HYPE proposes taking over
operations

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Wayne City Council members have their work cut out for them sorting out a proposal by a Dearborn Heights non-profit to take over the operations of the Wayne Community Center.

Ali Sayid, president of HYPE Athletics Community Inc., presented the council with a proposed 10-year agreement that would have the organization become the exclusive operator of the center. HYPE "would be expected to pall all items of expense for the operation, maintenance, supervision and management" of the center from funds generated by its operation.

"The reality is that memberships need to become the number one revenue of the center and it's not," Sayid said. "This center has so much value and yet it's undervalued."

In a letter to the mayor and council, Sayid noted that the center is an aging facility. While it's in fair condition, it's in need of "a cosmetic upgrade," and "considerable capital improvements will be required to accommodate new programs and services and capital investments to enhance and/or improve the facility."

HYPE is proposing that the city float a 10-year $500,000 municipal bond that would be made available to the organization to cover those capital improvements and investments and set up a sinking fund to help cover the bond's repayment. He added that the bond money also would be used to convert the ice arena in basketball courts.

The city also would be responsible for major maintenance and repairs in excess of $10,000.

"The building is under the control of the city because it's a city asset," Sayid said. "It's in need of remodeling and it's not up to code. The parking lot is in very bad condition. The parking lot needs to be repaired or replaced by the city because the building remains an asset of the city."

Subsidy from city

HYPE is asking for a subsidy of $120,000 the first year to offset the center's current low membership rate and program fees and a shift to higher membership fees as current memberships expire. While a letter to the council indicated that the subsidy would be annual, Sayid said it is HYPE's goal to succeed in the first year. The subsidy will be for one year, but can be revisited in at the discretion of the council, he said.

Following questioning by Councilman Skip Monit about the employment of current community center employees, Sayid said HYPE has the

Brian Woehlke

By LeAnne Rogers

Today, May 8, on the first anniversary of his death, fallen Wayne-Westland Firefighter Brian Woehlke will be remembered by fellow firefighters with a memorial plaque dedication ceremony.

"It will be a private ceremony. There will be a flag-raising and a luncheon to follow," said Mitch Tokarski, president of Western Wayne Firefighters Association Local 1279. "We're trying to put it on the Wall of Honor at (the new) City Hall but that's not confirmed yet."

Members of Woehlke's family, including widow Jennifer, and city officials are expected to join firefighters for the dedication ceremony.

National, local memorials honor Woehlke

Along with a memorial plaque locally, fallen Wayne-Westland Firefighter Brian Woehlke is honored at a national firefighter memorial in Colorado Springs.

In September, Western Wayne Firefighters Association President Mitch Tokarski and Firefighter David

Woehlke

Polite joined Woehlke's widow Jennifer, daughter Ava and other family members to visit the International Firefighters Memorial to fallen firefighters.

"There is a huge city park with the memorial. It has granite walls. Each professional firefighter who dies in the line of duty is put on the wall," Tokarski said. "We did it with the entire Woehlke family in September. Pike's Peak is in the background. It's pretty impressive — breathtaking."

Westland Firefighter Todd Stanaway, who died of cancer in 2008, also is listed on the memorial.

'Real story' of Eloise presented by historical group

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Members of the Westland Historical Commission admit they can't stop the filming of a psychological thriller that gets its name from the former Eloise complex. Instead, they hope it will spur people to want to hear the real story.

"It's certainly not a documentary we'd love to see," said Jeff Koslowski, chairman of the Westland Historical Commission. "But it's in our best interests to utilize the resources to get the truth and the real history out there. It's a Hollywood movie. Our job as the historical commission is to correct the Hollywood version."

Eloise is described as a psychological thriller which takes place inside a defunct insane asylum. Main character, Jacob Martin, and his three friends break into the abandoned institution in hopes of finding a death certificate, which will provide Jacob with the rights to a sizable inheritance. While inside the asylum, the group finds that the institution houses a horrifying history and also the truth about their own tragic pasts.

The Michigan Film Office announced last week that the film, the first for producer Sanford Nelson, a life-long Michigan resident, has been awarded an incentive of up to $1,950,000 on projected in-state expenditures of up to $7,217,980. It's being directed by Robert Legato, who won Academy Awards as part of special effects teams for Titanic and Hugo.

The film is utilizing locations throughout Wayne County and has its

The Kay Beard Building, which has housed the Eloise Museum, is slated to be closed this year by Wayne County. That building, the bakery, fire house and power plant are all that remain of the former infirmary and asylum.

mony. The 18-inch by 18-inch bronze plaque has an etched photograph of Woehlke, 29, who died battling the May 8, 2013, fire that destroyed the Electric Stick and Marvaso's Italian Grille.

A Wayne-Westland firefighter for only six months, Woehlke, 29, died of smoke and soot inhalation. In November, the fire at Marvaso's was ruled an arson and as a result, Woehlke's death became a homicide.

At that point, the Michigan State Police Second District Special Investigations Section took over the investigation from the Westland Fire Marshal. State Police Lt. Michael Shaw didn't return calls seeking comment on the status of the investigation.

The firefighters union recently donated $5,000 to double the Crimestoppers reward for information leading to the arrest of whoever was responsible for the arson that led to Woehlke's death.

"We've been in contact with the Michigan State Police to figure out what they are doing, how the investigation is progressing," Tokarski said. "In the fire service, every one of my members understands that arson is the most difficult crime to prove. It's very, very difficult."

That difficulty proving who was responsible for starting the fire may mean the culprit is never identified, Tokarski said.

"We hope the extra $5,000 (reward) will encourage someone to come out of the dark," he said. "We're hoping the $10,000 will give even more reason for someone to come forward. It's a been a year, let's solve this."

The only time Jennifer Woehlke has spoken to the media since her husband was killed was in December when Crimestoppers established the first $5,000 reward.

From shortly after Woehlke died, Wayne-Westland Firefighter David Polite has served as a liaison to Jennifer Woehlke and the couple's daughter Ava, who just turned 2.

"She has good days and bad days. Ava is her motivation. Jennifer is doing very well as a single parent raising Ava," Polite said. "I can't 100 percent fix things but I can take off the additional stress."

A year later, Polite said he speaks with Jennifer Woehlke daily, while Tokarski touches base with her weekly.

"Jen is grateful for the support. We're like her second family. She knows we'll be there for the rest of her life or as long as she is willing to accept the support," Tokarski said.

"desire to retain the current staff." They will be re-evaluated for their strengths and to see how they fit into the HYPE model.

"I like your model. I like what you say about recreation and education," Monit said. "I hope that you make the term strongly consider hiring city employees."

Questions also were raised about Westland's involvement in such an arrangement. Two years ago, Westland closed its Bailey Recreation Center and merged its recreation operations with Wayne. Westland saved more than $900,000 with closing and elimination of its recreation staff, but there has been no cost sharing in the operation of the combined program and the Wayne Community Center.

There was an uptick in membership at the community center, but not that much, according to Mayor Al Haidous.

"We went back and asked for money and they asked for the number of Westland members," Haidous said. "We need the numbers to sell it to them. If we have HYPE coming in, they will have to step up, if they want to have their name on the building and the same (resident) rate. If they want to stay in, they will have to share the responsibility."

"I've watched how the council works, and I can't think of an idea that has worked out as planned."

resident Ron Roberts said. "I ask the council to think about the problem you have with city hall and if you have to consolidate services, this is the only building you have to handle it."

Residents also questioned a proposed six-month opt-out clause in which either side could back out of the agreement, asking what would happen, if HYPE doesn't get its money and quits.

"We can't predict the future," Sayid said. "We can come together and work to keep the doors open and share the burden. All we can promise is that we're committed to serving the public, serving everyone equally and doing the best we can do."

Pressed by residents to give them time to look at the HYPE proposal before council acts on it, Interim City Manager Ramzi El-Gharib said copies of the proposal would be available at the recreation center and at Wayne City Hall. He also pointed out that the community center is subsidized by the general fund actions taken by the council three weeks ago cut that deficit to some $670,000.

"What HYPE is proposing would erase another $500,000," he said.

Haidous also stressed that city officials will thoroughly investigate the proposal.

"We have lots of homework to do and will do our due diligence," he said. "This center is important to this community."

"It was pretty emotional seeing Todd and Brian's names there. There were a lot of local connections," said Tokarski, including names of fallen Detroit and Ann Arbor firefighters.

Woehlke also is remembered as part of the Heroes on Hines and the firefighter memorial in Roscommon.

The Michigan State Police are investigating the May 8, 2013, fire at the Electric Stick/Marvaso's Italian Grille that killed Woehlke as an arson and his death as a homicide. A report from the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health on the fatal fire is expected this month.

"I sat through the all the interviews of everyone on scene from the deputy chief on down," Tokarski said.

While that report will address what contributed to Woehlke becoming separated from other firefighters and running out of air before he could be located, it will not answer the question of who started the fire.

"We're risk takers, it's part of the job. The fire (at the Electric Stick) was called as light smoke. It deteriorated very fast," Tokarski said. "It is our responsibility to protect life first, second to protect property. We take that oath when we are hired. If the fire had never been started, Brian wouldn't have been lost."

"People need to help — it (who started the fire) needs to come to light," Polite said.

production offices based in Detroit's Masonic Temple. Eloise was to begin filming this week.

"After two years developing this project, I am ecstatic to finally begin filming right here in my hometown," Nelson said. "I appreciate the Michigan Film Office working with me to help make this dream a reality."

Moving artifacts

The announcement, however, had Jo Johnson, vice-president of the historical commission, working to remove artifacts from the museum. On Friday, she and volunteers were busy removing items from the walls of the hospital museum in the Kay Beard Building on the hospital grounds. She planned to return this week to move out display cases.

Artifacts from the museum are being moved into storage while work is being completed on the Rowe House, the future home of the Eloise Poorhouse and Asylum Museum, in the Westland Historical Village Park. The artifacts are on loan to the historical commission for 49 years as part of an agreement with Wayne County.

"As soon as I saw what the movie was about, I started making phone calls," said Johnson. "We can't do anything about it, but when we get the museum set up, people will come and see a positive attitude about Eloise."

Johnson isn't happy with Nelson. She had met with him about the film and was under the impression Eloise would be like Steve Luxenberg's book, Annie's Ghost, a story about his aunt, Annie Cohen. Annie was committed to Eloise Hospital in 1940.

"His story was that a guy had an aunt at Eloise and he found out he was born there. It sounded like Annie's Ghost, so I worked with him," Johnson said. "He came with a different story than what they're doing now."

Johnson and other Westland historians like Georgia Becker do talks about the Eloise complex throughout the area. Johnson did one Tuesday at the William P. Faust Public Library. She also plans to do an outdoor lecture by the historical marker on the hospital grounds at 6 p.m. May 13.

According to Koslowski, the commission is working with two design companies which are developing the displays for the new museum, slated to open later this year. Room is being set aside for a screening room to see documentaries about the Eloise complex, as well as an introductory room where the hope is to display the original photograph of Eloise. That portrait hangs by the main entrance to the building.

Officially the Wayne County General Hospital and Infirmary, it earned the nickname of Eloise from Eloise Dickerson, the daughter of Detroit Postmaster and Eloise Complex governing-board president Freeman Dickerson, who suggested that it be used when he requested a post office be located on the premises in 1894.

Eloise was one of the largest public health care facilities in the United States. In addition to its own post office, it had its own farm, cannery, bakery, cemetery, employee housing, police and fire departments, a power-house, trolley and train stations and kitchens.

Some of the most advanced medical and psychiatric treatments were used there, including the use of X-rays for diagnostic purposes, radium for the treatment of cancer, and open air treatment for tuberculosis.

Saved to fund museum

"We've saved and fundraised for this project, we have an ample amount of money put aside for this," said Koslowski. "We want to turn the park into the crown jewel for Westland and be on track with some of the bigger small museums in the area. Wayne County said we are the holders of the artifacts. It's only right that we have it and it's only right to do it right."

Koslowski added that the film will generate a lot of publicity and the commission needs to capitalize on that "buzz."

The movie has generated interest. Comments about the film posted on the Deadline Hollywood website said "this idea sounds awesome. Can't wait to see this." Another post said it "sounds amazing. Actors are great, plot seems great, looking forward to a movie based on somewhat of a true story. Please scare the st out of me."

Patricia Ibbotson of the Friends of Eloise doesn't share their enthusiasm. Ibbotson who authored Eloise: Poorhouse, Farm, Asylum and Hospital 1839-1984, wasn't surprised that the "Eloise 'documentary' is a thriller about people breaking into Eloise to find a death certificate and finding its 'horrifying history'."

"This may be your cup of tea, but it is not mine," she said "There is no way I want to be associated with this film in any way, shape or form."

"It's one of those things," said Koslowski. "With ghost adventure shows, ghost hunting and haunting places, Eloise was a target. I'm not surprised that a movie like this is being done. We just have to show that it wasn't a tragic place. It was a state of the art facility, it was a place where they tried to rehabilitate and make people healthy."

Baby shower is work of 'me, you and we'

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Carol Sharp and her friends gasped when hearing about an unused Diaper Genie being sent to a Dumpster when a young couple moved out of their apartment. To them, it's a lost treasure that could have brought a smile to the face of a mother-to-be.

For 10 years Carol Sharp and a cadre of women have been holding baby showers at the Wayne-Westland Salvation Army, educating mothers-to-be about caring for their infant and providing them with gifts and equipment to make their new role easier.

"This isn't about me, it's you, me and we," said Sharp about the year-long effort to put on the baby showers. "Each and every one of these women is dynamic."

"They all have fabulous skills and are willing to give."

Some 60 low-income moms-to-be attended the annual Warm Hearts baby shower last Friday. The theme was "You Are the Magic, Make It Happen" and the message was that as parents, the moms need to keep growing and learning.

At the shower, they were treated to lunch, heard from guest speakers who talked to the moms about such things as infant safe sleep, budgeting, nutrition, positive self-esteem and discipline.

They also received sets of handmade hats and booties, diaper/tote bags, quilts, afghans and crocheted baskets filled with baby products. They also got to choose from a variety of repurposed items like strollers, swings and layettes.

The later items are repurposed. Some are unwanted items left over from Mom 2 Mom sales or found at garage sales or at the curb on trash day. Dolly Morrow of Westland and Lynda Cielieski of Dearborn have taken on the job of cleaning up the items, making them look as good as new.

"It's a desire to help," Morrow said. "We take off the cloth covers and wash them and clean up the frames. Sometimes they just need a good scrubbing."

Cielieski's husband Bob spends the cold weather months make hats on knitting loom. He's made hundreds of hats that are paired put with handmade booties. He uses yarn that people have given him and "every now and then I hear him say we can't use this," she said. "He makes three-four hats a night, it keeps him out of trouble," she added. "In the spring I make him put it aside so he can do the yard work."

Five women work on make quilts for the shower. Two sisters in their 80s — Marlene Ferguson of Westland and Joyce DeWolf of Canton — like to cut fabric, so they make 6-by-12-inch strips that go to Joanne Doughman of Dearborn, who likes to embroider and uses her machine to decorate the squares. The job of assembling the quilt top and putting on the back goes to Elaine Aumiller of Westland, while Gloria Harman of Plymouth and Jo Ahola of Redford hand tie the finished product.

"They make as many as we give them; they're a mighty team," Sharp said.

The 'Bag Lady'

Dorothy Berniece of Howell made more than 100 diaper/tote bags from donated material. She, too, is in her 80s.

"We call her Bag Lady Dorothy," Sharp said.

Warm Hearts got its start gathering gently used clothing, sizing it and putting it paper bags that were given to families by the Wayne-Westland Salvation Army. From there, the group started helping with baby showers at the Coalition on Temporary Shelter, and "then one thing led to another," Sharp said. As the request for receipts from donations increased, the group incorporated as a 501(c)3 charity.

"We've been together for eons, Carol is my best friend," said Gloria Norman of Plymouth. "This is infectious. All of a sudden you get involved and start asking what can I do."

Warm Hearts has reached out beyond western Wayne County. Last year it did a baby shower in the Latino area of Detroit. It's also been working with the Hatfield Head Start Program in Detroit and with the Highland Park Infant Mortality Program, both for three years.

With most of the volunteers are in their 60s, 70s and 80s, Sharp is always looking for more help.

"This isn't a one-man show and you don't have to be talented to help," she said.

For Sharp, the message that Warm Hearts provides the mothers-to-be was a mirrored in a recent comment of her youngest son. He told his mother that "a perfect parent is a parent who keeps learning and growing along the way."

"My baby said that, I never heard that before in that context," she said.

People interested in working with Warm Hearts can contact Sharp at 734-595-8305.

Catholic seminary to drivers: Pray through I-96 construction woes

Many of those who commute from the western suburbs of Detroit will spend a lot of extra time on the road for the remainder of 2014 because of the I-96 freeway closure. But Detroit's Catholic seminary is hoping faith-filled drivers can use the extra commute time to pray. To that end, Sacred Heart Major Seminary in Detroit and the Archdiocese of Detroit are giving away prayer CDs to 96 motorists who would pray the Rosary during their extra drive time.

"God is always waiting at the door of our hearts, wanting us to acknowledge and involve Him in our day," said Rev. Robert Spezia, Undergraduate Spiritual Director and Director of Liturgy at Sacred Heart Major Seminary, who oversaw production of the CD and whose voice is heard beginning the Rosary. "We have a heavy construction season, and people will be spending a lot more time in their cars — if we sincerely offer that time to God and pray, I can almost guarantee a peaceful commute instead of one so often filled with frustration and anger. I would challenge drivers to try it for 30 days and see if it affects their attitude and their heart."

The prayer CD, titled Beg the Master of the Harvest, is a live vocal and musical recording of the Rosary, a popular Catholic devotional prayer that calls on the intercession of the Blessed Mother while reflecting on passages about Christ from the Bible. It was recorded in 2007 by seminarians at Sacred Heart — many of whom are now local priests — as a way to promote prayer for more priests in the Church, and as a fundraiser for the seminary's chapel. Each portion, or "decade," of the rosary is led by a different man. While the Rosary is traditionally prayed with hand-held beads, the CD allows drivers to keep both hands on the wheel.

"There are various depths at which we can pray the Rosary and it will be more at the surface level if we pray it while driving," Spezia said. "We should not be concerned about that — the Holy Spirit is still at work. At the surface levels, the rosary can initially strike us as boring, but there is great spiritual power in repeating Scripture. Parents, teachers and coaches know the power of repetition. Many people have said to us that it is their favorite Rosary CD because each decade is led by a different person."

The giveaway of prayer CDs dovetails with two other Catholic initiatives. In early March, Detroit Archbishop Allen Vigneron announced that the local Catholic Church was beginning a Year of Prayer for a New Pentecost, during which time Catholics were invited to pray for a renewal of Christian faith in southeast Michigan. Also, May marks the "Month of Mary" in the Catholic Church — a time during which Catholics honor the Mother of God.

Drivers who would like a copy of the Rosary on CD can tweet @DetroitCatholic with the hashtag #96Rosaries, email 96Rosaries@aod.org, or call 313-596-7144. Requests by those on any commute will be honored. Those who would like to purchase the CDs for $20 to benefit Sacred Heart Major Seminary Chapel can visit www.aod.org/RosaryCD or call 313-883-8508.

Cemetery theft suspect takes plea deal; sentencing May 21

By David Veselenak
Staff Writer

Ghanem

The man accused of stealing jewelry from a Livonia mausoleum has taken a plea deal and will face sentencing later this month.

Essa Ghanem, 31, of Westland pleaded guilty Thursday to larceny in a building before circuit judge David Groner. As a part of the deal with prosecutors, the other charges Ghanem faced — larceny of more than $1,000 but less than $20,000 and possession of a controlled substance — were dismissed.

Sentencing for Ghanem is scheduled to take place May 21 at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice in Detroit. Guidelines as a part of the deal include a sentence between one and four years in prison, said Wayne County Prosecutor's Office spokeswoman Maria Miller.

Ghanem was arrested last month after Livonia police responded to a reported larceny from Glen Eden Lutheran Memorial Park cemetery on Eight Mile. Police arrived and discovered a niche inside a mausoleum that contained remains and family mementos of the deceased had been broken into. The niches each have an individual glass door. It was reported that several pieces of jewelry were taken from two niches at the cemetery. Police were able to recover most of the stolen items.

Ghanem was arrested after a set of fingerprints was determined to be his. He was arrested days later.

Under the original charges, Ghanem faced up to life in prison as he was charged as a habitual offender.

State corrections records show Ghanem was sentenced to prison on felony charges in 2005 and 2013, both related to illegal substances.

Records show he was released from custody this past

February. Records also indicate Ghanem was on probation at the time of the incident at Glen Eden.

Ghanem waived his preliminary examination before Livonia's 16th District judge Sean Kavanagh April 24. As of Friday afternoon, Ghanem remained locked up in the Wayne County Jail.

GARDEN CITY COP CALLS

Missing wallet

A Westland man was looking for his wallet May 1 after he was transported by Westland Rescue to Garden City Hospital, 6245 Inkster Road.

He believed that the EMS gave it to the emergency room registration staff, but it couldn't be located. A registered nurse said everyone was aware that the man was looking for his wallet. He said that typically a patient's property is left with the patient.

The police advised the man to cancel the debit card that was inside his wallet. The man said his wallet contained $440.

Retail fraud

An employee at the AT&T Page Tec store at 31335 Ford reported April 30 that someone stole an active Samsung phone from a stand on the counter.

He believes the suspect fled the store by the alley. The employee said he needed to file a police report to cancel the phone from service.

An employee who works at 7-Eleven, 29331 Warren Road, reported that an unknown man came to the store May 1 and stole two packs of beer. The man fled southbound to Rush.

The employee saw the thief enter a car parked on Rush east of Middlebelt that was occupied by four other people. He believed the car was a "getaway" car.

Police were able to recover the beer in a nearby field and returned it to the store.

Theft

A resident in the 29000 block of Elmwood reported April 30 that someone stole a bottle of Norco pills and an iPod worth $250 from her unlocked Chevy Silverado. She said that her vehicle was parked in the driveway.

The woman said she needed to file a police report in order to get her prescription refilled.

A Garden City man reported May 4 that someone stole the license plate from his 2011 Chevy Traverse after it was parked overnight in the parking lot of Bar 153 at 31268 Ford.

Garden City police arrested a 29-year-old Inkster woman after they reportedly learned she was driving with a suspended license May 4 near Alvin and Middlebelt.

The driver reportedly could only produce a Michigan identification card and could show no proof of insurance. After looking up her record, the police officer reportedly learned that the woman also had outstanding warrants out of Westland and Brownstown Township.

WAYNE COP CALLS

Larceny

A resident of the 3000 block of Laura Street reported that someone took her wheeled refuse cart. The resident told police her husband had put trash container at the curb April 30 and found it missing May 5.

She said her husband had not brought the cart back to the home. The cart, which belongs to the city's trash hauler, Republic Waste, is valued at $250.

Attempted theft

The door lock and steering column of van, belonging to Sure Fit Laundry, 33121 Glenwood, were damaged in an attempted theft sometime between April 21 and May 1.

An employee discovered the driver side front door lock broken and pushed inside the door when he went to use the van. The top and bottom steering column plastic trim had been broken off and the ignition damaged to the point that a key could not be inserted in it.

The owner told police he has exterior surveillance cameras and planned to review them to see if he could see the suspect.

Break-in

A resident in the 35000 block of Chestnut discovered a jewelry box containing costume jewelry, was missing from her home May 3.

The resident told police that when she had left the home at 8:30 a.m., it was secure; however, when she returned at 7 p.m., she found the rear door had been kicked in. She searched her home and found the jewelry box missing.

According to police, the lower portion of the door was kicked off the hinges, while the upper portion was still intact. A neighbor who was having a house party in his backyard at the time told police he hadn't seen anyone in the backyard after the party began at 11 a.m.

The woman later reported finding several other pieces of jewelry missing, including a gold chain with a heart and diamond charm, 10 sterling silver necklaces in a box and a fresh water pearl necklace and earrings.

Identity theft

A Wayne resident reported to police May 2 that someone had fraudulently filed his 2011, 2012 and 2013 state and federal income tax returns.

The man told police he had not filed returns those years because he owed the government money. When he attempted to file his income tax returns this year, he was told by the IRS that someone had already filed returns using his identity.

He said the state and IRS are investigating, and he was told to file a report with police by the IRS.

WESTLAND COP CALLS

Larceny from a vehicle

The tires and rims were reported stolen from a car April 30 by a resident of an apartment complex at 7470 Drew Circle. The woman told police she has parked the car at 12:30 a.m. and found them missing when she left her apartment at 7:30 a.m.

While taking the report, the police officer observed a second car the complex that also was missing its tires and rims. The owner said he had gone outside to smoke a cigarette at 5:30 a.m. and the tires and rims were still on his car.

A Livonia man reported that the catalytic converter on his motor home had been stolen from his motor home sometime between Jan. 1 and April 25 while it was parked at a storage facility at 28735 Joy Road, Westland.

The Westland resident told police that the touch screen radio with CD player and GPS was stolen from his car while it was parked overnight May 3 at the Scotsdale Apartments, 37500 Scotsdale Circle.

The man said the right rear passenger window had been broken to gain entry to the car. The electronics were valued at $500.

Schoolcraft College celebrates 49th commencement

Schoolcraft College celebrated its 49th Commencement Ceremony on Saturday, May 3, at Compuware Arena in Plymouth. Of the nearly 1,300 students eligible to participate (those earning an associate degree or certificate) more than 400 graduates donned their caps and gowns and made the much-anticipated trek across the stage to the rousing applause of the nearly 3,000 friends and family.

