that opened into a room where he kept pornographic materials, Ridener said.

"It just looked like the closet wall," Ridener said, referring to the hidden door.

Police also seized computers from Greene. They arrested him when he came home while they were still at his residence.

SMART, Nankin Transit mark milestone

10-year partnership is good for senior, handicapped riders

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

A decade-long partnership providing rides to local senior citizens and handicapped residents was cause for celebration last week.

After the 1995 Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation millage was approved, SMART joined forces with the Nankin Transit Authority for a community partnership program.

"Looking at it, the best thing for seniors and the handicapped was to provide transportation services locally," said Ron Ristau, SMART director of service development. "This was a way to provide millage back to the community."

At the same time, partnering with SMART, which covers 95 percent of costs for vehicles and provides free vehicle maintenance, allows local organizations, such as Nankin Transit, to benefit from economy of scale.

"Nankin Transit is our biggest and best community partnership. Of 3,000 rides

The SMART millage helped stabilize funding for Nankin Transit which provides rides from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays.

provided daily, 350 are here," said Ristau, who noted Nankin Transit also has the largest fleet with 12 buses in use each day.

In operation since 1970s, Nankin Transit serves Garden City, Westland, Wayne and Inkster. The SMART millage helped stabilize funding for Nankin Transit which provides rides from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays.

Senior citizen and handicapped residents utilize the transportation for medical appointments, banking, shopping, restaurants and movies.

Part of the program included Ristau turning over the keys for a new bus - the first of 12 Nankin Transit will be receiving.

"I accept the keys for all the cities of Nankin Transit. This is a service that is sorely needed," said Nankin Transit Director Richard Fernandez. "I couldn't do it myself. The drivers are ambassadors for Nankin Transit."

Nankin Transit board members attended along with local officials, including Garden City Mayor Jaylee Lynch, Westland Mayor and SMART board member Sandra Cicirelli and Inkster Councilwoman Wanda Harris Foster.

"We are really happy about the service. I talk to a lot of seniors and they always comment about the drivers - how polite they are. I'd like to give kudos for that," said Foster. "We look forward to continuing with Nankin Transit in the future."

Nankin Transit requires ride reservations one day in advance or two days notice for wheelchair users or medical appointments, including prescription pickup. Make reservations 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. weekdays by calling (734) 729-2710.

Police charge teen with hacking into computer network

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

An 18-year-old student is accused of hacking into the Wayne-Westland school district's computer network - crashing 5,000 computers in 29 buildings and forcing thousands of dollars in repairs, police said.

Wayne-Westland school officials confirmed "dozens" of computer system crashes between March 6 and May 8, but they don't believe the hacker obtained any personal or sensitive information, police Sgt. David Heater said.

"It appears to me that he did this just to sort of show that he could," Heater said.

David Randall, a Belleville teen who takes computer classes at the William D. Ford Career Technical Center, faces a hearing Thursday in Westland District Court on a charge of having unauthorized access to a computer.

If convicted, he could face penalties ranging up to five years in prison. Moreover, he could face disciplinary action by Wayne-Westland school officials, and his graduation could be threatened, Heater said.

"He's denying any of this," the detective said. "He's sticking to his guns that he didn't do any of this."

Peer has June 7 hearing date on charges in fatal accident

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland teenager, accused of fleeing the scene of a fatal accident while on spring break in Florida, faces a June 7 pretrial hearing in Panama City Beach.

Jeremy Peer, 18, faces the hearing after a not-guilty plea was entered for him Thursday in the Bay County Courthouse.

Peer, who has returned to his Livonia Franklin High School classes after his parents secured his release from jail, didn't have to appear in the Florida court when the not-guilty plea was entered, according to state attorney's office spokesman Joe Grammer.

Peer is accused of fleeing the scene after driving off a Florida road on April 17 and hitting a

Peer

Pennsylvania couple as they walked along the roadside, Panama City Beach Deputy Chief David Humphreys has said.

Colleen Martin, 33, was killed. Her husband, Montey, was injured.

Peer is accused of fleeing the accident, which happened about 10 p.m., but he was arrested several hours later after a motel clerk saw the damaged Jeep Commander and notified police, Humphreys has said.

