District's budget aims to keep educational lineup

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne-Westland Community Schools is managing to hang on to its fund balance, but the amount keeps shrinking as the district taps in to it to maintain programs.

Wayne-Westland is finishing the current budget year with a revenue shortfall of about $1.5 million and is projecting a gap between spending and revenue of $3.2 million in fiscal 2006-07.

As a result of the deficit spending, the district will see its surplus dwindle to $12.9 million, not much more than it had on hand in 1999-2000, when a conscious decision was made to tighten the district's budgetary belt.

"The theme here was to build the balance up and start using it to soften the fall from inadequate funding for five years," said Gary Martin, deputy superintendent for administration and business services.

The district finished the year $2.5 million better than expected, due in part to better interest rates on investments and a bit more in state school aid with the inclusion of special education programs into the regular classrooms.

The move is a change in philosophy and something the federal government has been encouraging, and while the costs are about the same for the district, it does get a little bit more in state school aid, Martin said.

However, in the 2006-07 fiscal year, which starts July 1, the district will spend $119.3 million while taking in $116.08 million in revenue. The district is continuing its cost containment, cutting back on supplies and not filling some positions with the goal of not cutting the educational program.

Of the $116.08 million in revenue, 95.3 percent will come from state and local property taxes. The remaining 4.7 percent includes tuition fees, interest income and money the district receives from the county for special education.

According to Martin, the two biggest variables are what the district will receive in state school aid and its enrollment.

"We could lose 100 students and be $600,000 off, or gain 100 students and be $700,000 to the good," Martin said. "We don't know those things going into this budget."

The district is still projecting a loss of students, even with the introduction of

On Friday, police Sgt. James Dexter will retire from a job that not only allowed him to put the bad guys in jail - it also helped him find his wife, Linda.

'... some big shoes to fill'

Retiring police detective earns accolades for his work

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Westland police Sgt. James Dexter will never forget the grisly murder scene he saw when he went into a basement on the city's southeast side on a cold, February day in 2004.

There lay 42-year-old Anthony Pulley - his wrists and ankles tied up, his body stabbed and slashed 61 times, his head bled out with a hammer.

Pulley, a U.S. Department of Defense purchasing agent, had been robbed of his fur coats, diamond rings, 1999 Mercury Sable and other belongings. And police had no suspects.

Within days, good detective work led police to Dalion Lamarr Davis, a 25-year-old Detroit man who initially told police he killed Pulley to thwart sexual advances. But Dexter dug deeper and ultimately got the killer to admit his real motive of robbery - a confession that led to a guilty plea, a prison sentence of 40-60 years, and accolades for Dexter.

"That was probably his shining moment," said police Lt. James Ridener, who is in charge of the Westland detective bureau.

Dexter, a Canton resident, has had many shining moments during his 26-year career with the Westland Police Department - a career that will end Friday when he retires.

"I'll miss this place," he said Monday, reflecting on his career during an interview. "I've made a lot of friends here, and I think I've done some good work."

His career path didn't hurt his love life, either. When he stopped a woman for driving with a loud muffler, little did he know they would marry.

"She was a waitress at Big Boy here in Westland, and when I went in there she reminded me that I had given her a ticket," Dexter recalled.

They started dating, and Dexter and wife Linda have now been married for 18 years. They have two sons, Jimmy, 15, and Kyle, 12.

Dexter, who celebrated his 49th birthday Wednesday, became interested in police work as a teenager attending Fordson High School in Dearborn. A counselor told him that she believed he would be good at it.

"It sounded like a pretty good idea," Dexter said.

One of 11 children born to his late parents, Robert and Shirley Dexter, he took law-enforcement classes at Henry Ford Community College and became a cadet for the Dearborn Police Department in 1976.

He eventually put in applications at various departments to become a police officer, and he was first hired in Las Vegas, Nev., where he worked for only two months before Westland contacted him.

"I came back because all my family was here," Dexter said.

He trained at the Oakland Police Academy in 1980, and he has been with the Westland Police Department ever since, rising through the ranks of patrol officer and traffic-enforcement officer. He has been in the detective bureau since January 1997.

Dexter mentioned the Pulley murder as one of his most memorable cases. He also recalled investigating embezzling allegations that resulted in a decorated school official, former Adams Middle School Principal Celestine Sanders, resigning from her job.

Dexter has been highly active with police unions, helping to improve pensions and benefits for Westland's men and women in blue. He also has been instrumental in organizing events, such as pic-

Police seek suspect in TCF Bank robbery

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A masked bandit robbed a Westland bank Saturday afternoon and escaped with an undisclosed sum of money, police said.

The incident happened just after noon inside the TCF Bank branch on Merriman Road south of Cherry Hill.

The culprit approached a 23-year-old female teller, warned her against pushing an alarm button and ordered her to place money into a white, plastic, grocery-type bag, according to police reports.

"No weapon was seen or implied or anything along those lines," police Sgt. Michael Harhold said.

The teller described the robber as a white male, 5-feet-8 to 5-feet-10 in height and weighing about 200 pounds. She said he wore a black ski mask, a gray hooded sweatshirt and blue jeans.

Another witness indicated to police that the suspect may have had short blond hair.

The teller told authorities she was counting money in her drawer when the lone bandit walked in, demanded money and then ran southbound on Merriman. Another teller who saw what was happening pushed a silent alarm to notify authorities of the robbery, according to police reports.

A TCF customer who saw the robber fleeing tried to trail him in a car, but lost sight of him within a short distance.

A police dog also was brought in, but Harhold confirmed Tuesday that no suspect was captured.

Anyone who has information about the incident is urged to call the Westland Police Department at (734) 722-9600.

A neighborhood resident indicated to police that the bandit may have gotten into a car that had been parked near a vacant house in the 600 block of Merriman.

The vehicle was described as a red, late 1980s or early 1990s model - possibly some type of Pontiac or Buick.

'Super Kids vs. Momzilla'

Families take bedtime story way 'over the top'

BY STACY JENKINS
STAFF WRITER

What started out as a simple bedtime story took on super powers of its own. The story grew and grew, until it consumed an entire family, their friends and even part of their neighborhood. It grew out of control and no one — not even its creators — could stop it. "The Super Kids vs Momzilla" was born through the creative genius of your average working-class dad and his two little kids who needed a bit of bedtime humor.

That's when the likes of "Spazboy" was spawned and "Crybaby" was created. These Super Kids were soon joined by others, with a common mission to overthrow the evil, chore-commander — Momzilla. Over several months, Todd Watson, his wife, Jill, their children, Duncan, who is 8, and Gwyneth, age 4 — a.k.a. Spazboy and Crybaby — added on to the story and decided to make a movie. With a video recorder and makeshift scenes and costumes, the crew enlisted their friend, Bob Finger, and his kids, Jake "Top Hat," 8, and Lexie "Spitball," 11.

Others soon joined the madness. "This thing just kind of mushroomed," Todd Watson said.

The Watsons' Farmington Hills neighbors Kaleigh Beauregard, 8, became "Red Shoes," Stephanie Vietor, 9, became one of Momzilla's "brats;" Patrick Vietor, 6, played a double of "Top Hat;" Robert Vietor, who was just 4 months old at the time, made a cameo appearance with a good, loud cry; other "brats of Momzilla" were Sarah Cremering, 8, and Maria Cremering, 5.

Momzilla was played by none other than Jill Watson, who boasts she's "faaab-u-lous," throughout the 35-minute film, which was underwritten by grandma, Karol Foss.

"It was so much fun and worth every penny," Foss said.

SUPER STORY

The story depicts a chore-worn mom whose children are unruly. Something magical happens to her when she receives an electrical zap while doing housework. She transforms into Momzilla and her powers are capable of making even the wildest child behave — and do their chores.

In utter revolt, the children band together to fight what they consider the wicked ways of Momzilla. Crybaby lobs toxic diaper bombs on command, while Spazboy performs annoying and mesmerizing dances. Red Shoes is able to zip around town in a flash with her fast feet. Top Hat — poor Top Hat — tries hard to make magic come out of his hat, but never succeeds, except once. Spitball is armed with a giant spitball tube, which she uses on the front lines.

"It was a blast," Todd Watson said. "We had so much fun."

POSH PREMIER

But, making the movie was only half the fun. Watching it — in high style — was the other half.

"We thought we should have a party to show it when we were finished," Jill Watson said.

So, naturally, arrangements were made for the movie to be shown at a real movie theater at the Novi Town Center shopping plaza. From the limousines and the red carpet to a fabricated "paparazzi," equipped with disposable cameras, the movie premiere was a true Hollywood moment.

"We went as far over the top as we could," Todd Watson said. But, the crowd waiting for their arrival was a bit much for these budding stars.