In addition to honoring the graduates, the college presented the Distinguished Alumni Award to Commissary Senior Petty Officer Derrick Davenport, USN, and an Honorary Associate of Arts and Sciences Degree to Graham W. J. Beal, director, president and CEO of the Detroit Institute of Arts, who served as the keynote speaker for the ceremony.

Davenport is a graduate of the Schoolcraft College Culinary Arts Program. After graduation he went on to work in several fine dining establishments and competed in culinary competitions. In 2000, he enlisted in the United States Navy. After training, he was stationed on the USS Annapolis, and then in Afghanistan, where he set up the Afghan Army's first bakery. After his tour of duty in the Middle East, he was promoted to his current position as Executive Chef for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in 2008.

In March 2011, Davenport led the first ever Pentagon Culinary Arts Team and was the first Navy chef to compete at the IKA/World Culinary Olympics in Erfurt, Germany, on the United States Army Culinary Arts Team in 2012. In 2013 he won the Armed Forces Chef of the Year competition, cementing his reputation as one of the best cooks ever to come out of the United States Navy.

Since joining the DIA's leadership in 1999, Beal has overseen two major capital campaigns and the renovation and expansion of the facility, and guided the reinstallation of the museum's world-renowned collection in new ways. Beal has continued to build on the museum's reputation with regard to art acquisitions and exhibitions, and has greatly expanded the DIA's community outreach through programming and innovative art installations. Under Beal's leadership, the DIA has co-organized exhibitions, sharing the great works of Van Gogh, Medici, Michelangelo, Degas, Whistler, Rodin, Camille Claudel and Rembrandt with the metropolitan Detroit community and visitors from around the globe who visit the DIA each year.

Jacqueline Charniga, editor-in-chief of the college's student-run award-winning newspaper, The Connection, was selected to present the Student Reflection. Although she earned an Associate of Arts Degree in English, Jackie played upon Schoolcraft College's Culinary Program as she shared some of her experiences at the college, enjoying the "buffet of opportunities" the college provided her and encouraged her fellow graduates to "satisfy their appetites" and be sure to "fill their plates" as they move on to explore their futures.

Schoolcraft College is a public, predominantly two-year college, offering classes at the college's main campus in Livonia, the Radcliff Center in Garden City, the Public Safety Training Complex in Livonia and www.schoolcraft.edu.

Commissary Senior Petty Officer Derrick Davenport, USN, received the Distinguished Alumni Award.

Salvation Army holds Walk for Justice at zoo

Coinciding with the celebration of 20 years in operation, the Salvation Army's William Booth Legal Aid Clinic is hosting its second annual Walk for Justice at the Detroit Zoo at 8 a.m. Saturday, May 31.

All proceeds benefit The Salvation Army's William Booth Legal Aid Clinic, which has helped resolve nearly 20,000 cases affecting low-income families, individuals and U.S. military veterans. The clinic provides quality guidance and advocacy in a wide variety of areas including family matters, housing issues, credit issues and disability.

Admission is $35 in advance and $40 the day of the event. Law students can register for $20; children up to age 16 are admitted for free. The registration fee includes zoo admission, parking, a Walk for Justice T-shirt, refreshments and an entry into a door prize drawing.

Rounding out the event will be face painting, clowns and games for children, as well as a silent auction featuring items donated by local businesses. A special prize will be awarded to the person who receives the highest total pledge amount.

With the support of local sponsors, last year's "Walk for Justice" drew hundreds of walkers who enjoyed a day at the zoo while raising funds to help ensure the William Booth Legal Aid Clinic can continue providing legal assistance to metro Detroiters in need.

Since 1994, The William Booth Legal Aid Clinic has been providing legal counsel to participants of The Salvation Army Detroit Harbor Light Center, as well as individuals within the community at or below the poverty level.

For more information about the Walk for Justice and to register, visit www.walkforjustice.org or call 313-361-6340.

Friends of the Rouge fighting for future existence

By Kurt Kuban
Staff Writer

For more than 25 years, the nonprofit Friends of the Rouge (FOTR) has been the main catalyst in changing perceptions about the Rouge River, which was once one of the most polluted waterways in the United States due to the area's heavy industry and poor storm water planning.

The group, which founded the annual Rouge Rescue in 1986, has been promoting the restoration and stewardship of the Rouge ever since. With the help of the federal Rouge River Wet Weather Demonstration Project — which has granted millions of dollars to local communities for projects that have eliminated sewage discharges, restored habitat and increased recreational opportunities — FOTR has been a driving force in getting the public to take ownership of the river again.

Ironically, just as the river is in the midst of a huge comeback, the survival of Friends of the Rouge is very much in doubt.

Changes in perception

The Rouge River has four main branches that flow primarily through Wayne and Oakland counties, with some of the headwaters in Washtenaw County. The watershed drains 438 square miles of some of the most urban landscape in the state (or anywhere for that matter).

Many of the 48 communities within the watershed have in recent years embraced the river again, seeing it as providing residents with recreation such as fishing, nature walks and even canoeing. A quarter century ago those same communities were warning residents to stay away from the river.

Friends of the Rouge has played a huge role in this transformation, through not only the annual Rouge Rescue event in which thousands of volunteers remove trash from the river and also restore habitat, but also their highly successful Rouge Education Project that works with schools throughout the watershed to allow students to conduct hands-on water quality monitoring. Both of the programs have connected thousands of people with the river.

Plymouth resident Frank Walker, who is a retired Wayne-Westland teacher, implemented the Rouge Education Project into his curriculum for years at Franklin Middle School. He said the kids loved being able to go down to the river and learn in a real-world situation.

"We did the water quality monitoring the entire time I was at Franklin. We did every single test there was. I did that with hundreds and hundreds of kids over the years," Walker said. "A lot of those students wanted to go into science after that, and also get more involved in cleaning up the river. For a lot of my kids it was their only chance to get out into nature. And they loved it."

Finding new funding

Due to great improvements in water quality, the EPA is phasing out the Rouge River Wet Weather Demonstration Project. It is a big blow to FOTR because the organization has received annual funding from the program for years. In fact, it has provided about a third of the group's overall budget, which this year is about $474,000. The grant will expire at the end of May, which has left the group looking at a budget deficit and scrambling to figure out how it will offset the lost funds.

The first major change is going to be Rouge Rescue. Since the very first event back in 1986, Rouge Rescue has always been held on the first Saturday in June. However, due to the fact that FOTR gets federal funding based on the number of volunteer hours it coordinates for the event, they will be holding the main event on Saturday, May 17, this year. Most of the Rouge Rescue events will take place that day, while others will be held May 3, May 10 and June 7 (Birmingham, Northville and Novi). For a complete list, visit the FOTR website at www.therouge.org.

Friends of the Rouge is pretty much a bare bones operation that relies on its extensive network of volunteers. It has six full-time and one part-time employee. The FOTR board recently hired Aimee LaLonde-Norman as the group's new executive director. While she doesn't have much experience with environmental groups like FOTR, she does have a extensive experience in the nonprofit field — and especially with fundraising. She realizes the group's future is dependent upon how successful she and the staff will be with finding new funding sources.

She said the focus will be on three areas: connecting with corporations and other nonprofits for potential grants; figuring out what are the key programs the group provides (and can afford); and improving public relations. She said FOTR is suffering a bit from its success, in the sense that many in the public think the battle may be won.

"We need to do whatever it takes to reconnect to the public," LaLonde-Norman said.

She is hoping she doesn't have to eliminate staff, because there are so few staff members, all with many responsibilities.

"We're still working through that. We'll rely on what little reserves we have for now, but there's no doubt that we're going to have to embrace creativity to survive," she said. "I'm excited because we have a lot of great partners, whether they are financial backers or our many, many volunteers. It is scary, but it's a unique situation. This is giving us a chance to really reexamine what we do as an organization."

Increasing membership

Despite the challenging landscape in front of them, LaLonde-Norman doesn't think FOTR will cease to exist. There are too many people that have seen the good the organization has done.

"I have a lot of faith and hope the community won't let that happen," she said. "I think the community will rally around us once they figure out how dire the situation is."

One of the goals is increasing membership. The group currently has about 400 paying members. In a watershed of more than 1.5 million people, the group thinks it can do a better job of attracting members. They are expecting about 3,000 people to get in-involved with Rouge Rescue this year alone. Membership dues are as little as $35 annually.

Safety precautions important when boating

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Sgt. Mike Wasil of the Wayne County Sheriff's Marine Unit is a big fan of life jackets for boaters.

"Life jackets worn, your chances go way up if you're wearing one," Wasil said of surviving a boating accident. "We wear our life jackets all the time. A lot of time, there isn't time to find your life jacket (in an emergency)."

Wasil has headed up the Marine Unit since 2009, and with colleagues patrols Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River and the inland Belleville Lake. This includes 38 miles of international border and 140 square miles of water.

Life jacket use and avoiding excessive alcohol are two key messages Wasil likes to get out, especially now as boaters take to the local waters.

"Most of the accidents when you look at them could be avoided," he said. A drowning last year on Belleville Lake involved a victim without a life jacket. Wasil noted that since he began his tenure in 2009 there have been no Wayne County boating fatalities with life jackets in use.

"It's not against the law to drink while you're on the water," he said. The impaired standard of .08 blood alcohol content now used for road drivers is higher for boaters, something law enforcement would like to change.

Operating under the influence on a boat is .10 BAC, he said, and there's been talk with lawmakers about lowering that. "But nothing I've heard has come from it."

There were three OWI arrests in 2013 on Wayne County waters.

Like driving on roads, he calls the designated boat operator who doesn't drink at all the best. "You add in waves, sun, being out all day, it has a greater effect," Wasil said of drinking on a boat. "It seems to enhance the effects of the alcohol." "Most of the boats you (sheriff's deputies) stop have alcohol on them. People are usually going on boats for pleasure. Alcohol seems to be a big part of it."

Safety precautions

Back to the life jackets, Wasil and his colleagues now wear the inflatables, "comfortable, light weight and they work well." Older styles weren't as comfortable, but that excuse is long gone.

Boats often have a horn to summon help, and many life jackets include a whistle you can use if you fall overboard. "It's a way to get people's attention," Wasil said. "It definitely could help to have one attached to your life jacket."

A "pea-less" whistle with no small ball inside is recommended for boaters, as it will work when wet.

A recent case of a man's body found in Lake St. Clair near where his boat capsized is under investigation. Law enforcement officials repeat their boating safety warnings each spring.

In recent years, Wasil said, a couple larger boats have run over smaller ones, one case involving alcohol and the other inattention.

"In both cases, everybody lived. Just ended up in the water," he said.

There was also a drowning in recent years his unit worked on in the Detroit River, but in Canadian waters. "A Jet-Ski ran into a boat," and the ski operator died soon after, Wasil said.

Classes offered

He encourages attendance at the Sheriff's Office boating safety classes at Westfield Activities Center in Trenton. Information on registration is at 734-675-2660.

You can learn boating laws in the classes. "A lot of people know the road laws," he said, but not boating ones. Their next class is scheduled May 20 and May 27, continuing with monthly sessions through September.

Some boaters take online boating safety courses due to busy schedules.

"I think the personal interaction works out better," Wasil said of the local classes, where you can ask questions.

Those born after July 1, 1996, now need a safety certificate to drive a boat — a new law. Also, those born after Dec. 31, 1978, need a safety certificate to use personal watercraft like a Jet-Ski.

Sailing institute to offer classes at Kensington

Have you ever wanted to learn to sail? The American Sailing Institute is gearing up for its spring classes.

The first introductory water class will take place Wednesday, May 21, at Kensington Metropark, followed by shore school the next two Wednesday evenings and two all day on-the-water sailing classes on Saturdays or Sundays, the beginning of June. The shore school classes will be held at the Wayne State University building in Farmington Hills.

Students learn to sail 18-foot Interlake sailboats. No prior sailing experience is necessary; however, those with many years of sailing experience can also benefit from this course. New students will learn the parts and functions of a sailboat, sailing terminology, as well as how to make the sailboat go where they want it to go.

"Sailing is a great sport at any age," ASI President Christian McTurk said. "Our members are always happy to welcome you on deck and teach you the ropes. Before long, you will be able to captain your own boat and pass on your sailing skills to new shipmates."

For more information, visit sailasi.org or call 248-393-4280.

Westland teen seeks sponsor for pageant

Westland resident Makayla Sheffield is hoping to find sponsors so that she can participate at the state level in the National American Miss Beauty Pageant.

A ninth-grader in the Oak Park Freshman Institute, she needs $750 for the pageant and is looking for sponsors and is collecting returnable cans and bottles through June 5. Donations can be mailed to her at 2601 S. Christine St., Westland. Bottle and cans also can be dropped off at the address.

"NAM is dedicated to empowering young ladies, such as myself, to gain confidence, friendships and valuable life skills that will help me in the future," she said. "Being accepted as a state finalist qualifies me for a chance to receive many great prizes, including, but not limited to a college schol-

The state competition will be held July 5-7 at the Adoba Hotel in Dearborn. The winner will receive a $1,000 cash prize, as well as air transportation to the national pageant in California, a complimentary tour of Hollywood and two VIP tickets to Disneyland.

The daughter of Mary Sartor, she is an honor roll student with all advanced honor classes and maintains at 3.9-4.0 grade point average. She plays volleyball and skates and enjoys drawing, cooking and baking.

"My goal in the NAM pageant is to do an outstanding job to represent my community, make new friends and have a great time," she said.

'Zombie' game teaches kids about money management

Is saving money more difficult than surviving a zombie attack? That question was posed to kids ages 5-12 who participated in financial education workshops presented by Co-op Services Credit Union at the Livonia Civic Center Library and Allen Park Public Library.

The workshops were held in April in celebration of Credit Union Youth Week which coincides with Money Smart Week, a nationwide effort to spread financial education to youth. The goal of Money Smart Week is to get kids excited about how they can take control of their finances at an early age.

"The subject of money and finances isn't always exciting, so we decided to incorporate money and math into a game that kids could relate to," said Jeremy Cybulski, Co-op Services Credit Union's youth and community development coordinator. "We included children and their parents to a 'zombie apocalypse.'"

At each event, youth in attendance were divided into two teams to answer mental math questions. The teams were first advised that they would need to gather and purchase supplies like ration packs, flashlights, batteries and other items from a fictional trading post to prepare for an impending zombie attack. Each team was assigned a captain, treasurer and inventory specialist, and all team members were included in purchasing decisions.

Teams competed as individual team members earned money to purchase these items by answering math questions. Dollar values were based on the difficulty of each question. Individuals from each team, who were the first to raise their hand and respond correctly, won the dollar value of the question. This allowed them to shop, save their money or make a larger purchase later.

"We carried the zombie theme throughout the event, including prizes and snacks for everyone who attended," added Cybulski. "One of our staff even brought his own Zombie Response Truck — complete with bio hazard decals, green-lit interior and a net for catching zombies. The truck was a great hit with kids who wanted their pictures taken with it."

"The credit union's 'How to Survive a Zombie Attack' program was creative, innovative and interactive. The kids were involved from the very beginning and learned that you do, in fact, use math in everyday life," said Karen M. Smith, Head of Children's Services for Livonia Public Library. "I would gladly host this program again in the future!"

Eight-year old twins Molly Hool (left) and Mia, prepare to answer math questions posed by Jeremy Cybulski of Co-op Services Credit Union.

Cybulski said the first two workshops were so well-attended that some youth had to be assigned to a waiting list for a third and final event

RepairClinic.com offers tips on yard repair

Canton-based RepairClinic.com, the online store for replacement parts for outdoor power equipment, home appliances and heating and cooling equipment, shared five simple ways to repair a yard after winter damage.

"At the first signs of spring, homeowners tend to be overwhelmed by the damaged, dull appearance of their yards," said Jeff Linderman, RepairClinic.com's in-house landscaping and outdoor power equipment specialist. "Fortunately, just a few simple steps will repair and revive yards for the season."

The steps:
» Tune up outdoor power equipment and gardening tools.

"Proper care of outdoor power equipment will positively affect the appearance of the yard, improve efficiency and extend the life of the equipment," Linderman said. "For example, dull lawn mower blades will tear grass, rather than cut, and result in a yellow hue over your lawn."

» Clear debris. Remove pebbles, stones, branches and any other debris that litter the lawn. Pay particular attention to the grass along sidewalks and driveways, which are areas most likely to have collected snowblower-thrown debris.

» De-thatch and aerate. Thatch is a layer of mixed dead grass that prevents the grass from properly obtaining the nutrients needed to be healthy. Aeration is the process of creating passageways in soil for greater air, water and nutrient intake.

"Fertilization and other lawn maintenance efforts will be ineffective until thatch is removed," Linderman said. "You can remove thatch with a basic rake or by renting a professional de-thatcher. After de-thatching, aerate the lawn with a pitchfork or by renting a professional push or gasoline-powered aerator. These are critical first steps to creating a healthy lawn."

» Fertilize early with a strategy.

"Purchasing the wrong fertilizer can very easily kill your grass, trees, shrubbery and other vegetation in your yard," Linderman said. "Purchase a soil test kit from a hardware store or garden center (usually under $10) and measure your soil's nitrogen, potassium and pH levels. Use that information, coupled with your yard's unique conditions (grass type, foot traffic, presence of sunlight and shade, regional climate and vulnerability to weed and pest infestations), to find the right fertilizer formula for your yard."

A lawn should be fertilized in the spring and fall. Package application directions should be followed closely.

» Plan ahead.
"Take time to plan well improvements to your yard,"

Linderman said. "Think about what will work best for your yard in the short- and long-term future."

Homeowners can save money and time by repairing outdoor power equipment on their own. RepairClinic's free advanced online troubleshooting and how-to repair help system empowers people to fix common problems associated with outdoor power equipment, major home appliances and heating and cooling equipment. DIYers enter a model number to choose from a list of common symptoms for that particular model, troubleshoot and learn the likely causes, purchase the correct part and watch expertly-produced how-to repair videos.

Learn about government contracting at coffee sessions

In an effort to engage more Michigan businesses with government contracting opportunities, the Procurement Technical Assistance Center (PTAC) of Schoolcraft College has created an opportunity for regional businesses and potential government contractors to network with its PTAC counseling team.

The PTAC event, "Coffee and Contracting: an Open-Discussion on Government Contracting for Business Owners and Managers," consists of rotating coffee hours throughout Oakland and Wayne counties.

"The PTAC of Schoolcraft College has recognized the need to expand our regional presence and create new opportunities for engagement with the business community," said Alexander Masters, a Procurement Counselor with the PTAC office. "We've selected a network of locations throughout the Oakland and Wayne counties that we will be visiting on a rotating schedule throughout any given month of the year."

Coffee and Contracting sessions are an avenue for business owners and managers to have informal discussions on government contracting, procurement assistance and other relevant contracting topics or challenges.

"For existing clients of the PTAC and non-client businesses, we are able to engage on a time frame that works very well for their schedules," he said. "Follow-on, individual company meetings are also strongly encouraged. Any company that needs additional insight or individual consulting is more than welcome to schedule a separate meeting up until two days from the session date."

Meeting dates and locations for the month of May are:

» 7-8 a.m. Thursday, May 15, at Panera

Bread, 41950 Ford, Canton.

» 7-8 a.m. Thursday, May 22, at Panera Bread, 27651 Southfield Road, Lathrup Village.

» 7-8 a.m. Thursday, May 29, at Panera Bread, 22208 Michigan Ave., Dearborn.

"Any businesses whose headquarters are in Oakland or Wayne County are more than welcome to attend these sessions. Simply bring a business card, buy a coffee or other item when you arrive, and look for me," he said.

The Procurement Technical Assistance Center of Schoolcraft College is funded through a cooperative agreement with the Department of Defense, State of Michigan and Schoolcraft College. PTACs provide free government contracting assistance to businesses in marketing products and services to federal, state and local government agencies.

Remain flexible, open-minded to find new route to success

Everyone generally agrees that if we make plans and follow them we're more likely to achieve our goals. But since there's so much we can't control, it's equally important to remain flexible as conditions change. It pays to remember that: "If you don't bend you'll break."

Plans are valuable tools. But let's not get so attached to the plans that we lose sight of the goals. It's better to remain flexible and open minded in order to find a new route when we run into road-blocks.

I remember being told

Concert provides anti-bullying message to W-W students

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Four teen rock stars had students at Marshall and Adams Upper Elementary Schools in Westland grooving to their music, but it was the message that had them rockin'.

The performances were part of the Teen Nation Tour, a year-long anti-bullying campaign and concert tour. Former X Factor contestant J Ryan is among seven recording artists who performed. The anti-bullying messages they delivered were highly engaging, memorable and drawn from personal experiences.

The performers helped the students cope with day-to-day struggles of being a young person. Students learned about bullying types, prevention and where to turn when it occurs.

At Adams, Kozola's smoke machines set off the alarm system, emptying out the school except for the students in the concert.

In addition to performances at 11 schools in the metro Detroit area, the stars also did five public concerts without the anti-bullying message. Those concerts included shows at Birmingham Groves High School, the Sterling Heights Performing Arts Center where money was raised to help an elementary aged youngster who is battling cancer and at the GM-UAW Center in Detroit to benefit the Pediatric Hydrocephalus Foundation.

YAGD holds spring yoga day

The non-profit Yoga Association of Detroit will host an all-day spring yoga day at the Mercy Center on 11 Mile in Farmington Hills on Saturday, May 10.

Eight different sessions will be offered in the morning — four from 9:45-11 a.m. and four more from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Eight more will be offered in the afternoon — four from 1:45-3 p.m. and four from 3:15-4:45 p.m. — so participants can choose to attend two in the morning and two in the afternoon.

Teachers include Lynn Medow of Birmingham, Cindy Gray of Livonia, Laura Lerman of Southfield, Sharon Holcomb of Canton, Karen Lutz of Bloomfield Hills, and Katherine Schaefer and Doris Sheikh, both of Farmington Hills.

"I think we have a great mix of classes," said YAGD president Lynda Herman of Garden City. "We have chair yoga for those with physical limits. There's 'Don't Move a Muscle' to reduce stress, even 'Laughter Yoga.' Come Saturday and find out. The day is set up to help both beginners and pros."

There is a fee of $64 for four classes. Lunch options include buying the box lunch at registration, going out to nearby restaurants, or bringing your own.

A two-page flier detailing the subjects taught in the 16-class offerings, a map and registration details can be downloaded at YAGD.com. There also is a hotline number for questions: 586-719-4575. The Mercy Center is at 28650 11 Mile Road between Middlebelt and Inkster Road.

Formed in 1975, the association's purpose is to enhance and promote yoga knowledge and practice in the southeast Michigan metropolitan area.

Academic All-Stars, runners-up set shining examples

Congratulations All-Stars!

The school year is winding down and that means it's time to announce the Observer & Eccentric Media's 2014 Academic All-Star Team.

It's an announcement we look forward to with great anticipation.

The 2014 Academic All-Star Team represents the most accomplished students from public, private and parochial schools in Oakland and western Wayne counties.

This year's team is composed of 32 students, seven of whom posted perfect high school records and/or perfect test (SAT or ACT) scores.

Another 39 students are honorable mention and their scores are separated in most cases by a mere fraction of a point. They, too, merit praise.

On Sunday, May 11 (Mother's Day) O&E Media will publish — in cooperation with Madonna University, our long-time major sponsor — a special section that showcases these outstanding students.

The 2014 team represents the 29th consecutive year that the Observer & Eccentric has honored and celebrated academic excellence in our readership area.

This year's section is made possible by O&E Media in cooperation with our major partner, Madonna University. Based in Livonia, Madonna is committed to teaching, scholarship and service.

Other community partners include Community Alliance Credit Union, a section sponsor, and Parkside Credit Union, the essay sponsor. One lucky all-star will win a $500 scholarship for an award-winning essay to be announced at the All-Star Awards Ceremony later this month.

The all-stars and runners-up are smart, caring and have high praise for the teachers who have made an impact on their lives. Take time to read about how involved these teens are and what they hope to accomplish in the future. We are proud of them and you will be too.

They are examples of the good things happening in our local schools and communities today. Be sure to read the May 11 special section.

The 2014 all-star team (in order of ranking) are: Anshu Chen of Bloomfield Hills High School, Collin Chow of North Farmington High School, Benjamin Drews of Harrison High School, Rashmika Goswami of Harrison High School, Elbert Han of Detroit Country Day, Rohan Sinha of Bloomfield Hills High School and Katherine Young of Detroit County Day, followed by Arkady Frasinich of the International Academy in Bloomfield Hills.

Ten students tied for No. 3 ranking. They are Riley Dankovich of Marian High School, Madhurima Das of Plymouth High School, Jonathan Greenberger of Seaholm High School, Neha Hafeez of Canton High School, Tapan Naik of Farmington High School, Kevin Ni of Plymouth High School, Ian O'Rourke of Seaholm High School, Nitin Ram of Salem High School, Savannah Sikorski of Stevenson High School and Alex Yue of Canton High School.

Followed by Joo Yung Park of Cranbrook Kingswood (fourth), Vinayak Bhatia of Farmington School (fifth), Shannon Stork of Marian High School (sixth), Stephanie Liu of Cranbrook Kingswood (seventh) Barbara Scupholm of Stevenson High School (eighth), Hemanth Chittela of Salem High School

Tied for 12th ranking are Bradley Smith of Groves High School and Steven Spens of Clarenceville High School, followed by William Markey III of Brother Rice High School, Hanna Pfershy of Groves High School and Sammy Stevens of Brother Rice High School.