As of Friday, Panama City Beach police still hadn't received a toxicology report that will show whether Peer had been drinking or using drugs.

From the time of the accident, it could take 12 weeks or longer to receive the results, police officials have said.

Peer - a star athlete involved in football, basketball and track - returned to school one week after the accident. His parents made arrangements with a surety company for his release from jail on bonds totaling $175,000.

On Friday, his mother, Janet Peer, said the family has been advised not to talk with the press about the case. In April, she had told the Observer that the family was asking for prayers for her son and for the Martin family.

Peer is charged with leaving the scene of an accident involving a death and with leaving the scene of an accident involving an injury. If convicted, he could face penalties ranging up to 15 years in prison.

CORRECTIONS

To correct a recent story on the mental health board in the Observer, the Wayne County Mental Health Board has 12 members. The mayor of Detroit appoints six members. He is not required to receive Detroit City Council approval for his selections. The Wayne County executive appoints six members, with the approval of the county commission. Teresa Blossom is quoted as saying legislation introduced two years ago was punitive. On Monday, she said she was referring instead to current legislation which could cost the county as much as $50 million if an independent authority isn't created by the county commission.

Council OKs Cooper school rezoning, preliminary plan

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

In a vote that ended a 15-year stalemate, the Westland City Council has approved a rezoning and preliminary plan to redevelop the contaminated Cooper School site.

"I think this is the first time we've gotten this far," Mayor Sandra Cicirelli said Thursday, three days after the council cast its long-awaited votes. "I think this is really a milestone for the site."

Other critical steps remain before developers will move ahead with building four medical office buildings and senior citizen housing on the site, on Ann Arbor Trail east of Middlebelt.

For one, plans to haul away 45,000 cubic yards of soil to a landfill will require further review by state officials. But, developers hope to get the work done while students are on summer break at the newer Cooper School, on the north side of Ann Arbor Trail.

On Monday, the seven-member City Council voted unanimously to rezone the 37-acre site from townhouse residential to a planned unit development. Essentially, that clears a hurdle allowing developers to build four single-story, 12,350-square-foot medical office buildings and a four-story, 136-unit independent living facility for seniors.

The council also supported a separate preliminary plan for redeveloping the Livonia Public Schools property, which was fenced off in 1991 amid concerns for student safety.

"This is definitely significant," Cicirelli said. "It's the culmination of many years and a lot of hard work."

Some viewed the council's votes as particularly significant because they were unanimous, drawing support from long-time Cooper site watchdog and Councilwoman Cheryl Graunstadt.

"This is a really important vote for me," she said. "It's not just about developing something that was a thorn in our side."

Graunstadt commended developers for revising earlier plans and making them more palatable, although she cautioned that she will continue to carefully weigh each step in the process before giving her support.

Developer Frank Jonna indicated that, barring any unknown obstacles, the first phase of redevelopment would include two medical office buildings near Ann Arbor Trail.

The second phase would center on two other medical buildings behind those, and the final phase would include the senior housing complex even further back from Ann Arbor Trail.

Jonna conceded that market conditions will dictate how quickly the overall project can be finished.

County gives city Eloise fire truck

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland's historic village will be home to a 1919 Model T fire truck once used on the old Eloise Hospital site at Michigan Avenue and Merriman Road.

The county-owned hospital served as an infirmary and housed psychiatric patients. In its heyday, Eloise served thousands of people.

Wayne County Executive Robert Ficano signed an agreement Monday with Westland Historical Commission Chairwoman Jo Johnson to bring the old fire truck to the city's historic village, on Wayne Road south of Marquette.

"It's just a wonderful thing," Johnson said. "We're very happy to receive this, and we'll take very good care of it."

The fire truck, with its pump mounted on the front of its crankshaft, will be on display along with historic buildings at the village site.

The truck also will be displayed during local parades, said Johnson's husband, Ernie, vice president of Friends of the Westland Historical Museum. Although the Model T still runs, it will be towed or hauled on a flatbed truck to protect it, Ernie Johnson said.

He recalled that a blacksmith shop on the

This 1919 Model T fire truck, used to fight fires on the old Eloise Hospital property, will soon have a new home at the Westland Historic Village Park, on Wayne Road between Marquette and Cherry Hill.

