IN BRIEF
Pumpkin sale

Halloween wouldn't be complete without a jack-o-lantern or two. The Westland Historic Village Park, 857 N. Wayne Road at Marquette, is holding a pumpkin sale. Everyone is invited to come by to pick out a pumpkin and learn about Westland history.

The pumpkin sale will be held 5-7 p.m. Thursdays, 1-4 p.m. Saturdays and 10 a.m. to noon Mondays through Saturday, Oct. 23.

Call (734)-326-1110 for information or visit the web site at westlandhistoricvillage.com/index.html.

Democratic rally

The Westland Democratic Club will join the Community, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth and West Oakland Democratic clubs in sponsoring a rally 6-9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 11, in the VisiTech Center on Schoolcraft College's Livonia campus.

Meet Democratic candidates Jocelyn Benson for secretary of state, Virg Bernero for governor, David Leyton for attorney general, Brenda Lawrence for lieutenant governor, Natalie Mosher for Congress, as well as Supreme Court Justices Alton Davis and Denise Langford Morris.

The event is free and open to the public. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty, north of Six Mile, in Livonia.

Church luncheon

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month and the folks at Ss. Simon and Jude Church are thinking pink by holding a Breast Cancer Awareness Luncheon and Card Party 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10, at the church, 32500 Palmer, east of Venoy, Westland.

There will be table and door prizes and a 50/50 raffle. Tickets are $8 and can be reserved by calling (734) 722-1343. All proceeds will go to breast cancer awareness.

Think Pink

Starting Friday, Westland firefighters will be in the pink to show support for women fighting breast cancer and to raise awareness in the community.

Fire Department staff will wear pink T-shirts Oct. 8-15 as they participate in the "Care Enough to Wear Pink" campaign. The shirts for staff members were purchased by the Westland Professional Fire Fighters in honor of October being breast cancer awareness month.

Fire Chief Michael Reddy was sporting one of the pink T-shirts at Monday's council meeting.

There will also be shirts available for purchase at Fire Station No. 1, 36435 Ford next to Westland City Hall, along with donation containers.

The shirts are being provided at cost by Alley Cat Designs on Wayne Road in Westland. The proceeds will be donated to a woman's cancer organization and a firefighter cancer support network charity.

Charges send message to dog owners: They'll be held accountable for attacks

BY LEANNE ROGERS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

A Westland man is among three people facing felony charges over recent attacks by pit bulls in Westland and Dearborn Heights.

Geoffrey Moore, 37, was named in a warrant Tuesday charging him with two counts of dangerous animal causing serious injury, a four-year felony. Wayne County Prosecutor Kym Worthy announced the charges against Moore, Eugene Runco, 51, and Laura Langston, 37, both of Dearborn Heights, at a press conference Tuesday. She said they were charged under state law which defines a dangerous animal as one that bites or attacks a person or causes death to another dog.

Moore was charged in connection with an Aug. 29 incident in which his two pit bulls reportedly attacked a Westland woman, 39, as she walked on Dorsey at Oceana. The woman received approximately 52 stitches to repair injuries to her upper arm.

The woman told police she walked past the home on Oceana where the dogs were staying and heard growling and barking. She quickly walked away but the female pit bulls followed.

A neighbor assisted the woman and the dogs fled. One returned home and was found by police when they arrived. That dog was described as being aggressive with the officers and was shot at the scene. The second dog wasn't located until the following day, held in rabies quarantine for 10 days at the Michigan Humane Society and then euthanized.

"We always have dog issues but this is the only incident that really stands out recently," Westland police Lt. Michael Matich said. "Now we know

Wayne-Westland student loss less than expected

BY SUE MASON
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

If there's a silver lining for the Wayne-Westland Community Schools in the district's K-12 student count, it's that the numbers are better than expected.

The preliminary count, done Sept. 29, shows that the district continues to lose students, but not nearly as many as was projected.

"We did reasonably well," said School Superintendent Greg Baracy. "We're probably down less than 100 above our projections."

The district had anticipated losing 200 students, however, the preliminary count came in 130 students better than expected. That number could change. The district has up to 30 days to capture students for the September, and it has yet to add area shared time students from other districts who use Wayne-Westland programs, many at the William D. Ford Career Technical Center.

The district showed a significant increase in enrollment in its all-day kindergarten program and modest increases in the 5/6 and 7/8 programs. Wayne-Westland closed six elementaries and reconfigured its elementary program turning it elementaries into K/4 campuses and transforming two middle schools in 5/6 programs.

