Wayne council OKs plan for downtown McDonald's

Residents say restaurant will 'change face of city forever'

By LeAnne Rogers
Observer Staff Writer

With a properly zoned site and other requirements met, Wayne council members had no reason to deny a site plan to allow a new McDonald's restaurant on Michigan Avenue West and Wayne Road

Before approving the site plan at Tuesday's meeting, council members heard from residents who were unhappy with the fast food chain locating in the downtown district. The now-closed Rex's House of Pancakes will be demolished and replaced by the new restaurant

Former Councilwoman Susan Rowe noted that the master plan called for creating a more walkable urban downtown area.

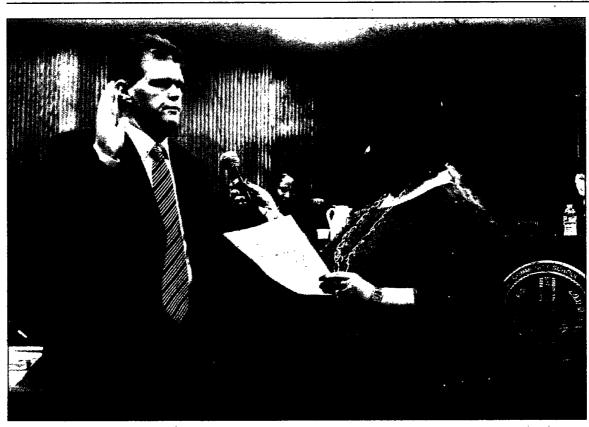

"We're at a crossroads. This site was to be a catalyst — an opportunity for redevelopment with parking to the rear," said Rowe. "We spent a lot of money on this but there is no overlay district ordinance. We had town hall meetings. We gave promises that we would make downtown more walkable."

That lack of ordinance restrictions allowed the McDonald's on a site zoned for a restaurant with drive-through windows allowed as an ancillary use.

The plans for McDonald's show a restaurant that looks like the McDonald's at Michigan Avenue and Gulley in Dearborn, said Rowe.

"The building is not attractive to me. Nvew development should look like the existing buildings,"

Middel tapped to lead W-W school board

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

The Wayne-Westland school board has a new member following the swearing of Sally Madison Monday evening.

Madison and incumbent Frederick Weaver were sworn into office as part of the school board's organizational meeting.

"I want to thank my family and friends for their support," said Madison, whose husband, Ron, administered the oath of office. "It's an honor to have been elected. I look forward to serving."

A Westland resident, Madison was the top vote-getter in the November school election, winning one of two six-year terms on the board.

W-W Fire Department processes passport requests

The Wayne-Westland Fire Department has added a new service - processing U.S. pass-

The U.S. State Department recently certified the department to officially process U.S. passports.

Located at 3300 S. Wayne Road, the Wayne-Westland Fire Administration Office will accept passport applications 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, or appointments can be scheduled by calling (734) 467-3201.

"The cities of Wayne and Westland are committed to providing their residents with the best services possible, and with the addition of the Wayne-Westland Fire Department becoming a certified passport acceptance facility, we continue to make Westland convenient for almost any need," Westland Mayor William Wild said.

The costs for the application process are the standard fees set by the State Department, which include a $110 application fee, a $25 execution fee, $15 passport photo, if purchased with the fire department, as well as an $18.95 to agency and $12.72 for return mailing fee. Overnight delivery and expedited services are additional fees.

Mayor says cooperative efforts will be focus in 2013

By LeAnne Rogers
Observer Staff Writer

Following a year that saw Westland and Wayne merge their fire and parks and recreation departments, expect a continuation of cooperative efforts in 2013

"We will continue working with the City of Wayne. We've got some potential areas to look at like the senior department," said Westland Mayor William Wild.

Westland has the Friendship Center with its $12 per year annual membership fee, which provides a nutrition site and a variety of programs for senior citizens. Wayne's senior program has undergone budget cuts and is housed within the Wayne Community Center.

Information technology is another area where some consolidation/merger may take place, Wild said.

And expect some serious merger discussions in the area of emergency services dispatching. Currently, Wayne and Garden City have a joint dispatching operation for police in each city and Garden City fire/EMS.

With the merged Wayne-Westland Fire Department, the Westland dispatcher took over fire/EMS dispatching along with Westland police calls. In addition, the Westland dispatchers handle emergency dispatching for Inkster.

"We're discussing Wayne, Westland, Garden City and Inkster under a joint dispatch. Our goal is a joint dispatch by July 1," said Wild.

Further merging of fire services also may be ahead.

"Our merger with Wayne has gone incredibly smoothly," said Wild. "I expect that there will be talks with Garden City once they get a city manager (hired)."

Westland continues to participate in talks with the Big Four—Westland, Canton, Livonia and Dearborn—looking for ways to share services for greater costeffectiveness.

"We've done a couple of sessions. It doesn't look like we could do consolidation of departments due to the geography," said Wild. "In 2013, the focus will be more on best practices and training. We'll work together on keeping training costs down."

Training costs have become more of an issue, Wild said, with the high turnover in staff seen by communities due to early retirements and other reductions spurred by decreased budgets.

she said.

Another resident, Ron Roberts, argued that the McDonald's was primarily a drive-through restaurant -- that the drivethrough wasn't ancillary to the business.

"If you let McDonald's in, there is nothing to stop other fast food in downtown Wayne," said Roberts. "If you approve this, it will change the face of the city forever. All that we worked for years will be over. You owe it to citizens to take the time to make a clear decision."

One criticism from council members was over the decor at the Dearborn restaurant, which was described as stark. Councilman James Henley suggested the restaurant contact the nearby Wayne Historical Museum for photos.

"We're proud of our city," said Henley. McDonald's representative Tom Gergich responded that the franchisees make decisions on the restaurant decor within guidelines from the corporation.

The restaurant, which will be open 24 hours day for dine-in and drivethrough service, includes an outdoor seating area.

"We're trying to make it more cafe-like. There are no fastened-to-the-floor seats," said Gergich. "We try to serve the customers' needs. We have flat screen televisions, fireplaces, even some fish tanks. Most of the operators do a very fine job with the decor and matching it to the community." While it was hard to hear comments criticizing McDonald's, Councilman John Rhaesa said people came out because they are proud of Wayne.

"I want to raise the standards so we have the best McDonald's Wayne can have. The people are proud of their city, that's what is really being said," said Rhaesa.

It was disappointing as a councilman not to be able to take any other action regarding the McDonald's site plan due to the lack of an appropriate ordinance, said Rhaesa, who requested an overlay ordinance be discussed during the council's upcoming goal-setting sessions.

Biggest Loser last year, Allen "Buddy" Shuh has done a lot of motivational speeches.

But the 12-week Buddy Up free health program that kicks off Saturday, Jan. 26, will be a bit different.

"This is the most extensive thing I've done. I've not done anything like this before," said Shuh. "I hope people will change their habits and the way they think on a permanent basis. The short-term goal is weight loss. Long term, it's not waiting to return to old habits."

So far, 262 people have signed on for the Buddy Up program which will meet 8:30-10 a.m. Saturdays for 12 consecutive weeks, beginning Jan. 26, at the Westland Friendship Center, 1119 N. Newburgh.

The weekly sessions will have three parts. The first half hour will consist of weighing in, followed by a nutritional class where Shuh, a Wayne resident, will teach what he learned from Biggest Loser, and conclude with an exercise segment.

"I plan on being up front and honest with people. What happened on Biggest Loser will not happen in real life," said Shuh. "It's all about calories in and calories out. When you exercise six to eight hours a day, you lose two pounds in a day. You could lose 10 pounds in a week but that's not realistic. In normal life, losing two pounds a week is realistic.'

If local reaction means much, fans just 'glad' to have hockey

By Brad Kadrich

Way back when, Joan Tingstad had a sister who wanted to marry Red Wings great Gordie Howe so badly that she cried when he married someone else.

Howe has long since been forgiven, and now Tingstad, a Northville resident who caught Red Wings practice Tuesday at Plymouth Township's Compuware Arena, is equally ready to forgive the NHL for the lockout that cost her half a season. Tingstad, who said she's a fan "from the Abel-Lindsay-Howe" era, watched the practice with her daughter and fellow fan, Holly Evans of Westland.

"A lot of people are really mad, but I'm not," Tingstad said of the lockout, which nearly cut the NHL season in half. "I love hockey. I'm looking forward to the season."

Evans lamented the length of the practice -"It was too short," she said - and said she was surprised to even see them playing.

"I thought they were done," the Westland resident said. "At this late date. I thought (the season) was over."

Fans have crowded into Compuware Arena to watch the Red Wings practice the last few days, including Tuesday night's Red and White scrimmage. Local fans, at least, are seemingly willing to forgive both the players and the league for the 113-day lockout that cost so much of the season (the Wings open the regular season Saturday at St. Louis).

Jimmy Garlit of Plymouth said he's been a fan of the Wings for some 50

"It's completely unnecessary. ... That's just the nature of the business," Garlitt said of the lockout. "To me, there are only two sports (teams) in this town — the Tigers and the Red Wings. I'm incredibly glad they're back."

Julie Anne Garlitt has only been a fan since she and Jimmy have been together -- "That's 21 years ... if you can't beat 'em, join 'em," she said with a laugh - and she remembered her husband's reaction when the lockout ended.

