The Wayne-Westland Fire Marshal Division is handling the investigation, with fire investigators from two insurance companies also on site at the Electric Stick and Marvaso's Italian Grille. The Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration has also had representatives at the fire scene, Reddy said, and is expected to conduct its investigation next week.

An autopsy showed Woelhke died of smoke inhalation and also had

Fireworks: Westland OKs tent sales, Wayne tweaks ordinance

By LeAnne Rogers Staff Writer

Requests for eight temporary fireworks tents in parking lots around Westland have been approved but at least one councilman isn't happy about it.

The tents would be open and selling fireworks June 25 through July 6. Under state law, consumer fireworks can be legally discharged on a legal holidays, such as July 4. as well as the day before and day after.

"After talking with the city attorney, I'm compelled to vote yes on these items," said Westland

Councilman Michael Kehrer. "I don't understand why the state Legislature is forcing us to allow tents in parking lots. We did fight this and take it to court."

The change in state law allowed a wider range of fireworks to be sold commercially and effectively eliminated local restrictions regarding fireworks. That's prompted complaints about noise and other issues over fireworks being discharged.

"I'll buy nothing from tents personally. I feel they should have brick and

Wayne seeks 'barks' to win cash for dog park

By LeAnne Rogers Staff Writer

Bark for Your Park your online votes could help Wayne win money to construct a dog park.

Throughout May, there is online voting that could move Wayne into the second round to qualify for a grant from PetSafe.

Is there a big demand for a place for man's best friend in Wayne?

"We've had a few requests. When you see an opportunity to have something free, you go for it," Wayne-Westland Parks and Recreation Director Nathan Adams said.

The top prize is $100,000 but Adams said he thinks it's unlikely a smaller city like Wayne could qualify for that. Instead, he said he hopes the city could get a $25,000 prize.

"A couple of years ago, we removed a house in the southwest corner of Attwood Park. That is where we would put it," Adams said.

A $25,000 prize would pay for five-foot fencing around a designated area and some dog agility equipment. Canton spent about $125,000 on their dog park which included parking, trees and sod — Attwood Park already has all of that.

"People are already walking their dogs in the park. This dog park would allow them to unleash their dogs," Adams said.

The online voting is allowed daily. If Wayne makes it through the first round, a video would have to be produced in June for the second round of competition.

For more information, visit the Wayne Parks and Recreation Facebook page for a link at http://is.gd/6D9rsr or go to www.petsafe.net.

mortar buildings," said Kehrer. "There will literally be a tent in every parking lot on Wayne Road."

Wayne, which has a permanent fireworks store in the recently opened Pro Fireworks on Michigan Avenue, held a first reading Tuesday on a proposed ordinance amendment to reflect changes in the state fireworks law.

The state statute, and as a result the local ordinance, restricts the days for legally discharging fireworks and has other prohibitions, such as no setting off fireworks on public property, including streets and sidewalks or while intoxicated, but there are no hour restrictions.

"I was the hold out. I wanted times (in the ordinance). The city attorney, the fire chief and deputy chief, the police chief and deputy were all against me," said Wayne City Manager Robert English. "If someone is lighting off fireworks near your house at 4 a.m., call the police." There is no time specified in the city's noise ordinance but City Attornev Breeda O'Leary-Holder said violations would be based on whether the noise is reasonably necessary with time of day being a factor.

"We have no ability to say the day ends at 10 p.m. I'm willing to consider a complaint from residents," said O'Leary-Holder, whose duties include reviewing requests to file charges under city ordinance.

"In the past, we've had complaints. The state left a lot of loose ends," said Wayne Mayor Al Haidous, adding that a letter to state Rep. Robert Kosowski, D-Westland. might be needed.

LWV state president: Scrap EAA

By David Veselenak Staff Writer

The recently developed Education Achievement Authority in Michigan is one endeavor Sue Smith believes should be dropped.

"For the most part, the state Board of Education is being left out of the plans for the EAA," she said. "I was at the hearing on the EAA bill and testifying against it on the basis that it took away the citizen control over schools."

Smith, president of the Michigan League of Women Voters, gave a presentation Thursday at the Livonia Civic Center Library on Michigan's education system and many of the proposed changes to it.

The statewide League of Women Voters, she said, is watching many of the issues and deciding to take a stance on several of them in regards to education. The league is a nonpartisan group that only takes positions on issues and does not endorse candidates.

The EAA was started last year and oversees the operation of 15 low-performing schools in Detroit. Those schools were removed from the Detroit school district and placed into the EAA, which serves as its school district with a board appointed by the governor. Talk of expanding the program across the state has entered the Legislature, with a bill in the Senate proposing 50 EAAs across the state.

Charter school cap

Smith, a former administrator at Central Michigan University and school board member in Mount Pleasant, talked about other changes as well, including the elimination of the cap for charter schools. The cap will be raised to 500 in the entire state by the end of 2014 with no limit on the number of charter schools after that.

Smith said increasing the number of charter schools doesn't necessarily mean education will be improved, as some legislators believe.

"There are some good charter schools and some not-so-good charter schools," she said. "The data that I've seen shows that they probably aren't any better at serving kids that are hard to teach than the ordinary public schools."

Angela Ryan, president of the Northwest Wayne County chapter of the league, said this is the first time in several years the local chapter has hosted the state president. She said the topic couldn't be more relevant to northwest Wayne County with the multitude of schools in the area, and Smith's knowledge was more than welcomed.

Funding following the student

🕶 LOCAL NEWS 🐃

"It was very logical to have her do the presentation here," Ryan said. "It doesn't happen every day."

Smith touched on the recent talks from Gov. Rick Snyder about changing the way schools are funded. Snyder has proposed a plan that would allot the funding per student to go to the parents as opposed to the local school district as it currently is under Proposal A.

This way, parents could use that funding how they saw fit to educate their child, be it through traditional school districts, charter schools or cyber academies, which are seeing an increase in Michigan as well.

But Smith said several issues, including transportation of students, have gone unanswered with the proposal.

"The funding would follow the student, who could take any combination of courses from any school district," she said. "There's no details; that's what makes it so hard to deal with."

Love you, Mom!

Judy Stonik of Westland recalls that the family was "your average, middle class American family growing up in the 1950s-60s." And being students in the Catholic school system, she and her sisters didn't have large wardrobes nor ones loaded with brand names. "Still we were expected to present ourselves neat, clean and put together. Stylish but not outlandish," she said. "So you knew as a teenager you missed the mark when you were ready to go out and heard, 'Have you lost your marbles? Did you look in the mirror? Go back right now and change!" John Glenn team scores first in robotics contest

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

Two John Glenn High School students have some cash in their pockets and scholarships after winning first-place in the eighth annual Engineering/Computer Science Experience at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Eleventh-graders Erdi Meco and Irals Spaillari won the competition by designing and manufacturing a robotic car for the March 23 contest hosted by UM-D's College of Engineering and Computer Science.