"We had the limo show up 10 minutes late, on purpose," Todd Watson said. "The red carpet was rolled out and all of the kids (actors) were terrified and they ran out of the limo and into the theater."

Duncan "Spazboy" managed to sign some autographs instead of running for his life.

He's a natural. "I have a lot of favorite parts in this thing," he said.

So, does he want to make another movie?

"You bet I do!" he said. Stephanie Vietor said the movie premier was great.

"It was amazing seeing ourselves on the screen," she said. "It was really cool."

Jill Watson said the premiere was the best ending.

"The party was so fun," she said. "You could just feel the excitement. The kids were just so enthused. This is something they are going to remember for the rest of their lives."

Taking on this project, with eight kids, was a heroic feat for the parents.

"It was the 'dad' attitude," said Todd Watson, who said the dads never gave up on the idea.

Jill Watson said she was "roped into" the project, but quickly made the best of it. She enjoyed the editing process, in particular.

"When I grow up, I want to make movies," she said, laughing.

These creative parents insert tributes to relics such as "Monty Python," "Wonder Woman," "Star Wars," and "Caddyshack" — just for good measure.

"I loved it," said Judy Watson, who traveled with her husband, Roger, from Illinois to see their grandkids' production. "I heehawed all the way through the whole thing."

INFORMATION CENTRAL

Earlier this year, our library added several computers, to bring our total number of internet computers to 29.

We regularly host well over 200 people a day on our computers. Needless to say, it is impossible to stand and coach all these people in the fine points of internet usage.

When we added the computers, we also installed Microsoft Office on all the internet computers, adding another level of complexity. To try to compensate, we offer many different computer courses, many several times a month.

Our Internet 101 course is designed for people who have had little to no experience with computers. It explains how a mouse works, how to use a scroll bar, how to enter a Web site address in the address bar, and how to interact with a Web site once you are there.

Internet 201 is designed for people who are a little more comfortable with the internet and want to learn more about search engines. We discuss different types of search engines, how they work, and why you would use one search engine over another. Where possible, we teach 101 twice a month, and 201 once a month.

When we added the Office software, we added a Microsoft Word course. Word is a "word processor" software that makes the computer act like a typewriter. It is very useful for people looking to write resumes, and the course, focuses on how to create a document, then on how to make it look spiffy.

We also teach specialized internet courses — travel, genealogy, even cooking on the internet. All courses are free, and people are welcome to attend them as often as they like. Currently, they are taught using a projector, but we hope in the future to have a computer lab, which will allow hands-on learning.

Even though we cannot stand and coach, our Reference staff is always willing to help and answer specific computer questions. We also always welcome input from our patrons. If there is a specific computer course you would like taught, let us know. We will see what we can put together.

Find a friend: Humane society extends hours to increase adoptions

It's never been easier to bring home a new best friend, according to the Michigan Humane Society.

The MHS — the state's leading animal welfare organization — has started helping more dogs, cats, rabbits and other animals find new homes by providing new, extended adoption hours at its locations in Westland, Rochester Hills and Detroit.

"Our expanded adoption hours will include Sundays and weekday evenings, making it convenient for busy adopters to add companion animals to their families," said Cal Morgan, executive director for the Michigan Humane Society. "Opening our doors seven days a week will be instrumental in helping us reach our goal of 100 percent adoption of adoptable animals by 2010."

New hours at all three MHS shelters as of June 25 are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

Shelters will be closed on major holidays. Check the Web site for scheduled holiday closures.

MHS shelter locations and phone numbers are the Berman Center for Animal Care in Westland, 900 N. Newburgh, south of Ford Road, (734) 721-7300; the Detroit shelter at 7401 Chrysler Dr., the south service drive of I-75 at Exit 54, (313) 872-3400; and the Rochester Hills shelter, 3600 W. Auburn Road, east of Adams, (248) 852-7420.

For photos and descriptions of animals, visit the Web site at www.michiganhumane.org, Morgan said.

Adoptions include sterilization; age-appropriate vaccinations; a 10-day health plan; a medical check-up and temperament evaluation; a heart worm test for dogs; a 20 percent discount on group dog training classes at the MHS Pet Education Center; a $10 discount on "microchipping" at the time of adoption; and trained counselors to help adopters find their perfect companion.

Other services offered during the expanded shelter hours include stray animal reclaiming and animal intakes.

For more information, contact one of the three Michigan Humane Society shelters during the new adoption hours, visit the Web site or call the MHS administrative office at (866) MHUMANE (648-6263) 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The MHS is a private, non-profit organization which cares for over 100,000 animals each year at its three metro Detroit adoption and veterinary medical centers. It was established in 1877.

Schoolcraft's career summer camps reach youngsters in math, science

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER

Patti Green, a middle school science teacher in Clarenceville, gave new meaning to the idea of adventure camps this summer.

As director of Adventures in Career Exploration, Green earned a federal grant worth $248,000 to create a program targeting students with interests in math and science, and those who come from single parent homes or qualify for free or reduced lunch programs. It took a year to plan and a year to implement. The program is in action this week at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Green's passion in the project stems from her own experience at a career camp when she was a child. "This is very personal for me," she said.

The camps themselves were personalized for the 120 students who were chosen to participate, after the application process was complete.

The kids come from schools in Garden City, Livonia, Redford, Farmington, Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

Ranging in grades 5 through 9, students were divided into different camp programs based on available space and interest. The camps include: Robotics, health occupations, aviation, environmental science and Michigan ecology.

Each day this week the campers were scheduled to travel around the metro area to meet with experts in the field, tour facilities most people will never see, and share hands-on activities - all in a college setting.

Dawn Bourbeau, health occupations instructor, planned a full schedule for the 20 students in her camp.

Throughout the week the group would visit a cardiothoracic surgeon and view a video of an open heart surgery. They would meet an occupational, a speech and a physical therapist, and see a Med Flight helicopter.

As a full-time nurse at St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor, Bourbeau was able to bring connections to the program and show students aspects of the health industry they would not otherwise have access to visit.

"I think it's great," she said. "This is a great opportunity for them to jump in at this age."

But it's not easy, Green said. "Kids are working. This is six straight hours of go."

Middle school students start building robots during a summer camp for middle school students held recently at Schoolcraft College.

Andrea Kelch, a participant from Canton, said she heard about the program from her father and was interested in learning more about the aerospace program. She said she was sure she'd enjoy the field trips the most.

Participants like Andrea received free shoulder bags, snacks and writing utensils. "I feel like I'm in college," she said.

That's another facet of the program. Students tour Schoolcraft's campus and learn what it takes to earn a degree in their field.

They meet experts and explore all the different options available.

More than 800 students applied for Adventures in Career Exploration by February, thanks to aggressive efforts to spread the word about the program in area schools. A meeting for parents and students was held in November, and Green said representatives passed out information at holiday school events. Children interested in participating were required to write an essay and obtain two recommendations. Green, a Plymouth resident, said the difficult part came in choosing who would participate, and in what camp.

"They had to jump through a lot of hoops," she said. But the children in the program certainly want to be there, she added.

Though the federal grant ends this year, the camps will go on and become part of Schoolcraft College's Kids on Campus summer programs. The Kids on Campus program has been running for 27 years and draws 1,500 students from grades 1 through 9.

Sandy Fisher, coordinator for the Kids on Campus program, said her programs will benefit from the supplies provided under the Adventures in Career Exploration grant. She and Green see this as a self-sustaining endeavor.

"Hopefully it will continue for many decades," said Green.

Gunman holds up Cash Advance

A man armed with a blue-steel revolver robbed Cash Advance - a business on Ford Road west of Venoy - about 11:30 a.m. last Thursday, according to Westland police reports.

Similar incidents have been reported in other communities, including Livonia and Farmington, police said.

In Westland, a 20-year-old female employee told police that the lone gunman came into the store, pointed the gun at her, walked around the counter and ordered her to put money into a black bag.

No shots were fired. The woman obeyed the gunman's orders and was then ordered to lie on the floor until the intruder fled through a back door, police said.

The man escaped with an undisclosed amount of money. He was described as a black male, age unknown, about 6 feet tall with a medium build and a medium skin tone. He was wearing a one-piece blue jumpsuit.

Anyone with information about the incident is asked to call the Westland Police Department at (734) 722-9600.

Bike robbery

A 27-year-old woman who was riding her bicycle to work was ordered to give it to a man who stopped and confronted her on Ford west of Hix, near Knolsion, police said.

The incident happened about 9:40 a.m. Saturday. The woman told police she had bought the bike from a friend two weeks earlier. She said that a man in a green, two-door Chevy Blazer pulled alongside her, stopped, got out and accused her of riding his stolen bike.

The woman told police she gave the bike to the man because she was afraid of him. She said he put the bike in the back of the Blazer and fled westbound on Ford.