"He heard about it and said, 'My prayers have been answered," she Larry Rafalski of Canton said he watched the lockout and said he "could see the players' point and the clubs' point." He said it was exciting to see them up close in the friendly confines of Compuware.

"They looked good considering how long they've been off," Rafalski said. "It was great to see them up close. Their reflexes are amazing. (But) with that long break, you lose something. I hope it doesn't hurt them.'

Zak Fadden and Shannon Perry, both Plymouth residents, took in the practice together. Fadden said he thought the NHL took a growth step last year, with the Los Angeles Kings winning their first Stanley Cup.

"I thought the NHL grew last year, but the lockout might have hurt that," Fadden said. "I'm just glad they're back."

Perry said she thought the Wings "looked tired," and doesn't really care about all that other stuff. She expressed the same emotion the NHL might be hoping to hear from everyone. "It was fun," she said of watching them practice. "I love the Red Wings."

Copper plumbing stolen from home

Vandalism

The maintenance man for a condominium in the 1800 block of Stieber told police Jan. 10 that when he arrived at the unit he found someone had been inside it.

There was no sign of a break-in, but he reported a piece of copper plumbing connected to the water meter had been cut out and stolen. The meter was found on the floor and the water was flowing into the basement. At the time police were called, there was several inches of water on the basement floor.

Break-in

Police were called to a home in the 30000 block of Hiveley on Jan. 12 about an air conditioning unit and copper piping that had been stolen. A real estate agent arrived to show the home but found the lock box containing a key to the house was missing. Checking the house further, it was noticed that the air conditioning unit was missing from the back yard and a window was open. The copper piping was missing from the basement and laundry room.

A 20-gallon air compressor, a slider comp saw and a set of wrenches/ratchets, valued at $1,550, were reported stolen from a garage in the 28000 block of Ann Arbor Trail on Jan. 12. The owner told police he last remembered seeing the tools Jan. 6.

When he left for work Jan. 12, the resident said he noticed the garage side door open but thought his wife had left it open.

Larceny from a vehicle

On Jan. 10, a resident of a home in the 900 block of Fairlane told police that someone had stolen her wallet from her unlocked vehicle. She said her driver's license and credit and debit cards were missing.

• A resident in the 7900 block of North Beatrice told police Jan. 11 that someone had stolen his wallet, containing $10, his identification and credit cards, from his vehicle. A window on the car had been broken.

Museum adds B-24 cockpit to its WWII collection

The Yankee Air Museum has added an important new artifact to its World War II exhibit: a meticulously restored cockpit assembly for the B-24.

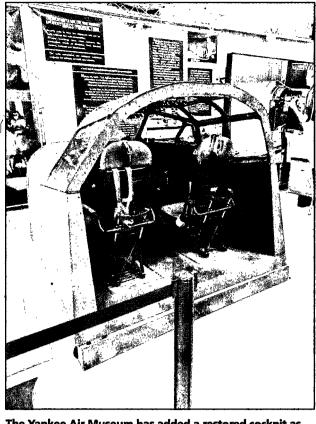

The four engine B-24 heavy bomber was built by Ford Motor Company at Willow Run Airport, heart of the Arsenal of Democracy. The cockpit joins a 1930s era Franklin PS-2 Glider, built in Ypsilanti, as the most significant recent acquisitions of the period.

"Having an historic Franklin Glider and a fully restored B-24 cockpit on display sends a positive message to the community," said Ray Hunter, YAM chairman of the board. "This exclaims grateful recognition to the men and women who worked at Willow Run, including Roswell Franklin the founder of the Franklin Glider Corporation, who helped develop the B-24 auto-pilot system."

According to Hunter, Ford produced 8,685 B-24s at the Willow Run manufacturing complex between 1942 until the end of World War II. He hopes surviving members of America's Greatest Generation who worked at Willow Run will come and see the exhibit once it is completed.

The museum expects the exhibit to open by Jan. 21.

"Since reopening the YAM Collections and Exhibits Building on Oct. 9, 2010, we've been immersed in organizing ourselves as a top flight institution," said Kevin Walsh, YAM's executive director. "Having done that, it's now exciting to enter a new era with attractive and meaningful new acquisitions." Walsh said the establishment of a new relationship with the U.S. Air Force and continuing as part of the Smithsonian Institution's Affiliations Program as evidence of the YAM's growing stature as a museum and tourist attraction.

While those milestones are important, fundraising for the new displays is ongoing and key to continued success, he said. The Franklin Glider is on permanent loan from the National Soaring Museum, but funds are still needed for the B-24 cockpit. In fact, the YAM has created a specific fund for developing the display and is encouraging contributions.

"We owe it to our constituency, especially the Founding and Life members, to continue improvements that look like, and perform like a first class institution,' said Bob Hynes, Member of the YAM Board of Directors and head of the public relations department.

"There's a new emphasis on planning and rotating displays that will keep our offerings fresh and appealing." Hynes said.

Hynes is optimistic about YAM in 2013, saying the management team blends the right mix of imagination, energy and expertise to excite people of all ages.

"Stop by and check us out, you'll be glad you he said.

Yankee Air Museum is located on the grounds of Willow Run Airport at 47884 D St., Belleville. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday. Admission is $5 for adults age 16 and older, students with valid ID $5, children under age 18 free when accompanied by an adult $3.00 and families (two adults and two children) $8.

Miracle League benefit pitches 'The Perfect Game'

By Matt Jachman Observer Staff Writer

LOCAL NEWS

A fundraiser in Plymouth next month will give baseball fans a chance to see some legendary former Detroit Tigers and revisit the Tigers' two most recent championship seasons.

"The Perfect Game," a dinner and discussion among former Tigers about the World Serieswinning teams of 1968 and 1984, is Thursday, Feb. 7, at the Meeting House Grand Ballroom. It's a benefit for the Miracle League of Plymouth, which in 2011 opened the Bilkie Family Field, a baseball field designed for special-needs children

The event will feature hors d'oeuvres, an open bar, a five-course meal and the baseball discussion, plus a computer-simulated matchup between the 1968 and 1984 Tigers teams. Sports broadcaster Eli Zaret will be the master of ceremonies.

League president Debra Madonna said about a half-dozen former Tigers have signed on for the discussion, and that she is awaiting confirmations. The Grand Ballroom capacity is about 300, but Madonna said the panel discussion is designed to unfold like dinner-table conversation, and will be broadcast on television monitors for those who might be sitting close to the panel.

The Miracle League, which has drawn players and volunteers from around the metropolitan area, is making plans for its third season, which will begin this spring.

Money raised from "The Perfect Game" will go toward facilities maintenance and keeping registration costs reasonable for players, Madonna said.

Sen. Anderson recognized as 'Environmental Champion'

State Sen. Glenn Anderson, D-Westland, was one of nine legislators from the state Senate and House to receive a perfect voting score on environmental legislation in the 2011-12 session from the Sierra Club - Michigan Chap-

There are 148 legislators in the Michigan Legislature. Some of the votes included in this scorecard were for the civilian conservation corps and energy performance contracts, and against beach grooming regulations, and establishing a hunting season for the gray wolf.

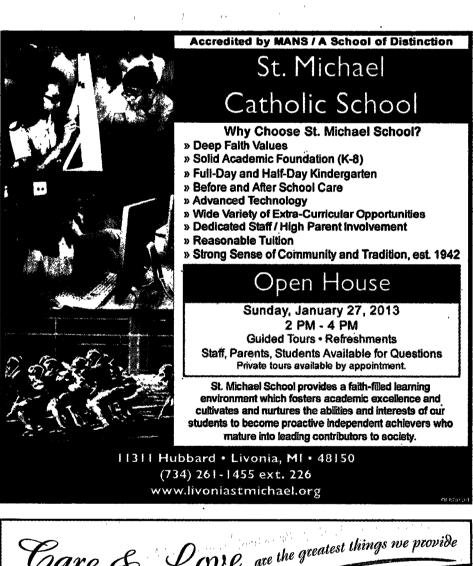

"The Sierra Club applauds Senator Glenn Anderson for his perfect voting score on environmental legislation in the 2011-2012 session," said

Mike Berkowitz, legislative and political director of the Michigan Sierra Club. "On behalf of our 170,000 members and supporters in Michigan, we thank him for being an environmental champion and standing up for clean air, clean water and public health."

The Sierra Club is the nation's largest grassroots environmental organization, with 1.4 million members and supporters nationwide. The Sierra Club's scorecard calculated the results based upon 24 roll call votes in the House and Senate for the 2011-12 legislative session. Senate Democrats scored an average of 96 percent, while Senate Republicans scored an average of 24 percent. Senators with a 91 to 100 percent score are considered to be "Environmental Champions."

· Anderson said he appreciates the recognition from the Sierra Club. "I strongly feel that Michigan's natural resources represent one of our most valuable assets and I have voted according to that belief," he said. "We have a responsibility to be good stewards for the future generations of Michiganders. I am proud to say that my vote has been one in support of our state's environment throughout my time in Lansing."

Anderson represents the 6th State Senate District, which includes Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Redford Township.

Local dealers like the buzz about Cadillac ATS, Ram 1500

By David Veselenak and Nathan Mueller

Staff Writers

Edward Pobur is looking forward to a good year

With the Cadillac ATS being named North American Car of the Year earlier this week, the sales manager at Cadillac of Novi is hoping the award will prop up the vehicle line and attract interest that might not have been there before.