"It has a mind of its own," said Meco in demonstrating the vehicle at last month's Wayne-Westland school board meeting. "We made the front end curved to put extra weight on it. We took the extra time that other students didn't."

This is the sixth time physics teacher Dave Christiansen has sent teams of two students to the competition in which students are given a box of parts and the task of designing a vehicle that drives itself.

"They designed it from scratch, replicated it and built it," Christiansen said. "They did a really good job, I'm really proud of them. It's our first first-place award, we're not use to that. It's pretty exciting for them.

Sixty teams and 120 students from around the state competed in the contest. After designing and building their robotic vehicles, the students tested them by racing them on two different tracks. According to Meco, their car operates off of two opposite charges. When it gets a corner, it will turn itself.

"We hadn't tested it before the races, we didn't know what would happen," he said. John Glenn Principal David Ingham, in introducing Meco and Spaillari, said the two young men "surprised all of us."

"It really was a great competition and great prizes for our students," he said, admitting that "I never really paid much attention until we won."

Meco and Spaillari each received $500 cash prizes as well as received $2,000 scholarships.

Superintendent Greg Baracy called the students' efforts a "phenomenal accomplishment."

"Obviously, it exceed your expectations," Baracy said. "Congratulations on a job well done."

Cooper students thank veterans by holding clothing drive

Cooper Upper Elementary students are holding a clothing drive Monday through Saturday, May 13-18, for the Disabled American Veterans Chapter on Ann Arbor Trail and Middlebelt, and they encourage members of the public to donate slightly used clothing as well.

Teacher MaryBeth Lorenz said the veterans transported students' luggage free of charge to Howell Conference and Nature Center for their annual camp trip.

"The only way the Livonia Public Schools can truly show their appreciation is to urge others to donate and show their appreciation to the DAV, not only for their willingness to help Livonia students but for the sacrifices that they have made for all Americans," she said.

Donations may be dropped off at the DAV Thrift Store at 8050 Middlebelt Road in Westland. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

For larger items, call (866) 520-5328 to schedule a pickup.

Lutheran High School, Westland community honor fallen Warrior

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

The flags at Lutheran High School Westland were lowered to half staff Thursday and the marquee in front of the school changed to honor one of its fallen Warriors, Wayne-Westland firefighter Brian Woehlke.

The Dearborn resident played on the Warriors soccer and basketball teams and sang in the choir before graduating in 2001 from the high school.

"He was a great person, he had a great personality," said Kevin Wade, dean of students at the high school. "It's like they said, he had a smile on his face always. He was like that. He was easy to get along with:"

Woehlke was among firefighters who responded to a fire at the Electric Stick and Marvaso's Italian Grille sometime after 8 a.m. Wednesday. A may day distress radio call from Woehlke was received about 9:30 a.m. His body was recovered from the collapsed building about 12:40 p.m. Woehlke is believed to have been trapped in debris from the collapsed Electric Stick.

News of Woehlke's death came as a shock to Wade, who had known the family. Wade had attended LHW with Brad Woehlke and knew his youngest brother from playing soccer and church league basketball.

Wade had talked to friends about the fire and even saw the smoke in the sky, but didn't think that someone he knew might be involved. That was until friends called and asked if he had heard the news.

Wade started working at the high school three months after Woehlke graduated. He said the young man didn't have a career idea then, but eventually worked to become an EMT. He became a Wayne-Westland firefighter 10 months ago, following in the footsteps of his grandfather who had been a Dearborn fire-

Wade is glad to see the big outpouring of support for the family and said faith will help those who knew them get through the tragedy.

"When you're a student, you have a tendency to ask why am I going to this faith-based school," he said. "It's times like this they know that what they were taught will get them through.

"And I know Brian is in heaven, I know he's with his Father," Wade said.

Looking for clues

At the site of the fire Thursday afternoon, fire investigators had began the painstaking process of finding out what caused the blaze. Fencing has been put up and heavy equipment brought in to move debris to in front of the closed Internet Cafe. Pink spray paint marks sections of the collapsed building

A makeshift memorial has been erected in front of the burned-out shell of restaurant, and a steady stream of people stopped by to pay their respects or see what was going on. Flowers, flags, candles and a collection of stuffed animals were propped up against the fence.

ship. Woehlke was working as an auxiliary firefighter in Redford, and took the jump to full time last summer when it was offered with the Wayne-Westland Fire Depart-

"He always had a pleasing disposition to learning the job," Graham said. "He was excited when he got the job in Westland."

Graham and the rest of the Redford Township Fire Department are mourning the death of Woehlke, a 29-year-old Dearborn resident who died Wednesday while battling a blaze at the Electric Stick and Marvaso's Italian Grille on Wayne Road in Westland.

Graham said he responded to the fire as a part of the Wayne County Urban Search and Rescue teams when the call came in that Woehlke was missing. He got there minutes after the Wayne-Westland department was able to find Woehlke in the fire.

His death is the first in the Wayne-Westland's 47year history.

Graham said Woehlke worked in Redford from September 2011 to June 2012, when he left. Several other auxiliary firefighters from the township took full-time positions with the fire department recently as well, he Supervisor Tracey Schultz Kobylarz spoke of Woehlke before her State of the Township address Thursday, giving sympathy to the city of Westland and its mayor, William Wild, who was in \ attendance, for their loss.

"I swore in that firefighter. He started his career as a fireman in Redford Township and left us to go to the city of Westland," she said. "Whenever I swear in a new policeman or new fireman, I tell them and their families that you are here to make a living so you can go home to your family. And while you are here, we will have your back. But when you go home, it's important you know your family has your back there. This young man didn't go home yesterday, and Mayor Wild, I'm so sorry."

Graham said several Redford firefighters have spent time in Westland working with firefighters there dealing with the loss of Woehlke. He said the events last week continue to resonate the dangers of the job, and how important it is to be mindful of the

"The next call could be your call," he said. "You just have to take it as the job is. Our sympathy goes out to Brian and his family, and his brothers and sisters in the Westland fire department."

"What a shame," said Jerry Hickman of Westland. "It's a terrible, terrible tragedy."

A member of the Nankin Township Volunteer Fire Department and a retired industrial fire chief from Ford Motor Co., Hickman had stopped by the site twice on Wednesday, but came back one more time before heading to the Wayne-Westland Fire Administration in Wayne to make a donation to a Trust Fund set up for Woehlke's 13-month-old daughter, Ava.

"I couldn't get it off my mind, I came back up here last night and said a little prayer," said Hickman. Susan Smith had come by to see the site. She had gone to school with owner George Marvaso's son. She had been at a restaurant in Southgate and saw a report on a fire in Westland. She was shocked when she saw that it was Marvaso's.

In a box: Teens sleep outside to experience homelessness

By Sue Mason Staff Writer

The plight of the homeless was a front and center for a group of teens from St. Damian, St. Theodore and Divine Savior Catholic Churches in Westland and St. Robert Bellarmine in Redford. who recently spent the night sleeping outside in cardboard boxes.