The victim went to a car wash at Ford and Hix roads and asked an employee to call police for help. Police took the woman's information and then gave her a ride to her job at the Motel 6 at Ford and Lotz roads in Canton.

The man who took the bike was described as white, about 35 years old, short and thin. He wore a baseball cap, sunglasses, a black tank top and shorts. According to police reports, a woman was in the vehicle with him.

Home break-in

A home contractor reported that an intruder broke into a house currently being renovated in the 35700 block of Cherry Hill. The break-in occurred between 7 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday.

The contractor arrived at the house to find that someone had gone through a door leading from the garage into the house. He told police that several items were missing, including tools, building materials and an air compressor.

BUDGET

a pilot all-day kindergarten program at four schools and opening its elementary schools up to out-of-district schools of choice. The projection is a blended enrollment of 13,557 students, down 109 from the 2005-06 school year.

While the Legislature has yet to decide, budget projections are being based on a $200 increase in the foundation grant. If lawmakers stick with that amount, the district would receive $7,771 per student.

But Martin said the increase will barely cover increases in health insurance and retirement costs, which will jump to 17.74 percent, up well over 1 percent from 2005-06. Retirement costs have been increasing steadily and the hike from 2003-04's 12 percent to 2006-07 represents a 36-percent increase in cost.

"The state handed us a huge retirement cost," he said. "Its percentage of payroll is higher than Social Security."

Good news is that major health and benefit insurance costs are expected to stay "relatively flat," Martin added.

Martin also is projecting a 10-percent increase in the cost of utilities, anticipating a usage higher than this year, when a warmer than expected winter keep costs down at a time when gas prices were spiking because of the effect of Gulf Coast hurricanes.

"Our rates were up probably 30-35 percent, but our usage was down," Martin added.

The district also will levy a low tax rate for debt retirement. While the 3.84-mill tax rate is just .01 mill less than last year, its well below the 5.14 mills levied in 1998-99, when voters approved the $108 million bond issue. Refunding the bonds has helped save taxpayers money and translated into a lower tax rate.

While districts like Livonia and Garden City are closing schools and privatizing support services, Wayne-Westland remains in good shape, although the fund balance is below the 15 percent of spending Martin would like to see.

Teen receives Scouting's Gold Award

A Westland teenager is seeing gold after receiving Girl Scouting's Gold Award during a ceremony held in May.

Receiving the award from the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council was Mindy Rader, the daughter of Roy and Mary Rader.

The Gold Award is the highest honor a scout can earn for significant leadership and dedication to community service. An elite award, it's earned by only 3 percent of Girl Scouts, ages 14-17, across the country each year.

In "Going for the Gold," Rader had to plan and execute a community service project. The project must promote community service, personal and spiritual growth, positive values and leadership, as well as have an ongoing effect on the community.

Rader organized a free week-long afterschool camp for eight youths with disabilities. Her choice reflects her decision to become a special education teacher.

It took her four months to organize the camp and, with the help of family, friends and the Westland Civitans, she was able to offer campers sports, arts and crafts and snacks.

The campers, ages 14-24, enjoyed a birthday party, playing basketball, a scavenger hunt and a trip to the local fire station during the camp held at Central City Park.

The camp was a huge success for all involved. Parents asked Rader if she would have it again, while the volunteers who helped Rader with her camp gained a new respect for people with disabilities and felt proud for stepping out of their comfort zone to help others.

And Rader learned that stereotypes can be easily broken down and everyone can interact in a positive and fun manner.

"I have never felt more accomplished than when seeing the amazing smiles and sincere thank you's from the campers," she said.

Rader was attracted to Girl Scouts as a third-grader at P.D. Graham Elementary. She said she got hooked after spending the night in a mall with the Scouts.

As a ninth-grader, she traveled to England with the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

She also went whitewater rafting in Pennsylvania and caving in Indiana, attended the international scout camp in Dorchester, England, and visited the East Coast three times.

A member of Girl Scout Troop 900 in Canton, Rader also has worked at a camp in Missouri in 2002 and last year worked at a camp in Maryland.

"For many girls, the leadership skills, organizational skills, and sense of community and commitment that come from 'going for the gold' cement the foundation for a lifetime of active citizenship," said Gail Scott, Girl Scouts of the Huron Valley Council CEO. "We congratulate every girl for their achievement and are excited for their future."

nics and basketball outings, that helped police officers and their families develop friendships.

His job has been rewarding because he has put some criminals behind bars. But he has had his share of frustrations, too.

"The murderers, the rapists, the robbers - they go to prison. But the most frustrating part of the job is seeing some defendants get a slap on the wrist," he said.

As an example, Dexter recalled one defendant who merely got an extension on his probation for being a repeat offender on home invasion cases.

"Three weeks later, he did it again," Dexter said.

Dexter has found himself in potentially life-threatening situations. He escaped gunfire in 1987 when he went to a Michigan Avenue motel where three Inkster officers were killed. The case involved a standoff with four suspects being sought for writing bad checks.

Although he is leaving the Westland Police Department, Dexter still plans to work. He will coach the freshman football team this fall at Salem High School in Canton. He played football at Fordson, and his sons are active in football, basketball and baseball.

Using skills he developed as a Westland officer, he also may try to find a job with an insurance company as a fraud investigator and an accident reconstruction expert.

No matter where he ends up, it's certain he'll be wearing a neck chain with his mother's wedding ring on it. He wears it as a tribute to her for inspiring 11 children to have productive lives.

"She must have done something right," Dexter said. And so, it seems, did he.

"He's a tenacious detective. He is the most organized detective I've ever seen," Ridener said. "He's a real professional, and there will be some big shoes to fill when he leaves."

Gay camp a first for Michigan

BY JAY M. GROSSMAN
STAFF WRITER

Forget about day camp. Some high school kids are going to gay camp this summer.

Camping, OUT will be the first licensed day camp in Michigan for gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender (GLBT) and allied youth in grades eight-12. The Triangle Foundation, a statewide civil rights group based in Detroit, is organizing the weeklong outing.

"We've been looking into the possibility for a couple of years, and then the idea resurfaced in September," executive assistant Greg Varnum explained. "It's a way for young people to get involved - and have a lot of fun."

The camp runs Aug. 13-18 and about 20 kids have registered so far. Varnum will serve as camp director. He's a board member with the American Camp Association of Michigan and an experienced camper.

Since announcing the summer camp, Varnum has been in contact with professionals from around the country who want to offer their assistance.

"We've got camp counselors, former camp directors ... people from Maine and California who are all applying to volunteer at this camp. A lot of them said it's a great program and something they can identify with in terms of its value."

Along with kayaking and canoeing, campers can participate in group discussions on issues affecting the GLBT community. Several prominent speakers from around the country are expected to talk at the camp about civil rights and other related issues.

"There are so many young people working to become engaged in our community," Varnum said. "They're a wonderful, untapped resource that want to become involved in the political process and become influential in their community ... and this is a positive way for them to learn about this."

Campers will pick and choose which discussion they want to participate in. The location itself is being kept confidential for the safety of the campers.

"It's a licensed site and very secluded," he said. "It's in a prime location, in a very serene environment."

Parents will provide the transportation - a prudent idea, Varnum said, since many of them will undoubtedly want to inspect the campground facilities and meet the staff.

And while the idea of a sum-

The Triangle Foundation of Detroit is organizing the state's first licensed day camp for gay, bisexual, transgender high school students.

mer camp for young gay people might raise a few eyebrows, Varnum said the only feedback he received so far has been positive.

"I think it's because our interaction has been with parents and youth professionals - two groups who can understand the value of any camp and bringing youths together in a setting where they feel comfortable."

The camp is only licensed to handle 50 kids, and word of mouth is generating a lot of interest. Varnum said a kid from New York registered last week. Scholarships are available for any campers who are unable to pay the full $475 registration fee. After June 15, registration climbs to $500.

Information about the camp is available on the foundation's Web site at www.tri.org, or by calling (313) 537-3323, Ext. 108. jgrossman@hometownlife.com (248) 901-2529

ORDINANCE NO. 29-W-5-1

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND WESTLAND CITY CODE, BY ADDING CHAPTER 22, ARTICLE XV, SECTIONS 22-601 THROUGH 22-607 TO REQUIRE REGISTRATION OF AND INSPECTIONS OF ALL RENTAL DWELLINGS

WHEREAS the Westland City Council finds that there are rental properties in the City that are not as well maintained as well as owner occupied properties. The City Council further finds that code enforcement efforts under the housing laws of Michigan and city ordinances relating to zoning, building, construction, property maintenance, and other topics are not sufficiently effective in stabilizing the physical deterioration of rental properties. This ordinance will encourage the appropriate maintenance of rental properties and protect the health, safety and welfare of tenants.