"It gives you a leg up on the competition," he said. "It has a long shelf life."

Pobur said he still has customers come in looking for the Cadillac CTS, which was a finalist for North American Car of the Year in 2008, showing the power of winning the prestigious award.

Also named North American Truck/Utility of the Year was the Ram 1500. Paul Schmid, salesman at Snethkamp Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram in Redford Township, said the selection is a great one, since it's garnered so much interest with buyers.

"Everybody is wanting to come in and get information on them," the Farmington Hills resident said. "We cannot keep the brochures on the shelves."

JOHN HEIDER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Dennis Locklear polishes up the Ram 1500 before the North American Car and Truck of the Year awards were announced Monday. The vehicle won top honors for truck/utility.

The top honors, awarded after a jury vote from several dozen journalists in North America, returned to domestic automakers after going to two international makers last year. The car award is the first for Cadillac and the fifth for General Motors. The win is Chrysler's third for trucks.

This was the first year with a change in the title for the awards. With an emergence of utility vehicles coming into the marketplace, those were also considered for the North American Truck/Utility of the Year.

Other finalists for North American Car of the Year included the Ford Fusion and Honda Accord. Finalists for North American Truck/Utility of the Year were Ford C-Max and Mazda CX-5.

Several factors led to the ATS winning the award, Pobur said. He believed an aggressive marketing campaign by Cadillac is helping the consumer buzz, showcasing the wide range of options and branding the ATS as a car different than its competitors.

"It rivals any of the small, sedan segments of the marketplace. We can stack that car up against any of those cars and win the battle," Pobur said. "We haven't been able to say that in years past."

Bob Pollock, general manager at Don Massey Cadillac in Plymouth, said ATS sales in January have surpassed all of December before the announcement. He expects them to get even better after the award.

The Cadillac ATS was named North American Car of the Year earlier this week.

"Anybody looking at a car in that segment owes it to themselves to drive the car," he said. "It truly competes and performs and handles better than the BMW and Audi offerings in its class."

Cadillac's chief engineer, David Leone, said the idea with the ATS was to lighten the vehicle. something that consumers will begin to see more as the company releases more vehicles.

"The performance's laser-light focus was on being nimble, quick and fun to drive," he said. "To do so, we wanted to be the lightest in the segment, and we accomplished just that. It took a new way of thinking, and a new way of engineering to get that done. This is the first of many new vehicles where you're going to see that fresh new approach."

The Ram 1500 returned to the podium after nearly 20 years. It won North American Truck of the Year while still under the Dodge name in 1994.

Fred Diaz, president and CEO Ram Truck Brand and Chrysler de Mexico, called the honor a "surreal. moment" considering "the hell" the company went through three years ago.

"This means so much," Diaz said. "It's the proudest moment ever for the Ram Truck Brand to be able to accept this award."

That multi-purpose function is appealing to customers stopping in at Snethkamp.

"The pickup truck isn't what it used to be anymore," Schmid said. "It gets great fuel economy and people are using it for 'practical purposes."

Johnson Controls highlights new seat design

By David Veselenak Staff Writer

One of the automotive seats being featured at this year's North American International Auto Show has Wayne County roots.

Johnson Controls released several new seats this week at Cobo Center in Detroit, including one seat design director Thomas Gould highlighted called the Gen 3 Synergy Seat, a luxury seat designed to be light and com-

"This is really a showcase of a lot of things coming together," he said.

The seats are the product of many area workers at the company's Plymouth Township office, Gould said. About 30 designers and many engineers have put in time at the Plymouth Township location, 49200 Halyard Drive, to design the seats.

The collaboration of employees around the world in several locations helped bring the seat to fruition, Gould

"All the different regions rely on each other for technologies, and then we transfer those technologies and share them across the region," he said.

The seat is designed with dual layers of foam to provide comfort for both long- and short-term drives, a low-mass fiberglass composite back and Climate Fabric inserts that will move away moisture from the chair's occupants.

While no vehicles currently have the Gen 3 Synergy Seats installed in them, Gould said his design team is happy with the result of the seats.

The composite back is a big step for the seat, Gould said, because it eliminates the need for additional materials on the seat, decreasing the weight of the chair.

"That's exposed in the back," he said. "We don't have to put structures in there that are going to cover it up." It's a process that began last spring and continued through the summer and fall. "We pretty much start this in May," he said. "We start beginning talking about what the strategy is, how things come together." Another announcement made Monday could have an indirect positive effect on the Plymouth facility.

Alex Molinaroli, a vice president of Johnson Controls, said the company has moved all of its lithium ion battery production from France to its facility to Holland, Mich.

"We're now supporting our major OE customers, as well as several global development contracts out of Holland," he said.

Gould said a sort of "trickle down" effect from the production shifting locally could increase sales efforts and could lead to more work for Plym-

"The group we have working in Plymouth primarily works with our customers," he said. "As those needs grow, as our industry is expanding, the needs there will be expanded as well."

AUTO SHOW BRIEFS

Interactive displays

Looking for something to do at the North American International Auto Show besides see the cars? Many displays give patrons the opportunity to experience the cars. Here are just a few of the interactive exhibits:

• To satisfy the video gamers at the show, a simulation booth with the game Gran Turismo is offered at the Chevrolet display. Two people at a time can hop into the vehicles and test-drive the cars in a simulator. If you're fast, you'll have another honor coming your way: your name on the chalk leaderboard at the Chevy display.

 Drive Land, a simulator powered by the Microsoft Kinect set, is available at the Toyota display. Drivers can sit in a real Prius seat, and simulate driving on the screen by just using their hands to maneuver the vehicle.

• A different type of simulation is offered at the Michelin display. Have you ever wondered what the road would feel like from a tire's perspective? Michelin gives patrons that exact opportunity. Two users at a time step onto the simulator, placing their hands and feet on designated areas. Hit start and the hand and foot areas begin to vibrate and simulation what a tire would feel on the road.

• One of the more intricate simulators resides in the Ford display. The ST Simulator places riders into a pod complete with hydraulics and allows riders to simulate the ride in a Ford vehicle. The simulator requires a waiver, and riders must be at least 5-foot-2. Children under 18 must have a parent or guardian present who can be present for the ride and sign the liability waiver.

Show opens

The auto show opens to the public at 9 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, and continues through Sunday, Jan. 27.

Show hours are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. (no admittance after 9 p.m.) Jan. 19-26. The show ends Jan. 27 and hours that day are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. (no admittance after 6 p.m.). Tickets are $12 per person and $6 for seniors (65 and older) and children (7-12 years old). Children ages 6 and under are free with parent or guardian.

Marketing to younger, tech-savvy buyers

Murphy is one of many area residents working at this year's auto show, and has worked specifically in trying to market smaller vehicles to buyers in the beginning stages of their car-buying lives.

Murphy said the car seeing the most movement with younger buyers, including those in the Detroit area, is the Fiesta, a compact car introduced in recent years and geared toward younger drivers.

The hope, Murphy said, is that those driving Fiestas or other smaller cars, such as the Focus, will be happy with their experience and stay loval to the Ford brand. The cars other younger drivers have flocked to include the Mustang, Escape and Focus. "Fiesta is clearly our gateway for younger customers," he said. Many of the vehicles aimed toward those new drivers employ technology they're used to with other devices, Murphy said. Included are Bluetooth and MyFord Touch, an entertainment and communications system located inside the car with a touch screen. And it isn't just the cars themselves that Murphy touts as being catered to younger drivers. With more people without well-paying jobs and some who can't afford a car, Ford financial staffers have stepped in and offered financing rates sometimes lower than what banks and lenders are able to match.

With more young people with bad credit or no credit being able to buy with a low APR, the likelihood of those drivers coming to Ford has increased, Murphy said.

The ability to finance that product over a reasonable amount of time, that's definitely brought us a higher conquest rate," he said. "It's our highest amount of new customers coming into the Ford portfolio."

The vice president/ executive manager at Lou LaRiche Chevrolet in Plymouth Township is president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, the group responsible for oversight of one of the world's most important auto shows — the North American International Auto Show at Cobo Center in Detroit.

He described this show as one of the most thrill-

"Last year's auto show. the big theme was 'we're back," he said. "And now, it has taken off to a whole new level with the excite-

"I think we're going to have 850,000, weather permitting," he said. "It's a big number."

Several indicators point to a recovery by the auto show for LaRiche, including the number of new media members attending this week, as well as the attendance figures for the charity gala, taking place Friday night.

LaRiche said numbers have increased 25 percent from last year's gala, which benefits more than just the auto show.

"We're going to see a big, big change," he said. "And the bonus for that is, you have about $3 million for children's charities last year. This year, it's going to be closer to $4 million."

Many local dealers are offering auto show specials on cars this month, and LaRiche hopes the specials will increase consumer visits to showrooms afterward.

His hope is that the buzz created in Detroit this month will continue throughout the year.

"It's going to bring people here, of course, and then bring people into the showroom," he said. "Some of the consumers were waiting until all the auto show bonus money was announced. This week, it's all coming in.'

The highlights that he's seen so far this week include the 2014 Chevrolet Corvette, one of the most anticipated releases during the auto show. In addition, the naming of the Cadillac ATS — another General Motors brand - as Car of the Year signified to LaRiche that the German auto supplier enjoys record year The company's success Staff Writer

By Nathan Mueller

There is a positive vibe emanating through the North American headquarters of ZF Group in Northville Township these days.