Rounding out the outstanding team is Stephen Fedak of Churchill High School.

And congratulations to our honorable mentions:

Emily Bauer of Garden City High School, Eric Belanger of Franklin High School, Sarah Braden of Lutheran High School Westland, James Brown of Huron Valley Lutheran High School, Redjon Hasimllari of Garden City High School, Matthew Karpiuk of John Glenn High School, Jacob Kemppainen of Huron Valley Lutheran High School, Abhay Kommana of John Glenn High School, Collin Malcom of Wayne Memorial High School, Kole Niemi of Lutheran High School Westland and Stephanie Worthy of Wayne Memorial High School.

OUR VIEWS

Let your mom know just how special she is Sunday is Mother's Day, a day when we stop what we're doing to honor that special woman who has devoted her life to her family.

Mothers play a major role in all of our lives. They nurture and care for us. They comfort us when we're sick or hurt. They laugh with us, cry with us and love us even when we aren't exactly lovable, and have a kiss that cures just about anything.

Mothers seem to know the right things to say and do to make a bad day better. Growing up, they were our personal chauffeur, cheerleader, chef, valet, tutor, maid and banker. They were there to help with Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, with dance recitals and competitions. They were the ones with the biggest smiles when we scored a goal or got an A in school.

Our mothers were at our side to help us celebrate our successes and accept our defeats. They taught us the value of hard work, good judgment, courage and honesty. As youngsters, our mothers were our superheroes; as teenagers they were the meanest moms ever. They saw everything because they had eyes in the backs of their heads and knew everything because they were mind readers.

Now, as adults, we realize our mothers were our teachers and our guides and that even though we are on our own, they are still there to lend a helping hand.

Mother's Day may be celebrated once a year, but for a mother, it is every day. This Mother's Day, do something special for the woman who gave so much of herself for you. Whether it's a card, a gift or a bouquet of flowers, show her how much you care. And know that somewhere hidden away is a special box that contains all your tokens of love from years gone by.

You are just as special to your mom as she is to you.

Work is appreciated

Another year has come and gone, and last week hospitals throughout the country are celebrating National Hospital Week and National Nurses Week. Hospitals employ thousands of incredible individuals who work long hours including nights, weekends and holidays to care for members of their community.

I have the honor and privilege to work for Garden City Hospital. Every day I witness our staff provide compassionate care to the patients and family members who utilize our services.

A great big thank you to the staff and physicians of Garden City Hospital. Although we sometimes forget to tell you just how much you are appreciated, we hope this little token and acknowledgment helps to remind you that we really are fortunate to have each of you as a member of our team.

Hospital are more than bricks and mortar, they are about people. Our people are what make our organization great. Thanks for everything you do.

Happy National Hospital Week.

Be responsible

Shame on you. Freedom of the press was so important to the founding fathers that it was listed in the first amendment, right after freedom of religion and freedom of speech. As they say in the Spider-Man movies, again and again and again, with great power comes great responsibility.

In the Our Views section on May 1, 2014, after glowing accolades about 13th congressional district candidates, Conyers and Sheffield, you went as far as to say that "the August primary will most likely be the election for 13th District seat..." and dismissing the Republican challenger as "a political newcomer."

How irresponsible can you be? To imply that the voters would not be interested in a retired U.S. Naval Officer/Aviator and a retired, union, commercial airline pilot clearly demonstrates no respect for the district's voters or the candidate. Additionally, you appear to lack the ability to see that voters have grown wary of recognizable names like McCain, Pelosi, Graham, McConnell, Boehner, Reid, etc., and other career politicians. One would also have expected the first mud slung would be by opposing candidates and not the press.

Referring again to the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 2, the requirements for Representative are 25 years of age, 7 years of citizenship, and an inhabitant of the state. The government is also supposed to be a government of the people, by the people and for the people. In other words, we didn't trade in the tyranny of one king for that of 536 kings and queens.

What this constitutionally qualified "newcomer" is offering is a return to the Constitution and the idea of public service while in public office. The newcomer also shares the founding father's belief in the principles of Cincinnatus when it comes to statesmanship. In that regard, the 13th Congressional District's seat belongs to all its voters, and not to the candidates nor to a political party and certainly not to the press.

Another 'bold' idea

I saw on the news this week that the Republicans in control in Lansing are contemplating an election year tax break of $76 for Michiganders. If you even whisper about taxing the wealthy or corporations more fairly, and ask them to contribute even a penny more to benefit others, Republicans scream "redistribution of wealth." However, when you tax the pensions of senior citizens, and then pass the cash generated by this new tax they recently enacted along to everyone else, it quickly becomes another one of their bold new ideas.

pushing for equal pay for women. It is reported that in Michigan receive 26 cents less per hour than men for the alleged same work. I remember receiving the same pay as women at a company for allegedly the same work. However, the work was not the same because the women were getting the softer jobs. They had to worry about breaking a nail and the men went home with sore backs, the clothing stains, the cuts on the hands and arms and the stained clothing.

This is not to say that in certain work that women are more efficient in multitasking and have better organizational skills. I also stand in awe of the working single mothers who work and have the work of keeping a house and raising a family. However, it appears that the pay in presumably white collar jobs in the White House have the same pay discrepancy at the national averages. It is said that if the number of hours worked and experienced at the job are factored in that it becomes 5 cents per hour or less. It is also said that if this factoring is applied nationally that discrepancy also disappears.

I am amazed at how many women are talking on their phones while driving and I recently saw one woman jabbing in the air with her other hand like enunciating a point with the hand not holding the phone. I am not certain that the personal telephone time taking care of family business at work is also not considered in this factoring which may lead to the fact that women are getting paid at a higher rate.

The reason for this discussion is that it would seem far more important for these feminists to raise a hue and cry over the 400,000 untested rape kits nationwide. I understand that Memphis is ahead of Detroit with 12,000 untested. Perhaps they figure that it doesn't affect them as the majority may be poor black women.

One coed at the University of Akron was raped within her first week of her freshman year that didn't involve drugs or alcohol use. The school allowed her attacker to attend for over a year while the rape kit was waiting to be tested. Evidently the media isn't interested in this problem of protection of its citizenry which is the basic purpose of government.

What is the state of Michigan doing? The governor appropriated several million dollars to help Detroit test these kits, and they are doing about five a day which should take five or six years to eliminate the back log. What is the State Police doing with these funds? Why the earth worm progress? I think that every woman should be ringing the phones off the hooks of the governor, their state representatives, their congressmen and their senators. I think that a federal bill should be passed to allocate funds for the laboratory personnel and equipment as well as funds for prosecutors specifically charged with handling these crimes.

Perhaps chemical science majors could have some of their college debt forgiven if they train for this type of testing. Perhaps the FBI crime lab could train some recent science graduates for this type of work in states that don't have programs that are going to eliminate this back log.

Ladies, don't sit on your hands. If you must use your phones while driving, do something useful. Also demand reporters do something useful about this instead of reporting about the cat that was rescued from the tree.

Their Final Act: Taylor twins take curtain call

Grand Valley standouts winding down stellar careers as dual-sport athletes

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

They've become almost like a long standing Broadway play. But unlike Phantom of the Opera or Cats, which continue to run, Grand Valley State University's act starring the Taylor twins, Briauna and Brittany, is winding down to a close after five seasons. The dual sport standouts, who led Livonia Franklin High to a runner-up finish in the 2009 Class A girls basketball finals, will try and lead the 29-12 Lakers' women's softball team back for a second straight trip to the NCAA Division II World Series beginning this weekend in Detroit when they take on the University of Indianapolis (42-11) in the opening round of the sub-regional beginning at 4 p.m.

Brittany Taylor

Friday at Wayne State. The other matchup pits the host Warriors (41-9), the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Conference champs, against Ashland University (27-18) at 1:30 p.m. Action in the double-elimination tournament continues with three games beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday with the final game (and one more if necessary), on Sunday at WSU. The winner then advances to a best two-of-three Super Regional series the following weekend with a shot of going to the World Series.

Coming home

The Taylors, fifth-year seniors, are two of the big reasons why the Lakers are making their fourth straight NCAA postseason softball appearance.

"It's really exciting going only a couple of hours away," Brittany said. "It's close for a lot of my family and hopefully they can make it out. It's during a work day for a lot of people, so we'll see."

"It's been an interesting season. We had a lot of new girls, a lot of new freshmen that had to get playing time. And so we're all kind of used to playing with each other. We don't have the hitting that we had last year. We graduated a lot of our power, so everyone is just trying to figure out hitting and defense, and coordinating with each other at the same time."

Last year Grand Valley

upset Indianapolis, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, in the Super Regional to go to the World Series.

"We think we can pull it out, we just need to get our hitting together and play pretty much the way we've been playing," Brittany said. "Everybody on the team is excited and the seniors are really excited as well. The seniors all graduated, so right now we're just playing softball. It's an amazing feeling."

Harrison surprises at Observerland

Hawks nip Stevenson by 2 points for crown; Franklin 3rd

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Saturday's 44th annual Observerland Relays literally was a numbers game at windswept Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Despite strong winds that sometimes slowed runners, Farmington Harrison's outstanding depth proved to be just enough to earn the championship, as the Hawks tallied 74 points — edging Livonia Stevenson, which finished with 72.

The Hawks scored 66 of their 74 points in the running relays (38), jumps (18) and hurdles (10).

Malik Benison, Awari Smith and DeAndre Lipscomb combined for a first in the long jump relay with a combined 61 feet, 8.5 inches. The quartet of Aaron Johnson, Jay Forest, Martell Fletcher and Michael Ojemudia also took the shuttle hurdle relay in 1:03.72.

Ojemudia, a junior, also captured the individual 110 hurdles (15.42).

"You got to be up there and you got to place," said Harrison coach John Reed, whose team captured three events. "We got a lot of guys and I would have to say, I'm sure I used over 20 different guys to score points tonight. We only used a couple sprinters twice. Most guys out here tonight probably only ran one time, so that was pretty good."

Reed then smiled about topping a talented field of teams that included

Stevenson, third-place Livonia Franklin (52 points), host Salem (fourth with 50), defending Observerland champion Novi Detroit Catholic Central (fifth with 48) and Canton (sixth, 46).

"This is a huge win, I'm like in a little bit of shock," the veteran Harrison coach said. "A lot of really good teams here. But we have a team that, these young guys have been growing up with us for a while, they're maturing into their own."

In the next tier of teams were Livonia Churchill (seventh, 37), Farmington (eighth, 29), Westland John Glenn (ninth, 26), Wayne Memorial (10th, 25) and Plymouth (11th, 22). Rounding out the field

Crusaders stay alive in WHAC playoffs

Stoney earns victory against Saints, 3-2

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

After a less than stellar regular season, Madonna University is certainly amends during the postseason.

The fourth-seeded Crusaders, who improved to 29-24 overall, stayed alive Tuesday night in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference baseball playoffs with a 3-2 victory over Aquinas College in the double-elimination tourney hosted by Indiana Tech.

The Crusaders were among three teams still alive and were scheduled to face the host Warriors on Wednesday with top seed Davenport awaiting the winner in the championship final.

Senior Dan Stoney (Canton) got the victory to improve to 2-0 as he pitched the first seven innings allowing just six hits and two walks while striking out seven. Travis Schuba came on in the eighth and ninth innings to earn his fifth save of the season and second of the day.

MU scored single runs in the first and second innings, while adding another in the fourth and held on for the victory.

Ryan Lambrecht and Taylor Grzelakowski each drove in a run as the Crusaders pinned the loss on Aquinas starter Kevin Schafer (1-2), who gave up two earned runs on five hits and five walks in 6½ innings.

The Saints end their season at 23-23 overall.

MADONNA 3, NORTHWESTERN OHIO 1

Dane Staples threw eight strong innings Tuesday afternoon leading the Crusaders (28-24) to a third-round upset victory over No. 2-seed University of Northwestern Ohio (34-16) at Indiana Tech's Warrior Stadium.

Staples (3-1) allowed seven hits, walked three and struck out three. Travis Schuba pitched a scoreless ninth to earn his fourth save.

Losing pitcher Pichi Torres (8-3) went all nine, allowing three runs (all unearned) on seven hits and two walks.

Dalton Ovesen went 2-for-3 with an RBI, while Taylor Grzelakowski also knocked in a run for the Crusaders. John Lauro contributed two hits.

DAVENPORT 4, MADONNA 2: Brendan Bender's 3-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning, his third of the season, helped propel top seed Davenport University (39-15) to a

Pats place 2nd at Woodhaven Classic

Dearborn first; Franklin wins three singles titles

The Livonia Franklin girls tennis team captured three of four singles flights en route to runner-up honors in Saturday's Woodhaven Warrior Classic.

Dearborn won the six-team tournament with 19 points, while Franklin finished second with 16. Wyandotte wound up third in the field that also included Dearborn Fordson, Carleton Airport and host Woodhaven.

"This is the best finish we have had in this tournament in the past five years," Franklin coach Rick Clack said. "The players gave a great effort considering the windy conditions. Now we have KLAA conference 'B' tourney Saturday and (Division 1) regionals the following Thursday (at Woodhaven). Regionals will be even tougher with Farmington (Hills) Mercy."

Singles competition featured 10-game pro sets with Franklin's Carolyn McCullen (No. 1), Kendall Payne (No. 2) and Morgan Witherspoon (No. 4) also took first places. The senior won by a game aggregate of 30-6 over players from Airport, Wyandotte and Dearborn.

Payne, a sophomore, rolled to a 30-0 aggregate over players from Fordson, Dearborn and Wyandotte, while Witherspoon beat Woodhaven, 10-5, Wyandotte, 10-5, and Dearborn, 10-3.

The Patriots' Madison Eisenhauer won two of three matches to finish third at No. 4 place third.

In doubles, Franklin's Stephanie Hudy and Chelsea McWilliams finished 2-1 to place third.

Other Patriot doubles teams earning medals going 1-2 on the day included Samantha Voss and Carla Yanez (No. 1); Kelsey Hansen and Katie Swenson (No. 3); and Blake Newberry and Ashlee Mahoney (No. 4).

GIRLS LACROSSE

Blazers rip Regina to gain Catholic League D2 final

Livonia Ladywood jumped out to a 12-1 halftime lead and cruised to a 17-5 Catholic League Division 2 girls lacrosse semifinal victory Tuesday over visiting Warren Regina.

Senior Jess Snyder scored six goals, while senior Megan Leon added four for the 13-2 Blazers, who will play for the title beginning at noon Saturday at Pontiac Notre Dame Prep against the other semifinal winner between Prep and Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard.

Also adding goals in the semifinal victory were seniors Theresa Micallef and Rachel Donabedian, two each; Hannah Daniels, Sarah Doyle and Grace Gasior, one apiece. Sophomores Jill Jacobs and Olivia Williams each collected an assist, while goalie Sabine Hutter made four saves for the Blazers.

Ladywood goes 4-1

The host Blazers captured four of five matches in Saturday's Livonia Ladywood Invitational with the lone loss coming against Farmington Hills Mercy.

Each match was played with a 24-minute running clock.

In the opener, seniors Rachel Donabedian and Megan Leon each recorded a hat trick, while senior Jess Snyder added two goals in a 10-2 victory over Plymouth. Seniors Theresa Micallef and Jill Jacobs each added a goal, while Senior Sabine Hutter made two saves to pick up the win.

In Game Two, Ladywood defeated Farmington, 6-1, as Jacobs scored twice, while Donabedian, Leon, Micallef and Snyder each chipped in a goal. Hutter had to make just one save.

Despite two goals from Donabedian and one each from Jacobs and Micallef, Ladywood lost Game Three to Catholic League rival Farmington Hills Mercy, 5-4.

Hutter made four saves in the loss.

Ladywood then avenged an early season setback by defeating Flint Powers Catholic, 7-3, as Leon scored four goals and Rachel Donabedian added two. Micallef also contributed a goal, while junior Danielle Dwyer picked up an assist. Hutter had two saves.

In the final match, Ladywood earned a 7-3 triumph over Canton, as Donabedian, Theresa Micallef and Jess Snyder each tallied two goals, while Jacobs contributed one.

Leon collected two assists and senior Hannah Daniels added one, while Hutter made two saves for the Blazers (12-2).

Get a glimpse of Japanese culture at Ikebana floral show this May

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Rosemary Doyle knows exactly what she'll make for next week's ikebana floral art show in Southfield. But before she starts creating her design, the Livonia woman wants Mother Nature to get on board with her idea.

"Sometimes you only need one flower. Whatever you have in the yard sometimes works," said Doyle, a member of the Ikebana International Detroit Chapter #85. "I have quince. I'm waiting for a quince to bloom. That is what I want to use in the arrangement. I'm trying to force it to bloom. It's late this year."

In the meantime, she's visiting floral shops and visualizing her idea with other materials, just in case the quince doesn't bloom in time for the chapter's annual show, "Glimpse of Japan," Wednesday, May 14, at Northwest Unitarian Universalist Church, 23925 Northwestern Highway, Southfield. Doyle and other members will create approximately 24 arrangements for the show, which will open at 11:30 a.m. A program, with ikebana demonstrations, will begin at 12:30 p.m., followed by light refreshments. The event also will include door prizes, sale of ikebana supplies and other Japanese items. A Japanese calligrapher will write kanji symbols on paper suitable for framing for guests at no charge.

"We do provide lessons if anyone is interested in learning the art. They are welcome to come as a guest to a meeting," said Lauren Paul, chapter president. "We have ongoing lessons every month."

Some Japanese-style flower arrangements, like this piece by Cynthia Kidd of Farmington Hills, use shallow containers.

The group, which includes approximately 50 members, meets the second Wednesday of the Month, March-December. The first learning session runs from 10 a.m. to noon, followed by a monthly meeting and second session, from 1-3 p.m.

East vs. West

"Each month is a different style arrangement," Paul said, adding that ikebana emphasizes line, angle and space within the arrangement, rather than "a mess of flowers."

"Flowers are more of an accent. That is how it is different from Western style. You

Designers look 'beyond armor' for samurai-inspired fashion

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Sarah Lapinski says her career in sewing and design "found" her after she inherited her grandmother's sewing machine.

The 1995 Plymouth Salem High School graduate had already earned a bachelor's degree in labor and urban studies from Wayne State University and had founded a women's artist collective, when she taught herself to sew.

"I designed a stuffed animal and was doing soft sculpture and developing my skills," said Lapinski, who later founded Wound Menswear and Motor City Sewing and Design. "I didn't know where it would take me. Now I have an agent in New York."

Although Lapinski retired her menswear firm in 2011, she has continued sewing — everything from movie costumes to designers' clothing lines to rental chair slip covers — through Motor City Sewing and Design. She lives in New York, and rents out her sewing studio in Detroit, but often travels home for business or to visit her mom, who lives in Westland. She'll be back in town next weekend to watch her newest creation, "Floating Lotus" on the fashion runway at the Detroit Institute of Arts, (DIA). "Beyond the Armor Fashion Show" runs noon to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, May 17, wrapping up a design competition presented by the Detroit Garment Group Guild and the DIA.

Lapinski and nine other designers created garments inspired by the current DIA exhibit "Samurai: Beyond the Former Plymouth resident and Salem High School graduate, Sarah Lapinski, designed this garment inspired by artwork and objects in the Samurai: Beyond the Sword exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Sword," a collection of art and objects that reveal the samurai warrior's aesthetic ideals and values. Their contest entries are on display through Monday, May 12, at Ikea, located on Ford Road just west of Haggerty, in Canton. The public can vote on their favorite at Ikea or online at detroitgarmentgroup.org. The winning design will be announced at the fashion show, which will feature the contest entries.

Inspiration

The designers got a chance to view the samurai exhibit before taking needle and thread to fabric.

"I wanted it to transform me and I wanted to be open to what was there," Lapinski said. "I didn't know (the samurai) used such an abundance of technique and materials."

appreciate it more for a single blossom than you do for a mass of color, a vase full of bright flowers. It's a meditative art. You contemplate each position, each placement."

Doyle describes the process of creating ikebana as artistic, creative, reflective and quiet. The widowed mother of three adult children retired last year after teaching career development for individuals in job transition.

"Years ago because of the intensity of my work, I wanted to do flower arranging to relax. I took a brief class, but it was Western-style arranging," Doyle said. "I had the inclination to work with flowers. When you think about doing an (ikebana) arrangement you think about it beforehand so it becomes an expression of thought. When you're doing art, even with flowers, you use a different part of your brain. When you do a design, it takes you out of your space."

Learning the art

Doyle, who volunteers as a gallery monitor at the Detroit Institute of Arts, discovered ikebana while stationed in the Asian gallery eight years ago. She noticed a woman just beyond the gallery was arranging flowers in a "beautiful" but non-Western-style grouping. She later discovered the woman was a floral designer at the Ikebana International show. She attended the event, joined the chapter and has been active in ikebana design ever since.

Members work at different skill levels on the same design at monthly meetings. Doyle said the hobby can be inexpensive because designers often use floral materials from their own back yards. Ikebana containers can cost $25 and up, although Paul said she has found less expensive vases at some area home goods stores.

"We know ahead of each meeting what style container to bring," Doyle said. "When I first started I didn't have anything. We were doing Moribana (shallow-style containers) and I just took a 13-by-9 cake pan. Did it work? Yes. When I brought it home, I just put it in something else."

Lotus reflects the Japanese philosophy of wabi-sabi, showing beauty in the imperfect, impermanent and incomplete. She created a coat and pants from a stained, used drop cloth. A cluster of metal lockets on one pant leg suggests armor. The lotus design on side panels of the coat represent the warriors' "spiritual leanings." Red velvet extensions on the back of the coat, near its shoulders, represent beetle claws.

"The samurai used beetles as a reference, their armor was based off beetles," Lapinski noted.

She hopes to garner enough votes to win the competition. Her previous honors have included Fashion Designer of the Year, from a Real Detroit Weekly survey in 2007, Best Local Designer from Real Detroit Weekly in 2010 and Best Menswear in Detroit from WDIV Channel 4, also in 2010.

"I want people to know to always follow their dreams. Don't ask permission or worry about money. Just do it. You'll figure it out," Lapinski said. "I didn't know where this would go and I just went with it."

RSVP for the fashion show by calling 313-833-4005. Visit Samurai: Beyond the Sword through June 1.

GOT MILK?

Make fat-free milk a part of your breakfast

Today, 85 percent of Americans fall short of the USDA's recommended daily servings of low-fat or fat-free milk — a staggering number when you take into account milk is the top food source for three out of the four “nutrients of concern” — the nutrients that Americans are most lacking, including calcium, potassium and vitamin D. Each 8-ounce glass has nine essential nutrients including eight grams of high-quality protein — that's more than an egg. Milk also has B vitamins for energy, vitamin A for a healthy immune system and bone-building nutrients, including calcium and vitamin D.

Incorporating milk into your morning meal is an easy way to help close the gap between actual and recommended milk intake. Is fat-free milk your milk of choice? Here are five things you may not know about skim or fat-free milk:

1. Counting calories? One 8-ounce glass of fat-free milk has just 80 calories.
2. Three servings of fat-free or low-fat milk each day can help you maintain a healthy weight.
3. Drinking fat-free milk at breakfast could help stave off lunchtime hunger, according to an Australian study. Researchers found that drinking fat-free milk (20 ounces) in the morning helped increase satiety, or a feeling of fullness, and led to decreased calorie intake at the next meal, as compared with a fruit drink. The milk drinkers ate about 50 fewer calories (or nearly 9 percent less food) at lunch.

4. Think fat-free means fewer nutrients? Think again. Fat-free milk has the same nine essential nutrients as low-fat, reduced-fat, or whole milk — just with fewer calories.

5. Not all “milks” are created equal. Many of the alternative beverages just can't provide what you would get in a glass of fat-free dairy milk. For example, while an 8-ounce glass of vanilla almond “milk” has about the same calories, it contains only 1 gram of protein, compared to fat free milk's 8 grams of protein.

See how delicious fat-free milk can be with these easy and impressive breakfast recipes that include fat-free milk to start your day off right. For more fresh recipes using fat free milk, visit MilkLife.com.

BREAKFAST PUDDING

Makes 4 servings

¼ cup - sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 cups fat-free milk
2 egg yolks, lightly beaten
2 tablespoons almond butter
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
Mixed fresh berries for serving Crunchy cereal for serving

Whisk sugar and cornstarch in a medium saucepan until well blended. Slowly drizzle in milk, whisking until smooth, then whisk in eggs. Cook pudding over medium heat until it begins to thicken, whisking often. Reduce heat to medium-low and, stir pudding with spatula, scraping the sides and bottom of pot until thickened. Off heat, whisk in almond butter and vanilla. Transfer pudding to a bowl, cover with plastic wrap, pressing to the surface to prevent skin from forming, and chill for at least 2 hours.

Spoon ½ cup of chilled pudding into four parfait glasses. Top with some berries and 2 tablespoons cereal, then layer another ½ cup pudding on top, followed by more berries and cereal.

APPLE PIE OATMEAL

Yield: 3 servings

3 cups fat-free milk
1 ½ cups uncooked regular oats
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup packed light brown sugar
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup pure maple syrup
1 (12-ounce) package frozen harvest apples
Apple pie spice

Combine the 4 ingredients in a bowl, stirring well. Pour into a lightly greased 3-quart oval slow cooker. Cover and cook on low setting 8 hours. Add butter, stirring until it melts. Stir in syrup. Prepare apples according to package directions. Spoon oatmeal into bowls, and top with apples. Sprinkle with apple pie spice and serve immediately.

