W-W students get close look at court

Students learn the consequences of late-night Pokemon Go in Goudy Park.

LeAnne Rogers

In honor of Constitution Day, Franklin Middle School students got a close look at how the courts operate that included watching a group of defendants appear on tickets for being in a Wayne park after hours playing Pokemon Go. Over the course of three sessions held in the school cafeteria, about 425 eighth-graders and some advanced class seventh-graders -American history class students — watched actual court proceedings. Westland 18th District Court Judges Sandra Cicirelli and Mark McConnell, along with Wayne 29th District Court Judge Laura Mack, each presided over a session with the students.

"The first 10 amendments to the Constitution provide pro the Constitution provide protection to people charged with crimes," Mack told the students. Among those rights — a right to a speedy trial, a right not be deprived of liberty or property without due process and a right not to be subjected to double jeopardy — effectively being tried a second time after being acquitted of charges. charges.

"There won't be any trials today — there isn't time. We will be conducting arraignments, accepting pleas and holding sentencings," Mack

Mack's docket included 10 defendants ranging in age defendants ranging in age from 17-36. All were ticketed for being in Wayne's Goudy Park — a WiFi and Pokemon Go hot spot — for being in the park after dark in violation of city ordinance. There is a large sign at the park entrance alerting visitors that the park ing visitors that the park closes at dark.

"A lot of you are familiar with Pokemon Go. A lot of white Pokemon Go. A lot of these defendants were in the park after dark playing Poke-mon Go. This might be in-structive for students," Mack

BILL WOULD ALLOW ESTAURANT PATIOS

Matt Jachman

Dining al fresco may soon become dining al Fido in Mich-

A bill passed by the Michigan Senate earlier this month would cut red tape for restaurant owners who want to allow patrons to bring their dogs onto patio and sidewalk seating areas, a practice some area restaurateurs already allow

The move is generally get-ting the thumbs-up from peo-ple who work at area restau-rants where outdoor seating is popular.

"I'm all for it. I love animals," said Jennifer Kirby, a manager at Toast on Pierce

Street in Birmingham.
"From our experience, downtown Farmington is a very dog-friendly city, so it would make sense for us," s 'said Suzy Silvestre, owner of Chive Kitchen, a new vegan restaurant on Grand River.

Senate Bill 727's primary sponsor is Sen. Margaret O'Brien, R-Portage, who said she was looking for a way to accommodate people who travel with their dogs and want to bring them along when they go out to eat while on trips.

O'Brien, who is in her first Senate term, said she'd been working on the legislation since she was in the state House of Representatives. It was reintroduced as a Senate bill earlier this year.

"We took a very slow approach," O'Brien said. "We did a lot of research about what other states have done, what kind of problems they've had." O'Brien said she consulted with the Michigan Restaurant Association as part of the research process. O'Brien pointed out that covisions have been made dogs when it comes to other facets of travel, such as at campgrounds and motels that accept dogs, but that the pooches are generally left out when it comes to eating out.

Restrictions apply

Her bill would allow restaurateurs to decide whether or not they'd allow dogs at their establishments and would also allow local communities to ban dogs from patios and sidewalk dining or establish a more restrictive set of rules Restaurants that opt in could also set restrictions on the sizes and types of dogs allowed. Restaurateurs would have to notify the local health department at least 30 days in advance of allowing dogs on patios and sidewalk seating.

A dog would have to be leashed and in control of a person 18 or older, could not sit on restaurant furniture or on a diner's lap, and restaurant personnel would have to follow specific cleanup procedures in case of accidents.

Rest stop gun case heads to trial

A Garden City man accused of brandishing a gun during a dispute with a maintenance worker at the Interstate 275 rest stop in Canton has been ordered to stand trial in Wayne County Circuit Court. Tony James Wielkopolan, 28, is facing trial on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, felony firearm, a concealed weapon violation and a misdemeanor marijuana offense after he appeared Friday in Plymouth 35th District Court for a preliminary hearing.