Designed to raise awareness and to raise funds and collect donations for Covenant House in Detroit, the 24 teenagers braved temperatures that dropped down into the 30s during their 12hour stay outdoors.

"I layered on extra sweat shirts and sweat pants and brought a mummy sleeping bag to keep warm," said Kristen Mason of Westland. "It worked fairly well."

The event was held at St. Theodore Church, and each person paid $8 to participate in the event: $5 of that amount went directly to Covenant House, which provides shelter, education and vocational training, and other support to teens age 13-22 who are homeless, runaways, or otherwise at-risk. The remaining $3 helped cover the cost of a Dumpster to dispose of the cardboard boxes, program supplies and breakfast. Mason and a friend taped their boxes together and then cut windows in them so they could talk to each other during the night.

In addition to the $8 fee. the teens also brought in

An 11th-grader at Livonia Franklin High School, Mason spent most of the night outside, but eventually went in around 5-5:30 a.m.

"That's about when I caved in," she said.

The teens showed up at St. Theodore at 7 p.m. to stack out their church's claim to a section of the lawn. There was an opening prayer and introductions at 9 p.m., followed by the speakers from Covenant House.

They were served hot soup and sandwiches at 11 p.m. before retiring to their boxes for the night and had to get up at 7 a.m. to cleanup. According to

The origins of Mother's Day

oday, we think of Mother's Day as a day for cards, flowers, a nice dinner, or a phone call home. But did you know that when the founder of Mother's Day saw how commercialized the holiday was becoming, she spent the rest of her life campaigning against it?

Mother's Day was originally conceived in 1908 by a woman named Anna Jarvis as a day for solemn sentiment, thanks and remembrance of mothers everywhere. The holiday was made official in 1914, when President Woodrow Wilson signed it into law. But Jarvis soured on the holiday by the 1920s, when she saw the industry that popped up to profit from Mother's Day - florists, greeting card companies and confectioners who seemed to be subverting the true spirit of the celebration. Jarvis wrote, "A maudlin, insincere printed card or ready-made telegram means nothing except that you're too lazy to write to the woman who has done more for you than anyone else in the world.'

In the United States, Mother's Day falls on the second Sunday in May and remains one of the biggest days of the year for sales of flowers and greeting cards. Mother's Day also is typically the day of the year with the highest volume of telephone calls around the world, routinely beating other holidays like New Year's Eve and Valentine's Day. While Anna Jarvis may not have approved of all of our methods for celebrating Mother's Day, it is safe to say that she would have appreciated the personalized gifts, crafts and heartfelt sentiments that we share with our moms (or in memory of our moms) on Mother's Day.

The library has a varietv of books related to Mother's Day. For adults, check out Mothers' Day: Its History, Origin, Celebration, Spirit, and Significance or Holidays and Celebrations With Your Kids. OLECRANON BURSITIS

The term "olecranon bursitis" refers to an enlargement of a sac on the underside of the elbow intended to act as a cushion between the elbow bone, called the olecranon, and the skin. The way the elbow naturally rests against a hard surface necessitates the protection the olecranon sac, or bursa as it is called, provides.

When the bursa enlarges, the cause is not inflammation, rather the enlargement results from constant rubbing of the elbow on a hard surface. It is incorrect to believe that a doctor should treat the enlargement by taking fluid from the bursa or at least starting antibiotics or water pills to rid the elbow of its

Just the opposite is true. The cause of the bursitis is irritation; the treatment is to remove the irritant. In the case of olecranon bursitis, the person must forgo the habit of rubbing the elbow on a table top, car seat elbow rest, or work station arm support.

Removing fluid from the bursa does no good as the elbow being normally in a dependent position will re-accumulate the fluid. That tendency is further aided if the individual does not change the habit of rubbing the elbow on a hard surface. There are exceptions to the rule of not treating the swelling. If the olecranon bursa is tender to touch and the skin about the bursa is thickened, then the possibility of infection or gout exists. In such cases the doctor will aspirate fluid, analyze it for infection or crystals and treat the bursitis according to the findings.

Converting to Roth IRA Canton killer gets life in prison often a good strategy Staff Writer A Canton man has been A Canton man has been Canton killer gets life in prison whose bodies were found by Detroit police on Feb. 27, 2012, inside a burned-aut home on Process. A second defendant, 49-

By Rick Bloom Guest Columnist

Q: Dear Rick: I'm in my early 70s and have just retired. Social Security and my pension cover all my expenses. In fact,

I'm actually saving money per month. I have approximately $350,000 in my IRA. I don't need the income from that money at this point

Money Matters

but I was told that because of my age I would have to start taking distributions. Since I don't need the money is there any way that I can avoid having to take required minimum distributions?

A: There are a couple of ways to avoid taking required minimum distributions. One is putting the money in a Roth IRA which is not subject to required minimum distributions. Since it appears that your money is in a traditional IRA, you would have to convert the money into a Roth. As part of this transaction, the money that you are converting is subject to ordinary income tax. Once the money is within the Roth IRA, you can leave it there and it will grow tax free for as long as you choose.

I speak often about converting traditional IRAs into Roth IRAs. The upside is that money in a Roth IRA grows tax-free and is not subject to required minimum distributions. The downside is that whatever money you convert you have to pay taxes on. That money, however, would always have been subject to tax. By converting it you're paying the tax a little earlier.

Particularly in a situation such as yours, it may pay to start an aggressive strategy of converting money into a Roth IRA. I don't believe it makes sense to convert the entire amount at once because it would throw you into a higher tax bracket. However, it may make sense to implement a program where you're converting your traditional IRA into a Roth IRA over a five-year period. Five years down the road all the money would be in the Roth TRA and you would no longer be subject to required minimum distributions.

My general rules for converting traditional IRAs into Roth IRAs include:

- You must have the money to pay the tax owed without touching the money being converted.
- Converting won't throw you into a higher tax bracket.
- You are able to leave the money to grow within the Roth IRA for at least five to seven years.

There is another way to get around the minimum distribution rules and that is you can donate your required minimum distribution to a qualified charity. As long as the money goes directly from the IRA to a qualified charity, there are no tax consequences.

This is a very good strategy to use particularly for people who are generous in nature and who no longer can itemize their charitable contributions. This strategy has been in and out of the law for a number of years but was once again put back into the law during the fiscal cliff discussions. Even though you do not get a charitable deduction when you follow this strategy, you are avoiding the tax on your required minimum distribution.

One last note and that is when it comes to converting traditional IRAs into Roth IRAs, it's not something that only seniors can take advantage of. Anyone can convert money into a Roth IRA. You don't have to convert your entire account; you can convert any portion of it. If you meet the criteria outlined here, no matter how old or how young you are, converting can be a very good strategy. Good luck!