"Being up 130 students is a really good sign for Wayne-Westland," said Baracy. "I don't think "Being up 130 students is a really good sign for Wayne-Westland. I don't think there's any question that the reconfiguration had something to do with it."

GREG BARACY, Wayne-Westland superintendent

there's any question that the reconfiguration had something to do with it. We've gotten a lot of good feedback. A majority of parents have expressed that they like the configuration and that they feel much more confident in their schools."

Baracy added that the numbers reflect a trend in Michigan of younger families moving in with parents and "a high number of families moving out of state to find jobs."

"We've been told that it looks like Michigan will lose 30,000 students this year with families moving out of state," he said.

The student count helps determine how much funding districts get from the state. The results of last Wednesday's count will be blended with one done in February to determine the district's enrollment figure.

Wayne-Westland has more than 12,400 students and is the state's 11th largest school district.

Majority of board wants to raise superintendent's pay

BY KAREN SMITH
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

LIVONIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Livonia school board agreed Monday it needs to raise its superintendent's compensation next school year to a level that is average among school districts of similar size.

"We need to do something to get our district in line; right now he (Superintendent Randy Liepa) is the bottom person of 16 superintendents," board president Lynda Scheel said Tuesday. "We're not looking to make him the top. We're just looking to get this compensation to be average."

Scheel said she will ask the district's legal counsel to prepare a contract for the 2011-12 school year in time for discussion and a possible vote Oct. 18. She emphasized that the increase is being considered for the position, not Liepa as an individual. However, she indicated the board would like to retain Liepa.

Patrice Mang was the only school board member to speak out against a raise. She said her objections were financial, not personal.

TIMING OFF

"I just don't feel as a school district we are in a position to raise the salary of any employee now," Mang said Tuesday. "We just do not have the financial means to be handing out raises, particularly ones this large. I would feel that way if we were doing any other contract right now."

She noted the board this school year cut programs and services and has teachers still on layoff. Mang said she would consider a raise next spring when the board looks at its total budget for 2010-11. This year's budget is $146.1 million, following $11.2 million in cuts and revenue enhancements.

Resident Eileen McDonnell, who spoke out against a raise at Monday's meeting during citizens' comments, agreed the timing is wrong, especially since the district is projected to have only $556,941 in fund equity at the end of the 2010-11 school year.

"These folks are hellbent on giving Randy Liepa that $50,000 raise," she said in an e-mail Tuesday. "It doesn't matter what anyone thinks."

25-PERCENT BELOW AVERAGE

Consultant Jeff Rahmberg of Rahmberg Stover and Associates in Birmingham told the board Sept. 27 that Liepa's wage of $148,919 is $47,725, or 25 percent, below the average wage of 13 area districts with student populations of 10,000 or more and two smaller neighboring districts, Northville and Novi. Livonia has about 17,000 students. Liepa's total compensation, including FICA and retirement, at $203,637 is $58,071 less than the going rate. Scheel said the board needs to analyze its executive compensation package to make sure it's competitive with other districts, given that the state's early retirement incentives in May created superintendent vacancies across Michigan. She said Liepa is considered one of the top superintendents in the state and has been approached about openings in other districts. Liepa would not comment Tuesday on any possible job offers from or interviews with other districts, saying it was personal. Scheel said the board on Monday looked at two options - a straight salary with annual 4-percent raises and a base salary with approximate 4-percent annual raises and increases for longevity, having a doctorate degree and achieving goals. She said the board did not discuss dollar amounts, except for $4,300 for a doctorate degree, $5,000 for five to eight years as superintendent for Livonia schools and $7,500 for nine to 11 years as superintendent for Livonia schools on top of the base salary. Scheel said option two, if Liepa is superintendent again next school year, would put him in the average range.

ELECTION DISCUSSION

In other action Monday, the board agreed it wants to change its elections from May to November in an effort to save an estimated $40,000 a year. However, Scheel said the majority of board members would like to switch to November elections without having to extend most of the board members' terms from four to six years. And, they would like to avoid even-numbered years when the president's and governor's races are also on the ballot. The board will also discuss changing its elections at the Oct. 18 meeting.