NOW THEREFORE, THE CITY OF WESTLAND HEREBY ORDAINS:

Section 1. That Chapter 22, Article XV, Section 22-601 of the Westland City Code is hereby added to provide as follows:

Purpose

The purpose of this ordinance is to protect the public health, safety and welfare in buildings intended for human habitation and their accessory structures.

Section 3. That Chapter 22, Article XV, Section 22-602 of the Westland City Code is hereby added to provide as follows:

Definitions

The following words, terms and phrases, when used in this Article, shall have the meanings ascribed to them in this section, except where the context clearly indicates a different meaning:

Dwelling: Any building or structure occupied or intended to be occupied, in whole or in part, as a dwelling, residing place, living or sleeping space for one (1) or more humans, whether permanently or transiently.

Dwelling Unit: A building or structure or portion thereof designed for occupancy by one (1) family for residential purposes as a single housekeeping unit.

Section 2. That Chapter 22, Article XV, Section 22-603 of the Westland City Code is hereby added to provide as follows:

Registration of Rental Dwellings

(a) Registry of rental dwelling required. All rental dwellings shall be registered with the Building Department. If the owner does not reside within thirty (30) miles of the city, he or she shall designate a responsible local agent who shall be responsible for operating such dwelling in compliance with the law, including this Article. All official notices may be served on the responsible agent, and any notice so served shall be deemed to have been served upon the owner of record. Each owner or responsible local agent shall maintain a current list of the number of occupants of each rental dwelling for which he or she is responsible. A rental unit certificate of compliance shall not be issued if the registration provisions of this Article are not complied with.

(b) Time to register existing rental dwellings. All rental dwellings existing as of the effective date of this Article shall be registered no later than sixty days after the effective date of this Article. The city shall order registration prior to that date for any dwelling cited in a notice required by the building code or property maintenance code. Failure to comply with such an order is a violation of this Article.

(c) Registry of new rental dwellings. The owner of a new rental dwelling or of any dwelling newly converted to a rental dwelling shall register the rental dwelling prior to allowing occupancy of any new rental units.

(d) Change in register information. The owner of rental dwellings already registered with the city or his responsible local agent shall register within sixty (60) days after any change occurs in register information. A new owner of a registered dwelling shall register the dwelling within sixty (60) days of assuming ownership.

(e) Register of rental dwellings. Application for registration shall be made in such form and in accordance with such instructions as may be provided by the Building Department Director and shall include:

- (1) The address of the rental dwelling.
- (2) The number of dwelling units, the number of rooming units and the number of hotel units in the dwelling.
- (3) The name, residence address, business address, business phone number and personal phone number of the owner.
- (4) The name, residence address, business address, business phone number and personal phone number of the manager and responsible local agent designated by the owner.
- (5) The address where the owner or responsible local agent will accept notices or orders from the city.

(f) Inaccurate or incomplete register information. It shall be a violation of this Article for an owner or a responsible local agent to provide inaccurate information for the registration of rental dwellings or to fail to provide information, required by the city under subsection (e) of this section. In those cases in which the owner or responsible local agent is not a natural person, the information required for the registration shall be provided for the organization owning the rental dwelling and for the president, general manager or other chief executive officers of the organization. Where more than one (1) natural person has an ownership interest, the required information shall be provided for each owner.

Section 4. That Chapter 22, Article XV, Section 22-604 of the Westland City Code is hereby added to provide as follows:

Certification of Rental Dwellings

(a) Certificate of compliance required. Rental dwellings shall not be occupied without a rental dwelling certificate of compliance or a temporary rental dwelling certificate of compliance.

(b) Issuance of certificate of compliance. The building department shall issue a rental dwelling certificate of compliance for a rental dwelling after the director of the building department finds that the rental dwelling, its units and accessory structures and yards comply with the standards set forth in the currently adopted codes, i.e., building code, the mechanical code, the plumbing code, the electrical code, and the property maintenance code.

(c) Temporary certificate authorized. Where a rental dwelling certificate of compliance is required, the building department may issue a temporary rental dwelling certificate of compliance for the following reasons only:

- (1) To enable the city to balance compliance inspection work loads; or,
- (2) To coincide with compliance time periods set forth in a notice citing violations of this Article if such periods extend beyond the expiration date of a certificate.

Provided, however, no temporary certificate of compliance shall be issued if there are significant health and safety defects present on the premises constituting an imminent danger to life, health or property.

(d) Validity of certificate of compliance. A rental dwelling certificate of compliance shall be valid for three (3) years for all rental units, unless suspended as set forth below. The building department director may authorize up to eight (8) additional months on the certificate of a dwelling for the sole purpose of balancing inspection workloads for the city.

(e) Expiration of certificate of compliance. Rental dwelling certificates of compliance and temporary rental dwelling certificates of compliance may not be extended beyond their expiration dates except as may be permitted in subsection (c) or (d) above to enable the department of building to balance inspection workloads.

(f) Length of time certificate of compliance is valid. Any new rental dwelling certificate of compliance issued to an owner for a dwelling shall have an expiration date three (3) years from the date of issuance, except that if a temporary rental dwelling certificate has been previously issued, the certificate shall expire three (3) years from the date the temporary certificate was issued.

(g) Suspension of certificate of compliance. The building department director shall suspend a rental dwelling certificate of compliance if the owner or responsible local agent has not complied with a complaint notice. The building department director shall issue a notice of suspended certification to the owner or responsible local agent. The notice of suspended certification will inform the owner or responsible local agent:

- (1) That the rental dwelling certificate of compliance has been suspended as of the date of the notice.
- (2) Of the reason for the suspension.
- (3) That it is unlawful for any rental unit to continue to be occupied for more than sixty (60) days after the date of suspension of the rental dwelling certificate of compliance.
- (4) That any rental unit which is vacant at the time of suspension or which becomes vacant during the period of suspension shall not be rented or reoccupied until the rental dwelling certificate of compliance is reinstated or a new rental dwelling certificate of compliance is issued.

Failure to comply with the terms of suspension as set out in this subsection shall be a violation of this Article.

(h) Reinstatement of suspended certificate of compliance. A suspended rental dwelling certificate of compliance shall be reinstated if the building department director determines that a rental dwelling has been brought into compliance with the standards of this Article. The city shall notify the owner or responsible agent by regular mail, noting the reinstatement of the rental dwelling certificate of compliance. Reinstatement of the certificate shall not extend or change the expiration date of the certificate. A reinstatement fee and all inspection fees and amounts to be determined by the city council shall be paid by the owner prior to reinstatement of the certificate.

(i) Appeal. Suspension of a rental dwelling certificate of compliance may be appealed to the Building Board of Appeals as provided for in Article II of this Chapter.

(j) Notifying tenants of suspended certificate. The city shall send a copy of a notice of suspended certificate to each dwelling unit within a certified rental dwelling. The copy shall be addressed to occupant and shall be sent by regular mail. Failure of an occupant to receive a copy shall not invalidate any other proceedings authorized by this Article.

Section 5. That Chapter 22, Article XV, Section 22-605 of the Westland City Code is hereby added to provide as follows:

Inspections; Search warrant

(a) The city may provide written notice to the owner and/or the responsible local agent of the need to schedule an appointment for any inspection required by this Article.

(b) Upon receipt from the city of the notice described in subsection (a), the owner and/or responsible local agent shall, within fourteen (14) days of the date of that notice, contact the city to schedule the systematic inspection. In the event that the city fails to notify an owner or responsible local agent of the need for an inspection prior to the expiration date of a rental certificate of compliance, it shall be the responsibility of the owner and/or responsible local agent to contact the city to schedule the systematic inspection required by this Article.

(c) Once a date for an inspection is scheduled, the owner and/or responsible local agent shall do all of the following prior to the date of the scheduled inspection:

- (1) Inform the tenant or occupant of each dwelling unit scheduled for possible inspection of the date when the inspection is scheduled to occur.
- (2) Request permission from the tenant or occupant of each dwelling unit scheduled for possible inspection to provide access to the rental unit in the event that the tenant or occupant is not at home when the inspector arrives.
- (3) Inform the tenant or occupant of each dwelling unit scheduled for possible inspection that the owner or the owner's representative is required to accompany the inspector during the performance of all inspections of rental dwelling units, and that the owner or the owner's representative must provide access to the inspector by unlocking the dwelling unit's door in the event that the tenant is not at home.

(d) In all cases where a tenant or occupant has informed the owner or responsible local agent, either orally or in writing, that the tenant will permit the owner or owner's representative to provide access to the inspector with access to the dwelling unit, the owner shall provide access to the dwelling unit in question for purposes of conducting the inspection required by this Article.