GIRLS TRACK

Churchill 3rd in Kensington chase

By Brad Emons Observer Staff Writer

The KLAA's Central Division had plenty to say about Friday's Kensington Conference girls track and field meet.

Dual-meet Central champion Northville was the runaway winner with a team-high 142 points followed by Salem (103), host Livonia Churchill (98) and Novi

Plymouth (58), Canton (37) and Livonia Franklin (37) — all members of the KLAA Southrounded out the top six in the 12school field.

Nobody had a bigger day individually than Salem junior Kayla Kavulich, who swept the 400meter dash (59.12), 800 (2:21.9) and 1,600 (5:04.42), while anchoring the Rocks' first-place 1,600 relay team along with Khyli Ray, Shekinah Johnson and Alex Davis).

"I tried to put her in more events, but they wouldn't let me," quipped Salem coach Dave Gerlach. "Great day today. Bigtime athletes got to step up in big-time meets and several of our kids did that - Kayla Kavulich in four events including the 4 x 400 relay. I can't say enough about her.

"Anya Cho had a big day in the mile- and two-mile for us.

"Our throwers in the discus.... all three placed ... I'm real happy with that. Khyli Ray had a tremendous day winning the 100 dash (12.28) and was one of the medal winners in the 4 x 100 (relay) and obviously in the 4 x 400. Obviously she had a big day." Salem's track team is much improved under coach Dave Gerlach, who has been the school's longtime girls cross country coach.

"It's huge step," he said. "After last year's sixth-place finish, and in our first year with a whole new coaching staff, we changed quite a few things and obviously the results are in a positive frame."

Churchill, the KLAA South Division dual meet champion, captured one individual event - Elyssa Hofmann in the 200 (25.71), along with two relay rac-

"For us, Elyssa Hofmann was the story," Churchill coach Pat Daugherty said. "We won the 4 x 100 and 4×200 with her anchor.

Web gem Clutch catch lifts Canton by Churchill

By Tim Smith Staff Writer

A diving catch by Canton second baseman Kendyl Richter preserved the Chiefs' 10-6 win over Livonia Churchill in a weatherdelayed Game 1 Wednesday.

And the positive vibes carried over into the nightcap of the KLAA South Division doubleheader, as the host Chiefs edged the Chargers 2-1 behind a complete game by freshman pitcher McKenna Payne.

Canton thus bounced back from a loss to Plymouth in Game 2 of Tuesday's twinbill between the division

The Chiefs (15-2, 10-2) had a rough start to Wednesday's opener, however, as Churchill (13-7, 7-6) tallied four runs in the top of the

It didn't take long for Canton's response, however. Plating two runs each with singles in the bottom half of the first were Jessica Webster, Hanna Warren and Shannon Watson.

Three more Canton runs scored in the second, courtesy of a double by Paige Aresco (4-for-4,) and tworun triple by Webster.

Also chipping in with two hits was Catherine Porter and pitcher· Hannah Shuler went the distance for the win, allowing just one runner over the final four frames.

"That was just an awesome catch," Canton coach Jim Arnold said.

Churchill took a 1-0 lead against Payne in the first inning of Game 2, but the Chiefs scratched across the tying and winning runs in the third against Churchill starter Katie Shereda, who gave up six hits in six innings.

Brynn Birchler singled to left, but was still on base with two outs.

Richter kept things going with a base hit and Payne helped her own cause with a single to center to score Birchler.

Aresco then laced a base hit up the middle, bringing home Richter with the lead run.

The Chargers, who left seven on base, got first-inning RBI from speaks to the testament of the depth of the division," Salem firstyear head coach Steve Aspinall said. "It was Novi, Northville, Stevenson and us tied for third.

"And Stevenson was the division champ, here they are tying for third in the conference. It's fun to battle with those guys."

The top team from the KLAA South Division at the conference meet was Plymouth, with 63 points. Finishing fifth was Livonia Franklin (52), followed by Canton (46) and Churchill (40.5).

Aspinall said Salem "scored points all over the place," led by the quartet of Drake Jordan, Sean Davis, Steven Homrich and Chris Dierker.

That quartet placed first in the 400-meter relay with a time of 44.39 and took second in the 800meter relay with a time of 1:31.83 barely trailing victorious Novi's 1:31.77.

Aspinall said Davis broke the Salem record in the open 200 with his second-place time of 22.41 while Homrich placed second in the 100 dash with a time of 11.23, edging out third-place Alexander Rogers of Plymouth (11.25).

Dierker took third in the high jump (6-0) and Jordan placed in the long jump (sixth, 18-8.75) "so those four guys kind of put us on their backs and scored quite a few points for us."

Sophomore Miles Mason posted a personal best in the 110 hurdles (sixth, 16.89) while distance runners Steve McEvilly and Chaz Jeffress both placed in the mile and two-mile runs.

Depth also was a big factor for Stevenson's success during the regular season (the Spartans won the division with a 5-0 mark) and that carried over into Friday, said head coach Scott Shaw.

"Besides Joe (Mims) for us in the hurdles, we don't have anybody that's going to win a lot of events," Shaw said. "But we have a lot of guys who are going to finish in the middle of the pack. That's how we've won all our dual meets this year."

Mims led the way with his firstplace finish in the 300 hurdles (40.58) and second-place showing in the 110s (15.68).

"He was seeded fourth in both of them and came out and did a nice job in both those races for us," Shaw noted.

There were some nice surprises, he continued, in that Danny Pocalujka posted a personal best in the discus (second, 137-9) and Mike Licata, who wasn't seeded in the long jump, took fifth with a mark of 18-10.

"We have some outstanding guys who have been consistent all year long and improved pretty well." Shaw said. "We had some people who came out of nowhere. like Jack Cole, who placed fifth today in the pole vault (11-6) when our other two guys were hurt today. And our throwers have been consistent all year long."

According to Aspinall, the conference meet gave his team a chance to renew acquaintances with Park rivals Plymouth and Canton, something that didn't happen as much this season because of the cancellation of the annual City Meet due to weather.

"We didn't get a chance to have our City Meet this year because of weather," Aspinall continued. "So it's fun to run neck-andneck. And Canton went one in the high jump and they scored a ton of points in the fields, they were making a run at it."

Canton's Jamal Dixon won that event with a 6-4, followed by teammate Akil Wade at 6-2 and Dierker in third (6-0). The Wildcats were close behind, with Nathan Harris and Brent Piligian (each at 5-11).

Churchill's lone first was posted by Jacob Hage, who won the pole vault with a jump of 14-0.

She came back and won the 200 and third in the 100. She had a long, long day. She had eight races basically.

"We scored a lot of second places. I was really happy with our performance today. Obviously we were overmatched by the Central Division in general – Northville, Salem and Novi. They're great teams in that other division and they dominated today. But it was a good day overall ... fun to watch."