WOW taps DeVore as its Woman of the Year

BY LEANNE ROGERS OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The Women of Westland gathered recently to honor their WOW Woman of the Year and celebrate their accomplishments. Linda DeVore was honored as WOW Woman of the Year at the Think Pink Membership Dinner held at the William D. Ford Career Technical Center. Among her recent efforts for WOW, which raises money to fund scholarships for women returning for higher education, DeVore started a Dining for Dollars program in which WOW would receive a percentage of sales at five or six different restaurants on given days. She has also been working on a grant for Westland John Glenn High School. "You don't do these things alone. I have always been appreciative of my husband Don and my family," DeVore said. "My WOW friends inspire me. They turn you loose to live up to your potential. I've had fun with it and we'll find new things we can do together." The Business of the Year Award was presented to MPG Consulting Enterprises President Meghan Giersdorf, who said WOW had been her first client. "Meghan helped us with the ATHENA Award (program), she was a lifesaver. She helped us turn that into a success so that we actually made a profit on the program," WOW President Mary Denning said. Noting she had been involved in the ATHENA Award program for three years, Giersdorf said the award meant a lot. "Thanks so much, you gave me my start," she said. Noting the organization's mission of assisting women in personal and professional growth, WOW Vice President Cindy James recalled joining after attending a membership dinner. "We have a very interesting mix of people. Most of us run a household one way or another. We work and run businesses," James said. "We also find ways to meet once a month and we make it happen." In the last few years, James said WOW has assisted organizations such as Starfish Family Services and the Grange and raised money for Relay for Life, the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center and First Step. "It's difficult for a small organization. It's all about teamwork. If I didn't see the worth, I wouldn't have stayed," James said. WOW awards scholarships to Westland women over age 21 who are returning to school. WOW has awarded $10,000 in scholarships in the past 10 years. Fund-raisers include the annual ATHENA Award Chocolate Fantasy Ball, which is held in March. Another event, the WOW Fall Bash, is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 23, at Joy Manor in Westland. Part of the proceeds will go toward the Barbara Douglas Scholarship, awarded in memory of a late WOW member. The doors open at 6:30 p.m. with dancing 7:30-11:30 p.m. to Over Easy. The cost is $20 per person, including open bar and pizza. Tickets are available at Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe, 8036 N. Wayne Road, Westland. why it was taking so long to get these charges. This is a seldom used law, but we are seeing more frequent attacks." In the Westland incident, Match said he thought the severity of the victim's injuries prompted a harder look at charges being filed against the dogs' owner. "She (the victim) is recovering. I don't know what her condition is now. She was out of the hospital the day after the attack," he said. Putting dog owners on notice that they will be held accountable for their animals, Worthy said she is seeking funding for a team of full-time prosecutors to staff an Animal Protective Unit to handle the increasing number and complexity of animal-related legal issues. The cost was estimated at $130,000. Westland police are making arrangements to get Moore arraigned on the two felony counts.

Lah-Dee-Dahs win annual baseball classic

Despite optimistic predictions of a win for the home team, the Westland Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dahs took a thumping from the Lah-Dee-Dahs of Greenfield Village during the annual Vintage Baseball Game at Jaycee Park. Played with 1867 rules, which means no gloves, the more experienced Lah-Dee-Dahs beat the Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dahs 19-5 - not exactly a pitchers duel.

Members of the Westland Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dahs took a thumping from the Lah-Dee-Dahs of Greenfield Village strike a pose before their annual baseball game.

Despite the 15-run deficit, Westland Mayor William Wild called the event a "Grand Slam!" The true winner of the event was the Westland Historic Commission. Nearly $1,000 was raised by the players and concession stand with all proceeds benefiting the Westland Historic Village Park. This was the fourth year for the vintage baseball game and even though the Lah-Dee-Dahs have swept the games thus far, each year money is raised for the Historic Commission. This year such funds are will likely help pay for vinyl siding for the Rowe House at the Westland Historical Village. Not only did the Westland Historic Village win, but so did the Wayne-Westland Salvation Army. During the game, non-perishable food items were collected for its Food Pantry. "It is always enjoyable to play an old-fashioned gentlemen's game with the Lah-Dee-Dahs but we are most proud of the generous contributions raised for the Historic Village park and the more than 500 cans of foods that we were able to collect and donate to our local Salvation Army," said Wild.

W-W's Hoover School honored for student achievement

BY SUE MASON
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland's Hoover Elementary School has been tapped to receive a state award for excellence in leadership in school improvement.

The school was among four to receive the 2010 Robert and Patricia Muth Excellence in Leadership Award from the Middle Cities Education Association. The annual award honors K-12 schools in urban school systems that demonstrate leadership in school improvement, specifically improvements that reflect gains in student achievement.

"The Muth Award recognizes schools that have made extraordinary gains in student achievement," said Ray Telman, executive director of Middle Cities, a coalition of 33 urban school districts in Michigan. "It also helps us identify best practices so that those successful methods could be shared with other schools."

The award was presented to Jennifer Curry, principal for the 2009-10 school year, and current Principal Jennifer Chambers. It includes a $1,500 check to be used for school improvement.