Eloise property burned in 1919 - the year the fire truck was made. Historians haven't yet been able to confirm that the Model T pumper was bought in response to that fire.

Ultimately, the Eloise complex was so large that it had its own fire department, Ernie Johnson said.

It wasn't known this week when the fire truck will be delivered to the historical museum site, which is open to the public 1-4 p.m. Saturdays.

INFORMATION CENTRAL

Hello, You Have Reached the William P. Faust Public Library of Westland ...

Ever since Alexander Graham Bell spoke the infamous words, "Mr. Watson - come here - I want to see you," proper telephone etiquette became an issue.

In honor of National Etiquette Week, May 21-27, the William P. Faust Public Library would like to share some tips for proper usage of the telephone.

Many of the comprehensive etiquette books have chapters devoted entirely to the proper and polite use of the telephone. The library owns books written by etiquette experts, such as Miss Manners and Emily Post, as well as items specifically dealing with telephone etiquette.

Some of these titles include Phone Tactics for Instant Influence by John Truitt, What Do You Tell a Phone?: the Proper and Safe Way to Answer the Door & Telephone (videorecording), Manners on the Telephone by Terri DeGezelle, Great Customer Service on the Telephone by Kristin Anderson, Telephone Skills at Work by Judith E. Fisher, and Powerful Telephone Skills: A Quick and Handy Guide for Any Manager or Business Owner.

Most books and professional organizations agree that the following habits are the best to follow when using the telephone, whether at home or in the office.

Always start a phone conversation by saying "hello" and giving your name.

Make sure of the correct number so as not to risk disturbing strangers.

Make sure that your conversations with busy people are as brief as possible.

Phone calls generally should not be made before 7 a.m. in the morning or after 9:30-10 p.m. at night. Try to avoid mealtimes.

Make business calls well before the close of the office hours.

After dialing a wrong number simply say, "Sorry, wrong number."

All of these ideas translate to the use of the cell phone as well. Just remember, since you can't be seen, what you say and how you say it may be the only impression that you give someone.

The William P. Faust Public Library is open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday-Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Just a reminder: The library will be closed on Sundays beginning May 28 through Sept. 3.

Essential Oils 101: 7 p.m. May 23. Learn about the vital power of plant and flower essences to heal the body. Ilka Handshaw, Aromatherapy Consultant, will help you discover the therapeutic benefits of aromatherapy.

Internet 101: 7 p.m. May 24. For the very beginner. What the Internet is and how to get there.

The library is looking for volunteers to deliver books to our Homebound patrons. Contact the Homebound Coordinator at (734) 326-6123, if you're interested.

Information Central is compiled by Bridget Sturdy, reference librarian, at the William P. Faust Public Library, 6123 Central City Parkway, Westland. For more information, call (734) 326-6123.

Randall attends the Academy for Business and Technology in Melvindale, but he takes special computer courses in Westland.

The computer network crashed each time during the early hours of the school day, affecting classrooms and administrative offices alike, Heater said.

District technology employees, with outside help, managed to get the system running again after several hours.

"They began to get better and faster at responding to it," Heater said. "They began to realize this was a deliberate attack on the system. They ruled out mechanical or technical problems."

District technology employees gradually traced the problem to the career technical center by unhooking computers in certain geographic areas of the district - and then by narrowing their search on a building to building basis.

After they pinpointed the career technical center, workers did some rewiring during spring break week in April so that they could isolate the classroom where the attacks originated, Heater said.

Ultimately, they traced the problem to a specific computer lab, and they confronted 15 students in the room after the last attack occurred on May 8, he said.

All students denied any knowledge of the attacks, but witnesses eventually came forward and pointed blame at the suspect, Heater said.

Police and school officials hope that Randall's arrest will send a strong warning to students that they can get into serious trouble for such offenses.

"Anyone with a criminal mindset can obtain the tools to do this kind of thing from the Internet," Heater said. "It's important to send a message that this is a stupid thing to do, and you can go to prison for this, because it's serious stuff."

Randall was arraigned Wednesday in Westland District Court, and Judge Gail McKnight released him on a $50,000 personal bond. He has no criminal history.