CHEESY BACON-BROCCOLI QUICHE

Makes 6 servings

1 package (10 ounces) frozen broccoli with cheese sauce
3 slices turkey bacon, chopped
½ cup - white mushrooms, sliced
½ cup - green onions, chopped
1 (9-inch) frozen prepared pie shell
4 eggs
1 cup fat free or low-fat milk
½ cup cheddar cheese, shredded

Preheat oven to 350°F. Prepare the broccoli and cheese sauce in the microwave according to package directions; set aside to cool slightly. Cook bacon, mushrooms, and green onions in a nonstick skillet over medium heat until bacon is cooked through and mushrooms are tender. Scatter bacon mixture in the bottom of the pie shell; place the pie shell on a baking sheet. In a bowl, whisk together the eggs and milk, then stir in the broccoli and cheese sauce along with the cheddar cheese. Pour the custard into the pie shell and bake for 35 to 45 minutes, or until center is just set and a knife blade comes out clean when inserted into the center of the quiche. Let cool for at least 10 minutes before cutting into wedges.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Westland switches to automated trash collection

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Westland residents will have a new cart to put at the curb on trash day as the city moves to an automated collection system like the one used for its curbside recycling program.

The City Council has approved the purchase of seven garbage trucks and 28,000 garbage and recycling carts as it switches to a refuse and recycling collection system handled by its longtime trash hauler, Midwest Sanitation.

With its refuse, recycling and RecycleBank contracts all up this year, the city is using a plan developed by Paul Ruthenberg of Midwest Sanitation to address the $800,000 difference between what the city's sanitation millage raises and what it spends. As a result, the city is dropping Republic Recycling.

"Our goal has been to get all the costs under the current millage," Mayor William Wild said. "The current subsidy comes out of the general fund."

Under the agreement, the city will buy the trucks, which cost $1.7 million. The money will come from a capital fund the city is creating with the $8.9 million it's receiving by refinancing Taylor Towers. The money will be paid back with revenue from the Sanitation Fund

W-W board to interview six candidates for superintendent

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

The Wayne-Westland school board has selected six candidates, including the district's two deputy superintendents, to be interviewed this week as part of its search for a new superintendent.

Board members spent last Monday evening reviewing applicants and narrowing the field to six candidates. They plan to conduct formal interviews Tuesday, May 13, and Thursday, May 15, in the school board meeting room at the district's central offices on Marquette between Wayne Road and Newburgh in Westland.

Invited to be interviewed Tuesday are:

» Josh Alison, superintendent of Beecher Community School District in Genesee County, at 6:30 p.m.

» Deborah Piotrowski, superintendent of the Xenia Community Schools in Xenia, Ohio, at 7:45 p.m.

» Paul Salah, deputy superintendent of educational services for Wayne-Westland, at 9 p.m.

The interviews will continue Thursday with:

» Charles Muncatchy, former superintendent of Mount Clemens Schools and founder of the Jalen Rose Leadership Academy, at 6:30 p.m.

» Michele Harmala, associate superintendent for instructional services and organizational leadership for Farmington Public Schools, at 7:45 p.m.

» James Larson-Shidler, deputy superintendent for administrative and business services for Wayne-Westland, at 9 p.m.

The board is seeking a superintendent to replace Greg Baracy, who announced in December that he'll retire July 1 after 17 years as the district's top administrator. Baracy is the district's longest serving superintendent.

Following these interviews, the board will determine which candidates will be finalists and then conduct a second round of interviews Monday and Tuesday, May 19-20.

Under a plan developed by the Michigan Association of School Board Executive Search Services, the board hopes to select a new superintendent at its regular meeting June 9.

Shared degenerative disease strengthens bond between mom, kids

By Karen Smith
Staff Writer

Allison Rupp, 31, of Livonia shares a special bond with her children that not many mothers do — they all have the same inherited disorder: Ehlers-Danlos syndrome.

EDS is a degenerative disease that impacts the elasticity and strength of the body's connective tissues, primarily skin, joints and blood vessels. People with EDS are prone to painful dislocations of their joints, and complications can be life-threatening.

Rupp has undergone 12 surgeries in an effort to help her better manage her EDS, including, most recently, a procedure to fuse vertebrae in her neck.

Daughter Lila, 5½, a kindergartner at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth, wears five braces at night to limit her range of motion while she sleeps. Noah, 8, a second-grader, suffers from shoulder dislocations.

"With the kids having the same genetic defect, it hits me hard as a mother since I deeply know the pain and medical difficulties they will face and continue to struggle with throughout their lives," Rupp said. "I could handle my hip dislocating far more easily than watching my child go

Judge: All-Stars prove schools are producing 'brilliant kids'

By Karen Smith
Staff Writer

For 14 years, Franklin High School Principal Dan Willenborg has volunteered as a judge for the O&E Media's Academic All-Star Team.

Every spring, he and one or two other principals spend several hours poring over applications to select the most accomplished students from public, private and parochial schools in Oakland and western Wayne counties.

"It's an honor, a privilege," he said of serving as a judge. "It's exciting to see the quality of the kids' performance. A lot of these kids end up in Ivy League schools, premiere universities. That's motivating for me."

Willenborg said educators can feel downtrodden with education being portrayed today as "going down the toilet," but the truth is, high school is a lot harder than it was even 12 years ating seniors. They take Advanced Placement or International Baccalaureate classes, sometimes maintaining perfect records during their high school years and/or earning perfect SAT or ACT test scores.

"They're getting a much more vibrant, much more enhanced education. There's more academic rigor."

"It's always a thrill to review those packets because the kids are brilliant," he said. "If there's any thought that schools aren't producing or working with brilliant kids, that's wrong."

Thirty-two Academic All-Stars were named to the team this year, selected from more than 70 applicants. Their profiles will appear in a special section this Sunday in the Observer.

Not only are the Academic All-Stars bright, they are leaders in their schools and communities, Willenborg said. "It's tough trying to draw a line who to choose and who not to choose," he said. Often, when the scores are identical, the student who has shown more leadership will get selected, he said. "It's very competitive. You're up against the tops of the top of each school. There are plenty of great kids that aren't selected."

Motivated students

The Academic All-Stars are either motivated from within, understanding that education unlocks doors to the future, or by their parents who push them to succeed, but they all come from families that highly value education, he said.

Willenborg said while he was a good student at Dearborn High School, from which he graduated in 1978, he was no Academic All-Star. "These kids would have blown me away; I'm not in the same league," he said.

He graduated from

Michigan State University's James Madison College where he earned his Bachelor's of Art Degree in International Relations. He also competed in the discus throw on the track and field team at Michigan State.

After college, he was commissioned as an officer in the United States Marine Corps and served as an infantry officer with the 2nd Marine Division. While in the Corps, he had the opportunity to attend the Army's Ranger School and he earned his Ranger Tab in 1984. It was during his experience in the military service that he realized his passion for teaching, and after leaving active duty, Willenborg returned to Michigan State and earned a teaching certificate. He remained with the USMC Reserves for another four years.

Willenborg landed his first teaching job at Clarkston High School where he taught social studies. After a lay off and two years of substituting for Dearborn Public Schools, he moved to West Michigan to take a teaching and coaching job at Fremont High School. In Fremont, he served as the head football and head wrestling coach and eventually became the assistant principal and athletic director. In 1996, he accepted an administrative position at Churchill High School and served there as an assistant principal for four years. He was named the principal of Franklin High School with the start of the 2000-01 school year.

Willenborg earned his Master's Degree in Educational Leadership from Michigan State in 1996 and an Education Specialist Certificate from Wayne State University in 2006.

Lifelong learner

Now he is back in school, earning a second master's degree in history from Madonna University in Livonia. "I love to learn," he explained. "It's exciting, and (it's great) to have access to great place like Madonna right next door."

Willenborg and his wife, Sonita Harris, the head track and field coach at South Lyon East High School, have four children — Trent, 17; Laine, who turns 16 next week, Brook, 13, and Drake, 11 — "and two dogs and a cat." The family lives in South Lyon.

Willenborg said he is proud of the students at Franklin High, which had two students, Eric Belanger and Joseph Vetula, named among the 39 students receiving Honorable Mention from the Academic All-Star judges this year.

"It's a great mix of kids with many caring families," he said, adding they have grit and fortitude. He said they are talented artists, athletes and student leaders who think creatively and analytically.

Willenborg said he feels very fortunate and privileged to be involved in education. "I always wanted to be challenged in what I do. Kids are great; it's very rewarding."

Susan Rosiek, Executive Editor/Publisher of O&E Media, said Willenborg and Carolyn Witte, principal of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills, did all of the work this year because Charlie Hollerith of the new Bloomfield Hills High School was in transition with the new school.

"The Observer & Eccentric appreciates the time the principals devote to this project. They give freely of their time so that this program can continue. We couldn't do it without them," she said.

through it."

But, on the positive side, she said her kids can always count on her to understand. "They don't ever have to feel alone in their struggle."

Daily chores a struggle

Rupp said there are days she isn't up to the task of parenting because of the pain and fatigue that come with Ehlers-Danlos syndrome. That's when her mother and mother-in-law, who lives in Ohio, step in to help until she regains her strength.

"My routine is to drop the kids off at school, go to Mass, then go home and sleep until the kids need to be picked up," she said. "I do this so that I have the strength to do homework and dinner and the dishes or a load of laundry. Then bedtime with my kids."

Rupp said she has learned to accept that she has limitations, and she doesn't try to be super-mom.

"I work hard at finding the little joys in my day instead of the to-do list to find my purpose and worth," she said. "I hope that I'm teaching them that just because life doesn't turn out the way you planned doesn't mean you can't find new dreams and happiness in the life that you are living."

Rupp, who recently moved to Livonia from Westland, is an inspiration to her cousin, Katie Patterson, communications specialist for Livonia Public Schools, who recommended Rupp to the Observer for a Mother's Day feature.

"Allison is a phenomenal mother," Patterson said. "She loves her children so completely, and she is so involved in their lives, even though her EDS limits her in ways.

"It would be easy for Allison to grow bitter and resentful of the things she can't do because of her disease; instead, she allows her struggles to strengthen her spiritually and mentally. Her loving example is evident in her children, especially when they play with their younger cousins. She inspires me to be a better mother to my own children," she said.

Healing pilgrimage

Rupp will spend Mother's Day reunited with her children after spending April 30 to May 6 with her husband Andrew in Lourdes, France, on a healing pilgrimage.

Rupp was one of about 50 sick individuals who accompanied the Federal Association of the Order of Malta on its 2014 international pilgrimage to the Marian Shrine at Lourdes, France. Archbishop Allen Vigneron of the Archdiocese of Detroit traveled with the group. Rupp was nominated by a Knight of Malta that her father knows.

"I never dreamed I would be chosen, but apparently dreams come true," she said.

Everybody who goes to Lourdes is healed, she said, whether it's physically, emotionally or spiritually.

"It may not even be recognized during the visit, but maybe weeks or months later," she said. "You're changed."

She said her most treasured parts of the trip were the baths, candlelight Mass and vigils at the grotto, where the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared in 1858 to a very poor 14-year-old girl.

"It hits you in a raw way that makes words useless, only tears seem to come," Rupp said. "There is a serenity and love that emits from the flicker of the candles, hymns of Ave Maria and the hush of the river Gave (de Pau.) Beautiful seems so bland a word. It was once described as a 'place fixed between heaven and earth.'"

Rupp hopes to take her children there some day, so they too may experience healing.

"Being with the Blessed Mother has given me a new glimpse into what all encompassing love she had for her son," she said. "She understands and hears every mother's prayer."

over seven years at 2 percent interest.

Blue and gray

The city is also buying the gray 64- and 96-gallon carts and the fuel for the trucks, while Midwest Sanitation will provide the labor and insurance and maintain the trucks.

Residents will continue to use blue carts for recycling and will be able to get a second one for free. However, the city will provide only one gray trash cart. There will be a charge for a second one.

"With our government discount on buying the trucks and with our status on buying fuel, we can save $500,000," Wild said. "By having automated trucks and one driver, he saves money on labor."

Ruthenberg implemented the system, which he calls P4, in Taylor several years ago.

"When the mayor brought it to the council, it was approved 6-1," Wild said. "The council president voted no because he thought the city was taking on too much risk. He's now saying that it was the smartest thing the former mayor ever did."

Ruthenberg also will look at the current collection routes and make adjustments. Wild said that hasn't been done in 20 years and could mean new collection days for residents.

Wild hopes to have everyone educated on the changes by the time the new trash bins are delivered. One idea is to have the new day on the bins when they're delivered to homes.

Recycling rewards

The last piece of the puzzle is the RecycleBank program, which rewards residents for recycling.

Under Ruthenberg's plan, the city will have a fund balance of more than $140,000 each year of the five-year agreement, but the cost of RecycleBank would put the Sanitation Fund into a deficit.

RecycleBank awards points to people who recycle based on the amount collected in a neighborhood. The points can be redeemed for different things. According to Wild, it gives out some 1 million points monthly, but only 500 points are redeemed.

With all parts of the RecycleBank program put in place when it started, Wild believes the cost should be far less than the current $175,000.

"The goal of RecycleBank was to give people a reward for changing their behavior," Wild said. "We got 80 percent participation to start and we're still at 70-80 percent."

The city council will discuss the contract with RecycleBank at a study session at 6 p.m. Monday, May 12.

Wayne council looks at specifics in budget plan

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

A combination of nips and tucks have gotten Wayne's looming budget deficit down to $731,000, but more has to be done to curb expenses and increase revenues.

That was the message last week at a budget study session in which Finance Director James Ghedotte walked the city council and residents through the proposed 2014-2015 budget.

"We're still looking at a $731,000 deficit, but we're looking to get to zero," Ghedotte said. "We're estimating we will finish the current year with a negative $190,000. If we do finish with that we will have to present a deficit elimination plan to the state. We have some difficult decisions ahead."

Part of the reductions included the loss of 14 full-time equated positions. The number of employees will drop from 88 to 74 in the new budget year. The reduction includes the loss of one sergeant and four police officers, one deputy, two lieutenants and an administrative position in the fire department, and two foremen in the Department of Public Works.

DPW director Ramzi El-Gharib, currently the interim city manager, also will retire and return July 1 as a contract employee, serving a dual role for Wayne and Westland. He will oversee the Department of Public Service director and Engineering in Westland and the DPW in Wayne. Wayne's share of the cost will be $30,000.

"With that change in DPW, we will save about $180,000," Ghedotte said.

More reductions

Two positions also will be reduced at the district court and a clerk will be transferred to personnel from Community Development.

According to Ghedotte, the city will bring in an additional $231,658 in property taxes because of a lower than anticipated decline in property values. It had been projected that property values would dip another 5 percent, but the figure is now 1.83 percent. Additionally, it anticipates a 3 percent increase in state shared revenue.

It also plans to increase the street lighting assessment to erase a $200,000 subsidy from the general fund. Street lighting currently costs the city $620,000. The assessment brings in $400,000, leaving the city to pick up the remaining expense.

The city also is looking at a partial shutdown of the Wayne Community Center, but is entertaining a proposal from HYPE Athletics Inc. to take over its operation.

"Last year we subsidized the community center by $1 million, it's about $800,000 this year and it would be $667,000 next year," Ghedotte said. "We could close the entire building, but we would still have to keep the heat and lights on. There would be some costs that won't go away."

The city also was hoping to bring in more revenue from the DDA with a special 2-mill tax levy. That would have raised $350,000 and would have been used to cover the cost of police and fire services in the DDA district which represents one-third of the city. However, the DDA Board declined to take action on the request at its meeting Thursday.

The tax levy was "a big item," according to Ghedotte.

Mayor Al Haidous noted that "the economy is tough on businesses, but sometimes we have to make tough decisions. The city needs the extra revenue to survive. It's a tough issue."

El-Gharib pointed out that both the council and the DDA Board would have had to approve the tax for it to be levied.

"There are multiple solutions in this proposed budget," he said. "This is a miracle. If you had asked me in January how we would cut $3.6 million, I couldn't have answered."

Retirement costs

But the biggest issue the city faces is employees' retirement. According to Ghedotte, that line item was zero several years ago. The city pays a percentage of payroll to the fund, that amount keeps escalating.

"Last year we paid $679,704, this year $930,222. Next year it will be $1.146 million," Ghedotte said.

The city also is looking at a $2 million cost for medical insurance for retirees "and that number is going up." It currently costs $15,000 for a retiree and his family.

"We can't spend the money in that fund for anything other than employee health care," he said. "That's $2.9 million, but we have an unfunded liability of $44 million. We pay as we go. We pay the premium and that's about $2 million."

Ghedotte added that Wayne isn't the only city in the state of Michigan, only Oakland County is fully funded.

The city council will hold a second budget session for 7 p.m. Thursday, May 15, at the Wayne-Westland Fire Station on Wayne Road, before it comes up for a vote at its May 20 meeting.

Wayne DDA Board says 'no' to tax levy

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Wayne city officials were counting on an influx of new money from its Downtown Development Authority to help erase a projected $3.6 million deficit for fiscal 2014-2015. But that won't be happening.

The DDA Board on Thursday declined to vote on a 2-mill tax on real and personal property within the district and instead give $60,000 to the city's Main Street Program and Wayne Public Library.

The board voted 6-1, with Mayor Al Haidous dissenting, to give $40,000 to Main Street and $20,000 to the library. The $40,000 is in addition to the $10,000 that was already included for Main Street in DDA's proposed budget.

Councilman John Rhaesa, who serves on the board, made the proposal.

"I think we need to put more into Main Street and the library," he said. "As the DDA, the general fund isn't our issue. Our issue is the downtown and what we can do for it."

The DDA, by law, can levy up to 2 mills in the district. The money such a levy would have raised — $350,000 — would have gone to the city to pay for police and fire services in the district.

Proposed budget

In a proposed DDA budget presented by Community Development Director Peter McInerney, the DDA would have contributed $933,000 to the city's general fund. The amount included the revenue from a 2-mill levy. With the board taking no action on the tax request, that amount is reduced to $583,000.

The DDA's budget must also be approved by the city council.

"Unless you take action on the millage, nothing will happen," McInerney said. "If this is approved in May, it would be collected in July. If it were approved after May, it would be collected next July."

The 2-mill levy was a recommendation the city received from state treasury officials who reviewed the city's financial last month.

"On April 15 we received fiscal recommendations from the state treasury on what to charge for services in the DDA district," said Councilman Albert Damitio,

"As the DDA, the general fund isn't our issue. Our issue is the downtown and what we can do for it."

JOHN RHAESA, councilman

who also serves on the DDA Board. "Our DDA covers one-third of the city. That's large in comparison to other cities. I can understand the concern about increasing it. If you say no, that's fine, but the state indicated we need to increase taxes."

"This needs to be taken seriously; it might not be the right thing to do," he said.

Difficult issue

Haidous, who chairs the DDA Board, acknowledged that the 2-mill levy was a difficult issue to look at and that the money it would raise wouldn't solve the city's problem. With layoffs, retirements and the partial closing of the community center, the city still has a deficit of more than $700,000 and it will grow with the board's decision not to approve the special tax.

"I feel this affects the small businesses who are struggling now," he said. "We need to come together, work together and find the right solutions. We're all paying the price for this economy."

Other board members expressed concern that the tax would have a negative impact on business, especially attracting new business to the district.

"When a businessman walks into town, he wants to see growth," he said. "I have people coming in who say they want do Wayne's downtown to be like downtown Plymouth," Saad said. "The only way to come out of this is to come up with a solution."

"Unless it can be put toward something to help the downtown and help business, unless we do something for them, I'm not for this," added board member David Steinhauer. "I'm not for this unless you can change my mind."

The board, at Rhaesa's urging, also decided to begin meeting monthly as stated in its bylaws. The group will meet at 6 p.m. the first Thursday of the month. Its next meeting will be June 5.

DUPREYTON'S CONTRACTURE

Dupreyton's Contracture is a condition that comes on in middle to old age. The term refers to a thickening in the palm of the hand of the tissues beneath the skin. The thickened tissue acts a barrier to movement of the tendons that start in the arm and end in the finger tips; the result is a hindrance to the tendons as they slide in their channels. The individual feels the obstruction as an inability to curl the fingers or close the hand as in making a fist or turning the cap on a milk bottle.

The hand with a Dupreyton's contracture is particularly stiff in the morning on awakening. The reason is that during the night the body cools, the lower temperature cause the tissues in the hands to thicken, become less pliable and more difficult to move. The action of placing the hands under warm water or taking a shower to "loosen up," works because the hot water warms the body tissues and returns tissues to their pliable state.

Treatment for Dupreyton's Contracture is unsatisfactory. Injection into a thickened tendon is excellent for a single tendon, but if the whole palm of the hand has flexure involvement this therapy becomes ineffective. Hand doctors are reluctant to intervene. The only surgery possible is to open up the palm and clean the sheath of every tendon in the palm, a difficult and long operation whose after-effect often is to cause thickened tissue to re-appear.

The only practical treatment is to wear gloves at night and use a wax bath dip to provide heat in a manner that softens the tendon sheaths.

Daniel Centers appointed to Livonia school board

By Karen Smith
Staff Writer

Daniel Centers, 29, a Livonia Jaycee and district executive with Boy Scouts of America, was appointed Wednesday to fill the open seat on the Livonia school board.

He beat out Roy Watts, a former Garden City school board member, following three tie votes by the board. There were 26 applicants interviewed.

Centers had filed to run for the Schoolcraft College board of trustees in November, but he said he will now run for a seat on the Livonia school board instead. The appointment is through Dec. 31, 2014.

"I'm humbled and honored," Centers said of his appointment. Trustee Randy Roulier switched his vote from Watts to Centers to finally break the tie. Tammy Bonifield, Dianne Laura and Eileen McDonnell also supported Centers.

Dan Centers

"We ended up with two tremendous candidates. We had to choose one," Roulier said, explaining why he switched his vote. "When you got to these final two, they were extremely qualified."

Laura said Centers is a fresh new face on the board. "He's got a great personality."

Other top contenders were Elizabeth Jarvis, president of the Livonia PTSA Council, and Kevin Sutton, an attorney based in Bloomfield Hills.

During his interview, Watts told the board he would still want to be involved if not selected. "I won't disappear unless you want me to. I'm here," he said. He said he learned some lessons serving on the Garden City school board. "I think there should have been more homework done, I would ask a lot harder questions," he said, adding he lost his bid for re-election to that board by 27 votes.

Centers replaces Julie Robinson, who resigned to move from the area. The remaining two years left on Robinson's term will be up for grabs in the November general election.

Centers is a 2002 Churchill High School graduate. He and his wife, Janice, who's also a Livonia Jaycee, helped to raise $4,000 for specialized tricycles for special-needs children at Webster Elementary.

Centers, a 2007 Madonna University alumnus, was also recently honored with the university's Franciscan Values Award for commitment to education and community service.

The board received 32 applications, but six people dropped out. The board interviewed all 26 remaining candidates on Tuesday and Wednesday. Board President Mark Johnson thanked them all. "This has been a very difficult decision ... given the quality of the applicants," he said.

The board narrowed the field to the top two contenders after several rounds of voting. The vote to appoint Centers was unanimous.

ACHIEVERS

Over 130 Alma College students participated in Alma College's 18th annual Kapp Honors Day program on Thursday, April 3. The day provides a forum when traditional classes are canceled and students share their original research, creativity and talents with an audience of their peers.

In sessions spanning nearly eight hours, students perform in music and dance productions, give oral presentations of scholarly research and lead poster discussions. Nearly 10 percent of the student body participated.

Participating were senior Zakkary Hardyniec of Wayne, who presented "Efficacy of a Novel Strength and Conditioning Program;" senior Adam Karson of Wayne, who presented "Risky Courtship Behavior of the Male Wolf Spider, Schizocosa ocreata;" and senior Frances Jackson of Westland, who presented "The Effects of Body Composition on Physical Activity and Heart Health in Fifth-Grade Students at Nikkari Elementary."

Jessica Coatsworth of Garden City received a Heart and Soul Award from the Michigan Campus Compact (MiCC) in recognition of her time, effort and personal commitment to her community through service.

MiCC promotes the education and commitment of Michigan college students to be civically engaged citizens, through creating and expanding academic, co-curricular and campus-wide opportunities for community service, service-learning and civic engagement.

Lauren Daniels of Westland recently received an academic award at Albion College's annual Honors Convocation. The Albion College faculty chooses these recipients from among the most exemplary students in all academic departments.

Daniels received a Ballard Family Endowed Scholarship in Art and Art History. Daniels is majoring in art. She is the daughter of David and Donna Daniels of Westland and a graduate of Ladywood High School.

Amanda Quartz of Garden City graduated with high distinction at the University of Michigan winter commencement. She received a dual degree in human resource management and Hispanic studies.

A Chancellor's Medallion candidate, she was recognized as a dean's scholar of her graduating class at the Celebration of Excellence on April 4. She was also recognized at the annual Honors Convocation as a James B. Angell Scholar and University Honors. She also was the recipient of the 2013 Honors Scholar Award for Human Resource Management.

Quartz, a 2009 graduate of Garden City High School, was the first female recipient of the MHSAA Scholar Athlete Award/Scholarship. She also was a substitute teacher for Garden City Public Schools while attending college and is now a Human Resource Generalist with Aisin World Corp. of America.

She is the daughter of Patrick and Katrina Quartz.

W-W teachers attend Galileo Leadership Academy

Three Wayne-Westland teachers were among educators in a Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties who displayed their work at a recent Inquire and Learning Fair at Oakland Schools in Waterford.