A second defendant, 25year-old Cheyenne Rae Allard charges against her. Detective Sgt. Dan Traylor has said the pair was charged after a tense situation unfolded about 8:40 a.m. Friday, July 29, at the rest area on I-275 near Cherry Hill. He said an argument between Wielkopolan and a maintenance worker escalated until a handgun was brandished, though no shots were fired and no one was injured. Based on statements made to police, Traylor said Wielko-polan and the rest stop worker got into a fight and, as they fought, it was alleged that Allard got a gun from a vehicle and gave it to Wielkopolan.

"He ended up chasing after the maintenance guy," Traylor said, but the incident ended without gunfire.

Canton police happened to be near the rest stop when witnesses reported the in-cident. Officers spotted the alleged getaway vehicle, pulled it over without incident and arrested the suspects.

He said the three restaurants already accommodate diners with dogs by allowing them to sit near the patio rail, with their dogs outside the rail. At Simply Fresh on Penniman, co-owner Sam Warra takes it a step further. The restau-rant has a few tables at an unfenced area on the sidewalk. "Already, I don't stop them from sitting there if they have a dog," he said. Warra said he'd heard about O'Brien's proposal on the radio and would have "no problem" should it become law. Steven Tominna, an owner at One Under Craft Beer and Eats on Five Mile in Livonia, said they've had some dogs at the patio in the past and it typically hasn't caused problems.

In fact, they some times get the same service their owners do. "When I see dogs out there, I usually bring them a bowl of water," he said. "Some people are afraid of dogs, but I haven't had anyone com-plain before."

Dog-lovers 'have money, too'

At Toast, Kirby, the manager, said it's become more common over the past couple of years for patrons to bring their dogs. Like the Fiamma Grille, Sar-dine Room and Compari's, Toast also allows dogs to sit just outside its fenced patio area while their owners eat.

Kirby endorsed O'Brien's legislation.

"People with dogs have money, too," Kirby said. "As long as it doesn't offend the guest sitting next to them. At Chive Kitchen, the patio is accessible from the outside, so no changes would have to be made. Owner Sil-vestre is all for having the option.

"I can understand a restaurant not being able to accommodate based on their staff, etc., so everyone will have to make their own deci-sion," she said.

The law already allows service dogs, such as those trained to guide blind people, at restaurants, and Oakland County allows dogs onto patio and sidewalk seating areas under a special waiver for which restaurants can apply. Kath-leen Forzley, a health officer with the county's health division, said applicants for the waiv-er must show how the establishment would deal with the health concerns that could be posed by mixing dining and dogs. Oakland County's rules for restaurants with the variance are similar to those in O'Brien's proposal, which is now in the regulatory reform committee of the Michigan House. As for O'Brien, she has two dogs, Daisy, a miniature schnauzer, and Honey, a shih tzu, that she would likely leave at home. Although Honey is well-behaved, Daisy is "very food-motivated," O'Brien said.

Stop the fireworks

My subdivision is composed of small residential lots, and nowhere is it legal there to shoot off fireworks because they have to be at least 70 feet away from any building per local Canton Township ordinance.

The night before the Labor Day observance holiday, it sounded like a war zone in my neighborhood after dusk and so I called Canton Public Safety to come investigate the fireworks.

The responding police officer informed me and my wife that the 70-foot restriction was waived for the three-day fireworks allowance, per the

Of the ones that I do find, there is nothing even close to that price. I also wonder why they need so many. They have radios and dash cams in the cars. Don't they also have some sort of radio pinned to their shirt? If that many officers are onduty at the same time wouldn't they be doubled

Mayor Walker has said several times that the city manager doesn't have a vote at the council table. That may be true, but ask yourself one question: Has he or any council member ever disagreed with any suggestion that the city manager has made? Garden City Pokemon infringes on others

I thought I had seen it all as regard the stupidity of my fellow man, but then they go one step further in their outlandishness. I'm referring to the latest bizarre cultural craze Pokemon Go.