During their investigation, police seized several computers from Randall's residence in Belleville, although authorities believe that all of the hacking occurred from the career technical center.

"It appears that this whole problem came from within the school system's network," Heater said.

On Thursday, Wayne-Westland school officials confirmed that they have a system in place to catch computer hackers - a system that ultimately led them to the career technical center.

School officials also said they don't believe that any sensitive information was obtained during the computer system crashes.

Annual duck march draws attention

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFF WRITER

They call it The March of the Ducks.

Each spring, ducklings hatch in the courtyards around the Village of Redford.

Ducks lead their young across Six Mile Road, where they enter Glenhurst Golf Course in search of water and a suitable habitat.

"Years ago, the ducks started flying into the inside courtyards," said Greg Babb, director of marketing. "Every apartment looks onto a courtyard. It's closed off, so there are no predators."

Each year, the Village of Redford is home to at least one family of ducks, but Babb said this year four families have emerged from courtyards on the residential campus east of Beech Daly Road.

"When the ducks are ready to leave," Babb said, "the mother duck pecks on the door."

That's when Frank "the duck-meister" Allen swings into action.

"The employees all play a part," said Allen, who works in the maintenance department. "They keep me informed. (The ducks) come to the door, and maids or nurses call it to my attention."

Allen opens the door and helps the ducks and ducklings along as they head toward Six Mile Road.

Then, calling in reinforcements like Terry Karawan, Ray Quainance, Bruce Bilbrey and Babb, employees halt traffic as Allen herds the duck and her ducklings safely across the street.

"They waddle along behind him," Babb said.

He refers to Allen as "the leader of the ducks."

Crowds of residents gather to watch the duck march each time it happens - usually in April or May. The ducklings leave the nest just after hatching.

"It's a real sight," Babb said.

When Allen began working at the Village of Redford eight years ago, he often found ducks in the middle of the road. It didn't take long for him to uncover their path.

"Everyone loves to watch the ducks," he said.

Dennis Goetz, director of environmental services, said the shuffle across the residential campus and onto the golf course is "the biggest jaunt they have." It takes at least 20 minutes for their little webbed feet to go the distance, lined up one after the other.

"It's good for the community," Goetz said. "Frank took it upon himself to start this. The whole campus looks forward to it."

As for the ducks? "They know it's a safe haven," Goetz said.

There have been a few bumps in the road, according to Sherry Prokes, marketing operations manager.

Two years ago, a couple of ducklings fell into a sewer, causing the mother duck to squawk persistently.

She said employees had "a regular production trying to get those babies out of the sewer." But they were successful. And it caused Allen to alter the ducks' route.

Prokes said she loves the ducks, and it's sad to see them go.

Babb had a different take on their annual trek.

"Being a retirement community, as the ducks get older they may come back," he said.

These duckling eggs hatched in one of the courtyards around the Village of Redford earlier this spring. The residents eagerly await the arrival of ducklings on the retirement community's campus.

Frank Allen, known as the duck-meister of the Village of Redford, ensures this young family of ducks can cross the road safely as they search for water and a safe habitat.

The pictures are small but they tell a story. I had a lot of them and I was getting tired of looking at them. I decided to sell them. I was surprised at how much I got for them. I had a lot of them and I was getting tired of looking at them. I decided to sell them. I was surprised at how much I got for them.

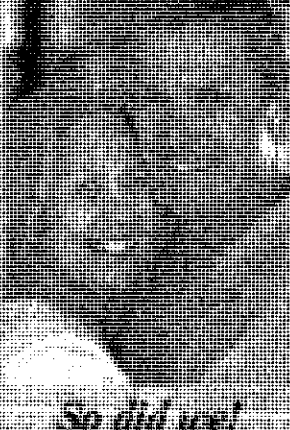

I did it!

I couldn't move my father's jewelry, and I wasn't sure my children were that interested in it. I couldn't figure out how to donate it. I was getting tired of looking at it. I decided to sell it. I was surprised at how much I got for it. I had a lot of it and I was getting tired of looking at it. I decided to sell it. I was surprised at how much I got for it.