(e) In the event that a tenant who has consented to the inspection informs the owner or responsible local agent that he or she would like to be present during the inspection, but that the time schedule for the inspection is not convenient, the owner or responsible local agent shall inform the city of the tenant's desire to be present when the inspection occurs. The city shall make a reasonable effort to comply with the tenant's request. In the event that the city, owner, and tenant cannot schedule a mutually convenient time for the inspection, the city shall have the discretion to obtain a search warrant to inspect that dwelling unit pursuant to authority granted by this Article and state law.

(f) In the event that a tenant or occupant of a unit scheduled for possible inspection informs the owner and/or responsible local agent that he or she will demand that the city obtain a search warrant, the owner shall inform the tenant that the owner or a representative of the owner is required to accompany the inspector during the execution of a search warrant, and is required to provide access to any dwelling unit only after a proper search warrant has been issued by a court of competent jurisdiction. In the event that a search warrant is issued, the city shall make a reasonable effort to inform the tenant of the date of execution of the search warrant if the tenant so requests.

(g) In all cases where a court of competent jurisdiction has entered a search warrant authorizing the inspection of a particular dwelling pursuant to MCL 125.527 and the provisions of this Article, the owner and/or responsible local agent shall accompany the inspector during the execution of the search warrant and inspection of the named dwelling units, and shall provide access to each dwelling unit described in that search warrant.

(h) The city may require the owner and/or responsible local agent of a leasehold to do one or more of the following:

- (1) Provide the enforcing agency access to the leasehold if the lease provides the owner a right of entry.
- (2) Provide access to areas other than a leasehold or areas open to public view, or both.
- (3) Notify a tenant of the city's request to inspect a leasehold, make a good faith effort to obtain permission for an inspection, and arrange for the inspection. If a tenant vacates a leasehold after the city has requested to inspect that leasehold, an owner of the leasehold shall notify the city of that fact within ten days after leasehold is vacated.
- (4) Provide access to the leasehold if a tenant of that leasehold has made a complaint to the enforcing agency.

(i) Neither the city nor the owner may discriminate against an occupant on the basis of whether the occupant requests, permits, or refuses entry to the leasehold. The city shall not discriminate against an owner who has met the requirements of subsection (h), but has been unable to obtain the permission of the occupant.

Celebrate happiness this Fourth of July

On Tuesday, we'll celebrate the pursuit of happiness. The 230th anniversary of the ratification of the Declaration of Independence reminds us again of Thomas Jefferson's revolutionary, earth-shaking preamble.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal and that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness ... that to secure these rights Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed ... that whenever any government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. ..."

Jefferson curiously uses the word happiness twice. He borrows the phrase "life, liberty ..." from Adam Smith and John Locke, but replaces the word "property" with the less tangible "happiness."

Jefferson was not one to believe that governments could make people happy. In a very different age than ours, the gentleman farmer believed that the less government the better.

Commentators and scholars on the right and left disagree about what Jefferson had in mind. Those on the left see Jefferson as an advocate for social justice. Those on the right see the word as merely a substitute for the property that brought Jefferson and others their greatest happiness.

But happiness can also be seen in the context of freedom from government oppression and interference with private life and the "pursuit of happiness" that doesn't impinge on the happiness of others.

In a time when we are engaged in a fierce debate on the balance between security (a major function of government) and liberty and privacy, this Independence Day is a perfect time to think about the freedom we cherish so deeply and the limits we are willing to place upon it.

It's time to consider happiness.

Responsible driving doesn't take break

There is a reason why traffic has been so light as of late during morning and evening rush hours. School is out for the summer, and that means no teachers rushing off to work, no parents dropping kids off on their way to work and no buses picking up and dropping off youngsters.

It also means not having to deal with teenage drivers intent on their next date and not the driving at hand.

Stop before you celebrate too much the lighter traffic. Consider, instead, that all those thousands of kids are now at home. You can bet they're not all stuck in front of the TV. In fact, some post offices have issued proactive warnings to drivers and parents alike, encouraging them to watch out for roadside mailboxes — and young people anxious to see what the day's delivery may have brought them.

Rural and country-like settings where there are no sidewalks are cause for concern. Teens sometimes forget the rules for walking against traffic, or they weave on their bikes in the path of an oncoming vehicle.

Youths who live in subdivisions are no less prone to encounters with cars. Witness some who delight in rollerblading up and down inclines provided for those with handicaps.

Kids in all of these situations don't necessarily mean to cause havoc with drivers, but they also don't always think of the consequences of what they're doing.

So, guess what? Being responsible adults, it's up to those of us on the road to drive defensively. That means giving kids — or anyone else, for that matter — a wide berth when they're walking or biking on the same road.

It also means watching out for the unexpected kid who may be on the sidewalk when you first see him, but not for long.

Sure, these reminders are nothing new, but they bear repeating. As we hurry off to work or our next appointment, it's easy to forget to be mindful of these simple safety precautions. But keeping our young people safe is everyone's responsibility, from the parents who must teach kids how to maneuver on the road, to drivers who take on an awesome responsibility when they get behind the wheel.

There is nothing routine on the road for drivers going about their rounds during these summer months. Don't let an apparent lighter volume of traffic lull you into unsafe speeds or a casual approach to what lies ahead.

There can be no vacation from responsible driving.

A real statesman

Thank you for the articles written by Julie Brown and Brad Kadrich on former Gov. William Milliken's recent visit to Plymouth as part of a book tour.

I too was in attendance at the event hosted by State Rep. John Stewart, as I know the author, Dave Dempsey, and wanted to congratulate him on another literary success. I thought both Observer & Eccentric writers did a good job capturing the feelings of excitement in the room.

One of the things I was impressed with, besides the obvious respect that was displayed by area residents waiting patiently for their turn to meet former Gov. Milliken, was the opportunity for Republicans, Democrats and Independents to come together, in one room, to honor and learn more about such an important Michigan political leader.

I agree with comments made by State Rep. Glenn Anderson, regarding the importance of statesmanship in public service, a trait that former Gov. Milliken embodied, but is admittedly lacking in most political arenas today. Although personally frustrated by this reality, I remain encouraged that better days are ahead.

I am hopeful, amidst extremely challenging times facing all of our families, that citizens can take back control of their government and their futures by carefully electing representatives who will work on their behalf.

From my perspective, based on my level of involvement, both from a citizen-activist position, and now as an elected official, we need more people like Glenn Anderson in public office. Glenn should be proud that he too exhibits behavior conducive to good government, the kind he felt former Gov. Milliken set as an example.

I often stand back and observe how comfortable Glenn is with people when we are at public functions. Glenn is approachable and graciously listens to people's concerns. In Lansing, Glenn takes his job seriously, yet recognizes the importance of working with both political parties on behalf of the citizens.

Term limits aren't always a good thing when a good person is forced to step down, but I'm thrilled with Glenn's decision to run as our next state senator from the 6th District and confident in his ability to do the job!

So much to be thankful for

I thought it was time to publicly thank everyone for my past two birthdays, last year for my surprise 90th birthday and this year at 91 with the city's own birthday.

I thank God and my loving family and my many friends too numerous to mention. I thank all for helping me to get to this point in my life. I especially thank my daughter, Pat, for the effort she put into my surprise party and the three large albums about my life. I thank Eileen DeHart for inviting me to the city party and to Marie Johnson for getting me there, no easy task. Thanks to the mayor's assistant, Chuck Pickering and Richard LeBlanc for helping me walk. The assistant mayor for asking me to dance with him at the dance, offering to hold me up. Ha! As everybody knows, I love to dance and miss that.

Thanks also to Sandy, our mayor, and for the beautiful flowers and plaque. I enjoyed seeing everyone and, of course, all my politician friends. And I'm very glad Jay Barns could attend. I had a little chance to chat with my former boss, Jay Gilbert, from Dorsey Center. I thank the organizations I've belonged to for 20 or more years, St. Richard's, Friendship Center, Dorsey Center, Bread Basket and Democratic party. I miss all of them.

On a sad note, we took the pictures taken to Kmart and they put them, two rolls, into the one-hour machine and, lo and behold, the machine broke and no pictures — all gone. Sorry, as I promised to give many people copies. I couldn't notify all those people. I still have my memories. No one can take them away. I have many great ones. I've had the pleasure of knowing many wonderful people.

On another sad note, just recently I lost a close friend, Edna Jones. The bad part of growing old is losing family and friends, usually younger than yourself.

Everyone pray we go on keeping our city of Westland safe and healthy and growing strong.

I am sorry it took so long to get this letter published and thanks for the editors who kept in touch. Thanks again to everyone.

Save gas on your own

With all due respect to the gentle lady who in (a recent) Observer suggested a reduction in the highway speed limits as a way to deal with the current gasoline "crisis," the last thing we need to do is to return to the failed policies of the Carter administration.

Our law enforcement officers should be policing our city streets, not hiding behind a tree or under a bridge with a radar gun, enforcing an arbitrary number posted on a sign for purely political reasons.