It's really unbelievable that this stupid game was even invented in the first place or that there would be so many morons who would gobble it up like Pac Men. Pokemon is a cartoonish character meant for 5-yearolds and the current online game is based on kids stuff, which shouldn't appeal to

The whole concept of the game is dumb and it's planned out poorly in that it doesnst take into account the private proper-ty rights of businesses, homes and public areas, like cemeteries. This instant nuisance has now produced zombie armies who blindly march around and illegally tres-pass while their braindead faces are shoved into their iPhones. You even have people driving now while playing this silly kiddie game. This foolishness must end! The designers of the game should be sued and forced to shut down the game. Laws should be passed to keep "the walk-ing dead" out of such places as cemeteries. People were already disconnected enough from each other as it was, isolated inside their techno bubbles of talking and texting on cells, wearing earbuds to avoid an inperson human voice and now we have this!

It's imperative to un-derstand that life on this Earth is composed of precious few short years and that our life can af-fect others and improve the quality of the planet before we "shuffle off this mortal coil," but modern society demonstrates a truly shallow nature of what T.S. Eliot described as Hollow Men when they can waste their time and lives away in frivolous pursuits like Pokemon rather than doing volunteer work or doing anything of a constructive or redeeming nature.

Since some of these idiots are so beyond hope, an apt solution would be to round them all up, put them on a huge boat on a one-way cruise and drop them off on a deserted island where they can merrily and obliviously stumble around in circles seeking their cyber creatures, where they'd be far enough away that they

Glad for Meijer

I was at the meeting of the Northville Township Board of Trustees Sept 15, but did not have an opportunity to speak. Had I spoken, I would have shared these thoughts.

I have been a resident of Northville Township for 31½ years. In that time, tremendous change has taken place.

Most of the speakers at the Sept. 15 meeting were, probably unbeknownst to them, following a longstanding tradition in our community: Now that my house is built and I live here, close the door behind me and don't allow any more development.

I can remember resistance to the paving of Six Mile west of Sheldon, resistance to the Meijer at Haggerty and Eight Mile, resistance to numerous subdivisions built west of Northville Road, etc. The argument has always been the same: increased traffic, loss of open green areas, increased need for police, fire protection, schools.

Traffic will increase at the intersection of Five Mile and Beck, regardless of how the northwest corner is developed. Plymouth Township continues to develop the south side of the road and subdivisions continue to be built west of Beck. To halt development based on potential traffic problems is inconsistent with the township's reactions to development concerns of the past. Were we to halt development based on traffic, there would be no subdivisions west of Sheldon Road

I was surprised by the extremely negative reaction to the placement of a Meijer in the development. Born and raised in Grand Rapids, I have been shopping at Meijer since I was literally in the womb. The Grand Rapids area supports numerous Meijer locations and, to the best of my knowledge, Meijer has been a very cooperative and supportive member of their community.

The west side of our township is underserved by shopping; have the occupants west of Sheldon given any thought to the relief of traffic to those of us residing in the east part of the township?

Furthermore, it is apparent that Meijer is interested in having a store near Five Mile and Beck. If they are shut out of the Northville side of the street, what would stop them from building on the south side of Five Mile? Plymouth Township may be happy to have the tax revenue, while we would have only the benefit of shopping located in close proximity to those living on the west side of Northville Township with no control over traffic patterns, size of the store or green space

I was happy to hear the board passed the development with the inclusion of greater green space. In general, I am in support of the pro-posed development, al-though I look forward to some tweaks. I thank the Northville Township Board of Trustees for their fine representation of our entire community.

Citizens furious

I was in attendance and in opposition of the planned development at Five Mile and Beck.
While your body copy touched on the outrage, I think your headline was not in keeping with the feeling of Northville. Board may have OK'd, but citizens are furious.

And the "well-oiled machine" is laughable. Makes me sad that when citizens engage in their civic duty to hold repre-sentatives accountable for keeping the wishes of citizens in mind, that they defer to a "machine" argument.

Get rid of unwanted stuff Saturday

LeAnne Rogers

Following two permitfree garage sale week-ends, Westland residents have an opportunity to get rid of unwanted bulk items for no charge.

The Westland Department of Public Services will be open from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday so residents can drop off large items for disposal. Those items can include furniture, mattresse appliances and similar items.