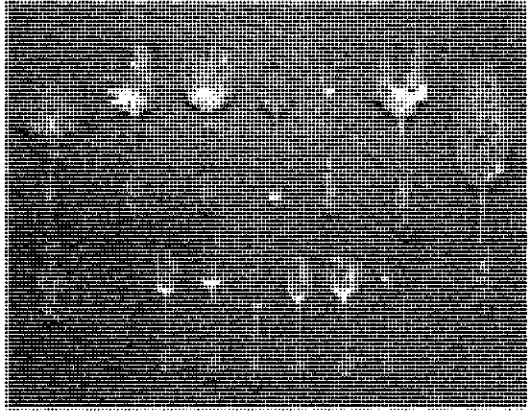

I did it too!

After my wife died, I went through her jewelry, and found silver and watches. I offered them to my children and decided to sell the rest. The consultants sorted through everything and found that many items were more valuable than I thought. Now I have some extra cash for myself and to help with my grandchild's tuition.

So did we!

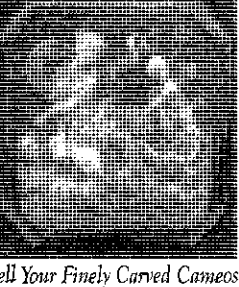

We were staying in a another home when we had our home. We were ready to sell most of our old oil paintings, silver, jewelry and the rest of our personal and collectible items. We were very grateful to be able to sell it all at one time, in one place and in the comfort of a reputable establishment. It was a great experience. Mental health consumers should be the top priority

On Wednesday, speaker after speaker came forward to support the creation of an independent Detroit Wayne County Mental Health Authority.

County Commissioner Phil Cavanagh brought the second of three public hearings by the Wayne County Commission Task Force on Mental Health to the Livonia Civic Center.

The Task Force is getting public response to creating an independent authority in the hopes of preventing the state Legislature from cutting anywhere from $30 million (Senate bill) to $50 million (House bill) in state and federal funding for the county's Mental Health Agency.

Cavanagh expects the commission to move forward with an authority.

Task Force members Laura Cox, Bernard Parker and Moe Blackwell attended the hearing.

County Executive Robert Ficano is opposed to an independent authority and favors changing the composition of the current Mental Health Board.

Currently the county Mental Health Board has 12 members, six appointed by the mayor of Detroit and six by the county executive (with approval of the commission).

Ficano wants the county to have an extra seat on the board and final authority over the operations of the Detroit Wayne County Mental Health Agency. He argues that the county puts up matching funding and has fiduciary responsibility.

Meanwhile, "transitional executive director" Richard Visingardi is on "administrative leave" until his contract runs out in June following a public disagreement with Ficano about how much money is at stake because the county failed to spend state and federal monies. That figure runs as high as $228 million to as low as $8 million.

As several speakers mentioned, the director's position has been a revolving door with eight directors in 10 years under Ficano and former County Executive Edward McNamara.

The two sides in this political debate were represented by two Mental Health Board members.

Gary Burtka, an Allen Park councilman, was appointed to the board by Ficano 10 months ago. He praised the "hard work" of the agency.

"An authority is not necessary," he said. "There are ways to make improvements without an authority. An authority does not ensure that checks and balances are in place."

His was the minority view Wednesday. Constance Rawley was appointed to the Mental Health Board in 1998 by then Mayor

Dennis Archer and reappointed by Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick (whose father, Bernard Kilpatrick, is the chairman of the Mental Health Board).

"When leadership changes, it creates uncertainty," she said. "We're not dealing with widgets, we're dealing with people. An authority is the one solution for this community."

Advocates and consumers of mental health programs rose to support an authority and the work of Visingardi, including his plans for streamlining operations at the agency.

One mental health professional said, "A highly qualified person would have to think long and hard before taking the job of director of the agency."

But the most poignant comments came from those who need the mental health agency and the services it provides.

"How is it going to work for us?" one asked. "Is it to be allocating the money for the things people in mental health need?"

A man who's mother and child had both been mentally ill said, "When you use the services, you feel you're begging."

Teresa Blossom, spokeswoman for the Mental Health Agency, said in an interview last week that Ficano "wants the system to be the best that it can be."

In 2003, Ficano worked with Kilpatrick and Gov. Jennifer Granholm in creating a Detroit Wayne County Health Authority to provide physical health care for the uninsured and the underinsured. It was a major goal early in his administration and it was the right thing to do.