Individual champions in the field events included Canton's Amber Warren, shot put (36 feet, 3 inches); Novi's Taylor Pavlika, discus (133-9); Novi's Kerri McMahan, high jump (5-3); Novi's Abby Downs, long jump (17-2.25); and Plymouth's Jane McCurry, pole vault (11-0).

Other individual event winners included Northville's Lauren Rodriguez,

100 hurdles (14.83); Westland John Glenn's Kirsten Smith, 300 hurdles (46.15); an Northville's Rachel Coleman, 3,200 (11:29.92). "It obviously starts with Northville — they dominated and they're a great team," Daugherty said. "Sometimes they were scoring two, sometimes three people in every event and they were high in the relays. They did a great job, very good team.

"Kavulich for Salem obviously had a great day. It's good to see great athletes like that in our conference meet."

"Sediqa Nedam played really, really well in the back along with Rachel Tomassi, Kathleen Rubenson, Erin McDonald," Friedrichs said. "I thought our midfield really worked hard — Kacie Murray, Alivia Kondrath and Karly Munroe.

"Our forwards up top were really good - Lauren Wynns, Rylie Fallu, Kelsey (Parrinello) and Alexys Lubonja.

"I was just really pleased with our effort and how we played well together. I thought we deserved to win. They (Canton) were not that dangerous offensively. Our defense was great and it was so fun to watch the girls play tonight." GLENN 4, WAYNE 2:Kaitlyn Mitchell scored a pair of goals Thursday as visiting Westland John Glenn (7-4-2, 2-4-1) downed stubborn Wayne Memorial (2-8-1, 0-7-1).

COMMUNITY LIFE

Malawi mission

Church members strengthen bonds through partnership

By Sharon Dargay Staff Writer

Hussein Latif has prayed for members of First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth for four

Over the past two weeks, while visiting Plymouth with a mission team, he finally got a chance to match faces and names with prayer requests.

"There was one young lady I had been praying for. I was so glad to meet her here. I felt like I had known her for a long time," said Latif, who serves as a partnership liaison between Mtenthera Church of Central Africa Presbyterian (CCAP) in Malawi and First Presbyterian Church in Plym-

"Building strong relationships with each other --- that can't be done by Skyping one another or writing e-mails. It's important to come together once and awhile face to face to get to know each other."

That's just what he and other members of Mtenthera Church have done since arriving on Tuesday, April 30, in Michigan to meet members of their "sister" church in Plym-

The Mtenthera team members, Rev. Shadreck Solomon Banda, Mtenthera's pastor; Labani Ababi Chafulatira, partnership chairman; Efrida Kawaye, Christian Education chair; Abine-

Daisy Felix Kamnyanja Nyaka (left) and Efrida Kawaye will take home a few American ideas about nursery school classrooms and domestic violence shelters. Kawaye was impressed by her visit to First Step, the center for domestic and sexual violence victims.

ri Kalulu Kuleza, Development Committee chair: and Daisy Felix Kamnyanja Nyaka, Women's Guild chair; have lived with First Presbyterians families and participated in worship services, youth group meetings, a Bible study, choir rehearsal, and church committee meetings. They also toured both church and secular nursery schools, with an eye toward bringing ideas home to their own churchbased preschool, and visited an urban Presbyterian church. Sunday, May 12 is their final day in Mich-

Understanding

"When we've gone to Malawi, they've introduced us to every part of .. their church. We received a special orientation," said Kathy Bernard, who was among the first four members of First Presbyterian to visit Malawi. "This was their first time to come here. We hoped to expose them to what First Presbyterian is. "We're sharing cultural and church organization information. Ultimately, the goal is to have these people develop relationships with more people here."

From the beginning, the 10-year partnership between the two churches has been about building relationships. The two churches wrote and signed a covenant four years ago identifying the scope, length and purpose of the partnership.

PHOTOS BY BILL BRESLER | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER Doug Kee, a member of First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, has been on nine mission trips.

"We do share tangible gifts and trips and so forth. But the whole purpose is to share the spiritual life of the congregations," said Doug Kee, who was on the initial First Presbyterian mission team to Mtenthera CCAP. He has taken eight mission trips to Malawi since then. Both churches have sent partnership teams to visit each other's congregations, but this is the first time the Malawi delegation has included lay members of the church.

"It's very cool that you can get to know people personally," Kee said. 'We've done a ton of projects, but we've also shared prayers lists. We do a devotional time here Thursday evening that is at the exact time they do prayers in Malawi, at 4 a.m. there."

Reaching out

Church members from the two congregations also Skype weekly. The Plymouth church helped fund roof replacements at Mtenthera's satellite prayer houses, which extends the church's reach into the community. It also arranged for a company to dig a well for clean water and distributed 700 Bibles in the native language, among other projects.

"They have benefitted from us and we have benefitted from them," Banda said.

"People from Africa tend to think they have nothing to offer and that's not true," Latif added. "We've been given so many opportunities to prove that while we're here, whether it is teaching, preaching or just working in various capacities.'

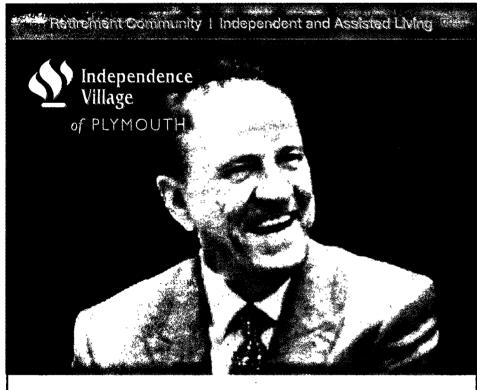

Rev. Elizabeth Campbell, First Presbyterian's associate pastor, said members of her church have found spiritual renewal by watching their African brothers and sisters "live out their faith."

Laura McHugh, who has both visited Malawi and opened her home to the women from the visiting delegation, said the partnership has "renewed excitement" at First Presbyterian. She said their stay in Plymouth has caused her to "re-examine our lifestyle."

McHugh pointed out that one of her guests, Felix Kamnyanja Nyaka, grows her own food and farms.

" I buy everything from the grocery store," McHugh said. "What a gift to understand that you can grow your own food and rely on yourself. Just this morning she said, are you going to put a garden in your backyard? I feel like I need to do that."

Exhibit of saints' relics designed to ignite spiritual renewal

Reliquaries, such as the one pictured, hold sacred relics. Visitors to an upcoming exhibit of sacred relics at St. Michael the Archangel Church in Livonia, will be allowed to touch the reliquaries.

Livonia Public Schools Opens Renowned Academically Talented Program to Out-of-District Students

Livonia Public Schools is opening its Alternative Classrooms for the Academically Talented (ACAT) program to Limited Schools of Choice for the 2013-2014 school year.

Registration will be open from May 8-22, 2013 at Webster Elementary, 32401 Pembroke, Livonia 48152 from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday-Friday All candidates MUST meet the ACAT selection testing criteria.