"This is for Westland need proof of residency. We won't accept commercial or building materials." Westland Mayor William Wild said. The permit-free ga-rage sales and bulk dropoff day were set up to help address concerns about changes in the city trash hauler services that began charging residents for collection of bulk items. One concern had been the large number of bulk items brought from other communities for the then-free collection and disposal in Westland.

Along with its single-stream curbside recy-cling, Westland also participates in Simple Recycling, which provides free collection of cloth ing and small household appliances.

About 100 people participated in the permit-free garage sale weekends. Councilman Adam Hammons commented that he would like to see the city continue to issue permits for garage sales but to eliminate the fees. "We still need to have permits. There are people who use garage sales like a business," he said.

Eat your veggies: Area mom launches 'Nosh Pit' food truck

Sharon Dargay

Karen Kahn Schultz was between jobs, a single mom temporarily relying on food stamps to make ends meet, when she began cooking vegetarian meals from scratch at home.

"You know how you eat well on 50 bucks a week? You cut out the cheese, do nothing from boxes. If you do vegetables, greens, you can live well on 50 bucks a week. That was my cooking transition, at a time when I had no money. That's when I started making my own sauce, my own breads."

Six years later, Schultz has parlayed her cooking and baking skills, her graduate business school knowledge of strategic management, a knack for problem-solving and a whole lot of research and persistence into one of the area's newest food trucks, Nosh Pit Detroit, whose tagline promises "no bologna sandwiches."

She and her business partner, Stefan Kudek of Redford, serve vegan and vegetarian soups, sandwiches and desserts, with some gluten-free options, from the bright green food truck that, since its grand opening late last month, has been booked at numerous events throughout southeast Michigan, from a bat festival in Clinton Township to South Lyon's Pumpkinfest to a horse farm celebration in Plymouth.

Nosh Pit Detroit has entered the food service industry at a time when the popularity of food trucks has exploded.
"I was in Columbus (Ohio) for the sixth annu-

"I was in Columbus (Ohio) for the sixth annual food truck festival. There were over 80 trucks," said Chris Ramos, founder and CEO of Detroit Custom Coach, an Oak Park company that designs and builds only food trucks. "Southeast Michigan is opening up and a lot of cities want to be on board. A lot of corporations are inviting trucks in. They see the value of having a different kind of lunch."

More licenses

In Oakland County, where Nosh Pit Detroit is licensed, a total 59 food truck plans was submitted to the county's health and human services department in the past nine months, compared to 43 in 2015.

"You can see how much it has increased in the last two years. We're already doing more than we did in all of 2015," said Tony Drauty, Oakland County environmental health administrator. He said the county has issued annual licenses for a total 215 food trucks.

"It's very popular right now and a lot of people try to pursue it," he said.

He's not sure how many try and fail, how many submit plans but don't follow through, how many buy a truck but run short of cash.

Schultz and Kudek were determined to avoid those pitfalls, although they encountered a few speed bumps along the way. It took them more than two years to get Nosh Pit Detroit on the road after Schultz floated the idea in early 2014 during a monthly potluck cooking club they both attend. By that time, Kudek was working as a baker after being laid off baker, after being laid off from his job in the music industry. Schultz had bounced back from unemployment and had been working for Waste Management for a couple of years. She had married and currently lives in Troy with her husband Eric, her two teenage children and her grandmother.

"Time after time the best food was from Stefan. He does the cooking at home and took cooking classes in France," Schultz said. "We were sitting in his kitchen and I said, would you ever start a food truck? And he said, I'd love to start a food truck. I said let's find out how we can do that"

that."
She quickly discovered there was "no single resource" to find all of the answers.

Getting started

Almost as soon as they began research, her husband's work took the family to Israel for several months. Before she left, they talked about a menu and came up with a business name. Kudek took a course at FoodLab Detroit and, when Schultz returned home, she went to food truck rallies, approached food truck owners, watched television shows about food trucks and read food trucks and read food truck-related books. She quit her job to work on the food truck concept full time and wrote a proposal to Hebrew Free Loan, hoping for $30,000 to $50,000. Members of Snackties, the potluck cooking club, co-signed for the loan. Meanwhile, she sold her house in Royal Oak, where she had lived as a single mom for several years. She wishes more food where shad been willing to talk with her. She and a handful of other industry insiders are talking about starting a group to communicate with each other and to answer questions from startups.