The German company had a record setting 2012 - which included a total sales volume of $23 billion, increasing the number of employees to 75,000 worldwide and investing $1.7 billion in research and development — that is expected to continue into this year.

According to the company's website, ZF Group develops and produces transmissions, steering systems, axles and chassis components, as well as complete systems for passenger cars, commercial vehicles and off-road machinery. "We believe in the future and we believe we can continue our story of successful growth of new innovation of new technologies in the future," ZF Group CEO Stefan Sommer said at the first press conference Tuesday at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit.

is showing in Northville Township, as construction is nearly complete on an expansion to the facility.

The building, which also serves as a technical center, was built in 1999, with a major expansion done in 2004. This final project was done to aid an expanding steering group within the company.

Bryan Johnson, a Canton resident and manager of marketing and communications for the ZF Group, said it is nearing 500 employees as the company's presence in North America increases.

"We have key products and technologies that are being adapted more and more to the American market," he said.

Improving fuel efficiency has been a major area of focus for the ZF Group, and a new ninespeed automatic transmission is expected to help in that regard. Sommer said it will offer fuel savings from 10 percent up to 16 percent.

We have the right products for the right market and we really meet the general trend of the world, especially in automotive," he said.

As the company continues to grow worldwide, the Northville Township headquarters is focusing on attracting talent locally.

Alexandra Iordache, a Shelby Township resident and member of the marketing and communications department for ZF Group, said Jan. 25 the company will be hosting a "college day" to help students learn about the many opportunities within ZF Group.

Johnson said the goal is to build relationships and find new talent.

The current employees also are reaching out to do more community service, something Johnson said cannot be a one-time thing.

Several employees donated their time to tear down a house in Redford with Blight Busters and also volunteered at a soup kitchen last year. "It gives you a sense of ownership and it has to be part of our culture," he said. "It's something we are growing into."

Learn to use new gadgets, technology at libraries

By Jon Gunnells Guest Columnist

he holiday season brought you a new piece of technology but you don't know how to use it? You don't need to pay top dollar to start learning how to use your new gadget whether it may be

phone, tablet, camera, eReader or computer. There's no better resource than your local library to help you learn about new technology or even provide technology when you need it. "In Canton, we have user groups on Jan. 29 and a class for Kindle Users on Jan. 16," said Laurie Golden, marketing and communications manager of the Canton Public Library. "We also have a blog with tips, tricks and instructional videos. Our librarians also offer eReader support by phone or walk-ins."

The Canton Public Library blog is located at https://www.cantonpl. org/ebooks is the next one. Libraries in Plymouth, Dearborn and Royal Oak are also offering eReader and Kindle support throughout the month of January.

In Northville, free computer classes and free one on one tutoring sessions are available to residents who know how to use a mouse. There will be drop-in tutoring at the Northville Public Library on Saturday Jan. 26, Feb. 9 and Feb. 23 from 10 a.m. to noon. Community members may also pre-register for tutoring on Thursday Jan. 17 or Feb. 14. for 40-minute sessions. All computer training is made possible through teen volunteers.

Like the Canton Public Library, the Northville Public Library has eBook help available. Users can pre-register for 40-minute training sessions that are held each Thursday night between 6 p.m. and 7:30

In Livonia, the Civic Center Library has one on one tutoring by appointment. The Civic Center Library also offers basic, weekly computer sessions for Microsoft Office and other computer programs and monthly eReader courses.

Libraries are also a great resource to download free content for your devices. The Novi Public Library for instance offers free and legal downloads of popular music, eBooks and audio books. For instance, users can download up to three free songs per week through the Novi Public Library, via Sony Music and IODA catalogs.

And just about every local library has many more tools for residents who may be in a pinch. Basic, internet-enabled computer workstations, printers, scanners and fax machines are staples of libraries that can help you don't have a computer or your computer breaks.

The Plymouth Public Library for instance has computers available to those with a library card. They even have special sections for teens and adults plus dedicated computers for family research and job searches, plus email kiosks and free wireless internet. The Canton Public Library has similar offers with wireless internet, printing and more than 150 computers for kids, teens and adults.

So before you get frustrated with a potentially-difficult learning curve on your new computer or tablet, contact your local library to see what resources they have to help. It is a much more reasonable option than expensive in-home tutoring, online courses or selfhelp DVDs.

Ice sculptors carved revival with festival's support

By Matt Jachman Observer Staff Writer

The Plymouth Ice Festival has strengthened culinary education programs and helped revive the art of ice carving in Michigan over the last three decades, according to a veteran carver and instructor.

Richard Teeple, who recently retired from Henry Ford Community College, where he taught in the culinary arts program for more than 30 years, said "there's no question" the festival has been a boost to his school and to ice carving in general.

"Many of my students over the last 30 years have gotten their start there, and they have opened up very successful ice-carving businesses," said Teeple, who still advises at HFCC and will help coordinate the collegiate competition during this year's festival.

The 2013 edition of the Plymouth Ice Festival, the 31st annual, is Friday, Jan. 18, through Sunday, Jan. 20, at Kellogg Park and nearby downtown streets. It will feature more than 100 ice sculptures, team and individual competitions, the popular "Dueling Chainsaws" competition, entertainment, refreshments, wintertime sports and more.

Teeple said the art of ice carving "was dying" at the time the festival began in the 1980s, and that by providing a venue for student carvers and the expensive raw materials — blocks of ice — the show in Plymouth helped bring it back.

"It was one of the reasons why Henry Ford has invested so much time and money into developing an ice program, was because of the ice festival," Teeple said. The college went on to build top ice-carving teams that would tour a dozen or so cities, in other states and even other countries, every year, he said.

"You could always count on getting experience" at the Plymouth show, he said.

"The community colleges' participation in the ice festival is crucial as it ensures the art of ice sculpting continues," said Sam Walton, the event producer. "The schools that participate always bring their finest sculptors, and the public really gets a lot of enjoyment out of their carving demonstrations."

arving demonstrations.' Teeple said that, so far this year, 38 students and 14 different teams have signed up for the collegiate competition, and that others are continuing to register. Schools that will be represented include the University of Michigan, Macomb Community College and Washtenaw Community College, in addition to HFCC, he said.

Individual collegiate competition will take place Saturday, Jan. 19, and team competition Sunday, Jan. 20, both in Kellogg Park.

Teeple said that since the festival's early days, decorative ice carvings have expanded into functional pieces such as serving trays, punch bowls and "shot luges."

"Ice carving has really evolved," he said.

Another way to measure

Another way to measure the growth in popularity of ice carving, he said, is the increasing use of carvings at weddings, parties and corporate events and in television commercials. Sculptures of corporate logos have also become much more common, he said.

Teeple, who helped organize early ice festivals, said he's not planning to pick up the chisel this year.

"This is the first time in 30 years I'm not carving anything with this show, so I'm having withdrawal," he said.

Hours for this year's Plymouth Ice Festival are 3-10 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 19; and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 20. For more information, visit plymouthicefestival.com.

MLK Day

Honor Dr. King through service to the community

On Monday, Americans will gather in a national day of service and dialogue to honor the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The federal holiday provides an opportunity to celebrate the legacy of the slain civil rights leader through service.

Communities around the Detroit metropolitan area will hold ceremonies to honor the memory of Dr. King who, between 1955 and 1968, helped change America. In Westland, residents will gather at 9:30 a.m. for the city's 15th annual MLK ceremony which will be held at Christ Temple Apostolic Faith Church on Eton Street, off of Middlebelt Road just south of Annapolis.

It will be a ceremony that pays tribute to the man and celebrates the ideals set forth by Dr. King, who dreamed that one day all people would be guaranteed the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness as called for in the Declaration of Independence.

Dr. King brought the world's attention to how unfairly people of color were being treated. He preached about justice, empowerment, love and peace, and through his strong leadership and power of speech, gave people the faith and courage to keep working peacefully to end discrimination and segregation. A lot has changed since then, but many of the issues he talked about still remain.

For many people, Monday is a day off from work and from school. Instead of making it an off day, we ask people to make it an on day. Let the MLK Day of Service serve as an inspiration to transform our communities, a day to turn Dr. King's life and teachings into community action that helps solve problems.

Dr. King once said, "Life's most persistent and urgent question is: 'What are you doing for others?' " Monday affords us all a chance to answer that question.

Council wise not to use citizens in search

A Garden City councilman suggested that city manager. In November, he proposed having a citizens group work with the council in narrowing down the 26 applications for city manager to a smaller group that the council would interview.

The council agreed at the time, but last month had a change of heart and decided not to use the citizens in the selection process because of liability issues. The councilman isn't pleased with the decision and has said that if the council continues to do things in the same fashion, it will end up with the same result. We presume he was alluding to the selection of Darwin McClary who was fired last September after less than two years on the job. We respectfully disagree.

While involving the citizens in looking at the applications is a different way of doing things, it isn't necessarily the right way. In a business setting, the employees don't get involved in hiring managers or new employees. That's left to management, and in the case of Garden City government, when it comes to the city manager, the City Council is management.

We can understand his disappointment, and admit it was a novel idea. But it doesn't mean the selection is being done in secrecy without citizen input. As an alternative, we suggest the council consider inviting residents to submit questions that they believe are important and should be asked of final candidates.