The circumstances are different. Ficano is trying to protect control of county funds. There are also questions about what happens to county jobs under an independent authority.

It won't be easy for the commission to craft legislation that answers those ticklish problems.

But it seems that the state Legislature is not going to back away from this issue and that a governor caught between a Democratic mayor and a Democratic county executive in an election year is not going to be too happy about sticking her neck out with another veto.

Blossom said Ficano wants a "local solution." That solution cannot be to continue pushing for a county controlled department when the opposition to that plan is so overwhelming.

As Ficano knows, this is not and should not be about power politics. It's about people with serious needs.

They need the stability of a mental health agency that isn't constantly at the center of a political whirlwind.

There's another answer to the question of praying

There seems to be an awful lot of praying going on in Troy.

In the past few weeks, there have been three prayer ceremonies in the city and it has been a subject of controversy for months.

Prayer is a good thing, I guess. It can soothe the soul and provide comfort in times of need.

But I know an even better thing to do than pray. Try this:

Get off your lazy butt and do it yourself.

Let me repeat that:

Get. Off. Your. Lazy. Butt. And. Do. It.

Your. Self.

Period.

Now, before you swoon with furious un-Christian anger, let me explain a bit. I know something of prayer. I went to Catholic school for 12 years. We prayed a lot. We prayed for the pope. We prayed for the pastor. We prayed for the priests and nuns. We prayed for our parents. We even prayed for the type of person I grew up to be.

We went to church six days a week, including 7 a.m. Mass on Sunday, not to mention participating in the Stations of the Cross on Fridays during Lent, May procession, Mass on various feast days and all manner of other occasions.

I prayed for the end of the school day every day.

We said the "Our Father" (The Lord's Prayer), Hail Mary, Apostles Creed and said the rosary piously.

If prayers were nickels, I'd still be living off the income generated all those years ago. But prayers aren't nickels. Nor are they something to be tossed around like loose change.

Prayers, from what I gathered over the years, really have no meaning unless they are treated as something special — not as tools of personal politics or philosophy or as a means of dividing people — but as a serious way of communicating with God.

Which brings me back to my proposed alternative. I think God is far too busy maintaining the vastness of the universe to listen to trivial prayers. Even more important, I think God really doesn't want to offer help unless we show good faith in ourselves. That means getting off your lazy butt and doing it yourself.

Don't pray for world peace. Do treat

Now, before you swoon with furious un-Christian anger, let me explain a bit. I know something of prayer. I went to Catholic school for 12 years. We prayed a lot. We prayed for the pope. We prayed for the pastor. We prayed for the priests and nuns. We prayed for our parents. We even prayed for the type of person I grew up to be.

your neighbors as God wants you to.

Don't pray for understanding. Do talk to each other in a civil and respectful manner.

Don't pray for the government. Do change it. Get out there and vote and recruit the candidates who will do the best job for all of us, even those who don't pray.

Don't pray for the forgiveness of your sins. Just don't sin, or at least make the best effort you can not to.

There is a place for prayer. When you're waiting for the results of your biopsy, prayer seems perfectly appropriate. There are things that are totally out of our control that could warrant God's intervention.

But the reality is that we control our destiny for the most part. We choose to do right or wrong, and prayer has nothing to do with those choices. And if we make a bad choice, we have the obligation to live with the consequences, not pray for God to fix the mess we made.

As for prayer breakfasts, lunches or dinners and big public demonstrations of prayer and the National Day of Prayer, again I say: Get off your lazy butt and do it yourself.

Instead of devoting your energy to putting on a big show, do something truly meaningful. Live your life in the way God intended. That's far more important than mumbling words and showing people just how wonderfully pious you are.

I really don't think God is impressed with a big show. He/she can see through that.

So if you really want to live as God wants and fulfill the real meaning of prayer, get off your lazy butt and do it yourself.