"It needs to happen. You can't have a whole bunch of restaurant owners reinventing the wheel every single time and that's what's happening," she said. "I'm lucky to have so many friends helping me. I ran into one of my professors from business school, who went through my business plan and all my numbers. Another blessing is Hebrew Free Loan hooked me up with a mentor. I've been emailing and meeting with Eric Ersher, the owner of Zoup! He has been awesome."

Catering

Kudek, the chef, mostly is responsible for the sandwiches and soups and Schultz, the CEO, bakes desserts and has handled licensing and financial requirements. She took food safety classes and earned her food safety manager certification, a requirement for the food truck, and they began catering private events last year while awaiting word on the loan. When it came through in April, Nosh Pit Detroit was ready for a truck and licensing.

Schultz found a vehicle through Craigslist. It had been stored in a barn in Howell.

"I got it from a guy who got it from another guy who was going to turn it into a food truck, so it came with a sink," she said.

After its engine was repaired, Schultz headed for Detroit Custom Coach. The company builds new food trucks, upgrades existing trucks
— as it did for Nosh Pit Detroit — and facilitates customers with plans and interior layouts that are submitted to health departments.

"Requirements are pretty specific. They (the county) want to know who your food sources are, how you're cooking each item, what equipment you're using. They need spec sheets on every single piece of equipment," Schultz said.
"We're different from other food trucks, because all we're doing is grilling. Other food trucks have fryers and burners. We're keeping it simple."

STFU vs. mobile unit

She applied for a mobile food unit license, meaning that Nosh Pit Detroit's truck must return to a kitchen every day. The other kind of license, a special transitory food unit (STFU), allows a food truck to operate independently, like a restaurant on wheels.

"I really rely on that kitchen for the mobile unit, but I don't have to have everything inside the truck. As long as I can have enough tongs and soup ladles to last the whole trip, I don't have to be constantly washing. The STFUs need 10 times as much water, because they are going to wash their own dishes."

their own dishes."
Schultz and Kudek
cook their soups, prep ingredients for sandwiches and bake desserts in the off-site kitchen they rent. They reheat soups such as their spicy tomato "Shakshuka," in crock pots on the truck. They assemble sand-wiches as customers order them and currently offer six selections, including lentil sloppy joes and a grilled cheese made with marinated mushrooms and banana jam. Desserts — beet cupcakes, macaroons and three varieties of Schultz's vegan cookies — round out the menu..

Schultz had hoped to become the first kosher vegan/vegetarian food truck in southeast Michigan, but after meeting with rabbis, calling synagogues and touring several kitchens, hasn't found exactly what she needs to serve items from her truck that are prepped in her commissary.

In the meantime, Nosh Pit Detroit is concentrating on serving customers "good food, good healthy food," Kudek said.

"We're refining the menu as we go along. We're doing the Pumpkinfest in South Lyon and I've got a pumpkin soup I make. I'm going to try that," Kudek said. "I like cooking new things. I don't want to get too set

'Sexy vegans' featured in calendar to aid Sasha Farm

Sharon Dargay hometownlife.com

According to Debra Levantrosser's calendar, 2017 will be the year of the sexy vegan and rescued farm animal.

Levantrosser, owner of Shimmy Shack food truck, recently launched the "2017 Sexiest Vegans in Michigan" wall calendar. Sold through Shimmy Shack's website and at the truck, the calendar includes photographs of vegans, both men and women, with farm animals at Sasha Farm, an animal sanctuary in Manchester.

Shimmy Shack released its own calendar in 2015 and 2016, but this is the first time it has partnered with Sasha Farm. Fifty percent of profits from the sale of the 2017 calendar will go to the animal sanctuary and another 10 percent will be donated to the Jim Ward Scholarship at the Center for Creative Studies. Ward, who died last year, was a partner in the food truck, which is based in South Lyon.