The fair showcased the projects of teachers completing their first year in the Galileo Leadership Academy. Participating were Lindsay Derocher, Chris Swanson and Piper Grenfell.

The academy is collaboration between K-12 and community college educators aimed at creating dynamic learning communities through the development and support of a network of educational leaders. The ultimate goal is the transformation of the learning communities into "positive, joyful and reflective places of hope, where meaningful, challenging and powerful learning is celebrated and achieved by all."

The program offers 14 seminars spread over two years and two three-day summer retreats.

As Galileo Leaders, the teachers have been evaluating what they learn through the completion of assignments that can include reflective writings. As leaders they are expected to meet with school administrators and the school board, and one session includes a trek to the state capitol to discuss educational issues with legislators.

The capstone of the first year was their action research projects which were on display at the May 1 fair. The project is designed to help the teachers answer questions by identifying and collecting data that already exists in their classrooms or schools.

Indie film 'Monsters' to shoot in metro Detroit

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Monsters is an indie film, a fantasy-thriller, in which the crew is scouting metro Detroit locations.

"This is a passion project for everyone involved," said Josh R. Jones, a Pontiac resident and locations manager for Monsters. Filming is set to start May 16, 17 and 18 at a to-be-determined metro site.

"We're trying to keep this under wraps as much as possible," said Jones, 23, who earned a bachelor of science degree in mass communications from Rochester College, and has worked in the industry since 2011.

Monsters was penned by local musician and author Josh Malerman. Last January, Malerman met Luke Jaden at the Detroit premiere of Jaden's documentary film, Madman or Martyr?

Jaden is founder and

owner of the Detroit-based production company, SOS Productions. Malerman is frontman for Detroit band The High Strung and author of Bird Box. The High Strung's song, The Luck You Got, can be heard on the Showtime Channel's Shameless starring William H. Macy and Emmy Rossum.

Malerman's book, Bird Box, will be released through HarperCollins everywhere May 13 and was recently picked up by a major Hollywood studio to be made into a feature film.

"Josh (Malerman) actually wrote the film we're working on," Josh Jones said of Monsters. Malerman met Jaden and they hit it off. Jaden will direct and produce Monsters.

Jaden said, "Detroit is an interesting city. I truly believe it's going to be the start of something new." He calls it the "comeback city."

"I think Monsters is a story that needs something mysterious and unique," Jaden said. "Detroit is a city that's very surreal. It has a never-ending list of artistic possibilities. I chose Detroit for a reason," he added, noting Monsters could have been filmed in L.A. or New York City.

The crew is looking for the perfect house, which on the outside will have an appearance of normalcy. The "haunted house" will be central to Monsters.

DePaul-bound

Jaden, 18, of northern Oakland County is headed to DePaul University in Chicago. "I'll attend college and study film and television," Jaden said. After DePaul, he plans to head to L.A. to pursue a film career.

"Pretty much school's over for seniors," the director/producer said of his final year at Detroit Country Day wrapping up. He's eager to get working on Monsters.

"I'm very looking forward to it," Jaden said. "It's a fantasy that hasn't necessarily been told before. There are many elements dealing with fantasy and horror," as well as a thriller. "It should be pretty interesting how it turns out."

He compares it to work of David Lynch. "It's dark," Jaden said. "It's fantasy-like. It's quite out there."

Jones said some homeowners are happy to work with the film crew.

"As of right now, we do have some hot prospects we're working with," he said. That portion of filming will be three days, not too much of an inconvenience for the residents.

"We want the homeowners to be as much a part of this as possible," Jones said of the collaborative effort to "support local artists."

"We're a small operation. We're not going to have a large cast," Jones said. The Monsters story will be told through "sensory visuals" of sight and sound.

'Awesome script'

"It's an awesome script Josh (Malerman) wrote," Jones said.

There's no release date yet for Monsters, which will be introduced to national audiences through film festivals.

Jaden's documentary Madman or Martyr?, about abolitionist John Brown, attracted attention and critical praise, Jones said. "This is looking to take it a step farther. I was very impressed with his level of professionalism. He's definitely the youngest director I know."

Jaden has filmed his last two productions locally, including The Neverlands, which is in post-production and set to wrap up this summer.

"I definitely think I'll be back in Detroit doing some kind of film," Jaden said. "That's definitely on my radar."

Other producers on Monsters are Michael Zervos of Northville (director of the new feature film Papou) and Cort Johns of Ann Arbor (producer on The Neverlands and Anagram).

Hear Detroit success stories at Citizens for Peace meeting

Jon Barth, marketing and outreach director of Urban Neighborhood Initiatives, will talk about building a healthy and peaceful community in the Springwells Village area of southwest Detroit at the Citizens for Peace meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 13, at Unity of Livonia, 28660 Five Mile Road.

Urban Neighborhood Initiatives, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit with a 17-year history, works to build safe and thriving neighborhoods for a community of 5,000-plus Detroit households by investing in youth and families, engaging community, and inspiring hope.

Barth grew up in nearby Oak Park, and had a transformational experience while in his early 20s that led him to live and work in Detroit and dedicate his career to the city's revitalization.

How to invest money for income in today's world

Q: I am 62 years old and retired. I'm collecting Social Security and I have about $20,000 to invest for income. I am considering CDs or U.S. treasuries. I consider myself moderate from a risk standpoint. I was hoping you could give me some ideas as to how to invest this money.

A: Generating income is one of the more difficult dilemmas that investors face. Unfortunately, with U.S. treasuries and CDs paying such low rates of return, they generally are not viable alternatives when it comes to investing for current income. After all, CDs aren't even paying 1 percent and, unfortunately, it doesn't appear that rates will increase anytime soon.

Rick Bloom

In today's world, the only time I recommend CDs is for emergency funds or to hold money for the short run.

In reviewing your situation, the investments I recommend are commission-free, which means that 100 percent of your money goes to work for you at all times. The first suggestion is T. Rowe Price Spectrum Income Fund (www.troweprice.com). This is a fund that invests in a variety of income-type funds managed by T. Rowe Price. The fund provides you with a diversified income portfolio — domestic bonds, international bonds, as well as some preferred stocks and income-producing stocks. This is a very good fund with a good long-term track record that would fit your needs for producing income.

Another alternative to consider is Vanguard, a great company that offers the best customer service and low investment costs. I would consider taking the $20,000 and dividing it equally into Vanguard Wellesley Income and Vanguard Total Bond Market index. This will give you diversification within the income areas.

Generating income from investments has become more difficult over the last few years. With the Federal Reserve artificially keeping interest rates low, it has adversely affected income investors. That is why in today's low interest rate environment, investors who need to produce income need to think out of the box and not automatically invest in the traditional income-producing investments such as CDs and U.S. treasuries.

I recognize the risk level is different when you invest in mutual funds; however, it's not like things such as CDs and U.S. treasuries are risk-free. Yes, if you purchase a CD or U.S. treasury, your principal is guaranteed and you will get your money. However, that doesn't mean it is risk-free.

I wish I could recommend an income investment that is totally risk-free, but there are none. Every investment has risk and the key is to manage that risk. Good luck.

ORDINANCE NO. 31-A-1

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND CHAPTER 90, ARTICLE VIII, SECTION 90-263 OF THE WESTLAND CODE CONCERNING THE LANDOWNER'S DUTY TO REPAIR AND REPLACE SIDEWALKS, AND THE CITY'S RIGHT TO DO THE WORK.

THE CITY OF WESTLAND ORDAINS:

Section 1. That Chapter 90, Article VIII, Section 90-263, of the Westland City Code is hereby amended to provide as follows:

Sec. 90-263. -Landowner duty to build, maintain, repair and replace; right of city to do work; procedures.

(a) All sidewalks and aprons for side drives in the city shall be built, maintained and repaired by the owner of the adjacent land improved thereby. In the event that any landowner shall fail to comply with this requirement, the landowner shall be liable to the city for any damages recovered against the city sustained by any person by reason of such sidewalk being unsafe or out of repair.

(b) In the event that any such landowner shall fail to comply with the provisions of subsection (a), the city may rebuild, replace, maintain, repair or cause to be built, replaced or repaired, such sidewalks or aprons for side drives, and assess the entire cost thereof against such landowner and the land improved thereby, in accordance with the procedures set forth herein.

(c) If the director of public services or his designee determines that a sidewalk or apron for a side drive is in need of repair or replacement in accordance with the criteria contained in subsection (d), the city or its designee may send the land owner a notice that the applicable portion of the sidewalk or apron for a side drive must be replaced within 30 days. The notice shall provide the landowner with four options:

- (1) the landowner may perform the work and acquire the necessary permit from the city within ten days of receiving the notice;
- (2) the landowner may have the work performed by a contractor and acquire the necessary permit from the city within ten days of receiving the notice;
- (3) the landowner may, within ten days of receiving the notice, file a written appeal with the director of public service or his designee stating clearly why the work does not need to be performed. The decision of the director or his designee shall be made within five days of receipt, and shall be final; or
- (4) if the landowner fails to comply with subparagraphs (1) through (3), the City or its contractor may perform the work at the expense of the landowner and the land, as provided below.

(d) Interpretations of this article and the conditions which require the replacement of sidewalk or apron sections shall be made by the director of public services or his designee. Such conditions shall include, without limitation, the following:

- (1) There is a vertical separation of one inch or more at a sidewalk crack or joint.
- (2) The surface has deteriorated to a depth of one inch or more below the original sidewalk surface elevation.
- (3) There are holes in the sidewalk surface which exceed 2 inches in diameter and one inch in depth.
- (4) There are signs of advanced deterioration at the sidewalk joints resulting in crumbling (loose stones, etc.).
- (5) There are abrupt changes in the longitudinal or transverse grade of the sidewalk which will cause water to collect.
- (6) There is a condition which, in the discretion of the inspector, may be considered as being unsafe to the walking public.

(e) In the event that the repair or replacement is performed by the city or the city's contractor, the city shall invoice and assess the entire cost thereof against the landowner and the land improved thereby. Such cost shall be calculated on a square foot basis, and shall include the cost of all labor, materials and administrative expense as determined by the finance director. If the invoice from the city is not paid within 30 days, the costs shall be a charge and lien against the land improved thereby until payment has been made, and an additional late charge shall be included in the costs charged against the landowner and the property in the amount of thirty percent of the amount of such costs.

Section 2. That all other provisions of Chapter 90 of the Westland City Code shall remain in full force and effect.

Section 3. Severability. The various parts, sections and clauses of this Ordinance are hereby declared to be severable. If any part, sentence, paragraph, section or clause is adjudged unconstitutional or invalid by a court of competent jurisdiction, the remainder of the Ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

Section 4. Repeal. All other Ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of this Ordinance are, to the extent of such inconsistencies, hereby repealed.

Section 5. Publication. The City Clerk shall cause this Ordinance to be published in the manner required by law.

Section 6. Effective Date. This Ordinance shall become effective upon publication.

Guinness recognizes Tribute Rosies' world record

It's official. The Yankee Air Museum has announced that the publishers of Guinness World Records have officially recognized the 778 "Rosies" who gathered at Willow Run Airport on March 29 as establishing a new world record.

The communication received from the publishers of the Guinness book said that, "We are delighted to confirm that you have successfully achieved a new Guinness World Records title for 'Largest gathering of people dressed as Rosie the Riveter.' We would like to congratulate you on your record-breaking achievement. You are officially amazing."

The event was staged by Tribute Rosies who have part of the museum's Save the Bomber Plant Campaign aimed at the purchase of a portion of the original Willow Run Bomber Plant as the new home of the Yankee Air Museum. Officials announced May 1 that they are entering into a purchase agreement with RACER Trust after raising close to $8 million to buy the building a part of the former GM Willow Run Powertrain Plant.

Museum officials are "delighted" that the record was achieved but even more so that so many women, many with family members in tow, took time out of their busy lives on a cold March Saturday to help set the record. Campaign leaders were especially moved by the participation of 18 original Rosies, actual WWII female war workers.

Among the tribute Rosies, younger women dressed as Rosie in honor of the originals, was Vickie Croston who came from Texas to participate in honor of her mother, Rose Will Monroe. Monroe was the very first Rosie, the Willow Run riveter featured in the War Department film in which the phrase "Rosie the Riveter" was first applied to female war workers.

"All of us are incredibly grateful to every one of the Rosies, all 778 of them," said Dennis Norton, founder of the Yankee Air Museum and President of the Michigan Aerospace Foundation, which has been conducting the Save the Bomber Plant Campaign.

"Ranging in age from three months up well into their 90s, these women came out on a cold Saturday in March to set this record and help Save the Bomber Plant."

"We were especially honored that so many of the original Rosies came out to set this record and help mobilize support around our effort to save a piece of the Bomber Plant for future generations," added Ray Hunter, Chair of the Yankee Air Museum Board.

"Watching these amazing women march out to take their places at the front of the group was incredibly moving."

"The enormous turnout for this event is an unmistakable expression of the passion of this community to never forget the important role of Willow Run and the women who played a crucial part in World War II to help preserve our freedom," said Airport Authority Public Affairs Director Michael Conway.

The Yankee Air Museum was founded in 1981 to preserve and honor southeastern Michigan's aviation history. Since then, it has acquired and returned to flying status four World War II aircraft, including the Yankee Lady, a B-17G that was used in the movie Tora! Tora! Tora! and is the museum's flagship.

The aircraft are flown and displayed at numerous air shows from May through September, including the Thunder Over Michigan air show at Willow Run, which will be Aug. 9-10.

Yankee Air Museum is located at Willow Run Airport and is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.

House bill sparks concerns about toll roads in Michigan

By Kathleen Gray and Paul Egan
Gannett Michigan

A spokesman for a highway-user group has accused lawmakers of trying to sneak toll roads into Michigan through a package of bipartisan bills intended to raise an extra $500 million a year to repair the state's crumbling infrastructure.

House Bill 4925, one of a package of bills now before the Legislature as part of the road-funding plan announced in April by House Speaker Jase Bolger, R-Marshall, has the primary purpose of allowing the Michigan Department of Transportation to enter into "public-private partnerships" on road projects.

Michigan has never had toll roads, which are found in Ohio, Illinois and 27 other states. The federal government has put severe restrictions on states placing tolls on most interstate highways built with federal funds, but the Obama administration's latest transportation bill, released this week, would remove those restrictions.

James Walker of the National Motorists Association, a group that lobbies on highway issues and opposes toll roads, told the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee on Thursday the user-fee provision in HB 4925 "opens up an entirely new area of taxation ... without legislative oversight."

He said the idea of toll roads, which was not highlighted in news releases about the road-funding package, should not be "quietly wrapped up" inside a package of bills without public comment. "Michigan does not need and should not have toll roads that the Legislature has not approved in advance on a case-by-case basis," Walker testified.

'At major crossings'
Rep. Marilyn Lane, D-Fraser, the lead sponsor, said toll roads "at major crossings," such as Michigan's borders with Ontario and neighboring states, should be part of the conversation. But she said she has no plan to push for toll roads, noting a federal waiver would be required before tolls could be put on any Michigan road.

Ari Adler, a spokesman for Bolger, said Lane's bill was an existing bill that is being moved as part of the Speaker's proposed road-funding package.

But Bolger does not favor toll roads as part of Michigan's road-funding plan. As federal law now stands, Michigan would have to repay federal money used to build its interstate highways if it wanted to place tolls on those roads, Adler said.

The bill does provide for toll roads in the context of new public-private partnerships, and if there are concerns about that, "the bill could be left behind and it wouldn't affect the transportation package at all," he said.

Central to Bolger's plan to raise an extra $450 million to $500 million a year to fix roads is removing the 19-cents-per-gallon tax on regular fuel and the 15-cents-per-gallon tax on diesel fuel and replacing them with a 6 percent tax on each, paid at the wholesale level.

He said the change would be revenue neutral for regular fuel at current prices, but unlike the present system would assure tax revenues increase with the price of fuel. It also would improve fairness by equalizing the tax rate on regular and diesel fuel, a change that will generate $47 million more a year at current prices.

Bolger also wants to make sure the sales tax collected from fuel sales — other than the amounts dedicated by law to schools and local governments — all goes to roads, while also dedicating 1 percentage point of the state's 6 percent use tax to roads. Together, those measures would raise $269 million, he said.

More funds
The Senate also is looking at the possibility of coming up with more money for roads than what Bolger's plan would produce.

"We've been looking at it," said Senate Majority Leader Randy Richardville, R-Monroe. "The brutal winter made people change the way they're looking at the issue."

He suggested that generating new revenues through increased taxes are a possibility to reach the estimated $1.2 billion a year Gov. Rick Snyder has identified as needed to repair the roads.

But whether that gets done before November's election is questionable, he added.

"That's going to be tough," said Richardville, who, like Bolger, is not discussing toll roads. "I'll have to see what's the most palatable because I'd like this to be bipartisan vote."

Madonna University graduates 1,300, including seven from Haiti

Before Madonna University's commencement ceremonies Sunday, Cheryl Nawrocki of Northville, a social work student, adjusted her graduation cap to make sure it was on correctly. On the top of her mortarboard, Nawrocki had spelled out "for U dad" in big purple letters.

It was his desire that she complete college. "He was a firm believer in education," she said. Although her dad died seven years ago from skin cancer, "he has been my driving force," Nawrocki said.

Nawrocki, along with 1,300 fellow graduates, celebrated Madonna University's 67th commencement at Compuware Arena in Plymouth. Among this group were seven students from Haiti, who received a bachelor of science degree with a major in business administration and an embedded certificate in community development.

Launched in 2011, Madonna's Haiti Educational Leadership Program is a degree completion program that is delivered via distance learning technology and designed to prepare business leaders to help rebuild Haiti.

Graduates are encouraged to use their leadership and entrepreneurial skills to create jobs and promote volunteerism that will improve families and neighborhoods in Haiti.

Westland library seeks youth volunteers

The William P. Faust Public Library is looking for teen volunteers to help with the 2014 Summer Reading Program, "FIZZ, BOOM, READ!" Volunteers will help in the Youth Services Department and assist at many summer events. It offers an opportunity for teens to earn experience and service hours for their school or community organization. Volunteers should be entering ninth-grade or above in the fall of 2014. Applications are available at the library or can be downloaded from the library's website, www.westlandlibrary.org. Applications should be submitted to the Youth Services Desk before attending one of three "walk-in" training sessions on Thursday, May 22, Wednesday, May 26, or Monday, June 2, in the Youth Activity Room of the library. Most applications are accepted as long as space allows, but earlier applicants have priority in scheduling. For more information, contact Claire.mueller@westlandlibrary.org or call 734-326-6123.

Rain doesn't dampen farmers market opening

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

A late afternoon shower didn't put a damper on the opening of the 2014 Farmers Market in Wayne on Wednesday.

Shoppers who stopped by Goudy Park behind Wayne City Hall found a variety of fresh baked breads, cookies and muffins, garden plants, fresh vegetables, homemade soap, candles, garden art, cake pops and even an opportunity to plant seeds in repurposed empty toilet paper tubes.

"We're a non-profit that goes to elementary schools to talk to students about eating more fresh vegetables," said Javon Gatewood of Eating Gardens, a component of the North Woodward Community Foundation. "We teach them that food doesn't just come from the supermarket, it comes from farms."

With the help of UAW Local 900 and employees at Ford's Michigan Assembly Plant, Eating Gardens has amassed cardboard toilet paper tubes that — with four scissor cuts and four folds — become planting pots. People who stopped by the EG booth could make one ready for planting by filling it with dirt, seeds and water.

"We're very excited about helping youth get back to the basics," said Vickie Miller, director of Eating Gardens. "I have a 20-acre farm in Belleville and have 1 1/2 acres that is a garden. I've had it in my heart to do something with the land."

Local support

Miller works at Michigan Assembly and is grateful for the employees support.

"They have a huge box they've collected for us," she said. "We've also had volunteers from the University of Michigan come out and help prepare the garden. We've even gotten a Wayne County Food Unit grant to put up a hoop house. We have $7,100 to spend on it, but need another $3,000 to get it up."

Food grown in the garden will be donated to food banks and the local Veteran's Haven.

"It's great to come together and share ideas," Miller said. "We'll be here every week throughout the season."

Next to Eating Gardens was Beth Celeste of Walking Owls Gardens, also in Belleville. Her table was filled with fresh greens, herbs and radishes grown in a hoop house.

The farm is a CSA, Community Support Agriculture — the community helps with everything and in exchange shares in the produce.

"It's nice to have the help in exchange for food," Celeste said. "This is our first time at the market. We just moved to the farm last fall, although we've been in farming for 10 years. We use very organic methods but not certified."

The community has helped plant radishes, peas, carrots, fava beans and herbs. The farm also has raspberries in season and apples.

"People can find out what we're growing at localharvest.com," she said.

Garden plants

While Eating Gardens was showing shoppers how to plant seeds for their garden, Darla Bruck of Stotz Farm in Ada was selling garden-ready vegetable and herb plants, fresh asparagus and range-free eggs, including duck eggs.

"There's a demand out there for them," she said of the very large eggs. "They're very good."

The farm has been part of the Wayne market for five years.

"I'm glad to see the market open, although we could have done without the shower at 3 p.m.," she said. "I'm seeing a lot of familiar faces."

Beverly Martin was at the market to specifically make a purchase at the Jar Head Salsa and Tortilla Company booth.

"I was going to buy some last fall at the Westland Farmers Market but my daughter told me to wait, we'd get it here," she said. "For some reason we never made it. I like it. I wished I'd gotten it last year for my camping."

The salsas are the creation of retired Marine Gunner Sgt. David Smith. While in the service, Smith would make salsas when he got fresh ingredients. When he got out, he continued to make them as a benefit for VFW Post 882 in Flint.

"When he got, he started making it as a fundraiser for veterans," Glen Brittingham of Grand Blanc said. "We've been around for five years. It took two years to sell our first 10,000 pints. We hit 50,000 pints last November and will hit 60,000 pints by the end of this year."

Fresh baked goods

Across the way, the Traffic Jam Restaurant, Dairy and Brewery of Detroit was back for a new season with its popular breads, gigantic cookies and muffins.

"This is a great market," said Greg Reichelt of Hamtramck. "We do well here. People wait for us. They're glad to see us."

Reichelt had the Traffic Jam's regular whole grain bread as well as flavored selections like white cheddar cheese and potato dill.

"Traffic Jam is a great name, it has a good reputation and good baked goods," Reichelt said. "We feel fortunate they let us come back again."

The Wayne Farmers Market is open from 3-7 p.m. Wednesdays now through Oct. 29 in Goudy Park behind Wayne City Hall.

The market also is looking for family-friendly musicians to perform each Wednesday during the season. The market pays each week's performer a $25 courtesy to help cover gas/travel expenses. For more information, email christine@growing-hope.com.

Are You Fatigued?

“All The Time!”

Do you feel worn out?
Do you wake up tired?
Do you need caffeine just to make it through the day?

Because of fatigue, you may not enjoy important things like helping your kids, making dinner, or even taking a walk. No one really understands how you feel because outwardly, you look "fine." Your problem is — you feel anything BUT "fine!"

Do You Have Any of the Following?

- Lack of Energy
- Insomnia
- Chronic Fatigue
- Difficulty getting to sleep
- Waking up many times at night
- Narcolepsy
- Afternoon low energy
- Loss of memory or concentration
- Pain

Nothing is worse than feeling so wiped out that you are unable to take part in your daily activities.

“Your Symptoms Mean Something Is Wrong!!!”

Fatigue may be caused by many systems gone bad... anemia, hypoglycemia, thyroid, adrenals, parasympathetic nerve stress, insulin resistance, electrolyte imbalance... the list goes on.

Do you see in the simple diagram I drew how every system is connected? You may have one or two physiological systems dragging down your entire body. Your fatigue could be caused by a number of systems winding down.

The Map of Fatigue

There must be a reason you are tired all the time. You cannot keep up the demands of your body. What will happen if you continue this way?

You cannot drug yourself back into more energy. You cannot sleep yourself into more energy by napping all day. You cannot think yourself into more energy.

“Isn't it time to find out what is REALLY going on?”

Fatigue is not a one-pill problem. If you use coffee or sweets or energy drinks to get through the day, you know you are prolonging the problem and may be making it worse. Fatigue is a series of systems gone bad for a long time.

Are you frustrated with your attempts to resolve fatigue? You have probably tried all you know to get to the bottom of your fatigue problem... except get...

“A COMPLETE METABOLIC AND NEUROLOGIC EVALUATION! ...FOR YOU!”

For the first 25 people who call only, I'm running a special offer; this is how you can find out if you are a candidate for our Fatigue Recovery Program.

At your appointment we will read and interpret your latest laboratory blood chemistry in functional ranges to find what pathologies you already have. We will perform a neurological evaluation to determine what sensory and motor functions need repair. We will do a metabolic examination to determine which major metabolic engines are not functioning properly.

In all, this is one of the most thorough evaluations, interpretations, and reports you will ever receive. Then we will interpret all of your information and design a program of care that, if you qualify, will put you on the road to healing your health imbalances, improving your energy, and getting your life back again. What would that be like?

The first 25 callers only! You can get everything that I've listed here for only $65! Our normal fee for this is $140... I hope you are one of the 25 callers.

Do you wish your fatigue will slowly go away like it came on? Not very likely. If you have fatigue all the time you have a dysfunction somewhere with your metabolism or in your nervous system causing your body to wind-down. The symptoms you have may reveal where the dysfunctions are coming from.