According to Paul Salah, senior executive director of instruction, the staff's "passion for the kids and clear commitment to education just really came through" at the award presentation in Lansing last week.

"I think what Hoover has done is one example of what takes place in Wayne-Westland," he said. "The staff is wholeheartedly committed to the children of the building and to the educational programs."

Curry told the board that with the help of a pilot rapid intervention program and the staff's commitment to improvement, students' test scores improved 10-14 percent.

"We had a plan and stuck to it and were consistent," she said. "When we said we would meet, we met."

The award specifically recognized the school for offering strategic and timely intervention to engage and improve student achievement and its tremendous growth in scores on the state's standardized tests and its "incredible" intervention programs.

The staff of Wayne-Westland's Hoover Elementary School in Wayne - Lisa Rotenheber, Diane DeLuca-Smith, Linda Goodin, Andrea D'Amico, Maureen Twomey, Amy Morse, Cheryl Rujan, Katherine Brake, Principal Jennifer Chambers, Kim Renas, Rachel Dean, Pamela Cusumano, Kimberly Lepish, Donna Carol and Rachel Slovinac - show of the Muth Award the school received for excellence in leadership in school improvement.

"I truly see the teacher leadership and teamwork; parents, teachers and students are working together as partners in education," said Chambers. "It's just an extraordinarily happy place to be, I'm lucky to be there."

According to Diane DeLuca-Smith, an interventionist at the school, the improvement plan is student centered and a collaborative effort. While students are responsible for learning, the differential instruction is geared to meet their individual needs.

"Students are grouped by instructional level, interests and needs," she said. "We have a shared focus for the students with goals and action plans. We're always talking about the success of the students and how to make it better for them."

She added that when the school applied for the award, they looked at what is done at Hoover. The reaction, she said, was: "Oh, my God, we do so much."

The school fosters reading with small guided groups and having children read at their own levels so they can practice.

It also has across-the-grades reading buddies and monthly writer's workshops and monthly writing prompts to help students master the MEAP's writing on demand.

"We use the standards to see where we need to go," said second-grade teacher Rachel Slovinac. "Our mini lessons drive instruction. It helps students with what they need."

DeLuca-Smith also praised parents for their involvement in the school, pointing out that they come in and does such things as running off copies and cutting out things out for the literacy stations.

"The neat thing is that it was organized by a parent," she said.

"Our school and principal have changed, but what has not changed is our passion for the children," she added.

Trustee Carol Middel thanked the staff for their efforts.

"We value what you do and the students value what you have done for them," she said.

"To me and my staff, we will continue to do what we're doing," said Chambers. "It's a matter of remembering to be consistent and persistent."

Lincoln School clinic open, move planned for November

The school it sits in is closed and on the real estate market, but the Oakwood Health Care Clinic at Lincoln Elementary is still open to residents of the Norwayne community.

Soon, officials at Oakwood Health Systems hope to move it to an even better location: where the children are. The school-based clinic, funded by the Oakwood Foundation, will move into Adams Upper Elementary School in November, according to Lisa Rutledge, corporate director of Community Outreach for Oakwood Healthcare, Inc. The plan has received all required approvals and construction will start soon.

"We're hoping to be up and running by Thanksgiving," she said.

Oakwood has operated the clinic since about 1997. The initial goals was to improve student and family health, increase family health knowledge and awareness of health-care needs, increase student attendance and to bring health care to students and families that couldn't otherwise afford it.

Physical exams, vision and hearing screenings, basic lab services and mental health services are available at the clinic a welcome and well-used amenity in the community. There were 512 users that accounted for 1,963 visits last year.

Declining enrollment and revenue faced by the Wayne-Westland Community Schools made the move necessary. The district was forced to close six of its elementary schools in order to better utilize its facilities and reduce annual costs. Lincoln and nearby Jefferson-Barnes Elementary schools were among the schools closed.

The clinic will be moved to Adams Upper Elementary School on Palmer at Schuman, and when it's complete, it will provide improved conditions for students, their parents and staff alike, said Lee Tobar, director of School-based Health for OHI.

The new clinic will feature three examination rooms and additional office space. In the current clinic, nurses had to share an office, while another office was literally a converted closet with most of the shelves removed.

"We're moving from a tiny space into a much larger area," said Tobar. "Everyone will have more room. It will be a much bigger, brighter area."

The new clinic will replace three home economic classrooms at Adams Upper Elementary, a converted middle school that now houses fifth-sixth-grade students.