Visitors to a one-day exhibit of sacred relics at St. Michael the Archangel Church in Livonia Monday will get a chance to touch the display containers called reliquaries that will hold such items such as saints' bones, clothing fragments and mementos.

Sharon Williams, pastoral associate at the church, calls the experience a tangible form of intercessory prayer that can have powerful results.

"There are miracles attributed to veneration of these relics," she said. "Veneration is mainly being reverent with an object, but also asking that (saint) for intercession before the Lord.

"Any time a miracle happens, it would be God doing it. He wants to bring about a healing or miracle through the relic. It's the Lord providing the miracle, not the saint. We ask saints to intercede ... because of their holiness and purity, their intercession is powerful."

The Exposition of Sacred Relics will include 164 objects, including such items as a fabric swatch from Mother Teresa's sari, a fragment of the Virgin Mary's veil, a piece of Baptist and a piece of Christ's cross, accordmotional materials.

The Rev. Carlos Martins of The Companions of the Cross, has shown the exhibit in 46 states, as well as Mexico and Canada. He will explain how the Catholic Church documents the authenticity of relics and will talk about veneration as a pathway to spiritual renewal, at 7 p.m. Monday, May 13 at the church, 11441 Hubbard, south of Plymouth Road, Livonia.

After listening to Martins' presentation, visitors will be allowed to view the objects and hold the reliquaries. They'll see three different categories of relics. First class relics are saints' body fragments, such as bone or hair. Second class relics consist of items that a saint personally owned. such as clothing or a book. Third class relics are items that a saint has touched or that have been touched by another sacred relic.

Williams said the Catholic Church teaches that God sometimes uses material objects to ignite and deepen faith.

"It's not something the Catholic Church made up, it's something that is scripturally based." She pointed out that the second book of Kings in the Old Testament tells the story of a man who came back to life after touching the profit Elisha's bones. Acts 5:12-15 in the New Testament refers to the sick seeking healing by merely touching Peter's shadow and the Gospels of both St. Mark and St. Matthew offer accounts of a woman who was cured after touching Jesus' cloak.

"It's always important to have things that are visual when vou're talking about faith. For the years I've been here I've always been on the lookout for things like this. We're excited and grateful to Fr. Martins.

Williams said there is no right way to view the exhibit. Visitors can look at each relic, choose items from a favorite saint or simply "begin taking a walk and whatever you feel draw to is what the Holy Spirit has drawn you to."

She said the exhibit will appeal to "anyone, even doubters in God, if they remain open to seeing truth."

"Sometimes reality coincides with what's visible, but sometimes it doesn't. We can see stars in the sky, but we're really seeing the past lives of the stars."

Eight seats are open to students entering bone from St. John the 1st or 2nd grade for the 2013-14 school year. Limited Registration window: May 8-22, 2013 ing to the exhibit's pro-

China: The Long March from Beijing to Chengdu

Editor's note: This is the second story in a series about a Canton couple's trip to China.

> By Jay Young Correspondent

Beijing, the administrative, cultural and educational hub of China, is renowned for its opulent palaces, temples, gardens, tombs, walls and gates.

Like the old Chinese puzzle of boxes within boxes, Beijing was originally laid out in a series of concentric circles. It is in the innermost two that we began our exploration.

At 100 acres, Tiananenmen Square is one of the largest public spaces in the world, capable of holding more than a million people. It is surrounded by official buildings including the Great Hall of the People and National Museum. At the north end of the square is the entrance to the Forbidden City, presided over by a giant portrait of Chairman Mao, who seems to stare down at his own Mausoleum at the other end.

While we were visiting, hundreds of people lined up around this Soviet-style building waiting to view Mao's preserved body which is raised daily from its refrigerated chamber and entombed in a crystal sarcophagus, draped with the red flag of the People's Republic that he founded in 1949.

After crossing the square we entered the Forbidden City or Gugong, a 9,999 room labyrinth of courtyards, palaces and ceremonial halls where 24 Sons of Heaven (emperors) ruled the Middle Kingdom for nearly 500 years. Completed in 1420 after only 14 years by 200,000 laborers, the huge palace was the exclusive domain of the imperial court and dignitaries until the 1920s. It was opened to the public in 1949. Other fabulous sites on our Beijing itinerary included a visit to the Great Wall of China, which stretches 6,200 miles and is easily the world's greatest engineering feat, Summer Palace and the Temple of Heaven. The Summer Palace is the largest and best-preserved royal garden in China. Built in the 1700s to provide an imperial retreat from the stifling summers in the Forbidden City, it is most associated with the Empress Cixi, who diverted funds from the Imperial Navy to build a marble boat on Lake Kunming and expand the gardens, thus paving the way for the fall of the Qing Dynasty in 1911.

The Temple of Heaven, built between 1406 and 1420 by the same emperor who built the Forbidden City, is regarded as a masterpiece of architectural design. The hall is built entirely of wood without using a single nail.

Traveling on

From Beijing, we took an overnight train to Xian, an old city still encircled by a ninemile, massive wall, and then traveled east to the site of one of the greatest archeological discoveries of the 20th century, the Terracotta Army. More than 8,000 life-sized warriors modeled from yellow clay, were discovered in vaults by farmers digging a well in 1974.

Built 2,200 years ago by China's first emperor Qin Shi Huangdi, a major architect of the Great Wall and unifier of China, the pottery figures were made to guard his tomb in the afterlife. Preoccupied with death and his legacy, he enlisted 700,000 workers for the tomb's construction over a period of 36 years.

Currently three pits with 6,000 warriors, 130 chariots and 520 horses, and 70 highranking officers. The actual tomb of the emperor has yet to be excavated and lies under a huge mound about one mile west of the pits.

Tea and pandas

From Xian we flew to our next stop, Chengdu, the capital of Sichuan Province in southwest China. Known for its laid back lifestyle, culinary expertise and tea culture, Chengdu has more tea houses than Shanghai, even though it has half the population. We saw many people sitting in parks, playing Mahjong and sipping tea.

Chengdu is also the home of the Giant Panda Sanctuary. Unique to China, the giant panda is one of the rarest animals in the world. It is estimated there are only about 1,200 pandas still living in the wild.

Many people are wrongly rejected when they apply for Social Security Disability benefits. Money was taken out of their paychecks for Social Security taxes to ensure that they would receive disability benefits if they could no longer work full-time. Sadly, the government denles approximately 60% of those who apply for disability benefits.

Attorneys J.B. Bieske and Jennifer Alfonsi have 42 years, combined experience representing only Social Security disability clients. And they personally meet with all clients and appear personally at all court hearings, Many large firms assign inexperienced attorneys to your case. Report shows many parents drive while distracted

Many parents are putting their children at risk while driving by multi-tasking, according to a University of Michigan survey.

U-M researchers questioned more than 600 parents to find out what distractions they face while driving with their children, whether they use age-appropriate child restraints and if they had ever been in a motor vehicle accident. They presented their findings earlier this month at the Pediatric Academic Societies (PAS) annual meeting in Washington, DC.