"Sasha Farm's values match our values. We believe animals have personalities and deserve love. To us, eating a pig is the equivalent of eating a dog. If people got to know pigs, they'd see pigs have personalities, just like dogs, and the same with cows," Levantrosser said. "We like what Sasha Farm does and how they do it."

Levantrosser also hopes the calendar also puts a face on veganism. Vegans follow a plantbased diet that excludes animal products such as dairy foods. They also may refrain from using items, such as leather shoes or purses, that contain animal products.

"We believe veganism is often misunderstood and misinterpreted," Levantrosser said. "We're trying a multitude of ways to reach people, to show that vegans are fun, sexy, smart and we thought the calendar was an additional way to reach people, to show and highlight great people we have in southeast Michigan who are vegans.

"I think vegans are

"I think vegans are often seen as strange, hippies, liberal and, while some vegans may be those things, not all of us are. We're very diverse. There have been stereotypes attached to vegans and those are the stereotypes we're trying to break."

Vegans were selected for the calendar through an application process via social media. Applicants indicated how long they have been vegan, explained why they wanted to be in the calendar and identified their favorite Shimmy Shack menu item. Levantrosser said the models ranged in age from 18 to 50-plus.

"We even have a centerfold of nudes — just their backs — but it's a very cool photo of seven women on a big baler."

Mariner headlines rock show for animal rescue

Sharon Dargay

Rock and roll meets cats and dogs when Mariner plays a rare live concert to benefit homeless animals this week-

The 1980s-era rockers will donate half the proceeds from their concert Saturday, Sept. 24, at the Token Lounge in West-land to Guardian Angel Animal Rescue in Livonia. Sandy Mezza, GAAR founder couldn't be happier

The Westland resident says she has been bugging the group — particularly its bassist and lead singer Pat Mezza, her husband — about performing for her res-cue since she founded it years ago. "He finally said, 'We'd better shut her up and play," she said with a laugh. "Two years ago, they did a reunion show and sold out. This year, we have people flying in from out of state to see them. Guardian Angel gets half the door. It's a huge event."

Her goal is to raise approximately $4,000 to help pay vet bills. The rescue is facing nearly $2,000 in surgery costs alone for one cat with a dislocated joint. She suspects the cat caught its limb in a trap. It's the second cat she has dealt with that has had that particular problem.

and dogs, mostly those that "nobody wanted. She said the animals enjoy her husband's music.

"They're used to it. One lays next to his (Pat's) feet. Our terrier will dance with you," Sandy said, adding that all of the Mariner band members have rescue animals.

Film, TV

Mariner was formed by a group of friends who graduated in 1972 from Annapolis High School in Dearborn Heights. After high school, the band played clubs and toured, in-cluding in Japan.

and we're still getting people asking for our music."

Mariner's original music has been in demand for film, television and commercial projects over the past 15 years. The band stopped playing live concerts as its members traded life on the road for marriage, families and day jobs.

"We were getting older. You can't make a living on it without traveling," Mezza said.

Coming out of retirement two years ago for a reunion show was "a big " because Mariner hadn't performed on a regular basis in years

'When we were playwhen we were play-ing for 24 years, we were a machine," he said. "That's all we did. We had a crew, a truck to carry the equipment. We don't play live anymore." He said the reunion show two years ago drew 550 fans. Another 200 were turned away after tickets sold out.

The upcoming show starts at 7 p.m. and fea-tures performances by Sweet Crystal, The Great Mystery, Kenny Hill Group and SRP, along with Mariner. Tickets are $15 in advance at ticketweb.com (search Mariner) and $20 at the door. The Token Lounge is located at 28949 Joy, Westland; 734-513-5030

Willy the Pig contest, Harvest Festival debut

Diane Gale Andreassi

People who attended the first Harvest Festival in Garden City were seeing red. Crimson-colored pigs were on display during the judging of the Willy the Pig dress-up contest Sept. 16. The statues were dressed in everything from sports shirts to Olympians in honor of the city's mascot, Willy the Pig on Ford Road and Middlebelt. The firsttime statue dress-up contest that gave residents, businesses and city officials a chance to show their community pride caught like wild fire when it was announced about a month ago. Willy look-a-likes ere popping up everywhere

There were more than 71 entries from 21 different Garden City streets. "We've already had requests for the contest next year," said Stacy Karafotis who dreamed up the Willy the Pig event.