Residents will have a chance to be at the interviews of the candidates at a public meeting. However, the meeting won't be televised on GCTV.

In this day and age, with concerns about privacy and even about employers finding out about employee iob searches, it's better to follow the tried and true method of selecting candidates to be interviewed.

We believe the council is on the right path to picking a new city manager. However, the proof of how well the council does will be in who is selected. We hope the council will do its homework and select an individual that will be a good fit for the city. It's what Garden City needs and what Garden City deserves.

About freedom

I am amazed at the people in America who despise their freedom. Has freedom been so long in this country that we now take it for granted? Past national elections show a majority in favor of nanny government in the form of national health care, and the increased regulation that will soon follow, over being able to choose your own doctor, and even make your own decision about your health care.

Now we see in Lansing, the crowds, and in this paper through letters to the editor, those who would prefer nanny unions over the liberty to choose in the workplace (right to work). They try to make the dialogue one of benefits and wages, but don't be fooled as they are — the issue is about freedom. How ironic, the same people who would allow a woman the right to choose, to abort her own baby, now stand up against the right to choose in the workplace.

It was Benjamin Franklin who said: "They who can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."

Draw, stranger

Using guns against guns will solve the killing problem? Put guns in the hands of teachers to prevent others from using guns against them in schools? Dump another responsibility on teachers who are already overloaded with concerns far beyond their primary teaching duties?

Teachers experience a wide variety of emotional moments during the course of a teaching day. Reactions usually are controlled, but what about the time when conflict at home, an individual student's severe negative behavior, a misinterpretation of an action, or just a bad day might lead to a reaction on the part of a teacher with an unfortunate outcome?

Dealing with human reaction under stress is a sensitive area, and teachers must not be placed in a situation where they might react incorrectly.

The NRA, rather than take any positive action toward solving the killing problem, just suggests that someone else deals with it, namely anyone but them. Imagine the change in the comfort and sanctity of a church when individuals are attending services wearing sidearms. According to the NRA, ministers, priests rabbis, imams, etc., also would qualify as gun bearers. Those individuals, including teachers, whose lives are emotionally and physically geared to trust, understanding and compassion would be reduced to the level of a sheriff in the old wild, wild west.

GUEST COLUMN

While you were sleeping, legislature was conspiring

By Glenn Anderson Guest Columnist

he most recent lame duck session, the period following the November election through the end of the 2011-12 session, was the most tumultuous during my 12 years in Michigan's legislature.

Leading up to the 4:30 a.m. adjournment of the last day of session, hundreds of bills were passed, most without public debate or public committee hearings. Some bills were discharged directly to the floor without a hearing and amended on the fly with no time to properly consider the language until minutes before other legislators and I had to cast a vote.

This disregard for the legislative process, nothing less than a subversion of democracy, has become all too familiar in the single-party controlled houses of the legislature.

Michigan would be well served to take a closer look at how its legislature has been doing business of late and consider some changes that might lead to better policy making and better policy.

Legislation passed in the yearend flurry of activity included the controversial right-to-work legislation, a bill that would eliminate gunfree zones like schools and hospitals, which thankfully the governor vetoed, and a re-write of the emergency financial manager which was recently repealed by the voters in November. Then, adding insult to injury, legislation making it more difficult to recall elected officials made its way through both chambers, insulating from public ire the same lawmakers that voted on these controversial issues. All of these items should have received lengthy discussion and debate, a chance to move properly through the committee process, and an opportunity for the public to weigh in on their merits and faults. A lame duck session should be reserved for bills of necessity, not exploited as a period where legislators have political cover due to the recently decided election and term limited members.

This year I have introduced Senate Joint Resolution B for the new legislative session. This resolution seeks to amend Michigan's Constitution to provide restrictions on the legislature, limiting lame duck sessions to only those issues that are absolutely necessary.

The resolution would allow the legislature to meet after a general election in an even year only in cases of emergency and then only if two-thirds of both the House and Senate vote to hold an emergency session and only to vote on items specified at the outset in proclamation by the Governor. Additionally, it would demand that all bills passed during the emergency session receive a two-thirds majority for passage, ensuring that only the matters agreed to at the outset be dealt with during that time.

The current Republican majority has also resorted to regularly using a tactic that includes unnecessary appropriations in the most controversial bills, exploiting a clause of the State Constitution and making them referendum-proof by voters. This provision of the Constitution intended to prevent citizens from overturning parts of the state budget and throwing the state's finances into disarray.

This out-of-control majority has resorted to using it as a political tool to "referendum-proof" many unpopular policy bills. The first emergency manager law, for example, was in November repealed by popular vote, and the supporters of the second version of the bill made sure to include a small appropriation as it sailed through the legislature in the early hours of the morning.

I have taken action by introducing Senate Joint Resolution C, which would stipulate that the immunity of appropriations bills does not include legislation that contains substantive policy. It would require policy and appropriation bills to be treated separately as they should be.

The growing trend of using tricks and a policy of anti-transparency as a way to end around or ignore the will of the people should disturb voters. These two resolutions are immediate steps we can take to prohibit some of the more egregious tactics recently employed. Whether they will be given a fair hearing and full consideration remains to be seen, but hopefully they will fuel a discussion about the broader question of what direction our state government is headed.

I urge you to contact your legislator and ask them to support Senate Joint Resolutions B and C.

At the end of the day, the voters are the last line of defense, holding elected officials accountable, and must remain vigilant to protecting their ability to do so.

Glenn Anderson represents the 6th District, includes Westland, Garden City, Redford and Livonia, in the State Senate. He lives in Westland.

Read the fine print on charge card offers pace of change, we have a tendency to think if "it ain't broke, don't fix it." In other words, if we could put things on automatic pilot and leave it as is, that is sometimes the preferred course. Unfortunately, we sometimes do so to our own detriment.

Whether it's broken or not, one area that we should look at is our relationship with our charge cards.

I'm frequently asked which charge card is the best. My answer is no one charge card is the best.

The key is to find one that best suits your situation. How you use your charge card should be the determining factor in what card you use. Too many people focus on the rewards that a charge card offers. However, rewards are not the most important thing. It reminds me of when banks gave a free gift (such as a toaster oven) to anyone who would open an account. All too often, people focused on the toaster oven as opposed to the interest they received. The same is true with charge cards. People sometimes are so focused on the rewards that they don't factor in how much the rewards cost. The first step in determining which charge card to select is identify how the card will be used. Do you use it as a means of convenience? In other words, do you pay your bill every month, or do you use it as a means of financing? If you do not pay your bill at the end of the month and carry a balance, then the most important thing to focus on is the interest rate and not the perks.

Many people mistakenly believe that all charge cards have the same interest rate and are computed the same way; that is not the case. For example, some have a variable rate while others are fixed. If you carry a balance focus should be on the interest you pay. If you find a card that is consumer-friendly and that charges a low rate of interest, consider it. If you can save a few percentage points on interest, the money will add up more than any rewards you could receive.

It is important to look at all fees involved with a card whether or not you carry a balance. For example, some charge cards charge an annual fee. In addition, some cards have high fees if you are late on a payment and some even raise your interest if you miss a payment deadline. These things are important. One late fee may wipe out any benefits that you may have accrued.

For those who don't carry a balance and use a charge card as a means of convenience, one key area to examine is the grace period, the time you have to make a payment once you receive a bill. Some charge cards no longer have a grace period so you start paying interest from the date of purchase. Even if you pay your bill on time, there is an interest charge.

Only after you understand how you use your charge card and what fees are involved, should you consider the perks. Even though some of the perks sound great, some aren't worth that much. The key is to focus on rewards and benefits that you will actually use.

Read the fine print before you sign up for a new charge card. Marketing materials may tell you one thing, but the fine print will give you the whole story. If you want to know about late fees, cash advances or policy regarding shopping in a foreign country, read the fine print.

We all use charge cards. They are an important financial and a fact of life in America. Because of that, it is important to make sure you're using the right card at all times. Do your homework and shop around for the best card that makes sense. There are lots of websites to help. One site that I use is www.bankrate.com. Should you change charge cards three or four times a year? No. However, at least every few years it does pay to review your situation to make sure that you're using the proper charge

Just like everything else in our society, the terms of your charge card may have changed. Over the next month or so, spend some time reviewing how you use your charge card to determine if you're using the right one. If not, there's no time like the present for a change. Good luck!

Senior wrestler Sam Ekanem stands above the rest when it comes to academics and athletics at Wayne Memorial High School. He's been accepted to attend Harvard University.

Born leader

Wayne wrestler Ekanem Harvard-bound

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

When Wayne Memorial freshman football coach Steve Vasiloff was on the lookout for potential wrestlers for his fledgling program, a young man named Samuel Ekanem immediately caught his eye.

"I saw the work ethic," said the eighth-year coach. "I saw academics, all the athletic ability, and I saw natural leadership. Back then, when I got Sam to join is when my team was just starting to grow. We went from nine kids, to 16 kids, to 20 kids, and starting to build a program. Then we went to 40 when I started coaching foot-

Ekanem remembers when he was first approached.

"Coach 'V' was one of my freshman coaches for football," Sam said. "He said, 'If you want to become more physical, try wrestling. Both go hand-in-hand. I tried it out and just got successful at it."

Eight different U.S. presidents and 75 Nobel Laureates have graduated from Harvard University, the same school Ekanem is headed to next fall.