Almost 90 percent of drivers reported engaging in at least one technology-based distraction while driving their child in the past month, and most drivers said they engaged in four of the 10 distractions asked about in the study. Drivers who engaged in distracting behaviors also were more likely to report having been in an accident.

Drivers of children who were not restrained in an age-appropriate restraint based on Michigan law had 2.5 times higher odds of reporting a child-related distraction than drivers of children who were restrained appropriately.

"Lots of attention has been given to distracted teen drivers. However, our results indicate parents are frequently distracted while driving their 1- to 12-year-old children, and these distracted drivers were more likely to have been in a crash," said lead author Michelle L. Macy, M.D., M.S., FAAP, clinical lecturer in the Departments of Emergency Medicine and Pediatrics at University of Michigan and C.S. Mott Children's Hospital

Parents were surveyed while their children were being treated at one of two Michigan emergency rooms for any reason. Participants were asked how often they engaged in distracting behaviors while driving with their child over the last month. These behaviors included talking on the phone (hands-free or handheld), texting/surfing the Internet, self-care

(grooming, eating) child care (picking up a toy, feeding their child), getting directions (navigation system, map) and changing a CD or

Parents also were asked whether they use a seat belt, what type of restraint their child uses and their motivation to use the recommended restraint for their child's size. Demographic information, including race, education and income, also was collected.

"Our research has identified some high-impact areas to improve child passenger safety," Macy said. "Distracted driving while children are in the car is common, and many children are not using the right safety seat for their size.'

Other findings showed: Parents who reported always wearing a seat belt were significantly more likely to report their child always uses the age-appropriate restraint.

· Parents who were motivated "from within" to use a safety seat were significantly more likely to report age-appropriate restraint use, while external motivations were not associated with ageappropriate restraint use.

· Parents of minority race/ethnicity were significantly less likely to report their child always uses the age-appropriate restraint compared with white parents, even after controlling for education, income, child age, motivation to use a safety seat and personal seat belt use.

"It is concerning that, in our study population, race is playing such a prominent role in the use of car seats. The underlying reasons are not fully explained by differences in education or income," Macy said. "The impact of parental motivation to use car seats also needs to be better understood."

In Case of an Emergency What to Consider

Ask A Garden City Hospital Health Expert

Emergency Medicine

Summer is an especially busy season in a hospital emergency room (ER). Broken bones, heat stroke and other issues spike as the temperatures rise. Health Expert and Medical Director of Emergency Medicine at Garden City Hospital (GCH), Dr. Tressa Gardner, gives us a few tips for better handling our own emergencies, even when they're not.

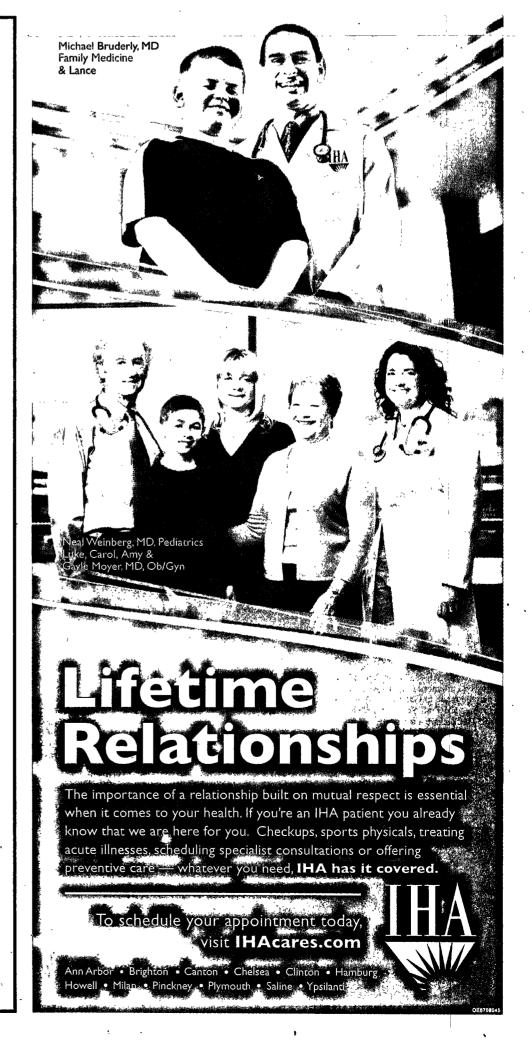

- Q: What exactly constitutes an emergency and what do I do if someone in my family needs to see a doctor when the office is closed?
- A: If an illness or injury feels life threatening, you should call 911 or go to the nearest ER. Don't delay if you're experiencing any of the following:
 - Chest pain or chest pressure
 - Difficulty breathing, coughing or vomiting blood
 - Uncontrollable bleeding or severe trauma (broken bones, serious cuts)
 - Severe head trauma or loss of consciousness
 - Sudden and/or severe pain, dizziness, changes in vision,
 - Sudden changes in mental abilities, especially marked confusion

Going to the ER instead of scheduling a doctor's appointment has become prevalent in the U.S. This means a lot of people are wasting time and paying too much for routine care. Contrary to popular belief, ERs do not work on a first-come, first-served basis. Patients are seen based on the severity of their situation.

When you feel sick, no one wants to wait hours in a busy ER. Spare

- yourself some anxiety and discomfort by being prepared. Here's how: 1. Before an emergency occurs, familiarize yourself with the hospitals in your area, and choose an ER you're comfortable with. Consider what kind of wait you might be facing or how they're set up to handle various situations. GCH is Stroke Certified and we post our current ER wait times online at GCH.org. We also have a program called CAP to assist patients who don't have insurance. When you pay the same day you are treated, we "CAP" your ER charge at $200.
- 2. Choose a primary care doctor. Having a regular doctor who keeps your medical history on file and who is available to speak with, or see you in a pinch, is one of your best resources in an emergency. If you need a physician, call GCH's Physician Referral Line at 877.717.WELL.
- 3. Keep important medical information with you that notes the name and telephone number of your primary doctor, allergies, chronic medical ailments, and any medications (along with dosage) you may be taking. This will assist the ER doctor when trying to diagnose and treat your condition.

Garden City Hospital continues its wellness lecture series at Westland Mall on Saturday, June 8. The topic, Summer Safety, is designed to help you enjoy a happy and healthy Michigan summer. Do you have a health or medical question for one of the GCH Health Experts? Visit GCH.org or call 877.717.WELL.

JOBS

How to survive brain-teaser interview questions

Larry Buhl, Special to CareerBuilder

· Is it not enough to have a résumé bursting with accomplishments, an action plan for how you can benefit the company and a winning interview style to land the job? Now, you're also expected to answer brain-teaser questions? Seriously?