The winners are Kayla

Jakel, who gave her porker a Garden City theme; Agnieszka Kowalska Masunas, with Scarlet who was adorned in a skirt and pom poms; and third place went to Kim Dold, Garden City Downtown Development Au-thority director, who dressed her hoofed statue in a Garden City theme. Caitlin Bueller won for best costume.

Other prize winners and honorable mention awards went to Garden City Presbyterian Church, with its sign entry "Pigs Fly;" the Garden City Police Department with a picture of a real lost pig they found and returned to its Garden City resident owner; the McComb fam-ily's Olympic pig with a gold medal; and Remy the Lab and his girlfriend piggy owned by Donna Canzoneri.

There were trophies, ribbons and gift certificates donated by local businesses, including Villa Bakery, Garden City Cafe, The Wild Iris Flow er Shop, Boland Florist, Sport Venue Bar & Grill and Lucky Dog. Jakel said she entered a pig, because "it seemed like fun and I like Willy."

School Board member Sarah Roffi, who is running for re-election in November and was a Willy the Pig contest judge, said she loved the community spirit the Willy the Pig contest generated generated.

"They're adorable," she said. "I love to see how involved all the residents are."

First of seven

The Willy the Pig contest was showcased during the first in a series of seven Harvest Festivals, which is the resurrection of the defunct Farmer's Market. Michelle Nixon, who is Harvest Festival co-chairperson with Melissa Pauly-Geimer, said: 'We are thankful for the outpouring of support from the community and volunteers. We are so excited for the remaining six weeks and expect it to be bigger and better as we progress.

There has been discussion about bringing back Farmers Market back to Garden City next year if there's adequate support for the Harvest Market. The market ran May through October

Nay through October from 2008-2012. Nan Young, who grew up in Garden City and is now a Westland resident, said she hopes the Farm-ers Market will return on a larger scale next year. "We definitely want the Farmers Market back with more vegetables and home-grown things," she said as she entered the cordoned off area of the Harvest Festival at Ford and Middlebelt roads. "We're here to cheer on the Willy the Pig contest."

Domenic Herron, owner of the recently opened Westland business GrowBar, sold es-sential oil mixes. The Harvest Festival area was "spacious," which is a luxury that isn't always provided at Farmers Markets, he said. Rayna Burkhart, who sold air plant globes at the Harvest Market, is a 34-year Garden City resident who recently moved to Romulus. She said sales were "pretty good so far. We would definitely be part of a future Farmers Market."

Garden City QB Becker's spirits bolstered after season-ending injury

The final play of Kyle Becker's high school football career started as benignly as hundreds of others the Garden City senior quarterback has orchestrated during 11 autumns of playing his favorite sport.

On a the-sun's-going-to-come-up-tomorrow note, there was a silver lining to one of the worst night's of Beck-

During his post-surgery stay at U-M, Becker's favorite collegiate football player — Michigan tight end Jake Butt visited him and provided an uplifting 20-minute conversation with the injured Cougar.

They told me that an athlete was going to stop by, but they didn't say who it was," Becker said. "Jake Butt was my favorite player even before all this happened to me. It meant a lot that he took the time to stop and talk to me.

"He told me how he tore his ACL his sophomore year at Michigan and how hard he worked to get back to where he is now."

Doctors told Becker that his injury was similar to the one suffered by Michigan State University player Jalen Watts-Jackson during his game-winning blocked punt return for a TD against the Wolverines last fall.

"He's back playing now, which gives me a lot of hope," Becker said. Wheelchair-bound for at least a month and unable to put weight on his right leg for six to eight weeks, Becker is determined to return to his old, pre-

"I know my high school football career is over, but I'm going to play college football some day," he said.