Ekanem, who scored a 30 on his most recent ACT while carrying a 4.1 grade-point average in Advanced Placement courses, has also blossomed into standout wrestler for the Wolfpack, a regional qualifier a year ago going 36-16 while sporting a 18-2 record as a 171pounder this season.

Freshman football

"In my second year in football, with Sam's class, I found a whole new breed of kids that actually rallied around Sam, and that's why Sam is the captain," said Vasiloff, whose team is 12-1 overall "By getting Sam into the room, it got all these kids into the room and that's why we are the team you see out on the mat."

Being a standout wrestler certainly didn't hurt Ekanem's quest to getting accepted into Harvard.

"He comes from a school with 79 percent reduced lunch (program)," said Ekanem's school psychologist and mentor Bill Gray. "For him to have

Henry Ford stops Ocelots

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

A 31-27 halftime lead turned out to be fool's gold Saturday for the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team.

The Ocelots, still searching for their first MCCAA Eastern Conference win, were outscored 43-23 and committed 18 second-half turnovers in a 70-54 loss to visiting Henry Ford Community College.

The loss leaves the Ocelots at 3-10 overall and 0-4 in the conference, while the Hawks improved to 9-5 and 3-1.

Afterwards, fifth-year Schoolcraft coach Randy Henry was searching for answers and solu-

"I'm-trying to get their head up and I've got to find out who wants to play," he said. "That's my biggest concern right now. I think with seven or eight minutes left in the game they kind of conceded. They were out of it and I could see it in their faces and their energy level went down."

Schoolcraft led by as many as seven early in the second half and held a 40-36 lead with 14:49 to play on a basket by Mathew King (Redford Thurston) before going scoreless for the next 6 minutes and 3 seconds.

Meanwhile, the Hawks forged ahead with a 13-0 run to lead 50-40 before the Ocelots finally answered on two free throws by Richmond Jackson, who shared team-high scoring honors with King as each tallied 17 points. (King also grabbed a game-high 13 rebounds.)

Warriors' mat duo pin down 100th wins

Lutheran High Westland had a pair of wrestlers reach the century mark in career wins Saturday as the Warriors finished runner-up to Southfield in their own team tournament.

Zachary Francis (125 pounds) won all five of his matches on the day, while teammate Martin Kemp (160 and 171) also earned his 100th triumph.

Southfield took first in the dual match format followed by the Warriors, Redford Union, Flat Rock, Dearborn Heights Crestwood and the Birmingham Seaholm 'B' team.

Southfield handed Lutheran Westland its lone setback, 42-36.

The Warriors, now 14-7 overall, defeated Seaholm (84-0), Crestwood (48-25), RU (54-30) and Flat Rock (46-36).

Brad Hura (285) also finished 5-0 for the Warriors, while Manny Rankine (103), Conner Even (130), Caleb Richter (135) and Alex Reardon (215) captured four of five matches.

Meanwhile, Jacob Richter (145-152), Jonah Lambart (160-171) and Kole Niemi (140) also enjoyed productive days, according to coach Joseph Schmidt.

"I was very pleased with how we wrestled," Schmidt said. "It's the best we have wrestled all year and I was very proud."

Wolfpack take 1st

On Saturday, the host Wayne Memorial beat all five opponents to improve to 12-1 on the season.

The Wolfpack downed Melvindale (39-32), Livonia Clarenceville (70-9), Walled Lake Western (61-13), Romulus Summit Academy North (69-12) and Dearborn Heights Annapolis (49-23) to win the crown.

Going unbeaten on the day for Wayne included Sam Ekanem (171), Tyler Casteels (215), Aaron Mauldin (285), while Jack DeJack (103) and Lucas Hofbauer (189) each captured four matches.

Despite being down four starters and voiding a pair of weight classes, Clarenceville went 2-3 Saturday in the Wayne team tourney.

Trojans scored victories over Romulus Summit Academy (48-36) and Walled Lake Western (45-30), while falling to the host Wolfpack (70-9), Dearborn Heights Annapolis (48-24) and Melvindale (69-10).

Domanick Slagle (145) and Aaron Bibik (160) both finished 5-0 on the day for the Trojans, who stand 6-6 overall.

First-year grapplers Giergi Nikollaj (189) and Lusire Boyd (171) also pulled out big wins to secure Clarenceville's second team victory on the day.

"Although the day didn't go exactly as planned, the team wrestled very hard and gave it all they had on the mats, and never gave up," Clarenceville firstyear coach Nick Elam

"It's reasonable to say that he's the highest achieving African-American male in the history of the Wayne-Westland Schools, both athletically and academically."

It was Gray who helped plant the seed during Ekanem's sophomore year about going to the prestigious Ivy league.

"Mr. Gray kept after me that it was a possibility, so that's when I started thinking about that," said Ekanem, who was born in Lagos, Nigeria, and came to Michigan as a first-grader with his single mother, Victoria. "We had a little gathering in here (the wrestling room). They got to see me jump around and everything. It was a nice feeling. Thank God everything went as it did."

Taking a trip

Gray and Sean Galvin, executive director of The Champions of Wayne program, drove Ekanem out to Cambridge, Mass., for a visit to the prestigious Ivy League school last spring.

The Champions of Wayne is an educational incentive program that involves adult mentoring, academic contracting, individualize prescriptions for success and financial rewards. The program is funded by Wayne alum Richard Helppie through the Helppie Charitable Foundation.

Gray got in touch with former Harvard assistant coach Pat Owen, who formerly wrestled at Michigan and had been involved with a U-M athlete mentoring program for Wayne High students.

"We decided to see if we could make something happen," Gray said. "Jeff Weiss (Harvard's head coach) showed interest. We communicated back-and-forth. ne saw tootage trom Sam's wrestling at Fargo (N.D.). He became interested with his academics and all of his letters of recommendation."

Gray said 34,000 students apply to Harvard every year, and four of five are valedictorians of their class. Ekanem was among 825 taken as an early admittances among of a total of 1,650.

"Sam is expected to receive a need-based scholarship, which basically covers tuition, room and board, books and possibly even travel expenses," Gray said.

Academic quest

The Wayne school psychologist saw many of the same qualities in Ekanem that Vasiloff did when he was a ninthgrader.

"Sam might be one of the most responsible, hard-working human beings I know, not just students," Gray said. "It includes adults as well. He may be the hardest-working, the most responsible person I know. His follow-through is meticulous."

When he gets to Harvard, Ekanem has defwants to study and what he wants to follow in his career path.

"Major in economics and maybe do something in government," he said. "Right now my favorite subject is A.P. political science. Love that class. Maybe I'll be a governor sometime."

So what classes of his current classes at Wayne challenge Ekanem the "Split between calculus and A.P. English," he said. "Calculus, just the concepts, I just can't relate to it. And A.P. English, a little to subjective to my taste."

Ekanem, an only child. came to the "States" at age 6 with his mother. Victoria, a nurse who has just finished her R.N. requirements.

Sam attended St. Raphael Grade School in Garden City before going to Adams Middle School as an eighth-grad-

"She's a strong-minded, independent single mother, sweet lady who has run a very structured home," Gray said. "She has a high belief in education.'

Acceptance

Needless to say, Victoria Ekanem was pleased to learn her son had been accepted to Harvard.

"I was excited, I was happy," she said. "I was actually praying for it to come through."

Victoria, who came to this country in search of a better life, says she only gives occasional direction to when it comes to Sam's academics.

"I wanted to send him to the best school, he went to St. Raphael," Victoria said. "He always been self-motivated before anything else. He knows whatever he has to achieve is through hard work. And he's really working hard. When it comes to his books, he knows what he wants to achieve and what he wants to do, but sometunes I have to super vise him to keep him on track."

Ekanem has never gotten a "B" at Wayne while taking A.P. classes exclusively.

"She lets me pick my classes," Sam said. "She lets me do what I feel I need to do. She's supportive as long as I'm not screwing around. She puts faith in me. I think I procrastinate, but I don't think I ever come to the point where I just don't do anything.'

Meanwhile, Vasiloff marvels at Ekanem juggling his wrestling and academic schedule, while also working a part-time job at Panera Bread.

"I'm stressed out all the time, but Sam is busier than I am," he said. "He works his tail off, 24-7. He's busier than I am, and I'm always complaining how busy I am. He's got me beat no doubt about it."

Quick study The Wayne coach calls

Ekanem "a sponge." "He soaks everything up," Vasiloff said. "You put him in a history class, he's going to soak it up. You put him in a math class, he's going to soak it up. You put him in a wrestling room, he loves the sport and it's in his blood now. The fact that he's going to continue that career and the fact that this is actually the beginning of his wrestling career ... not the end of it like a majority of the seniors in the room ... it's a great thing." Ekanem takes his wrestling as just as seriously as his academics. Last summer, he competed in two national tournaments in Oklahoma City, Okla., and Fargo, N.D., while traveling Team Michigan (based out of Detroit Catholic Central H.S.).

One of Wayne's assistant coaches, Jason Crothers, helped make it happen driving Sam and his few of his Wolfpack teammates to statewide qualifying tournaments (where he became the state freestyle champion). Crothers also helped raise funds from the community to pay for Ekanem's expenses and drive him to Fargo.

And although Ekanem took his lumps on a national stage, he gained notice and valuable expe-'rience wrestling freestyle, Greco Roman and folkstyle.