Because the renovations are so unique, Rutledge estimated that it will cost about $100,000 and take about six weeks to complete. The Oakwood Foundation is heading up a donation drive for the work, and to fund the ongoing costs of the clinic.

Rutledge said the new space would better accommodate students and allow for increased health education.

"Obviously, the focus will change from elementary school students to middle school students, but I think it gives us a better opportunity for health education," she said. "A fifth- or sixth-grader will retain the knowledge better."

The current Oakwood Clinic at Lincoln Elementary School is at 33800 Grand Traverse in Westland. It is open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, 1-8 p.m. on Wednesday and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday. To schedule an appointment, call (734) 728-2423.

Don't be spooked by flash crash into rash decisions

Last May we experienced a flash crash, when in less than a 15-minute period the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped nearly 1,000 points. Within a short time, the market bounced back and what could have been a catastrophe turned out to be a bad day.

The day of the flash crash — and for a time afterward — there was speculation as to what caused the crash. There were people who speculated it was an error in entering an order to something more sinister, suggesting that someone was trying to manipulate the market. The variety of speculation on Wall Street and in the media resulted in fear on behalf of investors. In fact, many investors, fearful that we were about to enter another period of extreme volatility, decided to liquidate their portfolios. The good news is the report showed there was nothing sinister about the flash crash nor was there any attempt to manipulate the market. Rather, it was a series of events that all came together in the proverbial perfect storm.

Money Matters

According to the report, the epicenter of the crash was a trade done by a mutual fund company.

According to the report, the mutual fund company, believing that the market was set for a downturn, employed an aggressive selling strategy. Although, the strategy itself is not that unusual, what was unusual is the timeframe used to employ the strategy. As opposed to spreading out the transaction over a period of time which is normal, the company employed the strategy over a very short period of time. This event triggered other transactions and suddenly the Dow was down nearly 1,000 points. After certain market controls were triggered, the markets were able to stabilize and it turned out to be just a bad day.

This is not the last of the flash crash. Most likely there will be congressional hearings, new regulations and, of course, a fair number of conspiracy theories. As investors, we should focus on what we can learn from this event.

The obvious is that speculation doesn't do anyone any good. Immediately after the flash crash, the talking heads were on TV with all sorts of theories. Although it was entertaining, it was pure speculation. Crazy things happen in the market over short periods of time and investors need to recognize that. As difficult as it may be, investors must be disciplined. It's been shown that investors who act out of fear or greed inevitably end up making the wrong decision. When market volatility occurs, it almost always pays to take a step back and let things settle down.

Another lesson is that we ought to discount the people who claim that upon any irregularity there is some sort of sinister conspiracy. People who claim the markets are fixed and controlled behind the scenes generally have no clue what they are talking about.

As investors, it behooves us to avoid any information coming from people who lack credibility. It's tough enough being an investor without having to deal with people who have no clue. Of course, that doesn't mean that you should turn a blind eye to the gyrations of the market. However, make sure that before you radically change your portfolio, you're not relying upon speculation and hearsay. Rely on the facts. Good luck.

Laptop, phone reported stolen from residence

Larceny

Police were called to Blaze Construction, 7240 N. Merriman, Oct. 4 when 40 black manhole frames and covers valued at $12,000 were reported stolen.

Break-in

On Sept. 29, a resident in the 2500 block of Nichols Court told police that he was away for about three hours, returning about 1 p.m. Several hours later, he said he noticed his laptop computer and cell phone were missing from his bedroom.

The resident was unsure whether his sliding doorwall had been locked but the officer noted fresh pry marks near the door lock. The computer and phone were valued at $1,075.

Attempted break-ins

A resident in the 36000 block of North Deerhurst told police Sept. 29 that at 11:20 p.m. she was about to go to bed when she heard scratching at her kitchen window. When she turned on her kitchen light, the woman said she noticed her kitchen window was open and called police.

Officers found pry marks on the window and the screen was about 50 feet away in the yard. A police dog followed a track but was unable to locate a suspect.

On Oct. 4, a resident in the 6600 block of Quail Run Circle told police that at about 11:40 p.m. she heard the alarm go off at her residence. She said she didn't hear anything else or notice anything wrong.

When the alarm went off a second time, the woman said she looked outside and thought someone was trying to break in. The alarm company had called and they alerted police.

An officer found a window screen laying on the grassy area north the residence's rear deck. Scratches were noted where the screen had been removed. The door wall was found open a few inches but the officer said it had been secured with two wooden blocks. The bulbs in two exterior flood lights were found unscrewed.