Here is what to do now:

Every time we tell people about our fatigue program, they fill up our workshop, 2 or 3 times over. Now instead, you will call and schedule an appointment right on the spot (instead of the workshop you will watch it on video). You will schedule an appointment with me for your consultation and examinations. I will go over everything and report back to you at another visit, all included in the $65. I will give you my best recommendations at this second visit.

Call 248-615-1533 to schedule your Fatigue Evaluation

I look forward to meeting with you and if you qualify, helping you reduce and eliminate your fatigue.

Imagine how GREAT you will feel without your constant exhaustion!

Imagine waking up each morning, jumping out of bed and enjoying each day FILLED WITH ENERGY!

We can get started with your consultation and exams as soon as there is an opening in the schedule.

Sincerely,

Greg Kramer, D.C., DAAMLCP

Mackinac Island: National Historic Landmark

Mackinac Island is an island, National Historic Landmark and tourist destination located in Lake Huron between the Upper and Lower peninsulas of Michigan. The island can be reached by plane or by ferry from either Mackinaw City in the Lower Peninsula or St. Ignace in the Upper Peninsula. Around 80 percent of the island is preserved as Mackinac Island State Park.

As of the 2010 census, the island has a year-round population of 492. The summer season hosts a population boom on the island, as hotels, restaurants, bars and retail shops hire short-term employees to accommodate as many as 15,000 visitors per day.

Today, Mackinac Island is known for its historic downtown and harbor, beautiful views, and the confectionaries that make Mackinac Island fudge.

Mackinac Island was settled by Native Americans around the year 900 and called Michilimackinac. The island was first explored by Europeans in the late 1600s and was an important French fur trading post. The British took control of the island during the French and Indian War and built Fort Mackinac there in 1780 to protect their settlements in the upper Great Lakes region.

The Mackinac straits were first acquired by the United States in 1793, but the island was briefly recaptured by the British during the War of 1812.

After the Civil War, Mackinac Island became a popular tourist destination. In 1875, most of the federal land on the island was dedicated as the nation's second national park. Motorized vehicles have been prohibited on the island since 1898, with the exception of snow-mobiles, emergency vehicles and construction equipment. Travel on the island is accomplished either by foot, bicycle or horse-drawn carriage.

The library carries a variety of materials related to Mackinac Island. For adults, check out Mackinac Island: Its History in Pictures by Eugene Petersen, Seasons of Mackinac by Terry Phipps, or the DVD movie, Some-where in Time, which was filmed on Mackinac Island. For kids, check out Legend of Mackinac Island by Kathy-Jo Wargin, Let's Go to Mackinac Island by Karen Dean or the DVD U.S. Geography for Children: Michigan.

If you'd like to learn more about Mackinac Island or other Michigan historic places, visit the library website at www.westlandlibrary.org, give us a call at 734-326-6123 or stop by the Reference Desk.

The William P. Faust Public Library of Westland is open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays before Memorial Day. The library will be closed on Sundays over the summer.

Driver ordered to stand trial in fatal car crash

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

A 27-year-old woman has been ordered to stand trial on charges that she drove her ex-girlfriend's car into the intersection of Warren and Wayne roads Feb. 17, causing an accident that resulted in the death of a Ypsilanti woman.

Lee

Judge Sandra Ference Cicirelli bound Lee over for trial in Wayne County Circuit Court, following a preliminary hearing Thursday in Westland's 18th District Court.

In custody since Feb. 17, Lee is charged with second-degree murder in the collision that killed Patricia Nwaneri, 55. Lee is also charged reckless driving and malicious destruction of property over $20,000 related to the fatal accident, as well as felonious assault and vandalism related to a domestic violence incident at a Westland apartment later on Feb. 17.

Nwaneri survived the accident but died a few days later at the hospital. The Wayne County Medical Examiner determined that she died of blunt trauma injuries caused by the accident.

On Thursday, Cynthia Dozier testified that she and Lee had recently ended an almost two-year relationship and that she planned to take Lee to her mother's home in Indiana on Feb. 18. She believed the breakup had been amicable until she received a call on Feb. 16 from Westland police that her Hunter West apartment had been vandalized.

Vandalized apartment

Dozier testified that there were holes punched in the walls, a window was broken, the door was kicked off its hinges and tables and her TV were broken. Because she couldn't secure the apartment, she spent 12 hours in her car, a 2014 Chevy Impala, with Tracie Hale, who also lives in the apartment complex.

"I couldn't lock the door because the handle was broken," said Dozier, who told the court that she had parked her car on the other side of the complex so that Lee wouldn't see her. "I'm afraid of Ponya. I don't feel comfortable with her."

Both Dozier and Hale testified that Dozier began receiving text messages from Lee after they had been in the car for about six hours. Dozier said Lee asked if she could stay at the apartment "because it was cold outside and she had no place to go."

Dozier returned to the apartment by herself to freshen up and found Lee asleep on a futon. She cleaned up and went to Hale's apartment. That's where she received another call from Lee.

"She told me to come and get my car. She told me it was at Target," Dozier said. "When she heard Tracie in the background, she flipped out. She said, 'Oh, OK, so this is how it is. I'm about to crash your car.'"

Dozier added that Lee said she could not return her car because her wrists hurt her. She said she attempted to cut her wrists.

"She wanted me to find her dead in my apartment," she said.

Within seconds of saying she would crash her car, Dozier said she heard the sounds of a crash and her car's On-Star system saying her name. She ran from the apartment down Yale to Target and saw the crash at Warren and Wayne roads.

Dozier added that she had left her keys at her apartment.

'Not comfortable'

Hale, who had seen the apartment, said Dozier didn't feel comfortable returning to it, so she stayed with her in her car. She also said she was sitting close enough to Dozier that she heard what Ponya said on the phone before the crash.

"We were just sitting there, chilling; Ponya had been calling on the phone," Hale said. "I turned to Cynthia and asked why it was a Target. I heard her say 'I see how it is going to be and I'm going to crash it.'"

Also called to testify were Westland Police Officers Kevin Cullum and Stephanie Pelow, who happened to be at the intersection when the accident occurred. Both were en route to help the fire department at another incident. Pelow was on Wayne Road and Cullum was on Warren Road.

Cullum noticed the Impala because it had its headlights on. He testified that it appeared to be going the speed limit of 40 mph or better when it switched lanes and struck Nwaneri's vehicle. The vehicle "gave no appearance of stopping," he said.

"I thought I was going to be a part of the accident," he said. "Literally pieces from both cars ... the debris was coming at me. The Camry (Nwaneri's vehicle) was coming right at me. It ended up on the south lawn of McDonald's."

Pelow was on Wayne Road behind Nwaneri's vehicle and testified that when the cars hit, they spun around and into Warren Road. After the crash, Cullum had gone to see about Nwaneri while she went to the car driven by Lee.

"I asked her why she didn't stop at the light and she said she was on her phone," Pelow said.

While Lee's attorney argued that the two women's testimony wasn't "quite credible."

"She received countless calls from her and never picked them up, but miraculously she picked up this call," he said. "Sometimes it's too incredible not to deserve consideration."

"I find that certainly at a minimum there was a wanton and great disregard that caused death, and there's probably cause to second-degree murder," Cicirelli said.

Lee will be arraigned on the charges in circuit court May 15. She remains in the Wayne County Jail where she is being held without bond.

WESTLAND COP CALLS

Larceny from a vehicle

Two cars were broken into during the night of May 3 in the Westland Meadows complex.

One woman told police she was awakened by her neighbor May 4 and told that the passenger window had been broken out and that the door was open.

The woman checked her car and found $8 missing from the console. She told police the money had been left in plain view. She said the vehicle had been locked and she didn't hear the car alarm go off. A brick was found by the car, and the passenger door had several dents in the molding.

The other woman checked her car and found it also had been broken into. She discovered the center console was broken off its hinges and papers were missing. She told police she had left the car unlocked.

Huron Valley routs Liggett in MIAC Blue 1st-place test

Hawks club three HRs to take divisional lead in D4 regional rematch

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Call it a signature win Thursday for the Westland Huron Valley Lutheran softball team.

The Hawks were clicking on all cylinders, scoring a convincing 11-2 Michigan Independent Athletic Conference Blue Division triumph over visiting Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett, the same team which knocked HVL out in the Division 4 regional final last year.

The Hawks, who improved to 11-0 overall and 7-0 in the MIAC Blue, were led offensively by senior Ashley Hewer, who went 4-for-4, including a homer, three RBIs and three runs scored.

Sarah Setian's two-run homer in the second inning got the Hawks going.

HVL's big inning came in the fifth, when they scored five times on six hits thanks to junior Anne St. John's homer, along with doubles from Nikki Alcini and Julie St. John.

Anne St. John wound up going 3-for-3 with a double, homer and three RBIs. Junior Jessie Strauch also contributed three hits, including a triple, to go along with three runs.

Hewer's two-run homer in the sixth put the game completely out of reach.

Losing pitcher Zarine Minwalla gave up a total of 14 hits.

"We hit the ball really well today, everyone had quality at-bats and it showed with only one strikeout," HVL coach Eric Ruth said. "We had to play defense today, too, and the girls played well in the field. I'm

Errors haunt Chargers in DH against Chiefs

Ace hurler's return bolsters Canton in KLAA South sweep

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Livonia Churchill learned quickly Wednesday there's little margin for error when you play a perennial area softball power like Canton.

The host Chargers missed a golden opportunity to put themselves in the thick of the KLAA South Division race, but came up short in a double-header, falling to the Chiefs, 4-1, in the opener, followed by an 8-3 setback in the nightcap.

With the two victories, Canton improved to 13-1 overall and 10-1 in the division (a half-game behind first-place Plymouth in the South standings).

The Chargers, who committed seven errors in the first game, followed by five more in the second, fall to 13-9 overall and 7-4 in the KLAA South.

"I told my girls and my assistant coaches before the game that we've got to play error-free," Churchill coach Steve Gentilia said. "And we did, for the most part. But when you get a little pressure on us, we tend to not make the sure play and try to make the perfect play instead of just making the play."

Canton ace Hanna Warren was back on the mound for the first time in three weeks.

And despite nursing what is still a noticeable gimpy ankle, the Central Michigan University recruit proved effective as she handcuffed Churchill on three hits while striking out 11 and walking only two.

Gentilia thought about playing some small ball to test Warren's mobility around the mound, but decided to play it straight up.

"I didn't want to take the bats out of our girls' hands because we've really been hitting the ball lately," the Churchill coach said. "But when it came down to it and the first time through the order, we tried to make something happen a little bit. But she (Warren) is a good pitcher. And even with her being a little sore on her leg, she's still has good movement on her pitches.

"Her being sore didn't change how we approach the game. I told the girls not to worry about her, just use the mental approach and be in there and hit it when she gets it to you."

Churchill's lone run came in the fourth inning, when Julia Cavagnini walked and scored on Mellanie Richardson's double.

Meanwhile, senior shortstop Paige Aresco drove in three of Canton's four runs, including a two-run single in the seventh to put the game out of reach.

Elizabeth Yager also went 3-for-4 and Bryn Birchler went 2-for-3 to spearhead Canton's 11-hit attack.

The Chiefs' other run came in the fifth on a Churchill error.

"We had that one in the first game, where our shortstop made a great play up middle," Gentilia said. "She fielded the ball, but tried to turn around and throw it to third. There was no need. The girl was safe ... you try to do too much sometimes. Instead of making the simple play we turn the simple plays into mistakes."

Richardson, who threw all seven innings, took the loss for the Chargers.

In Game 2, Hannah Shuler started for the Chiefs, but reliever MacKenna Payne came on to notch the victory.

Goodfellow's shutout carries Lutheran Westland to 3-0 win

Goalkeeper stops PK in non-conference victory vs. Livonia Clarenceville

Goalkeeper Kylie Goodfellow made six saves, including a penalty kick in the final minute, to preserve the shutout Thursday as Lutheran High Westland blanked host Livonia Clarenceville, 3-0, in a non-conference girls soccer encounter.

The Warriors, who improved to 7-2, led 1-0 at half-time on Bethany Hoehne's goal off a corner kick from Sadie Schultz.

In the second half, Julia Yancy made it 2-0 off an assist from Mara McMahon. Samantha Benner converted Schultz's corner kick to complete the scoring.

"We lost the intensity and fight where it led to scoring opportunities for Lutheran Westland," said Clarenceville coach Amanda Moody, whose team slipped to 4-7 overall.

"We had a few scoring opportunities, a couple just nicking the inside post, but couldn't finish tonight. We had solid control in the middle tonight from Brianna Tuuri-Cesarz and Samantha Franco."

Clarenceville goalkeeper Jillian Bunker made nine saves.

CHURCHILL 2, W.L. CENTRAL 1: Goals by Lauren Wynns and Sara Taylor enabled Livonia Churchill (8-2-1) to earn a KLAA crossover win Friday at Walled Lake Central (5-5-2).

Kacie Murray set up Wynns' first-half goal, while Alexis Lubonja's feed to Taylor on a header accounted for the game-winning goal with 15 minutes remaining in second half after the host Vikings had tied the match with 10 minutes to go in the first half on a free kick.

Churchill freshman Brittany Hayes was in goal as the Chargers were playing their third game in as many days.

"We played well defensively and we created and created chances until we were able to convert."

Churchill coach Reid Friedrichs said.

JOHN GLENN 1, HARRISON 0: It was a happy senior night Friday as host Westland John Glenn (5-5-1) edged Farmington Harrison thanks to Marissa Edwards' unassisted goal in the 49th minute.

Glenn goalkeeper Courtney Schaber made 13 saves with back line defensive help from Kendra Pennington, Susie Bryan, Kaitlyn Balko, Elyse Penhollow and Raven Buck.

"They played better than the score indicated," Glenn coach Ralph Cabildo said.

STEVENSON 2, SOUTH LYON 0: Alla Baserbie and Paige Ackman each tallied a second-half goal Thursday to propel host Livonia Stevenson (6-5-2, 2-5) to a KLAA Central Division win against the Lions (0-9-2, 0-7-1).

Baserbie's tap-in, coming in the 51 minute, was a result of a long throw-in by Maddy Caves, followed by a flick on a header from Katelyn Foster.

Ackman's goal, coming in the 74th minute, was roofed home from six yards out. It was set up by a Sari Rakowicz corner kick.

Goalkeeper Rylee Jayson made two saves for her seventh shutout of the year.

CANTON 2, FRANKLIN 0: On Thursday, the visiting Chiefs (6-4-1, 6-2) got a goal in each half to down stubborn Livonia Franklin (2-6-2, 1-5-1) in a KLAA South Division clash.

Canton Rachel Winters got what proved to be the game-winner on a free kick from 25 yards out at the 25-minute mark.

Hannah Lapko added a rebound goal in the second half to put it away.

Giving ways: Farmington Hills mom runs free supply closet for foster parents

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Michele Austin is making life a little easier for foster parents and their children by offering free clothing, toys, books, and other items through a local branch of Foster Closet of Michigan.

Austin is president of the nonprofit organization, which has eight locations statewide, including the Oakland County branch in her Farmington Hills home.

She and her domestic partner, Tammy Gabourie, are parents to three children, ages 11, 12 and 16, and currently care for three foster children, ages 20 months, 3 and 13.

"We originally started out wanting to adopt," said Austin, a stay-at-home mom. "There are 13,000 children in foster care and a tremendous need for foster families. It was a natural segue for us. We found we're helping a lot more children by fostering than we would by adoption."

The couple has fostered 15 youngsters. Gabourie works as a foster navigator at the Justin Center in Royal Oak, serving as a liaison between foster parents, the Michigan Department of Human Services and private agencies that have been contracted by the state to offer foster care.

because of abuse or neglect. The goal is to reunite children with their families and if that's not feasible, to find a permanent adoptive home. Children can stay with foster parents anywhere from a few days to a year or more.

"Our family motto is we love them as long as God needs us to," Austin said. "We try to make sure that while they are here they feel safe, loved and that the things they were doing before they are still doing."

"We have a child in our home now who is extremely athletic. We are getting him involved in athletics as much as we can. We live in Farmington Hills, but he's still in the Wayne-Westland school district. It can get challenging. We have five kids in five different schools in four districts. I've always been a very organized person. I love what I do and I couldn't see doing anything else.

"And I have a passion for Foster Closet. It benefits not only my kids but kids throughout Michigan," she said. "When we got our first few (foster) kids, they came with a garbage bag of their belongings. One came with a box. That was all of their belongings. The state does subsidize you, but when they come with a bag, a box or nothing ... we felt a need from the beginning. We're creating a network to fill that need."

Foster children are eligible for Medicaid, which pays for medical, dental and mental health care. Foster parents also receive a semiannual clothing allowance, as well as twice-monthly payments based on the age and needs of the foster child.

But that may not be enough to cover all clothing costs for fast-growing youngsters, sports equipment, car seats and cribs.

Getting involved

Austin began collecting gently-used clothing soon after she became a foster parent. She discovered Foster Closet of Michigan and decided to become a member, rather than create her Foster Closet offers clothing, books, toys and other items for free to foster parents.

Toys await youngsters at Foster Closet.

The Oakland County site is open to Wayne County residents.

Donations to Foster Closet consist mostly of clothing, but Austin has received everything from bedding to car seats, toys to books. She also obtains grants to pay for enrichment items, through One Simple Wish, a New Jersey nonprofit.

"We're getting things like Zoo memberships, lap tops, bikes, tablets. We had a kid that needed specialized medical equipment. It's 100 percent free to us and to foster families. We don't have the ability to buy bikes for kids, but we have this organization to go through. It's another way of networking."

Foster parents can make an appointment to visit the Oakland County site by calling 800-554-4966, Ext. 206. Or by emailing Oakland@fosterclosetofmichigan.org. Volunteers interested in helping out at the site, leading a fundraising drive or donating items may also call or email.

own group. She set up the Oakland County branch last September, filling her basement with clothing, toys, books, furniture and other items for children. A month later she became president of the statewide organization.

"We're looking to expand into any county and all they have to do is to contact me and we'll get the process rolling. We'd like to have a Closet in all of the counties. I'm desperately working on Wayne County," she said.

Kenya trip helps Canton church members serve God, others

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

Lisa DeGroot of Canton is Kenya-bound.

She's among six, including the pastor of Geneva Presbyterian Church of Canton, who will take a mission trip to Limuru in Kenya, about 40 miles north of Nairobi, in the mountains. Her husband, Art, can't get away from work for the trip.

"I think at this time in my life I needed to see what life is like in other countries," said Lisa DeGroot, who's visited such places as Mexico and the U.K. but never done a mission trip. "In other areas where there is such poverty."

DeGroot, who works in culinary arts at the Wayne-Westland school district's William D. Ford Career Technical Center, stood before the congregation Sunday, May 4 and asked, "When I say pilgrim what thoughts come to you?"

The Geneva pilgrims have studied author Trevor Hudson's A Mile in My Shoes: Cultivating Compassion to prepare for their June 21 through July 6 trip. They will leave behind toys and some supplies in Kenya.

Toys will include the new popular Rainbow Looms, invented by a man who calls metro Detroit home, as well as spinner toys, scissors and craft paper. Church members plan a special offering to help buy supplies, with leaders noting they're limited in what they can carry to Africa.

"I'm excited," said

Beth and Keith McBain of Canton are among the six members of Geneva Presbyterian Church who'll visit Kenya for mission work soon. PHOTOS BY JULIE BROWN

DeGroot. "I guess what the apprehension is is seeing life in such a different framework than what I'm used to. Will I serve in the way God wants? In serving God, it's serving the people that are there. How will I best help them?"

The missionaries don't have their specific assignments yet. Some will be at the Nazareth Hospital, and some at a K-3 school tutoring and possibly doing some science projects. There's a Joy Village orphanage.

"To love the kids," she said. "To hug them. It's that listener and learner component I spoke of" in church. The pilgrims will be conscious of how they spend their time and not too rigid on that, she explained.

First mission trip

Also among pilgrims are Beth and Keith McBain of Canton, he a Ford Motor Co. retiree and she a retiree of Tower Automotive.

"We both always wanted to do a mission trip," Beth McBain said. "Initially, I wanted to be a missionary."

Lisa DeGroot of Canton is looking forward to the mission trip to Kenya with the others from Geneva Presbyterian.

This is their first time overseas. "It's more of a pilgrimage," explained Keith McBain. "It's more about interpersonal, showing the kids we care."

Many children throughout Africa have been orphaned by AIDS. "The kids live in pods with eight kids in a pod," he said, adding each has an assigned "mother" for care.

They'll make home visits in the nearby countryside to pray for doctors and nurses there. "It's very sobering to see that type of poverty," he said. "We all expect to be changed. It's through that suffering that God will be working in our lives. Soften our hearts and make us more aware of suffering in the world."

Beth McBain noted the very low wages the Kenyan workers in tea fields receive for their long days. "We don't want to go in and be seen as a savior," she said. "Basically it is just to have a presence."

Online updates

When their pastor, the Rev. Bryan Smith of Canton, visited the Kenyan site last year, he was the first white man many there had seen. Beth McBain recalled how impressed locals were with the postage stamps he brought.

"It's a very different experience for us, just something new and exciting," she said.

Additional information is available, and online donations welcome, at www.treeoflives.org. There is also a Facebook page. If you like the Facebook page, you'll see updates posted during the Geneva trip.

When Smith visited Kenya in June-July 2013, he took school supplies and provided other help to orphans and victims of AIDS/HIV. Smith had met the Rev. Jim Wood of the First Presbyterian Church of Norfolk, Va. Wood's congregation visits Kenya for mission work regularly, and Smith went along last year.

Smith, who has been away on a backpacking trip, recently emailed his congregation: "I also ask that you keep the six of us in prayer as we draw closer to departing. Our team is deeply committed to being used by God, knowing that this trip will be a true pilgrimage for all of us. We go not only to share and bless, but to learn and to be changed by the experience. What a joy to share in the ministry of Christ with you all!"

At risk for diabetes? These classes aim to help boost health

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan and Priority Health will offer an informational session at 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 13, on the My Choice ... My Health program designed to help individuals at high risk for developing type 2 diabetes.

The informational session and the My Choice ... My Health classes will be held at St. Mary Mercy Hospital, at Five Mile and Levan in Livonia. The My Choice ... My Health classes begin Tuesday, May 20, and will be held at 7 p.m. weekly for 16 weeks. Meetings are one hour long and take place in a classroom setting where a trained lifestyle coach helps participants learn about behavior changes. After the 16 sessions, participants will meet monthly for one year for additional support.

To qualify, participants must be overweight and at a high risk for developing diabetes, or overweight and diagnosed with pre-diabetes. Potential participants have the option of attending the informational session to learn if they are at risk, or they can talk with Leigh Vogelsong at the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan to find out if they qualify.

The program is free to Priority Health members. A limited number of free spaces, funded by St. Mary Mercy Hospital, are available to nonmembers.

Register for the informational session or ask for a risk assessment by calling Vogelsong at 800-482-1455 or emailing preventdiabetes@nkfm.org.

Study links regular doctor visits with fewer skin cancer deaths

The risk of dying from the most dangerous type of skin cancer is significantly reduced with regular doctor visits, according to a Henry Ford Hospital study.

Researchers found that deaths from melanoma dropped 70 percent in patients who had at least one visit to their family doctor or to a specialist in the five years prior to their diagnosis. When factoring in age, gender, socioeconomic and comorbidities, mortality decreased by 90 percent in patients who visited a specialist.

Researchers also found substantial reductions in mortality in patients who underwent preventive screenings like a fasting blood test or colonoscopy.

The study was presented Friday, May 9, at the Society of Investigative Dermatology's annual meeting in New Mexico.

"This study is important because it's not about having health insurance or having access to care. It's about tapping into that care," said Melody Eide, M.D., MPH, a Henry Ford Hospital dermatologist and the study's lead author.

"We know that people are always going to have struggles in their lives. They're going to have unreliable transportation, children that they're caring for, co-pays that are too expensive to pay. What this study suggests is that these types of barriers may impact your prognosis for cancer if they impede your ability to make your medical care a priority."

While all cancer deaths declined 1.5 percent annually from 2002-11, the number of melanoma deaths increased 5 percent in the early to mid-1990s but have since leveled off, according to the National Institutes of Health.

However, disparities and poor outcomes exist in melanoma patients who are older, male and from ethnic and lower socioeconomic backgrounds. Researchers sought to examine whether these disparities, when coupled with patients who have insurance and access to care, could be predictors of melanoma mortality.

Seeking care

Researchers reviewed melanoma cases of 251 Caucasian patients from 2001-07, of which 158 were men. The patients all had health insurance and were eligible for care in a health maintenance organization during the study period. The patients' average age was 60, the age at which patients are typically diagnosed with melanoma.

Surprisingly, researchers found that visiting a specialist prior to melanoma diagnosis may reduce their risk of dying by 90 percent.

"This suggests that these patients who do better may be more engaged in their care or have less outside demands distracting from their care," Eide said. "It's not just about having insurance and having a doctor you see, it may be about being invested and an advocate for your own health. We found that regardless of their cancer stage at diagnosis, these patients who saw more specialists and had compliance with their fasting lipid panels and other screenings had a better prognosis. This may suggest a role for the patient in improving their health by being engaged and prioritizing their care."

With health care under transformation from the Affordable Care Act, more patients than ever before will have access to care covered by insurance including preventive services without copays. However, having access to care is not the same as using the care available in the community.

In 2012, the percentage of people who had a usual place to go for medical care was 85.8 percent compared to 86.8 percent in 2011, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's 2012 National Health Interview Survey. The survey also found that 6.2 percent of the population failed to obtain medical care because of cost.