Next level

"It turned him into a more well-rounded wrestler," Vasiloff said. "Learning all three styles is going to increase your game. They're all interchangeable. It just helped him be a more well-rounded wrestler. He was a regional qualifier last year and had a great season, but this really took him up to the next level.

"It's confidence and mental toughness, for sure. He's gotten a lot more mentally tough and a lot more physical. Last season he would walk off, shake it off, but we knew we had to leave Sam alone for awhile. And now he realizes it's OK make mistakes, you've just got to learn from those mistakes because he's going to have another opportunity to make up for it."

And the three-time captain agrees he has improved his mental approach during his senior season. He's no longer his own worst enemy.

"You can't really take losses as big ones because I think my mentality was last year if I had lost to a guy during the season — that was it." said Ekanem, who has an 85-29 career record at Wayne. "I couldn't come back ... now I just go with the flow.

"Now I'm willing to go for moves that I didn't go for before."

Boy Scouts

In the fifth grade, Sam migrated from Boy Scouts to football.

Ironically, Victoria Ekanem remains only a casual spectator and keeps her distance when it comes to watching her son compete.

"I've seen him a couple, of times, but not much," she said. "Initially I was nervous and I didn't want him to do it until one time I had to."

In April, Ekanem will return to Cambridge and meet the Harvard wrestling team, but he has some unfinished business during his high school season.

"I'm looking forward to that," Ekanem said. "They have a little community where I feel I can belong. I'm ecstatic about wrestling, especially for the Crimson.

"Right now I want to make 'States' and place, too. I'm looking forward and it's time to get working. Everything is going fine."

Campbell's 26 ends Spartans' woes

Senior guard Josh Campbell tallied a gamehigh 26 points as Livonia Stevenson picked up its first KLAA Central Division boys basketball win with a 70-39 triumph Tuesday over host South Lyon East.

Stevenson made 16of-21 free throws, while East hit 6-of-12.

Warriors' balance too much for Baptist Park

Four players scored in double figures Tuesday as Lutheran High Westland earned a 61-49 Michigan Independent Athletic Conference boys basketball win Tuesday at home over Taylor Baptist Park.

The Warriors, who outscored Baptist Park 21-8 in the final period after trailing 41-40, improved to 3-3 overall and 2-1 in the MIAC's Red Division.

A.J. Seltz scored a team-high 16 points to lead a balanced Lutheran Westland scoring attack that also included Nick Flanery (13), Ernie Babon (12) and Nick Andrzejewski (10).

"This was truly a team win," Lutheran Westland first-year coach Jim Hoeft said. "We finally put four quarters together on defense. We didn't have any long lapses, and we stayed intense from start to finish.

"We put a heavy dose of full-court pressure on at the beginning of the fourth quarter, which sealed the win."

Andrzejewski also finished with a team-high eight rebounds and four assists.

"On the flip-side of the ball, offensively we were looking for the open man and making good decisions," Hoeft said. "We picked up the tempo and got some fast break points, which I felt we were lacking earlier in the season. Baptist Park (3-3, 1-

Ryan Schaffer paced HVL with 16 points, while Alex Harrison and Justin Howell chipped in with nine apiece. South made only 7-of-18 free throws, while Huron Valley hit 9-of-16.

"Not to make excuses, but we were two guys short - Milan Monk and Kenneth Rundstadler were both out," HVL coach Jim Ott said. "That was an opportunity for other guys to come off the bench, but they're not stepping up."

of got fired up, and they were already up 10," 'Henry said. "They jacked it up a little more, and hit a couple of shots. But nothing lit a fire under us to work hard, and that's my fault. I got to find a way to motivate these guys to play hard for 40 minutes."

Henry Ford, which dressed only seven players, got 15 points from Rodney Butler, while Darry Mobley Jr. and Javon Thomas added 13 apiece.

Marquawn Armstrong also added nine of his 11 in the second half.

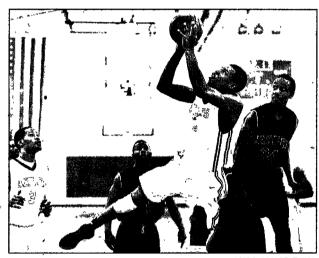

"I think we played a little more focused offensively," Henry Ford coach Abe Mashhour said. "We didn't rush as advantage of a few mismatches. I thought they (Schoolcraft) played a lot better in the first half. They (Schoolcraft) were more aggressive and they competed a lot more in the first half than they did in the second.

"We earned some turnovers, but then they threw a bunch away on their own. A lot of them were unforced. I just don't think they had the same energy, like I said, in the second half as they did in the first." The Hawks, trying to avoid foul trouble with a limited bench, used a zone defense exclusively to hold Schoolcraft for 33.3 percent shooting for the game (20-of-60).

"I think the zone gave them a little trouble in the sense that they weren't very comfortable and our guys did a better job of getting their hands in the passing lanes," Mashhour said. "Any time I feel anytime we play zone, and just try and mix it up.

"Marquawn Armstrong didn't give us anything the first half. He helped us in the second half offensively and defensively. I also thought Darryl Mobley played a little bit more solid in the second half than he did in the first."

Schoolcraft committed just six turnovers in the first half, but finished the game with 24.

"We shot ourselves in the foot the second half with 18 turnovers," Henry said. "A lot of them were trying to split two guys, indecision of where to pass, cross court passes ... just trying to slow the guys down. You've got to make the next regular pass to move forward, so that destroyed us the second half. With that saying, with seven guys they (Henry Ford) outworked us."

The Ocelots have been in a shooting slump in all They made only 3-of-16 from three-point range against the Hawks.

"That's been our problem the last four games we haven't shot the ball very well," Henry said. "We're not a great three-point shooting team. Against Wayne County (CC) we shot 20 percent, 33 percent against Delta. We finally get 40 percent against Oakland (CC), but then you play a team that is so athletic, eight, nine guys that can play ... we just can't finish right now. We're struggling to finish and that's a problem. We got four more shots than they (Henry Ford) did, but they're not going.'

Improve job-finding skills, networking at Plymouth church

NorthRidge Church in Plymouth has reorganized its Jobseekers care group; designed to help individuals find employ-

"It's more structured and there is a topic each week," said Marijo Swanson, Care coordinator. "Before that it was come as you are and tell us what kind of job you're looking for. It was more loosely structure, a more random kind of evening."

Led by two church volunteers, the program now includes different topics, covered from 7-9 p.m. on Monday. The schedule repeats every six weeks.

The Jan. 21 session will focus on using social media to find job postings, tips on LinkedIn and Twitter, networking for introverts and more.

The meeting on Jan. 28 will include discussion about body language, among other topics and the Feb. 5 session will help participants consider their choices and planning for employment.

The program will continue Feb. 18 with a look at the job market and skills that every employer wants. The following Monday, Feb. 25, the group will consider resumes and "elevator speeches."

"It's an open, drop-in type of format. It's a networking type of meeting," Swanson said. "There's no cost and no registration needed."

Jobseekers is one of more than 20 different support groups offered on Monday nights at the church.

"We offer a wide variety — single dads, anger, addiction, healthy living," Swanson said.

She said attendance at the Jobseekers sessions recently had decreased. The new format is designed to renew interest in the program.

Cats, dogs and friends bring comedy show to Redford Theatre

By Sharon Dargay Staff Writer

When Gregory Popovich does his sound check at the Redford Theatre on Jan. 26, he'll insist that his theater troupe also takes a smell check.

"I have them go on stage and smell and check it out. They walk around on stage. If I do a show without this, they look around during the show and wonder what is going on."

His stars, walking on four paws, will take about 20 minutes to get acquainted with the stage before they're comfortable enough to perform without losing focus during their Popovich Comedy Pet Theater show. "We have more than 30 pets including 14 cats, 12 dogs, three geese, two parrots and mice," said Popovich, 48, who performs regularly with his cast at Planet Hollywood Resort and Casino in Las Vegas, Nev. The show will kick off its three-month tour in Detroit at the Redford Theatre, then travel throughout the Midwest and East Coast before returning home, where Popovich, and his wife live with their furry and feathered brood. His daughter, who has assisted with the show, is at col-most of his life. The Russian-born son of circus performers — his parents both juggled and trained dogs — began assisting on stage with his mother's dog act as a child. He learned to juggle when he was 6 and became a member of the Moscow Circus 11 years later. He earned a featured spot in 1992 at Circus Circus in Las Vegas, where he eventually shared the stage with felines.

Popovich began adding cats to the show after introducing the family kitten into his clown act. The audience's enthusiastic response compelled him to create a "Cat Skills" routine that featured felines he had rescued from shelters. The show, combining his juggling and his performing cats, toured Japan before returning to Las Vegas, where he added shelter dogs into the act. The feline and canine stars went on the road, touring Europe, and North and South America in 2000. When the tour ended five years later, Popovich added birds, rats and ferrets into the performance, which also found a new venue in Las Vegas.°

He describes the Popovich Comedy Pet Theater as a variety show.

Natural talent

All of his cats and dogs are from shelters. With a full contingent of performers - and a couple of retired pets at home -Popovich doesn't add to the cast often these days. When he does search for a new pet, he looks for "natural talent" in the rows of shelter kennels and cages.