When gasoline was well under $2 a gallon, I purchased an American-made five-passenger sedan that gets 32 miles per gallon at "passing lane" freeway speeds, so the rise in gasoline prices over the last year or so has not affected my driving habits or my lifestyle.

Should anyone feel their family's budget would benefit from the modest 5 percent to 10 percent savings gained by driving slower than the posted speed limit, they are welcome to do so.

But, while you are saving your $6 to $9 a week, please move over to the right lane and allow the rest of us to go about our business and spend no more time than necessary on Michigan's poorly maintained roads.

This Fourth of July, describe freedom, describe democracy

Standing among hundreds of thousands of student protesters in the nation's capital in 1989, I was forced to reflect on what "freedom and democracy" truly mean. Pondering this question sends shivers down my spine to this day.

No, I was not standing on the Mall, between the Washington Monument and the Capitol in Washington, D.C., nestled among other Americans watching Fourth of July fireworks. I was standing with thousands of students calling for greater freedom and democracy in Tiananmen Square in Beijing, China, the capital of the People's Republic of China.

Many of the students had ripped bed sheets tied in headband fashion with such menacing Chinese slogans as "Beijing Normal University," and other university logos like you would see when attending a college football game. My personal favorite was "Mama, mama — don't worry about me."

I happened to be traveling in China when, for a few brief weeks, the call to loosen the heavy grip of repression of the people was as thick as the smog that clogs your nose and makes you weep.

I troled the crowd of young Chinese students looking for someone who spoke English. Suddenly a student called out, "I speak a little English." A small crowd quickly engulfed me, perhaps six to eight students deep, and a hush fell over the bubble enclosure that became my world for what seemed like eternity, but was only a few minutes.

The silence was pierced with a volley of successive questions punctuated with my "Fourth of July moment," when the student representing his fellow protesters and countrymen asked me in halting English, "Describe democracy; describe freedom."

My life seemed to stream through my consciousness like a 45 rpm record being played at 78 rpm. I remember talking about the ability to choose where we live, what type of work we do, where to go to school if we choose to, who to marry, how many children to have, the freedom to express one's faith in God or not, and to petition our government. It was as if my entire high school civics lesson was coming up in one huge MEAP belch.

Attempting to communicate what democracy and freedom means when it is often taken for granted was like trying to tell someone how you begin to breathe when you wake up in the morning. As effortlessly as we take our freedom for granted, the breath of hundreds, if not thousands, of students was taken away only a few short weeks after my civic reminder that eerie night in Beijing.

Growing up in our nation's capital in the late '50s and early '60s, I spent much of my childhood on Pennsylvania Avenue and Capitol Hill as my playground. I recall the sailors from the shipyard, the bustling streetcars, the old Penn and Capitol Hill movie theaters with the president's home not too much further up the street. There were never any overt signs of discrimination in the theaters, that I recall, but the attitude still prevailed and many a person, both black and white, would tell you which theater the "colored kids" should go to.

Awash in flames and disorder, our nation's capital took on a hotter and meaner look during the riots of 1968. Just 14 years old at the time, my conscious was seared with the anger I saw in the faces of people tearing up and burning down the city.

As the 1960s merged with the 1970s, our nation's capital once again took on a different hue in my consciousness. The Vietnam War and the protests became less abstract and more of a reality as I marched closer to my 18th birthday and the bingolike selection of a draft number loomed on the horizon. The anger and hatred of the Viet Cong faces that entered my home through one of only three television news broadcasts at the time mirrored the emotions I saw in the faces of the rioters a few years earlier.

Ongoing lessons of freedom and democracy are further etched in my consciousness through the rhetoric and actions of Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and Bobby Kennedy. They stood for the ideals that made America great and democracy and freedom a reality for many of my generation.

Much has happened since my childhood that has impacted our freedom. Certainly, 9/11 and the Iraq War are bringing the questions of freedom and democracy to the forefront of today's consciousness.

As we approach the July 4 weekend and the International Freedom Festival, all of us should reflect on the question the young Chinese student posed to me in 1989, "Describe freedom, describe democracy."

What does it mean to you, to be free and to live in a democratic society as we flow into the 21st century?

- Take this simple freedom test:
- Are you registered to vote?
 - Have you regularly voted in all elections?
 - Do you speak out on issues of local, state and national importance?
 - Have you volunteered to make your community better?

We cannot take our freedom for granted. In order to maintain freedom and our democratic way of life, we all must take an active role. We know that freedom is not free. For freedom lovers the world over, let's embrace and honor the freedom and democracy we are blessed to have so that someday that student in China can have his question answered.

America at 230 years: Reflect on how we gained our freedom

As we prepare to celebrate our nation's 230th birthday of independence, let's make time to reflect on how we gained our freedoms and the right to govern ourselves. This was not given to us on a silver platter, we fought for these rights and nurtured the concept that "all men are created equal ... one nation under God."

Did you ever stop to wonder with all the conflict in the world, for the most part, how so many Americans of different backgrounds, color, origin and religions can live in peace for more than 200 years. Not to say we didn't and still don't have our problems. Why aren't Americans of German, Italian, African, Polish, Irish, Spanish, Russian, Chinese, Japanese, English, Scottish, etc., descendants blowing up others of opposite nationalities on a daily basis to further their cause/agenda because they may not like what's going on in their homeland which is getting support from our government?

Why aren't Americans hunting down Arabs in this country and cutting their heads off? I had more respect for the VC and NVA in Vietnam, at least they fought you straight up, not to say they didn't have their sneaky tactics.

These insurgents in Iraq don't care for their own people, all they want is power, control of this country so they can be top dog, dominate their women and poison their children's minds, the next generation with hatred toward the United States and the infidels. Why aren't the clerics of Islam in this country shouting from their towers and in the news media, condemning these fanatics who twist the interpretation of the Koran for their own benefit.

I've always said that if these "assassins" have a problem with our government supporting any friendly peaceful nation, take it up with the head dude in the White House and Congress. Our people don't make foreign policy; why kill the innocent? And, boy, did they make a mistake. If you think Japan regretted "waking up the sleeping giant," you ain't seen nothing yet.

Why is it these freedom fighters claim to love gods and want peace, but hide out in their mosque and hospitals? Why do they hide behind their women and children? If they use places of worship and the weak to hide behind after attacking our troops, I think we should use what means are necessary to destroy them and their buildings.

I'm one American tired of the liberal news media defending their rights. How many of these liberals spent time in a combat zone with the fear of being snuffed anytime, day or night? Let them spend sometime with our troops in the trenches and then they've earned the right to splash their propaganda all over the TV screen and in the newspapers.

Here we are 3 1/2 years into a war with no end in sight. It's time for the Iraqis to step up and take control of their country, their future and their security. After all this time, can't the Iraqis do their own fighting? Remember what Washington did with his rag tag band of troops with rags wrapped around their bloody feet walking in the snow to kick ass and get rid of the British. Why? Because we're Ameri-Cans!

As long as America is willing to do the dirty work for the world, we will continue to be a "hired gun" that is willing to lose our troops fighting for other countries' freedom and democracy. Yes, we are at war. Just because we don't see any "bombs bursting in air" and are not being asked to make sacrifices like our parents and grandparents did during World War II, it's still a war.

As we all go along with our daily lives, all of us are enjoying the freedom and protection these men and women are sacrificing to provide. I say freedom because we can go where we want, do what we want, say what we want (without threats/slander) in the press and to our elected officials without fear of reprisal. And we have a guarantee for the pursuit of happiness. It means we all have the right to pursue our dreams and ambitions to make ourselves happy and make something of ourselves.

We Americans did not ask or deserve what happened on 9/11. If we did not go after these terrorists wherever they were hiding after 9/11, the whole world would be laughing at us. They would say the giant isn't sleeping, it's dead.

When this war is over, and I hope very soon, and our troops come proudly marching home, I sincerely hope our elected officials don't forget those countries that did not support us when it comes time to hand out the spoils of war.

A friend in need is a friend in deed and also a pest. We don't need the friendship of countries whose governments wear two faces. Hopefully, our government won't dishonor those who paid the ultimate price by turning the other cheek. Let's remember the troops as we celebrate this holiday of freedom. God bless them all!

2006 St. Joe's Pro Am Golf Classic presented by Huron Valley Urology Associates raised $210,000!

Thanks to the generous support of community and corporate donors and the hard work of the Golf Classic Steering Committee, chaired by Jeff Scott, this year's event raised more than $210,000 and surpassed the Committee's fund-raising goal. Proceeds from the event supported the purchase of a da Vinci Surgical System, a state-of-the-art robotic system that will allow St. Joseph Mercy Hospital to offer patients a wider range of minimally invasive surgical treatment options and continue to provide a remarkable care experience.