"As we have more and more patients becoming insured through opportunities with the Affordable Care Act," Eide said, "we now have the burden going from not having insurance, to not using the insurance, to not seeking care. The patients in our study all had insurance and in theory all had the same equal opportunities for care. But they received different degrees of care. Some of that may have been at their direction. That is important, perhaps, with cancer prognosis."

The study was funded by Henry Ford Hospital, Henry Ford Medical Group and Dermatology Foundation.

Senior Helpers offers dementia seminar

Teepa Snow, a dementia care and education specialist with more than 30 years of experience in geriatrics, will speak at free seminars, Monday-Tuesday, May 12-13, in Southfield and West Bloomfield.

The sessions, sponsored by Senior Helpers of Southeast Michigan, will help families and health care professionals gain a better understanding of Alzheimer's disease and dementia. During the three-hour accredited presentations, Snow will talk about the links between brain activity and new behaviors, changes in reactions and responses, different language comprehension and speech patterns, and more.

The seminars will run 1-4 p.m. or 6-9 p.m. Monday, May 12 at Evergreen Health & Living Center, 19933 W. 13 Mile, Southfield; and 8-11 a.m. or 1-4 p.m. Tuesday, May 13, at West Bloomfield Nursing Center, 6445 W. Maple, West Bloomfield. Register at 248-865-1000.

Best nurses

The St. Mary Mercy Livonia Senior Emergency Department is among the national winners in the annual Best Nursing Team award and the award for best team in the Mid-Atlantic and Lower Great Lakes region from Advance for Nurses, a website and magazine. The award recognizes the team for improving the transition of care for older adults who live in care facilities. The team partners with nursing facilities, home health care professionals, hospice and emergency medical service to improve care quality.

Endocrinology? Oh, I know what that is ...I think.

Ask A Garden City Hospital Health Expert

Dr. Alzohaili
Endocrinology

While many of us have heard the term endocrinology, if you haven't dealt with an endocrine issue, you probably don't know much about this important area of our bodies or the physicians who specialize in it. Endocrinologist and GCH Health Expert, Dr. Opada Alzohaili, treats patients with issues from hormone imbalance to thyroid disease, and provides insight on several of the more common health conditions he sees everyday.

Q: What is the endocrine system?

A: It's a collection of glands, each of which secretes different hormones that regulate metabolism, growth and development, tissue function, sexual function, reproduction, sleep and mood, and more. The endocrine system gets some help from organs such as the kidney, liver, heart and gonads, which provide us with secondary endocrine functions.

Q: As an endocrinologist, what are some of the medical issues you deal with?

A: Because hormone and chemical balance is so important to proper metabolic function and good health, I see patients for a wide range of issues, including:

- Diabetes – a rapidly growing problem on both a national and local level, and the most common endocrine disease in this country. It's a condition that occurs when the body does not properly process glucose. This is due to the lack of insulin or, if the body is producing insulin, it is not working effectively.
- Hormone Imbalances – which can have a significant impact on the reproductive system, particularly in women. Endocrinologists treat patients with fertility issues and assess and treat patients with health concerns surrounding menstruation and menopause. Hormone imbalances can even impact our bones. Osteoporosis and osteomalacia (rickets), which causes bones to soften, come under the guise of endocrinologists.
- Hypothyroidism – occurs when the thyroid gland does not produce enough thyroid hormone to meet the body's needs. Insufficient thyroid hormone can cause many of the body's functions to slow or shut down completely.
- Metabolic Disorders – which occur when there is an imbalance of substances needed to keep the body functioning – hormone levels may be too high or low, or when some organs, such as your liver or pancreas, become diseased or do not function normally.

Q: When should I see an endocrinologist?

A: Like most specialists, your primary care physician will usually decide when to consult an endocrinologist. However, if you're dealing with any issues related to those we discuss in this article and wish to see an endocrinologist, talk to your doctor.

Read more about Thyroid Activity from Dr. Alzohaili in the Spring Issue of GCH's Healthy Generations Magazine, available online at GCH.org. Make an appointment with Dr. Alzohaili today by calling his office at 313.914.5591.

Nissan Altima Keeps Surprising Consumers, As 'Ride of Your Life' Campaign Illustrates

By Dale Buss

In its new "Ride of Your Life" campaign for Altima, Nissan is roaring an answer to questions such as: Do American consumers really care about "performance" anymore? In a market increasingly focused on fuel efficiency, "green" chops, digital connectivity and occasionally stylish design, do enough mainstream buyers still focus on "vroom" to make it an effective pitch?

Here's how the Nissan Altima looked to participants in the ad.

the campaign for its flagship four-door family sedan on Monday around a time-honored advertising device: fooling consumers into singing the brand's praises.

In this case, Nissan got a few dozen actual consumers to a race track, geeked them up about the brand's performance credentials and convinced them that they were getting a ride around the Horse Thief Mile at Willow Springs Raceway in a race-spec Altima. Only when their thrill ride in the Altima "racer" was over did Nissan strip away the decals and other track accessories -- and reveal to these people they actually had been passengers in a stock Altima that they could purchase not too far from the Rosamond, Calif., racetrack.

"I would never imagine a four-door car could do any of that," one white-knuckled "race-car" passenger said in the Nissan video after her thrill ride.

That's exactly the kind of response Nissan wanted. "Performance is still very relevant to the audience for Altima," Jon Brancheau, Nissan's U.S. CMO, told me. "In this case, we're trying to show that in an entertaining fashion with consumers who are genuinely surprised."

Altima was redesigned last year and remains what Edmunds.com called "one of the best choices available for a midsize sedan." The model always has looked sharp -- styling long has been a big advantage for Nissan -- and also presents a markedly upscale look and feel inside the car, with high-quality materials and above-segment workmanship.

When it comes to the experience of driving Altima, its advantages include well-tuned ride and handling that take maximum advantage of a standard 2.5-liter, four-cylinder engine that generates 182 horsepower and 180 pound-feet of torque, transmitted by a continuously variable transmission. The racier version of Altima features a 3.5-liter V6 engine good for 270 horsepower and 251 pound-feet of torque, accelerating from zero to 60 mph in just 6.2 seconds -- good enough, apparently, to impress at the Horse Thief Mile.

Meanwhile, Nissan is performing like a race car these days as it attempts to jockey seriously with Honda for the place as the No. 2 Japanese brand in the U.S. market, to Toyota.

The Nissan brand's April sales were up 19 percent over a year ago, and for the year to date, they rose more than 13 percent over 2013. Altima sales already were riding along at a 5-percent-better clip than the first four months of 2013.

"It's kind of a boring segment," Brancheau allowed. "It's big in rental cars. But some mid-size sedans are more expressive than others. So part of this campaign was trying to take a sleepy but large segment and shake it up a bit with the notion of performance, to differentiate" Altima.

Millennials' relative lack of enthusiasm about horsepower really isn't an issue here. Altima is squarely aimed at Gen X and older consumers, mostly with families. "When you create the kind of excitement the consumers in these ads are exhibiting, even boomers can appreciate it," Brancheau said. "And of course we tend to shoot younger in our communications brief than the people you're actually selling to."

Indeed, the average age of the U.S. Nissan buyer is 50.1 years old, according to new research by IHS. That placed Nissan No. 8 among non-luxury brands in the study, but it still ranked younger than main rivals Honda, Ford, Hyundai, Toyota and Chevrolet.

Another new aspect of the initiative is that it's solely focused on Altima, whereas Nissan -- and rivals -- typically use their late-spring marketing platforms to draw interest to the closeout-deal possibilities for a range of their models.

One more dimension of the new campaign: a heavy outreach to Hispanic consumers. There's a Spanish-language version of the TV ad that tells the story of how a cohort of Hispanic consumers enjoyed their race-track rides in Altima. Nissan, like other Japanese brands, over-indexes heavily with Hispanics compared with non-Hispanic U.S. consumers.

"We're the No. 1 brand in Mexico," Brancheau said, "with a 25-percent market share. They have a great image of the Nissan brand in Mexico. To some degree that also benefits us in the U.S."

2014 Academic ALL-STARS

PROGRAM HONORS TOP STUDENTS

The 2014 Academic All-Star Team represents the most accomplished students from public, private and parochial schools in Oakland and western Wayne counties.

This year's team is composed of 32 students, seven of whom posted perfect high school records and/or perfect test (SAT or ACT) scores.

Another 39 students are honorable mention and their scores are separated in most cases by a mere fraction of a point. All of the students profiled here are examples of academic excellence.

The 2014 team represents the 29th consecutive year that the Observer & Eccentric has honored and celebrated academic excellence in our readership area.

This year's section is made possible by O&E Media in cooperation with our major partner, Madonna University.

This year's all-star judges were Carolyn Witte, principal of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills, and Franklin High School Principal Dan Willenborg.

Both Witte and Willenborg have been part of the program for more than a decade. The principals met in March to review 71 applications. The All-Star Team is selected solely on academic achievement in academic subjects and ACT or SAT test scores.

"The Observer & Eccentric is pleased to have the cooperation of the education community," said Susan Rosiek, publisher. "We appreciate the time our judges take to review the applications and the time spent by other principals and counselors who nominate the students."

For the third consecutive year, one all-star will receive a $500 scholarship awarded by Parkside Credit Union of Livonia for an essay on financial responsibility.

The scholarship winner will be announced at the awards breakfast later this month.

The 2014 All-Star Team (in order of ranking):

Seven students tied for the No. 1 ranking. They are Anshu Chen of Bloomfield Hills High School, Collin Chow of North Farmington High School, Benjamin Drews of Harrison High School, Rashmika Goswami of Harrison High School, Elbert Han of Detroit Country Day, Rohan Sinha of Bloomfield Hills High School and Katherine Young of Detroit Country Day.

Next is Arkadiy Frasinich of the International Academy in Bloomfield Hills.

Ten students tied for No. 3: Riley Dankovich of Marian High School, Madhurima Das of Plymouth High School, Jonathan Greenberger of Seaholm High School, Neha Hafeez of Canton High School, Tapan Naik of Farmington High School, Kevin Ni of Plymouth High School, Ian O'Rourke of Seaholm High School, Nitin Ram of Salem High School, Savannah Sikorski of Stevenson High School and Alex Yue of Canton High School.

Next are Joo Yung Park of Cranbrook Kingswood (fourth), Vinayak Bhatia of Farmington School (fifth), Shannon Stork of Marian High School (sixth), Stephanie Liu of Cranbrook Kingswood (seventh) Barbara Scupholm of Stevenson High School (eighth), Hemant Chittela of Salem High School (ninth), Aditya Vemulapati of Churchill High School (10th) and Siba Alzohaili of the International Academy (11th).

Tied for 12th are Bradley Smith of Groves High School and Steven Spens of Clarenceville High School.

Next are William Markey III of Brother Rice High School, Hanna Pfershy of Groves High School and Sammy Stevens of Brother Rice High School.

Rounding out the outstanding team is Stephen Fedak of Churchill High School.

Read more about the students (all-stars and runners-up), their college choices and career dreams and the teachers who influenced them in today's special section.

ANSHU CHEN

Bloomfield Hills High School

Anshu Chen of Bloomfield Hills is considering the University of Michigan, the University of Rochester and the University of Pennsylvania. She plans to major in economics or finance and minor in French. As far as a career, Chen plans to pursue economics, law or academia.

Her academic honors include AP scholar with distinction, Presidential Scholars program candidate, National Merit Finalist, Ball State Best News Story Award, University of Rochester Rush Rhees Scholarship recipient and Michigan State University professorial assistant.

Chen is editor of the school newspaper, president of the History Club, a member of the National Honor Society, Science Olympiad, played J.V. golf, ACT teacher for 11th grade, after-school tutor, quiz bowl.

Chen said her most influential teacher was Susan Feigenson in British literature. "Ms. Feigenson taught me to question scholarly authority and trust my own analysis. She was always honest when my work was below par, pushing me to convey my ideas logically and concisely. She shared her wonder and passion for literature with me, for which I am extremely grateful."

Her father is Hongbing Chen and her mother is Xiaowen Jiang.

COLLIN CHOW

North Farmington High School

Collin Chow of Farmington Hills will attend Northwestern University this fall, with a goal of becoming either a medical researcher or physician. His major will likely be chemistry.

Chow is a member of the Chemistry Club, Health Occupational Students of America, North Farmington Brothers and Sisters in Christ and Chinese Bible Church, where he is in the Salt and Light Youth Group, on the Praise Night planning committee and is a music leader and guitar player.

Also, he plays trumpet with the North Farmington Symphony Band, North Farmington Jazz Band and Zenith Brass Ensemble. He holds a second-degree black belt in choi kwang do, is instructor and member of the Farmington Martial Arts Demonstration Team and trains in jiu-jitsu and bo-jitsu.

Chow's academic honors include National Merit finalist, Presidential Scholar Candidate, Bausch and Lomb Honorary Science Award and AP Scholar.

He credits Susan Szegedi as his most influential teacher. "She has been my teacher for both honors chemistry and advanced chemistry, as well as being the adviser for Chemistry Club. Mrs. Szegedi's teaching is able to make even the dullest topics fun and interesting to learn," Chow said.

"Mrs. Szegedi has encouraged my interest in chemistry and the sciences and that support has continued up until the present. After taking AP chemistry this year, I hope to take the knowledge she has given me and continue to pursue chemistry in college," he added.

Chow is the son of Christopher and Hannah Chow and the brother of Carolyn, 14.

BENJAMIN F. DREWS

Harrison High School

Benjamin F. Drews of Farmington Hills will attend Williams College, Swarthmore College or the University of Michigan. His areas of study will be computer engineering, mathematics and economics.

"It is my goal to major in computer science and engineering prior to working professionally in the field of game and virtual design," Drews said.

He is a member of RoboHawks (robotics) Science Olympiad and DECA and has served as a Hawk Help tutor and Civitan Literacy Program volunteer.

Drews' academic honors include AP Scholar with Distinction, Commended Student National Merit Scholarship, National Honor Society, Phi Beta Kappa and Harrison High School Academic Hall of Fame.

He considers Jeremy Robinson, AP world history teacher, his most influential instructor. "Mr. Robinson encouraged me to actively participate in class discussion and debate. He also directed me to interesting outside resources," Drews said.

Drews is the son of Martin and MiSuk Drews.

RASHMIKA GOSWAMI

Harrison High School

Rashmika Goswami of Farmington Hills is considering attending the University of Michigan, to major in engineering, computer science and/or applied math.

"I would like to pursue an engineering or math-related career," she said.

Goswami is a member of rhythmic gymnastics, National Honor Society, Robotics Club and plays viola in the Detroit Metropolitan Youth Symphony. She scored 24th position in the Michigan Math Prize 2013-14 competition and qualified for the American Invitational Math Exam for 2013 and 2014.

Her academic honors include National Merit finalist, Presidential Scholars Program candidate and AP Scholar with distinction. She credits math teacher Cheryl Lynn Golden, chemistry teacher Kevin Meisner, physics teacher Steve Dail and history teachers Jeremy Robinson and Dan Gardner for being the most influential, due to "enthusiasm and for encouraging questions."

Goswami is the daughter of Partha Goswami and Sreela Datta and the sister of Rahul Goswami, 14.

ELBERT HAN

Detroit Country Day

Elbert Han of Troy has been accepted to the University of Michigan School of Engineering. He intends to study engineering and business with the future goal of opening a jewelry and watch business using advanced additive manufacturing.

His academic honors include National Merit Scholar, Presidential Scholar Award candidate, four years summa cum laude, Cum Laude Society and top 200 in the Michigan Math Prize Competition. Han also won the national silver medal at the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards for his jewelry portfolio and the 3D Systems Future New award, one of three given in the nation.

Han is a member of the cross country team, FRC robotics team co-captain, a volunteer at the Troy Library, a Brooksie Way Half Marathon volunteer and a volunteer at the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards.

Han said his most influential teacher was Jiro Masuda, who teaches metals and AP art History. "Mr. Masuda had been instrumental in my development as an artist and critical thinker," Han said.

"He stood beside me as I began my journey into CAD and encouraged me to explore 3D printing and additive manufacturing. His enthusiasm for my projects inspired me to push myself to design the most innovative jewelry. Mr. Masuda has been and will always be an inspiration to me and every student who has ever had the honor of having him as a teacher."

Han's parents are Hueymeijou and Hengchu Han.

ROHAN SINHA

Bloomfield Hills High School

Rohan Sinha of Bloomfield Hills is deciding among Washington University, Vanderbilt University and the University of Michigan. He intends to study business/engineering and entrepreneurship. Sinha wants to own his own business someday, be a consultant and high-level thinker.

His academic honors include National Merit Scholar finalist, AP Scholar with Distinction, OAA Scholar-Athlete and Presidential Scholar Award candidate.

Sinha is captain of the varsity tennis team, captain of the Model United Nations, plays varsity lacrosse and is founder of the Money One Financial Literacy organization.

His most influential teacher, Sinha said, is Matthew Macleod, who teaches AP history. "He teachers with immense passion and introduced me to the value of a strong humanities education," Sinha said.

2014 ACADEMIC ALL-STARS

KATHERINE YOUNG

Detroit Country Day

Katherine Young of Bloomfield Hills will attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Young said she is undecided on a major, but is leaning toward physics or biology, with a minor in one of the humanities. She is considering neurosurgery and dermatology as possible career paths.

Her academic honors include National AP Scholar with Distinction, National Merit finalist, High School Honors Science Program, University of Chicago Book Award, Blue and Gold Scholar Athlete, eighth place in the National Brain Bee, summa cum Laude, Cum Laude Society and the Mabel Peng Memorial Scholarship.

Young is concertmaster and president of her school orchestra, plays first violin in the Detroit Civic Orchestra, was a member of the Michigan All State Orchestra, earned 12 first division ratings at Solo and Ensemble Festival, is a varsity member of track and field and cross country, is a member of her school's Peer Tutorial Service Board and is captain of the Science Olympiad team.

She said her most influential teacher was Donald Corwin, who teaches AP U.S. history and AP government. "His class was the first history class I truly enjoyed," she said. "Without him, I would not have understood how studying the past and politics could be so fascinating."

Young's parents are Li Wang and Tao Yang and she is sister to Chris, 14.

ARKADIY FRASINICH

International Academy, Bloomfield Hills

Arkadiy Frasinich of Oak Park has been admitted to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is still waiting to hear from Princeton University, the University of Chicago and the University of Michigan. He plans to pursue graduate school in mathematics and possibly academia as a career.

His academic honors include taking 19th place in the Michigan Math Prize Competition and scoring a 36 on the ACT test.

Frasinich is a member of the National Honor Society, German Honor Society, Science Olympiad, played French horn in band and was president of the school math club.

Frasinich said his most influential teacher was Robert Uleski. "My history teacher, Robert Uleski, has helped me expand my interest in history and as an intricate subject with many incredible stories," he said.

Frasinich's parents are Viktoriya and Vyacheslav Frasinich.

RILEY DANKOVICH

Marian High School

Riley Dankovich of Royal Oak hasn't selected a college yet, but her short list includes the universities of Georgetown, Vanderbilt, Princeton and Wake Forest. She plans to study linguistics and international studies, with a goal of entering the publishing field.

"No matter what my profession, I want to bring awareness to the necessity of becoming global citizens through cultural understanding and communication," Dankovich wrote in her all-star application.

Her academic honors include National Merit finalist, Scholastic All-Catholic Award and Marian 1st Honors Honor Roll. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Spanish Honor Society, Marian Melodies and Marian Liturgical Choir.

Dankovich said history teacher Dante Melotti helped her immensely. "He influenced me greatly because of his enthusiasm for teaching, his high expectations for students and his role as a mentor to me," she said.

Dankovich is the daughter of David and Lynn Dankovich and is sister to Logan, 19.

MADHURIMA DAS

Plymouth High School

Madhurima Das knows she wants to major in engineering. Now she just has to figure out where.

Das, a Canton resident, is considering the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Michigan and Cal Tech.

"I want to become an engineer, most likely working with nanotechnology's applications in biomedical engineering," she said.

Among her academic honors, Das is a National Merit Scholarship finalist, a semifinalist in the Siemens Science Competition, earned the Madame Curie Medal for Achievements in Science and Mathematics from the Society of Women Engineers, Rensselaer Medal winner (with $15,000 scholarships each for four years of college), a National AP Scholar with distinction, first-place winner with an invitation to Intel ISEF, special award from Mu Alpha Theta (Mathematics Honor Society), Science and Engineering Fair of Michigan, Lawrence Technological University Excellence in Science and Math award, a $40,000 University of Michigan Engineering College Scholarship, a $20,000 scholarship from Kettering University and various awards at Science Olympiad regionals.

Das is part of the Science and Research Fair; a senior captain of the Science Olympiad team; on the leadership board for Math Olympiad; she's part of the leadership for buildOn, an international organization that provides education to third-world countries; she's on the varsity diving team; National Honor Society; she plays piano; part of Everyone is Beautiful, a website that promotes positive self-esteem in teenagers; and a contributor of humor articles to Sparklife (the community portion of the Sparknotes website).

Among her most influential teachers, Das names AP calculus teacher Karen Ludema, AP biology teacher Sharon Caldwell, AP English literature teacher Gretchen Miller, AP chemistry teacher Scott Milam and AP computer science teacher Phil Sands.

"(Ludema) was a wonderful math teacher and coach for Math Olympiad and she was very enthusiastic about the math research I was doing ... which made me love it even more," Das said. "(Caldwell) was so passionate about her subject and held her students to such high standards that it was impossible not to love the subject by the end of the year."

Das is the daughter of Shuvra Das and Mitali Chakrabarti.

JONATHAN GREENBERGER

Birmingham Seaholm High School

Jonathan Greenberger of Birmingham has been accepted to the University of Chicago and the University of Michigan and is waiting to hear from a few other colleges. He hasn't declared a major, but is interested in biology, mathematics and economics. As for a career choice, Greenberger is not yet sure what he'd like to do. "I want to have a career that is enjoyable, challenging and meaningful," he said.

His academic honors include National Merit finalist, Harvard College Book Award, MHSAA Scholar-Athlete nominee, Oakland County Scholar-Athlete, Michigan Math Prize Competition Finalist and AP Scholar with Honors.

Greenberger is a member of the National Honor Society, the Seaholm swim team, was vice president in charge of membership at Temple Beth El Young Persons Society, a lifeguard at Pine Lake Club and co-president of the Seaholm chess club.

Greenberger said his most influential teacher was Michael Wicker. "Mr. Wicker always made subjects like economics and western civilization both interesting and relevant to me. He showed me what it means to be professional," he said.

Greenberger is the son of Marc Greenberger and Julie Buch. He is brother to Erin, 21, Alexa, 11, and Mitchell, 9.

NEHA HAFEEZ

Canton High School

While Neha Hafeez isn't completely sure which college she'll be attending, she knows she wants to be a doctor.

So that's the career path she'll choose after completing college at one of the schools she's considering - the University of Michigan, University of Pittsburgh or the MedStart program at Wayne State University.

"I am extremely passionate about the medical field and academically driven, making being a doctor the ideal profession for me," she said. "For me, one of the particularly attractive aspects of medicine is the potential to form close and meaningful relationships with a wide array of patients."

Hafeez accumulated a variety of academic honors during her scholastic career. She was a National Merit finalist, a National AP Scholar (with all 5s on eight AP exams), actively participated and been recognized in various mathematics competitions including Michigan Math Prize Competition, AMC 10/12, Fryer, Mandelbrot and Michigan Math League, was a state finalist in the Economics Challenge, was an AP Scholar with Distinction and won Special Recognition for Student Government Service.

She was board secretary for the Canton Congress, which she said "taught me many valuable skills in leadership." She was the business sponsorship coordinator for the Feed My Starving Children program, during which she helped pack more than 112,000 meals for hungry children around the world. She was a researcher for the Henry Ford Hospital Research Program, where she observed autopsies and surgeries.

Hafeez said her AP biology teacher, Sharon Caldwell, had the greatest influence on her because "she was the first teacher I had for a formal biology course. She made me fall in love with the topic, making medicine an even more suitable profession for me. Besides this, she is a fantastic teacher. She teaches with a lot of energy, making the class entertaining as well as informative."

Hafeez is the daughter of Mohammed and Yasmeen Hafeez. She is a sister to Adeeb, 15.

TAPAN NAIK

Farmington High School

Tapan Naik is planning to attend the University of Michigan's College of Engineering this fall, but is still unsure of a specific major - either biomedical, chemical or mechanical engineering.

"As of right now for my career goals, I have absolutely no idea," the Farmington Hills resident said. "One thing that I'm sure of is that my education won't end with undergraduate studies. I hope to make an impact on the lives of at least a few people."

Naik is involved with the Farmington Run for the Hills for the Special Olympics, National Honor Society, Relay for Life, serves as an after-school tutor and participates in the after-school recycling program.

He is secretary for the Farmington Hills Mayor's Youth Council, a board member of the Health Occupations Students of America, a Varsity Quiz Bowl member and Michigan Math League participant.

Naik is an AP Scholar with Distinction, a regional finalist and state competition qualifier for HO-SA-Future Health Professionals. He has also qualified for the second round of the Michigan Math Prize Competition.

Naik credits two teachers as most influential. Jeremy Gold, who teaches advanced placement U.S. history, helped his transition to high school. "Mr. Gold's passionate and enthusiastic lectures helped me transition into my new school. His love for history helped me develop my own passion for learning," he said.

Naik credits Mark Azeez, who teaches advanced placement calculus, with showing him how much fun learning can be.

"Mr. Azeez's class was a combination of fun and learning," he said. "Many jokes were thrown around in class, along with anti-derivatives. He showed that learning and fun aren't two separate entities."