Seriously. "This trend toward asking off-the-wall questions started in high tech a few years ago and has now emerged in interviews for jobs in a variety of fields," says John O'Connor, president of North Carolinabased CareerPro Inc., a professional career-coaching and branding company.

These questions are often brain teasers and can be anything from a complex, multilayered math and logic problem to a wacky question with no real answer. Some examples include:

How many rocks are on the face of the moon?

How many jellybeans can fit into a gallon jar?

Why are manhole covers round instead of square?

How many pounds of breakfast cereal are sold in the U.S. every year?

What are the decimal equivalents of 5/16 and 7/16?

It may seem like some sort of interviewee hazing, but there's often a method to the madness. In many cases, you won't be expected to come up with the right answer. In fact, the interviewer might not even know the answer. "They're more interested in your thought process and your ability to present ideas, debate and think creatively," O'Connor says. "They want to see candidates who can walk them through their way of thinking. And they're looking for candidates who will be thrown a curveball and not freak out."

So don't freak out. Below are ways to prepare for the brain teaser:

Bring tools.

Show up to the interview with pens, paper, markers, calculator, stopwatch and ruler to work out a possible brain teaser. It's unlikely that you'll be asked, point blank, how many times heavier an elephant is than a mouse and be expected to answer it on the spot. You'll have time. And depending on the job and the field, what you do on your scratch paper is more important than the conclusion you reach.

Don't be shocked or offended.

A question might surprise you or seem silly given the job for which you're interviewing. Don't let it throw you. Again, the answer is usually not the destination. Sometimes the wackiest question deserves an equally wacky process to reach a conclusion. But do take the questions seriously. Don't assume that it's being asked to tick you off or make you the butt of a human-resources joke.

Question the question.

Show your ability to think through a problem by asking a clarifying question regarding the brain teaser, suggests Paul Bailo, a New York-based recruiter and author of "The Official Phone Interview Handbook."

"Asking a follow-up question will give your mind a break and buy you time to help you fully understand what is being asked so you don't solve the wrong problem," Bailo says.

Speak out your logic.

Listen to what you are thinking, Bailo adds. "Sounding out" the process of reaching an answer can help you think through the process in a different way. "Leveraging the logical speaking method will allow for a quicker answer and faster mental processing," he says. "Think of it as reading a book out loud, only the book you are reading out loud is your mind thinking through a problem."

See what you are thinking.

Just like sounding out a problem can give your brain a productive whack, drawing it out can help you edit and improve your approach.

Practice.

You can't prepare for the exact question unless you're sure you know what they'll ask. But you can exercise your mind by reading philosophy books, playing mental games, doing crossword puzzles and thinking about big problems, O'Connor says. "How would you solve the world energy crisis? What would the world do without drinking water? Think of these exercises as a workout for your mind."

Larry Buhl researches and writes about job search strategy, career management, hiring trends and workplace issues for Career-Builder.

Numbers

Fun By The

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Pickup market is busting out all over for Detroit Three

The 'popular pickup truck segment - also the industry's most profitable — is busting out all over. Gains in pickups led a robust industry increase in April; Ford just announced the addition of 2,000 jobs at its Kansas City plant to build the F-150 and vans; Chevy is rolling out a Cowboy-themed version of its Silverado; and Ram has notched a big sales boost in part attributed to its soul-touching "Farmer" ad during the Super Bowl.

General Motors is even seeing new possibilities in the compact-pickup segment that it abandoned recently. The company said that it plans to return to the segment next year with two trucks targeting younger, more active buyers and competing against the Toyota Tacoma and Nissan Frontier, which currently dominate compact sales.

One of the biggest recent newsmakers in the segment was GM's announcement that an eight-cylinder version of the first of its all-new pickup trucks being launched this year. The crew-cab versions of the 2014 Silverado and 2014 GMC Sierra, will offer better mileage than directly competitive V-8 models — and will even (barely) beat out a version of the 2013 Ford F-150 pickup with a six-cylinder Eco-Boost engine.

GM's launch this spring of the highervolume Silverado and of Sierra are crucial for the company as it attempts to rebuild profitability and regain sales momentum. Chrysler hurried an overhauled version of the Ram 1500 into the market last year, and Ford plans a new version of the industry-bestselling F-150 next year. So GM essentially has the field to itself in 2013 in new pickups, and so a flawless execution of the Sierra and Silverado launches could be a huge boon.

Silverado and Sierra will accomplish its new mileage pinnacle with a 5.3L EcoTec3 V-8 relying on direct injection, cylinder deactivation and variable-valve timing to achieve EPA estimates of 16 mpg in the city and 23 mpg on the highway with two-wheel drive, or 16 in the city and 22 on the highway with four-wheel drive. The EcoTec engine is an $895 option, and about 75 percent of GMC buyers last year opted for EcoTec. A 4.3L EcoTec3 V-6 engine is standard on Silverado and Sierra.

The 5.3L EcoTec3 two-wheel-drive mileage compares with 16 in the city and 22 on the highway for the Ford F-150 twowheel-drive version equipped with an EcoBoost V-6 engine. About half of F-150 buyers recently have opted for new sixcylinder engines that weren't even available two years ago, and most of them are choosing the EcoBoost powertrain.

The new optional engine on Silverado and Sierra also beats out the 15 mpg in the city and 21 mpg on the highway yielded by the 5.0L V-8 engine in two-wheel-drive versions of the F-150 and the 14 mpg in the city and 20 on the highway provided by a 4.7L V-8 engine in twowheel drive versions of Ram.

Now, as Ford is sure to note, the Eco-Boost engine in question does beat the new 5.3-liter powertrain in GM's trucks in a couple of other criteria that are important to power-conscious truck buyers: 365 horsepower to 355, and 420 poundfeet of torque compared with 383.

Ford spokesman Mike Levine also told me that EcoBoost delivers "the segment's best combination of power, capability and fuel economy."

But GM executives insisted, in a conference call, that they had come up with the best combination of performance, fuel economy and durability. "In real-world driving, larger-displacement engines under a higher load that aren't in 'boost' conditions" — such as EcoBoost, which is turbocharged — "use less fuel," Jeff Luke, executive chief engineer for Silverado and Sierra, told journalists and analysts. "All things considered, our approach is by far a better one."

The standard Sierra will carry a suggested retail price of $25,085, including destination charge. GM executives on the call said that pricing for the new Silverado and Sierra models would be the "same as the three models they're replacing."

Yet they said the new trucks will boost profitability over the old models in part because more buyers will opt for pricier lists of new options, including safety features such as a lane-departure warning that GM hasn't offered in its pickup trucks before. This trend, they said, would nudge GM pickups closer to the average transaction prices enjoyed by Ford pickups, which are often higher by several hundred dollars.

As far as the new GM perspective on the compact-truck segment is concerned, "We'd love to have a truck like a Chevrolet midsize [to] go really attack the West Coast with a lifestyle truck that is really beautiful and fun," Mark Reuss, GM's North America president, told auto reporters, according to the Detroit News.