Due to severe thunderstorms, play was canceled, but that did not dampen the spirits of participants who joined celebrities, including legendary U of M football coach Bo Schembechler (Honorary Chair for the ninth consecutive year), Hockey Great Ted Lindsay (Chair Emeritus), former Detroit Red Wings assistant coach Joey Kocur and Red Wings goaltender Manny Legace, for hors d'oeuvres and lunch at the Summit on the Park in Canton. In addition, many of the 51 Michigan PGA Professionals, who were recruited to play golf with the foursomes, also attended the lunch and program.

Special recognition and gratitude is given to the lead sponsors of the 2006 Golf Classic. Huron Valley Urology Associates served as the Titanium Presenting Sponsor. Dick Lewiston of the Lewiston/Etterbeck Families has generously supported this event since it began nine years ago and once again served as a Titanium Sponsor. Dick Scott Automotive Group, a long-time supporter of the Golf Classic, made the generous gift of a Jeep Cherokee — this is the second vehicle he has donated to be used for the Hospital's K-9 Security program. Intuitive Surgical, Inc. served as the Graphite Sponsor for the event premium — an Odyssey White Hot putter and major support came from Ashley Capital. In addition, Gil Ruicci of Gil-Mar Manufacturing, who has participated in the outing since its inception, supported this year's event with sponsorships and in-kind gifts. Together, their gifts inspired others in the community to become involved in the 2006 Golf Classic and support a vital Hospital project.

Saint Joseph Mercy Health System recognizes and commends the organizations and individuals who gave their support for this year's Golf Classic. Thank you for your continued generosity and partnership.

Livonia woman finds New Orleans still reels from Katrina

Elaine Chalom of Livonia visited her son, Ron, in New Orleans in April. This is her account of what she saw in the city six months after Katrina.

BY ELAINE CHALOM
CORRESPONDENT

I followed the news of Katrina's effects on New Orleans with a heavy heart and was overwhelmed at seeing it for myself in April, my first trip there since the hurricane.

I have come to consider New Orleans my second home. The reason for my trip is that in 1997 my son, Ron, decided to buy a 150-year-old house in a historic district called "The Treme." Fortunately for him, this area is two blocks from the French Quarter, which was built on the highest ground available (only 10 feet below sea level). Thus, his home is still standing and water did not infiltrate his house. He sustained wind damage and the effects of some unwelcome looters who did their best (worst) to make their presence noticeable.

The French Quarter and downtown New Orleans weathered the storm with relatively minor damage. Streets were cleared, debris was removed, fallen trees trimmed, businesses were put back into commerce and many homes were made habitable again. It was said that the area was used to cleaning up after a storm since they have had to do it every year after the havoc of Mardi Gras.

I understand that out of 22,000 businesses, only 2,000 have reopened their doors. A tourist arriving today and staying in the French Quarter wouldn't even know that there was massive devastation in sections of the city - in 80 percent of the city to be exact.

As we drove through the residential neighborhoods on my visit, it was apparent that homes were abandoned. Some floated off of their foundations and were either left half way in the street or pushed up against the homes of their neighbors. Some of the more substantial homes made of brick or adobe seemed undisturbed. However, water lines can be seen marking the height of the standing floodwater. In some places, holes in the roofs can be seen where survivors hacked their way through their attics with axes to await rescue from the tops of their homes. These homes sit exposed to the world - stripped of their sheetrock, appliances, furnishings and personal belongings that made it a home. Each community appeared to be one "ghost town" after another.

FEMA TRAILERS

A good friend of my son,

Some sections of New Orleans, including the historic French Quarter, were spared the worst of Katrina's wind and water damage.

Mae, decided to be pro-active and hung a heavy wooden board on the front of her house and wrote with bold letters, "I WANT A FEMA TRAILER." She also wrote a phone number where she could be reached. Within days, she was informed that she was getting a trailer. She welcomed the news, but was told that it would take a least three weeks before she was supplied with electricity, water, etc. and could inhabit her new home.

She is now living in her trailer, next to her home which is now only a shell. A group of volunteers from a Billy Graham organization volunteered their time and energy to dismember her home. They then collected money among themselves and presented her with a $100 gift certificate to Wal-Mart. Many caring church groups are doing the same all over New Orleans.

Most of New Orleans, between the Mississippi and Lake Pontchartrain is located below sea level. Therefore, the city is totally surrounded by levees. The levees themselves did not fail. Much of the fault

Cars were still buried in rubble in April months after the Aug. 29 storm.

Most of New Orleans, between the Mississippi and Lake Pontchartrain is located below sea level. Therefore, the city is totally surrounded by levees. The levees themselves did not fail. Much of the fault lies with the floodwalls that lined the canals. They gave way when the storm surge that swept into the lake eroded the soft, marshy layer of peat into which the sheet pilings had been driven.

lies with the floodwalls that lined the canals. They gave way when the storm surge that swept into the lake eroded the soft, marshy layer of peat into which the sheet pilings had been driven. It was human error, rather than a random act of God that is blamed for the catastrophic flooding.

The flooding of the majority of the city was the result of what has been called "the largest civil engineering disaster in the history of the United States." Despite all the rebuilding efforts that you hear about, most of the city remains uninhabitable. In parts of the city closest to where the floodwalls gave way, houses were totally washed away or damaged so seriously as to be beyond repair. The storm knocked over hundreds of live oak trees, many of which were centuries old. The population of Greater New Orleans dropped from 1,338,000 to between 160,000 and 202,000.

The death toll from the Katrina disaster now stands at 1,400 people, approximately 60 percent of them age 65 and older. There are still bodies being found, more than eight months after the storm.

My visit was a sobering one. Sadly, the lack of tourists is most apparent, particularly in the French Quarter. Stores have reopened, only to have the owners give up when it was apparent that the business is just not there. The neon lights burn bright while many restaurants and hotels are sadly quiet.

The city is "open for business" and invites back conventions and tourism. The governor of Louisiana and Mayor Ray Nagin are trying very hard to restore the city back to its former glory.

I will continue to visit New Orleans as long as my son lives there. The city has been known as "The Big Easy" for many reasons, but what the residents experienced last August was anything but "easy."

Association releases new diet and lifestyle recommendations

A healthy diet and lifestyle are key weapons in the fight to prevent cardiovascular disease – the nation's No. 1 killer – according to new American Heart Association diet and lifestyle recommendations published in Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

Intended for healthy Americans age 2 and older, the recommendations, which replace guidelines issued in 2000, now recommend:

- 1) further reducing saturated and trans fatty acids in the diet;
- 2) minimizing the intake of food and beverages with added sugars;
- 3) emphasizing physical activity and weight control;
- 4) eating a diet rich in vegetables, fruits and whole-grain foods;
- 5) avoiding use of and exposure to tobacco products; and
- 6) achieving and maintaining healthy cholesterol, blood pressure and blood glucose levels.

"The previous recommendations stressed a healthy dietary pattern; the new ones broaden that concept to include the importance of a healthy lifestyle pattern. The two go together – they should be inseparable," said Alice Lichtenstein, chair of the American Heart Association's Nutrition Committee and Gershoff professor of nutrition science and policy at the Friedman School of Nutrition Science and Policy, at Tufts University in Boston.

"The key message of the recommendations is to focus on long-term, permanent changes in how we eat and live. The best way to lower cardiovascular risk is to combine physical activity with heart-healthy eating habits, coupled with weight control and avoiding tobacco products," Lichtenstein said.

The association continues to emphasize achieving and maintaining a healthy body weight, but is putting more emphasis on balancing the number of calories consumed with the number of calories burned. More emphasis is put on food preparation methods that avoid adding saturated fat, sugar or salt and portion size control.

More than 90 scientific publications were reviewed by a panel of nutrition and cardiovascular disease experts for the new American Heart Association recommendations. Besides the goals and recommendations, the statement has new sections with practical information for consumers such as knowing your caloric needs, food preparation tips and some examples of dietary patterns consistent with the new recommendations.

As in the past, the recommendations also address special groups such as children, older adults, individuals with metabolic syndrome or chronic kidney disease and certain socioeconomic groups at high risk for cardiovascular disease (CVD).

Most importantly, these new recommendations address a key challenge faced by increasing numbers of Americans: maintaining a healthy dietary pattern while eating more foods prepared outside the home. Environmental factors strongly influence how Americans eat and exercise. Accordingly, a new feature of the 2006 American Heart Association Diet and Lifestyle Recommendations is a list of ways that practitioners, restaurants, the food industry, schools and local governments can help the general public adopt these recommendations. Examples include displaying caloric content prominently on menus, reducing portion size, limiting trans fatty acids and using low-saturated-fatty-acid oils in food preparation.