The owner told police that someone had moved the barbecue grill which she leaves in front of the steps leading to the back yard. She said she leaves it there to discourage people from coming onto the deck from the back yard area.

A police dog tracked a suspect to just past Building 18 of the Landings Apartments, but no suspect was located.

Break-in

A cash box containing $400 cash, an estimated $15,000 worth of money orders and a digital camera, valued at $300, were reported stolen from the office of the Landings Apartments, 7000 Lakeview Blvd., Oct. 5.

The office is located inside the clubhouse and employees told police someone may have propped a door open or hidden in the building until it was closed since there was no sign of forced entry.

The drop box was reported broken open and unknown contents were taken. It was also reported that packages meant for residents had been opened and some items possibly stolen.

Vehicle stolen

An orange 2008 Dodge Dakota pickup truck, valued at $8,000, was reported stolen Oct. 5 while it was parked in the 2000 block of Kaley. The owner, a New Hudson man, said he was current on his payments and had all of the keys to the truck which was parked on the street for nearly three and one-half hours.

Vandalism

An ex-boyfriend is being blamed for breaking the door of a home in the 29000 block of Cambridge Sept. 29.

The homeowner told police the Livonia man came to the home to borrow money and when the woman refused, he became upset and kicked in door, breaking the door jamb.

The woman told police it's an ongoing problem with the man who breaks her belongings when she refuses him money. She also showed police a text message he sent, apologizing for breaking the door, police said.

Stolen vehicle

A 1974 Corvette was reported stolen from a garage of a home in the 1500 block of Gilman Sept. 29.

The daughter of the homeowner told police she received a call from her father, asking her to check after getting a call from a neighbor. The owner was up north fishing. The daughter said the garage door was closed when she got to the house. Her father usually parks his truck in the driveway, but left in a hurry the day before and left it parked at the curb. She also produced the only set of keys to the car which were in the house.

The side door to the garage was locked and there appeared to be no damage to it and the overhead door.

The neighbor told police he saw a young white man in his 20s back the car out of the driveway and drive away about 11 a.m. Another neighbor reported that her remote doorbell kept going off and that she found a garage door opener will set it off.

The car was valued at $15,000.

Careless driving

A 16-year-old Dearborn youth was ticketed for careless driving and having no driver's license Sept. 16 following an altercation with a group of teens at Beechwood and Deering.

The teens told police the dispute happened over a traffic accident in Dearborn Heights. The driver backed up the vehicle on Deering, nearly striking several parked cars, then spun into a driveway before driving off at high rate of speed, police said.

Police reportedly located the vehicle pulling out of an apartment complex in Dearborn Heights near Warren and Inkster roads. The driver was an 18-year-old Dearborn Heights woman who told police she had switched places with the teen because he had driven the vehicle to the Deering-Beechwood area without a license, police said.

The teen was also ticketed for never acquiring a license.

MEDC program boosts small business

BY LEANNE ROGERS
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Jeff Emerson was happy to see Gov. Jennifer Granholm come to his Westland business, American Gear & Engineering, to talk about the new federal Small Business Jobs Act.

Emerson credits the financial backing his business received through a similar state program operated by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation with keeping the doors open for a 26th year.

American Gear & Engineering was recently approved to receive financing for diversification projects through the Michigan Supplier Diversification Fund (MSDF), that was, in part, a model for the Small Business Act of 2010 recently signed into law by President Obama.

With about 45 employees, American Gear & Engineering had been profitable for more than 24 years but ran into a problem in year 25.

"The MEDC helped us secure a bank loan and we were able to stay in business. It's a great day when the governor came here," said Emerson, who gave Granholm a tour of his facility that produces gears of all sorts and sizes for a wide range of industries. "Companies were only able to survive by (the owners) taking money from 401Ks and home equity loans."

When his business sputtered due to the economy, Emerson said he wasn't able to get bank financing.

"My bank ... turned their back on us. They tried to take the money. I spent a year trying to find another bank," Emerson said.

Another bank did offer him financing, but he felt the offer was poor.

Luckily, he said, another bank came forward after reading an article about the situation.

"Within five weeks, we had a line of credit," he said.

That's exactly the type of situation the MEDC program was designed to address, Granholm said.

"The banks were not positively disposed towards manufacturing. You have a company that for 24 years always met payroll and paid its bills," Granholm said. "They have trouble in one quarter and their credit freezes up like an engine."

The MEDC works with banks to keep the lines of credit open by depositing funds with the bank that reduce the loan risk amount.

"We told the Obama administration about the plan and said they should offer it nationwide," said Granholm, adding about 25 business took advantage of the program to save nearly 9,000 jobs. "The president signed the bill last week. Michigan will get $78 million to offer to other businesses what was offered to Jeff and American Gear & Engineering."