"I don't push them to do something. I try to let the pets play, and I play with them, and see what they can do, what they like to do," he explained his method of selecting cast members. "I create a part for them. I see what kind of pet is fit for an idea I have."

Rather than teaching his stars to perform specific stunts and tricks, he helps them show off their individual personalities and talents. If a cat likes to climb, it performs that action in a routine on stage. If a dog likes to jump, it shows off its skill for the audience.

"I have a dog that just looks good. When I ask in dog school (a routine) to give an answer and come to the board, he is always hiding behind his desk. He doesn't want to do difficult tricks or jumping. He looks like a lazy student. I created this part for him. It's more funny than action.

"I use natural habits in the show," he said.
"The mice are interesting" pets. They are smart. By nature if you give them feed they go to a higher level naturally." He integrates that habit into a routine that has mice moving from lower to higher levels.

Working with a new dog or cat requires a few months to gain trust and build communication and another six to nine months to learn routines. Popovich uses voice commands to cue his stars.

Adopting from shelters

One of his favorite stunts includes a piggy-

back-riding cat and a dog. "One of the most difficult tricks came when puppy and kitty were playing in the backyard and sometimes the kitty would jump on the dog. I'm proud of this because the pets gave me the idea for the trick," he said. "I repeated and repeated it and sewed a special jacket for the dog. It became one of my trademarks."

Another favorite routine involves a scene about a homeless circus performer, played by Popovich, and a homeless dog that steals his lunch.

"It's emotional. Everyone understands that this guy is homeless and the dog is homeless. He has no friends and finally he finds a friend on the street."

The routine conveys a subtle message about finding adoptable "friends" at animal shelters, a practice that Popovich promotes.

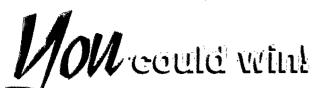

"If after my show a few people go to the shelter, I feel that my main mission is complete.'

Party tent offers music, drinks, festival viewing area

By Sharon Dargay Staff Writer

If you belly up to the bar at E.G. Nicks this weekend, make sure you're wearing layers.

The restaurant will get into the spirit of the Plymouth Ice Festival by offering two outdoor serving bars sculpted from ice. One will be located on the restaurant's patio and the other under a heated tent, the MGM Party Lot Lodge.

"You don't lean on the bar for sure," advised Frank Agostini, E.G. Nicks owner, as he considered the challenge of tending bar - or ordering drinks on ice. "They are big. They are nine- or 10-block sculptures. Plus they carve something to store bottles. They make it so well, it's a structure, like anything else.'

This is the restaurant's third winter tent. It will be open from 6 p.m. to midnight Friday-Saturday, Jan. 18-19. The Bluescasters will perform from 7 p.m. to midnight, Friday and JR and the Sellouts take the stage 7 p.m.-midnight, Saturday.

'It's like a lodge, with music, tables and drink specials. The heated tent is a place to go out and have a good time."

Patrons can watch the AGA Nation Downtown Rail Jam, involving ski and snowboard competitions, from the tent. The patio on Forest Ave., is heated, although not tented, and offers a view of Rail Jam's snowboard and skiing instructional clinics.

"It looks like the weather will be perfect to come out and enjoy the ice," Agostini said. "This place will be hopping. We'll have drink specials and giveaways.'

Ski shots — alcohol shots served on a single ski with participants all drinking them at once and an ice luge will be available. At the luge, the bartender pours a drink down the icy chute and the customer is "at the bottom to receive it."

Look for hot drinks like "Toasted Caramel Mocha," as well as cider. snow cones and other creations at the outdoor bars.

"We're limited in what we can pour out there. You're at an ice bar. It's not plumbed in with Coke guns," Agostini added.

The party tent and Rail Jam are the tip of the iceberg in terms of activities at the Plymouth Ice Festival, which will run 3-10 p.m. Friday, Jan. 18, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 19 and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 20.

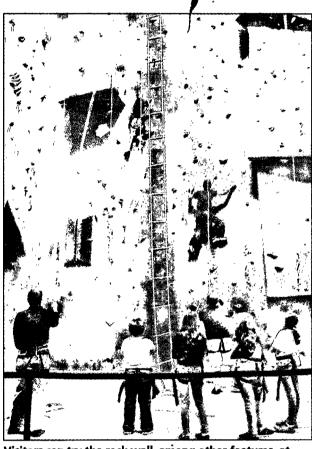

The event also will include a skating rink complete with skate rentals - in Kellogg Park, ice sculptures and carving demonstrations. A speed carving competition is set for 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 19 and college carving contests will be held both festival days.

The Eastern Michigan University Choir will sing at opening ceremonies at 7 p.m., Friday, Jan. 18 on the main stage in the Kellogg Park area. Radio Disney will take the main stage from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 19, followed by a winter fashion show from 3-4:30 p.m. The fashion show will repeat from 1-3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 20.

A Made in Michigan Marketplace will be stationed along Forest Ave., and food vendors will offer gourmet dining options. A warming tent located in the Gathering, across from Kellogg Park will feature local vendors, product demonstrations and seating. Free arts and crafts projects will be available from 1-4 p.m. both festival days in the warming tent.

The sweet and spicy secret to the perfect meal

f you're looking for a main dish recipe that will wow your guests, there's a secret ingredient you should know about. Inside its soft velvety skin, and wrapped in a slightly spicy aroma, is a honey-like sweetness with a subtle berry flavor that many cooks find extraordinary. What is it? The fig.

Figs, both fresh and dried, offer a unique flavor that can be used in both sweet and savory dishes. Their intense sweetness is well complemented by tangy balsamic or sherry vinegars, salty cured meats such as ham and prosciutto, roasted meats, and warm herbs and spices such as rosemary, thyme, cinnamon and cardamom.

Figs aren't only rich in flavor, they're rich in nutrients. They bring antioxidants and all-important dietary fiber with every delicious bite. Available year-round, California Dried Figs are ready to eat right out of the package or are easily diced, sliced or poached for cooking and baking.

Home Builders Association: Climb predicted in single-family building

The Home Builders Association of Michigan (HBA Michigan) is forecasting that single-family home construction in 2013 will increase by 39 percent over 2012 levels. HBA Michigan attributes the positive forecast to a stronger Michigan economy and state legislation aimed at stimulating the housing

With record low new home production for the past several years, pent up demand is finally beginning to burst through in the marketplace,' noted Robert Filka, CEO of HBA Michigan. "When combined with positive tax and regulatory changes that will encourage more investment, our outlook is more optimistic than it's been in nearly a decade.

The number of single-family home permits recorded year-to-date in Michigan was up 36 percent through the end of October 2012. Those are the latest numbers available from the US Census Bureau. Current projections are for some 10,000 single-family home permits to be issued in Michigan for all of 2012.

Looking ahead at singlefamily home permits in 2013 following a reasonable solution to the U.S. "fiscal cliff" negotiations — HBA Michigan forecasts 13,928 permits to be issued in the coming year. In addition to stronger economic factors, Filka said the housing industry will be assisted next year by a new law adopted by the state legislature and recently signed by Gov. Rick Snyder. Public Act 494 of 2012 reduces the tax on new inventory homes that are constructed by home build-

"Reducing this punitive tax on inventory homes will lower risk and encourage homebuilders to construct more homes in the future," said Filka. "Building inventory homes is a critical marketing tool that has proven successful in generating new home sales. Thanks to the foresight of the legislature and the governor, homebuilders will now be able to invest more in our communities around the state."

The Home Builders Association of Michigan is a professional trade association comprised of 27 local homebuilder associations around the state and their builder, subcontractor and supplier members. HBA of Michigan works to promote the building industry and impact legislative, regulatory and legal issues affecting housing affordability.

Talk to neighbor before suit

By Robert Meisner Guest Columnist

Q: I have a unique situation where my neighbor constructed within a 40-foot-wide easement on my property that ran parallel to the roadway laid out in the easement and placed log decks and other personal property on the other side of the road creating a "cow chute." These acts narrowed the area in which cars could pass. Do I have a basis to sue my neighbor for what he did? He claims that the width of the easement was only a 12-to-14-foot paved area based on the historical use.

A: While it is obviously fact intensive, in a similar case, a Washington State appellate court held that your neighbor's placement structures within the easement might lead to an adverse possession claim that would terminate easement. In addition, a zoning ordinance that prohibited the location of buildings and structures within the easement made what would have been your neighbor's activities a nuisance per se, requiring removal of the fence and other property. It may result in a lawsuit, but you should advise your neighbor of the legal ramifications of what he has done.

Q: I am in a situation where one of my tenants has suffered some lead poisoning. He is now claiming that I am responsible under a negligence theory, even though he was responsible for maintaining the premises. What do you think?

A: Well, it all depends upon the state in which you are involved, but in a recent case out of Virginia, the court held that absent fraud or concealment a landlord who has given possession of the premises to the tenant owes no duty of care to maintain the premises since that duty rests with the tenant. In that case, the court rejected the argument that the landlord's retention of the right to enter to make repairs created a duty because this reserved right did not displace the tenant's full right of possession. The court also found that the state's statutory requirement that the landlords comply with building codes created a contractual warranty but not a tort liability. Moreover, the court dismissed a claim under common law negligence for failure to warn of the presence of lead paint which is, of course, required in Michigan because a landlord had made a lead paint disclosure and the conditions were obvious and open to view. Obviously, you should consult with your own attorney with respect to the claim.