Another major change in the dietary recommendations is a lower goal for saturated fat – from less than 10 percent to less than 7 percent – and establishing a goal for trans fatty acids of less than 1 percent of total calories.

"The point is not to calculate the amount of saturated and trans-fatty acids in the diet, but to choose foods that minimize your intake. For example, you can choose leaner cuts of meat and lower-fat dairy products, smaller serving sizes, avoid foods made with hydrogenated fat and include more fruits, vegetables, vegetarian options and fish in the diet," Lichtenstein said.

Saturated fatty-acids occur naturally in foods from animals, such as meat and dairy products, and tropical oils such as coconut and palm oil.

Trans-fatty acids – which are now required to be shown on the Nutrition Facts panel of packaged foods – are commonly found in commercially baked and fried foods, such as crackers, French fries, cakes, pies, bread and cookies.

"Almost anyone can make changes in how they eat and move their bodies to bring themselves closer to the recommended goals. The changes can be small but need to be maintained. In no way are we saying people will have to give up all the things they enjoy; they just may have to make a few modifications in their current habits," Lichtenstein said.

"A good first step to improve your diet and lifestyle – start paying attention to portion size and liquid calories, such as those in soft drinks, fruit drinks, fruit juices and alcoholic beverages. The next step is to try to get at least 30 minutes of physical activity every day," Lichtenstein said. "It does not have to be done all at once – accumulating 30 minutes

RECOMMENDATIONS-AT-A-GLANCE

- Consume an overall healthy diet
- Balance calories consumed with calories burned to maintain a healthy body weight
- Increase awareness of calorie content of foods for the portion sizes you normally eat
- Know how many calories you need a day
- Aim for at least 30 minutes of physical activity daily
- Consume a diet rich in fruits and vegetables
- Include a wide variety of fruits and vegetables in your diet daily
- Emphasize vegetables and fruits – not fruit juices – that are deeply colored (spinach, carrots, peaches and berries)
- Prepare fruits and vegetables with little added saturated or trans fat, salt and sugar
- Choose whole-grain, high-fiber foods
- Consume 2 servings of fish, especially oily fish, at least twice a week
- Examples of fish relatively high in omega-3 fatty-acids include salmon, trout and herring
- Children and pregnant women should follow FDA guidelines for avoiding mercury-contaminated fish. Fish with potential for the highest mercury contamination are shark, swordfish, king mackerel and tilefish.
- Limit intake of saturated fat, trans fat and cholesterol
- Choose lean meats and vegetable alternatives
- Select fat-free (skim) and 1 percent fat dairy products
- Minimize intake of partially hydrogenated fats
- Minimize the intake of beverages and foods with added sugars
- Choose and prepare foods with little or no salt
- Consume no more than 2,300 mg of sodium per day
- Middle-aged and older adults, African-Americans and those with high blood pressure should consume for no more than 1,500 mg
- Consume alcohol in moderation
- Limit alcohol intake to one drink per day for women and two drinks per day for men
- One drink is equal to 12 ounces of beer, 4 ounces of wine, 1.5 ounces of 80-proof distilled spirits or 1 ounce of 100-proof spirits throughout the day is fine – and, of course, more is better. No one is too old or too out of shape to make small changes to increase physical activity."

The association urges industry to gradually reduce the salt and sugar content of processed foods and to increase the proportion of whole grains compared to white flour in baked goods, among other recommendations.

Cranbrook takes new view of universe

The universe will come alive in more detail than ever at the Cranbrook Institute of Science, which has upgraded its planetarium and is offering the Ultimate Universe program.

The planetarium now features the Digistar 3 SP2 a full-dome, real-time planetarium system that incorporates the capability to display pre-rendered all-dome video, real-time 3D computer graphics and comes with a fully-featured digital astronomy system. The system uses PC technology in combination with custom-designed software. The system offers 1.5 million pixels on the dome and fisheye lens capabilities. This is the only Digistar 3 SP2 in Michigan.

In addition to custom-designed graphics entertainment programs like "Rock Hall of Fame," the planetarium offers new astronomy programs updated weekly replicating the night sky at the time of each show. The re-opening of the planetarium also marks the beginning of daily shows through Labor Day.

"Digistar 3 SP2 gives our visitors a unique dome theater experience," said Michael Narlock, head of Astronomy at Cranbrook Institute of Science. "A wide selection of programming including an animated introduction to astronomy for small children, unique, cutting-edge entertainment shows, and live programs that focus on what you can see from your own backyard that include a take home star chart, create a real-time educational experience that can be applied immediately."

Distracted drivers cause of many traffic accidents

BY ALEX LUNDBERG
STAFF WRITER

With the summer driving season in full swing and a new crop of student drivers taking to the road, a new study by a major insurance provider shows that a large number of drivers on the road don't know the basic rules for driving.

The GMAC Insurance National Drivers Test, which gauges Americans' knowledge of driving rules, shows that 18 million American drivers couldn't pass a license test.

In the test, Michigan drivers are the 17th most knowledgeable in the nation, with Oregon coming in first and Rhode Island coming in last.

The test was in two parts, a multiple-choice test that simulated a standard written driver's test and an evaluation of rules of the road knowledge in specific situations. The survey was done on 5,288 people ages 16 to 60, balanced male to female across all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Vice President of Engineering for the Traffic Improvement Association Bob DeCorte said the big place in Oakland County for traffic accidents in 2005 was the intersection of Telegraph and 12 Mile Road. And no, it's not about the freeways.

"It has nothing to do with the freeways," he said. "There are 138,000 vehicles a day going through that intersection. There's a high volume and a high amount of driveways and signals."

What that means, he said, is that there's a lot of "conflict points" with other drivers - incidents where one vehicle crosses the path of another. Freeways have very few conflict points. While 50 percent of all of the miles driven in Michigan are on freeways, only 8 percent of fatal accidents happen there.

Teens in the Vehicle Handling phase of Driving Skills for Life learn how to control skidding in a vehicle equipped beneath with casters that make the car go into a spin on a road course covered with water and mud (below).

More vehicles plus more driveways plus more Michigan left turns plus on and off ramps mean that drivers are crossing each other's paths all the time.

This, he said, is where diminished attention to the road shows its toll. In these cases, he said, it's not about what your hands are doing either. "The problem is where the mind is, not what the hands are doing," DeCorte said. "Studies show that talking on the phone is as bad as drunk driving."

The GMAC survey shows that people are not paying attention when they're behind the wheel. Calling drive time the new "down time," the report says people are eating (62 percent), talking on a cell phone (71 percent), sending text messages (24 percent), shuffling their iPods (20 percent), putting on makeup or changing clothes (8 percent each), reading (4 percent) or sending e-mail (1 percent).

"It points out what people are using their drive time to do," said Anne Readett of the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning.

She said it's information like that found in the GMAC survey that drives the state to push safety belt use. A person can be the best driver in the world, but that doesn't protect him or her from every other driver on the road.

Interestingly, she said most people do think they're the best drivers in the world.

"We talk about things people should be doing and they agree," Readett said. "But they take it to mean we're talking about other drivers. People believe they're good drivers and the advice isn't for them."

She said the only really successful driver's safety initiatives are ones backed by enforcement.

Summer program keeps young musicians in tune

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

String players don't have to worry about going out of tune this summer. Usually young musicians become rusty when classes cease until September, but not this year. The Livonia Youth Philharmonic Summer Strings Program will keep budding players practicing during a series of four classes 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Thursday, June 29, July 6 and 20, and Aug. 17, at St. Kenneth's social hall, 14951 Haggerty.

The cost is $125. For more information, call (734) 525-7520 or send e-mail to summer@www.lypm.org.

There are no age restrictions.

"We're going to work on theory, technique, ensemble playing," said Julia Kurtyka who's conducting the program. Kurtyka has been directing the Livonia Youth Philharmonic symphonic and concert string orchestras for the last four years. In addition to the two string orchestras, LYPM is composed of a wind ensemble, flute ensemble and philharmonic.

"We (LYPM) try to offer different opportunities for students. One of the reasons we devised the program was to develop the highest quality of musicianship.

"At end of sessions students should have maintained if not increased their skills and gained performance experience."

Kurtyka is planning to have the students play at different venues including a concert 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 26, at Shain Park in Birmingham with the Birmingham Bloomfield Strings Honor Orchestra, a group she founded this year.

Kurtyka has plenty of experience as a musician and hopes to pass that on to students. In addition to conducting the Pointe Area Youth Orchestra in Grosse Pointe, and serving as concertmaster of the Grosse Pointe Symphony, Southern Great Lakes Symphony (Downriver), and assistant concertmaster with the Birmingham Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra, she co-founded the Lexington Bach Festival now in its sixth year. The event begins Thursday, Sept. 14 and continues to Sunday, Sept. 17, with Alexander Zonjic and musicians from as far away as Ohio and Indiana.