The program isn't designed to have the state directly fund a business.

"Any business has access to the program, if they feel credit has been choked off," said Granholm, who posed for photos with workers on the shop floor during her tour. "We buy down the risk and let it be paid down as the loan is repaid."

Following the tour, Granholm told American Gear & Engineering workers that she hoped they felt proud to be a great example of how the small business program can succeed.

"Jeff (Emerson) is a great guy. He's not an absentee owner as you can see," said Westland Mayor William Wild, noting Emerson was dressed like his employees wearing a uniform with his first name embroidered on the shirt. "This is a great program and a great approach."

Wild noted another business lesson from American Gear & Engineering. More than a decade ago, the company diversified its customer base from more than 90 percent automotive to other industries such as agriculture, military uses and cranes. Today, the firm's automotive customers are less than 10 percent of their business.

OUR VIEWS

18th House District LeBlanc is best choice to represent Westland

On Nov. 2, residents will go to the polls to vote for whom they want to represent them in state government. From governor on down to state representative, the makeup of state government will change dramatically, especially in the legislature where a large number of members of both houses are term limited.

Some candidates are campaigning about being on the winning team, already predicting who will win the governor's race in November. But it is more about who can put Michigan on the right track than who the engineer will be. Turning the state around will take all elected officials in Lansing working together.

In the state's 18th House District, which takes in all of the City of Westland, Democratic incumbent State Rep. Richard LeBlanc is seeking his final two-year term in the legislature. He is being challenged by Republican Floyd Collins. The difference between the two men is stark.

Collins readily admits that a lot of the established politicians don't like his ideas. He describes himself as a conservative who wants to "fix Michigan." His "core beliefs" are a reduction in the size of government, including creating a part-time legislature, lower taxes on business to create more jobs and lower taxes on individuals to stimulate the economy.

Taxes is the one thing the two men agree on. LeBlanc favors new opportunities for investment in the state and while he wants to see a revision in the tax code, he's not prepared to give away the store to new business while ignoring the state's heritage businesses. Viewed as a moderate, he says as a lawmaker he represents the state first and the city second and believes he does things the way the people of Westland want it done.

Looking at both men, talking to them and hearing their answers to our many questions, we believe that Richard LeBlanc is the best choice to represent the 18th District.

He has the demeanor and the ability to work with his colleagues in the House on both sides of the political aisle to bring about the change needed, if Michigan is to successfully reinvent itself. He is not a party yes man, but rather votes for what he believes is right.

A case in point: Last year Speaker of the House Any Dillon stripped him of his chairmanships of the Military and Veterans Affairs and the Michigan State Police committees as punishment for refusing to vote in favor of the ill-fated proposal to additionally tax Michigan physicians. A month later, Dillon re-instated LeBlanc to the posts.

He also worked side-by-side with State Sen. Glenn Anderson and the Wayne-Westland Community Schools in getting lawmakers to keep the $6.5 million the district receives in lieu of a millage not allowed for in calculating school funding under Proposal A in the School Aid Act last year and has worked to keep it there.

We believe he is the man for the job and urge voters to re-elect Richard LeBlanc to represent the House's 18th District. Our regret is that this is the last time we can do this because of term limits.

Retain Barns' Legacy

I was saddened to read that the Wayne-Westland Board of Education is considering the sale of five closed elementary schools. One is the Jefferson-Barns School in the Norwayne neighborhood. The school, originally named Jefferson Elementary, had Justine Barns' name added years later to honor the woman for her many political and community service accomplishments.

She was on the first Westland City Council and later served as a county commissioner and state representative. Before being elected to public office, Ms. Barns was a leader in her Norwayne neighborhood. If the school which is partly named for her is either sold or demolished, I hope that the city administration and city council will consider naming a neighborhood part in her honor so that Ms. Barns, usually referred to as Justine or just plain Jay, will have her legacy continued for generations to come.

On a related question, I also hope that the school board can find a developer or convince the city's own housing commission to convert the former school into a senior citizens apartments complex, which has been done in several Detroit-area suburbs as well as across the country. If that happens, there would have a double benefit: It would continue Justine's legacy and provide much needed housing for retirees.

Wrong place to campaign

I am completely disgusted by the obvious ethical disregard by Natalie Mosher. I attended the Noodles and Neighbors event at the Westland Friendship Center Oct. 1 and was shocked to see a marked campaign vehicle with signs in the parking lot of a city-run building. The driver was definitely campaigning to people who were entering the parking lot. If this woman is already willing to break public trust, what will be next?