Play golf today to benefit March of Dimes

The Shepard Family of Canton Township will host a golf outing fund-raiser for March of Dimes on Sunday, May 21, at Brae Burn Golf Club, 10860 W. Five Mile, Plymouth Township. Christian and Nicholas Shepard, (pictured here), the twin sons of Patty and Scott Shepard of Canton, were born three months premature and face lifelong medical problems. Premature birth is the leading cause of newborn death and lifelong disabilities. Since 2001, the Shepard family - with the help of family and friends - has raised more than $40,000 for the March of Dimes. Funds are used to raise awareness and help prevent birth defects. Foursomes are still available at $400. Individual golfers are welcome at $100 per person. Golfers can also sign up the day of the outing. Shotgun start is 1:30 p.m. and includes 18-holes with cart, lunch at the turn and chicken or steak dinner along with other gifts and prizes. For more information, contact Patty or Scott Shepard at (734) 414-0696 or John Dean at (734) 728-5789. The mission of the March of Dimes is to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects, premature birth and infant mortality. "Prematurity takes a devastating physical toll on babies and robs families of the full potential of their beloved children," said Patty Shepard. "It places a tremendous emotional and financial burden on everyone, including our health care system, businesses and society as a whole."

Blue plate ending 24-year reign in Michigan

Michigan will discontinue its standard blue license plate and adopt a plate with improved features under legislation awaiting the governor's signature, Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land announced last week.

The "Old Blue" plate design, as it is known, is used by 5.6 million motorists. It has been on Michigan vehicles since July 1982 and will cease being issued on Jan. 1, 2007. After that, the state will reissue new plates as they expire.

A new plate design has not been finalized but is expected to be similar to recently issued plates which have a fully reflective white background. There will be no extra cost to residents for a replacement plate.

"The Old Blue plate has had a good run in Michigan but it is time to move to a design that uses modern technology and improves visibility," said Land. "This change will also allow the state to use the same type of material for all of its license plates, which makes production more efficient."

The legislative package includes House Bills 5607 and 5979, sponsored by Rep. Philip LaJoy, R-Canton, and House Bill 4437, sponsored by Rep. Scott Hummel, R-DeWitt. The legislation would provide the necessary funds to the Department of State to cover expenses incurred in re-issuing the estimated 6 million new plates needed.

Land expects compliance with vehicle registration laws to improve as a result of the move to a new standard plate. After the re-issue period is complete, those who are driving on expired license plates will be easy to spot by law enforcement officers. It is estimated that the additional revenue to the state generated from increased compliance would total at least $15 million, which would more than offset the costs involved.

LaJoy said the new license plates will be good for the state.

"From a public safety perspective, having license plates that are easier to read at night will assist law enforcement in keeping our streets safe," LaJoy said. "That is good news for our citizens."

Michigan is the last state still using the glass-beads manufacturing process by which the blue and white plates are created. During production, tiny crushed glass beads with the consistency of sand are sprinkled on the wet white paint to give the characters on the plate limited reflectivity. Law enforcement groups and others favor the modern design material, which is a highly reflective off-white graphic sheeting that is more visible at night.

For more information about available license plates or other department services, visit www.michigan.gov/sos.

POLYMYALGIA RHEUMATICA

Polymyalgia rheumatica is an arthritic condition which occurs after age 50 and most commonly between ages 70-85. Polymyalgia has the following features: 1) it comes on you rapidly, even overnight, or over 2-3 days; 2) you feel extremely stiff, but not weak, in the shoulders and thighs, and 3) low doses of cortisone completely resolve the stiffness over 3 days to a week.

You might imagine that this condition, being so distinctive, would be readily identified and easily treated. Such is not the case. In many instances of polymyalgia you improve in the afternoon. This change for the better may lead you to believe that recovery is coming, and that no doctor's appointment is in order. Other times, the stiffness is not so intense, and you pass off the problem as being part of old age. Finally, you or your family may see your change in behavior and activity as a sign of an emotional problem not a physical condition.

Problems of diagnosis can arise in your doctor's evaluation. Often, a laboratory test called the westerger sedimentation rate is extremely elevated in polymyalgia rheumatica. Presence of this high value is strong confirmation that you may have polymyalgia. However, a normal or slightly elevated westerger sedimentation rate does not mean that you don't have polymyalgia. At times, too much faith is placed on the value of a normal test and the diagnosis of polymyalgia is dismissed when it should not be. Also, a misinterpretation of your muscle condition as inflammation may subject you to a higher dose of prednisone than is needed.