Realtor of Year Zalewski lauded

Realtor of the Year Debbie Zalewski was recently recog-nized by the Southfield-based Greater Metropolitan Association of Realtors. "I get great iov from seeing my colleagues grow, succeed. and prosper. This industry has given a tremendous amount to me and I love being able to give back," said Zalew The GMAR Realtor of the Year award honors a Realtor for civic and association activity, business and educational experience, and professional competence/faithfulness to the principles of real estate

The Realtor of the Year is also honored for adhering to the State and National Code of Zalewski, the 2016 Realtor of the Year, is with Real Liv-ing Kee Realty of Troy. She is heard on "Money Matters" on CKWW, AM 580. She can also be seen on the premiere episode of "Keeping It Real Estate" on WBRW out of Romeo Zalewski is a member of e Sunrise Network Group (SNG) Circle of Senior Services Networking Group (COSS), and has been a mem ber of the Habitat for Humanity Women's Build Steering Committee for the past three vears. She has assisted with park cleanups, helped seniors, and hosted Leader Dogs for the Blind events.

"She brings great passion, enthusiasm, and energy to everything she does," said Brenda Lee Szlachta, state president for the Michigan Women's Council of Realtors

Zalewski has been a licensed Realtor for 24 years and holds an associate broker's license. Educational designations include the Performance Management Net-work (PMN), Short Sales & Foreclosure Resource (SFR), and Senior Real Estate Specialist (SRES). In 2012, she was recognized nationally with a Diamond Elite Premier Service Award.

Zalewski is the 2016 GMAR president, and served as president elect and financial secretary previously. Other positions include: 2016 NAR director, 2016 RPAC trustee, 2015 Michigan Realtors Big Data PAC, 2015 Realcomp II Board of Governors, 2016 Women's Council of Realtors (WCR)
National Steering Committee,
2015 WCR Region 2 vice president, WCR National Nominating Committee, 2014 WCR
president of the Michigan State Chapter, 2013 WCR State Chapter, 2013 WCR president elect, 2012 WCR state governor, 2009-11 WCR president, Rochester Chapter. GMAR CEO Duane Marsh said, "Debbie has proven her top-level status as a leader in the real estate profession time and again. We are proud to honor her as GMAR's Realtor of the Year."

Zalewski is a certified Real Estate Prelicense Instructor and teaches with NCI, LLC.

Appraisal: Can we sue?

Q: We are investors who purchased undeveloped lots in a planned residential commu-nity. Our lender was recom-mended by the developer and the bank secured the services of a local appraisal company. Do you think we have a cause of action because the mortgage company and the appraisers grossly inflated the value of the property?

A: Based upon a similar case out of North Carolina where the plaintiffs were pur-suing the mortgage company under the Mortgage Lending Act of the State claiming that lender had a fiduciary duty of good faith and fair dealing and that the appraisers breached their duty when they allegedly prepared faulty reports for the bank,

the court basically said that the plaintiffs in that case purchased the parcels without consulting any appraisers independent of the loan process such that any misrepresentation about the properties values would have been made by the developer and not the bank. In that particular case, the Mortgage Lending Act of the State did not apply because the properties were not purchased for personal family or household use but were investment properties and be cause the appraisers were employed by the lender, the court found they had no duty to the plaintiffs and that their information was not relied on Obviously, this is a difficult legal matter which calls for you retaining a knowledgeable real estate attorney.

Q: Our condo project has just entered into a major project to repair the roofs, but won't give me a copy of the bids or contracts. The roofers that are being hired are using my deck to repair the roof and won't clean up the damage. They are also trying to get into my gas line and claim that I have to be there. I am without hot water, etc. What can I do?

A: Simply stated, you need a lawyer to assert your rights. The board must provide you with access to their contracts, they should not undermine your ability to obtain your utilities and cannot tear up your property without giving you adequate notice and com-pensation. The longer you let it go on without recourse, the more aggressive the association will probably be knowing that you are afraid to take action against it.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the