I am appalled that the city of Westland allowed this to go on. Did Mr. LeBlanc, who sponsored the event, know about it? Did none of those there call Mosher out on this?

Very sad and dishonest.

Remember the farmers

More than ever before, the vast majority of Americans are increasingly disconnected from the individuals who provide us with food, fiber and fuel.

Farms in Michigan range from small beginning farmers to large operations. It's important to realize that almost all of Michigan farms are owned and operated by families. Whether they grow potatoes for Frito Lay or for a farmers market, they work long hours to plant and harvest the crop. They are businessmen and women who know that if they do not make a profit, they will not be able to afford to keep farming and feed the world.

There are 54,800 farms in Michigan. We have more different kinds of crops than any state except California. And the Michigan State University Product Center reported that agri-food and agri-energy are a $71.3 billion industry in Michigan.

Agriculture is responsible for one out of every 12 jobs in America. And while many sectors of our economy are running trade deficits, American agriculture has had a trade surplus for nearly 50 years. This year the surplus is expected to exceed $30 billion. Agriculture exports help create important income opportunities for producers as well as off-farm jobs that are so critical for strengthening economies across America. In fact, every billion dollars in agricultural exports supports more than 8,000 jobs and generates an additional $1.4 billion in economic activity.

As Americans, we are fortunate to live in a country where the strength of our agriculture economy provides us with an income advantage over the rest of the world. On average, Americans spend less than 10 percent of family income on food - much less than other western nations - freeing up income to save for retirement, pay the mortgage and purchase goods that would otherwise be unaffordable.

If there is a group of Americans that fully embody our nation's values, it is the farmers of the United States. As we continue through harvest season, these hardworking men and women work long hours to bring in the crops they spent time, energy and money to produce. Meanwhile, they face the threat of natural disasters, rapidly fluctuating commodity prices and increasing input costs.

America's farmers have helped our country become strong and stay strong. They've provided consumers with the highest quality food and fiber and today they are helping to lay the foundation for a new energy economy.

This week as you visit the grocery store, a restaurant or farmers market, I am asking that you join my colleagues and me at the U.S. Department of Agriculture in thanking America's farmers. I'm certain they will be grateful to know that their fellow citizens appreciate their role in making America a truly great nation.

End squabbling

The squabble over political parties is getting out of control. People are worrying more about what party they believe in than who the representative is or what he/she plans to do about the issues of our nation. People get so wrapped up in their need to generalize that they don't try to see both sides of the argument. This causes the lack of nationalism that is critical for a recovering nation.

I was reading the Opinion page in last week's edition of the Novi News, and I noticed that the Letters portion of the page was almost completely filled with people complaining about other parties doing the wrong thing for the country. The first letter had the right idea in saying "... voters are acting as if though they have amnesia ..." but then it went downhill when it started to blame the Republican Party for the economic failure. The next letter did the exact same thing, but against the Democratic Party. The proving words were, "Come November, vote Republican." Each of these letters has its focus set on the economy, but blames an entire party for what both sides have done and not done.

Now I'm not trying to say that anyone with a complaint is evil or misguided. That would rule out the entire human race. I'm saying that people should focus their criticism on the actual people and leave the rest of the party up for judgment. Maybe we as a nation should just rid ourselves of political parties entirely. President George Washington, in his farewell speech, specifically stated that the two things the United States should not do were form political parties and form alliances. He believed that political parties would divide the nation, which it has. Also, President Abraham Lincoln said, "A house divided cannot stand." I believe that these two great historical minds have wisdom that is still applicable today.

McCotter doing his job

U.S. Rep. Thaddeus McCotter was unable to attend a candidate forum in Livonia Sept. 9 because he was attending a meeting in Washington, D.C., with a senior vice president at the Motor & Equipment Manufacturers Association. His opponent, Democrat Natalie Mosher, was quick to make a statement saying McCotter wasn't at the forum because he was "spending time with crooked lobbyists" at a conference in Washington, D.C.

I thought that a politician was elected to help create and save jobs for Michigan workers. I think that Democrat Mosher should look no further than Harry Reid, Nancy Pelosi and Charles Rangel when it comes to associating with crooked lobbyists. Sen. Reid has five sons and four of them are lobbyists.

As a veteran of World War II, I have attended many sessions that Rep. McCotter gave to veterans and he is always polite and answers all the questions that we asked. His opponent Natalie Mosher has nothing to do but bad-mouth her rival. I wouldn't vote for her if she ran for dog catcher, a job she is probably better suited to hold.