Naik is the son of Girish and Sangeeta Naik. He is a brother to Rohan, 15.

KEVIN NI

Plymouth High School

Kevin Ni of Canton wants to be a computer programmer and plans to major in computer science at the University of Michigan.

"I plan on becoming a software engineer for a leading tech company such as Google or Microsoft," Ni said.

Ni is a National Merit finalist and a National AP Scholar.

Among his extracurricular activities, Ni has volunteered for the Feed My Starving Children program, he's a board member of the Math Olympiad, he's part of the Science Olympiad team and he volunteers with the National Honor Society.

He calls computer science teacher Phil Sands his most influential teacher. "He turned computer science from an interest to something I want to do throughout my life - computer programming," Ni said.

Ni is the son of Ben and Jun Ni. His a brother to Kelly, 14.

IAN O'ROURKE

Seaholm High School

Ian O'Rourke of Birmingham plans to attend the University of Michigan School of Engineering to study aerospace engineering.

"I would like to be a part of the upcoming developments in the manned spacecraft field, like the SpaceX Dragon capsule that could soon take Americans astronauts into low Earth orbit and beyond NASA's Orion spacecraft, which will take astronauts into deep space for the first time since the Apollo era," he said.

His academic honors include National Merit Scholarship finalist and Michigan Math Prize part two qualification.

O'Rourke plays alto saxophone in the Seaholm marching band, symphony and jazz band and is a Fellow in the Institute of Innovation in Education at the University of Michigan-Flint. He also developed the Seaholm Highlander Mobile Application.

O'Rourke said his most influential teacher has been Eric Burns. "Mr. Burns really cares about his students," he said. "He wants them to succeed and strive in society. His teaching style for AP calculus BC was one of the most intriguing and effective styles that I have witnessed. His classroom is never a serious place and pranks are often played in good humor."

O'Rourke's parents are Beth and Michael Shawn O'Rourke he is a brother to Connor, 14.

NITIN RAM

Salem High School

Nitin Ram of Canton said he'll "most likely" attend the University of Michigan and will study engineering.

"I am interested in pursuing a career in engineering, particularly in computer science," he said.

Ram counts among his academic honors being a National Merit finalist; qualifying for the American Invitational Mathematics Exam; scoring in the top 50 on the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition; qualifying for the Quiz Bowl national finals; leading Salem's Science Olympiad team to the state competition at Michigan State University; and qualifying for and participating in the six-week Ross Mathematics Program at Ohio State University.

He led the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Math Club, captained the Salem Science Olympiad team, participated in Quiz Bowl, was involved in an independent service project through the National Honor Society and helped found the STEM club at Levey Middle School in Southfield.

He's also a third dan black belt in tae kwon do and served as an instructor.

He names programming AP statistics and AP computer science teacher Phil Sands, AP calculus teacher Karen Ludema and AP Spanish teacher Alicia Maturen as his most influential teachers.

"(Sands) sparked my interest in computer science. His way of integrating current events and technology into the course content made the subject very interesting to me," he said. "(Ludema) has been immensely supportive throughout my high school career, both as a teacher and as the teacher-sponsor of Math Club. (Maturen's) classes were among the toughest I've ever taken, but they were always engaging and relevant."

Ram is the son of Ram Chilkunda and Mridula Ram.

into a passion," she said. "That is why dealing with the brain interests me. I hope to develop a new technology to make things better for anybody with a disability or injury."

She is captain of the varsity pom team, a junior coach for the Livonia Falcons, a member of the Mid American All Star Pom Pon team, a volunteer at North Ridge Church in the special-needs ministry, special-needs counselor for Spring Hill Day Camps and a math and science tutor.

Her academic honors include being a member of the National Honor Society, a Scholar-Athlete, AP Scholar with Distinction and summa cum laude.

She credits teachers Paula Nowell and Scott Sherburne with having the most influence on her. Nowell, who taught Sikorski's accelerated analysis and AP calculus classes, made seemingly dull subjects interesting, she said. "She is deeply invested in my academic skill, but even more so in my success," Sikorski said. "She genuinely cares about me - as a student and as a person."

Sherburne's biology class was the highlight of Sikorski's day. "His teaching was incredible and he gave me many new methods of learning and studying science that still aid me three years later," she said.

Sikorski is the daughter of Kelly and Gary Sikorski. She is a sister to Shaylyn, 22.

piad state tournament. He was fourth at the Robofest BTOS World Championship and finished first in the Robofest Intelligent Ground Vehicle Competition.

Yue was captain and team member of Canton Robofest Robotics; captained the Canton Science Olympiad team; is president and founder of the Computer Applications Club at Canton High School; attends the Ford Motor Co. High School Science and Technology Program; and is the junior varsity leader of the PCEP Quiz Bowl.

He has volunteered at the Canton Public Library, the Plymouth-Canton Chinese Learning Center and has done volunteer work with the National Honor Society.

Yue said AP computer science teacher Phil Sands had the biggest influence on him. "He introduced me to the world of computer science and the countless real-world applications of computer science," he said. "He encouraged me to always do my best even in times of failure and to be the person who I am today."

Yue is the son of Junping Yue and Yulie Liu.

JOO YUNG PARK

Cranbrook Kingswood

Joo Yung Park will attend the University of Michigan or the University of Western Ontario to study biology. He is planning a career as a physician or a dentist.

His academic honors include cum laude.

Park has been active as president of Horizons-Upward Bound, a group which connects Cranbrook students working as tutors with inner-city Detroit youth. He is also president of the French Club, editor of the yearbook and member of the Science and Engineering Club.

Park is vice president of the Chamber Ensemble and member of the golf team and soccer club. He worked as a full-time intern in the National Assembly of South Korea. He also worked as a student volunteer in the emergency room at St. Joseph Mercy Oakland Hospital in Pontiac.

He plays the alto saxophone in the symphony band and has received honors at State and Solo Ensemble festivals.

Park named Debra Viles (AP U.S. history) and Bruce Kohn (AP chemistry) as the teachers who most influenced his academic career.

Park is the son of Soo Hyun Park and Min Sun Song of Ontario, Canada. He is the brother of Eugene Park, 14.

ALEX YUE

Canton High School

Alex Yue of Canton wants a career in the software industry when he gets out of college.

Yue has already been accepted into Princeton University. He plans to major in computer science, specializing in software engineering and artificial intelligence/machine learning.

"I aim to work in the software industry and, hopefully, launch a successful start-up company," he said. "I truly believe computer science will revolutionize the world with creations such as self-driving cars and intelligent voice assistants. I hope to participate in the countless innovations that are emerging from this industry."

Yue was a National Merit finalist, was first place in the Robofest VCRC World Championship, took sixth place in robot arm and 10th place with a gravity vehicle at the Science Olympiad, was a state finalist in the MCEE Economics Challenge and was a National AP Scholar.

He finished fourth at the Robofest R2R World Championship and placed in robot arm, gravity vehicle and thermodynamics at the Science Olym-

SAVANNAH SIKORSKI

MADONNA FORENSIC SCIENCE RESEARCH GETS FEDERAL FUNDING

A bloody fingerprint found at the scene of a crime could be the evidence police detectives need to solve the case, but often the process for lifting and enhancing the print can destroy the crucial and delicate evidence.

This obstacle led Jessica Zarate, a forensic science faculty member at Madonna University, to develop and patent Zar-Pro lifting strips; a less complicated way to lift, enhance, and preserve bloody impressions.

The Forensic Science program at Madonna recently was awarded a $250,000, two-year grant from the National Institute of Justice to further research in this area. The faculty members hope to develop a spray that offers a simple, timely, cost effective and non-toxic method to aid in the collection of bloody impression evidence.

"This is the first major research grant for Madonna," said Sister Rose Marie Kujawa, president. "It is a testament to the depth of our faculty's experience in forensic science, as well as our state-of-the-art science labs. The results of this research have the potential to significantly enhance how crime scene evidence is collected, and that's exciting."

GRANT HELPS LAUNCH PROGRAM FOR TEACHERS OF DEAF CHILDREN

Madonna University has been awarded a $30,000 grant from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan to create a master's degree program to prepare teachers to educate Deaf children.

The first program in Michigan to offer this level of specialized instruction, the Deaf Education program will qualify students for teacher certification with a graduate-level endorsement in teaching the hearing impaired. A distinctive feature of the program is its foundation in a bilingual and bicultural approach based on fluency in American Sign Language.

With its history as an educational leader in the deaf community, and a reputation for excellence in teacher preparation, Madonna University is well-positioned to develop a program that meets Michigan requirements and the unique needs of this very special population.

The College of Education offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in early childhood, elementary and secondary education, educational leadership, autism spectrum disorders and more. The College received an exemplary rating from the State of Michigan, on the Educator Preparation Institution Performance Scores for 2011-2012.

STUDENTS LEARN AND SERVE IN COSTA RICA

During Spring Break in March, Costa Rica became the classroom for students enrolled in either humane studies or biology, as part of Madonna University's Study Abroad and Service-Learning programs.

Andrew Domzalski, humane studies professor, along with Veronica Riha, biology professor, planned the trip for their respective courses. "Humane studies is about protection of the environment, along with social justice for the local people and protection of animals," said Domzalski. "That is what really happens in Costa Rica. They are known for their preservation of the rainforest and biodiversity."

Chemistry major Stephanie Mackley, described her trip to Costa Rica as an educational adventure and found it difficult to select the most memorable aspect of her journey. "We captured sea turtles, went snorkeling, toured an organic farm, and so much more!"

For students who wish to enroll in this course in the future, Mackley advised, "If you can get past the bugs, sign up!"

VINAYAK BHATIA

Farmington High School

Vinayak Bhatia of Farmington Hills plans to study biology and mathematics, likely at the University of Michigan, with the long-term goal of becoming a physician.

"I love helping people and want to do that for the rest of my life," he wrote in his all-star application.

Bhatia has been honored as an AP Scholar, a state finalist for Business Professionals of America and Health Occupation Students of America and a semi-finalist in the Michigan Math Prize Competition.

He is vice president on the Mayor's Youth Council, a member of the National Honor Society, as well as the Health Occupation Students of America and Business Professionals of America.

Bhatia is a cello player and has earned first-chair in the high school orchestra. He also volunteers at the Farmington Community Library.

He named Mark Azeez, who teaches math, Steve Dail in physics and Peg Convery, who teaches chemistry, as his most influential teachers.

Bhatia is the son of Naresh and Gori Bhatia. He is a brother to Roma, 23.

and creative teacher and driven scientist." She described Zidanssek "as enthusiastic and challenging."

"She encouraged thinking outside the box," Stork added. Stork is the daughter of Mary Coffey and Gary Stork.

STEPHANIE LIU

Cranbrook Kingswood

Stephanie Liu of Bloomfield Hills plans on studying math and physics or electrical engineering in college. She is undecided about what university she will attend.

She is planning a career in electrical engineering.

Her academic honors include cum laude (top 10 percent of her class), Dean's List and Cranbrook Academic Honors.

Liu is president of Model United Nations, news editor-in-chief of the newspaper, vice president of the Math Club and president of Gold Key Club.

Herbert Snitz (math/pre-calculus), David Watson (Spanish) and Frank Norton (AP physics) are the teachers who most influenced her learning career.

Liu is the daughter of Youyi Le and Gordon Liu and the sister of Justin, 11.

bell ringer for the Salvation Army Red Kettle Campaign.

Her academic honors include being a National Merit finalist and AP Scholar.

Teacher Paula Nowell's sense of humor and personal connections to students made Scupholm enjoy going to AP calculus and accelerated analysis. "She also taught me many life lessons that are valuable beyond the classroom," Scupholm said.

Teacher Tim Gabel inspired Scupholm to pursue a business-related degree. "Mr. Gabel taught AP micro-economics and AP macro-economics in an interesting, relatable way," she said.

Scupholm is the daughter of Lois and Jeff Scupholm and sister of Beth, 15.

HEMANTH CHITTELA

Salem High School

Hemanth Chittela of Canton plans to attend the University of Pennsylvania in its Artificial Intelligence dual-degree program, majoring in computer science and cognitive science. He wants to work as a software engineer in the field of robotics and says his career goal is to develop "machine learning and artificial intelligence to revolutionize interactions both between humans and machines and among machines."

He is a National Merit Scholarship finalist, an AP Scholar with Distinction and a Presidential Scholars Program nominee and scored a perfect 36 on his ACT test.

He was captain of Salem's Science Olympiad team, captain of its National Science Bowl team, public relations officer for the Android Applications Club and mentored the Science Olympiad team of East Middle School. He has helped underprivileged students apply for college and prepare for their ACT tests, has volunteered at the Canton Public Library and both practices and instructs in Isshinryu karate.

Chittela named Scott Milam as the teacher who had the greatest influence on him, saying Milam's AP chemistry class was one of his favorites. "Mr. Milam's engaging teaching style and fun, spontaneous sidetracks fueled my interest in chemistry," he said.

Chittela is the son of Arun and Padmaja Chittela is brother to Nikitha, 12.

SHANNON STORK

Marian High School

Shannon Stork of Farmington Hills plans to attend Case Western Reserve University or Wooster College. She will double major in biochemistry and music.

Her career goals include that of a college professor and researcher in the field of behavioral genetics.

Stork's academic honors include National Merit finalist, salutatorian, Honor Roll (First Honors), Honors French II, Honors Precalculus Certificates of Achievement, National Honor Society and National French Exam Award.

Stork was a member of the Marian-Rice Players (cast and crew and dance lifts co-captain), Marian Melodies (audition vocal choir producer) and Marian Liturgical Choir. She is also a member of the Our Lady of Sorrows Adult Vocal Choir and takes private voice lessons.

BARBARA SCUPHOLM

Stevenson High School

Barbara Scupholm of Livonia plans to attend the Central Michigan University Honors Program to study accounting and French. Her goal is to attain a master's degree in accounting and to become a certified public accountant at a large international public accounting firm.

She is captain of varsity cross county and varsity track and a member of the National Honor Society and French Honor Society. She also is a peer mentor and after-school tutor.

Her volunteer activities have included working as a junior counselor for church day camp, participating in the Livonia Relay for Life, packing food boxes for the Redford Goodfellows and being a

FORD COMMUNITY CORPS STUDENTS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

As members of the Ford Community Corps, Madonna University students were matched with local non-profit organizations that fit with their interests, skills and academic majors, which included: biology, education, dietetics, communications and social work.

Through this service-learning experience they gained skills in leadership and mentoring, while working with faculty and such organizations as First Step, Adult Autism Spectrum Disorders, Livonia Seedlings Braille Books for Children, and The Education Experience of Detroit. This year 17 students and seven faculty mentors worked with eight community partners to design, develop, plan, implement and evaluate a project for the non-profit.

Ford Community Corps scholars gain valuable insight in career options and are exposed to the significant roles and responsibilities of corporations in civic life. They also see firsthand the commitment of Ford Motor Company to sustainable communities, and are able to demonstrate how their own participation is making a difference in the community.

► Mike Schmidt, director of education programs for Ford Motor Company Fund talked with students about their projects.

BCA STUDENTS PRODUCE ASL MUSIC VIDEOS

Students from Madonna's broadcast and cinema arts (BCA) and sign language studies programs worked together to produce four American Sign Language (ASL) music videos. The students masterfully incorporated the creative requirements of the class with the aesthetic expectations of members of the Deaf community.

As the student teams developed creative interpretations of popular songs, they were coached by actor Daniel Durant, who plays Matthew on ABC Family's Switched at Birth.

This year's music videos interpreted these songs:

- Unconditionally* by Katy Perry
- Pompeii* by Bastille
- Anything* by Hedley
- Wings* by Little Mix

See all the videos at www.madonnasls.com/musicvideos. They also are posted on YouTube; search Dan McDougall sign language.

MADONNA OFFERS ONLINE CERTIFICATES RELATED TO AGING

Thanks to a $30,000 grant from Felician Services Inc, Madonna University is offering three online certificates for professionals and family caregivers of aging adults. "People 65 and older are among the fastest growing segment of the population, and these certificates will prepare caregivers to better serve this group," said Sue-Anne Sweeney, chair of Madonna's Gerontology program.

Beginning in Spring/Summer semester 2014, the following certificates are offered on a credit and non-credit basis:

- Certificate in Aging and Older Adults (3 courses, 9 credits)
- Certificate in Dementia Care (5 courses, 11 credits)
- Essentials in End-of-Life Care Certificate (5 courses, 15 credits)

Those who will benefit from the end-of-life care certificate include, "Social workers, chaplains, nurses, nurse's aides, grief counselors and other staff in palliative care settings," said Kelly Rhoades, chair of Madonna's Hospice and Palliative Studies program.

These certificates provide access to professional development, credentials and enhanced educational resources for those people involved in day-to-day service with patients and families.

▲ For the past three summers, Madonna nursing students have travelled to Lourdes, France, where they assisted the sick and disabled who were making the pilgrimage to the Sanctuary of Our Lady of Lourdes. Madonna President Sister Rose Marie Kujawa and nursing faculty members are pictured with the students who made the trip in 2013.

Churchill High School

Aditya Vemulapati of Westland has decided to attend the University of Michigan, where he plans to major in neuroscience and minor in psychology. He plans to go to medical school and become a doctor and wants to do medical research.

He is a member of Churchill's National Honor Society and Spanish Honor Society chapters, won an academic letter and a scholar-athlete award. He is also a National Merit Scholarship finalist, an AP Scholar with distinction and was a finalist in the Michigan Math Prize competition.

He is president of the Success Strategies Club, a mentoring and tutoring group; co-founder of the Young Liberals Club and its vice president; a Quiz Bowl team member and captain; and was a representative on the Student Council. He played on the Churchill tennis team and was a student teacher in Balavihar, a program to educate people about Hinduism.

Vemulapati's volunteer work includes helping out at Relay For Life; co-chairing an American Red Cross blood drive, tutoring struggling students in various subjects; and working at Oakwood Annapolis Hospital.

He named three influential teachers: Frost Middle School science teacher Carim Calkins, Churchill advanced biology teacher Joel Meloche and Churchill language arts teacher Andrew Wood.

Vemulapati is the son of Satyanarayana and Padmaja Vemulapati and is a brother of Anoosha, 12.

STEVEN

Clarenceville High School

Steven Spens of Livonia will attend University of Michigan, where he plans to double major in economics and Chinese and possibly minor in physics or biochemistry.

He wants to be an economist, investment banker, researcher or work in public service "to fix America's problems through holding an important public post such as being a U.S. diplomat to China."

He has been on the soccer, wrestling and track teams and plays saxophone in the marching band. He was treasurer and then vice president of chapter activities for the school's Business Professionals of America group. In recent BPA competitions, he took second place nationally for insurance concepts and first place in the state for banking and finance.

His academic honors include the Departmental Math Award and the Leadership Award from the Kiwanis Club.

Chinese teacher Grace Philson pushed Spens and almost single-handedly taught him her language. "She forced me to use Chinese, not just translate words back into English. Now we don't even speak in English to each other anymore," he said.

Spens is the son of Laura and Richard Spens and is brother to Elijah, 15; Kimberly, 12 and Paul, 10.

SAMMY

Brother Rice High School

Sammy Stevens of Beverly Hills will be attending Georgetown University on a baseball scholarship, where he will study business management and economics.

"I want to get my MBA, then pursue corporation management, as well as study start-up companies and entrepreneurship," he said.

He ranks first in his class at Brother Rice High School and is a National Merit Semifinalist. He was captain of the Brother Rice Band of Brothers, a spokesperson at high school award ceremonies and a mentor group captain.

Stevens was a member of Brother Rice's Division 1 state finalist baseball team and was all-league and all-state as a junior. He has also participated on travel baseball clubs that won a national championship while being named to the all-tournament team. He is a finalist for Michigan High School Athlete of the Year.

He has volunteered with St. Regis Olympics for inner-city children, been a Kairos Retreat leader and been a tutor for Brother Rice Junior Band of Brothers.

Stevens named two teachers as having influenced him: Bob Barnes "because he had an expansive understanding of physics" and Donna Johnson "because she challenged me more than any other teacher in English."

He is the son of Theresa Rizer and Derek Stevens and brother to Sera Stevens, 16, Deaglan McGreevy, 9, and Emir McGreevy, 9.

SIBA

International Academy

Siba Alzohaili of Bloomfield Hills will study neuroscience and Spanish at Wayne State University or the University of Michigan.

"I want to be a psychiatrist or social worker," Alzohaili wrote in her all-star application. "I would like to work directly with people to help them be happier and healthier."

Alzohaili's academic awards include Spanish Honor Society, French Honor Society, National Honor Society and summa cum laude. She is also a National Merit finalist.

Alzohaili was editor of the Literary Magazine and a contributing author. She is a member of the Students for Human Equality and the Muslim Student Association. She also tutors at Alcott Elementary School in Pontiac.

Robert Uhelski (history) is the teacher who most influenced her. "He taught me to always strive for excellence," she said. "He also taught me more than I ever needed to know about Stalin."

Alzohaili is the daughter of Hala Alkhatib and Opada Akzihaili. She is sister to Wehbe, 15, Dana, 12, and Mohamad, 8.

WILLIAM

Brother Rice High School

William Markley III of Bloomfield Hills plans to study science or engineering and will attend the University of Notre Dame.

Markley plans to pursue a career in science, medicine or business.

He is a National Merit Scholar, a member of the National Honor Society, ran on the cross country team (earning all-Catholic League honors) and is a DECA letter winner. He has participated in the BEAM&R Club, was a student government representative, a Kairos Retreat leader, member of the Latin Honor Society and member of the Model United Nations.

Markley's community work included involvement with Christ Child Society and as a student volunteer with the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society of Michigan, Holy Name Catholic Church and Brother Rice High School.

He named two teachers as most influential: Leslie DeSimone, honors chemistry - "Her passion for the subject helped fuel my interest in the sciences" - and Daniel Bumpus, AP U.S. history - "He was very energetic and made the classroom interesting."

Markley is the son of Molly and William Markley Jr. and brother to Claire, 16, and Catherine, 15.

STEPHEN

Churchill High School

Stephen Fedak of Livonia plans to attend University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, where he will major in biomedical engineering.

"I would like to pursue research into developing new techniques for the diagnosis and treatment of genetic and auto-immune diseases and to use my training as an engineer to improve the lives of others," he said.

Fedak plays snare drum in the drum line and percussion in the wind ensemble. He is a pole vaulter for varsity track and field and a member of the Inversion Vault Club. He has been a fourth/fifth grade small group leader, junior counselor at Ward Kids Kamp and a cast member in Ward FX. He volunteered on a summer mission in Detroit.

His academic honors include being a KLAA Scholar Athlete, AP Scholar with Distinction and receiving MSC certificates of merit in AP calculus BC, AP physics and AP biology.

The teachers who influenced him the most are Doug Coates, Joel Meloche and Sean Senecal.

"Mr. Coates, in addition to accomplishing the difficult task of making calculus not all that daunting, grew my appreciation for math and challenged me to think critically," he said. "Additionally, the care he shows for all of his students outside the classroom is a great example to me," he said.

Meloche's AP biology class is responsible for Fedak's choosing the major he did. "The questions he posed concerning the interactions and relationships of biological systems drove me to go far beyond the scope of the course and consider how I could harness those relationships to create something meaningful," Fedak said.

Senecal, who taught world and U.S. history to Fedak in middle school, showed him "how important attention to details is in analyzing historical events and why keeping up with current events is so important in producing a good understanding of the world."

Fedak is the son of Taras (Terry) and Michele Fedak and the brother of Andrew, 15.

BRADLEY E.
SMITH

Groves High School

Bradley Smith of Beverly Hills is deciding between the University of Pennsylvania and Northwestern University. His career goals include a master's degree in education and a job as a high school or college mathematics instructor.

Smith is a National Merit finalist, a member of the National Honor Society, a Groves Scholar, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, an AP Scholar with Distinction and has won the Silver Key in Persuasive Writing in the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards and was a Round II competitor in the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition.

Smith's extracurricular activities include serving as treasurer of the Groves Performing Arts Company executive board; member of the International Thespian Society; awards in scenic design and group musical from the Michigan Educational Theatre Association; and roles in performances of Shrek the Musical, Radium Girls, Sherlock Holmes and Once On This Island.

He was also team captain on the varsity forensic team, a ballet student and performer, an executive board member and participant in the Groves Big Brother/Big Sister Mentoring Program and a summer camp counselor at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center.

Smith named AP Spanish teacher Jennifer Hoinka as his most influential: "(She) created such an efficient, yet warm and welcoming environment and pushed me to learn and love a new language and culture."

Smith is the son of Miryam and Thomas Smith and brother to Thierny, 23.

HANNA

Groves High School

Hanna Pfershy of Southfield plans on attending the University of Michigan, where she will major in cellular and molecular biology.

She plans on making a career out of medicine. "I will be entering the medical field, possibly in research in tissue engineering," she said.

Pfershy's academic honors include being a member of both the National Honor Society and Phi Beta Kappa, as well as being a Groves Scholar and scholar-athlete.

Pfershy was director of curriculum for the Groves Student Congress; a team captain of the Groves Big Brother/Big Sister Mentor Program; and team captain for both the Groves swim and dive team and water polo team.

She named Christina Marentette, honors and AP physics, as her most influential teacher. "(She) had the greatest influence on me because she taught me the importance of having a passion for what you do in life. In every aspect of your life, if you truly enjoy what you are doing, then you will be happy."

Pfershy is the daughter of Lori and Jeff Pfershy and sister to Taylor, 19.
